Wall Street Shows Hint Of Stability

By RICK GLADSTONE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The worldwide slide in stock prices slowed sharply today in the United States, where the key Dow Jones industrial average started climbing and the volatility of the past week subsided.

Although traders were reluctant to predict the market's behavior, many said a welcome sense of relative stability returned because of trading limits and shortened hours imposed by major U.S. exchanges. Some said positive reports from Washington about low inflation and stronger economic growth also helped.

"It's much more calm," said Gerald Rivlin, manager partner and executive vice president at Rodman & Rensaw Inc., a major Chicago investment firm.

The Dow Jones average skidded this morning after stock losses in Tokyo and London, but the benchmark barometer of the nation's 30 premier industrial companies appeared to stem the spill and by late morning was up 6.46 points at 1,956.89. On Thursday the index tumbled 77.42 points and put its loss for the week at nearly 400 points.

Broader measurements of stock behavior today were mixed, and losing issues still outnumbered gainers on the New York Stock Exchange. By normal standards trading was considered heavy, but nowhere near the frenzied volume levels that inundated the market earlier this week.

Some traders attributed selling to President Reagan's insistence Thursday night that the market panic incited by the unprecedented 508-point tumble in the Dow average Monday was a correction and the economy remained healthy.

This was taken as an indication that Reagan and the Congress would fail to act decisively to correct the massive federal budget deficit, trade deficit and long-term U.S. debt that many believe are key causes of the market's anxiety.

"I think there obviously is some disappointment with Reagan," said Joseph Barthel, senior vice president and director of technical strategy at the Philadelphia brokerage Butcher & Singer Inc. "I think you're getting some selling because of fear that the president is fiddling while Rome burns."

Earlier today in Tokyo, home of the world's largest stock exchange, the key 225-share Nikkei stock average, plunged 1,203.23 points — its second-largest one-day decline — to close at 23,201.22 points.

Prices also fell sharply in London Stock Exchange trading, reflecting fears about Reagan's comments on the economy and Wall Street's reaction. The Financial Times-Stock Exchange 100-share index had tumbled 51.5 points by midafternoon at 1,791.7

Anti-Bork Forces Set For Vote

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the verge of defeating the Supreme Court nomination of Robert Bork, the ranks of his opponents in the Senate grew to 56 today as Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said he will vote against Bork.

Proxmire's announcement came hours before a scheduled vote on the doomed nomination and after President Reagan said he will ask the Senate to confirm a substitute nominee who is "qualified in the same way."

At the White House, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters that "we don't expect to have a (new) nominee today."

"One has not been chosen. The president has not been presented with alternatives," Fitzwater said.

However, he added that a substitute name could be submitted as early as next week.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., announced his opposition Thursday. Two senators, Republicans Frank Murkowski of Alaska and William Roth of Delaware, said they will vote for the nominee, bringing the declarations in favor of Bork to 41.

Three remained undecided as the debate headed into its final hours today: David Durenberger, R-Minn.; John Stennis, D-Miss.; and John Warner, R-Va.

Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., said Thursday that Bork asked him to conclude the debate. "He had no desire to take it into next week," Simpson said.

Meanwhile, Reagan said at his news conference that if Bork is defeated, "I will try to find somebody who is qualified in the same way as he is."

Senate sources said the administration is giving the most serious consideration to four potential nominees, all federal appeals court judges.

They are Clifford J. Wallace of San Diego and Anthony M. Kennedy of Sacramento, Calif., on the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals; Pasco M. Bowman II of Kansas City on the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals; and Ralph K. Winter Jr. of New Haven, Conn., on the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The sources, who agreed to speak only if they were not identified by name, said Laurence H. Silberman, a federal appellate judge in Washington, also was being considered.

Spirited disagreements over Bork's qualifications and the quality

Democrats Say President Likely To Accept Tax Hike

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Majority Leader Thomas S. Foley predicted today that President Reagan will approve a tax increase to reduce the deficit.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said talks between the White House and Congress on deficit-reduction measures should begin immediately and run through the weekend.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said no date has been set for the discussion but "we virtually are available at any point." He said, however, the administration had talked to congressional leaders, "and they prefer to do this next week."

The comments from Foley and Byrd came hours after Reagan's pledge at a nationally broadcast news conference to put everything on the negotiating table when he meets with congressional leaders — although he didn't flat-out abandon his promise to veto any tax boost.

Foley, D-Wash., said the president will never abandon his rhetoric and beliefs against taxes, but that progress could be made anyway.

"My belief is we will produce an agreement to deal effectively with the $23 billion target" in deficit reduction required by the Gramm-Rudman law, Foley said in an interview. "I think there will be some taxes in there, and there will be some cuts in spending."

Byrd, D-W.Va., in calling for immediate talks, said nothing would give Americans a greater feeling of confidence in their government.

"We have to put aside business-as-usual and work together, work through the weekend," Byrd said. "I take the president at his word that he is willing to sit down and consider all the options and not have any preconditions to such a meeting."

The president, opening his news conference Thursday night, announced for the nation that he would meet face-to-face with Capitol Hill leaders and launch talks on reducing the fiscal 1988 deficit — action demanded in the wake of this week's stock market crisis.

"I'm putting everything on the table, with the exception of Social Security, with no other preconditions, and I call on the leaders of Congress to do the same," Reagan said.

The goal, he said, was a deficit-reduction package "that keeps taxes and spending as low as possible."

Reagan also announced that the deficit in fiscal 1987, which ended Sept. 30, was $148 billion — a $73 billion reduction from the record $221

Economy Expands

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy expanded at a healthy annual rate of 3.8 percent in the July-September quarter despite a deteriorating trade performance, the government said today.

The 3.8 percent growth in the gross national product during the period was up from 2.5 percent growth in the April-June quarter and was the fastest increase since a 4.4 percent rate during the first three months of the year.

The Commerce Department said the GNP, the broadest measure of economic health, was bolstered in the third quarter by a big upsurge in consumer spending and the steepest rise in business investment in more than three years.

However, economists are worried that the record plunge in the stock market this week will shake consumers' confidence and trigger a retrenchment in spending for such big-ticket items as cars and appliances.

The increase in growth was accompanied by a drop in the rate of inflation. A measure of prices tied to the GNP expanded at an annual rate of 2.7 percent in the third quarter, down from a 4.1 percent rate of increase in the spring.

The good news on economic growth and inflation was tempered by the fact that the country's trade deficit, as measured by the GNP, deteriorated by $5.2 billion in the third quarter because of a huge jump in oil imports. The trade deficit in inflation-adjusted terms had shown improvement for three consecutive quarters before the spring setback.

President Upbeat For Press Corps

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was bouncy and jovial at the end of his first East Room news conference in seven months, which came at the climax of a tumultuous week for both the White House and the nation.

The president was met with a barrage of queries Thursday evening on taxes, hostilities in the Persian Gulf and an arms control summit with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Clearly, he was up for the occasion. Reagan resorted here and there to his habit of filibustering, and at times rambled a bit. But overall, Reagan seemed to relish his long-delayed jousting match with the press corps.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater predicted prior to the session that the president was ready to take questions "on a whole range of subjects."

The press corps was eager to listen. In contrast to some earlier sessions, none of the 136 seats in the East Room was empty, and White House aides assigned a specific seat to each reporter because of the demand for space.

It had been a troubling week for the president and the nation, and even the fifth game of baseball's World Series was delayed until the president finished speaking.

Not only had Reagan's wife of 35 years undergone breast cancer surgery, but war appeared closer after he ordered a U.S. military strike against two Iranian oil platforms being used for military purposes in the Persian Gulf. And Wall Street witnessed tumult never before seen.

As he often does elsewhere, Reagan used a smile and a quip to start things off.

"Well, it just seems like yesterday," Reagan said, evoking laughter from reporters who knew that his last question-and-answer session had been four months ago in Venice, Italy, at the end of the international economic summit. The last White

Tobacco Market Closes

The Greenville tobacco market ended its 98th sales season Thursday with total sales for the year of $53,425,195.

Kenneth Allen, the market sales supervisor, said a total of 33,482,736 pounds of leaf were sold this season for an average of $159.56 per hundred pounds, compared with last year's average of $155.02 per hundred, based on the sale of 30,724,868 pounds of tobacco for $47,631,015.

Allen said the farmer-owned Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. — which purchases leaf if company bids fall below a support price — received only 2 percent of sales on the Greenville market this year, compared with 5.3 percent of sales in 1986.

The average support price this year was $1.435 a pound, down slightly from $1.438 a pound in 1986.

"Yesterday's sale was the lowest we've had in some time," Allen said, citing the 155,490 pounds of leaf sold Thursday for $240,299 for an average $154.54 per hundred. "There was a lot of non-descript tobacco on the floor yesterday."

And Allen said, "I think the farmers were pleased" with this year's sales season. "Tobacco sold good right up to the last row," Allen said. "It sold good after about the first two weeks" of the season, which opened on Aug. 5.

The $138.66 per hundred pounds average for first day of sales this year was $12.81 higher than on opening day a year ago. The opening day average in 1986 was $125.85 per hundred.

Development Unit Expands Staff

The Pitt County Development Commission today announced the selection of Wanda Yuhus as its assistant director for marketing and research.

The position was authorized earlier this year by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners following a recommendation included in the recent Marketing Strategy Report prepared by the Fantus Co. of Millburn, N.J.

The creation of the new staff position was one of several recommendations included in the report to expand the commission's marketing efforts.

"I see (the new position) as having two important focuses," Yuhus said at news conference in the commission's offices in the Barclay Bank Building.

"One (focus) is, by the very nature of the title of the job, to develop the county further and let people who don't live here know what we're doing. But I think equally important is to let the residents of the county, whether they're private citizens or people in industry, know what they already have here."

In the selection process, the development commission appointed a personnel committee to review applications and make a recommendation to the entire commission.

Serving on the committee were Spencer Hill of Wachovia Bank and Trust, David Stowe of the Farmville Implement Co. and John Chaffee, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission. Ms. Yuhus, a native of Wilson, was one of 108 applicants.

"We are delighted to have a person the caliber of Ms. Yuhus join the commission," Chaffee said. "She came highly recommended and has

"Coping With Stress On and Off the Job" was co-sponsored by Hosell's Child Care Center and Eastern Area Health Education Center at the Bear Creek Facility in La Grange, and Controlling Your Day With Effective Time Management was co-sponsored by the Small Business Center of Wayne Community College and the Chamber of Commerce of Wayne County at the Holiday Inn in Goldsboro.

REAR COLLISION — An accident on N.C. 33 west of Greenville Thursday injured two persons, according to Trooper B.J. Jones. The investigator said a car driven by George Parker of Route 4, Greenville, was preparing to make a turn into a driveway, when his vehicle and a tractor-trailer truck driven by James Keel of Route 1, Pantego, collided. Jones said Keel was not injured, but Parker and a passenger in the car, identified as Ernest Brown, received minor injuries. After the collision, Jones said, the truck plowed 300 feet into a field. Jones said Keel was charged with failing to reduce his speed. (Reflector Photo by Thomas Forrest)

Awareness Week

Martin County Community Action Inc. Project Head Start is observing National Head Star Awareness Week beginning Monday and continuing through Friday.

The program has been operating in the Martin County area since 1965, in the Beaufort County area since December 1977, and in the Pitt County area since December 1985.

The program operates nine months of the year, September through May. Centers are open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Eligibility is determined by income guidelines, family needs and handicap or other special needs.

Head Start is a comprehensive developmental program for children ages three through five and is based on the premise that all children share certain needs, and that children from low-income families can particularly benefit from a program designed to meet those needs.

Clothing Reported Stolen In Break-In

Investigators said seven thefts, including $1,462 worth of clothes from a storage building at 315 Glenwood Drive, were reported to Greenville police Thursday.

Officer J.A. Bartlett said the clothes were taken in a break-in reported at 4:30 p.m., while Officer R.C. Stroud said a coin-operated newspaper rack was taken from the Foodland supermarket at the Buyers Market at West End Circle in an incident reported at 2:43 p.m.

Officer E.E. Laughinghouse said $470 was taken from an automatic teller machine through the unauthorised use of a bank card belonging to a Medical Oaks Apartments resident in an incident reported at 5:10 p.m. Officer B.W. Lewis said 48 cassette tapes valued at $384 and a tape case were taken from a car parked at Greenville Square Shopping Center in an incident reported at 6:03 p.m. and six cans of beer were taken from the Fresh Way Food Store on East 10th Street in an incident reported at 9:07 p.m.

Director Search Panel Organized

The personnel committee of the Pitt-Greenville Convention and Visitors Authority met for the first time Thursday, chairman Rudolph Alexander told authority members Thursday night.

The personnel committee was organized to investigate the hiring of a permanent director for the authority.

Dick Farris, personnel director at East Carolina University, and Dean Helen Grove of the ECU School of Home Economics discussed the hiring process with the personnel committee.

Before a director can be hired, "we have to define the responsibilities of the position, write a job description, advertise the position, accept applications, and conduct interviews," said Alexander, who hopes to have the process completed by the "middle of the spring."

"We will begin accepting applications after we announce the position," said Alexander. Though the position has not been formally announced, he has already received two job applications.

No action could be taken at the authority meeting Thursday night as a quorum was not present.

Nightclub Receives Special Use Permit

The Greenville Board of Adjustment has approved a request by Raymond Carney to renew a special use permit in order to maintain the operation of the Unlimited Touch nightclub at 1311 W. Fifth St.

The permit for the property, which is zoned commercial downtown fringe, was approved at the panel's monthly meeting Thursday night.

The panel approved a request by Raymond Oliviera for a special use permit in order to maintain the operation of Ollie's Lounge at 720 N. Greene St. The property is zoned residential-agricultural.

A request by Cardinal Industries Inc. for a variance in order to allow a 30-foot-high sign at 3435 S. Memorial Drive was denied. The property is zoned highway commercial.

Board members approved a request by Rufus and April Walston for a special use permit in order to operate a child day care center on the northeast corner of N.C. 11 and Club Pines Drive. The property is zoned office and institutional intermediate.

The board continued a request by Charles L. McLawhorn Jr. for a variance allowing use of a detached garage as a dwelling unit at 310 E. 13th St. The property is zoned commercial downtown fringe.

A request by James A. Arnold Jr. to renew a special use permit in order to maintain Beau's nightclub in Carolina East Center on N.C. 11 was continued. The property is zoned shopping center.

Dispute Over 'Fast Time' Continues

Clocks Go Back An Hour Sunday As U.S. Returns To Standard Time

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the nation's uniform time zones were introduced more than a century ago, controversy followed, and the dispute continues today as the nation nears the semi-annual shift between daylight and standard time.

Opponents of daylight-saving time will be pleased to see the clocks turned back an hour to standard time at 2 a.m. Sunday.

On the other hand, proponents of the daylight-saving system will decry the loss of that hour of light in the evening.

"I received two letters today, one in favor of daylight-saving time and one opposed to it," Joanne Petrie, a Transportation Department lawyer who supervises time zones and changes, said Wednesday in a telephone interview.

The system of time zones was introduced after railroad transportation became common in the 19th century. It was designed to ease the confusion caused by allowing every city and town to set its own time.

The move was denounced as excessive government interference and was opposed by people who condemned changes in "God's time."

The controversy hasn't stopped. Ms. Petrie said letters continue to cite God's time, although today they use that argument to oppose the summer shift to daylight time, not to urge allowing every community to have its own local time.

Excessive government interference is also denounced, she said.

And there is a definite geographic split between people who like the summer time shift and those who don't.

Urban residents like daylight time for the extra hour of evening light to be used for sports and recreation, she said. But rural folks don't like losing that light in the morning, when they are doing farm chores.

Many letters opposed to daylight time come from senior citizens who express concern about the safety of their grandchildren and other youngsters waiting for school buses in morning darkness, Ms. Petrie noted.

She also has found that daylight time is most popular at the eastern edges of time zones, while people living near the western border of each zone are less pleased, often rising and driving to work in the darkness because of the shift.

At any rate, daylight-saving time lasted a bit longer than usual this year, having gotten under way on the first Sunday in April instead of at the end of that month.

It is concluding at the normal time though, at 2 a.m. the last Sunday in October.

Nonetheless, Ms. Petrie reports that she is receiving many calls and letters asking for clarification.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Rules Change

The rules of investing have suddenly changed following the stock market crash of Oct. 19 and, whether or not we individually own stocks, the new rules will affect us all.

Many of us own mutual funds, retirement funds or, perhaps without even knowing it, have pension funds in investments.

Oct. 19 taught us all the unthinkable — that the Dow Jones Industrial Average measurement of the stock market can come down 22.6 percent in one day. It had never happened before — not even on Oct. 28, 1929. That dark day the average dropped 12.8 percent.

Immediately the comparisons came between Oct. 19, 1987, and Oct. 28, 1929. Most thoughtful observers quickly concluded that the comparisons weren't there. The economy, with all its warts, is far different from 58 years ago; the safeguards built into the economy are much improved and our nation is a far better participant in the world economy than it was in 1929.

Then what is such a crushing drop in stock prices telling us? That is being analyzed by some of the world's great economic minds. We do know, however, that while the stock market break was chilling it is no greater blow to world economy than the huge petroleum price increases in the 1970s. Multiplying oil prices wrecked havoc with budgets of business, industry government and individual families. The economy survived that and we went on to break the oil prices.

We are faced with the possibility that in this time of instant communication breath-taking stock price breaks will occur, as will spectacular price rises. Computer selling of stocks is part of the picture, something that was unknown a few decades past. United States stock gyrations can be communicated around the world instantly and affect other stock markets.

The Oct. 19 plunge might have been a drop that would have taken place over several weeks or months under the stock markets' technical methods of conducting business in past decades.

While the stock market might be telling us something about the economy or about government economic policies, it may deliver such messages now with breathtaking speed and with cruelty to some investors. It is a product of the communications revolution that we will have to learn to adjust to and understand.

Ugly Tie

The Rev. James Konrad, a pastor in Peru, Ill., finally disposed of a cravat that out-uglied hand-picked competitors among 200 participating men's stores. The Ugliest Tie in America is loosely described as a silk paisley horror that was purchased for 25 cents in a rummage sale. Konrad says he has never seen anything like it.

He suffered a keen sense of personal loss on entering the Ugliest Tie in America event because it meant surrendering ownership of the tie.

The trauma-laden contest began as a Father's Day promotion. People brought their entries to 200 participating men's stores and the winner in each store was given a $25 gift certificate. Area winners were sent to New York and put on display. Retailers chose the ugliest by ballot. Those area winners may be kept together for awhile as a sort of creme de la creme among the truly ugly neckties.

They might even be on permanent display for people interested in fashion trends; but the idea of preserving ugly neckties for any reason does not sound like a practical way of improving the breed.

The world might be grateful the winner didn't turn out to be a consolation gift. Among such prize-winners it's the beholder who pays.

Poll Tends To Encourage Martin

RALEIGH — Early campaign polls and pre-season football scrimmages have something in common. Neither is a very reliable predictor of future success, but both can tell a team a lot about itself.

The Mason-Dixon Research Corp. poll of state voter preferences one year before the 1988 election won't tell you who will win next year when Republican Gov. Jim Martin runs for re-election. But it says some interesting things about his position as he nears his likely face-off with Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan.

The pollsters asked 828 registered voters who they would vote for if the election were held on the day of the questioning. During the first week of October, 46 percent chose Martin, 37 percent Jordan and 17 percent were undecided.

The most immediate reaction is for Martin folks to say they have a pretty good lead, and they do. Nine points is significant considering that Republicans are greatly outnumbered in this state. It also stands in contrast to Martin's position four years ago when he was way behind at this point.

But 46 percent isn't great, either. And even that helps Martin. If there was any sense of complacency among Republicans this time around, this and similar poll findings should spur them to concern.

For Jordan, Martin's 46 percent is encouraging. Usually incumbents in good standing register above 50 or 60 percent in early polls. That Martin is below 50 percent tells Jordan that he has a chance.

It also tells everyone else that Jordan has a chance, and that can help Jordan with fundraising. It wasn't too long ago that long-chinned Democrats were predicting that Martin could not be beaten in 1988. This poll shows that he can be. Political contributors and volunteers are much more likely to jump behind Jordan if they think he has an honest chance of winning.

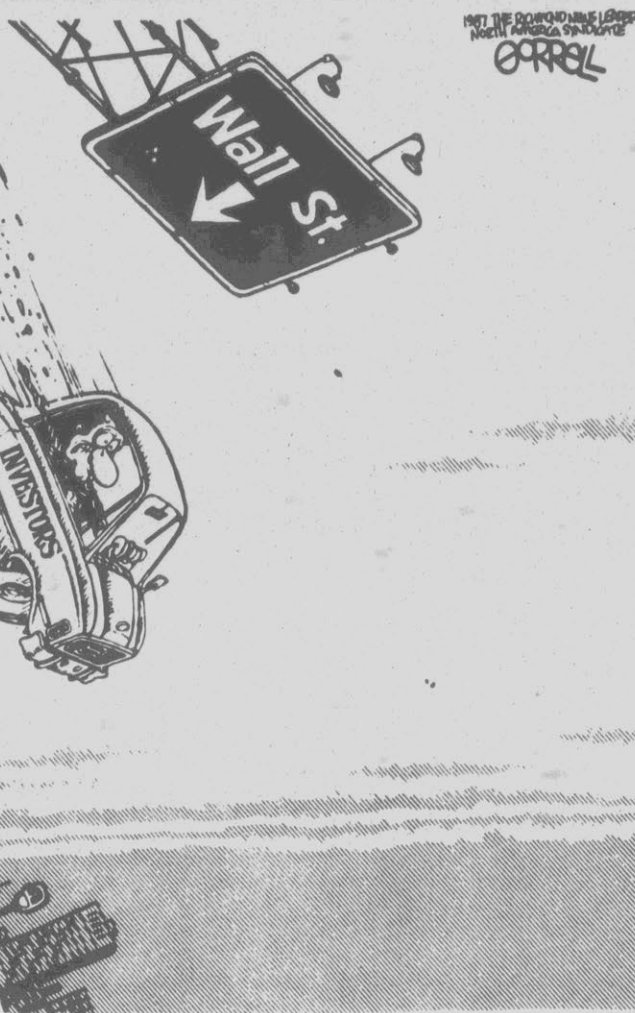

Some of the break-outs from the poll are interesting. Jordan, who is not the party's nominee yet, and who could still face a primary challenge from either Rep. Billy Watkins or Auditor Ed Renfrow, doesn't dominate Democratic voters. He loses 30 percent of polled Democrats to Martin.

Martin, on the other hand, doesn't command the usual almost unanimous support of the GOP. He gets only 78 percent of Republican voters.

Jordan gets six percent and 16 percent are undecided. This may be an indication of Congressional Club dissatisfaction with Martin.

The black vote has gone to Democrats in recent elections by nine-to-one or better. Martin made a big push for black votes in 1984, and got about 13 percent. This poll says he'd get 21 percent, a fantastic invasion into any Democrat's base.

Reagan Does Little To Reassure Nation

WASHINGTON — Although White House aides had sought to play down the significance of the event, President Reagan's first White House news conference in seven months came at a moment in his presidency when crisis seemed to be piling upon crisis — a time when Americans traditionally turn to their chief executive for reassurance that a firm hand is at the helm.

With the nation shaken by the worst stock market crash since World War I, the escalating conflict in the Persian Gulf, the acrid fight over Robert H. Bork's nomination to the Supreme Court and a host of other problems, Reagan's prime-time appearance before a national television audience was a priceless opportunity to allay fears at home and abroad, while displaying that in his 77th year, he remains able to carry out the demanding tasks of the presidency.

What the president needed most of all to do was "show he is confident and on top of the problems," a supporter and occasional adviser, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said hours before Reagan walked up the red-carpeted White House corridor and into the East Room.

Seeking to do just that, Reagan declared in an opening statement that, while more volatility may lie ahead for the securities markets, "it does appear the system is working" and the economy as a whole was healthy.

But the situation, said Paul C. Light, a scholar who has written three volumes on the presidency, called for more from Reagan than "something Roosevelt-esque."

Reagan did not lay out a specific formula of his own for deficit reduction, but he did signal a major — if reluctant — shift toward flexibility and away from confrontation. After vowing month after month to veto any legislation containing higher taxes, he declared himself willing at least to discuss increased revenues as part of a cure for red ink.

At the same time, Reagan continued to display the combative and partisan instincts that have aggravated his relations with Congressional Democrats and even many Republicans. At one point, for example, he declared that the House and Senate employed a "kind of stupid set-up" in reviewing budget proposals and have scant knowledge of the departments whose funds they control. In fact, whatever the merits of their final budget decisions, Congressional committees have elaborate and knowledgeable staffs that maintain close contact with the executive branch agencies they oversee.

Similarly, Reagan suggested several times Thursday night that the deficit could easily be reduced by some $22 billion without higher taxes if Democrats would only accept measures he has already proposed. Those measures, however, are highly controversial and their purported savings are in dispute.

And it was only under the pressure of Monday's 508-point plunge in the Dow Jones industrial average that the president moved toward negotiations over the budget deficit with Congress after five years of stalemate.

Unlike Reagan's most serious previous crisis, the Iran-Contra scandal, the difficulties he now faces raise questions that go beyond whether he is sufficiently involved in the running of the government. The Iran-Contra affair, while it shook public trust in an unusually popular president, was remote and abstract compared with the intensely personal and frightening possibility of a major economic upheaval or a bloody conflict involving American servicemen in the Persian Gulf.

And these more-threatening problems crowd in at a time when an aging president has apparently been unwilling to accept the reality of Democratic majorities in both houses of Congress and has seemed, on occasion, to be struggling to keep up with the demands of his job.

Indeed, the president — his hair showing no more gray than when he was inaugurated in 1981 but his face increasingly lined — appeared to speak with particular care Thursday evening, searching carefully for particular words, though at one point he described Secretary of State George P. Shultz as his "secretary general."

Reagan allies pointed to his initial reaction earlier this week, in the fog of the falling and then gyrating market, when he expressed puzzlement at the crash, and then his view that the market was simply going through a period of correction after its bullish performance.

Such comments, admitted one White House adviser, "just fortified" the concerns, which Reagan needed to address Thursday evening, that he was not on top of the economic problems that have shaken Main Street as well as Wall Street.

Delicacy On The Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Several delicate questions figured in the decision by the New York and American stock exchanges to shorten their hours the next three business days.

By all accounts, the stock markets and many brokerage firms were beginning to strain under the burden of the five busiest days in Wall Street history.

From last Friday through Thursday's close, the volume of trading on the NYSE totaled 2.39 billion shares, more than double the previous record for any five-day period.

By way of comparison, Big Board volume for all of 1977 came to 5.27 billion shares.

"I see the paperwork starting to build up," said an executive at one brokerage firm who spoke on the condition that he not be identified. "The machine is not falling apart, but it's rattling at the hinges."

John Phelan, NYSE chairman, declared at a news conference Thursday that Wall Street had handled the huge increase in business exceptionally well, but he also said it was time to "allow the system to catch its breath."

A second consideration was timing. Standard Wall Street procedure provides for the settlement of transactions — the completion of payment for and transfer of stock — five business days after trades are executed.

That means settlement time starts arriving Monday for purchases and sales made in the climactic moments of the market drop early this week.

While the markets are closed over the weekend, exchange and brokerage staffs will be working to catch up with all the processing of orders.

In addition, some major brokerage firms announced plans late Thursday to hold special hours at their branch offices over the next several days.

Employees will be available during periods when the stock market is not open to provide information and handle customer inquiries.

A third question of considerable moment was investor confidence in the ability of the system to handle their business efficiently, without confusion or an inordinate number of mistakes.

Wall Street still has to live with the memory of the "back-office crunch" of the late 1960s and early 1970s, when some major brokerage firms failed and others had to be rescued in hastily arranged mergers.

For six months in 1968, the market did not open on Wednesdays as the Street struggled to straighten up the mess. Images linger from those pre-automation days of stock certificates found in wastebaskets or behind filing cabinets.

At a time when the market is still reeling from a 36 percent drop in the Dow Jones industrial average in less than two months since late August, the question of confidence is especially dicey.

Experienced brokers said they could not recall any time since the late 1960s-early 1970s crunch when the stock market has deviated from its normal operating hours for purely business reasons.

At various times in recent years, the market has shut down early or closed for a day in the face of such events as the assassination attempt on President Reagan, a massive power failure in New York, a hurricane and some heavy snows. The exchange said it made its decision after consulting with the White House, the Securities Exchange Commission, the Federal Reserve Board, the Treasury Department, and NYSE member firms.

B. Jay Cooper, a deputy secretary to President Reagan, said Phelan notified the White House that he was going to make the announcement "and everybody involved in it thought it was a good idea."

Chet Currier has reported on Wall Street for The Associated Press since 1974.

Strength For Today

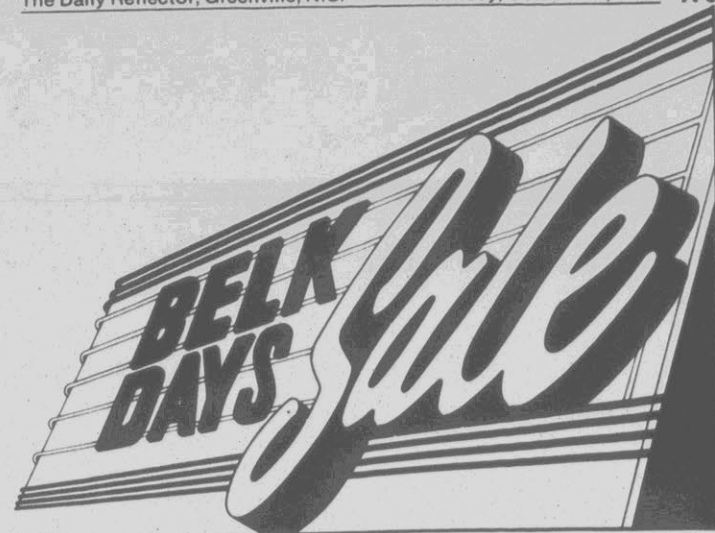

Is there no God in the world or in the universe? Accepting this proposition as true is an indefensible position.

All religious life, and in fact all decent living, begins with the realization that we are significant personalities living in a world and universe created by an all-powerful, all-knowing and everywhere-present Being.

Throw that concept over the back fence and life loses all its significance. There are many different religions, and each one of us thinks that his or her religion is the best. This is as it should be. But for God's sake and our own, let us plant our feet on something that is substantial.

All religions postulate an infinite creating and sustaining power. When we believe this we are blessed with the confidence that makes life significant.

Reagan

House session had been in March. The president then volunteered a statement sure to win support. "It sure is good news to have Nancy back home, and she's doing just fine," Reagan reported with a grin.

Just that morning, the president had gone to Bethesda Naval Medical Center to bring his wife back for a joyful, balloon-filled White House greeting after successful cancer surgery five days before.

The president did stumble a bit while answering his first question on the plunging stock market and its effect on the economy.

Pressed whether he was willing, after years of threatening vetoes, to accept a tax increase to reduce the huge budget deficit, Reagan either ducked or left them guessing.

"You have me in a spot," Reagan chuckled at one point, yet he steadfastly refused to clarify his position.

On the gyrating stock market, Reagan attempted to strike a confident, yet realistic, approach, calling for a "calm and sound" response.

He said he saw no hint of a "recession or hard times at all," but warned that the nation should not believe that the worrisome period is by any means over.

Hands firmly on the podium, Reagan brushed aside suggestions that his military moves in the Persian Gulf have brought the nation closer to war. "I don't see it as leading to war or anything else. And I don't think there's anything to panic about," he announced crisply. "I think we've done very well."

Taking up a subject clearly dear to his heart, Reagan spoke with some emotion about his chances for showing his California ranch to Gorbachev. And he also managed a poke at the luxurious quarters enjoyed by Soviet leaders when they vacation.

"Knowing something about the quarters they have for beach homes in the summer and so forth, I've thought it would be kind of nice to invite him up to our 1,500 (square) foot adobe shack ... and let him see how a capitalist spends his holidays," Reagan said.

Market's Skid Slows Sharply

after a 110.6 point drop Thursday.

The flight from stocks sent more money pouring into U.S. Treasury securities, driving up the price and depressing their interest rates. But the strong rally in the bond market appeared blunted this morning by speculators selling bonds at a profit.

Today's relative calm followed a sharp selloff Thursday, when the Dow Jones average closed 77.42 points lower at 1,950.43 after two days of strong gains. Five stocks fell for each one that rose on the New York Stock Exchange, and volume exceeded 392 million shares in the fourth busiest trading day ever.

That plunge erased nearly $108 billion from the value of all U.S. stocks and came despite a drop in major banks' prime lending rate, often a rallying point for Wall Street.

President Reagan said Thursday night after the U.S. markets closed that there might be other volatile days ahead but "there are no indicators out there of recession or hard times at all."

At the same time, Reagan stressed he was prepared to meet with congressional leaders to seek a deficit reduction plan that would calm the nation and economic leaders overseas. He also announced appointment of a task force to examine stock market procedures.

All major U.S. stock and stock futures markets announced they would shorten hours for the next three trading days to relieve overworked processing systems. The exchanges will close at 2 p.m. EDT instead of 4 p.m.

The Dow industrials' 508-point plunge Monday wiped out 22.6 percent of the index's value — a bigger one-day decline than during the Crash of 1929.

In an attempt to curb the market's volatility, the New York Stock Exchange moved Thursday to further restrict the use of computer-assisted trading techniques that have been blamed for sudden swings in stock prices.

Tax Hike Likely

billion of 1986. However, administration and congressional estimates put the fiscal 1988 deficit higher than last year's unless action is taken.

Reporters pressed Reagan on whether he was no longer saying not taxes "over my dead body," and other phrases he has used in promising to veto any such legislation.

The chief executive said he didn't want to give away his bargaining position before the talks.

"I will say this with regard to taxes, our sources of revenue: They must not be something that has an adverse effect on the economy," he said. He said the income tax was in that category but he refused to say which ones he'd accept.

Reagan reiterated his support for "user fees" — taxes for specific government services — and sales of government assets to raise revenues.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, said the president's statements didn't rule out any taxes. He said there was room for "closing some loopholes, there may be some user fees, finding some tax for somebody who's not paying their full share."

"I think clearly everyone who has heard him understands he has changed his position on taxes," said Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Pa., chairman of the House Budget Committee.

If Reagan didn't want to call the result taxes, "we'll call them user fees or whatever he wants," Gray said.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the senior Republican on the budget committee, said Reagan "clearly did not want to reveal any details, and I think any details that came out (at the news conference) were not important."

"So long as no one has in mind that we're going to solve the deficit with defense cuts and taxes alone," he added, warning that Republicans were expecting Democrats to agree to some domestic spending cuts.

Lawmakers of both parties complained that Reagan should have dropped his repeated technique of using incorrect or misleading historical data to blame Congress for the huge deficits that have more than doubled the national debt during his presidency, to more than $2.3 trillion.

"What I'm disappointed about is we're still pointing fingers with the problem and the crisis that we have," said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"The president ought to stop blaming Congress," said Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D. "It's going to take a lot of bipartisan working together."

In addition to reassuring the financial markets, the talks would try to avert $23 billion in spending cuts required under the Gramm-Budman law if alternative deficit-reduction isn't approved. Those cuts, now temporary, cut equally from the Pentagon and domestic programs and could become permanent Nov. 20.

Chiles said the talks, expected to begin next week, had to move quickly. "I think we've got three weeks at most," he said.

Domenici said the sooner the better.

"I think we ought to strike while the iron's hot... we could do it in a week," he said.

Emergency Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina will receive $178,132 under an emergency fund intended to supplement the national emergency food and shelter program.

Congress approved a $10 million supplement to be distributed to 1,300 agencies across the nation.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency said the money will go to local organizations and agencies that provide aid to those in need.

In North Carolina, the largest share — $16,795 — will go to High Point and Guilford and Davidson counties. Mecklenburg County will receive $15,068 and Wake County will receive $10,501.

Other shares include Lenoir, $2,668; Pitt, $3,277, and Wilson, $4,953.

Amputation

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — A New Bern man's left leg was amputated below the knee Thursday after his leg was mangled when he took a shortcut home by crawling underneath railroad cars, police said.

Walter Lee Holloway, 35, told Officer M.E. Haddock that he was crawling underneath the railroad cars early Thursday morning when they moved, cutting his foot off.

Panel Says Books Skip Religion

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP) — Members of the state Textbook Commission will ask the state Board of Education to appoint a panel to study the near absence of religion in social studies textbooks.

Religion was treated in a "bland, obscure" way in social studies books reviewed and selected this week, said John Langley, member of the commission and principal of Rockingham Junior High.

"At the elementary level, I saw religion mentioned twice in the textbooks, at most," Langley said.

But Langley and other commissioners said they still would recommend some of the books for statewide adoption because the state's Standard Course of Study did not mention religion, either.

Commissioners select books on the basis of how well they match the state curriculum.

With at least two commissioners expressing reservations, the commission avoided taking a stand on the religion issue in a statement it will present to the board.

"Although it is obvious to this commission that the quality of textbooks is improving," the statement said, "we suggest the State Board of Education add its voice to the nationwide call for continuing improvement in textbooks."

The 14-member commission will ask the state board to appoint a committee "representing a broad base of our society" to study the treatment of religion not only in textbooks but also in North Carolina public schools.

"The question has been raised whether religion is adequately treated in the N.C. Standard Course of Study and in textbooks offered for adoption in the state of North Carolina," the statement said.

Four commissioners, including Langley and Chairman James Ellerbe, prepared the statement after the commission completed three days of meetings at the Shell Island Resort to select social studies, music, art and business books.

The commission will present the statement to the State Board of Education Nov. 5 when it also presents its recommended textbooks.

Jet Base Opposed

POLLOCKSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Jones County residents are protesting proposed Harrier jet training operations at a local Marine Corps airfield, saying the maneuvers will send real estate prices into a tailspin.

"I live half a mile from the base, and we have had a number of problems already with helicopters," retired dentist Bud P. Bailey of Pollocksville said. "You wake up at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning with the sound like a giant lawn mower in the sky is about to chop your roof off."

Bailey and other members of the Trent River Watch Association, a Jones County residents' group, object to a proposal by the Cherry Point Marine Air Station to turn a corps landing field in Oak Grove into a base for 200 Harrier operations a day.

The Oak Grove landing field is in eastern Jones County about 25 miles northwest of the Cherry Point base.

A Harrier is a jet that can move like a helicopter, rising straight up from the ground, and then is able to scream off at near-sonic speeds. The Marine Corps is considering expanding the little-used helicopter base for Harrier training operations to relieve heavy air traffic at Cherry Point.

Maj. Dennis K. Brooks, joint public affairs officer for Cherry Point, said that Oak Grove was one of five eastern North Carolina sites under consideration. But he said it was the most attractive possibility because the corps owned the property, the heavily wooded base would let maneuvers be conducted under realistically primitive war conditions and the base was close to Cherry Point.

He said the corps would redesign the flight patterns so the Harriers did not fly over developed areas, in accordance with federal regulations. If the Oak Grove site is approved, Harrier training operations would begin in 1990, Brooks said.

Seminary Leaders Leaving Top Jobs

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP) — A week after conservatives took over the board of trustees, the president and dean of faculty at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary announced they would resign rather than carry out the new board's fundamentalist agenda.

The new trustee board chairman, Robert D. Crowley of Rockville, Md., said Thursday the replacement for Dr. W. Randall Lolley will be a fundamentalist who believes the Bible is "inerrant" — the literal word of God, historically and scientifically factual.

"I would be an imbecile if I tried to tell you I didn't have some names going through my mind," said Crowley, who refused to name any. "I can assure that whoever he is, he will be an inerrantist."

Lolley, who has been president for 14 years, announced his resignation Thursday at the end of a sermon delivered in Southeastern's Binkley Chapel.

"I cannot fan into a flame a vision which I believe to be contradictory to the dream which formed Southeastern in 1951 and which has nourished me as a student and alumnus of the school," Lolley, 56, said. "I have reached some conclusions that make it necessary to begin discussing with the appropriate persons the termination of my presidency."

Lolley gave no date when the resignation would be effective. He has tentatively scheduled a Nov. 3 meeting with four members of the trustee board, including Crowley and new vice-chairman James R. DeLoach of Houston, to formalize plans and set a date.

Also Thursday, Professor Morris Ashcraft said he would resign as dean of the faculty because he could not implement the new trustee vision. He will continue as a professor of theology.

Moderate trustees Frank Jordan of Chula Vista, Calif., and Mark Caldwell of Hyattsville, Md., said conservatives had picked Lolley's successor before last week's meeting. Crowley called the claim "preposterous," and Jordan responded that "Crowley is a liar."

At an afternoon news conference on the campus, faculty leader Richard Hester told hundreds of cheering students Lolley and Ashcraft would not give in to demands for a "fundamentalist school." Hester said the faculty will continue to fight for academic freedom and resist implementation of a "New Right agenda" at Southeastern.

The resignations were the latest in a series of controversial events at North Carolina's only Southern Baptist seminary, which is caught up in a doctrinal dispute that has polarized the 14.6 million-member denomina-

Martin Says Potential For Chinese Trade Is Great, Should Be Developed

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Republican Gov. Jim Martin acknowledges normalizing relations with communist China is still a sore subject with many conservatives in his party.

But like it or not, the world's most populous nation offers a market that the West is racing to exploit. Martin says North Carolina businesses should get their share.

"We know we're buying a lot of stuff from them now," including textile products, the governor said after returning from a two-week trade mission to the Far East. "What we want to be able to do is sell, not buy."

Martin says he didn't know what to expect when he and other state officials and business leaders arrived the Liaoning province at the invitation of its governor.

Liaoning, Martin says, is an area where the communist government is allowing experimentation with market-oriented reforms — "encouraging and implementing ... a degree of private ownership of businesses."

The province, whose capital city is Shen Yang, is in the region of northeastern China formerly called Manchuria.

Martin said he was impressed that the governor, Li Chang Chun, delayed his departure for a gathering of the Communist Party's Central Committee to meet the North Carolinians. Among the group were Martin; his wife, Dottie; Gastonia businessman J.A. Dalpiaz; state Rep. Al Lineberry, D-Guilford; and Bill Dunn, a state Department of Commerce official.

"We met in the afternoon, and that night he caught an eight-hour train to get to Beijing the next morning," Martin said of Li. "We felt that was significant."

Another hopeful sign was that the Chinese expressed interest in a sister-state relationship with North Carolina, Martin said. Most states in the U.S. have such a link with a Chinese province, but North Carolina has none.

That subject will be discussed when a delegation from Shen Yang visits North Carolina and other states in a couple of weeks.

The nature of sister-state relationships varies, according to Sam Taylor, spokesman for the state Department of Commerce. If North Carolina establishes such ties with Liaoning, a key component likely will be academic exchanges.

North Carolina State University and Appalachian State University already make exchanges with Northeast University of Technology in Shen Yang.

A sister-state agreement might also open a pipeline for trade information. "They would let us know what products they might want to purchase from us and we'd let them know what products we want from them," Taylor said.

While one purpose of such agreements is to promote better relations, "I don't think either side would sign something that's purely a gimmick ...," Taylor added. "We'd want it to have some substance."

Because of the nature of the Chinese economic system, there are no private companies that could invest in North Carolina as businesses from Japan, South Korea and other Far Eastern nations do, Martin said.

Hospital Evacuated

DURHAM (AP) — A fire at Duke University Medical Center forced the evacuation of three floors — including 23 babies from the intensive care nursery — but no injuries were reported and the fire was extinguished in about an hour.

The infants were taken to a recovery room, where another nursery was set up, officials said Thursday night.

"They're all fine," said Mike Chitwood, a spokesman for the medical center. "Everything is fine at this point."

The fifth, sixth and seventh floors of Duke North were evacuated, firefighters said, mainly because of smoke.

Most of the patients returned to their rooms after the fire. The hospital staff decided to leave babies in the temporary nursery overnight because of the odor of smoke.

Fire Chief N.L. Thompson said the burning materials apparently included some roof supports and tar.

IN THE STATE

Road Money

RALEIGH (AP) — Mecklenburg County, home base of Republican Gov. Jim Martin, will get almost 20 percent of the state road money spent by Martin's Board of Transportation in the coming years, says a report prepared for the Democrat-controlled General Assembly.

But Transportation Secretary Jim Harrington dismissed the report as "hogwash" Thursday.

Transportation Board member Seddon "Rusty" Goode of Charlotte called the report's claim of 20 percent for Mecklenburg "distortion at its absolute worst. ... It proves you can make numbers say anything you want them to say."

At issue is a three-page chart that's been gathering dust for months.

Prepared by the legislature's fiscal research staff early this year, the report adds the amounts to be spent on highway projects in the state's 100 counties between now and 1995 — and after 1995.

Between 1987 and 1995, the report said, $362.1 million in state money will be spent on Mecklenburg roads. But, after 1995, another $482.2 million is planned for Mecklenburg, bringing the total percentage to 19.98, the report says.

Finalists

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Dr. Willis B. McLeod, superintendent of the Northampton County school system, and Dr. Lloyd V. Hackley, a vice president in the UNC general administration, are the two contenders for the chancellorship at Fayetteville State University, a Fayetteville newspaper says.

The two names were submitted to University of North Carolina President C.D. Spangler Jr. following a called meeting of the FSU Board of Trustees on Oct. 7. The Fayetteville Times reported today.

An 11-member committee began a search after the current chancellor, Dr. Charles Lyons Jr., resigned in March. Lyons will step down Dec. 31, ending an 18-year tenure.

Animal Rescue

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A High Point man used a brick to smash through a window, then battled flames to rescue 15 dogs and three cats trapped in a burning kennel Wednesday night.

"It was flaming hot and I could barely stand it," said Chris Gill, 19. "I just don't like to see animals die. All of them were just barking."

No people were hurt in the fire at the Loving Care Pet Center, but one dog was injured when it was hit by a car in the confusion after the animals were released. Another dog was missing.

Authorities said Thursday the cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

City Sued

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Greensboro man is suing the city of Greensboro and two firefighters alleging negligence in the death of his wife, who was killed two years ago when her car collided at a busy intersection with a fire truck.

Anna Belle Johnson, 61, died Oct. 22, 1985, after her car was struck by a speeding fire truck, which police said ran a red light on its way to a false alarm.

Edward L. Johnson filed the lawsuit last week in Guilford County Superior Court on behalf of his wife's estate. Besides the city of Greensboro, Phillip Lynn May, the fire truck driver, and his supervisor, Clifford Wayne Oakley were named as defendants.

Concicted

RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (AP) — Tammy Lynn Silvers was convicted Wednesday of first-degree murder in the stabbing death of a 28-year-old Caroleen woman.

Superior Court Judge Hollis Owens sentenced Ms. Silvers, 22, to life in prison for the May 22 death of Connie Kennedy Davis. District Attorney Alan Leonard did not seek the death penalty.

Charged

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — A 22-year-old Monroe man has been charged in the fatal stabbing of a Wingate man.

Terry Jackson of Monroe is charged with armed robbery and first-degree murder in the death of his former neighbor, Mark Alan Mings, 29, of Wingate, said Union County Sheriff Frank McGuire.

Mings' body was discovered Wednesday by a co-worker who drove usually drove the victim to work.

Protest Fund

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Nearly 200 residents and business officials, eager to fight the proposed placement of a waste treatment facility in the county, have contributed $36,910 to the Davidson County Defense Committee, co-chairman Eddie Smith said Thursday.

The money came in response to 425 letters mailed Oct. 8 requesting amounts ranging from $100 to $1,000. Smith said an additional 35,000 letters requesting funds were mailed Monday.

Overtime Suit

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Three Lexington fire captains and their union have sued the city of Lexington in U.S. District Court, saying they are entitled to overtime for overtime work which they say they are not.

The suit was filed by the Lexington Professional Fire Fighters Association on behalf of Kenneth M. Berrier, Ronald W. Hester and Jackie W. Smith.

At issue is whether fire captains are management personnel and therefore exempt from overtime pay requirements of the Fair Labor Standards Act, as city officials contend. The fire captains now receive a straight salary.

School Ranked

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The graduate school of business administration at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill has been ranked among the top 20 graduate business schools in the nation in a survey of business school deans to be published in the Nov. 2 issue of U.S. News and World Report.

UNC's graduate program in business was ranked 17th nationally on criteria that included quality of the faculty, strength of the curriculum and how well it prepares students professionally.

Woods Purchase

BUXTON, N.C. (AP) — After six months of quiet negotiations, North Carolina officials have agreed to buy four tracts of central Buxton Woods on Hatteras Island for $750,000 to use as an undisturbed natural area.

Gov. Jims Martin was expected to announce the purchase agreement for 150 acres of the woods today in Raleigh. The purchases, according to a statement released Thursday to the Virginian-Pilot and Ledger-Star of Norfolk, Va., begin a long-term "acquisition initiative" to buy up even more of the controversial 3,000-acre maritime forest.

Martin will ask the Council of State on Dec. 1 to accept the purchases, an approval that should pass with little trouble. Coastal management officials expect to complete the sale by year's end.

Social Security Benefits Rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 38 million Social Security beneficiaries will receive a 4.2 percent benefit increase in January, the highest in 5½ years, the government said today.

In a week of financial nightmares for many, the Social Security Administration said the increase promises an extra $21 a month in the check of the average retired worker, who now gets $492 a month from the huge pension and disability insurance program.

It said the maximum monthly benefit for a worker retiring in 1987 at age 65 will rise $33, from $789 to $822.

The exact size of the increase became official today when the Labor Department announced a Consumer Price Index of 339.1 for September. The increase of 4.2 percent is the same as the inflation rate for urban wage earners and clerical workers from the third quarter of 1986 through the third quarter of 1987.

For the elderly and disabled, the increase will be partially offset by an extra $6.90 a month in Medicare premiums, which are rising to $24.80 starting in January. They are deducted directly from the benefits.

And workers and employers face higher payroll taxes in 1988. A previously scheduled increase will boost the tax on Jan. 1 from 7.15 to 7.51 percent.

Social Security spokesman John Trollinger said beneficiaries will actually receive their checks on Thursday Dec. 31 instead of the customary Jan. 3, because that day is a Sunday.

Nearly 4 million recipients of Supplemental Security Income, a welfare program for the aged, blind or disabled, will also get a 4.2 percent increase.

The agency gave the following examples of how the 4.2 percent increase will affect average monthly benefits:

- All retired workers, up $21, from $492 to $513.
- Aged couple, both getting benefits, up $35, from $841 to $876.
- Widowed mother and two children, up $43, from $1,034 to $1,077.
- Disabled worker, spouse and children, up $37, from $882 to $919.
- All disabled workers, up $21, from $487 to $508.

The maximum federal SSI payment will rise by $14, from $340 to $354, for an individual, and by $22, from $510 to $532, for a poor couple.

Women Will Ask Solons For Statue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of a plan to add the statue of a woman to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial say they may take their case to Congress after being rebuffed by a federal arts commission.

"I think we've been torpedoed, but this matter is far from over," said Donna-Marie Boulay, a former Army nurse from Minneapolis, Minn., who has pushed for the female statue.

The federal Commission of Fine Arts voted 4-1 on Thursday to reject the proposal by the Vietnam Women's Memorial project, which already has a design for its statue and wants it placed amid trees near the memorial's V-shaped wall on the Mall in Washington.

The commission's approval is required by law before monuments and memorials may be built on federal park grounds in Washington, said its chairman, J. Carter Brown.

But a supporter of the female statue, Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., said he would push for legislation taking the issue out of the commission's hands through direct authorization by Congress.

"There's enough support for this thing," Durenberger said. "We will authorize the creation of a Vietnam women's memorial. These four people will end up as a footnote in the history of this memorial."

The new statue is opposed by Maya Ying Lin, a young New York artist who designed the stark black wall, built below ground level and bearing the names of Americans who died in the war. It is the primary focus of the memorial. A statue of three male soldiers stands in trees nearby.

Bible Auctions For $4.9 Million

NEW YORK — A copy of the Gutenberg Bible sold in rapid-fire, tense bidding at auction Thursday night for $4.9 million, the highest price ever paid for a book.

In total, the price was $5.39 million, counting the 10 percent commission Christie's, the auctioneers, received from Maruzen Co. Ltd, the buyer, one of Japan's biggest booksellers.

To enhance the value of the brown calfskin-covered Bible, printed in 1455, Christie's had displayed it last month in Japan. The Bible was the centerpiece of the auction by the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Los Angeles, which is raising funds for the training of priests.

Throughout the world, only 48 Gutenberg Bibles, the first books printed by movable type, survive.

In Tokyo, a Maruzen spokesman said the company, as an importer of large numbers of foreign books and magazines, has long been looking for an opportunity to buy a historic book. Shuji Tomita, the spokesman, said the Gutenberg Bible would be displayed at Maruzen's main store in the Nihombashi section of Tokyo.

Tomita said Japanese interest in the Gutenberg Bible was focused on its historic significance, rather than in its religious nature.

Agents Say Soviet Space Official Involved In Plot

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Federal agents say they've smashed a plot involving the Soviet Union's top space official to sell Moscow stolen U.S. supercomputer technology that would have enabled the Soviets to destroy incoming missiles.

A Frenchman, a California software designer and a third man were arrested Thursday after agents recovered plans for a supercomputer developed by Saxpy Computer Corp. of Sunnyvale and capable of 1 billion computations a second, officials said.

The plans were to have been sold for $4 million, officials said.

"The Soviets wanted to use it in a 'Star Wars' role," said an expert for the Defense Intelligence Agency in Washington who spoke on condition of anonymity. "It was very significant for them."

The plot involved meetings between Soviet space agency chief Roald Sagbeyer and a fourth man, Charles McVey, a former fugitive being held in a Canadian jail, said Quint Villanueva, Pacific regional commissioner of the U.S. Customs Service.

Sagbeyer is Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's chief adviser on the U.S. Star Wars program, Villanueva said.

"The technology would have given the Soviet Union the capability to develop a supercomputer, which, in the event of war, could anticipate American missile strikes, allowing the Soviets to neutralize them," Villanueva said.

McVey, 57, who has not been charged in the case, was arrested in Canada earlier this year on a 1983 indictment charging him with export violations. He is being held in Vancouver.

Authorities arrested Ivan-Pierre Batinic, a 29-year-old Frenchman and former Saxpy engineer; his 30-year-old brother, Stevan, and Kevin E. Anderson, a 36-year-old software designer. He did not work for Saxpy, officials said.

The three were arrested in Fremont, a city about 10 miles north of San Jose where Ivan-Pierre Batinic and Anderson live.

More arrests are expected, said Rollin B. Klink, chief Customs agent in San Francisco.

Dr. Yelena Luzhnikova, administrative aide to Sagbeyer at the Soviet Space Research Institute, told The Associated Press in Moscow, "I don't know anything about it."

Shultz, Gorbachev Hopeful Can Work Out Summit Plans

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev today opened a new round of arms control talks with Secretary of State George P. Shultz, predicting they will be able to arrange a superpower summit in the United States.

"I think this is going to happen," Gorbachev said.

Shultz, referring to hurdles still in the way of a treaty to ban intermediate-range nuclear missiles, joined the optimistic forecast.

"We have done good work, but we aren't satisfied. We'll get there," he said, as he posed for pictures with Gorbachev, the Soviet Communist Party general secretary, in Catherine's Hall in the grand Kremlin palace.

Shultz has imposed a deadline of sorts on himself for his talks in Moscow. He wants to be in Brussels on Saturday to report to West European foreign ministers.

He arrived in Moscow by train Thursday from Helsinki because Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport was cloaked in fog. Although the fog over the Soviet capital lifted by midmorning today, Shultz may be forced to take the train to Leningrad and fly to Brussels from there.

The treaty nearing completion would eliminate all superpower missiles in the 315-to-3,125-mile range. Most of those missiles are deployed in Europe.

Shultz worked late Thursday night, meeting with Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze until 11 p.m., and saw him again for an hour this morning before going to the Kremlin to meet with Gorbachev.

They seemed in good spirits. Gorbachev joked about his long summer vacation away from Moscow, saying: "They lost me, but they finally found me."

He said he was away from Aug. 24 until Sept. 24.

Senior Soviet officials usually take a month's vacation. Some American analysts and news commentators reported Gorbachev was away longer, raising questions about his health and political standing. "The media should worry, and I'm grateful for their attention," Gorbachev said. "But all the time they try to bury me somehow."

Author Says Cairo Mummy Is Biblical Patriarch Joseph

LONDON (AP) — The author of a new book claims a mummy in a Cairo museum is the biblical figure Joseph who led the tribe of Israel into Egypt. "I believe I have proved the mummy Yuya in the Cairo Museum is really Joseph the patriarch," said Ahmed Osman, author of "Stranger in the Valley of the Kings." The book was published Thursday by Souvenir Press.

"I feel excited that my work is at last in print. I hope others will be encouraged to investigate it," said Osman, 53, a teacher and translator who researched his theory for 22 years.

Osman said in an interview that for centuries scholars have tried without success to establish a link between any of the important figures in the biblical Old Testament and the history of Egypt.

"I am sure that Yuya, who was chief administrator and therefore virtual ruler of Egypt under the pharaohs Tuthmosis IV and his son, Amenhotep III, between 1413 and 1367 B.C., was the Joseph of the Book of Genesis," the author said.

Chapters 37 to 50 of Genesis, the first book of the Bible, tell Joseph's story in great detail.

The Bible said Joseph's father, Jacob, loved him more than his other children and "made him a coat of many colors." Joseph's jealous big brothers took his coat and sold him into slavery in Egypt.

There he ultimately rose to power, greatly increased the grain harvest to guard against famine and eventually sent for all his family, the tribe of Israel, to join him.

Genesis ends with Joseph's death, embalming and burial in Egypt. Osman's interest was first aroused by the passage where Joseph calls himself "a father to pharaoh."

"That always seems to have been overlooked," Osman said.

Yuya's tomb was discovered by an American-financed excavation in 1905 between the tombs of two pharaohs in the Valley of the Kings and is well recorded in the literature of Egyptology.

Yuya had 41 titles and one of them was "a father of pharaoh," the only known person in Egyptian history to bear it.

"The title was found inscribed in his tomb and more than 20 times on his funerary papers," Osman said.

Osman says Yuya's daughter, Tiye, married Amenhotep III and became his queen. The four kings who followed — Akhnaten, Semenkhare, the famous Tutankhamun and Aye — were therefore of mixed Israeli and Egyptian blood, the author says.

Yuya's mummified wife, Tuya, found beside him, looks Egyptian but archaeologists have often remarked on her husband's strong, aquiline features, which suggest he was of foreign, possibly Semitic origin.

Osman, who saw Yuya's mummy in Cairo in 1984, said: "The hands are placed, palms down, under the chin. It is the only mummy we know of whose hands were not across his chest in the conventional position of the god Osiris, suggesting he did not subscribe to the gods of Egypt."

Contrary to the biblical account that at the time of the Exodus of Israel to Palestine, Moses took Joseph's bones and buried them in Canaan, Osman feels the remains never left Egypt.

Armenian Says Faith Shored By Struggles

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Armenian Christians, descendants of the oldest Christian national church in history, have had to battle for their faith through the centuries but say that made it strong.

"Reading our history, you would think there are no reasons for us to exist, that we would have been exterminated by now," says Archbishop Torkom Manoogian of the Armenian Church of America.

"On the contrary, difficulties strengthen the faith. The church is our blood, our life, our mother, father, leader, teacher, the gospel, our hope of salvation. No power can sever us from that."

Manoogian, primate of the church's eastern diocese, is host to a rare visit by the church's supreme patriarch, Catholicos Vasken I of Etchmiadzin in Soviet Armenia.

Here for a 17-day stay, he's meeting with ecumenical leaders and other notables, celebrating liturgies, and is to meet with clergy and lay people in major cities across the country.

"He's come to strengthen the faith of his flock and fortify them in their Armenian heritage at a time when it's under new challenges," Manoogian said in an interview. It's the first such visit in two decades.

The denomination, one of two U.S. branches of that tradition totalling about 700,000 members, stems from the world's oldest national church, established in Armenia in 301 A.D.

That predates the Roman Empire's edict of 313 A.D. tolerating previously illegal Christianity there, and was 94 years before it became the official religion for Rome and in Orthodox lands of the East.

Tradition has it that Christianity first was taken to Armenia about 30 years after Christ's death by apostles Thaddeus and Bartholomew, and that St. Gregory, "the illuminator," later converted King Tiridates III.

He made Christianity the national faith, and this stirred the enmity of surrounding pagan regimes, subjecting Armenians to centuries of conquests and oppressions lasting up to modern times.

That includes the anti-religious suppression by Communism, harshest under Stalin. Despite it, Armenians have remained a nearly solid pocket of faith in their homeland.

"Even Armenian Communists who call themselves atheists bring their children to be baptized," Manoogian said. "It's in their heart and tradition that the church is the center of Armenian life."

Attempts to crush the faith there go back to A.D. 450 when Persia's overwhelming forces reduced Armenia to vassalhood, decreeing Zoroastrianism, sometimes called "fire worship."

Armenians revolted, eventually winning a 30-year guerrilla war. But a long line of other invasions, territorial divisions and suppressions followed by Moslems, Byzantium, Mongols, Tartars, Turks and Russian Communists.

Britain's Anne Changes Image To Princess Royal

By JAMES A. REVSON
L.A. Times-Washington Post
New Service

They called her "The Royal Sourpuss."
The HRH stood for "Her Royal Haughtiness."
And before long, Princess Anne of Great Britain had become "the royal we love to hate."
"Naff off," Anne Elizabeth Alice Louise Phillips once shouted at a group of offending photographers, using decidedly unfeminine language.
No one had a kind word for the only daughter of Queen Elizabeth II. She was described as "arrogant," "insulting," "morose" and worse.
When she visited the Nixon White House in 1970, she looked bored and admitted to the tedium of her royal tasks. No one appreciated her candor.
Her physical appearance was compared rather unfavorably to the horses she rode.
Never was there such an unregal, ungracious princess — or so the British tabloids claimed.
And never has there been such a transformation from public disdain to widespread acclaim.
So say goodbye to the sourpuss princess and hello to the earnest, hard-working Princess Royal. That's Princess Anne's new title, given to her by her mother, the Queen, in recognition of her diligent work as president of Save the Children Fund.
And make no mistake about it, the Princess Royal has completely shaken her imperious ways and emerged as one of the most respected members of the "The Firm," as the royals refer to themselves in private.
She often logs 10 public engagements a week and ranks as the third-hardest-working royal.
The colonies will have a chance to see the new Anne on Oct. 23 when she comes to Nashville, Tenn., for a day of racing called "The Royal Chase" to benefit the Save the Children Fund. Her less than 40-hour visit will mark the first time an English royal has visited Nashville (on a commercial airline, no less), as well as the first time one has competed in an American horse race. Sponsored by the International Steeplechase Group, the chase will raise $25,000 for Britain's largest international children's charity.
"The British public has a very high regard for her," said English broadcaster Michael Barratt. "Her whole image has been transformed because she has been seen around the world in tough conditions in Africa getting off her backside."
In the past 17 years as president of the fund, she has made 10 major trips abroad to visit dozens of health projects in 24 countries. On a trip to East Africa, she didn't wash for a week. "That kind of devotion has made her much respected and appreciated," said Nigel Dempster, England's leading royal gossipist.
Next month, the 37-year-old princess will visit the communist-run state of Laos as part of a 12-day tour that will also take her to Thailand, Burma and Singapore. In the tiny, land-locked country of Laos, she will tour clinics, hospitals and schools supported by the fund.
"She has regal dignity without being stuffy," said Barratt. Dignity, though, is not the stuff of racy headlines. So while her two sisters-in-law, Princess Di and Sarah, Duchess of York, traipse about in a whirl of glamour and regal fantasy, Anne seems to plod soberly along, doing the right thing but not creating much of a stir. She doesn't drink. She doesn't frequent London's fashionable nightclubs and she doesn't mouth off to the press any more. In fact, "She's rather boring," admits Barratt.

If that's really the case, Nashville couldn't care less. Princess Anne is the first royal to come calling and the horse set is jumping hurdles to meet, greet and win over Her Royal Highness.
"The response has been unbelievable," said a breathless Jane Dudley, a leading Nashville hostess whose husband Guilford was Ambassador to Denmark. "We sold out all the royal boxes by word of mouth," Dudley explained excitedly. There are 50 of these so-called royal boxes (erected at a cost of $100,000) at Nashville's Percy Warner Park, site of "The Royal Chase." They are royal because it takes a crown prince, or thereabouts, to afford the going price of $10,000 for 10 seats for one day at the races, which is a tad expensive even with a cellular phone thrown in. They are also royal because Princess Anne will be seated amidst the boxes in what monarchists refer to as the "Royal Enclosure."
"She is as charming, easy and unpretentious as anyone could ever be," said Mrs. Dudley, who has met the princess' brother, Prince Charles, and the princess' aunt, Princess Margaret, but never the princess herself. Nevertheless, Anne is expected to bunk down Thursday night at Northumberland, the Dudleys' sprawling estate.
"She's very down to earth and plainspoken," said George A. Sloan, head of the Royal Chase steering committee, although like Mrs. Dudley, he doesn't know the princess.
"She's a very normal, committed, nice person," said Peter Greenall, a former English amateur champion who helped arrange for the princess's visit to Nashville and actually does know her. "She's very natural," added Greenall, obviously not wanting to say anything that could be construed as a personal remark.
Princess Anne's visit came about because Sloan mentioned the idea to his good buddy Greenall who took up the subject with his pal David Nicholson, the Royal Family's trainer. Nicholson, in turn, asked the princess — who was delighted to accept both the invitation and the promised $25,000 check.

At 7:45 p.m., dinner will be served in an adjacent tent, set with 60 tables of 10 and decked out in scarlet, lavender and black (the colors of the princess's racing silks, you should know). A staff of 40 waiters, 23 chefs, 16 captains and five sommeliers will serve up what is billed as a light repast. "The princess has to be up early to ride," Thrailkill said by way of explanation. And what's light Southern chow? Salmon mousse, Capon Toulouse with baby vegetables, corn pudding baked in fresh tomatoes, a Kentucky bibb salad and, for dessert, a triple chocolate cake lounging on a bed of raspberries with a bonnet of lavender flowers.

"This is my first time feeding royalty," said a slightly agitated Thrailkill. The dessert alone took two months to create and wasn't approved until its seventh tasting.
As for royal etiquette, American are NOT expected to bow, curtsy or grovel before the Princess Royal. A simple handshake will do and possibly a nod of the head.
But few of the 600 need worry, since few will meet HRH. A group of 22 of Nashville's horsiest set plus a few English aristocrats will meet the princess before the party at a reception given by Tennessee Gov. Ned Ray McWherter. For those few, the first rule is: Don't talk to the princess unless she talks to you. That means being formally presented by an equestrian to the Princess Royal. Royals initiate conversation; commoners politely respond. As one British Embassy staffer said, "I don't think you'd drop by and say 'How are you?'"
Certainly not.
On being presented, the proper greeting is: "I'm so pleased to meet your Royal Highness." Then in further conversation, refer to HRH as "Ma'am" (pronounced nasally as Mum). Do not call her princess, your majesty, your grace, Princess Royal or — heaven forbid — Anne, honey.
In conversation, it's best to stick to the obvious. With Princess Anne, the topics of choice would be horses, starvation and horses. Do not ask after her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, or about their 14-year-old marriage. It's reportedly on the rocks. As for autographs, royals don't sign anything — except for wedding registers.
On Friday, all eyes will be on the princess, a former European equestrian champion, when she competes against an expected 15 other riders in a two-mile flat-course race. But the highlight of the day will be an event called the Queen Mother Supreme Novice Chase, a steeplechase over brush and fences offering the largest purse for novices in the world, $100,000.
To break up the day (all four hours of it), country-western stars Lee Greenwood and Ray Stevens will sing for the princess in between races from a stage in the infield of the race course. Then there's a seated lunch for patrons and princess alike at 11:15 a.m., featuring such simple culinary delights as eye of smoked Tennessee prime rib stuffed with rolled turkey and mushrooms, then drenched in a bordelaise sauce.
A light dessert of four liqueur cakes will be served in the royal boxes. And finally, after the fourth race, a traditional English tea of crumpets and finger sandwiches will be served to put a proper end to a hard day at the track.
"It's worth all the time and effort," said Thrailkill, the royal caterer. "We don't don't want her going home thinking we only serve corn bread and black-eyed peas."
No chance of that. (Distributed by the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service)

Unfortunately, only royal-box holders (known henceforth as patrons) will see much of the princess. Patrons will get a glimpse of her when they attend an informal sit-down dinner for 600 on the night before Friday's races at Belle Meade Mansion, a classic, white-columned plantation. At Anne's request, the party will be a down-home do with entertainment by country singer Ricky Skaggs. Still, it won't exactly be a casual affair.
For starters, Nashville society, led by Alyne Massey, Queen of the Social Swim, will arrive along a torchlit drive between 6:30 and 7 p.m. At 7 p.m., the drive will be closed and the princess will arrive. (Royalty always arrives last and leaves first). Everyone will wander through the mansion and then follow the traditional red carpet to the carriage house for cocktails. Amidst an array of antique buggies, the select will be confronted by two upright 25-pound lobsters with their claws fanned out in a cheery greeting (look for the wires). The dual lobsters, resting on a mirrored base, will be set between two 600-pound ice carvings of the British Crown.
"It will be a picture no one else has seen before," said Nashville restaurateur Walter Thrailkill, who has been planning the regal vittles for five months.

lace along traditional lines and patterns.

But the danger, according to Anthony Ford of the United Kingdom Crafts Council, lies in the stagnation of crafts and the declining quality of the products.

"In Mediterranean countries," he said, "tourists are taking away a little bit of the heritage each time they visit, and craft in some areas has become 'airport art' — meaningless and empty."

Experts attending the seminar in Oporto said governments in Mediterranean countries have found that creating more jobs in traditional crafts is relatively inexpensive compared to setting up new industries, but training still lags behind northern European countries.

In a country such as Denmark, artists and designers can study for as long as 10 years on government financial grants. The Portuguese government, on the other hand, sends craftsmen to work after only six months training.

Artisans Learn Modern Methods

By EMMA GILBERT
Associated Press Writer

OPORTO, Portugal (AP) — Graca Maria Ramos couldn't believe it — lace made with plastic thread, feathers and metal.

The Portuguese fisherman's wife and her ancestors have been using cotton and silk to make pillow or bobbin lace the way Flemish artisans introduced to their fishing village of Peniche 300 years ago.

But now here was a woman from Belgium with revolutionary techniques and designs, explaining how to go beyond traditional styles and materials toward free artistic expression.

In time, Graca Maria Ramos and others saw that using modern methods could save their craft.

The Belgian woman, Marie Jeanne Callewaert, was among a group of European and American artisans and artists invited to Portugal under the auspices of the World Crafts Council to spend a week showing local craftsmen and women how to update their skills and revitalize a national crafts culture at the same time.

At first, the new ways were difficult for some traditional artisans to absorb, Mrs. Callewaert said, "but at the end of the week they were so enthusiastic about their work they wouldn't let me take a sample back."

Maria Helena Lencastre, a Portuguese government representative, said change is essential to the future of crafts in Portugal and European countries on the Mediterranean.

The challenge to saving the crafts culture, she added, lies in bringing about change without destroying jobs and traditions.

There is no shortage of craftsmen or women in Portugal, Western Europe's poorest nation where 150,000 artisans produce pottery, tiles, glass, jewelry, ironwork and lace along traditional lines and patterns.

But the danger, according to Anthony Ford of the United Kingdom Crafts Council, lies in the stagnation of crafts and the declining quality of the products.

"In Mediterranean countries," he said, "tourists are taking away a little bit of the heritage each time they visit, and craft in some areas has become 'airport art' — meaningless and empty."

CWI Awards Are Presented

CWI: Credit Professionals of Greenville held its annual bosses' night banquet at the Greenville Country Club Wednesday evening. New officers were installed, Boss of the Year and Credit Woman of the Year were named.

Pat West was installed as president by Sharoy Burroughs of Kanapolis, state president. She was assisted by Pat Dwiggins of Kanapolis, state historian.

Other officers are Jewell Coggins, first vice president; Debbie Johnston, second vice president; Diane Worthington, recording secretary; Debbie Mills, treasurer; Marian Hardee, corresponding secretary; Carol Hardee, parliamentarian, and Pearl Hartsell, chaplain.

Jerry W. Powell, senior vice president and area executive of Branch Banking and Trust Co., received the Boss of the Year award. The selection is based on participation in club activities, giving programs, donations and sponsorship.

The Credit Woman of the Year award went to Mildred Porter and was presented by Angelene Venters. This award is given to the member who contributes the most to the ideals and purposes of the club. Other qualifications include perfect attendance and attending state and district meetings.

Sponsors are Kelly Barnhill, Jim Blair, Joe Cullipher, William Handley, Don Langston, Jack

Minges, Billy Nobles, Maynard Porter, Powell, JoAnn White and In-da Wingate.

Carol Hardee, Pearl Hartsell, Martha Mills and Louise Whichard are members of the board of directors.

"Catch The Spirit" was the theme for the banquet and new officers were presented a brass bell, symbolic of freedom and liberty.

Marian Hardee gave the invocation. Ms. Coggins gave the welcome and Powell responded. Entertainment for the evening was provided by Rebecca Johnston.

Ms. Johnston was chairman for the evening's activities. Special guests included members from the Kinston and Raleigh clubs.

Dale's Children Are Number One

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 35 and in love with a man who is 17 years older than I am. (I'll call him Dale.) We have been living together for four years and have a beautiful son who is 7 years old. Dale and I are considering marriage. The problem is that his children (all adults) can't seem to accept me. They are constantly inviting him over for dinner parties (with their mom there), but I am not invited.

Dale feels that he has to accept every invitation because they are his children. I feel that he is wrong. Abby, I would not accept any invitation if Dale wasn't invited.

I am upset about this and need your advice. I can't go on living like this. Is Dale right to accept invitations from his children without including me? Sign me ... OUTSIDER IN LOUISIANA

DEAR OUTSIDER: You have chosen an appropriate signature insofar as Dale and his family are concerned. The fact that Dale is permitting his children to snub you should tell you something. They are No. 1 in his life, and probably always will be.

(Is your social life in a slump? Lonely? Get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. Send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to get this off my chest. It's about time humans stopped referring to acts that people perpetrate as people "acting like animals."

I refer generally to those who describe murders, riots, panics and other catastrophes in which people lose control and are said to be "acting like animals."

I refer specifically to comments regarding a recent ship hijacking when it was said that the terrorists acted like "cowardly animals."

These terrorists and guerrilla acts are not animal in nature. They are HUMAN in nature. As one who sees the balance, beauty and meaning of the world in which animals must face life-or-death situations every day just to survive and perpetuate the species, I grossly resent and take offense at these statements.

When was the last time we saw a gorilla hijack a plane? When was the last time we saw a pod of whales hijack an ocean liner? When was the last time we saw a group of animals walk down the street and terrorize the neighborhood? People, in fact, are the terrorists and guerrillas when they go into the animals' element to slaughter them for fur coats, hunting trophies, plumage and all the other atrocious reasons society gives for the gross neglect of respect for life and murder of our fellow creatures inhabiting this world.

If the day ever comes when man comes off his ego trip, maybe he will see just how insignificant he is to the total scheme of things on this tremendous planet in which ALL creatures share. Maybe then, finally, the saying will be turned around to, "They behaved like people." — KATHY L. LINEAWEAVER, CLIFTON PARK, N.Y.

DEAR KATHY: Bravo! Mark Twain said: "Man is the only animal that blushes. Or needs to."

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 37.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 64 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a final weighted average of 37.72 cents. The market is steady and the live supply is adequate for a moderate demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,962,000, compared to 1,984,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market higher. Supply adequate for a moderate demand. Prices paid per pound of negotiation generally for slaughter the following week, heavy types, 7 pounds and up, 11 cents at farm with buyer loading.

Bork Foes Set

of his confirmation process lasted late into the night Thursday — the second day of Senate floor debate. Five more hours were scheduled for today.

Bork's opponents said the nomination has received fair treatment where it counts, in the Senate, but several senators supporting Bork focused on what they called smear campaigns by civil rights, civil liberties and women's groups.

Reagan also criticized "private interest groups of various kinds" for waging political war against Bork.

"I think this selection of a judge was totally out of line with what the procedure should be," Reagan said.

He said the qualifications of those who supported Bork at his confirmation hearings were "far superior" to the qualifications of those who testified against him.

Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., called the Bork confirmation fight "catastrophically unfair," adding that "frenzied smear campaigns" spelled the difference.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, called the anti-Bork fight "an effort to re-fight the 1980 and 1984 campaigns."

But Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., contended that Bork's confirmation would not be "in the best interest of the public," adding that "the Senate's decision is a referendum on the future."

Another Bork opponent, Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, said the battle over Bork's nomination has not been as political as others.

Referring to a 1968 filibuster led by Senate Republicans that blocked the elevation to chief justice of Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas, Mitchell said, "For raw politics, this confirmation process doesn't even come close to the Fortas fight."

Fire Deaths

PILOT, N.C. (AP) — A fire of undetermined origin raced through a mobile home in rural Franklin County Thursday, killing two boys, authorities said.

Pilot Fire Chief Howard Jones said the fire had been reported at 6:30 a.m. in the small community near the border between Franklin and Nash counties. The mobile home was engulfed in flames when firefighters arrived, he said, and there was no chance to save the boys.

The victims were identified as Kenneth Booth, 11, and Master Otis Booth, 6, sons of Mary Booth of Pilot. Jones said the bodies had been recovered in a bedroom in the mobile home.

Pirates Challenge Gamecock Power

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

After winning two straight football games, East Carolina coach Art Baker said that life was getting pretty pleasant.

Then, he sat down last Sunday and watched some film of the South Carolina Gamecocks, this Saturday's opponent in Columbia, S.C.

"They've scored nearly 100 points in the last two weeks," Baker said. "They are hot as a pistol."

South Carolina bombed Virginia Tech, 40-10, then routed Virginia 58-10, over those past two weeks, putting 98 points on the scoreboard.

East Carolina is coming off two weeks of nearly as much production. The Pirates riddled Cincinnati, 56-28, two weeks ago, then knocked off Virginia Tech, 32-23, giving the Pirates a total of 88 points over the same period.

But Baker is still worried about the abilities of the Gamecocks, who bring a 4-2 record into the game.

South Carolina lost to two strong teams, Georgia (31-6) and second-ranked Nebraska (30-21). "We watched their film of the Nebraska game, and you can say that they have truly outstanding athletes," Baker said.

Quarterback Todd Ellis, a 6-3, 210-pound sophomore, is the key to the Gamecock offense. "Ellis is way up there in the national stats," Baker said. Ellis ranks fourth in the nation in total offense, averaging 285.83 yards a game. He has completed 137 of 240 passes for 1,756 and could surpass the South Carolina school record for career passing yards during this Saturday's game. He needs only 141 yards for that.

Baker rates Ellis as more dangerous than Cincinnati's Danny McCoil in that he scrambles well with the ball. "He throws on the move, so we have to do a better job of rushing the passer and tackling, and we've got to play better one-on-one coverage in the secondary. We're letting too many people catch the ball."

One person the Pirates do not want catching the ball is the Gamecocks' leading receiver, wingback Sterling Sharpe (6-1, 200, Sr.). Sharpe has 37 catches for 519 yards and three touchdowns, ranking him ninth in the nation. "Sharpe is probably the best athlete we'll face this year," Baker said, recalling the two touchdown catches he made against the Pirates last year.

But, Baker says, the Gamecocks also have an outstanding running attack this year with running back Harold Green (6-2, 210, So.). Green, despite having arthroscopic surgery earlier this month, has rushed for a team-high 422 yards.

And, like East Carolina, South Carolina has come out of its run-and-shoot formation to operate from the I at times.

But not only do the Gamecocks have an outstanding offense, but they have a great defense as well, Baker points out. "It's the most aggressive we've played against. They've intimidated (Virginia Tech and Virginia) on the line of scrimmage."

"We've proven that we can win over the past two weeks," Baker said, "now we've got a real challenge against us. But I think our team has a lot more confidence that they did last year (against South Carolina — a 38-3 win for the Gamecocks)."

The Pirates will be seeking to win their third game in a row — the first time since the 1983 season when they were 8-3 and nationally ranked. They will also be trying to win for the first time against the Gamecocks, who hold a 4-0 lead in the series between the two.

Travis Hunter, who set a new single game total offense record of 313 yards last week against Virginia Tech, will lead the Pirate offensive attack. Hunter has rushed for 296 yards while completing 47 of 97 passes for 655 yards and one touchdown. He's had four passes picked off.

Anthony Simpson is the leading rusher for the Pirates with 520 yards. Reggie McKinney is next with 386, followed by Hunter. Two other Pirates are over 100 yards rushing, Tim James with 175 and Jarrod Moody with 109.

The Pirates are rushing for 242.0 yards a game while allowing 206.9. They have passed for 109.4 while giving up 176.3. East Carolina's total offense averages 351.4 yards a game while the Pirates have allowed 383.1 per game.

Kickoff in Columbia's Williams-Brice Stadium is set for 1:30 p.m.

East Carolina returns home for its last two games in the coming weeks, hosting Miami on Oct. 31 and Temple on Nov. 7. ECU closes out its season at Southern Mississippi on Nov. 14.

Lucky Bounce Helps Cards Bounce Back For 3-2 Lead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Time is no longer running out on the St. Louis Cardinals because they are running on the Minnesota Twins.

And with the help of a lucky bounce, the Cardinals bounced back. Now the teams return to Minnesota with St. Louis needing just one more victory to win the World Series.

Trailing 2-0 after the first two games in Minnesota, the Cardinals swept three at home from the worst road team ever to win a pennant in either league.

They completed the sweep with a 4-2 victory in Game 5 Thursday night behind the pitching of Danny Cox and with the help of five stolen bases, the most in a World Series game in 80 years. Vince Coleman got a bad-hop single to ignite a three-run sixth inning against Bert Blyleven, and Curt Ford drove in two runs with a single.

"We do have the momentum going our way right now," Ford said. "We won three here at home, and we've got a feel for the Metrodome now. I think things are going our way."

The Twins outscored St. Louis 18-5 with 21 hits, including four homers, in the first two games at the dome, where they had baseball's best home record of 56-25. But Minnesota's 29-52 road record was evident at Busch Stadium.

In three games of playing without the designated hitter in the National League park, the Twins scored just four runs on 18 hits and one homer. Obviously, the Twins are happy to be headed north.

"Thankfully we're going home," Blyleven said. "We need the fans behind us, and I know they'll be there."

Coleman had a hit — a bunt that skidded off the seam between the artificial turf and the dirt in front of first base — and a walk. He stole two bases and scored both times. Ozzie Smith also had two stolen bases, one of them leading to a run on the back end of a double steal with Coleman, and pinch runner Lance Johnson stole a base.

The five steals were the most in a game by any World Series team since the Chicago Cubs stole that many against the Detroit Tigers on Oct. 9, 1907.

"That's the way we've run all year long," Coleman said. "Whenever we go out there and establish our running game, we know we're doing what we're supposed to be doing."

Cox, the loser against Blyleven in Game 2, pitched 7 1-3 innings. He had the Twins shut out on three hits until the eighth, when Minnesota scored both of its runs on Gary Gaetti's triple to center field. It was a ball that would have been out of the Metrodome.

The outing renewed Cox's reputation as St. Louis' big-game pitcher. Cox pitched the Cardinals' division clincher against Montreal on Oct. 1, and he won Game 7 of the National League playoffs against San Francisco, 6-0, with an eight-hitter.

"My stomach is in knots out there," Cox said. "It's a situation that I've been very fortunate to be able to participate in. I just happen to fall on the days when we happen to have the big games."

Cox said he was looking forward to going back to Minnesota, where he could be called upon to pitch Game 7 on two days' rest, if necessary.

"I think it will be a lot different story this time," Cox said. He said he had never pitched on two days' rest before, but if Manager Whitey Herzog "says in Game 7, 'Danny, the ball's yours,' I'll go out and do my best."

The Cardinals will send left-hander John Tudor against rookie Les Straker in a rematch of Game 3 when the Series resumes Saturday. Tudor allowed just one run on four hits through seven innings to beat Straker 3-1 Tuesday night.

The Cardinals had blown big scoring opportunities in the third and fifth innings — the victim both times being Jose Oquendo — before finally coming through in the sixth.

In the third inning, the Cardinals had runners at second and third with one out when Oquendo was thrown out at home trying to score on a grounder to shortstop Greg Gagne. In the fifth, St. Louis had runners at first and third with one out. Cox missed a third-strike squeeze bunt after Twins Manager Tom Kelly called for a pitchout, and Oquendo was caught off third base for an inning-ending double play.

Coleman led off the sixth with a bunt that took two big hops before hitting the edge of the seam in front of dirt at first base. Twins first baseman Kent Hrbek lunged for the ball but couldn't come up with it cleanly. His relay to Blyleven, covering first, was late.

Had he fielded the ball cleanly, Hrbek probably could have beat Coleman to the bag. Instead, Coleman got the Cards going, and the Twins were literally coming apart at the seams.

"It either hit soft dirt or right on the edge of the dirt," Hrbek said. "Whatever it hit, it stayed down."

Smith followed with another bunt, this one toward third base. Blyleven tried to barehand the ball but dropped it, and Smith was on with a single as Coleman went to second. Tommy Herr failed on two bunt attempts before flying out to shallow left, and the runners had to hold their ground — but not for long.

With the count 1-0 on Dan Driessen, Coleman said he stole a signal from Twins catcher Tim Laudner. He knew a curveball was coming, and he took off for third. He made it easily, and Smith cruised into second to complete the double steal. Driessen was walked intentionally to load the bases, and Blyleven looked like he might be out of it when he got Willie McGee looking at a called third strike.

"I gave up on his curveball, and he back-doored me," McGee said.

Ford then lined a single up the middle, scoring Coleman and Smith as Driessen went to third. Ford continued to second on the play when center fielder Kirby Puckett's throw went through to third base, too late to get Driessen. The third run of the inning scored when shortstop Greg Gagne dropped Oquendo's bouncer.

"The ball Coleman hit, hit a seam and stayed down," Herzog said. "Then Ozzie laid down a super bunt. I wanted to bunt them over and get Willie up with one out. Then we stole and still got Willie up with one out, but he struck out. Curt Ford got the big two-out hit."

That inning marked the end for Blyleven, who gave up three runs, two earned, on seven hits. In Game 2, Blyleven went seven innings and gave up two runs on six hits, but the Twins scored eight runs for him that time.

In this game, the Twins were unable to produce offensively, and it extended a longstanding franchise tradition. It was the 11th road loss in a row in the World Series, going back 62 years. The last time this franchise, then known as the Washington Senators, won a World Series game on the road was when Walter Johnson beat Pittsburgh 4-1 in 1925.

"The ball hit to Hrbek scooted on him and caught him by surprise," Kelly said. "Gagne just misplayed his and, on Ozzie's bunt, Blyleven bobbed it. ... We were out-pitched and out-played ... plus we did not swing the bats well."

Coleman walked with one out in the seventh against Keith Atherton. Atherton balked Coleman to second when he failed to stop in his delivery. Coleman stole third and scored when

Allison Grabs Delco Pole

ROCKINGHAM (AP) — Using one of his father's tricks, Davey Allison took advantage of a late draw to grab the pole for Sunday's AC Delco 500 NASCAR stock car race at the N.C. Motor Speedway.

"I wanted to go out late because I wanted an idea of how everyone else was doing," the 26-year-old Allison said after winning the pole with a speed of 145.609 mph Thursday at the Rockingham track.

Allison also won the pole in the March Goodwrench 500 race at Rockingham but wound up finishing ninth.

"I want to do better than we did in that race," he said. "I feel more comfortable now."

Allison's father, Bobby Allison, won the pole two weeks ago at Charlotte. He wound up second to Bill Elliott in a close finish to the Oakwood Homes 500.

"The wrong Allison was on the pole the last race," Davey Allison quipped Thursday.

It was the fifth pole of the Winston Cup season for the Ford-driving rookie from Hueytown, Ala. He edged out Dale Earnhardt, who clocked in at 145.222 mph.

Earnhardt will clinch his second straight Winston Cup points championship simply by starting Sunday's race at the Rockingham track. But he said he wouldn't be satisfied with just a start.

"We're going to race on Sunday," Earnhardt said. "We came to play."

With his strong showing Thursday, Davey Allison broke Earnhardt's record for the most poles by a rookie driver.

Elliott will start on the inside of the second row on Sunday. His time was 144.774 mph, followed by Sterling Martin with a speed of 144.415 mph.

The top 20 qualifiers for Sunday's AC Delco 500 NASCAR stock car race, with driver, hometown, type of car, and qualifying speed:

1. Davey Allison, Hueytown, Ala., Ford, 145.609 mph.
2. Dale Earnhardt, Kannapolis, N.C., Chevrolet, 145.222.
3. Bill Elliott, Dawsonville, Ga., Ford, 144.774.
4. Sterling Martin, Columbia, Tenn., Oldsmobile, 144.415.

5. Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala., Buick, 144.346.
6. Morgan Shepherd, Conover, N.C., Buick, 144.341.
7. Ricky Rudd, Chesapeake, Va., Ford, 144.091.
8. Kyle Petty, High Point, N.C., Ford, 144.040.
9. Brett Bodine, Chemung, N.Y., Chevrolet, 143.802.
10. Darrell Waltrip, Franklin, Tenn., Chevrolet, 143.706.
11. Alan Kulwicki, Greenfield, Wis., Ford, 143.560.
12. Geoff Bodine, Chemung, N.Y., Chevrolet, 143.537.
13. Joe Ruttman, Upland, Cal., Pontiac, 143.481.
14. Terry Labonte, Corpus Christi, Texas, Chevrolet, 143.453.
15. Buddy Baker, Charlotte, N.C., Chevrolet, 143.262.
16. Ken Schrader, Fenton, Mo., Ford, 143.189.
17. Rusty Wallace, St. Louis, Mo., Pontiac, 143.161.
18. Mike Waltrip, Owensboro, Ky., Chevrolet, 142.737.
19. Cale Yarborough, Timmonsville, S.C., Oldsmobile, 142.676.
20. Dale Jarrett, Conover, N.C., Chevrolet, 142.565.

Valkyries Again Reach Semifinals

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's girls' volleyball team came back from a two game deficit to take a 3-2 match victory over SouthWest Edgecombe Thursday and advance to the state 3-A semifinals again.

Conley is the defending state champion. SouthWest took the first game 2-15 as Kim Elliot had a six-point serving string.

In the second game, Conley regrouped to make it closer, jumping out to a 13-8 lead before allowing the Lady Cougars to take the game 16-14.

Miriam Fulford had four straight service points for the Valkyries but Elliot had five straight to lead SouthWest.

In the third game, the Lady Cougars jumped out to 5-0 lead before Conley came back to tie it at 5-5 behind five straight service points by Rhonda Mills.

SouthWest then served four straight points to take an 11-8 lead. Conley, though, fought back as Rene Tuten served the last four points to win the game, 15-12.

In the fourth game, Conley was down 4-0 before tying it 4-4 behind Tracy Sumrell's serving string of four. The Valkyries then went ahead 12-7 and held off the Lady Cougars to win the game, 15-12.

In the final game, the Lady Cougars had the serve at match point, 14-13, but Conley broke them, got the serve back and went ahead on three straight service points by Hanna Hill to make it 15-14.

The teams traded serves before Tuten served and won the 16th and match-winning point. Conley's hitting was led by Hill with 16 effective and seven kills. Fulford had 12 effective and four kills. Sumrell added eight effective hits and two kills. Peggy Whitehurst chipped in six effective hits.

Conley will play host to the Trinity-Burlington Williams winner Monday in the state semifinals.

Vikes' Cross Country Team Tops Rose

D.H. Conley swept a pair of cross country runs from Rose High School Thursday.

In the boys' meet, Conley finished with 22 points while Rose had 33. The Conley girls won their meet, 19-38.

In the boys meet, Conley's Adrain McLawhorn took first place with a time of 17:13. Teammate Emerson Merritt took second in 17:15, followed by Rose's Jason Dohm in 17:32. Rose also took fourth as David Russ finished in 18:08.

Conley's Ed West took fifth in 18:20.

The remaining runners included: 6) Mark Mallison (C) 18:27; 7) Dave Jolley (R) 18:28; 8) Mark Whitehead (C) 18:43; 9) Chris Richards (R) 18:49; 10) James McPherson (R) 19:06; 11) Mike Jolley (R) 19:09; 12) Paul Merritt (C) 19:19; 13) Todd Taylor (R) 19:24; 14) Bershan Thompson (C) 19:26; 15) Robbie Barnes (R) 19:27; 16) Eric Wethington (C) 19:32; 17) John Turner (R) 19:34; 18) John Dunn (C) 20:17; 19) Craig Kirkland (R) 20:19; 20) Chris Wethington (C) 20:43; 21) Shane Johnny (R) 21:06; 22) Doug Hill (C) 22:16; 23) Eddie Bonner (C) 22:17; 24) Scott Hudson (C) 22:17.

Gretta Harris of Conley took first in 21:44 while Rose's Susan Hu was second in 22:30. Conley's Kimberly Colson was third in 23:09, followed by teammates Amy Aschliman in 23:26 and Jennifer Wing in 23:40.

The other runners included 6) Katie Mohrer (C) 23:41; 7) Lee Nisbet (R) 25:03; 8) Alisha Pascasio (R) 26:13; 9) Erin Becker (R) 26:25; 10) Sharon Beacham (C) 26:43; 11) Heather Smith (C) 27:12; 12) Darby Thomas (R) 27:32.

The Rose boys are now 5-4 and the girls 6-2. Rose travels to Northeastern on Monday. Conley will take part in the Eastern Independents Championship Meet at Washington on Monday.

ACC Booters Top Pirates, 1-0

Atlantic Christian College gained a 1-0 soccer victory over East Carolina University Thursday.

The lone goal came in the first period by Brian Fahey.

East Carolina took 22 shots on goal with Atlantic Christian goalie Seth Weaver having 12 saves. Atlantic Christian had 13 shots with ECU goalie Scott McCullough recording nine saves.

Atlantic Christian is now 14-2 while the Pirates slump to 2-12. The Pirates travel to Richmond on Saturday.

ECU Swimmers Hold Purple-Golf Meet

East Carolina University's swimming team held its annual Purple-Gold meet Thursday.

The men's Gold team came away with a 48-47 win while the women's Purple team won 45-43.

The men set two meet records in the event. Mark O'Brien took the 200 backstroke in 2:01.96 while Raymond Kennedy won the 200 breaststroke in 2:15.96.

The men bettered every time except in the 100 freestyle in comparison with last year's times.

The women also set two new meet records. The 400 medley relay team of Keller Hodges, Meredith Bridgers, Ryan Philyaw and Angela Winstead won the event in 4:14.12. Bridgers also set a new 200 breaststroke mark in 2:30.37.

"We were very pleased with our performance in the meet," Coach Rick Kobe said, "but we still have a long way to go as our teams seem to get faster as the season goes on."

The Pirates open the season on Nov. 6 against James Madison University.

Buc Volleyball Team Takes Win

WILSON — East Carolina University topped Atlantic Christian for the third time this year in volleyball Thursday night.

The Lady Pirates won the opening game 15-13, then came back with 15-9 and 15-12 wins to sweep the best-of-five series.

Jemmy Holley, Kris McKay and Dasha Jones each had five kills to lead the ECU hitting. Debbie Tate had four service aces.

East Carolina climbs to 9-12 on the year while Atlantic Christian drops to 18-6, three of the losses coming to the Lady Pirates.

The Lady Pirates play host to UNC Charlotte on Saturday.

Rose Opens Wilson Fike, 3-0

Rose High School's soccer team rolled up a 3-0 win over Wilson Fike Thursday to hold onto first place in the Big East standings.

Rose scored once in the opening half of the match. Mike Kasperek headed in a corner kick by David Allen at the 38 minute mark for the score.

The Rampants added two more scores in the second half. Bobby Weisenberger scored with assists by Dallas McPherson and Lloyd May at the 43 minute mark, while Brian Wille scored on a penalty kick at the 62 minute mark.

Wille, who played goal for the Rampants, had four saves as Fike recorded four shots on goal. It was his 11th shutout of the year. Rose took 13 shots on goal with Fike goalie Robert Green credited with nine saves.

Rose, winner of 10 in a row, is now 11-1 in conference and 12-3-2 overall. Fike falls to 5-6-1 in the league and 5-8-1 overall.

"We dominated every aspect of the game from start to finish," Coach Will Wiberg said. "This was our best effort of the season." Wiberg also cited the play of Toure Claiborne, Pat Joyner, Ed Norris and John Bolen.

Rose travels to Wilson, facing Hunt in Fleming Stadium Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Tigers Out To Avenge Loss To Pack

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Clemson remembers, but how could the Tigers forget?

After all, a 27-3 defeat isn't easily erased from the memory.

Since that loss to North Carolina State last year, the Tigers are undefeated in 11 outings, have captured one Atlantic Coast Conference title and appear headed to another.

But none of the victories came against N.C. State. Undefeated and seventh-ranked Clemson hopes to change that Saturday, but Coach Danny Ford says revenge isn't on his mind, and neither is using last year's loss as a prod to get the Tigers ready.

"I have a hard time getting them ready from one Saturday to the next," Ford said. "I dang sure ain't going back a whole year."

The Tigers have struggled their last two victories, and last week some of their fans booed them in a 17-10 victory over Duke. After the game, Ford said he'd have booed too if he was a fan.

But he backed off that this week, saying perhaps he, the fans and the media have been too critical and expected too much. After all, he said, the Tigers are 6-0.

"We'll take the ugly win. This week we'll take one so ugly it'll scare you — like Halloween," Ford said. "After 27-3 last year, we'll take a jump-off-sides, penalized one-point victory."

Going into Saturday's contest, which begins at 1 p.m. at Memorial Stadium, Clemson leads the league by one game with a 3-0 record. N.C. State is 2-4 and 2-2 after a 17-14 loss to North Carolina last week.

"We have to try to get the Carolina game out of our mind and think ahead to Clemson," linebacker Mark Smith said. "They're going to be gunning for us because of last year's game."

Regulars Return Sunday

By BARRY WILNER

AP Sports Writer

The NFL regulars are back. Even Jim McMahon.

Eleven days after the 24-day strike ended, the NFL can forget about replacement games and go on with the real thing. Ten months after shoulder surgery, McMahon is ready to return to quarterback the Chicago Bears.

McMahon's right shoulder problems have kept him out of the lineup since the 12th game of last season.

When he has started, Chicago has won its last 23 games.

McMahon won't start Sunday at Tampa — Mike Tomczak, who guided the Bears to a pair of pre-strike victories, gets the nod. But don't be surprised to see No. 9 running things at some time against the Buccaneers.

"I feel ready to play," McMahon said, "and if I do well in Tampa Bay, I'll expect to start the following week."

Since undergoing surgery last December, McMahon has set his sights on the Tampa Bay game for his return. Not even a collision with a "Refrigerator," defensive lineman William Perry, in a basketball game last week got in the way.

"The Fridge hit me when my arm was extended back, and that's what the doctors were worried about," McMahon said. "It hurt at the moment, but it was all right."

The Bears did all right during the strike, winning two of three games. So did the Buccaneers.

Three teams were undefeated during the walkout — San Francisco, which is at New Orleans in a battle for first place in the NFC West; Washington, which plays host to the New York Jets; and San Diego, which is at home to Kansas City.

Also on Sunday, the Super Bowl champion New York Giants, the only winless team in the NFL, tries to brake its slide at home against St. Louis. Atlanta is at Houston; Buffalo at Miami; Cincinnati at Pittsburgh; Dallas at Philadelphia; Green Bay at Detroit; New England at Indianapolis; and Seattle at the Los Angeles Raiders, where Bo Jackson might make his pro football debut.

Monday night's game is the Los Angeles Rams at Cleveland. The Broncos' game at Minnesota will be played Sunday if the seventh game of the World Series isn't necessary. If the Series goes seven, then Denver will play the Vikings Monday night.

McMahon isn't just looking to getting back onto the field. He's thinking about starting.

"I don't think I did anything before I got hurt to lose my starting job," McMahon said. "I feel the starting job is mine, but that's not my decision."

"Tomczak has played well, but I don't feel I should be demoted. Mike is playing better, and he's going to get better. But I can do things on the field that he hasn't gotten to yet."

The Buccaneers are expecting to see McMahon on Sunday.

"They're certainly not activating him to let him watch from the sidelines," Buccaneers Coach Ray Perkins said. "I've always felt in the past that McMahon could make a difference in a game. He has always been a player who can come in and make something happen."

"The guy loves to play football," Tampa Bay defensive end John Cannon said. "He wants to take charge. It's typical of their whole team. You've got to admire that."

Roanoke Wins NE Title; Rose Captures Big East

EDENTON — Roanoke High School's Nancy Johnson defeated teammate Robbie Harris to win the Northeastern Conference singles tennis championship Thursday.

The sweep of the semifinals by Roanoke insured the Lady Redskins of the team title also. Roanoke finished with 32 points while Roanoke Rapids had 19, Plymouth had 6, Edenton 3, Northampton East 2 and Williamston failed to score.

Roanoke and Roanoke Rapids had tied for the regular season title, each beating the other in dual meets.

Harris downed Roanoke Rapids' Jen Weathers, 6-1, 6-0, to advance to the finals, while Johnson took Missy King of Roanoke Rapids, 4-6, 6-1, 6-0.

Then, in the finals, Johnson beat Harris, 6-3, 7-6 (7-0).

The doubles championship was won by Plymouth's Heavner and Bragg, downing Edenton's Elliott and Hornthall, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Roanoke will participate in the 1-A/2-A regionals on Wednesday at Roanoke Rapids.

Rose 6
Fike 3

Rose defeated Wilson Fike, 6-3, to finish the year undefeated and wrap up the Big East girl's tennis title Thursday.

Rose, 15-0 overall and 14-0 in the Big East, will send its top six players to regional play next week in Wilson.

Gina Parrott and Nicole Maxon finished the regular season undefeated in singles and also unbeaten as a doubles' team.

Summary:

Wendy Simpson (R) d. Janet Poythress 6-2, 6-2

Gina Parrott (R) d. Hope Lamm 6-3, 7-6 (7-3)

Nicole Maxon (R) d. Anna Sarratt 6-2, 6-2

Heather Beans (F) d. Kathryn Taft 6-2, 6-1

Cathy Curliin (F) d. Kathy Park 6-2, 6-4

Cammy Smith (R) d. Shari Parker 6-2, 6-4

Poythress-Lamm (F) d. Simpson-Taft 9-8 (7-5)

Parrott-Maxon (R) d. Sarratt-Beans 8-1

Park-Smith (R) d. Parker-Margaret Lamm 8-3

Rose, Conley JVs Take Wins; North Pitt Bows

BETHEL — Ny Patterson intercepted a pass and returned it 47 yards for the go-ahead score as South Lenoir came from behind to defeat North Pitt, 18-12, in JV football action Thursday.

North Pitt went ahead in the third quarter on a two-yard run by Michael Tyson. The Panthers expanded their advantage to 12-0 when William Crumble went in from four yards out.

South Lenoir came back to tie the game with a pair of scores in the final period. Patterson got the first one on a 16-yard run. Ronnie Isler got the second score on a three-yard run.

Patterson then put the Falcons ahead with his interception return with 1:03 remaining in the game.

North Pitt falls to 0-7 overall and 0-4 in the Eastern Plains Conference.

The Panthers return to action Thursday at C.B. Aycock.

Rose 25
Fike 0

Rose High School's junior varsity football team rolled to a 25-0 win over Wilson Fike Thursday night.

Rose scored twice each in the first and second periods of the game to run up the total, then coasted through the final half.

Walter Gatlin started things with an 85-yard kickoff return for the opening score. Later in the period, Maurice Hines broke away for a 30-yard scoring run.

In the second period, Dwayne Wiggins scored from the one to up the lead to 18-0. The scoring was closed out when Terrance Miles blocked a Fike punt and Harold Little recovered in the end zone. Ty Fickling kicked the point after for the final 25-0 margin.

Rose is now 6-2 and will play at Wilson Hunt on Thursday.

Rose..... 12 13 0 0-25

Conley 24
Greene Central..... 6

HOLLYWOOD — Fred Streeter had 121 yards rushing to lead D.H. Conley's JV football team to a 24-6 win over Greene Central Thursday.

Conley jumped on top in the first quarter on a 60-yard run by Streeter. The point after failed and Conley led 6-0.

The Vikings made it 14-0 later in the opening period as Anthony Artis hit Stuart Roach on a 50-yard pass play. Streeter then ran in the two-point conversion.

Conley's final score in the first quarter came when Junior Farrow tackled a Greene Central ballcarrier in the end zone for a safety to make it 16-0.

Remarto Rogers had the Vikings' final score when he recovered a Greene Central fumble in the end zone for the score. Artis then hit Rogers for the two-point conversion.

The Vikings improve to 8-0 and return to action Thursday at Washington.

Greene Central..... 0 0 0 6-6
D.H. Conley..... 16 0 8 0-24

A.G. Cox Rolls Past Farmville

FARMVILLE — A.G. Cox defeated Farmville Middle School, 20-12, in junior high football action Thursday.

Anthony Barrett opened up the scoring with a three-yard run. Barrett then added another touchdown, this time returning a punt 65 yards. He then ran in the two-point conversion.

Derrick Cox had the final touchdown on a 10-yard pass from Chris Claybrook.

Cox improves to 4-1 and plays Woodington Thursday at home.

Wellcome-Bethel, led by two touchdowns from Reggie Cox, defeated Frink, 18-0, in junior high football action Thursday.

Cox had two touchdown runs, the first from 26 yards out and the second from 20 yards. Derrick Brown added a 15-yard touchdown run.

Wellcome-Bethel improves to 5-0 and returns to action Thursday at Savannah.

E.B. Aycock Junior High School's ninth grade football team suffered its first loss Thursday as Wilson Fike eased to an 18-12 victory.

Aycock opened the scoring with Anthony Love scoring on a 13-yard run for a 6-0 lead.

Fike came back with scores in the second and third period to move out 12-6.

Aycock then scored on a 76-yard pass from Love to Grant Harmon to tie it at 12-12. But Fike scored in the final quarter to pull out the win.

Aycock is now 4-1 and will play at SouthWest Edgecombe on Wednesday.

AYDEN — Ayden-Grifton Middle School football team rolled up a 30-8 win over Snow Hill Thursday behind a 159-yard effort by William Hill.

Hill, who scored two touchdowns, got the yardage on just 12 carries.

Snow Hill scored first in the opening quarter on its first drive.

But Tony Edwards scored on a 10-yard run to tie it up and then Orlando Peterson scored from the five to give Ayden-Grifton the lead. Hill then scored from the 15 late in the half for a 22-8 halftime lead.

Hill tackled a Snow Hill ball carrier for a safety in the third period, running the lead to 24-8. Then Hill broke away for a 45-yard scoring run in the final quarter to close out the scoring.

Chico Coward, Buddy Mills and Lamont Reddick highlighted the defense for Ayden-Grifton, now 4-1.

Snow Hill falls to 4-2. Ayden-Grifton travels to Frink on Thursday.

Big Week Shakes Up The Panel

Woody Peele

Wow! What a week! By the time the smoke had cleared from last week's pickin's, Tom Morris had moved well into the lead in our panel's race and this writer had dashed from fifth to second.

Morris turned in a fine 11-1 record that allowed him to boost his record to 63-19 on the season, and hold a six-game lead over this writer who moved up to second place with a 57-25 mark.

Vickie Spivey held to third place with a 56-26 mark while Tom Baines slipped back into a tie for fourth with Joe Jenkins at 55-27. Don Reuter falls into the basement at 54-28.

This week, however, it appears that just about everyone picked many of the same teams. How much shakeup is likely will probably depend on who gets hot come Saturday.

Our high school picks last week turned in a perfect 8-0 which brings us to 43-16 on the year.

The panel will pick the Ayden-Grifton-Farmville Central game, so we'll begin with North Pitt at South Lenoir.

The Panthers are coming off a big, big win in their defeat of Farmville Central last Friday night. They've faced most of the competition in the league and the biggest thing they have to worry about now is looking ahead to their key game next week with Charles B. Aycock. South Lenoir is the only team at season's start that didn't seem to figure in the league race and they still don't.

North Pitt by a bunch, 34-8.

D.H. Conley travels to Greene Central to seek revenge for their opening loss last year. That started the Vikings on a spiral that ended in a 2-8 season. The Vikes are stronger this year, but performed poorly last week against West Craven. Greene Central is smarting from a conference loss to Ayden-Grifton, and both teams want a win before their final two league games.

This is a tough one to call, but I'll give the Rams the nod, 21-17.

Big 10 Powers Will Meet Pair Of Upstart Contenders

By BILL BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Perennial powers Michigan and Ohio State face a day of reckoning when they meet the upstart contenders in the Big Ten Saturday.

Indiana, unbeaten in three conference games and ranked 15th nationally, will try to break a 20-year losing streak against Michigan when it plays host to the Wolverines, ranked 20th. Minnesota travels to No. 16 Ohio State, and Illinois is at No. 14 Michigan State in other key games.

Indiana and Michigan State are 3-0 in conference games, while Michigan, Ohio State and Minnesota each are 2-1.

"For us to get back in the race, we've got to beat Indiana on the road," Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler said. "It's going to be a battle. Our defense is going to be tested because this could be the best offensive team we've met this year."

Elsewhere in the top 20 Saturday, it's Colorado at No. 1 Oklahoma; Kansas State at No. 2 Nebraska; No. 3 Miami, Fla., at Cincinnati; Mississippi State at No. 6 Auburn; North Carolina State at No. 7 Clemson; California at No. 8 UCLA; Colgate at No. 9 Syracuse; Southern California at No. 10 Notre Dame; Kentucky at No. 12 Georgia; No. 13 Tennessee at Georgia Tech; and No. 19 Oklahoma State at Missouri.

Michigan whipped Iowa 37-10 last week and held the Hawkeyes to minus-13 yards rushing while allowing 362 yards passing. Michigan quarterback Demetrius Brown, who threw seven interceptions in a loss to Michigan State, came back against Iowa to complete 14 of 19 passes for three touchdowns with no interceptions.

"He's an amazingly resilient player," Schembechler said of Brown. "We told him to make sure he checked underneath coverage and not go upfield all the time."

Indiana edged Minnesota 18-17 on Saturday, a week after a 31-10 upset of Ohio State.

"Not to take anything away from Minnesota, we did not play as well as we did against Ohio State," Indiana Coach Bill Mallory said. "We didn't have a letdown, we went in and played hard. But we made mistakes. We were not consistent. We might have been lucky."

"We can't continue winning if we don't play sounder."

Minnesota lost to Indiana when Chip Lohmiller missed a 44-yard field goal with 1:32 left.

"Minnesota is one point away from an undefeated season and two points away from being undefeated and untied," Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce said. "They have great execution on offense and a sound defense. They are a complete team."

Michigan State tailback Lorenzo White became the second runner in Big Ten history, behind Archie Griffin, to pass 4,000 yards when he gained 187 last week against Northwestern. But the Spartans also are taking pride in their solid rushing defense.

Michigan State ranks seventh nationally, first in the Big Ten, in rushing defense, yielding 83.8 yards a game. In their three conference games, the Spartans have permitted an average of only 42.7 yards rushing to Iowa, Michigan and Northwestern.

The team that has led the Big Ten in total defense has won or shared the conference championship in 11 of the last 15 years, and the scoring-defense leader has won or shared the title in 12 of the last 15.

"We've got a lot of pride in our defense," Michigan State defensive tackle Travis Davis said. "We've played against a lot of All-Americans and handled them. Our defense is where we want it."

But regardless of this week's Big Ten outcome, the conference race could be just as cloudy as it is now.

"It feels good," Michigan State Coach George Perles of being 3-0 in Big Ten play. But, he warned, "Ohio State and Michigan are only one game behind us and that can be settled on any weekend. If we falter, we can be even again."

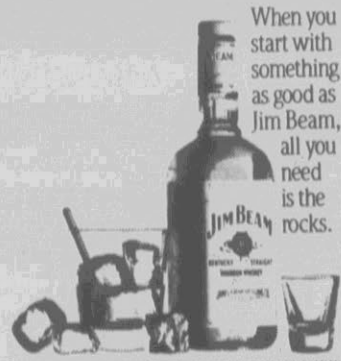

Oklahoma and Nebraska are expected to continue to roll to their Nov. 21 Big Eight showdown.

Kansas State, 0-6 and a 59-10 loser to Oklahoma last week, faces Nebraska this time.

Nebraska holds a 59-10-2 advantage in the series, has won 18 straight from the Wildcats and has outscored them 48-9 per game in this decade.

The Tough Part Comes Now For The Cardinals

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Now comes the tough part for the St. Louis Cardinals, who are one victory away from winning the World Series.

The problem is they must win that game at the Metrodome in Minneapolis, not the friendliest place in baseball for visiting teams. They must solve the problems of the opaque roof, the vinyl wall, the sea of homer hankies, the din of shrill whistles.

The proprietors have opened this building for baseball 85 times this season and the home-standing Twins have won 60 of those games, including two in the playoffs and two more in the World Series. This may be the first time in Series history that a team trailing 3-2 figures it has an advantage because of the mysteries of its home stadium.

The Cardinals got an up close and personal dose of the Dome when the Series began with Minnesota winning the most lopsided first two games in 50 years, outscoring St. Louis 18-5. Will going back a second time help narrow the gap for St. Louis?

"I don't know," Manager Whitey

Herzog said. "I've never been there a second time."

What he does know is that his team, designed to play at spacious Busch Stadium, capitalized on the ballpark for three nights to take the lead in the Series. The Cards ran the Twins silly, stealing seven bases, five of them coming Thursday night to tie an 80-year-old record in a 4-2 victory.

"Speed don't mean much up in the Dome," Herzog said. "They hit home runs there. We could steal six bases and still lose 5-4. It's like when I was at Kansas City and we played Boston. They would beat us up at Fenway but we'd come home and neutralize their power and beat them at Kansas City."

It was much the same for the muscular Twins trying to reach the distant fences in St. Louis.

"There's a lot of room to use our speed on defense here," Herzog said. "We can equalize their opposite field power here."

And in the Dome?

"We're playing at 3 o'clock in the afternoon against a goose white roof. Just the fact that it's a World Series, whether it's us or them, I just hope a game isn't decided by the roof. But it easily could be."

The Dome is different, a little cozier, a lot noisier, an intimidating place for visitors unaccustomed to its quirks. It invites assaults by slugging clubs like the Twins and laughs off the roadrunner approach of speed teams like St. Louis.

That was why the Cardinals felt they had to win the middle three games of this Series at home and then hope they could figure out a way to finesse a win in Minnesota. They failed in that effort the first time through. Now they have two more chances.

"What you saw in the Metrodome was our offense," the Twins' Roy Smalley said. "They can't slug with us and we can't slap with them."

"Whitey likes to play in a park where his style of baseball fits," said Minnesota's Kent Hrbek. "If he wants to choose the park, let's go to one in the middle of Wyoming and play there."

Failing that, the Twins will hope that the pattern of home team wins in this Series holds for two more games. That would be a first because never in 83 previous World Series has the home team won every game.

Herzog will try to prevent that from happening by pitching John Tudor on Saturday. It was Tudor, remember, who got the Cardinals back in business by winning Game 3. He is the ace of Herzog's staff, the guy whose 1-0 shutout of San Francisco pushed the National League playoffs to a seventh game.

Is there any other pitcher Herzog would prefer to have going? "Yeah," he said, "I might prefer Koufax."

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball carried on its own fire prevention program near the end of the 1987 season, working in conjunction with the U.S. Forestry Service.

Fans attending games on various dates at all 26 big league stadiums received a set of player cards which featured a picture of a star performer with Smokey the Bear.

The back of the cards also carried fire prevention tips from the government organization.

Smith's hard-hit grounder tipped off the glove of second baseman Steve Lombardozzi, who was playing in.

"We knew coming in that this is the way they played," Hrbek said. "They slap the ball around, steal a base and hit a sacrifice fly and have a run. Our

Billy And Lou Appear, George Doesn't

NEW YORK (AP) — General Manager Lou Piniella was there and so was Manager Billy Martin, but New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner — who orchestrated the team's latest personnel shuffle — was conspicuous by his absence.

Steinbrenner, who last summer said hiring Piniella to guide the New York Yankees without any managerial experience was a mistake, had nothing to say Thursday when his baseball braintrust met the media for the first time.

They came to Yankee Stadium to find out why Piniella, who has no experience as a general manager, was given the job.

And they never learned why Martin, who had been fired in four previous stints as manager, was back for a fifth.

Steinbrenner, rarely at a loss for words, stayed upstairs in his office and sent word that he was "not available" for questioning.

Piniella, looking out of place in a business suit, said that Steinbrenner informed him of the changes on Monday, after saying the previous week that he "would have a surprise" for Piniella.

Shock was more like it.

"As a player, I never thought I would manage. I never dreamed I would be a general manager," Piniella said. "My next step is being owner."

Piniella did not immediately accept Steinbrenner's offer for his latest position. First he called his wife. Then he called his mother. "And I don't call my mom that much," he said. "They both both felt it was a positive thing to do."

Steinbrenner, who did not speak with Piniella during most of August after the manager failed to be in his hotel room to receive a phone call from the owner, has said that Piniella was "the worst judge of talent" in the organization.

"I don't think he really meant that," Piniella said Thursday. "I think he meant that the field managers are too close to the action and that you get a better perspective from upstairs."

Piniella said he will be in charge of the Yankees' player moves.

"I'm going to get input from Billy. He's the one who has the best impulse of the team. He's the one in the clubhouse every day. He's the one on the road with them."

In the past, Yankees general managers have been a buffer between the manager and the owner. Serving as manager for Steinbrenner is never easy.

"It's like a five-hundred pound weight," said Martin, who has been an advisor to Steinbrenner since Piniella replaced him two years ago.

Piniella had said during the second half of the season that Martin had been backstabbing him with Steinbrenner. But on Thursday, the Yankees emphasized the "unity" of their new management team.

Both Martin and Piniella wore gray pinstripe suits. Both wore red neckties. They were not made available for individual interviews. All questioning was done to the pair.

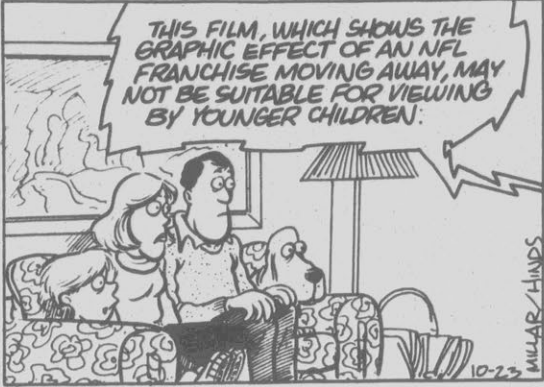

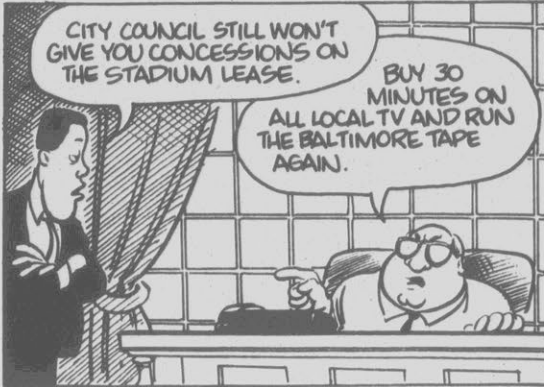

Piniella's response to several questions was: "It's just like Billy said."

"I'm not looking at the past," Piniella said. "I'm really not. I'm only looking at the present and the future. You can only learn from the past. You can't do anything about it."

"Nobody's gonna drive a wedge between Lou and me," Martin said.

Martin led the Yankees to the American League pennant in 1976 and the World Series title in 1977, but in his last three tours the Yankees finished fourth, third and second. Each time he returned, turmoil followed.

Cards Took Advantage Of Playing In Home Park

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals, having showcased their speed with a record-tying five stolen bases, wish they could play the remainder of the World Series at home.

"I think the big difference was our ballpark," first baseman Dan Driessen said following a 4-2 victory Thursday night over the Minnesota Twins that left the Cardinals a game short of their 10th World Series title.

"It's a big park. Pitchers can become intimidated by our style."

Second baseman Tommy Herr described a decisive sixth inning, during which St. Louis scored three runs, as typical Cardinals baseball.

"We did what we have to do. If we're running, we have to get people on base to make it work," Herr said. "We're a tough team to stop once that happens. It makes it tough on pitchers when we're running with abandon."

on base, there's no way you can defend our ballpark."

Once again, Herr said Minnesota's three pitchers, beginning with loser Bert Blyleven, were the type against whom the Cardinals' speed is the most effective.

"They're big, tall, high-kicking right-handers," Herr said. "Vince was just running when he wanted to. It's pretty tough to stop him once he gets rolling."

Herr also said that St. Louis is apt to be a different and much more confident team when it returns to the Metrodome in Minneapolis for Game 6 on Saturday than it was while losing Games 1 and 2.

"The scenario is different now. We've played two games there," he said. "Before, we felt we could beat them; we just didn't know how. But I'm glad we have to win only one game instead of two."

Coleman's stolen bases left him only one theft short of former Cardinal Lou Brock's record of seven in the 1967 World Series.

"I was aware of the record five years ago. It would be an accomplishment that I would cherish," Coleman said. "It would give me a chance to be in the company of a Hall of Famer. It would be the climax to a great year."

Tennessee To Help NCAA

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The University of Tennessee, intent on "getting this matter behind us," will cooperate with a new NCAA probe into an alleged cover-up within its football program, the school's athletic director says.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association on Thursday said that at the university's request, it will investigate published reports of a coverup and will extend the Volunteers' probation, which was set to end Oct. 9, indefinitely until the new probe is finished.

That NCAA probation stemmed from reports that Tennessee athletes received improper favors from school boosters, including use of cars and credit cards. In that matter, the university conducted its own probe into alleged misconduct and turned over its findings to the NCAA.

November's issue of Sport magazine, however, reported that the university intentionally stifled players' statements that would have indicated NCAA rules violations.

Coach Johnny Majors said Thursday that he would have no comment on the extended probation and the NCAA investigation.

Athletic Director Doug Dickey said school officials will provide the NCAA with any information it needs.

"We have met with representatives of the NCAA and have given them all the information we have available regarding additional allegations that were presented in the Sport magazine article," Dickey said in a statement.

"Since we have no allegations against any current members of the 1987-88 University of Tennessee ... teams, we are very interested in getting this matter behind us and continuing with our program," he said.

A release Thursday from the NCAA's communications department said that association staff has "met with Tennessee officials and, at the university's request, the NCAA will conduct its own independent inquiry."

The NCAA would not say how long the probe will take and would comment no further.

Sport reported that some football players admitted getting up to $2,000 a year from selling their complimentary game tickets, some with the help of assistant coaches.

It quoted Reggie White, a Tennessee defensive lineman from 1980 to 1983, as saying he sold his tickets and then lied about it on a signed affidavit for the university's investigating panel.

The magazine quoted White, now with the Philadelphia Eagles, as saying he later told Majors he lied but was told by the coach to "stick by your affidavit."

Majors has denied that he told White to lie.

Sport also said Willie Gault, a former Tennessee player now with the Chicago Bears, had a contract with Puma and sold the company's shoes from his dormitory room, in violation of NCAA rules.

The article said "a climate of casual rules violations existed at Tennessee for years."

Reid Winning The Money But Not The Tournaments

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Mike Reid is not overly concerned with his unusual position on the PGA Tour: He's collected more than $1 million in career earnings without winning a tournament.

"It seems like that's all anybody wants to ask me about," Reid said Thursday after an 8-under-par 64 had provided him with the lead in the uncompleted first round of the $600,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

Ten players were stranded by darkness on the new TPC course at Star Pass and were unable to complete their rounds. They were scheduled to return at daylight today to finish first-round play. None appeared to have any chance of overtaking Reid.

"I just keep plugging along. Someday it's going to happen," said Reid, who led through three rounds in the Westchester Classic then faded to fourth with a poor last round earlier this season.

"It's not so terrible," he said. "You have to keep your priorities in order. It isn't an unpleasant life. No one put a gun to your head and forced you to come out here. It's a pretty good life."

"I'm doing the best I can, and I think I ought to just be happy to be able to do that," Reid said.

"Of course, winning is something I'd like to do. It'll happen. In time. Sometime. It'll happen," he said.

He took a step in that direction with the bogey-free effort that included an unusual mastery of the par-5 holes for the short-hitting Reid, who weighs just 150 pounds. He birdied them all.

"I manhandled them," he joked. "I don't usually play the par-5s like that. It was kind of fun."

Reid held a two-shot lead over Dan Forsman, Blaine McCallister and John McComish, all tied at 66.

Fuzzy Zoeller holed out from the fairway for an eagle-2 on his final hole and led the group at 67 that also included Masters champion Larry Mize, Calvin Peete, George Burns, Mark Calcavecchia and David Hobby.

The new course, being played in tournament competition for the first time, was no match for golf's touring pros who took advantage of mild temperatures and gentle desert breezes to make a mockery of par.

About half the field of 159 was under par, but Tom Watson was not among them. He could do no better than 72. U.S. Open champion Scott Simpson was three shots higher at 75.

Reid admits there is added pressure this week because he holds the 30th and last qualifying spot for next week's $2 million Nabisco Championships of Golf.

"I might as well be 35th. There are at least five players who can pass me," Reid said. "I'd really like to qualify for the Nabisco. But it's just something else you have to forget if you hope to play well."

USOC Considers New Fundraisers

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Committee's 85-member executive board will consider anticipated revenues from the sale of gold and silver Olympic coins for 1988 among other fund-raising plans during its three-day meeting.

The committee, which began its session today, was to hear a report on the U.S. Olympic coin bill that is awaiting President Reagan's signature after passing the U.S. House and Senate.

"This could be a financial windfall to the USOC of anywhere from $50 million up," said Mike Moran, director of information for the committee.

He said the proceeds will be earmarked for training of U.S. Olympic athletes.

The sale of the coins in conjunction with the Olympic Games in Los Angeles raised about $70 million, with the money being split between the USOC and the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee.

Moran said Olympic fund-raising activities are progressing well, with a record 39 corporate sponsors now.

An announcement also was expected by Board President Robert H. Helmick on a successor to George D. Miller as executive director of the USOC.

Miller, retired vice commander of the Air Force's Strategic Air Command, resigned Aug. 23 after serving in the post since February 1985.

Harvey Schiller, commissioner of the Southeastern Conference, said Thursday he has had talks with the USOC about the position.

But Schiller, 47, declined comment on whether he expected to be offered the post.

"We've have had some discussions," Schiller said in a telephone interview from Birmingham, Ala. "My understanding is that the committee will ... make a recommendation to the executive board."

Soviet Generals Die In Crash

MOSCOW (AP) — Five top Soviet army generals were killed in an apparent helicopter crash, it was reported today.

Red Star, the Defense Ministry newspaper, said the five officers and two helicopter crewmen died in an air crash Monday.

The report did not say where the crash occurred, but a Western diplomatic source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said he had information about the incident that "ruled out Afghanistan," where the Soviet military has been fighting Afghan guerrillas for nearly eight years. The newspaper gave no further details, such as the type of aircraft or whether it was shot down.

It could be deduced that the army generals were aboard a helicopter because the obituaries of two junior officers, one a helicopter pilot and the other his technician, were published along with those of the generals.

Red Star carried obituaries on Col. Gen. Vladimir P. Shutov, most recently listed as deputy chief of a main directorate of the military general staff, headquartered in Moscow; and Lt. Gen. Kiril N. Trofimov, deputy chief of communications of the Soviet armed forces.

Obituaries also were provided on Lt. Gen. Yuri I. Ryabinin, identified as serving in "responsible positions on the general staff;" Maj. Gen. Erilen V. Porfiriev, chief of staff of the southern group of the armies; and Maj. Gen. Vladimir S. Bardashevski, who "recently occupied a responsible position on the general staff of the Soviet armed forces."

Porfiriev's position with the southern group suggested the crash occurred in the southeast border region where the Soviet Union and Afghanistan meet, but the Soviet military practically never identifies which of its units are fighting in the neighboring country.

The diplomatic source said he had received recent information indicating the crash could have occurred in the southern region or in eastern Europe. Asked how he knew Afghanistan was not involved, the source, who has access to various Western intelligence reports, said: "I can't tell you that."

The pilot was identified by the newspaper as Capt. Alexei N. Gurenkov and the technician as senior Lt. Alexander I. Goncharov.

Kuwait Deploys Missiles

KUWAIT (AP) — Kuwait has deployed rockets north of its main oil terminals to guard against missile attacks by Iran, officials said today, and the United States has deployed dolphins to hunt for mines in the Persian Gulf.

An official of the state-owned Kuwait Oil Tanker Co., who spoke on condition of anonymity, said U.S.-made Hawk surface-to-air missiles were deployed on Faylakah Island beginning Thursday. He also said the Silksworm missile that struck Kuwait's offshore supertanker oil terminal Thursday caused only slight damage.

President Saddam Hussein of Iraq today telephoned Kuwait's Emir and "assured him of Iraq's firm solidarity with Kuwait," the official Iraqi News Agency reported.

The agency, monitored in Cyprus, said Hussein denounced Iran's aggression against Kuwait to Sheik Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah. Iran has attacked Kuwaiti targets because it says the emirate supports Iraq, Iran's enemy in the 7-year-old Persian Gulf war.

In Washington, Pentagon officials said late Thursday that the U.S. Navy has dispatched five trained dolphins to the gulf to assist American forces there in hunting for mines.

"The dolphins have been deployed to the Middle East Force at the request of the commander ... to provide an underwater surveillance and detection capability. Further details are classified," said one official, who commented on condition of anonymity.

Iran's ambassador to China, meanwhile, reiterated that Iran captured its Chinese-made Silksworm missiles from Iraq and that they have nothing to do with China.

Iran has deployed the medium-range Silksworms on the Faw Peninsula, about 50 miles from the Kuwaiti terminal. Iran occupies the peninsula, which is in southern Iraq.

Faylakah Island, 25 miles north of the Sea Island oil terminal, is directly in the path of missiles fired from Faw toward Kuwait's oil terminal area of al-Ahmedi.

Thursday's attack was condemned by Arab leaders, some of whom accused Iran of trying to draw them and the United States into the war.

"Hawk missiles are now in operation" at Faylakah, the Kuwait official said. He said the missiles were deployed from other sites in Kuwait.

The missiles are designed to shoot down aircraft, but the official said they could also bring down the slow-moving Silksworms.

Defense Minister Sheik Salem al-Sabah told the Kuwaiti News Agency Thursday that the missile fired Thursday came from the Faw Peninsula and that Kuwait would adopt "measures to deal with this type of missile."

RUNAWAY AIRPLANE — Douglas Youngs of Star Lake, N.Y., stands beneath his vintage 1946 Aronica airplane, which came to rest in a tree top after taking off — without a pilot — from a private airstrip near Sackets Harbor, 65 miles away to the southwest. The plane had been missing since Monday until it was spotted Thursday. (AP Laserphoto)

Soldier Killed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian troops searched houses and rounded up about 20 men in a residential district of Moslem west Beirut before dawn today, hours after gunmen shot and killed a Syrian soldier and wounded another, police said.

Two rival leftist militia officials also were killed, and a Palestinian businessman was kidnapped in the area over the last two days, police reported.

In another development, U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy was in Moslem west Beirut today to brief acting Prime Minister Salim Hoss and other Lebanese officials on Secretary of State George P. Shultz's recent Middle East tour, a U.S. diplomat said. No further details were available.

The shooting of the Syrian soldier was the second reported fatality in attacks against the Syrian peacekeeping force deployed in west Beirut in February. Police say the resurgence of violence in the capital's Moslem sector is aimed at discrediting Syria's law-enforcing effort.

Police said unidentified gunmen in a car opened fire from Soviet-made AK-47 assault rifles at three Syrian soldiers in west Beirut's Sakiet al-Janzeer district Thursday night, killing a private and wounding another.

Syrian soldiers cordoned off the mainly Sunni Moslem Ras Beirut district, launched a series of house raids and rounded up "about 20 men" for interrogation about possible involvement in the shooting, said a police spokesman who spoke on condition of anonymity.

U.S. Drops Plans To Increase High-Tech Equipment To China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is dropping plans to increase the flow of American high-tech equipment to China to protest that country's sale of anti-ship missiles to Iran, the Reagan administration says.

The decision was announced Thursday after the second devastating attack on an oil target in the Persian Gulf by a missile identified by the State Department as a Chinese built, anti-ship Silksworm fired by Iran.

State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said that in light of the gulf situation, the United States has halted a decade-old process of lifting restrictions on high tech products sought by the Chinese.

They will keep getting equipment already approved for sale, but plans to approve new items have been canceled, she said. The move was not designed to hurt the Chinese economy, but to send China a signal of U.S. displeasure with the missile sales.

It also reflected U.S. frustration after months of quiet diplomacy that failed to stir the Chinese to stop selling the weapons to Iran, said U.S. officials, speaking only on condition of anonymity.

China has denied sending the missiles to Iran, but the U.S. officials insisted the sales not only took place but are continuing.

In a related development, Mrs. Oakley announced that the Reagan administration favors the sale of a limited number of sophisticated U.S. Stinger anti-aircraft missiles to Bahrain, an oil producing gulf state.

The administration is required to get congressional approval for arms sales over $14 million, and the Stinger package would be far below that. Given the sensitivity of the sale, however, Congress will be consulted anyway, Mrs. Oakley said.

Congress traditionally has been jittery about selling sophisticated weapons to Middle East countries out of fear the arms could be used in attacks against Israel. Mrs. Oakley said, however, that Bahrain is particularly in need of such weapons and that safeguards would be imposed to ensure use of the weapons as intended.

The United States has been beseeching China since the beginning of the year not to sell Silksworms to Iran because the weapon, with its 60-mile range, is extremely effective against shipping targets in the Persian Gulf.

Land Mine Kills Four

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Four Indian soldiers were killed today when an army truck hit a land mine near the eastern city of Batticaloa, police said.

Shops in Batticaloa were shuttered and people stayed off the streets after militant Tamils called for a general strike to protest the presence of the Indian peacekeeping force, residents said.

Six other Indian soldiers were injured in the blast in Kallady, just south of Batticaloa, said a Sri Lankan official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

He said the mine appeared to be the work of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, the main Tamil rebel group. Many of the Tigers are currently besieged by about 6,000 Indian troops in the northern city of Jaffna.

The Tamils, who make up 18 percent of Sri Lanka's 16 million people, say they are discriminated against by the Sinhalese, who are 75 percent of the population and control the government.

Indian troops attacked the guerrillas in Jaffna when the rebels defied a peace accord signed by Sri Lanka and India that would have stopped the civil war and given the rebels some autonomy in northern and eastern Sri Lanka.

Cars Fail Crash Safety Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly half of the 38 cars in the government's 35 mph crash test program for 1987 models failed to protect occupants against likely fatal head injuries, according to test results.
 The Transportation Department released the results of the final series of tests Thursday and suggested the information could be used to compare vehicles of similar size for crash protection.
 The cars were crashed head-on into a barrier at 35 mph, and the severity of injury to front-seat occupants ranged widely among the 38 models tested. The degree of injury measured on test dummies equipped with electronic monitors was seven times greater in some vehicles as in others.

 According to the test results, either the driver or front-seat passenger in 18 of the 38 vehicles tests received an impact to the head that was severe enough to likely have caused death or extremely serious injury. Small trucks and vans provided as a group the poorest protection, with eight of the 12 crashes in that category causing fatal injuries to at least one occupant.

 The tests are conducted by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration over a number of months. Some of the results had been made public previously. The agency announced the results of the final eight tests Thursday.
 The degree of injury to the head is measured numerically, with the higher number reflecting the greater level of injury.

Former Soviet Dancer Stars On PBS Talk-Dance Program

NEW YORK (AP) — Mikhail Baryshnikov, now an American citizen, stars on PBS tonight in an unusual talk-and-dance piece, "David Gordon's Made in the USA."

The hour-long program kicks off the new season of "Great Performances" on PBS.

The three dances were choreographed by New Yorker David Gordon. The first is "Valda and Misha," a talk-dance duet for Baryshnikov, whose nickname is Misha, and Valda Setterfield, an English dancer who is a member of Gordon's eight-person contemporary dance troupe.

Baryshnikov defected from the Soviet Union in 1974 and now heads the American Ballet Theater.

"I like the talking-dancing ballet," Baryshnikov told reporters gathered recently at the ABT studios. "It is like a tribute to dance and to this country. We both are immigrants, she in the late 1950s and me in the '70s, for much the same reason, to dance in this country."

"The rhythm we were trying to get was two friends who hadn't seen each other for a long time or two who'd just met and know this is the beginning of a very good friendship. We were sharing life experiences and memories."

The second dance, "TV Nine Lives," has Baryshnikov dancing with four men from the Pick-Up Company with whom he'd never danced before. Dancing and tumbling with a prop chair, they combine aspects of vaudeville and cowboy movies — the music is a collection of Western songs.

"You are very much looking at a minimalist collage," Baryshnikov said. "The patterns are all the time going to something else. The chair is a center point and a counterpoint. For the TV audience, this takes a certain kind of concentration. The jumps and turns are for me a bit monotonous."

The third dance, "Murder," a mimed comedy-melodrama, was commissioned for American Ballet Theater and has been performed by the company on stage. That same cast dances it for TV.

"Murder" was supposed to be a piece in which Misha could play Alec Guinness playing many parts," said Gordon. "The parts were invented so there would be a range of characters for him to do."

Gordon said Baryshnikov, who has acted in the movies "Turning Point," "White Nights" and "Dancers," became intrigued by the talking while dancing.

"He asked if there could be talking (in 'Murder')," Gordon said. "That meant everybody would have to be miked. I thought that was rather difficult. So I made a prologue with words for one person to read. The whole ballet was made before I did the prologue. When I sat down to write this prologue, I began to write a mystery story. I stole it from 'The Bald Soprano.'

"The piece is funny, then it isn't funny," Gordon said. "He really does die a whole lot of times. The possibility of a range of possible emotional reactions is more interesting to me than a single one."

Baryshnikov, 39, says he is feeling the limitations of age and concentrating on new projects, "instead of rehearsing a few hours a day on good old 'Giselle' or 'Swan Lake.' It's a question of priorities. I still can do them and do them well."

"I don't think I have to do 'Giselle' again on stage. I did it for the film."

Baryshnikov said he'd like to do something on MTV. "An especially designed program based on the essence of pop art and pop music. There's a lot of interesting stuff going on."

'Sacrifice'

NEW YORK (AP) — "60 Minutes" newswoman Diane Sawyer says her fame has forced her to sacrifice "things on the margin," but she still finds time for reflection that "organizes my soul."

The kind of thing that goes is "returning all my phone calls, being on time and never canceling an engagement," she said in an interview for the first issue of Working Woman Weekends magazine, which will be on newsstands shortly.

But she said she has taught herself that she must find time to put things aside "so that I can sit by a lake and read poetry."

"I'm really sustained by irrelevant things," she said. "It matters to me enormously just to lie on my back and listen to a whole record or read something that I'm never, ever going to use, like Wallace Stevens."

Actor Wears Ear Plugs For Role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Irish actor Liam Neeson wanted to play his role authentically as the deaf and mute murder defendant in the movie "Suspect." So he wore earplugs.

Neeson, 35, who co-stars with Cher and Dennis Quaid in the suspense thriller, which opened Friday, plays a Vietnam veteran who lost his hearing and speech because of war trauma.

He researched his role at Gallaudet College in Washington, D.C., a school for the hearing impaired.

"There were vets there that had suffered hearing loss in the war," Neeson said. "I was particularly interested in talking to the ones that could hear before their sickness and had knowledge of the hearing world."

The university also designed the special earplugs for Neeson so he could be 80 percent deaf for the movie.

Speakers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Ali McGraw, model Christie Brinkley, singer Olivia Newton-John and actor Rob Lowe were among the Malibu residents speaking out against a sewage system proposed for the wealthy beach community.

Bennett To Undergo Tests

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Tony Bennett has been ordered to undergo medical tests to determine whether he could have transmitted genital herpes to a woman whose $95 million lawsuit claims he infected her in 1985.

Bennett, 60, said in court papers that his doctor found him herpes-free after Linda Feldman, a 24-year-old cellist, sued him in November.

He countersued for $100 million, saying she "disgraced and discredited" him and damaged his career.

Ms. Feldman said in court papers that after she found she was infected during their eight-month affair.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY Oct. 24
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): If a newcomer comes into your life, be prepared to listen to new ideas, but reject those which you don't feel are plausible or desirable.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): See some old friends today during your spare time, but don't neglect your urgent duties. Try to be more efficient in your routines.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Be helpful and affectionate to your mate, and watch your budget carefully. Take it easy and get plenty of rest tonight.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Handle all of your practical affairs during the day, but reserve the evening for your loved one. Be sure to drive carefully.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Handle civic matters this morning, and the evening will be fine for more intimate matters. Watch your financial situation carefully.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): See an important person who can give you the assistance you need—both monetary and moral—to get a new project in motion.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Try to be pleasing to your mate this morning. Contact an old friend you haven't seen for some time this evening. Drive carefully.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): A usually stubborn associate will see things your way for a change. Tonight is a perfect time for romance with your mate.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): This morning is a fine time for running errands and handling correspondence. Spend the evening socializing with friends.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): You can get much accomplished with an associate for the coming week. Plan a recreation for your close friends and yourself.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Work on getting your home in order this morning. Tonight talk over future plans with your family and entertain some guests.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): You can communicate well with others his morning and will have an easy time getting your desk cleared. Be cautious in making investments.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have a very practical nature, but will be inclined to deliberate entirely too long before reaching any decisions. Your progeny will not be very active physically as a child, but as an adult will be quite lively and will accomplish a great deal.

The bidding:
 East 1♥ South 1♠ West 2♥ North 3♠
 4♥ 4♠ Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♥ Here's your chance to test your knowledge of rubber and duplicate bridge tactics. Before reading on, decide how you would play this hand at both forms of the game.

 The bidding might not be a thing of beauty, but it is typical of what can happen in a competitive auction. (To start with, South's hand is too strong for an overall—we would have preferred a takeout double.) East's jump to four hearts was a good stab and put pressure on South, though why he chose to bid four spades without support from partner, instead of doubling, is a mystery to us.
 Obviously, your only worry is a 4-2 trump split. If you win the ace of hearts and draw trumps, the likely 4-2 trump break will mean that a defender will ruff either the second or third club, and the defenders will be able to take more than enough red-suit tricks to defeat you.
 The solution at rubber bridge is easy. Win the ace of hearts and duck a trump at trick two. The best the defenders can do is to cash their two diamond tricks. Thereafter, you can win any return, draw trumps (using the ace of clubs as an entry, if necessary) and claim the rest of the tricks, because the club suit must run.

 Can you afford this line at duplicate? After all, if the spades are 3-3 you can take all the tricks, so ducking a trump would result in a very poor score if the field is making three overtricks at four spades.
 Ah, that is the question: Will most North-South pairs reach four spades? Obviously not, so at duplicate it is also correct to make the safety play and assure your contract.
