Soviets To Resume Talks In Washington

By JOHN THOR DAHLBURG
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze will visit Washington this week to deliver a message from Mikhail S. Gorbachev to President Reagan, Tass said today.

The official news agency's report was the first Soviet confirmation that Shevardnadze and Secretary of State George P. Shultz would meet again following Shultz's two-day trip to Moscow last week that failed to set a date for a superpower summit.

The White House today also announced the visit.

A U.S. official in Washington said Shevardnadze was going there to discuss a nearly complete treaty to scrap superpower intermediate-range nuclear missiles and prospects for a third meeting between Reagan and Gorbachev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party.

The two-paragraph Tass dispatch said Shevardnadze "will pay a working visit to Washington on Oct. 30-31."

"He will convey a message from Mikhail S. Gorbachev ... to U.S. President Ronald Reagan and continue talks with the president and the U.S. Secretary of State on key issues of Soviet-American relations."

The Tass dispatch made no mention of a summit or the content of Gorbachev's message to Reagan.

The Soviet leader told Shultz in Moscow Friday that he would not go to the United States to sign a treaty on the intermediate-range missiles unless the superpowers make tangible progress on strategic weapons and consolidating the 1972 anti-ballistic missile treaty.

Shevardnadze arrived in Prague, Czechoslovakia, today to brief the six other Warsaw Pact foreign ministers on the state of superpower arms control talks before flying to Washington.

A Soviet official who spoke in the Czechoslovak capital on condition he not be identified said Shevardnadze would leave the city late Thursday or Friday.

Preparations for a fall summit in Washington appeared to have collapsed in Moscow last Friday when Gorbachev informed Shultz that he was not ready to fix a date.

On Tuesday, Shevardnadze summoned U.S. Ambassador Jack Matlock to the foreign ministry in Moscow and requested a new round of talks with Shultz in Washington, a U.S. official said.

Reagan and Gorbachev agreed at their first meeting in 1985 in Geneva to hold back-to-back summits in 1986 and 1987.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Boris Pyadyshev said Gorbachev will visit the United States when work is finalized on the missile treaty.

Wall Street Rebounds Despite Failing Dollar

By PETER COY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks plunged on Wall Street today following losses overseas, then rebounded smartly, and the Dow Jones industrial average was up 35 points by late morning.

But the gains were concentrated in big, blue-chip companies. Investors continued to be concerned by signs of a weakening dollar and falling bond prices, and two stocks fell in price for every one that rose.

The Dow industrials, which fell 63.33 points in the first half hour, turned around soon after and were up about 35 points above Tuesday's close at 1,881.

The dollar stood at a seven-year low against the West German mark and a five-year low against the British pound, battered by fears that the world's central banks would not prop up the U.S. currency.

Fears of a falling dollar helped trigger the historic rout of Oct. 19 in which the Dow Jones industrial average fell 508 points.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue-chip stocks rose 52.56 points Tuesday, although broader measures of the market increased only slightly or declined. The Dow industrials closed at 1,846.49.

Prices fell on the Tokyo Stock Exchange today after a modest morning rally faded in the afternoon. A key market indicator closed down 1.1 percent. Hong Kong's Hang Seng index fell 1 percent.

In London, the Financial Times Stock Exchange index was down 4.5 percent by late in the session.

The dollar fell to 1.7518 West German marks today from 1.7565 late Tuesday in New York and to 139.15 Japanese yen from 140.90 late Tuesday. The British pound strengthened to $1.7118 from $1.7051 late Tuesday.

Meanwhile, prices fluctuated on U.S. Treasury securities, a haven for nervous investors. The yield on the 30-year Treasury bond stood at 9.09 percent compared to 9.06 percent late Tuesday and the yield on three-month Treasury bills fell to 5.03 percent from 5.23 percent.

The value of U.S. stocks rose $37 billion on Tuesday, in another variation of the market's erratic theme since the Oct. 19 collapse wiped out more than $500 billion in market value.

"There's very little meaning to these rallies," said Hildegarde Zagorski, an analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. "The market is bouncing up and down like a rubber ball, testing bottoms."

Rising issues barely outnumbered declining ones on the New York Stock Exchange on Tuesday, by a 9-to-8 margin, in spite of the runup in blue chips.

The stock market was helped Tuesday by higher prices on foreign exchanges and an announcement by International Business Machines Corp. that it would spend an additional $1 billion to buy back its own stock.

NO PARKING — Rescue workers help Beth Schafer, 68, from her car after she drove it through the back of her garage in Port Huron, Mich., on Tuesday. Ms. Schafer said she had intended to back up, but accidentally put the car in drive. She suffered minor injuries in the accident. A crane was called in to remove the car from its perch. ## Craft To Retire From Pitt Schools

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

More than 100 people assembled in the Greenville Golf and Country Club Tuesday night to spend an evening with and to pay tribute to Thomas Craft Jr., the associate superintendent for operational services with the Pitt County school system.

Craft has served in the school system for 36 years as a teacher, coach, principal, assistant superintendent, associate superintendent and interim superintendent. He will retire as associate superintendent Friday.

"Tommy Craft, you walk amongst giants" in education, said Mark Owens, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Education. He also recognized Craft as a gentleman.

Echoing that sentiment, Superintendent Eddie West read the poem "Begin the Day with Friendliness" to epitomize Craft's willing contribution to the schools. In all things, Craft exemplified "honor, integrity, friendliness and a keen sense of humor," West said.

Leck Keeter, associate superintendent of personnel and administrative Services, said Craft "has earned the right to put aside the pressures and responsibilities that he has handled so well during the years." He also included integration, consolidation, construction of schools and changing district lines in a list of accomplishments in which Craft has been involved.

With school transportation, child nutrition programs and school construction among his responsibilities, Craft said in a recent interview that he has seen several changes in the school system.

THOMAS CRAFT JR.

"I guess one of the big changes that has taken place is the growth and size of the operations for the school system — particularly with construction and the child nutrition program," he said.

Craft said he has watched "13 small high schools in the county be constructed into four comprehensive high schools" in addition to new facilities for elementary and middle grade students.

The child nutrition program has improved in sanitation standards, facilities and the number of meals served, he said.

"I feel very grateful for having the opportunity for serving the school system for these number of years. I've enjoyed my work and I hope my

Auditor Says GUC Financial Condition 'Above Average'

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"You folks are healthy," an auditor told the Greenville Utilities Commission board as he reviewed an audit for the year ending June 30 at a workshop meeting Tuesday night.

Steve Locke, representing the accounting firm of Lowrimore, Warwick & Co., said, "There is no question that the financial condition of the Greenville Utilities Commission continues to improve." He said that, financially, the commission is in "healthy condition."

Locke said the GUC is "performing above the country average," and that the ratio of assets to liabilities is "well above average." He suggested, "Those who are managing the cost of doing business ... the resources, are doing a good job."

At the end of the 1986-1987 fiscal year, Locke said GUC's total fund equity was $90.17 million, and said turnover to the city of Greenville for the 1987-1988 fiscal year should total $1.95 million, including $1.7 million from the electric fund and $251,380 from the gas fund.

Total electric property, plant and equipment at June 30 amounted to $32.74 million while water property, plant and equipment stood at $23.03 million. Gas department holdings at the end of the fiscal year totaled $23.23 million, while gas department

Council Candidates Cite Issues

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

Growth-related issues — including long-range planning, improved traffic flow and protection of the East Carolina University Medical Park — are main concerns in the future of Greenville, according to City Council candidates.

"We have haphazard growth in this city," City Council member Lorraine Shinn said at a candidates forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County Tuesday night at Jaycee-Park Auditorium.

"We do not have a good comprehensive long-range plan," said Mrs. Shinn, a candidate for the at-large seat on the board. "We have tried to address that, and we're trying to update it now, but I'm still not sure we've done all that needs to be done."

"When we look at growth, we need to look at the environmental impacts of growth and development. That's something we haven't done heretofore. We need to look at the facts ... can our wastewater facilities accommodate the growth, and what it will do to our air quality."

A focal point of the development is the medical park, said Dr. Wallace Wooles, chairman of the city's planning and zoning commission. Wooles is seeking the at-large seat on the council.

"As an outgrowth of my service on planning and zoning, I favor the planned and orderly development of all parts of the city of Greenville," Wooles, chairman of the pharmacology department at the ECU School of Medicine, said.

"I favor this through long-range planning so we can do this before the fact and not after the fact, which seems to be so prevalent. Although I favor the development of all parts of the city, I am particularly interested in the preservation of the medical district park."

The third candidate for the at-large seat, Ed Rose, an employee at Honeycutt Inc., said the city needs to examine problems related to attracting industry.

"The number one reason why industry has not moved into Pitt County is we lack electricity, a place to

Garner Passes Up League Forum

Reflector Staff Writer

Mayoral challenger Ed Carter said he was disappointed Greenville Mayor Les Garner did not attend a candidate forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County Tuesday night.

"I think it is unfortunate. I think the people want to know what the candidates are all about," Carter, a two-term City Council member, said prior to the forum held at the Jaycee-Park Auditorium.

"It has been unfortunate that in the past forums, except for one, I haven't had anyone there other than myself to talk about the issues from the mayor's perspective. I'm here to share with the people my philosophies and the things that I stand for, and if the mayor elects not to or my other opponent elects not to (attend), I think the people really have to resolve that issue in their own minds."

Organizers of the forum said Garner informed them he would not attend due to a prior commitment.

Garner, who is seeking his second term in office, could not be reached for comment.

Carter said he didn't expect Garner to attend the forum.

"It was my understanding in the beginning that he wasn't planning on attending these forums," Carter said. "I deeply regret that because I'm sure that there are some people who really believe and support him, and I just would like to see them have an opportunity to weigh his ideas against mine."

Garner also pulled out of a debate scheduled for Thursday afternoon at the studios of WITN-TV in Washington, according to station officials, who said the program was to be aired Sunday.

"I think he feels he can win the election without exposing himself to the public, and certainly I can understand his concerns for not really wanting to be open to the public and not wanting to have to face the public to answer questions or present his ideas," Carter said.

Trio Enters District Competition

Three students have been chosen to represent Pitt County in the Morehead Scholarship competition on the district level.

The Pitt County Morehead Selection Committee interviewed 19 students Tuesday and selected Robert Wesley Barnes of J.H. Rose High School and Edwin Love West III and Jennifer Lynne Wing, both of D.H. Conley High School.

If the students are successful at the district level, they will compete in Chapel Hill for the final selection of recipients.

Barnes is the son of Donald Wesley and Margaret Maddex Barnes of Greenville. He is a member of the Key Club, the Spanish Club, the Symphonic, the Marching and the Jazz bands. He also is vice president of the National Honor Society, and is a member of the Quiz Bowl Team and the Committee to Assess Integrity in Learning.

Working toward his Eagle Scout award, Barnes is a Life Scout and has served as senior patrol leader. He now is junior assistant scoutmaster and is vice chief of elections, Order of the Arrow chapter. He has been active in Scouting for nine years.

Barnes participates in varsity track and cross country, and is employed as a cook at Hardee's. He has represented Rose in Governor's School and the N.C. Youth Legislative Assembly.

His academic honors and awards include being a marshal, winning first place comprehensive division and second place algebra II division ECU Math Contest. He won fourth place in the Pitt County Math Contest.

West, the son of Edwin and Patricia Hurst West of Greenville, has served as vice president, Inter-Club chairman and class officer of the Student Council. He also is in the National Honor Society and has participated in Close-Up, the Latin Club, the French Club and Future Business Leaders of America.

He participates in chorus and has held two lead parts in the school play. He has been a school representative in the Southern Association Accreditation.

West was one of two selected in North Carolina to participate in the United States Senate Program and the Hugh O'Brian International Leadership Seminar. He also participated in Governor's School and Boy's State.

West serves as president of the North Carolina Teen Democrats and vice president of the Pitt County Teen Democrats. He also served as chairman of Teens for Sanford and as chairman for Teens for Hunt. He is a cast member of the Ayden Theater Workshop.

He has been employed as a congressional intern in the U.S. House of Representatives, as senior counselor and assistant counselor of Camp Morehead, and as a referee for the Pitt County Recreation Program.

West won first place in the North Carolina Academy of Sciences at East Carolina University and won the Scholar-Athlete Award, NCHSSA, Outstanding Citizen at Boy's State, DAR Citizenship Award, Outstanding Teen Democrat and recognition in "Who's Who in Young America."

He has been active in football, basketball, cross country and golf.

Ms. Wing is the daughter of Ronald Robert and Barbara Lynne Wing of Greenville. She has participated in Student Council, Governor's School and as a class officer. She also has participated in Close-Up, the Latin Club, the National Honor Society, Junior Achievement and Mu Alpha Theta.

She has been a reporter and distributor of the Governor's School Newspaper and publicity reporter for A.G. Cox School Newspaper. She has participated in Governor's School in English, Rotary Youth Leadership Conference, Project Exodus, Southern Association Accreditation and the ECU Regional Math Contest.

She was a Youth Leadership Conference finalist, a N.C. Senate page, a Girl Scout, a volunteer for Greenville Little League, a runner for Bloodmobile, and a volunteer for the American Lung Association, Camp Don Lee and Conley Athletic Boosters.

Ms. Wing has participated in "Oklahoma" and "Carousel" stage crews, Teen Speak and Geometry and Algebra II math teams. She has been active in track, cross country and cheerleading.

She has been employed as a cashier at University Book Exchange, as a tutor, at Winterville Recreations, Brody's Department Store and babysitting.

Ms. Wing has served as a marshal and has been recognized as Most Outstanding Health-Physical Education student, on the Honor Roll, in "Who's Who Among American High School Students," in the Society of Distinguished American High School students, as most outstanding cheerleader and as a scholar athlete.

She was sophomore homecoming princess and won second place in the district FBLA Speech Contest. She worked in Gary Hart's 1984 campaign, was recognized as most outstanding Algebra I student and was chosen for Exodus mentor stage.

Other students in the county competition were Kathryn Forbes, Calvin Hunter and Pamela Taylor, all of North Pitt High School; Amy Louise Newborn, Christopher Scott Strickland and Melissa Jean Young, all of Farmville Central High School; Mohammed Mujtaba Dar, Terri Jarvis and Edward Norris, all of J.H. Rose High School; Carole Stokes and Curtis Wilson Jr., both of Ayden-Grifton High School, and Miriam Fulford, Melanie Hardee, Sonya Lee, Richard Worthington and Sarah Yarbrough, all of D.H. Conley High School.

Thefts Reported

Investigators said three thefts were reported to Greenville police Tuesday.

Officers said a .25 caliber pistol was taken from a car parked at the Comfort Inn on Memorial Drive Sunday night and reported to the department at 11 a.m., while a radio-tape player and compact disc player, with a combined value of $500, were taken from 508 W. Fifth St. in a break-in reported at 3:36 p.m.

Police also said $150 in cash was taken from 1507 Fleming St. in an incident reported at 10:28 p.m.

Property Stolen

Greenville police said a shotgun, $50 worth of food, a television set and $2.50 in pennies were reported taken from 1402 W. Sixth St. early today.

Officer K.M. Smeltzer said the property was taken in a break-in reported at 12:30 a.m.

Young Democrats

The Pitt County Young Democrats will meet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Three Steers Restaurant on Memorial Drive.

Students Toured Site

Eighth-grade students of Wellcome Middle School recently visited the Caswell-Neuse State Historic Site in Kinston.

The students toured the Richard Caswell Museum, viewed a slide presentation of the confederate ironclad, the CSS Neuse, examined artifacts recovered from the ship and toured the vessel.

Students saw medical instruments used during the American Civil War and learned of common medical techniques and procedures. They witnessed a blacksmith at work and many participated in making a rope.

Water-Sewer Study

The Eastern North Carolina Chamber of Commerce is conducting a water and sewer study in eastern North Carolina.

Survey forms have been mailed to officials in 43 counties and in cities and towns in the region.

George M. Harris Jr., who will head the project, said some recommendations should be made to officials and the North Carolina General Assembly by mid-1988.

EMILY S. BOYCE

Chairwoman Retires

Emily S. Boyce, who has served 28 years on the faculty of East Carolina University, plans to step down as chairwoman of the department of library and information studies at the end of the 1987-88 academic year.

Dr. Eugene Ryan, dean of the ECU College of Arts and Sciences, said Ms. Boyce will chair a search committee to choose her successor as administrative head of the department.

Ms. Boyce has served as chairwoman since 1982 and will remain on the faculty, Ryan said. She succeeded Dr. Gene Lanier, who was the first chairman of the department of library science.

Lanier, Dr. Constance Mellon and Dr. Donald E. Collins of library and information studies and Dr. James LeRoy Smith, professor and chairman of philosophy, will serve with Ms. Boyce on the search committee, Ryan said.

Ms. Boyce is a native of Rich Square. She has master's degrees from ECU and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and has done postgraduate work at Catholic University.

Larceny Charge

Catherine Denise Johnson, 29, of 207 Roundtree Drive was arrested on a larceny charge by Greenville police about 6:20 p.m. Tuesday.

Officer E.E. Laughinghouse said Ms. Johnson was charged following investigation of the theft of $185 in cash from a newspaper route manager at the intersection of 14th Street and Douglas Avenue in an incident reported at 5:52 p.m.

Car Reported Stolen Involved In Wreck

A Raleigh man faces multiple charges today — among them possession of a stolen vehicle — because of a wreck on North Greene Street just outside the Greenville city limits that occurred early Tuesday afternoon.

Highway Patrol Trooper J.B. Heath said John Waldel, 22, was driving a car — reported stolen in Raleigh — that struck the rear of a vehicle driven by Marjorie Tyson Foreman of Route 6, Greenville, about 12:30 p.m.

Heath said Waldel ran from the scene on foot but was taken into custody a few minutes later by Greenville police officers. He said Waldel was charged with possession of a stolen vehicle, driving while impaired, no operator license and hit-and-run driving.

Waldel and six passengers in the car he was driving, including a 6-months old child, received minor injuries in the collision as did Ms. Foreman and a passenger in her car.

Damage from the collision was set at $1,500 to the Foreman car and $4,000 to the other car.

Flood Insurance

The Carolinas Association of Professional Insurance Agents will sponsor a flood insurance training class on Nov. 10 at the Sheraton Greenville.

The class will update insurance professionals on the national flood insurance program rules and application procedures, instruct participants on how to read flood maps and obtain elevation certificates, and answer question concerning flood insurance.

For additional information contact Wanda Bailey, director of education, at 821-2720.

Youth Revival

Dilda's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church will sponsor a youth revival Thursday through Saturday with Elder Victor Baines of Rose Chapel in Saratoga as the guest speaker.

Different youth choirs will be featured and services begin at 7:30 p.m. each day.

Fire-Rescue School

Approximately 200 firemen and rescue squad members attended the second annual Tarheel Fire and Rescue College in Chapel Hill Saturday and Sunday.

Sponsored by the Orange County Chief's Council and Firefighters Association and the Technical College of Alamance, classes were held at Chapel Hill High School, the Chapel Hill Fire Department drill tower and the Durham Fire Department training center.

Stuart Savage of Greenville, a staff writer for The Daily Reflector, was one of the 10 instructors for subjects ranging from managing for excellence, liquid propane gas emergencies and flammable liquids to vehicle extrication, interior fire fighting and basic fire pump operations.

Savage, a retired Greenville volunteer fireman and member of the former Greenville volunteer rescue squad, was instructor for a course in confined space rescue. He was assisted by Capt. Harrison Krites of the Winston-Salem Fire Department.

Rotary Project

The Greenville Noon Rotary Club will hold a benefit pancake breakfast Saturday from 6 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the Rotary Building, Rotary Street. Proceeds will go to the "Polio Plus" project and the general charity fund.

Halloween Carnival

St. Gabriel's School will hold a Halloween carnival with a haunted house Friday between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m.

'Walk For Wellness'

Mildred A. Council, health advocate, will sponsor a "Walk for Wellness" Saturday at 7:30 a.m. beginning at Stanton Square and continuing in the Medical Park.

Party Scheduled

The Third Street School Halloween party will be held Friday from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Plans include a haunted house, games, costume judging, hot dogs, baked goods, popcorn and drinks.

Trooper Loses Top Of Patrol Cruiser

PRINCETON, N.C. (AP) — The top of a North Carolina Highway Patrol cruiser was sheared off when the car ran under a tractor-trailer rig near here, but the trooper driving the car suffered only minor injuries, the patrol said today.

Trooper G.B. Nance had the blue lights on his patrol car flashing and was pursuing a speeding car east on U.S. 70 when the westbound truck crossed the highway to drive into a truck stop, said Sgt. C.H. Pitts of the patrol.

"There was another tractor-trailer preparing to pull out of the rest stop, so he couldn't go right. There was a lady in the left turn lane preparing to make a left turn ... so he couldn't go left," Pitts said. "So he just locked the brakes and slid into the tractor trailer. The road is 42 feet wide and the trailer of the truck blocked both eastbound lanes."

"He saw at the last minute he was going to hit, so he lay over in the seat as far as he could," Pitt said. "It sheared the top back on the patrol car. He had two minor cuts on his head and his hand was bruised. We feel very fortunate."

Nance was taken by the Princeton Rescue Squad to Johnston Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

"The truck was loaded with 46,000 pounds of synthetic fiber. (The accident) didn't budge the truck, but it

Support Group

The Eastern Regional AIDS Support and Education Group will meet Monday at 8 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church on the corner of Elm and 14th streets.

Plans will be finalized for AIDS Awareness Week activities in November. For more information call 757-3990 or 756-8453.

The group announced that it will sponsor a candlelight vigil Nov. 8 at 7 p.m. on the Town Common in Greenville. For more information call 758-5388 or 756-8453.

Class Had Guest

Bruce Kelly, general manager of Carolina Maps, recently spoke to Lindsay Payton's third grade class at Sam Bundy Elementary School in Farmville.

Kelly discussed map development, the grid system and how it works, and the importance and uses of maps. He gave a brief overview of the history of map-making.

Conference Planned

Forgotten Strength, a conference on developing and maintaining groups for cancer patients and their families, is planned for Nov. 6 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Moses H. Cone Hospital in Greensboro.

The conference is sponsored by the American Cancer Society, North Carolina Division Inc., and the Greensboro Area Health Education Center.

Homeowners Meet

The city of Greenville's annexation of Brook Valley is among the items to be discussed at the annual meeting of the Brook Valley Homeowners Association, scheduled for 8 p.m. Nov. 4 at Brook Valley Country Club. Officers and directors of the homeowners group for 1987-1988 will be elected at the meeting.

R.F. Qualliotine, president of the homeowners association, said the meeting will be the last prior to a scheduled public hearing on the annexation.

Pitt Awarded Funds

Pitt County has been chosen to receive $3,277 to supplement food and shelter programs in this area.

The selection was made by a national board made up of affiliates of national voluntary organizations and chaired by the Federal Emergency Management Agency. The board was charged to distribute $10 million appropriated by Congress to help expand the capacity of food and shelter program in high-need areas around the country.

A local board made up of social service providers and local citizens will determine how funds awarded to Pitt County are to be distributed among the emergency food and shelter programs run by area service organizations. The local board is responsible for recommending agencies to receive the funds and any additional funds available under this phase of the program.

Pitt County has distributed emergency food and shelter funds previously through the Salvation Army, the Department of Social Services and the Pitt County Family Violence Program.

Grandparent Class

A grandparent-in-training class will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The free class, offered by staff of the hospital's obstetrics unit, explores the changes that have occurred in methods of childbirth and child rearing.

The staff will take the grandparents on a tour of the labor and delivery area and provide hands-on practice in diapering, feeding and bathing.

For more information call 551-4470.

Panel Moderator

Betty S. Speir, coordinator of vocational support personnel and the Pitt County Educational Foundation, will moderate a panel of educators and legislators at the 1987 Crime and Justice Conference in Raleigh today and Thursday.

Participants in the panel, "Educational Factors Contributing to Crime and Delinquency," are Robert E. Bridges, superintendent of the Wake County public school system; Margaret Gayle, associate director for vocational education of the N.C. Department of Public Instruction; state Rep. Frank J. "Tripp" Sizemore from Guilford County, and Carolyn Biggerstaff, executive director of Youth and Family Counseling Services for Davidson County.

The workshop is a portion of the two-day program at the Sheraton Imperial Hotel and Towers at Research Triangle Park, sponsored by the N.C. Governor's Crime Commission.

Body Found

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The body of a missing Columbus County minister was found hanging from a tree in a wooded area near Tabor City.

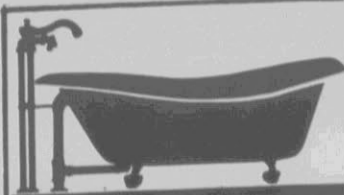

The Rev. Jesse Jay Hodge, 40, of Route 2, Tabor City, had been missing since Friday, when he left home upset over a family matter, according to a missing-persons report.

A Columbus County sheriff's deputy discovered Hodge's body hanging by a rope noose about 8:45 p.m. Monday, Detective George Dudley said Tuesday.

Investigators discovered no other injuries to Hodge's body or evidence of foul play, but the state medical examiner has been asked to determine the exact cause of death, Dudley said.

Detectives have not ruled the death a suicide, Dudley said.

Hodge was the pastor of the Mount Olive Original Free Will Baptist Church and also worked for Atlantic Publishing & Paper Co. in Tabor City, Dudley said.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Not Realistic

President Reagan did not offer a great deal in his press conference last week following the stock market debacle.

His best offering, however, was to say the administration would meet promptly with Democratic and Republican congressional leaders to discuss deficit reduction. That is welcome and certainly long overdue. While the president still talks fondly of no tax increases he did indicate that nothing is out of bounds in the discussions except Social Security. Other than that, the president was closed mouthed about what his strategy will be in negotiations with Congress.

If experts agree on anything it is that the market's nervousness was based on the government policies — or lack of them — which have contributed to federal deficit spending, foreign trade deficits, U.S. dollar concerns and interest rate concerns.

If the market crash did nothing else it may bring about serious discussions between the administration and Congress on deficit reduction.

And the problems are not going away if the nation ignores them as the president seemed to indicate in comments to the press earlier in the week.

"I think some people have wisely pointed out that if this trend in the market should go on, the people themselves can create a recession by saying, let's put off buying something that they were going to buy, let's put off spending," the president said.

"That can bring one on. As a matter of fact, the media can bring one on if they keep on talking pessimistically and encouraging that kind of consumer talk."

The comments were virtually lost in the deluge of information about the economy but they once again exhibit the president's appalling lack of understanding of the problems our economy faces.

Be realistic, Mr. President. It is unwise to tell the American people that if they don't talk about our economic problems they will go away.

As usual the people are well ahead of you. They have been telling you of their concerns for the federal deficit and other problems. Now the investors, whose opinions you respect, have told you the same thing.

If we are lucky — and events seem to point that way — we will escape real damage to the economy, but the concerns that brought on the Oct. 19 stock market crash are still there.

One thoughtful market observer said, "I think the most favorable thing is that the administration has been shocked into realizing that something's got to be done."

The time for jawboning is past, Mr. President. Surely you have gotten the message by now that some specific actions by your administration are needed. It doesn't even have to be a bitter pill. All that is needed economic policies more fitted to the 1980s.

October Affair

Take me out to the ball game, the saying goes, and there are few in this country who don't know that the ball game is baseball — not basketball, football or anything else.

Those other sports have risen to the level of national mania, but in October of each year the national sport is baseball, and the passion reaches its height with the World Series. Regardless of how attentive the population is during regular season play, when the two league champions battle it out, nearly everyone has a love affair with baseball.

This year baseball peaked just as professional football was holding a player's strike. Thus sports interest swung to the World Series with intensity.

After months of play the Minnesota Twins and the St. Louis Cardinals emerged as the two teams who would battle it out for the world baseball championship.

After the first two games in Minneapolis, it appeared it might be a quick series with Minnesota winning both. Then the series moved to St. Louis where the Cardinals won three straight. The next move was back to Minneapolis where the Twins won game six. The showdown game came on Monday night and it was as exciting a game as you can have in a World Series. The result was the Twins' won. The championship was theirs — to the great delight of the fans who had played a part with the incessant noise throughout the series.

In the months ahead baseball will be forgotten for a time. College bowl football games, the Super Bowl and professional basketball will be on the scene along with other sports. There will be those who will argue as to whether baseball is a national sport or the national sport. At World Series time there is no question. Just about everybody is a baseball fan.

To the editor:

Litter and garbage are distracting sights that are going to worsen unless we as citizens join together now to curb their growth. What has happened to our litter bags in cars and garbage cans with lids in our back yards?

I disagree with Frank Fredette's suggestion that ECU be used as a dumping ground for federal garbage, but I do agree with him about the conglomeration strewn along East Fifth Street. However, these "immature, uncaring college children" are not responsible for all the debris in this vicinity. These students help in clean-up drives, money-raising events for local projects and serve in many capacities to promote Greenville. Thanks, Student! Others travel this route. Trash thrown from cars, discards by joggers, walkers and school kids add to this collection. Has Mr. Fredette inspected other areas, the parking spaces at our malls and supermarkets, which are equally disgraceful, in spite of the owners' attempts to rectify this matter?

I commend Laurie Charlton for her excellent letter to the editor on this subject and will not expound on the Gary Andersons' compliment on our lack of litter, since Ms. Charlton expressed it so nice. She refers to 25 years ago. At age 73, I can tell you more about what a lovely town Greenville used to be. Landlords and home owners took great pride in keeping their houses painted and repaired, the yards neat with grass (including the street right-of-way) mowed and leaves raked in season.

Today some people jog or walk five miles or more, pay to lose their sweat at local athletic centers, lie out in the grass to get a sun tan when they could get exercise and tans by mowing the lawn. Greenville is fast becoming a metropolis and the hub of Eastern North Carolina. Please, let's all join in the fight against litter and garbage.

To the editor:

In reference to your editorial on Oct. 22, I would like to address several points that may be misleading.

In doing the Revaluation of all real estate, Pitt County will follow the General Statutes of North Carolina and value all land and buildings at fair market value. In no way will any taxpayer be given preferential treatment.

Farm land will be assigned a market value as all other properties, and through application and qualification may be taxed at a use value which is lower than market. Section 105-277.7 of the General Statutes of North Carolina, as amended in 1985, establishes a Use Value Advisory Board and directs it to annually submit a recommended use value manual to the Department of Revenue.

Upon receipt and approval of application, the farm land is to be taxed at present use value. In the event the land was to lose eligibility through ownership or use, the taxpayer will be required to pay tax on the difference in value between market and use value. This difference is known as deferred tax and the tax will be calculated for the current and three years back, plus interest.

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners are not giving special consideration to one special group, but are following the rules and regulations as set out in the General Statutes of North Carolina.

The GOP And Reagan's Record

'For vice presidents seeking to move up to the Oval Office it can be both benediction and curse, but even a nominee not so closely tied to a retiring president finds it necessary to deal with it even in this era of flimsy party loyalty and individualistic politics.'

It saved Harry Truman in 1948 when he was running for a full presidential term in his own right. Adlai Stevenson embraced it in 1952, and it may have cost him the election. Richard Nixon sought to identify with it when running for the White House in 1960, and Hubert Humphrey did not really get his campaign into high gear in 1968 until he had made a break with it.

The property in question is the record of the outgoing administration in an election year and what the nominee of a presidential party does with it. For vice presidents seeking to move up to the Oval Office it can be both benediction and curse, but even a nominee not so closely tied to a retiring president finds it necessary to deal with it even in this era of flimsy party loyalty and individualistic politics.

The distancing activity that we have seen recently among GOP hopefuls has had the complexity of a minute and the subtlety of Japanese haiku. How bold a new course does Vice President George Bush pursue if he wants, simultaneously, to garner the support of Ronald Reagan loyalists and yet establish an identity that is not simply derivative from a president whose place in history is yet to be determined?

Surely Sen. Bob Dole can be bolder. He was not so basic a component of the Reagan administration that his fate is tied to the fortunes of the president. As a Republican floor leader in the Senate however, he has been the manufacturer's representative on Capitol Hill for virtually every Reagan program. Can a salesman repudiate the product that he carried proudly around in his display case for seven years?

What about Rep. Jack Kemp, whose institutional role for House Republicans is considerably less prominent than Dole's in the Senate? Does he feel constrained to run on the achievements of Reaganomics?

Are evangelist Pat Robertson and former Delaware Gov. Pete Dupont free to criticize Reagan's policies because they never held national office, or must they hold to that old Republican 11th commandment that admonishes GOP candidates to say only good things about one another?

History has shown that the closer a candidate is associated with an outgoing administration, the more he will have to grapple with the incumbent president's record.

Going back to 1952, Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois had few problems with the Truman civil rights record, and indeed ran on the twin slogans of "You never had it so good" and "Don't let them take it away."

Truman campaigned actively for Stevenson, and it would have been ungracious of the candidate to traduce the record of the man crisscrossing the country on his behalf. But Stevenson defending the Truman record was less successful than Truman was in 1948 defending the Roosevelt record, and it hurt Stevenson in his race against the popular Dwight Eisenhower.

Richard Nixon faced the quandary in 1960. As Eisenhower's vice president, Nixon needed to tap into the vast reservoir of personal good will with the public that the president enjoyed. But the 1958 recession and the embarrassing U-2 incident of May 1960 were still fresh in the public memory. Nixon reckoned, however, that, on balance, embracing Ike was a sound strategy even as John F. Kennedy was tough in his criticism of the incumbent president.

Eisenhower wanted to refute Kennedy's charges, but also to rectify a damning statement he had made on Nixon's qualifications. When asked in an August 1960 press conference what major ideas Nixon contributed as vice president, Ike responded, "If you give me a week, I might think of one."

The forthrightness with which Stevenson in 1952 and Nixon in 1960 embraced the incumbents and their records was dramatically different from the agonizing decision faced by Hubert Humphrey in 1968. Running for the top job from the vice presidency, Humphrey staggered under the Vietnam legacy of Lyndon B. Johnson. From Labor Day 1968 until the last of September, Humphrey and his campaign staff tried to finesse the war issue by proclaiming "the politics of joy," but the public response to Humphrey was negative.

Finally, on Sept. 30, 1968, in Salt Lake City came Hubert Humphrey's liberation. In a speech televised nationally, Humphrey said that as president he would be willing to stop the bombing of North Vietnam if such a halt would further the cause of peace. The speech, more than any other factor, turned the 1968 campaign around and made it into a cliffhanger.

Humphrey paid a price, however.

When he came to Washington for a rally a short time after the Salt Lake City speech, he sought a meeting with Johnson. Johnson informed Humphrey, through a member of the White House staff, that the president was leaving for the weekend and that only if Humphrey could be at the White House in five minutes would he receive an audience with Johnson. Humphrey told the aide to inform the president what he could do with his meeting.

The fear circulating through the ranks of the 1988 GOP hopefuls is that, in the extreme, the embrace of Reagan's record could prove fatal. Such apprehensions are fueled by concern over such events as a free-falling stock market, a calamity in the Persian Gulf or an abrupt turn for the worse in U.S.-Soviet relations. But even if these doomsday scenarios fail to materialize, distancing of a less dramatic nature will continue to take place.

Barring a general disintegration of the economy or an international calamity, even the Democratic contenders will probably not indulge in unfettered Reagan-bashing.

Strength For Today

The devil's most effective weapon is fascination. What we do not have we not only want, but come to regard with such burning desire that the possession of all heaven and earth will not compensate us if we cannot have that one thing. Yet often when we get what we so desperately want, it turns out to be a bitter disappointment.

Lord Chesterfield, a leading bon vivant of his age, wrote in sad disillusionment, "I have enjoyed all the pleasures of the world and consequently know their futility. I do not regret their loss. Their real value is very, very low, but those who have not experienced them always overrate them. For myself, I by no means desire to repeat the nauseous dose."

The only sure safeguard against the ravages of fascination and disillusionment is a firm hold on the things of life that really count.

Town Has Full Lot Of Races

STEM, N.C. (AP) — Nobody can say there is political apathy in the Granville County town of Stem this fall where one of every 10 registered voters is running for office.

"We think it's amazing," said Donna W. Edwards, elections chairman for the town of 248 people. The town has 121 registered voters.

Mrs. Edwards said the burst of political interest could be attributed to a door-to-door campaign by the board of elections staff. Mrs. Edwards said she and others distributed leaflets describing issues facing the town.

"It worked," she said.

In addition to the five incumbent town commissioners, six contenders filed for seats. The mayoral race will go to James R. Murray, who is unopposed in his bid to replace Mayor Joyce B. Bailey, who is running for town commission.

The five commission seats and the mayor's post all carry two year terms and expire at the same time.

"It's nothing against the people who are in office now," Mrs. Edwards said. "But it's always the same people. Then you always have the ones who complain about things, and never do anything about them. We just wanted to get some others interested."

Conservatives Plan 3-Day Convention

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (AP) — Presidential hopefuls Alexander Haig and Pat Robertson are expected to attend a three-day convention here aimed at bringing conservative Southern views to the forefront of national debate, an event coordinator said Tuesday.

"It'll be the best program of its sort to be held outside Washington in recent times," said Nelson Griswold, executive director of The South Foundation, which is sponsoring the event.

All presidential candidates have been invited to the Southern Conservative Leadership Convention, which begins Thursday, but the Democrats, including Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore Jr., have declined, said Griswold.

Vice President George Bush is sending U.S. Rep. Bob Dornan, R-Calif., to speak on his behalf. Event officials were waiting word as to whether Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., would attend, he said.

Others scheduled to attend are Nicaraguan Contra leader Adolfo Calero and retired Gen. Daniel Graham, an advocate of President Reagan's so-called "Star Wars" defense plan.

The convention will be the third such event set up by The South Foundation, which seeks to promote "traditional values" and Southern heritage, said Griswold.

"The purpose (of the convention) is to bring together Southern conservatives, to focus on traditional values so important to Southerners, and to remind people on the national front of the importance of the South," he said.

"The South does not have proportional representation in national debate. It is to a large extent neglected in terms of its contributions to the national dialogue," he said.

"We will have an issues platform framed at the convention. We will urge presidential candidates to pay attention to it," Griswold said. The group also will conduct a straw poll on the presidential picks of those who attend the convention, he said.

The convention is open to anyone and costs $150 per person to attend all sessions, meals and a special reception, he said.

Calero is scheduled to speak briefly during a banquet Friday in his honor and will discuss the Contras on Saturday, Griswold said.

Haig is tentatively scheduled to speak on Friday, and Robertson on Saturday, Griswold said.

Schools Face Assault Over Students' Defaults

GREENSBORO (AP) — The Reagan administration and Congress want to clamp down on schools with high default rates on student loans, but school officials say they shouldn't be blamed for the financial problems of their former students.

"It's holding campuses accountable for something over which they have little control," said Chancellor Edward Fort of N.C. A&T State University. "We can urge students to pay back the loans, but that's as far as we can go."

"In effect, they are saying that when the game was first initiated, universities were not held accountable and suddenly, after the fact, they are," Fort said in an interview.

"That is totally inappropriate. I question the morality of it. I resent it."

Officials at many of North Carolina's historically black institutions, small private colleges, community colleges and trade schools are worried and even angry.

Many of those schools have high default rates on Guaranteed Student Loans, a need-based program that is annually the largest in the nation in terms of lending volume.

Department of Education officials said Tuesday they soon expect to announce a new assault against loan defaults, which cost taxpayers more than $1.7 billion a year.

Action also is expected in Congress.

The Senate has tacked a provision onto a trade bill now in conference with the House that would allow state agencies to refuse to guarantee loans to institutions with default rates of more than 25 percent.

Experts have said that the loss of Guaranteed Student Loan eligibility would force some schools to close their doors.

"Whether that is true in North Carolina remains to be seen," Fort said. "It's certainly true nationally."

Traditionally, colleges or trade schools have had little to do with ex-students who don't repay their loans.

The school do not have to collect the loans, which are made by banks or lending agencies. And when a student defaults, the government pays off the loan.

Supporters of a crackdown on defaults point to the rising costs.

Last year, the cumulative figure in student loan defaults reached $5.6 billion, rising from $977 million eight years earlier.

The annual cost climbed from $530 million in 1983 to a projected $1.7 billion this year, boosting the price tag for defaults to one of the Education Department's biggest spending items.

According to a recent national survey, 34 schools in North Carolina have default rates of 20 percent or more, including A&T, 32.74 per cent; Bennett College, 32.15 per cent, and Guilford Technical Community College, 20.31 percent.

The survey figures cover defaults through Sept. 30, 1986.

"The reader immediately assumes 'what is wrong with those schools.' That's not always the case," said Stan C. Broadway, executive director of the N.C. State Education Assistance Authority, an agency within the University of North Carolina system that is responsible for statewide student-assistance programs.

"You've got to look at the type of student, what the dropout rate is, how long the program lasts. It's far more complex than looking at a default rate and turning around and blaming a school."

Overall, North Carolina has a default rate of 7.7 percent, compared with the national average of 12.1 percent.

The survey, a joint project of the National Conference of State Legislatures and the National Governors' Association, found 34 institutions across the nation that had default rates of 60 percent or more and more than $1 million in default.

In North Carolina, only Shaw University fell into that category.

Like everyone else, Shaw officials say they have little control over the payback of guaranteed loans.

"There is a problem," said Dennis Spellman, a consultant brought in to guide Shaw through a period of financial difficulty. But "Washington ought to look at itself and Congress ought to change the rules without hassling the institutions," he said.

Spokesmen for the Department of Community Colleges and the UNC system agree.

"To punish the institutions is the wrong approach," said Jay Robinson, a UNC vice president. "I think the federal government must bear the major responsibility because they are the only ones with the leverage to force anyone to pay the loans back."

New AIDS Reporting Rules Set

RALEIGH (AP) — Revised state health rules would require people infected with the AIDS virus to submit a list of their sexual partners, but opponents of the proposal say it will hinder efforts to stop the spread of the deadly disease.

"It will drive people away from testing because they will be afraid," said Dr. Cheryl McCartney, a psychiatrist at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill and a member of the state AIDS Task Force.

"Putting a doctor in the role of the police will make things worse," she said. "I think it's going to be hard to get a list in an adversarial way, to avoid people lying and holding back information."

Under the proposed rules, the state would use the list to notify sex partners that they had been exposed to the acquired immune deficiency syndrome virus and might be infected with the disease.

The revision of the rules Tuesday removed an option, available in an earlier version, for an AIDS patient to avoid mandatory reporting of his sexual partners to the state if he volunteered to contact the partners himself.

The rules also would require doctors, or local health clinics that provide anonymous testing, to obtain the list of sexual partners from any patient they knew to be infected with the AIDS virus. The doctors or clinics would be required to pass the lists on to state health officials for notification.

A patient who refused to cooperate could be subject to a series of penalties ranging from warnings from a local health director to quarantine or even arrest and imprisonment.

Garison R. Kaufman, spokesman for the Gay and Lesbian Health Project in Durham, said the rules are "abhorrent."

"The continued emphasis on control measures, rather than education, will only serve to hinder efforts to contain the AIDS epidemic," Kaufman said. "It will, in effect, drive underground people who might have tested positive and who might, being given the information, adjust their sexual behavior accordingly."

John P. Barkley, an attorney for the Division of Health Services who participated in drawing up the rules, said violators would be punished with quarantine or imprisonment only in the most extreme cases. Asked how a doctor, or the state, could force people to reveal their sexual partners, he said, "I'm not exactly sure how that's going to work yet. We want to look at that on a case-by-case basis."

The proposed rules will be subject to comment at a series of public hearings planned in November throughout the state. After the comment period, the proposed rules will be considered by the state Commission on Health Services, a state agency that has the power to give them the force of laws.

Corrections Chief Says AIDS Not Major Problem In Prisons

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Prison officials say mandatory AIDS testing in the federal prison systems and some state prisons has shown that fewer prisoners have the deadly disease than generally thought.

"The general population has a bigger (AIDS) problem than the prison population," Aaron J. Johnson, correction secretary in North Carolina, said Tuesday at a meeting of the Southern Correctional Administrators Association.

Sue Cunningham, president of the American Correctional Association, said governors and legislatures in many states had ordered mandatory testing and other measures to control AIDS in their states' prisons and jails.

In many cases, the actions were required with insufficient input from prison and health experts, she said.

"Nobody can tell us right now whether that's the right thing to do," Ms. Cunningham said in an interview. "And then after you test, whether those numbers are very small or they're very large, how are you going to deal with them?"

Some states might be tempted to establish "leper colonies" to segregate AIDS patients from other inmates or take other steps that might not be justified, she said.

Another question is whether AIDS information can be made public without violating the prisoners' privacy rights, Ms. Cunningham said.

Public and private parking areas throughout the city have designated spaces for handicapped citizens. Special dashboard permits and license plates may be purchased at the state license agency, 718 Dickinson Ave. Call 758-1193 for information.

"The general public has the impression that prisons are one big sex orgy," C. Paul Phelps, secretary of the Department of Public Safety and Corrections in Louisiana, said. "For those that are running programs that are constitutional, that's not true."

Gary Maynard, acting director of the Department of Correction in Oklahoma, said mandatory testing of 10,000 inmates in his state had turned up only one AIDS case. Another 38 prisoners tested positive for the AIDS virus.

Testing is not required in Georgia, said David C. Evans, commissioner of that state's Department of Corrections. But he said about 50 cases had been discovered in his system, resulting in 12 deaths, in the past three years. Georgia's prison population is around 18,500.

In North Carolina, inmates are tested when undergoing medical treatment that involves taking blood, Johnson said. About 40 have tested positive for the AIDS virus and six or seven have contracted the disease, he said.

A bill to require AIDS testing in North Carolina's prisons failed in the General Assembly this year.

The ACA has created a task force to probe issues raised by AIDS in prison and recommend actions. The panel is expected to issue the report by January 1988.

Gov. Jim Martin's administration is developing a state AIDS policy that will include policies on the prison system, Johnson said.

IN THE STATE

Endorsements

RALEIGH (AP) — Sen. Harold Hardison says he's not surprised that environmental groups plan to oppose his bid for lieutenant governor by forming a political action committee. "They just don't like me," Hardison said. "I'll just take my case to the people and let them decide."

Despite several votes in favor of environmental issues this year, environmental groups say they doubt Hardison is a "born-again environmentalist."

The groups, who refer to the Lenoir County Democrat as "Hazardous Harold," plan to "do what ever we can do...to show the voters where he has stood," John Runkle, president of the N.C. League of Conservation Voters, said.

Hardison wrote the law prohibiting the state from adopting environmental regulations stricter than the federal government's. But this year, he has voted for some legislation the league and other environmental groups favor.

Guilty Plea

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A High Point man has pleaded guilty to taking part in a plot that led to his grandfather's 1986 slaying.

There was no ill will between Donald Ray Marlowe Jr., 29, and his grandfather, 75-year-old Lee Hampton Wallace, according to the testimony in Guilford County Superior Court in High Point. And neither Marlowe's ex-brother-in-law, John Boyd Enloe, 30, or Darlene F. Dills, 30, of Bryson City had ever had problems with the man, according to that testimony.

But Marlowe, Enloe and Ms. Dills all pleaded guilty to separate counts in the Wallace case Monday and were sentenced to maximum terms in prison.

Suit Filed

RALEIGH (AP) — A Wake County couple has blamed a Raleigh pediatrician for the death of their 1-year-old son, contending in a malpractice suit that the doctor failed to diagnose and treat the child's diabetes.

John M. and Lorraine M. Penton's son, James J. Penton, died Jan. 17, 1986, at Duke University Medical Center from complications caused by diabetic reaction, according to the complaint filed Friday in Wake County Superior Court.

The Pentons said in the suit that they had taken the child 10 days earlier to Dr. Faye Eaton, who diagnosed him as suffering from an intestinal virus. The doctor had advised the Pentons to force the child to drink Coca Cola or Pepsi as his condition worsened during the week before he went to Duke, the Pentons said in the suit.

New Charge

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An Iredell County teen-ager faces a new charge in connection with a collision that killed four people in July.

William Lynn Dingle, 17, was charged Saturday with reckless driving in a head-on accident that killed two teen-agers, a grandmother and her granddaughter. Dingle, who was 16 at the time, and his brother, Lorin, survived.

Killed were Michael Wilkie, 15, and Lynn Smith, 16, who were passengers in the truck Dingle was in, and Donnie Thompson Faulk, 53, and her granddaughter Heath, 7.

Last month, a judge dismissed four misdemeanor counts of death by motor vehicle against Dingle because the prosecution didn't prove he was behind the wheel.

Convictions

GREENSBORO (AP) — Five North Carolinians, three of them related, were found guilty Tuesday in U.S. District Court of selling more than three pounds of cocaine in Florida and the North Carolina Piedmont.

A jury deliberated much of the day before convicting Albert "Bert" Mayfield McDowell Jr. and his wife, Coleen Holloway McDowell, both of Liberty; Terry Young McDowell of Randleman, Albert's McDowell's brother; and Ronald Charles DiDonato and John Marshall Whitley of Greensboro.

Terry McDowell was found not guilty of possessing six ounces of cocaine on Aug. 13, 1985, and possessing 2.2 pounds of cocaine Dec. 23, 1985.

The five had been named in a nine-count indictment charging them with distributing cocaine from November 1983 to April 1986.

Protestors Brave Rain To Shout Objections To Waste Plant Site

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — A state commission seeking a site for a hazardous waste treatment plant was greeted with screams of "go home" as it toured a proposed location in Rowan County, but Gov. Jim Martin says that reaction is to be expected from any community under consideration.

Deborah Parker, chairwoman of the North Carolina Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission, told the 1,200 rain-soaked protestors Tuesday that the commission is considering other sites for the plant. Until now, the commission had narrowed possible locations to the Rowan County site and another in Davidson County.

"Yes, it's hopeful," Rowan County Manager Tim Russell said of the search for more sites. "They're doing what we think they should have done a long time ago," Russell said.

A spokeswoman for the hazardous-waste commission told the Charlotte Observer that additional sites won't be announced until consultants complete their research.

"They are gathering some other information on other sites," she said. "But as far as I know, it's just in the preliminary stages."

In the meantime, Rowan County officials say Glenn Dunn, the Raleigh lawyer they hired Monday, is preparing points he'll argue before the next hazardous-waste commission meeting, scheduled for Nov. 12. The meeting site has not yet been chosen.

"We want him to make sure that Rowan County presents its best case to the N.C. Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission," Russell said.

"We're not willing to have the hazardous-waste treatment commission locate that facility in Rowan County. We're not willing to have our residents submitted to that."

Rowan County commissioners appropriated $25,000 Friday for legal fees in the battle against the plant. They already have submitted written objections to the commission, including data that show too little water flows through Second Creek to properly dilute waste from the plant.

Members of the Rowan County Defense Fund and Rowan Environmentalists Against Pollution organized the protest, which drew 57 farmers on tractors and mothers and children waving skull-and-crossbone signs from beneath umbrellas.

The commission was greeted by 15,000 protestors in Davidson County Monday night when it held a public hearing.

No community wants a hazardous waste treatment plant located near it and that puts members of a panel looking for a site in a no-win situation, Martin said Tuesday.

Barn Fire Kills 21 Show Horses

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Twenty-one horses, most of them show horses just back from the North Carolina State Fair, were killed when a fire destroyed a barn.

"It's a shame the rain didn't start earlier," said Earl Hammer, a Davie County horse owner who came Tuesday to offer help to Steve Allred, the owner of the barn.

The barn was engulfed in flames when firefighters arrived. Rain began about an hour later.

"When you hear about a barn burning, it makes you worry about your own," Hammer said. "When you first hear about it, they never say whose it is, so you jump on the telephone and start calling everybody. Steve and I are friends, but we also compete in horse shows. Whenever something like this happens, that's irrelevant."

Allred had just brought the horses back from the state fair in Raleigh, Hammer said. Several of the American Saddlebred horses were valued at more than $100,000 each.

The fire was reported about 2 a.m. at the Forsyth County barn about nine miles outside High Point.

Triangle Fire Chief Ray Smith said he didn't know how long firefighters would remain at the scene while investigators and insurance adjusters finished their jobs. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

Biopsy Negative

RALEIGH (AP) — Final results of a biopsy on Dottie Martin, wife of Gov. Jim Martin, show that she does not have breast cancer, the governor's office said Tuesday.

"It appears everything is negative and there are no signs of cancer," Karen H. Rotterman, Martin's communications director, said.

Mrs. Martin was admitted Monday morning to the out-patient service of Raleigh Community Hospital after a routine screening mammogram revealed a growth found to be benign.

"She wishes to thank everyone who expressed good wishes and prayers of support to her and Governor Martin during this time," Mrs. Rotterman said.

Nursing Recruiter Says Shortage Is Nationwide

By The Associated Press
A shortage of nurses has recruiters criss-crossing the nation with offers of better pay, more flexible schedules and other incentives trying to lure a diminishing number of nursing school graduates, hospital officials say.

"Everybody is experiencing a shortage," Mark Philbrick, Duke University's nursing recruiter, said Tuesday. "We (recruiters) are like a gypsy band; you see the same people all over the country. There is no part of the country that hasn't been affected."

Philbrick said the lagging enrollment of nursing students is going to make the situation even worse in the future. As an example, he cited the situation at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, one of the state's largest nursing schools.

"They used to graduate over 125 seniors a year. We believe that will drop to around 100 this year, and junior class enrollment is just over 80 students," Philbrick said. "What we're seeing now is just a trend that will continue to be sliding. We see that at all large universities."

"There are several factors that play into this," Philbrick said. "There's a declining number of 18-year-olds in the population eligible to enter college."

"Another factor is that careers have opened up for women in more profitable fields such as law, medicine, computer science and engineering. Since 97 percent of nurses are female, that's been a real drain," he said.

Philbrick cited a study of changing values as another factor, with students 20 years ago mentioning a meaningful philosophy of life as being most important in their lives and a 1987 survey finding their top goal as being well-off financially.

Changes in nursing is the main topic this week as the North Carolina Nurses Association, representing the state's 51,000 registered nurses, begins its annual meeting in Charlotte.

Nurses are hoping the crisis will help improve the image and practice of their profession.

"I love nursing," said Denise Jones, a former hospital staff nurse in Charlotte, said in an interview. "I think we have a special place in the health care delivery system .... But we do more than just empty bed pans and follow doctors around."

Nationwide, 13.6 percent of nursing jobs at the nation's hospitals are vacant.

Similar shortages are reported in North Carolina, officials said.

"The reason you're seeing what's happening now is because there's been such a demand for nurses outside the hospital," said Nancy Langston, dean of the college of nursing at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

"Now hospitals are being required to change to be competitive," she said.

A half-dozen North Carolina hospitals, including Presbyterian in Charlotte, offer to pay tuition for student nurses who promise to work at their hospitals later. As a result, Presbyterian's School of Nursing more than doubled its entering class from 43 last fall to 95 this fall.

A number of hospitals have also adopted a flexible scheduling system, allowing some nurses to work 12-hour weekend shifts and others to work Monday through Friday schedules.

Duke even offers incentives for employees' children, Philbrick said.

"If they work here two years fulltime, we will pay for any course work they do at the university," he said. "If a nurse works five years fulltime, we will pay 75 percent of their child's tuition at Duke or up to 75 percent of Duke's tuition to send their child anywhere in the country if they don't get accepted at Duke. We will send two children per employee for four years of undergraduate study, so that's about a $60,000 benefit for their children's future."

Judges See Boarding

WILMINGTON (AP) — What began as a weekend fishing trip for a group of Superior Court judges attending a conference at Wrightsville Beach ended when an armed Coast Guard crew boarded the vessel, mustered the crew and passengers and searched the boat.

The Coast Guard cited the skipper of the 40-foot sport fishing boat, "Coquina," Jesse E. Carnes Jr., for failure to stop as directed by a Coast Guard vessel and for having an insufficient number of life preservers on board as well as other safety violations, said Lt. Cmdr. B.D. Ward Jr., of the Coast Guard group headquarters in Fort Macon.

Ward said the "Coquina" failed to heed an order Saturday to stop by the Coast Guard cutter "Point Martin."

One of the judges on the boat, Judson D. DeRamus Jr. of Winston-Salem, said he and most of the other judges were confused about the boarding. He said he noticed the Coast Guard vessel nearby while they were fishing and a Coast Guard airplane flying overhead. When the "Coquina" turned to head back to the dock, the Coast Guard cutter fell in behind and followed.

A smaller Coast Guard boat pulled alongside once they reached Masonboro Inlet and a crewman, using a megaphone, directed the boat to the Bradley Creek Marina.

"There was a sheriff there waiting," DeRamus said.

DeRamus said he knew of at least four other judges on the boat: Robert Lewis of Asheville; Robert H. Hobgood Jr. of Louisburg; Robert Gaines of Gastonia, and I. Beverly Lake Jr. of Raleigh.

Legislators Discuss South's High Infant Mortality Rate

By ELLIOTT MINOR
Associated Press Writer

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — The South's high infant mortality rate results largely from poverty, ignorance and inadequate medical care for pregnant teen-agers who are not ready to take on the responsibilities of parenthood, says a physician who is advising lawmakers in 15 Southern states.

Dr. Ginger Floyd, a speaker at the Southern Legislative Conference Tuesday, noted that 10 of the 11 states with the highest infant mortality rates are in the South.

"It's poverty, under-education and a lack of medical care," said Dr. Floyd, the director of family health services for the Georgia Department of Human Resources. "We know that if we can feed you and provide prenatal care, we can help you have a healthy baby."

Georgia Gov. Joe Frank Harris has assigned Dr. Floyd to work with the Southern Leadership Conference in developing infant mortality programs.

Harris also is hosting a meeting in Atlanta Nov. 4 on behalf of the SLC and the Southern Governors Association to determine how churches can help reduce infant deaths, and his wife Elizabeth is leading a campaign to reduce teen-age pregnancies.

"If we can instill in teen-agers self-esteem, we can postpone sexual involvement," Dr. Floyd told the legislators, noting that 50 percent of all Georgia teen-agers over the age of 17 are sexually active. "The bottom line is how to say no."

"Teen parents are not ready to be parents," she added in an interview. "Legislators need to get involved. We can't solve these problems by ourselves."

Sarah Suptrine, another speaker at a session on teen pregnancies and infant mortality, said teen pregnancies doom many young mothers to a life of poverty and greatly increase their risk of bearing unhealthy or handicapped children.

Ms. Suptrine, who is conducting a teen-pregnancy study for the Southern Governors Association and the SLC, said the problem is acute in the South and results from many complex causes, such as low self-esteem and a lack of goals among teen-age girls.

"This is a very, very serious economic problem," she said, noting that 56 percent of the women on welfare in South Carolina either were teen mothers or had signed up while they were teen mothers.

Ms. Suptrine, a consultant from Columbia, S.C., said teen pregnancy rates are not increasing, but more teen mothers are deciding to keep their babies, and that adds to the number of single-parent families, which tend to be plagued by poverty.

"The children of those families are suffering greatly," she told members of the SLC, who are meeting in Savannah for three days. Other issues discussed at the conference were the Super Tuesday primaries and caucuses, the cost of treating increasing numbers of AIDS victims and the importance of international trade.

PTL Files Latest Plan To Recover

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — PTL would pay off $60 million in debts in five years and sell off some of its real estate, after which its followers would take control, according to a reorganization plan filed in U.S. Bankruptcy Court.

The plan, filed Tuesday by representatives of PTL creditors and big-money contributors, will be put to a creditors' vote in December. Among PTL's creditors are 114,000 "lifetime partners" who contributed at least $1,000 each.

The Rev. Jerry Falwell and his PTL board had earlier filed their own reorganization plan, but he quit as PTL chairman and took the board with him Oct. 8 when the bankruptcy judge allowed a competing plan to be filed.

Falwell had said the ruling opened the door to a return of Jim Bakker, who built the evangelical empire but lost it in a sex and hush-money scandal in March.

The plan filed Tuesday refers to struggles for control between Falwell and Bakker, saying "PTL cannot survive if a so-called 'holy war' is allowed to continue."

The plan, like the one before it, would divide PTL into profit and non-profit corporations, one overseeing religious activities and the other overseeing business matters.

Unlike the Falwell plan, the new one would give PTL contributors control of the evangelical empire once its 1,400 creditors are paid.

In addition, the plan calls for raising $10 million to $20 million from the ministry's followers by next spring, selling some land at PTL's 2,300-acre Heritage USA Christian theme park in Fort Mill, and raising charges at the park.

"It is both logical and equitable that those who supplied the money to create PTL should have the most significant voice in the determination of the ministry's future," the plan said.

Bankruptcy Judge Rufus Reynolds said other ministries around the country are looking to the PTL case. "I'm very much concerned with keeping this ministry afloat," he said during a hearing Tuesday.

Miami Investor Who Killed Self Was Protected Witness

MIAMI (AP) — A disbarred Missouri lawyer got a new life under federal witness protection and threw it away eight years later, gunning down two stockbrokers and killing himself after losing a fortune in Wall Street's crash.

Arthur Kane, who shot himself in the head with a .357-caliber Magnum pistol in a Merrill Lynch brokerage, was actually Arthur Katz, a Kansas City lawyer convicted of insurance fraud in 1978, the Justice Department said Tuesday.

"There was a severe threat against his life and he was reluctant to join the witness program," said John Russell, a Justice Department spokesman. "But he testified in at least one trial. He provided a great service to his country and we felt he was owed this protection."

The U.S. Marshals Service resettled Katz in 1979, after he pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit mail fraud and was sentenced to six months in a minimum-security prison and fined $5,000. He also was disbarred.

"He was clearly not a violent person himself. He was intimidated by violence," said David B.B. Helfrey, former head of Kansas City's federal organized crime strike force, who placed Katz in the program.

In Miami, he used shrewd investments to build a fortune that included a $430,000 home with a pool and tennis court. With the crash, Kane lost as much as $10 million to $15 million, said police sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

"We have been in contact with him and as far as we know, he has led an excellent life" since joining the program, said Russell. "We have no knowledge that any of the money was ill-gotten."

Before killing himself Monday, Kane fatally shot Merrill Lynch brokerage manager Jose Argilagos, and wounded broker Lloyd Kolokoff, who remains in serious condition today with spinal damage.

Katz and his then-law partner A. Henry Tager were indicted in April 1978 by a Topeka, Kan., grand jury as part of a two-year federal investigation into insurance fraud, authorities said.

Katz and Tager allegedly staged automobile accidents and then got chiropractors to falsify medical claims. Katz received $110,000 over two years and Tager $135,000 in the scheme, the government said.

As Kane, he was hired by the Social Security Administration to help recipients file claims, a job that paid less than $30,000 a year.

Kane's former Miami broker, Norfleet McLellan, said he knew Kane only as a sharp investor who profited up to $600,000 in 1980-81 despite a market slump.

"Arthur Kane had two loves in life — his family and securities," McLellan said. He said Kane also loved risk arbitrage, the profitable but risky speculation in the stock of firms likely to be taken over by other companies.

"Takeover candidates have been hit harder than any other in the last two weeks," said McLellan, vice president of the government securities division of First Equity in Miami. "I'm sure he got tagged."

One such takeover target in which Kane reportedly had invested heavily in was Telex Corp. of Tulsa, Okla., which traded as high as $101.50 a share earlier this year, closed Monday at $37.50.

Merrill Lynch had told Kane he must come up with money to cover investments which were bought on margin, in effect, with money borrowed from the brokerage.

USDA Sued Over Seed Bank Plan

L.A. Times-Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Organizations from the United States and 25 other countries filed suit in U.S. District Court here Tuesday, charging the Agriculture Department with mismanagement of the seed-bank program that is intended to preserve tens of thousands of plant varieties, many of them rare or irreplaceable.

The groups, with the Washington-based Foundation on Economic Trends as lead plaintiff, asked the court to bar USDA from any further activity in the National Plant Germplasm System until it provides assurances that the seed collection is adequately protected from deterioration.

Officials of USDA's Agricultural Research Service, which oversees the main seed bank at Fort Collins, Colo., and at smaller sites around the country, were not available for comment.

The U.S. program, the most extensive in the world, collects and stores seeds that are made available to plant breeders for developing new varieties with more desirable traits such as higher yield and resistance to disease and adverse weather.

The suit said that despite progress made by USDA, "there are serious financial, practical, logistical and institutional problems hampering the development of an adequate germplasm preservation program for this country."

The suit was buttressed by a recent confidential report of the International Board for Plant Genetic Resources, which graded the Fort Collins storage site substandard in five categories and "acceptable" in 21 categories.

The board reported that seed banks in some other countries were in more serious disarray, but Fort Collins was cited for understaffing, failure to maintain adequate seed sample sizes, poorly designed fire protection, and an inadequate rate of regeneration of seed varieties.

Jeremy Rifkin, head of the Foundation on Economic Trends, said the new report and earlier critiques by official bodies provided increasing evidence that USDA has created "a major environmental crisis" by allowing the seed program to deteriorate to a point that rare plant germplasm is being lost.

Associate Says Nancy Holding Up Despite Surgery, Mother's Death

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Nancy Reagan, still recuperating from breast cancer surgery, received a sympathy card from eighth-graders after her arrival for the funeral of her 91-year-old mother, Edith Luckett Davis.

President and Mrs. Reagan arrived here Tuesday, a day after Mrs. Davis died, to make funeral arrangements. The president flew back to Washington later in the day. He plans to return Friday for the funeral, a small service for family and friends scheduled for Saturday at St. Thomas the Apostle Church here, said presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

All the Reagan children except daughter Patti and her husband, Paul Grilley, who "have other travel plans," will attend, said Elaine Crispin, Mrs. Reagan's press secretary.

Before the president left Tuesday, he and Mrs. Reagan were driven to the Messinger Mortuary and Chapel in suburban Scottsdale, where the body of Mrs. Davis was taken. They then traveled to the Davis home.

On their arrival at the funeral home, the Reagans received a sympathy card drawn and signed by students from the nearby Our Lady of Perpetual Help School. The yellow card was dedicated to the first lady "with our love and sympathy."

The students stood in their school uniforms across the street from the funeral home and watched the president's motorcade as it arrived, as did hundreds of other residents.

Mrs. Reagan made no public appearances the rest of the day.

Mrs. Crispin said the first lady was doing well despite the hardship of her mother's death on the heels of cancer surgery. Surgeons removed Mrs. Reagan's left breast on Oct. 17.

"It would have been nice to have a recuperative period without this, because this is very stressful," Mrs. Crispin said. She said Mrs. Reagan required no medication.

Mrs. Davis, a former actress who performed with such theatrical greats as George M. Cohan, died in her sleep of a stroke, the White House said. She was the widow of neurosurgeon Loyal Davis, the first lady's stepfather, who died in 1982.

Among those aboard Air Force One with the Reagans on the trip here were two military doctors and two military medics, officials said. A doctor and a medic were to remain here with Mrs. Reagan.

Mrs. Reagan and her mother were very close, Mrs. Crispin said, and Reagan was "being a good support system" for his wife.

Mrs. Crispin quoted Reagan as telling staff members aboard the plane that Mrs. Davis was "a very remarkable woman. ... She was quite a character."

Eighth Grade Class Sends Sympathy Card To Nancy

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — It's been a rough time lately for Nancy Reagan, given her bout with breast cancer and her mother's death, but those who know her predict she'll handle it well.

"She's a real survivor," her spokeswoman and longtime associate, Elaine Crispin, said recently. "She's a very strong woman."

detected a small, cancerous lesion.

Five days later, a beaming president gingerly escorted the first lady from their helicopter and into the White House as hundreds of aides and supporters cheered and a Marine Band pumped out a jazzy tune.

To show her good spirits in spite of her paled complexion and measured walk, the first lady kicked up her heel when asked if she'd be dancing soon.

It was a joyous scene, but one that revealed a change of roles for the couple of 35 years.

It had been Mrs. Reagan who had been an emotional support for her husband during earlier times of strain — after the harrowing days of the 1981 assassination attempt, his 1985 colon cancer surgery and just this past year during his prostate surgery.

Now, it was the president's turn.

Despite clashes in the Persian Gulf, the trouble on Wall Street and turmoil in the Senate over his Supreme Court nominee, Robert H. Bork, Reagan visited his hospitalized wife every night — carrying flowers, cookies and even a small mirror she once had admired as a get-well gift.

Specialists in breast cancer commented at the time that such support from a loving husband was one of the surest aids to recovery for a woman following a mastectomy.

In public, the president has always been very solicitous of his wife and their affection for one another is plain to see.

A tearful first lady flew to Phoenix on Tuesday, accompanied by President Reagan, to make funeral arrangements for her mother, Edith Luckett Davis.

Mrs. Davis, 91, died in her sleep at her Phoenix home on Monday after a long illness.

The vivacious former actress and her daughter, who had dabbled in a Hollywood career, "had been very close," Mrs. Crispin said.

"She's been very tearful," the spokeswoman said of the first lady.

Boarding Air Force One, Mrs. Reagan appeared down in spirits, giving reporters a wan wave and smile. And she covered her eyes with sunglasses, something she rarely does.

"It was not a good sleeping night," said Mrs. Crispin, who accompanied the first lady.

Despite her mother's advanced age, Mrs. Davis' death still came as something of a shock to the first lady, who had just begun a recuperation from breast cancer surgery.

On Oct. 17, Mrs. Reagan's left breast was removed at Bethesda Naval Medical Center after doctors

Streetcar Loses Brakes, Wrecks

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An out-of-control streetcar loaded with commuters jumped its tracks and hit a building during the morning rush hour today, injuring at least 30 people, five seriously, authorities said.

"The driver told everybody to go to the back of the trolley because there was no way he could control it. He apparently lost his brakes," said Police Sgt. Joseph Jancosko.

"We knew he meant business," said passenger Todd Erlich, 34. "Everybody moved to the back ... Very orderly. The only screaming was pretty much after it stopped."

The trolley was traveling through a tunnel leading from the South Hills suburbs to downtown Pittsburgh when it derailed, sideswiping a bus headed outbound, said Debra DeCourcy, spokeswoman for the Port Authority Transit of Allegheny County.

The red-and-white trolley then slammed head-on into a six-story brick office building known as the Gatehouse, shattering windows and ripping out poles and fire hydrants.

Ms. DeCourcy said at least five trolley passengers suffered serious injuries.

GUC

property, plant and equipment totaled $4.28 million, according to the audit.

Reviewing a management letter included with the audit, Lock told the board the recommendations it contain "may increase the manageability of an operation as large as this."

But, he added, some of the recommendations "may not be practical."

Locke, suggesting that the letter "by nature appears critical," said the suggestions contained in the letter were "in no way meant to criticize the operation" or any individual.

Among the recommendations contained in the management letter:

— Customer deposit cards should be reconciled with general ledger records "on at least a quarterly basis," rather than annually.

— All fringe benefits and non-departmental expenses should be allocated to the respective departments, rather than aggregated by fund.

"This procedure will more accurately reflect the total cost of providing services at the individual department level," he said.

— Take a periodic physical inventory at least bi-annually, of all property.

— Develop a "cash management and investment policy," and establish a safekeeping agreement with the trust department of an established bank to hold all commission investments in safekeeping.

"Using the trust department of a bank establishes an agent relationship which will provide additional safeguards over commission assets."

In other business, the board approved spending $22,700 for a water system study designed to present alternative ways to improve water pressure throughout the system.

Korean Diplomat Freed In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A South Korean diplomat has been freed from captivity in Lebanon after his kidnappers were paid $1 million in ransom, a senior Shiite Moslem militia leader disclosed today.

Do Chae-Sung, who spent 21 months in captivity, was released early Tuesday, Justice Minister Nabih Berri told a news conference in Moslem west Beirut. Berri also heads the mainstream Shiite Amal militia.

Berri would not elaborate on Do's whereabouts.

The Voice of Free Lebanon radio, controlled by the right-wing Christian Lebanese Forces militia, was first to report Do's release. But the station, which has proved inaccurate on Moslem affairs on previous occasions, did not attribute the report.

There was no immediate word from South Korean officials on Do.

The leftist As-Safir daily had today quoted unidentified "Western diplomatic sources" as saying: "positive developments are expected in the next 48 hours concerning one of the foreign hostages who have been kidnapped in west Beirut."

Do's release leaves 22 foreigners, including eight Americans, held hostage following kidnappings in Lebanon. Most are believed held by pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem groups.

In addition, Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite has been missing since last January, when he disappeared during a mission to mediate with Islamic Jihad, which holds some of the hostages.

The longest-held hostage, American journalist Terry Anderson, turned 40 on Tuesday.

Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, was kidnapped in west Beirut March 16, 1985. One day later, the pro-Iranian Islamic Jihad, or holy war, claimed his abduction.

Anderson's birthday was observed by colleagues, friends and family in west Beirut and Washington.

"Happy birthday doesn't seem appropriate," Anderson's sister, Peggy Say of Batavia, N.Y., told a ceremony at the Jefferson Memorial in Washington.

"Keep strong and keep the faith and believe as I do that someday you're going to come home," Mrs. Say said.

"Let me tell you something about my little brother," Mrs. Say said. "He's not an ordinary man. ... In the latest picture, his head is held high and he has the look of utter defiance on his face. Terry Anderson will survive."

The ceremony was sponsored by No Greater Love, a private humanitarian organization, and the Journalists Committee to Free Terry Anderson.

Philippine Rebels Kill 3 Americans

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Three teams of assassins killed two American soldiers and a retired U.S. serviceman in separate attacks today near the giant U.S.-run Clark Air Base, officials said.

They said the attackers were probably communist rebels.

Maj. Gen. Donald Snyder, commander of the 13th Air Force, said a Filipino bystander was also slain in one of the four attacks and another American escaped injury after gunmen fired on his car.

The names of the victims were not released.

In Manila, meanwhile, assailants, also believed to be communists, shot and killed two policemen and wounded a colonel in separate attacks, officials said.

In another development, the U.S. Embassy said a U.S. Army attaché linked to military mutineers was leaving the country in a controversy over alleged American "meddling" in Philippine politics.

Col. Manuel Caranza, security operations officer of the Philippine military's Capital Regional Command, said the attacks on Americans took place in the space of about 30 minutes and he said three teams of assassins were involved.

"We don't have sure information," said Caranza, whose command is responsible for security at the base. "But they were most likely 'sparrows' because of the style and weapons."

Communist assassination squads are known here as "sparrow units" for the swiftness of their attacks. Police said the assassins normally use .45-caliber pistols, which were used in today's attacks.

U.S. officials in August told The Associated Press that guerrillas were escalating their assassination campaign against policemen, military officers and government officials.

Rival Opposition Leaders Split Up For South Korean Presidential Race

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer
SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Opposition leader Kim Dae-jung split the South Korean opposition today by announcing he was running for president in elections later this year.

He entered the race despite last-minute attempts to persuade him and rival opposition leader, Kim Young-sam, not to run against each other. Kim Young-sam declared his candidacy Oct. 10.

"I hereby announce to the people my intention to become a candidate for president in order to fulfill my responsibility to history and to accept the opportunity of service," Kim Dae-jung said.

In other developments today, about 4,000 students called for the downfall of the government at two rallies in Seoul. No clashes or arrests were reported. In a statement read to reporters, Kim Dae-jung said he had no choice but to run because of the expectations of his followers. He said he alone could ensure full democracy in South Korea.

"I have confirmed that the overwhelming majority of our people support me enthusiastically," the 61-year-old opposition leader said.

"I am firmly confident of my forthcoming victory," he added.

Kim Young-sam said in an interview today that he would win the presidency despite the entry of his rival. "I am sure I will score a big win receiving more than half the votes," said Kim Young-sam.

The announcement of Kim Dae-jung's candidacy came the day after South Korean voters approved a new constitution that clears the way for direct presidential elections and other reforms.

President Chun Doo-hwan, a former general who took power with military backing in 1980, bowed to demands for the reforms after huge anti-government protests in June. Kim Dae-jung and Kim Young-sam were among those leading the protests.

With Kim Dae-jung's entrance into the presidential race, the main opposition Reunification Democratic Party is divided. Kim Dae-jung, who had hinted he would seek the presidency, said he would form a new political party.

Kim Young-sam is party president and Kim Dae-jung is an adviser to the party, which has 69 lawmakers in the 272-member National Assembly.

Kim Dae-jung said he would run on a five-plank platform calling for national reconciliation, a just economy, political neutrality of the military, a self-reliant foreign policy and reunification of the Korean peninsula.

The opposition leader said he favored a free-market economy.

He called for a foreign policy that would stress close relations with the United States and Japan, but place more emphasis on achieving "self-reliance in foreign affairs." He also called for opening of diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, China and other communist nations.

It is illegal to be a communist in South Korea, which fought a three-year war with communist North Korea.

Despite restrictions that kept him out of formal politics in recent years, Kim is considered a tough minded, courageous leader.

He ran for president in 1971, losing narrowly to Park Chung-hee. While Kim was abroad, Park cracked down on dissent.

In 1973, Kim was abducted from a Tokyo hotel and brought home, an operation believed to have been carried out by Korean government agents.

He was in and out of jail over the next few years.

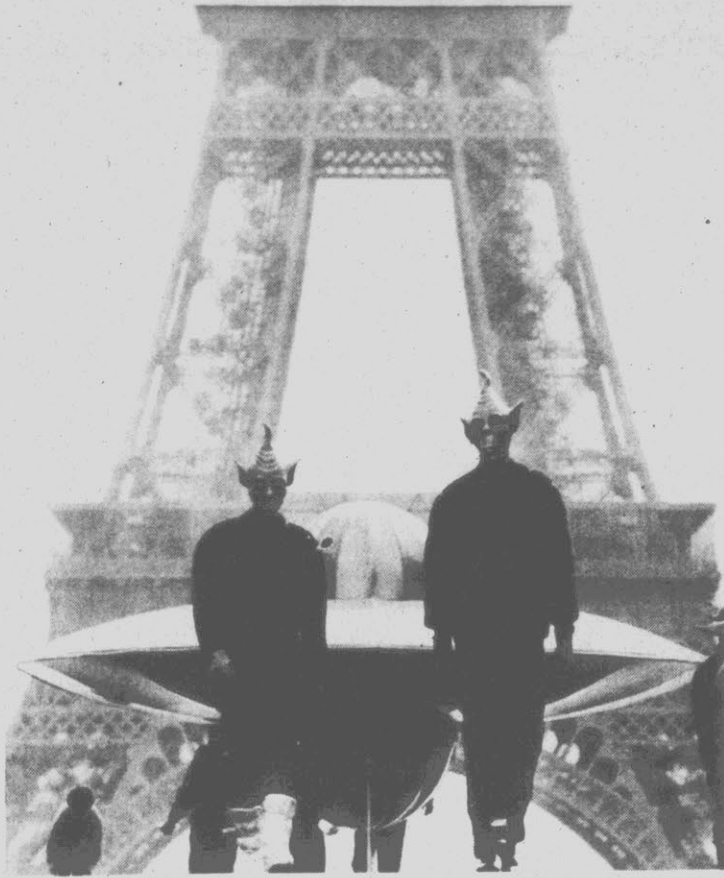

In 1980 Kim was sentenced to death by a military tribunal that found him guilty of involvement in a bloody uprising in Kwangju. Some 200 people were killed when an anti-government uprising in the southern city was suppressed by the armed forces.

Kim's sentence later was reduced to 20 years. In 1984, he was allowed to leave prison and go to the United States. He returned in 1986.

Kim Young-sam issued a statement warning that the split would aid the candidate of the governing Democratic Justice Party, Roh Tae-woo.

The country's first direct presidential elections in 16 years are expected in mid-December. Chun is to step down Feb. 25 at the end of his seven-year term.

Constitutional Amendments Get Strong OK In S. Korea

By NICK B. WILLIAMS JR.
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

SEOUL, South Korea — Voting for a direct voice in government, South Koreans Tuesday overwhelmingly approved constitutional amendments that authorize December's first fair presidential elections in 16 years.

Turnout was mixed, lower in the big cities where the political opposition is strong, but the revisions carried strongly — 93 percent in favor — in the nationwide referendum. A simple majority was required for passage.

Fearing trouble from student radicals calling for a boycott of the vote, the government put the national police force on alert and rifle-bearing officers were posted near polling places here in Seoul. No incidents were reported, however.

The amendments guarantee basic labor rights, press freedoms and protection from search and seizure without a warrant, but restoration of direct elections was the key provision.

"I'm not familiar with all the revisions, but I know it gives us a chance to vote for whom we want for president," said Lee Jung Im, a 44-year-old shop owner as she left a polling place in Seoul's middle-class Hap-jung district. "I voted yes."

Lee Chang Cho, a spokesman for the governmental Central Elections Management Committee, said the nationwide turnout of the 25.6 million eligible voters averaged 78 percent. The figure ran lower in the cities, however, with Seoul at 65.4 percent, Pusan at 72.5 percent and Kwangju, an opposition stronghold, at 75.6 percent.

It was the lowest turnout since 77.1 percent of the voters cast ballots allowing the late President Park Chung Hee to serve a third term.

For weeks before the vote, radio and television broadcasts urged voters to go to the polls, apparently out of concern that a combination of neglect and a boycott might drag the turnout under 50 percent of the eligible list, invalidating the results. A government holiday, declared for the election, may also have shaved the turnout.

All the presidential candidates supported the constitutional revisions, although one, opposition leader Kim Dae Jung, ran into difficulty recording his approval. Kim arrived at the polls without his national identity card, which all voters are required to produce to receive a ballot. Despite the protestations of his aides that Kim was sufficiently well known to be identified, poll clerks sent the candidate home to retrieve his card.

The momentum toward December's presidential election began last April when President Chun Doo Hwan abruptly aborted constitutional-revision talks — near collapse anyway — between the ruling and opposition parties. Calls for him to reverse his decision mounted through May, and in June spilled into the streets of Seoul and other major South Korean cities.

With students and riot police clashing almost daily, and stability and Seoul's 1988 Summer Olympics in jeopardy, Roh Tae Woo, the ruling party's nominee for president, put politics in shock here by announcing his support for every major demand of the opposition, most importantly direct elections.

Roh had been nominated under the system of indirect — and, the opposition charge manipulable — voting for the presidency. That system was discarded by Tuesday's vote. It was replaced with a direct-vote amendment worked out by a bipartisan, eight-man committee with equal representation from the ruling Democratic Justice Party and the main opposition Reunification Democratic Party.

All previous changes in the South Korean constitutions — which have come frequently in the country's 39-year history — have been imposed by the party or man in power. Both sides made concessions to achieve the amendments on Tuesday's ballot.

Further compromises are embodied in revisions of the nation's election law, now in draft form, that will guide the conduct of the campaign and the December election.

The election date, Dec. 20 or earlier, is expected to be set within the next 10 days.

Contesting the election will be four major candidates: Roh for the ruling party; Kim Jong Pil, prime minister under the late President Park; and Kim Dae Jung and Kim Young Sam, architects of a fragile opposition alliance under the Reunification Democratic Party.

Iraq Reports It Attacked Three Iranian Tankers

KUWAIT (AP) — Iraq said today its warplanes attacked three tankers in Iranian waters overnight as part of a campaign to destroy the oil exports of its enemy, but shipping sources said they could not confirm any of the attacks. Iran meanwhile claimed that three of its warplanes challenged the U.S. Navy in the Sea of Oman on Friday.

The 13th U.S.-escorted convoy was moving up the gulf today toward Kuwait's port, which has been hit by three Iranian Silkworm missiles in the past two weeks.

The official Iraqi News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, said warplanes raided vessels off Iran at 7:10 p.m. Tuesday, then at 1 a.m. and 5:10 a.m. today.

The agency quoted an unidentified military spokesman as saying all three raids "were aimed at destroying Iran's oil exports." It said the ships were off the Iranian coast, but did not give their exact location.

Iraq raids Iranian oil targets to cut off the exports that finance its enemy's war effort. The two nations have been at war for seven years.

Marine executives in Kuwait, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said they could not confirm any of the three raids. It sometimes takes up to 48 hours to confirm Iraqi strikes, since many vessels maintain radio silence in order to avoid a second attack.

Since Oct. 14, Iraq has claimed its warplanes have attacked four other tankers off Iran. Only one of the raids has been confirmed, an Oct. 14 strike on an Iranian-chartered supertanker.

Earlier Tuesday, Iraq said its air force raided the Agha Jari oil field in southwestern Iran. Iran said one plane was shot down.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said today that three Iranian warplanes flew to within 10 miles of U.S. Navy ships in the Gulf of Oman Friday in defiance of a warning.

IRNA, which also is monitored in Cyprus, said the Iranian warplanes "ignored warnings and a threat of attack" radioed by a Navy warship. The three Iranian jets were 20, 22 and 27 miles from the U.S. ship when they received the warning, IRNA said.

"The Iranian pilots radioed back saying they would fly within the range prescribed (by the Iranian command)," IRNA said. It claimed the warplanes flew to within 10 miles of the U.S. ships, then returned to their bases without incident.

There was no immediate comment from U.S. officials.

U.S. Navy vessels generally warn foreign planes to remain about five to 10 miles away. On Friday, however, the ships may have been a higher state of alert, since a Kuwait oil-loading facility was struck that day by an Iranian missile.

Iran, which accuses Kuwait of aiding Iraq, has raided Kuwaiti shipping for the past year. The Reagan administration agreed last summer to reflag and protect 11 of Kuwait's 22 tankers.

Shipping officials in Kuwait said Tuesday that the U.S. convoy was in the central gulf but they did not know its precise position.

The convoy, which left the United Arab Emirates port of Dubai Monday, is made up of the 290,085-ton products tanker Middletown and the guided-missile frigate Ford, the Pentagon said.

Ecuador Goes Under State Of Emergency

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — President Leon Febres Cordero imposed a state of emergency and placed the media under partial censorship to block a general strike today called by the nation's most powerful labor federation.

The 24-hour strike was organized by the communist-led United Front of Laborers to demand the ouster of Interior Minister Luis Robles, who was impeached by Congress last month for allegedly violating the rights of political prisoners, but allowed to remain in office.

The president's dismissal of the congressional action against Robles has galvanized the opposition, which has charged that Febres Cordero is pushing Ecuador toward a dictatorship.

The Robles case has created a government crisis in this tiny Andean nation, which returned to elective government in 1979 after seven years of military governments.

The government declared today's strike illegal, but the United Front of Laborers issued a statement saying it would go on. The federation said that more than 1 million workers and 800,000 students and farm workers would participate.

The labor federation claims a membership of half of Ecuador's 350,000 unionized workers.

The general strike is the sixth called during Febres Cordero's four-year term, which ends in August. It is the first in which the government has declared a state of emergency. Previous strikes have paralyzed the country and led to violent clashes between police and protesters.

Women Have International Tea

Foreign fashions and food highlighted the international tasting tea held by Pitt County Extension Homemakers Tuesday afternoon. The women have been studying foreign countries during the past year.

Evelyn Spangler, Pitt County home economics extension agent, narrated a fashion show which included women modeling clothings representative of the various countries.

Models were Virginia Rowe, Libya; Margaret Barnhill, Russia; Theresa Sawyer, China; Amy Ann Smith, the Philippines; Mrs. Abdul Farhadi, Afghanistan; Louise Murphy, Iceland; Bettie Ruth Staton, Turkey; Debra Cannon, the Netherlands, and Linda Weathersby, Sweden.

Ila Parker, Martin County home economics extension agent, displayed her collection of bride dolls from Sweden, Italy, Russia, Japan, Holland, Germany, France, Poland, U.S., Canada, Mexico, Ireland, China and Greece.

"The traditional Chese marriage ceremony is rich with symbolic meaning and reverent supplications of 'heaven and earth' and to the ancestors of both the bride and bridegroom. Almost everything associated with the wedding is red — symbolizing love and joy — even the paper on which the two families exchange letters of negotiation for the betrothal. An Ireland bride wears a shawl of Irish crochet lace which serves as her bridal veil and heirloom apron of the same lace over a bright green skirt," said Ms. Parker.

"In her gown of white lace, a Mexican bride's veil is attached to a distinctive 'huipil grande' headdress which is accented by red roses. A ribboned white headdress and veil, a bright green sleeveless jacket, red beads and a full skirt of multi-hued floral print are worn by a bride of Poland," she said.

"A familiar winged cap, square-cut bib at her neck and a short, frilled apron are characteristic of a Holland bride. A wedding kimono and wide obi sash are made of fine brocaded satin, traditionally a gift of the bridegroom, are features of a bride of Japan. The doll from Sweden wears a blue tunic decorated with multi-colored ribbon and a woven 'waist-girdle' with a bridal crown," said Ms. Parker.

Tabbie Nance, N.C. state international program of work chairman, was a special guest and told of several foreign exchange students and personal experiences.

Lucille Evans, county international program of work chairman, introduced special guests and greetings were given by Leroy James, county extension director.

Several groups of homemakers had exhibits of their country. A tasting tea of foods representative of several countries included sweet and sour chicken; spicy and hot tunisian lamb sauce; ensaimado rolls; salmon luncheon sandwiches; Turkish meatballs; Russian cookies; speculaas cookies; coconut-almond candy, and semlor.

Son Needs Special School

DEAR ABBY: I am a male high school teacher. I have a student in class who is 16 years old and appears to be "a little light in his loafers," as we say around here. (In other words, "gay.")

I am convinced that the boy is "straight," even though when he talks, he gestures broadly with his hands, and finds it impossible to drink a glass of milk unless his pinkie is pointing due west.

Is there a school where young men can go to "butch up," so to speak? If there is, his dad would like to know about it. If no such place exists, might I suggest it as a good business opportunity for somebody to start one.

I am signing my name and address to verify that this is a legitimate letter, but please don't print it, as this is a rather small town. Sign me ... HEAVY IN THE HUSH PUPPIES

DEAR HEAVY: I find it very sad that a father would ask his son's teacher to recommend a school where young men can go to "butch up."

A drama coach might be helpful. However, since you have a dialogue going with the father, please tell him that what his son "is" is more important than what the boy appears to be.

Dear Abby
 Abigail Van Buren

And encourage the father to work on establishing a closer relationship with his son.

DEAR ABBY: How my heart ached for the woman signed "6 Feet 4 in Alabama"! I was 6 feet tall in the seventh grade and was never invited to a high school dance. I was miserable, but I knew there was something better out there for me, so when I reached 19, I threw away my flats, bought high heels and learned how to walk gracefully in them. When the questions changed from, "Do you play basketball?" to "Are you a model?" I knew there was no way but up for me.

Today I'm 6 foot 4, and 27 years old. I'm married to a man (my height) who's a banking executive. I wear suits and heels daily. I love my height. — WALKING TALL IN L.A.

DEAR WALKING TALL: Many tall people wrote asking me to publicize Tall Clubs International. There are 49 chapters throughout the United States, plus more in Canada and Northern Europe. The minimum height for women is 5 foot 10, and the minimum for men is 6 foot 2. They are a wonderful group of people who are proud to be tall.

For more information, call the toll-free number: (800) 521-2512.

"whistlers." Most were on the funny side, but two calls were sad.

A 16-year-old California girl said her father works nights, so he's at home during the daytime. She invited some friends over to listen to records. Her father whistled constantly, so she asked him to please stop. He hit her in the mouth, knocking out two teeth, then threw her out the door, saying he would have no "mouthy brat" living in his home!

A woman from Georgia said that her gentle, lovable father moved in with her family two months ago. He loves the children and they loved him when he didn't live with them and they only visited him. He whistles all the time — even at the dinner table. Her husband threatens to move out, and the five children fight all the time and refuse to be around Grandpa. Her headache never stops. Now they are going to put Grandpa in a nursing home "where he will surely die soon!"

Wouldn't it have been wonderful if someone, many years ago, helped these whistlers to stop a seemingly harmless habit? In my letter, I treated it as a joke. I don't find it funny anymore.

Thanks for printing my letter even though almost everyone disagreed with your answer. — BJ du BIEL, WELCHES, ORE.

Tommy's teachers always said he could do better. Sylvan showed him how Like many students, Tommy was smarter than his grades suggested. For some reason, he just wasn't doing as well as his teachers, and parents, knew he could.

At Sylvan we guarantee that Tommy will reach his full potential. It's a promise. And we back it with this simple guarantee: your child's reading or math skills will improve by at least one full grade level after just 36 instruction hours. Or we'll provide up to 12 additional hours of instruction at no further cost. Improvement will be measured by a nationally-recognized achievement test, given before and after instruction at Sylvan.

The Sylvan Guarantee

Your child will improve at least one full grade equivalent score in math or reading skills after 36 hours of instruction, or we will continue up to 12 additional hours of instruction, at no further cost.

Measurement will be based on a nationally-recognized achievement test for improvement in either reading (comprehension or vocabulary) or math (computation or application).

Cabled Pullover Is Convertible

The classics are back with new pizzazz! Typical of the new look is this exquisitely cabled pullover with a convertible neckline. Wear it unbuttoned as shown, or button up the collar and — voila! — it's a flattering turtleneck.

The sensational cable pattern is fascinating to knit; you'll want to use the pattern over and over.

Easy-to-follow directions are given for small, medium and large sizes with finished bust measurements of 36 1/2, 40 1/2 and 44 1/2 inches respectively. The gauge, in pattern, is six stitches per inch.

To obtain directions for making the Split Decision Pullover, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-102587 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-102587 by sending a check or money order for $20.95 for small, $23.95 for medium or $26.95 for large to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and worsted-weight acrylic yarn in your choice of lavender or off-white.

Dear Pat: I keep hearing about "Shaker stitch" knits, but I can find no directions for working this stitch. Can you help? — Sheila R., Cadiz, Ky.

I sure can, Sheila, and as many others have the same request, I'm happy to do so. Perhaps one of the reasons for the popularity of this stitch is its thermal quality, giving added warmth without extra bulk. It also gives a ribbed appearance without the body-hugging nature of ribbing, making it more comfortable to wear and more flattering to the less-than-perfect figure.

To work this simple, two-row pattern, cast on any even number of stitches and knit all stitches on every odd-numbered row. The even-numbered, right-side rows are worked as follows: Step 1: knit 1; Step 2: insert tip of your right-hand needle into the stitch below the next stitch and knit. Repeat Steps 1 and 2 across the row until 2 stitches remain. Knit these last 2 stitches.

Because you knitted all stitches on the first row, you will have a row of purl "bumps" facing you when you turn to begin the second row. To knit into the stitch below, insert the needle tip just below the purl bump of the first stitch on the left needle, wrap the yarn around the needle just as you would have if you inserted the needle into a stitch on the left needle; pull the yarn through to the front and slip the stitch above off the left needle tip.

This may sound complicated, but try it on a sample swatch and you will see that it is just as fast and easy to do as any knit stitch. I would suggest that you work two or three rows of stockinette or garter stitch before starting the pattern to make it easier for you to work the first repeat of Row 2.

Use larger-than-normal needles for your yarn type for the best results. For example, with worsted-weight

To avoid extra calories, cut a baking potato into strips, place them on a greased baking sheet in one layer and bake for 45 minutes in a 350-degree oven. They will be crisp and lower in calories than french fries.

Pat's Pointers

yarn, if you usually use size 7 needles for a five-stitch-per-inch gauge, try size 10 for a three-stitch-per-inch gauge. Because all stitches are knitted on both sides, the knitted fabric will have a compressed row gauge. In other words, you will have more rows per inch than you would have in stockinette.

Dear Pat: I am knitting my first sweater, and something awful is happening. There are holes here and there all over my work. Also, I counted the stitches and I have more now than when I started. Can you guess what might be causing this? — Betty A., Seminole, Fla.

I won't have to guess with that double trouble. These problems will always occur when one is unintentionally making yarnovers at random. This happens when you have the yarn in front of your work before making a knit stitch. It should always be in back of your work unless a yarnover is called for in the directions. Yarnovers, which are created by bringing the yarn to the forward position, are one way of increasing stitches, and they automatically form open spaces — or holes — in your knitting. You're not alone, though, Betty. When I taught beginning knitters, I found this to be the most frequent mistake they made.

SPLIT DECISION PULLOVER

Miss Purvis, Mr. Little Say Vows

HASSELL — Elizabeth Speight Purvis of Bethel and Paul Douglas Little of Greenville were united in marriage Oct. 18 in a 4 p.m. ceremony at the Hassell Christian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Everett Purvis Sr. of Bethel. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Lee Little of Wilson.

The Rev. Richard Rundell officiated at the double-ring ceremony and music was provided by Sue Koonce of Tarboro, aunt of the bride, organist, Teresa Everett of Robersonville, soloist, and J.H. Koonce of Tarboro, cousin of the bride, pianist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal floor-length gown with a chapel train of candlelight bridal satin and re-embroidered alencon lace and seed pearls over taffeta. The gown featured an illusion yoke bordered in lace. The long sleeves had an insertion of alencon lace and seed pearls extending from the shoulder to the wrist. The full skirt, which fell from a basque waist, was edged in lace and featured appliques of alencon lace and seed pearls on the train. She chose a chapel length veil of bridal illusion etched in re-embroidered alencon lace and seed pearls attached to a cap of matching lace and pearls. The bride carried a formal cascade of stephanotis, miniature white carnations, and sonya roses interspersed with ivy and seed pearls.

Odessa Saylor of Hamilton served as her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Katrina Little of Wilson, sister of the bridegroom, Lorie Rollins of Nashville, Ruth Ann Townsley of Virginia Beach, Va., Sydney Peel of Raleigh, and Bryson Jenkins of Knightdale. Laura Leigh Robbins of Wilson served as her cousin's flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Richard Little of Wilson, brother of the bridegroom, Everett Purvis Jr., brother of the bride, Steve Saylor of Hamilton, brother-in-law of the bride, Edward Koonce of Raleigh, cousin of the bride, and Dennis Hardy of Robersonville.

Mrs. Mike Johnson of Hamilton, aunt of the bride, served as wedding director. Mrs. H.R. Purvis, great-aunt of the bride, presided at the register.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Patsy Purvis served wedding cake and Joan Bennett poured punch. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leggett Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Purvis said goodbyes.

A bridesmaids luncheon was held at the Holiday Inn in Greenville and the after-rehearsal dinner was held at the Holiday Inn in Williamston.

The bride is a graduate of Peace College and now attends East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College and is employed by Lowe's of Greenville.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Winterville.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Renewed selling hit the stock market today as beleaguered traders responded to stock declines in Tokyo and London and a falling dollar in currency markets around the world.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial fell 63.49 points to 1,782.99 in the first half hour of trading.

The average's closing low on Black Monday Oct. 19 was 1,738.74.

Losers outnumbered gainers by nearly 5 to 1 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 217 up, 1,024 down and 304 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 46.49 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Stocks fell in Tokyo after an early rally faded, and British share prices also lost ground.

Analysts said traders were unsettled by weakness in the dollar, which could prompt a reversal of the recent decline in interest rates that has so far helped to cushion the impact of stock-market turmoil.

Rated upward in the credit markets Tuesday.

Analysts said investors were also nervously awaiting the British government's sale of its remaining stake in British Petroleum, which has met with a poor response because of the battered condition of the markets.

If the offering proceeds, securities firms bringing out the issue stand to suffer losses that could have ripple effects throughout the markets, brokers said.

Among today's early volume leaders, International Business Machines fell 3/4 to 114 1/4; General Electric 1 1/2 to 42 1/2; Dow Chemical 3 3/4 to 61; Ford Motor 2 1/4 to 67 3/4, and Digital Equipment 3 1/2 to 112.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost 3.48 to 127.03. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 6.02 at 232.50.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 52.56 to 1,846.49.

Trooper Hit By Car

Area law enforcement officers are still looking for a man who assaulted a Highway Patrol trooper with a car on Greenwood Drive late Monday night.

Trooper D.R. Taylor said he had stopped in front of his home and was completing paper work before going off duty about 11:53 p.m., when a car pulled to a stop behind his patrol car.

The driver of the other car blew his horn and started yelling at a passing vehicle, Taylor said. "I asked him to leave and he got back into the car, then I asked for some identification."

Taylor, who was standing between the opened drivers' door and the car, said the man then cranked the engine, put the vehicle into reverse, and with Taylor trapped between the door and car, began backing up. "The car door hit me ... kept hitting me," until the driver put the gear selector into "drive" and drove off.

Taylor suffered bruises to his body and legs as a result of the incident.

Candidates Talk About City Election Issues

put the solid waste, and our river is getting polluted," Rose said.

Meanwhile, City Council member Ed Carter, a mayoral candidate, said all aspects of long-range planning need additional scrutiny.

"Needless to say, we have much to do in improving the thoroughfares in this city," said Carter, head of administrative services at Burroughs Wellcome Co.

"Long-range planning is always a problem. We thought we had a long-range plan that was sufficient in the medical district area, (but) we found that we needed a special study. The specificity of our long-range plan is not sufficient."

Incumbent Mayor Les Garner and Willis Stancill, another candidate for the mayoral seat, did not attend the forum.

Mildred Council, who is running unopposed for the District 1 seat on the board, said downtown revitalization efforts are a priority.

"I will support the redevelopment of downtown Greenville and the central business district involving cooperation between private and public sectors and the expansion of the industrial park to improve employment opportunities for all citizens," said Mrs. Council, a sickle cell educator and counselor for the N.C. Division of Health Services.

City leaders need to examine economic changes in order to plan for the future, according to Rufus Huggins, a candidate for the District 2 seat.

"Greenville is the focus point of Pitt County," said Huggins, a sales representative for Southern Life Insurance Co. "We've changed from a basic agricultural community to one which has diversified interests — medical, education and industrial."

"The leadership must be capable of analyzing local needs to plan for future growth. Our problems are no different from other cities of our size."

Opposing Huggins in the race is Herb Gardner, who said improved employment opportunities and traffic woes need to be addressed.

"Unemployment, crime and traffic congestion are the most noted problems," said Gardner, managing partner of Gardner's Bail Bonding Co. "To help reduce unemployment among our youth and minorities, I would promote some sort of joint public, private sector industry effort to improve minority representation in all phases of the workplace."

"Traffic congestion can best be addressed by putting all current available data and growth patterns in the city and our engineers together for a series of brainstorming sessions, ending with a workable and affordable solution."

Many of the long-range planning problems addressed by candidates are under study, said Council member Inez Fridley, who is running unopposed for the District 3 seat.

"We are just at the point now of having subcommittees working on the whole southern district with Winterville," said Ms. Fridley, area coordinator for the department of residential life and housing at ECU. "We are just beginning to work with the county in terms of long-range planning."

"We are beginning conversations with the county about solid waste management. There are many long-range planning issues that we are just beginning to move on. We are looking at our zoning ordinance in terms of updating it. I think we have a lot to accomplish and we're headed in the right direction."

Council member Bill Hadden, a candidate for the District 4 seat, said the medical district serves as a carrot to most developers.

"The medical park is an essential preserve," said Hadden, the mayor pro tem. "Developers are very much attracted here simply because they've got ... very valuable property. There is a lot of competition for that property. It has to be preserved and we're going to have to fight to preserve it."

Richard "Ric" Miller, Hadden's opponent in the District 4 race, said Greenville's growth goes beyond the city limits.

"We've led all other surrounding cities in population growth, building permits," said Miller, a general partner of Miller & Davis and member of the city's planning and zoning commission.

"With all this growth, we are going to have to continue to plan that growth in an orderly fashion. Greenville is Pitt County, Pitt County is Greenville, what is good for one is good for the other. We've got to work with Greenville Utilities, the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and the Board of Education for population growth."

Pitt-Greenville Airport, along with the medical district, is also an important concern for city growth, Council member Nancy Jenkins, who is seeking the District 5 seat, said.

"In the medical area, I am proud of our record there. We'll have to keep very tight constraints on that in years to come and be very careful how that area progresses," she said. "That is not only a medical area, it is certainly an industrial one and a business one."

"I am also very much interested in the airport. I think that allies very handsily with the medical facility."

Blanche Forbes, who is opposing Mrs. Jenkins, said, "My sincere desire is to promote the medical facility, build a civic center, new industry, better streets for transportation, communication at city and county offices and strive for the unity of the City Council."

Charles L. "Chuck" Autry, a candidate for the District 5 seat, said he would work to provide advancement opportunities for city employees.

"It is my concern that the city of Greenville grow properly," he said. "I believe that all the city employees should have the opportunity to be promoted from within, enabling them to grow as the city grows."

efforts have furthered the goal of education for Pitt County students," Craft said. "I will follow with great interest the future growth of this school system."

Craft was presented a custom-made scrapbook outlining events and progress of the schools and a painting depicting a Pitt County tobacco barn scene by Emmy Whitehead, arts coordinator for the schools. Carl Heath, former director of the Maintenance Department, also presented Craft a plaque displaying tools.

A native of Pitt County, Craft grew up in Bethel and attended the Bethel schools. After high school, he attended Duke University for one year before enlisting in military service for three years. He returned to Duke, where he earned a bachelor's degree in social studies. He also earned a master's degree in social studies and administration from East Carolina University.

Craft, 62, began teaching seventh through ninth grade students in Ayden in the early 1950s, was an assistant football coach, the girls' basketball coach and a principal before assuming his position as assistant superintendent in 1963.

Craft said he already has plans to keep him busy after his last day at work. He and his wife, the former Norma Lee Hinnant of Pikeville, "hope to do some traveling and do some things we enjoy together," he said. The Crafts have two sons, Tom and Ned, and one grandchild.

Craft is a member of First Baptist Church in Ayden where he is a member of the board of deacons and has served as its chairman and vice chairman. He is a substitute Sunday school teacher and is a member of the Baptist Brotherhood Club and the Adult Choir.

Craft also is a member of the Ayden Rotary Club and is chairman of the Ayden Recreation Commission. He is a member of the board of trustees at Chowan College and serves on the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Dental Parent Committee.

Klan March

WILMINGTON (AP) — The Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan have been issued a permit to March in Wilmington on Nov. 29.

The Klan, which will march through the downtown area, filed for a parade permit about three weeks ago, Assistant City Manager Mitzi York said Tuesday.

After Klan members march through part of downtown Wilmington, "they plan to make a speech at City Hall, then disperse," Ms. York said. "We're going to try to bring as little attention to it as possible and hope it will go through without any problems."

Local Klan representative J.T. Harris said the purpose of the march would be to recruit new members in the Wilmington area. Harris, the owner of a Wilmington ceramic tile company, said he did not know the number of current members in the area.

Thousands Cheer Twins In Ticker Tape Parade Celebrating Series Win

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A motorcade carrying members of the World Series champion Minnesota Twins inched through a blizzard of confetti and rice as hundreds of thousands of delirious fans jammed city streets to glimpse and touch their heroes.

"I could cry. That is so nice I could cry," team owner Carl Pohlad said as he rode at the head of the parade Tuesday.

"I guess this is the grand finale right here," left fielder Dan Gladden said. "These have got to be the best fans."

With 17,500 pounds of confetti and untold reams of toilet paper drifting from skyscrapers onto the parade route, two convertibles carrying Twins players caught fire.

"Flames were coming out of the sides," said catcher Sal Butera, noting that hot engine manifolds sparked the fires under his car and one occupied by pitcher George Frazier.

No one was reported injured and a third confetti fire broke out under a parked convertible just after the Twins arrived at the parade-ending rally at the state Capitol. State Patrol troopers extinguished it.

Police estimated that more than 200,000 fans turned out for the start of the parade in Minneapolis. Its arrival in St. Paul was delayed by more than an hour because fans slowed progress to a stop-and-go crawl.

"I have had all sorts of details in my 20 years and I have never had close to the sea of humanity that turned out today," said John Laux, a deputy chief in the Minneapolis Police Department. "They tried to cooperate as best as they could, but they themselves had no place to go. It was such a mass of humanity."

Some officers had their toes run over by cars in the motorcade as they struggled to buffer the pressing crowd. Fans stood on traffic lights at nearly every intersection, where the masses were up to 50-deep. Construction workers waved from steel girders nearly 60 stories high, and people hung from openings in every parking ramp and most office buildings.

With temperatures in the mid-40s, a brisk wind held much of the confetti in the air.

"It makes you want to start playing again tomorrow so you can do it again next year," said pitcher Bert Blyleven, who like many of his teammates was wrapped in a knee-length fur coat. "It's the best recognition that any club could ever want."

As the parade headed east on an eight-mile stretch of freeway between the two cities, fans waved from nearly every overpass.

"It's something that a president deserves," designated hitter Don Baylor said. "It's the best I've seen."

In St. Paul, where many waited five hours for the motorcade's arrival, fans nearly mobbed center fielder Kirby Puckett, and his wife, Tonya, looked on in fear.

"Unbelievable! Unbelievable!" utility infielder Al Newman shouted from a car in front of Puckett's.

Crowd estimates were a crap shoot at best, ranging at 400,000 to one million for the entire event. Capitol security officers estimated the crowd at the rally there to be more than 100,000.

About 300 children reported themselves as missing to the Capitol's security staff, but by the end of the day they were all reunited with their parents, said Katherine Dwyer of the Minnesota Historical Society's Capitol Historic Site Staff.

No one was reported jailed in Minneapolis in connection with the parade, Hennepin County Deputy Sheriff Stephen Wood said.

At least one reveler was arrested in St. Paul, located in Ramsey County, on a charge of criminal damage to property. "I guess somebody who had too much to drink ripped a license plate off a squad car," Capt. Robert Gray, a watch commander, said.

City Center, a shopping mall in downtown Minneapolis, was closed for about 30 minutes on advice from police, said Suzy Gershow, public relations manager.

"People got too rowdy and were partying a little too hard for our security," she said, adding that no damage was reported.

Gov. Rudy Perpich gave most state employes the afternoon off and many Twin Cities schools followed suit. Perpich proclaimed the rest of 1987 "Twins' Year," and promised individual days in honor of each player and members of the team management. He also declared Dec. 5 a special day of recognition for Minnesota Twins fans and awarded a state flag to each player.

"It's a sign of this state being together, one family," Pohlad said. "I think that's what's great about this state."

Jags, Rams In Key EPC Battle

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

After two straight conference losses, Farmville Central coach Dixon Sauls minces no words when he talks about the importance of the Jaguars game against Greene Central Friday.

"We have a one game season if we want to advance into the playoffs," Sauls said. "We have a chance to redeem ourselves. If we can bounce back mentally and get our morale up, we have an excellent chance of winning."

The Jaguars have been hard-luck losers the last two weeks, dropping games to Ayden-Grifton (14-6) and North Pitt (20-13). The losses dropped the Jaguars out of first place in the Eastern Plains Conference and left them scrambling for the third playoff spot with Greene Central.

"We have not made the big plays and our opposition has," Sauls said. "When you go the well so many times, you begin to wonder. We played extremely hard the last two weeks and we've come up short."

The running game that got the Jaguars off to a 5-1 start has deserted them in recent weeks as Farmville has struggled offensively.

"We would like to do a better job blocking for Gary Moore," Sauls said. "He is an excellent running back and we have to do a better job. He (also) has got to have the desire himself and the determination. We have not blocked with authority or precision. We've talked the entire year, that is one of our shortcomings."

Indeed, Moore, who has run for 892 yards this season, has totaled only 91 yards the last two games.

But Sauls said there are still plenty of positives for his Jaguars.

"We've played excellent defensive football teams (the last two weeks)," Sauls said. "We know physically that we played hard enough to win the football game. There is not a lot of satisfaction in not achieving your goals but you do realize you are able to play with those teams."

"I think we're somewhat down. We've got to pull ourselves back up. Some of our goals are still very attainable — have a winning season and go to the playoffs."

Once again, history is repeating itself. Last year, these two teams met to decide who would get the EPC's final playoff spot, with the Rams taking a 17-14 win.

"We played over there last year and lost on the last tick of the clock," Sauls said. "They know and we know that this game will determine who goes to the playoffs. We need to have the effort one more week."

North Pitt
The Panthers are fresh off their biggest romp of the year, 49-12, over South Lenoir but coach Larry Bolger said the Panthers have little time to savor the win with a key game coming up with C.B. Aycock.

The Panthers must win to keep up in the race for the EPC title with Ayden-Grifton.

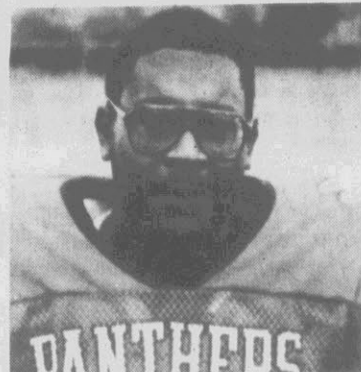

"That's the first breather we've had all year and just a couple of things happened early to make it that way," Bolger said. "We had a fumble on the opening kickoff, South Lenoir ran over the ball, Michael Blow picked it up and wasn't touched."

Ashley Sheppard then returned a fumble 65 yards for another score and the Panthers were up 12-0 without touching the ball offensively.

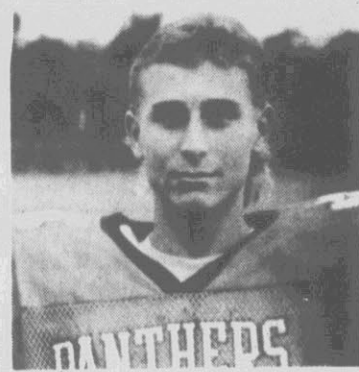

But the preliminaries are over. Aycock too has only one conference loss and is facing the make-or-break part of its schedule. They face EPC front runners North Pitt and Ayden-Grifton over the next two weeks and must win at least one game to have a chance at the playoffs.

"The darkhorse of this conference is C.B. Aycock," Bolger said. "They come in here Friday night. They have a better overall record (6-2) compared to the Panthers' 4-3-1) and the same conference record (3-1)."

"They run the single wing offense

NP's Clifton Woods

NP's Derek Knox

and Harvey Brooks has been running it since he's been a head coach, some 22-23 years. He knows how to run it. I'm impressed by the movement they have with (Corey) Dickerson. It is going to be a challenge.

"I don't like to key on one back but it is quite obvious that Dickerson runs the show. But we can't completely concentrate on him. Our number one priority will be to stop Dickerson. Our number two priority is to stop the rest of the offense."

The 49-point total was the Panthers' highest of the season. Calvin Hunter, rounding into form after missing three and a half games with an injury, has passed for 409 yards and led an ensive resurgence by the Panthers.

"We didn't run the option much Friday night because of the situation," Bolger said. "Calvin kept it twice for 35 yards, one of those 24-yard score," Bolger said.

Ayden-Grifton
The 6-2 Chargers take on South Lenoir Friday and for coach B.T. Chappell, the biggest concern might be getting his players minds on the task before them.

"It's our Homecoming and we have a lot of activities going on," Chappell said. "It's a matter of concern to have your players ready so we're really concerned about not going out there real flat and having a tough night."

Last Friday, the Chargers took a 14-6 win over Farmville as Eric Blount scored on a 75-yard punt return and a 76-yard run and ran for 153 yards on the night.

Blount has been the Chargers' mainstay all year long, a fact which is not lost on his coach.

"I told Eric Friday night after the ball game, 'I keep expecting you to have a bad game.' But somehow, he's been able to come through with the big plays," Chappell said.

Blount has run for 802 yards on the season in a backfield where he is only one of three possible ball carriers, yet he has been the big play man. He has also scored 98 points on the year to lead the EPC in scoring.

And while the Blue Devils are the cellar dweller of the conference, Chappell said every game is important.

"I'm trying to emphasize to our players that this ball game is very important to keep us at the top," Chappell said. "If we are going to make it into the playoffs, we need to improve every week. I don't know how many will take that to heart."

The Chargers' lone conference loss this season came at North Pitt and Chappell said that may have been the turning point for his team.

"The biggest thing we look back to is that loss to North Pitt being so disappointing," he said. "I believe it had some positive things come out of it. We had an open date that enabled us to do a lot of hard work. We did a lot of contact. The reason we beat Greene Central (the following week) is because of that first loss. We could have gone either way."

Junior halfback Tony Reeves will miss this Friday's game because of an injured shoulder. He will be replaced by junior James Woodard.

Morris To Hold Off On Whether To Be Free Agent

NEW YORK (AP) — Detroit pitcher Jack Morris says he will wait before deciding whether to test the free-agent market again.

"I'm not going to do anything for about a week or so," Morris said. "I think there may be a free-agent market. I'll give the Tigers the benefit of the doubt."

"Let's put it this way. I haven't filed for free agency yet."

Morris is one of several Detroit players eligible to shop his services elsewhere. Designated hitter Bill Madlock is the only Tiger player to file for free agency so far.

Players have until Nov. 9 to file. Failure to file deprives them of free-agent eligibility.

On Tuesday, Brett Butler and Ed Vande Berg of the Cleveland Indians and Lee Mazzilli of the New York Mets filed for free agency, bringing to 15 the number of players who have filed in two days. On Monday, the first day of filing, 12 players submitted their names, including relief ace Dave Righetti of the New York Yankees.

Among the approximately 110 players who are eligible to file are outfielder Dale Murphy of the Atlanta Braves, third baseman Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies, shortstop Cal Ripken Jr. of the Baltimore Orioles, and Detroit pitchers Dan Petry and Frank Tanana, outfielder Larry Herndon and catcher Mike Heath.

The Tigers reportedly have made Morris an offer of $3.7 million for two years. Morris is seeking a minimum of $2.05 million for 1988 and at least that much for 1989.

The 32-year-old right-hander has maintained he should be paid at least as much as Los Angeles Dodgers left-hander Fernando Valenzuela, who will earn $2.05 million in 1988. Last season, Morris was 12-3 on July 4, but struggled down the stretch, finishing with an 18-11 record and 3.36 earned run average.

Morris was a free agent after the 1986 season. When no other team offered him a contract, he accepted the Tigers' offer of binding arbitration and was awarded $1.85 million for 1987, a raise of $1 million over his 1986 salary.

His acceptance of the Tigers' offer to arbitrate a one-year contract for 1987 gave Morris the right to again become a free agent.

If the Tigers are unable to sign Morris again, they must once again offer him binding arbitration by Dec. 8. Failure to do so would mean the club cannot negotiate a contract with him until May 1.

Players are under no obligation to accept binding arbitration.

Butler, a left-handed hitting outfielder, batted .295 with nine home runs and 41 runs batted in during the 1987 season. He earned $765,000.

Vande Berg, a left-handed pitcher, was 1-0 with a 5.10 earned run average in 72 1-3 innings this year, when he was paid $300,000.

Mazzilli, whom the Mets signed as a free agent Aug. 3, 1986, after he was released by the Pittsburgh Pirates, has been used primarily as a pinch hitter. He batted .306 with three home runs and 24 RBI this year. The Mets signed him to a one-year, $600,000 contract following the 1986 World Series.

Eight 4-A Teams Still Unbeaten

By DAVID DROSCIAK
Associated Press Writer

Led by top-ranked Greensboro Page, eight 4-A teams remain undefeated in this week's North Carolina Associated Press high school football poll.

Fourteen teams in three other classifications also are without a loss with two weeks of the regular season remaining.

Page, 8-0, pulled away from No. 2 Garner in a Tuesday vote by a statewide panel of prep sports writers. The Pirates received six first-place votes for 123 points, while Garner, 9-0, moved up a notch with 100 points.

Gastonia Ashbrook fell a spot to third with two first-place votes and 96 points, closely followed by Wilmington New Hanover's two and 91.

The only major move in the 4-A rankings was Waynesville Tuscola's drop from No. 7 to No. 10 after its Friday night loss to Asheville Reynolds.

Greenville Rose, Kannapolis Brown and Northern Durham — all unbeaten — each received a first-place vote.

In 3-A, the top four teams from last week's poll remained unbeaten. Top-ranked Havelock widened its lead over No. 2 Burlington Cummings, garnering nine first-place votes and 134 points. Cummings received two and 115.

East Wake and Central Cabarrus were third and fourth again, but 8-0

North Iredell jumped two spots to fifth after its victory over previously ranked South Iredell, which dropped out of the poll.

Burns dropped three spots to No. 9 after its first loss of the season Friday night and Tarboro, 6-2, pulled in to the poll for the first time this season at No. 10.

The remainder of the 3-A poll included defending state champion Shelby, Brevard and Asheboro. Burns travels to play Shelby this Friday night.

Five 2-A teams received first-place votes, but Whiteville remained the top-ranked team with six and 117 points. Ahsokie took over the second spot after Maiden lost to No. 3 Newton-Conover and dropped to ninth.

Fourth-ranked Wallace-Rose Hill, No. 6 Edenton Holmes and No. 8 Thomasville also received at least one top vote each.

The rest of the 2-A rankings included two-time defending champion Lexington, undefeated Fuquay-Varina and newcomer East Duplin, also 8-0.

Wallace-Rose Hill travels to play East Duplin on Friday night.

Murphy, 8-0 and averaging 53 points a game, was the best 1-A squad again, getting 10 top votes and 105 points.

Rodgers Tops NL Voting

NEW YORK (AP) — Buck Rodgers says it was an organizational effort by the Montreal Expos that resulted in his selection as National League Manager of the Year.

The Expos stayed in the NL East race until the final week of the season, finally finishing four games behind the St. Louis Cardinals and one game back of the New York Mets.

In his third season as manager of the Expos, Rodgers received 92 points from a 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America, easily defeating runner-up Roger Craig of San Francisco, who had 65 points.

Whitey Herzog of the St. Louis Cardinals finished third in the balloting with 54 points. Others receiving votes were Davey Johnson of the Mets and Jim Leyland of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

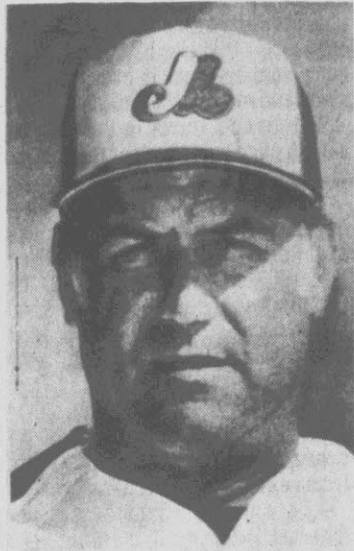

Rodgers was the only manager named on all ballots. He collected 13 first-place votes, eight for second and three for third. Points were awarded on a 5-3-1 basis.

"I'm getting the credit, but really it was a complete effort by the entire organization," said Rodgers, who was responsible for molding and motivating the Expos into a contending team.

"We had a great chemistry that allowed us to get through a lot of adversity, and that's something everybody had a hand and should share in."

Between seasons, Montreal lost slugging outfielder Andre Dawson to the Chicago Cubs via free agency and traded relief ace Jeff Reardon to the Minnesota Twins. Outfielder Tim Lincecum also became a free agent and did not re-sign with the team until the season was nearly a month old.

Still the Expos' record of 91-71 was a vast improvement over 1986, when Montreal finished fourth with a 78-83 mark.

Buck Rodgers

It was the fourth manager of the year award given Rodgers in recent weeks.

"It's been very satisfying," Rodgers said in a telephone interview from California. "Especially the one from The Sporting News because that's the one your peers vote on."

"The writers' (award) is important too, because people nationwide realize we had a good year."

Rodgers joined Gene Mauch in 1973 and Dick Williams in 1979 as Expos pilots who have won the award. It also came at a time when he is negotiating a new contract with Montreal.

But Rodgers said the award shouldn't play much of a role in the negotiations, which he says are virtually complete.

"We're pretty well agreed on most things, there are just a few things dangling," Rodgers said. "I see no problems and we should finish things up within the next week or 10 days."

A catcher for nine seasons with the California Angels, Rodgers became the seventh manager of the Expos on Nov. 14, 1984, when he took over a fifth-place club that had finished five games under .500 and 18 games out of first place in the previous season.

He began his managerial career with Salinas of the California League in 1975. He managed El Paso to the Texas League title in 1977, then got his first shot at a major league managerial job in 1980, replacing the ailing George Bamberger with the Milwaukee Brewers.

He was the Brewers' interim manager from March 6 through June 6, 1980, compiling a 39-31 record, then piloted Milwaukee to the American League East second-half title in the strike-shortened 1981 season.

Rodgers was replaced as manager of the Brewers in June 1982 by Harvey Kuenn.

Expos reliever Bob McClure was a starter then with the Milwaukee team that went on to lose a seven-game World Series to St. Louis.

"He's more mellow now, but that (Brewers) job would have been tough on any rookie manager," McClure said. "There were three or four guys who had been around between 15 and 20 years, and the veterans thought it should be done a different way. Those veterans had a lot of influence with the front office."

In 1984, Rodgers was named Minor League Manager of the Year for piloting the Indianapolis Indians to the American Association championship.

"I don't think my style is any different, but I've learned to deal with things better and how to delegate authority more," Rodgers said. "I think I've learned to handle things better."

Rodgers also was a coach with Minnesota from 1970 through 1974, San Francisco in 1976 and Milwaukee from 1978 through 1980.

With the Expos Rodgers began drawing on his previous big-league managerial experience to motivate a club that was demoralized the year before and dramatically altered by the 1985 trade of catcher Gary Carter to the Mets.

Title, Cash On Line In Nabisco

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Player of the Year title and $3 million in prize money will be at stake this week in the Nabisco Championships of Golf, the richest event in the history of the sport.

"It's mind-boggling," said Ben Crenshaw, who is, more or less, the defending champion in the tournament that begins Thursday on the 6,556-yard, par-70 Oak Hills Country Club course.

Crenshaw won the Vantage Championship on this course last year, winning $180,000 of the $1 million purse.

With a change in the corporate sponsor, he is now among the short list of players who could win as much as $355,000 this week.

The enormous prize money represents almost 10 percent of the total available on the PGA Tour this year.

"With the amount of money we're playing for here, this will determine the year's money-winning lead," said Curtis Strange, who currently leads that category with a record $718,941.

The official money-winning list closes with this tournament, and at least 10 players have a shot at the lead. Paul Azinger, with $658,481, is Strange's closest challenger.

Positions on the money-winning list also have a bearing on the points list from which the Player of the Year is chosen. That, too, closes this week.

Azinger second at 64.

"It's a strong lead. I'd have to have a very good tournament to catch him," Azinger said.

Only 30 men are competing in what is, actually, three tournaments in one in an enormously complicated, multiple-faceted formula.

First, there is the Nabisco Championship, the 72-hole stroke-play tournament that offers $2 million in prize money. That includes $360,000 to the winner, down to $32,000 to last place.

Secondly, there's the Nabisco Grand Prix, a season-long competition based on players' performances in week-to-week tour events. That, too, comes to a close this week and offers another $1 million in prize money. It includes $175,000 to the winner, down to $14,000 to 30th. Strange also leads this competition, with Crenshaw second and Azinger third.

And, too, there's the Team Charity Competition. In the finals of year-long competition, representatives of the eight leading teams compete for $1.47 million to be distributed to the charities represented by their tournaments. The charity represented by the winning team receives $500,000.

Belmont Park is one and one-half miles around, which happens to be the distance of the Belmont Stakes.

New Leaders Move To Top In Reflector Prep Rankings

New leaders emerged in three of the four high school classifications in the Daily Reflector Prep Performance Rankings this week.

Only one leader managed to hold to its position, Wallace-Rose Hill. And even it had to share first with another newcomer at the top of the 2-A list.

Garner High School tumbled to a tie for fourth place after leading the 4-A list most of the season. The Trojans, 9-0, are only two points behind the new leaders, however, but will wind up their regular season this Friday night, making a return to the top during the regular season unlikely.

Kannapolis Brown is the new 4-A leader. Now 8-0, Brown has amassed 64 points thus far. Points are awarded for each victory and additional points are awarded each time a victim wins a game. Adjustments are also made for playing out of class, either with additional points to playing up, or fewer points for playing down.

Kannapolis was second last week.

Greensboro Page, 8-0, and Northern Durham, 8-0, tied for third last week, moved up to a tie for second this week with 63 points. New Hanover, 8-0, is tied with Garner for fourth with 62.

Havelock, 8-0, slipped from first to second in the 3-A ranks. North Iredell, 8-0, moved past Havelock by a point and a half with 57½. Havelock has 56.

Burlington Cummings, 8-0, is third — the same as a week ago — with 55 points.

Wallace-Rose Hill, 8-0, saw Newton-Conover, also 8-0, pull even in the 2-A ranks. Newton-Conover is up from second to knot WRH with 51 points. Whiteville, 8-0, holds to third with 46½.

Northampton West, 7-1, has moved from third to first in the 1-A category with 35 points. Red Springs, 8-0 and second last week, retains that spot with 34½.

Swain, 8-0, drops from first to third with 34 points.

Besides Havelock, several area teams are ranked this week. In the 4-A list, Rose is sixth; while in the 2-A ranks, Ahsokie is tied for sixth, Edenton is eighth, and Ayden-Grifton is tied for ninth. Columbia moves into the 1-A list this week, tied for 10th place.

Hagler Will Be Available At Hearn-Roldan Bout

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Marvelous Marvin Hagler will be on hand to talk about the Thomas Hearn-Juan Domingo Roldan middleweight title fight and to talk about the principals.
 "I'm evaluating the situation," the former undisputed middleweight champion said at a news conference when asked whether he would challenge the winner of Thursday night's fight for the World Boxing Council title.
 "I'll be watching these guys and see what happens," said Hagler, who will serve as a television commentator and who will conduct an in-the-ring interview with the winner.
 The scheduled 12-round fight outdoors at the Las Vegas Hilton will start about 8 p.m. PST and will be shown on closed-circuit and pay-per-view television, as will Bobby Cuz's scheduled 15-round International Boxing Federation light heavyweight title defense against Charles Williams.

 "There's no telling what Thomas does and says at that time," Hearn said of the possibility of being interviewed by the man who knocked him out in the third round of a sensational fight on April 15, 1985.
 As for a rematch, Hearn said, "I don't want to comment on that. I have another obstacle in front of me."
 Hearn, a former World Boxing Association welterweight and World Boxing Council super welterweight champion, rebounded from his loss to Hagler to win the WBC light heavyweight title. He relinquished it to fight Roldan in a bid to become the first man to win four titles.

 "I would like to wait until it (the title) gets back together," Hagler said of a possible comeback from his upset loss to Sugar Ray Leonard last April 6. "Right now it's a big joke."
 However, unifying the title might take longer than Hagler wants to wait.
 "I might not fight again," Hagler said. And promoter Bob Arum said, "My advice to him would be not to fight again."
 But Arum thought it was a distinct possibility that Hagler would fight the Hearn-Roldan winner. Hagler stopped Roldan, of Argentina, in the 10th round on March 30, 1984.
 Emanuel Steward, who manages and trains Hearn, said, "I see Tommy fighting Hagler, maybe in April."

Rampants Win Big East Soccer Title

WILSON — Rose High School scored twice in 30 seconds Tuesday and defeated Wilson Hunt, 2-1, winning the Big East soccer championship. The Rampants, who still have one game left in the regular season, will advance to the state playoffs for the fifth straight year after having been in existence only six years. After a scoreless first half, Hunt's Ward Boyette scored first to give the Warriors the initial lead at the 65 minute mark. Rose tied it up seven minutes later as Mike Kasperek hit off assists by Toure Claiborne and Lloyd May. Then, just 30 seconds later, Bobby Weisenberger hit, assisted by John Bolen and Kasperek, with the winning goal. It was Weisenberger's fifth game winning goal, and his 10th overall of the season. Rose took 14 shots on goal, while Hunt goalie Kelly Lamm had 10 saves. Hunt made six shots, while Brian Will recorded five saves for the Rampants. "I just can't say enough about this team," Coach Will Wiberg said. "What an awesome game! We just never quit. Our guys really wanted this one bad and we got it." Rose climbs to 12-1 in conference play and 13-3-2 overall. Hunt is now 7-3-3 in the league and 9-4-3 overall. The Rampants close out the regular season on Thursday, hosting Northeastern at 4 p.m. They will then play host to a first round state playoff game next Tuesday.

Temple Quarterback Leaves Team

The Temple Owls, who come to Greenville Nov. 7, lost starting quarterback James Thompson for the remainder of the season as the fifth-year senior left the team to concentrate on his studies, according to a published report. In seven games this season, Thompson has hit on 66 of 153 passes for 985 yards with two touchdowns and one interception. He has also run for two touchdowns. "I think he just wanted to graduate on time," said Mike Kaine, assistant director of sports information at Temple.

Wilmington Christian Tops GCA

WILMINGTON — Wilmington topped Greenville Christian, 15-4, 15-8, 15-8, to advance in the East Regionals of the North Carolina Christian Activities Association volleyball playoffs Tuesday. GCA was led in serving by Erica Spain with 10 points. The top setter was Laurie Vernelson with 11. Amber Tripp led the hitting with 23. Missy Baggett and Christy Hardison led in spikes with six each. GCA finishes at 5-12 overall.

Dooley Says Deacs Must Control Ball

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Wake Forest cannot let Clemson's offense take control if the Demon Deacons are to return from Death Valley with a victory this Saturday, football coach Bill Dooley says. "You just can't let Clemson control the game," Dooley said Tuesday. "And by that, I mean you can't let them get you in a position to play catch-up, because they are big and strong. "You then have to throw it all the time, and as a result, they can lay their ears back and rush the passer," he said. "To play Clemson, you have to keep them off-balance — you can't just go out and run the football and you can't just go out and throw the football." Wake Forest, 5-2 overall and 2-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference, after losses to Maryland and Virginia. "We've just had a couple of ballgames where we didn't play very well," Dooley said.

Davis To Build A Drug Rehabilitation Center

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Phoenix Suns All-Star guard Walter Davis, publicly apologizing for having to undergo rehabilitation for drug and alcohol abuse twice in a 16-month span, announced plans Tuesday to build a drug treatment clinic for youths here. Davis said the clinic will be called "The Walter Davis Drug Treatment Center" and be financed initially by fundraisers next Sept. 15-16 at The Arizona Biltmore hotel here involving a banquet and golf tournament with NBA personalities, University of North Carolina Coach Dean Smith and Davis' former Tar Heel teammates. The 33-year-old Davis, a former North Carolina standout, six-time All-Star and the NBA's Rookie of the Year in 1977-78, entered a Van Nuys, Calif., treatment center for 30 days in December 1985 for cocaine and alcohol abuse. He checked himself back into the same facility last April for two months after suffering a relapse last season.

Clemson Loss Puts Heels In Title Chase

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Clemson's recent Atlantic Coast Conference loss has brought a renewed interest to this weekend's North Carolina-Maryland football rivalry, Tar Heel coach Dick Crum says. Clemson's loss to N.C. State last Saturday turned the ACC title race into a three-team fight. The Tigers are tied for the conference lead with Maryland at 3-1, while the Tar Heels are half a game back at 2-1. "It (the Maryland game) will be a very physical ballgame," Crum said Tuesday at his weekly news conference. "They are a typical Maryland football team. They have good size, are very tough and aggressive." Crum said it won't matter which quarterback starts for Maryland — senior Dan Henning or sophomore Neil O'Donnell, who came off the bench last Saturday to rally Maryland past Duke in the final quarter. "I don't know that it makes that much difference (who starts) because the offense that (Coach) Joe Krivak runs is the Maryland offense. Whoever is quarterback will run that ... (multiple pro) type of offense." Crum also said he's glad to be back in the title picture. "The league is still very closely bunched," he said. "We've got four very tough ballgames coming. Maryland has four tough ones coming and so does Clemson. There are a number of ways this thing could work out. "Anytime you play on Saturday afternoon in the ACC you have got to be ready, because if you aren't, you can be had. We found that out ... and Clemson found that out last week. Hopefully we have learned our lesson," Crum said. Maryland had won four meetings in a row with North Carolina before last season's 32-30 loss at Chapel Hill. The wild contest last season ended with then-Maryland coach Bobby Ross chasing down an official over a controversial timeout call by North Carolina.

NFL Owners Look To Regroup

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — NFL owners, picking up the pieces from the 24-day players' strike, hope they can restart negotiations with the union to forestall new repercussions such as the possibility of postponing the two-team expansion scheduled for 1989. But the union isn't interested and the stock market problems of the last two weeks, which the Management Council says has wiped out $39 million of the $40 million pension fund surplus, may add a new snag to the league's labor problems. At their annual fall meeting Tuesday, the owners did little to recoup from the strike, voting only to maintain a 50-man roster for the rest of the regular season — with 45 allowed to dress for any game. They also gave teams all eight free moves off injured reserve they were supposed to have from the start of the season, meaning that in effect, they have 13 extra players. But a much ballyhooed proposal to split the season or add teams to the playoffs never came up — it barely had more than one vote let alone the 21 it needed to be approved. The owners did approve two exhibition games outside the United States next summer. One will pit the Chicago Bears against the Minnesota Vikings in Goteborg, Sweden Aug. 12 or 13 and the other will be the Cleveland Browns vs. New York Jets in Montreal the next weekend. For the first time in three years, however, there will be no preseason game in London, where the Bears and Cowboys played two years ago and the Rams and Broncos played last year. The owners also set next April 24 as the opening day of the 1988 draft, the first time it will be held on a Sunday. The final eight rounds will be held the next day, making it the first two-day draft since 1982. And a proposal over whether to allow teams to sell stock publicly was tabled after a long and vociferous debate. The Green Bay Packers are a community-owned non-profit corporation with 1,800 shareholders but no other NFL team allows public ownership. Instead, the talk was of trying to resume negotiations on a new contract with the NFL Players Association, which filed an antitrust suit seeking free agency and an end to the draft at the same time it sent its players back to work Oct. 15. Jack Donlan, the executive director of the Management Council and the owners' chief negotiator, said he hoped to be back in touch next week with union head Gene Upshaw. Commissioner Pete Rozelle hinted that without a new labor contract, he might have to delay appointing a committee on expansion, which he had planned to do at the general league meetings in March. Under the present plans, two new teams would begin play in 1989. "I think it's in the interest of both sides to negotiate," Rozelle said. "Once things cool down, and the media spotlight is off, it may be easier to get things done." Asked if the absence of an agreement could delay expansion, Rozelle replied: "I hope not, but it could." However, the union said it wasn't interested in resuming talks unless the owners changed their position on major issues. And the pension problems may have compounded the problem. Donlan disclosed that "the last time I checked" what had once been a $40 million surplus in the pension fund had been reduced to $1 million by losses from the fund's stock market investments. The owners have been offering to add $37 million to the fund, but $18 million of that is money the owners never put in and is now in contention in a separate lawsuit. "Now they've got problems with the stock market thing," Rozelle said. "They had money to play around with in the surplus. But they don't have that anymore." The last talks took place Oct. 11, four days before the end of the strike. But they broke off when Donlan walked away from the table, saying they were too far apart on the union's demand for free agency. Donlan said the owners were still adamant on retaining the current system of compensation and right of first refusal. But he suggested that both sides might use the absence of "players on the street" to find more amicable ways to reach a settlement. "Things stand just where they stood when they walked away from the table," Doug Allen, assistant executive director of the NFL Players Association, said by telephone from Miami, where he and other NFLPA officials are attending the AFL-CIO convention. "Until we see a substantive change in their position, we don't see any reason for resuming talks."

EXERCISING COP

DETROIT (AP) — An unusual "walk on" was the star of a training camp calisthenic drill for the muscular Detroit Lion squad last summer. He was — of all people — Gill Hill, the city of Detroit police commander. The versatile Hill also has branched out into other areas. He played actor Eddie Murphy's commanding officer in two movies, "Beverly Hills Cop" and the sequel.

6 REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD TEST DRIVE THE ALL-NEW 1988 MAZDA 929.

“Wrapped in leather and supported in luxury... the 929 felt fantastic, or more to the point, it felt

MOTOR TREND, November 1987

The new Mazda 929 is a high-performance luxury sedan combining the most civilized of creature comforts with performance that outstrips some of Europe's finest luxury sports sedans.

Yet 929 is substantially less expensive to own. About $8,000** less than Mercedes-Benz 190E, about $11,000** less than BMW 528e.

“This car is roomy like no other car
from Japan.”***

The 1988 Mazda 929 gives you “a feeling of being in a car nearly twice the size...”* Mazda 929 offers more interior room than Mercedes-Benz 190E or BMW 528e—even Mercedes-Benz 300E.

There is over three feet of legroom for rear-seat passengers. And the 929 is actually quieter inside than the costlier Mercedes-Benz 300E and BMW 735i.†

You'll also find a 6-way adjustable driver's seat with lumbar support. Plus rich velour upholstery (leather is optional). To quote MOTOR TREND:

“Large, overstuffed seats front and rear with adjustable headrests and a rear seat center armrest, electronic climate controls with excellent vent placement, optional electronic instruments, and a six speaker AM/FM cassette audio system with graphic equalizer are all things we'd expect, and all so nicely integrated into the interior's flow. Here, clearly, is the new benchmark at which Japanese manufacturers will be shooting.”*

“The 929's V-6 pulls for the moon with a seductive
silkeness.”***

At the heart of the Mazda 929's high performance lies an advanced, all-new, 158-horsepower, 18-valve, 3.0-litre V-6 engine with electronic fuel injection. Its smooth, quiet power can take 929 from 0 to 60 in just 9.2 seconds and to a top speed of 121 mph—outperforming Mercedes-Benz 190E and BMW 528e.†

It has been matched to a unique handling package that thrusts the 929 into the ranks of the world's great road cars. “Lean hard into a corner and the 929 stays on its feet... Throw it into a series of ess-bends and you're surprised at how well it follows your lead. Enough motive power is available to flatten hills or fry asphalt...”**

“Smooth, quiet and quick, the 3-liter is the stuff ‘real’ luxu-sport sedans are made of, and just the stuff some German car makers had better start to fear.”**

honored way.

With quality and care. With a front-engine, rear-drive chassis. “Mazda's reasons for bucking the front-drive trend are perfectly sound: to produce a more even weight distribution, to promote better handling, and to achieve a more refined drive. Besides, the space efficiencies of front drive would be of minimal value in a car that is already roomy enough for everybody but land-yacht die-hards.”**

The luxury of all these standard features.

The 929's serious instrumentation includes speedometer, tachometer, and gauges for vital functions. You also get cruise control. Front and rear reading lights. Plus your choice of a 5-speed manual or 4-speed automatic over-drive transmission at no extra cost.

This world-class tourer comes with a long list of luxury features as standard equipment, including:

- E-Link independent rear suspension that continuously tunes suspension geometry to provide optimum balance of handling, stability and ride.
- 4-wheel power disc brakes
- Electronically controlled automatic air conditioning
- Variable-assist power steering and brakes
- Power windows and door locks

A high-performance luxury sedan as remarkable as the Mazda 929 should have a warranty to match. So like all 1988 Mazdas, the 929 comes with a “bumper-to-bumper” warranty for 36 months or 50,000 miles (see your Mazda dealer for details). It offers you the kind of comprehensive protection common 5, 6 and 7 year “drivetrain-only” warranties don't provide.

Come on down to your Mazda dealer's and try out the all-new Mazda 929 high-performance luxury sedan. You'll discover that when it comes to value, performance and luxury, nobody delivers like your Mazda dealer. That's the Mazda Way.

Holtz Trying To Keep His Perspective

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

Notre Dame Coach Lou Holtz was sitting in his office "trying to keep everything in the proper perspective."

During the football season, Holtz rarely ventures into the outside world, but even in his isolated state he is aware that the Irish are causing some excitement with a 5-1 record, their best start in seven years.

"I don't know what the perspective is, because I don't go anywhere but the office and home," Holtz said Tuesday. "I don't get a haircut during the season; that's why I look so shaggy. I don't go out for lunch. It's dark when I get to the office and it's dark when I get home."

Still, Holtz can see some daylight in his rebuilding effort, even though he has often quipped that the light at the end of the tunnel may be an oncoming train.

"Going into a season, you never know what to expect. I felt we'd be improved, because we've been together for a year-and-a-half, but not as talented, because we lost some good senior players. You understand the players better (this is his second season at Notre Dame) and they understand you. You know where the program's going."

"We played well against Michigan and Michigan State, but then we lost some players to injuries. It's been a cram course because we're playing a lot of true freshmen. We're not as much improved as I'd like. Any time you lose good players and replace them with untried players, it hurts the overall chemistry of the football team."

"There's no doubt we're not as good a football team as early in the year, but I don't think there's any question we're playing with a little more confidence than we have in the past."

"We've played as a team. The offense and defense have complemented one another. It's not like either side of the ball is carrying the other. But there are so many things that are unsettled right now."

Especially at quarterback, where senior Terry Andrysiak suffered a career-ending broken collarbone against Pitt in the fourth game, Notre Dame's only loss. Sophomore Tony Rice, who was a casualty of Proposition 48 and didn't play at all last year, has started the last two games, but he suffered a concussion and a 14-stitch gash in his chin against Southern Cal over the weekend and is a question mark for Navy on Saturday. Behind him is Kent Graham, a true freshman.

"Rice and Graham have only been in the program for eight weeks," Holtz said. "But we might be starting our third quarterback in seven games. We're playing people we have to play, and they'll be inconsistent. I can't say we're a very good football team until we become consistent in many, many areas."

"We've got to be able to throw the ball (the Irish have thrown only 17 passes in the last two games while rushing for 705 yards). We may see eight- and nine-man fronts. We may start seeing single coverage on (All-American flanker) Tim Brown. That might be hazardous to people's health, but I don't know if we can get him the ball."

How far along is the rebuilding program?

"It's a little bit difficult to evaluate. We have some real fine seniors who are playing well, but we have an awful lot of young players. The sophomore and junior classes are not particularly strong according to the caliber of the people we've got to play. The freshman class is pretty deep and talented." Does Notre Dame deserve its No. 9 ranking?

"I can't say. All I'm interested in right now is that we're better than Navy on Saturday. That's the only thing on my mind."

For Notre Dame fans and alumni — subway and otherwise — Holtz can't promise a return to the glory days, although he has shown signs of waking up the echoes, as the Notre Dame Victory March says.

"I won't ever be a genius here at Notre Dame," he said. "I've never been a genius anywhere else and I won't be here because I've never coached a perfect game and anything less than that is not quite good enough because this is where (Knute) Rockne, (Frank) Leahy and (Ara) Parseghian coached."

"With the schedule we play, the academic requirements and the parity in college football, it will be a while before there's another genius at Notre Dame."

What's going on in the Big Ten? Indiana, a long-time doormat, is ranked No. 11 in this week's Associated Press poll and has defeated Ohio State and Michigan in the same season for the first time in the school's 103-year football history.

The Hoosiers own sole possession of first place in the Big Ten and after last Saturday's 14-10 victory over Michigan hundreds of fans gathered in one of Bloomington's most popular watering holes to drink to their chances of a trip to the Rose Bowl for the first time since 1967.

"It's the wildest since I've been working here," said waitress Laura Myers, who worked until 3 a.m. "It was hard to go away from a table when you feel you want to sit down and drink. It was definitely an event. After we stopped serving drinks at 2 a.m. the customers all became one large group, telling stories and sharing the excitement of the day."

Meanwhile, Michigan has been a long-time Big Ten power, but Coach Bo Schembechler called his 4-3 squad "a run-of-the-mill Michigan team" and "a second-division ballclub."

But defensive coordinator Gary Moeller isn't giving up on the Wolverines' Rose Bowl hopes.

"I don't disagree with Bo, but I wouldn't be surprised if somebody with two (conference) losses wins this thing," he said. "There are some good teams that Michigan State still has to play and some good teams that Indiana has to play."

Indiana visits Michigan State on Nov. 14.

Columbia lost its 37th consecutive game Saturday. On Sunday evening, Coach Larry McElreavy and his staff — "seven football coaches mad at the world," McElreavy said — were in the football office.

A building is under construction next door and the windows to the football office have been boarded up. Suddenly, the coaches heard a prowl scratching at the boards. Finally seeing a chance to beat up on somebody, they turned out the lights and waited. "It was dark, but you could almost see us smiling," McElreavy said.

Columbia's bad luck held. The prowler gave up and left, his health still intact.

Substitute Games Leave Playoff Races Muddled

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

Bill Parcells did NOT get doused with Gatorade when his New York Giants finally won their first game since the last Super Bowl by beating the St. Louis Cardinals 30-7.

"If I had drenched the coach (following the victory Sunday), he would have turned around and cold-cocked me," said linebacker Harry Carson, the designated drencher for the last two years.

There may not be any drenching for Parcells this season but there could still be playoffs in the Giants' future despite their 0-5 start. The replacement games played during the 24-day strike have left the NFL standings in a muddle, leaving a gaggle of mediocrity — Green Bay, Tampa Bay, Detroit, New Orleans, Atlanta, Dallas — between New York and a wild-card playoff start.

One of the residues of the strike games are some peculiar playoff races.

In the NFC, the division races are just about over — give the East to Washington, the Central to Chicago and the West to San Francisco.

The Bears are two games ahead and just outright better than anyone else; the 49ers and Washington are in divisions where the only teams with the talent to beat them — the Rams and Giants — are both 1-5 and four games out.

That leaves the real races for wild-card spots, with the Vikings and Giants, both 0-3 during the strike, clearly the two best in talent, plus Philadelphia, which has questions on offense but is becoming one of the league's better defensive teams.

The Vikings got a big victory over Denver on Monday night to improve to 3-3, 3-0 in non-strike games, 0-3 with replacements. They have to play at Seattle on Sunday, but then the schedule gets easier — outside a home game with the Bears and one with the Redskins.

The Giants probably have to win eight of nine to qualify, but they're perfectly capable of that — they won 12 in a row en route to their Super Bowl victory last year.

Moreover, their remaining schedule is a lot easier than those last 12 games last year — the toughest game will be Washington on the road Nov.

29. The other hurdles will be Philadelphia (twice), the opening ESPN Sunday night game at home with New England and a road game at New Orleans.

Still, there are questions — will pride motivate them or will they be done in by the post-Super Bowl lag coupled with the horrendous strike team performance.

"Even after Sunday, I frankly don't know where this team's head is," General Manager George Young said. "We'll see."

The AFC is the bigger muddle.

The power teams appear to be Cleveland and Seattle — the Seahawks looked the clear power Sunday in their 35-13 road victory over the Raiders. If quarterback Dave Krieg can maintain his consistency, the Seahawks should win the West easily over the Chargers, 5-1, because their game in San Diego was cancelled by the strike and they'll play again in the Kingdome Nov. 22. Besides, San Diego doesn't appear to have the personnel to challenge Seattle, although it could hang on for a wild-card spot over Denver, which has more problems at running back following Gerald Willhite's injury Monday night and needs help on defense to replace the retired Tom Jackson, Louis Wright and Steve Foley.

The East and Central are muddled because even the non-strike form isn't holding — New England and the Jets, who should battle it out in the East, find themselves suddenly challenged by the likes of Buffalo and Indianapolis. If the Bills get some confidence, quarterback Jim Kelly may even propel them into the playoffs.

The Browns should win the Central, although Houston's confidence may finally be catching up with its talent. The Oilers, 4-2, may have a shot at a wild-card along with Pittsburgh, 4-2, particularly if the Broncos and Raiders continue to fade in the West.

Yes, it is a funny season.

face value, was that his leg was bothering him."

What Robinson has to decide is what course of action to take if he concludes that Dickerson wasn't injured and purposely held himself out of the game for other reasons.

The options for the Rams, in that case, are to trade Dickerson before next Tuesday's deadline, suspend him without pay for now and trade him later, or do nothing.

"Whatever happens, I will share with you as soon as I can," Robinson said. "Until then, I will have no comment. We need to be exact in any decision or statement."

"It (the thigh) bothered him prior to the strike. It was there. It was sore. He was examined by doctors."

The Rams, who fell to 1-5 at Cleveland, return to action Sunday at Anaheim Stadium against NFC West foe San Francisco, which leads the division with a 5-1 record.

Rams Have Plan For Unhappy Back

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams say they will soon decide what to do about unhappy running back Eric Dickerson. What they won't say is when.

"It's something that we want to put behind us," Coach John Robinson of the Rams said Tuesday. "It hangs over all of us."

Unhappy about his contract, Dickerson has asked the Rams to trade him. He carried the ball only seven times in Monday night's 30-17 loss to the Cleveland Browns and sat out the second half with what the team called a thigh injury.

Robinson said he wants to believe Dickerson was really injured.

"It's clearly on everyone's mind," Robinson said. "If the injury is in fact part of a strategy of his, that's something you have to find out from him. Everything we know in terms of examination and his statements, which I've always believed to be at

GOP Senators Voicing Objections To Potential Nominees For Court

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans who will be needed to help President Reagan's next Supreme Court nominee win Senate approval have raised objections to about half the names submitted by the White House, according to GOP sources.

The sources, speaking Tuesday on condition they not be named, said seven of the 13 or 14 names presented to a group of Republican senators on Monday drew at least some opposition.

Meanwhile, a senior administration official said the announcement of a new nominee was likely on Thursday. The president's last nominee for the court, Robert H. Bork, was rejected 58-42 last Friday after a fierce confirmation fight.

White House chief of staff Howard H. Baker Jr., who discussed the list with five Republicans at the Capitol on Monday, returned Tuesday to bring the same names to two Democrats: Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia and Judiciary Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr. of Delaware.

While no details of the Democratic session were available, it was learned before the meeting that some Democrats were balking at two of the potential nominees accepted by the Republicans. That would mean at least some key lawmakers were opposed to nine of the names.

Those who reportedly received no objections from the Republicans were: Judge Pasco M. Bowman II of Kansas City, on the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals; Judge J. Clifford Wallace of San Diego, on the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals; Judge William W. Wilkins of Greenville, S.C., on the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals; Judge Anthony M. Kennedy of Sacramento, Calif., on the 9th circuit; Ralph K. Winter Jr. of New Haven, Conn., on the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and New Hampshire State Supreme Court Justice David H. Souter. Souter's name had not been previously disclosed publicly.

Those who encountered at least some GOP opposition:

Judge Roger J. Miner II, of Albany, N.Y., on the 2nd circuit; Judge Laurence H. Silberman, on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia; Judge Pamela Ann Rymer, a U.S. district judge in Los Angeles; Edith H. Jones of Houston, on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals; Judge Douglas H. Ginsburg on the District of Columbia circuit court; Judge Patrick E. Higginbotham of Dallas, on the 5th circuit; and Cynthia H. Hall of Pasadena, on the 9th circuit.

At least one Republican senator requested that Judge Gerald B. Tjoflat of Jacksonville, Fla., on the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, be added to the list, a GOP source said.

Republicans attending Monday's meeting were Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas; GOP Whip Alan K. Simpson of Wyoming; James McClure of Idaho, chairman of a conservative Republican steering committee; Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, ranking minority member on the Judiciary Committee; and Orrin G. Hatch of Utah, a Judiciary Committee member.

Bowman, Wallace and Silberman reportedly had Democratic opposition before the Baker, Byrd and Biden session, according to Democratic sources insisting on anonymity.

After the meeting, Biden spokesman Peter Smith said the Democrats "offered their opinions, to the degree that they know" about particular potential nominees.

Baker said before meeting the Democrats, "The president has not yet made a decision" and is not bound to choose someone from the current list. He added that he had briefed Reagan on the comments Republicans made on Monday.

Despite the consultations, Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., a member of the Judiciary Committee, predicted the administration would "send up whoever they want to send up, as they did in the past."

Under the Constitution, if the Senate does not accept a nominee before it recesses, the president could place a so-called "recess nominee" on the court through 1988.

But Byrd said he told Baker the president should not attempt to send Congress a recess appointee to skirt the confirmation process, and added that the chief of staff assured him there were no intentions to do so.

"There was real consultation this time," Byrd said, in contrast to the administration's strategy before Bork was nominated.

Then, Byrd said, the administration decided on Bork before it presented Democrats with a list of potential candidates.

Relatives Sought For Vets Ceremony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Relatives of the 24 U.S. servicemen whose names are being added to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial have been invited to a Veterans Day ceremony marking the additions.

The families are being invited to a ceremony on Nov. 11 marking the addition of 24 names to the memorial's V-shaped wall and the fifth anniversary of the memorial.

Nancy Bolger, a spokeswoman for the sponsor, said family members of seven of the 24 servicemen being added to the wall have been located. She said they are still looking for families of the following men, listed with their home town of record:

Marine Pfc. Gerald Robert Abbenhaus Jr., St. Louis, Mo.
Navy Lt. Cmdr. George Wood Alexander, Los Angeles.
Army Spec. 4 Donnie Biarum, Enumclaw, Wash.
Army Maj. Samuel Richard Bird, Wichita, Kan.

Army Spec. 4 Fredric Bruce Davis, Santa Clara, Calif.

Army Spec. 4 Nicholas Leander Franzer, Saint Henry, Ohio.

Navy Lt. Carl Eugene Gronquist, Pensacola, Fla.

Army Sgt. Robert James Hain, Dorchester, Mass.

Navy Fireman James Allen Jensen, Anoka, Minn.

Army Sgt. Thomas Steven Lipp, Glenside, Pa.

Navy Chief Petty Officer William Wallace Newton, Newberg, Ore.

Army Spec. 4 William Harrison Pease, Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Marine Sgt. Robert Joseph Quinn, Thornville, Ohio.

Army Sgt. Jesus Lopez Ramos Jr., San Patricio, Texas.

Marine Pfc. Karl William Schwanbeck, Treasure Island, Fla.

Army Pfc. Roy Edward Shanklin, Bel Air, Md.

Arms Dealer Sentenced

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Philadelphia man sentenced to prison for conspiring to sell military equipment to Syria says he did it for the money, not because of a pro-Arab ideology, as prosecutors alleged.

Kevin Gilday, 37, was given a prison term of 20 months to five years on Tuesday by U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson. Gilday, the former president of an international trading company, pleaded guilty on Sept. 11.

pro-Arab ideology they described as "beyond moderation."

But Gilday told Jackson before he was sentenced, "My criminality arose out of a desire to make money, and not divided loyalty to the United States."

Gilday pleaded guilty to conspiring to sell aviation navigation equipment to Syria in violation of the Arms Export Control Act. Prosecutors alleged Gilday conspired to cover up the identity of the purchaser because he knew the sale would not be approved by the State Department.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending Oct. 16.

HOUSE

PRISONER RELEASE: By a vote of 210 for and 200 against, the House sustained a District of Columbia law providing early release to certain D.C. inmates serving time for non-violent crimes.

The vote tabled a move to negate the new law, which codifies an early release policy the city recently began in response to court orders against prison overcrowding. Hundreds of inmates have had sentences cut by up to 90 days.

There is a dispute over whether prisoners convicted of violent crimes have been let out early.

D.C. Del. Walter Fauntroy, D, said "we're tough on crime" in the District and accused Congress of infringing on the city's home rule.

Thomas Bliley, R-Va., called the early release program "a serious threat to public safety" that has put violent criminals back on the street.

Members voting yes wanted D.C. to be able to enact the new law.

Voting No: Stephen Neal, D-5, Howard Coble, R-6, Alex McMillan, R-9, Cass Ballenger, R-10, James Clarke, D-11.

Not voting: none.

AIDS: The House adopted, 219 for and 198 against, an amendment adding health care workers exposed to AIDS patients to the list of workers covered by the proposed High Risk Occupational Disease Notification and Prevention Act (see next vote).

Amendment sponsor William Danemeyer, R-Calif., said "We need to stop treating (AIDS) as a civil rights issue and begin treating it as a public health issue."

Opponents argued the AIDS provision would dominate the bill. William Ford, D-Mich., said "people dying with AIDS are a terrible tragedy but they're not the only health tragedy in this country."

NORTH CAROLINA Voting yes: Valentine, Lancaster, Coble, McMillan, Ballenger.

Voting no: Walter Jones, David Price, Neal, Rose, Hefner, Clarke.

Not voting: none.

RISK OF DISEASE: By a vote of 225 for and 186 against, the House passed a bill creating a federal program to notify persons of their risk of contracting occupational diseases. The bill (HR 162) was sent to the Senate.

Though aimed at more than 100,000 workers exposed to carcinogens and other industrial hazards, the legislation was broadened on the floor to include hospital workers who deal with AIDS patients (see preceding vote).

The bill, which was sent to Senate, provides that workers identified at risk by a federal panel of medical experts be notified and given continual medical monitoring. It would cost taxpayers $25 million annually.

Members voting yes wanted to create a new federal disease notification program.

Voting yes: David Price, Clarke.

Voting No: Walter Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, Neal, Coble, Rose, Hefner, McMillan, Ballenger.

SENATE

HOME HEATING AID: By a vote of 68 for and 28 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to increase spending by $400 million on a program to help the poor pay home heating bills.

Defeat of the amendment left $1.24 billion for the program in the fiscal 1988 appropriations bill for the Department of Health and Human Services. The bill (HR 3058) was sent to conference with the House.

The $400 million hike was to have been offset by cuts in other HHS programs.

Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., said the amendment should be tabled as a matter of "priorities."

Amendment sponsor Warren Rudman, R-N.H., said the poor in his state "have to make a choice some months between heating and eating..."

Senators voting yes wanted to block increased home heating aid spending.

Terry Sanford, D, voted yes. Jess Helms, R, voted no.

UDAG CUTS: By a vote of 67 for and 31 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to transfer $100 million from the Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) program to veterans' health programs.

This occurred during debate on a fiscal 1988 appropriations bill (HR 2783) which, as later sent to conference, contained $125 million for UDAGs. Communities convert the grants to loans to private developers. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., said UDAGs "have led to the renewal and the regeneration of countless communities..."

Amendment sponsor Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., called UDAGs "slush funds" for politicians and "corporate welfare" for giant companies such as hotel firms.

Senators voting yes wanted to transfer $100 million in UDAG spending to veterans programs.

Sanford voted yes. Helms voted no.

NEW COMMERCE SECRETARY: The Senate confirmed, 84 for and 11 against, C. William Verity as Secretary of Commerce. He had been head of Ohio-based Armco Steel.

Debate centered on Verity's past criticism of the so-called Jackson-Vanick Amendment linking U.S.-Soviet trade to Jewish emigration from the Soviet Union.

Supporter Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., noted Verity's recent testimony that he would enforce Jackson-Vanick.

Opponent Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, criticized Verity for "insensitivity on the issue of Jewish emigration from the U.S.S.R."

Senators voting yes supported the nomination.

Van Gogh Sale

LONDON (AP) — John Walsh, director of the J. Paul Getty Museum in Malibu, Calif., was noncommittal when asked if he would bid for Vincent van Gogh's "Irises" at auction in New York next month.

Walsh, who has about $100 million a year to buy works of art, left the question hanging at a lunch given by London arts reporters.

"It's a wonderful picture and we've talked about it endlessly," he said. "I don't know who the buyer is going to be — what can you do in a market where you get serious estimates of $20 to $25 million?"

"Irises," painted in 1889, will be sold by Sotheby's in New York on Nov. 11. The firm suggests it may become the second most expensive picture ever, following the record $39.85 million paid by a Japanese insurance company for van Gogh's "Sunflowers" at Christie's in London last March.

Congress Moves Closer To Approving Major Expansion In Medicare Benefits

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — The Senate late Tuesday approved a major expansion of Medicare benefits, including a ceiling on out-of-pocket expenses for doctor and hospital bills and coverage of prescription drugs.

The 86-11 Senate vote, combined with House approval of a similar bill earlier this year, means that Congress is certain to adopt the biggest changes in Medicare's 22-year history. The 31 million beneficiaries will save billions of dollars in medical bills.

President Reagan had threatened to veto the House version of the bill because of fears that its drug provision had uncontrollable costs. But the Senate on Tuesday approved a compromise drug amendment acceptable to the White House.

The Senate's version of the Medicare legislation is likely to prevail in a House-Senate conference, and the final bill seems certain to get a presidential signature.

The Senate plan, if enacted into law, would begin in 1988 with a total cap of $1,850 a year for personal outlays for hospital and doctor bills. After the patient paid that much out of his own pocket, the federal government would pay all additional charges. Drug provisions would be phased in between 1990 and 1993 and would be included under the ceiling as they took effect.

The House version, fully effective in 1989, would set a ceiling of $1,700 for total payments. Under current law, by contrast, there is no limit on out-of-pocket expenses.

The financing of the new Medicare benefits, known as catastrophic care, marks a radical departure for a federal social welfare program. For the first time, the recipients themselves, rather than the general taxpayers, would pay for the entire cost of the new program.

Most beneficiaries — the 60 percent of the elderly who pay no federal income taxes — will pay a flat monthly premium, about $4 under the House plan and $6 under the Senate version.

However, those who pay taxes would pay a supplemental annual premium, as much as $580 per person under the House version or $850 under the Senate plan.

A deficit-conscious Congress decided that the only way it could expand Medicare was through a self-financing mechanism.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the Finance Committee, which wrote the Senate bill, said the expanded coverage, which is optional, would be attractive even for those who must pay a substantial new premium.

Amateur Divers Bring Up Relics From Blockade Days

By G.G. RIGSBY
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A love of history and an enjoyment of diving led four businessmen to spend their spare time in the cold, murky waters of Charleston harbor, looking for relics from ships that tried to break Union blockades 125 years ago.

The amateur archaeologists are working the wrecks of three ships, and this month they brought up two anchors and a case of rifles.

The divers get half of what they find, and the state gets the other half.

"It's a profitable hobby," said Howard Tower, 45, an engineer with Southern Bell Telephone Co. in Jacksonville, Fla., who leads the salvage crew. "But it's nothing you quit your job over."

He's joined in the project by Larry Tipping, 39, personnel director for the city of Jacksonville; Mike Zafout, 38, an auto salesman from Columbia; and Gerry Mahle, 44, who's in the auto repair business in Hampton.

In August 1985 they found the remains of the three ships they're working on now.

One was a vessel built in New York City in 1861. It was used as a commercial ship for a few months before being bought by the Union Navy and assigned to the South Atlantic blockading squadron stationed on Hilton Head Island. The USS Isaac Smith patrolled South Carolina, Georgia and Florida waters, Tower said.

On Jan. 30, 1863, Confederate forces on the banks of the Stono River fired at the ship as it made a routine patrol and disabled it in a bloody battle. Of 105 Union seamen aboard, eight were killed and 17 were wounded.

One of the crewmen, Richard Stout, was honored for valor and bravery because he kept fighting even though a shell tore off his right arm.

The vessel ran aground, and the Confederate soldiers took the ship. They removed its eight, 8-inch cannons and renamed the vessel the Stono.

They planned to use the ship to carry cotton to England and bring back arms for the war. But on June 5, 1863, Union ships spotted the Stono trying to get out of Charleston harbor.

The Union ships chased the Stono back into the harbor and it ran aground. Its remains were broken up later so it wouldn't be a hazard to navigation.

This month, divers brought up two anchors from the Stono. They also have retrieved some brass nails 5 inches to 7 inches long; a harmonica; a starboard running light lens; remains of a lead powder magazine; some of the brass that covered its wooden hull.

The second ship, the Minho, had an iron hull and was built in Scotland in 1854. An English company used it as a commercial ship until the Civil War began.

Then an officer in a British shipping company bought the vessel and used it to run the blockades in the South for profit. It made five successful runs into Charleston, car-

Life In Maryland's 'Waist' Is One Of A Kind

By CHARLES HILLINGER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

HANCOCK, Md. — Maryland is the 42nd smallest state, yet, because of its peculiar shape, it stretches quite a distance, 352 miles by road from Ocean City on the Atlantic to Redhouse, a hamlet in the Appalachian Mountains.

Linking the panhandle of Maryland's mountainous western area with the rest of the state is a geographic anomaly, a 1 1/4-mile-wide strip squeezed between Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

They call it Maryland's narrow waist.

The town of Hancock, population 1,890, lies smack in the middle, between the Mason-Dixon line on the north and the Potomac River on the south.

West Virginia's border with Maryland here is the northernmost point on the Potomac River. Pennsylvania's border with Maryland at Hancock is the Mason-Dixon line.

(Englishmen Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, in the mid-1760s, surveyed disputed, overlapping land grants to determine the 233-mile boundary between Pennsylvania and Maryland. Before the Civil War, the Mason Dixon line was accepted as the dividing line between slave and free states.)

Life in Maryland's waist is a little different.

For some, such as 66-year-old

Charles Lutman, loyalties run deep. "I'm a lifelong Marylander. I never go over to Pennsylvania or West Virginia, each less than a mile away. There's not much of Maryland in this part of the state, but there's enough of Maryland here for me," he insisted, holding his dog Charlie on his lap as he relaxed in a rocking chair on the front porch of his century-old frame home on Main Street.

"I sit on my front porch here in Hancock and look across the Potomac into West Virginia. I look to the north and see cows grazing on the hills of Pennsylvania," said Sally Fost, 59, a member of the Hancock Town Council.

Hancock policeman Elzy Golden, 27, told how he "chases speeders across the state line all the time into Pennsylvania and West Virginia. It is legal. Sometimes I cross the state line in pursuit of a criminal. You can't help it around here. Officers from West Virginia and Pennsylvania chase law violators into Maryland.

"Sometimes they chase a suspect or speeder across two state lines before they catch 'em. We have a routine worked out so we don't wind up in court over the state-line issue."

None of the four Hancock policemen live in Hancock. Chief Riley Trumpower, 55, lives in Big Pool, Md., 10 miles to the east. Officer Howard Prevost, 40, doesn't even live in the same state. He lives in West Virginia — in Berkeley Springs.

Fire departments from the three states have agreements allowing them to cross state lines to fight fires in Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

"We fight almost as many fires in Pennsylvania and West Virginia as we do in Maryland," explained Hancock Fire chief Jim Younker, 45. "In two minutes time around here we can be in three states."

Scores of families in Pennsylvania and West Virginia have a Maryland address. They pick up their mail at the Hancock Post Office because they live out in the country and it is much closer than the post offices in their home towns. Until recently, the Hancock Post Office had a rural route that extended 12 miles into Pennsylvania.

This is a historic area. Many families in Maryland's narrow waist and nearby Pennsylvania and West Virginia trace their ancestors to the early 1700s when the tri-state area was first settled.

A visitor center for the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal National Historic Park is on Main Street in Hancock. The 184.5-mile-long historic canal parallels the Potomac and runs from Washington to Cumberland, Md.

On May 17, 1785, the Potomac Co. was created for the express purpose of planning, building and operating

THINK SMALL — Charles Taylor of Portal, Ga., cuddles one of the 40 miniature horses he and his wife raise on their South Georgia farm. Miniatures appeal to people who have owned full-sized horses, he said, because they eat less and require less grazing room. (AP Laserphoto)

Miniature Horses Crave Affection

By ELLIOTT MINOR
Associated Press Writer

PORTAL, Ga. (AP) — When it comes to miniature horses, it pays to think small, said a couple who raise the affectionate animals on a farm in Bulloch County.

Horses standing less than 3 feet tall need smaller portions of feed, smaller doses of medicine when they become ill and smaller blankets and harnesses for the diminutive coaches they pull, say Charles and Genie Taylor.

The Taylors watch over 40 of the animals on a farm between Portal and Twin City, where she is an elementary school teacher.

"I provide the feed. She's the vet and the record keeper," explained Taylor, who runs a seed processing plant in nearby Statesboro.

All but a few of the couple's horses qualify for registration with the American Miniature Horse Association, which requires a horse to be no taller than 34 inches.

Mrs. Taylor said miniatures originated in Europe, where they were prized by kings and other nobles. Decades of breeding has produced horses that are about the size of large sheep.

"Today it's a novelty," said Mrs.

Taylor, while wrestling on the grass with Candy, a 3-month-old filly who stands about 19 inches and weighs only 40 pounds. "It's a big business for a lot of people."

Taylor said he and his wife owned large horses prior to 1978, but grew weary of them and purchased their first miniature as a novelty.

Miniatures are not generally suited to riding, but can pull three times their weight, said Mrs. Taylor. For this reason, some owners take their horses to shows where the animals pull small coaches.

Miniatures often appeal to people who have owned full-size horses. They eat considerably less than large horses and do not need as much grazing room, but the survival rate of their offspring — only 18 to 19 inches tall at birth — is considerably lower, apparently because of the small size of the foals and their mothers, Taylor said.

When the Taylors arrive home in the evening from work, they open a gate leading to a barnyard and are quickly surrounded by the gentle animals.

"They love attention," said Taylor as his wife played on the grassy lawn of their home with Candy.

'Sledge Hammer!' Gets Help From Its Loyal Core Audience

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Like any television producer, Alan Spencer has deep theories about television programming and audience reach. And like his show "Sledge Hammer!" his theories are deeply warped.

"Sledge" got a surprise renewal this season from ABC, and was promptly placed opposite NBC's top-rated "The Cosby Show" on Thursday night. ABC said "Sledge Hammer!" has a loyal core audience.

"I think the core audience is the people who don't receive the other two networks very clearly," said Spencer, in a transcontinental telephone interview that wasn't too clear, either.

"We just made the cover of Mad Magazine. Maybe that's our audience — predominantly male, a lot of kids. I was at a party recently where there were a lot of bodyguards present, and they were all fans of it. I think it's real violent Republicans. People who drink beer and drive trucks and like to play with power tools."

Spencer says the show got renewed because it did well on the "disturbed people meter." However, on the real people meter that measures Nielsen demographic ratings, "Sledge" does well with young males, an important target audience for many advertisers.

Spencer nevertheless said he was surprised ABC renewed the show — "The Las Vegas odds were nothing I would have bet on."

A formerly serious New York actor named David Rasche stars as Detective Sledge Hammer, a macho weirdo who baby-talks his gun. This season, Spencer said, Sledge will have "more of a man-woman relationship rather than a man-gun one." The object of his desire will be his partner, Dori Doreau, played by Anne-Marie Martin.

Despite Spencer's jokes about the allegedly paleolithic cultural level of "Sledge" viewers, they are the same people who get sophisticated inside jokes that have turned "Sledge" from a one-time takeoff on Clint Eastwood's "Dirty Harry" into a weekly satirical romp. It's not surprising that Spencer is a fan of "Get Smart," the 1960s spy satire that starred Don Adams.

Spencer boasts that "Sledge" is the only satirical sitcom to last more than a season since "Get Smart" ended its five-year run in 1970.

Times have changed and "Sledge" accordingly is more jaded than "Get Smart," poking fun at politics, movies and such self-involved 1980s issues as "colorization."

An upcoming episode, a tip of the hat to director David Lynch, is "Blue Velcro." Bud Cort guest-stars and actor Bill Bixby directs.

The plot revolves around the death of a young film director, apparently from a vampire bite after firing the star of his horror picture. Sample dialogue: "You know anybody who'd want to drain the young director of all his blood?" "Any William Morris agent."

"It's kind of scathing," Spencer said. "It's still funny. It's still a satire, but a statement about the entertainment industry. That should get some attention."

A "Robocop" takeoff features a villain named "BORK," a robot that can't tell right from wrong. Spencer said the ABC censors made him explain that the name, matching that of President Reagan's rejected Supreme Court nominee, is an acronym.

In another episode, Hammer notes the number of loiterers on the street and suggests there should be parking meters for more than cars.

"You mean people meters?" he is asked.

"No," Sledge replies. "That's a concept that just won't fly."

"I'm surprised how many people get the inside jokes," Spencer said, noting an episode in which Hammer, undercover in a prison, complains in the mess hall about constant "men, men, talk, talk" just before an announcement over the public-address system — the movie tonight is "My Dinner With Andre."

Brothers Gibb Face New Decade

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — In Maurice Gibb's fantasy, he and his brothers flex Ramboesque bodies and grip machine guns as they stand before a riddled body, clad in a white suit and sporting a medallion.

The message emblazoned across their chests takes a mildly obscene flap at disco — the Bee Gees' ticket to success in the late 1970s.

"ESP," a new album by the Bee Gees, comes after six years of writing and producing for other stars — six years also spent waiting for the legend of "Saturday Night Fever" to fade and crumble.

The group that earned six platinum albums, several gold LPs, Grammys and other awards rode high in 1978 on what Robin Gibb calls "a film that went haywire," as their "Saturday Night Fever" LP stayed in first place on Billboard's charts for 24 weeks.

"We were so saturated at that time," said Maurice in a recent interview at the Bee Gees' Miami Beach studio, Middle Ear. "We weren't on the charts, we WERE the charts!"

However, hype started to hurt when stations began advertising "Bee Gee-free weekends."

"It was time for us to get off the pedestal for a time," said Barry Gibb. "It's amazing how praise turns to scorn when it suits people."

The Gibbs went to work with other artists and gave the Bee Gees a rest. Robin did some solos. Maurice produced Swedish singer Carola's record. They wrote hits for Barbra Streisand, Dionne Warwick, Kenny Rogers and Dolly Parton.

For Robin, the challenge of working with other artists was the unknown.

"It's like playing tennis with a different partner all the time," he said. "You have to use different angles of attack."

A high for Maurice was Streisand's "Guilty" album. "This woman I used to worship from afar, with a voice I couldn't believe, was singing our song. I was over the moon," he said. The title track on the album earned a Grammy award.

But he regrets the 1983 sequel to "Fever."

"We never should have done 'Stayin' Alive,'" he said. "Our music was cut to pieces. We cried when we saw it in the Paramount viewing room."

Having experiences apart from the group identity has made each Bee Gee a more promising artist, according to Barry.

"Now we'll see what our cumulative learning will bring us," he said. "Now we're hungry and ready."

After a contract with Polydor Records that soured almost to the point of a lawsuit, the Bee Gees now are with Warner Bros. for their "ESP" LP.

Soprano Delighted Over Short Debut

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — American soprano Cheryl Studer spent six weeks getting ready for her Royal Opera House debut in "Tannhauser." But a management crisis with the chorus canceled the dress rehearsal and the first four scheduled performances and there was only a performance at Covent Garden earlier this month.

"It was all worth it," Ms. Studer said. "I've had my premier and I'm happy to be coming back here in 'Lohengrin' next June."

Ms. Studer starred as Elisabeth in Richard Wagner's grand romance. The performance won a seven-minute ovation and eight curtain calls.

The Royal Opera planned to open its new season Sept. 12 with Elijah Moshinsky's reworked, three-year-old production of "Tannhauser." But the 69-member chorus held out for a pay hike of nearly 10 percent. They settled on Sept. 21 for 4 percent, giving them a basic $318 a week, and an additional 1 percent for dancing and learning foreign languages — they have to sing in six.

In the 1988-89 season they will get another 5 percent.

The bruising dispute reportedly cost the opera house almost $492,000 in lost ticket sales.

"I spent so much time waiting I became a tourist and I really have seen London," Ms. Studer said. "But it was a tense time and the delay was frustrating. It's one thing to be off-duty and have free time, but with the dispute on I felt I had to be on call in case of sudden developments. I like to be spiritually prepared and at my peak for rehearsals as well as for a performance."

The 31-year-old soprano said she was surprised by what she called the intensity of the rehearsals and the quality of the orchestra at Covent Garden.

"We rehearsed and rehearsed with the orchestra," she said. "In other houses, it's customary to rehearse for four weeks without music, then have a piano and then the orchestra. Here it's an intensive musical rehearsal all the time."

Swedish baritone Hakan Hagegarde in the role of Wolfgram von Eschenbach also had his Covent Garden debut. West German tenor Rene Kollo sang Tannhauser and Polish mezzo-soprano Stefania Toczyska was Venus.

Staff at Covent Garden called Ms. Studer a "radiant personality."

Glen Campbell Is Marking His 25th Year As Artist

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Glen Campbell, who is celebrating 25 years as a recording artist, confesses that he'd rather sound "like a male Barbra Streisand, but not that high."

Nevertheless, his tenor voice has served him well with such pop-country hits as "Rhinstone Cowboy," "Gentle on My Mind" and "By the Time I Get to Phoenix."

"I feel great," he says. "It's lasted a while."
As one of the top song artists of the past three decades, Campbell has won just about every major singing award, though he says somewhat sheepishly, "I never did have a No. 1 hit on the black charts."

He's had a network television show, acted in three movies, recorded approximately 40 albums and performed for President Reagan in 1981 and Queen Elizabeth II in 1971.

"God has blessed me and guided me," says Campbell, whose birth date is listed variously as 1936 or 1938. "You can go too far and a hand reaches down and gets you out of some situations. He blessed me to sing in tune and to play the guitar."

He offers these capsule comments about three of his biggest hits: "Rhinstone Cowboy": "Kids could sing it. People would come up to me and say, 'Listen to my 3-year-old boy sing it.' You could see the joy in his eyes. It was my philosophy song with all the talk about compromising."

"By the Time I Get to Phoenix": "I was real homesick and this song reminded me of going home from California. It had a fabulous melody and chord progression."

"Gentle on My Mind": "It was one of those songs that makes you stop your car and listen. It painted a picture in your mind. I've thrown my bag behind some couches in my day. The message is having friends. The rawness made the song unique; we did it in just two takes, I think."

His other hits include "Southern Nights," "Wichita Lineman," "Galveston," "Try a Little Kindness," "Dreams of the Everyday Housewife" and "Where's the Playground, Susie."

He and country music singer Steve Wariner just teamed up for a Top 10 hit on the country charts, "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle."

The song is included on Campbell's latest album, "Still Within the Sound of My Voice." Also on the album is a duet with Emmylou Harris, "You Are." Willie Nelson and Lee Greenwood provide background vocals on other songs in the LP.

He ranks the album as his best work since his recording career began in 1962.

ANITA BAKER

Grammy Winner In Concert

Anita Baker will be in concert at East Carolina University's Minges Coliseum at 8 p.m. Sunday. The concert is sponsored by the Student Union Major Concerts Committee.

Tickets may be purchased at the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center and at Flamingo Records, 505 S. Evans St.

Ms. Baker is well known for her spirited personality and her sultry voice. She calls her style "fireside love songs with jazz overtones." Ebony Magazine has described her as a "diminutive powerhouse," and Rolling Stone calls her "this year's classiest act."

Her first solo album was "The Songstress." Her latest release is "Rapture," which features such hits as "You Bring Me Joy," "Sweet Love," and her current hit, "No One In the World." This album has gone platinum and has won her two Grammy awards.

For tickets and for more information, call 757-6611.

Private Affair

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Kathy Mattea says that when she walks down the aisle with songwriter Jon Vezner on Valentine's Day it will be a strictly private affair.

Miss Mattea, whose songs include "Walk the Way the Wind Blows" and "Love at the Five and Dime," insisted that the wedding would be small.

"I have to perform for cameras all the time," she said. "I want this to be different. Private."

Martha Moore, publicist for Polygram Records, confirmed the wedding date has been set. Ms. Moore said the 28-year-old bride-to-be is looking for a place in Nashville to hold the event.

Clark Happy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dick Clark, host of television's "American Bandstand" for three decades, said his inclusion in the city's Walk of Fame of music was special since he is not a musician.

The Philadelphia Music Foundation unveiled a bronze plaque on the Walk of Fame outside the Academy of Music, where Frankie Avalon and Chubby Checker joined Clark.

Clark, whose show introduced countless musicians and dance steps to the nation over the years, said his place on the walk was special "as a non-musician because you accept on behalf of all of us who love music and can't perform it."

It was the 11th plaque honoring a musical figure with Philadelphia roots.

Clark took over as host of the local "Bandstand" show in 1956, the next year selling the idea to ABC for "American Bandstand."

Senior Recital

Liegh Anne Clary of Newport News, Va., soprano, a student of Donna Dease in the East Carolina University School of Music, will give her senior recital at 7 p.m. Friday in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall on campus.

She will be accompanied by Alisa Wetherington, piano and harpsichord; Galen Wixon, cello, and Samuel L. Combs, flute.

Soviet High-Wire Team Adapts To Western Life

By PAUL HENDRICKSON
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — Freedom has different prices.

Fourteen months ago they were walking high wires in the Moscow Circus, dreary if well-kept employees of the state, but here they are now, on the other side of their escape, parked behind the Patriot Center in Fairfax, Va., in their nifty and Lilliputian and gadget-crazy King of the Road trailer that some guy on a lot in Florida tried to get them to buy for a flat $26,000, but that Lina — who is learning fast — said she wouldn't take for a nickel over $22,500.

That's just what they got it for, too: twenty-two five. "Plus taxes, of course," she says, making little imaginary zeroes on the skirt of her shocking-pink cotton dress.

Bertalina Kazakova is something, and she hasn't even wedged into her spangled mini-bikini yet. In the Soviet Union her hair gleamed a chestnut-brown under the lights, but in the land of Marilyn Monroe and Circus Vargas she's a honey blond. And why not?

Nikolai Nikolski, her husband of 15 years, is sitting beside her on the tiny sofa. His English isn't perfect yet, so Lina tends to do most of the talking. But he is the real magician in this family, the one who will perform uncanny feats 30 feet off the ground this evening — like walking blindfolded while holding his wife on his shoulders. That's still two hours off, although the tension is starting to ratchet upward.

Nick, who has a body nearly like Steve Reeves' in the old "Hercules" movies, has just stood up and trimmed a lamp, drawn a frilly little curtain behind his wife's head: Home is where you make it, and better keep the dark out.

The death-defying aerialist is padding around his trailer in a pair of chocolate-brown slippers. Maybe he got them at G.U.M. on Red Square, though more likely at T.J. Maxx on Biscayne Boulevard.

He is also trying to keep little Julik quiet. Julik is a very neurotic chihuahua, a sort of bat with legs, as one Western scribe has already put it. He's about the size of a woman's glove. This dog just won't shut up; this dog keeps bounding and yipping from coffee table to breakfast nook and back to the sofa.

The couple had another chihuahua in Russia but of course couldn't take him along when they defected. In fact, they were able to take practically nothing along when they defected, save of course their gifts of balance and control.

"No pictures, no anything," says Lina, making a kind of sad, swept-away motion with her left hand. "The only picture we had was not of our parents, but the one in our memory — of the KGB agent."

Nick is in white chinos with a drawstring, a sport shirt open halfway to his navel. Now he leans over and whispers something very quickly in his wife's ear: Is he telling her to cool it with the KGB talk? They look so in love. Who else do they really have but each other?

His hair is sculpted to his scalp like a helmet. He has a silver bracelet on

He is very tan. He could pass for an American beach boy getting ready to go out to the Whiskey A Go Go.

On Aug. 4, 1986, Nikolai Nikolski and Bertalina Kazakova, widely considered among the premier wire-walkers in the Soviet Union (of whom there are hundreds, if not thousands), took a walk from everything they had been born into and had grown up with.

They were both 35 years old and had been planning to do it for at least 10 years. Did their families have any hint? If so, they can't tell you for fear, even now, of retaliation — not to them, but to their loved ones back home. Or so they fervidly believe. But what exactly is real here and what isn't?

"Oh, we know this is real," says Lina. "We have made contact. Through a third country. We cannot tell you more. We have also tried to call. We got through. The KGB taped the conversation."

But how do you know?
"We know, we know. From little babyhood, we know. They will be reading this story, we assure you."

And you can never go back?
"No. Never. Never go back." There is not a trace of humor in it. Or hope.

They were on tour with the Moscow Circus in Buenos Aires when they got up that morning, jammed Nick's special shoes into an attache case and two of Lina's costumes in a little sling bag, and then as coolly as their nerves could take them summoned a taxi to the city's zoo, which is across the street from the U.S. Embassy. It was 10 minutes past noon when they got inside the embassy gate. They were on a postage stamp of U.S. soil.

In the previous two decades, about a dozen Soviet performers had defected to America, most of them ballet dancers and classical musicians. The story of the defection of two stars from the Moscow Circus seemed to have a special attraction about it. The tightrope walk to freedom of Nikolai and Bertalina made headlines around the world.

And now they are parked smack in the miracle of capitalism and waiting to go on in an auditorium on a campus named for one of the founders of liberty. Who could have foretold it? Tonight's show at George Mason University will play to a nearly empty house.

Their toothbrushes are in a glass over the kitchen sink. A bottle of Dip-pity-Do styling gel is on the counter in the bathroom. A Radio Shack catalog is on a bookcase in the living room. The rubber dish rack on the rubber drain-board has pots and pans in it. A folded-open copy of this week's TV Guide is on the shelf above their bed. You could blink and swear you had just come home to Nebraska.

"Ah, we love walking in your American shopping centers," says Lina. "We don't have yet credit cards. Our bank promised us soon credit cards."

And then: "Green stamps? We know green stamps. It's very interesting, green stamps. But it takes so long to collect a prize, no?"

Desi's wife Lucy would go white with jealousy over this trailer: got a Sharp microwave in it, got a Sony portable TV in it, got a Panasonic VCR in it, got a recessed fridge with a brown quilted leatherette front door. The refrigerator was made by a firm called Siber.

"Siber, no?" says Nick, speaking in English nearly for the first time in the visit. He gets up and walks the three or four feet over to the kitchen and swings open the door. There are handsomely stocked shelves in there. "This refrigerator is very good, very good machine. Siber. It's funny, no? You know, like Siberia. Means very cold, eh?"

"Panasonic, this is the best firm, yes?" says Lina, showing off the TV in the bedroom.

"And look at this," she says, leading you back toward the kitchen. She flips on a switch over the sink. There is a low, grinding sound, something like the noise a garbage disposal makes. What? Can it be true? The living room is compacting. Is this science fiction? Julik is frantic. Nick, sitting on the sofa, which has begun to move toward the middle of the trailer, seems only mildly concerned.

"Terrific, eh? It's for when you are pulling down the road," says Lina. "You can make it come together, so that it's narrower when you're driving on the highway."

"Of course we were afraid." Lina is talking of their defection. Her hand is resting on Nick's knee. Nick has his left arm draped on the back of the sofa. This could be Mr. and Mrs. America, save for the topic, save for the accents.

"That day we hoped, we prayed, for everything the best," says Lina. "We defected not to something, but away from something. We are political defectors. We are not defecting for blue jeans, for VCRs, certainly not for money. We had money enough in Russia. We had special housing, titles. We were what you call 'awarded performers.' We had an apartment, a car. A car is a dream in Russia. We had two cars — a car for Nick's father. Unbelievable. Russians with two cars."

They were in the American embassy in Argentina for two nights and three days. One night they took an American flag off the wall and slept beneath it.

Divers Find Civil War Relics

rying luxury goods such as wines, cut glass, cigars, silks, linens — "everything that society needed to make life interesting and couldn't get because of the war," Tower said.

In September of 1862, the Minho was sold to another company based in England. At 2 a.m. on Oct. 28, 1862, the Minho was trying to enter Charleston harbor when it was spotted by Union ships.

The captain saw he couldn't get into the harbor so he ran the ship aground to save its cargo. The ship was badly damaged, but the vessel and its contents were sold at an auction for $6,000 "as-is, where-is," as Tower put it.

A salvage crew retrieved the luxury goods, but left the remains of the ship and two cases containing 20 rifles each. Tower thinks the crew probably didn't think the rifles were worth the trouble because they belonged to the Confederate government and couldn't be sold for a profit.

One of the cases of guns was brought up in June and the second was brought up this month. There may be more under the sand, Tower said.

The divers have also found thousands of lead bullets and brass caps aboard the Minho.

The anchors and some of the rifles recovered this month will go to the Patriots Point Naval and Maritime Museum in Charleston.

The third ship the crew is working is the Prince Albert, which was owned by a British company. It made two successful trips through the blockade before being caught during the third trip, in August 1864.

Its wreckage has produced five bars of lead, which were used to make bullets.

Tower and his partners sell the artifacts they get to keep to historians, Civil War buffs and nautical collectors. For example, a brass nail from the Stono, along with a letter about the history of the vessel, would sell for $15 to $20, he said.

A 2-inch square of lead from the powder magazine would sell for $10, he said.

Tower says he's not going to get rich from his hobby, but with a wife and two children, he says he can't afford to lose money.

"It's a labor of love," he said.

Professor Gives Name To Asteroid

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — First it was "1982 BT1," then it became "minor planet 2954." Now, the minor planet, or asteroid, bears the name of Dr. Armand Delsemme, a University of Toledo professor of astrophysics.

"Delsemme" is one of thousands of objects in the solar system, ranging in size from 10 to 1,000 miles in diameter.

"It is seen as a pinpoint of light. One can guess its size by its brightness," Delsemme said. "It is closer to 10 miles (in diameter) but it is difficult to say," he said.

The minor planet was discovered by Dr. Edward Bowell, an astronomer who specializes in minor planets, on Jan. 30, 1982, while making observations at the Lowell Observatory, near Flagstaff, Ariz.

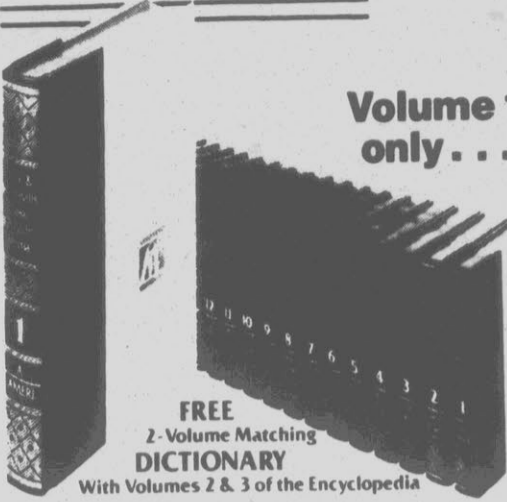

It was named after Delsemme by the International Astronomical Union (IAU), an organization of astronomers from Japan, the Soviet Union, the United States, and 80 or more other countries.

Under rules of the IAU, an astronomer who discovers a minor planet has the prerogative of naming it once it has been re-observed in its predicted orbit, after one complete trip around the sun. "Delsemme" was re-identified in its predicted orbit in 1986.

'Waist'

the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal. George Washington was its first president and served in that capacity until he became president of the United States.

The important commercial waterway, in use until 1924 by mule-drawn canal boats, became a national historic park in 1971. The old mule towpath is now a popular trail used by hikers, cyclists and horseback riders.

Every day hundreds of Pennsylvanians and West Virginians drive to and from Maryland's narrow waist. They work in Hancock's three large factories, which employ more than 1,000 workers — the London Fog garment plant, Rayloc, a car-parts company, and Fleetwood Industries.

During the week, hundreds of others pour into Hancock from Pennsylvania and West Virginia to purchase liquor at several large retail liquor outlets. Liquor is cheaper in Maryland.

Pennsylvania has the highest state liquor taxes in the nation, 25 percent. Maryland's liquor tax is only 5 percent.

Undercover agents and unmarked Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board cars spot check Pennsylvania vehicles returning from Hancock.

"It is illegal to bring liquor into Pennsylvania without paying the Pennsylvania liquor taxes. Those who do so are subject to a $10 fine per bottle or can of beer and $25 for a bottle of wine or liquor," explained Robert Ford of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board. He said automobiles are often confiscated from repeat violators.

"Life does get complicated with Maryland so skinny here at Hancock," allowed Virginia Stanley, 38, who lives in Warfordsburg, Pa., seven miles to the north, and works in the Hancock Town hall as police secretary. She also does water and sewer billing for the small Maryland municipality.

Her husband, Donald, 42, works in Berkeley Springs, W.Va., 13 miles from their home, where he drives a propane gas truck. He drives to and from work every day on the shortest state highway in Maryland, 522 — only 1 1/4 miles long.

Virginia Stanley said she shops for clothes in Pennsylvania because that state has no tax on clothing, while Maryland and West Virginia do. She and her husband fill their cars with gas in Hancock, because gas taxes are less in Maryland. They do some of their grocery shopping in West Virginia, because it is cheaper there.

"Income taxes around here are something else," she grimaced. "I pay a Maryland state income tax withheld from my check. But because I am not a resident of Maryland, it is refunded at the end of the year. My husband does the same in West Virginia. We take those refunds to pay our Pennsylvania state income tax."

In addition to federal and state income taxes, Fulton County, where the Stanleys live, levies a 1 percent tax on wages they earn in West Virginia and Maryland.

"At one time you had to pay income taxes to two states, the state where you worked and the state where you lived. For years, I paid state income taxes to Maryland and West Virginia," lamented Lester Steiner, 65, member of the Hancock Town Council.

"We can tell right off what state people live in around here," said Virginia Stanley with a big grin. "By their accents. I have a Pennsylvania accent. People living in Hancock have a Maryland accent. The West Virginians have their own peculiar way of speaking."

Such is life in Maryland's narrow waist.

"Can I go to Claire's party? She handed me an imitation!"

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY Oct. 29

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You can have a good time at an entertainment with friends, but don't stay out too late tonight as you'll need some rest for tomorrow.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Get through your daily activities quickly this morning. Be sure to avoid any arguments, especially with those who are in power.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Attend to correspondence which has been neglected for far too long. Do a special favor for your mate, even though you may not enjoy it.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Be wary of a newcomer who is after your assets. Rely on your intuition, which is working considerably better than usual.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): A civic matter which has been troubling you can be resolved easily today. Be very cautious while driving today, and watch for reckless drivers.
VRIGO (August 22 to September 22): Don't be disturbed by constructive criticism today. If you lose your temper, your superiors will note it as a character flaw.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Keep a pleasant attitude outwardly, even though you're not feeling up to par. Try to get out of that social engagement—now is not the time.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Beware of an associate who may try to ruin some of your carefully laid plans. This person may also try to take credit for your past successes.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Now would be a good time to attend to your budget and find out which expenses can be cut to leave you a little extra money.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Your mate may be argumentative, but it has nothing to do with you. Be understanding and try to find out what's bothering him or her.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Don't let anyone around you influence your opinion; stick to your guns since you know you're in the right. Be cheerful today.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): A relative may be critical of you, but take it constructively—there may be some validity in what this person has to say to you.

 The lure of a finesse can be all-consuming. Even players who know better find it hard to resist. South, our goat on today's hand, was a player of considerable experience. North-South were of the old-fashioned school. North's diamond response and spade raise were invitational in their methods, and South chose to accept on the basis of the known double fit. West led the top of his broken heart sequence and East encouraged vigorously with the nine as declarer won the ace. A club to the king provided the entry to dummy for declarer to run the queen of trumps, losing to West's king. Back came a heart to East's queen, and that worthy lost no time in firing back another club. Now declarer realized his dilemma. His last club stopper was removed while he still had a loser in the suit, and the opponents still held the ace of diamonds. Down one.

Declarer was faced with four possible losers. However, there was time to draw trumps and set up diamonds for a discard as long as declarer kept control of the club suit. By crossing to the king of clubs, he removed one of his own defensive barriers! At trick two, declarer should simply have led a low spade out of his hand, conceding a trick he might not have to lose. Suppose the defenders shift to clubs—it is too late. Declarer wins, draws the outstanding trumps and forces out the ace of diamonds. The ace of clubs on the table prevents the defenders from taking a trick in the suit and serves as an entry to the diamonds. The best the defenders can do is get a trick in each suit except clubs.

Two Kinds Of Ghosts

By Ashley Lewis

One cold and windy night Sally and Stella were going around my grandmother's block. Near her house was a graveyard. They decided to go into the dark graveyard. Sally yelled, "Let's get out of here!" Stella said, "No, I want to see the rest of the graveyard." All of a sudden, a nice ghost popped up. He said, "Don't be afraid of me. I want to be your friend." Then a mean ghost said, "Get off my land!" Stella asked, "Who is he?" The nice ghost said, "He is my brother. He did not get as much land as me so he is mad. He always swoops in and out of graves and scares people." He grabbed Sally and ran off. Stella said, "We have to find her by tomorrow morning." The ghost said, "We will." They found her but she was too scared to walk. Stella picked her up and took her home and Sally never went in a graveyard again at night.

Scary Bubbles

By Vada Perkins

A witch was stirring her pot. Scary bubbles were in the pot. The bubbles spread out all over her cave. The witch screamed! After she screamed the bubbles went down. But the witch fell in the pot! She boiled. The water stopped boiling. The witch got out. She jumped in some cold water because she was hot! She cooled down and went to sleep.

Halloween With Grandma

By Trey Peaden

One night I went out to a graveyard. I saw a hand stick out of the grave and lots of witches worshipping something, so I got away from there.

Then I was walking home. I saw a light on in my great-great-grandma's house. It was a spooky old house, but what I was wondering was why would anyone go or live there. No one had lived there in 100 years. I kept on walking but I couldn't stand to see what the light was doing. It blinked on and off. Suddenly I saw someone sitting in my great-great-grandma's old, broken rocking chair, rocking back and forth. Then I cautiously knocked on the dusty door. Surprisingly my great-great-grandma slowly opened the screechy door. Scared, I walked into the chilly, musty room. As my great-great-grandmother sat back down to read, she looked up at me as all the doors quickly closed. Then she said, "Get out while you can. This house knows everything about you. It will send its spirit to get you."

I looked out from the balcony as she disappeared into the moonlight. I could see her shadow fall slowly back into the grave. I ran downstairs and said good-bye to the house, the broken rocking chair, and my grandma. Then I walked home happily.

The Haunted House

By Brad Barrow

One night it was very dark. There were three boys outside of a haunted house. They went inside of the haunted house. When they got in the house, the door closed. Then there was a hand on their shoulders. It, it, it was Frankenstein! They ran as fast as they could. They ran into a spooky room. It had some spider webs and a coffin. They opened the coffin and there was a vampire in the coffin. They ran and ran and ran until they were lost. They got out as fast as they could. They ran into a goblin.

Then finally they found their way out. When they got home, they went right to bed. They had a dream of what just happened. The next morning, they never went there again.

Brad Barrow, 7, a student at Belvoir Elementary School receives special mention.

The Opened Grave

By Seth Allen

One spooky Halloween night I was walking when all of a sudden I realized I was lost. I was at a graveyard. I saw ghosts. They were zooming around the graves and howling. Then I saw dead people rise from the grave. I got scared. I heard the trees howling and whistling. Then I saw Dracula. It was gross. He bit a person's neck. There was blood everywhere. I started to shake and ran and hid. Next, I saw a grave. It was open. I went to it and guess what I saw? I saw a ghost on the phone in his bed. Another ghost and goblin were playing the game Connect Four, and a fat ghost was calling for pizza. Then a ghost saw me. He asked if I wanted to play pool and I said yes. Then we became friends.

The Pumpkin Gang

By Tony Waller

One spooky Halloween me and my brother went to a graveyard.

Suddenly a ghost jumped out and swooped over my head. I rode my Sigma bicycle as fast as I could but, by the time I got out, goblins were chasing me.

I was frightened. I was still riding my bike when I was surrounded by a gang of pumpkins. They bit a hole in my tire.

I sprang off my bike and ran. I dived into a tree and stayed there till sun up. All the monsters were gone.

Tar Heel Trivia

Blackbeard

A sailor born in England became one of North Carolina's most infamous pirates. Edward Teach or "Blackbeard" captured and stole from many ships off the North Carolina coast.

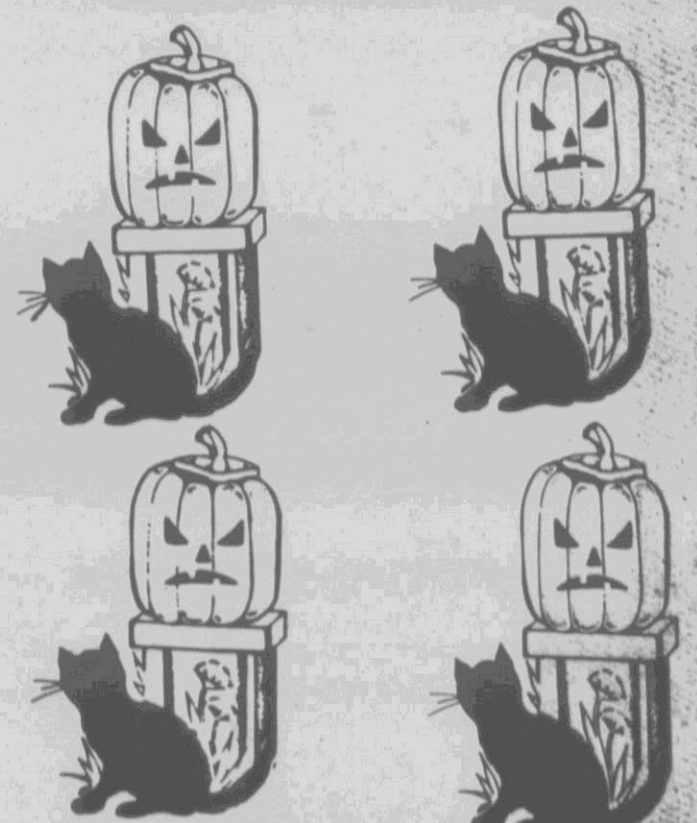

Upon learning that pirates who surrendered would be pardoned for former crimes, Blackbeard formally surrendered, but secretly continued his wicked ways. Teach supposedly split some of his stolen loot with N.C. Governor Eden.

In November 1718 Teach died during a fight. His head was cut off and nailed to the front of a ship that sailed into Bath to proclaim his death.

Pumpkin Recipes Spice Up Halloween Parties

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Create safe, but ghostly fun at home this year by using a variety of Halloween recipe ideas for a Halloween party.

Guests may begin with toast to All Hallows Eve with Harvest Punch followed by Curried Pumpkin Soup and Pumpkin Biscuits with Pumpkin-Orange Butter.

Sweet treats at the party may be Pumpkin Pinwheel Cookies and Pumpkin Sheet Cake. The grand dessert finale may be Pumpkin Pie.

Try the accompanying pumpkin recipes for in-home fun on Halloween. They are provided by Libby, a division of Carnation Co.

CREAM CHEESE FROSTING: Combine 3 ounces cream cheese, 1/4 cup butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 2 cups powdered sugar in small mixer bowl. Beat until light and fluffy.

HALLOWEEN DECORATING TIPS:

CRESCENT MOON: Use a crescent shaped cookie cutter for the crescent moon. Press lightly onto top of cake to leave an outline. Fill in with frosting.

PUMPKIN PATCH: Mix small amounts of sugar, brown sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg together. Sprinkle this mixture on bottom half of cake to resemble dirt in pumpkin patch.

FENCE AND TOMBSTONES: Frost graham crackers with white frosting. Cut in strips to make picket fence. Use a dab of frosting to hold fence together and fasten graham crackers to side of fence. Cut 1/4 graham cracker to look like tombstone. For gray marble tombstone appearance, frost with black frosting. Wipe off excess with spatula and cover with white frosting. Using pastry bag with fine tip, write R.I.P. in black frosting. To stand tombstones, cut a small slash in top of cake in which you insert the tombstone. Put a dab of frosting in back of tombstone. Lean back to brace.

BATS: Draw bats using black frosting in a pastry bag with a fine tip.

(See PUMPKIN, D-6)

SPICY PUMPKIN SHEET CAKE

4 eggs
1 3/4 cups (16 oz. can) Solid Pack Pumpkin
1 cup sugar
3/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 cup oil
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon salt

Cream cheese frosting
Beat eggs in large mixer bowl. Add pumpkin, sugars, and oil; beat well. Add remaining ingredients except frosting. Beat until well blended. Spread into greased 15 x 10 x 1-inch jelly roll pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 25 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool. Frost with cream cheese frosting.

Keep Party Menus On The Simple Side

"Halloween party food can be as simple or extravagant as your time and imagination allow," says Alexandra Eames, a creative consultant to the makers of PAAS Halloween Make-Up Kits for children.

"A children's party menu is best if kept simple, but festive," according to Eames. "Halloweenies, bat-burgers and jack-burgers -- otherwise known as hot dogs, hamburgers and cheese burgers appeal to most palates," she says.

"Make jack-burgers with melted Monterey jack cheese -- American or Swiss are fine also. Add two olive slices for the eyes and a curling slice of red bell pepper to make a wicked grin and serve open-faced with 'frightful fries'."

Meals can be accompanied by hot apple cider or a festive Witches' Brew of fruit punch, Eames adds.

Any kid knows that dessert is the best part of any meal, and candied apples have always been traditional Halloween fare.

"Because they are not usually sold in sealed packages, these are often among the unacceptable goodies that parents won't allow children to keep when they've been given by strangers," Eames says. "That's why they can be a special party treat, especially when they are home-made. Glazed, caramel and taffy apples are easy to make as long as you have a double boiler and a candy thermometer," Eames says.

Food Anchors Harvest Festival

Harvest Moon is a special Oriental festival which, like our Thanksgiving, commemorates the bountiful harvest. But for the Chinese, it's also a double celebration, also honoring the moon's birthday.

The Harvest Moon Festival includes a number of activities such as poetry, music, dancing and always the enjoyment of good food. Food is an important part of the Chinese lifestyle and the focal point of Chinese celebrations.

This season, why not stage your own Chinese meal in honor of the Harvest Moon? Instead of the traditional Chinese banquet with 10 or more courses, your meal may be more streamlined. As the Chinese do, begin with an appetizer. Convenient and easy-to-prepare frozen egg rolls are a perfect meal starter dipped in an Oriental sauce.

Beef With Snow Peas makes a dazzling main course for a celebration dinner. Tender strips of beef are stir fried with mushrooms and Chinese pea pods. Soy sauce, ginger and garlic season the sauce to create a spectacular entree boasting authentic flavors and ingredients.

Cool, crisp Mandarin Carrot Salad is a refreshing accompaniment. Make it ahead and allow it to chill while you assemble the rest of the meal. Shredded carrots and cabbage are teamed with crunchy water chestnuts and a dressing made with mandarin orange sauce. The bits of real mandarin orange in the slightly sweet sauce lend a refreshing spark of flavor to the salad and a delicious flavor contrast to the savory beef dish.

Of course no celebration meal would be complete without dessert. For authenticity, dessert should be round to symbolize the shape of the moon. Traditional desserts are moon cakes, sweet fruit-filled pastries. But you may choose such round fruit as apples, oranges, grapes, melons and cherries as a lighter alternative. A scoop of icy-cold sherbert or ice cream is a welcome dessert choice as well, topped with crunchy chow mein noodles or served with fortune cookies.

1 teaspoon minced ginger root
2 1/2 cups sliced mushrooms
1 (6 oz.) package frozen Chinese pea pods, thawed and drained

In a small bowl, combine sauce ingredients; set aside. In a second small bowl, combine steak, soy sauce, cornstarch and sherry. In a large, non-stick skillet, heat oil over high heat. Stir fry half of beef until it loses redness; remove with slotted spoon and drain on paper towels.

Repeat with remaining beef. Add garlic and ginger to pan and saute 15 seconds. Add mushrooms and stir fry one minute. Stir sauce and blend into vegetables with pea pods and beef. Stir until sauce is thickened and bubbling. Makes four servings.

MANDARIN CARROT SALAD
2 cups shredded carrots

BEEF WITH SNOW PEAS

Sauce:
1/3 cup beef broth
2 Tablespoons soy sauce
1 Tablespoon cornstarch
1 Tablespoon dry sherry
1/4 teaspoon pepper

BEEF AND VEGETABLES

1 lb. sirloin steak, cut in thin 3-inch strips
1 Tablespoon soy sauce
1 Tablespoon cornstarch
1 Tablespoon dry sherry
1/4 cup vegetable oil

Autumn Inspires Creative Cooking

As the autumn frost settles and winter begins to set in, there's no better time than the weekend to invite family and friends home for a hearty meal.

Capture the flavor of harvest with a crusty homemade bread and a rich, hearty soup. To make this meal complete, take advantage of the fall and winter harvest produce, such as apples, pears or pumpkins for a sweet ending to your meal. No matter where you live, these fruits and vegetables are abundant.

These elegant pumpkin mousse desserts, highlight the colors and flavors of autumn. A hazelnut butter crunch topping complements the fluffy mousse to make a perfect dessert for any meal. They are not difficult to prepare, yet they look and taste spectacular.

Gold Medal home economists created this recipe and those in The Weekend Chef recipe booklet especially for busy people who enjoy the pleasures of cooking but don't have the time to cook during the week.

According to a survey conducted for Gold Medal flour, eighty percent of the working people surveyed said that work limits their time to cook. But on weekends, people want to cook creatively for enjoyment and to entertain and impress family and friends.

The Weekend Chef recipe booklet features more than 60 "Kitchen-tested," easy-to-follow recipes that enable even novice cooks to prepare impressive, delicious meals.

Spoonbread — Old Favorite That Deserves A New Look

Sometimes the best ideas for new recipes come by tracing our culinary roots back in time. Spoonbread, a souffle-like dish, is said to have originated in the 19th century when a mixture used to make a milk and egg enriched cornbread was left forgotten in a hot oven. Harvest Vegetable Spoonbread is a flavor-packed, vegetable-laden version that reflects up-to-date food trends.

The old-timers had the right idea, however. Spoonbread typically contains ingredients from most of the major food categories including cornmeal (a grain), milk (a dairy product) and eggs (a high-quality protein food). The addition of vegetables serves to raise the vitamin and fiber content of this hearty side dish.

Harvest Vegetable Spoonbread is its puffy, light texture, provided by the gentle folding of beaten egg whites into the yolk mixture. Do this with a downward stroke into the bowl, across, up and over the mixture motion, using a whisk or rubber spatula. Come up through the center of the mixture, giving the bowl a quarter turn about every three strokes and fold just until there are no streaks remaining. These instructions won't change over time.

HARVEST VEGETABLE SPOONBREAD

Butter
Cornmeal
2 Tablespoons butter
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup cornmeal

1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup water
3/4 cup (3 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
4 eggs, separated
1 cup milk
1 Tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 cups (10 ounces) frozen broccoli, cauliflower and carrots, mixed vegetables, thawed and drained
1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar

Lightly butter bottom and sides of 2-quart souffle dish or casserole. Dust with cornmeal. Set aside.

In medium saucepan over medium heat, cook onion in butter until tender, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in cornmeal and salt.

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

Dear Readers: I have been truly dazzled by the fall and Halloween displays seen throughout our area this year. It reminds me to share some thoughts about the food value of pumpkins — a truly American vegetable.

A small slice of pumpkin (about 3.5 ounces) is low in sodium and fat. The pumpkin also is an excellent source of beta-caroten, which produces vitamin A. You have probably read that foods with beta-caroten are recommended in a cancer risk reducing diet. Oh yes, don't throw away those seeds; dry them for a snack. Pumpkin seeds also have iron, B vitamins, minerals and have about 18 calories a tablespoon.

Cholesterol have you confused? I just reviewed a book and booklet that may be of interest to you. For folks trying to lower their blood cholesterol level the book, "Eater's Choice, A Food Lover's Guide to Lower Cholesterol" by Dr. Ron Goor and Nancy Goor ($10.95, paperback) has a good discussion of saturated fats, a reasonable diet plan, recipes and food composition lists.

Also, the Beef Board has published a pamphlet "The Weekend Athlete An Exercise and Diet Guide" that features recipes that use 3-ounce servings of cooked and trimmed beef. It's available by sending a self-addressed stamped business-size envelope to Weekend Athlete, Beef Industry Council, Dept. WA, 44 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Peanut butter lovers: There seems to be a club for everyone in our country. Did you know there is an Adult Peanut Butter Lovers Fan Club. This club focuses on the joys of eating peanut butter. If you want to join 20,000 other fans, including television weatherman Willard Scott, write the Adult Peanut Butters Lovers Fan Club, Peanut Advisory Board, c/o Ketchum Public Relations, 1133 Avenue of Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036. Membership is free and you'll get the official newsletter from the group.

Water: I have been encouraging most of the patients I see to drink more liquids, especially water. I saw a piece of water trivia to share with those of you who have wanted to dunk me. Over a lifetime, people consume 16,000 gallons of water.

Firms Promise Better Eating Through Chemistry

By PETER COY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Beef comes from cattle. Bread comes from grain. And olestra comes from Cincinnati.

Olestra is a fat substitute that gives all the glorious satisfaction of fat with zero calories and zero cholesterol, according to its maker, Procter & Gamble Co.

Olestra could become the wonder food of the 1990s. Several of P&G's rivals are working on their own versions, and the public is clamoring for it even though the Food and Drug Administration has just begun its safety review.

On labels, food is going country, natural, homemade. Inside, it's going high tech.

The big food companies — 53 of them are in the Fortune 500 — are pressing technology into service to satisfy consumers with increasingly contradictory tastes.

Americans drink diet soda but eat extra-rich ice cream; detest pesticides but demand unblemished fruit; crave roast turkey but only have time for microwave pizza.

Americans are also eating out more and demanding more fresh fruit, meat, breads and vegetables, a challenge for companies that sell food in packages.

The search is on for new foods, additives and packaging methods that will not only be safe, but be perceived that way by the public.

Products also have to be remarkable enough to stand out among the more than 6,000 new offerings that appear annually on the nation's supermarket shelves.

"Every company with a good R&D department has been looking under every rock for something that might give them a competitive edge," said Dane Bernard, an official of the National Food Processors Association.

Wonder foods are free — salt-free, caffeine-free, fat-free and of course sugar-free.

Wonder foods are also convenient, like frozen bagels; fortified, like calcium-enriched orange juice; cheap, like fake crab legs; or simply intriguing, like cereal squares filled with fruit paste.

"What's really driving it is an increasingly competitive market for the consumers' dollars," said Frank Blod, a partner in New England Consulting Group of Westport, Conn.

The 1980s' answer to Tang is microwave pizza and popcorn, which come packaged in a metal-dimpled plastic film like the stuff used on the Stealth bomber. The film absorbs microwaves, which makes bombers invisible to radar and raises temperatures in an oven.

Deposition Technology Inc. of San Diego, which makes some of the food wrap, split off the military part of its business and now just declares war on soggy pizza and unpopped kernels, according to Lester Bern, assistant treasurer of the parent company, Material Sciences Corp.

Natural food advocates worry that synthetic or highly processed products may contain harmful ingredients or leave out nutritious ones. But the questions don't seem to hold back the success of products such as aspartame, the artificial sweetener sold as NutraSweet or Equal.

Critics of aspartame say it can cause side effects in some people, but the FDA has approved aspartame for a wide range of uses. The Community Nutrition Institute, a Washington-based consumer group, has appealed to the courts to have aspartame banned. Sales, meanwhile, are booming.

Blod, the consultant, is convinced consumers can sense when something is bad for them.

"You can't fool the consumer. The food processors have more to lose than they have to gain by going forward with risky ventures," he said.

Consumer advocates aren't so sure.

"There is a common theme with the new additives, taking advantage of people's fear of calories ... the subtle sales message being, 'Eat these foods and you'll be as beautiful as Angie Dickinson,'" said Michael Jacobson, executive director of Center for Science in the Public Interest.

"Look back over the last 40 years of food technology. How beneficial have food additives been? Are people eating better or not?" Jacobson said.

"Vegetables, beans, potatoes — these are the most healthy foods," he said. "They're never advertised. They're not very profitable. They don't need any technology. They're wonderful foods as they are."

The trouble is, natural foods don't stand a chance if they have even small imperfections — something that's obvious to anybody watching shoppers paw through the produce section.

"People buy with their eyes. Many of the pesticides that are used on fruit are strictly for cosmetics," said Robert Plane, director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station in Geneva, N.Y.

Food companies are working on safer and cheaper ways of preserving food, such as the little bags of powdered iron inside Maxwell House coffee cans. The iron absorbs harmful oxygen by turning to rust, which does not touch the coffee.

On the freshness front, technological breakthroughs allow food companies to distribute brand-name cuts of meat and potato salads that are ordinarily prepared locally by butchers or delis.

A new plastic wrap impermeable to oxygen is permitting Conagra Inc. of Omaha, Neb., to ship meat to supermarkets in packages that are ready for sale. While the meat stays fresh far longer in the packages, it turns deep purple when deprived of oxygen. The meat blooms red when the wrapper is opened.

"This is going to be an educational process to the consumer," said Joe Meilinger, vice president for marketing at Conagra's Monfort of Colorado Inc.

Food companies don't try to push consumers where they don't want to go. Food irradiation has stalled even though most scientists are convinced gamma rays are safer than chemicals for killing insects and bacteria in food.

Gene splicing is controversial, too. Scientists have already created a "pomato" plant that produced tomatoes above ground and potatoes below.

More practical: strawberries that survive frost, sweeter carrots, dairy cows that eat less and vegetables that pluck their own nitrogen out of the air so they don't need fertilizer.

Research money also goes into things invisible to the consumer, like safety and automation. Spam, which comes from pork shoulder, is a low-tech product made by high-tech methods at Geo. A. Hormel & Co.

"There are like 14 people that produce all the Spam in the world," said Timothy Ramey, a food analyst at Kidder, Peabody & Co.

For all the marvels of technology, though, even food company spokesmen will admit it ranks second in importance to advertising and marketing.

Food and beverage companies spend about a quarter as much on research and development as American industry in general, 0.9 percent of sales last year vs. an average of 3.5 percent, according to a Standard & Poor's Compustat Services Inc. survey for Business Week.

Only the fuel, steel, tobacco and textile industries spent less.

Western Europe and Japan lead the United States in applying food technology in many areas, especially packaging. The FDA's stringent approval process is one reason, but some experts also blame industry myopia.

"Food companies, I think, in the U.S. have been very short-sighted. The Japanese will keep working on a problem until they solve it," said Ted Labuza, incoming president of the Institute of Food Technologists.

Try Cat Cookies For Halloween

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

Make giant cat cookies for your favorite Halloween beggars. Our test kitchen adjusted the sugar-cookie dough so it's easy to handle, even for large cookies. Use two spatulas to transfer the cutouts to the cookie sheet and to move the baked cookies to the cooling rack. Any large cookie cutter will do, but we used a 7-inch copper cookie cutter made especially for Better Homes and Gardens readers.

KIT-KAT COOKIES
3 cups all-purpose flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1 cup shortening
2 eggs
1 tablespoon milk
1/2 teaspoon lemon or almond extract

Frosting
Decorating supplies: Coconut, shoestring licorice, green gumdrops, miniature semisweet chocolate pieces and red cinnamon candies

In a medium mixing bowl stir together flour, baking powder and salt; set aside. In a large mixer bowl beat sugar and shortening with an electric mixer until fluffy. Add eggs, milk and extract; beat well. Add flour mixture, beating with electric mixer until combined. Cover and chill several hours or overnight.

On a floured pastry cloth, roll dough 3-8ths inches thick. Using cut or other large cutter, cut dough into desired shapes. Carefully transfer cutouts to greased cookie sheets. Reroll dough trimmings for additional cookies. Bake in 375-degree oven 13 to 15 minutes. Remove cookies; cool completely on wire rack. Decorate with frosting. Makes about 4 large cookies.

Frosting: In a small mixer bowl beat 1/4 cup shortening with an electric mixer for 30 seconds. Add 1 cup sifted powdered sugar, beating until fluffy. Stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla. Alternately add another 1 cup sifted powdered sugar and 1 to 2 tablespoons milk, beating until frosting is of spreading consistency. Remove and set aside 2-3rds of the frosting; tint remaining frosting with food coloring as desired.

Decorating: To decorate cat cookies, use white, green, dark brown and light brown frostings. Spread body with white and dark brown frostings to create spots. Frost head with light brown frosting. Use green frosting for cat collar.

Sprinkle coconut over cat body. Finish ears with small strips of shoestring licorice. For cat eyes, use green gumdrops that have been rolled flat and cut into a teardrop shape. Attach a miniature semisweet chocolate piece in center of each eye with frosting.

Form shoestring licorice strips into whiskers; place miniature semisweet chocolate pieces in center for nose. Decorate collar with cinnamon candies.

KIT-KAT COOKIES — Bring smiles to the faces of your favorite Halloween ghosts and goblins with giant cat cookies. Kids love them, and older children may be able to help with the decorating.

APPLE CRUNCH
1 cup sugar
1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 cups sifted flour
2 cups chopped apple
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Dash nutmeg and cinnamon
Mix sugar and cream. Stir in soda and salt. Stir apples into flour and fold into sugar mixture. Spread evenly in a greased 8-inch square pan or baking dish. Sprinkle with nutmeg and cinnamon. Bake in 350-degree oven for 25 minutes. Serve warm with cream.

Pumpkin Recipes Can Add Spice To Those Halloween Gatherings

PUMPKIN-ORANGE BUTTER
(Makes about 2-3/4 cups)
1 medium orange
1 3/4 cups (16 ounce can) Solid Pack Pumpkin
2 cups sugar
1/4 cup lemon juice
Carefully remove thin layer of peel from orange, making sure not to remove white portion. Reserve. Remove and discard remaining rind and seeds. Place reserved rind and orange pulp into blender jar; puree. (Should have about 1/2 to 3/4 cup.) Place in large saucepan with remaining ingredients. Heat to boiling over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thick, about 30 minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and process in boiling water bath or store covered in refrigerator.

FOR SPICY PUMPKIN BUTTER:
Add 1 teaspoon cinnamon and 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg to butter after removing from heat.

MICROWAVE DIRECTIONS:
Combine pumpkin, sugar, lemon juice, and pureed orange rind and pulp in 3-quart microwave-safe casserole. Microcook on high 15-25 minutes, stirring well every 5 minutes.

HINT: For ease in peeling orange, use vegetable peeler.

CURRIED PUMPKIN SOUP
(Makes 6 cups)
1/4 cup butter
1 cup chopped onion
1 crushed garlic clove
3 cups chicken broth
1/2 cup converted raw rice, if desired
1 teaspoon curry powder
1/2 teaspoon ground coriander
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 to 1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper

1 3/4 cups (16 ounce can) Solid Pack Pumpkin
1 cup light cream
Melt butter in large saucepan. Sauté onion and garlic. Stir in broth, pepper and seasonings. Simmer 20 minutes. Stir in pumpkin and cream. Simmer 5 minutes.

NOTE: If using rice, soup should be served immediately. If not using rice, soup may be prepared in advance and reheated just before serving.

PUMPKIN PINWHEELS
(Makes about 8 dozen cookies)
1 3/4 cups (16 ounce can) Solid Pack Pumpkin
3 cups sugar
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup shortening
3 eggs
4 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
Combine pumpkin, 1 cup sugar, and pie spice in saucepan. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat, simmer 10 minutes. Stir in nuts; cool and reserve. Cream shortening and remaining 2 cups sugar in large mixer bowl. Add eggs; beat until fluffy. Combine remaining ingredients; add to creamed mixture. Mix well. Divide dough into 3 equal parts. On lightly floured foil, roll each into an 8 x 12-inch rectangle. Spread with 1/3 of reserved filling mixture. Starting from wide end, roll as for jelly roll. Wrap in foil. Repeat with remaining dough and filling. Place rolls in freezer several hours or overnight. To bake, remove one roll at a time from freezer; unwrap and cut with sharp knife into 3/8-inch slices. Arrange on greased cookie sheets. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Cool. Drizzle icing over cooled cookies, if desired.

ICING: Blend together until smooth: 2 cups powdered sugar, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, and 2 to 3 tablespoons milk. Drizzle with spoon or from plastic squeeze-type condiment bottle. Add additional milk if icing is too thick.

FOR PUMPKIN PINWHEEL ICE CREAM COOKIE SANDWICHES

Omit icing on cookies. Insert approximately 1/4 cup (2 ounces) of vanilla or pumpkin ice cream between two cookies. Press together slightly to sandwich. Smooth side of ice cream with spatula. Keep frozen until served.

PUMPKIN BISCUITS
(Makes 9 biscuits)

2 cups flour
1/3 cup dry nonfat dry milk
1/4 cup sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
3/4 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup shortening
3/4 cup Solid Pack Pumpkin
1 tablespoon water
Mix together flour, dry nonfat milk, sugar, baking powder, pumpkin pie spice, and salt in medium bowl. Cut in shortening. Blend in pumpkin and water just until all ingredients are moistened. Knead 10-20 times on lightly floured surface. Using a 3-inch cookie cutter, cut into nine biscuits. Place biscuits on ungreased cookie sheet 2 inches apart. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 12-15 minutes or until golden brown.

FAMOUS PUMPKIN PIE
(Makes one 9-inch pie)

2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 3/4 cups (16-ounce can) Solid Pack Pumpkin
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
1 1/2 cups (12-ounce can) undiluted evaporated milk
1 9-inch unbaked homemade pie shell with high fluted edge

Preheat oven to 425 degrees F. Combine filling ingredients in order given; pour into pie shell. Bake 15 minutes. Reduce temperature to 350 degrees F. Bake an additional 45 minutes or until knife inserted near center comes out clean.

HARVEST PUNCH
(Makes about 4 cups)
1 1/2 cups chilled apple cider
1 cup Solid Pack Pumpkin

1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
2 cups ice cubes
1 cup (8 ounces) chilled lemon-lime carbonated beverage or club soda
1/4 to 1/3 cup rum, optional
Place apple cider, pumpkin, sugar and pie spice in blender jar. Blend thoroughly. Add ice gradually, blending until smooth. Stir in lemon-lime beverage or soda and rum. Serve immediately.

Tomato Slices

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor
Pick out the finest tomatoes at the market or from your garden and give them this deluxe treatment.

MICROWAVE PARMESAN-TOPPED TOMATO SLICES
2 large or 3 medium tomatoes, sliced 1/2-inch thick
1/4 cup dairy sour cream
1/4 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Place tomato slices in a microwave-safe, 8- by 8- by 2-inch baking dish, overlapping slices if necessary. Stir together sour cream, mayonnaise and lemon juice. Dollop on top of tomato slices. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Cook, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) for 2 1/2 to 4 1/2 minutes or until heated through. Makes 4 servings.

Menus For Children's Parties Are Best If Kept On Simple Side

HALLOWEEN PARTY RECIPES
WITCHES BREW
 Fruit punch
 Ginger ale
 Pineapple slices
 Oranges sliced (with peel)
 maraschino cherries
 Combine equal parts of your favorite flavor fruit punch and ginger ale; add fruit to taste.

GLAZED APPLES
 2 cups sugar
 1 to 1 1/2 cups boiling water
 1/8 teaspoon cream of tartar
 a few drops of red vegetable coloring
 5 to 10 washed, uncooked apples (insert skewers or ice cream sticks)
 Combine sugar, water and cream of tartar and bring to boiling point. Cover and cook without stirring for about 3 minutes. When candy thermometer reads 300 degrees, remove pan from heat and place over hot water in a double boiler; add vegetable coloring. (If syrup hardens it may be reheated over hot water once.) Work quickly, dip skewered apples and place on a well-buttered surface.

CARAMEL APPLES
 2 lbs. caramel
 4 tablespoons water
 10 washed, uncooked apples (insert skewers or ice cream sticks)
 Combine caramels and water in the top of a double boiler, heat and stir until they melt in a smooth coating. Dip skewered apples into sauce, twirling them until completely coated. Dry the same way as glazed apples.

TAFFY APPLES
 2 cups granulated sugar
 2 cups brown sugar
 1 cup vinegar
 1 cup water
 10 washed, uncooked apples (insert skewers or ice cream sticks)
 Mix ingredients, except apples, and cook until candy thermometer registers 300 degrees. Dip skewered apples in syrup until well-coated. Place on wax paper to harden.

JACK O' LANTERN CUP CAKES
 Use a package mix to make yellow cup cakes or try this home-made recipe:
Cup Cakes:
 1 3/4 cups cake flour (sifted)

1 cup sugar
 1/2 cup butter
 2 eggs
 1/2 cup milk
 1/2 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 Make sure all ingredients are about room temperature. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Resift cake flour with sugar in bowl. Add remaining ingredients and beat vigorously with a wire whisk or rotary beater for 2 to 3 minutes.
 Set fluted cup cake papers in muffin tin and fill molds about 1/3 full. Bake for 20 to 25 minutes. Makes approximately 24 2-inch cup cakes.
ORANGE FLAVOR FROSTING:
 1/2 cup (1 stick) softened unsalted butter
 1 lb. confectioners' sugar
 4-5 teaspoons orange juice
 2 teaspoons finely grated orange rind
 Cream butter, sugar and enough orange juice to make frosting spreadable but not runny. Beat in rind. Children can decorate iced cup cakes with licorice or candy corn to make pumpkin faces.

HOME-MADE JACK O' LANTERN PIE
 1 1/2 cups canned or fresh, cooked pumpkin
 1 1/2 cups undiluted evaporated milk or cream
 1/2 cup brown sugar
 1/4 cup white sugar
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 1/2 teaspoon ginger
 1/8 teaspoon cloves
 4 slightly beaten eggs
 Mix ingredients in the top of a double boiler and cook over water until thick. Let mixture cook slightly and pour into a baked pie shell. Serve with whipped cream.
FRESH, COOKED PUMPKIN:
 Wash and cut pumpkin in half, crosswise; remove seeds and strings. Place in a pan, pulp side down, and bake at 325 degrees for 1 hour, or until tender. Scrape the pulp from the shell and put through a strainer or food processor.

POPCORN BALLS
 1/2 cup dark molasses
 1/2 cup dark corn syrup
 1/2 teaspoon vinegar
 1 1/2 tablespoons butter
 6 cups popped popcorn
 Combine molasses, corn syrup and vinegar. Cook, stirring occasionally until candy thermometer reads 240 degrees, then stir constantly. At 270 degrees, mix in butter then pour slowly over popcorn. Roll into balls and place on wax paper to cool.

 Makes 10-2 1/2-inch treats.
HOT CIDER
 2 quarts sweet, fresh cider juice of 3 lemons

 lemon slices
 Heat and add lemon slices just before serving.
 Try these other suggestions:
 Devil's Food cake or orange sherbert with licorice or Halloween candy corn

Autumn Table Fare

 So, be a weekend chef. Write for a copy of The Weekend Chef recipe booklet. Send $1 to cover postage and handling to The Weekend Chef, P.O. Box 5402, Department 867, Minneapolis, MN 55460.

PUMPKIN MOUSSE DESSERTS
 Heat oven to 400 degrees
 Ungreased rectangular pan, 13x9x2-inch size, and 4 or 5 sherbert dishes
 Hazelnut Butter Crunch (below)
 2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
 1/4 cup cold water
 3/4 cup canned pumpkin
 1/3 cup packed brown sugar
 1/4 teaspoon each salt, ground ginger, ground cinnamon and ground nutmeg
 2 eggs, separated
 1/2 cup chilled whipping cream
 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
 1/3 cup granulated sugar
 Sweetened whipped cream (below)
PREPARE: Hazelnut Butter Crunch.
 Sprinkle gelatin on cold water in 1-qt. saucepan to soften; heat over medium heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in pumpkin, brown sugar, salt, spices and egg yolks. Heat just to boiling over medium heat, stirring constantly. Refrigerate, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon.

BEAT: whipping cream in chilled small bowl until soft peaks form; beat in pumpkin mixture, 1/3 at a time, until well blended.
BEAT: egg whites and cream of tartar in small bowl until foamy. Beat in granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, until stiff and glossy. (Do not underbeat.) Fold pumpkin mixture into egg white mixture.
SPOON: 2 tablespoons Hazelnut Butter Crunch into sherbert dish for each serving; top with 1/3 to 1/2 cup pumpkin mixture. Top with 1 tablespoon Hazelnut Butter Crunch. Refrigerate until set, 2 to 3 hours.
TOP: with whipped cream just before serving. Garnish with hazelnuts or crystallized ginger if desired. Refrigerate any remaining desserts. 4 or 5 servings.
HAZELNUT BUTTER CRUNCH
 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
 1/3 cup chopped hazelnuts
 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
 1/4 cup margarine or butter
 Mix all ingredients until crumbly. Distribute evenly in pan. Bake until golden brown, 7 to 10 minutes; stir and cool. Store covered.

SWEETENED WHIPPED CREAM
 Beat 1 1/2 cups chilled whipping cream and 1/4 cup powdered or granulated sugar in chilled bowl until stiff.

Spoonbread Recipe

 Gradually stir in water until smooth. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened, about 4 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in cheese until melted. Blend in egg yolks, milk, mustard, Worcestershire sauce and pepper until smooth. Stir in vegetables. Set aside.
 In large mixing bowl, beat egg whites with cream of tartar at high speed until stiff but not dry, just until whites no longer slip when bowl is tilted. Gently, but thoroughly, fold reserved yolk mixture into whites. Carefully pour into prepared dish.

 Bake in preheated 375-degree oven until puffy, golden brown and mixture shakes slightly when oven rack is gently moved back and forth, about 55 minutes. Serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

CALORIE-TRIMMED EGGNOG

3 eggs, separated
 1 tablespoon sugar
 3 packets granulated sugar substitute
 2 cups low-fat milk
 1/4 cup rum or 1/2 teaspoon rum extract
 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
 Ground nutmeg

In small bowl with mixer at high speed, beat egg whites until soft peaks form. In another large bowl with same beaters and with mixer at high speed, beat egg yolks, sugar and sugar substitute until lemon-colored and slightly thick. Stir in milk; rum, if desired; vanilla; and 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg. With rubber spatula or wire whisk, fold beaten egg whites into milk mixture. To serve, sprinkle with additional ground nutmeg. Serve immediately. Makes 10 1/2-cup servings.

Our Service & Delivery Promises

- We will provide service and delivery no matter where you live—through our nationwide service organization with over 12,000 trucks and 15,000 technicians.
- We will make every effort to deliver your new appliance when it's convenient for you.
- We will schedule the delivery date when you buy your appliance, and call you, in advance, to confirm a 4-hour time period for our arrival.
- We will deliver Saturday or almost any evening, if you prefer.
- We will do everything we can to deliver refrigerators and dishwashers the following day, in case of an emergency.
- We will provide normal hookup of your new appliance at the time of delivery.
- We will remove all cartons and packing materials at the time of delivery and arrange for removal of your old appliance, at your convenience.
- We will provide repair service in your home when convenient for you, including Saturday or almost any evening, if you prefer.
- We will confirm a 2-hour time period, in advance, for our service call.
- We will make every effort to repair carry-in appliances at our Service Centers while you wait.
- We will provide convenient hours at our 800 Service Centers throughout the country. From 7:30 a.m. to 7:00 p.m., weekdays.
- We will stand behind our policy of Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Back.

A lot of companies can make you a lot of promises. And if they don't fulfill them, the last thing they want is for you to call them on it.

At Sears, we look at it a little differently.

You should expect our service to be as dependable as our products are. And, to that end, we try to be perfect. But sometimes a gentle reminder can help us become even better.

So, hold on to this ad. The next time we service your Kenmore appliance, or deliver a new one, check our performance against this list.

Because it's not the promises we make that count.

But the ones we keep.
