Farmers Get Tax Break, Others See Values Rise

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Most Pitt County homeowners and businesses will see an increase in the value of their buildings, while farmers will see the tax value of their crop and woodland drop under a schedule of values approved by the Board of County Commissioners Monday night.

The board's action in adopting the schedule of values, to be used in the revaluation of property in the county, came after commissioners adopted a resolution continuing the 2 percent local option sales tax.

All counties in the state are required to readopt, or lose, the local option sales tax by March 1, 1988, because of action by the General Assembly this year to close a loophole in the law designed to capture an estimated $18.5 million in taxes that were being lost statewide each year.

No one appeared at a 7 p.m. public hearing to voice support for, or objections to, the continuation of the sales tax, which will account for about $7.05 million in revenue for the county government this fiscal year.

Under the revaluation program, all property in the county will be appraised and listed at its true market value. The new values are scheduled to be put on the tax books Jan. 1, 1988.

But farm land, under state law, will carry — and be taxed at — a second and lower "use" value which is based on soil type.

For example, market value for Class I farm land is about $1,300 an acre, while the use value for Class I farm land — according to the adopted schedule of values — will be $889 an acre.

Jimmie Hardee, Pitt's tax assessor, told commissioners that the use value adopted Monday — $889 per acre for Class I farm land, $678 for Class 2, $467 for Class 3, $276 for class four and $111 for class five — and $392 an acre for Class I woods land, $308 for Class 2, $141 for Class 3, $53 for class four and $51 for class five — will result in a loss of some $164.81 million in tax base or, based on the present 64 cents per $100 valuation tax rate, $1.05 million in revenue.

Using the new use value, Hardee estimated the total value of farm land at $146.43 million, compared to the present $311.25 million.

Class I farm land amounts to about 1.4 percent of the open cultivated land in the county while Class 2 land amounts to about 16 percent and about 16.5 percent of the farm land is in Class 3.

But Hardee estimated a $469 million increase in the value of homes, lots and business property county-wide as a result of the new revaluation.

Hardee estimated an "overall 11 percent increase in total value of property in the county." And County Manager Kramer Jackson estimated that the "tax rate could drop 8- to 12-cents (per $100 valuation) to generate the same amount of money" included in the 1987-1988 budget from ad valorem taxes.

State law requires all counties to revalue property every eight years. But Pitt's present revaluation is being completed a year earlier than required.

Iranian Missile Hits Schoolyard, Kills 29 Children

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — An Iranian missile slammed into the edge of a crowded schoolyard in the Iraqi capital today. State radio said 29 children perished and 196 of their schoolmates were wounded.

The state radio said the surface-to-surface missile also killed two women and one man. In all, it said 218 people were wounded and admitted to hospitals.

An earlier state radio report said 25 people had been killed and 228 wounded.

The 7:55 a.m. blast shook the foundations of the Baghdad elementary school building and within seconds it collapsed, sending a huge cloud of dust into the air, witnesses said. It was not clear how many people were in the building at the time.

The Baghdad Radio announcement said the school and 16 other buildings in the area were "demolished."

The explosion started a fire and sent shrapnel, glass shards and concrete chunks flying into the playground, said witnesses, reached in Baghdad by telex from Nicosia, Cyprus.

Iran has fired missiles at Baghdad several times since the nations went to war in 1980.

Iran's official news agency said today that an infantry unit of the Revolutionary Guards Corps fired the missile into Baghdad in retaliation for an Iraqi air raid Monday that damaged a school in the western Iranian province of Lorestan.

The agency, monitored in Cyprus, quoted a statement by the Revolutionary Guards as saying the missile "was aimed at Iraq's Defense Ministry compound."

Baghdad Radio quoted an unidentified military spokesman as saying the Iranians have "declared it a war of cities, and so it shall be."

"It is our right and duty to respond to this ugly crime," the radio quoted the spokesman as saying.

In other developments, Western ship owners said they have been told by their governments that Iran's air force may use new fighter-bombers to attack merchant vessels in the Persian Gulf.

And four Kuwaiti tankers, flying the American flag and under U.S. Navy escort, were reported to have reached Bahrain, the halfway point on the 550-mile route from the Persian Gulf entrance to Kuwait.

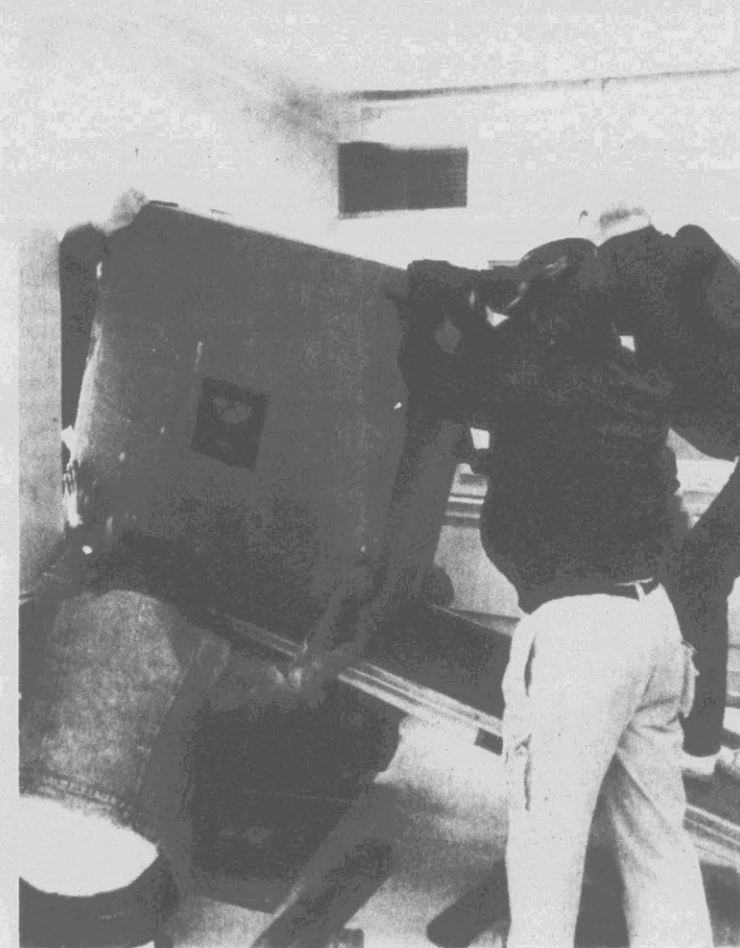

The U.S. Navy started escorting reflagged Kuwaiti vessels through the oil shipping lanes in July to protect them from attack by Iran. Tehran accuses Kuwait of siding with Iraq.

Earlier today, shipping executives said Iranian gunboats sprayed a Saudi-flagged tanker with machine-gun fire Monday night in the Persian Gulf off Dubai, the United Arab Emirates, causing minor damage and no casualties.

The tanker, identified as the Petrosip B, later continued with its load of gas oil toward Jidda, Saudi Arabia.

The ship raid and the missile attack on Baghdad were in apparent retaliation for recent Iraqi attacks on Iranian shipping and cities. Iraq launched nine attacks on ships trading with or chartered by Iran in the past week.

Iraq also said its jets bombed oil and industrial targets Monday on Iran's mainland where they hit oil refineries and power plants.

NEW COMPUTER SYSTEM — Movers raise a section of the city of Greenville's new $250,000 computer system to the second floor of City Hall today. The system, which will be installed in the next couple of weeks, will give the city and all its departments in-house data processing capabilities, according to Rex Wilder, data processing manager. Greenville has been using the Pitt County computer to meet its data processing needs. (Reflector Photo by Thomas Forrest)

Floyd Losing Power

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Floyd was downgraded to a tropical storm this morning, but still whipped seas off South Florida enough to threaten to sink a ship and force a Coast Guard rescue of 25 crew members.

The previous day, rains and 80 mph gusts raced across South Florida, providing a "practice run" to residents who fled inland or stocked up on supplies.

All 25 crew members of the Venezuelan ship Almallanera were rescued shortly after 6:30 a.m. after the 400-foot container vessel ship listed to 40 degrees 14 miles off Palm Beach in the Atlantic Ocean. Coast Guard Petty Officer Gary Starks said.

The Coast Guard sent a helicopter and cutters after receiving a distress call when cargo on the ship shifted in 6- to 8-foot seas and threatened to sink it, Starks said. At least two men were plucked from the ocean and others from life rafts, he said.

Tropical Storm Floyd this morning was passing through the northern Bahamas after causing no reported injuries and no widespread property losses in Florida.

A hurricane-spawned tornado, however, caused $100,000 damage to boats, trailers and mobile homes in

Chisholm Says Women's Resources Necessary Factor In U.S. Future

By SUSAN TACKER
Reflector Staff Writer

The American nation can no longer afford to squander the potential of its women's resources, according to former U.S. Rep. Shirley Chisholm.

"The underutilization of the American woman has been one of the most senseless wastes of the century, and it is certainly a waste that our country cannot afford," Ms. Chisholm said Monday night, speaking on

"Women and Work in America: Now and Then."

She spoke in Hendrix Theater as part of the Women in the 21st Century program sponsored by the East Carolina University Women's Forum Committee.

Ms. Chisholm, a New York Democrat, was the first black woman elected to Congress and was a contender for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

"Since work is for everyone a source of personal success and fulfillment ... discrimination in the job market on the basis of sex not only minimizes the contribution that women can make, it deprives women of one societal measure of success," she said.

"I believe that any citizen has the right to work at whatever he or she wants, and that occupational goals should not be limited by the parameters imposed by somebody's social conventions."

Ms. Chisholm spoke of the gains made for women during the '60s, when women started to demand "to be judged on the basis of our education and our experiences, and not on the basis of our gender."

Ms. Chisholm said American women learned then that "inherent sexism was just as dehumanizing, just as morally wrong as discrimination on the basis of the color of one's

Secretions Linked To Cold's Misery

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Inflammatory substances found in nasal secretions may be responsible for the miseries of the common cold, according to researchers at the University of Virginia and Johns Hopkins University.

Dr. Jack M. Gwaltney, professor of internal medicine at Virginia, said the substances, known as kinins, were found in substantially higher levels in people infected with the major family of cold viruses, rhinoviruses, than in people who are free of the viruses or who carry them without showing symptoms.

"What our studies to date have shown is an association between when kinins are elevated and when a person is sick," he said.

Gwaltney said the researchers "believe rhinovirus infections may trigger the release of these kinins. The kinins in turn cause blood vessels to dilate, allowing plasma to leak out and stimulate pain in the nerve endings and glandular secretions."

There may be other substances not yet documented that are involved in the chain of events, and additional studies with kinin-blocking drugs will be necessary to test whether stopping kinins will stop cold symptoms, he said.

Research at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore showed that volunteers who did not have colds developed cold-like symptoms when they were given kinins. Researchers also found that cold symptom sufferers have only one type of inflammatory substance, kinins, while allergy sufferers have a whole array, including histamine and prostaglandin.

Earlier studies have shown that what is called the common cold is caused by as many as 300 viruses, which makes development of an effective vaccine difficult.

In 1986, University of Virginia doctors found that volunteers exposed to rhinoviruses failed to develop colds if they were administered a nasal spray containing the hormone interferon. Using the spray for a week,

Arias Wins Nobel Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway (AP) — President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica won the 1987 Nobel Peace Prize today for developing and promoting a peace plan to end the guerrilla wars in Central America.

The Nobel Committee of the Norwegian Parliament said that as the plan's architect, Arias "made an outstanding contribution to the possible return of stability and peace to a region long torn by strife and civil war."

The selection was a surprise in that

Arias had not been mentioned in speculation about this year's winner. He was cited by the Nobel Committee as a spokesman for "democratic ideals, with freedom and equality for all."

Arias, contacted before dawn at a Pacific Ocean beach resort about 150 miles northwest of the Costa Rican capital, called the news of the prize "incredible."

"I am personally thankful for the Nobel Peace Prize and I accept it emotionally," the 46-year-old president said. "But I accept it for Costa Rica, for peace, and not only for Costa Rica, but for Central America, where 25 million human beings deserve to live in peace, where 25 million human beings deserve to look toward the future with optimism, with some hope of progress."

Arias began working on the plan immediately after he was elected Costa Rica's president in May 1986, with 53 percent of the vote.

The Central American peace plan was signed on Aug. 7 in Guatemala

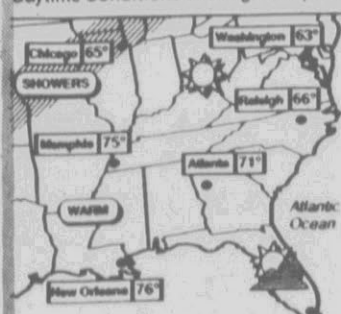

City by Arias and the presidents of Nicaragua, El Salvador, Honduras and Guatemala.

Aimed at ending guerrilla wars in El Salvador, Guatemala and Nicaragua, the plan calls for cease-fires, amnesties and democratic reforms in Central America, as well as an end to outside aid to rebels in the region.

The Reagan administration, which backs El Salvador's government and the Contra rebels in Nicaragua, has called the plan flawed.

Selection includes fiction and non-fiction. The fair is open to the public.

Halloween Cleanup

The Greenville Public Works Department and the Inter-Fraternities Council of East Carolina University have agreed to clean up the city following a downtown Halloween celebration planned for Oct. 31.

Chris Holland, IFC executive vice president, said he will have 18 to 20 people in the parking lot at Fifth and Evans street at 3 a.m. Nov. 1 to form task groups for sidewalk cleanup, street sweeping, and other clearing of debris. The city will provide equipment.

Holland said that the IFC will perform weekly cleanups of Fifth, Tenth and 14th streets, with the city providing roll-out carts.

Mayo Allen, director of public works, said, "I personally appreciate the offer and interest the Inter-Fraternities Council has shown in beautifying our city. These fraternities are to be commended for seeking additional responsibilities to enhance community appearance."

AHA Awards Grants

Six researchers at East Carolina University have been awarded grants for cardiovascular research from the American Heart Association, North Carolina affiliate in Chapel Hill. For 1987-88, $52,828 went to scientists at the university.

Award grantees include Jwo-Sheng Chen in physiology, Stanley Jolly in cardiology, Robert Lust in surgery, Richard McReynolds in pathology, Assad Movahed in medicine and Eric Skipper in surgery.

Applications are submitted to AHA and the association's Research Review Subcommittee judges the entries based on established criteria. There were 67 applications submitted and 30 were selected for grants for fellowships.

Predoctoral students receive up to $5,000, postdoctoral fellows receive up to $7,500, and postdoctoral junior faculty members receive a maximum of $15,000 from the affiliate.

AHA and the North Carolina affiliate are spending $1,323,530 on cardiovascular research in North Carolina.

Woman Honored

Mattie Barnes was honored this week during the annual program of the City Union Ushers of Sycamore Hill Church in Greenville. The ceremony of honor was conducted by Annie Mae Duncan and Geneva Duncan.

School Activities

Falkland Elementary School kindergarten classes toured the exhibits and midway rides at the Pitt County Fair recently. Special attractions for the youngsters were the circus and the petting zoo.

The school had a fire drill recently to practice safe evacuation procedures. Several members of the Falkland Fire Department brought fire vehicles for the students to observe. Each class received a short lecture on fire safety and a packet of materials for completing "Sparky's Home Fire Safety" course.

Other activities for Fire Safety Week included Gary Coggins, a fire-rescue worker for the Greenville Fire Department, who spoke to second graders about fire safety and prevention. Videos on home fire escape planning and preventive procedures to fire safety at home were shown. "Turn-out gear" was displayed, and procedures for escaping a fire were discussed. Materials for classroom use were presented to teachers, as well as materials to be used at home.

Rosie Cox of the Greenville Fire Department visited Helen Boone's third-grade class and explained the theme of the week. She also showed turn-out gear.

Burger King Wins ARC Employer Award

The Association for Retarded Citizens of North Carolina has awarded its 1987 Employer of the Year Award to Burger King of Greenville and Tarboro.

Accepting the award were Danny Brew, owner of franchises for three Burger King restaurants in Greenville and one in Tarboro, and his administrative assistant, Bob Thompson.

The presentation was made during the ARC-NC's state convention in Asheville.

A spokesman for the ARC said Brew and Thompson and Burger

King of Greenville and Tarboro were selected "because of their commitment to providing employment opportunities to persons with mental retardation, for their record of encouragement and support for those individuals."

The local Burger King restaurants have provided refreshments for the Greenville-Pitt County Special Olympics. Brew and Thompson then became members of the ARC-Pitt County and began hiring individuals with disabilities in each of the four stores owned by Brew.

skin. And may the good Lord help you if you are the bearer of the double jeopardy — not only are you a woman, but you are black."

The fact is, said Ms. Chisholm, that "more women need to work today than ever before."

"There are many reasons why the need for jobs for women has increased. First of all, there's a large number of women who are the single parent in the household. And if a woman is the single parent in the household, believe it or not, a woman still has the dignity and the desire to work so that she, too, can be a productive citizen in this society."

In addition, because of inflation, some women need to work to supplement the family's income, she said.

She also said "women have to work in this country in large numbers because either voluntarily or involuntarily, they are single and they have to take care of themselves."

"A woman who has the singular responsibility of children to care for, a family to support, food and clothing to buy — if she is unemployed or underemployed, the need for good paying jobs seems clear."

"It has nothing to do with women being in competition with men. Let's get over this," she said.

"The unfortunate fact is that there is a correlation between families in which the woman is the sole support and the families that we have in this country today that live in poverty."

"I am a woman fighting for women whom I've found over and over and over again have the requisite attributes for upward mobility, for supervisory positions ... and never get a break because they are women."

Ms. Chisholm said her own success is an example. "Yes, I emerged in this country as the first black woman to be elected to the Congress, the first black woman to have the audacity and the nerve to say I have the necessary requisites to guide the ship of state. I had the nerve to do it. I didn't pay any attention to the doomsday criers down here."

Ms. Chisholm spoke of the need for women in high level positions in both government and business. "The im-

The council, established in 1975, operates under the State Department of Administration. It cooperates with officials of other states in matters of mutual interest and carries forward North Carolina's participation in the Council of State Governments.

Ayden Gets $1 Million From HUD

AYDEN — Ayden housing projects will receive more than $1 million for renovations from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, housing Director Jerry Cox told the town Board of Commissioners Monday night during its regular monthly meeting.

Cox said the money comes through HUD's Comprehensive Improvement Assistance Program and will be used for new roofs, sidings, kitchen cabinets, refrigerators, and plumbing and electrical renovations.

A new computer also will be installed for management improvements.

The implementation plan will be submitted to HUD in 15 days and architects will be contracted, Cox said. Renovations are expected to begin in about 90 days.

In other matters, the board adopted an ordinance to annex property on West Third Street effective Dec. 31, and a public hearing was set for the resolution to annex property owned by Judy Evans in the North Hills subdivision. It is scheduled during the next board meeting Nov. 9.

A proposal of $68,616 was accepted from T. Dale Holland to contract the Community Development Block Grant administration, and a public hearing was set for the next board meeting for rezoning the Ayden Recreation Center area from RA-8 residential to downtown fringe commercial.

A budget amendment was approved for monies received for recreation and library, and an updated mutual aid agreement, which includes fire and rescue, was approved.

Roberts Welding was contracted at $4,600 to sandblast and paint the Ayden gym. Corporate excess taxes of $7,028.25 were accepted.

A change order for 10-inch pipe was approved on the water line to be extended to the Mid-Atlantic Fish Farms building, while Jason Bowen's request for joint use of a metal building was denied. An open-ditch policy was approved with priority given to large ditches.

In CDBG bids, Tar Heel Construction Co. was awarded a contract for $18,750 for the Ernestine Stephenson house on Blount Street. Jewell T. Moore was appointed labor standard officer for CDBG.

Sessions Released

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — FBI Director-designate William S. Sessions says he feels fine after his release from a hospital where he was treated for an ulcer, and he expects to be sworn into office sometime next week.

Sessions, chief federal judge for the western district of Texas, was released Monday from Methodist Hospital after treatment for internal bleeding that stemmed from an ulcer in his small intestine.

The ailment twice delayed his swearing-in as FBI director while doctors ran a battery of tests that determined the bleeding had stopped and that there was nothing else wrong with him, Dr. Richard Rubio said.

"I think this was a one-time occurrence," Sessions, 57, said of the ulcer's flare-up. "I feel fine. I'm not ready to arm-wrestle yet, but I feel fine."

Rubio has asked Sessions to undergo a low-profile convalescence in San Antonio for a few more days, and the jurist said his swearing-in will come "whenever the pleasure is of the attorney general and the president. I expect it will be next week."

Sessions, who for a while was on a liquid diet, said he can now get back to a normal menu.

"I can eat anything again. I should avoid an empty stomach, eat meals regularly and take no aspirin on an empty stomach. And avoid reporters," he said with a laugh.

Sessions first became sick Sept. 30 on a flight from Dallas to Washington where he was to be sworn in as FBI director the next day. Doctors at George Washington Hospital detected a previously undiagnosed small ulcer in the upper portion of his small intestine.

The bleeding continued after his release from the Washington hospital Oct. 3, and he had to enter Methodist Hospital. But later tests in San Antonio found no new bleeding or any other problems, Rubio said.

Sessions left the hospital at the same time as his newborn grandson, hospital spokeswoman Diane Dorsett said. Richard Anderson Sessions was born Thursday to Renee and William Lewis Sessions.

Adler Will Head Search Committee

Dr. Carl Adler, professor and chairman of the physics department, will chair a five-member committee which will conduct a national search for a vice chancellor for academic affairs at East Carolina University.

Dr. Richard R. Eakin, ECU chancellor, announced appointment of the search committee at the regular October meeting of the ECU Faculty Senate recently. Eakin appointed the committee which is composed entirely of members of the faculty.

In addition to Adler, Eakin named Dr. Holly Mathews of the sociology and anthropology faculty, Dr. J. Conner Atkeson of the history faculty, Dr. Clinton Downing of the school of education and Dr. Edward Levne, dean of the school of art.

Dr. Mathews, Atkeson and Adler were among seven faculty members nominated by the Faculty Senate at its September meeting at Eakin's request. Eakin said he would appoint three of the faculty nominees to the five-member committee.

Advertising in national academic media will begin about Nov. 1, Eakin said. He said he hopes that a candidate to succeed Dr. Angelo A. Volpe can be identified and appointed to the post by next spring.

In other action, commissioners appropriated $9,900 toward a $34,000 project to install 1,600 feet of 10 inch water line to serve the Mid-Atlantic Fish Farm processing plant just south of Ayden, and approved funding half the cost of an estimated $192,753 project to install water, sewer and gas service to a 37-acre site in the industrial park being considered as a location by a distribution company.

The Greenville Utilities Commission board last week approved funding half the cost of the project, which would provide service to a new $2.1 million building. About 110 new jobs would be created by the distribution center.

Commissioners also agreed to travel to Washington on Oct. 21 to meet with U.S. Justice Department officials to discuss preclearance of a change in the method of electing members of the board.

The General Assembly this year enacted into law a board-backed plan to elect six members from districts and three at-large representatives. The law provides for the new election plan to take effect in 1988.

But the "six-three" plan still receive preclearance before elections can be held, and the Justice Department has requested additional information.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Ambitious Goals

The Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce assumed a mountain of work in its weekend planning conference held at Williamsburg, Va.

The 145-member delegation considered some of the major problems which will concern Pitt County and its growth for the rest of this century. The group pledged the chamber's support of the adopted and proposed Medical Park which encompasses the area around Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the East Carolina University School of Medicine. It said the chamber would work for additional beds for the hospital center. The chamber will study a transportation network for the area, particularly the medical park, including a corridor from the medical center to downtown Greenville.

Also endorsed was a southern loop to connect U.S. 264 and N.C. 11 south of Greenville to Bells Fork and N.C. 33. The conference group called for a feasibility study for four laning N.C. 11 and N.C. 13 north to the Virginia state line.

The group endorsed asking the Pitt County Board of Commissioners to move county offices to the downtown Greenville area. It endorsed the concept of a joint city-county complex. President Ed Walker suggested a visit during 1988 to a city similar to Greenville but with a population of 60,000 or more. The object would be to plan for the future growth of Greenville.

The chamber conference occupied itself with some of the major needs of Pitt County. Certainly adequate thoroughfares to the medical park area will be essential if that area is to reach its full potential. Even as the group met there was news that the Arlington Boulevard extension to Stantonsburg Road might be in jeopardy. A southern route around Greenville, while not even in the planning stages at present, is essential as Greenville Boulevard and Memorial Drive become more clogged.

Certainly it makes the utmost sense to bring governmental services together in a specific area. Moving county offices downtown in proximity to the city offices will accomplish this.

A four lane road to Virginia appears virtually essential in the future for a growing Pitt County. The chamber planners might add that a southern four lane route to link with I-40 near Wilmington is greatly needed also.

Pitt County is experiencing major growth and with that growth comes the need for major planning to provide roads, schools, activities, medical care and all the other factors that a metropolitan area needs to maintain quality of life.

The chamber's planning indicates it is aware of the county's needs. Now that group must give its full efforts to seeing that the county's needs are met.

Bitter Pill

The world shared an unusual look into tensions between United States intelligence analysts and government policymakers, thanks to Deputy Central Intelligence Agency Director Robert Gates. He conceded there had been occasions when policy makers analyzed or predicted world events better than the CIA.

Gates recalled one such example in which agency analysts initially set out to prove former Secretary of State Alexander Haig wrong about Soviet links to terrorism rather than to assess the issue fully.

"But in doing so", he said, "they went too far themselves and failed in early drafts to describe extensive and well-documented indirect Soviet support for terrorist groups and their sponsors."

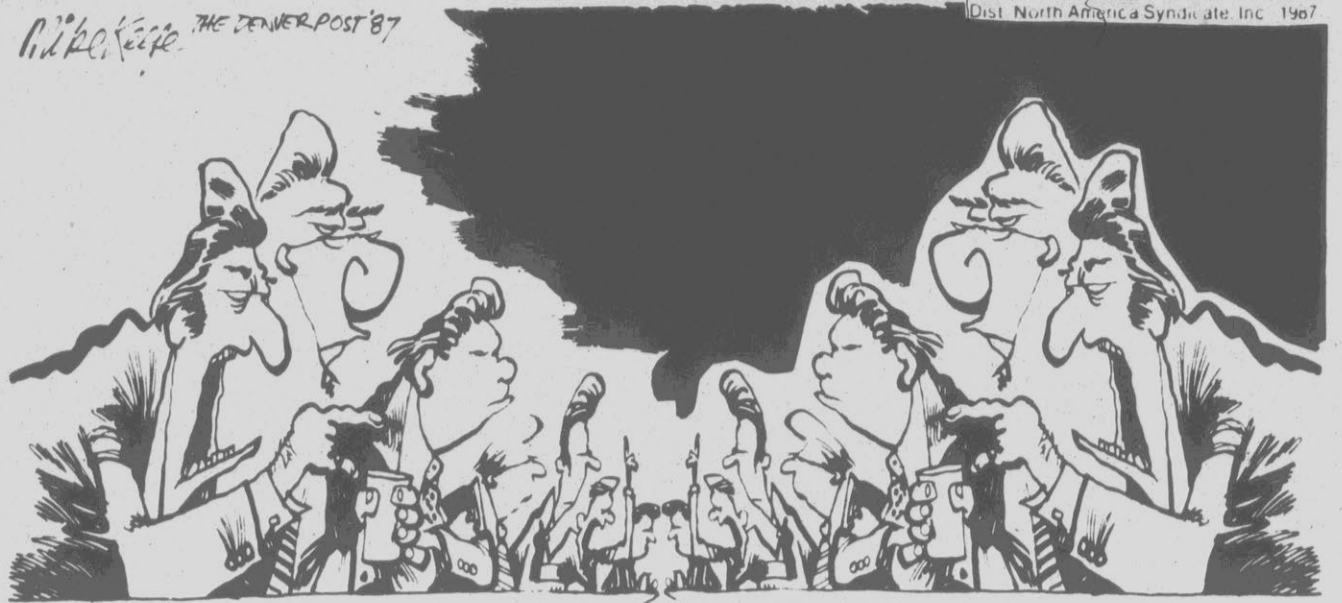

The practice of sharing intelligence information with Congress as well as the executive branch is a notion that doesn't fit into the traditional image of the CIA's workings. In the case above, sharing the knowledge added "extraordinary stress" to the relationship between CIA and policy agencies, he said, recalling an occasion when President Carter sought to cut U.S. troops in Korea only to find Congress aware of a new intelligence estimate that concluded the number of North Korean divisions had grown. Something like that would startle many in the White House.

Policy-makers' suspicions of CIA using intelligence to sabotage selected administration policies was said to be not far below the surface, and Gates observed "not a few members of Congress are willing to exploit this situation by their own selective use of intelligence that supports their views."

He noted the CIA had been accused by more than one administration of "cooking" or slanting its intelligence reporting, but added that in 21 years in intelligence "I have never heard a policymaker or anyone else for that matter, characterize as biased or 'cooked' a CIA assessment with which he agreed."

In short, we're told sharing that precious commodity of intelligence is one of the surest guarantees of CIA's independence and objectivity.

It's a bitter pill, but it seems to work, and we need that.

Public Forum

To the editor:

The only consistent thing about liberals is their inconsistency. They claim that the U.S. has no right to determine another government when speaking of Nicaragua, but that the U.S. has every right to determine another government when speaking of South Africa.

They work for the protection of homosexual "rights," introducing incredible pieces of legislation that, if made law, would threaten society as a whole with exposure to AIDS. Yet they completely ignore the innocent unborn by denying them their Constitutionally-stated right to life and thus are instrumental in the slaughter of millions of perfectly normal health human beings.

They accuse Christians of trying to force their beliefs on others and of censorship. They themselves, however, through their control of the major portion of the mass media and judicial Supreme Court activism, force their humanistic religion on and censor the concepts of God, morality, religion, and the Christian heritage/background of the U.S. from the public schools and society as a whole. They accuse North and Poindexter of "shredding" the Constitution and "going above the law" to preserve democracy in Central America. But they openly endorse liberal judges who, through judicial activism, shred and distort the Constitution to get mostly unwanted and dangerous decisions made law. The Boland Amendment, the major piece of legislation that the liberals accuse North and Poindexter of disobeying (they, in fact, did not) is in itself unconstitutional because it restricts the President's constitutionally-given power to implement foreign policy.

Liberals talk out of two sides of their mouths at one time. The above are only a few examples of their hypocritical double standard. When will the American people wake up?

We haven't come far in our attitudes — in spite of all the dialogue, we are still crude and insensitive. A respected person, noted to be conscientious and level-headed, made a personally momentous decision — to run for President of the USA. After months of day and night traveling and speaking, raising a million dollars incidentally, this person comes to the most disheartening realization — her cause is seemingly futile. This the reward given for this soul wrenching hard work. "To the embarrassment of her supporters (Congresswoman Patricia) Schroeder burst into tears." — "Patricia Schroeder was a public relations disaster." This person also — sin of sins — found comfort on the shoulder of her spouse. These comments are indicative of our misguided ideas of qualification for any job. I personally want a leader stable enough to cry when it is the only normal human response. God bless her (Quoted items from Time and U.S. World Report)

Is God Less Demanding Than The Post?

WASHINGTON — Republican presidential candidate Pat Robertson acknowledges that he's fibbed about a good many things and has asked God for forgiveness. That was his biggest mistake — he should have asked this of The Washington Post and a few others in the news business.

He's on the hot seat and it promises to get hotter, especially if it develops that he hasn't told the whole truth about his finances. His situation is different from that of the fallen presidential candidates in that he is fighting back and has the Lord on his side, or so he would have us believe. Everything he now says must be subject to close scrutiny.

The press is hounding him, and The Post is leading the pack. For two days' running, The Post splashed the story of his misleading biography on the front page. It all started with the sedate Wall Street Journal earlier in the week, in which there was a passing reference to the dates of his marriage and the birth of his first child, which made it clear the child was conceived out of wedlock. Post reporter T. R. Reid, who interviewed him last summer, had asked him for these dates, but Mr. Robertson waffled. He didn't lie; he misled. Mr. Reid then probed other details that had been glossed over by Mr. Robertson. The evangelist told the reporter that he'd "never had this kind of precision demanded of me before." That's because he'd only dealt with the Lord, who is apparently less demanding than The Post. While the fact that he had indulged in premarital sex was not the main thrust of the story, this is what leaps off the page and probably the only thing the reader remembers.

It should be made clear that I do not think Pat Robertson ought to be president. And I do not think these stories will in any way reduce his support. To the contrary, they may increase it. If everyone who has engaged in premarital sex, and every child conceived out of wedlock since the 1950s, voted for him next year, he'd probably win by a landslide.

Nobody seems to care that he married the woman and has been a good husband and a fine father. The editors of The Post maintain that the real issue here is credibility. I have no argument with that. Voters want the person they pick for the White House, most of all, to be a person they can believe. But when does a fib become a lie? When does a white lie become horrendous deception?

Perhaps God-fearing parents and Sunday school teachers should abandon the Ten Commandments as a beacon for children to follow. It would make far greater sense to start urging kids to live their daily lives as though one day they'll run for president and have to face the scrutiny of the Washington press. With that as the guiding light, our children will be far purer as adults than preceding generations. They'd also be pretty dull and sterile human beings.

I've been through the mill myself. A couple of years back, I appeared before the Senate Armed Services Committee, seeking confirmation as assistant secretary of defense for public affairs. My predecessors had been asked if they'd ever lie; all replied with a firm no. To answer any other way would, of course, have meant rejection.

The interrogator approached me afterward and said he still wanted to know whether I'd lie as a Pentagon spokesman. "Well, Senator," I said, "let me put it this way. My great-grandmother was a Russian Jew, a very religious woman. At the time of the pogroms against the Jews, she told her children: 'If a Cossack puts a loaded gun to your head and asks if you're a Jew, tell him no. It is a lie but, under those conditions, God will forgive you.'" And then I said to the inquiring Sen. Gary Hart: "My great-grandmother was right. Under those conditions God would forgive a lie, but I'm not so sure about the Washington press."

Tell The Lesson Of Forgiveness

Despite the disclosure that presidential candidate Pat Robertson has lied to hide the fact that his first son was conceived out of wedlock, he declared last week that his followers will continue supporting his candidacy — because "people who support me understand forgiveness."

Then, in spiteful tones, Robertson roundly condemned the truth-mongering news reporters who committed the unpardonable sin of uncovering his deceit and hypocrisy.

So tell us the lesson again about Christian forgiveness, pastor.

If the Lord and Robertson's political followers can forgive him for getting an unwed college coed pregnant and then lying to cover it up, why can't Robertson find room in his heart to forgive the reporters who told the truth? All along, I have thought it was against the 10 Commandments to lie, not to be truthful.

As Robertson sees it, reporters were "stepping over the line" of ethical journalism when they revealed Robertson's secrecy of fatherhood. He called their behavior "outrageous."

My memory must be faulty, because I don't recall Robertson forgiving Gary Hart's fooling around with Donna Rice. I have no recall of Robertson defending Hart's conduct or excusing him as a victim of "outrageous" behavior by excessively snoopy reporters.

In fact, I remember that at the time Robertson labeled Hart "one of the most stupid people in the world," which doesn't sound very forgiving to me.

And while we're on the subject of Christian forgiveness — today's sermon — we shouldn't overlook the developments of last week's Jerry and Tammy and Jimmy and Jessica soap opera.

The latest story line goes something like this:

Jerry calls Jimmy a scab and a cancer, while Jessica bares her soul and exposes her breasts in a national men's magazine. Meanwhile, Jerry quits as director of Jimmy's PTL resort and amusement park because, by popular demand, Jimmy and Tammy are likely to be reinstated as heads of the ministry. Jerry can't forgive Jimmy, and Jimmy can't forgive Jessica, and Tammy looks terribly confused by it all.

My favorite part of last week's script was the line from one PTL believer who noted, "I'm sure the good Lord has a plan for all of this."

Undoubtedly, it seems inconceivable that a TV evangelist would seduce the church secretary because he was jealous of his wife's suspected affair, that the wife would become addicted to drugs, that the couple would live in obscene opulence on millions siphoned from the church treasury, that their video parishioners would demand their return to the pulpit, and that the shy church secretary would become a millionaire centerfold girl.

Maybe the Lord is challenging us with the ultimate lesson in forgiveness.

Strength For Today

In one of his epistles, St. Paul makes this statement: "I die daily." In making this statement Paul meant the same thing that a modern poet meant when he declared that every act of kindness is a little death. Every time we put self aside, we die to self; every time we die to self we become alive to certain joys and powers we never knew existed. We never give up anything worth holding when we give up our own selfish wills. In fact, we give up the one thing that is keeping us from being happy.

The worst tyrant in the world is "Capital-I." When we put him in his place we find that the pathway before our feet is plain, illuminated and inviting. Renunciation brings happiness — and we can expect no happiness until we develop and exercise the capacity to renounce.

Reagan Seen Steadily Losing Ground On Contra Support

WASHINGTON — With less than a month to go before the Nov. 7 deadline for implementing the five-nation Central America peace agreement, President Reagan appears to be losing the decisive battle of his six-year campaign to combat Nicaragua's Marxist government through the proxy use of U.S.-supported contra guerrillas.

Even senior Reagan administration officials who have backed the contras for years admit that the contra policy — linchpin of the Reagan doctrine's determination to thwart communism worldwide through wars of national liberation — is in serious danger of being discarded by a Congress that thinks it sees an alternative to the president's pursuit of military solutions in Central America.

That is likely to become newly evident Tuesday when Secretary of State George P. Shultz gives the House Foreign Affairs Committee an "update" on the Central America situation. Shultz, echoing the line taken by the administration since the peace agreement was signed last Aug. 7, is expected to argue that Congress should give the contras $270 million in new military aid as insurance to force Nicaragua's Sandinista leaders to carry out the accord's call for democratization and a halt to subversion in the region.

In past years, this argument was a successful part of Reagan's strategy of making Congress vote "again and again" on contra aid until shifting political considerations and respect for the president's popularity chipped away the opposition.

However, as Shultz has learned in similar meetings since last August, the dominant tendency in Congress right now is to turn a deaf ear to Reagan's insistence, reiterated in a speech last week to the Organization of American States, that contra aid is "a moral obligation" and "the essential guarantee" of Sandinista good conduct.

Instead, the members are responding sympathetically to the arguments of Costa Rican President Oscar Arias, principal author of the peace plan, and of House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Tex., who has become its foremost champion on Capitol Hill, that to talk about contra aid at this time is counter to the spirit of Arias' plea to "give peace a chance."

In short, the administration has found that it no longer can pursue a strategy of putting Congress on the defensive, even when it is controlled by the Democrats, by arguing that voting against contra aid would be seen by the public as voting to do nothing about the Nicaragua problem.

The argument that contra aid was the only game in town faded Aug. 7 when the presidents of Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Guatemala, El Salvador and Honduras gathered in Guatemala to sign the peace accord.

The predicament in which the administration now finds itself actually began to take shape a year ago on Oct. 5, 1986, when a private American transport plane was shot down in Nicaragua, triggering suspicion that the administration was attempting to circumvent congressional restrictions on aid to the contras. Soon afterward came the Iran-contra scandal, with its months-long series of revelations about the unauthorized diversion of millions of dollars to the contras.

By late summer, when the nationally televised Iran-contra hearings had run their course, it was clear that the administration had lost its ability to intimidate Congress by making contra aid a high-profile political issue for swing-vote members from conservative, mostly southern districts. Then in August came the chain of the events that created an alternative toward which the emerging anti-contra aid sentiment could gravitate.

It began when White House chief of staff Howard H. Baker Jr. approached Wright with the idea of seeking a bipartisan approach to Central America. Some Democratic congressmen still question whether Baker was genuinely sincere about finding a new approach or was trying to ensnare Wright into supporting renewed contra aid. In any case, his approach gave Wright, who had been pondering the issue for a year, an opportunity to transcend the bounds of his official role as a legislative leader and make himself into an unofficial secretary of state for Central American affairs.

With Wright's encouragement, the bipartisan initiative he and Reagan announced Aug. 5 was used by Arias as leverage to prod Nicaragua into joining its four democratically ruled neighbors in the peace agreement they signed two days later.

Reagan and his senior advisers, bound to the contra policy by their distaste for the Sandinista regime in Managua, reacted to the Central American plan with a confusion that tilted increasingly toward hostility. But Wright moved into the void and became the broker who blessed the agreement. He encouraged the Central Americans to go forward with implementation despite the administration's reservations, and pointed the way for Congress to push contra aid into the background with the argument that the peace process first should be given a chance to succeed.

While that was happening, the administration has shown a startling inability to get a grip on the situation and put its own imprint on the unfolding process. Instead, it consistently has sent mixed signals, teetering between half-hearted lip service to the Central American plan and attempts to assuage the Republican far right by denouncing the Sandinistas as untrustworthy Communists and vowing never to desert the contras.

The administration has made no secret of its belief that the Arias plan lacks many of the safeguards for U.S. interests that were built into the short-lived Wright-Reagan initiative. In particular, it cites the Central American agreement's failure to specify that Nicaragua stop receiving military aid from Cuba and the Soviet Union, its silence about whether the Sandinistas must negotiate with the contras and its failure to define with precision how civil wars in the various countries are to be resolved through cease-fires and amnesties for guerrilla rebels.

But, these concerns have been obscured by the administration's shrilly ideological tone and by the desire both of many members of Congress and the Central American governments to put the Nicaragua issue aside even if the solution is temporary.

Gulf Policy Challenges System

There is more than the obvious policy question behind the recent deployment of six U.S. minesweepers to the Persian Gulf: While the minesweepers are assigned to the Naval Reserve, the bulk of their crews have been replaced by active-duty sailors. This may seem insignificant — fewer than 200 men are involved — but it raises serious questions about the fundamental underpinnings of contemporary U.S. defense policy.

The end of the military draft in 1973 necessitated the concept of "total force" planning. Simply put, the military services were told to plan to use reservists, rather than draftees, should they need to expand their forces rapidly.

After some prolonged foot-dragging by the regular military establishment, the reserves are now integrated with the active forces to an unprecedented extent, thanks largely to political and budgetary pressures. U.S. war planners have never before counted so heavily or so early on the reserves, who are just beginning to feel more like varsity players than second-stringers.

For its part, the Navy transferred to its reserve component a number of combat and support ships, including 18 of the 21 minesweepers in the fleet. These vessels continue to be manned largely by active-duty sailors, but roughly one-fourth of the ships' companies consist of part-time reservists, many filling key positions.

Many skeptics oppose the expanded reliance on the nation's reserve forces, contending that reservists cannot achieve sufficient levels of readiness in their limited available training time (about 40 days a year) and with the limited resources doled out by their parent services. Other critics, meanwhile, recall the divisive complaints by many "reluctant warriors" who were mobilized for the Korean War in 1950, the Berlin crisis in 1961, and in the aftermath of the Pueblo capture by North Korea and the Tet offensive in Vietnam in 1968.

Perhaps the greatest fear, however, is that reserve call-ups are viewed as unambiguous signals of escalation that complicate the political decision to use them. The doubting Thomases have history on their side: President Lyndon B. Johnson's fateful choice to fight the Vietnam War with draftees rather than reservists — a stigma that the reserves continue to bear — was based almost totally on domestic political calculations.

The Navy has not divulged its reasons for leaving the reservists at the pier, but three possibilities come to mind: It did not consider the reserve crew members to be competent; it sought to minimize unpopular family and job separations, especially for such an ambiguous and seemingly open-ended operation, or the administration wanted to avoid the escalatory signal that a reserve call-up would convey at a time when it was warding off pressures to comply with the War Powers Act.

Whatever the reasons — readiness, morale or politics — the spirit of the highly touted active-reserve partnership has been challenged. The administration should not have stripped the minesweepers of their reserve crew members if for no other reason than to signal its clear commitment to the total-force concept. By failing to do so, it gave the regular military establishment new cause to question the true availability of its reserve components, and it gave the reserve forces new cause to wonder if they really are the full partners proclaimed by the total-force policy.

Students Get Chance To See Need For Training

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer

Sponsors of Industry on Parade at Robeson Technical College this week hope the 60,000 North Carolina students expected at the exhibit learn that there's more to getting a good job than a high school diploma.

"One of the problems is that in some cases, we have a lot of demand for workers with certain kinds of skills but not enough workers with those skills," said Cy Lynn, a spokesman for the state Department of Public Instruction.

The purpose of the event is to show students that "if you're going to get a good job, you've got to have some advanced training," he said.

Some 51 businesses are expected to participate in Industry on Parade, sponsored by Southern National Bank, which begins Wednesday at RTC and continues through Sunday. Of those businesses, 41 are industries, and all 51 are from North Carolina.

Those who visit the display — and officials expect at least 100,000 people to drop by, including the 60,000 students — will see a $500,000 piece of lasting equipment by Converse that assembles leather basketball shoes, a Murata 10-spindle automatic winder by Burlington Mills that turns raw fiber into synthetic yarn, a display by Burlington Mills that takes up five classrooms and North Carolina State University exhibiting five of its eight specialty schools — engineering, education, textiles, forestry and agricultural and life sciences.

Bob Dickison, a retired management consultant, is the director of Industry of Parade who has worked on the project for three years. He directed a similar project in 1982 that attracted 19 industries and drew about 40,000 people.

The participating companies are just as excited about the project as are its sponsors, Dickison said.

"It's giving them an opportunity to show who they are and what they do," he said. "They want students to get a better education so they can handle their jobs better in the future."

Students, he said, need to learn that "if they want to be a part of tomorrow's work world, they'll have to have some more education."

Bob Scott, president of the North Carolina community college system, said the exhibit does more than show students the world of work.

"Indeed, it's a current view of the American response to world competition," he said. "It demonstrates the critical need for trained workers who can perform complex tasks, think on their feet and help us regain the stature of this country as the world leader in the efficient production of quality goods and services."

A trained work force is imperative if North Carolina is to continue attracting industry, Lynn said. The 1980 census shows the state has 835,000 people above the age of 25 who have not completed eighth grade, he said, and another 700,000 more who haven't completed high school.

"We have got to have folks with literacy skills, who complete high school and who get into advanced training," he said.

The machinery being used at the exhibit is not futuristic, he said. "It's a window on what's going on right now."

It's not just high-technology businesses looking for skilled workers, he said. North Carolina's traditional industries, such as textiles, are using computerized equipment now. "Builders are begging for carpenters, brick masons and people who can read construction drawings," Lynn said.

"... It's great to have all these computers, but you've got to have someone to build the buildings and repair the air conditioning."

IN THE STATE

Dog Attack

GREENSBORO (AP) — A 2½-year-old Winston-Salem girl was mauled by a pit bull terrier while playing with her father in a wooded park in Montgomery County, and needed 40 stitches to close her facial wounds, officials say.

Sheena McNeill and her father, Kerry, were on a trail in Uwharrie National Forest about 12:30 p.m. Sunday when the dog ran toward them and jumped on the father, according to Capt. Buddy Walser of the Montgomery County Sheriff's Department.

"He knocked the dog off, kicked it, and it turned around and bit the girl," Walser said. The girl was bitten in the right forehead area, around the eye, and in the back of the right armpit, he said.

The father and the dog's owner, Russell LaViolette of Fayetteville, pulled the pit bull off the girl and a passerby shot and killed the dog, Walser said.

Tax Evaders

RALEIGH (AP) — Uncollected property taxes on cars and other vehicles cost counties up to $13 million a year, but a legislative study group has vowed to come up with solutions to the problem.

Jim Blackburn, lobbyist for the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, told the study committee Monday that an estimated 10 percent of personal property taxes that should be collected on motor vehicles "is slipping through the cracks."

In its organizational meeting Monday, the committee of legislators and local government officials also agreed to explore ways to ensure that all 100 counties update their real-estate assessments as state law requires.

Fatal Wreck

PRINCETON, W. Va. (AP) — A North Carolina man was killed this morning when the car he was riding in crashed on the West Virginia Turnpike, authorities said.

Clarence Eugene Robinson, 20, of Concord N.C., was thrown out of the car after it went out of control, said turnpike spokesman Rod Nickell.

The road was slick and foggy when the accident occurred at 4:58 a.m. in the southbound lanes of the turnpike near the Camp Creek exit in Mercer County, Nickell said.

Three women who were in the car, including the driver, Viola Patton, from Charlotte, N.C., were all taken to Princeton Community Hospital, police said.

Computers

RALEIGH (AP) — State Auditor Ed Renfrow says his office will save more than twice the cost of a new computer auditing system each year because it will reduce the time spent on audits by 10 to 13 percent.

The system "streamlines the process, it gives us the capability to evaluate more information in less time," Renfrow said Monday.

The system was crafted over three years by Financial Audit Systems Corp., a Raleigh-based software development and sales company, Renfrow said. He said it is believed the first governmental auditing computer program on the market.

The computer hardware cost about $200,000 and the software — 25 copies of the program — $5,428, Renfrow said. FAS Inc. is now selling the program for $1,200 per copy.

Warehouse Fire

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — A federal prosecutor said Monday he planned to ask a grand jury for indictments in connection with at least one of the two fires that destroyed tobacco warehouses in Wilson during the past year.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Kieran J. Shanahan said he would seek indictments in the October 1986 fire that destroyed the five-acre Liberty Warehouse on U.S. 301. A federal grand jury investigation is also under way in connection with the March fire that began in the Watson Warehouse and consumed an entire city block in downtown Wilson, including the Hi-Dollar Warehouse.

Investigators believe both fires were deliberately set, Shanahan said.

Evidence and testimony in each case are now being presented to separate grand juries in Raleigh and New Bern, Shanahan said.

DWI Charge

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — The Edgecombe County clerk of court was charged with driving while impaired and the district attorney for Wilson, Nash and Edgecombe counties was in satisfactory condition Monday following a weekend wreck.

According to the report filed by Trooper J.S. Collins, the wreck occurred at 2:20 p.m. Saturday on a rural paved road that runs off U.S. 64 in Edgecombe County, about two miles west of Rocky Mount.

Robert Curtis Weaver, 54, of Tarboro was charged with driving while impaired and transporting liquor with a broken seal. The patrol said District Attorney Howard Boney was a passenger in Weaver's car.

Democrats Hold More Top Posts

RALEIGH (AP) — Nearly three years after Republican Jim Martin became governor, Democrats still outnumber Republicans in the top 152 jobs in the governor's administration, a study by the state Attorney General's Office says.

By contrast, former Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt had only one Republican — the head of the Civil Air Patrol Division — in those positions when he left office in January 1985.

These findings, compiled by Democratic Attorney General Lacy Thornburg's office, are part of a brief filed last month in a two-year-old federal lawsuit that could determine whether governors — in North Carolina and elsewhere — can provide state jobs for their supporters by firing members of the rival party.

The suit, set to go before U.S. District Judge Earl Britt in Raleigh on Nov. 23, accuses Republican Martin and three cabinet members of dismissing three middle-level state employees — all Democrats — for political reasons.

Thornburg's senior deputy, Jean Benoy, who is defending the governor and his secretaries of Transportation, Human Resources, and Natural Resources and Community Development (NRCD), has filed briefs denying that the employees' political affiliations caused their dismissal.

To press the point that the governor or has had a bipartisan personnel policy, Benoy contacted boards of elections in all 100 counties and then compiled charts identifying the party affiliations of the top jobholders in the Hunt and Martin administrations.

Included in the charts are all department and division heads and their top assistants — a total of 152 positions. All are considered political appointees in that they are "exempt" from the State Personnel Act that protects most of the state's 70,000-plus employees.

Conservatives Are Elected

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP) — Conservative trustees are poised to promote "a New Right agenda" for North Carolina's only Southern Baptist seminary, moderates warned after fundamentalists swept elections at the start of a crucial three-day conference.

"They want to make it, eventually, a fundamentalist Bible school," J. Marse Grant, editor emeritus of a Baptist newspaper, said after Monday's meeting of trustees of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary.

The trustees replaced board chairman Jesse Chapman of Asheville, with Robert Crowley, of Rockville, Md. Chapman is regarded as a moderate, while Crowley is an avowed conservative.

Jim DeLoach, a conservative from Houston, was re-elected vice chairman, defeating moderate Jerry Holcomb of Virginia Beach, Va.

The Rev. Ralph Holt of Wilmington was re-elected secretary and the Rev. Arlie McDaniel of Mowcow, Iowa, won the treasurer's spot. Both are conservatives.

"That sets the tone for the entire meeting," said Dennis Hill, pastor of Blackwell Memorial Baptist Church of Elizabeth City.

Forbes Says More Rich Get Richer

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. billionaires nearly doubled in number this year to 49, including a 31-year-old computer whiz and a Campbell's soup heir, according to Forbes magazine's list of the 400 wealthiest Americans.

With an average worth of $550 million, the total value of the Forbes 400 is $220 billion, 41 percent more than last year and enough to erase the 1986 U.S. budget deficit of $205 billion, the magazine said Monday in releasing the list.

The list will appear in the magazine's Oct. 26 editions.

No. 1 for the third year is retail king Sam Walton, whose assets from his Arkansas-based Wal-Mart Stores discount chain nearly doubled to $8.5 billion.

Walton's estimated wealth is more than the gross national product of many Third World countries, and if laid end to end in dollar bills would circle the earth more than 32 times.

The list of 49 billionaires includes 23 newcomers, such as Jacqueline Mars Vogel, who Forbes said it recently determined was an heiress to the Mars confection company's family fortune and is worth $1.15 billion.

At 31, William H. Gates won the title of youngest new billionaire. A math genius and Harvard dropout, Gates founded the Microsoft Corp. computer software company 13 years ago. His 40 percent stake in the company is worth $1.25 billion.

Also on the list for the first time is Campbell Soup heir John Dorrance at $1.3 billion; Budweiser brewmaster August Busch, $1.3 billion, and Ted Arison, an Israeli ship owner's son who built Carnival Cruise Lines and last year took it public, quadrupling his worth to $1.8 billion.

Rising stock prices and real estate values played key roles in swelling the ranks and fortunes of the wealthy, meaning that much of the wealth of the super-rich is only on paper and would be realized only by selling their holdings.

The soaring value of Wal-Mart stock particularly benefited the holdings of Walton, whom Forbes estimated to be the world's third wealthiest person after Japan's Yoshiaki Tsutsumi, worth at least $20 billion, and Taichiro Mori, worth $15 billion.

After Walton, the Forbes top 10 include John Kluge, 73, German-born head of Metromedia Co., worth $3 billion; H. Ross Perot, 57, Texas investor, worth $2.9 billion; David Packard, 75, co-founder of Hewlett-Packard Co., $2.87 billion; publishing-empire brothers Samuel Newhouse Jr., 59, and Donald Newhouse, 58, each worth about $2.35 billion; industrialist Lester Crown, 62, $2.1 billion; publisher Rupert Murdoch, $2.1 billion; investor Warren Buffett, $2.1 billion; and retailer Leslie H. Wexner, $2.1 billion.

Bush Says He Won't 'Jump Away' From Reagan Record

By MERRILL HARTSON
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Vice President George Bush said today he is pledging in his newborn presidential campaign to change things, but not to "jump away" from the Reagan administration's record.

"I'm not trying to set myself apart from a record that's good," Bush said in an interview on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" program. "What I'm trying to do is say, 'Here are the things that we've succeeded in. Here's the unfulfilled agenda and here's what I, George Bush, am going to do about it in the '90s.'"

Bush, who formally entered the GOP presidential race Monday, sounded a similar theme in a subsequent interview on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

"I'm not looking for ways to vary from the president," he said. "What I'm trying to do is address myself to the future and build on what I think has been a very successful presidency."

In the ABC interview, he added: "I'm going to run on my pledge to change things and to make things better in the future but not jump away from a record that I've been a part of and strongly support."

Asked how he could remain loyal to Reagan yet establish his own identity, the vice president said: "I started that yesterday. I say, 'Here's the things that we've done, standing with the president. And now here are my priorities, here are the things I want to do.'"

On both programs, he pledged to stress issues such as education and the environment, where he said more attention is needed.

On the first day of what Bush promised would be a "full-bore" campaign, the vice president formally entered the race for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination before a crowd of some 2,000 enthusiastic supporters in his hometown of Houston.

He was joined on stage by three figures likely to loom as keys to his electoral chances: Govs. John Sununu of New Hampshire and James Thompson of Illinois and retired Sen. John Tower of Texas.

Thompson presented Bush late in the day with his endorsement, and then, to the chuckles of some in the Illinois press corps, declared, "I wouldn't be standing next to George Bush and endorsing him if I thought he was a wimp."

The question came up during a news conference as local reporters grilled Thompson about an old Illinois issue of yesteryear — the question of whether the Republican governor unfairly attacked former Sen. Adlai Stevenson, a Democrat, with repeated suggestions that Stevenson was a wimp.

Thompson said he had done no such thing, and Bush — speaking of his own image — said, "I don't think it is a problem at all."

Bush had a busy second day of campaigning ahead of him today, including a mix-and-mingle with Chicago area commuters, and stops in Cedar Rapids and Des Moines, Iowa, and in Atlanta.

Bush capped a 14-hour day Monday by appearing before a $1,000-a-plate fund-raising dinner in Chicago attended by about 600 people, where he spoke against the backdrop of a huge replica of the South Portico of the White House.

Bush Says Senate Should Back Bork

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush said today that senators who "knuckled under to political pressure" in deciding to oppose the Supreme Court nomination of Robert H. Bork should admit they were wrong and vote to support the nominee.

Bush, asked on NBC-TV's "Today" show whether President Reagan had failed to work hard enough for Bork's confirmation, replied:

"Let's put the blame up there on Capitol Hill. Let's get some of those senators that are opposed to Bork to say, 'Hey, we were wrong after listening to the debate. We knuckled under to political pressure unlike any in history and now we're going to do the right thing and vote to confirm a man who, on the merits, belongs on the Supreme Court'."

Bush said Reagan had worked vigorously on Bork's behalf, "and no one in this country has any question about it."

In an earlier interview today on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," Bush expressed hope that enough senators would change their minds to "confirm this good, decent, very bright and brilliant man."

Bork's opponents, meanwhile, say they won't get lazy while on the verge of victory, and plan to keep lobbying against the nominee until the 51st vote is cast on the Senate floor.

"We're not taking anything for granted," Ralph Neas, executive director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, said Monday.

Neas' civil rights coalition coordinated the massive effort to defeat Bork, prompting Reagan to call the opposition a "lynch mob." Fifty-three of the Senate's 100 members have announced their opposition to Bork.

The Senate has not yet scheduled a day for debate to begin on the nomination, but early next week is a good possibility.

The pro- and anti-Bork factions on the Senate Judiciary Committee are now working on the final stages of their required report on the nomination. A committee report usually precedes a floor debate on a nomination, although the Senate could proceed without one.

Reagan, who praised Bork's surprise decision last week to remain in contention and demand a Senate vote, joined lawmakers Monday in urging the Senate to act quickly.

Alf Landon Dies

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Alf Landon, the crusty Kansas Republican who laughed off his role as sacrificial lamb to Franklin Roosevelt in the 1936 presidential race and went on to advise party leaders for decades, has died. He was 100.

The former governor died at home Monday, two days after being discharged from Stormont-Vail Regional Medical Center, where he had been admitted Sept. 28 for treatment of a gallstone and a mild case of bronchitis.

Landon's wife of 58 years, Theo Cobb Landon, was at his side.

"They might have forgotten me if it had been close," Landon once said of his loss to Franklin Roosevelt, in which he garnered only eight electoral votes, the lowest in history.

Landon never again ran for office, nor did he shake his image as a political loser, but throughout his life he would call party leaders and offer advice.

When Landon was 91, he was thrust back into the political spotlight by his daughter, Nancy Kassebaum, who in 1978 won election to the U.S. Senate. The proud father called her victory "the thrill of a lifetime."

Alfred Mossman Landon graduated from the University of Kansas in 1908 with a law degree, but pursued business and politics instead.

He once described himself wryly as "a lawyer who never had a case, an oilman who never made a million and a presidential candidate who carried only Maine and Vermont."

Although Landon made a fortune drilling for oil, he detested being called an oilman. He said to him that denoted some fancily dressed eastern "dude" who bankrolled drilling operations but never got any oil on his hands.

An avid horseman, he continued to ride well into his 90s along the Kansas River bottoms near his white colonial home on Topeka's northwest edge. He loved to chide younger associates about their lack of exercise.

Landon was born Sept. 9, 1887, at West Middlesex, Pa.

Personal Experience Helps Others

By SALLIE WHELAN
PCMH Medical Writer

Crystal Lynn Register speaks from the heart and from experience when she talks about rehabilitation and how it can change a person's life.

Crystal, now 23, spent nearly a month at Regional Rehabilitation Center at Pitt County Memorial Hospital in 1980, relearning skills such as walking and talking. An automobile accident on Feb. 7 of that year left the Ayden resident in a coma, her brain stem bruised and her right side partially paralyzed. The 15-year-old remained in a coma for one month and has no memory of that part of her hospitalization, she says.

She does remember when she was transferred to the Regional Rehabilitation Center several weeks after regaining consciousness. Strong family support, excellent medical care, and the determination to get better all contributed to her remarkable recovery, Crystal says.

"My parents never gave up," says Crystal, the daughter of C.B. and Alice Register of Ayden. "When I was being transferred to the rehabilitation center, my mom told the doctor that if there was any way to reach me and make me understand, I would fight to get better. She told him, 'She's a fighter.'"

With the help of a team of rehabilitation professionals, Crystal began the long, hard road to rebuilding the strength and independence she enjoyed before the accident. Daily she received a full regimen of therapies, all geared toward helping her become as independent as possible. Her busy schedule was typical of patients in the rehabilitation center.

"I worked so hard in rehab. I was determined that I was going to get back to the way I was before," she says.

Crystal received extensive physical therapy to help her regain lost muscle function and mobility. Gradually she progressed from total immobility, to using a wheelchair, then a walker and finally walking unassisted. Speech therapists worked to restore her verbal communication skills which were impaired by the injury. Occupational therapists helped Crystal relearn routine skills she would need at home, such as the ability to feed and dress herself. Therapeutic recreation specialists developed her social skills through group sessions. Specially trained nurses monitored her progress and reinforced her newly learned skills.

Crystal was discharged in mid-April of 1980, 71 days after being admitted to Pitt Memorial. But her hard work did not end there. She continued to receive outpatient therapy. And while her classmates at Ayden-Grifton High School were enjoying their summer break, Crystal was diligently working to catch up on the school work she missed during her hospitalization. With the help of a private tutor, she was able to make up three subjects and join her classmates in the fall. And her work with the center's physical therapists counted toward the physical education credits she missed in school.

"Of course, I got more physical education at the center than you would ever get in school," Crystal laughs.

Looking at Crystal today, one would never guess what happened to her seven years ago. Crystal says she has made good things come about as a result of the accident.

"I'm not glad I had the accident, but it gave me direction in life. It had a big impact on my life. I knew after my accident that I wanted to go into the health care field. After I got out of the hospital that summer, I started volunteering at the rehabilitation center," Crystal said.

She continued to volunteer once school started and even after she started attending East Carolina University. Crystal decided that a career in nursing would give her the opportunity to work closely with patients. She is now completing her senior year at the East Carolina University School of Nursing.

Crystal had many opportunities to interact with patients this summer when she took part in the PCMH Nurse Extern Program. The extern program gives nursing students hands-on experience in a hospital setting. It also gave Crystal an opportunity to share her experiences with patients.

"I really like talking with patients in the rehabilitation center. I have an advantage because I've been there, I know what they are going through. I think I had an impact on them because they can look at me and say, 'You made it. You were that bad off and you made it.'"

Not everyone is able to recover fully as Crystal did, and she is careful not to give false hope to anyone.

"I told them they could possibly regain some of their strength, and what they could gain back, be thankful for it. If my experience can help someone, I want it to," she says.

When the extern program ended in July, Crystal stayed on as a full-time employee until she resumed school in September. Along with her busy school schedule, Crystal finds time to work on a part-time basis at the center.

At a time when many nurses are leaving the profession for jobs with better hours and a less stressful environment, Crystal says she had one reason for choosing this career.

"It's the feeling you get inside. I can't tell you the feeling I had inside when I walked out of the center this summer with a spinal cord-injured patient I had helped admit several months earlier. When you see people make progress," she says, pointing to her heart, "it feels so good in here."

"It gives you pride in yourself. You know you had a part in helping this person get well again."

Machines Bring Unrest To Earth

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

If there is one thing that all Americans share, it is their frustration with machines. Technology has become the catalyst for our anger, the object of our violence and the bane of our very existence.

We get a busy signal on the phone ... we slam the phone down into the cradle. A cup fails to fall from a vending machine and the coffee is lost ... we kick it. A parking meter refuses to register our dime ... we take it by the throat and try to pull it out of the ground.

And machines deserve every bit of abuse they get. They don't know their places and they're getting out of hand.

Just last week a woman pushed to the edge wrote me, "I'd love to join you at a tax-free seminar on a sandy beach - anywhere - to discuss my stove. The clock controls the heating element on my stove. This is the THIRD time it burnt out. I do not wish to buy a fourth one. I have a frying pan. I have an electric skillet. I have an hibachi that I use a lot in the summer."

"If I had the money, I would have the oven removed and put in shelves. The cupboards are much too small and too deep. The stove is made in Los Angeles and the hell with them too."

This letter makes a lot of sense to those of us who have dealt with machines. We once came from the cemetery and were following the car carrying the bereaved family. When the line of cars came to a stop, we realized the long black limo had gotten a flat ... ON THE WAY HOME FROM THE CEMETERY. We put up with a lot from machines, but I found that absolutely tasteless.

On another occasion, my mother went to one of those automatic bank tellers to cash a check. The machine chewed up her check beyond recognition and refused to give her the money she had asked for. This is my mother we're talking about. Later, I marched over to the machine and beat the buttons out of it and yelled, "Why don't you pick on someone your own age?"

One more story and I promise I'll make my point. A research center in Northern California actually housed a group of anthropologists who were studying the interaction between humans and machines. We're talking scientific people here who have seen it all. However, when their vending machine malfunctioned and had to be removed from the lab, it was noted that it had been kicked three times.

My point is that overpopulating the earth does not bring about violence and unrest ... machines are doing that, and yet they keep coming out with new ones. Some machines are actually mobile now and others have the ability to talk back.

As God is my witness, when the day comes that I put a quarter into a coffee machine and it pours scalding coffee all over my foot and begins to laugh, that is the day I will test the judicial system to its limits.

NURSING CAREER — Crystal Register spends many hours preparing for a nursing career.

Send A Prompt Thank-You Note

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: If you receive a gift, and thank the giver in person when you receive it, is it necessary to send a written thank-you note? — CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Yes. People with the best manners always send written thank-you notes. And promptly.

DEAR ABBY: Reading the letter from "Wondering in San Antonio" took me back many years. ("Wondering's" husband of six years thought it was perfectly OK to visit his 17-year-old stepdaughter's bedroom at bedtime to "talk" to her. The girl slept in the nude and made very little effort to cover up. "Wondering" said when she mentioned this to her husband, he accused her of being paranoid, crazy and evil-minded.)

When I was 35, I married a man who seemed to be overly fond of my 14-year-old daughter. He spent much time "tucking her in" and playing physical games — wrestling, hugging and dancing.

When she started to date, he insulted every boy she brought home. They grew closer and closer. By the time she was 28, she hadn't brought anybody home for three years. Their relationship was obvious to me, but she denied it, and he called me "crazy and evil-minded."

I tried to talk some sense into her, but she wouldn't listen.

I retained a lawyer who wrote her a letter demanding that she move from our home. She moved. A few months later, my husband moved out, and in with her. We were subsequently divorced and he married my daughter. They've been together since 1966.

I know that most men are decent, but I think women should be careful when they consider bringing a man into their home as a stepfather. — TRUE STORY, WILMINGTON, DEL.

DEAR TRUE STORY: Thank you for sharing your experience. A word to the wives is sufficient.

DEAR ABBY: Although my husband and I have been married for 32 years, we still disagree about something that happened on our wedding day. We had agreed that we would be married at a private ceremony at our church, followed by a dinner for the immediate family.

You can imagine my surprise to arrive at the church and find 25 or 30 of my fiancée's out-of-town relatives there! Since we hadn't planned on guests, it was an awkward moment.

Later I learned that my husband's mother had invited them, and even arranged for a catered dinner following the ceremony. My husband thought this was a nice thing for her to have done. I thought it was underhanded. I also thought the bride and groom made the wedding plans. The fact that his mother took it upon herself to invite these people caused embarrassment for me and my family.

Don't you think this should have been discussed with us before the marriage? I do. My husband insists that I am wrong, and his mother wasn't in the least out of line.

I've tried to forget it, but it keeps coming up, and I'd like your opinion. — STINGING MEMORIES

Patient Circle Has Speaker

The Patient Circle of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons meeting was held Thursday. Major Lillie Woolard was guest speaker.

She told of the work done by The Salvation Army especially during the Christmas season and of the doll show. Volunteers dress dolls which are featured in the show. The Salvation Army Auxiliary meets the third Tuesday of each month.

Dr. Mary Lois Staton introduced the speaker and presented her a contribution from the circle to be used for Christmas projects.

Mrs. Ralph C. Tucker said the theme for the state convention to be held in Raleigh was "Reach Out Your Hand." The convention was held Saturday and was attended by Clara Moye Shackell and Polly Dail.

Dr. Staton was meeting hostess.

DEAR STINGING: To have invited wedding guests without your knowledge and approval was certainly "out of line." I know it's not easy to forget, but no good purpose is served by bringing it up. If it's any satisfaction for you to know that Abby is on your side, I am.

(Is your social life in a slump? Lonely? Get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. Send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Court Lets States Limit Medicare

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today allowed states to set limits on what doctors may be paid for treating patients covered by the federally funded Medicare program.

The court, without comment, rejected a challenge to a Massachusetts law barring physicians from exceeding what are determined to be "reasonable" fees under Medicare.

In another case, the court agreed to decide whether states may recoup costs of keeping convicted criminals behind bars by seizing money prison inmates receive as federal benefits.

In the Medicare case, lawyers for the Massachusetts Medical Society and the American Medical Association said the state law, signed by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis in 1985, violates a compromise at the heart of the Medicare program of financial aid to those over 65.

Under Medicare, doctors are reimbursed for 80 percent of their "reasonable charges" to patients, with the patients expected to pay the balance. The charges are established by federal officials.

The federal law permits doctors to exceed those fees if the patient agrees. In such cases, the patient — and not the government — pays the additional amount. The practice is called "balance billing."

The AMA and the Massachusetts Medical Society said giving patients such an option was designed to guarantee they can obtain services they regard as worth the additional money.

The doctors' groups also said the option assures that physicians will have an incentive to treat Medicare patients.

The groups argued that the state law is unconstitutional because the federal law enacting Medicare guaranteed the option would be available. The groups also said that many other states will enact similar laws if the Massachusetts law is permitted to stand.

Floyd Goes To Sea

Key Largo. Another tornado touched down in extreme southern Dade County.

At 6 a.m., the tropical storm was centered near latitude 26.7 north and longitude 77.3 west, or about 190 miles east-northeast of Miami and just south of Grand Bahama Island. It was moving east-northeast at 15 mph, with top winds of 65 mph, 9 mph below hurricane status.

"Basically its being absorbed by an area of low pressure off the East Coast. That's why it's losing its tropical characteristics. The winds (of the low pressure system) are just tearing the storm apart," meteorologist Randy Lascody said today.

After reports Monday that coastal residents had cleared stores of batteries, canned food and bottled water and that many tourists had fled, National Hurricane Center forecaster Bob Sheets said, "I'm afraid some people are overreacting. This is just barely a hurricane."

"It was a good practice run," said Eddie Gonzalez, a deputy director with Metro-Dade police who was staffing the county emergency management office late Monday. "We put a lot of stuff into motion."

The storm knocked down some trees and wires in Dade County, but there was no other damage, Gonzalez said. In Florida's Keys, damage was minimal despite heavy wind and rain, according to Monroe County spokesman Charles Acheson.

"So far we haven't had that many reports of any structural or physical damage," Acheson said.

The storm's eye passed directly over Key West between noon and 1 p.m. Monday and headed northeast.

A tropical storm warning was in effect today for Grand Bahama and the Abacos, while a hurricane warning was discontinued for the Biminis.

Phillips

AYDEN — A funeral for Mr. Elijah Phillips, 82, will be conducted at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church on Route 1, Grifton, by Elder E.L. Garner. Burial will be in the Loftin Cemetery.

Mr. Phillips was born and reared in the Piney Grove community of Craven County, but had made his home in Ayden for many years. He was a member of Piney Grove F.W.B. Church and a former member of Zion Hill Christian Aid Lodge No. 20.

Surviving are a son, William Earl Blount of the home; a daughter, Rosa Harper of Kinston; two sisters, Ivia Marshall of Richmond, Va., and Mordecia Greene of Dover; eight grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild.

The family will receive friends at Norcott Memorial Chapel in Ayden today from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. and at other times will be at the home, 800 S. Pitt St., Ayden.

Sumrell

AYDEN — Mr. R. Stencil Sumrell, 75, died Monday at his home, 502 Snow Hill St.

His funeral will be conducted Wednesday at 11 a.m. in the Farmer Funeral Home Chapel by the Rev. Billy Cardin. Burial will be in the Ayden Cemetery.

Mr. Sumrell was the owner of Sumrell Furniture Co. and was involved in farming. He was a veteran of World War II and was a former prisoner of war. He was a member of Ayden United Methodist Church and was a member of Ayden Masonic Lodge No. 498.

Surviving are his wife, Mary W. Sumrell of the home; two sons, Tommy Sumrell and Kenneth Sumrell, both of Ayden; a daughter, Betty Jo Sumrell of Greenville; a brother, J.P. Sumrell of Ayden; a sister, Vallie Barwick of Ayden, and two grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today.

Twins Win, Head To Series

DETROIT (AP) — The Minnesota Twins found winning on the road wasn't so difficult if you hit the road with a full head of steam.

The Twins great hope now is that they can take the same formula they used to beat the Detroit Tigers in the American League playoffs and win the World Series with it.

Tom Brunansky keyed a four-run Minnesota second inning with a two-run double and belted a home run to start a three-run ninth inning Monday as the Twins beat the Tigers 9-5, winning the best-of-seven series 4-1 to advance to their first World Series in 22 years.

Minnesota third baseman Gary Gaetti, who was named most valuable player for the series, set the tone in Game 1 when he homered his first two at-bats.

That got the Twins rolling and they never slowed.

The Twins, whose 56-25 record in the Metrodome was the best home record in baseball, won both playoff games there before their frenzied fans, who waved their "homer hankies," and Minnesota used that momentum to beat Detroit twice in Tiger Stadium.

"This is a tough place to play," Gaetti said. "You can get rattled here pretty easily. But opening the series in Minnesota helped relieve the tension and we knew after winning the first two games, we would return to Minnesota anyway." Gaetti felt the fast start at home was vital to the Twins who, prior to the playoffs, had won only nine road games since the All-Star break.

"For the team, it meant everything," Gaetti said. "It gave us confidence. For myself, it was just important to get the first at-bat out of the way and then just concentrate on playing ball."

Twins Manager Tom Kelly said Gaetti's two opening-game homers, and the Minnesota fans' reaction to them, set the tone for his young ballclub.

"I think it showed the rest of the guys that we were capable of doing some damage," said Kelly, the sixth rookie manager and third in the AL to win a playoff title since the inception of divisional play in 1969. "If Gary can hit the ball out of the park off Doyle Alexander, then maybe the rest of us can get something going, too."

"That was the big key to getting us going on the right foot."

Another key factor was the way the underdog Twins shut down the Tigers big guns. Detroit's key hitters — Alan Trammell, Darrell Evans and Kirk Gibson — were never a factor.

"They just beat us up," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said. "They beat us up with offense and defense and everything. The players also thought their 36-year-old manager was a factor.

"The team is emotional on the field, but we are laid back off the field," said right-hander Bert Blyleven, who won two games. "We give all we've got and hope the breaks go our way. In these five games, the breaks definitely went our way."

Gaetti, who hit an even .300 in the playoffs, started Alexander's early exit with a leadoff single in the second. Randy Bush walked and Brunansky hit the first pitch into the right-field corner, driving in Gaetti and Bush.

Brunansky, whose hit was his fourth double of the series, was thrown out trying to stretch it into a triple.

"This is going to bring a lot of notoriety to the players who don't normally get it because Minnesota isn't really a big media center," Brunansky said. "But we've gone out this year and proven we can play."

Steve Lombardozi singled, then Alexander got Tim Lardner on a grounder that moved Lombardozi to second. Dan Gladden singled Lombardozi home, Greg Gagne was hit by a pitch, then Kirby Puckett singled Gladden across for a 4-0 lead and Eric King relieved Alexander.

Rookie catcher Matt Nokes hit a two-run homer in Detroit's three-run fourth inning, but the Tigers never could put together another big rally.

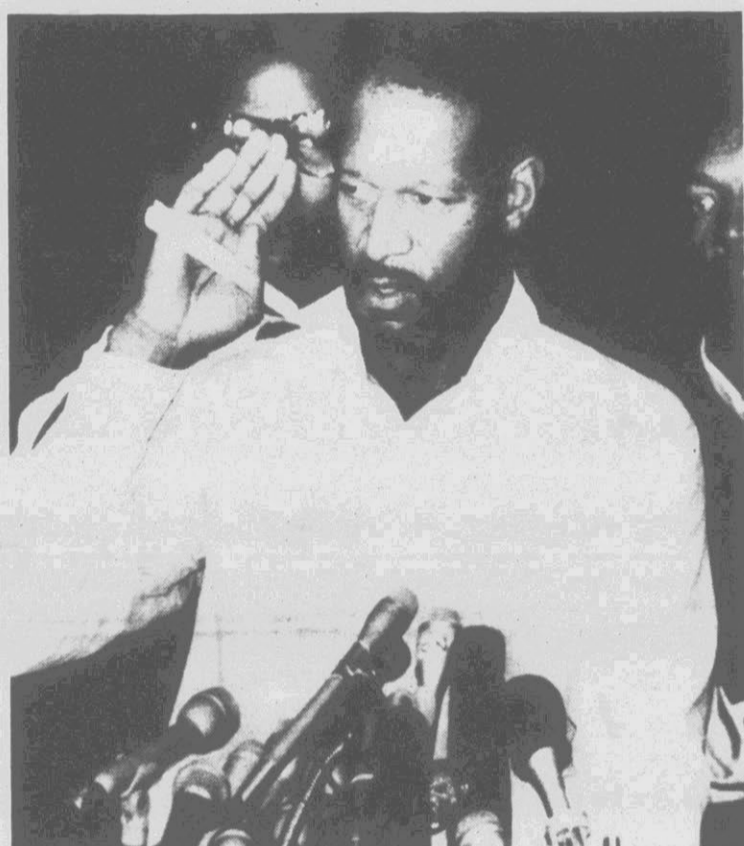

Three home runs in Game 5 brought the total hit in the series to a record 15. The mark of 13 had been accomplished three times, most recently in 1986 when California hit seven and Boston six.

Players Present A New Proposal

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) — For the second week in a row, the striking NFL players union has come up with a plan that may avert the mass defections that had been predicted for this week.

But once again, the owners may reject it, setting up a third week of games played by replacement players and those who choose to cross the picket line.

"No," Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council replied early today when asked if he thought the council's executive committee would approve the proposal when it met this afternoon in New York.

The new plan emerged from a six-hour meeting Monday of the 28 player representatives.

The players would agree to return while a federal mediator tried to resolve the dispute for six weeks. If that failed, it would then go to binding arbitration.

"We think this is a fair way to end the dispute," said Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFL Players Association, who announced the new plan. It was the first time during — That the 1982 Collective Bargaining Agreement would remain in effect until a new contract is reached.

— All player representatives and alternate player representatives would be protected for the rest of season.
— All issues currently on the table now would be submitted to mediation. After six weeks, all issues still outstanding would be submitted to binding arbitration.

Big Win Boosts Pirates' Hopes

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

It was not at all surprising that East Carolina football Coach Art Baker was a happy man Monday when he met with the media at his weekly press conference.

Baker's Pirates had romped to a 56-28 victory over the University of Cincinnati on Saturday, rolling up 500 yards on the ground and 608 in all.

Much of that was because of a change in the offensive lineup that got the ball into the hands of Reggie McKinney much more than in the previous five games. As a result, McKinney, in 20 carries, gained over 200 yards in leading the way to the win.

"It's great to come off a win," Baker said. "It gives the players and coaches a good feeling to accomplish what we've been saying we could do all year — particularly on offense where we've had so many problems."

Baker said, too, that it was significant that it came after one of the Pirates' worst defeats in the Baker era, a 49-0 rout by West Virginia the week before. "Our staff did an excellent job of getting everyone's mind where he should be."

Baker credited the difference with the I-like formation the Pirates used, one tied in with the run-and-shoot. "It was not a new formation. We've used it before. But we hadn't used it enough for Cincinnati to be wary of it and prepare for it. It was a surprise to them," Baker said.

The coach said that in a review of the Cincinnati game films, they had not faced a single option play and just weren't fully prepared for the Pirates' use of the I-back in combination with the option game.

"One of the biggest single factors was that we did not drop the football all day. We had no turnovers. We've felt all along that if we eliminated our turnovers, there was no telling what we could do," he said.

Using the formation allowed the Pirates to predict which back would get the ball, rather than have it dictated at the line of scrimmage by what the defense set up for. "We knew that Reggie McKinney was a dangerous runner, and I take full responsibility for not getting the ball to him more before now," Baker said.

"Anytime you rush for 500 yards, you have to give credit to the offensive line," Baker added. "Stuart Southall is just not big enough to be a Division I-A lineman, but he works hard and just won't let anyone beat him," the coach said, also praising center Kyle Condry and guard Billy Michel. "Our tight ends, Matt McLaughlin and Ben Billings, also played a significant role in the win with their blocking," Baker pointed out.

Too, the coach noted, the quarterbacks must play well for a 608-yard outing. "You can't appreciate all that Travis Hunter did until you see the film. He did one of his best jobs ever in running the option. And Charlie Libretto; it was good to see him get back into the swing of things. He played the best he has here. We will play him more and more as the season goes along," Baker promised.

He also was pleased with the running of the fullbacks, Anthony Simpson and Tim James, calling the former 'Old Reliable.'

"I think our winning was the result of a team meeting we had Monday night," Baker said. "We identified things that were needed for us to come back and have a winning season. We could tuck our tails and run or we could stand up and act like Pirates. We asked them for a new commitment."

"After we finished the seniors asked for time with the team and we

ECU Hoopers Facing Tough Year

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

To say that East Carolina's basketball team faces a year without pressure upon it is perhaps an understatement.

Thursday, new coach Mike Steele will begin preparations for the 1987-88 season and the first thing he faces is the fact that there is little experience and even less size on the Pirate squad.

During the past year, the Pirates had a chance in coaching when Charlie Harrison resigned after five years at the helm, then went through the loss of several returning players due to academic and non-academic problems.

The latest casualty was the only returning player of note, forward Blue Edwards, who averaged 14.4 points and 5.6 rebounds a game last season.

Dr. Richard Eakin, chancellor of East Carolina, announced Monday that Edwards had been suspended for a year. (See related story)

Meanwhile, Steele must cope with having only two veteran members of the team back, 5-9 junior guard Jeff Kelly and 6-3 sophomore guard Reed Lose. Between them, they averaged 3.1 points and 2.0 rebounds a game.

The only other name that might be recognized is that of Gus Hill, a 6-3 sophomore brought to ECU by Har-ison, but who has not played due to injuries.

"Gus' knee is better and he's lost 20 pounds too. I think he'll have a chance to help us," Steele said.

Beyond those three, everyone else is new to the program, leaving precious little experience and very little height.

The tallest Pirate is 6-6 Dominique

Martin, a transfer from Lake Sumter Junior College.

The only other junior besides Martin and Kelly is walkon Kenny Murphy, a 6-3 junior from Northern Durham.

The remainder of the team, except for Lose and Hill, both sophomores, are freshmen. They include 6-2 Ronney Gibbs, 6-2 Terhern Harvey, 5-9

Jimmy Hinton, 6-5 Marc Lacy and 6-5 Stanley Love.

And Steele admits that height will be a priority in recruiting this year. "Like the Marines, we're looking for a few good men — tall, good men."

Steele admits the coming year will be a difficult one. "But we're trying

ECU's Edwards Ineligible For The Upcoming Season

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

Theodore "Blue" Edwards, the leading returning scorer and rebounder for East Carolina's basketball team, has been declared ineligible for varsity play during the 1987-88 season due to an infraction of the school's student code.

Edwards was charged, along with three former ECU basketball players, in connection with the theft of over $6,000 in stereos and other equipment in a university residence hall on Dec. 26, 1986.

Edwards, a senior from Walstonburg, is scheduled to go to trial Oct. 23 in Pitt County District Court.

"In consultation with Athletic Director Ken Karr and basketball coach Mike Steele, I have decided that Theodore (Blue) Edwards is not eligible for varsity play during the academic year as a result of infractions of the student code," said ECU chancellor Richard Eakin in a prepared statement.

ECU officials refused to comment on any of the details of the suspension, citing the provisions of the Privacy Act.

"I'd like to be able to elaborate more but I can't," Steele said in a press conference Monday. "Hopefully, after he sits out this year and does all the things that are required of him, that there will be a chance that he will come back and finish his career at East Carolina."

"The only thing I can say is that Blue Edwards has done everything that we asked of him. He's been a good person and the kind of guy that I want in my program. We just have to hope that Blue will do everything he has to and I believe he will."

Steele said it had not yet been decided whether Edwards, who has but one year of eligibility remaining, would be granted a red-shirt year.

"It's not quite that simple," he said. "We're going to have to wait and see what happens with Blue and see how this year goes academically and other ways."

Edwards, the lone returning starter from last year's 12-16 team, averaged 14.4 points and 5.6 rebounds a game last season. He was a second team All-American at Louisburg Junior College during the 1985-86 season.

His departure leaves the Pirates with only two returning experienced players.

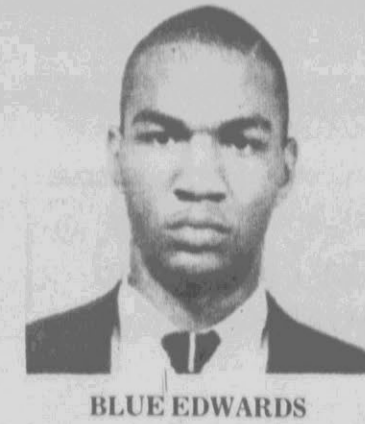

Steele, who was named head coach in April following the resignation of Charlie Harrison, opens practice on Oct. 18 with no players taller than 6-5 on the team. Of the two returning players, guards Jeff Kelly and Reed Lose, only one (Kelly) has ever started a college game and neither averaged more than two-points a game last season. The rest of the team is comprised of five freshman and two walk-ons.

Since Steele took over as head coach, the team has lost four scholarship players due to academic or legal problems.

Howard Brown, John Williams and Tracy King, all former team members, were charged along with Edwards in the dorm thefts. Manuel Jones was dismissed from school following the spring semester due to academic problems. Walk-ons Steve Patton and Tim Beckworth left school.

Dudek Gets His Chance, Makes The Most Of It

DENVER (AP) — Joe Dudek, twice denied in his dream of playing in the NFL, finally got his chance thanks to the players union strike, and he made his debut a memorable one.

Dudek rushed for 128 yards on 23 carries and scored two touchdowns Monday night as the Denver Broncos stayed in contention in the AFC West with a 30-14 victory over the Los Angeles Raiders.

As a vocal crowd of 61,230 chanted "Dudek, Dudek," the former record-setting small-college back gave the Broncos the running game they missed in their first replacement game a week ago.

He scored two first-quarter touchdowns on runs of 7 yards and 3 yards, set up a go-ahead field goal late in the half by gaining 19 yards on a short pass, and then teamed with fullback Nathan Poole on a time-consuming drive in the final period that led to an insurance score by Poole.

"It was a dream come true," said Dudek, who played at tiny Plymouth State (N.H.), a Division III school. "I know I can play in this league. I got a feel for the game tonight. I was embarrassed by the fumbles but, thankfully, it didn't cost us the game. I wasn't used to that type of hitting. Next time I'll be ready for it."

Broncos Coach Dan Reeves said Dudek and Poole "did a tremendous job of running the ball for us. It was a big improvement over last week."

Denver rushed for 204 yards against the Raiders. In a humiliating 40-10 loss to Houston last week, the Broncos managed a meager 38 yards on the ground.

"Their running game just whipped us," said Raider All-Pro defensive end Howie Long, who crossed the picket line last week. "Dudek quietly amassed a lot of yards. He played real well."

Ken Karcher passed 10 yards to Rick Massie late in the third quarter to account for Denver's other touchdown as the Broncos went to 2-1-1 on the season. The Raiders fell to 3-1.

Karcher left the game moments later with a dislocated ring finger on his passing hand, and second- and third-string quarterbacks Dean May and Monte McGuire mopped up, appearing on alternate plays during Denver's 87-yard, 13-play drive in the final period that was capped by Poole's 1-yard run.

Karcher was confident of playing next week, but the Broncos weren't so lucky with veteran wide receiver Steve Watson, who suffered six broken ribs when sandwiched between two Los Angeles tacklers in the first quarter. He is expected to be sidelined four to six weeks.

After Dudek's two TDs, the Raiders bounced back to tie with a pair of scores less than two minutes apart. Vince Evans passed 3 yards to tight end Mario Perry to cap a 75-yard drive highlighted by three Denver penalties.

Then, Rick Calhoun of the Raiders broke loose on 55-yard punt return to produce a 14-14 tie.

Mike Clendenen's 31-yard field goal just before the half put Denver ahead for good. The Raiders were stymied by four turnovers in the second half and didn't come close to scoring again despite crossing midfield four times in the half.

"Denver played an inspired game," Los Angeles Coach Tom Flores said. "They did nothing different from what we expected, they just executed better."

Several hundred pickets, including about two dozen striking Broncos, held a peaceful demonstration outside Mile High Stadium prior to the game. No incidents were reported, but Broncos linebacker Karl Mecklenburg was subjected to verbal abuse after it was disclosed he tore up an autograph he had signed for an 8-year-old boy after the youth said he was about to attend last week's game.

The striking players left the stadium shortly before kickoff and planned to sign autographs at a suburban restaurant during the game.

For the second straight week, Denver has led the NFL in attendance at strike games.

A week ago, Denver's crowd of 38,404 topped all other NFL cities. On Monday night, 61,230 fans turned out to see the Broncos — who had looked horrid in the previous week's game — play the Los Angeles Raiders. Dallas' crowd of 40,622 on Sunday had been the biggest of the week until the Raider-Bronco game.

Players Offer A New Plan ...

these negotiations that the union has agreed to mediation.

But the owners want no part of general arbitration, although it's possible they might be willing to submit such economic issues to an arbitrator.

"I've told Gene many times that we won't go to arbitration and I don't think we'll do it this time," Donlan said.

Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys, a key member of the Management Council's Executive Committee, also doubted the proposal would be approved.

"We're not going to put the future of the NFL in the hands of an arbitrator," he said.

If the owners do reject the players' proposal, which also demanded that the 1982 contract be honored; that striking players remain on the roster, and player reps and alternates be protected, the question is how many players will cross the picket line?

Last week, there were 37 defections, fewer than expected after a Monday meeting of player reps at the same O'Hare Airport hotel in which the players seemed to back off their demand for free agency. That led to six days of negotiations that broke off Sunday with free agency still a major obstacle to settlement of the three-week walkout.

Monday's meeting took place in the face of reports that the 37 defections of last week might triple or quadruple this week, particularly on teams such as the Washington Redskins, Chicago Bears, New York Giants and Cleveland Browns, who so far have remained solidly on strike. So far, 133 of the 1,585 players under union jurisdiction have returned to work.

In announcing the new plan, Upshaw raised the possibility that rejection by the owners would mean a season-long strike.

"I would say if the owners decline this, then we're out for the duration, out for the year," he said.

But rejection today also would raise the possibility of mass defections by the reporting date Wednesday as players face the prospect of losing their fourth paycheck of the season — one quarter of their yearly salary.

Among those expected to join replacement players was last season's league MVP, Lawrence Taylor of the Giants.

The New York Times, quoting a source close to the All-Pro linebacker, reported today that Taylor would return to the Giants on Wednesday. The newspaper said it could not reach Taylor for confirmation, but quoted his Houston-based agent, Gary Kovacs, as saying there was a "strong chance" his client would cross the picket line in time to play and be paid for this week.

For the average player, that amounts to about $15,000; for such stars as Jim Kelly, John Elway or Taylor, the figure is more than $50,000.

"I don't think the players want to be on strike for free agency," said Patrick Bowlen, owner of the Denver Broncos and one of the more dovish owners. "My players are telling me they want to come in."

But Karl Mecklenburg, the Broncos' assistant player representative, said he didn't expect any more Broncos to trickle back. "We'll either come in as a team or stay out as one," Mecklenburg said.

The owners meanwhile are feeling their own pressure.

While attendance was up from last week's first strike games, including 61,230 Monday night at Mile High Stadium, where Denver beat the Los Angeles Raiders 30-14, television ratings continued to decline.

In overnight ratings from 15 cities for Sunday's games, NBC had a 10.2, a drop of 13 percent from last Sunday, while CBS drew a 13.6 rating for its first regional games and 10.7 for the second games, a decrease of 14 percent.

The union also released a letter written by Upshaw to the 28 team owners asking them for help in ending the strike. He said, however, that that didn't rule out bargaining with any representative of management, including Donlan and the rest of the Management Council.

Upshaw's letter included one proposal that had not yet been made public — an offer to moderate the union's demand for guaranteed salaries for all players.

Instead, a fourth-year player would be guaranteed his salary if he made the final roster; a third-year player would be guaranteed 75 percent, and a second-year player would be guaranteed 50 percent. The most recent management offer made public gives fourth-year players their full yearly salary if they remain on the roster after three games.

Oklahoma, Nebraska and Miami remained 1-2-3 in The Associated Press college football poll for the third week in a row today while Notre Dame fell out of the Top Ten and Oregon made the rankings for the first time in 17 years.

Oregon, No. 16 this week, last appeared in the AP poll of Nov. 9, 1970, when the Ducks were 6-3. They have had only three winning seasons in the last 16 years, but are 4-1 after defeating Washington and Southern California in successive weeks.

Oklahoma's 44-9 victory over

Texas enabled the Sooners to remain No. 1 in their quest to become the first team ever to hold the top spot from the preseason through postseason poll. The Sooners received 47 of 60 first-place votes and 1,184 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Nebraska, which has been the runner-up in every poll this season, crushed Kansas 54-2 and received seven first-place ballots and 1,122 points. The other six first-place votes went to Miami, which beat Maryland 46-16 and earned 1,111 points.

Louisiana State moves up a notch past idle Syracuse to first place in the Daily Reflector Performance Rankings this week.

The 5-0-1 Bengals have amassed 636 points through the first six weeks of the 1987 collegiate football season.

Points are awarded to teams for each victory they claim. In addition, they receive more points for each game won by someone they defeat, and still more for each game won by teams in the third level of competition.

As an example, East Carolina, in its defeat of Cincinnati, received a certain number of points, plus additional points for the two games won by Cincinnati, and additional points for wins by teams Cincinnati has beaten.

Thus the rankings reflect success against the strength of schedule.

LSU held only a slim lead over Miami, Fla., after the week's play, however. The Hurricanes, 4-0, had 632 points with more games remaining on their schedule, thus have the chance to move higher.

Penn State, third last week, holds to third with 628 points while Florida State moves up three places to number four with 604 points.

Last week's leader, Syracuse, had an open date this past weekend, falling to fifth place. The Orangemen did pick up 88 secondary and tertiary points over the weekend.

Oklahoma State made the biggest strides on the list, vaulting from a tie for 19th place into sixth with 504 points.

Newcomers to the list this week include Oregon, Oklahoma, Pittsburgh, Michigan State, Wyoming, Indiana and Minnesota.

Tough Year ...

to build a foundation for a program," he said. "We feel good about the kids in our program. We just finished a six-week running program and everyone showed improvement. Our weight program also showed a great deal of improvement."

Steele said that progress is also being made academically. "At least one member of the coaching staff eats breakfast with the team each morning to get them started off right. They are going to classes and making good grades. This is a positive step for us."

Steele also pointed out that recently five recruits visited the campus. "I have enough confidence in this team to let them take over the recruits. And I'll be talking with them about the recruits. What they have to say will be important. We don't want to recruit kids who won't fit in here. If there is no chemistry, it won't work."

But, despite the fact that the Pirates face some adversity this year, Steele feels that the future is bright. "I recently saw a national magazine and Marshall (where Dan Bell, ECU recruiting coach came from) is ranked in the top 20 for next year and DePauw (where Steele was the head coach) is ranked in the top five among its division. It won't be easy, but we can get there."

And when it comes to victories, Steele is a realist too. "I don't know what it will be like (the won-lost record). We'll just try to win as many as we can."

Steele admitted that he has never been involved with a program which has been so devastated. But at the same time, he feels that can be a positive, too. I think that a kid can look at our program and see that he can come and play for four years and have a great career."

Steele said that while recruiting appeared to be going well, he would not prophesy about any early signings. "We're not going to sign someone just to sign them early. We want to make sure that we're getting people who can come in and help us."

Meanwhile, he's still looking for immediate help and will be holding a tryout for walkons later this week.

"I think our team is going to be enthusiastic. Our freshmen are excited about being here. Hopefully that excitement will lead to good play not mass confusion which usually goes along with inexperience."

"We're going to have to press, change defenses, run and jump and play a lot of people," Steele said.

Saunders, Eastwood Tie In Contest

Frank W. Saunders of 1713 Morningside Place, Greenville, and Robert Earl Eastwood of 401 1/2 E. Church St., Farmville, tied for first place in last week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Both correctly picked the winners in 26 of the 32 games listed in the contest. Both also picked the same point total as their guess of the most points to be scored in any one game, listing 72. The actual total was 84 in East Carolina's 56-28 win over Cincinnati.

They will share equally in the total prize money for the week.

Three other entrants also correctly picked 26 games right, but were further off in their point total guesses. They included Martha J. Karachon of P.O. Box 55, Ayden (68); Mike Williamson of 202 S. Elm St., Greenville (68) and Max W. Williford, Rt. 1, Box 566, Greenville (65).

The next contest in the weekly series appears elsewhere in today's edition.

Earnhardt Apparently Has Won Points Title

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt has essentially wrapped up his second straight and third overall NASCAR Winston Cup stock car racing national championship, but he'll have to wait two more weeks to mathematically win it.

Earnhardt's lead fell to 525 points following Sunday's Oakwood Homes 500 at Charlotte (N.C.) Motor Speedway, 4,268-3,743, over second-place Bill Elliott. Elliott won the 500-mile race, while Earnhardt finished 12th.

Just by starting the next race on the Winston Cup title, the Oct. 25 AC Delco 500 at North Carolina Motor Speedway, Earnhardt will clinch the Winston Cup championship, not even having to compete in the final two races, the Nov. 8 Winston Western 500 at Riverside (Calif.) International Raceway and the Nov. 22 Atlanta Journal 500 at Atlanta (Ga.) International Raceway. Earnhardt and car owner Richard Childress have already said they will compete in all events.

Spurrier Says Dilweg To Replace Slayden

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke football coach Steve Spurrier says junior Anthony Dilweg will start at quarterback for the Blue Devils at Clemson in place of four-year starter Steve Slayden.

Duke, 3-2 and losers of two straight contests, meet eighth-ranked Clemson, 5-0, Saturday at 1 p.m. in Death Valley.

Spurrier said Monday at his weekly press conference that the change was discussed last week, an off-week for the Blue Devils. A final decision was reached Monday to allow Dilweg time to prepare for the start.

"I'm very excited and thankful that I'll have the opportunity," Dilweg said. "Especially in a game like this, against a great team like Clemson."

Dilweg has been a three-year understudy to Slayden.

"He's (Dilweg) performed very well in our practices and scrimmages," Spurrier said. "How well he does in a game, I don't know. I think as a coach when you've got a player very capable who can do a very good job, he needs a chance. Maybe he'll play better than Steve; I don't know. Eventually, we've got to find out."

Slayden, a 6-foot-2, 185-pound senior from Atlanta, leads the ACC and ranks 12th nationally in total offense with 227.8 yards per game and seven touchdown passes. But he has thrown 11 interceptions, four in the past two weeks during crucial situations.

"Basically, it all comes down to the decisions on the field," Spurrier said. "The quarterback has got to make good decisions on the field. Steve is one of the finest passers I've been around. But his decisions haven't been too good the last two weeks. For us to win, the player at that position has to play extremely well."

Sheridan Worried About Heels' Desperation

RALEIGH (AP) — Dick Sheridan saw the frustration factor help his North Carolina State football team 2 1/2 weeks ago. This week, he hopes he doesn't see the same situation from the flip side against North Carolina.

Consecutive losses to Auburn and Wake Forest have left the Tar Heels 3-3 and with the impression that they are better than their record.

Chicod Takes Two Volleyball Wins

KINSTON — Chicod swept a pair of volleyball matches in a tri-match against Wellcome and Savannah Middle Schools Monday.

In the first match, Chicod defeated Wellcome 15-8, 15-13. Chicod was led by Angie Jones with a total of 15 points.

In the second match, Wellcome defeated Savannah 10-15, 16-14, 15-6 before Chicod defeated Savannah, 15-4, 15-7, in the final match.

Stephanie Mills had nine straight service points for Chicod.

Chicod's record improves to 5-1 and Wednesday at home against A.G. Cox and Griffon.

Blyleven Used Positive Thinking

DETROIT (AP) — Bert Blyleven wasn't being cocky. He was just using his power of positive thinking.

After winning Game 2 of the American League playoffs to give the Minnesota Twins a 2-0 series lead, the 36-year-old right-hander boldly predicted that his Twins would wrap up their first AL pennant since 1965 in Detroit.

It seemed preposterous that the AL West champion Twins, whose 29-52 road record during the regular season was the worst of any division or pennant winner in major-league history, would be able to win two of three on the road. But they did, with Monday's 9-5 victory giving them a four-games-to-one triumph in the best-of-seven series.

Why did Blyleven make such a bold prediction?

"Sometimes you have to — not really be cocky — but be positive," said Blyleven, who was also the winning pitcher in Monday's pennant clincher by allowing five hits and three runs in six innings. "Why look at the negative and say we're only trying to win one out of three on the road so we can get back home and win? Why have a seven-game series when you're up 2-0?"

"We were due to win on the road because we played so crappy there all year. You can't predict the future by what you did in the past."

So instead, he predicted the future by what was happening at the time the Twins took their 2-0 series lead.

"It was just the emotion of this ballclub, just the special purpose we have," he said. "The momentum was going our way. A lot of this game has to do with how the momentum is going."

DETROIT (AP) — Bert Blyleven wasn't being cocky. He was just using his power of positive thinking.

Blyleven, who survived a three-run fourth inning that enabled the Tigers to close within 4-3 Monday, said he couldn't compare the feeling of 1987 with that of 1979 and 1970.

In 1979, he was with the "We Are Family" Pittsburgh Pirates, who won the World Series in seven games over the Baltimore Orioles.

"I was fortunate to be with the Pirates that year," said Blyleven, who was greeted outside the dressing room Monday night by former Pirates captain Willie Stargell.

In 1970, the Twins won the AL West, their last division title until this year.

Blyleven was a 19-year-old rookie who was reduced to tears when his Game 3 start was given to Jim Kaat.

In 1979, he was with the "We Are Family" Pittsburgh Pirates, who won the World Series in seven games over the Baltimore Orioles.

"I was fortunate to be with the Pirates that year," said Blyleven, who was greeted outside the dressing room Monday night by former Pirates captain Willie Stargell.

In 1970, the Twins won the AL West, their last division title until this year.

Blyleven was a 19-year-old rookie who was reduced to tears when his Game 3 start was given to Jim Kaat.

DETROIT (AP) — Bert Blyleven wasn't being cocky. He was just using his power of positive thinking.

Blyleven, who survived a three-run fourth inning that enabled the Tigers to close within 4-3 Monday, said he couldn't compare the feeling of 1987 with that of 1979 and 1970.

WEEKLY PRIZES
 1st Prize $25.00
 2nd Prize $15.00

CONTEST RULES

1. Thirty-two football games are placed on these pages. Pick the winner of each game (not the score) and write the team name opposite the advertiser's name on the entry blank. The entrant picking the most correct winners each week will be awarded $25.00. Second place $15.00.
2. Pick a number which you think will be the most number of points scored by both teams in any one of the week's games listed and write your answer in the space provided on the entry blank. This will be used to break ties. In the event of a further tie the money will be equally divided between the winning entrants.
3. Only one entry per person per week. The contest is open to all except employees of The Daily Reflector and their immediate families.
4. Entries must be in The Daily Reflector office not later than 5:00 p.m. Friday or postmarked not later than Friday, 7:00 p.m. Address entries to: FOOTBALL CONTEST, P.O. Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27835. (Reasonable facsimiles also accepted).

DUNKEL INDEX

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Williams, Travis Big Winners

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Hank Williams Jr., whose career spans three decades, and rising star Randy Travis earned top honors at the 21st annual Country Music Association awards show.

Williams, carrying on the tradition his father began 35 years ago, won the prestigious entertainer of the year award and the award for video of the year, for "My Name is Bocephus."

Travis, who was cooking catfish and singing part-time in a Nashville nightclub less than three years ago, was voted male vocalist of the year, won single of the year for "Forever and Ever, Amen" and earned top album for the million-seller "Always and Forever."

They shared major honors Monday night with former rodeo barrel racer Reba McEntire, who was chosen female vocalist of the year for an unprecedented fourth straight time. The awards were announced at the Grand Ole Opry House during a 90-minute network television special. The entertainer of the year honor, the top award, capped off a long wait for recognition by Williams, who has been regarded as something of a renegade by the Nashville music establishment.

"This is the one," Williams, 38, said in his acceptance speech. "This is the one ol' Bocephus" been looking for, I'll guarantee you." Bocephus is the nickname his father gave him as a child.

His two awards came 12 years after his head smashed into a boulder as he fell 500 feet when a snowfield collapsed during a hiking outing on Ajax Mountain in Montana. He underwent nine operations during a year of recovery and to this day wears a beard and sunglasses to hide the scars.

His late father was a country music pioneer with hits like "Your Cheatin' Heart" and "I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry." Williams said, "He would be a pretty proud papa, I guarantee you."

Williams, who performed for the first time at age 8, currently has the No. 2-rated album on the country charts, "Born to Boogie."

Travis, 28, broke a two-year hold that Texas cattle rancher George Strait had maintained as male vocalist of the year.

He said afterwards that it felt strange accepting awards, because he had watched the show at home on television "as long as I can remember."

His No. 1 June hit, "Forever and Ever, Amen," won song of the year. The award went to the composers, Paul Overstreet and Don Schlitz.

Ms. McEntire's four straight awards as No. 1 female vocalist broke the record set by Tammy Wynette from 1968 to 1970. Loretta Lynn also earned the honor three years, but not consecutively.

"It's absolutely fabulous," Ms. McEntire said. "I'm thrilled to death."

The Judds, a mother-daughter duo,

HANK WILLIAMS JR.

won vocal group of the year for the third straight time. The string equals the three won by Alabama from 1981 to 1983 but is short of the six straight earned by the Statler Brothers from 1972 through 1977.

"I'm not going to say our music is the most important thing in our life, but it's right up there with oxygen," said former nurse Naomi Judd, the mother.

Rod Brasfield, a Grand Ole Opry humorist known for his routines with Minnie Pearl, became the 44th member of the Country Music Hall of Fame.

Other winners included Ricky Skaggs and wife Sharon White, duo of the year; Holly Dunn, Horizon Award for young talent; fiddler Johnny Gimble, instrumentalist of the year for the second straight year, and Frances Preston, president of Broadcast Music Inc., a special award for contributions to country music.

Kenny Rogers was host of the show. Winners were chosen by the 7,500 singers, songwriters, musicians, disc jockeys, music publishers and others in country music.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Actor Tim Reid visited the real-life restaurant on which his new CBS television series "Frank's Place" is based, and asked patrons an obvious question.

"How come you guys aren't home watching the show?" he asked the crowd in the packed dining room of Chez Helene on Monday night.

Singer Skips His Birthday Cake

VERONA, Italy (AP) — Italian tenor Luciano Pavarotti celebrated his 52nd birthday without taking a bite out of his own cake.

"I have lost 37 kilograms (81 pounds) already. I don't want to jeopardize my diet," the singer said Monday.

His fans gave him with a huge cake in the theater where Pavarotti is rehearsing for a performance in this north Italian city to raise funds for young singers.

He did not disclose his present weight.

Back Again

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Gene Autry, teaming up for the first time in nearly 50 years with his Western counterpart Roy Rogers, says cowboy movies will return to the good-guys-bad-guys theme of yesterday.

"Eventually it's going to come right back and start all over with Western pictures," Autry, 80, said Monday between tapings of his "Melody Ranch Theater," on which Rogers and wife, Dale Evans, will appear as guests.

Beginning in April, Rogers and Evans will appear on four segments of Autry's show, which features his old movies. Autry will appear as a guest on Rogers' "Happy Trails Theater" beginning in June.

Both television shows, which started last year, are produced at Cinetel Productions in Knoxville for The Nashville Network on cable television.

Autry and Rogers last worked together in Autry's 1938 movie "The Old Barn Dance."

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Oct. 14

"I need a bigger piece of paper. I can't fit the whole sky on this one."

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You are too upset to deal with that family matter in a judicious manner. Tonight is a fine time to enjoy music or some other art form.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Be careful you don't say the wrong thing to an associate; it would cause a big argument. Be careful in motion of any kind.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Study your financial situation carefully. You will not think very clearly until the evening, so be on your guard today.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Don't take sides between a good friend and a family member, and don't ask favors from a superior who is not in a good mood.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Plan your time wisely so you'll have a chance to do something nice for your mate. Give your full attention to your work this morning.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): You are torn between handling practical affairs and making time for good friends. Be wise and tend to business. Enjoy the home life.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Handle outside activities alone—don't seek the aid of an associate. Be more sure of yourself, as your ideas are sound and very practical.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Someone will give you fine ideas for progress in business, but you must put them aside for now. Postpone a trip you've been planning.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): You may have to spend a little more money if you want to perfect a talent you possess. Be sure to keep any promises you've made.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Attend to business matters before you turn your attention to home affairs. Try to come to a better understanding with a co-worker.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Handle your everyday life more sensibly instead of running around without any real purpose. Use careful judgment while driving.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Don't gamble on a new investment, no matter how good it looks. Take time for recreation and relieve the tension you've been under.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Opening lead: Six of ♦
 It is too easy to commit yourself to the obvious line of play. It is wiser to take some time to study the situation—an extra chance could be lurking around somewhere.

There was little to the auction. After South's strong reverse, North's jump to four clubs showed a good hand with the strength concentrated in the two bid suits. It took no more than Blackwood to arrive at the excellent small slam.

East won the opening lead with the ace of diamonds and continued the suit for declarer to ruff. Obviously, the key to the hand was to avoid the loss of a heart trick, and it might seem that the correct way to accomplish that is to take the finesse. However, if you look at the hand carefully, you will see there is another finesse which also will land the slam if it succeeds—the finesse of the ten of spades. If that wins, declarer has 12 tricks: four spades, two hearts and six trumps. Which finesse should declarer take?

Both finesses have the same mathematical chance for success, yet it is not a guess. Declarer should postpone taking any finesse, for the moment. After drawing trumps in two rounds, declarer's percentage play is to first cash the ace-king of hearts, in an attempt to drop the queen. If that succeeds, the party's over.

When the lady fails to appear, declarer crosses to dummy with a trump to finesse the ten of spades. When that wins, it is a simple matter to cash the king, get back to the table with a trump and take the two high spades to secure the contract.

GREAT PRODUCTS & PRICES

10% Low Price Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees our everyday low prices. If you find an identical advertised item at any retail competitor currently priced lower than ours, simply bring us written proof of that price. We'll match that price PLUS give you an additional 10% of the difference between the two prices when you buy from us. It must be an identical in-stock item. Closeout, discontinued and other clearance type sale items are excluded from this offer.

Satisfaction Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees that you will be satisfied with your purchase. If you are not completely happy with your purchase, simply return it along with your original sales receipt to any Lowe's store. We'll repair it, replace it, or refund your money.

Lowe's Raincheck Policy:

If an advertised item is temporarily out-of-stock, we will gladly issue a raincheck (except for items marked limited quantities, discontinued or closeout). When we restock you will be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price. Some stores may not stock all advertised items; however, every item shown can be ordered for you.

Lowe's Fair Purchase Policy:

In order to provide fair purchase opportunity to all our customers, Lowe's reserves the right to limit quantities sold to individual customers. No dealers, please.

Apply For Your Handy Lowe's Credit Card!

Over one million satisfied customers use Lowe's Credit Card. Shouldn't you? Just present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard or Sears card and you may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit on a new Lowe's card. (Even without these cards, your application will be processed with minimum delay.) Stop by Lowe's today for complete details and an application.

Finance Major Purchases Of Up To $5,000 On Our Low Monthly Payment Credit Plan:

Our Low Payment Plan offers you an easier way to make those major home improvements and larger purchases, by letting you finance purchases of $250 to $5,000 for up to five years. So apply today. You may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit when you present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard, Sears or Lowe's Card. Complete details are at Lowe's.

Warranty And Financing Details:

Details on product warranties & Lowe's financing policy available in store.

Lowe's Low Payment Plan — Terms Of Repayment:

Your credit must be satisfactory. No down payment required. The monthly payment includes sales tax of 5% and finance charges. If sales tax differs in your area, the monthly payment may vary slightly. The monthly payment has been estimated and may vary depending upon state laws and charges. Insurance is available upon request. The APR is as follows:
