Reagan Will Still 'Help' Rebels

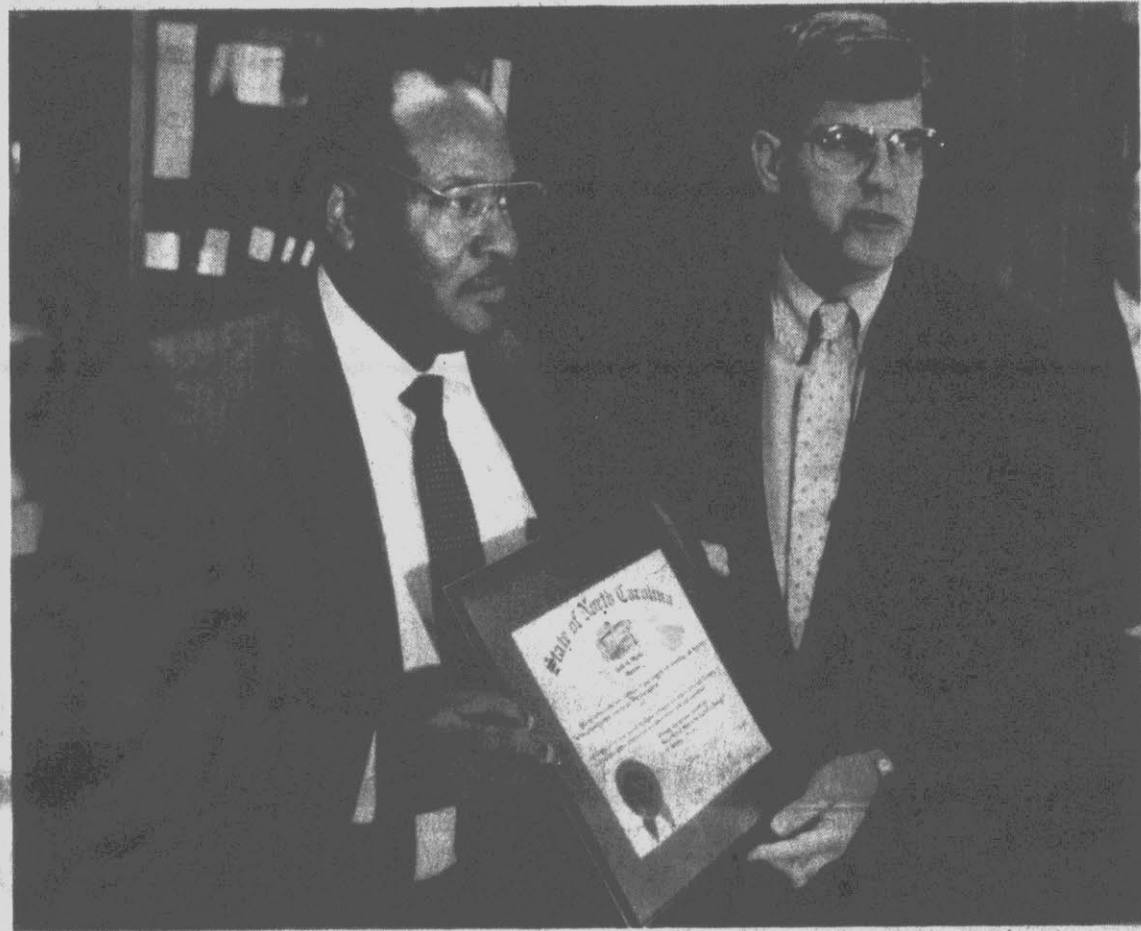

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, his bid for $36.2 million in new aid to the Nicaraguan Contras rejected by the House, said today he intends to continue helping the rebels battling the leftist Sandinista government.
The president, leaving the National Prayer Breakfast, was asked what he intended to do for the Contras in the light of the House vote.
"Help 'em," Reagan responded without elaboration.

His spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, did not have any immediate elaboration on Reagan's remark.
Meanwhile, retired Gen. John Singlaub said now that Congress has killed the aid proposal, he will ask for donations and sell "war bonds" to raise money for the Contras. He said he met in Washington with conservative leaders last weekend to discuss fund-raising.
Singlaub said funds to pay for humanitarian aid will be raised in the United States and abroad. Money brought in from "war bond sales," he said, will be placed in banks overseas and used to buy arms and ammunition if needed.

"There are millions of people who feel strongly that we cannot in our own national security interests allow the Soviets to establish the bases that they are developing now in Nicaragua," he said.
The administration has said it would not turn to third or private individuals to aid the Contras.
Despite a lobbying blitz by Reagan, the House rejected further military support for the insurgents by a 219-211 vote Wednesday night. In doing so, it dismissed the president's argument that only the Contras could prevent creation of a communist stronghold in Central America.

House Democrats who handed Reagan the stinging defeat said they would support alternative humanitarian aid for the Contras but would no longer finance warfare in a region that is now seeking peace.
The Senate planned to decide later today whether to take up a similar

SYMBOLIC GESTURE — Greenville Mayor Ed Carter receives a certificate — dated Dec. 30 — appointing him to the Governor's Crime Commission from Gov. Jim Martin at a Pitt-Greenville Airport gathering Wednesday night minutes after Martin arrived by plane to attend a fund-raising reception. A short time later Carter boarded a flight to Charlotte, where he was to attend his first crime commission meeting today. Martin called the panel "a very important commission," and said Carter's appointment "brings representation from this part of the state." (Reflector Staff Photo)

Pitt Republicans Turn Out For Martin Fund-Raiser

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Gov. Jim Martin pledged continued support for better schools, better roads and a better quality of life for all North Carolina residents as he appeared at a $75-a-person fund-raising reception here Wednesday night.
Martin, seeking re-election as the state's second Republican governor this century, also criticized a proposal by Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, to restructure the Department of Commerce.
Well over 100 supporters attended the reception sponsored by Max Ray Joyner, a member of East Carolina University's Board of Trustees, and Randy Doub, a member of the state Board of Transportation, at Joyner's Circle Drive home.
"You were there in 1984," Martin told the gathering. "That's why I'm here," seeking re-election.
"How excited I am the way support is building." But Martin warned, "we can't take the other side for granted."
During the past three years, Martin said, "We've been trying to build one united state." And he voiced his commitment to "having better schools, roads, jobs ... a better quality of life in every community in the state."

Citing what he described as "a very serious dropout problem," that sees a third of the state's children leave school before they graduate, Martin said, "we need to get that early education locked down so they don't lose interest" and drop out.
He also suggested that more steps need to be taken to attract and keep the best teachers.
Martin noted that, four years ago, he restricted his promises on road improvements. "I only promised I-40," in 1984 Martin said, to link the port of Wilmington to the rest of the state.
By not promising to build other roads, and by seeking local input on what roads are the most important to various regions of the state, "we brought integrity to the highway building program," Martin said.
The strategic corridor system of highways adopted by the transportation board "will tie us together as one united state," Martin said, and will place "90 percent of the people within 10 miles of a four-lane highway."

He said the corridor system was formed by going to area leaders and saying, "You tell us what's the most important highway in the area."
According to Martin, "You've got to have (good) roads to have jobs. And you've got to have jobs to pay for the roads."
And Martin said his administration has been working to attract new jobs. "Over the past three years, we've

Shamir Tours Gaza Camps

NABLUS, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israeli troops wounded one protester at a West Bank refugee camp today and Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir toured two camps in the Gaza Strip and promised to improve living conditions there.

The visit marked the first time an Israeli prime minister had entered a Gaza camp.

Scattered clashes between Israeli soldiers and Palestinian demonstrators were reported throughout the occupied territories.

In the Balata refugee camp near Nablus, a major protest erupted after troops briefly lifted a curfew to allow residents to restock their food supplies, the army said.

Troops fired tear gas and then fired guns to disperse the crowd, wounding a resident in the leg, army officials said, but did not provide further details.

The Arab-run Palestine Press Service said two people were wounded in Balata, including a 13-year-old boy. The agency also said a 14-year-old boy was wounded by army gunfire during a clash in the village of Dura near the West Bank city of Hebron.

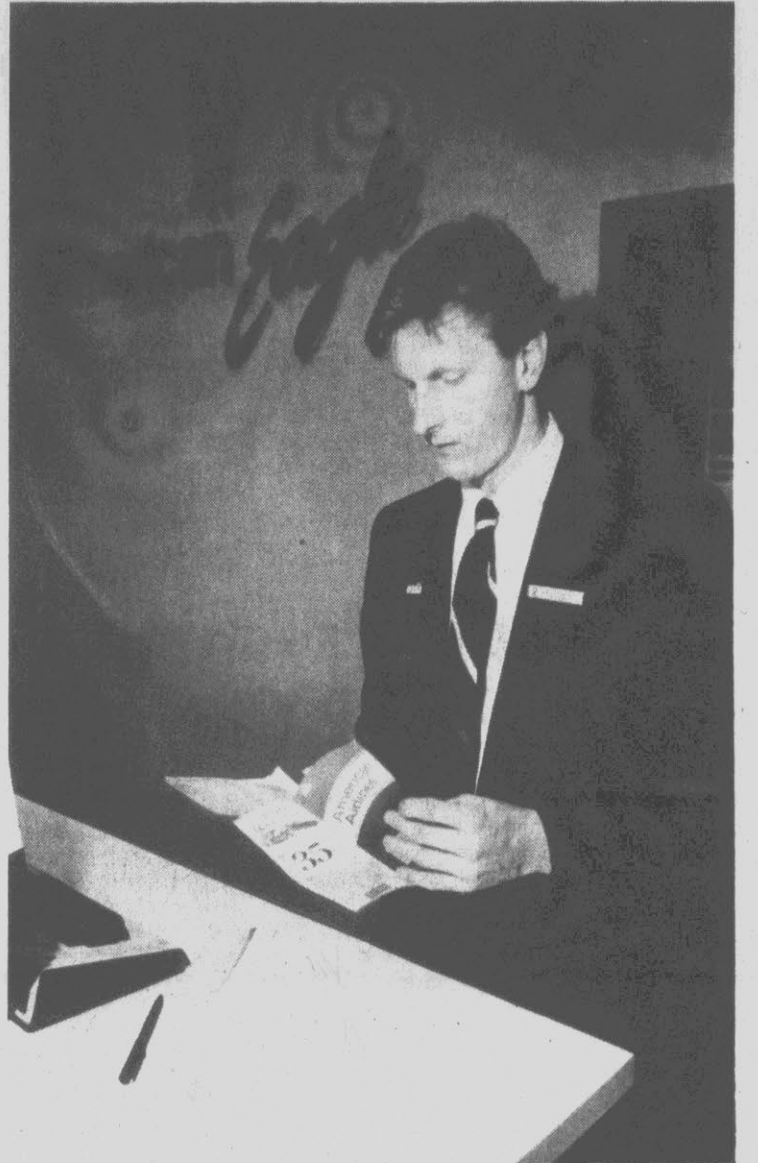

The army said it was checking the reports.

On Wednesday, Israeli troops killed one Palestinian in the West Bank city of Tulkarem after Moslem preachers announced that Israeli vigilantes were rampaging through the town. Six other Palestinians were wounded in clashes throughout the territory Wednesday.

The death brought to 43 the confirmed number of Palestinians killed by Israeli gunfire since rioting began Dec. 8 in the occupied territories, seized in 1967 by Israeli troops.

In the Gaza Strip, Shamir's 12-vehicle army convoy hurried through the Nuseirat and Beach camps.

At Nuseirat, the prime minister got out of his van and spoke briefly to camp resident Shehadeh al-Baneh on the camp's main street, where puddles of mud and sewage collected between tin-roofed, cinderblock houses. Barefoot children looked on.

American Eagle Revises Flights

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
American Eagle, a commuter airline affiliated with American Airlines, boarded 22 passengers at Pitt-Greenville Airport Wednesday, station manager Ed Moore said this morning.

Wednesday was the first day the commuter airline had operated since service was suspended Jan. 15, when AVAir Inc. of Raleigh, the commuter's parent company, filed for reorganization in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Lynchburg, Va.

The commuter's first flight left Raleigh-Durham Airport for Greenville at 9:16 a.m.

Moore said service in Greenville was resumed Wednesday with a revised schedule that includes three departures for Raleigh-Durham and one to Myrtle Beach, S.C. each day.

The flights to American Airlines' hub at Raleigh-Durham Airport leave at 8:57 a.m., 1:12 p.m. and 7:17 p.m., Moore said, while the flight to Myrtle Beach departs at 8:20 p.m.

"This is a good market here," Moore said. "We plan on backing that up with action."

Moore took over as station manager at Pitt-Greenville Wednesday. Prior to that time he had been American Eagle's station manager in Charleston, W. Va.

CARLTON P. SMITH

Smith Seeks House Seat

Carlton P. Smith Jr. has filed as a Republican candidate for the N.C. House of Representatives in the 9th House District.

This marks the first bid by Smith, current chairman of the Pitt County GOP, for a political seat. He is employed as curator of the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

A native of Kitty Hawk, Smith has lived in Pitt County since 1968. He holds both a bachelor's and a master's degree from East Carolina University, majoring first in science education and then in rehabilitation counseling.

Smith lives in Simpson, where he and his wife, the former Sylvia Huntley, are active in the Salem United Methodist Church.

Commenting on issues Smith feels are of foremost importance, he said "one of these is in the field of AIDS education. Presently the primary victims are homosexuals, drug abusers and hemophiliacs. A program against drug abusers, the 'say

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Rural Economies Possess Potential

The fact that economic trends may be working against rural areas in North Carolina doesn't mean these areas are victims of permanent blight.

That point of view is a common misconception and should be regarded as inaccurate. Rural North Carolina cannot be compared to urban areas and be expected to shine, simply because rural economies and urban ones function differently. But rural communities are strong in their own way — with a vigorous infrastructure and improving education systems.

Pitt County is a good example of this fact. It is rural, but contains a prosperous, rapidly expanding urban county seat — Greenville — that attracts growth. The county must still struggle, however, with the problems facing rural areas.

The state's rural communities are changing, not dying, and while economic forecasters expect the outlook to worsen for non-urban areas, this prediction should be tempered with the knowledge the rural economy is in transition, and with help, can prosper.

It is true major economic trends may be working against rural communities. For example, urban-based industries — services and high tech — are flourishing. Rural-based ones, like agriculture, mining and forestry, are declining and changing sharply.

Tobacco plays a diminished role in the state's rural economy. Many farmers are experimenting with alternative crops, such as cotton and vegetables. The environmental ill effects of mining have been recognized, often after mined resources have been depleted. Ecologically safe methods of mining have made the practice prohibitively expensive in some instances.

In addition, the benefits of government deregulation have settled on metropolitan areas. For rural areas, deregulation has often meant higher air fares, steeper phone rates and the loss of small town banks and services.

It should be noted, however, that deregulation has in some respects benefited small communities. In the airline industry, for example, deregulation has encouraged the creation of commuter airlines to serve small town airports that otherwise would offer no regular air service. The success of the Pitt-Greenville Airport is an example of this benefit.

Rural areas have become increasingly dependent, however, on tourism for revenues. Coastal counties have experienced a boom in recreation-related income, in addition to population growth from expanding popularity as retirement areas.

The key to strengthening opportunities for a rural area lies in improving its schools and connections to major metropolitan areas. This strength also depends on providing a base of financial support for local entrepreneurs, and offering low-interest start-up funds to small businesses that could not survive paying conventional interest rates.

Rural schools must improve what can be offered to students. The state's Basic Education program addresses this need, but does not meet it entirely. Rural students must be more flexible than their urban counterparts so they can shift skills to meet a changing economy. In Pitt County, this need is relevant, since graduates face diverse job offerings in the community.

Rural areas must also constantly push for better roads to connect them with larger areas. Pitt should not let up in its struggle for four-lane access to Wilmington, Virginia and nearby I-95.

Rural areas must consider modern, county-wide sewer systems to help lure industry. In addition, many new endeavors will likely be resource-based, so safeguards protecting the environment must be implemented.

It is clear when the future of rural areas are considered, needs don't necessarily mean blight. Rural areas where attention to given to progress and areas that boast an increasingly urban population base — Pitt County included — have a bright future.

To the editor:

Thank you for your correct assessment of the situation in downtown Greenville as articulated in the editorial, "Active Approach." The potential of downtown Greenville does overshadow its decline and a unified planning effort is something whose time has come. Hence, Evergreen of Greenville has devoted a significant amount of time during 1987, not only to the recruitment of new investment downtown, but also to the coordination of people and organizations whose input and support is critical to the realization of downtown's potential.

Evergreen has been directly involved with the Downtown Greenville Association, the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, the city, county and university. We are represented on the Greenville Parking Authority and serve as staff to the Downtown Greenville Property Owners Association. As we have espoused to each of these groups, the coordination of four components are required of any successful downtown program, those being planning, marketing, promotion and development. Of those four, planning has received the least proportionate amount of attention to date.

We have recruited the involvement of the downtown Property Owners Association to participate in the effort of having a plan prepared for the future development of downtown. The plan will be based upon the economic potential of our local and regional marketplace, and is to be prepared with the knowledge of major projects pending, many of which you recognized in your editorial. Consequently, the participation of all related entities is in fact needed, and an interface with each, individually and collectively, will be required.

With a "multi-faceted approach" or plan, for the revitalization of downtown and, of equal importance, the continued long-term commitment required to implement that plan, success in the form of a vibrant, economically healthy downtown will be forthcoming. For your support and acknowledgment of that fact, I am most appreciative.

To the editor:

I have read several negative articles concerning the visit of Presidential hopeful Jesse Jackson to Greenville. I have some knowledge of the way some things were handled concerning his visit. First of all, in defense of Mayor Carter: Mayor Carter's office was not responsible for Rev. Jackson's visit to Greenville. The Pitt County Jesse Jackson for President Campaign Committee organized the event.

Why it was not mentioned earlier: for security reasons and, also, Rev. Jackson was not even scheduled to appear in Greenville until a few days earlier. He did appear here, thanks to the fast thinking of his Pitt County campaign chairperson.

As for the event being held at Cornerstone Church: By the event having to be organized so quickly, Cornerstone was the only building of its size available at the time.

By the way, the event was advertised at 8 p.m. and the majority of the people who didn't get in didn't arrive until well after 7 p.m. The people who had to stay in the lobby did get to see him through the glass partition and hear him over the loudspeaker.

I think the citizens should think twice before they react or criticize until they know the full details. We should commend Ms. Willie Mae Carney, chairperson, for her quick action in bringing the Rev. Jesse Jackson to Greenville.

There are cassette recordings available of Rev. Jackson's speech in Greenville. You may contact Carlos A. Dawson, 303 Cadillac St., Greenville; (919) 758-9663.

To the editor:

Congratulations to The Daily Reflector for expressing the need for caution and cooperation as the Eastern North Carolina Chamber of Commerce continues its Carolina Clean Countryside Campaign and attempts to assess the historical and architectural significance of various structures. One person's eyesore may be another person's treasure.

Caution as it relates to Pitt County, however, was dismissed in the January 25 editorial titled "Eyesore or Treasure." Your editorial states that "... there is almost nothing left that extends back to pre-Civil War ..." This statement, however, is not true.

For over three years the Pitt County Historical Society has actively been raising funds for a three-phased project to 1) survey the rural areas of the county, 2) survey the six small municipalities, and 3) publish the findings of these surveys. In July 1987, a highly qualified consultant, Scott Power, began Phase I. To date, two-thirds of the fieldwork has been completed in the rural survey. Of the 350 properties recorded so far, approximately 90 to 100 are pre-Civil War ones, including house, ancillary farm structures, churches, and one extremely important commercial building. These buildings survive in varying degrees of integrity, but they do survive — along with a wide range of architecturally and historically important late-19th and early 20th century structures.

How easy it is to make sweeping statements like those in your editorial, but how difficult it is to preserve such long-ignored buildings as the two slave quarters recently destroyed. Only four had been recorded in the county thus far. Education is the key ingredient to understanding. I salute the efforts being made by the Pitt County Historical Society to identify, record and publish the architectural heritage of the county. One hopes these efforts will be successful in preserving a fragile portion of Pitt County's history and, thereby, fill what is an apparent educational void.

Technology Flow Should Go Two Ways

While the world's two greatest military powers strive to build a more constructive relationship in the wake of the Reagan-Gorbachev summit, a little-noticed but critically important development in the relationship between the world's two greatest economic powers is unfolding in Tokyo and Washington.

At the conclusion of Japanese Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita's visit to the White House in January, a major unresolved issue was the renewal of the U.S.-Japan Science and Technology Agreement that was first signed in 1980. This agreement, which expired Jan. 31, provided a general framework for U.S.-Japan science and technology relations, including the principle of cooperation in those fields. But little progress has been made in reaching a new agreement.

Attention has been focused mainly on our huge trade deficit with Japan and the dollar's losing battle with the yen, both of which have defied any significant corrective response. Yet a U.S.-Japan science and technology agreement that is fair to both sides can be a major help in correcting the trade imbalance.

A root cause of the imbalance is the inequitable technology flow between the United States and Japan that has existed for many years. American research and technology have undergirded the Japanese economic miracle and boomeranged in the form of a huge merchandise deficit with Japan.

In recent years the Japanese have enjoyed a 5-to-1 advantage over the United States in electronics technology exchange and a 7-to-1 advantage in machine tools. About 70 percent of Japan's worldwide technology imports have come from the United States.

This unequal flow of technical know-how, the "one-way street" syndrome, must stop.

Moves are under way in both countries to address the imbalance, but much more needs to be done. That is why the renewal of the U.S.-Japan science and technology agreement now being negotiated is so important. The agreement should pave the way for achieving two paramount goals: that equity be a fundamental precept of relationships in science and technology, and that Japan fund more basic research.

One of the principal objectives of U.S. negotiators is to gain an acknowledgment by the Japanese that there is an imbalance.

Let me suggest some specific steps that could be taken to achieve these goals.

One of our most critical needs is expansion of technological cooperation embracing a wide range of science and engineering. The potential is far beyond the present level of activity. For example, cooperation on the proposed superconducting super collider would benefit both countries.

Japan should open its government-supported research and development projects to Americans, just as Japanese researchers now have relatively easy access to our laboratories.

An estimated 7,000 Japanese graduate students and postdoctoral fellows now study science and engineering in the United States, while slightly more than 1,000 Americans are engaged in similar studies in Japan. Because cultural, language and other barriers make it difficult to equalize the situation, the Japanese government should be asked to subsidize any U.S. university where Japanese nationals are studying.

In the long term Japan must develop institutions and programs that will permit it to share with other nations the costs as well as the benefits of technology. In the meantime, Japan should assume a fair share of responsibility for generating new knowledge. One way to do this would be to provide funding for basic research to be administered by the U.S. National Science Foundation.

Strength For Today

Why is harsh judgment of others such an unlovely circumstance in human relations? Not because none of us merit judgment, but because none of us knows enough about any person — his background, motives, and capacity — to pass judgment on what he does or thinks.

Even when we think we know people well, in the last analysis. Buried in their natures may be certain deplorable tendencies which, if they were in our own natures, would drive us to more wicked actions than we condemn in them.

The moment we begin judging other people, we begin inviting judgment upon ourselves. We are supposed to be brother, neighbor, and friend to all those around us, but never the judge of their actions and motives. As Jesus said, "Judge not that ye be not judged, for with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged..."

WELL, PERSONALLY, I LIKE ALL THESE CANDIDATES COMING THROUGH IOWA... HECK, I HAVEN'T HAD TO DO THE CHORES IN MONTHS!!

Contra Vote Indicates Gap

Analysis

WASHINGTON — In the past five years, President Reagan has devoted 20 entire speeches, and parts of 41 others, to urging military aid to the Contras trying to oust the Sandinista government of Nicaragua.

The figures, provided by the White House, bear out the general impression that Contra aid has been one of the central foreign-policy preoccupations of Reagan's presidency.

Yet as of last week, barely one American in 100 felt that Central America was the foremost problem facing the United States, Reagan's own pollster, Richard Wirthlin, said Wednesday.

And despite all that has been written about it, only one in three Americans even knew that Nicaragua is in Central America. "Americans by a large majority do not support aiding the Contras," Wirthlin said, adding that a high percentage of the 1,000 people polled did not know the difference between the Sandinistas and the Contras.

The gap between Reagan's intense feeling and the disinterest of the American public may help explain the House's decision Wednesday night to turn down Reagan's request for more aid, a move that the administration said will doom the Contras as an effective fighting force.

Despite his personal commitment and his popularity, Reagan has been unable to convince the public that the issue is important and that he is pursuing the right course.

One of the central reasons has been the administration's strategy in Congress.

What began as a small covert program managed by the CIA had its first serious challenge in July 1983, when the House voted down Contra aid. From that point onward, Reagan aides pursued a strategy of confrontation with Democrats in Congress.

The administration did not frame the debate in terms of the possible threat to U.S. security but instead chose to denounce the Sandinistas, who, as Marxists, could not be trusted. And instead of looking for ways to safeguard U.S. interests — a traditional matter that could be resolved through diplomatic means — the administration endeavored to convince the public that it had to install a democracy.

The administration then challenged Congress to choose sides — either with the president or with the Sandinistas.

Eventually, administration hardliners, including the late CIA director William Casey and former White House staffer Oliver L. North, prevailed over any softening of the U.S. position.

And at the height of his popularity, Reagan was able to defeat the Democrats both years — winning $27 million in non-lethal aid in 1985 and $100 million in 1986, of which $70 million was for arms and ammunition.

The momentum shifted in November 1986. The Democrats, already in control of the House, took control of the Senate, and the administration revealed that top officials had sponsored a scheme to sell U.S. arms to Iran at inflated prices and divert the profits to the Contras.

Gravely weakened by what became known as the Iran-Contra affair, Reagan postponed his request for Contra aid one full year and cut the amount by two-thirds to the $36.25 million Contra package that was defeated Wednesday.

Meanwhile, in the absence of U.S. diplomacy, Central Americans led by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias began their own peace initiative last August.

Arias' approach was a twist from previous regional peace efforts because it ignored security issues and focused almost entirely on "democratization," the administration's ideological interest.

To the surprise of many U.S. officials, the Sandinistas subsequently eased their tight internal controls, including lifting a six-year state of emergency and allowing independent news media to reopen.

Still, the administration responded negatively, deriding those actions as simple cosmetic gestures that easily could be reversed.

A number of White House and State Department officials said they believe that had Reagan decided to launch a diplomatic initiative in recent weeks and begun direct talks with Managua, Congress would have approved the aid request so as not to undercut the administration. But administration hardliners, their ranks thinned after the Iran-Contra debacle, continued to oppose a U.S. peace initiative.

Instead, Reagan raised the ante: Only after the Sandinistas and the Contras had achieved a cease-fire and had made significant progress toward a political settlement would the United States agree to talk with them.

For their part, congressional Democratic leaders, seething with anger for 4½ years, saw the start of Reagan's last year in office as an opportunity to pull out all the stops and block the aid plan.

This time, they would define the issue, arguing that voting against Reagan's request would support Arias' initiative and, ironically, help achieve Reagan's democratization goal.

In his speech Tuesday night on the eve of the vote, Reagan again charged the Sandinistas with violating every commitment they have made to internal democratization, even as he offered Congress a voice in deciding whether he would release the $3.6 million in his new aid package destined for ammunition.

Now the defeat of the aid package removes the central element of Reagan's Nicaragua policy, and it is not clear what the administration will establish in its place. Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams has argued that defeat will benefit the Republicans in the coming election, who will be able to tag the Democrats with losing Nicaragua.

Although House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, promised that the Democrats soon would present an alternative package with only humanitarian aid for the Contras, an aide to Wright said that the Democrats were in no rush and first would wait to hear the views of the Central American leaders.

Once again, Wirthlin's poll may have pointed to the outcome. Congress conceivably may not pass an alternative package because, as Wirthlin put it, aid to the Contras just is not a bread-and-butter issue to most Americans.

Red Tide Destroyed Coastal Research Projects

Part One Of A Series

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — Researchers say effects of the toxic red tide that has wiped out North Carolina's shellfishing industry this year may carry over to future seasons by destroying marine life in its larva stage.

John Costlow at Duke's Marine Research Center in Beaufort was studying the effects of man-made chemicals on blue crab larvae when the larvae were destroyed by water carrying the Ptychodiscus brevis organism.

"That washed out all of the research and it did worse than that; it generated some thinking," Costlow said in an interview. "If it will kill crabs larvae ... what about crabs, oysters, shrimp and so forth in the natural environment?"

"Are we looking at a situation where not only is it having the immediate effect of closing down all mollusk fisheries, but down the road will we see a tremendous reduction in new adult populations of various things because it killed off all the larvae in the fall and spring of 1987-88? I don't know the answer, but I am concerned about it."

The economic impact of the red tide was placed at $25 million by late January, with more than 360,000 acres of shellfishing waters closed to keep contaminated oysters and clams from reaching the markets. Monetary losses by researchers amounted to only a few thousand dollars, but set off alarms about the future of the commercial fishing industry.

Pete Peterson, a researcher with the University of North Carolina's Marine Research Laboratory in Morehead City, said the algae likely killed thousands of scallops he was studying — a fact that may bode badly for future harvests.

"If I were out there and somebody gave me a couple hundred thousand (dollars) and said, 'Will you please go out and make some predictions about what this thing is going to do in the future,' the first thing I'd do is look at the larvae and see what the larval problems have been," Peterson said.

"And it could actually go both ways," he said. "It's conceivable that this could have greater impact on the predators of those larvae than on the larvae themselves."

At the National Marine Fisheries Service next door to the Duke facility, a spawning project involving croaker, spot, menhaden and flounder was disrupted when water contaminated with the red-tide organism was piped into tanks where the fish were being held, said Bud Cross, director of the national center.

"We've lost a number of those due to the toxicity of the red tide," he said.

Bill Hettler, who supervised the spawning project, said he noticed the change in the tanks about the time surfers on the coast were complaining of coughing, sore throats and watery eyes due to the red tide's arrival in late October.

"I started to cough and thought, 'I don't know what it is, but maybe I'm allergic to the fish food or something,'" Hettler said. "You could go into the back and breathe the air coming off the tanks and get the same choking sensation people report at the beach."

It wasn't long before fish began dying, apparently because of a paralysis in the gills associated with the contamination.

"The croakers died first, then the spots. And menhaden were very sensitive to it," he said. "A lot of them would get very agitated and thrash around right before they died."

Pat Tester, who is tracking the movement of the red tide for the National Marine Fisheries Service, said she was amazed when the organism usually found in the Gulf of Mexico off Florida showed up here. She was even more surprised when the algae appeared to reproduce better in North Carolina waters than elsewhere.

"We have had some of the highest counts ever reported in the literature," she said.

That raises questions about whether the experience in other states can be translated to help North Carolina, Ms. Tester said.

Costlow agreed more research might help fishermen prepare for 1989, although there might not be much they could do.

"We don't know whether this stuff is going to have any real deleterious effect on planktonic larvae of the commercial species or not," he said.

"And even if they do, there is nothing we can do to prevent it other than to be able to say to the community of commercial fishermen, 'Don't get geared up next year because your stocks are going to be way down.'"

Court Told Children Tied, Beaten

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — An 11-year-old Chicago boy has testified that he and another child were forced by their foster parents to help beat two other children hanging from a door — one of them an 11-year-old girl who later died.

Anne Phillips, 64, and Sylvester Phillips, 56, are on trial in New Hanover Superior Court for the June 15, 1987, death of Tameka Lehmann. They are also charged with child abuse involving Tameka and 14-year-old John Phillips, an adopted son.

Tarrie Lehmann and Vera Phillips, an 11-year-old adopted daughter of the Phillipses, both testified Wednesday that on the weekend before Tameka's death the home was a scene of beatings, fights, and force-feedings of soap and hot pepper sauce for the girl who died and John Phillips.

Both testified that John and Tameka were bound and suspended on opposite sides of doors in the house.

Both also testified that Mrs. Phillips forced Tameka and John to engage in oral sex in the kitchen.

Under questioning from District Attorney Mike Easley, the children used dolls to illustrate how the others were tied and showed the court frying pans, a board, a metal rod, a lamp cord and a rubber mud flap from a truck. Those were some of the things used to beat the children, they said.

At one point, Mrs. Phillips held Tameka's head under running water, Vera testified. "Mama put Tameka in the bathtub and told her she was going to kill her," she said.

There were discrepancies in both children's testimony. Vera said the children were suspended upside down when tied to a door; Tarrie said they were upright. They also differed on how much Kool-Aid they said Tameka was forced to drink for punishment, and there were other variations.

After the jury left for the day Wednesday, defense attorney Mike Willis, representing Mrs. Phillips, made a motion seeking to require independent psychiatric examinations for the children.

"There have been obvious contradictions between what all of these children said," Willis said.

Judge Forrest Farrell denied the motion.

Tameka passed out in the kitchen after a weekend of beatings, both children said. The Phillipses put her in a tub of water and tried to revive her. When that failed, they took her to Bladen County Hospital.

Both said the Phillips couple told them not to tell authorities what happened.

State Needs Another Year To Get Adult Bus Drivers

RALEIGH (AP) — A state Board of Education committee says it could be at least another year before North Carolina can meet a federal directive to eliminate 17-year-old bus drivers.

"Whether the transition can be made — and I don't think it can — by the next school year doesn't concern me particularly so long as we get on the record that we're moving toward that," Howard Haworth, chairman of the education board, said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, another committee agreed that high school achievement testing should be expanded to include chemistry and geometry, with test results made part of a student's permanent records.

About one-third of North Carolina's buses are driven by students. For 20 years, state officials have asked the U.S. Department of Labor to waive its requirement that buses be driven by adults.

Getting the waivers has become more difficult in recent years. This year's reprieve was granted with certain conditions, and the Labor Department currently is conducting spot checks of 10 school systems to determine how well the state is complying.

Haworth said the state would have a better chance of getting another waiver next year if it is making strides to replace student drivers with adults.

The business committee agreed to draft a statement for next month's meeting that will spell out its commitment to having all adult bus drivers.

In the meantime, though, the state would need a waiver for at least another year while it works to attract adults to the job, said Cary Owen of Asheville, business committee chairwoman.

To that end, the committee discussed increasing the pay for bus drivers to $6.50 an hour, up from the current $4.91, and include benefits such as health insurance and paid holidays. That measure would help to attract adults, she said. State officials have estimated the cost of such an increase at $20 million.

Preliminary findings of the Labor

Department's spot checks indicate that some schools' systems aren't following federal stipulations completely.

Teen-Ager's Life Sentence Upheld

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Supreme Court has upheld the life sentence given a Durham teen-ager who was convicted of second-degree murder in the shooting death of a high-school cheerleader who had spurned his romances.

David Mancuso had argued in his appeal that the trial court wrongfully based his sentence on a finding that the death of Norma Russell was "especially heinous, atrocious or cruel."

The Supreme Court found evidence presented at the trial "shows excessive brutality and psychological suffering not normally present in second-degree murders...."

Associate Justice John Webb wrote in Wednesday's opinion.

Mancuso "had been tormenting" Ms. Russell for months to the point of trying to break into her house, Webb wrote. "She was genuinely afraid of him; she began to carry a knife to protect herself."

Just prior to the shooting, Mancuso picked up Ms. Russell and put her into her car through the window as she kicked and screamed.

Mancuso shot Ms. Russell, a senior at Northern High School in Durham County, in the school parking lot January 9, 1986.

Martin's Task Force To Meet Indians Next Week

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A task force formed by Gov. Jim Martin to end a hostage siege will meet with the two hostage-takers next week to hear their charges of alleged corruption and racism in Robeson County's judicial system.

Phil Kirk, Martin's chief of staff who negotiated the agreement that ended the hostage crisis, said Wednesday a three-member task force would meet with Eddie Hatcher and Timothy Jacobs next Monday or Tuesday.

"We will have as many meetings as are necessary for him (Hatcher) to tell us everything he wants to tell us," Kirk said, adding that the location of next week's meeting had not been decided. Hatcher and Jacobs are being held in the federal prison at Butner on federal hostage-taking and weapons charges.

Hatcher, 30, and Jacobs, 19, members of the Tuscarora faction of the Lumbee Indians, invaded the offices of The Robesonian newspaper Monday morning and took as many as 20 hostages. They gradually released the captives over the next 10 hours, freeing the last eight around 8 p.m. after reaching the settlement with Kirk.

"This is not something that is going to be swept under the rug," Kirk said. "This is a very serious and sincere effort to address some longstanding concerns."

The group will receive any information Hatcher and Jacobs have about alleged crimes in Robeson County and forward it to the U.S. attorney for possible prosecution, Kirk said.

Task force members include Kirk; Jim Trotter, Martin's general counsel; and Joe Dean, state secretary of crime control and public safety.

Bruce Cunningham, a Southern Pines attorney representing Hatcher, said he planned to meet with his client Thursday to discuss next week's meeting. Cunningham said he had not had time to talk with Hatcher about his claims of corruption.

In its Tuesday edition, the Robesonian published a rambling statement that Hatcher made to his captives Monday.

"Corruption in the county government here has gone too far for peaceful means to resolve what's going on," Hatcher said. "And this is why we are doing what we are doing. ... There are many unsolved murders in the county that the government has no desire to try to find out who did it."

"We had to do this to try to bring something in here that would help all the people of this county. It ain't just the Indians and blacks, the whites are suffering too under a corrupt level of government."

Hatcher accused Sheriff Hubert

Stone's department of brutality, discrimination and involvement in drug trafficking. Stone denied it. "We run a clean department," he told reporters Tuesday.

State Rep. Sidney Locks, D-Robeson, who participated in the negotiations, said Wednesday he hoped the task force would conduct a broad-based probe and listen to people other than Hatcher and Jacobs.

"I would hope they would listen to John Q. Public in Robeson County,"

Locks said. "There's a lot of frustration in people who feel that the criminal justice system and local law enforcement system is pretty abusive" to blacks and Indians.

Leaders of Concerned Citizens for a Better Robeson County, a group that has pushed for better treatment of local blacks and Indians, said Tuesday that the hostage-taking had resulted from longstanding social, political and economic problems.

They complained of a growing drug problem, an inadequate education system, underemployment and unsympathetic public officials.

Kirk said the task force could not solve all those problems, but wanted to send a message that it was concerned and would do all it could.

He said Martin already had planned to send the General Assembly this summer a package of recommendations for improving conditions in judicial districts that include most of the state's Indians.

Governor To Submit Proposed Indian Bills

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin says he will submit bills to the Legislature this summer aimed at improving relations between North Carolina's American Indian population and the criminal justice system.

Ironically, however, Martin says the proposed legislation won't be the result of this week's hostage crisis in Robeson County.

The recommendations were included in a 63-page "Report on the Treatment of Indians by the Criminal Justice System" released in October. A committee appointed by the state Commission on Indian Affairs developed the report in response to requests for an investigation of an Indian's death at the hands of a Robeson County deputy sheriff in November 1986.

Among the report's 10 recommendations:

— Public defender offices should be established in three judicial districts with large Indian populations: the 6th (Northampton, Bertie and Hertford); 16th (Robeson and Scotland); and 30th (seven mountain counties).

The report said community leaders repeatedly complained that court-appointed attorneys did not represent low-income Indian defendants adequately.

— Magistrates should be encouraged to make greater use of unsecured bonds for Indian defendants, who often have problems making bail.

— District attorneys should revise court calendars to ensure that low-income workers are not required to spend unnecessary time at the courthouse awaiting trial — time that could cause them to lose their jobs.

— Give law enforcement officers special training to help them overcome alleged stereotypes about Indians.

— Increase recruitment and hiring of Indians at all levels of the criminal justice system. There are no Indian sheriffs, district attorneys or judges in North Carolina, the report says.

— Appoint a task force to conduct periodic review of the treatment of minority defendants in criminal proceedings in each of the state's judicial districts.

Judge Dies

AHOSKIE, N.C. (AP) — J. William Copeland, a retired state Supreme Court associate justice, died Wednesday at an Ahoskie hospital after a short illness. He was 73.

Copeland, of Murfreesboro, was elected to the state's highest court in 1974 and served until 1984.

He served four terms in the state Senate, representing the 1st District. When Senate colleague Terry Sanford was elected governor in 1960, Sanford tapped Copeland as a legislative counsel.

A year later, Sanford appointed Copeland a Special Superior Court judge, a post he held until he ran for the N.C. Supreme Court.

Coach Shot

DURHAM (AP) — Police are investigating the death of Durham High School's baseball coach, who was shot in his sleep Monday with a gun he had hidden under his pillow, authorities said.

Allison Russell "Russ" Stager III, 40, was killed when his wife, Barbara, who was sleeping beside her husband, reached under the pillow and accidentally fired the gun, police said.

Stager was struck in the back of the head about 6 a.m. He died about 12:30 p.m. at Duke Medical Center, authorities said.

The incident occurred when, hearing the alarm clock sound, Mrs. Stager reached out and felt an object under her husband's pillow, said Sgt. R.D. Buchanan of the Durham County Sheriff's Department. As she tried to remove it, the gun went off, he said.

Escapee Charged

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — A 35-year-old escapee from the Polkton prison unit has been charged in an armed robbery of a Stallings man, authorities said.

Richard Hamilton Yandel was charged with first degree burglary, second degree kidnapping and armed robbery of John L. Jones, according to Union County Sheriff Frank McGurt.

The charges stem from Sunday's

1:30 a.m. robbery at Jones' home when he was awakened by a man banging on his door and shouting for help. When Jones opened the door, a man pointed a gun in his face and forced him to lie on the floor. The man and three others entered, bound Jones and gagged him with a towel, McGurt said.

The intruders ransacked Jones' house, took about $2,500 in personal property and left. Jones was not injured, police said.

Escape warrants have been filed against Yandel who walked off a work-release job from a Union County Construction site in September, according to Benny Brooks, superintendent of Anson County Prison unit 4570.

Yandel was serving 10 to 20 years for a breaking, entering and larceny conviction and possession of drugs, Brooks said.

Captured

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Two youths who escaped from the Edgecombe County Jail this week have been captured in Baltimore, the Edgecombe County Sheriff's Department reported.

Derry Smith, 17, and James Gorham Jr., 17, are in the custody of Baltimore authorities. They were found in a Baltimore neighborhood where Gorham has relatives, a sheriff's department spokesman said Wednesday.

Smith, Gorham and a third man, Kenneth Ashburn, 22, overpowered a corrections officer at the county jail Sunday night. Ashburn turned himself in Monday night.

Referendum

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Craven County voters have approved a $26 million bond issue by an unofficial count of more than 2-to-1, paving the way for a spate of school construction and renovation over the coming three years.

Only seven of 25 precincts went against the bond issue, touted in a three-month campaign as the quickest remedy for overcrowded and deteriorating school buildings in the New Bern-Craven County system.

Kennedy To Take Seat On Court On Feb. 18

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Anthony M. Kennedy will join the Supreme Court in two weeks and is likely to play a pivotal role in deciding crucial issues confronting the sharply divided justices.

The 51-year-old federal appeals court judge, unanimously confirmed by the Senate on Wednesday, will not have to wait long for his baptismal fire.

He is scheduled to be sworn in Feb. 18 at the court building. Five days later he will participate with the other eight justices in hearing arguments on a highly controversial subject — whether private clubs may be forced to admit women and racial minorities.

Kennedy, criticized during his Senate confirmation hearings for his own past membership in such clubs, has not tipped his hand on how he views the case or such frequently recurring issues as abortion regulation, affirmative action and church-state relations.

But there is little doubt that his vote often will prove decisive this term and in the years ahead.

Kennedy will fill a vacancy created seven months ago by the retirement of Justice Lewis F. Powell, a moderate conservative and often a swing vote in closely watched cases.

The absence of a ninth justice for more than half of the court's 1987-88 terms has caused important deadlocks.

For example, the court split 4-4 in December on whether a state may require some teen-agers seeking abortions to wait 24 hours after telling their parents or a judge about their decision before having the operations.

By the same vote last month, the justices divided over an affirmative action plan designed to promote more blacks and Hispanics in New York City's police department.

Also, court sources say the justices have delayed action on at least a dozen cases until the vacancy is filled. For example, the justices have yet to act on an appeal involving mandatory drug testing for some federal employees, a case they first discussed in private before the term began in October.

Union leaders are challenging the power of the U.S. Customs Service to require urine samples for those seeking drug enforcement jobs. If the court agrees to hear their appeal, it would set the stage for a major ruling on drug testing for public employees.

In a case involving church-state relations, the court announced in December it will consider killing a lawsuit that seeks to strip the Roman Catholic Church of its tax-exempt status because of the church's anti-abortion lobbying.

Kennedy will take his seat on the court in time to hear arguments in that case and participate in a ruling expected to be announced by July.

Kennedy's confirmation by a 97-0 vote in the Senate climaxed a bitter struggle that began when President Reagan named Robert H. Bork last July to succeed Powell.

Opponents branded Bork a right-wing extremist and he was rejected by the Senate. Reagan's second choice, Douglas H. Ginsburg, withdrew after admitting he smoked marijuana while a law school professor.

Reagan unquestionably has placed his imprint on the high court. Besides Kennedy, he has appointed Justices Sandra Day O'Connor and Antonin Scalia and promoted William H. Rehnquist to chief justice.

But the question remains whether the president will succeed in forging a conservative consensus on crucial issues that Bork's nomination was intended to guarantee.

Kennedy's 12-year record as a federal judge is extensive. But as the nominee himself testified, he is not guided by an overarching ideology.

He has been reluctant to expand legal protections for women, racial minorities and homosexuals. But his tone has been moderate and there is ample evidence of a man willing to approach difficult issues with an open mind.

SEC Chief Says His Agency Needs Final Word On Marts

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, David S. Ruder, today said his agency should have the last word when there are disagreements with other federal regulators in overseeing the nation's stock and futures exchanges.

Ruder, whose agency oversees the stock markets, also said on NBC-TV's "Today" show that he'd like to see leaders of stock and futures exchanges "get together to tell us what kinds of measures they think are important" to improve the functioning of financial markets.

Speaking of the current division in authority over stocks and futures markets, he said: "It's my opinion that the Securities and Exchange Commission should have what I think of as a tie-breaking function when we can't reach agreement with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the commission that regulates the futures industry."

A day earlier, Ruder told the Senate Banking Committee that stock and futures markets are so closely linked it makes sense for stock index futures to be regulated by the SEC rather than the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

He rejected the notion — advanced by the presidential task force appointed to study the October stock market crash — that the Federal Reserve Board should coordinate financial market policy.

"The Federal Reserve lacks the necessary expertise regarding both equity and futures markets," Ruder said Wednesday during the second of four hearings by the committee on the Oct. 19 stock market plunge.

The heads of the major stock and futures exchanges, except for New York Stock Exchange Chairman John Phelan, are testifying today. Phelan is scheduled to appear Friday.

The SEC is blaming computer strategies based on futures trading for getting the crash started and making it worse.

At a news conference, Ruder conceded that the political chances of stripping the CFTC of some of its jurisdiction are slight. He said an interim plan, which would give the SEC "tie-breaking" authority when it disagrees with the CFTC, may have a better chance.

Ruder said the SEC ideally would want authority to coordinate margins — the amount of downpayment required to buy a futures contract or stock — in both stock and futures markets. But Ruder said he would not object if the Federal Reserve got that responsibility.

Futures margins should be increased, at least temporarily, making it more expensive to buy and sell contracts, he said.

The SEC chairman said his agency also should have the power to reject a current or proposed index futures contract if the SEC believes it could impair the orderly operation of the stock market.

It also should have the authority to coordinate trading halts designed to give volatile markets a breather, he said.

Acting CFTC Chairman Kalo A. Hineman, who testified after Ruder, said he was skeptical of the SEC's bid for more power.

"Effective cooperation can't take place where one participant can always dictate the outcome," Hineman said.

Mecham's Testimony Harmful, Solon Says

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Gov. Evan Mecham's admission that he may have told an official not to cooperate in an investigation of an alleged death threat moves the governor closer to impeachment, a legislative leader says.

The Republican governor, who spent 5½ hours testifying Wednesday before a House impeachment committee, contended that committee Chairman Jim Skelly was "reaching" in questioning whether Mecham has obstructed justice.

"I don't think I've broken any law" or obstructed justice, Mecham said. "Mr. Skelly, your case is weak. ... I have said the truth today. Every word I have said has been true."

The panel is investigating a $350,000 campaign loan, and allegations that Mecham diverted $80,000 in state funds to his auto dealership, and tried to block investigation of an alleged death threat against a former aide.

Skelly, a Republican, said he considered Mecham's testimony "very damaging," and the House could decide by the end of the week whether to impeach Mecham.

The first-term governor also faces a May 17 recall election and a March 9 criminal trial on felony charges of concealing the $350,000 loan. He was expected to conclude his testimony today. No other witnesses are scheduled.

Religious Broadcasters To Make Code of Ethics Mandatory Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Religious broadcasters soon will be issuing their own equivalent of a Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval in a bid to restore credibility to an industry shaken by the PTL scandal.

The National Religious Broadcasters voted 324-6 on Wednesday to make compliance with a new financial and fund-raising code of ethics a requirement for membership in the group and use of its seal of accreditation.

The plan is in large part a response to the PTL scandal, which forced Jim Bakker to resign as head of the ministry that supported an extravagant lifestyle for him and his wife, Tammy Faye.

Ben Armstrong, executive director of the religious broadcasters' group, said the ethics code is intended to reassure donors who support broadcast ministries.

"We feel this will cause people to realize that we have nothing to hide and that we are fully disclosing finances and eliminating possible family control of boards and showing to the public we have open books and open policy," Armstrong said.

The association has 1,350 members that produce about three-quarters of all religious programming in the United States.

To be certified, members will have to submit independent audits each year disclosing all sources of income and every expenditure. The requirements are less stringent for smaller ministries.

The ministries also must make all the information, except for salaries, available to the public.

Members also must have a board with at least five directors, the majority of whom are not related to the ministry's executives and not on the ministry staff. Smaller ministries are exempt from the requirement, Armstrong said.

The code requires members to keep fund-raising materials for a year and submit samples upon request to the association's Ethics and Financial Integrity Commission, which administers policy on ethics and financial responsibility.

The commission will draft guidelines that will be used to evaluate ministries for accreditation, including reasonable salary levels, said NRB spokeswoman Audrey Langdon. The basis of the guidelines will be the Internal Revenue Service's requirements for tax exemption and the traditional practices of most ministries, she said.

The NRB's board of directors adopted the code last September, but compliance has been voluntary.

Armstrong said some members opposed making the code mandatory because they feared the costs of complying with its requirements, including the financial audits, would be too burdensome for some ministries.

But he said the exemptions and less stringent requirements for smaller ministries should make it manageable. Armstrong said that revision of the organization's ethics guidelines began before Bakker resigned as head of the People That Love ministry last March.

But he said, "The PTL incident has heightened rather than lessened the interest in accountability, and my guess is there wouldn't be these kinds of teeth were it not for what has transpired in the past year. That caused everyone to think it is time to do something."

Bakker resigned after admitting to a 1980 sexual encounter with church secretary Jessica Hahn. The Bakkers' lavish lifestyle received widespread attention and PTL later filed for protection from creditors under the federal bankruptcy code.

The Internal Revenue Service says PTL owes $62 million in back taxes. The IRS also is trying to revoke PTL's tax-exempt status because it says top PTL officials received $14.9 million in excessive compensation between 1981 and 1987, $9.4 million of which went to Bakker and his wife.

Budget Unit Says Deficit Will Grow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional budget analysts believe that next year's federal deficit will be $176 billion, Capitol Hill aides say, a much more pessimistic projection than the Reagan administration is making.

The Congressional Budget Office's gloomy figures for fiscal 1989 are based on expectations of slower economic growth and higher interest rates than the administration is predicting, the aides said. Slower economic growth and higher interest rates mean more spending and less revenue for the government.

Officials from CBO, which advises Congress on the budget, planned to reveal their deficit forecast to the Senate Budget Committee today.

The congressional aides, who asked to not be identified, also said that CBO is projecting a $157 billion deficit for fiscal 1988, which began Oct. 1. One staff worker said the deficit projections could change slightly before being released.

Documents obtained last month from the Office of Management and Budget showed that the 1989 budget President Reagan will propose Feb. 18 will contain a deficit of $136 billion. That amount is exactly the target set under the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law.

By law, OMB projections will be used to decide whether the Gramm-Rudman deficit target has been met. But lawmakers can use the CBO numbers to gauge the accuracy of the administration's estimates and to challenge them, if they wish.

At a closed meeting of House Budget Committee members Wednesday, lawmakers discussed the political difficulties involved in the differences between the two forecasts, according to legislators who attended the session and spoke only if unidentified.

If Congress were to use its own gloomier figures in writing a budget, legislators would have to take politically unpopular steps to slash spending or raise taxes in much greater amounts than they would if OMB numbers are employed.

Many private economists have been forecasting the 1989 deficit in the $160 billion to $170 billion range.

The 1987 deficit was $148 billion, but the government received many one-time revenues because of the 1986 tax revision law. The 1986 deficit was a record $221 billion.

Prototype Airliner Revives Propellers

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — McDonnell Douglas Corp. has unveiled a prototype airliner that the company hopes will one day carry passengers back to the future and revive the age of the propeller.

An MD-80 transport outfitted with a Ultra High Bypass engine built by General Electric took off Wednesday from Long Beach Airport on a quiet and uneventful flight that the designers said could usher in the next generation of airline technology.

"Lower fuel burn, lower community noise and a lower acquisition cost to airlines is what we are selling," said Walt Orlowski, the UHB program manager for Long Beach-based Douglas Aircraft Co., a McDonnell Douglas subsidiary.

The engines used advanced jet turbines to power "propulsors," counter-rotating sets of fans that resemble propellers. Company officials say the engines offer the benefits of conventional turbofans with the fuel economy of prop engines.

Company officials hope to begin obtaining commitments to sell Ultra High Bypass-engine jetliners to the airlines by the end of the year.

Scholarship Recipient

Dorothy S. Krayeski, a biochemistry student at East Carolina University, is the recipient of a University Book Exchange Scholarship in the biology department, the newest of 12 scholarships sponsored by the Greenville firm.

A native of Port Washington, N. Y., she is a member of the Sierra Club and has participated in the ECU Biology Club and the ECU Ecology Forum. She expects to graduate in May 1989.

Don J. Edwards, managing officer and vice president/secretary of UBE, established the new scholarship on behalf of the family business.

Each UBE scholarship provides $500 a year or $250 per semester for the recipient.

UBE presents scholarships to ECU students in the departments of health, physical education, recreation and safety, the schools of home economics, art, and business, and the departments of English, mathematics, political science, psychology and biology. A general merit scholarship is also funded each semester.

Straw Vote

Republicans attending a Pitt County party meeting endorsed the Rev. Pat Robertson's candidacy for the GOP presidential nomination in a straw vote taken Wednesday night, county GOP Chairman Carlton Smith Jr. said today.

Smith said more than 150 persons representing 23 of Pitt's 25 precincts attended the meeting in the Willis Building.

The straw vote gave Robertson 79 percent of the votes, with George Bush receiving 8 percent, Robert Dole 7 percent, and Jack Kemp 6 percent.

Pitt County delegates were elected to attend the GOP district meeting March 1 at the Beaufort County Community College in Washington, N.C. There, three delegates and three alternates will be selected to attend the GOP national convention to be held in New Orleans on April 30.

Program Explained

Becky Taylor, director of the Project PARENTING program for educating and assisting Pitt County adolescent parents and their children, addressed the Tar River Civitan Club Wednesday night.

She explained the program which is housed at Agnes Fullilove Community School, saying it is a collaborative education program between East Carolina University and Caswell Center.

She said there were 388 pregnancies and 207 births to women 19 years old and under in 1985. She appealed for volunteers from the club and from the community for the project's newly established mentor program. She said each volunteer will be trained and paired one-to-one as a role model and friend who will spend time weekly with an assigned parent and child.

For information call Ms. Taylor, 757-6164.

The program allows undergraduate and graduate students to gain work experience in their chosen fields and to explore career opportunities.

Essay Winner

Monika Sutherland won the first-place award of $250 in an essay contest honoring the late Dr. Herbert R. Paschal Jr., the first chairman of the history department at East Carolina University.

Ms. Sutherland wrote the essay while she was a student at ECU last year. She lives in Tarboro and teaches college-level English and history at Edgecombe Community College.

William Robie Jr. of Greenville was the runner-up for the award for his essay.

Paschal was a founder of the university Manuscript Collection.

Teacher Honored

Pam Swan has been named Teacher of the Year at Elmhurst Elementary School, the school has announced.

Ms. Swan, who teaches second-graders, taught previously in the Greensboro city and Jessamine County, Ky., schools.

A Mars Hill College graduate, she was chosen by the Pitt County Educational Foundation as a recipient of a migrant for a May math carnival. She is married to Bob Swan and has two children.

Trinity Honor Roll

Trinity Christian School has announced its A and B honor roll lists for the second nine weeks.

A Honor Roll students are: Rebecca Campbell, Kiley Hawkins, Denisha Harris, Lauren Southerland, Heather Bass, Leanne Cherry, Jana Ingalls, Candace Keel, Valerie Keel, Andrea Maines, Christopher Wallace, Rachel Everett, Brian Knox and Tracey Knox.

Earning the B Honor Roll are: Jennifer Corey, Catherine Eastwood, Laura Fields, Justin Hardee, Lindsay Kratzer, James Nichols, Suzanne Stancill, Jonathan Sutton, Rebecca Sumerlin, Mary Beth Bonar, James Corbett, Jason Gough, Carla Martin, Jon Paul Nichols, J.D. Also, Charlene Bright, John Briley, Melissa Harris, Brad Little, Chuck Southerland, Shannon Williams.

Registration For March 8 Primary Closes On Monday

Voter registration books for the March 8 presidential preference primary will close Monday, according to Margaret Hardee, Pitt County's supervisor of elections.

Mrs. Hardee said the elections office at 201 E. Second St. will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Friday and Monday in an effort to give voters extra time to register.

In addition, special registration commissioners are located throughout Pitt County in libraries, town halls and high schools, Mrs. Hardee said. But she cautioned that "a call should be made to these facilities to determine the hours a registrar will be on duty."

Mrs. Hardee said Pitt County has "permanent and continuous voter registration."

"You need to register, transfer or re-register," Mrs. Hardee said, "only if you have never registered" in the county; "have moved to a different voting precinct since you registered (If you move out of your precinct, it is a violation of the law to return to your old precinct and vote after 30 days); wish to change your party affiliation; have changed your name," or have been removed from active registration for failure to vote in four consecutive years.

If you move out of your precinct more than 30 days before an election and don't change your address on the voter registration records, Mrs. Hardee said, "the law will allow you to go to your old precinct and get an 'election day transfer' and take that to the elections office and vote there," she said.

Voters concerned about their registration status should call the elections office at 830-4121, Mrs. Hardee said.

House Kills Contra Aid Program

Reagan aid request, but the House action was legally sufficient to cut off any further assistance past Feb. 29 for the Contra forces seeking to overthrow the leftist Sandinista government in Managua.

The White House expressed disappointment that the House "did not vote to keep pressure on the Sandinistas during the peace process" and said it would begin consultations about the future of the resistance.

Contra leader Adolfo Calero, who watched the vote from a visitors' gallery, said his forces have enough arms to last about two months and enough food for a month. "We will press on with our last breath," he said.

Nicaraguan Ambassador Carlos Tunnerman said the vote could contribute to peace. "We hope that based on this vote we can move ahead with the Central American peace plan, end the war and fulfill in all good faith what the peace plan includes," he said.

But Contra leader Alfonso Robelo said it will weaken the rebels' negotiating position in cease-fire talks scheduled for next week in Guatemala. "Obviously, now that the Sandinistas know of our weakness, they will be ready to settle only for a total defeat, for a surrender of our troops," he said.

Democratic leaders were jubilant. "Today's vote is the end of a chapter," said House Majority Whip Tony Coelho, D-Calif. "The Contra policy is the past."

Toward the end of 11 hours of emotional floor debate, Speaker Jim Wright of Texas appealed for a "no" vote on Contra aid in favor of support for diplomatic efforts by Central American leaders to arrange their own peace settlement.

"Mr. Reagan did not come to Washington to preside over Central America," Wright said.

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., drew cheers from outgunned conservative GOP partisans when he declared that "the issue of Nicaragua and Central America will not go away."

"If you vote this package down, you better be prepared to bear the consequences, and who among you is smart enough to predict the path (Nicaraguan President) Daniel Ortega will take you?"

On the final vote, a dozen Republicans joined 207 Democrats in voting against Contra aid, while 164 Republicans and 47 Democrats backed Reagan's request.

Couples Should Plan Ahead For Honeymoon

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

No travel agent can ensure a wonderful time on a honeymoon, but chances are better if you start your planning with some basic guidelines in mind.

First, be realistic about the money you want to spend, says Bernice Rosmarin, a national director of the American Society of Travel Agents and vice president of Edison Travel, Edison, N.J.

"Some couples come in with a budget that is nowhere near the cost of the place they want to go. Be honest about the budget and a good travel agent will help you get the most for the money," she says.

For those with specific honeymoon destinations in mind, careful scheduling of the wedding can make it easier to get it. If the desired spot is the Caribbean, for example, try not to have the wedding in February, the height of the season. A wedding in November will make a Caribbean honeymoon much less expensive.

If you want a trip to Europe, try not to make it in the summer, the high season there. Europe is less expensive (and in many ways more interesting) in the spring, fall and winter months.

Miss Rosmarin says couples often fail to realize that honeymoons are trying times at best, as newlyweds struggle to adapt to their new life together.

"Compromise is the most important thing in any marriage — and in the honeymoon, too," she says.

If bride and groom have different interests, the trick is to find a place where each can get something they would like to do.

Getting sound information is easier if you choose a travel agent who is experienced in booking vacation travel.

"A decent agent could probably sell some places with only a few large hotels without having been there," Miss Rosmarin says. But locales where there is a big selection of small hotels usually require some first-hand knowledge to offer the best advice, she says.

Those who want individualized trips should also seek an agent who has actually been there.

How can you tell you are in the right agency?

Report is important. You have to feel comfortable with the agent. Recommendations from friends are primary, in that the trip was as expected and the advice they got was accurate.

When you go to an agent, be prepared to tell about your budget, interests, level of experience in travel, whether you enjoy having everything planned or like to make some spontaneous decisions.

Miss Rosmarin also likes to know if her clients are extravagant or thrifty, if they prefer large hotels or out-of-the-way, romantic spots.

The Caribbean, Hawaii, Mexico and a cruise vacation are among the top honeymoon choices among sophisticated travelers, she says. Those who travel less often prefer the Pennsylvania Poconos, Disney World or other Florida locations.

If you're planning a honeymoon in Europe, be sure to request a full-sized bed ahead of time, advise the authors of "The Bride's Honeymoon Travel Guide," written by the editors of Bride's magazine.

Many European hotels feature "Lucy-and-Ricky-style twin bed boudoirs," the book says, "and on a honeymoon this can be pretty depressing." If traveling by ship, it is added, be sure to check out the sleeping accommodations or "you may find yourself and your spouse in bunk beds."

The guide, published by G.P. Putnam's Sons, includes travel packing tips, ways to budget time and money, advice on passports and visas — and a quiz couples can take to help determine their "travel personalities" and compatibility.

Piano Strikes A Sour Note

DEAR ABBY: Here's a shocker for you. Thirty-six years ago, when my husband and I were newlyweds, the mother of a friend gave us her piano. She was about to move in with her daughter who had a baby grand, and since nobody in her family wanted her big old upright, we took it gladly.

I played the piano and my husband was the choir director at our church, and we didn't have a piano, so we were thrilled with this gift.

The woman who gave us this piano has long passed away, but yesterday we had a telephone call from someone who claimed to be her relative. She told my husband that someone in the family wanted that piano. She gave us her phone number and asked us to call her and tell her when they could pick it up.

Abby, that piano was given to us because the owner didn't want it and didn't know what else to do with it. After 36 years she expects us to just hand it over! We don't even know these people. What should we do? Please answer soon before they pull up in front of our house with a van! — ANGRY AND IN DOUBT

DEAR ANGRY: The caller is out of tune. Call her and tell her that the piano was a gift — not a loan — and if she or other family members have a problem accepting that fact, they should check with the original owner's daughter who was your friend at the time.

No one can come to your home and demand that you hand over anything — unless it's an item that was purchased and not paid for. And if the movers show up and demand the piano, play them a chorus of "You Can't Take That Away From Me." And call the police, if necessary.

DEAR ABBY: I saw the enclosed in a Sunday tabloid:

"A man looks at a portrait on the wall and says, 'Brothers and sisters I have none, but this man's father is my father's son.' At whose portrait is he looking? I was told this little game more than 50 years ago and am still puzzled as to the answer. — Harold W. Longua, Livingston, N.J.

"The answer: The man is looking at a portrait of his son."

Abby, is this answer right? I think it should have been: "He is looking at a portrait of himself."

Who is right? — EDWARD E. SULLIVAN, DAYTONA BEACH, FLA.

DEAR MR. SULLIVAN: The tabloid is. To make the riddle more understandable, substitute names from your own family.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HAPPY HUNTER IN WISCONSIN: "The creatures that want to live a life of their own we call wild. If wild, then no matter how harmless, we treat them as outlaws, and those of us who are especially well brought up shoot them for fun." (Clarence Day)

Question Leads To New Game

WILLIAMSBURG, Ohio (AP) — It was a simple question with an obscure answer from his 4-year-old grandson that developed into a game for Dan Smith, and evolved into a young business.

Smith's entry into the competitive game market is called a "Can of Terms" — a card game in which players match a picture of an unusual or obscure item with the proper term.

The 64-year-old retired pharmacist said the idea began after his grandson, Nathan, pointed to the frame that holds a lampshade in place and asked what it was.

Smith told his grandson it was a bracket. Later he told his wife, "Maybe we're telling the kid something that isn't (true)."

He was right. The part is correctly called a "harp."

Smith said he and his wife began looking things up and asking each other questions. Friends offered encouragement, as did the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce.

"They liked the idea and got me in touch with a University of Cincinnati business consultant. All along the line I was encouraged. If someone had raised a big red flag, I would have forgotten it," Smith said.

He began putting the game together in 1985 and said he didn't realize how complicated it would be, especially the legal hurdles and getting the artwork done. His daughter-in-law, Linda, did the drawings.

Smith, his wife and friends spent hundreds of hours doing library research, much of it in encyclopedias and other reference books.

What emerged is a game of 150 cards the size of regular playing cards with a picture on one side and the term to correctly describe it on the other.

"It's a great party icebreaker," Smith said.

He said the $14.95 card game is selling well in Cincinnati and retailers in Cleveland and Columbus have expressed interest. A friend is helping to market the game in Florida.

Smith realizes he will need much more venture capital to even begin thinking about national distribution. He estimated it would take $5 million to crack the New England market alone.

He's already at work on Can of Terms II and Can of Terms for Juniors.

"We've got a running start on that," Smith said.

Flu Can Affect Sense Of Taste

By JOHN NOLAN
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — If you recently suffered the flu and have not recovered your sense of smell, you aren't alone, researchers say.

Some patients complain they are unable to smell things or to taste food after suffering a bout of influenza. Researchers at the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Connecticut first reported the problem and have been looking into it.

It has also come to the attention of researchers at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine, where patients who come in for treatment at a center for taste and smell disorders have complained of the malady.

It can happen to people who suffer flu or upper respiratory infections, said Robert Frank, a University of Cincinnati psychophysicist. It is common for sufferers with colds or the flu to lose their sense of smell — and, as a result, their ability to taste — briefly during the time of the ailment. But, Frank said, some people do not regain their sense of smell for months, or longer.

"These people are seeing us six months after the flu has passed, and they still don't have their sense of smell," he said in an interview. "We still don't even know if it's permanent or not... We don't know for sure right now, but we think there may be people who permanently lose their sense of smell after this kind of episode."

After a period of time, some victims report sensing a persistent, strange odor. Researchers have not determined what that means, Frank said.

"There's some indication in some people we've seen that they get this persistent odor," he said. "We hope that when people report these smells, that's a start of recovery."

About 25 percent of the patients who come to the taste-smell center complaining of a loss of smell have a strain of flu that appears to be the culprit, Frank said.

He said specialists have a theory that the flu viruses may take away the victim's ability to smell by damaging the olfactory epithelium — the skin on the inside of the nose. But, he said, "We really don't know what happens."

University of Cincinnati researchers are preparing an application for a U.S. Department of Health and Human Services public health grant to study the problem. They would like funding to follow the progress of people with the loss-of-smell problem, Frank said.

The work could include taking samples of tissue from inside the noses of victims for analysis to determine whether flu viruses cause damage, he said.

Researchers hope to develop treatment methods. "As it stands right now, for a person like this, we really have little idea of what to do," Frank said.

Victims often complain that they have lost their sense of taste, because they cannot taste food. But inability to taste is commonly caused by loss of smell, Frank said. A true loss of taste is rare because three different nerves bring smell information to the brain and it is unusual for all three to malfunction, he said.

Reagan Gives Brown A Boost In Fashion Palettes

By NINA HYDE
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — One of the things President Reagan forgot to boast about in his State of the Union message was his gift to the fashion industry. What Nancy Reagan has done for red in women's clothes, Ronald Reagan has done for brown in men's.

You may not have noticed; it's happened slowly. Unlike the explosive phenomenon of Nancy Reagan and red, which in the first years of the administration had women grabbing any red dress in the store, the influence of her husband's brown suits has been gradual, percolating first through the fashion crowd.

Brown was a key color in the fall collections of Giorgio Armani and others shown earlier this month in Milan. Even Rei Kawakubo, the designer for Comme des Garçons who has rarely strayed from blacks and grays, has started to include brown for menswear.

The designers aren't just remarking the Old Hollywood style the president prefers. Their version of brown is different. There is a lot of green and black in the brown President Reagan wears; the new brown is brown mixed with red and yellow, subtly striped or plaided with mauve, blue or even teal.

Brown has surfaced partially as a response to the overdose of black and the continual success of gray, says Armani. He hesitates to peg it to President Reagan specifically. "It is not a direct influence," says Armani. "But President Reagan does dress in a bit of a retro style. I take off on the elegance of that style where your president takes it seriously," he said.

Ralph Lauren has always used brown tweeds for men. He rarely wears brown himself — "It just doesn't look good on me" — though he started the whole idea of brown suede shoes worn with a blue striped suit. He tilts to a brown with red in it; an "English brown," he calls it. "Brown comes and goes and you always sell a little." Some find it old-fashioned, antique, "but for me that's good," says Lauren. "Now we're into a more vintage look, like an old Gary Cooper Technicolor movie."

Although Calvin Klein says "President Reagan always looks comfortable and elegant in his own special way," the designer does not believe one man can set trends in terms of color. "Navys and browns have always been men's colors," he says.

Bill Blass, who has made some of the best-looking clothes for Nancy Reagan, agrees. "Nancy made red her official color and turned others on to red," said Blass. "But the president... Well, men do not play follow-the-leader in this instance."

Brian Bubb, the new designer of Perry Ellis menswear, says he's using a lot of brown for next fall, particularly a multicolor like a bark brown, a shetland brown and even a vicuna. "I've loved brown and blue even when the rest of the world was pushing bright colors," the 30-year-old designer says proudly. "Brown was never supposed to be a power color, but maybe the president has changed that."

Chip Talbot thinks he has. Talbot, fashion director of the Men's Fashion Association, the educational and promotional arm of the men's fashion industry, ties the renewed interest in brown directly to an increased awareness of the president's penchant for brown suits. "We started to see a sign of it six years ago and it still continues," says Talbot. "Even John Molloy, author of the highly successful 'Dress for Success' books, now approves of brown," he laughs.

The new browns are compound colors, rather than flat single tones, he explains. The old brown was mixed with things like olive. "There is nothing more unattractive than olive next to the skin," insists Talbot. On the other hand, the new browns, mixed with red, turquoise and jade, for example, are extremely flattering. "Picture this brown suit from Alexander Julian with a teal overplaid. It's got six or more colors with the brown. It's much more desirable because it is much more flattering."

So far selling brown in Washington has not been easy. In fact, James Guerra, senior vice president for menswear for Raleighs and Garfinkels, thinks the talk about brown is more talk than reality. "It's a tough sell; most men prefer navy and gray," Guerra thinks there is almost a stigma about brown. "When I listened to a focus group in San Francisco while I was at Neiman-Marcus, I heard men say they would not be caught dead after 5 with a brown suit," says Guerra. "Most men look great in tuxedos because black is so flattering. Brown isn't."

At Britches, says President Richard Hindin, "Brown is not, has not and will not be an important color for executives." "Below the threshold of consciousness, where human reactions take place," he says, "navy blue and dark gray evoke leadership, power of character, sincerity. And our customers, who are primarily executive, need those emotional reactions. Brown doesn't do it. Brown says 'boring.'"

When several of his 1,500 students from the Pentagon, whom he coaches in preparing to move from a lifetime of uniforms into the color-conscious world of civilian careers, recently asked Hindin why the president can wear brown and they can't, Hindin replied, "He's got a job and he's not running again."

But Gene Pressman, executive vice president of Barney's in New York, says men with style wear "whatever they think looks good, brown or otherwise."

And maybe, just maybe, President Reagan has made them feel that way.

When Are Small Items Necessary?

When it comes to money, I'm a paradox.

I drive a car with automatic windows, cassette player and a seat belt that talks to me. Yet, I have driven around for three years with a windshield wiper that sounds like an asthma attack.

Same way with cosmetics. I sprang for a wrinkle cream that cost $42 and promised to make me look like I did the year I was toilet trained. To get my lipstick, I have to use a toothpick and spread it on my little finger.

Most of us have been brought up with the American ethic, "If it doesn't show, why spend the money?"

How many of you sit in fine houses on tree-lined streets with a car for each foot in the garage and drive yourself crazy trying to remember where you last put the family extension cord? Is it with the Christmas decorations? Is it with the drill in the workroom? Did you loan it to one of the neighbors? How many hours have been wasted on a search that could be eliminated for a measly five bucks?

At Wits End

I don't know what it is in our family, but we cannot bring ourselves to plunk down 85 cents for an extra bulb for the projector despite the fact we know the bulbs are programmed to burn out in the middle of our vacation slides. Logically, an extra bulb would just sit there in a dark closet month after month. Why tie up your assets in inventory, right? It is better to curse the darkness and anyone else within earshot than to have a back-up.

If you really want to talk inconsistent, let's talk about cookie sheets. I've been married 38 years and have bought two of them. If that seems excessive, it is because the original cookie sheet was too wide to fit in our new oven. Otherwise, I would have stuck with the one that looks like it was used as an oil pan under a '38 pick-up truck and turns out cookies that never burn... they just rust.

There is something about birthday candles that beg to be recycled. I have a box that has been used to celebrate 12 birthdays. I find myself lighting them at the last minute, and if the honored guest isn't quick about blowing them out, I reach over and extinguish them with my finger and say, "Let's get on with it." I have some now that look more like a brush fire when they are lit. I don't know what I'm going to do when they go.

For some reason, I like to think I'm not unique about these small luxuries. We all pop for the big, flashy stuff and yet balk at the little things. There is no doubt in my mind that Armand Hammer and Malcolm Forbes have flashlights in their kitchen drawers that would light... if they only had an extra battery that cost $1.29.

Before spending operations in mid-January, American Eagle had about 550 employees and served 22 cities — most of them in North Carolina and Virginia — with 200 flights a day.

The restructured operations began with about half the previous number of workers serving 17 cities in the Carolinas, Virginia, Tennessee, Pennsylvania and Washington, D.C. with 95 flights a day.

Service at Raleigh-Durham, where 150 of 200 workers were rehired, was restarted Wednesday with 35 flights a day, down from 55 before the scale-back.

Duke, State Take ACC Wins

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

Vinny Del Negro took the game into his own hands and delivered a big Atlantic Coast Conference victory for North Carolina State.

After he failed to score in the first half, Del Negro scored 20 points to lead the Wolfpack to a 75-69 victory over Virginia.

"Vinny made some critical shots at the end," N.C. State Coach Jim Valvano said. "We felt we had to get him the ball, and he wanted it down the stretch."

Virginia took a 48-44 lead in the early minutes of the first half, but the Wolfpack outscored the Cavaliers 18-6 over the next seven minutes to take a 62-52 lead with 8:33 left. Del Negro scored 10 in that stretch.

N.C. State held a 66-64 lead with 3:02 left, but Del Negro answered the call again, scoring eight of N.C. State's last nine points to hold off the Cavaliers.

It was around this time last season that the Wolfpack went on their disastrous stretch which nearly took them out of the NCAA tournament field. With a three-game winning streak, Valvano can look ahead with a bit more confidence.

"It's not going to get any easier, but at least we have a three-game winning streak going to Duke," he said. "The kids have hung tough, and we've had some good wins in close games."

Charles Shackelford led N.C. State with 21 points. Chris Corchiani, the freshman known more for his defense, scored 11 for the Wolfpack, 13-4 and 4-2. Mel Kennedy kept Virginia close and finished with 34 points. John Johnson had 17 for the Cavaliers, 12-10 and 4-3.

"I thought our kids played a great ball game, but unfortunately, so did N.C. State," Virginia Coach Terry Holland said.

Fourth-ranked Duke defeated Georgia Tech 78-65 and Wake Forest beat North Carolina-Wilmington 61-58.

Danny Ferry scored 22 points as the Blue Devils survived a scoring drought late in the first half, then pulled away in the second half on the strength of strong defense and aggressiveness on the boards.

"I'm pleased to beat a team the caliber of Georgia Tech," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "They were seven points away from being tied with us for first place."

But the Blue Devils hit four of the last 11 shots and had Georgia Tech been able to hit its free throws, the Yellow Jackets would have been closer than their 38-30 halftime deficit. Georgia Tech hit five of 12 free throws in the last 5:17 and were six of 16 in the half.

A pair of six-point runs helped Georgia Tech get within four points, the latest a 48-44 deficit with 15:01 remaining on a Craig Neal layup. But Duke took control of the defensive boards, limiting Georgia Tech to one shot per possession.

Kevin Strickland scored 16 points as the Blue Devils climbed to 15-2, 5-1 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Duane Ferrell had 18 points and Tom Hammonds 15 for Georgia Tech, 14-6 and 2-4. Craig Neal scored 10 for the Yellow Jackets.

"Duke really put it to us," Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins said. "They're an excellent basketball team."

At Winston-Salem, Sam Ivy scored 20 points, including four free throws in the closing minutes.

Ivy's free throws sparked a seven-point run to rally the Demon Deacons. Wake Forest improved to 8-10 while the Seahawks fell to 10-9.

Illinois Named Mackovic Coach

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Illinois' new football coach, John Mackovic, says he wants his recruiters to be honest, his players to get degrees and his teams to win.

Mackovic, named Wednesday to fill the vacancy created when Mike White resigned after eight seasons, inherits a football program plagued by recruiting violations off the field and recent failures on the field.

"No doubt there have been disappointments and frustrations, and that's why I am here," said Mackovic, who coached the NFL's Kansas City Chiefs for four seasons only to be fired after leading the team to the playoffs in 1986.

He also was head coach at Wake Forest for three years before moving into the pros as an assistant with the Dallas Cowboys.

"I'd like this to be the best athletic program in the United States," Mackovic said. "We want to play, we want to win, but we want our fellows to graduate."

Mackovic, 44, said Illinois has taken steps to ensure that it abides by all NCAA rules.

He said he will make it clear to his staff that they share the responsibility for honesty with him and "if there is any question (about a recruiting activity), don't do it."

"We will operate, accordingly, within the rules," Mackovic said. White resigned Jan. 18 after charges by the NCAA and the university of recruiting violations. White's program had been placed on probation by the NCAA in 1984 for a long list of infractions.

University Chancellor Morton Weir said Illinois was determined to hire a coach who had a record of winning and operating within the rules, and Mackovic met those requirements.

"He is a man of exceptionally high integrity and honesty," Weir said. "Try as we did, we could not find a single person who would question his record in that regard."

Weir said Mackovic would have a five-year contract but he declined to specify the dollar value.

Mackovic led his alma mater, Wake Forest, to the Tangerine Bowl in 1979, the the Demon Deacons' first postseason game in 30 years.

In 1983, his first year with the Chiefs, he produced the No. 3 passing attack in the NFL. He took Kansas City to the playoffs in 1986, the first such trip for the franchise in 15 years, but was fired shortly after a 35-15 loss to the Jets.

"Our offense will be exciting ... a pro-style, drop-back pass," said Mackovic, who has been out of football for a year. "We'll pass, we'll run. What do you do to stop us? You better stop the forward pass."

He said he likely would run the of-

Reagan Celebrates Redskins

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan jumped on the Washington Redskins' bandwagon after an estimated 600,000 people packed Pennsylvania Avenue to pay homage to the Super Bowl champions.

Reagan hosted the Redskins in a White House ceremony Wednesday afternoon shortly after the team was ushered through the heart of the nation's capital in buses, waving to its adoring fans. Burgundy and gold was the order of the day, as most fans proudly displayed the colors of the NFL titlists.

"You know, I noticed some of your fans painted their faces half red and half yellow; some of them wore hog noses and some even climbed lamp-posts," Reagan told the Redskins. "My staff told me that wouldn't be very presidential, but make no mistake about it, I'm just as enthusiastic as your fans."

Most of the people who lined the parade route gathered in front of City Hall, where quarterback Doug Williams and other team officials made short speeches. District of Columbia police said 23 people were injured in the crush of the crowd, and one woman fractured her leg.

Like many of the people in the noisy, boisterous crowd, Reagan singled out Williams, voted the Super Bowl Most Valuable Player after ripping the Denver Broncos for 340 yards and four touchdowns in Sunday's 42-10 rout.

"Way to go, Doug," Reagan said. "You recently showed the world how to overcome adversity and did it with style and grace."

Williams needed crutches to get up to the podium at the White House; the knee he injured in the Super Bowl was swollen and stiff. But he was all smiles as he presented Reagan with a Super Bowl XXII souvenir football.

Upon getting the ball, Reagan asked, "Where is Ricky Sanders?" referring to the Redskins wide receiver who set a Super Bowl record with 193 receiving yards.

Sanders jumped from the makeshift stage and cut across the South Lawn. Reagan, playing along, tossed him a spiral that Sanders hauled in without breaking stride.

It didn't rain on the parade, as weather forecasters had predicted, but afterward the President showered praise upon the champions.

"The Redskins didn't simply enter the history books Sunday night — they rewrote them," Reagan said, referring to the 14 Super Bowl records Washington equaled or tied. "What else is there to say but Hail to the Redskins!"

The Redskins reciprocated by giving Reagan the football and a Washington jersey with his name and the number 1 on it.

The festivities started about 11 a.m., but several rowdy fans began showing up six hours earlier to stake out their spot along the same route used for presidential inaugurations.

Williams, the first black quarterback ever to play in a Super Bowl, was the darling of the crowd. Picked up by the Redskins as a free agent in 1986, Williams relieved an ineffective Jay Schroeder in the season finale and went on to throw for a Super Bowl record 340 yards and four touchdowns.

"We want Doug! We want Doug!" thousands chanted as the parade ended its nine-block run. Williams was helped up the steps by District of Columbia Mayor Marion Barry Jr.

"I'm just glad to be part of the world champion Washington Redskins and part of this city," Williams said.

The team traveled the parade route in Tourmobiles that followed marching bands, most of which played "Hail to the Redskins."

Defensive end Dexter Manley had a large cigar in his mouth while he waved the Super Bowl trophy back and forth out the open window. Mounted police rode alongside the buses when crowds broke through barricades to get closer to the team.

"I haven't seen it like this since the hostages came back," said Mike Davis, a spokesman for the city council chairman, referring to the 1981 parade for the hostages returning from Iran.

In City Hall, linebacker Neal Olkewicz stood in wonderment in the middle of the same hallway where he had sought city council support during the 24-day players' strike earlier in the season.

"I feel much better under these circumstances. I never thought I'd be here and see them throwing confetti," Olkewicz said. "Back then, I thought they'd be throwing tomatoes."

And although the Super Bowl was a nightmare for the Broncos, Reagan did not forget them.

"I'm sure all the Redskins join me in congratulating the Denver Broncos on a fine season," he said. "Being No. 2 in the NFL is also something to be proud of. There probably isn't a classier organization to win that runner-up position."

Conley's McCaskill Is Honored

D.H. Conley volleyball coach Martha McCaskill was recently honored for her eight years of outstanding success by the North Carolina Amateur Sports High School Athletic Association.

The honor was part of the NCAHSAA's celebration of National Women's Sports Day in honor of Flo Hyman, a former world class volleyball player who died of Marfan's Syndrome Jan. 24, 1986.

McCaskill has compiled a record of 160 wins and 23 losses during her eight years at Conley, including eight Coastal Conference titles, three third-place state finishes and the 1986 3-A State volleyball title.

Evans Featured In Kickboxing Bouts

American Kickboxing will return to Greenville on Feb. 20 at the Hilton Inn, and will feature a United States title fight in the featherweight division.

The event is sanctioned by the Karate International Council of Kickboxing (KICK) and sponsored by Curtis Mathes, The Sports Pad and Budweiser.

Greenville's Curtis (Buzsaw) Evans will go up against an opponent still to be named for the vacant 126-pound U.S. featherweight title. His opponent is to be selected in a run-off fight in Florida this weekend.

Six other bouts are also scheduled to be on the card.

Advance tickets are now on sale at Bill McDonald Insurance, the Pirates' Chest, the Sports Pad and Curtis Mathes.

Wake's Black Suffered Broken Leg

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Tony Black, Wake Forest's leading assist man, will miss the rest of the basketball season due to a broken leg he suffered in practice Tuesday night, coach Bob Staak announced Wednesday.

Black, a 6-foot-4 sophomore from Florence, S.C., broke his right leg when he and teammate David Carlyle became entangled during a fullcourt drill.

Black was averaging 7.4 points a game for the Demon Deacons and his 4.4-per-game assist average was seventh in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

He is the second backcourt starter to be sidelined for the season with an injury. Freshman Robert Siler has been out of action since December 30 after tearing ligaments in his left knee.

Drug, Assault Charges Against Camacho

CLEWISTON, Fla. (AP) — Former World Boxing Council lightweight champion Hector "Macho" Camacho was "a target" for cocaine and assault charges because he's a big man in a small town, his lawyer says.

"The whole thing is a lot of nonsense," Camacho's New York lawyer, Jim Levien, said Wednesday. "He's in a small town and he's a target."

Camacho was arrested Tuesday and released on $20,000 bond the next day for an incident sparked last week at Clewiston High School when a juvenile made an obscene gesture at the fighter's companion, police Sgt. James Griffin said.

Police said the gesture was aimed at a teen-age boy who accompanied Camacho. The fighter pulled a gun and threatened to kill the boy who made the gesture, said police, who did not disclose what the gesture was.

"The kids are heckling him and someone blows this all out of proportion," Levien said, predicting Camacho would be cleared of all charges.

The boy, whose name was not released because he is a juvenile, later filed charges against Camacho. Clewiston police said they didn't know why the youth waited to make his complaint.

The cocaine charge was brought against Camacho as he was being booked into the Hendry County Jail.

An officer watching Camacho on a video monitor saw him remove a small bag from his wallet and place it in his underwear, officials said. When a drug test showed the bag's contents were cocaine, the boxer was charged with possession of a controlled substance.

Both charges are third-degree felonies which upon conviction carry a maximum penalty of five years in prison.

Camacho's promoter, Dennis Rappaport, said he spoke with Camacho about the incident.

"There was a group of Mexican kids heckling him and he got out of his car and put his foot on the fender and just stared at them," Rappaport said.

Camacho, a native of Puerto Rico who was raised in the Spanish Harlem section of New York, hasn't fought since retaining the lightweight title with a 12-round decision over Cornelius Boza-Edwards at Miami Beach, Fla., on Sept. 26, 1986.

Camacho, unbeaten in 31 fights with 16 knockouts, subsequently surrendered the lightweight title because of increasing trouble making the 135-pound weight limit. He has had one fight since moving up to the junior welterweight ranks, beating Howard Davis last year.

There has been talk of a match between Camacho and Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini with no title at stake, but no contract has been signed.

Camacho is known for his flamboyant style both in and out of the ring. He favors flashy wardrobes, and inside the ring usually wears gaudy trunks. He entered the ring for a 1983 fight against Johnny Montes at Anchorage, Alaska, wearing a fur robe.

Clinton's girls inched ahead, 15-12, after one period of play, then pulled away. The Lady Horses outthit the Rams, 19-10, in the second quarter and held a 34-22 halftime lead.

Clinton continued to pull away in the third period, outscoring Greene, 22-15, for a 56-37 lead. They finished off the Rams, 22-6, in the last quarter.

Danielle Parker led Clinton with 38 points while Tonya Sampson added 24. Chanel Hooker led Greene Central with 14.

The Rams climb to 7-9 while the girls are now 8-8. Greene Central travels to Farmville Central on Friday.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — It's a family affair, a fun time for Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller in the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

Winning is more hope than expectation.

"I didn't expect to win last year," Miller said, "and now I'm a year older. I'm just hoping to be able to play well and have a good time."

As the defending title-holder in the tournament once known as The Crosby, Miller had the option of picking his amateur partner and the pro who will be paired with him for the first three rounds.

Miller chose his son, 17-year-old John Jr., as his amateur partner and Nicklaus as the other pro in his group.

"I don't know how he feels about it," Miller said of his son, "but when I was 17, I'd sure be excited about playing with Jack Nicklaus."

Nicklaus, who says he is "semi-retired" from the game he once dominated, will have his son, 24-year-old Steve, as his amateur partner.

Those Nicklauses and Millers will play rounds over the Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill courses before Sunday's pros-only final round at Pebble Beach.

"It ought to be fun. I always enjoy playing with Johnny, and having young Johnny and Steve with us just adds to it," said Nicklaus, who made a last-minute decision to open his season in this event.

"Steve had hurt his knee skiing, and we didn't know if he'd be able to play," Nicklaus said. "I wasn't sure I'd play if he didn't."

He said he had no idea of what to expect of himself in a tournament he's won three times.

"I don't know whether I'll be competitive or not. I haven't played enough since last fall to know where my game might be."

Nicklaus, 48, said he expects to play "about 10" tournaments this year. Those include the Masters, U.S. and British Opens, the PGA and his own Memorial tournament. Others will be added as he sees fit, he said.

"I probably won't play enough to be really competitive," he said. "Maybe I can get it all together once in a while, but I find I just don't enjoy working at it as much as I need to, as much as I used to."

House, Pilgreen Still Lead

The same two prep basketball stars continue to lead this week's Daily Reflector area scoring race among the boys and girls.

Greenville Christian's Robin House, who has led all year, continues to set the pace for the boys while North Pitt's Keisha Pilgreen, who took over at the last report, two weeks ago, holds to first among the girls.

Averages are computed through Tuesday night's games.

House's average is up this time to 29.4 — he had briefly crossed into the 30-point range — from 28.7 two weeks ago. Ayden-Grifton's Ronnell Peterson moves into second place with an 18.7 average, up from 18.1.

Third this week is Williamston's Guy Spruill, in at 18.5, and up from seventh place with a 16.5 average last time around.

Rounding out the top five are Rose's Errol Wooten at 17.5 and Trinity's Kirk Welch at 16.9.

Greenville Christian continues to pace the way as an offensive team, averaging 76.9 points a game. Washington is second again at 73.9.

Defensively, Trinity is still the number one team, allowing only 47.2 points a game. However, Jamesville has moved up from third to second this week at 51.9 points allowed per game.

Pilgreen, who took over the last time from Roanoke's Joyce Outlaw, continues on top among the girls with an 18.9 average. That's up from 18.4 last time out. Second place belongs to Bear Grass' Janet Rogerson at 17.8, down slightly from last time, 17.9.

Third is Chocowinity's Drucilla Crawford with a 17.2 average. She moves up from fifth and 16.0. Fourth is Outlaw at 16.3 while Washington's Tonya Holley is in at fifth at 15.4.

Ayden-Grifton Charges Past Patriots By 69-52

MOREHEAD CITY — Ayden-Grifton went outside the conference for a make-up basketball game Wednesday night and came away with a 69-52 win over hosting West Carteret.

West Carteret's girls were not as generous, taking a 52-22 win over the Lady Chargers.

Ayden-Grifton's boys found themselves trailing, 18-17, after a hard-fought first period. But the Chargers took charge after that, outscored the Patriots, 19-9, to forge a 36-27 halftime lead.

In the third quarter, Ayden-Grifton continued to pull away from the Pats, outthitting them 15-6 for a 51-33 lead.

West Carteret managed a 19-18 margin in the final quarter, to no avail.

Eric Blount led Ayden-Grifton with 23 points while Ronnell Peterson added 20. No one scored in double figures for West Carteret.

West Carteret's girls pushed ahead, 14-9, in the opening period and were never in trouble after that. They outthit the Lady Chargers, 12-4, in the second frame, taking a 26-13 halftime lead.

West Carteret continued to build its lead in the third period, 11-5, taking a 37-18 lead into the last eight minutes. A 15-4 margin for the Lady Patriots finished it off.

Wendy Nelson led West Carteret with 15 while Kim Nelson added 12. No one scored in double figures for Ayden-Grifton.

Ayden-Grifton's boys climb to 11-5 while the girls are now 2-15. The Chargers entertain North Pitt on Friday in an Eastern Plains Conference game.

Rams Stampede Dark Horses

CLINTON — Greene Central High School battled through a double overtime before pulling out a 65-64 non-conference basketball victory over Clinton's Dark Horses Wednesday night.

Clinton's girls, ranked as one of the best teams in the state, rolled to a 78-43 win over the Lady Rams.

Greene Central jumped off to a big lead in the first quarter of the boys' game, taking a 17-5 lead at the horn. Clinton began to inch back in the second period, 13-12, but still trailed 29-18 at intermission.

In the third period, the Dark Horses began to gallop, outscoring the Rams, 15-13, trimming the lead to 42-33. Then, in the last period, Clinton outthit the Rams, 22-13, to tie it up. Pat Blue hit the tying basket with about 25 seconds left in the game and Greene Central missed on its attempt to gain the win, sending it into overtime, 55-55.

In the first overtime, both teams scored once for a 57-57 tie, and once again the Rams had the final shot at the basket, but failed to convert.

The second overtime saw Clinton finally inch out to a 64-63 lead on two free throws by Blue with 20 seconds left. After a time out, Tyrone Hardy hit the winning basket for Greene Central with seven seconds left.

Clinton, trying for one more shot, turned it over at midcourt, preserving the win for the Rams.

Maurice Streeter led Greene Central with 14, while Hardy had 13, Johnny Joyner and Shae Beamon each had 12 and Anthony Jones added 10. Clinton was paced by Carlos Pope and Blue, each with 20 while Terrence Peterson had 10.

Adams Bombs Mavericks

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

Michael Adams staged his own 3-point shooting contest, and the Dallas Mavericks came out the losers.

Adams wasn't invited to Saturday's NBA long-distance shooting contest in Chicago, but the 5-foot-11 Denver point guard hit five of seven 3-point attempts Wednesday night, leading the Nuggets to a 115-105 victory over the Mavericks.

"He's got the confidence and the freedom to shoot it and he doesn't take very many bad ones," Denver Coach Doug Moe said. "He got our pace going and we were able to get a lot of points off the fast break."

Adams, who played 41 minutes and had nine assists to go with his 21 points, said he was able to get open against Dallas because the Mavericks were concentrating on more dangerous Denver players.

"They know I can shoot it, but I think they were concentrating on stopping some of the other guys on our team," Adams said.

Elsewhere, it was Boston 118, Indiana 103; Philadelphia 96, Golden State 84; Cleveland 107, Washington 106, and Utah 123, Sacramento 91.

Alex English had 26 points, Jay Vincent 20 and Lafayette Lever 16 for the Nuggets, who are now three games behind the first-place Mavericks in the NBA Central Division.

"Beating Dallas certainly is nice and we've had a terrific homestand," said Moe, referring to recent home wins over the Los Angeles Lakers and Atlanta, two other

Grant Spoils Logical Thinking

By The Associated Press
 No one could be blamed for figuring that the showdown between 11th-ranked Michigan and No. 13 Iowa would be one of the best games of the year in the Big Ten. But Gary Grant spoiled all that logical thinking.

With Iowa expected to employ a press to keep Michigan at bay offensively, Grant got the green light from Coach Bill Frieder. Grant, hitting four 3-point shots among seven baskets, scored 18 of his 29 points in the first half Wednesday night as Michigan built a 61-26 lead en route to a record-setting 120-103 victory at Ann Arbor.

"Grant is just so terrific," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "He's a key, no matter who he's up against."

And Michigan, the conference co-leader, gave its talented guard considerable support. Glen Rice scored 35 points while Terry Mills and Rumeal Robinson added 18 each as the Wolverines, 7-1 in the conference and 18-3 overall, beat the Hawkeyes for the seventh straight time at Crisler Arena.

The Hawkeyes, whose five-game winning streak was snapped, dropped to 5-3 in the conference and 15-6 overall.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 4 Duke 78, Georgia Tech 65; No. 6 Purdue 86, Wisconsin 62; No. 7 Oklahoma 73, Kansas 65; No. 9 Pittsburgh 88, No. 20 St. John's 71; No. 10 Kentucky 94, Mississippi State 66; Kansas State 79, No. 16 Iowa State 68 in overtime, and No. 19 Florida 74, Alabama 64.

Grant, who had four 3-pointers in the first half, hit a 3-pointer to start the second half, giving the Wolverines a 38-point lead. That Iowa eventually cut the deficit to 17 points seemed of little concern to anyone but Frieder.

"When we had to be, we were good," he said. "We just got tired at the end."

Davis was extremely impressed with Michigan.

"I thought what you saw tonight was a very, very good Michigan ballclub, he said. "I can't think of anything tonight they didn't do better than we did."

Its final total was 16 more points than Michigan had ever scored against the Hawkeyes in their 67-year rivalry. It was the most points ever given up by an Iowa team, topping the 113 by Wisconsin against the Hawkeyes in 1974.

The 223 combined points was the most by two teams in a Michigan game, topping the total in Michigan's 115-107 victory over Bradley in 1986.

Ed Horton had 22 points for Iowa. Michael Reaves added 17 points and Bill Jones 16 for the Hawkeyes, who played without starter Al Lorenzen. He is out with back spasms.

No. 4 Duke 78, Georgia Tech 65
 Duke lost twice to Georgia Tech last season, and the Blue Devils vowed that would be a one-year proposition.

"That really hurt us last year," said Danny Ferry, who scored 22 points. "We talked about it a whole lot before the game, how we weren't going to let that happen."

Kevin Strickland added 16 points as the Blue Devils improved to 15-2 overall and 5-1 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Duane Ferrell had 18 points and Tom Hammonds 15 for Georgia Tech, 14-6 and 2-4.

No. 6 Purdue 86, Wisconsin 62
 Todd Mitchell scored 14 of his 17 points and Troy Lewis all of his 16 in the first half for Purdue, which remained tied for first place in the Big Ten. But it was the Boilermakers' defense that impressed Coach Gene Keady.

"I thought once we took the press off, we played defense about as good as we have all year," he said.

It was the Boilermakers' 21st consecutive victory over the Badgers, who have lost 16 straight games at Mackey Arena. Purdue is 7-1 in the Big Ten and 18-2 overall.

Danny Jones topped Wisconsin with 23 points and Trent Jackson added 16 for the Badgers, who fell to 3-5 and 9-9.

No. 7, Oklahoma 73, Kansas 65
 Ricky Grace scored 19 points, including 16 in the second half, and Stacy King added 19 points to lead Oklahoma in the Big Eight.

"I'm proud of the way our guys played," Coach Billy Tubbs said of the Sooners, 19-2 overall and 5-1 in the Big Eight. Kansas, which fell to 12-8 and 1-4, was led by Danny Manning with 28 points.

No. 9 Pitt 88, No. 20 St. John's 71
 Demetreus Gore scored 19 points and Charles Smith had 18 as Pitt stayed atop the Big East Conference at 6-1 after its first victory ever at St. John's in six appearances.

The Panthers improved to 16-2 overall as they outbounded the Redmen 33-17 while the bench outscored St. John's 20-0.

Michael Porter scored 18 points and Shelton Jones added 17 for the Redmen, who lost at home for just the third time in 42 games. St. John's fell to 5-3 in the Big East and 14-4 overall.

No. 10 Kentucky 94, Mississippi 65
 Rex Chapman scored five of his 15 points in a 15-0 run midway through the second half as Kentucky raised its record to 15-3 overall and 7-3 in the Southeastern Conference.

Winston Bennett led five Kentucky players in double figures with 16 points. LeRon Ellis added 14, while Rob Lock and Cedric Jenkins had 11 apiece.

Rod Barnes topped Ole Miss, 2-7 and 8-10, with 17 points.

No. 15 Vanderbilt 82, Miss. State 66
 Will Perdue scored 23 points as the Commodores outscored the Bulldogs 19-7 in the final 5:30 in their Southeastern Conference game.

The victory was the seventh in a row for Vanderbilt, now 14-4 overall and 7-3 in the SEC. Mississippi State, which fell to 11-8 and 3-6, got 19 points from Doug Hartsfield.

Kansas State 79, No. 16 Iowa State 68
 Fred McCoy scored 25 points, including 10 in overtime, and Mitch Richmond added 24 points for Big Eight Conference leader Kansas State.

Kansas State, 13-4 overall and leading the conference at 5-0, broke a 66-66 deadlock in overtime with a 9-0 spurt.

Iowa State's fourth straight loss dropped the Cyclones to 16-6 and 2-4. They were led by Lafester Rhodes with 18 points.

No. 19 Florida 74, Alabama 64
 Florida's Vernon Maxwell made 10 straight free throws in the closing minutes and Dwayne Schintzius had 18 points as the Gators maintained their Southeastern Conference lead.

In the last 2:43, Florida made 14 of 15 free throws.

Maxwell finished with 16 points, Pat Lawrence had 15 and Ronnie Montgomery added 13 for the Gators, now 16-5 overall and 7-2 in the SEC.

Alvin Lee led Alabama with 17 points as the Crimson Tide fell to 10-11 and 2-7.

Other Games
 Keith Williams scored 15 points as Louisville broke open a tight game in the second half and beat South Carolina 68-53 in a Metro Conference game, giving Coach Denny Crum his 400th career win.

The crowd of 19,424 at Freedom Hall started chanting "400 ... 400" with two minutes left in the game, and gave Crum a standing ovation afterward.

Matt Roberts scored 20 points and grabbed eight rebounds in leading Lafayette to a 73-60 victory over Towson State in an East Coast Conference game, giving Coach Butch van Breda Kolff his 700th career win. Van Breda Kolff is now 700-500 in 33 years of coaching in the NBA, ABA, college and high school ranks.

At Fayetteville, Ark., Ron Huery had 16 points and Mario Credit added 13 to help Arkansas hold the Southwest Conference lead with a 69-48 victory over Texas Tech.

Lindy Infante Is Chosen As New Green Bay Coach

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Lindy Infante's formal introduction as coach of the Green Bay Packers was barely an hour old when he announced that he'd taken his last football coaching job.

"If I can't get it done here, then quite frankly it's probably time for me to get into something else," the 47-year-old Infante said.

"This job, to me, is the ultimate," Infante said. "I don't intend to do anything else but this for the rest of my coaching career unless somebody sees fit for me not to be here for some other reason."

Infante, regarded as one of the NFL's most innovative offensive coordinators, helped the Cleveland Browns reach the AFC championship game the past two seasons.

And, as he told a packed news conference Wednesday, he plans to keep winning in Green Bay.

"I can't see in the future, but I think this team is not nearly as far away as people think," he said. "There is a good groundwork placed down there for me."

"Obviously I have great faith and confidence in myself. I didn't take job to be here two or three years and go out a loser."

"If I didn't think Green Bay could win ... That's the only thing that makes football fun, just go talk to Denver. It's disastrous when you lose."

Infante, credited with the rapid development of Browns quarterback Bernie Kosar, said he planned to install a diversified offense with the Packers, whose offense sputtered last season during a 5-9-1 season.

Describing himself as a "hands-on" offensive coach, Infante said he planned to call his own plays next season.

"We'll get a system installed and then we'll find out how the players will respond. We'll go as far as they'll let us go."

Infante was the Packers' second choice to replace Forrest Gregg, who resigned last month to become coach at Southern Methodist.

Michigan State Coach George Perles, the Packers' top choice, turned down an offer of a five-year contract for a reported $2.25 million last week. Infante also signed a five-year contract but Packers President Robert Parins would not comment on the figures.

"It was not one of those hard negotiating situations," Infante said. "Had the Judge (Parins) offered me room and board, I'd have probably taken it."

Infante said he wasn't worried about being the second choice. In fact, he opened the news conference by thanking Perles for giving him the opportunity to be a head coach in the NFL. Infante had been a head coach previously with Jacksonville of the United States Football League.

"I've been the second choice before in other jobs, but it's not going to have any effect in any shape or form in my dedication to the job at hand," Infante said. "It didn't make me feel second best to anybody. I know what I can do and what I want to get done. I'm just glad I wasn't the third or fourth choice."

Packers vice president Tom Braatz said the choice between Perles and Infante was an agonizing one but he initially picked Perles because of what he had accomplished at Michigan State. The Spartans won the Big Ten title and the Rose Bowl last season.

"There was less risk there because you could see what he (Perles) had done," Braatz said. "That was the difference between the two. He's current. You could see the productivity."

Infante had a 15-21 record with Jacksonville in 1984 and 1985 before joining the Browns in 1986.

"I had a lot of opportunity to really ponder it," Braatz said. "The reason was he (Perles) had been a head coach longer, had success and it was fresh."

But Braatz said he was totally comfortable with the selection of Infante, adding that "over the last four or five years, he's been highly regarded as one of the best offensive coordinators in the NFL."

Infante's coaching background at both the professional and collegiate levels is extensive.

He was named the Cincinnati Bengals' offensive coordinator in 1982 after two years as the team's quarterbacks and receivers coach.

During his second year at Cincinnati, with Gregg as head coach, Infante changed the Bengals offense and the team went to the Super Bowl with a 12-4 record. That 1981 team set team records with 3,995 passing yards and 5,986 total yards.

Infante began his coaching career in 1965 at Miami, Fla., Senior High School before moving on to the University of Florida as freshman coach in 1966. He was a college assistant at Florida, Memphis State and Tulane and a pro assistant with Charlotte of the World Football League and the NFL's New York Giants before joining the Bengals.

Now he is in charge at Green Bay, where the Packers have produced only four winning seasons since their last Super Bowl victory under Vince Lombardi in 1968.

His first chore will be to fill out a coaching staff, something he hopes to have done by the end of next week. He'll attend scouting workouts in Indianapolis later this week, fly home to Cleveland "to get some clean underwear" and then return to Green Bay next week.

"I didn't come here to be a loser," he said. "I don't think any player or anybody here wants to be that. We will work out tails off to be a winner. We're going to be a winner."

Illinois...

 fense himself, though his Illinois teams will "put a great deal of emphasis on our defense and special teams."

Mackovic said he would concentrate immediately on keeping the high school players who had already indicated a preference for Illinois, and adding others.

However, one key recruit who had planned to attend Illinois, defensive lineman Frank Kmet of Arlington Heights, Ill., said he planned to join former Illinois line coach Bill Kollar at Purdue.

Feb. 10 is the first day recruits can sign with universities and that date was one reason Illinois Athletic Director Neale Stoner was determined to fill the coaching vacancy quickly.

The Athletic Association board met behind closed doors for about three hours Tuesday night to discuss the coaching situation. Members emerged to announce that they had agreed on a candidate, but declined to name him immediately.

Mackovic also was a candidate for the Illinois job when Gary Moeller was fired following the 1979 season, but White got the job then.

White had a record of 47-41-3 in eight seasons, and led the Illini to the Rose Bowl in 1984. However, his teams struggled the last two seasons with a combined 7-14-1 record.

"I always dreamed and wondered what it would have been like had I been in Champaign all those years," Mackovic said. "Now, eight years later, here I am. We have a new chapter to write."

A native of Barberton, Ohio, Mackovic began his coaching career in 1965 at Miami of Ohio, where he earned a master's degree in secondary education. He also was an assistant at Barberton High School, Army, San Jose State, Arizona, and Purdue.

He had a 14-20 record in three seasons at Wake Forest before joining the Cowboys as quarterback coach in 1981. He left Dallas in 1983 to take over the Chiefs. His Kansas City teams posted a 30-34 regular-season record.

Torch Relay Has Great Meaning

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Frank King calls it "rocking-chair stuff," the memories that will wash over the chief executive officer of the Calgary Winter Olympics long after the Games are gone.

More often than not, King said, these golden moments will involve the torch relay, in which average citizens have carried the Olympic flame across Canada.

"There is something very important about that relay and I don't know how to lay my finger on it," King said in an interview Wednesday. "I don't know why the simple concept of carrying a flame through a country means so much to so many people."

"It's just a simple thing. It's a nice-looking thing but it's a simple thing. It's a flame that comes from Greece, and there is some kind of a tie with tradition, some kind of an ego transfer that there is a great accomplishment taking place with this. It transfers into personal rewards and pride, things like that."

Four years ago, the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee staged a similar run across the United States, bringing the flame from New York to the West Coast. Runners bid for the privilege of carrying the LA flame, but Calgary decided against that and chose some 6,500 runners at random from 7 million applications.

King said he was happy with that decision.

"We're not selling the torch. I don't want to put down the American way of doing things, but we have given this right to those lucky enough to be chosen," he said.

But King said groups such as the Lions Club and companies such as Petro Canada have raised some $4 million for charity through relay-related promotions.

"So rather than selling it and making it only available to those with a lot of money, we have given it away and made the same amount of money you might expect in a small country like this," he said. "It's money not from selling the torch but because the torch relay was there."

A large photograph of the torch hangs on the wall behind King's desk, and the Olympic chief has run in two legs of the relay himself.

Among the stories he can tell from those runs, and the memories they produced, include one of a woman who scattered the ashes of a dead friend along the route as she ran. It turned out that the friend had been chosen to carry the torch but died in an accident before he could fulfill his dream, King said.

Another concerned a woman, alone by the roadside in a wheelchair.

"The whole relay, 30 vans and vehicles and the whole thing, stopped, and the tears were flowing from her as she held the torch in both of her hands," King said. "She was spiritually refreshed by this experience, there's no doubt about it."

"That's the magic that will stay with me for a long time."

King has been involved in the Calgary Olympic organization since 1978, when the city was bidding for the Winter Games. Ten years later, he said, he is dealing with fairly minor problems as the preparations for the competition enter the final 10 days.

"I feel like a fellow holding an hourglass with 10 grains of sand left," he said.

Venues were "100 percent ready" for the Games, and plenty of artificial snow has been spread on Alpine and Nordic ski trails, King said.

The trouble spots that could come up, he said, included accreditation of about 15,000 athletes, journalists and other "official" visitors who have yet to arrive, complaints about ticket availability and traffic jams.

King said that he hoped the Winter Games would help motivate children toward higher goals.

"This is where the heroes are going to be recognized," he said. "To me, that will leave a legacy in the minds of the kids, a 'There go I' kind of attitude."

"The other legacies that we went for in the beginning are already in place, and they have nothing to do particularly with the quality of the Games. They are the facilities and the funding."

"Now we come to the question, 'Is there something more that we can leave?' And the market that we've got to look at is children. "These are the ones who will decide to take excellence as a way of life, if they want to go for the Olympic ideals. If we can motivate a few thousand young kids in every major city and province around the country, that'll be an important legacy as well."

Tyson, Spinks Figure To Take In Big Bucks

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Tyson and Michael Spinks figure to gross as much as $70 million when Tyson defends his undisputed heavyweight title in June, Spinks' adviser says.

Butch Lewis made that estimate Wednesday after negotiations were completed. He called the bout "the only fight in boxing ... the one everyone wanted to see."

Lewis figured the fight would make a net profit of nearly $40 million.

"We've agreed verbally," Lewis said, ending months of often-bitter negotiations. "We're now having the contract reduced to writing" and a signing is expected early next week.

The bout between the unbeaten fighters will be shown on closed-circuit television, but no site or date has been chosen, Lewis said.

Atlantic City and Las Vegas, Nev., were thought to be the leading contenders as the site.

"We're very interested in the fight," said Jack Burkam, vice president of marketing at the Las Vegas Hilton. "We've hosted most of Tyson's championship fights and we've hosted Spinks fights in the past. They were very successful for us."

Donald Trump, the New York real estate magnate and a hotel-casino owner in Atlantic City, has been involved some recent King promotions, most recently the Tyson-Holmes fight, held in the Atlantic City Convention Center, next to Trump Plaza.

"I know Mr. Trump is interested," Burkam said. "I assume he's going to attempt to get the fight."

Caesars Palace in Las Vegas was another potential site.

The fee to host the fight could be the biggest ever, topping the reported $7 million that Caesars paid to host the Marvelous Marvin Hagler-Sugar Ray Leonard middleweight title fight last April.

"It's clearly in that neighborhood," said Burkam. "This is a big, big fight. It is a fight we think would be a major, major attraction."

Burkam said the Hilton would build an outdoor arena for the fight if it wins the site bid.

Spinks will fight for a flat sum plus a few incentives. His guarantee reportedly is in the neighborhood of $12.5 million to $13.5 million.

Everything else will go to Tyson with promoter Don King being paid out of the champion's revenues. Tyson is expected to earn at least $17 million.

"If the thing hits a home run and the net is close to $40 million, Tyson can touch $20 million," said Shelly Finkel, who has the closed-circuit and pay-per-view television rights for the bout.

"It will rank as being the biggest box office event in the history of the sport," Lewis said.

Negotiations with Lewis were conducted by Finkel, serving as a go-between for Tyson's co-managers Jimmy Jacobs and Bill Cayton. Milt Trotsky handled negotiations for Spinks' camp.

Frank Robinson Wants Other Blacks To Follow

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Robinson is accustomed to leading the way. He is the only player to win Most Valuable Player awards in both leagues.

He was the first black manager in baseball history.

He moved into the Baltimore Orioles' front office this winter, joining Hank Aaron as the only blacks to hold major executive jobs in baseball.

Now that Robinson is there, he wants others to follow.

"I'm trying to get them back into the game of baseball," Robinson said Wednesday. "I'm in a position nobody has been in before. The opportunity is there."

Only one black, Bill Lucas, has been general manager of a major-league team. Lucas held that post with the Atlanta Braves for three years before dying of a heart attack in 1979. Aaron is director of player development for the Braves and Robinson began this week as a special assistant to Orioles owner Edward Bennett Williams, the only major black appointment among baseball player personnel jobs this winter.

"There's a lot of jobs that have opened up and I thought baseball was ready to hire a black manager or general manager," Robinson said. "It hasn't happened in 40 years; it hasn't happened overnight."

Robinson, who was in New York for a promotional appearance, is one of a group of black former players called the Baseball Network that is attempting to get more black players into baseball jobs. The group, which includes Willie Stargell and Curt Flood, has met with Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, hired an executive director and opened an office in Houston.

"We have a lot of communication. We exchange information," Robinson said of the discussions with Ueberroth. "He may call up the Baseball Network and say that there's a job that's available, let's say with the Cleveland Indians, and ask us for a list of names that we think are qualified and we'll pass it on."

Baseball's examination of its minority hiring practices began after Al Campanis, then the general manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, said last April that blacks "lacked the necessities" to hold front office positions.

"Since the Campanis statement, it's opened up all the doors in baseball," Robinson said.

Yet, except for Robinson, no blacks have been named to high-profile positions.

"He has the knowledge. He knows the game," New York Yankees General Manager Lou Piniella said of Robinson. "He knows the players. He's been on the field."

And with experience off the field, Robinson hopes he one day will run a team.

"This will prepare me if a general manager's job opens up," Robinson said. "I could be considered for it."

But part of him still wants to return to the field, where he once managed the Cleveland Indians and San Francisco Giants.

"Certainly if a position came along managing a ballclub, if it was a situation I was comfortable with, I would go for it."

Montana Takes It All In Stride

HONOLULU (AP) — It was an unlikely end to the San Francisco 49ers' season, being upset by the Minnesota Vikings while quarterback Joe Montana finished the game on the bench.

Montana, however, seems to have taken it all in stride.

"A lot of strange things happen in football," the 49ers' Pro Bowl quarterback said. "They say that's why the football's shaped that way."

"It takes some real funny bounces."

The 49ers had the NFL's best regular-season record, 13-2, and appeared destined for the Super Bowl.

But in their first playoff game, the 49ers were ambushed 36-24 by the Vikings, and San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh replaced Montana with Steve Young in the third quarter.

However, Montana, in Hawaii to make his fifth Pro Bowl appearance Sunday, said he's not concerned with any possible quarterback controversy next season.

"I'm not even going to think about it," he said. "That's something for other people to worry about."

There has even been speculation that Montana, 31, might consider retiring, but he emphasized that he plans to return next year.

Some of his 49ers teammates said there's no doubt Montana is still the club's starting quarterback despite winding up the 1987 campaign on the sidelines.

"They (the Vikings) were teeing off on Joe pretty good," said San Francisco running back Roger Craig, a second-time NFL All-Star selection for the Pro Bowl.

Barbara Mandrell Regains Old Pizazz After Accident

By ROBERT MACY
Associated Press Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Barbara Mandrell gazed at the plush dressing room carpet, shifted in the oversized chair, and contemplated the question: "Was there ever a time, after the accident, when you gave up; when you felt like you couldn't bounce back?"

"Oh yeah," she said softly, weighing the inquiry. "Oh yeah! I'd go to rehearsal and I'd just start crying. There was pain, physical pain. And suddenly there was stage fright — something I'd never known in all my years in show business."

Three years after a tragic car crash nearly took her life and put her career on hold, Barbara Mandrell is bouncing back with her old show biz pizazz and a new set of priorities. She's just finished a 50-city tour, is making numerous TV appearances and is returning to do shows in Las Vegas, where she is again drawing sellout crowds. Her stage show is vintage Mandrell — a mix of country, gospel and pop. But missing are the vigorous dance routines of years past.

Her shift back into high gear is a welcome relief for friends and family who worried through anxious months following the September 1984 accident.

Mandrell, her son, Matthew, and daughter, Jamie, were injured when a vehicle struck her car in the Nashville suburb of Hendersonville. The three had buckled seat belts moments before the crash — a move she says saved their lives. The driver of the oncoming car was killed.

Reports at the time listed her as having a broken thigh bone and fractured knee. Family members skirted the fact she also suffered a severe head injury and was in intensive care for several days.

"The head injury was played down," she said in an interview between shows at Bally's. "I have lost some memories. Someone will mention something and I'll say, 'I don't remember that.' Or someone will talk about something I don't remember. Sometimes as they start to talk about it, I'll start to remember."

The head and leg injuries kept her on an emotional elevator — and off the stage — for 18 months. Wearing a brace on her ankle and her knee, she returned at the Universal Amphitheater in Los Angeles in February 1986.

The trip back was accompanied by something new for Mandrell — stage fright.

"I started performing at age 11, right here in Las Vegas," she recalled. "I guess because I started at such an early age, I never really knew what stage fright was. It had never ever bothered me."

"But when it came time for me to return, I was so scared. I didn't want to go back out on stage. I prayed a lot about it. When I was praying, I felt fine. When I wasn't, I felt sick at my stomach."

"Then when the overture started, boom, I felt fine. I occasionally get nervous before a show and I don't like that. Before the accident I never used to get nervous."

One bright spot in her 18-month recuperation was the birth of son Nathaniel in September 1985. "That was a real blessing, and a miracle," she said, eyes glistening.

Mandrell, 39, and her husband of 22 years, Ken Dudney, had been trying to have a baby in the months before the accident.

"We were disappointed that we couldn't," she said. "Then in September, this (the accident) happened. It just shows that God knows the whole picture; we don't."

Becoming pregnant while recuperating from the accident was a concern for Mandrell and her family.

"I was scared, my doctor was scared. He said, 'Your body's not ready for this.' It was really difficult but it was really worth it. Nathaniel is such a neat little guy."

What did the accident teach her?

"We all say things like 'Life's too short.' I think we say those things but we don't really believe them. The Bible tells us we're not promised tomorrow, we're only promised today. Tomorrow may not happen for us. So I treat every day as something special — live it, enjoy it."

"Some of my priorities have changed. I used to keep my family and my career on a 50-50 balance. Now my family and friends are so far above my career."

Back on the road, she finds being away from her family the toughest task.

Matthew, 17, had traveled 600,000 miles on the entertainer's bus by the time he entered kindergarten. Jamie, 11, logged similar miles before she began school.

Her recent week-long stint in Las Vegas was the first time she had made a working trip without Nathaniel.

She recently did a Christmas special featuring President and Mrs. Reagan, was a host on the American Music Awards and Country Music Awards, and will be appearing in March on "Dolly."

In her spare time she's starting on an autobiography, tentatively titled "Never Say Never."

Legislators Honor Swing Musician

By BILL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — People in cowboy boots two-stepped around the marble floors of the state Capitol and dozens of fiddlers turned out to honor the late Bob Wills, who's credited with founding western swing music.

Strains of "Faded Love," the state's new official country and western song, and "Bob's Got a Swing Band in Heaven" echoed from the Senate chamber and lounge Wednesday.

Several spectators left their chairs and did the two-step as the Last Chance Country Band played in the afternoon.

"I didn't start fiddling until four years ago when I retired," said Noel Peavler, 62, who said he was thrilled to be playing for the Legislature.

"This is the third time I've been out here and I really enjoy it," said Peavler, who worked as a pumper for Champlin Petroleum Co.

By ones and twos, the fiddlers took their turns before a sparse crowd in the Senate chamber during the morning. When Peavler's turn came, he ripped forth with a rendition of "Ozark Moon."

"That's one you don't hear too often," Peavler said. "I like that, and I like 'Faded Love.'"

One day earlier, the Legislature made "Faded Love," a Bob Wills tune, Oklahoma's official country and western song.

Wills and his band, the Texas Playboys, performed over a Tulsa radio station for many years.

There was some controversy in the House on Tuesday about the "Texas" in the band's name before final action was taken honoring the song.

Fonda Film Will Go On

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP) — Filming of a movie starring Jane Fonda will go on in this mill city even through the Board of Aldermen voted to snub her when she comes to town this summer, her spokesman said.

"The studio is the one that makes the decision about where to film and they've made the decision," spokesman Stephen M. Rivers said Wednesday.

Aldermen voted 11-4 on Tuesday to regard the actress as "a persona non grata," when she arrives to film "Union Street" with Robert DeNiro. She plays a woman who teaches an illiterate millworker to read.

"She talked to the communists. You don't forget those things," said Alderman Peter Stathis, who waved a 1972 photograph of the actress in Hanoi.

Rivers said the anti-Fonda campaign was engineered by a handful of local World War II veterans and politicians "doing some grandstanding."

The resolution will not block any permits to MGM Studios, which plans to shoot a few scenes at canals in Holyoke and nearby Chicopee. Most filming will be done at Waterbury, Conn., where veterans also have vowed to protest.

ABC Tops Ratings With Super Bowl

NEW YORK (AP) — It was the lowest-rated Super Bowl since 1974, but Sunday's championship game between the Washington Redskins and the Denver Broncos gave ABC first place in the weekly ratings last week, its first win since the World Series last October.

According to A.C. Nielsen Co., ABC won the week ending Jan. 31 with an average, prime-time rating of 18.2. NBC was second with 15.1 and CBS third with 12.1. NBC leads for the season with 16.4, CBS is second with 13.6, and ABC third with 13.4.

The "CBS Evening News" continued its winning streak, now 19 in a row, with an average rating last week of 12.6 and a 22 share. "NBC Nightly News" was second with an 11.4 and a 20. ABC's "World News Tonight" had an 11.2 and a 19.

CBS' news program got a bump in the Tuesday ratings, the night after Dan Rather engaged in a combative live interview with Vice President George Bush during the "CBS Evening News." The rating for Monday was 13.1; Tuesday's was 14.7.

Super Bowl XXII was the highest-rated, prime-time show of the week, with a rating of 41.9 and a 62 share. That was the lowest-rated since Super Bowl VIII between the Minnesota Vikings and Miami Dolphins which rated a 41.6 but a 73 share of the audience.

The rating is a percentage of the nation's 88.6 million households with televisions. The share is a percentage of sets in use.

CRYPTIQUIP

2-4
 N U E G M Y K E M G V G E U C E G C N - U V Y H V H B E T K B E G T C .
 Yesterday's Cryptiquip: I UNDERSTAND THAT THE NUDIST CONVENTION GOT LITTLE COVERAGE.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: E equals R
 The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY Feb. 5

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Your daily routines may seem a bit boring, but if you go running off to something new, you could get into a whole heap of trouble.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Don't involve yourself in an argument between a good friend and a business acquaintance—it will resolve itself very quickly.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Schedule your time carefully so that you can handle home and family affairs without neglecting your business and personal interests.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Steer clear of an argument between a good friend and a fellow worker. Keep occupied with your work, but don't get bogged down.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Trying to make peace between your mate and a business associate would not be wise; you would likely wind up being the loser.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Don't let a family friend keep you at home doing something unimportant when you have vital matters to deal with in business.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): You should plan to spend more time with your mate tonight, so don't accept a social invitation which is extended to you alone.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Ignore that individual who keeps pestering you to lend him money, and stay around individuals with whom you feel comfortable.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Do something to assist a person in the business world who can later help you with credit and career affairs, but maintain your pride.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Plan your schedule so that you'll have plenty of time for your family and friends. Don't let anyone hinder your progress in business.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): If a good friend needs your help to pay an important bill, be generous. This person has done you many favors in the past.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Don't get involved in an argument between a superior and an associate, or you could end up sweeping the floors.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will like to keep everything neat, clean and orderly, but should be reminded not to become compulsive with this habit. Your progeny will have a great desire to travel to different lands, so a fine education including foreign languages would be good.

 Opening lead: Nine of ♥
 Between the two of us, we've been playing bridge for nigh on 100 years. In all that time, we've never come across a smoother play, although many of our contemporaries swear they've seen the position crop up at the table. This, in theory, is the situation we're referring to.

 After the artificial two-club opening bid and the semi-negative two-diamond response, the auction proceeded normally. North's raise to three spades promised some values, and South's jump over game inquired about his partner's trump holding. Holding a top trump honor, North did his duty by continuing on to slam.
 After winning the opening lead in hand with the king, the fate of the contract appears to hinge on the trump finesse, since a club loser is inevitable. However, when East shows out on the second trump, declarer needs a minor miracle to land his slam.
 Declarer cashes all his winners and uses the queen of hearts as a dummy entry to ruff a diamond. He then exits with his club loser, which East must win. This is the position:

East must lead a red card, and declarer ruffs. Whether West ruffs low or overruffs, he cannot score a trump trick. Try it.
 (This column is by way of an apology. When we ran it last year, we had an incorrect layout and the slam could have been defeated.)
