EPA Lays Down Law To Polluters

By GUY DARST
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency was laying down the law today to cities and counties that don't meet clean air standards, threatening them with construction bans and loss of federal highway money.
 Although the construction bans would apply only to major pollution sources, non-complying areas also will have to reduce pollution 3 percent a year, over and above reductions brought about by national programs, or face loss of federal highway and sewer aid.
 EPA officials estimate that 30 to 40 areas are likely to be hit with construction bans about three years from now, but say the probable targets won't be known until 1985-87 pollution figures are compiled next year.

 However, all 26 of the nation's largest metropolitan areas were on at least one of two EPA on-compliance lists issued in August, covering 1984-86 ozone and carbon monoxide pollution. Twenty-three cities were on both lists.
 In addition, EPA already has proposed construction bans for 14 areas. It said in June that their anti-pollution plans did not predict eventual compliance.
 Original 1970 Clean Air Act amendments had envisioned all cities free of air pollution by 1977, but Congress rolled back the deadline twice, five years each time.
 The draft EPA policy being announced by Administrator Lee M. Thomas is based on the assumption that Congress will not make similar revisions this year. The act contains a Dec. 31 deadline for cities and counties to come into compliance with the concentration standards for ozone and carbon monoxide.

Report Subdued

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional Iran-Contra committees conclude in their final report that President Reagan failed in his duty to see that the law was obeyed, but other criticism of the president was toned down from earlier drafts, a source says.
 The committees' final report, due out Wednesday, paraphrases the Constitution in saying Reagan failed to "see that the laws are faithfully executed," according to the Senate committee source, who spoke Monday on condition of anonymity.
 The language is a paraphrase of the Constitution's description of the (See FINAL, A-10)

EPA had hoped to see progress without having to impose penalties, but while Congress has debated another revision this year, there is no assurance of action. In the last two weeks Thomas decided that the law left him no choice.
 "Otherwise we couldn't defend it in court," said one official who spoke on condition of anonymity.
 Ozone, the smog component that makes your chest feel tight, is produced by sunlight shining on mixtures of volatile compounds such as solvents, unburned gasoline or nitrogen oxides produced by combustion. Sixty-two urban or rural areas currently violate the ozone standard.

Foley Says Budget Package At Hand

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Majority Leader Thomas Foley predicted today that congressional and White House negotiators will agree on a deficit-reduction package by Friday's deadline, averting across-the-board federal budget cuts.
 Foley said such an agreement between congressional and White House negotiators "will send a positive signal to the country; it will strengthen the economy, and it will help the markets."
 "I think we can get a general agreement by Friday," Foley said on CBS-TV's "Morning News" show. "The actual implementation of it would require some extension of the deadline, but if we can get that general agreement... then I think we can avoid the across-the-board cuts that would come on Friday."
 Foley also said that under ground rules established for the talks, Social Security remains "off the table" as negotiators seek ways to slash spending.
 Negotiators from the Reagan administration and Congress met for a 16th day Monday but reported little progress in agreeing to some combination of taxes and spending reductions that would slice the deficit by $75 billion to $80 billion over the next two years.

"I think we levitated," Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said of the day's work.
 "If this crew was assembled to write the Constitution, they'd never get beyond the preamble," added Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass.
 "We didn't come any closer today except we got 24 hours closer to the guillotine," said Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont.
 That guillotine is scheduled to fall Friday. Under the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law, $23 billion in government spending reductions will be put in place automatically that day unless the Democratic-controlled Congress and the Republican White House agree to another plan to save at least that much.
 Negotiators have been considering delaying next year's cost-of-living increases in federal salaries, Social Security and other federal benefit programs. But the plan, which in its various forms would save about $2 billion, received a cold shoulder Monday from many bargainers, participants said.
 "You can see them way out on the horizon, but they may be going over the edge," Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., said of the politically unpopular plans.

FATAL ACCIDENT — Members of the Pactolus Rescue Squad, a Greenville Fire-Rescue team and the EastCare team give emergency aid to the driver of a car that collided with a dump truck on U.S. 264 near Pactolus Monday. Trooper Bronnie Jones identified the driver as Margaret Potter Ward of Robersonville, who died later at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Her daughter

Margaret Ward Stokley, a passenger in the car, was injured in the accident. Jones said the truck driver, Daive Hickman of Pollockville, was unable to stop when the car attempted to make a left turn. The car was listed as a loss. Damage to the truck was estimated at $800. (Reflector Photo by Thomas Forrest)

Wright Meets President But Peace Flap Goes On

WASHINGTON (AP) — A meeting between President Reagan and House Speaker Jim Wright has failed to soften the administration's bitterness over Wright's high-profile role in Central America's regional peace efforts.
 Wright, D-Texas, sought the meeting Monday to explain his action in meeting with Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, leaders of the U.S.-backed Contra rebels and Nicaraguan Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, who is acting as a mediator in cease-fire negotiations.

 But after spending nearly an hour with Reagan and his top advisers, Wright described the president as intransigent. Wright suggested he was stepping in to fill a foreign-policy void created by the U.S. turning a diplomatic cold shoulder to the leftist

Teacher Gets Jail Sentence

By STUART SAVAGE
 Reflector Staff Writer
 A former Rose High School teacher, found guilty Friday of assisting in obtaining academic credit by fraudulent means, was ordered Monday to spend 30 days in jail and never to teach in North Carolina's public schools again.
 A Pitt County Superior Court jury found Madeline Jordan Taylor guilty on the academic credit charge last week after witnesses said she offered to trade a higher grade in a remedial reading class to a student in exchange for a video cassette recorder last spring.
 In sentencing Ms. Taylor Monday afternoon, Judge Paul Wright of Goldsboro ordered her to spend six months in jail, but suspended the term on condition she spend 30 days in jail and pay $288 restitution to the Greenville Police Department. He also ordered her not to teach in the North Carolina public schools and placed her on probation for three years.
 Ms. Taylor's lawyer, Milton Fitch of Wilson, gave notice of appeal to the Court of Appeals.
 The trial was the second for Ms. Taylor in connection with the charge. She received a six-month jail term, which was suspended on condition she pay a $500 fine, court costs, $288 restitution and spend two years on unsupervised probation, following her conviction in District Court in August. That conviction was appealed to Superior Court.
 In both trials, Andre Love, 20, testified that Ms. Taylor told him she had always wanted a VCR and "if I gave her a VCR I could pass" her English class.
 Love said he went to the police department where Detective Steve Pass purchased a VCR for Love to give the teacher.

Leaf Festival Opens 10th Year

By GREG LAUDICK
 Reflector Staff Writer
 It was an evening of remembering the past, honoring the present and affirming the future as agricultural and community leaders met Monday night to salute the tobacco industry.
 The Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival, celebrating its 10th anniversary, announced the 1987 Tobacco Farmer of the Year at a reception and awards banquet held at the Sheraton Greenville.
 Arthur F. Woodard III of Darlington, S.C., won the annual award.
 Other events at the banquet included an opening speech by Jim Graham, North Carolina agriculture commissioner, and an auction of tobacco bundles from the festival's Most Perfect Bundle Contest.

 Approximately 100 people were present to recognize one of North Carolina's oldest and economically important industries.
 After dinner, Graham delivered an address, giving his impressions of the 1987 tobacco farming year.
 Graham said 1987 has ended up being a good tobacco year considering the start was plagued with drought and cold weather.

 "This year will be a good profitable year when the total figures are in. I'm pleased to see that at the end of this year, the tobacco grower should have some money leftover in his pocket after two or three bad years," he said.
 "I feel good and encouraged about it," he added.
 Graham told tobacco industry leaders that while North Carolina is a very diversified state, the significance of the tobacco industry in the state cannot be underemphasized.

 "While eastern North Carolina has shown tremendous growth in education, recreational facilities, industrial development, and highways, you can always go back to that number one commodity in North Carolina, tobacco," he said.
 Concerning the future of the industry, Graham said he feels op-

Attempted Robbery

Four thefts and an attempted strong arm robbery were reported to Greenville police Monday.

According to Officer W.T. McCarter, the attempted robbery occurred about 7:55 p.m. in the parking lot of the Community Building at the intersection of Fourth and Greene Streets.

McCarter said a man attempted to take a purse from a woman — at one point hitting her in the head and knocking her to the ground. But the man fled when another man came out of the building, the officer said.

Officer F.G. Pruitt said a television set valued at $500 was taken from 709 Vanderbilt St. in a break-in reported at 8:22 a.m., while Officer M.R. Benton said a purse was taken from Bissette's Drug Store on Evans Mall in an incident reported at 8:58 a.m.

Officer J.G. Bridges said a camcorder valued at $1,170 was taken from Cox Electronics at 2315 S. Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 3:27 p.m., while Officer T.A. Lee said $1,170 worth of jewelry, including a watch, bracelet and necklace, was taken from a tanning booth at California Tanning Center on Arlington Boulevard in an incident reported at 5:55 p.m.

Money Is Taken

Greenville police said $65 in cash was taken from a man in a robbery at the intersection of Sixth and Ford streets about 3:22 a.m. today.

Investigators said Ronnie Gilbert of 1804A W. Third St. told officers he was approached by two men who demanded money. One of the men then hit Gilbert in the head with a pistol and took the cash from him, officers said.

Five People Held On Theft Charges

Greenville police arrested five people Monday — two of them on multiple charges — in connection with theft incidents reported to the department.

Detective S.B. Pass said Henry Bruck Langley, 24, of 31 Pineview Trailer Park and Josie Lee Bowkley, 23, of 33 Pineview Trailer Park were arrested on breaking, entering and larceny charges in connection with a Nov. 3 break-in at Coastal Jewelers and Pawn on East 10th Street. Bowkley was also charged with breaking, entering and larceny in connection with a Nov. 4 break-in at the same business, Pass said.

According to Pass, a quantity of guns and jewelry were taken in the break-ins.

Betty Jean Barrett, 26, of 1026 Fleming St. was arrested on three counts of larceny and charges of common law robbery and assault inflicting serious injury in connection with four separate cases.

Detective John Nichols said one of the larceny charges resulted from a

Department Guest

Jeffrey D. Klinger, manager of scientific affairs at GENE-TRAK Systems, Framingham, Mass., will visit the department of biology, biochemistry, microbiology and immunology and pharmacology at East Carolina University this week.

Klinger's visit is part of a program funded by the North Carolina Biotechnology Center to promote communication and interaction between North Carolina universities and industries with interests in biotechnology.

GENE-TRAK Systems is a second generation biotechnology company formed as a joint venture by the parent biotechnology company, Integrated Genetics Inc., and AMOCO. The company develops DNA probes for the detection of infectious diseases, the most recent being for AIDS virus in a patient's blood and Salmonella bacteria in food and clinical materials.

Klinger will present a seminar, "Development and Application of Nucleic Acid Probe Diagnostic Tests for Human Pathogens," for faculty, staff and graduate students in the Brody Building Thursday at noon. Friday at noon he will present a talk on "Impact of Biotechnology on Medical Diagnostics" to a group of local community/business leaders at the Holiday Inn.

Autograph Party

An autograph party for Dr. William Stephenson will be held from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at Waldenbooks, Carolina East Mall.

Stephenson will autograph copies of his recently published book, "Sallie Southall Cotten."

Nov. 11 incident at 406 Latham St. where money was taken, while the robbery and assault charges stemmed from an Oct. 9 incident on Albemarle Ave., where a man on a bicycle was thrown to the ground and money taken from him.

Officer C.A. Elks said the other two larceny charges resulted from incidents on Ward Street on Oct. 15, and South Evans Street on Oct. 21, where money was taken.

Nichols said all of the cases involved elderly victims.

Officer J.W. Isenhour said a juvenile was taken into custody and turned over to the department's juvenile division in connection with a shoplifting incident at the Fast Fare on Hooker Road, which was reported at 4:30 p.m., while Officer R.L. Vandiford said Carl Tucker Mills, 17, of Route 1, Grimesland, was charged with larceny in connection with a 6:58 p.m. incident at the K-Mart store at Greenville Square Shopping Center where a cassette tape was reported taken.

TALKING WITH EDUCATORS — Area educators met with policymakers in Greenville Monday to discuss changes they believe could improve school environment, according to John Dornan, executive director of the Public School Forum of North Carolina. It was one of six such conferences scheduled in the state. Pictured, left to right, are Ernest Brooks, a Robersonville principal; Barbara Hodges, a teacher from Havelock; Bruce McPherson, director for the N.C. Center for the Advancement of Teaching; state Rep. Ed Warren, and Dornan. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis).

Parking Authority

The Greenville Parking Authority will meet Wednesday at 9:15 a.m. in the third floor conference room of City Hall, 201 W. Fifth St.

Medical Information

The Pitt County Medical Society will give a free information presentation titled "Sexually Transmitted Disease: AIDS" Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The presentation, which will be moderated by Dr. Leo Waivers, will be held in the East Carolina University Medical School auditorium.

Pitt United Cited

The Pitt County Heart Association has received two awards from the North Carolina affiliate of the American Heart Association.

The Pitt unit was honored for having surpassed its 1986-87 fund-raising goal. Volunteers in Pitt County raised more than $36,100 in support of community education programs and research in 1986. Pitt was one of 48 local heart associations to exceed its goal.

Pitt also received the Excellence in Programs award, recognizing the unit's achievements in nutrition, high blood pressure and smoking education.

School Activities

Wintergreen Elementary School recently presented local readers and storytellers in celebration of Children's Book Week. Charles Ross, Peggy Jordan, Bernie Haselrig, Jane Maier and Margaret Hadden were participants.

Ken Marsh presented a program on Indian art and folklore and Dr. Phil Shea discussed North Carolina geography with fourth-grade students. The North Carolina Brass Quintet performed.

Students also participated in other activities including reading and designing posters. Activities were coordinated by Mildred Tardif, media specialist, and the media committee.

GOP Women Meet

Rep. Ray Warren will address the Pitt County Republican Women at Three Steers Restaurant Thursday at noon.

Warren is a candidate in the 1988 general election for North Carolina secretary of state.

Reservations may be made by calling 752-2579.

COMMUNITY ROAST — Wiley Gaskins, left, talks with former Attorney General Rufus Edmisten during a roast for Gaskins in Ayden-Grifton High School Monday night as a fund-raising event for that high school attendance area. Sponsored by the Pitt County Educational Foundation Inc., the roast will benefit Ayden Elementary, Ayden Middle, Grifton Elementary and Ayden-Grifton schools through mini-grants for teachers developing innovative and creative educational projects. Committee Members

Reps. David Diamont of Surry County, Ruth Easterling of Mecklenburg, Ray Fletcher of Burke, John Kerr of Wayne and Ed Warren of Pitt have been appointed by House Speaker Liston B. Ramsey to the Legislative Research Commission's study of interstate banking.

The panel members will help conduct a legislative study of the impact of regional interstate banking on North Carolina citizens, communities and firms.

Durham Seminar

Dr. Steven Cohen and his staff attended a seminar in Durham on manipulating body chemistry and body alignment. The seminar included discussions on treatment of fatigue, immune system problems and chronic pain.

Shrinettes Gather

The Pitt County Shrinettes will meet at the Shrine Building Thursday at 7 p.m.

Democrats To Meet

The Young Democrats of Pitt County will meet Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Three Steers Restaurant.

Rural Fire Report

Rural fire departments in Pitt County answered 81 alarms with 75 fires during October.

There was $783,800 involved in fires, $1,596,200 exposed to fire, $175,150 lost in fires and $2,204,850 saved by the rural fire departments, according to the Pitt County Fire Marshal's office.

The Winterville Fire Department had the most fires with 13.

SA Groundbreaking

The Salvation Army will have groundbreaking ceremonies for its new thrift store and warehouse Wednesday at 11 a.m., said Major Earl Woodard, local commander.

The new store will have 6,000 square feet of sales space, 2,000 square feet of working area for those sorting items, and 7,000 square feet for storage and recycling items.

Major Duane Greer, divisional consultant for thrift store operations for North and South Carolina, will be a guest for the occasion.

Whitfield Events

G.R. Whitfield School has started a 4-H Club with about 10 students and will meet every other Tuesday after school. Call 752-6614 for more information.

Ann Cannon's class at Whitfield recently attended the basketball shootout in Elm Street Gym, while Olivia Murray's fifth-grade class project for the year is collecting aluminum cans and taking them to the recycling center. Proceeds will be used to beautify school grounds. The students will take a field trip to East Carolina Vocational Center to see how paper is recycled.

The school lunchroom staff is inviting parents to have Thanksgiving dinner with their children on Nov. 24. Laurie Souder's guidance class will visit University Nursing Home to expand communication skills across generations.

Barbara Woods of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce was a guest speaker for Karen Worthington's Regional Eastern Carolina Affirmative Student Training Club. She spoke about the regional student training program.

Fred Day of the East Carolina University Geography Department spoke about the Middle East for seventh and eighth-grade students of the school.

Top Cheerleaders

Northern Nash High School was the first-place winner in both varsity and junior varsity categories in a cheerleading contest held in Saturday in Greenville.

E.B. Aycock was the winner in the middle school category.

The contest, sponsored by the 1987 Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival, was held at East Carolina Mall. Approximately 20 cheerleading squads from across eastern North Carolina competed in the event.

WOW Meeting Set

Lodge No. 218, Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society, will have its Dutch dinner meeting Thursday starting at 6 p.m. at Tar Landing Seafood Restaurant. Plans for the Christmas dinner meeting will be discussed.

For years horticulturists have recommended the incorporation of organic matter into the backfill soil when planting individual trees and shrubs. This recommendation, because of recent university research results, has been slightly changed.

Several factors will determine whether or not to add organic matter. Much information is available now on water movement in various soil structures and water relationships in soil and backfill medias. Everyone is aware of problems caused by too little or too much water and that either condition can cause plant stress and decline. The key to whether or not to amend soils with organic matter is generally determined on how the plant was grown and what type of soil is at the planting site.

Most field grown trees are dug, sold and planted as B & B (balled and burlapped). The old recommendation of digging a large hole and adding organic matter provided good results because of the large planting pit size and not the addition of organic matter. By disturbing and improving the soil structure in compacted soils the roots are able to establish quicker. Additions of fertilizers low in nitrogen and high in phosphorus and potash to the backfill will also aid root growth. Both materials are not easily leached to the roots when applied to the soil surface while nitrogen is. By slightly raising the planting height, drainage is also improved. Moisture relationships are very important in the first growing season of a newly planted tree or shrub. Most container grown ornamentals are produced in a loose, porous, soilless media. These mixtures where 100 percent of the roots are located, dry out very quickly. (Nurserymen find it necessary to water on a daily basis). After being planted in the landscape, it is necessary to keep the roots from becoming too dry during the long, hot, summer days. The surrounding soil in a bed could become completely saturated following irrigation and could remain wet for several days. Meanwhile the media — as it loses moisture faster than soil — could dry out. Research indicates the lack of water movement from one bulk density (soil) to another bulk density (media). That's why it is necessary to get the roots in contact with soil when planting ... i.e., be sure to disturb the root system when locating the plant in the hole. Don't be misled to water only when the soil dries out — the media probably was dry long before!

Mounding a ring around the stem and root system is a good practice which will allow water to move downward to the roots and not become runoff. Azaleas are extremely sensitive to this problem of drying out during the establishment period. An appropriate watering schedule would be one which provides water often during the early establishment and growing period, thus directing the roots out into the surrounding backfill and soil. This schedule should change to allow less frequent applications as the plant becomes established.

In summary:
• Good drainage is essential for plant growth and development, therefore always provide adequate drainage.

• When planting B & B material where soil is in the rootball, dig a large hole, backfill with native soil and mulch well. (in grey or white "plastic type" soils organic matter has proven to aid in aeration and in sandy soils organic matter helps hold moisture.)

• When planting container-grown plants, disturb the root system, add organic matter in the backfill, thus creating a homogeneous mix between roots and surrounding area.

• A three or four inch layer of organic mulch can be applied to any newly planted tree or shrub bed area.

County Board Changes Procedures For Job Training Partnership Act

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday voted to change the method of receiving Job Training Partnership Act funds from the state-operated Rural Private Industry Council to a new Service Delivery Area.

The action followed a meeting with members of the board-appointed JTPA committee, who said participation through an SDA would mean more local control.

The JTPA is federal legislation that provides money for training individuals who are unemployed or underemployed in an effort to make them more productive citizens.

About $1.5 million in JTPA funds were spent in Pitt County last year through PIC programs.

The board instructed County Manager Kramer Jackson, Tax Assessor Jimmie Hardee and County Attorney W.H. Watson to meet with representatives of the W.P. Ferriss Co. — a consultant working on the present property revaluation program — in an effort to come to some agreement on a Ferriss request for additional consulting fees.

William Ferriss told the board Monday that his firm's work on the revaluation was taking much longer than he had anticipated in his $168,000 contract with the county, and asked for actual expenses for one of his employees — an estimated $4,000 to $5,000 a month — for an additional two months, until the project is completed.

In other business, commissioners heard reports from school Superintendent Eddie West on various school matters; County Finance Officer Margaret Roberts and Gene Windham, the county's data processing department manager, on action taken to implement recommendations made by the accounting firm of Peat Marwick Main & Co. following an audit of county financial records for fiscal 1986-1987; and from Pitt County Memorial Hospital President Jack Richardson, who told board members that the state has contributed some $30 million in capital outlay funds and an average of $5 million a year for indigent patient care at the hospital over the past 10 years.

Richardson also said that 60 percent of the patients at the hospital are admitted by local doctors in private practice.

PCMH Vice President Dave McRae, saying there is a shortage of beds at the hospital, said "if you're really sick, you get taken care of." But he said "if it is an elective procedure ... you're liable to get bumped because of other, more urgent things ..."

Richardson said the hospital is now in a planning process that may add as many as 130 beds.

But Richardson and McRae both suggested that it will take the cooperation of private practice doctors and East Carolina University medical school doctors to make PCMH "what it needs to be."

timistic. "I feel better about tobacco than I've felt in six to eight years. I think we're turning this program around in the right direction."

Graham briefly addressed problems which threaten the tobacco industry including a proposed ban on cigarette advertising, an increase in cigarette taxes, and restrictions on public smoking.

"We must continue to work together to keep the problems and tactics of the anti-tobacco forces at a minimum," he said. "I will not, must not, and shall not let any anti-tobacco forces dominate the scene as long as I'm your commissioner of agriculture."

School Adopted

Thirty-six freshmen teaching fellows from East Carolina University have "adopted" Third Street School.

The students have volunteered two hours a week to work with students to reinforce basic skills taught in the classroom. Ann Maxwell, parent volunteer coordinator for the school, has worked with Dr. Betty Levey, university personnel, to organize the program.

MASONIC NOTICE

William Pitt Lodge No. 734 AF&AM will have a stated communication Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Woodard began farming full-time in 1980 upon graduation from Clemson University.

"I'm really surprised that I received the award. It is a great honor and I'm glad to be a part of the festival," he said. "Tobacco is a very rewarding crop to grow, more challenging than most crops and I feel the industry has a very promising future."

Woodard is actively involved in the Philip Morris Leadership Program and was named Young Farmer of the Year in South Carolina in 1987.

The ceremony concluded with an auction of tobacco bundles. The winning bundles from the Most Perfect Bundle Contest were framed in glass and auctioned off to the highest bidder.

The first prize leaf was sold for $460.

Teaching Program

Harry Allen Jones Jr., a teacher at D.H. Conley High School, recently visited the North Carolina Center for the Advancement of Teaching as one of 16 teacher-scholars in residence.

The program, the first of its kind at the center, provided the teachers an opportunity to pursue research or work on special projects. Formal programs were kept to a minimum to give teachers time for independent study.

Jones has bachelor's and master's degree from East Carolina University.

Sixty million dollars. At least. That's the price tag on three state Transportation Improvement Program projects with far-reaching impact on Pitt County and Greenville's traffic flow. These three were approved by the state Department of Transportation board Friday and are scheduled for completion in the 1990's. They include replacing the Greene Street Bridge with dual bridges, widening a portion of Evans Street and construction of the Farmville and Greenville U.S. 264 bypasses. These road projects represent solutions to significant transportation problems already obvious in the community. They deserve priority positions in the state's highway program.

Concrete funding for two projects, however, were noticeably missing from the TIP and their absence suggests the involvement of politics in highway monies. Citing changes in right-of-way funding implemented by the 1987 Highway Bill, the TIP put a question mark by both the widening of Evans Street from Tenth Street to 14th Street and the construction of Arlington Boulevard from new U.S. 264 to Memorial Drive.

But the Highway Bill simply set guidelines and state DOT policy interpreted these guidelines to mean these projects are in limbo. The issue boils down to squabbling between a Democratic legislature and a Republican executive branch. The DOT should reconsider its assessment of the projects, both of which are imperative to Greenville's progress. In no way does the legislature's highway bill condemn these projects. Evans and Arlington are important and shouldn't fall victim to political fistfighting.

The construction needs addressed by the TIP, however, are important.

Replacement of the North Greene Street bridge in 1996 with dual structures crossing the Tar River, one on Greene Street and on Pitt Street, is the culmination of a long-term plan. This $4.7 million project will likely prompt a reorganization of traffic flow in the downtown area and will improve the flow from the downtown business area to the business district across the Tar River.

Widening Evans Street from Howell Street to Greenville Boulevard, a $2.25 million project, is a long-standing and significant need. That roadway is a major transportation artery into Greenville and currently carries too intense a traffic burden for its two lanes. The five-lane replacement roadway will relieve the immense congestion faced by motorists who travel the street.

The Farmville and northwest Greenville U.S. 264 bypasses are important stretches of highway vital to business and industrial growth of the area. To be an effective throughway, U.S. 264 must bypass Farmville's commercial district. It also must be routed around Greenville's Medical District with the northwest bypass to eliminate congestion in this high-growth, high-dollar area. Total cost is $38.17 million.

Over the next decade, an estimated $60 million will likely be spent by the state on major road construction projects in Pitt County. That will address the area's needs, but not meet them. Cooperation by other entities will be essential.

Iceberg Power

It has been said that nature provides everything man needs to survive. It simply isn't always in the right places.

The great deserts of the world and the rain forests tell us that. Arid regions have little moisture to sustain life and the rain belts have an over abundance.

It has also been noted that icebergs contain fresh water that would provide adequate supplies for virtually any populated area of the world. The problem, of course, is getting the iceberg to where it is needed before it melts and becomes a part of the saline ocean.

The biggest iceberg of all now is available to anyone who wants to try to steer it. The iceberg is twice as large as the state of Rhode Island. It broke off from Antarctica and is now drifting in the Ross Sea, the National Science Foundation reports.

The iceberg is about 25 miles wide and 98 miles long forming an area of 2,450 square miles. It is estimated to be 750 feet thick.

Think what such an iceberg could do for an area like the Sahara desert. The problem is steering it there. A U.S. Army student once concluded that moving icebergs was an "exciting possibility." However, super tug boats would be required, and warmer climates might reduce the iceberg to ice cube proportions prior to reaching its destination. There was also the possibility of environment damage as the iceberg moved too rapidly to warmer waters — and cost efficiency was a question.

So there is a huge source of fresh water floating around in the Arctic. It has been going on as long as there has been an ocean and no one as yet has found a way to make use of it. In modern times icebergs have mostly been known as a threat to shipping lanes. Perhaps someday their reputations will improve.

Budget Talks Go Around And Around

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deficit-reduction negotiators trooped from the Senate's stately Lyndon Baines Johnson Room.

They looked tired. They sounded grumpy.

They were in the fourth week of the talks that started after the Wall Street stock market crash.

The painted portraits on the walls of Thomas Jefferson and John Adams looked fresher than the negotiators.

"We're treading water," said Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif.

"How's it going?" someone asked Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

"Round and round," Whitten said. "Round and round on everything."

"Everything" includes every possible means of reducing the towering federal budget deficit.

That deficit is measured at $180 billion for this fiscal year alone if nothing is done. If something isn't done by Friday, $23 billion in automatic budget cuts will take place under the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law.

The talks in the LBJ room and other Capitol locations are secret, so secret that once when House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, sent a messenger to pass a message to one of the negotiators the courier was refused entry.

"I guess you need a secret password," Wright quipped, inspiring a dozen reporters, frustrated by the long waits outside the closed door, to call out: "What is it? What is it?"

Since most of the negotiators' faces are well known in the Capitol, a password might not be needed.

But when the discussion focuses on specific budget reduction ideas and proposals, they do use codes.

New taxes, for example, are referred to as "R-1."

"R-2" means user fees of one kind or another.

"R-3" translates as sales of government assets.

And possible freezes or cuts in Social Security?

That translates simply and universally as — "The Unmentionable."

There is also much talk of COLAs. COLA is the acronym for cost-of-living adjustments.

And freezing or reducing COLAs on government pension and benefit plans is one possible if controversial way of trimming billions from the budget.

How realistic is a raid on the COLAs?

"You can see them way out on the horizon but they seem to be going over the edge," said Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., senior Democrat on the Senate Appropriations Committee.

There was much talk of what was or what was not "on the table."

During a photo opportunity reporters noticed cans of soda on the conference table.

"COLAs are on the table," reporters called out.

Lawmakers quickly pointed out that they were "diet colas," not the calorie-filled variety.

There were other variations on the theme.

Early in the talks someone asked how COLAs had gotten "on the table."

"They fell from the chandelier," the questioner was told.

A spectator at one deficit-reduction news conference was the actor, E.G. Marshall.

Someone asked if he had ever played a member of Congress.

He said he had.

"Then go in there and show them how it's done," he was urged.

Marshall immediately went into his crusty lawmaker's act.

"You've got to bite the bullet, shed a little blood — and raise taxes," he rasped.

But Marshall didn't have the password so he didn't get into the room either.

As the fourth week of the much-heralded talks opened with sharp differences remaining in the White House and congressional positions, cynics toyed with the idea of sending into the room a certain headline — on an entirely different subject — from Monday's New York Times.

The headline: "Vast Cosmic Object Downgraded To a Mirage."

A Capitol denizen drifted by to see the breakup of the day's talks.

"Why are you here?" he was asked.

"Curiosity," he replied.

"There's virtually nothing to be curious about here," he was told.

Monday's meeting was over and Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., the House majority leader, was asked what had been discussed.

Refusing to be specific, he replied: "We've discussed everything, including the phases of the moon."

"Do moon phases have an impact?"

"Well, biothermal rhythms have a lot to do with it," he replied wearily.

"What's it like in there?" Foley was asked.

"It's hard work," he said. "It's a grind."

"Are there any light moments?"

"Very occasionally," the majority leader said.

"Very occasionally."

A Summit Without A Treaty?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and his top adviser will face a tough decision if U.S. and Soviet arms control negotiators are unable to settle their differences by the time the pumpkin pie is served up on Thanksgiving Day.

The choice will be whether to consider postponing next month's superpower summit or going ahead even if the treaty to ban intermediate-range nuclear missiles is not ready to be signed.

It is not a comfortable choice to make. A lot of work went into arranging for Mikhail S. Gorbachev to come here Dec. 7 for talks with Reagan on the following three days.

Clearly, any postponement would have to have Moscow's approval. And if U.S. and Soviet negotiators continue to make headway, it is a decision that may not have to be faced by the superpowers.

But a postponement is within the "series of choices" the two leaders will face if the remaining tough issues are not resolved, a State Department official said Monday.

The four issues are:

1. A disagreement over how much information the Soviets should provide on their SS-20 medium-range rockets. The U.S. side is confident of its count of 441 deployed missiles, but wonders whether there may be others in storage.

2. A U.S. demand to station inspectors at SS-25 installations. The missile is a strategic weapon, outside the reach of the treaty. But in its early stages of construction it looks like the SS-20. The Reagan administration wants to make sure SS-25s are not modified to replace banned SS-20s.

3. A Soviet demand for a provision to guard against any actions in conflict with the letter or spirit of the treaty. The U.S. side considers the proposal unnecessary. "It is very clear what this treaty is all about," the official said.

4. A Soviet proposal for a commitment to hold follow-up negotiations. This is viewed suspiciously by the U.S. side as an attempt to restrict U.S. aircraft based in Europe that are not included in the treaty.

There are probably two dozen other technical issues also unresolved. But they are not considered important impediments to an agreement.

Still, it would take about a week to work out treaty language on these and the four big issues — and that work cannot be done until negotiators resolve their differences.

Reporting progress, chief U.S. negotiator Max M. Kampelman decided to stay in Geneva today to extend his talks with chief Soviet negotiator Yuli M. Vorontsov.

Depending on the outcome, there is a possibility Secretary of State George P. Shultz will fly to the Swiss city next week for further talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze — although State Department officials say Shultz has not made plans to hold what would be their fourth get-together in three months.

What is highly unlikely is that Reagan will attempt to negotiate whatever treaty differences remain with Gorbachev.

"I do feel strongly we shouldn't be trying to negotiate INF (Intermediate Nuclear Forces) at the summit," said the official, who discussed the situation only on condition of anonymity. "These issues should be handled by experts."

So if the treaty is not ready, the summit could be put off until it is — or the treaty could be signed apart from any summit meeting, as Shultz suggested was possible at a news conference last month in Brussels.

Ironically, the summit might rise or fall over arms control despite efforts by Reagan to focus on a broader agenda. In a speech two years ago to the United Nations, he urged a four-part approach that also gave serious attention to human rights, regional disputes and U.S.-Soviet relations.

The summit meeting with Gorbachev could provide an opportunity, for instance, to try to implement a Soviet commitment to withdraw the Red Army from Afghanistan or to step up the flow of Jewish emigration.

Those issues are on the agenda, even though they are not getting a lot of attention from the media.

So if the treaty is not ready, Reagan and his advisers will be faced with a dilemma. "You at least want to ask yourself whether you want to go ahead and address other issues," the official said.

Strength For Today

Every human being at last becomes a pauper. At death, even the millionaire goes from riches to poverty. We brought nothing into this world, and we will take nothing out.

Why, then, should we put so much stock in the things we cannot retain? We attach great importance to the things money can buy. Yet accumulating them seldom brings happiness. And at last we must let go of everything we own and pass into another life.

"Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust corrupt and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven where moth and rust do not corrupt... For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

Public Forum

To the editor:

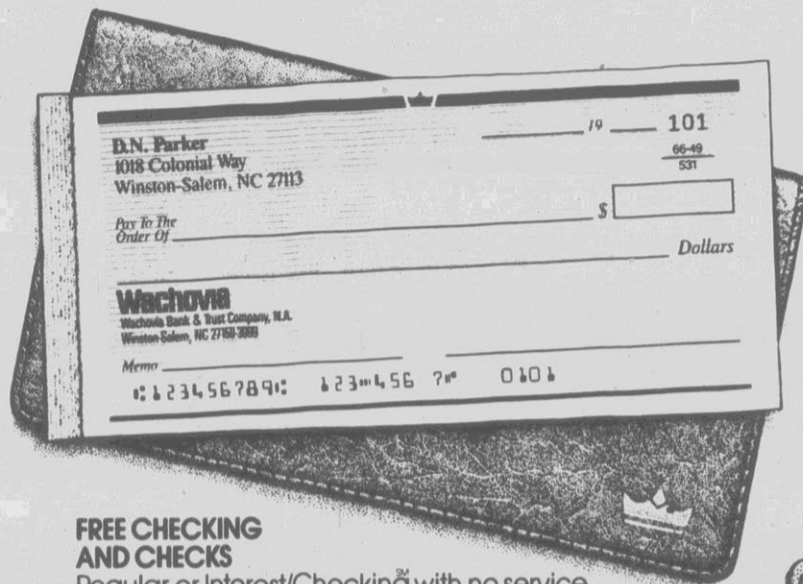

I wonder if any other citizens resent the harassment outside of the polling places by the candidates (or their representatives). If a person hasn't taken the time to acquaint himself with the candidates and issues prior to coming to vote, they should not be voting in the first place. A 10-second handshake, card, pencil, etc. certainly should not be the basis for anyone to vote for a particular candidate. Furthermore, an uninformed voter is just as bad as one who does not take the time to go exercise his voting rights. I realize that if one candidate chooses to follow this "last ditch" effort at the polls, all the others feel compelled to do likewise.

In essence, the law should not only prohibit campaigning in the polling place, but also within 500 feet of the entrance.

IN THE STATE

Charged

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Two men with ties to the now-defunct White Patriot Party have been indicted on murder charges in the slayings of three men at a Shelby adult bookstore in January.

Douglas Lawrence Sheets, 40, of Meeker, Okla., and Robert Eugene "Jack" Jackson, 26, of Midwest City, Okla., were charged Monday with three counts each of first-degree murder and two counts of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. They were also charged with kidnapping, arson, robbery with a dangerous weapon and conspiracy.

Sheets and Jackson were arrested with former White Patriot Party leader Glenn Miller in Missouri in April. Miller disappeared after issuing a written threat to start a race war against blacks, Jews, communists and homosexuals.

Sites Dropped

RALEIGH (AP) — Six weeks of fighting in Davidson and Rowan counties has paid off, but residents warn they'll launch a new protest if a state commission tries again to build a hazardous waste treatment plant in their backyards.

The North Carolina Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission Monday removed the two final sites from a list of possible locations before going into a private session to discuss up to a dozen new possibilities.

Despite the vote, representatives from both counties said Monday they will not drop their guard until a plant site is chosen outside their counties.

The commission's search for a site has been limited to the Cape Fear, Pee Dee and Yadkin River areas because of a bill passed by the General Assembly this summer. That law requires each gallon of discharge from a hazardous waste treatment plant be diluted by 1,000 gallons of water.

Sites in other areas could be considered if alternative technology that's more expensive were used, Ms. Neal said.

CP&L Fine

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Carolina Power & Light Co. officials say they have not decided whether to appeal a $50,000 fine proposed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for violations related to fire protection and safe shutdown procedures at its H.B. Robinson nuclear plant.

The NRC action follows a safety inspection conducted March 9-April 15 at the Hartsville plant to check the operational readiness of the plant's emergency power system, including the emergency diesel generators and the safe shutdown power sources, said NRC spokesman Ken Clark.

NRC inspectors cited the plant for "failure to adequately establish and implement procedures for the conduct of safe shutdown in the event of a fire."

Rap Shooting

RALEIGH (AP) — Raleigh police are seeking a Brooklyn, N.Y., man in connection with the weekend shooting of a crewmember of Run-D.M.C., a nationally known rap music group.

The suspect was identified as Frank Nitty on a warrant issued by the Wake County magistrate's office, Raleigh police detective J.R. Evans said Monday. The warrant charged Nitty with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

Garfield McDonald, 21, of Queens, N.Y., the technical director for the group, was shot once in the head at the Radisson Plaza Hotel Saturday night, police said. His condition was upgraded from critical to serious Monday in the neurological intensive care unit at Wake Medical Center.

Education

ASHEVILLE (AP) — State education commissioners from across the nation have adopted a plan designed to ensure that students who begin kindergarten this fall graduate from high school in the year 2000.

The Council of Chief State School Officers approved a policy statement featuring a series of guarantees for students at risk of failure.

Among the guarantees are an early childhood development program, a written guide outlining the path to high school graduation, modern materials and effective health and social services to overcome conditions that place students at risk of failing.

Twenty-five percent of the nation's youths quit school before graduation, even though a diploma is more important than ever, the council said.

Liberties

SEABOARD, N.C. (AP) — An employee of the Northampton County school system has been charged with 20 counts of taking indecent liberties with a minor, a court official said.

A grand jury issued indictments Friday against Harry H. Youngblood, 43, of Seaboard, following an investigation by the Northampton County Sheriff's Department and the state Bureau of Investigation, Clerk of Court C. J. White said Monday.

A spokesman for the school system, who asked not to be identified, said that Youngblood was director of pupil-student services. He is in charge of student transfers between schools, student psychological testing and keeping statistics on enrollment and attendance figures. He tested students on a regular basis, the spokesman said.

David Beard, district attorney for the area including Northampton County, said the charges involved one child, a teen-age girl under 16 who is not related to Youngblood. The incidents took place in 1982, 1983 and 1984, Beard said.

Standoff

LITTLETON, N.C. (AP) — An armed Halifax County man held his wife hostage at a Christian youth campground for about three hours Monday before surrendering to sheriff's deputies, officials said.

About 4:30 p.m., Ronald Edward Price, 39, of Roanoke Rapids, burst into the office of Camp Willow Run, where his wife, Susan, works, pointed a 12-gauge shotgun at her head and threatened to kill her, said Warren County sheriff's Sgt. Lawrence E. Harrison.

Two other women who were in the office ran from the building, and another hid in the basement, Harrison said.

Price initially told deputies he would kill himself and his wife, but about 7:15 p.m., he released his wife and said he would kill himself. Deputies then coaxed Price outside and persuaded him to give up.

Birth Weight

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Bowman Gray medical school professors are working to improve the birth weights of babies in 20 northwestern counties of North Carolina, which has one of the nation's highest mortality rates.

Three years ago, Drs. Paul J. Meis and J. Mac Ernest, obstetricians, and Mary Lou Moore, a nurse and lecturer, enlisted private doctors and public health clinics to work in a program that provides special care to women at risk of giving birth to underweight babies.

Last year, 1.7 percent of the more than 21,000 infants born in the counties had very low birth weights, which is defined as less than 3 pounds, 5 ounces.

By contrast, less than 1 percent of the infants whose mothers were enrolled in the project had very low birth rates.

Thad Eure Hanging Up His Running Shoes After Half Century In Office

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Thad Eure said he has no doubts he could be elected Secretary of State again, but more than half a century in the office is enough.

Eure drew applause Monday at his 88th birthday party when he said he thought he could win again.

"If I run for re-election, I'm going to be re-elected," he said. "I believe I'll be successful like I have been for half a century."

But Eure told the crowd — which included Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham, State Auditor Ed Renfrow and Labor Commissioner John Brooks — that if he sought and won another term he would be 94 years old when that term ended.

"My God," proclaimed Eure, who has been in office nearly 51 years.

"I plan to retire at the expiration of my present term," he said, prompting a collective gasp from many of his staffers. "I'm giving a young person a chance."

Eure, who calls himself "the oldest rat in the Democratic barn," has continuously held statewide elective office longer than any other person in the country.

"I shall ever be grateful to the people of North Carolina for permitting the National Association of Secretaries of State and the president of the United States to say publicly that I have held a statewide elective office continuously for a longer period of time than any person in America," Eure said Monday.

Eure said his own health and that of wife, Minta, who suffers from arthritis, convinced him not to seek a 14th term. Also attending the party were Eure's daughter, Armecia Eure Black, and his son, Thad Eure Jr.

"You see my wife hobbling up here," he said. "She needs me at home. She's been telling me that for the last 10 years."

Eure said he did not make his decision until Sunday and did not tell his wife until Sunday night.

"I've been a priority man all my life, putting first things first," he said. "My first priority is to my wife, but she didn't know until last night."

That, he said, disappointed her. "I was mad," Mrs. Eure said.

Eure said he had kept a list of candidates who expressed interest in the office.

"That list aggregates 18," Eure said. "So the office will not go vacant," Eure said.

Democrats who have expressed interest in the post include former Attorney General Rufus Edmisten of Raleigh, former state Rep. George Breece of Fayetteville, state education official Betty Wallace of Raleigh, former Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee and Wayne Hardin, a Forest City radio station operator. Raleigh lawyer Brad Miller had announced he would be a candidate regardless of Eure's decision.

State Rep. Ray Warren of Mecklenburg County is the only announced Republican candidate.

"When I came on the scene, my slogan was 'give a young man a chance,'" Eure said. In the past few elections, that slogan "has been thrown in my face," he said.

Since he's not running again, "I once again say 'give a young man a chance,'" he said, adding that he would now change the slogan to read "give a young person a chance."

Eure said he would campaign for the Democratic nominee but would not become involved in the primary race.

"The people have been so kind and so loyal for so long to me that I am not going to dictate my successor," he said.

The secretary of state's office has 70 employees. It primarily is responsible for regulating corporations and securities, publishing some official documents and regulating lobbyists.

Eure's eyesight has deteriorated to the point that he voluntarily gave up his driver's license and is chauffeured to and from work by the Highway Patrol. He also wears a hearing aid.

Municipal Leaders Told To Join Forces

GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina's municipal officials have been urged to band together to battle federal budget cuts and to prevent dividing the state into the haves and have-nots.

Both battles, they were told Monday, require government partnerships — the theme of this year's N.C. League of Municipalities annual convention.

National League of Cities President Cathy Reynolds said cities already have borne their "fair share" of budget cuts.

Ms. Reynolds, a Denver council member, also urged delegates to tie their support for 1988 presidential candidates to their policies on municipal issues.

William Friday, chairman of the N.C. Rural Economic Development Center, urged delegates to combat poverty and illiteracy. Those problems, he said, could further divide the state's dual economy — with urban areas booming and rural areas declining.

"We need a partnership in an effort to preserve the future of the state," said Friday, former University of North Carolina system president. "The alternative is so depressing, I don't want to think about it or talk about it."

Friday urged city leaders to visit a soup kitchen and explore literacy programs in their own towns.

"It's too easy for us to forget what hunger feels like," he said. "It's too easy to forget the shame of not being able to read... You should talk to those people with whom life has dealt so harshly."

The development center's directors, given a $2 million budget by this year's General Assembly, plan to make their first grants in a meeting Thursday in Elizabeth City.

For all the talk of partnership, two legislative leaders stood firm on bills they introduced this year that municipal leaders considered anti-city.

Senate Appropriations Chairman Aaron Plyler, D-Union, said his successful bill this year that decreased local zoning authority over mobile homes was an effort to encourage affordable housing, not to hurt cities.

House Finance Chairman George Miller, D-Durham, defended his two bills this year that would have forced cities to compensate owners of billboards removed under stiffer rules and of property rezoned to a less intensive use, which he said protected individuals. Neither bill passed.

Miller also reasserted his opposition to new local-option taxes. "I have a serious concern about a hodgepodge of local manners of taxation," he said.

The league sought a "menu" of taxes — such as payroll taxes and admissions taxes — from which cities could choose. The league, which represents 477 cities and towns, says municipalities need new revenue sources to offset cuts in federal money and new responsibilities.

Census Bureau Plans Count Of Dwellings

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Organizers of the 1990 census will be getting an early start next year, but they won't be counting people yet — just houses.

Thousands of "enumerators," who will make about $5.50 an hour, will fan out into smaller cities and rural areas next spring armed with maps and directions to record every dwelling, said William Hill, 49, regional director for the U.S. Census Bureau in Charlotte.

Each of the census workers may have several hundred, perhaps 500, dwellings to locate.

From the maps, the bureau will compile mailing lists, which will be given to the postal service. Postal workers will compare these lists with their own.

In bigger cities, the list-making will go on in mid-1989. In the fast-growing cities, the census takers will put off the listing of dwellings until late 1989.

Storms Spawn 72 Tornadoes In Two Days

By JODY COX
Associated Press Writer

Flooding forced an estimated 1,000 people to high ground as a storm that spawned a killer barrage of 72 tornadoes across Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi drenched the dry South today with a hard-driving rain.

In Alabama, authorities evacuated 150 people after lightning struck an 800,000-gallon tank of crude oil, sparking a spectacular fire, authorities said today.

Storms that began Sunday killed 11 people and injured more than 200 in Texas and Louisiana, while in Mississippi, Gov. Bill Allain declared a state of emergency Monday night as damage in the three states reached the millions.

The National Weather Service said up to 39 tornadoes were reported Monday, bringing the two-day total of rare November twisters along the Gulf Coast to 72 in the three states and one in Alabama.

"There were boats flying around in the air and trees down everywhere," said Police Officer Richard Spencer of Madison, Miss., of a tornado that hit a lake Monday.

The storm moved slowly across Alabama on Monday night, dumping heavy rain, and was expected to reach the southern Atlantic coast by tonight.

In Womack Hill in western Alabama, lightning Monday night struck a tank containing 788,000 gallons of crude oil at the Petro-Lewis Oil Co. plant, said Danny Cooper, director of the state Department of Emergency Management.

The lightning ignited a huge blaze that officials feared would spread to storage tanks containing 1.5 million cubic feet of liquid propane 200 yards away, said Terrell Skelton, emergency management coordinator for Choctaw County.

No injuries were reported, but about 150 people were evacuated, Cooper said.

Texas, which took the heaviest hit with 10 deaths and more than 160 injured in more than two dozen counties, saw fair weather return Monday as residents cleaned up amid the buzz of chain saws.

But in Mississippi, schools in Ridgeland, Madison and Flora went on tornado alerts, forcing hundreds of children from classrooms and into hallways and other protected areas, officials said.

Several rural Louisiana schools also closed.

The storm poured more than 18 inches of rain on Alexandria, La., flooding hundreds of homes with up to 8 feet of water and forcing the evacuation of about 1,000 people by boats and buses, officials said.

The evacuees were moved by National Guardsmen to the Rapides Parish Coliseum, City Hall, a community center or to homes of friends and relatives in the city of about 60,000.

"We'll have a better estimate on the damages in a day or two but right now it looks like it's going to be in the millions with hundreds of houses with water in them," said Mayor Ned Randolph. Despite the damage, the downpour was welcome in Mississippi, Alabama and other drought-plagued Southern states plagued by wildfires in the last month.

"If anybody's praying for rain, they need to stop because their prayers have been answered," said John Burns, superintendent of schools in Vernon Parish, La.

One of Monday's twisters in Louisiana hit while classes were in session at a high school in Vidalia, where a visiting basketball coach was seriously injured when winds lifted his car and hurled it more than 100 feet, witnesses said.

In Mobile County, Ala., a witness and sheriff's deputies said an apparent twister flipped a unoccupied mobile home and knocked down power lines. No injuries were reported in that state.

In Texas on Monday, wind ripped the roofs off an elementary school in Santa Fe, and a store in Dickinson.

Hardest hit Sunday was Palestine, Texas, where tornadoes damaged at least 86 businesses and more than 200 homes.

On Monday night, National Guardsmen cordoned off devastated areas of town while police patrolled the debris-filled streets.

Many residents provided their own security.

"We stayed in the living room last night," said Lynn Gibson, who with her husband, Gary, and three daughters were assessing the damages to their home.

"We'll stay if we can because we don't want looters coming in, and if it doesn't get cold. We don't have any electricity or gas."

Also hard hit was nearby Jacksonville, where two people were killed and 75 injured in a tornado that destroyed eight homes, 27 mobile homes and a VFW hall.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements planned to tour both towns this afternoon.

Damage estimates across all three states were sketchy, but in Palestine, about 100 miles southeast of Dallas, Public Works director M.E. Mathis estimated it ranged from $5 million to $12 million.

In Louisiana, Gov. Edwin Edwards declared a state of emergency in eight parishes while crews hampered by flooded roads worked to repair gas leaks and broken power lines from Sunday's storms.

In Mississippi, Allain's declaration allows state agencies to provide emergency funds and other assistance to local governments.

No new injuries were reported Monday in Louisiana or Mississippi, but a worker was killed at Bay City, Texas, when wind toppled an oil well drilling rig he was working on, authorities said.

Tip O'Neill Will Undergo Surgery For Rectal Cancer

BOSTON (AP) — Former House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr. is in good spirits as he prepares to undergo surgery for rectal cancer, according to his physician, and the chance for a complete recovery is excellent.

"He is a very nice man to deal with," Dr. Richard E. Wilson, chief of surgical oncology at the Brigham and Women's Hospital, said at a news conference Monday where he announced that O'Neill would be operated on Wednesday.

"It was diagnosed quite early, and we are optimistic," Wilson said of the malignant tumor in the last 6 inches of the large intestine.

Wilson said surgeons would operate on O'Neill through an abdominal incision.

O'Neill, 74, left a hospital in Washington, D.C., on Sunday and was admitted that afternoon at Brigham and Women's. Doctors said he needed further treatment for a long-standing prostate problem, which Wilson said Monday, without elaboration, would be dealt with later.

Wilson said a barium enema performed Monday confirmed the presence of cancer, which he estimated O'Neill has had for two months. He said O'Neill sought treatment following episodes of bleeding, a common symptom of rectal cancer.

Wilson said it was possible O'Neill would have to undergo chemotherapy following the cancer operation, but a final decision will be made after surgery.

The length of O'Neill's hospitalization will depend on what is found during surgery, said Wilson.

O'Neill lives on Cape Cod with his wife, Mildred. He has kept an office in Boston and a home in Washington since retiring in January after 35 years in Congress, the last 10 as speaker.

Jackson Aide Says Candidate Faces Threat By Ku Klux Klan

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Jesse Jackson's presidential campaign is calling for immediate Secret Service protection in the wake of reports that the Ku Klux Klan has threatened to kill the Democratic candidate during "black November."

Frank Watkins, Jackson's press secretary, says the FBI notified the campaign of the threat last Friday. Watkins is calling on the government to provide Secret Service bodyguards or be ready to accept responsibility should anything happen to Jackson.

"A black life is as valuable as a white life," Watkins said Monday. "The Secret Service protects Vice President (George) Bush and has protected (Sen.) Ted Kennedy from time to time, when threats have been made on his life. I don't think the Secret Service should set up a whole new criterion just because it is Jesse Jackson who's the front-runner for the Democratic nomination."

Deborah Wade, a spokeswoman for the Justice Department's civil rights division, confirmed that the FBI is investigating the report. She said the Southern Poverty Law Center, a civil rights law firm in Montgomery, Ala., notified the department of the threat.

Morris Dees, executive director of the SPLC, said one of its investigators learned of the threats from Klan sources and subsequently obtained sworn affidavits from two former members of the Sir Knights of the Kamel:ia, a small Klan group based in the Greenville, S.C., area.

He said one of the former KKK members told the investigator he had heard a leader of the Sir Knights say Jackson must be killed during "black November."

According to Dees, the term "black November" referred to the November 1979 killings of five members of the Communist Workers Party in Greensboro, N.C.

Ms. Wade said the Justice Department will look at the evidence and decide whether prosecution is warranted.

"We consider all such threats to be serious," she said.

In his campaign four years ago, Jackson reported 314 death threats and was assigned Secret Service agents at the beginning of November instead of January, the usual starting date. This time, he submitted his request for Secret Service protection on Oct. 8, two days before announcing his candidacy.

Quake Strikes Alaskan Coast

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A severe earthquake struck off the south-central Alaska coast, shaking Anchorage 270 miles away, authorities said today.

There was no immediate reports of injury or damage, but thousands of coastal residents awakened by sirens and police loudspeakers fled homes in low-lying coastal communities.

The quake struck at 11:46 p.m. Monday, (3:46 a.m. EST today), and had a preliminary Richter scale magnitude of 6.9, said Alec Medbery of the Tsunami Warning Center in Palmer.

The U.S. Geological Survey at Golden, Colo., said it recorded the quake at 6.8 on the Richter scale.

Officials issued a tsunami, or tidal wave, warning for most of the Alaska and British Columbia coasts. It was canceled about 1½ hours later.

Ice Buildup Suspected As Cause of Jet Crash

By JOE WHEELAN
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — Ice buildup during a snowstorm should be considered a prime suspect in the Continental Airlines jet crash that killed 27 people and left five in critical condition today, according to an aeronautics professor who helped design the plane.

A spokesman for federal investigators said today it was too early to rule out any causes, but an outside expert, a witness and a report on a 1985 crash of a similar DC-9 jet added to questions about whether a hazardous amount of ice accumulated on the plane's wings.

Flight 1713 rolled sharply left and right just after liftoff Sunday with 82 people aboard, then caught a wingtip, flipped onto its back and broke into three pieces as it slid down the runway.

"I would strongly suspect there was ice on the wing," said Richard Shevell, a Stanford University aeronautics professor who worked on the DC-9's design as chief of aerodynamics for Douglas Co. in the early 1960s.

Asked if icing was the prime suspect, National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Ted Lopatkiewicz said today, "We at this point haven't eliminated anything ...

that would be an area of investigation at this point, yes."

Investigators also are looking at snowy runway conditions, possible engine failure, wind shear and other factors, said Bob Sheldon of the Federal Aviation Administration. NTSB director Jim Burnett was scheduled to give the news media its first briefing today on early findings.

The 21-year-old, twin-engine jet had been sprayed with de-icing fluid 20 minutes before it tried to take off from Stapleton International Airport for Boise, Idaho, airline officials said.

But the delay between de-icing and takeoff could have allowed ice to collect on the DC-9's wings, Shevell told the Denver Post on Monday. Ice can distort the shape of an aircraft wing and destroy its ability to lift an aircraft during takeoff.

Ice buildup is a particular concern on early models of the DC-9, such as the one used for Flight 1713, because they are not equipped with slats on the front edges of the wings to give added lift during takeoff, The New York Times reported today.

The Times cited an NTSB report on the February 1985 crash of a DC-9 taking off at Philadelphia International Airport: "Aircraft without leading-edge devices are more sensitive to even light amounts of airfoil ice, which may not always be visibly detectable and which may accumulate during pretakeoff taxi operations."

Airfoil refers to the surfaces designed to keep an aircraft up or control its movements.

A survivor, Patti Halford, 27, of Boise, Idaho, said icing on the plane frightened her before the crash.

From her hospital bed, Halford said just before takeoff she "made a comment to the woman next to me that my window had more ice on it now than it did when they began spraying. The engines would start up and then slow down, and I heard a clicking sound several times over. I thought it was strange, but I didn't say anything more because I thought she'd think I was chicken."

Five of the 55 injured passengers remained in critical condition early today. One injured passenger died Monday, raising the death toll to 27.

Flight 1713 originated in Wichita, Kan., took on an entirely new set of passengers in Denver and was bound for Boise, Idaho, when it crashed, spokesman Bruce Hicks said.

Ten passengers aboard the flight originally had been scheduled to fly on a United plane but that flight was canceled, Continental officials said.

Hicks said the last routine maintenance check on the aircraft was completed Oct. 27.

USDA Says Farm Net Income Rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most farmers have benefited greatly from sharp reductions in crop and livestock costs the last two years, according to an annual study published by the Agriculture Department.

As most production costs declined in 1986, farmers' net cash income continued to surge. It climbed to a record level nationally last year and may be headed for another peak in 1987.

"The costs of capital replacement (investment in buildings and machinery) also fell for most farmers," said the report, which was released Monday. "Most crop growers and some livestock producers, however, received lower market prices."

According to USDA economists, the net cash income of farmers — the difference between cash receipts and cash expenses — rose to a record $52 billion in 1986. A further easing of production costs may help send net cash income up again this year to between $54 billion and $58 billion.

One big reason for the decline in total farm expenses has been acreage cutbacks in major crops under the government's various commodity programs. Last year, the report said, farmers planted 328 million acres in major crops, a decline of 5.6 million acres from 1985.

"Corn and rice yields reached record-high levels, but wheat yields fell to their lowest level since 1980," the report said. "Total crop production fell an average of 8 percent."

The report, part of an annual series on "Economic Indicators of the Farm Sector," was prepared by the department's Economic Research Service.

"Farmers paid less for feed, feeder livestock, fuels, motor supplies, fertilizer, chemicals, tractors, and building and fencing," the report said.

The cost of feed, which is produced by other farmers, declined 9.1 percent last year, following a 14.5 percent decline in 1985.

Analysts said that for cow-calf operations, feed accounted for 64 percent of total variable costs in 1986; for farrow-to-finish hogs, 79 percent; and for dairy, 63 percent.

"The drop in feed prices contributed heavily to lower livestock production costs," the report said.

'Star Wars' Program May Cause Drain On Scientists

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The "Star Wars" research program, if pursued as vigorously as President Reagan desires, could drain away scientific talent from the civilian sector and jeopardize the nation's overall economic health, according to a private study released today.

"The Strategic Defense Initiative (Star Wars) could force American industries to pay higher salaries for scientists and engineers, raising prices of manufactured goods and further eroding our exports," Alice Tepper Marlin, the executive director of the Council on Economic Priorities, said in releasing the study.

"In addition, much of the work being funded is classified secret, which means it would take years before the technology could be transferred to the civilian domain (for useful spinoffs)," she added.

The new study was published today in the form of 234-page hard-cover book, "Star Wars: The Economic Fallout." It is the product of almost four years of work by the council, a non-profit research organization based in New York that specializes in studies of national security issues, the environment and corporate social responsibility.

The council bills itself as a "non-aligned, independent" public service organization, but one that is willing "to adopt a point of view" once a study is completed.

When it comes to Star Wars, known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative, the council makes clear it has joined the list of detractors.

"The diversion to SDI of government resources on the scale planned by the Reagan administration will seriously weaken the nation's ability to meet the challenges of unemployment, export market loss, dwindling technological leadership and antiquated industrial plants.

"If we fail to arrest the economic momentum of the SDI juggernaut, we will find ourselves paying for Star Wars well into the next century."

The Star Wars program is a research effort aimed at developing lasers and other exotic weapons that could be deployed in space and on the ground to automatically shoot down nuclear missiles fired at the United States or its allies.

According to the council's research, the Pentagon has spent $9.4 billion on Star Wars research since fiscal 1984 and hopes to spend an additional $39.2 billion through fiscal 1992. While precise estimates are impossible at this point, the council asserted it would cost at least $500 billion and possibly as much as $1-trillion to actually deploy such a defensive shield.

Lt. Col. Edwina Palmer, a Pentagon spokeswoman, said SDI officials had not seen the study.

Operation Abby Has Success

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Nearly 21 years ago, an Air Force sergeant working in the mail room at Khorat Royal Thai Air Base in Thailand wrote to you saying that many young, lonely airmen stationed there received little or no mail, and perhaps you could generate a little mail to cheer them up during the Christmas holidays.

You printed his letter, and mail came in by the truckload — as many as 100,000 letters in a single week! That was December 1966, and I was one of the young, lonely airmen.

We shuffled through the mountain of mail searching for letters from our home states. I was particularly interested in those with New York addresses, as my hometown is in upstate New York. A letter from Kathy Birmingham from Long Island caught my eye. She sounded like my kind of girl, so I wrote to her. Surprisingly, she wrote back immediately. We were both 21, and had so much in common. By April 1967, we had a very exciting correspondence going and made plans to meet when I returned from my overseas tour.

In August 1967, I flew home, then drove to Long Island to meet Kathy and her family. It was love at first sight! I asked her to marry me on the third day, she accepted on the fourth, and we were married in November 1967!

We have remained an Air Force family, and have traveled around the world with our lovely daughter, Kelley, who is now 16. Every time we tell the story of how we met, people say, "You should tell Abby!" What more appropriate time than on our 20th anniversary!

So to you, Dear Abby, our thanks for a lifetime of happiness and memories. And to Kathy, the girl who wrote that letter to a lonely sergeant so long ago, my love, now and always. Happy 20th anniversary!

May God bless you, Abby. — CAPT. DAVE THURSTON, BELLEVUE, NEB.

DEAR CAPT. DAVE AND KATHY: Please add my warm congratulations to those of your many friends. What an upper your letter was. And the timing was perfect, because Operation Dear Abby III is coming up in two weeks.

In conjunction with America Remembers, I will again publish the addresses of our servicemen and women who are far from home and need to know that their countrymen remember and support them. My readers are eager to send messages of love and support to those men and women who keep our country free.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me why retired men tag along with their wives to do the weekly grocery shopping. I see this constantly. The poor wife has to listen to her husband tell her why another brand is better (or cheaper) than the one she selected. Then there's the hassle of taking items out of the cart and replacing them with others while they argue back and forth. Abby, these women have been shopping for 40 years or more without their husbands — now suddenly he's a maven.

When my husband retires, I will either leave him at home, or give him the shopping list and let him do the grocery shopping.

Please deal with this problem in your column. — SEEN IT IN TUCSON

DEAR SEEN IT: Retired men tag along with their wives because they have nothing better to do. Almost every community has a senior citizens recreation center, as well as volunteer programs. Retired people (both men and women) could enrich their lives and the lives of others by making themselves useful. Those who are not aware of programs for seniors should contact their local volunteer center or Chamber of Commerce.

Women Volunteers Work During Festival Week

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Lifestyle Editor

A decade of dedication to tobacco is being observed in Greenville this week during the Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival. The festival, in its 10th year, is celebrated by Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolinas and Virginia.

Yearly the Pitt County women volunteers are working in a lot of areas for the festival. "Preparations for one festival begins two weeks after the last one ends. The day of the Tobacco Commissioner's awards banquet is a culmination of our plans and ideas," said Joyce Belcher, president of the festival executive committee.

"The women are always willing and ready at a minute's notice, to accept the responsibility of getting the job done. They assist in every facet of the festival events — decorating for the commissioner's banquet, assisting at the festival booth distributing magazines and providing information concerning weeklong activities," said Mrs. Belcher.

"Throughout the week, they are behind the scene at the cheerleading contest, clogging contest and pig feast," she said.

Mrs. Belcher was also overall chairman of the commissioners' banquet.

"This core of women provide a lot of support. You would think a week filled with activities such as this would require a cast of hundreds; whereas, we have a much smaller number," said Melissa Arrowood, executive director of the festival.

"The core of the festival — what makes it run smoothly, year in and year out, is our volunteers. Volunteers make it happen," said Mrs. Arrowood.

Golden tobacco leaves with touches of white, green and yellow were used by the women in decorating this year. The speaker's table was highlighted by an arrangement featuring tobacco leaves, natural pods, seasonal leaves, yellow daisy pom pons and greenery. Tobacco-covered ducks, created by Jean McLawhorn White, were also used.

The refreshment table featured a silver punch bowl and wine cooler filled with natural holly and berries, yellow daisy pom pons and baby's breath. Individual tables were decorated with potted miniature daisy pom pons and tobacco-covered fruit, also created by Mrs. White.

"Look around while you are attending the various festival events to see these volunteers in action. These untiring people manage to be everywhere at once, doing everything that needs to be done during the week and smiling through it all," said Mrs. Arrowood.

Elway, Broncos Win Duel

DENVER (AP) — Denver's John Elway and Chicago's Jim McMahon counterpunched brilliantly for 60 minutes, each exceeding 300 yards passing in a dazzling duel that wound up being decided — somewhat anticlimactically — by a pair of missed extra points.

Thanks to those two failed conversions and a fumble by William "The Refrigerator" Perry at the goal line, Denver escaped with a badly needed 31-29 NFL Monday night victory over the Bears.

The triumph raised the Broncos' record to 5-3-1 and kept them 2½ games behind San Diego, 8-1, in the AFC West. Chicago fell to 7-2 but remained atop the NFC Central.

In the final accounting, the two teams played to a virtual standoff:

—Chicago had 446 total yards and Denver 439.

—The Broncos had 25 first downs to 24 by the Bears.

—Both teams averaged 6.5 yards per offensive play.

—Chicago dominated the first and third quarters, Denver the second and fourth.

—Elway completed 21 of 40 passes for 341 yards and three touchdowns, while McMahon hit on 21 of 34 for 311 yards and three scores.

"We didn't have much of a running game, and that makes it difficult, but John had a tremendous game," Denver Coach Dan Reeves said of his quarterback. "He got out of the pocket, scrambled around and made the big plays that we needed."

Elway also led the Broncos in rushing with 35 yards on five carries.

If there was one turning point in the evenly played contest, it probably came midway through the second quarter. The Bears, leading 14-7, were threatening to score again. Facing a third-and-goal from the Broncos' 1-yard line, McMahon handed off to the 315-pound Perry, a defensive lineman who was making his first appearance in the offensive backfield this season.

Perry was stacked up, however, and Mike Harden pried the ball loose. Cornerback Mark Haynes picked it up and returned it 24 yards, setting up Denver's tying touchdown drive.

Elway, who earlier in the quarter tossed a 22-yard touchdown pass to Vance Johnson, made it 14-14 with a 22-yarder to Mark Jackson.

Elway capped the Broncos' second-period flurry with a perfectly thrown 35-yard TD pass to rookie Ricky Nattiel.

But McMahon, who had two TD passes in the first quarter, brought Chicago back after intermission.

He hit a wide-open Willie Gault on a 26-yarder for one score. Barely two minutes later, after an interception by linebacker Ron Rivera, McMahon sneaked over from one yard out.

Both extra points were botched, however. On the first, holder Mike Tomczak appeared to have trouble getting a low snap down and Kevin Butler hooked the ball outside the left upright. On the second, Tomczak again had trouble with the snap. He tried to run, eventually pitching to a trailing Butler, but they were stopped short of the goal line.

That left Chicago in front 26-21, and an ensuing Butler field goal, from 42 yards, appeared to put the game away.

Denver got a Rich Kariis field goal early in the final quarter to cut the lead to 29-24, but Chicago began marching again, reaching the Bronco 31. That's when rookie cornerback K.C. Clark intercepted a McMahon pass and returned it 20 yards to the Denver 39. Elway passed 24 yards to Jackson to set up Steve Sewell's clinching score from four yards out with 4:58 left.

The Bronco defense then secured the victory with three sacks, the last of which sent McMahon limping to the bench. He showed no ill effects of the hit moments later, however, walking to the dressing room without assistance.

"The two missed extra points were critical," Reeves said. "The fumble at the goal line was a big play. They could have gone up 21-7 but we came up with the ball. Clark's interception, when Chicago was driving again, also was a key. And the traps at the end were big."

The Bears had rallied in the fourth quarter to win their previous three games, and Reeves feared it was about to happen again. Chicago had possession twice in the final five minutes, but didn't threaten.

"They've won so many at the end, and they had a chance to win this one," Reeves said. "The last 45 seconds seemed like forever."

It was the first loss in 26 starts for McMahon, who ironically had his first 300-yard passing day as a pro.

"If I throw for 300 yards and we lose, it doesn't mean a thing," McMahon said. "You can't do stupid things against a good team. We made some key mistakes, and they turned them both into scores."

Winning Record Not Enough For Bruce

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Earle Bruce is proud of his accomplishments as the head football coach at Ohio State. Yet the winningest record in the Big Ten over the last nine years wasn't enough to guarantee his job.

The 56-year-old Bruce, 80-26-1 since replacing the late Woody Hayes at his alma mater, was fired Monday by Ohio State President Edward H. Jennings. The dismissal, following three straight losses by a combined 10 points, prompted Athletic Director Rick Bay to resign in protest.

"I'm a Buckeye and so is most of my coaching staff," Bruce said as he left the Ohio State football practice facility Monday night. "I'm kind of proud of what I've done here. Dagoned proud."

Bruce's Buckeyes are 5-4-1 this season, the worst record for an Ohio State team since Hayes' 1966 team was 4-5. Just as the losing record wasn't indicative of Hayes' tenure, this season was an aberration in Bruce's career.

In eight previous seasons, all of which ended in bowl appearances, Ohio State had won at least nine games. The 1979 and 1984 teams won Big Ten titles and the 1981 and 1986 clubs tied for the league championship.

"I'm not allowed to have this year — one year, one bad year at Ohio State?" Bruce asked.

Bruce, working on the second year of a three-year contract that started at a salary of $87,120, had a 56-17 record in Big Ten games, a mark exceeded only by Michigan's Bo Schembechler, who is 59-15-1 over that stretch.

In an interview with The Columbus Dispatch, Jennings said pressure to dismiss Bruce came from "all over."

"In our judgement, it was time to make a change. That's all there is to it," Jennings said. "It was a personnel matter."

Bay, who announced the firing and his own resignation at an afternoon press conference, said Jennings "asked me to meet with him and informed me that he was under pressure to make a coaching change and that we had to do that."

"I think it was building and, in my own view, his detractors were just waiting for an excuse. And 9-3 (records from 1980 through 1985) wasn't a big enough excuse. It wasn't quite justifiable. But when we got to four losses ... his detractors had their excuse."

In a statement issued through Jennings' office, associate athletic director James L. Jones was named to replace Bay. Jennings said the university would fulfill the remaining financial terms of Bruce's contract.

"I'm at a loss," Bruce said. "If I was a crud, or a cheater, or a lousy coach ... I consider myself a damn good football coach."

"This is very poor timing, right before the Michigan game, the most critical on our schedule," Bruce said. "It's unfair to do it now. They can do it any time, but not before the Michigan game."

Bay said that regardless of the outcome of the Michigan game, Ohio State will not play in a bowl game, ending a string of 15 consecutive postseason appearances.

Bruce had an 11-1 season his first year at Ohio State, losing the national championship by dropping a 17-16 decision to Southern California in the Rose Bowl. He followed with six 9-3 seasons before going 10-3 last year, with a 28-12 victory over Texas A&M in the Cotton Bowl.

Ohio State was ranked No. 4 in the first Associated Press preseason poll and was the preseason choice to win the Big Ten crown. But losses to Indiana (31-10), Big Ten champion Michigan State (13-7), Wisconsin (26-24) and Iowa (29-27) ended all hopes of a third trip to the Rose Bowl.

Report Says Crum Out As UNC Coach

RALEIGH (AP) — Dick Crum's tenure as the head football coach at the University of North Carolina is expected to end after Saturday's game against Duke, a Raleigh newspaper reported today.

The News and Observer of Raleigh said two school officials, who were not identified, said Crum would be out as coach after the game in Chapel Hill.

Crum, who has four years remaining on his contract, told the newspaper Monday night he would not resign. UNC Athletic Director John Swofford refused to comment on Crum's job status.

"I really don't have any comment on that," Swofford said when asked about Crum's earlier statement that he would return next year. "We're still in the season, so there's no reason to comment."

Crum said at a Nov. 10 news conference in Chapel Hill that he would be back for the 1988 season.

The newspaper said it had been told by unnamed sources that Crum advised his coaching staff last week the team probably needed to win its remaining two games in order for the coaches to keep their jobs. The Tar Heels then lost Saturday at Virginia, 20-17.

Despite a 72-40-3 record at UNC, Crum has come under increasing criticism this season. After back-to-back losses to Clemson and Virginia, UNC is 5-5 overall and 3-3 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

From 1979 through 1983, Crum's teams compiled a 45-14-1 record. Since an 8-4 season in 1983, his teams have had a 22-20-2 record. The 1986 team finished 7-4-1, losing to Arizona in the Aloha Bowl.

Six Crum teams have gone to bowl games, compiling a 4-2 post-season record.

DICK CRUM

Schembechler Can't Figure Firing

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler can't figure out why his job isn't in jeopardy if a guy with virtually the same record is today looking for a job.

The newly unemployed coach is Earle Bruce of Ohio State, who was fired Monday as the Buckeyes began preparing for Saturday's annual grudge match against Michigan. Bruce has been under increasing fire following three consecutive defeats that dropped Ohio State's record to 5-4-1.

"If you (reporters) were on the ball, you'd be writing the same thing about me," said Schembechler, whose Wolverines are 7-3. He thought a moment about what he'd said, then laughed and added: "Now don't try to start a groundswell."

Schembechler took a poke at the Ohio State boosters who became more vocal when the Buckeyes were knocked out of the chase for the Rose Bowl.

"It's ridiculous. Earle Bruce was one of the top-notch coaches in the country," Schembechler said.

"We're dissatisfied about not going to the Rose Bowl, too, but we're not going to slit our throats, and neither should they."

"The similarities between Ohio State and Michigan are astronomical," he added. "Our records would be almost identical except Ohio State had a little bad luck the last two weeks and we had a little good luck."

Bruce leaves despite a nine-year record of 80-26-1 that is the best in the Big Ten over that stretch. Schembechler's record over that period is 78-28-1.

"God, I hope he's established himself by now," Schembechler said. "I mean, what do you have to do? I'm not here to defend Earle Bruce, but all I can say is this makes Columbus look pretty bad."

"I like Earle," Schembechler said. "I want to beat the hell out of him, but I like him."

In a prepared statement he read before his weekly news conference, Schembechler called Bruce's firing "a sad day for college football. Earle Bruce coached with honesty and integrity. His record speaks for itself. This will not detract from his reputation as an outstanding coach."

Schembechler, who was an Ohio State assistant under the late Woody Hayes before moving to Michigan in 1969, said Bruce perhaps was hurt by the constant comparisons with Hayes' great teams. The Michigan coach was asked how he thought Hayes might weather the storm that wrecked Bruce.

"He'd beat 'em down," Schembechler said. "And Earle will, too. He's tough. He's a Woody Hayes protege and he's tough. Don't underestimate him."

"There was one man who brought Columbus to its knees and that was the old man," Schembechler said of Hayes. "I was there that first year" in 1951 when Hayes' inaugural Ohio State team went 4-3-2.

At another point, Schembechler said: "Tell him (Bruce) not to worry. Tell him I'll take the athletic directorship at Michigan and hire him up here. Tell him that. That'll shut them up."

That statement came as something of a surprise, in that it was the first indication Schembechler might be interested in replacing Athletic Director Don Canham, who is retiring at the end of this school year.

Several reporters who cover Ohio State attended Schembechler's news conference, and one asked whether Bruce might have saved himself by hiring an offensive coordinator instead of handling that job himself.

Navy Must Fill Some Very Big Shoes

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a Series)

Peter Herrmann, basketball coach at the U.S. Naval Academy said he went looking for some advice this summer.

And he went to the summit to find it — the knee of John Wooden, respected as one of the top coaches of all time.

"I asked him how he coped with losing a great player," Herrmann said. "And he told me that he was more concerned with finding his top eight players for the coming year than in worrying about what is past."

For Herrmann, the job is getting over the loss of National Player of the Year David Robinson, a 7-1 giant who thrice led the Midshipmen to the Colonial Athletic Association championship. He was also named three times as the league's Player of the Year.

Robinson poured in 28.2 points a game and snatched away 11.8 rebounds, so his absence will leave a gaping hole in the Navy offense and defense.

"Sure, I'd like to have a David Robinson every year," Herrmann said. "The game will change without a big man like him. But you don't, so you have to cope with what you have."

Besides Robinson, the Midshipmen also lost two other starters, forward Carl Liebert, who averaged 9.8 points and pulled 7.8 rebounds and guard Doug Wojcik, who scored 8.9 points and took 3.4 rebounds.

That leaves two for Navy to build around, 6-4 senior guard Cliff Rees, who averaged 11.0 points, and 6-7 junior forward Derric Turner, who scored 6.9 points and had a 4.2 rebound average.

U.S. Naval Academy

- 1986-87 Record: 26-6
- CAA Record: 13-1 (First)
- Coach: Pete Herrmann (2nd year, 26-6)
- Top Losses: David Robinson (28.2, 11.8); Carl Liebert (9.8, 7.8); Doug Wojcik (8.9, 3.4)
- Top Returnees: Cliff Rees (6-4, G., 11.0); Derric Turner (6-7, F., 6.9, 4.2); Byron Hopkins (6-9, C., 2.9, 2.7)
- Top Newcomers: Erik Harris (6-1, G.), Mel Davis (6-2, G.), Eddie Reddick (6-8, F.), Darren Morningstar (6-8, F.), Joel Jensen (6-9, F.)
- Projected Finish: Fourth

Byron Hopkins, a 6-9 sophomore, is the man expected to try and fill Robinson's shoes in the middle. While he played in nearly every game last year, he saw but limited action and averaged only 2.9 points and 2.7 rebounds.

Joining Hopkins and Turner up front will be either Matt Nordmann (6-5, So.), Eddie Reddick (6-5, Fr.) or Darren Morningstar (6-8, Fr.). Nordmann averaged 1.4 points and 1.4 rebounds in limited playing time last year.

"We'll have to get improved play from the players up front, especially Bryon," Herrmann said. "(Hopkins) had a fine freshman season while competing every day in practice against the nation's player of the year." Hopkins did play enough to earn All-CAA Freshman team honors.

"We have a couple of big freshmen (in) Morningstar and Jensen (6-9), who are also going to push for starting time."

The other backcourt position is also still open with Rich Brennan, a 5-11 junior, Erik Harris, a 6-1 freshman, and Mel Davis, a 6-2 freshman, battling. One of them will take over at point guard after the likely heir, Neal Fenton, transferred to Lehigh at the end of his sophomore season.

Bobby Jones, a 6-2 junior, returns to provide backup depth for Rees at the two-guard slot, with a couple of freshmen, Joe McDowell, 6-3, and Djuan Graham, 6-4, also in the picture.

"This is a team which will develop somewhat later than our teams the past three or four years because of inexperience," Herrmann said. "The biggest plus for us in that these people feel that winning is very important because we have won three straight championships and they want to keep it going. We have a good group of freshmen who we feel can keep up the solid tradition here for the next four years."

Dillahunt To Play In Blue-Gray Game

East Carolina free safety Ellis Dillahunt has been chosen to play in the Blue-Gray All Star Classic in Birmingham, Ala., on Christmas Day, official say.

Dillahunt, a 5-11, 192-pound senior from Jacksonville, N.C., has been a three-year starter for the Pirates in the defensive secondary at both safety and cornerback. He had a team-leading five interceptions this season and was the third leading tackler on the squad.

The nationally televised Blue-Gray game annually pits the top collegiate seniors not involved in late bowl games in a showcase contest for professional scouts.

Sheppard Named To Shrine Bowl Team

From Staff and Wire Reports

CHARLOTTE — North Pitt's Ashley Sheppard was the only area player selected to the North Carolina Shrine Bowl team to be played Dec. 12 in Charlotte.

Sheppard, a 6-4, 215-pound end and linebacker, is the first Pitt County player to be selected for the squad since Dennis Tripp of Farmville in 1985.

The only other Eastern player selected was Walter Jones, 6-0, 175-pound back from Roanoke Rapids.

Also chosen to the East squad are highly recruited prospects such as 6-5 270-pound end Chester McGlockton of Whiteville and Jason Ormsby, a 6-0, 235-pound guard from Fayetteville Seventy First.

These rosters are not set since a number of the players may not play since the Shrine Bowl is set for the day after the state championships in each of the four North Carolina football classifications.

Rose Places Five On Big East Team

Rose, the regular season Big East soccer champions, placed five players on the all-conference soccer team, including two repeat selections from last year.

Rampants named to the squad include goalkeeper Brian Wille, who had nine shutouts and allowed only nine goals the whole year, and Dallas McPherson, who had four goals and three assists in 1987. Both are repeats from last year's all-conference squad.

Rose also placed Mike Kasperek, Bobby Weisenberger and Lloyd May on the team. Kasperek had four goals and four assists, Weisenberger led Rose in scoring with 10 goals and four assists while May had five goals and eight assists.

For the third year in a row, Rose led the Big East schools with the largest number of selections. Northeastern, which finished second to Rose in the standings, was next with four choices. Wilson Hunt, Northern Nash, Rocky Mount and Wilson Fike both had three selections while Kinston had two and Winton Beddingfield one.

Rose, 12-2 in the Big East this year, lost to Wilmington Hoggard, 2-1, in the first round of the state playoffs.

Trinity Romps To Win In Opener

Mike Harrell scored 17 points and had 13 rebounds as Trinity rolled over Ruth's Chapel, 70-28, in a high school basketball game Monday night.

Ruth's Chapel jumped out to a 4-0 lead but Trinity outscored them 22-2 from there to take a 22-6 first quarter lead.

Trinity then went on a 18-0 second quarter tear to lead 40-6 at the half.

Kirk Welch added 12 points while Robbie Chambers led Ruth's Chapel with 12 points. Kreston Welch, who was not expected to play due to injury, played only the first half and had eight points and five steals.

The win left Trinity at 1-0 while Ruth's Chapel fell to 0-1. Trinity returns to action Friday in the Bethel Tipoff Tournament in Kinston Friday.

In the JV game, Trinity slipped past Ruth's Chapel, 33-30.

Dansey Gains High Ski Ranking

Trey E. Dansey of Greenville has been ranked as the number 10 skier in North Carolina in the 13-15 age group by the Coca-Cola Junior NASTAR program.

The program ranks the top 10 boys and girls in six age categories in 43 states. Racers are ranked according to their single best NASTAR handicap earned last season. Dansey earned his best, a 23, while racing at Aspen Highlands, Col.

Last year, more than 100,000 youths participated in the program at 150 ski areas nationwide. Those ranked receive a certificate of accomplishment, a patch, and are listed on the NASTAR State Rankings poster.

Chowan Rolls Over PCC, 115-54

Gary Mattison hit five three-point shots and scored 21 points to lead Chowan Junior College to a 115-54 romp over Pitt Community College Monday night in Region X basketball action.

Chowan led 62-20 at the half and never looked back. Joining Mattison in double figures were Johnny McNeil with 14, Gus Ward with 13, including three three pointers, John McNeil with 13 and Sean Andrews with 11. Charles Higby also had 10 points for Chowan.

Pitt was led by Eric Dunn and Rickey Congleton with 18 points apiece.

Pitt falls to 0-2 and returns to action Friday in the Brevard Tipoff Classic against Montreat-Anderson.

"We didn't do anything right," said Pitt coach Charles Coburn. "It was the bad news bears of basketball. Hopefully we'll rebound this weekend."

Vikings To Hold Wrestling Scrimmage

D.H. Conley will hold a wrestling scrimmage with Goldsboro High School at the gym at 6 p.m., coach Milt Sherman announced.

The match is free to the public. Conley, 11-8 last year, opens the season Nov. 28 at the Dixon Invitational Wrestling Tournament.

Big Game Redeems Montgomery, Pack

RALEIGH (AP) — Junior replacement quarterback Shane Montgomery redeemed himself during North Carolina State's victory over Duke, Wolfpack football coach Dick Sheridan said Monday.

Montgomery set single-game records during Saturday's 47-45 victory with 468 yards passing and 431 offensive yards as the Wolfpack scored 30 points in the last half.

"(Montgomery) showed a great deal of courage to come back from so many disappointments. Not only to play such an important role, but also to handle himself so well," Sheridan said at a news conference. "I am very proud of him."

Montgomery, who had played sparingly in N.C. State's last six games, was the team's top quarterback when the season began. But after losses to East Carolina, Pittsburgh and Wake Forest, freshman Preston Poag took over starting duties.

Sheridan said Poag probably would not start in Saturday's contest with the Virginia Cavaliers, who beat the Wolfpack 20-16 last year.

"That loss cost us the conference championship," Sheridan said. "We still look back on that game. Last year there were only three low points, Georgia Tech, Virginia and the Peach Bowl. The worst of those was Virginia."

UNCW Loses To Czechoslovakia

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Czechoslovakia's national team placed five men in double figures Monday to erase a seven-point halftime deficit and hand North Carolina Wilmington a 72-69 loss in exhibition basketball.

The Nationals trailed the Seahawks 41-34 at the half but relied on the inside play of forward Oto Maticky to overcome the host team. Maticky scored 16 points to lead the European club, adding 12 rebounds.

Nebraska Moves To Top Spot

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

Five days before their annual shootout, Nebraska replaced season-long leader Oklahoma as the No. 1 team in The Associated Press college football poll.

The Cornhuskers were idle last weekend — their game with Colorado was switched to Nov. 28 for television — but jumped over the arch-rival, injury-riddled Sooners, who struggled offensively for the third time in the last four games.

Nebraska, 9-0, received 32 of 60 first-place votes and 1,164 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. Oklahoma, which improved its record to 10-0 by holding off Missouri 17-13, received 20 first-place votes and 1,128 points.

The remaining eight first-place votes went to Miami of Florida, which is No. 3 for the eighth week in a row. The Hurricanes, 8-0, defeated Virginia Tech 27-13 and received 1,101 points.

Neither Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne nor Oklahoma's Barry Switzer was overly concerned by the switch, which spoiled Oklahoma's bid to become the first team ever to be ranked No. 1 from the preseason through the postbowl poll.

"It doesn't really matter much one way or the other," Osborne said. "Nebraska and Oklahoma are going to play, and it will be settled on Saturday."

"My feeling is that we're probably as deserving as anybody. We're really playing well and we played some good teams early — UCLA, Arizona State, South Carolina, Oklahoma State. But until we play (Oklahoma), it's kind of a moot point."

Switzer said he "didn't expect to be (No. 1) after the way we played. I wouldn't vote for us, either, the way we've been playing the last couple of weeks. We're not scoring with the opportunities we have."

However, Switzer sent a warning Nebraska's way.

"We played them up there (Lincoln) in 1984 when they were No. 1 and we beat them (17-7)," he said. Oklahoma was No. 6 going into that game.

Behind Miami, the 4-5-6-7 teams also remained the same. Fourth-ranked Florida State, 9-1, trounced Division I-AA Furman 41-10 and received 1,025 points; No. 5 UCLA, 9-1, swamped Washington 47-14 and earned 958 points; sixth-ranked Syracuse, 10-0, beat Boston College 45-17 for 894 points and No. 7 Notre Dame pounded No. 11 Alabama 37-6 and received 834 points.

However, No. 8 Georgia lost to No. 12 Auburn 27-11 and slipped out of the Top Ten. Clemson jumped from ninth place to eighth with 834 points by defeating Maryland 45-16, LSU beat Mississippi State 34-14 and rose from 10th to ninth with 697 points and Auburn moved up from 12th to 10th with 689 points.

The Second Ten consists of Michigan State, South Carolina, Oklahoma State, Georgia, Tennessee, Texas A&M, Alabama, Iowa, Pitt and Indiana.

Last week, it was Alabama, Auburn, Michigan State, South Carolina, Penn State, Indiana, Oklahoma State, Tennessee, Texas A&M and Arkansas.

Defending national champion Penn State suffered its third setback, losing to Pitt 10-0, and dropped out of the Top Twenty for the first time since the final 1984 poll. Arkansas' 14-0 loss to Texas A&M cost the Razorbacks a place in the rankings, although they dropped out twice earlier this season.

Meanwhile, Iowa beat Ohio State 29-27 and made the Top Twenty for the first time in seven weeks and Pitt moved back into the rankings after an eight-week absence.

The Top Twenty teams in the Associated Press college football poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, record through games of Nov. 14, total points based on 20-19-18-17-16-15-14-13-12-11-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 and last week's ranking:

Meyer, Dickerson Boost Colts

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ron Meyer is no miracle worker, and never claimed to be one. Eric Dickerson is no savior, and he never claimed to be one either.

Yet since Meyer became coach late last season, the Indianapolis Colts have won eight of 12 games, including six of seven against AFC East Division opponents and five of six on the road.

And with the acquisition of All-Pro running back Dickerson from the Los Angeles Rams three weeks ago, the Colts' are being taken seriously around the NFL for the first time in a decade.

"It was a major step forward," Meyer said of Sunday's 41-20 victory over Miami that ended a streak of 14 consecutive losses to the Dolphins and kept the Colts tied for first place in the AFC East. "I think the franchise is now the way we envisioned it."

Even before Sunday's game, Meyer said the real test of whether the Colts' had finally reversed their losing program would be if they could beat Miami.

With Dickerson rushing for 154 yards and his first touchdown with Indianapolis, and Albert Bentley, demoted to a backup role behind Dickerson, rushing for 83 yards and two touchdowns, the Colts seem to have passed the test.

"Until now, people weren't real sure of us," said safety Nesby Glasgow, one of only three players still with the Colts from the last victory over Miami in 1980. "They kept saying, 'Oh, maybe the other teams are having off days when they play the Colts.'"

"But when you talk about a barometer to gauge us, it was beating Miami. The big monkey is off our back. I think people will notice," said Glasgow, who recovered a Miami fumble at the Indianapolis 1-yard line early in the second half and turned the momentum to the Colts.

The victory lifted Indianapolis to 5-4, tied with the New York Jets for the AFC East lead. The Colts already have beaten the Jets twice and play Sunday at New England, which lost its first game against the Colts four weeks ago at Indianapolis.

The turnaround is all the more remarkable because of the Colts' 0-13 start last year, when a ground game that was among the league leaders a year earlier disappeared and injuries sidelined quarterback Gary Hogeboom and linebacker Barry Krauss almost the entire season.

Coach Rod Dowhower was fired after the 13th loss, and one of the first things Meyer did was to activate Hogeboom. With virtually the same supporting cast of players, Hogeboom led the Colts to victories over Atlanta, Buffalo and the Los Angeles Raiders.

Running back Randy McMillan suffered a broken leg in an off-season automobile accident, and the Colts lost their first two games — both at home — to Cincinnati and Miami.

Then came the players' strike. Hogeboom passed for five touchdowns in a romp over Buffalo but suffered a cracked rib in a victory over the Jets and again yielded his starting spot to Jack Trudeau, who led the Colts to victories in two of the next four games. Hogeboom returned Sunday and, after a shaky start, hit 22 of 39 passes for 218 yards and one touchdown.

Dickerson, meanwhile, got his second straight 100-yard plus rushing game, and the run-pass balance that Meyer was looking for produced 457 net yards to only 286 for the Dolphins.

"They're an excellent team," Miami Coach Don Shula said, "and Dickerson makes them that much tougher. Also, Bentley showed you what kind of player he is."

Meyer has insisted there have been no major changes in the Colts' game plan. He has said the success stems from more aggressive play and the additional experience of the team's younger players, notably Trudeau, Bentley and receiver Bill Brooks on offense and Duane Bickett and Jon Hand on defense.

But a precarious lead of one game over three other divisional opponents doesn't mean the Colts are headed for their first winning season and first playoff appearance since 1977.

"Everything is week to week in the NFL," Meyer said.

Lakers Off To Record 6-0 Start

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Magic Man is up to his usual tricks and so are the Los Angeles Lakers.

With Magic Johnson leading the way, defending NBA champion Los Angeles has started this season with a bang, opening with a club-record six consecutive victories.

"We would be crazy if we weren't delighted with our start," Lakers General Manager Jerry West said. "But I think we can play even better."

He should tell that to the San Antonio Spurs. The Lakers made the Spurs their sixth victim, rolling to a 147-130 victory Sunday night at the Forum.

While the Lakers were jumping off to their best start ever, spanning 12 seasons in Minnesota and 27 in Southern California, Johnson was surpassing West as the club's all-time assist leader.

Johnson, in his ninth NBA season, handed out 10 assists against San Antonio, increasing his career total to 6,245, seven more than West had in 14 seasons with the team.

"I feel good about it, particularly because Jerry West is a Hall of Famer as well as a hero in Los Angeles," Johnson said.

West, meanwhile, laughed when asked if he minded having his assist total erased from the Lakers' record book.

"I feel badly about it, I do," he said with a chuckle. "I was red-eyed when they announced he'd broken it."

Johnson, meanwhile, has continued to be Mr. Versatile for the Lakers. In their six victories, he has averaged more than 20 points, 11 assists and five rebounds per game. Against the Spurs, he had a game-high 25 points.

"At first, I used to look to dish out assists," Johnson said of his early years with the Lakers. "Then last year, Coach (Pat) Riley finally turned me loose, told me to shoot."

"Now I'm between all that. Whatever I need to do, whatever they want me to do, I'll do."

Just like last season, when he was chosen the league's most valuable player.

Most of the Lakers seemed to be relatively unimpressed with their club record-setting start, which bettered the five straight opening wins by the 1980-81 team.

"It's a positive way to start the season," 40-year-old center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said. "It's still too early to claim that we're the best Laker team ever, but it's a good confidence-builder."

"We have to prepare for the tougher teams coming up," forward James Worthy said. "It's nice to start this way, but we still have to finish a long season."

San Antonio Coach Bob Weiss lavished superlatives on the Lakers.

"The Lakers have been together as a group so long, and they have a great bench," he said. "They are deeper and probably smarter as a team even than last season. They're something else."

"We were able to stay with them for a while (Sunday night), but they seem to play flawless basketball. If you stumble a little, they'll take it to you."

"They're a fine team from top to bottom," Spurs forward David Greenwood said.

There was no Triple Crown winner in racing for 25 years, from 1948 to 1973. Secretariat ended the drought in 1973.

Seminoles Still In Top DR Spot

Florida State holds to the top spot in the Daily Reflector Computer Performance Rankings after last weekend's round of games.

The Seminoles, 9-1, have amassed 2,658 points, but lead fast-climbing Notre Dame by only 46 points after the Irish bowled over Alabama on Saturday.

The Irish, too, hold somewhat of an advantage over the Seminoles, in that they still have one more game left than does Florida State. Notre Dame is currently 8-1. The Irish have 2,612 points.

The Reflector Rankings are based on a team's success against its strength of schedule. Points are awarded for each game a team wins. Additional points are awarded each time someone it beats also wins a game, and that team's victims add more points when they win — an examination of the schedule to the third level of competition.

Notre Dame vaulted from sixth to second this week, while Syracuse, 10-0, moves from fifth to third with 2,432 points. Miami of Florida, 8-0, drops from second to fourth with 2,320 — but could have an advantage on the whole field since it has at least three games remaining.

Rounding out the top five is Nebraska, which falls from third to fifth after an open date. The Cornhuskers, 9-0, have 2,252 points and play #14 Oklahoma this weekend.

The biggest climb of the week was recorded by Pittsburgh, which beat Penn State on Saturday. The Panthers moved from 15th to seventh. The biggest loss, meanwhile, was by the Nittany Lions, who tumbled from a tie for 10th to 17th place.

Three newcomers join the list this week, Texas A&M, Brigham Young and Southern California, which occupy the bottom three spots, respectively.

The top 20, along with East Carolina, its opponents and the Atlantic Coast Conference teams, follows:

1. Florida State (9-1).....	2,658
2. Notre Dame (8-1).....	2,612
3. Syracuse (10-0).....	2,432
4. Miami, Fla. (8-0).....	2,320

Klecko Defies Any Type Of Category

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — The last thing you should do to Joe Klecko is categorize him. Particularly when he's injured.

Klecko has made an amazing recovery from reconstructive knee surgery. He returned to the New York Jets lineup on Sunday and sparked a revitalized pass rush — five sacks — in a 16-9 NFL victory over Kansas City.

Klecko's left knee was torn up in Game 15 last season against Pittsburgh, and such an injury often requires more than a year of rehabilitation and sometimes as much as two years. Klecko was back in 11 months.

"People are skeptical as a whole," he said of predictions that he might never return. "They tend to categorize people, especially when you're hurt. Some people are not the average guy and can't be categorized. I'm a different person when it comes to dealing with an injury like that."

"I thought I could have played in September, but the doctors were holding me back. They made me promise I'd listen to their advice. I'm not a person who listens and sometimes it's to my disadvantage."

Last year, after spraining the knee in the 10th game, he hurried back and did far greater damage.

"Coming back too soon has never paid off for me," he said. "I'm hard-headed, there's no doubt about it. I sat down and talked to the experts and they made me promise I wouldn't play before November."

Hardly anyone really expected Klecko to be back this season. His age, 34, was cited, as was the fact he had undergone similar rehabilitation on the other knee in 1982.

"I don't think age has anything to do with it," said center Joe Fields, one of Klecko's closest friends and a veteran of 11 seasons butting helmets with the Jets' nose tackle on the practice field. "It's what kind of heart and head you've got."

"I think the biggest thing about Joe is his determination. Going back to '82, when he blew out the other knee, he was determined not to let it stop him. This knee was worse and made him even more determined."

Klecko was one of three Jets to undergo the reconstruction surgery in the past year. Tackle Reggie McElroy has been back for two games and linebacker Lance Mehl is expected to return later this month.

The Jets had figured Klecko would be the last of the three to be activated.

"Hell, yeah, I was real worried," Klecko said when asked if he feared never playing again. "But I think in the summertime, when I started working hard on it, that ended."

"The toughest part was the first couple of months after the surgery. They took Reggie out of the cast in two weeks and made me stay in it for seven. That's when I knew I had a lot more damage."

Upsetting Night

Age Is Showing As Evert Loses Match

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert's No. 1 nemesis these days isn't Martina Navratilova or Steffi Graf. It's age.

That was obvious Monday night when the 32-year-old Evert was upset by Sylvia Hanika of West Germany in the first round of the Virginia Slims Championships at Madison Square Garden.

"I have had four or five matches this year when I played below my standards, and that hasn't happened before," she said after losing 6-4, 6-4. "I just have to think that nature is taking its course."

Evert had never lost a set to Hanika in tournament competition, a streak covering 14 matches dating back to 1978. Hanika's only previous victory over Evert occurred in a 1983 exhibition in Australia.

"I thought I was going to win tonight, but when I saw how I was playing, I didn't have a lot of confidence," Evert said.

The loss ended a disappointing season for Evert, who was seeded third in the $1-million tournament that features the top 16 singles players and top eight doubles teams in the world.

Although she won five tournaments in 1987, Evert failed to win a Grand Slam title for the first time since 1973 and had her 16-year streak of reaching the U.S. Open semifinals stopped by Lori McNeil.

It also was a rocky year off the court for Evert, whose divorce from tennis player John Lloyd became official in April.

"I have been happy lately, but earlier this year, I went through tough times," she said. "Getting a divorce is not a pleasant thing, and I'm not that unemotional that I don't take it onto the court with me."

Evert, who has won 153 titles in her career, said her plans for next year are uncertain. But she seemed to be leaning toward a limited playing schedule.

"I've been on the road since I was 16," she said. "I think it's really hitting me more than ever that I don't want to be a gypsy. I want to do things like a normal girl."

Hanika, who is ranked 14th in the world, stopped playing tennis for several months last year after plummeting to 110th in the rankings. "I had mental and physical problems," she said. "I was a little bit tired of playing tournaments all the time, and I also had a virus."

Hanika, a stocky 27-year-old left-hander, broke Evert's serve four times and had 10 other break-point opportunities.

Evert, who is known for her pinpoint accuracy, double-faulted eight times and made 15 unforced errors.

"I kept trying to put pressure on her," Hanika said. "She didn't play well, but I didn't let her play well. I was slicing, putting topspin on my returns and coming into the net. She just couldn't get her rhythm."

In another opening-round match, sixth-seeded Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina beat unseeded Bettina Bunge of West Germany 6-2, 7-6.

Trailing 5-3 in the second set, Sabatini rallied to take a 6-5 lead. Bunge overcame two match points to even the set at 6-6, but lost the tiebreaker 7-2 after falling behind 4-0.

"When I started the tiebreaker, I was thinking, 'Let's finish it here,'" Sabatini said. "I knew if I didn't concentrate, there would be a third set."

Bunge said her 17-year-old opponent has improved since she began working with coach Angel Gimenez, a former player on the men's circuit.

"She's fitter and quicker," Bunge said. "Even if you hit a good approach into the corner, she always gets to it."

In tonight's singles matches, eighth-seeded Manuela Maleeva meets Claudia Kohde-Kilsch, No. 2 Navratilova plays Catarina Lindqvist and No. 5 Hana Mandlikova plays Raffaella Reggi.

Top-seeded Graf plays Zina Garrison in a first-round match Wednesday night.

After Long Wait, White Is Back

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Charles White is back on top, eight years after winning the Heisman Trophy as college football's top player, two years after being released by the Cleveland Browns, and less than three months after a relapse into cocaine use threatened to send him to jail.

White, versatile, durable but unspectacular in his first seven years in the NFL, found his way back to the winner's circle Sunday, when he gained 213 yards on 34 carries for the Los Angeles Rams in a 27-24 victory at St. Louis.

The game also marked the return of power football by Rams' regulars, who hadn't won since last Dec. 6.

Including the 339 yards he gained while playing for the Rams' replacement team during the three-game players' strike, White leads NFL rushers with 703 yards in nine games.

The total is more than double his previous season-best of 342 yards when he played at Cleveland. His 213 yards Sunday were only two short of the Rams' regular-season record set by Eric Dickerson, the All-Pro and league single-season record holder who was traded by Los Angeles to Indianapolis after a contract dispute last month.

Rams Coach John Robinson, who coached White at Southern California, said of the power, speed and endurance show by White Sunday: "It's not the first time in his career he's done those things. It was a great performance by Charlie White. But it was also a great performance by our whole team."

Don't expect White to say he knew he could do it or make any claims of greatness. The only thing he said after Sunday's game was: "I ain't saying nothing to nobody."

White's reticence to talk began following his August drug arrest, and his decision to join the replacement team while most of the regulars manned the picket lines.

But none of the Rams' regulars held it against White, and they were among his cheerleaders after his smashing performance Sunday.

"If you were a coach, you would want 45 Charlie Whites on your team," offensive lineman and captain Dennis Harrah said. "If you were in the service, you'd want 45 men in a foxhole with you like Charlie White, because he'll give you everything. Nobody works harder than Charlie."

The Rams planned on running the ball at St. Louis, and on White's second carry he went 47 yards for a touchdown on a play called 47 gap, one of the plays Dickerson used regularly to pile up his NFL-best rushing totals three of the past four seasons.

Then, with the score tied 24-24 in the final period in the rain at St. Louis, the Rams used up more than 11 minutes in a 91-yard drive — 69 of the yards on 12 runs by White, to set up the winning field goal by Mike Lansford.

"I can't remember when I've ever seen more smiling faces in the huddle," quarterback Jim Everett said of the confidence inspired by White. "Charlie wanted to have it (the ball). I said, 'Let's run it.'"

Everett was asked if he thinks White can replace Dickerson in the Los Angeles offense, largely absent in this 2-7 season, one in which the Rams were expected to be a serious Super Bowl contender.

"I think Charles is filling his own shoes," Everett said. "With or without Eric, we have to play and Charles White did a heckuva job"

White, however, almost didn't make it back. After a practice Aug. 20, he went out with a friend. Police in Rrea, about two miles from the practice field, were called and found White waving a trash can lid in a field.

"We were just partying. Then I started to get this claustrophobia or paranoid feeling," White said recently in his only interview concerning the arrest.

Saints' Fans Going Crazy

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It's the best start ever for the usually inept New Orleans Saints, and victory-starved fans are prematurely packing bags for the Super Bowl, rather than wearing bags over their heads.

"We're going all the way!" shouted one of about 700 fans who waited well past midnight for the weather-delayed arrival of the Saints charter from San Francisco. The rest of the crowd cheered an endorsement of the optimistic prediction.

"Who Dat?," which faded into deserved oblivion in 1983, is reborn on New Orleans radio stations. Recorded in '83, the record features a group of New Orleans Saints chanting, "Who dat? Who dat? Who dat say dey gonna beat dem Saints?" Interwoven with the lyrics are the strains of "When The Saints Go Marching In."

The Saints won their sixth game at San Francisco on Sunday, something to cheer about only in the perspective of a long list of dreary seasons.

Only five times in 21 years has New Orleans won six or more games in a season, let alone in nine games. They got the sixth victory in the 10th game of 1983 and finished 8-8, tying the team record for victories set in 1979, when the Saints got No. 6 in the 12th game.

High hopes for 1980 turned into dark humor as the Saints went 1-15. Fans started wearing bags over their heads to avoid the embarrassment of being identified as someone who would back such an inept team.

Fans had to wait until the 11th game to get victory No. 6 last year, the first under General Manager Jim Finks and Coach Jim Mora. The town was alive with playoff talk last year, too, but the Saints finished 7-9.

The only other times the Saints won six or more in a season were in 1978 and 1984, and they finished 7-9 both times.

The victory over San Francisco tied the team record of three consecutive wins, and they were all on the road, something the team has never before done. Counting the final game of the strike, the Saints have won four straight on the road, and that's another first.

Finks and Mora are consistent in trying to keep the team from getting carried away by the fans' enthusiasm.

"There's a lot of euphoria," Finks told a packed meeting of the New Orleans Quarterback Club on Monday. "There was on our plane last night, and there's a lot around town."

"My advice is to wait until after we've played all 15 games, and then we'll count them up, and they'll tell us if we have to play any extra games."

He said he didn't begrudge the players one night of savoring the victory, but would be concerned if they didn't quickly get serious about the New York Giants on Sunday.

Mayor Sidney Barthelemy took time out from a news conference Monday to say he believes the Saints are headed to the playoffs. "I'm very fond of our mayor. He doesn't lie," Finks said.

"We have to keep our heads screwed on, not get carried away by a little success," Mora said. "That's very important."

Henderson Is Cut As Knicks Go To Youth

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks signed rookie guard Tony White Monday and released veteran Gerald Henderson in a continued revamping of the club.

The Chicago Bulls selected the 6-foot-1 White in the second round (33rd pick overall) of the NBA draft last June. He was placed on waivers by the Bulls last Friday.

White was the second all-time scorer at Tennessee behind Ernie Grunfeld, and averaged 24.5 points per game last season.

Henderson, 31, was acquired by the Knicks last season from Seattle in exchange of No. 1 draft picks, with the SuperSonics ending up with the higher pick.

Henderson, a guard, started his pro career in 1979 with the Boston Celtics and entered the season with a 10.2 average.

"I'm excited to be in New York," White said. "It made me feel good to be up there with Ernie Grunfeld, Bernard King and Dale Ellis (at Tennessee)."

Last week, the Knicks traded veteran guard Rory Sparrow to the Chicago Bulls and signed second-year guard Johnny Newman.

The Knicks started the season 0-5 before winning their first game against Milwaukee last Saturday.

The Knicks' playmaker this season has been rookie guard Mark Jackson and General Manager Al Bianchi said White was acquired to add some scoring punch in the backcourt.

"We don't consider Mark Jackson a rookie anymore," Bianchi said.

South Hoping For A Big Return

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.

College basketball's big party was in New Orleans last season, but the South was conspicuous by its absence. There are signs that in 1988, the old guard might be back.

The perennial favorites from the Atlantic Coast and Southeastern conferences have their usual reservoirs of good talent, and other leagues will have some surprises. But the ACC and the SEC are clear on one point — they will have to battle a set of contenders who will be equally as formidable.

In the ACC, North Carolina was picked as tops in the preseason and among those who should be in the top 20. But Coach Dean Smith points out that his Tar Heels are missing three starters and a key reserve from the 32-4 team that lost to Syracuse in the East Regional finals — the team many expected would return to the Louisiana Superdome and take another title.

"Generally, with an inexperienced team, I worry about defense, I worry about rebounding, fundamentals," Smith said. "It just takes time to build those things, much like the offensive linemen in football. It takes them a little longer."

The anchors of Smith's team for 1988 are Jeff Lebo, who inherits the point guard position vacated by Kenny Smith, and J.R. Reid, the 6-foot-9 sophomore who stormed through the league last year as a threat at both ends of the court.

"Last year's team had just unbelievable chemistry. They played well together," Smith said. "This year, we're not there yet."

"As far as the league is concerned, a lot of close games, a lot of interest," Smith said. "Duke will be very strong, North Carolina State will be very strong ... Maryland could be very good."

Duke was within four points of being the preseason pick to win the ACC title, and the Blue Devils have the personnel to make up that ground. Coach Mike Krzyzewski lost point guard Tommy Amaker from last year's team, losers to eventual national champion Indiana. Danny Ferry, the versatile 6-11 performer is back, so is surprising front-liner John Smith, flamboyant forward Billy King and potential scoring leader Kevin Strickland.

Georgia Tech has strength in the front court with Duane Ferrell and Tom Hammonds, and an experienced backcourt with Brian Oliver and Craig Neal. But Coach Bobby Cremins lost his center, Antoine Ford, to Virginia Commonwealth and that could hold the Yellow Jackets back.

Maryland could be the biggest surprise of the season. Derrick Lewis has received medical clearance to play after combating high blood pressure and hypertension. The Terrapins, toughened by last year's adversity connected with the death of Len Bias, also have two young centers who can take some pressure off Lewis, the leader in scoring and rebounding.

N.C. State may have settled its backcourt woes with Vinny Del Negro and Quentin Jackson, and 6-8 Charles Brown may have replaced 6-10 Charles Shackelford in the pivot.

Up in Kentucky, the inside game will be at full throttle with the return of 6-7 Winnett Bennett, who sat out last season with a knee injury. Ed Davener and freshman star Rex Chapman will run the backcourt, and LeRon Ellis and Rob Lock will take their 6-11 bodies into the middle.

If Coach Eddie Sutton avoids the injuries which probably kept his team out of the Final Four, he can take the Wildcats back to the prominence their fans live for. But Sutton also hears footsteps.

"Many people feel like the conference race could be the closest we've seen in years. I'm not sure who I would pick as a favorite," Sutton said. "How good we can be? I don't know."

If Sutton hasn't made up his mind yet, he can start with Florida. The Gators had a brief run through the NCAA tournament, but it was a sign of things to come. Despite the loss of Andrew Moten, Coach Norm Sloan still has 6-4 senior guard Vernon Maxwell and 7-3 sophomore center Dwayne Schintzius.

Sutton also should consider Georgia. Willie Anderson made a major impact as a 6-7 guard, and he will get assistance from 6-5 Toney Mack, a scorer who sat out much of the 1987 season because of academic problems.

And always lurking in the SEC shadows is Louisiana State. Despite failing to win the title, the Tigers went to the Final Four in Dallas in 1986 and battled Indiana down to the wire in the Midwest Regional before losing last year.

Louisville and Memphis State are usually the teams to overcome in the Metro Conference, and while that may again be the story in 1988, there is a strong challenge from Southern Mississippi.

The Golden Eagles lost one letterman from the National Invitation Tournament champions. Among the starters coming back is Randolph Keys, the 6-8 forward who was fifth in the league in scoring and who averaged 20 points per game in the NIT title march.

Memphis State comes off its one-year probation and league championship missing a key ingredient from that team. Vincent Askew forfeited his eligibility and some experts think the Tigers might have been a No. 1 pick to defend its title had he returned.

Louisville didn't even get to defend its national championship in 1987, partly because of its 18-14 record and because there was no stability in the backcourt. Coach Denny Crum's frontcourt is sound with Pervis Ellison and Herbert Crook. LaBradford Smith, a freshman guard, might be the last ingredient to get the Cardinals back into the NCAA field.

"It looks like we're going to have a little more versatility than we did last year," Crum says. "Our offense is way ahead of the defense at this point."

"I think we can be a good defense team, but it's going to take a lot of hard work and time," he adds.

With the maturity of 7-1 Alan Ogg, Alabama-Birmingham could be hard to stop in the Sun Belt Conference. A strong challenge will come from North Carolina-Charlotte, which Jeff Mullins has molded into a good team with the aid of six returning starters.

Richmond is the only team that can boast of significant returning experience in the Colonial Athletic Association, which for three years was the domain of Navy's David Robinson. The Spiders also were the only CAA team to beat the Midshipmen last year, and they did it in Annapolis.

The Ohio Valley Conference preseason poll picked Middle Tennessee State as champions, and the Blue Raiders have three starters back from the NCAA team that lost a first-round game to Notre Dame. But Austin Peay has three starters who are eligible to play in 1988 and they could improve on last year's fourth-place finish.

Marshall has three of the last four Southern Conference championships and with three returning starters, could improve that mark to four of five. Four starters come back to North Carolina A&T, trying to come out of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference for its seventh NCAA tournament appearance.

Campbell and Radford each have significant experience to make a run at the Big South title. Southern has the confidence of winning last year's Southwestern Athletic Conference title to build on for this year.

New Orleans, the surprise of the college basketball season in 1987, has moved from independent to the new American South Conference, which they should capture with the help of Ledell Eackles, who averaged 22.6 points and four rebounds per game.

Female Coach Boosted Foley

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Southern's record-breaking kicker, Tim Foley, credits much of his success to his high school coach, who happens to be a woman.

"People can't believe it when I tell them. It gets a laugh every time I tell someone," Foley said, recalling his days at Ocala, Fla., High School under the guidance of kicking coach Diane Dodge.

"I had been kicking extra points since I was a kid in the pee-wee leagues. But when I got to high school, she got me and taught me everything," Foley said Monday during a telephone interview from Southern's Statesboro, Ga., campus. "She taught me balance, how to bring my leg through, all the mechanics of kicking."

At Georgia Southern, Foley met kicking coach Pat Spurgeon, who "worked a lot of hours with me and got me even smoother."

The lessons have paid off in a big way for the 5-foot-10, 225-pound Foley, a fifth-year senior. He has kicked 63 field goals in 78 attempts during his career, including 10 of 13 from 50 yards and out. He also had a string of 92 consecutive successful extra-point kicks.

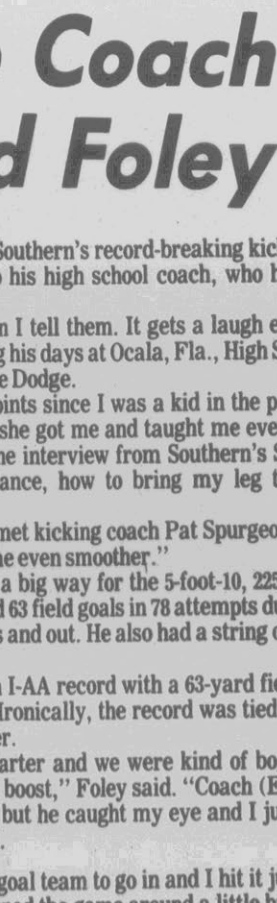

On Nov. 17, he set a Division I-AA record with a 63-yard field goal in a 26-7 victory over James Madison. Ironically, the record was tied later in the day by Arkansas State's Scott Roper.

"It was late in the third quarter and we were kind of bogging down and leading only 10-7. We needed a boost," Foley said. "Coach (Erk Russell) was going to put in the punt team, but he caught my eye and I just nodded that I was ready to kick the field goal."

"So he hollered for the field goal team to go in and I hit it just as sweet as I could. I think it might have turned the game around a little bit." "He's one of the better placekickers I've ever been around," said Russell, who was an assistant at Georgia in the 1970s when Allan Leavitt and Rex Robinson kicked for the Bulldogs. "I believe he has a stronger leg than any of those people."

Foley has kicked 14 of 19 field goals this season for Georgia Southern, the two-time defending Division I-AA champions who are 7-3 this year and hoping for another trip to the playoffs.

Foley said NFL scouts have been hanging around since he made the I-AA All-America team in 1985. One, Jim Valeck of the New York Giants, witnessed the 63-yarder.

Iran Says Iraqi Planes Hit Unfinished Nuclear Plant

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraqi said its warplanes bombed a petrochemical complex in southern Iran today and Iran said a nearby unfinished nuclear power was also raided and several employees were killed.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Cyprus, said the nuclear facility sustained "some damage" and that several employees at the plant in Bushehr were killed and others wounded. It gave no other details.

The 1,200-megawatt plant has been under construction for several years. The project was mothballed after the 1979 Islamic Revolution.

Hans Meyer, spokesman for the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna, told The Associated Press in a recent interview that the Iranians last year said they had moved "fissionable material" into the plant.

The plant, 37 miles inland from Bushehr port, had been bombed four times between March 1984 and July 1986.

The official Iraqi News Agency, also monitored in Cyprus, reported earlier that warplanes struck the "highly important" petrochemical complex at the Bushehr harbor.

The news agency quoted an unidentified military spokesman as saying a large number of planes were involved in the air raid, "during which dozens of heavy bombs were dropped on the complex, reducing the facility to rubble."

The report also mentioned that ground forces along the 733-mile war front "were on alert."

Defense officials in Baghdad have said the Iraqi forces have been on maximum alert along the war front since Thursday because of reports Iran was planning to launch a new offensive in their seven-year war.

Iranian President Ali Khamenei said during the weekend that "a new movement is going to occur on the war front" soon.

Meanwhile, the supertanker Bridgeton, holed by a mine four months ago, sailed out of a shipyard to join a U.S.-escorted convoy heading south.

The 401,382-ton ship linked up with the procession heading for the Strait of Hormuz shortly after it sailed from Dubai, where it had been undergoing repair for two months. Sources at the Kuwait Oil Tanker Co. declined to say why it was leaving the gulf empty rather than going to Kuwait to pick up of a load of crude.

The convoy, the 18th since the operations began in mid-July, was made up of two other Kuwaiti tankers sailing under the Stars and Stripes, a U.S. Navy tanker and five warships, including one of the Navy's recently arrived ocean minesweepers.

Two chartered tugs, also used for mine patrols, led the convoy, according to Associated Press Photographer Greg English, who saw the ships from a helicopter over the gulf.

The Bridgeton, the world's sixth largest tanker, struck a mine in the first convoy on July 24 in the northern gulf and made only one trip down the gulf, partially loaded. It went into the Dubai shipyard for full repairs on Sept. 14.

Since then, there have no significant incidents involving the convoys, in which U.S. warships escort the tankers that President Reagan agreed to reflag for protection against Iranian attacks.

The Iranians, at war with Iraq since September 1980, had been concentrating their attacks on Kuwait-related vessels after accusing Kuwaiti leaders of aiding Iraq.

The southbound convoy included oil products tankers, the 81,283-ton Surf City and the 79,999-ton Chesapeake City, and the navy tanker Richard G. Matthiessen. Three missile frigates and a cruiser provided escort coverage.

English said there appeared to be no unusual activity by Iranian or other naval craft in the vicinity, but overheard one warship ask an unidentified aircraft about 10 miles away and approaching at high speed to "identify yourself and state your intention." The aircraft apparently changed course, he said.

Dubai-based shipping executives said the convoy was to move through the strategic Strait of Hormuz and arrive off the Gulf of Oman port of Fujairah early Wednesday.

Taiwanese Returning Home To Mainland After 38 Years

By KATHY WILHELM Associated Press Writer
PUTIAN, China (AP) — Lin Qiongxiang brought gold earrings for the sister she hadn't seen in 50 years. Zhang Kaijing brought snapshots of his wife and children to add to those he'd sent surreptitiously over the years.

They are in the vanguard of thousands of homesick Taiwan residents rushing to visit their mainland birthplaces now that the island's Nationalist government has lifted its 38-year ban on travel to Communist China.

"I don't recognize the streets. When I walk around, I get lost," Zhang, 60, said ruefully as he sipped tea in his eldest brother's home in Putian, a rural county seat in east China's Fujian province.

Gazing down on him from the wall were framed photographs of the stern countenances of his parents, who had died in his absence.

"We lived in a place outside town," he said, gesturing with one hand. "I didn't even know they had moved."

It was 1947 when Zhang, one of seven sons in a poor peasant family, journeyed across the nearly 100 miles of sea that separate Fujian from Taiwan. He planned a short visit with relatives who ran a business in the island province's capital, Taipei.

But civil war intervened. Nationalist leader Chiang Kai-shek and his army were defeated by the Communist Red Army on the mainland and took sanctuary on Taiwan. About 2 million Nationalist supporters followed him.

The Nationalists, declaring themselves the rightful government of all China, cut off transportation and communication with the mainland. Chiang's followers and non-political mainlanders such as Zhang all found themselves stranded as sporadic skirmishes across the Taiwan Strait gave way to a propaganda battle with no apparent end.

Some, like Zhang, sent letters about their new lives and families via friends in Hong Kong.

Tens of thousands also defied Taiwanese authorities and traveled clandestinely to their hometowns via Hong Kong, Japan and other countries.

But the Nationalists' lifting of the travel ban on Nov. 2 touched off a deep emotional response on the part of the majority who waited anxiously on Taiwan while relatives and friends back home grew old and died.

In the first week after the ban was lifted, nearly 6,000 Taiwanese registered with the International Red Cross to visit the mainland. The Red Cross is helping reunite divided families because the Nationalists refuse any direct contact with the Communists.

More than 2,500 Taiwanese arrived on the mainland in the first eight days, according to the official media.

In Fujian, the closest mainland province to Taiwan, dozens of Taiwanese came in the first two weeks and 20,000 to 30,000 are expected over the next 12 months, said the province's deputy secretary general, Nan Jiang.

Nan predicted the relatively wealthy Taiwanese will pump at least $6 million into the local economy.

Mrs. Lin, impatient, came with her father-in-law, Ke Linmi, about a week before the ban was lifted. She walked unannounced into the mud-brick home of her younger sister, whom their parents had left behind when they moved to Taiwan in 1937 to seek their fortune.

"She cried when she saw me," Mrs. Lin said, laughing in recollection. "We both cried."

Fujian and Taiwan are so close that Taipei radio broadcasts can be heard as clearly as local ones. Rural homes on both sides of the strait have the same curving roofs and brightly painted tiles.

But economically, the two places are decades apart. Mrs. Lin, 57, who works in the family store in Taipei, said she has a car, motorcycle and a modern home with conveniences such as a shower and refrigerator that her sister has never seen.

Her hair is permed and her skillfully applied makeup matches the color of her ashmere sweater.

Lin Qiongji, a 55-year-old widow who raises pigs, looks like an elder sister with steel-gray hair held back severely by two metal bobbypins. Her face is deeply lined, and she wears the untailored cotton pants and cotton shoes typical of Chinese peasants.

Lin Qiongji would like to accompany her sister back to Taiwan, but not to enjoy her prosperity.

"My mother died last October in Taiwan but my father is still alive," she said, tears filling her eyes. "I want to go see him. He has some heart problems. If the Taiwanese authorities would let me, I would go right away."

In relaxing their travel policy, the Nationalists still refuse to allow visits in the other direction. They also continue to rebuff overtures from the Communists for talks on reunification.

But now that one-way travel is permitted, other communications barriers may fall as well under the force of the pent-up loyalties of millions of Taiwanese.

"We don't care (about politics) as long as people can move freely from one side to the other," Mrs. Lin said before she returned to Taiwan. "That is what is good."

Bhopal Gas Payment May Top $500 Million

BHOPAL, India (AP) — Lawyers trying to reach a settlement in the Bhopal gas disaster case are discussing a possible payment of more than $500 million, sources close to the case said today.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said no agreement was likely before Wednesday, when lawyers for the Indian government and the Union Carbide Corp. are due in court here.

India has sued U.S.-headquartered Union Carbide for $3 billion, charging it was responsible for the gas leak from a subsidiary's pesticide plant here that killed more than 2,600 people on Dec. 3, 1984. It was the world's worst industrial accident.

The Indian government says at least 40,000 others were injured when lethal methyl isocyanate gas leaked from the plant owned by a Union Carbide subsidiary.

The Indian government maintains the accident resulted from negligence; Carbide says it was caused by sabotage.

The sources here said the format being discussed for a settlement would award $2,000 a year for 10 years to survivors of 2,660 people who died and $1,000 a year over the same period to 20,000 people seriously injured.

Another 186,000 people affected by the gas leak would receive a single payment of $500 under the arrangements being discussed, the sources said.

One source said other compensation was still under consideration.

"The total payout would be more than $500 million over a 10-year period," this source said.

But sources both here and in New Delhi denied that any final settlement had been reached or was likely before Wednesday.

"There is no agreement so far. We are in the advanced stage of negotiations," said a lawyer close to the case, who also insisted on anonymity.

In Danbury, Conn., Union Carbide said in a statement Monday that no out-of-court settlement had been reached.

"Know what I weigh? Three-oh inches!"

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Nov. 18

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Think about what you've learned from past experiences before you make the same mistake twice. Support, do not criticize, an associate.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): It's important that you use tact with a fellow worker. You can change your present procedures without upsetting a smooth-running set-up.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Show some interest in helping a good friend solve a problem; you'll be repaid in kind. Don't give in to any unreasonable demands.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Listen to what an outsider has to say, but don't let this person create any problems at your home. Use your charisma and be kind.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Be most careful in traffic while out visiting. Also, be cautious about what you eat and drink. Don't overindulge in anything this evening.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Before attempting to handle a financial affair which you don't understand completely, get advice from a qualified expert.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Don't bite off more than you can chew or you'll get nothing done today. Keep your priorities straight when making your daily schedule.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): You may feel like abandoning a tough project, but stick with it as the profits will make it worthwhile. Listen to your radio tonight.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Don't object to the postponement of a planned social function. You'll find an alternate activity which will be quite enjoyable.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): People who are close to you can give good suggestions on how to advance in your career. Be cautious of strangers you encounter.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): If you are to profit from a new idea, it must be put into action quickly. Get out of that rut you've been in for so long. Be innovative.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): It may become necessary to make changes in long-standing business policies to bring efficiency up to competitive levels.

 Among the more popular, and sensible, modern conventions is the Jacoby Transfer Bid. Besides allowing the stronger hand to declare suit contracts, it permits the partnership to describe many hands accurately which are difficult to handle in standard methods. Here, with the strong hand as the declarer of the heart game, a fragile holding was protected from a damaging lead.

 North's bid of two diamonds was a transfer to hearts. Since he had no aspirations beyond game, North bid what he thought he could make without messing around.
 Had North declared four hearts, a spade lead or early shift by East would have resulted in the contract's demise. After the king of diamonds lead, South found a pretty avoidance play to keep the danger hand, East, off lead. Instead of the obvious play of winning the first trick, he allowed West to hold the trick despite the fact that dummy held a singleton.

 West's club shift was taken in dummy with the ace. A heart to the king provided the entry for declarer to cash the ace of diamonds and continue with the jack, discarding dummy's remaining club.
 In with the queen of diamonds, West could not afford to lead a spade without giving up one of his tricks in the suit, so he exited with his remaining trump. Declarer won in hand, ruffed a club in dummy, returned to hand with a trump and ruffed his last club.

With the minor suits eliminated, declarer could now claim the hand. He led the jack of spades from the table, and it mattered not what the defenders did. If East could cover, declarer would win and surrender a spade. If East played low, West would be end played after he won, and be forced to lead into declarer's spade tenace or yield a ruff-suff.

Rolling Stones' Guitarist Keeps His Own Beat Going

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Although the Rolling Stones are still these days, guitarist Ron Wood is keeping his own beat going. The veteran of three rock bands is confident the super group will be back eventually, despite rumors that the Stones may end as star singer Mick Jagger highlights his solo career.

"I give it a couple of years before we work together again," Wood said. "But I'm very hopeful about that."

Wood, who first played for the Stones 12 years ago and is the band's junior member, is using the time to showcase his artwork, in which he has dabbled ever since taking college classes in London. He's also working on personal music projects that include performing with 1950s blues and rock stars. After a well-attended, good-selling show at Christie's of London last month, Wood recently displayed his woodcuts, etchings, charcoals, watercolors and silkscreens here at the former Arlington Hotel. The hotel is being transformed into a combination rock club and art gallery and Wood will inaugurate the oceanfront "Woody's on the Beach" with a mid-December performance.

Nearly 500 reporters, art-buyers and Miami Beach power brokers turned out at his club-to-be, seen as part of a revitalization of the rundown nightlife of Miami Beach. "Miami Vice" TV star Don Johnson made an appearance for Wood, who played on Johnson's 1986 music album.

Wood then headed off on a three-week tour, mostly on the East Coast, with 1950s rhythm and blues star Bo Diddley.

"I was just trying to find out which of the old greats was available," Wood said. "And then I realized how much the Stones owed to the music of Bo Diddley."

He recently played for a television show with Jerry Lee Lewis, Ray Charles and Fats Domino.

Wood also has art shows planned for Dallas, New York, Washington, San Francisco and Los Angeles. And late this month, he'll begin promoting a book of his drawings, to be published by Harper and Row as "The Works."

The 40-year-old rocker, dressed in black jacket — as was his wife, Jo, a model — discussed his career in an interview with The Associated Press. He kept a cigarette dangling from his mouth, and he kept his hands full with a glass of Perrier-Jouet champagne and two packs of cigarettes.

Thin as a guitar neck and silky black hair long and shaggy, the Briton grinned and arched his eyebrows often as he reviewed a career that has included the Jeff Beck Group, Rod Stewart and Faces, and the Stones, which has been in business for a quarter-century.

"It's been great," he said of playing downstage to Beck, Stewart and Jagger. "They're just good musicians, and they make the best music. I like to try to present them in the best way possible. I'm not the first one in the spotlight; I just like being in the band."

His solo career has produced four albums that drew some favorable reviews but flopped at the sales racks. He's working on a new one for release early next year.

PBS TV Series Will Honor Buster Keaton

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although he remained in the movies long past the silent era, Buster Keaton's greatest triumph fittingly enough was in a film in which he never said a word.

The 1927 silent film "The General" is considered by many to be his best work.

"It was his own personal favorite because the whole thing was his idea," said his widow, Eleanor, a former dancer who married Keaton in 1940 and appears in a public television tribute to the great silent clown.

In "The General," Keaton played a Southern locomotive engineer who recovers a train stolen by Northern spies in the Civil War. Keaton deftly combined adventure, romance, comedy and some breathtaking stunts including a spectacular train wreck.

"It's a true story from the Civil War, and he thought it would make a great movie," Mrs. Keaton said. "He had his gang of writers and a technical man, and he passed around a book about the locomotive chase. He couldn't do the real ending of the story because the Northern spies were all hanged."

Keaton, whose career began when he was barely old enough to toddle on stage and ended with his death in 1966, is saluted in a three-part series on "American Masters" on PBS. The first two parts of "Buster Keaton: A Hard Act to Follow" will be shown Wednesday and the third part will air a week later, on Nov. 25.

"Buster really loved the silent era," said Mrs. Keaton. "Buster started with Roscoe 'Fatty' Arbuckle. He was going to do a Broadway show when he ran into Roscoe, and Roscoe invited him down to watch some filming. When he got there Roscoe got him to throw a pie.

"By the time the day was over, Buster had practically taken the camera apart. He went back to the Shubert Theatre, quit his $250 job in the play, which was a lot of money in 1917, and went to work for Roscoe for $40 a week.

Keaton, whose trademark came to be a squashed fedora and a morose look, was born into a vaudeville family and crawled onto the stage for the first time when he was 9 months old.

"He got a nice laugh," said Mrs. Keaton. "When he was 4½, he got his first salary. Then he became the star of the act. He dressed like his father, with a beard and a bald wig. He had a jacket, and beneath it was a leather harness with a handle so his father could pick him up and throw him."

He was a knockabout comic throughout his career, but he was hurt only twice. Once, his floppy shoe caught in an escalator, and he fell two stories. Another time he was knocked off a train and broke his neck, but didn't know it until a medical examination years later.

Some of his stunts were so dangerous one miscalculation could have killed him. "In 'Steamboat Bill Junior,' a 3,000-pound building front fell on him, and he had to be in the exact spot where there was a door opening," Mrs. Keaton said. "He had to run on the set and find a copper nail that marked his position. And all the time the building was falling."

Alcohol, as well as the coming of talkies, destroyed his career as a film star. In 1936 he finally found work at $300 a week writing jokes for such stars as the Marx Brothers, Abbott and Costello and Red Skelton.

Mrs. Keaton said when she met him, he had dried out and was on the writing staff at MGM, doctoring comedy scripts.

An article in Life magazine in 1949 revived his movie career, and he appeared in such films as "Sunset Boulevard," "Limelight" with Charlie Chaplin, "Around the World in Eighty Days," "It's a Mad Mad Mad Mad World" and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." He also made numerous television appearances.

"Buster had an instinctive way of working with film," Mrs. Keaton said. "Basically, he was inherently funny, and everything stemmed from that. He had a way of seeing things that other people didn't see. He knew before he filmed something whether it would be funny. He didn't have to wait for the preview."

'Sly Stone' Released

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rock singer Sylvester "Sly Stone" Stewart has been released on bail and ordered to return to court next month to face charges of drug possession and failure to pay child support.

Stewart, 43, was arrested Thursday night at a theater in Hollywood where he was to have performed. He was booked on two misdemeanor counts of failure to pay $2,500 to his former wife and 14-year-old son, said Lt. Bill Archer of the district attorney's Child Support Division.

An arraignment hearing was scheduled for Dec. 9 in the West Los Angeles Municipal Court.

The singer also faces a Dec. 10 arraignment in Santa Monica on a felony charge of possession of cocaine, said District Attorney's office spokesman Al Albergate.

Stewart was released Monday on $10,000 bail.

Sly and the Family Stone, which included Stewart's brother, sister and cousin, had hits in the 1960s and early 1970s including "Dance to the Music" and "Everyday People."
