Stocks Still Tumbling On World Markets

By JOYCE M. ROSENBERG
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Stock markets turned bearish today a week after their collapse as prices plunged in Asia and Europe and the Dow Jones industrial average fell 132 points in morning trading.

Stock prices fell in Tokyo and London and the negative sentiment continued in New York, where declining issues outnumbered advancing ones about 14-to-1.

In Washington, President Reagan opened talks with congressional leaders on deficit-reduction measures prompted by last week's stock market panic.

The Dow industrials fell 508 points last Monday, by far the biggest one-day decline in history, as the value of all U.S. stocks fell by more than half a trillion dollars.

The Dow average was down 132.13 points at 1,818.63 at noon EST in the first day of trading after its biggest weekly decline in history. The average lost nearly 300 points last week.

More than 202 million shares changed hands in the first 2½ hours, up from 157.5 million shares in the same period Friday.

Last week's panic was tied to a wide variety of concerns, including worries about the weakness of the dollar and rising foreign interest rates.

Analysts say world stock markets were still trying to find an equilibrium level.

"There is no consensus as to what value is in the stock market. That punctures confidence in a day-to-day sense. Once that breaks down then you have enormous volatility because then you don't have an anchor," Robert Hormats, vice chairman of Goldman Sachs International Corp., said recently.

Also in New York today, interest rates fell and the dollar rebounded from the lows it reached in overseas trading. Analysts suspected central banks had intervened to support the U.S. currency.

On the Tokyo Stock Exchange, the 225-share Nikkei stock average fell 4.7 percent today in its third-worst point decline. The Nikkei average closed down 1,096.22 points at 22,202.56.

Hong Kong's Hang Seng index plunged 33 percent, a one-day record, in the first trading after a four-day suspension. The index fell 1,120.70 to 2,241.69.

Later in London, the Financial Times Index of 100 leading shares was down about 142.2 points to 1,653.0

shortly before the close, or about 7.9 percent.

By comparison, last Monday's decline in the Dow industrials was 22.6 percent. The Dow lost 12.8 percent on Oct. 28, 1929, and 11.7 percent the next day.

Analysts tied the recent plunge to a wide variety of concerns, including worries about the weakness of the dollar and rising foreign interest rates.

Incomes Rise But Spending Declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' personal incomes climbed 0.7 percent in September, the biggest improvement since February, but consumer spending suffered its first setback since January, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said that personal consumption spending dropped by 0.5 percent last month, the first decline since a 1.6 percent plunge in January. Spending had risen 1.7 percent in August.

Consumer spending is being closely watched following the record fall in the stock market last week. Many economists are predicting weak spending in the months ahead because of shaken consumer confidence.

Since consumer spending accounts for two-thirds of overall economic activity, a cutback in this area — if it lasted for several months — could topple the country into another recession.

The September drop in spending was attributed to a cutback in car sales following a big jump the previous month, which had been spurred by incentive programs offered to consumers in an effort to reduce high inventory levels.

Spending for autos and other durable goods shot up at an annual rate of $30.3 billion in August but fell at an annual rate of $14.1 billion in September.

Spending for non-durable goods, items not expected to last at least three years, fell by $4.2 billion in

Local Brokers Put In Weekend Hours

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Last week's roller-coaster stock market caused by panic selling that dropped 508 points from the Dow Jones index Oct. 19 kept most area brokers open Saturday to catch up on paperwork and to reassure clients.

Typical was E.F. Hutton's Greenville office, where Ken Hutcherson said, "We were open late Friday and stayed open Saturday to give folks a chance to visit, call. Our main thing, we wanted to make sure our clients knew what was happening in their individual situations ... trying to service the client. That's the most important thing we can do, reassure them."

And, Hutcherson said, "we expect erratic trading" this week, also. "If the heavy volume continues, we'll probably do the same thing again. It's more for our clients' sake."

Carl Blackwood said Carolina Securities' local office was "open for a little while" Saturday, "to catch up on paperwork and discuss the implications of the past week ... what type of recommendations we should be making for the coming month.

"From the firm's perspective," Blackwood said, "we put 20- to 25-percent of our available cash in the market last week." But, he said, "the market would have to dip to new lows for us to continue to invest at that rate."

On the personal side, Blackwood said, "If you were an investor last week, it's a good market to step back from and see where you stand ... not be quite as ambitious." But, he said, "if new lows come into play, I have available funds to invest."

"To sum it up, I'd be a bottom fisher. History has shown that people who were willing to invest when everybody else is panicking fare extremely well."

"I think bottom stocks continue to be extremely attractive investments three- to six-months out," Blackwood said.

"I think the volume will be substantial this week, but nothing to compare with the previous week. If the market were staying open for a full session, the volume would be close to last week's record-breaker." But, he noted, "the market closes at 2 p.m. today and Tuesday. That will have an impact."

Jim Black said the back-office staff at Wheat First Securities "worked Saturday to catch up." And he said "we'll probably be here later than usual most of the week."

Bryant Kittrell at Interstate Securities said, "We worked Saturday morning and are planning on being open until 8 tonight and 8 Tuesday, night ... more for us to get caught up on our paper work."

Kittrell said he expects the market this week to continue to be "volatile," with lows being tested for "the next two or three days."

Reagan Close-Mouthed As Talks Begin On Cutting Budget Deficit

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, opening deficit-reduction talks with congressional leaders as stock prices retreated sharply, today refused to answer questions about where the two sides might compromise on tax increases and spending cuts.

During a picture-taking session with congressional leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties just before the closed meeting, Reagan told reporters, "I'm going to wait, save anything we've got to say until the meeting starts."

Asked to describe how urgent the talks were, Reagan said, "I'm not commenting."

Reagan last week announced the deficit-reduction talks, long requested by Democrats, in reaction to the stock market crisis.

Stocks today fell sharply in the first hour of trading on the New York Stock Exchange. Prices also fell steeply on the London Stock Exchange following a record drop on the Hong Kong market and the third largest single-day loss in Tokyo.

The president has said everything is on the table in the talks except Social Security. But it was clear that neither he nor the Democrats see the table as piled high with options.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., one of those meeting with the president, said Sunday he didn't think the major entitlement programs beyond Social Security, such as Medicare and pensions, would be part of any package of spending cuts.

While the presidential hopeful offered few hints of what he might support, he said the $23 billion in deficit reduction called for under the Gramm-Rudman law "is not going to make that much of an impact."

"We ought to do more" and it should be a multiyear plan, he said in an interview on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" program.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, the chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, said on the same program he didn't see people favoring other domestic restraints. An across-the-board budget freeze, as suggested by some, might mean layoffs at law enforcement agencies, he said, an unlikely thing for Congress or the White House to support.

Absentee Election Ballots Available

Registered voters in Pitt County who are physically unable to enter the voting place, are ill, disabled or feeble due to age, or will be out of the area during voting hours may sign and mail a written request to the Board of Elections for absentee ballots.

As an alternative, qualified voters may have a near relative (husband, wife, parent, child, brother, sister, grandparent, grandchild or legal guardian) appear at the elections office not later than Tuesday at 5 p.m. and apply for absentee ballots.

Also, "one-stop" absentee ballot voting permits a registered voter in one of the above three categories to appear at the elections office any time during office hours until 5 p.m. Friday, complete the absentee application, receive the ballots and vote while in the elections office.

Registration books for the Nov. 3 election closed Oct. 5. However, voter registration throughout Pitt County is continuous. Anyone registered after Oct. 5 will not be eligible to vote Nov. 3, but will be on the books and eligible to vote in any subsequent election.

Swan Fights Off Helicopter

MOSCOW (AP) — A swan engaged a Soviet helicopter in a "dogfight" over Siberia, forcing the chopper to flee, according to a Soviet press report.

The newspaper Sovetskaya Rossia reported Sunday that a Soviet Mi-2 helicopter was ferrying workers to a landing site somewhere in Siberia when the navigator noticed a large swan flying nearby.

The pilot sought to outmaneuver the bird to avoid a potentially disastrous collision, but the swan copied each turn by the helicopter, then dove at the aircraft's rear rotor when the pilot tried to land his craft.

The helicopter climbed abruptly away from the landing zone and eventually outran the swan, Sovetskaya Rossia said. The helicopter later returned to make a safe landing, the newspaper reported.

The report said specialists suggested the swan was angry about some earlier encounter with a helicopter or perhaps was defending a nearby nest.

Democrat Claims 'Super Tuesday' Successful In Forcing National Issues

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — The executive director of the conservative Democratic Leadership Council told Southern legislators today that the "Super Tuesday" primaries have already had an impact on the 1988 presidential race, by forcing candidates to quickly address matters of interest to the entire nation.

"Super Tuesday is doing its job," Al From said. "It is nationalizing the issues. They aren't just talking to the special interests in Iowa."

"What I see is the Southern primaries serving as a surrogate for the 49 states that aren't Iowa."

From, speaking at the opening session of the three-day Southern Legislative Conference, said the Democrats need a large turnout from "swing" voters if they are to reclaim the presidency next year.

Such voters, he said, account for between 10 percent and 15 percent of the electorate and tend to favor policies which support a strong national defense, keep the budget and inflation under control and avoid raising taxes.

Those voters supported Republicans in the 1986 elections, From said.

The DLC, formed after President Reagan's re-election victory over Democrat Walter Mondale in 1984, is composed of conservative and moderate Democrats who are trying to move the party toward what they view as the mainstream.

"Keeping the country and the economy strong; those are the issues. Those are the key things," From said.

Lawmakers from 16 Southern states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico are meeting in Savannah this week to discuss preparations for Super Tuesday — March 8, when 20 states, including 14 from the South, hold presidential primaries and caucuses.

In a welcoming address to the legislators, Georgia House Speaker Tom Murphy said that Super Tuesday is doing what it was intended to accomplish — giving the South a bigger say in the presidential selection process.

"The candidates are coming to the South; ... they are addressing the issues," Murphy said. "I truly believe when Super Tuesday is over you're going to know who the next president will be."

Court Overturns N.C. DWI Ruling

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal appeals court today rejected a challenge of North Carolina's enhanced sentencing provisions in driving-while-impaired cases.

The ruling by a three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned a decision by U.S. District Judge James C. Fox of Raleigh, who had concluded that the law violated the Constitution by allowing a judge to increase a convicted person's sentence when the charge resulted from an accident in which there was serious injury.

The case involved Peter Jones Field, who was charged with driving while impaired following a Jan. 20, 1984 accident in Raleigh. An alcohol breath test showed a reading that fell under the DWI statute.

Two people who were in the car struck by Field's pickup truck, which ran a stop sign, were injured and required surgery. After Field was convicted, a judge imposed a level-two punishment after finding that serious injury was an aggravating factor in the sentencing on the DWI charge. Such punishment required at least seven days in jail. Field also was given a one-year prison term that was suspended for three years and was placed on supervised probation.

Field argued that the serious injury provision was an element of the crime and not merely a sentencing factor. Therefore, he said, his constitutional right to go before a jury was violated.

Fox agreed that a jury rather than a judge should have been called on to decide whether serious injury resulted from Field's impaired driving. But the unanimous appeals panel reversed him.

"We find nothing ... to convince us that we should invalidate North Carolina's intention that the presence of serious injury as a result of impaired driving be a sentencing factor to be considered by the court," the panel said.

The panel said North Carolina's sentencing plan did not create impermissible presumptions in DWI cases and did not relieve prosecutors from proving guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

"We add that there is no constitutional right to be sentenced by a jury," the panel said.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES

Small grains produce the best yields when planted with a grain drill. Conventional or no-till drills can be used. Drilling is preferred over other planting methods because it puts the seed in at a uniform rate and depth, uses less seed per acre, results in a better stand, and reduces competition from weeds.

Small grains may also be planted by broadcasting. This is usually done with a lime spreader and results in reduced yields as compared to those obtained by drilling. This method has both advantages and disadvantages: it saves time by permitting large acreages to be planted quickly; it requires at least 30 percent more seed per acre; fertilizer must be applied separately; and disking or harrowing is necessary to give some cover to the seed. Stay on the contour to help prevent soil erosion.

Seed on time at the proper rate and depth, depending on the method of planting. Small grains seeded too late often do not yield well. Research and on-farm test results have shown a steady decrease in yields as planting time is delayed. Small grains should be established before a heavy freeze. Small grains planted on time are not damaged severely by excessive low temperatures, but a late planted crop may be permanently damaged. If seeding is delayed, the rates should be increased by 15 percent for each two weeks delay. Generally better yields can be expected by seeding within the suggested dates for your area.

Suggested planting dates for small grains in North Carolina's coastal plain are: wheat, Oct. 25-Nov. 10; oats, Oct. 10-30; barley, Oct. 10-30; and rye, Oct. 25-Nov. 15.

OVERBITE

So your child has overbite (sometimes known as "buck teeth"). This malformation in the normal bite structure can alter the development of many things.

For example, your child will have to learn to pronounce sounds, especially those of "s", "f", and "th", in a different way. The manner of swallowing and the placement of the tongue will have to be altered because the upper and lower teeth do not meet properly. Normal chewing will also have to be changed - not only because the front teeth don't mesh, but because the back (chewing) teeth do not mesh the way they should. The longer a person has overbite, the more damage that can result. An overbite can be treated when it is first noted. If the condition is severe enough, very early treatment (age 3 or 4) might be instituted.

However, the normal age to begin treatment of an overbite is normally in the range of 7 to 10. Any delay in treatment might mean that it may be too late to get the best results.

NOTE:
We welcome new patients, both children and adults.

REAL ESTATE FACTS

by: Rudy Schulte

THE EFFECTS OF OVERPRICING!

See if you can guess the answer to the following question:

The one person who thinks a house is worth the most money is the home's present owner.

TRUE FALSE

If you guessed TRUE, you were probably correct. You see, the present owner of a home knows all the benefits of living there, appreciates those benefits, and probably doesn't ever want to sell. Then, when the need arises to sell the house, the owner expects to be well compensated, which usually results in overpricing the home.

Unfortunately for the seller, potential buyers may not agree to pay such an unreasonably high price. Most buyers look at a number of homes before purchasing. They compare shop, considering such things as features and price.

One of the negative effects of overpricing, then, is that it helps buyers to choose another home. They compare several homes with similar features and benefits, then purchase the home which provides the most value for the least money. More clearly stated, "An overpriced home helps to sell the competition".

By researching homes that are "For Sale" now, as well as those which have sold recently, a professional real estate agent can help you arrive at the "right" price, a fair price which buyers are willing to pay for a home like yours.

If you're planning to sell your home soon and would like information on its current value, give us a call at 756-2121 or come by our office located at 2717 S. Memorial Dr.

Demjanjuk Attempts To Rally His Defense

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Nazi war crimes trial of John Demjanjuk resumed today after a two-month break, with the defense seeking to overcome the failure of two of its main witnesses to hold up under scrutiny.

Shortly after beginning, the prosecution challenged the relevancy of the first scheduled defense witness, an Israeli KGB expert.

Presiding Judge Dov Levine said the defense needed to show why testimony from Avraham Shifrin, a Russian-born Jew who runs a center in Jerusalem on activities of the KGB, should be permitted.

"Neither the Soviet Union nor the KGB are on trial here," Levine said. After a brief recess, he said Shifrin's testimony would be allowed, but he said defense questioning would have to stick to areas relevant to Demjanjuk's case.

Shifrin was expected to testify on Soviet methods of forging World War II documents. He is the first of a series of witnesses the defense plans to call in an effort to prove a key piece of prosecution evidence — Demjanjuk's alleged SS identity card — was forged by the Soviet Union.

Demjanjuk, 67, attended the trial despite earlier reports he was suffering from the flu. Dressed in a light blue suit, he talked animatedly with his attorneys.

The Ukrainian-born Demjanjuk, 67, is charged with operating gas chambers at the Treblinka death camp in Nazi-occupied Poland. About 850,000 people were killed at the camp in 1942-43. Demjanjuk could receive the death penalty if convicted.

Demjanjuk, a retired autoworker from a Cleveland suburb, claims he is a victim of mistaken identity. He has testified that during the period in question he was a Nazi prisoner of war at a camp in Chelm, near Treblinka.

Shifrin, who was imprisoned in Soviet labor camps before being permitted to emigrate to Israel, has written a book on conditions in 2,000 Soviet prisons and has testified before the U.S. Senate Intelligence Committee on the subject, Sheftel said.

The witness, who wore a yarmulke, or Jewish skullcap, was expected to be on the stand about a day and a half.

An audience of about 100 people attended today's proceedings. Public interest in the case has waned since its beginning, when 500 people would line up each day to watch the trial.

Other scheduled defense witnesses include Julius Grant, a documents expert from London who uncovered the so-called Adolf Hitler diaries hoax in 1983; William Flinn of Phoenix, the chief documents examiner for the state of Arizona; and Skip Palenik, a Chicago chemist.

The prosecution has produced five Holocaust survivors who identified Demjanjuk as the brutal guard nicknamed "Ivan the Terrible."

Study Shows Animal Milk May Help In Treating Heart Attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists today announced they have used the latest techniques of genetic engineering to get laboratory mice to produce in their milk a human protein that shows promise as a treatment for heart attacks.

While still a few years away from commercial application, the research demonstrates for the first time the feasibility of using animal milk as a relatively inexpensive source for large quantities of some therapeutic human proteins that are now difficult and costly to produce.

The particular substance produced in the experiments by Integrated Genetics, Inc., and the National Institutes of Health is called tissue plasminogen activator, or TPA, a protein found naturally in human blood.

Today's announcement was the first public account of a research team's success in inducing animals to produce a biologically active human protein in their milk by introducing into mice a combination of human and mouse genetic material.

Scientists from the 6-year-old private company and the NIH planned to discuss the development, including plans to duplicate the experiments in larger animals such as goats and cows, at a news conference today.

"We see very few theoretical technical problems" in applying the techniques in larger animals, Integrated Genetics researcher Alan Smith said in an interview. He said the company already is getting together a herd of goats as the next step in the development process.

Although still awaiting Food and Drug Administration approval for general use, TPA has been used for an estimated 4,000 heart attack patients in clinical testing and many physicians have hailed its ability to save the lives of heart attack victims by dissolving clots in their blood.

Dr. Charles Abbottsmith, director of cardiology at Christ Hospital in Cincinnati has referred to TPA as the "penicillin of heart attacks."

TPA now is available in commercial form only from Genentech Inc., of South San Francisco, which uses an expensive synthetic process to produce the drug. The company has received permission to market TPA in France, New Zealand and the Philippines.

In the Integrated Genetics research, scientists fused a mice gene that helps regulate formation of mice milk with a human gene that contains instructions for production of TPA.

The hybrid gene then was injected into newly fertilized mouse eggs which were returned to "foster" mother mice that gave birth.

Royal Reunion

LONDON (AP) — The highly publicized reunion of Prince Charles and Princess Diana at their Highgrove estate lasted less than 24 hours, then the princess drove away in her car toward London, British news reports said today.

The Prince and Princess of Wales arrived separately at their country home in Gloucestershire on Saturday after spending most of the previous five-weeks apart.

Several of London's tabloid newspapers said Diana drove away about 20 hours later in a dark blue Jaguar, accompanied by her personal detective and a lady-in-waiting.

Press Association, the domestic British news agency, said the princess usually leaves Highgrove on Sundays so she can take her two sons, Princes William and Harry, to school on Monday mornings.

The agency said Charles, eldest son and heir of Queen Elizabeth II, remained at Highgrove 100 miles west of London because he has a public engagement Tuesday in South Wales, a short helicopter ride away.

The royal couple will be together in public again next Sunday when they attend a Royal Ballet performance in Berlin.

But the brief reunion was front-page news today in many of the tabloids which have renewed their speculation recently that the 6-year-old royal marriage is in trouble.

"Mystery as Di roars off from Highgrove," said the headline in The Daily Mirror.

Shultz Warns Time Could Run Out On Setting Summit Talks

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Sunday that Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev could "wait too long" before agreeing to another summit meeting, causing the Reagan administration to decide it was too late for a new round of top-level superpower diplomacy.

Shultz made the comment on NBC's "Meet the Press," a day after returning from a Moscow meeting at which Gorbachev unexpectedly balked at setting a date for a summit meeting with President Reagan this fall.

Asked to amplify his comment, Shultz said, "This administration ends in January 1989. And as you get into the heat of the election campaign, it's no time for a Soviet leader to be here."

Responding to charges that the administration has weakened its bargaining position by being too eager for a summit this fall, Shultz noted that Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze — rather than anyone on the U.S. side — had proposed a statement issued here in September that summit dates for this fall would be established during Shultz's trip to Moscow last week.

Shultz also said that Gorbachev brought up the summit question at Friday's Kremlin meeting.

There are differences of opinion among U.S. officials about whether last Friday's surprise developments are a serious complication for another summit meeting or only a temporary delay.

Kenneth Adelman, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, who is among those who believe the delay will be only temporary, said he was told by a senior Soviet Foreign Ministry official during the Moscow mission last week that all work on a Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces (INF) treaty must be completed by Nov. 15, because a summit meeting to sign it would be held shortly thereafter.

Adelman said the official made the comment twice, both times before the climactic Friday meeting of Gorbachev and Shultz. On the basis of what he observed, Adelman said, he still believes Gorbachev is likely to come to Washington for the summit before the end of the year.

National-security-affairs adviser Frank C. Carlucci said on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" that it is "quite clear that an INF treaty is within reach," with final completion likely "within a matter of weeks." Carlucci attended the talks with Gorbachev last week.

If Gorbachev doesn't want to come to the United States to sign it, Carlucci said, "we can sign it somewhere else."

Shultz and Carlucci said Gorbachev's stated objections to setting the date last week for a Washington summit seemed to be connected with his longstanding opposition to Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative anti-missile program. Both said Reagan would not change his stand on the issue.

New Tests Show AIDS May Have Been Around Longer

CHICAGO (AP) — Eighteen years after the puzzling death of a St. Louis teen-ager, doctors have used laboratory evidence to conclude that he had AIDS a decade before the disease was believed to have existed in this country.

Doctors say tests on body fluid and tissue samples taken from the youth in 1969 show with virtual certainty that the AIDS virus was present, the Chicago Tribune reported Sunday.

If so, the disease apparently occurred 10 years before the first cases of AIDS began showing up in New York City.

"There's no question that it's positive," said Dr. Arthur Gottlieb, a colleague of Dr. Robert Garry of Tulane University Medical School, who performed the tests.

However, Gottlieb said testing would be repeated this week to add to the evidence.

The tests were possible because doctors, perplexed by the 15-year-old boy's death saved samples of his body fluid and tissues, hoping new technology would reveal what killed him, the Tribune said.

The results were first presented last month at the 11th International Congress of Lymphology in Vienna, the Tribune said.

According to the report, the samples belonged to a patient identified only as Robert R., who visited doctors in 1968 with symptoms linked to AIDS: a depressed immune system, a series of infections and later, when he died, tumors known as Kaposi's sarcoma.

Kaposi's sarcoma in patients under age 60 is considered a common sign of the deadly disease.

The youth's condition deteriorated quickly, and he died May 16, 1969.

Doctors intrigued by the death included Dr. Marlys Hearst Witte, a professor of surgery at the University of Arizona, and Dr. Memory Elvin-Lewis, a microbiologist at Washington University in St. Louis.

The two took fluid and tissue samples from the dead youth and saved them, hoping to analyze them later, the Tribune said.

Most researchers have theorized that the AIDS virus assumed its present form in Africa and arrived in the United States in the mid-1970s.

Some of the first documented AIDS cases in the United States were among Haitians who settled in Florida.

A book being released this month suggests a promiscuous homosexual airline steward from Montreal may have been responsible for introducing AIDS into North America in the late 1970s, after picking it up in Europe from sexual contacts with Africans.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Higher Note

It was the 98th year for the Greenville tobacco market and it came to an end Thursday on a higher note than for some time.

Kenneth Allen, market sales supervisor, said 33,482,736 pounds of tobacco were sold during he season for an average of $159.56 per hundred pounds. Last year 30,724,868 pounds sold for an average of $155.02 per hundred pounds.

Of importance was the fact that Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. received only 2 percent of this year's sales on the Greenville market. Last year it was 5.3 percent. The average support price this year was $1.435 compared with $1.438 last year.

Allen said he felt farmers were pleased with this year's sales. "Tobacco sold good right up to the last row," he said. The market opened Aug. 5.

First day's sales averaged $138.66 which was $12.81 above the $125.85 opening day average of 1986.

It did seem to be a good sales year for tobacco farmers. For the first time in remembrance things seemed to be settled down on the Eastern Belt markets and farmers could feel assured that they would have a profit for their crops. Demand was good since companies were buying American this year and the danger of a soaring assessment was not hanging over the tobacco farmers' heads.

Weather also cooperated. Although summer 1987 was a dry period, Pitt County was not plagued with the intense drought conditions that handicapped past tobacco crops.

Farmers in this area produced a good quality crop and that was reflected in the prices they received for their product. Now comes the time when costs of producing the crop are weighed against the prices received. We believe and hope most tobacco growers will see a profit this year.

We now appear to have a tobacco sales system that works. There is some stability there and we can hope that it will continue for several years into the future. If the tobacco farmer knows he can expect a reasonable return from his product he or she can continue to farm and the economy of the entire area will benefit.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Paul Hartley's letter in the "Public Forum" Oct. 21 says "Dr. West's administration will not tell as yet how the racial makeup of our schools has been changed by their plans." In the same issue, I read that several candidates for the Board of Education are concerned about teen and pre-teen pregnancies, AIDS education, self esteem of students and drug education. All of this interest and dismay is expressed about a school system that should be one of the best in the state. If our school administration and our school board had exerted courageous and open leadership over the past few years, we could be bragging today, not complaining. We should have visitors from other states flocking to Pitt County to see our model programs.

From all I can learn, Mr. Hartley is right on at least one count. You will get only the information from Dr. West and his staff that he has decided to release. Second, the ordinary parent, student or agency representative will not get direct access to the superintendent. His public appearances, even, are largely limited to "photo opportunities" where no heavy questions are raised.

League of Women Voters and others interested in the health of school children, Dr. West has had a position open for many months for a professional school health coordinator. It's free, by way of a state grant, to my knowledge, it has not been filled, unless in the past few weeks. My opinion is that the position is too risky to fill, unless Dr. West could find a high qualified clone — a "yes man" who would not get into such messy subjects as AIDS, suicide, etc.

The tragic suicide of a fine student in Farmville last year received no response or help or consequence from the administration, though area parents and church sought guidance and help.

NAACP members, don't waste your breath on ethnic "jokes." We have more serious problems on our hands.

William C. Byrd Sr.

To the editor:

I read with much interest your editorial titled "Regional Fair?" on Oct. 19 in which you seemed to endorse the idea of the Pitt County Fair becoming a regional fair for all of Eastern Carolina.

This idea began during the planning of the 1984 fair when we abandoned the old "Pitt County on Parade" slogan and adopted the slogan, "Eastern Carolina's Greatest Regional Exposition." In that year, we also began a marketing and advertising campaign throughout much of northeastern North Carolina and going into areas such as Ahoskie, Windsor, and Hyde and Tyrrell counties, as well as intensifying our advertising in Pitt and surrounding counties. This, plus an emphasis on quality, free attractions and family involvement, resulted in the 1984 fair being the largest by far up until that time. We kept up our commitments toward evolving the fair into a regional fair during 1985 and 1986, despite some unfavorable weather both years. These commitments were continued in 1987 and, with the good weather, the results were very gratifying as fair manager Elvy Forrest emphasized with, by far, the biggest year in our 68-year history.

We have a long way to go, but we are working hard toward this goal. The 1988 fair is already in the planning stages and the dates have been set. We appreciate the fine cooperation from your staff during these past years and I think I speak for the entire Fair Board when I say thanks for your editorial and encouragement.

Louis G. May, secretary

Gorbachev's Move Seen As Miscalculation

MOSCOW — Mikhail Gorbachev's last-minute refusal to set a date for a summit meeting with President Reagan in Washington was a last-ditch tactical move by the Soviet leader to pressure Reagan into limiting his controversial plan to develop the Star Wars antimissile space defense system. But it was also a tactic that could diminish the Kremlin leader's prestige and overall influence on the U.S.-Soviet arms control process.

That is the view of western diplomats in the Soviet capital, who regard the Gorbachev move, made at the end of two days of senior-level U.S.-Soviet talks here, as the Kremlin leader's first serious foreign policy miscalculation during 2½ years in power.

Although Gorbachev told U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz that he still would be prepared to hold a summit meeting this year — as had been agreed upon last month when Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze visited Washington — he apparently miscalculated the disappointment and criticism that his sudden change of the terms of the summit would arouse in the West, some analysts here said.

At a time when Americans and Western Europeans are reexamining the extent to which they can trust the communist-ruled countries of the Soviet Bloc, Gorbachev's unexpected reversal on a major U.S.-Soviet agreement undercut his own long-term goals of buttressing the Soviet Union's reputation as a reliable negotiating partner, some western diplomats said. "What will U.S. senators think when time comes to ratify any arms control treaty?" a diplomat asked.

Most important, Moscow apparently miscalculated the possibility that Reagan would agree to new compromises on his Star Wars program under pressure. U.S. officials already have ruled out the possibility. "If Gorbachev thinks that Reagan will change his position for the chance of having a summit, he's wrong," a U.S. official here said.

A month after the Soviet leadership signed an agreement to set the dates for a summit during Shultz's visit to Moscow, Gorbachev reneged without warning Friday and suddenly added

'At a time when Americans and Western Europeans are re-examining the extent to which they can trust the communist-ruled countries of the Soviet Bloc, Gorbachev's unexpected reversal on a major U.S.-Soviet agreement undercut his own long-term goals ...'

progress on talks to limit Reagan's strategic defense initiative (SDI) to place in space elements of an antimissile defense system, known as Star Wars, as a condition for the summit.

According to western and Soviet officials here, the sudden hardening was based on an assessment in the Kremlin that a summit is the only bargaining chip left in Moscow's bid to prevent the United States from developing SDI weapons to the stage where they could be deployed.

The last-minute reluctance to come to Washington also represents bitterness at the critical reception that the Reagan administration has given to Gorbachev's reform policies, including a general attempt at forging a new detente, some analysts said.

Nonetheless, western diplomats consider Gorbachev's move to be so atypical of the Soviet leader, who has favored a high-profile policy of public diplomacy and holding to agreements, that they speculate whether he was forced in the past few weeks to harden his stance vis-a-vis the Reagan administration by military leaders or more conservative Kremlin officials.

Although Gorbachev made similar last-minute demands at the summit in Reykjavik, Iceland, a year ago, he avoided major criticism by highlighting new Soviet arms-control proposals made there and thus avoided major criticism for backing out of an expected arms accord.

Despite the view that Gorbachev buckled under to domestic pressures to stiffen the terms for a summit, however, the new stance seems to be the climax of a carefully orchestrated campaign to force the Reagan administration into concessions in its plans to build the SDI space-based defense shield against nuclear weapons.

Ever since Shultz's visit to the Soviet capital in April, for instance, Moscow has broached the possibility of discussing general principles on SDI, cuts in strategic nuclear missiles and other disarmament topics at a summit meeting — in addition to signing an intermediate-range nuclear forces (INF) treaty to ban medium- and shorter-range missiles.

In May, Soviet officials gave the Reagan administration a draft document on general principles on SDI and other issues that they proposed would be signed at a summit, according to Soviet officials here.

The United States apparently declined the proposal, however, and Moscow temporarily abandoned the idea. Instead, Soviet officials held out the promise of a summit in Washington that would be used largely to sign the INF treaty, followed by a later summit to address other issues. Meanwhile, the Kremlin drafted several proposals that appeared to bring the two sides closer to agreement on which missile systems could be tested under the 1972 U.S.-Soviet Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) Treaty. Shevardnadze presented the proposals to U.S. officials during his trip to Washington last month.

During that visit, Shevardnadze also signed an agreement that Reagan and Gorbachev would hold a summit this fall and that the dates of the meeting would be determined this month in Moscow during Shultz's visit.

Until the end of a 4½-hour meeting between Shultz and Gorbachev Friday, U.S. officials here say, the Americans were still under the impression that reaching agreement on the INF treaty would be enough for a summit.

But three hours into the meeting, Gorbachev told Shultz that he was not comfortable setting the dates for a summit because of lack of progress in talks to strengthen the ABM Treaty and to cut the strategic arsenals of both countries, a U.S. official here said.

According to western diplomats and some Soviet officials here, the Kremlin viewed the U.S. reluctance to agree to a document on general principles on SDI and other issues as a sign that Moscow might never obtain an accord on SDI and strategic cuts from the Reagan administration.

Strength For Today

One of the most massive and beautiful buildings in the world is the Taj Mahal built by a faithful husband in memory of his wife. On the tomb are inscribed these words: "To the memory of an undying love."

It is said that if one stands inside the tomb and repeats this sentence, the last word — love — echoes, and re-echoes, from the dome two hundred feet above. The word "love" re-echoes through the New Testament as well. Jesus dwelt on the word with such exquisite power that millions in every generation have arisen to call Him blessed. He declares that love constituted the sum and the end of the law — the love which goes up to God in adoration and out to man in service.

"Love never faileth ... Faith, hope, love ... and the greatest of these is love."

Further Impact

Choice of a new UNESCO director general promises to have further impact than indicated within the United Nations itself. It may even signal an end to the Soviet Union's using the United Nations as a West-bashing propaganda forum.

UNESCO was set up to promote international cooperation on education, science and culture. Instead it became a key arena for promoting conflict.

Departing leader Amadou Mahtar M'Bow during 13 years of rule built a fiefdom of the agency which has endured more than its share of ideological log-rolling, mismanagement, verbal aggression — and some even say corruption. His support came largely from regimes who had lost sight of the agency's basic role and benefitted most in the way funds were disbursed and shared an anti-Western bias.

One UNESCO insider says the reason M'Bow's supporters were doggedly against nomination of Federico Mahor Zaragoza of Spain was that the new chief can be expected to open the books, get rid of M'Bow's cronies and cut out the boondoggles. That is expected to bring more divisiveness and screams of anguish.

During the M'Bow years, the United States pulled out of the agency in 1984 and Britain in '85. Canada, Japan, Denmark and the Netherlands threatened to withdraw too if the incumbent was nominated for another term. The Spaniard's bid was supported in the executive board action by governments including most of the Western nations, many Latin American governments, Japan, China and even four Soviet bloc countries. The latter made for a welcome (and surprising) shift from former supporters.

Zaragoza is a former Spanish minister of education. He also served as M'Bow's deputy and as his adviser. He says Third World needs will continue to hold the main focus of his attention.

The new alignment makes it important the U.S. be seen as encouraging effective reform while at the same time overcoming broad suspicions this country is not in the business of undermining international organizations it cannot dominate.

It is a stance Washington can afford to demonstrate to all the world.

Bush Left Hanging By Joining Defunct Reaganomics

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush got his tax line down just right. "I am not going to raise your taxes. Period," the vice president said, climbing on board Reaganomics a few days before President Reagan hopped off.

Bush, needing a way to separate himself discreetly from the president he's served for seven years, woke up last week, not just separated — he was left hanging.

His only consolation might be that he wasn't the only presidential candidate to suffer from the actions of a friend.

Rep. Jack Kemp twisted in the wind much of the week while his good friend Jeane Kirkpatrick publicly pondered a presidential bid generally seen as offering an alternative to the New York congressman.

With friends like these, Bush and Kemp have no need for enemies. Mrs. Kirkpatrick, the former U.N.

ambassador who won the hearts of conservatives with her tough rhetoric toward Marxists the world over, announced Sunday she had decided not to get into the 1988 race.

But the prospect of a Kirkpatrick candidacy had kept the Kemp campaign in a dither. They put out word that Kirkpatrick was a closet liberal, soft on abortion, a self-described welfare-stater.

And the only thing the Kemp operatives achieved was a front-page chiding from the Manchester Union Leader, the New Hampshire newspaper that is a formidable force in the state's first-in-the-nation presidential primary.

One of the reasons Mrs. Kirkpatrick was described as reluctant to get into the race was her friendship with Kemp and her concern that her candidacy would destroy his chances for the nomination.

Analysis

Perhaps even more chilling to Kemp than the potential competition was the fact that people the congressman hoped to attract always seemed to be looking for a stronger horse.

First there was the flirtation by another Kemp friend, Patrick Buchanan, who finally decided against running. Then Mrs. Kirkpatrick.

Even a Kemp ally like conservative fund-raiser Richard Viguerie has some problems with his style.

"Jack Kemp does not come across in a tough, forceful way," said Viguerie, who thinks the congressman ought to attack the opposition more vigorously. "He's going to have to get tougher."

George F. Will, the conservative columnist, had urged Mrs. Kirkpatrick to stay clear of the 1988 race.

"By running now," he wrote, "Kirkpatrick probably would diminish herself and might contribute to an outcome she does not desire, the nomination of George Bush."

The vice president has problems of his own, the latest coming from the man in whose shadow he has served for seven years.

Always viewed with suspicion by conservatives, Bush took a tough anti-tax line when he announced his presidential candidacy Oct. 12.

"I am not going to raise your taxes. Period," he said.

That sounded unequivocal until he was interviewed on Cable News Network 48 hours later and dropped the "period."

"What I have said is if I were convinced that all the spending that could possibly be constrained or cut had taken place, then and only then would I consider a tax increase," he said.

When asked if he weren't waffling, the vice president said his position was the same as Reagan's and he returned to declaring he wouldn't raise taxes. Period.

Then, of all things, Reagan waffled.

Opening his news conference last Thursday night, the president said he was ready to engage in budget negotiations with congressional leaders and that everything, including taxes, would be on the table.

So, there was Bush, campaigning in Iowa the next day. The stock market was on the skids and the president had just abandoned the tough stand on taxes.

How would Bush handle this one? "I'll support the administration," the vice president said. At least as long as Reagan is president. "My view when I become president is there won't be any tax increase."

Donald M. Rothberg is the chief political writer of The Associated Press.

Star Wars Commitment Sidetracks Summit

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — President Reagan's unshakable commitment to "Star Wars" sidetracked a U.S.-Soviet superpower summit meeting and a nearly complete treaty to ban all intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's distaste for the Strategic Defense Initiative, Reagan's space-based missile defense program, was long obvious. But U.S. officials were surprised he would let his opposition to it postpone his first visit to Washington and a treaty signing with Reagan.

The Soviet leader will outline his views in a letter he told Secretary of State George P. Shultz he would send to Reagan soon.

Some of Shultz's senior advisers think Star Wars alone did not derail the summit.

They wonder about Gorbachev's political standing in the Kremlin, or whether he seized on the American stock market crash and U.S. troubles in the Persian Gulf to probe Reagan for signs of weakness and a willingness to make concessions.

Anatoly F. Dobrynin, a veteran of 24 years as Soviet envoy to Washington, was at Gorbachev's side during the talks with Shultz. He has a practiced eye for the misfortunes of American presidents.

When Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze returned from talks last month in Washington with an agreement in principle on the treaty and to have a fall summit, the Politburo was strangely silent.

It would have been customary for the Soviet Union's ruling body to compliment Shevardnadze, who is very close to Gorbachev, or at least to take note of his negotiations with Reagan and with Shultz.

Shultz said he didn't think Gorbachev's political standing was a factor in the Soviet leader's decision.

"I think the pieces of evidence that I see are to the contrary, that he's in a very strong position," he said on the flight Friday night from Moscow to Brussels, where he reported on the disappointing setback to NATO foreign ministers.

Instead, Shultz is heavily inclined to see the Reagan's anti-missile plan — which he heartily supports — as the stumbling block.

His talks with Gorbachev were moving along smoothly until the subject of an anti-missile defense in space came up.

As Shultz relates it, Gorbachev asked whether a summit with Reagan would produce a "combination" of agreements on the U.S. anti-missile defense and on sharp reductions in American and Soviet strategic weapons arsenals.

The question was hardly innocent. It meant Gorbachev was linking any cutback in the bombers, missiles and submarines to an American willingness to restrain the space defense program.

"I had to say, well, I can't guarantee that at all," Shultz told reporters while munching on nachos and hot sauce. "There's a difference of opinion here. The president and all of us are determined that we're going to find the answer to this question about defending ourselves. We're not going to be stopped from that."

At the NATO meeting Saturday, Shultz told the foreign ministers that the United States would be willing to sign the treaty even without a summit meeting.

Barry Schweid covers the State Department for The Associated Press and covered Shultz's talks in Moscow.

Cache Of Explosives, Weapons Found In Downtown Hendersonville Garage

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Police say a cache of weapons, ammunition and military explosives found in an automobile garage could have taken out a whole section of the busy business district where it was located.

"With all those cars and 30,000 rounds of ammunition, if a fire got started there it could have taken out the whole block," said Hendersonville police Detective Bill Norton.

James Hampton Jones, 55, was charged with possession and storage of weapons of mass destruction after weapons including TNT, plastic explosives, hand grenades and machine guns were found Friday.

On Saturday, authorities searched Jones' home, where they found a World War I-vintage M-1 rifle, a modified 12-gauge shotgun, "pistol types," and a small quantity of ammunition, Norton said.

"I can't say what he had in mind," Norton said Sunday. "It's apparent to us that he was a survival-type person, who feels that somebody is going to come to this country and try to take over. Who? I don't know. But they (survivalists) are gathering ammunition for it."

Jones, 55, was charged with two counts of possession of weapons for mass destruction and possession and storage of powerful explosives. He was being held in the Henderson County Jail on $75,000 bond.

"He was just a local guy who evidently was just a great gun enthusiast," Norton said. "He made the statement that he has been collecting this over a period of time. It looks like that, because some of the stuff is old and some of it was new. He was not a regular troublemaker or anybody we would fear."

Authorities said some of the material found in the repair shop, like plastic explosives, is strictly military material.

"That kind of explosive is supposed to be sold only to the military for military use," said Hendersonville Police Detective Rusty Sweazy. "We don't know how he got it or why."

Jones had served in the Army in the 1950s, Sweazy said. "But the putty compound wasn't around back then," he said. "Some of the stuff we seized looks like he has had it since he got out of the Army, but some of the other stuff looks new."

Police, assisted by the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, obtained a search warrant for Jones' shop after a week-long probe prompted by an anonymous telephone tip.

The U.S. Army's 18th Explosive Ordnance Detachment from Fort Bragg assisted police in removing the grenades and some 30,000 rounds of ammunition from Jones' shop. Police also discovered several rifles and military-style shotguns at Jones' home and Army C-rations at his shop.

Specialists from Fort Bragg determined that the liquid substances police suspected to be nitroglycerin during Friday's raid was sulfuric and nitric acid, Norton said. TNT was also identified as one of the chemical powders found in the shop, he said.

The department also was investigating whether any of the firearms came from an armed services weapons depot, Norton said. "Some of the ammunition is the type that you don't see in a sporting goods store."

Endorsements

RALEIGH (AP) — A committee of the North Carolina Association of Educators has recommended that the organization endorse Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan for governor and Senate Majority Leader Tony Rand of Fayetteville for lieutenant governor.

The group also recommended Rep. Bobby Etheridge, D-Harnett, for superintendent of public instruction.

The recommendations, which were made public Sunday, will be submitted to all 47,000 NCAE members in December. At least 60 percent of the membership must approve the endorsements before they become official.

Bragg Shooting

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — A staff sergeant at Fort Bragg was hospitalized Saturday after he was shot in a hunting accident on the Army reservation, officials at the base said.

Officials would not release the name or condition of the injured man Sunday, but said that he had been taken to Duke University Medical Center in Durham after being shot in the face.

A Fort Bragg spokesman, Capt. Donald Sensing, said an internal investigation into the shooting was incomplete.

Airline Leaving

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Continental Airlines will pull out of Charlotte and Raleigh-Durham on Nov. 30, ending its presence in North Carolina, officials say.

The elimination of three daily non-stop flights from both Charlotte and Raleigh to Newark International Airport is being done to add flights to other cities, officials said.

The departure will leave Piedmont Airlines with the only non-stop service from Charlotte to the New York City area.

Gift Questioned

KITTY HAWK, N.C. (AP) — A development group's "no strings attached" offer of $450,000 to the town of Kitty Hawk has raised questions about possible influences on pending rezoning decisions, officials say.

Developers Terry Dixon, Jerry S. Wright Jr. and Jay Bender have formed a partnership called Kitty Hawk Woods and are seeking to rezone 60 acres to strictly commercial use. They plan to sell the land to another developer for a shopping center, said Starkey Sharp of Kitty Hawk, the partnership's lawyer.

The town council announced after its Sept. 21 meeting that it had "received an offer of a gift of $450,000" and that the town "has been informed that the developer intends to apply for zoning changes preliminary to developing a shopping mall on a 60-acre tract."

Sharp said the developers have called off further discussion of the gift until the zoning issue is settled.

"It was poor timing," he said. "It was somewhat coincidental. My clients didn't intend for it to be construed in that way."

Railroad

WILMINGTON — The operator of a short-line railroad in Columbus County is negotiating with Horry County, S.C., officials to take over service to the booming Myrtle Beach area.

The Mid Atlantic Railroad Co., formerly Duval Transportation, began running a 75-mile short line through Columbus County in April. The short line runs from Mullins, S.C., through Chadbourne to Conway, S.C.

The Horry County government, which owns the 14 miles of track between Conway and Myrtle Beach, is negotiating to lease the rail operation to Mid Atlantic, Horry County Attorney John Breeden said.

"We're trying to work out a deal where they get the lion's share of the profit and they perform all the maintenance," Breeden said.

The county bought the railroad in mid-1984 with $400,000 in state and federal funds, when CSX Transportation Inc. announced it would no longer operate the line.

Judges Cautioned Over Jury Chiefs

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP) — Judges will have to be sure their process for choosing a grand jury foreman is non-discriminatory and that they can convince another judge of that, Justice Harry C. Martin says.

The historically routine selection process has drawn much attention since the state Supreme Court reversed a Northampton County rape conviction, saying the constitutional rights of Ernest Richard Colfield were violated in his conviction. The justices found that the statistical pattern of foreman selections was discriminatory in that county, which had only one black grand jury foreman in the 18 years prior to the defendant's trial.

Martin told judges at a weekend meeting the reversal may create problems for them. They'll have to figure out what to do when a motion to dismiss an indictment is made based on the recent ruling. And the judges probably will have to testify themselves if a foreman they appointed is questioned as a discriminatory choice, Martin said.

If a lawyer provides a sufficient argument for dismissal under the Colfield ruling, the district attorney will be given opportunity for rebuttal. Many methods are available for a district attorney to prove the foreman selection process is not discriminatory.

Among those methods is calling as a witness the judge who appointed the foreman.

"A judge testifying to non-racial reasons for appointing a foreman is good rebuttal and should be sufficient enough to keep the indictment from being quashed," Martin said in an interview. "However, if the DA fails to convince you the selection process is non-discriminatory, the indictment should be quashed."

"The court hasn't held that a particular grand jury foreman was appointed by racial discrimination," Martin said. "It only held that when the foreman is appointed, the process must be non-discriminatory."

Each county has its own system of selecting a grand jury foreman, but many judges appeared to favor appointing a foreman with the most grand jury experience.

One way to avoid discrimination charges might be for judges to choose a foreman and immediately voice non-discriminatory reasons for the selection. Another way would be to choose a foreman at random. Both methods are constitutional, Martin said.

Some district attorneys have had new indictments drawn, asking the judge to appoint a new foreman to avoid a Colfield ruling. Since the Supreme Court's decision, 17 counties have selected black grand jury foremen for the first time in recent history.

Aurora Water May Be Piped

AURORA, N.C. (AP) — Piping wastewater from the Texasgulf Chemicals Co. north for treatment as drinking water could help solve Virginia's water shortage and North Carolina's problem with fresh water in the Pamlico River, a committee of government officials from the two states says.

But Texasgulf and state officials said significant environmental and technical questions must be answered before a pipeline can be built to transfer the water.

Unlike the meandering creeks and bays along the shoreline, the South Creek is a man-made cut that drains the 3,000-acre Texasgulf phosphate-mining operation. Each day the small stream contributes 46 million gallons of water to the Pamlico River that was sucked from deep within the ground and put to work at a fertilizer manufacturing facility before reaching the river.

Kirkpatrick Available For 2nd Spot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jeane J. Kirkpatrick will not seek the Republican nomination for president in 1988, but would consider filling the vice presidential spot on the GOP ticket, an adviser says.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, the former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said Sunday she would not make a bid for the nomination despite the urgings of many conservatives.

"I've carefully considered this issue, and firmly decided for personal and political reasons not to seek the Republican nomination. Naturally, I'm grateful for the confidence of those who urged me to become a candidate," she said in a statement released by her spokesman, David Carmen.

However, Mrs. Kirkpatrick would consider the party's vice presidency, Carmen said, and almost immediately she received an endorsement from one of the five Republican candidates.

Former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont, contacted at his home in Rockland, Del., said Mrs. Kirkpatrick would be a "wonderful person to have on the ticket."

"She brings an intellectual strength to any ticket, and she's just the kind of person that I would be looking for as a vice presidential candidate," du Pont said.

Carmen said he didn't think Mrs. Kirkpatrick "would close the door on the vice presidency or any other way that might be presented to her to serve her country. She's anxious to do that."

Mrs. Kirkpatrick reached a decision on a possible bid for the Republican nomination after discussing it with family, friends and advisers at her home in Bethesda, Md.

"It was a three-day vigil that started Thursday night with people from all over the country calling her and urging her to run and people sending telegrams and messages," Carmen said.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick based her decision on a "multitude of reasons, personal and political," he said. "I think the lateness of the date precluded a practical run at this point."

Carmen said financial concerns were not a factor in the decision, since the campaign believed it could raise about $3 million immediately — enough, he said, "to make a credible national bid."

But Carmen said Mrs. Kirkpatrick decided she did not want "to hurt any candidates in the race."

It was assumed widely that her candidacy would be a blow to the hopes of Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, who is trying to unite conservatives behind his bid.

Kemp said Sunday Mrs. Kirkpatrick would continue to have an influence in government despite her decision not to enter the campaign.

"Jeane Kirkpatrick has been a dominant force in American foreign policy," Kemp said in a statement issued by his spokesman, John Rand. "She will continue to be a dominant force despite her decision not to run for president. I will continue to count on her guidance and advice on foreign and defense policy."

Louisiana Reformer Topples Edwards In Governor's Race

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — U.S. Rep. Charles E. "Buddy" Roemer III, a brash reformer whose "Roemer Revolution" toppled three-term Gov. Edwin Edwards, says his first act as governor-elect will be a smooth transition of power.

The dapper, silver-haired Edwards, a controversial Cajun populist who was seeking an unprecedented fourth term, gave up his campaign with a flourish Sunday after finishing second in the state primary.

"He may have the Capitol now if he wants it," an emotional Edwards told stunned supporters who had gathered at a hotel for what they hoped would be a victory party.

"It's the end of an era — in a positive way. He offered to meet with me and review his administration," said Roemer, a 44-year-old Democrat and son of a former commissioner in the Edwards administration. "He did it the right way and you have to give him credit for that."

Edwards, 60, assured by Saturday's primary of a spot in a Nov. 21 runoff, gave up the race after two other major challengers said they would back Roemer, who came from last place in the final weeks of the campaign.

"I do not want anyone assuming that Mr. Roemer was involved in this decision or that any kind of deal was made with him," Edwards said, pledging full cooperation with Roemer for the remainder of his term.

Edwards, Louisiana's only three-term governor, ends his term in March. He had never lost a bid for public office in a career dating to 1954.

Edwards' third term was marked by his acquittal in a federal racketeering trial, a deep statewide recession triggered by depressed oil and gas prices, sharp cuts in the state budget, and a deficit pegged as high as $600 million.

Edwards, a former city councilman, state senator and congressman, was governor from 1972 to 1980. Barred by the state constitution from a third, consecutive term, Edwards returned in 1983 and beat Republican Gov. Dave Treen.

Until early last week, Edwards had said he expected to win a runoff against U.S. Rep. Bob Livingston, the only Republican in the non-partisan primary.

With all the votes totaled, Roemer had 522,344 votes or 33 percent. Edwards tallied 452,513 or 28 percent.

Livingston, who finished third with 297,875 votes or 19 percent, said he would support Roemer, who apparently cut into the GOP base that

Three Firefighters Killed When Training Fire Flares

MILFORD, Mich. (AP) — Witnesses watched helplessly as a practice fire at an abandoned farmhouse burst out of control, killing three volunteer firefighters and injuring four others.

"We brought the neighbor kids out to watch the house burn," said David Miller, son-in-law of the building's owner who arranged with the Milford Fire Department to use the farmhouse for training.

"It happened after just a few seconds. As soon as it billowed with black smoke everybody panicked," he said. "It was like a bomb only you didn't hear the explosion."

Those killed, two men and one woman, were trapped on the second floor by a flashover, which occurs when hot gases and smoke ignite and sweep a wide area with flames, said Richard Cole, assistant Highland Township fire chief.

Sunday morning's fire went out of control 10 minutes after being set, said Police Lt. Dale Mallett. Some witnesses said the second floor of the two-story farmhouse collapsed beneath the firefighters.

"They came in and set up the fire situation. For want of a better word, (it was) a booby trap, where it goes off spontaneously and then they go in to put it out," Miller said.

No one had used the building for at least seven years. It formerly was used to dry hops for beer.

"In hindsight, we should have brought a bulldozer out here a month ago," said Miller, who is building a house next to the fire site in rural Oakland County, about 45 miles northwest of Detroit. "It's stupid. It just never should have happened."

Mallett said the training session involved volunteer firefighters from Milford and Highland, White Lake and Lyon townships.

Killed were Marsha Baczynski, 41, of Milford; Robert Gregory, 33, of Highland; and Thomas Phelps, 34, of New Hudson, said Anne Allen, spokeswoman for Huron Valley Hospital.

Three other firefighters on the second floor saved themselves by jumping out a window.

Two firefighters were released after treatment at the hospital.

Mrs. Baczynski, as assistant manager at Mid State Janitorial Service in Milford, was the only woman ever to volunteer for the Milford Township department, said Milford police Officer John Stakoe.

China Extends Reforms To Allow Land Transfers

By JIM ABRAMS
Associated Press Writer
BEIJING (AP) — China will allow farmers to transfer land, carrying further the agricultural reform policies that have resulted in the dismantling of communes and the spread of family farms, it was announced today.

Du Runsheng, director of the Communist Party's Rural Policy Research Office, said at a news conference that farmers will have the right to freely negotiate and receive payment for land rights.

Du met Chinese and foreign reporters on the second day of the 13th national Communist Party Congress, a major party conclave in which senior leader Deng Xiaoping is seeking affirmation for his nine-year-old policy of sweeping economic reforms.

Du was joined by Gao Shangquan, vice minister for the State Commission for Restructuring the Economy, who said China is pushing ahead in labor and management reforms but will move slowly on lifting price controls.

The nearly 2,000 congress delegates held group discussions today on a keynote speech Sunday by acting party chief Zhao Ziyang, who gave unqualified support to Deng's reform policies.

The proposed policy on land transfers is part of a major drive to find an outlet for surplus labor in the Chinese countryside, where 800 million of the nation's 1 billion people live.

About 70 million people have left the fields for rural industries this decade, and the government aims to reduce the farming population by 100 million by 1995.

Du said farmers who want to leave the land would be able to transfer it to people willing to fulfill their production contracts. He emphasized that "we will not introduce private ownership" and that the state will continue to own all land.

No time frame has been set for the new policy.

Since Deng's government abandoned the commune system around 1980, family farmers have signed contracts that commit them to produce a certain amount for the state and allow them to sell anything above that at private markets.

Until now, there has been no formal system for subcontracting land when peasants found jobs in rural industries.

Price reform is regarded as one of the toughest and most important problems facing the Chinese. Large government subsidies have kept prices of many basic commodities artificially low and resulted in shortages.

The government began removing price controls and eliminating subsidies in 1984, but has limited the changes because of widespread unhappiness over double-digit inflation for many necessities.

"We will persist in efforts, but proceed in a steady manner to maintain basic stability of prices," Gao said.

Gao said reforms also will break down the egalitarian wage system of the past.

In a departure from the last congress in 1982, foreign reporters were allowed to attend the opening session of the party congress on Sunday.

However, today's session was not televised or open to reporters, and a three-paragraph dispatch from the official Xinhua News Agency provided the only information on what was going on.

Xinhua said the delegates representing China's 46 million party members "broke into 33 delegations to continue panel discussions" on Zhao's report. It is unlikely there will be any changes made before the congress approves the report.

In line with Deng's proposed reforms of the political structure, Zhao called for creation of a civil service in which government employees not engaged in political work would be hired, paid and promoted according to merit.

After the party congress ends Nov. 1, the Central Committee will meet to announce the party's new leadership.

Deng is expected to step down from the Politburo Standing Committee, the pinnacle of power in Communist China, along with two ailing, aged committee members.

They are expected to be replaced by younger, reform-minded officials.

Zhao, 68, is the only member of the five-member committee expected to retain his seat, although Deng is expected to hold on to his other key post, head of the Central Military Commission.

Indian Army Takes Over Rebel Town

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Indian soldiers have taken control of Jaffna, a former rebel stronghold, but still were encountering sniper fire from Tamil rebel holdouts, Indian officials said today.

In other developments, Indian troops fired on three Tamil rebel vehicles loaded with ammunition, blowing them up and killing seven rebels southeast of Jaffna, Sri Lankan military officials said.

"Mopping up operations are under way to eliminate sporadic fire from snipers," said D.K. Maitra, spokesman for the Indian Foreign Ministry, in New Delhi.

Lt. Gen. Depender Singh, Indian troop commander in Sri Lanka, said Sunday that the bulk of Jaffna's rebel defenders, as many as 1,200, slipped past advancing troops into the surrounding jungle.

The Indian troops began an offensive against Jaffna on Oct. 10 after the dominant Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam militia rejected an Indian-sponsored peace treaty and killed scores of Sinhalese.

Maitra said an estimated 56,000 Tamil civilian refugees were being provided food and medical care in about 15 temples and schools, where they had taken shelter during the offensive.

Sri Lankan officials said Indian soldiers in helicopters fired on two trucks and a van Sunday night in Pooneeryn, 19 miles southeast of Jaffna.

"The vehicles exploded, indicating there were explosives and ammunition in them," one official said.

Indian troops began searches today in Jaffna and the towns of Kilinochchi and Vavuniya to the south in an effort to uncover weapons and guerrillas, the officials said.

According to Indian military figures, more than 650 rebels and 164 Indian soldiers died in the battle for the city of Jaffna. More than 20,000 Indian troops have come to Sri Lanka to enforce the peace plan.

Journalists were kept out of Jaffna during most of the battle, making claims difficult to verify. On Sunday, reporters at Jaffna hospital found little evidence to support Tiger statements that the facility was heavily damaged by Indian fire.

But the visit to the hospital was brief. Indian officers started rushing reporters out when several patients said they had been injured by Indian shell fire.

India's involvement in the 4-year-old Sri Lankan civil war stems from its role as a regional power and its Tamil minority's sympathy for the island rebellion.

In the past, the major Tamil rebel groups found sanctuary in south India, about 18 miles from their island nation.

French Rush More Forces To Control Riots In Tahiti

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — Hundreds of police reinforcements were arriving on the tropical island of Tahiti, which was placed under a state of emergency following weekend riots that left sections of the capital in ruins.

Police were patrolling the streets Sunday night to assure a 7 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew was respected.

Authorities said three squadrons of gendarmes, 270 men, had arrived during the day Sunday from New Caledonia. Two more 90-man squadrons, sent from Paris, were also expected, bringing the total number of security forces guarding this French Pacific territory to more than 1,000.

About 200 Foreign Legionnaires brought in from the Pacific atoll of Mururoa were posted at the port of Papeete, where the riot broke out Friday night after a confrontation between striking dock workers and police trying to reopen the port.

The strikers closed the port on Thursday to press demands that an extra seven-man team supplement dockers on Mururoa, France's nuclear testing site.

Gaston Flosse, French secretary of state charged with South Pacific problems, toured the city center after arriving here Sunday, accompanied by Gilbert Masson, top aide to Bernard Pons, France's minister for overseas territories.

The state of emergency announced Saturday by High Commissioner

Pierre Angeli covers all of Tahiti and the nearby island of Morea. The 7 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew is restricted to five Tahitian communes, including Papeete. All cafes are to remain closed until the measures are lifted.

"It's a totally temporary situation, which could last a maximum of two or three days," Pons said Sunday. The state of emergency, he said, was aimed at assuring a population "truly shocked by the scenes of violence."

Police said more than a dozen people were injured, two seriously, in the Friday night rampage which started after police cleared dockers away from the port.

The streets remained strewn with hulks of burned out cars and the remains of dozens of small businesses and a commercial center, all looted and burned, stood like skeletons.

Pons said it appeared that "outside elements" instigated the destruction. He did not elaborate.

He warned dock workers not to abuse their privileges.

Dockworkers have considerable power in this Pacific island, whose population of 116,000 is almost totally dependent on imports.

"It is intolerable that the entire population is held hostage by a minority which already has considerable advantages," Pons said in an interview with France-Inter radio.

"The dockers must realize that there are limits beyond which it is no longer tolerable to go."

Tahiti, the centerpiece of French Polynesia, is visited by about 150,000 tourists a year, 90,000 of them Americans.

U.S. Cardinal, Contras Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo met secretly here with a cease-fire commission formed by the Nicaraguan Contra rebels, The New York Times reported today.

The cardinal has been a de-facto intermediary between the rebels and the leftist Sandinista government recently and is seen as one person who might be able to negotiate a cease-fire by the November deadline stipulated in a regional peace treaty, the newspaper said.

Obando y Bravo has met privately with rebel leaders in recent months, but Saturday's meeting apparently was his first with political and military leaders from the rebels' cease-fire commission, said the Times, citing unidentified rebel and U.S. officials.

The officials did not give details of the meeting but said the rebels continued to insist on negotiating a cease-fire directly with the Sandinistas, who have rejected that demand.

Opposition Leaders Clash On Eve Of Korean Election

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The country's top opposition leaders today called on each other to drop out of the presidential race, and a radio station said one of them might form a separate party.

Police meanwhile ordered a crackdown on petition drives by dissidents demanding the formation of a neutral Cabinet to ensure fair presidential elections.

National Police headquarters said the country's main dissident group, the National Coalition for a Democratic Constitution, would not be allowed to collect signatures in the streets. It charged the group was using the petition drive to stage anti-government protests and to lobby for opposition candidates.

The two opposition leaders — Kim Dae-jung and Kim Young-sam — clashed as the nation prepared to vote Tuesday in a national referendum on approving a new constitution to clear the way for the first direct presidential elections in 16 years.

"I urge the people to participate in the national referendum," Kim Young-sam said in a message to the nation.

The constitution was expected to win approval by an overwhelming vote.

Couple Marries Sunday

WINTERVILLE — Cynthia Ann McLawhorn of Greenville and Glenn Eric Deal of Winterville were united in marriage Sunday in a 2:30 p.m. ceremony in the Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church.

The Rev. Willis Wilson officiated at the double-ring ceremony and music was provided by Ruth Taylor, organist, and Emerson Hobgood, soloist.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. R.A. McLawhorn Jr. of Route 1, Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Deal of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory formal gown of English net schiffli embroidered lace. It was fashioned with a high neckline trimmed with a crystal ruffle, pearls and sequins and had a basque waistline. The English net yoke accented with schiffli lace and pearls adorned the fitted embroidered bodice trimmed with sequins, pearls. The baroque sleeves were trimmed with crystal pleat ruffles, sequins and embroidered lace. The full skirt had scattered lace medallions and a pearl hemline edged with scalloped schiffli lace and a chapel train. Her headpiece was a capulet of lace, pearls and rhinestones and the attached double roll pencil-edged fingertip ivory silk illusion was accented with motifs of lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of dendrobium orchids, lilies, champagne roses, stephanotis and white buttons.

Pam Smith of Greenville served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Teresa Owens of Farmville, Vida McLawhorn of Farmville, sister-in-law of the bride, Liesl Driver of Lancaster, S.C., cousin of the bride. Junior bridesmaids were Jennifer Little and Erin Little of Winterville, cousins of the bridegroom.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore floor length satin gowns of teal with sweetheart necklines, dropped basque waistlines and lantern sleeves. Each carried a mixed bouquet of alstromeria lilies, white freesia and miniature carnations tied with ivory lace.

The junior bridesmaids wore dresses of ivory scalloped-edge lace over a slip of acetate satin. The dresses were V-necked in the back and accented with a teal satin cummerbund and back bow. They carried mixed bouquets tied with teal and ivory ribbons.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Wesley Deal of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom, Mike McLawhorn of Farmville, brother of the bride, and Scott Littlefield of Raleigh. Junior usher was Dave McLawhorn of Farmville, nephew of the bride.

A reception, given by the parents of the bride, was held in the Wilson Fellowship Hall immediately following the ceremony. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Little and Dick Carney. Mr. and Mrs. Archie Nobles said goodbyes. The wedding was directed by Mae Pittman.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal dinner at the Three Steers. The wedding party was honored at a party given by Mr. and Mrs. Archie Nobles and Mr. and Mrs. E.C. Averette. A bridesmaids luncheon was given by friends of the bridal couple at the Sheraton-Greenville and a miscellaneous shower was given by friends and family of the bridal couple.

The bride is employed by American Red Cross, Pitt County Chapter and the bridegroom is employed by Grady White Boats Inc. of Greenville.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Winterville.

Wedding Vows Spoken Sunday

WILLIAMSTON — Pamela Darlene Bennett of Williamston and Mickey Lee Longnecker of Greenville were united in marriage Sunday at the Macedonia Christian Church in a 3 p.m. ceremony.

Dolan L. Baker officiated during the double-ring ceremony. Music was provided by Mary Lane Baker of Williamston, pianist, and Elizabeth Barber of Jamesville, soloist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gene C. Bennett of Williamston and Dr. and Mrs. Robert A. Klein of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white satin designed with a fitted bodice, sheer yoke and Elizabethan sleeves. Floral lace medallions hand-beaded with pearls and sequins formed the high collar and bodice and decorated the sleeves. The gown fastened at the back with satin-covered bridal buttons. The A-line skirt was bordered at the hemline with silk floss schiffli embroidery and was further enhanced with beaded embroidered medallions. The attached cathedral train featured a scalloped hemline edged with fluted ruffles and embroidered lace. Beaded embroidered medallions further enhanced the train. Her satin bridal hat featured a turned up side brim with a spray of silk flowers and pearl peps. The crown was embellished with alençon lace and pearls. The veil of illusion fell from a back pouf. She carried a formal cascade bouquet of silk gardenias, red roses, royal blue ribbon roses, orange blossoms and English ivy accented with pearls and lace streamers.

Patrice Ambrose of Williamston, cousin of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. William Fowler, Jr., of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom and Mrs. Robin Saleeby of Raleigh, sister of the bridegroom. The flower girl was Amanda Adams of Ayden, cousin of the bride.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids wore tea-length gowns of imported royal blue French latticework lace bordered in floral patterned chantilly lace over matching satin. Each gown was fashioned with a sheer yoke with scalloped lace defining the sabrina neckline. The short caplet sleeves were also enhanced with the patterned lace. The waistlines of the softly gathered skirts were accentuated with cummerbunds and satin bows. The scalloped borders of lace edged the hemlines. Each wore a hairpiece of royal blue silk flowers and carried a cascade bouquet of royal blue asters, red roses and orange blossoms tied with a royal blue bow and streamers.

The flower girl wore a white dress with a double ruffle yoke with beaded lace on the bodice, skirt and sleeves. She wore a royal blue satin belt and a halo of baby's breath. She carried a white basket with royal blue asters, red roses, and orange blossoms tied with a royal blue bow and streamers.

The mother of the bride wore a street-length, long-sleeved dress of royal blue crepe. The mother of the bridegroom wore a tea-length, long-sleeved periwinkle crepe de chine gown with a loose overblouse accented with a bow on the hip. Both mothers were presented with red corsages.

Dr. Robert Klein served as his son's best man. Ushers were Gregory Bennett of Williamston, brother of the bride, William Fowler, Jr., of Greenville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Robin Saleeby of Raleigh, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Jeremy Morris of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was the ring bearer.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents in the church fellowship hall.

MRS. LONGNECKER

The wedding was directed by Della Gurganus of Everetts. Janice Coltrain of Williamston presided at the register.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the Holiday Inn in Williamston.

Several showers were given in honor of the couple prior to the wedding.

The bride is a secretary at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is a parts salesman at Edwards Auto Supply. She graduated from Martin Community College and he is a graduate of Pitt Community College.

After a wedding trip to the mountains, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Golden Treasure Is Trash

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago I purchased some gold coins, which represented several thousand dollars. It's not a great fortune, but I'm not a wealthy man and could not afford to throw it away. I foolishly kept these gold coins hidden in a shoe box in my closet.

I had not told my wife about it, and as you may have already guessed, she cleaned the closet and threw out the shoe box!

The morning after our trash was collected, I realized what had happened, so I went to the trash disposal company at 6 a.m. I was told that the trash collected the day before was already at the landfill, and my chances for retrieving the shoe box were one in a million.

Nevertheless, I went to the landfill where the foreman told me that had I followed the truck the previous day (as one woman had done to search for her wallet) I may have had a chance. He informed me that the only other alternative was to rent a bulldozer ($65 an hour) and sift through the 40,000 cubic feet of rubbish. He said a woman had recently hired the bulldozer hoping to find the $200,000 she had thrown out by mistake. (She never found it.)

Abby, I'm sure many of your readers have squirreled away small fortunes in their homes, so please print this. If my letter saves just one person's fortune, my loss will not have been entirely in vain. — LEARNED THE HARD WAY

DEAR LEARNED: Thanks for giving me the opportunity to dispense some valuable advice: Despite the restrictions on the hours of accessibility, the ideal place to keep valuables is in a safe-deposit box at the bank.

DEAR ABBY: I am 51 and my husband is 58. We have been married for 10 years. It's the second time around for both of us. What's bugging me? He always uses the words "I," "my" and "mine" instead of saying "we" or "ours."

In conversations with others, it's I,

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

I, I. It's driving me up the wall. What are your thoughts on this? I love the guy. — WOE IS ME

DEAR WOE: I think it's time you looked this guy in the eye and said: "I love you, but I have had it up to here with your chronic 'I' trouble. Just listen to all the 'I's' and 'me's' in your conversation and give ME a break because I feel slighted."

DEAR ABBY: You wrote: "Many have written to say they are sorry they quit taking piano lessons, but not one person ever wrote to say that he or she was glad they quit."

Well, let me be the first. From age 5 to 13, my mother forced me to take piano lessons. I advanced all the way to "The Skater's Waltz." Then one day, my teacher yelled at my mother, "Madame, you are wasting my time, your money and your daughter's energy. Give up!"

Abby, I still adore that teacher's memory. That honest, fearless man taught my mother and me that talent need not be musical.

I am now a happy artist. I draw, paint, create and guide others to be creative. I'm glad I was allowed to quit taking lessons. Today, I wouldn't touch a piano with a paint rag. — MRS. H.F. KING, LAWTON, OKLA.

DEAR MRS. KING: You're not the only one who wrote to say, "I'm glad I quit." I received letters from readers — some now in their 70s — who still remember the pain of having their fingers whacked with a ruler, the torture of performing at recitals, the odious halitosis of their teachers, and the resentment of being forced to practice through their tears.

All right, I asked for it. Enough, already.

(For Abby's booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Harrell of Route 11, Greenville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Leslie Ann, to Michael Paul Geske, son of Peter Geske of Chicago, Ill., and Barbara Wulf of Malibu, Calif. The wedding is planned for Nov. 7.

International Tea Set For Thursday

The Greenville Woman's Club will entertain international students at East Carolina University at a tea Thursday from 2:30 p.m. to 5 p.m.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices tumbled anew today following a fresh wave of selling in overseas markets in the aftermath of last week's historic collapse on Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, which plummeted about 300 points last week, plunged 132.13 to 1,818.63 by noon. The closely watched index had lost about 85 points in the first half hour of trading.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 14 to 1 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 1,689 down, 123 up and 115 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to a brisk 202.42 million shares, compared with 157.80 at the same point Friday.

Stock markets in Tokyo and London recorded large losses today before trading began in New York. In the often-volatile Hong Kong market, where trading had been suspended for the last four business days, prices took a record drop.

"Once you had the foreign markets falling you knew you were going to have a dump in New York given the fragile condition," said Larry Wachtel, a stock analyst and first vice president of Prudential-Bache Securities Inc.

Jack Baker, head of block trading for Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc., said market psychology today "has gotten horrendous."

"Selling continues to come in waves. There are no buyers," he said.

Analysts said a weekend respite hadn't done much to improve investors' spirits, especially with the publication of a good many bearish forecasts by prominent market analysts.

"The weekend did more harm than good because people had a chance to simmer," Wachtel said. "When they simmer they get emotional, when they get emotional they dump stocks."

"A lot of people are scared," added Charles Jensen, an analyst at MKI Securities.

Jensen said many investors were disinclined to buy in such a tumultuous environment. At the same time, he said, unhappy stock owners were looking for opportunities to reduce their exposure to the market by selling.

In economic news, Americans' personal incomes climbed 0.7 percent in September, the biggest improvement since February, but consumer spending suffered its first setback since January, the Commerce Department said. Personal consumption spending dropped by 0.5 percent last month, the first decline since a 1.6 percent plunge in January. Spending had risen 1.7 percent in August.

In a procedure adopted last Friday, the market was scheduled to close today and again Tuesday at 2 p.m. EST, two hours earlier than usual, to give Wall Street extra time to process a backlog of business.

In addition, constraints on computerized program trading that were adopted last week remained in effect today. Traders said that helped reduce volatility. "At least you don't have a mindless computer accelerating the problem," Wachtel said.

Among the prominent blue chips, International Business Machines dropped 6 3/4 at 114; General Electric 3 1/2 to 43 1/2; Ford Motor 4 1/4 to 69 3/4 and American Telephone & Telegraph 1 1/2 at 27.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell 9.03 to 130.19. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 16.30 at 247.91.

Iraqis, Kuwaiti Ruler Meet To Talk Over Attacks On Tankers, Terminal

By MARTIN MARRIS
Associated Press Writer
KUWAIT (AP) — Two top Iraqi officials met Kuwait's ruler today to discuss Iranian missile attacks on the sheikdom that damaged two tankers and an offshore oil terminal.

Kuwaiti press reports charged Iran was responsible for the bombing of a Pan Am sales office over the weekend. Iran considers Kuwait an ally of its enemy, Iraq.

U.S. officials say China has sold Iran as many as 96 Silkworm anti-ship missiles — the kind used in the three recent attacks on Kuwait. Reagan administration anger over the sales has prompted Washington to refuse selling some military-related items to Beijing.

U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz said Sunday the sanctions are part of an effort to persuade the U.N. Security Council to vote within 20 days for an arms embargo aimed at bringing about a cease-fire in the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war. China denies selling the missiles to Iran.

The Kuwait News Agency said

Taha Yassin Ramadan, Iraq's first deputy prime minister, and Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz arrived in Kuwait today from Saudi Arabia.

The Iraqis met with the Kuwaiti ruler and the foreign minister, the agency said.

Ramadan told the state-controlled agency the discussions dealt with "the continuing coordination and consultation between the two countries in confronting the dangers ... particularly those facing Iraq, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia due to Iran's repeated aggressions."

He said the consultations were aimed at creating "positive circumstances" for an Arab League summit meeting scheduled for Nov. 8 in Jordan.

Ramadan delivered a message from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to the Kuwaiti ruler, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah. The agency did not disclose the contents of the message.

Iraq's government news agency reported Sunday that Ramadan and Aziz had also visited Saudi Arabia over the weekend.

Foreign ministers of the Saudi-led Gulf Cooperation Council also were in the Saudi capital over the weekend, discussing the "dangerous escalation" posed by the recent Iranian missile attacks on Kuwait, a communique said.

A bomb exploded Saturday in a travel agency that handles Pan Am's sales in Kuwait. There were no injuries.

No one claimed responsibility for the blast, which the newspaper al-Anbaa blamed on Iran's "agents inside the country who have sold themselves to the devil."

White House Race Has Cost $55 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The flock of candidates seeking to succeed Ronald Reagan in the White House in 1989 has spent more than $55 million in that pursuit so far, the Federal Election Commission says.

The figure includes spending by the six major Republican candidates and seven Democrats still in the race, in addition to several million dollars spent by those who have since decided not to run: former Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., former Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., and Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo.

FEC summaries, based on candidate reports covering the period through Sept. 30, show the candidates raised more than $70 million and spent some $55 million as of that date, ending the period with $15.6 million in cash on hand.

The Republicans had more money overall than the Democrats, thanks in large part to the hefty $12.5 million raised by Vice President George Bush and the $11.6 million in receipts reported by former TV evangelist Pat Robertson.

Together, the GOP candidates raised $43.7 million and spent $35.4 million, and the Democrats raised $26.6 million and spent $19.1 million, the FEC summary said.

The FEC data covered candidates who have raised or spent at least $500,000.

Democrats still in the race whose reports were included were: former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, civil rights activist Jesse Jackson, political extremist Lyndon LaRouche and Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois.

The Republican field, in addition to Bush and Robertson, includes: Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont, former Secretary of State Alexander Haig and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York.

Budget

Chiles, a Florida Democrat, said he'd go along with the president in ruling out many types of tax hikes.

"So we're not talking about any kind of tax that's going to raise people's individual income tax rate or their corporate rate or hurt the economy," he said.

White House chief economist Beryl Sprinkel, appearing on NBC-TV's "Today" show, said, "The important thing from our point of view is that we continue to pursue pro-growth policies and do not make a mistake during this critical period."

Sprinkel also appeared Sunday on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," where he declined to say what new tax increases the president might consider not harmful to the economy.

Speaking as an economist, Sprinkel said, "Well, some would say closing certain tax loopholes might be non-deleterious. But if you happen to be the one whose loophole got closed, that's not so good."

Congress' two top tax-writers, House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., and Senate Finance Committee Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, appeared on the same Sunday program as Sprinkel.

The two chairmen also spoke of closing loopholes and both said the president's plan to sell off more government assets should not be a main part any agreement.

"I'd like to know what they object to in the bill that the House and the Senate have put together, as opposed to suggesting (asset sales)," Rostenkowski said. "Asset sales is a one-time hit. That does nothing for the deficit in the out years, and that's what's important."

Bentsen said asset sales might be a way to exceed the $23 billion minimum deficit reduction of Gramm-Rudman for fiscal 1988.

Besides trying to quickly agree on a deficit reduction plan to reassure financial markets, the president and lawmakers are seeking to avoid having the Gramm-Rudman law automatically cut the $23 billion it requires in deficit reduction.

The spending cuts will take effect Nov. 20 if an alternative plan isn't enacted before then.

Under the law, half of the spending cuts would come out of military programs, with the exception of the payroll. The cut means that weapons procurement, maintenance and other military spending could be cut 10.5 percent.

A broad span of domestic programs would absorb the other $11.5 billion reduction. Social Security, veterans benefits and welfare programs are exempt, but everything from AIDS research to FBI investigations would be slashed 8.5 percent.

Twins Top Cards, Win Series

Twins Jubilation

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The party is on in Minnesota, home to the biggest home-bodies in baseball.

Champions of the World Series for the first time in their history, the Twins returned to the Metrodome field for the last time in 1987 to take a bow before their fans. There couldn't have been a more fitting tribute.

Home, after all, was where it all happened for the Twins.

"Go party!" Gary Gaetti told what was left of a crowd of 55,376 as he and his teammates took their turn at the microphone. "And have a good time. You deserve it."

Even with the Metrodome half-empty, the roar still was deafening.

Never had a team won a World Series by winning all its home games without winning on the road. How could it have been otherwise?

The Twins built the best home record of any team in baseball this season, 56-25, but had the worst road record of any team to ever win a pennant, 29-52.

After hitting seven homers in the first six games — all but one at home — Minnesota had none in its 4-2 victory over St. Louis in Game 7 Sunday night. The Twins scored their go-ahead run with three walks and an infield hit by Greg Gagne, and the World Series MVP of the homer-happy Twins was a pitcher, Frank Viola.

The Twins got one of their runs on a questionable call by first-base umpire Lee Weyer, and a bad call by Weyer, a National League umpire, took the Cardinals out of a possible scoring situation later in the game.

The Cardinals, who have been to three World Series in the '80s, had come here hoping to avenge a 1985 loss to Kansas City, caused in part by an umpire's call in Game 6.

But, with their home-run leader, Jack Clark, lost entirely and Terry Pendleton limited by injuries, there was to be no satisfaction for the Cardinals in Minnesota.

"We lost, that's the bottom line," Cardinals center fielder Willie McGee said. "We had a heck of a year, heck of a year. ... They are the world champions. There is nothing to comment on. They are the best team in baseball."

"One game, and we're the best team in the world. We came that close without one of the best offensive players in baseball."

Viola pitched eight innings, retiring 11 in a row after he allowed the second of two RBI singles in the second inning. Viola won Game 1 in Minnesota and lost Game 4 in St. Louis.

The loss could be forgiven, though. The Twins had won only nine regular-season road games after the All-Star break, and Viola had 11 of his 17 victories at the Metrodome. The Twins didn't win their 10th and 11th road games of the year until they went to Detroit to finish off the Tigers in a five-game American League playoff.

"It doesn't matter how you do it, as long as you do it," Gaetti said. "We make our mistakes here, but we just know that we'll make up for them. We know it is going to happen for us here, especially offensively."

"What would you expect for Game 7? It was a close game, no home runs in the Metrodome. We don't win a road game the whole Series, and here we are winning the whole thing."

During the season, Twins rookie Manager Tom Kelly preached, to the point of boredom, a philosophy of "one day at a time. Do the best you can." Perhaps there was no other way with a team that lost 91 games in 1986, two years after nearly leaving Minneapolis.

The franchise had moved once, from Washington to Minnesota in 1961. When the Twins won Sunday night, they closed the longest gap between World Series titles in major-league history — from the 1924 Senators to the '87 Twins. It was 62 years of futility that was supposed to end.

"We've overcome a lot of adversity all year," popular center fielder Kirby Puckett said. "No one thought we could win the division, but we did it. Then, when it came to playing Detroit, they thought we couldn't get that job done. But we did."

"And here it is. We're world champions. I think we surprised everyone but ourselves."

The turnaround did not come without change.

The Twins got Jeff Reardon from the Montreal Expos in February, and he had 31 saves. Dan Gladden, the only player on either team to hit in all seven games of the World Series, came in a trade from San Francisco last March. Don Baylor came over from Boston on Aug. 31, the cutoff date for postseason eligibility, and hit a game-tying home run in the sixth game.

"I knew if we could keep everybody here and fill in a few holes, we had a shot," Twins right fielder Tom Brunansky said. "There was a lot of pressure, but I didn't seem to feel it during the game. I feel it after the game, in the hotel on the road and when I'm at home with my family. Now, it's finally off our shoulders."

The Twins won the first two games of the Series, 10-1 and 8-4 at the Metrodome. They lost the next three — 3-1, 7-1 and 4-2 — at Busch Stadium, an imposing ballpark that provided a stark contrast to the cozy, sometimes crazy little park that once was called a circus tent in downtown Minneapolis.

In the final two games at Minnesota, the Twins came from behind twice. They trailed John Tudor 4-1 in Game 5 before winning 11-5. Baylor hit a two-run homer that tied the score 4-4, and Kent Hrbek hit a grand slam the next inning to put the game away.

Two Calls Are Looming Big

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals, easy outs in the four World Series games in the Metrodome, didn't take the easy out and blame their defeat on umpiring.

Two years ago, they complained angrily about a bad call by first base umpire Don Denkinger that they said cost them the Series against Kansas City.

On Sunday night, they could have beefed — but didn't — about two calls by first base umpire Lee Weyer of the National League.

"I'm not going to criticize the umpire for losing the game," said St. Louis second baseman Tom Herr, the victim of one of the calls in the sixth inning.

"I haven't been around long enough to criticize Lee Weyer's credibility," said Cardinals' rookie starting pitcher Joe Magrane, the victim of the other in the fifth.

Those two plays contributed to the Twins' 4-2 victory in the seventh game that gave them their first Series victory since they moved to Minnesota in 1961 and the first for the franchise since 1924.

The Cardinals suffered their second Series loss in three years.

The championship was within their grasp in 1985 when they led 3-2 in games and 1-0 in the bottom of the ninth against the Royals. Jorge Orta led off the inning with a grounder to first baseman Jack Clark. Reliever Todd Worrell took the throw and touched the base before Orta.

Look for South Carolina quarterback Todd Ellis to be hyped next year as a Heisman Trophy candidate.

He may not win it, but he certainly is one of the top football players in the country. This, despite the fact that he is only a sophomore now and has two years to be in the running for the Heisman.

Saturday against East Carolina, Ellis, one of several outstanding quarterbacks produced by Greensboro Page High School, completed 21 of 33 passes for 425 yards. That was a new South Carolina single game record. Ellis had established the old mark a year ago against Virginia Tech, 394 yards.

His career totals are now 363 completions for 5,201 yards, both new South Carolina career records.

Considering the fact that he has four more games to play this year, plus two seasons ahead of him — barring injury — one can easily see how he stacks up as a Heisman candidate.

Consider this. The record for most yards passing in an NCAA career is 10,623, held by Kevin Sweeney of Fresno State. Ellis is on target for that. Should he keep up his average per game, some 288 yards per outing, in 44 games he would end up with 12,713 yards.

That might also allow him to pass the record of 11,317 yards of total offense set by Jim McMahon of Brigham Young (depending on how much yardage he may be sacked for).

At any rate, East Carolina and other opponents can look forward to a couple of more years of Todd Ellis at the helm at South Carolina.

Looking at the statistics of the game, one is almost stunned to see that Anthony Simpson got only nine yards in rushing. That certainly is the low point of his fine career at East Carolina.

Simpson said afterwards that the blitz gave the Pirates a great deal of trouble and that may have been part of the problem for him too. He carried only five times, which is also unusual.

Reggie McKinney, who was held in check by Virginia Tech a week ago, did better against South Carolina, carrying 10 times for 58 yards.

Things will get no easier for the Pirates this week, even though they return to Ficklen Stadium. They'll be hosting the number three ranked Miami Hurricanes.

Miami played a common opponent with East Carolina Saturday night, bombing Cincinnati, 48-10, on the Bearcats' home turf. East Carolina gained a 56-28 win earlier in Ficklen Stadium.

But, as you well know, you can't compare scores. The Hurricanes will bring in another outstanding defense and another tough offense. Despite the fact that their quarterback isn't as much of a household name as Bernie Kosar or Vinny Testaverdi was, they are still a long, long way from being devastated — just ask Arkansas.

How the Pirates come out of this past week's game and the one upcoming will tell a lot about the final two. Both Temple and Southern Mississippi present an opportunity for victory, although both will be hard to come by. East Carolina's hopes of a winning season ride on the outcome of the final three games.

Nevertheless, ECU has improved and, although there are some key senior players on the team, there are enough underclassmen to give hope for the future, too.

Elliott Is Just Happy For Win

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — On the day Dale Earnhardt won the war, Bill Elliott was happy just to win another battle.

Earnhardt, who clinched his second straight Winston Cup points championship just by starting Sunday's AC-Delco 500 NASCAR race, wasn't content to sit on the points victory and dueled with his rival from Georgia all the way to the finish line.

Elliott, driving a Ford, was leading the 500-mile race with less than 80 laps to go when Earnhardt started to make his move and spun out on Turn 2.

"I got to running Bill down there one time and I got to going so hard I lost it myself," Earnhardt said. "I ran Bill down but just got a little bit overzealous and crashed it."

Earnhardt dropped down to seventh place after he wrecked his Chevrolet. But he managed to move back into second place in the final laps.

"We were looking good until I messed up and wrecked the car," he said.

But to a record crowd of 50,800 stock car racing fans in Rockingham, it was another classic Earnhardt-Elliott confrontation. Earnhardt predicted more of the same in 1988.

"Bill will definitely be tough," he said. "I look for them to be strong next year."

Of course, he's also looking forward to the challenge of winning a third straight title. Cale Yarborough did it in 1976-78.

"I'm just waiting for '88," Earnhardt said. "The guys are real positive. We're ready to go after them."

Winning the Winston Cup title again Sunday only makes him hungry for more, he said.

"It just gets sweeter every time we go out there and win," he said. Elliott, meanwhile, has more immediate concerns.

"I can't worry about that," he said about losing the championship. "It's over and done with."

With two races left in the season, Elliott is trying to hold off several challengers for second place in Winston Cup standings.

Comebacks Rule NFL's Return

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

It was a day of comebacks on Comeback Day for NFL regulars.

The players' walkout ended 10 days before the strikers were allowed to return to action. There was rustiness on the field, resentment from some of the fans in the stands, and scintillating rallies by a half-dozen teams.

One of those rallies Sunday came in Tampa, where Jim McMahon, making a personal comeback from shoulder surgery, ignited Chicago's surge from a 20-0 deficit to a 27-26 victory.

"Ideally, I would have just come in when we were ahead, dust the moss off and get used to things," said McMahon, who was sidelined last November. He showed little moss, sneaking in for one touchdown and passing to Neal Anderson for the winning TD. "Everyone realized we could get the job done."

They felt the same way in Miami, where the Buffalo Bills were down 21-0 in the first quarter. But Jim Kelly, who hit 29 of 39 passes for 359 yards and two touchdowns, led the Bills back to a 34-31 decision on Scott Norwood's 27-yard field goal 4:08 into overtime.

"I don't know if this was the best game of my career, but it was very sweet," said Kelly, a former star at the University of Miami. "I wouldn't trade it for anything else in the world."

Mark Malone might have thought about trading in his Steelers uniform after the nasty treatment he received from the Pittsburgh crowd. He was booed from the outset Sunday, and banners demanding he "Stay on Strike," hung at Three Rivers Stadium.

But Malone hung in, threw a 12-yard fourth-quarter scoring pass to John Stallworth, then hit Stallworth for 45 yards to set up Gary Anderson's decisive field goal in a 23-20 triumph over Cincinnati.

"I try to do the job for this organization, the coaching staff and my teammates. I don't care what anyone else thinks," Malone said. "I can't worry about the fans, but they don't make my job any easier."

The Oilers, Redskins and Packers didn't make it easy on themselves. Houston beat Atlanta 37-33 when Warren Moon — like Malone, booed most of the game — passed 14 yards to Curtis Duncan for the winning touchdown with 27 seconds left.

Washington, down 16-7 with six minutes remaining, stormed back on a 2-yard TD pass from Jay Schroeder to Kelvin Bryant and a 28-yard field goal by Ali Haji-Sheikh with 54 seconds remaining for a 17-16 win over the New York Jets.

Green Bay blew a 31-7 first-half lead to Detroit. Al Del Greco kicked a 45-yard field goal with one minute left, boosting the Packers back in front 34-33. Then Detroit's Eddie Murray missed from the same distance, giving the Packers a 1-point win.

San Francisco and Indianapolis also were behind before winning. The Saints moved ahead of the 49ers 19-17 when Alvin Toles scored on a blocked punt 1:36 into the fourth period. But

Three Place In Gymnastics

DURHAM — Three Greenville Gymnastics Club members placed in a Class III Compulsory Qualifying meet held in Durham this weekend. Rebecca Witter placed fourth in floor exercises with an 8.45 score in the 9-11 age group. She also was ninth on the uneven bars with a 7.65. In the same age group, Susu Hunnicutt was 10th in floor exercises at 8:15. Both girls missed qualifying by less than half a point. In the 12-14 age group, Wendy Dixon placed second in floor exercises with an 8.65 score.

Earnhardt Clinches Points Championship

ROCKINGHAM (AP) — Dale Earnhardt wasted no time in clinching his second consecutive NASCAR Winston Cup championship Sunday at North Carolina Motor Speedway.

The Kannapolis, N.C., native claimed the title and the approximately $600,000 prize that goes with it by simply running the first lap of the AC-Delco 500 race.

Earnhardt, who finished second behind Bill Elliott in Sunday's race, has an insurmountable 515-point lead with two races remaining on this year's schedule.

"The (crew) has done a super job all year long," Earnhardt said. "It's made it tough on me to keep the pace they've set. The team is always right there behind me. It makes me feel great just to be in the car."

"I never thought I'd win back-to-back championships, but the outlook for another one looks great."

Earnhardt wrapped up the title at the same track where he won the first of 11 races this season. He won the Goodwrench 500 in March at North Carolina Motor Speedway. That victory tied him with Elliott for first place after two races in the 29-race season. Earnhardt won five of the next six races and was well on his way to the championship.

Earnhardt's only regret during his two-year domination of the sport was that his father, Ralph, wasn't around to enjoy the victories. Ralph Earnhardt, a former Grand National driver, died in 1973.

"I wish my dad could've been here along with us when things have been going good," Earnhardt said. "When things started going good for me he wasn't with us anymore, but I've kept him in my heart all along."

The championship was Earnhardt's third overall. He won his first title in 1980.

"It just gets sweeter every time," Earnhardt said.

Hammonds Breaks Finger, To Miss 2 Weeks

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Tech forward Tom Hammonds broke the little finger on his right hand and will miss at least two weeks of preseason basketball practice, the school announced.

Hammonds injured his finger in practice Saturday and X-rays Sunday showed a fracture dislocation of the middle phalanx bone of the finger.

"He was just receiving a pass and the ball hit off his finger," said trainer Crandall Woodson.

Hammonds will be examined again Monday, Woodson said, but he is expected to miss the next two weeks of practice.

Hammonds, a junior, averaged 16.2 points and 7.2 rebounds a game as strong forward for the Yellow Jackets last season. But coach Bobby Cremins has said he might start Hammonds at center because of the absence of an experienced center on the team this year.

"Tom will be back and nothing has really changed," Cremins said Sunday. Georgia Tech opens its season Nov. 20 at home against Alcorn State in the first round of the preseason National Invitation Tournament.

Reid Gets First Win In 11 Years

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — It was, without question, the most emotional victory of the PGA Tour season.

Mike Reid's eyes misted over. His voice cracked and quavered as he tried, in vain, to find the words he wanted to describe his first triumph in 11 long years of frustration and disappointment.

"I'm grateful to my wife, my mother and my father, my brothers, for not letting me quit," he said Sunday after winning the Tucson Open by four strokes. "There hasn't been a tournament in the last 11 years that I didn't say, 'I can win this tournament.'"

"Of course, I didn't."

"Not until today."

"All the cliches are right."

"It's always too soon to give up."

"You must believe you can do it, no matter how small the cavern the hope may be hiding in, the attitude 'I can do it' must be there."

"If it takes 11 years, then it takes 11 years," Reid said in a long rambling statement at the winner's news conference.

The slender, soft-spoken 33-year-old finally broke into the winner's circle as he came from four shots off the pace with a final-round 67 for a 20-under-par 268 total over the new TPC course at Star Pass.

The victory was worth $108,000 from the total purse of $600,000 and pushed Reid's season's earnings to a career-best $306,434.

It also insured him of a place in next week's Nabisco Championships of Golf, which offers $3 million in prize money. Coming into Tucson, Reid held the 30th and last place on the points list that qualified players for the Nabisco tournament in San Antonio, Texas.

Reid was the first man to collect $1 million in career earnings without winning a tournament.

Geiberger Glad To Be A Senior

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Al Geiberger wasn't sure he wanted to venture out on the PGA Senior Tour, but now he's glad he did.

"At first I was afraid to go out on the Senior Tour because of all the low scores I saw they were shooting," Geiberger said. "Now it's me who goes out and shoots the low number."

Geiberger, who qualified for the tour by turning 50 last month, shot a very low number Sunday. He fired a course record 10-under-par 62 to win the $250,000 PGA Las Vegas Senior Classic.

Geiberger has only played in four seniors tournaments so far, and he's won three of them.

Among those impressed by his record tour of the Desert Inn Country Club course was Chi Chi Rodriguez, whose round of 66 still left him four shots short of the winner.

"It was a beautiful thing to watch," Rodriguez said. "He was like an artist out there."

Geiberger, who holds the all-time PGA mark for 18 holes with a round of 59, had eight birdies and an eagle to better the old Desert Inn record by two shots. He had a 64 during Thursday's pro-am, which tied Jack Nicklaus' 1963 score over the layout and Paul Azinger's round of last year.

Newsome Hopes To Find a Seam

CLEVELAND (AP) — Tight end Ozzie Newsome thinks he may be just the weapon the Cleveland Browns need to take advantage of the Los Angeles Rams' defense.

"I know they play a zone defense where they try to get back to a certain spot and then look back at the quarterback," Newsome said. "That works to a possession receiver's advantage. You should be able to find a hole in the defense, and the way Bernie (Kosar) throws the ball, we should be successful."

Browns Coach Marty Schottenheimer, however, isn't so sure Kosar will be able to exploit the Rams' defense as easily as Newsome suggests, even though Los Angeles enters tonight's game with the NFL's worst defensive ranking against the pass.

"They're probably the best team at reacting to the thrown ball as any team I've seen," Schottenheimer said. "When that ball is coming out of the quarterback's hand, there are three guys going at the guy he's throwing the ball to."

Schottenheimer said he spent his time last week studying videotape of the Rams' regular team in the pre-season and the first two games of the season, virtually ignoring the three replacement games.

Although Los Angeles was 0-2 in those two pre-strike games, "they were in position to win both of the games in the fourth quarter," Schottenheimer said.

The Rams, 1-4, lost to Houston after leading 16-3 in the fourth quarter, and Minnesota also beat them with a late score.

Cleveland, 3-2, was 1-1 in the pre-strike games.

The Browns' replacement team relied heavily on a version of the Chicago Bears' regular team in the pre-season and the first two games of the season, but Schottenheimer said he would use the formation less frequently now that the regulars have returned.

"We'll use a little of it (the Bears defense), but I'm not sure we'll use it as much as we did in the replacement games," Schottenheimer said.

The Bears' defense puts as many as eight defenders near the line of scrimmage and is particularly strong against the run. Cleveland used the formation about 10 times in its last game before the strike and limited the Pittsburgh Steelers to 58 yards rushing.

"That defense has gotten popular," said Rams Coach John Robinson, whose offense still centers on the run because of the presence of running back Eric Dickerson. "I think people are getting more and more into some combination of an eight-man front — eight people filling in the gaps. It's a style of defense that's as old as the game itself."

NFL Regulars Return...

Joe Montana found Mike Wilson for a 14-yard touchdown two minutes later and the 49ers held on, 24-22.

The Colts were down 6-0 to the Patriots in the first quarter. But a pair of replacement players made key plays as Indianapolis came back for a 30-16 victory for Coach Ron Meyer, who was fired by New England in 1985.

The New York Giants won the Super Bowl in January and didn't have a victory that counted since. On Sunday, they rectified that with a 30-7 rout of St. Louis before the first non-sellout ever for a regular game at Giants Stadium.

Attendance also was below par in Houston (29,062) and Detroit (27,278).

San Diego upped its record to 5-1, best in the AFC, with a 42-21 decision over Kansas City; Philadelphia took Dallas 37-20; and Seattle romped past the Raiders 35-13.

There will be two games tonight. The Rams are at Cleveland in the regularly scheduled contest. The Vikings were supposed to play the Broncos in the Metrodome on Sunday, but the seventh game of the World Series forced a switch.

Bears 27, Buccaneers 26

The Bucs swept to a 20-0 lead in the first quarter as Steve DeBerg — who rehabilitated an injured knee during the strike — threw for two touchdowns and Winston Moss recovered a Mike Tomczak fumble in the end zone. At halftime, it was 23-14 — but the Bears had blocked an extra point that would prove crucial.

McMahon replaced Tomczak for the second half, hitting 17 of 24 passes for 195 yards. After his 6-yard TD pass to Anderson, Kevin Butler, who earlier had missed a conversion, kicked the extra point.

Chicago, which had seven sacks, also had four fumbles and nine penalties.

"The main thing was it would have been easy to throw in the towel, but we didn't," Ditka added. "Jim McMahon did it on his own at the end. He's a tough son of a gun."

Bills 34, Dolphins 31

Buffalo won for only the third time ever in Miami — and the first since a 38-35 overtime win in the Orange Bowl in 1983. That was the last time before Sunday the Bills had won two straight.

This game, the first for the Dolphins regulars at Joe Robbie Stadium, was a pitcher's duel. Kelly, a local hero at the University of Miami, held his own with Dan Marino, who was booed early by the 61,295 fans. Marino completed 24 of 36 for 303 yards and four TDs, three in the first half. His 12-yard pass to Mark Clayton with 63 seconds remaining tied it.

The Bills won the coin toss and marched 65 yards in eight plays before Norwood's kick.

"I prayed so much before that coin flip," Kelly said. "I knew that if Marino got his hands on the ball it could be over."

"It's about as bad as I've been around for self-destruction," Dolphin Coach Don Shula said. "There is no other way to say it — we just caved in the second half."

Steelers 23, Bengals 20

Cincinnati's regulars lost their second consecutive heartbreaker. Before the strike, they fell to San Francisco on the final play after some bizarre play-calling by Coach Sam Wyche.

This time, Malone rallied the Steelers, then the Bengals got into field goal position, only to have the clock run out before they could get off the kick.

"It's devastating to keep losing like this ... just devastating," quarterback Boomer Esiason said. "This is the second time in a row this has happened to us, and there's just no way to describe how I feel."

The Steelers were feeling pretty good about a 4-2 record, their best start since 1982 — the last strike season.

Oilers 37, Falcons 33

In a game that was tied six times, Moon came alive at the end. Boed when he was introduced and again after throwing an interception, Moon shrugged off the criticism and a 3-for-15 showing in the second half. He hit Drew Hill and Ernest Givins on 29-yard passes, setting up Duncan's second touchdown catch of the game.

"Warren did an excellent job because we had a lot of bad field position and he marched us everytime we needed it," guard Mike Munchak said.

Mike Rozier rushed for 144 yards for Houston.

Redskins 17, Jets 16

The Redskins were hearing "Bring back the scabs" from the sellout crowd as they listlessly fell behind 16-7. But the Jets, who allowed seven quarterback sacks, couldn't hold the lead.

Bryant provided much of the late spark, despite a hamstring injury that limited him to spot duty. He caught three passes for 56 yards in a 61-yard drive that ended with his touchdown.

"Thank goodness it felt good enough at the end," Coach Joe Gibbs said. "Kelvin made about five big plays in the fourth quarter."

"For three quarters we couldn't get anything going. Our defense was bailing us out. I hope we don't do that ever again."

Player Of The Week

North Pitt's Ashley Sheppard was a thorn in the side of South Lenoir on both sides of the line of scrimmage, leading the Panthers to a 49-12 romp Friday night and for his efforts, he is the Daily Reflector Player of the Week.

Sheppard, a senior offensive end and inside linebacker, scored three touchdowns against the Blue Devils and also made 11 tackles to lead the North Pitt defense.

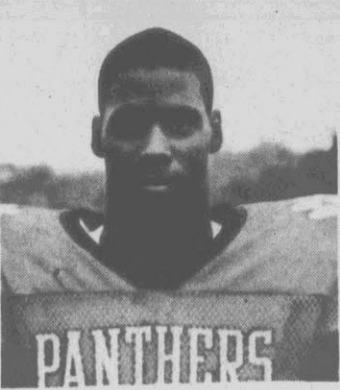

The first score came on a 65-yard fumble return. His second touchdown came on a 69-yard pass from quarterback Calvin Hunter. Sheppard closed out his scoring on a 78-yard interception return.

Prep Honor Roll
 Ayden-Grifton halfback Eric Blount: Blount provided the big plays for the Chargers in a 14-6 win over Farmville Central, running for 153 yards on 18 carries and both Charger scores. His first score came on a 75-yard punt return and the second was a 76-yard run.

D.H. Conley quarterback Bronswell Patrick: Patrick hit on 10 of 18 passes for 110 yards and two touchdowns, a 24-yarder to Derrick Credle and a 28-yarder to Chuckie Gardner, as the Vikings topped Greene Central, 14-12.

North Pitt quarterback Calvin Hunter: Hunter completed four of five passes for 111 yards to help North Pitt roll over Eastern Plains Conference foe South Lenoir, 49-12.

Greene Central quarterback Kris Radford: Radford, in a losing effort, threw for 164 yards, completing 12 of 22 passes and one touchdown, in a 14-12 loss to D.H. Conley.

Rose tailback Tim Moore: Moore ran for 89 yards on only 11 carries and also completed a 22-yard touchdown pass to quarterback Tom Moyer for the winning touchdown as the Rampants held off Wilson Fike, 14-7.

Washington quarterback Franz Holscher: Holscher hit on seven of 16 passes with one interception and one touchdown to help the Pam Pack score a 15-9 upset victory over West Craven. For the season, he has over 1,000 yards passing.

Chocowinity running back William Haywood: Haywood ran for 159 yards and one touchdown on 26 carries as the Indians romped by Creswell, 30-3, to clinch a playoff spot.

Packers 34, Lions 33

Kenneth Davis had 39 and 28-yard scoring runs and Don Majkowski threw a 70-yard TD pass to Walter Stanley, helping Green Bay to its big lead. Then Chuck Long passed for three touchdowns and, when Garry James scored from the 2 with 3:02 remaining, Detroit was ahead.

But Majkowski, a rookie 10th-round draft selection, guided the Packers 42 yards in nine plays and Del Greco kicked the winning field goal.

"We stuck together as a team during the strike," Majkowski said. "It was evident that we worked hard and didn't lose any of our timing. I think it was a factor."

49ers 24, Saints 22

Montana, who played in two of the three replacement games, passed for 256 yards and three touchdowns. The 49ers also were aided by New Orleans penalties, including five for 68 yards on either interference or defensive holding calls, in building a 17-6 halftime lead. San Francisco got five first downs on penalties.

Morten Andersen kicked five field goals for New Orleans. He has made 104 of 126 attempts since entering the NFL in 1982, making him the most accurate placekicker in NFL history.

Colts 30, Patriots 16

Jack Trudeau, a loser in all 11 of his starts last year, once again took over for injured Gary Hogeboom at quarterback. This time, Trudeau produced, passing for 239 yards and a touchdown without any turnovers.

He got help from Donnell Thompson, who returned a fumble 28 yards for a touchdown, and Albert Bentley, who ran 12 yards for another after rookie Terry Wright, a replacement player, blocked a New England punt. Mike Prior, another replacement, ended New England's final threat with a pass interception and 38-yard return with 1:40 remaining.

Giants 30, Cardinals 7

The Giants, who have played before sellouts in the Meadowlands since moving there in 1976, fell 1,431 short. But they got what they after, their first victory of the season.

Phil Simms, the Super Bowl MVP, threw three touchdown passes and the defense had five sacks. The Cardinals didn't score until 1:55 remained.

Simms threw first-quarter touchdown passes of three yards to Mark Bavaro and 16 yards to Lionel Manuel. He also threw a 38-yard touchdown toss in the fourth quarter to Manuel, who made a spectacular diving catch in the end zone.

"It seemed like any other game," he said. "We're one and five, so what? If our defense plays like that every week, we'll win a lot of games."

Chargers 42, Chiefs 21

San Diego's replacements won all three games and the regulars returned — bolstered by eight fill-ins — for more of the same. The romp past the Chiefs gave the Chargers their best start since 1968.

Dan Fouts completed 24 of 34 passes for 293 yards and two touchdowns and also scored on a quarterback sneak. Les Miller, a replacement player who worked in a crayon factory before joining the Chargers, recovered a fumble in the end zone for another touchdown.

Miller, a defensive lineman, also helped the Chargers record seven sacks.

Eagles 37, Cowboys 20

Buddy Ryan promised his team would get back at the Cowboys for what he considered an insult during the strike — Dallas Coach Tom Landry ended an Eagles threat to score a meaningless touchdown by sending in veterans who had crossed the picket line.

So, with one second to go and the victory secure, Ryan had Keith Byars run the ball from 1. He scored.

"That last touchdown was very satisfying," Ryan said. "I told you — what goes around comes around."

Defensive end Clyde Simmons recovered a fumble and blocked a field goal to set up 10 points.

Seahawks 35, Raiders 13

Curt Warner ran for two touchdowns and Freddie Young returned an interception 50 yards for another score for Seattle, which had lost four straight in Los Angeles.

"We were surprised we scored as many points as we did here," wide receiver Steve Largent of the Seahawks said. "We always seem to score 14 points, 10 points, every time we come in here. This time, we had 28 by halftime."

Twins Take Series ...

In the seventh game, St. Louis led 2-1 against Viola until Minnesota tied it in the fifth. With one out, Gagne reached on an infield single to first when Weyer said rookie pitcher Joe Magrane was too slow to the bag. At first, it looked like Magrane had missed the bag entirely, but a televised replay showed he did touch the base, probably ahead of Gagne.

"The black shoe hit the bag before the red shoe," Weyer said. "He might have hit the bag later, but the black shoe hit it first, that's for sure."

Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog then took out Magrane, who had allowed a second-inning run on Steve Lombardozi's single. Danny Cox, who pitched 7 1/3 innings in Thursday night's Game 5, came in, and Puckett hit a double into the alley in right-center, scoring Gagne from first.

Cox walked the first two batters in the sixth, and Todd Worrell came in. After Tim Laudner popped out, Worrell walked Lombardozi to load the bases. Gladden struck out, but Gagne hit a hard one-hopper down the third-base line. Tom Lawless, playing for Pendleton, made a diving stop of the ball, but his one-hop throw was too late to get Gagne, and Brunansky scored from third.

After he was taken out of the game, Cox was ejected for arguing balls and strikes with home plate umpire Dave Phillips of the American League. The frustration was obvious.

"I thought he (Phillips) missed a couple of pitches, but I don't know," Herzog said. "Danny was awful wild tonight. It's tough to get close calls when you're wild."

The Twins scored another run in the eighth. Laudner singled with one out, and after Al Newman popped out, Gladden doubled to right field.

Viola allowed consecutive singles to Jim Lindeman, McGee and Tony Pena for one run in the second, and after there were two away, Steve Lake singled home another run. After Lake's single, Viola did not allow another baserunner until Herr singled with one out in the sixth.

That's when the Cardinals got robbed by Weyer for sure. Viola had Herr picked off first base. Herr broke for second, and Twins first baseman Kent Hrbek threw to Lombardozi at second. Hrbek stepped back, and Herr retreated. First, Herr ran into Hrbek, then he stepped back into first base, clearly under the tag of Viola, who had come over to help out in the rundown.

"I got blocked out of the play," Weyer said. "Hrbek ran right in front of me as I was going to call the play. I didn't see him (Herr) touch the bag. There was no obstruction (by Hrbek) in my opinion. The timing of the play, in my opinion, was that Herr was out."

Viola came out after the eighth inning, having given up just two runs on six hits. He struck out seven and didn't walk a batter.

"We never got down on ourselves all year," Viola said, "because nobody expected us to win anyway. This is a great feeling right now."

Reardon came on to get the final three outs. He retired Herr on a shallow fly to center. Pinch-hitter Curt Ford popped out to third, and McGee grounded to third.

"It seemed like every pitch took five minutes," Brunansky said. "So slow. So slow. I had to take a breath, step back a little. If a ball came to me, I had to make sure I knew what to do with it."

Brunansky said that during the final three innings, the crowd noise was so great "that I never felt anything as heavy as that feeling. It was like the air was thick, and the people just wanted it. A player can sense that."

For Gaetti, the last few innings were an even stranger experience. "It was like I was in a daze after a while," he said. "Don't you guys understand what I'm saying? I wasn't in my body anymore. I was watching, like it was on TV. And it was like deja vu, like I had seen it all before, but I wasn't in my body. I wasn't here."

Very strange, for here was where the Minnesota Twins did it all in 1987.

Hit That Did It

Metrodome Was The Twins' MVP

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The MVP of the World Series was the Metrodome. That's MVP — as in Most Valuable Place.

Records will show the Minnesota Twins as 1987 champions of the baseball world. Reality will show them as champions of their own city.

Just as they are the only champions to win four World Series home games, they are also the only champions not to win a single World Series road game.

To hear the losers tell it, the Twins are really just semi-Series champions.

St. Louis Shortstop Ozzie Smith: "They were able to play four games here and they won all four. We won all three at our park, too."

St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog: "No team in history ever had to play four games up here. This is a very good team in this ballpark."

Emphasize "in this ballpark."

Watching the Twins is like watching a pot boil. Put the lid on, and they explode.

The Twins put together baseball's best home record this season, 56-25, but playing away from the Metrodome, they were only 29-52, the worst traveling record — ever — of any team to win a pennant.

"I don't know what it is," Twins reliever Jeff Reardon said. "It really does amaze me. I try to figure it out, I really do — why we're so bad on the road and so different here. We talk about it all the time in the clubhouse. All I know it's amazing."

In four games at home, the Twins scored 33 runs on 46 hits. In three games at St. Louis, they scored five runs on 18 hits. Minnesota had one homer in three games at Busch Stadium; six in the four here.

"They sure can hit here," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said. "Gosh darn, they can hit here. They win only nine games on the road after the All-Star break, and they hit like that here."

Seattle Manager Dick Williams has accused the Twins of stealing signs at home.

"I was looking out towards center field for flashing lights or something, but I didn't see anything," Herzog said.

No one seems to be able to single out a reason for the Twins' success at home, probably because there is no single reason.

It's a screwy little ballpark with plastic outfield walls and a teflon-coated roof, where — despite disclaimers — the ball carries very well. It's hard to see the ball once it's in the air, especially at night against the backdrop of the opaque ceiling, and the ball sometimes come out of the outfield corners at crazy angles. The dimensions are modest — 408 feet to center field, 327 down the right-field line, 343 down the left-field line — but certainly there are smaller parks in the major leagues.

"The stadium is different than any other in the league," Twins third baseman Gary Gaetti said. "The ceiling, the plexiglass — we know this park. The balls bounce our way here."

The crowd noise, loud by any standard, is so magnified by the acoustics of the Metrodome that ABC-TV invented a new piece of electronics to complement its ubiquitous radar guns: decibel meters to gauge crowd appreciation — like Ted Mack used on his "Original Amateur Hour."

Before the World Series began, Twins pitcher Bert Blyleven had a warning for the Cardinals.

"When they come in here, they'd better be prepared not be able to hear anything for four hours — not even themselves think," he said. "That's why we're so good here. We don't think."

Obviously, he was being facetious, but the crowd noise can be unnerving to a rival, especially one such as St. Louis which had never played here before. Joe Magrane, the Cardinals' starter in the first and last games, used earplugs. It didn't help — Magrane lost Game 1 and didn't make it through the fifth inning in Game 7.

Perhaps overlooked at times, but as important as any other element of the Twins' success here, is emotion. This is a young ballclub. Only five players on the team have postseason experience, and they have the major leagues' youngest manager, 37-year-old Tom Kelly.

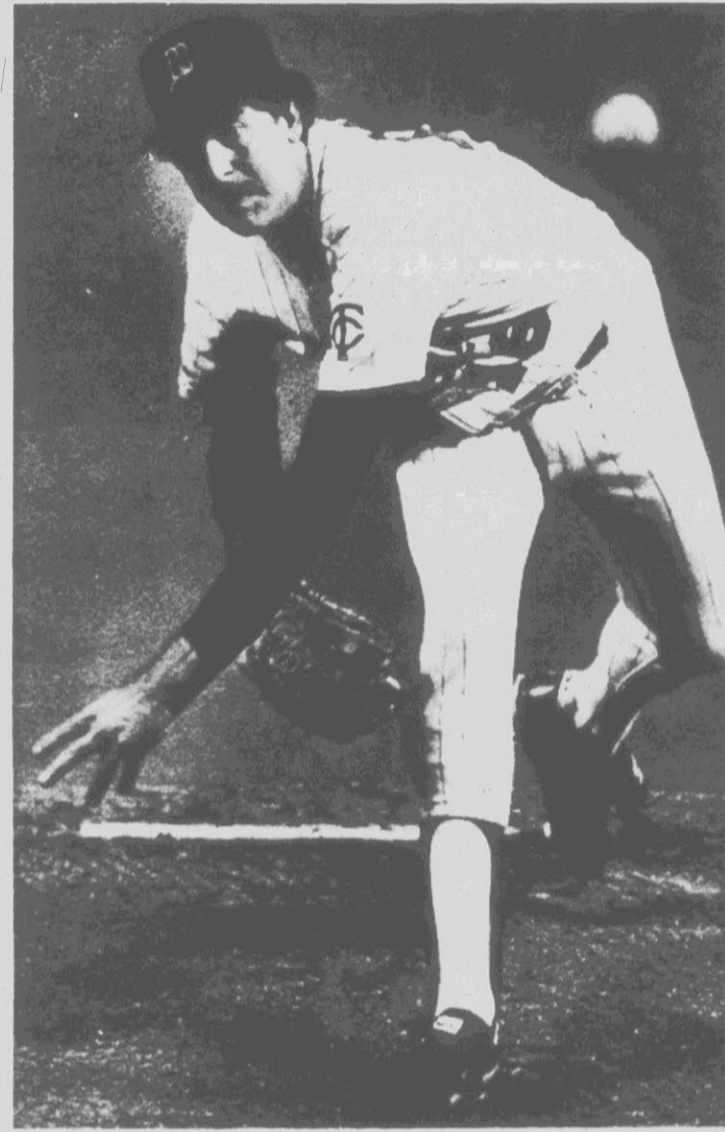

The Twins play with fire — the kind that gets this little pot boiling — and that's not always easy on the road.

"We played good here all year, and on the road we've been kind of dead," rookie pitcher Les Straker said.

Gaetti and teammate Kirby Puckett believe the Metrodome imparts a sense of invincibility and determination to the Twins.

"We feel like we'll always win here," the 29-year-old Gaetti said. "We never feel down in this place. It's always a plus being here."

Puckett, 26-year-old Twins center fielder, said: "We just don't like to lose here. We can be down five or six runs and come back. We get a couple of bloop hits here and there and then Gaetti hits a home run and we win."

Viola's Victory

Key Plays ...

But Denkinger, an American League umpire, called Orta safe and the Royals rallied for a 2-1 victory and won the Series with an 11-0 Game 7 rout.

The Twins also were hurt Sunday night by a second-inning call by home plate umpire Dave Phillips, who ruled Don Baylor out at home when Baylor apparently slid under catcher Steve Lake's tag.

"It's an unwritten rule in baseball," Baylor said. "If the ball beats you, you're always out. Of course, I don't agree with it. Why don't they make the guy apply the tag?"

Herr might ask the same question.

With the score 2-2 and one out in the sixth, he singled. Winner Frank Viola picked him off first and he was caught in a rundown. Second baseman Steve Lombardozi threw to Viola, covering

Minnesota's Viola Gets MVP Award

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Frank Viola has had a love-hate relationship with the Metrodome. This season, he loved everything about it.

Viola won Game 7 of the World Series Sunday night under the Teflon skies as Minnesota beat St. Louis 4-2 for the Twins' first championship since moving from Washington in 1961. It was the first for the franchise since 1924, when Walter Johnson won Game 7 against the New York Giants.

Viola, who won Game 1 at the Metrodome, was named the Most Valuable Player of the Series.

He is the 15th pitcher to win the World Series MVP but just the third in the last 19 seasons (Rollie Fingers in 1974 and Bret Saberhagen in 1985 were the others).

"It was the last thing on my mind," Viola said of winning MVP honors. "So many guys contributed. And I didn't do much in Game 4. I wish I could share this with everybody. Everyone made a contribution at some point in this series just like they did all season."

Viola allowed six hits in eight innings in Game 7 and struck out seven. In Game 4 at St. Louis, he lasted only 3 1/3 innings, allowing six hits and five runs.

The victory in Game 7 improved Viola's record to 14-3 overall this season at the Metrodome. He hasn't lost here since May 22.

The Twins went 56-25 at home during the regular season and became the first team in history to win the Series by taking all four games at home.

But pitching at home was not always an idea that warmed Viola's pitching arm.

"My first couple of years I hated this ballpark," Viola said. "I couldn't get anyone out. You just have to learn how to adjust, and over the last few years I've been able to do that."

Viola retired the Cardinals in order in the first inning and then allowed two runs on four singles in the second as the Cards took a 2-0 lead.

CBS 'Top Flight' Salutes Air Force

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS pre-empted regular programming for an hour Tuesday night for "Top Flight," a rather pedestrian tribute to the 40th anniversary of the Air Force.

The one-hour documentary from Emmy-winning producer Arnold Shapiro ("Scared Straight") does have a few soaring moments, but otherwise it looks more like a high-school educational film than a network television show.

The host is William Shatner, star of the old "Star Trek" series. The show's individual segments are good, but instead of being linked effectively, they are divided for no apparent logical purpose into four sections on aviation — heroes, rescue missions, female flyers and fighter pilots.

It's evident right away that the documentary does not know whether it is a tribute to the Air Force, flying in general, or maybe movies about flying.

It begins with film clips from the movie "The Right Stuff" — the tale of pilots from the Air Force, Marines and Navy who became astronauts in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration program — and continually reverts to movie footage. This is not an undesirable device to provide drama and color, but it gets to be a bit much. For instance, only a brief excerpt from a government film shows the real Chuck Yeager, climbing into the X-1 before breaking the sound barrier. Otherwise, Yeager is seen only as portrayed by Sam Shepard.

There are periodic highlights, like an interview with aged Gen. Jimmy Doolittle who recounts the real story behind the movie "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," the World War II bombing mission he led right into the heart of enemy territory.

"I have never felt fear," Doolittle says. "I am single-minded. I can think of only one thing at a time. If I'm in a very hot spot indeed, I am thinking how to get out of that spot."

He looks again to movie footage. Doolittle recalled worrying that he would be in trouble because he crash-landed his bomber. Instead, he received the Medal of Honor.

They didn't get medals, but women flew, too, in World War II. Maj. Teresa James was one of the 1,000 Women's Air Corps members who ferried planes from factory to base, freeing male pilots for combat duty. "We were like sisters," she says in an interview. "Sisters in the sky."

The fighter-pilot segments embody the history of the Air Force, beginning with the Army Air Corps of eight planes — all of them lost in battles against Pancho Villa on the Mexican border.

World War I flying ace Arthur "Ray" Brooks recalls his matter-of-factly fatalistic attitude toward getting into a rickety biplane that had been shipped to Europe in pieces and reassembled.

"When you got a plane that lasted an hour or two, you nursed it so you had a plane that lasted maybe four hours," he said. Compasses were no good. He went by the sun. There were no parachutes. "I expected to die, period. It's as simple as that," Brooks says.

That brings us to "rescues," the most engaging portion of the show.

Col. Gail Halvorsen was the "candy bomber" in the Berlin airlift. With home movies, Halvorsen recalls his private mission — dropping goodies in small handchief parachutes from his cargo plane to children below. When word of his "candy bombing" reached the United States, he was inundated with hankies by mail.

The producers might have made some of their interviews more effective by juxtaposing them, such as the young Air Force pilot instructor lamenting his lack of combat experience. "It's the great unknown for guys my age," he says.

Then they could have cut to Senior Master Sgt. Duane Hackney, who rescued downed pilots in the Vietnam War. There is harrowing footage of Hackney dangling by a cable from a Jolly Green Giant helicopter and plucking a pilot from the jungle while U.S. gunships try to suppress enemy fire.

"I lost a lot of friends over there," says Hackney, weeping at a memorial to fellow rescuers who lost their lives in Vietnam. "There's no romance or anything involved in war. War is the killing of human beings. Us lucky ones came back with memories of the ones who stayed over there. "I had the best job in Vietnam," he says. "Saving lives."

'Star Trek' Creator Says Fantasy Can Run Away

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Good science fiction is a playground of the imagination, and that can be both asset and drawback, says "Star Trek" creator Gene Roddenberry.

"You almost have too much latitude," he said. "It's hard to know how far to let your imagination go. You want the audience to feel that they're really on the Enterprise with the crew."

"But if you let your imagination go too far they won't feel that way at all. The audience wants to have fun and be entertained."

"Star Trek: The Next Generation," a new, first-run syndication series from Paramount Television, is off on what looks like another long, successful voyage.

The new series is set in the 24th century, after the crew of the original Enterprise has passed into legend — although in the pilot, Dr. Leonard "Bones" McCoy (DeForrest Kelley) makes a brief appearance as a superannuated admiral, age 137.

The series has a new cast, headed by British Shakespearean actor Patrick Stewart as Starfleet Capt. Jean-Luc Picard. Jonathan Frakes is Executive Officer William Riker and LeVar Burton is Lt. Geordi La Forge, a blind man who "sees" by means of a device worn over his eyes.

There are no unemotional Vulcans, like Mr. Spock, but Roddenberry has come up with some exotic characters. Marina Sirtis plays Lt. Deanna Troi, a half-human psychologist who can sense emotions. Brent Spiner plays Lt. Cmdr. Data, an android without human preconceptions, but the desire to be human more than anything.

Roddenberry is executive producer. D.C. Fontana, who also worked on the original series 20 years ago, co-wrote the pilot with Roddenberry.

"A writer of science fiction has to have such a vast knowledge," Roddenberry said. "He has to know history, economics, anthropology and many other subjects. I'm not looking for messages, but good writers usually find something important to write about."

When Roddenberry was asked to bring "Star Trek" back to television, he faced several choices.

"The obvious way was to do a reread and use Spock and Kirk," he said. "Many people voted for that. But I said, how can you get good writers and directors and tell them to do a reread?"

"But to get the kind of energy and enthusiasm we needed you have to have new characters and a new series. You don't get the best people. You don't get the best actors. I decided the best way to do it, and it's a considerable risk, was to push it 78 years into the future. Spock and Kirk are heroes of the past."

The new "galaxy-class" Enterprise is so big, the crew can take their families with them. Roddenberry said it would cover the 44-acre Paramount lot.

"We need a bigger ship because they're going deeper into the galaxy," he said. "The old missions were for five years. Now they're for 10. There will be some families aboard the ship. Plus passengers. The old Navy sometimes took families along. The wagon trains going west took families, of course."

Roddenberry says he is a great fan of C.S. Forester's Horatio Hornblower series, which chronicled the rise of Hornblower from midshipman in the British Navy to lord and admiral of the red squadron.

"One of the first things I did when we started the first series was ask William Shatner to read the Hornblower series," he said. "I followed that same feeling of loneliness, of being wedded to a vessel. There is no better classic series about the sea than Forester's."

This time the Enterprise will go where "no one" has ever gone before, not "where no man has gone before."

"It was pointed out that the original phrase was sexist," he said. "Of course, 21 years ago, no one questioned it."

"People were also shocked 21 years ago when I made a woman an officer on the bridge. They were devastated when I made her black."

"What's happened is that in 21 years the quality of the writing and the thinking on television has gotten better," said Roddenberry.

"Star Trek" was a failed series," he said. "The only thing that kept us on the air was the fan's letters. We got paid $20,000 an episode less than "Mission: Impossible." I expected to run into people who said they liked the show. But the phenomenon started a few years ago, after the show was off the air. So far it's made over $1 billion for Paramount."

Actress Liv Ullmann Meets Soviet Activist

HAIFA, Israel (AP) — Actress Liv Ullmann, who recently portrayed Ida Nudel in a film, said meeting the Soviet Jewish activist was an "enormous experience."

Ullmann, 49, a human rights activist who has promoted the cause of Soviet Jewry, met with Ms. Nudel for two hours Saturday.

"I have been involved in her case for years and to meet Ida was enormous experience," the Norwegian actress told reporters Sunday in the northern port city of Haifa.

"Everybody said that she has this beautiful innocent smile and that's what I tried to show in portraying her. I met Ida who really has a beautiful, innocent smile. I was captivated," Ullmann said.

Nudel, 56, had sought permission to emigrate from the Soviet Union for 16 years and arrived to a red carpet welcome in Israel on Oct. 15.

Ullmann was in Israel to receive a honorary doctorate from Haifa University, awarded "in recognition for her exemplary contribution to the performing arts and in acknowledgement of her multifaceted service in the cause of human values and individual rights."

"Will you talk it to me, Daddy?"

FORECAST FOR Tuesday Oct. 27

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Contact some powerful people you know regarding a new project. Be sure to avoid any arguments with associates.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Many modern ideas will occur to you today, so be a progressive thinker and implement them to your advantage now.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Don't be unreasonable if confronted with some criticism with afternoon. There may be a problem with your car tonight—be cautious.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Reserve some time for your mate tonight, as this person has been feeling a bit neglected. Keep a cheerful attitude all day.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Don't rely on others to handle your responsibilities—your work is being scrutinized by superiors. Watch your budget carefully.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Maintain a serious attitude even though you may be tempted to laugh at someone's opinion. Be objective and open-minded.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): If you can see your way clear to lending money to a friend, do so. You know this person will definitely pay you back conscientiously.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Now is the time to ask a favor of a superior. You should pay particular attention to your checkbook right now, as there may be a mistake.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Have a good time with your mate at a social affair tonight. Don't criticize the ideas of others if you don't understand them.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Formulate a plan of action early today, then stick to it. Don't rely on your intuition when dealing with family members tonight.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Be sure all of your bills are paid on time, and be ready to face some new debts incurred from property repairs. Drive carefully.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Don't judge a book by its cover when you meet new people today. If you keep an open mind, you may make some new and lasting friends.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AKQ985 ♥83 ♦762 ♣83
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass
 3♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
 A.—Don't bid three spades—that offers partner a choice of contracts when, in fact, your hand is oriented to playing in spades. Tell your partner that you need controls from him for slam, not spade support. Jump to four spades.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠KQ872 ♥83 ♦954 ♣Q83
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass
 3♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
 A.—Partner's jump shift might have been predicated on a fit for your suit. Tell him you have a reasonable five-card suit by rebidding three spades.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AQ92 ♥95 ♦1092 ♣J762
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass
 3♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
 A.—You can arrive at this answer by a process of elimination. Your club stopper is hardly the sort to make you comfortable at a three no trump contract, and rebidding a four-card spade suit is strictly taboo; also, you cannot raise partner's second suit with only three-card support. That leaves only a preference to three hearts.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠KJ85 ♥952 ♦83 ♣Q1062
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West

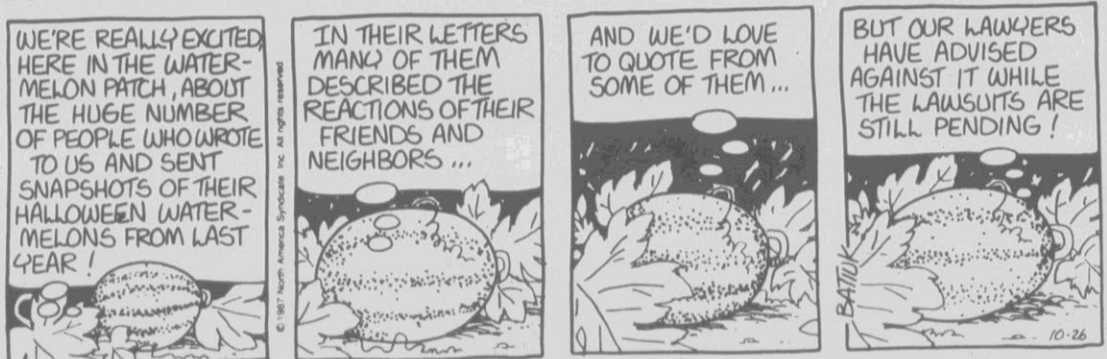

1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass
 3♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
 A.—With three-card support for partner's first suit and a ruffing value, a preference to three hearts over three no trump is clear-cut. Why didn't you bid two hearts in the first place? With such a weak hand and poor three-card support, you didn't want to give partner any encouragement.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠KJ85 ♥83 ♦952 ♣Q1062
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass
 3♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
 A.—Almost the same hand as before, except your red-suit holdings have been switched. Now you want to tell partner you have little interest in his suits, but you do have a club stopper. Bid three no trump.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠QJ762 ♥5 ♦K1083 ♣A63
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass
 3♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
 A.—You are in slam territory, but how do you get the message across? If you set the trump suit by raising diamonds and partner goes on to game, you won't know what to do. Make an advance cue-bid of four clubs. For the moment partner will play you for a black two-suiter, but when you correct to diamonds at your next turn, he should get the picture.

The City of Greenville, North Carolina, through Greenville Area Transit intends to make charter services available within five (5) miles of the City limits if there are no private transportation companies willing and able to provide these services. These charters will consist of short trips which typically involve less than five (5) miles transportation service. The charters would be provided using a van or transit coaches. Any private operator desiring to be considered willing and able should submit written evidence to prove that it is willing and able within 30 days from the date of this notice. Written evidence should be sent to Mayo E. Allen, Public Works Director, City of Greenville, P.O. Box 2784, Greenville, North Carolina 27834. The evidence necessary for the City of Greenville to determine if a private charter operator is willing and able includes the following: (a) The private charter operator shall have the desire and physical capability to actually provide charters with a van or transit coaches; (b) A copy of the documents providing the private charter operator has the requisite legal authority to provide the proposed charter service and that it meets all necessary safety certification, licensing and other legal requirements to provide the proposed charter service. The City of Greenville shall review only the evidence submitted within thirty days of this notice and shall complete the review within thirty days of the deadline, and shall inform each private operator that submitted evidence what the results of the review are within sixty days of the deadline. The City of Greenville shall not provide any charter service using equipment or facilities funded under the Acts to the extent that there is at least one willing and able private charter operator unless the City of Greenville qualifies for one or more of the exceptions in 49 CFR Section 604.9(b).

IF YOU'RE NOT INTERESTED IN SAVING YOUR MONEY, GO DIRECTLY TO THE PART ABOUT SAVING YOUR LIFE.

The really nice thing about saving money on your power bills is that it's very, very simple. And we'd like for you to consider this ad as a sort of user's manual for electricity.

THE PART ABOUT SAVING YOUR MONEY.

The big energy users in your home are heating and cooling systems. It therefore makes sense to spend a little extra up front and get energy-efficient models. Because, in the long run, they can end up paying for themselves.

See Figure 1 on how to read the ENERGYGUIDE before you buy any major appliance such as a water heater or refrigerator.

Remember also to maintain all your energy using appliances. Whether it's a heat pump or an electric pencil sharpener, it will work more efficiently if it's operating according to its original specifications. To find out what they are, read the operations manual carefully or call the manufacturer.

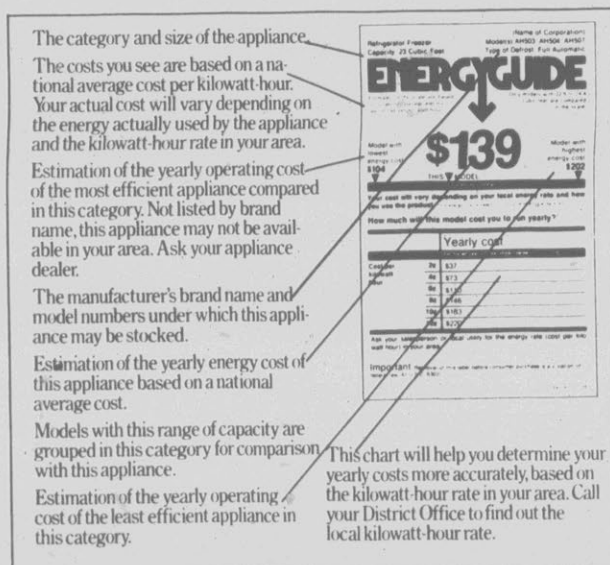

Figure 1

The largest percentage of your energy dollar is spent keeping you warm in the winter. So the first thing you should do is try to find a home that is well insulated, or hire an expert to come in and insulate your current one for you.

Keep your doors and windows closed, and open them only when necessary. Close radiator valves, block drafts, and weather strip your windows and doors. Storm windows save significant amounts of energy and home inside-storm-window kits can be installed for very little cost. These kits are plastic strips you attach to your window. They will last a full winter, and they're easy to install.

You can even insulate electrical outlets with inexpensive plastic foam gaskets.

Reflectors behind radiators increase efficiency during the winter. Radiator covers decrease heating efficiency and should be removed when they are in use.

Close fireplaces during the winter as they tend to draw warm air from the house and send it up the chimney. Arrange your furniture so that you sit near heat sources, and dress warmly. This allows you to keep the room temperature down and save considerably during winter months.

During the summer, insulated houses also greatly reduce power bills.

Keep the house cool by drawing shades during the day and using a window fan to bring cool evening air into the house when everyone is sleeping at night. Dress loosely and lightly when the weather is hot and humid.

Do as little cooking during the summer as possible, or at least plan cooking during the cooler hours of the day. As always, use an exhaust fan in the kitchen close to the source of heat.

Heating water consumes a lot of energy so its best to buy a tank that is right for the size of your household. You might also spend the money to buy a tank with extra thick outer insulation. If not, you can purchase home tank insulation kits yourself. If you have a dishwasher, set your water temperature at 140 degrees. If not, you can save money by keeping it at 120 degrees which is fine for showering.

Wattage	Incandescent Bulbs	Fluorescent Tubes
15	2,500	9,000
20	N/A	9,000
25	2,500	7,500
40	1,500	20,000
75	750	12,000
100	750	12,000

You can save on water heating by turning off the water heater when you plan to be away for extended periods. Consider taking quick showers instead of baths. And always see that the water heater's efficiency is not being adversely affected by sediment inside its pipes. Check it regularly. If you don't know how, call the manufacturer, the service department of the store where you purchased it, or call North Carolina Power.

There are plenty of ways to save money on power bills by controlling the use of your lights.

See Figure 2 for information on typical light bulb life expectancy in hours.

Use daylight instead of electric light. Arrange furniture to take advantage of light from windows.

Use dimmer switches, and if possible switch to fluorescent lights. They utilize only a quarter of the power of incandescent lights.

Use high intensity task lamps instead of lighting the whole room. Clean bulbs when they become covered with grime and vapors from the kitchen. And use lower wattage bulbs when possible.

When cooking, use aluminum or copper bottom pans. Put lids on food to cut down cooking time and keep heat in. Make it a practice to thaw foods in the refrigerator before cooking. And use a pressure cooker when you can.

Various Foods	In Conventional Oven	In Microwave Oven
Baked chicken (1 1/2 lb.)	1.5	0.5
Baked potatoes (4 potatoes)	0.8	0.5
Green vegetables* (4 servings)	0.3	0.2
Apple pie (9-in.)	1.8	0.4

*Green vegetables were cooked on stove top.

Figure 3

When baking, resist the urge to check periodically on your meal. Every time you open the oven door the temperature drops 25 degrees.

See Figure 3 on how many kilowatt-hours you save by cooking with a microwave oven.

THE PART ABOUT SAVING YOUR LIFE.

Simply stated, treat every wire you see as live and dangerous.

Much of the "insulation" you see on power lines is nothing more than aluminum oxidation. Don't touch those wires or put anything on them because they are live. That means don't put ladders on or near live wires and watch very carefully before you put up a TV antenna. Any metal (or wet objects) such as CB antennas, a piece of pipe, a tree limb or wire would be deadly to anyone holding it if it were to come in contact with overhead power lines.

If you must put up an antenna, a safe distance away from the line is twice the height of the antenna and mast assembly. Work only in dry weather and never on a windy day.

Call North Carolina Power before you trim trees around power lines.

Never let hoses or sprinklers wet power lines. Sailboats should also be kept away from power lines.

Don't fly kites near power lines.

Always use non-conductive string when flying kites, and if a kite becomes entangled in power lines, do not try to retrieve it.

Don't go after pets that are up in trees which are near power lines.

Don't touch or go near a fallen line.

If a fallen line hits your car, try to drive away.

Before you dig a hole to plant a tree, a bush or perhaps a post, call 1-800-632-4949 to find out where power cables are. It's the law. It's free. And it's your life we're protecting.

Use the utmost caution whenever using power tools that run on electricity. Watch the cord, avoid wet places, and use only extension cords that have Underwriters Laboratory approval.

Use insulated fuse pullers when replacing a blown fuse. And remember that a fuse blows because something is wrong with the circuit. Try to determine what the problem is before replacing the fuse. And replace it with a fuse of the same amperage.

If you smell or see smoke while using an appliance, unplug it or turn off the main switch immediately. Never pour water on an appliance that is plugged in.

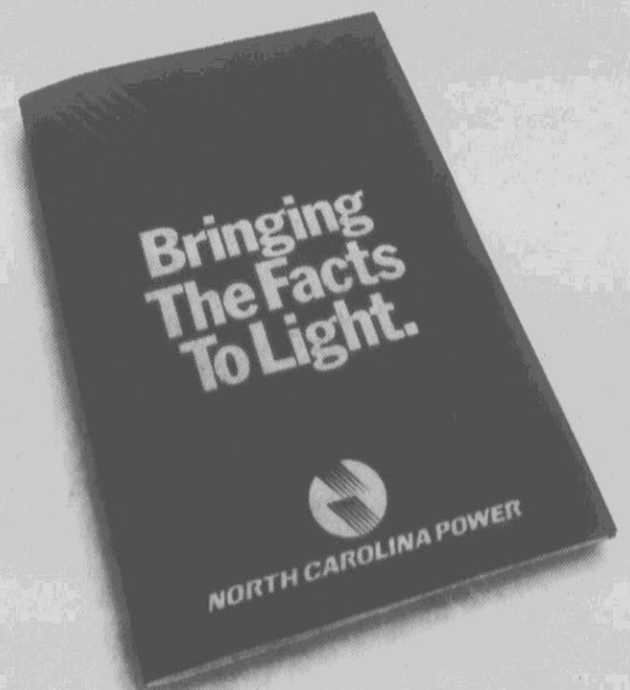

If a fire is small, use a Class C fire extinguisher on it, or throw baking soda on it. If you can't control the fire, get out and call the fire department. Save lives, yours and your family's first if you can.

Use a smoke alarm.

North Carolina Power offers a number of services you should know about. One of them we call the Gatekeeper Program. Our employees are trained to pay particular attention to the homes of our elderly customers. If they see any signs of neglect they'll report it to the proper authorities. And if you would like to sign up for it, or know someone who should, simply call your local business office.

You can get a detailed version of all the information you see here and more in our consumer information booklet that's called BRINGING THE FACTS TO LIGHT. It's full of facts about budget billing, our Gatekeeper Program and more. Some that'll save you money. Others that'll save your life. And it's free from North Carolina Power.

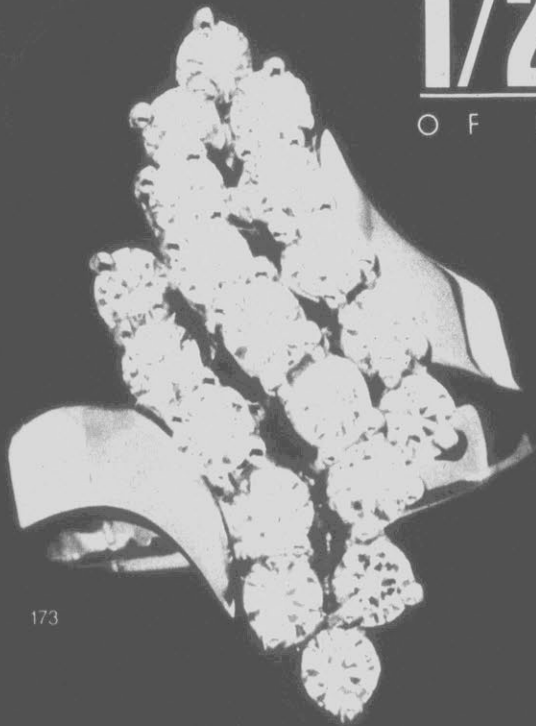

Just call us toll-free at 1-800-882-8919.
