Arabs Condemn Iran, Allow Ties With Egypt

By JOHN RICE

Associated Press Writer

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Ending their summit, Arab leaders today condemned Iran for seizing Iraqi territory and demanded an immediate cease-fire in the 7-year-old Persian Gulf war.

King Hussein of Jordan proclaimed "a new birth" for Arab unity.

Earlier, the 21-member Arab League refused to readmit Egypt, but gave its members permission to restore relations with that country. Six Arab countries will do so, sources and news reports said.

Syria and Iraq agreed to end a long feud, but summit leaders were unable to persuade Syria to pledge to stop supporting Iran against Iraq in the Gulf war.

The statements, in the final communique of a four-day Arab League summit, reflected Arab fears of Iranian threats against Persian Gulf Arab states, particularly Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

The communique also underlined the unexpected advances the emergency summit made towards healing Arab rifts and achieving a long-sought unity. The meeting was called to discuss the Gulf conflict.

Iran, although Moslem, is not an Arab nation. Iranians are Persian.

Despite Syrian efforts to mute criticism of its ally, the Arab League called on Tehran to comply with the United Nations Security Council's July 20 cease-fire resolution.

The official statement, read by Arab League Secretary-General Chedli Klibi, said the Arab leaders "condemned Iran for occupying Iraqi territory and for procrastination in accepting Security Council Resolution 598."

"The summit called on Iran to accept the resolution and its full implementation," Klibi declared.

Iran has insisted that no cease-fire can take place until a commission has investigated who started the war. Tehran has also demanded that Iraq be branded the aggressor.

The sources said the summit decided late Tuesday night to compromise and allow nations to resume relations.

Syria vetoed proposals by moderate Arab states to readmit Egypt into the league, which suspended Egypt as a member in 1979 after Cairo signed a peace treaty with Israel.

The sources and news reports said that after the summit ends later today, Bahrain, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar and Kuwait all will take steps to resume relations with Egypt.

The decision to allow members to restore their links with Egypt, the Arab world's most populous and powerful nation, marked another step toward the long elusive unity Arab moderates have been seeking to confront Iran and Israel.

Some of the sources quoted Sheikh Issa bin Salman of Bahrain as saying his Gulf island state will resume rela-

Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Kuwait, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates are members of the Gulf Cooperation Council.

Oman, the sixth member of the defense and economic alliance, never severed its relations with Cairo despite the mass rupture that followed the late President Anwar Sadat's treaty with Israel.

Sudan and Somalia also maintained relations with Cairo. Jordan

Storms Bring Ice, Twisters

By The Associated Press

Unstable weather across North Carolina spawned a waterspout that tore the side off a hotel in Morehead City, dropped the temperature 24 degrees in one hour in Raleigh and brought snow and hail to the mountains.

Morehead City Police Chief Bill Condie said the waterspout — a tornado that forms over water — came ashore at Atlantic Beach Tuesday, knocking a house off its foundations and tearing the north side off the Edgewater Hotel. He said the waterspout also broke windows in a number of houses and blew down about 15 trees.

Joe Myers, director of the state Division of Emergency Management, said the roof collapsed at one Atlantic Beach business and several other business, homes and boats sustained moderate damage.

In Raleigh, the mercury dropped from a daytime high of 76 Tuesday to an overnight low of 34, a drop of 42 degrees as a cold front rushed through the city, bringing ominous clouds and gusty winds.

Icy roads caused dozens of traffic accidents in western North Carolina, said the state Highway Patrol office in Asheville, and traffic was delayed up to an hour in Asheville because of a trace of ice on the pavement.

Department of Transportation crews were asked by the Highway Patrol to spread sand on bridges and overpasses. The Highway Patrol said Interstate 26 from Asheville to Saluda Mountain was slipping on bridges and overpasses as was Interstate 40 from Haywood County to Old Fort Mountain early today.

Snow flurries also were reported in Raleigh, High Point and Greensboro while heavier amounts fell in Morganton, Boone and Lexington. Alleghany and Watauga County authorities reported about 2 inches of snow with a few minor traffic accidents.

The National Weather Service said there were reports of up to two inches of snow across the northwest Piedmont portion of the state and predicted temperatures would continue falling across the region throughout the day.

Harris Prevost of Granfather Mountain said the low temperature overnight was 12 degrees and the reading at 10 a.m. was 13 at the 5,300-foot high weather station.

Prevost said there was 1½ to 3 inches of snow on the mountain, including snow blown there. Winds were 35 mph and up with a wind chill

GUC Will Launch Drug Testing Program Jan. 1

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Drug screening of applicants for jobs with the Greenville Utilities Commission is scheduled to begin Jan. 1 because of action taken by the GUC board Tuesday night.

Board members approved the drug screening program after Ed Askew, GUC's support services supervisor, recommended that drug screening be added to the commission's required pre-employment physical examination. A positive test will be cause for disqualification for employment.

Askew said his recommendation was not made "as a direct result of any problem we're having. But he said drug abusers are four times more likely to have accidents, five times more likely to file a worker's compensation claim, two-and-a-half times more likely to be absent for more than a week and use three times the health benefits of other employees."

The screening will check for amphetamines, barbiturates, benzodiazepines, marijuana, cocaine, methaqualone (Quaalude), opiates and phenylhydrazine (PCP).

Initial screening tests will cost $13 per person, Askew said. If the initial test is positive, a confirmation test costing $75 will be done to confirm the results of the first test, he explained.

Jackson Is Pitt Officer Of Year

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville police Sgt. Douglas Jackson is the recipient of the 1987 Pitt County Officer of the Year Award given annually by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Presentation of the award was made by Ron Cooper, chairman of the Community Safety Committee of the chamber at the law enforcement appreciation dinner held at the Hilton Inn Tuesday night.

Jackson, a native of Winterville, served as a reserve officer with the Greenville Police Department beginning in 1963. In 1972 he became a full time member of the force.

Currently, he is supervisor of the Community Relations Division of the Greenville Police Department and is vice president of the Pitt County Law Enforcement Officers Association.

For four years Jackson served in the capacity of crime prevention officer and as coordinator of Crimestoppers. In that field, he lectured on safety in Greenville and Pitt County schools and for other groups.

Jackson is a member of Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church. He is married to Martha Cartwright, and the couple has three children — sons Rick and Dalvin and a daughter, Terry Gatlin. They have one grandchild.

Entertainment at the appreciation dinner was provided by the LEO (Law Enforcement Officers) Band comprised of musicians who are members of various Pitt County law enforcement agencies.

Guest speakers were Alan Hoffman and Julie Humphrey, co-anchor newscasters at television station WNCT.

Reagan Chooses Third Nominee

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan announced today he would appoint federal appeals judge Anthony M. Kennedy to the Supreme Court as he bid for the third time to fill a high court vacancy and end a politically embarrassing episode.

Reagan praised Kennedy as a "tough judge who respects the law" as he made the appointment in a nationally televised appearance in the White House briefing room.

"Judge Kennedy is what many have referred to in recent weeks as a true conservative," said the president, as the 51-year-old jurist stood at his side.

Administration officials went to extraordinary lengths in advance of the appointment to make sure that Kennedy could pass muster both with the Democratic majority in the Senate as well as with Republican conservatives.

Reagan's first attempt to fill the vacancy on the court ended in a 58-42 rejection for appeals court judge Robert H. Bork. His second appointment, appeals court judge Douglas Ginsburg, withdrew even before his formal nomination papers could be sent to the Senate after admitting that he had smoked marijuana.

If confirmed by the Senate, Kennedy would replace retired Justice Lewis F. Powell.

Wall Street Jumps As Dollar Stabilizes

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks rallied strongly in early trading today in response to a stabilized dollar and growing expectations of a deficit-reduction agreement in Washington.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which lost more than 107 points in the previous three sessions and remains wobbly from its 508-point drop Oct. 19, jumped nearly 30 points to the 1,908 level when the market opened today.

Broader barometers also rose and gaining issues outnumbered losers by 3 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said a pact to cut the swollen budget deficit would indicate to Japan and West Germany that Washington was serious about lessening the country's enormous debts. This would help ease pressure on the dollar and could lead to a coordinated move to lower world interest rates.

"That's all very positive stuff," said Hugh Johnson, a senior vice president at the First Albany Corp. investment firm.

The early rally today on Wall Street came a day after President Reagan asserted he did not want the dollar to fall further and said the United States was not causing its decline.

Reagan's assertion helped stabilize the dollar, which has been falling

Airport Bombed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A briefcase packed with explosives went off at the Beirut airport passenger terminal today, killing the woman carrying it and wounding 40 other people, police said.

A police spokesman said the woman, identified as Soraya Sahyouni, was "split in two." No motive for the bombing was given.

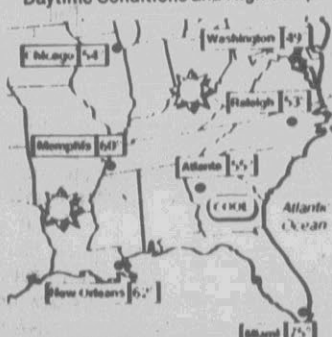

Witnesses said the bomb went off at 3:58 p.m. (8:58 a.m. EST) at the main entrance to the airport, which is in Syrian-controlled Moslem west Beirut.

Police said a Syrian soldier standing guard was among the casualties. The trooper is among a battalion of Syria's elite Special Force in charge of the airport's security.

Two Lebanese riot policemen were injured, police added.

Syrian troops sealed off the area after the explosion and fired machine guns in the air to disperse people and make way for ambulances to evacuate the casualties, one witness said.

Support

The faculty senate of East Carolina University voted Tuesday to support the position taken on academic freedom and shared governance taken by the faculty of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary.

The senate unanimously adopted a resolution stating the support of the ECU faculty, and directed ECU delegates to present the resolution to the faculty assembly of the University of North Carolina system Dec. 4.

The faculty of the Baptist seminary in Wake Forest has been at odds with the board of trustees since conservatives gained control of the board last month.

"In light of developments at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary, it seemed proper that we offer our support," said political science professor Lawrence Hough, who sponsored the resolution.

The resolution will be sent to the faculty of the seminary, Hough said.

ECU Private Gifts Almost $6 Million

East Carolina University reports $5,964,322 in total private gifts for the 1986-87 fiscal year, a 13 percent increase over private gifts to ECU in 1985-86.

Gifts to the university are received through three private foundations that support different areas within the institution. Of the almost $6 million total in private gifts, $2.8 million was given for academic purposes; $2.2 million for the school of medicine, and $1 million to support athletic programs and scholarships.

Total giving figures are prepared for the annual report of the Council for Aid to Education (CFAE), a national not-for-profit organization which encourages private support of education. The organization is funded by contributions from businesses and provides support to education through consulting and research services, seminars, periodicals and 'how to' manuals. CFAE also sponsors the public service advertising campaign, 'Give to the college of your choice.'

New Models Set For Student Teachers

East Carolina University's School of Education, striving for innovations in education, has designed new pilot programs for student teaching this semester and is recognizing that a growing number of non-traditional students, those 25 years old or over, are entering the profession.

Dr. Marjorie Calhoun, coordinator of student teaching, has worked with several academic departments to implement new student teaching models in English, business-marketing and elementary education.

The traditional teaching model consists of a five-week methods course followed by 10 weeks of student teaching. Ms. Calhoun said, "If we are going to more effectively serve the students we must look for new ways to improve their education. Each pilot program is unique and has benefits for each department."

Dr. Al Muller, director of English education, proposed the English pilot program which includes 14 weeks of student teaching along with a 14-week methods course taught at the school. Ms. Calhoun believes this model will allow a "closer communication with the university supervisor and the student teacher." Also, this model lets the university supervisor "deal specifically with problems and concerns that particular students have," she said.

Dr. Alton Finch proposed the business-marketing pilot program which includes 10 weeks of student teaching and a methods night class taught during the semester. This model allows "interaction with the university" and "the course work is much more relevant since they are trying it out," Ms. Calhoun said.

Dr. Florence Weaver helped develop the elementary pilot program which will give additional support to student teachers from the school counselors. Ms. Calhoun believes this model will help student teachers cope with the added stress of working with younger children.

Dr. Betty Levey, director of the division of services, said the school of education must look for new ways to meet the needs of non-traditional students. Thus, it has become important to explore teacher education models which will better serve non-traditional students.

In the current fall semester, there are 42 non-traditional students who range in age from 25 into their 40s. One student teacher is even a grandmother.

Property Stolen

Investigators said seven thefts, including a television set, four wheels and 14 hubcaps from vehicles at one car dealership, were reported to Greenville police Tuesday.

Officer J.G. Bridges said a television set valued at $350 and four wheels valued at $1,000 were taken from one vehicle and 14 hubcaps, with a total value of $500, were taken from four others at Joe Cullipher Chrysler Plymouth at Greenville Boulevard and Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 10:04 a.m.

Bridges also said a bicycle was taken from 201 Greenwood Drive in an incident reported at 7:42 a.m. and a hubcap was taken from a car at 2503 Dickinson Ave. in an incident reported at 11:54 a.m.

Officer C.A. Elks said two taillights valued at $200 were taken from a trailer at Mid-South Metals at 1625 N. Greene St. in an incident reported at 9:29 a.m., while Officer M.R. Benton said hubcaps valued at $400 were taken from a car parked at Carolina East Mall in an incident reported at 3:05 p.m.

Officer T.E. Evans said a bicycle was taken from 1308B Willow St. in an incident reported at 3:17 p.m., while Officer R.L. Vandiford said a stereo and two speakers valued at $500 were taken from a car parked at the Toyota East service department on Trade Street in an incident reported at 5:41 p.m.

Larceny Arrests

Three people were arrested by Greenville police on larceny charges early today.

Officer J.A. Felton said the three were arrested in connection with the theft of a two-liter soft drink from the Dodge Store on Memorial Drive about 2:32 a.m.

Felton identified the three as David Andrew Bradley, 25, of 6 Greenville Manor Apartments, Lisa Ann Taylor, 17, of Plymouth and Tracy Leigh Craddock, 16, of Route 1, Plymouth.

Cub Scout Pack 330 will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. The November theme is "Communications."

Spock Lectures Set

Dr. Benjamin Spock, pediatrician and author, will visit East Carolina University this month where he will present two public lectures.

"Stresses Affecting Families and Children" will be the topic of Spock's first address on Nov. 17 at 7:30 p.m. in Hendrix Theatre. The presentation is the first Adventures in Health "Healthy Family Lecture."

Sponsors are the ECU schools of Medicine and Allied Health Sciences, the Pitt County Medical Society/Auxiliary and the Hilton Inn.

Also on Nov. 17 at 12:30 p.m., Spock will deliver the "Perspectives" lecture in the Pitt County Memorial Hospital auditorium. His talk on "Raising Children in a Nuclear Age" is sponsored by the ECU Medical School's Department of Humanities and the local chapter of Physicians for Social Responsibility.

Both of Spock's lectures are free and open to the public.

With his first book, "Baby and Child Care," originally published in 1943, Spock became the nation's foremost child health and development expert for parents of the postwar "Baby Boom" generation. The book has sold more than 32 million copies and has been translated into 31 languages. With 1980's revisions the Spock book has gained renewed popularity among today's young parents.

How To Measure

If installing inside window frame, measure width and length. If installing outside window frame, add desired overlap, such as molding width, to inside width. If there is no molding, recommended overlap is 1 1/2" per side.

For example, if you are installing inside a window frame that measures 23 1/2" wide and 56" long, select the package marked 23" to 23 7/8" wide x 64" long. Blind lengths can be shortened at home.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Familiar Voice

It is virtually a voice from the past. Jim Gardner of Rocky Mount is considering a run for lieutenant governor on the Republican ticket in North Carolina next year. He would become the running mate of incumbent Jim Martin assuming both men won the party's nominations.

"I think it would be a great challenge to be the first Republican lieutenant governor and working with a class person like Jim Martin," Gardner said. He sees his chances of deciding to run as 50-50 and his aim would be to go on after four years to make seek the governor's office.

A generation has grown up since Gardner defeated Congressman Harold Cooley, something that was unthinkable in the solidly Democratic North Carolina of that time.

Later he ran for governor, but lost. For the past 15 years he has been out of the political limelight.

During that time Gardner has been out of the public eye a whole generation of voters has emerged who hardly know him. He was a young sensation in the late 1960s as he went to Congress. He lost the gubernatorial election to Bob Scott in a rather close vote in 1968. Then four years later he lost the GOP nomination to Jim Holshouser who went on to win a four year gubernatorial term.

Gardner's interest turned elsewhere after that. Only now is he showing a renewed concern for state politics.

An early assessments of a potential Gardner lieutenant governor campaign indicates he would be helpful to Gov. Martin by bringing some eastern support.

That may be true, but Gardner would have to become familiar to hundreds of thousands of young voters who know little about him. He would have to sell himself again — and this time without the advantages of his own youth.

Temporary Leave

The Rev. Jerry Falwell out of the public eye? Hearing that news is akin to hearing George Bush is quitting politics.

Nevertheless Falwell announced last week he was resigning as president of the Moral Majority, his effective right wing political organization.

He also said while he continues to favor Vice President George Bush for president, he would not campaign actively.

It is time for someone else "to be the lightning rod," Falwell said.

"I am now rededicating my life to the preaching of the gospel," he said. He will devote his time to Liberty University and other ministries — an effort he hopes will provide a national telephone crisis line to help pregnant teenagers, drug addicts and others.

It's doubtful whether Jerry Falwell will remain out of political situations, although there's no doubting his sincerity. He has come off a devastating tenure at PTL — a tar baby situation that stuck anyone who touched it.

It is a safe guess to suppose Falwell won't be able to stay away from political matters any more than a Richard Nixon or Lyndon Johnson. Falwell will likely opt for a time of thoughtful reflection away from the glare of public opinion. He won't be the "lightning rod" as he put it. But forever? That's dubious.

Keep Buckling

The University of North Carolina Safety Research Center report on seat belt-use by Tar Heels brought good news as well as a warning.

The good news: North Carolinians led all the states in buckling up, with an accompanying impact on injuries and deaths from traffic accidents. The warning? There is a pattern indicating seat belt usage declines after an initial display of wide interest.

Figures used in the new study were compiled during the first six months that a $25 fine was assessed for drivers and front-seat passengers caught not wearing their seat belts.

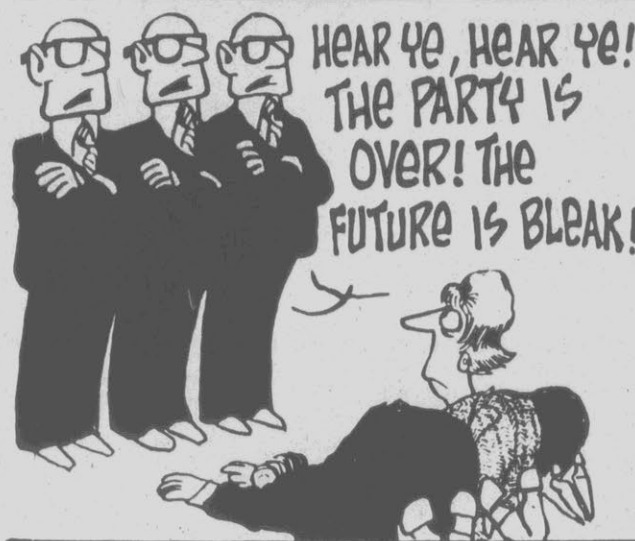

The center also released a study that showed seat belt-use saved lives of 1,300 Americans between 1985 and 1986, and 100,000 injuries were prevented.

Sixty-five percent of drivers and front-seat passengers in nearly 18,000 vehicles were seen wearing seat belts at 72 sites statewide during a two-week period in June. In April a similar survey showed usage rate was more than 67 percent. In January, 78 percent of the Tar Heel motorists were wearing seat belts at scattered checkpoints. That was the highest ever posted in the United States.

The dip in usage since the fine began in January is described as part of a national trend. It is something only individual motorists can deal with.

To be effective, safety procedures must become habitual — not something that are prodded into acceptance as a part-time measure.

For That Kind Of Justice, Wait 20 Years

Not that it will console him, but Judge Douglas Ginsburg is a man ahead of his time. His youth helped get him a nomination for the Supreme Court. Ironically, though, the nomination collapsed for a reason that will likely carry far less weight when he is as old as Robert Bork is now.

We should be clear right off that the decisive blow to Ginsburg was not simply that he had violated the law a few times. If that were the standard, imagine the questioning we could anticipate. "Did you ever leave your car in a no-parking zone?" a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee might ask. "Have you ever driven over 55 mph?" And nominees who passed these tests would face at least one more: "Have you ever violated any sexual practice laws?" As anyone who has checked the statute books of various states can confirm, that question would stop lots of folks—even the scrupulous parkers and slow drivers.

No, what defeated Ginsburg is that, by smoking marijuana several times, he violated the wrong law. I do not mean to suggest that a law professor's smoking pot at parties shouldn't be considered in reviewing his nomination. But what is remarkable is that, to the conservatives who were Ginsburg's natural supporters, the mere fact that he had smoked it as an adult amounted to a virtual disqualification — enough to pull the rug from under him even before his nomination reached the hearings stage and even before the facts were fully known.

The Ginsburg affair brings to mind the history of Supreme Court nominations in the years following the Civil War. So long as sectional strife was the dominant political fact, the Senate held nominees to stringent standards of orthodoxy. But as time passed, the Senate gradually softened, eventually confirming with enthusiasm men whose records would have precluded any consideration a few decades before.

In 1866 Andrew Johnson nominated Henry Stanbery to the court. Stanbery was an able lawyer and a loyal Republican, but his Reconstruction policies were insufficiently radical for the Senate, which did not merely reject him but eliminated the seat on the court. Eight years later, President Grant felt confident enough to nominate Caleb Cushing, a former Democrat once suspected of having southern sympathies, to be chief justice. He might have succeeded too — until it was revealed that Cushing had written a personal letter to Jefferson Davis in March 1861. By 1877, tensions had eased to the point that the first John Harlan was confirmed, albeit with some hesitancy, despite the fact that he had once owned slaves.

The most dramatic development came in 1888, when President Grover Cleveland sent to the Senate the name of Lucius Quintus Cincinnatus Lamar, who had been a leading secessionist and a Confederate colonel and diplomat. Lamar aroused furious Republican opposition, but he squeaked by, 32 to 28, on a nearly straight party-line vote. Five years later, Republicans squawked, but just a little, when one of their own, Benjamin Harrison, nominated a former minor Confederate official, Howell E. Jackson, to the court.

By the time William Howard Taft became president, a nominee's Confederate war record was counted in his favor as indicating the demise of sectional hostility. In 1909 the press noted genially that Horace Lurton, who had been captured by the Union Army, was "the only man appointed to the Court who has served time in prison." The next year, Taft promoted Edward D. White (who had originally been put on the court by Cleveland in 1892) to the nation's highest judicial seat. The national wave of self-congratulation was summed up by Theodore Roosevelt: "It seems to me that nothing could be a better augury of the future of the country than that a Republican president should appoint a former Confederate chief justice of the United States, and receive the unanimous applause of his countrymen."

The writer is a visiting professor of law at the University of Michigan Law School.

Crime Not Adequately Reported

RALEIGH — Americans have a distorted view of crime in this country and crime experts suspect that the "media" are to blame for that.

That was a view expressed repeatedly during the 1987 Crime and Justice Conference in Research Triangle Park. Time and time again, crime experts on panels prefaced their remarks with statements like, "I know the headlines always say," or, "This may be the kind of story that gets on the six o'clock news, but..."

The conference, sponsored by the Governor's Crime Commission, was opened by a nationally known criminologist, Dr. Georgette Bennett of New York. Her criticism of the "media" was especially damning because she is a journalist herself, having spent 10 years in TV news for local stations, NBC and PBS.

"Americans have a totally distorted view of the actual distribution of crime," she said. "Most crimes are minor but who wants to hear news about that? Since all we hear about are newsworthy crimes, it affects our sense of crime." Americans think that the streets are war zones, she said, when in fact most places are quite safe to walk in at night, even her own neighborhood in New York City, she said.

Several experts on computer-related crime said in another seminar that the public impression that computer hackers were rampaging through the nation's bank files was also a media-inspired misrepresentation. The more serious crime facing financial institutions, said Bill Warren, chief of investigations for First Union National Bank, is simple fraud. "But fraud is not a popular subject." So it doesn't get reported.

W.E. Robbins, a professor of computer science at N.C. State, was able to explain the misconceptions with a rather simplistic view of the news business. "They're reporting (these heinous crimes) because of the perception of profit. A lot of this is just sensationalism" aimed at making profits through the sales of newspaper or broadcast ad time.

But the others had a deeper understanding of what is occurring. Dr. Bennett said the media could not simply stop reporting major crimes. A brutal murder is something the public must be told about. This kind of reporting, however, should be complemented with analytical pieces on community crime, and by national crimes statistics from the National Crime Survey. That combination would give citizens a better picture of crime in America.

Warren of First Union noted, maybe backhandedly, that the entertainment media have a major role in our perception of crime. He said there are plenty of TV shows and movies about murders and drug use, but none about people who commit fraud while working at a computer screen all day. They aren't dramatic enough, he said.

A national survey several years ago said that Americans had a totally distorted view of crime danger and that they got this from an evening TV line-up of extremely violent cop shows that bore no resemblance to the real world. The news media were not to blame, the report said.

Warren noted that another cause of the misperception is the business world's general unwillingness, for image reasons, to disclose the crimes committed by their employees and customers. If the criminals are not turned in, their crimes can't be reported.

But whatever the reasons, the fact for the news media remains: Crime is not being accurately and adequately reported. That is something which the editors and the news directors of America must face up to.

Strength For Today

What present shall I take to my sick friend?

A doctor told recently of seeing in the bedroom of an invalid a present which struck him as highly original. It was a prism which, when laid in the sunlight on a windowsill, cast a rainbow above the invalid's bed. All day long while the sun was shining, the invalid could see the joyous colors of the rainbow on the ceiling.

For centuries the rainbow has been a symbol of hope. Are we giving our friends, when we meet them, the inestimable gift of new hope and courage? Flowers have their place in life but rainbows are better than bouquets. If you want to be really kind and helpful to a friend, put something nice in his life which will make a rainbow over his bed, over his home, over his office — and above all, over his discouraged spirit in an hour of trial.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I disagree with the U.S. Postmaster General Preston R. Fisch and our liberal U.S. Congress for allowing the 22-cent postage stamp to go to 25 cents. If this is not stopped, it will soon be $1. The very idea of the U.S. Postal Service operating with $450 million a year in a red deficit bank account. Our U.S. Congress should stop this, taking food off poor folks' tables.

The American Postal Workers Union and the National Association of Letter Carriers are asking for 6.8 percent a year for three years, plus fringe benefits. The Postal Service employees will get the most for this increase. Their starting pay, $10 an hour to $15 an hour to $20 to $30 etc. A postal employee is not worth any more than a bank teller — a department store clerk — farmers, secretaries, etc. All postal employees' salaries should be cut to the bone, including the Postmaster General, whose salary is about $100,000 a year, and pay them on a balanced federal budget.

The very idea of Congress spending $1 trillion a year! Postal employees should be put on Social Security instead of retiring on 75 percent of their salary, like most other people live on. We need more conservative statesmen in the U.S. Congress. Freeze the National Debt and all federal salaries. Then balance the federal budget over a period of 10 years by cutting everybody and everything five percent a year. The U.S. Federal Postal Service has no competition.

All the postal employees are wonderful people and give good service. It is past time to put the brakes on all inflation and stop all past employees from getting a raise, unless everybody else in America can get a raise.

Under Deng, China Fell Far Short Of Democracy

Analysis

When Deng Xiaoping achieved political supremacy in China in late 1978, he did so on a program that promised "socialist democracy" as well as economic revitalization. Indeed, the economic reforms to come were only vaguely hinted at in the ambiguous formula to combine "market adjustment with adjustment by the plan." But in the heady days of November and December 1978 what excited imaginations and aroused hopes was what many hailed as "Deng Xiaoping's march to socialist democratization."

After last week's 13th Congress of the Chinese Communist Party, a celebration marking Deng's triumphant exit from the center of the political stage, now is an appropriate time to ask how socialism and democracy fared in the nine years Deng ruled China.

The 13th Congress itself was a triumph for Deng — for the leader personally, for his policies and for his ideology. This is hardly surprising since party congresses invariably celebrate the real or alleged accomplishments of those who prepare them — and this had long been in preparation under Deng's guidance.

What is cause for some astonishment is that Deng's retirement from power, or at least from formal offices, has taken place voluntarily and under circumstances he prepared. Supreme leaders of authoritarian states typically retire only through death or sudden political coups secretly prepared by opponents. Yet Deng, who has exercised dictatorial power for nearly a decade, managed to step aside (although by no means completely out) amid the kind of praise hitherto lavished only on Mao Tse-tung. Further, he has positioned his proteges to carry on his policies and repeat his ideological formulas.

There are many good and sufficient reasons why delegates to the 13th Congress should have praised Deng. He can claim many positive accomplishments, including the release of hundreds of thousands of political prisoners from jails and labor camps, the removal of many obscurantist ideological orthodoxies, new economic policies and cultural and intellectual life that have yielded a significant (if unequally distributed) rise in an abysmally low material standard of living. It is with some justification that the 13th Congress lauded the successes of Deng's reformist economic policies — even while largely ignoring their often less than salutary social consequences. But what can the Congress truthfully say about Deng's promise of "socialist democracy?"

In reviewing Deng's record as a "socialist democratizer" during his years as China's "paramount leader" and then "senior leader" (to borrow the polite terms favored by Western journalists), historians will record that democracy was the first promise discarded. No sooner had Deng consolidated his power in 1979 than he undertook to suppress the Democracy Movement that had aided his rise to power the year before. From 1979-81, while the Deng regime was busily promulgating new legal codes — evidence of "socialist democratization," it was said at the time — youthful leaders of the once-flourishing Democracy Movement were being sent jails and labor camps by administrative decree.

In the remaining years of Deng's rule, other repressive campaigns followed in succession — directed against intellectuals, students and a wide assortment of vaguely defined "leftists." These repressions were undertaken in accordance with Deng's reaffirmation of the "four fundamental principles," the most important, as Deng repeatedly stressed, is "the leadership of the party." Indeed, Deng is nothing if not a sterling Leninist, and he has been unyielding in his refusal to tolerate any intellectual or political movement operating beyond the organizational control of the Communist Party.

To be sure, there has been much talk of "political reform" during the Deng era, with the term "democracy" constantly invoked. Without political reform, it is said, the economic reforms cannot be sustained. But "political reform," as envisioned by most party leaders, has little to do with democracy. Rather, the concern is with the institutionalization and rationalization of the party's state bureaucratic apparatus to ensure social and political stability. The aim, as Deng candidly put it, is to make the bureaucracy "better educated, professionally more competent and younger."

Insofar as plans to regularize and professionalize the bureaucracy are successful, "political reform" will not serve democratic ends but, in all likelihood, will have the long-term result of simply making the state a more efficient master. As for such elemental democratic reforms as general and direct elections, Deng recently dismissed the thought — on the grounds that the Chinese people remain mired in cultural backwardness.

Socialism, in both the theory and the practice of the Deng era, has been rendered as meaningless as "democracy" always has been in the history of the People's Republic. "Socialism" has been so broadly redefined as to become synonymous with modernization, and the term used in sufficiently flexible fashion to apply to whatever policies the regime happens to be pursuing at the moment. Thus individual entrepreneurs who have heeded the regime's injunction to "get rich first" are hailed as "socialist entrepreneurs," to be presented as new heroes of a new age. Any economic advance, accomplished by whatever means, is automatically labeled "socialist modernization."

One Deng legacy is that the means and ends of Chinese socialism have become hopelessly confused. Not only is socialism virtually equated with the modernization of China but also with Chinese nationalism. And nowhere is the confusion more pronounced than in the mind of Deng, who two years after ascending to "paramount leader," remarked: "The purpose of Socialism is to make the country rich and strong."

Baptist Moderates Pull Off 'Turning Point' Elections

By JOHN A. BOLT
Associated Press Writer
Four Southern Baptist state conventions have turned away leadership bids by fundamentalists, who have enjoyed nearly a decade of control of the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

Delegates in Georgia, North Carolina, Texas and Louisiana elected moderate or unaligned presidents Tuesday in what one moderate described as "a turning point day" in the 14.2-million member Southern Baptist Convention.

The most dramatic swing in the balance of power occurred in Georgia, where delegates meeting in Savannah refused to re-elect an eligible president for the first time in 166 years.

They also passed several resolutions restating support for Baptist-affiliated Mercer University, which had come under attack from fundamentalists since Playboy magazine depicted it as a party school. And the delegates abolished an editorial board appointed by fundamentalists to oversee the state Baptist newspaper.

Those victories prompted the moderates to put up a last-minute candidate, the Rev. Jim Pitts of Valdosta, who was elected to lead Georgia's Southern Baptists over the Rev. Clark Hutchinson, pastor of Eastside Baptist Church in Marietta.

"The presidential vote in Georgia (a close 2,109 to 2,058) really masks what a monumental victory it was," said Nancy Ammerman, a professor at Emory University's Candler School of Theology in Atlanta who has followed the fight between moderates and fundamentalists.

Ms. Ammerman said the defeat of such prominent fundamentalists as Hutchinson, who also heads a major Southern Baptist agency, means "it really does look like it's at least possible that this is kind of a turning point day."

"Maybe moderates will be energized to go to San Antonio (site of the 1988 national convention). Maybe moderates actually have a chance to elect a president," she said.

Fundamentalists gained control of the denomination during the last nine years by electing one of their own as president, a position with considerable power to appoint members to agencies and institutions.

Walker Knight, editor of a moderate Baptist newspaper based in Decatur, Ga., said Tuesday's events are "going to energize a lot of moderates to go to San Antonio. ... There'll be a big showdown in San Antonio."

"You can't imagine how quickly this is spreading by phone around the nation, exciting people all over," Knight said.

Texas Baptists unanimously elected the Rev. Joel Gregory of Fort Worth as president. Gregory was supported by moderates and fundamentalists, but Knight said the election of two moderates, the Rev. Dick Maples and the Rev. Leo Bardo Estrada, as first and second vice presidents means "people appointed in Texas are going to be moderate-leaning."

In Louisiana, the Rev. Calvin Phelps narrowly defeated the Rev. Fred Lowery, a fundamentalist. Phelps described himself as mainstream, saying he has good friends in both camps.

North Carolina Baptists elected the Rev. Leon Smith of Goldsboro, a moderate, over a fundamentalist minister, the Rev. Ned Mathews of Gastonia by a decisive 3,375 to 1,967.

Smith was nominated by Randall Lolley, who recently resigned as president of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary at Wake Forest after fundamentalists took control of the board and announced plans to fill all vacancies with professors who believe the Bible is without factual error.

Both factions describe themselves as theologically conservative, but fundamentalists believe the Bible is literally true in all respects: spiritual, historical and scientific, while moderates believe there is room for interpretation.

State Baptist groups are meeting in many states this week or next, including South Carolina, Florida, Tennessee and Mississippi. Knight said Georgia, North Carolina and Texas were the key votes because the lines had been clearly drawn between the two factions in those states.

Following the denomination's 1987 annual meeting in St. Louis, fundamentalist leaders said they were turning their attention to gaining control of the state conventions.

Knight, who edits SBC Today, said Tuesday's events indicate "there has been a backlash to the excesses of the fundamentalists. They have overreached themselves and the backlash has set in."

Ms. Ammerman said, "The fundamentalists have overplayed their hand in the last weeks. There's been just a little too much blood on the floor."

Associated Press Writer
GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina's Southern Baptists swept moderates into the state convention's top three offices by wide margins, turning back a bid by conservatives to take over the state organization.

The Rev. Leon Smith of Goldsboro, the moderate presidential candidate, captured 62 percent of the vote Tuesday, defeating the Rev. Ned Mathews of Gastonia, the conservative candidate favored by 36 percent of the delegates. The final tabulation was of 3,375 votes for Smith to 1,967 for Mathews. Another candidate, Ted Stone of Durham, had 73 votes.

"The convention demonstrated that North Carolina Baptists are not a people of creeds or strong-armed ideologies," an elated Smith said after the victory. "It demonstrated that we're a people depending on leadership from the grass-roots level, a people that respect the rights of everyone to interpret Holy Scripture according to conscience without fear of being categorized as unfaithful."

REV. LEON SMITH

"It's been an intense struggle and I hope and pray we can come together in unity," Smith said. "There are some scars, perhaps more than there were six months ago. But I plan to reach out to all Baptists in the state."

Moderates believe the Bible is inspired, but open to interpretation, while conservatives believe the Bible is inerrant — without error in all matters, including history and science.

Mathews could not be reached for comment after the vote, but another conservative leader blamed a "dishonest moderate campaign" for the loss.

"There was an orchestrated hysteria by moderates, injecting the Southeastern (seminary) events into the convention when they had no application," said the Rev. Robert M. Tenery of Morganton. "We'll be back, it's nothing new for us to lose in North Carolina. But when we come back we'll take off the kid gloves and tell the emphatic, unvarnished truth."

Tenery was referring to Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest, the scene of controversy last month. Trustees made changes to recast the seminary in a more conservative vein, and a week later, the school's president, W. Randall Lolley, announced he was resigning.

Tenery and Mathews had accused Lolley of timing his resignation so he'd be a "martyr figure" at the convention. Lolley received a standing ovation Tuesday when he nominated Smith for the presidency.

Smith said he realized the struggle the moderate and fundamentalist elements in the convention was far from over.

"I've been around long enough to know it will continue," he said. "But we've demonstrated that grass-roots Baptists don't want a fundamentalist leadership in the state. We have demonstrated that Baptists want to remain in the mainstream of religious life."

Flue-Cured Sales Top $700 Million

RALEIGH (AP) — Gross income from sales of flue-cured tobacco in North Carolina will exceed $700 million this year, state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham says.

"Growers have a right to be more optimistic in 1987 than in recent years," Graham said in a release Tuesday. "For the second consecutive year, the net price per pound has increased, and the amount going into stabilization has decreased."

A recent crop report indicates that the 1987 flue-cured crop will be 448 million pounds, Graham said. At a seasonal average price of $1.58 per pound, growers will gross more than $707 million.

"These gains were made despite a cold, wet spring; hot, dry early summer and record-breaking cold October," Graham said. "Old Belt growers were affected the most severely, as the crop harvested in October was of relatively low quality."

The 1987 seasonal average price is more than 6 cents per pound over the 1986 price for this time of the season, Graham said. Flue-cured production in 1986 was 429 million pounds, with a gross value of $657 million.

Graham added that only 3.2 percent of the crop has gone into stabilization this year, compared to 7.4 percent in 1986 and 15 percent in 1985.

IN THE STATE

Sentences

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Two Charlotte men have been sentenced to five years in prison and a third was given a suspended sentence on federal weapons charges stemming from a June shooting at the Carowinds amusement park that left a teen-ager dead and a six-year-old girl wounded.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Max Coghurn Tuesday argued for stiff sentences against Gerald Turner, 30, and James Bogatay Jr., 32, saying they had engaged in a "conspiracy of silence" about the June 7 shootings.

Turner and Bogatay had earlier pleaded guilty to charges of illegally making a machine gun, possessing an illegally made machine gun and possessing an unregistered machine gun.

U.S. District Judge Robert Potter also sentenced Charles Kupfer Jr., 20, to five years in prison, but suspended it and placed him on five years' probation. Kupfer had pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing an illegally made machine gun.

Strategy

CHARLOTTE (AP) — U.S. Sen. Bob Dole has unveiled his Southern strategy for the Republican presidential nomination — his wife, former U.S. Transportation Secretary and North Carolina native Elizabeth Dole.

"Elizabeth has agreed to carry the South for me," Dole told several hundred supporters at a Charlotte hotel Tuesday. "She speaks Southern fluently."

The Kansas Republican pledged to reduce the federal deficit if elected president.

Eastern Cuts

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines reportedly plans to layoff at least 3,000 workers and has announced it intends to participate in a state-subsidized program to use welfare recipients as reservation agents.

The layoffs, which may be announced today, were formulated in response to a third quarter loss of $67.4 million and an expected loss in the fourth quarter, airline sources told The Miami Herald.

It would be the first time the Miami-based employer of 38,000 has laid off so many workers since the 1981 air traffic controllers strike, which sharply reduced operations.

Guard

RALEIGH (AP) — A federal prosecutor has asked a U.S. district judge not to reduce the sentence of former Alabama prison guard Gerry Dale in the suffocation of an inmate, citing the cruelty of the crime among other factors.

Dale was sentenced to nine years in prison on a charge relating to the death of Vinson Harris of Charlotte, whose head was wrapped with a bandage and duct tape on a prison bus traveling through North Carolina.

Prosecutor Mark B. Harmon, in a written response filed last week in U.S. District Court in Raleigh, said no sentence reduction was warranted because there were no changed circumstances or new information that was not known when Dale was sentenced in June.

"It is hard to imagine a more cruel act or a more horrible death than that suffered by Mr. Harris as a result of the death mask applied by the defendant," Harmon wrote.

Charge Dropped

RALEIGH (AP) — The sheriff of Hyde County was charged last spring with going 85 miles per hour in a 55 mph zone in Raleigh, but Wake District Attorney Colon Willoughby dismissed the charge after the sheriff told him he was involved in a drug investigation when his car was stopped.

Willoughby said it was unusual to dismiss the charge, filed May 16 against Sheriff Roland Ward Dale. Willoughby dismissed it June 8.

"It is my opinion that he was actively involved in law-enforcement activities at the time and that there was a genuine emergency," Willoughby said Tuesday. "I felt that the state's interest was best served by not prosecuting."

When he got the speeding ticket, Dale said Tuesday, he was returning to coastal Hyde County from Raleigh-Durham Airport with an informant who had helped set up an undercover drug buy that day in an Atlanta hotel.

EPA Considers Revocation Of Waste-Control Authority

RALEIGH (AP) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is considering whether to revoke North Carolina's authority to regulate hazardous wastes because of a bill passed this year by the General Assembly, EPA officials say.

The bill required that each gallon of discharge from a proposed GSX Corp. plant in Scotland County be diluted by 1,000 gallons of water.

"Basically, it appears the state's program is inconsistent with the federal program," EPA spokesman Carl Terry said Tuesday.

The order beginning the revocation proceedings was signed by acting regional administrator Lee DeHihns and lists 25 allegations, Terry said, including a charge that the act discriminates against commercial hazardous waste treatment facilities.

GSX and the Hazardous Waste Treatment Council petitioned the EPA and listed a number of other allegations, Terry said.

Among the complaints is GSX's allegation that the act "restricts or impedes the free movement of hazardous wastes across state borders for purposes of treatment, storage or disposal."

The council says its purpose and the objectives of the federal act are "to promote health and environmental protection by minimizing land disposal of hazardous wastes and by encouraging the recycling, reuse and treatment of such wastes," Terry said. The state law, the group charges, "allegedly contravenes those objectives."

Earl Mac Cormac, Gov. Jim Martin's science adviser, said in June that the bill appeared to be designed to prevent GSX from locating a facility on the Lumber River.

Mac Cormac said Tuesday that if the federal agency were to take over the state's hazardous-waste management program, North Carolina agencies "could not issue permits or renew permits to industries here," but would have to gain permission for their projects from the EPA in Atlanta.

"I hope something can be done, because this would be most undesirable to North Carolina," Mac Cormac said. "It could mean that in North Carolina we would not have many industries locating here. ..."

U.S. Rep. Howard Coble, whose 6th District includes Davidson County, said the EPA's action Tuesday means that Davidson County and Rowan County should be removed from the state's list of potential sites for a hazardous-waste treatment plant. "Clearly, North Carolina's legal authority to continue the site selection process is now in jeopardy," Coble said in a prepared release. "... Davidson and Rowan counties were not appropriate choices for the location of a hazardous waste treatment facility."

"Surely there are locations in our state where population, water supply and recreational areas would not be threatened by such a facility," Coble said.

Raleigh attorney Al Adams, who represents GSX, said the EPA's action "is certainly not a surprise because it's exactly what EPA said they were going to do."

A hearing on whether North Carolina's management program is in compliance with the federal guidelines was set for Jan. 12-13, Terry said.

Incomes Drop As Poor Pay More, Rich Pay Less

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal tax burden on the average middle-income family has held steady over the last decade but the poor are paying more and the rich are paying less, government figures show.

The nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office, in a new study released Tuesday, also found that after inflation is considered, most families have lower incomes than they did in 1977.

CBO estimated that the poorest 10 percent of Americans will give 20 percent more of their income to the federal government next year than they did in 1977. The wealthiest 10 percent — income averaging about $120,000 — will pay 6.4 percent less than in 1977.

The federal burden on the median-income family, whose earnings this year are about $28,200, will be down slightly next year, from 21.0 percent in 1977 to 20.9 percent.

The study focuses on the total individual federal tax burden: income taxes, Social Security taxes and excises on alcohol, gasoline and tobacco. It assumes that corporate taxes are paid by people and divides the corporate burden among individuals.

CBO estimated that the population as a whole paid 22.8 percent of income in federal taxes in 1977 and will pay 22.7 percent in 1988.

The report analyzes effects of tax cuts enacted in 1978 and 1981, tax increases approved in 1982, 1983 and 1984, and the big overhaul enacted last year, which generally will produce the same revenue for the government as the old law.

It noted that while the income-tax burden on the poorest people has actually declined, that has been more than offset by higher Social Security taxes and taxes on gasoline, alcohol and tobacco.

"Between 1977 and 1984, the distribution of total federal taxes became less progressive," meaning ability to pay became less important, CBO said in the report. "This change primarily reflected a shift in the tax burden at both extremes of the income distribution."

The 1986 tax overhaul, which is being phased in, is expected to make the system somewhat more progressive, the report added, but ability to pay will still be less of a factor than it was in 1977.

The report was released by Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, a Senate Finance Committee member who favors shifting a greater share of the tax burden onto upper-income Americans.

Although most members of Congress apparently don't want to increase income taxes in order to cut the federal deficit, Mitchell noted the study concludes that if the richest 1 percent of Americans were taxed at the same level as they were in 1977, one-quarter of this year's budget deficit would be eliminated.

"The study shows the extent to which the most privileged in our society have reaped tremendous benefits from Reagan administration tax policies," Mitchell told a news conference.

Even more striking than the changes in tax burden has been the shift in income, Mitchell said. "Average real income has increased in this country, not because average working-class families are better off but because the highest-income families have had such a tremendous increase in their incomes," he added.

By the end of 1988, 80 percent of families will have seen their incomes decline since 1977 when adjusted for inflation, CBO concluded. But the richest 10 percent will see an average increase of 16 percent, the top 5 percent will average a 23 percent rise and the richest 1 percent will see their incomes grow by 50 percent.

"While average real incomes are projected to increase in all income ... (ranges) between 1984 and 1988," CBO found, "the largest percentage increase by far will occur for families in the top of the income distribution."

Mitchell said one factor worsening the plight of middle-income people is that many with incomes between $20,000 and $75,000 are likely to face a tax increase next year, when the minimum tax rate rises from 11 percent to 15 percent.

Supporters of President Reagan's economic policies say the big 1981 tax cut has encouraged saving and investment in job-creating activities. As evidence, they note Internal Revenue Service estimates that a significantly larger share of the tax burden is now paid by upper-income Americans.

"That argument conveniently overlooks the fact that the wealthy now claim a much larger share of national income," Mitchell said. "Their income has increased to such an extent that even though they received disproportionate (larger) tax cuts, they contribute more tax revenues." The Treasury Department offered no immediate reaction to the CBO study.

American Holds Best-Time Lead

WASHINGTON (AP) — The major airlines have made their on-time records public for all to see, but critics say consumers still do not have easy access to the detailed information necessary to make informed choices.

The Transportation Department issued its first monthly airline consumer scorecard Tuesday including statistics that rank 14 leading airlines according to on-time arrival, handling of baggage and overbooking.

American Airlines showed the best on-time performance overall with USAir the worst, followed closely by Northwest Airlines. The report, which reflects flights during the month of September, showed 84.5 percent of American's flights arrived within 15 minutes of the scheduled times, compared to 67.4 percent for USAir and 69 percent for Northwest.

About 150 flights were chronically late — at least eight out of every 10 times out. Delta Air Lines accounted for a third of the chronically tardy flights tabulated.

The barrage of statistics reflecting 430,000 flights showed that overall, 77 percent arrived at their destinations within 15 minutes of schedule. That's considered "on-time" by the government.

The fewest departure delays were recorded at airports for Tampa, Fla., Dallas-Fort Worth and Atlanta. Atlanta had been singled out earlier this year by the Transportation Department as having the most acute delay problems.

In each of the three airports, flights left the gate on time at least 89 percent of the time in September.

Travelers did not fare as well at Pittsburgh, Detroit, San Francisco and Philadelphia, where planes left on time between 74 and 78 percent of the time, according to the government figures.

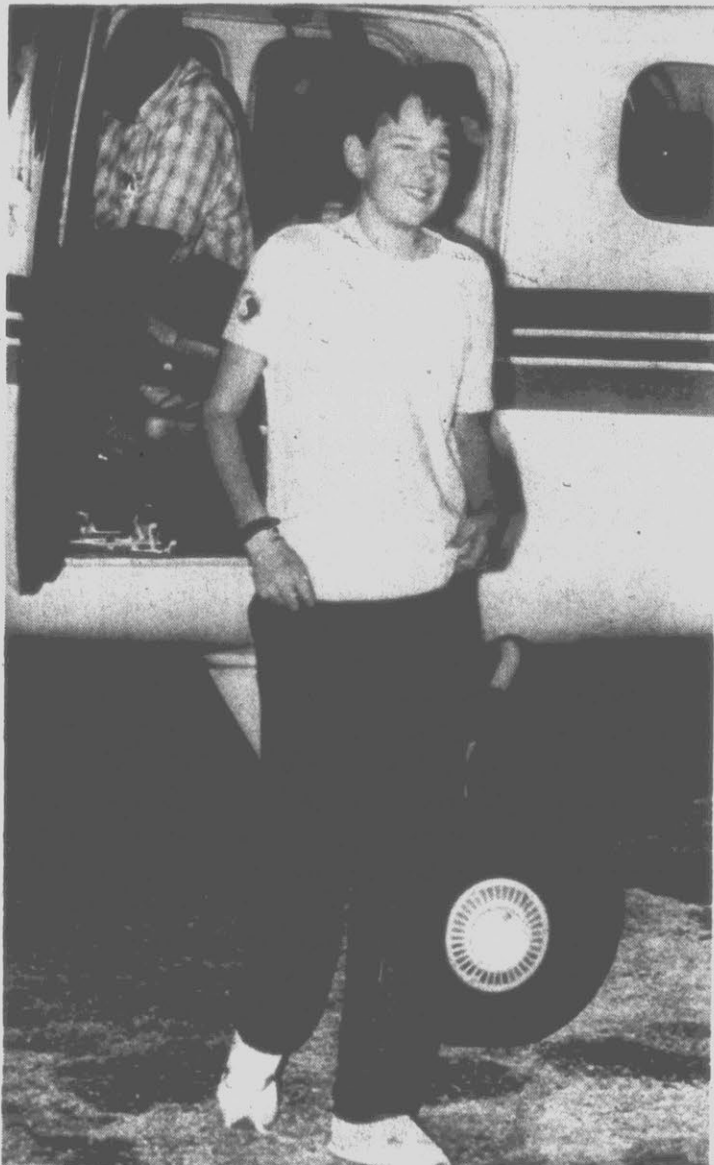

The Transportation Department said it released the information to give consumers new tools with which to choose an airline based on service.

"Competition works best when consumers have the information they need to make informed choices," said Matthew Scocozza, assistant secretary for policy and international affairs.

But some critics complained that the information, although voluminous, may not be of as much help as department officials suggested.

A spokesman for the Airline Passengers of America, a group formed last summer because of the furor over poor airline service, called the DOT information "generally helpful" but not specific enough to help a traveler choose one airline over another on a particular trip.

Critics noted that the Transportation Department reporting requirement covers only 27 airports specifically.

BOY PILOT — Ten-year-old Erik Fiederer smiles as he emerges from his Cessna Centurian P-210 after landing at Miami International Airport Tuesday on the last leg of a cross-country flight that originated in Fort Lewis, Wash. He made the trip in 15 hours. (AP Laserphoto)

Young Pilot Crosses U.S. In 15 Hours

PATRICK AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — A 10-year-old pilot who flew across the country in 15 hours of air time says he dreams of eventually soaring in an F-14 fighter jet.

"I'm glad that I made it so far," said Erik Fiederer, smiling widely and wearing a yellow T-shirt with the word "Radical" on the back.

Erik made the 2,500-mile trip with his mother, Air Force Col. Nancy Fiederer, and flight instructor Daryle Crowder. They spent about 90 minutes Tuesday night in Miami before making the 180-mile hop to this central Florida base, where he spent the night in VIP quarters.

"The best moment was when I touched down here," the boy from Santa Maria, Calif., said after arriving at the base near Cape Canaveral. "We're going to Disney World for two days before we start back home."

Erik, who had only three months of flying experience, boarded a Cessna Centurian P-210 at Fort Lewis, Wash., on Monday and after a few stops touched down 31½ hours later at Miami International Airport.

Survey Pinpoints Ways Different Regions Of U.S. View The Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Midwesterners are likely to oppose aid to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua, New Englanders are inclined to favor more farm aid, Southerners are riled at the thought of higher taxes, and if you work for the government, don't expect a lot of respect from Rocky Mountain residents.

These are among the findings of a survey, conducted by The Gallup Organization for Times Mirror Co., which turned up sharp differences of opinion from one region of the United States to another.

The survey, billed as the "most exhaustive study of the American electorate ever undertaken," explores the personal, social and economic values that make the American people tick politically.

The results were based on interviews with 4,244 people last April and May. Overall findings were released in Sept. 30, and a regional breakdown of the results was issued today.

New England — a key region in presidential politics because of its early presidential primaries — tends to be liberal on economic and social issues and concerned about protecting the environment, the survey says. The region is also characterized by a "general lack of religiousness," it said.

Although the New England economy is less agriculture-dependent than some other parts of the country, residents strongly favor increased aid to farmers, and generally support increased funding for social programs, according to the study.

The South was rated the most religious part of the country. The survey generally reported conservative social attitudes and "militant anti-communism" in the region as well.

"The Bible Belt is real, not just a political saying," the survey said.

The Southeast states — Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi — were called the least tolerant of differing views. And the Southwest — Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma — was described as the most opposed to tax increases and to government social programs.

People in the Rocky Mountain states — Montana, Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and New Mexico — hold "extremely strong anti-government attitudes" and are most likely to favor the death penalty, the survey said.

Forty percent of the people in the region ranked themselves as highest on the scale of anti-government attitudes, compared with a 24 percent national average, the survey said. Eighty-three percent favor the death penalty, while nationally, 72 percent support capital punishment.

The region designated by the survey as West Central — including the Midwestern states of Iowa, Missouri, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas — is described as low on support for Contra aid, with 65 percent saying it should be decreased.

Generally, the area is characterized by "non-interventionist attitudes" on foreign policy, the survey said.

Interestingly enough, residents of this Farm Belt area do not favor increased government aid to farmers in greater proportions than the national public does, the survey said.

"Although the region is often associated with traditional values, its people seem anything but provincial," said the study.

People in the Middle Atlantic region — New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland, West Virginia and the District of Columbia — "differ most from national norms in their highly positive view of government and their pro-interventionist stance on achieving social justice," the survey said.

The Pacific states, California, Oregon, Washington, Hawaii and Alaska, tend to be more progressive on issues in which they differ from the national average, the survey said.

"The political values differences in the Pacific region are consistent with the popular perception of the laid-back Californians," the survey said. "The population rates low on religiousness and high on tolerance for those with differing points of view."

Planet-Like Object Seen Near Star

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Astronomers say they have found the most direct evidence yet of a planet-like object that orbits a star other than the sun and may help prove that the universe will eventually collapse in a "Big Bang."

The gaseous object, twice as hot as Venus and bigger than Jupiter, is believed to orbit the white dwarf star Giclas 29-38, considered a nearby star at 270 trillion miles from Earth, said Ben Zuckerman of the University of California, Los Angeles.

The object, with a diameter about 15 percent that of our sun, could be the first discovery of a brown dwarf, a hypothesized body that is midway between a planet and a star. However, Zuckerman said he was being cautious because of earlier false alarms.

"It's very much the 'boy that cried wolf' syndrome" that has marked the effort to discover planets beyond our solar system, he said.

If they exist, brown dwarfs could help comprise the "missing mass" of the universe, which scientists believe must be present if the universe ultimately is to collapse in another "big bang," rather than expanding forever. Only 10 percent of the mass has been observed or inferred.

Zuckerman and University of Hawaii astronomer Eric Becklin presented their findings Tuesday at the 19th annual meeting of the American Astronomical Society's Division of Planetary Sciences. The study also will be published Thursday in the British journal Nature.

Hells Angels Facing Charges In 5 States

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Law officials behind the arrests of at least 38 Hells Angels in five states, including three in North Carolina, predict the undercover operation will end the motorcycle club's criminal activity.

The charges against the gang members involve explosives, drugs, weapons and conspiracy to commit murder.

"The Hells Angels ... have succeeded in controlling the methamphetamine or 'crank' network through verticle integration of manufacturing, distribution and retailing backed up by violence to enforce that monopoly," said California Attorney General John Van de Kamp at a news conference Tuesday.

"I am happy to say that (Tuesday's) arrests should seriously disrupt their organization and the supply of this dangerous drug here in California," he said. He added the raids and arrests "have laid bare the Hells Angels' extensive role in drug trafficking and violent crime that supports it."

Fellowship Awarded

Pitt County extension agent Mitch Smith was awarded a Philip Morris Fellowship recently.

The fellowship is equal to his salary with the North Carolina Extension Service and is to be used for study toward a graduate degree at North Carolina State University in a technical area related to tobacco.

The fellows program was started in 1977 with a grant from Philip Morris U.S.A. It aids in the professional development of extension personnel working with tobacco.

Smith, a native of Oak City, is enrolled in the NCSU Department of Crop Science and is pursuing a master's of agriculture degree.

Church Discussions

Residents of the Snead's Ferry area who are interested in the formation of a Presbyterian Church have been asked to contact Marjorie Luce, 803 Marina Court, Snead's Ferry, N.C., 28460, (telephone 327-3574) or the Rev. Jack Dail, P.O. Box 1137, Burgaw, N.C., 28425, (telephone) 259-2768.

Research Seminar

A genealogical research seminar will be conducted by genealogist Golden V. Adams at Joslyn Hall of Carteret Technical College at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Topics will include organization of research information, analysis of findings, compilation of a family case study, how to prepare for an on-site field trip to the area of ancestry, and using the research information in writing a family history. Participants are being asked to carry three or four documents with family information to use in learning how to organize files.

Seminar sessions are from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

For information call Susan Hancock at 728-5716 or Hannah Beasley at 728-5046. Proceeds will be used to finance a family history library at Harkers Island.

Class Had Visitor

Jill Bullock, school psychologist, recently visited Ruby Joyner's seventh-grade health class. She talked to the students about her job of helping students with learning problems.

20th Century Club

The 20th Century Social Club will meet at 5:30 p.m. Sunday at the home of James Brewington, 300 Woodside Road.

Services At Selvia

Selvia Chapel Free Will Baptist Church will celebrate anniversary services for Bishop A.H. Hartsfield this week.

Speakers include: today, the Rev. Willie Joyner of Farmville; Thursday, the Rev. Ellis Forman, and Friday, the Rev. Joe Dixon of Farmville. Services begin each day at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Bobby Proctor of Wilson will lead the 11 a.m. service Sunday and the Rev. James Tripp of Vanceboro will lead the 3 p.m. service.

Diet-Cancer Lecture

Possible links between diet and cancer will be the topic of a free lecture Thursday at 8 p.m. at East Carolina University's Mendenhall Student Center.

Dr. David Kritchevsky, associate director of Wistar Institute of Anatomy and Biology in Philadelphia, will be the guest speaker for the talk, which is co-sponsored by the ECU School of Medicine, the National Dairy Council and the ECU chapter of Sigma Xi, an honorary society of scientific researchers.

Kritchevsky, a participant in the National Dairy Council's visiting faculty program, will discuss the role of nutrition in cancer prevention.

During his three-day visit to ECU, he will also deliver scientific research lectures on topics related to nutrition to faculty and students at the School of Medicine.

Grant Is Awarded

Methodist College at Fayetteville has received a $250,000 Title III endowment grant from the U.S. Department of Education.

Under terms of the award, Methodist must match the grant with an equal amount. The money must be held in the endowment fund for 20 years, with the college allowed to spend up to one-half of the income earned annually from the investment.

College President Elton Hendricks said income earned from the grant will generate approximately $25,000 annually.

Alumni Gathering

The Foothills Chapter of the East Carolina University Alumni Association will host "An Evening with the Chancellor" at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 20 at the Ramada Inn in Hickory.

The chapter is inviting all ECU alumni and their guests to attend and meet Chancellor Richard R. Eakin.

Persons planning to attend should contact Jerry Hodge, 623 Powell Road, Lenoir, N.C., 28645, (704) 758-9000. For more information contact Hodge or Gayle Harris in Taylorsville, (704) 632-2284.

Spotlight Series

The second segment of the Mental Health Association's annual Spotlight series will begin Thursday with Dr. Jeanne Berretta presenting "Depression in the Elderly."

Dr. Berretta is an assistant professor in the Geriatrics Division of the East Carolina University Department of Family Medicine.

The program will be held in the Jaycee Park building, 2000 Cedar Lane, and will begin at noon. Sandwiches and soft drinks will be available. For information call 752-7448.

CAPTIVE AUDIENCE — Andrew Kellum, 4, watches intently as Guyille Fountain works on a car in a garage in the Back Swamp community near Jacksonville in Onslow County. The youngster, enjoying his orange juice while he watches, has dreams of becoming a mechanic in his older years and he takes a look at mechanics at work whenever possible. (AP Laserphoto)

Symposium At ECU

Approximately 60 North Carolina educators and scientists were at East Carolina University recently for the eighth annual chemistry symposium co-sponsored by the ECU Department of Chemistry and the Eastern N.C. Section of the American Chemical Society.

Titled "Classroom Innovations in Chemical Education," the symposium was scheduled to coincide with National Chemistry Day. Included were sessions on recent developments in chemical curricula for middle grade and high school students. Emphasis was placed on the use of computers in high school and college chemistry classes.

Dr. Peter Yankwich, senior executive officer of the National Science Foundation's Directorate for Science and Engineering Education, was keynote speaker. His topic was "Has Tomorrow Come? A Look at Recent Progress in the Support for Science and Mathematics Education."

Testing Helps People Start Fitness

By DOUG KAUFMAN
Belleville News-Democrat
BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — In a five-week period, Steve King pinched about 20 tummies, asked a lot of personal questions and put several people through agony.

But these people were not angry. They were grateful.

Since early June, King has administered physical fitness evaluations to staff and members of the YMCA of Southwest Illinois, Downtown Belleville Center.

Whether people want to trim fat, start walking programs, improve their stretch at first base or win triathlons, the fitness evaluation can help.

"Whatever they want out of an exercise program, they let us know and we help them to accomplish that," he said.

Doctors and exercise physiologists devised the test for the YMCA, and instructors like King take a week-long course to learn how to give it.

It covers four areas: percentage of body fat, cardio-respiratory fitness, muscular strength and endurance and flexibility. Computer-tabulated results compare a person's fitness to that of others of the same age and sex.

In all test categories, results are discussed. If areas need improvement, King suggests specific exercises.

"It's a good starting point, said King, the YMCA's physical director. People first answer medical questions to reveal whether they are healthy enough to take the test or need a doctor's OK.

"Some people think this is a stress test," King said. "It's not. It's a fitness test. We're not doctors. This isn't any type of medical thing at all."

Then, participants have their resting heart rate and blood pressure recorded.

The first test is body composition, important because obesity is a health hazard. Using a caliper, the skin is pinched in four places — the chest, abdomen, hip and side.

The sum of the measurements is used to determine percentage of body fat. Although not as precise as body immersion, the caliper is accurate to plus or minus 3 percent.

The second test uses an exercise bike to test cardio-respiratory endurance.

Participants ride until their heart rate reaches the "training zone," 70 to 85 percent of the top rate at which their heart should beat per minute during exercise. The top rate is calculated by subtracting age from the number 220.

Participants begin pedaling at low resistance to warm up and get the heart working harder, as their heart rate is measured. The process is repeated at a second, more difficult level, then at a third.

At each level, the rider must pedal at a steady rate, with the idea to find a plateau, or steady state, at each level up to the training zone.

Being aware of maximum heart rate will help athletes know when to push and when to back off. "It's very important when these people are exercising to take their heart rate and see where they are," King said.

The third test area is muscular strength and endurance. Strength is tested by the number of smooth repetitions in the bench press, in which a weight is pushed up from the chest while lying on a bench.

Participants test their endurance by doing as many sit-ups as possible in one minute.

The final test area is flexibility. Sitting on a measuring device, participants stretch legs in front with knees slightly bent and lean forward at the waist. The idea is to use your hands to push a marker as far forward as possible. The farther it goes, the greater the trunk and hamstring flexibility.

"Most people need to work on their flexibility," King said. "Everybody is always concerned with how strong they are, but flexibility is very important."

Flexible muscles, tendons and ligaments will stretch, rather than snap or pull, in the case of falls or overextension.

Active people need to be flexible to remain injury free, King said.

"Fitness is a lifestyle, not a fad," King said. "People are beginning to realize that more. People are more aware of physical fitness than they ever have been."

Reception Given For Mr. and Mrs. Harris

AYDEN — Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Harris were honored at a reception in celebration of their 50th wedding anniversary. The reception was held at the Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church fellowship hall.

MR. AND MRS. HARRIS

The couple celebrated their anniversary Oct. 17.

The reception was given by the couple's children and grandchildren including Bill and Jeannette Harris Whiteman and children, Lynette, Joel and Mark of Sanford; Ron and Elaine Harris Hardin and daughters, Jessica and Rebecca of Tarboro, and Tony and Linda Harris and daughter, Toni Elizabeth, of Route 1, Winterville.

Wife Disagrees With Company's Plan

DEAR ABBY: My husband's company is having a three-day weekend meeting at a resort hotel in the city in which we live. There are no planned evening activities, and spouses are not invited.

They have reserved a hotel room for my husband, and he insists on staying there rather than at home. Also, he insists on my staying at home and not joining him at the end of the work day. I don't agree.

What are your thoughts? — RESENTFUL

DEAR RESENTFUL: I don't blame you for feeling resentful. If your husband wants to attend meetings at a nearby resort hotel, fine. But he should come home to sleep.

Dear Abby

be necessary, but unfortunately, it is.

DEAR ABBY: My sister, "Nell," is about to divorce "Jim," who was a miserable abusive husband. Jim wants another chance, but Nell has given him more chances than she can count. Listen to this: Before Nell married Jim, she told him that when she was a child, she had been sexually abused by our father. She thought Jim had a right to know in order to help him understand any residual hangups she may have suffered from that terrible experience. Nell never told our mother because our father threatened to kill her if she told anyone.

Jim told Nell if she goes through with the divorce, he will tell our mother everything. Abby, Mother would be devastated and it would be the end of their marriage. It would also hurt our father professionally and socially if this ever got out. With the help of a therapist, Nell was able to overcome the psychological damage, forgive our father, and felt no need to tell our mother.

How can we prevent Jim from telling our mother now? — OLD WOUNDS

DEAR OLD WOUNDS: I recommend that you choose the lesser of the two evils. First, explain your dilemma to your father in order to prepare him to deal with the situation when you disclose this blackmail plot to your mother. It won't be easy, but it's far better than forcing your sister to stay married to Jim.

DEAR ABBY: I repeatedly told my former boss not to touch me, hold my hand, play with my hair or pat my rear. He persisted, and rejecting him cost me my job. Abby, your statement that some people feel that their space has been violated is true. However, when I told him to stop it, he referred to me as the "Ice Queen."

Because of his abusive ways and unwelcome touches, a federal judge will now have to decide this case.

My former firm calls me ... THE PLAINTIFF

DEAR PLAINTIFF: Hooray for you for standing your ground! And for other women (or men) who have lost their jobs because they refused to put up with their boss's unwelcome touching, holding and patting — contact your nearest Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Sexual harassment is an unlawful employment practice under federal law.

Couple Receives Appointments

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Youmans of Greenville were appointed to serve as grand officers at the 22nd annual meeting of the Grand Court of N.C. Order of Amaranth.

The meeting was held at the Four Seasons Holiday Inn in Greensboro.

He was appointed as grand representative to N.J. from N.C. and she was appointed to serve as grand historian from N.C. They were installed at the recent meeting.

They are past royal patron and past royal matron of Tryon Court No. 16 in New Bern.

DEAR ABBY: Last week I hosted a party at my home to which some 75 co-workers had been personally invited. The party was to honor a much-loved employee who is leaving the area to take a new job. I invited people on all levels of the company — from executives to the mailroom staff. They all knew Marilyn and liked her.

Do you know how many responded to the R.S.V.P.? Fifteen out of 75 said they would be there. I estimated that 25 or 30 people would show. Eight showed up! I even had jumbo shrimp left over. I've given parties and invited total strangers and had a better response. I would have saved a lot by just writing Marilyn a check for $500. I hope some of the 60 who didn't bother to say yes or no will recognize themselves.

My question: Is an R.S.V.P. meaningless anymore? — PUZZLED IN DELAWARE

DEAR PUZZLED: People with manners acknowledge every invitation. Believe it or not, many people do not know that "R.S.V.P." means "Please respond with your acceptance or refusal."

Perhaps it should be spelled out more clearly: "Please call and let me know whether you are coming or not." Then a few days before the party, the hostess should contact those who have not responded and ask if they plan to attend. This should not

DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a letter from a person troubled by an 84-year-old abusive mother. In your reply you said, "Abused children usually abuse their own children."

Abby, that is not true. The majority of people who were abused as children do NOT abuse their own children because they remember well the pain they suffered at the hands of abusive parents. Perpetuating the cycles of abuse is not inevitable, and to suggest otherwise does a grave injustice to the millions of parents out there who have overcome their own sad histories to give their own children the loving childhoods they did not have themselves. — BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN THERE: You are absolutely right. I knew better. I meant to say, "Most child abusers were themselves abused as children." Mea culpa for that goof. Thanks to you — and the many other careful readers who wrote to correct me.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl and am told I'm very attractive. Just once, I'd like to go on a date and not have the guy expect sex afterward. So many guys tell me they won't like me if I don't do it with them. No matter how much I like them, I never give in. So I end up getting dumped!

Sweater Has Cable Style

An easy-living classic with updated form, and texture to excite the eye — that's this cable knit turtleneck pullover sweater.

Seed stitch forms the background for graduated cables on the front and back of this beautifully styled wardrobe staple. A soft, flattering turtleneck, dropped shoulders and generously cut long sleeves are other features that add to its universal appeal. Fluffy 100 percent acrylic yarn that is machine-washable for easy care makes this favorite soft to the touch. The gauge is five stitches to the inch, and easy-to-follow directions are given for small, medium and large sizes with finished bust measurements of 36, 38 1/2 and 41 inches respectively.

To obtain directions for making the Classic Cables Sweater, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-110887 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-110887 by sending a check or money order for $23.95 for the small, medium or large to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, instruction leaflet and acrylic yarn in your choice of peach or jade.

Dear Pat: Can you please answer two questions for me? First, why is my first stitch so big and out of shape on my knitting, and how can I correct this? Then, how can I change sweater directions calling for four-ply worsted-weight yarn to sports-weight yarn? — Iona S., Sandy, Utah

Dear Iona: To tighten your first stitch, try pulling the yarn tight after you complete the last stitch at the end of the row and after the first stitch at the beginning of the next row. This will usually do the trick.

Pat's Pointers

The answer to your second question is much more involved and, unless you have a thorough understanding of how gauge affects all measurements throughout a sweater, I would recommend that you look for a pattern of similar style that calls for sports-weight yarn.

Worsted-weight yarn is most commonly knitted to five stitches to the inch, while sports-weight usually is knitted to a gauge of six stitches to the inch. To give you an illustration of how this translates into finished widths, 200 stitches (combined back and front of a sweater) at a five-stitch gauge would result in a finished measurement of 40 inches. At a six-stitch gauge, the same number of stitches would give you a finished measurement of 33 1/3 inches.

This same relationship between gauge and inches applies throughout a sweater design. Changing from one yarn to the other would call for fairly complex figuring for neckline, shoulder, sleeve and armhole shapings — a formidable task for the average knitter.

One of the most common causes of poorly fitting sweaters is being "just a little" off-gauge. In this example, you can see that there is a difference of almost 7 inches when the gauge is off by just one stitch per inch. Even being off-gauge by one-half stitch per inch gives you a difference of approximately 3 1/2 inches. With bulkier yarns, the difference is even more dramatic.

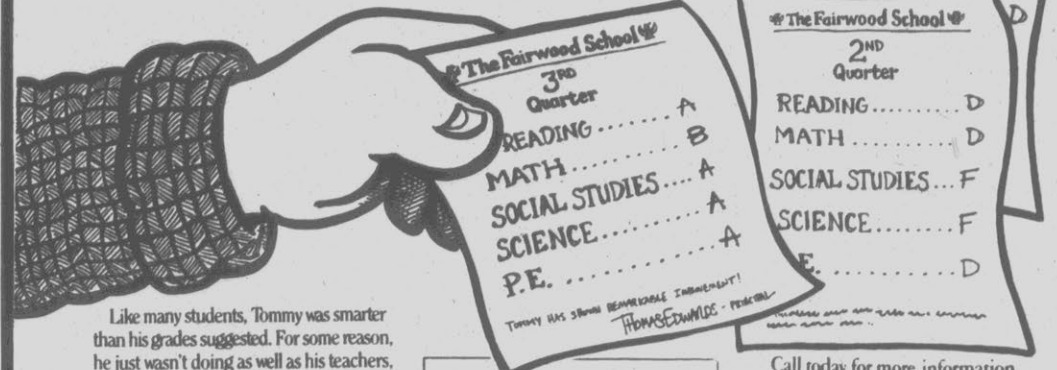

CLASSIC CABLE

So, even when you are using the yarn called for in a pattern, you should always make sample swatches to determine which needle size will give you the exact gauge given for any knit or crochet design.

The needle or hook sizes listed on any pattern are the sizes used by the designer, and chances are good that your own tension will be different. The only happy "off-gauge" knitter I have ever met was a woman who knitted exclusively for her 12 grandchildren. She told me, "It doesn't really matter what size I end with, it will fit someone."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rallied today, responding to a steadier dollar and hopes for an impending agreement on a federal budget plan.

Trading was relatively quiet, however, with many investors taking a Veterans Day holiday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 31.17 to 1,909.32 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 7 to 2 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 987 up, 279 down and 352 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 25.52 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

The dollar steadied in foreign exchange today following President Reagan's assertion Tuesday that he doesn't want to see it go down any further.

Brokers said investors were also heartened by reports that talks between the administration and Congress were progressing toward agreement on a plan to narrow the federal budget deficit.

The government securities market was closed today for the holiday.

Gainers among the blue chips included American Express, up 1 1/2 at 23 1/2; General Electric, up 1/2 at 44 1/2; International Business Machines, up 1/2 at 119 1/2; and Philip Morris, up 1/2 at 87 3/4.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose 2.05 to 136.11. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.16 at 246.70.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 22.05 to 1,878.15.

Declining issues outpaced advancing stocks by 3 to 1 on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 184.31 million shares, against 160.69 million in the previous session.

Interest Lowered

RALEIGH (AP) — State treasurer Harlan Boyles said Tuesday that the rate of interest charged to banks and savings institutions for state funds invested in six-month certificates of deposit and savings certificates was lowered from 7 1/2 percent to 7 1/4 percent, effective Wednesday.

The change reflects a decrease in interest rates in the market for U.S. government and agency securities, Boyles said in a prepared release.

Rates charged by the state, by law, must not be less than those available in the marketplace on U.S. government and agency securities of comparable maturity.

Drug Tests Planned

Askew, who said the drug test would be the final step in selecting a candidate to fill a position, estimated that the total cost of the program would be about $1,000 to $2,400 a year, depending on the number of applicants hired and the fail rate on the initial screening.

Askew told the board that the city of High Point, which started a screening program in January, has experienced a 40 percent failure rate, while the city of Wilson, which began a similar program several months ago has had a failure rate of one out of every eight applicants.

The pre-employment screening will not effect present employees of the commission, Askew said.

In other action Tuesday, the board approved a 1 percent decrease in the price of natural gas to firm gas customer beginning Dec. 1, tracking a 4 cents per 1,000 cubic feet decrease in price from the commission's wholesale supplier, North Carolina Natural Gas. The decrease will mean that customers, now paying 64.8 cents per hundred cubic feet will pay 64.4 cents per hundred cubic feet beginning in December.

Also approved was an increase of $69,752 in the turnover to the city of Greenville for the current fiscal year, based on an audit of the commission's financial records for the fiscal year which ended June 30.

The additional turnover — $58,372 from the electric fund and $11,380 from the gas fund — brings the total turnover to the city for 1987-1988 to $1.95 million.

Roger Jones, director of electric systems for the commission, reported that load management operations during the month of October resulted in a saving of $151,385 in wholesale power costs.

The savings, included $79,159 from the use of Beat-the-Peak switches on water heaters, $66,439 from voltage adjustments and a total of $5,787 from use of generators at the GUC's water treatment plant and Procter & Gamble Paper Products Co.

Since January 1985, the commission's load management program has resulted in savings totaling more than $4.35 million.

At the end of October, a total of 8,609 radio-controlled Beat-the-Peak switches were in service on water heaters throughout GUC's system and 8,881 switches were in service on central air conditioning units.

Purchases approved Tuesday included: 10 transformers from Westinghouse Electric Supply Co. for $14,270; six transformers from Tennessee-Valley Electric Supply Co. for $11,664; 50 padmount transformers from HESCO Inc. for $52,950; six padmount transformers from HESCO for $23,304; two padmount transformers from Eastern Electric Supply Inc. for $10,230, and two padmount transformers from Eastern Electric for $9,800.

Council Agenda

A request to rezone three tracts of land located in the Pitt-Greenville Medical District heads the list of items to be addressed Thursday in a regular session of the Greenville City Council.

The three tracts, totaling 124.11 acres, are approximately one mile from Pitt County Memorial Hospital off the eastern right-of-way of Stanstonsburg Road.

Petitioners have requested that Tract 1, at 17.02 acres, be rezoned from MD-7 (Low density residential-agricultural) to MD-3 (office); that Tract 2, at 100.97 acres, be rezoned from MD-7 to PUD (planned unit development), and Tract 3, at 6.12 acres, be rezoned from MD-7 to MD-4 (commercial).

The request was recommended for approval by the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission.

Council members will also consider amending the zoning ordinance for bufferyard requirements.

Bufferyards are a combination of land and physical barriers such as fencing, plants or earthen berms which separate various land uses and street right-of-ways.

Their purpose is to preserve the existing ecological balance, establish proper separation of land use, and help reduce negative effects when incompatible land uses adjoin one another.

Other matters to be addressed include a request by First Federal Savings and Loan to rezone .59 acres from R-15S (single-family residential) to O&I-II (Office and institutional); a motion by the city of Greenville to annex Bedford Place and the portion of NCSR 1700 (Old Tar Road) that adjoins Bedford Place; an application for Emergency Shelter Grant Program funds on behalf of Pitt County Family Violence Program and the Greenville Community Shelter; establishing a 25 mph speed limit on Kent Road; establishing a no parking zone on Anderson Street, between 10th and 11th streets; an ordinance proposing adoption of a systematic method for identifying house numbers in densely populated areas of the city, and a resolution declaring intent to close the 600 block of Hilltop Street.

Jibrane Kourieh, the Syrian presidential spokesman, said Tuesday:

"Any attempt at the summit conference to end the suspension of Egypt's membership in the Arab league will only result in undermining all the positive conclusions which have been reached and might be reached."

The Gulf Cooperation Council states have been among the staunchest supporters of restoring Egypt to the Arab fold. Their growing sense of vulnerability as the gulf war escalated spurred their efforts to win Egypt's diplomatic and military support in the face of Iranian threats.

Kuwait's al-Seyassah daily reported that the U.A.E.'s president, Sheikh Zayed bin Sultan, the current council's chairman, was expected to fly to Cairo from Amman to announce the resumption of relations with Egypt by council states.

Kuwait's al-Rai al-Aam newspaper also quoted Iraq's deputy prime minister, Taha Yassin Ramadan, as saying Baghdad will restore links with Cairo.

The Syria-Iraq reconciliation ended a feud that began eight years ago when President Saddam Hussein of Iraq accused President Hafez Assad of Syria of plotting to overthrow him. It marked a triumph for Jordan's King Hussein and other moderates.

The heaviest rains through Tuesday night were over western portions of the state, with 2.83 inches falling in Hickory and 1.48 inches reported in Asheville. The rain had turned to snow in Asheville early today as the temperature dropped below freezing.

The showers finally ended the fires that threatened sections of western North Carolina, but some areas continued to be monitored.

Pitt Trio Is Set For First Round

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

The memories of August two-a-days are fading for North Pitt, Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central as they gear up for tough challenges in the first round of the state 2-A football playoffs.

Perhaps the toughest task awaits the Jaguars of Farmville Central who must take on undefeated Edenton on the road.

Ayden-Grifton hosts a powerful Ahoskie club that returns many of the key players from last year's state-runnerup squad. Meanwhile, North Pitt takes on Zebulon at home.

North Pitt's Panthers find themselves in quite an interesting and unique position as they prepare for the Cougars.

While most teams head into this part of the year with an assortment of injured or banged-up players, North Pitt is fielding its first totally healthy squad since the season opener.

The Panthers, 6-3-1, were picked as the conference favorite in preseason but suffered a number of early injuries and personnel problems that almost put a damper on any playoff hopes.

But the Panthers rebounded to tie for the Eastern Plains Conference title for the second year in a row and also took the top playoff seed by virtue of their 16-14 win over Ayden-Grifton.

Now they have all their wounded back, the most important of whom is quarterback Calvin Hunter, and are primed for the playoffs for the third year in a row.

"This is the best shape we've been in since August 3," said North Pitt coach Larry Bolger. "Friday night against Pamlico (in a 25-6 victory) was the first time since West Craven (the season opener) that we had everybody in there that we wanted. I think it is going to be a good asset going into the playoffs."

For Ayden-Grifton, it is the second year in a row the Chargers have drawn Ahoskie in the first round. Last year, the Cougars took a 28-12 victory over Ayden-Grifton.

Charger coach B.T. Chappell said the big key for his team is his defense.

"I know we're going up against a defense where we may have to punt the ball a lot and hope our defense will rise up and stop them," he said. "If our defense can keep us in the ballgame, our offense will find a way to score. If we get behind and don't get time to grind it out, that is not going to be one of the things that is going to help us."

Farmville coach Dixon Sauls faces the unenviable task of preparing his team for the Aces.

"We have to look at it as a challenge to play the number-one ranked team in the East," Sauls said. "This is a chance to redeem ourselves for things that have not turned out our way during the regular season."

"We did not play very well in a scrimmage game against them (during the preseason) and our players remember that. Now that can work both ways, but I think our players will give a good effort."

North Pitt vs. Zebulon

It's taken the Panthers nine games just to get back to where they were at the beginning of the season — healthy. And now that they are, Bolger said his team is ready to claim its first-ever playoff win after bowing out in the first round the last two years.

"I think they all realize (the opportunity)," Bolger said. "Everybody is real positive, real intense. They realize what has happened and I think they are going to get a win."

To do that, the Panthers must get past Zebulon, which finished third in the Capital Area 2-A but actually knocked off the top conference seed, Clayton, 39-32.

"Zebulon is going to be a tough opponent," Bolger said. "They are 7-3 and play in the Capital Area conference. They're a pretty tough ballclub."

"They like to run the I attack a little different than Farmville does, perhaps a little more power-oriented because they have a huge line. We're going to have to go after them."

The Cougars are led on offense by quarterback Tony Douglas and tailback Quentin Mitchell, who has rushed for over 1,000 yards each of the last two years.

The Panthers will counter with a defense led by Ashley Sheppard, North Pitt's leading tackler from his inside linebacker position.

"We've stopped all the power teams so far," Bolger said. "We're just going to have to be a little more aware (against Zebulon)."

The Panthers will counter with an offense that has come into its own in recent weeks as it has all its players back.

In the last two weeks, they have outscored their opponents, 59-6.

Hunter gave a good indication that he has recovered from an early season injury by rushing for 110 yards and throwing for another 88 in the win over Pamlico in the final game of the regular season.

And the biggest thing Hunter does is allow everyone to get involved in the offense, be it fullback Collier Mullins, halfbacks Michael Daniels and Michael Blow or tight end Sheppard, according to Bolger.

"He's absolutely 100 percent," Bolger said. "He's gotten back in touch with our option. He had gotten a little stale (due to three-game injury break). Now, he's reading it very well. It's reflected in our fullback's stats and in his stats. Everything is coming into full sync."

Zebulon at North Pitt
 □ Conference: Zebulon — 3rd, Capital Area 2-A; North Pitt — 1st, Eastern Plains
 □ Mascot: Zebulon — Cougars; North Pitt — Panthers
 □ Record: Zebulon — 7-3; North Pitt — 6-3-1
 □ Key Players: Zebulon — QB — Tony Douglas (6-0, 170, Sr.), TB Quentin Mitchell (5-9, 160, Jr.), LB — Curtis Jones (5-6, 155, Sr.) LB Garry Webb (5-10, 170, Sr.), FB-DE Reggie Roberson (6-1, 220, Sr.); North Pitt — QB Calvin Hunter (6-0, 180, Sr.), E-LB Ashley Sheppard (6-3, 215, Sr.), T — Tony Hopkins (5-10, 240, Sr.), T — Jesse Frank (6-3, 260, Sr.), FB — Collier Mullins (6-1, 190, Sr.)

But getting there hasn't been easy. Just to get to this point, the Panthers have had to shuttle personnel all season.

"We were a bit concerned (early on)," Bolger said. "The coaching staff worked the hardest I've ever seen with all the injuries and what-not. (And) the kids have responded well."

"It's been an exciting season to say the least. That shows the true character of our young men — fighting through adversity."

Ayden-Grifton vs. Ahoskie
 Chappell said the Cougars may possess one of the best defenses in the state. And their main goal Friday against Ayden-Grifton will be to stop Eric Blount, the Chargers all-pur-

Phillie Reliever Bedrosian Takes National Cy Young

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Steve Bedrosian says life won't change much because he won the National League Cy Young Award.

"I don't want to let this affect me," said the Philadelphia Phillies reliever, who was chosen Tuesday by the Baseball Writers Association of America by a margin of two votes.

"Whenever you're cocky — you know, when you're at the top, you're the best — a lot of guys want to knock you off your perch and you know they're going to be gunning next year."

He is the third reliever to win the NL Cy Young Award since the leagues started giving out separate honors in 1967. Bruce Sutter of Chicago won in 1979 and Mike Marshall of Los Angeles in 1974.

"As far as I could recall, growing up and watching baseball, it was always the starting pitcher who won it," Bedrosian said. "Not until all this started to happen that I realized only a couple of relievers have won it. I guess it is an accomplishment."

Bedrosian beat out Rick Sutcliffe of Chicago 57-55 in balloting based on five points for each first-place vote, three for each second and one for each third. Rick Reuschel, who played for Pittsburgh and San Francisco, got 54.

Two writers from each National League city vote on the nominees.

Bedrosian, who set a major league record with 13 consecutive saves, got nine first-place votes, five more than Sutcliffe but only one more than Reuschel. Orel Hershiser of the Los Angeles Dodgers got two first-place votes and 1985 Cy Young winner Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets got the other.

Before this year's balloting, the closest race for the Cy Young Award was in 1981 when Los Angeles' Fernando Valenzuela beat Tom Seaver of Cincinnati by three points.

Bedrosian attributed his success to being acquired by the Phillies, support from his teammates and "just working hard."

"I'm not going to say there there wasn't a starter in the league who didn't have a good enough year to win Cy Young," he said. "I want to think ... that I've accomplished some things that hopefully will last for a long time."

Bedrosian had a 5-3 record and an earned run average of 2.83. He also led the major leagues with 40 saves this year as he struck out 74 and walked 28 in 89 innings. Despite his outstanding season, the Phillies finished tied for fourth in the National League East with an 80-82 record.

It is fourth time this decade that a Philadelphia pitcher has won the NL

Cy Young Award. Steve Carlton won in 1980 and 1982 and John Denny won in 1983.

Joking with reporters at a press conference announcing the award, Bedrosian said he and Phillies President Bill Giles were going out to dinner "to talk about an extension or something."

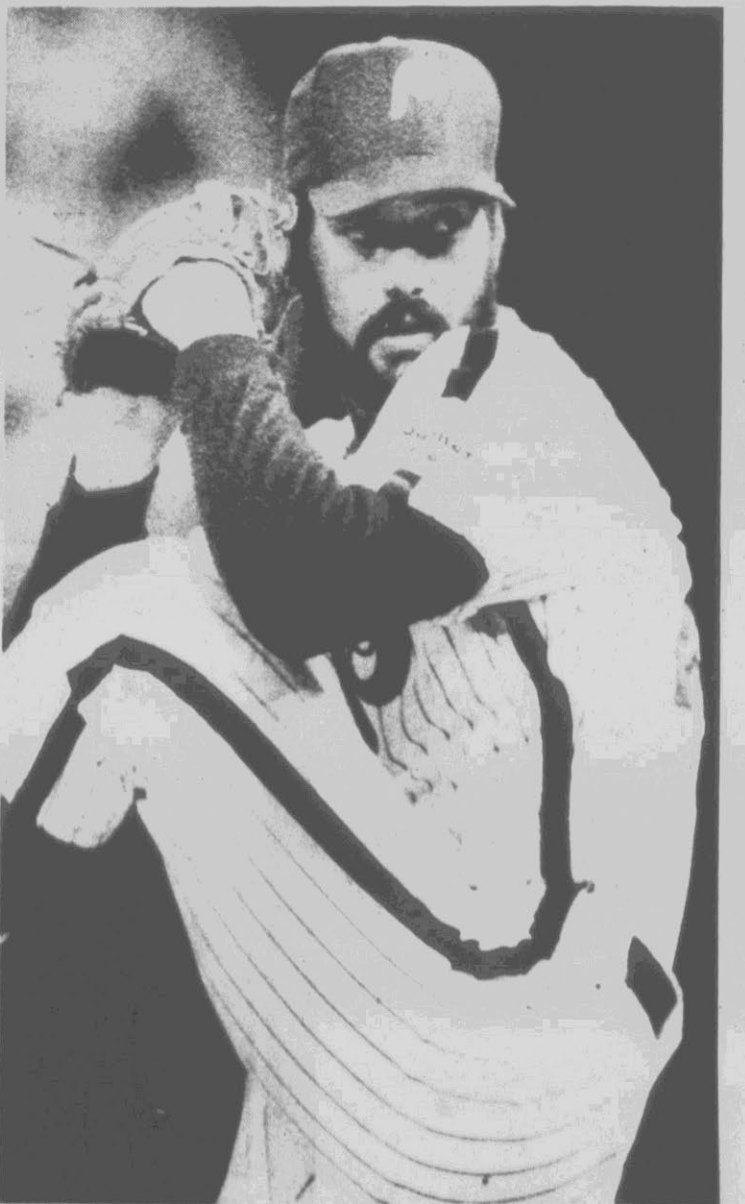

His two-year contract runs out at the end of 1988, and he was paid $950,000 last season. For winning the Cy Young, Bedrosian also receives a $100,000 bonus from the Phillies.

The 29-year-old right-hander was traded from Atlanta to Philadelphia on Dec. 10, 1985 for catcher Ozzie

Virgil and pitcher Pete Smith. In his first season with the Phillies, Bedrosian had 29 saves along with an 8-6 record and 3.39 ERA.

He spent five seasons in Atlanta, where he compiled a 34-39 record. In his final season with the Braves, he switched from relieving to starting and ended up with a 7-15 record and a 3.83 ERA.

Hershiser finished fourth in the voting with 14 points. Gooden and Nolan Ryan of Houston tied for fifth with 12. They were followed in the voting by Mike Scott of Houston with nine points and Bob Welch of Los Angeles with three.

Tribe Looks To Move Up With Four Starters Back

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

(One of a series)

William & Mary has a new coach this year, one of three newcomers to the Colonial Athletic Association ranks, in Chuck Swenson.

And Swenson says that the word from the Indian reservation is a two-edged sword. "The good news is that everyone is back (from last year's squad). The bad news is that they only won five games."

Actually, that's not quite true. The Indians lost five players off last year's squad that went 5-22, 2-12 in the CAA. But only one of them, Scott Trimble, a guard, was a regular. He averaged 10.1 points a game, third highest on the team.

But, Swenson feels, the Indians have a wealth of talent returning, including the other four starters, center Tim Trout (6-7), forward

Mark Batzel (6-6), guard Greg Buzzell (6-5), and forward Tom Bock (6-9).

They will be joined up from by Curtis Pride, a 6-0 sophomore who was on the all-rookie team for the league last year. Pride, who is deaf, is an outstanding athlete, who may only be hampered because he also plays professional baseball. Under contract with the Mets, he is prohibited from playing any basketball during the off-season. Each year while in school, he must renounce his baseball contract in order to receive his basketball scholarship.

Trout, one of two seniors on the team, was the leading scorer and rebounder for the Indians last year, averaging 12.8 points and 7.0 rebounds. He can play both the center and forward position, and scored in double figures in 20 of 27 games.

Batzel, the other senior, was second on the team in both scoring and rebounding with 10.4 and 6.1 averages, respectively. He was a walkon when he began his Tribe career, but has earned himself a grant with his play. Strong at both ends of the court, he pulled down 61 rebounds off the offensive boards to trail Trout in that category also. Trout had 66. Batzell is also a fine passer, dishing out 61 assists last season, tied for second highest on the team.

Bock, a junior, has grown since last year, averaged 8.0 points per game, and pulled 3.3 rebounds an outing. A good outside shooter, he will be asked to play more inside this year.

Buzzell, also a junior (he and Bock are the only juniors), averaged 9.1 points last year and hit 45.2 percent of his 3-point attempts (38-84), second best in the league. He dished out 55 assists last year.

Pride led the team in steals with 39, sixth best in the Colonial. He also had 56 assists, tying Batzell for second on the team.

He could get pressed for playing time from Matt O'Reilly, a 5-11 sophomore. He averaged 1.9 points and had 38 assists.

Another who could see impressive time is Chris Salvadori, a 6-10 sophomore. He played only seven games last year after an early season foot injury. Greg Taylor, a 6-3 freshman, was redshirted last year because of a back injury, but is expected to see considerable action this winter.

WILLIAM & MARY

1986-87 Record: 5-22
 CAA Record: 2-12 (eighth)
 Coach: Chuck Swenson (1st year)
 Top Losses: Scott Trimble (10.1, 2.8)
 Top Returnees: Mark Batzell (6-6, F, 10.4, 6.1); Tom Bock (6-9, F, 8.0, 3.3); Greg Buzzell (6-5, G, 9.1, 1.8); Curtis Pride (6-0, G, 3.7, 2.1); Tim Trout (6-7, C, 12.8, 7.0)
 Top Newcomers: Greg Taylor (6-3, G, redshirted last year).
 Projected Finish: Seventh

Swenson said that he will stress defense early in hopes of improving on the Indians' road record of last year (0-11). "We want to create turnovers and fast break opportunities," he said. "We want opponents to be saying about us, 'William & Mary plays great defense and they're tough to score against.' This will develop unity, pride and confidence on our team."

Swenson isn't predicting any early CAA titles, however. But he warns people to watch out for the Tribe. "We can't win in the regular season (championship). But in the tournament, anybody can win, including us."

With the tournament champion earning the league automatic NCAA berth, that's what it's all about.

Swain Unanimous 1-A Choice

By DAVID DROSCAK
Associated Press Writer

Undefeated Swain County, which snapped Murphy's 24-game winning streak last Friday, was a unanimous choice for the top ranking in the final 1-A Associated Press high school football poll of the season.

The Maroon Devils, the 1985 state champions, gained all 12 first-place votes and 120 points from a statewide panel of prep sportswriters on Tuesday.

The only other undefeated 1-A team at 10-0 — Red Springs — moved up to second, while Murphy fell to No. 3.

Greensboro Page, the top-ranked 4-A team all season, 3-A Havelock and 2-A Whiteville finished the regular season at the top of their respective classifications. All three are undefeated at 10-0.

The six remaining undefeated 4-A teams behind Page followed the Pirates in the 4-A rankings. Garner, Wilmington New Hanover, Kannapolis Brown, Greenville Rose, Northern Durham and Charlotte Harding took positions 2-7.

Defending 4-A state champion Fayetteville 71st, 9-1, pulled in at No. 8, while Gastonia Ashbrook, which lost its first game of the season last Friday night to No. 10 Gastonia Huss, dropped to No. 9. Newcomer Huss and Waynesville Tuscola tied for No. 10.

The first five positions in the 3-A poll remained unchanged with Havelock, Burlington Cummings, defending state champion Shelby, North Iredell and Brevard all winning Friday night.

Central Cabarrus jumped up two spots to No. 6 with a 9-6 victory over Northwest Cabarrus, now 8-2.

The rest of the 3-A poll included Tarboro, West Caldwell, East Wake and Burlington Cummings, which replaced Asheboro.

Three teams with perfect records head the 2-A poll — Whiteville, Newton-Conover and Edenton Holmes.

Two-time defending 2-A state champion Lexington, 9-1, stayed at No. 4, while Aoshkie dropped from No. 2 to No. 5 after its 15-12 loss to Holmes.

Thomasville, Wallace-Rose Hill, Fuquay-Varina, Bunker Hill and East Duplin round out the remainder of the poll. Bunker Hill bumped Maiden from the poll after its 24-22 victory over the Blue Devils.

After Swain County, Red Springs and Murphy, the 1-A rankings included Northampton-West, East Montgomery, St. Pauls, Southwest Onslow, North Moore, Alleghany and Columbia.

Most Leaders Hold Position

Only one of the four divisional leaders failed to hold onto the top spot in the Daily Reflector's High School Performance Rankings this week.

As the regular season comes to a close, Kannapolis Brown and New Hanover remain tied for the top spot in the 4-A ranks, while North Iredell and Havelock are knotted for the 3-A lead. Newton-Conover holds the 2-A lead while Swain vaults to the top in the 1-A ranks.

Rankings are based on points accumulated for each victory a team claims with additional points awarded for each game a victim wins, to build a ranking on strength of competition.

Kannapolis and New Hanover, both 10-0, are tied for the top spot in the 4-A ranks with 89 points each.

Greensboro Page, 10-0, was tied with them last week for the top spot, but drops to third with 88 points.

Northern Durham, 10-0, moves from fifth to fourth with 86, while Greenville Rose, 10-0, is fifth, up one spot, at 86.

Garner, ranked sixth, and Charlotte Harding, ranked eighth, are also 10-0 on the year, sending seven 4-A teams into the state playoffs unbeaten.

North Iredell, first last week, finds itself tied for first this week with Havelock for the 3-A lead. Both are 10-0. Havelock moved up from fourth place as both teams have accumulated 78½ points.

Burlington Cummings, 10-0, is third with 78, while 9-1 Shelby is fourth with 76. Central Cabarrus, also 9-1, is fifth with 64.

The top three teams are the only unbeaten going into the playoffs.

Newton-Conover, one of three 10-0 teams in the 2-A ranks, stands atop its division with 71½ points. Whiteville, also 10-0, is second with 65½ followed by Edenton, the only other unbeaten, with 65.

Rounding out the top five are Wallace-Rose Hill, 9-1, with 62, and Aoshkie and Thomasville, both 9-1, tied for fifth with 59.

Swain, 10-0, which fell to fourth last week, vaults back to the top with 59 points in the 1-A ranks, after beating previously unbeaten Murphy. Red Springs, the only other 10-0 1-A team, is second with 54½, falling from first last week. East Montgomery, 8-2, is third with 47.

Northampton West, 9-1, is fourth with 46, followed by 9-1 Murphy with 44.

To The Sports Editor:
The East Carolina-N.C. State football series has been most enjoyable and entertaining. I have had the pleasure of seeing all 18 games.

Now the time has come for East Carolina to end this colorful series which has become North Carolina's top football attraction.

North Carolina State University's willingness to play the Pirates is appreciated. However, 18 consecutive trips to Raleigh is enough!

ECU has played each year on N.C. State's field with Atlantic Coast Conference officials. This is not fair to the East Carolina players, coaches or fans.

The Pirates helped the Wolfpack pay for their stadium. It is time for N.C. State to agree to play in Greenville.

East Carolina should not continue to prostitute itself by playing in Raleigh each year. Enough is enough! The series should go home and home, or it must be terminated.

DUNKEL INDEX
COLLEGE FOOTBALL

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has a 40.0 scoring point against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

BASKETBALL TAPE
BOSTON (AP) — "Winning Basketball" — who better to tell you about it than the long-time wizard coach and general manager Red Auerbach and star forward Larry Bird of the Boston Celtics?

Auerbach and Bird have teamed up for a 60-minute videotape, under the aegis of Eastman Kodak, demonstrating fundamentals of the game and improved techniques. It also adds splashes of color with highlights of some NBA games.

Auerbach called the video tape "a clinic on the hard work Larry and some of our other players do day in and day out."

Several other members of the Celtic squad are seen in the tape, addressing the viewer directly and demonstrating professional skills.

Lawrence Taylor of the New York Giants led the NFL in sacks in 1986 with 20½. A half sack is when you have help.

Wilson Defying The Old Labels

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — Wade Wilson is neither the million-dollar glamour boy nor the proverbial quarterback of the future.

He's 28 years old and "right now should be the prime of my career." Wilson, however, feels that the Minnesota Vikings are treating him like a poor man's version of Don Strock, the Miami Dolphins' 36-year-old career backup.

Those who know football know that Wilson has a big-league arm. But ever since he came into the NFL as an eighth-round draft choice from East Texas State, he's been unable to pass his way out of Tommy Kramer's shadow.

Even Wilson's two-touchdown performance in relief of the ailing Kramer in Sunday's 31-20 victory over the Los Angeles Raiders hasn't changed things.

"I think I could (be a star)," Wilson said. "But I don't sit around and envision myself as one. I'm not the glamour-boy type."

His frustrations began before the season, when the Vikings made a big production out of finding a quarterback of the future. When the man they wanted, Rich Gannon, was drafted by New England, the Vikings went out and traded for Gannon eight days later.

"Ever since draft day it's been like that. I feel like Don Strock here ... a backup for 20 years," Wilson said. "I think (Gannon) can be a great quarterback. But I don't want them saying, 'Here, we'll give you a gold watch and send you on your way.'"

"The starter is making big money and then this guy is our quarterback of the future. Where does that leave me?"

Kramer, 32, missed the beginning of training camp while undergoing treatment for alcohol problems. Then, in his first exhibition action, he suffered a pinched nerve in his neck.

In his place, Wilson led the Vikings to a 2-0 start. When the NFL players strike started, no Minnesota player was hurt more than Wilson. When the regulars returned four weeks later, Wilson had lost some of his momentum and Kramer was almost healthy.

"The strike narrowed the gap," Wilson said. "In those four weeks, I could have really taken charge."

In the first post-strike game, Wilson led the Vikings past Denver, but he threw five interceptions.

The next week, the Vikings lost to Seattle and even though Coach Jerry Burns didn't announce his decision to go with Kramer until last Friday, Wilson saw the handwriting on the wall.

"I was 3-1, but your Pro Bowl million-dollar quarterback isn't going to sit for long," he said. "It was only a matter of time."

Kramer started against Los Angeles, was ineffective, and left after the first half with cramps in his throwing arm. Enter Wilson, who quickly boosted a 7-3 lead into a 31-13 advantage.

"I was thinking about saying (in the huddle), 'Hey guys, remember me?' or something clever like that," he said. "But I ended up not saying it. What if I fumble my first snap? Then they would have said, 'Yeah, now get out of here.'"

Despite Sunday's effort, Wilson hasn't been named to start Sunday's game against Tampa Bay, nor does he expect to be.

"All indications have been that Tommy's the starter," Wilson said.

Wilson's career has "been strange, to put it mildly."

His first significant action came in 1984, when Kramer was sidelined with a shoulder injury. Wilson started five games and did well statistically, but his performance was overshadowed by the reign of Les Steckel, the former Marine whose lone season as coach produced a team record for losses (13).

Then, just before training camp in 1985, Wilson discovered he had diabetes.

"I was scared. I was losing weight like crazy," said Wilson, who gives himself two insulin injections a day. "I've got it under control now."

On Dec. 1 of that season, Wilson had both his most embarrassing and most uplifting moments, as then-coach Bud Grant started him against the Philadelphia Eagles in place of the injured Kramer.

"I thought, 'This is my big chance to prove my worth.' But things got rotten in a hurry."

The Vikings fell behind fast and rookie Steve Bono replaced Wilson. Bono played terribly, too, and Grant put Wilson back in with the Vikings trailing 23-0.

"I didn't know what was the ultimate cut — being taken out or being put back in," Wilson said. "I'm thinking, 'Bud, why are you doing this to me?' But it worked out good."

He threw three touchdown passes, leading the Vikings to their biggest fourth-quarter rally ever and a 28-23 triumph.

Wilson, who has started only 14 games in seven years, would like to give the Vikings more performances like that.

Pitt Trio Is Set...

(Continued From B-1) pose back who has rushed for 1,103 yards and totaled 134 points in a variety of ways.

Ahoskie, though, made mincemeat out of the rushing attacks of every school in the Northeast 2-A conference. For the year, the Cougars gave up only three touchdowns to its conference opponents, two of which were to Edenton.

"They have given up less yards rushing than passing," Chappell said. "It worries me a lot. It's just going to be our rushing game against their rush defense."

"They are going to key on him (Blount) most definitely. Eric broke two long runs against them late in the game (last year). He was the only thing that hurt them."

Blount was the only effective weapon against the Cougars last year and the only reason he got the ball was because of an injury to starting tailback Jesse Hooker. As it was, he broke off scoring runs of 52 and 88 yards in the fourth quarter to provide the Chargers with their only points of the night.

On offense, Ahoskie utilizes a wishbone attack led by 6-4, 240-pound fullback Darrin Mitchell and halfbacks Vince Outlaw (5-8, 170 Sr.) and Derwin Newsome (5-10, 170 Sr.). Outlaw and Newsome have 12 and nine touchdowns, respectively.

"They are a very sound football team with veterans on the line, a veteran quarterback and veteran running backs," Chappell said. "They are very big and very strong."

"They run a lot of power plays. The best thing we are going to try to emphasize to our linemen is that they have to stay low. We don't have the size to match them. The only way we're going to beat them is staying low and having a good job out of our linemen."

"Their size is awesome compared to us. Hopefully, we can be faster, that may be our only advantage."

Farmville Central at Edenton
 While some may look at Farmville's preparation for Edenton as a case of mission impossible, the Jaguars can take solace knowing that the same thing was said last year about Greene Central before the Rams upset the Aces, 14-12.

"That should make our players aware they can be defeated," Sauls said.

In order to do pull off the win, though, the Jaguars must find a way to stop the powerful Edenton offense, led by quarterback Erie Downing, who has thrown for 13 touchdowns.

But the Aces have more than Downing. Wide-out Derrone Felton has caught nine touchdown passes and halfback Herbert McPherson has run for 710 yards.

"Edenton is very deserving of their number-one Eastern ranking," Sauls said. "They are an explosive offensive football team with the threat of the option, the run and the pass. They are also an excellent defensive football team that has only given up 35 points."

"You have to defend so many areas of the field, we'll have to give up some things and then hopefully you'll catch them at the right time. We can't take everything they do away from them. We'll just have to try to hit them at the right times. Hopefully, they'll turn the ball over."

Farmville will counter with halfback-fullback Gary Moore who has rushed for 1,177 yards this season. Quarterback Andre Bandy, who splits time with Mack Davis, has also thrown for over 500 yards during the year.

"We'll have to try and blend the short passing game with some semblance of a running game," Sauls said. "We'll have to look to get outside on them. It's been difficult. They have excellent size and quickness."

"We're going to try and do the things we do well. I think we'll be enthusiastic about being in a playoff game."

But it all comes down to stopping the Aces on offense and that could prove tough for the Jaguars.

The most yards the Aces have given up all year in one game is 178. For the season, they have given up just over 500 total yards and have held two teams to negative yardage.

Sauls said he was not sure who would start at quarterback, Bandy or Davis.

"I'm comfortable starting with either quarterback," Sauls said. "Going into the game, it depends on what we decide to do."

Fullback Billy Hardison is a doubtful starter for the Jaguars. In his stead, Moore will play fullback with Elvis McFee at tailback.

Golfers Glad To Be In Hawaii

KAPALUA, Hawaii (AP) — Ben Crenshaw and Mark O'Meara have fond memories for different reasons of this resort area on the island of Maui.

For O'Meara, the return to the Bay course for the $600,000 Kapalua International Golf Tournament represents a visit to one of his happiest hunting grounds.

For Crenshaw and his wife, Julie, it is more of what he called "a sentimental journey."

The Crenshaws were married two years ago on a point of land overlooking the Pacific, just a few hundred yards from the Bay course.

They have returned this week, along with their month-old daughter, Katherine, for the first of two consecutive tournaments Crenshaw will play on the same course.

"It's something more than a couple of golf tournaments," Crenshaw said. "For Julie and me, it's a sentimental journey, a return to a place that holds some very special memories."

O'Meara's memories of Kapalua are more financial than sentimental. In consecutive weeks in 1985, O'Meara won the Kapalua title and $125,000, and collected another $50,000 in the Nissan Cup team competition.

Along with the Hawaiian Open title and $90,000 he'd won earlier in the year, it gave him a sweep of the three Hawaii events.

"I can't explain it. I just enjoy it," said O'Meara, who tees off today in the chase for a Kapalua first prize that has been increased to $150,000.

"I'm playing pretty well right now, and I'd like to close out the year with another Hawaiian win," he said.

He faces an elite 44-man field that includes Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino, along with the current holders of the U.S. and British Open titles, Scott Simpson and Nick Faldo.

"This is, by far, the strongest field we've ever had," tournament director Mark Roling said. Although the event follows the close of the official PGA Tour schedule, it does rank as an approved tournament.

"Getting Jack is the icing on the cake," Roling said.

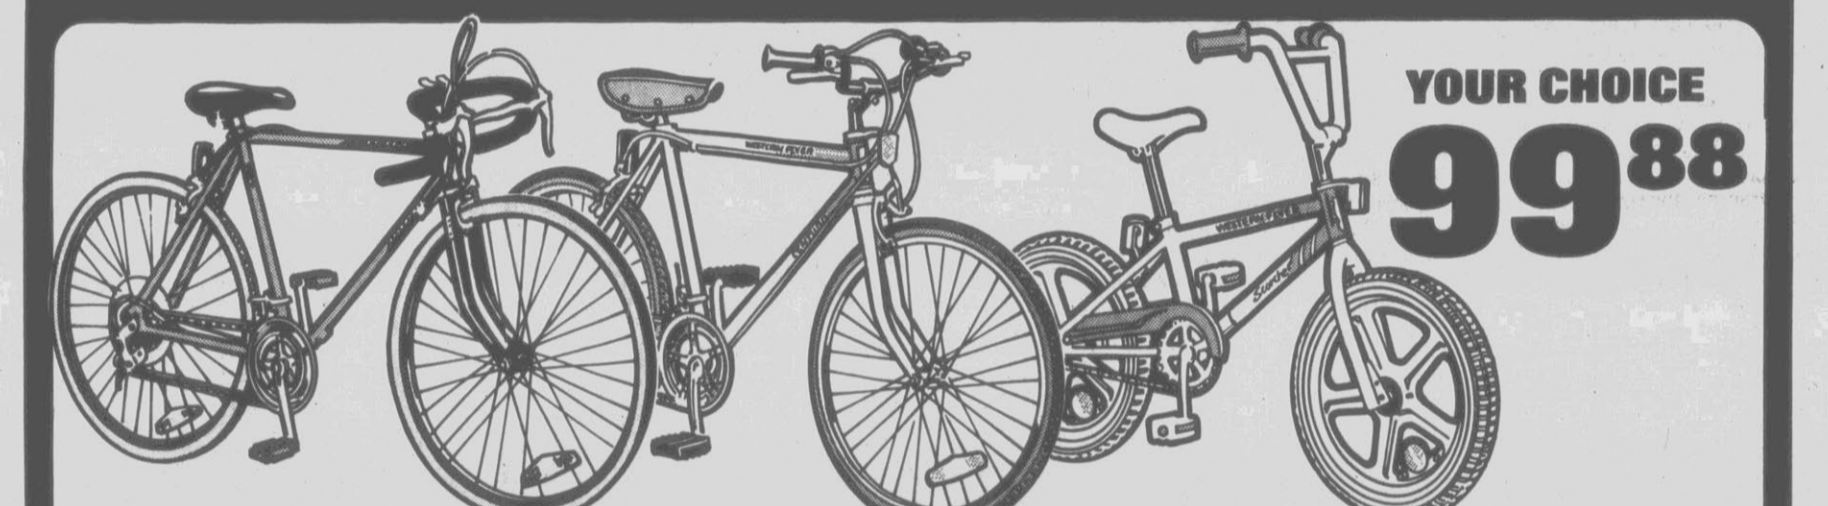

In addition to Faldo, the strong European contingent includes Sandy Lyle of Scotland, a former British Open and Kapalua champion; Ian Woosnam of Wales, winner of the European Order of Merit, and Jose-Maria Olazabal of Spain.

Crenshaw and several others will stay on after the international to play in the World Cup tournament. Among the players on hand for the latter tournament are Howard Clark of Britain, who will defend his individual title; Crenshaw's American teammate, Payne Stewart, and Rodger Davis of Australia.

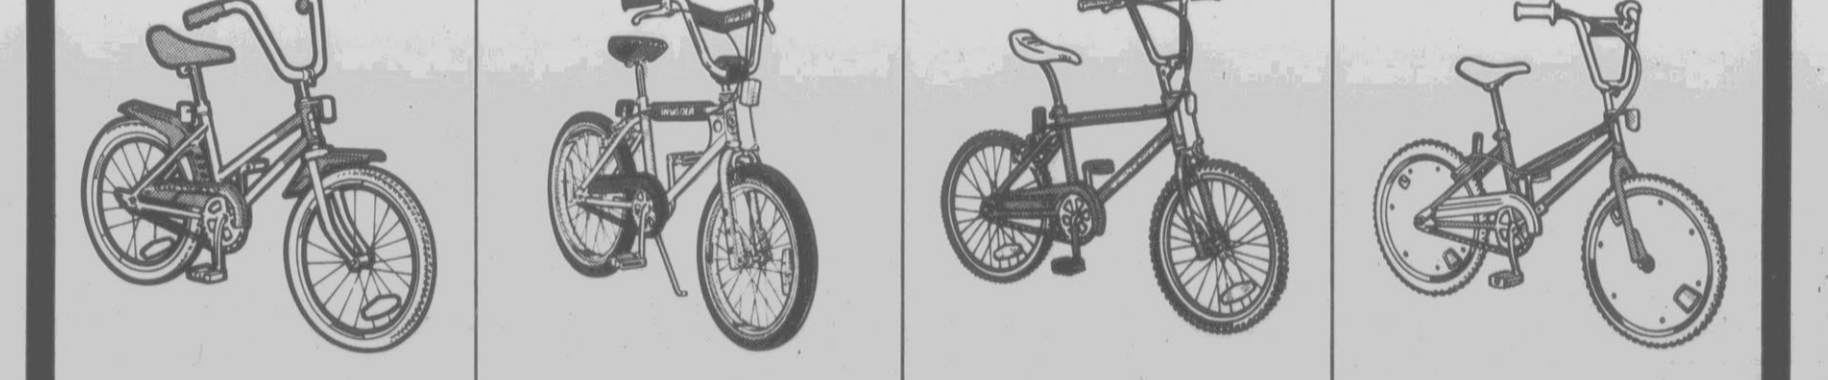

Other leading figures in the Kapalua tournament include defending champion Andy Bean, Lanny Wadkins and South Africa David Frost.

Tide Affecting Bowls Differently

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

When Bear Bryant told the various bowls to jump, they usually asked, "How high?"

Alabama is still directing the bowl picture, but not the way the Bear used to do it.

What Alabama did was beat LSU on Saturday night, probably costing the Tigers the Southeastern Conference championship and a trip to the Sugar Bowl. The domino affect has been felt by numerous other bowls.

Had LSU defeated Alabama, the Tigers could have gone to the Sugar Bowl by beating also-ran Mississippi State this weekend. The other bowls then could have made their pitches to Alabama, Auburn, Georgia and Tennessee.

Instead, the SEC race is wide open, with Auburn leading at 3-0-1 and Alabama, Georgia and LSU in contention at 4-1. Tennessee, 1-1-1, also will go somewhere, perhaps the Hall of Fame Bowl at Tampa, Fla.

We may not have heard the last of Alabama in this scenario. If the Crimson Tide beats Notre Dame on Saturday — or if the Irish lose to Penn State on Nov. 21 — it would destroy the Orange Bowl's dream of making a deal for the winner of the Nov. 28 Miami-Notre Dame game to play the Oklahoma-Nebraska winner. No way they could work a deal with Miami and a twice-beaten Notre Dame team. The Irish have already lost to Pitt.

"It's a mess," the Sun Bowl's Jimmy Rogers said. "Every year it's a mess, but this is the weirdest year."

"It's like there are 10 teams on everybody's list," Bruce Skinner, executive director of the Fiesta Bowl, said.

This much is fairly certain: third-ranked Miami, No. 4 Florida State, sixth-ranked Syracuse, No. 7 Notre Dame and the Oklahoma-Nebraska loser will fill the five up-for-grab spots in the Orange, Sugar, Cotton and Fiesta Bowls. The question is where and it would be smart for Syracuse not to lose either of its two remaining games.

Last year, Miami, the No. 1-ranked team, was in the driver's seat and wound up playing — and losing to — No. 2 Penn State in the Fiesta Bowl for the national championship.

This time, the Orange Bowl has the upper hand. Miami may insist it won't make a deal, but the Oklahoma-Nebraska winner, the Orange Bowl's host team, will be ranked No. 1 and Miami's best shot at the national championship would be a head-to-head confrontation. The Hurricanes, who almost surely will be 9-0 on Nov. 21, even have a game left on Dec. 5 against No. 14 South Carolina.

Syracuse appeared to be headed for the Sugar Bowl to face the SEC champion until both LSU and Auburn lost last weekend and dropped from fifth and sixth, respectively, in the Associated Press poll to 10th and 12th. The Orangemen might wind up in the Fiesta Bowl against Florida State or the Oklahoma-Nebraska loser, both of which will be ranked above the SEC champ.

"It takes on a different complexion for Syracuse," Sugar Bowl President Jerry Romig said. "If they can beat Boston College (on Saturday,) there's going to be a strong feeling there that they can go all the way."

The Orangemen wind up the regular season against fast-improving West Virginia on Nov. 21, the day the bowl invitations can go out officially but a week or more after they usually are made.

"I think if we beat Boston College, we would have an opportunity to give an immediate response that would hopefully be unconditional," Syracuse Athletic Director Jake Crouthamel said. "If someone says this week, 'We'll take you on New Year's Day without conditions,' we would likely take it."

"As an athletic director, I have to make sure an 11-0 football team plays on New Year's Day in a major bowl. To wait later than Nov. 21, we would have to have some sort of guarantee that the Orange Bowl could place us elsewhere."

Coach Dick MacPherson and his players have already said they want to play the highest ranked team they can, but they're not going to get choosy about playing in their first major bowl since the Jan. 1, 1965, Sugar Bowl.

"We're not going to get upset if somebody else plays them (the higher ranked teams). We'll just go to the prom with somebody else," MacPherson said.

"We're trying to put together some contingency possibilities," R. Pete Williams, chairman of the Orange Bowl selection committee, said. "We're trying to protect ourselves from having a possible 9-2 team (Miami)."

The key deal last year involved the SEC and the Sugar (LSU), Citrus (Auburn) and Sun Bowls (Alabama). This year, it could be a four-way Sugar-Citrus-Gator-Sun (the All American Bowl also could be a party) or the Orange-Cotton-Fiesta.

The Cotton Bowl has been wooing Notre Dame, so much so that someone asked executive vice president Jim "Hoss" Brock, who has been at Notre Dame the last three weekends, if he voted in last week's South Bend elections.

The Cotton Bowl's host team will barely be in the Top Twenty and Notre Dame's magical name will guarantee good TV ratings. Think Lou Holtz would like to meet Arkansas?

The Rose Bowl will match either UCLA or Southern Cal against Michigan State or Indiana. The Freedom Bowl would salivate over the Pac-10 loser. The Big Ten runnerup would be attractive to any number of bowls and either Michigan or Ohio State — probably the latter — could miss out on a bowl trip this year. The Buckeyes, who have Iowa and Michigan left, could wind up 5-5-1.

If Penn State beats Pitt on Saturday night, the Citrus Bowl would like to match the Nittany Lions against either Clemson or the SEC runnerup, especially if that turns out to be LSU. Penn State lost to Alabama earlier this season, Clemson beat Georgia and Auburn went to the Citrus Bowl last year.

Penn State also rates high in the Gator, Freedom and Sun Bowl plans, probably even if the Lions lose to Pitt and Notre Dame and wind up 7-4. Pitt can boost its stock and virtually assure an 8-3 finish by beating Penn State.

Other teams which will wind up somewhere are Arizona State, Iowa, Oklahoma State, South Carolina and Texas A&M, which could be the host team in the Cotton Bowl.

Waiting in the wings are Air Force, Baylor, Brigham Young, Colorado, Florida, North Carolina, Texas, Texas Christian, Texas-El Paso, Texas Tech, Tulane, Wake Forest, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming. Some will play their way into bowls, others will play their way into oblivion.

As usual, it will all fall into place on Saturday and will be among the year's worst-kept secrets.

Crum Says He Will Be Back Next Season

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina football coach Dick Crum says he will be back to lead the Tar Heels for an 11th season next year despite continued criticism over his coaching philosophy.

"I'm going to be back here next year. I know some of you wish I wasn't going to be back, but I'll be back," Crum told reporters Tuesday at this weekly news conference.

North Carolina's 13-10 loss to Clemson on Saturday dropped the Tar Heels to 5-4 overall and 3-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference with games against Virginia and Duke remaining.

A victory against the Tigers would have given the Tar Heels the conference lead and the inside track on the school's first ACC championship since 1980, Crum's third season as head coach.

When asked if he resented being criticized for his team's defeats, Crum said he did not.

"That's what the head coach is supposed to do. That's what he gets paid for," Crum said. "There's nothing I can do about that. Whoever wants to get after you when you've lost a tough ballgame there's nothing you can say except 'That's your opinion.' That's just the law of the jungle around here."

Considering the emotional nature of the loss to the Tigers, Crum said he was worried about a possible letdown this Saturday against Virginia.

"I am concerned about that," Crum said. "To play that hard and invest that much and still come up short was very disappointing."

The Cavaliers, 5-4 and 3-2, are riding a two-game winning streak, including a 23-14 road victory last Saturday over slumping Georgia Tech.

Dooley Worried About Gamecocks' Defense

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Despite averaging 45 points over the past four games, South Carolina's defense, not its offense, makes the Gamecocks one of the best college football teams in the nation, Wake Forest coach Bill Dooley says.

Dooley's Demon Deacons, 6-3, host the 14th-ranked Gamecocks, 6-2, at Groves Stadium on Saturday. Ticket sales have already exceeded the 30,000 mark, and school officials said a record crowd could attend the 1 p.m. contest.

"You really have to say that South Carolina is one of the outstanding football teams in the nation," Dooley said Tuesday at his weekly news conference. "Everybody knows about (quarterback) Todd Ellis, who is an excellent quarterback. He throws the ball very well. Sterling Sharpe is one of the top receivers in the country, an outstanding athlete."

"But the big difference in this football team is its defense," Dooley added. "I think their defense has done an outstanding job — they have given up only three rushing touchdowns, while ... scoring 20. They are probably better than they are ranked so we will have quite a challenge."

"They play a different style defense," he said. "They play an aggressive, 'come at you' style defense. They like to make things happen, they blitz, sometimes they will rush eight or seven. I haven't seen a defense this year play like South Carolina does."

"North Carolina and Clemson are big and strong, but South Carolina has the size and strength, plus they do a lot of things to give your offensive linemen problems," Dooley added.

Ellis has completed 172 of 300 passes for 2,364 yards, while Sharpe has caught 49 balls for 764 yards and a 15.6 average.

South Carolina defeated Wake Forest 48-21 last season in Columbia, S.C.

Wilson Top ACC Rookie Once Again

GREENSBORO (AP) — For the second time this season, Virginia tailback Marcus Wilson, who averaged almost 6 yards per carry in the Cavaliers' victory over Georgia Tech, has been named rookie of the week in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Wilson, a 6-foot-1, 200-pound freshman from Rochester, N.Y., rushed for 125 yards on 122 carries in a 23-14 victory over the Yellow Jackets. Wilson, who has been the Cavaliers' leading rusher in five of the last six games, also caught one pass for seven yards.

Earlier, the selection committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association recognized Clemson's Michael Dean Perry and Wake Forest's Tony Mosley as the defensive players of the week and Clemson's Tracy Johnson and Tim Finkelston of Virginia as the league's offensive players of the week.

Tigers Assured Of No Worse Than Tie

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Over the past six seasons only two teams have won the Atlantic Coast Conference title — Clemson or Maryland.

This week those two clubs meet in Clemson's Death Valley with No. 9 Tigers already assured of no worse than a tie for the ACC title and Maryland looking to keep the Tigers from winning it outright.

"This week we have a chance to improve our record and try to win a conference championship outright," Clemson coach Danny Ford said Tuesday at his weekly news conference.

Earlier hopes for a national championship haven't been forgotten, but the chances of ending the season No. 1 are highly unlikely for the Tigers, 9-1 overall and 5-1 in the ACC.

"We can't control that any longer (since a 30-28 loss to North Carolina State)," Ford said. "I still think there's going to be some crazy things happen this week in football, like there was last week."

"In the next three weeks there'll be some funny scores come up. People are going to not remember what happened in week seven or eight. There'll be different things happen. That's just football."

Clemson will be going for its second-straight ACC title and fourth crown since Ford became coach in 1979 when the Tigers entertained the Terrapins on Saturday.

The Terrapins are the only team to have a winning record at Death Valley (10-7) and the only ACC team to have a winning record against Ford (4-3-1).

Under Coach Joe Krivak, who replaced Bobby Ross this season, the Terrapins are 4-5 overall and 3-2 in the ACC.

Williams Attacking Racial Problems

BALTIMORE (AP) — Owner Edward Bennett Williams, saying he was unaware of the Baltimore Orioles' "insensitivity" toward the rights of minorities, is attacking the problem with baseball Hall-of-Famer Frank Robinson and former football star Calvin Hill.

"A deadly illness overtook this organization which I was unaware of," Williams said in announcing the appointment of Robinson, who was baseball's first black manager, as his special assistant; and of Hill, another black, who played for him when he owned the NFL's Washington Redskins, as vice president for administrative personnel.

"There will never again be any reason for anyone to say that we have any insensitivity to rights of black people and hispanic people, that we have any ethnic insensitivity or gender insensitivity," Williams said Tuesday.

While Robinson's assignment gives him the opportunity to learn the front-office practices of a major league team, Hill has been given the responsibility of making sure minorities are fairly treated within the organization.

"He is going to monitor the non-recurrence of this deadly illness by never again allowing us to be insensitive to the rights of minority groups," Williams said of Hill.

Williams also announced Roland Hemond's appointment as vice president of baseball operations, Cal Ripken's return for his second season as manager and Doug Melvin's appointment as farm system director.

Hill said recognition of the problem was more important than the two minority appointments.

"The big thing to me has been done," he said. "I've felt racism-sexism is much like alcoholism. A lot of the problem is denial, and once you acknowledge you have a problem and you are past the state of denial, then you can begin to address the problem."

"The best people are going to be brought on board," Hill said. "That doesn't preclude anyone."

Robinson said his appointment proves there are opportunities for minorities in baseball's front offices.

"I think it's a positive step," said Robinson, who managed the Cleveland Indians from 1975-77 and the San Francisco Giants from 1981-84. "It gives minorities a sense that progress is being made and that there are opportunities for blacks in off-the-field positions."

Robinson, 58, has been a player, coach or manager for 35 years. As a player, he was an All-Star 11 times and was the only man ever to be named Most Valuable Player in both leagues.

"When it was explained to me what I would be doing for this organization, it was very appealing to me," said Robinson, who was a coach last season. "Not only will I be working for Mr. Williams as far as keeping him advised, I will have the opportunity to learn all areas of the baseball operations of the front office."

"After talking with Roland coming up on the airport and what he came to say what I would be doing for him and helping him with I just got more excited about the job.

"He said that he would include me in all areas of his job and he would try to the best of his ability to teach me everything he knows. ... It is something I had thought about for a few years and something I would like to do in my career."

Robinson said adjusting to life off the playing field will have a few difficult moments.

"I have mixed feelings about taking off the uniform," he said. "I've had it on for more than 35 years. Just thinking about it brings goose bumps to me. ... I guess when opening day of spring training and opening day rolls around I will have feelings again about having the uniform on."

TO DISTRICT THREE VOTERS!
 Thank you for the confidence you expressed in electing me to the Pitt County Board of Education. I appreciate your support and the opportunity to represent you on the board and look forward to working with you for our children.

Mavericks Forget Memory, Pop Sonics

By BILL BARNARD
P Basketball Writer

The Dallas Mavericks weren't about to let last April's upset loss to Seattle affect them this season.

"Dallas was all business," Dale Ellis said after the Mavericks routed the SuperSonics 117-101 in Seattle on Tuesday night. "We were feeling very good about ourselves as a team. We thought we just had to show up and we'd win. We just didn't come to play."

Dallas had beaten the Sonics in five straight regular-season games and one playoff game by an average of 18 points before Seattle rallied to win the next three games and the series.

Ellis, a former Dallas reserve who was the hero of that upset victory, scored 28 points for Seattle, but it wasn't nearly enough after Dallas outscored the Sonics 41-20 in the second quarter for a 65-46 halftime lead.

"We were lousy all around," Seattle Coach Bernie Bickerstaff said. "We played as if we believed everything people wrote about us. It shows we're a young, immature team."

Rolando Blackman, who scored 24 points, said the Mavericks didn't come into the game thinking revenge.

"This is a brand new season," he said. "We've got to move on."

In other NBA games, it was Indiana 121, Detroit 118; Chicago 105, Atlanta 95; Milwaukee 115, Washington 100; Los Angeles Lakers 133, San Antonio 124; Phoenix 123, Golden State 109; Los Angeles Clippers 100, Utah 88; Sacramento 134, Denver 123; and Houston 118, Portland 111.

Mark Aguirre scored 25 points and Derek Harper had a career-high 16 assists for the Mavericks.

"Derek Harper runs the whole tempo of our ballclub," Aguirre said. "He sets the motion of the offense and the defense. He played a very intelligent game tonight, calling good plays and distributing the ball well."

"Last year, we had a two-man offense — Blackman and myself. Now that we're getting more help, we're not being double-teamed as much."

The Mavericks led 40-38 with seven minutes left in the first half before a 21-4 spurt made it 61-42. During the decisive second quarter, Harper had seven of his 11 first-half assists and Detlef Schrempf had 11 of his 13 points.

The Mavericks made 16 of 20 field-goal attempts in the second period and they held Seattle to 18-for-47 shooting in the first half.

Lakers 133, Spurs 124
Defending champion Los Angeles stayed unbeaten after three games as James Worthy scored 32 points against San Antonio.

The Spurs, who got 28 points from Walter Berry, trailed by only four with 3:40 left, but a 13-3 spurt led by Magic Johnson and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar gave the Lakers a 130-116 advantage.

A.C. Green finished with 23 points, Johnson had 21 points and 13 assists and Abdul-Jabbar scored 18 points for the Lakers.

Guards Johnny Dawkins and Alvin Robertson added 21 and 20 points for San Antonio, while Spurs rookie forward Greg "Cadillac" Anderson had 19 points and five blocked shots.

Suns 123, Warriors 109
Rookie Coach John Wetzel got his first NBA victory as Walter Davis scored 30 points and Eddie Johnson 25 for Phoenix against Golden State.

The Suns, now 1-2, led 97-78 after three quarters before the Warriors made a late run.

With Chris Mullin scoring seven of his 25 points during a 13-2 spurt, Golden State trailed 99-91 with 7:06 remaining before Jeff Hornacek, who scored 10 of his 18 points in the fourth quarter, hit three baskets to help Phoenix rebuild its advantage to 111-95.

Bulls 105, Hawks 95
Chicago held Atlanta to 38 percent shooting and Michael Jordan scored 29 points.

The Hawks, with Dominique Wilkins scoring 15 of his 35 points in the fourth period, rallied from a 22-point deficit, but never seriously threatened to catch up despite holding the Bulls to 17 points in the quarter.

Jordan and Charles Oakley, who had 15 points and 15 rebounds, buried Atlanta in the first half.

During one five-minute stretch in the first quarter, the two combined for 12 of Chicago's 18 points. And in a 3½-minute stretch in the second quarter, Jordan and Oakley scored 12 of the team's 13 points.

Pacers 121, Pistons 118

Indiana beat Detroit as Vern Fleming hit his last nine field-goal attempts and got 20 of his 24 points in the second half, including a basket and two free throws in the final 13 seconds.

Fleming put the Pacers ahead 119-117 with a rebound basket, but grabbed the ball as it came through the net and was called for a technical foul for delay of game.

Joe Dumars converted the technical foul for the Pistons, but then dribbled the ball out of bounds with six seconds to go. Fleming hit two clinching free throws with three seconds left.

Steve Stipanovich had 25 points and 11 rebounds and Chuck Person 25 points and 10 rebounds for Indiana. Isaiah Thomas had 23 points and Adrian Dantley 22 for the Pistons.

Bucks 115, Bullets 100
Milwaukee broke open a close game by outscoring Washington 34-14 in the third quarter.

Jerry Reynolds scored 12 points, and Paul Pressey and Randy Breuer eight each for the Bucks in the third period, when they extended a 59-55 halftime lead to 93-69.

Pressey finished with 24 points, Breuer had 22 points and 16 rebounds and Reynolds scored 16 points. Jeff Malone led the Bullets with 18 points.

Clippers 100, Jazz 88

Los Angeles snapped a 16-game losing streak dating back to last March 25 as Mike Woodson scored 23 points and Michael Cage 19 against Utah.

Following an 11-1 spurt by Utah that left the Jazz with a 79-75 deficit, the Clippers had a 16-3 run that gave Los Angeles its biggest lead, 95-78 with 2½ minutes left.

Utah was led by Karl Malone, who scored 20 of his 24 points in the first half.

Rockets 118, Trail Blazers 111
Houston outlasted Portland as Ralph Sampson had 25 points, and World B. Free scored six in the final two minutes.

Free hit two free throws and a

Portland led until Cedric Maxwell's layup with 11:23 left in the game tied it at 89-89. The game was tied four more times before the Blazers' Jerome Kersey scored six consecutive points to give Portland a 110-106 lead with three minutes left.

Rodney McCray added 23 points and Akeem Olajuwon had 16 points and 14 rebounds for Houston. Clyde Drexler led the Trail Blazers with 28 points.

Kings 134, Nuggets 123
Reggie Theus scored 14 of his 34 points in the fourth quarter for Sacramento against Denver. The Kings built a 104-87 lead at the end of the third quarter on the strength of a 23-8 run in the period's last seven minutes.

Otis Thorpe added 27 points and 15 rebounds for the Kings, while Alex English scored 29 points and Jay Vincent 28 for the Nuggets.

No Movement In Free Agents

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's free-agent mating dance began with both sides acting like nervous schoolers, sitting by the phone, waiting for the other to call.

"I haven't heard from any agents today," New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner said Tuesday, the first day contracts could be discussed.

"I've heard nothing, absolutely nothing," Bill Goodstein, the attorney for reliever Dave Righetti, said. "I'm awfully disappointed. Can you imagine the Red Sox with Righetti? We wish Detroit would make a pitch."

More than one-third of the major league teams expressed little or no interest in signing free agents from other clubs, according to general managers and other club officials contacted by The Associated Press.

The five teams that expressed interest — the New York Yankees, Baltimore Orioles, Los Angeles Dodgers, Seattle Mariners and Cincinnati Reds — said they would proceed slowly and have not attempted to contact agents for the premier players.

Seventy-six players became free agents in the 15 days following the World Series and can, in theory, sign with any club. But in the last two seasons no team has made offers unless a player's previous club has said it was not interested in re-signing him.

Jack Clark, Jack Morris, Paul Molitor, Mike Witt, Gary Gaetti, Chili Davis and Righetti are among those available.

"Nobody's going to do anything quickly," Cincinnati Reds General Manager Murray Cook said.

"We're trying to improve ourselves," Seattle General Manager Dick Balderson said. "It depends on the dollars and cents."

Steinbrenner and General Manager Lou Piniella of the Yankees showed the most interest.

"They have to be for two- and three-year contracts," Steinbrenner said. "I will never go into long-term contracts again."

Steinbrenner, whom some officials said they were watching for the first move, said he would give Piniella a budget for free agents and that Piniella and Manager Billy Martin would decide whom to pursue.

Ivory Coast's Forests Facing Fast Depletion

BY RICHARD EVERETT
Associated Press Writer

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — Encouraged by the government, farmers and loggers have driven deeper into the forests of this West African nation, hacking, burning and planting their way toward a dream of success.

But ecologists fear they are stripping the land so bare that in the end the dream could become a nightmare.

President Felix Houphouët-Boigny, called the nation's "No. 1 peasant," exhorted his people about 25 years ago to build an economy based on cash crop agriculture.

"The land belongs to those who develop it," he said.

From 1970 to 1984, the Ivory Coast had the highest rate of growth in agricultural production in black Africa. By 1986, however, it also had highest rate of deforestation in the continent's preserved forest areas.

Agricultural scientists say the first effect of deforestation will be a collapse of the timber industry, followed by a shortage of firewood, a primary source of fuel. The degradation will expose soil, leaving it open to irreparable damage from erosion, they contend. Soil erosion has been an important factor in the southward movement of the Sahara Desert, which claims hundreds of square miles of land each year.

The Ivory Coast's forests have shrunk from 24.7 million acres at independence from France in 1960 to 7.4 million acres in 1987. They are disappearing at the rate of about 740,000 acres a year.

"The key problem is the itinerant farmers," said J. G. Bertault, French research scientist at the Tropical Forest Technical Center in Abidjan, the capital. "Any resolution of the forestry problem must first deal with the agriculture problem."

Government officials, the United Nations-affiliated World Bank and foresters concur with this view, and several said in interviews that in less than five years there will be no forests left to save.

Eighty-five percent of this New Mexico-sized country's 10 million people are involved in agriculture, and two-thirds of the rural population live in the forest region.

Bertault said 65 percent of the country's immigrant worker population, mostly from neighboring Burkina Faso, also live in this region, which stretches from the palm-fringed lagoons of the coast northward through the dense rain forest to the country's middle belt of tropical deciduous forest.

After the use of forced labor on the French colonial plantations ended in 1946, Ivorians and African immigrants were allowed and later encouraged to seek their fortune in the forest. Villagers entered the lush virgin jungle with machetes, chopping down trees, and burning large areas to plant coffee, cocoa and other cash crops.

The government's policy of paying farmers high prices for their crops led to an agricultural boom that produced one of the highest annual per capita incomes in Africa, peaking at about $1,200 in the late 1970s.

But the forestry experts say the peasants lacked modern agricultural tools, fertilizers and high quality seeds and farmed inefficiently. They cultivated the forests in small patches, quickly exhausting the thin topsoil in one area and then moving.

The methods left forest areas looking "like a Swiss cheese," said Bertault. The overfarmed patches of

Museum Near Infamous Confederate Jail Honors Nation's War Prisoners

By ELLIOTT MINOR
Associated Press Writer

ANDERSONVILLE, Ga. (AP) — All U.S. prisoners of war are being honored at a museum located near the graves of 13,000 Union soldiers who lost their lives, many from starvation and inadequate medical care, while confined at the notorious Civil War prison camp in Andersonville.

The museum, featuring 18 displays and a slide presentation, will demonstrate the hardships endured by 142,000 American who were captured by enemy forces during World Wars I and II, the Korean conflict and the Vietnam War, said Fred Sanchez, chief ranger at the Andersonville National Historic Site.

The museum was opened last Sunday during a ribbon-cutting ceremony that attracted dozens of former prisoners of war. The group included a contingent from the Georgia chapter of American Ex-Prisoners of War Inc., which held an annual meeting in nearby Albany.

"This is hallowed ground for them because of the amount of suffering and death that occurred here over such a short time," said Sanchez.

Describing Andersonville as the "epitome of the POW story," Sanchez noted that at least 13,000 prisoners died at the Confederate camp within 14 months during the Civil War.

By contrast, about 17,000 Americans perished in enemy prison camps from World War I through the Vietnam War, he said.

The nation currently has about 80,000 surviving former POWs, Sanchez said.

The museum, closed since last fall for the installation of new exhibits, features displays focusing on women POWs, prison life, artifacts and the psychological and physical tortures endured by Americans captured in Korea and Vietnam.

"The Japanese beheaded a lot of Americans for various reasons, but there wasn't individual torture like there was in Korea and Vietnam," Sanchez said. "Vietnam signed the Geneva Convention (an agreement setting humane standards for the treatment of POWs), but refused to apply the standards to American prisoners because the two nations were not formally at war."

Several displays will feature paintings, illustrations and poetry created by POWs.

"One of the greatest commodities they had was time. They had to do something with their time," Sanchez said, noting that one prisoner of the Japanese, fearing he would be executed for violating a ban on diaries, recorded his daily activities in cartoons.

The POW displays are housed in an 1890s carriage house overlooking a grassy 26-acre tract dotted with marble monuments to the dead.

During the Civil War, the area was surrounded by a pine log stockade where thousands of Union troops were herded without adequate food, water or shelter. The National Park Service recently excavated portions of the old stockade and plans to rebuild some sections of it.

The historic site, located between Americus and Oglethorpe in southwest Georgia, attracts a steady flow of visitors. The Andersonville victims are buried shoulder-to-shoulder with small granite markers marking their graves. Their final resting place has been incorporated into a National Cemetery that includes the graves of about 3,000 later veterans.

Sanchez said all 17 members of the Andersonville staff, including Superintendent John Tucker, took part in creating the POW museum.

"We're very proud of our new exhibits and think they will give visitors a much better ... understanding of what happened to Americans held as prisoners of war," Tucker said. "People do not realize that Andersonville National Historic Site is the nationwide memorial for all prisoners of war throughout our nation's history."

Sculptor Turns His Ideas Into Monsters

By KRISTI UMBREIT
Associated Press Writer

PIGEON FORGE, Tenn. (AP) — When designer Marc Cardoso looks at a slab of plastic foam, he sees the stuff nightmares are made of.

His Roof-Popper, Alien and Vampire already stalk the miniature golf courses of this Smoky Mountain resort town lined with water slides, souvenir shops and special-effects museums.

"Fantasy sells," says the 44-year-old industrial designer, who has worked on everything from helicopter control panels to Princess telephones but these days focuses on the fantasy creatures.

"It's fun for me. It's getting away from the highly structured things in the past. People really eat it up."

"And it's the chance for me to carve from eight-foot-tall blocks of foam. For a while you just stand there and say, 'What am I going to do with this?'"

Cardoso has a renovated gas station in nearby Sevierville where he wields a chain saw to carve the rough shape of his creatures, then uses hand tools to define it more exactly.

They get a coat of Latex paint to protect them from the weather.

He gets monster requests from area merchants, some from the nearby Alpine-motif town of Gatlinburg, which is crammed with wax museums, haunted houses, miniature golf courses, T-shirt shops and other tourist-type places.

His Roof-Popper, an angry, red skeletal creature, rips out of the top of the Haunted Golf building while brandishing a golf club and glaring at traffic going by.

His Alien towers over the golf course's gate and includes in the foreground the figure of a man poking a stick at the green tyrannosaurus-like monster.

The average 10-foot, plastic foam creature costs anywhere from $3,500 to $10,000 and takes about two months to carve and paint, said Cardoso, who plans to export them to other areas of the country someday.

His clients complain of the cost, but "I'm about the only one around here doing this," he said. "Materials are not too expensive. It's the time and labor that cost."

He got complaints from local officials when he tried to equip the Alien with moveable parts for extra effect. Zoning officials said a moving Alien would disrupt traffic.

"Now it's going to be more animated work," he said of his future fantasy creatures. "If I'd had my way, everything I ever built would be animated. I'm hoping a lot of the work I do in the future is interior and I won't have to worry about the traffic."

Hydraulics and the electric motors that activate car windows are the best when it comes to making monsters move, he said.

He said he has been asked to make gargoyles for the Mysterious Mansion in Gatlinburg, and he envisions dark, foam-carved monsters about seven feet tall with claws and "flapping and folding batlike wings and eyes that roll and move."

"I want them to stand up and move around. I'd like to have one crawl around on the building," he said.

"These are going to be a little scary. I'm going for more fear than fun," said Cardoso, who gets his ideas from scoping out children's space toys and popular movies.

He also draws from his days as a set designer for music acts at San Francisco's three-level Avalon Ballroom during the 1960s. Some of his backdrops and light shows accompanied the performances of Alice Cooper, Janis Joplin and Moby Grape.

That's probably why his blue-faced, chartreuse-haired, 18-foot mermaid wasn't a hit with one local miniature golf owner, he said.

"He said, 'I ain't never seen no person blue.' I said, 'Have you ever seen a mermaid?' ... There's no appreciation by these people," said Cardoso, who has lived and worked here for 20 years.

"It's a cartoon world," he said of his palette. "It allows me to express my fantasies, and it's really good money."

"All these sardonic-looking creatures are caricatures of my clients," he said.

Carolina Events

Roanoke Historical Group To Meet

MANTEO — The Roanoke Island Historical Association will hold its annual membership meeting Nov. 16 at Owens Restaurant in Nags Head. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. to be followed by the annual meeting.

The RIHA Morrison Award will be presented to Samm-Art Williams, playwright and performer who is currently screenwriter for the CBS show, "Frank's Place." He will fly from Hollywood to accept the award.

Deadline for reservations is Thursday. For reservations, call 473-2127.

Museum Schedules Western N.C. Trips

RALEIGH — The first of four "North Caravan" trips offered by the N.C. Art Society and the N.C. Museum of Art will be Dec. 4-6 to Asheville and the Biltmore Estate.

For details on reservations and costs, phone 833-1935, Ext. 123.

Poetry Event At St. Andrews

LAURINBURG — St. Andrews Presbyterian College will host the North Carolina Poetry Society during the college's Sam Ragan Awards Night Thursday.

The event, beginning at 8 p.m. in the Hagan Choral Room of the Vardell Building, will feature a reader's theater comprised of Margaret Boothe Badour, Perri Schmidt, Stephen E. Smith, Mary C. Snotherly, Shelby Stephenson and Marsha White Warren. The reading will be a theater version of "North Carolina's 400 Years: Signs Along the Way," with the text from the anthology compiled and edited by Ron Bayes, St. Andrews writer-in-residence.

Lecture Will Focus On Stella's Art

RALEIGH — "The Art of Frank Stella: Three Decades in Retrospective," will be the title of a lecture at 3 p.m. Sunday at the N.C. Museum of Art, Raleigh.

Richard H. Axsom, professor of art history at the University of Michigan, Dearborn, will be the speaker. Stella, considered one of the most influential artists of the postwar period, is the subject of a major retrospective exhibition now on view at the Museum of Modern Art, New York City.

Writers Add Second Workshop

WILMINGTON — The North Carolina Writers' Network has added a second short story workshop to its fall conference at the Sheraton-Wrightsville Beach Hotel Friday through Sunday.

The additional workshop will be taught by Michael Brondoli, author of "Showdown and Other Stories" published in 1984. Brondoli, now living in Durham, is winner of a Pushcart Prize for fiction.

For more details on this and other workshops at the conference, call 343-8771.

Senior To Present ECU Recital

Jennifer Brown of Emerald Isle, a student of Tom Mease in the East Carolina University School of Music, will present her senior flute recital at 9 p.m. Thursday in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the ECU campus.

She will be accompanied by Alisa Wetherington, piano. For her recital, she has chosen works by Bela Bartok, Giovanni Pergolesi and Albert Roussel.

Charles Bronson, At 66, Keeps Up He-Man Tactics

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles Bronson was upset.

"Who picks the photographs for those trade-paper ads?" he demanded.

"The art department, I suppose," answered the apprehensive press agent.

"Well, tell them to stop all that retouching," said Bronson. "You can't see my wrinkles. The kind of movies I do, you expect wrinkles."

What's this — a movie star complaining that his wrinkles don't show? But then, Bronson has steadfastly refused to conform throughout his 37-year film career. He's obviously not a pretty face and he doesn't play Hollywood's power games. Most of the time he shuns publicity, living quietly with his wife, Jill Ireland, and their seven children.

Bronson appeared for an interview in the luxurious office of Menahem Golan, who heads Cannon Films.

"Hey, this is some place!" he marveled. Although Bronson has a long-term contract with Cannon, he had never been in Golan's office.

"I let my agent take care of business matters," the actor explained.

Though Bronson turned 66 Nov. 3, the wrinkles aren't that bad. The face seems as stone-hewn as ever, the hair like steel wool — a bit rusty. The body remains compact and muscular, the result of daily workouts, which is a good thing when he makes such movies as "Death Wish 4: The Crackdown."

Yes, architect Paul Kersey is back, loaded with vengeance. This time he's out to get the drug dealers who supplied a fatal dose of crack to the daughter of his friend, reporter Kay Lenz.

"This one really goes for it," Bronson mused about his new movie. "At last count there were 35 bodies."

Not all are dispatched by Kersey. He manages to trick two warring drug gangs into an all-out battle, thus the bad guys get rid of each other.

How much farther can the "Death Wish" movies go? Nowhere, Bronson insists, declaring the fourth is his last. But hasn't he said that before? "Yeah, but that was before I saw this script."

"Death Wish" has become a national symbol, particularly in the wake of the Bernard Goetz subway shootings in New York. Bronson denied that the films have encouraged urban vigilantes.

"I think they have provided satisfaction for people who are victimized by crime and look in vain for authorities to protect them," he said. "But I don't think people try to imitate that kind of thing. They imitate

Hirts Agree

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Trumpeter Al Hirt and his estranged wife, who accused him in court papers last month of beating and sexually attacking her, have reached a temporary truce.

Zide B. Jahncke Hirt agreed at a hearing Monday to leave her husband's French Quarter home by Dec. 1, and Hirt agreed to pay her $2,000 a month and provide her transportation. They married in March 1984.

clever things, like the helicopter rescue from prison in 'Breakout.' That has happened a couple of times since the movie.

"I think these vengeance movies with (Arnold) Schwarzenegger and other people have been overdone, the way the Italians overdid spaghetti Westerns. I want to move on to something else."

His new film, tentatively titled "Messenger of Death," starts next month. He is cast as a Denver police officer investigating a blood feud of religious sects in the Rockies.

Bronson also talked about his wife's best-selling book, "Life Wish," in which she told about her battle with cancer. "It's being printed all over the world: France, Italy, Spain, Australia," he said.

Does Bronson plan his own book? "Never!" he declared. "I just couldn't do that. Some of the things I did in my life I wouldn't want anyone to know, not even my wife."

Too bad, because the Charles Bronson saga would make a fascinating book, maybe a movie: born Charles Bunchinsky, one of 15 children of a Lithuanian coal miner in Ehrenfield, Pa.; work in the coal mines at 16; combat action as a tail gunner over Europe in World War II; art studies in Philadelphia; acting apprenticeship at the Pasadena Playhouse.

The late Henry Hathaway picked Bronson to play a sailor in "You're in the Navy Now" starring Gary Cooper in 1950. He continued in small roles and a TV series, "Man With a Camera," then played the title role in Roger Corman's 1957 "Machine Gun Kelly."

The turning point came with "The Magnificent Seven" and "The Great Escape." Then he did a few films in France. "But the big one was 'Once Upon a Time in the West.' That one's still playing around," he said.

Bronson has a two-picture-a-year contract with Cannon, with three more films to go. "They've been good to me, and I think they've been healthy for the film business. I hope they can continue."

At least in one respect Bronson seems to be slowing down.

"I'm playing golf," he confessed somewhat sheepishly. "I have a house on the L.A. Country Club, and I used to watch the golfers go by. I said to myself, 'What a silly game.' Now I'm playing it myself. What a frustrating game it is, fighting that little ball."

Raymond Burr Still Mr. Mason To Fans

By KATHRYN BAKER

AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Raymond Burr, leaning on a cane, made his way across the loading dock in the basement of NBC.

Throughout the recently ended strike against the network, NBC brought stars to the studio this way to avoid picket lines.

The loading dock was crowded with blue-collar workers, many of them black, Hispanic and Oriental. "Look, Perry Mason!" they said, nudging each other. "Hi, Mr. Mason!"

They all waved at each other — the workers and the actor — as if they were old friends. Then, waiting for the freight elevator, he turned to a reporter and said, "Remember what I was saying earlier, about the minorities? There's your proof."

Earlier, in an interview at his hotel, Burr was explaining why "Perry Mason" is still so popular three decades after it premiered on Sept. 21, 1957. The show, featuring the brilliant defense attorney created by author Erle Stanley Gardner, ran on CBS until 1966.

Since 1986, NBC has found the subsequent "Perry Mason" made-for-TV movies so popular that it runs them during "sweeps," the four months a year when ratings determine advertising rates. This November sweeps, there's "Perry Mason: The Case of the Scandalous Scoundrel," airing Sunday.

"First of all we try to do as good a show as we possibly can as far as entertainment is concerned, that's the first responsibility," Burr said. "Then, we enjoy something that our audiences didn't know much about until the 'Perry Mason' stories came along, and that is our system of justice. ... When I started as Perry Mason, most of the minorities in this country didn't know what they had. ... They didn't realize our court system covered everybody."

It was not just Perry Mason and Burr's other popular character, Ironside, who became popular, but the system of justice they represented, Burr said.

"Around the world, 'Perry Mason' and 'Ironside' both have been the two most popular American dramatic hours, especially in the countries with the Napoleonic code, guilty until proven (innocent) — Spain, France and Italy, Portugal and one or two other countries.

"When 'Perry Mason' went on the air in Italy, one of the (Italian) senators said, 'You — 'Perry Mason' and shows like you — are going to cause changes in the Italian law.' And they have. We had dinner again last year, he's a very old man, but he said, 'You see? They've made many changes in the Italian law based on the resentment of guilty until proven innocent.'"

On the brief ride up Fifth Avenue, even jaded New Yorkers gawked at the familiar figure in the limousine. They couldn't hear Burr complaining that the show that made him so famous also ruined his private life.

"It prevented me from any kind of life at all," he said. "It is something that I took, it consumed me for nine years, and I could've stopped it, but you're made to feel guilty immediately by the network, by the people who are working, by all of that, the crew, the cast and the public. And you do owe a responsibility to all of those people."

He had planned "Ironside" as a movie, but it, too, became a series, running for eight years on NBC, until 1975.

Researchers Turn To Church Floor In Search For Rembrandt's Remains

By ABNER KATZMAN
Associated Press Writer
AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Anatomical researchers have set out to find the remains of the master painter Rembrandt under the floor of an old church.

The impetus for the search came late in October when workers restoring the 17th century Western Church in Amsterdam turned up the skeletal remains of people buried under the church, as was the custom until the mid 1800s.

The Dutch Master died in 1669 at the age of 63 and was buried in the church, Amsterdam's first Protestant house of worship.

But exactly where, no one knows, since the financially beleaguered artist's family could only afford a place in one of the multiple graves for less well-off congregants, and those carry no names.

To do the detective work, the church contacted Leiden University's Anatomical Laboratory, the Netherlands' pre-eminent research institution for physical anthropology and physiology.

But university researchers play down the chances of ever identifying Rembrandt's remains after more than three centuries.

"One of the problems with the church people," observed Willem Mulder, the excavation director, "is the first thing they say if they find any bones is 'That must be Rembrandt!'"

In coming months, the Leiden specialists will analyze the contents of the flagstone-covered graves that cover the 14,500-square-foot church interior.

They agreed to take on the job as part of their research into Dutch growth patterns and diseases in past centuries.

"However interesting Rembrandt's remains may seem to be, scientifically it is much more important to see how many men and women you can find and if they've got any pathological defects," Mulder, curator of the Leiden lab's Anatomical Museum, said in an interview.

The church elders consider it a fair exchange if they get a line on where the Dutch Master's remains lie.

"If we can find him we can rebury him in a special grave," said the restoration's fund-raising chairman, Philip Korthals-Altes, "so that all visitors in the future who come to see the Western Church can see the place where Rembrandt was buried."

"It would be a sobering experience to find them, and it would be a triumph," agreed Ernst van der Wetering, a Rembrandt scholar.

"It's part of the legend of the misunderstood or the poor artist, sort of shoveled away."

But even Van der Wetering also holds out little hope of finding Rembrandt's bones.

"They will never find them because there's no way to identify them," the Amsterdam University art history professor said.

"There's nothing of the history of any diseases he had which could help to identify his remains. We know nothing about his size. We know nothing about injuries he ever had. We know nothing about his dental records."

Nicaraguan General Has His Hands Full With Writing Fame

By DOUGLAS GRANT MINE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Omar Cabezas has delicate hands, more like those of the students and cinema buffs gathered around him at the New York Film Festival than those of the profession listed on his business card: guerrilla commander.

"Comandante guerrillero y de brigada" it says on the glossy card, a designation of his current rank of brigadier in the Nicaraguan army and his former role as a leader of irregular forces in the bush and jungle war against Anastasio Somoza.

The slight and lean Cabezas has been to the mountain top. And he has come down to write about it, garner high praise for his prose and see his book — "Fire From the Mountain" — turned into one of the documentary attractions of this city's recent annual movie fete.

He has also made a lot of money. But he has kept only $10,000, donating the bulk of the book's considerable profits to a fund for his battered country's thousands of war orphans.

Cabezas, 36, talked about his work in an interview, sipping plastic cups of espresso in his none-too-opulent hotel room between screenings of the film, which was directed by Academy Award winner Deborah Shaffer ("Witness to War: Dr. Charlie Clements, 1985").

Though renowned Mexican novelist Carlos Fuentes called Cabezas' style "as fresh, funny, direct and irreverent as any produced by Latin American literature in its history," the former bush fighter became an author almost by accident.

"I never imagined I could write," said Cabezas, who also has a law degree and sits on the leftist Sandinista Front's political committee in Managua.

He told how he became friends with a correspondent covering the Nicaraguan revolution in the late 1970s. After the overthrow of Somoza in 1979, she interviewed him several times about his experience in the mountains, where, among other hardships, he suffered a kind of leprosy that formed big abscesses in both legs.

"I'd go to her house at night, she'd give me two or three beers and take out her tape recorder and ask me questions," he said.

They lost touch for a while, but after a few months, she called and asked him to come by her office.

"She pulls out a folder filled with papers, sets it on her desk and says, 'Well, Oscar, I just wanted to tell you that now you're a writer,'" he said.

He continued working in the same way, talking more or less off the top of his head into a tape recorder, with the secretary of Cmdr. Bayardo Arce, one of the nine directors of the Sandinista Front. "I just had a great desire to talk," he said.

She helped him transcribe and edit and suggested he submit his tale in the "testimonial" section of Cuba's Casa de las Americas literary competition in 1982.

"To my great surprise, it won," he said.

Using the same transcription technique, he is working with the secretary — now his wife, Ruth — on a sequel to "Fire From the Mountain," which since its publication in English in 1985 has been translated into a dozen languages and earned by his estimate a few hundred thousand dollars.

However, the children's story he plans to publish was composed at the typewriter, a type of writing that's difficult for him. "I feel egotistical and bored sitting in front of that machine," he said.

Cabezas, who commanded up to 1,000 rebels and lost three brothers in the Sandinista revolution, is optimistic about the peace accord signed in Guatemala in August by the five Central American presidents.

"Incredible winds of peace are blowing through Central America. There is a contagious atmosphere of peace, little streams all coming together to form a deep river flowing toward peace."

"The people have gotten tired of war," he said.

He rejected President Reagan's characterization of the Sandinista government as totalitarian.

"We are not 'ultras,'" he said. "We don't think in black and white. I have lots of friends who are not Sandinistas. I go to their houses and they come to mine, we have some drinks, argue and shout, but at the end of the evening everybody goes home friends."

Former U.S., Thai Agents Recall War-Time Exploits

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — On a stormy night more than 42 years ago, Francis Loetterle parachuted into Thailand on a mission to train 300 "Free Thai" in sabotage, street fighting and jungle warfare against the Japanese army.

His more recent arrival was far less risky and adventurous, but he said it was just as important to him. The 69-year-old retired business executive from Scottsdale, Ariz., came this time for a reunion with a number of his surviving Thai "students" as well as other American secret agents who worked for the U.S. Office of Strategic Services (OSS), forerunner to today's Central Intelligence Agency.

The onetime operatives, some slow of step or walking with canes, called each other by their agent code names, carried tags of long disbanded units and reminisced about their intelligence gambits, costly blunders and operating behind Japanese lines. Alexander MacDonald, who was the commander of an OSS unit in Thailand in those final months of World War II in the Pacific and still lives here, met his old communications man, Dilworth Brinton of Mesa, Ariz., for the first time since the war. He also went shopping with his former wife, Betty McIntosh of Leesburg, Va., who served with OSS in China and wrote a book titled "Undercover Girl."

Her speciality, she said, was concocting rumors, lies and fake orders to demoralize Japanese forces.

Loetterle said, "Frankly, I'm not big on dirty tricks, the CIA. But ours was a wonderful mission and without question one of the finest experiences of my life. I was appreciated — and am to this day. The Thais never forgot."

The 70 OSS veterans, wives and widows were welcomed back in Bangkok with high honors, including an audience with King Bhumipol Adulyadej.

The OSS agents are widely credited here with helping check postwar demands by the British and other Allies that Thailand be treated as an enemy nation since it had formally sided with the Japanese.

MacDonald and some of the other OSS agents stayed in Thailand after the war.

MacDonald started the English-language newspaper Bangkok Post. Willis Bird pioneered Thailand's stock market. Jim Thompson revived the country's silk industry and disappeared in the Malaysian jungles under still mysterious circumstances in 1967.

"We worked with anybody who would help us win the war, and they weren't all Sunday school types," recalled Geoffrey Jones, a New York City resident who is president of The Veterans of the OSS. "We tried crazy things — but some of them were successful."

Jones said one flawed project was to attach fire bomblets to bats that were to land beneath Japanese houses. It turned out the bats were a homing species, however, and they returned upon release to set fire to the experimental site headquarters.

But the OSS also notched major triumphs. Detachment 101, for example, operated with great success behind Japanese lines in Burma. It is regarded as the first U.S. unit to organize local guerrillas for intelligence and combat — a forerunner of the U.S. Army Green Berets in Vietnam.

In Vietnam during World War II, the OSS worked with Ho Chi Minh's guerrillas, and after Japan's surrender in 1945 argued with Washington that the United States should maintain ties with the communist revolutionary leader rather than side with the French in Indochina. Ho's forces defeated the French in 1954 and the South Vietnamese and the Americans in 1975.

The OSS was disbanded Sept. 20, 1945, four years after it was formed, and while some of its members, like Betty McIntosh, joined its successor, the CIA, many returned to civilian life.

Jones said about 1,000 veterans belong to his group, and the names of 750 others who served with OSS are known. The organization holds periodic get-togethers, but the "reunion of friendship" in Bangkok was the first in Asia.

"There was a closeness and spirit in the OSS that one can never forget," McIntosh said.

Several veterans offered unflattering comparisons between the OSS and its successor.

"We didn't have the bureaucratic mold," Jones said. "We improvised, we tried things out. Mainly we wanted to win the war and get the hell out. The daring and Yankee ingenuity has been lost in the CIA. There's a different motivation."

Swit Backs Memorial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Loretta Swit, who portrayed Korean War nurse Hot Lips Houlihan in the television series "M-A-S-H," said Tuesday "it's time we said thank you" to the women who served in Vietnam with a statue in their honor.

"To ignore the contributions women have given is an outrageous neglect, and it's really sad," Miss Swit said as she lent her support to the drive to add a statue of a military woman to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington.

She joined other supporters at a news conference where Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., said he had introduced a Senate resolution authorizing the statue, which would be added to the V-shaped wall and statue of three fighting men that makes up the memorial.

Supporters are turning to Congress after their proposal was rejected by the Commission on Fine Arts, a federal board that oversees placement of national monuments. Durenberger's measure, if passed, would overrule the commission's action and reduce its role in this case to an advisory one on artistic considerations.

In an emotional endorsement of the project, Miss Swit said military nurses who served in Vietnam "were my inspiration" and were more deserving of recognition and honor than she was for the acting awards she received.

"I was merely the spokesman," she said. "We've got it all wrong. They are the ones that deserve this tribute, this statue."

"These women paid a price, and it's time we said thank you," she added.

Ivory Coast's Forests

land suffered from erosion, while the surrounding woodlands were largely destroyed by the immense brush fires set to clear away the thick undergrowth.

Most alarming to ecologists is that many of the farmers moved illegally into classified forests, preserves that are closed to the general public, and meant to be off-limits to all farming, hunting and commercial activity.

Ivory Coast officially has about 85 classified forests in the forest zone and 65 more in the northern savannah zone. But the lack of adequate demarcation and policing of the preserves has led to widespread infiltration by the farmers.

The logging industry, which boomed in the 1950s, has laid waste to woodlands of valuable tropical hardwoods much sought-after in Europe. Loggers felled large areas of forest in search of mahogany, iroko and other profitable hardwoods. Timber became the country's third-largest export after cocoa and coffee and was responsible for 10 percent of export earnings. Some forests were leveled, while others were stripped of the profitable species, leaving behind only the less valuable trees.

The major lumber companies assert much of the damage was done by unscrupulous operators who stripped the areas to make quick money.

ECU Staff Members Honored

RALEIGH — Two faculty members at East Carolina University were recipients of awards presented by the North Carolina chapter of the Victorian Society in America at ceremonies held recently in Raleigh.

Dr. William Stephenson received the first ever Marguerite Schumann Award for Literary Achievement for his book, "Sallie Southall Cotten: A Woman's Life in North Carolina." The recently published book chronicles the life and times of Mrs. Cotten, a prominent Pitt County resident and an early advocate of women's roles in the state and nationally.

The publication "Victorian Institute Journal" and its editor, Dr. Donald L. Lawler of ECU, received an Award of Merit given by the Victorian Society.

Both Stephenson and Lawler are faculty members in the ECU English Department.

Several other individuals and publications in Pitt County and adjacent areas were award recipients during North Carolina's annual cultural week, which ended Sunday.

These are:
• Student Publication Awards, senior high division, Washington High School, Washington, N.C., tie for first place for "Opus '87."

• Sue Ellen Hunsucker Bridgers, a Winterville native now living in Sylva, received the American Association of University Women Award for Juvenile Literature for "Permanent Connections."

• Elizabeth W. Roberson of Williamston, won first honorable mention in the D.T. Smithwick Award of the N.C. Society of Historians. The Society of Historians also presented a Special President's Award to Elizabeth T. Brandon of Williamston for her efforts in saving the old Martin County Courthouse.

Awards were presented during the week in the fields of literature, music, history, poetry and folklore.

Danson Tiring Of Shelley Talk

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Ted Danson, who plays Sam the bartender on NBC's "Cheers," says he's tired of being asked about his feelings about his former co-star Shelley Long.

"I can't think of one thing about Shelley that wasn't negative. Of course, Shelley is difficult. But who cares? It's the work," he said in an interview in the Nov. 14 issue of TV Guide.

"Does her being difficult take away from your enjoying the Sam and Diane relationship? To talk about her now seems like being on my honeymoon talking about my ex-wife. . . Give me a break."

Comparing Long to new co-star Kirstie Alley, who plays Cheers' manager Rebecca Howe, Danson said: "Kirstie comes across as more vulnerable. And more relaxed. There was nothing relaxed about Shelley."

Severinsen Late For Concert Date

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Tonight Show" bandleader Doc Severinsen arrived late at a weekend concert in Minnesota after engine problems forced his Northwest Airlines flight to return here shortly after takeoff for repairs.

Severinsen apologized to his audience at the Ordway Theater in St. Paul, Minn., when he began Sunday's performance more than an hour late.

A Northwest spokesman in Minneapolis-St. Paul, Robert Gibbons, said Monday: "The flight Doc was on did develop engine problems soon after takeoff and was forced to return to Los Angeles International Airport for repair and adjustment."

Severinsen reportedly slept as the plane doubled back and only became aware of the engine malfunction upon landing in Los Angeles, Gibbons said.

The nature of the plane's problem was not disclosed.

Stallone Plays Rambo For Real

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sylvester Stallone, filming "Rambo III" in Israel, had to be convinced that he and his entourage were in danger when gunfire erupted outside his hotel before they fled to safety, his publicist says.

Sunday night's shooting occurred 150 yards outside the hotel, near the Israel-Jordan border, and hotel security guards burst into Stallone's room to evacuate the building, according to a report by television's "Entertainment Tonight" reporter Leeza Gibbons.

Stallone initially refused to leave. He was persuaded to evacuate as the fighting intensified, Ms. Gibbons said.

Publicist Paul Bloch, who spoke to Stallone early Monday, said the report was true.

None of the crewmembers was injured, and the source of the gunfire was not known.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY Nov. 12

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Don't try to get out of a responsibility which is clearly yours, or you'll appear shallow and gutless. Listen to the advice of your good friends.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Arguing with someone who is stubborn is the same as beating yourself in the head, so just agree with a smile and get it over with.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Your co-workers may seem difficult today, but it's you and not them. Take it easy at home tonight after an activity-filled day.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): If you update your systems for doing your daily work, you'll be able to command a greater income. Establish more harmony at home.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Think it over carefully before you say anything critical, and avoid a big argument. Show more devotion for your mate who's feeling dejected.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Be sure you don't write anything down which could later boomerang in your face. Entertain at home tonight and have a great time.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Don't become involved in a troubling financial matter today. Wait until you have plenty of time to get into this matter "whole hog."
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): You may feel as if you're not getting ahead fast enough, but bide your time. Good things come to those who don't whine.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): If you don't stop worrying, you'll have to start buying buttermilk. Relax with your mate and good friends at home tonight.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): An associate will be in a rotten mood today, but don't take this seriously. Use your natural charm to snap this person out of it.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): This is not a good day for beginning new ventures or taking other risks. Improve your present interests instead and be happy.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Someone you run into today may have an ill-conceived scheme in the offing, so don't get involved. Be sure to drive carefully tonight.

ALL THE RIGHT FINESSES

 ♣ A J 10

The bidding:
 South West North East
 1♥ Pass 3♥ Pass
 4♥ Pass Pass Pass Opening lead: Jack of ♣ Usually, we warn you in this column about taking too many finesnesses. So, as a welcome change, here's a hand where you can take every finesse in sight. Indeed, your problem is going to be whether you can take enough finesesses!

North's jump to three hearts was a limit raise, showing 10-12 points and four trumps; it was invitational, not forcing. South had just enough to continue on to game.

After the lead of the jack of spades, you take your first finesse even though you do not have much hope of it succeeding. You are not very surprised when East wins the king and returns a spade. We hope you didn't lead a trump now—it's time for your next finesse. You should lead a club to the ten.

West wins the queen and returns a trump. You win in hand and continue a trump. West shoots up with the ace and exits with a trump. Since you are ready for your next finesse, you win in dummy. You need to take two diamond finesesses and a club finesse, and you have no more sure entries to the table. What now?

Move to the head of the class if you led the queen of diamonds and, should East follow with a low diamond, you played the jack from hand! Now you can repeat the diamond finesse and be sure of getting to dummy if East has the king. If he covers, you win and cross to the table with a diamond to take the club finesse; if he does not cover, you will still be on the board when the finesse wins. By handling your assets in this precise order, you limit your losers to a trump, a spade and a club.

Note that you will not be able to take all the finesesses you need if you handle the diamonds any other way.
 East will always be able to deny you an entry to dummy by either covering or refusing to cover the next diamond lead. Try it for yourself if you won't accept our word for it.

Indian Fish Bake

By Elise Fleming

The smoke is slowly rising,
Towards a cloudy, darkened sky.
The aroma of the broiling fish,
Tickles the nose and stings the eye.

The sizzling, crackling fire,
Gives a glow of warmth and heat,
And I like to stand beside it,
To warm my hands and feet.

I take the cooking fork in hand,

And slowly raise the wooden grate.
The timing has to be just right—
Not too soon and not too late.

We cook our autumn catch at once,
And finally share our festive fare.

This day we're thankful for the hunt—
The fish of sea, the birds of air.

The drums and rattles quiet down,
The women hum their babes a song.
With belly full and eyes of sand,
I sleep in peace—what could go wrong?

Elise Fleming, 13, a student at E.B. Aycock Junior High School wins this week's writing contest.

My New Room

By Jaime Kowey

My room will be the prettiest room on the block. The room is in a beautiful old stone house on Westview St. The walls are made of plaster and were covered with off-white paint until the wallpaper was put up. My room has walls covered with light, delicate, pastel wallpaper.

Most of the furniture is honey-brown oak wood. The bed is brass with sky-blue porcelain knobs, and the chest is dark cherry wood. Looking from the door, one dresser is on the left wall and one is on the right wall. An antique chest is straight ahead in front of the window; a night-stand is next to the door; and the bed is in the middle of the room covered with an off-white, lacy bedspread. The dressers are fairly big with lots of drawers. The bed is queen size and there's a small night-stand and a large chest about five feet long. My furniture is mostly wood, brass, and porcelain.

There are two really big walk-in closets with lots of shelves to store things in. They are on walls across from and next to the door. They are made of plaster and have off-white walls and soft blue shelves.

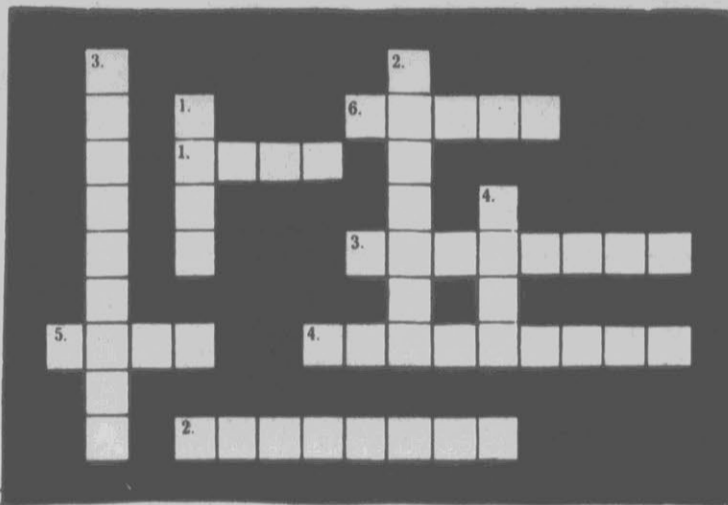

I have a pretty window with a window seat and a little panel of light pink, green, and blue stained glass in it. It's a large window with long off-white lace curtains that hang to touch the shiny wooden floor. The window is on the back wall so I can see it when I walk in and when I'm lying in bed. In conclusion, my room is the prettiest room a girl could want!

Jaime Kowey, 11, a student at Farmville Middle School receives special mention.

Solve The Riddle

By Kenneth Hardy

I am sometimes warm and calm, and sometimes swift and cool.

I can't be touched, but yet I move. Some people call me cruel.

I've whipped the highest mountains, and sailed disturbing seas.

I've been to the deepest valleys, and played at the tops of trees.

Sometimes I am very weak,

at other times I'm strong.
But I travel around the world, because it is to this world that I belong.
What am I?

Answer: The wind

Kenneth Hardy, 17, a student at D.H. Conley High School receives special mention.

Being In The Cold

By Jason Newton

Walking with no one except my faithful dog at my side.
Wandering through the forest.

Listening to nature's beauty of silence.
Snow, falling from the sky, pitter patters on my shoulders.

Looking at the clearwater creeks—now frozen because of the temperature.

Watching for movement of woodland animals.

My companion barks, and everything is still again.

Trudging through the snow, eating some along the way, we move on.

Feeling the water in my boots,

Thinking of a fireplace and hot cocoa, I decide we should turn around.

Tracing my way back by following our footprints.

I pull open the door of my warm home, loving it when it snows.

SESAME BEEF AND SNOW PEAS — This flavorful dish starts with boil-in-bag rice, which comes prepackaged in serving portions sized for one or two-person households as well as larger families. The rice combines high quality with easy, 10-minute cooking convenience. Teaming the rice with this quick stir-fry creates an exciting dining treat.

Today's Cooks Want Quality, Convenience

Contemporary cooks are a demanding lot when they shop for food. According to Faith Popcorn, a food consultant and chairman of BrainReserve in New York City, these consumers want and are willing to pay for top quality food, but it must be convenient and quick to prepare.

Because they want to be in and out of the kitchen in short order, innovative cooks look to quality convenience foods to create exciting dishes. Fast dishes often start with rice, which complements so many different combinations of ingredients. A boon to these demanding cooks, new boil-in-bag rice combines the quality of separate-grained rice with the convenience of no mess, no measuring, 10-minute cooking. This handy boil-in-bag product is prepackaged in single and family size serving portions to meet the needs of small households as well as larger ones.

Team the fluffy, separate grain rice with Sesame Beef and Snow Peas for a great fast and easy main dish. Proof that quality, convenience and speed are compatible, this 10-minute stir-fry topping for the rice combines thinly sliced boneless sirloin of beef with fresh snow peas, crunchy water chestnuts and onions. Sesame oil, soy sauce and wine add exciting flavor.

With Shiitake Ham Toss, the separate-grained rice is a perfect complement to the robust flavor of big, fresh, Shiitake mushrooms. These exotic

Delicious Torte Mixes With Ease

You couldn't find a more scrumptious dessert than this elegant torte if you searched the fanciest pastry shop. Melted sugar gives a rich flavor to the nutty filling. The crust, which you just pat into the pan, resembles the dough used for sugar cookies.

SWISS NUT TORTE

- 2 and 2/3 cups all-purpose flour
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - Dash salt
 - 2/3 cup margarine or butter
 - 1 beaten egg
 - 2 tablespoons rum or water
 - 1 teaspoon finely shredded lemon peel
 - 1 cup sugar
 - 1 cup whipping cream at room temperature
 - 3 tablespoons honey
 - 1 to 2 tablespoons kirsch or other brandy
 - 2 3/4 cups coarsely chopped walnuts
 - 1 slightly beaten egg yolk
 - 1 tablespoon milk
- In a small mixing bowl stir together flour, 1/2 cup sugar and salt; set aside. In a large mixer bowl beat margarine with an electric mixer on medium speed until fluffy. Add flour mixture; beat until crumbly.

Combine the whole egg, rum and lemon peel. Stir into flour mixture until moistened. Divide dough into thirds. Pat one-third of dough onto bottom of a 10-inch springform pan. Pat another third of dough 1 inch up the sides of pan. On waxed paper roll remaining dough to a 10- by 4-inch rectangle about 1/4 inch thick; cover. Chill crust and rolled dough for 30 minutes.

In a heavy large skillet heat 1 cup sugar over medium-low heat without stirring until it just begins to melt. Heat and stir 6 to 8 minutes more or until golden, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; slowly stir in whipping cream. Heat and stir about 5 minutes or until sugar dissolves. Add honey and kirsch. Stir in nuts. Remove from heat; cool 5 minutes. Spread mixture over crust.

Using a fluted pastry wheel or a knife, trim rectangle of dough; cut into seven 1/2-inch-wide strips. Halve one strip; place a half strip at one edge of torte. Place remaining half strip on opposite edge. Criss-cross remaining strips on top of torte. Combine egg yolk and milk; brush mixture over crust. Bake in a 350-degree oven about 40 minutes or until crust is golden. Cool 1 hour. Serve torte warm or chilled. Makes 16 servings.

SWISS NUT TORTE — Impress your guests with an elegant torte. They will never guess just how easy it is to make.

Rice Finds Multitude Of Uses In Kitchens Across The Nation

By Barbara Hansen
L.A. Times-Washington Post

It is not surprising to learn that rice consumption in the United States is rising. The heavy influx of new residents from Asia, where rice is a staple, is one factor. Another is increased emphasis on carbohydrate consumption in general.

The annual per-capita consumption of milled table rice in the United States has grown from 7.6 pounds in 1975 to 8.6 pounds in 1984. Those figures are from Statistical Bulletin No. 736 of the United States Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service and are the most recent available.

However, the increase may actually be much greater. According to the Rice Growers Association of California, a cooperative based in Sacramento, per-capita consumption for 1986 may have soared to 12.2 pounds. The association bases that estimate on current marketing trends.

California produces mainly medium- and short-grain rice, but in 1984 began to market a long-grain rice. Other major rice-producing states are Arkansas (which supplies one-third of the American crop), Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri and Texas. The Rice Council of America, which is based in Houston, reports that the United States exports two-thirds of its rice and is the second leading rice shipper after Thailand.

The American crop is only 2 percent of the world's supply but goes to 120 countries, according to James Willis, the Rice Council's vice president of foreign market development. Ninety percent of the world's rice is grown and consumed in Asia. The leading producers are China, India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Burma, Thailand, Indonesia, Japan, the Philippines and Vietnam.

Rice is strategic to the Asian diet because it is often the main food consumed. It is healthful, easy to digest and suitable for special diets. A half-cup serving of white rice contains 82 calories. The same amount of brown rice contains 89 calories. The Rice Council states that rice is low in sodium, gluten-free, non-allergenic, a complex carbohydrate and cholesterol-free, containing only a trace of fat.

The old harangue, "Eat it, it's good for you," is only half the story when applied to rice. "Eat it, it's good" is also true, as the accompanying recipes demonstrate. They also show that rice can play every role from

Frozen Vegetables A Better Choice Than Canned Produce

By Toni Tipton
L.A. Times-Washington Post

Try as we might to stick to a strict regimen of using only the freshest and most wholesome ingredients available, the truth of the matter is, there are times when using fresh produce is downright wasteful if an improper cooking or storage method is employed.

Everyone would tend to agree that fresh fruits and vegetables are a best bet, nutritionally speaking, especially compared to the canned variety because much of the vitamin and mineral content is lost during the canning process.

"Jane Brody's Nutrition Book" (Bantam Books; 1987) states: "Fresh fruits and vegetables are richer sources of vitamins, minerals and trace nutrients than fruits and vegetables that have been canned, since vital nutrients are lost during processing and storage Many vitamins are soluble in water (all the B vitamins and C) and many are destroyed by the high temperatures involved in canning. As a result, canned foods may retain half or less of the original content of many vitamins; additional vitamins are lost during storage."

"Furthermore, canned vegetables continue to lose vital nutrients after the trip home — especially at temperatures in excess of 65 degrees. The losses of B-6 and pantothenic acid can be as high as 91 percent in canned foods You can't expect to meet the RDA (Recommended Dietary Allowance) for these vitamins if you subsist on a menu of refined, processed and canned foods."

Frozen vegetables, Brody suggests, are a better alternative than canned. Also, those who cannot shop frequently enough (Brody encourages consumers to use fresh fruits and vegetables within the first couple of days after purchasing) to ensure maximum freshness and vitamin and mineral retention in

Dear Readers: I enjoyed talking with Dr. Barney Kane, East Carolina University professor in environmental health, after my column on chocolate milk. Kane is a recognized expert food management microbiologist. A couple of years ago, I had the pleasure of working with him on sanitation and food safety training for school food service. Anyway, he called to say that not only do children prefer chilled milk, but food service operations are required by law to keep and serve milk at no warmer than 45 degrees. He suggested that parents who find their children consistently getting warm milk call the county health department. Milk is to be kept chilled from the time it's pasteurized until you or your children drink it, so it is safe and causes no disease.

Q. I have heard that there may be some dietary changes that a person can make to help prevent kidney stone formation. Can you provide any advice about that. Mrs. B.E., Greenville.

A. There are some people who may benefit from some dietary changes. Our general advice is for the person to drink enough water to maintain a good urine output. Talk with your doctor about how much is right for you. Dietary changes must be related to the type of stones a person has. Some people must reduce their calcium intake. People who do this generally look at lists of high calcium foods and reduce the amount of those foods they eat. But, talk it over with your physician before you make any dramatic changes. Please note that many foods that do not typically have calcium in them are now being fortified with calcium and/or non-fat dry milk. These also might need to be avoided or eaten in moderation.

Other people may be helped when they restrict the oxalate rich foods in their diet. These foods are rhubarb, dark green leafy vegetables such as spinach and chard, wheat germ, peanuts, citrus peel, chocolate, tea and cola. It is important if a person has oxalate stones to avoid excessive ascorbic acid. Ascorbic acid is found in citrus fruits and is often used as a preservative, it will be listed on in ingredient label of the food. So, on processed foods, read the ingredient label to determine if ascorbic acid or vitamin C is added.

Making the diet changes, I've mentioned could affect your nutritional status. Talk about these changes with your physician or a registered dietitian. Write Dr. Kolasa, Department of Family Medicine or c/o The Daily Reflector.

Dieters Face Hard Decisions On Weight-Reduction Therapy

By Toni Tipton
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Today's emphasis on dieting has caused much anguish to the body, psyche and pocketbooks of some heavyweights in America. As a result researchers have begun to look more closely at the link between body fat and disease to determine the real importance of diet therapy: Is the decision to go on a diet a health choice or a cosmetic cure?

At a recent nutrition conference in Newport Beach, Calif., sponsored by the Dairy Council of California, Dr. C. Wayne Callaway, director of the Center for Clinical Nutrition, Department of Medicine, George Washington University, said the location of fat in the body plays a significant role in health risk for some diseases.

Callaway's research indicates that it may be the distribution of a person's excess weight — no matter how much or little — and genetic and environmental factors that are really at issue when determining the potential for disease and the need for diet therapy. Physical appearance is the least consideration.

He explained that the male predisposition for coronary heart disease (in addition to genetics and environment), is affected by the fact that men's excess weight usually is carried in the abdomen and chest, whereas a woman tends to harbor her extra poundage in the hip area.

Callaway said that many people who have a predetermined body type and metabolism based on family heritage and environmental climate may be unnecessarily starving and aerobicizing their bodies if their weight, because of its distribution, does not pose a potential for disease.

To support his claim, Callaway discussed the extent to which environmental and genetic factors influence body type and cited reasons why he believes it is important to reevaluate our current standards for normal weight and at what point elevations of this figure imply increased risk of disease. He also dwelt on how those points affect dieting patterns and whether dieting is necessary at all.

Today's accepted norm for obesity is that it usually occurs when a person is 20 percent to 40 percent above the ideal weight range for his or her height and age group. Beyond its obvious cosmetic problems, being overweight is a health hazard with a variety of complications. It is implicated in the incidence of hypertension, gallbladder disease, cardiovascular disease and diabetes.

But the occurrence of any or all of those diseases is variable depending upon a host of other factors: environment, genetics and location of fat among them.

People are fat because of a number of factors. The most common one is that they are taking in more energy (calories) than they expend. But all fat people are not overeaters, Callaway contends.

"The usual first step in weight loss is to get people to eat less — the assumption is that people are fat because they are eating too much. But the assumption that fat people are eating more or grossly larger amounts than skinny people is really hard to prove," he said.

Environment is one reason people are fat, Callaway said. He conducted clinical studies that compared the most common human eating patterns

Dieters Face Some Key Decisions On Weight-Reduction Therapy

 (time, place, circumstances of eating) to see if they had any bearing on the rate of weight gain in individuals. He studied people who ate no breakfast and no lunch, those eating no breakfast, people whose total fat intake represented less than 10 percent of their day's total calories, those who ate three meals a day and "people whose major occupation was eating all day long."

Ten percent of the variation in the way these people's bodies expend energy could be accounted for by their eating patterns alone, not just by how much food they ate, he found. Family history is another factor. Callaway cited studies done with adopted children and identical twins. "As adults, adopted children had weights that correlated with the biological parents but not with the adopted parents." In the twins, identical pairs "were about twice as likely to be of similar weight than the non-identical ones, whether they were small or large or somewhere in between."

After a variety of studies, he concluded that about 80 percent of the way the body burned calories related to how much muscle and lean body mass each individual had as a result of genetics. The remaining 20 percent was environmental, Callaway said.

Compound those two factors with a blurred picture of what is normal and the distinction between desirable weight and obesity becomes more distorted.

For the medical profession, what is considered normal is technically based on Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. weight tables, which were developed in 1942 based on the weight associated with the least mortality (The tables have undergone revision several times, the latest in 1983).

The authors of "Normal and Therapeutic Nutrition," Corinne H. Robinson, Marilyn R. Lawler, Wanda L. Chenoweth and Ann E. Garwick (Macmillan; 1986) say that the weight tables "represented the average weight for each inch of height at age 30 for males and at age 25 for females. ... The tables were intended to encourage persons to keep their weight below the average for their height."

Socially, however, desirable weight is determined by something else, Callaway says. Most women today tend to base their idea of optimal weight on the models, actresses and other prominently displayed females whom they desire to see in their mirrors at home.

Unfortunately, he says, "The average model was about 8 percent below average weight 25 years ago and now she is about 23 percent below average weight."

"I think we have a cultural biological dissonance. Our cultural standards are way out of sync with the biological standards," Callaway said.

How then, do we determine who is at risk of disease with such conflicting information about why and when people are fat?

"The stubborn pursuit of one's so-called ideal weight is too often associated with appearance instead of health," Callaway said. But "a researcher observed that abdominal, particularly upper-abdominal, fat was more likely to be associated with high blood pressure, diabetes and other problems. ... This is truly an important biological difference."

"We are born with a certain biological potential," Callaway says. "This is obviously affected by environmental factors, especially activity levels and obviously diet and eating patterns. If one is biologically bigger than the average, there is tremendous pressure to diet in our society."

"The most popular diets are the low-calorie diets because they result in an initial weight loss which looks good on the scale. ... Then this sets up a survival pattern of fluid retention, low metabolic rate and a tendency to binge. The way out of this is to first distinguish if a person needs to lose weight."

"If they have a problem such as the ones listed here, then by all means weight reduction would be helpful. If they have a strong family history of these problems and they are overweight, weight reduction is certainly indicated. ... If they are like the pear-shaped lady (small waist, big hips), then weight reduction is probably not going to help (medically)."

The commercial diets so popular today, Callaway says, are very low-calorie, usually dropping between 700 and 900 calories from the diet. Three things happen to the body on very low-calorie diets, Callaway said. One is a drastic decrease in metabolic rate. The body slows its pace to make sure it can survive the famine, and eventually it adapts to starvation, requiring fewer calories to function.

The problem with this is that when the dieter comes off this low-calorie diet and goes back to 1,400 calories or so, he or she gains weight. The body will eventually readjust to the new calorie intake, but most people are not willing to wait indefinitely.

Another problem with low-calorie diets is fluid retention. Most of the initial weight loss is due to water loss. If you take diuretics along with the diet, it is possibly more dangerous.

The third contraindication is that the undernourishing causes binges, Callaway said. In one study of undergraduate women who were given a "tasting test" for ice cream, the results were surprising. The women were told to eat as much as they had to answer questions about the ice cream's taste, but they were not told that the amount they ate would be measured.

Before the test, they had to drink one milkshake, two milkshakes or nothing. The non-dieting students, who had nothing, had a fair amount of ice cream. They cut back if they had a milkshake, way back if they had two.

The dieters who ate nothing before the test had a small taste. But, after one milkshake they ate more, and after two milkshakes "they go whole-hog" on the ice cream Callaway said.

"The explanation is that these are restrained eaters. They have been forced to break their restrained diets; now it is harder to reimpose control," he said.

The solution: Select a modest diet composed of a variety of foods from the four food groups and get some exercise. That will prevent the body from entering "famine mode" and will keep it burning calories at an efficient level. There is no quick fix, especially for those who have a built-in tendency to be overweight. For them, lifetime vigilance will be required.

Cooks Want Quality

 mushrooms, sauteed in butter with ham strips, cherry tomatoes, garlic and green onions add a touch of glamour to the more familiar ingredients.

- SESAME BEEF AND SNOW PEAS
- 1 bag boil-in-bag rice, single serving
 - 3 tablespoons dry sherry or white wine
 - 1 tablespoon low sodium soy sauce
 - 1/2 teaspoon sugar
 - 1/2 teaspoon cornstarch
 - 1/2 teaspoon sesame oil
 - 2 teaspoons vegetable oil
 - 1/4 cup thinly sliced onion, separated into rings
 - 1/4 cup red bell pepper strips
 - 3 ounces fresh snow peas, strings removed
- (Frozen pea pods may be substituted. Thaw and drain before adding to skillet with water chestnuts.)
- 1/4 pound boneless beef sirloin, cut into 1 1/2 X 1/2 X 1/8-inch strips
 - 1/4 cup sliced water chestnuts
 - 3/4 teaspoon toasted sesame seeds (optional)

Cook rice according to package instructions. While rice is cooking, combine sherry, soy sauce, sugar, cornstarch and sesame oil in small bowl, stirring until cornstarch is dissolved; set aside. Heat oil in 8-inch skillet until hot but not smoking. Add onion. Cook and stir over medium-high heat 1 minute. Add red pepper and snow peas. Cook and stir one minute. Remove vegetables with slotted spoon; set aside. Add beef to skillet. Cook and stir 1 to 1 1/2 minutes. Add water chestnuts, soy sauce mixture and reserved vegetables. Cook and stir until sauce is slightly thickened, about 30 seconds. Serve over hot cooked rice. Sprinkle with sesame seeds, if desired. Makes 1 to 2 servings.

- SHIITAKE HAM TOSS
- 1 bag boil-in-bag-rice, single serving
 - 2 ounces Shiitake mushrooms, button mushrooms or combination
 - 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
 - 1 small garlic clove, crushed
 - 3 ounces cooked ham, cut into 1 1/2 X 1/4 X 1/4-inch strips
 - 1/3 cup cherry tomato halves
 - 1 1/2 tablespoons sliced green onion with tops
- Freshly ground pepper, to taste
- Prepare rice according to package directions. While rice is cooking, wipe mushrooms with damp paper towel; pat dry. Trim stems; slice small mushrooms in half, large mushrooms into quarters. Melt butter in 8-inch skillet. Add mushrooms and garlic. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until mushrooms are tender, about 2 to 3 minutes. Add ham and tomatoes; heat through. Stir in green onion and serve over hot cooked rice. Season with pepper. Makes 1 to 2 servings.

Where Is The Fiber?

The National Cancer Institute recommends that Americans double the average amount of fiber they eat to 20 to 30 grams a day — but not to exceed 35. Essentially that means eating three to five servings of whole-grain breads and cereal, three servings of vegetables and two to three servings of fruit per day.

Here are some guidelines from NCI to give you an idea of where the fiber is — and isn't:

- RICH SOURCES OF DIETARY FIBER
 (4 or more grams of fiber per serving; those foods marked with + have 6 or more grams of fiber per serving)
- Cereals: All Bran-Extra Fiber+, Fiber-One+, All Bran Fruit & Almonds+, All Bran+, 100 percent Bran+, Bran Buds+, Corn Bran, Bran Chex, Cracklin' Oat Bran, Bran Flakes, Raisin Bran.
- Legumes: kidney beans, navy beans, lima beans.
- Fruits: Dried prunes.
- MODERATELY RICH SOURCES OF DIETARY FIBER
 (1 to 3.9 grams of fiber per serving)
- Breads, grains, cereals and pasta: whole-wheat spaghetti, Most, wheat germ, Shredded Wheat, Wheat Chex,

Total, Wheaties, cooked oatmeal, Grape-nuts, whole-wheat bread, Cheerios, regular spaghetti, brown rice, air-popped popcorn.

Rice Is Finding A Multitude Of Uses In Kitchens Across America

CHIRASHI-ZUSHI

- 2 cups short-grain rice
- 1 cup long-grain rice
- 3 cups water
- White vinegar
- Sugar
- Salt
- 1/2 teaspoon MSG
- 12 small shrimp, unshelled
- 1/2 kamaboko (Japanese fish cake)
- 2 eggs, lightly beaten
- 1 (6 1/2-ounce) can bamboo shoots
- 1/3 cup dashi (Japanese soup stock)
- 3 dried Oriental black mushrooms, soaked until soft
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce

Oboro
1/2 cup thawed frozen peas, cooked
Slivered benishoga (red ginger)
Wash rice well. Place in saucepan and add water. Soak 1 hour. Stir rice, cover and bring to boil over medium-high heat. Reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes. Turn off heat and let rice stand 10 to 15 minutes. Combine 1/4 cup vinegar, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon salt and MSG. Mix with rice. Let cool.

Wash shrimp in shell. Boil in salted water until pink. Peel shrimp. Slice each in half and rinse in vinegar. Pour boiling water over kamaboko. Cut julienne. Combine eggs, 2 teaspoons sugar and 1/3 teaspoon salt. In large non-stick skillet, cook egg mixture in thin sheet. Remove from pan in one piece. Roll up and slice into thin strips.

Cut bamboo shoots in halves. Combine in saucepan with 1/3 cup dashi, 5 teaspoons sugar and 1 teaspoon salt. Cook until tender. Cut into thin strips. Combine mushrooms in saucepan with 1/3 cup dashi, 5 teaspoons sugar and soy sauce. Cook until liquid is absorbed. Cut into thin strips. Cool all ingredients.

Place rice on large platter. Sprinkle oboro over rice, then bamboo shoots, mushrooms, fish cake, peas, egg strips and red ginger. Arrange shrimp on top. Makes 8 servings.

Note: Oboro (pink colored, sweetened flaked fish), benishoga, kamaboko and stock base for dashi are available in Japanese markets and some supermarkets.

GRILL TABLE'S DILL RICE

- 2 cups basmati or other long-grain rice
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 (10-ounce) package frozen small lima beans
 - 1/2 cup oil
 - 1/4 cup dried dill weed
 - 6 tablespoons butter, melted
- Place rice in bowl. Add 10 cups water. Stir in 1 teaspoon salt. Let stand 12 hours. Drain rice. Place in large pot. Add 3 quarts water and lima beans. Bring to boil. Boil 1 minute, then drain. Rice should still be slightly firm.

Heat 1/2 cup oil in large heavy pot. Add 1 cup cooked rice and beans. Top with some of dill. Make another layer in this fashion. Continue until ingredients are used up. Cover and cook over very low heat 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Add butter 10 minutes before rice is done. Season to taste with salt. Rice will form crisp layer about 1/4 inch thick at bottom of pot. Spoon out rice, then remove crust and serve with rice. Makes 8 servings.

EASY VEGETABLE BIRYANI

- 2 cups basmati rice
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon oil
- 3 cups water
- 1/3 cup canned tomato sauce
- 1 1/2 teaspoons garam masala
- 1 teaspoon Madras curry powder
- 1/2 teaspoon turmeric
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 stick cinnamon
- 4 whole cloves
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 (10-ounce) package frozen mixed vegetables, thawed
- 1 small tomato, chopped
- 1/4 small onion, thinly sliced

1/4 cup loosely packed cilantro leaves, coarsely chopped
Wash rice thoroughly. Place in bowl, cover with water and let stand 15 minutes. Drain.

Saute onion and garlic in oil until onion is tender. Place rice in large saucepan. Add 3 cups water, tomato sauce, garam masala, curry powder, turmeric, bay leaves, cinnamon stick, cloves and salt. Bring to boil. Cover, reduce heat and simmer until rice is cooked and liquid is absorbed.

In another large pan, make layers of rice and mixed vegetables. Cover and steam gently 15 minutes. Turn out onto large platter or into bowl. Sprinkle top with chopped tomato, sliced onion and cilantro leaves. Makes 8 servings.

Note: Garam masala is spice blend available at Indian markets and some gourmet shops.

SINANGAG

- 1 cup long-grain rice
 - 1 tablespoon oil
 - 2 cloves garlic, minced
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - Chopped green onions, optional
- Cook rice without adding seasoning the day before needed and refrigerate. Bring rice to room temperature before serving and break apart any clumps.

Heat oil in wok. Add garlic and salt and cook until oil is flavored and garlic aroma is released. Brown garlic lightly, if desired, but do not allow to burn. Add rice and toss with garlic mixture until heated through and some of rice is lightly browned. Garnish with chopped green onions. Makes 6 servings.

RIKKI BHATIA'S KHEER (Indian Rice Pudding)

- 1/2 cup basmati rice
- 3/4 cup water
- 1 quart half and half

- 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1/2 teaspoon cardamom seeds
 - 1/4 cup chopped pistachio nuts
 - 1 teaspoon rosewater, optional
 - Candied rose petals, optional
- Wash rice well. Soak in water to cover generously 15 minutes. Drain.

Place in saucepan, add 3/4 cup water and bring to boil. Reduce heat, cover and cook gently until rice is tender and water is absorbed, 10 to 15 minutes.

In large saucepan, combine half and half, sugar and cardamom seeds. Stir in rice. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer gently, uncovered, about 1 hour, stirring to prevent sticking.

Cool to room temperature. Stir in pistachios and rosewater. Chill. Decorate with candied rose petals. Makes 8 servings.

BIBINGKANG MALAGKIT (Filipino Rice Dessert)

- 4 (14-ounce) cans coconut milk
- 2 1/2 cups glutinous rice
- 1/2 cup long-grain rice
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups brown sugar, packed
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup ground peanuts or pili nuts, optional

3 eggs, beaten
Open cans of coconut milk without shaking. Spoon off thick milk that has risen to top. Measure 2 cups. Measure 4 cups remaining thinner milk. Freeze any unused coconut milk.

Mix glutinous and long-grain rice in bowl. Cover with hot water and let stand 5 minutes. Drain rice. Turn into heavy 4-quart saucepan. Mix thin coconut milk, granulated sugar and salt with rice. Bring to boil, reduce heat to very low and cook, covered, until rice is tender but not soft, about 30 minutes. Turn rice into well-greased 13-by-9-inch baking pan. Flatten rice and smooth top. Set aside.

Mix thick coconut milk and brown sugar in saucepan. Add vanilla and nuts. Cook and stir until sugar dissolves and syrup thickens, about 5 minutes. Gradually stir some of hot mixture into eggs, then return to saucepan and cook, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened, about 1 minute. Pour topping evenly over rice.

Bake at 375 degrees 30 minutes. Remove from oven and cool to room temperature. Cut into squares to serve. Makes 16 to 20 servings.

BUBOR KETAN HITAM (Indonesian Black Rice Porridge)

- 1 cup black glutinous rice
 - 5 cups water, about
 - 1/4 pound gula jawa or 1 cup brown sugar, packed
 - 1 cup canned coconut milk
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt, scant
- Wash rice well, then soak in cold water 2 hours. Combine drained rice and 5 cups water in large saucepan. Add brown sugar. If using gula jawa, break into chunks. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer, covered, 30 minutes. Uncover and cook 1 hour longer, stirring often.

Mixture should have consistency of soft porridge. If too much liquid cooks away, add more water. Combine coconut milk with salt. Ladle warm porridge into individual bowls. Pass coconut milk to add to taste. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Note: Gula jawa is Indonesian coconut palm sugar.

Overcooking Ruins Fish

Whatever you do, when you prepare fish, don't overcook it. Fish becomes dry and tough and loses much of its flavor. And overcooked shellfish is tough and rubbery.

Perfectly cooked fish will have changed from transparent to opaque and will just flake when tested with a fork. Shellfish becomes firm and opaque. Mollusks in the shell will open.

To estimate the cooking time for fish steaks, fillets or whole fish, measure the fish at its thickest part and allow 10 minutes cooking time per inch of thickness. The 10-minute rule can be used for baking at 450 degrees Fahrenheit; broiling, pan-frying, poaching and grilling.

Here's a general recipe provided by the National Fisheries Institute for pan-poached fish or shellfish:

PAN-POACHED FISH OR SHELLFISH

- 1 to 1 1/4 pounds fish fillets or steaks
 - OR 1 1/2 pounds small, whole pan-dressed fish
 - Salt and pepper
 - 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
 - 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
 - 1/2 cup dry white wine, fish stock or chicken stock
 - 1/2 teaspoon dried dillweed
- Rinse and pat dry fish. Season lightly with salt and pepper. Roll up thin fillets or cut thick fillets or steaks into serving pieces. Heat butter in large skillet over medium heat. Sauté onion until soft. Add wine or stock and bring to a boil. Add fish in single layer, placing rolled fillets seam side down. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, until fish just flakes when tested, allowing about 10 minutes per inch of thickness.

Remove fish to warm platter, cover and keep warm. Bring poaching liquid and any liquid that collects on the platter to a boil and cook until mixture is reduced and slightly thickened. Adjust seasonings and serve sauce over the fish. Makes 4 servings.

Sign of quality.

Bran Can Be Processed Into Assorted Forms

By Toni Tipton

L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

A reader inquiry about an ingredient in a recent Nutri-Data recipe reads: "What do you mean by 'bran'? Is it a cereal like All-Bran or Bran Flakes or what?"

This may seem like a silly question to some, but queries of this sort are not uncommon because recipes in newspaper food sections, magazines and cookbooks began to use ingredients that are unfamiliar or are referred to by a variety of names.

The bran called for in the recipe in question was unprocessed bran. Here are a few tidbits of information about bran, because a number of letters have posed the same question.

Bran is the outermost portion of the wheat kernel. It is removed during processing because of its coarse nature to make all-purpose flour and other baking flours when a light textured product is desired. It is an excellent source of fiber.

Bran can be ground into a fine crumblike product, called unprocessed bran, and sprinkled into breakfast foods, meat loaves, hamburgers, baked goods and toppings. In this state it also provides the foundation for delicious bran muffins.

Bran is also found in a ready-to-eat cereal form, such as those mentioned above. It can be processed into various forms; shreds and flakes, sweetened or unsweetened and combined with other grains like oats and fruits like dried apples or raisins. Normally, a recipe will specify, even if not by trade name, which of the products is to be used.

Following is a selection of recipes that use these products to give an idea of the generic equivalents.

CHICKEN BREASTS STUFFED WITH ASPARAGUS

16 canned asparagus spears, about 5 inches long
2 boned and skinned whole chicken breasts, halved
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1/2 sweet red pepper, cut into 16 julienne strips
1 egg
2 tablespoons water
1 cup bran flakes, crushed
2 teaspoons grated lemon zest
1 tablespoon butter, melted
Blender Hollandaise
Simmer asparagus spears in boiling water 1 minute. Drain and cool. Place chicken breasts between plastic wrap and pound to flatten to 1/4-inch thickness. Remove plastic, then sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper.

Center 4 asparagus spears and 4 red pepper strips on each chicken piece. Roll up, starting from narrow end. Fasten with wood picks, if needed.

Beat egg with water. Combine cereal with lemon zest. Dip chicken rolls in egg and coat with cereal. Place in greased shallow baking dish and drizzle with melted butter. Bake at 375 degrees 35 minutes or until chicken is tender. Remove wood picks. Serve with Blender Hollandaise. Makes 4 servings.

Blender Hollandaise
1 1/4 cup butter
2 egg yolks
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1/8 teaspoon salt

Heat butter in saucepan until hot and bubbly, but not browned. Place egg yolks, lemon juice and salt in blender. Cover and blend at low speed until mixed. Remove cover and continue to blend, pouring in butter in steady stream. When all butter has been added, turn off blender and serve immediately. If sauce is too thick, beat in 2 to 3 teaspoons hot water.

WHOLE-WHEAT BRAN PANCAKES

1 egg, beaten
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup whole-wheat flour
1/4 cup unprocessed bran
2 tablespoons oil
1 1/4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt

Combine milk and egg in bowl. Add flours, bran, oil, baking powder and salt. Mix until fairly smooth. For each pancake, pour scant 1/4 cup batter onto hot, lightly greased griddle. Turn pancakes when tops are covered with bubbles and edges look cooked. Turn only once. Makes 4 servings.

PER SERVING: 247 calories; 8 gm protein; 29 gm carbohydrate; 11 gm fat; 442 mg sodium; 227 mg potassium.

USRDA: Protein 13 percent; Riboflavin 21 percent; Vitamin A 9 percent; Niacin 12 percent; Vitamin C 6 percent; Calcium 17 percent; Thiamine 20 percent; Iron 9 percent.

BRAN-RAISIN MUFFINS

3/4 cup raisins
1/3 cup oil 1 egg, lightly beaten
1 cup skim milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup flour
1/2 cup sugar

3/4 cup unprocessed bran
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
Pour boiling water over raisins and let stand 10 minutes. Drain. Combine oil and egg in small bowl. Combine milk and lemon juice and stir into egg mixture.

Combine flour, sugar, bran, baking powder, baking soda, salt and cinnamon. Make well in center of flour mixture and pour in milk mixture all at once, stirring just until dry ingredients are moistened. Stir in raisins. Spoon batter into paper-lined muffin cups, filling 2/3 full. Bake at 400 degrees 15 minutes. Cool on wire racks. Makes 18 muffins, 1 per serving.

PER SERVING: 118 calories; 2 gm protein; 19 gm carbohydrate; 4 gm fat; 192 mg sodium; 104 mg potassium.

USRDA: Protein 3 percent; Riboflavin 8 percent; Vitamin A 3 percent; Niacin 5 percent; Vitamin C 4 percent; Calcium 5 percent; Thiamine 8 percent; Iron 4 percent.

BRAN FLAKE MUFFINS

1 cup sifted flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup shortening
1 egg, beaten

3/4 cup milk
1 1/4 cups bran flakes
Sift together flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Cut in shortening. Combine egg and milk and add to flour mixture. Mix just enough to dampen flour. Fold in bran flakes. Fill paper-lined muffin cups 2/3 full. Bake at 400 degrees 20 minutes. Makes 10 muffins, 1 per serving.

PER SERVING: 144 calories; 3 gm protein; 16 gm carbohydrate; 8 gm fat; 306 mg sodium; 62 mg potassium.

USRDA: Protein 5 percent; Riboflavin 9 percent; Vitamin A 6 percent; Niacin 6 percent; Vitamin C 3 percent; Calcium 10 percent; Thiamine 9 percent; Iron 11 percent.

BLUEBERRY NUT LOAF

1/2 cup bran shreds
1 cup all-purpose flour
3/4 cup whole-wheat flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup brown sugar, packed
3/4 cup orange juice
1 egg
2 tablespoons oil
1/2 cup frozen blueberries
1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Combine bran shreds, flours, baking powder, baking soda, salt and brown sugar. Stir to mix, then set aside.
Beat orange juice, egg and oil until well combined in large mixing bowl. Add flour mixture, stirring only until dry ingredients are moistened. Gently stir in blueberries and nuts. Spread batter evenly in greased 9-by-5-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees about 50 minutes or until done. Let cool 10 minutes before removing from pan. Cool completely before slicing. Makes 12 servings.

PER SERVING: 166 calories; 4 gm protein; 25 gm carbohydrate; 6 gm fat; 211 mg sodium; 147 mg potassium.

Frozen Vegetables Are A Better Choice Than Canned Produce

 fresh vegetables "may be better off with foods that are picked ripe, usually when vitamin content is at its peak, and then rapidly (frozen), whereas days or weeks may elapse before fresh produce reaches your table." Frozen boil-in-the-bag vegetables are preferred by Brody for their vitamin content.
 Vegetables of any variety — fresh, frozen or canned — usually lose their nutrients to the cooking water in which they are prepared because the water is most often poured down the drain before serving the vegetable. To avoid this, food technologists suggest cooking vegetables in a minimum amount of water. Steaming or microwaving in small amounts of liquid is ideal. While some scientists prefer steaming to microwaving and vice versa, neither method has been proven superior over the other in laboratory tests, according to "Food Science" by Helen Charley, professor emeritus of foods and nutrition, Oregon State University (Macmillan; 1986).

 Boiling in the skin is another suggestion but cook only until barely done.
 These main-dish recipes call upon frozen vegetable combinations as well as vegetables frozen with or without sauces. They include low-calorie protein sources like shrimp, eggs and chicken. Serve with tossed green salad, if desired, and whole-grain bread for a nutritionally balanced meal, that is convenient, too.

MICROWAVE CHICKEN WITH VEGETABLES IN WINE SAUCE
 1/4 cup margarine
 1/4 teaspoon tarragon, optional
 2 whole chicken breasts, skinned, halved and boned
 2 tablespoons flour
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 cauliflower and carrots
 Sliced almonds
 Melt 2 tablespoons margarine and combine in small bowl with tarragon. Place chicken in 1 1/2- or 2-quart microwave-safe dish. Brush with margarine mixture. Cover with wax paper and microwave on HIGH 10 to 12 minutes or until chicken is no longer pink, turning dish half-turn and rearranging chicken halfway through cooking. Let stand, covered, while preparing vegetables.

 Melt remaining 2 tablespoons margarine in 2-quart microwave-safe casserole. Blend in flour, salt and pepper until smooth. Add milk and microwave on HIGH 4 to 6 minutes or until mixture thickens, stirring frequently.
 Stir in white wine and mustard and blend well. Stir in vegetables. Microwave on HIGH 6 to 10 minutes or until vegetables are hot, stirring halfway through cooking.

Arrange chicken breasts and vegetables on serving platter and sprinkle with almonds. Makes 4 servings.
Note: Almonds are not included in nutrient data. PER SERVING: 310 calories; 27 gm protein; 9 gm carbohydrate; 17 gm fat; 470 mg sodium; 450 mg potassium.

VEGETABLE-SHRIMP STIR-FRY
 1/3 cup water
 1/4 cup white wine
 2 tablespoons soy sauce

1 pound medium deveined shrimp
 1 tablespoon cornstarch
 1 tablespoon oil
 1/4 teaspoon grated ginger root
 2 cups frozen early peas
 1 cup sliced mushrooms
 1/2 cup sliced water chestnuts
 1/4 cup sliced green onions
 Chow mein noodles
 Combine water, wine and soy sauce in medium bowl. Add shrimp and stir to coat well. Cover and let stand at room temperature 30 minutes. Remove shrimp, reserving soy sauce mixture. Stir cornstarch into soy sauce and set aside.
 Heat oil in wok or skillet. Stir-fry ginger 15 seconds. Add peas and mushrooms and stir-fry 2 minutes. Add water chestnuts and shrimp. Stir-fry 4 minutes or until shrimp turns pink. Add green onions and marinade mixture. Cook, stirring, until thickened and bubbly. Serve over chow mein noodles. Makes 4 servings.
Note: Nutrient data does not include chow mein noodles.
PER SERVING: 210 calories; 28 gm protein; 13 gm carbohydrate; 5 gm fat; 740 mg sodium; 430 mg potassium.
USRDA: Protein 40 percent; Riboflavin 15 percent; Vitamin A 10 percent; Niacin 30 percent; Vitamin C 35 percent; Calcium 10 percent; Thiamine 8 percent; Iron 20 percent.

DENVER DINNER OMELET
 4 eggs, separated
 Dash cayenne pepper
 4 teaspoons oil
 1 (10-ounce) package frozen cauliflower with cheese-flavored sauce in pouch
 1/2 cup finely chopped cooked ham
 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
 Beat egg whites until stiff peaks form. Beat egg yolks and pepper in separate bowl until thick and lemon colored. Fold into egg whites.
 Heat oil in 10-inch oven-proof skillet over medium heat. Tilt pan to coat bottom and sides with oil. Spoon in egg mixture, spreading evenly over bottom of pan. Reduce heat to low and cook, uncovered, until puffy and light brown on bottom, about 5 minutes.
 Prepare unopened cauliflower pouch as directed on package. Meanwhile, bake omelet in skillet at 325 degrees 15 to 18 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean.
 To remove, tip skillet, loosening omelet with spatula. Slide onto serving plate. Sprinkle ham and onion over top. Spoon hot cauliflower and cheese sauce over ham. Sprinkle with green pepper. Serve immediately. Makes 3 servings.
PER SERVING: 270 calories; 15 gm protein; 10 gm carbohydrate; 18 gm fat; 840 mg sodium; 400 mg potassium.
USRDA: Protein 25 percent; Riboflavin 25 percent; Vitamin A 20 percent; Niacin 8 percent; Vitamin C 70 percent; Calcium 8 percent; Thiamine 20 percent Iron 10 percent.

OLD-FASHIONED AMERICAN RICE PUDDING
 3/4 cup medium-grain rice
 1 1/2 cups water
 2 eggs
 2 cups milk
 1/3 cup sugar
 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted and cooled
 Additional nutmeg, optional
 Wash rice well and drain. Place in saucepan and add water. Bring to boil. Cover, reduce heat and simmer until rice is tender and water is absorbed. Cool slightly. Beat eggs. Add milk, sugar, nutmeg, vanilla and salt. Stir in rice and butter.
 Turn into buttered 9-inch round cake dish. Place in baking pan and add hot water to come half way up sides. Bake at 325 degrees 45 minutes. Stir halfway through baking. Serve warm, sprinkled with additional nutmeg. Makes 6 to 8 servings.
