Snorkel Truck's Safety Challenged

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The city of Greenville plans to replace cables on the Fire-Rescue Department's snorkel truck, then test the equipment in response to an employee complaint to the N.C. Division of Occupational Safety & Health, officials said today.

According to an Aug. 13 letter to the city department from state OSHA Review Officer Max L. Avery, the N.C. Department of Labor received the complaint July 27.

"We have not determined whether the hazards, as alleged, exist at your workplace; and we are not conducting an inspection at this time," Avery said in the letter. "However, since allegations of violations have been made, you should investigate the alleged conditions and make any necessary corrections or modifications.

"This letter is not a citation or notification of proposed penalty which, according to the Occupational Safety and Health Act, may be issued only after an inspection or investigation of the workplace."

According to the letter from OSHA, the complaint involves the inspection of the department's snorkel, an elevated platform firefighting truck with an 85-foot extension.

"We the members of the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department are very concerned about the safety of our snorkel," the complaint quoted in the OSHA letter said. "This unit has not been serviced properly. The snorkel was purchased in 1970 and has been inspected only one time in 16 years by a certified testing agency. Cables have never been replaced nor adjusted."

The city, which mailed a response letter to OSHA Thursday, was required to respond to the complaint within 30 days.

"I am proud to report that the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department has never had an accident involving this fire unit, at any fire or emergency," Fire Chief Jenness Allen said in the response. "The boom was turned once before it was raised high enough, and bent one of the ladders. This was a minor problem and included no injuries or serious damage to property.

"This unit has never failed at any time when needed at a fire or emergency, and overall, we have had less problems with this unit than any we have ever purchased."

U.S. Has New Arms Pact Ready

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, on the eve of a meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, today directed U.S. negotiators to present a new arms treaty in Geneva and said it contained the toughest-ever protection against cheating.

The pact, being offered today, outlines steps for the elimination of U.S. and Soviet medium-range nuclear missiles and launchers within three years and shorter-range missiles within one year. However, it does not specify the pace of destroying the weapons within those time frames — a matter still not resolved by the superpowers.

"I have always made clear my firm belief that not having a treaty is better than having one which cannot be effectively verified," Reagan said in a statement.

"Accordingly, we are proposing the most stringent verification regime of any arms control agreement in history," Reagan said.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said previous U.S. treaties had not covered elimination of shorter-range missiles, and that the new pact outlined that subject for the first time.

Meanwhile, the White House also announced that a signing ceremony will be held at noon Tuesday in the Rose Garden on an agreement to establish "nuclear risk reduction centers" in Washington and Moscow to curb the possibility of accidental war.

The pact, the culmination of a four-year effort, will be signed by Shevardnadze and Secretary of State George P. Shultz, with Reagan as a witness.

Shevardnadze arrived in Washington Sunday, saying a decision on another superpower summit meeting depends on the outcome of the talks he opens Tuesday with Reagan and Shultz.

After the signing ceremony, Reagan and Shevardnadze will confer in the Cabinet Room and then meet again over lunch at Reagan's residence.

"We have come here to roll up our sleeves and work," Shevardnadze said on his arrival from Moscow aboard a special Aeroflot flight. "We have a number of problems to discuss, to consider."

The white-haired Soviet official brought with him a letter for Reagan from Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev. Without disclosing the letter's contents, Shevardnadze told reporters "as for the summit, everything will depend on the results of our work here."

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the letter had not been received by Reagan as of today.

Beirut Editor Shot

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A gunman today shot and wounded Hassan Sabra, publisher and editor of the Lebanese magazine that revealed the secret U.S. arms sales to Iran, police reported.

They said Sabra was being driven to the office of the Ash-Shiraa magazine in Moslem west Beirut at 10 a.m. when an assailant on a motorcycle opened fire with a pistol.

Sabra, 38, a Shiite Moslem known for his controversial reporting on Iran and the foreign hostages held in Lebanon, suffered four bullet wounds in the head, neck and chest, police said.

He was rushed to the American University Hospital, where a spokesman described his condition as "stable, not critical."

"Mr. Sabra is conscious and in complete control of his faculties," said the spokesman, who declined to be named.

Police said Sabra's 12-year-old daughter, who was with her father in his chauffeur-driven Mercedes, was wounded slightly by a bullet that grazed the left side of her chest. An earlier police report had said she was unharmed.

The would-be assassin escaped on the motorcycle, which was driven by another person, police said. They had no further details.

Sabra's bodyguard, who was driving the car, jumped out and fired his pistol at the speeding motorcyclists, witnesses said.

"I do not know whether the assailant was hit," the bodyguard told reporters, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Sabra gained international fame when he broke the story of the U.S. arms sales to Iran last November. He is known to have close ties with Ayatollah Hussein Montazeri, the appointed heir of Iran's revolutionary patriarch, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Two Killed As Gasoline Tanker, Car, Van Collide

SELMA, N.C. (AP) — Two people died today when a fully-loaded gasoline tanker exploded in a collision with a small automobile and a van at a major intersection in Johnston County, authorities said.

The tanker "had just been loaded (with gasoline) before the accident occurred," said Chrystal Stowe, a spokeswoman for the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. She said the fire was under control by 7:15 a.m.

The dead were the driver of the tanker and the driver of the small car that was behind the tanker. Ms. Stowe said. Three people in the van suffered bumps, bruises and cuts and were treated and released, she said. The dead weren't publicly identified pending notification of relatives.

Ms. Stowe said the tanker was from Coastal Transport of Goldsboro and had been loaded with gasoline at a Selma depot for transport back to Goldsboro when the accident occurred.

"We still don't know yet what caused the accident," Ms. Stowe said. "But traffic is still a mess in that area."

U.S. 70-A was blocked and will remain closed for 24 hours while the accident is cleaned up, she said, but U.S. 301 is open. She said motorists should use U.S. 70 through Smithfield for east-west travel in the area.

One witness to the aftermath of the fire said road signs were scorched. The tanker had overturned and burned, leaving only a small portion of the bottom of the tank in tact, said photographer Thomas Lee Babb, who arrived at the scene after the wreck. Babb said all three vehicles were "totally burned up."

Luby Hocutt, a dispatcher at the Johnston County Sheriff's Department, said the crash occurred shortly after 5:45 a.m.

The collision at the intersection of U.S. 70-A and U.S. 301 just outside of Selma drew rescue and fire squads from at least three area departments, authorities said.

Elizabeth Dole To Resign Oct. 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole told President Reagan today she plans to resign at the end of the month to join the presidential campaign of her husband, Sen. Bob Dole.

After meeting with the president, Mrs. Dole said her first task in the campaign would be a 12-state tour to attract votes in the South and to open a regional campaign office in Charlotte, N.C., in preparation for a series of southern primaries.

Mrs. Dole, who has been transportation secretary for 4½ years, longer than any of her predecessors, said she would leave her cabinet post Oct. 1.

"I want to be a major part of the campaign and do everything I can to be helpful," Mrs. Dole said.

Her husband, a Kansas Republican, called her "probably one of the greatest resources in my campaign" and said her "strength and popularity" will be of great help in his bid for the presidential nomination.

Senator Dole is expected to formally announce his campaign for the presidency next month.

Mrs. Dole, while transportation secretary, has spent much of her free time on the campaign circuit. Last month she reportedly spent 21 days outside Washington, often in states with key primaries. She said her campaign appearances were on her private time, including vacation.

She did not disclose details of her meeting with Reagan, saying only that she discussed a variety of transportation issues.

"We talked about (transportation) safety, he thanked me and he told me he was sad that I'm leaving," Mrs. Dole told reporters outside the White House.

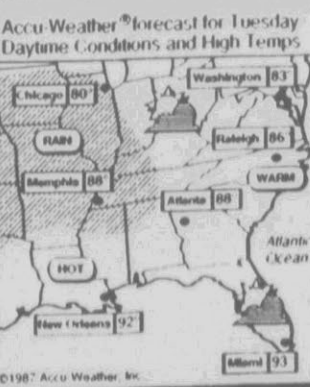

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said earlier that Mrs. Dole telephoned Reagan about 7 p.m. Sunday and asked for the meeting.

"The president has the highest regards for Secretary Dole and the work she has done," he said.

Aides to Mrs. Dole have said that members of her husband's presidential campaign staff for weeks have urged her to join the campaign full-time. She is considered a

"I love my job and the challenges it gives me," Mrs. Dole had said Saturday before an appearance for a GOP rally at a farm near Lexington, S.C.

Ayden Festival Weathers Storm

Rain threatened to dampen the spirits of those attending the 13th annual Ayden Collard Festival this weekend, but festival goers weathered the storm, said town officials.

"Everything went well," according to Town Manager Don Russell. Despite scattered showers Saturday, "I think all events were put out in order — it seemed to be a good crowd."

Although rain scattered the crowd at the festival from time to time, "We feel like it was very successful," said Mayor Marvin Baldrée Jr.

The dominant attraction at the festival Saturday morning was Collard King Mort Hurst, of Robersonville, who managed to gulp two pounds of collards in 54 seconds, Russell said.

Along with the stunt came production companies, television, magazines and a choking incident, Hurst said.

"I near about choked to death on the stage," he said. "I almost blacked out, everything was spinning ... I lost six seconds getting straightened out."

"It was the closest call I've ever had. I don't think I'll enter any more speed-eating contests," he said.

Hurst still holds the record for most collards consumed for eating 7 1/2 pounds of collards.

Filming his speed eating event Saturday were Rick Williams of PM Magazine and the Lewis Allen production company from New York, Hurst said.

LOWER JAW OUT OF BALANCE

You use your lower jaw probably hundreds of times a day without even thinking about it. It's one of the most natural and easiest movements in the world when it's in proper balance and not causing any pain or discomfort because of temporomandibular joint problems.

Your temporomandibular joints are located on each side of your head, just internal and in front of your ear openings, and are connected to your lower jaw. You use your lower jaw, for example, whenever you chew, talk, yawn, swallow, sing, whistle, etc. It may surprise you to learn that your upper jaw does not move at all. It is fused to the skull.

The muscles in the upper and lower jaws that you use for chewing all act together to help hold the lower jaw in proper relation to the upper jaw. But problems with the temporomandibular joints can throw your lower jawbone out of balance, bringing pain and discomfort when you open and close your mouth. When this happens, you should seek our help as soon as possible.

Smokeless Cigarette Will Use, But Not Burn Tobacco Leaf

NEW YORK (AP) — R.J. Nabisco today announced that R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. is developing a "smokeless cigarette" that uses but does not burn tobacco and produces no tobacco smoke odor or ash.

"Since the tobacco does not burn, a majority of the compounds produced by burning tobacco are eliminated or greatly reduced, including most compounds that are often associated with the smoking and health controversy," said Edward A. Horrigan Jr., chief executive officer of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

The "smokeless cigarette" is a tiny steam generator that delivers tobacco taste and nicotine to the smoker, according to published reports.

The company said in its announcement that the cigarette would look, light and smoke like any other cigarette, but would produce no ash and virtually no sidestream smoke after the first few puffs. In addition, the company said, the cigarette, when lying flat, is unlikely to ignite most materials.

If there is no burning of tobacco, it would eliminate the dangers of tar, which is created by the burning, said D. Layton Davis, director of the Tobacco and Health Research Institute at the University of Kentucky.

Industry observers have said the cigarette will contain a small amount of tobacco, but will rely on steam to deliver tobacco taste. The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution reported in their combined Sunday editions.

A short, heat-producing element is at the tip of the cigarette. When lighted, the element heats an "aerosol forming material," probably water. Steam produced by the heating element is drawn across tobacco. The "smoker" inhales the steam, along with tobacco flavor and nicotine.

The description is contained in a patent application that Reynolds filed April 3 with the European Patent office, the newspapers said, quoting a source who has a copy of the application.

The cigarette contains substantially less tobacco than a standard cigarette.

Researchers at Reynolds have worked for three years on the project, code-named "Operation Black Hole."

One researcher expressed caution about the product.

There could be dangers associated with the heat element, said Paul Middendorf, a research scientist at the Georgia Institute of Technology. "We don't know what else is going to be given off. Once you put plastics in there you have to be concerned about the compounds in the plastics."

There also were questions about whether consumers will accept the product.

"Smokers are going to be skeptical about it. They are going to question whether the product gives them the same sensation and flavor. The smoke itself is part of the satisfaction," said Dave Brenton, head of Smoker's Rights Alliance, based in Phoenix, Ariz.

U.N. Leader Takes Peace Negotiations To Baghdad

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who brought his quest for peace to Iran over the weekend, today began talks with Iraq's foreign minister on a cease-fire in the 7-year-old war.

Iraq's state-run newspapers said in editorials today that Baghdad would accept nothing less than full implementation of the U.N. Security Council cease-fire resolution passed July 20. It commits both countries to a halt in hostilities on all fronts and requires Iran to withdraw from Iraqi territory.

Iranian President Ali Khamenei told Perez de Cuellar Sunday that Iran would not accept the resolution unless Iraq is branded the aggressor.

The U.N. chief and his aides met Foreign Minister Tariz Aziz and other officials at the Foreign Ministry at midmorning for negotiations, said a Foreign Ministry official. He provided no details of the talks.

U.S. Navy warships escorting two reflagged Kuwaiti tankers, the 81,283-ton Surf City and the 79,999-ton Chesapeake City, meanwhile reached the Strait of Hormuz in record time today, taking advantage of a lull in the Iran-Iraq tanker war, shipping executives reported.

The convoy, the eighth since the U.S. escort operation began in July, made no stops along the 550-mile journey after leaving Kuwait, as previous convoys had done, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

SWAT Car Recovered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A SWAT team officer who lost his car and weapons to thieves when he stopped at a restaurant has recovered the car's stripped-down skeleton but not the guns, authorities said.

Los Angeles County Sheriff's Deputy Bill Chaffin reported his red 1986 Chevrolet Z-28 Iroc Camaro was stolen Thursday night while he was at the Red Onion restaurant in Woodland Hills, 25 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles.

At the time, the restaurant was featuring a "Naughty Nightie Night," but Chaffin said he wasn't aware of the contest when he decided to stop.

The car, apparently stripped by professional thieves, was recovered Saturday in Glendale, said Deputy Pete Fosselman. The weapons were still missing late Sunday.

Among Chaffin's missing weapons are a 9mm machine gun, a 12-gauge Bonelli shotgun, a .38-caliber revolver and .357-caliber Magnum, Fosselman said. Chaffin also lost ammunition for all of the weapons, a fatigue suit and two olive-green SWAT uniforms.

Chaffin was returning home from a SWAT training session in the Santa Clarita Valley when he stopped at the restaurant.

"Normally members don't carry the weapons in their personal vehicle, but he was on training and in the process of returning them to the SWAT office," Fosselman said.

In an interview, Chaffin acknowledged stopping at the restaurant but said he didn't know about its Naughty Nightie Night, a contest in which female customers and waitresses are judged by their skimpy nighties.

He said the weapons were not visible inside his car, and he had concluded the car was not stolen for the weapons.

Chaffin, of suburban Canoga Park, has been a member of the sheriff's special weapons and tactics team for two years and has been on the force for 13 years.

Study Says Space Station Plan Difficult And Risky

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Research Council said today that NASA's plan to construct an orbiting space station will be difficult and risky and cannot be done "on the cheap" but will require a long-term commitment by the government.

In a four-month study commissioned by the White House, the National Security Council and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, an NRC committee found that the space station plans "rank as the most ambitious and lengthy task NASA has ever undertaken."

The study committee chairman, Robert C. Seamans Jr., said in a statement released with the study that for the space station project to succeed, it will require "consistent and adequate funding."

"One of the valuable lessons learned from the Challenger tragedy was that major space programs cannot be developed 'on the cheap,'" Seamans said. "Nor can they be subjected to continual budgeting and scheduled pressures without disastrous results."

The government and the American people, he said, "must be willing to make a strong and durable commitment to the program's success."

To build the station, the report said, NASA must improve the reliability of the space shuttle, develop more powerful rockets to enable the shuttle to carry more weight into orbit, build expendable rockets that could help resupply the space station, and develop systems to allow the shuttle to stay in orbit longer.

The study said NASA's design for the initial phase of the space station "is a satisfactory starting point," but it recommended that the nation's long-term space goals be identified before the second phase of the space station is determined.

NASA's plans call for developing the space station in two steps which the agency calls Phase I and Phase II. Phase I calls for construction in orbit of a large beam with modules provided by the United States, Japan and the European Space Agency attached at the center and eight solar-power arrays at the ends of the beam.

The Phase II plans call for construction of two "keel" beams perpendicular to the center beam, additional power and a co-orbiting platform.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Troubled Waterway

The infection infesting the Pamlico River's blue crab population points a finger at the waterway's predicament if current abuses continue.

A disease potent enough to disfigure crabs and eat through their shells is an alarming reminder of the fragile nature of the river's ecosystem. The infection is also a tangible illustration of how environmental harm can affect the productivity of the Pamlico estuary — and reduce its significant value as a revenue source.

The blue crab harvest provides local commercial fishermen with considerable income. The disease afflicts as much as 45 percent of the Pamlico's blue crabs and makes them unsuitable for sale or consumption. That fact could effectively reduce the harvest — and the fishermen's income from blue crabs — by a substantial percentage. That cutback will be felt in the pocketbooks of the maritime communities surrounding the river.

The situation compounds the other problems suffered by the Pamlico River and Sound — problems aggravated by industrial and residential development along its banks and harmful agricultural runoff. Although no evidence has linked the disease with wastewater discharges of 50 million gallons per day from Texasgulf Chemicals Inc., most of the diseased crabs have been caught within a few miles of the plant.

State officials are correctly taking steps to assess the environmental factors that could produce bacteria potent enough to eat through crab shells. If these findings connect the Texasgulf discharge with the disease, it will be yet another mark against the industry which was recently steeply fined for air quality violations.

The research being done by the state should not be set aside as mere background once studies are complete. Recommendations for restoration of water quality are mandatory if the river is to keep its abundance of marine life.

The blue crab disease is perhaps the most disturbing recent evidence of environmental ill health in the Pamlico. The nation's second largest estuary cannot afford to lose ground or productivity. Incidents like the blue crab disease emphasize the importance of safeguarding the environment fostering this productivity.

Final Rest

It was finally disclosed that the late Sen. John East, the Republican from North Carolina who lived in Greenville, has a resting place in Arlington National Cemetery.

His family held a private ceremony in Arlington National Cemetery on Oct. 28, 1986. It was, fittingly, a burial with military honors. East had served as an officer in the U.S. Marines and contracted polio a brief period after leaving the service.

His life thereafter was filled with accomplishment. He was an attorney who became a respected political science professor at East Carolina University and he was a brilliant spokesman for the conservative forces in the nation.

East was elected in a startling victory over Democratic incumbent Robert Morgan in 1980 and took his seat on the Republican side of the United States Senate. East, however, was plagued by ill health during his term in the Senate and took his own life in Greenville last year.

The leaders of the nation came to honor him at memorial services held at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church but there was no announcement of interment after his body was cremated.

While the burial was private, there was no attempt to keep secret that it was at Arlington National Cemetery. A black granite monument marks the site. It is only about 100 yards from the Tomb of the Unknowns and a few feet from the grave of Michael J. Smith, the North Carolina space shuttle pilot who died in the Challenger explosion.

The grave marker includes the seals of the U.S. Marines and of the United States and reads "A spirited conservative statesman whose courageous life made a difference."

Certainly he made a difference in the lives of the thousands of people he touched during his career, particularly the students in which he had such an avid interest at ECU. Whether or not his students agreed with his views, it is likely they remember East as a man of integrity and high principles.

It may make a difference to them now that they can visit his grave site and pay homage to an extraordinary man.

Public Forum

To the editor:

While the Reagan administration is negotiating a new U.S.-Soviet treaty (to eliminate intermediate-range weapons in Europe), it is in the process of unilaterally breaking old agreements on inter-continental nuclear weapons and missile defenses.

Legislation to prevent this violation of agreements negotiated years ago has been passed in the House and introduced in the Senate. Unfortunately, opponents using filibustering techniques, have been able to prevent consideration of this legislation.

What is it? One piece, the Levin/Nunn ABM Treaty Amendment, would require Congressional approval of any Star Wars tests that exceed the traditional interpretation of the treaty.

Another piece, the Bumpers/Chafee/Leahy/Heinz Salt II Amendment, would deny funding for any equipment in excess of Salt II limits, as long as the U.S.S.R. also observed those limits. (The Salt II treaty was never ratified by the Senate, but had been observed by both sides.)

In addition, another amendment would limit Star Wars funding to $3.7 billion, still to most of us an inconceivably large figure.

The League of Women Voters believes that the current attempt to block Senate action is irresponsible. Concern for the welfare of our country and for its defense demands that this fall senators debate and vote on the future of U.S. arms control policy.

To the editor:

I would like to comment on Charlotte Purrington's letter to the editor published in your Sept. 9 edition.

Definitely, we have to be thankful that in this country our kids can go to school and learn their ABC's without being subject to political indoctrination which is the way the Sandinistas are brainwashing the children in Nicaragua.

We have to be thankful that our children do not learn that letter F stands for Fidel (Castro), M stands for Marx, L for Lenin and Y for Yanki (Nicaraguan spelling) Enemy of Mankind.

Our children join the Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts. In Nicaragua, they are forced to be members of the Little Children Sandinistas Association or the 19th of July Movement. These are political organizations.

Would Ms. Purrington imagine a military truck arriving to Rose High School to take juniors and seniors to boot camp without their parents' knowledge? Well, this happens in the Sandinista regime. They send their youth to fight while the leaders remain secure in Managua enjoying their luxury life or traveling first class around the world.

Do not blame our government for all the maladies of the world and for trying to give democracy to the Nicaraguan people. They do not deserve to live under a communist dictatorship. Can Miss Purrington name a single Communist regime that is willing to step down if they lose a free election?

Indoor Baseball Ban Sound Suggestion

RALEIGH — In the spring, one of the thoughtful political journals celebrated the U.S. constitutional bicentennial by asking several hundred of the nation's great thinkers to propose constitutional amendments.

The list included some very predictable suggestions: ERA, a balanced budget, a 6-year presidential term. But there was one surprise, a proposal to ban indoor baseball.

It's a columnist's job to understand the major issues, so I felt compelled to research this proposal. Using the two free airline tickets I got last winter when I was bumped from flights, I flew off to investigate this idea of a constitutional ban of indoor baseball.

First stop was Montreal where the Expos have just put a big orange roof over the Olympic Stadium.

Indoor stadia are sold on the premise that they protect players and fans from the inclement weather. But that didn't mean that I stayed dry in Montreal. They hadn't quite figured out how to air condition a previously outdoor stadium and the humidity level was considerable. The roof either leaked from the night's rain, or it dripped the rising condensation. Either way, I could have used an umbrella.

Earplugs might have also helped. When one goes to a ballgame, he expects to hear the roar of the crowd, not the swooning of The Carpenters. The indoor stadia are big on promotional, pleasing music. And you can't ignore it because the acoustics in these domes are terrific.

The acoustics make the game sound different. In Seattle, my second stop, the Mariners pounded the Orioles on a Saturday night. The crack of the bat takes on the sound of electric drums. There is no single sharp retort when a batter lines one up the middle. Instead, there is the sharp retort followed by its echo, echo, echo.

Those same acoustics change the way you hear your fellow fans. The low-level drone of thousands of voices disappears in an indoor stadium. Thus, the undergrowth which hides the obnoxious fans 15 rows back is cleared away. In an indoor stadium, you hear every stupid comment he makes after every pitch.

Pigeons fly around every ballpark, but they invade the indoor stadia and interrupt the game. In the middle of the Expos-Cards game, the umpire had to shoo one off the first base line. It was so amusing that the stadium television screen in center field began broadcasting a close up view.

At this point, I wondered if anyone cared who was on first.

Those television screens are another story. They're showing up in all the ballparks. But in Seattle, during pre-game batting practice, the TV screen broadcast a regularly scheduled program. Even on nights when you go out to the ballpark, you can't get away from the tube.

Maybe the biggest loss, however, is that of the outdoors: the fresh air, (maybe a little polluted in some cities) the sun of an afternoon or the moon of an evening. Domes adapt the Summer Game for December.

Our leaders always pledge support for mom, apple pie and baseball. Well, here's their chance. We need a constitutional amendment banning indoor baseball — and maybe we could outlaw the designated hitter at the same time.

A $75,000 Learning Experience

Word from the old alma mater is that the price of private education is going up faster than the national debt. A recent College Board survey revealed that the price of a diploma at one of the more expensive schools is now $75,000, which does not include gas, oil or ski trips during the school break.

Can parents afford to send a kid to college for $75,000 and still find happiness? The answer is most people can't afford to send them for half of that. And yet for some reason the older generation continues to do it. Thanks to their own sacrifice, parents are making the nut and their children are growing up in the rich academic environment everyone has told them they are entitled to.

In order to get a better picture of what exactly is going on I talked to those involved in the tuition struggle to see how they felt about it.

One student at Georgetown University took the news calmly. "Nobody wants to force our parents to come up with 75,000 big ones, but if that's the price we young Americans have to pay for a good education, I say it's money well spent. Dad had it easy when he went to college so he never knew the cost of a diploma. Now he's learning the hard way, and he'll be better for it."

The drama concerning heavy tuition is being played out everywhere. I saw a father at Johns Hopkins say farewell to his son at the gate. As he bade him goodbye, the father gave the young man his cuff links, tie clasp and gold watch. "This is it," the father told the boy. "When they are gone you're on your own."

"Where will I find you?" the boy asked.

"Your mother and I will be in the basement of a federal housing project in Baltimore. Don't worry, the move has nothing to do with your tuition. We always planned to do it that way."

A president at one of the Ivy League schools defended the high-priced costs and said that $75,000 hardly pays for books and a half-baked history teacher.

"It's wrong," he said, "to use the figure $75,000 as the cost of a four-year education, because everybody will expect one for that. We have a different plan at our school. We insist that parents throw everything they have in our great rotunda and allow the school to take what it needs."

The final person I spoke to was a football player attending a great Texas university.

"How do you feel about a college education costing $75,000?" I asked him.

"I don't think that's a lot of money to pay a linebacker. After all, we have given up a great deal to play football for our school."

"I believe you misread me. The student is expected to pay the school, not the other way around."

"Why would a college football player want to pay the school anything?" he asked.

"Perhaps to get a better education."

"I'd rather see the $75,000 go into new shoulder pads, where it belongs."

Strength For Today

Temptation is a trial. It comes upon us because we need to have our powers tried and tested. We are amazed at times as we observe how temptation always seems to be directed at those points in our lives where we seem least able to withstand. The prayer, "Lead us not into temptation," is simply a petition that God will keep us free from the trial of temptation.

But God never tempts anyone. We tempt ourselves. We go with the wrong crowd. We think that if we just had a few more of the good things of life we would be happy. But let us ponder the fact that if we have to violate our conscience by gaining any apparent value, then the acquisition of this value will make us unhappy and keep us so until we decide to change the policies of our lives and the pathway we follow.

Critics Say Guard Building Road To Nowhere

GREENSBORO (AP) — While North Carolina officials praise a National Guard operation in Ecuador as a Peace Corps-type endeavor, some Ecuadorians say the Americans — including almost 700 North Carolinians — are building a "road to nowhere."

"I don't look at them as troops. I see them as the Peace Corps, multiplied a thousandfold," state Sen. Bob Shaw, R-Guilford, told the Greensboro News & Record.

"I just can't tell you how proud I am of our boys," Joe Dean, North Carolina secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety, said during a recent tour of Operation Abriendo Rutas in Ecuador.

The operation is designed to build a road some claim will establish a supply camp for the contras in Nicaragua. Similar projects have raised objections from some governments who believe they should have the right to refuse to send their Guardsmen into such controversial situations.

Guardsmen were caught in the middle of politics as well as the rainy season, and the politics are even stickier.

This is a presidential campaign year in Ecuador, and there are at least 17 political parties. By July, the road and the U.S. troops had become a major campaign issue.

"It's a road to nowhere," said Gen. Rene Vargas Pazzos, Ecuadorian congressman and member of the center-left Popular Democracy Party. Pazzos was quoted by Ecuadorian newspapers and the Miami Herald recently. "The road will never be completed and everyone knows that," he said.

Critics of the project say it would be economically impossible for Ecuador to finish the road when the National Guard troops leave. At most, no more than six or seven kilometers of road will be completed by November.

Politicians left of Vargas Pazzos have accused the Americans of building a supply route for the contras, of constructing a missile base and of even planning some kind of Star Wars base. Basically, however, they argue that the troops violate Ecuador's sovereignty.

The Ecuadorian Congress enacted a resolution in July demanding that the National Guard troops leave the country. Febres Cordero overrode it, ruling that the Americans could stay through November.

Gov. Rudy Perpich, D-Minn., is fighting in the federal courts a recently enacted law that eliminates governors' right to send National Guard troops to foreign countries unless the Guard is needed for a state emergency. Governors of several states, including Maine, Massachusetts, Ohio, Delaware, Colorado, Hawaii and Vermont, have filed briefs supporting Perpich's position.

Although National Guard troops have trained sporadically in Central America since 1972, the dispute didn't erupt until 1985, when debate over United States support for the contra rebels against the Sandinista government in Nicaragua was becoming full-blown.

That year, California refused to send National Guard troops to Honduras, a country used by the contras as a training and staging area. In 1986, the governors of Maine, Vermont, New York, Ohio, Massachusetts, Arizona and New Mexico refused to send troops to Honduras for maneuvers and a road-building project. Some said they believed the Reagan administration intended to use the Guard in Central America to provoke an incident in Nicaragua.

Republican Gov. Jim Martin publicly supported the increased deployment of Guard troops in the region and criticized Democratic Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts.

"It's ironic that Massachusetts, the birth place of the Guard, would be the first to back out when things got tense," Martin said.

Martin sent North Carolina troops to Honduras last year. This year, he and Adjutant General Charles E. Scott, commander of the Guard in North Carolina, agreed to send 690 troops to Operation Abriendo Rutas. About 360 North Carolina Guardsmen are participating in the exercise now.

The project was to have been a series of road improvements on Ecuador's coast. But on March 5, an earthquake destroyed roads and bridges throughout the remote Amazonian heartland and stranded an estimated 100,000 people.

At the request of Ecuadorian President Leon Febres Cordero, the United States agreed to shift the site of the exercise 200 miles inland — to an area so isolated that all supplies, food, fuel and equipment, must be flown in by helicopter.

Troops have constructed about three kilometers of road since May. They must leave in November, according to terms of the contract signed by the two governments.

Even if the road is never completed, U.S. and North Carolina officials say Abriendo Rutas and the National Guard presence in Central and South America is invaluable to American interests.

"I think this exercise has been damned useful," Dean said. "Where could there be a better training opportunity?"

IN THE STATE

Gifted Students

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Although the Charlotte-Mecklenburg school system's attempts at desegregation through busing have been largely successful, classes still are racially imbalanced between classes for gifted students and those for slow learners, officials say.

"We've come a long way in terms of desegregation," said Arthur Griffin, a former school board member and advocate for black children. "But once those kids go through the schoolhouse door, they become re-segregated."

He said the system's 10 high schools, no matter what the racial breakdown of the individual school, has academically gifted classes that are mostly white. Skills classes for slow learners are mostly black. Systemwide, the percentage of black youngsters classified as gifted and talented was 10 percent in 1986, school officials say.

Some black students say even blacks who are qualified to take academically gifted classes often decide not to take them.

"They don't want to be called a nerd or something," said Mario Hall, a senior at Myers Park. "They'd rather take skills classes and be with their friends."

that form the 2,025-acre Rachel Carson Estuarine Sanctuary for more than 40 years. The sanctuary is just across Taylor's Creek from Beaufort.

When the horses started dying, residents regularly took bales of hay to the island, using their own money and supplies. People from as far away as Michigan sent money and letters of support.

Jail Report

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — The state has criticized the Robeson County Jail as overcrowded, unsafe, insecure, hot and dirty, but Sheriff Hubert Stone said the county cannot correct most of these problems unless it builds a new jail.

A June inspection by the Jail and Detention Branch of the state Department of Human Resources cited many deficiencies at the Robeson County Jail, especially overcrowding and poor safety and security under which inmates are held. The state said it could force the county to close the jail if the problems are not corrected soon.

Stone said the jail, built in the early 1900s for 107 prisoners, has averaged 140 inmates this summer. He said representatives of the Federal Institute of Corrections in Boulder, Colo., plan to visit Robeson County in the next month to study its prison needs and help county officials decide on new jail plans.

Chase Capture

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Henderson County man wanted for questioning in a shooting death in South Carolina was captured after a chase by up to 10 patrol cars through Henderson and Polk counties, officials said.

Ramio Gaona, 22, of Edneyville was arrested in Polk County Saturday and was being held in the Henderson County Jail on $15,000 bond on several traffic charges.

South Carolina investigators said they were planning to question him about the shooting death late Friday of Archie Lee McArthur, 68, of Tigerville, S.C. McArthur died of a gunshot wound to the chest during an argument about 11:15 p.m. among several people at the Rustic Lodge north of Travelers Rest, S.C.

Murder Charge

RALEIGH (AP) — A Raleigh man has been charged with murder in the stabbing death of his wife, police said.

Samuel McLean, 39, was arrested Saturday after police found the body of Phyllis Hinton McLean, 27, in the back seat of a car parked beside a tobacco field, said Lt. T.S. Matthews of the Wake County Sheriff's Department.

AIDS Clouds Confidentiality Issue

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A small number of the 500 hemophiliacs treated at a center in Chapel Hill have been or are reluctant to tell their sexual partners that they have been exposed to the virus that can cause AIDS, opening up a dilemma for their doctors.

"From an ethical point of view, it's clear that the partner needs to know, has a right to know, just as the hemophiliac has a right to know when he's been exposed to the virus," said Dr. Gilbert White, associate director of the Comprehensive Hemophilia Diagnostic Treatment Center at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

"At the same time, legally, there is such a thing as confidentiality," he said. "That is part of their medical record. So it's an invasion of privacy to go out and tell his sexual partner that he's positive. I'm not sure we can do that or not."

Because of contaminated blood years ago, hundreds of hemophiliacs now treated at the UNC School of Medicine could be infected with the AIDS virus.

At least five wives of hemophiliacs being treated at UNC who are infected with the AIDS virus now have tested positive for the AIDS virus.

The Chapel Hill center for hemo-philiacs is the nation's second largest. Of the 500 hemophiliacs treated there, five to 10 developed AIDS and more than 200 have tested positive for the AIDS virus.

Hemophiliacs — born with a protein deficiency that prevents blood from clotting normally — require regular transfusions and massive amounts of plasma, as much as a gallon at a time. A revolutionary process in the late 1960s that concentrated and freeze-dried gallons of plasma into several tablespoons gave hemophiliacs new independence.

But by 1978, the AIDS virus had reached the nation's blood supply — a discovery that wasn't made until 1981. It took three more years to develop a heat-treatment process for donated blood products.

By then, thousands of hemophiliacs were exposed to the AIDS virus. Many are now dying.

Currently, White and his staff push AIDS-infected hemophiliacs to notify sexual partners — even though that has shattered several relationships and marriages.

"The fact that we have had 50 wives come in (to be tested for AIDS) means that we're making some inroads. It's frustrating. We haven't found anyone that is totally resistant (to informing others)."

Bikers' Rally Comes And Goes, Quietly

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — The Boone Police Department put every officer on duty and borrowed personnel from state agencies to brace for a rally of motorcycle riders, but officials say the 5,000 bikers were well-behaved.

"As far as last night, all the motorcycle riders were very polite and very cordial in dealing with police officers — even when they were getting arrested," said Boone Police Chief Zane Tester.

When the rally, sponsored by the North Carolina Harley-Davidson

Dealers Association, was announced, some residents made it clear to law enforcement and elected officials that they didn't want the motorcycle riders, but officials say the 5,000 bikers were well-behaved.

But David Smith, standing beside the road Saturday, said that the attitude didn't sit well with the congregation at Perkinsville Baptist Church, which is near the rally site.

Smith, Betsy Payne, and Tom and Nancy Collins braved the drizzle at a coffee-and-doughnut stand, inviting bikers, football fans and anybody else to share a free snack.

"We're trying to present a positive image of the community," Smith said. "Everybody's talking about going home and bolting the door. We thought we'd be bold and come out with coffee and doughnuts."

Police reported no serious incidents. And there were compliments from business officials as area motels filled up.

Most arrests Friday night were alcohol-related or for minor traffic violations, said Boone Police Chief Zane Tester.

Persistent rain watered down the expected traffic jams by driving bikers away from the rally at the High Country Fairgrounds and persuading football fans at an Appalachian State University game to go home early.

Sgt. R.M. Watson said Sunday about 100 people were arrested during the weekend.

Standards

DURHAM (AP) — White people and the media continue to hold black public officials to a higher standard and deliberately harass them in ways not used against white politicians, says an expert on discrimination who first documented the trend 10 years ago.

"What I am saying is that, even without this in-depth study, it is clear that what has been referred to as the 'white male club' still operates and is still resistant to anyone not historically a member of the club coming in and trying to change the system," said Mary Sawyer, who received her doctorate from the Duke University religion department this year.

"That includes Hispanics and women as well as blacks," Ms. Sawyer said.

Ms. Sawyer said harassment ranged from withholding money needed for operations to death threats.

Wild Horses

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — State officials have adopted a plan for preventing the death of more wild coastal island horses that calls for the herd's size to be thinned annual. The health of the horses and the islands' flora also will be monitored.

Last year, 29 horses — about 40 percent of the herd on islands near Beaufort — died of starvation brought on by scarce food supplies and overcrowding.

Wild horses have lived on Carrot Island and the three other islands

We did it in May. Then we did it again in July: we lowered the price of direct-dial calling from one North Carolina Calling Area to another. With our July reduction (an average of 4 percent), we've lowered in-state prices overall more than 15 percent in 1987. Yet we're still giving you the most advanced, reliable long distance network in the world. We haven't cut corners. We've just made AT&T a better value. For information on AT&T Long Distance Service, call 1-800-222-0300 (residence customers) or 1-800-222-0400 (business customers).

'Bells Across America' Will Honor Constitution

By JEFF BARKER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Air Force squadron in Japan, an Alaskan judge, and the captain of the riverboat Delta Queen will be among thousands of Americans who will ring in a "Bells Across America" tribute to the Constitution on Thursday.

Organizers of the event are inviting all Americans to ring bells, chimes and carillons for 200 seconds and release red, white and blue balloons at 4 p.m. EDT, the time of the signing of the Constitution at Philadelphia's Independence Hall on Sept. 17, 1787.

The organizers say they have contacted or heard from thousands of communities, associations, companies, clubs, churches, military bases and universities about participating.

Seven Star Inc. of Lincoln Park, Mich., estimates it has sold between 30,000 and 50,000 balloons so far featuring a special bicentennial logo of a scroll with the words "We the people" on it, said spokeswoman Mikki Lymbert.

Elizabeth Rowan, a "Bells Across America" organizer who works for the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution, said the response has been so great that "I get tears in my eyes reading the letters."

She received a letter two weeks ago from the Air Force's 15th Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron in Okinawa, Japan, announcing it was "proud and excited" about the event and would ring a "bell of freedom."

"A certificate commemorating this squadron's participation would be most enjoyed by all 108 people serving our nation out here in the Pacific," said the letter signed by Lt. Col. Victor M. Martin.

Other respondents have been equally enthusiastic.

At the University of Michigan, Margo Halsted said she will climb to the 10th floor of the Burton Memorial Tower on Thursday and play "The Star-Spangled Banner" on the carillon, a collection of bells played from a keyboard that is struck with a closed fist.

In Lake Wales, Fla., a 12-ton bell at the Bok Tower Gardens will sound 200 times to begin a 53-bell carillon recital closing with "America the Beautiful."

The captain of the Delta Queen, which is to be docked in Nashville, Tenn., has been alerted to ring the paddlewheel steamboat's bell at the appropriate time, said spokeswoman Patty Young.

In Barrow, Alaska, citizens will adhere to a proclamation by the chief justice of the state's highest court that all judicial proceedings are recessed at 11 a.m. local time to launch a bell-ringing celebration of "the high ideals of the founding fathers."

Michael Jeffery, a Superior Court judge organizing the ceremony, said Barrow, located in northern Alaska on the Arctic Ocean, was proud to be the northernmost participant city.

Billy Carter In Intensive Care

ATLANTA (AP) — Billy Carter, brother of former President Jimmy Carter, was in intensive care today at Emory University Hospital where officials said he has inoperable cancer of the pancreas.

The 50-year-old Carter, who once described himself as a beer-drinking "good ole boy," became a national celebrity during his brother's presidential campaign.

He underwent surgery Friday, when doctors determined his condition.

He was in stable condition, hospital spokeswoman Judy Smith said today. She said he probably would remain in intensive care for a day or two.

Ms. Smith said she expected Carter to remain at Emory for a week to 10 days.

Carter's physician, Dr. Martin York, said Friday the prognosis was poor.

"It is impossible to put a time on survival with pancreatic cancer," York said. "I have had patients who have survived as long as two or three years, but for most, it is not as long as that."

Ecumenical Talks Become 'Mountaintop Experience'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — At the end of that unprecedented ecumenical encounter, Pope John Paul II looked about at the assembled Protestant and Eastern Orthodox chieftains and said: "Come and see me."

The pope's words, in a private meeting Friday, set a gracious tone of Southern hospitality for a weekend of dialogue in the nation's most heavily Protestant state.

It was a "mountaintop experience," said the Rev. Mack Branham, president of the Lutheran seminary here which joined with U.S. Catholic bishops to sponsor a "Day of Dialogue" on Saturday.

In frank but friendly way, they grappled with the search for Christian reunion, including obstacles such as Rome barring inter-communion and women's ordination.

The mood was optimistic, and mutually appreciative. It was that way, too, at that watershed summit Friday between the pope and U.S. church executives, the first meeting of such scope and openness.

"We experienced an elevated level of trust toward him, and I think he felt the same way toward us," said United Methodist Bishop Earl G. Hunt of Lakeland, Fla., president of his denomination's Council of Bishops.

"It was a historic meeting of free give and take. There was good fellowship, warm feeling and a sense of basic common purpose overriding differences."

"Fellowship" — a customary term in Southern religion which also was used by the pope — also pervaded the huge, strikingly Protestant-style worship service he led before a crowd of 60,000 in the University of South Carolina stadium, equipped with Baptist evangelist Billy Graham's sound system and pulpit.

"We stand side-by-side to confess Jesus Christ, the one mediator between God and man," the pope said, explicitly disowning the once-common Protestant charge that Catholicism looks to other mediators, such as the saints.

"Together we are renewing our common faith," he said. "We are here together as sons and daughters of the one Father, calling on one Lord Jesus Christ."

There were testimonies of faith, in the style of crusade evangelism. There were gospel hymns and Bible readings by lay members of various denominations. As they joined in the Lord's Prayer, the pope and other church heads held hands.

"If he had issued an altar call, thousands would have gone forward," commented the Rev. Robert Dalton of Cincinnati, the U.S. Catholic bishops' official observer at Southern Baptist meetings.

It was a vast display of interdenominational devotion, the first such event ever led by a pope, but the substantial strides were in the pathbreaking face-to-face discussions at the home of university president James Holderman.

The key advance, as described by those involved, was in the repeated note of newly established friendship, trust and openness.

"It made for the kind of personal confidence that you could pick up the phone and say 'Here's something we ought to do together,'" said the Rev. James Andrews of Atlanta, executive officer of the Presbyterian Church (USA).

Several said they likely were to accept the pope's spontaneous invitation to Rome.

The pope emphasized an old Protestant principle — the continual need for church reform.

He said that includes reform in Catholicism, too, adding that only by rendering "our witness more authentic" and "becoming more faithful disciples of Jesus Christ can we hope to travel the path of unity."

In their discussion, Greek Orthodox Archbishop

Iakovos of New York expressed impatience at the slowness of specific steps to reunion, and the Rev. Harold Bennett of Nashville, Tenn., urged more cooperation in foreign missions.

The pope responded sympathetically on both scores.

He didn't immediately address concerns voiced by the Rev. Avery Post, president of the United Church of Christ, about "spiritual gifts of women in the ministry" and their pain when this is denied.

However, talking with Post afterward, John Paul apologized for not responding and added, "I want to celebrate with you the charisms (spiritual gifts) of women."

Lutheran Bishop James R. Crumley Jr., head of the Lutheran Church in America, urged steps toward inter-communion, saying he felt that only human barriers kept Protestants and Catholics from sharing that central rite.

"We cannot afford to address the world apart from each other," he said.

Retired United Methodist Bishop James Mathews of Washington, an ecumenical pioneer, concluded that the pope "is going all out" for unity.

"He no longer is just speaking to us, but with us," Mathews said.

PAPAL MASS — Pope John Paul II celebrates Mass for 300,000 Sunday during a service in San Antonio, Texas. San Antonio produced the largest crowds yet for the pope's 10-day U.S. tour, but even there attendance was less than had been expected. Some left the Mass Sunday to wait for hours on hot city streets for yet another look at the man they call "the holy father." (AP Laserphoto)

Impact Of Papal Visit Slow Coming To Columbia Area

By DEBORAH SHANNON
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Yellow-orange signs saying "Witamy Papiezu Pope John Paul II" — welcome pope, in Polish — are just about the only evidence remaining of Pope John Paul II's visit to Columbia last week.

But that visit left less-tangible good will that could mean profit for both the state's economy and Christian ecumenism, officials say.

The ecumenical movement profited immediately by the 50-minute dialogue between the pope and 26 American Christian leaders, many of those religious leaders told reporters after their private meeting.

But economic profit might be a long time coming, merchants say. They had been warned weeks ago to expect 250,000 people at least for the papal visit. But on Friday, the day of the visit, only 100,000 showed up.

Some 60,000 of those were at the University of South Carolina's Williams-Brice Stadium, where the pope talked about Christian unity. Less than 12 hours later USC Gamecock fans were meeting for tailgate parties before another football game.

At one party-supply shop, Cromer's P-Nuts, co-owner J.D. Cromer said Saturday that the pope-watching parade crowd the day before had been disappointing. At most, the crowd was two-deep curbside. "That's not even what a good Christmas parade brings," Cromer said.

"It was disappointing. ... There just wasn't anybody here till maybe an hour before the pope came," Cromer said.

Cromer said one reason for the low turnout may have been all the warnings of dense traffic and impossible-to-find parking.

"My personal thought is the city kept emphasizing if you don't have to come to town, don't come. I think they scared people away. That's my personal opinion," Cromer said.

Weather, too, may have led potential pope-watchers to stay away, he said. It rained Friday morning and it was 91 degrees at parade time. But tall buildings around along the route, and Cromer said he could see only a few people peering from windows when the pope's motorcade passed.

The lack of parade-watchers left police with few people and little traffic to police. "We were standing around at 4 in the morning (Friday) wondering what to do," said one. "There are more port-a-potties than people around here."

Many of the people who greeted the pope at the airport were politicians. There wasn't much of a crowd to meet them. Where airport officials had prepared for 35,000 pope-watchers, fewer than 1,500 showed up.

Gov. Carroll Campbell and U.S. Sen. Ernest Hollings, though, both said the attendance figures were no bad reflection on the city.

John Spade, spokesman for the City of Columbia, said Saturday that city officials who put at least $120,000 of city money into getting ready for the visit weren't disappointed.

"We're excited about the visit and proud of the work we did. The figures yesterday (for 100,000 visitors) are about the same crowd size as Miami," where the pope was earlier Friday, Spade said.

Business generated from the visit was expected to contribute about $4.2 million to the city's economy, said Juay Knoechel, executive director of the Columbia Convention and Visitor's Bureau. But it will be days before the city will know how much money will materialize, officials said.

Economic return for the city will be long-term and will stem from business inquiries made by executives made newly aware of Columbia.

John Paul Appeals For Justice For Immigrants, Visits Children

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Pope John Paul II, approaching a personal mercy mission today in a pediatric ward in Arizona, pleaded with Christians to be intolerant of injustice and compassionate toward immigrants crossing over the southern border of the United States.

The pontiff reaches the mid-point of his nine-city tour today in Phoenix, Ariz., where his first stop was St. Joseph's Hospital for a visit with three critically ill children: a 15-year-old boy with an inoperable brain tumor, a 2½-month-old girl born three months prematurely and a 6-year-old girl who was paralyzed from the neck down in a traffic accident.

He also prepared a message to representatives of 195 American Indian tribes, but didn't bring the gift they wanted: a saint of their own.

The Indians had hoped that the pope would canonize Kateri

Tekakwitha, hailed as "the great unifier" of 285,000 Indian Catholics, but only the first step in a long process had been taken: she was beatified in 1980.

A mariachi band awakened the pope today in San Antonio, and at Kelly Air Force Base he accepted yellow roses from two little girls dressed in white before leaving for Phoenix.

There were few disappointments in San Antonio, where 300,000 came to Mass and John Paul was treated to a Mexican-American fiesta. Adoring crowds waited for hours on sun-baked streets for even a fast-moving glimpse, and shouted "Viva el Papa" as he passed among them.

The pope frequently spoke in Spanish, saying at one point that he felt he was in Mexico, but his emphasis was on the social concerns of the United States.

"Social injustice and unjust social structures exist only because individuals and groups of individuals deliberately maintain or tolerate them," the pontiff told representatives of Roman Catholic charities.

"It is these personal choices, operating through structures, that breed and propagate situations of poverty, oppression and misery."

At a Mass earlier, the pope called on the whole church to emulate the "courage and generosity" of those who are helping "suffering brothers and sisters arriving from the south." Though he did not refer directly to the movement to extend sanctuary to illegal aliens, activists took heart nonetheless.

"Oftentimes we're accused of mixing politics and religion, and the pope is reflecting that this is an issue of compassion," said Jack Elder, a San Antonio teacher who was convicted on charges of transporting illegal aliens in 1985.

San Antonio turned out the largest crowds yet for the pope's 10-day U.S. tour, though even the Mass attendance was 200,000 less than hoped. Some left Mass to wait for hours on hot city streets for yet another look at the man they call "the holy father."

The pope remarked of the 90-degree heat in Spanish — "mucho calor," he said at the end of the Mass — and the sun exacted a toll: some 500 people were treated for heat exhaustion on the grounds, and 62 were taken to hospitals.

There are 3 million Catholics in Texas, about one in five of the state's residents, and as many as 2.5 million are Hispanic.

The people of San Antonio turned out in huge numbers — an estimated 325,000 — along a 4.6 mile parade route, cheering and waving flags when the "popemobile" swept by at 15 mph.

Casimira Trinidad made the sign of the cross, smiled and held her hand over her 82-year-old heart as the pope passed on Guadalupe Street.

BLESSING THE ALTAR — Pope John Paul II blesses the altar before Sunday's outdoor Mass in San Antonio, Texas. In his homily to 300,000 people at the Mass, the pontiff praised those "who have been doing much on behalf of suffering brothers and sisters arriving from the south," referring to the Sanctuary movement for immigrants from Central and South America. #### FIRE'S OUT

Hopefully, you'll never need this service, but if you do...

Fire hazards abound throughout our homes, and you'd be surprised at how often minor fires occur which merely generate a lot of smoke, spreading soot and odor over your entire home and furnishings. Carelessness? Perhaps. But that's not really the issue at this point. The pressing question is, "What do I do to maintain some degree of sanity for my family while my home and furnishings are being restored?"

First, let's talk for a moment about "an ounce of prevention". Today, no home should be without two essentials: a smoke detector and a dry-chemical fire extinguisher. These won't prevent the fire, but they'll usually limit its severity substantially.

Second, be aware that soot isn't like normal soil. It requires special chemicals and procedures for efficient removal. Most efforts you expend will probably only set the soot, requiring more elaborate restoration procedures later. In some cases, involving delicate fabrics or surfaces, you'll cause permanent damage.

Friends In Need

Now, back to your home and family—to whom do you turn for help in this traumatic situation? First, call your insurance agent, if available; and he'll probably suggest that you call a professional fire restoration service company. That's where we come in!

Although few people in our community realize it, we have personnel standing by 24 hours-a-day ready to help when the need arises. Of course, you're already aware of our quality carpet, upholstery and drapery cleaning services. What most people don't know is that we also clean ceilings, walls, floors and everything in between—with complete smoke-odor removal guaranteed. What would take you weeks to accomplish, our trained professional staff can usually accomplish in a day or two.

Remember, when the fire's out, give us a call. We're here to help! ©GFC 1987

Miss Shepard Wed At Noon

HALIFAX—Sarah Bennett Shepard of Halifax and Jeffrey Randall Swartz of Greenville were united in marriage Saturday in a noon ceremony at the Halifax United Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Sanborn Shepard of Halifax. She is the granddaughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. James Watson Butler of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Clara Crawford and Mrs. Richard Walter Mann, of Granville, Ohio.

The Rev. Roger Alan Blaisdell performed the nuptial rites. Wedding music was provided by Judith Lee Harris of Roanoke Rapids, organist; Laura Kimble Abston of Warner Robins, Ga., soloist; and Bryan Hester of Greenville, soloist.

Presented in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white tulle. The bodice featured a sabrina neckline and lace overlay enhanced with pearls and sequins, puffed sleeves trimmed with rose-centered bows, and a full skirt, edged with lace, falling from a slightly dropped waist. The back featured a deep V neckline and long cathedral train. The bride chose a satin derby with upturned brim, accented with pearls and lace with a fingertip veil. She carried her mother's wedding Bible, a gift from her maternal great-grandmother, centered with pink and white sweetheart roses, blue irises and freesia, accented with pink and blue streamers. Within the Bible was a hand-embroidered silk handkerchief belonging to her maternal great-grandmother, a gift for her wedding.

Mrs. Eugene Frick Scott of Wilson served as her sister's honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Sabrina Pia Felsler of Nuremburg, West Germany, Elizabeth Carol Garris of Rocky Mount, Mrs. John Stokes Griffin, Jr. of Rocky Mount, Mrs. Michael Alan Young of Raleigh, and Debra Sue Zdoniak of Heath, Ohio, sister of the bridegroom. Honorary bridesmaids were Laura Kimble Abston of Warner Robins, Ga., Jennifer Blaisdell of Halifax, Mrs. Kenneth Lee Clifton of Greensboro, Mrs. Timothy Michael Hallahan of McLean, Va., and Frances Paige King of Halifax.

Richard Walter Mann of Granville, Ohio, served as best man. Groomsmen were Robert Caudle Garner of Chapel Hill, George Kapitzyk of Evanston, Ill., Eugene Frick Scott of Wilson, brother-in-law of the bride, Takeyuki Shiomu of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Robert Edwin Tobin of Burke, Va.

Sara Elizabeth Scott of Wilson, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Nathan Mann of Groveport, Ohio, served as ring bearer.

Mistresses of ceremonies were Mrs. E. Carlton Garner of Roanoke Rapids and Mrs. Clyde U. Page of Halifax.

The bride attended Weldon High School, and received her BA in English from N.C. Wesleyan College. She serves as branch librarian for the Weldon Memorial Library. The bridegroom attended Granville High School and Muskingum College, and received his BA in political science and management from Marietta College. He is employed as general manager of Quincy's Family Steak House in Greenville.

Following their wedding trip, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception at Glen Ivy, the restored Halifax home of Dr. H. Boone Grant. Music was provided by Joe DiStefano and his combo, Contrast, of Greenville. Carol Blankenship and Myra Keeter presided at the guest register. Assisting with guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Parker and Mr. and Mrs. James R. Twisdale Jr., all of the Halifax area.

Ministers Differ On Expectations For Pay For Weddings, Funerals

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the minister who felt left out because he was not paid for having officiated at a wedding, as were the photographer, florist, organist and caterer. He could not understand why he was expected to perform the marriage service for free. He asked advice from other ministers.

I have been an Episcopal (Anglican) priest for 28 years, and have never charged for solemnizing a wedding (or any other ministration). Indeed, I have always told couples that I had no fee, expected none and wanted none.

My reason? Officiating at weddings, baptisms, funerals, etc. is what my parish pays me to do. Requesting or accepting fees in addition to my salary (not large, but adequate) is, I believe, morally wrong, as my ministrations are part of God's free gift to us all.

When a person insisted on giving me a money gift for my services, I put the money into my discretionary fund to help the poor and others in need. Yours faithfully — THE REV. JOHN L. WOLFF, SENIOR CHAPLAIN, THE MISSION TO SEAMEN, PUSAN, KOREA

DEAR CHAPLAIN: I received many letters from clergy people who shared your feeling about accepting money for services. Here's one from a couple who were pleased to know where they stood before standing at the altar:

DEAR ABBY: Listen to this: When my husband and I went for our first meeting with our minister, at the close of our appointment, we were handed an envelope. Inside was a "statement" that read:

1. Minister and use of church: $350.
2. Clean-up following ceremony: $25.
3. Organist: $35.
4. Soloist: $25.

To be paid one week prior to wedding.

This may be hard for some people to swallow, but at least they know what everything is going to cost. — LIZ AND BILL, ELIZABETH, N.J.

someone knew what to do before they arrived.

After that ordeal, my husband and I decided to learn CPR. We had thought about it, but like so many others, we never got around to it.

If you publish this, it might wake up a few readers. — DEBBIE GALLANT, ORANGE, CALIF.

DEAR DEBBIE: Thanks for the "wake-up call." Readers, contact your local chapter of the American Red Cross, or your county Heart Association, for information on CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) classes.

Allowing gas flames to "lick up" the sides of pots and pans can cause heat stains on the utensils.

A Mother at 15, Tina's Making Hard Decisions For Self, Daughter

By SUZANNE BOYLE
Belleville News-Democrat

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Tina Depper gave her 26-month-old daughter, Jessie, a hug and a kiss, then sat her on the floor, a bottle of apple-apricot juice clutched between very small hands.

"After I had Jessie, I guess I grew up a little ... You play, you pay," said Tina, 17. At the time she became pregnant, she had never really dated. Her boyfriend was 13.

"I was only 14. I thought, 'I'll never get pregnant,'" she said, looking back on her attitude toward her first sexual encounter.

Tina lives with her parents, Bob and Georgianna Depper, in a mobile home south of Belleville.

"She made a mistake, but you hate to call it a mistake when you look at Jessie," said Tina's mother.

"We're proud of the way she's handling things," she said. "She's done a good job" as a mother.

Betty Eugenia, a caseworker for the Children's Home and Aid Society of Illinois, says Tina has come a long way in a short time. She credits part of that success to the moral support from Tina's family.

"Not all parents react that way," Eugenia said. Some want nothing to do with their daughters if they become pregnant, "as if it's some reflection on them."

Tina learned about the society through the Pregnancy Care Center in Belleville and the state Women Infant Care program.

Eugenia visits Tina and her family about twice a month, playing a variety of roles. "We have her hooked up to various agencies that can help her and we do individual and family counseling," she said.

When the Deppers' home burned last year, it was the society that found Jessie a playpen and told Tina where she could get donated clothes and other things for the baby.

Eugenia also drives Tina and Jessie to St. Louis to see doctors at Cardinal Glennon Hospital. The baby has only one kidney and is not maturing at a normal rate physically or mentally, Tina said.

She does not hide the fact that she and her daughter are on public aid. But she doesn't like it.

"I get $241 a month," she said. "I give my parents $200 for food, clothes, gas, rent. I keep the $41 for myself ... I want to get off of it as soon as possible, but I'll have to keep Jessie (on public aid) because of the medical bills."

She says she receives no financial help from the father. They had talked about getting married but broke up last year. She began seeing someone else, but stopped when she felt he wasn't mature enough to handle his own problems. "I'm raising a baby. I don't need to raise somebody else, too," she said.

Mozingo-Blackburn Wedding Was Held Sunday Afternoon

The wedding ceremony of Eva J. Blackburn and Robert E. Mozingo took place Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the Greenville Church of God. The Rev. C.L. Haislip conducted the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Geneva Brady Blackburn of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of the late Bill and Mildred Mozingo.

Eugenia sees both of those actions as a step in the right direction. Part of the society's role is to educate teenagers, who may feel overwhelmed by their responsibility to such a young age, she said.

The society also tries to advance Tina's mind and her outlook on life.

"We have teen groups for the girls," Eugenia said. "Part of the problem is isolation. These groups really help. They realize they're not the only ones" who are teen mothers.

"We encourage them to stay in school, to set goals, to be realistic ... Maybe one of the problems is that sometimes they're content to be on (public) aid. They're not dreaming. The discouragement may get to them. We try to let them see they have choices."

Tina now has a car, which needs repairs before it will work, and no driver's license. But that hasn't stopped her from making decisions.

"I'm going to apply for a ... license and then I want to try and get my GED (General Education Development degree) — and then a job," she said. "I've got to think about these things."

A program of wedding music was presented by Christy Emory.

After a wedding trip to Paradise Island, Nassau, Bahamas, the couple will live in Greenville.

The bride is member services supervisor, State Employees Credit Union. The bridegroom is manager of Toyota East Body Shop.

'Creations Brunch'

The Greenville Christian Women's Club No. 2 will hold a "Creations Brunch" Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. at the Three Steers Restaurant.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 45.25 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 75 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a final weighted average of 43.55 cents. The market is steady to weak and the live supply is fully adequate for a moderate to light demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 2,000,028.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady to 1 cent lower at mostly 1.62-1.78 in East and mostly 1.90-1.99 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 4 cent higher at mostly 5.29-5.39 in East and mostly 5.06 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 2.50-2.55; new crop soybeans 4.89-5.29. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were mostly 2 percent lower and ranged 104 to 108 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead today, following through on last week's rally with an assist from declining interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 9.72 to 2,618.46 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by nearly 2 to 1 in the overall count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 766 up, 397 down and 377 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 23.52 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Eli Lilly rose 2 3/4 to 107 on top of a 10-point gain Friday. The company has been advised by the Food and Drug Administration that a new Lilly antidepressant drug is "approvable" pending final FDA review.

Other gainers among the blue chips included International Business Machines, up 1 3/8 at 162 1/2; General Electric, up 3/8 at 61 3/4; RJR Nabisco, up 1 1/2 at 69 1/4, and American Express, up 1/8 at 37 3/4.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks added .72 to 180.74. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .76 at 355.73.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 32.69 points to 2,608.74, finishing the week with a net gain of 47.36 points.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by more than 5 to 2 on the NYSE, with 1,147 up, 434 down and 384 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 178.02 million shares, against 179.79 million in the previous session.

Montazeri heads the militant wing in the Iranian government which opposes deals with the United States. The militants had criticized moderates, including parliamentary speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, involved in the secret talks with U.S. representatives last year.

Sabra's articles supporting Montazeri and criticizing the pro-Iranian underground Hezbollah faction in Lebanon earned him the enmity of the Iranian Embassy in Beirut and pro-Iranian Lebanese fundamentalist groups.

Hezbollah is an umbrella for various Shiite Moslem factions believed to hold most of the hostages in Lebanon. Twenty-three foreigners are missing and believed kidnapped in Beirut, including seven Americans. The longest-held is Terry A. Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of the Associated Press, who was seized in March 1985.

In addition, Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite disappeared in January while on a mission to free hostages. No group has claimed kidnapping him.

This is the way most people look at funeral prearrangement.

Granted, it isn't the cheeriest of subjects. But, considering the benefits it offers, funeral prearrangement does merit just a little attention.

The puzzling thing is why so many people carefully avoid even thinking about it. The fact is, prearrangement takes very little time. Moreover, funeral prearrangement makes matters infinitely more simple for family and friends in the long run. And ultimately, it's your responsibility—yours alone.

So take off your blinders. Call us at S.G. Wilkerson & Sons to arrange a private consultation.

Panama Releases American Who Saw Protesters Fired On

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — A U.S. diplomat was released today, one day after he was detained while watching men in civilian clothing firing into a crowd of anti-government demonstrators, U.S. officials said.

One person was killed and five were wounded Sunday during the rally in the southeastern suburb of San Miguelito, which capped a four-mile protest march through working-class areas, witnesses and the U.S. Embassy said.

The witnesses said police detained U.S. economic adviser David Miller as he watched.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Rudi Boone said he had no details on when or where Miller was set free, only that "he (Miller) was observing a demonstration, a gun was held to his head and he was detained. ... We do know that he has been released."

Shortly after the rally started, about 15 men in civilian dress fired handguns and shotguns, fatally shooting one protester in the head and wounding five others, according to organizers, witnesses and a U.S. Embassy official.

Most spoke on condition of anonymity.

It was the second protest in two weeks in San Miguelito in which unidentified men attacked a crowd and killed a civilian. Local authorities had warned the organizers rallies would "not be permitted."

Witnesses said that several of the attackers at Sunday's rally wore identical white T-shirts and red caps.

This is the fourth straight month of protests against the military-backed government of President Eric Arturo Delvalle and Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, the military strongman and commander of the Panama Defense Forces.

The government has charged that Washington is interfering in its affairs by calling for an investigation of charges that Noriega was involved in election fraud and the deaths of two politicians. In early July, a pro-government mob attacked the U.S. Embassy in Panama City.

Williams Shakes Off Rust, Leads Skins To Victory

By BILL BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Doug Williams, who took one snap from center in an NFL game last year, discovered that being a backup quarterback can have its rewards.

"It was great to be in control," Williams said after throwing two touchdown passes as the Washington Redskins defeated the Philadelphia Eagles 34-24 Sunday. "It was the same old feeling that it used to be."

Jay Schroeder, who played all but one offensive down for the Redskins in 1986, played only the first five minutes of the season opener before leaving with a sprained right shoulder.

Williams, the subject of numerous trade queries during the offseason from teams looking for a starting quarterback, came in to complete 17 of 27 passes for 272 yards, including scoring plays of 39 and 6 yards to Art Monk.

"That's why we have a quality backup," Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs said. "I thought he played great. He's a playmaker and Cool Hand Luke on the sidelines."

"I guess this tells me I'm going to be in Washington for awhile," Williams said. "There's no way I'm going anywhere after this."

In other NFL openers, it was the New York Jets 31, Buffalo 28; New Orleans 28, Cleveland 21; Houston 20, Los Angeles Rams 16; Cincinnati 23, Indianapolis 21; New England 28, Miami 21; Kansas City 20, San Diego 13; Pittsburgh 30, San Francisco 17; Tampa Bay 48, Atlanta 10; St. Louis 24, Dallas 13; Minnesota 34, Detroit 19; Los Angeles Raiders 20, Green Bay 0; and Denver 40, Seattle 17.

In tonight's game, the defending Super Bowl champion New York Giants travel to Chicago.

Eight of the 13 openers Sunday saw players exchange solidarity handshakes before the game, drawing loud boos from fans in some cities.

The players union has set a strike deadline of Sept. 22 if no agreement is reached in contract negotiations with the owners. The Redskins snapped a 24-24 tie on the first play of fourth quarter when Williams passed 39 yards to Monk.

Williams had two other long passes to set up a field goal and another touchdown.

His 46-yard pass to Gary Clark set up a 40-yard field goal by Steve Cox with 5:20 left. He also had a 57-yard pass to Ricky Sanders before Reggie Branch ran one yard for a touchdown in the third quarter.

The Eagles, down 24-10 after Branch's touchdown, rallied to tie it on a 2-yard run by quarterback Randall Cunningham and a 70-yard run by Reggie White when he stripped Williams of the football on the last play of the third period.

But Eagles Coach Buddy Ryan found little consolation in the short-lived comeback.

"Losing with dignity ain't worth anything to me," he said.

Buccaneers 48, Falcons 10

Steve DeBerg, who threw seven interceptions in the first game of the 1986 season when Tampa Bay was 2-14 for the second straight year, passed for 333 yards and a team-record five touchdowns in the Buccaneers' rout of Atlanta.

DeBerg, who completed 24 of 34 passes and was intercepted only once, directed first-half scoring drives of 91, 76 and 80 yards before Rick Woods returned an interception 42 yards to set up Tampa Bay's fourth touchdown.

DeBerg's touchdown passes were for 11 yards to Phil Freeman, 6 and 3 yards to Gerald Carter, 11 yards to Calvin Magee and 2 yards to Mark Carrier.

Steelers 30, 49ers 17

Pittsburgh shut down San Francisco's running game and intercepted three passes by Joe Montana.

Rookie cornerback Delton Hall gave the Steelers the lead with a 50-yard fumble recovery return in the first quarter. Mark Malone, who completed just nine of 33 passes, made it 14-3 in the second period with a 2-yard scoring toss to Preston Gothard.

Montana completed 34 of 49 passes for 316 yards, but the 49ers managed only 47 yards rushing.

Gary Anderson kicked field goals of 50, 41 and 44 yards for the Steelers.

Cardinals 24, Cowboys 13

St. Louis, stifled by the Dallas defense for 58 minutes, scored three touchdowns in the final two minutes to win its first home opener in 12 years.

Neil Lomax found Roy Green for 16- and 22-yard touchdown passes in a span of 65 seconds to give the Cardinals a 17-13 lead, and Earl Ferrell ran 15 yards for the clinching score with 19 seconds left.

It was only the second loss in 23 season openers for the Cowboys, who took a 13-3 lead with 13:18 left when Danny White hit Gordon Banks with a 20-yard touchdown pass.

Patriots 28, Dolphins 21

New England beat Miami with the help of a two-touchdown burst in a 50-second span of the third quarter.

Tony Collins' 7-yard run, his second touchdown of the game, tied the score 21-21. Then Dan Marino threw a short pass to Bruce Hardy, who deflected the ball into the hands of Ronnie Lippett, and he ran 20 yards untouched to his first NFL touchdown with 7:52 left in the third period.

Marino, who missed most of the preseason with a dislocated finger, threw three scoring passes before leaving with an eye injury with 2:22 left in the game. Backup quarterback Don Strock led the Dolphins to the Patriots' 3-yard line with five seconds left, but his pass into the end zone was incomplete.

Hardy also had a bad snap on a punt attempt in the first quarter. (See NFL, B-4)

Earnhardt Holds Off Charging Waltrip

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt knew he had to keep Darrell Waltrip from getting past.

The tenacious Waltrip dogged Earnhardt's Chevrolet through the last 60 laps of Sunday's Wrangler 400 NASCAR stock car race. He did get alongside, and even put the nose of his Chevrolet in front a few times, but he never was able to take the lead.

"I knew if he ever got by me, I'd have never got by him again," explained the weary Earnhardt after the grueling victory on the humid day. It was his second straight win and 11th in 22 races this season.

"Darrell knew he'd have to run over the top of me to get by," Earnhardt added with a smile. "It was the best race I've had in a while."

Waltrip, trying desperately to get to Victory Circle for the first time this season, tried everything he could in the 400-mile, 217-mile race on Richmond Fairgrounds Raceway's half-mile oval.

But his effort fell short when Jimmy Means and Neil Bonnett collided just two laps from the end, sending Bonnett into the guardrail and bringing out the last of 12 caution flags in the race.

The yellow flag waved at the same time as the white flag, indicating one lap remaining.

"I beat Darrell to the finish line when the yellow and white flags came out, and that was the race," Earnhardt said. "He still wanted to race, but I didn't have to race him anymore. It was over."

Waltrip, whose best previous finishes this season were two fourths, said, "I was gonna go low, not look to the right (at Earnhardt) and just see if I could beat him to the finish line. I thought we could do it, but the yellow flag caught me by surprise."

Asked if he thought Waltrip could have beaten him on the last lap, Earnhardt shrugged and said, "He tried for 60 laps, didn't he?"

Earnhardt, who raised his season point lead over Bill Elliott to 608 points, picked up his 31st career victory and now has swept all six short-track races this season.

Earnhardt's first-place earnings of $44,950 raised his season total to $1,231,920. Elliott, who finished fourth, behind Ricky Rudd, went over $1 million for the third straight year, climbing to $1,000,535.

There were numerous crashes in the wild race, including one on the eighth lap, triggered by a tangle between Terry Labonte and Kyle Petty, that wound up damaging about half the cars in the 30-car field.

But the only injury reported in the race was a cut suffered by an unidentified crewman for Buddy Arrington. The crewman was taken to a hospital for stitches after being hit in the face when the jack holding up Arrington's car came down unexpectedly.

Earnhardt and Waltrip were penalized by NASCAR on lap 181 when they bumped while driving down pit lane at the start of the caution period. Both were sent to the back of the lead lap, but quickly worked their way up to the front.

Woody Peele

Florida State's 44-3 victory over East Carolina University Saturday night emphasized one of the biggest problems the Pirates have yet to overcome in their quest to become a great football team — depth.

Florida State had the numbers, and numbers with quality, far beyond that of the Pirates. East Carolina has good players in its first unit. That was shown by East Carolina's ability to stay with the Seminoles throughout much of the first half.

But while East Carolina's top players were on the field constantly, Florida State was able to use more of its depth, to give its starters more resting time between plays. As a result, the Seminoles were fresher down to the wire, when it counted. That was one of the biggest factors in the outcome of the game.

Another factor, too, was the Pirates' inability to hang onto the football. ECU fumbled 10 times in the game, losing five of those. The ECU record books do not indicate any mark for a single game, but if this was not one, it certainly came close.

A team cannot turn over the ball six times (including one interception) and put it on the ground five more times without losing something. Twice Florida State converted recovered fumbles into scores. Several times, the fumbles ended good drives the Pirates were putting together.

The wetness of the night could be offered as some explanation, but Florida State did not suffer the same consequences playing on the same wet field.

Still, East Carolina should be proud of the fact that it stayed with one of the best teams in the country for a half.

It does show that promise is there. It will just take some more building to arrive at the same spot.

This week, the Pirates face another big foe in Illinois. Many Pirate fans got a chance to see the Illini two weeks ago when they played on television against North Carolina. For a half, they stayed with — and at times dominated — the Tar Heels. Only a long gainer after a punt attempt was mishandled allowed the Tar Heels to score a late touchdown at the end of the first half and that turned the contest around.

Much like Sammy Smith's long touchdown run did to East Carolina, the kicker's jaunt took the wind out of the Illini sails.

Illinois did a better job against strong Arizona State, losing only 21-7, so the Pirates will be in for another tough opponent Saturday. However, the prospects of a victory will be brighter than they were this past Saturday. The Illini are not Florida State and the Pirates could come home to Ficklen in two weeks with a 2-1 record.

Rose High School opened its new Percy Daniels Field in the Farley-Minges Athletic Complex behind Greenville Middle School Friday night.

Those who were there saw that the potential is there for an outstanding high school facility.

The lighting is excellent and even throughout the playing area. The visitor's stands should be adequate for any team that comes to Greenville, and the home stands, once finished, will be as good as any in the east.

Hopefully, by the time the Rampants play at home again, in two weeks, those stands will be completed and everything will be in place.

Thanks should go to those people — headed by W.M. "Booger" Scales and Rick Miller — who helped to make this dream a reality at last.

Our heartfelt sympathies go out to the family of Gaylord Perry in the loss of his wife Blanche. Mrs. Perry died in an automobile accident Friday morning in Florida while on the way to see her first grandchild.

As a sportswriter, we know the difficulties that a wife of someone involved in sports is up against — the bad hours, the time away from home, and so on. Blanche Perry was one of those wives who knew just how to handle that situation with the proper love and support.

She will be missed by both the Perry family and her many friends throughout the country, as well as in her home, eastern North Carolina.

Navratilova Returns To Tennis Forefront

NEW YORK (AP) — Martina Navratilova was getting that forgotten feeling.

She felt it earlier this summer when, without a victory for the year, she went after — and got — her sixth straight Wimbledon title.

And Navratilova was beginning to wonder if she was being overlooked at the U.S. Open after Steffi Graf took away the No. 1 ranking Navratilova had held for five years.

On Saturday, Navratilova proved that, despite what the computer rankings say, she remains the queen of tennis. Her 7-6, 6-1 victory over the top-seeded Graf was that convincing.

"It's a different feeling for different reasons," she said of her 17th Grand Slam singles title and fourth at the Open. "Such as when people are writing you off and you are coming back. There's nothing worse than people saying you are washed up and you're not."

"It feels pretty good to have a bad year and win the U.S. Open and Wimbledon. I've always said that anyone who wins the Open and Wimbledon in the same year, it doesn't really matter what happens the rest of the year."

It didn't matter much to Ivan Lendl and Mats Wilander that their men's final was rained out Sunday. Lendl, the No. 1 seed and two-time defending champion, was to meet No. 3 Wilander today.

"I just took it as another off day," said Lendl, who had won 20 straight matches at the National Tennis Center. "The rain did not bother me. I even got a chance to rest a bit more than I expected."

It was the first time since Rod Laver completed his Grand Slam sweep in 1969 that the men's final was delayed a day.

"You want the right conditions for a match and playing with the chance of rain could make for a bad match," said Wilander, who is seeking his first American crown — he has two French and two Australian Open titles. "It is better to wait."

Graf, who has only the losses to Navratilova at Wimbledon and this tournament against 62 victories this year, will have to wait a while before she unquestionably can claim the throne. Her insistence that "I am still No. 1 and she is No. 2" rang hollow following Navratilova's victory.

The 18-year-old Graf was bothered by a head cold during the semifinals and finals.

"I am more disappointed than after the finals at Wimbledon," Graf said. "I was not 100 percent."

Navratilova said it didn't make any difference.

"Pam (Shriver) and Chris (Evert) said she was beatable," Navratilova said. "I thought I had the game to beat her."

The Open and Wimbledon victories should erase the bitter memories of an otherwise distressing 1987 for Navratilova, who is used to winning two titles a month, not a year.

By The Associated Press
Minnesota Manager Tom Kelly gave Gary Gaetti a bottle of champagne to celebrate the third baseman's second straight 100-RBI season. Soon, Kelly may enjoy some bubbly with the rest of the team, too.

"That's a nice touch. I like that," said Gaetti, whose two runs batted in gave him 101 on the season and helped the Twins beat the Indians 7-3 in 10 innings Sunday at Cleveland.

Gaetti had 108 RBI last year and he's the first Twin to have consecutive 100-RBI seasons since Harmon Killebrew in 1970-71.

"A hundred RBIs last year, another hundred this year, a Gold Glove, and he comes to play every day," Kelly said of Gaetti.

The victory, the Twins' eighth in 11 games, gave Minnesota a 4½-game lead over second-place Oakland and Kansas City in the American League West. Kansas City beat Oakland 6-5.

With the score tied 3-3, Greg Gagne hit a ground-rule double down the third-base line and Kirby Puckett lined a single off Tom Candiotti, 7-16, to give the Twins a 4-3 lead.

"I've gone out day to day and felt I'd just keep giving it my best shot and not worry," Gagne said after his 10th-inning double started the four-run rally.

Gagne's hit nicked third baseman Brook Jacoby's glove and bounced into the Indians' bullpen.

Royals 6, Athletics 5
Steve Balboni hit his third home run in four games as Kansas City beat host Oakland to move into a second-place tie with the Athletics in the AL West.

Mark Gubicza, 11-16, struck out seven while gaining the victory and Gene Garber pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for his third save.

Yankees 8, Blue Jays 5
Gary Ward, Dave Winfield and Rickey Henderson hit solo home runs as New York rallied from a three-run, first-inning deficit to beat Toronto at Exhibition Stadium.

Charles Hudson, 10-6, replaced starter Steve Trout in the first and pitched 4 2-3 innings, allowing two hits and one run. Neil Allen pitched 3 1-3 innings, allowing one hit, and Dave Righetti got the final two outs for his 27th save.

"Our relievers are pitching more innings than our starters, so we might as well start a reliever and finish up with a starter," New York Yankees Manager Lou Piniella said.

Tigers 5, Brewers 1
Chet Lemon singled home the winning run to spark a four-run ninth inning as Detroit moved back into a first-place tie with Toronto by beating Milwaukee at County Stadium.

The victory snapped Detroit's three-game losing streak and the Brewers' five-game winning streak. The Tigers and Blue Jays each have a record of 85-57 in the East.

Rangers 8, Angels 2
Larry Parrish tied a club record with his 30th home run of the season and drove in three runs as Texas beat California at Anaheim.

Parrish followed a one-out single by Scott Fletcher with a drive over the right-field fence off starter Jerry Reuss, 4-3, equaling the 30 homers hit by Jeff Burroughs in 1973 and Pete Incaviglia last season.

White Sox 2, Mariners 0
Floyd Bannister pitched a one-hitter for his fifth straight victory and Pat Keedy and Donnie Hill hit home runs, leading Chicago past Seattle at the Kingdome.

Randolph Gets 1st Win

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — PGA Tour rookie Sam Randolph enjoyed a memorable weekend in the $500,000 Bank of Boston Classic.

On Saturday the 1985 U.S. Amateur champion found "a little bit of magic" in his clubs and charged from behind with a 7-under-par 64.

Then, with a four-stroke lead and a course-record 199 total after 54 holes, Randolph was fidgety Sunday as rain soaked Pleasant Valley Country Club.

"I did my rain dance," the 23-year-old former Southern Cal star quipped after earning his first PGA victory when the fourth round was cancelled in midafternoon.

"I made no bogeys, no mistakes today," Randolph added with a big grin. "It feels great just to be winner."

"I feel like I deserve to win after the way I played yesterday, but it would have been more satisfying if I went out and got the victory by extending my lead."

Randolph, who earned his PGA card in qualifying school last fall, doubled his earnings as a pro with the $90,000 first prize for his first victory in 22 tournaments.

"A lot of good things go with this," he said, referring to such perks as a two-year exemption on the tour and automatic entry into such events as the Masters. "Now I can plan my schedule."

Randolph, the son of a club professional in Santa Barbara, Calif., also disclosed that he purchased a house there on Sept. 6 "and winning here is pretty good timing."

Only four players completed 72 holes before play was suspended because of the heavy downpour late Sunday morning. Officials waited in vain until cancelling the round at 3 p.m. It was the tour's third rain-shortened tournament of the year.

The cancellation left 1986 Pleasant Valley champion Gene Sauers, Australian Wayne Grady and Canadian Ray Stewart tied for second at 203, 10 strokes under par for 54 holes. They each earned $37,333.

"The only player who wanted the rain to continue was Randolph," said Stewart, who increased his earnings to $65,000 but figures he needs at least $10,000 more to retain his PGA card.

"We waited as long as we possibly could," Pleasant Valley tournament director Ted Mingolla said.

Giants Keeping That Solid Look

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Even Manager Roger Craig had to admit his San Francisco Giants were looking solid in the National League West. In the East, the St. Louis Cardinals looked just a little less solid — but not much.

The Giants won for the second time in their three-game series against Cincinnati Sunday, as Kevin Mitchell drove in three runs in a 6-1 victory to move six games ahead of the Reds. Houston, a 10-2 loser at San Diego, was 6½ back.

"We played like a championship club today," Craig said. "We're playing like an outstanding ballclub, which we are."

The St. Louis Cardinals, meanwhile, led New York by 2½ games in the NL East after the Mets beat them 4-2 to salvage the finale of a three-game series. The Mets got some solid pitching from rookie David Cone and a surprise bunt single from Gary Carter to beat the Cards, while the Montreal Expos fell from second place, three games back, after a 5-2 loss at Chicago.

"There's still a long way to go," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said. "We still have to put something together."

Giants 6, Reds 1
Mitchell had a solo homer and a two-run double in the Giants' victory. The Giants and Reds each have 19 games left, including a two-game series next weekend in San Francisco.

"At this point, I don't know what to say anymore," Reds third baseman Buddy Bell said. "For whatever reason, we lost. You can come up with a million excuses if you want, but the bottom line is we lost."

The Reds, who led the division from May 29-Aug. 19, scored only two runs on 15 hits in their two losses to the Giants.

Mets 4, Cardinals 2
Cone allowed two runs, one unearned, on seven hits over 6 1-3 innings in a game delayed at the start and in the first inning by rain. Randy Myers pitched the final 2 2-3 innings, striking out five and earning his fifth save.

Trailing 1-0, Darryl Strawberry doubled and Kevin McReynolds tripled to tie the score in the fourth against Danny Cox. Carter followed with his two-out bunt down the third-base line, beating the throw by Terry Pendleton for a single as McReynolds scored the tiebreaking run.

Padres 10, Astros 2
Carmelo Martinez, Randy Ready and Chris Brown homered for San Diego, helping to usher Houston farther out of the NL West race. Ready had four RBI with his homer and a two-run double.

Both Martinez and Ready homered in the fifth inning as San Diego scored five runs to take an 8-2 lead. Martinez's was a three-run shot, and Ready's went for two runs. Brown hit a two-run homer in the eighth as San Diego swept the three-game series.

Cubs 5, Expos 2
Rick Sutcliffe won his first game since July 28, pitching a five-hitter against the Expos. Sutcliffe's last victory also was against Montreal, and he is 3-0 against the Expos this season.

Leon Durham had three hits and two RBI for the Cubs. Durham hit a two-run single in the fifth to give the Cubs a 4-1 lead, and he doubled and scored in the eighth.

Pirates 6, Phillies 1
The Pirates won their seventh in a row, getting a five-hitter from Brian Fisher and handing the Phillies their fifth straight loss.

Fisher struck out a career-high 10 in his fifth complete game of the season. After a Glenn Wilson single in the second, Fisher did not allow another hit until Darren Daulton's single with two out in the seventh.

Dodgers 6, Braves 2
Mike Marshall went 4-for-4 with a homer, drove in two runs and scored three. Orel Hershiser worked seven innings, giving up six hits. He gave up two singles and a walk in a scoreless first, then didn't allow another baserunner until Ozzie Virgil hit the first of his two homers with one out in the fifth.

FSU Power, Buc Bobbles Tell Story

Florida State's ability to push the football down field with a strong running game and East Carolina's inability to hold on to it were key ingredients in the recipe for a 41-point Pirate loss Saturday night.

The eighth-ranked Seminoles rolled up 362 yards on the ground, including 236 yards in the first half, while the Bucs fumbled the ball on 10 occasions, losing it five times, and threw one interception in FSU's 44-3 victory.

Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said wet conditions made passing a problem, exemplified by a 5-for-13 performance by FSU quarterback Danny McManus.

"I think we really could have thrown the ball against them, but the rain was making it scary," Bowden said. "I felt that if we just didn't make crucial errors in our own end of the field that they would not score the way our defense was playing."

Meanwhile, when the Pirates weren't turning the ball over, miscues in the backfield upset the flow of their offense and halted a number of drives.

"It seemed like they would move the ball and all of the sudden stop, they couldn't move it anymore," Bowden said. "From that point on, we weren't going to gamble that there was going to be an interception or a stupid throw."

FSU's ability to move the ball on the ground was reminiscent of some other college powers.

"You'd like to be able to jam the ball like Oklahoma and Nebraska do because it sets everything else up," Bowden said. "We're not as good as we'd like but we did a pretty decent job tonight."

Seminole tailback, Sammie Smith, a 6-1, 220-pound sophomore did more than a decent job, piling up a career-high 244 yards on 19 carries on a rain-soaked field.

"All the other guys were complaining about the rain, but I seem to like the rain and wet fields," said Smith, whose rushing performance ranks second in Florida State history. Greg Allen rushed for 322 yards for the Seminoles in a 1981 game against Western Carolina.

Saturday night's game was a test for Smith, who carried the ball 19 times despite missing FSU's opener against Texas Tech with a knee injury.

"There was a little question in my mind about my knee," Smith said. "I hadn't got hit on it since I hurt it, and I still have a little pain in it. I was wondering if I took a shot on it tonight whether I was going to be able to run on it, but luckily I didn't get hit on it."

Bowden said the reason Smith didn't start against East Carolina was not due to injuries.

"I felt like he (Smith) needed to play," he said. "Last week, I was trying to protect an injury. This week, I felt like he was healthy, and I wanted to see if he could play, so I was going to put him in this week no matter what."

While McManus wasn't effective throwing the ball, he made a big contribution on Smith's 83-yard touchdown jaunt in the second period which gave the Seminoles a 13-3 lead.

Smith said it was the quarterback who threw the key block, springing him loose from the Pirate defense.

"McManus made a good block," Smith said. "If he hadn't made that block, I don't know if I could have gone the distance. He made an excellent block and they missed a couple of tackles, and it was a foot race to the end."

Don Reuter

Smith's run was the second longest in FSU history. Larry Key ran for a 97-yard touchdown run against Virginia Tech in 1976.

FSU backup quarterback Chip Ferguson, a Charlotte native, completed seven of eight passes for 66 yards in the second half. Seminole quarterbacks were 13 of 22 with one interception and compiled 189 yards in the air.

Meanwhile, Pirate quarterbacks Travis Hunter and Brad Walsh managed to complete just five passes in 20 attempts for 61 yards. They also accounted for an interception.

The absence of Charlie Libretto, who contemplated leaving the team late last week but decided to stay, left the Pirates without a true drop back passer when the option washed away in the rain.

Last year, Libretto came off the bench against Southern Mississippi to engineer an 80-yard drive that gave the Pirates a 21-20 lead with eight seconds left. The Pirates eventually lost the game, 23-21, on a field goal after time had expired.

The Pirates held the ball for 9:01 of the game's first 15 minutes, but managed to control it for only 18:04 of the game's remaining 45 minutes.... Saturday's attendance of 33,937 was the largest crowd for a Pirate history and was the third biggest at Ficklen Stadium.

Player Of The Week

Washington High running back Henry Rouse is the Daily Reflector Player of the Week following a 219-yard rushing performance keyed the Pam Pack's 20-14 win over Pamlico County Friday.

Rouse carried the ball 34 times and scored two touchdowns in the win. Rouse's final score came on a five-yard run in the final quarter and gave Washington the lead for good. He also scored the games first touchdown, on a three-yard run.

Rouse's big night keyed a 331-yard rushing performance for Washington.

Prep Honor Roll:

•Ayden-Grifton fullback Ronnell Peterson ran for 128 yards and one touchdown as Ayden-Grifton blanked 4-A Kinston, 18-0, Friday night.

•Roanoke fullback Marvin Earl Morning ran for 133 yards on 23 carries as the Redskins topped Jamesville, 14-12.

•Jamesville defensive tackle Eddie Fitzgerald had 12 tackles and nine solos in a losing effort to Roanoke, 14-12.

•D.H. Conley quarterback Bronswell Patrick threw for 90 yards, including a 27-yard touchdown pass in overtime to lead the Vikings past North Pitt, 7-0.

•North Pitt linebacker Ashley Sheppard had 13 solo tackles and six assists in a losing effort against D.H. Conley, 7-0.

•Rose fullback Adrian Barnhill ran for 117 yards on only six carries and also scored on an 87-yard run as Rose knocked off Fayetteville Terry Sanford, 21-0.

•Chocowinity running back William Haywood scored four touchdowns and rushed for 114 yards as he led the Tribe to a 47-0 drubbing of Mattamuskeet High School Friday.

Player Gains His 3rd Win Of Year

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Gary Player has picked up his third win of the year on the Seniors tour, but his sudden-death victory in the World Seniors Invitational golf tournament didn't come without its share of rain and mud.

"I feel a little pooped at the moment. It was tough on me," he said Sunday. "I feel like I've been through the meat grinder."

Player sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the first hole of sudden death to defeat Bob Charles and win the $200,000 event.

Player and Charles each finished the rain-shortened, 54-hole event at 9-under-par 207. The playoff began and ended on the 16th hole on the 6,826-yard Quail Hollow Country Club layout.

Both players were in the fairway on the par 4, 403-yard hole. Charles left his second shot short of the green. Player, meanwhile, knocked his 7-iron approach to within 10 feet of the cup.

Charles' chip skipped past the cup by about 12 feet. Still away, Charles sank his putt for par and Player knocked in his birdie putt for his third victory this year, this one earning him $37,500.

With a birdie on No. 9, Player held a four-shot lead over Charles in the tournament. But Player took bogey on 11 and 12 to fall back to 9-under-par. Charles charged with birdies at 14, 16 and 17 to move from 6-under par to 9-under-par to set up the playoff.

At 18, Player hit a 4-iron second shot within four feet of the cup, but missed a birdie putt that would have won the tournament.

"That 4-iron was as fine a shot as I've hit coming into a final hole. Then I missed the putt," Player said. "That took the stuffing out of me."

Player also complained about course conditions, made difficult by almost daily rainfall. Heavy rains forced postponement of Friday's second round and light rain fell Saturday. No rain fell on the course Sunday.

"We were playing on mud," he said.

"I was surprised Gary missed the putt at 18, but there are no gimmes in this game," Charles said, adding that he was trying to string together a series of birdies to make one last run.

Charles collected $22,500 for finishing second.

Dave Hill, who finished in third with a closing-round 69 for a three-day total of 208, took home $18,750.

Butch Baird finished alone in fourth place at 5-under-par 211, while Chi Chi Rodriguez, Arnold Palmer, Larry Mowry, Jim Ferree and Jim King were all at 3-under-par 213.

Mowry had the low round of the day at 67, while Palmer and King each shot 68. Rodriguez, the first-round leader, skied to a 75.

leading to a 4-yard run by Collins that put the Patriots ahead 7-0. Dolphins punter Reggie Roby was injured on the play and Strook, who had never punted in his 14-year NFL career, had to replace Roby for the rest of the game.

Oilers 20, Rams 16

Houston scored 17 points in the final 7:28 to beat Los Angeles.

The Rams had a 16-3 lead before Warren Moon passed 3 yards to Jamie Williams, then added a 59-yarder to Ernest Givins, who caught a short pass over the middle and sprinted to the end zone with 2:59 left, giving Houston its first lead, 17-16.

Eric Dickerson, who rushed for 149 yards on 27 carries, fumbled after the Houston kickoff, setting up a 19-yard field goal by Tony Zendejas with 1:01 left.

Broncos 40, Seahawks 17

Denver's John Elway riddled Seattle's defense for 338 yards and four touchdowns and Rich Karlis kicked four field goals for the Broncos.

Elway completed 22 of 32 passes and had touchdown completions of 72 yards to Steve Sewell, 4 yards to Steve Watson, 5 yards to Orson Mobley and 59 yards to Vance Johnson as Denver scored 33 straight points after trailing 17-7 in the second quarter.

The Broncos forced three turnovers in a 10-minute stretch at the end of the first half and beginning of the second and had five in all — three interceptions and two fumble recoveries. The turnovers led to 27 Denver points.

Saints 28, Browns 21

New Orleans, which had won three of its previous 20 openers, surprised the defending AFC Central champions as Bobby Hebert threw two touchdown passes to Hoby Brenner.

The Saints had two safeties for the first time in their history when Bruce Clark and Brett Maxie both sacked Bernie Kosar in the end zone in the fourth quarter.

New Orleans got good production from its young running back tandem as Reuben Mayes rushed for 147 yards and Dalton Hilliard ran 5 yards for a third-quarter touchdown.

Jets 31, Bills 28

New York, held scoreless for nearly 27 minutes, finally got its offense going against Buffalo.

Ken O'Brien threw two touchdown passes at the end of the first half and Johnny Hector ran for two more scores for the Jets. O'Brien passed 55 yards to Wesley Walker with 3:13 remaining in the half and hit Mickey Shuler for a 4-yarder with 26 seconds left, giving New York a 14-7 halftime lead.

Bengals 23, Colts 21

Boomer Esiason threw two touchdown passes in the first quarter, but Cincinnati needed 10 fourth-quarter points to beat Indianapolis in a fight-marred game.

On the first play of the final quarter, with Indianapolis leading 14-13, the Colts' Dave Ahrens was called for unnecessary roughness on a tackle of James Brooks, who scored two touchdowns for the Bengals. Players from both sides began fighting, and Indianapolis linebacker Cliff Odom and Cincinnati fullback Larry Kinnebrew were ejected.

Five plays after play resumed, Esiason passed 20 yards to Mike Martin at the Indianapolis 1, and three plays after that, Breech kicked a 20-yard field goal.

Chiefs 20, Chargers 13

Rookie runners Paul Palmer and Christian Okoye paced Kansas City to its victory over San Diego.

Palmer, the Chiefs' first-round draft choice, ran 95 yards with a kickoff with 3:19 left in the game after the Chargers' Vince Abbott kicked a 33-yard field goal to tie the game 13-13.

Okoye, the Chiefs' second-round draft choice, ran 43 yards for a second-quarter touchdown and finished with 105 yards rushing, the first time since 1985 that a Kansas City runner has exceeded 100 yards.

Raiders 20, Packers 0

Los Angeles held Green Bay to 80 yards passing and 66 yards rushing as the Packers suffered their first shutout since 1978.

Marcus Allen rushed for 136 yards and a touchdown on a career-high 33 carries and Vann McElroy returned an interception 35 yards for a touchdown for the Raiders, who intercepted Green Bay quarterback Randy Wright three times.

Vikings 34, Lions 19

Wade Wilson and Anthony Carter recovered from a miserable first half to spark Minnesota to a 21-point third quarter and a victory over Detroit.

Wilson, who was starting in place of the injured Tommy Kramer, had three interceptions as the Lions took a 16-3 lead in the first half. Two of the interceptions went off the hands of Carter.

Greene Central Defeats Hawks

(Editor's Note: the following story was omitted from Sunday's edition.)

LA GRANGE — Anthony Dupree scored two touchdowns to lead Greene Central to a 13-0 football victory over North Lenoir Friday night.

The win was the first in two starts for the Rams.

The game was a scoreless tie until the final quarter when the Rams drove 86 yards to score. Shay Beaman took a 33-yard pass from Kris Radford to highlight the drive. It climaxed when Dupree went in from two yards out.

Later in the quarter, Paul Grantham intercepted an option pitch and returned it 12 yards to the North Lenoir three. Two plays later, Dupree scored from the two. Tommy Eason kicked the PAT for the 13-0 margin.

North Lenoir never seriously threatened and did not cross midfield in the first half. The Rams drove to the Hawk nine in the first half, but were stalled by a sack.

"We changed our offense at halftime," Coach Spence Grantham said, "something I said I would never do. We switched to the wishbone and ran it right straight at 'em."

ECU Women Take 3rd Place

PEMBROKE — East Carolina University's women's cross country team finished third in a meet held at Pembroke University Saturday. The Pirate men came in sixth in their field.

South Carolina won both the men's and women's events. The Gamecocks had 34 points in the men's meet and finished with only 20 in the women's. Campbell took second in the men's meet with 56, while Methodist was second among the women with 56. East Carolina's women finished with 63 points.

Wilma DeToire of South Carolina was the overall women's winner with a time of 19:05. East Carolina was led by Bibi Rosas, who finished fifth in 19:55, while Stephanie Ingram took ninth in 20:23.

Other ECU runners included Dawn Tillson, 13th in 21:09; Terri Lynch, 15th in 21:42; Kim Abernathy, 21st in 23:15; Kathy Ellis, 24th in 24:16; and Sherri Swick, 28th in 25:21.

Following ECU in the women's meet were Campbell with 84 and Pembroke with 139. St. Andrews and Coastal Carolina also participated with individual runners.

Trailing Campbell in the men's scores were Methodist with 67, Pembroke with 128, Francis Marion with 141, East Carolina with 152, the Francis Marion Track Club with 206, St. Andrews with 231, Coastal Carolina with 232, Shaw with 237 and Pfeiffer with 268.

Ken Frinette of Campbell was the overall men's winner in 25:22.

East Carolina's Matt Schweitzer led the Pirates, finishing 18th in 28:19. He was followed by Mike McGhee, 22nd in 28:34; Rob Rice, 34th in 29:49; Russell Williams, 38th in 30:11; Vince Wilson, 40th in 30:42; Jim Layton, 49th in 32:18; and Joe Corley, 58th in 34:49. Two runners entered as non-counters also finished well, Freddie Fuller in 32:18 and Henry Patrick in 33:26.

Melhorn Loses

NORFOLK, Va. — East Carolina's John Melhorn reached the semifinals of the rain-shortened Old Dominion Invitational Tennis Tournament this weekend before losing to Will Harbie.

The tournament included ECU, William & Mary, Penn State and the hosting Monarchs.

Melhorn, participating in the #1 singles A bracket, defeated John Mackey of Penn State, 6-4, 6-1, but then lost to Harbie of William & Mary, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2.

Technicians Get Emmys

L.A. Times-Washington Post

PASADENA, Calif. — A "Max Headroom" installment cryptically titled "Blipverts," a lavishly costumed "Moonlighting" episode called "Atomic Shakespeare" with costumes by Robert Turturice and music specials featuring Diana Ross and Vladimir Horowitz were among the programs garnering multiple Emmy in the first round of the 39th annual Emmy Awards.

Also on the list of multiple Emmy winners were NBC's miniseries "Anastasia: The Mystery of Anna — Part 1" and "The Two Mrs. Grenvilles," ABC's "Liberty Weekend-Closing Ceremonies," the CBS special "Carnegie Hall: The Grand Reopening" and NBC's disturbing drama about the effects of the defoliant Agent Orange, "Unnatural Causes."

Most of the Emmys awarded in 39 categories Saturday night at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium by the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences were given for technical achievements in television production, including a special award to Joseph J. Sayovitz Jr. and Jay D. Sherbon of Spectra Image Inc. for developing the D220 Dual Headed Video Disc Player for editing applications.

Emmys in 31 other categories, as well as the Governors Award, will be presented Sunday at the 39th annual Primetime Emmy Awards, also taking place at the Pasadena Civic and televised by Fox Broadcasting Co. for the first time.

At the craft ceremonies Saturday, NBC led the pack with 16 Emmy awards. ABC was a close second with 15. PBS programs received eight. "Fame," a syndicated program, garnered one.

PBS' eight awards included two for best informational series: "Smithsonian World" and "American Masters: Unknown Chaplin."

NBC took the award for outstanding children's program with "Jim Henson's The Storyteller: Hans My Hedgehog."

Although making no comment during his opening remarks about Fox Broadcasting's controversial wresting of the 39th Emmy Awards telecast away from the other networks, academy president Richard Frank addressed the issue in a message in the Emmy Awards program. "In this instance, the message is more important than the medium," he said. "If I may take the liberty of modifying a famous quote, 'An industry divided cannot stand.'"

CBS Screen Blank As Rather Fumes

NEW YORK (AP) — Televisions tuned to CBS went blank for six minutes after anchorman Dan Rather left the set to complain that tennis coverage was pre-empting the news, and the CBS' affiliate board chairman is demanding an apology. Rather, in a statement Sunday, said letting the network "go black" on Friday was an accident. "I've always believed the audience should be able to count on seeing the news at its regularly scheduled time and in its entirety. That was at issue Friday," he said. "But I would never — nor would anyone at CBS — even think of deliberately allowing the network to go black."

Rather, who was in Miami covering the pope's visit, left his desk to phone his boss in New York, said CBS News' president, Howard Stringer.

"The tennis ended abruptly without Dan's knowledge, leaving the network in black. When Dan understood the situation, he returned to his anchor position to get the Evening News on the air," Stringer said in a statement. "We regret the confusion between News and Sports for both our viewers and our affiliates."

But Phil Jones, chairman of CBS' affiliate board and general manager of KCTV in Kansas City, Mo., said he wanted an apology from Rather.

"I'd like him to say 'I blew it, and I'm sorry,'" Jones said. "He's right to try and protect his newscast, but you don't stop a broadcast from going on, no matter how strongly you feel. You fight those battles afterwards. Hopefully, he's learned something from this."

Laurence A. Tisch, CBS' chief executive officer, said he wished Rather had not left the set, but added that it was "human nature" that the anchor would be upset that the U.S. Tennis Open had infringed on the news show.

"The only thing I can say to you is this is something that's never going to happen again," Tisch said.

NBC To Challenge Kurlalt's Slow-Paced 'Sunday' TV

By KATHRYN BAKER

NEW YORK (AP) — True to its easygoing style, "CBS Sunday Morning" seems perfectly willing to shove over on its big, old overstuffed sofa and let another network program, NBC's new "Sunday Today," plop right down.

"Sunday Today," a version of "Today" with a different cast, makes its debut next weekend. It promises to be a tad bit more fidgety than its older, more sedate counterpart on CBS.

"We won't be quite that laid back," said "Today" executive producer Marty Ryan, who is also producer of "Sunday Today." "For my taste, just as a viewer, that's way too slow."

"(CBS) 'Sunday Morning' doesn't do any news. They're just starting to do weather. They don't do sports, other than long profile takeout pieces. So we're going to be much more contemporary."

Is there room for another Sunday morning show? "Oh, sure there is," said affable "CBS Sunday Morning" host Charles Kurlalt.

"I'm sure they will do a little livelier, more youthful program than we do. Ours is a more — well, we just decided to just do what we liked," he said in a recent interview.

Perhaps in response to the impending arrival of "Sunday Today," "CBS Sunday Morning" has made minor changes, like adding more news and hiring wry observer William Geist, formerly of The New York Times. But the two shows promise to be quite different in style.

Kurlalt sits in a swivel chair on a set, cutting to commentators and introducing taped personality or newsfeature pieces.

"Sunday Today" will look a lot like "Today," though the anchors will sit casually on sofas rather than at a news desk. There will be news breaks on the hour.

Kurlalt said he expected "Sunday Today" to run into the same problems "CBS Sunday Morning" did when it started — most affiliates air religious programming in the time period. But the audience, however small, is loyal, Kurlalt said. "The people who do watch that show really watch it religiously — no pun intended," he said.

Ryan said, however, that "Sunday Today" is starting with about 106 stations compared to the 70 or so that "CBS Sunday Morning" had when it began eight years ago. The CBS show is now carried by 180 stations.

Ryan said he wants to capitalize on the success of "Today" while giving his new Sunday show a chance to develop a personality of its own.

For "Sunday Today," NBC has paired Boyd Matson, a lanky, droll Texan, and witty, glamorous Maria Shriver as co-anchors. Garrick Utley is resident news anchor. Local New York weatherman Al Roker performs meteorological duties, and "Today" sports correspondent Bill Macatee gets a bigger role on Sunday, since Ryan expects sports to loom large.

The "Sunday Today" cast and crew will have had two rehearsals by the time the show airs.

"We have a good idea of how to do it," Matson said in an interview. "These are the same people who've been doing the 'Today' show, and this is the 'Today' show still. But we've got to get into a rhythm for Sunday."

For the second show, Matson will be in China with the rest of NBC News, so it will likely be some weeks before the show's true rhythm emerges.

Matson, a globe-trotting NBC correspondent happy to settle down somewhat now that he's a "geriatric father" at 40, said he and Shriver haven't had a lot of time to work together — this summer she was doing a documentary on Roman Catholics in preparation for the pope's visit, and he was off for the birth of his daughter. But they had met before.

"I met Maria the first time when we were both covering the Motown 25th anniversary television special," Matson said. "We weren't allowed in during the taping so we sat across the street in a restaurant and talked for a couple of hours. I thought she was most charming and interesting."

Shriver says she plans to commute to New York each weekend from Los Angeles where she lives with her husband, actor Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Roker, funny and rotund in the Willard Scott tradition, said he "had to be able to wear Willard's pants" to get the "Sunday Today" job.

"I'm there basically to make people feel superior," he told a news conference in Los Angeles. "You know, when they get up in the morning — 'Man, I look better than that guy, and I just got up!'"

Filmmaker Le Roy Dies

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Filmmaker Mervyn Le Roy, who brought "The Wizard of Oz" dream world to movie screens, gave Lana Turner her first job and introduced Ronald Reagan to Nancy Davis, has died. He was 86.

The Oscar-winning producer-director of more than 75 motion pictures, including such memorable films as "Little Caesar," which made Edward G. Robinson a star, "Quo Vadis" and "Gypsy," died Sunday morning at home.

Le Roy, who had Alzheimer's disease and had recently been hospitalized for respiratory problems, was found dead by his wife of 41 years, Kitty, said his business manager, Given Eaton.

Such Le Roy films as "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang" in 1932 were the most socially-conscious movies of the time, but Le Roy was best known for his diversity and ability to handle any studio assignment.

Le Roy won a best director Oscar in 1942 for "Random Harvest." Three years later, he won an honorary Oscar for a 10-minute short-subject film about tolerance, "The House I Live In," starring Frank Sinatra. He was awarded the motion picture academy's Irving G. Thalberg Memorial Award in 1975.

White House Optimistic About Bork

By DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration remains optimistic about Robert H. Bork's ability to win confirmation to the Supreme Court despite dire predictions from members of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr. said Sunday the 60-year-old Bork is a "distinguished jurist who is widely supported, and I'm hopeful will be confirmed, I think will be confirmed by the U.S. Senate."

Hearings on the nomination get under way Tuesday morning after two months in which conservative and liberal groups have waged an ideological struggle through news conferences, studies and letter-writing campaigns.

As the battleground moves to the place where it counts — the Senate Judiciary Committee — Democrats on the panel said the nominee to replace retired Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. faces an uphill battle.

"I think there are many votes that are undecided at this moment, and I think that Judge Bork has a battle ahead of him, that certainly nobody at this moment can predict with certainty that he will or will not be confirmed," Sen. Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio said Sunday on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

Another member of the Senate committee, Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said he was undecided on Bork.

"As a judge he's done fairly well, even though I may disagree with some of his decisions, in my judgment," DeConcini said on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley."

But prior to that, some of his writings and some of his decisions are very disturbing....
"He's got some problems. There's a question about it," DeConcini said.

More than 100 potential witnesses are asked to testify in support or opposition to Bork during the scheduled two-week hearings. Abortion, pornography, the rights of women and racial minorities and legal protection for criminal suspects are just some of the issues to be raised in questions awaiting the first witness — Bork.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., an undecided member of the committee, said he would question the nominee about the court's authority to rule on such issues.

"I'm not going to ask how he's going to decide a case," Specter said on the ABC program. "More important is whether he's going to stick within the broad tradition of the court to apply equal protection beyond race, et cetera."

Bork, a federal appeals court judge since 1982 and before that an outspoken law professor, has produced volumes of speeches, magazine articles and legal opinions that help illuminate his views.

"That's what academic writing is supposed to be about — daring and speculative and provocative, trying out ideas," Bork said in an interview with Time Magazine published Sunday.

But the writings also provide a ready target for opponents hoping to convince wavering senators that he is an extremist.

"We're opposing Judge Bork for a set of reasons which we can find in no other nominee in recent years," Ira Glasser, president of the American Civil Liberties Union, said on the ABC program. "His writings and speeches have consistently suggested that the role of the court is illegitimate; that the court should not be deciding what rights people have according to the Bill of Rights; that local government should be deciding."

Senate Ready To Take Up Long-Delayed Defense Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate finally is taking up a huge defense budget bill after a four-month delay caused by a sharply political fight over proposed restrictions on testing of President Reagan's "Star Wars" program.

The Democratic-controlled chamber began considering the bill on Friday, but put off all controversial issues until at least Tuesday.

The bill is expected to be on the Senate floor for the next several weeks, and will serve as the focus for fights on a number of national security issues, including Star Wars, arms control, anti-satellite weapons and chemical weapons.

While the full Senate is considering the defense budget, the Senate Judiciary Committee will begin hearings Tuesday on Reagan's nomination of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court.

The Senate also is scheduled Tuesday to take its seventh cloture vote

EARTHQUAKE VICTIM — This skeleton, unearthed last August, shows a man clasp his head in an apparent attempt to shield himself from a falling wall during an earthquake that buried the Roman city of Kourion on Cyprus in A.D. 365. The nearly completed skeleton was discovered during an archeological expedition led by David Soren of the University of Arizona. (AP Laser-photo)

Ancient Earthquake Hid Signs Of 4th Century Life

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tall artisan who worked in a shop during the early morning hours is among the latest figures to emerge from the rubble of an ancient earthquake in a snapshot of Mediterranean life 16 centuries ago, archeologists said today.

The man, in his early 20s and tall for his time at 5-foot-7, apparently was alone at a mud-brick workbench when the roof caved in on him during a devastating earthquake on the island of Cyprus in A.D. 365.

This well-preserved skeleton and one found in another room of a man badly crushed under roof tiles were discovered in August during excavation of the Roman city of Kourion, said David Soren, the University of Arizona archeologist who headed the research team.

The latest discovery brings to nine the number of skeletons that have been unearthed in a small area of the site during several seasons of digging.

Because the July 21 earthquake apparently struck so suddenly and powerfully shortly after sunrise, scientists suspect no one had time to run or hide. Everyone was trapped in place, providing what Soren calls a valuable "snapshot" of everyday life in the late Roman Empire.

"At this rate, we estimate that at least 500 people must have been killed," Soren said. "In every place where people might have lived, we're finding skeletons."

Archeologists think the site probably was a row of live-in shops in an elaborate, split-level structure that may have been a market in the port city located on the southwestern coast of Cyprus.

It was in this area last year that researchers unearthed the most haunting remains, three skeletons belonging to what they believe was a young family killed in its bedchamber.

The remains of a man, a woman and a small child, clinging together in the ruins of a house shattered by the quake, add pathos to the excavation. Because of the way the skeletons were grouped, lying together on their right sides in a close embrace, scientists speculate they were a family.

The woman, estimated to be about 19 years old, clutched a small child of about 18 months of age to her chest. Her arms were raised to protect the child's head, which was tucked under her chin.

Shielding the woman with his body, the man stretched his left arm across her to hold the child's back and putting his left leg up over hers.

A new museum has been built atop the remains of a large room at the site and it houses the family of skeletons.

Along with the remains of the tall man and his contemporary, who was closer to the 5-foot-4 height of the average Roman man of the time, scientists found a bronze pot sitting in an open oven and shattered pieces of painted pottery.

In the room with the shorter casualty, archeologists unearthed more than 200 bone bobbins, which are small notched pins, and three dozen lead fishing-net weights.

They also found large fresco fragments decorated with geometric designs and writings, one of which said: "Oh, Jesus... of Christ."

The excavation, conducted under the direction of the Cyprus Department of Antiquities, is supported by the National Geographic Society, the University of Arizona and other organizations.

Population Study Ranks U.S. 7th On Birth Control

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Libya, Laos and Cambodia have the poorest family planning programs among the developing nations, while the United Kingdom is the leader and the United States ranks seventh among industrial countries, a private population study shows.

Declines in family size correspond closely to the quality of family planning services available, according to a new report by the Population Crisis Committee, which seeks to draw attention to the problems of overpopulation and to find ways to reduce growth.

With virtually no family planning services available, Cambodia, Laos and Libya shared a rating of zero in the committee's report.

On the 100-point scale used to rank developing nations, Taiwan had 92, followed by Singapore with a 90.

The private committee developed the ratings to assess the availability of birth control in various nations. It said serious shortages in family planning services exist in 82 nations, most of them in the Third World.

The more developed nations were ranked on a separate 30-point scale, which the United Kingdom led with a 29.

The United States was seventh with a 25 rating.

"The United States has abdicated world leadership in birth control and family planning aid," charged Dr. Sharon L. Camp, vice president of the committee. "The world needs to more than double spending on family planning, yet U.S. technical and financial aid for international family planning has declined by 20 percent since 1985 and is in danger of eroding even further."

"It only costs about $20 to provide a couple with one year of family planning," added Dr. J. Joseph Speidel, another committee vice president.

"To reach poor women who need and want family planning right now, the world needs to spend an additional $5 billion per year," he added.

Domestically, the federal government has sought to reduce its involvement in family planning efforts, particularly seeking to distance the government from any activity that involved abortion. Federal law allows government spending for abortions only in cases in which the pregnancy endangers the life of the woman.

Just two weeks ago, a federal regulation was announced which would ban family planning clinics which receive federal funds from informing pregnant women that abortion is an option for them and from giving women the names of clinics where they can obtain abortions.

Although the United States placed seventh on the list, it was included in the Crisis Committee's "excellent" category, well above Romania, for example, where planning services are restricted, and the Soviet Union, where contraceptives are difficult to obtain.

In most parts of rural Africa, family planning is nearly nonexistent, the committee reported, and it ranked all African nations except Mauritius as poor or very poor in family planning.

"At current growth rates, these nations will double their populations in 18 to 38 years," Speidel said.

Categories covered in the survey included availability of various forms of contraception, services to the poor and minors, sex education and availability of public information on contraception and family planning.

The ratings of the developed nations, on a 30-point scale, were: —Excellent: United Kingdom, 29; West Germany, 28; France, 27; Canada, 27; Italy, 27; Australia, 27; United States, 25;

—Good: East Germany, 23; Yugoslavia, 23; Czechoslovakia, 23; Spain, 21; Poland, 21; Japan, 19; —Fair: Soviet Union, 11; —Poor: Romania, 3.
