Shelter Houses Three Men On Opening Night

By GREG LAUDICK

After passing city inspection Monday, the Greenville Community Shelter opened its doors to the homeless Monday night, catering to three middle-aged homeless men. The three men, identified only as Steve, Greg, and Albert, were the first guests to be accommodated at the shelter, located on the corner of Manhattan Avenue and Myrtle Street at the former Agnes Fullilove School site.

everybody slept through the night," said Randy Davis, who along with Mike Colombo, were the first shelter volunteers to stay an entire evening at the facility. Davis said the three guests had donated coffee and doughnuts this morning and left at 7 a.m., the designated time for departure. "They seemed very appreciative and grateful," he said. "I feel like we provided a real service and it gives you a good feeling that you're a part of it."

they would return to the shelter again this evening. Approximately 20 people, including shelter organizers, church leaders and Vietnam-veteran volunteer workers were on hand Monday night to see the shelter open. Hot soup and doughnuts were donated by local food firms and volunteers donated various baked goods. "It's great everybody is chipping in like this," said Nancy Jacob, the shelter's first night captain.

"There were no problems at all, Davis said two of the men indicated (See SHELTER, A-8)

School Board Seeks Input From Staff On Lost Days

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer
The Pitt County Board of Education agreed Monday night to consult principals and faculty to determine make-up days for the three days of unscheduled vacation created by Thursday's snowfall. During the board's workshop meeting, Superintendent Eddie West told the board he would consult with principals in their small group meetings to decide which of the allotted make-up days will be used. The school calendar marks Jan. 28 as the first day to make up snow days, but West said several churches and other organizations have made plans for students on that day and Jan. 29, both scheduled as teacher workdays. Another consideration is the mid-term exams scheduled that week, he said.

The Soil Conservation Service will fund half of the work needed in the project, West said, thereby making the school system's share of the cost $31,087.50.

The board also was presented the executive team developmental goals for the 1987-88 academic year, which already have been approved by the former interim board.

In prefacing the presentations by members of the executive staff, West said, "This is the first attempt at a strategic planning process since consolidation" of the former Greenville and Pitt County school systems. "It's a growth experience for everyone."

With the team goal to provide equitable educational resources for the Pitt County school system, "the team's work becomes the board's work," West said. The developmental plans provide the background work for issues and policies the board may consider, he said.

County Will Try Recycling To Ease Landfill Strain

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
In an effort to deal with future solid waste disposal problems, Pitt County Commissioners voted Monday to begin searching for a new landfill site and agreed to turn the container site on the County Home road near Bells Fork into a pilot compactor-recycling separation point.

give county residents a place to dispose of their solid waste. Following more study, County Commissioners awarded contracts in 1987 for two 40-yard container sites — the first of 14 now located throughout the county — to give rural residents a place relatively close to their homes to dump their trash without having to travel to the landfill.

Household garbage should be separated from trash and tree limbs, Dickerson said. He suggested a "recycling program" to help reduce the amount of solids, such as cardboard, paper, aluminum cans and glass. And Dickerson said that in the future, the board might consider moving to "a franchise collection system and abolish the container sites." Another possibility: "Man all the container sites (to control what is dumped)" and install compactors to reduce hauling costs. Dickerson said "30 to 50 percent of solid waste is paper products," and that about 20 percent of solid waste is recyclable. "What I'd like to see happen," Dickerson told the board, "is a decision made on what we're going to do before the new landfill opens. We need to have these things adopted and in place by the time the new high-tech landfill opens." County Manager Kramer Jackson agreed. "There's no question counties can't control container sites," unless they are manned to keep out anything but household garbage. "Anything other than household garbage can't go into a lined landfill at $200,000 per acre," he said. So commissioners voted to establish a demolition landfill at the (See TRASH, A-8)

The board's action came after County Engineer Phil Dickerson, who oversees the county's solid waste disposal program, reported that the state is expected to announce new regulations next month which will require all solid waste landfills to be lined by February 1993. And, "to keep costs in line, we're going to have to modify our collection system," Dickerson suggested.

The first of the container sites — on the County Home Road about 1.5 miles west of Bells Fork — opened in August 1978, with the second site on the Stantonsburg Road three miles west of Pitt County Memorial Hospital opening in October 1987.

And the solid waste business has been growing ever since. In the fiscal year which began July 1, 1979, 601,000 loose cubic yards of waste were disposed of in the landfill at a cost of $550,000, Dickerson said. This fiscal year, which ends June 30, will see 1 million to 1.1 million loose cubic yards of waste (between 175 and 200 tons per day, according to Dickerson) buried there.

"We can operate for five years under the existing standards," Dickerson told the board. But by 1993, he said, the landfill must be lined, and any water coming from the landfill must be treated. The county's solid waste program now costs about $840,000 a year. "It will cost three times that to operate a lined landfill ... seven times more for incineration-cogeneration," Dickerson said.

About half the 120-acre Allen Road landfill has been used. But only 35 of the remaining 60 acres are permitted, Dickerson said. "If we establish a demolition landfill" to handle construction debris and tree limbs on 14 of the non-permitted acres of the site, Dickerson told the board Monday, the remaining permitted acreage should last until the county is required to begin operating a new lined landfill.

Household garbage should be separated from trash and tree limbs, Dickerson said. He suggested a "recycling program" to help reduce the amount of solids, such as card-

County To Begin Listing Real Property On Permanent Basis

By STUART SAVAGE

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners, at a workshop meeting Monday, voted to move to a permanent tax listing for real estate beginning March 1.

personal property — will have to be listed for tax purposes. As part of the permanent listing of real property, all deeds will have to be reviewed by the county tax assessor's office before they can be registered.

Proposed changes in the inspections ordinances would combine the building inspections and electrical inspections ordinances and update them to conform to state regulations. Another change would charge people doing work without a permit a double permit fee, with a minimum charge of $50.

Although property owners in the county will have to list as usual this year — the deadline to list without penalty is Feb. 1 — real property will be automatically listed in the future. In January 1989, only personal property — such as cars, trucks, boats, mobile homes, airplanes, farm machinery and equipment, business

Tax Assessor Jimmy Hardee said the permanent listing of real property will effectively do away with late-listing penalties for real property and save time and money for the county. Commissioners Monday also scheduled a public hearing for Feb. 1 on proposed changes to the mobile home park, subdivision and inspections ordinances. County Engineer Phil Dickerson agreed. "This is a cost that Congress made clear it did not want the (law) to carry," he added. The case acted on today was sparked by the 1979 divorce of David A. and Susan A. Thompson. They were awarded joint custody of their son, Matthew, but later won separate rulings in Louisiana and California. Thompson sued in federal court, seeking a ruling that California courts had the authority to settle the custody matter.

But Marshall said Congress meant only to encourage more cooperation among state courts, and did not mean to get federal courts involved.

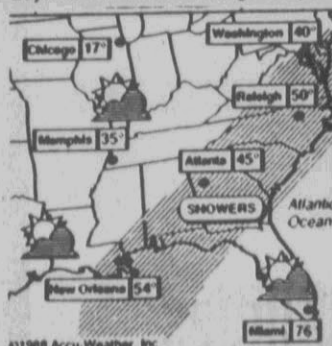

The justices said a 1980 federal law, the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act, was aimed only at getting states to cooperate with each other in such cases, and did not envision federal court intervention.

New Police Chief

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Board of Aldermen has appointed Lester E. 'Dick' Smith as chief of police for the town effective Jan. 1.

The action came at the board's monthly meeting Monday night.

Smith has served as Winterville's acting police chief since April 15 after the retirement of Richard Terrell.

Smith, 47, grew up in the Clayroot community and was graduated from Chicod High School. He retired from the U.S. Army after 24 years of service and joined Winterville's police department in July 1986. He graduated from the North Carolina Police Academy in October 1986 and is a full-time criminal justice night student at Pitt Community College.

Smith is married to the former Bonnie Hardee and they have two sons, Randall and Scottie.

lies and to help them get started with their post-secondary educations," said Calvin Anderson, executive director. The foundation is the philanthropic arm of Cargill, a Minneapolis-based agribusiness company.

To qualify, students must have plans for full-time enrollment this year at an accredited two- or four-year college, university or vocational-technical school. An independent national scholarship service organization manages the selection process, which is based on several criteria including academic records, leadership and extracurricular accomplishments.

For more information consult local schools or Cargill offices.

Data Collection

The Census Bureau will visit area residents Jan. 19-23 to collect labor force data, said William F. Hill, director of the Charlotte regional office.

The agency is also collecting data this month on displaced workers — those who have lost a job in the past five years because of a plant closing, elimination of a shift or a job cutback for various reasons.

Local data will contribute to January's national employment and unemployment picture to be released Feb. 5 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The Census Bureau collects labor force data monthly for the BLS from a national sample of 71,000 households. Information supplied by individuals is kept confidential by law. Only statistical totals are published.

The most recent data showed a national civilian unemployment rate of 5.9 percent in November 1987, meaning that 7.1 million workers out of a labor force of 120.6 million did not have jobs.

Ayden Board OKs Electrical Budget

AYDEN — The Ayden Board of Commissioners adopted a capital project budget ordinance of $913,500 for electrical service during its regular monthly meeting Monday.

About $600 of that amount will be paid back by Weyerhaeuser as a facility charge.

In other matters the board amended an ordinance on recreation park barrel money by adding $50, and it authorized applying to the Hunt Agency for quotes on liability insurance for police officers.

The board accepted the Robert C. Dunn bid of $1,400 for painting the gym wall in the Ayden Recreation Center. Painting is scheduled to begin in early February.

The board recognized police Capt. Bennie Benson and Officer Steve Harper as Officers of the Year and appointed Lynwood Waters to a three-year term on the Recreation Commission.

Board members did not second a motion by Commissioner J.J. Brown to make Jan. 18 a Martin Luther King Jr. holiday in Ayden, citing that other national leaders such as George Washington are not recognized with a holiday.

One addition and three releases were granted on taxes, and a housing authority write-off of $85 was denied. Bids on transformers and substation components will be considered Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Housing Authority.

Mayor Marvin Baldree commended town officials on their efficiency in handling Thursday's snowfall, thereby keeping accidents and electricity outages at a minimum. He said he will draft a letter of thanks to all town section heads.

Council Delays 2nd Retreat Until Jan. 30

Greenville's City Council agreed Monday at a council workshop meeting to hold the second council retreat on Jan. 30, rather than Jan. 16, to accommodate members who have made previous plans for the Martin Luther King Jr. Holiday.

"I think it is important that we have this, but not that important that we can't consider having it another week when it is convenient for the council," said retreat organizer Mayor Ed Carter.

Among topics to be discussed at the second retreat, scheduled to be held in Greenville at the Teen Center, 1703 E. 14th St., are goals and objectives for the council.

The first retreat, held the weekend of Dec. 12, was at the Ramada Inn at Emerald Isle.

At the first retreat, council members discussed roles, relationships and boardsmanship at a cost of $1,400 to the city.

Also at the workshop Monday, a request by Clyde Simmons to amend the zoning ordinance allowing flower shops as permitted uses in the MD-2

Zoning District, was taken off the Thursday meeting agenda at the request of Simmons' representatives.

Council-member Nancy Jenkins has indicated she will not attend the monthly action meeting on Thursday and Simmons' representatives said they wanted a full council to vote on their request. Mrs. Jenkins was also absent from Monday's workshop meeting.

WWII Ace 'Pappy' Boyington Dies

L.A. Times-Washington Post

Gregory "Pappy" Boyington, the high-flying, tough-talking retired Marine colonel who downed 28 Japanese Zeros in World War II and gave new definition to being a legend in one's own time, died in his sleep Monday.

Boyington, who triumphed over alcoholism and domestic woes on the ground, much as he had over enemy pilots in the air, was 75. He died of cancer at a hospice in Fresno, Calif., where he had been admitted New Year's Eve after a two-week stay at Fresno Community Hospital.

"Mr. Boyington passed away at 4 a.m. in his sleep," said Nancy Hinds, a spokeswoman for the facility. "His nurses were with him and his family had been with him most of the day Sunday," she said.

Boyington's autobiographical "Baa Baa Black Sheep" became a national best-seller and spawned a 1976-78 TV series.

He had started a career in the Marine Corps in 1935 but quit the service in 1941 to join Clare Chennault's rebel group of fliers, the Flying Tigers, supporting Generalissimo

GREGORY BOYINGTON

Chiang Kai-shek in his war against the Japanese. He scored six kills in China.

When America declared war against the Japanese Dec. 7, 1941, after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, Boyington rejoined the Marine Corps, as a major, and at 29 was well past the age of the young fighter pilots then in the air.

To return to the skies he convinced his group commander to establish a temporary squadron in the Solomon Islands using some old Corsairs that had been used for training and putting fliers who were stagnating in the pilots' pool in their cockpits.

Thus was born the Black Sheep Squadron, a rag tag bunch of nuisances and non-conformists, and Boyington's nickname, "Pappy," in honor of its older leader.

With just a few weeks training the borrowed men and planes took to the skies and recorded their first five kills. The legend was created.

And Boyington fueled it with his drinking binges, barroom brawls and penchant for disobedience.

Before he was shot down and presumed dead Jan. 3, 1944, over New Britain Island in the Pacific, Boyington had shot down 28 enemy planes.

When he returned from a Japanese prisoner-of-war camp in September 1945, it was to receive a hero's welcome and the Congressional Medal of Honor that originally had been awarded to him posthumously.

U.S. Military Most Costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nations of the world spent $1.8 billion a minute last year on the military, or about $930 billion overall, with the United States in first place, according to an annual study.

Global military spending increased $50 billion over 1986. There were more wars last year — 22 — than ever before. The death toll from those conflicts so far is 2.2 million, with civilians accounting for 84 percent, Ruth Leger Sivard reported Monday.

But the former U.S. Arms Control Agency official also found some hopeful signs, especially last month's Washington summit and the policies of Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev and President Reagan.

URNS DOWN JOB — Joe Clark, the tough-talking, bullhorn-toting principal of Eastside High School in Paterson, N.J., said today he will stay on after beating a contempt charge on Monday. Clark said earlier that he was leaving Paterson to accept a job offer from the federal government. (AP Laserphoto)

Tough Principal Beats Contempt, Will Stay On

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — Bullhorn-toting Principal Joe Clark changed his mind and said today he will remain at his post and not take up a Reagan administration job offer.

After escaping contempt charges Monday by agreeing not to chain school exits shut, Clark had said he planned to go to Washington. But he said today he would remain at Eastside High School because, "Winners don't quit and quitters don't win."

"I refuse to let a board of education run Joe Clark out of a town that he has worked for assiduously for 27 years," he said on "CBS This Morning."

"I will not quit; I will never give in," he said.

Clark, whose no-nonsense policies drew praise from President Reagan but wrath from the school board, had said Monday he would be appreciated more in Washington. He said today he had spoken to Mayor Frank X. Graves, his school superintendent and his pastor before changing his mind.

Clark's announcement that he would go to Washington had gotten a mixed reception, even from the Reagan official who made the job offer.

Loye Miller, a spokesman for Secretary of Education William Bennett, said Bennett believes Clark could do more good by staying in Paterson and called him "a great battlefield commander."

Gary Bauer, head of Reagan's office of policy development who offered Clark a job if he is ousted as principal, said Monday his offer was still open. But he added, "It's hard to imagine Joe not in that hallway with his bullhorn."

"We all agree I belong here at Eastside High School. I appreciate the offer from the White House; I'm going there Friday to visit," Clark said today.

Judith Moran, president of the nine-member Paterson Board of Education, had said she was not disturbed by Clark's announced departure.

"You can be sure the district has some able administrators who could administrate Eastside High School, and do it as well as Mr. Clark," she said.

The school board is considering disciplinary charges against Clark over the recent expulsion of 60 students without approval. Those charges are pending.

On his battles with the school board, Clark commented today, "I know my parameters, and I stay within my parameters."

Clark, 50, was praised by Reagan and Bennett for his stern approach to dealing with chronic truancy and failure. He uses his bullhorn to keep students in line and once kicked 300 students out of school for not meeting his expectations.

The contempt charge was filed by local officials after a television report showed a set of school doors chained shut Dec. 14. Clark said he was trying to keep out drug dealers and had not realized the doors were chained before school was closed for the day.

Passaic County Assistant Prosecutor Steven Brizek said the agreement makes clear Clark must ensure the doors are unlocked during school. Clark could have faced six months in jail and a $1,000 fine if found guilty of contempt.

Amoco Spill Costs $85 Million

CHICAGO (AP) — A judge's order that Amoco Corp. pay up to $85.2 million for the Amoco Cadiz oil spill that blackened French beaches nearly 10 years ago has left plaintiffs and the oil company unhappy.

Minutes after U.S. District Judge Frank McGarr announced the award Monday, attorneys for Amoco and all 90 plaintiffs except the government of France said they would appeal.

The judgment "does not correspond to our hopes after this battle we've waged for 10 years," Yves Bertrand, mayor of the Brittany town of Landunvezm, said at a news conference in France.

The French government had sought $466 million and the other plaintiffs $695 million.

A decision by France on an appeal was expected after consultation with the its lead attorney, Benjamin Haller, who flew to Paris after the decision was announced.

In Paris, Environment Minister Alain Carignon said in a statement that he "could not fail to regret that the plaintiffs other than the government have not received indemnities corresponding to their demands."

However, he said the ruling placing responsibility on Amoco, rather than on the super tanker's operator "permitted a great advance in jurisprudence."

"The townspeople will be very disappointed," said Adrien Kervella, mayor of Saint-Pol-de-Leon, a Brittany village of 8,000 near where the Amoco Cadiz ran aground on March 16, 1978.

The accident sent wave after wave of thick, black tar onto 100 miles of beaches in western France.

The years that followed were less kind.

Instead of the glory that had accompanied his exploits during the war he found himself working in department stores and refereeing wrestling matches to support himself.

The drinking worsened and it was not until the mid-1950s that he conquered it and wrote his book, which he hoped would be made into a film. It was not.

He made one more flight into the limelight — in 1962, when he made an unsuccessful bid for Congress.

In the early 1970s Boyington and his fourth wife, Jo, moved to Fresno and, after two cancer operations, he gradually emerged from a retirement he had never wanted.

He attended air shows, was reunited in 1977 with retired Japanese Navy ace Masajiro Kawato, the man who shot him down, and in 1982 went to Japan at the invitation of the Zero Fighter Pilots' Association.

He resumed flying, this time in a single-seat experimental airplane that he would take to some of the aviation shows that honored him.

And he maintained a devotion to devility.

In 1981 a reporter asked him about the small turquoise ribbon pinned to his lapel. It was, he replied, given to him in honor of his 30 years with the Otis Elevator company.

It was, of course, his Medal of Honor boutonniere.

Asked once what prompted his behavior, he explained that some of his flamboyancy may have resulted from wounds he suffered in the war.

"My skull is full of hunks of shrapnel (from being shot down by the Japanese) and every now and then one works out of the bone, so if I'm a little nutty, I've got a legitimate reason," he said.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Teamwork

A public board has an obligation to work as a unit, not act individually on important issues.

That's not really a new concept. It's called teamwork, and when handling public issues, it is of utmost importance. Although it is composed of individuals, a board is a team, and should function as one. When it doesn't the public is the loser.

A speaker for the Pitt County Board of Education stressed the importance of unity, and his remarks should be heeded by that body and other public boards. Several significant issues were mishandled by local boards in the past year, and usually, individual, not group, actions — resulting in incohesiveness — was the culprit.

For example, consider the grandfather clause the Pitt County Board of Education passed when school attendance lines were redrawn. It allowed exceptions to the new rules that totally negated the changes' desired affect. Board members, sharply divided over the issue, focused more on individual differences than acting in the best interest of the school system. The result was flawed leadership.

Another example was the dismissal of Greenville City Manager Gail Meeks by the City Council. Again, the board was divided on the issue; the decision was a split one. Rather than working to resolve differences, the council simply fractured, resulting in a haphazard action.

Clearly, the message of teamwork is an important one if public business is to be conducted in a sound manner. Both the board of education and City Council have new membership now — a fact which provides a timely opportunity for the boards to develop unity.

The speaker outlined measures for developing teamwork, and many of these are basics for good boardmanship.

For example, local bodies should develop common goals and define them in a statement of purpose. They must then develop a reasonable plan to reach these goals. Evaluation — self-examination and assessment — is necessary and should be based on data. The board should clearly define roles for each member and develop confidence in themselves, each other and the board's leadership. Local leaders must also remain accessible to the public when discussing public issues.

No small tasks, here, granted, but all are attainable goals.

Responsibly guiding the community requires placing individual desires behind public good. As new boards begin conducting the business of Greenville and Pitt County, members should honor this obligation to teamwork and prioritize it.

The Right Move

The Soviets are sending signals they hope to be out of the war in Afghanistan by the end of 1988.

Certainly they should. The Soviet military has been bogged down in Afghanistan for years, a situation reminiscent of the United States' involvement in Vietnam. The military adventure is costing the Soviet Union financially and in human resources — lives and suffering of soldiers fighting there and their families. It has to be an unpopular war on the home front. Certainly it is to the rest of the world.

Soviet leaders have been saying for some time its estimated 115,000 troops in Afghanistan would be out by the end of 1988. Now Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze has said the Soviets hope to be out this year based on a plan to be worked out in Geneva conferences.

Shevardnadze emphasized that the United States must cease supplying arms to the rebels in Afghanistan. While the United States says there is no specific agreement on this, hopes are high that the Soviet involvement will end. Eight years is a long time to carry on a military action, and there still is no victory in sight.

After Vietnam, the United States can speak with authority on the futility of long-term conflicts. It can attest to the internal strife long involvements create and the divisiveness they cause in the populace. The United States can also bear witness to the detrimental effects on a nation's foreign policy.

Clearly the Soviets want to present a better image to the world and beating up on its smaller neighbor is not the way to do that.

The war also has to be costly to the Soviet economy. At a time when its citizens are clamoring for more consumer goods and more domestic spending, unpopular military spending must be a problem even for Soviet leaders.

There are plenty of reasons for the Soviet Union to end its military adventure into Afghanistan. The overriding one is that it is the right thing to do.

W. BOLLINGER
DALLAS TIMES HERALD

Central America Disowns U.S. Policy

Accepting his Nobel Peace Prize in Oslo last month, Costa Rica President Oscar Arias unmistakably directed his message at Washington. "Let Central Americans decide the future of Central America," he pleaded. "Leave the interpretation and implementation of our peace plan to us."

Arias speaks in the name of more than 25 million people from five diverse countries. But does the Costa Rican leader have their support in demanding that the United States halt all aid to the Contras? Is it even possible to know what the "average" Central American thinks about the peace process or Reagan administration policy?

The answer to both questions is yes. Recent public-opinion surveys in El Salvador, for example, show that Arias has become a political leader who inspires hope and reflects the political outlook of the voiceless majority. Asked which Central American president best governs his country, 54 percent of Salvadorans polled named Arias, while fewer than 2 percent chose their own president, Jose Napoleon Duarte. By a 3-1 margin, Salvadorans said they wanted the U.S. Congress to vote against Contra aid.

In looking at how Salvadorans feel about the Arias Plan and prospects for peace, bear in mind that all reliable surveys during the past two years have shown the populace to be profoundly pessimistic. One survey found that more than 78 percent believed the local economy would continue to deteriorate. Asked in four different polls how El Salvador's civil war could be resolved, almost one-fifth answered "only God" could do it, while another sizeable group said there was "no solution."

'When polled about different aspects of Reagan administration policy in the region, generally only one Salvadoran in four expresses support for the U.S. president's position. Only one in five approves of military aid to the Contras.'

The Arias Plan has now broken some of this cynicism. Most Salvadorans are aware of the process set in motion at the August meeting of five presidents in Esquipulas, Guatemala, and are either hopeful or withholding judgment. A month after the agreement was signed, only 39 percent dismissed it as useless, "a hoax," or "just politics." About half of those surveyed late last year felt the plan had already achieved some results.

When polled about different aspects of Reagan administration policy in the region, generally only one Salvadoran in four expresses support for the U.S. president's position. Only one in five approves of military aid to the Contras. In fact, more than two-thirds of those interviewed in San Salvador expressed either indifference about the Contra cause or opposition to the war against the Nicaraguan government.

These measures of public opinion may surprise policy-makers in Washington, since the Reagan administration has circulated its own poll results from El Salvador, Honduras, Costa Rica and Guatemala that purport to show broad regional support for U.S. policy. President Reagan used these polls in March 1986, when he announced that in some Central American countries "the rate goes as high as over 90 percent of the people who support what we're doing." In the case of El Salvador, the administration leaked polls to the media showing that between 52 percent and 69 percent of Salvadorans (depending on the survey) approve of U.S. military aid to the Contras.

In order to probe more deeply into how the people of El Salvador view U.S. policy and the peace process, IUDOP conducted two special random-sample surveys last fall. One a poll of 1,000 adults in the capitals of 10 of the country's 14 departments, the other a poll of 941 adults in 50 different neighborhoods in San Salvador. Interviews were conducted face-to-face in people's homes and covered every social sector, from the most exclusive urban neighborhoods to the most impoverished slums and squatter settlements.

Despite widespread fear still prevalent in Salvadoran society, fewer than 8 percent of those approached in the national survey refused to be interviewed when told the political nature of the poll. In the poorest barrios, those refusing sometimes say apologetically, "If I talk to you, they will come and get me." But most Salvadorans trust the Catholic university and are appreciative when someone shows respect for their views. Many warm to the interview as they realize the luck of finally having their opinion count and be presented to the national media. IUDOP has now conducted more than 12,000 interviews in all but the four most war-torn departments (Chalatenango, Morazan, Cabanas and La Union).

On every issue posed, substantial majorities of Salvadorans contradicted the positions of the Reagan administration. By a margin of 2.7-1, those interviewed said that the United States should withdraw its military forces from Honduras, for example. While Reagan insists that El Salvador is threatened by Cuba and Nicaragua, eight out of every 10 Salvadorans polled said that the United States is the country that most interferes in their nation's internal affairs. Asked what sort of assistance the United States should provide Central American countries, only 3.5 percent mentioned military aid.

Salvadorans not only oppose specific aspects of U.S. policy, they also tend to disagree with the Reagan administration's underlying rationale for intervention. Concerning the civil war, most Salvadorans attribute the conflict to their country's "unjust structures," "bad government" or the "quest for political power." Only 6.1 percent of those polled in San Salvador said the cause was communist intervention or subversion.

One recurring theme in the U.S. policy debate over Central America is the assumption that democracy has been established in El Salvador and the Contras are needed to force similar democratization in Nicaragua. But when IUDOP asks Salvadorans if they enjoy democratic freedoms under the Duarte government, most people say no.

The Presidential Truck Stop

WASHINGTON — A towered turret, equipped with devices for pouring hot oil on invaders; perhaps a moat, stocked with piranha; or certainly a ha-ha, a deep ditch with a sunken fence — the National Park Service could have built something really interesting in front of the White House to protect the imperial presidency.

Instead, Monday, the Park Service will start digging on a more modest proposal. Its planners hope to install 274 bollards, 38-inch-high, thick cement and aggregate posts, four feet apart, joined by chains, along the 832 feet of Pennsylvania Avenue's sidewalk between East and West Executive avenues. Sandra Alley, a Park Service spokeswoman, said the bollards will be spaced so "a car won't go through them."

Since November 1983, a row of so-called jersey barriers has provided a sort of Maginot line, or Great Wall, in front of the White House. The defensive line is designed to keep anticipated terrorists with truckloads of bombs from crashing through the White House fence.

The Park Service, Alley said, has only enough money — $465,000 — to do half the work, from West Executive Avenue to roughly the midpoint of the White House's north portico. It's going to look lopsided, to put it mildly, if more appropriations don't come through by the end of the first phase, to be finished by June. The Park Service seems to be following a method devised by Theodore Roosevelt, who sent the Great White Fleet halfway around the world, leaving Congress to appropriate enough money to get it back.

The bollard design by structural engineer Peter Tomka of Denver is one of those giraffes, designed by committee. The Park Service came up with the design after several years of thought, many prayers to the Commission of Fine Arts (which approves all designs in or visible from federal Washington) and many objections by the Secret Service.

"We struggled with it for a long time," said Charles Atherton, commission secretary. "The security people wanted a barrier that was not subtle, timid or hidden. No one said flatly, but it was obvious that they wanted a barrier that was right out front with it, saying, 'These are the measures we are taking.' The security requirements were to stop some pretty heavy traffic. So the bollards had to be close and heavy. They're not going to have the grace of those wider apart... in European cities."

Atherton said the commission looked at several proposals, including a stone wall. "That would have been formidable; you wouldn't be able to see the White House. We did the best we could with tapering and shaping the bollards."

"J. Carter Brown (commission chairman) urged the Park Service to put the barriers inside the existing White House fence. But the Secret Service wanted it outside, because they wanted to keep the grounds from being penetrated."

Architect Arthur Cotton Moore, in a 1985 master plan for the Treasury

Building grounds, came up with a plaza with a crescent of presidential statues and a moatlake ramp for the east side of the White House. Donald Regan had commissioned the plan when he was treasury secretary and his successor James Baker apparently stuck the plan in the attic and forgot about it.

Moore looked at the bollard plan — a photograph with the bollards drawn in — when it was released by the Park Service; the drawing seems to minimize the height of the bollards. And he said, "It looks like a defensive gesture. The White House deserves a plan that's an impressive obstacle, but is still handsome."

"We could have had four- or five-foot-high planters on the sidewalk, curvilinear like those in a French terrace, an embroidery strip of classical shapes. Granite full of earth would be a mighty deterrent to a truck bomber."

Only two years or so ago, the Secret Service proposed a plan to close Pennsylvania Avenue entirely to traffic between 15th and 17th streets NW, until an outcry by the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments made the service, if not forget it, quit talking about it.

What about an ornamental lake, with the White House floating on an island in the middle? The president could stock it with a personal navy.

Strength For Today

There is a story about a community which was diligent to maintain an ambulance at the foot of a high cliff in order to take care of people who fell over. When someone suggested putting a fence around the top of the cliff, the proposal was met with derision and scorn. The argument the townspeople presented, in verse, was:

Why should people of sense/ stop to put up a fence./ With an ambulance down in the valley?

Prudence always urges us to avoid troublesome situations by giving them our attention before they become troublesome. Screens on the windows are better than insect spray in the house. The fence around the precipice makes more sense than the ambulance in the valley.

IN THE STATE

Deadline

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The technical committee of a state panel seeking a disposal site for low-level radioactive wastes has been given 10 days to revise its guidelines to include input from two public hearings.

Raymond Murray, head of the technical committee for the North Carolina Low-Level Radioactive Waste Management Authority, said the major concerns expressed at public meetings in Raleigh and Asheville stemmed from fears that the site would be located in a state or national forest.

"We want to avoid forests," Murray said Monday. "That's not to say they will be absolutely ruled out, but we'll try to stay along those lines."

The 15-member panel voted Monday to meet again Jan. 21 in Raleigh to consider the revised plan.

Spell Award

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge ordered the release of a $1.46 million bond to pay a man who was left sterile after he was kneed in the groin by a Fayetteville police officer, but a federal appeals court stayed the order hours later.

On Monday morning, U.S. District Court Judge James Fox ordered the bond released to Henry Spell when it matures Saturday. Fox's order releasing the bond posted by the city of Fayetteville was issued despite the city's pending request for U.S. Supreme Court review of the police brutality lawsuit.

But 4th Circuit Judge J. Dickson Phillips stayed Fox's order Monday afternoon and ordered a hearing on Jan. 20 to determine if the payment should be delayed until the Supreme Court resolves the case, said John N. Fountain, a Raleigh attorney representing the city.

Spell, 31, formerly of Astryville and now living in Meigs, Ga., alleged in the 1984 lawsuit that he was left sterile after he was kneed in the groin by Fayetteville police officer Charles D. McDaniel.

Resignation

WILMINGTON (AP) — An outspoken commercial fisherman from Onslow County has offered to resign from the state Marine Fisheries Commission because she says she no longer can make a living harvesting clams and oysters.

Lena Ritter, an environmental advocate who has been a critic of Gov. Jim Martin's coastal policies, said Monday shellfishing bans and pollution have crushed her hopes of making "a decent income from the sound," forcing her to accept a full-time position with the N.C. Coastal Federation.

Mrs. Ritter, who is president of the federation, said she would operate as an extension agent for the non-profit environmental group and receive an undisclosed sum.

Mrs. Ritter took her seat on the board a month ago.

Trial Delayed

WILMINGTON (AP) — The first-degree murder trial for a Bladen County couple that had been scheduled for Monday was delayed until Jan. 25.

The trial was postponed because weather conditions delayed the arrival of the presiding judge and to allow lawyers in the case more time to prepare, according to a spokesman in the district attorney's office.

The trial of Sylvester Phillips, 54, and his wife, Anne, 64, was moved from Bladen County to New Hanover County because of pretrial publicity. The two were arrested in mid-June in connection with the beating death of their 11-year-old foster daughter, Tameka Lehmann.

Sanford Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Terry Sanford said he is taking part in a 16-day, government-paid trip to Africa, Italy and Spain in order to see for himself the conditions that may affect foreign policy decisions.

Sanford, a North Carolina Democrat, Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., and their wives left Jan. 4 on the trip that includes meetings with several military officers and African presidents, plus visits to Mount Kilimanjaro and Victoria Falls, Sanford spokesman Tom Lawton said Monday.

Lawton said Sanford was making the trip in his capacity as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on international economic policy, trade, oceans and environment. Hollings is chairman of the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation.

Insurance Companies Increase Bid For Higher Rates On Auto Policies

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina insurance companies opened a hearing on automobile insurance rates by telling state Insurance Commissioner Jim Long that they needed an overall increase of 4.1 percent, not the 3.5 percent they had originally requested.

Meanwhile, Long Monday ordered two insurance industry officials to obey subpoenas seeking testimony on their role in the rate case. His ruling came despite objections from an insurance industry attorney who called the move "an unfortunate precedent" that could prove costly for consumers.

The revised figures for the rate increase include an 18.2 percent increase in liability insurance, which all drivers must buy, and a 12.7 percent reduction in collision and comprehensive coverages, which are required for most car loans. The industry originally had sought a 15.8 percent increase in liability coverage and an 11.6 percent reduction in collision and comprehensive.

The Department of Insurance is fighting the increase. Its consultants contend that automobile insurance rates should be cut 4 percent to 6 percent.

Patrick Woods, an actuary who serves as a consultant for the N.C. Rate Bureau, testified Monday that the revised rate request was based on new data showing a trend toward higher losses and expenses and on a later effective date for the new rates. The Rate Bureau represents insurance companies on rate matters.

The revised rate request is now based on an April 1 effective date, rather than Jan. 1, Woods said.

Drivers who buy only liability insurance would be hit harder under the revised request, but those who buy both liability and physical damage coverage — collision and comprehensive — would see little change.

On the hearing's opening day, Long overruled an objection to a subpoena he issued for the officials, who are employees of Insurance Services Offices Inc., a New York trade agency.

Long issued the subpoenas after the North Carolina Rate Bureau refused to make the officials available. The bureau represents the industry in rate cases but the ISO officials prepared the latest rate increase request for North Carolina insurers.

Insurance Department lawyers want to question the officials about the process they followed in preparing the rate case, including why they originally chose a 3.5 percent increase and rejected four other proposals that would have resulted in smaller increases.

Armistead J. Maupin, a Raleigh attorney representing ISO, said the company was not directly involved in the rate case. He said an ISO attorney, Patrick B. Woods, would testify on behalf of the rate bureau.

Much of the hearing's opening day was taken up by skirmishing over which evidence would be admissible. Woods began testifying Monday afternoon, verifying data used in the industry's rate filing.

American Brings Good Manners To Great Britain

By PATRICK MCDOWELL
LONDON (AP) — The government has hired an American to teach civility to 1,100 of its civil servants, an unusual act in a nation famed for good manners.

Rest assured, however, because Karen Dunn won't be teaching government employees to say, "Have a nice day."

"It's one of those phrases the British find extremely American — and annoying," Ms. Dunn said Monday, explaining how she weeded out Americanisms to tailor her customer-relations course for British consumption.

Her firm, Sterling Consulting Group of Sausalito, Calif., has been hired to bring the government's Export Credit Guarantee Department up to speed on the latest techniques in customer relations. The department is a branch of the Treasury which underwrites overseas business transactions. It's funded by premiums from private companies in the export business.

A few eyebrows were raised over morning tea Monday when a Daily Telegraph headline reported that Mrs. Dunn and her business partner, Keith Bailey, had been hired "to make Britons more civil."

The Telegraph expressed no opinions on the topic, but the Daily Mail did.

In an editorial today, the newspaper opined: "Surely, it is the depth of bureaucratic rudeness to imply that there is not a single native of these shores capable of inculcating patience and good manners."

"No discourtesy intended, but Americans, especially Californians, are not widely regarded as the epitome of politeness and civility," it said.

"I winced when I saw that," said John Atkinson, a department spokesman.

Britons view their nation as a polite one with little need for instruction in manners from residents of the New World.

"We are a polite society and don't like to be told" that British manners need polishing, Atkinson said.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher recently said she was concerned that Britons had lost their tradition of courtesy and pledged to restore that "fundamental" value, particularly among the young.

In light of her remarks, Atkinson said: "It is comforting to think what we are doing falls into the overall plan."

Mrs. Dunn said good manners are only a small part of customer relations.

"The British, by and large, have very good manners," she said. "If that were all there was, we probably wouldn't be here." Her job entails teaching clients better communication skills. Customers around the world desire three things — respect, recognition and responsiveness, she said.

Mrs. Dunn said that while she doesn't believe in the old adage that the customer is always right, she stresses the need for sales people to keep their temper regardless of how difficult a customer is behaving.

"Most sales staff find that extremely difficult," she lamented.

Mrs. Dunn and Bailey will be training groups of 25 people in four-hour sessions in nine British cities.

Though neither she nor the government will disclose Sterling Consulting's fee, Mrs. Dunn said the typical session in the United States costs $4,000.

AWARD FROM FIRST LADY — First Lady Nancy Reagan, right, presents New York philanthropist Brooke Astor with an award from the Council of Fashion Designers of America Monday at the organization's seventh annual awards ceremony in New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art. Celebrities Live In Public Domain

Chapter I begins with a description of a housewife, brown-eyed woman at work at a typewriter in a garage that has been converted to a workroom behind her house. She occasionally glances around the walls that are papered with awards and photographs of her friends: Dinah Shore, Paul Newman and Arthur Godfrey.

You've just read an excerpt of a 166-page biography of Erma Bombeck written by a man whom I don't know and have never met. If we had, he would have known my eyes are green, I have never worked in a garage behind my house, I don't know Paul Newman, and the only pictures in my office are of my husband running the Boston Marathon and our family at the Rose Bowl Parade.

I mention this only to enlighten "inquiring minds" who believe everything they read because "how could they print it if it weren't so?"

Gather 'round, my little innocents, and let me explain about the magic kingdom of Public Domain where irresponsible journalists roam and there is life in the tabloids after death. It's a mystical place where celebrities live ... yes, like Joan Rivers, Carol Burnett, Martha Raye and Joan Collins. Does it take long to get there? Not really. One day you're anonymous. The next day, for whatever reason, you get your name in a paper. You're there and your life will never be the same again.

At Wits End

you can't even pronounce, let alone recognize, and have made the "What's Out" list of three magazines. You'll be misquoted, misunderstood and mystified by all the things you're supposed to have said and done.

Some are harmless little bits of annoyance you let slide by. (I read where I had four children and not three.) Some are a little personal, but who cares? (In 24 hours, I went from a "svelte, stylish columnist" to a "frumpy, plain-looking woman who is as short as she writes.")

Other lies hurt. Like the one where a columnist reported the remarks of a sightseeing bus driver who pointed out my home and said I was usually out in my chenille bathrobe and slippers cussing out my gardener. (I haven't lived in the house he points out for over five years.) The columnist ran it anyway and when I asked for a retraction, she chided me in print for not having a good sense of humor. (You can only win in court if the lies affect your earning power.)

How will you know you're in Public Domain? Oh, you'll know all right. You'll feel as vulnerable as a Burma Shave sign on a country road that is the target of every kid with a rock ... a slingshot ... a rifle ... a cannon ... a missile ... or whatever is handy.

And when you insist to an interviewer you only have three children, she will narrow her eyes and ask suspiciously, "Are you sure?"

You will open the newspaper and discover you have been named to the "Most Boring" list, the worst dressed, are going to be married to a name

"America's Favorite Oil Change"

Couple Needs To Go For Counseling

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Three months ago, I married a very nice woman I'll call Mary. Everything seems to be going well except for one small item. Mary and her "ex" (I'll call him John) continue to stay in close touch with each other. They were married for five years, but had no children because John didn't want children. He divorced Mary two years ago, but continued seeing her for fun and frolicking (sex) until he met the woman to whom he is now married.

Now, the problem: John has been married for a year and he continues to phone my wife to keep her updated on what is going on in his life. I can't understand why Mary still bothers with him. John's wife is not aware of this keeping-in-touch business. I've told Mary that I don't approve of it and I've asked her to stop. She says she will, but so far she hasn't. Can you figure this out? And what should I do? — BOTHERED

DEAR BOTHERED: John and Mary are having a difficult time letting go of each other. It's obvious that there is a strong bond between them, and if you and your bride want your marriage to survive, you will immediately go for family counseling. Trust me.

DEAR ABBY: When I go to a baseball, football or basketball game and my team is losing, I just hate it when the fans start to walk out before the game is even over.

Why do people go to a game if they don't want to cheer their team on — win or lose? How do you think the players feel when they are losing and the bleachers start to empty out? Please print this. Some people don't realize how much it hurts the players when the fans walk out on them. — SEATTLEITE

DEAR SEATTLEITE: It's demoralizing, insensitive and unsportsmanlike. Maybe just one person will see this and take it to heart. Besides, it's not over until the fat lady sings.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I recently moved from New York to Florida. "Morey" and I are both divorced and look forward to having someone to share our lives with. He has friends and relatives here, whereas I have none. Part of the reason he moved to Florida is because he loves to play golf.

At first, he golfed either on Saturday or Sunday. However, lately he's been golfing on both days. He's gone from four to six hours at a crack, and when he gets home, he's usually too tired to do anything because he got up so early. We've had some serious talks about his golfing, and he made it clear that he "loves" the sport, and if I become too resentful of his golfing, we will have problems.

We both work full time during the week, and I think I'm entitled to have him all to myself one day a week. While he golfs, I stay home with my children (from a previous marriage) and do laundry and cleaning.

Am I being selfish and inconsiderate, or is he? — MOREY'S GOLF WIDOW

DEAR GOLF WIDOW: Labeling him — or you — "selfish and inconsiderate" won't solve anything. He warned you that if you became too resentful of his golf game, you'd have problems. Believe him.

If you want Morey in your life, cultivate a few friends and find something to do while he's playing golf. Don't nag and don't sulk. And never give a golfer an ultimatum unless you're prepared to lose.

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices fell broadly in early activity today, as trading slowed in a market that remained jittery from Friday's big selloff.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 21.89 to 1,923.24 at 10 a.m. on Wall Street. Broader market indicators also fell in early activity, but volume was relatively light.

Declining issues outnumbered gainers by about 7 to 4 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 390 up, 665 down and 412 unchanged.

Big Board volume was 18.25 million shares in the first 30 minutes of trading, compared with 36.57 million in the same period Monday.

Prices had been mixed Monday, easing fears that Friday's 140-point Dow drop might foretell another market disaster similar to October's crash. Stocks were aided by relatively calm overseas activity and a rally in the bond markets, which saw long-term interest rates edge lower.

Interest rates edged down further early today and oil prices fell sharply in early futures trading — two signals of lower inflation — but the stock market shrugged off those trends.

Oil-related issues led the decline in the early going.

In the past, the board has talked of the possibility of building a cogeneration plant to burn solid waste.

But Dickerson reminded commissioners Monday that there are environmental concerns with cogeneration, too. And even if the cogeneration process itself is successful from an environmental quality standpoint, the ash from the process would have to be disposed of in a lined landfill, he said.

Shelter

Mrs. Jacob said that, along with volunteers, the shelter is short on toiletries, personal hygiene products and detergent.

After inspection on Monday, city building inspector Jim Kaufman said the shelter received a 30-day temporary certificate of operation.

"Upon finding some minor discrepancies, we issued the shelter a temporary C.O. which gives the shelter time to get those things taken care of," he said.

Among the items needing attention, according to Kaufman, are proper signs and wheelstops in the parking lot, some rotten floorboards which need to be replaced and the clothes dryer, which needs adequate venting.

Kaufman said the shelter would be inspected again when the temporary certificate expires in 30 days and, upon meeting accordance with regulations, will be issued a final C.O.

"After that they'll be home free," he said.

Shelter President Sam Loy said its board of directors would meet today to review the opening.

Jack Brinn, chairman of shelter publicity, said volunteer orientation sessions will be held tonight and Wednesday at 7 p.m. and on Jan. 17, at 3 p.m. at the shelter, located on 207 Manhattan Ave.

Bobby Joyner, the county's emergency services coordinator, reported that plans for a 911 emergency telephone system were moving ahead. He said 84 percent of the telephones in the county could be served by 911 six months from the date commissioners give Carolina Telephone & Telegraph Co. "the go-ahead."

Joyner said the first exchanges to be covered would be Greenville, with 76 percent of the telephones in the county, and Ayden, with 8 percent.

Customers on exchanges at Farmville (8 percent), Grifton (4.2 percent), Bethel (2.6 percent) and Fountain (1.2 percent), would be added to the 911 system on a staggered basis over a 12- to 18-month period, unless the board decides to implement the program for the entire county at one time, Joyner said.

Present telephone equipment at Farmville, Grifton, Bethel and Fountain will not allow 911 service, according to Joyner, who said equipment at Ayden is scheduled to be replaced in August.

"My Letter to Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers"
 — Rebecca Troxler

Dear Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers,

My family was more concerned with my health than I was. When I was 32 years old and weighed 444 pounds, my mother asked me bluntly who was going to raise my children after I died of a heart attack! That remark made me stop and think.

When I began the Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers program, I had a 71" bust, a 71" waist and 72" hips. It was an exciting day when it no longer took two people and two tape measures to measure me! I was thrilled to give away my size 52 clothes and 13 months later be wearing a size 13!

In addition to my sisters, parents, two daughters and a loving husband, I found a "family" of supporters among the staff at Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers. They cheered me on and helped me to "think thin." Thanks, girls, and thanks Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers!

Thinserealy,
 Rebecca Troxler

Overton Awarded 1987 Dial Award

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer
Balancing athletics and academics hasn't been easy for Rose High School's Kristi Overton, but her hard work has earned her the prestigious Dial Award for 1987.

Kristi Overton

The award is considered one of the most coveted honors in the country for high school athletes/scholars.

"It's hard to train so hard and keep up a good grade level," Overton said. "I work real hard during the fall and spring when I'm skiing so I can spread out my time and still make good grades."

"It takes a lot of discipline. During the spring, I missed the prom because I was away skiing, (but) it's worth it at the end. It makes all the practice worthwhile."

Overton, ranked as one of the top female water skiers in the world, along with Todd Marinovich of Mission Viejo, Calif., one of the nation's most highly recruited prep quarterbacks, were chosen from a field of 10 finalists for the award.

Overton is also an honor student and a member of the National Honor Society.

Both Overton and Marinovich were chosen by a panel of coaches, writers and college recruiters who based selections on academics as well as athletics.

The two seniors will receive their awards at the 53rd annual awards dinner of The Touchdown Club in Washington, D.C., Jan. 23.

The Dial Award was established in 1979 by the Dial Soap Corp. to recognize high school athletes who achieve excellence, decided by three criteria: dedication, talent and confidence.

The first Dial award winner was Herschel Walker, now with the Dallas Cowboys. The next year, awards were presented to both a male and a female recipient.

Overton, president of the Rose High student body, has won every major water skiing title in the Junior's Division and holds world records in both the slalom and jump categories.

She holds numerous junior national records and is now eligible to compete on the senior level at world championships.

Overton began skiing at age 4 under the guidance of her father, Parker Overton, a water sports

Key Free Throws Lift Bucs

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
HARRISONBURG, Va. — East Carolina's Pirates hit on 11 of their last 12 free throws in the final five minutes of play and came away with a 68-65 Colonial Athletic Association basketball victory over James Madison Monday night.

It was the first time the Pirates had ever defeated JMU on the Dukes' home court and it was also the first CAA win for first-year coach Mike Steele, who reveled in the win.

"All our guys are excited, probably more than they ought to be. But I'm excited, too. I thought I might get some sleep on the bus tonight, but I'm probably too wired to sleep now."

"This was a big, big win for us." And it was the first in some time on the road. The win snapped an 11-game losing spin on the home court of opponents, going back into last season. And it was the first in 12 CAA road games, going back to the 1985-86 season.

It didn't come easy, however. The Pirates once again suffered through a first period drought that erased a 12-point ECU lead. But this time, the Pirates were able to recover, hang with the Dukes, then take the lead on a 3-point play by Gus Hill with 8:34 left, 53-50.

The Pirates pushed that lead out to seven with 6:22 to go, but then had to get the final points off the free throw line and do the job defensively to finish off the Dukes.

Jeff Kelly canned six of six at the stripe, while Reed Lose made three of four. Hill added the final two with 19 seconds to go.

"The kids worked hard. We're not big or experienced, but they've hung together and made strides," Steele said.

"They played hard all the way through and made the free throws when they had to make them. This is as excited as I've been this year."

Steele said that he thought the Pirates did a good job on defense and in blocking out. JMU and ECU both pulled 33 rebounds. Ralph Glenn had 11 to lead the Dukes, while Stanley Love and Kelly each had seven for the Pirates.

"JMU didn't shoot the ball well from the outside and we were able to pack the inside pretty well," Steele said. "We also got good help off the bench. We try and tell them (subs) to help on defense and block out. (David) Simmons played real hard for us, and (Ronnie) Gibbs came in and got a couple of baskets for us."

Steele said the only time the Pirates broke down was in the final five minutes of the first half when JMU rallied from 12 down and outscored the Pirates 24-12.

JMU's John Thurston said that East Carolina outplayed his Dukes in every phases of the game, "especially in aggressiveness."

"We were a very soft team. When you get the ball underneath, you should be able to score and we didn't."

Lose hit a 3-pointer to put the Pirates into the initial lead and they ran them out to 7-2 on a baseline jumper by Simmons. JMU cut the gapback to 9-6, but the Pirates then ran off seven in a row, two free throws by Simmons, a basket and free throw by Hill and a layup by Kenny Murphy for a 16-6 lead.

Lose then hit off the baseline for a 22-10 lead with 10:01 left.

But after that, the Pirates didn't score a basket again for over six minutes, except for hitting on four of four at the line.

JMU ran off 11 in a row to cut it to 24-23, but the Pirates held them off until Keith McMillan hit a 3-pointer to tie it at 30-30 with 3:25 to go. Robert Griffin followed 30 seconds later with a layup for a 32-30 lead, but Love put back a rebound to tie it again.

JMU point guard Benny Gordon made two free throws with 24 seconds left but Gibbs hit from the lane to leave it at 34-34 at intermission.

Kelly drove to score to open the second half and put the Pirates back up, but over the next 10 minutes, the lead changed hands six times and it was tied four times, the last at 50-50 with 8:51 to go.

Hill hit a jumper with 8:34 left and was fouled. He completed the 3-point play for a 53-50 lead.

Love then hit from underneath on a feed from Lose and Hill followed with another basket, also fed by Lose.

That put the Pirates up 57-50 with 6:22 to go.

Madison then hit on six of eight tries at the line over the next two minutes to cut it back to 57-56.

But Lose hit two at the stripe and Kelly made the first of his six with 3:56 to go to open it to 61-56 again.

Baskets by Glenn and Gordon — the last a 3-pointer, were sandwiched around two more free throws by Kelly, cutting the lead to 63-61.

But Lose hit the first of a one-and-one, and Hill tipped the rebound back to Kelly, who was then fouled and made two more to run it to 66-61 with 1:16 to go.

After another JMU basket, Kelly was called for charging with 27 seconds left, but Kennard Winchester lost the ball out of bounds two seconds later.

Hill hit two more at the line with 19 seconds to go and Winchester dunked it with four seconds left to cut it to three.

The Dukes called time out with three seconds to go, but the Pirates were successful in getting the ball in and protecting it for the final three seconds.

Hill finished the game with 24 points while Lose had 15. Madison was led by Winchester with 16 while Glenn added 12.

The victory boosted the Pirate record to 5-7 overall and 1-1 in the CAA. JMU falls to 4-8 and 1-1.

The Pirates shot 47.7 percent from the field while the Duke made only 38.5 percent, including only a two-for-17 effort in the 3-point zone.

JMU Pressure Foils ECU Hopes

By TOM MORRIS

James Madison put on the defensive pressure early and East Carolina wilted from the opening tip as the Lady Dukes rolled to a 88-51 romp Monday night in Colonial Athletic Association women's basketball action.

The Lady Dukes jumped out to a quick 15-0 lead and the Pirates never recovered.

"They played pressure defense and denied the ball very well," said East Carolina coach Pat Pierson. "Nobody wanted to take a shot. I think we had a tough time getting into our offense."

JMU's Missy Dudley opened the scoring with a jumper to make it 2-0. After a miss by ECU's Sandra Grace, the Lady Dukes quickly pushed the ball back downcourt and went ahead 4-0 on an inside shot by Alisa Harris, who would finish as the game's high scorer with 24 points.

JMU's Donna Budd came up with a steal, drew a foul off the fast break and canned two free throws for a 6-0 lead.

After another turnover by ECU, Dudley cashed in with a 3-point basket to make it 9-0.

Three straight turnovers by ECU were turned into points by the Lady Dukes as Paula Shuler hit from the outside to make it 11-0, Sydney Beasley hit two free throws to make it 13-0 and Dudley finished off the final miscue with a drive to make it 15-0.

Chris O'Connor finally broke the ice for the Lady Pirates, hitting two free throws with 14:00 minutes remaining.

"When you shoot well, it cures a lot of ills," said JMU coach Sheila Morrison. "That first half, we played about as well as we can play."

"In our scouting report, we thought that they were more confident against a zone so we wanted to put extra pressure on them, extend it to three-quarters of the court."

The strategy worked. ECU continued to sputter on offense in the first half, as the Lady Pirates hit on only 29 percent of their field goals while the Lady Dukes connected on 53 percent of their attempts from the field.

ECU pulled within 22-8 on baskets by Monique Pompili, Gretta Savage and Sandra Grace, but JMU quickly

Underdogs Come Through To Score Upset Victories

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma's high-scoring offense was stopped cold by Louisiana State and last year's NCAA basketball finalists, Indiana and Syracuse, felt the cold hand of defeat as the abbreviated college schedule was spiced by upsets.

LSU held Oklahoma's No. 3 Sooners 40 points below their season average in an 84-77 victory Monday night at New Orleans, while unranked Villanova cut down No. 9 Syracuse 80-78 at Philadelphia and unheralded Northwestern got No. 15 Indiana on its Evanston, Ill., home court and upended the defending national champions 66-64.

In other games involving ranked teams, sixth-ranked Pittsburgh routed Duquesne 85-58 and No. 17 Iowa romped past Lafayette 109-68.

LSU Coach Dale Brown said it was his "freak" defense that led to the upset of third-ranked Oklahoma, although Sooner Coach Billy Tubbs reacted to that by saying, "I didn't see anything different out there tonight. Maybe we're just not smart enough to get freaked out."

Tubbs also said Brown did a good job of

Fenner Returns To The UNC Campus

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Former North Carolina football player Derrick Fenner returned to the Chapel Hill campus Monday on the first day of registration for the spring semester, but school officials it would be two weeks before the school made a decision on Fenner's academic status.

Fenner, 20, met with the university committee on problem admissions and extraordinary discipline situations, according to UNC-Chapel Hill Dean of Students Fred Schroeder. Schroeder told The Associated Press Monday night that he could not comment on Fenner's meeting with the panel, but he said the committee would announce its decision in two weeks.

Murder charges against Fenner were dismissed in late November. He was accused in the fatal shooting of a 19-year-old man at a Hyattsville, Md., apartment complex last May in what police called a "turf" war among rival drug factions.

Fenner still faces a trial Jan. 25 on handgun and cocaine possession charges in an unrelated incident last April.

Corchiani, Ferry Earn ACC Honors

GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina State guard Chris Corchiani, who came off the bench to spark the Wolfpack to a 70-61 win over Clemson, has been chosen the Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the week.

Corchiani, a native of Hiawah, Fla., scored 11 points against the Tigers, including a three-pointer with nine minutes left that tied the game at 54-54. He also handed out four assists and came up with two steals.

Corchiani was selected by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association, which earlier named Duke forward Danny Ferry as the conference player of the week.

Ferry, of Bowie, Md., scored 26 points, pulled down seven rebounds and had five assists in Duke's 101-70 victory over William & Mary. Ferry hit 10-of-13 from the field and scored 23 points in the Blue Devils' 107-69 victory over Miami, Fla. He also grabbed eight rebounds.

Ferry, a 6-foot-10, 230-pound junior, finished the week with a career-high 29 points in Duke's 77-59 victory over Virginia. He also had nine rebounds and five assists.

For the week, Ferry was 31-of-43 from the field, 10-of-11 from the free throw line and had 12 assists.

Seahawks Edge Patriots In CAA Play

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Antonio Howard hit an 18-foot jumper with 1:58 left Monday to give North Carolina-Wilmington the lead for good as the Seahawks took a 69-66 Colonial Athletic Conference victory over George Mason.

It was the first time in 56 games that George Mason's Kenny Sanders did not score in double figures. Sanders missed 7 of 9 shots in the first half and scored only two free throws thereafter to finish with 7 points.

Howard's jumper gave North Carolina-Wilmington a 67-66 lead and the Seahawks held the Patriots scoreless the rest of the way to win their first road game of the year after five losses.

Mark Gary's two free throws with 26 seconds left accounted for the final score, and the Patriots missed two three-point shots in the closing seconds.

Larry Houzer led the Seahawks with 22 points and Howard added 15. The victory improved North Carolina-Wilmington's record to 5-6 overall and 1-1 in the CAA.

George Mason, which did not score in the final 2:24, got 14 points from Steve Smith and 13 from Robert Dykes.

The setback dropped the Patriots to 7-5 and 1-1.

George Mason closed the first half with a 14-1 run to turn a 35-30 deficit into a 44-36 advantage. Brian Miller, who had 11 points in the half, hit two straight three-pointers in the surge.

The Patriots, getting three baskets from Dykes, increased the margin to 12 points early in the second half before the Seahawks began to mount their comeback.

A basket by Houzer ignited a 19-6 spree that gave North Carolina-Wilmington a 61-60 lead with six minutes left. A three-point play by Howard capped the rally, while the Patriots could muster only one field goal.

Gamecocks Fire Offensive Coordinator

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Frank Sadler, offensive coordinator for the South Carolina football team for the past five years, has been fired, the university said Monday.

"After evaluating our offensive situation, we felt that we needed to make a change in our offensive direction. We wish Frank Sadler and his family well," Coach Joe Morrison said.

Morrison brought Sadler with him from the University of New Mexico, where he was Morrison's offensive coordinator in 1982.

Sadler, 51, has been a college coach for 11 years. He also was offensive coordinator at Tennessee-Chattanooga from 1977-1981, with the first three seasons under Morrison.

"I am disappointed, but I wish the University of South Carolina great success. This came as great shock," Sadler said told WVOC-AM.

Sadler would not comment on why he was released.

Nance Continues Hot Play

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Phoenix Suns captain Larry Nance, the NBA's Player of the Month in December, just shrugs when asked why he seems to be on a mission lately to outplay more-heralded opposing forwards.

But Coach John Wetzel says he knows the reason and points to Monday night as a perfect example.

Nance scored 29 points and had three of the Suns' club-record nine blocked shots in the first half as Phoenix beat Denver 127-115 in one of only two games. In the other, it was Indiana 111, the Los Angeles Clippers 90. Tonight, it will be New York at Cleveland, Boston at Chicago, Philadelphia at Milwaukee and Golden State at the Los Angeles Lakers.

While helping snap his team's two-game losing streak, Nance also all but shut down Nuggets' forward Alex English in sending Denver to its third straight loss.

"Larry is doing it all out there," Wetzel said. "He's our captain and our leader and he's leading by example. He shut down (Philadelphia 76ers star forward Charles) Barkley here a couple games ago and he did a job on English this time. He played a great game."

English, the NBA's seventh-leading scorer with a 25.3-point average, was held to just two free throws by halftime and finished with 13 points before fouling out with 1:38 remaining. He was 5 of 14 from the field and also committed four turnovers.

"I don't think it was just me. Everybody was really into the game for us," Nance said with a shrug. "We just came out and made the big shots early. We've been struggling lately. Maybe, hopefully, this is the start of something good."

The Suns made 50 of their 89 field goals with Eddie Johnson scoring 24 points, including 14 in the fourth quarter to seal only the fifth victory in the last 17 meetings with Denver.

Nance had 20 of his points by halftime, 10 in each quarter.

Phoenix, which made 62 percent of its field goals to led 36-27 after the first period, closed out the half on a 10-0 run with Nance scoring four of the points for a 66-57 lead.

The Suns led 76-61 with 7:21 left in the third quarter, when Denver closed the gap to 96-89 on Michael Adams' 3-point basket with 30 seconds left and Mike Evans' jumper with one second remaining.

Johnson scored eight points in a 2:26 span — six coming in succession — to pad Phoenix' lead to 108-97 with 6:58 left.

Evans' third 3-point goal of the game, with 6:39 left, brought the Nuggets back to within 108-100, but they never got closer than eight again as both Johnson and Nance scored six points down the stretch.

"We just didn't have it," Denver Coach Doug Moe said. "We were hitting on only two cylinders. We were tired and weren't guarding anybody. Our game is defense, despite what people think."

"If we don't play any defense, there is no shot. Every team can shoot as good as we can ... in fact, better," Moe said. "We're a poor shooting team and we have to rely on making something happen defensively. Phoenix did a good job and they just shot the lights out on us."

Denver made 44 percent of its field goals, 42 of 96. The Nuggets are 8-14 this season when they shoot below 50 percent and 11-1 when they are over that mark.

"This was their seventh game on a 13-day road trip. They were tired and it was a factor," Wetzel said. "But we really needed to start winning some home games. We were only 7-7 at home going in. We have to get to the point where we are consistent at home."

Jay Humphries had 16 points and 10 of the Suns' 40 assists. Walter Davis and Alvan Adams added 14 points each and rookie Armon Gilliam 12 in his second NBA start.

Denver wasted a career-high 42 points from Jay Vincent — 25 coming in the second half and 11 in the fourth quarter.

Blair Rasmussen came off the bench to score 18 for the Nuggets while Evans had 15, Lafayette Lever 11 and Michael Adams 10.

Pacers 111, Clippers 90

John Long scored nine of his 19 points in the decisive third quarter as Indiana handed Los Angeles its 11th straight loss.

It was the 12th loss in 13 games for the Clippers, closing out a disastrous seven-game road trip against Eastern Conference opponents.

The Pacers stretched an eight-point halftime lead to a 15 points with a 9-2 run to open the third quarter, going up 59-44 on Long's foul shot after Benoit Benjamin was given a technical.

Indiana stretched the lead to 79-59 with 2:29 left in third, on two straight baskets by Long. The Clippers scored eight straight and cut it to 79-67 with 28 seconds left in the period on Earl Cureton's layin, but Indiana pulled away.

Indiana took its biggest lead, 101-74, on a Ron Anderson layin with 5:58 left.

Wayman Tisdale led the Pacers with 22 points. The Clippers' backcourt of Mike Woodson and Larry Drew scored 17 points each.

bounced back, scoring six straight points, keyed by a three-point play by Schuler, to take a 28-8 lead.

From there, ECU never really even mounted a challenge, going into the locker room down 41-18.

"Our overriding problem was we did not move with the ball," Pierson said. "They are a fine team but they are not that much better than us. Instead of playing to win, we played not to lose, no aggressiveness offensively or defensively."

"We've had a lot of injuries in our backcourt. Nobody we put at point guard felt comfortable. A lot of it probably falls to our inexperience in the backcourt."

Offensively, nothing worked for the Lady Pirates. Their poor shooting continued into the second half and they also had trouble hanging on to the ball, suffering through 21 turnovers, most of which were turned into points by the Lady Dukes at the other end.

Down by 25 at the half, the closest ECU would pull in the final 20 minutes was 23 points, following a jumper by Pompili with 18:59 remaining. JMU's lead hovered at 37 points the majority of the second half.

ECU, which was led by Savage and Grace with 10 points apiece, falls to 5-8 overall and 0-2 in the CAA. The Lady Pirates return to action Thursday at North Carolina A&T.

businessman, and began competing at the age of 5.

At age 8, she was the youngest ever to qualify and participate in a U.S. National Tournament.

Overton has progressed through a series of junior girls' championships and she represented the United States in 1986 in the World Cup Championships in London.

She was also the winner of the Junior World Cup Championship in Milan, Italy, in 1985.

Overton's water skiing travels take her all over the country and the world, and she said learning how to budget her time as been a key to her success.

"It's kind of gradually come about (from) when I was little," Overton said. "Everyday for practice, we had to drive down to the Pamlico River to practice, I'd do homework on the way down in the car (or) I'd do homework on the boat."

"School work is the most important thing, you have to have something to fall back on."

Overton said the award came about rather suddenly.

"They called me at school and did an interview and told me I was one of the ten finalists, five boys and five girls," she said. "That was the first official news."

"From what I've read and understand, it is one of the most prestigious awards a high school athlete could get. I was just honored to get it."

Actor Sylvester Stallone is scheduled to give out the awards

Hoosiers, Orange Upset ...

LSU's Jose Vargas scored 30 points and led a defense that held Oklahoma, 14-1, far below its 116-point average this season. LSU, 7-4, came in with a defense allowing just 41 points a game.
 "We have a lot of respect for LSU," said Oklahoma's Stacey King, who was held to 14 points, five below his average. "They've beaten a lot of good teams, even though they're not ranked. We know they were in the Final Eight last year and should have been in the Final Four."

Villanova 80, No. 9 Syracuse 78
 Mark Plansky scored 21 points and Tom Greis score 20 - eight-for-eight from the field and four-for-four from the free throw line - as the Wildcats ended the Orangemen's 10-game winning streak.

Villanova, 12-3 overall and 4-0 in the Big East, sent Syracuse to its second loss in 14 games and first in three Big East contests, despite 22 points from Sherman Douglas and 20 from Derrick Coleman.

Villanova, sparked by Plansky's two 3-point shots, ran off a 12-2 spurt to take a 70-59 lead with 7:31 left in the game. Syracuse came back on an 11-2 surge to close within 72-70 with 5:16 remaining, but that was as close as the Orangemen got.

Syracuse had a chance to pull it out when Villanova turned the ball over on an inbounds play with one second left. But a Syracuse pass was deflected out of bounds as time ran out.

Northwestern 66, No. 15 Indiana 64
 Terry Buford and Jeff Grose sank four free throws apiece over the final three minutes and Northwestern made all 21 of its second-half free throw attempts.

Indiana last held the lead at 61-58 after a pair of free throws by Dean Garrett. But Buford converted a pair of free throws with 2:51 left to pull Northwestern within 61-60. Garrett then picked up his fourth foul, sending Buford back to the line with 1:10 remaining. He sank both free throws to put Northwestern ahead 62-61.

Grose, who led the Wildcats with 18 points, then hit two free throws with 28 seconds left for a 64-61 lead. Indiana's Joe Hillman missed a 3-point attempt and fouled Grose, who sank the last two Wildcat free throws.

Northwestern went to 6-6 overall and 1-1 in the Big Ten, while Indiana, which got a team-high 22 points from Keith Smart, fell to 8-4 and 0-2.

No. 6 Pittsburgh 85, Duquesne 58
 Demetreus Gore scored 18 of his 21 points in the first half as Pittsburgh blew out to a 17-0 lead against city rival Duquesne. Gore scored eight consecutive points and Charles Smith had seven during the opening burst.

Smith finished with 17 points in limited playing time and Jerome Lane had 12 points as Pitt, 11-1, beat the Dukes for the ninth straight time.

Duquesne, 5-9, never got closer than eight points after Pitt opened a 22-2 lead on a Smith dunk with 13:46 remaining in the first half.

Brian Shanahan led Duquesne with 14 points.

No. 17. Iowa 109, Lafayette 68
 Ed Horton scored a career-high 22 points and B.J. Armstrong added 19 for Iowa. Those two combined to give Iowa, 10-4, an 11-0 lead and Lafayette never threatened.

Scot Lewis led Lafayette, 5-6, with 12 points. Jeff Moe added 13 for Iowa. Iowa's biggest lead of the game was 108-64 with 41 seconds to play.

Unranked Teams
 Jeff Wolf scored a career-high 32 points and Dan Wolf came up with a triple double as Rollins scored 100 points for the sixth straight game in defeating Merrimack 109-92. Wolf had 17 points, 10 rebounds and 10 assists for the Tars, who are averaging nearly 97 points per game and have a 12-2 start.

George Mason's Kenny Sanders failed to score a double figure for the first time in 56 games as North Carolina-Wilmington held him to seven points in a 69-66 victory. Sanders had only two free throws in the second half.

Greg Grant, a 5-foot-7 junior guard, scored 39 points to lead Division III Trenton State to a 105-101 victory over cross-town rival Division I Rider College. Trenton is now 9-1, while Rider slipped to 2-9.

Troy Bradford scored 29 points, including seven straight during a crucial second-half stretch, to lead Fairfield to a 71-59 Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference victory over Army.

John White scored 25 points, including nine in overtime, as Southern Mississippi survived a dramatic Kansas State rally for a 91-89 victory. Southern Mississippi, 9-2, led 80-74, with 12 seconds to play, but Kansas State, 7-4, charged back and sent the game into overtime on Fred McCoy's basket at the buzzer.

de had been crossed when the finesse succeeded.
 Declarer still needed more from the spade suit. He cashed the ace and West followed with the card he was known to hold, the queen. Now declarer had a choice of plays. He could either play for the 3-3 split or else finesse East for the ten. After some thought, he decided to treat West's queen as an honest card and finesse. The net result was that the defenders collected a spade and two club tricks in addition to the diamond ace, for down three!

U.N. Envoy Barred From Refugee Camp

GAZA CITY, Occupied Gaza Strip (AP) — A U.N. official sent to investigate living conditions for Palestinians in the occupied territories was barred from entering a refugee camp today, U.N. officials said.

Scattered unrest was reported in the West Bank, and stores were shut in Gaza City and in the Arab sector of Jerusalem in observance of a general strike that began Sunday. Rioting in the occupied lands has raged for five weeks.

The Arab-run Palestine Press Service, which monitor events in the occupied territories, said a Palestinian demonstrator was struck by a rubber bullet and a soldier hit by a rock during a clash in Hebron in the West Bank.

Also in Hebron, demonstrators smashed the window of an Israeli passenger bus, but no one was hurt, Israeli radio said.

The Press Service said soldiers used tear gas and rubber bullets to disperse demonstrators in the nearby village of Sair.

The U.N. official, Marrack Goulding, was refused entry to Jabalya camp in the Gaza Strip said Maher Nasser, a spokesman for the U.N. Relief and Works Agency. The camp has been the site of major unrest during the rioting.

He said Goulding, a U.N. deputy secretary general, "tried several entrances to the camp, but could not enter."

Israel Radio reported from Gaza that Goulding was kept out of Jabalya, but the military command said it had no knowledge of it. The radio said Goulding then traveled to Tel Aviv to meet with Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

At least 31 Arabs have been killed since unrest broke out Dec. 8 in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, which Israel seized in the 1967 Middle East war.

Two Jewish settlers were freed on bail Monday night several hours after they shot at a group of Palestinians, killing one teen-ager and wounding another.

An army investigation determined that Pinchas Wallerstein and Shai Ben Yosef fired in self-defense when the Palestinians threw rocks at them. Arab witnesses denied the Palestinians threw rocks and said the settlers opened fire when their car was blocked by burning tires.

Israel radio reported that Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Yosef Shapira, a right-wing Cabinet minister, intervened with Rabin and police commissioner David Krauss to release the two.

Swedes Will Share Zone With Soviets

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sweden today announced an agreement with the Soviet Union splitting commercial rights in a disputed zone of the Baltic Sea, ending 19 years of negotiations.

The accord was reached Monday in talks between Prime Minister Ingvar Carlsson and Soviet Premier Nikolai I. Rizhkov, who was making the Soviets' first high-level meeting to Sweden in 15 years.

"I'm very satisfied with the treaty. It is a good treaty from the Swedish point of view," Foreign Minister Sten Andersson said today after the agreement was approved by the Advisory Council on Foreign Affairs, a body comprised of Swedish government and opposition leaders.

"It's the first time that a small state in dispute with a superpower has reached such an advantageous result," Andersson told the state-run Swedish radio.

Carlsson told a news conference the accord gives Sweden the rights to 75 percent of the 8,390-square-mile zone, while the Soviets will get one-fourth.

The Soviets had demanded the line be drawn midway between the Soviet and Swedish coasts. Sweden said such a line would have fallen within a short distance of its island of Gotland, depriving fishermen on the island of a main source of income. The island also is a popular summer resort.

Andersson said the agreement also set fishing quotas in an area rich in salmon, cod and herring. Some experts believe it also may have exploitable oil deposits.

The dispute had been a sticking point in relations between the two countries since the negotiations began in 1969. A free-for-all existed in absence of an agreement, with fishermen from both countries working in the same waters without restriction.

Carlsson said he saw a shift in Soviet attitude during the negotiations over the last year, and said the willingness to compromise after two decades of talks was "a reflection of the new Soviet foreign policy" under Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

American Has Birthday In Prison

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — An American pilot shot down over Nicaragua spent his 58th birthday in jail today while his family awaited word on the government's plan to file charges against him and bring him to trial.

James Denby, a farmer from Carlinville, Ill., has been in custody since Dec. 6 when his small plane was shot down by Sandinista troops near the Costa Rican border. He has been accused of aiding the Nicaraguan rebels.

On Monday, his wife, Marie, arrived in Managua and told reporters she hoped to see her husband on his birthday. She carried with her birthday cards, a Bible, and greetings from Denby's friends back home. Mrs. Denby also said she wanted to see the government prosecutor about her husband's case.

Denby's brother, William Denby, said Monday from his hotel room in Managua that the government indicated they would read the charges against his brother within a few days.

William Denby, who came to Nicaragua last week, said he had been told by lawyers his brother would be charged with "illicit association to commit an act or gesture against the public security and illicit association to commit a gesture to subject the nation to foreign domination."

He said he did not know what the charges would be based on and that the lawyers would ask for time to prepare a defense. The charges, Denby said he had been told, carry a five- to 30-year jail term upon conviction.

Robert Swanson, an attorney for the family, told The Associated Press last month that Denby was innocent. He said his client inadvertently entered Nicaraguan airspace because of bad weather.

The lawyer also said that negatives found on Denby's Cessna 172 showed that Denby had helped the Sandinistas at his Costa Rican farm before they came to power. In July 1979, the Sandinistas ousted the Anastasio Somoza, ending a dynasty that had ruled Nicaragua for 42 years.

Defense Minister Humberto Ortega, in announcing the capture of Denby, said the government found "a big fish." He claimed Denby was linked to the Contra rebels, backed and trained by the United States to overthrow the Sandinistas.

William Denby said he saw his brother last Friday and said he "was fine, optimistic and upbeat."

The Sandinistas have not responded to a written request submitted by The Associated Press asking to speak with Denby.

The government has said Denby will be tried in the Anti-Somocista Popular Courts, tribunals set up after the revolution principally to try former members of Somoza's disbanded national guard.

Eugene Hasenfus of Marinette, Wis., the only survivor of a Contra supply plane shot down in October 1986, was tried in the popular courts and sentenced to 30 years in prison. He was pardoned after serving less than three months.

Canada, U.S. Sign Accord On Arctic

OTTAWA (AP) — The United States compromised on the issue of the Canadian Arctic but gave no ground on acid rain during wide-ranging talks between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Canadian officials.

Shultz and his Canadian counterpart, Joe Clark, on Monday signed an agreement on Arctic navigation, an extradition protocol and a counter-terrorism declaration.

Under the Arctic pact, the United States will have to seek Canadian consent before sending icebreakers through Arctic waters claimed by Canada.

But the two sides reserved their positions on Canada's formal claim of sovereignty over the icy waters, which include the Northwest Passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"We have basically agreed to disagree," Shultz told a news conference.

Canada claims the region, frozen most of the year and unnavigable, as its sovereign territory. Washington argues that it's in international waters.

West Germans Interrogate Suspect In Disco Bombing

BERLIN (AP) — Authorities today began interrogating a West German woman accused of bombing a West Berlin discotheque, hoping to clear up questions about suspected Libyan involvement in the terrorist attack.

The April 5, 1986, blast killed two American servicemen and led to a U.S. retaliatory attack against Libya that killed at least 100 people. However, West German officials have not directly linked the bombing to Libya.

Christina Gabriele Endrigkeit, 27, was arrested Monday in the northern port city of Luebeck and flown to West Berlin for questioning.

Volker Kaehne, West Berlin

Justice Department spokesman, said she also made a brief appearance in court, where officials read the formal arrest warrant.

"The interrogation has started, but we can't say more until it's finished," Kaehne told The Associated Press. He said the questioning of the woman by police and Justice Department officials could last several days.

Kaehne said Mrs. Endrigkeit is being investigated for murder in the bombing. Besides the two Americans, a Turkish woman was killed and 229 people were injured in the explosion at the La Belle discotheque. The nightclub was popular with American servicemen stationed in West Berlin.

The United States accused the Libyan regime of Col. Moammar Ghaddafi of complicity in the attack and 10 days later American warplanes raided the Libyan cities of Tripoli and Benghazi.

West Germany mentioned possible Syrian links with Arab terrorist attacks in West Berlin, but did not support the U.S. contention of Libyan involvement.

Kaehne had said Sunday that a warrant for Mrs. Endrigkeit's arrest was issued on Dec. 30.

Eight Crewmen Reported Missing After Iraqi Planes Attack Tanker

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraqi warplanes attacked a Singapore-flagged tanker and set it on fire overnight in the central Persian Gulf, and eight crewmen were reported missing, shipping sources said today.

Also today, President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt arrived in Qatar on a tour of gulf Arab states in quest of a common strategy toward Iranian threats.

On Monday night, Mubarak said in Kuwait he hoped Syrian mediation efforts "will succeed in putting an end to the Iran-Iraq war," despite Syria's deep hostility to the Egyptian government.

The raid on the 74,010-ton United Venture at about 11 p.m. was the second confirmed Iraqi air attack on ships off Iran's coast in 24 hours.

Shipping sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Iraqi jets hit the United Venture near Iran's Lavan Island oil terminal.

They said the ship, believed to have a Singaporean crew, was loaded with Iranian petroleum products and was heading south when attacked.

They said the fire was still burning this morning.

When Mubarak arrived in Qatar today he received a red carpet welcome, as he had on earlier stops in Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates and Kuwait.

The Emir of Qatar, Sheik Khalifa Bin Hamad Al-Thani, led a long line of royal family members, government leaders and senior diplomats to receive the Egyptian president when his jet landed at Doha International Airport.

Before leaving Kuwait earlier today, Mubarak held a second round of talks with his emir, Sheik Jaber Al-Ahmed Al-Sabah.

A Kuwaiti government spokesman said the talks were conducted "in an atmosphere of understanding" and "dealt with the gulf war, the Palestinian uprising (in the Israeli-occupied territories) and issues of mutual interest."

Iraq on Monday reported three air force raids on "large naval targets," meaning tankers, and said they had occurred along the Iranian coast on Sunday and Monday night. Only one of the raids was confirmed.

Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Unit in London said the 280,476-ton Iranian supertanker Khark 3 was hit at about 9 p.m. Sunday as it headed south after loading oil from Iran's Kharg Island terminal in the northern gulf.

TV Networks Cutting Back On Coverage In '88 Races

By LLOYD GROVE
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

The three major television networks last week established bureaus in the opening caucus state of Iowa, officially launching their 1988 presidential campaign. It will be a new kind of campaign for the austerity-prone network news divisions, based on the principle that less is more.

"It's no longer practical or really feasible to cover candidates in the traditional way of putting producers, correspondents and camera crews on every campaign," said CBS politics producer Richard M. Cohen. "This is an era of diminished resources."

"The reality of the industry today is that it's on a plateau," said ABC News vice president Robert Murphy. "We do not have unlimited funds. We have to operate within a fairly controlled budget."

By one estimate, each network will spend about $25 million, about half of what such coverage would have cost under the lavish standards of the past. But the networks argue that the news won't suffer and that viewers won't be less informed. Rather, the political reporting will be more "interpretive" and more "analytical," they say, and there will be just as much of it as before.

"I'm quite confident that financial restriction will not get in the way of good coverage," said executive producer Bill Wheatley of the "NBC Nightly News." And NBC News senior vice president Joe Angotti said, "Despite what everybody is saying, the amount of money I have available is about the same as I had in 1984," a number that he refused to disclose.

The networks have decided, initially at least, to employ a "zone" instead of the traditional "man-to-man" system of coverage. An off-air reporter is assigned to each of the seven Democratic and six Republican presidential candidates, but not the camera crew, correspondent and field producer who were de rigueur in campaigns past. Instead, teams based in Iowa and New Hampshire will intercept the candidates on the ground, and the networks will depend more than ever on footage from affiliate stations.

"The ability to rely on our affiliates for technical and editorial support is much different this time than before," said ABC's Murphy, citing improved technical skills and reporting.

Meanwhile, off-air reporters, said Cohen of CBS, "will be our eyes and ears, and, if something newsworthy happens, we will know it and get the tape from the affiliate. Of course, there is a risk that we're going to miss stuff."

Best Work

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Counterlife," Philip Roth's novel about the temptations of living an alternative lifestyle, was cited by the National Book Critics Circle as last year's best work of American fiction.

Roth's book was selected Monday over Tom Wolfe's first novel, "The Bonfire of the Vanities," as well as "Beloved" by Toni Morrison; "Crossing to Safety" by Wallace Stegner; and "The Age of Grief," a collection of stories by Jane Smiley.

That risk is very real. On Tuesday night's news programs, only ABC had footage of Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., in New Hampshire, reacting to an attack from Vice President George Bush. The other two networks, which had no crews with the senator, made do with a written statement from the Dole campaign.

"If there's no CBS affiliate or other friendly camera there, we're out of luck," Cohen said. "And if that happens too much, we're going to have to rethink what we're doing."

Still, Cohen and others see advantages to the new information order. "There will be far less formula campaign-stop coverage," he said. "We'll look much more at points of vulnerability of all the candidates on an issues level. I think we're going to try and impose our agenda on the coverage by dealing with issues and subjects that we choose to deal with instead of parroting the candidates."

Hal Bruno, director of political coverage for ABC, said there will no longer be a financial motive to put a candidate on the air. "There are so many people involved, we almost had to get stories on, even though they're not newsworthy," he said. "It's a compulsion: 'So-and-so hasn't been on for a week, so let's get him and his candidate on.'"

The campaigns are sorting through the implications of the network strategy. "We can't figure out if it's better or worse than times gone by," said John Buckley, press secretary to Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y.

But one campaign staff member, who asked not to be identified, lamented the demise of "the boys-on-the-bus factor."

"When reporters are assigned full-time to a campaign, they tend to treat you better," the staffer said. "Their success is hung on your star. They're people you go out with on the trail. And they're often kinder to you in their coverage. If they're doing zone coverage, that collegial atmosphere is diminished. They may be more objective — which is bad for us."

Bob Barker Quits Show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Miss Universe and Miss USA officials say they will find a replacement for animal rights activist Bob Barker, who is leaving a six-figure salary as host because the winners are given a fur coat.

"The pageants will continue with the same prize packages it has had for the past 12 years and as a result Mr. Barker will not be hosting the 1988 shows," pageant vice president Stacy Trachtman said Monday.

She said a new master of ceremonies will be picked within two weeks. Earlier Monday, Barker announced his decision to withdraw as host of the pageant and its affiliated Miss USA contest. He tied the decision to his last-minute threat not to appear at last year's Miss USA pageant because some contestants were required to wear furs.

"I've withdrawn from the Miss Universe and Miss USA beauty pageants after 21 years because of the fur giveaway," Barker said. "For years I have urged them to stop giving away a fur coat to the winner of the pageant. Last year, they promised me they wouldn't be giving away a fur coat. Now, I have been told that they are going to use a fur coat as an award on the March 1 (Miss USA) show from El Paso, Texas."
