U.S. 264 Section To Open Tuesday

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

A newly constructed 11-mile, four-lane section of U.S. 264 from one mile west of Saratoga to just west of Farmville at Lewis' Store will open Tuesday. A public ribbon-cutting ceremony will be held at 9:30 a.m. at the Lewis Store intersection of the old and the new U.S. 264 west of Farmville. State and local officials are expected to attend.

Randy D. Doub, district representative on the state Board of Transportation, said today the project is being completed approximately nine days ahead of schedule. He credited good weather and prompt work by the contractors.

The opening of this section will make it possible to travel on four-lane highways from a short distance west of Farmville to Wilson and on to Raleigh. A section of the new four-lane from one mile west of Saratoga to Wilson was opened to traffic in June. Contracts totaling more than $20.5 million have been awarded over the last 20 months, Doub said.

The section of U.S. 264 from just east of Farmville to Greenville is expected to open in mid-November; the final section from Greenville to Washington around Dec. 1, 1987.

The first contract on the Farmville bypass section will be let in November, with approval by the Board of Transportation expected in December. This bypass will be completed in two sections. The first is 3.31 miles from Lewis' Store to U.S. 258 northwest of Farmville, expected to cost $6.2 million. Then, in April 1989, contracts are to be let for the section from 258 to the Farmville East Thoroughfare, which will hook up with the completed section east of Farmville. This section is expected to cost about $4 million. Paving is expected to begin in May 1991, and be completed in November of the same year.

A bypass of Wilson to tie together the sections east and west of Wilson is expected to begin in 1991 with right of way acquisition over two years and construction in 1994-95. This is a 13.1-mile section and is expected to cost $61.1 million.

Right-of-way acquisition for a northwest bypass of Greenville will begin in December of this year and is expected to cost about $7.5 million. This project, too, will be completed in two sections. The first contract will be let in October 1989, and is expected to cost about $14 million for the 3.2-mile section from U.S. 264 west of Greenville to just south of State Road 1401.

A 4.1-mile section from just south of State Road 1401 to U.S. 13-11 near the Burroughs Wellcome manufacturing facility is expected to begin in March 1991, and cost $10.9 million. Paving of both is slated to begin in May 1993, and be completed in autumn of 1994.

FATALITY — A Farmville woman was killed today at 7:50 a.m. in a collision on Farmville's Eastern Thoroughfare (State Road 1221) .8 miles southeast of the city that left both vehicles demolished. The Highway Patrol identified the dead woman as Wesley Mitchell Taft, 52, of Lot 29, Matthews Trailer Park, near Farmville. The other driver was identified as Jeffrey Collins Johnson, 24, of Route 1, Farmville. He was reported in critical condition at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Each driver was traveling alone. Trooper Coy Taylor said the Johnson car apparently skidded on wet pavement, colliding with the other car. The engine from the Johnson vehicle was thrown 137 feet. Taylor said charges were pending. ## Democrats Say Bork's Support Falling As Hearings Near End

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Democratic senators who had been listed among likely opponents announced today they will vote against confirmation of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court on grounds his views are radical.

Sen. Alan Cranston of California, the deputy majority leader and chief vote-counter for Democrats, announced his own opposition a day after telling reporters his latest survey shows 49 senators likely to oppose Bork, 40 likely to support him and 11 undecided.

"This reflects a loss of five potential votes for Bork since Sept. 15," the day Bork's confirmation hearings began before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Cranston said. The hearings are expected to conclude today.

The announcements came as President Reagan prepared to deliver another speech in support of his nominee.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., a member of the Judiciary Committee, declared his opposition in a speech on the Senate floor. He described Bork as brilliant and decent but said Bork is far from a leader in defense of free speech.

Bork has moved away from some of his more isolated positions, Leahy said, but still has demonstrated no "passion for vindicating the individual rights of Americans that matches his passion for his rigorous and coherent legal theory of the Constitution."

Cranston said in a speech today that Bork "has neither the insight nor the compassion to view discrimination from the perspective of its victims." Confirmation would be "an

Milwaukee House Fire Kills 12 People

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A fire early today swept through a two-story house where 15 people lived, killing 10 children and two adults who were trapped on the second floor by the soaring flames.

The fire broke out only hours before a woman who lived in the house was to go to court to fight an eviction notice, according to the woman's mother. The woman survived the fire, along with two other adults.

The wood and brick house on the city's North Side was gutted by the flames, which also spread to an adjacent building.

The dead youngsters were 11 months to 8 years old, according to fire battalion chief James Rechlit, but he did not know the relationship among them.

Willie Cross, one of the survivors, said the fire woke him up and he and Annie Phillips, who also survived, ran outside.

Cross said he tried to climb up to a second-floor window using a front porch so he could help those trapped by the flames.

"I got up to the top window, but the smoke knocked me down," Cross said.

"It sounded like someone was breaking in the house," Phillips said. "Fire started shooting up."

Rosella Ramthun, the mother of the third survivor, Jill Schreck, said her daughter had been served with an eviction notice and was due in court today to fight it.

"They had everything packed. They were going to move," said Ramthun, who lives down the street from the ruined house.

Ramthun said someone pounded on her door about 5 a.m. and told her of the fire.

When she arrived at the scene "most of the fire was out, but the babies were still in the house," she said.

Cross and Phillips were not injured and remained at the scene. Schreck, who escaped the fire by jumping from a second-floor window, was injured, but her condition was not known immediately.

Fire officials said the home was engulfed in flames when they arrived. They said the stairway to the second floor was burned away, preventing firefighters from quickly getting to the victims there.

The blaze, reported at 4:42 a.m., started in the first floor of the two-story house, apparently in the kitchen, said Rechlit. The cause was not immediately determined, but a state fire marshal was at the scene to aid in the investigation.

"It was so freaky," said Dottie Brewster, who lived in the adjacent building. "I was asleep. Who would have thought flames would have come in on your bed when you're sleeping."

"The children were so friendly," she added. "they were happy all the time."

Firefighters started removing bodies from the house on stretchers about 8 a.m. Firefighters, police and Red Cross volunteers had to form a human barricade to keep relatives and friends from running to the bodies.

Motorist Is Killed

A 23-year-old Greenville man was killed in a 7:50 p.m. collision on the Greene Street bridge across the Tar River Tuesday.

Medical examiner Dr. Stan Harris identified the victim as Gorge Sanchez of 420 W. Fourth St.

Sanchez was a passenger in a car driven by Margurito Cruz, 23, of 420 W. Third St., which investigators said, collided with another vehicle before striking a guardrail.

Harris said Sanchez, who was not wearing a seat belt, was dragged from the car and pinned between the vehicle and guardrail.

The driver and two passengers in the other car received minor injuries, police said. Their identity was not available this morning.

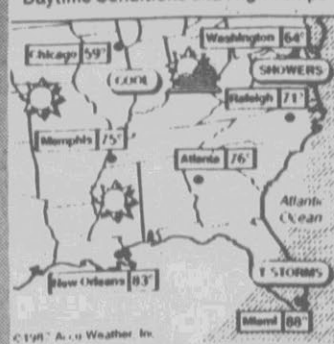

Officer P.W. Worthington said Cruz was charged by investigators with death by vehicle, driving while impaired and driving without a license.

Detective T.V. Woolard said Cruz was also charged with possession of stolen property — the car he was driving — which was reported stolen from 424 W. Third St. The theft of the car was reported 42 minutes after the wreck.

Iranian Gunboat Attacks Tanker

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — An Iranian gunboat attacked a Greek tanker in the southern Persian Gulf early today, as a convoy of U.S. warships and a Kuwaiti tanker headed out through the waterway, marine salvage executives said.

The 63,736-ton Koriana sent a distress signal shortly after midnight saying it had been "attacked by missiles" about 50 miles north of Abu Dhabi, the executives said. There were no casualties, the executives said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

It was not clear how close the U.S.-escorted convoy was to the site of the attacked tanker. The convoy was in the central gulf Tuesday, the Pentagon said, declining to give an exact location.

Journalists in a helicopter meanwhile reported that another apparent "convoy" made up of five warships and three tankers was moving northward. They said they could not identify the warships, but one appeared to be the assault carrier USS Guadalcanal, which carries mine-sweeper helicopters.

British mine sweepers were searching waters off Dubai for explosives believed planted by Iran, but had found nothing by this morning, said a Royal Navy spokesman in London. U.S. helicopter mine sweepers worked farther to the north.

Shipping executives reported today that an Iranian speedboat raked the Koriana with machine-gun fire and a rocket-propelled grenade, causing minor damage to the crew quarters.

They said the Koriana captain radioed an appeal to American warships for help when his vessel was attacked. He got no response and it was not known whether any U.S. Navy ships were in the area.

The attack marked the third time that the Koriana had been hit by Iran in the gulf "tanker war." The Koriana was attacked twice within two weeks off Dubai in June 1986, the shipping sources said.

The Koriana was heading to the Saudi oil terminal at Jubail to load when it was attacked, they said.

Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence in London confirmed the attack on the Koriana and said the ship's agent was Lykiardopulo and Co., Ltd. of London.

The raid was the first ship attack by Iranian gunboats since the U.S. Navy fired on an Iranian ship, the Iran Ajr, nine days ago. The United States said the ship was planting mines, which Iran denied.

Iraq attacks ships in the gulf to curtail Iranian oil exports. Iran retaliates with raids on neutral shipping, saying that if its commerce is not safe other shipping will not be ei-

Zoning Update To Improve Organization

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

Improved organization is a key element included in a Zoning Ordinance update being prepared by Robinson & Cole for the city of Greenville, according to City Planner Jack Simoneau.

"One of the deficiencies we have is that it (the Zoning Ordinance) is poorly organized," Simoneau told members of the Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday night.

"It is very, very difficult to work with. I work with it on a daily basis and it's tough to fumble through all the different appropriate sections."

Simoneau said a six-page table of contents included in the proposed Zoning Ordinance update clears up some of the difficulties.

"We want all like topics in one location," he said. "It sounds pretty easy to do and sounds pretty basic but, quite frankly, we don't have it right now.

"They (Robinson & Cole) have done a very good job in getting those sections that pertain to each other under one article. We're real pleased with the proposals that they've sent us."

Commissioners met Tuesday night to review some sections included in Topic 1 of the Zoning Ordinance update, the first since 1968, Simoneau said.

The sections reviewed by the commission included format organization, general provisions, Board of Adjustment, amendments, enforcement and administration, home occupations and special use criteria.

Simoneau said the city has not been able to successfully monitor home occupations.

"We have insufficient controls over home occupations," he said. "We've done a pretty good job in boarding and rooming houses in residential districts, but we do have some problems with some occupations."

The Zoning Ordinance update also includes an added purpose "to promote the aesthetic quality of the community" in the general provision section.

Wording has also been changed in the jurisdiction section of the general provisions article to clarify misconceptions regarding the use of "bona fide farms" in the present ordinance.

The proposed ordinance says, "These regulations shall govern the use and the development thereon of all lands within the city and within the extraterritorial area of the city as defined in this chapter and shown on the official map for the city. However, agricultural cultivation shall not be affected by these regulations."

Simoneau said city officials want to regulate hog pens, farm houses, etc. "as far as setbacks" but do not wish to monitor land used for crops.

In other business, Dr. Wallace Woolee, commission chairman, appointed commissioners Ruth Leggett, Stephen Blades and Chuck Ziehr to a joint subcommittee to study the Greenville-Winterville corridor.

The nine-member committee, which will be comprised of three members from Greenville, Winterville and Pitt County planning boards, have been asked to study development and transportation problems associated with the growth between Greenville and Winterville.

Recycling Sites

The monthly collection of recyclable materials will be Saturday from 8 a.m. to noon at Rivergate Shopping Center on East 10th Street extension, Buyers' Market on Memorial Drive and Overton's Supermarket on Jarvis Street.

As part of environmental education, the project will offer Pitt County schools programs to alert students to the role recycling will play in the future from economic and natural resources, quality of life points of view.

Information on how organizations and individuals can help may be obtained by calling 756-9869.

Moonshiner Draws Sentence, Lecture

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — A Superior Court judge issued a bitter tirade against the evils of drinking alcohol before sentencing Alvin B. Sawyer to two years in prison Tuesday and fining him $5,000 for manufacturing illegal whiskey.

Besides the sentence on the felony charge, Judge Thomas Watts levied two years for misdemeanor possession of moonshining equipment and non-tax paid liquor. The sentences will run consecutively.

Sawyer, 69, who says he is a teetotaler and born-again Christian, had asked humbly for a suspended sentence, saying he needed to support his 31-year-old wife and young son. He will have to serve at least a year before being eligible for parole.

"I ain't never beat nobody out of a penny," he said. "I never done anything wrong to nobody."

"He has glaucoma and hearing problems," Sawyer's attorney Keith Teague said of his client. "He doesn't have a lot of years left. He'd like to spend them with his wife and child."

But Watts responded with withering criticism, after Sawyer spoke of his pride in making good whiskey, finding salvation in a Tallahassee prison and being told by a Virginia judge to "go make some more" moonshine.

"I am sure there are those who think you're akin to Robin Hood — a quaint individual getting some years on you now," said Watts. "You never caused any harm."

"You've made rotgut liquor for more than 50 years in the swamps of Pasquotank County, as well as in other counties," Watts said.

"You don't know how many people have drunk your liquor and got into car accidents."

Venue Change

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Attorney General's office is seeking to move the Columbus County sheriff's trial on obstruction of justice charges out of the county because of pretrial publicity and public sentiment.

A change of venue motion filed in Columbus County Superior Court asked that the trial of Sheriff William G. Rhodes be moved to Cumberland or New Hanover County. The motion, prepared by deputy attorney general James J. Coman, said it would be difficult to select an impartial jury in Columbus County.

Coman's office is prosecuting the case at the request of District Attorney Michael F. Easley.

Rhodes, who has pleaded innocent, has been charged with obstructing justice and with attempted obstruction of justice in connection with two raids by state Alcohol Law Enforcement officers in November 1986. A trial date has not been set, but the pretrial motion is scheduled to be considered during a court term beginning Oct. 26.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Scrutiny Proper

Now Sen. Joseph Biden has pulled out after accusations of plagiarism, and having to admit his college achievements were not as he stated them.

There is some bitterness over the revelations and questions as to whether such harsh treatment in the media is proper.

That's just the way it is in presidential politics in the United States. There is a long and grueling road ahead for any candidate from the time he announces until he finally is declared the winner in the November elections and takes his place as president of the United States. It is right and proper for this type of public attention to be focused on a potential presidential candidate.

All who run know that it is difficult and their public service records, even their private lives, are open to scrutiny. Now candidates make known their medical records and financial statements and their income tax returns.

Critics belabor the process and note that it is not so arduous in some other countries. In the Kremlin leaders rise to the top with little known to the public about their personal lives. Ah, but the process is also arduous in the Soviet Union. The difference is it is controlled by a small group of power holders who make the decisions for the public.

Here the political process is sometimes embarrassingly open, and the ground rules can suddenly change as they did for Gary Hart.

Biden in withdrawing spoke without bitterness, although he did express anger.

"I'm angry with myself for having been put in this position — put myself in the position — of having to make this choice," he said.

Hart and Biden are so far this year's presidential primary casualties. There could be more, and that would not be a new situation. They will join Romney, Muskie, Eagleton, Dewey and many others who, often through no fault of their own, made a fatal slip which cost them the nomination or election.

None of this will change short of changing our open society. It should be remembered that politicians have survived campaign crises. Roosevelt did it with his dog Fala speech and a young Richard Nixon did it with his dog Checkers speech.

If the process has faults, to its favor is the fact that once a president has been elected he — perhaps someday she — has been scrutinized as no other leader on earth.

Berkeley's Move

It is going on two weeks since an international gathering in Montreal met to plan reducing chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) emissions by half in the final decade of the century. Signatories included the United States and about 30 other countries.

The governing body of the community of Berkeley (Calif.) is the first (and probably only) government to adopt a ban on plastic foam food containers made with CFCs.

Being "first" is not new for Berkeley. Once again they've taken a step others can follow ... and probably are in no rush to heed.

While it was at it, the council recommended city merchants who receive more than 20 percent of their revenue from fast food establish a voluntary program to cut in half their use of non-biodegradable packaging.

The argument that Berkeley was creating a "plastic police" bureaucracy did not impress the council. "We've had a nuclear-free zone ordinance and we don't have nuclear police. We have a smoking ordinance, and we don't have smoking police," said one council member.

In Berkeley there are 400 fast food outlets and mini-markets which are affected by the council's concern for the earth's ozone layer.

That concern is linked to recognition of a layer of ozone serving as a screen against the sun's ultraviolet rays. A one percent reduction in that ozone layer is said to increase the number of skin cancer cases by 5 percent.

There's a big hole in the screen, scientists tell us — the size of the continental United States — over Antarctica.

The council backed away from a ban of all plastic packaging by 1990, as was proposed by the Solid Waste Management Commission.

This country banned use of CFCs in aerosol sprays in 1987. Canada and some other countries followed suit. CFC-produced foam represents a small percentage of CFC products on the market in the United States. A lobbyist for the industry says foam packaging can be made with other agents, and the Berkeley action was seen as no threat to the industry.

The Berkeley council members were making an environmental statement which in itself isn't going to change the world but at the same time it underlined a matter of widespread concern.

Biden Bounces Back After Quitting Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Biden, an angry, frustrated man when he abandoned his presidential candidacy a week ago, seems relaxed and rejuvenated as he helps lead the battle to block Senate confirmation of Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork.

The Democratic senator from Delaware has been conducting the Bork hearings this week with more humor and bite, poking fun at himself and quizzing witnesses with new verve.

"It's a natural human reaction," said a member of Biden's staff who asked not to be quoted by name.

"He was caught up in this other thing," he said, referring to the presidential campaign and its unhappy ending.

Biden announced his withdrawal as a candidate on Sept. 23 after confessing painfully to plagiarism in law school and exaggerating his academic record when confronted by a heckler during an earlier campaign stop.

Biden's problems began when he liberally adopted parts of a British politician's stump speech and someone made a side-by-side videotape and passed it on to the media.

An announced candidate since June, Biden had earned high marks for inspired oratory and was a successful fund-raiser despite running well back in the pack in public opinion polls.

In bowing out, the 44-year-old, three-term senator earned plaudits by accepting the lion's share of blame for his actions.

"I do it with incredible reluctance and it makes me angry," he said. "I'm angry at myself. I made some mistakes. Now the exaggerated shadow of those mistakes has begun to obscure the essence of my candidacy and Joe Biden."

A couple of days later, Biden was late getting to the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on Bork that he chairs. A train derailment had forced him to find other means of transportation to Washington from his home in Delaware.

"It's been a bad week for derailments," Biden noted wryly as he assumed the chairman's gavel.

A little later he cautioned a witness, former presidential counsel Lloyd Cutler, to be careful when responding to a question about Cutler's standing back in law school.

The hearing room filled with laughter when Biden suggested that recalling one's academic ranking can get you in trouble.

Biden has been opposed to Bork's confirmation all along. But with a presidential campaign looming, he had been forced to tread a careful course when critics said he was prejudging the matter to satisfy liberal interest groups.

To mute charges of bias, Biden had bent over backwards in treating Bork and his allies even-handedly. At times he seemed fearful of making any critical assessment of Bork without immediately offering a word or two of praise for the nominee's integrity and brilliance and flashing his trademark smile to soften any attack.

But lately, he has been more straightforward in stating his position on the controversial nominee.

During testimony Tuesday by three law professors who oppose Bork's confirmation, Biden denounced the nominee's views on privacy rights.

"God only knows what will happen to this country if the AIDS crisis reaches the proportions" predicted by some in the medical community, Biden said. "What will happen to our right of privacy. Where will Judge Bork come down?"

"I am left without any doubt he must come down for government intrusion and against expansion of individual rights," he said. He added that Bork is the only person "to come before this committee and consistently deny existence of such a constitutionally-protected right."

Biden's new free-wheeling style also may be explained by the way the hearings are progressing. Public opinion polls show Bork losing support, the White House reportedly is worried, and Republican senators have been straining to score rebuttal points against a brigade of witnesses hostile to the high court nominee.

As the hearings draw to a close, Biden bluntly pledges to remain in the forefront of the fight to deny Bork a seat on the Supreme Court.

He also has hinted that someday he may be back pursuing the presidency.

"I still believe it's time to rekindle the spirit of idealism in this country," he said. "I believe I could and I believe I will make a difference."

Political Payoff Still Eludes Gorbachev

Now that a treaty eliminating intermediate-range nuclear forces appears to be near, what does the post-INF balance sheet in Europe look like from the Soviet perspective?

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev obviously hopes that the concessions he made on the INF issue will spur his campaign against the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's nuclear deterrent by increasing the vulnerability of Atlanticist West European leaders to domestic pressures from anti-nuclear movements.

Moreover, Gorbachev evidently also hopes — as some in the West fear — that the removal of all European missiles down to the 500-kilometer range will eventually lead to a negotiated erosion of the rest of NATO's deterrent. To this end, Gorbachev is likely to advance further offers calculated to promote the cause of "creeping denuclearization."

He is helped here by West Germany's sense of special vulnerability to the Soviets' very short-range missile systems that will not be covered by the treaty — missiles that directly threaten West Germany but cannot reach other NATO members. We can thus expect that future Soviet proposals will seek to exploit differences between Bonn and its allies about controlling missile systems of less than 500-kilometer range.

Beyond this, the Soviet leader probably now believes that he has new opportunities to exploit the West's differences about conventional-force reductions in Europe. Because the prospect of removal of the INF missiles reinforces West European worries about Soviet conventional superiority, the change is driving the West to place a higher priority on conventional-arms talks. Gorbachev may seek to force into the open the divisions over how much asymmetry must be demanded of Moscow in conventional reductions in order to make any agreement acceptable. The Soviet leader will probably attempt, in particular, to drive a wedge between France and sections of West German opinion.

On the other side of the ledger, all of Gorbachev's potential gains have involved political and military costs, sometimes very serious ones. This perpetuates ambiguity and contention in Moscow as to the net profit and loss created by his policies. Thus:

•Gorbachev's anti-nuclear campaign mixing pressure and concessions, while appealing to the West European public enough to force grudging acceptance of his INF offer by West European governments, has evoked a countermove. The Atlanticists are seeking to bolster British-French-German defense cooperation against the Soviet Union while preserving their ties to the United States. Moscow is showing increasing concern.

•The Soviets are very disturbed at France's growing tendency to quietly increase cooperation with NATO. They are equally concerned at French efforts to combat the West German neutralist tendencies that Gorbachev wants to encourage. Meanwhile, Gorbachev's anti-nuclear campaign, his efforts to promote West German neutralism and his notions about conventional-force reductions all attack the view of French national interests held by a broad French consensus. Gorbachev's behavior is thus steadily undermining the traditional Soviet relationship with France as a bridgehead into Western Europe.

•Despite enormous efforts by Gorbachev's propaganda machine to revive the European anti-nuclear movement to the scale of the early 1980s, the Soviets see the results as inadequate. For officials in Moscow, a conclusive measure of the present limits on the strength of the anti-nuclear, anti-American left in Western Europe has been its inability to displace conservative Atlanticist governments in elections in West Germany and Britain this year. These are the two major states where anti-nuclear sentiment is most strongly entrenched in the opposition.

Public Forum

To the editor:

As we have hashed over an incident with a fence, a couple of goal posts and the possible reputation of East Carolina University, I would like to interject a positive act of citizenship recently demonstrated by this university.

On Sept. 16 and 17, approximately 400-plus ECU students, along with Chancellor Eakin, participated in a Bloodmobile collecting 397 units of blood. In that group, 69 of the students were donating blood for the first time. In addition, the support given to the Bloodmobile visitation by the ECU Air Force ROTC can be directly associated to the success of the drive.

If an incident involving a small group of students prompts so many negative responses, why shouldn't an event involving students that have given so others may live invoke a comparable amount of positive "pats on the back" for a job well done?

I, for one, have always and will continue to be proud and supportive of ECU, not for a win/lose record, but for what the university means in terms of support and involvement in Pitt County — in this case, giving the "gift of life." Without ECU blood donors, the blood program in Pitt County, as well as the region, would be severely handicapped.

Strength For Today

A speaker at a college commencement recently made the statement, "The trouble with our present civilization is its size." Apparently as a result of a typographical error, "size" was rendered as "sighs" in the local newspaper.

Actually this typo carries an important message. We tend to think that the great size of our nation, of our economy, even of our church, makes it hard to bring about needed changes and reforms. Therefore, often we abandon efforts in this direction. But the trouble is not the size of the organizations we want to change, but our sighs as we contemplate the job to be done. Usually there is a much wider range of possibilities open to us than we at first realize. And when one person can influence another to work with him toward a given end, the process of change is underway.

Talk Of Waste Disposal Leaves Public Confused

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — It's all a lot of garbage. After that, the distinctions between low-level radioactive waste, high-level radioactive waste and hazardous waste are kind of muddy to most people.

"I think by and large there's a negative reaction to all of it," said Bill Holman, a lobbyist for the Sierra Club. "I think the public perceives it all as hazardous. It doesn't seem to make a whole lot of difference to them how the waste was produced."

"The U.S. Department of Energy is looking for sites for high-level nuclear waste," Holman said. "We've got the new radioactive waste siting authority looking for a low-level radioactive site and the Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission looking for a hazardous waste treatment site. And in some counties they're looking for solid waste landfill or incinerator sites. Waste management is really coming home."

But although they be confused about the various kinds of waste, most citizens know one thing: they don't want the treatment plants located in their back yard.

"People are scared by all of it, and mostly I think people don't want anything to do with it," Kathy Neal, spokeswoman for the North Carolina Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission, said Tuesday.

The Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission was meeting today and will announce on Thursday a possible site for a hazardous waste plant to treat chemical and industrial waste. Also today, the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Management Authority, which is charged with choosing a site to treat low-level radioactive waste, was to meet for the first time.

The Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission is down to choosing a site, which will treat waste only from North Carolina industries. It will have the capacity to treat 90 million pounds of waste annually, less than the amount of chemical and industrial waste generated in Durham County in 1986.

The LLRWMA will choose a site for a plant for the Southeast Compact Commission, whose current facility is in Barnwell, S.C. The North Carolina site would treat low-level radioactive waste for 20 years, when another state in the eight-state compact would host a new site.

The hazardous waste plant will not handle radioactive waste; the low-level radioactive waste plant will not handle high-level waste such as spent nuclear rods. North Carolina had two sites on a list for a second federal high-level waste repository, but that search has been suspended by the U.S. Department of Energy.

"There's a lack of understanding as to where these wastes come from," Ms. Neal said. "Not that it makes it any more comforting, but hazardous waste doesn't come from someplace else — there's hazardous waste in nearly every county every day. It's not quite the same for radioactive waste."

The chairman of the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Management Authority says he understands the public's apprehension.

"Radioactivity is pretty spooky stuff," Merrill Eisenbud said. "You can't smell it, see it or feel it. It (in high doses) can produce cancer, cause genetic effects and I can understand why many people think qualitatively about it and not quantitatively."

Also in the act of waste management are private businesses, such as GSX Corp., which want to treat waste. GSX wants to build a plant on the Robeson County-Scotland County line to treat hazardous waste from several states and is in the process of trying to get permits to do that. Several years ago another company, U.S. Ecology, unsuccessfully tried to build a plant to treat low-level radioactive waste.

Trying to handle both hazardous and low-level radioactive waste is the Governor's Waste Management Board, which was formed in 1981 because the groups handling waste were spread out in so many departments.

For example, the Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission is housed in the Department of Commerce; the LLRWMA is in the Department of Administration; and the Governor's Waste Management Board is in the Department of Human Resources.

DWI Arrests Increase

RALEIGH (AP) — An 11 percent increase in DWI arrests last year indicates that the deterrent effect of the 1983 Safe Roads Act is waning, so tougher punishment and better enforcement are needed, Gov. Jim Martin says.

"Sure, swift and severe punishment must be handed out to all those who continue to drive while impaired in this state," Martin said Tuesday.

The Republican governor submitted a series of bills on drunken driving to the Legislature this year, but most were bottled up in a Democrat-dominated Senate committee.

"Much more needs to be done if drunk driving is ever to become socially unacceptable," Martin said in a speech to the Governor's Highway Safety Commission.

Legislative leaders said last week they would appoint a committee to study the issue between sessions.

Martin said he would ask the panel to consider his bills and urged the Highway Safety Commission to conduct hearings that might produce additional proposals while drumming up public support for action.

Last year, 77,020 people were charged with driving while impaired in North Carolina, an 11 percent increase over 1985, Martin said. In 1986, 707 people were killed and 19,242 injured in traffic accidents involving drunken driving, 10 percent increases over the previous year.

Resume Credits Martin For Programs He Opposed

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin acknowledges that there are errors in his resume, written by one of his speech writers, in which he is credited with initiating or supporting programs he didn't create and even opposed.

"I hadn't seen this until they gave me a copy of it this afternoon," Martin told The Greensboro News & Record Tuesday night.

The resume was prepared by Vernon Morton, a speech writer for the governor, said Tim Pittman, Martin's press secretary. Pittman said the resume has been distributed for several months to people who write the governor seeking information and to those who might be introducing him at an event.

Pittman said the governor had reviewed the resume, but Martin said he hadn't seen it until Tuesday afternoon, after a newspaper reporter questioned Pittman about it.

The resume says Martin ended a decline in state spending for education that dropped in each of the past 24 years but 1966 and 1984. In fact, education spending increased each year but declined as a percentage of the state budget in all but 1966 and 1984. The spending has increased as a percentage of the budget each year since Martin took office in 1985.

Among the programs the resume wrongly claims as Martin's initiative is the Basic Education Program. Martin fought against the program during the 1985 and 1986 legislative session — cutting it in his budget proposals. This year, when it was clear the General Assembly was going to continue the program regardless of Martin's position, the governor supported it.

Concerning state funding for schools, Martin said Tuesday night it should be noted that it was the percentage of the state budget for education that dropped, not the amount.

"That would be an error," Martin said of the resume's phrasing. "It's a percentage of funding, a percent of the state budget. And I always say that when I say it."

Pittman said there was no intent to be misleading in the resume.

"They are a reflection of accomplishments of the state while the governor has been in office," Pittman said. "There is no intent to take credit for things that are not his."

Concerning Martin's agenda, the resume says: "These initiatives include the Basic Education Program, to be implemented over an eight-year period at a cost of almost $1 billion."

In fact, the program was initiated at the urging of the General Assembly in 1983 — while Martin was in the U.S. House of Representatives, said Howard Maniloff, Vance County schools superintendent, who until this spring was a special assistant to the state superintendent of public instruction.

Maniloff wrote the initial drafts of the program that was first presented to the state Board of Education in March 1984. In 1985, the Legislature adopted the program and a commitment to increase public education funding by more than $800 million.

"I don't believe anyone who was there in 1985 would have viewed the governor as a supporter of the Basic Education Program," Maniloff said.

IN THE STATE

China Trip

WILMINGTON (AP) — State Ports Executive Director William W. Edwards says he will propose four business deals to Chinese officials during a trade mission to China, South Korea and Japan next month, and if the negotiations are successful, he expects North Carolina to benefit.

Edwards, who will be making his fourth trip to China since 1980, said he could not discuss details of the business proposals. But he said one is direct sales and the other three are possible joint ventures.

"It's very sensitive because private companies are involved. These North Carolina people want to do certain business, and I can't discuss it. But the ports at Wilmington and Morehead City would benefit if the deals are arranged," he said.

Edwards, Gov. Jim Martin and some North Carolina business leaders are scheduled to travel to China Oct. 13 to 17.

Fifth Amendment

RALEIGH (AP) — A former senior manager at Northern Telecom Inc. has refused in court documents to admit or deny that he helped bill the company out of $1.5 million by selling equipment to Northern Telecom at inflated prices.

Marion P. Cole, dismissed in July as customer service technology director for Northern Telecom, asserted his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination in an answer to a lawsuit filed in August by Northern Telecom.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Raleigh, accused Cole, his wife, Mary C. Cole, and his mother-in-law, Nathalie "Nan" Voeltzke of Wausau, Wis., of racketeering and fraud.

In the complaint, the company alleged that the Coles and Mrs. Voeltzke had made at least $1,564,460 by selling telecommunications equipment to Northern Telecom through a dummy enterprise.

Spanking

RALEIGH (AP) — A state day-care official says most of the recent cases of abuse or neglect in North Carolina day-care centers involved corporal punishment.

Of 66 substantiated cases of abuse or neglect occurring in North Carolina day-care centers from October 1985 to May 1987, 35 involved corporal punishment, a state day-care official testified Tuesday.

The testimony was part of a hearing to decide whether 13 church-affiliated day-care centers should be forced to comply with a state ban on corporal punishment for preschool children. The stories of abuse that were told by Ron W. Penney, an official with the Child Day-Care Section of the N.C. Department of Human Resources, did not involve the day-care centers challenging the ban.

The hearing, being conducted by a DHR administrative hearing officer, continues this week in Raleigh and next week in Charlotte. The hearing officer will recommend whether the N.C. Day-Care Commission should close the 13 centers challenging the ban.

Black Bears

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Wildlife experts and sportsmen disagree on how many black bears live in the South, but they agree that the bears' habitat in the Southern Appalachians is disappearing under the blades of bulldozers for resort developments.

Michael Pelton, a forestry and wildlife professor at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, said Tuesday in a meeting at UNC-Asheville that most of the black bears' habitat is restricted to federally owned lands such as national forests and the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

Pelton estimated there are only 2,000 bears left in the Southern Appalachians.

Crack Charges

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Two men were ordered held under $1 million bond each Tuesday after being arrested on charges of possessing 156 vials of "crack," a form of cocaine.

Michael Alwyn Sancho, 30, of New York and Melvin Morgan, 47, LaGrange, were charged Monday with felonious possession with intent to sell and deliver cocaine.

Drug agents said it was the biggest seizure of crack so far in Wayne County.

Narcotics Agent Jerry Best of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department said the vials of crack seized Monday would sell for $25 each with a total value of $3,900.

Fraud Charge

GREENSBORO (AP) — A former broker at PaineWebber Inc. in Greensboro has been charged Monday in U.S. District Court with fraudulently obtaining about $187,180 in commissions by claiming $5.3 million in sales that he didn't make.

Richard Eugene McNeill Jr., 35, of Greensboro was named in an information filed by U.S. Attorney Bob Edmunds. A person must consent to being charged in an information, instead of having the case considered by the federal grand jury.

McNeill faces up to five years in prison and $250,000 fine if convicted.

Lawsuit

RALEIGH (AP) — A Goldsboro hospital is suing Electronic Data Systems Corp. for more than $4 million, citing problems with a patient care and financial computer system it installed in 1983.

Wayne Memorial Hospital Inc. filed the suit in U.S. District Court in Raleigh, but declined comment on the case.

Wayne Memorial paid the Texas-based company more than $2 million for the system exclusive of maintenance, support and other fees. The hospital has also been paying a monthly fee of $3,850 for maintenance.

Colleges Use Grads For Ads

By The Associated Press
For the first time, North Carolina's 37 private colleges and universities are banding together to promote themselves and some of their better-known alumni.

Gov. Jim Martin, "As The World Turns" star Eileen Fulton, Olympic gold medalist Nancy Hogshead and golfer Arnold Palmer, all graduates of private colleges or universities in North Carolina, will be featured in a new advertising campaign by the colleges.

"This campaign is intended to remind the people of this state that some very successful people got their start at our independent colleges," said John T. Henley, president of the N.C. Center for Independent Higher Education.

The campaign is sponsored by the center, a nonprofit organization that conducts research and promotional activities for the independent colleges and universities.

Its theme is "Success begins with Independents."

"This is our first cooperative effort," Hope Williams, executive director of the center, told the Greensboro News & Record. "This campaign is one way of focusing on all the independent colleges."

The first ad appeared in the September issue of North Carolina magazine, which is published by the N.C. Citizens for Business and Industry.

The issue also features an article about the independent college sector and a profile of each institution.

Featured in the first ad are Martin, who graduated from Davidson College, and Miss Hogshead, a 1984 Olympic swimming gold medalist and Duke graduate. Palmer, a Wake Forest graduate, and Ms. Fulton, of Greensboro College, will appear in future ads.

Halfway Houses Planned

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Next month, a gray and white frame house in Charlotte will become North Carolina's first privately owned and operated halfway house, and state Department of Correction officials say they hope it's the first of many.

"A dream has come true," Correction Secretary Aaron Johnson said Tuesday from the home's front steps. "Today we see coming together the public and private sector to help N.C. solve one of its most pressing problems — overcrowding."

North Carolina's prison population has almost doubled since 1970, but prisons have not kept pace. Earlier this year, the prison population hit a high of more than 18,000, about 5,000 too many, according to American Correctional Association standards.

Prison officials were forced to release hundreds of prisoners early to avert a federal takeover of the prison system.

State officials say they hope the three-story house will be a model for how the state can use privatization to cope with its prison space crunch while controlling costs.

The house, known as the ECO Center for Women, will be owned and operated by ECO Inc., a Charlotte-based private, nonprofit group whose name stands for Energy Committed to Offenders.

The state will pay ECO $13 a day for each of up to 20 ECO Center residents. Officials said that's about half the cost of the state running a similar program.

Keeping a man or woman in a conventional prison costs the state about $35 a day. ECO residents, who will be required to work, will pay rent of $5 a day.

Gov. Jim Martin's proposals for private state prisons have been rejected in the General Assembly. Lawmakers prohibited the Department of Correction from entering into private prison contracts. But they did authorize two private halfway houses — ECO Center in Charlotte and a facility for women in Raleigh.

"Powerball" Parental Warning "Powerballs" Packed in General Mills' Cheerios

Please be advised that if you have purchased packages of Cheerios containing a free rubber "powerball," this toy should be kept away from children approximately three years of age or under, or should be discarded.

The ball, which is similar to other balls sold in retail outlets, is non-toxic and comes sealed in heavy plastic that cannot easily be opened by children. The ball meets all federal safety standards and exceeds the minimum size standard for toys for children under three.

However, General Mills has learned that the ball, if placed in the mouth, represents a choking hazard for infants and toddlers.

General Mills has voluntarily halted shipments and has taken steps to remove Cheerios packages containing the "powerball" from grocery store shelves. Cheerios cereal continues to be available in packages not containing the "powerball."

Consumers with questions on this parental warning may contact General Mills at 1-800-328-1144 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Central Daylight Time.

Legless War Demonstrator Returns To Weapons Depot

By KATHLEEN MACLAY
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A legless anti-war activist returned to the train tracks where he was run over while trying to block weapons shipments to Central America, and vowed to continue his protest there. "We the people want peace and justice. Our government wants war," Brian Willson told about 200 cheering demonstrators outside the Concord Naval Weapons Station on Tuesday. They lined the roadway, holding hands and singing.

With the aid of a walker and wheelchair, the 46-year-old Vietnam veteran toured the site where a two-car munitions train ran him over after he failed to move while trying to block the train. One leg was cut off, and the other had to be amputated. Two protesters on the tracks with him jumped off.

Willson told his comrades Tuesday "I feel fortunate I'm alive." A woman in the crowd yelled, "You're beautiful!"

"All we're really doing here is exercising our rights against the policies of our government that are illegal and immoral," said Willson as he was escorted around the protest site.

Asked if he planned to continue protesting at the base 35 miles northeast of San Francisco, Willson replied, "Of course."

He also spoke briefly and shook hands with Maj. Mike Warren, the Marine Corps officer who heads security at the base and was in charge Sept. 1, the day Willson was injured.

Canadian Postal Workers On Strike

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's second major postal walkout in three months began this morning as the 23,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers went on strike, demanding job security guarantees.

The union had planned rotating walkouts across the country at offices of the state-owned Canada Post. But about 2,000 Montreal-area workers defied the national union with a nearly unanimous vote to launch an all-out strike.

Union leader Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said the union plans to make new proposals when talks resume this afternoon. He did not offer details.

"Well, we're going to try it," he said. "Whether it will lead to a settlement — that's what we hope."

The strategy of striking at different centers for varying lengths of time was also adopted by the 20,000-member Letter Carriers' Union of Canada during a 19-day walkout in June and July.

No pickets were reported at main postal stations in Halifax, Nova Scotia; St. John's, Newfoundland; Saint John, New Brunswick; and Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Labor Minister Pierre Cadiex asked the government's top mediator, William Kelly, to join the 14-month-old talks Tuesday to assess whether any settlement was possible.

His intervention could indicate the government is considering early back-to-work legislation to overcome a strike. Parliament ended a national rail strike in the summer by ordering compulsory arbitration.

The dispute centers on Canada Post's plan to sell post office franchises to drug stores and other operators to reduce overhead costs and take advantage of lower wages in the private sector. The union says this would eliminate up to 4,200 jobs for mail sorters, who earn an average $10.34 an hour, nearly double the rates paid non-union store clerks.

Most of the sorters are employed in 20 major sorting centers across the country.

Wheelchair Protest Blocks San Francisco Cable Cars

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three days of protests by people in wheelchairs demanding accessible mass transit resulted in the arrest of 130 demonstrators, 76 for blocking San Francisco's famous cable cars.

The actions were directed at a convention here this week of the American Public Transit Association, an organization of 15,000 public transportation officials.

On Tuesday, about 150 demonstrators chanting, "We will ride!" and "We want access now!" crawled onto a turnaround — where cable cars begin their return trips — wheeled themselves in front of the cars and lined the street.

Two men briefly chained themselves to a car.

The historic cable cars, which are not accessible to wheelchairs, were backed up all the way to Fisherman's Wharf, about two miles away.

A crowd cheered on the demonstrators as police made 76 arrests. Protesters arrested more than once were being held overnight, sheriff's deputies said.

Tuesday night, about 100 protesters in wheelchairs gathered outside the jail in a candlelight vigil, chanting "Let our people go!"

Disabled demonstrators have been trying to get the organization to declare a national policy giving disabled commuters access to the same buses and trains the rest of the public rides.

The association, in a statement, said the decision to provide access should be left to local transit agencies.

Hollynn Fuller Boies, a disabled person from Sacramento, said APTA helped overturn a federal mandate in 1981 that required all public transportation to be accessible to the handicapped.

"You can see the level of frustration we've reached trying to meet with APTA," said one demonstrator, Kitty Cone of Berkeley. "They have been completely, completely un-

Economic Indicators Show National Growth For Seventh Month In Row

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's chief forecasting gauge of future economic activity climbed 0.6 percent in August, the seventh consecutive increase and the longest string of advances since the economic recovery began in late 1982.

The Commerce Department said the August increase followed a revised July advance of 0.3 percent.

Analysts said the string of gains in the index was pointing the way to continued moderate economic growth for the rest of this year and through the 1988 presidential election, something bound to cheer Republicans hoping to hold onto the White House.

The index last posted a decline in January. The seven monthly gains are the longest stretch of consecutive increases in the index since a string of 21 straight advances starting in September 1982, right before the beginning of the current recovery.

signalled rapid economic growth in 1983 and 1984.

The recovery from the 1981-82 recession will be 59 months long next month, making it the longest peacetime expansion in U.S. history.

Economists do not expect growth in the coming months to be as strong as in the early years of the recovery, given the advanced stage of the expansion. Instead, they are forecasting a continuation of the moderate advances in economic activity in effect for the last two years.

The leading index is composed of eleven forward-looking business statistics and is designed to predict economic activity six to nine months in the future.

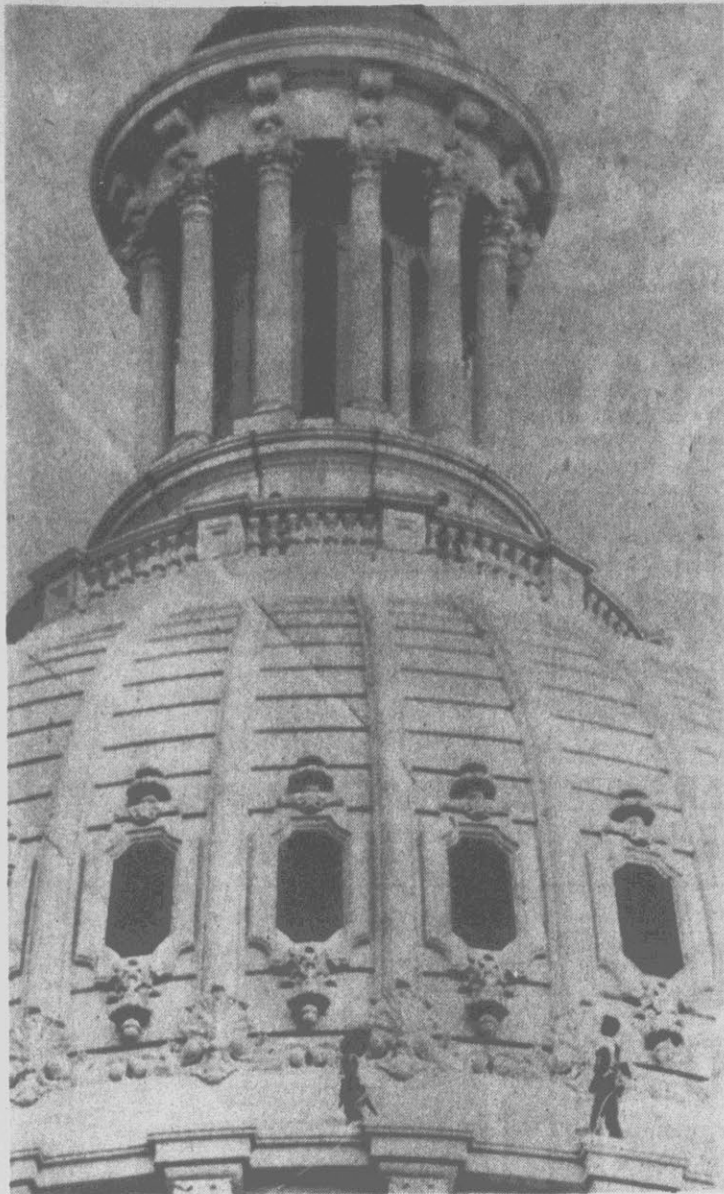

The biggest positive force in August was a big gain in stock market prices, which pushed the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index up by 6.2 percent in August.

In all, four of the available statistics were positive forces on the index. The other strength came from a drop in weekly unemployment claims, a rise in building permits and an increase in the nation's money supply.

Four of the available indicators held the index back. The largest negative contribution came from a decline in plant and equipment orders by businesses, followed by changes in business delivery times on orders, changes in the prices of raw materials and a drop in manufacturers' orders for consumer goods.

One indicator, the length of the average workweek was unchanged, and two others, business inventories and consumer credit, were not available.

The various changes left the index at 192.6 percent of its 1967 base of 100.

Panel Chief Backs Airline Smoking Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proponents of a smoking ban on most airline flights will have an influential friend in the Senate when they renew their efforts to enact such a prohibition into law.

Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., announced Tuesday he would ask the Senate transportation appropriations subcommittee, which he chairs, to approve legislation prohibiting smoking on flights of two hours or less.

The panel planned to complete its work on the measure today, and the full Senate Appropriations Committee was scheduled to consider the bill Thursday.

Lautenberg's restrictions cover 80 percent of all domestic airline flights and last for three years. His press secretary, Jim Abbott, said the senator had not decided what would happen when the period expired.

"The worst place of all for nonsmoking passengers and flight personnel alike is the cramped confines of an airline cabin," Lautenberg said in a prepared statement. "There's no escaping the smoke at 32,000 feet."

The provision would be part of a multi-billion measure providing transportation appropriations for the 1988 fiscal year, which begins Thursday.

In other action, the House is scheduled to begin debating a measure today that would lay the blueprint for $28.5 billion in spending for the nation's airports and air traffic control system.

Robertson Resigns As Minister To Devote Time To Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican presidential hopeful Pat Robertson, in a move to soften his identity as a television evangelist, says he is resigning as a Southern Baptist minister and severing ties to his broadcast ministry.

Robertson's announcement came Tuesday, just two days before he formally enters the GOP race.

"The call of God on my life for service has never diminished. It has shifted, however, from service within the church body to service to the nation," he said in a statement from his campaign headquarters in Chesapeake, Va.

"As I formally make the transition from service in one to service in the other, I would serve neither well by blurring the distinction that exists between them."

Robertson has emphasized his business background in campaign appearances rather than his long career as a religious broadcaster, aware that public opinion polls indicate voters are unwilling to accept clergy in high public office.

"I'm running for chief executive officer, not chief pastor," he said Tuesday in Kenova, W.Va.

An ABC-Washington Post poll in June showed 45 percent of those surveyed said Robertson was not qualified to be president, by far the most negative rating assigned to any of the six GOP hopefuls.

In a decision he described as "one of the most painful I have ever been required to make," Robertson said he would resign as chairman and chief executive officer of the Christian Broadcasting Network and CBN Continental Broadcasting Inc. He said he had instructed CBN's board to terminate his salary and all other benefits effective Thursday.

He earlier stepped down as president of the network and host of the "700 Club" show, both of which were turned over to his son, Tim. His wife, Dede, remains on the board of directors.

Robertson bought a bankrupt UF station in 1960 for $37,000 and built CBN into the nation's fifth-largest cable network. CBN reaches 37 million homes and has annual revenues topping $100 million.

"I love broadcasting and I will hate to leave it," Robertson's statement said. "For now, I feel an obligation to serve the greatest nation on the face of the Earth."

He added, "If it requires personal sacrifice on my part to help preserve freedom in the United States of America, that is a small price to pay."

Robertson, ordained in 1961, also resigned as a Southern Baptist minister. He served several "interim pastorates" in the church early in his career, but said he had not been a parish minister for 25 years.

for all people in this great land."

Robertson's decision, calculated to move him toward the Republican mainstream, could alienate some of his fundamentalist Christian supporters. But Ed McAteer, president of the Religious Roundtable, said, "Pat certainly is not abandoning his religion, but, for the sake of clarity, he is removing himself from an official denominational office."

Robertson has surprised his political rivals in some early GOP tests of strength, most recently by easily outdistancing Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas and Vice President George Bush in a straw poll at a Republican fund-raiser in Iowa. He still lags far back in the pack in nationwide polls, registering in the single digits.

Robertson said he has raised more than $11 million for his presidential bid, an amount that would put him on a financial par with front-runner Bush.

Supporters of the smoking ban, who include about 30 health groups and two flight attendants' unions, already have been successful in the House. On July 13, the lawmakers approved a measure permanently prohibiting smoking on flights of two hours or less. The 198-193 vote surprised even the sponsors, Reps. Richard Durbin, D-Ill., and C.W. Bill Young, R-Fla.

Arrayed against the smoking restrictions are the tobacco industry and the nation's air carriers, airport operators and airline pilots. They contend the current system of providing seating for smokers in the rear of planes has been successful. They also cite safety arguments.

Tobacco-state senators have promised to try to scuttle the smoking-ban language should it reach the chamber's floor.

The measure the House will consider authorizes a five-year program of aviation spending, including $8.6 billion for airport improvements, $9.3 billion to modernize the air traffic control system, $9.5 billion for salaries of air traffic controllers and other federal aviation workers, and about $1 billion for aeronautical research.

Captured

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A 19-year-old Alexander County woman charged nine months ago with hiring two men to kill her husband was apprehended after she was recognized while visiting a friend in a Tennessee jail, authorities says.

Lori Mayse, 19, was arrested when she walked into the Union County, Tenn., jail in Maynardville and dispatcher and jailer Anna Mae Sanders recognized the suspect from a photo.

"I recognize that although the overwhelming majority of the American people desire leaders with strong religious faith, to many of our citizens the election of an ordained clergyman of any faith — Protestant, Catholic or Jewish — to as high a public office as the presidency of the United States would, in their opinion, be tantamount to a preference of one religious denomination over all others," he said.

"My ancestors fought for religious freedom in America and, like them, I am committed with all my heart to maintain absolute religious freedom

Amnesty Accuses U.S., Soviets Of Rights Abuse

By MICHAEL WEST
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Amnesty International, issuing its annual report on human rights today, accused the Soviet Union of harsh treatment of political prisoners and criticized the United States for permitting the death penalty.

The Nobel Prize-winning group said it had received reports of human rights abuses in 129 nations last year.

"Although it learned of fewer political arrests, Amnesty International was disturbed that the Soviet authorities continued to imprison many citizens whose conscience had led them to dissent peacefully from official policies, and to apply compulsory psychiatric measures to others," the survey said.

"There was no reduction in the number of capital offenses: at least eight people were executed and Amnesty International learned of a further 17 sentenced to death," the report said of the Soviet Union.

The London-based group, which opposes the death penalty, said 18 people were executed in U.S. prisons in 1986, bringing the number killed since the 1976 reinstatement of the death penalty to 68. A record 1,338 prisoners were on death row as of Dec. 20 last year, it said.

Amnesty International also reported complaints of prisoners in the United States being ill-treated.

The 129 nations listed by the independent group make up four-fifths of the United Nations membership.

The 400-page report cited thousands of examples of alleged rights abuses, from the jailing of draft evaders in European countries to government-sanctioned torture and killings in Latin America, Africa, Asia and the Middle East.

Alleged atrocities cited included the massacre of more than 150 prisoners by Peruvian security forces, the execution by stoning of eight people in Iran and the use of amputations as a judicial punishment in Saudi Arabia.

The report also accused the world's richest nations, particularly in North America and Western Europe, of ignoring the plight of political refugees and turning away refugees in increasing numbers.

Worldwide, 743 prisoners were known to have been executed in 39 countries and 1,272 were sentenced to death in 67 countries, the report said. It said the figures represent only documented executions and that the actual number was "certainly higher."

The 1987 survey gives a country-by-country accounting of work by Amnesty International's more than 500,000 volunteers last year. It said omission of some countries did not necessarily indicate an absence of human rights violations but could reflect a lack of information.

The survey noted improvements during 1986 in the human rights records of several countries, notably the Philippines, Uganda, Zimbabwe, Zaire and Guatemala, but it did not attempt to identify a worldwide trend.

"While in 1986, we have seen encouraging developments, in reality, the report presents a very grim view as far as human rights are concerned," said Amnesty International spokeswoman Carline Windall.

In a report on alleged ill treatment of prisoners in the United States, the survey said Amnesty International had expressed concern to U.S. authorities over the death of Vinson Harris, who perished near a federal prison in Butner, N.C.

"A North Carolina coroner established that Vinson Harris had died of asphyxiation after guards had tightly wrapped his head, neck and face in bandages while he was being transported by bus to a federal prison in March 1986," it said.

The survey also reported allegations that inmates of the penitentiary at Marion, Ill., were beaten by guards during a "lockdown" in November 1983 following the killing of two prison guards by inmates.

The report added: "Amnesty International wrote to the (U.S.) authorities expressing concern that U.S. military assistance to the irregular armed forces (Contras) opposing the government of Nicaragua may have contributed directly to killings, abduction and torture by those forces."

Commenting on Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's policy of glasnost, or openness on selected topics, the survey welcomed plans to publish Soviet crime statistics regularly for the first time since 1934.

But it said conditions in prisons and collective labor colonies where most prisoners of conscience were held remained poor.

"Prisoners were kept on monotonous, meager rations with only rudimentary medical care, and had to meet excessively high work targets often involving heavy physical labor," it said.

Prisoner Forgotten In Her Cell

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — A woman who was placed in a police holding cell and left there over a weekend without food or water has agreed to an out-of-court settlement of her $6 million lawsuit.

Police said Cassandra Jones, 26, of Fort Washington, Va., was inadvertently left in the cell by a sheriff's deputy. Her lawyers said she was forced to drink from a toilet during a 69-hour ordeal in which she passed out several times.

Neither side would disclose how much money Tuesday's settlement was worth, but Ms. Jones did say she was happy with the amount of money she received.

Ms. Jones had sued Alexandria Sheriff James H. Dunning for violation of her civil and constitutional rights, false imprisonment, negligence and intentional infliction of emotional distress.

She had been arrested in February 1986 after an altercation with an Alexandria police officer, pleaded guilty in April of that year to a misdemeanor charge of impeding a police officer, and was given a 3½-hour sentence.

According to her lawsuit, she was put in a holding cell on a Friday in a building that is locked and unused on weekends. She was found Monday morning when the building was reopened.

Ms. Jones' attorney, Amy R. Goldson, said a water fountain in the cell did not work. As a result of the experience, she said, Ms. Jones had to seek medical care for loss of appetite and psychological stress.

Verdict Stands

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A federal judge says a man who has served 11 years in prison for a police officer's murder may not have been involved in the slaying but ruled that the law left him powerless to overturn the verdict.

U.S. District Judge H. Lee Sarokin said Tuesday that he invited an appeals court to reverse his decision against voiding the conviction of Vincent James Landano.

The judge called his ruling "a bitter exercise in judicial restraint, since it may result in a gross injustice."

The 48-year-old Landano said he felt let down and called the decision a setback "not only for my family and myself, but for thousands of people behind me, to say, 'You're right, but I don't have the power.'"

"Who do I scream to now? I've been yelling for 11 years," Landano said in a telephone interview from Rahway State Prison, where he is serving a life term.

"I was packed up. My family was waiting."

Senate Calls On Japan To Curb Vietnam Trade

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is urging Japan to impose official limits on trade with Vietnam following Honda Motor Corp.'s voluntary decision to abandon reported plans for a plant in that communist nation.

Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Wis., said Tuesday that Honda's decision stemmed from U.S. opposition and the company's $2 billion investment in automotive production facilities in the United States. He said that in addition to halting plans for a motorcycle factory in Vietnam, it has agreed not to undertake similar ventures in Laos or Cambodia.

However, a Honda official in Tokyo today denied the company ever had plans to build a motorcycle plant in Vietnam. The official, who declined to be identified by name, did say Honda has cancelled a contract to sell unassembled motorcycle parts to a trading company that resold them to Vietnam.

Kasten had called the initial Honda decision to enable Vietnam to produce motorcycles "a prime example of Japan's unethical trading practices." But he said Tuesday that he has now been assured by Honda that "no shipments have been made under this contract and none will take place."

In a letter made public by Kasten, Honda said its earlier business relationships in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos were "well within the policies of the Japanese government."

However, it continued, "we feel that due to our position as a major automobile manufacturer in the United States we should honor the policy considerations of the United States government."

Kasten disclosed the Honda decision shortly before the Senate adopted a resolution he sponsored urging the Japanese government "to prevent its private business sector from engaging in developmental trade with the socialist government of Vietnam."

The Honda official in Tokyo said his company sold 12,000 small-engine motorcycles last year to Beruku, a Japanese company that specializes in trade with Vietnam. He said that in order to abide by U.S. policy concerns, Honda has cancelled a contract to sell Beruku unassembled parts for 6,000 motorcycles this year.

Honda was to have had no connection with the assembly of the parts in Vietnam, and believed its arrangement did not violate any government regulations, the official said.

During debate on the Senate measure, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said Kasten had raised an important foreign policy issue because the output of a Honda-built motorcycle factory "would have provided additional mobility for the invading Vietnamese army inside Cambodia."

"It is hard for developed countries to appreciate the potential which motorcycles give to Vietnamese reconnaissance units, but it is a significant military advantage," Helms said.

"Japanese businessmen have become the scavengers of the world, moving into those areas where businessmen from other free world countries are prohibited," he said.

The Honda official said it was unlikely the motorcycles could be put to military use by the Vietnamese, saying: "They only have 70cc engines, and are the kind of motorcycles used in Japan to deliver newspapers and milk."

Vietnam has been the target of a multi-nation trade embargo since it invaded Cambodia in 1979. Kasten said Japan initially complied with the embargo but now "the Japanese have let their exports to Vietnam creep up to a level of $230 million."

The Kasten resolution says the Japanese government "has consistently refused to discourage private investment by its private business sector which originates this trade."

It describes Vietnam's population of 65 million as "a tempting lure for investors seeking low wages and for traders seeking new markets."

Among other provisions, it urges the Japanese government to prevent Japanese companies from engaging in "developmental trade" with Vietnam that fosters oil exploration and development, forestry and fisheries production and development of commodities for light industries.

A Japanese Foreign Ministry official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the government cannot limit the activities of private companies in the country as long as they do not violate Japan's Foreign Exchange and Trade Control Law or standards set by the Coordinating Committee for Export Control (COCOM), a Geneva-based organization that regulates Western trade with communist countries.

Kasten said he had been angered by Honda's reported initial decision to produce motorcycles in Vietnam because of their potential to help the Vietnamese armed forces.

However, the senator's home state, Wisconsin, also is the home of the Harley-Davidson Corp., the only U.S. manufacturer of motorcycles.

He said an earlier version of his amendment singled out Honda, which has scored a substantial penetration of the U.S. automobile and motorcycle markets.

"It's not Japan-bashing to hold the Japanese to their word, and to their ethical commitments," he said.

Gorbachev En Route To Arctic

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev today flew to the Arctic port of Murmansk, the official Tass news agency said.

The departure came one day after Gorbachev's first public appearance in seven weeks.

Tass did not say how long Gorbachev would stay in the city, a fishing and naval center, or the purpose of the trip. Since becoming Communist party general secretary in March 1985, Gorbachev has traveled to many distant areas of the Soviet Union to discuss regional problems and his plans for economic and social change.

The 56-year-old Communist party chief's absence from the public eye had raised concerns about his health and that of his wife, Raisa. But Gorbachev was tanned and smiling

Tuesday at a meeting with a group of French politicians.

In comments distributed later by Tass, Gorbachev said he had been on vacation. Murmansk, about 150 miles north of the Arctic Circle, played a key role in World War I and World War II because it was the only northwestern port through which the Soviet Union could receive supplies from its allies.

Mail Bomb Kills Man

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — A parcel bomb exploded and killed a man today as postal workers unloaded a train from South Africa, police said. Seven others were injured.

Workers were unloading mail from the train when the bomb went off, damaging a section of track but causing no damage to buildings, said Police Superintendent Lawrence Munalisa.

One man died at the scene of the blast and three of the injured were seriously hurt, he said.

The explosion occurred about a quarter of a mile from the central post office on a railroad siding east of downtown Lusaka, the capital.

No other details were immediately available.

Bush Says Bonn Officials Support Treaty On Arms

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Vice President George Bush met today with West German officials, including Chancellor Helmut Kohl, and said he found unified support for the prospective arms treaty banning U.S. and Soviet intermediate-range nuclear weapons.

Kohl said he hoped a formal treaty could be concluded before the end of the year.

He also expressed the hope that talks would continue soon on long-range nuclear weapons and on chemical weapons, as well as conventional forces.

The two men appeared briefly before reporters after meeting for about an hour, but Kohl permitted only one question and his American visitor made no effort to prolong the session.

In addition to seeing the chancellor, Bush met with Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher and other political leaders as part of a round of meetings with West German allies on the treaty outline.

"Genscher stressed the German interest in a successful outcome of START negotiations, that should lead to a 50-percent reduction in strategic weapons of the United States and the Soviet Union," said a West German foreign ministry statement.

Genscher said the United States and the Soviet Union should strive in their talks in Geneva to reach a quick agreement on a worldwide elimination of chemical weapons, according to the statement.

At each stop along the way, Bush emphasized that the United States will not abandon its Western European allies for the sake of an agreement with the Soviets.

"There is no danger, in my view, that the United States will use any arms control agreement, or anything whatsoever, to decouple, to move away from our commitment to NATO, to the Alliance and certainly to the strength of the bilateral relations between Germany and the United States," Bush told reporters.

Bush was flying to France later in the day, to continue his talks. He also will stop in Britain and Belgium before returning to the United States on Saturday.

The vice president was expected to hear from most Western European officials that they want any further treaty talks to deal with Soviet-bloc superiority in conventional forces in Europe.

Bush flew to Bonn Tuesday night after spending four days in Poland, where he met with government and church officials and leaders of the outlawed Solidarity union movement in the highest-level visit by an American official in 10 years.

Bush visited Rome briefly last week to discuss the issue with government leaders there.

Bush's four days in Poland marked an effort to forge better relations with the communist-controlled country, in what he described as an effort to promote "national reconciliation."

The vice president said before he departed Poland on Tuesday that progress has been made in improving relations, but it seems clear that Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the Polish premier, has refused to make major concessions on economic reform or human rights.

"Our two governments, let's be frank, have some differences which cannot and must not be glossed over," Bush said. "I hope this visit helps narrow them somewhat."

On his final emotionally draining day in Poland, Bush visited a hospital and met children dying of cancer. The vice president and his wife, Barbara, had a 3-year-old daughter who died of leukemia 25 years ago.

Bush also spent two hours in a grim tour of Nazi death camps at Auschwitz and Birkenau where 4 million people were murdered in World War II.

He grieved for words after viewing the gas chambers, crematoria, gallows and other areas of a sprawling city of death where as many as 12,000 people a day were killed.

"It's hard to describe this. I mean, I can't begin to tell you the emotion that Barbara and I feel," the vice president said after signing a book in front of a memorial to the dead.

"I put a quote in the book that said 'in remembrance lies the secret of redemption,'" he said, "and then made some personal reference to the hope that kids of the future would be spared the ugliness of the past."

Troops Deployed After Coup Report

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Hundreds of troops backed by armored personnel carriers were deployed at entrances to Manila for several hours today after reports that rebel soldiers might attempt to overthrow President Corazon Aquino.

Troops were recalled to their barracks at midday when no uprising occurred, said Col. Emiliano Templo, chief of staff of the Capital Regional Command.

Templo said the troops detained 37 soldiers at the southeastern edge of the city but the men denied plans to join any mutiny. Military sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said a civilian bus rammed through a checkpoint north of the city early today, but the driver claimed his brakes failed.

The flurry of military activity began hours after a funeral march Tuesday for slain leftist leader Lean Alejandro. More than 60,000 people joined the funeral procession, which turned into the largest protest rally in the city this year.

Military sources said commanders had received reports that four renegade officers had joined forces in Bulacan province, north of Manila. The reports said the four were gathering followers for a new strike against the Aquino government.

About 2,000 mutineers attacked the presidential palace, broadcast stations and military garrisons on Aug. 28 in the most serious threat yet to Mrs. Aquino's rule. At least 53 people were killed and hundreds wounded in the failed coup attempt.

Mutiny leader Col. Gregorio "Gringo" Honasan escaped with about half his force and has vowed to continue his struggle against Mrs. Aquino.

Templo said Brig. Gen. Ramon Montano, commander of a new anti-coup force, deployed a 300-man army battalion at the Malinta intersection at the northern edge of the city and dispatched constabulary and army troops to Muntinlupa and Antipolo southeast of Manila.

The troops stopped and searched vehicles entering and leaving the city.

Suicide: Hidden Catastrophe

'Teens Out There Are At Risk'

By WILLIAM C. HIDLAY
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The initial shock has faded. Few people in the suburbs of Alsip and Rolling Meadows talk about the four teen-agers who killed themselves six months ago.

Some officials say there's a feeling the problem has gone away.

Sgt. Doug Larsson, who investigated the suicides of two high school students for the Rolling Meadows police, observed, "Until the next one happens, I don't think the general population will worry about it."

But teen suicide is "a hidden malady, a hidden catastrophe," said Chicago psychologist Judith Tellerman, a researcher trying to track the early warning signs of teen-age suicide.

"There's a lot of kids out there at risk," Larsson agreed. "We're not doing anything about the problems."

On the afternoon of Thursday, March 12, two teen-agers from Alsip, Nancy Grannan, 19, and Karen Logan, 17, were found dead in a garage thick with car exhaust fumes. The day before in Bergenfield, N.J., four youths died after locking themselves in an idling car in an apartment complex garage.

Alsip police and members of the girls' families said at the time they felt certain the two had been influenced by publicity about the New Jersey suicides.

"It was a shock because most of the neighbors here never thought that would happen," recalled Dorothy Fawley, whose son, Blair, was a close friend of the two girls and tried to revive them.

Two days later, on Saturday, March 14, 14-year-old Kevin Pyter was found dead on the roof of his mother's station wagon in the garage in Rolling Meadows, a suburb of 19,000 northwest of Chicago. Alsip, with 15,000 people, is south of the city.

Authorities ruled Pyter's death a suicide caused by inhaling car exhaust. Newspaper clippings about the earlier suicides were found under the boy's bed.

On Tuesday, March 17, a fourth victim of carbon monoxide poisoning, 17-year-old Kathleen Carlsen, was found by her mother.

Four teen-agers were dead of their own doing in five days, and many people "were wondering if we had an epidemic starting," said Robert Hoese, principal of Rolling Meadows High School where Pyter was a freshman.

At Rolling Meadows High and William Fremd High School, where Miss Carlsen was a senior, students met with counselors and in support groups. Rolling Meadows Police Chief Ralph Evans organized a task force to make teen-agers and their parents more aware of counseling services.

The task force issued a report April 15, listing common warning signs of teen-age suicide and providing a directory of community support services.

"The impact (of the suicides) has been very slight since then," Hoese said in a recent telephone interview. "It's worn off on the community, it seems to me. There's nothing to remind us of the problem."

That's what worries Ms. Tellerman, a psychologist at the Center for Suicide Research and Prevention at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago.

"We have teen-age suicides every month and it's been going on for years now and it's appalling," she said. "It's kept quiet because people are afraid to talk about it. They're afraid that if you publicize these things, it will set an example for other kids to try to do the same thing."

"But if people aren't aware the problem still exists, the families continue to suffer and the community suffers," she said.

The number of teen-age suicides in Illinois reached the lowest point this decade in 1984, when 61 youths aged 15 to 19 killed themselves, she said. In 1985, the number jumped to 84 teen-age suicides and, in 1986, to 87.

In 1986, the Illinois General Assembly approved a bill to create statewide teen-age suicide prevention programs. But Gov. James R. Thompson has cut funding for the programs the past two years, she said.

This past session, she said, four bills were passed, expanding the provisions of the previous act and ordering additional programs. Again, funding was cut, she said.

"We are in a terrible fiscal crunch this year," said Thompson spokeswoman Susan Mogergerman. "Unfortunately, the Legislature passed far more programs than we have money for. It's strictly a matter of funding."

At the suicide prevention center in Chicago, Ms. Tellerman and other researchers began a three-year study in January to try to document common early warning signs among teen-age suicide victims.

After each suicide, researchers conduct a psychological autopsy, interviewing family and friends, and examining medical and school records to reconstruct events leading to the child's death.

Other officials want to focus political attention on the problem. One is Elaine Hoff, deputy chief of the disabled persons advocacy division in the state Attorney General's Office.

Mrs. Hoff said she hopes to organize families who have been through the tragedy to lobby the Legislature and the governor to ensure suicide prevention programs are funded in the future.

Only now can Mrs. Hoff talk publicly about her son, Scott, a gifted student who was elected vice president of his 7th grade class. On Oct. 15, 1985, he hanged himself. He was 13½.

"We still do not know why our son chose to die by suicide," Mrs. Hoff said recently. "What happened will never be OK. Our life is changed forever. ... So I guess you always repeat that question — Why? Why? — because it shouldn't be."

County's Junior Miss Interviews Scheduled

The Farmville Junior Woman's Club is sponsoring the Pitt County Junior Miss Scholarship Program. The local program is part of North Carolina's Junior Miss on the state level, and America's Junior Miss on the national level.

America's Junior Miss, Inc., is a nationwide program to recognize, reward, and encourage excellence in young women. Local Junior Miss winners advance to state competitions which determine the 52 candidates for the national title.

Judging at all levels is based on scholastic achievement, poise and appearance, physical well-being, creative and performing arts, and contributions to family, school and community.

Pitt County's program last year awarded $6,300 in scholarships. Including all prizes, savings bonds and awards, the total amount exceeded $8,000. Locally, the program is supported by interested individuals, civic groups, and businesses, as well as the Farmville Junior Woman's Club.

Contestants for Pitt County's program will be selected on Oct. 11. Any young woman, who is a resident of Pitt County or attends school in Pitt County, who is a junior for the 1987-88 school year is eligible to try out for participation in the program by attending an initial judge's interview on Oct. 11. Further information concerning the interview, time and place may be obtained by contacting area high school's guidance counselor's office, or by calling 753-5146 or 753-3452.

The actual program will be held March 5, 1988, in Wright Auditorium on the East Carolina University campus. At that time, Pitt County's third Junior Miss will be chosen. Last year, Laura Elizabeth Newton of Farmville was named Pitt County Junior Miss. She will represent Pitt County in the state program in Greensboro in January 1988.

Crochet 12 Days Of Christmas

Celebrate the 12 days of Christmas with 12 charming crochet designs to decorate your tree. Stockings, stars, wreaths and more are quickly and easily made with a size G crochet hook and worsted-weight yarn. They are sure to bring squeals of delight from children and grown-ups alike.

You also can use them for the perfect finishing touch to package wrappings, wreaths or as little lapel pins. A fun way to spread a little Christmas cheer.

To obtain directions for making the Christmas Crochet Collection, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-101286 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box

Pat's Pointers
Pat Trexler

419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. C-101286 by sending a check or money order for $9.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and yarn in Christmas colors.

Dear Readers: It has become a tradition in the fall of each year for me to give you directions for making quick and easy little knit or crochet bells that can be used for tree ornaments, lapel pins or package directions.

You can vary the size of the bells by using different weights of yarn and different sizes of hooks or needles. With these basic patterns, dig deep into your box of leftover yarns and let your imagination go.

For the knit bells, using a lightweight yarn and size 2 or 3 needles, cast on 14 stitches and purl the last 4. Row 2, which is the right side of your work, is made by simply knitting all stitches. Repeat these two rows until you have 22 ridges.

Bind off all stitches, leaving a 12-inch strand of yarn. Thread this yarn into a tapestry needle and sew the cast-on and bind-off edges together. There will be a little border of stockinette stitch at one end. This is the bottom of the bell. At the other end, run your threaded tapestry needle through every other stitch, drawing it tight. Fasten off and tie in a little jingle bell for a clapper if you wish.

If you prefer to crochet, try the following directions with sports or knitting worsted-weight yarn and a size F or G hook. Make 8 single crochets in each stitch. Place a marker at the end of the round. The 8 stitches just made are counted as Round One.

Round Two: Make 2 single crochets in each stitch, moving marker up at end of the round. For each of the next 6 rounds, make 1 single crochet in each stitch around. For Round Nine, (single crochet in the first stitch, make 2 single crochets in the next stitch). Repeat the steps between parentheses over and over to the end of the round.

For the final round, (make 2 single crochets in the first stitch, then 1 single crochet in each of the next 2 stitches). Again, repeat the steps between parentheses over and over to the last 3 stitches of this round. Work a slip stitch in each of these 3 stitches to even up the edge. To finish, work a slip stitch in the front loop of each stitch around. Fasten off and cut yarn, weaving in the loose end on the wrong side.

Draw the two-inch end of yarn left when making the first chain through to the wrong side and attach a little jingle bell to it.

A program on burglary prevention was presented by Tim Copeland of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

A donation was made to Cancer Aid Research in memory of Kenneth and Margaret Brown.

Horizon Show Proceeds Go To Cancer Society

Passport to Fashion, the fall Horizon Traveling Show, raised $5,000 for the Pitt County chapter of the American Cancer Society. The proceeds will be given in memory of Gene Skinner.

Fashions from around the world represented those from Russia, Great Britain, Italy, Norway, America, Vienna and Paris. The contemporary fashion show was held Friday night at the Brody Medical Science Building and was co-sponsored by Belk of Carolina East Mall and the Pitt County chapter of the American Cancer Society.

Combinations of black and red, royal blue and red and paisley were featured in the Russia showing. Forest, russet and charcoal were outstanding colors in England, among popular separates.

In Italy, leather and suede were fashion hits including sheath skirts with back slits in colors of black, olive, brown and rust. Winter white, pastels in such shades as pink and aquamarine and charcoal and white were Norway colors.

Denim took on a new direction in the United States as models showed a variety of fashions to the fast moving song, "La Bamba." Dark iridescent shades and lace collars were featured on ensembles from Vienna.

The show finale was Horizon's version of Le CanCan from Frances.

Hats, scarves, gloves, low heel boots and long sweaters were fashion accents.

Harvey Flanagan gave the opening welcoming. Chancellor and Mrs. Richard Eakin served as honorary chairpersons. "We are happy to be a part of this event for the American Cancer Society and to be included in Greenville community activities," said the chancellor. Greenville Banks, manager of Belk, gave the introduction to the show.

Elderly Mother Carries On Tradition Of Abuse

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of a mother being sued for mental cruelty? Mom has carried tales back and forth among her seven children for years. She has twisted stories and created dissension among all members of this family and deliberately turned brothers and sisters against each other. She is now 84.

She now mails out copies of her will to her children and grandchildren — all grown — listing who is to get how much, and who will be cut off without a dollar!

Abby, we're talking about an estate that is less than $100,000. She had better save her money because she will need it for a nursing home, as there is not one among us who can stand to be around her for any length of time.

Sad, isn't it? We were all abused as children, and she still abuses us. Every time I hear the plight of some old folks who are ignored, I can't help but wonder if some of them earned it — like my mother. — BEEN THERE IN SAN BERNARDINO

DEAR BEEN THERE: There is nothing you can do to change your mother, but abusing her in retaliation will not improve the quality of life for anyone. Abused children usually abuse their own children. Just make sure you don't perpetuate the sins of your mother.

DEAR ABBY: Here's my problem: I have been living with "Fred" for 12 years without benefit of clergy. Until recently, he has resisted the idea of marriage, and I haven't pushed it.

Fred is Canadian, and a year ago when I took a job in Worcester, Mass., I sponsored him for a "green card" so he could work in the USA. (I'm a U.S. citizen.) In the process of getting a green card, the courts affirmed our "marriage" on the basis of long cohabitation.

Now, Fred wants to get married, but honestly, Abby, I feel the time is past. I think it would be embarrassing to have a wedding now. On the other hand, I don't want to discourage him from his newfound urge to make a real commitment.

What do you advise? — WONDERING IN WORCESTER

DEAR WONDERING: Go for the ring on your finger. It's not necessary to have an extravaganza with a lot of hoopla — a quiet but meaningful marriage ceremony with a few close friends and family members will officially reaffirm your commitment. You'll be glad you did. I wish you joy.

DEAR ABBY: When seven of us were dining at an expensive restaurant (I call $50 a person expensive), five people in our party finished with their main courses, but two were still eating. The busboy came along and started to clear the table. Although I had finished eating, I felt that the two who were still eating were made to feel uncomfortable and somewhat rushed.

When the busboy went to pick up my dinner plate, I gently placed my hand on my plate in order to prevent him from removing it.

My son really jumped on me. He said I should not have stopped the busboy from taking my plate. I did not make a scene. I simply let the busboy know that he was not to remove my plate. He got the message and did not return to remove any more plates until everyone had finished.

Did I commit a cardinal sin? — ENCINO MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: No. The process of clearing the table should not begin until everyone has finished eating.

Perhaps the busboy did not know better, or he may have been instructed to clear the table in order to hurry the party out of the place. In any case, when that occurs, it's perfectly proper to politely tell whoever starts to clear the table to kindly wait until everyone has finished eating.

ther. The foes have attacked scores of ships since the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war spilled into the gulf in 1984.

The 10th U.S.-escorted convoy, made up of the guided-missile frigate USS Hawes and the 46,723-ton tanker Gas Prince, left Kuwait in the northern gulf Monday, the Pentagon said.

The convoy's trip, which normally lasts two to three days, could take longer because of the discovery of the suspected mine field off Dubai, said a U.S. source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The United States agreed last summer to reflag and provide U.S. Navy escorts to 11 Kuwaiti tankers to protect them from attack by Iran, which considers Kuwait an ally of Iraq.

Traffic was being diverted or was at a standstill in the shipping channel north of Dubai as captains heeded warnings of the mine threat issued by the Navy, the Dubai Port Authority and Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Unit.

Pentagon spokesman Fred Hoffman in Washington said tankers were being warned away from the area as a precaution, but the threat of mines may have been exaggerated.

"Three possible mines were sighted Sunday by the Navy destroyer Kidd and its anti-submarine helicopter about 15 miles north of Dubai," he said.

"But ... we have no concrete evidence that there are any mines there," he said.

Iraq said its warplanes attacked a ship off Iran Tuesday and bombed a weapons factory near Tehran, a power plant near the Iran-Soviet border and an oil pumping station in the south.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said a number of people were killed in air raids on its cities, and in Iraqi shelling of the southern cities of Khorramshahr and Abadan. Iran said its artillery shelled the Iraqi city of Iraq.

Also Tuesday, military analysts and diplomats said Iran is massing up to 20 divisions of Revolutionary Guards in the southern sector of the battlefield and may soon launch an offensive.

Iranian military units vary widely in strength, but a division averages around 10,000 men.

Parks Helms Will Seek Nomination To No. 2 Post

Reflector Staff Writer

Former legislator Parks Helms, a Charlotte attorney, announced today he would seek the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor and campaign on a platform emphasizing character and ethics.

The winner in the 1988 election "will determine the ethical and moral basis for the policy decisions that will guide us through the rest of this century," Helms said at a news conference at Pitt-Greenville Airport this morning.

In announcing his candidacy, Helms said North Carolina's new lieutenant governor will be confronted with some tough decisions in coming years.

"I think North Carolina is facing some fundamental political, social and economic changes," he said. "I think we have seen in recent years the tendency of the Legislature to deal with these problems in a partisan way."

"I believe that we need to recognize ... that as North Carolina changes from a basically agricultural state as we have increasing urbanization, we are going to have to make ethical and moral decisions that reflect the best interest of all the people of this state. I believe that it is going to require a kind of commitment that we have not had in the past."

The stopover in Greenville marked the second announcement of candidacy for Helms, who planned to make appearances in Greensboro, Asheville and Charlotte later in the day. Helms began the tour with a news conference in Raleigh at 8:30 a.m.

Helms, the second Democrat to formally announce his candidacy for the state's second-ranking office, challenged his opponents to participate in a series of debates. He said the debates would familiarize the electorate with each candidate's positions and record.

"I think it's important the character, conviction and courage of the individuals who make those decisions be carefully scrutinized and debated during the course of this campaign," he said.

Helms said North Carolinians "want leaders who will tell them the truth and tell them the facts — not politicians who misrepresent their records or the records of others. I promise the citizens of North Carolina that in this campaign and as lieutenant governor, I will tell them the truth."

State Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, is the only other announced contender for the Democratic nomination to succeed Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, who is expected to seek the Democratic nomination to challenge Republican Gov. Jim Martin. State Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, and Rep. Jim Crawford, D-Granville, are expected to announce their candidacies this fall.

Helms was a member of the state House from 1974 to 1984. In three of those sessions, he was rated one of the House's 10 most effective members by the non-partisan N.C. Center for Public Policy Research.

Helms said he would emphasize education, the economy and environmental protection as lieutenant governor. He said he would call for a review of the state's environmental laws and, if necessary, endorse tougher regulations than those imposed by the federal government.

Mountaneer Grapple

against the Mountaneers. ECU again takes on WVU this season, traveling to Morgantown, W. Va., this weekend. (AP Laserphoto)

Mountaineers Optimistic Despite Their 1-3 Start

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — West Virginia coach Don Nehlen says his Mountaineers haven't lost their fighting spirit, despite three consecutive losses and just three triumphs in their last 13 games.

"I haven't seen anybody down, and if I do I'm going to choke him, or get rid of him," Nehlen said Tuesday as he looked toward Saturday's contest against East Carolina. "I'm not going to have any player on our team who's not going to be up, so to speak, because misery loves company. If one of them is down, he's going to try and find a buddy."

The Mountaineers, 1-3, came up short against Pitt on Saturday during a 6-3 defensive battle in which two West Virginia fumbles contributed to the game's outcome.

The Pitt game followed losses to Ohio State and Maryland in which turnovers hurt the Mountaineers.

"Our team doesn't have any reason to be down," Nehlen said. "They played their hearts out and came up a little short. But I think our spirits are very good, myself."

Nehlen said East Carolina, 2-2, "is a very dangerous team," which, like West Virginia, has had a problem with turnovers.

"I want you to know, they do move the ball up and down the field against everybody they play," the Mountaineer coach said. "Had they not had a lot of turnovers, they would have scored a lot of touchdowns."

"But they'll go 30, 40, 50 yards and somebody drops the ball."

West Virginia holds a 5-0 edge in the meetings between the two teams, which first squared off in 1970. Last year, the Mountaineers scored a narrow 24-21 victory at Ficklen Stadium when Mike Timko found Harvey Smith for the game-winning touchdown with just six seconds to play.

Nehlen said the Pirates' Anthony Simpson, a 5-10, 245-pound senior fullback, will be especially hard for the Mountaineers to stop.

"Every time the ball is snapped, you will see Simpson going almost the same place, right straight ahead," Nehlen said of the back who has rushed for 303 yards on 64 carries for a 4.4 average.

"They either give him the ball or they don't and when they don't they go down the line and run the option."

The West Virginia coach also praised East Carolina quarterback Travis Hunter, who has rushed for 171 yards and passed for 224 yards this season.

"The kid is 5-11 and weighs 190 pounds and he's a tailback playing quarterback," Nehlen said. "Outstanding runner, good passer, but he can fly."

The West Virginia coach called the Pirates' offense "unusual" with its use of two wing backs and two wide receivers.

"I think they can present a lot of problems for our defense," Nehlen said. "In fact, as far as strategy is concerned, we probably have more of a problem this week than at any time because they do everything with the football."

Strike Positions Are Hardening

NEW YORK (AP) — Positions are continuing to harden as the NFL strike enters its ninth day, but word of possible picket-line crossings has started to spread.

While union head Gene Upshaw was continuing his cross-country tour Tuesday vowing to disrupt Sunday's games of replacement players, the Management Council's executive committee was continuing to take a hard line, remaining adamant that it will in no way give up its control of the game by acceding to the players' demand for free agency.

Meeting in New York, the council also formally announced that last week's missed games will not be made up. That will cost the 1,585 players anywhere from $60,000 for the highest-paid superstars to $4,000 for minimum-salaried rookies.

It was apparently money that is causing some of the league's bigger names to indicate they might be crossing the picket lines.

Among the players mentioned were Dallas' Danny White and Tony Dorsett and San Francisco's Joe Montana and Dwight Clark.

No new negotiations were scheduled and none are planned until at least after this weekend's games, the first to be played by teams of castoffs and other free agents. Each side also formally filed complaints with the National Labor Relations Board as they said they would.

Tuesday was also the final day that fans could get full refunds for season tickets and fans lined up at ticket windows around the nation to get back their money.

Meanwhile, hundreds of ticket holders lined up at the New England box office, and although no official count was available, Patriots General Manager Patrick Sullivan said his team appeared "to be leading the league right now" in refunded tickets.

Upshaw was in Atlanta and Elizabeth, N.J. to meet with members of striking teams from the area. He took a hard line in both places.

"We don't advocate violence, but we do advocate doing whatever's necessary to stop these games, and we will do it," Upshaw said after meeting with representatives of six teams in Atlanta.

"We'll haunt those games," Upshaw said. "They are really tearing down our product, and we don't like it."

Miami owner Joe Robbie, meanwhile, predicted before the owners' meeting that they would be even more united after Sunday's games and added: "This fight is over control of football, it's not over money."

"Owners are not going to surrender control of the games to the union," he said.

One game wiped out was the Giants at the Dolphins' new stadium, a privately financed edifice named for Robbie. The two teams had met just once previously.

"I just had the biggest gate in the history of pro football wiped out Sunday, my team against the Super Bowl champions," Robbie said. "It seems to me just willful destruction to wipe out a game like that."

Hugh Culverhouse, owner of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and chairman of the executive committee, said after the meeting that the owners had voted to allow any striking player who reports by the Friday before a game to be allowed to play that Sunday and be paid for the game.

He also said the teams will be allowed a 55-player roster, with only 45 allowed to dress each Sunday.

Culverhouse also reiterated that he didn't think negotiations would resume unless the players first gave up their demand for free agency. But he said that would be up to Jack Donlan, management's chief negotiator.

Donlan said he saw no prospect for early negotiations, but didn't rule out going back even if the union didn't immediately drop free agency.

"We don't think every position should be related to free agency," he said. "Insurance, pension, meal money and others shouldn't be tied to that one issue."

"What is clear to the players is that management is not bargaining with us," Upshaw said after meetings with 26 players from six teams in Elizabeth. "We've known it and now they (the players) are seeing it first hand. All we hear about is free agency. If the players would move off free agency we'd get a deal."

Upshaw said the union has addressed other issues in bargaining such as insurance, player representative protection and severance, but management has refused to bargain on any of those issues.

Unions Aiming To Divert Fans

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Striking players and friendly union workers are going to do all in their power to insure that there are more people outside NFL stadiums Sunday than inside watching replacement games, the head of the players union said.

National Football League Players Association Executive Director Gene Upshaw said Tuesday union workers in all 28 NFL cities have made commitments to help striking players disrupt replacement games.

"Our brothers and sisters in labor understand that this is a fight about the working man in this country," Upshaw said. "If the NFL can knock down a guy who makes $200,000 (a year), they can also knock down the little small labor unions in this country. ... Organized labor realizes if we fall, they fall with us."

Upshaw, who said he is not receiving a salary during the strike, refused to be specific on what labor would do to help, but he said violence was not being advocated. He added players would picket all replacement game sites.

Quarterback Jay Schroeder of the Washington Redskins said players realized they could not stop Sunday's replacement games.

"You can go out and picket and demonstrate," he said. "You can try to do things to take the fans away from the game. But there are going to be some fans who out of curiosity sake are going to be there to see the game. We just can't allow that many people to get in to see the games."

Gary Reasons, the New York Giants alternate player representative, said the players had a surprise planned for Sunday, but would not elaborate on that until today.

Upshaw met for 2½ hours with 26 players representing the Giants, Redskins, New York Jets, Philadelphia Eagles, New England Patriots and Buffalo Bills. Doug Flutie of the Chicago Bears and Brian Holloway of the Los Angeles Raiders also attended. The meeting with players was the last in a nationwide tour for Upshaw and his second stop of the day. Earlier, he talked with striking players for two hours in Atlanta.

Chargers, Panthers To Meet

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

When North Pitt and Ayden-Grifton meet Friday it will be a matchup of pre-season favorites in the Eastern Plains Conference, but while the Chargers have more than lived up to expectations, the Panthers have been plagued by injuries and poor play.

The Panthers, 1-2-1 on the year, and the Chargers, 4-1 so far, met for the conference championship last year and despite the different directions the teams appear headed, the game could still go a long way toward deciding who wins the title this season.

Injuries have been a big part of the Panthers' problems as starting quarterback Calvin Hunter went down with a foot injury in the first game of the year. Other injured starters include running back-defensive back Billy Hardison (ankle) and backup quarterback David Sawyer (bruised ribs, cracked sternum, bruised heart).

While the Panthers regrouped with an open date last Friday, the Chargers opened their EPC schedule with a 49-18 win over Pamlico.

Hunter's status for this week's game is doubtful and questionable, according to North Pitt coach Larry Bolger. If he is unable to go, sophomore Randy House will get the call.

During their off-week, the Panthers went back to basics, according to Bolger, and reshuffled things trying to find the right combinations.

The remaining question is, has it worked?

"I don't know to tell you the truth," Bolger said. "We tried to change some attitudes. Thursday we had a scrimmage and we're back on the right track. We had to find out who our hitters were going to be and that is going to be important going into our conference schedule, especially against North Pitt."

"We'll have people with a changed attitude but I don't know if we'll have any of our injured players."

While the loss of Hunter was a deep blow to North Pitt, he wasn't the sole reason the Panthers were highly touted in preseason.

"He is a big influence on their game," said Ayden-Grifton coach B.T. Chappell of the Panthers' senior signal caller. "But, there are 10 other people on the field besides him. With Jesse Frank and Tony Hopkins, just look at their lineup and the size of their players and they present a problem."

The Panthers do boast some incredible size for a 2-A team. Tackles Frank and Hopkins are 6-2, 278 pounds and 5-11, 260 pounds, respectively. Tight end Ashley Sheppard is 6-4, 215 pounds.

"I think the main thing is, we're really concerned about North Pitt," Chappell said. "They have good potential. We really don't know what to expect. They're the biggest and strongest team that we'll play."

While Chappell and the remainder members of the Charger coaching staff have their worries, Bolger has concerns of his own in trying to stop the Ayden-Grifton rushing attack, which has been chewing up huge amounts of yardage the last few weeks.

The ring leader for the Chargers is halfback Eric Blount, who has 377 yards on 59 carries. In the win over Pamlico, Blount had three scores, two by the run and one on an 80-yard pass play. As a team, the Chargers are averaging 290 yards a game in total offense.

"They're a good team," Bolger said. "They don't make a lot of mistakes. They've got some good horses to go to. Eric Blount looks to be running the show but we can't afford to key on Blount. They'll run (fullback Aaron) Harper up the middle or (halfback Tony) Reeves."

"Like I said at the beginning of the year, Ayden-Grifton is going to be the team to beat."

Bolger is hoping for an improved effort from his defense, which gave up 158-yards rushing to Roanoke's Marvin Earl Morning in a 31-12 loss.

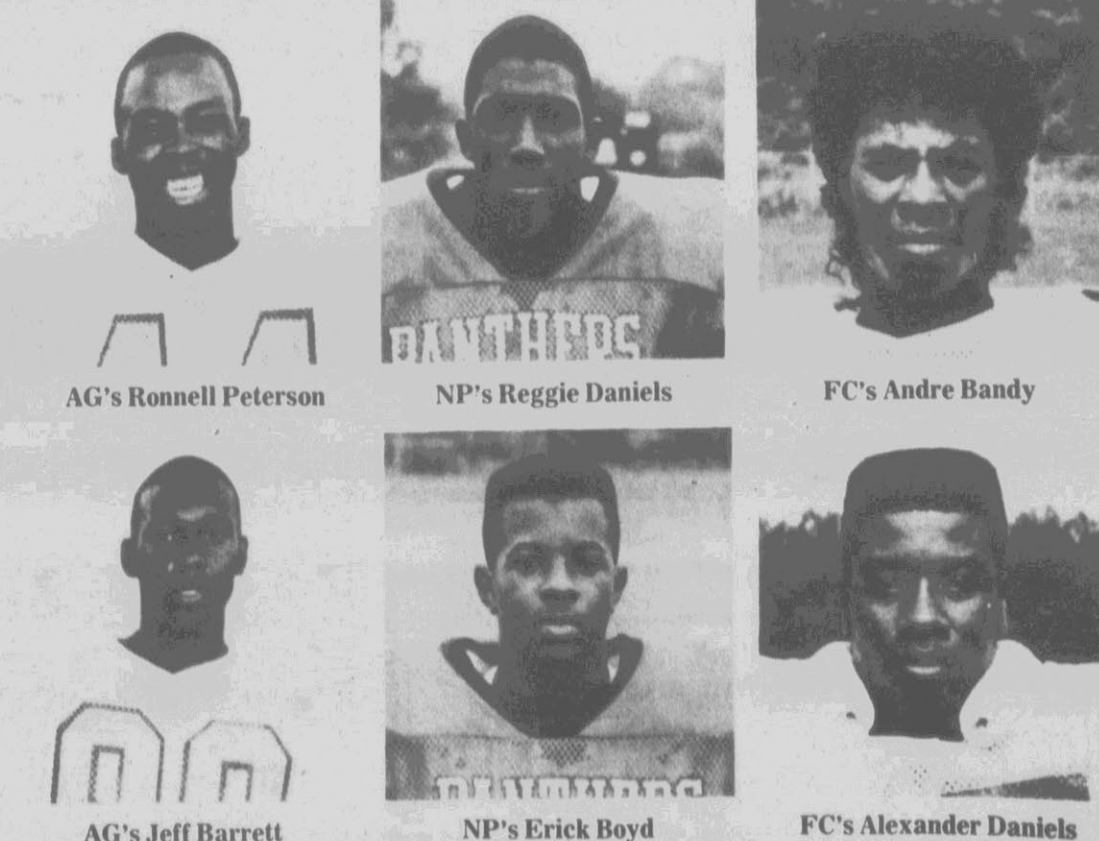

"We not going to be at full strength," Bolger said. "If our defense plays well and contains the running backs and the passing game and keeps it close, we'll be in it."

Chappell said the open date may

Poag Named Player Of The Week

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State quarterback Preston Poag, a redshirt freshman who engineered a 42-14 football victory over Maryland Saturday, has been chosen as the Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the week.

Poag, a 6-foot-2, 182-pounder from Dalton, Ga., who was making his first collegiate start Saturday, directed the Wolfpack to 25 first downs and 492 yards of total offense. Poag completed 15 of 21 passes for 166 yards and one touchdown, and added 36 yards and a 1-yard touchdown run on 10 rushing attempts as N.C. State snapped a three-game losing streak.

The selections were made by a special committee of the Atlantic Coast Conference Sports Writers Association, which this week named Virginia quarterback Scott Secules and North Carolina guard Pat Crowley as offensive players of the week, and Clemson linebacker Jesse Hatcher and Wake Forest defensive back A.J. Greene as the defensive players of the week.

Crum Juggling Tailbacks Again

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's Dick Crum may feel more like band conductor this weekend instead of football coach against No. 6 Auburn after another week of "musical tailbacks."

Crum is searching for some healthy runners. Starter Torin Dorn and reserve Kennard Martin are still nursing injuries and are "very questionable" for Saturday's 1 p.m. game. Senior Eric Starr is slated to start at tailback, Crum said at his weekly news conference Tuesday.

"If we had to play today, neither one of them (Dorn and Martin) would play," Crum said. Dorn still has a sore ankle he suffered in a season-opening victory over Illinois, while Martin has a slightly pulled hamstring, said Sports Information Director Rick Brewer.

"Our problem is we've played musical tailbacks," Crum said.

A near-record crowd of more than 50,000 is expected at Kenan Stadium for Saturday's game, North Carolina officials said.

"From our point of view, we're looking forward to getting home," Crum said. "Being on the road for three weeks kind of wears you out and I think it will be nice to be at home..."

The Tar Heels are 3-1, losing 28-0 to top-ranked Oklahoma, and defeating Georgia Tech 30-23 and Navy 45-14 in their last three road games. The Tigers are 2-0-1 and are coming off a 20-20 tie with 10th-ranked Tennessee.

With a depleted running attack, quarterback Mark Maye could be putting the ball in the air more, but Crum said his offense won't be changing much to counter Auburn's deadly pass rush.

"When you play a team like Auburn that is good defensively, you miss the boat if you go in there and put new plays in ...," he said. "You've got to execute the things you try to throughout the season."

Wake To Take On Wishbone

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest doesn't see the wishbone of defense often, but Demon Deacon football coach Bill Dooley says he's seen enough to know that Army has the troops to run the offense effectively.

Wake Forest, 3-0, travels to Army, 2-1, Saturday for a non-conference game.

"The wishbone is one of those things that makes it difficult because you don't see it often, and we haven't seen it all year," Dooley said Tuesday at his weekly news conference. "It requires your defense to be disciplined, they have to play assignment football because the wishbone is a dive, keep, pitch offense. Your defensive players have to play each area of responsibility first before they can go off and help somewhere else. Like anything else, if you saw it week in and week out, it wouldn't be as difficult."

Army's wishbone is so effective, Dooley said, because the Cadets have good people to execute it.

"Army quarterback Tory Crawford is one of the outstanding football players in the country," Dooley said. "He is the leading scorer in the country right now. Their football team is mostly made up of seniors on offense. They execute their attack very well, and Coach Jim Young has done an excellent job with them."

In the second match, Conley was led by the serving of Dee Barbee and Miriam Fulford, both of whom had serving strings of seven points each.

WILSON CHRISTIAN took a 15-3, 15-6 win over Greenville Christian in high school volleyball action Tuesday.

GCA's leading server was Christie Hardison with seven. Amber Tripp was the top hitter with 11 while Eric Spain had seven sets and four spikes.

GCA falls to 3-6 and returns to action Friday at Falls Raod.

DEEP RUN — Ayden-Grifton took a pair of wins in high school volleyball action Tuesday, topping Greene Central, 15-12, 15-5, and South Lenoir, 17-15, 15-8.

Details of the match were unavailable.

Dye Worried About Tar Heels

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — After playing to a 20-20 tie at Tennessee, the Auburn road show doesn't get any easier this week with a trip to North Carolina.

"They will have as good a people as we play against this year," Auburn Coach Pat Dye said Tuesday. "Pro scouts tell us they have as many prospects as anyone. And after looking at the film, I believe them."

"If you get right down to it, we're probably playing a better football team this week than we did last week."

The Tigers, 2-0-1, crushed Texas and Kansas before 10th-ranked Tennessee threw a hitch in their Southeastern Conference title hopes by rebounding from a 10-point deficit in the fourth quarter to salvage a tie last Saturday.

"It was a frustrating game for us not to win," Dye said at his weekly news conference. "I though both teams did a lot of good things, but we hurt ourselves some."

The only blemish on North Carolina's record is a 28-0 loss at top-ranked Oklahoma. The Tar Heels have defeated Illinois, Georgia Tech and Navy. Kickoff for Saturday's game at Kenan Stadium in Chapel Hill is set for noon CDT.

"They have a great quarterback in Mark Maye and a great tailback in Torin Dorn," Dye said of the Tar Heels. "They are a mature football team, especially the play of Maye. He has a stronger arm than (Tennessee quarterback) Jeff Francis and is a great field general."

Maye, a 6-foot-4, 200-pound senior, has thrown for 810 yards and five touchdowns, while Dorn is averaging nearly 10 yards a carry.

But North Carolina Coach Dick Crum said Dorn, a 6-foot-1, 200-pound sophomore, most likely won't be in the starting lineup because of an ankle injury and it is doubtful he will even play.

"He is our No. 1 tailback," Crum said in a telephone interview. "After that, we've got some good solid tailbacks but not in his class."

Senior Eric Starr will probably start in Dorn's place.

As far as his own team, Dye said, "compared to the start of the season, I think we are about where we ought to be. We're not where the press placed us."

Rose, Roanoke Both Win To Remain Undeclared

WILSON — Wendy Simpson and Gina Parrott remained undefeated on the year as they led Rose's girl's tennis team to a 6-3 win Wilson Fike Tuesday.

Roanoke is also 10-0 on the season and 7-0 in the conference.

called due to darkness.

Quarterback Jeff Burger has completed more than two-thirds of his passes — including five for touchdowns — but the inconsistency this year of the traditionally strong Auburn ground game continues to trouble Dye.

"The difference with our running game is that we don't have the guy who can break the long run," Dye said.

Crum said Auburn's defense, which has allowed only 23 points in three games, will cause trouble for his offense, which he described as "erratic."

"Auburn is a dominating-type team," he said. "Their defense, if it's not the best in the country, is probably one of the best."

Last AL Division Race Stays Alive As Tigers Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

There's one race left in the American League, and the Detroit Tigers are doing their best to make it interesting.

"We've got to do this the rest of the way," Bill Madlock said after his home run triggered the Tigers to a 10-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night and back into the thick of the American League East race.

Coupled with Toronto's 5-3 loss to Milwaukee, the Tigers' victory moved them within 1 1/2 games of the front-running Blue Jays. Detroit and Toronto close out the season with a three-game series this weekend in Tiger Stadium.

"If the Blue Jays lose one more, they'll for sure have to beat us here," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said. "I think everybody will feel the heat if it gets down to the last three, which will be wonderful."

In other games Tuesday night, the Texas beat the AL West champion Minnesota 7-5, New York defeated Boston 6-0, Chicago stopped California 1-0, Kansas City trimmed Seattle 6-3 and Oakland edged Cleveland 5-4.

Along with Madlock's first-inning solo homer, the Tigers also got a three-run shot from Chet Lemon in the fourth and a splendid pitching performance from Frank Tanana, who hurled three-hit ball over eight innings.

Tanana, 14-10, who had been winless and was 0-3 in his previous eight starts, picked up his first victory since Aug. 11. He struck out three and walked one.

The only run off Tanana came on Lee Lacy's seventh home run, in the fifth.

"My problems were mechanical," Tanana said. "(Pitching coach) Billy Muffett wanted me to flatten out my delivery. It took a while for that to sink into my head."

"Now, it helps my curveball, it helps my delivery, it helps my deception."

Eric Bell, 9-13, the first of five Baltimore pitchers, gave up five runs on five hits before leaving in the fourth inning.

Brewers 5, Blue Jays 3
Glenn Braggs knocked in two runs with a pair of singles and B.J. Surhoff homered as Milwaukee defeated Toronto.

The loss was the Blue Jays' third straight and marked the first time the team has lost more than two games in a row since an eight-game slide that ended July 7.

The Brewers, who have lost just once in their last seven outings, now have won eight of 12 games against the Blue Jays this season.

Milwaukee starter Chris Bosio earned the win with a seven-hitter to improve his record to 11-7.

Toronto starter Jimmy Key, 17-7, lasted 5 1/3 innings and lost for the first time since July 11. He gave up 12 hits and four earned runs, marking only the second time in his last 24 starts that he has yielded more than three earned runs.

Lloyd Moseby hit two homers to account for all three Toronto runs.

Rangers 7, Twins 5
Pete O'Brien and Geno Petralli homered in the eighth inning and Charlie Hough pitched a seven-hitter for Texas.

O'Brien's homer, his 23rd, came off reliever Keith Atherton, 7-5, and broke a 5-5 tie. Petralli followed with his second of the game and seventh of the year.

Texas trailed 5-3 before tying the game on a homer by Petralli and an RBI single by Ruben Sierra.

Hough, 18-12, went the distance for the 13th time.

Minnesota broke a 3-3 tie in the fifth when Gene Larkin doubled home Gary Gaetti from first. Randy Bush hit his 11th homer in the seventh to pad the lead to 5-3.

Yankees 6, Red Sox 0
Don Mattingly's major league record sixth grand slam home run of the season backed the four-hit pitching of Charles Hudson.

Mattingly's home run in the third inning gave the Yankees a 4-0 lead off Bruce Hurst, 15-13, and a fifth run scored on Bobby Meacham's groundout in the same inning.

Hudson, 11-6, walked one and struck out three in pitching his second shutout and fifth complete game of the season.

Mattingly broke a record set in 1955 by the Chicago Cubs' Ernie Banks and matched by Baltimore'd Jim Gentile in 1961.

White Sox 1, Angels 0
Floyd Bannister, backed by Steve Lyons' run-scoring double in the fifth, hurled a four-hitter through seven innings for Chicago.

Bannister, 15-11, allowed only one California batter to reach second base as he won for the 12th time in the last 16 starts. He walked one and struck out two before needing relief help from Bobby Thigpen, who pitched the last two innings for his 14th save.

Loser Mike Witt, 16-13, pitched a complete-game seven-hitter.

The White Sox, who have now won 13 of their last 16 games, broke a scoreless tie in the fifth after Witt had retired 14 in a row. Kenny Williams reached safely on a hit in the hole between second and third. After Williams took second on a wild pitch, Lyons doubled him home.

Royals 6, Mariners 3
Bo Jackson hit a two-run homer and Kansas City took advantage of three Seattle errors to score six unearned runs off Mark Langston.

Langston hit his 22nd home run in the second inning as Bud Black raised his record to 8-6. Langston, 18-13, had two of the errors but had eight strikeouts to raise his American League-leading total to 252 and erase his own club record of 245.

The Royals wiped out a 1-0 Seattle lead with Jackson's two-run homer in the second inning. After the Mariners tied it 2-2 in the fifth, Bill Pecota's RBI single broke the tie for the Royals.

Athletics 5, Indians 4
Mike Davis hit a two-out single off Cleveland reliever Doug Jones to break an eighth-inning tie and Mark McGwire hit his 49th homer for Oakland.

Steve Ontiveros, 10-8, survived early-inning problems to get the victory, allowing nine hits in eight innings. Dennis Eckersley pitched the final inning for his 15th save.

Terry Steinbach led off the Oakland eighth with a single off Jones, 6-5, who started the inning in relief of John Farrell. After Tony Phillips' failed sacrifice bunt forced pinch-runner Alfredo Griffin at second, rookie Walt Weiss lined his fourth hit of the game to send Phillips to third.

After Jones struck out Luis Polonia, he surrendered the game-winning hit to Davis as the A's broke a five-game losing streak.

Cardinals Hold Off Expos To Maintain Their Lead

By BILL BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The St. Louis Cardinals' strong pitching and opportunistic offense were never more in evidence.

The Cardinals took full advantage of a total of six hits in the doubleheader and held Montreal to seven as they swept the Expos 1-0 and 3-0 Tuesday night.

The sweep, combined with Philadelphia's 3-0 victory over New York, gave the Cardinals a 3 1/2-game lead over the second-place Mets in the National League East race. The Cardinals have five games remaining and the Mets four, including three at St. Louis to close the season.

"It's not always how many (hits) you total, it's when you hit them," said Ozzie Smith, whose hit-and-run single through a vacant shortstop hole set up Tommy Herr's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning of the opener.

"It hasn't been easy. We are short our big hitter (Jack Clark). The ballclub's just responded."

Joe Magrane, 9-7, pitched a three-hitter in the opener and Greg Mathews, 11-11, and Todd Worrell combined on a four-hitter in the second game.

Worrell, who allowed one hit in the last three innings, earned his 33rd save after taking over for Mathews with no outs and runners on second and third in the seventh inning. Worrell got Hubie Brooks on a pop foul and struck out Tim Wallach and Andres Galarraga.

"It was unbelievable," Herr said of Worrell's performance. "I think he threw 11 pitches — two strikeouts and a popup to shut 'em down... that was, I think, the key to the game."

In other NL games, it was Cincinnati 5, Atlanta 4; Los Angeles 6, Houston 1, and San Francisco 5, San Diego 3. Chicago at Pittsburgh was postponed because of rain.

The Cardinals got their three runs and all three of their second-game hits in the sixth against Bryn Smith, 10-9, but two of them were bunts after Tony Pena's bloop double. Willie McGee and Herr both had sacrifice flies in the inning.

In the opener, Vince Coleman walked in the sixth inning, advanced to third on Smith's hit-and-run single and scored on Herr's fly ball off Dennis Martinez, 11-4, who allowed three hits in eight innings.

"If you'd told me coming to the ball park that we'd score (only) four runs, I'd have said I hoped we'd score them all in one game," Herr said. "We really needed to have something like this happen. Now we're obviously in the driver's seat. It just goes to show there's more to this game than just hitting."

With the two victories, combined with the Mets' loss, St. Louis reduced its magic number to two for the divisional crown. Any combination of two Cardinals victories or New York defeats will win for St. Louis.

"We win two more games and we're in," Manager Whitey Herzog said. "Our pitching tonight was just outstanding — it really was."

"We couldn't get anything started. Everyone was trying to hit a home run," Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers said. "We weren't moving runners along with the few chances we had. In that second game, we looked like a bunch of high schoolers."

Montreal fell five games off the pace with the two defeats and can do no better than tie for the title.

Phillies 3, Mets 0
Philadelphia left-hander Don Carman thwarted New York's title hopes with a near-perfect game and said he was happy to help the Cardinals.

Carman allowed only one baserunner — an infield single by Mookie Wilson in the fourth inning — and Mike Schmidt drove in two runs for the Phillies.

"Obviously everybody is rooting for the Cardinals and I'm one of them too," Carman said. "I don't like their (the Mets') approach, the high-fiving when they're ahead 5-0."

Shortstop Steve Jeltz cut off Wilson's grounder toward the hole to the left of second base, and just missed throwing him out at first.

Juan Samuel and Milt Thompson singled in the first off David Cone, 5-6, and both runners advanced on Samuel James' sacrifice before Chris Schmidt scored on Schmidt's groundout.

In the third, Philadelphia made it 2-0 on Schmidt's RBI single.

Giants 5, Padres 3

San Francisco, which has clinched the West Division title, handed San Diego its sixth consecutive loss although Benito Santiago extended his rookie record hitting streak to 31 with an eighth-inning homer.

Francisco Melendez went 4-for-4 and Jesse Reid hit a home run in his first major league at-bat for the Giants.

Santiago's two-run homer off Giants reliever Scott Garrelts also extended his all-time record for catchers hitting in consecutive games.

Kelly Downs, 11-9, was the winner with six innings of five-hit pitching.

Reid led off the second inning a homer to center off Padres starter Jimmy Jones, 8-7, who lasted just three innings.

Randy Kutcher followed with a triple and scored when Mark Wasinger grounded to third baseman Randy Ready, whose throw to the plate went to the backstop. Wasinger went to second on the error, advanced to third on a grounder and scored on a sacrifice fly by Downs.

Dodgers 6, Astros 1

Los Angeles got a two-run homer from Franklin Stubbs in the first inning and rookie Shawn Hillegas held Houston to three hits in six innings.

Hillegas, 3-3, outduelled Nolan Ryan, 8-15, who pitched seven innings and gave up four runs on six hits. Ryan struck out nine as he retained the major-league lead with 260, eight more than Seattle's Mark Langston.

Alejandro Pena allowed two hits in the last three innings for his 10th save.

Steve Sax singled in the first and scored when Stubbs hit his 16th homer. Mike Scioscia hit a two-run single in the third to make it 4-0.

Reds 5, Braves 4

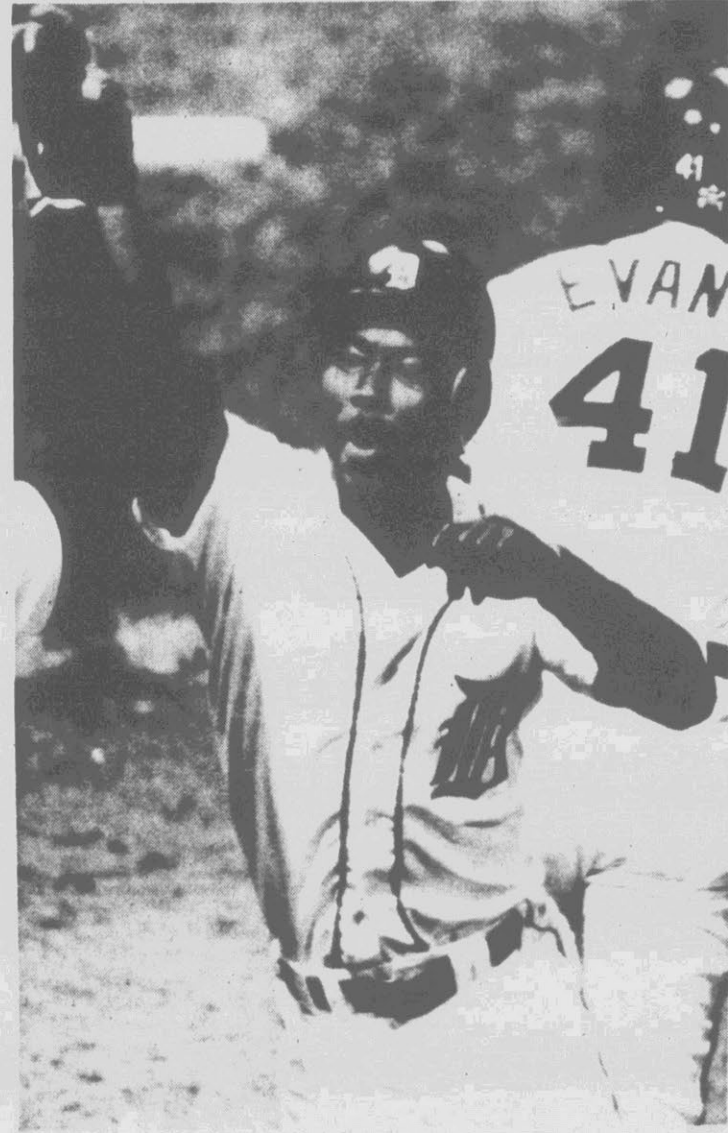

Cincinnati defeated Atlanta in a rain-delayed afternoon game on Buddy Bell's RBI single in the ninth inning.

Paul O'Neill drew a one-out walk from Jim Acker, 4-7, and went to second on Dave Parker's single. Bell then pulled a single down the third base line for the tiebreaking run.

Pat Perry, 5-2, got the final out in the top of the ninth after the Braves had rallied to tie the game 4-4 on a fielding error by Parker.

Reds reliever Rob Murphy appeared in his 84th game of the season, the most ever by an NL left-hander. He broke the mark of 83 set last year by San Diego's Craig Lefferts.

The two teams were really marching up and down the field in the 1985 Super Bowl. The winning San Francisco 49ers made 31 first downs and the Miami Dolphins had 19.

Havelock Moves To Top Of State 3-A Rankings

By DAVID DROSHAK
 Associated Press Writer

Undefeated Havelock, runner-up to Shelby in the state championship football ranking in North Carolina five weeks into the season.

The Rams, 4-0, received six first-place votes and 147 points from a statewide panel of prep sports writers Tuesday to edge last week's top squad Burlington Cummings, still undefeated but a close winner over Burlington Williams last week. Cummings had eight top votes and 144 points.

Also jumping into the 3-A rankings for the first time was Burns, 4-0. The Bulldogs defeated previously-ranked Kings Mountain 17-5 last Friday and placed seventh in the poll with 42 points.

Greensboro Page in 4-A, Whiteville in 2-A and Murphy in 1-A retained their top billings.

Page, 4-0 and having outscored its opponents 156-13, received seven first-place votes and 143 points and edged defending state champion Fayetteville 71st for the fourth straight week. The Falcons got five top votes and 133 points.

Garner, 5-0, moved ahead of Gastonia Ashbrook into third, while the remainder of the 4-A rankings stayed unchanged with New Hanover, Rocky Mount, Waynesville Tuscola, Greenville Rose, Northern Durham and Kannapolis Brown.

East Wake and Central Cabarrus moved up to No. 3 and No. 4 in the 3-A rankings after Forest Hills lost and fell to No. 8.

The rest of the 3-A rankings included Shelby, Asheboro, Brevard and Burlington Williams.

Whiteville, with eight first-place votes and 132 points, remained the top dog in 2-A, but Thomasville's loss to No. 3 Lexington mixed the teams. The Yellow Jackets, two-time defending champion, moved up five notches with their victory, while Thomasville fell to No. 6.

Swain County, also 5-0, received the remaining top vote and 116 points.

Red Springs moved up to No. 3, followed by Cherokee, newcomer North Moore, Northampton-West, Hendersonville, Bath, Robbinsville and newcomer St. Pauls.

Following are The Associated Press' top North Carolina high school football teams as voted on by a panel of sports writers from across the state, with the team, record, number of first-place votes, total votes and ranking last week:

Garner Top Team In Reflector Poll

Garner, East Wake, Lexington and Swain County top the first of this year's Daily Reflector High School rankings this week.

The rankings, which rate a team on its performance against its strength of schedule, will move significantly each week, becoming more and more accurate as the season runs out.

Each of the four classifications are ranked separately, but inter-divisional games are, of course, counted in play. Teams which play down from their division are not given the same credit for victories, while those who play up are given additional credit.

Points are awarded to Team A for each victory it records. In addition, more points are awarded each time a team Team A has beaten claims a win.

This Garner, 5-0, on the season has won points for victories over five teams, who have, among them won 10 games. Victories over 4-A teams are worth at least four points, over a 3-A team, at least three, over a 2-A team, at least two and over a 1-A team, at least one. Ties split points awarded on each level.

Teams which have not had their open date also tend to have an edge over teams which have had their open date. That even out as the year goes along, however.

Tennessee Officials Deny Wrongdoing

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee sports officials deny suggestions in a published report that they looked away during athletes' selling of complimentary game tickets and that a subsequent school probe was conducted improperly.

"I will make one statement and one statement only in regard to the Sport magazine article," Volunteers football Coach Johnny Majors said Tuesday in a news conference prior to his weekly talk with sportswriters.

"To the extent the article suggests I knowingly participated in or had knowledge of violations, or attempted to cover up such violations, it is untrue," he said.

Both he and Tennessee athletic director Doug Dickey responded to charges in the November issue of Sport that they covered up improper benefits and cash payments to football players.

The magazine also said scores of players, former coaches and Volunteer athletic boosters described a system of giving clothing, airplane tickets and other gifts to athletes in violation of NCAA rules.

"I think any insinuation we were hiding anything or trying to cover up something is entirely misleading," Dickey said.

The magazine quoted former Volunteer Tim McGee, now a wide receiver with the Cincinnati Bengals, as saying he and other Tennessee players sometimes were slipped cash in handshakes with boosters outside the locker room after winning games.

"I met my booster and I started selling him my tickets," Sport quotes McGee as saying.

However, McGee, who showed up prior to Majors' Tuesday news conference, told reporters he was misquoted and added he did not believe coaches knew of any pattern of ticket-selling abuse.

"I did not say that," McGee said. "They (the interviewers) said they'd heard a lot of players got $100 handshakes after the game and I said had too. I meant I'd heard about it too."

The article said players sold tickets for up to $2,000 a year, with the price swelling according to how successful and popular the player was.

However, Dickey said the university stands by last year's investigation which concluded there was no system of ticket abuse.

Dickey said a four-man investigating panel, which spent six months probing allegations of extra benefits to players, would read through the article for new charges requiring review.

The panel did decide that Majors failed to report former quarterback have been a blessing in disguise for the Panthers.

"I'm sure the way things were going, they needed to take a week off and make some adjustments," Chappell said. "And I think it is going to help them. It's a big rivalry between the two schools. There's a lot of factors that ought to help both teams get ready to play."

It's a game that has been circled on the schedules of both teams since the first day of practice. The rivalry speaks for itself.

Last year, North Pitt handed Ayden-Grifton its only conference loss of the year, 7-6, forcing a two-way tie for the EPC title. The Chargers also lost the conference's top playoff seed with that loss.

"I think some of the players, the seniors, are well aware of the fact that the ballgame knocked them out of sole possession of first place," Chappell said. "It ought to make us a little more attentive in practice."

For the Panthers, the game could have come at a more opportune time.

"It could have come at a better time," Bolger said. "We'd certainly like to go into the games against the best with our best people (available) but it doesn't look like we're going to be able to accomplish that."

Farmville Central

The Jaguars also open conference play Friday, taking on C.B. Aycock and single-wing offensive formation.

The Falcons are off to a surprising 4-1 mark this season under new head coach Harvey Brooks.

"They are a vastly improved team and both teams will be highly motivated," said Jaguar coach Dixon Sauls. "The team which makes the fewest turnovers will win the ballgame."

Farmville opened conference play last Friday with a 33-8 win over South Lenoir while C.B. Aycock pulled off a 16-13 upset win over Greene Central.

While Sauls has been happy with the play of the Jaguars thus far, he would like to see them develop a little more consistency.

"We're playing well for stretches in ballgames," he said. "Then we seem to have mental lapses. We were able to overcome our loss of momentum in the second quarter this week. (But) against a quality opponent, you can't have those mental breakdowns and expect to come out with a victory."

While the Jaguars have utilized a strong running game, led by Gary Moore with 448 yards, they have also attempted to upgrade their passing game. Moore scored on a 65-yard pass play against South Lenoir. And, according to Sauls, Farmville could have had a number of other big plays.

"We just missed on six or seven passes and that was encouraging," he said. "We don't expect to hit all of them but we do expect to hit some of them. We only hit three of 12 passes."

Farmville will have its hands full with Aycock's offensive set, which is led by Corey Dickerson.

"We must play solid defense and adjust to the unbalanced line," Sauls said. "They are really overloaded on one side. Dickerson is the key to their offense. He is a very explosive runner (but) we can't get carried away just looking into the backfield. The linemen are still going to tell you where the ball is going."

"We talked that our defense needs to improve to beat good football teams. Our approach to the game is that we'll be concerned with what we do rather than C.B. Aycock."

Athletes from Syracuse University, traveling to the 1900 Olympics in Paris, made the trip on an oil tanker, guests of an oil man.

Senators File Legislation To Replace Dollar Bill With A New Dollar Coin

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A move is afoot to replace the $1 bill with a coin, despite the failure of the Susan B. Anthony dollar coin that was introduced in 1979.

Advocates of the changeover say it would reduce government spending, hold down the cost of vending-machine products, aid the visually handicapped and remove hidden costs of what they call the outmoded dollar bill.

Sens. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., and John W. Warner, R-Va., and Reps. Jim Kolbe, R-Ariz., and Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., introduced legislation Tuesday to begin minting a new coin dollar which would be "gold in color" but made of 90 percent copper.

It would retain the dimensions of the Susan B. Anthony dollar, but would be made without the reeding, or small ribs on the edges.

Kolbe, one of the early supporters of the change, said minting the Anthony dollar in the late 1970s was a sensible acknowledgement of inflation.

"The 'Susie' failed, not because the need didn't exist, but because it was an alternative dollar rather than a replacement dollar," he said. "The coin lacked public support because it looked and felt like a quarter. It was about the same size, it was the same color, and it had the same reeded edge."

However, Kolbe acknowledged that public support must be generated for the new proposal.

"This is a long-term project," he said. "It is not going to happen quickly. We have to generate a lot more steam."

various vaults around the country, out of 800 million that were minted.

The new coin would bear the likeness of Christopher Columbus, in honor of the 500th anniversary of his landing in America.

Udall joked that Domenici, New York Gov. Mario Cuomo and House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J. — all of Italian descent — declined the honor, "so we settled on the likeness of Columbus."

The legislators and the Coin Coalition, a diverse group of retailers, vending machine operators and metal producers and fabricators, say American taxpayers would save more than $50 million annually if a coin replaced the dollar bill. They say each coin would last 20 years while bills average just 18 months before they are shredded.

Federal Agencies Kept Writers' Files

By CHARLES TRUEHEART
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service
WASHINGTON — For more than 50 years, the FBI and other federal agencies gathered massive intelligence files on some of America's most distinguished writers, apparently because their work or behavior was considered subversive, suspicious or unconventional, according to two forthcoming magazine articles.

The disclosures, based on documents obtained under the Freedom of Information Act, will be published this week — apparently by coincidence — in The New Yorker and The Nation magazines.

Ernest Hemingway, Theodore Dreiser, John Steinbeck, John Dos Passos, Pearl Buck, Archibald MacLeish, Thomas Wolfe, Carl Sandburg, Edna St. Vincent Millay, William Carlos Williams and William Faulkner are among the scores of prominent writers whose work, personal associations and political sentiments piqued the interest of the FBI as early as the 1920s.

Although the government's interest in the activities of some of these writers, like Sandburg and Dos Passos, was known previously, the extent and tenacity of its efforts were not.

House Passes Bill Creating Panel On Ocean Problems

By CHRISTOPHER CALLAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A special commission to study ocean problems and recommend changes in federal policy would be created under a measure approved by the House.

Lawmakers, who passed the bill Tuesday on a 311-93 vote, cited the pollution that forced the closing of some East Coast beaches this summer as evidence of the need for a reassessment.

"We do need a master plan to protect our oceans," said Rep. Jim Saxton, R-N.J. "The time is now for a new look at our oceans."

The National Oceans Policy Commission would be charged with looking at problems such as pollution, coastal zone management, fisheries conservation and acid rain in the oceans and Great Lakes. It would make policy recommendations within two years.

The 17-member panel would cost about $2 million.

"Our oceans and Great Lakes are susceptible to a vast array of environmental, economic and political problems. Too often we find ourselves dealing with these problems on an individual basis without a clear-cut national policy or strategy," said Rep. William J. Hughes, D-N.J.

House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Chairman Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., said the panel would "develop a vision for the future" in much the same way the Stratton Commission recommended policies that shaped ocean policy through the 1970s and into the 1980s.

That panel issued recommendations in 1969 that led to establishment of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972 and the Marine Protection, Research and Sanctuaries Act of 1972.

Hughes and Saxton said this summer's beach closings threatened tourism and fishing alike.

"Along the East Coast we've had major problems with all kinds of trash and garbage slicks, plastic slicks, green tides, red tides, black tides, beach closings — you name it, we've had it," Hughes said.

The House passed a similar bill in 1983, but the Senate took no action.

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., has introduced this year's bill in the Senate. A hearing is expected this fall, said Weicker aide Hank Price.

The Reagan administration opposes the measure, saying it would duplicate the function of already established federal agencies that are developing ocean policies.

Army Storing New Helicopters Because Of Shortage Of Pilots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has been forced to park dozens of new AH-64 Apache helicopter gunships costing $11.5 million each because it doesn't have enough trained pilots to fly them, officials say.

The Army said Tuesday that disruptions in pilot-training schedules are not unusual when a new type of aircraft is introduced. A spokesman also asserted that the service would "rather have the machines sitting there waiting than have excess pilots trained with no aircraft to fly."

But the spokesman, Maj. Phil Soucy, also acknowledged that 20 percent of the Apaches built for the Army thus far are now sitting on the tarmac outside the McDonnell Douglas Helicopter Co.'s production plant in Mesa, Ariz.

As of Aug. 31, the Army had 55 of the sophisticated aircraft parked at the Mesa facility, Soucy said.

"Pilot training has fallen behind schedule, thus delaying unit activations and increasing the number of aircraft remaining at Mesa," the spokesman said.

The Army, without publicity, has twice revised its original "fielding plan" to activate Apache combat battalions.

It is now activating its fifth Apache battalion, Soucy said. Two years ago, however, when the original fielding plan was developed, "we had hoped to have nine battalions activated at this point," he continued.

"We're not going to catch up completely until fiscal 1991," Soucy said.

Each aviation battalion consists of 18 Apaches.

Soucy agreed to discuss the matter Tuesday following a report on the program published by the trade magazine, "Armed Forces Journal." That publication criticized the service for allowing more than $600 million worth of new helicopters "to sit baking in the Arizona sun."

The Apache is a two-seat helicopter gunship that is replacing the Vietnam War-era Cobra as the Army's primary attack helicopter. Designed to knock out enemy tanks, the Apache is powered by two engines and carries Hellfire and Hydra 7 missiles and a 30mm cannon. Each AH-64 costs about $11.5 million, and the Army plans to buy a total of 573.

Soucy, in reviewing the program Tuesday, said the Apaches parked at Mesa are not suffering any wear or tear in the dry desert heat. He also said the Army had decided from the beginning of the program that it would use the Arizona plant as a base for 24 Apaches designated for a "contingency fleet" to respond to emergencies.

The number parked at Mesa has grown to 55 instead of 24, he said, because pilot training schedules were disrupted by safety grounding orders and by a problem encountered more than a year ago — but since corrected — with the simulators used for training.

The Apache has been grounded three times over the past two years, most recently in late August. The Army announced Sept. 10 it would start returning the helicopters to service gradually after replacing a key component of each copter's tail rotor assembly.

of the Nation article includes a list of the 134 writers whose files were released to author Natalie Robins, who is preparing a book on the subject. Several of the writers on her list are still alive, E.L. Doctorow, Norman Mailer, Elizabeth Hardwick, Howard Fast, Kay Boyle and William F. Buckley Jr. among them.

Reached for comment Tuesday, Boyle said dryly that when she saw her file, she was surprised to discover "that I had a love affair with Ezra Pound — when I was 10 years old."

The author of The New Yorker article, journalist Herbert Mitgang, writes that "despite the millions of dollars spent on investigative man-hours and record-keeping, none of the writers — more than fifty men and women — whose dossiers I looked into were ever convicted of any crime attributed to them by the F.B.I. or other federal agencies." Mitgang's account appears in the Oct. 5 issue of the magazine, on the newsstands Wednesday.

Although the FBI opened dossiers — some of them hundreds of pages long — on many writers whose work expressed sympathy for the poor or solidarity with minorities, so-called "social realists" like Steinbeck and Dos Passos, the Bureau's curiosity about such figures as Hedda Hopper, Gertrude Stein and Truman Capote remains a mystery.

Tailgating Had Historical Start ... Even At Bull Run

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Believe it or not, tailgating did not originate in Greenville.

The first tailgate picnic recorded in history occurred in 1861 at the First Battle of Bull Run, according to an article in the November issue of "Sport" magazine. It was written by Glen Waggoner.

The art of tailgating was created "when the flower of Washington D.C.'s high society sallied out to the rolling hills near the hamlet of Manassas to watch the heavily favored Blues blow away the underdog Grays," Waggoner said.

"But when Knute Lincoln's boys got away from their game plan, and Al — sorry, Jeff — Davis' offense came out throwing, ... D.C. had to hop back in their carriages and hightail it back across the Potomac before they'd even had time to finish their fried chicken," he said.

The moral, Waggoner said, is to "make sure you get to the parking lot early."

Many Pirate fans know the value of that adage as a few hours before each home football game at East Carolina University, station wagons, vans, Volkswagon Beetles — they're all there — pull up on a grassy field near the stadium. The trunks are popped open and out comes the food.

The ole timers really know how to do it. They're the ones with the gold or purple tablecloth, the reclining lounging chairs and the huge picnic baskets of food, which were carefully prepared at home. Many of them lump together in one big circle or a long line so they can freely converse during their meal.

The tailgaters of the '80s are the ones sitting on top of the car or in the grass eating their favorite meal from a chicken or hamburger restaurant.

But, tailgating not only offers the opportunities to get a good parking place and a good meal. It's also a time to chat with fellow students or alumni, and the kids have a great time playing volleyball, touch football or just running between parked cars.

Financial Executive Devotes Spare Time To UFO Ledger

By MITCH WEISS
Associated Press Writer

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — When John Timmerman gazes at the night sky for stars he also looks for unidentified flying objects.

Timmerman, a marketing vice president for a Lima savings and loan, is also vice president of public relations for the Center for UFO Studies in Chicago. He has interviewed hundreds of people who claim to have seen UFOs and some who said they had been abducted by extraterrestrials.

He says he's not trying to persuade anybody that space aliens exist.

"I'm just trying to let the people who have these experiences know that we'd like to talk to them and make their cases part of our study," he said.

Timmerman said a man in Delphos had recently seen something that looked like a UFO on the outskirts of the northwest Ohio town. He said he would investigate the sighting.

"I'm not saying it was an extraterrestrial craft or UFO ... it's just that we don't know yet what it was. Many of these things end up being explained. But the ones that don't ... are the ones that remain in the file as the material from which we do studies of the phenomenon. And we have thousands of those. We have over 80,000 good cases on file in Chicago."

Timmerman has never seen a UFO, but says he asks a battery of questions of those who have to determine if the sighting can be extraterrestrial.

"Often they see the planet Venus and they don't recognize it," he said. "Sometimes under the right conditions, Venus, and sometimes Jupiter, can be seen in the daylight. You have to know a little bit about astronomy and a little bit about human psychology."

He says there have been 40 to 50 UFO sightings in the Lima area that he considers valid. Because he has gone public with his research, he feels more people in the area are apt to come to him if they see something in the sky they can't explain.

"They know I'm interested in the subject so they're willing to talk," he said. "That might occur elsewhere if there were a John Timmerman in Toledo or someplace else who had equal visibility to trust and take the information."

He became interested in UFOs shortly after graduating from Cornell University in 1947, the year he read a newspaper account of a pilot who said he had seen nine silver objects hover near his plane. Timmerman calls that the first publicly discussed UFO sighting.

Later that year, he became involved in a study at Ohio Northern University which examined UFO sightings in the Midwest.

His interest in the subject waxed and waned until 1979, when someone from Ohio State University who was active in UFO research spoke to a local group. After the lecture, Timmerman told her of his interest, and she recommended he contact the Chicago center.

He was asked to join its board of directors. He now helps the center with publicity and recently attended

Farmer, His Daughter-In-Law Are Firmly Hooked On Mules

HATFIELD, Minn. (AP) — Bud Burnap is a dyed-in-the-wool lover of mules and donkeys with a slightly offbeat sense of humor.

The 68-year-old farmer said he had got "hooked" about 12 years ago. His 1,000-acre farm is now home to at least 13 mules and donkeys, some of which he owns in partnership with his daughter-in-law, Carolyn.

Carolyn has picked up her father-in-law's love for these long-eared critters and laughs right along with him when they talk about the number of horses, mules and donkeys they own.

In addition to the mules and donkeys, they also own 17 horses. The pair admits their spouses would like to see that total reduced to "about four." They can't bring themselves to sell any of them, they said.

In addition to the herd they own outright, Carolyn and Bud have an active business breeding mules and donkeys.

Bud's sense of humor has prompted many friends to label him as a "character," a description even Carolyn uses lovingly.

A visitor gets a clue of what to expect on arrival at the Burnap farm. Several rough-hewn signs mark the driveway's entrance including one that reads "Ass Flats."

The senior Burnap and wife, Dorothy, are the fourth generation to operate the clan's 1,000-acre farm that runs along the Root River. The farm was first settled in 1855 and today Carolyn and Jim, Bud's son, share the operation.

Bud's pride and joy is Burnap 21, the second mammoth jack (male donkey) to make its home in Minnesota. Bud points out the donkey is a black jack, so, of course, it was logical in his mind to put 21 in its name — the winning total in the game of blackjack.

Carolyn and Bud emphasize that all of the donkeys, mules and horses are working animals on the farm. In addition to 40 head of milk cows, they feed beef cattle. The beef cattle have the run of the hills that make up a big chunk of the farm, so the horses, mules and donkeys come in handy during roundups.

For the uninitiated, a mule is cross between a donkey and horse. Mules cannot be bred to each other. Donkeys are a breed themselves and can be bred to each other or with horses.

Croquet King Wears His Farmer's Cap

STAMPING GROUND, Ky. — Archie Burchfield suited up in his whites — polo shirt, slacks, socks, shoes — for the visiting cameraman. Then he ruined the effect. He put on his "Kentucky Farmer" cap. It wasn't white.

Non-uniform cap and all, he went out by the tobacco-drying barn on his 60 acres in this tiny hamlet in the hills of Eastern Kentucky to demonstrate his game.

Archie is the fastest player in championship croquet. He walks up to the ball. Bam! He drives it through wickets from 30, 40 and 50 feet away.

He shows off. He places a ball a couple of feet in front of a wicket and makes one of his famous "jump" shots. He hits his ball over the blocking ball and it sails through the wicket. He repeats the shot several times. This is no fluke.

Croquet King Is A Farmer

Burchfield, 49, is a national champion of six-wicket croquet, a game that for more than a century in America has been the sport of millionaires, the passionate pastime of the upper crust and the very rich.

Archie Burchfield is an outsider at an insider's game.

"I'm a different breed, like a checker player hornin' in on a chess group," allowed the husky, handsome, 6-foot 1-inch dirt farmer from Stamping Ground, population 600. For Archie, $15,000 a year from the farm is big income. For some of his fellow croquet players, $15,000 would be a poor week.

Croquet is a big game in Kentucky. "But not six-wicket croquet that the rich folks play," explains Archie. "We play the traditional nine-wicket game." Here in the Bluegrass state, croquet is played on clay.

When Archie became a national champion, though, he built the only grass croquet court in the state on his farm. It is also the only six-wicket court in Kentucky.

It is lighted and he practices three to four hours a day, mostly at night after farming through the daylight hours.

Nobody has ever played croquet in Kentucky the way Archie Burchfield plays it. He won the state singles championship in 1970, '71, '72, '76, '79, '80, '82 and '85. He and his partners won doubles titles in '73, '76, '85 and '86.

As always, Archie was at the Kentucky championship this year (he was eliminated in the first round), but he would have liked to have been at the Meadowood Resort at St. Helena in Northern California that early September weekend for the Domaine Mumm Croquet Classic.

For the first time in the history of championship croquet, 28 of the top doubles players were competing for a money purse — $15,000 — with a first prize of $5,000, second prize of $3,500 with lesser amounts to other teams.

"We were hoping Archie would make it," said Damon Bidencope, 27, Meadowood's croquet pro in a phone interview. "Archie is a stellar player, a clever tactician. He has tremendous ball skill, is excellent at reading his opponent and is a real crowd pleaser. But he never misses the Kentucky championships."

However Bidencope and Burchfield teamed up to win the 1987 U.S. Croquet Association's national doubles at the Tennis Hall of Fame in Newport, R.I., last week.

"Prize money is what the sport badly needs," Archie said earlier, at the tobacco farm where he also runs 30 head of Charolais beef cattle. "Can you imagine tennis or golf played only for trophies, as we do? Hardly anyone knows about the sport of championship six-wicket croquet."

The nation's championship caliber croquet players are counting on the Meadowood purse to change everything. "Other money tournaments will follow and when that happens, we will get TV coverage and championship croquet will come onto its own. It will go over big on television. Championship croquet is a super spectator sport," said the Kentucky croquet king.

Aurora Museum Displays Relics

AURORA — Is there such a thing as a friendly shark?

Definitely so at the Aurora Fossil Museum. Here, the life has gone from these terrifying creatures, and all that remains is an interesting display of their teeth. These great fish did their biting millions of years ago, in the waters of the Atlantic Ocean, which once covered Aurora and much of eastern North Carolina.

The museum has more to offer than just shark's teeth. The public can also view the fossilized remains of other marine life, and traces of early man in eastern North Carolina. The fossil museum is a joint project of the town of Aurora and Texasgulf.

Museum hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and admission is free. For more information contact Jerry Hughes in the Public Relations Department at Texasgulf.

Millions of years ago, the songs of the humpback whales drifted through the waters over what is now Aurora. But now, the music wells up from a record presentation the music offers.

U.S. Rockers Get Invitation To Put On Concerts In Israel

By DEBORAH CAULFIELD
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, in an unprecedented appearance before a group of key recording industry executives, personal managers, agents and lawyers, said that rock music was "like praying" to some Israeli youth and exhorted them to "come pray with our young people, so they will celebrate our 40th anniversary" in 1988.

The gathering at the Beverly Hills Hotel Sunday was organized by rock entrepreneur Danny Goldberg, the president of Gold Mountain Records who is generally considered to be a lightning rod to liberal political activists in the music industry, and was the first step in organizing a proposed anniversary-peace concert in Israel next summer.

The 100-plus guests represented a cross-section of the music industry, with strong ties to major music talents. Among them: Irving Azoff, president of MCA's Entertainment Group; A&M Records vice-president Jeff Gold; and personal managers Mike Gormley (the Bangles, Oingo Boingo,) and Michael Lippman (George Michael).

(A last-minute addition to the guest list was former Sen. Gary Hart, who was Peres' guest when he visited Israel several years ago. Hart said he was in town on business for his Denver-based law firm and "to look into a few other business ventures.")

Peres, former prime minister and current leader of the Labor Alignment in the fragile coalition government, was joined by Israeli cultural leader Yakov Agmon, described by Goldberg as a combination of "Joe Papp, David Wolper, Alistair Cooke and Bill Graham all in one," who is organizing the anniversary celebration.

"Our aim is peace through rock (music)," Agmon said. "That's the way to get to young people."

And Peres, in suggesting that a concert might be the perfect way for the government to forge a cultural bond with youth there and in the United States, acknowledged wryly that his generation's prayerful anthem "Let My People Go" had been replaced by John Lennon's "Give Peace a Chance" among younger generations.

Although money for such a concert would probably have to be raised in the United States, the first step for the Israelis was to meet those who could provide the kind of talent for such an endeavor. Referring to the abundance of desert in Israel, Peres quipped, "We'll supply the rocks, if you can supply the music."

The idea for the reception stemmed from Goldberg's friendship with Agmon, Goldberg said in an interview. "We talked about the fact that Israel needs to establish an identity with younger people; they're currently only aware of the country as an item on the nightly news," he said. "In the 1950s, an alliance was formed between Israel and what used to be the heart of show business. I mean, Frank Sinatra and Elizabeth Taylor associated with Israel, but that leaves out the people who grew up after them."

Goldberg was not trying to speak for the entire entertainment community: "I didn't invite movie or television people here today because I'm not in that business. My idea here was to rally my business — the music business."

The theme of reaching Israel's young, as well as Jewish youth in the United States, came up several times, underscoring at least some Israeli government officials' desires to close the existing generational chasm.

"We're a singing country," Peres said. "Although we're often not terribly approving of young people's music, I know that it's a way of praying."

The foreign minister's remarks were warmly received by the audience, who gave him a standing ovation when he arrived (under the watchful eye of more than a dozen Israeli security personnel) and another when he finished his short speech.

Peres fielded questions about negative American press on Israel this year ("We're enjoying better coverage here than in the Israeli press"); about Nicaragua ("I find very little sympathy with the (Sandinista) regime") and South Africa ("A Jew practicing discrimination compromises oneself as a Jew").

In a brief interview following the brunch, Peres indicated why he had attended the meeting:

"I think it (a concert) would mean a great deal to the young people. You know, these famous names in California are as well known in Israel. You would not believe how popular they are!"

Interview

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Two southeastern Virginia television stations have rejected overtures from talent agents seeking a TV reporting job for Fawn Hall, the Iran-Contra affair secretary, but a third said it will interview her.

Hal Levenson, news director of NBC affiliate WAVY-TV in Portsmouth, said he plans to interview the former National Security Council secretary to gauge her commitment to journalism.

'Slap Happy' Productions Stresses Physical Comedy

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television-Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A sign on the wall of the nondescript, suburban studio that houses "Slap Happy Productions" warns that parking in the wrong space out front could elicit a tow by the neighboring floor store.

This is big-time network television? Come to think of it, though, next door to Tile World is not such an unlikely place for Jay Tarses to make his un-Hollywood comedy, "The Slap" Maxwell Story," for ABC.

On a soundstage in the rear of the building, actors Dabney Coleman and Susan Anspach rehearse a scene, a bit of physical comedy involving a flubbed hand-off of a suitcase.

Tarses is directing — or rather, at the moment, watching. He stands patiently to the side while the actors try to work out the timing.

After watching them struggle for a while, Tarses decides to just shoot it.

Several takes later, he suggests to the guy with the clipboard, "Don't call it seven. It's another take."

The actors take a break. They'll try again later.

Tarses goes back to his office to talk for a bit about "Slap" and his other show, "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd," on NBC. "Molly" completed a successful 13-week run this summer and will return midseason. "Slap" premiered last week. Both shows are complex character comedies with touches of poignancy.

"I try to get inside of these people's heads," Tarses says. "It's just interesting writing. It's just fun to write. I mean, jokes aren't fun to write anymore. Those are for nightclub comedians. It's just better to write people and the way they talk to each other, and their hopes and dreams ..."

"And the hopes and dreams and everyone's careers are involved in this particular show," interrupts Coleman, who has come in to rehash the suitcase scene. He spends about 10 minutes working it out in Tarses' office.

"Suppose she starts to hand it to me, I'm looking at the woman, she starts to walk away, I get the message, and I'm still looking at the woman ..."

"It's all false movements," Tarses notes.

"The key one is the first one, which we left out," says Coleman. "Now we gotta do it."

He leaves. Tarses calls after him: "We'll do it 10 times. If we don't get it on 10 — the suitcase was stolen."

Tarses resumes the interview. "What was the question? No, I just do 'em because it's good writing. I like to write. I like to write clever things. It's writing, it's not just doing jokes."

Tarses did jokes early in his career, as half of a comedy team with Tom Patchett, whom he met in 1956 when they shared an office in the advertising department of the Armstrong Cork Co. in Lancaster, Pa.

A talk-show appearance with producer Carl Reiner launched them into television, writing and producing such shows as "The Carol Burnett Show," "The Bob Newhart Show," "The Mary Show" and "Open All Night."

The partnership broke up after NBC canceled their last series together, "Buffalo Bill," a critics' favorite that still has a cult following. Tarses could be describing a divorce when he talks about the breakup.

UFOs Kept On File

the 40th annual Mutual UFO Network International Symposium in Washington. About 450 people attended to listen to UFO specialists talk about developments in the alien world.

The major topic at this year's symposium was the abduction phenomenon.

He said reports of abductions by some type of space entities were not new, but that widespread understanding of them was.

"I believe the people are thoroughly convinced it happened to them," he said. "I can't say I'm thoroughly convinced it happened to them myself. It's possible that things may be occurring and we just don't comprehend them because at this point it's beyond our understanding."

Alien beings are thought to impose some sort of memory loss on victims so that the event may be recalled only by reaching into the subconscious, he said. No one knows what these entities hope to gain from abducting humans and subjecting them to various physical indignities, but Timmerman hypothesized that perhaps they come from a dying planet and enter our environment for a genetic boost.

Timmerman says those who ridicule his work are entitled to their opinion.

"I think there are things in our environment that we can't begin to understand ... I think that really we are not as far from the door of the cave as we sometimes think we are."

"One of the things we need to explore carefully is the human mind," he said. "If these events are not occurring as people think they are, if they're not really happening in real time and in our environment as we think they are, then there's something very interesting about the human mind and its ability to perceive this. So either we should examine these events as people say they happen, or we should examine the people who say they have (happened)."

These I Have Loved

By Keisha Dixon

These I have loved:
The cricket's singing a creaky lullaby to the moon, and the brook's cooling happy gurgles at noon.
The cold white frost on the window like a veil of lace and the rose-red glow of wood on fire against my face.

Stars all snowy-white on autumn's eves and blood-red wild raspberries hanging heavily from their leaves.
The smell of roses floating delicately on the breeze and the scarlet red of the maple's leaves.
Flowers like crimson kisses bejeweled with dew and guitar music on the night air when the stars come to view. Silently watching the moon inch across the sky or the purple shadows of afternoon drifting by.

Watching lightning stitch its intricate patterns across the sky and clouds as white as doves' wings going by. These are things I hold dear to me; these I have loved, though simple they may be.

Happy Birthday Constitution

By Melissa Houston

Hurray! Hurray!
We're celebrating the Constitution's birthday.
Everone is dressed in red, white, and blue,
To say America, I love you!

And bells are ringing.
The sky is blue,
And people have joined together to say
America—I love you!

Joy is in the air
And there are people everywhere.
People gathered here today,
To celebrate the Constitution's birthday.

Melissa Houston, 10, a student at South Greenville School receives special mention.

The Land, The Sky, The Space, And Sea

By Clifton Singleton

The things I love are simply
The land, the sky, the space, and sea.
Land, with rolling plains and majestic mountains
Pleases the senses like gushing fountains.

Whether skiing its peaks or baking on the sand.
Our mother is that which we call our land,

To break our bonds would be heavenly.
So up we shall go to grasp the clouds.
The soft white cotton never lets us come down.
The sky is free. Let's fly away.

Never distinguishing night from day
Stars twinkle just beyond the moon—

With patience, maybe, we'll touch them soon.
Without effort we fall from space to sea,
Into rolling tones of blue and green, like Carpet stretched with swells and swells from Here to further than my eyes can tell.
We soothe our souls and learn to sail.

The important and lovely things to me

Are the land, the sky, the space, and sea.
They come together to give us hidden dreams
And a zestful life—so let's find our dreams
And fly away—forever.

Clifton Singleton, 17, a student at D.H. Conley High School receives special mention.

Colleen Tozer, 9, a student at W.H. Robinson School receives special mention.

How The Stoplight Became Red

By Henry Clark Ward

Once upon a time there was a volcano with glow stones. The molten rock filled the glow stones. They became red. One day the volcano erupted. The glow stones flew out and landed in stoplights all over the world. That is how stoplights became red.

Henry Clark Ward, 8, a student at East End Elementary School receives special mention.

Tar Heel Trivia

James Knox Polk

James Knox Polk, 11th President of the United States, was born south of Charlotte in a town called Pineville.

President Polk graduated at the top of his class from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and became a lawyer. Shortly thereafter, his family moved to Tennessee where he was elected to Congress. Polk was a member of Congress for 14 years, serving as Speaker of the House during part of his terms.

Polk took office as president in 1845 and was in the White House for only four years. During his administration, California became part of the United States; the boundry line in the Oregon territory was settled; an independent treasury, later to become the Federal Reserve System, was reestablished, and tariffs were reduced. In addition, the great California gold rush began, the first recorded baseball game took place, ether was used in a Boston hospital, the Irish potato famine took place, Liberia became the first Negro Republic in Africa and Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels issued the "Communist Manifesto".

The Expressions staff regrets the error in the September 23 issue which stated that Maurice Whitehurst received special mention instead of first place for his entry entitled Captain Kidd's Treasure Chest.

The Emancipator

Despite the growing use of word-processors, the typewriter remains the world's most popular office machine. However, it took typewriters decades to catch on. One 1829 model was as large as a piano, and the first practical typewriters weren't developed until the 1860s. Even so, businessmen remained skeptical for years despite the Remington Company's prediction that typewriters would "free the world from pen slavery and complete the economic emancipation of womankind."

The bidding:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 3 NT Pass

4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♥

When you have trumps to spare, it is usually a good idea to extract

the enemy's pieces at the first opportunity. Sometimes, however, there is more important work to be done.

North-South reached four spades in approved modern fashion. In their methods, North's jump to three no trump showed a balanced spade raise with a hand good enough for game. Since he had a minimum opening bid, South simply signed off.

West led a low heart, and declarer realized that he could afford to lose a trick in each suit except for hearts. His problem, therefore, was to avoid losing two club tricks.

It was tempting to win the opening lead in dummy and take the trump finesse, but that ran a grave risk. Declarer was already ahead of the game since West had not found a club opening lead. If he took a trump finesse and it lost, he would simply be giving the defender a second chance to find the club attack.

The simple way to avoid that fate was to win the opening lead in hand and immediately run the jack of diamonds. (If he so desired, declarer could first cash the ace of trumps.) East took his king and shifted to a trump, but declarer was ready. He rose with the ace of trumps, leaving only the king outstanding. Then he reverted to diamonds, shedding a club from hand. Eventually, he conceded a trick in each black suit, and ruffed a heart on the table.

There is a moral to this story. All finesses do have a mathematically equal chance for success. But to take an unnecessary hook that imperils your contract is foolhardy.

October Perfect Month To Be An Apple Muncher

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

How do you eat your apple?

Everyone has his or her own style for eating an apple and may be reluctant to try it any other way. Compare your munching method with these apple profiles provided by the International Apple Institute.

Some folks just refuse to eat it whole — the compulsive wedgers. These people must have it sliced, core-free and arranged neatly on a plate.

The splitters also hate to deal with the core. They chop the apple in half, remove the core and munch.

Cheese often accompanies the apple for circle sticklers. They slice the apple across the core to make round slices, which may be used to sandwich the cheese.

The top-to-bottom type starts at the stem and munches all the way to be bottom. The apple is rotated to continue down the next lane until it's all finished.

The most common munchers may be the equator-eaters. Their first bite is out of the center of the apple all the way around. Then, they move to the top before going to be bottom, making it difficult and juicy to hold.

Streakers prefer nude apples — no skin. Once the peeling is done, they eat it whole or sliced.

There are two types of core-free crunchers. Type B's love gadgets and small appliances. They eat apples just to use a nifty apple corer gadget. Type A's are seedphobic. Gadget, knife, fingernails — the seeds have to come out.

Stem-pluckers grab the apple's stem and twist it while saying one letter of the alphabet with each turn. The letter at which the stem comes off has profound meaning, usually the thought to be the first initial of future spouse.

Whatever your apple-munching style, October is the perfect time to indulge in the fruit in celebration of National Apple Month.

Eat them right off the tree or in some of the accompanying recipes.

Scratch Baking Can Be Simple

Homemade cookies are welcome treats — for after school snacks and lunch box surprises. Now you do not have to shy away from these favorites because of the time involved.

Try stir-and-bake cookies. They make scratch baking easy, and have the added convenience of using either the microwave or oven for perfect results, every time.

Preparation is especially easy because all mixing is done right in the saucepan, which helps make cleanup a breeze.

Three easy steps are all it takes for great bar cookies.

First, melt initial ingredient(s) in a saucepan over low heat. A 2-quart or larger glass pan that can be used in the microwave or on top of the stove works best.

Next, stir in the remaining ingredients in the order listed in the recipe. A wooden spoon is good for stirring. Stir after adding each ingredient to insure proper mixing.

Finally, spread the mixture in a greased pan and bake. Cool the cookies in the pan on a rack, or directly on the countertop for microwave.

That is all there is to making delicious bar cookies that everyone will enjoy.

Start on your way to simple scratch baking with these two recipes from the Martha White Kitchen — Fudgey Brownies and Scotchies. Both use the three simple steps outlined above.

FUDGEY BROWNIES

- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
- 2 squares (1 ounce each) unsweetened chocolate
- 1 cup sugar

- 2 eggs
- 3/4 cup self-rising flour
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 3/4 cup chopped nuts

Grease a 9-inch baking dish. In a microwave-safe bowl or saucepan, combine butter and chocolate. Microwave at MEDIUM 2 to 4 minutes, or until melted, stirring occasionally. Stir in remaining ingredients in order listed. Spread in prepared pan. Place dish on inverted saucer in microwave oven. Microwave at HIGH 4 to 6 minutes, rotating dish 1/4 turn every 2 minutes. Cool directly on countertop. Makes 16 2-inch squares.

FOR CONVENTIONAL OVEN: Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Melt butter and chocolate in saucepan over low heat. Stir in remaining ingredients in order listed. Spread in greased 9-inch baking pan. Bake 30 minutes. Cool in pan.

SCOTCHIES

(For Microwave)

- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
- 1 1/4 cups firmly packed brown sugar

- 2 eggs
- 1 cup self-rising flour
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Grease a 9-inch baking dish. In a microwave-safe bowl or saucepan, microwave butter at HIGH 45 seconds or until melted. Stir in remaining ingredients in order listed. Spread in prepared pan. Place dish on inverted saucer in microwave. Microwave at HIGH 5 to 7 minutes, rotating dish 1/4 turn every 2 minutes. Cool in pan.

Fall Launches Baking Season

By Betsy Balsley

LOGAN, Utah — The Dutch ovens used for camp cooking should not be confused with the ordinary Dutch ovens found in many kitchens.

Home-style pots are flat on the bottom and designed to fit over the harvesting. Although cranberries are now available year-round, in early America the cranberry season was short and marked the end of the harvest. It was the last time before the snows when families and friends came together to pick berries. Over the years, it became a long remembered and eagerly anticipated social event.

The Cranberry Muffin recipe offered here takes the treasured berries of our forefathers and features them in one of today's most popular treats. Complemented with the Creamy Orange Spread of softened cream cheese mixed with orange juice and grated orange peel, Cranberry Muffins rise to every occasion during the holidays.

Both Pumpkin Swirl Bread and Cranberry Muffins with Creamy Orange Spread are great for snacks, desserts or the complement to a robust meal. They can be kept at home or delivered to special friends and relatives for use at breakfast, lunch, afternoon tea, after dinner or as a delicious addition to a buffet.

Kathy Kolasa

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

Dear Readers: We review the diets of many eastern North Carolinians in our daily work. Linda Walker, my colleague at the Family Practice Center, reminds me that many of our patients drink lots of juice. While in one way juice is a good beverage, it can be a significant source of calories. It is common for us to hear that a person has had three 12-ounce glasses of orange juice and two 12-ounce glasses of something like a cranberry-apple juice in one day. That amount of juice provides about 1,000 calories. When we show that to a patient, they are genuinely surprised. So, we thought we'd pass the word along to you. If you are watching your calories, remember that while juices are an important source of some vitamins and minerals and some fiber (if there is pulp), after you have one glass of juice, you might try water as a thirst quencher.

Q. I was surprised to learn that they serve chocolate milk in the schools here. Is it O.K. for my young daughter to drink it? T.D., Greenville.

I am delighted that parents take an interest in the foods and drinks their children are served both at home and at school. While I would prefer school-age children to drink low-fat milk, I have been a staunch defender of food service managers who serve low-fat chocolate milk in the school meals program. Over the years, there have been a number of studies that showed some children preferred flavored milk over non-flavored milk — some to the point that they would refuse to drink non-flavored milk. Since milk has been an important source of protein, calcium and Vitamin D in a school-age child's diet, I have supported food service directors' belief that chocolate milk was better than no milk in the child's lunch. The Four Food Group Plan, which was devised to help us meet our nutrient needs by using food groups, recommends children under 9 years of age have two to three cups of milk daily and those 9 to 12 years old have three or more cups daily. Many studies have shown that some children from low-income families only get the milk they are served in school. And, I am for almost everything that encourages a child to drink, not waste, the milk served.

Low-fat chocolate-flavored milk has about the same calories, protein, calcium and most of the other minerals as regular whole milk. Chocolate-flavored milk does have some sugar added which provides more carbohydrate. Only a few children react to this amount of sugar, however. Some parents object to the small amount of caffeine-like substances in the milk which may be a slight stimulant or make a bathroom trip more urgent for some children. Again, in my experience working with school lunch programs over the past 15 years, this is a problem for only a very small number of children.

So, encourage your children to drink low-fat, unflavored milk if you like. Don't be too upset if they drink the chocolate-flavored milk unless your child is one of those very few reactive children. As parents insist that your school serve the low-fat milk. Oh, yes, encourage them to serve the milk chilled, too, since children typically won't drink room temperature milk of any flavor. And, it would be great if all children could be encouraged to clean their teeth after meals to reduce their chances of having cavities.

Readers: I regularly read about new food products being developed. Marty Friedman, the editor of DFS Dorland New Product News, recently called the ice cream created by Tucson's chef "Gentle Persuasion — Oatmeal and Prune Ice Cream," the most unusual new ice cream product he has seen. He wrote that it is for "people on the move." I've asked my brother Dick, who lives in Tucson, to send me some.

Dutch Oven Big Aid For Camp Meal Preparation

The fall months are a welcome respite from the long, hot summer. The routine sets in. The kids are settled in school, vacationers are back at work and homelife returns to the home.

In the kitchen, summer salads and picnic makings are replaced with the traditional fall harvest ingredients. And as soon as it's cool enough to heat up the kitchen, the official holiday baking season begins.

Pumpkins and cranberries are two of the more popular fruits of the harvest used from fall through the winter holidays. The recipes shown here feature these autumn delights in versatile, easy-to-prepare recipes meant for holiday baking 1980's style. Each preserves a taste of our heritage complemented by another of the favorite ingredients of the holiday season, cream cheese.

Light cream cheese can be substituted in each of these recipes and will perform the same as regular cream cheese.

Pumpkin Swirl Bread starts with the great cool weather taste combination of pumpkin, cinnamon and nutmeg baked in a hearty bread. The surprise swirl in the bread features a rich cream cheese mixture which makes the finished product extra moist and extra special.

When asked, most people say that pumpkins are a vegetable. In fact, the pumpkin is a large fruit that is traditionally American. The early settlers relied heavily on pumpkins in their harvest-time diet. As noted in a rhyme of the times: "We have pumpkin at morning and pumpkin at noon. If it were not for pumpkins, we should be undone."

Cranberries also played an important part in the early days of burners on a range. The outdoor pots have three short legs that permit hot coals to fit under them. Indoor ovens usually have a rounded lid, sometimes of glass, that is unsuitable for holding coals. The flat iron lids for the outdoor ovens are flanged around the edges so they can hold coals easily. These lids often perform double duty on camping trips when they are turned upside down over coals and used as flat grills for pancakes or bacon.

BAKING SEASON OPENS — Pumpkin Swirl Bread and Cranberry Muffins with Creamy Orange Spread preserve a taste of our heritage by featuring two of the most popular fruits of the harvest since the days of our

Dutch Ovens Can Be A Great Aid To Camp Meal Preparations

Dutch oven camp cookery requires a remarkably small amount of space. Essentially you need just enough room to arrange a single layer of charcoal briquettes or pieces in a circle no larger than the bottom of the iron pot you plan to use. You will also need a spot to heat additional coals for use on the top of the oven or to replenish those used if the cooking period is a long one.

At the Great American Dutch Oven Cookoff in Logan, each team of contestants cooked on a flat dirt rectangle that was 4-by-6 feet (Groundskeepers at the Utah State University simply removed the sod from the cooking areas and replaced it after the contest). It was an ideal arrangement, but not necessarily a practical one for the average home cook.

Most of the contestants and other Dutch oven experts present had permanent barbecue pits or areas in their yards which could be adapted for this type of cooking. But several pointed out that it is just as easy to use a free-standing barbecue grill as it is to rely on a permanent installation.

The main thing to remember is that the bottom coals must be arranged in the bottom of the grill in a single layer on something flat and sturdy enough to hold the heavy pot. This could be a smoothed-over layer of sand or a grill rack with a fine enough grid so the Dutch oven's legs do not slip through. Otherwise you will have uneven cooking.

Anyone without a shallow portable barbecue can resort to a Rube Goldberg arrangement that has worked well for others. In order to test the cook-off recipes, we bought three 24-inch metal garbage can lids and balanced each of them, handle side down, on three bricks. This kept them perfectly level and firm. The lids were filled with damp sand, which was tamped down well and covered completely with several layers of heavy-duty foil. The foil not only provided a bit of reflected extra heat, it also made cleanup a snap.

In addition to the cooking base, you will need a spot where you can put extra foil or something else that is clean to hold the hot lid from the Dutch oven when you need to add food to the pot or stir the contents.

Besides the cooking base and a good, well-seasoned Dutch oven or two, several other pieces of equipment will be needed for easy cooking. A good cast iron Dutch oven is heavy no matter what size it is. It heats evenly and stays hot; thus you will need heavy-duty oven mitts, some tongs suitable for handling hot coals and a heavy poker or sturdy claw hammer for lifting the hot lid on and off the pot.

Knowing that we would prepare several dishes at once in testing the winning cook-off recipes, we used one of the three garbage can lids as a "fire base" for heating the coals to the white, ashy state needed. The other two were used for cooking. Two of the three Dutch ovens we used were 12 inches in diameter and one was 10 inches.

Knowledgeable Dutch oven cooks contend that a well-seasoned pot is absolutely essential. Otherwise it will have hot spots that will burn the food.

Dr. Glen Humphreys of Salt Lake City, an experienced "Dutcher," provided some well-seasoned advice on how to turn a brand new oven into a well-behaved pot. "There's a coating on new ovens that needs to be scrubbed off with a good, mild soap," he said. "Then dry (the oven) well and put it in a cold oven at home. Set your oven to 350 degrees and leave the Dutch oven in it until the temperature rises to that level. Then take the Dutch oven out and rub it well inside and out, lid and all, with an unsalted shortening or oil." (Do this carefully: The pot will be hot.)

"Lower the oven temperature to 325 degrees and put the pot back in for about one hour. Watch for dry spots to appear and as they do, simply keep coating it. Wipe up any puddles that appear at the same time.

Then just turn the oven off and let the Dutch oven sit there overnight," he said.

And by morning you should have both a cool and a well-seasoned Dutch oven to use at will. Other Dutch oven users warned not to use soap to clean the pots, once seasoned, because it leaves a residue. Simply wipe them out, or use boiling water, if necessary. If something does happen to burn and stick and will not come off, it may be necessary to use a wire brush to release it. In that case, clean it up, then go back and re-season it from scratch.

Because this was our first attempt at camp cookery with a three-legged oven, we expected to have problems regulating the heat. Fortunately that proved to be a needless worry as we followed the good advice of one of the contestants, Than Larsen of Salt Lake City. Larsen and his wife, Joan, won the dessert division with a spectacular lemon meringue pie.

Larsen follows a simple rule of thumb for deciding how many coals are needed. "As a general rule, I start with three coals less than the diameter of my Dutch oven on the bottom and three coals more than the diameter on top," he said.

Thus, because we were using a 12-inch oven for our first attempt, we arranged nine hot coals in the center of one garbage lid base. They were placed in an even pattern within a circular area no larger than 12-inch base of the pot. We quickly found that it is better not to have a single coal directly in the center because it is likely to burn the middle of whatever you are cooking. Five or six coals around the outside edges and the others evenly arranged inside that circle worked very well.

Vegetable Dishes Fit Quick-Fix Occasions

Backyard barbecues, family celebrations, impromptu parties and everyday meals-in-a-hurry call for quick-fix recipes that make the most of late summer's bounty of fresh vegetables.

Wholesome, colorful, tasty vegetable dishes are the new all-stars of 80s cooking. Versatile and easy to prepare in the microwave, they become irresistible main attractions anytime when topped with process cheese spread.

Warm, sunny days bring a "thanksgiving"-size feast of summer's prolific vegetables — zucchini, green and red peppers and onions. Put your abundant supply to good use in a Mexican Style Vegetable Medley that has a taste personality all its own, created by mild Mexican process cheese spread. Recipe preparation takes mere minutes by using a microwave cook-and-serve dish and this ready-to-heat-and-serve instant hot cheese sauce. To pour extra spicy flavor over vegetables, try variations featuring hot or jalapeno process cheese spread, also available in microwaveable glass jars.

Vegetables retain more color and nutrients when cooked in a microwave oven, and you can count on peak garden-fresh flavor too. In Saucy Garden Vegetables, fresh carrots, celery and green peppers turn up their tasty best dressed with a topping of regular process cheese spread. Remember to use an oven mit to remove the jar from the microwave before pouring hot sauce over vegetables.

Microwave Can Be Time-Saver

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

MICROWAVE ITALIAN STUFFED PEPPERS

- 3 large green peppers
- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 medium onion, chopped (1/2 cup)
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 7 1/2-ounce can tomatoes, cut up
- 1/2 cup sliced pitted ripe olives
- 1/2 of a 6-ounce can (1-3rd cup) tomato paste

- 2 teaspoons chili powder
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 1/2 cups crisp rice cereal

Shredded sharp cheddar cheese
Halve peppers lengthwise. Discard seeds and membranes. Arrange peppers, cut side up, in a 12-by 7 1/2-by 2-inch microwave-safe dish. Cover with vented clear plastic wrap. Micro-cook on 100 percent power (high) 4 to 5 minutes or until just crisp-tender. Drain. Season with salt. Set aside.

In a 2-quart microwave-safe casserole cook beef, onion and garlic, uncovered, on high 4 to 5 minutes or until done, stirring twice to break up meat. Drain. Stir in undrained tomatoes, olives, tomato paste, chili powder, sugar and salt. Stir in rice cereal. Spoon meat mixture into pepper halves.

Wrap pepper halves singly in moisture- and vapor-proof wrap. Seal, label and freeze for up to 2 months. To heat, unwrap a pepper half and place in microwave-safe individual casserole. Cover with vented microwave-safe plastic wrap. Cook on 70 percent power (medium-high) 4 minutes. Uncover. Cook on 50 percent power (medium) 5 to 7 minutes or until heated through, giving dish a half-turn once. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon shredded cheese. Cook on medium 30 to 60 seconds. Let stand, covered, 3 minutes. Serves 6.

Are Sensible
Ways To Try
Dessert Treats

Special occasions have always been celebrated with a spectacular, show-stopping dessert. A delightful new "tradition," which began in upscale restaurants and is being adopted for special occasions by dessert lovers everywhere, is the serving of small samples of several types of dessert with a range of interesting flavors.

Instead of a single offering such as a fancy cake or cheesecake at meal's end, dramatically-presented, sensibly-sized portions of several sweet treats provide diners with a variety of lively tastes that make a special meal more memorable.

Eye-catching miniature Fruit Tarts feature a variety of artfully arranged fresh fruit toppings, selected from whatever looks its seasonal best in the produce department. The tart filling, super simple to prepare, begins with instant pudding and pie filling mix made rich and creamy with cream cheese. For easy preparation, tart shells can be made from refrigerated pie crust dough or a mix. Convenient purchased graham cracker tart shells may also be substituted. Caramel Apple Slices boast chopped fresh apples, pecans and caramels atop a rich sour cream-flavored crust. A splash in the filling sets these tarts apart as something special.

For those who feel that dessert simply is not dessert unless it's chocolate, Orange Mist Chocolate Cheesecake completes the picture. A chocolate wafer crumb crust forms the base for the creamy, smooth filling prepared with cream cheese, sour cream and semi-sweet chocolate pieces. Orange flavored liqueur provides "spirited" flavor excitement.

FRUIT TARTS

One 3 1/8 ounce package vanilla pudding and pie filling mix
1 1/4 cups milk
One 8 ounce package cream cheese, cubed
1/2 cup whipping cream
12 baked 4-inch tart shells
Assorted fruit
1/4 cup apple jelly, heated

Prepare mix as directed on package for pudding, except using 1 1/4 cups milk. Add cream cheese; stir over low heat until smooth. Chill until thickened but do not set; fold in whipped cream. Spoon into shells; chill. Arrange fruit on top. Glaze with fruit jelly.
12 servings.

CARAMEL APPLE SQUARES

4 cups flour
1 cup sifted powder sugar
3/4 teaspoon salt
1 1/4 cups margarine
1/3 cup sour cream
3 egg yolks

One 14 ounce bag caramels
1/4 cup bourbon
6 cups chopped apples
1 cup chopped pecans
3 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

1 cup sifted powdered sugar
1 tablespoon margarine, melted
1 tablespoon bourbon
1 to 2 tablespoons milk

Combine dry ingredients; cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add combined sour cream and yolks, mixing until well blended. Knead dough several times to form a smooth ball. Divide in half. Chill one hour.

Melt caramels with bourbon in heavy saucepan over low heat, stirring frequently until smooth. Set aside. On lightly floured surface, roll 1/2 of dough to form 16-by-11-inch rectangle. Arrange dough in 15-by-10-by-1-inch jelly roll pan, pressing dough up sides of pan. Spoon combined apples, pecans, flour and cinnamon over dough. Drizzle with caramel mixture. Roll remaining dough into 15X10 inch rectangular. Place over apples, pressing edges of dough together to seal. Prick top crust with fork. Bake at 375 degrees, 40 minutes.

ORANGE MIST CHOCOLATE
CHEESECAKE

1 1/2 cups chocolate wafer crumbs
3 tablespoons sugar
1/4 cup margarine, melted
Three 8-ounce packages cream cheese
2/3 cup sugar
3 eggs
One 6-ounce package semi-sweet chocolate pieces, melted
1/3 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons orange flavored liqueur

Combine crumbs, sugar and margarine; press onto bottom of 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 350 degrees, 10 minutes.

Combine cream cheese and sugar, mixing at medium speed on electric mixer until well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Blend in chocolate pieces, sour cream and liqueur; pour over crust. Bake at 350 degrees, 50 minutes. Loosen cake from rim of pan; cool before removing rim of pan. Chill. Garnish with whipped cream and grated orange peel, if desired.

Pasta Salad May Not Be The Way To Eat Light

By Nina Killham
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

If your idea of a light lunch is a bowlful of pasta salad, you are in for a shock. Staffers at the Center for Science in the Public Interest, wondering why pasta salad seemed to many to be so slimming when it looked to them to be pretty greasy, have conducted a small survey.

The conclusion: "Consumer beware," says Michael Jacobson, director of CSPI. "Pasta salads are out there to expand your waistline."

The survey, involving 10 pastas from delis in Washington and New York, 10 packaged pasta salads and four fast-food pasta salads, showed that fat contributed 40 to 60 percent of the calories in most of the pasta salads.

A 3/4-cup serving of an average pasta salad with 3/4 teaspoons (4.4 teaspoons equals 1 gram) of fat would take up 25 percent of the daily fat allotment for an average person consuming 2,000 calories a day.

"And a lot of people eat considerably more than 3/4 cup; that's a lot of fat," says Jacobson. A main meal of 1 1/2 cups of pasta salad could contain the same amount of fat as a fast-food order of a hamburger, french fries and a milkshake.

"A good portion of the fats come from cream or meat, so it is saturated fat as well," says Jacobson, adding that the biggest improvement anyone can make in his diet is to cut down on saturated fats.

The fattiest salad turned out to be Pasta Carbonara Salad, served by Balducci's of New York City. The dish, a creamy mixture of corkscrew pasta, prosciutto ham and onions with a cream and Romano cheese sauce, contained a gut-expanding 9 teaspoons of fat and 486 calories per serving.

"Balducci's was a bit of a shock; 9 teaspoons is an enormous amount of fat in a modest serving," said Jacobson. "It was clearly the worst."

The American Cafe in Washington, on the other hand, received laurels for its low-fat Sesame Noodles, which contained only 1.5 teaspoons, or 25 percent, fat for every serving.

Of the packaged salads, Mueller's Creamy Italian pasta salad was the greasiest, with 7 1/2 teaspoons of fat and 435 calories in every serving, two-thirds of the calories coming from fat.

CSPI decided to conduct the survey when it saw the rise in popularity in pasta salad for what it saw as the wrong reason, according to Jacobson. "We see pasta salads as one of the new kinds of foods. And we are finding that people who eat it think it's very healthful, which is not true. Also, we did this survey as an incentive to the delis to cut back on the grease."

To wade through the choices of pasta salads, Bonnie Liebman of CSPI suggests that pasta salads dressed with oil rather than mayonnaise are less fatty — the reason being that it takes less oil to coat and moisten the same amount of noodles.

If you like your pasta but don't like the fat, try the version below.

ginger root, garlic, sesame oil, red pepper, spaghetti, scallions, peanuts.

CHINESE COLD NOODLES IN SESAME SAUCE

(2 servings)
3 tablespoons chicken broth or water

2 tablespoons smooth peanut butter
1 tablespoon soy sauce

1/4 teaspoon minced pared ginger root

1/8 teaspoon minced fresh garlic
1/2 teaspoon Chinese sesame oil

Dash ground red pepper, or to taste
1 cup cooked thin spaghetti, chilled

1/4 cup chopped scallions

1/2 ounce shelled roasted peanuts, chopped

In small saucepan combine broth, peanut butter, soy sauce, ginger and garlic and cook over medium heat, stirring frequently, until mixture comes to a boil; remove from heat and stir in oil and pepper. Transfer to small bowl, cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate for at least 30 minutes.

In serving bowl combine spaghetti with sauce and toss to combine; sprinkle with scallions and peanuts.

Don't Pass Up Fresh Beets

By Nina Killham
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

A few words on beets: They taste a lot better than you think. Especially if you are over 20, and the beets are not more than a few days old.

The most common contact the average American has with beets is with the variety that comes out of a can or jar. If the texture doesn't get you, the pickle juice will.

But fresh beets are a simpler, more straightforward vegetable than you would think. Next time don't pass them by with your shopping cart. Next time stop, rummage through, pick small, uniformly rounded roots and consider the following suggestions.

Be inventive with the colorful vegetable. Add raw grated beets to salads or toss cooked, cubed beets with orange sections and minced scallions to create a new version of salad.

But, because the red dye will stain, remember to wait until the last minute before adding beets to other foods.

Keep in mind that 1 pound of fresh beets equals 3 cups cubed or 4 cups diced or sliced or grated beets.

Instead of fried potatoes, try fried beets. Slice raw, peeled beets very thin. Dip the slices in a beaten egg, then in seasoned bread crumbs. Fry in oil on both sides over medium heat until browned.

Try melting 2 tablespoons butter in a large saucepan and adding 6 cups of diced, cooked beets. Toss to coat. Add 3/4 cup orange juice and 1 1/2 teaspoons minced fresh ginger root. Continue cooking until the beets are heated through.

The simplest way to serve beets is to pick out a dozen small, young beets and saute them whole in butter. Season generously with salt and pepper.

To retain the ruby color and distinctive flavor of beets, cook the vegetables before peeling. Best is to bake them, so the juice is not diluted by any water or steam. In a covered baking dish, bake the beets (2 inches in diameter) at 350 degrees for about 1 1/2 hours. Cool the beets in cold water and slip off the skins. Note: Bake in aluminum foil to avoid a rigorous workout of scrubbing the pan.

So if you haven't given beets a fair chance, tonight is the time to try. With butter, salt and pepper in your kitchen it's just a quick trip through the express lane.

Express-lane list: beets, apple, red wine, honey, lemon, horseradish, chicken breasts.

RUBY RED SAUCE WITH CHICKEN

- (6 to 8 servings)
- 2 cups grated raw beets
- 1 1/2 cups peeled and grated apple
- 3 tablespoons dry red wine
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 3 to 4 tablespoons prepared horseradish
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 6 chicken breasts
- 3 tablespoons butter

In a medium-size saucepan, combine the beets, apple, wine, honey, lemon juice and lemon rind. Add just enough water to cover. Cook for 15 to 20 minutes or until the beets are tender. Place this mixture in a food processor or blender and process until smooth. Add the horseradish, season to taste with salt and pepper and keep warm. Saute chicken breasts in butter and serve with sauce spooned over.

APPLE WALNUT CAKE

1 1/2 cups vegetable oil
2 cups granulated sugar
3 eggs
2 cups unbleached, all-purpose flour, sifted
1/8 teaspoon ground cloves
1 1/4 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ground mace
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup whole-wheat flour, sifted
1 1/4 cups shelled walnuts, coarsely chopped
3 1/4 cups coarse chunks of peeled and cored Rome Beauty apples
3 tablespoons applejack
Apple Cider Glaze (see following recipe)
Preheat oven to 325 degrees. In a large bowl, beat vegetable oil and sugar until thick and opaque. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift together flour, cloves, cinnamon, mace, baking soda and salt, then stir in whole-wheat flour. Add to oil and egg mixture and mix until well-blended.
Add walnuts, apple chunks and applejack all at once and stir batter until pieces are evenly distributed. Pour batter into a greased 10-inch round cake pan. Bake one hour and 15 minutes or until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean. Makes one 10-inch cake, 10 to 12 portions.

APPLE CIDER GLAZE

4 tablespoons sweet butter
2 tablespoons brown sugar
6 tablespoons granulated sugar
3 tablespoons applejack or apple brandy
4 tablespoons sweet cider
2 tablespoons fresh orange juice
2 tablespoons heavy cream
Melt butter in a small saucepan and stir in both sugars. Add remaining ingredients, stir, and bring to boil. Reduce heat slightly and cook four minutes. Remove from heat and cool slightly. Pour while warm over warm cake. Makes 1 1/2 cups glaze.

CANNED APPLE SAUCE

Crisp, red apples
Ascorbic acid solution
Water
Pint jars with lids
Pare apples and cut into quarters or eighths. Remove core parts. Drop the pieces into an ascorbic acid solution to keep them from discoloring. Put about one inch of water in a large saucepan. Add well-rinsed apple pieces and bring to a boil, stirring now and then to prevent sticking. Cook until apples are tender.
Leave sauce as is for chunky applesauce, or put it through a food mill or sieve for smoother applesauce. If desired, sweeten to taste.
Reheat sauce to boiling. Fill clean, hot jars with hot sauce, leaving one-half inch head space. Adjust lids. Process pint or quart jars in a boiling water bath for 20 minutes.

APPLE-CHEESE SOUP

2 cups shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
In saucepan, cook apples and onions in butter until tender. Add flour and blend until smooth. Stir in milk and cider. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Add cheese and seasonings. Stir as they melt. Garnish with dash of nutmeg.

COOL CREAMY APPLE SOUP

2 cups grated apple
1 cup red wine
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon ginger
1 cup thick cream

Dash nutmeg
Combine apple, wine, lemon juice, sugar, ginger and salt. Cook in saucepan over low heat for about 1 hour. Cool. Blend in cream. Garnish with nutmeg.

1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup water
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup flour
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon orange juice
4 tablespoons butter
1 9-inch baked pie shell
Combine first six ingredients in saucepan and cook over low heat until apples are tender. Pour into pie shell and spread top with streusel. (To make streusel combine flour, sugar, cinnamon and orange juice. Dot with butter). Bake in 350-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes.

APPLE CUSTARD PIE

2 cups slice apples
1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon

1 1/2 cups milk
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
Dash of nutmeg
Arrange half of apples in bottom of 9-inch unbaked pie shell. Mix sugar and flour and spread half evenly over apples. Pour in rest of apples and spread remaining sugar and flour over them. Sprinkle with cinnamon and dot with butter and dash of nutmeg. Pour milk mixed with beaten egg and vanilla over entire mixture. Bake in 375-degree oven for about 50 minutes.

APPLE SAUCE TEA CAKE

1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup granulated sugar

1 1/2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup apple sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup chopped dates
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves

Blend butter and sugars. Set aside. Sift together flour, soda, salt and spices. Beat eggs into butter-sugar mixture. Stir in apple sauce and lemon juice. Stir fruits and nuts into dry ingredients. Blend into creamed mixture. Pour into greased loaf pan and bake in 350-degree oven about 45 minutes. Allow to cool in pan 5 minutes before removing. Dust with confectioner's sugar.
