Shelters Reach Capacity As Cold Chills Homeless

By SCOTT WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

A killer cold wave plowed the big chill from the Midwest to the East today, driving thousands of homeless people in from the cold, while a new storm promised more snow from the Rockies to the Plains.

An emergency was declared in the nation's capital, enabling Washington's homeless residents to spend the night inside City Hall. In Chicago, activists briefly took over two empty public housing apartments.

Shelters were filled there and in Montgomery, Ala., Baltimore, Cleveland, Denver, Detroit, Des Moines, Indianapolis, Louisville, Ky., Milwaukee, Minneapolis, New York City and Philadelphia.

"I'm 50 years old and have never asked anybody for anything, any type of help or support," said Thomas Evans, who with his wife, June, dined in a Montgomery, Ala., shelter Tuesday night on chili and macaroni, fried catfish, butter beans, corn, Brussels sprouts and coffee.

"But now we're out of a home and all the support we get is through the Faith Rescue Mission and we sure appreciate it."

At least 11 deaths have been blamed on the weather since Saturday.

The burgeoning Southwestern system prompted warnings for more than a foot of snow by Thursday in Oklahoma, up to a foot of snow in Utah and 8 to 10 inches in Arizona.

Snow advisories were posted for much of Nevada, Colorado and higher elevations of New Mexico, with snow and freezing rain extending across sections of Kansas and Texas.

Record low temperatures for the date were set today in Beckley, W.Va., where it was 2 degrees; New York City, where it was 12; and Newark, N.J., 9 degrees.

Other low temperatures early today included minus 23 degrees in Bismarck, N.D., 13 below zero in Minneapolis-St. Paul, minus 9 in Chicago, 8 below zero in Des Moines, Iowa, minus 1 in Indianapolis, and zero in Cincinnati and Pittsburgh.

On Tuesday, Warroad, Minn., and Huron, S.D., had lows of minus 28 degrees, the lowest official temperature in the contiguous 48 states, the National Weather Service said.

Wilson Board Says 264 Section Unsafe

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

WILSON — The Wilson County Board of Commissioners has questioned the safety of the new U.S. 264 between the city of Wilson and the Pitt County line and has urged the N.C. Department of Transportation to take action to correct the situation.

A draft of a letter from board chairman Preston Harrell to the DOT says that since the highway opened, there have been three deaths, a number of injuries and thousands of dollars in property damage from wrecks along the stretch of new highway.

At issue, according to Harrell, are the highway's grade-level intersections with N.C. 222, N.C. 91 and N.C. 58, which are equipped with stop signs.

"The most threatening aspect is that the potential continues to exist for more of the same unless some type of remedial action is taken," Harrell said.

Critics say that overpasses should have been built rather than grade-level intersections.

"It's awfully dangerous down that road," Harrell said.

Acknowledging that the at-grade intersections were no surprise, Harrell said he thought the intersections

Doctor Advocates More Teeth In Decree Halting ATV Sales

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

A preliminary consent decree halting the sales of three wheeled, all-terrain vehicles doesn't go far enough in addressing the dangers associated with ATVs, according to a Pitt County Memorial Hospital emergency physician.

"They're unstable vehicles, and I think they're dangerous," said Dr. Jack Allison, chairman of the emergency department at PCMH. He thinks the four wheeled ATVs pose as great a threat as the banned three-wheelers, he said, and should be included in the consent decree.

"From the data I've seen, the four wheeled ATVs are not much safer than the three wheeled ones," he said.

ATV's, large-tired vehicles typically associated with off-road use, have become popular recreational items in the 1980's.

A flurry of lawsuits filed against ATV manufacturers in recent years, question the inherent safety of the three and four wheeled vehicles.

In a court-approved pact, approved last week by the Justice Department and the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the Japanese-dominated ATV industry will quit selling the three-wheeled versions but may continue to produce and sell the four wheeled models.

Allison, a member of the Board of Directors of the American College of Emergency Physicians, said the ACEP passed a resolution over a year ago requesting a ban on the sales of all ATVs.

He said within the last three and a half years, he's seen about six victims of ATV accidents in the emergency department at Pitt Memorial Hospital with injuries ranging from cuts and broken bones, to a disrupted windpipe.

Farmville Commissioners OK Development Of A Mini-Mall

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Farmville commissioners have given the go-ahead for a proposed conversion of a building at North Main and Grimmersburg streets into a mini-mall with a drug store and other retail outlets.

The board of commissioners, at its monthly meeting Tuesday, allowed the building to be rezoned from general business to central business district. In the general business classification, the building would have required more off-street parking than is possible with the available land in the area.

But in the central business district, on-street parking in the area is considered sufficient. The request was made by Quadrangle Internal Medicine, which already occupies a portion of the building and plans to expand its medical practice area. There was no opposition during a public hearing on the matter.

There also was no opposition during a hearing on a proposed change to the town's subdivision ordinance which would allow the town to issue building permits on streets approved for construction standards but not yet accepted by the N.C. Department of Transportation because of limited population.

A public hearing to close the 1984 Community Development Block Grant program was conducted by Mike Barnette, CDBG administrator. The project is being completed at a cost of $17,000 less than the originally approved budget.

Ed Barrow of Edward L. Barrow and Company Certified Public Accountants of Kinston said Farmville gets an "unqualified opinion," the highest opinion an auditor can give for the way its financial affairs are handled. He said a fund balance of 6.4 percent in 1986 was brought up to 16.9 percent in 1987, a noteworthy accomplishment.

The town's Emergency Aid Pact with other public safety agencies was renewed. The pact defines responsibilities and liabilities of mutual assistance.

A no parking zone was established in front of Sterling Radiator on Fields Street. The firm requested the action after having trouble with trucks frequenting the convenience store across the street blocking entrances to the plant.

William Edward "Bill" Sugg Jr. was honored with a resolution of appreciation for his 40 years of service to the town in the utilities department.

H.P. Norman was honored with a resolution of appreciation for his 22 years as fire chief and 36 years as a volunteer fireman. John M. Baker was sworn in by Mayor Edna Earle Baker as the new fire chief, elected by his peers.

John W. Spruill Jr. asked the board to consider assisting the residents of five blocks of South George Street with a rat infestation problem. Frank Bradham, town administrator, told him that the County Health Depart-

Martin Seeking New Senate Term

Sen. R.L. "Bob" Martin of Bethel, has filed as a candidate for re-election to a third term in the General Assembly.

Martin, presently mid-way through his second term representing the 6th Senate District, said, "I am profoundly honored by the opportunity to represent the district," which he called, "the backbone of North Carolina's agricultural economy, although it has the diversity, the potential and the means to become the leader in North Carolina's industrial and economic growth."

The 6th Senate District includes six townships in Pitt County — Arthur, Belvoir, Bethel, Falkland, Farmville and Fountain — as well as Robersonville township in Martin County, 20 townships in Edgecombe County and three townships — Wilson, Toisnot and Gardner — in Wilson County.

"I believe I can contribute a great deal to the continued growth of the district if re-elected," Martin said. "Seniority is a valuable asset in the Senate and my past involvement as chairman of the manufacturing and labor committee, as vice chairman of natural and economic resources, plus membership on several other committees and three years of working on study committees, has given me valuable experience."

Martin, who served three terms as mayor of Bethel and seven terms as a member of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners before entering the Senate, said "I understand the needs

Few Aid Requests

The cold weather in Greenville has not resulted in more than average wintertime requests for assistance, according to spokesmen for local service agencies.

The Greenville Police Department has had only request — Tuesday night — to help to a person needing a warm place to spend the night. No special requests for assistance have been received at the Salvation Army. Information on assistance requests was not available Tuesday morning from the Pitt County Department of Social Services.

Greenville Utilities recorded a frigid 21 degrees for a low in the past 24-hour period. Following several days of rainy weather in the Piedmont, the Tar River level is gradually rising, and at 7 a.m. Wednesday was measured feet.

Schools' Projects Tabbed For Funding In Spring

Mini-grant selection committees of the Pitt County Educational Foundation have earmarked 56 projects in the Pitt County schools for funding in spring, according to Betty Speir, coordinator of the foundation.

Projects such as "May Math Carnival," "Literary Festival," and Living with Your Pre-Adolescent," a program designed for parents, were funded through the grants.

The grants are cash awards offered to teachers to encourage them to develop innovative and creative educational projects, she said. They are awarded on a competitive basis for projects that show promise of benefiting students. Grants average about $200 each, and may be used for materials, equipment and other items needed for the project.

Funds for mini-grants this year have been provided by foundation memberships and by a series of community roasts, Ms. Speir said. During the fall, more than $14,000 was raised in four attendance areas and will be used within the areas. The Farmville Central High School attendance area will seek mini-grant funds in the spring, she said.

In addition, the Gay and Erskine Love Foundation has funded a $3,000 endowment to be used for mini-grant funding in subsequent years. Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. also presented a check as the first installment in funding additional mini-grants.

Local selection committees evaluated each proposal for its educational nature, realistic goals, reasonable budget and project activities that include direct involvement with students. Members of the committees will visit the projects this spring and make recommendations to replicate those that seem most worthwhile.

Cable Panel Backs Hiring Of Consultant

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

The Citizens Advisory Committee on Cable Television agreed to recommend the Greenville City Council hire a consultant to help with the city's cable franchising process.

The advisory committee, a nine-member board appointed by the council, said at its monthly meeting Tuesday that seeking the services of a consultant who has had direct franchising experience would benefit the city.

Members said a consultant could provide the committee with statistical data and pertinent information about the cable industry.

"I don't think you can talk about hard negotiations until you have some solid data that's well documented," committee member James Rees said. "At this point I think we've got to talk about how we're going to get that. We all have general information and we all have opinions and ideas, but I don't think we have the hard data that we need to proceed."

Greenville's current cable franchise with Greenville Cable TV, Inc. expires in August, 1991.

At that time the city will need to negotiate another contract, which according to the federal Cable Communications Act of 1984, will license the cable operator to continue operating within the city.

In December of 1986, Council set up the advisory committee to monitor the performance of the present franchise and make recommendations regarding future franchise agreements.

According to Mac McCarley, city attorney, Rice and Associates, cable specialists from Washington D.C., is a possible choice for a consultant.

According to McCarley most cities are successful in getting the cable companies to pay the cost of franchising and the consultant's fees are usually rolled into that cost.

City Manager Greg Knowles said the cost of a consultant could range from $20,000 to $40,000, depending on the amount of work the consultant performs.

Reese said a consultant would also help provide the committee with insight as to how to effectively negotiate future cable concerns into the franchise agreement.

"We would be totally lacking and totally remiss if we did not have some assurance of how the system is going to be developed and improved," he said.

"I frankly feel a lot is going to happen in the next 10 to 20 years, and so to predicate our opinion of the quality of the cable service on what is appropriate for Greenville as it is now, would be woefully shortsighted. I think we have to look at what is going to be feasible and what is going to be appropriate, as this community grows very rapidly during the next decade or so," he added.

The committee also agreed a consultant would provide them with comparative models of other systems and costs.

"I don't know how good is good and I don't know how bad is bad," one committee member said.

Tommy Edwards, general manager of Greenville Cable TV, attended the meeting and listened to the committee's comments.

"I think you're a good company but I think you could be a lot better," said committee member Jake Postma. "I don't think we ought to stay with the way things are, we have to do what we can to really improve things. Our job here is to make this a better cable system for the citizens of Greenville."

Andy Chused, committee chairman, said Greenville Cable TV has shown in the past they're willing to work with the city and he said he is sure they'll show that willingness in the future.

"I feel the consensus of the committee is that we want to move toward a franchising agreement with Greenville Cable TV, with the adequate knowledge of what they've done, how they're performing now, and what we can do to make this the best system with the most reasonable cost to the city of Greenville," Chused said.

"I'm pleased with the results and the direction these meetings are going," Edwards said. "Hopefully there will be no major problems ahead."

Greenville Cable TV is a subsidiary of Tar River Communications, which is a division of Multi-Media Inc., in Greenville, S.C.

ECU Eyes Spring Occupancy

Construction of a new three-story, 163,729-square foot general classroom building at East Carolina University is complete and the structure is being prepared for occupancy during the spring semester, according to university officials.

James J. Lowry, director of ECU's physical plant, said furniture and equipment is being moved into the building and the offices and classrooms will be opened as they are completed.

With 65 classrooms and 180 faculty offices, the structure will be the largest classroom building on campus and the first major addition to ECU's main campus in more than 10 years.

It will house the ECU School of Business, the departments of English, business education, foreign languages and literatures, as well as the honors program, international studies, cooperative education and the BB&T Center for Leadership Development.

Construction of the $10.7 million facility began in the fall of 1985. It was scheduled to be completed in the fall of 1987 but the completion date was extended to the spring of 1988.

Speakers Say Nuke Plant Should Host Waste Site

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The state panel charged with finding a site for a low-level nuclear waste facility should lead the effort to remove North Carolina from the eight-state compact which designated the state as the next host of the repository, environmentalists say.

"Instead of going along with the charade of pretending that a safe site can be found in North Carolina ... I believe that the ... authority should announce publicly that there are no safe sites and no safe technologies," Laura Drey said Tuesday during a public hearing in Raleigh before the North Carolina Low-Level Radioactive Waste Management Authority.

Nuclear power plants should be leading candidates to host a low-level radioactive waste disposal facility, environmentalists said.

"Since over 90 percent of the radioactive wastes created in our state are generated at our three nuclear power plant sites, I believe we should keep the waste there, where they are created, and off our roads," Ms. Drey said.

But she said there is not an idea site in the state to store nuclear wastes from seven other states. North Carolina has been designated to open a regional disposal facility in 1993.

About 30 people attended the hearing in Raleigh, held simultaneously with another meeting in Asheville.

Several speakers told a crowd of about 75 people at the Asheville hearing that the low-level waste panel had already failed by not notifying the public adequately of the meeting.

One speaker, Judy Williamson of Buncombe County, called for the resignation of two authority members, "due to the fact that you're regulating the very industry that feeds you."

Member John McAllister works in the public relations department of Duke Power Co. William Smalley is retired from General Electric Corp.

The hearings were called to solicit public input on draft criteria for the state facility and on proposed procedures for picking a location. The General Assembly created the 15-member authority last year to handle the task.

The authority is scheduled to adopt the criteria and procedures tentatively Jan. 11. Afterward, another series of public hearings will be held before final rules are adopted this summer.

Gerald Drake, a retired physician from Chapel Hill, said nuclear power plants produce 99 percent of low-level radioactive wastes.

"For that reason alone, it seems reasonable to store all the waste on the plant site until the plant shuts down and cools off radiologically enough for disposal," which would take about 50 years, Drake said.

The remaining one percent generated from medicine and industry could be brought to nuclear plants for temporary disposal, he added.

Drake said this arrangement would allow another 50 to 100 years to decide on a permanent solution to the waste storage problem.

"The southern states are notorious for their exercise of states' rights and I would hope that this might be made a states' rights issue," Drake, a Michigan native, added.

Bill Holman, a lobbyist for the Sierra Club and the Conservation Council of North Carolina, agreed that nuclear plants should not be ruled out as a site and urged the authority to continue soliciting public input at every point in the search.

"An ideal site is not going to be easy to find," he said, warning that inadequate public participation could destroy any chance for broad citizen support of the project.

Lisa Finaldi, executive director of the Clean Water Fund of North Carolina, urged the authority to adopt more specific guidelines for narrowing its list of potential sites once the list is compiled.

She also said the group, which hopes a community will volunteer to host the facility, should not accept a volunteer that doesn't meet rigid environmental standards.

UPI Reports Staff Layoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Press International says it has fired at least 24 staffers, including 10 in one-person bureaus across the country. The Wire Service Guild says at least 40 people have been terminated.

Christopher Smith, a spokesman for UPI, said Tuesday there was "no question" that more people will be laid off. But he said he could not provide exact figures until today.

Dan Carmichael, secretary-treasurer of the Guild, said the union "intends to challenge and reverse these layoffs." He said UPI had notified at least 40 people in late December that they had been terminated, and the union expects more layoffs.

The company and the Guild said the layoffs primarily affected news staffers, as well as some photo technicians and office aides.

Smith said staffers were terminated in one-person bureaus in Huntsville, Ala.; Helena, Mont.; Rockford, Ill.; West Palm Beach, Fla.; Morgantown, W. Va.; Portland, Maine; Reno, Nev.; Frankfort, Ky.; Bismarck, N.D., and Sioux Falls, S.D.

The Guild said a staffer in a one-person bureau in Wichita, Kan., was terminated, but the company disputed that claim.

Additionally, the union said staffers were laid off in at least 18 cities, including Washington; Baltimore; Atlanta; Dallas; Little Rock, Ark.; Boston; Salt Lake City, Utah; Boise, Idaho; Minneapolis, Minn.; Milwaukee, Wis., and Montpelier, Vt.

Bakker, Former Aides File For Compensation

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Jim Bakker and his wife, Tammy, are seeking $1.3 million in compensation from PTL for the lakeside parsonage they once occupied, and the ministry's new leader says he's "amazed at their gall."

In the filing with U.S. Bankruptcy Court, the Bakkers cited PTL board action in April 1986 to gradually transfer several parsonages to ministry top staff, The State newspaper reported today.

After a sex scandal forced Bakker to resign as leader of the ministry, he was asked to vacate the Tega Cay parsonage, near PTL headquarters at Fort Mill.

In addition to the Bakkers' request, their former top aides and associates have filed their own claims totaling $1.7 million, the newspaper reported.

The claims outraged David W. Clark, PTL's trustee, who said he's "amazed at their gall. ... I am amazed, shocked and angered. It is not fair and not right."

The Bakkers' claim is one of many filed against PTL in Bankruptcy Court, where a Chapter 11 financial reorganization plan was approved for the television ministry on Dec. 22. The deadline for PTL to object to claims is Feb. 15, 2½ months before the reorganization plan takes effect and repayment of about $70 million in debt begins.

The Internal Revenue Service has said Bakker, his wife and their two closest aides received $11.4 million in excess compensation for four years before he resigned in March.

Because of those excess payments, the IRS is trying to revoke PTL's tax-exempt status and collect at least $62 million in back taxes and penalties.

David Taggart, a former PTL president and Bakker's closest aide, has filed a $187,000 claim for wages. He cited an employment contract entitling him to $150,000 a year plus a Christmas bonus.

Richard Dortch, PTL's former executive director, filed a claim for $893,000, including $193,700 for salary and benefits and $700,000 for a parsonage and its contents in Pineville, N.C.

Lawyer: Client Has Traitor Label

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — The defense attorney for alleged kidnapper Abbas Ali Hamadi told a court today his client is considered a traitor in Beirut and would be killed if he returned there.

Abbas Hamadi is accused of kidnapping two West Germans to pressure West Germany into releasing his brother, Mohammed Ali Hamadi, who is accused of masterminding the hijacking of a TWA jet in which a U.S. sailor was killed.

The trial entered its second day today in a heavily guarded courtroom. On Tuesday, identity and baggage checks were stepped up at all major airports in West Germany and at key border points, said Roland Bachmeier, spokesman for the federal Interior Ministry.

The security measures were taken after a Shiite Moslem group in Beirut issued a letter Tuesday, indicating that West Germany may be targeted for terrorist attacks because of alleged mistreatment of Mohammed Hamadi, 23.

The group claims to be holding one of the two West Germans Abbas Hamadi is accused of kidnapping.

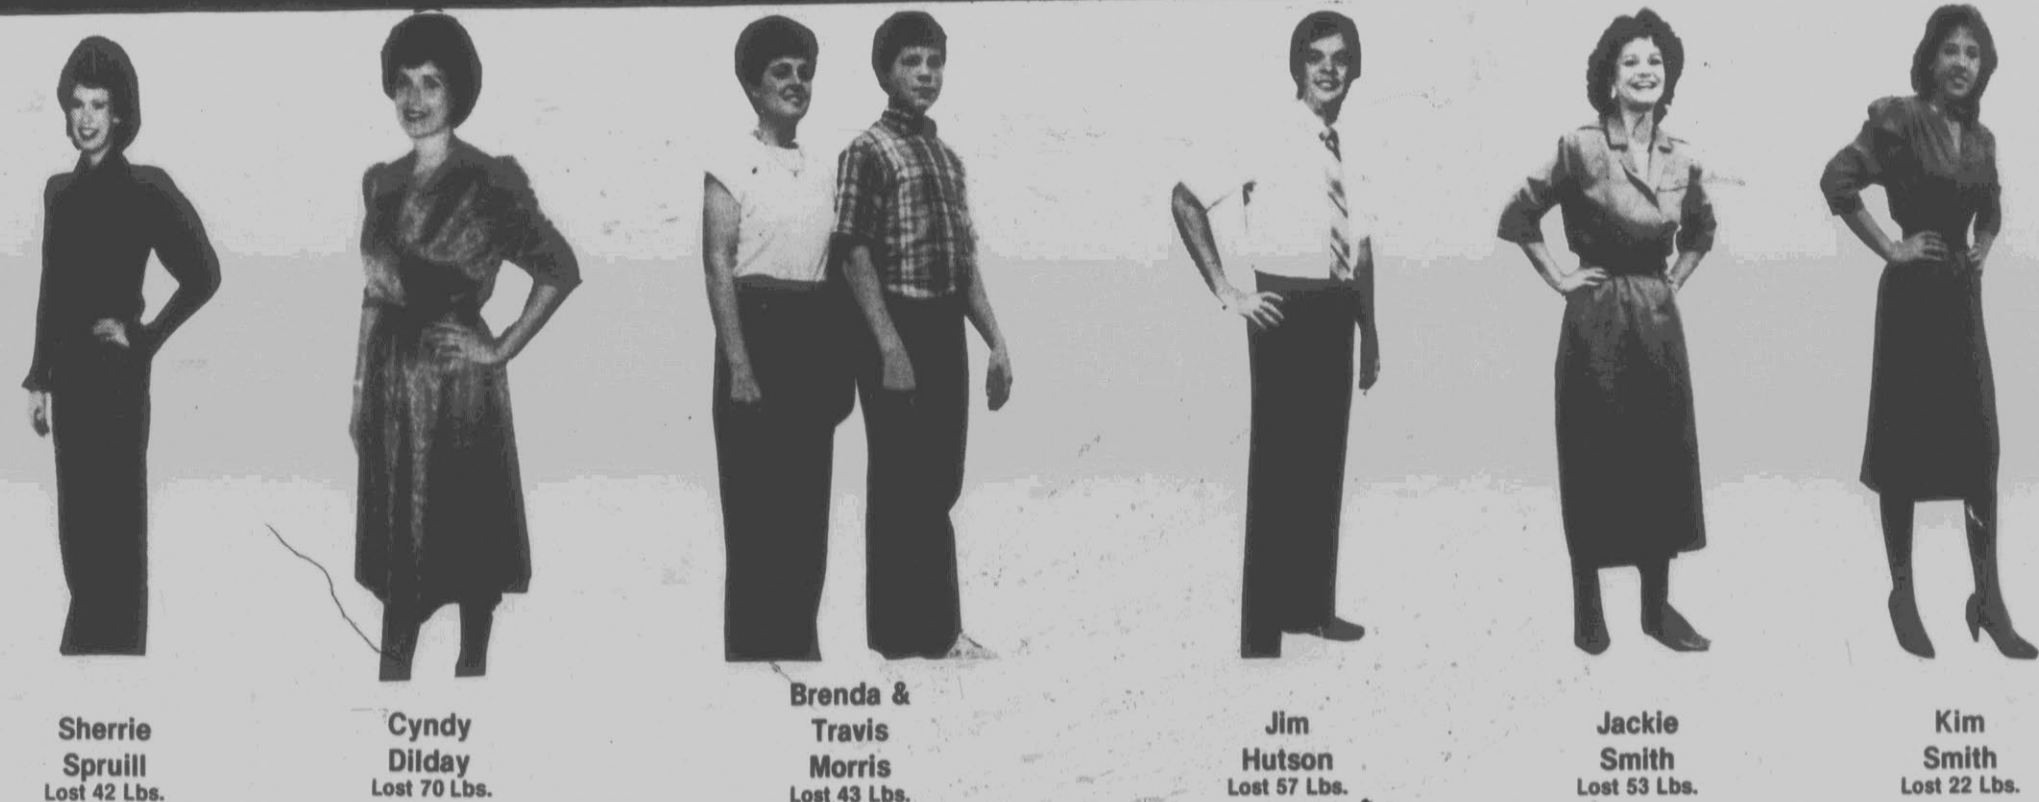

The second hostage was released by the group.

During the trial in Duesseldorf today, defense attorney Eckhard Hild said of his client, Abbas Hamadi: "He is considered a traitor by some circles in Beirut. If he returned to Beirut he would be shot and killed."

Hild did not elaborate.

West Germany has said it will not free either of the imprisoned Hamadi brothers to gain the release of West German hostage Rudolf Cordes, despite the threats Tuesday from the Holy Warriors for Freedom, the Shiite Moslem group.

Support Shelter

Community support has made Greenville's shelter for the homeless a reality, and now community involvement must nurture it toward success.

The shelter will open Monday, a fact that can be credited to financial support from a Community Development Block Grant Greenville earmarked for the project and the expertise and devotion of the Community Life Center.

But assistance and involvement cannot end here if the shelter is to meet its purpose as a refuge for those with no place to go for basics like food, shelter and cleanliness. Volunteers are needed to man the shelter at night. Without adequate — and free — staffing, the endeavor cannot fill the needs of those who seek help.

The shelter fills a large gap in human services for the community. Current estimates — 10 to 25 homeless housed each night — attest to the project's necessity. There are important economic, safety and human considerations for addressing this need.

Fires are often set in abandoned structures by derelicts seeking shelter and warmth, and those blazes must be fought by city firefighters. Police officers spend manpower hours dealing with homeless drunks.

There are also humanitarian reasons for supporting a shelter, and these should be made painfully obvious by current frigid temperatures. Most citizens simply see the 32 degree mark as time to turn up the thermostat. For the homeless, it is a temperature that can spell illness and death. The homeless are citizens. They have human names, faces and needs and they can die a very human death. Providing them with food, shelter and warmth addresses the community's responsibility to its citizens.

The operation plan for the shelter is a feasible one because it puts the responsibility for a shelter in the hands of a non-profit organization supported by community funds, not tax dollars. The project will not drain public coffers.

Volunteer support from the community, therefore, becomes even more significant. The shelter cannot afford to pay staffers. It must depend on involvement from concerned entities to meet needs.

The community has laid the groundwork for addressing the needs of the homeless in Greenville and the endeavor will be valuable both in economic and human respects. Now, for the shelter to be practical and effective, support must continue in the form of volunteering public time and talent.

Not Quite Ideal

U.S. Secretary of Education William J. Bennett has outlined an "ideal" high school.

It might be ideal for college bound students, but not all students are, or should be, college bound. Individuals have varying degrees of ability, interests and needs. The "ideal" high school would likely fall short of addressing the needs of many.

In North Carolina, only 11 percent of high school students meet those standards.

A report was issued by Bennett entitled "James Madison High School: A Curriculum for American Students." The curriculum would include four years of English, three of math, social studies and science, two years of physical education, two of foreign language and a semester each of art and music history. These are admirable goals, but not realistic. High standards should be encouraged, but not at the exclusion of students' needs.

North Carolina requires four years of English, two years of mathematics, social studies and science and one year of physical education and health combined.

While the curriculum outlined by Secretary Bennett is notable it is also obviously unachievable for many students. The old question rises: are students better off in school learning what they can absorb or out on the streets seeking employment with little in the way of skills?

The answer, plain and simple, is that the nation's high schools serve a broad spectrum of young people who have a great range of learning abilities and skills. While there must be some minimum requirements for all who complete high school, no one uniform program of learning is going to be suitable for everyone.

While it would be positive for the nation if all students could be put through the strenuous academic program outlined in the secretary's report, we know that course will not work. The high school programs must be flexible enough to provide the background that some students need to enter the nation's best colleges. At the same time they must provide for the student who will go directly into the job market upon completion of high school.

Secondary education is a broad and complex field and the schools must prepare to meet the educational needs of a great variety of young people.

Public Forum

To the editor:

The League of Women Voters supports comprehensive, long-range land use planning and believes that wise decision making requires adequate data and a framework within which alternatives may be weighed and intelligent decisions made. It advocates review of the environment, social and economic impacts of proposed plans and actions, whether dealing with public or privately owned land. Although League is a strong proponent of protection of private property rights, it feels these rights should be viewed with consideration of the general public well being. (From "Impact on Issues" LWVUS)

With these principles in mind, the League of Women Voters of Greenville/Pitt County wishes to express its strong support of the recommendation made to the City Council by the Planning and Zoning Commission to deny the request to zone three acres of property along White Road as C6 Shopping Area. This County Road has been envisioned as the future Greenville Bypass. It would seem most unwise to begin allowing commercial shopping development along its shoulders at this location, where traffic regulation would be extremely undesirable. Certainly, with the proximity of Greenville Boulevard, Carolina East Mall, Bell's Fork Square and the proposed commercial-shopping area at the White Road-Evans St. intersection, absence of adequate shopping opportunities for the residents and residents-to-be in this area cannot be regarded as "the issue" at stake.

The League urges the City Council to carefully consider the long-range environmental, social and aesthetic effects of yet another shopping area in the ever-shrinking countryside between Winterville and Greenville and hopes that they will follow the recommendation of the Planning and Zoning Commission and their staff.

The opportunity for public input regarding this zoning issue (now back before the Planning and Zoning Commission) is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 11. The League encourages interested citizens to attend the public hearing and speak out!

To the editor:

During the first week in December, last, I sent a letter to Mr. G.R. Shirley, Division Engineer, Department of Transportation, Greenville, requesting that the DOT consider erecting 'river name' signs on the three bridges that cross the Tar River in the immediate vicinity.

Shortly after the middle of December, I received a letter in reply, advising that the signs would be erected, as requested. About Christmas time, the signs were in place.

In an era when bigness sometimes means afarness from public concerns, this example of prompt response to a citizen inquiry is surely worth reporting. Also, it is noteworthy that the signs provide that much geographical information to the motoring public.

Changing Roles For Military Power

1987 was a remarkable year in U.S. foreign policy, from the Iran-Contra affair to the Washington summit meeting between Ronald Reagan and Mikhail S. Gorbachev. But most remarkable was a series of developments that will condition the purposes and potential of American military power for years to come.

Most obvious was the basic change in the way both the United States and the Soviet Union deal with nuclear weapons. In the 14 months since Reagan met with Gorbachev in Reykjavik, the agenda has changed from limiting the upward thrust of the nuclear-arms race to making sizable cuts. One treaty, on eliminating Euromissiles, has been signed. Another, to cut strategic offensive weapons by about 50 percent, has been agreed on in principle, although key details remain to be decided.

These technical changes to the nuclear balance have major political implications. By altering the terms of nuclear debate, Reagan has acknowledged that the U.S.-Soviet strategic balance is highly stable, that there is little risk of a U.S.-Soviet nuclear war and — most striking — that some political roles played by nuclear weapons have declined. Tacitly, the superpowers have agreed to stop comparing their overall national power in terms of the size of their respective nuclear arsenals. By their actions they have also agreed to qualify radically the use of nuclear weapons in their relations with other states. After the arms cuts they will still be the big boys on the block, but wielding decidedly smaller sticks — symbolically more than substantively.

Yet the widespread perception that the superpowers' nuclear arsenals will have less political effect has created a problem in Western Europe. There, America's allies this past year became increasingly concerned that the U.S. nuclear commitment to their security will be weakened. Of course, almost no one believes that there will be a war; in practice, therefore, the point is moot. But nuclear weapons have been invested with great symbolic value, and, psychologically if not militarily, something needs to be done.

The simplest "something" is to ensure that the conventional military balance in Europe is adequate to provide extra insurance against an unlikely war. Also, with ferment in U.S.-Soviet nuclear relations, more attention is being paid to the state of the conventional balance, which — on paper at least — favors the Soviet Union and its allies.

Yet at precisely the time when the nuclear environment is changing, the United States has run out of money to increase its spending on conventional weapons and manpower. Next year will see a lower defense budget, including manpower cuts. Nor is it likely that the West European allies will take up the slack. In view of America's other economic difficulties, another intense round of discussions about burden-sharing within the alliance is about to begin. More important, the allies must either succeed in negotiating major, asymmetrical reductions in Warsaw Pact forces — a daunting if not impossible task — or learn to live with the pact's apparent superiority. No one knows what effect the latter step would have on the psychology and politics of the Western alliance.

Changes in thinking about nuclear weapons, arms reductions and pressure on the defense budget will make 1988 a critical year of decision about the structure of U.S. military forces for many years ahead. Conceptually, cutting nuclear weapons by 50 percent is child's play. The difficulty lies in deciding what to keep. In the next few months the military services will engage in some of their fiercest interservice bargaining in years. That bargaining will also further weaken support for the president's most cherished program, the Strategic Defense Initiative.

Reagan came to power proclaiming the need for more American military muscle in the face of Soviet military buildup. Ironically, he has undertaken the first act of nuclear disarmament, highlighted non-nuclear defense problems and set the economic stage for a time of relative austerity in defense. Despite the largest peacetime military buildup in U.S. history, it is Reagan and his successor who now face the task of redesigning U.S. military forces to face the challenges of a different world.

Strength For Today

We have often heard the rather sententious phrase, "Confession is good for the soul." Many people take this in its literal sense — that the act of confessing misdeeds confers a definite benefit of some kind of the soul of the person who confesses in much the same way that regular exercise has a salutary effect upon one's body.

Actually, however, it is only repentance — the object of confession — which has a spiritual effect. The fulfillment of the process can only come with complete and overpowering grief for our misdeeds and a firm resolve that we will never enter into sin again. Then the load really falls from our backs and we feel a new sense of fitness as we face our spiritual life.

No, it is not confession but repentance which is good for the soul.

Analysis

— Karen DeYoung — Top Woman?

LONDON — When Mikhail Gorbachev stopped here on his way to the Washington summit last month, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher gave him a Christmas present. A clock with three faces, it showed Washington time on one side, and Moscow time on the other. The third and middle face, by some accounts a bit larger than the other two, told the time in London.

In ways that go far beyond geography, the gift was a metaphor for Thatcher's view of Britain's place in the world. She frequently cautions that there are only two superpowers, modestly noting that Britain is not one of them. But increasingly these days, neither Gorbachev nor Ronald Reagan takes a step toward the other without first checking the time, and the temperature, with Maggie.

Even if she had nothing else to her credit, Thatcher is now the West's senior statesperson through sheer longevity. Having sat at the table with Jimmy Carter and Reagan, Helmut Schmidt and Kohl, Giscard and Mitterrand and the rest, she stands a plausible chance of outlasting even the next round of alliance leaders.

Sunday Thatcher becomes Britain's longest-serving prime minister this century, passing the mark set when Herbert Henry Asquith's eight years and 241 days in office were ended by David Lloyd-George in 1916. By the time her current term runs out, in 1992, she will be only 67, younger, she points out, than some of her alliance counterparts when they first assumed office. Without yet committing herself to a fourth run, she has said she feels as if she could go "on and on." There is little visible on the political horizon here that seems capable of stopping her.

But there is more to the Thatcher phenomenon than staying power. Under her stewardship, Britain has shed its image of a strike and debt-ridden disaster area and gained a reputation worldwide for prudent and parsimonious management. She has virtually eliminated the twin evils she and many others blamed for much of the nation's earlier decline — trade-union power and state-owned industries, legislating the former into submission and selling off or shutting down the latter.

Her European Community partners may grumble at Thatcher's imperious ways, but they've learned to respect both her power and her perseverance. It is Thatcher to whom Gorbachev turns when he wants a stimulating argument or commiseration over the problems of revamping a reluctant, aging economy. It is she on whom the other western leaders depend to keep Reagan within the bounds of alliance consensus.

Thatcher has become the leader that Reagan pretended to be. Far from the puny victory in Grenada or the disastrous losses of Lebanon, she fought and won a real war in the Falkland Islands. She held her ground against terrorism, refusing to trade even soft words for hostages. Never let it be said that Thatcher met controversy with a quavering "I don't remember." A curt "none of your business" is much more her style.

She has had a lot of lucky breaks along the way. A deeply split political opposition, seemingly bent on self-destruction, has allowed her to win large Parliamentary majorities with only about 42 percent of the vote in each of three straight elections. Windfall oil profits, along with the proceeds from state-industry sales, gave her room to cut both personal taxes and public borrowing without reducing government spending. The well-timed Falklands conflict with Argentina was a massive vote-winner, appealing to deep strains of jingoism here.

Yet a great many Britons — many within her own Conservative Party — don't like Thatcher. In poll after poll through the years, she has been seen as cold, driven and uncaring. The "Leaderene," "Attila the Hen," "Rhoda the Rhino," and "Nanny" are just a few of the nicknames by which she is known — and they're the nicer ones. In vast swaths of the country, particularly in the depressed industrial north, the mere thought of her inspires seething hatred.

Even among those who have benefited from her policies — the seven million new shareowners of privatized companies, the million families who have purchased public housing she put on the market — there is a deep-seated uneasiness over the other millions she has put out of a job by squeezing the economy. Many have seen their personal income taxes cut by her government. But most, according to polls, would rather have the money spent on the ailing National Health Service.

Yet of all the "isms" of the 1980s — Reaganism, monetarism, even conservatism — it is Thatcherism that has survived most intact. Often strident, sometimes bullying, always confident, it is more attitude than ideology. It is best defined by the figure of the PM herself, striding firmly forward as she tries to remake Britain in her own image — self-sufficient, brisk, frugal and hard-working, full of 20th-century energy and 19th-century values.

Handbag hanging firmly on her elbow, pearls swinging from her neck, Thatcher doesn't walk so much as she bustles, her head and upper torso frequently out in front as her feet — and often her aides — struggle to keep up. She barely sleeps and frequently works an 18-hour day. While never known as a great intellect, she has an encyclopedic memory for everything from the number of Soviet missiles in eastern Europe to the number of hospital beds in western Wales.

She seems genuinely disappointed when Britons revert to their more traditional compromising and inefficient ways. When the jobless reject her poorly-paid training schemes in favor of the dole, or physicians protest against her mean treatment of the health service, she often reacts, in the words of columnist Neal Ascherson, "like Walter Ulbricht of East Germany who — in Brecht's taunt — wanted to dismiss his population and appoint another."

N.C. Elections Board Sets Super Tuesday Ballot

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — All major presidential candidates — seven Democrats and six Republicans — will be on the ballot in North Carolina for the Super Tuesday primary in March.

The state Board of Elections gave final approval to the ballot Tuesday, rejecting the pleas of a Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., abortion opponent and a Dover, N.C., farmer to be placed on the ballot.

The Federal Elections Commission ruled Tuesday that Jackson's campaign was eligible for federal funding, but his supporters in North Carolina say they collected more than 10,000 voters' signatures just in case.

Approved for the Democratic ballot were Michael Dukakis, Albert Gore, Richard Gephardt, Paul Simon, Jesse Jackson, Gary Hart and Bruce Babbitt.

Republicans approved for the ballot were George Bush, Robert Dole, Pat Robertson, Pierre du Pont, Alexander Haig and Jack Kemp.

Anthony Martin-Trigona, the anti-abortion candidate who said he is waging a nationwide campaign for the presidency, told reporters he might file a lawsuit challenging North Carolina's law regarding election ballots.

Martin-Trigona said Elections Board Chairman Robert Hunter told him the only way a presidential candidate could get on the North Carolina ballot was to qualify for federal matching campaign funds or present petitions with at least 10,000 signatures of support.

Also rejected for a spot on the ballot was W. Odell Goodman, 80, of Dover, who said he wanted to save the nation from "communist monarchy dictatorship."

Former Attorney General Rufus Edmisten filed to enter the race for secretary of state Tuesday, saying his presence on the ticket would be a boon to the Democratic Party.

"After all, I did win the hardest primary that's ever been fought in North Carolina," Edmisten said, referring to the race for the 1984 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Edmisten defeated former Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox in a runoff but lost to Republican Jim Martin in the general election.

"I have been in political and public life for 10 years, and I do have what I think is the most ardent, loyal core of supporters of any public officials that's ever been in this state," Edmisten said.

Edmisten is one of five Democrats who have declared their candidacies to succeed retiring Secretary of State Thad Eure, 88.

The others, who had not filed as of Tuesday afternoon, are Raleigh attorney Brad Miller and Eure aides Dan Bell and Brenda Pollard.

Republicans who have declared their candidacies are state Rep. Ray Warren of Mecklenburg County and Joe Miller, a Hendersonville minister.

Edmisten, who served 10 years as attorney general after a stint as an aide to the late Sen. Sam Ervin, denied wanting to use the secretary of state's office as a stepping stone to the governorship or another office.

"I have such bad memories about that (1984) race that I don't really like to think about it," Edmisten said. "Maybe I'll get my nerve back again someday."

Meanwhile, political newcomer Tom Rogers, a Cherryville teacher, filed to run for state superintendent of public instruction as a Republican.

Rogers, 44, said he was a teacher at Stonewall Jackson School in Concord.

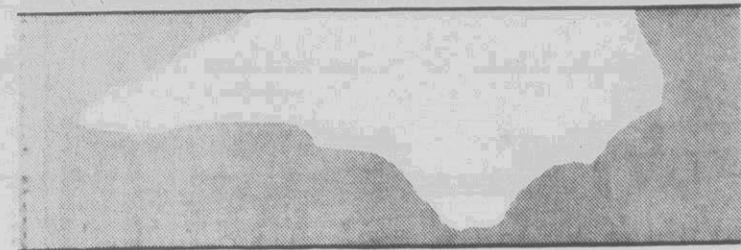

Also filing for office was Tom Fetzer, a Republican candidate for the 4th District congressional seat.

Rep. David Price, a Democrat, has said he will seek re-election to the seat.

Manager Enters Plea

RALEIGH (AP) — The former manager of North Carolina State University's Reynolds Coliseum pleaded no contest to two conflict-of-interest charges Tuesday, after admitting he also had worked part-time for a rock concert promoter who booked shows at the arena.

Richard H. Farrell received a two-year suspended sentence in Wake County District Court as part of a plea bargain agreement reached with the Wake County district attorney's office. He also was fined $100 and court costs.

District Attorney Colon Willoughby said the sentence was appropriate, citing Farrell's cooperation with investigators.

State Bureau of Investigation agent William F. Dowdy testified that Farrell had not been paid by either Cellar Door Concerts of the Carolinas Inc. or Beach Club Bookings Inc., the production companies run by promoter William Howard, for concerts booked at Reynolds. Farrell was paid, however, as a part-time employee of Howard for concerts staged at Barton Arena in Raleigh in 1985 and 1987.

These activities constituted a conflict of interest under state law because Farrell also negotiated contracts with the companies for concerts at Reynolds.

The state conflict-of-interest law forbids state employees from doing business involving public funds with companies with which they have had an "association" within the previous two years. At Reynolds, Farrell was responsible for negotiating the best deal for the university with outside promoters.

injuries," said Lindsay Leckie, spokesman for CSX Transportation Inc.

Warsaw Police Chief R.P. Woods said couldn't estimate just how much corn had spilled in the incident around 11 p.m. Monday, but said, "There was tons of it, I know that."

Leckie said the cause of the derailment is still under investigation. The cars jumped the track about one-quarter mile into Warsaw.

Leckie said estimated damage to the train at about $75,000.

The clean-up was expected to be completed today.

New Trial

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Court of Appeals has cleared the way for a new trial in a negligence case involving the death of a Robeson County elementary school student.

The case involved Larry Christopher Locklear, who died Jan. 30, 1985, when he was pushed or chased into a street near an elementary school and was struck by a car driven by Teresa Deal Jacobs.

A lawsuit seeking $117,000 in damages was filed by Cindy Lou Strickland, the administratrix of the youth's estate, against Ms. Jacobs and the car's owner, Martha Ivey Deal, who was later dismissed as a defendant.

The jury returned a verdict in favor of Ms. Jacobs, but the trial judge agreed to Ms. Strickland's motion for a new trial. At issue before the appeals court was Ms. Jacobs' bid to have that new trial motion amended to include some specific findings of fact.

In an opinion released Tuesday, the appeals court rejected Ms. Jacobs' argument that the Robeson County Superior Court judge erred in ordering a new trial. It noted in part that Ms. Jacobs had cried during much of the original trial, and the judge was concerned about its prejudicial effect on the proceedings.

DMV Clerk Arrested On Sex Charge

RALEIGH (AP) — After a four-week investigation, state officials say they have uncovered a prostitution operation in the state Department of Motor Vehicles building in Raleigh.

"I can't recall a case like this before," State Bureau of Investigation Deputy Director Charles Dunn told The News and Observer of Raleigh.

Marsha Hicks Molden, 24, of Raleigh, a DMV clerk, was arrested on a solicitation charge Tuesday at the DMV building.

Ms. Molden was charged with one count of solicitation to commit a felony, with the felony identified as a crime against nature.

William Hiatt, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, said a male DMV employee whom he would not identify had been suspended without pay in connection with the investigation. That employee was expected to turn himself in to authorities today, the newspaper said.

Ms. Molden's arrest capped an investigation begun after DMV officials said they suspected sexual activity there, SBI and DMV officials said.

Dunn declined to discuss specifics about the investigation. "The law prohibits us from getting into details of the investigation," Dunn said.

Hiatt said Ms. Molden had been suspended without pay Tuesday pending a completion of the investigation.

DMV officials first heard Oct. 16 that sexual activities were taking place in the DMV building, Hiatt said, and the SBI was called in two days later.

"When we... determined there was a likelihood of criminal activity, then we invited the SBI to come in and give us some assistance," Hiatt said. "And from there it was a joint investigation."

One source told the newspaper that the sexual activities to which Hiatt referred had taken place in a boiler room, but Hiatt would not comment on that.

Thiokol Claims Gas Path Poses No Safety Problem

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — Hot gases reached an O-ring seal in last month's test-firing of a space shuttle booster rocket, but that does not threaten the safety of future astronauts, a Morton Thiokol spokesman said.

The spokesman, Rocky Raab, also said Tuesday that a nozzle component that failed during the test was debated among NASA and company engineers. He said the NASA-designed boot ring used in the Dec. 23 test had replaced a Thiokol-designed component that worked successfully in a test last August.

The solid-fuel booster rocket made by Thiokol has undergone redesign since the shuttle Challenger exploded Jan. 28, 1986, killing its seven-member crew.

The major effort was the redesign of the joint connecting segments of the rocket casing. The Challenger disaster was blamed on a faulty seal in another casing farther up the rocket that allowed exhaust gases to escape and ignite the shuttle's external fuel tank.

Engineers also have experimented with different nozzle assemblies to correct problems noticed during previous shuttle launches. NASA officials said Monday that failure of the nozzle component likely will delay the first post-Challenger shuttle mission by six to 10 weeks.

Raab had said Monday that examination of the booster tested in December showed no failures other than the boot ring. He said engineers found that the rocket's case-to-nozzle joint worked as designed, preventing gases from escaping.

But, he said Tuesday: "They found one gas path through the adhesive as far as the (case-to-nozzle joint's) O-ring, but that's considered normal, expected. All of the rest of the nozzle, with the exception of the boot ring, also looks super."

The gas was stopped by the first O-ring. The main seal, the second O-ring, was not harmed.

NASA officials said Tuesday they were not excessively concerned by the discovery of the gas path, but said the seal should not have been exposed to any heat or gas at all.

"The intent is to have no paths at all" through the polysulfide adhesive, said David Winterhalter, who oversees the booster rocket program in Washington. "We are studying it to see why it happened. But we do not believe it is harmful."

Raab said some of the tests of the redesigned joint have included intentional flaws to allow the gases to reach the primary (middle) O-ring, and that the joint still contained the gases.

"We consider it (the gas path) a matter of interest and concern because we don't want it to happen. But we would not hold that the joint is badly designed," he said. He said the problem is more likely to be in the assembly.

Raab said the decision to use the NASA-designed boot ring instead of Thiokol's component in the December test generated debate among NASA and Thiokol engineers, but "was agreed to on both sides."

"In all cases, however, there are going to be disagreements over design, and that was the case in both (boot ring) designs," he said.

NASA officials said Monday that Thiokol's outer boot ring likely would replace the failed component.

Survey Notes Jump In Hospital Charges

By ABIGAIL WILSON
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Patients spent nearly the same amount of time in hospitals last year as in 1986, but the cost per stay jumped an average 16 percent nationwide, according to a survey of 1,863 hospitals.

The survey, released Tuesday by Nashville-based Equicor, found that the jump in rates was due largely to a 20 percent rise in hospital charges for services other than room and board.

"While the stabilization of hospital lengths of stay is very good news, a 19 percent increase in the overall cost of that stay is disturbing, especially in light of a general economic inflation rate of less than 5 percent," said William T. Hjorth, Equicor president.

The average daily cost of hospitalization ranged from $353 in Danville, Va., to $1,487 in San Jose, Calif., according to the survey.

The study was conducted for the 15th year by Equicor, a joint venture of Hospital Corporation of America and the Equitable Group and Health Insurance Co. that sells benefit packages to employers.

The amounts charged for all types of rooms, excluding geriatric, psychiatric and nursery wards, were averaged for each hospital.

Hospitals in 46 states showed an increase in the amount they charge per day; those in 17 states reported increases of 20 percent or more, Equicor found.

The American Hospital Association of Washington, D.C., said Equicor should have studied the actual amounts hospitals collect, rather than what they charge, because there is a big difference between the figures.

"It (Equicor's study) doesn't reflect the true rates that are paid by Medicare, for example, or other third-party payers," said Clay Mickel, director of communications for the 5,400-member AHA, the nation's largest health industry group.

"I don't think anybody's going to argue with the fact that ancillary charges are increasing more rapidly than other charges."

Ancillary charges, usually fees paid radiologists, pathologists or for other laboratory work, are often only partly under the control of hospitals, he said.

The study also found that hospital beds in 31 states were empty as often as they were occupied.

Fromme Indicted

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A federal grand jury Tuesday indicted would-be presidential assassin Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme on an escape charge, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Kirk Brandfass.

Fromme slipped away from the Alderson Federal Correctional Institution on Dec. 23, roaming in the rugged West Virginia hills for 40 hours before being caught on Christmas Day 2 miles from the prison.

"It's pretty straightforward," Brandfass said of the indictment.

Fromme, 39, is serving a life sentence for trying to kill then-President Gerald Ford in 1975. She is a follower of mass murderer Charles Manson.

Brandfass said Fromme faces an additional sentence of up to 5 years and a fine of up to $250,000 if convicted of the single charge of unlawful escape from a federal institution.

Helsinki Store Satisfies Yen For Goodies

By WILLIAM TUOHY
L.A. Times-Washington-Post
News Service

HELSINKI, Finland — Stockmann's, the biggest department store in Helsinki, is known in Moscow — to those who can afford it — as Moscow's best.

For diplomats, journalists and others in Moscow with hard currency to spend, Stockmann's is a direct link to the capitalist world of things not available in the Communist state.

Every evening, the "Tolstoy Express" rolls out of the Helsinki railroad station, with an attached baggage car full of goodies, on the overnight run to Moscow. In Moscow, the customers wait expectantly.

"You send a telex to Stockmann's and they send you the stuff in a couple of days," a Westerner living in Moscow said the other day. "They don't even bill you until later. Sometimes I wonder how we could live here otherwise."

Stockmann's offers more than just the essentials. It has a special catering service for embassy parties: everything from flowers, champagne and smoked salmon to paper napkins and toothpicks.

When Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov died, and the U.S. Embassy in Moscow needed a funeral wreath in a hurry, it called on Stockmann's. The order was placed late in the day, and Stockmann artisans worked all night to create a huge wreath that was put on board the first train for Moscow.

The store's catalogue, illustrated and in color, is prized reading material in Moscow. It is to Stockmann's customers there what the Sears, Roebuck catalogue was to rural Americans a generation or so ago.

Listed in it is virtually every need: fresh foodstuffs, delicatessen specialties, toiletries, baby care products, kitchenware, appliances, television sets, bathroom and bedding supplies, pet food, sportswear, wines, automobiles, books.

It offers jewelry and furs, too, and even a photo service.

Most heavily ordered by customers in Moscow is fresh food. Milk is the largest single item, for many Westerners in Moscow don't like the taste of the local product. The U.S. Embassy orders more than 2,000 quarts a week.

For couples with small children in Moscow, Stockmann's makes life much easier. It ships in baby food, paper diapers and other such necessities.

Business is especially brisk in the holiday season, and for days the Tolstoy Express is loaded with gifts and, in the coats-to-Newcastle category, dozens of Christmas trees.

"Stockmann's is like Aladdin's lamp," a Russian who works for an American company in Moscow said the other day. "Rub it and it brings what you want. But you have to pay a lot for it."

Prices are relatively high. Export firms in Scandinavia and West Germany can beat Stockmann's prices, but they can't match the Helsinki store for speedy service.

The main problem for Stockmann's non-diplomatic customers in Moscow lies with the Soviet customs officers, who are unpredictable about what import fees they will charge.

"One day they might let a Patton tank go through without a hitch," a customer in Moscow remarked, exaggerating a bit, "and the next they'll stop a penknife. It depends on their mood."

Diplomats generally have duty-free privileges, but for journalists and other unofficial Americans working in Moscow, import duties can be brutal.

"They seem to make up the rates as they go along," one journalist said. "They can run from 10 percent to 25 percent and even more. It seems to be done on a hit-or-miss basis, and it's always a surprise. There is supposed to be a list of fixed charges, but one never sees it, nor would it be wise to insist on seeing it. They would find other ways to charge you."

"The strange thing is that they weigh the wine that comes in, so they charge you the same duty for a $100 bottle of wine as for a $5 bottle.

"But you don't have much choice. The whole point of ordering from Stockmann's is to buy things that you simply cannot get in Moscow. So you must be prepared to pay."

Soviet customs officers keep an eye out particularly for goods coming in that appear to be more than the customer needs for his or her personal use. These products are either turned back or a prohibitively high duty is levied.

"If, say, 10 dresses turned up for one customer, they would really get nasty," a Western woman in Moscow observed.

Stockmann's was founded in 1862, when the German merchant G.F. Stockmann set up shop in the Finnish capital. In 1930, the store moved into its present landmark building in the center of the city.

In 1969, the Finnish architect Alvar Aalto designed an annex to house Stockmann's Academic Bookstore, the second-busiest in Europe. It is a structural jewel, with an atrium surrounded by browsers' shelves and tables, and a skylight flooding the space with brightness.

Catalogue sales make up only a small part of Stockmann's trade. Most of the store's business is with visitors to the main store and branches elsewhere in Finland. Shopping advice is offered in eight languages by sales clerks wearing tiny flags to indicate the languages they speak.

In 1904, Stockmann's sold the first motor car ever bought in Finland. Today, the company has two motor vehicle units — Ford and Nissan dealerships — plus a service garage for cars driven in from the Soviet Union.

Stockmann's motto for customers in the Soviet Union is "If we don't carry it, we'll get it for you."

Director Hannu Penttila told an interviewer in his office: "Our sales to Moscow customers have become more important. They run to $5 million a year. We ship at 5 p.m. and it's in Moscow at 9 a.m. the next morning. That's why we can ship fresh foods like milk and salad greens. Perishables are packed in dry ice."

Looking ahead, Penttila would like to develop outlets in the Soviet Union, but he says the Soviets insist on a 50-50 balance of trade with Finland.

"We can't find enough products in Russia that you can sell to Western customers," he said.

Still, they say in Moscow that you don't go shopping, you go searching, and Penttila would like to remedy that state of affairs. So the possibility of opening a Moscow branch is being studied despite the Soviet attitude.

Lacy, Openwork Knit Is Versatile

A comfortable boat-neck classic that combines an openwork shell pattern and very little shaping, it's fashioned with a washable brushed acrylic yarn. This yarn would normally work to a five-stitch gauge, but in this lacy pattern you'll have a quick-knit gauge of 3 1/2 stitches to the inch.

The yarn's perfect winter-through-spring weight gives you a sweater you can wear most of the year. Easy-to-follow directions are given for small-medium and large sizes with finished bust measurements of 38 1/4 and 45 inches respectively.

To obtain directions for making the Scallop Shell Pullover, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-010388 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-010388 by sending a check or money order for $17.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, instruction leaflet and brushed acrylic yarn in your choice of dusty rose or turquoise.

Dear Readers: Is my face red! In a recent column, I gave incorrect directions for crocheting a headband. Here are the corrected instructions:

With worsted-weight yarn, use a size I hook or any size that gives you a gauge of 4 stitches per inch. Chain 15 stitches and single crochet in the second chain from the hook and then in each remaining chain to the end (14 stitches). Work even in single crochet for 3 inches. Work in the back loop of each stitch throughout.

On each of the next 5 rows, increase 1 stitch at the beginning and end of the row. Mark the last increase row with a strand of contrast yarn. Work even on these 24 stitches until the piece measures 10 inches from the marked row.

On each of the next 5 rows, decrease 1 stitch at the beginning and end of the row. Work even on these 14 stitches for 3 more inches. Fasten off, leaving yarn long enough to sew this short edge to the other short edge. After sewing these edges together, fold the band in half lengthwise and whip the two long edges together.

Dear Pat: I think I have a better solution for Iona S., who wrote you about a problem with loose edge stitches on her knitting. I find that if I knit the first and last stitch of each row — even on purl or pattern rows — my edge stitches are firm and even. — Millie A., North Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Dear Millie: Thanks for sharing your pointer with us. And thanks to all of you who take the time to share your own special tips with other readers. A tip of the hat, too, to those who share "quickie" patterns and ideas for using leftover yarns. These are always welcomed and considered a great addition to the column.

Dutch Teens Give Advice To Peers Through Column

By PAUL VERSCHUUR
Associated Press Writer

HILVERSUM, Netherlands (AP) — A unique advice column here has found a way to avoid preachiness by letting its readership answer the calls for help that come in the mailbox.

Take the despondent teen-ager contemplating suicide who recently wrote to the "Rear End" advice column, and got back more than a hundred reasons not to do it from his own peers.

"If you get it into your head to put an end to your life, I think you're a stupid idiot ... I have also gone through rough times but I've always recovered," wrote 17-year-old Rianne Dekkers, who said three of her family's friends had recently killed themselves.

Rianne's letter, and more than a hundred others were given to the teen-ager by Nelleke van der Drift, editor of the irreverent "Rear End" column, which appears in the VPRO television program guide.

Ms. Van der Drift runs an advice column, targeted to teen-agers, in which she doesn't offer advice "because that'll turn me into a kind of auntie."

Instead she lets her readers address the calls for help that appear in the column.

Ms. Van der Drift offers her contributors a chance to let off steam about anything they can't discuss with parents, teachers or friends, such as adolescent sexuality or parents' marital problems.

"If you're a boy and fall in love with another boy, and you can't talk about it at home, you feel extremely lonely," she said. Her column tries to alleviate that sense of isolation.

The language of the column often matches its name, a tongue-in-cheek reference to its original location on the back page of the television guide, which claims a weekly circulation of 140,000.

Many of her correspondents "are in a body they still haven't accepted," and editor Van der Drift believes that allowing explicit language encourages her correspondents to speak more freely.

"I think that if you want to allow those kids some freedom ... they must be allowed to use their own language ... You can't censor Rear End," she said.

That openness has spawned its own controversy, with one irate parent recently writing in that "I protest ... the polemic about private parts, a disgusting display of pornographic lust."

Ms. Van der Drift says her role in editing the column is to select about eight letters from a weekly crop of 200-300, with her sole criterion being if "the letter makes me feel this is real, these are emotions."

About a dozen of the 700 responses to the suicidal boy's lament made it into the Rear End column, and she delivered 120 in person.

The 47-year-old editor refuses to change the letters, even to the point of allowing spelling errors to appear.

Rear End is unique even in a nation like this, where there are virtually no subjects that are taboo, because of its function as a debating-by-mail forum.

"I'm pretty worried about that group of 13- to 18-year-olds," said Ms. Van der Drift, who started the column 13 years ago when her own children were teen-agers.

"What I wanted was a column that would be read by children and adults alike."

Although the Rear End letters deal mostly with personal problems, some writers air their views about environmental pollution, nuclear arms and the problems of the Third World.

"My experience is that girls are much better at putting their emotions in writing than boys," Ms. Van der Drift said.

Debates frequently continue from week to week, until the editor decides that it's time to move on to another issue.

Unlike other advice columnists, Ms. Van der Drift personally intervenes at times outside her column if she feels that a situation is desperate.

That may involve calling a teen-ager at home and setting up an appointment to meet in private. Although she admits to no formal training in counseling, Ms. Van der Drift often refers troubled youths to professional counselors.

Over the years, she has helped a few dozen children who had been adopted as babies locate their natural parents, she says.

In the case of the suicidal schoolboy, "It was all a matter of getting attention ... he just beamed," she says.

Wedding Vows Said Dec. 27

Kimberly Dawn Haddock and Thomas Earl Umphlett were united in marriage Dec. 27 at 3 p.m. in the Red Oak Christian Church. The Rev. Dexter Wasson officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Brenda A. Rimmer and William B. Haddock of Grimesland. The bridegroom is the son of Linda L. Umphlett of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Shirley Denton. Amanda Manning was soloist.

Pamela A. Summerlin was her sister's honor attendant. Roy Hopkins of Greenville was best man. Ushers were Scott Garris and Cam Cox of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a tea-length gown of white rochelle galloon lace fashioned with a sabrina neckline bordered in scalloped rochelle lace with a center front medallion of silk Venise lace accented with dangling pearls and iridescents. The long tapered sleeves of sheer lace were edged in scalloped lace. The fitted bodice was accented at the torso with ruching which extended to the dropped waistline finished in the back with a satin Dior bow. The gathered full circular skirt was finished in matching scalloped lace.

Her fingertip veil was attached to a headpiece of seed pearls, baby's breath and red rosettes. She carried a bouquet of red and white roses, baby's breath and cascades of honeysuckle and streamers of red and white bridal ribbon.

The mothers, grandmothers and great-grandmothers were remembered with corsages of roses and carnations.

Jeannette Wasson directed the wedding, assisted by Rena Manning.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall given by the bridegroom's mother. Members of the Christian Youth Fellowship of Red Oak assisted in serving.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of D.H. Conley High School. She was employed by Roses Stores, Inc. at Stanton Square. He is currently serving in the U.S. Air Force and is stationed at Travis AFB in California.

After a wedding trip across country, the couple will live in California. A bridal shower was given by friends and a dinner was given by relatives.

Leaving Baby Is Serious

DEAR ABBY: My teen-age unwed daughter was expecting me at 3 p.m. to pick up her baby for the weekend. I arrived 30 minutes early and found the baby home alone in his playpen — I could see him through the window. Fortunately, the landlord who lives next door let me in. My daughter arrived 15 minutes later.

I told her she had done a terrible thing by leaving her baby alone for even five minutes — she could have had a car accident or been detained for any number of reasons. She said her roommate was due home at 5 p.m. and the baby would have been OK if something had happened to her.

I love my daughter very much, but I also love this precious grandbaby. I am so afraid this might happen again. I cannot imagine leaving a baby, or any child, alone, locked in a house for even five minutes — let alone going away in a car to do an errand.

How can I make sure this will

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

never happen again? — WORRIED GRANDMA

DEAR WORRIED: You can't. This is clearly child neglect. If your daughter refuses to listen, it would be in the best interests of the child to be removed from her care. After a child has been trapped (alone) in a fire, or kidnapped, or molested, it is too late. Until your daughter realizes the seriousness of leaving a child alone in a house, she's not competent to raise one.

DEAR ABBY: My parents have been married for 52 years. My mother is a saint. Together they raised 11 children. I learned about my father's other women when I was 12, but I never told anyone.

Many years have passed. Lately my father has been coming to my house to use my phone to call other women long-distance so the calls won't appear on his telephone bill. I pay for those calls although I can ill afford to. I feel as if my father wants me to know he is cheating because he knows it hurts me. My mom baby-sits to make ends meet, while Dad spends money on other women.

I love both my parents, but I still have this little core of hate for my father, and feel that he is deliberately nurturing it. I hate to hurt my mother by telling her about Dad. Do you think I'm wrong? — SEALED LIPS

DEAR SEALED: No. After 52 years, she knows the kind of man she's married. I think you should tell your father that he may not use your telephone to make long-distance calls. And if you really think he is trying to hurt you by letting you in on his dallying with other women, avoid him whenever possible.

Volume in the Big Board came to 23.76 billion shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

264 Said Dangerous

would be marked with flashing caution lights.

But now, according to Harrell, "What we really need is overpasses."

And the letter suggests this need to the DOT. But it says, "The Board of County Commissioners would request that until such time that overpasses can be provided, if that is indeed a part of the long range plan, that other solutions be considered. Caution and/or flashing lights at these intersections might work. Please review this matter to ascertain if any solution is available."

Randy Doub of Greenville, a member of the Board of Transportation, said this morning that the "right-of-way is available" for interchanges along the new four-lane U.S. 264.

"There's always that potential (to add overpasses)," he said. But they are not presently programmed in the Transportation Improvement Plan. "It's a matter of funding," Doub suggested.

Interchanges would cost $1 million to $1.5 million each, Doub said. They were not included in the initial design of the road and to have added them "would have delayed the opening by about 1 1/2 years."

"I think the feeling was that at a later time, if there was support for adding interchanges, we could go back ... if money was available."

Now, Doub said, "I think it is more important to get the Farmville bypass and Greenville bypass underway than to spend the money on interchanges."

"The land is so flat (in eastern North Carolina) that it takes an enormous amount of fill dirt hauled in to create an interchange. The decision was made to buy the right-of-way for them, but to construct at-grade intersections."

Doub said interchanges "would certainly be a nice addition to the highway. But my feeling is that it's more important getting the Farmville bypass let (for construction) and get on with right-of-way acquisition on the northwest Greenville bypass (and) add a southwest (Greenville) bypass to the Transportation Plan."

"These intersections are well marked," Doub suggested. "There's really not a lot of difference between those (on U.S. 264) and (the at-grade intersections) on N.C. 11 (south of Greenville). In fact, there are a whole lot less (intersections) on U.S. 264 than on N.C. 11 south."

A less costly way to improve safety at the intersections, Doub suggested, would be to "make the public aware that when they see a stop sign, they need to stop."

'Pistol Pete' Leaves His Imprint

Maravich Dead At 40

Pete Maravich, former amateur and professional basketball star, died Tuesday of a heart attack suffered during a pickup basketball game in Pasadena, Calif. PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — "Pistol Pete" Maravich, the shaggy-haired, floppy-socked sensation who possessed an almost mystical skill with a basketball, leaves an indelible imprint on his sport.

"When I go to these college games and I see these halftime shows where the kids get down on their bellies and dribble the ball or spin the ball on their finger, that's the Pistol," Cotton Fitzsimmons, who coached Maravich with the Atlanta Hawks, said.

"He leaves this game with a legacy. Most players don't." Maravich, who recently recalled that he even slept with a basketball as a youngster, collapsed and died Tuesday while playing in a pickup game at First Church of the Nazarene. He was 40.

"He'll be remembered always, particularly when we see some tousle-haired kid with drooping socks standing on some semi-darkened court, or in a yard after everyone else has gone home. He'll be shooting a basket, and we will remember Pete," said Dale Brown, current coach at Louisiana State University, where Maravich became college basketball's all-time scoring leader.

"The day he was born, his dad put a ball in his hand and he played with that basketball every day; he grew up with it," recalled Fitzsimmons, now Phoenix Suns director of player personnel.

"The fact that he died playing the game he loved so much, that's ironic."

Also ironic were Maravich's final words, as recounted by Gary Lydick, another player in the half-court game.

"Maravich said, 'I haven't played but once in the past year, in an NBA legends game. I need to do this more often. I'm really feeling good,'" Lydick recalled.

"Maravich turned to walk away and immediately fell to the floor," Lydick said. "He lost consciousness and efforts to revive him were futile."

He died at 9:34 a.m. PST, according to Sue McPherson of the St. Luke Medical Center. She said the cause of death had not been determined.

After playing for Atlanta, New Orleans, Utah and Boston in an NBA career that ended in 1980, Maravich spent recent years as an evangelist and occasionally worked as a basketball analyst.

He was in California to appear Tuesday afternoon on a Christian radio show, Dr. James Dobson's "Focus on Family."

Lydick, also with the "Focus on Family" organization, and Dobson invited Maravich to join their morning basketball game at Pasadena.

Lydick said he and his friends usually play Monday, Wednesday and Friday, but switched to Tuesday so Maravich could join in.

He said the group had played three or four half-court games Tuesday morning and that Maravich wasn't exerting himself.

"He certainly didn't have to play hard against us. He wasn't even hardy perspiring," Lydick said. "He was outclassing us without even trying."

Lydick, who had given Maravich a ride from his hotel to First Church of the Nazarene Tuesday morning, said Maravich had seemed particularly happy.

"He talked about his new book, 'Heir to a Dream,' and the Lord, and the possibility of a film about his life," Lydick said. "It was a special time of sharing."

Maravich averaged 44.2 points a game in amassing an NCAA-record 3,667 points in three years of playing for his father, Press Maravich, at LSU from 1968 through 1970. He averaged 24.2 points a game during a decade in the NBA.

Maravich played two years at Raleigh's Broughton High School.

He was inducted into the NBA Hall of Fame last May, a month after his father, who was 71, died of cancer.

In his Hall of Fame induction speech, Pete said a basketball had been his constant companion as a youth and described himself as a "basketball android."

"Whatever I did, wherever I went, I had the basketball with me," he said. "It just became an extension of my hand. Everything else was secondary."

"I even took a basketball to bed with me until I was 14 years old. I would just lie there in bed throwing it up and doing fingertip drills."

"When I was 8 and 9 years old, I would dribble the ball 2½ miles into town and 2½ miles back. When I got a little older, I would dribble it into town while riding my bike," Maravich said.

"Then my father would take me out in the car and have me lean out and dribble the basketball as he was driving along. At first I told him he was crazy, but then I realized he was trying to build my confidence."

Maravich capped his college career by being named player of the year in 1970.

He signed a $1.9 million contract with the Atlanta Hawks in March 1970, at the time pro sport's richest contract ever for an athlete coming out of college.

Four years later, he was traded to the expansion New Orleans Jazz. Although the Jazz usually had a losing record, Maravich's drawing power helped the club set attendance figures in the Superdome, with crowds of more than 30,000 on several occasions.

Maravich scored a career-high 69 points against Alabama during his college days, and the zenith of his pro career came with the Jazz in 1977 when he scored 68 points against the New York Knicks, then an NBA record for a guard.

The following year, he wrecked a knee making one of his sensational behind-the-back passes. In January 1980, he was waived by the Jazz, who had moved to Utah, but the Boston Celtics signed him almost immediately.

He helped the Celtics make the NBA playoffs that year, then retired suddenly during the following preseason.

"He joins his father, whom he loved most dearly, and finally, he died doing what he did better than anyone else ever did or ever will do, putting the ball through the hoop," Brown said.

Maravich is survived by his widow, Jackie, and two sons, Jaeson 8, and Joshua, 5.

Funeral arrangements, being handled by Rabenhorst Funeral Home of Baton Rouge, La., are pending.

Jags Rumble Back, Top Conley In 63-60 Decision

BY TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

FARMVILLE — After spending the first three and half quarters digging themselves into a hole, Farmville Central's Jaguars decided to reverse the process.

Farmville trailed from the opening tip and were down by 10 early in the fourth quarter, but the Jaguars regrouped and clawed their way back to take a 63-60 win over 3-A cross-county rival D.H. Conley in high school basketball action Tuesday night.

"At crunch time, we were able to play our best," said Farmville coach Mike Terrell. "We hadn't done that yet. We needed to do that to show that we could."

And no one turned in any bigger plays than sophomore center Jarvis Lang, who scored 22 points on the night, including nine in the fourth quarter.

Perhaps Lang's biggest play came with 44 seconds remaining. Conley's Emerson Merritt had just hit two free throws seconds earlier to pull the Vikings within 59-58.

Lang responded with a big basket inside, drew the foul and then canned the free throw to give the Jaguars a 62-58 lead.

Merritt came back to hit a jumper and make it 62-60 but Farmville's Gary Moore hit the front end of a one-and-one attempt with seven seconds to go to make it 63-60. Lang then rebounded the miss to erase any miracle hopes by the Vikings.

"Jarvis Lang was super inside," Terrell said. "For a sophomore, he isn't that bad. He's the most consistent guy we have on the team."

For Conley, it was a tough way to start out the new year. The Vikings led most of the game, before giving up the lead with just over four minutes remaining.

"This team has got to learn to play intense the whole ballgame," said Conley coach Walter Claybrook. "This team has shown a tendency to play hard (at times)."

"If they get a lead, they start to coast and let the other team get back in it."

Conley moved out ahead early in the game over the cold-shooting Jaguars and forged a 34-25 halftime advantage. Sherwood Wilder led the way with three 3-point field goals in the opening half.

Farmville closed within 36-33 on a fallaway jumper by Alexander Daniels with 5:18 to go in the third quarter but Conley was able to push the lead back up to seven by the end of the quarter, 47-40.

Bronswell Patrick opened the final quarter for Conley by hitting on one of two free throw attempts to make it 48-40. After a Farmville miss, Conley came right back as Jonathan Bonner hit a short jumper inside to make it 50-40.

But from there, Farmville began to inch back.

First Lang hit inside to make it 50-42. Conley then turned the ball over and Joyner got a dunk off the fast break to make it 50-44.

With 6:29 remaining, Phil Medlin, who led both teams with 24 points, missed the front end of a one-and-one and Farmville came up with the ball.

Alexander Daniels missed from the outside but Gary Moore was there for the rebound. His follow shot was good and he was fouled. He canned the free throw and the Jaguars had pulled within three at 50-47.

With 5:58 remaining, Lang nailed a jumper to make it 50-49.

Wilder was called for walking on the other end and the ball went back to Farmville.

With 4:56 to go in the game, Lang gave the Jaguars their first lead on a follow shot to make it 51-50.

From there it was nip and tuck until Lang's three-point tuck gave Farmville the four point cushion in the final minute.

Terrell said the key to the comeback was the Jaguars' press in the final period.

"The press turned it around," he said. "We made some crucial plays at the end. I think in the fourth quarter we made a lot of intelligent decisions, both on offense and defense. They made some mistakes and we were able to turn them into baskets."

For Claybrook, it was a familiar story in his effort to find a capable backcourt to complement his strength up front.

"Right now on the perimeter, I'm not sure who can make the big play," he said. "We don't have the super ballhandler athlete this year. You have to work hard all ballgame. You have to keep it up."

Terry Williams added 10 points for Conley while Joyner had 15 and Daniels 13 to support Farmville.

Conley falls to 5-4 and travels to Washington Tuesday to take on the Pam Pack.

Farmville stands at 6-2 and takes on Friday at C.B. Aycock.

In the girl's game, Conley came from way behind to take a 54-49 win over the Lady Jaguars in overtime.

Conley trailed by as many as 26 points in the second half but rallied to within 14 the start of the fourth quarter and then slowly narrowed the gap in the final quarter.

Lendora Tyson, who led both teams with 26 points, pulled Conley within 10 early in the fourth period on a short inside shot.

Glenda Hardy then followed with two free throws to make it 44-36. After a Farmville turnover, Charlene Davenport connected on a layup to make it 44-38.

Vicki Best countered with a free throw for Farmville but Tyson answered that with two free throws at the other end to make it 45-40.

Farmville regrouped from there and played the Valkyries even over the next two minutes, forging a 49-43 lead with just over a minute left.

With 1:16 to go, Tyson hit two free throws to make it 49-45.

Best missed the front end of a one and one at the other end and Conley then pulled within 49-47 on a layup by Hardy with 41 seconds to go.

New Law Helps Group Set Up Retirement Plan

ATLANTA (AP) — College football coaches, who usually operate on a what-have-you-done-for-us-lately relationship with fans, received a special Christmas present last month — from the United States Congress.

A major spending bill signed into law by President Reagan on Dec. 22 made it possible for the American Football Coaches Association to sponsor a portable, flexible, tax-advantageous retirement plan for its 5,500 members, some 3,000 of whom are attending the AFCA's annual four-day convention this week.

"We're the only retirement amendment that's ever been attached to a spending bill in the history of Congress," Larry S. Roseberry of International Brokerage & Management, the Athens, Tenn., firm which administers the plan and spent three years pushing for the federal legislation, said Tuesday.

"It gained more co-sponsors in the House of Representatives than any bill in the history of Congress with the exception of defense measures.

"The bill in the Senate collected more co-sponsors than any bill in the history of Congress other than a defense measure."

"We were the only bill passed in 1987 that had anything to do with the tax code. No other corporation or entity anywhere else in the United States was able to get legislation passed."

While University of Miami coaches celebrated their national championship, their coaching colleagues were basking in what Gary Moeller, assistant head coach at Michigan and chairman of the AFCA's Assistant Coaches Committee, called "one of the biggest wins that we're ever going to have in football."

Assistant coaches, whose contracts generally run from year to year, usually bear the brunt of a team's failure to win as much as the administration and the alumni would like. The AFCA has succeeded in getting some schools to give assistant coaches July-to-July contracts, or January-to-January plus six months, to provide added security for coaches' families.

Now their long-range future may be as important as their immediate future.

"What took place is that the United States Congress passed a law specifically saying that football coaches now have a qualified pension plan," Roseberry said.

The plan provides the means for a coach and his employer, current or future, to accumulate retirement funds on a tax-favorable basis provided the coach is employed full-time by a four-year college to coach football and is a member of the AFCA.

A coach may contribute from 1-20 percent of his annual earnings — but not more than $7,000 in any calendar year — to the plan with before-federal-tax dollars. That also includes before-state-tax dollars, except in Pennsylvania.

Blount Leads Chargers By Pats

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
LITTLEFIELD — Eric Blount led a three-pronged attack as Ayden-Grifton rolled to a 74-55 basketball victory over West Carteret as the two schools resumed high school cage action Tuesday night after the holiday break.

West Carteret's girls remained unbeaten as they defeated Ayden-Grifton, 51-28, in their game.

The Chargers looked sharp on offense, cashing in on 52.6 percent of their shots on the night from the floor. West Carteret didn't do quite as well, making good on 42.1 percent. Both teams took an equal number of shots, 57, but the Chargers made good on 30, six more.

The foul line also added to the Charger total as they hit 12 of 22 there, compared to just four of 10 for the Patriots.

Ayden-Grifton also held a 39-37 rebounding edge, but much of that came late in the game when the Pats were forced to put it up more often.

"I was pleased with our effort coming off the holidays," Charger coach Bob Murphrey said. "We played better offensively than I had expected you to. But we didn't play as well defensively. We're still not doing anything special with our defense and I'm disappointed that we weren't more aggressive on defense. They got a lot of easy shots, especially in the first half."

And, Murphrey was not happy with the rebounding. "We've got to get a lot better there," he said.

If there was a real plus to the Charger game, it was that Ayden-Grifton totally controlled the tempo. "We wanted to get into a fast tempo game," Murphrey said. "We felt that we would be quicker than they were and that it would be to our advantage."

The two teams skirmished throughout the first quarter of the game. The lead changed hands five times and it was tied on six occasions before Tony Reeves put Ayden-Grifton ahead with a driving layup with 1:55 showing for a 16-14 lead. James Woodard added a jumper with 44 seconds left to give AG a 4-point spread, the largest for either team thus far.

Eric Lewis, however, hit from the lane with three seconds left to cut it back to 18-16 at the horn.

Ronnell Peterson opened the second period with a steal and a slam dunk that got the Chargers rocking. They quickly pushed the lead out to six on a follow shot by Dixon at 24-18 with 6:29 to go in the half.

After an exchange of baskets, Woodard made two free throws and Bobby Smith hit off a pass from Blount to up the lead to 30-10 with 3:59 left.

The two exchanged points the rest of the quarter as the Chargers took a 36-26 lead into the dressing rooms.

Peterson hit from the top of the lane and Blount canned a 3-pointer around an opening West Carteret basket. Aaron Harper then hit the front end of a one-and-one with 6:17 showing to give the Chargers a 42-28 lead.

Blount then started a 6-point spurt with a fantastic fake off the fast break, keeping the ball for a layup. Peterson followed with two baskets to open the lead to 50-32 with 2:28 to go.

The Chargers led, 52-36, as the period ended.

Peterson hit with 5:34 left to make the lead 60-40, and it later went to 66-44 on a turnaround jumper by Reeves. Terry Dixon hit a free throw with 1:58 remaining to give the Chargers their biggest lead, 71-48.

Blount finished with 16 points while Dixon had 15 and Peterson had 14.

"Leon has been giving us a lift,"

Murphrey said. "He's giving us something inside and I hope it continues."

Lewis paced West Carteret with 13 points while Chris Bryant added 10.

It was no contest early in the girls' game as West Carteret easily pulled away from the Lady Chargers. Wendy Nelson put the Lady Patriots ahead and Jenny McCausley hit a 3-pointer to close out the quarter with a 9-1 lead as Ayden-Grifton failed to connect from the floor.

West Carteret pushed its lead out to 10, 15-5, midway through the second quarter, then scored nine in a row after an AG basket to run the lead to 24-7 with 1:33 left. Iris Brown hit for the Chargers to cut it back to 24-9 at the half.

West Carteret built its lead to as much as 20 in the third period, 34-14, and took a 36-19 lead into the final quarter. In that, the Lady Pats hit the final six points of the game to record the 23-point margin of victory.

Nelson led the way with 16 points while Staci King had 11 and Mary Green contributed 10. No one scored in double figures for Ayden-Grifton.

West Carteret's boys are now 2-6 on the year while the girls climb to 6-0.

Ayden-Grifton, which entertains Washington tonight, is now 5-2 while the girls are 1-7.

Roanoke then charged ahead in the third period with a 22-11 advantage. That pushed the Lady 'Skins into a 40-32 lead. North Pitt rallied, 20-14, but was never able to catch up, missing a final shot to tie with three seconds to go.

Fenner Applies To UNC For Readmission

By The Associated Press

Derrick Fenner, the Atlantic Coast Conference's leading rusher two seasons ago who had a murder charge against him dropped last month, has applied for readmission to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, school officials said.

North Carolina Athletic Director John Swofford said Fenner has applied for readmission in time for the spring semester that begins Monday. However, two university appeals committees must approve the application before the standout running back is readmitted.

Because Fenner had lost his academic eligibility before his arrest last May for a drug-related murder in Hyattsville, Md., his application must be considered by UNC's academic appeals committee, Swofford said.

Due to Fenner's legal problems, including a still-pending drug and handgun possession charge, his readmission also must be approved by the university's student affairs committee.

But Swofford told the Greensboro News & Record on Tuesday that he has firmly recommended that Fenner not play football for North Carolina in 1988.

"If Derrick returns, it will be best for him to spend a full year to get back on track academically and behaviorally before he concerns himself with the football aspect," Swofford said.

That would mean Fenner could return from a two-year layoff from football for one final season of college eligibility in 1989.

"North Carolina is where I started, and I'd like to go back," Fenner told the newspaper. "But it would be a real disappointing if I had to sit out a second straight season, competitor that I am."

In 1986, his sophomore season, Fenner led the ACC in rushing with 1,250 yards in helping the Tar Heels to a 7-4-1 record.

Maryland's Walker Regains Eligibility

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Junior forward Rodney Walker has been declared eligible to play basketball for the University of Maryland, the university announced Tuesday.

Walker, a 6-foot-9 forward from Baltimore, transferred to Maryland last January from Syracuse, where he averaged 3.3 points and 3.1 rebounds as a freshman two years ago.

Walker has met the academic and residency requirements set down by the NCAA, a Maryland spokesperson said.

Walker is the third player in the last two weeks to join the Terrapins after sitting out games played during the university's first semester.

Senior guard Keith Gatlin, the school's all-time assist leader, rejoined the team Monday after sitting out all of last season and the first semester this year.

Both Gatlin and Walker have accompanied the Terps on their trip to Columbia, Mo., and will suit up Wednesday night for Maryland's game against the University of Missouri.

Sophomore forward Tony Massenburg, who sat out more than a season after being suspended for academic reasons, rejoined the team last week and has played in the Terps' last three games.

Deacons May Lose Siler For The Season

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Robert Siler, Wake Forest's starting freshman point guard, may be lost to the Demon Deacons for the remainder of the season after suffering a knee injury last week, head coach Bob Staak said.

Siler injured his left knee in the consolation game of the Palm Beach Classic. Originally, the injury was not thought to be that serious, but Staak said Tuesday that Siler may face surgery to repair a torn ligament.

"If surgery is required, then certainly he would be out for the year and that would be a blow to our team," Staak said.

Staak said a final decision on whether surgery is performed would be made later in the week.

The 6-foot-3 guard was averaging 10.8 points, 2.7 rebounds, 2.6 assists, while shooting 48 percent from the field.

McMahon Is Ready To Go

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Jim McMahon has worked his magic with the Chicago Bears.

He led them to the 1986 Super Bowl and the team has won 28 of the 29 games in which McMahon as started at quarterback. But the 28-year-old signal caller also has missed several games with injury.

He was out with a shoulder injury last season when the Washington Redskins knocked the Bears out of the NFC playoffs 27-13.

This season, he suffered a pulled hamstring muscle on Dec. 6 and missed the Bears' last three regular-season games.

Now he is back and, typical of McMahon, very confident.

He began running in practice Tuesday — and said he feels pretty good.

"I don't think I've ever been 100 percent," he said when asked if he would be totally healthy by Sunday. But he vowed to do whatever he has to do to win.

"I like playing in the playoffs," McMahon said. "I've only been there once, but we've had success. And I'm back again. And I'm hoping we'll have the same success."

Bears offensive coordinator Ed Hughes, who compared McMahon's personality to that of Gen. George Patton, said the quarterback can overcome his injury.

"I expect Jim to be as healthy as he was in the Super Bowl," Hughes said. "He came into that game with an injury and played a heck of a game."

McMahon said that injury was similar to his hamstring pull, but the latest injury goes all the way down his right leg.

"I did all the drills," he said after practice Tuesday at Notre Dame University. "I did the running at the end. I didn't run very fast, but I was just trying to get a little bit of wind back."

"I don't know how much that's going to help out in that cold (Sunday), but I'm just trying to get in as good of a shape as I can without running as hard as I can," he said.

But in a game, he said, it's hard to think about physical limitations.

"I've tried to do less before and it hasn't really worked," the quarterback said. "When I get on the field, my instinct takes over."

"I'm going to do whatever I can. I'm going to try to avoid running. Hopefully the linemen will do their job and I won't have to run, but there are occasions when you have to take off. Hopefully, there won't be too many of them."

Tuesday's indoor practice was a welcome change from the outdoors in Chicago, where the wind-chill factor was around 40 below zero.

"Washington gets pretty cold, too, so I'm sure they (Redskins) are used to playing in the cold weather," McMahon said. But he said the cold weather makes mistakes seem more critical.

"If it's 40 below and the wind's blowing, you're not going to throw (the ball) too much," he said. "But when you do throw it, you'd better throw it right. Any little thing can backfire on you — in this kind of weather, especially."

NASCAR's Big 3 Set For Series

TINTON FALLS, N.J. (AP) — The stock car trio of Dale Earnhardt, Bill Elliott and Geoff Bodine has accepted invitations to drive in the 1988 International Race of Champions series.

Earnhardt and Elliott dominated the NASCAR stock car circuit last year, finishing one-two in the points. Earnhardt won 11 races and more than $2 million on the way to his second straight Winston Cup championship, while Elliott won the Daytona 500, five other NASCAR events and more than $1 million.

Bodine had a disappointing year on the Winston Cup circuit, but won two of four IROC races and a record $191,900 for winning the series title.

Earnhardt will be making his fourth appearance in the series that pits stars of stock car, Indy-car and sports car racing against each other in identically prepared IROC Z-28 Chevrolet Camaros.

Elliott will be making his third consecutive IROC appearance, while Bodine will be appearing in the rich all-star series for the second time.

The 12th IROC series will open on Feb. 12 at Daytona International Speedway and also will include races June 11 at Riverside International Raceway, Aug. 6 at Michigan International Speedway and Aug. 13 at Watkins Glen International.

The Daytona and Michigan are contested on high-banked ovals, while the Riverside and Watkins Glen events are run on road courses.

The rest of the 12-driver lineup will be announced soon, according to Jay Signore, IROC vice president and general manager.

The IROC series, which will be televised by ABC Sports, is co-sponsored by Budweiser, Chevrolet and Goodyear.

Pam Pack Slip Past Williamston, 62-61

WASHINGTON — Washington High School escaped from Williamston with a 62-61 basketball victory Tuesday night when the Tigers missed a chance at the line with one second remaining.

Washington's girls also came away with a win, downing Williamston, 43-27.

Williamston, playing one of its better games of the year, took command in the first quarter of the game, leaving by 17-14 after one quarter.

Washington, however, regained its legs in the second period and out-muscled Williamston, 19-8, to charge into a 33-25 halftime lead.

Williamston came back in the third period, 20-15, to cut the lead to 48-45. Then, in the last period, it stayed close all the way. Guy Spruill hit the first of a one-and-one that cut it to one with one second left, and both teams squandered opportunities in the final seconds of play. Williamston had one last chance with one second left, but the free throw fell away and Washington claimed the win.

Ryan Dixon led Washington with 17 points while Nico Hines and Bob Rhodes each had 13 and Donnell Albritton had 10. Spruill led Williamston with 15 while Shawn Reid had 14 and Michael York and William Matthews each had 11.

Washington's girls shot out to a 16-2 lead in the first quarter and were never in any danger from the Lady Tigers. By halftime, the lead had stretched to 30-8, and Washington led, 39-15, going into the final period. Williamston was allowed a 12-4 comeback in that period.

McMahon said the Bears think they can find some holes in the Redskins' defense.

"They play a lot of man-to-man defense," he said. "We expect (cornerback) Darrell Green to go wherever Willie (Gault) goes. That's the way they play. They put Darrell on the fastest receiver. At least we know where he's at and we can concentrate on the other people."

"We should be able to run the football. We ran the football pretty well on them last year. We had a couple of fumbles, a few interceptions, and those kinds of things hurt."

McMahon said he has no worries about coming back after a layoff.

"Layoffs are things you like to write about," he told reporters. "It's not a big deal. I've played the game for a long time."

"At this level, I think the game is 90 percent mental," he said. "If you can get over that, your body should do what it's been doing for years. You just have to be in the right frame of mind and it'll happen."

And he's aware that people expect him to make a difference in the playoff game this year. Last season, many blamed the loss on quarterback Doug Flutie, now with the New England Patriots.

"I've seen a lot of quotes from a lot of people, and I suppose there's going to be a lot of pressure put on me, but it's nothing compared to the pressure I put on myself," McMahon said.

North Edgecombe Sweeps By Bullets

JAMESVILLE — North Edgecombe High School swept a pair of Tobacco Belt Conference basketball games from Jamesville Tuesday night. The Warriors won the boys' game, 42-37, and took the girls' game, 41-32.

The boys' game started slow. North Edgecombe inched out into a 6-5 lead in the opening period, but Jamesville came back to hold a 13-8 advantage in the second quarter. That put the Bullets into an 18-14 halftime lead.

North Edgecombe came back in the third period to oust Jamesville, 14-11, but the Bullets still held a 29-28 lead as the final quarter opened. North Edgecombe then held a 14-8 margin in the period to wrap it up.

Derrick Belcher led North Edgecombe with 13 points while Tim Condrey had 10. Jamesville was paced by Eric Spruill with 14 and Ben James with 10.

In the girls' game, both teams scored but four points in the first period. But North Edgecombe got cranked up in the second frame to oust Jamesville, 17-4. That pushed the Lady Warriors into a 21-8 halftime lead.

The two matched points in the third period, 12-12, as the score climbed to 33-20. Jamesville came back with a 12-8 advantage in the final period, but was too far back.

Cynthia Smith led North Edgecombe with 15 while Tonja Lee had 14. Val Clark had 16 to pace Jamesville.

Jamesville's girls are now 1-9 overall and 1-7 in league play. The Bullets are 2-5 in the league and 3-7 overall. Jamesville will host Aurora on Friday.

Orangemen Use Height To Roll By Boston College

BOSTON (AP) — The first half play-by-play read like a text book on basketball play down low.

Seikaly slam jam ... Seikaly alley oop ... Coleman monster jam ... Thompson two-handed stuff off steal ... Hughes spectacular jam.

Seventh-ranked Syracuse exploited a whopping height advantage and its overall speed Tuesday night in building a 40-18 halftime lead and cruising to an 80-67 Big East victory over Boston College. It was the only game involving a ranked team.

tired on defense. We knew we had the height advantage so we used that one on them, too."

"I like the luxury of having two big guys down low," said court general Douglas. "Rony and Derrick have such great hands they make it easy for me. On alley oops, Rony kind of gives me a little signal. With Derrick we have an eye contact thing that we work on in practice."

Syracuse built its lead to as much as 74-41 with six minutes to play. Then, with the help of 3-pointers and playing against Syracuse reserves, BC made the score respectable with a 26-6 advantage the rest of the way.

BC, 8-4 over-all and 0-2 in the conference, was led by Dana Barros with 17 points. Freshman Corey Beasley had 14 off the bench.

beat Tulsa 93-75 in a game punctuated by a bench-clearing brawl.

Richard Dumas scored 21 points, and Todd Christian and Derrick Davis added 20 apiece for the Cowboys, who broke open a close game with 65 second-half points.

The brawl began with 13:15 remaining in the game after Oklahoma State's Sylvester Kincheon elbowed Ray Wingard of Tulsa in a battle for control of the ball. Two technical fouls were called against each team and two players from each team were ejected from the game.

Tulsa was also hit by a technical after some people in the crowd of more than 8,000 tossed soft drink cups and other debris onto the court in the aftermath of the fight.

Tulsa's Tracy Moore scored a game-high 26 points.

At the Air Force Academy, there was a fight and four ejections in the Falcons' 89-68 victory over U.S. International.

Mike Hammond threw in 22 points to lead Air Force past USU. But Hammond was not one of the players tossed from the game with just over nine minutes left to play when he and Air Force teammate Mike Lockwood got into a fight with USU's Matt Judd and Russ Heicke.

Rony Seikaly, a 6-foot-10 senior, and Derrick Coleman, a 6-9 sophomore, scored 19 points apiece and controlled the boards in leading the Orangemen, 11-2, to their ninth consecutive victory in their Big East Conference opener.

Steve Thompson had 15 points and reserve Keith Hughes 10 as Syracuse struck back in its conference debut after BC took its only lead, 7-6, with the game just over four minutes old.

The Orangemen went on a 13-2 run after a dunk by Seikaly. Then, after the Eagles gave some hope to fans in a Boston Garden crowd of 10,164 by drawing to within 23-17, Syracuse scored 17 points in a row. That charge was broken by a BC free throw just before the half.

"We ran into a certified buzzsaw in the first half," BC Coach Jim O'Brien said. "They clearly showed they had the advantage on the boards. We worked on blocking out for rebounds in practice, but we were just overwhelmed."

Unranked Teams

James Major scored 25 points and ignited a decisive 10-1 second-half run with a 3-point basket as Seton Hall defeated Connecticut 71-58 in the Big East, snapping the Huskies' five-game winning streak.

Major's 3-point shot with 13:35 to play broke a 41-41 tie, then teammate Mark Bryant took over. The muscular forward, who scored 18 of his 22 points in the second half, hit three foul shots, drove the lane for a layup, and then pounded in a dunk following a Connecticut foul shot.

Lorenzo Sutton tied an Atlantic 10 and school record with eight 3-point field goals and scored a game-high 28 points in leading Massachusetts to a 69-51 victory over Penn State.

Seven-foot-one Alan Ogg came off the bench to score 18 points as Alabama-Birmingham pulled away in the second half for an 85-67 victory over Mississippi Valley State.

Tim Pollard scored 23 of his game-high 26 points in the second half for Mississippi Valley, including six consecutive 3-point field goals. He was eight of 12 from 3-point range.

"There are teams in the Big East that we can play competitively against. Right now, Syracuse isn't one of them."

"Rony and Derrick did a good job getting open," Syracuse Coach Jim Boehm said. "They were just too strong for BC to handle down low. Stevie Thompson had one of his best games and Sherman Douglas did a good job of getting the ball to the big guys."

"BC is a quick team, but we didn't give them any chance to fast break."

Facing a team with only one starter as tall as 6-8, Syracuse scored from as far away as 10 feet just once in the first half. Most of its 17 baskets were from underneath.

"If they're going to give us room to move around inside, we're going to take advantage of it," said Seikaly, who also had nine rebounds.

"When they went to the zone, we did a good job moving around without the ball," said Coleman, who grabbed 15 rebounds. "Toward the end of the first half we were running around like crazy on them and that got them

Guatemala Will Not Host Talks, Officials Say

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Guatemala bowed to Nicaraguan demands by rejecting a request that it be the site for a meeting between the Contra rebels and the chief mediator in cease-fire talks, U.S. officials say.

The rebel leaders had said last week they will not hold any additional cease-fire talks unless they can first meet with the mediator, Nicaraguan Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, in Central America.

The disclosure of the Guatemalan government's reported decision appeared to be a further setback to efforts to achieve a cease-fire in Nicaragua by Jan. 15 when Central American presidents meet to evaluate the peace plan they signed last August.

An integral part of the plan is agreement on cease-fires in all three countries of the region where insurgencies are under way — Nicaragua, Guatemala and El Salvador.

The Contras have said the agreement, authored by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias, should be abandoned if there is no significant move toward a peace settlement by the mid-January deadline.

An international commission evaluating Central American compliance with the peace agreement was winding up a two-day visit to Managua today.

The Sandinistas maintain they have done more than any other Central American country to comply with the agreement but 14 Nicaraguan opposition groups issued a statement Monday asserting that the Sandinistas have not lived up to their commitments. Among those signing the statement was Obando y Bravo.

The peace plan calls for the creation of democracy throughout Central America, the lifting of states of emergency and other measures.

The rebels have complained that they have had only brief and intermittent access to Obando y Bravo, leaving them at a clear disadvantage because the Sandinistas are able to have regular meetings with the prelate in Managua.

According to administration sources, insisting on anonymity, Obando y Bravo indicated a willingness to meet with rebel leaders on Friday in Guatemala but Guatemalan officials rejected the proposal this week, citing objections by the Sandinista government. Guatemala has pursued an announced policy of neutrality toward the Nicaraguan conflict.

Nicaraguan Embassy officials were not available for comment. Marta Sacasa, a spokeswoman for the Contras in Miami, acknowledged that efforts to arrange a meeting in Guatemala were under way but said she had not been informed of Guatemala's reported rejection.

Thus far, only two rounds of cease-fire talks have been held with no progress reported. The Sandinistas angered the Contras last month by sending two foreigners — an American and a West German — to negotiate on their behalf.

"We will not negotiate a cease-fire with foreigners," said Alfonso Robelo, a member of the Contra directorate.

The rebels attach high priority to holding cease-fire discussions in Central America. They believe this would add weight to their claim to be a representative force in the region.

The Sandinistas, meanwhile, look on the rebels as Reagan administration puppets and therefore have insisted that cease-fire talks be held outside Central America. They also have refused to hold face-to-face discussions with the rebels.

Palestinian Wounded In West Bank Incident

JERUSALEM (AP) — An Israeli soldier shot and wounded a Palestinian in the West Bank city of Tulkarem today after the man attacked an army vehicle and stabbed a female soldier, the army said.

The Palestinian suffered moderate wounds, and the female soldier was slightly injured, said an army official who spoke on condition of anonymity. Israel radio said the female soldier was stabbed in the hand.

Scattered demonstrations were reported throughout the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, a day after Israeli soldiers shot and killed a 25-year-old Palestinian and wounded seven others in the Gaza town of Khan Yunis.

The Arab-run Palestine Press Service said a 20-year-old resident of the Nur Shams refugee camp near Tulkarem was shot in the head today by a soldier after the army dispersed stone-throwing demonstrators in the camp.

It was not immediately clear whether the report referred to the same incident reported by the army.

Israel army radio said soldiers dispersed demonstrators who burned tires and threw stones in Gaza City and the town of Rafah in the Gaza Strip. There were no reports of injuries.

Khan Yunis remained under curfew, and the army imposed curfews on Tulkarem and the West Bank refugee camp of Balata, the radio report said.

The Palestine Press Service said the curfew was clamped on Balata after a morning demonstration. It said 300 soldiers were patrolling the camp, the largest in the West Bank with 12,000 residents.

At least 24 Palestinians have been killed since Dec. 8, when the worst disturbances in Israel's 20-year occupation of the Gaza Strip and West Bank broke out.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin vowed Tuesday that Israel would adopt tough measures to end the unrest in the territories, which Israel captured from Egypt and Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war.

The army detained more than 1,000 Palestinians accused of organizing protests, ordered nine of them deported, set up military courts to try the detainees and poured thousands of troops into the territories.

In New York, The U.N. Security Council voted Tuesday evening to approve a resolution calling on Israel to refrain from deporting Palestinians. Israel said it would ignore the vote, which was approved by the United States.

Israel's crackdown did not cool tempers in Khan Yunis, a small town of dilapidated houses, bad roads and open sewers.

Council Blasted

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Israel condemned the Security Council for challenging its plan to deport Palestinian activists and said it would ignore the resolution, even though it was approved by its chief ally, the United States.

"Frankly, we were disappointed with the American vote," Israeli Ambassador Benjamin Netanyahu said after the resolution was adopted Tuesday evening. "We think this was a day of hypocrisy in the United Nations."

Netanyahu said the resolution will encourage "the forces behind the violence" in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

He accused the council of playing a "rigged game," adding: "We've never had a Security Council convene to condemn the murder of a Jew. Not once."

But he also praised the United States for seeing that the resolution requested rather than demanded that Israel refrain from deporting Arabs.

The United States, one of Israel's closest allies and its staunchest defender at the United Nations, joined the other 14 council members in endorsing the resolution against the deportations in the occupied lands.

WATER RELIEF — Miller Brewing Co. employee Roger Sharp examines 16-ounce beer bottles filled with fresh drinking water that is part of an initial shipment of 8,000 cases for Pittsburgh residents. Pittsburgh and its surrounding suburbs' water supply was contaminated by the collapse of a diesel fuel storage tank on Saturday. Miller Brewing said it is donating water, bottles and labor costs with a distributor picking up shipping costs in the Pittsburgh area. (AP Laserphoto)

Their Home Is A Shack, Their Dream Is A Warm Bed

By ED WHITE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — When frigid wind rattles the home of Harold Thomas and Tommy Ray, they pull their coat zippers a little higher, push their hands in their pockets a little deeper and pray for warmth a little longer.

They can't throw a rug to stifle the draft. There are no windows to slam shut.

Thomas, 35, and Ray, 37, live in an open shack along the Chicago River. It's built with rotted wood, discarded sheet metal, grimy canvas — and the hope that some day they'll have money to put a real roof over their heads.

"It's not much, but it's our home," said Ray as he invited a visitor to sit in a rusty chair.

"It's the only home we have," he said Monday. The men are among Chicago's estimated 25,000 homeless. But unlike those who crowd city "warming centers" and overnight shelters to escape single-digit temperatures, Thomas and Ray choose to survive outdoors just west of the downtown Loop.

They're tired of roaming the streets, and they distrust strangers found in the shelters. So for nine months, they've lived in a shack in a small lot filled with trash and rats.

A friend lives a few yards away — in a cardboard box. "This is the second time I've been homeless," said Thomas, a carpenter who hasn't had full-time work in more than a year.

"Some people say 'get a job,'" he added, tossing more wood on a roaring fire that sends ashes and sparks around the filthy shack. "I'm willing to work. I just need a place to clean up. Look at me — I'm a mess."

Each has a scraggly beard and wears layers of garments. Thomas' boots have holes while Ray's toes are chilled in vinyl sneakers.

For meals, they often chew doughnuts washed down with water stored in a plastic jug.

"I've lived in shelters, abandoned buildings, abandoned cars, abandoned trucks. You name it," said Ray, a house painter who has lived on the streets since 1981. "I complain a lot. I made my bed hard, so I've got to sleep in it, but it shouldn't be this hard."

Their misery is contrasted by the area's prosperity. Just north of the shack is the sparkling headquarters of Montgomery Ward and Co., and the printing plant of the city's largest newspaper, the Chicago Tribune. To the east is the East Bank Club where wealthy members pay thousands of dollars to stay in shape.

Above the shack are tracks used by trains carrying commuters between Chicago and the suburbs.

"They seem friendly," Ray said of the passengers who often return waves. "But I can't say they're concerned."

The men don't know how long they plan to live outdoors. They don't have a permanent address, so they can't receive public aid.

They want full-time jobs.

"The thing that we have is determination and courage," Ray said. "Because if we lost that, we might as well go lay in the snow and die."

"Only God can determine how long we can hold out. I have never lost the faith that it might get better."

As the sun fell, Thomas stoked the fire that provided the evening's only light. Hours later, at 11 p.m. Monday, the temperature dipped to minus 9 degrees.

"If you know someone who needs a carpenter," he said to the departing visitor, "tell them to give me a call."

Honor Roll Has Doubled

Video Games Spur Children To Work For Better Grades

By J. MICHELLE YONCE
Rome News-Tribune

ROME, Ga. (AP) — High scores on video games are being turned into high scores in school with the help of a Rome businessman.

Donald Doegg, owner and manager of Putt-Putt Golf and Games, offers a reward for students who make good grades — free video game tokens.

While Doegg has offered the reward-incentive program to any school willing to participate, only one, Coosa Middle School, has taken him up on the plan although, he said, a couple of others have expressed interest.

Judging by the results, the program works. In the five years it has been in effect at Coosa Middle School, the percentage of students making the honor roll has doubled, said Barbara Johnson, counselor at the school, who called the results dramatic.

Students who make all A's each six-week grading period and are named to the high-honor roll receive a card entitling them to eight video-game tokens. Students who make all A's and B's and are named to the honor roll receive a card entitling them to five tokens.

This year, the red reward cards were printed by the Floyd County Board of Education. The school's Beta Club paid for printing the cards in past years, but this year, Mrs. Johnson put in a request and found the board willing to pick up the expense.

Each card has a large number on the front telling how many tokens it is good for, the child's name and tells that the card can be used at Putt-Putt Golf and Games. So that the cards may not be duplicated, each is embossed with the school's seal.

Students must redeem the card for tokens within two weeks, but may use the tokens at any time they wish. Students sign the back of the card like endorsing a check when they cash them in. Because many students want to keep the cards for their memory books, Doegg marks the card to show that it has been redeemed and gives it back to the student.

Doegg and Mrs. Johnson thought up the reward program. It all began, Mrs. Johnson said, when she tried to get her son, Michael, then 9, to brush his teeth.

"Instead of putting a check on a chart, I put a token in his hand" each time he brushed his teeth without being told to, she said. One evening, while her son played video games at Putt-Putt, Mrs. Johnson talked with Doegg and "he and I cooked up this idea. He loves kids and believes in rewarding kids who do well."

On this part, Doegg gives all the credit to Mrs. Johnson, saying, "She came up with the idea and we followed through with it. We started this as a pilot program and it has went over much better than expected."

The program was installed at Coosa Middle School in the beginning of the 1983-84 school year.

"When we started the program," Mrs. Johnson said, "we gave out a total of 95 cards to students who made the high-honor and honor rolls for that six-week period — that's only 18 percent of the school's total enrollment. The first six-weeks period of this school year, 47 kids made all A's and were named to the high-honor roll and 140 kids were named to the honor roll.

"Almost 36 percent of the school's total enrollment was named to the high honor and honor rolls. The number of students making A's and B's has doubled since we instated the program."

In 1982, the school's Beta Club, for seventh- and eighth-graders having at least a 93 average, only had 23 members. This year, Mrs. Johnson said, it has 80 members — "that's 23 percent of all students in the seventh- and eighth-grades."

"We've done other things too" to raise grades, Mrs. Johnson said. "So the reward program hasn't been the only factor in the rising grades and test scores, but it has certainly been a contributing one."

"The Putt-Putt cards make the kids study harder," she said. "If they study harder, they learn more. If they learn more, both their grades and test scores improve."

At a value of 25 cents per token and at the rate students are going now, the program is costing Doegg more than $250 every six weeks. However, most parents who take their children to Putt-Putt to redeem the cards usually give them a couple more dollars to spend, Mrs. Johnson said.

The cards are much more effective and mean more to the student than a certificate or having their names listed in the school paper, in Mrs. Johnson's opinion.

"The tokens mean much more than a name on a list because they're tangible," she said.

Doegg said that donating entertainment or recreation "or something the kids are into at a certain age" is "a small price to pay if we can do a little bit of good."

And, according to Heather McDonald, an eighth-grader at Coosa Middle, it does do good.

"In elementary school, you want to get all A's but there's nothing that pushes you to get all A's," she said. "The cards make you work harder. If you get a five, it makes you feel like you've done the best you could."

"It's an accomplishment. It's sort of like someone giving you money."

FIGHTING THE CHILL — Harold Thomas and his friend, Tommy Ray, warm themselves near a barrel fire outside their one-room shack on Chicago's North Side. With temperatures dipping into the single digits, the city has had to step in to help the homeless — but Thomas and Ray, with no permanent address, are ineligible for most assistance. (AP Laserphoto)

Army Reservists Get Their Training On The Railroad

By CHARLES HILLINGER
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

FORT EUSTIS, Va. — Ted Palmer, 22, graduated from Marquette University last June as a history and philosophy major. He is taking a year off from studies and plans to go to law school next fall.

"In the meantime, I have been working as an accountant," the young man from Milwaukee explained. "I was looking for a little excitement."

Palmer found what he was looking for here at Fort Eustis, the Army's transportation school, 10 miles south of historic Williamsburg, Va.

Here, as an Army reservist, he is learning to become a railroad engineer.

"I had a Lionel train when I was a kid," Palmer recalled, sitting in the cab of a big GP-9 diesel railroad locomotive, driving a train down the tracks on this Army base. He was all smiles. "Look at me now. I'm an engineer on the Real McCoy. I love it!"

Eighteen-year-old James Floyd Jr. of New London, Conn., graduated from high school last June, then went to work as a bellman in a hotel. He, too, joined the Reserves, and thanks to the Army is also learning how to be a railroad engineer.

Both young men are members of Army Railroad Reserve units. There are three rail battalions in the nation, at Milwaukee, Wis.; Middletown, Conn., and Tampa, Fla., with a total of 1,000 reservists.

From the Civil War through the Vietnam War, the Military Railway Service was an important part of the Army. Soldiers served as engineers, conductors, brakemen, dispatchers, electricians and mechanics here and overseas, moving millions of troops and millions of tons of war equipment and supplies by rail.

The military continues to rely heavily on railroads for transportation of personnel and equipment, but all of the track and trains on military bases today are civilian-operated.

In the early 1970s, the last of the rail units was disbanded from the regular Army and only the three rail battalion reserve units remain as a reminder of the major role played by Army railroaders for more than a century.

This year saw the return here at Fort Eustis of rail training at an Army base for the first time since 1959. Fort Eustis is the Army's national

Actor Finds Legal Role On TV Carries Into Life

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Leibman says he found himself shunned in real life when he signed on to play a Jewish attorney who defends an Arab terrorist in CBS' "Terrorist on Trial: The United States Vs. Salim Ajami."

The three-hour movie airs Sunday. Sam Waterston co-stars as U.S. prosecutor James Delmore. Robert Davi plays Ajami, leader of a fictional terrorist group expelled from the Palestine Liberation Organization who has claimed responsibility for an attack on a group of American tourists in Greece.

"A lot of people didn't want this to be done," said Leibman. "I was at a cocktail party ... where I knew there were going to be lawyers, and I had some questions to ask. So I went up to this very prominent Los Angeles lawyer and told him my questions and he started backing away from me. ... I'm quite serious, because it scared me. But that's what happens in the script, because he (the character Leibman plays) starts getting a lot of flak."

Leibman talked about the film before reality imitated art last September when the United States captured Fawaz Younis, identified as one of the guards who kept 39 Trans World Airlines passengers hostage for 17 days in Beirut in 1985. U.S. Navy diver Robert Dean Stethem was shot to death in the hijacking. Younis is being held at an undisclosed location and is expected to go on trial.

The movie opens with Ajami arriving in the United States.

The U.S. attorney general appoints his best prosecutor, Delmore, to the case. But it takes pressure from both the attorney general and the president to persuade brilliant defense attorney Sy Resnik to defend Ajami.

"When you see it, you see that I don't want to take the case, but it isn't for any highfalutin reasons," said Leibman. "Why I really don't want to take the case — which I love in the writing — is I'm six months divorced, I've gone back to teaching at the University of Pennsylvania, I have two doctors arguing over why I have migraine headaches, I'm on a diet, I'm jogging ... and a lady from the ACLU comes and says, 'Did you read about it?' and I say, 'I know why you're here, leave me alone.'"

In the film, the government is intent on finding Ajami the best defense lawyer around because the case will be an international display of the American judicial system at work.

"If you're going to show the world that this man's going to get a fair trial," said Leibman, "why not hire a Jewish attorney to make it look even better? That's what made it interesting. When I first started reading, I said 'Oh, it ain't so highfalutin. I like this.'"

Leibman played a defense attorney before, in the critically praised but short-lived series "Kaz," which he wrote. But he is best-known for the movie "Norma Rae," in which he played a union organizer.

Woodworkers

NORFOLK, VA. — The Woodworking Association of North America is presenting the Virginia show on Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Norfolk SCOPE, St. Paul's Boulevard, Norfolk.

More than 20,000 square feet of woodworking tools, along with live demonstrations and teaching seminars will be featured.

The Tidewater Turners, a Norfolk woodworking club, will have an exhibit staffed by members and will give demonstrations on lathe techniques. Seminars will be conducted by several well-known woodworkers from across the nation.

For more details call toll free 1-800-521-7623.

He said "Terrorist on Trial" is perhaps the best role he's had since "Norma Rae."

"It's very exciting, because you're confronting a guy who's playing an Arab terrorist, and somewhere in the first scene you say, 'You know I'm a Jew.' He says, 'I have nothing against the Jews. What I have is against the Zionists.' And I say Eichmann. He says what? I say that's what Adolph Eichmann said when he was captured, he had nothing against the Jews. I mean, it's very powerful stuff."

"I believe in the principle that every man, whether you want to strangle him, should have his day in court, or you're living in the Soviet Union."

"There was a moment at the end that I love, and it just occurred to me why we were shooting it. Sam Waterston, who plays the prosecutor, and myself are packing up. ... So Sam leaves, and I'm standing there alone in the courtroom, and as an actor I chose to look at the flag instead of just leaving. And I knew that was right. It was absolutely right, because that's why he does it."

"Terrorist on Trial" was the last collaboration between William Link and the late Richard Levinson. The long-time partners were responsible for, among other works, the hit CBS series "Murder, She Wrote" and before that, "Columbo."

Opry Star Finds New Stage Singing At Nursing Homes

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Grand Ole Opry star David Houston has found a more rewarding stage than the rowdy nightclubs where country music performers sing about lost love.

Sacrificing more lucrative appearance fees, Houston, who is best known for his 1966 million seller "Almost Persuaded," has realized personal satisfaction during the past few years by singing at nursing homes.

"Someone can ask you, 'What have you been doing?' And you can say, 'I've been hugging drunks in a Texas honk-tonk,'" said the 52-year-old Houston.

"I've been able to say, 'I've been playing nursing homes.'"

Houston, a Grand Ole Opry star since 1972, has put together an organization that solicits funds from businesses to underwrite his performances at the nursing homes in their cities.

It all began when he was asked to sing at a nursing home in Bossier City, La., where his 96-year-old aunt lived. He soon realized that such homes need professional performing talent. He began playing at more homes, mostly in the South, and his appearances grew to 239 in 1986.

"The more I played there, the more I wanted to do it," said Houston, who appeared in the movie "Horse Soldiers" starring John Wayne. "I can make more money at honky-tonks, but I don't want to."

He makes little or nothing at some stops, and no more than $250 a week. "Enough to pay your bills," Houston said.

"Somebody's got to do it," said his wife, Kathy Raye, a country music singer who has been performing with him this year. They travel and sleep in their motor home to save expenses.

Some of the reactions have been memorable.

In Ruston, La., a woman got out of her wheelchair for the first time in seven years, nurses said. She danced. At another home, a woman opened her eyes and smiled for the first time in months.

ECU Events

Two events are scheduled this week by the East Carolina University School of Music.

At 7 p.m. Friday, music student Ray McKeithan will present his senior recital in percussion at 7 p.m. Friday at the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall on campus. The recital is free and open to the public.

All day Saturday, the High School Band Clinic's Eastern Division auditions will take place on campus.

DIFFERENT CROWD — Grand Ole Opry star David Houston and his wife, Kathy Raye, have found performing at nursing homes more rewarding than engagements with traditional audiences. Houston had 14 straight No. 1 hits in the 1960s. (AP Laserphoto)

"After every show, they come up and shake our hand and ask us to come back," said his 29-year-old wife. "It's so uplifting."

Magician Paul Burks of Shreveport, La., also is a regular part of the show.

Houston and his wife add a little humor to the singing and playing. A pair of red panties falls out of Houston's trick fiddle and his wife then shows mock anger. He sheepishly blames "the boys on the bus."

"They like it when the woman gets the upper hand," Houston said.

Houston usually sings old country standards such as "Blue Eyes Crying in the Rain" and "Blue Moon of Kentucky," and spiritual music such as "Amazing Grace" and "Old Time Religion."

He passes out unused Grand Ole Opry programs to give the performances a touch of realism. "They love that," his wife said.

Houston is hoping to stir up corporate interest in his shows in order to expand his number of performances.

"We thought probably someone would see what we were doing and why," said Houston, a descendant of Sam Houston and Robert E. Lee (his mother's maiden name was Lee).

A native of Bossier City, Houston built houses and sold insurance as a young man in the city. In 1963, Epic Records signed him based on his song "Mountain of Love."

He was one of the most successful country singers in the mid-1960s and at one point had 14 straight No. 1 records. But none was more popular than "Almost Persuaded," which earned him a Grammy performance award and which also won a Grammy for best country song of the year.

Ironically, he and record company officials regarded it as the B side of a record called "We Got Love." But some radio stations started playing "Almost Persuaded" and the song zipped up the charts.

"It was a waltz, which is harder to get off the ground than a faster song," Houston said. "The hook line (attention-grabber) wasn't until the last line. But there's a saying, 'A hit doesn't care who sings it.'"

"I don't have the answer to why it was so popular. If you could pick the hits, it wouldn't take you long to own the bank."

He and Barbara Mandrell were duet partners in the early 1970s, about 10 years before she reached star status outside country music.

"Some people have the talent or the will, but she had both. As (country star) Grandpa Jones would say, 'She was the flyer of the flock.'"

Bible Has Strong Basis For Medicine

By ALLYN FISHER
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Experts have found a strong basis in medicine for seemingly bizarre biblical practices, such as Babylonian and Roman military leaders who studied the livers of grazing animals to choose campsites and battlegrounds.

Other scientists say current physical and mental fitness crazes find resonance in the Holy Scriptures and that contrary to popular belief, women were never meant to suffer pain in childbirth — the "curse of Eve."

These findings were contained in some of the 40 papers presented by American, British, Canadian, French, West German and Israeli researchers at a recent International Symposium on Medicine in Bible and Talmud at Jerusalem's Hebrew University. "We always think they knew nothing about medicine in biblical times," Dr. Elinor Lieber, a physician and medical historian at England's Oxford University, said in an interview. "But they knew quite a bit. They didn't have microscopes then but they had their own methods. All we have to do is figure out what they did."

Lieber's research focused on hepatoscopy, or liver science, which she traced to the days of the Prophet Ezekiel. It was then that Babylonian King Nebuchadnezzar of the early 6th century B.C. "looks at the liver" to decide whether first to invade Amman, the capital of modern-day Jordan, or Jerusalem. (Ezek. 21:21)

The king's method was later picked up by Roman rulers in Palestine around the time of Jesus, Lieber said.

The ancients linked liver disease in animals to outbreaks of malaria. Lieber said that although the two diseases are not directly related, the insects that carry both are bred in the same wet, marshy environment.

Thus, she said, the examination of livers was not a religious superstition but a scientific way of determining where soldiers ran less of a risk of getting diseases like malaria, which claimed more lives than battles.

"This was a clearly invaluable method for military planning," she said.

Ancient tablets unearthed in Babylonia, in modern Iraq, and in Israel, show models of livers from sheep or other grazing animals that were examined to see whether they had holes caused by flukes or other parasites.

According to the writings of an ancient engineer named Vitruvius, Roman soldiers who camped near Jerusalem in the 1st century B.C. used similar methods to decide on the sites of their bases, Lieber added.

At the symposium, Rabbi Reuven P. Bulka of Ottawa in Canada, cited the Bible as a source of support for today's fitness fads.

He noted numerous Old Testament admonitions to maintain sound mind and body, such as "be exceedingly heedful of yourselves," (Deut. 4:15).

He said the Old Testament also attached much significance to mental stability in numerous commandments, including the passage (Deut. 26:11), "Rejoice in all of the good that God has given you."

Other researchers noted the Bible made little reference to methods of maintaining sound mental health, although it spoke often of avoiding psychological afflictions such as depression.

A Bible researcher, Danielle Gourevitch of Paris, reported a biblical practice that was once prescribed by doctors but which proved to be unfounded.

Called "Shunamitism," the practice involves a teen-aged girl sleeping with an elderly man for purposes of his rejuvenation.

The practice was begun by Israelite King David, who in his old age kept a young woman named Abishag The Shunamite (Kings 1:1-14). It was subsequently promoted by doctors as a restorative beginning in 18th-century France, Mrs. Gourevitch said.

But only a handful of reservists, for now at least, are once again learning the ropes of railroading on the 30 miles of Fort Eustis railroad-training track left over from World War II.

A dozen to 15 reservists at a time take leave from their regular civilian jobs to come here for the newly inaugurated five-week railroad-training classes. The rest of the year the reservists train one weekend a month with their battalions in Tampa, Middletown or Milwaukee.

Some of the monthly weekend sessions include railroad-yard classes.

Instructors here at Fort Eustis are veteran railroaders like Frank Himmelwright, 60, a railroad engineer 30 years; Jim Scheumack, 68, a roundhouse maintenance man for 35 years and Robert Young, 62, a train dispatcher 40 years.

When we were learning to play bridge, we had dozens of "rules" drummed into us. As we progressed, and neither declarer nor dummy has four cards in the suit, West can bring it in by first leading a high club. Since he has a sure entry with the ace of spades, he can then decide how to continue.

The lead of the king of clubs would have had a devastating effect here. One glance at dummy would have been enough to convince West of the futility of continuing the suit, "Fourth-best from your longest and strongest," goes the old saw, and West dutifully tabled the three of clubs. It did not take declarer long to rake in one club trick, five diamonds and three hearts to make his game.
True, even on this auction there are a few situations where the lead of a low club might gain, but not many. Any time the club suit is vital and the shift to a low spade would have been obvious. That would have permitted the defenders to collect the first seven tricks.

Bethany

By Terri Craft

Have you ever gotten tired of the hard, cold steel and glass of modern buildings? Bethany Free Will Baptist Church is an "old timey" church.

This church is located in the country, just down the road from my house. Bethany sits on a green carpet of grass and is surrounded by red, orange, and yellow trees. It stands out from everything else on the roadside.

The church looks very aged on the outside. The bricks are white and are slightly chipped here and there. The bell tower, located on the top of the church, still chimes at eleven o'clock on Sunday morning.

On the inside, the church is furnished with many antique articles. The pews are made of oak wood that has been refinished. The church also contains a small, white history room that has pictures of all the preachers who ever ministered there. The pictures are very old and the frames are made of wood with fancy designs in them.

All of these facts only show that Bethany Free Will Baptist Church is an old, country church. For those who want to get away from the new abstract designs, Bethany will bring back memories of the old times.

terri Craft, 16, a student at Ayden-Grifton High School wins this week's writing contest.

The Beyonder

By Jason Denton

Throughout the millennia, Good and Evil have waged constant battle for the supremacy of the human spirit. Only with cunning and conviction have the forces of light been able to hold back the forces of darkness. In today's complex world, the heroes and villains carry out the age-old conflict. But suddenly, a strange complex extraterrestrial being, the Beyonder, has dramatically raised the stakes in the age-old battle.

Possessing powers and intellect beyond human comprehension, but lacking any understanding of the concepts

Good and Evil, the Beyonder transports earth's most powerful heroes and villains to a barren planet, light years from earth. Here the Beyonder orders the ultimate confrontation—with winner taking all. The participants in these battles, Heroes and Villians of extraordinary powers and personalities, are here for your review and evaluation. Pass judgement on each of them, but remember the future of the world is at stake.

Jason Denton, 12, a student at A.G. Cox School receives special mention.

Teachers

By Dalmeka Barnhill

There are many things to say About what teachers do each day. There are Spelling and English before the bell. After lunch we learn to spell.

When there are things we want to know Our teachers explain it and help us grow. They review many lessons and prepare for tests. They correct many papers. We think they're the best.

They work very hard for you and me To pass the school year, hopefully. And so in this message we want you to send, Hugs and kisses for being our friend.

Dalmeka Barnhill, 10, a student at Ayden Elementary School receives special mention.

Memories

By Jessica Everett

It stands all alone against a small city skyline. Ayden Christian Church is now an overtowering, modern structure of steel, brick, and glass. It is no longer the small, white-washed wooden church that sat in front of two narrow alleys. When I think of the old church, I remember a place full of mysteries and curiosity.

The old church was not used when I was little; the new church had already been built. But youngsters in the church always went to the old building to play on Sunday nights.

We would play down in the dusty basement full of spider's intricate little webs. It was like going back in time to some ancient tomb that had not been touched since the deceased had been laid there to rest. It was a world of wonder every time I ventured down there. We ran up and down the great oak staircase, running until we couldn't run anymore.

On the second floor, all of the windows were gone. The beautiful stained glass windows that used to fill those empty spaces had been removed and put in the new church. Looking through those empty spaces always gave me a feeling of remorse, almost like losing an old friend.

That church was always a wonder to me. It is gone now, all that is left are memories of that huge, white, wooden church. These memories are all in the past, but they seem to fit just like a pair of comfortable old shoes.

Jessica Everett, 16, a student at Ayden-Grifton High School receives special mention.

John Watson, 8, a student at Wintergreen Elementary School receives special mention.

The Wild Tiger

By Christopher Lee

Once upon a time there was a tiger. It was wild. He escaped one day.

The zoo owner was very angry. They heard that he killed ten people. Then they went after him but they couldn't catch him.

The tiger was spotted in California. They had a long way to go because they were in North Carolina. So they went to California.

They caught him and tied him in some tight string. They brought him to the zoo and he didn't escape this time.

Christopher Lee, 8, a student at Sam Bundy School receives special mention.

QUICK AND FLAVORFUL — Enjoy dinner in 10 minutes with quick Wild Rice Jambalaya, a colorful combination of cooked chicken, Canadian bacon and tomato with long grain and wild rice chicken stock sauce with vegetables. This flavorful dish is destined to become a busy-day classic.

Quick Skillet Meals Solve Time Crunch

Today's consumers are looking for fast in-and-out food shopping for ingredients for quickly prepared meals. This is revealed in a survey by the Food Marketing Institute that also indicates that 82 percent of families' members are eating dinner together despite rushed time schedules.

Skillet meals-in-one are a solution to the time crunch problem. Fast recipes that combine cooked poultry or meat and a few fresh ingredients with a quick-cooking convenience rice ensure that the family dinner will be ready in short order. A super family supper, this skillet meal is special enough for unexpected guests as well.

Time-conscious cooks will find Quick Wild Rice Jambalaya is delicious using cooked chicken or leftover turkey. Full-flavored enough to satisfy hungry appetites, this colorful meal takes on the "bayou" touch with the addition of celery, green pepper, Canadian bacon and fresh tomato.

Also ready in minutes, California Style Beef and Wild Rice is a hearty and savory blend of cooked beef with a combination of long grain and wild rices, carrots, sweet red bell pepper and onions in a flavorful sauce. Diced avocado and sliced ripe olives say "California" and julienne strips of red bell pepper sprinkled on top add color and crunch.

QUICK WILD RICE JAMBALAYA

- 1/2 pound cooked chicken or turkey breast,
- cut into bite-size pieces, about 2 cups
- Paprika to taste
- 1-3/4 cups water
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 package (5.2 oz.) long grain and wild rice chicken stock sauce with vegetables
- 1/3 cup sliced celery
- 1/3 cup coarsely chopped green pepper

Tasty Venison Well Worth A Little Preparation

By Nina Killham

L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Deer-hunting season is in full swing. And whether you shoot your own deer or drive to your local butcher shop and buy domesticated deer, it would be helpful to know how to cook this uncommon meat.

Although a bit strong for some, venison is considered by most to be a delicacy. And to keep it delicate, here are a few ideas.

The key to sweet-tasting venison is the speed in which you can dress, skin and cool a freshly killed deer. Long rides with your prize on the front of your Bronco are therefore not suggested.

Most cooks are not prepared for the sight of a whole animal brought straight from the kill. For those shocked beyond movement, it is a good idea to call your nearest butcher and deliver it there for skinning, aging and sectioning into cuts for the freezer.

The most desirable cuts for roasts are the saddle, the rack and the haunch or leg. Be careful not to overcook venison; it tastes best served on the rare side. Natural accompaniments are fruit and berry jellies or sauces to match the deer's habitat.

As venison is naturally lean, it will need larding or barding (covering completely with a 1/4-inch layer of salt pork or bacon) before cooking. Cut all fat from the meat, as it grows rancid quickly.

James Beard, who offers quite a bit of advice for preparing game in his cookbooks, suggests in his "Theory and Practice of Good Cooking"

(Alfred A. Knopf, 1984) this marinade for older and tougher meat: Combine carrot, peeled and cut into julienne strips; 1 onion, peeled and thinly sliced; 1 rib of celery, cut into small pieces; 1 garlic clove, peeled; several sprigs of parsley; 1

1/2 teaspoons dried thyme; 1 bay leaf; 1 teaspoon dried summer savory; 1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper; 1/2 cup olive or peanut oil; 1/2 cup red wine vinegar; and 1 bottle of dry red wine; and marinate any cut of venison for roasting in the mixture for two to five days, turning it once or twice a day.

For those who would like to taste game, but not hunt, there is commercially raised venison. Much of it is sold frozen and must be thawed thoroughly before cooking. Thaw the meat in the original wrapper in the refrigerator. One-inch steaks will take about 12 hours, small roasts 3 to 4 hours per pound and large roasts 4 to 6 hours per pound.

Great Gravy — Get The Fat Out

Winter meals have long been characterized as "heavy" — lots of meat and potatoes smothered with gravy. With the turn to more health-conscious eating in recent years, winter meals are lighter — less meat and more vegetables — and traditional, fat-laden gravy is served less and less.

Most of us get more than enough fat in our diets without the added that gravy provides. Yet at times we miss the flavor and moistness it gives meat dishes. The solution: get the fat out of your gravy! You can do this by skimming fat from the pan drippings that serve as the gravy base, or by making broth-based gravy with a minimum of fatty ingredients. The following recipes demonstrate both approaches.

The secret to lower fat pan gravies is simply to remove as much of the fat as possible. When your chicken or turkey is done roasting, remove the bird from the pan and then drain the pan juices into a jar or cup. Let the fat rise to the top and then remove it by carefully spooning it off, by using a bulb-type baster, or by simply chilling the pan juices, and then removing the hardened fat.

Meanwhile, add a little hot water to the roasting pan and scrape up the tasty scraps. Add them to the pan juices.

To make the gravy, use 2 tablespoons of flour, stirred into 1/4 cup of water, for each cup of pan juices. Place the fat-skimmed pan juices in a sauce pan, reheat, and then stir in the flour water mixture. Simmer until thick and season to taste with salt, pepper and herbs. For a darker gravy, add a little soy sauce or bottled brown gravy base.

BROWN GRAVY FROM BROTH

- 1 tsp. margarine
- 1 tsp. flour
- 2 tsp. diced carrot
- 2 tsp. diced celery
- 2 tsp. diced onion
- 1 cup beef broth (fat-skimmed)
- 2 tsp. tomato puree
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/2 clove garlic
- Dash pepper
- Dash thyme leaves

In a small saucepan, melt the margarine over medium heat; add flour and cook for 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Add the carrot, celery and onion and continue to cook and stir for about 5 minutes, or until the vegetables are lightly browned. Remove from the heat and stir in broth.

Add the remaining ingredients, return the pan to the heat and, stirring constantly, bring the mixture to a boil. Reduce heat and let simmer, stirring occasionally, for 4 to 5 minutes.

Let the mixture cool slightly, remove the bay leaf and process the gravy in a blender until smooth. This makes 4 servings, about 3 tablespoons each.

GET THE FAT OUT — Brown Gravy From Broth is a good example of great-tasting gravy that doesn't have to be fattening.

Fresh Fruits, Vegetables Occupy Special Places On Winter Menus

What makes a food item a good buy? When it comes to fresh vegetables or fruit, availability, consumer demand and where it's grown help determine the answer.

During December and the early part of January, there are several fresh items grown in the Tarheel state which are excellent buys as long as the weather doesn't dip too low.

Greens including collards and turnips are in good supply. They're a great vegetable to put in the freezer and then bring out on a cold evening to serve along with piping hot blackeyed peas and cornbread. Broccoli and cabbage are other favorites which should have a good price right now.

Sweet potatoes and apples are items which will last for several months in a cool dry area such as a garage or basement. Proper storage is the key to the life of this vegetable and fruit.

When shopping for your "best buys," it is good to remember to buy plenty of what you like, but make sure you can use it, have space for it and know what to do with it once you get it home.

APPLE-RAISIN SLAW

- 1 1/2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 2 unpeeled apples, diced
- 1/2 cup seedless raisins
- 3 cups shredded cabbage
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- Lettuce leaves
- Sprinkle lemon juice over apples; toss well. Mix in raisins and cabbage. Add mayonnaise. Toss and arrange in lettuce-lined bowl. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

SWEET POTATO-HONEY BALLS

- 2 1/2 cups mashed, cooked or canned sweet potatoes

- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 5 tablespoons butter, melted and divided

1/2 cup miniature marshmallows
1/2 cup honey
1 cup chopped pecans
Combine potatoes, salt, pepper and 2 tablespoons butter; stir in marshmallows. Chill. Shape potato mixture into balls, using 1/4 cup for each. Combine 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine and honey in a small heavy skillet; add potato balls one at a time, quickly coating each with glaze. Roll potato balls in pecans, and place in a greased shallow casserole. Drizzle with remaining butter or margarine. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 10 servings.

FRIED CABBAGE AND MACARONI

- 6 cups finely shredded cabbage

- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 cup elbow macaroni
- 4 tablespoons butter, melted
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon caraway seeds
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- Mix cabbage and salt and let stand for 30 minutes; squeeze by hand to drain off moisture. Cook macaroni in boiling salted water for 10 to 12 minutes, or until tender. Drain, rinse with cold water; and drain again. Combine butter, sugar, pepper, caraway seeds, cabbage and macaroni in large skillet. Cook slowly, stirring frequently, until lightly browned. Add pimiento. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

ITALIAN BROCCOLI

- 1/3 cup butter, margarine or olive oil
- 1 clove garlic, crushed

Kathy Kolasa

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

Q. I enjoy your column very much, thank you. What else do you do besides write it? I have never met a nutritionist. Mr. G.G., Greenville.

A. Thanks for your kind comment and invitation to brag a bit about the work of nutritionists here in eastern North Carolina. As you know, I write the column as a public service on behalf of the Department of Family Medicine. So, I am pleased that so many people tell me it is helpful.

I am a professor of nutrition in family medicine, and all of us in the School of Medicine with nutrition training or interest do a variety of things. As a registered dietitian, I participate in patient care. I am proud that our school employs several registered dietitians. We give patients nutrition advice for their own and their family's good health. We also counsel them on ways they can acceptably adjust their diet as part of management of disease like diabetes, hypertension or heart disease. This often means working with patients on a real tough problem, weight loss.

Linda Walker works with me in family medicine. Nancy Grey and Jo Bartlett are in pediatrics; Karen Warren and Laura Broadhead are on the OB-GYN team, and Sue Daughtry, also a diabetes educator, is in medicine.

Counseling is done one-on-one or in group classes. We also do "curb-side" consulting with physicians about management of their patient's nutritional health. Each of us also teaches medical students and resident physicians. Our mission is to convince future physicians of the importance of assessing the nutritional status of their patients. We also want them to use nutrition status in the management of their patients health or disease. We encourage them to discover when their patients would benefit from referral to a nutritionist. We also supervise other ECU health care students in other areas such as nursing and dietetics.

Others in the School of Medicine are not registered dietitians but have training, experience or interest in nutrition. We all teach, conduct research, provide patient care or participate in community service with a nutrition emphasis. For example, in the Department of Medicine, Dr. Stefan Marcuard heads up the nutrition support team, which looks for the best ways to nourish very ill patients. Drs. Bill Wheeler and Kirk Ways promote nutritional aspects as part of health. Drs. Bill Frisell and Lynus Dohm are just two of the biochemists who conduct research and teach in nutrition-related areas. Dr. Bob Crouse, associate dean, conducts mineral nutrition research. My own research is on understanding people's food habits, the impact food habits have on quality of life and methods for motivating people to make informed food choices.

There are other folks throughout the school who are interested in nutrition. Vice Chancellor William Laupus and my boss, Dr. Jim Jones, are just two of the may ECU physicians who believe a person's nutritional health is an important for a healthy and happy life.

Our service is based on interest and skills. I enjoy writing and talking with reporters and presenting programs to community and other groups. Each of us, in our own way, join with other nutritionists on the ECU campus, in the hospitals and public health departments and in physician offices in eastern North Carolina to improve the nutrition knowledge and habits of its citizens. We hope that everyone will enjoy informed food choices.

Write Dr. Kolasa, Department of Family Medicine or c/o The Daily Reflector.

Add Something New To Vegetable Repertoire

Even if you love vegetables, there may be times when they start to seem a little boring. That's why it's time to expand your vegetable repertoire. You can do so by introducing new vegetables to the menu, trying a new cooking technique, or experimenting with new seasonings.

Let's look at some new ways to add spice to your life! Whether you steam, bake or broil them, the following list will give you some ideas to pep up your tired vegetable dishes:

- Beans (Green): chives, dill weed, thyme
- Beets: chives, dill weed, thyme
- Broccoli: dill weed, rosemary
- Brussel Sprouts: basil, chives, dill weed, rosemary
- Cabbage: caraway seeds, dill weed
- Carrots: basil, chives, ginger, mint, nutmeg
- Cauliflower: chives, dill weed, nutmeg, parsley
- Corn: chili powder, oregano
- Eggplant: basil, marjoram, oregano, parsley
- Greens: oregano
- Mushrooms: parsley, tarragon, thyme
- Peas: basil, chervil, chives, nutmeg, tarragon
- Potatoes: chives, paprika, dill weed
- Spinach: basil, mint, nutmeg, oregano
- Tomatoes: basil, chives, dill weed, oregano
- Turnips: basil, caraway seeds

If you want to try something a little different that truly highlights vegetables at a meal, the following stew recipe is both nutritious and low-fat.

Venture to Morocco and Tunisia with the favorite spices of North Africa found in this delicious stew. The spices are used in small amounts so that they are not overpowering, but provide an enjoyable and different way to serve these nutritious vegetables. Serve over hot bulgur or brown rice.

- NORTH AFRICAN VEGETABLE STEW
- 2 teaspoons vegetable oil
 - 1 medium onion, sliced
 - 1/2 teaspoon ground coriander
 - 1/4 teaspoon turmeric
 - 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
- 2 medium tomatoes, chopped
- 1 medium sweet potatoe, peeled and cut into 1-inch chunks
- 1/4 cup water
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1-8 1/2 ounce can garbanzo beans (about 3/4 cup) drained and rinsed
- 1 small zucchini, cut into 1-inch chunks

- 1/2 cup parsley, chopped
 - 1/4 cup raisins
 - hot pepper sauce to taste
- Heat the oil in a large non-stick pot or Dutch oven. Add onion and spices; cook 10 minutes or until onion is limp, stirring frequently. Add tomatoes, sweet potatoes, water and lemon juice.
- Bring the stew to boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer until vegetables are tender, about 30 minutes. Add garbanzo beans, zucchini, parsley and raisins. Cover and simmer 10 minutes, until the zucchini is tender. Season with hot pepper sauce to taste.

This will produce four one-cup servings, each providing 246 calories and only 4 grams of fat.

Secret Recipes Sweeten Business For Bakery

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The two main deals going on in Spicer's Bakery in Germantown involve Cleveland Spicer's sweet potato pie and Cleveland Spicer's secret sweet potato cheesecake — both of them highly addictive but street legal.

Spicer takes his secretiveness seriously. "People try to catch me cooking so they can learn my magic," he said conspiratorially. "I changed my counter out front so you have to jump over it to get into the kitchen."

The bakery, which sells its secret pies only Thursdays through Sundays, has two hand-lettered signs on its ancient pink plaster walls.

The one above the display case describes Spicer's secret sweet potato cheesecake as "18K Gold That You Can Eat." The one taped in the secret sweet potato kitchen reads: "You will reap in due season if you faint not. If you faint in the time of adversity, your strength is small."

Cleveland Spicer's strength is not small. He has gone a few rounds with adversity. He has fainted not.

"It'll be 300 degrees in that kitchen," he said, sitting in his living room above it, breathing the sweet potato air that filters up through the floorboards.

"The heat don't bother me," he said. "I look at that prayer downstairs every day. I can't faint. I am the king of the sweet potato pie. I am on the road to Successville."

Spicer is a 50-year-old man with a 25-year-old smile — which is to say that while his beard and mustache are turning gray, there is no dust on his smile. No cynicism. No loss of faith.

He spent 18 years laying bricks, then had to give up his trade because something in the cement was poisoning his skin. He drove a cab in New York, then came home to spend the past nine years in Philadelphia trying to turn his father's lifelong sweet potato dreams into reality.

A photo of his mother, Eller Belle, and his father, J.C., in crisp summer suits occupies a prominent place in the living room alongside a brown suede cowboy hat that Spicer got in exchange for a sweet potato cheesecake in New Hope last year and his father's old Univox laydown electric bass.

"A baby Fender," Spicer said, smiling. "I play bass by ear when I have time. I don't know one song all the time through. I play how I feel. Sometimes I fall asleep with the bass in my hand. I work 18 hours a day, beginning at 4 a.m."

Spicer grew up in a family of six boys, five girls, J.C. and Eller Belle, and everybody ate sweet potato pie.

"My father is from Georgia, place called Sasser, and he was a farmer — peanuts, hay, cows — and we lived on sweet potato pies. We had sweet potato pies every day during the week and we had chicken dinners on weekends with the sweet potato pies waiting on the side."

The family moved north in 1951. For more than 30 years, J.C. worked as a stone mason and sold his pies door to door, store to store. His pies were Respected. But they were never Famous.

For the past nine years, Cleveland Spicer has been trying to change all that. The urge and the talent, he said, are in his genes.

His father's pie was good, but it wasn't uniform, he said. The top of his father's pie, Spicer explained, was often significantly lighter than the bottom.

"I uniformed his pies with muscle," he said. "He sanctioned it. When I hit it just right, he said, 'Hold it right there, son! Hold it right there!' Then, it was like he was living the rest of his life to see if the pies would go."

Every weekend, they go like wildfire in Germantown. But because he has never had the financial backing to go bigtime, Spicer's sweet potato pies and cheesecakes have remained a Germantown secret, providing him with a modest living but no glory.

Venison

You can prepare venison much as you would beef or pork. Along with roasts and steaks you can ground the meat into sausages and burgers or chop it into chilies and stews.

In his "The New James Beard" (Alfred A. Knopf, 1981), Beard offers his special recipe for venison hamburgers. Mix 2 pounds of venison, ground with about 20 percent beef fat, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon freshly ground pepper and form into 4 large or 8 small patties. Heat 2 tablespoons butter and 2 tablespoons oil in a heavy skillet, add the patties and saute' over fairly high heat for about 5 minutes. Turn and brown for 5 minutes or more on the second side to taste.

So if you're hunting this season or just want to part take in a winter feast, try this recipe from L'Auberge Provencale. With butter, salt and pepper in your cupboard, it's just a quick run through the express lane.

Express-lane List: oyster mushrooms, shallots, rosemary, veal stock, marsala wine, venison

L'AUBERGE PROVENCALE'S VENISON LOIN

(4 servings)
6 tablespoons (3/4 stick) butter
1/3 pound oyster mushrooms (you can substitute morels, shitake or other mushrooms), chopped into 1/4-inch pieces
2 medium shallots, finely chopped
1 small bunch fresh rosemary, leaves only
1/2 cup water
Salt and pepper to taste

2 pounds venison loin, cleaned and cut into four portions (your butcher can do this for you)
3 tablespoons oil
2 cups veal stock
1/2 cup Marsala wine
4 sprigs fresh rosemary

Melt 2 tablespoons of the butter in a skillet over medium heat. Add chopped mushrooms, 1/2 teaspoon shallots, and rosemary. Saute gently for 1 minute. Add water, salt and pepper. Place lid on skillet and cook for 4 minutes on low to medium heat. Let cool.

With a thin, sharp knife, make an incision lengthwise in each loin about 1 inch deep. Stuff opening with mushroom mixture. Fold loin over and tie with cotton string. Sprinkle with salt and pepper.

Heat oil in oven-proof skillet over high heat. Place loins in skillet and sear both sides until lightly browned. Place skillet in preheated 375-degree oven and cook for 8 minutes. Remove from oven and keep warm on a hot plate.

Wipe skillet with clean, lint-free cloth such as cheesecloth. Add 2 tablespoons butter, remaining shallots, veal stock and marsala. Cook over medium heat until reduced by half. Remove from heat and incorporate remaining 2 tablespoons butter.

Untie loins, slice fairly thin and arrange in half circle on plate. Pour sauce around slices. Garnish with rosemary. Serve immediately.
