Carter Breaks Tie Vote In First Duty As Mayor

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

Mayor-Elect Ed Carter took the oath of office Thursday night, becoming the first black mayor of Greenville in an hour-long ceremony before approximately 500 people at McGinnis Theater.

Carter, who heads administrative services at Burroughs-Wellcome, was sworn along with members of the new City Council.

Judge David E. Reid administered the oath to Carter, and to newly elected council members Nancy Jenkins, Lorraine Shinn, Bill Hadden, Inez Fridley, Mildred Council and Rufus Huggins.

Council and Huggins replaced outgoing council members Janice Buck and Carter, who replaced Les Garner as Greenville mayor.

Carter now faces the task of leading a city faced with numerous problems associated with unprecedented growth.

According to City Manager Greg Knowles, Greenville's ever soaring population is predicted to reach nearly 50,000 by the end of Carter's two-year term.

In addition, Carter faces the task of working with a council which, in the recent past, has often been politically divided.

Only moments after taking the oath of office Thursday night, Carter faced that political division, being forced to cast the deciding vote for the appointment of a new mayor pro tem.

Council members Hadden and Shinn were both nominated for the position, with Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. Fridley and Hadden placing their three votes for Hadden against the Shinn nomination, supported by Mrs. Council, Huggins and Mrs. Shinn.

Reagan Reaps 'Love Feast'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan won applause and congratulations from Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress today at a White House "love feast" celebrating the outcome of his summit with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

After three days of talks, Reagan bade the Soviet Communist Party general secretary farewell on Thursday. Both leaders are looking toward a fourth summit in Moscow next year to pursue a strategic nuclear arms agreement going far beyond the treaty they signed Tuesday banning medium-range missiles.

Reagan reported on the talks in a meeting with congressional leaders that opened with a round of applause. Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., called it "sort of a love feast."

House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas, who is frequently at odds with Reagan, left White House wreathed in smiles. "I just want to congratulate President Reagan. I don't criticize him at all today. I think he's done a fine job."

Wright said "everybody's working together" and proclaimed "a new spirit of reconciliation" between the White House and Congress.

Dole, a Republican presidential contender, cautioned that "Gorbachev fever will pass." He said "we still have problems" and added that he still doesn't trust Gorbachev.

A U.S. official, who spoke only on condition that he not be identified, said the summit produced an understanding that a treaty for the destruction of strategic weapons would be verified with on-site and short-notice inspection, overcoming a potential barrier to agreement.

No great successes on other issues were claimed by Reagan or by Gorbachev. Reagan could report only "some very limited movement" on human rights and no deal for ending the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

Gorbachev, before flying off to meet with Soviet bloc leaders in East Berlin, promised to "work hard" to have a treaty ready for signing in Moscow next year to reduce sharply strategic weapons delivered by bombers, submarines or land-based intercontinental missiles.

In Brussels, Belgium, Secretary of State George Shultz joined officials of Britain, West Germany, Italy, Belgium and the Netherlands in signing a treaty protocol allowing Soviet inspectors to observe the destruction of hundreds of medium-range missiles at European sites.

Shultz flew to Brussels to brief NATO allies immediately after the summit ended Thursday. En route, he told reporters that "negotiators have sort of a leap to go with now" in drafting a strategic weapons treaty.

The summit resolution of several issues "advances things very considerably so that you can literally see the shape of the agreement," Shultz said. "That doesn't mean there isn't a lot of work to be done."

In East Berlin, Gorbachev signed an agreement with Warsaw Pact leaders from East Germany and Czechoslovakia approving the new treaty's inspection and verification provisions. East German leader Erich Honecker congratulated Gorbachev on the "extraordinarily important results of the summit meeting in Washington."

National security adviser Gen. Colin L. Powell predicted today there will be a fourth Reagan-Gorbachev summit in Moscow next year, even without agreement on a broader treaty making major reductions in strategic nuclear weapons.

Powell, interviewed on CBS-TV's "This Morning" program, said the two leaders had an "agreement to disagree" over Reagan's Star Wars plan for a space-based missile defense system.

Local Agencies Offering Holiday Help For Needy

By CLAY DEANHARDT
Reflector Staff Writer

The Christmas season is upon us and, for most, that means holiday feasts, family communions, religious celebrations and gifts for all.

However, Christmas could be bleak for Greenville's needy without the help of several area programs.

"The main thing right now that we really need is food and toys," Salvation Army Maj. Earl Woodard said. The Salvation Army traditionally helps those that need it during the holiday season.

"This year our goal is to reach 650 families," he said. "We will have about 900 applicants by the time we get through (taking applications) Thursday."

Woodard said his organization helped 584 area families last year. He said that careful selection is made of those to receive gifts.

"We have a screening committee. We cross-check with the Department of Social Services and the churches, and we also work with the schools (to prevent duplication)," he said. Woodard said the decision is based mainly on a family's size and total income.

The Salvation Army sponsors the familiar red kettles seen across Greenville during Christmas. Woodard said the money raised through those kettles not only helps at Christmas, but also serves as money to help pay fuel bills for the elderly and indigent during the cold winter months.

"Our goal is $65,000," Woodard said. "If we don't get $65,000 we may have to cut back and not be able to help 650."

Woodard said the toys and food the organization receives will be distributed Dec. 22-23.

Another group trying to find toys for children is WZYC-FM. The toy boxes seen in area McDonald's restaurants belong to them. Morgan Ahlers, disc jockey and area representative for the station, said this is the first year for the program in the Greenville area.

According to Ahlers, there are four boxes in the Greenville area, as well as boxes in New Bern, Havelock, Morehead City, Atlantic City and other coastal areas. He said toys collected in each area would be distributed through that county's Department of Social Services. The boxes, Ahlers said, will be checked for the last time on Dec. 21.

Most organizations, including WZYC-FM and the Salvation Army, work alongside the Department of Social Services to prevent duplication and reach as many people as possible.

In addition to helping coordinate the efforts of other organizations, the Department of Social Services pro-

Drug Arrests Made

Four people were arrested by Greenville police Thursday on drug charges.

Officer E.M. Haddock said Joseph William Edwards, 35, of Route 1, Pinetown, and Curtis Gilford, 43, of Washington, N.C., were arrested about 1:31 p.m. on charges of possessing drug paraphernalia in connection with an incident at the intersection of Munford Road and Holly Street.

According to Officer B.W. Lewis, Wilbert Earl Wilks, 30, of 209B Deck St. was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia about 11:06 p.m. in connection with an incident on West Sixth Street.

Investigators assigned to the department's special investigations section said Alfonso Taft, 17, of 1404 Myrtle Ave. was arrested at his home about 11:40 p.m. on a charge of possession with intent to sell and deliver marijuana. Officers said eight envelopes of marijuana were confiscated at the time of the arrest.

Two Apprehended

Greenville police took two people into custody — one of them a juvenile — in connection with the theft of a cassette tape from a car parked at Rose High School about 9:57 a.m. Thursday.

Officers T.E. Evans and F.G. Pruitt said Carlton Davis Harris, 16, of 1925B Norcott Circle was charged with aiding and abetting breaking, entering and larceny from a vehicle in connection with the incident.

Investigators said the juvenile was turned over to the department's juvenile division.

Safe-Cash Stolen

Police said two thefts — one of them involving a safe and cash from a Memorial Drive restaurant — were reported to the Greenville department before dawn today.

Officer S.A. Bass said thieves took a safe containing $450 in cash and $100 from a cash register from the Three Steers Restaurant at 2826 S. Memorial Drive in a break-in reported at 5:30 a.m.

Officer C.G. Alphin said a bicycle was taken from the intersection of Third Street and Roundtree Drive in an incident reported at 4:35 a.m.

Greenville Lawyers Declared Specialists

Two Greenville men, E. Cordell Avery and Michael Colombo, are among North Carolina attorneys who have been awarded certificates as legal specialists by the North Carolina State Bar Board of Legal Specialization.

This marks the first certification of attorneys as legal specialists in three areas of law: bankruptcy law; estate planning and probate law, and real property law.

Avery, a native of Greenville, has been certified in real property law, residential transactions. He is a partner with the law firm of James, Hite, Avery and Duke.

Avery is past president of the Pitt County Bar Association and currently is first vice president of the 3rd Judicial District Bar Association of Pitt, Craven, Carteret and Pamlico counties.

He is a member of the Progressive

Day Camps Planned

Some 90 units are entered so far, John Beech, parade chairman for the Greenville Jaycees, said today.

The parade will begin at the Farm Fresh Store on Arlington Boulevard and run northward to the Boys' Club on Arlington. Capt. David Bullock of the Greenville Police Department cautioned motorists to use care during the parade, when traffic will be detoured.

Police Investigating Theft Of Weapons

Investigators said 11 thefts, including rifles and shotguns taken from three vehicles, were reported to Greenville police on Thursday.

Officer E.E. Laughinghouse said a .410-gauge shotgun and a .22-caliber rifle were taken from a car parked at Rose High School on Elm Street in an incident reported at 3:30 p.m., while a juvenile took two packs of bubble gum from The Fuel Doc at the intersection of Fifth Street and Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 4:35 p.m.

Officer J.A. Bartlett said a .30-06-caliber rifle with scope sight was taken from a car parked at The New Deli restaurant in an incident reported at 9:38 p.m.

Officer T.A. Lee said a .270-caliber rifle with scope, valued at $700, a $70 coat and a toolbox and tools valued at $630 were taken from a vehicle parked at Carolina East Mall in an incident reported at 10:12 p.m., while Officer L.E. White said a radio-tape player and equalizer, valued at $650, were taken from a car at Brown-Wood Pontiac Cadillac on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 8:38 a.m.

Investigators said bicycles were taken from 209 Kings Arms Apartments in an incident reported at 9 a.m. and from a 206 Ash Street apartment in an incident reported at 12:41 p.m., while Officer J.G. Bridges said a ladies' suit was taken from Michelle's Shop at Carolina East Mall in an incident reported at 1:37 p.m.

Officer M.R. Benton said a $250 gold chain was taken from a car parked at Elm Street Gym in an incident reported at 1:37 p.m., while Officer F.G. Pruitt said 75 cents in change was taken from a vehicle parked at Rose High School in an incident also reported at 2:25 p.m. Pruitt said the thief caused an estimated $350 damage gaining entrance to the car.

According to Officer R.L. Vandorff, a coat valued at $150 was taken from a car parked at The Plaza in an incident reported at 9:25 p.m.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Negligible Start

Greenville's new City Council is getting off to a negligible start.

The out-of-town retreat planned for Saturday and Sunday at Emerald Isle is not a suitable forum for discussing issues affecting taxpayers.

Officials say the group will be identifying problems which face Greenville and developing better communication — both respectable aims. But why can't the Council accomplish these goals within easy reach of the public it serves? Why must the board discuss public business 100 miles away from Greenville?

It is unfair and improper for a local board to isolate itself from its constituents to discuss local problems. It makes no difference whether or not official action is taken. Undoubtedly, some agenda will emerge and some sort of unofficial plan of action will be formulated at the retreat — sadly, without public scrutiny or input.

The concept of a "retreat" for a local body simply isn't congruent with up-front and above-board operation. Meetings must be accessible to a community. The public should ask its elected officials why strategies, priorities and concerns cannot be identified at a workshop in Greenville. In addition, the public should be wondering just what issues might be discussed in Emerald Isle that wouldn't be raised in Greenville.

The public might also question why $1,200 of tax money is being spent to send the City Council on this adventure. Granted, that amount is not going to break the city's finances but its expenditure raises questions about funding priorities in other budgetary areas.

It may be acceptable for a regional or statewide board to plan an out-of-town workshop. Certainly "retreats" are standard in the private sector. But it is not tolerable for public officials elected to a local board to convene 100 miles away from the voters who put them in office. "Retreating" is not an appropriate method of approaching city business.

The public should pointedly and persistently ask City Council for an explanation of why important issues affecting Greenville's future were hashed out and prioritized at an out-of-town workshop. The taxpayers should then demand the practice of "retreating" be abandoned and replaced with a more accessible means of communicating public business.

Among The Best

Ovid Williams Pierce was a gentle giant of American literature.

The retired writer-in-residence at East Carolina University died this week at the age of 77.

His full life touched thousands of aspiring young writers and brought him the love and admiration of many people who enjoy good writing.

In addition, his work brought renown to ECU and focused note on its English department. His talent also brought the attention of the literary world to the community of Greenville.

The main strength of Pierce's work lay in the universality of his empathy for man's sufferings, whether due to external conditions such as the Civil War and its aftermath, or suffering arising from individual character flaws. He also celebrated the joys that mankind was capable of attaining.

Because of his compassion and understanding of mankind, he was able to create a gallery of believable, memorable characters, both black and white, men and women of dignity and integrity, fictional characters with lasting reader appeal.

His ability to poetically capture the essence of the landscape of rural North Carolina and man's deep-rooted affinity to the soil were other measures of his sensitivity to the world in which he lived. He was never a writer to indulge in melodramatic contrivances, but instead relied on a solid basis of reality based on respect for structure and a lifelong love for excellence in literary craftsmanship that gave depth, texture and lasting appeal to his better efforts.

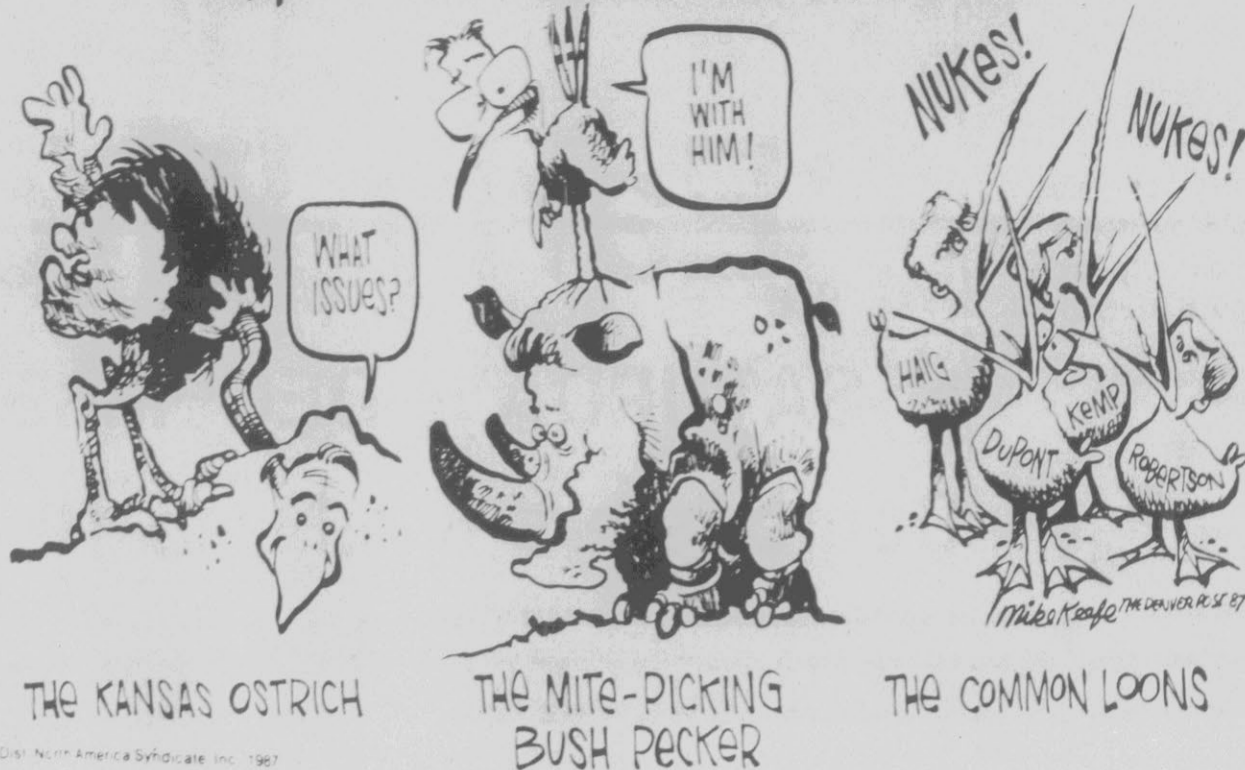

In his personal life, as in his writing, Ovid Pierce was a warm, steadfast friend to all who knew him — his creative colleagues, personal acquaintances and the students he inspired and somehow always managed to find time to give a helping hand when needed.

The Weldon native joined the ECU staff in 1956 as writer-in-residence. Much of his best writing was done here in Greenville and at his farm near Enfield.

Pierce was recalled by Dr. Keats Sparrow, chairman of the ECU English Department as "a Southern gentleman of the old school." He was that, and he represented the southern tradition in literature.

In a time when southern creative writing is flourishing, Pierce stands among the best.

Welfare Reform As An Investment

'If the House does not act, the Senate will have no reason to move welfare reform up on its crowded agenda, and a historic opportunity to improve a welfare system that nobody likes will have been lost.'

Nearly two years ago, the nation's governors began working on a welfare-reform plan that would change the system from one that too often traps people in dependency. Benefits are 33 percent lower than they were in 1970, but they can be obtained and kept solely by remaining poor. The governors want a system that promotes independence through education, training and work, that takes care of poor children and that recovers as much of its costs as possible through strengthened child-support enforcement.

We are now at a critical point in the welfare debate that has occupied the governors, human-service commissioners, advocates, local governments, the administration and Congress. The House of Representatives is expected to vote on two bills that represent two very different approaches to the reform of a welfare system everyone agrees needs to be changed.

I believe that H.R. 1720, the Family Welfare Reform Act of 1987, goes a long way toward achieving the objectives outlined in the governors' policy. Reducing welfare dependency by creating significant work, education and training opportunities for Aid for Families with Dependent Children recipients is the cornerstone of H.R. 1720. Resources are targeted on families most in need of assistance — those likely to become long-term dependents of the system unless something is done.

To ease the transition to work, the bill creates modest financial incentives so that families who work are better off than those who do not. Day-care subsidies and Medicaid would be available temporarily so that parents who go to work in jobs without benefits won't be asked to put their children's health or safety in jeopardy.

Further, the legislation is designed to improve efforts to establish paternity of children, ensure that child-support orders are fairly set and regularly updated and give states incentives to use effective enforcement techniques.

The governors recognize the legitimate concerns that have been raised over the cost of H.R. 1720 — $1.7 billion over the next three years. That seems like a lot of money, unless you compare it with what we have been spending for similar purposes. Over the past three years, before 1987 when appropriations were cut in anticipation of a new program, the Work Incentive Program was funded at more than $600 million.

Over three years, then, the cost of H.R. 1720 would exceed that funding by about only $1 billion. This additional money buys the additional training and educational experiences this population needs, as well as the key support services that we know make the programs successful. Like all investment strategies, H.R. 1720 requires some up-front funds. However, the governors believe that there will be quick and substantial savings to both the states and the federal government as people who would otherwise stay on welfare become trained and leave the welfare rolls.

H.R. 3200, the alternative bill, seems at first blush to accomplish the same goals for less money and to give the states more flexibility in designing their own approaches to welfare reform. However, the governors believe it falls far short of the policies we need. H.R. 3200 mandates participation levels that, coupled with limited funding for the welfare-to-work program, would have the practical effect of forcing states to run large numbers of welfare recipients through inexpensive job-search programs of limited effectiveness, rather than through the comprehensive education, training and employment programs that are needed to move the hard-core welfare recipient to self-sufficiency. Moreover, according to the Congressional Budget Office, H.R. 3200 will actually cost the states more money than H.R. 1720.

H.R. 1720 is pro-work. It promotes employment opportunities for poor families with children, especially those who remain on welfare for long periods. This group is responsible for the majority of welfare costs. More than 65 percent of the new three-year expenditures for H.R. 1720 are specifically allocated for work, education and training programs and related expenditures.

Programs will be targeted to recipients who are most likely to become dependent on welfare: teen-age parents, families who have been on AFDC continuously for at least two years and recipients who do not have high-school diplomas. Women with children over the age of 3 (as contrasted with the age of 6 in current law) would be required to participate in education, training and employment programs. Mothers with even younger children would be actively encouraged to enroll and could be required to do so if appropriate infant care were provided. Child care is guaranteed for parents who are enrolled in the work program.

The White House and the supporters of H.R. 3200 object to H.R. 1720 because 1) it contains incentives for states with low AFDC payments to raise them; 2) it requires AFDC coverage to be extended to two-parent households (today about half the states provide welfare only when one parent has left the home); and 3) because H.R. 1720 provides no "waiver" system by which states can reallocate federal funds targeted for specific purposes to new state-designed welfare initiatives.

The governors do not oppose the incentive plan because benefits are often lowest in the poorest states with the most limited resources. We support coverage of two-parent families by AFDC as long as one parent is required to participate in the education and work programs, no matter how young the child is. We support increased waiver authority for the states, but do not believe H.R. 1720 should be opposed for that reason alone. If the House will put aside partisan considerations and pass H.R. 1720, the Senate then will have the responsibility to move on Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan's, D-N.Y., bill, which is less costly than H.R. 1720 and which does have more waiver authority for the states. Then, in conference, the concerns of cost and waivers can be addressed. However, if the House does not act, the Senate will have no reason to move welfare reform up on its crowded agenda, and a historic opportunity to improve a welfare system that nobody likes will have been lost.

'Debt-For-Development' Plan No Gift

A new tax break for banks, announced by the Treasury Department in November, may be well-intentioned but will draw resources from the wrong well. Under the new regulations, banks can donate debts owed by the Third World, assigning them to U.S. non-profit organizations with overseas programs.

The U.S. group will then redeem the debt with the Third World government for a lump-sum payment in local currency. In turn, the organization is obligated to use that money to fund its programs there.

This is certainly a good deal for U.S. banks. In recent years banks have continued to make profits while paring down their Third World exposure. By donating unwanted debt they will get to take a tax deduction equal to the dollar value of the local currency received by the U.S. non-profit group.

In addition, banks can claim a loss for the difference between the amount of the contribution and the value of the original loan.

For U.S. development organizations it could be an even better deal. Less media attention on famine-starved Africa means that contributions are not what they were a year or two ago. The $300 billion Third World debt owed to U.S. banks would seem to offer a limitless pool of resources for their work in developing nations.

Yet what about the Third World? Granted, a foreign debt obligation converted into local money is easier to meet, but it is not cost-free. A central bank must either decide to run the presses, and thereby pay indirectly through inflation, or it must divert resources from other national priorities.

The plan also heightens the role of U.S. bankers as Third World policy-makers and development planners. The banks choose the non-profit group; the nonprofit group chooses the local projects, and the debtor government is merely left with the option to agree or disagree.

Third World governments have their own development objectives, which may or may not coincide with the high-profile projects that make for a good public image for banks and development organizations in the United States. Also left out of the action are non-governmental organizations of the Third World. They are even less likely to be delighted with the "debt-for-development" scheme. Throughout the developing world, indigenous non-governmental groups have emerged as a force in their own right. In fact, U.S. groups increasingly collaborate with these local partners and will most likely share the new proceeds from this plan with them. Surely the Third World organizations cannot help but notice who controls the funds from their national treasuries.

The Treasury's debt-for-development idea was in part inspired by recent debt-for-nature swaps. In these arrangements U.S. environmental organizations purchase heavily discounted debt in exchange for a commitment by a developing country to set aside lands for parks. For $100,000, Conservation International was able to purchase $650,000 worth of Bolivian debt. The group then canceled the debt in return for the Bolivian government's agreement to create a 4-million-acre forest preserve in its Amazon basin.

U.S. conservationists hope that the new Treasury ruling will pave the way for similar nature swaps being negotiated in Costa Rica, Ecuador and the Philippines. From a Third World country's point of view, however, the matter is highly delicate. As one official put it, "How would you like it if the Japanese used your trade deficit to buy the Grand Canyon?"

U.S. development groups should ponder deeply how much they want to exploit Third World financial weakness, and how badly they want to strike business deals with the governments and banks that they generally blame for the debt crisis. For most of the 1960s, non-profit groups working in the Third World have decried the suffering of the poor as a result of debt, recession and austerity. Now the same groups may be faced with a dilemma: Do they trade the moral high ground for a chance to finance overseas projects paid for by Third World governments and tax breaks for U.S. banks?

In fairness, it is hard not to applaud what looks on the surface to be an imaginative plan. Yet, stepping back, this new role for Third World debt helps those who need it the least. U.S. banks were doing remarkably well without the tax breaks. As for U.S. development organizations, they should raise funds from U.S. pocketbooks, not from debtor nations' treasuries.

Strength For Today

Some people's religious experience resembles a station-to-station telephone call. The station-to-station call usually indicates that we have information to impart or questions to ask. But we are not vitally interested in getting a particular person on the other end of the line. In a person-to-person call it is just as important for us to get a particular party on the line to start a conversation.

Vital religious faith is a personal relationship between man and his Maker. God is a person, and true religious faith brings us into contact with this person. Religion which consists wholly in membership in an organization is not vital religion. As far as relations to God are concerned, it is a station-to-station call. What we need is person-to-person communication with God.

Reagan, Gorbachev, Find New Way To Do Business

WASHINGTON — Propelled by the imperatives of political self-interest and the burden of the arms race on their nations, President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev demonstrated this week they have found a new way to do business with each other.

Gone was the tentativeness of Geneva or the recklessness of Reykjavik. For the first time since Gorbachev came to power and Reagan decided the time had come to do business with the Russians, both leaders came to the table ready to deal — albeit modestly — and ready to acknowledge where they were unable to deal.

In the joint statement they issued Thursday night, for example, they decided to finess the issue of Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) on which the Iceland summit foundered 14 months ago.

In Reykjavik, Reagan stalked out because he could not accept the Soviet demand that research on his proposed missile defense system be confined to the laboratory. The Soviets have dropped that demand, and now both leaders have settled for writing a vague formulation on SDI that postpones the day of reckoning and allows them to disagree without disrupting their relations. It may even permit them to reach a second arms control agreement on long-range strategic weapons next year. Nor did they find common ground this week on the difficult issues of Soviet occupation of Afghanistan or human rights, but they did not walk away in acrimony on either count. They declared they would probably meet again next summer, even if they do not have another treaty to sign.

And they signed the treaty to eliminate medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles in a celebration of mutual satisfaction. After years of angry rhetoric in which Reagan predicted the demise of communism in the "dustbin of history" and the Soviets depicted Reagan as a nuclear-crazed cowboy, the two leaders found themselves talking in virtually the same language of hope and optimism. It often seemed during this summit that Gorbachev and Reagan could have read each other's speeches without anyone noticing the difference.

Reagan's senior advisers had said before the summit that they wanted to send a political message to the American people that the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces (INF) Treaty was a "first step" toward reductions in strategic arms. Thursday those advisers said they were surprised to find Gorbachev doing their work for them from his arrival through his remarkable final news conference Thursday night.

In a comment that could have been lifted from a dozen Reagan speeches, the Soviet leader said on his departure from the White House that the INF Treaty is "an unprecedented step in the history of the nuclear age: the signing of the treaty under which the two militarily and strategically greatest powers have assumed an obligation to actually destroy a portion of their nuclear weapons."

In a subtle — but for the Soviets enormously important — gesture to the Soviet leader, Reagan's speeches in Gorbachev's presence were scrubbed clean of the confrontational anti-Soviet insults that studded his rhetoric for years. There were no comments about the failing Soviet economy, the Soviet missile defense effort or alleged Soviet violations of earlier arms control treaties.

"The president's views have changed for the better, as have mine," Gorbachev said during his marathon news conference Thursday night when a questioner asked about the disappearance of the "evil empire" tone in the president's utterances. "I think we now have more understanding between the president and myself," Gorbachev said.

But that "understanding" came only after Reagan and Gorbachev spent years testing each other and finally making concessions.

For example, Thursday night Gorbachev reiterated his determination to frustrate Reagan's dream of a global missile defense system, though he said he would be willing to allow the United States to squander its money in pursuit of the dream.

But Gorbachev did not insist that the joint statement include new restrictions to limit the program, which Congress has curtailed until nearly the end of Reagan's term. For Gorbachev it was a concession, but a relatively painless one, to simply wait until later.

And Gorbachev put an optimistic spin on this temporizing compromise by recalling how difficult questions that held up completion of the INF Treaty were ultimately resolved. He listed several of those contentious issues — all of them points on which the Soviets ultimately made the biggest concessions, though he didn't point that out.

Summit Is Platform For Soviet Leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev used the extraordinary exposure of the superpower summit to rebuke Americans who try to tell him how to run his country, to defend his human rights policies and campaign for improved U.S.-Soviet relations outside the formal summit setting.

Carrying out a separate agenda between his meetings with President Reagan, the Communist Party chief has spoken to a group of editors, publishers and broadcasters; to another group billed as representatives of the American intellectual community; and to congressional leaders.

"He's nobody's dummy, let's face it," said House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., who was among those invited to the Soviet embassy for a discussion of issues. "He's shrewd and smart and knows how to manipulate or, at least, to use to the fullest extent our media to his advantage. And he plays that role to the fullest."

Gorbachev told the lawmakers the United States and Soviet Union have been handicapped by the arms race while the economies of other nations grow.

"Japan, West Germany, Italy, those whom we crushed in the last war, now they are — since they are not expending so many of their resources on military purposes — look how they are forging ahead with their civilian economy and how competitive they have become," the Soviet leader said. "As for you and me, we have involved ourselves in this arms race — in the cold war-like arms race. And it seems hard ... for both of us to take us out of the rut into which we've gotten ourselves."

Gorbachev said the competition "causes harm to our two countries ... and prevents us from developing our economies in the interests of the peoples of our two countries and the interests of progress."

During a closed-door discussion with the congressional leaders following his publicly broadcast remarks, the Americans sought to raise human rights issues with Gorbachev and asked for a timetable for Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan.

At a later meeting with members of the news media, Gorbachev complained they, as well as the congressional leaders with whom he spoke, dwelled too much on human rights issues.

"What moral right does America have to assume the pose of the teacher?" he asked. "Who has given it the right to teach moral lessons? I told the president yesterday, 'Mr. President, you are not the prosecutor, and I am not the accused. ... I am not on trial.'"

The congressional leaders, Gorbachev said, "want to go on record once a day to castigate the Soviet Union on its human rights record."

As for withdrawal from Afghanistan, Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., the minority whip, quoted Gorbachev as saying, "I'll share that with you soon. But you've got to remember that we don't want to just leave a vacuum (there) ... and a government that's not somebody known to us. We're not trying to communize them or socialize them or do land reform."

At the meeting with editors, publishers and broadcasters, Gorbachev lectured the media for emphasizing what he regarded as the wrong subjects, and repeated his call for a new turn in relations between the Soviet Union and the United States.

He said that he has refused more than 150 requests for interviews because journalists keep returning to the same questions about Jewish emigration, a split in the Politburo, Afghanistan.

"I just don't find it interesting," he said.

The Soviet leader has made clear in each of his meetings that what he came to discuss was the need to replace traditional and dangerous rivalries with what he calls "the new thinking."

Survey Says Public Upset Over Schools

RALEIGH (AP) — State residents are "extremely dissatisfied" with public education and believe the problem is the most important issue that state legislators can address, a new survey indicates.

The poll done for the North Carolina Foundation for Research and Economic Education found 80 percent of those surveyed favored spending more tax money to improve public education from kindergarten through high school.

But the survey of 1,200 registered voters for the business-based research group showed mixed results about who should foot the higher tax bill. Of those surveyed, 17.4 percent favored raising liquor and cigarette taxes, while 21.8 percent were uncertain where to raise the new tax money for schools.

The poll, obtained Thursday by The News and Observer of Raleigh, was conducted across the state in August and September and has a margin of error of 2.9 percent. It was conducted by Marketing Research Institute, a Mississippi company.

While respondents disagreed with some education priorities set by lawmakers, 62 percent of them said they were satisfied with the performance of the General Assembly.

"Legislative satisfaction in North Carolina is considerably higher than legislative satisfaction in other Southern states," the poll said.

The poll also provided mixed signals for business leaders and teachers, indicating some agreement with positions held by industry but also showing support for higher business taxes.

"If North Carolina needs additional tax money, moderate support could exist for increasing business' share disproportionately," the poll report said.

On issues involving teachers, nearly 81 percent of respondents said starting salaries for teachers should match starting wages for private jobs.

Martin To Seek Federal OK To Keep Bus Drivers

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin says the state's 4,500 17-year-old school bus drivers are "well-trained, well-coached and highly motivated," and he hopes the federal government will allow them to continue driving.

The U.S. Labor Department in August gave the state until the end of the year to replace the student drivers with adults, but Martin's office said Wednesday the state would be allowed to continue using the young drivers through the end of the school year.

Martin says he hopes statistics on 17-year-olds' driving records will convince the department will convince the Labor Department to keep the younger drivers permanently.

The state has given the Labor Department statistics showing that 17-year-olds' accident records were better than those of some older drivers, Martin said.

"Hopefully, we'll be able to persuade them that if their interest is in safety, that they should allow us to continue to use 17-year-old drivers," he said.

Just in case the department balks, however, Martin said his budget proposal for 1988 would include funds to hire older drivers.

North Carolina has operated for 20 years under an exemption to federal policies that require adult drivers on school buses.

On another issue, Martin kicked off a publicity campaign to discourage impaired driving during the holiday season.

He said the Governor's Highway Safety Board, Mothers Against Drunk Driving and other groups would spearhead the campaign.

NCAE Follows Tradition, Backs Democrats

RALEIGH (AP) — The leader an influential state teachers' group says Republican Gov. Jim Martin threw his support behind major education issues "as afterthoughts," so the group will back Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan for governor in 1988.

"While I hesitate to characterize the results of this voting as a straw poll, I am prepared to say that the results indicate to me that each of our endorsed candidates will enjoy overwhelming support among our ... members and the entire educational community," Gladys Graves, president of the North Carolina Association of Educators said Thursday.

She said about 36 percent of the NCAE's 45,000 members voted on a slate of candidates recommended by the group's Government Relations Committee. The NCAE also endorsed Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, for lieutenant governor and state Rep. Bobby Etheridge, D-Harnett, for superintendent of public instruction.

Ms. Graves said the three candidates received better than 85 percent approval from voting members.

"It definitely sets us apart, particularly for someone who said that he was going to be an education governor," Jordan said in an interview.

Martin, however, said the decision reflected the group's reluctance to back Republicans and its distaste for merit pay for exceptional teachers, which Martin strongly supports.

Asked why the NCAE committee did not consider Martin's record good enough, Ms. Graves said he supported only a 3.2 percent pay raise for teachers in 1986 "at a time when the world was saying that wasn't enough." Jordan backed the 6.8 percent raise teachers eventually received.

This year, Ms. Graves said, Martin neglected to request funding to ease a shortfall in state employee and teacher health benefits.

Jordan said in an interview the NCAE committee was aware "that they had a clear choice."

"They remember that he (Martin) did not support the Basic Education Program, didn't put money for the lead teacher program in the budget, that he was well behind in salary (increases)," Jordan said. "It's been 'me-too.' He hasn't provided the leadership."

Jordan called the endorsement "dynamite" and said the assistance of politically astute teachers would be an asset in his campaign.

Martin, however, said the NCAE PAC's opposition would not hurt him.

"I've never had their endorsement, so I don't know why it would worry me," he said at a news conference.

"In recent years, they've not shown a pattern where they're open to endorsing Republican candidates ...," Martin said. "The fact that I'm a Republican works against me with an organization whose leadership view themselves ... as part of the Democratic Party organization."

Also, Martin said, the NCAE leadership is "totally opposed to merit pay in any form and by any name, and is opposed to any candidate who is seriously for it."

Martin this year asked the Legislature to expand the experimental career ladder program now under way in 16 school systems.

Martin Stays

RALEIGH (AP) — A federal judge has refused to remove Gov. Jim Martin as a defendant in a suit claiming Martin's administration fired Democrats who didn't support him as governor.

U.S. District Judge Earl Britt agreed with Martin's attorneys that "no direct evidence has been presented indicating personal involvement of Gov. Martin in the events leading to the termination" of the three plaintiffs and as many as 450 others added to the suit last week. But Britt said that does not remove Martin from liability.

The suit is set to go on trial on Jan. 25.

IN THE STATE

Murder-Suicide

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — A Morganton man walked into the showroom of an automobile dealership Thursday morning and shot and killed his wife before turning the gun on himself, authorities say.

Shelia Kiblinger Blackwell, 32, was shot several times and was pronounced dead on the scene, according to Morganton Department of Public Safety officials. Charles David Blackwell, 33, died about an hour after the 10 a.m. shooting at Michael Chevrolet Inc., where Mrs. Blackwell was an employee.

Police officials said the shooting appeared to be a murder-suicide. Morganton Department of Public Safety Lt. Ray Barlowe said the motive for the shooting was not clear.

An unidentified car salesman who witnessed the shooting said the man shot himself in the head once after shooting the woman several times. Other employees at the dealership said the Blackwells had been separated for about a week.

Beatings

GREENSBORO (AP) — John Nance, former assistant superintendent at Piedmont Correctional Center, has pleaded guilty to reduced charges rather than face a new trial on charges of lying to a grand jury about inmate beatings at the Salisbury facility.

Nance, 36, pleaded guilty Thursday to two misdemeanor charges of being an accessory after two inmates were beaten at the prison on July 2, 1981. While he was not charged with being involved with the beatings, he was accused of giving false statements about them later to investigators.

U.S. District Judge Richard Erwin postponed sentencing Nance until January. Nance faces up to one year in prison and a $100,000 fine.

Attorney Fees

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Attorney General's Office has refused to pay a bill of $298,696 from the State Board of Election's law firm, saying the outcome of a legislative redistricting suit would have been the same even without the firm's participation.

Robert N. Hunter Jr. filed a motion in U.S. District Court in Raleigh asking that the state be required to pay fees and expenses that his firm incurred as attorneys for the plaintiffs who challenged a state legislative redistricting plan.

The N.C. Attorney General's office has approved payments exceeding $1 million to the lawyers involved in the case. In a response filed in court, the Attorney General's Office argued that Hunter's clients were not the primary plaintiffs in the case, and the outcome of the case would have been the same regardless of their participation.

Child Killed

DURHAM (AP) — A third-grader at a Durham elementary school was killed when he fell while sliding down a banister on a school staircase, authorities say.

Jimmy Adams, 9, was on his way down the banister at East End Elementary School Thursday when his feet apparently got caught in the railings. He then tumbled to the stairs, landing on his head.

"He lost his balance and fell all the way down to the basement, hitting his head on the iron steps," city schools superintendent Cleveland Hammons Jr. said.

Hammons said the incident was the first student death inside a school during his nine years in the system.

AIDS Policy

DURHAM (AP) — Durham residents with AIDS or who have tested positive for the AIDS virus won't be denied help from the Durham County Department of Social Services solely on the basis of their health, according to a proposed department policy statement.

The Department of Social Services also will not discriminate in hiring against people carrying the AIDS virus or who have come down with the deadly disease, the suggested policy states.

Phone Service

HIGH POINT (AP) — Crews should finish connecting phone lines soon for Thomasville residents who have been without service since Sunday, officials said.

A major cable was damaged by water and had to be replaced. The cable served 12 percent of the city, mostly residents in the eastern section.

Water collected in manholes after a heavy rain and seeped into the cable, damaging some of its wires. The entire cable had to be replaced, leaving about 2,100 residents with their phones out of service.

Bush Panel

CHARLOTTE (AP) — State Sen. Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, state campaign chairman for Vice President George Bush, has named a state steering committee whose 120 members include elected officials, business leaders and party activists.

Among those named included state Sens. Jim McDuffie of Charlotte, Jim Johnson of Concord and Dan Simpson of Morganton, and Reps. Ivan Mothershead of Charlotte and Ann Duncan of Winston-Salem.

Enrollment

RALEIGH (AP) — With nearly 6,000 more applications to choose from in 1987 over the previous year, North Carolina colleges and universities enrolled the most academically talented freshman class in a decade, officials said.

The average combined scores of entering freshmen this year on the Scholastic Aptitude Test rose at all but four of the University of North Carolina's 16 campuses. Compared to 1986, scores rose 70 points at Elizabeth City State University, 30 points at ASU, 22 points and N.C. A&T State University in Greensboro, 20 points and N.C. State in Raleigh and 12 points at UNC-Chapel Hill.

All but five of 22 private colleges for which statistics were available showed higher SAT scores this year than last year.

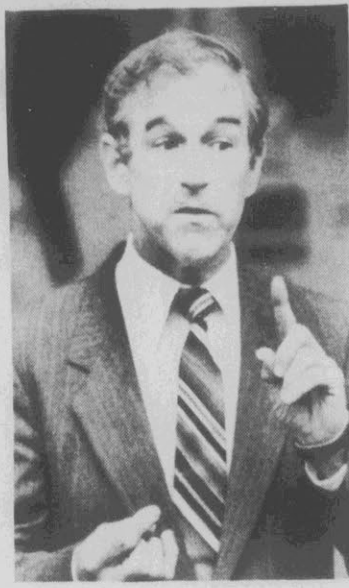

The average scores for all students taking the SAT remained unchanged at 906 nationally and inched up three points to 838 for students in North Carolina.

Director

WILMINGTON (AP) — The executive director of the Port of Providence, R.I., has been named deputy executive director for the North Carolina State Ports Authority.

Noel C. Painchaud, 55, became the director of the Rhode Island port in 1986. He has 26 years of maritime and shipping experience.

Painchaud replaces Richard A. Lowery, who resigned the N.C. Ports position in September. Painchaud will assume his duties Jan. 1.

RON PAUL

Candidate Raps Ballot Access Law

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Former Texas congressman Ron Paul says 1988 should be a good year for the Libertarian Party because of strains on the economy, but he stops short of predicting a victory.

"We're going to play a significant role and make a difference," Paul, the Libertarian presidential candidate, said Thursday during a three-day campaign swing through the state. "What that percentage is, we don't know."

Paul said he can get on the ballot in the other 49 states if he can manage to comply with North Carolina's "troublesome" laws on ballot access.

North Carolina ballot rules, he said, "were designed by Republicans and Democrats to not allow us to be heard."

"We are going to make the effort," said Paul, an obstetrician who went to medical school at Duke University and a former Republican who served as a congressman from Texas from 1976 to 1984.

Johnnie McLean, a secretary at the State Board of Elections, said the only recognized political parties in North Carolina now are the Democrats and Republicans.

For another party to get a presidential candidate on the ballot, it must file petitions with the State Board of Elections that have the signatures of 2 percent of the total number of voters who voted in the most recent general election for governors. The signatures must be those of registered voters.

In the 1984 election, 2,226,727 people voted, meaning the Libertarians would need 44,534 signatures. The petitions must include the signatures of 200 registered voters from each of four congressional districts, Ms. McLean said.

The petitions must be turned in the state board by noon June 1, she said. But first, the signatures must be verified by the county boards of election. So the petitions must be filed there on the 15th day preceding the date they must be filed with the state board, Ms. McLean said.

Paul told a Duke University audience of about 60 people Thursday night the country is in trouble because Americans have been living on the wealth of the next generation.

"You can get away with that for a while," he said, "but eventually something happens. We tend to borrow money from overseas, and we tend to buy products from overseas."

Paul said he switched to the Libertarian Party after being disappointed by the Republican Party. The GOP "is no longer seen as a vehicle to limit government," he said.

The Libertarian Party opposes income taxes and would allow private businesses to take over most government operations, said Bobby Emory, vice chairman of the party in North Carolina.

Judge Orders Social Security Hearings For 80,000 Tar Heels

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A federal judge has given the government 90 days to offer new hearings for more than 80,000 North Carolina residents whose Social Security disability benefits have been denied or cut off over the last six years.

U.S. District Court Judge James McMillan's order Thursday ends four years of litigation over the issue and outlines how state residents should apply for the disability benefits.

"The Christmas season is a fitting one for the full force of Judge McMillan's now four-year-old ruling to take final hold," said John Wester, who headed the team of Charlotte lawyers that argued the case. "On behalf of our clients, all of us who have worked on this case feel a special sense of joy and relief that thousands of personal ordeals might be near an end."

Under the ruling, the government must notify by mail within 90 days all people whose applications for disability benefits the secretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services denied in North Carolina between Sept. 10, 1981, and May 31, 1987.

McMillan also ordered the secretary to publicize the order in the media and post notices in some public buildings.

The mailed notices are to include a prepaid self-addressed postcard for return to the secretary. It says, "If you want your old denied claim reviewed again, fill out the postcard and return it to social security."

The notices say people have a maximum 120 days to request a review. The notices include the toll-free number and address of the N.C. Disability Information Office — (800) 638-6810 — and the address and telephone number of a local legal services office.

Under McMillan's order, the government in consultation with lawyers or the court will determine who is eligible for a new hearing to determine eligibility for benefits.

On Oct. 5, the U.S. Supreme Court declined to hear the government's appeal of a federal appeals court ruling that thousands of state residents were entitled to new hearings.

The Supreme Court decision had been the latest in a series of setbacks for the federal government since October 1983, when three state residents filed a class-action lawsuit in federal court in Charlotte, arguing that their benefits had unlawfully been denied or terminated.

In deciding the case in February 1984, McMillan ruled that the Social Security Administration had wrongly denied claims and cut off benefits since 1981. He also chastised then Secretary of Health and Human Services Margaret Heckler for disobeying the law.

The government has repeatedly lost in its bid to persuade the federal courts that McMillan's ruling should be struck down.

In March 1985, the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond upheld most of McMillan's ruling, ordering hearings for an estimated 15,000 North Carolinians.

The ruling affected people whose benefits were terminated without proof that their medical conditions had improved. It also affected those who suffer from diabetes, hypertension or pain that had not been established by clinical findings.

The appeals court judges, however, rejected part of McMillan's ruling by dismissing the claims of North Carolinians who hadn't exhausted their administrative appeals or hadn't filed their claims on time.

The plaintiffs appealed, and in June 1986, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down the appeals court decision and upheld all of McMillan's original order.

Six months later, the appeals court reinstated the original opinion.

State Investigating Christmas Tree Sales

RALEIGH (AP) — Authorities in North Carolina and New York are investigating whether complaints about poor quality Christmas trees delivered to the Raleigh area are connected to a New York man twice convicted of fraud in his wholesale Christmas tree business.

"We are working together to see if we have the same person," John Simmons, chief of staff with the N.C. attorney general, said Thursday.

"I don't think there is much question," Simmons said. "It would appear there will be federal charges."

The complaints come from Tri-County Academy in Louisburg, a Raleigh family and a seminary student. They each had invested $3,000 or more in Christmas trees they hoped to resell. They've sold only a few of the trees purchased from the Evergreen Forest Tree Co. of Williamsville, N.Y.

Ted Jeans of the academy, Randy and Pearl Eason of Raleigh and Dan Wackerhagen of Wake Forest said their phone contacts with the company were with a man identifying himself as J.D. York. Invoices received with the trees carried the signature J.D. York.

The school, the Easons and Wackerhagen each reported getting calls this week from a man who identified himself as J.D. York after news reports appeared in both states. The caller offered reimbursement for trees not sold by Christmas, they said.

Kathleen M. Mehlretter, assistant U.S. Attorney for western New York, said a man named James Douglas York of the Williamsville and Amherst, N.Y., area had twice pleaded guilty to federal fraud charges in connection with Christmas trees sold wholesale from Boston to Florida. The firm's name in those cases was Diamond Christmas Trees.

A Winston-Salem woman Wednesday had offered to donate white pines to the private school to replace the scraggly trees bought from New York.

But Jeans said the trees on Becky Cole's property could not be sold as Christmas trees.

"They were not full at all," Jeans said. Mrs. Cole gave the school $100 instead.

Democratic Hopefuls See INF Pact As First Step Toward Disarmament

By JOHN J. GOLDMAN and EILEEN V. QUIGLEY
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

NEW YORK — The six Democratic presidential contenders, meeting in the shadow of the superpower summit Thursday for their 13th debate, used the occasion to hail the treaty on eliminating intermediate-range nuclear missiles as a first step in disarmament.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson suggested that the missiles be destroyed publicly, in "a massive TV ceremony."

"It's a small step for mankind and a giant step for Reagan," Jackson said of the accord. "We must go further to reduce these nuclear weapons."

"Every one of us supports that agreement," said Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, noting that only Vice President George Bush has enthusiastically supported the treaty among the six Republican candidates. The 1½-hour debate was hosted by New York Gov. Mario M. Cuomo, who has said he will not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination. Cuomo was praised by the candidates, who clearly sought his endorsement. But Cuomo, who is still mentioned as a possible candidate if none of the six Democrats emerges as a strong leader this spring, has said he would not voice any choice — if at all — until after the New York primary in April.

Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois said at the debate that if elected he would, in his first day in office, propose to the Soviets a halt to all nuclear warhead testing.

Former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, calling the treaty "a nice start," also said he would seek a test ban treaty and further arms reductions.

Babbitt said he would strive for agreements limiting superpower intervention in Third World nations and establishing a development fund for the Third World. The American response to Soviet willingness to negotiate should be, "We'll see you and we'll raise you," he said.

Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee said he, too, would seek to cut strategic as well as shorter-range nuclear missile arsenals but said it was equally important to reduce fear and mistrust on both sides.

The accord among the candidates on arms control followed a prediction at the start of the debate by Missouri Rep. Richard A. Gephardt that the Democrats would win the 1988 election "because we're going to stand for change."

The tone of the debate was not contentious, rather explanatory, as each candidate took pains to put behind him issues that could prove troublesome once caucuses and primaries begin.

After weeks of being criticized for not listing specifics of how he would balance the budget, Simon said by his third year in the White House he would cut military spending by 6 percent resulting in a reduction of $20 billion. He said that he would seek to lower interest rates and through private initiatives would seek to lower the trade deficit by one-third resulting in a $45 billion budget savings.

He said he would urge new taxes only as a last resort.

Gore, who has made military strength a centerpiece of his campaign, was asked if he endorsed President Reagan's invasion of Grenada. "I do believe it was justified," Gore said, but he said he would stop short of sending troops to troubled Haiti, explaining that the Organization of American States was considering setting up a multilateral force.

As he did in the last debate, Babbitt stood up on stage, and called for new taxes to battle the federal budget deficit. The alternative is "to acquiesce in a lie, to maintain a kind of a conspiracy of silence," he said.

Babbitt tried to expand on the approach by asking the audience of 3,000 to rise with him. Only a handful complied.

"Well, I didn't get all of you," he conceded. "I know New York's a tough sell and I'll be back to have every one of you before next April." The state's primary is April 19.

After the debate ended, Cuomo repeated his non-candidacy in a lively news conference. "I have been saying since 1984 I will not be a candidate. I meant it in 1984, I meant it in 1985, in 1986 and I mean it now." He once again denied that he was waiting for a draft at the Democratic National Convention. "It is wrong to have a brokered convention," he said.

Gorbachev May Give Bush Boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush's rivals in the Republican presidential race generally concede he will get a boost from the superpower summit, but some predict his "Gorbaphoria" won't sit well with Republican primary voters.

During Mikhail S. Gorbachev's four-day visit, Bush made a string of high-profile appearances with the Soviet leader. The two talked privately on Thursday, and Bush later saw Gorbachev off from Andrews Air Force Base as the visit ended.

Bush is the only one of the GOP candidates to come out in favor of the intermediate-range missile treaty signed by President Reagan and Gorbachev on Tuesday.

But Kansas Sen. Bob Dole's Iowa campaign chairman said Thursday he thought the minority leader ought to endorse the arms control treaty signed at the summit "as soon as possible."

Some of Bush's rivals played down the summit's impact on the campaign.

"There's a tiny little blip that he can point to but I don't think it has a lot of political significance," former Gov. Pete du Pont of Delaware said in a telephone interview from New Hampshire.

Bush was testing that blip with a two-day trip to Iowa, a state where support for arms control runs high and where voters will gather in precinct caucuses Feb. 8 to pick their choice for the Republican presidential nomination.

Bush spokesman Steve Hart said the summit and the treaty would be the dominant topic of Bush's speeches during his Iowa swing.

John Buckley, spokesman for Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, another opponent of the treaty, said he expected Bush would get a boost in the polls from the summit.

Senate Approves Deficit-Cutting Tax Package, Takes Up Spending

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is plunging into the second part of its deficit-reduction plan after passing a major component early today, a blend of taxes, benefit cuts and other steps designed to save $52 billion over two years.

Senate leaders scheduled debate today on legislation that would provide $605.9 billion for domestic and military spending for the 1988 fiscal year, which began Oct. 1. Folded into the massive bill are $7.6 billion in reductions from projected levels of higher spending, savings that are a piece of the deficit-cutting package that President Reagan and congressional leaders agreed to last month.

But like many end-of-year measures that must be passed, the package is likely to attract numerous amendments from lawmakers seeking to breathe life into pet causes.

Among them could be a provision from administration supporters that would supply $22.8 million in non-military aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

"Let's not have the usual Christmas tree amendments here," Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., begged his colleagues late Thursday as he looked ahead to today's work. "We have nearly four pages single-spaced of amendments listed. That's folly."

Shortly after midnight today, the lawmakers approved the tax bill by voice vote. That measure, along with the savings in the spending bill, would allow legislators to claim about $80 billion in deficit cutting over the next two years.

The most important challenge to the measure during floor debate came from a group of lawmakers headed by Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., who would have frozen defense and many domestic programs, as well as tax rates, at 1987 levels for one year. Kassebaum said her proposal would have saved about $83 billion over two years.

The average taxpayer would notice only one provision in the final bill: a three-year extension of the 3 percent federal levy on telephone calls, which would otherwise expire next month. Other provisions are aimed at corporations and wealthy people.

The largest benefit reductions include $5.5 billion in savings from Medicare, mainly from lowered payments to hospitals and physicians; $2.5 billion in decreased farm support payouts; $2.3 billion by changing parts of the Veterans' Administration loan program; and $1.8 billion by altering the way the Postal Service finances its employees' health insurance.

change the bill and jeopardize its approval by Reagan.

"The important thing here is deficit reduction," Byrd said.

"I think most members want to finish this bill and demonstrate we can govern," said Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

In a letter to lawmakers, White House officials warned that the measure already included language the president opposes. Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III and budget director James C. Miller III wrote that changes must be made in the provisions — on farm support programs and sales of federal assets — before "we could recommend the president approve" the bill.

The House already has passed its own versions of the two deficit-reduction measures. The two chambers must work out compromise bills, and then pass them, before they can go to the White House.

The revenue bill includes $9 billion in new taxes for fiscal 1988 and $14 billion more for next year, and provides reductions in federal benefits, sales of federal assets and other savings that were outlined by White House and congressional officials at their budget summit.

TIP GOES HOME — Former House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill is wheeled out of the Brigham & Women's Hospital in Boston as he heads home after surgery. ## EPA To Study Lead Content In Coolers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency will promptly look into a report that electric drinking-water fountains may be exposing people, especially children, to unhealthy doses of lead, an agency official says.

"It's a relevant piece of information that we must come to grips with," Larry Jensen, assistant EPA administrator for water, said. "We'll do it as quickly as possible."

He made the statements Thursday after the House Energy and Commerce health subcommittee was told that water is being contaminated by lead components in an unknown but sizable number of electric fountains in schools and other buildings.

The warning was sounded by Paul Mushak, adjunct professor of environmental pathology at the University of North Carolina, who is co-author of a study of lead poisoning in children that is being prepared for the Public Health Service.

A draft excerpt released at the subcommittee hearing said "virtually all electric drinking-water fountains (coolers) in schools appear to have sizable elevations of lead in their water."

Mushak said in an interview that he expected to change the words "virtually all" to "many, if not most," in the final report.

He said that although he mentioned only school water fountains in the report, the problem may be greater because there is little if any difference between electric coolers in schools and those found elsewhere.

Witnesses stressed that coolers in schools and day-care centers pose the greatest risk to public health because children are more susceptible than adults to lead poisoning, which can cause reduced intelligence and various health problems.

Mushak said he did not know the exact levels of lead that electric coolers could be adding to water from lead-lined storage tanks or lead solder used in their construction.

Vengeful Note Found In Crash

CAYUCOS, Calif. (AP) — A fired airline employee scribbled a vengeful note on an airsickness bag informing his ex-supervisor that he would get no mercy aboard a doomed Pacific Southwest Airlines flight, authorities said.

"Hi Ray, I think it's sort of ironical that we end up like this," read the unsigned message, which authorities said Thursday was written by David Burke to Raymond Thomson. "I asked for some leniency for my family, remember. Well I got none and you'll get none."

Investigators found the message amid the debris on a central California hillside where Pacific Southwest Airlines Flight 1771 crashed Monday, said Richard Bretzing, special agent in charge of the FBI in Los Angeles.

A .44-caliber Magnum pistol found Wednesday at the crash site was linked on Thursday to Burke.

"We have arrived at the point where we have the suspect we believe is responsible," Bretzing said. "Were he still alive we have more than sufficient evidence to charge him."

Officials also said evidence indicates an explosion as well as gunfire may have destroyed the plane as it crashed while bound from Los Angeles to San Francisco, killing all 43 aboard.

He also said a part of Burke's body had been located and had been identified through a fingerprint check.

Burke, 35, worked 14 years for USAir, parent company of PSA. But he was fired as a Los Angeles customer service agent on Nov. 19 after a hidden camera filmed him allegedly stealing less than $100 from flight cocktail sales.

In a visit to San Francisco on an unspecified November date, Burke borrowed a .44-caliber Magnum Smith and Wesson handgun and 12 rounds of ammunition from Joseph Drabik, a friend and fellow USAir worker, said an FBI affidavit filed in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles.

The affidavit says Burke and Thomson met at 12:30 p.m. the day of the crash, and that after the meeting, Burke bought a one-way ticket for the PSA flight.

Thomson, 48, died in the crash.

Also Thursday, CBS News quoted sources as saying the cockpit voice recording for the doomed PSA flight quoted a flight attendant as saying: "We've got a problem here."

Deaver Trial Going To Jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jurors in Michael K. Deaver's perjury trial are being asked to decide whether the former presidential aide purposefully concealed improper influence peddling or was hounded by an overzealous prosecutor.

Independent counsel Whitney North Seymour Jr. weaved an intricate web of direct and circumstantial evidence in his three-hour summation Thursday to show that Deaver lied to avoid embarrassment and prosecution for unethical lobbying.

Seymour argued that Deaver "started on a deliberate plan of coverup" to bury allegations he had used his influence with President Reagan to get high-paying lobbying contracts.

Deaver lied to protect the value of his lobbying firm and to spare Reagan and his wife, Nancy, both longtime friends, any embarrassment, Seymour said.

"If the world knew the way he was using his relationship with them to entice these clients ... it probably would have broken their hearts," Seymour said.

Defense lawyer Herbert J. Miller Jr. told jurors that if they applied common sense and followed their hearts there was only one verdict they could reach: not guilty on all five perjury counts.

"Common sense is going to tell you that it would be stupid and ridiculous for Mr. Deaver to go ... and intentionally lie and cover up," said Miller, whose casual, folksy delivery contrasted with Seymour's formal presentation.

Miller tried to convince jurors that somehow Seymour had lost sight of the truth in the maze of documents and other evidence the prosecutor had amassed against Deaver.

"What you've seen and heard, what you know about Mike Deaver, you know in your hearts he did not engage in some plan or scheme to lie or to commit perjury," Miller said.

Deaver "is a man who could go to the president" for clients "but because of the type of man he is he never did," Miller said.

The jury was set to begin deliberations today following legal instructions by U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson.

The former deputy White House chief of staff could be sentenced to up to 25 years in prison and fined $34,000 if convicted of all five charges of lying to a grand jury and a House subcommittee.

Inflation Still Below 3 Percent

Food Prices Offset Energy Declines As Wholesale Prices Hold The Line

By TOM RAUM
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices held steady in November with higher food prices offsetting a slight decrease in energy costs, the government reported today.

Economists called the new report further evidence that inflation remains subdued, although consumer prices have been rising faster than wholesale prices.

With only one month to go in 1987, inflation at the wholesale level was running at an annual rate of 2.7 percent. The Labor Department's Producer Price Index had fallen 0.2 percent in October.

Food prices, which had fallen 0.1 percent in October, rose 0.3 percent, led by a 40 percent surge in the cost of vegetables.

Lettuce prices alone rose 95.4 percent last month, as unfavorable weather and insect infestations combined to decimate California's iceberg lettuce crop.

Pork prices tumbled 9.2 percent; beef and veal costs were off 4.4 percent; fish prices dropped 6.1 percent; poultry prices were off 0.6 percent.

Fruit prices, however, rose 7.6 percent while egg costs gained 9.0 percent.

Energy prices overall fell for the third month in a row. November's 0.9

percent decline, however, was not as steep as the 1 percent drop of October and the 3.7 percent fall of September.

But gasoline prices, down 0.6 percent last month, edged up 0.2 percent in November. Home heating oil prices, up 2.2 percent in October, rose 1.6 percent. Natural gas costs were down 3.2 percent after falling 2.7 percent in the preceding month.

The index for goods other than food and energy also showed no change last month. It had held flat in October.

The Labor Department gave these other specifics of November and October wholesale price activity:

- New automobile prices dropped 2.2 percent after a 1.6 percent rise in October.
- Alcoholic beverage prices fell 0.2 percent. Coffee prices gained 0.2 percent.
- Heavy equipment costs rose 0.1 percent.
- Furniture prices gained 0.4 percent.
- Women's apparel prices rose 0.2 percent. Children's clothing prices dropped 0.5 percent and men's clothing costs dropped 0.3 percent.

The November rise left the overall index at 298.1, meaning that goods costing $10 in a 1967 base period would have cost $29.81 last month — compared to $29.07 for the same items in November 1986.

The overall index is not adjusted to remove the effects of predictable seasonal influences. The other figures in the report do contain such adjustments.

Bakker Says He's Again Ordained

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Former PTL leader Jim Bakker has told associates he was ordained four weeks ago by a Tulsa, Okla., church, but the church's director refused to confirm the report.

It would be a "little presumptuous" to say Bakker has been ordained, said Robert Lemon, national director of the charismatic Faith Christian Fellowship International. He said a statement would be issued later today.

"You might be saying something that isn't altogether factual," Lemon said Thursday. "Really, what the church does is kind of private, but we plan to make a statement tomorrow."

Lemon declined to discuss the process for ordaining a minister in his church.

The Assemblies of God defrocked Bakker on May 6 after he left PTL in March amid a sex-and-money scandal. He has been meeting with the hierarchy of the Faith Christian church, said Bakker's agent, Jeff Franklin.

Bakker's attorneys and Vicki Meadows, president of the Bring Bakkers Back Club, also said Bakker told them he had been ordained.

The Tulsa church was founded in 1977 by Dr. Doyle "Buddy" Harrison and includes 114 overseas congregations, said the Rev. Larry Walker, a staff minister.

The Assemblies of God dismissed Bakker as a minister after he confessed to a sexual encounter with Jessica Hahn. A federal grand jury is investigating Bakker and his top aides for possible misuse of PTL funds.

Gorbachev Stuns Security, Mixes With Crowd

By DAVID REMNICK and LOIS ROMANO
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — Mikhail Gorbachev's limousine screamed to a halt at noon Thursday, and in an instant there was a hysterical buzzing around the car.

Horrified security agents yelled to the crowd, "Keep your hands out of your pockets!" People on the sidewalks watching the Soviet leader's motorcade to the White House thought something had gone terribly wrong.

Not until they saw Gorbachev's unmistakable pate bob up in the crowd did everyone realize that they were witnessing not a disaster but a classic, American-style whistle stop at one of Washington's busiest intersections: Connecticut Avenue and L Street NW.

With an interpreter trailing him, Gorbachev stepped up to the first woman he saw, shook her hand and said, "Hello, I'm glad to be in America. I'm glad to be friends with all of you."

The cars in the motorcade ahead of Gorbachev's boxy ZIL limousine didn't seem to realize what was happening at first. When they did, the drivers slammed on the brakes and backed up at a terrific speed. District of Columbia police made furious U-turns on their motorcycles, and flat-footed beat it down the street with their hands on their holsters.

"It looked like a scene out of the Keystone Kops," said Leslie Kobylinski, who was on a break from her job at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

"He's out!" one policeman shouted. "He's shaking hands!"

Surrounded by nervous security agents in dark suits, the general secretary of the Communist Party of the U.S.S.R. spent two minutes at the curb in front of 1050 Connecticut Ave. waving, schmoozing and shaking hands with a half-dozen people. He worked the crowd as if he were the front-runner in an upcoming District of Columbia primary.

Calm amid the giddiness, Gorbachev told Lise Murphy, a passer-by, "My people are pushing me very hard to come to a better understanding of the American people."

It took a few moments before everyone joined in the spirit of the moment. "Some people seemed hesitant to shake hands with him," Murphy said. "They said, 'May I shake your hand?' and he reached right over and grabbed their hand. He seemed like a presidential candidate."

When restaurateur Duke Zeibert saw what was happening on the street below, he bolted to the balcony of his popular eatery, barking, "Come on up and have lunch! We have borsch!"

And Howard McNamara, a bartender at Zeibert's, managed to snap a roll of photographs of Gorbachev being mobbed by the lunchtime crowd.

George Bush came out of Gorbachev's car looking very vice presidential as he stood nearby on the street and shook hands with a much smaller crowd. Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze stood to the side smiling as if Gorbachev's impromptu stop in the middle of Washington was a daily event.

American security officials dread spontaneity, but that has been one of Gorbachev's political trademarks since he came to power nearly three years ago. After a month in office, he worked the crowd at a Leningrad shipyard, and last year on the way to an airport in New Delhi he called for his car to stop so he could meet with a group of Indians by the highway.

By the time he made his stop Thursday, Gorbachev was already an hour late for an appointment at the White House with President Reagan. Police said the delay was due to an apparent bomb threat inside a building on 16th Street NW.

Connecticut Avenue had been cleared for Gorbachev. The side streets were shut off by barriers and police. Yards and yards of clear pavement. Squad cars everywhere. People standing on the street barely took notice of the helicopters whipping their blades overhead. Washingtonians have seen motorcades before.

Then the long string of cars and vans and motorcycles came snaking down the street.

Suddenly, Gorbachev's limo put down nasty screech marks. The car behind his almost slammed into his rear fender. In front of the Soviet Embassy on 16th Street NW, a policeman's radio crackled with an ominous message: "We have a traffic problem at Connecticut and L."

"I thought, 'My God, something's happened to him!'" said April Grierson, a phone-company employee who was walking to lunch.

"I was sure something bad had happened," said Betsy Caine. "I was frightened."

Twenty or 30 security officials jumped out of various cars. "They were everywhere," Caine said. Agents leaped on a row of newspaper vending machines and helped form a protective cocoon around Gorbachev. They started looking to and fro as if they were watching a hysterical tennis match.

A Secret Service spokesman later said Gorbachev's decision to stop "was a little unusual. All we do is plan their security. If they want to walk or stop, that becomes part of the game plan."

Crowds quickly clogged every corner of the intersection.

Gorbachev leaned over the New York Post box — "NEW NAZI ATROCITIES BARED!" — and won the crowd. People flashed him the peace sign and yelled, "Welcome!"

"I was born and raised in D.C. and I've never even seen any U.S. president live before," said Pat Simonds. Gorbachev, said Barrie Kessler, a computer consultant, "is a great PR man."

At Duke Zeibert's, waiters and customers rushed to the balcony. Gorbachev looked up at the expense-account crowd and waved. The 40 people on the balcony and the crowd on the street burst into applause as television cameras rolled.

"Even from the balcony you could sense the charisma of the man," said Raleigh Schein, director of advertising at The Washington Post. "It was almost like a parade or a celebration. There was a world leader out shaking hands and you kind of felt the world was going to be okay. None of us wanted to let go of the moment. It was such a warm moment, of love. I'm a cynic, but I got chills."

"For about a minute there, I felt like a part of history," said John Williams, 24, executive assistant for the Council for Court Excellence. "As a Republican, I've always had a basic distrust of the Soviets. But this! It won't make a drastic change, but it softened me up a little. He must have done this all on his own. It showed a basic trust of the American people."

Indeed, Gorbachev told Bush that he decided to stop the motorcade because people in the Soviet Union react "favorably" to interacting with their leaders.

"I was driving along with him in the back seat of his car and we were getting a warm reception from the American people," Bush told a group of reporters later in the day.

Gorbachev spoke to the crowd in Russian, and his interpreter kept pace. "We come from two great countries," Gorbachev said. "It was so good to come here."

As he was turning to go back to his car, the applause grew louder and Gorbachev could not resist lingering at the door. He and Bush stood together and waved, looking very much like a triumphant campaign ticket. As the car drove away, Gorbachev kept his palm pressed to the window in farewell.

By the time he made it to the White House, he was an hour and a half late. As the car rolled up in the White House driveway, the president was there to greet it.

"I thought you'd gone home," Reagan said to Gorbachev.

Gorbachev smiled. "I had a chat with a group of Americans who stopped our car."

the White House, to stop in the street and he then left the car and mixed with the crowd, shaking hands and exchanging greetings. (AP Laserphoto)

Warsaw Pact May Offer New Arms Reduction Plan

By GIRARD C. STEICHEN
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev arrived in East Berlin today for a Warsaw Pact summit that may agree on new arms reduction proposals, following the Kremlin chief's Washington talks with President Reagan.

The official East German news agency ADN said Gorbachev was welcomed at East Berlin's Schoenefeld airport by East German Communist Party chief Erich Honecker and other officials.

It said thousands of people filled the airport to greet Gorbachev and his wife, Raisa.

Gorbachev flew to East Berlin directly from Washington after ending his talks with Reagan on Thursday.

Western diplomatic sources told The Associated Press that leaders of the Soviet-led Communist alliance may announce new arms reduction proposals during their meeting with Gorbachev.

The diplomatic sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Thursday that the proposals were likely to include reducing the number of conventional forces and short-range nuclear missiles in East Germany.

Gorbachev's allies are expected to endorse formally the intermediate-range nuclear weapons treaty signed Tuesday in Washington that will scrap Soviet and U.S. shorter- and medium-range nuclear missiles.

Under the treaty, all such Soviet missiles stationed in East Germany and Czechoslovakia will be destroyed.

The Soviet leader was scheduled to meet with the Warsaw Pact's Political Advisory Committee at East Berlin's luxury Palace Hotel today, where he will brief them on details on the Washington summit.

Berlin is divided into the Communist-controlled eastern sector and the non-Communist western sector.

The Warsaw Pact summit will be followed by lunch given by Honecker.

Members of the advisory committee include Communist Party chiefs from the seven Warsaw Pact nations, heads of government, foreign and defense ministers as well as high-ranking Soviet military officials.

Communist Party leaders attending the meeting include Gustav Husak of Czechoslovakia, Todor Zhivkov of Bulgaria and Janos Kadar of Hungary.

East German officials announced Thursday that Romanian leader Nicolae Ceausescu was unable to attend and will be represented by Romanian Foreign Minister Ioan Totu.

Wolfgang Meyer, spokesman for the East German Foreign Ministry, said Ceausescu was busy preparing for an upcoming conference of the Romanian Communist Party.

Ceausescu's surprise decision to miss the East Berlin meeting underscores the significance of the party conference at home.

The Romanian party conference is expected to be held in Bucharest Monday and Tuesday. It was originally scheduled for last month, but was delayed following reports of a large-scale workers protest in Brasov, Romania's second-largest city.

Western reports last month said that between 10,000 and 20,000 people protested in Brasov against harsh living conditions and food shortages.

Romania is facing growing food and energy shortages as it struggles to repay its foreign debt.

Diplomatic sources said new arms reduction proposals would be put forward in East Berlin if the summit talks in Washington had "proceeded positively."

Reagan and Gorbachev have said they made progress during their talks toward agreement on a treaty for a 50 percent reduction in long-range ballistic missiles.

On Thursday, the East German government praised the U.S.-Soviet treaty.

Meyer called the accord a "historic milestone toward achieving a world free of nuclear weapons."

"In the view that more nuclear weapons no longer mean peace and stability, this is an important first move," Meyer told reporters.

West Germany in recent weeks has stepped up its calls for the Warsaw Pact to reduce its reduce conventional forces and short-range nuclear weapons.

WILLIAM T. BOYD

Boyd Backs AIDS Tests

State Rep William T. Boyd, R-Randolph, who announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor at a press conference in Raleigh Thursday, was in Greenville this morning to reinforce his pledge to make the legislative process more open and to push for mandatory AIDS testing.

The Asheboro homebuilder and three-term legislator said if elected he would "return the Legislature to the people of North Carolina. I plan to support a bill to ban closed government meetings once and for all," Boyd said.

House Speaker "Liston Ramsey may continue closed door meeting," Boyd said. But "there will be no more closed door sessions instigated by the lieutenant governor where legislators meet behind closed doors to decide how they will divide up our tax dollars."

Boyd also pledged support for AIDS testing, saying "I will continue to fight" for "testing of prisoners" in the state's prisons, "testing for prostitutes after they are convicted," and testing as a requirement for receiving a marriage license. "AIDS is a serious problem that must be addressed," he said.

Boyd, voicing support for education, said "we must get back to the three 'Rs' ... reading writing and arithmetic ... and a fourth, respect."

Steve Walsh of Charlotte, a major Congressional Club backer, is Boyd's campaign manager, while Priscilla East of Greenville, the widow of U.S. Sen. John East, is his honorary chairman.

ECU Math-Science Program Recognized

An East Carolina University program designed to provide more qualified math and science teachers for rural eastern North Carolina schools has been selected by the Title II National Steering Committee and the U.S. Department of Education as one of 23 exemplary projects.

Dr. Katherine Hodgkin, director of the ECU Science-Mathematics Education Center (SMEC), was invited to Washington, D.C., this week to present the program to national and regional Education for Economic Security Act (EESA) Title II representatives attending the fourth national conference on the implementation of the EESA.

The Lateral Entry Program trains college graduates who are interested in becoming certified teachers of science or math in the fundamentals of instruction.

To qualify, individuals must have a college degree in a math or science field with a grade point average of 2.5 or better. In addition, they must pass the National Teachers Exam and be approved by the interview panel.

Participants are required to com-

Greenville will meet Monday at noon at the Three Steers Restaurant. A Christmas theme program will be held.

For further information call Nina Redditt at 752-6410.

Santa Visits Center

Santa will visit the South Greenville Recreation Center on Howell Street between noon and 2 p.m. Saturday. Refreshments will be served.

The visit is sponsored by the Eastern North Carolina Regional Association of Black Social Workers. For more information call 355-7011.

Club Plans Party

The Hillsdale Community Club will have a pre-Christmas party at 6 p.m. Sunday at Acheson's Family Buffet, 500 W. Greenville Blvd.

PTO Meets Monday

The Wintergreen Elementary School Parent-Teacher Organization will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. A Christmas program sponsored by the kindergarten through second-grade students will follow the business session.

The PTO executive board recently met and reported that Community Schools funded $3,300, one of four projects submitted by the board, to purchase playground equipment. Due to fund-raisers, the Pumpkin Fall Festival and the sweat shirt and tee shirt sale, teachers were allotted $1,250 to purchase supplementary classroom materials, and 1,000 was given to the library to rebind books.

Woods Visited Class

Jim Woods of WNCT-TV in Greenville recently visited Cathy Rigby's fourth-grade class at Stokes Elementary School.

Woods discussed the career of weather reporting and explained how to read a weather map and how to use weather symbols. The class performed a play, "A Thunder Storm," and presented Woods with a book of North Carolina titled "Weather Folklore," which they illustrated.

Making Good Things Happen!

Winning the Dog Days Regatta means holding a steady course. Texasgulf holds a steady course all year long. A course that says we care about our community. We take part in civic organizations, and we contribute annually to schools, libraries and civic clubs, just to give you a few examples.

And then there's the Dog Days Regatta, which we cosponsor at our recreation area on the Pamlico River. Over the last seven years, the regatta has raised more than $30,000 for local charities. Texasgulf—on the right course for a better community.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed higher today, rebounding from Thursday's drop.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial rose 14.75 to 1,870.19 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 4 to 3 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 614 up, 450 down and 478 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 23.21 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Despite some selling late Thursday, analysts said the stock market impressed many traders with a relatively calm response to the news of a record U.S. trade deficit in October that far exceeded most advance estimates.

The Labor Department said the producer price index of finished goods was unchanged in November, and the Commerce Department reported a 0.2 percent rise in retail sales for the same month.

Carter Takes Oath

Carter voted for Mrs. Shinn, making her mayor pro tem.

Mrs. Shinn said she was surprised there wasn't a consensus on her nomination. "It's my belief that the person receiving the most candidate at-large votes is the appropriate choice for mayor pro tem," she said.

After the ceremony, which was paid for by private sponsorship, Carter spoke of his plans for unifying the council.

"The biggest goal is to get this council together," he said. "I was a little surprised by the maneuver there tonight (having to vote), but you have to be ready for everything and I think it does show where we're starting from, and I think you'll be able to see in the next year or two how well we're doing."

Among those attending the ceremony were state Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr., state Rep. Ed Warren, ECU Chancellor Richard Eakin, various mayors from around the area, community business leaders, and friends and family of the elected officials.

A particular section of the ceremony was reserved for City Manager Greg Knowles, who presented Mrs. Buck and Garner special plaques of recognition.

After reading a list of accomplishments during Garner's term as mayor, including the approval of the medical district plan, the passage of an updated method of election, the construction of a fire-rescue substation, and the adoption of a sign ordinance, Knowles presented the former mayor a plaque citing him for outstanding and dedicated service.

"The three most important things in my life have been my God and his church, my family, and this community," Garner said. "I've tried to serve all three of them, and I believe I have succeeded."

The ceremony was highlighted with entertainment including "The National Anthem," sung by Robin Daily, "America the Beautiful" by Billy Adams, and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" by Rhumel Fuller.

Due to limited parking availability surrounding McGinnis Theater, the city provided a shuttle bus service to transport people from downtown parking lots to and from the event.

According to Mayo Allen, director of public works, the six-bus shuttle service, which transported approximately 100 people during the rainy evening, was a success.

"The shuttle service went over better than we expected. Many people thanked us for offering transportation to them," Allen said.

Following the ceremony, a reception, again financed by private sponsorship, was held for the mayor and new council at the Holiday Inn on Memorial Drive.

Help For Needy Set

vides its own Christmas for many who need it, according to Peggy Chandler, Pitt County chief of the service division.

"We're providing Christmas through the community for people in resthomes, foster children, indigent families and the general disabled and elderly population that might be in need," she said.

The department takes financial, food and toy donations, which it will distribute, she said. Often, Mrs. Chandler said, an organization or family in the area will sponsor a family and provide all the Christmas for that family: food, gifts and holiday cheer.

"We have a real good program in this county, and it's (the aid) all 100 percent provided by the community," she said.

Mrs. Chandler said the department helps about 125 foster children each year. She said she anticipates the number of families that need help to be even greater.

One of the groups that helps garner toys for the children is the Marine Corps Reserve with its Toys for Tots program, Mrs. Chandler said.

"It (Toys for Tots) started in 1947 in the Los Angeles area to benefit World War II orphans," said Gunney Sgt. Randy Houser, the program's coordinator at Cherry Point. "It grew to a nationwide campaign conducted annually in 180 cities, wherever there is a reserve."

Houser said the toys they collect are distributed in the county they are collected in. Last year was the first year for the program in Pitt County. "We had two major efforts," he said, "one with the ECU fraternities, especially the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, and the other with the Greenville Athletic Club's Jail-a-thon."

Houser said the reserves will continue to take donations through Dec. 18 at the Greenville Athletic Club.

"(Donations are) ordinarily oriented toward younger children," he said. "We want to emphasize that the assistance we offer goes for children one year of age up to 16 or 17."

"We ordinarily run a little bit short of toys oriented toward the older children."

Houser said the program collected 8,000 toys in all last year, and was able to help 4,000 children.

Another local group taking community donations for the needy is WBZQ radio. General Manager Jim McManus said the station works through the Christian Mission organization to provide food, clothing, blankets and toys for the needy.

McManus said donations would be taken until Dec. 20. Last year, he said, the program helped approximately 1,800 people in the Greenville area.

For information on programs to help the needy, call the Department of Social Services at 758-2167. The phone lines are often busy at this time of the year, according to Mrs. Chandler, so donations are taken at the department's office, 1717 W.

Terp Defense Halts Bucs

By TOM MORRIS

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — After dictating the tempo in the first half, East Carolina lost control of the pace and the ballgame in the second half.

Maryland turned on the defensive pressure over the final 20 minutes to take a 75-59 win over an over-matched Pirate squad Thursday night in college basketball.

"When they turned it on and got after us, they were very competent," said ECU coach Mike Steele. "They picked it up in the second half and we just couldn't play like that. We just couldn't handle their front-court pressure."

The Pirates kept it close in the first half, using a patient offense while holding their own on the boards against the taller Terrapins.

For the first 12 minutes of the game, ECU played the Terps relatively even, keeping it a two-to-four-point ballgame.

ECU pulled within 23-19 with 4:12 left in the first half on a free throw by Stanley Love, but that was as close as the Pirates would get.

On that play, ECU had a three on one advantage on the fast break, but got only a free throw out of it.

"We had a chance to cut it to three with four and a half minutes to go," Steele said. "Then, they go down and make a layup and all of a sudden it goes to six and then they put the pressure on us."

Maryland outscored the Pirates 9-3 over the final four minutes of the first half to take a 32-22 lead.

Still, ECU had the Terps playing tentatively early on and trailed them only 17-15 on the boards despite giving up at least a few inches at every position.

The Pirates, though, hurt themselves by shooting only 35 percent from the field over the first 20 minutes.

"I think in the first half, East Carolina played well," said Maryland guard Rudy Archer, who scored 14 points. "They made us play their type of ballgame. They slowed it down and ran their offense."

"In the second half, we just came out and made it an up-tempo game. We caused them to make some turnovers and took advantage of them."

The strategy worked. Maryland outscored ECU 13-4 over the first five minutes as the Terps built up a 45-26 lead.

"We felt like there were some things defensively that we could do and defensively, I thought we played well in the first half," Steele said.

"What we didn't want to have happen was have them run off six to eight points in a row."

However, that was exactly what the Terps did as ECU compounded its poor shooting percentage with 14 second half turnovers.

Freshman center Brian Williams, 6-11, was the offensive key for the Terps, scoring a 24 points, including a school record 11 straight field goals. He hit on 12 of 16 shots for the night.

The Pirates came out in the second half and promptly turned the ball over when freshman Tehern Harvey stepped on the out of bounds line. Maryland quickly scored as Williams hit a short jumper to make it 34-22.

ECU followed that up with another turnover, this one by freshman Love. Archer followed that with a free throw to make it 35-22.

Love broke the ice for ECU with a follow basket to make it 35-24 with 18:27 to go. Archer countered for Maryland with a jumper, but ECU's Dominique Martin came up with a bucket to make it 37-26 with 17:41 remaining.

But Maryland scored six straight baskets as ECU went almost four and a half minutes without a basket.

Williams started it off with two shots inside along with a short jumper and a dunk off a rebound. Archer then hit two more jumpers to give the Terps 33-point bulge at 49-26.

Gus Hill ended the drought for ECU with a bucket inside that made it 49-28 with 13:04 remaining.

Williams scored 10 of the Terps first 13 points of the second half as he took advantage of being guarded by either the 6-5 Love or the 6-6 Martin.

Maryland went on to expand its lead over the final 13 minutes as ECU never got closer than 20 points from there on out.

ECU ended up holding a 39-36 rebounding edge for the game but that was offset by a 41 percent team shooting percentage.

"The first half, we struggled," said Maryland coach Bob Wade. "They (the Terps) have a tendency to relax and play another team's tempo and not be aggressive."

"(In the second half), we went into a up-tempo defense. We doubled the ball and did some other things, forced them into some turnovers and we got some garbage baskets."

ECU was led by Reed Lose's 13 points, nine of which came in the first half, while Gus Hill added 10.

Due to exams, ECU drove to Maryland for the game that day, but Steele refused to use that as an excuse for the loss.

"We came up today because, for whatever reason, last year they scheduled three games during exam week," he said.

"But that's absolutely no excuse. As young as our guys are (ECU started three freshman), most of them are used to making (same-day) trips in high school. They don't even know any better. If somebody had told them it might have confused them but they didn't even know."

ECU falls to 2-2 and returns to action Saturday at home against Virginia Commonwealth.

Lady Eagles Hold Off ECU

By WOODY PEELE

Regina Days scored 14 second half points to lead Georgia Southern to a 75-70 basketball victory over the East Carolina Lady Pirates Thursday night in Minges Coliseum.

Days, who finished with 21 points, hit on seven of 10 field goal attempts and seven of nine at the foul line, as she dominated the middle of the offense for the Lady Eagles in the game.

East Carolina, which had trailed by as much as 10 points in the second half, rallied to within two on a couple of occasions, including one last time in the final minute of play, but the Lady Pirates were unable to pull it out.

"We never really recovered from the first half," Coach Pat Pierson said. The Lady Pirates shot a poor .379 percentage from the floor in the opening half, despite gaining a 29-29 tie at intermission. They were also beaten by 10 on the boards, giving Georgia Southern ample opportunity to stay in the game despite having 16 turnovers as compared to just nine for the Lady Pirates.

East Carolina's biggest problem was missing the easy shot. Time after time, the Lady Pirates missed layups — something they can ill afford to do.

"We played hard," Pierson said, "but we're just going to have to do a better job of executing and running the offense. Right now, I just don't think that they have the confidence in themselves that it takes."

Pierson also said she probably should have switched from the regular man-to-man defense the Lady Pirates use to a zone in the second half to try and cut down on the inside scoring of the Lady Eagles. "That's my fault," she said. "But we were doing such a poor job of moving that I was afraid that it would carry over."

The Lady Pirates came out icy cold, scoring only one basket in the first seven and a half minutes of play. Georgia Southern scored the first five points before ECU's Monique Pompili scored. But the Lady Eagles scored the next seven points to push their lead out to 10, 12-2.

East Carolina finally found the range as Pompili hit a short jumper from the baseline with 12:11 left for only the second basket for the Lady Pirates. But over the next six minutes, ECU outthit Georgia Southern, 14-5. Chris O'Connor hit a 3-point basket with 6:40 left to push ECU ahead for the first time, 18-17, but it was short-lived.

Phyllette Blake, who led the Eagles with 26 points, hit a layup 18 seconds later to push Georgia Southern back on top by one. Irish Hamilton hit the first of two free throws with six minutes left to tie it once more, but the Lady Pirates were unable to regain the lead.

Instead, Blake scored twice over the next few minutes as the Eagles raised their lead to six again, 27-21.

But Gretta Savage hit two free throws, Alma Bethea made a layup and Pompili scored off a steal to tie it at 29-29 with 16 seconds left, and that was the way the half ended.

Betha hit a layup with 36 seconds gone in the second half to put ECU ahead one last time, 31-29. Blake tied it up with a short jumper and Carla Sisson hit a 14-footer to put the Eagles back on top, 33-31.

East Carolina tied it up at 36-36, 38-38 and once more at 40-40 before Days hit two free throws, then added two more to give the Eagles a 4-point edge, 44-40.

East Carolina closed it back to one, 45-44, but Days and Antonette Brown led another pullaway that opened up a 10-point lead, 56-46, before Days drew her fourth foul and went to the bench. Rose Miller, however, hit a free throw and O'Connor followed with a 3-pointer. Betha and Pompili both contributed baskets and the lead fell to two, 56-54, with 6:34 left.

But Blake then took the up slack and led the Eagles back to another 10 point lead, 69-59 with 3:31 to go. The Lady Pirates rallied once more, cutting the lead back to two at 72-70 on another 3-pointer by O'Connor and six straight points by Pompili, but Brown made the front-end of a free throw and the Lady Eagles got the rebound and were fouled again, with

Oklahoma Rallies To Stay Unbeaten

By The Associated Press

After watching his team score nine straight points to come from behind and remain unbeaten, Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs raved about the Sooners' defense.

"We made the defensive plays down the stretch and then converted them," Tubbs said of the 16th-ranked Sooners' 89-87 victory Thursday night over Florida State. "They had us on the ropes, but we bowed up and made the defensive plays."

Down 84-80 with less than three minutes to play, Oklahoma, 5-0, scored nine consecutive points before Florida State's Aubry Boyd hit a 45-foot shot at the buzzer. Mookie Blaylock's steal and layup with 38 seconds remaining snapped an 84-84 tie and gave the Sooners the lead for good.

"The true test of a club is getting out there and winning on the road against a good team," Tubbs said. "Florida State is a good team."

In other games involving Top Twenty teams Thursday night, No. 11 Temple defeated St. Joseph's 83-62, No. 15 Michigan downed Austin Peay 88-67 and No. 19 Notre Dame stopped Prairie View 89-52.

Oklahoma twice opened up 16-point leads before Florida State, 3-1, rallied late in the game.

"We did a great job of coming back, but exhaustion and our youthfulness hurt us at the end," said Florida State Coach Pat Kennedy, who has just one senior on the team.

Florida State was led by George McCloud's 20 points. Tony Dawson and Tat Hunter added 17 points apiece and Tharon Mayes had 15. Hunter's 16 rebounds helped Florida State to 52-34 rebounding advantage.

"That was an all-conference show by Hunter," Kennedy said. "What a difference a year has made for him. He's serious this year. He believes in himself now."

Ricky Grace scored 25 points, Stacey King added 24, Harvey Grant 16 and Blaylock 13 for Oklahoma, which hit on 34 of 67 shots, including eight of 16 from 3-point range.

No. 11 Temple 83, St. Joseph's 62. Mark Macon scored 22 points — matching his average — and helped key a 12-0 first-half surge as Temple, 3-0, defeated crosstown rival St. Joseph's in an Atlantic 10 game. Howard Evans added 18 points for the Owls.

Rodney Blake paced St. Joseph's with 22 points.

St. Joseph's put four players in a zone and had one man follow Macon, a defense the freshman saw for the first time in college but faced often in high school.

It didn't work. Macon said he was happy passing the ball in that situation.

"We've got other guys who can score," he said.

With Temple leading 22-14, Evans hit a three-point shot from the top of the key to begin a 12-0 run that saw the Hawks go scoreless for 4:48. Temple led 34-16 when St. Joe's finally scored with 4:32 remaining in the half. St. Joseph's, 1-3, could close the gap no closer than 17 points in the second half.

No. 15 Michigan 88, Austin Peay 67. Gary Grant scored 28 points as Michigan, 6-1, took control of the game early in the second half and went on to defeat Austin Peay.

The Wolverines put together a 10-point run that gave them a 58-41 lead with 13:44 to play. Austin Peay couldn't get closer than 13 points the rest of the way.

Andre Harris had 21 points to lead Austin Peay, 2-3.

No. 19 N. Dame 89, Prairie View 52. Keith Robinson scored 18 points and grabbed 17 rebounds as Notre Dame overwhelmed Prairie View. David Rivers added 17 points for the Irish, including six during an early decisive streak.

Prairie View, 0-4, committed 18 fouls in the opening 20 minutes, and the Irish responded with 17 points from the free throw line en route to improving their record to 3-1. Notre Dame had a 19-4 scoring streak after Reginald Jones hit the first of three 3-point field goals to give the Panthers their last lead at 10-8.

Jones led the Panthers with 19 points.

Other Games

Robert Smith's short bank shot with 12 seconds remaining gave Oklahoma State a 66-65 victory over Tulsa. Smith, called for goaltending moments earlier, grabbed the rebound and laid the shot off the backboard after Richard Dumas missed a short jumper. Tulsa, working without a timeout, got a jumper from Rod Parker with three seconds remaining, but it bounced off the rim and Dumas grabbed the rebound as time expired.

Oklahoma State, 2-3, was playing its first game in newly renovated Gallagher-Iba Arena. Tulsa dropped to 2-3.

At Providence, R.I., Delray Brooks scored 22 points, including the last eight, as Providence College held off Boston College 85-82 in the Big East basketball opener for both teams. Brooks tied the game 80-80 with a 3-pointer with 2:02 left to play, put Providence ahead for good at 83-80 on another 3-pointer with 43 seconds remaining and sealed the victory with two free throws with 19 seconds left.

At Madison, Wis., Danny Jones scored 18 points and Wisconsin hit 11 straight free throws down the stretch for a 66-55 victory over intrastate rival Marquette. The victory was only the second for Wisconsin Coach Steve Yoder in his five meetings with Marquette.

At College Park, Md., freshman Brian Williams scored eight of his career-high 24 points as Maryland ran off a 14-0 spurt early in the second half en route to a 75-59 victory over East Carolina.

Hinson Lifts Hawks By Rams, 78-76

LAGRANGE — Dave Hinson scored 11 points in the final period, including the final two to lift North Lenoir to a 78-76 basketball victory over Greene Central Thursday night.

North Lenoir's girls also came away with a win, downing Greene Central, 43-28.

The Rams inched out into a 17-16 lead in the first period of the game, but couldn't hold onto it. North Lenoir came roaring back, 24-14, in the second quarter to rush out to a 40-31 halftime lead.

In the third period, Greene Central turned in a rally of its own, scoring 28 while holding the Hawks to 15. That pushed the Rams into the lead, 59-55. But in the final period, Hinson scored 11 of his eventual 16, including two free throws with one second left that meant the difference in the game.

Norwood Kittrell led North Lenoir with 19 points while Will Sutton added 14. Greene Central was led by Anthony Jones' 29 while Tyrone Hardy added 16 and Johnny Joyner and Maurice Streeter each had 10.

Greene Central's girls also held the lead after one period, 10-7, but were scoreless in the second quarter. North Lenoir pushed through 15 and took a 22-10 lead at intermission.

The Lady Rams cut the lead back to 30-20 in the third period, but were outscored 13-8 in the final period.

Tisha Bowie led North Lenoir with 16 while Dashita Kittrell had 10. Chanel Hooker led Greene Central with 10.

The Rams are now 0-3 while the girls are 1-2. They play at D.H. Conley on Tuesday.

JV Game: North Lenoir 77, Greene Central 71.

Chargers Must Play Into Shape

By TOM MORRIS

(Last of a series)

While most teams were doing fine tuning in their last week of preseason high school basketball season, most of Ayden-Grifton's players were still in football gear preparing for the Eastern 2-A playoff finals.

Now that football is over for the Chargers, those players have gone directly from the gridiron to the hardwood with barely enough time to catch their breath. And that has left head coach Bob Murphrey in a bit of a bind.

"It's going to affect us some," Murphrey said of the Chargers' late start. "I think it really is going to take us a couple of weeks to play our way into shape with the usual things, shooting and timing."

"We're going to struggle the first few weeks until we can get ourselves into condition as well as our timing and our sharp shooting."

But few opposing coaches will shed any tears over the Chargers' plight. Ayden-Grifton tied for the Eastern Plains 2-A conference title last season with a 21-6 record and returns its top two scorers in guard Eric Blount and forward Ronnell Peterson.

But the Jaguars did lose three starters off of last year's team in center Leon Dixon, guard Shawn Farmer and forward Hilton Ellison. In addition, Murphrey also lost guard David Dixon, who was expected to start. He is out for the season due to a knee injury suffered in football.

"He was coming on," Murphrey said. "He was going to be our other guard. He played awfully well in the summer league. He was a guard that could handle the ball and take pressure off Eric Blount and free him up to shoot. Losing him was a big blow."

Looking to replace that group are guards Tony Reeves and Darryl Moye, along with frontcourt players Aaron Harper and Bobby Smith.

"We'll play a lot of people early and eventually settle on seven or eight," Murphrey said. "Realistically we know that we're not going to be at the top of our game until January."

"What we'll have to do is use the early games to experiment and get ready and to play our way into shape. Football players are in condition but basketball is definitely a different kind of conditioning. Players have to adjust."

Ayden-Grifton opened the season Wednesday night, just five days after the football team lost to Whiteville 28-0 in the Eastern 2-A finals. The Chargers defeated North Lenoir, 68-66, as Peterson scored 22 points and Blount had 17.

"I feel like these two guys, they are two of the top players in eastern North Carolina as far as perimeter players," Murphrey said. "They both can shoot the three-pointer. They are versatile players that can play the whole game. They are well rounded."

"We are depending on them to be our leaders and to carry the scoring load. They have the experience, like last night, they came through in the clutch. They made the right things happen for us."

Murphrey said the Chargers' late start put them at a disadvantage fundamentally.

"The biggest thing that hurts you is your preseason practice is a time to build a solid base with fundamentals that can kind of carry you the rest of the year," he said.

"(That is where) you learn to do things right and develop good habits. That's the biggest thing we're going to miss. It's not easy to do once the season starts."

Still, the Chargers will be one of the top teams in the EPC, along with Farmville, according to Murphrey.

"I feel like we can be a contender. How far we can go, I don't know," he said. "A realistic goal for us would be in the top three. I know Farmville Central is awfully good. They have some size."

Cox Grapplers Topple Northwood Park

WINTERVILLE — A.G. Cox Middle School rolled up a 60-24 wrestling victory over Northwood Park Thursday night.

Cox won 10 of the 14 weight classes, and all 10 came on pins. Winning were Torrance Smith, John Smith, Timmy Daniels, Lee Smith, K.D. Anderson, Ronnie Barnhill, Emmitt Lang, Terry Turnage, Jamie Mitchell and Steve Daugherty.

Cox is now 4-0 and will play host to West Craven on Monday.

Swofford Reportedly On Interviewing Trail

RALEIGH (AP) — University of North Carolina athletic director John Swofford went to Denver to meet with Air Force Academy head coach Fisher DeBerry and Denver Broncos assistant Mike Shanahan about the UNC head football coaching job. The News and Observer of Raleigh has learned.

Swofford could not be reached for comment.

It is expected that front-runner Mack Brown, Tulane's head coach, will be among the first candidates to be interviewed by the eight-man search committee, of which Swofford is chairman.

Col. John Clune, the Air Force athletic director, said in a telephone interview Thursday night that he did not consider DeBerry to be North Carolina's No. 1 choice.

"Frankly, I'm surprised that John would be out here to talk with Fisher," Clune said. "I was under the impression that they (UNC) already pretty much had their man lined up."

"... They've (UNC) already taken Dean Smith from us," Clune said, laughing. "It looks like they would leave us Fisher."

Smith was an assistant coach at Air Force before becoming an assistant to Frank McGuire on the UNC basketball staff in 1958.

DeBerry, 49, is a 1960 Wofford graduate and a Cheraw, S.C., native. He served as an assistant coach at Appalachian State for nine seasons before joining the Air Force staff as an assistant to then-head coach Ken Hatfield, who is now at Arkansas.

In four seasons as the Falcons head coach, DeBerry has compiled a 35-13 record, including a 9-3 mark in 1987. Air Force plays Arizona State in the Freedom Bowl Dec. 30 in Anaheim, Calif.

DeBerry was voted national coach of the year in 1985, when his team finished 12-1 and was ranked eighth nationally in the final polls. One of his players, Chad Hennings, this week was named the winner of the Outland Trophy as the nation's most outstanding lineman.

Shanahan, 36, is a former offensive coordinator at Florida under Charley Pell and served on the coaching staffs at Oklahoma, Minnesota, Eastern Illinois and Northern Arizona before joining the Broncos in 1984. He told a reporter for the Rocky Mountain News that he was scheduled to visit with Swofford after the meeting with DeBerry.

Brown, 36, a 1973 Florida State graduate, is considered the probable leader for the UNC post that has been vacant since the resignation Nov. 30 of Dick Crum.

Brown, whose 6-5 team faces Washington in the Independence Bowl Dec. 19 in Shreveport, La., was contacted earlier this week by Swofford. He is expected to be among the first applicants to meet the search committee. That meeting is expected to be held Saturday.

Gabriel To Head Up Charlotte Knights

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Former NFL quarterback Roman Gabriel was named Thursday to head baseball operations for the Charlotte Knights Class AA team.

"Roman is one of the finest athletes ever to come out of North Carolina," said team owner George Shinn. "He's a motivation speaker and will be a powerful force in bringing the community together behind the team."

Gabriel, 45, succeeds Andy Kaplan, who left the team to become general manager of the New York Mets' Class A team in Port St. Lucie, Fla.

"I am excited about this opportunity and share George's vision for the future of the Charlotte area and professional sports," he said. "If it can be done, George is the man who can get it done."

The Knights, formerly the Charlotte O's, were purchased Oct. 7 by Shinn from the Crockett family. At that time, Shinn said he would pursue a Class AAA team for Charlotte.

Gabriel is expected to assist Shinn in that pursuit. Shinn also is the majority owner of Charlotte's new NBA franchise that will open play next season.

Gabriel, a Wilmington native, is sports director at WEZC-FM and does sports commentary for WPCQ-TV, channel 36. He was a star quarterback for N.C. State and the NFL's Los Angeles Rams and Philadelphia Eagles.

Gabriel was named four times to the Pro Bowl and was named the league's most valuable player in 1969.

Warriors' Pin In Final Match Seals Rampants' Hopes, 39-34

GOLDSBORO — Eastern Wayne High School earned a pin in the final match of the evening and pulled out a 39-34 wrestling victory over Rose High School Thursday night.

Eastern captured seven of the 13 weights, including a pin by Aron Bouillon over Lemuel Gilbert in the heavyweight class which won the match.

Rose falls to 1-3 and returns to action Monday at home against Northern Nash.

Conley.....56 Currituck.....16

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's Vikings upped their dual match record to 3-0 with a 56-16 romp over Currituck in wrestling Thursday night.

Conley won 10 of the 13 weight classes, including eight by pins. Two of the three Currituck wins came on pins.

Conley's junior varsity team also had a match, but bowed to New Bern, 40-31. Conley had to forfeit three weight classes, while getting two — and that was the difference in the match.

The JVs are now 1-1-1. Conley's varsity returns to action on Dec. 19, hosting Goldsboro, Fike and Cape Hatteras in a quad meet.

Final Picks Could Bring A Change

Woody Peele

So! We are down to the bowl games and the issue is still somewhat in doubt.

Tom Morris, who was riding high as the regular season came to an end, suffered through a horrible 4-8 week in his final picks, and lost a good deal of his big lead. Now, with the 18 bowl games to be played, he has just a 3-game lead over Vickie Spivey.

Morris finished the regular season with a 98-44 record while Spivey was 95-47. Tom Baines is right behind her at 94-48, while Clay Deanhardt, who took over for Don Reuter, is 91-51. Joe Jenkins and this writer are tied for fifth with 90-52 records.

However, a brief comparison of the picks reveal that Spivey and Morris have only one game different on their slates — insuring Morris of a win over her. Baines and Morris have four differences. So if Baines hits all four right, he would gain a tie with Morris.

The rest don't have enough left, so it's essentially a battle for the rest unless Baines can, indeed, hit just the right winners to tie it up.

The biggest game, of course, is in the Orange Bowl, where Oklahoma, ranked number one, faces Miami, ranked number two. Both are unbeaten and the winner will be the national champion.

There is a division among the experts as to how the game will come out and our panel is no different. Of the six, three go for Oklahoma and three for Miami.

Deanhardt, Morris and this writer picked the Hurricanes, while Baines, Jenkins and Spivey go with the Sooners.

Federal Complaint Issued Against NFL Players' Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — The NFL Players Association illegally used violence, threats of violence and coercion during their 24-day football strike, according to a federal complaint approved by the nation's top labor law enforcer.

The complaint was authorized Thursday by Rosemary M. Collyer, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, following a two-month investigation into incidents on NFLPA picket lines during the ill-fated strike.

Dave Parker, an NLRB spokesman, said the agency will likely issue the complaint next week, unless the players association settles the underlying charges before then with the NFL Management Council and the National Right to Work Defense Fund.

The club owners council and the right-to-work group sought the complaint — which in the labor law arena is equivalent to an indictment — when the 1,585 players represented by the union launched their strike in September.

Parker said the complaint's only proposed remedy is an order directing the union to cease and desist from using coercion as a tactic in trying to prevent replacement players from crossing picket lines. No monetary penalties or damages are sought, he said.

Noting that the strike ended in mid-October, both sides said they expected the charges to be settled before the formal complaint is filed.

"All we're asking is that the NFLPA make an official statement withdrawing threats made against replacement players and fans attending games," Marty Kaufmann, a spokesman for the right-to-work group, said.

Tim English, a lawyer for the players union, said such a statement is the usual remedy.

"We're confident that the case will be settled before there is any litigation," English said. "Each one of the incidents involved were relatively minor and they all occurred in the first few days of picketing or the first time there were games at the stadiums. We got them under control early and they did not continue."

Last week, Collyer's office also approved issuing a complaint seeking to require the owners to pay more than $20 million in wages and incentives to the striking players. The amount represents wages and incentives the players lost when they were barred from playing the Oct. 18-19 weekend after ending their strike.

That complaint has not been issued by the agency yet, although NLRB officials said they expect it soon.

Among the alleged labor law violations cited Thursday by Collyer were instances in which striking players or members of other unions supporting them waved shotguns, threw eggs, spit on fans and tried to block both fans and strikebreakers from entering stadiums.

Any union that establishes a picket line is accountable for violence that occurs on it, Collyer said. She also said the NFLPA took no "meaningful steps" immediately to halt the misconduct.

The cities where the alleged violations occurred were listed as Kansas City, Houston, Cincinnati, Denver, Washington and Philadelphia.

Collyer said there was insufficient evidence to conclude there were threats or coercion in connection with alleged picket line incidents in Miami, Los Angeles and Indianapolis.

Putting seven players on the offensive line of scrimmage was a 1910 rule in college football.

Cards Might Be Giving A Final St. Louis Showing

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tickets and apathy have been plentiful as the St. Louis Cardinals prepare for a game that may end a 28-year run in this city.

Busch Stadium could be one-third empty Sunday when the Cardinals play the New York Giants in their final game in St. Louis this season — and possibly forever.

"There haven't been too many sales today," Cardinals ticket manager Steve Walsh said Thursday. "Not much is happening."

The Cardinals, who have a 5-7 record after winning nine games total over the last two seasons, have improved their on-the-field performance. But with owner William V. Bidwill entertaining offers from several cities to move the NFL franchise and advising his players not to buy homes in St. Louis, fan fallout has been significant.

Only 11,795 showed up Oct. 11 for the replacement game against the New Orleans Saints, and many of them hooted at the hometown team. Only twice have the Cardinals drawn more than 30,000 this season.

A newspaper reporter from Baltimore, one of the cities angling to get the franchise, said Thursday he had been looking for diehard fans to talk to all week but couldn't find any. And a few blocks away from Busch Stadium, a vendor was busily hawking Cardinals wares — baseball Cardinals items.

Cardinal players long ago came to grips with a possible move.

"I'm sure it will be an emotional game Sunday," quarterback Neil Lomax said. "But I've learned through several years of experience to go with the flow, roll with the punches."

"What will happen is a business decision. He is the owner and he'll do what he thinks is best for the team."

Not everybody is resigned to Bidwill moving the club, which has been in St. Louis since 1960. Three years ago, when Bidwill first began complaining that 54,392-seat Busch Stadium was too small to be competitive in the NFL, businessman Ed Watkins founded "Keep The Birds In Their Nest."

Last week, Watkins and Jim Otis, a running back for the Cardinals in the 1970s, were behind a move that convinced the team to buy 1,000 tickets for the Washington Redskins game and donate them to charity.

"The team's been here for 28 years and this might be the last one and that should be a compelling reason to show up," said Watkins, who has planned a post-game rally for the team and expects the players and coaches to attend. "The experience itself could be a collector's item."

And because Bidwill said no on Thursday to representatives from Columbus, Ohio, and hasn't yet said yes to Baltimore, Phoenix, Ariz., Jacksonville, Fla., or Memphis, Tenn., some fans are hopeful. But not nearly enough for a show of force on Sunday.

Bidwill has said he cannot blame the fans.

"All things considered, with the advance sale we had and the situation with the strike and the indecision of the team situation, I thought the crowd was a plus," Bidwill said after 31,324 showed up despite a steady drizzle and temperatures in the mid-30s for last Sunday's 34-17 loss to Washington.

"A lot of people came out, they were responsive to the way the team played and I was very happy about it."

The fact remains, though, that Bidwill is not happy about the stadium situation in St. Louis.

Last March, he signed a non-binding letter of intent with St. Louis County Executive Gene McNary to play in a proposed $160-million domed stadium. That deal fell through because of financial and legal obstacles, and Bidwill promptly rejected a compromise 70,500-seat open-air stadium.

Locally, no further offers have been made.

Lady Eagles...

Blake hitting both with just one second to go.

"They're a good team," Pierson said. "Blake (who had 19 rebounds) is one of the country's top rebounders, and Days was fifth in the nation in field goal percentage last year."

"Both teams played good defense," she added. "If we could have just gotten our easy shots to drop for us..."

Brown added 16 points for the Eagles. Bethea led ECU with 24 while Pompili had 15, O'Connor had 13 and Savage, 10.

The Lady Eagles enjoyed a 45-33 rebounding edge in the game.

Now 2-3, East Carolina plays host to 14th-ranked Duke on Saturday in a 6 p.m. game that kicks off a doubleheader with the men.

Catholic Bishops Give Reluctant OK To Condom Education In AIDS Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Roman Catholic bishops for the first time gave qualified support for educational programs that describe how condoms may be used to prevent the spread of AIDS.

In a statement on AIDS issued Thursday, the church leaders acknowledged that some people will not follow the church's teachings on sexuality and drug use.

"We recognize that public educational programs addressed to a wide audience will reflect the fact that some people will not act as they can and should; that they will not refrain from the type of sexual or drug abuse behavior which can transmit AIDS," the bishops said.

"In such situations, educational efforts ... could include accurate information about prophylactic devices or other practices proposed by some medical experts as potential means of preventing AIDS. We are not promoting the use of prophylactics, but merely providing information that is part of the factual picture."

Church doctrine considers condoms an unacceptable form of birth control.

Mary Hunt, a Catholic theologian who is co-director of the Women's Alliance for Theology, Ethics and Ritual in Silver Spring, Md., said, "I applauded the fact that the bishops have realized that AIDS is a major medical crisis in our time."

And she called the bishops' discussion of condoms "a bit of a softening of earlier positions. They're being more realistic. It seems like the church is beginning to open up to the reality that condoms are the best preventive means we have to prevent the spread of AIDS."

But Ms. Hunt said she considers "their view of human sexuality to be woefully inadequate to explain the variety of sexual lives of faithful Catholics."

Carl Eifert, a spokesman for the U.S. Catholic Conference, said the bishops merely meant to say they would tolerate educational programs that discuss the use of condoms.

The bishops' statement was developed by a special task force set up last March by the administrative board of the U.S. Catholic Conference. The 48-member board approved the statement in November and decided to make it public this month. Eifert said the statement will be distributed to all the bishops in the United States.

The bishops, in the 30-page statement, urged compassion for AIDS sufferers and called on medical workers, funeral directors and landlords to avoid discrimination against AIDS victims.

The statement, which is called "The Many Faces of AIDS: A Gospel Response," begins by describing AIDS as an "ominous presence" that poses serious moral questions.

The bishops said some of those questions are, "How are we to relate to those who have been exposed to the virus or those who have the disease? What are our responsibilities as members of the church and society with regard to their care and support?"

The bishops then went on to give some basic facts about AIDS — acquired immune deficiency syndrome — saying it is a contagious disease that attacks the body's immune system, rendering it incapable of resisting other diseases and infections.

Churches Fret Over Funding For Activities In South Africa

NEW YORK (AP) — New church financing has gone to groups fighting for racial equity in South Africa as church thinkers grapple over when and whether it's right to side with those involved in violence.

Hardly any American church money, except for a small bit from the pacifist Quakers, went to the special World Council of Churches fund from which the new grants were made.

However, most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations are members of the council, taking part in shaping its policies and thus linked to its actions and debate over them.

Grants from the council's separately designated Fund to Combat Racism, mainly supported by European groups, have stirred sharp media attacks on the council in this country and resultant controversy.

The attacks often are "deliberate distortions" stemming from "ideological or even racist convictions," says the Rev. Emelio Castro, general secretary of the council, based in Geneva, Switz.

"But violence is a matter of concern to all Christians, and we may not dismiss sincere questions," he adds.

The "agonizing question" was summed up keenly by a global gathering in Lusaka, Zambia, last May of Christian leaders, including Americans, saying:

"How can Christians, children of God's love and followers of Jesus Christ, live and work in a world where the use of force and violence against countless forms of human sin seems inevitable?"

They were referring primarily to the drawn-out struggles against apartheid, sometimes involving violence, by the South Africa-outlawed African National Congress and the South West Africa People's Organization.

Those two groups have received most from the special fund, and did this time — $115,000 to SWAPO and $110,000 to ANC for humanitarian assistance to displaced refugees, out of total 1987 grants worldwide of $539,000.

Since the fund was launched in 1970, grants have totaled $7.5 million, always with the agreed proviso that grants be used only for humanitarian purposes, not armed actions.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY Dec. 12
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Be enthusiastic about the activities ahead of you, since you can handle them very nicely now. Don't do anything to upset a co-worker.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Bring out your greatest charm and magnetism during the day, but be sure you don't overspend at an entertainment-to-night.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Do whatever you can to make your home more clean and functional. It is important that you get plenty of rest and relaxation tonight.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Keep busy at your correspondence during the day. Use much care when driving, and don't make any casual visits tonight.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Be careful in the spending of money today. You'll get god advice during the day, but not tonight, so be alert and don't make snap decisions.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Exercise great care in asking any favors tonight, since someone close to you may be in an ill humor and could react very badly.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Confide only in those friends whom you know you can trust. Enjoy a hobby privately tonight. Avoid any arguments with your mate.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Friends of good character have been busy furthering your interests without being asked to. Let these people know you appreciate them.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Attend to those puzzling problems which have been bothering you and clear them up easily. If you need a favor, just ask.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): If you are intent on planning a trip, be sure to consider every detail. If you want to begin some new activities, now is the time to do so.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Make a list of your liabilities and assets so you will know just where you stand financially. Avoid having a quarrel with your mate tonight.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Have a talk with business associates and decide how you can all work together more efficiently. Stay at home this evening.

Iranian Gunboats Credited With First Sinking

By CHARLES P. WALLACE
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

NICOSIA, Cyprus — The blazing hulk of a Singapore-registered fuel carrier sank Thursday in the waters off Oman, the first sinking of a tanker by Iranian gunboats since the war in the Persian Gulf flared three years ago.

In Baghdad, Iraq said its warplanes attacked another "large naval target" — its usual parlance for a supertanker — near the Iranian coast, raising fears of a new round of retaliation by Iranian gunboats against civilian shipping.

Shipping sources in the gulf reported that Iraqi warplanes had hit an Iranian tanker, the 218,467-ton Susangird, with an Exocet missile Wednesday night, setting the ship afire. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

An American naval convoy, the 20th since the re-flagging of Kuwaiti oil tankers began in July, was steaming north in the gulf Thursday toward Kuwait's oil port. The tankers Gas King and Gas Princess were under escort.

The grim milestone in the three-year-old tanker war was passed just after dawn Thursday morning when the 85,129-ton Norman Atlantic sank in the Gulf of Oman just east of the Strait of Hormuz.

The Singaporean-registered ship had been attacked by Iranian gunboats Sunday in the southern Persian Gulf, about 45 miles to the west of the spot where it finally sank. It had been towed through the Strait of Hormuz to protect shipping lanes in the narrow waterway.

The Norman Atlantic had been carrying a full load of naphtha, a highly volatile petroleum product, from Saudi Arabia to Western Europe at the time of the attack. The 33 crewmen on board managed to escape shortly after the attack took place.

Although a milestone for the Iranians, the sinking of the Norman Atlantic appeared to have come about more by accident than by design.

As in many previous attacks on tankers, Iranian Revolutionary Guards fired rocket-propelled grenades at the ship. But rather than causing the customary minor damage, one grenade exploded in a compartment filled with naphtha fumes, setting off a massive explosion that eventually cracked the ship in two.

The fire continued to burn in the halves for four days. Tugboats followed the burning wreckage as it floated eastward, but were unable to approach because of temperatures higher than 3,000 degrees, according to the shipping sources.

Although the Iran-Iraq war began in September 1980, the war against vessels in the gulf did not start in earnest until 1984. The London-based Lloyds Shipping Intelligence estimates that 420 ships have been attacked and damaged in the gulf since the war began.

In Tehran, Iran's spiritual leader, the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini was reported to have submitted a new "political will and testament" to the country's parliament, exactly five years after submitting his first will to the country.

The contents of the document were not disclosed, but Tehran radio said Khomeini had made "some changes" from his earlier will. The Iranian leader is believed to be 84 years old and in poor health.

The issuance of the new will touched off speculation among foreign Iranian watchers that Khomeini had revised his old will because of a power struggle taking place among his deputies who actually oversee the Iranian government.

Five years ago, Khomeini designated Ayatollah Hussein Montazeri, 64, as his successor, a choice approved by a Committee of Experts.

There has been speculation that Montazeri, who met with Khomeini Thursday, has been politically injured by the activities of a close aide who was recently executed for political crimes. None of the speculation has been confirmed, however.

Magazine Says Hostage Ailing

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — One of eight Americans held hostage in Lebanon will be released soon because he is gravely ill, the Beirut magazine Ash-Shiraa reported today.

The brief report did not name the ailing hostage. It said his condition has "deteriorated and he is facing the threat of death."

There was no way of verifying the 27-word report carried by the Arabic-language weekly, which gained international fame by breaking the story of secret U.S. arms sales to Iran in November 1986.

However, not all its recent reports on foreign hostages held in Lebanon have been accurate.

"Beirut will witness soon the release of an American hostage after his health condition has deteriorated and he is facing the threat of death," the report said.

"Negotiations to release him have reached advanced stages in which the kidnappers' demands have all been met," it said.

In addition to the eight Americans, 12 foreigners are missing and presumed kidnapped in Lebanon since 1985. They include four Frenchmen, two Britons, a West German, an Irishman, an Italian, an Indian and two unidentified foreigners. Most are believed held by pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem factions.

Also, Terry Waite, an envoy of the Anglican Church, disappeared in Beirut last January. No one has claimed responsibility for his disappearance.

The longest-held hostage is Terry A. Anderson, 40, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press. Anderson marked 1,000 days in captivity on Thursday. He was kidnapped in Moslem west Beirut on March 16, 1985.

Japanese Say Property Threatened

Philippines Police Link Bombing To Backer Of Ex-President Marcos

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Police said today that a supporter of ousted President Ferdinand Marcos admitted making explosives that injured four people this week and rigging more bombs to disrupt next week's Southeast Asian summit.

The Japanese Embassy, meanwhile, said it received a letter threatening attacks on Japanese nationals and property in the Philippines unless Tokyo disassociates itself from the summit.

Japanese Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita is scheduled to meet Tuesday with leaders of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations immediately after they end their two-day conference, the regional bloc's first since 1977.

President Corazon Aquino today inspected the summit site and told reporters she was satisfied with security arrangements.

Also today, the military and a news agency reported that one candidate for next month's regional and local elections was killed and another kidnapped.

Brig. Gen. Manuel Roxas, police superintendent for Manila's eastern suburbs, said Roberto Eusebio admitted rigging bombs that exploded Tuesday, injuring four people at the Manila airport and the business district of Makati.

Eusebio, an electronics expert and self-styled Marcos supporter, also acknowledged building three unexploded bombs found in Makati and near Manila's city hall Wednesday and Thursday, Roxas added.

He said Eusebio, 42, made the confession to police following his capture Thursday during a raid on his home in suburban Pasig.

Roxas said authorities found Eusebio had fashioned 250 sticks of dynamite into 14 bombs. He said Eusebio told authorities the bombs were to be picked up by people he had met at pro-Marcos demonstrations.

In Honolulu, Marcos denied his supporters were behind the recent bombings. "I am against any coup d'etat, or any acts of violence that could lead to a civil war," Marcos said Thursday night in a statement issued by his spokesman, Gemmo Trinidad.

Marcos was ousted in February 1986 in a civilian-military uprising that swept Mrs. Aquino to power. He lives in exile in Hawaii.

Eusebio told investigators the men who delivered the dynamite to him said they intended to use the bombs to disrupt the ASEAN summit, Roxas said.

Philippine authorities have prepared elaborate security for the ASEAN delegations, including a 10,000-member guard force, helicopters, gunboats and bomb-sniffing dogs.

During an afternoon tour, Mrs. Aquino inspected meeting halls at the Philippine International Convention Center, the summit venue, as well as the nearby Philippine Plaza Hotel where delegations will be billeted.

Asked if she was satisfied with the arrangements, Mrs. Aquino replied, "Yes, they've done a very good job."

Foreign and economic ministers of the five visiting ASEAN members — Singapore, Indonesia, Thailand, Malaysia and Brunei — were expected in Manila today for preliminary talks.

Masayuki Makiya, a Japanese Embassy spokesman, said Japanese diplomats received a letter Wednesday warning that Japanese residents and property would be subject to "indiscriminate attacks" if Japan takes part in the summit.

Takeshita was scheduled to hold bilateral talks with Mrs. Aquino after meeting with the ASEAN leaders. It will be his Takeshita's foreign trip since he assumed office early last month.

Makiya said the embassy asked Philippine authorities for additional security.

Military officials said the arrest Wednesday of renegade Col. Gregorio "Gringo" Honasan, leader of the Aug. 28 coup attempt, removed a major threat to the summit.

Honasan has denied reports attributed to him that he would try to disrupt the sessions.

American Kissed Soil After Being Forced To Land

By BRYNA BRENNAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN DEL NORTE, Nicaragua (AP) — Surrounded by Sandinista troops, American James Jordan Denby exited his small plane, fell to his knees and kissed the ground, said a soldier involved in shooting the craft down.

Denby, of Carlinville, Ill., was forced to make an emergency landing Sunday on an isolated Atlantic Coast beach in this town near the Costa Rican border, 200 miles southeast of the capital of Managua.

The Sandinista government said his single-engine Cessna 172 had violated Nicaraguan airspace when soldiers shot it down with light machine guns and automatic AK rifles.

The government ferried journalists to the beach site on Thursday, two days after the Sandinistas made the capture public. Nicaraguan authorities claim documents found on the plane prove Denby is affiliated with the CIA and the Contra rebels fighting the leftist Sandinista government.

Denby was being interrogated in a house where he was held by state security, a source in the Interior Ministry said Thursday. U.S. Embassy requests to speak to the American went unanswered.

"We've called, we've made repeated requests, but the only response we have from them is that we can see him at an 'opportune moment,'" U.S. Embassy spokesman Lou Falino said.

The Foreign Ministry said Thursday "an opportune moment is when we consider it necessary." Asked why it took two days to notify the embassy about the held American, a woman who identified herself as Rosario and refused to give her last name said: "I can't answer that. Ask the army."

Earlier, on the palm-lined beach where Denby was captured, Maj. Oscar Mojica, head of the Atlantic naval district, was asked the same question. He told a reporter to ask the Foreign Ministry.

Jose Antonio Alvarado, who headed the group of five soldiers that fired on the plane, said the shots started when they saw the craft just over the Atlantic Ocean along Nicaragua's Miskito Coast.

He said Denby gestured with his left hand out of the window that he would land.

"At first he tried to get back on the plane. I pointed an RPG (rocket propelled grenade launcher) at him and told him not to get too close," Alvarado said. "Then he was surrounded and he fell to his knees and kissed the ground."

The 18-year-old soldier said Denby put his arms up to surrender and his hands then were tied behind his back.

Mojica said Denby seemed disoriented and couldn't account for why he was in Nicaraguan airspace.

Mojica said Denby left La Ceiba, Honduras, at 8 a.m. last Sunday and did not reach Nicaraguan airspace until 2:15 p.m.

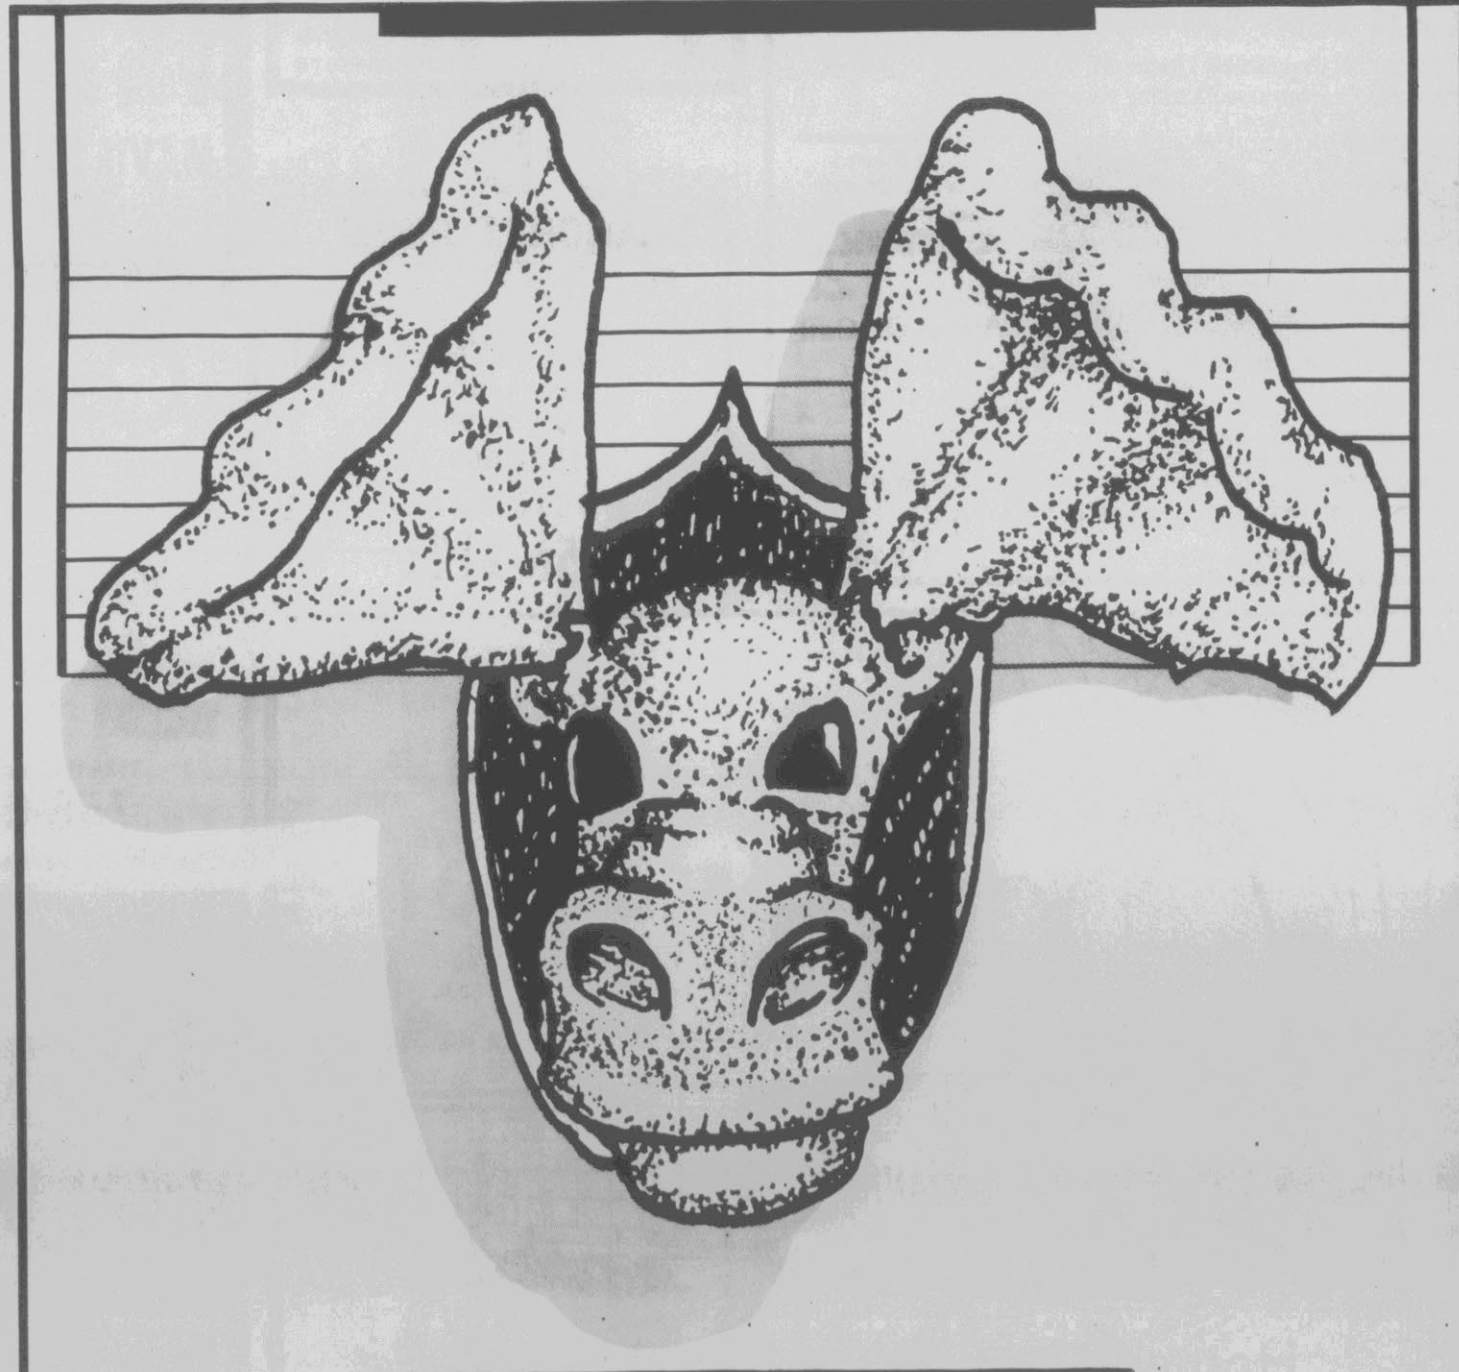

"It's normally a 2½ hour flight at most," Mojica said as soldiers, many of them sporting long hair typical of the Miskito Indians, guarded the plane.

There were about six small bullet holes in scattered parts of the Cessna, which was painted white with black and blue stripes.

"The mercenary couldn't explain why it took so long," Mojica said of Denby. "Obviously the quantity of documents that he carried links him directly to the mercenaries. We are convinced he was spying."

The Sandinistas refer to the Contras as either "mercenaries" or "guardias," a reference to the National Guards corps under the late dictator Anastasio Somoza, ousted in 1979.

Mojica said troops searched the dense jungle area off the small beach to see if Denby had ditched incriminating evidence before he landed.

Sea Clash Kills Five

JERUSALEM (AP) — An Israeli navy patrol boat intercepted a fishing vessel carrying Arab guerrillas, and one Israeli soldier and four guerrillas were killed in the gunbattle off the Lebanese coast, an army spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the battle took place at 10 p.m. Thursday, 12 miles north of the Israeli coastal town of Rosh Hanikra.

Lt. Amit Sela, 21, of the collective settlement Kibbutz Nachsholim, was killed in the exchange, the army said.

Guerrillas on the fishing vessel spotted the Israeli patrol boat and opened fire, killing Sela, Israel radio reported. Israeli sailors shot back and sunk the boat.

Sela was the 11th Israeli soldier to die in Lebanon this year and the second this week. On Tuesday, Ron Tandet was killed when the armored personnel carrier he was riding in struck a mine.

Israeli boats closely patrol the Israeli and Lebanese coastline to prevent guerrilla infiltrations.

Two years ago an Israeli navy vessel sunk a ship carrying 28 guerrillas on their way to attack targets inside Israel. Last month Israeli sailors arrested a man on board a boat headed for Lebanon, claiming he was bringing weapons or equipment to guerrilla forces.
