Snow Returns To N.C. Coast

By The Associated Press
North Carolina's winter weather, which has claimed four more victims, returned in full force today, hitting the southeast coast with snow and sleet.

The National Weather Service posted a winter storm warning for Brunswick, New Hanover and Pender counties early today as snow and sleet fell as far inland as Robeson County.

Snow had accumulated to a depth of three inches in part of New Hanover County by mid-morning and was still falling. Less than an inch had been reported farther inland.

Some sleet also was reported early today in Onslow and Craven counties.

The deaths stemming from last week's statewide storm including an 8-year-old Reidsville girl who died after sliding under a moving truck while sled-riding down her driveway.

Elsewhere, a homeless Durham man died of exposure, a Scotland County man fell through an ice-covered pond and apparently drowned and a 85-year-old woman died of burns after her nightclothes were apparently ignited by an electric heater.

Emily Patterson Kinlaw died of massive injuries late Wednesday at Moses Cone Memorial Hospital in Greensboro. The driver of the four-wheel drive truck said he hit his brakes after the girl slid under his vehicle Tuesday, but could not avoid hitting her.

"I was so distraught," said Reidsville police Sgt. Giulio Dattero, who investigated the accident. "It's really hard to get it off your mind. She appeared to have hit her head on something on the bottom of the truck."

The girl was playing with two friends when the accident happened, neighbors said. The girls usually took turns watching for cars, Dattero said. This time, they forgot.

Plunging Trade Deficit Prompts Sharp Rises On Stock Markets

By TOM RAUM
AP Economics Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's foreign trade deficit narrowed a sharp 25 percent in November, to $13.2 billion, its best improvement in seven months, the government said today. Financial markets rallied on the report.

The $4.4 billion decline, produced by a $2.4 billion drop in imports and a $2 billion rise in exports to a record level, was far better than had been expected by most analysts and clearly cheered jittery financial markets.

The Dow Jones industrial average leaped 53 points in the first minutes of trading, with some of the heaviest buying reported since the October crash. The dollar surged in European markets.

The shortfall between imports and exports tumbled from the record $17.6 billion merchandise trade deficit reported by the Commerce Department for October.

The Reagan administration voiced immediate glee over the surprising good news.

"It is no longer accurate to say that we are on the verge of an export boom. We are already in the middle of one," said U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter.

Analysts predicted that the stock market and bond markets would also rally on the news.

"Last month we had a hurricane and this month is a breath of fresh air," said Jay Goldinger, an economist with Cantor, Fitzgerald, a Los Angeles bond house. "This is the best news we have had in the market in at least a year."

ECU-City Breakfasts May Become Scheduled Events

City and East Carolina University officials started off their day a little differently today, sharing coffee and danish at Mendenhall Student Center while discussing common goals and concerns.

Approximately 35 staff and department heads of both entities met at the university facility at 7:30 a.m., in a forum which some officials said may become a regular occurrence.

The breakfast was arranged by ECU Chancellor Richard Eakin who said he feels there should be a closer relationship between the city and university in formulating policies to deal with mutual growth.

"I see our cooperation as an essential ingredient in the growth and vitality of the community of Greenville and this session was most encouraging to me," Eakin said.

Eakin said he felt this morning's breakfast was very successful.

"I really wanted this to be a good kickoff to a long series of breakfasts between city and university officials," he said.

Citing the university's record spring enrollment, Eakin told those attending the breakfast that growth at ECU has created problems regarding the lack of parking.

In addition, Eakin said future increases in university enrollment will require additional instructional space and hinted the university was interested in obtaining the Rose High School property.

City Manager Greg Knowles agreed with Eakin that parking is a major problem and suggested the university consider vertical rather than horizontal expansion.

"Horizontal parking may have stretched its limits. You can't do everything on the ground, land is too scarce and valuable," he said.

"In the long run, we'd like to develop a parking plan which would benefit both the university and the city," he added.

Councilmember Mildred Council said she believes university buildings have limited accessibility to members of the community not affiliated with ECU.

Whitfield Seeks Seat On Board

Greenville native Carl E. Whitfield filed as a candidate for the Pitt County Board of Commissioners this morning.

Whitfield will run for the District 3 seat on the board, serving the Falkland, Fountain and Arthur townships. Bruce Strickland, a candidate for re-election, has represented the district since 1960.

A resident of Route 8, Greenville, Whitfield retired in 1981 as a community development specialist with the Governor's Highway Safety Program. He had been a member of the state Highway Patrol for 21 years before retiring in 1963 as a sergeant.

AVAir Inc., which operates as the American Eagle commuter service serving Pitt-Greenville and other airports in North Carolina, has suspended operations, the Daily Reflector was told early this afternoon.

Attempts to contact AVAir officials were unsuccessful.

But Jim Turcotte, manager at Pitt-Greenville Airport, confirmed that there have been no American Eagle flights into the airport today. And Turcotte said local American Eagle ticket agents told him that flights by the airline have been suspended indefinitely.

Jones Files

Rep. Walter B. Jones of Farmville filed with the State Board of Elections this morning as a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. House of Representatives.

Jones will be seeking his 13th consecutive term in Congress.

"It has been a high honor and privilege to represent the people of the great 1st Congressional District over the past years," Jones said. "I have at all times attempted to reflect the convictions and feelings of those that I represent and provide that type of representation which the citizens of the 1st District richly deserve and have every right to expect."

Jones said he plans to campaign on his record of service to his constituents and his voting record in Congress.

He emphasized his seniority, which gives him the chairmanship of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, and makes him ranking member of the House Agriculture Committee.

An amendment to the General Budget appropriating $17,110 for the purchase of additional computer resources was unanimously approved by the Greenville City Council Thursday night.

Included in the $17,110 appropriation are plans to purchase five personal computers, four dot-matrix printers, various software packages and a graphics plotter, which produces charts and graphs.

The equipment is earmarked for the offices of the mayor and City Council, city clerk, public works, city manager, finance-data processing and finance-accounting.

Task Force Scans 'Assumptions'

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer
Standing on the belief that every child can be taught regardless of his socio-economic background, Rose High Principal Pat Austin led the Minority Task Force of the Pitt County schools through 10 assumptions of black students during its meeting Thursday night.

"I think every child can be taught, folks, and if you don't accept that, we have a fundamental difference," he said. "Every child is capable of learning some things ... God don't make no junk."

Austin, who is interning with Superintendent Eddie West, researched the 10 assumptions compiled by black educators and others as local perceptions of black students. Looking at 10 to 12 years of research, Austin said he did not seek to prove or disprove them, but rather to ask, "If this is the case, what can we do about them?"

The assumptions suggest black students 1) lack academic aptitude and/or motivation to pursue academic course, 2) are not in the mainstream of student life and accomplishments in the broadest sense,

3) do not have active and positive parental support, 4) have different value systems from their white counterparts, 5) experience low self-esteem, 6) possess a low level sense of allegiance to the schools they attend, 7) do not demonstrate that they feel their schools to be integral parts of the larger community, 8) are not bonded to their social and educational environment, 9) are "short changed" educationally by many of their teachers and some of their principals, and 10) feel a sense of alienation toward the schools they attend.

For each assumption, Austin reviewed articles found through his research that address or attempt to answer the question of, "What can we do?"

He suggested part of the answer lies in five qualities of an effective school as presented through articles by the late Ron Edmonds, a former Michigan State University professor.

Edmonds suggested effective schools have strong instructional leadership of principals, have clear instructional focus, have a positive

Refuge Will Be Expanded

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C., said today the Alligator River National Wildlife Refuge in Dare County will be nearly 10,000 acres larger, thanks to a purchase by the North Carolina Nature Conservancy.

Jones said the conservancy has purchased the land from the Prudential Insurance Co. and will, in turn, sell it to the federal government.

Federal participation in the acquisition was made possible by a $4 million congressional appropriation, according to Jones, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, which has jurisdiction over national wildlife refuges.

"Today marks the end of a long effort to ensure the physical integrity of the Alligator River National Wildlife Refuge," Jones said. "The purchase of this acreage assures that the refuge will provide the vital habitat needed to attract migratory geese and ducks as well as small game necessary to sustain a full and balanced ecosystem."

The land purchase brings the total acreage protected at the refuge to 137,411.

School Foundation Agrees To Eliminate Membership

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Educational Foundation agreed to eliminate membership and have only a board of directors during its meeting Thursday.

The board changed its bylaws because of the difficulty in having a quorum of members available to conduct business. "It's very unlikely that we'll get a quorum of our members at an annual meeting," Kenneth Dews, chairman of the board, said.

The foundation, with only about 72 members, was not monetarily supported through the memberships, coordinator Betty Speir said.

The board also approved an itemized account of the way funds from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation will be spent.

The Reynolds Foundation has allotted $15,000 for the Pitt County foundation to be used in establishing itself through operations and programs, Ms. Speir said. The Reynolds foundation will not allow the funds to be used as an endowment.

The Reynolds donation will be used to purchase a word processor, printer, software and monitor for the foundation in addition to a spread sheet for record keeping and a camera to record foundation events.

Other areas the funds will be used include printing, supplies and postage, travel, volunteer recognition and a systemwide mini-grant.

The board also was briefed on endowments and donations received since its last meeting. In addition to the Reynolds foundation, those contributing to the foundation include the Guy and Erskine Love Foundation, Procter & Gamble, Hastings Ford, Carolina Telephone and Telegraph and Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co.

"It's a tremendous start," Dr. Eddie West, superintendent of Pitt County schools, said. Echoing those comments, Dews said much interest has been generated in the community about the foundation.

"Each time I go into any school, I have questions about this. ... I feel real good about it as this point," he said.

The board also discussed the community roasts held in attendance areas and other ways of generating support through the community, such as displaying countywide talent among students in a performance.

"It would strengthen our system in terms of coming together as one," Dews said.

Woman Admits Bombing Plane

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A young woman confessed today she was a communist North Korean agent who helped destroy a South Korean jetliner, killing all 115 people aboard. She said the action was meant to disrupt the 1988 Olympic Games.

Kim Hyon Hui told a nationally televised news conference that she and a male companion placed powerful bombs on a Korean Air plane that was destroyed Nov. 29 over the Andaman Sea near Burma.

"It is natural that I should be punished and killed a hundred times for my sin," the 25-year-old woman said in a barely audible voice.

Ms. Kim said she was ordered to destroy the plane by Kim Jong Il, son and heir of top North Korean leader Kim Il Sung, to scare other nations into staying away from the games, to be held in Seoul in September.

She said she tried to conceal her identity under interrogation to protect Kim Jong Il, who she called "dear leader," and that she took a personal oath of loyalty to him.

"I had denied being involved in the incident to keep secret the authority of the dear leader," she said, during the news conference arranged by the Agency for National Security Planning.

The South Korean government issued a statement demanding that North Korea apologize for the "barbarous" destruction of the plane and punish those involved in the plot.

Defense Minister Chung Ho-yong ordered all military units on alert, saying North Korea could stage a military provocation after Ms. Kim's confession. He said the government was studying possible retaliatory measures, but gave no details.

"Our army is issuing a stern warning against North Korean military authorities and at the same time we, along with our people, denounce North Korea's barbarous act," he said.

Other government officials, who demanded anonymity, said Chung's statement was a warning to the north against further plots and it was unlikely the south would take any military action.

In Washington, the U.S. State Department said in a statement today that even before Ms. Kim's televised confession, "there was considerable evidence linking North Korea to the disappearance of KAL 858. We are assessing all the evidence."

"North Korea's involvement in the destruction of KAL 858 would earn it ... condemnation," the statement said.

North Korea, which has been demanding to co-host the games, has denied any involvement in the disappearance of the plane.

Governor Apologizes

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Gov. Evan Mecham today apologized to Arizonans for any embarrassment he has caused the state, and a newspaper said a legislative special counsel would report there are grounds for impeaching the governor.

Mecham's letter was given to The Arizona Republic and published on the front page of today's early editions.

"I apologize to the people of Arizona for any of my actions or mistakes which may have sparked embarrassing publicity for our state," the letter said. "I have been well-intentioned, but I now know that I may have been the cause of legitimate concerns."

On Thursday, Mecham and his brother, Willard Mecham, who was his 1986 campaign treasurer, were fingerprinted, photographed and booked on felony charges in connection with the failure to report a $350,000 campaign loan.

Mecham, reached by telephone Thursday night at home, said he didn't plan to watch today's live telecast of House special counsel William French's report on the loan and other matters. He said he had "no thoughts" about it.

"We'll have a report (from Mecham's attorney Murray Miller) and then it'll be our turn to talk," Mecham said, adding that he probably would not comment personally today.

leaders had hoped to convert into a shelter for the homeless.

Durham police said the body of a man they characterized as a street person was found Thursday morning behind Carolina Distributing Co. Officers said the man, identified as Clarence Edwards, 42, apparently died of exposure.

Officer B.J. Council said Edwards was known to officers as one of the regulars who congregate and live in make-shift shelters behind Carolina Distributors. He had stayed recently at the Urban Ministries shelter, she said.

"The guys ride through there to check on them and tell them to get to a shelter," Ms. Council said. "But they can't force them to leave."

Thursday night's official low, recorded at Raleigh-Durham Airport, was 20 degrees.

In Scotland County, rescuers discovered the body of Steve Edward Walters, 17, who fell through ice on a farm pond Wednesday.

The man apparently drowned when he and another man fell through ice while walking on the frozen private pond three miles west of Wagram.

The other man, Jessie Todd Boyd, about 20, managed to free himself and was taken to Scotland Memorial Hospital in Laurinburg.

In Henderson, Elevena Burton Gray, 85, died Wednesday of burns suffered when her nightclothes were apparently ignited by an electric heater.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Impact Overlooked

The Brady report on the Oct. 19 stock market crash was a thorough document that outlined important shortfalls in the trading system but failed to put enough emphasis on the role of the nation's economy in precipitating the crisis.

The report touched on, but perhaps didn't stress enough, the nation's economic conditions and how concern for that climate caused stock traders to dump their holdings. There is no question that the huge trade deficit and the federal budget deficit coupled with the national debt contributed to the investing community's nervousness which led to the market slide. Certainly if investment problems are going to be alleviated those are conditions which will have to be addressed.

Neither does President Ronald Reagan's handling of the issue accurately assess the economy's impact. His reaction has been to claim trading system abuses played a greater part in the crash than the economy, an unsubstantiated position.

In addition, Reagan's recent public comments have not helped public confidence in the economy. Reagan said if recession comes, it will be because the media has paid so much attention to the subject. The president is clearly ignoring the implications of his economic policies.

The Brady report calls for "circuit breaker" limits, or coordinated trading halts, on price movements of stocks, bonds and futures.

The report also said a body should be created to oversee a number of markets which are presently under varied jurisdictions. It also recommended consistent margin requirements for futures and stocks.

Clearly, there is the opportunity for abuses in the trading system and the document spells out guidelines for prevention of future stock market crashes. Specific legislation would have to be carefully developed and possibly written into law.

The report indicated computer selling contributed to the stock market's quick downside; yet computers are part of modern transactions and much thought will have to be given to reducing the hazards of that tool.

There will have to be changes in the way commodity trading is regulated. They will have to be changes that pay heavy attention to the fact that investing is a risk-taking situation. Money will be made and lost in stocks because it is that kind of market. For the public the thrust must be to avoid the kinds of stock selling panics that can drag the entire nation down economically.

But the impact of government inaction on trade deficits and budget deficits on Wall Street must also be duly noted. Presidential jawboning won't cause that major factor to disappear.

Evaluation Time

Pitt County had its first major snow since 1980 last week — and how did the snow removal proceed?

Not so bad given the limited amount of snow removal equipment available.

The assessment of the cleanup must start by recognizing that capital outlay for snow plows is not feasible in an area that sees major snows so infrequently. Thus snow removal crews have to rely on trucks equipped with front end blades, heavy road graders, front end loaders and even shovel power to get up the snow.

According to plan, the main highways and thoroughfares are cleared first to allow the bulk of the traffic to make its way to a destination. Residential streets and rural roads wait, usually until the thaw sets in.

Sanding is a major task and crews move quickly to spread sand on bridges, which freeze first, and on dangerous curves. All of this is done according to prior planning.

The community survived this snow with many fender benders but few major problems. Now is the time for city and N.C. Department of Transportation personnel to assess their performance and determine if changes should be made for the future. Given the cold weather and high precipitation of this winter, more snows are possible.

Officials should consider whether the highest priority thoroughfares received the most prompt attention. Looking at traffic accident figures for specific intersections may tell us whether those points need extra attention in the event of future snows.

How about sidewalks? Should they be cleared in heavy pedestrian areas?

Extensive planning is done for snow removal. The real test comes when the plan is actually put into effect. It is only after the plan has been carried out that its effectiveness can be evaluated and adjustments made for the future.

Different 'Monkeys' For Front Runners

WASHINGTON (AP) — What do Donna Rice and the Ayatollah have in common?

Don't ask. Gary Hart and George Bush, embarked on a perilous journey through the wintry reaches of Iowa and New Hampshire, have been ducking some key questions about the crises that have embroiled their presidential candidacies.

Vice President Bush's first campaign swing of 1988 was overwhelmed last week by confusion over his role in the administration's arms sales to Iran, and he is being taunted by his Republican rivals to answer all questions.

On the Democratic side, Hart remained adamant, ducking all Donna Rice queries with one variation or another of the phrase, "It's nobody's business."

But his resolve, like Bush's, appeared to be weakening under the New Year's intense political spotlight.

"If I am elected, I won't be the first adulterer in the White House," he told the Des Moines Register in a sometimes-emotional interview Sunday. But he still did not discuss the matter directly.

In declining to discuss his judgment in seeing Rice (Hart never uses her name; he refers to his "mistake," Hart says the Monkey Business episode pales in comparison to Bush's problem with the Ayatollah and more mundane matters such as the federal debt.

"I would love to run in a race

'For months now, Bush has declined to discuss his advice to the president regarding the sale of arms to Iran. His silence fueled speculation that despite his gold-plated experience in national security posts, Bush contributed nothing to the most crucial debate of the Reagan years.'

against Vice President Bush on just that issue — whether my personal and human mistake is on the same scale as the mistakes of the last seven years," Hart says.

And he adds: "I won't be the first adulterer in the White House."

For months now, Bush — citing the confidential nature of his relationship with President Reagan — has declined to discuss his advice to the president regarding the sale of arms to Iran. His silence fueled speculation that despite his gold-plated experience in national security posts, Bush contributed nothing to the most crucial debate of the Reagan years.

His GOP opponents predictably pressed Bush over the weekend.

"He's not going to violate national security if he tells us" his advice to Reagan, said Rep. Jack Kemp of New York. Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas called for Bush to release "all the data" involving his role in Iran-Contra deliberations.

Just last month, Bush declared point-blank, "If the price for my winning the election is that I have to go out and violate that confidence, I'm not going to pay the price." Despite the bravado, Bush may be changing his tune.

Whereas on Thursday he said, "I will answer any question put to me by the special prosecutor," but beyond that, "I can't talk about it," on Saturday he said he'd be "glad to" release his notes and documents on Iran-Contra and added, "I'm perfectly willing to answer any questions."

With the Feb. 8 Iowa caucuses looming, Bush needs to clear the air so voters will pay attention to his campaign themes. For now, he is being pressed about the arm sales every day.

"I have no regrets about erring on the side of human life," he said at one point. "I think the American people identify with that."

Whether voters will see selling arms to Iran as "erring on the side of human life" is another matter, and the explanation contradicts the president's most recent rationale that the arms sales were not an effort to buy the release of American hostages in Lebanon but rather an effort to win friends among the possible successors to Ayatollah Khomeini.

Hart also would like to focus on look-to-the-future campaign themes, but the former Colorado senator also must fend off the inevitable. A viewer called the Larry King talk show last week and essentially asked Hart, how could you do a thing like that to your wonderful wife?

Hart did not rise to the bait.

"If my wife thinks I've been lying to her, she can take it up with me," Hart said. "She's actively campaigning for me and believes strongly in this candidacy, so I don't think this caller has the right to interpose himself in my wife's defense."

Perhaps his most imaginative response came when Hart was asked about the Donna Rice contretemps on the McNeil-Lehrer report. "It's no one else's business," he said, "It hasn't been the business of the American public for 200 years and it isn't today."

Lehrer: "You don't speak to the question of judgment...."

Hart: "Well Jim — if I may call you Jim?"

Lehrer: "You may."

Hart: "Let's reverse the logic.... Does it suggest because Ronald Reagan used poor judgment on Iran-Contra, that therefore he's unfaithful to his wife?"

The year has just begun. Reluctant or not, voters are sure to hear more from Hart and Bush on both questions, unfaithfulness and the Iran-Contra affair.

Everything Is Mush In Iowa

Let's be fair. If the candidates for president seem a bit lackluster, it may be because of where they are, not who they are. After six months in Iowa, anybody would seem, well, sort of faded. In the middle of winter even the natives grow dim.

Maybe you saw the recent television clip of Bruce Babbitt, who used to stand tall and handsome against the rugged landscape of his native Arizona. He was delivering a speech inside a diner to three men, a waitress, a 5-year-old boy and a St. Bernard. Two of the men were playing checkers and didn't look up from their board. The waitress, transfixed by the TV lights, stood dazed with a full pot of coffee in her hands. The boy and the dog listened appreciatively. But Babbitt wasn't up to form. He appeared to have a cold, and in the low-ceilinged diner he hunched his shoulders. He didn't look very presidential.

It is very, very difficult for candidates to look interesting in Iowa, because there isn't anything interesting to do there. They visit farms and pick up squealing piglets, squelch about in mud (or worse) and sample casseroles at church suppers. None of this looks especially heroic on videotape.

If I had been on Babbitt's staff I would have advised him to ride a stationary bike across Iowa. He could have mounted the machine on a flatbed truck and, when coming to a hill, adjusted the resistance of the pedals accordingly. News photographers riding on the truck could have taken countless pictures of him against scenic backdrops of fields, barns and every Main Street from Onawa to Dubuque. This would have been a truly novel approach to campaigning, and it would have earned Babbitt the admiration of dieters from coast to coast.

In Iowa big mistakes can pass for peccadilloes. If, instead of sailing to Bimini with Donna Rice, Gary Hart had driven to Davenport with her in an RV, he would have earned no more than a snicker. He could have said that he brought her along to do the driving while he snoozed in the back. Nobody would have believed him, but the indiscretion would not have exploded in his face.

For those of us who do not have would-be presidents interrupting our lunches, checker games and church socials, a few basic facts should be kept in mind as we watch television coverage of the benighted men now trying to sell themselves to Iowans as plausible leaders of the Free World. First of all, no one sounds eloquent when speaking into a high-school auditorium microphone. Second, it is almost impossible to inspire an audience that is eating corn dogs. Third, most of those people you see in the background on the news are not Iowans but reporters, demographers, consultants and pollsters who have been in Iowa long enough to be comfortable in a John Deere cap; real Iowans know better than to stand around in ankle-high slush (or worse).

The candidates could make their pitches just as well in a warm hotel conference room, but consider how much more entertaining it is to watch a presidential aspirant with a runny nose pull up to a high-school gym after a two-hour drive down an ice-crusted interstate. Waiting are a few dozen kids too young to vote and twice as many TV crews and print reporters fresh from New York. The first question is not about farm policy or the national debt. It is: "What do you think about polls showing that you are 19 points behind Gary Hart, 10 points behind Paul Simon and 6 points down from Albert Gore (who isn't even campaigning in Iowa, bright fellow), and that 90 percent of the registered voters in this state still believe that you are a character invented by Sinclair Lewis?"

That will test all sorts of statesmanlike virtues as riding a bicycle across Iowa after a Spam lunch never could. But as a measure of presidential fitness it doesn't beat the old smoke-filled room.

Strength For Today

The head of the minority party in English Parliament is paid a special salary as leader of His Majesty's Loyal Opposition. The British believe that every party in power needs a well-organized opposition as a moderating influence.

The Prime Minister and her associates often arise, in Parliament, their faces flushed with anger, and hurl epithets at the opposition. But this opposition is good for the British government, and for all government. Moreover, it is good for us in our daily lives to encounter opposition which makes us stop, look and listen.

If we could have our own way, we would always choose the broad, easy pathways which might lead to a precipice. But fortunately opposition may come on the job, or socially, or even in our families. It's hard to take, but it's good for us.

Why The Soviets' Technology Plans Don't Compute

Mikhail Gorbachev's ambitious plans to use technology to modernize the Soviet economy may be doomed not simply by conservative political opposition, but also by the cumbersome way the economy is managed.

In some technological areas the Soviets have a strong position; in others, they lag far behind the West. But in almost every case the relative level of nearly all technologies is far ahead of their application.

With its perverse system of economic incentives and planning, the Soviet Union has a very hard time managing the technology that it does possess.

In the West, computers have been used to automate factories, control manufacturing and distribution, formulate business strategies, determine prices and reduce inventory. The best western managers, with the help of computers, try to maximize efficiency and production from the lowest to the highest level of a particular enterprise. Such is the definition of success.

Life for the Soviet manager could not be more different. His job is much more limited than that of his western counterpart. His job is to take the inputs assigned him by planners and then produce the maximum amount of output. It's that simple. Make more — that's the credo.

The Soviet manager has no incentive to reduce inputs. Since he does not pay for his inventory, he always wants to maximize inventory, no matter what. Further, he has no incentive to share information with his superiors or his customers and suppliers.

Indeed, the manager has no interest at all in showing his bosses how easily or quickly he has fulfilled his goal, for that will only mean a tougher set of goals the following year.

Finally, the Soviet manager has no opportunity to use computers for business strategy. He is not involved in such matters. Prices, customers, production — all those decisions are made in Moscow by central planners.

All of these "barriers" would exist even if innovation were widespread and the technology came for free. But, of course, that is not the case. Once more a comparison of the two systems explains a great deal.

Analysis

In the West, high-tech firms keep in close touch with their customers to see what they need, what's working and what isn't. This information feeds immediately back to the product developers. If the marketers fail to communicate their customers' needs, there are always competitors who will step into the picture.

Further, in the West there is great division of labor among companies. Because there are so many small companies trying to meet the various needs of a wide range of customers, decisions are quick, development rapid.

None of these conditions holds in the Soviet Union. In most cases there is a single source for a given technology. A lead research institute works in a given field and that institute is held responsible for the entire range of products needed.

Since the institutes are reasonably free to work on what they wish rather than satisfy the demands of specific customers, the customer has little leverage over the institutes.

Say an institute wants to develop a new automated tractor-production process. First, it must reflect that in next year's plan, then test it out at one or two factories and finally disseminate it through the industry. When this systemic clumsiness is taken together with the conservatism of the technical decision-makers, the formula is one for a very slow rate of innovation.

So far, these systemic problems have cost the Soviet Union relatively little compared to what it might cost in the future.

At present the Soviets are doing rather well in automating the production process, but the gains are limited. Enterprises are still inflexible and lacking in coherent strategy.

The difficulties of applying computer technology to change the course of an enterprise are profound. To develop several alternatives in parallel is costly. Heavy bets are often made on losers.

Soviet planners have adjusted to the realities of their system, and even under Gorbachev, they delegate little authority.

The system is the problem. Given the changes announced by Gorbachev last June, this situation may change. They may solve some of their problems, but they are not there yet.

The Soviets are succeeding now in areas which are amenable to centralized planning, projects that require perseverance more than flexibility. For instance, in the space race, the Soviet tortoise is outrunning the American hare.

They are doing well, too, in mechanical areas — such as metallurgy — and theoretical fields — such as applied mathematics, guidance systems and rocket propulsion. In other words, areas that do not lead to rapid technical obsolescence or require very fine, high-quality volume production.

These patterns of Soviet success resemble the western European orientation toward technology which involves a large theoretical content. They contrast with the Japanese penchant for high-volume, low-cost, high-quality manufacture, and the American gift for very high technology, semi-customized, expensive solutions to difficult, one-of-a-kind problems.

Nevertheless, for all the reasons mentioned earlier, the Soviets face an uphill battle in precisely those areas of technology which are so important to economic progress.

Will this change? I am pessimistic for the Soviets. They can probably improve their technology if they will invest the massive resources required. However, they will first have to change their system before modernization through technology will make much sense.

School Boy Steals Show As States Debate Paper Plant's River Pollution

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer
ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin and other elected officials topped the list of speakers at a hearing on a wastewater discharge permit for Champion International's Canton paper mill, but an 11-year-old Enka boy drew the loudest applause of the day.

Andy Plemmons of Enka Middle School told officials of the Environmental Protection Agency his sixth grade science project proved the Pigeon River is not poisoned by discharges from the paper mill.

Over a four-month period, plants watered with river water grew just as well as others, he said, and fish in water taken just below the Canton mill outlived fish in tap water.

Thousands in the audience roared their approval and jumped to their feet to applaud the boy, who had to stand on a plastic milk crate to reach the podium microphone.

Martin, Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and other speakers at the public hearing said EPA requirements that Champion lighten the color of its discharge were unattainable and could force the mill to close.

The EPA permit requires Champion's discharge to be around 50 color units — the color of ginger ale. The mill's current emissions are about 800 units — the color of coffee.

"I want to make it clear that I am firmly opposed to the 50 color unit requirements," Martin said to cheers from the crowd.

He said the regulations could cost

2,200 jobs and are "arbitrary, excessive, unduly harsh and unattainable, and therefore unjustified."

In May 1985, North Carolina officials issued a permit to the company but the federal EPA, prodded by Tennessee officials, last year issued the draft permit which calls for the reduction in the amount of coloration, chloroform, and toxicity of its discharge.

Martin said he would tell Tennessee state officials Friday that Champion was doing all it could to clean up the Pigeon River.

"If you're doing all that you can, there's no room for compromise," Martin said in an interview. "They are doing the best anyone can do and we're hoping that Tennessee officials will recognize that."

Environmentalists declined to speak at the hearing, apparently because of the large ranks of Champion supporters who were bused to the arena by the company. However, at a news conference prior to the hearing, spokesmen for several environmental groups stressed that they were not trying to close the 80-year-old mill.

Millie Buchanan of the Clean Water Fund said the discharge violates clean water laws primarily because of a bleaching process the company uses to turn brown wood pulp into white paper.

"Forty percent of the output of the Canton mill is bleached paperboard for use in milk and juice cartons," she said. "One single switch — from white paperboard to brown paperboard — could eliminate a considerable portion of the color that stains the Pigeon."

While environmental groups chose not to speak during the nine-hour hearing, EPA officials said they had 200 people who had signed up to speak. About 92 speakers actually took the floor during the hearing.

Company officials reiterated their claim that the standards in the EPA draft permit could force them to close the plant, which is western North Carolina's largest employer.

"Champion wants to be in Canton. It's been a good mill to the people of this region," said plant manager Oliver Blackwell. "As a company, we would pay an enormous price if this mill closes. While the cost to Champion would be high, the cost to the people of this region would be staggering."

"It doesn't have to happen," he said, as the crowd gave him a standing ovation. "It simply doesn't have to happen."

Officer's Son Tells Tale Of Kidnapping

GREENSBORO (AP) — A kidnapping story fabricated by the 11-year-old son of an undercover police officer landed a Greensboro couple in jail for almost 24 hours until investigators discovered the abduction was a hoax.

Investigators say the boy identified Thomas Robert Emerson and Jennifer Hatfield Emerson as the couple who abducted him. The Emersons were stopped Wednesday by a state Highway Patrol officer who moments earlier had heard a bulletin on the police radio about the kidnapping.

"I hate this, I really do," state Highway Patrol Trooper Michael Lee said Thursday night. "It happens, but it's a little embarrassing."

The Emersons' 19-month-old child was sitting in the back seat of the car, Lee said.

Guilford County sheriff's authorities were looking for the car after the boy reported that he found two people standing in the living room of his house after going to the basement for firewood.

The boy told sheriff's investigators that the couple forced him into the front seat of the car. He said he escaped by fighting his way over the woman's lap and opening the car door.

He also told authorities that he tripped the woman as they were taking him from his house and that they had hit him several times.

Lee questioned the couple, then held them until Guilford sheriff's deputies arrived with the boy and his father. He said the couple denied having any knowledge of a kidnapping.

"The man told me it wasn't him, that he had no contact with anybody," Lee said. "He said that he didn't have any idea where the road was this occurred on."

The couple were taken to the Guilford sheriff's department, where they were each charged with first-degree kidnapping and breaking and entering. Thomas Emerson was also charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

A .38 caliber pistol was found between the front seats of the Mustang, Lee said.

Sheriff's Detective Richard Jackson said he interviewed the couple until about 4 a.m. Thursday. The couple insisted they knew nothing about the alleged crime, he said.

When Lee stopped the couple, they were on their way to Emerson's mother's house near Reidsville, where they were planning to spend the evening, detectives said.

Before they determined Thursday afternoon that the boy made up the story, sheriff's officials believed the kidnapping might have been related to his father's work as a vice-narcotics officer with the Greensboro Police Department.

Nursing Schools

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Central University and N.C. A&T State University must show 60 percent passing rates on the state nursing exam by the end of the year or face a shutdown of their nursing programs, a UNC Board of Governors panel has decided.

At NCCU, in Durham, 46 percent of nursing graduates taking the test for the first time in 1987 passed, members of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors' Committee on Educational Planning, Policies and Programs were told in an annual report on the state's nursing programs.

At N.C. A&T State, in Greensboro, 50 percent of nursing graduates taking the exam in 1987 passed the exam. Both scores reflected significant declines from the previous year, when 87.5 percent of NCCU's students passed, and 80 percent of A&T's students passed.

The N.C. Board of Nursing, which licenses the state's 53,000 registered nurses, requires schools to post a 60 percent passing rate on the exam during any given year and a 70 percent passing rate over any three-year period.

authorities say. The identities of the men have not been released.

At about 5 p.m. Thursday, searchers found a 16-foot camouflaged fiberglass tri-hull boat in 8 feet of water, Petty Officer Bruce Barton said in a telephone interview from the U.S. Coast Guard's District Office in Portsmouth, Va.

He said the boat, identified as belonging to the duck hunters, was found intact about 3 miles north of Jordan's Marina, where the men were last seen launching the boat at 8 a.m. Thursday.

Ketchup Capital

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolinians have another thing to be proud of — Charlotte is No. 1 in the nation in per-capita ketchup use.

"I can't explain it," said Heinz's Beth Adams — who says the ranking comes from the Pittsburgh company's marketing department.

The rest of the ketchup Top Five is Omaha, Neb., Atlanta, Memphis, Tenn., and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Plant Closing

WALNUT COVE, N.C. (AP) — Bassett-Walker Inc. will shut down its plant in Stokes County on Feb. 1, putting 220 people out of work, a spokesman for the company said.

Company spokesman Frank Huffman said Bassett-Walker also will lay off a total of 325 other employees at the company's nine other plants in Rockingham County and Virginia.

The plant, located midway between Walnut Cove and Danbury, manufactures sweat shirts and sweat pants.

Oldest Twins

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — After receiving worldwide attention last year when the Guinness Book of World Records named Allie Grubb Hill and Maggie Grubb Lambeth as the world's oldest living twins, Wednesday's 104th birthday celebration in Denton was just another day to the two.

Born Jan. 13, 1884, in Davidson County to John and Jane Cody Grubb, Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Lambeth were the youngest of the couple's nine children.

During their lives, the United States has had 19 presidents and North Carolina has had 26 governors. Other changes they have observed include the coming of cars, planes, electricity and the women's liberation movement.

Currently, their health remains stable although Mrs. Hill suffered a broken hip last year, doctors say.

The twins were born in the tiny Davidson County community of Cid in 1884.

Holiday

GREENSBORO (AP) — Black leaders say they are upset that four North Carolina school boards have decided to use Monday's first state holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr. to make up for class time lost to a winter snowstorm.

"It's more than just a day off from work, which is apparently how they are going to treat it," said state Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, who sponsored the bill creating the King holiday.

"Never in the history of any holiday have I known the school system to celebrate it at a different time because of the weather," said Carolyn Coleman, coordinator for the Southern Voter Education Project.

School officials in Chatham, Moore and Sampson counties and Asheboro switched observances honoring the slain civil rights leader to this week — when icy roads have kept schools closed anyway.

ROBERT H. BORK

Bork Gives Up Bench To Respond To Critics

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bitter debate surrounding Robert H. Bork's rejected nomination for the Supreme Court is about to ignite again, as he takes off his judicial robe to free himself of any restraints against attacking his critics.

The White House announced Thursday that President Reagan had reluctantly accepted Bork's decision to step down from the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia after six years, effective Feb. 5.

Bork said that as a sitting judge, he could not respond to what had become "an essentially unanswered campaign of misinformation and political slogans" about his nomination.

"If, as a judge, I cannot speak out against this attempt to alter the traditional nature of the courts, I think it important to place myself where I can," he said in a letter to Reagan.

He said "constraints of propriety and seamliness limit the topics a federal judge may address and the public positions he may advocate." He said he wanted to "to speak, write and teach about law and other issues of public policy more extensively and more freely than is possible in my present position."

Bork's nomination was rejected by the Senate on a 58-42 vote Oct. 23. He insisted on forcing a vote, even though defeat was already certain.

Bork's critics argued that he was an extremist who would turn back the clock on civil rights and civil liberties. His supporters said he was a brilliant jurist and an advocate of reasonable judicial restraint.

"The unprecedented political attack upon you which resulted in the regrettable Senate action was a tragedy for our country," Reagan wrote in a letter accepting the resignation.

Speaking to reporters outside his home Thursday afternoon, Bork said he was "very grateful to the president for his letter to me." And, he said, "There is a lot of misunderstanding of the role of courts in this country and I intend to engage in the debate about what the role of courts is."

A hero of hardline conservatives, Bork was Reagan's first choice to succeed retiring Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. When Bork was defeated, Reagan turned to federal appeals judge Douglas H. Ginsburg, only to have him withdraw after it was disclosed that he had smoked marijuana in the past.

Reagan's third candidate is federal appeals judge Anthony M. Kennedy. He is expected to win Senate confirmation by a wide margin after Congress returns to work later this month.

The 60-year-old Bork, a longtime faculty member at Yale Law School, first came to national attention in the 1973 "Saturday Night Massacre" during the Watergate scandal.

As U.S. solicitor general, he agreed to then-President Richard Nixon's demand that he fire special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. The action fell to Bork after Attorney General Elliot Richardson resigned rather than comply with Nixon's order and Deputy Attorney General William French Smith was fired.

Army Sergeant Arrested As Suspected Spy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A meeting with a federal undercover agent led to the arrest of an Army sergeant for allegedly attempting to deliver defense information to the Soviet Union, federal law enforcement officials say.

Sgt. Daniel Walter Richardson, 42, an instructor in the tank turret division at the Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland, was arrested shortly after noon Thursday at the Chesapeake House Holiday Inn in Aberdeen, the FBI said.

"Richardson is accused of attempting to deliver information relating to national defense to a representative of the U.S.S.R.," FBI spokesman William Carter said, reading from a statement issued by FBI Director William S. Sessions and Maj. Gen. Harry E. Soyester, commander of U.S. Army Intelligence and Security Command.

Federal authorities monitored contacts Richardson is accused of initiating with the Soviets, and as a result, a federal undercover agent set up a meeting with Richardson that led to his arrest, according to federal law enforcement sources who spoke on condition of anonymity. There were no Soviets at the arrest site, the sources said.

The information involved was not classified and concerned the tank turret division where Richardson worked, the sources said.

One source indicated that no information apparently changed hands, because if officials believed it had, that would have been in the charge.

Carter said that under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, Richardson is subject to being charged with violation of two specifications of Article 106A dealing with espionage; two specifications of Article 92, failure to report contact with a foreign government; Article 121, larceny of U.S. government property; and Article 108, unauthorized disposition of U.S. government property.

Richardson, of Oakland, Calif., was being held at Aberdeen "and will most likely have an appearance before a military judge within seven days," Carter said.

The Uniform Code charge of espionage carries a maximum penalty of death. However, Lt. Col. John Ooley, a spokesman for the intelligence and security command, said some parts of that charge carry lesser penalties, such as life imprisonment, if the material involved was less sensitive.

Richardson joined the Army in 1968 and is assigned to the 601st Ordnance Battalion at Aberdeen. His specialty is tank turret repair and he is qualified as an instructor.

Lt. Col. John Chapla, an Army spokesman, had no information on other jobs Richardson has held in the service or how long he has been at Aberdeen.

The Aberdeen Proving Ground, located about 20 miles northeast of Baltimore, is a major center for military research and development and for the testing of arms, ammunition, missiles and vehicles. Some of its areas are highly classified.

Carter said he did not know how long FBI and Army intelligence had been investigating the case prior to the arrest.

Four Crewmen Die As Freight Trains Collide Head-On

THOMPSONTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Investigators recovered data recorders and ordered drug tests for two conductors who survived a head-on freight train collision that killed four crew members and scattered charred wreckage along the rails.

"It's a frustrating, frustrating tragedy," Federal Railroad Administrator John H. Riley said after visiting the site of Thursday's crash in south-central Pennsylvania, about 40 miles northwest of Harrisburg.

Workers brought in generators and electric lights, and worked into the night prying apart smoking wreckage to clear the tracks and free two bodies still trapped under tons of twisted steel.

According to officials, two east-bound Conrail locomotives pulling 105 coal cars apparently ran a stop signal and rammed into an oncoming train of three locomotives and 61 cars carrying truck trailers containing mixed freight.

Officials put preliminary damage estimates at $6 million.

Bush Scores Big But Disputed Win In Michigan Voting

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Vice President George Bush won a disputed comeback victory in Michigan, but the specter of widespread challenges left his spokesmen wary today of counting his delegates before they are confirmed.

"We're hopeful the democratic process will continue to prevail," was as close as Bush spokesman Peter Teeley was willing to come to claiming victory.

Backers of Pat Robertson and Jack Kemp vowed to challenge hundreds of Bush delegates elected at county conventions Thursday night in an effort to block the vice president from capturing a majority of Michigan's 77 delegates to the 1988 Republican nominating convention.

The next stage in the long, confusing and often bitter battle will be the state GOP convention Jan. 29-30 in Grand Rapids, where the delegates elected Thursday night will determine the makeup of the national convention delegation.

But their first task will be determining which delegates were properly elected.

"You can count on 300 to 400 of his (Bush's) delegates being challenged," said Ben Waldman, a Robertson spokesman.

With results in from 98 percent of the 124 county conventions, 57 percent of the delegates elected said they supported Bush; 22 percent backed Robertson; and 17 percent favored Kemp. Another 3 percent supported Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, who declined to join the fray in Michigan.

Also bypassing the state process were former Gov. Pete du Pont of Delaware and former secretary of state Alexander M. Haig Jr.

The Michigan GOP's system made it impossible to use the county results to determine precisely how Michigan's 77 delegates would be distributed. The Associated Press calculated that if the county results are mirrored at the state convention, Bush could win between 45 and 59 national convention delegates, depending on what rules are adopted. Robertson could get between 18 and 21 delegates, while Kemp could receive as many as 11 or as few as none.

The Bush figures, giving him more than half of all the delegates elected at county conventions Thursday night, was a remarkable comeback from earlier setbacks in the state.

Robertson stunned Bush and the GOP establishment in Michigan by matching the vice president in the recruitment of candidates for thousands of precinct-level party posts. Then Robertson formed a conservative alliance with Kemp to take control of the state party central committee and moved to tailor the rules to exclude many potential Bush supporters.

But the vice president went to court and overturned the rules changes.

Robertson, campaigning in Laconia, N.H., complained in advance that last-minute court ruling had undermined his efforts to win Michigan, contending that Bush supporters "went into court to try to steal our delegation away from us, like trying to take a touchdown back after the game."

"It doesn't look like the tactics of a winner," he said.

That the Bush forces were taking the threat of challenges seriously was indicated by their reluctance to go beyond the most cautious victory claims.

"It ain't over until it's over," said Barbara Pardue, a Bush campaign aide.

Teley said the results in the county conventions were "a major first step ... but based on what we've seen in the past, it's absolutely essential that every Bush delegate be in Grand Rapids on the 29th and 30th."

The Bush spokesman said the Bush delegates "have overcome incredible hostility and obstructions to move to the state convention."

The challenges raised the likelihood that the Michigan delegation will arrive at the GOP National Convention in New Orleans next August with its status clouded.

The Michigan party's dream of jumping to the head of the states making a decision in the presidential nominating race could end instead with its delegation being the last seated in New Orleans.

At 26 county conventions, supporters of one or another candidate cried foul and walked out to meet elsewhere and elect a rival slate of delegates.

Caucuses Produce Lockouts, Walkouts

WYANDOTTE, Mich. (AP) — They barred the doors, they hurled insults, they called the police, they walked out in protest. And — oh yes. They voted.

But even the son of the winner found himself out in the cold when he tried to thank those who turned out for his father.

Vice President George Bush beat out an alliance of conservative opponents Thursday night in the bitterly fought Michigan GOP county caucuses. The gatherings paved the way for selection of the first Republican presidential nominating delegates later this month.

Marvin Bush, Bush's youngest son, said a "couple of bullies" barred him from entering a steak house where backers of Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and former television evangelist Pat Robertson held sway.

Most of the evening's walkouts — at more than 20 caucuses — were staged by backers of Kemp and Robertson, who tried unsuccessfully to tailor party rules to freeze out Bush supporters.

But about 80 delegates for Bush walked out of a disputed caucus here after a credentialed Bush delegate was not seated.

At one point, police were called after pushing and shoving broke out when Bush delegates were left standing outside Elmer's Steak Pit restaurant in sub-freezing temperatures.

"This is incredible," said Randy Barton, 22, of Dearborn. "They let me in other meetings."

Other Bush delegates complained loudly that the tactics were "like the Russians," "fascist," and anti-democratic.

"The fact is they won't let delegates in," said Bob Evans, a Bush supporter from Rockwood. "They are running a fiasco."

On top of that, convention chairman Perry Christy wanted to charge news reporters $50 to $500 to cover

West Virginians Are The Heavies

By ROBERT BYRD
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Residents of Hawaii and Utah are the lightweights in a new federal survey of weight by state, while West Virginians are the heavies, say federal health researchers who aren't quite sure why.

"We don't have any solid answers," Dr. David F. Williamson, a nutrition specialist with the Centers for Disease Control, said Thursday after the CDC released the survey of scale readings from 25 states and the District of Columbia.

Of the West Virginians surveyed in 1986, 24 percent qualified as overweight. In Hawaii and Utah, the figure was a lean, mean 14 percent.

The median overweight percentages for the states and the district were 20 percent for men and 19 percent for women.

Also surveyed were residents of Alabama, Arizona, California, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee and Wisconsin. North Carolinians were 22 percent overweight.

A formula using height and weight was used to figure out whether survey respondents were on the heavy side. A 5-foot-10, 193-pound man or a 5-6, 169-pound woman, for instance, would be at the cutoff point.

Want to figure out if you're overweight? Here's how:

1. Multiply weight in pounds by 0.4545
2. Multiply height in inches by 0.0254
3. Square No. 2.
4. Divide No. 1 by No. 3.

If you're a man and the result is equal to or greater than 27.8, you're overweight. For women, the cutoff is 27.3. Pregnant women don't count.

A variety of factors could account for why Hawaiians aren't heavy and West Virginians are, Williamson said.

Hawaii has a warm, year-round climate more conducive to outdoor exercise, and also has a large Asian population. "Asians don't tend to put on as much weight as non-Asian people," Williamson said.

"Utah is a state with a large Mormon population, and they do tend to be very health-conscious people," he said.

West Virginia has pockets of severe poverty "and poor people in this country have the greatest problems with overweight and obesity," he said.

"But all of this is, to some degree, conjecture," Williamson added.

After West Virginia on the pudgy list came Wisconsin and North Dakota, each at 23 percent overweight.

"Those are predominantly states with people from a northern European ethnic background ... and diet, perhaps, and genetics may predispose those people toward having higher weights," Williamson said. "Those are also very cold areas, and there may be less opportunity for people to have year-round exercise."

The survey was part of the CDC's Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System, which measures behavior that can be harmful to health.

This is the first year CDC has used this height-weight formula, but applying it to 1984 and 1985 survey results found no distinct trends over the three years, the CDC said.

In their 1990 goals for the nation, federal health officials have said they hope that by then that only 18 percent of U.S. adult males and 21 percent of women will be overweight.

The 1990 health goals also say that in two years, 50 percent of the nation's overweight people should be trying to lose weight through both diet and exercise. It's 40 percent now, says the CDC.

ABRAHAM GILBERT

U.S. Says Courthouse Squatter Must Leave

ATLANTA (AP) — The federal government has filed a lawsuit to force a homeless, mentally ill man to leave the U.S. courthouse steps, where he has lived for more than a year and a half.

"The United States of America has suffered and continues to suffer irreparable injury as a result of this criminal trespass," says the suit, filed Jan. 6.

In November, the government asked Abraham Gilbert in a written order to leave the courthouse. He didn't comply.

Gilbert, 40, a diagnosed paranoid schizophrenic, says he is protesting what he describes as government attempts to poison him and blames the alleged attempts for his only child being stillborn.

He tells a rambling, disjointed story of other attempts by the government to keep him in jail and wreck his marriage. He has served time, apparently for minor crimes. He claims the government's actions led to the loss of his job as a mechanic.

Gilbert is part of Atlanta's larger problem: a shortage of halfway house space and other help for the homeless mentally ill. Advocates for the homeless in Atlanta estimate that 40 percent to 60 percent of the people who live on the city's streets have a history of mental illness.

Estimates of the number of homeless in Atlanta range from 7,000 to 10,000, but more precise figures

Financial 'Whiz Kid' Charged

NEW YORK (AP) — A 23-year-old, self-styled financial consultant faces prosecution for mail fraud after agreeing to turn over the fine art, fancy homes and luxury cars the government says he bought with his clients' money.

Federal prosecutors in Manhattan filed a one-count criminal complaint Thursday against David Peter Bloom, who parlayed a college investment club into a $10 million investment business within two years of graduation.

The boyish-looking Bloom was released on bond after an appearance before U.S. Magistrate James Francis IV. Bloom faces up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine if convicted.

His attorney, Peter H. Morrison, said the mail fraud charge encompassed all of the allegations in a Securities and Exchange Commission civil action brought against Bloom on Monday.

The SEC accused Bloom, who never registered with the agency as required, of diverting for his own use up to $10 million in funds that clients thought he was investing in securities.

According to the SEC complaint, Bloom used the money to buy nearly 40 works of art valued at $4.7 million, an $830,000 Manhattan condominium, a $1.9 million house on Long Island, a 1987 Mercedes-Benz, a 1988 Aston Martin and jewelry, and to pay business and personal expenses.

Bloom settled the SEC action late Monday without admitting guilt, and agreed to hand over all his assets to a court-appointed receiver. He also has been barred for life from the securities industry.

After Thursday's court session, his lawyer repeated his previous claim that Bloom was cooperating with the SEC and the receiver in returning investors' money. "David wants to see everybody made whole," Morrison said.

American Author Knows History Of Crown Jewels

By JOAN BRUNSKILL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — American-born author Leslie Field probably knows more about the Royal Family's jewels than anyone else. That includes Queen Elizabeth II, inheritor of the right to wear the matchless collections that include pearls worn by Queen Elizabeth I four centuries ago.

After working for seven years on her book, "The Queen's Jewels: The Personal Collection of Elizabeth II" (Harry N. Abrams Inc., $29.95), Field hopes she's become the world's greatest living authority on the subject.

For an author it's an enviable field that dances with dazzling subheadings such as Queen Mary's True Lover's Knot Brooch, the King George III Fringe Tiara and Queen Victoria's Golden Jubilee Necklace, to say nothing of the Imperial State Crown, the Sceptre and the Orb.

When she began the project, Field expected to find a basic system, a catalog or inventory on which she would draw. To her astonishment she found no such thing. She had to compile as complete a record as she believes has ever been made by combining research from many sources — personal memories and records of the Royal Family — with the full cooperation of Buckingham Palace, where she did much of her work. She also used newspaper libraries, photo files, bills, receipts, and published matter.

"I think 65 percent of the information I dug out to put in the book was new to the queen," she said in an interview. "I was actually able to tell her majesty where the tiara she'd worn on her wedding day came from. ... It turned out to be one of the most ancient and interesting in the collection, made in 1832."

Field was born in New York and began her career at Vogue magazine before becoming fashion editor of Glamour. She moved to London, where she now lives, in 1971, became fashion editor of The Sunday Times and then was named first female editor of the venerable Tatler magazine.

She originated the idea of doing the book in 1980. One of the main reasons the queen gave her consent to the proposal she submitted to Buckingham Palace, Field thinks, is that Queen Elizabeth approved of the author's view of the jewels "as a repository of the continuity of the monarchy," with each piece part of a centuries-old heritage.

The queen felt a book on the royal jewels should have the broadest possible appeal, Field says, and that was the writer's preference, too. "I always wanted to do it in the form of a family scrap book," she said, rather than doing a technical work that would appeal only to a few professional jewelers.

The book, divided into chapters dealing with diamonds, emeralds, pearls, and so forth, leaves its listings with much personal detail.

It is illustrated with specially made color photographs, archive photographs and reproductions of paintings and drawings showing different generations of royal women wearing the same magnificent pieces from a personal collection that now numbers, according to Field, 282 pieces. Queen Elizabeth wears 30 to 40 favorites on a constant basis.

Field also deals with part of the collection familiarly known as the Crown Jewels which belong to the state and are a favorite sight for tourists at the Tower of London; the book includes only those pieces of this collection that the queen has actually worn.

"I wanted this to be the definitive book of record," the author said.

The preparation took six years and the book three months to write. Field did all her research herself — including the inspection of an estimated 450,000 photos — and claims every word was checked and sometimes corrected by the royal household. She was amused to find that "sometimes they took my word for it."

Field was particularly pleased to be given permission to dedicate the book to the late Queen Mary, the present queen's grandmother, who shared the throne with King George V from 1910-1936. She was the majestic beauty who Field considers wore jewels better than anyone.

"I idolize her. She has been much misunderstood; she was a brave and courageous woman," Field said. "She was meticulously careful about the jewels she wanted to pass on, which she wanted to think a queen of England would wear."

It concerned Field that the scattered knowledge of the jewels and their history meant a loss to the royal family of personal history. "There were things that those alive today already did not know about one generation back."

However, she's pleased that her original research files will now be kept in the archives at Windsor Palace, and says it's her hope that she's somehow managed to save things.

"That would be the greatest satisfaction of the book, to know that I'd managed to save something for posterity," she said.

Woman Shies From Ex

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I divorced "Marvin" with hard feelings and I do not wish ever to see him again. I recently married a wonderful man who my parents agree is a "real nice guy." However, Marvin still visits my parents, who welcome him with open arms. I can't understand this, as they know how lousy he treated me. When my husband and I are at my parents' home, Marvin drops in knowing perfectly well we are there because our car is out in front.

I finally told my parents it wasn't my place to tell them who they could have in their home, but if I had to worry about bumping into Marvin, I just wouldn't visit them anymore. They just said they couldn't help it if he dropped in. Well, I think they could help it if they wanted to. Marvin knows I am very uncomfortable, but he insists on coming in when I'm there.

Is there a solution? — TORN
DEAR TORN: Yes. You could ask your parents respectfully — but firmly — to instruct Marvin not to drop in when he sees your car out in front. If, as you say, your parents know how "lousy" he treated you, yet they welcome him with open arms, you have the right to ask them why. And I suggest you do.

DEAR ABBY: I have read in your column so many times about agencies that help adopted children "find" their biological parents, but since I am not adopted, I never gave the subject much thought, until now.

I would like to know my grandfather. My situation may be a little different because I already know who he is and where he is. I have his city, address and phone number. What I actually need is someone to make the initial contact. You see, he doesn't even know I exist, and just surprising him would be kind of tacky. I don't know if his family knows anything about me or not, so I'd hate to just ring his doorbell and say, "Hi, I'm your grandson." By the way, I am a grown man and I don't "need" anything. — KEEP ME ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: You are wise to have decided not to just "ring his doorbell." Break the ice by writing to him. Tell him who you are and express a desire to meet him. Then leave the rest to him.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this letter to thank you and your readers from the bottom of my heart. Today, USS Ranger mail call was saturated with cards, letters and baked goodies from virtually every state in the union, and I must admit that this salty old master chief petty officer with more than 30 years of service had a fairly large lump in his throat.

Receiving mail from home while at sea is especially warming, but to have folks from all over this great land wish these men a "Merry Christmas and Godspeed" is overwhelming.

Thank you, Dear Abby, and thanks to each and every one of your readers for their incredible response to Operation Dear Abby III and America Remembers. — A.V.C.M. BILL BRICKEN, USS RANGER, FPO SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: It was with great amusement that I read the letter from the father suggesting each of his daughter's bridesmaids wear one of their own dresses at her wedding instead of each girl having to buy a new gown.

My father feels the same way about shoes. According to him, I have so many I should never buy another pair in my life (I'm only 33 years old), and, furthermore, I don't need all those different colors. As long as I have a brown pair and a black pair, I should be happy.

All I can say is, "Thank goodness for mothers!" — R.E. IN TORONTO

ARIZONA ALLERGIES

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A man moved from East Texas to the dry, desert climate of Arizona 47 years ago to get rid of his allergies. But, yearning for the pastoral serenity of his former home, the man planted the same lush Bermuda grass and shady mulberry trees that had caused the allergies in the first place.

So did thousands of others who migrated to that part of the country in the last 30 years, and now Tucson, among many Southwestern cities, is fighting the same wars against pollen that are familiar to most Eastern and Northern states.

Winter Is Time To Make Kimchi

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Yoo Sung-ran beamed as she plunged her hands into a bowl brimming with mashed red peppers, garlic and onions while her sisters cut up a mountain of cabbages.

The three women chatted and joked as they worked, their breaths turning to mist in the early winter morning.

It was the time to make kimchi, the pickled cabbage that accompanies almost every meal in Korea, igniting the entire digestive system and setting up a defense against cold winter nights.

"It's an important part of being Korean. It's part of our life," said the 62-year-old Mrs. Yoo as she folded cabbage leaves filled with spices into neat parcels.

She's been making kimchi for 44 years, she said.

Other groups of women were busy nearby in the courtyard of the apartment building, sorting out piles of cabbage that had been soaked overnight in salt water.

"It is the duty of every housewife to make kimchi," Mrs. Yoo explained as she worked.

A housewife greeted her neighbors and joked about being the last to start making kimchi as she returned home followed by two sweating workers pushing a cart stacked with 100 cabbages.

Trucks loaded with cabbage sped past in the street and mounds of cabbage were stacked on almost every street corner.

The beginning of winter is the signal for "kimjang," the season when almost every household in the country is busy making kimchi for the cold months ahead.

At the Garak-dong vegetable market, one of several in the city, officials said they get almost 100,000 people a day buying more than 3 million pounds of cabbage during kimjang.

Mrs. Yoo stuffed a wad of kimchi into her cheek and talked about the pained reaction of unsuspecting foreigners when they first sample kimchi.

"You people can't take it," she chortled to a Westerner.

"I know of groups that have to go all the way to Ayden to have a meeting," Council said.

Other items discussed during the meeting included the updating of the city thoroughfare plan, city beautification efforts, and the construction of a regional activity center.

"I'm just real pleased that Dr. Eakin arranged this breakfast," said Mayor Ed Carter. "It's pretty obvious that the members of our staffs are going to need to work together on a regular basis to identify and resolve mutual problems."

"I think what we have in this room today is a group of very talented people both from the city and from the university, and I think that we're going to make sure we properly plot the course that we need in order to move forward," Carter said.

"Everyone is pleased with the spirit of cooperation here. I think it's a tremendous beginning. It couldn't have been better," he added.

Whitfield Files

Whitfield served as commandant of the Basic Highway Patrol School in Chapel Hill, and during his tenure with the highway safety program worked with public officials in implementing the 18 standards of the federal Department of Transportation.

A past president of the Pitt County Safety Council, he is a graduate of the federal Department of Transportation's Traffic Safety Institute in highway safety program management at Oklahoma City, Okla., and the University of Louisville's police administration program. Whitfield has also taken courses at East Carolina University and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Whitfield is a 32nd Degree Mason and Shriner and served as an elder and deacon in the Presbyterian Church and as a lay leader and Sunday School teacher.

Whitfield is married to the former Myrtle Harris of Beaufort County and they have two children.

"In seeking this office, I feel my 36 years of service in state government and in working with state, county and local officials will be of benefit as a commissioner," Whitfield said.

"If I am elected, I would certainly follow the guidelines of the board. We have been fortunate to have had men to serve so ably and I would work with the board members in the best interest of the people of Pitt County."

In addition, Kimble said due to tremendous growth these departments are experiencing, more is being demanded of the existing staff.

"We have to put the right tools in their hands in order to meet future needs in the next several years," he said.

City Manager Greg Knowles said the approved additional equipment in his office will allow him to communicate with other departments.

climate conducive to teaching and learning, have teachers' behaviors convey high expectations and have program improvement based on measurement of student achievement.

Tracing the origins of the assumptions, West told the group they stemmed from conversations he had with black educators and others concerned with the academic achievement levels of black students.

"My concerns came about because of many things," Gaston Monk, principal of Ayden Middle School and a task force member, said. "He said black children excel in athletics such as basketball and football, but on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), there are large differences in the scores of white and black students.

Athletics are a "top priority of kids and the school — they support them in it," he said. But more emphasis should be placed on academics.

Monk also said "top black students are not taking the exam" because of socio-economic circumstances. For example, parents of many children have not been to college, and "no-body talks it. College is for somebody else," he said.

J.B. Smith, a task force member and principal of E.B. Aycock Junior High School, said children need to be told there are other ways of making a living besides athletics. "We sing, we dance, we play sports, and we do these things to death," but children need to be challenged in other areas, he said.

The 26-member task force, comprised of teachers, principals, central office personnel and local citizens, will bring 10 suggestions each for debate and discussion in dealing with the assumptions to its next meeting. The meeting is scheduled for Feb. 18.

my system is not compatible with everybody else, he said. "Now whatever they do, I'll be able to do on the same system."

Council also unanimously approved the transfer of $1,250 from the General Fund to the Sheppard Memorial Library to provide for preliminary architectural plans for the proposed expansion and renovation of the Carver Branch Library.

In addition, council also approved the establishment of capital projects budgets for both the Community Shelter Grant and the Family Violence Center. The city acts as grant administrator for both the funds.

In other action Thursday night, Council approved an architectural contract amounting to $3,000 with Dudley, Shoe, Ellinwood and Associates for a structural evaluation of Guy Smith Stadium.

Trade Deficit Drops

in the dollar that have made U.S. goods more competitive overseas, surged to $23.8 billion in November, their highest level ever. October exports had totaled $21.8 billion.

Imports, meanwhile, fell to $37.0 billion, down from $39.4 billion in October.

In advance of today's report, analysts suggested figures below $15 billion would be well received by financial markets while anything over $16 billion could have sharp negative implications.

The report on the record October deficit, released on Dec. 10, triggered a 47-point drop in the Dow Jones industrial average and helped drive the dollar to its then-lowest levels since the 1940s.

Some narrowing in November had been anticipated. "The trade deficits usually show some improvement, on a seasonal basis, in November and December," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for the Boston Co. Economic Advisers.

It was the smallest monthly trade gap since last April, when the deficit was $13.0 billion.

Despite the dramatic improvement, the trade deficit for 1987, with just one month in the year remaining to be reported, was at an annual rate of $173.43 billion, far surpassing the previous record $156.2 billion for 1986.

In the critical category of manufactured goods, the deficit eased to $12.2 billion from $15.5 billion in October.

Showing some of the sharpest declines were imports of foreign clothing, textiles and communications equipment. At the same time, overseas sales of U.S.-made aircraft, power-generating equipment and chemicals were among the fastest risers.

U.S. manufacturers have predicted continued large export gains in the months ahead, largely due to declines in the value of the U.S. dollar that have made American products less expensive overseas.

The trade deficit improved with respect to all the nation's major trading partners.

The U.S. deficit with Japan decreased to $4.8 billion, down from $5.9 billion in October. The trade shortfall with western Europe fell to $2.4 billion from $3.0 billion in October.

The trade deficit with Canada, this nation's largest single trading partner, decreased to $1.2 billion in November from $1.3 billion.

Imports included $2.0 billion worth of Japanese cars, down from $2.2 billion in October. However, autos from Canada were up, to $1.5 billion from $927.3 million.

Consent agenda items approved by council include establishing a 45 mph speed limit on an .81-mile stretch of Memorial Drive adjacent to the Carolina East Mall; allowing McGee Reprographics to construct an awning which would encroach above the sidewalk along Ficklin Street, allowing the construction of an awning at University Arcade which would encroach a public alley and approving permanent street maintenance for sections of Haven and Tuckahoe Drives.

Other approved consent agenda items include establishing a no-parking zone on the west side of Sulgrave Road, beginning 442 feet north of Avon Lane and extending to the intersection of Charles Boulevard; establishing 20 stop signs throughout the city limits; the sale of two disposal parcels, 203 W. 12th St. for $28,500, and 1213 S. Greene St. for $32,000, and the release of taxes totaling $2,288.

An executive session regarding property matters was conducted after the meeting.

Council member Nancy Jenkins was absent from the meeting, which lasted approximately 20 minutes.

ECU Men, Women Host Games

East Carolina University's Pirates return to Colonial Athletic Association action on Saturday when they entertain the U.S. Naval Academy in Minges Coliseum.

The Lady Pirates, meanwhile, will play host to Fairleigh-Dickinson, also on Saturday.

The original game times for both have been changed, however. The women's game will be played at 2:30 p.m. while the men's contest is now set for 7:30 p.m.

ECU will also play host to American University on Monday in another CAA contest, while the Lady Pirates take to the road, traveling to American.

East Carolina currently stands 5-8 overall after their 78-51 loss at the hands of strong South Carolina Wednesday night in Minges. They are 1-1 in CAA play, however, after capturing their first league win on the road on Monday at James Madison, 68-65.

Navy brings in a 3-8 record and is 0-2 in Colonial play after losing to William & Mary in Halsey Pavilion on Wednesday, 67-65.

The Midshipmen are still trying to recover from the post-David Robinson syndrome. Robinson, a 7-1 center for the Midshipmen, was the national Player of the Year last season — his senior season. Without him, the Middies are finding that they are human after all.

The Pirates, who will be looking to move up in the league standings over the weekend, played well for most of the time in their two games this past weekend.

"We have been playing so hard and with so much determination that I knew one of these wins would be coming soon," first-year coach Mike Steele said. "We played very well at times on Saturday against George Mason (a 77-63 loss), but we didn't get any help from our bench."

Monday, however, it was a different story as the bench came through for the Pirates with some key plays. East Carolina also was able to can 11 of 12 free throws over the final five minutes of play to hold onto its lead.

"We have played ourselves in a position to move forward in the league standings, but we're so young and inexperienced that our job as coaches this week will be to keep the kids level-headed and focused on Navy and American," Steele said.

The Pirates go into the game with CAA Players of the Week for the past two weeks. Reed Lose, a 6-3 sophomore swingman, won the award two weeks ago, while Gus Hill, a 6-3 forward, shared the honor this week with Richmond's Rodney Rice.

Hill is the leading scorer for the Pirates with a 17.3 average. Lose is next at 15.8. The Pirates also seem to have settled in with a starting lineup that includes those two, along with 6-5 freshman Stanley Love at center, 6-3 junior Kenny Murphy at forward, and 5-9 junior guard Jeff Kelly at guard.

Navy, in addition to losing Robinson, also lost top supporters Doug Wojcik and Carl Liebert from the lineup.

In addition, they've seen Derrick Turner, a 6-7 junior forward, go down with a knee injury last week. He'll be sidelined an anticipated four weeks. Craig Prather, a 6-5 junior forward, has also been on the bench with an injury, but may be able to play on Saturday.

Add to that the loss of promising freshman Darren Morningstar, a 6-8 center, who has been suspended from the team. There have been reports that he may return to the team, but whether he will suit up for the Pirate game has not been determined.

In their absence, the Midshipmen have been starting 6-9 sophomore Byron Hopkins at center; 6-5 sophomore Matt Nordmann and 6-6 freshman Eddie Reddick at the forwards. The guards are 6-2 freshman Mel Davis and 6-4 senior Cliff Rees.

Rees is the leading scorer with a 15.9 average while Hopkins is hitting 12.0 per game. Nordmann is at 7.1, Reddick at 5.5 and Davis at 1.8.

Navy leads the series 11-1 with ECU's only win coming in 1983, 68-67 in Greenville.

American, meanwhile, brings in a 5-8 record, with a 1-1 league record. The Eagles downed William & Mary but lost to Richmond. In addition, they will face UNC-Wilmington Saturday before coming on to ECU for the Monday meeting.

The two teams have one common opponent thus far in Maryland-Baltimore County. The Pirates lost, 84-73, in Baltimore, while the Retrievers downed the Eagles, 85-70, also in Baltimore.

The Eagles have a balanced attack, with four players in double figures. They are led by Mike Sampson, a 6-0 senior guard, hitting 13.6 points per game. His fellow backcourt mate, Mike Sumner, a 6-4 sophomore, has an 11.9 average, while Daryl Holmes, a 6-6 sophomore forward is hitting 10.3.

The other starters include 6-6 junior forward Eric White is at 6.6 and 6-9 senior center Tom Scherer is at 3.3. Junior college transfer Dale Spears, a 6-3 guard, has been hitting 13 points a game off the bench.

American leads the series with the Pirates, 4-3, but split in last year's meetings. ECU won in Greenville, 71-56, but fell to the Eagles, 69-67, in Washington.

East Carolina's Lady Pirates, 5-9, and have lost three in a row, two of them in the CAA.

Saturday's afternoon's opponent will be Fairleigh-Dickinson, which brings in a 6-8 record.

The Lady Knights are led by Diane Campbell, a 5-10 senior forward, with an 18.7 point scoring average and a 6.0 rebound average; and Della Davis, a 6-0 sophomore forward, hitting 15 points and pulling eight rebounds a game.

Other starters are expected to be Mary Lisowski, a 6-0 freshman center; Alexa Millas, a 5-3 freshman guard; and Kerry Dressel, a 5-4 senior guard.

American is 4-9 prior to playing at UNC-Wilmington on Saturday, with a 1-1 league record, including a 61-51 loss to Richmond in their last game.

The Lady Eagles are led by Beth Scherer, averaging 19.5 points and 7.8 rebounds, while Kia Cooper has a 10.2 scoring average with a 7.4 rebound average. Jeanine Lorimer has an 8.4 scoring average.

A&T Holds Off Lady Bucs To Capture 58-51 Victory

GREENSBORO — North Carolina A&T University used a 5-point play to turn the game around in the final minutes of play and come away with a 58-51 basketball victory over East Carolina's women's team Thursday night.

It was the third straight loss for the Lady Pirates and dropped their record to 5-9 on the season.

The game was fairly close throughout the evening, although the Lady Aggies led most of the way. They built up a 30-24 halftime lead.

But they were unable to shake the Lady Pirates, who hung in and gradually erased the lead, finally tying the game with about four minutes to play.

But a minute later, A&T got a basket and a foul was called on the play. Pam Williams also whistled for a technical foul, giving A&T the basket, plus three free throws. All three went through to give the Aggies a five-point lead that ECU was unable to overcome in the time remaining.

Paulette Dennis led A&T with 16 points while Karon Williams added 13 and Deidra Cheeks had 11.

Monique Pompili and Alma Bethea each scored 16 points to lead the Lady Pirates.

East Carolina will return to action on Saturday, hosting Fairleigh-Dickinson in a 2:30 p.m. game in Minges Coliseum. They then return to CAA action on Monday, traveling to American.

Pate Has Plan; Just Keep Going

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Steve Pate has a game plan for the 1988 pro golf tour.

"I had a pretty good last half of the season last year; won, oh, about $200,000 in the last four months.

"I just wanted to pick up where I left off," Pate said.

He took a big step in that direction with a no-bogey round of 6-under-par 66 on Thursday that staked him to a one-shot lead in the first round of the first tournament of the season, the prestigious Tournament of Champions.

"A nice way to make my debut. I could get used to this," said Pate, 26, one of 10 rookies in a field of 38 in this winners-only tournament.

Playing in what he called "perfect conditions, warm and sunny," he did not miss a green and did not come close to making a bogey.

"It was a pretty easy round to play. I didn't have to work particularly hard at any time," said Pate, starting his fourth season on the PGA Tour.

Canadian Dave Barr held second despite an erratic driver that got him in trouble over the front side.

"I only hit one fairway on the front," Barr said. But he also one-potted six times on those nine holes and reached the turn in 34.

"It was a little more solid after that," Barr said after finishing with a 67.

PGA title-holder Larry Nelson led a group at 68, two shots off the pace. Also at that figure were 1987 Player of the Year Paul Azinger, Payne Stewart and veteran Johnny Miller.

British Open champ Nick Faldo of England had a 70, and Tom Watson, who broke a three-year non-winning string late last season, had a 71 in his return to the tournament he has won three times.

In the starry group at 73, one over par and seven off the pace, were 1987 leading money-winner Curtis Strange, Masters champ Larry Mize and U.S. Open title-holder Scott Simpson.

In the separate competition for winners from the 1987 PGA Seniors Tour, Dave Hill and Billy Casper shared the lead at 68.

Reid Takes Charge, Leads Tar Heels Past Terrapins

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

For about five minutes, second-ranked North Carolina showed its youth against Maryland. But by the time the Terrapins saw it, it was too late for them to take advantage of it.

With J.R. Reid taking charge inside, the Tar Heels took a 71-65 victory in their Atlantic Coast Conference opener and ended Maryland's two-game ACC winning streak.

North Carolina had led by as much as 15 in the second half, but poor ballhandling kept Coach Dean Smith's team from holding on to that advantage in the closing minutes.

"We showed our inexperience," Smith said. "It's amazing as far as a North Carolina team, throwing it away as we did."

Reid scored 16 of his 24 points in the second half.

"I was just able to get the ball in good position tonight," Reid said. "My teammates did an excellent job of getting me the ball."

After Maryland got within 34-29 early in the second half, Reid scored two inside baskets and then converted a three-point play to give the Tar Heels a 41-29 lead with 18:05 remaining. North Carolina led 50-41 when Reid completed another three-point play for a 12-point margin with 13:34 left.

Maryland got a 3-point basket from Rudy Archer and a basket by Derrick Lewis to get within 53-46, but North Carolina went on an 8-0 run over the next 2½ minutes, getting baskets from Scott Williams, Jeff Lebo, two free throws from Steve Bucknall and a layup by Pete Chilcutt for a 61-46 lead with 9:44 to play.

Maryland, losing at home for the first time this season, fell to 2-1 in the ACC and 9-4 overall. Scoreless for 5:38 of the first half, Maryland fell behind 16-4 and never recovered.

"We got down 11 or 12 and we panicked a little," guard Keith Gatlin said. "We were trying to get things to go right but nothing worked."

Lebo scored 17 points for North Carolina, which defeated Maryland for the 13th time in 15 games.

Steve Hood and Derrick Lewis each scored 13 points to lead Maryland.

Seventh-ranked Duke defeated St. Louis 69-53 to climb to 12-1, but it was a night Coach Mike Krzyzewski would like to forget.

"To say that we were deplorable would be being nice to our team," Krzyzewski said. "We were absolutely horrendous."

Quin Snyder scored 18 points to lead Duke. He hit four of nine 3-point shots, three of them in the second half as the Blue Devils tried to shake off poor ballhandling and a poorer shooting effort.

Averaging 53.5 percent accuracy on its field goals through its first 11 games, Duke hit 22 of 57 field goals for 38.6 percent. The Blue Devils also committed 22 turnovers, seven above their average.

"St. Louis outthrustled us, and they just played a lot harder than we did," Krzyzewski said. "We played like a team that wanted to be given something. And we got something — our worst by far."

St. Louis didn't fare much better, committing 26 turnovers and shooting 39.6 percent on 19 of 48 field goals. But Coach Rich Grawer wasn't as unhappy as his counterpart.

"I know Duke didn't play well, but we'd like to think we had something to do with that," Grawer said. "We might have exposed some weaknesses that other teams haven't been able to against Duke."

All eight ACC teams play television games this weekend. Wake Forest is at Clemson, North Carolina State is at Georgia Tech, Maryland visits Duke and Virginia is at North Carolina.

Ellis Johnson Quits ECU Post

Ellis Johnson, outside linebacker coach at East Carolina for the past three seasons, has been named defensive coordinator at Southern Mississippi, school officials announced Thursday.

Johnson, who also was East Carolina's recruiting coordinator for two years, will join new Southern Mississippi coach Curly Hallman's staff at Hattiesburg.

In 1983, Johnson was head coach at Gardner-Webb and led the school to the NAIA District 26 championship.

Johnson was defensive coordinator at Appalachian State during the 1984 season before joining Art Baker's staff at East Carolina. He had served under Baker as an assistant at The Citadel in 1982.

The resignation of Johnson leaves two vacancies on the Baker staff. Earlier defensive coordinator Les Herrin resigned to join the staff of new North Carolina head football coach Mack Brown.

Dye To Sell Ties For Athletic Fund

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn Coach Pat Dye plans to personally autograph hundreds of ties sent to him by not-so-grateful Syracuse fans and donate the proceeds to his university's general scholarship fund.

"We now may be able to raise as much as a quarter of a million dollars for Auburn's general scholarship fund, thanks to the generosity of the Syracuse fans," said David Housel, Auburn's sports information director.

The ties — ridiculing Dye's decision to kick a 30-yard field goal with four seconds left to tie Syracuse 16-16 in the Sugar Bowl — started arriving at Auburn Thursday.

"He got a chuckle out of it," Housel said as the bags of ties were stacked in the athletic department office.

He said Dye plans to personally autograph each tie, write the 16-16 score on each tie and sell them for $100 apiece, with proceeds to go to Auburn University's general scholarship fund.

Housel noted that organizers of the "Dye's Ties" effort at Syracuse estimated that more than 2,000 of the ugliest ties they could find were being mailed to Dye.

Kerr Leads Arizona Romp

By The Associated Press
Arizona's Steve Kerr is finding his legs and with it his shooting touch.

The senior guard hit all seven of his field goals, including five 3-pointers, and led all scorers with a season-high 21 points as the top-ranked Wildcats whacked Oregon State 70-48 Thursday night.

"I was due," said Kerr, who missed all of last season with a knee injury and had been mired in a deep shooting slump. "I think it was just a matter of getting my legs under me. I found it tonight... I think it was just a matter of hitting a couple."

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 2 North Carolina 71, Maryland 65; No. 4 Temple 59, La Salle 56; No. 7 Duke 69, St. Louis 53; No. 8 Purdue 80, Northwestern 64; No. 10 Michigan 90, Michigan State 72; No. 15 Indiana 55, Wisconsin 53; Ohio State 87, No. 17 Iowa 83, and San Diego State 64, No. 18 New Mexico 59.

Arizona, 15-1, moved into first place in the Pacific-10 Conference. The Wildcats have swept their five Pac-10 games by an average of 28 points.

"They're so strong and they don't get rattled," Oregon State's Bill Sherwood said. "Anytime anyone makes a mistake, they take advantage of it."

Sherwood led the Beavers with 20 points, including six of seven 3-pointers. No other Oregon State player scored in double figures and the Beavers missed their first 11 shots.

It was the worst home court defeat for the Beavers since 1978 when they lost 96-58 to UCLA. Oregon State fell to 8-4 and 2-1.

No. 2 North Carolina 71, Maryland 65
J.R. Reid scored 16 of his 24 points in the second half as the Tarheels extended their winning streak to eight games.

Maryland pulled within 34-29 just after halftime, but Reid scored two inside baskets and converted a three-point play to make in 41-29 with 18:05 remaining. He also had a three-point play with 13:34 to play, making it 50-41 lead.

North Carolina improved to 12-1 and 3-0 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Maryland is 9-4 and 2-1 in the ACC.

No. 4 Temple 59, La Salle 56
Freshman Mark Macon scored a field goal with 18 seconds remaining to put Temple ahead to stay as the Owls used a 12-2 rally in the final four minutes to beat the Explorers.

Temple, 11-0, trailed 54-47 with 4:37 to play as La Salle, 8-8, led by as many as 10 points.

Mike Vreeswyk, who had 10 points, was 0-11 from the field before connecting on three field goals, including a 3-point shot, in the last four minutes. Vreeswyk's 3-pointer and short jumper tied the game at 56-56 with 2:06 left and Macon hit the shot that put the Owls ahead.

Tim Legler led La Salle with 23 points, while Temple was topped by Macon and Howard Evans with 16 apiece.

No. 7 Duke 69, St. Louis 53
Quin Snyder scored 18 points as Duke struggled to its fourth straight victory. Snyder hit four of nine 3-point shots, three in the second half.

Duke hit only 22 of 57 from the floor for 38.6 percent. The Blue Devils also committed 22 turnovers, seven more than their average. But St. Louis committed 26 turnovers and shot 39.6 percent on 19 of 48 shooting.

Danny Ferry had 16 points and Kevin Strickland 13 for Duke, 11-0. Monroe Douglass had 24 points for the Billikens, 5-7.

No. 8 Purdue 80, Northwestern 64
Troy Lewie scored 12 of his 20 points on four first-half 3-point baskets as the Boilermakers jumped to an 11-point halftime lead and ran away.

Purdue, 14-1, won its 13th game in a row and moved to 4-0 in the Big Ten. Northwestern, which upset Indiana on Monday, fell to 6-7 and 1-2.

Northwestern had closed within 40-34 with 1:30 remaining in the half, but Lewie hit one of his 3-pointers and Everett Stephens tossed in two free throws for a 45-34 halftime lead.

Shon Morris led Northwestern with 15 points.

No. 10 Michigan 90, Michigan St. 72
Gary Grant scored 18 of his 27 points in the first half in leading the Wolverines past Big Ten and state rival Michigan State. Grant hit seven of 10 shots to help stake Michigan, which led by as many as 10 points in the first half, to a 41-37 lead at the intermission.

Terry Mills, who scored 19 of his 22 points in the second half, hit six straight points early in the period as the Wolverines opened up a 49-39 lead. The Spartans could get no closer than seven the rest of the way.

Michigan raised its record to 13-1 and 3-0, while Michigan State fell to 5-8 and 0-3. The Spartans were led by Carleton Valentine with 16 points.

No. 15 Indiana 55, Wisconsin 53
Dean Garrett converted a three-point play with nine minutes remaining to give Indiana its first lead, then hit four free throws down the stretch as the Hoosiers held off the Badgers in a Big Ten game.

Indiana, which trailed by 10 points in the first half, went ahead 45-44 on a basket and free throw by the 6-foot-10 Garrett with 9:19 to go. Indiana fell behind once more, but another basket by Garrett and two by freshman guard Lyndon Jones put the Hoosiers ahead to stay.

Garrett had 18 points, 11 rebounds and five blocked shots as Indiana improved to 9-4 and 1-2. Wisconsin, losing to Indiana for the 16th consecutive time, dropped to 8-5 and 2-1. Trent Jackson led Wisconsin with 17 points.

Ohio St. 87, No. 17 Iowa 83
Grady Mateen scored Ohio State's last four points, including two free throws with four seconds remaining, as the Buckeyes beat Big Ten rival Iowa.

Ohio State led 83-78 with 1:28 left, but Iowa's B.J. Armstrong hit a 3-point basket to make it 83-81. Mateen then tipped in a Jerry Francis miss with 31 seconds left for an 85-81 Ohio State lead.

Armstrong hit a field goal while being fouled with 23 seconds left to cut the deficit to two, but missed the free throw. Kent Hill missed two free throws for Iowa that could have tied the game with five seconds and Mateen then closed the scoring with two free throws.

Jay Burson scored 23 points and Curtis Wilson 21 for Ohio State, 8-5 and 1-2. Iowa, 10-5 and 2-2, was led by Armstrong's 22 points.

San Diego St. 64, No. 18 N. Mexico 59
Mitch McMullen scored the last of his 19 points on two free throws with 1:07 to play as San Diego State snapped New Mexico's 10-game winning streak.

San Diego State, a 27-point loser in each of its previous two Western Athletic Conference games, led 60-58 when McMullen went to the line. The Lobos got a final opportunity when San Diego's Bryan Williams missed the front end of a bonus with 26 seconds left, but three New Mexico 3-point attempts failed.

NFC Championship Contest Game Of The Back-Up QB

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a bit of condescension when Doug Williams talks of Wade Wilson, the other erstwhile second-string quarterback who will start in Sunday's NFC championship game.

And two touchdowns. He started for Schroeder in the second game, a 21-20 loss to Atlanta, then went back on the bench behind Schroeder after the four-week hiatus for the players strike.

"There's a lot of difference, now than from when he started," says Dan Henning, the former Atlanta head coach who is now a Washington assistant. "A lot of it's in the difference between the maturity of a 23-year-old and a 32-year-old. He can see the whole field now."

Gregg Challenges Overzealous

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist's new head football coach is eager to resurrect the school's scandal-racked program and has a blunt message to any overzealous boosters who might offer improper aid.

"I'll smack 'em right in the mouth," warned 240-pound Forrest Gregg.

A pay-for-play scandal in which boosters played a major role prompted the NCAA to inflict the "death penalty" on SMU for repeat violations, cancelling the 1987 season. SMU volunteered to skip the 1988 campaign while it cleansed its program.

Gregg, 54, of Birthright, Texas, the captain of the 1955 SMU team, signed a four-year contract on Thursday for an estimated $100,000 a year base salary. SMU has an option for a fifth year.

He was on the fourth year of a five year contract with the Green Bay Packers. Gregg also was an All-Pro for nine years at Green Bay as an offensive tackle under Vince Lombardi.

"I played 15 years and coached 14 years, so I've been in the NFL most of my life," Gregg said. "I always thought that if the opportunity presented itself I'd like to come back to my school."

The move to SMU cost Gregg about $200,000.

"I'm not here to talk salary, I'm here to talk opportunity," Gregg said. "I'm pleased to be home."

He said it is time for SMU to bury its problems, which included the most NCAA football penalties in history.

"We're ready to put the past behind us," Gregg said. "I hope we're in the Cotton Bowl in less than a decade."

Integrity is the most important thing, he said. "We have to restore that to the program."

SMU can sign 15 players to scholarships on Feb. 10. Gregg will have to recruit by telephone as NCAA rules prohibit SMU from visiting recruits until next fall.

Gregg said recruiting for SMU "will be easy. I'll just look 'em right in the eye and tell them to come to SMU and get a great education."

He said he answered SMU's call "to put something back into the game. I've been drafted three times in my life, by the Army, by the Green Bay Packers and now SMU. I answered all three calls."

Colorado Coach Bill McCartney was SMU's first choice but turned the Mustangs down.

Gregg said he wasn't even in the running at the time.

"I was just serving in an advisory capacity," he said. "I was a little shocked when SMU called and said it wanted me."

Gregg received a standing ovation when he was introduced by Athletic Director Doug Single at a press conference Thursday.

"I'll give you about an hour to stop that," Gregg said. "I'm very pleased to be the head football coach at SMU. I'll start to work first thing tomorrow. I'm really pleased to be home."

SMU can hire five assistant coaches. Gregg said he would talk soon with Tim Edwards, head coach of L.D. Bell High School in nearby Hurst, Texas, who was among others that SMU considered for the head coaching job. Gregg said he wasn't certain whether any Packer assistants will follow him.

Gregg said he doesn't think the switch from the NFL to college will be a problem.

"Football is football," Gregg said. "The field is the same length and width. Only the hash marks are different."

Gregg said he can't understand alumni paying players.

"I never believed you could motivate anybody with money," he said. "It takes desire to play this game."

He said an athlete choosing SMU will have to think academics first.

"I want all my student athletes to graduate," he said. "That should be the bottom line of any program."

Gregg is the only person who has both played and been the head coach in a Super Bowl. He played for Green Bay in Super Bowls I and II and coached Cincinnati in Super Bowl XVI.

Lombardi once called Gregg the best player he'd ever coached.

Gregg, who becomes SMU's 12th head football coach, said he will feel pressure although SMU is not expecting him to be competitive for several seasons.

"The only way a coach can have any fun is to win," he said. "Having pressure to win is all a part of it."

Leavell Perfect Replacement

By The Associated Press
With Sleepy Floyd serving a suspension, the Houston Rockets needed another guard. Allen Leavell was a perfect replacement.

Leavell shot 12-for-12 from the foul line, including four in the final 40 seconds, as the Rockets beat the Portland Trail Blazers 103-98 Thursday night in the NBA.

Robert Reid's two free throws with 48 seconds remaining put Houston ahead 99-97. After that, Leavell kept the Rockets in front and he finished with a team-high 20 points.

"Sleepy and I both could go down and we'd still be all right," Leavell said. "My game is the same even if he's in. There's no more pressure. We have six capable guards."

Leavell took the place of Floyd, who sat out a one-game suspension for fighting with Phoenix's Jeff Hornacek on Wednesday night. Floyd also was fined $5,000.

"You get in sync with a guy like Sleepy and when you lose him it takes a while to figure something else out," Rockets coach Bill Fitch said.

In other games, Cleveland beat Chicago 91-88 in overtime, Washington routed Milwaukee 136-107, New Jersey held off Sacramento 90-87 and Denver defeated Atlanta 115-112.

While Leavell filled in for Floyd, Reid took over when Portland contained Akeem Olajuwon, who had 17 points. Reid made the go-ahead foul shots and was 5-for-6 from the line.

"When you hold down a big fellow like Akeem you expect to win," Portland's Clyde Drexler said. "But Robert Reid came through for them in the clutch."

Drexler scored 25 points. He got 13 in the third quarter and gave the Trail Blazers a 78-73 lead going into the final period.

Cavaliers 91, Bulls 88
Craig Ehlo scored four points in overtime, leading Cleveland over visiting Chicago.

Ehlo made two free throws with five seconds left in overtime and the Bulls' Michael Jordan missed a 3-point shot with two seconds remaining.

Jordan, who scored 28 points, made a foul shot with 18 seconds left in regulation that tied the score at 82. The Cavaliers then missed a flurry of short shots, forcing the overtime.

Brad Daugherty and Ron Harper scored 16 points apiece for Cleveland.

Nuggets 115, Hawks 112
Lafayette Lever put Denver ahead with 19 seconds left and T.R. Dunn added two foul shots to hold off Atlanta.

Lever's jump shot broke a tie at 110, Bill Hanzlik then stole the ball and Dunn made his free throws.

Alex English scored 27 points and Lever and Danny Schayes had 20 each as the host Nuggets ended a three-game losing streak.

Dominique Wilkins scored 34 points for the Hawks, who rallied from a 10-point deficit in the fourth quarter.

Bullets 136, Bucks 107
Moses Malone scored 36 points and moved into 11th place on the NBA's all-time scoring list as Washington continued to play well for new Coach Wes Unseld.

The Bullets are 3-1 since Unseld took over. Milwaukee's loss was its most lopsided this season.

Malone, who shot 14-for-16 and grabbed 14 rebounds, moved past George Gervin on the scoring list with 20,743 points. Malone is 137 points behind Bob Pettit.

Bernard King scored 25 points and Jeff Malone 22 for the host Bullets, who shot 63.8 percent. Jack Sikma had 23 points for the Bucks.

Nets 90, Kings 87
Buck Williams had 21 points and 18 rebounds as New Jersey beat Sacramento in a meeting of last-place teams.

The Nets are 7-26 in the Atlantic Division, with all of the victories coming at home. The Kings are 9-24 in the Midwest, including 1-13 on the road.

New Jersey led 63-48 midway in the third quarter before Sacramento got within 86-84 with 2:39 remaining. Both John Bagley and Dwayne Washington, each of whom finished with 14 points, got two points late to hold off the Kings.

Reggie Theus scored 20 points for Sacramento.

Brown Leads Way For Hula Lineup

HONOLULU (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Tim Brown of Notre Dame leads the field of college all-stars in the annual Hula Bowl game Saturday.

Brown, the first wide receiver to win the Heisman since Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers in 1972, said he considers the Hula Bowl more than just a fun game.

"When I'm out on the field I'm 'full go' because I don't want to take a chance on getting hurt or messing up the play," he said.

However, Brown said, "I don't think after going 12 hard weeks of playing football, anyone can come here and play up to their abilities."

The 68 college seniors will be trying, though, mindful that it will be their last chance to impress the pro scouts before the National Football League draft.

More than 50 scouts and player personnel directors from the NFL are staying in the same Waikiki hotel as the players. As many as 20 agents also are in town.

"People think a bowl game is a relaxed, laid-back affair," said Mark Higgs, a running back from Kentucky. "At the Blue-Gray game, I had agents calling me up, coming to my room, taking me out to dinner, buying me a drink."

Directing the East offense will be quarterbacks Tom Tupa of Ohio State, who also is expected to be given punting duties, and Jeff Burger of Auburn.

Game Show Winner Arrested

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The biggest winner in the history of TV's "Password" game show was arrested after he was spotted on the air by Alaska bank officials who wanted him in a $25,000 credit card scam, authorities said.

"The guy's a real flim-flam artist ... who perpetrates frauds all over the country," said Ron Williams, assistant to the agent in charge of the Los Angeles Secret Service office.

Kerry Ketchum, 36, was arrested Thursday when he went to the Los Angeles office of Mark Goodson Productions to pick up a check for $58,000 he won in four appearances on "Password," which aired last week and earlier this week.

Williams said the Secret Service was alerted after employees of the Anchorage, Alaska, bank saw Ketchum using the alias Patrick Quinn on the NBC television show. Williams said he didn't know the bank's name. "He got false applications and then he got credit cards under the name Patrick Quinn and then the bills came back to the bank unpaid. They did a little research and determined somebody was using the bank and then they saw the guy on TV," he said.

Two Secret Service agents were waiting for Ketchum when he arrived at the production company, said "Password" producer Robert Sherman.

U2, Michael Jackson Top Nominations

NEW YORK (AP) — The Irish rock band U2 has been nominated for four Grammy awards from its platinum "The Joshua Tree" LP, while surprising Suzanne Vega received three mentions with a song about child abuse, "Luka."

Mega hit-maker Michael Jackson has four nominations for "Bad," his first album since the historic "Thriller" LP. Three nominations were announced Thursday for song stylist Whitney Houston.

U2, which took the United States by storm last year, was nominated for record of the year, album of the year and song of the year — their first-ever Grammy mentions. The band, which also received a best rock vocal performance nomination, scored three hit singles off their album "The Joshua Tree" and played to sold-out stadiums nationwide.

"I guess these Paddies did all right for themselves," said Larry Mullen, drummer and founder of the Irish rock band, through his publicist, Paul Wasserman.

Their competition for record of the year — the best single — includes a pair of veterans who earned Grammys last year: Paul Simon for "Graceland" and Steve Winwood for "Back in the High Life Again." Simon won in 1987 for the album "Graceland," Winwood for his single "Higher Love."

"I feel great about the whole 'Graceland' project," Simon said Thursday in an interview following the announcement of nominations for the 30th Annual Grammy Awards of the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences, Inc.

U2 was nominated in the record of the year category for "I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For"; also selected were Los Lobos for their chart-topping remake of Ritchie Valens' "La Bamba" and Vega for "Luka."

Vega, a New York cult figure who broke in nationally with her single about an abused child, was also nominated for song of the year and best female pop vocal performance — her first Grammy nominations.

That tied her with Whitney Houston, who scored three No. 1 hits last year and was nominated for female pop vocal, album of the year and best female R&B vocal performance.

The Grammys are voted on by more than 6,000 members of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences. Grammys will be awarded in 71 categories — including rock, pop, classical, jazz, Latin, folk, spoken word and reggae — on March 2 in New York.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY Jan. 16

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Don't get involved in an argument between two acquaintances—just smile and stay out of trouble. Keep your nose to the grindstone.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Don't become involved in any discussion of personal finance. Be sure you make time for some recreation later in the day.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): An associate cannot come to the right decision at this time, and neither can you, so put that contract aside until a better time comes up.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Don't let a secret worry prevent you from handling your work, and don't do anything which will disrupt your budget tonight.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): A misunderstanding between your mate and one of your friends will smooth itself out, so don't get involved. Drive with the utmost care.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Don't make any hasty decisions about labor-saving methods. Wait until you're sure which will be the most efficient and inexpensive.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): This is not a good day to communicate with others, so don't schedule any important discussion. Make some plans for recreation.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): See what can be done to get a co-worker to go along with your ideas, but don't force the issue. Listen carefully to advice from your mate.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Your ideas may be at odds with those of your partners, but keep mum and maintain harmony. You can find solace at home tonight.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Don't let a co-worker put a crimp in your plans, but be tactful with this person. Be sure you don't get involved in any arguments.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Use your talents wisely, and don't waste time with a procrastinating friend. You get an order from a superior, so be sure to follow it.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Sidestep an argument between a friend and a new contact, or you'll end up taking the blame. Make sure you drive with the utmost care.

 Most bridge players are reluctant to give up a trick. The expert, however, is more concerned with how many tricks he can make than with how many he must give up. That attitude made for a swing on this deal from a team event.

At both tables the final contract was three-no trump, reached on similar auctions. At both tables the opening lead was the two of hearts, and at both tables declarer won the first trick because he could not afford a spade switch.

With only six fast tricks, declarer needed to establish three more. One declarer decided to go after the club suit, where he needed a 2-2 break to establish three long-card tricks. He cashed the ace-king, but when his 40 percent chance failed to materialize, he had no way to recover.

The second declarer chose to take the opening two of hearts lead at face value as indicating that the suit was splitting 4-4. That meant that he had to lose only two heart tricks, and that he could afford to give up two more tricks and still make his contract. Now it was easy to decide which suit to establish. He went after diamonds.

East won the first diamond and knocked out declarer's remaining heart stopper. But South persevered with his plan, forcing out West's ace of diamonds. The defenders came to two heart tricks and two diamonds, but that was all.

Note that declarer would go down if he ducked the first heart and the defenders found the spade shift.

And when he chose to go after clubs rather than diamonds, that set up a club as the fifth defensive trick.
