Farmville Bypass To Include 258 Interchange

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

While other sections of the new four-lane U.S. 264 east of Wilson have at-grade crossings, the U.S. 264 bypass north of Farmville will include one interchange. Randy Doub of Greenville, a member of the Board of Transportation, said this morning. Doub said the Farmville Bypass — the first section of which is scheduled to be let to contract by the transportation board Friday — will include an interchange at the U.S. 258 intersection "because of the large amount of traffic" on U.S. 258.

Concern over at-grade intersections along U.S. 264 east of Wilson was expressed at a meeting last week between members of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, the county's legislative delegation and representatives of the state transportation department.

While no accidents had been reported at intersections in Pitt or Greene counties through Dec. 31, a number of wrecks and three deaths were recorded at intersections in Wilson County from September through the end of 1987.

And Wilson County Commissioners, by letter to the Department of Transportation, have asked that interchanges be installed. Rather than write a letter, Charles

Gaskins, chairman of the Pitt board, told highway officials, "We'd rather talk to you."

State Sen. R.L. "Bob" Martin, who said, "People in eastern North Carolina would like to have the same kind of roads (including interchanges)" that other areas of the state enjoy, and state Reps. Walter Jones Jr., Ed Warren and Gene Rogers attended the meeting. Those legislators, and Sen. Tom Taft, who was not at the meeting, seem to favor interchanges, rather than at-grade crossings.

Taft, in a letter to Doub dated Jan. 25, said the issue of grade-level intersections "has been raised," and, "I would like to request you ... to review this matter and see what steps may be taken ... to construct controlled interchanges ..."

Greenville Chamber of Commerce, I wrote to Governor Hunt on three different occasions during 1983 and 1984 in an effort to preserve and then reinsert divided interchanges on U.S. 264. Along with the other chamber members who worked on this issue, we were unsuccessful and disappointed.

"I likewise have written to Jim (See INTERCHANGE, A-10)

Dole, Gephardt Lead But Iowa Gives Robertson Shove Forward

By MIKE GLOVER
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Republican Sen. Bob Dole and Democratic Rep. Richard Gephardt led the presidential caravan into New Hampshire today, victors in Iowa caucuses that boosted Pat Robertson in the GOP contest and jarred Vice President George Bush.

Bush, third-place finisher here, was up early shaking hands at a New Hampshire factory gate proclaiming "a new day." But Robertson said he didn't expect Bush to remain "a major contender," adding, "I don't think he's very popular."

Gephardt celebrated a narrow victory over Illinois Sen. Paul Simon but third-place finisher Michael Dukakis was satisfied with his Midwestern returns and told supporters, "I hope you feel as terrific as I do."

New Hampshire holds its first-in-the-nation primary next Tuesday, and Dukakis, governor in next-door Massachusetts, is the leader in the polls.

Iowa voters shuffled the cards enough to permit several contenders to declare victory.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson savored his double-digit Iowa vote totals and said he was looking past New Hampshire for Super Tuesday, when 20 states hold contests, including many across the South.

Gary Hart got almost no support in Iowa and he looked to make one last stand in New Hampshire. Bruce Babbitt, disappointed in fifth place, was also in Democratic jeopardy along with another fifth-place finisher, Republican Pete du Pont.

Gephardt, who appealed to economic nationalism, told cheering backers that his narrow win means "the Democrats of Iowa delivered an unmistakable message: this isn't just an election, it's a fight for America."

Dukakis told ABC, "I feel terrific ... to come in here and do what I did against two next-door neighbors."

Gephardt won the battle in the first round for 52 Iowa delegates to the national nominating convention. With practically all precincts reporting, he had 20 delegates, compared to 17 for Illinois Sen. Simon and 13 for Dukakis. Two were uncommitted.

Bush, up before dawn to greet factory workers in Nashua, N.H., said he would do much better in next week's primary in New Hampshire where he is "one of them" — a turn on Kansas Dole's ads in Iowa that he was "one of us." And Bush, who has an oceanfront home in Kennebunkport, Maine, told reporters at the Nashua plant in New Hampshire, "Just get my message out ... I'm one of them ... I understand this area."

Robertson, however, interviewed on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," said when asked what

Council Supports Library Project

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

To accommodate future needs brought on by projected growth, the Greenville City Council on Monday night unanimously approved the appropriation of $65,000 in matching funds for the proposed expansion and renovation of the George Washington Carver Branch Library.

"The growth of west Greenville and the projected future growth of this area offers us an exciting opportunity to address future needs of library service in that area," said Willie Nelms, director of libraries.

Located at 618 W. 14th Ave., the Carver Branch Library has served the library needs of the west Greenville community since its opening in 1962.

Nelms, along with a representative of a local architectural firm, presented to the council the preliminary plans of a proposed $130,000 expansion and renovation project, which Nelms described as a project "whose time has come."

Bruce Flye, an architect from Dudley, Shoe, and Ellinwood, presented preliminary plans in which the current, outdoor courtyard area would be brought into the library as a large, reading room, adding approximately 1,000 square feet of space.

Other proposed additions in the plan include added restroom facilities featuring handicapped access, an emergency exit, and a ground-level heating and air-conditioning equipment room.

In addition to expanding the size of the branch, the preliminary plans call for various renovations.

Pipeline Project Studied

By The Associated Press

N.C. Natural Gas Corp. has begun a feasibility study on a new natural gas transmission line between Ahsokie and Wilmington, but the multimillion dollar project probably won't be possible without some public financing, officials said.

The project would involve construction of 314 miles of transmission lines across the Coastal Plain, on a line that would take it through Pitt County, and would open up service to much of eastern North Carolina, officials said.

But Calvin B. Wells, president of N.C. Natural Gas Corp., said the Ahsokie-to-Wilmington pipeline was "very much a long shot."

"All we are trying to do right now is to see if it is at all feasible," Wells said in an interview. "The feasibility consists of two things, the costs of the

Student Grouping Discussed

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education identified grouping students for instruction as a philosophical issue during its workshop meeting Monday night in Bethel Elementary School.

Charles Ross, associate superintendent for instruction, guided the board through the background of grouping students and explained the present policy on grouping. The school board agreed to discuss the issue with the regional director of the federal Office of Civil Rights at a meeting scheduled Feb. 16.

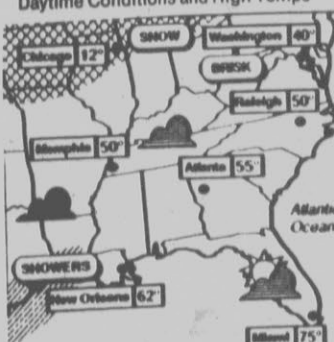

The policy for the 1986-87 and 1987-88 school year, subject to evaluation by the Office of Civil Rights after this year, heterogeneously assigns kindergarten through third grade students and homogeneously assigns fourth through eighth grade students in language arts and mathematics, but heterogeneously assigns them in other areas. Open enrollment through informed parent and student choice is the system used for grades nine through 12.

Effects of the policy will be evaluated by Dr. Richard Jeager of

Rose Activities

Special activities sponsored by student services took place at Rose High School Feb. 1-5 commemorating National School Counseling Week. Tips for teachers were distributed each day to show ways the teachers could help student services.

On Tuesday a "Preparing for College" workshop was held for 10th graders, and college representatives visited throughout the week to talk to students during the lunch periods. Ella Harris, a social studies teacher, gave a presentation to teachers relating to the role of guidance in the classroom.

An open house for parents was held Wednesday. Desserts were prepared by Eloise Howard and other parents and served during the lunch period to show appreciation to the staff for the help and support they give.

Before school, a breakfast sponsored by Academic Boosters, was held in the school cafeteria for all students who made the honor roll or principal's list for the first two grading periods.

Throughout the week, students and teachers who used the Career Center registered for door prizes and on Friday a drawing was held and winners announced.

Satellite Dish

Ayden-Grifton High School is one of 52 rural high schools in the state selected by the General Assembly to receive a satellite dish.

Funded at $3 million, the Distance Learning by Satellite project will use the dishes to transmit secondary school courses to schools throughout North Carolina who otherwise might not be able to offer them because of teacher availability or low student enrollments.

The money appropriated by the Legislature will also be used to provide satellites in each county for staff development training in all school systems in the state. Funds will cover the costs of equipment, installation and programming for a total of 144 sites through the 1988-89 school year.

Thefts Reported

Investigators said seven thefts, including a motorized bicycle from 211 S. Elm St., were reported to Greenville police Monday.

Officer R.L. Vandiford said the 1985 model bicycle was taken from the Elm Street home in an incident reported at 7:30 p.m., while Officer K.M. Smeltzer said a number of snack food items were taken from a coin operated machine at the Cricket Inn on Memorial Drive in a break-in reported at 1:05 a.m.

Officer J.G. Bridges said a license plate was taken from a vehicle at 1204 W. Sixth St. in an incident reported at 7:30 a.m., while Officer D.R. Wyrick said a ski jacket and purse were taken from a car parked at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche streets in an incident reported at 12:53 p.m.

Officer T.A. Lee said two stereo amplifiers were taken from Belk's at Carolina East Mall in an incident reported at 1:28 p.m., while Officer M.A. Jordan said a microwave oven was taken from 14 Pirates Landing.

According to Officer B.W. Lewis, 24 cans of beer were taken from the Stop Shop Convenient Mart at 213 E. Fifth St. in an incident reported at 11:34 p.m.

Drug Charges

Jesse Calvin Daniels, 29, of 900 Bancroft Ave. was arrested Monday by Greenville police on charges of possession of heroin and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Officers assigned to the department's special investigations section said Daniels was charged in connection with an incident at the intersection of Fleming Street and Bancroft Avenue that occurred about 2:53 p.m.

Break-In Counts

Michael Benjamin Hall, 23, and Ronnie Dorsey Madison, 26, both of 211 New St., were arrested by Greenville police last week on breaking, entering and larceny charges.

Detective D.R. Best said both men were arrested Thursday in connection with a break-in Wednesday at Lady J's at 117 Grand Ave. where several wigs were reported taken.

Larceny Arrests

Greenville police arrested two people on larceny charges Monday in connection with thefts reported at the K mart store at Greenville Square Shopping Center.

Officer R.L. Vandiford said Stanley Vernon Sowers, 28, of Route 1, La Grange, was charged in connection with the theft of a cassette tape about 7:35 p.m.

Officer M.E. Hayes said Colleen Marie Luther, 18, of 310 Jones Dorm was arrested in connection with the theft of cosmetics and chewing gum about 7:03 p.m.

Review Panel Meets

The Subdivision Review Board will meet Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. in the third floor conference room of the Community Building, located at the corner of Fourth and Greene streets.

La Leche Meeting

A La Leche League meeting for women interested in breastfeeding will be held Thursday at 9:30 a.m.

The program topic will be "The Art of Breastfeeding: Getting Started and Overcoming Difficulties."

In addition to serving as a support group for nursing mothers, the league maintains a lending library of books on childbirth, nutrition, and parenting, as well as breastfeeding.

For information and the location of the meeting call Kathleen King, 746-4728, or Barbara Whitehead, 746-3412.

Homecoming Court

Greenville Christian Academy's ninth-through twelfth-grade students have announced their 1988 homecoming court selections.

Attendants chosen are: Christy Briley of Stokes, freshman; Myra Locklear of Greenville, sophomore, and Heather Gray of Grimesland, junior. The three senior attendants are Kim Faulkner, Arielle Sturz and Amber Tripp.

Today the seventh-through twelfth-grade students elected the 1988 homecoming queen from the three senior attendants. The new queen will be announced during homecoming ceremonies Friday evening at the Family Life Center, GCA.

HRC Session Set

The Greenville Human Relations

Council will meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the third floor conference room of the Community Building, located at the corner of Fourth and Greene streets.

Class Reunion

Members of the J.H. Rose High School class of 1978 will meet at C.M. Eppes Recreation Center today at 7:30 p.m. to discuss plans for the class reunion weekend set for June 10-12.

For more information call Carol D. Parker at 746-2675 or Jeff Savage at 830-5187.

United Way Meets

The Pitt County United Way will hold its annual meeting and awards luncheon Wednesday at noon at the Greenville County Club.

Olympics Program

The documentary "A Special Moment," featuring the 1987 U.S. Olympic Festival, will air Saturday at 7 p.m. on the North Carolina Public Television network, WUNK-TV.

The one-hour show produced by Burroughs Wellcome Co. will include portions of the opening and closing ceremonies, competitive events, and a look at the production of the documentary.

The broadcast of "A Special Moment" precedes network coverage of the opening of the 1988 Winter Olympics.

Senior Citizens

Love day, an annual tribute to senior citizens, will be held Friday at The Plaza beginning at 10 a.m., sponsored by The Plaza and Pitt County schools.

Students from E.B. Aycock Junior High School will perform "Show Biz" under the direction of Patricia Hiss.

Elementary school students have donated valentines to be distributed to mall participants, local nursing homes and at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

A prize will be given to the senior citizen who shows the most valentine's spirit.

MHA Orientation

John Anema spoke at a recent orientation meeting for the board of directors of the Mental Health Association in Pitt County.

Anema talked about the Pitt County Mental Health Center and its relationship with the Mental Health Association.

Sallie Shelton, MHA executive director, discussed mental illness, the association's mission and structure, and the responsibilities of each board member.

Connie Kledaras, president, discussed the committees of the board and the purpose of each panel. Each committee held a planning session.

Resolution Adopted

A resolution of respect has been adopted by the Pitt County Medical Society for Dr. Charles Daniel Jordan, who died Dec. 5, 1987.

Jordan practiced medicine in Bethel from 1950 until 1969 and then was a physician at the East Carolina University Student Health Services. He was an associate professor in the ECU School of Medicine.

A graduate of Medical College of Virginia in Richmond, he earned his undergraduate degree at ECU and a master's degree at George Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn. Prior to entering the U.S. Army for service before going to medical school, he had nearly completed requirements for a doctorate at Duke University.

Supervisors Gather

The board of supervisors of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District will meet at 3:45 p.m. Thursday at the district office in the Federal Building, 215 S. Evans St.

Dental Health Event

W.H. Robinson Elementary School will have a "Super Smiles '88 Parade" in Winterville to celebrate Children's Dental Health Month.

The parade, which will take place Wednesday at Robinson School on North Railroad Street, Winterville, will begin at 9:30 a.m. with a balloon release.

Grand marshal will be Dr. Billy Williams, president of the East Central Dental Society. Mayor E.C. Hines will follow. Donna Hatcher, Pitt County public dental hygienist, will be the tooth fairy and the parade queen.

Children's Dental Health Month is sponsored by the N.C. Department of Public Instruction, the N.C. Dental Society and the N.C. Department of Human Resources, dental health section.

Career Day At Rose

Rose High School students were exposed to a variety of possible career opportunities today during career day.

Doctors, lawyers, certified public accountants, educators, reporters, hairdressers, golf professionals and military representatives were on hand to tell students about their jobs and the benefits.

Medal Winners

Ten members of the Greenville-Pitt County Special Olympics team won medals at the 1988 North Carolina Special Olympics State Bowling Tournament held Saturday in Winston-Salem.

Five gold and five silver medals were won by Pitt County participants during the competition involving 150 Special Olympics competitors from throughout North Carolina. Singles, doubles and team competitions were held.

Gold medal winners from Pitt County were Debra Sermons, Bill Hemingway and Jesse Fleming in singles, and Mike Karachun and Tony Natale in doubles. Silver medal winners were Roy Powell in singles, and Gary McGowan, Nancy Shelton, Alice Quiggins and Deborah Heath in team competition.

Joyce Cates, manager of Hillcrest Bowling Lanes of Greenville, serves as head coach of North Carolina Special Olympics bowling.

Special Olympics activities in this area are sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department.

Counseling Week

Activities sponsored by student services took place at Rose High School last week to commemorate National School Counseling Week. Tips for teachers were distributed each day to show ways the teachers could help student services.

On Tuesday a "Preparing for College" workshop was held for tenth-graders, and college representatives visited throughout the week to talk to students during the lunch periods. Ella Harris, social studies teacher, gave a presentation to teachers relating to the role of guidance in the classroom.

The student services department held open house for parents Wednesday. Desserts were prepared by Eloise Howard and other parents and served during the lunch period to show appreciation to staff members for their help and support.

A breakfast, sponsored by Academic Boosters, was held for all students who made the honor roll or principal's list for the first two grading periods.

School Visitor

Ebbie Hatton, dental hygienist with Dr. Jasper Lewis' office, recently visited fourth-grade classes at Wahl-Coates School to discuss proper dental care and to show slides of diseased gums and teeth.

Mrs. Hatton's visit to the school was in conjunction with Dental Health Month.

PTL Trustee Yields, Holds Up Pay Raises For Officers

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Employee unrest caused PTL trustee David Lark to suspend pay raises he granted last month to five top executives, he said.

"I still don't fully understand the response to it, but, boy, it really hit the place in the wrong way," Clark said. "It wasn't worth jeopardizing the morale of the employees over it."

Last week, Clark said he had granted annual raises ranging from $4,000 to $12,000 to executives who took on increased responsibilities after several staff shakeups.

Clark said the pay adjustment was justified because several waves of layoffs in the last 10 months trimmed the number of vice presidents from 20 to eight, and a number of departments have been combined.

PTL is in bankruptcy reorganization, attempting to repay more than $60 million in debts. Clark has said repeatedly that the ministry is struggling to meet its operating expenses.

But Clark said Monday that other employees "were so upset that I met with the people involved, and they said, 'This isn't worth it. We're doing a salary and wage study anyway, and we will gladly forgo these raises until that is completed.'"

Five executives — vice presidents Wendy Davis, Sam Johnson, Walter Richardson and Neil Eskelin, and comptroller Dana Cadwell — received raises.

Clark wouldn't specify amounts, but he said the two executives with the largest raises had their salaries increased from $48,000 to $60,000 a year.

Clark said the pay study, which will cover all PTL employees, should be completed by May 2, the deadline for a new board of directors to take over. He said the study will try to tie pay to duties and performance.

Clark said he thinks adverse reaction among employees was prompted by fear that PTL was reverting to the practices of defrocked leader Jim Bakker, who paid huge salaries and bonuses to himself and favored aides.

"When Bakker was here, he had 20 vice presidents, many of whom were given the titles just because he liked them, and they didn't really have heavy responsibilities," Clark said.

Under Bakker, Clark said, the average salary for vice presidents was $117,000 a year, not including bonuses. Now, Clark said, the eight vice presidents average $55,000 a year.

Clark met with staff members Monday to tell them the executive raises were postponed, and he repeated the announcement on Monday's PTL Club television show.

J.P. Stevens Sees Management Offer To Buy Common Shares

NEW YORK (AP) — Higher bids are expected to follow a $666.5 million management buyout proposal for J.P. Stevens & Co.

In a Monday announcement, the textile giant said the group had offered to pay $38 in cash plus debt securities it valued at $5 for each of Stevens' 15.5 million outstanding common shares.

"I suppose if other individuals or others weren't looking at it before, they're probably sharpening their pencils over this," said Kay Norwood, an analyst at Interstate Securities Corp. in Charlotte, N.C. "We'll know in a few days."

Wall Street made up its mind quickly. Stevens' stock jumped more than $11 per share with the opening bell on the New York Stock Exchange, and wound up closing at $45.62½ per share, up $12.25, in nationwide trading of issues listed on the Big Board.

pany was worth closer to $50 a share, based on its potential cash flow.

"I think the offer is entirely unfair to stockholders," said George O. Zimmerman, who watches the company for the securities firm Gruntal & Co. "This company has the capability of earning $4, even $5 per share, given some perk in the economy."

Meanwhile, Stevens said a special committee of its seven outside directors would study the offer, and that it might postpone its scheduled March 1 annual shareholders meeting as a result.

Chairman Whitney Stevens, a fifth-generation member of the family that founded the company in 1813, is leading the most recent of several takeover efforts.

The company has become especially attractive following a major restructuring designed to make the company less vulnerable to stiff foreign competition in the apparel trade, analysts said.

No Surprise, Robertson Says

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Pat Robertson said today he wasn't surprised by his strong second-place finish in Iowa's Republican caucus and suggested a main reason he beat Vice President George Bush was that "I don't think he's very popular."

"I would have been surprised a week ago. I wasn't surprised yesterday," said Robertson in an appearance on CBS-TV's "This Morning."

Roberts, who campaigned in a 53-city, four-day bus tour of Iowa, said in an interview Monday night that he saw the support building as he brought out "a new spectrum of people who've been disenfranchised."

"I won Dubuque. Well that is a Roman Catholic, Democratic, blue collar worker city and I won it... so this is a new side of my coalition," he said.

Today, on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," he was asked what happened to Bush, who finished third in Iowa behind Kansas Sen. Bob Dole and Robertson.

He said Bush's popularity has been based to a large extent on his association with President Reagan, and "once that shadow is burned off I don't think he's going to be a major contender."

Robertson's "invisible army" made itself quite visible. Folks who normally stay away from politics crowded into churches and county courthouses to stand up and be counted.

At Precinct 15, inside the First Assembly of God, an evangelical church in northwest Des Moines and scene of one of the state's 2,487 Republican gatherings, the mood was calm and quiet.

Few of the 111 who turned out — nearly triple 1984's numbers — wore campaign buttons. Once the business of selecting precinct workers and vote counters was done, the straw poll went quickly.

Robertson not only bested Bush, he came within four votes of beating Dole in that precinct.

Across Iowa, in nearly complete returns, he finished with 25 percent, to Dole's 37 percent and Bush's 19 percent.

In Waterloo, Gloria Widman, a Robertson backer, told a reporter: "He just stands for godly issues — the Bible and Jesus. He operates in miraculous wonders in terms of what the Bible says — prophecy, healing, miracles. He loves just like Jesus did and we need a man of God in the office."

Robertson, who became a public figure because of his TV ministry but must reach beyond the religiously motivated to succeed as a politician, compares his candidacy to the 1960 campaign of John F. Kennedy.

Religion was an issue then, and Robertson told Iowans it's being used against him now.

"Obviously I'm a person who stands for strong moral values. I believe in God," he said. "And I believe that we should have God central in the concerns of this nation. After all, we say we're one nation under God, in God we trust and I think that's a good concept to keep before us."

Bush Gets Surprise As Iowa GOP Decides

happened to Bush, "I don't think he's very popular."

The former television evangelist said that Bush has been in President Reagan's shadow of popularity, "but once that shadow burns off, I don't think he's going to be a major contender."

Dole, the big winner, said simply, "I'm not taking anything for granted." He was flying to New Hampshire where he has trailed Bush in opinion polls.

Simon and Dukakis, interviewed in Des Moines today before leaving for New Hampshire, gave upbeat assessments of their second and third-place finishes among the Democrats.

"It was very close to a dead heat," said Simon on NBC-TV's "Today" program. He said he was optimistic going into New Hampshire, though he conceded Dukakis would likely win that primary. Overall, he said, "I think we have a real shot at doing this thing."

Dole said Monday night's results gave the campaign a "whole new focus," but he wasn't talking about his own win. He was referring to the big evangelical Christian turnout and Robertson's second-place surprise at the expense of Bush, who was battered in the precinct caucuses that represent the 1988 campaign's first major test of candidate strength.

"Tell them I'm coming after them," Bush said after leaving Iowa early Monday night for New Hampshire. "We're in friendly territory here."

With 70 percent of precincts reporting, an incomplete count not likely to be advanced, Gephardt had 24,136 votes for 27 percent of the Democratic vote, followed by Simon at 21,403 with 24 percent and Dukakis with 18,041 and 20.5 percent. Jesse Jackson ran fourth with 9,773 votes and 11 percent, ahead of Babbitt, who had 9 percent and 8,049 votes.

Six percent were uncommitted, and Hart all but disappeared, receiving just 896 votes, less than 1 percent and edging non-candidate Mario Cuomo who had 223 votes. Hart called himself "a sprinter, who is in the race to stay."

A missing element in Iowa was Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore, a critic of Iowa caucuses whose strategy is to look for big wins in the March 8 "Super Tuesday" primaries in his native South. He had 192 votes.

On the Republican side, with 98 percent of the precincts reporting, Dole had 40,661 votes for 37 percent of the vote. Robertson had 26,761 votes for 5 percent to Bush's 20,194, 19 percent. New York Rep. Jack Kemp was fourth with 12,088 votes and 11 percent, while former Delaware Gov. du Pont had 7,999 votes and 7 percent. Former Secretary of State Alexander Haig registered less than 1 percent, having dropped out of Iowa weeks ago. The remaining voters expressed no preference.

Dole, who emphasized his humble background and his Senate experience, said, "With all these good Republican candidates, there was one candidate who was closer to the people."

But the real crowing on the Republican side came from Robertson, the former TV evangelist whose Christian supporters have been dubbed the "invisible army."

"To come in with a solid victory over a sitting vice president is going to ignite my campaign like it's got a rocket engine behind it," he said.

About 110,000 people turned out in each party to render judgments reported around the world. Many were first-time caucus goers and fully a third of the Republicans were evangelical Christians, giving Robertson a solid core of support, according to a CBS News survey.

The caucuses marked only the beginning of a complicated state delegate selection process that eventually will award 37 Republican and 58 Democratic national convention delegates.

Candidates at the bottom of the packs faced the inevitable questions about the viability of their campaigns. They tried different answers.

"We spent the fewest dollars and the fewest days," said Jackson. He called Iowa the "league opener: one game down, 49 more to go."

Babbitt, who bills himself as the honest candidate on the issues, tried honesty.

"It's not as great as I'd like," he said.

Haig, in New Hampshire, insisted he is in the race "to the bitter end."

Bush's son, George Jr., declared "We were whipped."

Commission Says Waldheim Knew Of, Aided Atrocities

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — President Kurt Waldheim knew about Nazi wartime atrocities and aided them by following orders while a lieutenant in the German army, an international commission has concluded.

The six-member government-appointed panel also found there was no evidence Waldheim committed Nazi war crimes, but said his assertion that he did not know about the fate of Jews deported from Greece was "not believable."

Waldheim, a 69-year-old former U.N. secretary-general, has repeatedly denied any wrongdoing during his World War II service in Hitler's army. After meeting with the commission Monday, he told Austrian television he was happy that the commission chairman said "there is no kind of guilt on my part."

However, a copy of the report's conclusions obtained today by The Associated Press said Waldheim had a "deep and comprehensive insight" into the bloody campaign the Nazis waged in the Balkans, where thousands of civilians were shot or deported between 1942 to 1945.

During that time, Waldheim served as a German army lieutenant in the Balkans.

The panelists said they found no case in which Waldheim opposed "an order to do something he undoubtedly recognized as unjust."

"On the contrary, (Waldheim) repeatedly went along with unlawful acts and thereby made it easier for them to be carried out," the report concluded.

The report said "a certain guilt" can emerge from knowledge of violations of human rights "if the person concerned — out of lack of strength or courage — violated his human duty to take steps against injustice."

"Such steps on Waldheim's part have not become known," the 10-page conclusion said at another point.

"In many points," the report said, "Waldheim's presentation of his military past is not in harmony with the results of the work of the commission. He tried to let his military past pass into oblivion and, as soon as this was no longer possible, to make it harmless."

Commenting on Waldheim's role, the report said he was "certainly more than a second-rank 'desk officer.'"

Waldheim was often present at important meetings with his superiors and took an active part in discussions, the report said.

In April 1987, the U.S. Justice Department placed Waldheim on a list of undesirable aliens.

system in 1967, the branch has never been renovated.

"There's a real need to provide a general facelift of the interior of the building and to bring it out of the early 1960s and prepare it for the 1990s," Nelms said.

Renovation plans include upgrading the appearance of the circulation desk, adding carpet, enhancing the front of the building with new landscaping, adding a bicycle rack, and replacing the fronting sign.

In addition, preliminary plans call for a conference room to be partitioned from a section of the current, adult reading room. This room, to be used for many of the library's programs, would accommodate approximately 50 people.

Flye said preliminary cost estimates provided by several contractors, indicate costs to be $77,000 for the new addition, $36,000 for renovation work, $7,000 for furnishings, $10,000 for architectural fees, totaling to a "turn-key" final cost of 130,000.

Nelms said rapid growth in and around the medical district is expected to bring an ever-increasing number of adults into the branch library, and increase circulation.

"We've already begun to experience use by some people who work in the hospital area. This use will increase and we're making efforts to let people in that area know about Carver and to encourage its use," Nelms said.

Nelms told council members that to increase branch awareness, a flier has been printed and is being distributed to west Greenville residents and workers, which shows where the library is located, hours of operation, and programs available.

Council's commitment for matching funds precedes a March 31 deadline to apply for a state library grant, to be administered by the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources.

The last session of the North Carolina General Assembly approved a $1.25 million appropriation during each year of the 1988-1989 biennium for the construction and renovation of public library facilities, with a maximum amount of $125,000 in matching funds to be awarded to any one library.

Nelms said the grant application will be submitted by the March 31 deadline with the N.C. State Library Commission scheduled to review the applications in May. The commission will then make recommendations to Patric Dorsey, secretary of cultural resources, who will make final decisions on the grants.

Nelms told the council if the library didn't receive a commitment for matching funds, its chances of receiving grant money would be very small.

Nelms also told council members that the grants are not "an all or nothing deal," referring to the possibility that a percentage of the grant requested might be awarded.

line and the demand for gas that would be there."

Wells said the project's costs could run as high as $100 million once distribution lines to industries, businesses and homes were added — an expense almost equal to the company's $111 million in assets.

The study is not the only major natural gas construction project being discussed for North Carolina. At least six companies have begun preliminary talks with state officials about building a second interstate pipeline to the state.

The two proposals are prompted by a growing concern among state regulators, lawmakers, economic developers and business officials that a greater and more reliable supply of natural gas is needed to help fuel North Carolina's economic growth, especially in rural areas of the state, where 38 counties have no gas service.

"On several occasions, North Carolina has been eliminated from further consideration by potential new businesses because of the unavailability of natural gas," said C. Douglas Culbreth, director of the Energy Division of the N.C. Department of Commerce. "We believe that the additional natural gas pipeline currently under consideration by N.C. Natural Gas Corp. would have a significant impact on economic development in the eastern part of the state."

King Henry VIII of England divorced his fourth wife, Anne of Cleves, in 1540.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Mall Is Asset, Not Liability

Supporters of downtown revitalization are understandably anxious to improve development prospects in the area. Nevertheless one of the possibilities that the Downtown Greenville Association has mentioned is very questionable.

The association is considering whether the Evans Street mall should be maintained or returned to its former function as a street. In other words, should the mall be demolished and the right-of-way used for vehicular traffic.

The association has made no decision on this issue which it says it depends on how property along the mall develops.

Greenville should think a long time before it even considers removal of the mall with only a hope that that might improve business conditions along the two blocks. The mall is not responsible for the flight of retail business from the downtown area. It is more likely that retail business left because there was such a rapid growth in outlying retail development and business owners flocked to be in on the newer and more modern developments.

Granted that when the downtown mall was planned it was hoped that it would stem the flight of retail business to other areas. It was part of a larger plan which included the development of Reade Circle as a thoroughfare around the downtown area, improvements to alleyways and provision of public parking at strategic points in downtown Greenville.

The mall has been admired and criticized since it was built. Some feel its structures are too high. That, however, could be corrected at far less cost than its removal.

The mall — officially named the S. Eugene West Mall — can be an asset in selling the revitalization of the blocks that border it. It is public property and it should not be demolished merely on the hope that it might improve business conditions along its way. Given the absence of a strong and positive alternative plan, what is needed now is a revitalization plan that embraces the best features of the mall.

Downtown Greenville is not a disaster. There are some thriving retail establishments in the downtown area. There is also a solid development of financial institutions, offices and businesses around its perimeter. That should work its way toward the core and the mall can still be a great asset in bringing this about.

Robeson Hostage Incident Repugnant

A governor's task force will consider charges of alleged corruption and racism in Robeson County's judicial system, and well it should. The reason for doing so, however, should not be because two men held hostages there last week.

The idea of taking hostages is reprehensible in a Democratic society. The American nation has been outraged at such activities against our citizens in the Middle East and that outrage is fully justified within this nation's borders.

The culprits in such incidents always justify their actions by saying they had to do it to focus attention on some injustice. While the injustice may be real, it certainly is secondary to depriving innocent citizens of their liberty, implying threats to their lives and striking terror in the hearts of victims and their families. All that is as repugnant to a Democracy as anything can be.

Without doubt there is unrest in Robeson County concerning judicial and social issues. There, three races strive for equality under the law, and as in most situations where ethnic diversity is present, the needs of these groups collide. Charges of injustice and inequity such as the ones made by the aggressors in last week's incident are serious and require attention from a higher authority. It is disgraceful violent actions brought this need to light.

The governor's task force is entirely correct in fully investigating the complaints. But let the investigation focus on those citizens who remained within the bounds of the law. Their statements are the most credible in a society which treasures individual liberty and the right of citizens to live their lives without restraint.

The hostage-takers should be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. With their actions, the end did not justify the means.

If a democracy is built on anything, it is the concept of individual freedom. If our system works, that concept cannot be taken away by government, and certainly it should not be taken away by individuals acting illegally.

Don't Ask Meese, He Won't Recall

WASHINGTON — As far as anyone knows, Edwin Meese III is not suffering from premature senility. Nor is there evidence that he inherited tendencies toward early deterioration of mental capacity.

By all accounts, Meese's father was a man of crisp mind and sharp memory until advanced age. At 84, for instance, Edwin Meese Jr. vividly recalled details of the San Francisco earthquake that he had witnessed as a 10-year-old. "I will never forget the earthquake of '06," he said when interviewed after his son became President Reagan's counselor in 1981.

Neither is there anything in Meese's record as an undergraduate at Yale University, law school student, attorney in private practice, public prosecutor and legal counselor to then-governor Reagan that raises doubts about his ability or memory. On the contrary, his reputation is that of a man with a fondness for the intricacies of police work and with clear recall of cases in which he was involved.

Until he came to Washington, that is. Something has happened since.

Thanks to the wonders of the computer age, a search this week of Washington Post files since 1981 produced 30 pages of printouts containing fragments from 47 articles in

'Has the cumulative strain of wicked Washington robbed this bright man of his memory, causing him to forget so many crucial details? Only one thing is certain, mystery fans: Don't ask Ed Meese because he won't remember.'

which Meese's failure to remember critical questions figured prominently. It did not include the recent reports that prompted the search.

One involves his role in a proposed Iraqi pipeline plan, allegations of bribery surrounding it and possible incriminating language in a memo about it that he received two years ago from a close friend and adviser, E. Bob Wallach. On Monday, Meese told reporters, "I do not recall having read the specific words that have now mushroomed into controversy."

The next day, testifying at a conflict-of-interest trial here, his memory again failed. He did not have "a specific recollection" of various talks and meetings that led to indictment in the Wedtech affair of his longtime friend and former White House associate, Lyn Nofziger.

This fits a familiar pattern and refocuses attention on what might be called, in pulp mystery style, "The Curious Case of the Missing Memory of Ed Meese."

The computer record shows that Meese:

- Did not remember briefing the president about an important and controversial tax-exemption question early in the administration.

- Did not remember reported discussions with the FBI's director about possible organized-crime links concerning former labor secretary Raymond J. Donovan.

- Did not remember receiving several internal memos from Reagan campaign aides bearing on how they acquired copies of President Jimmy Carter's debate briefing book.

- Did not remember his wife, Ursula, receiving from a friend a $15,000 interest-free loan with which the Meeses purchased stock offered by a New York investment company, and hence did not include it as required on his financial-disclosure form.

- Did not remember receiving an official memorandum questioning the propriety of his accepting an Army Reserve promotion after he had retired from active reserve status long before coming to Washington.

- Did not remember receiving a letter from a California accountant who had arranged $60,000 in unsecured loans for him and was seeking a longer political-appointment term on the Postal Board of Governors.

In fact, Senate confirmation hearings when Meese was nominated as attorney general became a study in his forgetfulness. One Senate aide counted 79 times when Meese said he couldn't remember or didn't recall specifics on a wide range of issues — all in two days.

His memory lapses have continued throughout his tenure as the nation's chief law enforcement officer.

Testifying to the Iran-contra investigating committees last summer, Meese again demonstrated a singular inability to remember key details about his actions that other witnesses readily recalled. Even before that, he had established a record for forgetfulness among the remarkably forgetful cast of Iran-contra characters.

Don't Stampede NATO To Push INF

The Senate of the United States has begun hearings on the treaty signed in Washington last December by President Reagan and General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev to eliminate all intermediate-range missiles from the superpower arsenals. The debate will be difficult and far-ranging. Some senators will try to impose conditions on the treaty that could make it unacceptable to the Soviets or even harmful to the NATO alliance.

To deflect such efforts by conservatives, mainly in its own party, the Administration may unfortunately plant the seeds of the next major security crisis in the alliance. It is already pressing for an alliance commitment to modernize short-range nuclear weapons, including extending the range of the Lance battlefield missile so that it will reach deep into Warsaw Pact territory, and arming NATO nuclear-strike aircraft with stand-off missiles.

The administration understandably wants to show that removal of the intermediate-range missiles does not weaken NATO's nuclear deterrent, and to convince skeptical conservatives in the Senate that the alliance has the political will to deploy new nuclear weapons.

But in so doing, the administration is pushing NATO, especially West Germany, where most of these nuclear weapons are based, toward a very dangerous controversy about nuclear deterrence.

I just returned from talks on the INF treaty with senior allied and NATO leaders and American officials in Europe. From those talks, three things became clear:

- The allies solidly support speedy ratification of the INF treaty and would regard delay or ratification with unacceptable conditions a major political and military disaster for the alliance.

- The most serious issue question facing the alliance is what its next steps should be to maintain a political and military equilibrium in Europe. There is as yet no agreement, and indeed there is deep concern that the United States may push its partners into divisive and highly visible debate over force improvements — above all, nuclear modernization — before they have time to build public support.

- Despite political risks and financial constraints, our European partners are prepared to join us in improving conventional forces and even in carrying out some modernization of remaining nuclear forces. But they need to work out these decisions carefully, and in the context of an overall NATO strategy that combines further steps in arms control with force improvements.

Everyone in the alliance agrees that the next priority after the INF treaty is ratified is to conclude a START agreement cutting the strategic arsenals by 50 percent. Beyond that, there simply is no consensus on what to do next.

Several of the allies believe we should make negotiations on reductions in Soviet conventional-force advantages and a ban on all chemical weapons the next priorities of the alliance. They want a pause in any further moves on nuclear forces in Europe. The goal is a stable military balance at lower levels of both conventional and nuclear forces — not the denuclearization of NATO. Nuclear deterrence is an essential and integral part of NATO's flexible response strategy.

Our German partners have a somewhat different perspective on next steps. Most of the remaining nuclear weapons are on their territory — and more important, because of their short range most would explode on German soil if used. German public opinion is increasingly anti-nuclear. Thus, Germans from across the political spectrum believe that the alliance must move promptly into talks on the rest of nuclear weapons based in Europe.

Therein lies the extraordinarily sensitive alliance management issue facing the United States, to whom all the allies look for leadership.

What is called for now is restraint on all sides so that the alliance is not forced into a premature debate on what it should do next.

The administration should not pressure the Germans to agree immediately to specific programs to modernize short-range nuclear systems. The Germans, for their part, should not seek to rush the alliance into talks on reducing short-range nuclear systems.

And, we in the Senate, as we debate the INF treaty, should avoid the political temptation to link ratification to any specific actions by NATO on force modernization or arms control.

Let's allow NATO the time and deliberation it needs to work out a common strategy, under U.S. leadership, for its next steps. The alliance should not be stampeded by the short-term political needs of the Reagan administration, of presidential candidates seeking the limelight or of senators trying to show "leadership."

Patrick Leahy is the Democratic senator from Vermont.

Strength For Today

Once a year the police commissioner of New York City publishes a list of people who have disappeared during the preceding twelve months. Some years the list runs into the hundreds of names. It is amazing to realize that such a multitude of people simply disappear from their ordinary walks of life and are never heard from again.

What happens to these people? Doubtless many thousands, like the prodigal son, are in a far country.

Some fancied wrong, some unhappiness, some deep-seated aversion to some member of the family keeps thousands of people from the happiness they would have if they could only forget themselves and remember that nothing ever gives such real joy as purposeful living in the place they call home.

The golden windows in the distance are not made of gold. They are simply reflecting the sunlight in which we are standing.

All Nicaragua Needs For Peace Is Absence Of War

Analysis

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The news of the congressional rejection of further funding for the Contras was received in Central America with relief and guarded optimism. Relief because the House of Representatives said no to more war, and guarded optimism because the door is now open for a full-fledged move toward peace.

In short, for Central America, and most of all for Nicaragua, last Wednesday's vote represents a triumph of common sense and of pragmatism. Central America can breathe a sigh of relief in view of the symbolic setback that this vote represents for a policy based on a military solution, a policy that (in the words of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy) is dead and should be left that way.

Neither Nobel Prize-winning Oscar Arias Sanchez nor any other Central American president was willing to yield in the face of U.S. pressure to scuttle the Guatemala accords and join Washington in its efforts to isolate Managua. The mid-January presidential summit took place as scheduled in San Jose and produced a declaration reaffirming the validity of the accords signed in August.

The fact is, the White House had become the last holdout for those opposed to a negotiated solution to the Central American crisis, even in the face of opposition from its European and Latin American allies. In this sense, President Reagan's speech on the eve of the congressional vote made few, if any, converts. The same arguments that had been heard many times before were invoked again as if nothing had changed, either in Central America or Washington.

Now, everyone has come out a winner — at least everyone who believes that peace must be based on mutual understanding and respect. Certainly the people of the United States, consistently opposed to Contra aid in the polls, are aware that this is their victory. By breaking the pattern of isolation, which was inherent in the policy based on a military solution, the United States has opened up the opportunity to join with Central and Latin America, and with the new interest of Europe in the region, in the search for a negotiated solution.

In the most immediate sense,

'For Central America, and most of all for Nicaragua, last Wednesday's vote represents a triumph of common sense and of pragmatism. Central America can breathe a sigh of relief in view of the symbolic setback that this vote represents for a policy based on a military solution.'

Nicaragua is the party most benefited by the vote. Managua's intense diplomatic efforts of recent weeks had but one objective: to break the siege of war in order to open the possibility of democratic coexistence, both inside the country and with its neighbors, and ultimately with the United States. To this end, the Sandinistas put their political credibility on the line in exchange for the time and space, which has been denied by seven years of war, to show the progressive nature of their revolution.

President Daniel Ortega's visit to the pope and several European capitals, as well as Nicaragua's relations with Central and Latin America, came together to form a complex web of commitments that cannot be dismissed as "cosmetic," and even supporters of a normalization policy in Washington. The House vote should serve now as the first step in a change in course in Washington, and as confirmation of Managua's efforts to move the peace process forward. Press freedom, amnesty, a negotiated cease-fire, democratic reforms and internal dialogue have all been bolstered by this vote. They can be further strengthened if the will and conviction behind Congress' 219 no votes continues to develop.

The MIGs are in Moscow, and they don't have to come to Managua; foreign military advisers will leave Nicaragua; in a few months the Nicaraguan people will elect local authorities in countrywide municipal elections. ... All this is possible to the extent that Washington follows through on last Wednesday's vote.

The old dilemma, whether Nicaragua will democratize as a result of military pressure or as a result of space provided by negotiations, has temporarily been tilted in favor of the latter.

But the first warning signs of sliding back to military pressure have already appeared on the horizon: the Senate's resolution in favor of Contra aid; the declarations of Oliver North's cohorts in the private network that they are disposed to replace whatever aid Congress cuts off, and the CIA's plans for an emergency airlift to deliver what's left in the pipeline to the Contras before the Feb. 29 deadline.

Such contradictory signs from the north make it difficult for Central America to act decisively. And they pose difficulty for Nicaragua to follow through with confidence on the reforms that have been initiated.

Congress and the U.S. public must keep their intentions firm and clear.

Washington and Managua can cease to be symbols of confrontation. The first steppingstone has been laid, bringing closer the day when the two countries can become friends. And — why not? — even allies.

Xabier Gorostiaga, SJ, was director of economic planning for the government of Nicaragua from 1979-81. He is president of the Regional Institute of Social and Economic Research, based in Managua.

The Health Coverage Choices We Offer Your Company Put Us In A League By Ourselves.

There was a time, not long ago, when employers all over the state offered their employees one type of health coverage. Because basically that's all that was available.

But times have changed. Employers and employees have become more health conscious. And the people who provide health coverage have found new ways to deliver it.

But nobody has found more ways than Blue

Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina. We offer the widest variety of health coverage plans in the state. And when your employer signs up with us, he or she has the option of letting you choose the program that best suits your health care needs and the needs of your family. And you don't have to pick the same plan as the person working next to you. Because your needs and that person's needs may be completely different.

Here's what you get to choose from:

Traditional Group. Traditional Group is the plan you're probably most familiar with. It offers basic comprehensive coverage.

The Personal Care Plan or HMO of North Carolina.

Your company may

Reassurance

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — President Daniel Ortega's stern call for a sustained Sandinista political and military offensive after the House of Representatives vote against aid for the Nicaraguan rebels may have sounded dissonant in Washington, but it was in tune with the concerns of Sandinista supporters in Nicaragua.

After six months of playing mainly to an international audience and within hours of the vote Wednesday night, Ortega consulted the other eight top leaders of Nicaragua's ruling party and abruptly turned his attention to its followers. Many are restless after a string of government concessions under a regional peace accord signed Aug. 7.

Ortega's message was designed to refuel their fervor in preparation for a period when, despite the congressional vote, Sandinista leaders expect intensified fighting with the rebels, known as Contras, deepening economic crisis and sharper confrontation with opposition political parties.

"The vote doesn't change the situation, which remains critical... We can't let down our guard," Ortega warned in a speech Thursday.

A question during the press conference that followed Ortega's address from Mario Zelaya, reporter for the pro-government Voice of Nicaragua radio, echoed Sandinista resentments: "You say the situation is difficult. Well then why does the government continue to be so generous? Why does Nicaragua have to give so much when other Central American countries are still being used in the war against us?"

In his speech Ortega accused El Salvador and Honduras harboring contra military operations.

Sandinista predictions of bloodier warfare were confirmed within hours after Ortega's midday appearance when contras ambushed a truck carrying civilian passengers, killing 16 and wounding 16.

During the tense weeks before the House vote, reports circulated in Managua of a power struggle between Ortega and other, more radical members of the nine-man Sandinista National Directorate. In fact, the House vote was a major vindication for a survival strategy for the Sandinistas' eight-year-old revolution reportedly favored by Daniel Ortega and his brother, Defense Minister Gen. Humberto Ortega within the National Directorate.

The Ortegas, with the sometimes troubled approval of the other Sandinista comandantes, have moved on two tracks. The president exercises diplomacy trying to control any U.S. military threat through negotiation. His brother oversees a massive Soviet-supported military buildup of both anti-guerrilla and conventional forces to guarantee the government's defense in case diplomacy fails.

The concessions required by Daniel Ortega's initiatives, and the massive spending Humberto Ortega needs to sustain 80,000 regular soldiers and tens of thousands of reservists impinge on projects of other comandantes who would like the government to have tighter political control or make more socialist reforms.

One high Sandinista official said recently the more serious gap arose between the top comandantes and Sandinista party militants, estimated to number about 30,000, and tens of thousands members of grass-roots organizations sponsored by the party.

Many of the revolutionary rank-and-file were indignant about Ortega's announcements Nov. 5 and at a Jan. 16 regional summit in San Jose, Costa Rica, that led to face-to-face cease-fire talks with the contras. A fundamental tenet of Sandinista ideology is that the contras are US-paid mercenaries who cannot be legitimate counterparts in a political negotiation.

Sandinista women's organizations have also lobbied hard against freeing from jail an estimated 2,200 former members of the National Guard of the late dictator Anastasio Somoza. The peace accords signed Aug. 7 in Guatemala call for a broad amnesty for political prisoners.

What Ortega offered his disgruntled followers Thursday was a reassurance that Sandinista leaders have not been lulled into trusting their principal enemy, the United States.

Martin Aides Meet Indians To Begin Robeson Study

RALEIGH (AP) — Two American Indians who took hostages at a Lumberton newspaper last week have held their first meeting with aides to Gov. Jim Martin to discuss allegations of corruption in Robeson County's criminal justice system.

The officials traveled to the federal prison at Butner for the 80-minute meeting with Eddie Hatcher, Timothy Jacobs and their attorneys, said Phil Kirk, Martin's chief of staff. The defendants are being held without bond at the prison.

"We spent most of our time at the first meeting building up rapport and trust among all the parties, and we frankly did not get into a lot of specifics today," Phil Kirk, Martin's chief of staff, said Monday. "Mr. Hatcher did most of the talking. For people who committed an unreasonable act last week, they were very calm and reasonable today. They ...

apparently just want to be listened to.

"We had a candid exchange and will meet again," Kirk said.

Kirk, one of three officials Martin ordered to look into the defendants' complaints, had said earlier Monday that the meeting would be held sometime this week. Kirk refused then to give the time or location for "security reasons."

"It is such a volatile situation ... that we have got to be security-conscious about the people and the issues," Kirk said in a telephone interview.

In a related development, a federal grand jury is preparing to review evidence from the Feb. 1 siege at the Robesonian newspaper in which up to 20 people were held hostage.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Kieran Shanahan said he would take the case against Hatcher and Jacobs before a grand jury this week — probably today. The jury will be convened at U.S. District Court in Fayetteville, Shanahan said.

Kirk, who negotiated the agreement with Hatcher that ended the hostage crisis, said the Martin administration was determined to keep its promise to investigate fully all of the hostage takers' allegations.

Witnesses said Hatcher and Jacobs, wielding sawed-off shotguns, invaded the newspaper office, took hostages and demanded to speak with Martin.

Hatcher and Jacobs said they were members of the Tuscarora faction of the Lumbee Indian tribe and were trying to call attention to what they called widespread corruption and racism in the local criminal justice system.

They released groups of hostages throughout the day. The ordeal ended 10 hours after it began when Hatcher and Kirk reached an agreement that called for creation of the task force.

The group consists of Kirk, general counsel Jim Trotter and Joe Dean, secretary of crime control and public safety.

Hatcher, 30, and Jacobs, 19, were charged with hostage-taking and weapons violations. Shanahan said the grand jury might be asked to consider additional charges but declined to say what they might be.

In tape recordings delivered to his friends and his mother before the hostage-taking, Hatcher said he was prepared to die if his demands were not met.

"We have to act now," Hatcher said in the tape. "We can't wait any longer. Time is running out."

Anger and bitterness dominate the tape delivered to John L. Godwin, the founder of the Concerned Citizens for a Better Government, and Connee Brayboy, the editor of Carolina Indian Voice.

"I, Eddie Hatcher, a Tuscarora Indian of Robeson County, Timothy Jacobs and others with us — members of the Robeson Indian Movement — hereby declare we shall no longer place our dwindling hope into peaceful means in which to seek and secure our God-given rights."

At the end of the tape, Hatcher says: "We do not wish the death of any hostage we now hold. We do not wish the experience of any untimely death."

"However, we are prepared — if necessary — to enforce the action we have demanded. So, should we meet death, we shall not meet death alone. We shall persevere."

Thelma Clark, Hatcher's mother, said she had no doubt her son's life was in danger and that was why he took hostages.

"I don't think Eddie's life was in danger — I know it, I know it," she said Monday.

"I hate that he had to take the route that he did to get attention. But I'm glad that he did because his life was in danger," said Mrs. Clark.

Mrs. Clark said she has asked Hatcher why he didn't simply leave Robeson County. "And he says, 'If I had left, I would have left all these other poor people down here in all this corruption and I just couldn't do it to them.'"

Hatcher, Mrs. Clark said, "has the most loving, giving heart of any human I've ever known. He's always wanting to do something for somebody, give somebody something. I've known Eddie to take the last dollar out of his pocket and give it to somebody. And he's also intelligent."

Godwin said Hatcher never talked about violence before Monday.

"I think what happened is that Eddie came to a crossroad — and every sign he saw said desperation."

Mrs. Brayboy said that's what the tape seems to reveal.

"Eddie was sane," she said. "I believed everything he told me Monday. But he just cracked under pressure."

Reagan Gets In Political Plugs For Martin, Helms

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM (AP) — President Reagan included no political events in his two-hour visit to North Carolina, but he did manage to work in a boost for the state's two top Republican officeholders.

"You've got a champion governor in Jim Martin and a champion senator in Jesse Helms," Reagan said Monday before launching into his speech at an anti-drug conference at Duke University. The statement drew a mixture of cheers and boos from 7,000 people packed into Cameron Indoor Stadium.

Reagan did not mention Democratic Sen. Terry Sanford, a former Duke president.

Martin is in a tough re-election fight with Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and Helms' third term expires in 1990, when he may face a rematch with former Gov. Jim Hunt.

Martin, who sat beside Reagan on the platform, made no overtly political statements. But the governor spoke at length about his administration's anti-drug initiatives.

"This is not a campaign appearance but for Governor Martin to appear with the president on such an important subject as the reduction of drugs in the workplace and society in general cannot do anything but help," said Phil Kirk, Martin's chief of staff.

Several other Republican candidates showed up for Reagan's speech, saying it never hurts to be under the same roof with the president.

"Ronald Reagan's still well loved by the American people," said Sam Wilson, chairman of the North Carolina Parole Commission and a GOP candidate for state attorney general.

Wilson said he did not expect to reap enormous political benefit from attending Reagan's speech on drug abuse in the workplace. But he said he hoped the presidential visit would help candidates with tough anti-drug platforms.

Ken Udy, executive director of the state Democratic Party, said Reagan and the GOP had done nothing to solve the drug problem except tell people to "just say no."

"The administration says that stopping drug traffic into this country is absolutely vital," Udy said in a statement. "Yet in his budgets, President Reagan has proposed cutting funds to those agencies whose responsibility it is to stop the flow of drugs."

Reagan's coattails were a major factor in the state GOP's best showing of the 20th century. Martin defeated Democrat Rufus Edmisten, Helms beat Hunt and Republicans won five House seats and 50 legislative seats in 1984, when Reagan won re-election in a landslide.

But some observers say a plug from Reagan is not as valuable as it once was. They say he Iran-contra affair and the "lame-duck" syndrome that arises in the last year of any presidency have tarnished Reagan's luster.

In 1986, Reagan came to North Carolina several times to campaign for former Sen. Jim Broyhill. He lost to Sanford, who contended that Broyhill was acting as the president's alter ego without establishing his own identity.

Wilson, however, said Reagan was still a plus for Republicans.

"The fact that we didn't enjoy as much success as we'd have liked in '86 doesn't mean he didn't hep," Wilson said.

Kirk added, "I definitely think the magic is still there. I haven't seen any polls lately but we don't believe the president has lost his magic except perhaps with the Democrats in Congress."

Tom Fetzer, a Republican running against U.S. Rep. David Price in the 4th Congressional District, said Martin would gain the most from Reagan's visit to Duke. But Fetzer said most people will have forgotten the president's appearance by the November election.

Fetzer said he hoped Reagan would return for events that would be of greater political help to GOP candidates. "He's still the president of the United States and that's something."

Also on hand was Robert Orr, a Republican running to keep his seat on the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

"Obviously any time you're in the proximity of a president, it's valuable," Orr said. But he added, "Other than my wife and kid and one of my law clerks, I doubt that anybody will know I'm here."

IN THE STATE

Asbestos

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — An upcoming federal court trial in Greensboro could be the first product liability lawsuit to be tried involving a North Carolina school board against an asbestos company.

Attorneys for the Burlington City Board of Education said they are preparing for a June 13 jury trial in which they hope to recoup more than $6.5 million in claims against a New Jersey-based asbestos firm.

The asbestos industry had knowledge of dangers as early as the 1930s and 1940s and they suppressed it, Raleigh attorney Don Strickland said Monday following a closed meeting of the city education board.

U.S. Mineral Products Company Inc. will be the defendant. The city schools system originally filed the lawsuit July 13, 1984 — the summer the county spent $1.6 million removing asbestos from the ceilings of Cummings High School. The three-month project was the largest removal job in the state at the time.

Charged

YANCEYVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Caswell County man has been charged with first-degree murder in the stabbing death of his wife, Diane Dean Short Smith, 27.

Lorenzo Smith, 28, was being held without bond in the county jail. Mrs. Smith's body was found at her mobile home near Yanceyville early Sunday and Sheriff J.I. Smith said she was rendered about three hours later.

Challenge

RALEIGH (AP) — The Sierra Club's state chapter has written a letter to Gov. Jim Martin, taking issue with his comments about environmentalists' relationship with the General Assembly.

"I strongly urge you to take a chance and to work with environmentalists to develop legislation and policies to solve some of North Carolina's pressing environmental problems," Kim Martin Shaffer said in a letter to Martin.

Ms. Shaffer said in her letter that "the 1987 General Assembly appropriated the full amount of the funds that you requested for expansion."

President Recalls Thompson Addiction

DURHAM (AP) — President Reagan, citing the problems of basketball star David Thompson, has called for a crackdown on drugs in the workplace and mandatory drug testing.

"After three seasons of brilliant play, he was the highest-paid player in the NBA (National Basketball Association). Then he got into drugs," Reagan said of Thompson, a North Carolina State University star who signed a professional contract worth more than $2 million.

Thompson's game deteriorated and he became injury- and accident-prone, and then started showing up late for practice.

Eventually, he was traded and cut. "Two years ago he filed for bankruptcy — millions and a brilliant career squandered on drugs," said Reagan. "Today, David Thompson is pulling his life together — we all pray for his success." He quoted Thompson as saying about drugs: "Never try it. It's easy to get involved with and it's very hard to get out of."

"The real answer must come from taking the customer away from the drugs, not the other way around," Reagan said in a speech at an anti-drug conference at Duke University Monday.

Reagan's appearance sparked a noisy demonstration by upward of 200 opponents of his Central America policy.

His armored limousine passed within 10 to 15 feet of shouting protesters bearing a large placard reading "Terrorist Not Welcome" and carrying signs reading, "Contra thugs peddle drugs" and "Just say no to Contra aid." A line of highway patrolmen stood in front of the crowd, blocking its access to the roadway.

Reagan also met the Duke University basketball team, ranked No. 2 this week, and posed for a picture with them before he entered the stadium to speak to a conference on drug abuse in the workplace.

Reagan, who once played Notre Dame football legend George Gipp in a movie, referred to Sunday's game in which Duke beat the Fighting Irish.

"I know they had a pretty fine week and yesterday it seems that somebody didn't win one for the Gipper," Reagan said.

Seated on the stage with Reagan were Duke President H. Keith H. Brodie, Gov. Jim Martin and David Flaherty, state human resources secretary.

Five Die In Mobile Home Fire

MARION, N.C. (AP) — A family of five was wiped out when fire swept through their mobile home despite the efforts of a neighbor who grabbed one victim through a window but was driven back by the flames.

Josephine Pittman, who has owned the Mobile Village Trailer Park with her husband, Ted, since 1974, said her husband tried to rescue the husband, wife and three children trapped in the trailer.

"My husband got dressed ... he threw his hat on on the way out and he started hollering for Pud. ... He broke a window. He felt somebody in the window but couldn't get them out because it was too high off the ground to get any leverage."

He continued his efforts, but flames surged through the window, she said.

The McDowell County Sheriff's Department and the State Bureau of Investigation are investigating the cause.

The sheriff's department identified the victims as Randy "Pud" Patterson, 35; Martha Patterson, 31; and their three children, Tracie, 1; Rachel, 14; and Jessica, 6.

Mrs. Pittman said she was talking to her son on the telephone when she thought she heard a noise on the back porch. Now she believes she may have heard the fire at the Pattersons' mobile home. She called the fire department.

The sheriff's department said Deputy Elmer Macopson was the scene at about 1:50 a.m. after noticing "the sky was lighter than normal" near the mobile home.

The Marion Fire Department responded at about 1:56 a.m. and put out the fire enough to enter the mobile home and make a rescue attempt, said Marion Fire Chief Arthur Edwards. But he said the heat and smoke were so intense that "there was no hope for occupant survival."

Bork Says Kennedy Painted 'Fascist' Nightmare

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer
GROVE CITY, Pa. (AP) — Robert H. Bork came out swinging in his first public appearances since resigning from the U.S. Court of Appeals, saying Sen. Edward M. Kennedy "painted a nightmare of fascist repression and attributed it to me."
Bork said Monday night that his rejection by the Senate for a seat on the U.S. Supreme Court was engineered by the Massachusetts Democrat in "a long-planned and carefully calculated assault by a skillful politician."
Bork addressed more than 2,500 cheering students at Grove City College, a conservative Presbyterian school known for a 1984 Supreme Court decision narrowing federal influence over private colleges.

The conservative jurist said he left the District of Columbia appeals bench Friday so he could speak without restraint about the politics surrounding the Senate's 58-42 vote against him on Oct. 23.
"Even for a political campaign, it set record lows in mendacity, brutality and intellectual vulgarity," Bork said. "Kennedy painted a nightmare of fascist repression and attributed it to me."
Bork said that Kennedy, as chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, used his contacts with organized labor and Southern black leaders to mobilize liberals against him.

Although his record as a judge and previously as the U.S. Justice Department's chief trial lawyer showed his support of civil and women's rights, Bork said, "Those facts were obscured and millions of blacks were told I was their enemy."
"The claim that I am hostile to black civil rights was a lie," Bork said. Kennedy was traveling Monday night and was unavailable for comment, spokeswoman Melody Miller said in Washington.

Bork said media coverage of his nomination fight was mostly limited to "the propaganda war against me."
"No one in the White House, or anywhere else for that matter, troubled to respond," Bork said.
He went no further in criticizing the White House staff, which some of his supporters harshly accused of inadequate lobbying and poor strategy.
Last week, President Reagan's third choice for the court, Anthony M. Kennedy, was confirmed 97-0 for the seat.
Speaking earlier Monday in Washington in his first news conference since the Senate rejected his nomination, Bork said he and the Reagan administration were caught off guard by an intense advertising campaign opposing his confirmation.

In his evening appearance, Bork received a standing ovation from an overflow crowd of students and professors at his first stop on a lecture tour as a member of the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, a conservative think tank.
The 2,100-student college 70 miles north of Pittsburgh won a landmark case in 1984 when the Supreme Court ruled that only specific programs, and not the entire college, are subject to governmental policies and procedures when students receive federal aid.

The college, "as a matter of principle," in 1977 had refused to sign a compliance form declaring it did not discriminate against women.
The Senate passed a civil rights bill Jan. 28 that would subject entire institutions to governmental regulation with any federal aid.
Bork did not comment on the Supreme Court decision and said he was not familiar with the legislation.
Some opponents said Bork would vote to negate the 1973 ruling legalizing abortion. Questioned on abortion Monday, Bork again refused to say how he would have voted.

Mecham Out Acting Governor Settles Into Work

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Acting Gov. Rose Mofford, in her first day on the job, put a key aide to impeached Gov. Evan Mecham on leave, and called for the Legislature to enact a holiday honoring the Rev. Martin Luther King.
Mecham, whose troubles started after he rescinded a King holiday last year, expressed concern Monday that his impeachment trial would be conducted under less than stringent rules of evidence. But he said he expects to win his job back by clearing himself in a criminal fraud trial and by winning a recall election May 17.
"I look at this strictly as an interim affair," the Republican Mecham said at a news conference after he turned over power to Mrs. Mofford, a Democrat who is secretary of state.
"I expect to continue to be your governor when this present moment of confusion is over," said Mecham.
In one of her first acts as acting governor, Mrs. Mofford put Department of Administration director Max Hawkins on paid leave and said he may be offered another assignment.
Hawkins, responsible for drafting Mecham into the 1986 campaign, was considered by some to be the cause of many of Mecham's problems.
State personnel director Alberto Gutier also said he was told he would be given a new assignment in a few days.

Mrs. Mofford said she would like the Legislature to vote a Martin Luther King holiday for Arizona, adding, "This has been a national symbol of our disunity."
Mecham last year canceled a King holiday for state workers, saying that former Gov. Bruce Babbitt had declared it illegally, without legislative action.
Mecham was impeached by the House on Friday and is expected to go on trial in the Senate on Feb. 22. On Monday, the House voted 42-18 to approve 23 specific charges against the governor. The list of charges was sent to the Senate, which is expected to organize as an impeachment court Thursday.
A copy of proposed rules for the Senate trial, obtained by The Associated Press, showed the verdict would be based on whether evidence was "clear and convincing" rather than the tougher, "beyond a reasonable doubt standard" used in criminal trials.
Told of the draft rules, Mecham said he considered the lower standard unfair, and added "I've had the feeling I have almost no rights."
The House has accused Mecham of concealing a $350,000 campaign loan, misusing $80,000 from the governor's protocol fund by lending it to his auto dealership, and trying to thwart an investigation of an alleged death threat by a state official.

He also faces a criminal trial in April on six felony counts of failing to report the $350,000 loan.
Mecham reiterated Monday his assertions that he has broken no laws that should require him to give up the governorship.
Also Monday, Mrs. Mofford met with four former governors — Democrats Sam Goddard and Raul Castro and Republicans Jack Williams and Paul Fannin — and said afterward they had advised her to take an active role in running the state.
Mrs. Mofford told reporters she wants to be "a healing governor, forceful governor and one that will act."
Mecham said later, "I don't know how anybody can talk much about healing when these kinds of events have happened. ... I don't think we can have a healing process until after May 17."

Satellite Tracks Mock Missiles In SDI Testing

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A 6,000-pound research satellite tracked 15 mock Soviet nuclear missiles around the globe today in a major test for the "Star Wars" plan to build a missile shield in space.
Seven sensors on the satellite and hundreds at ground stations gathered data that could help determine if it is feasible to build a split-second response system in space and whether it could distinguish a real missile from a decoy.
The $250 million exercise began Monday evening with the launch of a two-stage Delta rocket from Cape Canaveral. The entire second stage shot into orbit more than 250 miles high. Within four hours, it had deployed all 15 simulated Soviet rockets and began the first of 200 tracking maneuvers like those that would be needed for an orbiting Star Wars battle station.
After the first few hours, officials said they were elated with results. They promised to provide preliminary results of the complex mission after it ended today but said it would be 10 days before all the data could be assembled.
"We will have a suite of sensors looking at 15 objects over many orbits," Gordon Smith, deputy director of the Strategic Defense Initiative Office, said at a news conference. "Altogether we're very, very pleased with the start."

The office said four of the payloads contain motors that were to be fired to simulate a Soviet rocket as it climbs off a launch pad. The 11 others were to play the roles of Soviet missiles coasting through space before releasing their multiple nuclear warheads.
Lasers, radars, optical devices and infrared and ultraviolet sensors were to try to follow the payloads against varying backgrounds such as land, ocean, horizon and space.
"One of the things that's most important to us is what we refer to as target characterization," said Col. Ray Ross, director of the program's kinetic energy directorate. "Exactly what does the object look like, how does it behave, what can we expect to see against varying backgrounds. ... This data will build the data base on how the Strategic Defense Initiative System will observe objects in space."

The goal of the flight was "to obtain data critical for development of major elements of a layered defense system," a statement said.
Myers came within 300 to 500 feet of the president's military helicopter and wandered over Reagan's "Rancho del Cielo," about 120 miles northwest of Los Angeles. The area is off-limits to air traffic when the president is there.
Myers told Secret Service and Federal Aviation Administration agents he was searching the airplane cabin for a lost contact lens. He also said he didn't realize he was in prohibited airspace.
He admitted a day later that he lied about the lens.
In addition to 10 years in prison, Myers could be ordered to pay a $500,000 fine.

Pilot Convicted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An Army private who lied about why he flew into restricted airspace over President Reagan's ranch has been found guilty of making false statements and could face up to 10 years in prison.
Ralph William Myers, 33, of Fort Lewis, Wash., was convicted of two counts of making false statements in a ruling Monday by U.S. District Judge Manuel Real. Sentencing was scheduled March 7.
Myers was convicted of lying to officials about the reason he strayed into prohibited airspace in his rented plane last Aug. 13, the day the president was heading to his ranch north of Santa Barbara.

Tests Of Soft Drinks Show No Radiation But Production Halts

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — No radiation has been found so far in samples of soft drinks, baby formula, beer and other food and cosmetic products from 15 plants where microscopic particles of radioactive polonium leaked from a widely used industrial device, officials say.
The Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Food and Drug Administration ordered testing of product samples from the plants over the weekend in an escalating investigation of the widespread failure of airgun-like devices manufactured by 3M Corp. to eliminate static electricity.
"The good news to date is that there is no evidence of contamination," FDA Commissioner Frank Young said Monday. "There is no significant hazard likely to be present with any of the products."

Despite the assurances, the Arizona Health Department sought a recall Monday of Coca-Cola products and some baby formulas canned in Arizona.
With some 2,000 of the 3M devices in use among 500 companies in the food, beverage, pharmaceutical and cosmetic industries, the list of plants where leaks of radioactive polonium occurred "will continue to grow," said Hugh Thompson, director of the NRC's Office of Nuclear Materials Safety.
NRC Chairman Lando Zech said "it may well be necessary to issue an expanded order" directing inspections at hundreds of other food and beverage facilities as the extent of the radiation leaks becomes better known.
So far, officials have uncovered leaked radioactivity in excess of NRC reporting guidelines at 25 plants, 15 of them involving food, beverage, pharmaceutical or cosmetic products.

Production was stopped over the weekend and remained halted Monday at Coca-Cola plants in Arizona, South Carolina and Florida, at a Block Drugs dental products plant in New Jersey and at two Ross Laboratories baby formula plants in Arizona and Virginia.
Coca-Cola Curtis, a spokesman at Atlanta, said the three locally owned bottling plants in Phoenix, Pensacola, Fla., and Bishopville, Calif., were scheduled to reopen today.
Richard Hamilton, an official for Ross Laboratories' parent company, Abbott Laboratories Inc. of Chicago, said its baby formula plants at Casa Grande, Ariz., and Alta Vista, Va., expect to resume shipping "very soon — as soon as we get the test confirming there is no product contamination."

Arab Unrest In Occupied Areas Is Spilling Over Into Jerusalem

By MASHA HAMILTON
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Arab unrest has spilled from the occupied territories into this holy city, placing more and more neighborhoods off limits to Israelis and creating a geography of fear.

Many Israelis say they are reluctant to travel through Arab neighborhoods or the Old City's Moslem quarter, where on a recent day Arab shops were shut in a protest strike and only the footsteps of a lone Palestinian woman echoed through the winding streets.

For Jews and Arabs, the line between living as neighbors and enemies in Jerusalem seems to grow thinner each day.

Last week, 119 Arab disturbances disrupted daily life in the capital, compared with 59 the week before, Nachum Mendel, Policy Ministry spokesman, told The Associated Press.

"There are more and more 'no go' areas in Jerusalem," said Meron Benvenisti, former deputy mayor who has lived for 17 years in the predominantly Arab neighborhood of Abu Tor.

Mayor Teddy Kollek, who has struggled to maintain peace in Jerusalem, is discouraged. "Coexistence between Jews and Arabs has collapsed," he said during a tour of a refugee camp within city limits that was under curfew.

Asked about Jerusalemites who fear attacks from their Arab neighbors, he said: "I also am afraid. The situation has changed in a fundamental way."

Arab attackers have hurled firebombs and rocks at Jewish homes in the Old City and Jerusalem neighborhoods and have stoned Israeli cars on major thoroughfares. The activists also cut the central water main to two districts.

Tear gas has been used almost daily in the last week in Jerusalem to try to quell demonstrations. Arab protesters wielding iron bars and clubs have taken over some neighborhoods at night.

To restore calm, officials have clamped curfews on two Arab districts and shut Arab schools this week, the first such moves since Israel captured east Jerusalem in the 1967 Middle East war.

In addition, extra troops patrol round-the-clock in Jerusalem. Police with binoculars and rifles are stationed daily on rooftops overlooking the Old City.

Nevertheless, many of Jerusalem's 340,000 Jews, who live in the disputed capital with 135,000

Arabs, say they fear the measures are not enough.

"Jews and Arabs in Jerusalem have long been neighbors and enemies at the same time," said Benvenisti, who publishes annual studies of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip funded by the Ford and Rockefeller foundations.

"But now the twilight war is moving into the daylight," he said. "I feel there is a serious threat to my family. And if anyone touches my 17-year-old daughter, all my liberal feelings will fly out the window."

For their part, many Jerusalem Arabs say they feel both a closer allegiance with Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza participating in "al intefadeh," or "the uprising," and a growing independence from Israel.

"You Israelis imagined all the time that east Jerusalemites were very different from West Bankers," the English-language Jerusalem Post quoted one Arab journalist as saying. "Now we have proved to you that we are, after all, part of the West Bank."

Jerusalem's Arab merchants began striking a month ago to protest in solidarity with Palestinians living in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, opening only for three hours each afternoon.

Knots of young Arab men stand on street corners talking quietly and watching to make sure all shops remain closed.

Elderly women still squat on the sidewalk on Salah Aldin Street, east Jerusalem's main shopping street, selling herbs or fruit. And a few vendors sell newspapers, including the left-wing weekly Geshet, or "Bridge," which advocates coexistence between Jews and Arabs.

On the Temple Mount, known to the Arabs as Harim es-Sharif, where the Dome of the Rock and al Aqsa mosque stand, a tour guide named Ahmed argued with a visiting Israeli from the Golan Heights as a reporter listened.

"Israel is the strongest state in the Middle East," said Ahmed, who was a tour guide in Jerusalem when Jordan controlled the mount more than 20 years ago. "But now Israel behaves as a bully. Why do you flex your muscles against the weak? Why do you beat the Palestinians?"

"You start the story from the end, not the beginning," responded the Israeli, Uri. "We didn't start beating until you started throwing stones. That's what made us crazy."

Ahmed and Uri confined their argument with words and parted with wry handshakes. But Mayor Kollek fears such conversations between Arabs and Jews are becoming less and less possible within the borders of his city.

"A serious thing has happened to us," Kollek said. "I'm sure there will be deep scars even when this is over."

DEA Cited Noriega As Jurors Indicted

By JOAN MOWER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While federal prosecutors were indicting Panamanian strongman Manuel Antonio Noriega last week on drug charges, the head of the Drug Enforcement Administration was praising Panama for cracking down on drug traffickers.

"The DEA has had a long and generally positive working relationship with the government of Panama in our joint efforts against drug trafficking, crop eradication, interdiction and money laundering," DEA administrator John C. Lawn said in a statement released Friday.

"We intend for this close and cooperative relationship to continue with our Panamanian counterparts," Lawn said.

The statement came as Lawn's Justice Department colleagues in the U.S. attorney's office in Miami returned one of the most extraordinary drug indictments in U.S. history — charging Panama's leader with selling his office to protect cocaine traffickers and allowing them to launder money in his country.

Noriega, who has called the criminal charges against him slanderous, is head of Panama's Defense Forces and has been the dominant political force in Panama since 1983.

Prosecutors claim Noriega's illegal activities have been under way since at least 1981.

Lawn's statement said the indictments against Noriega and members of Colombia's notorious Medellin cocaine cartel were the result of a "long and complex" DEA investigation. "I have no additional comment," he said.

At the same time, he called for continued cooperation between the DEA and Panamanian officials, but his language indicated he sought to protect contacts between DEA agents and Panamanians not named in the indictment against Noriega.

"DEA has an office in Panama and the investigator-to-investigator relationship between our officers and theirs is extremely close," he said.

Lawn was not immediately available to comment on the statement Monday, his office said.

Justice Department spokesman John Russell said he had not read Lawn's statement.

Peter Smith, a spokesman for Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said he had not seen the statement, but added: "There's obviously politicking going on."

Lawn's statement coincided with the release of a book by the Panamanian Embassy entitled, "Panama — 16 Years of Struggle Against Drug Traffic."

U.S. To Show Flag

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will conduct naval exercises off the South Korean coast next fall during the Olympic Games in Seoul as "just a little overt warning" to North Korea against disrupting the games, an administration official says.

Administration officials, who agreed to discuss the matter only if not identified, refused on Monday to characterize the moves as a military buildup.

The presence of at least one and perhaps two aircraft carriers off the Korean peninsula during the games will be "just a little overt warning that we're watching them," the one source said.

The administration believes the recent announcement by the Soviet Union that its athletes will participate in the games has reduced the possibility that North Korea will take any military action during the contests, the sources said.

"But we don't mind sending a little reinforcing signal, and the South Koreans would like it, too," one official said.

Under the current plan, at least one aircraft carrier and possibly two will move into the Sea of Japan along with escorting warships for exercises during the games, which are scheduled for late September and early October, the sources said.

Teen-Ager, Older Arab Killed As West Bank Violence Flares

JERUSALEM (AP) — A Palestinian teen-ager was shot to death in a nighttime clash with Israeli soldiers, and villagers claimed a Jewish settler fatally shot an Arab man with a submachine gun, news reports said today.

Latif Abu Khalil, 16, was fatally shot by Israeli soldiers during a protest Monday night in Atteel, a West Bank village north of Tulkarem, the Arab-run Palestine Press Service reported. The army said it was checking the report.

In another West Bank village, Kafr Qaddum, a Palestinian was killed Monday. The news agency identified the victim as Abdel Basit Abdullah, 25, and quoted villagers as saying he was shot by a Jewish settler.

The army confirmed the death, but did not say whether a settler had been involved. It said security forces were not in the area at the time.

The Jerusalem Post quoted witnesses as saying they recognized the assailant as a Jewish settler from nearby Kedumim. They said he drove into the village in a blue Volkswagen van accompanied by another man, who carried a pistol.

Witnesses told the Post the driver got out and opened fire with a submachine gun when he encountered a roadblock set up to block Arab laborers from going to work in Israel.

An army spokeswoman said the case was turned over to police for investigation. The Nablus District police spokesman was not in his office to provide details about the incident, and National Police refused comment.

An official who answered the phone at the Jewish settlement of Kedumim said he knew nothing about the shooting.

Army officials have warned that confrontations between Arab protesters and the West Bank's 65,000 Jewish settlers could further escalate tensions.

"If there's something that worries me very much, it's that Jewish residents will take it upon themselves to punish or provoke (Arab protesters)," Maj. Gen. Amram Mitzna, the West Bank's army commander, told Israel radio Monday. "It's the most dangerous thing in the field today."

According to U.N. figures, 50 Palestinians have died at the hands of Israelis, most shot by soldiers, since disturbances began in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip on Dec. 8. The figure did not include the reported death in Atteel. The unrest began when rumors spread that a traffic accident that killed four Arabs had been planned to avenge the slaying of an Israeli merchant.

Bernard Mills, the British director of the U.N. Relief and Works Agency in the Gaza Strip, claimed Monday that soldiers on Sunday beat Iyad Mohammed Aql, 15, who was later found dead, and Aql's cousin, who suffered a broken arm.

The army disputed the allegations, saying no soldiers were in the area and the family took the body for burial before an autopsy could be performed.

Kremlin Says No More

Gorbachev Says Soviets To Leave Afghans May 15

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev announced that a Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan will begin May 15 if U.N.-sponsored peace talks reach a settlement within five weeks. He said the pullout could be completed within 10 months.

The Soviet leader also stressed Monday that the Kremlin wants no say in who governs Afghanistan after the departure of its estimated 115,000 troops, who have been battling anti-communist Afghan guerrillas for more than eight years.

The White House called the speech a positive development, but said it would wait to see whether any conditions were attached to the proposed withdrawal.

It was the clearest indication yet that Gorbachev is moving rapidly to extricate his country from the conflict he has termed a "bleeding wound."

The mediator of the U.N.-sponsored peace talks, Diego Cordovez, said today in Pakistan that the next, and possibly final, round of talks will begin March 2 in Geneva. He said the time frame of a Soviet pullout, which would be overseen by United Nations military observers, has virtually been agreed upon.

Cordovez told reporters in Islamabad that only logistical details of the Soviet army's departure remain to be solved. He has spent the past 20 days shuttling between Islamabad and Kabul, the Afghan capital.

"The Afghans themselves will decide the final status of their country among nations," Gorbachev said in a statement read on national television by an announcer. Afghanistan's future "is none of our business," he said.

The remarks left the future of Afghanistan's Marxist president, Najib, in serious doubt. Foreign observers believe Najib, 41, won't be able to retain his grip on power if he is deprived of Soviet military might.

Najib also went on radio and television in Afghanistan on Monday to announce the timetable for Soviet withdrawal.

According to Gorbachev, the Soviets won't demand that Afghanistan be neutral and non-aligned, phrasing that was once standard when Kremlin officials spoke of their neighbor's future.

The Kremlin sent troops, tanks and military hardware into Afghanistan in December 1979, and presided over the replacement of one Marxist ruler by another. The intervention has been a major irritant in U.S.-Soviet relations and has soured Kremlin ties with many Moslem and Third World countries.

Couple Speaks Vows Saturday

CHERRY POINT — Nina-Gail Stone and John Dorsey Savage Jr. were united in marriage Saturday in the Memorial Chapel at the Marine Corps Air Station in a double-ring ceremony. Lt. Cmdr. George D. Cooper conducted the ceremony at 11 a.m.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Barber Terrell Stone of Havelock. Mr. and Mrs. John Dorsey Savage of Richmond, Va., are parents of the bridegroom.

A program of organ music was presented by Richard Howard of Greenville.

Mary Ann Stone Boone of Atlanta was honor attendant for her sister. Bridesmaids were Susan McDevett and Sharon Orosz, both of Greenville, and Sharon Wheeler Revell of Atlantic Beach.

David Coburn of Goldsboro was best man. Alexander Stone Boone of Atlanta, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. Ushers were Owen Bradford Boone Jr. of Atlanta, brother-in-law of the bride, John Von Driska of Cherry Point, Tod Williams of Farmville and Samuel Mecum of Cherry Point.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of chantilly lace over taffeta with a Victorian neckline accented with re-embroidered lace and seed pearls. The Victorian sleeves were enhanced with a satin bow and ended in a point over the hands. The full skirt had a brushed hemline edged in re-embroidered lace which extended into a semi-cathedral-length train. The gown was highlighted with a drop waist, satin bow and streamers. Her walking-length veil of bridal illusion, accented with scattered pearls with a rolled edge, was attached to a cap of schiffli lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of silk white roses and peach rosebuds with a touch of greenery.

The mother of the bride wore a three-quarter-length-sleeved tea-length gown of apricot silk chantilly lace over satin. It was accented with a matching drop waist satin ribbon and bow. She carried a white rose with baby's breath and greenery, tied by peach satin. The bridesmaids wore tea-length gowns of apricot silk chantilly lace over satin with V necklines, full skirt accented by a peplum and a satin cummerbund and bow. They carried single white roses with baby's breath and greenery tied by peach ribbon.

The mother of the bride wore a tea-length gown of emerald chiffon over satin with a high neckline. She wore a wrist corsage of white roses touched with peach. The mother of the bridegroom wore a tea-length gown of fuschia with a belted waistline. She wore a corsage of white roses.

The reception was given by the bride's parents in the ballroom at the Staff NCO Club at Cherry Point. Music was presented by Contrast, led by Joe Distefano.

After a wedding trip to the Bahama Islands, the couple will live in Dothan, Ala.

The bride attended Pitt Community College and Florida State University. She was a marketing representative for the Credit Bureau of Greenville. She will be employed by the Credit Bureau of Dothan after relocation. The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina University and Officer Candidate School. He is a lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

Woman Dreads Admitting Tossing Money

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our son has been very kind to handle our retirement nest egg. Several days before "Bloody Monday," he advised me to close out an account, send a bank wire for $8,000 to a very conservative fund, and keep $2,000 cash just in case of a possible bank closing. I did as he recommended.

We aren't accustomed to having much cash around the house, so I put the envelope with the $2,000 in a wastebasket until I could think of a safe hiding place. You guessed it. I thoughtlessly emptied the wastebasket in the trash! I didn't realize what I had done until the next morning. I didn't call the garbage people because I figured it was hopeless; besides, I didn't want to advertise the fact that we kept so much cash in the house.

Shortly afterward, a letter appeared in your column about the stash of gold coins hidden in a shoe box and accidentally thrown out.

Recently our son wrote and instructed me to deposit the $2,000 and send a cashier's check to the fund. I can't bring myself to tell my family what a dumb thing I did. But when the money doesn't show up on the statement, oh, my! I can't even die to get out of this one, as the family will go crazy tearing up the house and digging up the yard trying to find the missing $2,000.

I can't bring myself to lie about it, but I'd do almost anything to avoid a horrible show-and-tell time when we hold our next semiannual finance and affairs meeting. Any honorable, face-saving suggestions? — PERPLEXED IN PHILLY

DEAR PERPLEXED: 'Fess up, then forget it. The money's gone — and everybody goofs occasionally. Your goof was just a little more expensive than most.

DEAR ABBY: For years I have wanted to carry a sign on my back that read: "I had two brothers, one brother-in-law and one husband who all died early deaths because of cigarettes and alcohol." I cringe when I see beautiful young girls and boys puffing away.

Today, I saw a "first" in the obituary column of the Springfield (Ohio) News-Sun. It read: "(The man's name), age 29, of Lutherville, Md., and formerly of Springfield, Ohio, died of chronic alcoholism ... etc." then it went on to name his kin.

I wonder what your readers think about printing the cause of death in such cases. I would like to see much more revealing obituaries. — STILL GRIEVING IN SPRINGFIELD

DEAR STILL: Obituaries are usually given to the newspaper by the family of the deceased. If the family wishes to disclose the cause of death for any reason, and the newspaper has no policy with regard to "cause of death," it's all right with me.

DEAR ABBY: I live in a nice place, but my landlady drives me crazy. She comes into my apartment while I'm at work. I've asked her not to do that because I have a cat who runs out the door the minute it's opened. Also, I feel violated when I know she's been snooping around, which I'm sure she does.

Have you any suggestions? — WENDY IN WEST HOLLYWOOD

DEAR WENDY: Yes. Write a letter to your landlady and tell her that you have been made aware of your legal rights. In California, when someone leases an apartment, according to Civil Code 1954, 24-hour notice must be given the tenant before anyone enters the apartment in his or her absence.

Tell your landlady that if your privacy is violated again, you have the basis for a lawsuit.

For current renter's laws in the other 49 states, contact your local fair housing organization.

What teenagers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet,

Happy Birthday David!

Watches Tell Status, Time

By JESUS SANCHES
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Judy Reichel hunts for new ideas in high-style magazines such as Elle, Vogue and Interview. A Parisian fashion forecasting firm supplies her with reports about coming color and style trends. And she travels to California to find out what is in with young surfers.

Reichel is not in the business of designing clothes. She designs watches; Timex watches to be precise. The company that used to praise the durability of its watches — "Takes a licking but keeps on ticking" — now touts fashionable timepieces as "Sexy, scintillating watches for a style that's explosive." And for good reason.

"Timex had a place in the market with an affordable, quality product," Reichel said. "Then everybody had a lower-priced product that was reliable." So, Timex has turned to fashion to hold its own.

Welcome to the world of watchmaking in the 1980s. It is an industry — dominated by Swiss and Asian companies — in which watches have become regarded and sold as fashion accessories instead of timepieces. With a watch on nearly every wrist, watchmakers have managed to boost sales by jumping on the fashion bandwagon — changing long-held design, sales and advertising methods.

Watches have become symbols of social status — a shiny Rolex for the up-and-coming — and a way to stand out from the crowd — a brightly colored Swatch for a trendy teen-ager. Watches may be more accurate than ever before, but telling time has become a secondary function.

"We have Swatch styles where you can't even read the time," said Jacques Imiger, president of the U.S. subsidiary of SMH, the Swiss company that produces Swatch, Omega and Tissot.

Swatch watches and similar products spurred the fashion movement in the industry. "Swatches pretty much changed the way a consumer looked at a watch," said Joseph Thompson, editor-in-chief of Modern Jeweler magazine. "It's a fashion accessory that happened to tell the time."

"People are now purchasing a wardrobe of watches," said Robert J. Stevens, advertising manager at Seiko Time Corp. "Women have a pocketbook to go with every outfit, why not a watch?"

The move to fashion has paid off. In 1986, consumers purchased $2.3 billion worth of watches — a 20 percent increase since 1984, National Jeweler magazine says. About 80 million watches are sold annually in the United States, more than in any other nation.

In the pursuit of fashion, watchmakers have segmented the market and expanded their lines. Last year, classic designs with Roman numerals and mother-of-pearl dials gained ground on the colorful plastic watches popularized by Swatch.

To sell an increasing array of watches, watchmakers have boosted ad budgets. In 1986, companies spent $93.1 million — up 50 percent from 1984 — to advertise products, according to National Leading Advertisers. That represents a 50 percent increase from ad spending in 1984.

Watch advertising itself has changed.

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press

HENS: Market steady. Supply burdensome for a moderate demand. Prices paid per pound day of negotiation generally for slaughter the following week, heavy types, 7 pounds and up, 4 cents at farm with buyer loading.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady to 1 cent higher at mostly 2.14-2.25 in East and mostly 2.32-2.42 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans 2 to mostly 3 cents lower at mostly 5.96-6.06 in East and mostly 5.94-5.96 in the Piedmont; wheat 3.10-3.20; new crop corn 1.98-2.26; new crop soybeans 5.91-6.15; new crop wheat 2.96-3.11. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady and ranged from 101 to 104½ percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted aimlessly this morning, posting some tiny gains following a retreat in the previous session.

Trading was moderate, and stocks involved in takeover speculation and those with deadlines approaching for dividend payments accounted for a big portion of the activity.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, which fell 14.76 on Monday, was up 3.65 at 1,899.37 at noon on Wall Street.

Advancing issues led losers by a margin of 7 to 6 among stocks listed in the New York Stock Exchange, with 730 up, 578 down and 511 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 88.09 million shares as of noontime compared with 102.23 million at the same point in Monday's session.

Interest rates in the credit markets edged lower today, providing some encouragement for stocks.

But stock traders are said to be cautiously awaiting the December trade deficit figures, due to be released Friday, and the results of the Federal Reserve's two-day policymaking meeting which starts today.

Leading the most active list were a pair of stocks that have dividend deadlines approaching. Consolidated Edison was up ¾ at 45¼ and Avon Products was down ¼ at 23¾.

Garrison, the lieutenant governor's appointee to the Board of Transportation, a letter dated in September of 1987 pointing out the dangers of these grade-level intersections and asking if there was anything that could be done.

In a letter to Taft dated Feb. 2, Doub told the legislator, "I share your concern that the 'ideal' situation would be for these interchanges to be constructed. However, I do understand the reasoning for the decision not to build the interchanges which was made during the planning process for the U.S. 264 project in the mid and late 1970s.

"At that time," Doub told Taft, "there was intense competition between the U.S. 64 and U.S. 264 lobbying groups. In an effort to make a commitment to build both roads, the state of North Carolina had to design at-grade crossings to minimize the expense of both projects."

And Doub said, "my top priority at the present time for funding and inclusion" in the state Transportation Improvement Plan is the Farmville Bypass, the northwest Greenville Bypass and the southwest Greenville Bypass.

"In my opinion getting these projects under way and firmly entrenched ... is a higher priority than perhaps a delay in these proposed projects by making a push on the interchanges," Doub told Taft.

Doub told commissioners and legislators last week that interchanges "were not included in the initial design of the road and to go back in and redesign ... would have delayed the opening by 12- to 18-months."

Interchanges "would be nice to have," Doub said, but he suggested, "we have to determine what is more cost efficient," in light of the DOT's other priorities.

Doub said the right-of-way for the interchanges was purchased along with the right-of-way for the four-lane road, so that they could be added later.

"The decision was made 8- to 10-years ago," according to Doub. "Let's get the roads built," Doub told the gathering, "then go back and do the interchanges."

Doub said "no one has made interchanges a priority "since I've been on the Board (of Transportation)." But he told commissioners and legislators that those interested in having the interchanges included should attend the TIP public hearings in April to voice such support. "We'd be glad to consider it."

Board Discusses Student Grouping

The Center for Educational Research and Evaluation at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and results will be shared with OCR for approval.

Facing choices to maintain the current plan, to change the plan to implement all heterogeneous grouping or to request some teacher judgment in assigning students, the board searched for the benefits and inhibitions of homogeneous and heterogeneous grouping, but "the research about balances out," Deputy Superintendent John McKnight said.

The grouping plan chosen will depend on the philosophical goals of the schools, Superintendent Eddie West said. A goal of developing a social mix for a better understanding of individual cultures suggests heterogeneous grouping, while a goal to reduce the level of ability differences in the classroom suggests homogeneous grouping, he said. And, there is the middle plan, which incorporates elements of both.

In questioning the necessity of homogeneous grouping, board member Frank Grooms said studies have shown that teachers do not expect as much from students identified in lower-level instructional groups as they do in other groups and therefore do not perform to their full potential. But, Ross said the instructional need for those students may be better met in homogeneous grouping as teachers work with them on their level as opposed to teaching on a higher level to benefit other students in the class.

Board members Walter Morehead, Mary Williams and Howard Parker were concerned with students being "locked in" a grouping where they may not belong. Janie Manning, principal of Bethel Elementary, discussed with the board how student performance and achievement are evaluated to facilitate movement from a lower-level instructional group to a higher-level group and vice versa.

Board member Leonard Lilley said homogeneous grouping means the "chances of teaching them all more is much greater," as individual needs are better met. In a heterogeneous setting, "it's almost like the children run a race" where some are way up front, some are in the middle and some are left behind, he said. The tendency is "to teach children in the middle," which do not benefit the others.

In discussing the background of the current grouping policy, Ross said a complaint was made to OCR in 1979 about the class make-up of the schools. OCR representatives visited the schools April 2-6, 1979, and found what OCR described as a violation of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which said "students were assigned to classes in a racially discriminatory manner and classes were racially identifiable," Ross said.

In trying to develop a plan to comply with the law, the Board of Education developed a plan that provided homogeneous grouping — that is, students were assigned to ability groups or teaching groups for language arts, science, mathematics and social studies, he said. And, the plan was sent to OCR.

"The board was very interested in having some homogenous grouping," Ross said. Jeager evaluated the plan for the 1981-82 and 1982-83 school years and found several contrasting effects of the plan.

For example, during the 1981-82 school year, homogeneous grouping did not benefit or inhibit students assigned to the highest level of instructional groups, according to highlights of the evaluation. But, homogeneous grouping was found to be inhibiting for students assigned to the highest level of instructional groups during the 1982-83 school year.

White students benefited from homogeneous grouping during the first year of the evaluation, but were not benefited or inhibited during the second year. Black students were not benefited or inhibited by the homogeneous grouping during either year, the evaluation said.

After sharing the evaluation with OCR, the agency "thought the evaluation showed no significant growth," Ross said.

"My Letter to Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers" — Brad Smallwood

Dear Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers,

I watched my father die at the age of 36 of heart disease complicated by obesity. For that reason, when my doctor told me to "lose weight or shorten your life span," I knew he wasn't exaggerating.

Even though I had been given a medical ultimatum to lose weight, I found that I couldn't lose it by myself. I turned to Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers and found everything I needed to get my diet, my weight, and my life under control. Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers provided me with a sound nutritional program, constant monitoring of my progress and the support I needed to make a total commitment to controlling my weight.

The center staff's help and that commitment enabled me to lose 185 3/4 pounds and 13 1/2 inches in just 26 weeks. I have never before felt so alive. I am confident that with Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers' help, I will keep my weight off and enjoy my new life to the fullest.

Thincerely,
Brad Smallwood

Pirates Hold On For 70-66 Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
East Carolina, after rallying from a 10-point first-half deficit, saw its own 11-point lead shrink to three, but held off James Madison for a 70-66 Colonial Athletic Association basketball victory Monday night.

for the Dukes, who fell into sole possession of the CAA's basement at 2-7 in the league.

It was also the third straight loss for the Dukes since the resignation of head coach John Thurston on Jan. 28. For interim coach Tom McCorry, it's been a rough start, but he wasn't complaining afterwards.

"The kids have been giving us everything we've asked of them. They could have used (Thurston's resignation) as an excuse, but they've worked hard and given all they can."

Meanwhile, McCorry said, the Dukes are learning lessons under pressure. "It's more than we could learn in a half-dozen practice sessions," he said. "Our goal is to get better and play our best on March 5 (the first day of the CAA tourney). So far I'm extremely pleased despite our record."

McCorry's Dukes started out like a house afire, scoring on their first five possessions, including one 3-pointer for an 11-4 lead. That was eventually stretched out to 16-6 with 14:40 to go before East Carolina finally got going.

"They turned up the intensity of their defense," McCorry said, "and they got some runs in the first half and again in the second half. It served to get us a little disorganized."

East Carolina's Mike Steele, however, didn't feel that his Pirates really got going until the second half.

"At the half, I told them that they were not getting the loose balls and not blocking out guys. They were not scraping and scrapping like we have to if we want to win," Steele said.

The Pirates were also a little handicapped by Reed Lose battling a stomach virus and Kenny Murphy aching from a banged up arm. And once again, the Pirates had to play without point guard Jeff Kelly, still sidelined with a shoulder injury suffered last Monday against Campbell.

"Both of them played well for us, despite all," Steele said. "I just felt at the end that we weren't going to lose and the kids just hung in there. They deserved a win — this was another game that we could easily have lost."

But the Pirates persevered.

From the 10-point deficit, ECU outhit Madison, 7-1, and cut the lead back to 17-13 before another Madison streak helped run the lead back out to nine, 28-19 as Kennard Winchester scored twice during the streak. Then, after a series of exchanged points, the Pirates rallied once more.

Gus Hill scored off an alley-oop and Stanley Love knocked in the first of a one-and-one. Then, 30 seconds later, he was back on the line and scored on both shots. Hill followed with a jumper at 1:55, and Jimmy Hinton made two free throws to give the Pirates their first lead in the game, 35-34 with 1:33 to go. Winchester scored with 30 seconds left to put Madison back on top, 36-35, and the Pirates squandered a chance to regain it with a turnover in the final seconds.

In the early going of the second half, Madison pushed back out by seven points, 44-37, before the Pirates finally were able to grasp control of the game.

"I thought we would come back if we would go to the boards. (JMU's) traditionally not a very good shooting team and I knew if we could get to the boards, we could win the game," Steele said.

Hill got it going with a pair of baskets, then followed by making the first of two free throws. Lose then canned a 3-pointer, giving the Pirates a 45-44 lead.

Ralph Glenn went up for a shot underneath, but Ronney Gibbs slammed his shot back into the floor and Kenny Murphy grabbed the loose ball and raced to his own basket for a layup and a 47-44 lead.

Winchester came back to make two straight baskets to put JMU back up, 48-47 with 9:28 remaining, but Murphy hit a 3-pointer for a 50-48 lead.

Barry Brown once more tied it up, 50-50, but Gibbs scored on a dunk to start another Pirate string with 8:19 to go.

Hinton hit a jumper, then scored on a 3-point play when he was fouled on a layup. Hill added two free throws and a jumper from the baseline to run ECU out to an 11-point lead, 61-50 with 4:06 remaining.

Kenny Brooks made a 3-pointer, however, and Ben Gordon scored on a layup to cut the lead back to six and it hung around there until Gordon made another 3-pointer to trim it to four, 66-62, with 50 seconds left.

Murphy made two free throws, but Gordon matched that at the other end. Hinton then made the first of a one-and-one, and Winchester made a jumper to cut it to three, 69-66 with 20 seconds to go.

But the Pirates got it back down court against the press and Murphy hit the front of a one-and-one with seven seconds to go, wrapping it up.

"Ronney (Gibbs) gave us a lift in the first half but he still has to learn how to block out," Steele said. "Jimmy (Hinton) came in and played pretty well for us too. And I thought Stanley Love played a solid game."

"At the end, I was just glad to see that we were still attacking the basket, too," the coach said.

The Pirates, despite their coach's urging, were still beaten on the boards, 34-25, but got them when it counted.

The Pirates also shot well, hitting 55.6 percent of their shots while holding the Dukes to just 45.8 percent — including a 40.6 percentage in the second half.

Hill led the Pirate scoring with 20 points while Love and Murphy each had 12 and Lose had 11.

Coming In

Yeager Says CAA Is Still Striving For Respectability

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer
The Colonial Athletic Association has come a long way since its inception in 1985, according to Commissioner Tom Yeager, and the remaining challenge for the young league is to continue striving toward respectability.

"I really think it (the league) has made tremendous strides," said Yeager, who was in Greenville on a routine visit on behalf of the CAA Monday.

"Obviously we had a great jump start with (Navy's) David Robinson for the last three years. But I think the things I look at as a measure (of success) are things like attendance is up across the league (and) rivalries have really increased, which was part of the idea of getting in a conference."

The CAA conducts championships in 12 different sports among its eight member schools, but the premier sport of the league is basketball. It is the biggest money-maker and the most visible.

With Robinson as the showcase player of the league for the last three years, the CAA received a great deal of national attention as the All-American center led Navy to three consecutive league titles and appearances in the NCAA postseason tournament. But now Robinson is gone and the CAA is on its own, so to speak, to make a name for itself.

"That's a real challenge," Yeager said. "The fact is that he helped us establish some immediate credibility and now it's up to everybody else to step in and take us to the next level."

"One point I've made over and over is that before David Robinson showed up, our conference representative had won a game in the NCAA tournament for seven years in a row, going back to the old ECAC-South."

Six of the original schools (East Carolina, the Naval Academy, George Mason, James Madison, Richmond and William and Mary) were aligned together in the East Coast Athletic Conference (ECAC) before the Colonial was formed. In March of 1984, American University and UNC-Wilmington were added to the league roster and the following year they formed the CAA.

Yeager came on in 1985 after serving as a director of legislative services for the NCAA. He started with the NCAA as an investigator in 1976 before being promoted to assistant director of legislative services in 1981.

It's a background that has served Yeager and the CAA well in their short tenure.

"The investigative background, luckily, I've haven't had to put to much use," Yeager said. "I think where it (my background) has helped has been to really understand the NCAA procedure. I went from being an investigator to interpreting the rules."

"It was such a visible position that you deal with everyone in college athletics. What really helped is that when I came to the Colonial, I brought a certain amount of credibility immediately to the league simply because of the background that I had."

"Possibly David Robinson took care of the credibility issue with the general public and I helped it somewhat in the college athletic area."

This will be the first time in the history of the CAA that Robinson won't be there in March to carry the league banner into the NCAA tournament. And Yeager feels that performance in the postseason event is a key gauge of how successful a conference has become.

"I think there are kind of three

Scott Fires In 29, Leads Tech By Terps; State Rolls

By The Associated Press
Freshman Dennis Scott says a layup early in the game — the first of 29 points — gave him the confidence he needed to break out of a shooting slump.

"I've been in a slump lately," Scott said after hitting five of seven three-pointers to lead Georgia Tech to a 96-83 victory over Maryland. "It just comes down to concentration."

Sophomore Brian Oliver connected on nine of 11 shots for 25 points for the Yellow Jackets, who defeated the Terrapins for the eighth straight time.

In other Atlantic Coast Conference action, 16th-ranked North Carolina State defeated Baptist University 116-68.

"Scott? The kid came to play," said Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins. "He made some big ones tonight."

Maryland played without their regular starting center, freshman Brian Williams, who missed the game with a sprained ankle.

"Any time you take 14-15 points out of your lineup it hurts," Maryland Coach Bob Wade said. "But I still thought we had the personnel to play with them."

Georgia Tech made 33 of 55 shots (60 percent) from the field, nine of 12 coming from three-point range, and made 21 of 23 from the free-throw line to counter a Maryland offense that committed just nine turnovers.

"We played a great basketball game," Cremins said. "We shot the ball well, we moved the ball well, and we ran the break well. We had to play a great game to win in this building."

Maryland got as close as six points three times, the last at 81-75 with 3½ minutes left, before Oliver, Duane Ferrell and Craig Neal hit two free throws apiece to put the game out of reach.

Neal passed for 14 assists, tying his career high.

N.C. State ooped in man-to-man defense and grabbed a 19-4 lead over Baptist in the first five minutes. The Wolfpack held a 30-17 advantage before a 19-12 spurt gave them a 49-29 lead at halftime.

N.C. State took a 24-point lead at 63-39, but Baptist scored nine straight points to pull within 63-48. Dee Riley scored on a 3-point jump shot to pull Baptist within 65-51 with 13:19 left, but the Buccaneers couldn't come closer.

The Wolfpack outscored Baptist 19-5 to take an 84-56 lead, and they followed a few minutes later with a 15-0 run.

"I told the kids that we played well in the first 10 minutes and we played well in the last 10 minutes," Valvano said. "The 20 minutes in between weren't very good."

Baptist coach Gary Edwards could also pinpoint the minutes that his team played well.

"I feel we played a good game, but the thing that disturbs me is that we played well for 34 minutes," Edwards said. "We were down 20 points, but realistically, we could play as well as possible, and if State is hitting the outside shots, we are going to get beat by 20."

Avie Lester added 17 points for N.C. State, 14-4, and Chucky Brown had 16.

Trinity Comes From Behind For Win

Kirk Welch keyed Trinity Christian Academy on a 12-3 run late in the game to help Trinity come from behind to take a 49-43 win over Faith Christian Academy Monday night in high school basketball.

Trinity trailed 40-37 with three and a half minutes to go but outscored Faith 12-3, with Kirk Welch scoring the last five, to take the win.

With Trinity up 44-43, Welch hit a one and one to make it 46-43. Then following a miss by Faith, Welch score again, drew a foul and converted the free throw to make it 49-43.

Kirk Welch led Trinity, 18-2, with 22 points while brother Kreston Welch added 12.

In the girl's game, Trinity used a strong defensive effort by Myra Gillin to take 26-22 win over Faith.

Gillin had 12 rebounds and six steals to go along with four points as the Trinity girls move to 7-6 on the year.

Trinity went ahead 9-1 after the first quarter and led 15-5. Faith pulled within 18-13 after three quarters of play but Trinity held on from there for the win.

Both teams return to action Thursday at home against Falls Road Christian Academy.

Leisten On Olympic Development Team

Lisa Leisten, a senior at Rose High School, has been chosen as a member of the North Carolina Olympic Development State girls soccer team, in the 19 and under age group.

Leisten was the only girls in the eastern part of the state to make the team.

Starting in June, Leisten will work out with the team at High Point College, then compete in a regional tournament on June 25-26, in Sterling, Va. The NC team will compete against teams from Maryland, New Jersey, Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York and Connecticut.

From there, a regional team will be selected to compete for the national team.

A total of 25 girls from North Carolina were selected to the team. Leisten was selected as the player of the year in the Big East Conference last season and was the leading scorer for Rose with 19 goals.

Lisa is the daughter of John and Judy Pratt of Greenville.

Scott Tabbed As ACC Rookie Of The Week

GREENSBORO (AP) — Georgia Tech guard Dennis Scott, whose 24-foot 3-point basket at the buzzer sparked the Yellow Jackets to a 71-70 victory over DePaul last weekend, has been named the Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the week.

Scott, a 6-foot-7, 220-pound freshman, scored 11 points against the Blue Demons on Saturday. In addition, the Oakland, Va., product had five rebounds and five assists.

Earlier in the week, Scott, who is averaging 14.1 points and 4.1 assists per game, scored seven points and had three assists in a 78-65 loss to Duke.

The selection of Scott was made Monday by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

Patriots Roll Past UNC-Wilmington, 84-70

WILMINGTON (AP) — Sophomore Steve Smith scored a 27 points to spark George Mason to an 80-74 Colonial Athletic Association victory over North Carolina-Wilmington Monday night.

N.C.-Wilmington led by as many as eight points in the first half and held a 40-33 advantage at halftime. The Seahawks scored first in the second half to take a 42-33 lead, but the Patriots rallied behind Smith, who scored six points in a 28-15 run that gave George Mason a 57-54 lead with 9:31 left.

After the Seahawks' Mark Gary tied the score at 57 with 9:04 left on a 3-point basket, George Mason took the lead for good at 59-57 on a shot by Davis.

The Patriots' largest lead of 16 points came with 58 seconds left at 84-68.

Kenny Sanders scored 14 points for George Mason, 15-6 and 7-2 in the conference, while Anthony Davis had 13 and freshman Danny Deane had 10.

Senior forward Roy Walker led the Seahawks with 20 points and 10 rebounds. Larry Houzer grabbed 16 points, while Mark Gary scored 13 and Greg Bender had 12 for N.C. Wilmington, now 11-10 and 6-3.

Jesse Jackson's Son Chooses Virginia

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Yusef Jackson, son of Democratic presidential contender Jesse Jackson and a linebacker at St. Albans School in Washington, D.C., will attend Virginia on a football scholarship, the Roanoke Times & World-News reported Tuesday.

Jackson, a 6-foot-3, 215-pound senior from Chicago, averaged 12 tackles per game this past season at St. Albans, where he is a boarder student.

Jackson is the fifth player from St. Albans to accept a scholarship from Virginia in recent years.

"I'm sure Yusef was influenced by the other kids," St. Albans Coach Dick Allanson said. "None of them has anything but good things to say about the place."

Temple Advances To Top

By The Associated Press
Temple Coach John Chney knows he's in good company. He's just not sure where.

"I don't think we're better than anybody else that's in the top 20 or the top 35," Chney said Monday after his club was voted No. 1 in The Associated Press college basketball poll. "I think we're in the company of somewhere between 35 and 40 teams."

Temple, with a 18-1 record, became the fifth team this season to be No. 1 in the AP poll. It's the first-ever No. 1 ranking for the Owls.

Temple jumped from fifth to first with 23 first-place votes and 1,204 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters after a week that saw 13 teams in the Top Twenty lose at least one game.

"The polls do not concern me," Chney said. "Because to me, what's important is not to be first in February. Being first last is what counts."

Syracuse, North Carolina, Kentucky, and Arizona also have been ranked No. 1 this season. There have been six changes in the top spot since Syracuse was voted No. 1 in the preseason poll.

Purdue, 19-2, rose from sixth to second with 16 first-place votes and 1,191 points after beating then-No. 11 Michigan 91-87 on Sunday.

Arizona, No. 1 for six weeks, including the last four, fell to third with 15 first-place votes and 1,162 points, 28 more than Oklahoma, which jumped from seventh. The Sooners, 20-2, beat Kansas and Missouri last week.

Arizona suffered its second defeat in 23 games when it lost a Pacific-10 game at Stanford. It was the first conference loss for the Wildcats.

Pittsburgh, the only other team to receive first-place votes, finished with two and 927 points after beating ten-No. 20 St. John's in its only game of the week. Pitt, 16-2, retained first place in the Big East with a 6-1 record.

North Carolina, 16-3, jumped two places to sixth with 905 points, five more than Nevada-Las Vegas. The Runnin' Rebels were second last week, but lost to Cal-Santa Barbara for the second time this season. Nevada-Las Vegas, 20-2, had a chance to take the No. 1 spot after Arizona's loss, but failed, as did Brigham Young, 17-1.

The Cougars, the last major undefeated team in the nation, suffered their first loss of the season Saturday at Alabama-Birmingham and fell from third into a tie for eighth with Duke at 859 points.

The Blue Devils, 16-3, won three games last week, but lost at home to North Carolina State, 77-74.

Kentucky, 16-3, rounded out the Top Ten for the second straight week with 749 points, 48 more than Syracuse.

Following Syracuse in the Second Ten were Michigan, Iowa, Kansas State, Bradley, North Carolina State, Vanderbilt, Wyoming, Indiana and Villanova.

Last week's Second Ten was Michigan, Syracuse, Iowa, Georgetown, Vanderbilt, Iowa State, Illinois, Bradley, Florida and St. John's.

Of the five new teams in this week's ratings, only Kansas State hadn't been in the Top Twenty this season. The Wildcats, 14-4, are in first place in the Big Eight and are ranked for the first time since March 1982, when they were also 14th. Kansas State beat Iowa State and Nebraska last week.

"It's an honor for our program, but at this stage it doesn't mean anything," Wildcats forward Mitch Richmond said. "The only time it means anything to be ranked is at the end of the season and that would be to be ranked in the top 64."

North Carolina State, which also beat Virginia last week to improve to 14-4, was ranked 20th for two weeks

The Top Twenty teams in the Associated Press college basketball poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, total points based on 20-19-18-17-16-15-14-13-12-11-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1, records through Feb. 7 and last week's ranking:

Indiana, which had also been ranked fifth earlier in the year, posted Big Ten victories over Minnesota and then-No. 17 Illinois as the new lineup of Coach Bob Knight brought the team to 13-6.

Villanova, 16-6, had been ranked two weeks ago, but lost its next two games and was bumped. However, the Wildcats beat then-No. 14 Georgetown and Boston College last week to rejoin the poll.

Florida beat Alabama before losing to Auburn at home. Georgetown, Iowa State, Illinois and St. John's each went 0-2 for the week.

Pirates...

Winchester led Madison with 19, but was only eight of 18 from the field. Gordon added 17 points for the Ducks.

The victory raised the Pirates to 3-6 in the CAA and to 7-14 overall. Madison is now 6-14 overall.

East Carolina is idle until Saturday, when it travels for another weekend of CAA basketball. The Bucs will face resurgent Navy on Saturday, then meets American on Monday.

Harris Guides JMU By Women

HARRISONBURG, Va. — Angela Harris scored 25 points to lead James Madison past East Carolina 79-54 in a Colonial Athletic Association women's college basketball Monday night.

JMU jumped out to a 42-30 halftime lead and quickly went about building its lead.

ECU falls to 8-15 overall and 2-6 in the CAA while JMU moves to 17-3 and 8-0.

Sandy Broughton added 14 points for the Lady Dukes while Sydney Beasley had 12 and Paula Schuler 10.

ECU shot poorly from the field, connecting on only 17 of 48 field goal attempts while JMU connected on 32 of 68 attempts. The Lady Dukes also outrebounded ECU 42-25.

ECU was led by Alma Bethea's 21 points. No other Lady Pirate scored in double figures.

ECU returns to action Monday at home against American.

Calgary, Athletes Ready For Games

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — The Olympic flame blew its top in a premature pop of excitement as the fur-wrapped Soviets, brightly garbed Americans and hundreds of athletes from around the world arrived at the snow-dusted Winter Games.

Toting skates, skis and other gear, the athletes heightened the mood of anticipation Monday, five days before the opening ceremonies, and brought life and color to this flat, frozen city on the edge of the Rockies.

Residents and fans jammed the airport, cheering the athletes and beseeching them for autographs with the same enthusiasm that has marked the Winter Games for six decades.

Neither the explosion in the Olympic flame cauldron during a test lighting, which caused minor damage and no injuries, nor a last-minute scramble to help tourists, who could be stranded by a bankrupt tour company, dampened spirits.

Giggling schoolchildren dined and posed with Prince Albert of Monaco, a member of a two-man bobsled team. The 29-year-old son of the late Princess Grace Kelly and heir to the throne occupied by his father, Prince Ranier, said he would feel "marvelous" if he finished among the top 25 teams after taking up the sport only three years ago.

Hardy fans watched ski jumpers soar through the falling snowflakes in a workout session, while nearby, workers shoveled snow under the ramp as apart of the final preparations.

Several snowfalls over the past weeks have assured good skiing during the Games, but officials were pleased to see a new coat of white blanket the city for the second consecutive day.

"It'll create a little work for us out on the trails," Nordic venue chairman John Rule said, "but that's no problem. We need a little cosmetic snowfall. It'll tidy a few things up."

By day's end, more than half of the 1,684 athletes from 57 countries had arrived, and security in and around the Olympic Village stiffened.

Even as they were settling in, many of the athletes were focusing on their conditioning and their competition.

"Right now, I feel I'm about ninety percent ready," said American speed skating prospect Nick Thometz, who missed some training with a blood disorder. "We've got a week of training here, and that should help me get into top shape."

The Americans, wearing brilliantly colored nylon jackets and waving tiny U.S. flags at the airport, contrasted with the Soviet hockey players, who arrived bundled in thick, brown fur coats and hats.

Soviet assistant hockey coach Igor Dmitriyev, whose team is favored to win the gold, said he expects very tight competition because the world's top hockey-playing nations have improved so much in recent years.

"To compare with the last Olympic Games in Sarajevo, the Canadian team is much better, Finland now is good, Sweden is a good club and Czechoslovakia is the same," he said.

The Soviet team has won 18 of the last 23 hockey world championships and six of the last eight Olympic gold medals, losing to United States in 1960 and 1980. The Soviets beat the Czechs in the 1984 final.

A serious note was injected into the day by Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, who spoke out strongly against drug use.

Drug abuse by athletes, he said, "makes a mockery of the very essence of sport," and he called for continued vigilance against "cheaters."

In a speech prepared for the opening of the IOC's 93rd Session, Samaranch also criticized nations using the Olympics for political gain, adding that boycotts and similar actions hurt only athletes.

He saved his most stinging remarks, though, for drug abusers, and called on the majority of athletes who follow the rules to help weed out drug users.

"What do they represent to you, this group of individuals who think they can attain your goal only by cheating and concealing the truth?" he said, addressing the athletes of the world.

"They are only a minority amongst you," he continued, "and yet we must be on our guard. We must ensure that this one, small drop does not pollute the rest of the ocean..."

"Doping is alien to our philosophy, to our rules of conduct," he said. "We shall never tolerate it."

A new $1.5 million laboratory is waiting to hunt for drug abuses among the athletes at these Winter Games.

Flyers Are Grounded Again

By The Associated Press
The Dayton Flyers keep working overtime, but they don't have much to show for it.

The Flyers tied an NCAA record Monday night by playing their fourth consecutive overtime game, losing to Miami of Ohio 79-75.

"They came in and did the same thing to us last year," Dayton Coach Don Donohoe said. "They shut us out 7-0 at the start of overtime. I just wish we could see some aggressiveness from the opening tap."

"I can't explain it. Collectively the offense comes apart. There is no defense. It seems we don't get going until it's past us."

Dayton now shares the mark of four consecutive overtime games with Jacksonville (1982) and Illinois State (1985). The Flyers' stretch began with a 76-74 loss to Cincinnati, followed by a 72-65 victory over Chicago State and an 83-79 loss to Detroit.

Jeff Scott had 18 points as Miami of Ohio avenged an earlier loss to Dayton, which blew a 10-point second-half lead.

Only two members of the Associated Press' new Top Twenty were in action Monday night. Hersey Hawkins scored 24 points, a dozen below his nation-leading average, and Trevor Trimpe added 18, all on three-point baskets, as 15th-ranked Bradley defeated St. Louis University 83-67. Meanwhile, Vinny Del Negro scored 17 of his 23 points in the first half as No. 16 North Carolina State rolled to a 20-point lead and routed Baptist University of Charleston, S.C., 116-68.

But there was no shortage of noteworthy developments:

—The University of Dallas, which snapped an 86-game losing streak over the weekend, made it two in a row by defeating Le Tourneau College of Longview, Texas, 84-81 as Ken Koeneman and Clay Cole each scored 23 points. The Crusaders are 2-23 for the season.

—At Daytona Beach, Fla., Tony Smith scored 22 points as former power Marquette snapped a 15-game road losing streak by defeating Stetson 70-57. It was the Warriors' first road victory since January, 1987.

"It was a monkey off our back and our attitude changed. I thought we played with defensive quickness and intensity," Coach Bob Dukiet said.

No. 15 Bradley 83, St. Louis 67
"This guy's solid as gold," Coach Stan Albeck said of Hawkins, whose 24 points was his second lowest game of the season and who needed 10 points in the flinx tes to reach that total. "That's why you don't see any prospects here any more. They know he can play. In the Missouri Valley Conference, there are 10 statistical categories and he's in all of them."

St. Louis Coach Rich Grawer said he was "pleased with the way we played Hawkins. I think we just knew where he was at all times. He got some cheapies at the end. Trimpe hurt us."

No. 16 N.C. State 116, Baptist 68
Del Negro made seven of nine shots from the floor, including two of three from 3-point range, to lead the Wolfpack.

N.C. State took a 19-4 lead in the first five minutes and led at halftime 49-29.

Avie Lester added 17 points for the Wolfpack and Chucky Brown had 16. Heder Ambrose scored 24 and Oliver Johnson added 21 for Baptist.

"I told the kids that we played well in the first 10 minutes and we played well in the last 10 minutes," N.C. State Coach Jim Valvano said. "The 20 minutes in between weren't very good. We really wanted to play well in the first 10 minutes and we got that."

"We've had some big games, and coming off the win (Saturday) at Duke, I think there's a tendency to let down, so I was happy to see us come out playing hard."

Elsewhere:
—Dana Barros scored 22 points, including five during a 12-0 run in the final 3½ minutes, as Boston College rallied to beat St. John's 80-76, sending the Redmen to their third straight Big East defeat. St. John's lost home games to Pitt and Syracuse last week. The Redmen led 73-68 with 3:23 left when Bob Francis' three-point play ignited BC's comeback.

—In another Big East game, Eric Murdock scored 19 points to lead Providence to an 85-79 victory over Connecticut, whose Cliff Robinson had a game-high 22 points. Providence won despite being outbounded 44-24.

—Reserve guard Ray Gaffney made nine of 11 shots and scored 22 points, including 12 on four 3-point shots in the first half, as Minnesota beat Wisconsin 71-62 in a Big Ten game.

—Freshman Dennis Scott scored 29 points and sophomore Brian Oliver added 25 as Georgia Tech defeated Maryland 96-83 in an Atlantic Coast Conference game. Scott's 3-pointer capped an 11-4 spurt that gave Georgia Tech a 55-44 lead with 16:47 left to play. Keith Gatlin scored 22 points and Derrick Lewis added 21 points for Maryland, which has dropped eight in a row to Georgia Tech.

—Frank Molak scored 19 points as Missouri-Kansas City defeated Morehead State 81-77, a school record 13th consecutive loss for the Eagles.

—Jeff Martin scored 29 points as Murray State defeated Austin Peay 83-70 and took over sole possession of first place in the Ohio Valley Conference, breaking a tie with the Governors.

—Avery Johnson, the NCAA assist leader, had 20 to go with his 18 points in helping Southern University win its 12th consecutive game, 116-83 over Mississippi Valley State.

—Eric Mudd scored 32 points and Ken McFadden added 29 to lead 16-4 Cleveland State to a 94-91 overtime victory over Western Illinois that enabled the Vikings to retain a share of the Association of Mid-Continent Universities lead.

Drugs A Product Of Competition

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — The desire to win at all costs drives some athletes to take illegal drugs, making a mockery of sport, says Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee.

Opening the IOC's 93rd Session prior to the Winter Olympic Games, which begin in Calgary on Saturday, Samaranch appealed to athletes to be on their guard to ensure that "this one small drop does not pollute the rest of the ocean."

After an opening Olympic Fanfare by Canadian composer Howard Cable, performed by four brass choirs, the IOC also began its session by bestowing its highest honor, the Olympic Order, on French alpine skier Jean-Claude Killy and two veteran IOC members — Sir Lance Cross of New Zealand and Henry Hsu of Taiwan.

Canada's Deputy Prime Minister, Don Mazankowski, official declared the Ssion open and 15 Calgary Fiddlers welcomed delegates.

A new $1.5 million testing lab awaits more than 1,500 athletes from 57 countries taking part in Canada's first Winter Olympics.

But Samaranch expressed concern that even these precautions may not stop the illegal use of drugs to boost performance.

"As means of detection have improved, they now attempt to cheat scientifically by using artificial means to provoke natural physiological reactions, or by attempting with various tricks to hide the irrefutable evidence of their dishonest actions," Samaranch said.

Appealing to athletes to fight drug misuse, Samaranch said "it seems that the desire to win at all costs drives some to turn to illegal and totally dishonest means.

"What do they represent to you, this group of individuals who think they can attain your goal only by cheating and concealing the truth?" "They are only a minority among you and yet we must be on our guard, we must ensure that this one small drop does not pollute the rest of the ocean."

Samaranch said the IOC is not a court and while sanctions against abusers are necessary, prevention and education are preferable.

But he stressed that, "we utterly and absolutely reject these attempts to cheat which endanger the very lives of those involved. Doping is alien to our philosophy, to our rules of conduct. We shall never tolerate it."

Samaranch also used his speech to criticize nations that use the Olympics for political gains through boycotts and similar action. He singled out North Korea, Cuba and Ethiopia for declining invitations to the Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea.

"It is regrettable that young people who have spent many years of preparation in the hope of being worthy representatives of their countries should be thus deprived of any opportunity to compete with fellow athletes from all over the world," the IOC president said.

Gregg, SMU Set For Recruiting

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist football coach Forrest Gregg will sign 15 players to scholarships Wednesday and expects an additional 35 to 45 to join the squad as walk-ons in the fall even though the program is technically dormant.

"We have had a tremendous response from young men from around the country," Gregg said. "Our thrust has been geared toward student-athletes in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, but we have had inquiries and been in contact with athletes from all over."

Last year, the NCAA slapped the Southwest Conference school with its stiffest punishment after finding SMU had paid athletes to play while it was on probation for similar violations.

After losing its 1987 season to NCAA sanctions — the so-called "death penalty" — SMU voluntarily dropped football for 1988. Meanwhile, the school's athletic director and head coach resigned.

Last month, Mustang football found new life when Gregg — an SMU alumnus, pro football Hall of Famer and Green Bay Packers coach — became head coach.

"We had quite a few calls before his taking the job, but since then it's increased many, many times," said associate athletic director Dudley Parker, who served as interim athletic director until Doug Single took over. Parker has coordinated football recruiting efforts since last fall.

The "recruiting job" only involved answering telephone and mail inquiries since under NCAA sanctions, SMU officials are prohibited from visiting recruits or paying for their visits to the campus.

"We can't do anything except give them free tickets if there's a basketball game when they visit," Parker said. "We can't even buy them a Coke."

Even so, he said, SMU has seen "a considerable number" of prospects drop by, mostly from the local area.

"But we've also had them coming in from West Texas and even outside the state, flying in here at their own expense," he said. "We're talking a cross-section of football players. We'd like to think that there are a lot of blue-chippers, and to my mind there are."

"But how do you distinguish exactly at 18 years of age that a kid won't play four years from now because he's gained 30 pounds and grown six inches in the last year and maybe doesn't move his feet too well?"

Actress Finds Herself Dating Angel On Landon TV Show

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Leann Hunley says she has a date with an angel on NBC's "Highway to Heaven," it's more than just an expression.

Ms. Hunley took time from her role as Dana Waring Carrington on ABC's "Dynasty" to play the first love interest for Jonathan Smith in a special two-part episode of "Highway to Heaven" that begins Wednesday.

Michael Landon stars as Jonathan, an angel who is on Earth helping people until he can earn his wings.

"He's supposed to help other people fall in love, but we have this very chaste, romantic involvement," said Ms. Hunley, who plays Jennifer.

"My character is one of the most down-to-earth I've ever done. She's very natural, very warm and giving. She's somebody you'd want to know. It's a real departure for me. You don't find many of these kinds of people on 'Dynasty.'"

Ms. Hunley read for Landon early in the morning, while Landon was directing. "After I read for him, he said he'd see me next week," she said. "I guess I did it right. It worked out that the next episode of 'Dynasty' I had no dialogue. So they kindly wrote me out of the story."

"It was such a wonderful part I didn't want to give it up. It was only supposed to be one episode but they had some extra footage, so Michael wrote some more scenes and they shot them on Saturday to accommodate me."

In the story, Dorothy McGuire, who was Jonathan's wife when he died 40 years earlier, dies. Jonathan wants to go to heaven to join her, but instead, he loses his powers and becomes human again. He abandons his work and falls in love with Jennifer.

"It's a salvation for both of us," she said. "He learns to love again. He's very discouraged at this point and wants to do away with himself. She makes it all worthwhile again. He saves my life, so in effect we save each other's souls."

"It has a good moral. It's an old-fashioned, hand-holding romance. It has a nice little twist at the end. It's possible that she could return."

Ms. Hunley, now in her second year of "Dynasty," plays Blake Carrington's daughter-in-law, married to his son, Adam.

IT'S SETTLED — Actress Joan Collins smiles as she leaves court Monday in Los Angeles. Following her is an attorney and Peter Holm, behind microphone, her former husband. Miss Collins and Holm settled their bitter property battle with the actress agreeing to pay Holm $180,000 while he gives her back a half interest in a house in the south of France. (AP Laserphoto)

NBC Tops Nominees For Director's Guild

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sitcoms "Cheers," "Golden Girls" and "Family Ties" helped NBC gain a network-leading eight nominations for the Directors Guild of America's television awards.

The NBC dramatic specials "Billionaire Boys Club" and "Nutcracker: Money, Madness, Murder" also were nominated, along with CBS-TV's "Foxfire," the guild announced Monday.

ABC-TV's "After School Specials," CBS' "Cagney & Lacey" and NBC's "Late Night With David Letterman" also joined contenders for trophies to be awarded at the guild's 40th anniversary show March 12, when awards for motion pictures and TV commercials also will be presented during ceremonies in Beverly Hills and New York.

Film nominees announced last week were Bernardo Bertolucci's "The Last Emperor," Steven Spielberg's "Empire of the Sun," Lasse Hallstrom's "My Life as a Dog," James L. Brooks' "Broadcast News," and Adrian Lyne's "Fatal Attraction."

After NBC's eight nominations were ABC's five, CBS' four, PBS' two. WNET-TV, the Newark, N.J.-based PBS station, and cable's HBO received one each.

The three nominees in the comedy series category were the "Home is the Sailor" episode of "Cheers," directed by James Burrows; the "Old Friends" episode of "Golden Girls," directed by Terry Hughes; and the "A, My Name is Alex" show of "Family Ties," directed by Will MacKenzie.

Nighttime dramatic series nominees are the pilot for ABC's "thirtysomething," directed by Marshall Herskovitz; the "Turn, Turn, Turn, Part 1" episode of "Cagney & Lacey" by Sharon Miller; and the NBC "Weigh In, Weigh Out" show on "St. Elsewhere," by Mark C. Tinker.

The three daytime drama nominees were all ABC "After School Specials."

Nell Cox was nominated for "Read Between the Lines," Victoria Hochberg for "Just a Regular Kid: An AIDS Story," and Joanna Lee for "The Kid Who Wouldn't Quit — The Brad Silverman Story."

In the musical variety category, director Hal Gurnee guided NBC's "Late Night (With David Letterman) Fifth Anniversary Show" to a nomination, and Dwight Hemion was honored for the ABC special "Julie Andrews — Sound of Christmas."

Don Mischer was nominated for the WNET-TV broadcast of "Made in the USA With Mikhail Baryshnikov."

Director Elena Mannes was nominated in the documentary category for the PBS show "The Kingdom Divided (God & Politics)," John Peaslee and Judd Pillot were

Sidney Poitier Makes Film After Laying Off 10 Years

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — How do you lure one of the world's great actors back to the silver screen after a 10-year absence? You offer him the lead in a movie in which he is going to risk life and limb.

And if you are Sidney Poitier, you accept the challenge. Poitier is starring in "Shoot to Kill," an action-adventure movie filmed in the Canadian wilderness. The Touchstone Pictures release also stars Tom Berenger ("Platoon," "Someone to Watch Over Me") and Kirstie Alley (of TV's "Cheers").

Touchstone, a division of the Walt Disney Pictures, has rejuvenated the film careers of Richard Dreyfuss ("Down and Out in Beverly Hills," "Stakeout") and Bette Midler ("Ruthless People," "Outrageous Fortune").

Perhaps the film company also will have the Disney touch for Poitier, whose career of late has been on hold. Poitier, who will be 61 Feb. 20, was acclaimed in "Blackboard Jungle" (1955), Oscar-nominated in "The Defiant Ones" ('58), won a Tony for his Broadway performance in "A Raisin in the Sun" (reprised in the '61 movie) and won an Academy Award as best actor in "Lilies of the Field" ('63).

Other great roles followed: "To Sir With Love," "In the Heat of the Night" and "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" On screen, Poitier symbolized hard-fought gains blacks achieved in the Civil Rights movement. But as '60s sensibilities spun out of control following the assassination of Martin Luther King, Poitier's career also lost its center. A series of forgettable movies ("Let's Do It Again," "A Piece of the Action") seemed part and parcel of '70s black exploitation films.

Poitier's last movie role was in "The Wilby Conspiracy" ('75). Poitier directed a few more movies (notably, "Stir Crazy" starring Richard Pryor and Gene Wilder) and wrote his autobiography, "This Life." Mostly, Poitier, married to actress Joanna Shimkus with whom he has six daughters, literally stopped to smell the roses at his Los Angeles home.

"I got involved with living a life that did not focus on the narrow range of career," Poitier said at a recent press conference here. "I got involved in exploring that which did not necessarily eventuate in a dollar return, as most of us are forced to do most of our lives. I just decided to do things that had to do with wonder and discovery."

Poitier discovered astronomy, making trips to local observatories.

He said he would like to continue to "explore, and discover and see and smell and taste."

"For instance, I live in a house that has a small garden. I've been in this house for 12 years. I've driven up to the front door — must be some several thousands of times. And I can't remember a dozen times that I walked over to a rose and took a look at it. But you can bet your life in the last 10 years I stopped an awful lot. And you know the configuration of a rose is quite interesting to see."

How did "Shoot to Kill" bring Poitier back to the screen?

"I presented what I thought was a very valuable screenplay, something that would appeal to him, and it did," said Philip Rogers, executive producer of "Shoot to Kill." In the movie, Poitier plays an FBI agent who enlists the aid of a trail guide (Berenger). The guide's girlfriend (Alley) is held hostage by the murderer who Poitier is pursuing.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Feb. 10
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Keep your mind focused on happy, cheerful thoughts, and you'll be able to present your ideas more clearly. Don't let your mate upset you.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Listen to any suggestions from a superior, but avoid a demanding associate. Be sure to finish any projects you start this morning.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Be very cautious when handling the details of your work, or you could make a costly mistake. Don't put any pressure on your co-workers.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Don't try to force your views on your family; listen to their opinions before making decisions. Don't run off on any tangents.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): An opportunity through which you can benefit greatly will become apparent today. Be very careful where your health is concerned.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): This is not a good day to go out visiting or shopping unless it is absolutely necessary. If you must go out, be very careful while driving.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Get together with an old friend for a day of pleasant recreation, but don't spend too much money. Be more romantic with your mate.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Proceed with any new projects you've been considering, but if you need any financial advice, be sure to seek out an expert's opinion.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Be sure to handle any written communications very carefully. You may discover a new business contact this evening.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Avoid a person who likes to preach and never listens to any opposing viewpoints. Try to please your mate by being more considerate.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): A good friend can help you gain your aims today, so don't be afraid to rely on this person. You can gain some personal wishes easily today.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Ask advice from a superior who can help you modernize your activities. Don't listen to any caustic remarks from a new acquaintance.

A bastion of male chauvinism has fallen! New York's bridge club of renown, the Cavendish Club, has elected its first woman president, Mrs. Claire Tornay.

A tournament player of considerable skill and a former national titleholder, Mrs. Tornay sat South on this deal from a recent tournament. North's single diamond raise was strong and forcing, and South's jump to four diamonds, by partnership agreement, was Key-Card Blackwood, in which the king of trumps counts as an ace. When she learned that one key card was missing, Mrs. Tornay settled in the small slam.

West led a top-of-nothing spade, solving declarer's problem in that suit. At first glance it might seem that the fate of the contract hinged on the trump finesse. However, declarer realized that a strip and end play, combined with the possibility of dropping a singleton king of trumps, offered a better chance.

She captured the queen of spades with the king and cashed the ace of trumps in the hope of felling the king. When the monarch failed to appear, declarer cashed the high clubs and ruffed a club in hand, crossed to the ace of spades and ruffed another club. The jack of spades was cashed to complete the strip of the black suits, and declarer exited with a trump.

Whichever defender held the king of diamonds would be forced to return a heart to avoid giving a ruff-sluff. Had that defender been East, declarer would simply have had to hope that he was leading away from the king of hearts. As it was, West held the trump king and when he shifted to a heart, declarer was faced with a nasty guess. We might have been inclined to play dummy's queen, but women's intuition triumphed—South inserted the ten from the table and, when East produced the king, the slam was home.

 Because this is a syndicated publication prepared in advance by Cotter & Company for distribution by over 6,000 independently owned and operated retail store members, some merchandise illustrated may not be immediately available on demand. However, any item that's unavailable can be ordered in full carton by the member store from a regional warehouse. Many items in this circular come unassembled. Individual stores are not responsible for assembling merchandise unless stated. This circular must be prepared months in advance of the actual distribution period. At times, an advertised item may not be available because of sales above anticipated demand or because of circumstances beyond our control, while we try to avoid such situations, we have no control over our manufacturers' delivery problems. We reserve the right to limit quantities, correct pricing errors and require central credit office approval of time payment sales. Prevailing taxes will be added to prices. This catalog is distributed by True Value members who own their own stores and set their own retail prices.
