U.S. Helicopter Fires On Iranian Mine Ship

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today defended the U.S. attack on an Iranian military ship that had been laying mines in the Persian Gulf, saying that "we did what was authorized by law."

Reagan, in an Oval Office photo session with Costa Rican President Oscar Arias, denied that the United States had entered a shooting war and said he did not intend to notify Congress of imminent dangers under the War Powers Act.

Earlier, the Pentagon said the attack left three Iranian crew members dead, and a U.S. boarding party found 10 mines on the vessel.

"We did what was authorized by law anyplace in international waters," Reagan said.

Asked if his policy of policing the Persian Gulf shipping lanes had made the area more explosive, Reagan said, "The only one who has contributed to the explosive tendencies in the Persian Gulf is (Ayatollah Ruhollah) Khomeini and the government of Iran."

Asked whether the Iranians would respond to his demand for an immediate cease-fire in the war with Iraq, Reagan said, "That's up to them." But he also said, "I don't think anyone can predict" how long hostilities will continue in the region.

The Iranians apparently already had deployed six mines before they were attacked, and U.S. helicopters were searching the gulf this morning in an effort to locate them, said Pentagon spokesman Lt. Col. Arnold Williams.

Williams said that, according to one English-speaking crewman from the Iranian vessel who was picked up by U.S. officials, 31 crew members were aboard the vessel when it was hit. Ten were picked up from a lifeboat by U.S. officials, 16 were recovered from the water, and two still were missing, Williams said.

Most were being held aboard the USS LaSalle, flag ship of the Navy's Middle East Force, but three who were in serious condition were taken to the USS Guadalcanal for treatment.

The Pentagon initially announced that four dead bodies had been found on the Iranian ship, but later reduced the number to three.

State-run Tehran radio said five sailors were killed. It said the attacked ship was part of Iran's navy, but denied the vessel was sowing mines in the gulf.

Pentagon spokesman Lt. Col. Jim Jannette, asked the status of the crew members being held by U.S. officials and whether they were considered prisoners, said "obviously that's not language we're using."

Added spokesman Lt. Cmdr. Chris

Baumann: "We're not at war so they really couldn't be called prisoners. For now they're being called detainees."

Jannette stressed that U.S. ships had been standing by near the Iranian vessel "to render such assistance as may be necessary."

Witnesses at the scene reported that the 1,662-ton ship was under tow today by an American warship. It was not clear where the ship was being taken.

The Pentagon said the life boat had been boarded at 1 a.m. EDT today.

Pentagon and White House officials said the Iranian amphibious landing ship Iran Ajr was attacked and briefly set afire Monday night local time after it was discovered dropping mines in international waters about 50 miles northeast of Bahrain.

"The fire appears to be out, but the ship is dead in the water," said Pentagon spokesman Fred Hoffman.

He said there was no indication the Iranian ship attempted to fire on at least two American helicopters flying in the area.

As of 6 a.m. EDT today, Baumann said there were no other Iranian ships or aircraft in the area nor had any been detected moving toward the crippled ship which The Washington Post reported today is a World War II-vintage U.S.-made vessel sold to the Iranian regime of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Baumann said he believed the bodies of the dead Iranian crew members had been removed from the vessel and taken to the LaSalle, but no decision had been made on what would be done with them next. He said the Iran Ajr still was under U.S. surveillance, but he could not say whether the mines had been removed from the vessel.

Hoffman said the U.S. helicopters assigned to the frigate USS Jarrett had been flying a routine night-time patrol Monday when they discovered the Iran Ajr. The spokesman said the copters spent "some time" observing

Congressmen Back Military Response

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of Congress today praised the U.S. helicopter attack on an Iranian military ship that had been laying mines in the Persian Gulf, saying a strong response clearly was called for.

"I think that the Navy and the administration behaved exactly right on this," said Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. "... I think the evidence is very clear that we were right in this instance."

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., interviewed along with Aspin on NBC-TV's "Today" show, agreed, saying: "Clearly we've caught them dead to rights in this situation, in international waters, clearly in violation."

Aspin, who has been critical in the past of U.S. policy toward the gulf, said the attack was "within the envelope" of what could have been anticipated in the war-torn region.

"I don't think that the Persian Gulf is more dangerous today than it was two days ago," he said. "It was dangerous then and it's dangerous now."

Both legislators said it was curious that the Iranians would undertake a mine-laying venture at a time when the United Nations is being urged by the United States to impose sanctions against Iran for its failure to agree to a cease-fire in the gulf.

"The Iranians are badly frustrated over their inability to retaliate," Lugar said. "... Frustrated as they may be, it still is very curious that they would do so with their leader at the U.N. and with the whole focus of world opinion on the cease-fire."

Iranian President Ali Khamenei was to speak to the U.N. General Assembly and outline his country's stand on a cease-fire resolution, which was approved unanimously July 20 by the U.N. Security Council.

SHIPS COLLIDE — The Liberian freighter Pac Baroness sinks into the Pacific Ocean off Point Conception, Calif., Monday after it collided with the Panamanian freighter Atlantic Wing. The Panamanian ship, carrying 25 people rescued from the Pac Baroness, made

Haiti Awaits Emily

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Emily whipped up 100 mph winds today as it swept toward the southern coast of the Caribbean island shared by Haiti and the Dominican Republic, where residents braced for high tides and heavy rainfall.

Hurricane warnings were posted for the northeast, east and south coasts of the Dominican Republic and the entire southwestern peninsula of Haiti on the island of Hispaniola to give residents time to prepare for the brunt of the storm, expected to make landfall tonight, forecasters said.

"It looks like it will roughly skirt along the southern coast of Hispaniola and then on the extreme eastern edge of Cuba. The current thinking is that it will then go up through the Bahamas," said National Hurricane Center meteorologist Joel Cline.

From 3 a.m. to 9 a.m. EDT, Emily's sustained winds increased from 75 mph to almost 100 mph.

Air Force reconnaissance planes flying into the storm every six hours plotted the 9 a.m. position of storm's center at 16 degrees north latitude and 68 degrees west longitude, or about 200 miles southeast of Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. It was moving west-northwest at 20 mph.

"Further strengthening is likely," forecaster Joseph Pelissier said. A tropical storm becomes a hurricane when its sustained winds reach 74 mph.

The governments of the Dominican Republic and Haiti issued hurricane warnings this morning when it became clear a hurricane was imminent, Cline said. Rain from the storm was falling on Puerto Rico this morning, he added.

"The strengthening of Emily to a hurricane increases the threat to countries around the north-central Caribbean Sea," Pelissier said.

Justice White Says Bork 'OK'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Byron R. White has said it "would be OK" if Robert H. Bork joined him on the Supreme Court, a court spokeswoman said today.

The spokeswoman, Toni House, said White, at a birthday party for the newspaper USA Today last Friday, was asked by television talk-show host John McLaughlin for his opinion of the Bork appointment.

"It would be OK with me," Ms. House quoted White as saying.

She said White gave McLaughlin permission to report the conversation. McLaughlin mentioned it on a television show Sunday.

Ms. House described White's comment as informal. "I wouldn't regard it as a public endorsement," she said at the Supreme Court shortly before the Senate Judiciary Committee began its seventh day of hearings on Bork's nomination.

White was appointed to the court by President Kennedy and generally is regarded as a moderate on civil rights and conservative on law enforcement issues.

Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., referred to the McLaughlin account of the White statement at the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings Monday. Simpson said it demonstrated how broad support is for Bork.

Justice John Paul Stevens announced earlier that he supports Bork's nomination. No other member of the court has taken a position, although former Chief Justice Warren E. Burger also has endorsed Bork.

In another development, the Sierra Club today became the latest group to oppose Bork's nomination, denouncing his judicial views as a threat to the environment.

Tyson Jury Selection Begins

The selection of a jury to hear a civil suit in which Michael Keith Braswell is seeking damages from Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson in connection with the death of Braswell's mother began Monday and continued this morning in Pitt County Superior Court.

Braswell's suit alleges that his mother, Lillie Stencil Braswell, was shot to death by his father, Billy Braswell, on Sept. 27, 1982, while his father was on duty as a deputy sheriff. The suit further alleges that "various members of the public had warned Sheriff Tyson that Lillie Braswell was in danger of being seriously harmed or killed by Billy Braswell," that "at least five days prior to her death, Lillie Stencil Braswell had begged the Defendant Ralph L. Tyson for protection from Billy R. Braswell and had told Sheriff Tyson that she was in fear of Billy Braswell."

The suit, filed in August 1984, charges that Tyson "knew or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known that Billy R. Braswell threatened the deceased and had even written certain letters indicating he intended to kill Lillie S. Braswell and himself," and that on Sept. 22, 1982, Tyson promised "he would have deputies checking on her at all times, even when she was at work, and that he would have a deputy follow her to work in the morning and home in the afternoon and further have a deputy follow her at any time she should be alone to protect her from Billy Braswell."

But the suit says, "After making said assurances, Sheriff Tyson failed to provide the protection he had assured Lillie Braswell he would give her," and asks for $2 million in damages for the "loss of the reasonably expected future net income of the deceased, services, protection, care and assistance of the deceased and the society, companionship, comfort, guidance, kindly offices and advice of the deceased to her son," as well as for $3,424 for funeral expenses and grave marker.

Billy Braswell, a sheriff's deputy for 13 years, was convicted of murdering his wife in a mid-1983 trial and was sentenced to life in prison.

Judge Donald L. Smith of Raleigh is presiding over the trial of the suit.

Sales Tax Hearing Scheduled

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners Monday scheduled a public hearing on the re-adoption of the 2 per cent local option sales tax for Oct. 12.

Because of action by the General Assembly, all counties must readopt the tax or lose the authority to levy the sales tax as of March 1.

The hearing on the tax, which will account for about $7.05 million in revenue for the county government this fiscal year, will be at 7 p.m. at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth Street.

The law change was made in an effort to capture an estimated $18.5 million in leakage of tax collections on out-of-county sales statewide. Commissioners appointed Ed Hemingway and Jeffrey L. Mathis and reappointed Johnny R. Dilda to the county planning board and named 14 people — subject to the approval of the planning board — to serve on a road sign committee.

The road sign committee will, among other things, hold public hearings to receive input for the naming of roads in the county.

The effort is part of a project to place road name signs at intersections of all state-maintained roads in the county.

Suggested committee appointees include: County Planner Jeff Ulma; Jimmy Hinson, president of the county firemen's association; John Peterson, vice president of the firemen's group; firefighters Bruce Bland, Woody Wilson and Calvin Hardee; Tony Smart, president of the county rescue and EMS association; Dawson Page, vice president of the rescue group; Van Latham; Eugene James, a member of the board of commissioners; the county's Emergency Services Coordinator Bobby Joyner; Deputy Sheriff Ivan Harris; planning board member Lawrence Davenport, and Farmville Mayor Edna Earl Baker.

Commissioners also adopted a resolution asking the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission to create a "no wake" boat speed zone in the area of Hardee Creek and the Wildlife Resources Commission's Tar River access area at the old Port Terminal just east of Greenville.

County Manager Kramer Jackson told commissioners that the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. is expected to report this week on the exact cost of a countywide 911 emergency telephone system and when "they can get their equipment installed."

Bobby Joyner, coordinator of emergency services for the county, said the 911 study committee will meet after receiving the information from the telephone company.

"We've got to find out when they can implement the system," Joyner said. Carolina Telephone "has to replace its equipment," and the committee needs to find out the cost. "We're waiting for the phone company to give us the information."

Commissioners scheduled a workshop meeting for 10 a.m. Friday. The meeting will be at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Friday at Riverside Steak Bar in Greenville. A social hour will begin at 6 p.m. and dinner will be at 7 p.m. Dinner reservations should be made through the chemistry departments at ECU, 757-6711, or the University of

FUND RECIPIENTS — Two local programs have received financial assistance as a result of "CROP Walk" activities in the Greenville area that netted $8,650 for world hunger needs. The Rev. Sam Loy, local "CROP Walk" coordinator, said 25 percent of the money raised stays in the community. The Meals on Wheels program operated by the Pitt Council on Aging and the Greenville

Soup Kitchen had been selected to share local funding. Loy, left, presented $1,129 checks to Gloria Chestang, representing the Greenville Soup Kitchen, and to Jeff McAllister of the Council on Aging. Loy said 232 area citizens walked, collected sponsors and raised funds during the annual event that channels money through Church World Service. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Trailer Welding Rig Stolen

Greenville police said 10 thefts, including a trailer-mounted electric welding machine, were reported to the department Monday.

Officer C.G. Alphin said the welding machine, valued at $5,000, was taken from the parking lot of the Camelot Inn on Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 7:08 a.m., while Officer N.B. Rice said $50 worth of groceries were taken from 505 Darden Drive in a break-in reported at 3:07 a.m.

Officer T.A. Lee said a bicycle was taken from 102 St. Andrews Drive in an incident reported at 8:50 a.m., while Officer L.E. White said $910 worth of furniture, including a dresser, a chest, a bed headboard and footboard, a ceiling fan, three miniblinds and a stained-glass window, were taken from Calvary Mobile Homes on Greenville Boulevard in a break-in reported at 10:25 a.m.

Officer B.M. Highland said a hot tub valued at $410 was taken from Family Housing at 809 Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at

PEANUT TOURS — Sam Uzzell, Pitt extension agent, examines peanuts for maturity, one problem that will be addressed in Pitt County's peanut workshops scheduled for Wednesday. The workshops will include a tour of two peanut test plots. (Reflector Photo By Sam Uzzell)

Farm Scene

By SAM UZZELL
Pitt Extension Agent

Peanut farmers will have the opportunity to view two on-farm demonstrations Wednesday. An afternoon tour of the test plots will begin at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office at 1 p.m. The group will also observe a minimum cost of production demonstration at a field 3 miles west of Farmville. A look at the Pitt County variety test will follow.

The minimum cost of production demonstration will compare four production programs in terms of chemical inputs and cultural practices. In each program, the cost of the operation has been noted. The intent of the demonstration is to compare the peanuts that have been given treatments based on the needs of the crop as determined by scouting for diseases and insects rather than upon applications done on a calendar basis. Integrated pest management (IPM) relies upon the close, weekly observation of a given field to monitor pest populations and to choose the best means of control available.

The Pitt County peanut variety test is a comparison of seven varieties of peanuts. The growth habits, potential yield, maturity, disease resistance and other factors will be discussed. Each year, the variety test is a good learning experience for growers. One good bit of information that is generated each year is the method of determining maturity known as the "hull-scrape" method. This is a quicker way of determining the optimum digging date for the grower.

In addition, two hours of continuing recertification credits will be offered to pesticide license holders in the categories of dealer, agricultural pest plant and demonstration and research. For further information contact Sam Uzzell, Pitt Extension Agent, 752-2934, extension 374.

Guest Care At BCH

The Guest Care Program of Beaufort County Hospital in Washington, N.C., has been in operation for over a year and has been deemed successful, hospital officials say.

The program is designed to have people who need minimal medication supervision stay in a portion of the hospital on a temporary basis. Its purpose is to provide brief relief to family members or friends who care for individuals in their homes. It also benefits the hospital by utilizing available bed space.

The program provides general care and observation of guests, along with three meals a day and rooms. Nursing staff members supervise medication and handle routine blood pressure checks.

For information about the program, contact Sally Miller, 975-4379, Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:50 p.m.

Penny Hill History

Rejeanor Scott, librarian at Wellcome Middle School, presented a program recently about the history of the Penny Hill area to Monty Frizzell's North Carolina history class.

Penny Hill, an area located in the northwestern corner of Pitt County, was named for a "free woman of color" according to historical documents from that era, Mrs. Scott said.

Pictures were shown of the only standing, but vacant, public building that has been used as a post office and a doctor's office. The students also learned about transportation of goods on the Tar River and Penny Hill's history as a boat landing.

School Celebration

Bethel Elementary School celebrated the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution last week with a resource center for teachers. Lesson plans, visual aids, coloring pages and suggested activities were among things available.

Daily minilectures were presented over the intercom and elections for Student Council Association officers were held for grades four through eight. Classes also tuned in for "Teach In" day and President Ronald Reagan's recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance.

Students wore red, white and blue and participated in a ceremony on the front lawn and a birthday party was held during lunch. Sign-on sheets were available in every class to students wishing to sign their names to the Constitution.

Pactolus Elementary

Pactolus Elementary School students and staff commemorated the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution with special events and activities last week.

Fifth-grade students delivered Constitutional trivia and announcements each morning over the school intercom system. Everyone watched festivities in Washington, D.C., and joined President Ronald Reagan in saying the Pledge of Allegiance.

Other activities in the school included patriots' day when red, white and blue was worn, displays, speakers, a birthday party and several creative exercises centered on the Constitution.

Medical Session

Dr. Alan R. Nelson, chairman of the American Medical Association Board of Trustees, and Dr. Monroe Trout, president of one of the nation's alternative health care delivery systems, will be in Greenville Wednesday.

The doctors will be available to answer questions on medical issues at 10 a.m. at the East Carolina University School of Medicine's administrative conference room at the Brody Building.

Livestock Tour

The Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service will sponsor a tour of two livestock facilities Wednesday, including the bull testing unit at Butner and the Swine Development Center near Tarboro.

The group will leave from the Pitt County Office Building at 7 p.m. For further information call Phillip Rowan at 752-2934.

Four Men Arrested

Four people were arrested by Greenville police Monday in connection with theft cases — three of which were reported to the department on Monday.

Detective D.R. Best said Wesley Neal Bridgers, 26, of Ayden was charged with larceny by an employee in connection with the theft of a video cassette recorder from Bob's TV at 3205 S. Memorial Drive that was reported at 12:30 p.m.

Best said the VCR, valued at $329, was recovered from Bridgers' 606 S. Lee St. home.

Officer D.R. Wyrick said Carlton David Harris, 16, of 1922B Norcott Circle was charged with possession of stolen property about 12:30 p.m. after a motorized bicycle, reported taken from a parking lot at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche streets on Sunday, was found in his possession.

Officer B.M. Highland said Myers Parker Helms III, 22, of Rocky Mount was arrested on larceny charges in connection with the theft of a purse from the Sav-A-Center at Greenville Square Shopping Center about 2:08 p.m.

According to Officer K.M. Smeltzer, Anthony John Chase, 21, of Camp Lejeune was charged with larceny in connection with the theft of two pre-recorded video cassette tapes from the K-Mart store at Greenville Square Shopping Center about 9:05 p.m.

Health Forum

The impact of alternative health care delivery systems on physicians and hospitals will be addressed Wednesday in the annual Health Law Forum at the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

Now in its ninth year, the forum will provide a venue for debate among representatives from the American Medical Association, the North Carolina Medical Society, the North Carolina Hospital Association, private practice physicians and the nation's largest and most innovative alternative health care delivery groups.

The featured speaker at the forum luncheon will be Dr. Monroe Trout, head of American Healthcare Systems Inc., one of the largest alternative delivery systems in the country. Trout will deliver the H. Horton Rountree Distinguished Lecture in health law.

The forum sessions will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the auditorium of the Brody Medical Sciences Building. The luncheon will be held at 12:15 p.m. at the Greenville Country Club.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Two Approaches

Two instances of seeking the same education goals via two approaches showed up recently — one in North Carolina, the other in Georgia.

Gail Dionne is director of teacher recruitment for the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction and is preparing an ad campaign to lure students still undecided about career choices, to consider becoming teachers.

Ms. Dionne says the big pitch will be that not just anybody can be a teacher. "We're trying to get the public to see that if you can't be a teacher maybe you can be an engineer. It (teaching) is a great profession and it does have intrinsic as well as extrinsic rewards."

She does not believe North Carolina has seen a real teaching shortage yet. "Right now, the state has a teacher distribution problem, not a teacher shortage", she says. "The teacher shortage will begin when we start raising the requirements and start looking at that quality group. As requirements become more stringent we'll see less and less folks qualifying; but we're doing exactly what we said we were going to do: we're going to have quality teachers."

While North Carolina is moving in that direction the state of Georgia has taken its first giant steps.

Last weekend Georgia's School Superintendent Werner Rogers said 327 teachers employed by the state last year had lost their teaching certificates for failing to pass a new certification test. The Georgia Association of Educators says as many as 814 teachers are being prevented from working this year by the test.

United States Education Secretary William Bennett has been a strong advocate of making educators more accountable for student performance; and observed "In American education for the most part ... if you do a good job nothing happens to you or for you. If on the other hand you do a lousy job, nothing happens to you or for you." He was enthused by Georgia's actions.

Bennett's views and those of North Carolina are pointed in the same direction and differ mostly in words used in citing how those ends should be attained.

Vigorous Program

A trio of North Carolina legislators waxed enthusiastic over a training program for Tar Heel military reservists which not only improved their preparedness status but contributed to building friendship for the United States among people in a distant land.

Sens. Robert Shaw, R-Guilford, and Daniel Simpson, R-Burke, along Rep. Coy Privette, R-Cabarrus, witnessed blending of military training and people-to-people "diplomacy" in action.

The three were invited to observe work of troops in Ecuador and Honduras where servicemen are building roads to give access to outlying villages. In Honduras, medical teams visited villages. Leaflets were dropped announcing their trip and then helicopters with doctors, dentists and veterinarians would fly into the area, treating 1,200 to 1,400 people a day. When necessary they dug new wells and put new roofs on schools and church buildings.

Shaw said, "I don't think either side will ever forget it. It was a tremendous experience where the people really saw the American citizen."

Our country needs a vigorous program of making friends with people who are going to be around for a long time while their governments tend to frequent changes in leadership and policies.

Not Doing Well

The National Research Council tells us NASA's plans to construct a space station in orbit using the shuttle will be "difficult and risky". Too, the council suspects costs will run well beyond preliminary estimates.

No doubt about it, the assessment is probably closer to the truth than we like to think. The same might have been said about the not-so-long-ago years of shooting for the moon.

That venture included so many unknown factors that only a great and unprecedented enthusiasm for daring to face the unknown kept that program to put men on the moon from foundering in uncertainties.

Today we know more about disasters that might have happened along the way, and it's fair to say if we knew then what we know now, there might be no footprints or wheel tracks on the lunar surface.

These days we are distracted by an infinitely less complex need — to assure safety and the meeting of timetables for our airliners. We aren't doing too well in finding those answers.

Biden's Fall Renews Integrity Issue

'But the Biden situation has nonetheless called attention again to the press's role in the coverage politics ... and to the question how intrusive our examination of candidates should be.'

Joseph Biden's fall from grace over plagiarism has renewed the character-integrity-judgment issue that earlier occupied us in Gary Hart's fall over sex.

Biden's case differs in that, for good reason, it has not generated in the press the self-examination and self-defensiveness that grew out of Hart's. The explanation for this is that looking into plagiarism requires of journalists only their traditional information-gathering skills, not the voyeurism required for looking into bedroom windows.

But the Biden situation has nonetheless called attention again to the press's role in the coverage of politics — particularly presidential politics — and to the question of how intrusive our examination of candidates should be. Though we are no longer watching it on prime time, the debate continues inside press circles over the issues raised by Hart's "womanizing" and our coverage of it.

At bottom, the discussion has very little to do with either Gary Hart or The Miami Herald, the paper that broke the story, but rather with whether all of us, not just the press, wish to accept the "New Rules." These rules say, basically, that nothing can be private in the life of a person who seeks the nation's highest office. Put another way, the New Rules dictate that the public must know every last candidate's every last blemish, even if it dates from high school or college days, because the person who is going to have his or her finger on the nuclear button has to be remarkably stable and mature and not given to fudging the truth.

On paper, this certainly has the ring of soundness — but not of real life. We all know that in real life, some things, such as excessive drinking, affect stability, and that some things, such as fudging the truth about one's sexual conduct, may not.

The "Old Rules" — which were flawed, too — said that unless the press could demonstrate that the private life of a politician or government official had interfered with the performance of his public office, it was not a story. Sometimes we in the press used the Old Rules as an apron to hide behind — occasions when the public performance was clearly affected but we were uncomfortable with the prospect of writing about such personal matters as sex and alcoholism.

Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who served from 1939 to 1976, and Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., who served from 1941 to 1970, come to mind as powerful congressional figures whose heavy drinking clearly impaired their ability to function but went unreported for the longest time. And the sexual wanderings outside marriage of John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson were anything but a secret to a White House press corps that chose silence on these matters.

Was that all bad, that unease on the press's part with doing stories about conduct that had traditionally been deemed private? I would say, not necessarily.

Take the Gary Hart case. A lot of reporters, when asked if they would volunteer for an assignment to stake out the home of a public figure for the purpose of discovering marital infidelity, will tell you they would rather not do it themselves. However, if some other reporter does it and produces the story, it is valid journalism. That rings alarm bells for me. If journalists would rather not do it themselves, this means they feel something shabby, or at least alien, about it. Which in turn means that I do not think we are quite ready for the New Rules yet. We are going to first have to thrash out whether the feeling of shabbiness is appropriate and justified or whether it stems instead from some kind of unspoken gentleman's agreement or just plain timidity.

An argument has been made that the Old Rules evolved because the journalistic community over the years grew cozy with the political community it was covering — and not only cozy, but also protective because the journalists, predominantly male, came to identify with the pols' peccadilloes as shared experiences. Boys will be boys in the locker room.

There is a level of truth in this, but it does not automatically follow that in rejecting this old relationship we must then leap into the New Rules and begin surveillance on everyone's sex life. We might, with such a leap, give the public new insights into the lives of political wives, the smiling, cardboard roles expected of them, the mortifications some of them endure (or choose to endure). But we would lose much more than we would gain, for we could end up pandering to America's streak of prurience and preoccupation with sex.

For all of its imperfections, I remain comfortable with the standard my generation was trained by: You write about someone's sex life when you can establish by empiric evidence, not by inference, that it has impaired his or her public performance.

It is not an absolutist standard, just a sound guideline. From time to time, exceptions may occur — special circumstances that might compel us into print. Infidelity should not be on some sacred-cow list of subjects exempt from coverage.

Bush Sobered By Robertson Success

'Bush's campaign manager called Robertson's back-to-back victories in Iowa and Michigan "just a blip on the radar screen." But Bush sounded properly concerned ...'

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush, keeping a stiff vice presidential upper lip despite some sobering campaign news, was in Milwaukee, Omaha and goodness knows where else last week on a meal-by-meal fund-raising journey.

By Thursday in Little Rock, Ark., he seemed to be getting a little giddy.

Leaving the Pulaski County Courthouse, the vice president spotted a clump of potential voters. In the wink of an eye, Bush bounded over an orange-and-white police barricade, extended his mitts and started shaking hands, two at a time.

"Are you coming back to Razor-back country?" one woman shouted.

"Wooo-pig-sooie," Bush called back in his best hog-calling imitation. With that, he gave an exuberant thumbs up and his many-car motorcade headed for the airport. Next stop: dinner in Indianapolis.

The week began inauspiciously for Bush.

"First, the vice president, who has been leading the GOP field in presidential polls, had his clock cleaned in an Iowa GOP straw poll, finishing third — third! TV evangelist Pat Robertson got 33.6 percent of the 4,200 votes cast by people who paid $25 apiece to attend the Iowa GOP event. Sen. Bob Dole got 25 percent, and Bush 22 percent.

"Then, Dole's charismatic wife, Elizabeth Dole, stepped down from the Reagan Cabinet and said she'd commence to setting up shop for her husband in her native South.

"Next, Bush forces were rebuffed in an effort to boost their standing in Michigan, where Robertson and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York have been outmaneuvering Bush in the state which chooses the first delegates to the 1988 Republican nominating convention.

Robertson also has made strong showings in South Carolina and Florida

"I've won four out of four and if that isn't electable I don't know what is," he said in response to claims that even if nominated he could not win.

Bush's campaign manager, Lee Atwater, called Robertson's back-to-back victories in Iowa and Michigan "just a blip on the radar screen." But Bush sounded properly concerned as he took to the fund-raising trail.

In Omaha, the vice president told reporters, "We've got some work to do. The message to me is just work doubly hard. I think we'll do fine, but it's a good lesson."

The vice president — due to make his candidacy official next month — hasn't been doing a lot of factory-gate campaigning in 1987. Instead he often goes from fund-raising lunch to fund-raising dinner, rolling up a campaign war chest he puts at about $11.5 million.

Last week's campaign workload: Monday, Sept. 14, fund-raising luncheon in Milwaukee; fund-raising dinner in Cincinnati.

Tuesday, fund-raising buffet in Omaha.

Wednesday, "Ask George Bush" forum in Whitefield, N.H.; fund-raising dinner in Garrison, Md.

Thursday, fund-raising luncheon in Little Rock; fund-raising dinner in Indianapolis.

Friday, fund-raising dinner, Washington, D.C.

In Little Rock, about 120 people paid $500 each for seafood gumbo and veal, a meal Bush described as "very expensive but very wonderful."

Bush said he wasn't intimidated by Elizabeth Dole.

"They've been asking me how what about Liddy Dole, now that she's free to campaign," he said. "I say, look, I'll put Barbara Bush up against her or anybody else across this country for being a secret weapon."

"Nobody's going to out-hustle us. Nobody's going to do more in the precincts or across these states than I am. And we've got to go into the early states so that we come out respectably, and then move into Super Tuesday," Bush said.

That's the pro-Bush strategy. Here's an anti-Bush scenario:

Robertson beats him in Michigan, where the evangelist's followers have had stunning success in a state where moderate Republicans like Bush have dominated for years. Dole, the Kansas farm boy, beats him in Iowa. Somebody else — who knows, maybe Kemp — beats him in New Hampshire, where Bush stumbled in his 1980 effort to challenge Ronald Reagan.

The Republican race is thus thrown wide open, except Bush is branded a loser before all those millions of dollars can do him any good on Super Tuesday, March 8.

The other Republican candidates figure this as their road to the nomination, but Bush backers believe 1988 will be his year.

"I've been a believer in Bush since 1979," said Win Rockefeller of Petit Jean Mountain, Ark., son of the late Arkansas governor. "I think he's the best-qualified man in the race."

Strength For Today

Some years ago a young lady was given a very expensive tulip bulb. Unfortunately she allowed a year to go by before she planted it. The bulb sprouted and put forth a profusion of greenery, but did not bloom.

Its capacity to bloom had been destroyed when the bulb had been given a year's rest.

Sometimes we think that if we were perfectly free to use our time as we cared to we should be quite nappy, and that if we could have plenty of leisure we could have plenty of happiness. But this idea is a delusion. The life that becomes inactive ceases to bloom.

Our daily routine may seem boring, but it is our major source of happiness. Give every man and woman in the world a comfortable living without work, and the entire human race would be plunged into dire and abject unhappiness.

USAir-Piedmont Merger Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — USAir's proposed takeover of Piedmont Airlines should be rejected by the federal government because the merger would reduce competition and result in a decline in service in the communities the carriers serve, a key Department of Transportation official says.

"We conclude that the merger of these two carriers, which currently compete in a substantially overlapping, short-haul niche in the eastern United States, is not in the public interest," Administrative Law Judge Ronnie Yoder wrote in an opinion released Monday.

Yoder's recommendation, while not final, is expected to be an influential factor when DOT issues a final ruling, expected next month.

USAir and Winston-Salem-based Piedmont have until Oct. 5 to submit legal briefs protesting the recommendation, and DOT officials have said they expect to make a decision by Oct. 30.

Under federal law, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole has final authority for airline mergers as long as she remains in President Reagan's cabinet. Mrs. Dole, however, has said she intends to resign Oct. 1 to join the presidential campaign of her husband, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan.

The planned merger would create the country's seventh-largest airline. It was announced March 9 after USAir and Piedmont reached an agreement in which USAir would pay $69 per share for Piedmont stock. The announcement ended a six-week takeover battle for Piedmont involving USAir, Trans World Airlines and Norfolk Southern Corp.

The government hasn't rejected any of the 18 previous airline mergers — including two that have been reviewed and then recommended by administrative law judges — but it's unclear how the department will now handle the USAir-Piedmont case, a DOT official who asked not to be identified told the Charlotte Observer. Mrs. Dole couldn't be reached for comment.

USAir Chairman and President

Edwin Colodny reacted angrily to Yoder's opinion, calling it "incomprehensible."

"It would be a travesty if USAir and Piedmont were not allowed to merge after the DOT has approved far larger mergers that created some of the airline industry giants that are USAir's and Piedmont's major competitors," Colodny said.

"We are confident that, after a full review, the DOT will approve the acquisition," he said.

Yoder's announcement was made after stock markets had closed. In New York Stock Exchange trading, USAir shares closed at $45.50, down 62.5 cents. Piedmont finished at $66.75, down 87.5 cents.

'Tired' Jessica Hahn Goes Before Grand Jury

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — Jessica Hahn, star witness in the grand jury investigation of the PTL ministry, returned for a second day of testimony today about her sexual encounter with PTL founder Jim Bakker and the hush money she was paid. Miss Hahn said when she arrived at the federal courthouse that she didn't have a good night's sleep.

"I have a lot on my mind and I'm concentrating on the grand jury," she said. "That's the only reason I'm here and the only thing I'm thinking about."

The 28-year-old former church secretary from West Babylon, N.Y., testified for five hours Monday.

"I'm just really drained and really tired," Ms. Hahn said during a lunch break Monday. "I want it all to be over. I also want to cooperate."

The federal grand jury is investigating possible misconduct at PTL under Bakker, who resigned from the $172 million evangelical empire in March because of his 1980 tryst with Ms. Hahn in a Florida motel room.

Ms. Hahn has said she agreed to accept $265,000 to keep quiet but broke silence when Bakker disclosed the encounter. Her attorney, Dominic Barbara, said she received $20,300 before the payments stopped.

"She said when walking to the courthouse that it was like living this horror all over again. It was scary to relive it again," Barbara said Monday, adding that Ms. Hahn had been "very emotional" before her testimony.

Grand jury proceedings are secret, and prosecutors have refused to talk about their investigation.

Barbara said Ms. Hahn's testimony was expected to center on the financial settlement rather than the sexual encounter. Ms. Hahn has said she was drugged and forced into having sex.

The federal probe is said to focus on how the TV ministry raised and spent money.

Investigators reportedly are trying to find out whether PTL officials conspired to falsify records — including those involving the Hahn settlement — to protect the ministry's tax-exempt status.

They also reportedly want to know whether Bakker declared as income on his tax returns all money PTL paid on his behalf, including the payoffs for Hahn.

An interview and semi-nude pictures of Ms. Hahn are due out this week in Playboy in what she said Monday was an opportunity to "finally tell my side of the story."

MAKING A POINT — Jessica Hahn makes a point outside the Federal Building in Charlotte as she talks to news reporters. Her attorney, Dominic Barbara, is in the background. Sanford Encouraged In Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP) — After returning from a two-day visit to Central America, Sen. Terry Sanford says it appears that the Nicaraguan government intends to stick to a peace accord crafted by several countries in the region.

"I am encouraged that the Sandinista government has given every indication that they intend to comply completely with the peace agreement the Central American countries agreed on this summer," Sanford said Monday.

The North Carolina Democrat, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Central Americans "take a great deal of pride" that they negotiated the peace agreement on their own.

Under that accord, Nicaragua promised to undertake a number of democratic reform measures, including the reinstatement of press freedoms.

If the rest of the plan is carried out, including a cease-fire, restoration of civil liberties and amnesty and official recognition for the political opposition, "there will be an opening for true democracy in Nicaragua," Sanford said in a statement released by his office.

Allowing the newspaper La Prensa to resume publication is "a good step, but it is only a first step," he added.

"The Nicaraguan government certainly must realize they will be better off under the peace plan," Sanford said. "They surely realize that if they do not comply, their motives will be exposed, and their country will be isolated by European and other Central American countries that now support them."

Sanford went to the region last Friday with other members of the Senate's Central American Negotiations Observer Group.

Trucking Industry Has New Image

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The number of trucking companies registered in North Carolina has almost doubled since the trucking industry was deregulated in 1978, but several familiar company names have disappeared.

"Now you go out and see these names, and you don't know who they are or where they're from," said Wayne Riddle, the chief of the tariff bureau for the North Carolina Trucking Association.

Akers, Associated Transport, McLean, Spector Red Ball, Leeway and Mason Dixon are now gone. But where there were 2,500 trucking companies registered in North Carolina when the industry was more regulated, there are now 4,500.

While the heat has been turned up on smaller companies, the whole industry has reason to sweat. Operating margins for the nation's big three companies — Roadway Services Inc., Consolidated Freightways Inc. and Yellow Freight System Inc. — dropped in the first quarter of 1987, according to reports filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The top three companies last year spent 94.8 cents for every dollar's worth of business. That's a lot better than the 99.5 cents 30 other companies with Teamsters contracts spent, but not quite as good as the 92.7 cents spent by non-union carriers.

For the whole industry, the figure — known as an operating ratio — came in at 96.2.

Despite the influx of new carriers, analysts say the biggest carriers are shielded from new competitors by the cost of establishing a nationwide system of terminals able to break up and forward freight. The nation's top 10 truckers control 50 percent of the market, and their clout is expected to rise.

George Robertson, a trucking industry analyst with Alex. Brown & Sons in Baltimore, said that although the whole industry is suffering, medium-sized carriers — with annual revenues between $5 million and $30 million — may feel the most pressure.

"The middle ground is a tough place to be right now. You're on the fringe of everybody," he said.

Regional carriers will face increased competition in years ahead from big companies, with big pockets, that haven't yet bothered to pursue business carved out by intrastate trucking companies, analysts say.

McGovern, Schlafly Debate

RALEIGH (AP) — Conservative activist Phyllis Schlafly and former Sen. George McGovern don't agree on many things. But they both say they think the world of the U.S. Constitution, which grants the freedom of speech in its Bill of Rights.

The political odd couple drew about an equal number of cheers, boos and hisses at a debate Monday at Meredith College as they tangled over women's rights, the nomination of Robert Bork to the Supreme Court and diversion of profits from arms sales to Iran to finance the contras in Nicaragua.

McGovern, a Democrat from South Dakota, called the Iran-Contra affair a "brazen violation of constitutional responsibility" that is causing the United States to be viewed as a lawbreaker.

But Mrs. Schlafly, the president of a conservative organization called the Eagle Forum, said the issue was the result of media hype, and she chastized the media for not allowing President Reagan to put the situation behind him.

"When all is said and done, I think the congressional investigation shows that Ronald Reagan and Oliver North are on the side of truth and the national security of the United States," she said.

McGovern said the Iranian arms sale would cause long-lasting harm to U.S. foreign policy.

McGovern, who was the Democratic Party's nominee for president in 1972, said the Constitution "was drafted by perhaps the ablest group of statesmen ever assembled under one roof in the history of our nation."

Wake Leads State In Growth Levels

RALEIGH (AP) — Wake County has passed Mecklenburg County not only in percentage of urban growth in the past six years, but in the number of additional residents, figures show.

Michael D. Jennings, Wake's planning director, said the growth is even more than county statisticians had predicted. He said he was surprised that Wake surpassed Mecklenburg County in the number of additional people.

"The numbers are significant because they (Mecklenburg) have the larger base in which to absorb the population," Jennings said. "I think the actual numbers exceeded our expectations and we are going to have to do the same thing we are doing with the schools, and that is to re-evaluate the numbers we had projected."

Wake's population rose by an estimated 64,071 people, or 21.2 percent, from July 1, 1980 to July 1, 1986, according to the latest U.S. Census Bureau reports. Wake grew from a population of 301,429 in 1980 to an estimated 365,500 six years later.

During the same period Mecklenburg, the state's largest county, grew by 46,000 people or 11.5 percent from 404,270 people in 1980 to an estimated 450,800 in 1986.

Across North Carolina, population grew the most in the state's coastal counties, where Dare County grew the most percentage-wise, jumping by 40.2 percent in the six-year period. Brunswick County was second with a 32.6 percent hike from 35,777 to 47,500, and Carteret was third with a 23.8 percent increase.

Wake was fourth in percentage increases with its 21.2 percent hike. The state's other urban counties finished well back. After Mecklenburg with its 11.5 percent increase came Forsyth with a 6.7 percent hike, from 243,704 to 260,100; Guilford with a 3.5 percent increase from 317,154 to 328,100.

Avery Land Sold Again

NEWLAND, N.C. (AP) — A long-disputed 189-acre tract of land that sold for $53 per acre at a public auction three weeks ago was resold for more than $1,000 per acre in a second auction Monday.

A retired New Jersey farmer and developer who now lives in Florida bid $190,000 for the land that Avery County commissioners once wanted to turn into a landfill.

Julius Falcinelli of Longwood, Fla., said he has no immediate plans for the land, "but I don't intend to leave it idle."

Avery County commissioners paid

$200,000 for the land when they bought it in 1983 for a landfill, but adjacent landowners filed suit, charging the landfill would contaminate their water supplies.

In addition to the $200,000, the commissioners have spent another $190,000 on attorneys' fees, engineering studies and permit applications for the proposed landfill and the landfill the county has had to use in lieu of it, commissioner Troy Clark said Monday.

An insurance company has reimbursed the county for $10,175 of that amount, he said.

RJR Signs Food Pact

BOSTON (AP) — Fruits and vegetables that are more nutritious, tastier and last longer on store shelves are goals of a partnership launched by food and cigarette giant RJR Nabisco Inc. and BioTechnica International Inc. of Cambridge.

"We have the tools to modify genes within crops of major food interest," said Norman A. Jacobs, president of the biotechnology company. "The time is now to begin applying that technology."

The venture, announced Monday, is designed to produce new varieties of fruits and vegetables through genetic engineering. The food would be processed and sold through RJR Nabisco's Del Monte and Nabisco Brands divisions.

The two companies did not disclose their investment in the partnership, though Jacobs said RJR Nabisco would provide the bulk of the funding while his company would contribute mostly its research capabilities.

Jacobs said he could not discuss specific projects under consideration due to competitive reasons. But he said research committees from both companies already have started meeting to discuss proposals.

Blacks Again Post Sharp Gains Although SAT Scores Hold Steady

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Average Scholastic Aptitude Test scores showed little change in 1987 from a year ago, but black high school students continued a decade-long pattern of sharp gains, the College Board reported today.

Average verbal scores were 430, down a point from 1986, while average mathematics scores rose a point to 476, according to statistics in "College-Bound Seniors: 1987 Profile of SAT and Achievement Test Takers," published annually by the board since 1972.

National SAT averages, regarded by many as a barometer of the nation's educational health, have leveled out the last three years following slow but steady gains from 1981 to 1984.

The SAT is a two-part multiple choice college entrance examination with the verbal and math sections scored on a scale of 200 to 800. Nearly 1.1 million high school students took the exam in 1987, an increase of almost 80,000 from 1986.

Average composite scores on the rival ACT exam, the predominant college entrance test in 28 Midwestern and Western states, dipped 0.1 percent to 18.7 from the year earlier, on a scale of 1-35. National averages on the four-part exam, consisting of English, math, social studies and natural science sections, have changed little since the mid-1970s.

The ACT is administered by the American College Testing Program in Iowa City, Iowa, and was taken by approximately 777,000 graduating high school students in 1987.

Blacks continued gaining on both the SAT and ACT, a fact that testing officials attributed largely to improved high school preparation.

Blacks averaged 13.4 on the ACT in 1987, up from 13.0 in 1986, but still considerably lower than the 19.7 average among white students or the 19.8 average among Asian-Americans.

Likewise on the SAT, average verbal scores among blacks have improved 21 percent to 351 since 1977, and 20 percent on the math in the last decade to 377. But they still trail whites, who averaged 447 on the verbal section in 1987 and 489 on the math. No ethnic data were kept in 1986.

Despite those gains, the College Board's 1987 statistics, which for the first time included average scores according to family income, were likely to fuel the contention among standardized test critics that the exam may be biased in favor of the wealthy, the male and the white.

SAT scores rose consistently along with family income. Students with annual family incomes of less than $10,000 averaged 416 math and 364 verbal. Students with family incomes of $70,000 or more averaged 523 math, 471 verbal.

Males continued to outperform females, especially in math. Boys averaged 435 verbal and 500 math, while girls scored 425 verbal, and 453 math.

Among other results: — Students taking more high school math did better on both the math and verbal portions of the SAT. Some 56 percent of SAT test takers said they studied trigonometry, and they averaged 526 math, 461 verbal — both well above average.

— Students intending to major in education had the lowest averages, a combined 845. And almost eight out of 10 of those test-takers were female. The highest average, a combined 1083, was scored by those intending to major in physical sciences, and seven out of 10 test-takers in that category were male.

— Among other ethnic groups besides whites and blacks, American Indians averaged 393 verbal, 432 math; Asian-Americans 405 verbal, 521 math; Mexican-Americans 379 verbal, 424 math; Puerto Ricans 360 verbal, 400 math; other Hispanics 387 verbal, 432 math.

— Average scores on the 14 College Board-sponsored achievement tests, each scored on a scale of 200-800, rose four points in 1987 to 544.

— Iowa, where only 3 percent of high school students took the SAT, led the nation with a combined math-verbal average of 1089. South Carolina, where 49 percent took the test, had the lowest statewide average of a combined 832.

The College Board each year has discouraged state-by-state comparisons because of the wide disparity in the percentages of students taking the SAT. But many, notably the U.S. Department of Education, which publishes an annual "Wall Chart" of state-by-state educational statistics, have ignored the board's admonitions.

Execution

JACKSON, Ga. (AP) — Timothy W. McCorquodale smiled and gave a thumbs-up sign before he was put to death for raping and torturing a teen-age runaway and then killing her by breaking her neck with his bare hands.

The 35-year-old inmate, the fifth person executed in Georgia this year and the 12th since the state resumed executions in 1983, was led into the death chamber Monday evening by six guards.

The 270-pound McCorquodale gave a thumbs-up sign to his father and three family members, seated himself briskly in the chair and joked with the guards who strapped him in.

A minister offered a brief prayer, and when Warden Jack Kemp asked the 35-year-old inmate if he would like to make a final statement, McCorquodale replied:

"Yes, I would like to tell my dad and everybody with him, I love them very much. Stay strong in Christ."

He gulped when Kemp read the execution order but continued to smile as a guard connected wires to electrodes on his head and right leg and draped a mask over his face.

McCorquodale, who was white, was executed for murdering Donna Marie Dixon, a 17-year-old runaway from Newport News, Va., in 1974.

Stassen Entering Presidential Race

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Harold Stassen, the boy wonder of the Republican party 49 years ago who became the grand old loser of the GOP, is launching his eighth bid for the White House.

The 80-year-old Stassen, who waged only token campaigns his last few outings, said Monday he decided to enter the race because the other candidates are not discussing what he considers to be the important issues.

Presidential politics' perennial also-ran, a lawyer and former three-term Minnesota governor, made his first bid for the White House 40 years ago.

Stassen indicated he doesn't have a chance of winning, saying any delegates he may win "will not be tied or committed to me personally but will free at all times to individually or jointly have an impact on the final choice for the Republican nomination and the election."

"We will not attack personally any other candidates, but will endeavor to move all of them, of both parties, on the four issues in which we believe so deeply," he said in remarks prepared for delivery today.

Couple Weds In Lee Chapel

LEXINGTON, Va. — Tracey Lynette Holt and Jeffrey Allen Nelson were married Saturday at 3 p.m. in Lee Chapel at Washington and Lee University. The Revs. David Bain and Jerry Sherba conducted the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gene Holt of Buena Vista, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. James Nelson Sr. of Route 1, Bethel, N.C.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Debbie Darlington of Buena Vista, Va., and Catherine Nelson of Winterville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin with beaded alencon lace. Alencon lace and seed pearls accented the high collar, slender sleeves and sheer yoke bodice. The full satin skirt extended into a cathedral train with a lace border. She wore an alencon lace crown wreath attached to a chapel length veil accented with seed pearls. She carried a silk bouquet of gardenias, azaleas and stephanotis.

Tondi Lee Holt of Staunton, Va., was honor attendant and wore a sapphire blue satin gown. She carried a lace fan with an arrangement of silk sapphire blue and dusty rose flowers. Bridesmaids included Lesley Secrist of Lynchburg, Va., Debbie Kerley of Burlington, N.C., Beth Nelson of Greenville, Catherine Nelson of Winterville and Kathy Nelson of Bethel, sisters-in-law of the bridegroom, and Jacqui Ragland of Bethel, sister of the bridegroom.

They were dressed like the honor attendant and carried identical fans with blue and dusty rose flowers tied with matching ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers included Joey Nelson of Winterville, Jimmy Nelson Jr. of Greenville, Jordan Nelson of Bethel, all brothers of the bridegroom, Ronnie Ragland of Bethel, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Chris Packer of Lincolnton and George Tatsis of Charlotte.

The ceremony was directed by Janet Darlington. Rachael Flint of Buena Vista, Va., presided at the guest register.

The reception was held at the Alumni House at Washington and Lee University given by the bride's parents. Margaret Raynor of Kinston, N.C., served cake. Rice bags were distributed by Stephanie Ragland and Jennifer Ragland of Bethel.

The couple will live in Lincolnton after a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico.

The bride and bridegroom are vice presidents/city executives, State Employees Credit Union in Lincolnton and Shelby, respectively. She graduated from Parry McCluer High School and summa cum laude from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. He graduated from North Pitt High School and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Pre-wedding parties included a

MRS. NELSON

Hawaiian luau, a pig picking and bridal shower. The parents of the bridegroom entertained at an after-rehearsal dinner.

Fevered Tale Of Tanning Is Found To Be Half-Baked

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I just received a letter from my daughter, Kathy, who is attending school in Provo, Utah. She related the following story that I found so horrifying, I want to share it with you so that you can warn others: "A 17-year-old girl won a trip to Hawaii. She wanted a really nice tan for the trip, so last week she went to a tanning parlor. She'd never been to one before, so she asked how long was the maximum time she could stay in, and they said half an hour. Well, she wanted a really dark tan, fast, so she went to seven places and spent a half-hour in each — three and a half hours total!

"Well, this poor girl is now in Utah Valley Regional Medical Center. They estimate that she has about 26 days to live. She's totally blind, and they say it's as if she had 'microwaved' herself — it's basically the same principle. Anyhow, she just cooked herself from the inside out. And the worst part is, there's not a thing they can do for her. Not a thing! It's just tragic. Her poor family!"

Of course, the girl was foolish. But most of us do things that are foolish sometime in our lives, but we live to laugh about them. This girl will not. Please warn your readers, Abby. You may want to verify these facts in Provo. — ANITA HALLOCK, SPRINGFIELD, ORE.

DEAR ANITA: Thanks for writing. I wondered how "they" could estimate the number of days "this poor girl" had to live, so I called the Utah Valley Regional Medical Center in Provo and its spokesperson, Mr. Clark Cares, stated that there was no such patient in the facility, but that story had been circulating at the Brigham Young University.

Joann, secretary to the medical director, said that she had just returned from Pocatello, Idaho, where she had heard the same story. In checking with The Provo Daily Herald, Rene Nelson told my staff that they had also heard that rumor, but were unable to confirm it.

Well, friends, so much for the "tanning" story.

DEAR ABBY: I am flabbergasted at your answer to "The Boxer Rebellion"! I can't believe you'd approve a 14-year-old girl wearing men's underwear as an outer garment. Have you ever looked at a man's boxer shorts? I have dozens of them, by different manufacturers, and every one of them has an opening in the front big enough to stuff a grapefruit through! I sincerely believe that's half the trouble with our younger generation these days — parents not instilling in them a lot of the "old values," corny as that may sound. I'm with the parents on this one and believe the child will ultimately benefit from being taught to be feminine. Boxer shorts as an outer garment on a 14-year-old girl? Gross, in my book!

And in the same column you suggest not turning on a washer-dryer until one knows where the cat is. Takes me four or five hours to find my cat sometimes. Why not just carefully check the machine to make sure nothing is in it that doesn't belong there? Might save a dog, or a parakeet, or whatever. — WILLIAM W. GRIFFITH, SEVERNA PARK, MD.

School Board Tests Problem Solving

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the Pitt County Board of Education practiced problem-solving techniques as they relate to instructional programs during a workshop meeting Monday night.

The workshop was the first of three sessions to make board members aware of the importance of good teamwork, effective decision making and the implications of policy making, according to Superintendent Eddie West.

To begin the workshop, board members were given principles to govern instructional programs, which generally promoted high expectations, effective teaching, effective programs and an effective learning environment.

They then viewed a videotape designed specifically for the Pitt County schools, "A Tale of Two High Schools."

The tape outlined how one high school, Northern, was established in an affluent neighborhood and its Parent Teacher Organization had raised money for three computer labs in the school. However, the other high school, Southern, was located in a poorer neighborhood without much PTO cooperation. It wanted the school board to supply funds to match the resources Northern was receiving. There were five high schools in the school system.

The board split into two groups to simultaneously identify the facts and the issues. They also made policy recommendations and discussed the implications of the policies.

According to research, West said, an effective team must incorporate participation, influence between members, decision-making procedures, task and maintenance functions, group atmosphere, membership, feelings and the norms of the team.

The board will have its second workshop session today at 7:30 p.m. in the third-floor conference room of the Pitt County Office Building. Its third session will be Oct. 8.

ECU Will Expand Mendenhall Center

Construction is scheduled to begin next month on a $3.6 million expansion of the Mendenhall Student Center on the East Carolina University campus, a project that will add 31,000 square feet to the center's facilities.

Included in the expansion will be full-service dining facilities consisting of a 400-seat cafeteria, kitchen and preparation areas, storage and office space for food service personnel.

The entire main floor of the addition, plus part of the ground floor, will be used by dining services, according to Rudolph Alexander, assistant vice chancellor for student life and director of university unions and student activities.

Additional facilities on the ground floor will include the campus radio station, WZMB, the media board photo lab and a large party room to be used by student organizations for dances and other social activities, Alexander said.

The top floor will contain offices for the Student Government Association (SGA) and other student organizations plus additional meeting rooms.

Alexander said the principal meeting room on the top floor will be at least twice the size of the multipurpose room presently located in the center, and it will provide better facilities for Madrigal Dinners, Dinner Theatre productions and large banquets and meetings.

The expansion project has a 380-day completion schedule. "If everything moves reasonably well, according to the timetable, construction should be completed and the furnishings moved in in time to open the new area at the beginning of spring semester 1989," Alexander said. "In the beginning, it was known that additional facilities were needed. The need is far greater today."

the vessel from an unspecified distance using "night-vision devices."

"The helicopter crews were satisfied (the ship was dropping mines) and so reported to the commander of the Middle East Force," Hoffman continued. "It wasn't a snap judgment."

Rear Adm. Harold Bernsen, the commander of U.S. Navy forces in the Persian Gulf, then authorized an attack on the ship, the spokesman continued.

The Pentagon, in its initial statement on the confrontation, indicated only one of the American helicopters opened fire on the ship. But the sources said both of the choppers in the air at the time might have participated in the assault.

Marlin Fitzwater, the White House spokesman, said U.S. forces "took defensive action ... in accordance with existing rules of engagement" when the Iranian ship was discovered laying mines.

"We have previously communicated with the Iranian government the way in which we would respond to such provocative acts which present an immediate risk to United States ships and to all ships. United States forces acted in a defensive manner and in accordance with existing rules of engagement," Fitzwater said.

The incident was the closest the United States and Iran have come to combat since the United States began escorting re-flagged Kuwaiti tankers in the gulf in July. A Navy F-14 Tomcat fighter fired two missiles Aug. 8 at an Iranian jet that was judged to be making a "hostile" approach on another plane, but neither missile struck its target.

Hoffman said the incident was "very near" an anchorage off Bahrain which is used by U.S. ships.

"Planting mines in international waters far from Iran is a violation of international law and an indiscriminate, unjustifiable threat to the shipping of all nations," Hoffman said. "It was clearly hostile intent."

Said Baumann: "They probably thought they could get away with it because of darkness, but we were able to detect them."

U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf were granted liberalized authority to protect themselves following the May 17 attack on the USS Stark. An Iraqi jet, in what Iraq has said was a case of mistaken identity, opened fire on the Stark in the central gulf, killing 37 sailors.

Following that incident, the Pentagon authorized U.S. forces to open fire on any ship or plane that approached close enough to attack or otherwise showed evidence of "hostile intent."

Not All The Jets Willing After Thumping Patriots

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — If the New York Jets are an accurate measure of the solidarity of NFL players concerning a strike, the walkout may be in trouble as it begins.

The second strike to hit the NFL in five years started after the Jets routed the New England Patriots 43-24 Monday night. Several Jets, including defensive end Mark Gastineau and safety Harry Hamilton, said they would not honor the strike.

Jets captain Freeman McNeil, who has indicated he, too, would not strike, said "It would be inappropriate for me to say what I'm going to do now." But he added he would state his case after the players hold a meeting today.

"I spoke to Gene Upshaw," Hamilton said of the NFL Players Association executive director. "I told him I was opposed to a number of union decisions and I would not support the strike."

Hamilton did not say he would play during a strike, but would help train replacements.

Gastineau, who comes off the worst season of his career, would play.

"Right now, I feel like I've put a lot of work in in the off-season," Gastineau said. "To give up on it now is against my judgment. I want to play, that's why I reported to camp."

"I'm not in favor of everything the union wants. Mr. Hess (owner of the Jets) has been very fair to me. I feel like playing ball.

"I don't think it will split the team. Everybody has got to respect each other's opinion. I hope nobody feels bad about what I do. I don't feel bad about them. I'm standing up for what I feel."

The owners claim they will stage games, using free agents, during the strike.

None of the Jets were thrilled with the idea that their 2-0 start might be entrusted to free agents.

"They'd better win if they play," tight end Mickey Shuler said. "I don't think many will come in."

"It will be especially hard for the coaches. I don't think they really want to do it."

Johnny Hector, who scored on runs of five and nine yards in a 21-point third quarter that blew open a close game, joked that the playoff race already was decided.

"We're 2-0, so are the Raiders," he said. "I guess we can play them."

The Minnesota Vikings and Chicago Bears are 2-0 in the NFC and probably are thinking the same way.

The Jets certainly looked like a playoff team Monday night. Their defense was dominant in the first three quarters, allowing the Patriots just 57 total yards and sacking Tony Eason five times.

"I was particularly pleased with the defense," Jets Coach Joe Walton said. "They're playing with a lot of young people and we got some sacks early and it's going to hold us in good stead in the future."

The Jets' also had an offensive explosion in the second half with 37 points. The big play was a 58-yard touchdown pass from Ken O'Brien to Al Toon that immediately followed a pair of sacks of O'Brien.

Toon outjumped Raymond Clayborn for the ball at the New England 35, broke Clayborn's tackle and sped into the end zone, giving the Jets a 13-3 lead.

"In the second half, we decided to go out and take what we wanted," said O'Brien, who hit 19 of 26 passes for 313 yards. "This team can make the big plays. You just have to put the ball out there and these guys will come down with it, like Al did."

"I thought I had an interception," Clayborn said. "I had pretty good coverage. I went up against a good receiver. He got the ball and, from then on, it was downhill for us."

The Jets converted a Tony Collins fumble into Hector's first touchdown and also were helped by a 60-yard kickoff return by JoJo Townsell after Andre Tippett had gone 32 yards for a score with a Roger Vick fumble.

That was one of the few rumblings by the Patriots while the game was

Strike Solidarity Showing Cracks

NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL strike, which came as no surprise and could be at the mercy of a mystery man, showed cracks in union solidarity shortly after it started.

The walkout, the second in six seasons, was announced Monday night by union head Gene Upshaw during halftime of the New England Patriots-New York Jets game. It began officially at 12:29 a.m. EDT, when the last player walked off the field at East Rutherford, N.J.

While emptying the lockers of 1,400 NFL regulars, the strike will bring an influx of free agents and castoffs, who are supposed to pick up play in two weeks. Although this week's games have not been officially canceled, they will be unless there's some instant settlement.

Upshaw held out some hope of that when he said the union had "initiated a move to a person with some authority" — a person he would identify only as "someone I hope can get the process going so we can resolve this."

"The players want to get this thing solved, and we're going to find someone out there that wants the same thing," he said.

Speculation centered on Commissioner Pete Rozelle and Dan Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Steelers. Rooney is credited with ending the 57-day strike that wiped out seven weeks of a 16-week season in 1982.

But Rozelle said earlier Monday the two sides were too far apart for him to do any good. "He might be right about that," Upshaw said.

And Upshaw said it wasn't Rooney.

"We're on a course where we want to reach an agreement and I've already talked to people on the other side," Upshaw said. "Hopefully, tomorrow we'll begin the process."

"The ball is in Gene's court," said Jim Conway, assistant executive director of the Management Council.

Union solidarity, however, quickly showed it wasn't that solid.

Immediately after the Jets' 43-24 victory, Mark Gastineau said he would not honor the strike and teammate Harry Hamilton said he would cross a picket line, although he wasn't sure he would play.

One unidentified member of the St. Louis Cardinals voted against a walkout, the only one on the team to do so.

"I'm not sure whether he is going to cross or not," said Joe Bostic, St. Louis' player representative.

The San Francisco 49ers are due to vote today, and haven't been entirely solid in the pre-strike period. Upshaw made a special trip to talk to them last week after quarterback Joe Montana said he was considering playing.

And while the Chicago Bears voted unanimously to strike, several players said they were not happy with the major issue, free agency. That group included assistant player rep, Dave Duerson.

Other players also had reservations about walking.

"Free agency was our first goal. I don't know anything about it," said Nate Newton of the Dallas Cowboys. "I just have to go with the union."

In fighting for free agency, the union demands that any player with more than four years' experience be free to choose his team; the owners insist on keeping some compensation for teams losing free agents, a system that has seen only one player out of an estimated 2,000 eligible change teams in a decade.

The 1982 strike was over money. Since then, the average player salary has risen from $90,000 to $230,000 a year.

But Upshaw said Monday: "Free agency cannot be summed up in terms of dollars. It's not about money, it's about dignity and freedom. It's about who you work for."

Bargaining began April 20 and 19 bargaining sessions were held between then and Aug. 31, when the contract officially expired. But none of those took place after Aug. 14.

There were two sessions in early September and each side made a second proposal, immediately rejected by the other.

The last talks occurred Friday, when Upshaw met for three hours with Jack Donlan, the executive director of the NFL Management Council. Donlan said he offered concessions on pension and roster size; Upshaw said he never got specific and wouldn't budge on free agency.

With that, the strike became inevitable.

Top Four Hold Fast In Top 20

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

Oklahoma, Nebraska, Auburn and LSU — the first three idle last weekend — held onto the top four spots in The Associated Press college football poll Monday while Miami and Florida State inched ahead of Ohio State, which slipped from fifth place to seventh.

Michigan State and Pitt fell out of the Top Twenty after two-week stays while Texas A&M and Iowa moved back into the rankings for the first time since the preseason poll.

Oklahoma, which returns to action on Saturday at Tulsa, received 53 of 60 first-place votes and 1,193 of a possible 1,200 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Nebraska, which visits 12th-ranked Arizona State on Saturday, received the other seven first-place votes and 1,129 points.

Auburn, with a road game against Tennessee coming up, received 1,028 points. All three teams have 2-0 records.

LSU, 3-0 following a 49-16 victory over Rice, remained No. 4 with 995 points.

Miami has been idle for two weeks — the Hurricanes meet 10th-ranked Arkansas in Little Rock on Saturday — but jumped from sixth place to fifth with 888 points. Florida State, a 41-24 winner over Memphis State, climbed from seventh to sixth with 869 points.

Ohio State's shaky 24-14 triumph over Oregon cost the Buckeyes two spots in the rankings, dropping them from fifth to seventh with 867 points. Ohio State visits LSU on Saturday.

Notre Dame's impressive 31-8 rout of Michigan State lifted the Fighting Irish from ninth to eighth with 788 points, while Clemson, which needed a last-second field goal to nip Georgia 21-20, slipped from eighth to ninth with 777 points.

Arkansas' 30-15 victory over Tulsa boosted the Razorbacks from 12th to 10th with 643 points.

The Top Twenty teams in the Associated Press college football poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, record through games of Sept. 19, total points based on 20-19-18-17-16-15-14-13-12-11-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 and last week's ranking:

Mistakes Costly For Pirates

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

But for a few mistakes, East Carolina football coach Art Baker thinks the Pirates could have beaten Illinois in their game last Saturday.

Instead, the Fighting Illini took advantage of a couple of those mistakes to post 10 points on the scoreboard and take a 20-10 victory.

"After looking at the films of their games against North Carolina and Arizona State, I thought (Illinois) played its best game Saturday. And in talking with their coaches, they thought they outplayed Arizona State and should have won that game," Baker said.

"I thought that our players played hard. They made a great effort for four quarters. In fact it was one of the hardest and best efforts the team has made," the coach continued.

But the Pirates turned the ball over three times, twice on fumbles and once on an interception, and Illinois was able to take advantage of two of those turnovers to score on their own. Another turnover stalled a Pirate drive that Baker felt could have turned into a touchdown or a field goal.

"Our defense played extra good. They thought that they could use their size advantage and come after us and they did. But we handled it well and spread them out and they were not able to sustain any drives."

Baker said two individual efforts on pass coverage ended up hurting the Pirates. "We just didn't play the ball well and they had long completions that set up their scores," the coach said. Another time, a pass interference call on Ed Brodgen hurt the Pirates, and Baker said that he thought at the time it was simply a great defensive play. "Nothing I've seen on film has changed that opinion," he said.

Baker singled out several players for their outstanding efforts in the game. He said Vinson Smith (ILB) had 15 tackles, one for a loss, grading 85 percent; Medrick Rainbow (NG) had 10 tackles, one for a loss, and one quarterback sack, grading 86 percent; Bubba Waters (ILB) had 13 tackles and an interception, grading 81 percent; Walter Bryant (OLB) had five tackles, one for a loss, grading 85 percent; and John Williamson (OLB) graded 85 percent. "Both Brodgen and (Ellis) Dillahunt had good games in the secondary."

Baker said the defense is playing better this year because of the improved play in the secondary and also because of the way the players have adapted to the new 5-2 scheme in the defense.

Offensively, Baker felt the Pirates improved from their performance against Florida State, but still had too many turnovers, coming at crucial times.

"We are trying to emphasize to (quarterback) Travis (Hunter) how to hold the ball. When he fumbled Saturday, he was scrambling and trying hard for that extra yard. He made a great effort, but we have to get him to try and carry the ball closer to his body," Baker said.

The coach was impressed by the fact that the Pirates twice drove 90-plus yards for scores. "This is a very positive thing for us," he said, "especially when we came back and drove 90 yards after they scored their first touchdown."

And Baker also felt the passing game showed improvement despite the statistics. (The Pirates were 7 of 19 for 57 yards with one interception.) "We just need better execution," the coach said. "Three times we had people open deep. Once, we never got the ball off, the second time, it was just off Reggie McKinney's fingers, and he was wide open, and the other time, Travis just overthrew his man."

Baker said pass blocking also needed to show improvement. The Pirates suffered three sacks against the Illini.

"After looking at the films, we thought there were seven or eight plays on which we could have won the ball game (offensively) but we had one individual miss his assignment and it cost us the play," he said.

Baker said that fullback Anthony Simpson played a great game. "He got a lot of yards after being hit," Baker said. Billy Michel (LG) also drew Baker's praise for his line play. "He was in on 52 plays and graded 77 percent with eight knockdowns. On one option play, he knocked down two people at one time."

The coach also liked the way McKinney and Jarrod Moody played at slot, but noted that the latter suffered a bruised thigh and is questionable for this weekend's game with Georgia Southern.

"We're still not getting the ball into the hands of McKinney enough," Baker said. While he would not go into details, he said that other options, such as using some I formation plays with McKinney at tailback, could be one way to do it.

"Travis improved with his passing game, but he still has a ways to go," Baker said. "We have to get our passing game into the area of 150 to 200 yards a game to be effective."

For the most part, Baker was pleased with the kicking game, noting that punter Craig Losito had his best game for the Pirates, averaging over 44 yards a kick, including one of 67 yards. "Roswell Streeter also made an outstanding tackle on the same punt, holding them to no yards on the return."

With Moody the only questionable starter for this week, the Pirates look to get fullback George Franklin and defensive back Ernie Logan back this week.

"The players left the field thinking that they should have won the game," Baker said. "I don't think that they will have any problem getting up for Georgia Southern."

The Pirates play the defending Division I-AA champions Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

ECU's Moye Leads

GREENSBORO — East Carolina freshman Simon Moye shot an opening-round 71 to finish in a tie for first with six others at the Cardinal Intercollegiate Golf Tournament Monday.

Moye, a Greenville Rose product, led all ECU qualifiers. Other ECU scores were Chris Winkel and John Lynch with 77s and Mark Hidlay and Mike Nadeaw with 78s.

Virginia leads the event with a 290 total. The Cavaliers are followed by Virginia Tech 293, Tennessee 293, Wake Forest and Duke 294, Georgia Tech 301, Virginia Commonwealth 302, East Carolina 303, North Carolina 304, Guilford 305, East Tennessee 307, Elon 308, Richmond and Campbell 309, Maryland 310, UNC-Wilmington 315, William and Mary 319, Guilford B 337.

The tournament concludes today.

GCA Takes Win

TARBORO — Greenville Christian Academy took a 9-15, 15-12, 15-10 win over Tarboro-Edgecombe Academy in high school volleyball action Monday.

The leading hitter for GCA was Amber Tripp. The leading setter was Laurie Vernelson while Missy Baggett led in spikes. Christie Hardison had 17 service points to aid the GCA cause.

GCA improves to 3-3 and returns to action today at Bethel Christian Academy.

Blue Wins Contest

Ann C. Blue of 203 Crestwood Dr., Farmville, is the winner of last week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Blue correctly picked the winners in 26 of the 31 games listed in last week's contest pages.

Second place went to Michael Smith of 108 Bryan Circle, Greenville. He correctly picked 25 games. His victory came on the basis of his point total guess. He had a guess of 69 while 70 points were actually scored in Oregon State's 36-34 win over San Jose State.

Five other people also had 25 games right, but were further off the point totals. They were: Billy Harrison of Rt. 2, Box 164, Walstonburg (82); Pat Emerson of 206 Cheryl Circle, Greenville (68); Eddie Rhodes, 115-B Stencil Dr., Greenville (82); Rick Langston, P.O. Box 2942, Greenville (72); and Steve Camp, 102 David Dr., F-29, Greenville (81).

The South Carolina-Miami, Fla., game was moved from Saturday to later in the season after the schedules were printed and thus was not counted in the contest. The tie between Louisville and Purdue was counted as a wrong selection unless "tie" was entered on the contest blank.

The next of the weekly contests appears elsewhere in today's edition of The Daily Reflector.

Heels Honored

GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina quarterback Mark Maye and wide receiver Randy Marriott, who teamed for three touchdowns in the Tar Heels' victory over Georgia Tech, have been named Atlantic Coast Conference offensive football players of the week, the league office said Monday.

In the come-from-behind 30-23 victory over the Yellow Jackets last Saturday, both Maye, a 6-foot-4, 200-pound senior from Charlotte, and Marriott, a 6-0, 175-pound junior from Wendell, turned in record-setting performances.

Maye completed 23 of 38 passes for four touchdowns and 406 yards, breaking his own single-game mark of 319 yards set a year ago against Duke.

Marriott's 247 yards in receptions broke Bob Lacey's 1953 school mark of 158 yards and was the third best single-game effort in conference history.

The selections were made by a special committee of the Atlantic Coast Conference Sports Writers Association.

Fenner Hearing

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — Derrick Fenner, the former University of North Carolina running back, pleaded innocent to murder charges at a hearing in Prince George's County Circuit Court on Monday.

The hearing was continued to Oct. 8, with a trial date set for Oct. 26. Fenner, 20, has been charged in what authorities say was a drug-related shooting in Hyattsville, Md.

GCC Tourney

Bill Mitchum and Chip Casey won the low gross at the Greenville Country Club Member-Member Tournament Saturday.

Kelly Barnhill and Vance Taylor were the low net overall winners in winning the C flight.

In flight A, the winners were David Nichols and Ed Atkinson. Second place went to Russell Eaves and Tommy Little.

The flight B winners were Dennis Harrington and Bob Dail. Van Harrington and John Moore took second. In flight C, the runners-up were Charles Young and Charles Ellis.

In flight D, Max Winter and Edwin Clark were top finishers. Jay Smith and Robert Young finished second.

In an earlier event, the team of Maryann Barnhill, Kathy McCoy, Vertie King and Harriett Wooten took top honors in Ladies Day Captains' Choice Tournament held on Sept. 18.

Bell Bests O's Boddicker

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

Despite a solid career with the Toronto Blue Jays, George Bell has had a tough run against Baltimore right-hander Mike Boddicker.

But Monday night, Bell finally started to catch up with him.

With only two hits in 35 previous at-bats against the Orioles' pitcher, Bell went 3-for-4 against Boddicker, including the game-winning single in the ninth for a 2-1 Toronto victory.

"He's a great pitcher," Bell said after knocking in his 129th run of the season. "I was a little lucky. He's the only pitcher who gives me trouble."

The victory boosted the Blue Jays into first place in the American League East by one half-game over the Detroit Tigers, who lost 9-4 at Boston.

Before Bell's hit in the ninth,

Lloyd Moseby led off with a double and moved to third on a sacrifice bunt by Tony Fernandez.

Boddicker, 10-10, bothered by muscle spasms in his back throughout the game, was replaced after Bell delivered and dealt the host Orioles their 18th loss in 21 games.

The winner was John Cerutti, 11-4, the fourth Blue Jay pitcher who retired Fred Lynn with the bases loaded in the eighth inning. Tom Henke finished up for his American League-leading 33rd save as five Toronto pitchers combined on a three-hitter.

Red Sox 9, Tigers 4

Mike Greenwell triggered a four-run second inning with a leadoff homer and hit a sacrifice fly in a two-run fourth, leading Boston over Detroit at Fenway Park.

Boston's Al Nipper, 10-11, allowed eight hits over 7 2/3 innings. He gave up solo homers to Alan Trammell in the fourth and Tom Brookens in the seventh before exiting during a Tiger rally in the eighth. Trammell's 27th homer was Detroit's 210th of the year, a club record.

Indians 6, Athletics 3

Brook Jacoby snapped a tie with a leadoff homer in the seventh inning and Cleveland went on to beat visiting Oakland and deny Dave Stewart in his third attempt to become the major league's first 20-game winner.

Jacoby broke a 3-3 tie when he hit his 31st home run on a 1-1 pitch from Stewart, 19-12, who has lost his last three starts. Cleveland's victory broke a four-game losing streak while Oakland had a three-game winning streak snapped.

Mariners 5, Royals 1

Rookie Mike Campbell pitched a seven-hitter for his first major-league victory and Donell Nixon homered and drove in two runs as host Seattle beat Kansas City.

Campbell, 1-4, who failed to win in seven previous attempts, allowed the only Kansas City run on a leadoff homer in the ninth by Kevin Seitzer, his 15th. The right-hander struck out three and walked one.

White Sox 5, Angels 3

Jose DeLeon pitched six-hit ball for seven innings and Carlton Fisk homered and knocked in two runs as Chicago beat California at Anaheim.

DeLeon, 11-12, didn't walk a batter and struck out seven before needing relief help. Bobby Thigpen, the fourth Chicago pitcher, finished up for his 13th save. The victory was DeLeon's sixth in his last seven decisions.

Coleman, Green Power Cards

By BILL BARNARD

AP Sports Writer

With slugger Jack Clark out of the lineup with a sprained ankle, the St. Louis Cardinals have to rely on unexpected sources for their power.

And no sources could be more unexpected than Vince Coleman and David Green.

Coleman, who through Saturday had one inside-the-park homer and one hit over the fence in his three-year career in the major leagues, homered for the second straight game as the Cardinals defeated visiting Philadelphia 3-1 Monday night.

Green also homered for the Cardinals in the fifth inning, when they got all of their three hits in the game. Green's last previous major-league homer came on Aug. 17, 1985.

"He's smokin' the ball," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said of Coleman's sudden power surge. "I'm surprised they didn't check his bat for cork."

The victory kept the Cardinals 2 1/2 games ahead of the New York Mets and pushed them four in front of Montreal in the National League East race.

Mets 7, Cubs 1

New York kept pace with the Cardinals as Howard Johnson broke a 1-1 tie against host Chicago with an eighth-inning grand slam that gave him the NL record for homers by a switch hitter.

Darryl Strawberry singled off Cubs starter Les Lancaster, 7-2, with two outs in the eighth and stole his 30th base, joining Johnson in the 30 homer-30 steal club.

Pirates 5, Expos 2

Pittsburgh continued to make life miserable for NL East contenders as Doug Drabek and Jeff Robinson combined for a five-hitter against Montreal at Olympic Stadium.

The Pirates won for the 12th time in 15 games, including five of eight against the top contenders in the division.

Dodgers 4, Giants 2

Danny Heep, who had two hits in his 28 previous pinch-hitting chances, doubled home two runs with two outs in the ninth inning, giving Los Angeles the victory over first-place San Francisco.

Bob Welch, 13-9, allowed three hits, including a two-run homer by Mike Aldrete.

Lewis Offers Tyson Big Purse

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Boxing promoter Butch Lewis has offered heavyweight champion Mike Tyson $10 million to fight Michael Spinks on or before May, 1988.

"We hope to embarrass them (Tyson) into the ring," Lewis told The Associated Press, adding that this was the first official offer. "We've been bantering back and forth but never made one officially until now."

The promoter, bedecked with a gold necklace, bracelets and rings, had made an announcement earlier on Fox Broadcasting's "The Late Show" which aired at 11 p.m. (EDT) Monday.

"They (Tyson's camp) are perpetrating a fraud to the public," Lewis said. "I want to hear his excuse now. I want the Tyson camp now to explain away the $10 million now on table and they continue to go around trying to find (a matchup against) Carlos de Leon. It's a joke."

"Right now I'm here ... (to) let everybody know we want Tyson," Lewis, clad in a light gray suit with no shirt and a pink bow tie, said on the show.

Spinks, a guest on the show, said he's ready for a showdown with Tyson.

"I think Mike's one heck of a boxer. I'm the one waiting."

Spinks defeated Larry Holmes to become the International Boxing Federation champion, but was stripped of his crown when he failed to finish the unification series that eventually led to Tyson winning the undisputed heavyweight title.

Spinks also commented that Tyson "looked sad" during a coronation ceremony in Las Vegas, Nev., where he was declared champion.

"He looked very unhappy ... (with the) fur around the crown hanging down. It looked tacky to me," Spinks said.

A "substantial offer" has come in from Donald Trump to hold the event at his Trump Casino in Atlantic City, N.J., where there is a facility with a seating capacity of 20,000, Lewis said.

Lewis added that Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, Nev., "is prepared to build a 35,000 arena."

Drug Problems

LONDON (AP) — Anti-drug rules can be circumvented to ensure that top competitors appear at certain track meets and avoid being tested, according to world mile record-holder Steve Cram of Britain.

Cram made his claim in an interview with the British Broadcasting Corp. on Monday, just two days after British Sports Minister Colin Moynihan said he had evidence of similar deals.

Officials of Britain's track and field governing body denied that such deals had been made at meets in this country.

The 1983 world champion at 1,500 meters, Cram said the rules would be bent because promoters of non-championship meets are under pressure to get the top athletes.

DUNKEL INDEX COLLEGE FOOTBALL

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

FOCUS

Cheap Talk

Congress recently began another session of what some fear will be mainly talk, talk, and more talk about the issues at hand. In 1953, one big talker, Senator Wayne Morse, filibustered non-stop for 22 hours and 26 minutes. A year later, Senator Strom Thurmond spoke against a civil rights bill for more than 24 hours, only to be interrupted by the swearing-in of a new Senator. And state Senator Bill Meier once tortured the Texas legislature with a 43-hour filibuster.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the number of the Congress now in session?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — The Pope was born in Poland.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Sept. 23

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You may have some difficulty seeing what lies ahead this morning, but things will clear up later on. Maintain an agreeable and understanding attitude, and you will have success in romance.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): An uncomfortable situation may arise with an associate, but maintain your poise. Be enthusiastic about some public activities.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Your work may seem difficult this morning, but it's all in your head. Don't let a co-worker bother you. A smile can work wonders today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A good friend has a fine suggestion for an amusement you can both enjoy. A creative idea may seem flawed, but keep at it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Don't let a family friend upset you. Bend with the wind instead. Make sure your home is in fine shape for entertaining.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Find an associate you can rely on to back you up on a new plan. Don't be subtle when talking with others, be direct and confident.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Discuss your finances with an expert, as you're overlooking a very lucrative opportunity. Take it easy and rest up tonight.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): You may have trouble making decisions this morning. Meet with some favorite friends tonight and have a wonderful time together.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Your mate can be very affectionate today and tonight, and will help you forget about that private worry. Don't be confused by this.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Decide exactly what you want to achieve today, then work toward that goal. Enjoy a forgotten hobby with an old friend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): You may be apprehensive about approaching a superior for a favor, but be warm and courteous and you'll easily get your wishes.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): You'll need assistance from friends in order to take a trip you've been planning. A pal's suggestions may sound absurd, but think them over.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Before starting an argument over a disputed bill, be sure you're armed with the facts. Show more affection for your mate.

Winning tricks is not an unmixed blessing. If you can cash enough tricks to make or beat a contract, that is fine. But declarer can put losing a trick to good use if he can make the enemy take it at his convenience, not theirs.

South's decision to accept his partner's game invitation was questionable. He could not be sure the fifth heart would be all that crucial, and he should have downgraded his spade holding. However, he justified his optimism with some good play.

West led a spade to his partner's ace. East shifted to the king of clubs and, when that was allowed to hold, continued with the queen. Declarer took his ace of clubs and successfully ran the queen of diamonds.

While a successful trump finesse would have guaranteed the contract, declarer decided he had a better line. He cashed the king of spades and ace of trumps, in case the king was singleton, then ruffed his remaining club (West chose to discard a spade, but that did not affect the play.) With the groundwork for an end play completed, declarer exited a with trump. If East turned up with the king, declarer intended finessing the nine on the diamond return. As it was, West was on lead and he had a choice of losing options. A diamond would run round to declarer's jack, and a spade would allow declarer to ruff in dummy and discard a diamond from hand. Either way the rest of the tricks were in the bag.

Donahue Honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Phil Donahue, Soviet journalist Vladimir Pozner and an organization that raises money for humanitarian aid for Nicaragua were among those honored by a group founded by cable TV pioneer Ted Turner's Better World Society.

In announcing the awards Monday, Turner told a news conference, "We're joined by some individuals who are making determined, effective efforts to nurture our planet, and to make the lives of its people more hopeful and secure."

Turner formed the organization in 1985 to address such issues as overpopulation, environmental concerns and the nuclear arms race.

Donahue and Pozner were honored by the society for two television programs that allowed viewers, in the United States and the Soviet Union to communicate directly via satellite.

Also honored was the Washington-based Quest for Peace organization, formed in 1985 to raise money, goods and services for humanitarian aid to the people of Nicaragua and to counter Reagan administration assistance to the Contra rebels.

Gift Horse

RED BOILING SPRINGS, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Randy Travis, whose second album just went platinum, has been rewarded by Warner Bros. Records with a 2-year-old quarterhorse named "Platinum."

"You're giving me this horse?" the surprised singer asked after receiving the muscular black animal during a party here Sunday. "Man, is he a pretty thing."

The horse was a gift to mark sales of more than 1 million copies of Travis' second LP, "Always and Forever."

"In the last two years, you have sold well over 3 million records," Jim Ed Norman, of Warner Bros. Nashville office, told Travis.

"Through all of this, you have remained a gentle and kind man and someone who likes people."

Since he burst onto the Nashville music scene two years ago, Travis has scored on the charts with hits such as "Forever and Ever Amen" and "On the Other Hand."

Jazz Great Pastorius Dies

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Electric bassist John Francis "Jaco" Pastorius, whose brief career influenced jazz musicians worldwide, has died in destitution. He was 35.

Pastorius died Monday night at Broward General Medical Center, where he had been comatose since he was beaten earlier this month, according to Gary Cuccia, a nursing coordinator.

His rapid-fire fingering techniques and composing talent earned him a reputation in the late 1970s and early '80s as one of the jazz world's top electric bass players.

At the peak of his career, he toured with Weather Report, Joni Mitchell, Herbie Hancock, and Blood, Sweat and Tears.

Pastorius entered the music world by playing Fort Lauderdale clubs, but his last destitute years were spent on the city's streets.

Early in his career, Pastorius had disdained drugs and alcohol, saying they impaired his playing. But colleagues said he began to drink shortly after joining Weather Report

'Crime Story' Gets New Year, Time Slot

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — From a distance, it looks like a little piece of the Las Vegas strip flew off and landed farther out in the desert, a dab of neon glowing in the night.

This is "Cactus Heaven," an elaborate set built for an episode of "Crime Story." It is heaven to executive producer Michael Mann, delighted that his series got a surprise renewal from NBC for a second season.

"Crime Story" moves to its new Tuesday night time period this week.

Mann, a film director who found himself one of the hottest television producers around after "Miami Vice" became a hit, is enthusing over the bordello set — a melange of neon, plastic flamingos and run-down airstream trailers. Mann walks up to a fake cactus and slaps it. "This is one of ours."

He can't seem to get over that only days ago this was bare desert, and now it's this funny, surreal little world populated by his friends.

"To me there's no greater thrill than making something like this," he says. "There's something about it. I can't put my finger on it."

"Crime Story" is an odd television show, partly because it is so good, mostly because to its creators, producers, cast and crew it is something of an objet d'art unto itself. Here, the vagaries of ratings and time periods seem an intrusion, a distasteful fact of TV life.

"Crime Story" had been percolating in Mann's mind since he and Chuck Adamson, then a Chicago detective, met while Mann was researching a cop show more than a decade ago.

"Crime Story" was envisioned as an epic account of organized crime's evolution into global enterprise and the parallel story of how law enforcement changed in response.

The ambition to evolve the series from the 1960s to the present has been extinguished by budget considerations, though, and the show will remain set in the early 1960s.

This season will feature Russian pilots defecting and blonde bombshells trying to seduce Kennedy-esque politicians.

In an over-the-top cliffhanger last season, Mann and company nuked villains Ray Luca (Anthony Denison) and his sidekick Paulie Taglia (John Santucci), thinking it was the last episode of the season. Mann says he'll superimpose a big question mark over the mushroom cloud for reruns.

"Crime Story" was a critical hit from the first strains of its theme song, "Runaway." Establishment Hollywood has snubbed it, though. It got only three Emmy nominations, in technical categories.

"Yeah, I want the ratings success, I want the critical success, I want to win Emmys just like anybody else," says Mann. "But none of that stuff is as important as the process and the fun of doing it with these guys."

The show has made a reluctant star of Dennis Farina, a former Chicago cop who met Mann through Adamson and landed his first acting role in Mann's 1981 film, "Thief." In "Crime Story," Farina plays Mike Torello, a character probably close to Farina himself, though Farina would never tell.

"That's one of the things about Dennis Farina as a man and as a friend that I respect immensely," says Mann. "This is a man who doesn't talk about certain things, and he never brags, ever. Nobody can get out of him what happened or didn't happen in his police career. He'll kid around in bar talk, but if he goes out on a serious date with some woman he likes, nobody ever hears about it. I mean ever."

A long line of eager interviewers have quickly bumped into Farina's wall of privacy. He is perfectly pleasant about it, but, he says, "You have to say no. I'm not afraid to do that."

He will talk about the show, but a sentence with clauses is a major breakthrough. How did he feel when he heard "Crime Story" was picked up for another season?

"I was very happy."

Was he prepared for being a TV star and all the publicity?

"I knew it would entail all this stuff," he says. "Michael talked to me about it. I just think that some of it is too much, personally."

Mann makes fun of Farina, says Farina's idea of rock 'n' roll is Perry Como. Farina defends Perry Como.

The interview with Farina, such as it is, is interrupted repeatedly by calls for quiet on the set. Mann jokingly complains the director works too fast. "You can't have a conversation."

Farina is called away to do his scene.

"Excuse me," he says, smiling. "I have to go kill someone."

Charlotte Brothers Win Music Award

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — The Moody Brothers agree they may not have deserved to be named most popular trio at the 1987 International Country Music Awards in Peterborough, England.

But lead singer Carlton Moody says they earned it by outworking the field — including the Gatlin Brothers and Dolly Parton, Emmylou Harris and Linda Ronstadt.

"We look at it as a reward," Moody said after the band returned home to Charlotte earlier this month from its third European tour.

"We worked a lot of smaller clubs and theaters at the grass-roots level in Europe the past two years," he said. "The others don't take the time — or have the time — to do that."

Carlton, 31, and his brothers, David, 25, and Trent, 20, beat out some of country music's biggest stars to win the award given by the European trade magazine, "Country Music Roundup."

They went up against the Gatlin Brothers, Riders in the Sky, the Whites and the trio of Dolly Parton, Emmylou Harris and Linda Ronstadt.

"I was really excited and I didn't expect to win," Carlton Moody said. "It was a thrill just to be nominated."

The Moodys are the sons of a North Carolina preacher. Dwight and Cathy Moody taught their talented sons the gospel standards in Methodist churches from Fayetteville to Charlotte, where they settled after Trent was born.

Meanwhile, the three brothers began experimenting with other types of music, including country and bluegrass.

The Moody Brothers have been touring and making albums for eight years. In 1985 they were nominated for a Grammy for the instrumental "Cotton-Eyed Joe." Their album by the same title made the Top 20 on the British charts.

Carlton Moody said the band has a strong following in Europe. The group has toured England three times.

The band wrapped up a five-week European tour just in time to receive the award Aug. 31 at Peterborough, England. The tour included stops in Scotland, Wales, Holland, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Carlton Moody said European audiences are remarkably sophisticated when it comes to country music.

"People over here can listen to country music 24 hours a day if they want," he said. "In Europe you're lucky if you can find it on the radio for an hour a day. So the people who really like it know everything about it."

He said country music has a universal appeal.

"They like the sound and they like the lyrics," he said. "They can relate to the working-class lyrics."

"They also consider it the true American music," he added.

Carlton Moody said he and his brothers enjoyed all the cities they visited during their European tour. He was most surprised at the enthusiasm of the crowds in Warsaw, Poland.

"We played at a festival with eight other bands from other countries, including Russia, Germany and Sweden," he said. "There were 10,000 people every night and they were stomping their heels and clapping their hands."
