Missile Ban Paves Way For Summit

By BARRY SCHWEID

AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said today the United States and Soviet Union have reached an "agreement in principle" to ban medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles, paving the way for a superpower summit later this year with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

The treaty would be Reagan's first nuclear arms accord with the Soviet Union and also the first to ever ban an entire class of nuclear weapons.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze called the agreement "a common success for all mankind, for all civilization."

Reagan said Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Shevardnadze will meet in Moscow late next month to work out final details of the treaty and set a precise date and an agenda for a summit in the United States.

"I'm pleased to note that an agreement in principle was reached to conclude an INF treaty," Reagan said in a nationally broadcast announcement from the White House.

The pact would impose a worldwide ban on U.S. and Soviet missiles with ranges from 315 miles to 3,125 miles.

The Soviets would scrap 462 rockets aimed at Western Europe and 221 targeted on China and Japan. On the U.S. side, 332 ballistic and ground-launched cruise missiles would be withdrawn from Britain, Italy, West Germany and Belgium. Some conservatives have assailed the administration for reducing the U.S. nuclear force protecting the North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies and pursuing a deal with a nation which Reagan four years ago denounced as "an evil empire."

Asked today if he still held that view of the Kremlin, Reagan said, "I don't think it's still lily white" while Shultz said U.S.-Soviet relations had improved markedly over the last three years.

Reagan also rejected any suggestion that he was in a rush to see Soviet General Secretary Gorbachev again before the end of his presidency in January 1989. "I don't know anything in my life I've waited over six years for," he said with a chuckle.

He said the agreement now taking shape followed the formula he first proposed more than four years ago.

Reagan congratulated the U.S. and Soviet teams that achieved the breakthrough over three days of talks, but said "we have serious differences in many areas." He apparently referred to non-nuclear issues.

"The tone of the talks was frank and notable progress was made," Reagan said in a brief exchange with reporters in the White House press room.

Shevardnadze, at a news conference at the Soviet Embassy shortly after Reagan's announcement, noted that he and Shultz had met hours beyond their original plan and said, "The road to an agreement ...

Member Of U.S. Liaison Unit Shot In E. Germany

By ROBERT GREENE

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet patrol had created "sort of an ambush situation" before a member of an American military liaison team in East Germany was shot by a Soviet soldier, and the Pentagon is demanding an explanation, a U.S. official says.

The U.S. soldier, whose rank and identity were not immediately released, was slightly wounded in Thursday's incident, the Pentagon said.

A similar statement read by U.S. Army Major Dennis Pinkham at European Command Headquarters in West Germany said the two-man U.S. liaison team, in a four-wheel-drive vehicle, "encountered a group of Soviet soldiers and were fired at by at least one of these soldiers."

"The tour vehicle was hit seven times, shattering window glass. One member of the team was wounded by a bullet fragment," Pinkham said.

U.S. officials were quick to bring up the March 1985 killing of Maj. Arthur D. Nicholson by a Soviet sentry in East Germany.

"We wish to emphasize as we did when (Maj.) Nicholson was killed, their action is inexcusable," a Pentagon statement said. The soldier in Thursday's incident, like Nicholson, was attached to the U.S. Military Liaison Mission Team in Potsdam, East Germany.

The military liaison missions were created in 1947 by the four occupying powers in Germany after World War II — Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States — to foster cooperation. The Soviet Union has a team in West Germany.

A Pentagon official who insisted on anonymity said the Soviet patrol set up "sort of an ambush situation."

"We need to find out much more about this. Our men were not in a restricted area. There was no excuse for the use of deadly force," he said.

"They were traveling. They were intercepted. It was like an ambush. They wanted to continue on after the shooting, but they were detained and prevented from doing so."

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger has already called for "strong, immediate" protests to the Soviet embassy in Washington and to military liaison officials in Europe, Pentagon sources said.

A Pentagon source reached Thursday night said the United States might take unspecified actions "to restrict the Soviet liaison mission activities in West Germany until we find out what's going on."

The Pentagon said the soldier in Thursday's incident was treated at a West Berlin hospital for a wound in the arm and was released shortly afterward.

According to Lt. Alice Prucha, a Pentagon spokeswoman, the two U.S. soldiers were detained for about 20 minutes before being allowed to leave. The American soldier was wounded by a bullet fragment after a Soviet soldier, one of a group of five, fired a rifle burst at the Americans' vehicle, the Pentagon said.

Thomas Bennett Elected Chairman Of ECU Board

Thomas A. Bennett of Winston-Salem was elected chairman of East Carolina University's board of trustees after three new members took the oath of office at a meeting here this morning.

Bennett, a member of the board since 1981, replaces Ralph Kinsey of Charlotte, who was ineligible for reappointment to the board when his term expired June 30. He had served as a trustee first in 1972 and 1973, then continuously from 1978.

Bennett, a Beaufort County native, was regional vice president of Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., with offices in Greenville, when he was first named a trustee. He is now executive vice president of Wachovia.

Max Joyner of Greenville was re-elected vice chairman, while Sandra Babb of Cary, was named secretary to replace Dr. Roy D. Flood of Murfreesboro, who after serving two terms as secretary was ineligible for re-election.

New members sworn today included Vincent Lowe Jr. of Wilson, Howard Rooks of Alexandria, Va., and Craig Souza of Raleigh.

Farmville Marks Bicentennial

By CAROL TYER

Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville citizens and guests turned out by the hundreds Thursday for a celebration of the bicentennial of the signing of the U.S. Constitution.

Music — band music, vocal solos and singing by the public — was the foundation of the program presented by the Major Benjamin May chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution headquartered in Farmville. The DAR and the town co-sponsored the program held on the Town Commons.

The Farmville Central High School Band performed, as did its fife and drum component and the Farmville Central Mixed Chorus. The chorus sang "This Is My Country."

Shelton Chesson opened the program with "America, the Beautiful." The assemblage joined in on "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "Happy Birthday, Constitution."

Rosalind Britt, representing the DAR, led the assemblage in the recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance to the American flag, The American's Creed, and the preamble to the Constitution.

The belfries of the First Baptist Church and the First Christian Church chimed patriotic music before, during and after the program.

A dogwood was planted to commemorate the day. Farmville Mayor Edna Earle Baker said this "Bicentennial Constitution Tree" will have an appropriate plaque at its base.

Representatives of the Dr. Robert J. Williams Children of the American Revolution Group were on hand with a document commemorating the event that members of the assemblage were invited to sign. This organization is composed of young people mostly from Pitt and Greene counties.

Much of the citizenry was dressed in Colonial-era costumes. Many wore red, white and blue. Some waved flags.

Participants were invited to stay after the program, have a sandwich and soft drink, and eat "bicentennial birthday cake."

Consultant Pleads For Education

By CHERIE EVANS

Reflector Staff Writer

Education, which now trails second behind the health care industry, is about to become the largest industry in America, said David P. Snyder, lifestyles editor of "The Futurist" magazine.

Snyder, who also is a consultant for Fortune 500 companies, spoke to an 18-member task force comprised of teachers, principals, central office personnel and local citizens Thursday night at Wahl-Coates School. The task force was formed by the Pitt County school system to address predictable, major changes in population, demographics, business and economic trends, family and social trends and educational requirements in the nation, state and county.

He was first in a series of scheduled speakers who will address the task force through November. The task force then will deliberate on the information presented and will make recommendations to the Pitt County Board of Education in February to be used on long-range planning for the schools.

As America goes through a techno-economic revolution, education will become an on-going activity for most Americans, Snyder said in a two and one-half hour presentation.

There are a host of reasons for education's rise to the No. 1 slot in the economy, he said.

After World War II, Americans aided Third World countries through technical and economic assistance, which created a middle class in those areas with higher living standards. "All those countries now can compete with us" in all but very highly technical goods, he said, and they produce goods cheaper than America.

China and India, for example, pay $1 per day for 10 hours of work, he said. "That's an insurmountable economic advantage." And, he said, Japan "has the potential to out produce us everywhere."

So, in the 1980s, America increased production through technology by making "a massive commitment in enhancing capital goods," in industries and service occupations but not in farming, Snyder said.

About 115,000 farms have died in the last 36 months, he said, "but the revolution in agriculture will continue" in about 20 years when the world will need America's crops. Now, he said, agriculture growth is in small, specialty farms.

Also, studies were done on the benefits of microelectronics, Snyder said. Results showed growth in industry, a broad range of applications in the work place and the loss of millions of jobs. "Job loss is a part of progress," he said.

The revolution was created to maintain the economy, and "without a whole lot of thought, the nation

Theft Arrests

Greenville police arrested three people Thursday in connection with theft cases investigated by the department.

Officer J.G. Bridges said Ashley Soho Paige, 21, of 1500 W. Fourth St. was charged with larceny in connection with the theft of a $30 sweater from University Book Exchange on Cotanche Street about 11 a.m.

Officer J.E. Williams said Warren Dale Williams, 25, of Route 11, Greenville, was arrested about 2:30 p.m. on two counts of obtaining property by false pretenses. One of the charges resulted from the theft of $50 from a man at Greenway Apartments on July 17, while the second charge involved the theft of $50 from a man at 709 Johnston St. on Aug. 18, the officer said.

Detective D.R. Best said James Hilton Brown, 31, of 109 Columbia Ave. was arrested about 5 p.m. on a charge of possession of stolen property that resulted from an Aug. 1 incident in which money was taken from a purse at 1610A W. Third St.

Larceny Charges

Greenville police arrested two men on theft charges Wednesday.

Detective J.E. Harris said Marvin Graline Batts, 30, of Jacksonville was charged with common law robbery and assault with a deadly weapon in connection with an Aug. 1 incident in which a Greenville man was hit in the head and money taken from him.

Detective G.W. Williams said Jerome Pitt, 28, of Farmville was charged with larceny in connection with an Aug. 28 incident at 612B W. 14th St. where $5 in cash and a check for $187 were reported taken from a purse.

Reading Association

The Greenville-Pitt Chapter of the International Reading Association will meet Monday at 5:45 p.m. in Western Sizzlin restaurant.

The theme for 1987-88 is "Writing — The Road to Reading."

Dr. Cris Crissman, consultant for the Central Regional Education Center, will speak on "Young Authors Project — A Writing Experience for Your Students."

Twilight Walk Set

The second in the fall series of twilight walks at River Park North sponsored by the Sierra Club will be held Tuesday, beginning at the parking area at 6:30 p.m.

The walk will be held rain or shine and participants should have a flashlight, repellent and rainwear if needed.

Information on membership is available from Barbara Peoples, 757-1053. Outings information is available from Jim Hix, 756-2970, and Diane Hankins, 758-4552.

Family Reunion

Tripp Withdraws As Candidate

Incumbent Steve Tripp of Ayden today withdrew as a candidate for Seat B, District 6, on the Pitt County Board of Education in the Nov. 3 election, citing "personal and family reasons" for the decision.

Tripp was seeking the seat to represent Ayden, Grifton, Swift Creek and Chicod townships.

Tripp, who has served on the board since 1981 during the period when Pitt County and Greenville schools merged, said he enjoyed watching the advances the school system made during his tenure.

"It is, therefore, with deepest regret, that for personal and family reasons I withdraw as a candidate for the Pitt County Board of Education in the upcoming election," Tripp said.

"However, demands of my job have increasingly usurped time from my wife and our children, ages 3 and 5. I do plan to offer myself as a candidate at some future time, once my children are older," he said.

Tripp credited consolidation with the school system's advances during the last five years.

"Significant progress has occurred in the areas of curriculum and instruction, programs for exceptional children, finance, school facility maintenance and construction, as well as recruiting and retaining quality personnel," he said.

"Through consolidation, instructional programs throughout the system have been equalized and cost effective and efficient procedures uniformly instituted."

Tripp is a pharmacist at Hollowell's Drug Store Inc., where he serves on the board of directors and as secretary to the board.

Candidates for District 6, Seat B are Ron Hardison of Grifton, Greg White of Grifton, Elbert Buck of Winterville and Levi Smith of Greenville.

Department will begin several adult classes at the department's Fourth and Greene streets site.

Water color painting begins Monday from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. for 12 weeks, and weaving begins Monday from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. for 10 weeks. Basketry and chair caning starts Monday from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. for 12 weeks.

Tuesday, stained glass classes begin from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. for 12 weeks, and drawing and pastels begins from 9 a.m. to noon for 12 weeks.

Wednesday, calligraphy begins from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. for 12 weeks.

For more information call the department at 830-4546.

Commissioners Meet

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. at the county office building, 1717 W. Fifth St.

Agenda items include: the scheduling of dates for public hearings on readopting local option sales taxes (required under a law passed by the 1987 General Assembly); a discussion of possible changes in the subdivision ordinance to require approval of plats by the board of commissioners; a resolution to control the speed of boats at the wildlife access area boat ramp on the Tar River east of Greenville, and appointments to the road sign committee and other boards.

M.A.D.D. Chapter

The Pitt County chapter of M.A.D.D., Mothers Against Drunk Driving, will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Greenville Police Department, second floor conference room.

The focus of the program is to provide group support meetings, help victims with crisis situations and advocate conscientious law enforcement.

At a recent chapter meeting, State Trooper Donnie Taylor reported that the Highway Patrol arrested 534 motorists for driving while impaired in Pitt County through July, compared to 1,674 DWI arrests by Greenville police and the Highway Patrol in the area last year.

Taylor said Pitt and Martin counties ranked among the top four troops for the number of DWI arrests.

For more information about M.A.D.D. call Marian Zimmerman at 355-3700.

Eastern Star

The Eastern Star will meet Saturday at 4 p.m. at the Masonic Hall.

Committee Chairman

Dr. Sheldon C. Downes of East Carolina University's School of Allied Health was recently elected chairman of the Pitt County Committee for the Employment of the Handicapped.

Other new officers elected at a recent committee meeting included A.D. McArthur Jr. of A.C. Monk & Co., vice chairman, and Eunice Pierce, Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, secretary-treasurer.

The purpose of the committee is to promote the objectives of permanent and continued employment of the handicapped, develop a better understanding by the handicapped of rehabilitation, training and placement services available to them, and to promote the removal of architectural, attitudinal and social barriers toward the handicapped in the community, according to a spokesman.

Semifinalists Named

Nine Greenville students — five at the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics and four at J.H. Rose High School — have been selected as National Merit Scholarship semifinalists.

Those at the state school are Stewart L. Coulter, Pamela K. Keel, Christopher S. Marks, Duncan S. Parks and Jason M. Sullivan, while those at Rose are Robert W. Barnes, Terri L. Jarvis, James V. Lawler and Edward R. Norris.

They will compete with 15,000 other academically talented high school seniors nationwide for about 6,000 scholarships worth $23 million and were chosen as semifinalists by being top scorers on a qualifying test.

To become a finalist, semifinalists must document high academic performance during their senior year. Activities, achievements and goals also are considered by judges at the National Merit Scholarship Corp. Scholarships are offered by businesses, colleges and the corporation and will range in value from $250 to $8,000 per year of undergraduate study.

Fall Festival

Macclesfield's 10th annual fall festival, sponsored by the Macclesfield Fire Department, will be held on Oct. 3.

The Mini Park will have music and singing groups throughout the day with a street dance from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

The fire department will cook barbecue chickens for the evening meal on a first come, first served basis. Station 13 Ladies Auxillary will sell hot dogs until 3 p.m. and will crown "Little Mr. and Miss Fall Festival."

Booth spaces will be filled with wood crafts, art crafts, Christmas ornaments, smocking, decorated chairs, quilts, T-shirts and various kinds of foods.

For booth information contact Elizabeth Ellis at 827-5572 or write Fall Festival, P.O. Box 283, Macclesfield, 27852.

Whitfields Reunion

The 26th annual reunion of the Society of Whitfields will be held Oct. 11 at Spring Creek School. Registration begins at 10 a.m.

The theme will be "Whitfields in the War Between the States." Lunch and a business session will follow the program.

A trip to the Bentonville Battleground is planned for Oct. 10 and an informal Dutch dinner is set for 7 p.m. at the Southern Belle Motel Restaurant.

The organization pays tribute to William Whitfield II and his wife, Rachel Bryan, who settled in the Seven Springs area in 1741.

Those attending will carry a covered dish.

Lecturer Selection

The department of library & information studies at East Carolina University has announced that Diane Kester has been chosen as a lecturer for 1987-88.

Ms. Kester is a former school library media specialist in the Wayne County school system and is completing degree requirements for a doctorate in library science from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Ms. Kester has taught in public schools and universities and holds posts on national and state professional committees. Her areas of expertise include library automation and supervision of media services.

Speaker Named

Harry Reeder of Charlotte, who is heard weekdays on WGHB Radio, will speak on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the main conference room of the Comfort Inn in Greenville.

Reeder will discuss "Accountability in Christian Media."

For more information call WGHB Radio at 753-4121.

Republican Women

The Pitt County Republican Women are sponsoring a barbecue on Sept. 30 at 6 p.m. at the American Legion Building. Tickets can be purchased at Sweet Caroline's, Susan's and Matita's.

NCRSP Session

The North Carolina Retired School Personnel organization will meet on Wednesday at St. James United Methodist Church.

The meeting will start at 11 a.m. and a covered dish luncheon will begin at 11:30 a.m.

Martin Appointed

State Sen. R.L. Martin, D-Pitt, was named Thursday to the 10-member Legislative Research Commission.

Martin was appointed by Sen. J.J. Harrington, D-Bertie, co-chairman of the commission, which conducts studies between sessions of the General Assembly. The commission's first meeting will be on Sept. 25.

Rose Booster Club

The Rose Athletic Booster Club will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria. The new football stadium and the proposed trip to Hawaii for the cheerleaders will be discussed.

Fall Bird Hike

A fall bird hike beginning at 8 a.m. Saturday is being offered at Merchants Millpond State Park near Gatesville.

The park's recorded bird list numbers 194 species with the possibility of discovering a new species. The hike will be one and one-half miles and should last about two hours.

A fall flower hike will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at the park. The hike will be about one mile and will last about one and one-half hours. A slide program will be shown following the hike.

Those attending are to meet at the interpretive building near the canoe rental area. Both programs are free and open to the public.

MORNING ACCIDENT — Vehicles driven by Michael Millard Daniel Maloney of Greenville and Kimberly J. Ard of Goldsboro were damaged when they collided early today at the intersection of state roads 1700 and 1708. Ard was transported to Pitt County Memorial Hospital. According to the N.C. # West Gives Briefing On School Goals

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Pitt County schools are looking toward the future in setting immediate and long-range goals this year, Superintendent Eddie West Jr. told a dozen business leaders and school personnel congregated at Farmville Central High School this morning.

"All these concepts and goals are geared to looking to the future and building relationships," he said.

The briefing was the first in a series to provide school communities an overview of the goals and improvements slated for this year and the future. Other briefings will be held at Ayden-Grifton High School Sept. 25; D.H. Conley High School Oct. 2; J.H. Rose High School Oct. 9 and North Pitt High School Oct. 16. Briefings begin at 7 a.m. in the school cafeteria.

Immediate goals for this academic year are to improve support services for the instructional staff, to better use available test data and to evaluate the grouping plan for kindergarten through eighth-grade students.

Additional goals this year are to improve emerging technology, such as the use of computers, and to develop a basic education program that develops foreign language in grades kindergarten through 12.

Other immediate goals are to improve writing skills of the students in Pitt County, to develop a system-wide gifted and talented program, to implement better services for special-needs children, to improve the studying and thinking of children through grade seven and to improve students' reading skills through a afterschool program especially designed for high-risk students.

West said his long-range goals are "to improve and enhance an understanding of the importance of relationships among and between ethnic groups," through a minority task force created to study conceptions about minorities.

A goal to foster communication with students and teachers is to be achieved through advisory councils, and board effectiveness will be enhanced through data-based problem solving.

The school system will join forces with Pitt Community College and the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce "to articulate public education from K (kindergarten) through 12" and public education in vocational education, West said. There is a vocational education task force that will study the future of this route for students.

National, state and local trends will be studied by a future's task force, and will be applied to the educational process in Pitt County.

Also, equitable education resources are being sought for the schools through specific forecasts on finances, enrollment, resources and pupil needs.

Forecasts on school populations are fairly accurate from five to seven years, West said. "In the Farmville area, I don't see any sign of growth," but there will be no regression to the extent previously anticipated.

"Countywide, we're gaining students every year," from 100 to 200, he said. Most of the growth is in the Conley High School attendance area.

Edwards To Head ECU Foundation

Greenville businessman I. Jackson (Jack) Edwards has been elected president of the East Carolina University Foundation, a private corporation that supports academic programs at the university through the solicitation of gifts and the management of resources.

Court of Appeals Judge S. Gerald Arnold of Buies Creek was named vice president and will succeed Edwards next year. Edwards follows W.R. Roberson Jr. of Washington, N.C., as president.

Edwards received a master's in business at ECU in 1960. Although semi-retired, his businesses, University Book Exchange, Art & Camera Shop, and Art & Camera Frame Shop, continue to serve the Greenville and university community.

He was recognized in 1984 by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce as the Small Business Leader of the Year. In 1985 he also served as president of the Pitt County Chapter of the ECU Alumni Association.

Peggy S. Corbitt, Sid Warner and Dr. Sam C. Winchester Jr., all of Greenville, were elected to the foundation's board.

Group Ties Tobacco Money To Votes

VOTE4 WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers who voted to preserve the federal tobacco program in a 1985 House vote are getting substantially more in industry campaign money than critics of the program, a health group says.

"Once again we see that dollars speak louder than sense on Capitol Hill," Ellen Haas, executive director of Public Voice for Food and Health Policy, said in a statement Thursday.

Those who voted to end the program received a total of $351,042 in campaign contributions from nine political action committees (PACs) representing the industry while those who voted against the plan received $938,762 from the same groups, according to a study unveiled by Public Voice.

Responding to the conclusions drawn by the health group, Tobacco Institute spokeswoman Brennan Moran said it was "absolutely outrageous to insinuate that any industry, including the tobacco industry, is trying to buy votes."

"We participate in the political process the same as everybody else does. We don't buy votes," she said. "There are a number of PACs, including the Tobacco Institute PAC, that make campaign contributions, but they target their contributions separately. This conspiracy theory is pretty old and very unsubstantiated."

The average amount received by tobacco program supporters was $4,082, while opponents got an average of $1,800, according to the study. It said the amounts were based on Federal Election Commission records of campaign contributions.

Of 14 congressmen who received more than $12,000 in industry contributions, 11 voted in favor of maintaining the government's tobacco price support program on Oct. 8, 1985, when an amendment to abolish it was offered by Rep. Thomas Petri, R-Wis, the group said.

It said 210 of the 230 lawmakers who opposed the Petri plan received contributions and 64 of the 195 who favored it did not.

Public Voice said that the 43 members of the House Agriculture Committee received $226,232, or 17 percent of the total PAC money, and averaged $5,261 for each lawmaker. It said that only four of those on the panel voted against the industry.

It said that all 10 members of the panel's tobacco and peanuts subcommittee voted the industry position.

DRIVER FREED — Rescue and fire personnel pry wreckage off the driver of a car Thursday night after a collision on the Stantonsburg highway west of Greenville. According to Trooper B.A. Jones, a car driven by Wanda Kay Mercer of Walstonburg, was headed west and another car driven by Dorothy Frizzell McMillar of

Guilty Plea

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The former principal of a Winston-Salem Christian school has pleaded guilty in Forsyth County District Court to charges of soliciting a crime against nature.

Edward Lee Stevens, 49, was ordered to pay court costs. Judge Loretta Biggs imposed no fine or active sentence.

Stevens was charged with offering to commit a sexual act with an undercover officer of the Winston-Salem Police Department.

Conviction

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — The jury that convicted Dwight Lamont "Pee Wee" Robinson of first-degree murder in the execution-style slaying of a High Point steakhouse manager will begin hearing evidence today on whether he should be sentenced to life in prison or to death.

The seven-man, five-woman Guilford County jury deliberated for almost three hours Thursday before returning the verdict in the death last year of Robert Page, an assistant manager at the restaurant.

Prosecutors have said they will ask the jury to impose the death penalty.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Too Simplistic

University of North Carolina President C.D. Spangler's suggestions for improving North Carolina's public schools may set high standards, but they are simplistic and not practical.

Spangler called for stronger graduation requirements, mandatory Scholastic Aptitude Tests and a lengthened school year for North Carolina's public schools. Although his aim of improving the intellectual ability of the state's high school graduates is commendable, the approach he suggested may be short sighted.

Higher graduation standards for the state's schools is an appealing proposition and is worth striving for, but the measure will not work without some attention to the varying talents, needs and ability levels of students.

Spangler said high school graduation requirements should be identical to state university admission requirements which will be implemented in 1990. Tough college preparatory courses such as algebra and biology would be required of all students.

It is easy to be sympathetic with UNC President Spangler's concern for ill-prepared high school graduates who attempt to make their way into the university system. And yet it is clear that not everyone who graduates from high school is going on to college. Some need to be prepared for a career in which they will not spend a day in a college classroom. College courses will be of little use to them.

Similarly, proposing the SAT be used as a means of raising standards is an inappropriate measure. The SAT is primarily a screening device — an implement for determining readiness for college entrance, not a tool of measurement.

Lengthening the school year is simply not practical in North Carolina unless the state is prepared to air condition every classroom. Already, schools are forced to cancel classes on unbearably hot days in June and August. To extend this "swelter period" without providing air conditioning would amount to torture.

In addition, it is doubtful whether educational benefits would justify the additional utility, manpower and transportation costs of operating.

What the public schools and the university system can do is cooperate on ways to better identify public school students who are likely to go on to college. The schools then can determine ways to prepare the college bound students for the tasks ahead, while serving the important needs of students with other talents. No student should be categorized to keep him or her from continuing education at the college level, however. Curriculums should be broad and flexible enough to allow choices.

There are no easy answers to preparing the state's young people for university admittance while providing the proper education for the non-college bound. Spangler's proposals set admirably high standards, but are not realistic.

Presidential Team

There can be no doubt that the Doles mean business in seeking the Republican presidential nomination for Sen. Bob Dole.

Elizabeth Dole, who is secretary of transportation in the Reagan administration, announced that she would resign and join her husband's presidential campaign.

It is certain that Mrs. Dole's role will not be to appear in the tradition of years gone by — the dutiful wife at the husband's side. She has, after all, been talked as a presidential candidate herself. Mrs. Dole is highly regarded as transportation secretary and she has the instincts to be persuasive. We can expect that she will strike out on her own campaigning for her husband. Where he can't be, she will appear.

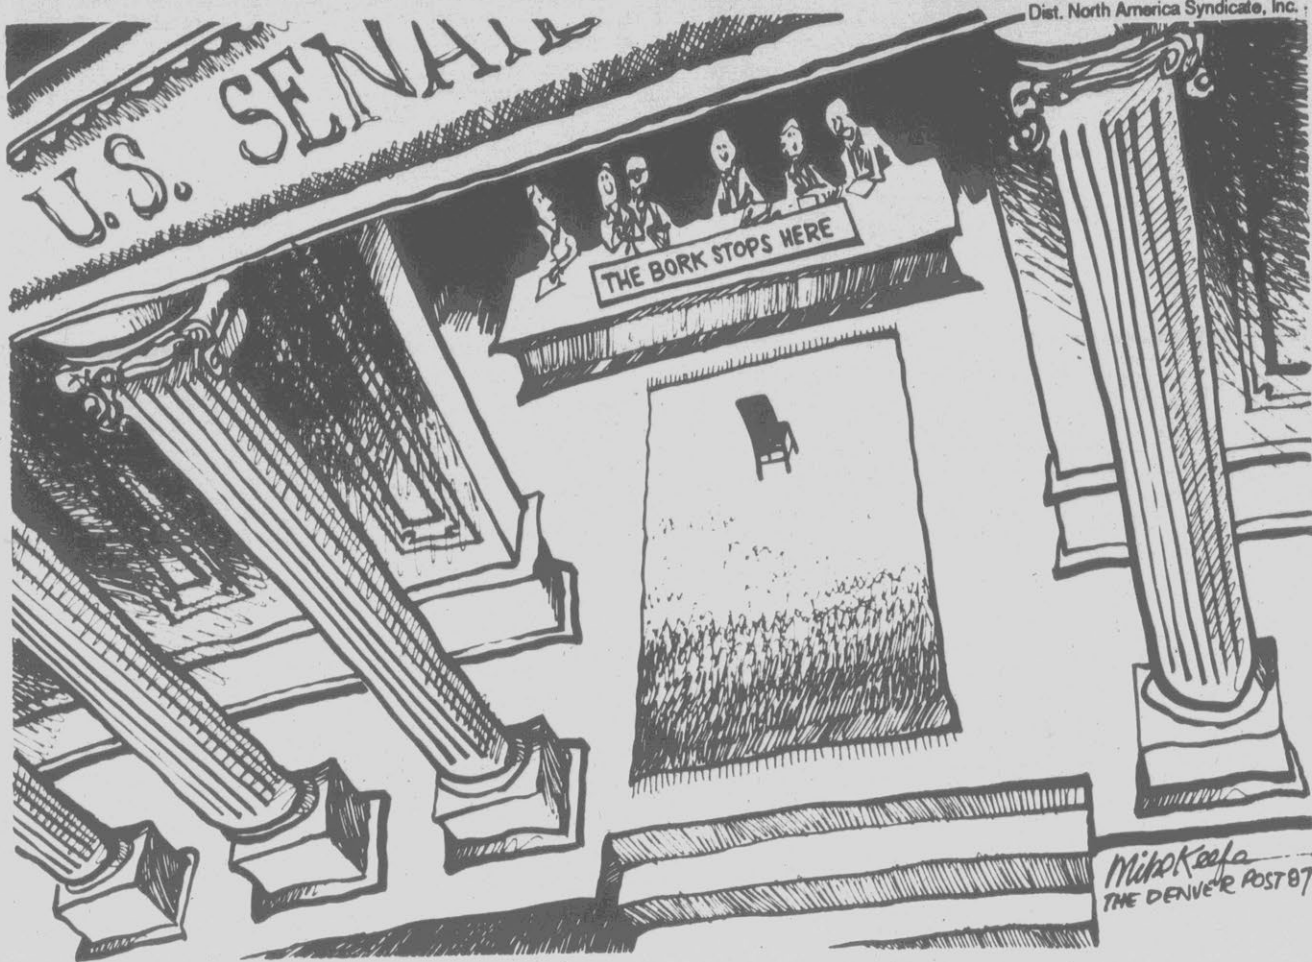

There may have never been a team quite like the Doles in American politics. Franklin Roosevelt's wife, Eleanor, was a strong first lady who could promote a cause and deliver a competent speech. Nevertheless her role fitted those times, that she be the supportive wife of the nation's leader.

Bess Truman, wife of Harry S Truman, never liked the limelight and was quite content being the wife of her independent husband.

As women's roles changed, presidential candidates wives assumed more active roles. Certainly Pat Nixon was a partner to Richard Nixon and Rosalynn Carter played an important part in Jimmy Carter's campaign and later his presidency.

Mrs. Dole, though, is a woman who has developed her own career in public service and most recently has served in the administration's cabinet. She is qualified to speak out on issues as opposed to appearing at ribbon cuttings for new skyscrapers.

It will never be said, but the implication will be there that a Bob Dole nomination will provide the nation with a team of two competent leaders.

Strained Ties Between Pope And Flock

Pope John Paul II didn't pull any punches in demanding a greater degree of obedience from his American flock, and U.S. bishops were equally blunt in explaining why he isn't likely to get it.

If they didn't identify any solutions at an extraordinary colloquy in Los Angeles on Wednesday, they didn't flinch from the problems either. In that, they may have begun to heal the rift.

"Dissent from church doctrine remains what it is, dissent," John Paul told bishops gathered at Our Lady Queen of the Angels seminary. "As such it may not be proposed or received on an equal footing with the church's authentic teaching."

Those who believe that dissent poses no obstacle to receiving the sacraments have made "a grave error," he said, though he did no more than hint at the possibility of excommunicating dissenters.

Those were strong words for a church of independent-minded Americans. Surveys have found that nine out of 10 U.S. Catholics believe they can disagree with the pope and still be loyal to the church.

But what can the pope do to compel obedience? Some scholars suggest that rather than imposing blanket sanctions, his strategy is to penalize prominent dissenters as a warning to others.

Archbishop Daniel E. Pilarczyk of Cincinnati emerged from the meeting to say: "I don't think the pope is saying everybody who practices birth control, stop going to communion, leave the church, get out of our way."

Church rules prohibiting contraception, divorce, women's ordination and marriage of priests are supported by a minority of U.S. Catholics.

"The faithful are more inclined to look at the intrinsic worth of an argument proposed by the teachers in the church than to accept it on the basis of authority itself," Archbishop Rembert G. Weakland of Milwaukee told the pope.

Archbishop John R. Quinn of San Francisco contended "we cannot fulfill our task simply by an uncritical application designed in past ages for problems which have qualitatively changed."

To some bishops and other Roman Catholic thinkers, the Vatican's recent attempts to discipline the American churchmen were a breach of "collegiality," or the collective method of decision-making endorsed by the Second Vatican Council.

But such strains are hardly new. At the turn of the century, the Vatican was vexed by "Americanism" — an interpretation of Catholicism which emphasized the American characteristics of individuality and freedom in the life of the church.

The Vatican cracked down with an investigation, followed by an 1899 papal encyclical warning against heretical ideas said to be abroad in America.

"The controversy soon died, but scars remained," the Rev. James Hennessey, S.J., wrote in his church history, "American Catholics."

Hersey wasn't mentioned in the exchange Wednesday, but Cardinal Joseph L. Bernardin of Chicago, usually given to diplomatic subtlety, said it was painful for U.S. bishops to be cast as the Vatican's adversary.

The President: A Man On The Go

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Reagan vacationed at his California ranch last month, his spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, told reporters that "September is going to be perhaps the busiest month since he's been in office."

Well, this is September. If you judge by physical movement, Fitzwater seems to have been right. In four days this week, the president has made six trips outside the White House fence — a sharp contrast to the many weeks in which he doesn't leave the grounds except to go to Camp David, Md., for the weekend.

It is not so clear, however, what all this presidential activity added up to.

On Monday, the president went to the Library of Congress to speak at the swearing-in of the new librarian, James H. Billington, then returned to the White House and left two hours later to go speak to a business group at a Washington hotel.

Tuesday evening, Reagan crossed the Potomac River to Rosslyn, Va., to attend a fifth anniversary reception for the newspaper USA Today. He was back a little over an hour after he left.

Wednesday was another double-header. In the morning, the president was driven to the State Department, about four blocks from the White House, to speak to the Advisory Commission on Public Diplomacy. Then in the afternoon he went to the Capitol to lead high school students in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag.

Thursday, the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution, he was bound for Philadelphia to speak at a bicentennial event at Independence Hall and a fund-raiser for Republican Sen. John Heinz of Pennsylvania.

Last Thursday he flew to Miami to meet with Pope John II, and on Monday he will travel to New York to attend the opening of the U.N. General Assembly.

"We have said this was a busy month; there's just a lot of things going on," Fitzwater said Wednesday. "He's making a lot of trips, and that's the way the events have been scheduled."

So, back at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue...

The president met Tuesday with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze in a meeting that could lead to a summit with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev later this year.

The same day he met with Republican congressional leaders and discussed aid to Nicaraguan rebels, an issue embroiled in controversy over Central American peace moves.

Fitzwater said he believed the president found time despite his busy schedule to watch the televised confirmation hearings for his embattled Supreme Court nominee, Robert Bork.

One event Fitzwater said has not been scheduled for the month is a White House news conference. There hasn't been one since March 19.

Impact Of Regulations Uncertain

RALEIGH — The State Department of Transportation is trying to assess the impact that a federal ruling will have on North Carolina's air traffic.

U.S. Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole announced last month that tough new regulations are in effect for the nation's major airports. Charlotte's Douglas International Airport is already covered by the regulations and Raleigh-Durham Airport will grow into the class of covered airports within the next year.

Mrs. Dole's ruling will have an impact on more than those two metropolitan airports, however. Small airports near the two majors could suffer dramatically, and small airports on the borders of the metro areas could see a quick jump in air traffic.

The Dole ruling requires new safety equipment for all aircraft operating within a 34-mile (that's 34 nautical miles) radius of major airports. Also, when travelling near these airports, all aircraft will have to have tower clearance.

Those regulations mean change only for small, private aircraft. Commercial airliners, and most business-owned aircraft, already have the equipment and already seek clearance. In the Charlotte area, about 1,500 and in Raleigh about 1,000 aircraft will be covered.

Wil Plentl, head of the state Aviation Division said he sees several possible developments growing out of the Dole decision. (The decision, by the way, was prompted by concerns of air traffic congestion around the nation's major airports and fears that small aircraft might collide with commercial airliners.)

Small aircraft owners could simply buy the equipment, begin seeking tower clearance, and there would be little change in air traffic. But that's unlikely. The equipment could cost as much as $2,000 per airplane, and that would represent a major expenditure for the many recreational flyers involved. Most new aircraft sold now have it, but used planes which sell for only $20,000 or less, aren't likely to have it, and adding it would mean a large percentage investment in a used plane.

Added to the price incentive for private flyers to move out of the two major metro flying circles is the growing congestion in those areas. Plentl says the delays involved in getting take-off and landing clearance at these airports has already created momentum for developing "close in reliever" airports which cater to small aircraft.

But because of the Dole ruling, planes flying to the reliever airports within 34 miles of the major airports would still have to have the expensive safety equipment. For those which have it, these close in relievers are fine. For those which don't, there is the incentive to go out even farther.

DOT wants to know how North Carolina's plane owners are going to react. If a great many desert the close in relievers for outlying airports, two problems could be created. "There could be some horror stories for private airport owners who see their traffic driven away," he said. On the other hand, airports outside of the 34-mile radius might find they don't have the capacity to park, either in hangars or on aprons, the many new planes which will seek to use their facilities.

Another consideration involves the Triad airport. It enjoys the same geographical advantages which brought major airline hubs to Charlotte and RDU. A sudden upsurge in traffic there could create a third metro circle.

Strength For Today

There have to be laws on the statute books to regulate our behavior, but man usually rebels when these laws become too severe or specific. We live in an age which particularly dislikes the restraint of laws. Probably all generations of humans have wanted to do what they wanted to do when they wanted to do it. But our generation is particularly given to lawlessness.

Strange as it may seem, there is a good side to all this as well as a bad side. Something within us tells us that laws written of the pages of a book are not sufficient. The situation is only satisfactory when the law is right, and man's response to the law prompt and willing.

The only law that really operates is the law that we have in our hearts, and this law must correspond to laws that have come out of the experience of the race.

IN THE STATE

Open House

WILMINGTON (AP) — The North Carolina State Ports Authority new $2 million automated container entrance gate will be the focus of an open house and harbor tour Sept. 27.

The ribbon-cutting ceremony, which begins at 2 p.m. for the new south entrance gate, will coincide with the kickoff of Marine Expo '87 Week in the Cape Fear area.

Layoffs

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP) — As many as 200 workers at Collins & Aikman's Ca-Vel division plant could lose their jobs in a planned restructuring of product lines, company officials have announced.

The restructuring will place increased emphasis on the company's primary market areas, including its upholstery businesses, furniture, automotive and recreational vehicle fabric and paint roller product lines, according to officials.

Layoffs will be effective Oct. 1, although some employees will remain beyond that time to finish up orders, Jerry Lee, personnel director at the Ca-Vel plant, said Wednesday.

Tarheel I

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina will be the first state in which the nation's "emergency repatriation plan" will be tested, according to state Crime Control and Public Safety Secretary Joseph Dean.

The exercise, called Tarheel I, will be staged Oct. 29 at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro. It will test a federal program for returning U.S. citizens from foreign countries in time of emergency.

During the exercise, up to 400 volunteers will be put on three military airplanes at the base. The planes will taxi a short distance in a simulation of planes arriving from Europe.

The "evacuees" will be bused to a processing center at Goldsboro High School. Two fast-food restaurants will provide food and The Salvation Army will provide additional services.

North Carolina is one of 41 designated ports of entry for the emergency return of citizens.

Chairwoman

GREENSBORO (AP) — Elizabeth S. Randolph has been elected the first chairwoman of the board of trustees at North Carolina A&T.

Ms. Randolph, a retired educator from Charlotte, served last year as vice chairman and replaces William C. Parker Jr. of Greensboro.

Also elected Wednesday as vice chairman was Thomas J. Elijah of Winston-Salem. Priscilla Taylor of Greensboro was elected secretary.

Investors

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Rutherford County civil jury has awarded $542,000 in damages to two investors who claimed a Spindale lawyer misled them in a 1973 land deal.

Attorneys for A. Clyde Tomblin, a former Spindale city attorney, said Tomblin would appeal the decision. Ernest Bumgarner of Davidson County and George Griffin of Rutherford County sued Tomblin in 1980, claiming he broke a 1973 agreement to help the two men buy and manage two tracts of land in Rutherford totaling 850 acres.

The plaintiffs claimed Tomblin mismanaged the land and sold parts of it without giving them a share.

Hardee's Gift

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — Hardee's Restaurants has announced a $300,000 gift to the North Carolina Zoological Park's fund-raising campaign for the planned $31.5 million North America exhibit expansion.

The money will finance an exhibit in the zoo's new continent to be known as the Hardee's Petting Zoo.

Ballenger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Cass Ballenger, R-N.C., left Thursday for a four-day, fact-finding trip to Central America to help him gauge prospects for peace in the region.

Joining Ballenger on the trip will be Reps. Jon Kyl, R-Ariz., John Rhodes, R-Ariz. and Dennis Hastert, R-Ill.

Election

CHEROKEE, N.C. (AP) — Jonathan L. "Ed" Taylor defeated Dan McCoy, 1,619 to 1,052 votes, to become the principal chief of the Eastern Band of the Cherokee Indians in a runoff election Thursday.

Bill Ledford was elected vice chief, defeating Gerard Parker with 1,790 to 889 votes.

The runoff was necessary because a new tribal election rule says candidates for chief and vice chief must win by a clear majority, 50 percent plus one, to be elected.

In the Sept. 3 election no candidate had the required majority.

RIVER FLOAT — Relatives of Americans missing in action in Southeast Asia dump 2,500 leaflets, attached to plastic bags, into the Mekong River at Nakhon Phanom, Thailand, on Thursday. The leaflets offer rewards up to

$2.4 million for the return of the missing Americans. Thai officials blocked their efforts to float the leaflets into Laos on balloons. (AP Laserphoto)

MIA Families Wait For Signs Balloons Will Reach Laotians

By PETER ENG
Associated Press Writer
NAKHON PHANOM, Thailand (AP) — Relatives of missing Americans peered across the Mekong River through binoculars today, hoping their $2.4 million offer for the return of U.S. prisoners of war had reached the Laotian shore.

The group floated about 2,500 small plastic packets down the river boundary between Thailand and Laos on Thursday, offering the money to any defector from communist Indochina who brought out an American POW.

"Wherever the pouches are, it's just good knowing that they're out there," said former U.S. Rep. Bill Hendon, R-N.C., as he looked out at the Mekong from a riverside hotel verandah.

Hendon, spokesman for the six-member MIA family group, said their unorthodox action was needed because the U.S. government had failed to verify reports of sightings of live Americans in Laos, Cambodia and Laos.

The U.S. government has dismissed most so-called "live sightings" and the three communist governments have denied holding any American POWs.

The group originally planned to float 2,500 helium-filled balloons with the reward offer attached into Laos, but Thai authorities stopped the launch for fear of provoking tensions with Laos.

Robin Owen Bell of Fuquay-Varina, N.C., whose father was lost in Laos in 1968, scanned the tree-lined Laotian shore through binoculars. Across the calm, half-mile-wide river to the east were one-story houses with red tiled roofs.

The packets disappeared from view at sunset Thursday, moving slowly downstream along the Thai side of the shore.

The group planned to return to Bangkok later today.

Hendon said he and a few of the others would check into the possibility of buying time on radio and television programs beamed into Laos to announce the reward, which was donated by 21 U.S. congressmen and the American Defense Institute, a conservative study group.

"This river goes for 700 miles through Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam, the very countries where our men are being held," said Elizabeth Stewart, a Washington attorney whose father was shot down in Indochina 21 years ago. "We have found our vehicle — the Mekong."

About 2,400 Americans are listed as missing in action in the three Indochinese countries, including 544 in Laos.

The U.S. government criticized the balloon launch attempt, saying such actions could harm official negotiations to resolve the fate of the missing.

Bobby Bischoff, whose father was lost in Laos in 1961, was critical of U.S. government efforts to date. "Negotiations through four administrations have not brought our POWs home ... and we feel the balloon release may have gotten them out," the pharmacist from Wilson, N.C., said.

A group supporting the trip plans to launch 2,400 balloons in the United States bearing notices like those Hendon's group sought to release, said Ted Sampley of Kinston, N.C., director of the National Steering Committee for Live POW Activists.

He said the balloons were being released Thursday and Friday.

Health Tests Eliminated

BURGAU, N.C. (AP) — Pre-natal clinics have been closed, and immunizations and screening for sexually transmitted diseases have been terminated at the Pender County Health Department because there aren't enough nurses to staff the programs, officials say.

State law requires that local health departments offer all the programs free and on a regular basis.

Since last week, three people with symptoms of sexually transmitted diseases have been refused testing.

"Those three may have had AIDS as far as we know — we didn't have anyone to test them," said Allie Woodcock, the department's director. "They weren't seen, period."

The department, which pays the lowest wages in the region for nurses, has lost five nurses in the past six months, and the two left can handle only the maternity and childcare program, Woodcock said.

Students Say Eyes Burning

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — More than 200 Gastonia Ashbrook High School students left school Thursday complaining of burning eyes after sitting through a five-hour assembly in the school gym the day before.

Dozens of the students sought medical treatment Wednesday night and more students did the same Thursday.

School and health officials speculated that paint fumes, fiberglass insulation particles or tar fumes from roofing might have caused the eye problems.

School remained open Thursday, but the gym was closed.

"We've never seen this happen before. We have no idea what happened," said John Daves, the county schools' maintenance manager.

"We've painted a lot of schools over the years, and we've never had a problem like this."

Students' symptoms included painful, watery eyes, blurred vision, swollen eyelids and red, irritated skin. An ophthalmologist said he doesn't think students will suffer permanent damage.

"I think it should clear up completely and they should be totally all right within a matter of days," said Dr. R. Spencer Eaves. He and his partner, Dr. Richard Akers, treated about 40 Ashbrook students for cornea irritation and inflammation Wednesday night and Thursday.

Rabies Vaccination Called Ineffective

RALEIGH (AP) — State health officials will mail a letter today to all veterinarians across the state calling for the re-vaccination of all dogs that were inoculated with a best-selling brand of rabies vaccine.

But veterinarians and state officials said Thursday that problems with two kinds of vaccines produced by Norden Co. of Lincoln, Neb., do not pose a public health threat in North Carolina.

"I don't think it's a health hazard or anything people should run out and be alarmed about," said Dr. Dan Allen, veterinarian at Boulevard Animal Hospital in Raleigh.

Norden is urging veterinarians to reinoculate dogs that were given the vaccine because it may not protect the animals against the disease.

Norden has about one-third of the national market on rabies vaccines. The company makes two vaccines — Endurall-K for one-year immunity and Rabguard-TC, a three-year version.

The problem with the vaccine is the way it is administered — under the skin rather than into the muscle, which does not provide the desired immunity.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration gave the drug company provisional approval to market the two drugs for under-the-skin injections in July 1985. Veterinarians prefer to give subcutaneous — or under-the-skin — injections because it is less painful for the animal.

In follow-up studies, the USDA said the Norden vaccines did not meet the animal study standards and withdrew their approval.

Cats also were given the under-the-skin rabies vaccinations, but no immunity problems have shown up yet.

The letter to be mailed today from state veterinarian Dr. John I. Freeman calls for the re-vaccination of all dogs vaccinated subcutaneously with Norden's vaccines.

Study Shows Control Of Banks In South Centered In 3 States

ATLANTA (AP) — Stockholders have "received a king's ransom" for their bank holdings in a burst of bank mergers and acquisitions in the Southeast, a new study says.

Tom Schlesinger of the Charlotte, N.C.-based Southern Finance Project, studied bank acquisitions in eight Southeastern states and the District of Columbia.

"In the 57 interstate deals where data were available, acquirers paid a total of $7.4 billion. On average, these payments equaled 2.6 times the book value of each acquired bank or bank holding company," Schlesinger wrote in his report.

The study included bank acquisitions in Washington, D.C., Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

It says holding companies based in North Carolina, Georgia and Virginia have led the way in acquiring other banks, but that Georgia is the only one of those three which has a significant amount of its deposits in banks owned by holding companies from other states.

The study says non-Georgia-based firms now control 28.5 percent of the state's deposits and 26.9 percent of bank assets.

In contrast, no out-of-state bank has holdings in North Carolina, and only 7.48 percent of Virginia's deposits and 7 percent of assets are held by out-of-state banks.

Depositors in South Carolina are most likely to have their money controlled by outsiders, the study said, with 48.6 percent of deposits held by holding companies based out of state. North Carolina-based banks control 26.5 percent while Georgia-owned banks have 22.1 percent.

The District of Columbia was next with 40 percent, 24.7 percent by Maryland banks. Then came Tennessee, 31.2 percent; Florida, 31.2 percent; Georgia, Maryland, 20.7 percent; and Virginia.

North Carolina banks have control of 8.9 percent of deposits outside their state, followed by Georgia, 8.59 percent; Virginia, 4.28 percent; Maryland, .97 percent; and Florida, .18 percent.

No banks based in South Carolina or Tennessee control deposits in other states.

Alabama's law permitting regional banking went into effect July 1, and none of that state's banks have been bought, although Alabama-based companies control .33 percent of Florida's deposits.

First Union Corp., based in Charlotte, has acquired 16 banks or bank holding companies with $10.4 billion in assets since the U.S. Supreme Court June 1985 decision upholding the constitutionality of interstate banking agreements.

The study does not include the merger of Trust Co. Bank of Georgia with Sun Banks Inc. of Orlando, Fla., which was completed prior to the decision.

Others bank holding companies involved include:

—Citizens & Southern Corp., based in Atlanta, which has acquired five banks or bank holding companies with $7.8 billion in assets in Florida and South Carolina.

—Sovran, Virginia, three banks with $7.4 billion in assets in Washington, D.C., Maryland and Tennessee.

—First Wachovia Corp., jointly in Winston-Salem, N.C. and Atlanta, three banks with $7.1 billion in assets, all in Georgia, and chiefly First National Bank of Atlanta.

—SunTrust Banks Inc., Atlanta, four banks with $5.6 billion in assets in Florida and Tennessee.

—Maryland National, Maryland, one bank with $4.2 billion in Washington, D.C.

—NCNB Corp., Charlotte, six banks with $4.2 billion in assets in Florida, Georgia, Maryland and Virginia. NCNB is the largest bank in the Southeast with $27 billion in assets at the end of 1986.

Schlesinger said the project now will turn its attention on studying the implications of the shift of assets, including whether it helps bridge the economic gap between urban and rural areas in the South.

Joe Brannen, executive director of the Georgia Bankers Association said the out-of-state control of deposits is not worrisome.

"If those deposits were being siphoned off to another state, there would be cause for concern," he said. "But they are being recycled within the state, mostly through commercial loans."

"I don't see any cause for alarm," Brannen said.

The Southern Finance Project is sponsored by the Institute for Southern Studies, a non-profit research and publications center based in Durham, N.C. Schlesinger's findings are published in the center's publication Southern Exposure.

Waste Treatment Site List Trimmed

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission has trimmed its list of potential sites for a treatment plant to 13 properties in seven counties, but board members say they might consider additional sites.

A series of public hearings showed that "the general public feels the plant should be located on more property than we have now and possibly in a more remote area," said Deborah Parke, chairwoman of the commission.

The board is scheduled to select a site by Oct. 1.

The commission on Thursday officially removed the High Point Chemical site in Davidson County, a decision that had been tentatively announced earlier. It also removed the Sides property in Rowan County.

The Davidson County site was offered to the commission by its owners but it was later sold to a company that wants to put a manufacturing plant on the site, Ms. Parker said.

The Rowan County property was removed because a new survey shows it is 49.51 acres, just under the 50 acres the commission has required for the site. An earlier map given the commission showed the site consisted of 50 acres, commission staffers said.

The plant would destroy hazardous wastes by incineration and chemical processes. Such wastes include a number of toxic, flammable and corrosive chemicals produced by industry, agriculture and research.

The sites still on the commission's list are: one in Davie County; one in Durham County; one in Guilford County; three in Lincoln County; one in Iredell County; one in Rockingham County, and five in Rowan County.

That does not include a site in Durham County, called the Effron Road site, which has been offered to the commission but has not been added to the list.

The commission will meet Sept. 30 before announcing a site on Oct. 1, Ms. Parker said, adding that the Sept. 30 would probably last all day and would be held in executive session.

U.S. Agents Lure Suspected Terrorist Into Arrest

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — American agents working overseas lured a suspected Lebanese Shiite hijacker into a boat, arrested him and brought him back to the United States in what U.S. officials described as a new phase in the battle against terrorism.

"It's our intention to find terrorists and go after them wherever they are," a senior Justice Department official said Thursday in announcing the arrest of Fawaz Younis of Beirut. He is accused of masterminding the 1985 hijacking of a Jordanian jetliner with four Americans aboard.

In an investigation code-named Operation Goldenrod, Younis was spotted several weeks ago by U.S. intelligence agencies, placed under surveillance and finally, at an unspecified port on the Mediterranean Sea, lured aboard a small boat piloted by FBI agents. "Let's say we rented it (the boat) for awhile," one senior Justice Department official told reporters.

After the boat motored into international waters, Younis was arrested and transferred to the U.S. aircraft carrier Saratoga in the Mediterranean near the island of Corsica.

He was flown to Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington on Thursday.

Responding to a question at the briefing, the official said "you bet" when asked whether U.S. authorities are actively trying to track other terrorists suspected of harming Americans overseas with the intention of arresting them and bringing them back to the United States.

When asked whether Younis might become part of a swap involving U.S. hostages being held in Lebanon, the official, speaking on condition of anonymity, emphasized that the U.S. government's intention is to put Younis on trial in U.S. courts.

"Any terrorist attack on American nationals or American property will be investigated and prosecuted whenever there is a basis to do so under U.S. law, provided that they are not effectively prosecuted and punished elsewhere," Attorney General Edwin Meese III told the press briefing.

But unlike many other terrorist incidents, the one in which Younis is charged wasn't directed at the United States or Israel.

Amid extremely tight security, Younis appeared before a U.S. magistrate in Washington on charges of hostage-taking, conspiracy and destruction of an aircraft, which could result in a term of life imprisonment if he is convicted.

Younis pleaded innocent to the June 11, 1985, hijacking of the jetliner at Beirut, on which two U.S. citizens and two U.S. resident foreigners were traveling. Younis was ordered held without bail and was taken to an undisclosed location.

Younis is a "full-time employee of the Amal militia and works for Nabih Berri," another senior Justice Department official told the press briefing.

Berri is Lebanon's justice minister and also is leader of the Amal militia, a group of Shiite Moslems allied with Syria.

The Amal militia is considered to be more moderate than the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, an organization which is believed to hold some of the U.S. hostages being held in Lebanon.

During a separate hijacking in 1985 of a TWA jetliner to Beirut, Amal militia chief Nabih Berri helped in negotiations to obtain the freedom for the plane's passengers. In that incident, U.S. Navy diver Robert Stethem, who was among the passengers, was killed by he hijackers.

A man accused of being one of the hijackers, Mohammed Ali Hamadi, subsequently was arrested in West Germany and faces trial there. The Reagan administration wanted Hamadi brought to this country to stand trial, but the retaliatory kidnapping of West Germans in Lebanon led the German government to have him tried there rather than sent to the United States.

Ford-UAW Pact Goes To Union Council

DETROIT (AP) — An official of the United Auto Workers union says the tentative contract with Ford Motor Co., which goes to a union council today, breaks a lot of new ground on job security.

"We have a good agreement," says Stephen Yokich, the UAW vice president who announced the settlement Thursday.

Concerning job security, Harley Shaiken, a labor relations expert at the University of California at San Diego, agrees with Yokich.

"The agreement goes farther in the direction of job security than any recent major agreement," he said. "Its most innovative aspect is in fact providing some measure of predictability in job security for the work force that's currently employed."

However, he added, "What it does not do is guarantee a fixed number of jobs."

"Ford retains essentially the ability to downsize its work force over the life of the contract."

The UAW's 200-worker Ford bargaining council, made up of local union presidents, bargaining chairmen and elected delegates, must approve the three-year contract before Ford's 104,000 autoworkers vote on it.

"Truly, we broke a lot of new ground on job security," said Yokich. He announced the settlement in the absence of UAW President Owen Bieber, who was released from the hospital Thursday after treatment for a stomach ailment.

Under the agreement, UAW leaders will push local unions to accept plant-level contracts that reduce the number of job classifications and loosen work rules, which Ford says would increase efficiency and improve quality.

Ford could still lay off workers if competition, such as from Japanese imports, hurt its sales. And it would only have to fill half of the jobs left vacant by workers who resigned, retired or died.

Retirement benefits for new retirees increase from $1,205 a month to $1,500 a month. "Ford has an older work force to start with. By improving retirement benefits, even more workers are likely to retire," Shaiken said.

The contract could complicate talks resuming as early as next week at General Motors Corp., where workers got no profit-sharing checks for 1986 and the company plans to close more than a dozen operations by 1990, analysts said.

"There's no way in the world GM can accept this contract. GM can't guarantee the current level of employment" of 335,000 workers because it needs to cut costs and to buy more parts from outside sources, said Michael Luckey, analyst with Shearson Lehman Bros. in New York City.

GM's contract, like Ford's, expired Sept. 14 and was extended when the UAW chose Ford on Aug. 31 as the company it would strike or settle with first.

'We, The People' Parties Continue Across America

By BOB DVORCHAK
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Constitution, fresh from its red, white and blue 200th birthday party across America, enters its third century today with a ceremony commemorating its first public reading and a look to the future.

"What we want to do now is focus on the ratification process," said former Chief Justice Warren Burger, who joined President Reagan in ceremonies Thursday near Independence Hall, where the Constitution was signed Sept. 17, 1787.

Philadelphia's $6 million bash was the centerpiece of hundreds across the nation as "We, the people ..." rang bells, paraded, saluted the flag, became citizens, and launched fireworks in tribute to the Constitution.

The commemoration in the birthplace of the Constitution began with a graveside ceremony and a parade, included a speech from President Reagan and hit a high note with a bell-ringing ceremony heard 'round the world.

Fireworks from seven barges painted the sky with rockets' red glare during a half-hour show over the Delaware River, and 1,600 guests at a star-studded black-tie affair paid tribute with songs, skits and speeches.

"In the Soviet Union under glasnost you have freedom of speech," said Soviet emigre comedian Yakov Smirnoff. "Here, you have freedom after you speak, also."

The Constitution became law when New Hampshire ratified it nine months after 39 of its framers signed it. The Bill of Rights, the first 10 amendments to the Constitution, was ratified Dec. 15, 1791.

"Four years from now, the 200th anniversary of the Bill of Rights will be an even bigger celebration," said Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson. "It has given this Constitution soul and vitality."

Jackson, while noting the Constitution excluded women and blacks, called it "the envy of governments around the world because it has endured."

Today is the 200th anniversary of the first public reading of the Constitution, which was drafted in secret. The Pennsylvania Legislature, which heard that reading, planned to meet in ceremonial session today in Philadelphia.

At a town meeting tonight, Jackson, former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark and feminists Gloria Steinem and Eleanor Smeal were scheduled to address the state of civil rights today.

Elsewhere, every baby born Thursday in North Dakota was given a copy of the Constitution, courtesy of the state Bar Association.

Rhode Island — which was called Rogue Island because it boycotted the Constitution Convention and was the last of 13 states to ratify — paid homage to the document Thursday in the Supreme Court chambers with readings of the Constitution's preamble and Bill of Rights.

On the New York-New Jersey border, the largest free-flying flag in the country, 5,400 square feet, was unfurled on the George Washington Bridge.

In Philadelphia, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Gov. Robert P. Casey placed a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Revolutionary War Hero. Then more than 20,000 marchers stepped off on a route lined by about 200,000 in a steady rain. Organizers had expected 750,000 spectators.

Speaking later near Independence Hall, Reagan called the world's first constitution "the triumph of human freedom."

Burger, whose 80th birthday coincided with the Constitution's 200th, rang a replica of the cracked and long-silent Liberty Bell at 4 p.m., the moment the Constitution was signed, signaling bells to echo throughout the land and on ships around the world. Looking on were descendants of the 39 signers.

Burger likened the Constitution to a bridle on a horse. "The government could pull but not push the people. It marked the beginning of the end of the idea of the divine right of kings," said Burger, head of the federal commission celebrating the bicentennial.

The biggest contingent of marchers in Philadelphia was 1,400 people who came from Reading on a 16-car, steam-powered train. "The Constitution still works and so does the railroad," said Berks County Judge Forrest Schaeffer.

Nearly 100 aliens took the oath of citizenship in Boston aboard the USS Constitution, or Old Ironsides, the oldest commissioned warship in the world. It was put into service in 1797.

"I feel like I'm whole," said Reginald Anty, a student from Haiti who took the oath of citizenship with 200 others at Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium.

Five peace activists were arrested for trespassing after crossing a barrier about 100 yards from Reagan's podium and refusing to leave, federal police said.

We're enjoying the fruits of our labors for a clean environment.

You can't take clean air for granted. We certainly don't. We keep air emissions from our Phosphate Operations well within state and federal guidelines.

But our efforts go beyond what's required. We maintain seven research gardens to monitor whether currently acceptable air emissions might damage sensitive plants.

So far, the gardeners from our Environmental Control Department report that the plants are healthy and bountiful. They've encouraged us to keep the program going. After all they get to enjoy the fruits of their labor.

Critics Says Bork Flip-Flopping On Issues To Win Confirmation

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert H. Bork says he's ready to accept legal doctrines he once denounced, but the concession led to accusations that he's flip-flopping to win confirmation to the Supreme Court.

"I don't want a confirmation conversion," Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., told Bork on Thursday, his roughest of three days before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Bork, who returns today for a third round of questions from each senator, endured sharp attacks not only from Leahy, an expected opponent, and Sen. Edward Kennedy, an announced opponent, but from Sen. Arlen Specter, who has said he is undecided.

Specter, R-Pa., accused Bork of a willingness to abandon his sacred legal principle of "original intent" — the theory that judges must follow the intent of the Constitution's framers.

To make matters worse for Bork, undecided Democrats Howell Heflin of Alabama and Dennis DeConcini of Arizona said during breaks in the hearing that they're also concerned by Bork's apparent changes in position, on issues such as equal protection for women and freedom of speech.

For his part, Bork shot back at Leahy that "I have a lot of positions in the past where I have not converted."

When Kennedy, D-Mass., accused him of advocating unlimited presidential power, Bork countered: "That is a most unfair characterization of my views."

The hearing turned poignant when it touched on the death of Bork's first wife, Claire, in 1980.

That happened after Leahy first criticized Bork for never providing free legal advice to the poor, and then pointed out that he earned about $600,000 in consulting fees from 1979 to 1981 while a Yale professor.

"Those are the only years I ever made any money in consulting," Bork said. "There was a reason I (needed) the money but I don't want to go into it here."

Bork supporter Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., refusing to let the matter rest there, asked, "But were those years in which you engaged in outside employment years which coincided with heavy medical bills in your family?"

Bork, his voice breaking, replied in one word: "Yeah."

In Specter's exchange with the nominee, the lawmaker said, "What troubles me is the very significant pronounced shifts" by Bork in areas such as free speech and sex discrimination.

Bork, for instance, said he now accepts as reality — but still disagrees with — a Supreme Court ruling that permits protesters to advocate lawbreaking, provided they don't actually cause or carry out criminal acts.

And Specter said Bork is suddenly expressing the view that the 14th Amendment's guarantee of equal protection applies in sex discrimination cases, when he held for years that it only could be used to combat discrimination against blacks.

Specter said that at Wednesday's hearing, Bork "had pretty much adhered to" his position in the pro-teacher case of Brandenburg vs. Ohio. Bork had written in 1971 "There should, therefore, be no constitutional protection for any speech advocating the violation of law." He repeated that view in later years.

Bork told Specter he has "not shifted" his position, but added, "All I am telling you is that as a judge I accept Brandenburg as the law."

And on the equal protection guarantees, Specter said that while he personally wanted the language interpreted broadly, he had problems squaring Bork's now-expansive view "with your very forceful statement that you are going to carry out original intent."

When Congress wrote the 14th Amendment, Specter said, it "did not

Dole Confirms He's Using Corporate Jets For Many Of His Campaign Trips

By BARRY MASSEY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole is using corporate jets as the primary means of transportation for his presidential campaign trips, a practice criticized by his rivals although it is legal under federal election law.

A spokesman for Dole's presidential exploratory committee confirmed Thursday that the Kansas Republican regularly asks corporations to use their jets for his political travels and reimburses the companies according to rates fixed by law.

"We chose this method because it's the most convenient to the senator," said Tim Archie, the spokesman. "The senator's schedule is very precarious and this offers him the most flexibility."

Under Federal Election Commission regulations, Dole's campaign must pay first-class commercial fares or charter rates to corporations when the senator or his aides fly on the private jets.

However, FEC spokesman Fred Eiland said the law makes no provision for instances when a corporation's actual cost of operating the plane is greater than the reimbursement rate. The difference is not publicly disclosed or considered an in-kind or cash campaign contribution by the corporation.

Advocates of campaign finance revisions complain that the law provides a loophole for candidates to save large amounts of money.

"If there are extra costs associated with a trip that are not being reimbursed by the campaign committee, I would think those should be treated as contributions," said Craig McDonald, director of Congress Watch.

A number of other Republican and Democratic presidential campaigns said they occasionally used corporate or privately owned planes for candidate travel. However, none said it was the candidate's main source of air transportation.

John Buckley, a spokesman for GOP presidential contender Jack Kemp, said the New York congressman has contracted with an aircraft chartering company and avoids using corporate jets to prevent any appearance of conflict of interest.

"If it is not against the election law, that's fine. But nonetheless, it gives the appearance of accepting favors from a corporate entity," Buckley said.

Newsday, which first reported Dole's use of corporate planes, said FEC records showed that companies providing jets to the senator included U.S. Tobacco Co.; ConAgra Inc., a grain company; The Coastal Corp., an oil and gas company; General Mills Inc.; Browning-Ferris Industries Inc., a waste management firm, as well as several insurance companies.

Archie said the Dole organization sees no ethical problem in the practice.

"This method of travel is explicitly legal and is open and above board and is publicly reported for all to see," said Archie.

Vice President George Bush uses Air Force Two for his travel, including campaign stops. The FEC requires the Bush campaign to reimburse the government for flying to political events.

The Dole campaign says it has developed a "pool" of corporations and calls companies to find out if one of their planes is available for Dole.

"Nobody just gives us a plane and says it's available whenever you want to use it," said Scott Morgan, counsel for Dole's exploratory committee. "It's always if they're not using it and the plane is in the vicinity."

Last weekend, for example, Dole used a 12-seat Gulfstream III jet supplied by U.S. Tobacco to fly from Washington to Des Moines, Iowa, for a series of campaign visits in the state. He paid $7,272 for the entire trip. Newsday reported that an aircraft charter company estimated it would cost $19,545 to hire a plane for the Iowa trip, excluding several short flights to communities within the state.

Alan Kaiser, a spokesman for U.S. Tobacco, said the company offered its plane to Republicans and Democrats "strictly on an availability basis."

"If a congressman or senator does ask for our help it's an opportunity for us to help them. It's really as simple as that," said Kaiser.

Jim Bailey, a spokesman for Coastal Corp., said the Houston-based energy company provided its planes to candidates and elected officials from states "where we have a sizeable operation ... where we have extensive interests and feel it is to our advantage to assist and to cooperate with a representative from that state."

Asked whether candidate reimbursements cover the full cost of operating company planes, Bailey said, "There are times when we actually would probably net out a little ahead on a first class fare, but certainly not all the time."

Ford Again Recalling Ambulances

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambulance operators and some safety advocates are complaining that a recall of up to 22,000 ambulances by the Ford Motor Co. is taking months longer than expected, with some repair work scheduled as late as next March.

Ford announced the recall last July following incidents in which overheated fuel tanks caused fires. Company officials said they hoped most of the vehicles could be modified within two months.

But two months later only about 3,000 of the ambulances have been worked on and Ford officials acknowledged Thursday that those vehicles are expected to be recalled again so additional safeguards can be installed.

In Manchester, N.H., Robert Davie, general manager of Amoskeag Ambulance Co., said he has been trying to have his two ambulances serviced under the recall since July. First he was scheduled to have the work done in August, then November and now March 1988, he said in a telephone interview.

"This is six months longer than I had hoped for," he said.

The problems involve gasoline tanks overheating, causing fuel to spurt out when the cap is removed. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has received more than 230 complaints about spurting fuel on ambulances, including 24 fires and five injuries.

Robert Dewey of the Center for Auto Safety, a private group that has been keeping track of the ambulance incidents, said Thursday that another 12 ambulance fires have surfaced since the July 17 recall. The figure could not be confirmed by other sources.

Ford provides the chassis for about 90 percent of the ambulances in the country, although it does not directly sell ambulances. The chassis, similar to those on Ford Econoline vans, are normally sold through dealerships.

Insiders Say Biden Isn't Through Yet

By DAVID S. BRODER
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service
WASHINGTON — The timing and character of the controversy that has erupted around Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr.'s (D-Del.) fledgling presidential campaign make the plagiarism question a serious problem threatening his political future, political insiders in both parties said Thursday. But most said it was premature to write him out of the race.

"They just have to try to ride out the firestorm," said Robert G. Beckel, manager of Walter F. Mondale's 1984 campaign. "There's no room for any more shoes to drop. This is not a candidacy strong enough to survive an extended crisis."

Two points were made by almost everyone interviewed by The Washington Post following Biden's news conference to deal with charges of plagiarism of campaign speeches and an incident of a similar character during his law school days:

In a year when voters have been sensitized to issues of personal trust and integrity by a series of highly publicized scandals, it is politically dangerous for Biden — or anyone else — to be placed in a position of having to defend his personal honor and character.

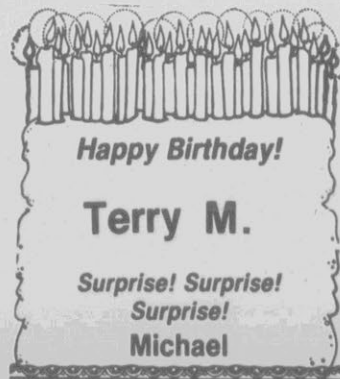

And for a candidate who hoped to introduce himself to many voters this week under auspicious circumstances as the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee holding televised hearings on the nomination of Judge Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court, having to deal with such a question is at least a distraction and perhaps a disaster.

Predictably, the Washington reaction to the sudden flap which began blowing up around Biden only last Saturday was more extreme than that around the country. But several observers predicted the national reaction could grow with media coverage of the Biden news conference. Johnny Carson in his Wednesday night monologue joked that Biden had called his staff together after all the plagiarism stories and reassured them, "You have nothing to fear but fear itself." Said one Democratic consultant, "It's the ridicule that can kill you."

For now, however, "I can't see it's much of a deal," said John Henry Anderson, the Georgia Democratic chairman and a county commissioner in Hawkinsville, Ga. "The only comment I've heard is the fellow probably ought to change speechwriters."

Bonnie Campbell, the Iowa Democratic chairman, and Larry Yatch, her counterpart in Pennsylvania, both said Democrats were asking whether Biden might be the victim of "dirty tricks," engineered either by a rival Democratic campaign or possibly by Republicans seeking to embarrass a prominent critic of the Bork nomination. "There's a backlash" in Pittsburgh, Yatch said, "against the press and whoever is putting out these stories."

Nixon Surprised

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administration proposal to create a historic site at Richard Nixon's birthplace as an addition to a bill creating one for Jimmy Carter came as "a great surprise" to Nixon, a spokesman for the former president says.

John Taylor, Nixon's secretary, said Thursday that Nixon and the Nixon Birthplace Foundation informed Congress and the National Park Service last year that the foundation planned to operate the Nixon birthplace in Yorba Linda, Calif., as a private, non-governmental facility.

"This comes as a great surprise to the former president, that this matter was raised by the administration," Taylor said in a telephone interview from Nixon's New York office.

A Park Service official proposed the Nixon historic site during a House Interior subcommittee hearing on the bill to set up the Carter site in Plains, Ga.

The subcommittee on national parks and public lands turned aside the administration suggestion.

U.S., Soviets Agree To Eliminate Their Intermediate Missiles

turned out to be more difficult than anyone had thought."

He said that over the last few days "we have experienced a complex spectrum of emotions, from anxiety to a strong emotional uplift. The day before yesterday, I said to Secretary Shultz that it is time to bring in the harvest. And he agreed."

By year's end, he said, "both we and our American partners have confidence the treaty will be signed."

On Capitol Hill, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd welcomed "the apparent progress that has been made" but cautioned that "the Senate will carefully scrutinize details of any treaty."

"Keep in mind that it requires a two-thirds vote" to ratify any treaty, Byrd told reporters. "Keep in mind that the Senate may want to add some reservations and understandings," including those dealing with conventional weapons and Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

Shultz, who answered reporters' questions after Reagan departed, noted that thousands of longer-range warheads still would be in the superpower arsenals even after the dismantling of INF missiles.

"We have a great deal of work to do beyond an INF agreement, but it's a beginning. ... This doesn't solve the problem by a long shot ... but you've got to start and this does get us going and I think is very significant in this sense."

In a turning point in the talks, the two sides basically agreed on what to do about U.S.-owned warheads perched on 72 West German Pershing 1A missiles that have a range of 465 miles.

Shultz said the warheads would not be part of the treaty, or even mentioned in any protocol, despite earlier Soviet insistence.

"They are not subject to U.S.-Soviet negotiations, any more than the British and French (nuclear) systems," he said.

Shultz said the warheads were now part of a cooperative arrangement with the West German government and would be removed under a plan already announced by Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

Once the warheads come back to the United States, Shultz said, they will come again under U.S. control.

The secretary said only technical differences remained over a schedule for eliminating the missiles.

The United States called for withdrawing the longer-range types over three years and shorter-range rockets in a year. The Soviets suggested five years for the first group and two years for the shorter-range rockets.

Shultz said the process of dismant-ing missiles involved chemicals with a potential impact on the environment, and the two sides wanted to be careful.

The third stumbling block involved procedures for verifying compliance with the treaty. Reagan has repeatedly accused the Kremlin of cheating on previous arms agreements.

On two other issues — human rights and Soviet occupation of Afghanistan — Shultz hinted at progress in talks with Shevardnadze without providing any details.

He said "a process" had been established for discussion of emigration problems with the Soviets. On Afghanistan, he said that while the Soviets had not offered a new timetable for withdrawing 115,000 troops, his talks with the Soviet foreign minister were "the most thorough" on the subject.

U.S. allies hailed the tentative arms agreement.

"We have been trying for a long time to reach such an agreement," NATO said in a two-sentence statement. "We hope that an agreement will be the beginning of a process in which we can live at a much lower level of armaments for the same security."

White House chief of staff Howard Baker, who met with reporters before the president's announcement, credited Reagan for the accord. He said Reagan had been "very engaged as he was being given a thorough debriefing."

"I think it's (the nuclear arms progress) happened over a period of time. It has evolved. He (Reagan) proposed the double-zero (elimination of INF weapons) in Reykjavik (Iceland), and the Soviets rejected it out of hand. But it's been the consistency of the president throughout" that has led to the breakthrough, Baker said.

Baker, appearing at an Associated Press Broadcasters dinner Thursday night, said the agreement "is not the end of the game. The risk of nuclear war is not over. But I'm optimistic that we can go forward with major accomplishments ... that can lead us even further in the business of trying to remove the risk of nuclear annihilation."

Soviet spokesman Gennadi Gerasimov said "history is in the making," and joined with State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman to announce that "full-scale" negotiations would begin by Dec. 1 with the ultimate goal of ending all nuclear weapons tests.

However, in a joint statement, the two sides said the first step toward a cessation — which Gorbachev has termed the most urgent nuclear issue — would have to be "effective verification measures."

The Soviet Union, meanwhile, conducted the 16th underground nuclear test since the Soviet Union abandoned unilateral moratorium Feb. 28.

Tass said today's blast had a yield of up to 20 kilotons and was "carried out with a view to upgrading military technology."

In previous summit meetings,

Reagan and Gorbachev conferred in Geneva in 1985 and in Reykjavik, Iceland, last year. They reached basic understandings to reverse the superpower arms race, but signed no substantive accords.

The tentative agreement began to take shape after Shultz and Shevardnadze dramatically decided to extend their talks past the scheduled noon hour windup Thursday. They sent down to the State Department cafeteria for tuna and turkey sandwiches and kept mixed groups of experts working on the unresolved issues.

Senators Praise Missile Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key senators today praised the U.S.-Soviet "agreement in principle" to ban medium- and short-range nuclear weapons, but said they need to see the fine print before the Senate ratifies the pact and cautioned that it is only a first step toward a broader treaty.

"I am optimistic that there is progress, but we will have to review the treaty language and the fine print," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va. "The Senate may add reservations or understandings of its own."

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said his committee won't be able to hold hearings on the proposed pact until early next year.

"We've arrived at a very wonderful breakthrough," said Pell, but he cautioned that "this is only the first step on a longer journey that will include" long-range atomic weapons.

"I would hope that those negotiations in that direction would go along (in) a parallel manner," said Pell, referring to the attempts of both superpowers to negotiate a pact reducing strategic arsenals.

When the treaty is finally reached, it won't take effect until after it is approved by two-thirds of the Senate.

Democrats hold a 54-46 margin in the Senate and have cautioned that they want to see the details of the negotiating record before approving the pact. That desire arises from a dispute between Senate Democrats and the administration over the interpretation of the 1972 treaty limiting anti-ballistic missile defenses.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., said the new agreement "is to be applauded as a first step," and said he supports it. "I'm sure there'll be those who'll attack it because it will appear to them to be beneficial to the Russians, but we have to recognize that any deal has to be mutually beneficial."

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said he would grade the treaty a "C-minus" because he said it is "politically motivated."

Aspin said the tentative pact "is very fragile unless you move very, very quickly toward an agreement" on long-range weapons.

Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y., a chief House critic of the Reagan administration on arms control issues, said, "I think the INF agreement is very important as a first step to more serious arms control. This is something around which both Democrats and Republicans should rally, and hopefully it will be ratified by the Senate."

committed itself to a technical revolution," he said.

Through the technical revolution, mini-mills, employing about 300 employees, in rural areas are putting the larger mills, which may employ thousands of employees in the cities, out of business, Synder said. Therefore, jobs for skilled workers are being eliminated, and cities are declining from the lack of industry to employ their residents.

"With the deletion of blue-collar workers, middle class jobs also are being eliminated in the high-tech revolution, and 'we're not nearly through with that fall yet,' Synder said.

Retraining of those displaced workers has pushed education to its terms on the board, who also took the oath of office this morning, include William R. Roberson III of Washington and Samuel J. Wornom III of Sanford.

Wayne Peterson of Tarboro, who was appointed to his first term on the board by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors in June, was unable to attend today's meeting. He is chief executive officer of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Souza, a 1971 ECU graduate and executive vice president of the N.C. Health Care Facility Agency, and Rooks, a 1955 ECU graduate and founder and president of Mount Vernon Realty — one of the 10 largest privately held real estate enterprises in the nation — were named to the board in June by Gov. Jim Martin. Lowe, chief executive officer of Branch Banking and Trust Co., was appointed by the UNC board of governors.

top spot in the economy, he said.

Another change caused by the revolution involves the baby boom generation, those who were 16 to 24 from the 1960s to the 1980s. As the largest group in society, its huge numbers work against it in the work place. There are "too many (of them) to find adequate promotional opportunities," Snyder said.

"College enrollment set a record high," because adults are going back to school to change occupations, he said.

With the decline in job opportunities, public education must make students aware of those limiting opportunities. For example, today there are 25 candidates for each mid-life promotion, while in 1990, there will be 50 candidates for each position.

"Job opportunities are likely to be limited at the time they graduate, but new and promising career fields will increasingly appear from the mid-1990s on," Synder said.

To prepare students for the future, several recommendations should be adopted, Synder said.

Quality instructional materials with research-based principles should be incorporated into the curriculum as well as experimental and rote learning, which include real-world problems and tasks as well as internships, he said.

Teachers and students should be competent with a computer, which should be incorporated in their everyday lives of making assignments and doing homework.

Teachers need to be retrained to become computer competent and better designers of effective instructional materials, and computers should be equipped with quality educational software, based on quality instructional materials.

Evaluation networks should be set up on the local, state and national levels to share educational ideas that work, and educators must be made to understand their crucial responsibilities for determining America's future, Snyder said.

Gays, Feminist Groups Protest As Pontiff Visits AIDS Victims

By JERRY SCHWARTZ
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As gay protesters blew whistles, banged drums and screamed slogans outside a church, Pope John Paul II reached into a pew and cradled a 4-year-old AIDS victim.

"God loves you all, without distinction, without limit. ... He loves those of you who are sick, those of you who are suffering from AIDS and from AIDS-Related Complex," he said to 64 AIDS patients who met him at the 196-year-old Mission Dolores — just a mile from the Castro District, the center of homosexual life in a city known for its gay community.

Inside, amid the applause of 1,000 people, the pope could not hear the cries of 2,000 gay and feminist demonstrators a block away — shouts of "pope go home" and "shame, shame, shame."

It was the largest and noisiest opposition the pontiff had encountered in his U.S. visit.

Today, the pope moves on to Detroit after a meeting with laity and a Mass at Candlestick Park. On Saturday he will go to Canada for a short visit, and head toward Rome on Sunday.

At Mission Dolores, the pope shook hands with the crowd, not neglecting the nine pews of AIDS victims and their friends, lovers and families. Among them was the Rev. Robert Arpin, a Roman Catholic priest who has publicly stated that he had acquired immune deficiency syndrome, and is a homosexual.

When the pope saw 4-year-old Brendan O'Rourke, he took the frail child from his father's arms and kissed and hugged him. The boy, who was infected with AIDS through a blood transfusion as a premature infant, reached for the pope's ears.

"It was one of the greatest things that could happen," said Brendan's father, John O'Rourke.

The Vatican outraged many gays earlier this year by denouncing homosexual acts as "an intrinsic moral evil," and the church teaches that gays should live a celibate life.

In Phoenix, Ariz., on Monday the pope had expressed concern for AIDS victims, and called upon Catholic health-care providers to emulate the Good Samaritan in reaching out to victims.

Demonstrators carried signs saying, "Gay, proud and still going to heaven" and "Curb your dogma."

"We are a moral people! We will do everything we can to make this world a better place. We are letting our love and voices be heard," said Leonard Matlovich, an AIDS patient who was discharged from the Air Force in 1975 because of his homosexuality. "I am not intrinsically evil."

Later, hundreds of Jews demonstrated quietly outside St. Mary's Cathedral, protesting the audience which the pope granted in June to Austrian President Kurt Waldheim.

Inside, at a meeting with 3,000 nuns and brothers, the pope listened as Sister Helen Garvey, president-elect of the Leadership Conference of Women Religious, called for a larger role for women in the church.

"We desire for ourselves, and for all believing women, complete incorporation in the church," she said. "In its critical decision-making responsibility, the church needs the fullness of women's gifts and the strength of women's commitments."

She did not call explicitly for the ordination of women as priests, and the pope did not respond to her plea. On Wednesday, however, he had told U.S. bishops: "Women are not called to the priesthood."

At a news conference after the meeting, Sister Garvey said she did not want to cause polarization by pushing for ordination of women. "I will not flout the discipline of the church," she said, though she said she would continue to work for change.

John Paul encountered smaller protests Thursday afternoon at the Carmel Mission south of San Francisco — this one staged by American Indians who say their ancestors were brutalized under the Catholic missionary system.

Franciscan missionary Junipero Serra, a candidate for sainthood, is buried at the mission, and John Paul prayed at his tomb.

There were no protests at the Leguna Seca Raceway in Monterey, where 72,000 people — many of them Hispanic farm workers who were given the day off without pay — sat on rolling hillsides as the pope celebrated Mass.

"At every level of the agricultural process, the dignity, rights and well-being of people must be the central issue," the pope said.

Flower Power Flourishes At The U.S. Arboretum

By EUGENE L. MEYER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Washington power game is played in many ways: There is political power, military power, judicial power. And then there is shrub power, which is the game Don R. Egolf plays in a field in far-northeast Washington.

Egolf is the U.S. National Arboretum's shrub specialist, a man who develops new breeds that are sold commercially.

More than that, he is the man who names names.

In fact, he is the international registrar of lagerstroemia, pyracantha and viburnum blooms. In 30 years at the arboretum, he has developed 60 new plants that have been marketed, with 20 more on the way this year and next.

The four strains of large-flowering hibiscus plants he has named for Greek gods and goddesses. But most of his plants — he has 23 varieties of crape myrtles to his credit — he's named after Indian tribes.

There's the Tuskegee, the Apalachee, the Comanche, Osage, Sioux and Yuma, Chippewa, Hopi, Pecos, Zuni, Natchez and Shoshone, among others.

Egolf offers no involved explanation for his choices. "I wanted something American that would be associated with the National Arboretum," he said.

Another consideration is to "select names not too difficult to pronounce or spell." Occasionally, there is more to it than that: He named his first shrubs after Indian tribes native to upstate New York because he started working on them when he was a student at Cornell University.

"People stay away from working with shrubs," Egolf said. "Commercial breeders prefer annuals. You can grow a lot of petunias in a little bed."

But shrubs take years. Egolf toils over the new breeds at the arboretum before sending them to 100 other individuals, nurseries, researchers who report back annually on how the plants are doing in their respective locales.

After as long as five years, Egolf sends them next to nurseries to grow for another two years before they are declared worthy of the marketplace.

"A plant has to be better than what's already grown, based on its disease-resistance, hardness and fruitiness or it's not worth introducing," Egolf said. His current efforts include work on a lilac that he hopes is mildew-resistant and suitable for this steamy Southern climate.

Crape myrtle, which has blooms in shades of pink or white through much of the summer, is in its northernmost home here, while lilacs don't fare well farther south. "In Baltimore, you lose a lot of Southern species," Egolf said. "In Norfolk, you lose a lot of Northern species."

His work is not without occupational hazards. In 1981, he received a tick bite while working with crab apple trees at the arboretum. The bite gave him a debilitating case of Lyme disease, which can cause loss of the use of muscles. At one point, his right arm and leg were paralyzed.

His therapy included work on lily hybridization, which he did while wearing braces in his yard at home. This involved the usual procedures: hand pollination, transplanting seedings, evaluating plant progress. Having regained his health, Egolf returned to work full-time in May 1984.

Occasionally, the man who names shrubs rubs shoulders with powerful people from other walks of life. French Ambassador Emmanuel de Margerie is a regular at the arboretum. About to leave for home for August, the ambassador stopped by to inspect crape myrtles in bloom.

"The French ambassador is a very good gardener," Egolf said. "He has restored a chateau in France and is creating a formal garden to go with the residence, using crape myrtle as the key. He spends many Sundays here."

Not surprisingly, Egolf is also a very good gardener. His 3-acre homestead outside Upper Marlboro, Md., contains a formal garden in back and countless bushes and shrubs in front, a landscape undergoing change.

"The plants were starting to grow together, getting too large," said Egolf, whose idea of time off from work is more of the same. "I'm thinning it out. We were feeling a little too private."

He works in his garden nights and weekends and seldom travels far. His wife Sarah stays busy "canning, preserving and maintaining the household." They met outside what he calls "the plant world" and have three children, 19-year-old twins studying forestry and horticulture at Virginia Tech, and a 21-year-old son studying agronomy at the University of Maryland.

"They're all in agriculture," Egolf said. "They got it from the grass roots." So did their father.

Green-Daniels Vows Spoken

The wedding ceremony of Wanda Suzette Daniels and Bobby Joe Green took place Saturday at 3 p.m. in English Chapel Free Will Baptist Church. Elder James Lindsay conducted the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lendel Daniels of Winterville and Mr. and Mrs. Hinton Brinkley of Route 1, Grimesland.

Dwayne Maye of Farmville was organist. Twendie and Cathy Simpson of Ayden sang "Always" and Kaye Patrick of Winterville sang "You and I."

Sharon Daniels of Winterville was honor attendant for her sister. Bridesmaids included Cynthia Daniels, sister of the bride, and Shelia Credle, both of Winterville, Brenda Wilson of Greenville and Joyce Brinkley of Grimesland, sisters of the bridegroom, and Tammy Moore of Ayden. Tameka Daniels of Winterville, daughter of the bride and bridegroom, was flower girl.

Otis Brinkley of Route 1, Grimesland, was best man for his brother. Dominique Payton of Winterville was ring bearer. He is cousin of the bride. Ushers included Bennie Corbitt and London Corbitt, cousins of the bride, and Charles Daniels, brother of the bride, all of Winterville, Linwood Green of Grimesland, brother of the bridegroom, and Linwood Best of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of candlelight organza and chantilly lace. The Victorian neckline was accented with a stand-up collar. The gathered skirt flowed into a semi-cathedral train. She carried a bouquet of white mums and baby's breath.

The honor attendant wore a tea length dress of violet taffeta with an overlay of violet chantilly lace. It was styled with a fitted waistline and peplum. She carried a bouquet of lilac and purple carnations. Bridesmaids wore tea length dresses of violet taffeta styled similar to that of the honor attendant. The flower girl wore a tea length dress of violet taffeta with an overlay of chantilly lace, puffed sleeves and bow on the skirt.

A reception was held at the Winterville Community Building. Sarah Roberson was hostess. Rosa Wilkes poured punch and Ollie Blount registered gifts.

The couple will live in Greenville.

The bride is employed by Garner Wholesale Inc. of Greenville and the bridegroom works at Singer Furniture Inc. of Washington, N.C. Both attended D.H. Conley High School.

Cobbler Ends Lengthy Career

By THOMAS L. FLANNERY

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — After 85 years, more than 500,000 pairs of shoes and probably enough leather to start his own cattle drive, James Fulginiti will cobble no more.

Fulginiti, "almost 92" and owner of the Pennsylvania Shoe Repair Shop in Lancaster, retired recently after retreading, stretching, dyeing, cleaning and mending the shoes of many Lancastrians for the past 67 years.

"I'm the oldest shoemaker in the world, I guess," said Fulginiti in his still heavy Italian accent.

At age 7 he became an apprentice shoemaker to a master Italian craftsman. His father was a shoemaker. He would also be a shoemaker. Things used to work that way.

Working for no pay, he learned the craft of a cobbler. His hands and mind became as strong as his thoughts of America. Arriving in March 1913, the young man came to Lancaster to live with his aunt and uncle. He came with a dream and a trade. He continued his apprenticeship under a local cobbler until 1921.

The pay was better than it had been in Italy. In America he got $4 a week for his 80 hours.

Thrift, persistence and the dreams of an immigrant paid off. That year he and his wife of two years, Antoinette, opened their own repair shop.

He chose a corner where two previous cobblers had tried and failed. But Fulginiti proclaimed, standing slightly more erect, puffing his chest and speaking in a soft, gravelly voice, that "it took an Italian to make it work."

"The trolley to the 7th Ward and Rocky Springs passed right by here," said Fulginiti, pointing to the street with a large calloused index finger still holding the cobbler's stain of eight decades.

He turns and scans the small one-room shop attached to his home. All the equipment has been sold, save a cobbler's hammer. Fulginiti will take just one to the home of his daughter Mary, a retired junior high school teacher, in Florida. He is moving there and the shop will also be sold. There isn't anyone left to do the job.

"No tradesmen. It's gonna ruin this country. I had a chance to be a millionaire by buying property on this street," said Fulginiti as he stared out the window, his arms waving. "But I chose to work."

All during the late morning people stopped by or waved. The hand-lettered sign in the shop window said it was important not to forget to do that. There won't be any tomorrows.

"Not responsible for shoes left over 30 days," said the sign over the metal and wood racks still holding unclaimed repairs.

A pair of white, side-buckled, 1960-style loafers sat on the bottom shelf. Years of dust covering the toes tell of their patience and that of the man who returned them to like-new. Both are leaving.

The shoes will go to Goodwill. James is going to Florida, "just to sit."

The world's biggest orange-juice exporter is Brazil, which garnered half the U.S. market in 1985, says National Geographic.

Organ Donors Provide Second Chance

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last month I lost a member of my family. He was involved in an accident and pronounced brain dead several days later. I had never given much thought to organ donations until that day. I was very much surprised that considering the amount of time the doctors and staff had spent with our family, they never once mentioned organ donations. I was the one who approached them and made the offer.

The next week, I received a letter from the hospital informing me that both kidneys were successfully transplanted — one into a 4-year-old girl.

Ironically, last week the newspaper featured a special story about how badly organs were needed. I had no idea that some people had been on a waiting list for years!

My point: I almost decided not to approach the doctors because I assumed that if they thought my loved one could be a possible donor, they would approach me. I was wrong.

In our loss, there is such a comfort knowing that others have benefited, and may have a second chance at life. If you print this, please, no name and no city. — ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Your letter could not have come at a more appropriate time. Just 10 years ago, the following appeared in my column for the first time:

"At a certain moment a doctor will determine that my brain has ceased to function and that, for all intents and purposes, my life has stopped."

"When that happens, do not attempt to instill artificial life into my body by the use of a machine. And don't call this my 'deathbed.' Call it my 'bed of life,' and let my body be taken from it to help others lead fuller lives."

"Give my sight to a man who has never seen a sunrise, a baby's face or love in the eyes of a woman."

"Give my heart to a person whose own heart has caused nothing but endless days of pain."

"Give my blood to the teen-ager who has been pulled from the wreckage of his car, so that he might live to see his grandchildren play."

"Give my kidneys to one who depends on a machine to exist from week to week."

"Take my bones, every muscle, every fiber and nerve in my body and find a way to make a crippled child walk."

"Explore every corner of my brain. Take my cells, if necessary, and let them grow so that someday a speechless boy will shout at the crack of a bat and a deaf girl will hear the sound of rain against her windows."

"Burn what is left of me and scatter the ashes to the winds to help the flowers grow."

"If you must bury something, let it be my faults, my weaknesses, and all prejudice against my fellowman."

"Give my soul to God."

"If by chance you wish to remember me, do it with a kind deed or word to someone who needs you. If you do all I have asked, I will live forever." — ROBERT N. TEST

Donor cards are available by writing to: The Living Bank, P.O. Box

6725, Houston, Texas 77265. I have carried such a card for more than 15 years and feel there is nothing I can leave after my death that will be of greater value.

Milan Honors Athlete As First Lady Of Softball

By NELSON PRICE
The Indianapolis News

MILAN, Ind. (AP) — Approaching this town from the north on Indiana 101, you notice two signs at the city limits.

The first, of course, refers to a certain sports legend: "Welcome to Milan," it proclaims. "1954 State Champs."

The lettering is printed in the middle of an orange circle resembling a basketball.

The second sign, a stone's throw down the highway, also boasts about a sports triumph — but not the kind associated with Hoosier hysteria. "Welcome to Milan," says the second sign. "Home of Jenny Johnson. World's First Lady of Softball."

Yes sirree.

Milan, a blip of 1,566 residents on the Indiana map, wants the world to know it has produced another sports hero.

Don't misunderstand. Folks still gloat about the Milan boys who pulled off the stunning 1954 high school basketball triumph — the triumph that has become Indiana folklore and inspired the movie "Hoosiers."

But this summer Milan has been basking in the applause for one of its native daughters.

There was a Jenny Johnson float in the Fourth of July parade. Jenny Johnson has been honored with a huge key to the town, garlands of flowers, speeches and a special day.

The Jenny Johnson Field has been dedicated at Milan Community Park. Boys play baseball there.

"Kind of ironic," observed Tom Holt, 38, the town's part-time police officer. "You've got to remember that Jenny Johnson — like all little girls across the country — could not play with the boys in Little League baseball when she was growing up."

Jenny Johnson grew up to become the first woman inducted into the Slow-Pitch Softball Hall of Fame in Petersburg, Va.

In the world of her sport, Miss

Johnson, 36, is considered a national legend.

Her uniform, jacket and cleats are enshrined in the Hall of Fame. A framed portrait of Miss Johnson also hangs in the Virginia museum.

"Jenny Johnson has a special place with us," said Harry Marsh, an official of the U.S. Slow-Pitch Softball Association. Based in Petersburg, the USSSA represents more than 100,000 North American teams.

"I first met her in 1976, when she played shortstop for Sweeney's Chevrolet Team of Cincinnati, the team that won the world championship," Marsh said.

"All the big brass of softball were there. At that tournament, little Jenny Johnson won their hearts. Every time there was a clutch situation, she came through with a spectacular hit. Her fielding amazed the softball experts — I'm talking about Jenny's ability to backhand the ball and make that long throw to first base.

"Our people had never seen a woman execute those kind of plays, let alone do it with such power. Her ability to turn a double play stunned us.

"Top all that off with her personality — once she came off the field, she was so humble. She seemed too gracious a girl to be playing that kind of (aggressive) softball. Her attitude was pure class."

Ten years later — during the summer of 1986 — Jenny Johnson was playing first base for the Empress Chili Team of Cincinnati. Again, her team snatched the world championship.

"To be blunt, she is at least two or three steps slower and her arm isn't what it used to be," Marsh commented. "She really had to work hard to do the same things in '86 that I saw her do in '76."

"But you must remember the longevity of her career is amazing. How many women tennis players do you know who are still on the top at 36?"

Cancer Society Awards Presented

The annual awards dinner of the Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Society was held Tuesday evening. Receiving key awards were Mary Lib Faser and Harry Jones.

Mrs. Faser received the Sword of Hope and the volunteer of the year award, the Silver Bowl, went to Jones, Chicod township. Dr. Don Lannin made the presentations.

Steve and Susan Tripp received awards as crusade chairpersons for townships and David and Nicki Brown were crusade chairpersons for Greenville. Rose Richard gave the township awards. Mrs. Brown presented Greenville awards to Becky Young and Beulah Mebane.

The total amount raised in Pitt County for the year was $63,075. Certificates were given to all campaign volunteers.

A special resolution in memory of Jan Kittrell was read by Dr. Lannin. Mrs. Kittrell was instrumental in organizing the Reach to Recovery Program.

Ralph Hall gave the nominating committee report.

Dr. Charles Scarantino announced a new program "Reach Out to Cancer," coordinated by the American Cancer Society and Radiation/Oncology Center. It will be used by persons being treated for cancer by radiation. Seven local motels and hotels have donated a free room for cancer patients receiving radiation 24 days per year.

Barbara Hall, chairperson of the Horizons Fashion Show, reported that tickets were still available. The show will be held Sept. 25 at the Brody Medical Science Auditorium. Call 752-2574 or 756-0262 for tickets for further information.

By The Associated Press
HOGS: Market .25 to .50 lower at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville, 49.50; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourne, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 49.00; Wilson 49.25. Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 49.00; Wallace 50.00; Spivey's Corner 50.00; Rowland 58.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 39.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 48 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a preliminary weighted average of 36.15 cents. The market is lower and the live supply is adequate for a light demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,994,000, compared to 2,217,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market higher. Supply fully adequate for a moderate demand. Prices paid per pound Friday for slaughter the following week, heavy types, 7 pounds and up, 13 cents at farm with buyer loading.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady to 1 cent higher at mostly 1.70-1.86 in East and mostly 1.90-2.06 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 2 cents lower at mostly 5.18-5.38 in East and mostly 5.08-5.31 in the Piedmont; wheat 2.51-2.66; new crop soybeans 4.93-5.33. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady to 1 percent lower and ranged from 103 to 107 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned upward today, bouncing back from a three-session decline. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 8.98 to 2,536.88 in the first half hour of trading. Gainers outnumbered losers by about 5 to 3 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 662 up, 401 down and 455 unchanged. Volume on the Big Board came to 38.10 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street. Dayton Hudson led the active list, up 6 1/2% at 59 1/2. On Thursday Dart Group proposed a friendly takeover

New Flights

RALEIGH (AP) — American Airlines said Thursday it will begin offering direct flights to the Caribbean, the first such service out of Raleigh-Durham Airport. Beginning Dec. 2, American will fly non-stop each day to its new hub in San Juan, Puerto Rico, continuing on to Barbados and also connecting with flights to other Caribbean islands. Passengers will be able to connect in San Juan to American and American Eagle flights to 13 other locations in the Caribbean.

Program Participant

Pitt County has been approved for the North Carolina Agriculture Cost-Share Program. Pitt was included among seven counties in the Neuse River basin which were added to the program this year. The purpose of the program is to reduce the input of sediments, nutrients, animal wastes and pesticides from Pitt County into the waters of the state. The program will be administered by Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District. Practices approved include animal waste management systems, land application of animal waste, field borders, grade control structures, grassed waterways, water control structures and other measures which have water quality benefits. Sign-up period for the program will begin Wednesday at the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District office, Room 213-Federal Building, 215 S. Evans St.

of the company for about $65 a share. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks climbed .79 to 177.27. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .94 at 353.55. On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 2.29 to 2,527.90, bringing its loss since Monday's close to 85.14 points. Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 6 to 5 on the NYSE, with 680 up, 818 down and 477 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 150.71 million shares, against 195.74 million in the previous session.

Sprinkel Resigning As Chairman Of Presidential Economy Council

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beryl W. Sprinkel, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, plans to resign and return to the private sector for personal reasons, Reagan administration officials said today.

The officials, who spoke only on the condition of anonymity, said the announcement would come later today. "There will be an exchange of letters" between Sprinkel and Reagan, said one official.

The sources said Sprinkel would stay in the post until November.

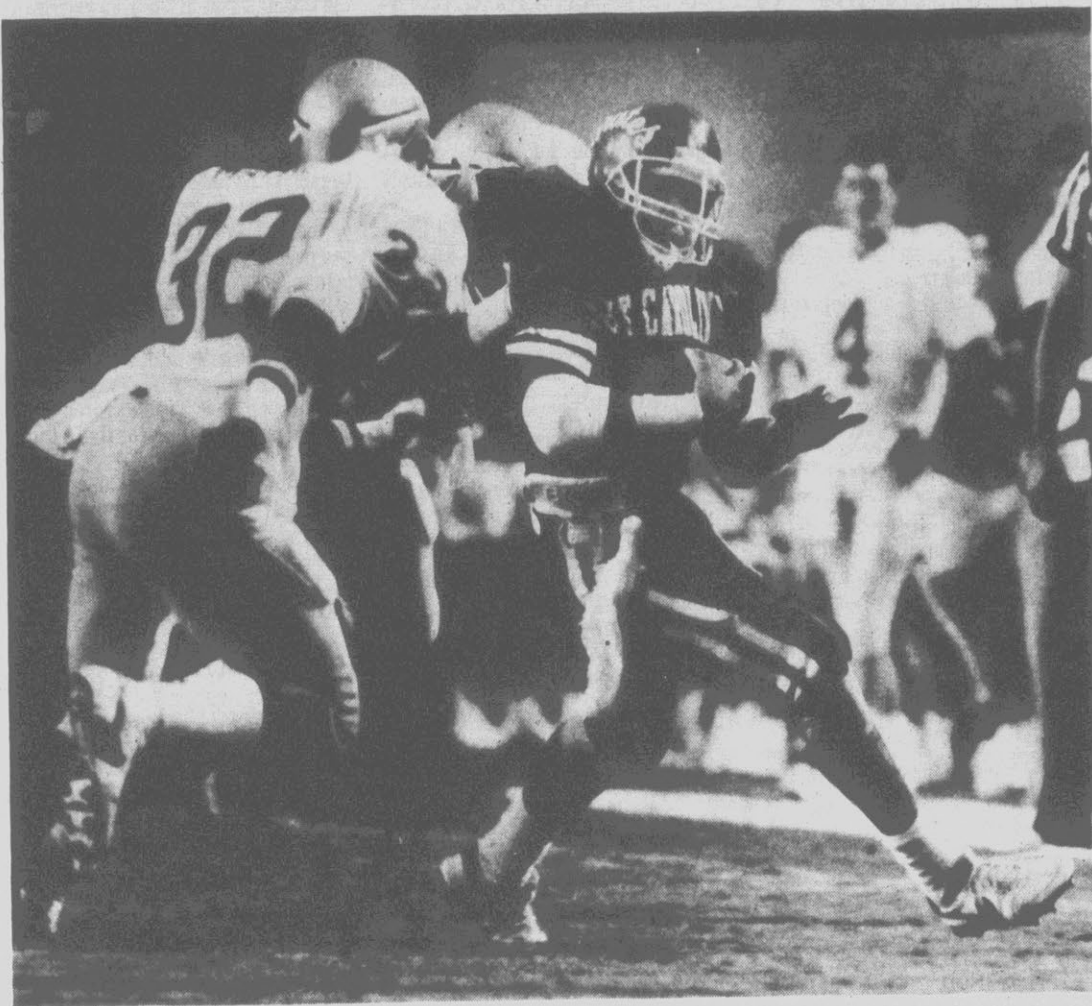

Sprinkel, 63, who has maintained a relatively low profile in the job he has held since April 1985, reportedly was unhappy that he had been passed over for the post of Federal Reserve Board chairman, a job President Reagan gave to New York economist Alan Greenspan last June, the sources said.

Sprinkel reportedly had been offered the job of Fed vice chairman on two previous occasions, but had declined it.

The leading candidates for Sprinkel's job are two other members of the council, Thomas Gale Moore and Michael Mussa, according to the New York Times and the Wall Street Journal, which first published accounts of Sprinkel's expected resignation in today's editions.

Sprinkel, a conservative economist, had been a frequent critic of the Fed's monetary policies in his

Reuschel, Dravecky Find Ride To The Top Pleasing

By The Associated Press

The ride from the basement to the penthouse has been very smooth for Rick Reuschel and Dave Dravecky.

In July, Reuschel and Dravecky were pitching for last-place teams. In less than three weeks, they will most likely start the first two games of the National League playoffs.

Reuschel pitched a two-hitter as the San Francisco Giants won their sixth straight game by beating Houston 4-0 Thursday.

The Giants lead second-place Cincinnati by eight games and Houston, the defending division champs, by 9½ in the NL West. Both the Giants and Reds have 15 games left.

"I'm just happy to be here and part of this. I've been excited since I've been here," Reuschel said.

Giants Manager Roger Craig said after the game that Reuschel, who was acquired from Pittsburgh in late August, will start the NL playoff opener on Oct. 6.

"He's been amazing, hasn't he?" Craig said. "He's going to win the Cy Young Award, too. He deserves it."

Reuschel, 33-7, now has the league's best earned run average,

2.64, and is 5-1 with a 2.18 ERA since joining the Giants.

The 38-year-old right-hander also leads the league in shutouts, with four, and is tied with Fernando Valenzuela in complete games, with 12. Reuschel walked one, struck out five and did not allow an Astro past first base.

"He pitched great for a last-place club, had three shutouts for them, and he's pitched even better for us, a better club," Craig said.

"If you wanted to pick anyone to establish momentum on the mound for us, it would have to be Reuschel," said left-hander Dravecky, Craig's projected starter in the second playoff game.

Dravecky was acquired in a six-player deal with San Diego on July 4. He beat the Astros 7-1 on Wednesday with a four-hitter and is 7-3 since joining the Giants.

Elsewhere, Montreal beat New York 4-1, Pittsburgh blanked St. Louis 1-0, San Diego defeated Atlanta 7-1, Philadelphia edged Chicago 4-3 and Los Angeles and Cincinnati split a doubleheader. The Reds won the first game 3-2 in 10 innings and the Dodgers took the nightcap 6-3.

Cliatt Leaving ECU Position

Ed Cliatt, recently hired associate director of athletics at East Carolina, has announced his resignation effective immediately, ECU Director of Athletics Ken Karr announced Thursday afternoon.

Cliatt, who joined the Pirate athletic program to head the internal operations, cited personal reasons and his desire to return to the Colorado Springs, Col. area as the basis his resignation.

Cliatt recently retired from the U.S. Air Force Academy with the rank of full Colonel after serving more than 20 years at the academy.

He had been the associate director of athletics there for the past four years.

"Dr. Karr is providing outstanding leadership and direction to the ECU program and it is with reluctance and some embarrassment that I end my association with East Carolina University," Cliatt said in a prepared statement.

Cliatt further indicated that his decision to accept the ECU position was a "hastily made decision based on family and personal situations falling into place. This has not been the case and now I feel obligated to return to Colorado Springs.

"Dr. Karr presented me with an opportunity to be involved with an up and coming Division I athletic program, and it is with a great deal of regret that I terminate this association on such short notice."

Pirates Challenge Big Ten As They Face Rebounding Fighting Illini Saturday

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University has gone up against a member of almost every conference east of the Mississippi River — and a few the other side of that country divider with the exception of the Big Ten.

Saturday, the Pirates invade Champaign, Ill., where they will meet the Fighting Illini of the University of Illinois in their first-ever collision with a Big Ten Conference member.

Kickoff is set for 4 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time in Memorial Stadium. A crowd of some 70,000 is expected for the contest.

East Carolina brings a 1-1 record into the game, having beaten N.C. State, 32-14, in its opening game, but losing to nationally ranked Florida State, 44-3, this past Saturday in the Pirates' home opener.

Illinois lost its opening game to North Carolina, 34-14, and then saw nationally ranked Arizona State rally from a third quarter 7-0 deficit to take a 21-7 win, leaving the Illini without a win on the year.

And ECU Coach Art Baker reminds fans that the Illini are a very strong team beaten by two strong teams.

"We saw their game on television with North Carolina and they should have gone into the locker room at halftime with the lead," Baker said. Carolina, trailing in that game, got a break late in the half when a bad snap negated a punting attempt, but the kicker was able to break loose on a long run that moved the ball inside the Illini's 10-yard line. Carolina scored and went ahead, then blew the Illini out in the second half.

Against Arizona State, the two teams played a scoreless first half as Illinois opened its home schedule. The Illini took the lead, 7-0, in the third quarter, but Arizona State rallied to score three touchdowns in the final period.

"I was impressed with what I saw of them in the Carolina game," Baker said. "They are the biggest team that we've played so far, and the strongest. They have excellent personnel and they played even better against Arizona State than they did against North Carolina."

Baker said that the Pirates would also be handicapped by having to play on AstroTurf. It will be the first time this year that the Pirates have been on artificial surfaces for a game. "The game is at 4 p.m., an odd time for us. There are a lot of different things about the game."

"We need to bounce back (after the Florida State game), but so do they. I don't believe they will be as quick on the corners as Florida State, but they are bigger and stronger, but not as mobile."

"I just hope we get our confidence back," Baker said.

The Pirates lost some confidence when they fumbled 10 times and lost five of them against Florida State. The fumbles — plus one interception — helped set up two scores by Florida State and also blunted several Pirate scoring opportunities.

Baker said that he was impressed *with Illinois' front three, ends Mike Piel (6-5, 256, Sr.) and Scott Davis (6-7, 267, Sr.) and nose tackle Jim Blondell (6-2, 262, Sr.). "They have an aggressive secondary, too," he said. Cornerback Keith Taylor (5-11, 197, Sr.) has already intercepted four passes in just two games and is second in the country in that category.

"Both of their running backs (Lynn McClelland, 5-11, 190, Jr., and Jeff Markland, 6-3, 244, Sr.) are outstanding," Baker added.

McClelland is the leading rusher for the Illini with 97 yards on 22 carries.

Quarterback Brian Menkhausen has hit on 25 of 60 attempts for 253 yards with five interceptions.

East Carolina's offense is led by quarterback Travis Hunter, who is the leading rusher and passer. He's picked up 110 yards on the grounds, two more than fullback Anthony Simpson, who has 108 yards. Reggie McKinney has rushed for 74 yards while Jarrod Moody had 72.

Hunter has hit on nine of 24 attempts for 98 yards with one interception.

Simpson has been the top target with four catches for 43 yards. Moody has three receptions for 41 yards.

Bubba Waters leads the defense in tackles with 20 total while Vinson Smith has recorded 18. Ellis Dillahunt has 13 and Roswell Streeter and Glen Willis each had 11.

The Pirates will return home next week, playing host to defending Division I-AA champion Georgia Southern.

Negotiators Give It One More Chance To Settle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jack Donlan and Gene Upshaw are giving it one last try.

The chief negotiators for the NFL owners and players were set to meet today in what may be the last chance to avert a seemingly inevitable players strike on Tuesday. A walkout is scheduled after Monday night's game between the New England Patriots and New York Jets.

John Jones, a spokesman for the NFL Management Council, said Thursday the purpose of the meeting is to "explore any and all avenues that may lead to averting a strike on the twenty-second of September." But it is not a formal bargaining session and players remain set to walk unless there is some major breakthrough.

The meeting is being held at an undisclosed site in the Washington area.

The hope on management's side is that Donlan will be able to find a way to convince Upshaw to postpone the strike date. Upshaw, on the other hand, says the date remains firm.

Jim Conway, the Management Council's assistant executive director, said Donlan hopes to point out areas where the owners might be willing to move in hopes of avoiding a strike.

"I think there are a fair number of items on which we're willing to move," Conway said. "We want to give Gene a very, very clear indication of where we think there's more movement possible."

Upshaw said the meeting has to be direct and all-encompassing.

"I've learned from a source close to management that in our head-to-head meeting tomorrow, owners and Management Council people are willing to talk about pensions and roster sizes. That's not going to cut it," Upshaw said Thursday night refusing to reveal his source. "We need a settlement and not another stall tactic on the part of management. The issues have been out there for a long time. We are not about to agree to any piecemeal bargaining."

Upshaw also said he's willing to talk right until the strike date which is not negotiable.

"I would sit in a room with Donlan right up to the strike deadline if that's what it takes to end this thing," Upshaw said. "But we are not going to retreat on our strike position."

The New York Daily News reported Friday that, according to television industry sources, a sizable amount of the $476-million payment by the networks to the league could be lost in the event of a strike.

The sources told the newspaper that the players chose Sept. 22 as a strike date because the owners would forfeit some or all of a scheduled $98-million payment due in October. The sources also said that the NFL would receive payments if the networks telecast games involving non-union players or those NFL players who don't honor the strike, but the payments would be reduced. The payments also would depend on ratings for the games.

One network executive, who was not identified by the Daily News, said the payments "would not be impacted by a strike."

Upshaw, asked after a meeting with AFL-CIO officials in Washington if the union might push back its strike deadline, replied:

"Short of agreement, short of resolving some of the conflicts we have, nothing can make us move it. At this point we have no choice but to prepare for the worst. That's why we're here today, that's why organized labor has supported us."

The last formal talks were held Tuesday, when the union made its latest proposal. It backed off the demand for outright free agency without compensation, offering instead to require players to spend four years in the league before they become "unfettered" free agents.

But Donlan, the Management Council's executive director, rejected that proposal outright Wednesday, calling instead for federal mediation, something the union continues to reject.

Upshaw responded Wednesday by calling a strike "inevitable." Donlan conceded: "It doesn't look good."

Meanwhile, phone lines remained busy Thursday with various offers of outside help.

Conway said he had received "six or eight" offers of mediation from various unnamed people, including ex-players. One offer came from John Riggins, the former Washington Redskins fullback, and retired Gen. P.X. Kelley, the former Marine Corps commandant, who offered to mediate the dispute in tandem.

But Conway called those offers "moot" because of the new meeting between Donlan and Upshaw.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, whom the union has suggested might be able to make a deal on behalf of the owners, also continued to monitor the dispute. Joe Browne, Rozelle's spokesman, said the commissioner had talked by telephone with undisclosed parties.

"He's studying the positions on both sides," Browne said. "He's obviously very concerned, but he realizes it does not look good at this time."

Upshaw's meeting with AFL-CIO officials was to discuss ways union workers could give support in negotiations and in the event of a strike.

Weather May Affect Race

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Bobby Hillin was hoping the weather would hold up because practice runs on the "Monster Mile" at Dover Downs International Speedway are crucial for Sunday's Delaware 500 stock car race.

"It's not going to rain," Hillin promised of today's weather during a press conference Thursday.

He said the high-banked oval is hard enough to drive without going into a race with no practice.

"Here, you have to stay on top of the situation. The track can sneak up and bite you anytime ... This is the type of track where you've got to stay out of trouble. You can run hard and be competitive, but just don't try to over do it," Hillin said.

Kyle Petty agreed the track can be tough.

"Any place you spin here ... very few times you're going to spin here and not hit something," Petty said.

Hillin added, "I think I've hit every wall here."

Practice begins today for the NASCAR Winston Cup race and qualifying for the first 20 slots for Saturday's Busch Grand National 200 was scheduled for this afternoon.

Patty Moise was expected to make her debut at Dover in the Busch 200.

Morgan Shepherd, who won the race last year, will be back to defend his title, and the series' leading regulars, Mark Martin and Larry Pearson, also were expected to qualify.

Track spokesman Al Robinson said there was a sellout crowd for the race last year and officials were expecting the same this year.

Ricky Rudd, who won the Delaware 500 last year, will be back to defend his title.

This spring's Budweiser 500 was won by Davey Allison, who will try to become only the third driver to complete a perfect season at Dover when the green flag drops Sunday.

Ironically, the last driver to sweep the season on the superspeedway was Allison's father, Bobby Allison, in 1983. David Pearson did it in 1973.

Rose Forfeits Soccer Match

ROCKY MOUNT — Rose High School was forced to forfeit its soccer match to Rocky Mount with just a minute remaining in the contest Thursday. However, Coach Will Wiberg has served notice that he will file a protest over the outcome.

The two teams had played to a scoreless tie to that point in the match, when at the 79 minute mark, Rocky Mount was given the forfeit by the officials.

"As a coach I cannot comment upon the officiating," Wiberg said. North Carolina coaches are under a gag rule by the North Carolina High School Athletic Association and may not criticize officials publicly. "A letter of protest is being drafted and will be submitted next week," the coach continued. "If the forfeit stands, Rocky Mount gains a 1-0 victory. If the protest is upheld a number of options may be taken, such as playing the two 10 minute overtimes."

Rose took 13 shots on goal during the abortive match with Rocky Mount goalie Lee Clements recording an equal number of saves. Rose goalie Brian Wille had saves on each of the nine shots taken by the Gryphons.

"We certainly had our chances to put it away in the first half but didn't," Wiberg said. "This was a game is missed opportunities, and I take full responsibility for this forfeit."

Rose returns to action on Tuesday, hosting Beddingfield at 4:30 p.m. at Appes field.

Reuter Out Into Lead After 2nd

Don Reuter turned in a second straight 10-2 ballot this past week and has assumed the early lead in the panel's picks this year.

Of course, there are still many, many weeks to go so it's still early yet.

Reuter currently holds down first with a 20-4 record, while Tom Baines and Vickie Spivey are hot on his heels with 19-5 records. Tom Morris and this writer are next at 18-6, followed by Joe Jenkins at 17-7.

This week's games are about as close a bunch as we've ever had, and there are some differences. Whether there are enough to make some changes remains to be seen.

Our high school picks this past weekend saw us post only a 4-3 record as upsets marked the day. That brings us to 14-7 on the season. Hopefully this week will turn out better.

There are several games that could go either way, however, in a week when some surprises can be expected.

Ayden-Grifton plays host to Washington High School in one of the top games of the week. The Chargers are 2-1 after having beaten Conley and 4-A Kinston after an opening loss to strong Wallace-Rose Hill. This week's opponent, Washington, has already beaten one of the stronger teams in the Eastern Plains Conference, Pamlico, in a close contest.

Ayden-Grifton — with the home field advantage — should be able to pull this one out, 21-14.

North Pitt travels to Roanoke and the biggest job the Panthers have is to stop the hard-running of Marvin Earl Morning. The Panthers will also be trying to recover from their loss to Conley this past weekend. This could be another toss-up, but we'll pick Roanoke to take it, 18-16.

Woody Peele

In other area games, it will be Bath over Jamesville, Greene Central over Williamston and Chocowinity over North Edgecombe.

Our panel picks the Conley-Farmville Central result. The Vikings are coming off a big win over North Pitt, their first of the year. Farmville Central, meanwhile, had an open date last time out and Coach Dixon Sauls is worried whether the Jaguars lost some of their momentum.

Not to worry, coach! The panel is picking the Jaguars to take this one, all six going with Farmville Central. Our own pick is Farmville, 15-7.

East Carolina travels to Illinois to meet the Fighting Illini in the first-ever game for the Pirates against a Big Ten school in football. Illinois has lost a couple of tough contests after having the lead, and will be hungry for a win. East Carolina played well against N.C. State and not well at all against Florida State.

Which Pirate team will show up this week? The panel is looking for an Illinois victory, with five of six picking the Illini. Reuter is the only one picking the Pirates.

Our own pick is Illinois by 24-17.

Our other consensus picks: Georgia Tech over North Carolina; Clemson over Georgia; Maryland over West Virginia; Southern Mississippi over Tulane; Notre Dame over Michigan State; Wake Forest over N.C. State; Virginia Tech and Virginia, a toss-up; Duke over Vanderbilt; Washington over Texas A&M; and Southern Cal over Boston College.

DeBerg And Buccaneers Take On Tougher Task

By The Associated Press

Steve DeBerg, who chewed up the Atlanta Falcons with his passing in the NFL season-opener, will be up against an entirely different type of defensive animal when he leads Tampa Bay against the Chicago Bears Sunday in what could be the last weekend of pro football before the players go on strike.

DeBerg passed for 333 yards and five touchdowns in the Bucs' 48-10 victory over Atlanta. Tampa Bay Coach Ray Perkins called the quarterback's performance "one of the best games I've ever been associated with."

But on Sunday, DeBerg will be facing a defense that sacked New York quarterback Phil Simms seven times and his replacement Jeff Rutledge once in Chicago's 34-19 victory over the Giants.

Chicago quarterback Mike Tomczak, filling in for injured Jim McMahon, rattled the Giants 292 yards and two touchdowns.

The Bears have beaten the Buccaneers eight straight times.

Other Sunday matchups have Dallas at the New York Giants, Denver meeting Green Bay at Milwaukee, Pittsburgh at Cleveland, New Orleans at Philadelphia, Houston at Buffalo, Kansas City at Seattle, St. Louis at San Diego, Minnesota at the Los Angeles Rams, Washington at Atlanta, San Francisco at Cincinnati, Detroit at the Los Angeles Raiders and Miami at Indianapolis.

Monday night, New England visits the New York Jets in what could be the last game for some time. The NFL Players Association has set Sept. 22 as its strike date.

While the Bucs prepare for the Bears, the Giants hope to get their offense untracked against Dallas. Two of New York's three touchdowns against the Bears came on a blocked punt and an interception return.

The Giants will also be playing with a revamped secondary after releasing starting cornerback Elvis Patterson Tuesday.

Herb Welch, usually a safety, probably will start at cornerback, but Giants Coach Bill Parcells said there is a possibility that Harvey Clayton, a waiver acquisition from Detroit, also would play.

The Giants have serious problems at cornerback.

"Obviously, we have a little bit of a numbers problem and we haven't played that well," Parcells said. "I don't want to single out that position. We haven't played well in a lot of areas. We just thought we needed to get moving in a different area."

Dallas, which counts heavily on the running and receiving of Herschel Walker and Tony Dorsett, has lost its last six regular-season games, including a 24-13 loss to St. Louis in its opener.

Seattle, rated in the pre-season as a prime Super Bowl contender, faces a key early-season AFC West matchup against Kansas City.

The Seahawks wasted an early lead and were blown out by Denver in their opener, while the Chiefs come off a 20-13 victory over San Diego.

Kansas City, who has counted top heavily on its quarterbacks in recent seasons, has a perked-up offense with rookie running backs Christian Okoye and Paul Palmer. Okoye ran 21 times for 105 yards and a touchdown and Palmer returned a kickoff 95 yards for the winning touchdown against San Diego. Seattle needs a return to form by quarterback Dave Kreig, who was intercepted three times against Denver.

Cleveland, which went to the AFC title game last season, is looking to rebound from a 28-21 loss to New Orleans, while the Steelers come into the game off a 30-17 upset victory over San Francisco.

The Steelers will probably need a passing attack to go with their running game if they are to pull a second upset. Earnest Jackson rushed for 103 yards and Walter Abercrombie ran 28 yards for a touchdown, but quarterback Mark Malone completed only nine of 33 passes for 83 yards.

Cleveland could need a big passing game from Bernie Kosar. The Steelers held San Francisco to 47 yards rushing.

White Leads Rampant JV Past Eastern Wayne, 28-7

Carlos White scored two touchdowns to lead the Rose JV football team to a 28-7 win over Eastern Wayne Thursday.

White scored both of his touchdowns on receptions of 42 and 47 yards from quarterback Hank Thompson.

Maurice Hines added a 20-yard touchdown run while Frenchie Freeman returned an interception 38 yards for another score.

Ty Ficklin kicked all four extra points.

Rose is 1-1 and returns to action Thursday at Northern Nash.

Roanoke.....28
North Pitt.....6

BETHEL — Roanoke High School's junior varsity scored in the second period and held on for an 8-6 football victory over North Pitt Thursday night.

North Pitt scored first in the game, getting into the end zone on a nine-yard run by Marcus Purvis. However, Purvis' try for the PAT failed, leaving it at 6-0.

In the second quarter, Levi Jones broke away on a 43-yard scoring run for Roanoke that tied the game. Jones then was successful on his two-point try, giving the Papooses the eventual victory.

The loss drops the North Pitt Cubs to 0-4 on the year. They have an open date next Thursday, and then travel to Ayden-Grifton on Oct. 1.

Conley.....28
Farmville C.....22

FARMVILLE — Fred Streeter scored two touchdowns, including the clincher as D.H. Conley's junior varsity nipped Farmville Central, 28-22.

Streeter scored the opening touchdown in the game on a two yard run and Tim Allen passed to Hal Conger for the PAT and an 8-0 lead. The Vikings added a second score in the opening period on a 30-yard run with a fumble. Allen again went to the air, to Anthony Artis on the PAT to make it 16-0.

Conley upped its lead to 22-0 with a five-yard run by Kenny Haddock in the second period. But Farmville began its comeback with a 39-yard pass from Morris Foreman to Lavonzel Payton. Jermaine Barrett ran over the PAT to cut the half time lead to 22-8.

In the third period, Farmville scored again on a 26-yard run by Barrett, who also added the PAT to trim the lead to 22-16. Then, in the final period, Jeff Tyson scored on a 22-yard run to tie it up for the Jaguar Cubs.

But Streeter, who had 140 yards on the night, got away for 12 yards and the final score to give Conley the win.

The Vikings play host to Havelock next Thursday, while Farmville travels to South Lenoir.

North Pitt Sweeps Past Ayden-Grifton, Farmville

LITTLEFIELD — North Pitt swept to two wins in Eastern Plains tri-match volleyball action Thursday, topping Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central.

In the first match, North Pitt topped Ayden-Grifton 15-8, 15-4.

The leading hitters for North Pitt in the first match were Pam Worsley with 11 and three kills while Amy Heath added eight hits and two kills. Angie Purvis added 16 assists and Tracy Nichols chipped in eight.

The Lady Chargers were led by Leigh Teal with five and Iris Brown with two.

In the next match, Farmville Central handed the Lady Chargers a 4-15, 15-9, 15-6 loss.

Stephanie Register and K. Carter had eight points each to lead Farmville. Allison Manning added six.

The Chargers were led by Teal with nine. Keesha Jones added seven while Brown chipped in five.

Ayden-Grifton falls to 4-4 and returns to action Tuesday at Pamlico.

In the final match, the Pant-Hers topped Farmville, 15-4, 15-9.

The leading servers for North Pitt were Melissa Harrington, who turned in a 13-13 performance with 13 points, and Heath, who went 10-10 for nine points.

The leading server for the Lady Jaguars was Susie Stancill with nine points, which accounted for all nine of Farmville's points in the second game.

The leading hitters were Worsley with 15 and five kills while Purvis added eight assists.

North Pitt improves to 8-0 in the EPC and 10-5 overall and returns to action Tuesday at Greene Central.

Conley.....1
West Carteret.....1
Swansboro.....0

MOREHEAD CITY — D.H. Conley split a pair of non-conference volleyball matches Thursday, falling to West Carteret, 10-15, 15-10, 16-14, before coming back to top Swansboro 15-9, 15-5.

In the Swansboro match, Mirian Fulford and Renee Tuten had serving strings of four each. Hanna Hill and Fulford had five effective hits and one kill each.

The Valkyries fall to 7-5 and open Coastal Conference play Tuesday at East Carteret.

Trinity.....2
Bethel.....0

Trinity defeated Bethel Christian Academy 15-13, 15-13 in a high school volleyball match Thursday.

The leading server for Trinity was Myra Gillin in the first game with seven, while Becky Stocks added six. The top hitter was Jennifer Alexander.

In the second game, Natalie Godwin added seven service points. The top hitters in that game were Stocks and Alexander with four and three, respectively.

Trinity is 3-1 and returns to action in Kinston against Bethel on Monday.

Rose.....1
Fike.....1

Rose High School split a pair of volleyball matches with Wilson Fike in Big East play Thursday.

Rose won the opening match, 15-9, 15-13, but Fike came back for a 15-6, 15-10 victory in the second match.

Amy Barr led Rose's service with 11, while Andrea Rodgers added six and Jenjer Vick had five. The top spikers for Rose were Barr with nine and Rodgers with six.

Rose is now 6-2 on the year and plays host to Northern Nash on Tuesday.

Rec Team Gets Tie

The Greenville Recreation and Park's department junior girl's tennis team played to a 6-6 tie with Ridgecroft Academy of Ahoskie Thursday.

It was the opening match of year for Greenville, which travels Grey Culbreth Junior High of Chapel Hill Thursday.

A-G Tops Farmville

FARMVILLE — Ayden-Grifton Middle School eased past Farmville Middle School, 8-6, in junior high school football action Thursday.

Farmville scored first, getting on the scoreboard with a 44-yard run by Michael Foreman.

It stayed that way until the fourth period when Ayden came back to score on a 14-yard run by Billy Gorham who also came up with the two-point conversion to pull out the win.

A.G. Cox.....20
Chocid.....0

CHOCID — Anthony Barrett scored two touchdowns, the first on a 10-yard run and the other on a 64-yard punt return, to lead A.G. Cox to a 20-0 win over Chocid in junior high football Thursday.

Aaron McKinney added another score on a seven-yard run to complete the scoring.

Cox is 1-0 and hosts Frink Thursday.

'60 Minutes' Enters 20th Year

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In a cartoon hanging on the wall of Mike Wallace's office overlooking the Hudson River, a businessman is talking to his secretary on the intercom. "Mike Wallace here to see you, sir," says the secretary. Replies the businessman, "Fine. Send him right in." The cartoon is titled, "Man With a Clear Conscience."

It's a turnabout on the old joke: How do you know you're going to have a bad day? When you come in and find Mike Wallace and a crew from "60 Minutes" in your office.

Wallace, 69, repeats Carl Sandburg when asked how long he'll keep reporting — "until my toes turn up." He's just signed a five-year contract that will keep him on "60 Minutes" until he and the top-rated newsmagazine celebrate their silver anniversary season. This year begins their 20th.

The show originally premiered Sept. 24, 1968. Ten years later it broke into the top 10 in the Nielsen ratings, where it has remained ever since. It was the No. 1-rated, prime-time television show in 1980 and 1983.

"60 Minutes" made Wallace's name synonymous with investigative reporting, but he doesn't think he deserves his tough reputation.

"Myths die slowly," said Wallace, a warm man with a quick smile when not in his "60 Minutes" mode. "At the time that I first began to ask questions on television, which was back in the middle '50s, the kind of insistence, the kind of research and the occasional excursions into abrasiveness were new. It's no longer so."

"But once you've been recognized as the inquisitor, it's almost impossible to lose the label. Fact is that my techniques in reporting are not very dissimilar from a dozen others in television. I suppose it's simply because I got there first."

Wallace was there from the first on "60 Minutes," he and Harry Reasoner.

"The investigative stuff which later became the hallmark of the show was not there from the beginning, by any means," Wallace said. "At the beginning, Harry was genuinely the white hat, and I was trying to find my niche."

Wallace did find his niche, as tough questioner and occasional "ambush" interviewer. He said "60 Minutes" has gradually veered away from what he thinks occasionally lapsed into "stunt" journalism.

The show now has five reporters — Wallace, Reasoner, Morley Safer, Ed Bradley and Diane Sawyer.

When Reasoner left two years after the inception of the show for a stint at ABC News, Safer replaced him.

"Like anything good, or important, it wasn't really planned, it just happened," Safer said of the show.

"It does give us pause, no question — 'Hey, we really have been on an awfully long time.'"

"It's an important part of the history of journalism in this country that, in a medium that lives by trifles, a medium that celebrates the short attention span, for us to maintain a fairly high standard of journalism all these years is a pretty damn impressive thing."

Safer says the best thing about working on "60 Minutes" has been the opportunity to do an offbeat story, like an upcoming piece on the 30th anniversary of Mad magazine. He is guarded about suggesting any story ideas he might like to pursue in the future.

Wallace, ever the hard-news hound, excitedly recounts every detail of the big stories he's bagged, like his interview with the Ayatollah Khomeini just days after the taking of hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Teheran.

"To me, the most interesting person that I could interview still today would be Patricia Nixon," Wallace said. "I covered Richard Nixon in the '68 campaign. ... I didn't see her frequently, but on the infrequent occasions that I had an opportunity to spend any time with her, I found her anything but the 'plastic Pat' that Gloria Steinem talked about. She was warm and vulnerable and far from plastic."

"I would not want to talk to her about Watergate, I would want to talk to her about the life and times of a political wife. She knows I want to talk to her, and she has consistently and politely turned it down."

Because of Nixon, Wallace very nearly turned down the "60 Minutes" job.

"I debated a long time before even taking the job, because at that time, I was covering Nixon and expected probably to go to the White House as White House correspondent, because I thought Nixon was going to get elected."

But he "shook the dice" and decided to go with the "60 Minutes" job, since it was the "bird in the hand."

"And it was a lucky choice," he said. "I think back then we expected it to last about a year."

The Constitution And Change

The writers of the United States Constitution had no guarantee that the federal system proposed in the document would operate or be successful. Yet, the constitution stands today as the oldest written form of national government in the world. But times and people's needs change, thus the constitution was designed to meet these needs through amendments.

The first ten amendments or additions to the constitution came together as the Bill of Rights — a document that spelled out the liberties guaranteed to the American public. In 200 years, only 16 further additions have been made to a document which took less than four months to write.

Some of those later amendments abolished slavery, gave women and blacks the right to vote and made it possible for government to assess income taxes. Other amendments prohibited and then restored alcohol production and lowered the voting age to 18.

Concerned men meeting in Philadelphia in 1787 wanted only to improve the Articles of Confederation. Instead, these delegates constructed a document which has withstood war and civil strife to become an example to all.

Happy birthday to the United States Constitution.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY Sept. 19

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Bring you finest talents to the foreground, and an influential person can help you capitalize on them. The evening is best spent at recreation with good friends.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): More harmony at home can be achieved if you apply yourself. The day is fine for inviting some carefully chosen guests into your home and making them happy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Improving relationships and communicating well with others could be very beneficial if you're careful about it. Be thoughtful and kind when visiting friends.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Luxury and a greater income can be easily had if you carefully study your situation. If property repairs are imminent, get them done now.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): If you maintain a courageous and enthusiastic front, you can gain a long-desired personal wish. Enjoy a favorite hobby with friends. Be very careful driving today.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Be more thoughtful of your mate and you'll both be much happier. Some reading can give you good ideas on how to go about planning a successful future.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Get together with some outgoing friends and discuss your goals and ambitions. Lend a helping hand to any friends who are having a rough time lately.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): If you handle your career work conscientiously and precisely, your reputation can really soar. Be sure you leave some time for fun with your mate this evening.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Better conditions are developing. You can profit from them if you think carefully and take advantage of opportunities. This is a good day to plan a worthwhile trip.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Use your natural organizational ability to make some plans for the future. Take a trip with your mate and have a great time together, but drive very carefully.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Contact some influential friends who can help you make your dreams a reality. Accept their assistance graciously, and be sure to be appreciative of it.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Use your charm to gain the support of friends and family. Take some time to improve your surroundings and make them more functional as well as more attractive.

Just because partner has led a singleton doesn't mean you have to give him a ruff at the first opportunity. Take time out to consider all the ramifications of the defense before committing yourself to a line.

The auction was routine. South's jump to four spades was based on his diamond fit and the fact he didn't want to sound as if he was simply competing against three hearts.

East rose with the ace of diamonds and declarer, in a somewhat misguided attempt to pull the wool over the eyes of the defense, dropped the king. East brushed that puny attempt at deception aside—he knew his partner would not lead dummy's suit from low cards, so he had to have a singleton.

The ace of diamonds and ruff were two defensive tricks, so the defenders needed two more. It was most unlikely that they were going to get a black-suit trick, so hearts had to provide both if the contract was going to be set. If West held ace-king, there was no problem; but that was unlikely, since West would probably have led a high heart if he held both honors.

If West held ace-queen of hearts and East gave him a diamond ruff now, that would end the defense—the wrong hand would be on lead and one trick would be all the defenders could collect. So East postponed giving his partner a ruff in favor of shifting to the jack of hearts.

That sealed declarer's fate. If he covered, West would win the ace and return a low heart to the ten to get his diamond ruff. If declarer ducked, East would shift to a diamond there and then, and West's ruff, followed by the ace of hearts, would administer the coup de grace.

Youths Rampage Fijian Capital

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — Soldiers today sealed off Suva with roadblocks and fired on Melanesian youths who rampaged through the streets of the capital, looting shops and setting fire to buildings.

There was no immediate word on what started the rioting.

At least 13 people were arrested and 12 injured when the troops opened fire. Police gave no details of the charges against those arrested.

This South Pacific island nation was the scene of a military coup last May that overthrew Prime Minister Timoci Bavadra.

Witnesses told the Australian Associated Press that soldiers shot a 30-year-old man in the leg after he robbed a bank.

Police said eight shops owned by Indian businessmen were raided during the rampage. Several store employees were injured. The report, monitored in Sydney, Australia, said three shops were severely damaged by gasoline bombs as police chased the Melanesian gang through the center of the city.

Soldiers erected roadblocks on maior approaches to the city and did not allow any vehicles through, residents said. Many shops closed early, and the city was mostly calm as night fell.

Bavadra, a leftist, named a Cabinet dominated by Fiji Indians after he defeated a pro-Western government in elections April 12. Violence then broke out between Fiji Indians and ethnic Fijians. Col. Sitiveni Rabuka said he arrested Bavadra and his government in a coup to end the communal violence and restore the rights of ethnic Fijians.

The current outbreak of violence followed a spate of arson attacks in the wake of the coup. Rabuka reportedly had been considering a nightly curfew to curb the violence.

Melanesians comprise 47 percent of Fiji's 715,000 people. Indians, descendants of British imported sugar plantation labor in the 19th century, make up 49 percent. Europeans, Chinese and others make up the rest.

The report said two men were charged in an arson earlier this week at the home of Richard Naidu, spokesman for Bavadra.

Bennett Visit Riles Nicaragua

By REID G. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Education William J. Bennett said Nicaraguans will never enjoy freedom under the Sandinista government and promised continued U.S. aid for Contra rebels despite a regional peace accord.

Bennett, whose visit touched off a diplomatic row, returned home today.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy accused the leftist Sandinista government of staging a protest during Bennett's visit Thursday that forced him to miss a meeting with about 30 mothers of political prisoners in Nicaragua.

Bennett later met with the women at another location.

The spokesman said a formal note would be sent to the Nicaraguan Foreign Ministry protesting the treatment of Bennett, a staunch conservative and the first member of President Reagan's Cabinet to visit Nicaragua since 1982.

Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto said: "It's a sadly typical North American attitude that Nicaragua has known throughout its history. It's a superior, disrespectful characteristic of this superpower government."

The incident occurred when protesters, including wounded war veterans and members of a youth auxiliary of the governing Sandinista party, blocked Bennett's way to a meeting with the mothers.

Bennett had planned to talk with the women while visiting Managua at the request of the State Department to deliver a speech marking the bi-centennial to the U.S. Constitution to a group of Nicaraguan dissidents.

In his speech Thursday night, Bennett was interrupted frequently by applause from an audience of about 700 people, most of them members of dissident political organizations in Nicaragua.

Bennett told his audience the U.S. Constitution remains "a challenge and a rebuke to tyrannies and despotisms everywhere. ... to every movement and every ideology that smother liberty and denies it life."

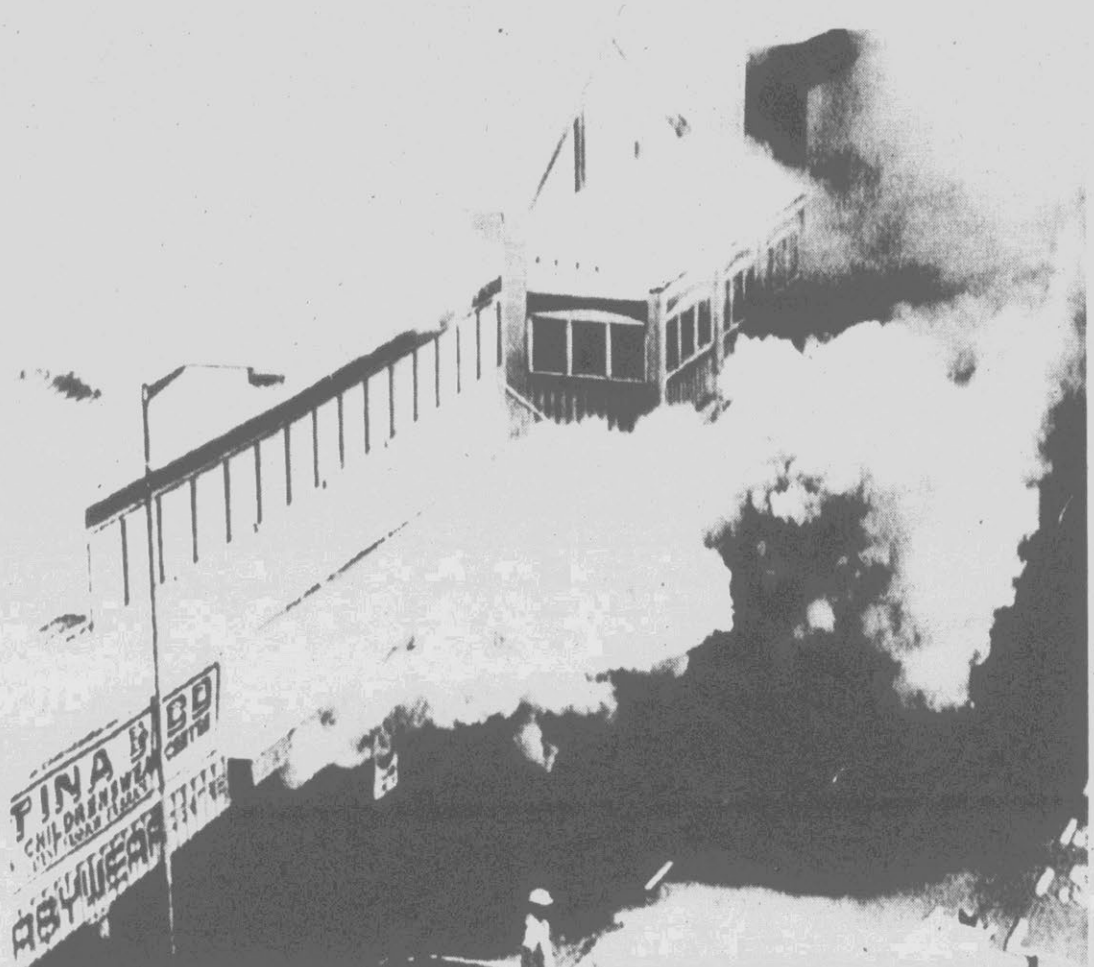

Speaking at a news conference attended by foreign and Nicaraguan reporters, Bennett said freedom does not exist in Nicaragua and suggested it never will as long as the Sandinistas are in power.

Bennett was asked for his views on a peace plan signed by the presidents of Nicaragua and four other Central American nations calling, among other things, for a cease-fire in Nicaragua and an end to U.S. aid for the Contra rebels. He replied: "The record of the Sandinista government has not been encouraging." "We will support the Contras; we will not abandon the Contras," he added. "If abandoned, they are lost."

Late Thursday, the U.S. Senate turned back an effort to send $310 million in new aid to the Nicaraguan guerrillas.

The Senate voted 61-31 to table, and thus kill, the aid package, but it will be revived later after President Reagan formally submits it to Congress.

American ambassadors have been living in less pretentious quarters since the Sandinistas came to power in 1979.

Iraq Says Planes Hit Oil Loading Terminal In Iran

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq said its warplanes today blasted Iran's Kharg island oil loading terminal and two other oil installations along Iran's western coast on the third straight day of attacks in Persian Gulf war.

The official Iraqi News Agency said two formations of warplanes struck the oil fields of Ardashir and Bahrakan simultaneously, setting them on fire. The report, monitored in Cyprus, said the warplanes staged another raid two hours later "demolishing what had survived on Kharg island in previous attacks."

There was no official confirmation of the attacks from Iran.

On Thursday, Iraq said it bombed Iraqi cities, and Iraq claimed it repulsed an Iranian attack in an 18-hour battle, as fighting took place mostly along the nation's border areas.

Iran also began amphibious military maneuvers Thursday off its southern coast in the Gulf of Oman to counter a growing international presence in the waters outside the Persian Gulf, Iranian news media reported.

Witnesses said, meanwhile, that the 46,723-ton Gas Prince docked in Kuwait at the northern end of the Persian Gulf under cover of darkness.

Senate Refuses To Accept New Contra Aid Package

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate supporters of President Reagan's program of aid to the Nicaraguan guerrillas say the chamber's refusal to approve a $310 million assistance package does not mean an end to Contra aid.

"I accomplished what I set out to do," Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said late Thursday after his proposal was killed, 61-31. "That is to find out where we stand."

"We had to have a head count that would indicate our weaknesses," said Helms, a strong supporter of Contra aid. "Now we do. There will be a nationwide campaign in the home states of senators to get their support the next time around."

He predicted that some senators who voted against the package Thursday will support it on the next vote.

The Senate rejected Helms' attempt to add the aid package to a bill authorizing the Pentagon's budget for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Even strong supporters of the controversial policy said it was bad timing because they noted that Reagan hasn't even formally submitted a request to Congress and a five-nation Central American peace plan has a Nov. 7 deadline.

Shortly before the vote, Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said, "I just had a telephone call from the White House and they don't quarrel with the intent, but they don't agree with the timing."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., another backer of Contra aid, made the motion to kill the package, saying, "This is the wrong time for this."

"I would hope that this vote will not be taken as a (negative) signal by the freedom fighters or as a comforting signal by the Sandinistas," Nunn said. "I don't think this vote is indicative of our views."

Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., also an aid backer, said, "I can't think of a worse time, while the peace initiative is underway, to offer this amendment."

Moments before the Contra vote, the Senate reaffirmed by a 90-2 margin U.S. commitment to the Monroe Doctrine. That is the policy, first enunciated by President James Monroe in 1923, of U.S. opposition to intervention in the Western Hemisphere by European nations.

Reagan plans to seek $270 million more worth of aid to the Contras, but that request is not likely to be submitted for some time.

The current aid package of $100 million technically runs out Sept. 30, but U.S. officials say there is enough unspent money in the pipeline to run well into November.

of the plan simultaneously on Nov. 7, said El Salvador's foreign minister, Ricardo Acevedo Peralta.

"We are optimistic about the work. ... We Central Americans have taken the historic role of being the conductors of our own fates," he said.

Acevedo said the ministers agreed that each country, not an international commission, should be in charge of arranging amnesty for rebels. Still to be tackled were such issues as cease-fires and internal democratic reforms.

Also meeting Thursday and today in Managua was the International Verification and Follow-Up Commission. It is made up of representatives from each of the five Central American nations, the United Nations, the Organization of American States, the Contadora nations of Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela and Panama, and the Support Group countries of Argentina, Brazil, Peru and Uruguay.
