Edgy Market Scores Mild Rally

By RICK GLADSTONE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks opened slightly higher today in nervous trading after an assault on the dollar pushed the currency to new lows, creating uncertainty again on Wall Street.

"The confidence in the market is extremely fragile," said Peter J. DaPuzzo, manager of the retail equity group at Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. "That could cause buyers to step aside."

The Dow Jones average of 30 industries rose 8.29 to 1,993.70 by noon-time on Wall Street.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 5 to 3 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 926 up, 566 down and 405 unchanged.

The dollar sank to its lowest level in four decades against the Japanese yen in Tokyo today, finishing at 135.50 yen, down 0.45 from the record low set Thursday. Foreign exchange dealers also sold the dollar lower in Europe and the United States.

Although stocks strengthened a bit in Asian markets, traders called the rally largely a reaction to higher stock prices Thursday in the United States.

The Tokyo market's key indicator, the 225-stock Nikkei average, rose sharply at the opening but dollar worries stunted the increase. The index closed 165.37 points higher at 22,795.02. The Hong Kong market also was higher but the increase came after four straight days of big drops.

Later in London, stocks weakened in reaction to the dollar's slide. The Financial Times 100-Share Index was down 18 points to 1,620.8 by early afternoon.

On Thursday, Wall Street rallied because of cuts in the prime lending rates of major U.S. banks, government rate cuts in West Germany and Switzerland, and speculation the Federal Reserve would act to reduce rates further to help boost economic growth.

The value of all U.S. stocks rose by

Jobless Rate Edges Upward, Creeps Back Over 6 Percent

By MATT YANCEY
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's civilian jobless rate edged up to 6.0 percent in October — the first increase in 18 months — despite the creation of more than 500,000 jobs and significant growth in manufacturing employment, the government said today.

The Labor Department's survey of households showed 415,000 more Americans at work last month than in September. But the civilian labor force grew by 500,000, raising the jobless rate by 0.1 percentage point.

September's 5.9 percent rate had been the lowest in nearly eight years.

Both overall employment and the size of the civilian labor force had dropped in September as hundreds of thousands of students returned to school after summer vacations. It was that drop that largely accounted for September's 0.1 percentage point drop from the 6.0 percent rate of July and August.

The October survey was taken in the second week of the month, just before the 508-point drop recorded in the Dow Jones industrial stocks index on Oct. 19. Most private economists say the effects of recent market activity won't be reflected in unemployment calculations for a few months.

A separate department survey of business payrolls showed 550,000 jobs were created in October, including 65,000 on factory assembly lines. That followed a gain of 55,000 manufacturing jobs in the preceding month.

Since June, factory employment has grown by 220,000 jobs, providing evidence that manufacturers left behind through most of the recovery, at 59 months the nation's longest, are finally catching up.

The commissioner of labor statistics, Janet L. Norwood, told the congressional Joint Economic Committee that payroll employment rose in more than 60 percent of the nation's industries. The largest gains, she said, were in metal products, machinery and electrical equipment.

"Indeed," she said, "October employment in three manufacturing industries — furniture, rubber and plastics, and printing and publishing — reached an all-time high. ... Factory overtime, at 4 hours, was at the highest level in more than 14 years."

Canvass Confirms Election Results

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

An official canvass conducted Thursday confirmed the election of Bill Hadden to the City Council and other winners published in The Daily Reflector.

According to official results released by the Pitt County Board of Elections, Hadden, a 10-year veteran on the board, captured the District 4 seat by defeating Greenville businessman Richard "Ric" Miller, 800-650.

The canvass confirmed Ed Carter's victory over Les Garner in the mayoral race by a 3,441-3,145 margin. Carter, a two-term City Council member, is the city's first black mayor in modern history.

In other council races, incumbent Lorraine Shinn defeated challengers Wallace Woolees and Ed Rose for the at-large seat. Official results gave Mrs. Shinn a 3,251 votes, two more than originally reported.

The canvass also confirmed the winning totals for Inez Fridley and Mildred Council, who secured District 3 and District 1 seats, respectively.

The numbers tallied in the District 2 race between Rufus Huggins and Herb Gardner were verified. Huggins defeated Gardner by 252 votes.

A 284-vote victory for Council member Nancy Jenkins over challenger Blanche Forbes was also confirmed.

The canvass uncovered several minor changes in Board of Education results.

Donovan Phillips, running unopposed for District 1, Seat A on the board received 1,083 votes, compared with 1,082 originally reported. H.W. Parker, who ran unopposed for Seat B in the district, tallied 964 votes, rather than 963.

In the District 2 Seat A race, Mary Lawrence Williams, the winner, received 1,112 votes, compared to 1,007. Other results in the race were unchanged.

Walter E. Morehead, who took Seat B in the district, captured 843 votes, up four from the 839 reported. Ferrell Blount, an incumbent, tallied 647, up from 637, and Sidney Scott received 599 votes, up two from 597.

Anne M. McGaughey, winner of the District 4, Seat A spot on the board, totaled 811 votes, up from 808, and her opponent, David L. Shackelford, tallied 758, up from 756.

In the District 4, Seat B race, Mark W. Owens received 1,100 votes, compared to 1,098 reported, and Robert R. Martin Jr. garnered 440 votes, up from 437.

Election officials said the majority of the changes came from minor variations uncovered in returns from Greenville Precinct 3, located at the West Greenville Recreation Center on Fourth and Nash streets.

Computers Best Way, Expert Says

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Communication, reasoning and computer skills may be the most important tools students will need to compete and succeed in the telecommunications world in the year 2000, said Mickey McDowell of Carolina Telephone.

McDowell spoke to a Pitt County schools task force Thursday night in Greenville Middle School. The task force was formed to address predictable changes in population, demographics, business and economic trends, family and social trends and educational requirements in the nation, state and county.

The third speaker to address the task force, McDowell said students will "need to feel comfortable using computers. Everything will be keyboard driven."

As an example of the impact telecommunications will have in the future, McDowell said it would be possible for an employee to call his supervisor on a screen, show him or her a letter through the system that

United Way Surpasses First Million-Plus Goal

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County's United Way surpassed its all-time-high this year, going over $1 million for the first time.

In all $1,032,792 was raised, it was announced during a United Way reporting and victory celebration held at the Greenville Country Club. United Way President Andy Warren and Ed Kirby, campaign chairman, praised the workers in the campaign. The goal had been $1,030,724.

Kirby said that the industrial division was far and away the biggest fund-raiser, bringing in over half of the total campaign amount — $586,702. This was $702 over goal. John Lenox of Burroughs Wellcome headed this division.

The commercial division, headed by Jordan Whichard, had eight teams working and surpassed its goal of $73,000 by raising $73,045. Two outstanding groups in this division in terms of increases in amounts given were employees of The Daily Reflector and employees of Garner Wholesale.

OVER GOAL — A $1,030,724 goal for Pitt County United Way contributions this year was surpassed, drive officials said Thursday night. An oversized "check" with the amount raised so far is displayed by United Way President Andy Warren, left, and Ed Kirby, campaign chairman.

Judge Upholds ECU Dismissal

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Superior Court Judge Bradford Tillery Thursday has upheld the firing of East Carolina University Professor John Kozy Jr. earlier this year, saying the action by school officials — which was taken after several female students complained that Kozy had sexually harassed them — was "supported by substantial evidence."

Kozy's lawyer, former Superior Court Judge Robert Rouse, gave notice of appeal to the N.C. Court of Appeals immediately after Tillery announced his decision.

Thursday's hearing was a judicial review of administrative procedures the university had followed in ousting Kozy, 55, former chairman of the school's philosophy department. It was not a trial with witnesses or jury.

Tillery's decision was based on a review of the case records — including transcripts of testimony presented before the university's Due Process Committee — and arguments made by Rouse and Thomas J. Ziko, an assistant N.C. attorney general, who represented the university.

A member of the ECU faculty since 1963, Kozy filed a petition with the Pitt County Clerk of Court last month asking a judge to reverse a ruling by university officials to dismiss him for being unfit.

The petition said Kozy received a letter from Chancellor John Howell on Oct. 7, 1986, which expressed the chancellor's intent to discharge him.

As a result, the petition said Kozy requested "specifications of the reasons for intent to discharge" and requested a hearing before the school's Due Process Committee — a committee of five faculty members.

After a majority of the committee found against Kozy, he received a letter from Chancellor Richard Eakin in April saying "that he was discharged."

Kozy then asked for a review by the school's board of trustees — which found that the "preponderance of evidence" supported the chancellor's action — and later by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors, which also upheld the dismissal.

Kozy's petition asked the court that the "findings with respect to

Cash Reported Taken

Six thefts, including $180 in cash from a Roundtree Drive apartment, were reported to Greenville police Thursday.

Officer L.R. Kepler said the cash was taken from 417A Roundtree Drive in an incident reported at 10:20 a.m., while Officer C.A. Elks said three necklaces and three rings, with a total value of $85, were taken from Maxies Jewelers at The Plaza in an incident reported at 11:40 a.m.

Officer T.E. Evans said letters valued at $400 were taken from an automatic teller machine booth at First Citizens Bank at 1516 E. Greenville Blvd. in an incident reported at 1:28 p.m., while Officer B.W. Lewis said a book containing listings of apartments, townhomes and houses was taken from Home Locators at 219 Cotanche St. in an incident reported at 3:37 p.m. Lewis said $181 worth of merchandise was taken from Nichols Discount City on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 4:30 p.m.

According to Officer M.E. Hayes, two signs with a combined value of $800 were taken from McDonald's restaurant at 2116 S.E. Greenville Blvd. in an incident reported at 5:37 p.m.

Theft Arrests

Three people were arrested by Greenville police on theft charges Thursday.

Officer C.A. Elks said Ronnie Earl Graham, 29, of Washington, N.C., was arrested on a shoplifting charge on the County Home Road south of the city about 5 p.m. in connection with a 2:20 p.m. incident at Kroger Sav-On on Greenville Boulevard, where a quantity of cosmetics was reported taken.

Officer E.E. Laughinghouse said Linda Dumlup Schadler, 41, of 207 Sumrell St. was charged with shoplifting in connection with a 3:16 p.m. incident at the Gazebo at 614 Arlington Blvd.

According to Sgt. T.V. Woolard, Mark Eldridge Joyner, 16, of 1903 Norcott Circle was charged with two counts of auto larceny and two counts of damage to real property in connection with the theft of a minivan from Phelps Chevrolet on Memorial Drive on Oct. 19.

DWI Charge

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Edgewood County Clerk of Court Robert Curtis Weaver will be tried Dec. 17 on a charge of driving while impaired with a blood alcohol level of .325, according to court records.

The state Highway Patrol said Weaver was arrested Oct. 10 after he wrecked his 1985 Buick and was treated for injuries. The legal limit for driving while impaired is .10.

Howard Boney Jr., district attorney for Nash, Edgewood and Wilson counties, was a passenger in the car and was hospitalized for several days with injuries, police said.

The maximum penalty for the first offense of DWI is a one-year loss of license and a fine. Weaver also was charged with transporting alcohol with a broken seal, which is punishable with a fine.

Hearing Impaired Counselor Says Understanding Needed

By SHANNON SHORT
Reflector Staff Writer

The main problem that hearing impaired people face is the lack of community understanding about specific problems they encounter each day, according to a consultant for the North Carolina Council for the Hearing Impaired.

"There are misconceptions within the community which lead to deterioration within the family (of a deaf person)," said Pete Shuart, council consultant in the Greenville area and 24 other North Carolina counties.

The Council for the Hearing Impaired was established by an act ratified by the 1977 session of the General Assembly. The council is a state agency within the Department of Human Resources dedicated to helping hearing impaired persons and their families.

The board provides support to families with a hearing impaired child or children, provides information on where to get help, and is involved in the public school system. It also provides services to organizations such as hospitals, courts and other agencies that are serving people in North Carolina.

Shuart has been the consultant for one year and says that the office in Greenville has 175 clients that it serves.

Shuart, who has a hearing impairment, said there is a strong need for more Teletype machines in the counties that he oversees. Teletypes are machines which allow hearing impaired people to communicate with others by telephone. Although there are a few of these machines in Pitt County, Shuart said there really aren't enough of them. "Some counties don't even have Teletype devices," he said.

The lack of Teletype machines creates a problem for the hearing impaired, especially the elderly, because they are, in essence, stuck in their homes with no way of communicating with others unless they do so in person, he said.

"If there was an emergency and medical attention was needed, the hearing impaired person would have to run to a neighbor and get them to call for help. If a hearing impaired person had to call in sick, he would have to get in his car and drive to his place of employment to let them know," said Shuart.

Shuart said there aren't enough jobs open for the hearing impaired. "It's hard for a hearing impaired person to move up the company ladder," he said.

There is also a void in the number of available interpreters for those who need them, according to Shuart. Most of the interpreters in the area work full time, so those in need of part-time interpreters have a hard time locating available persons.

Shuart said that he would like his organization to have more interaction with people in the community so that the public's awareness level could be raised. "I want the community to be aware of our services," said Shuart.

Shuart hopes that one day there will be a Deaf Awareness Week and this will help the community to become more involved and aware of problems that deaf people encounter.

"We're not looking for sympathy, but empathy," Shuart said.

Those interested in getting involved with the Council for the Hearing Impaired should call 756-5737.

Garner Will Serve As League Panelist

RALEIGH — Several Greenville officials will participate in the program of the upcoming 1987 annual convention of the North Carolina League of Municipalities.

The league's convention, scheduled for Nov. 15-17 in Greensboro, is expected to draw more than 1,800 municipal officials and guests from across the state.

With the theme of "In Partnership," the league convention will include a session on how to build partnerships with other levels of government and with the private sector and institutions concerned with public issues.

Workshop topics will range from how to involve citizens in strategic planning to how to work in partnership with the state's colleges and universities.

Greenville Mayor Les Garner has been invited to serve as a panelist during a convention workshop session on "Politics and the Media."

Council member Janice Buck is serving as a member of the league's nominating committee, which will meet during the convention to recommend a slate of NCLM officers and directors for 1987-88.

City Clerk Lois Worthington will be completing her second term on the NCLM Board of Directors and will be recognized during the convention for her services to the league.

Featured speakers at the 1987 league convention will include Neal

R. Peirce, nationally syndicated columnist on urban affairs; Denver Councilwoman Cathy Reynolds, president of the National League of Cities; Dr. William C. Friday, president emeritus of the University of North Carolina and chairman of the N.C. Rural Economic Development Center; Jim Melvin, chairman of the N.C. Commission on Jobs and Economic Growth and a former mayor of Greensboro; N.C. Sen. Aaron W. Plyler Sr., Monroe, and N.C. Rep. George W. Miller, Durham.

During the business meeting of the convention, member municipalities will adopt state and federal legislative goals for 1988. League officers and directors will be elected during the business meeting.

The league is a voluntary, non-partisan federation of 479 cities, towns and villages. The league represents municipal interests before the N.C. General Assembly and works with the National League of Cities to address municipal concerns at the federal level.

Inmates Graduated

Pre-Release and Aftercare Services recently celebrated its 79th graduation for about 22 inmates in the N.C. Department of Corrections.

The graduation was sponsored by the Women Concern Committee of Our Redeemer Lutheran Church.

Guest speaker was Bill Crews, deputy secretary of the N.C. Department of Corrections in Raleigh. Crews stressed the importance of receiving a diploma after graduation, which denotes an accomplishment for all graduating inmates, according to Melvin McLawhorn, training coordinator. Crews also urged graduates to strive for positive and constructive goals.

Churches or organizations wanting to sponsor a graduation may contact McLawhorn at 756-8400 or visit the center at 108 Dexter St.

Arts Council Intern

Two East Carolina University students, Carla Roberson of Fayetteville and Kimberly S. Johnson of Kinston, are staff interns with the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council for fall semester.

Carla Robertson is a senior majoring in community arts management. She will be in charge of the Arts Council's annual Children's Holiday Celebration, and will assist in the development of newsletters and a brochure.

Kimberly Johnson is majoring in leisure systems studies with a concentration in commercial recreation. She will develop a public awareness campaign for the Arts Council as well as update and computerize a regional media mailing list.

Other students interested in applying for Arts Council internships can call 757-1785 weekdays between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Infections Can Activate AIDS Virus

Task

By PAUL RECER
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A substance normally produced by the body during infection or drug use can play a role in changing latent exposure to AIDS into an active disease that kills, a federal researcher says.

Dr. Anthony S. Fauci said in an interview Thursday that in research at the National Institutes of Health he and four colleagues for the first time were able to show how a natural body chemical can "turn on" the virus that causes AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Fauci said the findings suggest that perhaps those people who have tested positive for the presence of the AIDS virus could delay the active stage of the disease by making fundamental changes in their lifestyle. He emphasized, however, that this was still only speculation.

Fauci was a member of a team of researchers that included Thomas M. Folks, Jesse Justement and Audrey Kinter at NIH, and Charles A. Dinarello at Tufts University. Their findings were reported today in Science magazine.

AIDS is caused by the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV. This virus typically lies dormant for five to seven years before it progresses to an active infection that disables the body's immune system.

A key goal of AIDS researchers has been an understanding of the mechanism that causes the HIV virus to evolve from a harmless latency detected only by blood tests into a vicious infection that kills.

Using human cells infected with the AIDS virus, Fauci said he and his colleagues were able to cause the virus to become active by exposing the cells to cytokine, a protein substance that is secreted into the bloodstream by the body's immune system.

The scientist said the experiment suggests the AIDS virus gradually can be activated by infections or chemicals that would cause the repeated secretion of cytokine.

"This may be one of the mechanisms that turns a latent infection into an active infection," Fauci said. "We're not saying it's the only way because there may be others."

A mechanism to activate the dormant AIDS virus has not been demonstrated previously, but Fauci said the experiment "was not a breakthrough" because there still is much unknown about the process.

Although the finding suggests that infections can help activate the AIDS virus, Fauci said, "you cannot extrapolate this to mean that a common cold would trigger it."

Activation of the virus, he said, "does not occur rapidly or overnight." Instead, he characterized the process as an "insidious conversion" that "gradually whittles away" until the AIDS infection becomes overwhelming.

Fauci said the study also suggests, "but does not prove," that people who have tested positive for AIDS could delay active symptoms of the disease by adopting a lifestyle that limits the secretion of cytokine.

That, he said, would include avoiding "noxious insults to the body," such as recreational drugs, which can trigger cytokine.

Fauci also suggested persons exposed to AIDS start following "safe sex" practices for their own benefit, because "sexually transmitted diseases are potent modulators of the immune system" that might hasten the active expression of the AIDS virus.

needs approving and then send the letter through the system to the addressee.

That system has video, data, voice and facsimile capabilities, he said. "That's on line today" and is used by a corporation in Illinois.

"Somebody has to tell that machine what to say" through oral, written and voice functions, McDowell said. "Communication skills are our greatest need."

To deal with that kind of technology, students should "use machines and get friendly with them," he said. For example, teach children how to use a banking machine. "That kind of training we need to start early."

There also needs to be "renewed interest in physical sciences at a lower level," McDowell said.

Problems associated with technological changes include "a shrinking workforce," he said. With these innovations, "we need fewer people."

And while technicians once were only needed to climb poles, dig holes and place wires, they now will need "brain power to understand the technical world," he said.

With fiber optics, communication through the telephone or computer is conducted over light waves instead of electronics, thereby enhancing speed, capacity and maintenance, McDowell said.

The system would provide a higher quality of service and cost deduction as technology develops and as competition in the industry increases.

Task force members also discussed the potential of advanced technology to create a passive learning environment where students do not have to interact or develop interpersonal skills.

The task force's next meeting will be Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m. in Greenville Middle School.

specifications or eight and nine be reversed or modified," that "the determination of unfitness be reversed," and that Kozy "be paid the emoluments (salary, profit, gain) of his employment that he would be entitled to receive had he been continued as a member of the faculty..."

In his arguments before the court Thursday, Rouse said the university had failed to prove that Kozy had sexually harassed any students. Instead, he said, some of Kozy's teaching methods had been misinterpreted.

Kozy's firing was based on complaints from students Daisy Morales in July 1983, Melissa Jones in March 1984 and Celeste Reed in October 1986. Ms. Jones' complaint dealt with incidents that she said occurred in the summer of 1986.

According to court records and comments by Rouse, Ms. Morales said that on various occasions, Kozy would pat her arms and shoulders in class, "lean against me and touch some part of my arms or shoulders," and one time after she coughed during class, Kozy, "asked if I needed 'mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.'" (In a statement during the Due Process Committee hearing, Kozy said he "really meant to lighten the atmosphere" with that remark.)

And on another occasion, while taking an exam, Ms. Morales said Kozy leaned over her and picked up her necklace and studied the medallions on it.

Ziko said Kozy explained that incident by saying, "Everyone knows how much I admire fine jewelry."

Ms. Reed's complaint said that while taking a test, Kozy walked up behind her and squeezed her shoulders. Kozy said he had intended it as a sign of encouragement.

She also said Kozy intimidated other students by making remarks that contained sexual innuendo.

Ms. Jones, who made the most recent complaint, had failed a logic class under one professor and was taking the class again under Kozy during the summer of 1986. She needed to pass the course in order to graduate.

According to Ziko and court records, on one occasion Ms. Jones was in a small room on the third floor of Brewster Building taking a make-up exam when Kozy walked in, circled her, then stopped beside her chair and leaned over.

"His one arm was around my shoulder and the other went over to my ribs," she said. But Kozy left the room when she complained, Ms. Jones said. And according to court records, two university staff members, George Baily and Frank Murphy, witnessed that occurrence.

Later during the semester, Mrs. Jones realized she was again flunking the class and asked Kozy for an "incomplete" in the course and a chance to complete the work in the fall with the help of a tutor.

Kozy told her he would give her an incomplete, Ziko said, if she would continue to attend class and try to pass.

On the day of the final exam, when she still was not making a passing grade, Ms. Jones again requested an "incomplete" and Kozy "said that no tutors would be available and that he would be glad to work with me alone, and if I was 'cooperative,' I wouldn't have any trouble getting an A," Ms. Jones' complaint said. "There was absolutely no way I was going to get an A in this class, and I interpreted his words and manner to suggest something more, namely sex."

But Rouse told the court that the interpretation by Ms. Jones was incorrect. What Kozy was saying, Rouse suggested, was that if Ms. Jones "worked" she could "make an A."

"It's on that tiny thread that this man is being hung," Rouse said.

"I have a feeling Constance Jones was over-reacting. She had to have this course. It was the only thing that stood between her and graduation."

Rouse, saying Kozy received two Silver Star medals for service in the U.S. Army in Korea and was national president of an honor society for philosophy, maintained that it was part of Kozy's teaching method to wander around the room during exams, glance over each student's work, and "write hints" on students' papers if they needed help. Such a method, Rouse suggested, meant that Kozy often leaned over a student's chair, his arm resting on some part of it, and his head near the student's face or shoulder. The lawyer said Kozy had to get close in order to read, because he used bifocal glasses.

"What Dr. Kozy was doing (was) trying to stimulate students to think and read," Rouse said. "The unfitness decision was not justified."

And Rouse said none of the complaints alleged that Kozy "touched any private parts."

Ziko — saying "the university doesn't exist for the faculty; the university exists for the students ... to educate North Carolina's young men and women" — suggested in his argument to the court that "faculty at the university have a tremendous amount of power ... they have the power to make or break a student's life."

"What one faculty member does" has an effect on other faculty members and a student's relationship with one faculty member "affects their relationship with everyone. Anytime a faculty member exploits those relationships, it detracts," Ziko said.

Ziko said Kozy had been warned "on at least three different occasions," following the Morales and Reed complaints, "not to do that;" that his actions were "not the kind of behavior the university would tolerate on the part of faculty." But Ziko said Kozy "tossed it off ... making excuses."

The final act, Ziko suggested, was when Ziko "offered (Ms. Jones) an A for her very cooperative behavior ... offered a grade for sexual favors."

And Ziko said, "We don't let you abuse one student for every five years of meritorious service. If we send Dr. Kozy back to teach, he will continue the same conduct. That would be an injustice."

"We ask the court to confirm the decision of the board of trustees."

Soldier Pleads Guilty To 2 Murder Charges

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Ronald Adrian Gray pleaded guilty today to two counts of second-degree murder and 20 other felony charges in connection with a string of rapes and slayings in Cumberland County, authorities said.

Gray pleaded guilty in Cumberland County Superior Court to charges of murder in the deaths of Tammy Wilson, 18, and Linda Jean Coats, 24. He also pleaded guilty to charges of rape, robbery, assault, sexual assault and kidnapping.

Superior Court Judge Donald Stephens sentenced Gray to eight life sentences, five of which to run concurrently. He could have faced up to 14 life sentences plus 220 years on the charges, Stephens said.

Gray has been held in the Cumberland County jail since January on charges of rape, forcible sodomy, robbery, burglary and kidnapping. He had not previously been charged with murder in the deaths of Ms. Wilson or Ms. Coats.

Gray, an Army soldier and cook, was also charged by military authorities with two counts of murder in the deaths of Laura Lee Vickery Clay, 18, and Kimberly Ann Ruggles, 23, and two counts of attempted murder involving two female soldiers at Fort Bragg, military officials said.

"We have completed the military version of a grand jury, which is called the Article 32 investigation, on Gray and ... Gray will undergo a general court martial," said Lt. Col. Rick Kiernan. "A decision has been made to pursue capital punishment, the death penalty, for the charges."

No date has been set for the court martial.

Doctor Cleared

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — High Point gynecologist Dr. Robert V. Cross was not negligent when he performed a hysterectomy on a patient in 1983, not knowing she might be pregnant, a U.S. District Court jury ruled.

After hearing a week of testimony, the jury deliberated less than two hours before finding that Cross was not negligent in his treatment of Julia Ann "Judy" Jenkins Dietz, formerly of Jamestown and now of Atlanta.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Direction Change

Greenville's voters signaled a direction change when they elected Ed Carter as the city's mayor. Carter's victory is significant in two respects.

First, he is Greenville's first modern-era black mayor. That occurrence would have been impossible perhaps even five years ago, a fact that attests to the degree of change Greenville is undergoing.

Second, his election proves a viable black candidate can win in Greenville on an at-large ballot. Carter was elected not by black block voting, but by the support of all segments of the community. With this in mind, the statement that blacks cannot be elected at-large loses credibility.

Carter has the experience necessary to do an effective job as mayor. Through his school board and City Council tenures, he has gained background in community issues. His position as mayor will challenge him to forge that experience into expertise.

Carter will be in the position of providing leadership for the council and projecting an image for the city. The first of these challenges, applying expertise, means Carter must square off against problems.

The largest of these problems is traffic flow in the city. Traffic jams are a symptom of urbanization that can seriously impede further growth. Three areas need attention from the city. Arlington Boulevard must be completed as a major cross-town thoroughfare. A viable, expandable route from the medical district to downtown Greenville is a requirement. A southern bypass — an alternate to Greenville Boulevard — urgently is needed.

Some of these transportation projects will likely have to be addressed by the city. Funding road-building — a program Greenville has not participated in since the 1970s — may be the only way to accomplish these goals. Cooperation with other entities — the county and the state — also will be essential.

Greenville's mayor also must address the problem of keeping public services parallel with growth prompted by annexation. As the city limits expand, there should be no compromise in quality or degree of service offered. To effectively accomplish this goal, police, fire, public works and utility resources need to be expanded. It is doubtful Greenville will be able to accept another hold-the-line budget as it did for fiscal year 1987-88.

Carter's second challenge involves the city's perception — an element that will play an important role in promoting Greenville's travel and tourism trade and in attracting additional business and industry to the area.

Carter must project a professional and progressive image for the city. He must provide leadership consistent with Greenville's position in the state — one of a diverse, forward-thinking metropolitan area capable of significant growth.

As Greenville's mayor, Carter can make an impact on the city's future. But he must address its problems with acuity and skillfully present an image congruent with Greenville's potential.

Yuya Or Joseph?

For many years Bible scholars and historians have searched for more evidence of the close link between ancient Egypt and the tribe of Israel described in the Book of Genesis.

Author Ahmed Osman has finally produced a book about fruits of his years of study that seem to further confirm a mummy recovered in a 1905 excavation is that of the patriarch Joseph, the favorite son of Jacob, who was sold into slavery by his jealous brothers and rose to become a close advisor to pharaohs Tutmosis IV and his son Amenhotep III, between 1413 and 1367 B.C.

Osman offers these points to ponder:

The mummy of Yuya has strongly aquiline features, suggesting Semitic origin. His hands are placed palms down, under the chin — the only mummy known whose hands were not across his chest — a fact which may indicate he did not subscribe to the gods of Egypt.

Yuya's tomb was between those of two pharaohs and the title "a father of pharaoh" was found inscribed in the tomb and more than 20 times on his funerary papers. The title is said to have been one by which Joseph allegedly referred to himself.

There are skeptics in high places. The Cairo Museum director for one, and R.E. Clements, professor of Old Testament studies at King's College, London, who observes Osman made a good case, "but I should want to recognize that the Egyptian Yuya could have provided a basis for the biblical stories about Joseph."

Even so, the Osman theory feeds speculation and perhaps may result in further research and other evidence clarifying the identity of an ancient figure who played a role in the story of ancient Egypt.

Weinberger's Hawkishness Was Financial

Caspar W. Weinberger's guiding philosophy over seven years as secretary of defense was the financial well-being of the military establishment, and its corporate clients.

He has consistently sought to maximize the amount of money flowing to the military services and defense contractors, and to minimize external control on how the money is spent. This central thought has illuminated his approach to the full range of issues he has confronted — be it managing the defense budget, committing American troops to combat, or conducting arms control negotiations with the Soviets.

He presided over the greatest peacetime increase in military spending in American history. When the Reagan administration entered office in 1981, the defense budget (adjusted for inflation) stood at about $200 billion, which has been the normal level since World War II. Today, the budget exceeds $300 billion, surpassing the $250 billion annual budget during the wars in Korea and Vietnam.

What have we received for the $2 trillion defense effort of Mr. Weinberger? This vast increase in the defense budget has had remarkably little impact on the size of our military forces. The Army still consists of 16 divisions, and the Air Force of 36 wings of aircraft. Only the Navy has grown, from 485 ships to 585 ships.

The increase in spending without accompanying increases in military capability has brought growing complaints about mismanagement and waste. A special commission, appointed by President Reagan and headed by the noted military-industrial leader, David Packard, made a number of recommendations last year to improve management of the defense budget. Chief of these was the appointment of a "czar" to oversee the research and procurement process. Richard Godwin, the first procurement czar, recently resigned after a frustrating year in office. Although he had the nominal support of Weinberger, Godwin's goal of centralized control of the defense budget ran directly counter to Weinberger's established philosophy of letting each service and agency decide its own priorities.

Weinberger's enthusiasm for more money for the military has been accompanied by a reluctance to use the forces at his disposal in actual combat. The major beneficiaries of the Weinberger era were strategic forces, the most expensive and least usable element of our defense establishment. Military forces at the other end of the spectrum, such as those to deal with terrorists, have few needs for expensive hardware, and thus have received less support.

Weinberger has generally counseled restraint in responding to terrorism.

And his publicly enunciated criteria for when to commit American troops to a crisis in the Third World are considerably more cautious than the criteria propounded by Secretary of State George P. Shultz. The lesson that Weinberger learned from the Vietnam War is that involving U.S. troops in combat creates political controversy that endangers the military budget.

Weinberger's consistent opposition to arms control has also kept the money flowing. One of the more attractive aspects of the impending Euromissile agreement is its negligible impact on the defense budget. The weapons to be eliminated are few in number, and have already been paid for.

On the other hand, a treaty limiting strategic forces could lead to annual reductions of tens of billions of dollars in spending on long-range missiles and bombers. Although the "Star Wars" budget seems to have stalled at the $4 billion level for the foreseeable future, the failure to agree with the Soviets on a compromise on the Strategic Defense Initiative continues to protect the strategic budget from massive reductions. Weinberger's adamant support for the SDI program must in part be based on a recognition that as long as Star Wars is an obstacle to a treaty reducing strategic offensive forces, the budgets for these forces will be safe.

Thus, Star Wars will shield the budget for America's missiles long before it could defend the missiles themselves.

How will Frank Carlucci, Weinberger's expected successor, fare? He is unlikely to reverse Weinberger's course on management of the Department of Defense, and he also seems equally unlikely to change Weinberger's approach to arms control. Earlier this year Carlucci engaged presidential arms control adviser Paul Nitze in a spirited public debate over negotiating with the Soviets on limits on the Star Wars program. Carlucci made it clear at the time that he opposed such negotiations, and there is little reason to believe that he will have a change of heart in his new office in the Pentagon.

The Weinberger-Carlucci approach to the Department of Defense may have worked during an era of public support for rising defense spending. But that public support has dwindled, and the stock market has imposed a reality test for the future. In the future the secretary of defense will have to be more concerned with managing how the military budget is spent, and arms control agreements will be a central part of that process.

Politics Involved In Dollar Decisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. dollar may be the latest casualty of presidential politics as the Reagan administration, striving to avoid a recession on the final year of its watch, has signaled it will let the currency fall.

Comments by Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III on Thursday, later reinforced by presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, that the United States would let the dollar fall rather than raise interest rates helped fuel a rally in bond and stock markets.

A lowering of the prime lending rate by major U.S. banks, a drop in a key West Germany interest rate, and the prospect of an imminent cut in a bellwether rate by the Federal Reserve also contributed to Wall Street optimism.

But the remarks by U.S. officials — confirming what analysts have speculated for days — also led to a further weakening of the dollar on foreign exchange markets, a tumble that will further erode Americans' purchasing power but could help narrow the U.S. trade deficit.

Since last February, the administration has publicly voiced support for a Paris agreement among industrial nations to seek exchange-rate stability around "current levels."

But the stock market collapse and the looming threat of a recession have seriously undermined that so-called "Louvre" accord — which many economists have suggested was always more important to U.S. trading partners than it was to the United States.

Baker reverted to an old tactic of "talking down" the dollar when he suggested, in an interview in the Wall Street Journal, that the administration was willing to let the dollar fall internationally as the price of avoiding a recession at home.

The dollar probably would need a dose of higher U.S. interest rates to prop it up at this point, while a policy of temporarily ignoring it could help spur the economy through lower interest rates.

That, in turn, could help delay the arrival of the next recession after a record 60-month peacetime expansion, a recession which chief White House economist Beryl Sprinkel said may be inevitable but "we don't want it on our watch."

The dollar's plunge on Thursday was partially braked later in the day by a second Fitzwater statement that the administration still supported "exchange rate stability," in line with February's Louvre accord.

But Baker's and Fitzwater's initial comments were not lost on financial market traders.

"The U.S. economy seems to be getting the best of all possible worlds," said David Berson, senior economist for the Federal National Mortgage Association, known as Fannie Mae. "We are getting the dollar down, which will help our trade deficit, and we are getting interest rates down as well."

A lower dollar can help ease the U.S. trade deficit, but it plays havoc with the economies of U.S. trading partners by battering their export industries.

Before the stock market collapse, most economists agreed that too sharp a fall in the dollar against other major currencies could trigger renewed inflation in the United States and drive foreign investors away from dollar-based securities needed to finance the huge U.S. budget deficit.

But the cost of propping up the dollar — and thus retaining its attraction to foreign investors — would be higher interest rates in the United States, which would slow down economic growth.

With the frenzy in financial markets, the economic landscape has changed dramatically.

"You can't support both the economy and the dollar and if you have to choose between the two, then the economy is obviously the most important," said David Wyss, chief financial economist for Data Resources Inc.

Added economist Michael K. Evans: "Until the stock market crashed, people thought inflation would be a major problem and that a lower dollar would worsen it. Now, with a recession scenario on the plate, inflation no longer is a worry."

Strength For Today

Albert Schweitzer, a great physician, theologian and organist, some sixty years ago went to the jungles of Africa and started a hospital in order that he might help pay what he considered to be the great debt which the white race owed to the black race.

One day, in a mood of weariness and despair, he threw himself into a chair in his consulting room and exclaimed bitterly, "What a blockhead I was to come out and bury myself in this place." His black assistant was silent for a moment and then replied, "Yes, Doctor, here on earth you are a blockhead but not in heaven."

The assistant had touched on the vital distinction between the standards of the world and those of philanthropy. At home Schweitzer would have been a celebrated figure, but in Africa he had a life of fulfillment knowing he had sacrificed himself for others.

Public Forum

To the editor:
 This is in response to a letters to the editor in the Public Forum in the 10-22-87 paper.

My experience in dealing with the leadership in Greenville, the people who should be concerned with the appearance of the city, would indicate that they are not as concerned about that appearance as are some of the citizens. Such a lack of commitment to a really clean and well-mowed city does not facilitate plans and programs to provide for group efforts to enhance the appearance.

Therefore, those of us who are concerned can take individual actions to improve the appearance as a way of doing our part. Maybe we can serve as good role models for the leadership.

Politics Should Be Kept Out Of Welfare Reform

Welfare reform used to be a divisive, emotional issue. That a consensus has developed on this issue is the result of an appalling fact: one child in five in America today lives in poverty. Many states have programs emphasizing education, job training and employment as vehicles for people to escape long-term welfare dependency and poverty.

Four committees of the U.S. House of Representatives have finished working on a bill that builds on the best ideas developed in the states. The bill, which has been endorsed by the National Governors Association and the American Public Welfare Association, will soon be brought to a vote.

Unfortunately, Republican House members have tried to make the debate a partisan fight when it does not need to be one. They have prepared what they call a Republican alternative. But their bill falls woefully short of their rhetoric, and has little chance of bringing about meaningful change.

The committee bill is superior in providing the essentials of comprehensive reform, such as child care. Approximately 90 percent of the adults receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children are women raising children alone. Finding reliable, safe and affordable child care is one of the biggest obstacles facing a single mother who wants to hold a job and get off welfare. The committee bill guarantees that a family will get substantial help with child-care expenses for six months after the family has left the rolls.

While the Republican alternative places no time limit on a family's eligibility for child-care subsidy, the GOP bill does not guarantee that help will be there when it is needed. The bill does not set aside a specific pool of money for child care. Indeed, the Republican bill places an overall cap on federal financial support, which will force the states to choose between competing priorities under the new program. Thus, as more AFDC recipients manage to become independent of welfare, child-care assistance may be spread more and more thinly between those in job training and those in jobs — if it is available at all.

Health coverage can be as vital as child care for many families making the transition from public assistance to independence. While Medicaid is automatically available for AFDC recipients, health-insurance benefits often are not provided with jobs taken by former welfare recipients. The committee bill recognizes that the loss of Medicaid may place the children of these low-income working parents at risk, or force a parent to give up her job to get Medicaid in a crisis. The committee bill thus guarantees Medicaid coverage for two years after getting off AFDC. The bill encourages states to test innovative forms of health coverage instead of Medicaid, and allows the states to charge the former welfare family an income-related premium. The Republican bill offers no improvement in health-care coverage.

Unlike the Republican alternative, the committee bill is designed to promote a family's lasting independence by strengthening child-support enforcement and requiring education, training and employment support. The bill's goal is for welfare recipients to find private-sector employment, not make-work. It revamps AFDC from a cash assistance program, where little is expected of the welfare agency or recipient, to a program in which both agency and family must take steps to remove obstacles to self-sufficiency.

Although the bill gives the states considerable flexibility, the states must do the most for the families least likely to succeed at escaping long-term welfare dependency, such as families headed by teen parents and families on welfare for two or more years. Special attention must also be paid to the parents of young children — often the most eager to take advantage of job-training opportunities. In general, only the parents of children under 3 are exempt from being assigned to job-oriented activities.

Sponsors of the Republican bill claim they will reform welfare with provisions for better education, training and job-support programs. Their bill, however, does not commit the federal funds that will ensure meaningful programs to break cycles of poverty. The bill forces the states to use existing programs that are already oversubscribed and underfunded.

NEW FACILITY — A new fire and rescue building has been constructed in Bethel. The 6,000 square-foot facility has eight bays and can house 11 fire and rescue trucks. The building project was begun in November 1986 and was completed last month. An open house will be held Sunday from 2-5 p.m. The construction cost about $72,000, with $23,000 being provided by the town. The department raised the remainder of the money through drives and donations. The department has 29 firemen and 18 rescue members. (Reflector Photo by Thomas Forrest)

IN THE STATE

Renfrow

RALEIGH (AP) — State Auditor Ed Renfrow says he doesn't have time to develop name recognition and a strong enough organization to challenge Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Instead, Renfrow said Thursday he would seek a third term as auditor in 1988 — news that left Jordan "relieved."

"I've always considered Ed a strong potential candidate in the governor's race," Jordan said.

Renfrow's decision leaves Jordan and state Rep. Billy Watkins the only Democrats known to be considering bids for governor. Jordan has yet to declare his candidacy but has begun campaigning. Watkins said Wednesday he would announce his plans within 10 days.

Collision

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Three people suffered minor injuries when a Trailways bus, a tractor-trailer truck and a car collided in Onslow County, authorities said.

The Highway Patrol said the Thursday accident occurred when a car slowed to make a left turn onto N.C. 24 near Richlands and the bus and truck were unable to stop in time to avoid a collision.

The bus, with about 12 people aboard, completed its trip to Jacksonville after the accident.

Salaries

RALEIGH (AP) — A legislative study committee is looking at higher pay and possibly even a lighter workload to make the job of being a lawmaker more attractive.

No new salary figures were proposed at the Executive and Legislative Salary Study Commission's first meeting Thursday, but one of its co-chairmen, Sen. Kenneth C. Royall Jr., D-Durham, pointed to the $18,000 a year that Virginia lawmakers will make next year as an example of adequate pay.

"I would say that would be considered reasonable," Royall said. "We're the 10th largest state. Meeting for seven months a year is certainly not full time, but it is longer than many of the other states meet."

North Carolina lawmakers rank 28th in the nation in a comparison of salaries. They earn $10,140 a year in salary and receive $79 a day in living expenses, according to a study prepared by legislative researchers.

The highest paid lawmakers in the nation are in New York, where they get $43,000 a year plus $75 a day for expenses, the study showed.

Redistricting

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Department of Justice has rejected a Bladen County election redistricting plan which county officials had hoped would settle charges of racial discrimination in county elections.

The county sued the federal government Tuesday, asking a federal court to overrule the Justice Department and approve the new election districts.

Deborah Burston-Wade, a Justice Department spokesman, said the Bladen County district plan was rejected because the county did not fulfill its "burden of proof." She said the county was required to show that its new election plan would not discriminate against black voters, and "they did not do that."

The plan expanded the board from five members to seven. It cut the county's at-large voting system into three districts, with two candidates elected from each district, and kept one at-large member.

Fatal Fire

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — A Rocky Mount man was killed and another suffered serious injuries in a house fire early Thursday, authorities said.

John W. Battle, 66, died of apparent smoke inhalation, authorities said. "He attempted to get out but became disoriented," said fire chief J.E. Hawkins.

Lloyd D. Wilkins, 61, also of Rocky Mount, was in fair condition Thursday at Duke Medical Center in Durham. He suffered second-degree burns to his neck, hands and arms, in addition to smoke inhalation.

Firefighter Herman Bullock suffered minor scrapes when he fell through a hole in the house. He was treated at the scene.

State Builds Case For Young Drivers

RALEIGH (AP) — New figures on the driving records for 17-year-old school bus drivers should convince the U.S. Department of Labor to allow North Carolina to continue using the teen-agers, at least for the rest of the school year, a member of the state Board of Education says.

Since 1967, North Carolina has had a waiver exempting the state from federal child labor laws that prohibit 16- and 17-year-olds from driving school buses. But in August, Secretary of Labor William E. Brock told Gov. James G. Martin that the exemption had been granted the last time, and that the state must replace its 4,300 student drivers with adults by Jan. 1.

Controller James O. Barber Thursday presented figures showing the state's 16- and 17-year-old school bus drivers had 7.8 accidents per 100,000 miles in 1986-87, compared with 12.3 accidents per 100,000 miles for adults 18 and over.

Howard Haworth, chairman of the state board's business committee, said the information "in no way" supported the conclusion that 16- and 17-year-olds are a greater risk than adults. "We do not have the problem that U.S. Department of Labor based its decision on," he said.

Haworth said Gov. Jim Martin would include the new figures in his request for an extension of the waiver, which he will file by the end of the month.

"We expect it will be granted," Haworth said. If it is refused, Haworth said, the board could consider legal action.

Haworth said that to comply with the Labor Department order the state would have to increase all drivers' wages by about $2 an hour — to about $6.50 — in order to recruit enough adults. He said the raises would cost between $25 million and $27 million a year.

The General Assembly passed a law this year banning 16-year-old bus drivers, beginning Jan. 1, but state officials want to continue using 17-year-old drivers.

Textbook Director Position Rejected

RALEIGH (AP) — A proposal to hire a full-time chairman to ease the workload of the state Textbook Commission has been torpedoed by commission members who say it implies the selection process is flawed.

"Because editorial writers have attacked the process doesn't mean that we need a change," said Breeden Blackwell, a commission member and principal of a Fayetteville middle school. "I believe we ought to praise the system as it is. If we give any inkling that maybe we ought to do this or we ought to do that, we are sending a message that this system is not working."

Instead, the commission voted Thursday to issue a statement to the State Board of Education that gave no hint of problems, logistical or otherwise, and that praised the textbook adoption process as "one of the best possible systems."

The state board later adopted about 150 social studies, art, music and business textbooks recommended by the commission.

Commission members enlisted hundreds of teachers, administrators and professors to help them review 288 textbooks this year. Each book had at least 50 readers, Ellerbe said.

Commissioners rank each book against competitors using a rating sheet. Commission members and their readers work on their own time for no pay.

Martin Opposes State Lottery

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin says a lottery being established in Virginia likely will attract business from North Carolina, but that is no reason to start a lottery in this state.

"I think it would be a mistake for North Carolina," Martin said Thursday at a news conference. "I personally think it's a mistake for Virginia but that's their choice."

Martin repeatedly has spoken against a state lottery, and the General Assembly several times has voted down bills to start one or put the issue to a statewide referendum.

Shellfish Ban Extended

MILL CREEK, N.C. (AP) — A ban on shellfishing forced by a creeping blanket of toxic algae has been expanded to 113 miles of the North Carolina coast, and state officials say it will be at least a month before oysters and other shellfish will be safe to harvest.

"If it quit today, it would probably be a month before anything is open," David Taylor, who manages the central coast area for the N.C. Division of Marine Fisheries, said Thursday.

The shellfishing ban now extends across four coastal counties — Carteret, Onslow, Pender and New Hanover. Thursday's extension moved the banned zone eight miles to the north, up to Smyrna, and 40 miles South to Snows Cut at Carolina Beach.

State officials were hoping that cool temperatures and brisk winds forecast for today would break apart the yellow algae blooms and blow them out to sea. The toxic algae slicks, the first ever reported in North Carolina, usually appear in tropical waters.

"We're hoping that a wind change, one that would blow off shore, will help us," said George Gilbert, assistant supervisor of the state's shellfish sanitation unit.

The ban has idled thousands of fishermen just weeks after the oyster season opened and eliminated the star attraction at the Mill Creek Oyster Festival.

The festival in the past featured roasted oysters — all you could eat for one set price.

Iranian Gunboat Attack Leaves Tanker Ablaze

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Rocket-propelled grenades fired from an Iranian speedboat slammed into a U.S.-operated tanker in the Persian Gulf today, setting the ship's engine room ablaze, said gulf shipping sources and Lloyd's of London.

There were no reported casualties. The attack apparently was in retaliation for an Iraqi attack Wednesday on an Iranian supertanker, said the shipping sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

They said five grenades struck the 103,584-ton Grand Wisdom, a Panamanian-flagged tanker managed by Teekay Shipping Co. of Long Beach, Calif., as it was sailing in the southern gulf about 30 miles off Dubai.

More than one shipping source said the Grand Wisdom, loaded with crude oil from Kuwait, was not only U.S.-managed by also American-owned. Telephone calls to Teekay offices in Long Beach overnight and early today went unanswered.

Two grenades hit the tanker's engine room, two struck the steering gear and one hit the bridge. Nevertheless, the tanker was able to sail under its own power to Dubai for inspection after the crew extinguished the blaze, Lloyd's and the sources said.

Iran accuses Kuwait of helping the Iraqi war effort and has been menacing Kuwait and its shipping in retaliation for Iraqi strikes on its own oil export facilities in the 7-year-old war.

Iran said an Iraqi warplane was shot down Thursday night and it crashed in Saudi Arabian territorial waters. Iraq said all its planes returned to base Thursday and claimed jets attacked a ship off Iran's gulf coast Thursday night.

About 100 miles northeast of the site of the attack on the Grand Wisdom, Iran's Rostam offshore oil platform was sighted still ablaze 17 days after U.S. warships bombarded the platform.

Associated Press reporter Thierry Boinet, sailing past Rostam Thursday night aboard the French destroyer Duplex, witnessed flames about 50 yards high.

An Iranian pumper boat was spraying the platform, Boinet reported.

GOP Says Iran-Contra Report Biased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional Iran-Contra committees will recommend tighter controls on the CIA and changes at the White House in a report due out in two weeks, according to panel members.

The recommendations for legislative action include more rigorous requirements for CIA notification to Congress on covert action plans and a restructured National Security Council staff to keep it under civilian control, lawmakers familiar with the 600-page report said Thursday.

Members of the House and Senate committees voted Thursday to approve the final report, with all but three Republicans voting against it and saying they would come out with their own dissenting version. Both versions are to be unveiled Nov. 17.

Leaders of the two panels called the majority-written document fair and balanced, tough in laying blame for the Iran-Contra affair at the feet of President Reagan and as thorough as could be achieved within time limits imposed on the committees.

But GOP members were quick to brand the report biased, saying it was too harsh on Reagan and used critical rhetoric unsupported by evidence brought out during the summer's public hearings on the secret sale of U.S. weapons to Iran and the diversion of proceeds to the Nicaraguan Contras.

Rep. Jim Courter, R-N.J., quoted the report as saying Reagan's "unabashed zeal for the Contras" set a climate at the White House that led staff members to circumvent normal controls in aiding the rebels.

"It implies that the president was less than candid and less than honest to Congress and the American people," Courter said. He attributed that to committee members who, "with a certain amount of unhidden glee, wanted to bring down the administration, darken the Reagan presidency."

But a Republican who sided with the majority, Sen. Warren Rudman of New Hampshire, said the report was "tough but fair" and called Courter's criticism "prattle."

"Our mission was to get the facts," Rudman said. "I believe we succeeded."

Ortega Says Rebel Talks 'Possible'

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — In a reversal seen as a boost to the Central American peace process, President Daniel Ortega offered to hold indirect talks with Contra rebels and promised to release nearly 1,000 political prisoners.

But Ortega, in a speech Thursday night marking the first deadline of a regional peace plan, also cautioned that further moves depend on "an end to aggression against Nicaragua" by the United States.

The offer of indirect cease-fire talks was greeted with cautious optimism by one leader of the U.S.-backed rebels. He said talks would depend on finding a mediator acceptable to the rebels and the leftist Sandinista government.

The Sandinistas had previously refused any talks — direct or indirect — with the Contras, demanding instead to talk with the rebels' U.S. backers.

Ortega, who made the offer in a speech before thousands of cheering Nicaraguans, did not explain how such indirect talks would work.

He said the offer was made "to strip all pretext from our enemies and unmask those who say they are for peace and don't really want it."

"This should not be confused with a political dialogue with the leadership of the Contras to negotiate power," he added.

The Nicaraguan leader's speech to the festive crowd in the banner-draped Revolutionary Plaza coincided with the deadline for Central American leaders to show progress in fulfilling their plan aimed at ending the civil wars in Nicaragua, El Salvador and Guatemala.

The day was marred by a clash in northern Guatemala that left 13 soldiers and three leftist rebels dead.

In El Salvador, President Jose Napoleon Duarte declared a unilateral cease-fire in that nation's civil war with leftist guerrillas that has killed an estimated 65,000 people.

In Costa Rica, Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, a director of the rebels' Nicaraguan Resistance umbrella group, called Ortega's announcement "a triumph for the resistance" and said the Contras want to know who will mediate.

Chamorro noted the Contras had accepted a proposal by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias that Nicaragua's ranking Roman Catholic clergyman, Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, serve as a negotiator in cease-fire talks.

Arias, author of the regional peace plan, won the 1987 Nobel Peace Prize.

It would be "very difficult for us to accept anyone but Cardinal Obando y Bravo," Chamorro said. However, he added: "We'll have to see the names proposed. It will depend on the Sandinista proposal."

Sources close to the regional peace negotiations said Obando y Bravo, long a critic of the Sandinistas, was unacceptable to the Nicaraguan leadership.

A close adviser to Arias, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Arias had proposed former Colombian President Belisario Betancur as a mediator.

The source said Arias has talked at least once by telephone with the highly respected former Colombian leader and that Betancur has expressed willingness to act as intermediary between the Contras and the Sandinistas.

It was not immediately known if Betancur will be accepted by either side. Ortega called on the Contras to take advantage of an amnesty offer before Saturday's expiration of a one-month, limited unilateral cease-fire.

"After Nov. 7 we are going tooth-and-nail after those Contras, if they don't seek amnesty," Ortega told the crowd, estimated by the state-run radio at up to 50,000 people.

Greatest Trust Found In Poor

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Bishop Robert Isaksen, installed recently as head of the New England Synod of the newly merged Evangelical Lutheran Church in New England, says he finds the greatest trust in God among the poor. He says of his 20 years' ministry in New York City's South Bronx that "people who have nothing, who have been betrayed by the system, still trust that God loves them." It's harder to present the Christian message to the rich, he says, adding, "When our bellies are full, our homes are warm, when we are employed, who needs God? ... We've got it all, except ... any sense of purpose in our lives."

Bishops Say Faith, Action Go Together

ST. CHARLES, Ill. (AP) — Bishops of the Episcopal Church say that either expressing faith without acting on it, or acting on faith without expressing it lacks the "fullness of our gospel." "Words and action are two sides of the same coin," the bishops said in a pastoral letter. "So are justice and proclamation, witness and service." "There is no evangelism that does not work for justice and no work for justice that is not evangelism. The heart of the gospel cannot be divided." The bishops, at their meeting, also reaffirmed that they would "ordain women as bishops as soon as they are duly elected and approved," but took steps to keep peace with a minority of bishops who oppose it. The report, adopted by a vote of 113-17, urged Episcopalians to "work assiduously to avoid any division or dissension which such action might cause."

Study Says Faith Increases After Crisis Period Is Over

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A common assumption is that a time of crisis triggers growth in religious faith, but a study finds an even greater advance in faith comes after the crisis has subsided.

In that aftermath of "general dissonance" in a person's life, growth in faith is more likely than at the height of anxiety, says researcher Constance Leeann. Based on the study, she says, faith is aroused more during periods of counseling and support people get following a crisis and in other periods of general unrest than at times of acute distress itself. Faith develops "when people begin to raise questions about the meaning of life and about their priorities," she says.

These are among conclusions brought out in a study project, "Faith Development in the Adult Life Cycle," directed by Kenneth Stokes of Minneapolis and sponsored by the Religious Education Association. Ms. Leeann, a research evaluator of the Lutheran Church in America, supervised 41 in-depth interviews with individuals about their lives and faith as part of the study. In addition, a representative telephone survey was made by the Gallup organization of about 1,000 people. Somewhat disconcertingly, it was found that involvement in a church or synagogue does not appear in itself to assure growth in faith, but religious organizations help to the extent they encourage a person's "spiritual quest."

Many respondents claimed their faith is nurtured more by experiences outside the church or synagogue, Ms. Leeann said, adding:

"Personal spiritual disciplines as well as exhilarating and transcendent events are common resources in people's descriptions of spiritual growth," she says.

She says the study shows churches and synagogues are not offering members sufficient opportunities for structured spiritual reflection and guidance.

The study found that faith develops particularly when people have some memorable experience with a different culture or when they are "encouraged to share stories of their faith with others," she says.

In both of those cases, just as in times of being unsettled or of readjustment after a crisis, faith seems most apt to bloom when people are pulled out of their usual preoccupations — by another person or culture.

"Opportunities to stretch one's mind," such as in advanced education or other learning experiences, also were found to enlarge faith.

Getting problems resolved through psychological counseling also boosted development of faith, and a clear relationship was found between maturity of faith and psychological well-being.

Faith also is enhanced by development of social conscience such as involvement in political or other community projects to improve conditions in society, the study found.

The study turned up several differences between men and women in faith development, finding that women have a keener understanding of symbolism in life than men and are more open-minded to other people's views.

However women lag "slightly behind" men in moral judgment, she said, although this was detected as the weakest area for both sexes.

For women, high spiritual moments tended to be associated with "acceptance by others and personal insights," while men focus "on events that assure them of God's presence," the study says.

Ms. Leeann says "faith development" may be somewhat of a misnomer for the study. "Since we consider faith to be a gift from God, and what we are really studying is the way people respond to that gift."

"I prefer to think of it as 'faithfulness development.'"

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the Book of Genesis intending to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times

ABRAM IN EGYPT

TERRIFIED BY THE THOUGHT THAT ABRAM'S GOD HAS STRUCK HIM WITH A PLAGUE BECAUSE HE TOOK SARAI AWAY FROM ABRAM AND BROUGHT HER TO HIS COURT, PHARAOH HAS SENT FOR ABRAM, NOW....

I MIGHT HAVE MADE HER MY WIFE AND BEEN DESTROYED BY YOUR GOD!

...PHARAOH SPEAKS WITH GREAT BITTERNESS....

BEHOLD THY WIFE! TAKE HER AND LEAVE MY LAND!

WITH GREAT RELIEF, ABRAM AND SARAI LEAVE PHARAOH'S PALACE....

...AND STRAIGHTWAY LEAVE EGYPT! AND ALL THE PRECIOUS GIFTS THAT PHARAOH GAVE TO ABRAM GO WITH HIM - FOR THE RULER OF EGYPT REFUSES TO TAKE THEM BACK! THIS THEN, IS THE FIRST SIGN TO ABRAM THAT GOD WILL PROTECT AND LOOK AFTER HIM WHERE EVER HE MAY WANDER - THAT HE WILL ALWAYS BE SAFE BECAUSE OF HIS TRUST IN THE LORD - ALL OF WHICH IS RECORDED IN GENESIS: CHAP. 12

Vernessa Mitchell
 Sunday, November 8, 6:30 p.m.

In the latter 1970's Barry Gordy introduced a new group on Motown records which consisted of 4 teenage girls with an abundance of talent and they were just bursting with energy. In fact, they were called High Energy! Substituting an I for an E they quickly became a national sensation and appeared on most of the nation's leading talk shows such as Merv Griffin, Dinah Shore, Soul Train, American Band Stand, Mike Douglas, etc., as well as work with such entertainers as Stevie Wonder, Diana Ross and Marvin Gaye.

Vernessa has toured across the country and ministered in song with such gospel artists as the Nicholas Family and has appeared in concert with the Lanny Wolf Trio, the Winans, Tramaine Hawkins, the Richard Smallwood Singers, the Clark Sisters, Shirley Caesar and Al Green. Vernessa has performed with the New York Albany Symphony, with the New York Philharmonic at the Lincoln Center and at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. She has been a guest on the PTL Show with Jim and Tammy Bakker as well as the Bobby Jones Gospel Show.

Second Annual Bid For Bachelors Raised March of Dimes Money

By SUSAN TACKER
Reflector Staff Writer

Twenty bachelors were introduced to an enthusiastic crowd of about 300 Thursday night at the second annual March of Dimes' Bid for Bachelors fund-raiser.

Held at the Hilton Inn, the fund-raiser brought in an estimated $11,475 for the Coastal Plains chapter of the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, which serves Pitt and surrounding counties.

The fund-raiser auctions bachelors and date packages arranged by each. Women may bid for these packages with their own money or with donations they have collected, with all funds benefiting the March of Dimes.

"It was really fun, the challenge of going out and finding people who would sponsor us," said Bachelor 2, Todd Gibson, a reporter-photographer for WNCT-TV. He arranged an Atlantic Beach weekend double-date with his roommate, Rex Rowland, another participating bachelor and WNCT-TV reporter.

"To find time to go out and actually secure sponsors was kind of difficult, but everybody was pretty cooperative," he said.

This was the second year on the auction runway for Leo Corbin, who decided to participate again because he "had a good time the first time. It's a fun way to raise money." Corbin, quality engineer for Procter & Gamble, is also active in United Way fund-raising.

Auctioneer L. Fate Worthington began the bidding on each bachelor's date package at $50. The highest bid for a single package was $1,400 for attorney Daniel Martin III and his two-option date package, which offered a choice of a chauffeured dinner date in Raleigh or a day at Emerald Isle or Bear Island.

The second highest bid, $1,100, was for the date package arranged by Lloyd Tillman, a research scientist at Burroughs Wellcome. He also offered a choice of date packages: a day of Outer Banks sailing or a weekend in Las Vegas.

Bachelor 12, banker Phillip Tanzilo, wore white baggies over his tuxedo trousers and passed out bouquets to raise the bidding on his date package, a long weekend at the Bahamas Princess Resort & Casino. He reclined on a beach lounge chair while his date package was auctioned off for $525.

Other date packages included dinner and tickets to a Tina Turner concert, an Atlantic City gambling weekend, New Year's Eve in Florida and a trip to the Orange Bowl, and an extended weekend in Orlando.

CAMPAINING — Michael Ertis, bachelor number five, does some campaigning before the auction started. Ertis' date was a trip to Atlantic City so he was handing out playing cards and dice. The bachelors were mingling before the event to meet and greet would-be dates. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis)

Greenville Couple Has 67th Anniversary Today

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
 Reflector Lifestyle Editor
 Charles Travis Butts Sr. and Lottie Williams Butts ran away from home 67 years ago. Their reason — to elope because of parental disapproval due to their ages.

The couple are celebrating their wedding anniversary today. He is 86 years old and she is 85.

They were married in Mildred in Edgecombe County by a justice of the peace. They were accompanied to Edgecombe County by Butts' best man.

"Our parents tried to break us up before we were married. Lottie stayed away from her parents' home several months after we were married. Her parents did approve of us after a few years and we were good friends," said Butts.

Until their marriage Butts had worked for John Williams, Mrs. Butts' father. Later, he was a tenant farmer. "Things were a little tougher then. You had to work. Things weren't like they are now," he said.

Butts farmed for several years and then worked as a butcher until World War II. He then worked as a carpenter until he retired at age 72. He calls himself a "jack of all trades" and has worked throughout eastern North Carolina. He helped build the first building at Cherry Point.

"We have stuck together, loved each other and cooperated. I let Lottie rule the house and she looked after the children. She's a good woman and is a real wife. She's spoiled me," he said.

Mrs. Butts agreed with her husband's comments with sparkling eyes and a ready smile. Her speech has been impaired since 1980 when she had a massive stroke.

The couple had nine children. Their eight surviving children are Charles Butts Jr. of Simpson, Ruby McGowan of Calico, LaRue Woodard and Thomas Butts, both of Greenville, J.B. Butts of Tuscon, Ariz., Donald Butts of Royal Beach Palm, Fla., David Butts of Rocky Mount, and Alice Padgett of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. They also have 25 grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren.

The couple will have a family dinner tonight. "Our big family gathering is on Christmas Eve. There will be about 60 of us packed in our parents' house. We have a meal and a gift exchange. Everybody gets a gift and an icebox fruitcake," said Mrs. Woodard, who lives with her parents.

"The university coming in and the overall growth of Greenville are two of the major changes I have seen over the years," said Butts.

"Friends and relatives visiting, watching television and attending church are some of the things Dad enjoys. Baseball is Dad's television favorite. Until a few years ago, he enjoyed gardening. Mother is almost housebound. She does enjoy a good comedy on TV. Neither likes soap operas," said Mrs. Woodard.

MR. AND MRS. BUTTS

"The biggest secret of making a happy marriage and home is loving the Lord. Taking care of Lottie keeps me going," said Butts.

Modern Myths Run Forever

DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a letter from a lady regarding the horrible consequences suffered by a young woman when she overused the facilities at a tanning salon. The story she told was obviously farfetched. Why did you print the lady's name? You must have known it would embarrass her.

I have read your column for many years, and while I don't always agree with you, I have always looked forward to seeing what you had to say. No longer. I think printing the lady's name, when you knew it would make her look foolish, was just plain mean! Now every time I read your column, I feel resentment. Please notice, I am not signing my name. You are not to be trusted with it. — UNSIGNED IN OREGON

DEAR UNSIGNED: I'm glad you wrote because other readers may have felt as you did, and I welcome the opportunity to publicly state that before I published the woman's letter, I obtained permission to use her name. Furthermore, if I had thought she might be embarrassed by the publicity, I would not have identified her.

Incidentally, after that item appeared, I heard from folklorist Jan Harold Brunvand, author, columnist and professor in the Department of English at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City.

Dear Abby
 Abigail Van Buren

He wrote (in part): "I was pleased to see that you debunked the tanning story. I have heard many different versions of that legend — it's been around for a long time.

"I have published three books on 'urban legends' in which I used a few letters from your column. Generally, you are very good at spotting phony letters, but at times you have taken them at face value. My favorite of the legends you have published is the one about the Civil War 'virgin birth.' It ran in November 1982."

The item to which Dr. Brunvand refers, I titled: "Unknown Soldier Fires Shot Heard Nine Months Later." And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: You said it is possible for a woman to become pregnant and still remain a virgin. It sounds impossible, but I know it's true, which reminds me of a similar story I read in a reputable magazine some years ago.

It seems that during the Civil War (May 12, 1863, to be exact), a young Virginia farm girl was standing on her front porch when a stray bullet first passed through the scrotum of a young Union cavalryman, then lodged in the reproductive tract of the young woman, who thus became pregnant by a man she had not been within 100 feet of! And nine months later she gave birth to a healthy baby.

You don't believe it? If it hadn't been published in the very reliable American Heritage magazine (December 1971, page 99, in a story titled, "The Case of the Miraculous Bullet"), I wouldn't have believed it either. — LELAND E. SMITH, NASHVILLE, TENN.

DEAR MR. SMITH: Several years ago I ran that item in this space, which brought me a letter from a 90-year-old South Dakota Indian. He said he had heard a different version of the same story. Only the girl wasn't a Virginia farm girl, she was an Indian maiden who claimed she had been impregnated by a bow and arrow.

Stock And Market Reports

HOGS: Market steady to 25 cents higher at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville, 40.50; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourne, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 40.50; Wilson 40.75. Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 36.00; Wallace 37.00; Spivey's Corner 37.00; Rowland 36.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 39.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 61 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a preliminary weighted average of 42.30 cents. The market is higher and the live supply is adequate for a moderate to good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,961,000, compared to 2,060,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market trending higher at a price of about 17 cents. Supply light for a good demand. Prices paid per pound of negotiation generally for slaughter the following week, heavy types, 7 pounds and up, too few to quote.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn 3 cents higher at mostly 1.80-2.00 in East and mostly 2.00-2.15 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 9 cents higher at mostly 5.19-5.41 in East and mostly 5.11-5.19 in the Piedmont; wheat 2.46-2.63; new crop soybeans 4.08-5.51; new crop wheat 2.59-2.73. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady and ranged from 101 to 106 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rose slightly today as traders watched and waited for international currency and trade developments.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial rose 8.29 to 1,993.70 by noon-time on Wall Street.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 5 to 3 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 926 up, 566 down and 405 unchanged.

Analysts said investors seemed to have mixed feelings about the recent slide of the dollar in foreign exchange, and lower interest rates in Europe and this country.

The dollar's weakness is seen as a plus for many U.S. companies that compete in world markets, especially since the Reagan administration and the Federal Reserve have signaled that they have no immediate plans to tighten credit.

Market Advances

$46.6 billion, according to the Wilshire Associates 5,000 Equity Index.

Other broad market barometers also rose, and gaining stocks outnumbered losers by about 3-to-1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Expectations of a further relaxation in the Federal Reserve's credit policy also helped the bond market Thursday because of dampened prospects for inflation, which erodes the value of fixed-income investments.

The Treasury's key 30-year issue rose nearly $20 per $1,000 in face amount and its yield fell to 8.76 percent from 8.93 percent late Wednesday. But in early trading today, bond prices weakened because of unemployment figures from Washington that suggested strong economic growth, which can increase inflation. Some stock traders said the dollar's erosion eventually could haunt the stock market.

"At some point foreigners could accelerate their flight from U.S. equities and bonds and bring the money back home if they're losing money daily," said Barthel. "If that happens, we'll find ourselves between a rock and a hard place."

Others cautioned it was dangerous and premature to think the market has conquered its malaise. They said much of the runup was due to selective purchasing by large investors and professional money managers.

"I think the investing public is fearful of what's on the horizon and nobody's going to do much of anything," said John J. Muldowney, a trading manager at Scott & Stringfellow Inc., a brokerage in Richmond, Va. "We can do all these artificial adjustments in interest rates, but you've got to get the sympathy of the public back."

It's as inevitable as taxes, but don't ask your CPA about it.

The two inevitabilities. When it comes to questions about taxes most people don't hesitate to make plans and arrangements with their accountant. But when it comes to the other inevitability, it's amazing how few people make any arrangements at all.

And that's a mystery, considering the benefits to family and friends that funeral prearrangement offers. It makes things simple. It offers peace of mind. Reassurance to loved ones. And it takes very little time.

So if you're tax planning, ask your CPA or tax lawyer. The other inevitability? Ask us.

Pirates Close Out Home Slate With Owls; Both Seeking Winning Season

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina and Temple will both be trying to keep their hopes for a winning football season alive Saturday in Ficklen Stadium.

Both teams have their backs to the wall as far as their hopes are concerned, each with five losses. The loser will be insured of a losing slate.

East Carolina goes into the game with a 4-5 record while Temple is currently 3-5. The Pirates have one more road game to play, against Southern Mississippi on Nov. 14. Temple plays both of its remaining games at home, against Houston on Nov. 14, and against Rutgers on Nov. 21. It must win all three games for a winning mark.

Kickoff for Saturday's game is set for 1:30 p.m. "This is perhaps the most important game we've played in my three years here," ECU Coach Art Baker said. "This is the point we've been trying to get to. To have a chance to win our last two and have a winning season."

"But they're about as hungry as we are. And both of us have the opportunity to have a winning season. They've played a tough schedule too," Baker said.

Temple opened the year with a 13-12 victory over Toledo, then lost to Boston College, 28-7. The Owls stunned Pittsburgh, 24-21, on the Panthers' home field, then defeated the newest Division I-A member, Akron, 23-3, before falling to Penn State, 27-13.

Tulsa topped the Owls, 24-17, and Florida, 34-3. They then fell to Army, 17-7, last week, their fourth straight loss.

One reason for the Owls' problem, however, was the absence of running back Todd McNair, a 6-2, 200-pound junior and the heir apparent to all-American Paul Palmer. McNair missed several games with an ankle injury, but is listed as the starting tailback for Saturday.

McNair was ranked ninth in the nation in rushing with 724 yards on 173 carries prior to his injury.

The Owls also suffered the loss of their starting quarterback James Thompson two weeks ago when he opted to leave the team and concentrate on his academic work. He had passed for 985 yards in six games. He is being replaced by freshman Matt Baker and sophomore Tony Lerro.

Freshman tailback Tom Quinn, who subbed for McNair, was the ECAC rookie of the week for his play against Army, scoring the Owls' only touchdown.

Temple, after losing the first two games to ECU in the series, has come back to win the next three. Last year's game in Philadelphia marked the first time that either team has won on their own home field. ECU won both of its games in Philadelphia, while Temple won both games at Ficklen.

Last year, Palmer rushed for 349 yards on 43 carries, just missing setting a new NCAA single game record as the Owls took a 45-28 victory.

One of the biggest positives from that game was the emergence of Travis Hunter as the quarterback for the Pirates. Hunter passed for 243 yards and three touchdowns, coming off the bench in the second period. He and fellow quarterback Charlie Libretto passed for 290 yards in that game, a single game school record.

Hunter goes into the game with 840 yards passing, having hit on 62 of 124 passes. He's had one touchdown pass and four interceptions. Hunter also stands third among ECU rushers with 314 yards.

Fullback Anthony Simpson is the leading rusher with 575 yards while Reggie McKinney has 472. Tim James has rushed for 204, Willie Lewis for 134, George Franklin for 112 and Jarrod Moody for 109.

Ron Jones, with seven receptions against Miami last week, has become the leading receiver with 18 for 226. Walter Wilson has 13 for 203.

Oiler Defense Plays Rough In Putting Team On Top

By The Associated Press

The San Francisco 49ers know what to expect from the Houston Oilers. A lot of real mayhem.

"They spear, they eye-gouge, they body-slam. Just like professional wrestling," 49ers tight end Russ Francis said, looking ahead to Sunday's game between NFL division leaders.

Houston, at 5-2, has already matched last season's victory total. The Oilers rely on an active defense that roughs up opponents and stirs up trouble.

"They are a very aggressive, borderline cheap shot defense," San Francisco wide receiver Mike Wilson said.

The Oilers lead the AFC Central by one game over Cleveland, and their "Gritz Blitz" is a reflection of Coach Jerry Glanville, who began the tactic while an assistant at Atlanta.

"Man, I was always getting into a fight with one of the DBs (defensive backs)," San Francisco wide receiver Dwight Clark said, recalling Glanville's teams with the Falcons. "The Houston defense looks similar. If they play that way against us, it will be a really physical game with a lot of fights."

In other games Sunday, Atlanta is at Cleveland, Chicago plays Green Bay, Dallas visits Detroit, Denver plays Buffalo, the Los Angeles Raiders face Minnesota, Pittsburgh plays Kansas City, San Diego takes on Indianapolis, Tampa Bay is at St.

Louis, Washington faces Philadelphia, New Orleans plays the Los Angeles Rams and Miami visits Cincinnati.

New England plays at the New York Giants on Sunday night and Seattle visits the New York Jets on Monday night.

Glanville said this season's Oilers are "really not much different from a year ago" when Houston was 5-11.

"The biggest difference between the first and 28th teams in this league is mental," Glanville said.

The 49ers again look strong at 6-1, two games ahead of New Orleans in the NFC West. San Francisco has scored 199 points, the most in its conference.

"We don't want to be in a scoring contest with this team because we won't come out on top," 49ers Coach Bill Walsh. "But I'm afraid we'll have to score four touchdowns."

The Oilers have scored 180 points and allowed 153. The 49ers have given up 154.

"I would like to see our running game sustain itself, but if they blitz us we'll have to throw," Walsh said. "So you may see very little running in this game."

There may be more running in Indianapolis when the Colts and Chargers play.

Eric Dickerson, in his second week with Indianapolis, should be more of a factor in the Colts' offense. Last Sunday, the three-time NFL rushing champion gained 38 yards on 10 carries against the Jets.

"I've picked it (the offense) up pretty well," Dickerson said. "We have some of the same basic plays. We have some things that even have the same terminology. When you're a running back, things come easier."

Dickerson will start in place of Albert Bentley, who gained 145 yards in a 19-14 victory over the Jets.

"It's nothing personal, because I think he's a fine running back. But I don't like to stand on the sidelines. If he was my brother or best friend ... I'd be going after it," Dickerson said.

The Colts are 4-3 — the first time they've been over .500 since moving from Baltimore in 1984 — and tied with New England for first place in the AFC East.

San Diego is 6-1 and tied with San Francisco, Chicago and Washington for the best record in the NFL.

The Chargers have won six straight since losing their opener to Kansas City. Once a pass-dominated offense operated by quarterback Dan Fouts, San Diego now has a more balanced attack.

"We've been three different teams, just like everyone in the NFL," Coach Al Saunders said.

"The first team that we had came out of training camp went 1-1 and we felt we were making some progress and some improvement over last year. Then the strike hit, and we had a spirited group of guys who ended up winning three games, all on the road, all in the last quarter."

"After the strike, we've had a mixture of replacement players and our regulars that has put two good games back-to-back and they've been 2-0."

The NFC Central-leading Bears have rallied to win their past two games behind quarterback Jim McMahon.

The last time Chicago played Green Bay, Packers nose tackle Charles Martin slammed McMahon to the ground. McMahon was injured and lost for the season and Martin was suspended. Since then, Martin was waived and picked up by the body-slammng Oilers.

"Charlie Martin's not with this team any longer. If you want to dwell on that, you go ahead. But not me," Packers Coach Forrest Gregg said. "We miss Charlie Martin as a football player. The other part we won't."

Green Bay is 3-3-1 going into the 134th meeting with the Bears.

"Our job is to go up there and play football as good as we can — error-free football and smart football, not to get into any altercations or anything like that," Chicago Coach Mike Ditka said.

"I was surprised when somebody brought that up the other day," he said. "I don't remember the incident (Martin's slam of McMahon) very well. You've got to be careful when you carry a grudge because it's liable to backfire on you."

The Boston Celtics figure it is their turn to win the NBA championship, even with Kevin McHale out of the lineup for a month or two.

The Celtics, who have traded championships with the Los Angeles Lakers the last four seasons, can begin to prove they can win the team's 17th NBA title when they play host to Milwaukee tonight in one of 11 season-opening games.

"The edge we have this year is that we did lose," guard Dennis Johnson said, referring to last June's defeat against the Lakers. "That just makes you want it back even more."

"We had had a good preseason; now it's time to get going," Coach K.C. Jones said. "We've been working on defense and the running game and we got kind of rusty in the half-court game, but we'll see."

With McHale out after foot surgery, the Celtics went 7-1 in exhibition play. Top draft pick Reggie Lewis and rookie forwards Brad Lohaus and Mark Acres played better than expected.

"They've shown what they can do in preseason, so now we'll see what they can do when the bell rings," Jones said.

In other games Friday night, it will be Cleveland at New Jersey, Indiana at Philadelphia, Washington at Atlanta, New York at Detroit, Golden State at Sacramento, Utah at Dallas, San Antonio at Houston, the Los Angeles Clippers at Denver, Seattle at the Lakers and Phoenix at Portland. The only team not seeing action Friday is the Chicago Bulls.

McHale averaged 26.1 points last year and led the league in field-goal percentage. His absence could place more of a scoring burden on Larry Bird, who slimmed down his body and his hairstyle after averaging 28.1 points last season.

"I'm pleased with the way I played and I'm very pleased with the way the team played," Bird said of Boston's exhibition performance.

The Celtics aren't the only team with designs on challenging the Lakers.

"Our major goal in the '87-88 season is to get closer to the NBA title," Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello said. "We'll continue to work hard in practice and play hard each night and I'm a believer that good work habits lead to victories."

The Hawks, who won 57 games and the Central Division last season, are led by Dominique Wilkins, who averaged 29 points.

"Each of the teams seems to have improved itself over the summer and competition ought to be tougher than it usually is," Fratello said. "The Atlanta Hawks will just keep on hustling and scrapping and, hopefully, we'll be able to take the next step."

Dallas, which last year won the Midwest Division for the first time, was disappointed with a loss to Seattle in the first round of the playoffs.

"I just want us to play better when the playoffs roll around," Coach John MacLeod said. "That's our goal."

MacLeod replaces Dick Motta, whose seven years as Dallas coach was surpassed only by Red Auerbach's 16 seasons with Boston for the longest continuous service with one club in NBA history.

"Dick built a great winning tradition and I hope to carry on that tradition and hopefully get the Mavericks up to the next level," MacLeod said.

The Mavericks have one of the best starting lineups in the league in forwards Mark Aguirre and Sam Perkins, center James Donaldson and guards Rolando Blackman and Derek Harper.

The defending champion Lakers won their first seven exhibition games before losing the Hall of Fame game to Chicago on Tuesday night. Magic Johnson, last season's most valuable player, and 40-year-old Kareem Abdul-Jabbar missed that game with nagging injuries, but were expected to play tonight.

"Most of our players had career years," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "Now they are challenged to surpass those performances — take it to a higher level."

Riley tends to use more players during the regular season before settling on seven or eight during the playoffs. Last season, backup center-forward Mychal Thompson joined Michael Cooper as the key bench players behind Johnson, Abdul-Jabbar, James Worthy, Byron Scott and A.C. Green.

"You could perfectly rotate those seven players because of their versatility," Riley said.

Robinson To Ink Fat NBA Pact

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs have coaxed top draft pick David Robinson out of a six-month silence on his NBA plans with a contract reportedly worth $26 million.

Robinson, a 7-foot-1 center who set several basketball records at the Naval Academy, was expected to end months of speculation today by signing a contract with the Spurs, team officials said Thursday.

No details of the pact have been announced, but the New York Times reported that is a guaranteed contract worth $26 million over eight years, including a $1 million signing bonus payable immediately.

"It's all just falling into place," Spurs chairman Angelo Drossos said Thursday.

Robinson, the Spurs' top draft choice and No. 1 overall pick in the draft, had kept silent about his plans after completing the next two years of required service with the Navy. Robinson, his parents and his agent, Lee Fentress, visited San Antonio in September and received the red-carpet treatment.

Robinson was selected the college basketball player of the year last season as he set 33 Navy records, including 2,669 career points, 1,314 rebounds and 516 blocked shots.

Spurs Coach Bob Weiss said he felt confident Robinson could be signed after talking to the Navy star in September.

"I felt he was open-minded, and if he was open-minded I knew Angelo could get it done," Weiss said. "Some people could have come here and it didn't matter what you did, you couldn't sign them."

The Spurs are coming off their worst season, 24-58, as they prepare to open against the Houston Rockets tonight, and management sees Robinson as a crucial spark for the team and its fans.

"I'm happy for the city of San Antonio because I think it might give us that boost we need to perk up interest," Weiss said.

"It's nice for the organization, but we've got 12 players and two coaches who are concerned with their jobs for the next two years," Weiss said. "We're not just going to sit and wait. Our goals is to make the playoffs and hopefully not by the skin of our teeth."

Weiss said he would like to develop younger players so that they would be prepared when Robinson joins the team.

The San Antonio Express-News was the first to report on Thursday that Robinson would sign with the Spurs. The newspaper quoted Robinson's best friend, Carl Liebert, who said he talked to Robinson Wednesday night.

"David told me, 'They have done everything to make me happy. How can I turn down a situation like that?'" Liebert said. "He said he will be paid what he asked for."

Field Is Catching Up With Morris

Woody Peele

Last week's picks separated the field again, and brought Tom Morris back just a little closer to the rest of us.

Morris still heads the field with a 78-28 record, but Tom Baines has moved to within four games of him at 74-32. Vickie Spivey has taken over third at 73-33, while this writer follows in fourth at 72-34. Joe Jenkins drops back to fifth at 71-35, while Don Reuter brings up the rear once more, 68-38.

This week, we hope to do a little more overhauling on Morris, keeping it tight as the season begins to wind down.

Our high school picks last week saw us post a 7-1 record, bringing us to 55-19 on the year.

This is the final week of the 1987 regular season. For some, it's the last chance, while for a select few it's on to the playoffs.

Two of Pitt County's three Eastern Plains Conference teams will be trying to wrap up playoff berths, while the third awaits those outcomes to find out whether it will also have more playing time.

Ayden-Grifton travel to Charles B. Aycock. Aycock is the key to the whole thing as far as the three Pitt schools are concerned. A victory by Ayden-Grifton sews it up for all three. The Chargers just have too much going for them in this one. They still have a chance to be the number one seed — should North Pitt lose — and they won't let Aycock get by them. Ayden-Grifton to win this one, 35-7.

North Pitt travels to Pamlico and a win would sew up the top seed for the Panthers. The Panthers have been somewhat up and down at times, but this is for the marbles, and North Pitt will be up and ready. North Pitt wins this one, 28-10.

Farmville Central, the third team, can only miss out if things go to a draw and they lose that. The Jaguars play host to Plymouth in a non-conference game to end the regular season. Farmville's offense is probably going to be too much for the Vikings. We go with Farmville, 20-14. Finally, Rose travels to Northeastern of Elizabeth City, trying to wrap up its first unbeaten season in over 20 years. The Eagles are big and physical, and Rose will have its hands full in that measure. The Rampants, too, must guard against complacency. We feel that the unbeaten season should be enough motivation, however. Rose in a scrap, 14-7.

Elsewhere it will be Jamesville over Creswell, Chocowinity over Bath, Greene Central over South Lenoir, and Williamston over Roanoke.

Our panel picks the East Carteret-Conley game. This is for the number three slot in the 3-A Coastal Conference, and the playoff berth that goes with it. Conley is the upstart, not supposed to be there at season's end. East Carteret is the favorite, having played both Havelock and West Craven closely.

But things like that don't always come out the way they're seen on paper. Otherwise, why play? And the panel is seeing it that way too, giving Conley the nod, 6-1. Our own prediction is East Carteret, however, by a score of 21-14.

East Carolina closes out its home season with a chance at a winning season still in the balance. First, they must play Temple in Ficklen Stadium. The Pirates are a lot like the little girl with the curl. They are either very, very good or they're, well, they're not very good.

The panel thinks the chance at a winning season will be enough advantage, coupled with the home field, for the Pirates to pull it out, giving ECU a 6-1 advantage. Our own pick is the Pirates, 38-24.

Our other consensus picks: N.C. State over East Tennessee State; Virginia and Georgia Tech, a toss-up; Penn State over Maryland; Mississippi State over Tulane; Florida over Georgia; Clemson over North Carolina; Duke and Wake Forest, a toss-up; Florida State over Auburn; Air Force over Army; and Indiana over Illinois. Vikings' Win Over Mariners Completes Unbeaten Season

BEAUFORT — Fred Streeter scored two touchdowns to lead D.H. Conley's Vikings to a 30-6 victory over East Carteret in JV football Thursday, completing a perfect 10-0 season.

Streeter scored both of his touchdowns in the opening period of the game. The first came on a 2-yard run, and he added a 40-yarder later in the quarter. Bill Jenkins took a pass from Tim Allen for the conversion after the opening score.

East Carteret scored its only touchdown in the second quarter, leaving Conley up, 14-6, at intermission.

In the third period, Allen scored on a 2-yard run, then passed eight yards to Hal Conger for the other score. Streeter ran over the conversion after each of the touchdowns.

Streeter finished the game with 145 yards rushing while Junior Farrow added 120. Allen passed for 100 yards.

The defense was led by John Middleton, Tim Carmon and Christian Bryant.

BETHEL — Al Roberson passed for two touchdowns to lead North Pitt's JV football team to a 33-6 win over Pamlico County Thursday.

Trailing 6-0, the Panthers came back to take the lead with a 20-point third quarter.

Michael Taft started things off with a 10-yard run. Danny Suggs kicked the point after to make it 7-6. William Crumble added a 7-yard run but the kick failed, leaving it 13-0.

Roberson then hit his first score of the night, connecting with Marcus Purvis on a 30-yard pass play. Suggs added the point after to make it 20-6.

Roberson then hooked up with Chris Sawyer on a 13-pass play for his second scoring toss of the night but Suggs kick failed.

North Pitt's final score came on a 13-yard run by Leonid Jenkins. Suggs added the point after kick to make it 33-6.

North Pitt closes the year at 2-8 overall and 2-4 in the EPC.

Fox Network Says NFL Lied

NEW YORK (AP) — The president of Fox Broadcasting says the NFL broke a promise to award its Monday night telecasts to the highest bidder.

"We were told, clear as a bell, that whoever made the highest bid would get the contract," Jamie Kellner said Thursday in a telephone interview from Los Angeles. "We were the highest bidder, but we didn't get the contract."

Val Pinchbeck, the NFL's director of broadcasting, denied the accusation.

"It is incorrect," he said. "It can't be true because there never was a bidding process."

Kellner and officials from other networks testified this summer before the Federal Trade Commission, which is investigating whether antitrust laws were violated when the NFL awarded a $1.4 billion television package in March.

The FTC is trying to determine if the major networks pressured the NFL to keep Fox and other fledgling companies from buying the rights to league games.

The NFL renewed contracts with ABC, NBC and CBS, and awarded its first cable package to ESPN, a subsidiary of ABC. The heart of the ESPN deal is a series of regular-season Sunday night games.

Pinchbeck said the NFL discussed a Sunday night package with Fox, but "they weren't interested." Kellner said that was because the network thought it was going to get the more desirable Monday night games, which ABC has televised since 1970.

"If we had known we weren't going to get the Monday night games, we definitely would have been interested in Sunday nights," he said.

Kellner said Fox offered "substantially more" than the $7 million a game ABC is paying for the Monday night telecasts. But Pinchbeck said money wasn't the only factor the NFL considered in awarding the package.

"We considered things like the network's reach, production and promotion capabilities," he said. "Based on all those factors, we decided that ABC offered the best deal, by far."

Pinchbeck said he, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell were among those who gave sworn testimony to the FTC this summer. According to the New York Times, executives from the three major networks also testified before the commission.

"I simply testified as to what our strategy was (during the TV negotiations)," CBS Sports President Neal Pilson told the Times. "I don't know what the conclusion is going to be."

Modell, head of the NFL's broadcast committee, said he told investigators that the probe was a "waste of time."

"We played this thing straight-arrow from the beginning," he said.

The FTC would not comment on the matter. Spokeswoman Susan Ticknor said the agency has a policy of neither confirming nor denying reports of investigations in progress.

Rose.....36
Northeastern.....19

Dwayne Williams scored three touchdowns and rushed for 207 yards as Rose defeated Northeastern, 36-19, in JV football action Thursday night.

Williams scored twice in the first quarter, on runs of 57 and 10 yards, respectively. Williams also added a two-point conversion run following his second touchdown.

In the second quarter, he added a 2-yard scoring run to make it 21-0. The other score in the second quarter came courtesy of Eric Gollette on a 30-yard run.

Rose scored its final touchdown in the third quarter on Larry Hill's 17-yard run.

Rose finishes the year 8-2 overall and 6-1 in the Big East.

Alphonso Freeman, Boris Newton, Blake Stallings and James Davis led the defense and were cited by coaches for outstanding play.

Maurice Lucas Returns To Trail Blazer Roster

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Maurice Lucas apparently will wrap up his NBA career with the Portland Trail Blazers, the team he helped to a league championship in 1977.

Lucas, a free agent who left the Blazers in a bitter contract dispute nearly eight years ago, has agreed in principle to accept an offer sheet from the Blazers, the club said Thursday.

Terms of the one-year contract weren't revealed.

The Seattle SuperSonics, the team Lucas played for last season, said they would not match the offer for the 6-foot-9 center-forward. In return, Sonics spokesman Jim Rupp said, Seattle will receive a future second-round draft pick.

The year of the second-round selection wasn't revealed.

The 35-year-old Lucas, who lives in the Portland area, wasn't available for comment.

"History has proved he's a pretty good rebounder and defender," Portland Coach Mike Schuler said. "He's got a toughness we hope he will bring to this team."

Lucas told Schuler this would be his final season as a professional basketball player.

"He really wanted to finish his career here," Schuler said.

Lucas has had a reputation of not getting along with coaches. He had several run-ins with Jack Ramsay in Portland, and when he demanded to have his contract renegotiated in 1980, the team shipped him and two first-round draft picks to New Jersey for Calvin Natt.

Schuler was on the Nets' staff in Lucas' final days in New Jersey, before he was traded to New York. He was sent to Phoenix in 1982, and played three seasons for the Suns.

Lucas played two seasons ago for the Los Angeles Lakers before playing in Seattle in 1986-87.

Lucas had his best pro years in Portland. He was the leading scorer in the team's championship season, averaging 20.2 points per game. As a Blazer, he played in the All-Star Game three times.

Last season, he averaged 7.9 points and 4.9 rebounds per game, the lowest figures of his 13-year pro career.

"I'll have to see how he fits in," said Portland center Steve Johnson. "He helped Seattle last year with leadership off the bench, rebounding and playing defense."

Paxson said Lucas' value will be greatest in post-season play.

"You need to have veteran players in the playoffs when it gets physical," Paxson said.

Europeans Win Again

INAGI, Japan (AP) — European golfers, who won the Ryder Cup on American soil for the first time in September, scored a second consecutive victory to lead at the midway mark Friday in the $950,000 World Championship of Golf, beating a Japanese team 10-2.

Meanwhile, Australia-New Zealand beat an American team 7-5 on the second of three days of round-robin play among six-member teams representing the Professional Golf Association tour.

After the second round Friday, the Europeans led with 17 points, followed by the Australia-New Zealand team with 13, the U.S. with 10 and the Japanese with eight.

The two best scoring teams in the first three days will vie Sunday for the $360,000 first prize. The other two teams will play for third place.

In Friday's matches, the Australia-New Zealand winners were Roger Davis over U.S. Open champ Scott Simpson 70-72; Greg Norman over U.S. PGA leading money-winner Curtis Strange 68-70; and Ian Baker-Finch over Mark Calcavecchia 68-73.

The American winners were Payne Stewart over Brian Jones 70-72 and U.S. team captain Tom Kite over Peter Senior 69-72.

Garvey Forced To Free Agency

NEW YORK (AP) — Because the San Diego Padres do not want Steve Garvey back, the 38-year-old first baseman has filed for free agency.

Garvey, Dennis Martinez of the Montreal Expos and Bill Almon of the New York Mets filed Thursday, raising the numbers of free agent to 47.

Approximately 107 players are eligible. Today and Monday are the last days to file.

Garvey, who earned $1.45 million in the final season of a five-year $6.6-million contract, was told Oct. 1 that the Padres would not make a new offer.

"We will be happy to bring him to spring training to see if he can make the team," club president Chub Feeney said. "But we can give him no contract."

"If he wants to test the waters, he should," Feeney said. "We told him that John Kruk was our first baseman and that he could play a role for us off the bench."

Garvey did not seem interested in Feeney's offer.

"Obviously Chub is doing what he thinks is in the best interest of the ballclub," he said last month. "But I've got to do what's best for myself. I've got to pursue the options best for me. At the present time, it doesn't look like those options include the San Diego Padres."

Garvey batted .211 this season with one home run and nine RBI in 76 at bats. He was bothered by a shoulder injury early in the season, was placed on the disabled list May 25 and five days later had surgery to repair a torn tendon in his left shoulder.

He did not play for the rest of the season.

Lane Disagrees With Coaches

NEW YORK (AP) — It isn't rare for a player to disagree with a coach. Jerome Lane, however, finds he doesn't see eye to eye with any of the nine in the Big East Conference.

Lane, a 6-foot-6 forward who led the nation in rebounding last season with 13.5 per game for Pittsburgh, was chosen by the conference coaches Thursday as the preseason player of the year.

"I just don't understand that," Lane said at the conference's annual media day. "How can they put me there when there are guys who can dominate any time they want."

Lane was one of three unanimous selections to the preseason all-conference team, joining Syracuse's Rony Seikaly and Sherman Douglas. Also on the first team were Boston College's Dana Barros and Lane's Pitt teammate, Charles Smith.

"I feel great about it," Lane said of the honor. "I just can't understand it."

Lane would gladly give up some of the rebounds gained from inside play for the chance to roam the perimeter with the small forwards.

"I'm a better perimeter than inside player," he said. "Bobby Martin will be very important inside for us. He will be the key."

Martin is 6-9, 220-pound freshman from Atlantic City who joins a team already loaded with frontcourt talent but which is thin at guard.

The Panthers were the coaches' preseason choice to win the conference, receiving seven first-place votes to two for Syracuse.

Junior guard Mike Goodson will be lost for the season because of academic problems and former quarterback Pat Cavanaugh will handle point guard duties for Pittsburgh until one of the three freshmen guards come to the front.

"We could be one of those teams that has great players up front but no point guard," Lane said.

Syracuse, a one-point loser to Indiana in the NCAA championship game, will rely on its three returning starters — Seikaly, Douglas and forward Derrick Coleman, last season's conference rookie of the year.

"This is a whole new team," Syracuse Coach Jim Boeheim said. "The big three are back but it was the other two who were the reason we got where we got. We'll have to get something out of the new people."

The two players who graduated were Howard Triche and Greg Monroe, players Boeheim said "set screens and moved the ball. They did all the things you couldn't see in the stats."

Georgetown, third in the balloting with 52 points, lost only one player from last year's team but he was

Reggie Williams, the man with all the stats — 23.6 points and 8.7 rebounds per game.

"You don't lose someone like Reggie without making adjustments," Georgetown Coach John Thompson said. "We will do as much as we can to advocate the team concept. The younger players have to step up and do what they have to do. Someone will step up."

Following Georgetown in the balloting were St. John's, 42; Seton Hall, 32; Villanova and Providence, 25; Connecticut, 16, and Boston College, 11.

The Big East had five teams invited to the NCAA Tournament last season and Providence joined Syracuse in the Final Four.

Barry Has An Enemy

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

When Rick Barry was in college at the University of Miami, busy becoming one of the best basketball players of his era, a friend — make that an acquaintance — introduced him to the less strenuous but more cerebral game of golf.

With friends like that, and a competitive drive like the one that would lead Barry to the basketball Hall of Fame, you don't need enemies.

"Golf is the most difficult sport I ever tried because of the mental aspects," Barry said. "You waver ever so slightly and it's two shots out of bounds or into the water. You have to maintain your composure and you have to be strong to play this game. Mentally strong."

Barry always liked challenges, though, so he took irons and woods and putter in hand and began the grand chase after that elusive dimpled ball. It has, at times, proved predictably frustrating. "I got my handicap down to 5 and I started saying to myself, 'I've got to get it lower, I've got to dedicate myself.' I started to take it too seriously," he said.

One round really got to Barry and helped him make the decision to pack the clubs away in the closet, at least for a while.

"I was playing with three pros and a top amateur in a tournament in California," he said. "I concentrated on every shot, watched for the wind, did all the right things. I hit every green but one in regulation and shot a 66. It was the best round of my life."

Now feeling pretty good about things, Barry reached the 19th hole. "I go into the clubhouse and find out that I had lost low gross to a guy with a 10 handicap who shot a 65. I had shot a round so far over my head and it was wasteful. I'm a 5 handicap. I'm supposed to be twice as good as this guy."

That was it, Barry decided. He didn't need the aggravation. It was much easier to run up and down a 94-foot basketball court than it was to subject himself to the more subtle twists and turns of 18 holes of golf. "I just thought it was better to get away."

But the game has addictive qualities and eventually, Barry heard the siren's song. He is not the first player to hear it.

Barry came back to golf with a different point of view, though. It is no longer life and death for him. "I'm a little older now, a little more mellow and mature. I don't go crazy over it. I don't expect par. I'm not as demanding of myself. I understand it better now, and I want it to remain fun for me. I'm not all that good and I accept that."

That approach means Barry has a dual role in the sport's new video magazine, "Golf Shots," which tours the world's most challenging and picturesque courses offering hole-by-hole instruction and strategy from teaching pros. He is both host for the show and a student, hoping to fine-tune his own game.

"I found out that I was too wide in my stance," he said. "I couldn't get my hips turned. When you're tall, it's tough to compact your swing. I hit one or two irons less than normal. If you're a little off at the top of your swing, it's a big error lower down."

"The more I play, the better I'll get. If I really dedicated myself to practice and to groove my swing..." Famous last words.

MOTOR TREND, November 1987

The new Mazda 929 is a high-performance luxury sedan combining the most civilized of creature comforts with performance that outstrips some of Europe's finest luxury sports sedans.

Yet 929 is substantially less expensive to own. About $8,000 less than Mercedes-Benz 190E, about $11,000 less than BMW 528e.

"This car is roomy like no other car from Japan."

The 1988 Mazda 929 gives you "a feeling of being in a car nearly twice the size..." Mazda 929 offers more interior room than Mercedes-Benz 190E or BMW 528e—even Mercedes-Benz 300E.

There is over three feet of legroom for rear-seat passengers. And the 929 is actually quieter inside than the costlier Mercedes-Benz 300E and BMW 735i.

You'll also find a 6-way adjustable driver's seat with lumbar support. Plus rich velour upholstery (leather is optional). To quote MOTOR TREND:

"Large, overstuffed seats front and rear with adjustable headrests and a rear seat center armrest, electronic climate controls with excellent vent placement, optional electronic instrument cluster, and a six speaker AM/FM cassette audio system with graphic equalizer are all things we'd expect, and all so nicely integrated into the interior's flow. Here, clearly, is the new benchmark at which Japanese manufacturers will be shooting."

"The 929's V-6 pulls for the moon with a seductive silkiness."

At the heart of the Mazda 929's high-performance lies an advanced, all-new, 158-horsepower, 18-valve, 3.0-liter V-6 engine with electronic fuel injection. Its smooth, quiet power can take 929 from 0 to 60 in just 9.2 seconds and to a top speed of 121 mph—outperforming Mercedes-Benz 190E and BMW 528e.

It has been matched to a unique handling package that thrusts the 929 into the ranks of the world's great road cars. "Lean hard into a corner and the 929 stays on its feet... Throw it into a series of ess-bends and you're surprised at how well it follows your lead. Enough motive power is available to flatten hills or fry asphalt..."

"Smooth, quiet and quick, the 3-liter is the stuff 'real' luxu-sport sedans are made of, and just the stuff some German car makers had better start to fear."

All-new Mazda 929 is built the time-honored way.

With quality and care. With a front-engine, rear-drive chassis. "Mazda's reasons for bucking the front-drive trend are perfectly sound: to produce a more even weight distribution, to promote better handling, and to achieve a more refined drive. Besides, the space efficiencies of front drive would be of minimal value in a car that is already roomy enough for everybody but land-yacht die-hards."

The luxury of all these standard features.

The 929's serious instrumentation includes speedometer, tachometer, and gauges for vital functions. You also get cruise control. Front and rear reading lights. Plus your choice of a 5-speed manual or 4-speed automatic over-drive transmission at no extra cost.

This world-class tourer comes with a long list of luxury features as standard equipment, including:

- E-Link independent rear suspension that continuously tunes suspension geometry to provide optimum balance of handling, stability and ride.
- 4-wheel power disc brakes
- Electronically controlled automatic air conditioning
- Variable-assist power steering and brakes
- Power windows and door locks
- Tilt/telescopic, leather-wrapped steering wheel
- Theft-deterrent system.

Each is designed to add to your comfort and control. And together they make the 929 an even more impressive value.

A 36-month/50,000 mile "bumper-to-bumper" warranty.

A high-performance luxury sedan as remarkable as the Mazda 929 should have a warranty to match. So like all 1988 Mazdas, the 929 comes with a "bumper-to-bumper" warranty for 36 months or 50,000 miles (see your Mazda dealer for details). It offers you the kind of comprehensive protection common 5, 6 and 7 year "drivetrain-only" warranties don't provide.

Come on down to your Mazda dealer's and try out the all-new Mazda 929 high-performance luxury sedan. You'll discover that when it comes to value, performance and luxury, nobody delivers like your Mazda dealer. That's the Mazda Way.

Come drive the new 929 at your Mazda dealer's today.

ECU Hoop Scrimmage Open To Public

The East Carolina basketball team will hold an intra-squad scrimmage Saturday morning prior to the ECU-Temple football game, head coach Mike Steele announced Friday.

The scrimmage is open to the public at no charge. It is the second public scrimmage of the year for the Pirates, who open the season Nov. 28 at home against Longwood.

Junior Highs Close Out Season

Wellcome-Bethel defeated A.G. Cox, 8-6, Thursday, to clinch the Pitt-Greene-Lenoir Junior High School football championship.

Reggie Cox scored the only Wellcome-Bethel touchdown in the second period of the game, dashing 54 yards for the tally. Derrick Brown then ran over the fateful two-point conversion.

Cox scored its only TD in the final period on a three yard pass to Anthony Barrett. Cox's attempt to tie it up fell short on the conversion.

Wellcome-Bethel finishes the year with a 7-0 record while Cox closes at 6-2.

AYDEN — Ayden-Grifton rolled past Savannah, 22-8, in junior high football action Thursday.

William Hill rushed for 120 yards on 14 carries and also recorded 11 tackles playing linebacker.

Deshawn Gardner started off Ayden-Grifton's scoring with a one-yard run in the first quarter. Orlando Peterson then scored on a 5-yard run to make it 16-0.

Hill scored on a 8-yard run in the fourth quarter to make it 22-8.

Ayden-Grifton closes its season at 6-1.

Chad Adams and Anthony Love each scored two touchdowns to lead E.B. Aycock to a junior high school football victory over J.T. Barber Thursday, 27-0.

The win clinched the Tar East Nine Conference championship for the Jaguars, who finish 6-1.

Aycock opened the scoring in the first period, earning a safety.

In the second quarter, Adams got his first score by returning a pass in interception 72 yards for a touchdown.

Love scored on a 2-yard run in the third period and Adams followed with a 40-yard fumble return. Grant Harmon kicked the PAT that followed.

Love closed out the scoring in the final period with a 6-yard run.

Palmer Will Sign With Blue Devils

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Crawford Palmer, a 6-foot-9 center at Washington-Lee High School, will sign a letter of intent to play college basketball at Duke, the Roanoke Times & World-News has reported.

Palmer, who averaged 18 points, 12 rebounds and five blocked shots per game as a junior, would become the third highly rated prospect from northern Virginia to sign with Duke in the past five years, following Tommy Amaker and Billy King.

Washington-Lee Coach Dale Bethel told the newspaper Wednesday that Palmer chose the Blue Devils over Virginia, Stanford and Dartmouth.

"It was a bit of a horse race between Duke and Virginia," Bethel said. "He's a very intelligent, free-thinking young man, and I gave him the room to go where he was most comfortable. I don't know that there was a tangible reason for his decision."

Fenner Still Wants To Return To UNC

GREENSBORO (AP) — Derrick Fenner apparently wants to return to North Carolina if murder charges against him are dropped, although an attorney says there is some bitterness over the lack of support from the school, his lawyer says.

"He continues to have an interest in going back to North Carolina," lawyer Fred Joseph told the Greensboro News & Record in a telephone interview.

"He has many wonderful experiences there. On the other, he has time to consider many factors and only time will tell," Joseph said in the interview.

One of those factors reportedly is the support Fenner received at his July bond hearing. While about 20 family members attended the hearing, only defensive line coach Ted Gill represented the Tar Heel football team.

"I think there is disappointment about UNC and the lack of support," Joseph said. "I was told by a number of people at North Carolina that they were going to come up here for the bond hearing. And later I heard rumors that if they showed up, they were going to be off the football team."

Joseph said the entire case raises questions about the role of the school and its athletes.

North Carolina Athletic Director John Swofford declined to comment on whether the university harbors a continued interest in Fenner, who was declared academically ineligible at the end of last season and did not play in the Aloha Bowl.

"I don't want to comment on that right now," Swofford told the newspaper. "Charges haven't actually been dropped. (But) we will be happy to talk about it if it indeed occurs."

Coach Dick Crum could not be reached for comment.

Prosecutors in Prince George's County, Md. are "seriously considering" dropping murder charges against Fenner, two sources close to the case said Tuesday.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said county police detectives now believe Fenner was telling the truth when he said he was not at the scene of a drug-related fatal shooting in May.

"I believe they are seriously considering dropping the charges, based on what they now know," said one source familiar with the investigation.

Charlotte Speedway Proving Lucrative

CONCORD (AP) — Charlotte Motor Speedway pumped $264,111,625 into the area economy in 1987, according to the Charlotte Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Nearly $148 million in primary economic impact was directly generated by the more than 700,000 people who attended speedway events this year, the bureau said Thursday. The money was spent on race tickets, food, lodging, entertainment, gas, etc.

An additional $116.5 million was pumped into the economy through secondary economic impact — the cost of providing primary services.

The next major event at the speedway is Charlotte AutoFair '88, April 7-10, 1988. Last year, Charlotte AutoFair attracted more than 124,000 people to the largest auto show and parts market in the South, officials said.

Waltrip Doesn't Want Riverside To Close

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip is one driver who is in no hurry to see Riverside International Raceway close its gates for good.

Riverside, which is being encroached upon by residential neighborhoods, has been kept open on a year-to-year basis since 1985 as track owners have attempted to find land nearby to build a new racetrack.

So far, those efforts have failed, but the track will remain open at least through next June.

"There's a lot of talk about this track being torn down for apartments and condos, but Riverside keeps hanging in there," Waltrip said. "Every year those houses just seem to get closer and closer to the track. But I also notice that each race has been bringing more fans into the grandstands."

"I, for one, will really hate to see the track closed, if that indeed happens. It's really a shame."

Waltrip, a three-time Winston Cup driving champion, switched from the elite team of Junior Johnson to the strong team of Rick Hendrick at the start of this season, with everyone holding great expectations of success.

But, despite the best efforts of everyone involved, only one victory — last month at Martinsville, Va., — and little success has come their way.

Cricket World Cup Winding Up

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The man with the bat waits, gaze intent and body tense. He swings and the ball lofts up, out and into the frenzied crowd across the field. The score jumps by six runs.

A six-run homer?

No, this isn't baseball, it's cricket. It is a game of gobbley-gook to Americans, of catches at "mid-silly point," outs by "leg before wicket" and, of course, tea break.

But much of the English-speaking — or perhaps more accurately, the British-speaking world — is now watching as cricket's main event, the quadrennial World Cup, near its climax in India and Pakistan.

It is hard to understand much ado over a game that can last five days only to end in a draw.

But screaming fans and occasional thrown objects are not the only testimony to a passion for cricket left behind by the British Empire.

In 1932, Australia nearly broke diplomatic ties with England over a cricket dispute. Last month, in the Indian city of Gwalior, an 11-year-old was killed in a fight over whether India or Pakistan would win the cup.

Along with India and Pakistan — rivals in sport and in three wars in the past 40 years — England, Australia, New Zealand, the West Indies, Zimbabwe and Sri Lanka are in the tournament that winds up Sunday at Calcutta.

Almost everyone has heard the phrase "it's not cricket," but few outside England and some former British colonies know what cricket is.

An Indian is likely to say, "Oh, it's just like baseball."

It isn't, not by a long, high fly.

The differences? One is that the batter can score one run, or several, by hitting a ball to the rear. He can make four runs without hitting it at all.

A cricket team has 11 players. The pitcher is called a bowler, and there is both a batsman and reverse batsman. They face each other at the wickets, stumps driven into the ground 22 yards apart.

The bowler doesn't just wind up and throw. He takes a running start of about 20 yards, then dashes the ball into the dirt in front of the batsman.

The batsman hits it on the bounce and in any direction on the circular field, even behind him. Once he hits, he and the reverse batsman run between the wickets, and one run is scored when both reach the opposite wicket.

A hit can add several runs, and since a batsman does not have to run if he risks being put out, one man can bat for (yawn) hours.

He can be caught out or run out or bowled, all akin to baseball, and yes, there really are catches at "mid-silly point," a spot on the field so named because it is near enough to the batsman that a fielder risks being beamed, or knocked silly.

Being "bowled" is cricket's version of the strikeout, when the ball gets past the batsman and hits the wickets.

Then there's going out "leg before wicket." This occurs when the ball hits the batsman's leg, and the umpire judges it would have hit the wickets had the leg not been there.

This decision often brings an "appeal" which, according to the rules, is lodged when a player calls politely to the umpire, "How's that?"

That's the phrase called for in the rules but, in fact, the words more often used would make Billy Martin feel right at home.

But the born-again-again New York Yankees manager would be at sea again as the score rose. In cricket, a ball that flies over the boundary, the circle around the field, is worth six runs. A grounder reaching there adds four.

A batsman gets four without ever swinging if a ball outside his reach gets by the wicket-keeper — catcher — and skitters to the boundary.

The cricket run record for a single "test match" — a major game — is 365 hit by the West Indies' Sir Garfield St. Aubrun Sobers in 1958. Which makes Babe Ruth's 60 home runs in 1927 seem pretty mild.

Test matches usually last five days. Mercifully, World Cup games are one day, and someone always wins since the number of balls bowled to one team is limited.

In longer matches a team can bat on and on until there is not equal time for the other team. Then, after five long days, it's a draw.

A real hardship of one-day cricket is that players also skip tea, the traditional afternoon break when they stop taking lumps on the field and put them instead into cups of that other British institution. The seventh-inning sip, it might be called.

Sounds pretty foreign, doesn't it? Yet, believe it or not, West Indian immigrants are now playing cricket in Brooklyn. Brooklyn, for crying out loud.

Sticky wicket, eh what?

Auburn-FSU Game To Have Title Effects

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Two teams still harboring national championship dreams, neither of which can afford another slip, collide Saturday when fourth-ranked Florida State meets No. 6 Auburn.

In fact, the one blot on each team's record may even now be too much to overcome in their quest for No. 1.

Florida State, 7-1, dropped a 26-25 heartbreaker to third-ranked Miami on Oct. 3, a game in which the Seminoles misfired on a two-point conversion pass in the final minute after leading 19-3 late in the third quarter.

Auburn is 7-0-1, including a 20-20 tie with Tennessee on Sept. 26. The Tigers, who led that game 20-10 in the third period, trail LSU by one-half game in the Southeastern Conference race. Since the two teams don't play each other this year, Auburn can't do a thing about it if LSU wins its final two games.

"It's like a game between step-children," Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden said. "The two schools are a lot alike. They are both in small towns and they've had to fight Big Brother (Florida and Alabama, respectively) for a long time."

"Auburn has been fighting longer than we have, and has been more successful. We share the same characteristics and hunger."

And some similar statistics.

Florida State is third nationally in scoring at 43.4 points a game; Auburn is 11th at 31.9.

Auburn is second in scoring defense, yielding only 8.9 points a game; Florida State is 10th at 13.1.

Despite the similarities, Auburn is an underdog at home — by 3½ points — for the first time since a 1982 visit by Georgia, which was ranked No. 1 in the country at the time.

"Those people that set the line don't do it with their heart, they do it based on knowledge," Auburn Coach Pat Dye said.

This nonconference game comes in the heart of Auburn's SEC stretch drive. The Tigers beat Florida last week and their final two regular-season games are against No. 10 Georgia and No. 13 Alabama.

"Florida State is a great football team," Dye said. "Coach Bowden said this was going to be his best team, and I think it is. They are averaging something phenomenal on offense. They are a good, solid defensive football team that is better than it has been in the past."

"They have great skilled folks in the secondary, just like there are skilled people at wide receiver and running back. They also have big, strong players up front on the defensive line."

"I think the key to the game will be if we will be able to tackle Sammie Smith (the nation's No. 5 rusher at 127.4 yards a game, including a school-record four consecutive 100-yard games). That is something nobody has done, including Miami, which is rated as having one of the top defenses in the nation. Florida State should have beaten Miami by two touchdowns."

Auburn held Florida freshman Emmitt Smith (no relation) to 72 yards last week but Dye says that "Sammie is bigger, stronger and faster. He is a different kind of runner, more of a slashing guy who is going to run through tackles."

Auburn leads the series 12-1-1, including a 9-0-1 record at home, with such wild scores as 59-27 in 1985, 42-41 in 1984 — Dye calls it "the wildest night I ever spent in football" — and 27-24 in 1983.

Nevertheless, Bowden says defense will decide Saturday's contest.

"I don't know if this is the strongest football team we've had at Florida State, but it has the potential to be one of the best," he said. "We do have more skilled people at one time than we have had in the past, but I'll have to evaluate it after the season. I wouldn't swap our first two units of skilled people for anyone."

"There is no doubt success will come with defense Saturday. In the last three or four games, Auburn has averaged 42 points to our 32, so outscoring them is not the way to beat them. We're a stronger defensive football team than we've been in some years, but we'll learn a lot about our defense against Auburn."

"Auburn is a stronger team than Miami. They are stronger defensively, have a better passing quarterback (Jeff Burger is tied for third nationally in passing efficiency), more receivers and has an edge on the offensive line."

Shriver On A Roll

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Pam Shriver thinks she might be playing her best tennis right now and she's having a little fun in the process.

Shriver, the second seed in the $250,000 Virginia Slims of New England tennis tournament, crushed second-round rival Peanut Louie Harper 6-4, 6-2 Thursday night despite a head cold that gave her breathing problems.

But she still managed to poke fun at the ball girls, the officials and herself. She didn't trouble Louie Harper with her antics and kept the crowd of 6,183 laughing in the process.

"The cold weather was bothering me just a little. We were talking about the weather," she said of temperatures that were dropping 40 degrees in just over 24 hours.

"I spent most of the match trying to tell the ball kids what to do," she said after advising one ball girl, "Run someplace."

But she also targeted the chair umpire, suggesting after he had announced the wrong score for the second time, "You ought to (be) ball girl and let her umpire."

"I was just a little cranky. After four weeks and a cold, you can do that. As long as you win. The umpire laughed, that's the key. I was hoping he wouldn't say 'Warning, abuse of official.'"

Shriver also challenged three line calls, one of which was instantly overruled by the umpire.

Ginsburg's Status Jeopardized By Drug Revelation

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Douglas H. Ginsburg's admission that he smoked marijuana in the 1960s and 1970s has jolted, and could cut short, his bid to win confirmation to the Supreme Court, senators say.

Ginsburg, 41, revealed Thursday that he used the drug once in the 1960s and on a few occasions in the 1970s, adding, "It was a mistake and I regret it."

The statement followed National Public Radio's request for his comment on NPR interviews in which a half-dozen people indicated Ginsburg used marijuana while teaching at Harvard Law School.

The development came just as there was movement in the confirmation process. Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., said earlier in the day that he hoped to begin confirmation hearings the week of Dec. 7 and finish well before the Senate adjourned for the year.

A source close to Ginsburg, speaking on condition he not be named, said the nominee told senators he "didn't buy it (marijuana), didn't sell it and used it just a few times."

But comments from conservative Republican senators made clear that only two weeks after the embarrassing defeat of Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork, the successor candidate was in trouble.

"If it was known before he was nominated he would not have been nominated," Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said of the drug revelation.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said the admission might not make a difference in and of itself.

"except that you like to think people who are appointed to the Supreme Court respect the law."

Grassley, asked if the disclosure would hurt Ginsburg among conservatives, said, "Yes, without a doubt."

"It's not good news — it's bound to hurt," said one prominent GOP senator who spoke on condition he not be named. "I heard several Republican senators say it's going to hurt."

"If public opinion rises against him," the senator said, it could cause the administration to pull back the nomination, which has not been formally sent to the Senate.

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., said "it's been an embarrassment to a number of the conservative senators who were announcing their support of him minutes after he was nominated."

Ginsburg's chances, he said, "will depend upon how embarrassed they (the conservatives) are by their own poor judgment. If they get over the embarrassment, it won't hurt him. If they cannot get over it, it will hurt him."

Biden said he didn't think the marijuana revelation would hurt Ginsburg's chances for confirmation, "if that's all there is."

"It's one thing if, as a young man, he's tried or smoked marijuana, and it's another thing if as a sitting judge, or a mature man, he uses drugs, marijuana or anything else," Biden was quoted as saying today in The (Wilmington, Del.) Morning News.

The rumors of Ginsburg's drug use spread through the Capitol on Thursday, and soon reached Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas.

"Rumors were swirling and Dole wanted to know what was fact and what was fiction," said a Republican Senate source, speaking on condition he not be named. To find out, Dole called the White House and Ginsburg was sent to the Capitol.

After Dole heard the story first hand, the source said, he summoned Republican members of the Senate Judiciary Committee for a series of meetings with the nominee. Shortly after Ginsburg left the Capitol, Ginsburg's statement was issued by the Justice Department.

Dole went from the meetings to the Senate floor and gave a brief description of what happened, expressing neither support nor opposition to the nominee.

On Wednesday, in an interview with Cable News Network, Dole said Ginsburg had assured him there were no major complications to his confirmation.

"I believe Judge Ginsburg. It doesn't mean there isn't going to be a tough hearing, and there are minor things that may surface. But he said nothing major would surface," Dole said in that interview.

At the White House on Thursday, chief presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan continued to support his nominee.

"The president accepts his statement, doesn't feel that it influences his judicial qualifications, and the president stands by his nomination," Fitzwater said.

Attorney General Edwin Meese III also applauded Ginsburg, commenting, "As he states, his action, taken during his younger days, was a mistake. It certainly does not affect his qualifications to sit on the Supreme Court, and he should be confirmed expeditiously."

Ginsburg's statement was issued only moments before an account of his drug use was to be broadcast by NPR legal affairs correspondent Nina Totenberg.

"He on occasion brought the marijuana," she reported. Ms. Totenberg said she interviewed "at least a half-dozen of his friends and colleagues who saw him smoking marijuana when he was a professor at Harvard Law School in the 1970s and perhaps in the early 1960s."

Ginsburg's statement, in its entirety, said: "Earlier today, I was asked whether I had ever used drugs. To the best of my recollection, once as a college student in the '60s, and then on a few occasions in the '70s, I used marijuana."

"That was the only drug I ever used. I have not used it since. It was a mistake, and I regret it."

One White House official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said "there was no indication" of any drug use on Ginsburg's part in a preliminary FBI report received by the White House.

Asked if the judge was asked specifically during his pre-nomination interviews with White House oficials whether he had used drugs, the official said, "This was not discussed."

NEW YORK — Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., after denying wrongdoing in a voice choked with emotion, was sentenced Thursday to 2½ years in prison and fined $500,000 for accepting an illegal gratuity and obstructing justice.

Biaggi's sentence was stayed pending appeal. He will remain in Congress while the House ethics committee weighs disciplinary action, but he has not voted since his conviction.

In a Brooklyn courtroom, U.S. District Court Judge Jack B. Weinstein said that while he admired Biaggi's career as a much-decorated police officer and a member of Congress for 19 years, the Bronx Democrat is guilty of "greed and arrogance" for taking free Florida vacations from a longtime political friend.

Biaggi, 70, speaking to reporters after cloaking himself with his four children, said he was "terribly upset" at the sentence. He challenged Weinstein's description of him as the fallen hero in a Greek tragedy.

"I haven't fallen," Biaggi said. "I've been smitten, but I haven't fallen. I don't believe in my heart I've done anything wrong."

But Edward McDonald, chief of the

REP. MARIO BIAGGI

Justice Department's Organized Crime Strike Force in Brooklyn, chided Biaggi for having the "audacity" to invoke his wife's failing health in a plea for leniency.

Noting that Biaggi visited a Florida spa with model Barbara Barlow, 45, while his wife was suffering from Hodgkin's disease, McDonald said the defense had portrayed Biaggi as "an aging Romeo unable to control his urges" but now calls him a "devoted husband" who should not be imprisoned.

Biaggi was convicted in September of accepting free vacations from former Brooklyn Democratic leader Meade Esposito, 80, in exchange for using his influence to help a ship-repair company that was a major client of Esposito's insurance agency. Biaggi lobbied several federal and local officials on behalf of the firm, Coastal Dry Dock and Repair Co.

Weinstein, citing Esposito's poor health, gave him a suspended prison term last month and fined him $500,000.

Biaggi was convicted on three counts but acquitted of more serious bribery and conspiracy charges. The obstruction-of-justice charge involved a June 1986 call in which Biaggi urged Esposito to lie to investigators. In the wiretapped conversation, Esposito agreed to say that the free trips for Biaggi were "a manifestation of my love for you."

The former policeman, who walks with a cane because of old injuries, still faces a second corruption trial involving his assistance to Wedtech Corp., a small Bronx defense contractor.

Democratic Hopefuls Debate

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Six Democratic presidential candidates mixed jokes with mild jabs at each other as they pushed for more school funding and gave President Reagan an "unexcused absence" as his grade on education.

During a two-hour debate Thursday night on education, the candidates saved their toughest criticism for the Reagan administration, with Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore Jr.

saying he would call Education Secretary William Bennett on election night "to tell him to start cleaning out his desk."

Former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt complained his rivals weren't talking realistically about cutting huge federal budget deficits, but that was about as tough as the exchanges got.

"I think ultimately the way we differ is how we answer the hard question and the hard question is how do we get it done," Babbitt said. "We're not talking honestly about where we find those resources."

Gore also criticized Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt for switching positions on tuition tax credits and creating the Department of Education. He likened Gephardt's views to an old story about a speaker who ends by saying, "Them's my views and if you don't like them, I'll change them."

 "Tangerines are smart. They divide themselves up into bite-size pieces."

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY Nov. 7

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): A good friend will introduce you to a person who has been very successful in your line of work. Take the advice which is offered.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You may be anxious to improve your income by seeking a promotion of some sort. Now is the right time to do just that.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Now is the time to pay back all of those favors done for you by a partner. Do something thoughtful and kind and feel great all day.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Don't let a family friend usurp your authority at home. Study the cost of any home repairs, and get a second estimate.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Get into an old-favorite hobby with a close friend, but be sure you've made proper arrangements before beginning. Be charming and diplomatic.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Listen carefully to a financial expert, and follow any advice given to you. If you go out visiting today, make sure you drive carefully.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Be succinct and friendly today, and you can make many new and beneficial friends. Don't be overbearing or rude.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Take time to sit down and think about some confusing aspects of your life. A little contemplation may be all you need.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Enlist the aid of a close friend to settle up a difficult situation. Get together later with some acquaintances you haven't seen lately.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): If you are tactful, you can get a little boost in business from a superior. Accompany your mate to a popular civic affair.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Don't be rapped by routines. Getting away from it all with a good friend would help you both unwind and could also be profitable.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Avoid any arguments with your mate, or any other confrontations for that matter. Keep your poise today, and all will be well.

Opening lead: King of ♦
 In retrospect, it is often surprising how simple the winning line is. Try your hand at this six spade contract after West leads the king of diamonds.

From the moment he picked up his cards, South was determined to play in slam in whichever suit his partner held a three-card or better fit. His two clubs was artificial and forcing, and North's two diamonds was negative. Three clubs was a second negative, and six clubs was to protect against North having given a false preference with two spades and three clubs.

You can't afford to draw trumps—as the cards lie that would result in a two-trick set. And you will be defeated if you cash two high clubs and ruff a club low, because East will overruff and return a trump, and you will still have to lose a heart trick.

But suppose that, after winning the ace of diamonds and cashing two high clubs, you ruff a club with the jack? If clubs are 3-3, you simply draw trumps and concede a heart trick. As the cards lie, however, you still have some work to do.

Return to hand with the ace of hearts and lead another club, but this time discard a heart instead of ruffing. Now there is no way the defenders can prevent you from ruffing your heart loser, thereby limiting your losers to one club. (Incidentally, you can achieve the same result if you discard a heart on the third club, then ruff a club high and a heart low.)

Ex-Defector Returns To U.S. For Questioning

FORT DIX, N.J. (AP) — An American soldier who defected to the Soviet Union last April is back in the United States today facing an interrogation and disciplinary proceedings, authorities said.

Pvt. Wade Roberts, 22, who defected eight months ago, arrived at Dover Air Force Base, Del., early today after being flown from Rhein-Main U.S. Air Base outside Frankfurt, West Germany, on Thursday.

Military police accompanied Roberts, clad in blue jeans and a blue and white sweater, to a van and whisked him to a security building where a chaplain, lawyer and commander from Fort Dix were waiting. The group arrived here a few hours later at the base here, where officials planned to debrief him today after Roberts got some sleep, said Richard V. Dowling, spokesman for Fort Dix. Roberts is being held on the original desertion charge filed in April in Germany, but that could be changed to an absent without leave charge, Dowling said. In either case, Roberts could be allowed to leave the Army under the discharge he has requested, the spokesman said.

"Fort Dix is now responsible for the disposition of the case, and will decide whether to prosecute Roberts and if so, on what charges," Dowling said. "Roberts has expressed a desire to get out of the Army and get on with his life, and the Army at this point sees no reason why that shouldn't happen," he said earlier.

The C5-A jet arrived in the United States late Thursday in New Hampshire for refueling.

Roberts deserted from an Army base in Giessen, West Germany, in April and fled to East Germany hidden in the trunk of a rented car driven by his West German girlfriend, who is now pregnant. The couple defected to the Soviet Embassy in East Berlin and then went to Moscow.

Roberts' girlfriend, Petra Neumann, also returned to West Germany but did not accompany him to the United States, said Walter Nebgen, spokesman for the 5th Army Corps in Frankfurt.

Under Army rules, Roberts can request a discharge rather than face a court-martial on AWOL charges, said a statement issued by the Dover base late Thursday.

"The usual discharge under this procedure is known as a discharge under other than honorable conditions. It is midway between an honorable discharge and a dishonorable one, and it involves the loss of all benefits," the statement said.

Roberts said he had been told by U.S. authorities in the Soviet Union that he would be prosecuted for the lesser charge of absent without leave.

Army intelligence officers will interrogate Roberts at Fort Dix "to determine his activities for the last eight months," the statement said.

"There is, at this point, no indication that he had any access to critical secret material, or that there are any additional charges that can be lodged against him other than his leaving his unit and going to East Germany," the statement said.

Roberts, from Riverside, Calif., spent Thursday undergoing medical examinations.

U.S. military police took him into custody several hours after he arrived in Frankfurt after a flight from Moscow with Ms. Neumann, military spokesmen said.

Roberts said he decided to return to the West because he and Ms. Neumann were going to have a child, and he didn't want "to go around for the rest of my life having a charge from the United States hanging over my head."

Although he said he was treated "exceptionally well" by the Soviets, Roberts said he did not plan on returning to the Soviet Union and wished to settle in West Germany.

Conviction of desertion could result in dishonorable discharge, loss of all pay and privileges, and a maximum of two years of hard labor, said Lt. Col. John Dye, a spokesman in Frankfurt.

Under the discharge rule, Roberts would lose his benefits and the Army would buy him a bus ticket home or give him an equivalent amount in cash, the Dover statement said.

In an interview with Cable News Network in Frankfurt, Roberts said he defected because Army officials had complained that he was spending too much time with his girlfriend.

"When they told me that I could not be with Petra, and that I should hang out with the Americans more than the Germans ... it got pretty serious.

Walesa Rejects Questions

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said today he refused to cooperate with authorities investigating a reorganized version of the outlawed labor union.

Walesa said he "will never give up the struggle" for restoring Solidarity's rights. Solidarity, the first free labor movement in the East Bloc, was outlawed by the Communist government in 1982.

Walesa, who led Poland's workers during massive demonstrations in August 1980, won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1983.

Provincial authorities today summoned Walesa and eight other members of Solidarity's National Executive Commission for questioning in a preliminary move to declare the new body illegal.

Last week, Solidarity announced a reorganization of the union, which dissolved its underground and formal leadership structures and replaced them with the commission headed by Walesa. The restructuring was designed to make the movement more effective.

At the same time, the commission urged Poles not to take part in a Nov. 29 referendum on political and economic reforms, which it called a propaganda exercise by discredited Communist authorities.

Walesa said he appeared this morning at the provincial administrative department in his home city of Gdansk. The department is empowered to determine the legality of organizations established by citizens.

"I was asked to explain what the (commission) was, but I refused such kind of talks and explanations," Walesa said by telephone from his Gdansk apartment. He said he gave the head of the department a copy of the Solidarity communique announcing the group's formation.

"I also reminded them ... that it is a continuation of Solidarity, the legal Solidarity, to which ... I have sworn myself and I will never give up this struggle."

Takeshita Formally Takes Control As Prime Minister

TOKYO (AP) — Veteran politician Noboru Takeshita was elected prime minister today and immediately appointed a Cabinet that is expected to continue trying to ease trade friction, especially with the United States.

Takeshita, who was handpicked last month by his predecessor Yasuhiro Nakasone to head the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, won a strong 442 of the 744 votes cast in the Parliament where the party holds a majority.

The 63-year-old Takeshita, known for his strength in tackling issues through patient backroom consensus building, became the 46th prime minister since Japan adopted its parliamentary system in 1885.

In the new Cabinet he announced tonight, Takeshita named as foreign minister Sosuke Uno, who has represented Japan in overseas talks in his previous Cabinet posts. The 65-year-old Uno negotiated a treaty between the United States and Japan on nuclear fuel reprocessing when he was Science and Technology Agency director in 1981.

Uno served briefly as trade minister in 1983 during which time he traveled to the United States, Canada and Europe.

Takeshita retained as finance minister Kijichi Miyazawa, also appointing him the post of deputy prime minister. A fluent English speaker who has previously served as both trade and foreign minister, the 68-year-old Miyazawa favors heavy public spending, tax cuts and lower interest rates.

Also retained was Trade Minister Hajime Tamura who has steered Japan through escalating trade friction with the United States.

The new Cabinet is expected to continue the ruling party's goals of easing trade friction, especially with the United States, by opening up the country's market more to imports and stimulating domestic demand. Defense buildup plans are likely to follow the trend of gradual enhancement while preserving the country's non-nuclear, non-offensive principles.

At home, the Cabinet faces tax and administrative reform issues and a search for a solution to spiraling land prices in cities.

The Cabinet lineup reflected a careful balancing of the five main factions which jostle for control within the pro-business, pro-U.S. party that has been in power since 1955.

Uno is a member of the Nakasone faction, Miyazawa heads his own faction and Tamura hails from the Takeshita faction.

Analysts have said Nakasone will continue to wield influence after his retirement, especially in foreign policy where Takeshita has little experience. The dynamic and outspoken Nakasone, who contrasts sharply with the soft-spoken Takeshita, served as prime minister for five years.

Nakasone, 69, has said he chose Takeshita for his ability to unify the party to push through domestic administrative reforms. Takeshita controls the largest faction in the Liberal Democratic Party.

The new Cabinet was to be sworn in later today by Crown Prince Akihito, acting on behalf of Emperor Hirohito who is recovering from intestinal surgery.

Shintaro Abe, the other main contender for Nakasone's position, was appointed to the high-ranking party post of secretary general.

Giant Iceberg Floats Free

WASHINGTON (AP) — An iceberg twice as big as Rhode Island has broken away from Antarctica and is drifting in the Ross Sea, the National Science Foundation reported.

"The size of the iceberg in human terms is staggering. If you could somehow transport it to California and melt it, it would supply all the water needs of Los Angeles for the next 675 years," Guy G. Guthridge of the foundation said Thursday.

Icebergs often break away from the massive Antarctic ice shelf in the Ross Sea, where they are affected by weather and tidal forces. However, the new iceberg equals two to three times the normal amount of ice that breaks free in a year.

Despite its size, the iceberg represents no threat to shipping in the region, the foundation said.

The drifting iceberg is about 25 miles wide and 98 miles long, for an area of 2,450 square miles, the foundation said. Rhode Island, by comparison, has an area of about 1,200 square miles. The iceberg is estimated to be 750 feet thick.

Despite its massive size, the floating block represents only three one-hundredths of one percent of the total area of Antarctica.

It broke from an ice shelf, a region of freshwater ice formed from snow. That ice has flowed, glacierlike, over time onto the sea surface from the Antarctic land mass. The floating ice near the coastline has many weak areas and large crevasses, scientists report.

Judd Nelson Has Starring Role In 'Billionaire Boys'

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Judd Nelson sits in edgy silence in a spare NBC conference room, looking more like a fugitive hauled in for questioning than a movie star waiting to discuss a rare television role.

Nelson has never been known as a laid-back kind of guy, and he had only recently completed his role as murderer Joe Hunt in the NBC miniseries "Billionaire Boys Club," airing Sunday and Monday.

Nelson's only previous television appearance was "a hoot," playing a comic villain opposite guest star Whoopi Goldberg in a wacky episode of ABC's "Moonlighting" last season. "But this opportunity came up," he said, "and it was incredible, this story, I had read about it from a couple of magazine articles in the spring and summer of '86 and it was like, 'Oh, right, sure this happened.' It's like only Charles Dickens could think of something with so many people and all these little machinations — Who's innocent? Who's guilty? Leaving the notes behind. Oh, my God. They were so careful, then he leaves them behind! Right. It turns out this was true."

"And they were interested in me for the part of Joe Hunt, which I thought was a bittersweet compliment — they want me to play a yuppie Charles Manson. They think I'll be perfect. Thank you very much."

Nelson played a yuppie Senate aide in "St. Elmo's Fire." The movie co-starred a group of his contemporaries who, to their chagrin, were dubbed "the brat pack" by a magazine writer. But Nelson made his mark as an actor as a tough-talking loner in "The Breakfast Club." He's been plagued recently by flops, most recently "From the Hip," a screwy comedy about lawyers.

In Joe Hunt, though, Nelson has found another brooding character worthy of his intensity. Hunt founded the Billionaire Boys Club, a financial and social affiliation of prep-school buddies who planned to parlay attitude and investments into quick millions. "It was working," Nelson said. "A lot of money passed through their hands. And had that Levin deal been real, Joe would've made the $5 million and the docudrama would be about the incredible rise to fame of Joe Hunt, you know?"

Instead, Hunt was sentenced last

July to life in prison without parole for the 1984 murder of Beverly Hills investor and con man Ron Levin. Prosecutors said Hunt murdered Levin because Levin scammed the BBC. Hunt still faces trial in the death of the father of a BBC member.

Hunt has maintained his innocence, and his case is on appeal. Because of that, his lawyers tried to block airing of the miniseries on grounds it could influence potential jurors and deprive Hunt of his rights to a fair trial. But a federal judge on Wednesday denied the request for a temporary restraining order and an injunction against the drama. The miniseries is set in a courtroom during the Levin trial, with flashbacks dramatizing the testimony.

Nelson said he was well aware of the legal complications in telling a true, ongoing story.

"You have to take very cautious steps," he said. "I've always felt that my responsibility as an actor is to serve the material, and in this case it's very structured, very rigorous. The court testimony had to be word for word, and so it should be. It's like, if there's an 'and,' don't put a 'but,' say the 'and.' It's as specific as doing Shakespeare."

Muppets To Join Ted Koppel

NEW YORK (AP) — Economics may be the dismal science to many, but ABC's Ted Koppel says tonight's "Nightline" program on Wall Street's crash should even be understandable to children. That's because he'll get help from the Muppets.

The three-hour live program, "A National Town Meeting on Wall Street and the Economy," will be broadcast in the usual "Nightline" time period, 11:30 p.m. EST.

Kermit the Frog and the Muppets will appear in a series of sketches to explain such terms as margin call, liquidity and deficit.

"The idea was, let's bring in some people who are, first of all, wonderfully entertaining, and secondly, extremely skilled at explaining things in simple terms, and that's the Muppets, believe it or not," Koppel said in a telephone interview. "They can explain terms in a way anyone can understand. Even our kids will be able to understand if they care to watch it."

The program also will feature panel discussions by experts and interviews with people who were hurt by the stock market crash.

"Nightline" spokeswoman Laura Wessner said the program would be carried live by 82 percent of the network affiliates instead of the usual 66 percent. The rest carry the program delayed on tape.

The Muppet skits were taped earlier this week at ABC's studios in New York, where Koppel posed for pictures with Kermit, dressed likewise in suit and tie, at Peter Jennings' anchor desk.
