Viewers Backing Bush After Heated TV Exchange

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — CBS affiliates around the country were swamped with calls in support of Vice President George Bush after he and anchor Dan Rather engaged in an argumentative exchange during the "CBS Evening News."
"The lines lit up like a Christmas tree," said Wes Mills, a reporter for an affiliate in Arkansas.
Bush complained he was told Monday night's live interview would be part of a profile, not a "rehash" of his involvement in the Iran-Contra affair.

But Rather pressed Bush on the subject. During much of the interview, both talked at once, making it difficult to hear what either was saying.
"I don't want to be argumentative," Rather said at one point. Bush chuckled and said, "You do, Dan."

"Mr. Vice President, you set the rules for this talk. I didn't mean to step on your line there, but you insisted that this be live and you know I have a limited time here," Rather said at another point.
"That's why I want to get my share in on something other than what you want to talk about," Bush responded.
Kristin Taylor, a spokeswoman for the Bush presidential campaign, said CBS News senior political producer Richard Cohen "assured us that while Iran-Contra very likely would come up ... (the interview) wouldn't focus entirely on Iran-Contra. We had an understanding that it would focus on the vice president's national agenda."

CBS, however, said the Bush campaign insisted the interview be live instead of taped and that the network had prominently promoted the segment by promising Bush would be asked about the Iran-Contra affair.
"We were pretty flabbergasted when the vice president opened with, 'You misled me on what this is going to be' and the confrontational tone," said "CBS Evening News" executive producer Tom Bettag.

The interview ended abruptly with Rather asking Bush if he intended to have a news conference before the Iowa caucuses to cover the Iran issue. As Bush began his reply, "I've been to 86 news conferences since March..." Rather cut him off in midsentence, saying, "I gather the answer is no. Thank you very much for being with us, Mr. Vice President."

After the broadcast, CBS affiliates around the country reported they were flooded with calls, the vast majority complaining that Rather had been disrespectful.
"It's kind of, either way you're going to offend people," said Bettag. "I think I'd rather offend people by be-

Downtown Backers Study Ways Of Revamping Area

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
In their first 1988 meeting, members of the Downtown Greenville Association this morning discussed a broad spectrum of possible approaches to consider in efforts to significantly revitalize the downtown area of Greenville.

Officers of the 1988 board of directors — Lawrence Behr, president; Tom Haines, vice president; Dave Mosier, secretary, and Elaine Wollard, treasurer — touched on various possibilities in a planning session prior to a meeting of the full association's membership.

The association's board of directors is comprised of 25 members, and membership in the association numbers about 130, including property owners and persons who conduct their business in the downtown area.

One of the sectors involved in overall approaches will entail a decision on the status of the downtown mall — whether to maintain the mall in its present state or to take action to return the two-block area to its former status as an open street by demolishing the street structures in the mall.

The spokesmen all agreed that the eventual decision on the mall will basically hinge on the direction that the hoped-for influx of business may take. If the available downtown space becomes primarily devoted to professional establishments such as offices for lawyers, accountants, decorators, bankers — the obvious solution would be to maintain the mall in its present status.

Should an influx of major retail establishments take place, then consideration would have to be given to re-establishing the mall on Evans Street as a vehicular-parking area.

Whatever decision is to be made, the spokesmen emphasized, will be some time in the future and only after actual developments provide a solid indication on which plan for the mall will be most beneficial to downtown growth and to the public in general.

One point consistently emphasized is that the mall is only one part of the total downtown area and does not constitute the single major factor in overall planning.

Other factors to be studied by the board, in conjunction with the city and county governments, with other agencies and with property owners, include:

- The possibility of significantly increasing space for residential occupancy downtown. One part of this could conceivably be use of land at the old power plant on Tar River for construction of housing to include condominiums; another idea expressed is that of using upper floors of downtown businesses for residential occupancy, somewhat in the European manner.

- The concept of a major five-lane traffic artery from the medical complex to the downtown area. At this point, the association has not developed ideas for a specific route, but possibilities are for an artery down Fifth or one of the other streets connecting the medical complex to the downtown area.

- Plans that would offer inducement benefits to businesses or agencies that might consider occupancy of the large number of unoccupied spaces downtown. This would include as one advantage the fact rental rates for downtown space are said to be considerably less than in other areas of town.

- Ideas for immediately putting inducement into effect include offering window space in unoccupied buildings for displays by business, civic, church and other groups as a means of calling attention to their organizations and at the same time to enhance the appearance of the downtown area.

Association officers pointed out that the fate of the downtown area is of interest to a number of agencies and organizations including the city and county governments, with a hope that the county government will consider moving more of its functions downtown; Evergreen, the downtown planning agency; the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce; East Carolina University; the Regional Development Institute; the Downtown Greenville Association; the Property Owners Association, and others.

It is anticipated that in future development, the procedures of funding will be somewhat reversed from earlier practices — private spending to spur initial developments and supplying costs, with government sources then coming in to provide matching funds.

Evergreen Says Office Space Short

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

Officials of Evergreen of Greenville Inc. summarized a year of promoting economic development in downtown Greenville as Evergreen's 1987 annual report was presented Monday to the City Council at a workshop meeting at City Hall.

"We have had an extremely fun and good year in '87," said Jack Steelman, executive director of Evergreen.

Evergreen is a private, non-profit corporation established to encourage the development and redevelopment of Greenville's central city area.

Among the projects Steelman said were accomplished in 1987 was the establishment of a data base on every parcel of property downtown, a separate data base on vacant or undeveloped property, the sale of city-owned property on South Evans Street, and helping to recruit Talbert-Cox Associates, Fizz Bistro, and McGee Reographics into the downtown area.

Steelman said Evergreen's efforts in 1987 to promote the downtown area have been better coordinated with other city organizations, including the newly formed Downtown Greenville Property Owners Association, the Downtown Greenville Association and the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

"What last year was a group of about 25 people that were really concerned about downtown, that group has now grown to probably more than 400 to 500 people that are real involved in downtown," he said.

Steelman told council members that major efforts to be undertaken during the new year coincide with the group's objectives to increase the amount of private sector investment downtown, to increase interaction between downtown and East Carolina University, and the continuation of public sector and civic participation in the downtown revitalization.

Among Evergreen's current projects is increasing office space in the central city core.

"There is in fact in downtown Greenville as we speak, a real demand for some good quality office space and in fact, we're currently losing some extraordinarily good companies from downtown because we don't have some real good space for them," he said.

Steelman said Evergreen has found a site downtown and is under

Reagan Vows He'll Keep Pushing For Rebel Support

By MERRILL HARTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, in a State of the Union address brimming with optimism, proclaimed an American economic and military reawakening and vowed to push "to the finish line" for U.S. support of rebel movements in Nicaragua, Afghanistan and elsewhere.

Seeking a fresh start with Congress, Reagan invited both Democratic and Republican leaders to the White House today to discuss their legislative agendas.

The president called during the nationally broadcast speech Monday for new assistance to Contra rebels battling the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua and for U.S. support of democracies elsewhere.

As he stood before senators and representatives in the House chamber, Reagan sounded the same upbeat tone that has marked previous addresses. He talked of an "economic and social revolution of hope" in the United States and "global democratic revolution" around the world.

But Democrats immediately dismissed much of the speech as irrelevant.

"We've come to the end of an era," said Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va. "The 'feel-good' slogans have gone flat with time."

Reagan promised to go ahead with plans to submit to Congress on Wednesday a request for new assistance for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels, saying "the struggle has extra meaning because that nation is so near our own borders."

Bill Dansey Seeking GOP Backing For State Senate

Bill Dansey, a member of East Carolina University's Board of Trustees and a former Greenville City Councilman, filed today as a Republican candidate for the 9th Senatorial District seat now held by Greenville lawyer Tom Taft, a Democrat.

Dansey, president of WEDCO Enterprises, a land and multifamily development company, said he could provide more productive leadership for the community based on his past service.

"Most of our needs and a lot of our problems boil down to two basic issues: jobs and education," Dansey said. "I do not feel that we have had adequate leadership from our senator in enticing better jobs into the area covered by the 9th District, which encompasses parts of Pitt, Martin and Beaufort counties."

Dansey said he would like the opportunity to work with Gov. Jim Martin, and said, "Since the governor has been in office, we have added an additional 26,000 jobs in the state. We are currently one of the seven states being considered for the super col-leader, which would not only have a great impact on the northeastern part of the Raleigh metropolitan area, but would have a carryover effect into eastern North Carolina."

On the question of education,

Dansey said, "while the basic education plan is a step in the right direction, representing a commitment to improve our system, the manner in which it is constructed is basically ill-conceived."

"The dollars spent could be better utilized by eliminating some of the administration costs and concentrating more on installing the proper values and motivation in our students, prior to them reaching the fifth and sixth grades, which is considered a point of no-return."

According to Dansey, the basic education program "does not address the fact that we have a 26 percent illiteracy rate" in North Carolina. "Only 13 percent of our students attend college, and local industry has trouble finding entry level personnel."

Dansey, a 1963 graduate of East Carolina University, was the founder of the Pitt County Young Republicans, is a past district Republican chairman and served on the Greenville City Council in the early 1970s.

Driver Killed In Truck Wreck

A fiery crash at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Third Street left the driver of a pick-up truck dead early this morning, according to a policeman who witnessed the one-vehicle accident.

Investigators identified the man as Robert Clifton Waters Jr., 41, of Route 2, Winterville. He was traveling alone.

Officer K.M. Smeltzer, driving east on Third Street, said he saw the truck, headed south on Memorial Drive, cross the intersection 30 feet in front of him, then crash head-on into a utility pole and burst into flames.

Police used three fire extinguishers in an unsuccessful effort to extinguish the flames and get Waters out of the truck before fire-rescue department units arrived, according to police Lt. M.C. Jernigan.

Dr. Page Hudson, a regional medical examiner, said Waters "died almost instantly of massive chest injury. Although there was a fire," Hudson said, "he was dead before the fire."

Theft Arrests

Greenville police arrested four people Monday in connection with thefts reported at three local stores.

Officer C.A. Elks said David Cole Leonard, 18, of 405 Aycock Dorm and Stephen Corey Bryant, 18, of 438 Aycock Dorm were both charged with shoplifting in connection with the theft of two candles, valued at $12, from Kroger Save-On on Greenville Boulevard that was reported at 1:55 p.m.

Officer R.S. Sawyer said Johnnie G. Bright, 38, of Ayden was charged with shoplifting in connection with the theft of two pairs of jeans from Sears Roebuck & Co. at Carolina East Mall in an incident reported at 5:55 p.m. Sawyer said Bright was also charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

Officer J.W. Corbett said Timothy Wade Moore, 16, of Route 1, Grifton, was charged with shoplifting in connection with the theft of a cassette tape valued at $6.77 from the K mart store at Greenville Square Shopping Center in an incident reported at 7:28 p.m.

Property Stolen

Investigators said six thefts, including a machine used to start troubled hearts beating normally again, were reported to Greenville police Monday.

Officer F.G. Pruitt said a Life-Pac 5 defibrillator valued at $6,000 was taken from Pitt County Memorial Hospital in an incident reported at 1:48 p.m., while a leather coat valued at $125 was taken from the Sheraton Hotel on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 1:30 p.m.

Officer B.M. Highland said a number of items were taken from 208A Manhattan Ave. in an incident reported at 1:20 p.m.

Officer J.G. Bridges said a $320 dress was taken from Susan's Fine Fashions at 331 Arlington Blvd. in an incident reported at 1:48 p.m., while Officer W.E. Davis said a quantity of copper pipe was taken from the King & Queen North on North Greene Street in a break-in reported at 4:41 p.m.

According to Officer M.E. Hayes, two cameras were taken from the American Legion building on St. Andrews Drive in an incident reported at 4:58 p.m.

Schools' Group Studying Data

Pitt County's population will increase at a greater rate than the state or national population, its overall economy will grow faster than its overall population, and there will be more gender, ethnic and racial diversity in the political body of the county in the future.

These assumptions are among those the Futures Task Force of the Pitt County schools developed Monday night as it began strategic planning for the future of the school system.

Led by Dr. Jim Young of Pitt Community College and a member of the task force, the study group concentrated on external forces that affect the school system, such as demographics, economics, politics, technology and the social atmosphere.

These external forces are "beyond the control of the organization, but have dramatic effects on the organization," Young said.

During its next meeting the task force will re-evaluate the assumptions made and draw some implications for the schools from them. The implications will be used to make some recommendations for the Pitt County Board of Education.

Teacher Honored

Linda Gilmore has been selected Teacher of the Year at Sam D. Bundy School in Farmville.

She has taught 13 years in the Pitt County schools and holds a degree in early childhood education from East Carolina University.

Mrs. Gilmore has served as grade level chairman and teacher assistant team member and secretary. She served on several Southern Association Accreditation committees and represents the school on the county Social Studies Textbook Selection Committee.

Mrs. Gilmore has a 5-year-old daughter, Jennifer, and lives in Greenville.

State Construction Drops In November

Building activity in North Carolina's 45 largest cities for November 1987 dropped 7.5 percent from the activity recorded in 1986, according to state Labor Commissioner John C. Brooks.

According to statistics prepared by the N.C. Department of Labor, permits for 3,032 units were recorded in November compared to 3,277 units in November 1986.

Estimated value of the November activity was $192,883,381. The 1987 figure was 0.4 percent below the $193,635,699 recorded in 1986, but 1.1 percent above the $190,730,549 recorded in October 1987.

In Pitt County, permits were authorized for 98 residential units in November, with a total construction cost of $4,078,280. Pitt County had 36 non-residential permits authorized in November with construction costs totaling $1,785,525.

Of the residential permits granted during November in Pitt County, 41 permits were issued for single family units, 26 for multifamily units, and 31 for additions and alterations.

Statewide, the total residential unit permits issued in November, 2,041, dipped 13.7 percent from November 1986, in which there were 2,366, and also dipped 3.5 percent from October, at 2,115.

The average construction cost of a single-family home in November 1987, $70,117, rose 16.9 percent from $60,001 in November 1986, and 2.4 percent from $68,450 in October 1987.

Greensboro, with permits requested for a $10 million Embassy Suite Hotel, a $12 million Ciba-Geigy Corp. expansion, and a $2.2 million medical office, led in the value of authorized construction for the month with $36,569,848; followed by Durham, $26,411,145; Charlotte, $21,297,329; Raleigh, $21,235,462; Winston-Salem, $9,847,621; Wilmington, $8,554,393; Cary, $8,125,180, and High Point, with $7,643,977.

Ayden Man Draws Sentence, Big Fine

Alvin Justin "Buddy" Huggins, 36, of Route 2, Ayden, was sentenced to 45 years in prison and fined $400,000 after pleading guilty to drug violation charges Monday in Pitt County Superior Court.

Judge Samuel Currin ordered the prison term and fine after Huggins pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to sell and deliver cocaine, possession of cocaine, sale of cocaine and transporting cocaine.

Huggins, an Ayden businessman, was arrested March 4, 1987, following an undercover investigation by the State Bureau of Investigation, the Pitt County Sheriff's Department and Greenville and Ayden police departments.

Investigators said nine ounces of cocaine, with an estimated street value of $25,000, were recovered as a result of the investigation.

Programs Face Cuts In Funding

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Low Income and Crisis Intervention programs of the Pitt County Social Services Department each face a 15.9 percent cut in funds as a result of the federal budget approved in December, Ed Garrison, department director said.

In a regular meeting of the Pitt County Board of Social Services Monday, Garrison said the Crisis Intervention program would be most affected by the cut. "Our ability to help people in crisis situations is going to be very serious."

About $132,213 was budgeted for the program, he said, and $21,022 of the funds will be cut.

To ease but not eliminate the effects of the cut, the department received $1,700 through a federal Emergency, Food and Shelter Fund last week. The board approved a budget amendment to accept the funds and to present it to the county commissioners.

The department also anticipates receiving an additional $12,838 in late February for emergency, food and shelter. As of Jan. 15, $11,661 was in the department's Emergency Assistance fund.

The Low Income program, which presents a one-time check to qualified clients to meet energy costs, will provide smaller amounts in assistance, Garrison said.

In other matters, the board was briefed on the result of the 1987 fiscal year audit of the department, provided by Peat, Morwick, Main and Co. The audit pinpointed a discrepancy of about $815 due to human error, Garrison said. About $498 of that amount resulted through a conflict of policies from the state Division of Social Services, he said.

With a budget of about $30 million, "This has got to be an outstanding audit," Garrison said.

The board also discussed moving its meeting time from noon to afternoon or evening to better accommodate the public. The board agreed to decide on the issue during the regular meeting in February.

The department has two clerical and one eligibility specialist positions available, Garrison said. The board also agreed to petition county commissioners to allow recruitment for a vacant social worker II position.

The department provided board members with an organizational chart outlining employees and their positions.

Trucking Seminar

New state and federal laws affecting North Carolina motor carriers will be discussed at a trucking industry seminar scheduled Feb. 2 from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Willis Building, corner of First and Reade streets.

The seminar is sponsored by the N.C. Department of Transportation's Division of Motor Vehicles.

W.E. Brinson, assistant district supervisor for the DMV's License, Theft and Weight Enforcement section, said topics to be discussed by motor carrier safety officials include: new truck weight limit revisions approved by the 1987 General Assembly; terminal audits aimed at halting the falsification of log books by truck drivers, and the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986, a new federal law which imposes harsh penalties against truckers and bus drivers with convictions for serious traffic offenses.

Brinson said all owners and operators of vehicles licensed to operate with more than 10,000 pounds of weight are encouraged to attend.

ing tough than by being a pansy." He said it was he who insisted Rather cut the interview off because it was running too long. Rather's boss, Gene Jankowski, president of the CBS Broadcast Group, told the New York Post the interview "speaks for itself." He declined to give his opinion on Rather. "I won't share that with the press — good, bad or indifferent." Several other media spokesmen were critical of Rather.

"Rather went too far," ABC correspondent Sam Donaldson told USA Today. "He had a legitimate reason to try to press Bush. But in the give-and-take of these things I don't think we can get to a situation where we make — on our own authority — accusations." Christine Dolan, political director of Cable News Network, likewise sided with Bush. She said Rather "looked like an aging journalist having a mid-life crisis on national TV." But Edwin Diamond, a New York University journalism professor, said: "I don't think Bush walked into that unprepared. I think he planned to take the offensive. ... And I think he's decided to run Dan Rather, which isn't a very bad position to take. (Gary) Hart's been doing it and I think it'll win some short-term votes." Lee Atwater, Bush's campaign manager, told USA Today that "people who vote in Republican primaries are calling in and telling us that they think the vice president did a hell of a job tonight." Late in the interview, Bush told Rather, "It's not fair to judge my whole career by a rehash on Iran. How would you like it if I judged your career by those seven minutes when you walked off the set in New York? Would you like that? I have respect for you, but I don't respect what you're doing here tonight." "Mr. Vice President," responded Rather, "I think you will agree that your qualifications for president and what kind of leadership you'd bring the country and what kind of government you'd have ... is much more important than what you just referred to." Rather made news last September when he walked off the set of the "CBS Evening News" — on location in Miami not in New York — after being told that live CBS Sports coverage of the U.S. Open Tennis Tournament would cut into the early edition of the "CBS Evening News." When the tennis ended early, Rather couldn't get back to the news desk in time, and the network feed to affiliates went black for six minutes. Rather insisted he was defending against what he saw as an attempt to "trivialize" the news. Rather had a heated on-camera brush with President Richard Nixon in 1974 during the Watergate scandal. After some pointed questioning from Rather, Nixon asked him, "Are you running for something?" Rather responded, "No sir, are you?" Monday night, the response was "immediate and strong," said Dave Howell, news director at KTSP-TV in Phoenix, Ariz. "We had many phone calls, and they were predominantly negative towards Mr. Rather." Howell said the station got more than 100 calls and estimated that about two-thirds were critical of Rather. "We heard from dozens of people," said Mills, of KFSM-TV in Fort Smith, Ark. "Most wanted CBS' address or telephone number. And some wanted to talk to Dan Rather directly and read him the riot act. They thought he was picking on George Bush." WCCO-TV in Minneapolis received about 200 phone calls complaining about Rather's handling of the interview, said Steve Olson, who was working the switchboard when the calls came in. "I actually had two calls that were on Rather's side. They said, 'Way to go, Dan Rather.'" Olson said. The majority of callers were critical of Rather, said Robert Davis, corporate manager of research at WCCO-TV. At CBS-owned affiliate WBBM-TV in Chicago, a news writer who spoke on condition of anonymity said the station began getting calls during the newscast. "Most of them are saying that Rather was rude to the vice president and that he abused his power and that he was acting like he was biased to the Democrats," said the reporter.

Warren Appointed

State Rep. Ed Warren of Greenville and state Sen. Frank Block of Wilmington have been appointed co-chairmen of the North Carolina Commission on Tourism's Growth and Effect, a legislative panel created during the last session of the General Assembly. Hubert Terry of Greenville has been appointed one of three public members on the panel, which consists of 10 legislators and three public members. The 13-member board will meet in New Bern Thursday and Friday at the Sheraton Convention Center. The Travel Council of North Carolina is also holding its winter board of directors meeting in New Bern on Thursday.

Project Child Find

An effort is under way in Pitt County to identify children and youth through ages 21 who are handicapped and need special education and other services, said Barry Gaskins, public information officer of Pitt County schools. Gaskins said Project Child Find is a statewide effort to find children who are diagnosed or suspected to be mentally, physically or emotionally handicapped and unable to benefit from a regular school program without special assistance.

To identify children who are handicapped and not in school or are receiving special help, call the Pitt County schools at 830-4228, the state Division for Exceptional Children at 733-3004 or CARE-LINE at 1-800-662-7030.

Canoe Club Formed

Canoe enthusiasts from Carteret, Craven and Pitt counties met in New Bern recently and organized the first canoe club devoted to promoting canoeing and kayaking in eastern North Carolina.

Ben Epting III of New Bern was named as the club's first president.

Plans for the group include hosting the Craven County Canoe Rendezvous on May 20-22 in New Bern, and other canoe floats throughout eastern North Carolina.

Cotton Meeting

Twenty-two Pitt County farmers attended a recent meeting held in Greenville to discuss whether or not they should plant cotton in 1988.

Two guest specialists in cotton from North Carolina State University, Dr. Bill Eickhoff, extension economist, and Dr. David Guthrie, cotton specialist, attended the meeting, which was sponsored by the Pitt County Extension office.

Eickhoff discussed the current world situation regarding cotton production and mentioned the latest regulations on cotton cultivation.

Guthrie discussed cultural practices involved in production and the importance on monitoring cotton crops closely for weed pressure and insect pests.

While acreage planted to cotton is projected to increase by about 10 to 16 percent in the Southeast during 1988, the speakers said the decision to plant cotton locally requires that producers make a commitment to its management.

Reynolds Grant

The Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation of Winston-Salem has awarded the School of Education at East Carolina University a $25,000 grant to upgrade a child care center at Agnes Fullilove Community School in Greenville.

The grant will be administered through Project PARENTING (Proactive Assessment and Regulation of Environmental Nurturing and Teaching Interventions for Normal Growth), an educational program designed by ECU and Caswell Center to teach parenting skills to selected adolescent mothers enrolled in Pitt County schools.

Although the day care center is open to all children in Pitt County, the majority of those enrolled are the offspring of teen-aged mothers who attend Fullilove, an alternative secondary program of Pitt County schools.

Becky Taylor, director of Project PARENTING, said the bulk of the money will be used to pay the salary of a full-time director. The grant will also be used to transform the center into a training site for students from Fullilove and ECU.

Planning Manager

Katelyn Jeanette Highsmith has been named manager of conference planning for the United Network for Organ Sharing, based in Richmond, Va.

Ms. Highsmith will coordinate functions of the travel department, including planning conferences and board meeting and supervising travel bookings.

She was operations manager for the Washington, D.C., office of Spectrum Planning Inc. before joining UNOS, a national computerized organ-matching network.

Ms. Highsmith is the daughter of Evelyn H. Moye of Greenville.

Members Sought

Former paratroopers and glidermen from all airborne units are being sought for membership in the 82nd Airborne Division Association, a spokesman said.

Men who were members of the 11th, 13th, 17th, 101st, 173d, 187th, 188th, 509th, 511th, 542d, 551st and 555th Airborne Divisions, as well as Rangers, Special Forces, Marine Force Recon, Navy Seals, Air Force Air Commandos and Special Operations Command are being sought for the association.

The 1988 annual convention will be in Louisville, Ky., in August.

For information write to: Airborne 88, 5459 Northcutt Place, Dayton, Ohio, 45414, or call 513-898-5977.

Tobacco Regulations

Farmers who intend to import tobacco plants for the 1988 growing season should be aware of regulations covering such imports, says N.C. Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham.

Under the regulations, farmers who plan to obtain plants from outside North Carolina are required first to obtain a permit. The regulation is designed to assure that plants from other states are as free as possible from insects and diseases.

For more information contact the Plant Industry Division, Plant Protection Section, N.C. Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 27647, Raleigh, N.C., 27611 — telephone 733-6930, or contact the county agricultural extension office.

Office Space Needs Studied

contract with the owners of the land to bring to them a proposal for the development of that property.

He said within the confines of that contract, Evergreen has obtained the initial stages of the design of a 52,000 square-foot office structure for which major contractors have offered cost estimates at approximately $4.5 million.

"It will frankly be the largest office building, not only ever built in downtown Greenville, but anywhere in all of Pitt County," Steelman said.

"We're extremely pleased for what that would do for the tax base for downtown," he added.

Steel said the group is also directly involved with another office building being proposed downtown which would involve a single tenant in a 36,000 square-foot building.

"Some of the design work and cost estimates have also been done on that project and the investment would involve $2.5 million in building cost," he said.

Stelman said a major concern about a project of that magnitude is keeping lease rates in line with other office space throughout the city.

"We want to increase the tax base, of course, as much as possible but we want to do it in a way where everyone involved wins. We don't want to see a lot of space built downtown that will just stay vacant for a long period of time," he said.

Another project Steelman said Evergreen is currently undertaking is an attempt to locate a hotel-conference facility in the downtown area.

"We mailed out letters probably four months ago to about 90 companies that we have found to deal, own and operate hotels. We have one which very much so wants to deal with downtown Greenville," he said.

Stelman said a major hotel firm has indicated interest in constructing a downtown hotel whose cost would be approximately $6.5 million.

"We do though have a whole lot of work left to do, as it relates to helping them find the land to build that building on," he said.

Stelman refused to reveal details but said, "The project would involve more of an inn-type atmosphere more so than just strictly a commercial-type room."

He added the firm is also interested in building a significant amount of conference room space for workshops, seminars and other educational programs routinely sponsored by ECU.

Stelman also said Evergreen has increased its interaction with ECU during 1987 and the office of the chancellor has been extremely supportive of both the concept of a hotel-conference facility, and the establishment of an improved entrance to the campus from downtown.

"Overall, in sum, we began last year with a whole lot of hope and we have some things in the works right now that if they all were to happen, we could be speaking about the new buildings downtown that could roughly increase the tax base of downtown by half," Steelman said.

Council-member Nancy Jenkins said Evergreen's report was an optimistic outlook of downtown prospects.

"Anything that enhances downtown is certainly needed. I would like to see some of these things move along," she said.

Other workshop matters Monday night included the presentation of reports from council liaisons to the various boards and commissions.

"These reports give us a greater insight as to what's happening on the boards," said Mayor Ed Carter.

Council also discussed the addition of a City Council office in City Hall, and agreed to delay until March the decision to determine the terms of office for the next mayor and council.

According to Mac McCarley, city attorney, state law authorizes cities to amend their charter by local ordinance, to establish the terms of office for council members and the mayor.

City Report Will Include Calendar

The 1987 annual report for the city of Greenville will have more to it this year than the usual financial figures.

This year's report, tentatively scheduled to be distributed the first part of February, will be distributed as part of a 1988 calendar.

According to Loretta Lewellyn, public information director for the city, the calendar will include pertinent dates for the city including city events, and boards and commission dates.

Ms. Lewellyn said the calendar is designed "to give citizens a document that will not only be informative but usefull throughout the year."

Because of the extra pages required for the calendar, Ms. Lewellyn said the length of the report to be printed will double that of last year.

According to Ron Kimble, city finance director, the cost of the project will also be doubled.

According to Kimble, approximately $4,500 was budgeted for printing and distributing the report last year. Kimble said an additional $4,500 has been appropriated from the city budget to cover extra costs created by expansion of the calendar.

Ms. Lewellyn said the city plans to distribute the report to Greenville residents as an insert in the Daily Reflector, as has been done in the past.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Make Revaluation Fair, Consistent

The Pitt County Commissioners should make sure the 1988 tax revaluation is equitable, fair, and doesn't amount to a back door tax hike for residents.

Revaluation is essential to maintaining a reasonable tax base and providing an accurate assessment of real property value in the county. The practice, along with adjusting the county's tax rate, is a sound way to distribute the tax burden.

But the success of this project lies in the hand of the county commissioners. That board must be certain equitable distribution is the effect of the shifts in revenue the revaluation produces. Real property value appears to have risen sharply — from $1.8 billion in 1987 to an estimated $2.2 billion in 1988. At the current tax rate, this incline represents a significant rise in bills for taxpayers — in effect, a tax increase.

It is the commissioners' responsibility, when setting the tax rate, to avoid a taxation system that overburdens property owners. Adjustments to ease this rise should be looked at. It is unfair to force a precipitous value increase on residents without compensation.

In addition, tax values should follow a consistent pattern and be easily understood by affected businesses and homeowners. A county tax system should be based on uniformity and reasonable procedures.

Although it is required by state law every eight years, Pitt's property value adjustment is a response to capricious shifting of the tax burden by the N.C. General Assembly. The county lost $64 million from its tax base when the Legislature eliminated the household property tax in 1986. In 1988, it will lose $240 million from the 1987 repeal of the inventory tax.

It should be noted, however, the county received some compensation from a half-cent sales tax added in 1987. In addition, its population has grown, contributing more to the tax base.

The increase in real property value could add $400 million to Pitt's tax base — far higher than the estimated $308 million it stands to lose from state rearrangements. The commission should acknowledge this fact when it considers the county's tax rate. It is important that the citizens be taxed at a rate that reflects their ability to pay.

Pitt's taxpayers should not bear the burden of state-mandated changes. The commissioners have the power and expertise to prevent this from happening. Tax revaluation time should not be an opportunity for an automatic tax increase.

Health Issue

The Onslow County Commissioners ended plans for a sanitary sewer system in the southwest portion of the county after meeting a flurry of opposition from property owners.

The objection was the cost of tapping on to the system and the monthly charges residents would be paying.

It was, of course, a local issue and when the Onslow board could find hardly anyone who favored going ahead with the sewer system it closed the matter. And that's the end of it.

But is it? Developing rural areas are seeing a proliferation of septic tanks. Individuals frequently have problems with their own septic systems, but also environmentalists believe that eventually the presence of large numbers of septic tanks in a small area will mean groundwater pollution and serious public health and sanitation problems.

Pitt County is included in these rapidly-developing areas that may suffer the effects of over-saturating with septic systems. Until now, little attention has been focused on the potential problem.

It is a matter that will eventually have to be addressed. There may have to be state regulations concerning the placement of septic tanks, and local action to alleviate the problem will certainly have to come. Traditionally this has meant the extension of municipal limits to embrace newly developed areas, or sometimes the formation of new municipalities to address this and other problems. A possible wave of the future may be creation by counties of rural sanitary sewer districts.

Whatever is done will be costly — and the cost must be born by the user.

The Onslow county commissioners, to their credit, tried for a solution in this case. Perhaps they made mistakes in presentation, but they, and all counties, should learn from whatever mistakes might have occurred.

There is a general problem of too many septic tanks in small pockets of growth in eastern North Carolina — and that includes Pitt County. Before serious public health issues arise, communities must plan how to handle the problem and begin educating the public on the need for future action.

Trading Places In The Final Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and congressional Democrats have changed tunes: He is acting conciliatory, trying to make a mark in history, and they are talking tough, saying his presidency is over and irrelevant to setting the national agenda.

In his final State of the Union address Monday night, Reagan asked Congress to forget the political calendar and keep marching to his drumbeat, ignoring that he is a wounded leader playing out his last months in power.

"My thinking on the next year is quite simple," Reagan told lawmakers. "Let's make this the best of eight. And that means it's all out, right to the finish line. I don't buy the idea that this is the last year of anything."

Not surprisingly, the Democrats have a different idea.

"We've come to the end of an era," Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said. "The feel-good slogans have gone flat with time. We've learned that bravado is not leadership, that ideology is no substitute for common sense."

Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., the House majority whip, said: "The agenda-setting will be done by members of his party and our party in the Congress. We are looking ahead. Ronald Reagan is not a part of the future. He's part of the past."

'In his final State of the Union address Monday night, Reagan asked Congress to forget the political calendar and keep marching to his drumbeat, ignoring that he is a wounded leader playing out his last months in power.'

Not so long ago, Reagan was clearly the lead player in Washington, whipping Congress into following his script on tax changes, aid to Contra rebels in Nicaragua and curtailing federal spending. He said if he couldn't make Congress see the light, then he'd make them feel the heat.

Democrats were reluctant to challenge so popular a president, pulling their punches even when they opposed and criticized him.

But the Democratic takeover of Congress in 1986 and the punishment Reagan took all last year on the Iran-Contra affair have combined with the reality of the presidential election year to make Reagan vulnerable.

On some issues, Reagan and the Democrats who run Congress have identical ideas, so the president won't end his term empty-handed. The best example is the newly signed U.S.-Soviet treaty to eliminate intermediate-range nuclear missiles, awaiting ratification by the Senate.

That treaty, and a still-sought agreement to trim the more deadly strategic nuclear arms, would be a prize that would cap Reagan's entire presidency. He seems sure to get the first one, but he has less certain chances to achieve the second.

Even more up in the air is the fate of his request for more money for the Contra rebels, with Congress deeply divided over whether to sustain the insurgents.

Playing for votes, Reagan has scaled down his request, to below $50 million, and has earmarked all but about 10 percent of it for "non-lethal" assistance. Furthermore, it appears likely he will agree to delay the delivery of the "lethal" military component pending an assessment of the Nicaraguan government's adherence to the Central America peace agreement.

Reagan also urged Congress to make major changes in its chaotic budget process — a goal that Democrats and Republicans alike applauded, although a remedy seems unlikely anytime soon.

For all his conciliatory talk Monday night, Reagan will have to trade punches with Congress to remain in the ring.

A senior White House official predicted that "it's going to be a tumultuous and energetic session of Congress" and that "this is not going to be a lame-duck eighth year."

Offering a rosy scenario for the retiring president, the official said, "I think he is going to, in fact, realize... (his belief) that there is a prospect that his eighth year could be his best year."

That could happen — if he becomes the conciliator, willing to compromise with a Congress increasingly willing to draw a line in the sand.

Terence Hunt has covered Ronald Reagan since his 1980 campaign for the presidency and is the AP's White House correspondent.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I'm responding to Thomas Allan's letter (Daily Reflector, Jan. 19) in which he objects to a Martin Luther King holiday because Dr. King is "first and foremost a hero of the black community."

As a white citizen of Greenville, I would like to state loudly and proudly that I consider Dr. King one of my heroes. The test of who is a hero in this country is not one of what color the hero's skin is, but rather what that person has done for our country. It is sad to me that Mr. Allan fails to see the way in which his own life and that of our nation's have been enriched by the efforts of Dr. King and others to bring black America out of second-class citizenship and into the mainstream of American life.

Yes, George Washington helped to forge our Constitution, which Mr. Allan calls the "greatest document on behalf of mankind that the world has known." True enough. What Mr. Allan fails to point out is that, despite the existence of such a document, Black America was not allowed to eat in the same restaurants as white, was required to give up its bus seats to white, was relegated to second-class schools — and the list goes on. When this state existed, Mr. Allan, were you standing up and shouting at the top of your lungs that this was a violation of the Constitution that you profess to love so much. George Washington may have helped to forge the Constitution. Martin Luther King helped to make that document a living reality.

I agree with Mr. Allan that we need national holidays that bring us together. I cannot think of a more fitting hero for such a holiday than a man who tried to bring black and white America together and to teach us that we are all brothers and sisters. It is time to recognize that it is not black America who is dividing us by demanding a national holiday for Dr. King, but rather those segments of the white community that still see black America as "other."

Strength For Today

Arnold Toynbee, in "A Study of History," lays down the proposition that civilizations disintegrate because of a deficiency in the spiritual life of a nation. By the same token, those nations which make a spiritual emphasis and which are particularly diligent as regards social responsibilities, improve and press on to heights of creative achievement.

All this is pregnant with meaning for students of modern world affairs. Whither are we bent? If a willingness on the part of citizens to sacrifice makes a nation great, if unselfishness and love have political as well as moral connotations, then we had better ponder the policies of modern life.

It is refreshing to find a great historian such as Toynbee making a spiritual emphasis.

Unfinished Battle

— Richard Morin —

WASHINGTON — After sports commentator Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder was cut loose by CBS for his bizarre lunchtime screed on blacks in professional sports, he mused on how he had been betrayed by the very thing that had made him famous: The odds.

"Do you know the odds against me being at that restaurant at that time, on that day, answering those questions?" he asked. "Minnesota had to win at New Orleans and then win at San Francisco and Washington had to win at Chicago. Then the camera I was using for my piece ... had to break down for 40 minutes. All that had to happen for that interview to take place when it did Friday."

There's another way to look at that. Imagine all of the hurtful nonsense uttered daily by prominent men and women out of earshot or camera range of America's journalists.

The loquacious oddsmaker has no monopoly on trash-mouthing. Jesse Jackson paid dearly for his intemperate "Hymietown" remark in the 1984 presidential campaign. More recently, Arizona Gov. Evan Mecham has been busy setting a new North American record for intolerant verbosity. In his first year in office, Mecham has managed to offend blacks, gays, Democrats, women and, just a few weeks ago, Orientals.

Such remarks are all the more dismaying because they come at a time when public-opinion polls tell us racial attitudes have changed dramatically in recent decades. Consider these results:

- In 1948, pollster Elmo Roper found that 63 percent of those surveyed said they would prefer not to have blacks move into their neighborhood. Last year, only 13 percent of those questioned by the Gallup Organization offered a similar opinion. (Members of religious sects and cults led the Gallup list, with 44 percent of those surveyed saying they would not want that group as neighbors.)
- Fifty-five percent of the non-black respondents interviewed in the 1963 General Social Survey said they believed that "white people have a right to keep Negroes out of their neighborhoods." But only 26 percent agreed in 1985.

- Sixty-one percent of non-blacks held the view in 1963 that "there should be laws against marriage between Negroes and whites." But only 28 percent agreed in 1985.

So progress as been made. And that's comforting. Perhaps too comforting. Because there remains the disturbing and real possibility that many Americans may continue to hold racist views.

And although overt racism may be passe, uncomfortably large numbers of Americans reject remedies that would speed up true equality. "Although an overwhelming majority of Americans, for example, endorse the principle of integrated schools and neighborhoods (as long as blacks are not half or more), they are divided on public laws to enforce residential integration," wrote Everett Carl Ladd, senior editor of Public Opinion in an article that was part of the magazine's excellent special July-August issue on prejudice.

Ladd noted that the 1985 General Social Survey found that 47 percent of all Americans said they would support a law that "says that a homeowner can decide for himself whom to sell his house to, even if prefers not to sell to blacks." And barely half — 51 percent — said they would favor a law that "says a homeowner cannot refuse to sell to someone because of their race or color."

But Ladd also noted that there are other signs of increased racial tolerance. Among the most persuasive: the growing numbers of elected and appointed black officials, as well as the expanding black middle class.

Costs Vs. Benefits Point Soviets To Door In Afghanistan

By the time he receives President Reagan in Moscow later this year, General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev hopes to have cut the Gordian knot of Soviet embroilment in Afghanistan.

While Soviet public optimism on this score is in part designed to pressure the United States, significant shifts in Moscow's negotiating stance augur well for early agreement.

Earlier this month the Soviets dropped their long-standing insistence on fixing the composition of the interim Afghan government before agreeing to a timetable for troop withdrawal. Gorbachev has now simply de-coupled the internal political settlement question from what he sees as the more important issue of a U.S. guarantee of a neutral, non-aligned Afghanistan.

How can we explain this Soviet decision? Most Western observers have long maintained that the Soviets depart from territory they occupy only when extreme military and international pressure give them no alternative.

Yet this is not the case in Afghanistan. The military confrontation is stalemated but the Soviets could sustain their strategy of entrenchment for the foreseeable future, U.S.-supplied Stinger missiles notwithstanding. As far as international pressure is concerned, the worst is over and the current thaw in East-West relations has made the United States somewhat more responsive on the Afghan issue.

Rather than seeking to account for recent changes in Soviet policy in terms of overwhelming direct pressure, we should see this shift as the product of a careful assessment of costs and benefits by a leadership less committed than its predecessors to doctrinaire ideological expansionism and more sensitive to the flaws of building security on the basis of military force. Viewed from Gorbachev's pragmatic cost-benefit perspective, the Soviet Union's Afghan policy shows serious and deepening deficits in the domestic balance, in Afghanistan itself and in the international arena.

At home, growing public dissatisfaction with the war is beginning to add political costs to the material burden (about 1 percent-2 percent of the defense budget) long imposed by a stalemated conflict. With an estimated 10,000 to 12,000 dead, another 20,000 wounded and half a million veterans, Soviet society is beginning to display some of the phenomena familiar to any American who experienced the Vietnam period. Glasnost has made it possible for the public and veterans to air their criticism. Izvestia published a poll showing that a majority of the population want all troops withdrawn.

The situation on the ground in Afghanistan points in the same direction. Gorbachev knows that it would take a much larger commitment of forces to extend control beyond the one-fifth of the territory that the Soviets and their Afghan allies presently hold. Attempts to "Afghanize" the war effort have foundered in ways reminiscent of Vietnam — on the poor morale, organization and persistent divisions within the Afghan armed forces and the faction-ridden government.

Such divisions have also plagued Soviet attempts to construct a stable political regime.

While all this must figure importantly in Gorbachev's thinking, it is the international dimension that has probably been critical in the decision to pull out. A changing international environment has transformed what were originally the reasons for intervention into arguments for withdrawal. There are fewer grounds now for Soviet fears of an unstable Afghanistan falling prey to Iranian revolutionary zeal, Chinese influence and American imperialism. Iranian energies are being largely dissipated elsewhere, China is no longer the enemy it once was and larger arms-control issues now cushion relations with Washington. In these circumstances continued Soviet presence in Afghanistan weakens rather than strengthens Soviet security as understood in the broader political sense favored by Gorbachev.

This perhaps makes a Soviet withdrawal without political strings sound too much a foregone conclusion. The Kremlin still has hurdles to clear before it will withdraw its forces. And there are serious problems to contemplate in the longer term.

Soviet officials have stressed that they do not want to leave Kabul in the way the United States left Saigon. Even if the Soviets manage to leave in a dignified fashion, they still have to face the high probability of a hostile Afghan regime coming to power in their wake. At present, Soviet leaders seem to cherish rather forlorn hopes of maintaining reasonable economic and diplomatic relations with a broadly based regime whose neutralized status is guaranteed by the United States.

Should the United States oblige by providing such guarantees? Some would argue that precisely because the Soviet Union so strongly wishes to pull out of Afghanistan, this cannot be in the West's interests: better to keep Afghanistan as a pressure point. Such views seem misguided. The West should facilitate an agreement that enables the Soviet Union to withdraw its forces while ensuring firm safeguards for Afghan political self-determination. Quite apart from its obvious humanitarian benefits, such an agreement would help to reinforce the more flexible, cost-benefit approach to foreign policy that Gorbachev espouses. Surely a Soviet leadership wishing to strengthen security by political rather than military means is to be encouraged.

Soviet Cards

PESHAWAR, Pakistan — While professing eagerness to end its devastating occupation, the Soviet Union at the same time is fastening tentacles on every aspect of life in Afghanistan to enhance its post-withdrawal influence.

The involuntary dispatch to Soviet schools of between 15,000 and 25,000 Afghan children, many of them taken from their homes, is a case in point. Why should Moscow do this? "To make use of them at some future time back in Afghanistan," one of the seven Mujahedin leaders based here on the Pakistan-Afghan border told us.

Afghan hatred of the Soviet invader burns hot today. In a country of only 15 million, the war has killed more than one million Afghan citizens. It has created five million refugees here and in Iran and still another one million in Afghanistan.

Yet, despite the extraordinary Afghan military success against its mighty invader, even the smoothest formula for Soviet withdrawal of its 115,000 troops will leave ominous Soviet influence behind.

For the first time since it kidnaped Greek schoolchildren in World War II, the Soviets have forcibly deported Afghan schoolchildren for indoctrination by communist apparatchiks back home in the Soviet Union. Although it is not easy to change the political orientation of human beings, and although the Soviet effort to do so has not been an unqualified success, the attempt clearly demonstrates a Soviet intent to maintain future influence.

However rapidly the Kremlin may finally decide to pull out its troops, other roots now deeply planted after nearly a decade of Soviet rule cannot possibly be destroyed fast, if at all. That assures long-range, continuing Soviet influence, whatever the terms of a political settlement.

The official history books about Afghanistan now being used in most schools are so skewed with political and ideological indoctrination that their record of modern Afghanistan scarcely starts until Soviet troops arrived in 1979. And during these occupation years, the number of schools has dropped by a shocking 80 percent — through devastation in the war, the decimation of population in villages and towns and the exodus of refugees.

Some Pro-Martin Business Leaders Switching Allegiance To Jordan

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
Several Mecklenburg business leaders who supported Republican Gov. Jim Martin in 1984 have shifted allegiance, helping Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan raise money for a campaign some expect to cost $5 million.

"I think (Jordan) is going to represent the business interests," said John Georgious, president of First Union National Bank in Charlotte and Jordan's state finance chairman. "He's a businessman at heart, conservative-thinking."

In other political developments Monday, former State Sen. Wendell Sawyer filed for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, Insurance Commissioner Jim Long filed for another term, a former Ku Klux Klan grand dragon filed to challenge Jordan for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and the Rev. Jesse Jackson's presidential campaign announced he would travel to the North Carolina coast Wednesday to meet with fishermen affected by the red tide.

Among the Jordan contributors in Martin's political back yard are Ed Crutchfield, chairman of First Union Corp.; Georgious; developer H. Allen Tate Jr.; and Mark Erwin, president of Crosland-Erwin Associates. Each supported Martin in 1984.

Martin represented Mecklenburg County in Congress before becoming governor and was a professor at Davidson College and a county commissioner before going to Congress. In 1984, Martin won 67 percent of Mecklenburg's vote in defeating Democrat Rufus Edmisten.

"I think the world of Jim Martin," Erwin said, "but a Republican governor and a Democratic legislature doesn't work too well in terms of effectiveness."

Jordan "is a consensus builder," said Crutchfield, who grew up with Jordan in Mount Gilead. "I think the man's strength is that he'll be able to bridge the gap between the legislative branch and the executive branch."

Republicans dismiss such suggestions, as well as the notion that Martin's business support is eroding.

"If you're looking for leadership or a demonstration of leadership, then I would suggest that the stronger leader in the General Assembly was not the lieutenant governor but the speaker of the House or some others," said ex-state GOP Chairman Bob Bradshaw of Charlotte.

Sawyer said Monday he was the only Republican candidate for lieutenant governor with the experience and feistiness to do battle with legislative Democrats.

Sawyer is a Greensboro attorney who was a state senator in 1985-86. He said the most important issue in the race for the state's second-ranking office was reforming the General Assembly, saying it was in the clutches of a small clique of Democrats.

"Somehow we've got to break that power structure," Sawyer said. "That power structure has got to come tumbling down."

Sawyer, 36, is the third Republican to enter the race.

Unlike state Rep. Bill Boyd and former U.S. Rep. Jim Gardner, who announced their candidacies at rallies surrounded by dozens of supporters, Sawyer paid his $641 filing fee at the State Board of Elections accompanied only by his wife and one of his three children.

But Sawyer insisted he had broad support across the state and that a high-profile, big-money campaign was not needed to secure the GOP nomination.

Long, meanwhile, said he would seek a second term after leading his department from what he called a troubled past to a "bright new day."

The Alamance County lawyer said that under his tenure, the North Carolina Department of Insurance had become "a model of efficiency and responsiveness."

It "has been singled out time and time again on the important issues affecting consumers, small business, the elderly and public safety," Long said at a news conference at the state Democratic headquarters packed with about 100 supporters.

Carroll W. Crawford, 43, a self-employed mechanic from Mount Ulla, said Monday he did not believe his former Klan affiliation would hurt his chances for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

"When you go behind that curtain to vote, no one knows who you vote for," Crawford said. "I've had a lot of people tell me they couldn't support me out on the streets but they'd vote for me."

"I'd like to see lower taxes," Crawford said. "I think we can lower taxes and still have good governmental work. I know we've got a lot of waste in government spending. This has been proved time and time again."

Jackson Wednesday will be making his first campaign visit to the state where he attended college since last October, when he announced his candidacy in Raleigh at the convention of the National Rainbow Coalition.

Jackson's schedule calls for him to go out on an oyster boat Wednesday afternoon and to meet with fishermen and their families at Nixon's Shucking House in Wilmington to discuss their problems.

Jackson, a South Carolina native who graduated from North Carolina A&T State University in Greensboro, has focused much of his campaign on the problems of those suffering from economic dislocations, such as struggling farmers in the Midwest and unemployed steel workers.

He also will meet with supporters at the Raleigh civic center, attend a ribbon-cutting at his state headquarters in Raleigh and attend an evening rally at a Greenville church.

IN THE STATE

Apprehended

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A 13-year fugitive from a life jail sentence for a North Carolina murder was captured last weekend in Livingston, the FBI said Monday.

Billy Clem McRae, 44, was arrested at his home Saturday, said FBI spokesman James Knights here. McRae was sentenced in 1969 for the 1968 first-degree murder of a candy truck owner during a robbery, Knights said.

He fled Oct. 7, 1975, from the North Carolina Department of Corrections in Rockingham, N.C., Knights said. Federal authorities in New Jersey charged him with unlawful flight to avoid confinement and he was sent to the Essex County Jail, pending extradition proceedings, Knights said.

McRae had been working as a self-employed mason in New Jersey, the agent said.

Bell Tower

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Clean-up costs for the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill bell tower — which was splattered with red paint before the Tar Heels game against North Carolina State — could be more than originally estimated, the director of the school's physical plant said.

Herbert D. Paul said Monday that oil- or lacquer-based paint was used instead of latex paint. That probably will make the cost of removing the paint more expensive, said Paul, who originally estimated the cost at $400 to $500.

Teens Shot

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A Davidson County man was in jail Monday charged with killing his daughter's boyfriend and wounding another teen-ager after his daughter and the two youths returned from a joyride, sheriff's officials said.

Timothy Clinton Daniels, 37, was arrested Sunday on a charge of first-degree murder and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, inflicting serious injury, said Davidson County Sheriff's Capt. Jim Johnson.

Daniels is charged with killing Trent Dean Hamilton, 16, by shooting him in the head once with a 12-gauge shotgun shortly before 1 a.m. Sunday, Johnson said.

The assault charge stems from the injury of David Michael Wright, 16, who was struck in the left cheek by a pellet from the shotgun blast. Wright was treated at High Point Regional Hospital and released, Johnson said.

Pit Bull

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A High Point police officer says he shot and killed a pit bulldog after it charged at him.

Officer J.M. Fain said he shot the dog with his service revolver outside a High Point home when the animal refused to halt. Fain and Officer Bruce Williams had been dispatched to the area about 1 p.m. Sunday to investigate a report of a dog running at large.

He saw the dog running toward him as he turned to walk to his patrol car, a police report said. He fired once at the dog as he got within 5 to 6 feet, Fain said. The dog turned and started running off, Fain then pulled his shotgun from his patrol car and followed, shooting the dog twice.

Sentence

RALEIGH (AP) — White supremacist Robert Eugene Jackson was sentenced Monday to a six-month active prison sentence and a five-year suspended sentence for failing to appear at his Elizabeth City weapons conspiracy trial in April.

Jackson was convicted in absentia on charges of conspiracy to obtain illegal military weapons.

Jackson also has been indicted on three counts of first-degree murder, two counts of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and one count each of kidnapping, arson, robbery with a dangerous weapon and conspiracy. The charges stem from a triple murder at a Shelby adult bookstore in January 1987.

Three N.C. Escapees Captured

By The Associated Press

Three of the five inmates that used a spoon to cut through the ceiling of their cell block and escape from the Johnston County Jail have been recaptured in New Jersey, authorities said today.

Johnston County Sheriff's deputies are on their way to Atlantic City, N.J., to question Jerry Scott Hill, 16, of Benson, who is charged with arson; Sherrill Lynn Johnson, 16, of Benson, charged with larceny of firearms; and Thomas Ray Lucas, 17, of Dunn, charged with felonious larceny, according to Sheriff Freddy Narron.

Narron would not say how or where the three were taken into custody.

The inmates were discovered missing about 6 a.m. Monday, although they could have "left as early as 1:30 a.m. or even 1 a.m.," Narron said.

Robert Edward Norris, 16, of Norlina, who is accused of setting the Christmas night fire that destroyed the main building of Four Oaks School, is one of two escaped prisoners still at-large, Narron said. The other is Jackie Wilson, 19, of New York City, charged with possession of marijuana.

Art Contest

RALEIGH (AP) — An art contest to recognize the talents of American Indian artists in North Carolina will be one of the features of the 13th annual North Carolina Indian Unity Conference to be held March 17-19 in Raleigh.

The conference is sponsored by the United Tribes of North Carolina.

CP&L Says No To Refund Order

RALEIGH (AP) — Consumer advocates say Carolina Power & Light Co. should be forced to refund $14.1 million to its customers, but company attorneys say a new state law allows the utility to keep the money.

Lawyers from the state Attorney General's office urged the state Utility Commission Monday to order the refund, which would mean a one-time rebate of 60 cents for a typical residential customer who uses 1,000 kilowatts of electricity a month.

The lawyers argued that a state Court of Appeals ruling last March ordered the refund.

But CP&L attorneys say a law passed by the General Assembly in August, five months after the appeals court ruling, allows the company to keep the money. The law permits utilities to recover every dollar they spend on fuel to run their electric plants, but they must refund any additional collections.

At issue in the hearing was a September 1985 order by the Utilities Commission that allowed CP&L to increase its rates by $14 million to recover higher-than-expected fuel costs when its estimates came up short.

The state Court of Appeals ruled in March 1987 that such adjustments, known as "true-ups," were not allowed under state law, a decision that was left standing when the N.C. Supreme Court refused to consider the issue.

But state lawmakers rewrote the law in August to specifically allow the adjustments. The change was sought by utilities and the Public Staff, which represents consumers on utility matters. Under it, CP&L has refunded $63.7 million in excess collections of fuel expenses from July 1986 through March 1987.

Now the Utilities Commission must decide how far back the new law can apply.

CP&L wants the new law also to apply to rate adjustments made in 1985, which involved the $14.1 million rate increase, and in 1986, which resulted in a $10 million refund. It contends that both cases were still pending before the commission when the new law was passed.

Toymaker Looks Ahead

By FRAN RICHARDSON
Associated Press Writer
WAVELAND, Ind. (AP) — Indiana toymaker Mark Launer believes he can improve the world of tomorrow by nurturing creativity in children today.

"We have to realize that from age zero to adolescence is where the future occurs... We must begin concentrating on development at the right stage to prevent conflicts in the world," says Launer, a 46-year-old father of three grown children.

"Children are born with what I call creative exuberance," he adds. "They're learning at 80 miles an hour and doing it enthusiastically. They learn because they want to learn... It's this wonderful growth process at 80 mph that's driven out of adults."

Launer says today's adults must nurture their children's creative exuberance to ensure the world will have sound thinkers and problem solvers in the future. And the artist says he's trying to help that process along with his creative learning toys.

He launched Blocks and Marbles Brand Toys Inc., now based in nearby Crawfordsville, three years ago.

"I started in the garage with $300 and built it into a national company that's in the million-dollar-a-year sales range," Launer says.

The company markets only Launer's original toy, Blocks and Marbles — a set of grooved and holed building blocks that, if engineered properly, allows a marble to roll continuously from top to bottom.

The game debuted as a hands-on exhibit at the Indianapolis Children's Museum a few years ago and is being displayed now in more than 30 museums across the country.

"When I got this one off the ground, it gave me the ability to create new toys and a new company," says Launer, who is forming the Nova Development Co. to market four other toys.

Launer's second product, an architecturally updated block toy called Terra Nova, also is being exhibited at the Children's Museum and should be on the market next spring.

"What the kids make starts to look like the architecture around them," says Launer, who has initiated local Terra Nova building competitions at Indianapolis-area libraries and the museum.

"Mark's toys encourage creative thinking and problem-solving skills," says Mark Kesling, the museum's educator-curator of physical science. "The other thing they encourage is family learning. Parents are playing alongside their kids in those exhibits; parents play with kids they didn't know; kids play with other kids they didn't know," he says.

Kesling says he hopes to display

Globe Tag, which Launer says is his answer to "the trend toward geographic illiteracy in this country."

"The problem is that we live right now in a two-dimensional era. You can't understand geography unless it's in a three-dimensional context," Launer says.

"In the last two generations, the world has lost a dimension. When I was a kid we had back yards and trees, distance and travel. You'd drive a car to Oklahoma and know what was in between. The distance between here and Los Angeles is now just one boring airport to another boring airport," he says.

With Globe Tag, which is in the final stages of development, players start at a point on a globe and roll dice to determine the distance they can travel. They are given resource materials to answer questions from competitors, who try to stymie their progress by guessing where they are. The winner is the first person to meet certain criteria while going completely around the world.

While Launer readies his newest developments for market, he continues to work out new ideas in a studio located on the first floor of his home in downtown Waveland, a quiet little community nestled among cornfields and state parks about 60 miles northwest of Indianapolis.

Universities Not Equipped To Be Moral Policemen

DEAR ABBY: I am the president of the Associated Students of the University of California at Berkeley. Your column regarding behavior in college dorms was forwarded to me by a campus administrator. I can speak only for the students here, but I think your readers' letters were somewhat hysterical on several counts.

First, even if college authorities wanted to provide a morally sanitized atmosphere for their students, they could not. Students, like other Americans, are entitled to constitutional privacy rights, which prevent university officials from peering over their shoulders at all hours of the night and day. Most university dorms, including Berkeley's, forbid use of drugs or alcohol in public areas — but universities cannot and should not control what students do in the privacy of their own rooms. If your readers have a problem with the

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Constitution, they should write to their congressmen.

Second, the existence of co-ed bathrooms hardly converts dormitories into "brothels." We trust young adults to vote for our presidents and die for our country; I hope we can also trust them to use adjoining bathroom stalls without being overcome by their hormones. In fact, living in the close quarters of a residence hall is not particularly conducive to romance: The existence of roommates usually presents more of an inconvenience to sexual adventurism than an incentive. Furthermore, based on my observation of both co-ed and sexually segregated dorms at Berkeley, co-ed dorms actually foster sincere respect and dialogue between young men and women. It is when men and women are forcibly separated on all but social occasions that they view each other as nothing but sexual objects.

It is the business of colleges and universities to educate students. It is also their business to provide an atmosphere where students wishing to refrain from sexual behavior, drinking or drug use can do so without harassment or embarrassment. But universities are not monasteries; they are not equipped to be moral policemen. Therefore, some college students do drink and have sex, just as they did when your readers went to college. Behavior hasn't changed all that much; students today are simply more honest about it. — MATTHEW DENN

DEAR PRESIDENT DENN: Thank you. I agree, and I'm sure you speak for many.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe you can help me on this. A wife inherits money from a wealthy relative. Is it hers to spend as she wishes? Or does her husband have a say in the matter? We live in a community property state. — WINDFALL

DEAR WINDFALL: In a community property state, only money EARNED must be shared between husband and wife. Money INHERITED belongs to the person to whom it was left.

DEAR ABBY: While I was in college in 1972 in Orlando, Fla. (Florida Technical University), my roommate was in a financial bind and he sold me his grandfather's Civil War saber. My roommate's name was Charlie Wheatley. I would like to return the saber because it's an heirloom and really should be owned by someone in Charlie's family, but I've lost track of Charlie and can't locate him.

I would be ever so grateful, Abby, if you would print this. Maybe Charlie or one of his friends or relatives will see it and write to you. I hope so. — DOUG FRAZEUR (NOW IN MINNESOTA)

DEAR DOUG: I don't usually do this, but I'll make a stab at it. Anybody out there seen Charlie? If so, please contact me.

Perfume Search Starts

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

As you may have noticed, few of the major events shaping the course of history in our country escape me.

For some time now I have been monitoring the debuts of one fragrance after another bearing the names of sex symbols. Cosmetic counters are lined with the personal scents of Linda Evans, John Forsythe, Catherine Deneuve and Sophia Loren. Last year, Elizabeth Taylor dispensed Passion to the anxious earlobes of American women coast to coast, and this year Marlo Thomas set out to intoxicate Middle America with her personal perfume.

I called my agent and said to him, "It is clear to me as it must be to you that Smell Sells!"

"Make your point," he said.

"When am I coming out with a line of perfume reflecting my personal style?"

"Lysol will never play," he said.

"You have just put your finger on the problem," I said flatly. "My image needs work. A sexy perfume called 'Lust at Dusk' or something like that would do it."

"You don't understand," he said.

"Perfume is difficult to sell. All you can do is to create a fantasy that if you buy the perfume, you will look like the person selling it."

"Maybe we could have one of those arty campaigns where the camera focuses on parts of the human anatomy that no one can recognize... like they do with the perfume called Preoccupation."

"That's Obsession," he said tiredly.

"Same thing."

"Look, you're not listening. You don't have the aura... the mystique... the mystery to sell perfume."

"How does Interlude No. 4 sound?"

"Like a bus. Why don't you just do another book?"

"I got it. How about Fatal Mist?"

"It sounds like something you put in an aerosol can to kill something under the sink."

There was something in my agent's tone that told me the discussion was at an end. That and the fact he hung up. A couple of days later, I picked up the paper to read where a new cologne for men and women called Caesar was being introduced in Las Vegas. And promoting the fragrance were... are you ready for this? ... George Burns and John Denver. I dialed my agent.

"About the perfume and the mystique..."

"I'm glad you called," he interrupted. "I've been thinking about it and you're right. How do you feel about Bombeck's Scented Dust Balls?"

I hung up first this time.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices moved lower in opening trading today.

At 10 a.m., the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks stood at 1,939.32, down 7.13 points.

Decliners outpaced advancers by about 5 to 4, with 562 issues lower, 420 higher, and 478 unchanged among NYSE-listed stocks.

Volume on the Big Board stood at 21.89 million shares.

In economic news, orders to U.S. factories for "big ticket" durable goods soared 6.7 percent in December, the biggest gain in 15 months, the government said today. The Commerce Department said that orders for durable goods totaled a seasonally adjusted $118.7 billion last month, an increase of $7.4 billion from the level of demand in November. Almost three-fourths of the increase came from a big jump in orders for aircraft, reflecting a huge order received by the Boeing Co. of Seattle. While most of the strength came in a single category, analysts said the advance was still a good sign for the economy, showing that manufacturing demand remained strong in December, two months following the record 508-point collapse of stock prices on Oct. 19.

At 10 a.m., the NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks stood at 141.19, down 0.32. The American Stock Exchange index of all its listed issues stood at 266.77, down 0.28.

In Monday's trading, the Dow Jones industrial average closed at 1,946.45, up 42.94 points for the day.

Volume Friday totaled 275.25 million shares.

The NYSE index closed at 141.51, up 2.82, while the AMEX index finished at 267.05, up 1.43.

Dansey

He has been active in the Greenville Jaycees, receiving their Distinguished Service Award, and is a recipient of the State Freedom Guard Award for Outstanding Achievements in the areas of community, religious and governmental activities.

Dansey has also served as president and chairman of the Pitt County United Way and is a past president of the Tar Heel Little League.

As an ECU trustee, he is a member of the board's athletic, medical affairs, student life, development and beautification committees.

And the Hampton, Va., native has served on the staff of three of the last four presidents: as lead advance man in the Southeast for the Nixon administration; as an advance man for the Ford administration, and as Southeastern coordinator for the Reagan administration.

Dansey is married to the former Diana Nobles of Washington, N.C., and has two children.

Taft, the incumbent, has filed as a candidate for the Democratic nomination, as has Charles McLawhorn of Winterville, a member of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

Burley Tobacco

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cigarette companies plan to buy 364.5 million pounds of 1988-crop burley tobacco, up from intended purchases of 293.7 million pounds from the 1987 harvest the Agriculture Department said Monday.

Federal law requires major domestic cigarette manufacturers to tell USDA each year how much burley they intend to buy from the forthcoming crop. The information is used to help compute annual marketing quotas, said Milton Hertz, administrator of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The 1988 burley marketing quota will be announced by Feb. 1, he said.

Reagan Gives U.S. Optimistic Report

He asked for quick Senate confirmation of Supreme Court nominee Anthony M. Kennedy, sought prompt ratification of the U.S.-Soviet medium-range missile treaty and offered a mocking critique of the congressional budget-making process that even brought laughs from some of the lawmakers.

Holding aloft several last-minute money bills that he said represented "43 pounds of paper and ink," Reagan said: "Congress shouldn't send another one of these, and if you do, I will not sign it."

But Democratic leaders declared that Reagan will not be able to set the national agenda in his final year in office.

House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, said Reagan has failed to do enough to protect Americans' economic interests.

"As important as our commitments abroad may be, our first obligation is to the American people and to their future," Wright said. "We can't build a vibrant economy by just delivering pizzas to each other."

Reagan dismissed suggestions that he will be a lame-duck president by promising "a full agenda" in his remaining year in the White House.

"It's all out, right to the finish line," he said. "I don't buy the idea that this is the last year of anything. ... We're not talking here tonight about registering temporary gains, but ways of making permanent our successes."

Reagan, who has used previous State of the Union addresses to honor people he considered national heroes, this time singled out his wife, Nancy, for her "Just Say No" anti-drug campaign. She beamed as the lawmakers stood to join in his tribute.

He announced few new initiatives, except for a suggestion that the executive and legislative branches of government revise the budget-making process with "a joint agreement that sets out spending priorities within available revenues."

The address, otherwise, was studied with references to longtime Reagan goals — a balanced budget amendment, a line-item veto for presidents, a school prayer amendment, welfare reform, and an anti-abortion amendment.

In an accompanying written message to Congress, Reagan said he will seek $1.5 billion for the fight against AIDS — a ten-fold increase over 1985 funding levels.

He also broached the idea of reducing the tax on capital gains "as part of any future tax reform," but he did not offer a specific plan.

He urged greater use of merit systems to reward teachers in public education and embraced a program of tax-free savings bonds to help parents pay for college.

He said he is determined to reduce the danger of nuclear war. The Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces treaty, he said, marks "an unprecedented achievement in arms reduction. ... I urge the Senate to give its advice and consent to ratification of this landmark agreement."

But some of Reagan's strongest rhetoric was reserved for his discussion of other U.S. military issues and commitments.

"My Letter to Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers"

— Mike Schott

Dear Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers,

I went from weighing 368 1/2 pounds to 221 pounds after joining the Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers program. When I was overweight I had high blood pressure, and I was always tired. Now I feel great — like I was a high school kid again. Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers put me on the road to better nutrition and health, and I never once felt tired or hungry on the diet.

Having lost 115 inches, the change in my appearance is remarkable. I really am a "shadow of my former self." The comments I get now from friends and family are actually compliments to you. Your program really works!

To just say 'thanks' would be an understatement. Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers has changed my life entirely. My only regret is that I didn't know that there was a Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Center in Muncie, IN, three years ago!

Thinserealy,
Mike Schott

Lady Pirate Second Half Rally Carries Past Tribe For Second Straight Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's women came out of the dressing room at the half with a different attitude and overcame William & Mary in a Colonial Athletic Association basketball game, 68-63, Monday night in Minges Coliseum.

In the first half, William & Mary, which outscored ECU 14-0 in one stretch, bounded out to as much as an 11-point lead and held a 30-24 edge at intermission.

But East Carolina came back to the court and raced out to their own 11-point spread just over five minutes later, then had to hang on when foul line troubles caught up with them at the end.

William & Mary, trailing by as much as 12 points with three minutes to play, used East Carolina's inability to hit at the foul line to come back and cut the lead to as little as three points. The Lady Pirates converted only eight free throws while the game was in doubt. Wendy Morton, who was four of four prior to the final three minutes, missed on three of four chances, Monique Pompili missed on one of two, while Irish Hamilton and Pam Williams each missed once.

Williams then made her final two with one second left after William & Mary missed on its final attempt to score.

Pirate coach Pat Pierson said she had no magic words at halftime. "I just told them they would have to get out and look for the opportunity to score. I didn't think that anyone was looking for their shot or executing the offense (in the first half)," Pierson said.

"I was real pleased with the play of Chris O'Connor tonight," the coach continued. "She gave us a real boost." O'Connor got the Pirates on track with a 3-pointer that cut the lead back from 11 to eight and started the comeback late in the first half. She then hit another 3-pointer early in the second half to pull the Lady Pirates back within one.

"Wendy Morton came in and did a good job for us too," Pierson said. Morton finished with 11 points.

Another key factor was Gretta Savage's play in the second half. She hit on six of seven shots from the floor, including five in a row at one point, all but one of them jumpers from the elbow of the lane. "Gretta has good range," Pierson said. "If she takes her time, she can hit it. Tonight she looked for the shot and took that they gave her."

Both teams held early leads, with East Carolina grabbing a 9-6 lead on a layup by Alma Bethea with 16:10 remaining in the first half. But the Lady Pirates did not score again until 7:02 was left. Meanwhile, William & Mary sprinted out to a 20-9 edge before Bethea broke the ice for ECU.

After twice exchanging baskets, the Pirates got off the hook as O'Connor hit her first 3-pointer then added a short jumper to cut the lead back to six, 24-18. The Pirates hung on from there to trail 30-24 at intermission.

After Savage hit a short jumper to open the second half, O'Connor hit the second 3-pointer to cut it back to 30-29.

William & Mary scored once more before the Lady Pirates got baskets from Morton, Savage and Pompili to take a 35-32 lead.

They never trailed again. Morton got a 4-point play when she scored on a layup and was ruled inentionally fouled, opening up a 43-34 lead and Savage hit after that to open it to 11, 45-34.

The Lady Indians cut the lead back to five, 47-42, before the Lady Pirates pulled away again and ran up as much as a 12-point lead at 62-50 with 3:42 to play.

But the Indians then began to put ECU on the foul line where they missed, and the Tribe chopped away at the lead, trimming it to as little as three at 66-63 with 1:03 left. But they could not score again themselves and the Pirates hung on for the win.

"I think we got a little complacent," Pierson said. "We were trying to keep the tempo up and I think we forced it a bit and had some turnovers and they converted on them. But I thought that we played good defense on through and that helped us get the win."

The win was the second in a row for the Lady Pirates after dropping five in a row. East Carolina is now 7-11 overall and 2-3 in CAA action. William & Mary falls to 7-9 overall and 1-4.

The Lady Pirates were led by Savage with 17 points while Pompili had 13 and O'Connor and Morton each had 11.

Angela Evans led William & Mary with 16 points while Beth Hairfield had 12, Angela Dugan had 11 and Debbie Wade had 10. Hairfield had 14 rebounds and Wade, 11, as the Indians outrebounded the Pirates, 44-39.

East Carolina goes outside the conference on Thursday, traveling to face Campbell University, one of the nation's top scoring teams.

Blue Devils Top Hatters, 81-78

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Kevin Strickland scored 22 points and Robert Brickey led a decisive second-half surge as fifth-ranked Duke held off Stetson 81-78 Monday night to win for the seventh time in its last eight games.

The Blue Devils, playing their third road game in five days, improved to 13-2 before an Ocean Center crowd of 6,517. Stetson, 8-7, lost its fourth straight game and fell to Duke by three points for the second straight year.

Strickland scored 17 points in the first half when Duke led by as many as 10. But Stetson cut the deficit to 45-40 behind the outside shooting of Terry Johnson and inside play of Jimmy Kuhl.

Stetson took a 54-52 lead on Kuhl's layup with 15 minutes remaining. Then Brickey scored five points to key a 20-6 second-half burst as Duke took command. Brickey finished with 15 points and Danny Ferry added 13.

Kuhl and Johnson, who hit three 3-point shots to keep the game from becoming a rout, led Stetson with 16 points apiece. Randy Anderson scored 13 for the Hatters, who lost to Duke 62-59 at Durham, N.C., a year ago.

Duke's decisive run featured a three-point play by Ferry, who hit only five of 19 shots from the field. The Blue Devils led 72-60 when Strickland and John Smith followed with fast-break layups.

Johnson hit two free throws to cut Duke's lead to 78-75 with 1:01 left. Billy King's free throw made it 79-75, and Strickland added two more with nine seconds remaining before Stetson's Torbjorn Gehrke hit a 3-point shot at the buzzer.

NASCAR Sets Drug Tests

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Winston Cup stock car drivers, crew members and officials who test positive for drugs under a new program will be suspended until tests show they are drug-free, NASCAR president Bill France Jr. says.

"If someone tests positive, they're out," France said Monday at a news conference announcing the drug testing program. "If they come back, whenever, and test negative, they can go back to racing again. But this is not punitive at all. When they test negative, they can go back to racing."

The policy, which goes into effect immediately, would incorporate "reasonable suspicion" as the basis for drug testing, he said.

As part of their routine, NASCAR officials will monitor individuals at the racetracks to determine whether a "reasonable suspicion" existed to believe someone was using illegal drugs, he said. Anyone suspected of possible illegal drug use would be required to undergo an eye examination by a trained NASCAR official.

The eye exam was developed by Dr. Forest S. Tennant, an expert in the field of drug treatment and research who currently serves as an adviser to the National Football League, the Los Angeles Dodgers baseball club and the California Highway Patrol.

If the eye exam indicated a possible problem, the individual would then be required to undergo a urinalysis test, France said. Positive test results for such drugs as marijuana, cocaine and heroin would lead to an indefinite suspension.

France said he did not believe NASCAR has a problem with drugs, but "drugs are becoming more prevalent in this society," France said. "I can't see any reason why we would be immune."

France said he discussed the program with a number of Winston Cup circuit drivers over the last several days. He declined to name those drivers.

Arizona Just Misses As Unanimous Choice By AP

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Basketball Writer

Arizona remained the No. 1 college basketball team in the The Associated Press rankings Monday, and the Wildcats missed being a unanimous selection by just four points.

Arizona, 18-1, received 59 first-place votes and 1,256 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters and were voted second on the other four ballots. This is the third straight No. 1 ranking for Arizona, which beat Southern California and UCLA last week, and the fifth week overall in the top spot.

Purdue, 17-1 and winner of 16 consecutive games, jumped from fifth to second with three first-place votes and 1,174 points. The Boilermakers beat Michigan State and Louisville last week to extend the nation's longest winning streak. The Boilermakers had been the No. 2 team in the preseason poll.

Three teams fell from the Top Twenty and they were replaced by No. 14 Florida, which was absent from the poll for two weeks after being as high as seventh, and newcomers No. 19 Villanova and No. 20 Southern Mississippi, which was ranked for the first time since becoming a Division I school in 1965.

North Carolina, 14-2, fell one spot to third with 1,018 points after losing only its second game in the Dean Smith Center, 70-69 to then-No. 9 Duke before beating then-No. 20 North Carolina State.

Nevada-Las Vegas, 17-1, improved from eighth to fourth after handing Temple its first loss of the season. The Runnin' Rebels, who received 961 points, also had conference victories over Utah State and San Jose State.

Duke was fifth with 936 points, 46 more than Temple, which was just 12 points ahead of Brigham Young, the only undefeated major team, 17 in front of Michigan and 30 over Kentucky.

Duke, 12-2, also beat Wake Forest in addition to beating North Carolina, while Temple fell for the first time in 15 games and dropped from third to sixth. Brigham Young, 14-0, improved from 12th to seventh with two impressive road victories — No. 18 Texas-El Paso and New Mexico, the only team to beat Arizona.

Michigan, 16-2, fell one spot to eighth after losing to Ohio State before beating Wisconsin and Indiana. Kentucky, 13-2, fell from fourth after losing its second home game of the season, 58-56 to Florida.

Oklahoma, which received 773 points, rounded out the Top Ten after beating Colorado and then-No. 6 Pittsburgh, which dropped to 11th.

Following Pittsburgh in the Second Ten was Iowa State, Illinois, Florida, Georgetown, Iowa, Syracuse, Texas-El Paso, Villanova and Southern Mississippi.

Last week's Second Ten was Oklahoma, Brigham Young, Illinois, Syracuse, Georgetown, Kansas, Wyoming, Texas-El Paso, Iowa and North Carolina State.

Florida, which was 14th in the preseason poll, was ranked for each of the first six polls before falling out after losing to Pittsburgh and Auburn. The Gators, 14-4, beat Tennessee last week in addition to the big road victory over Kentucky.

Villanova, which leads the Big East with a 6-1 record, has beaten three ranked teams this season — Illinois, Syracuse and St. John's. The Wildcats beat conference foes Connecticut and Seton Hall last week.

Southern Mississippi, which won the NIT last season, earned its first ranking as a Division I school with victories over South Alabama, Memphis State and Tennessee-Chatanooga last week. The Golden Eagles were ranked as a Division II power in the early 1960s.

Kansas, which has lost starters Archie Marshall to a knee injury and Marvin Branch to academic problems, fell to 12-5 with an 80-76 loss to Notre Dame. Wyoming, which had been ranked as high as fifth, lost its fourth game of the season, 54-49 to Colorado State. North Carolina State was ranked for just one week before losing to Wake Forest and North Carolina.

The Top Twenty teams in the Associated Press college basketball poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, total points based on 20-19-18-17-16-15-14-13-12-11-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1, records through Jan. 24 and last week's ranking:

Gymnasts Take Second Place At Meet

RALEIGH — The Greenville Gymnastics Club took second place at the Eastern District Class IV Gymnastics Championships Saturday.

Omega Gymnastics from Fayetteville won the event with a total of 161.05. Greenville was next with 156.65. Dreamworld of Jacksonville took third with 155.55.

In the 9-11 age group, Trista Pate was the top qualifier for Greenville. She took third in the all-around with a 31.95 and second on balance beam with a 8.6, which tied here with teammate Stacey Bornstein.

Pate also took fifth on the uneven bars with a 7.0.

Bornstein was fifth in the all-around with a total of 31.55. She took eighth in floor exercise with a 8.85 and eighth in vaulting with an 8.0.

Sarah Mohror, in the same age group, took ninth in the all-around with a total of 30.70. That included a seventh on floor exercise with an 8.9 and seventh on balance beam with an 8.1.

Danielle Brestle, also in the same age group, was eighth in vaulting with an 8.0 and ninth on balance beam with an 8.05.

In the 12-14 year-old age group, the top finisher was Jennifer Miller who took third in the all-around with a 29.00. She was fifth on the bars with a 5.8; third in vaulting with a 8.0 and sixth on the beam with a 7.15.

Gray Robinson took sixth in the all-around with a 28.70; second on beam with a 7.60 and fifth on floor exercise with an 8.45.

Amy McKinney was first on beam with a 7.65 and fifth in vaulting with a 7.95.

Emily Reison took third in vault with a 8.0 while Carla Hewitt placed fourth on the bars with a 5.95.

The meet allowed participants to qualify for the state championships. Those qualifying from Greenville were Brestle, Megan Ryan, Mohror, Bornstein, Kim Blackwell, Pate, Elizabeth Christopher, McKinney, Robinson and Miller.

Greenville will host a Class IV state qualifying meet and a high school state championship meet Sat. Feb 6.

Local Junior High Basketball Action

CHICOD — Chicod and G.R. Whitfield split a pair of junior high school basketball games Monday.

Chicod won the girls' game, 23-7, led by Jennifer McAllister with seven points. Karen Flake led Whitfield with four.

In the boys' game, Whitfield took a 38-36 victory. Patrick Leary led Chicod with 15 points while Bobby Grogan added nine. Alkiwan Thompson led Whitfield with 18 points.

Bethel-Farmville

Farmville Middle School swept past Bethel Monday in junior high basketball action as the boys took a 48-46 win while the girls took a 30-27 victory.

Farmville was led by G. Jines with 12 points. B. Ferrell added 10. Larry Hines led Bethel with 13 and Reid Moore added 10.

In the girl's game, Farmville was led by C. Reid with 11 points. Bethel was led by Rochelle Powell with 10.

A.G. Cox-Wellcome

Bethel — Wellcome topped A.G. Cox, 38-34, in junior high boy's basketball action Monday.

Sidney Boyd and Derrick Brown had 12 points apiece for Wellcome while Chris Sheppard added eight. Cox was led by D. Cox with 10 while Maurice Anderson added nine.

Snow Hill-Ayden

AYDEN — Snow Hill and Ayden split a pair of junior high basketball games Monday, with the Snow Hill boys and the Ayden girls both picking up wins.

In the girl's game, Ayden topped Snow Hill, 28-26, to move to 5-0 on the year. Denise Allen led Ayden with 12 points.

In the boy's game, Snow Hill's boys defeated Ayden, 51-43. M. Moye led Snow Hill with 11. Thomas Edwards led Ayden with 14.

Local Junior High Wrestling Action

WINTERVILLE — A.G. Cox rolled up a 43-26 junior high school wrestling victory Monday, defeating McDonald of New Bern.

Cox won eight of the 14 weight classes. The Raiders won five by pins and one on a technical fall. McDonald had one pin, three decisions and had two wins by forfeit.

Cox wrestlers recording pins were Torrence Smith, K.D. Anderson, Cornelius Patrick, Emmitt Lang, Terry Turnage and Steven Daugherty. Jamie Mitchell had the technical fall.

Cox is now 8-1 and returns to action today at Northwoods Park.

Prep Coaches Disagree on 3-Point Shot

RALEIGH (AP) — Some high school basketball coaches say they have incorporated the 3-point shot as part of their game strategy, but others say it is a distraction for prep players trying to learn the basics of the game.

"We don't have a whole lot of size so we've used it quite a bit," said Milton Senter, boys' coach at Fuquay-Varina. "We've hit as many as 10 in one game and as few as two or three. We look for it under certain circumstances.

"The reason we incorporated it into the offense was we felt if we make a few we'll be able to get inside a little better," he said.

The 3-point line is mandatory for high schools for the first time this season, although conferences were allowed to experiment with the shot before this year. The line is the same as is used in college basketball — 19 feet, 9 inches from the basket.

Charges May Be Dropped In Fenner Case

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — The attorney for former North Carolina football star Derrick Fenner says he believes drug and weapons charges against Fenner will be dropped.

Fenner's trial was scheduled to begin Monday, but was postponed indefinitely.

"I am confident Derrick will come out of this case with no criminal record whatsoever," defense attorney Fred Joseph said after meeting in the chambers of Circuit Court Judge Jacob Levin to ask for the postponement. "I believe that will happen.

"I will be having discussions with prosecutors and the court on a continuous basis," added Joseph. "It's conceivable that this can be resolved without a trial."

Fenner was charged with murder in connection with the drug-related shooting death of Marcellus Leach, 19, in the courtyard of a Hyattsville, Md. apartment complex last May. But prosecutors dropped the charge in November, saying they didn't have evidence placing Fenner at the scene.

Teams Took Different Paths

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Washington Redskins and Denver Broncos are heading for the same objective from different directions. Losing a Super Bowl can do that.

Last year's Super Bowl loss dominates the Broncos' thoughts, words and approach. Just hours after they arrived here, they were vowing this NFL championship game would have a more successful ending.

"The feeling of last year's loss stuck in all our craws," quarterback John Elway said. "That's the last thing we want to feel again. Nobody has to bring it up. We all remember what it was like in that locker room."

So the Broncos have developed a tunnel vision toward this year's Super Bowl.

"We're all business this time," defensive end Rulon Jones said. "We need a good focus on the way we play football and what we have to do on the field Sunday. Nothing else."

The Redskins, who lost in their last Super Bowl appearance in 1984, aren't so single-minded.

"We're pretty relaxed and loose and excited to be here," said offensive tackle Joe Jacoby, one of 18 Redskins to make it this far before.

"We're keeping it all in perspective, but we're trying to enjoy it, soak it all in. You just got to enjoy it but get the job done."

"It's another game to win and go out big time."

For the Redskins to have a big time Sunday, they're willing to observe a curfew — something Coach Joe Gibbs did not institute when Washington won the 1983 Super Bowl and lost in '84. But they won't ignore the festivities around them, just as they couldn't ignore a moderate earthquake that shook the area Monday morning.

"That's a strange way to get started," defensive end Dexter Manley said of the earthquake. "But that's what you get in Super Bowl week."

"The memory of what happens in this game lasts forever. Our job is to have fun and produce."

The Broncos seem to have eliminated the enjoyment in their approach. Hours after their arrival, they spoke of how they will handle this week.

"Last year, we made it like a once-in-a-lifetime thing, like it might never happen again," Jones said. "You don't see any of us carrying around video cameras this time."

"We will win the football game, whatever it takes," linebacker Ricky Hunley insisted. "There will be no celebrations until then. We don't want to carry around the feeling for two years of what it would be like to win a championship."

Hoyas' Slide Didn't Concern Their Coach

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Georgetown Coach John Thompson didn't look at his team's recent slide like everyone else did.

"When you lose, there's usually a problem, something wrong, someone not hitting. That was not the case. We just weren't winning," Thompson said after the 15th-ranked Hoyas stopped not winning when a scoop shot at the buzzer by Charles Smith provided a 59-58 victory over Syracuse on Sunday.

The victory ended a three-game losing streak during which the Hoyas fell to the basement of the Big East standings with a 1-3 mark.

The non-winning streak began with road losses to Providence and Boston College, the latter on a buzzer-beater by Dana Barros. It continued with a home loss to St. John's, something not totally unexpected since the Redmen have handed the Hoyas five of their 12 losses in 102 games at the Capital Centre.

A trip to then-No. 14 Syracuse was next.

"We needed a win desperately," Thompson said. "We got this one which anybody could have won. Hopefully now we'll continue."

Thompson's record shows his teams usually do.

The only other time Georgetown lost three consecutive games in the 1980s came in the 1981-82 season when the Hoyas fell to Syracuse, Connecticut and Providence. The Hoyas went on to win the Big East title and advanced to the NCAA championship game, losing 63-62 to North Carolina.

Even in the early years of the Thompson reign at Georgetown, losing streaks were uncommon. There was a six-game streak in 1974-75 but that was followed by seven-game winning streak that netted an 18-16 record and the first of Thompson's NCAA invitations. Since then, there have been just the two three-game losing streaks.

Thompson made changes for the Syracuse game, subtle ones he felt were necessary to stop the non-winning streak.

"I started both of our point guards to get better ballhandling because we had too many unforced turnovers," Thompson said. "I hoped things would be settled with them in there. Even if we had lost, I saw some positive things — like Benjamin."

Benjamin is senior center Ben Gillery, who became famous last season for being introduced as a starter, jumping for the opening tip and then remaining on the bench for the rest of the game. He averaged 2.1 points and 1.8 rebounds in 32 games, 27 of which he started, in 228 minutes.

Gillery scored 11 points — three less than he had all season — and grabbed a team-high six rebounds against Syracuse. But he did something more important for Thompson.

"This team is sore — not hurt, just sore — and Benjamin was so important because people who are sore can't go 100 percent," Thompson said. With Gillery carrying the load, Thompson's other big men — Ronnie Highsmith, Jonathan Edwards, Anthony Allen and Sam Jefferson — saw limited or no playing time in the Hoyas' fourth consecutive victory over Syracuse.

Thompson had few problems last season that weren't solved by All-American Reggie Williams, who led the Hoyas in scoring, rebounding, steals and 3-pointers. However, Williams is now in the NBA and Thompson hasn't found anyone to fill the scoring or leadership roles left by his graduation.

Charles Smith might have helped solve that problem in ending the non-winning streak with his impressive drive and game-winning shot against Syracuse that improved the Hoyas to 12-4.

"I think most of the guys were caught in the festivities last year. We weren't as confident going in. This year, we expect to win. We are destined to win."

The experience of losing the NFL's ultimate game apparently will dominate both teams' thoughts. That might not be such a bad thing.

"After we lost to the Raiders in '84, I was on the flight to the Pro Bowl with some of them," Jacoby said. "It leaves a really bad taste in your mouth. It's something you want to forget but you're better off if you remember how bad it was, how much you hated it."

"I don't want us to be that other team, the one who loses the Super Bowl and everyone forgets about you."

The Broncos felt like a forgotten team after being routed by the New York Giants. It hurt.

"Losing the Super Bowl gave us more resolve to get back," Vance

Johnson said. Johnson is one of the Three Amigos who will try to dominate Washington's fine secondary the way his two partners — Ricky Nattiel and Mark Jackson — overmatched Cleveland's excellent defensive backs in the AFC title game. Johnson missed that game with a ruptured artery in his groin that makes him questionable for Sunday.

"I think to make it back, to go to the Super Bowl two years in a row, you have to be real good and real lucky. And you have to have the right approach."

"It's always been for Vance that the power of suggestion works."

What is he suggesting will work this week?

"I want to go on a positive note," he said. "Nothing but positive thoughts."

Same as Manley.

"We paid lots of dues and spent lots of sweat," he said. "I don't think we made this trip for nothing."

First Half Keys Trinity To Win

Trinity Christian School used a strong first half to run past Liberty Christian, 70-50, in a high school basketball game Monday night.

Trinity's girls also came away with a win, downing Liberty, 39-22.

Trinity jumped off to a 22-15 lead in the first quarter of the boys' game and the Tigers were never headed. In the second quarter, they outscored Liberty, 20-7, and forged a 42-22 halftime lead.

Liberty cut the lead back to 54-36 in the third period, but Trinity reversed that, 16-14, in the final quarter for the final 20-point margin.

Kirk and Kreston Welch each scored 18 points while Gerard Fulton had 15 and John Griffin had 13. John Turner had 14, D.E. Duke had 13, Nat Fabean had 12 and Troy Parton had 11 to lead Liberty.

"They sagged in on us and Kreston Welch hit from the outside to pull us through," Coach Don Southerland said. "He also had seven assists. Kirk Welch had 19 rebounds while Griffin added 11."

In the girls' game, Trinity held a 7-2 lead after one period and outscored Liberty, 13-8, in the second to take a 20-10 halftime lead. That was stretched to 31-12 in the third quarter. Both teams then scored eight in the final frame.

Jennifer Alexander led Trinity with 17 points while Rhonda Harris added 14. Amy Smith was high for Liberty with six.

Trinity's boys are now 14-2 while the girls are 4-5. Trinity plays host to Raleigh Christian on Friday.

W. Kentucky (AP) — Frank Persley paced North Carolina-Charlotte with 16 points.

Davidson.....81
E. Tennessee St.....75

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. (AP) —

Jeff Himes scored 30 points and snagged nine rebounds to pilot Davidson to an 81-75 Southern Conference win over East Tennessee State on Monday.

The Wildcats improved to 11-6 and 5-1 in the conference, while the Buccaneers evened their record at 7-7 and slipped to 4-2 in the conference.

East Tennessee took an early 10-4 lead, capped by an eight-foot jumper by Greg Dennis. But Davidson went on a 10-point tear, including six by Himes, to lead 14-10.

The teams traded leads for the rest of the period, and East Tennessee held a slim 35-34 lead at intermission.

In the second half, East Tennessee led 49-47 when Wildcat Alan Hunter hit a 21-foot jumper to give Davidson a 50-49 advantage.

Davidson took the lead for good with 4:39 to play when Himes hit a layup to make the score 68-66. East Tennessee drew as close as 72-70 with 1:41 to play, but the Wildcats hit their free throws down the stretch to seal the win.

M. Tennessee St.....74
Austin Peay.....67

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. (AP) — Chris Rainey hit a 3-point jumper to break a 65-all tie and pace Middle Tennessee to a 74-67 Ohio Valley Conference victory over Austin Peay Monday night.

Rainey scored a game-high 19 points for the Blue Raiders, who improved their record to 12-6 and have won three of four conference games. The Austin Peay Governors are now 8-8 and record their first conference loss in five starts.

MTSU led 41-33 with two seconds to go in the first half, when Javin Johnson hit two free throws and Vincent Brooks followed by intercepting the Blue Raider's inbound pass and hitting a 3-point jumper to cut the halftime lead to 41-38.

Austin Peay, led by Barry Sumpter with 14 points and 7 rebounds, fought back hard in the second half, which included seven lead changes and two ties.

With the score 65-61 and 3:45 to go, Austin Peay's Andre Harris missed a slam dunk.

For the Governors, Harris added 13 points, while Keith Rawls and Vincent Brooks had 10 each.

Randy Henry scored 14 points for the Blue Raiders and Dewayne Rainey added 12 points and 11 rebounds.

Ala.-Birmingham.....70
Jacksonville.....55

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Michael Charles had 23 points as Alabama-Birmingham broke a three-game skid by defeating Jacksonville 70-55 in Sun Belt Conference basketball Monday.

UAB improved to 10-10, 2-3 in the conference, while Jacksonville dropped to 5-11, 0-4.

The Dolphins led 30-28 at halftime, and they opened the second half strong to lead 37-30 with 18 minutes remaining.

With the Blazers leading 43-42 at 11:51, Dylan Howard started an eight-point run by tipping in a rebound. UAB did not trail again.

Jacksonville cut Alabama-Birmingham's lead to three at 49-46 with 7:16 left on a five-foot bank shot by Chris Slocum, but the Blazers opened an 11-2 scoring run to lead 60-48 with 4:39 remaining.

The Family Circus By Bil Keane

"Why should I hate girls? I'm a girl."

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, Jan. 27

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Concentrate on your own interests today, and don't depend on favors from others. Everyone will be much too busy looking out for themselves to support a new project. A broken promise may bother you tonight.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You may have a feeling of lack during the daytime, but by being objective, this will soon pass. Be very careful while driving.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Try to be more independent; rely on your own abilities. Work on improving your health and appearance, but don't be vain about this.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Be more willing to do what your mate wishes, and home conditions will improve considerably. Be sure you don't lose your temper.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Avoid a person who expects more from you than you are willing to give. Don't try to press anyone into supporting your ideas.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): If any dilemmas arise today, be sure to confront them directly. Tonight is definitely not a good time for any romantic pursuits.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): This is a good day to do the research which is necessary for a new project, but don't try to force anyone else to do the work for you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Search your memory and make sure you aren't overlooking any promises which were made in the past. Drive with more than usual care.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): A business acquaintance may be quite greedy today, so be on the alert for this and stand up for your rights. Be considerate to your mate.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Be sure to do your work well today, even if it seems somewhat boring. Arguing with a co-worker today would be unfortunate.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Small annoying tasks can be handled quite easily today. Work out the details of a recreational activity you have in mind.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Your mate may be a bit depressed today, so be consoling. Try to make your home more comfortable, and revise your budget tonight.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Before you present a new plan to business associates, make sure you have it clear in your mind. Don't argue with your mate tonight.

Opening lead: Four of ♠
 An innocent overcall by East paved the way for declarer to make a contract that would probably have been defeated otherwise. A lead-directing double at the other table proved as revealing.

North's powerful auction allowed South to judge that his spade control justified bidding slam. He was a little surprised to find that North did not have a singleton spade, but he showed good technique in landing his slam.

Had there been no interference bidding and assuming a normal red-suit lead, declarer would probably have relied upon two club finesses for his slam, with disastrous results. But since both black-suit kings were marked off-side by the overcall, declarer found a far more appealing line of play. He followed low from dummy and won with the ace. After drawing a trump in hand, declarer cashed the ace-king of hearts and ruffed a heart. He got back to the table with a trump and ruffed the last heart. Now he exited with a spade to the queen. In with the king, East had a choice of losing options—he could either lead a spade and concede a ruff-stuff, allowing declarer to get rid of his club loser, or lead into dummy's club tenace.

At the other table East doubled six diamonds for a club lead, but it helped not a whit. Declarer won the club lead with the ace, drew trumps, cashed the high hearts and ran all his trumps. That produced a three-card ending where declarer held A-2 of spades and a club, and dummy

Fans Begin Lining Up For Next Jackson Tour

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Michael Jackson's next concert tour isn't until late next month but he already has fans braving bad weather for a chance to see him.

Bitter cold didn't deter Jackson fans who started lining up Saturday for a chance to buy front row seats on Monday for the superstar's kickoff concert.

Jackson will begin his first American solo tour in Kansas City with concerts on Feb. 23 and 24 at Kemper Arena.

People were lined up outside the ticket outlets early Monday morning despite 12-degree temperatures and a bitter wind.

First in line at Kemper Arena were Skip Shearer, 32, and Bill Jeffress, 34, both of Independence. "We got here Friday at midnight," said Jeffress. "We do this all the time."

"We got used to sitting in the first five rows at concerts. Once you get used to that, you don't want to sit in back," Shearer said.

Auction

LONDON (AP) — Rock star Elton John will sell part of his art and furniture collections in a multimillion-dollar auction this autumn.

Sotheby's, the auction house, said Monday the collection is expected to bring around $5 million.

The sale will include 19th and 20th century decorative art, paintings and items of memorabilia, part of an enormous collection Elton has accumulated over the past 20 years," Sotheby's said.

Lord Gowrie, chairman of the auction house, said one reason for the sale was that the 40-year-old singer wants to move from his 10-bedroom mansion near Windsor to a more rural location in southern England.

Randy Travis Gets Four Music Awards

By JEFF WILSON
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The night belonged to ex-dishwasher Randy Travis, who got four American Music Award trophies, but winners ranging from silky blues artists to heavy metal bands also scored with the public.

The 15th anniversary edition of the presentations shown Monday night on ABC-TV also recognized the talent of Anita Baker, Whitney Houston and Paul Simon, the only other multiple winners with two apiece.

Luther Vandross, Reba McEntire, Janet Jackson, Michael Jackson, the country band Alabama and hard rockers Bon Jovi were also winners, reflecting the contrast in musical tastes of 20,000 people polled nationwide.

"It's just country music. I try to sing 'em with as much emotion as I can," the painfully shy Travis said backstage.

Travis was voted top male country singer, his album "Always and Forever" was picked best country LP, and his single and video "Forever and Ever, Amen," were judged the favorites in those categories.

Travis, a leader in the return to simpler, traditional country music roots, has been called a cross between Merle Haggard and George Jones.

Bill Boyd, executive director of the Academy of Country Music, said: "Randy's strictly a traditionalist. He's what we needed."

Miss Baker won favorite female soul-rhythm and blues singer and favorite album in that category for her nearly 2-year-old "Rapture" LP.

Miss Houston did win favorite pop-rock female vocalist and her "I Wanna Dance With Somebody (Who Loves Me)" won favorite single in the same category. Borrowing from the oft-stated phrase by multiple-winner Lionel Richie, she shouted, "This is outrageous," when she won her second trophy. Last year, Miss Houston won seven American Music Awards.

Miss McEntire won the favorite female vocalist in the country category and accepted via a satellite hook-up from a Nashville recording studio. Simon, who didn't attend, won favorite pop male vocalist. His Grammy-winning "Graceland" won favorite pop-rock album.

No-show Michael Jackson, winner of 11 previous American Music Awards, won in the soul rhythm and blues single category for "Bad."

Other winners included Bon Jovi for favorite pop-rock group, Cameo for favorite soul-rhythm and blues group, and Alabama as favorite country group.

For Alabama, it was the group's sixth American Music Award in that category and 11th overall.

Janet Jackson, who like brother Michael also skipped the show, won the combined pop-rock, soul-rhythm and blues favorite video category for "When I Think Of You."

Vandross won for favorite male soul-rhythm and blues male vocalist.

After the competitive awards were handed out, the remaining 18 minutes of the three-hour Shrine Auditorium show was dedicated to the presentation of the Award of Merit, given to the quintessential surf-rock group the Beach Boys.

Award ballots were sent to 20,000 members of the public selected by Herbert Altman Communications Research Inc. on the basis of age, sex, geographic location and ethnic origin.

Results of the voting were tabulated by Peat, Warwick, Mitchell and Co. accounting firm.

Risky Move Ahead For 'Superman'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Christopher Reeve, best known for his starring role in "Superman," is taking to the stage in a move he says is risky.

He will co-star with Christine Lahti in Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke," Feb. 19 through April 10 at the Ahmanson Theater. He says he made the decision on the spur of the moment after a production of "Bus Stop" was canceled because its star, Mark Harmon, had to have shoulder surgery.

Although Reeve has extensive stage experience, he's candid about how difficult it can be compared with film.

The Superman role also was risky, he said. "A lot of people were saying 'You wouldn't want to play Superman; you'd be in blue forever.'"

Letterman Show Going To London

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's "Late Night with David Letterman" will originate from London for four days in May, says host David Letterman.

Last summer, the show originated from Las Vegas, Nev., and the producers made tentative inquiries about going to Cuba, but that idea was scrapped.

Letterman said Monday that England came up because, "We wanted to go to a country where the language was English."

"The show has aired in some form or another in London for a little bit and we thought, well, maybe it would be fun to go over there to do the show," he said.
