Waldheim Faces New Pressure To Leave Office

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — President Kurt Waldheim today faced mounting pressure to resign after an international panel of historians criticized his role as a lieutenant in Nazi Germany's army.

Only leaders of the conservative People's Party, which backed Waldheim's election in 1986, supported him.

The three other parties in Parliament distanced themselves from Waldheim. The Socialists, restrained by their government coalition with the conservatives, did not say outright he should resign but indicated they would like to see him step down.

The small Greens party demanded Waldheim's resignation and said this matched sentiments expressed in private by Socialists and People's Party parliamentarians.

"No one dares to say it publicly," Greens deputy Walter Geyer told a news conference.

"But when we talk to Socialist deputies privately, I don't know of one who doesn't say, 'Kurt Waldheim damages Austria,'" he said. "Even most of the deputies from the People's Party privately think Kurt Waldheim has become untenable."

Joerg Haider, leader of the small Freedom Party, said the panel's report on Waldheim meant his party should keep its distance from the president.

Waldheim, 69, has maintained he is innocent of any wrongdoing during his World War II service in the Balkans.

Austrian and U.S. news reports disclosed Waldheim's wartime past in March 1986, during his campaign for the presidency — a largely ceremonial office in Austria. The reports included allegations that Waldheim helped deport Jews to Nazi death camps.

Since then, the United States has barred him from entering the country and Israel has withdrawn its ambassador to Vienna.

A 202-page report released Tuesday by a six-member panel of historians documented Waldheim's actions as a German army lieutenant from 1942 to 1945.

The report concluded Waldheim had been in "close proximity" to criminal actions and said the question of whether he is guilty of any crime remains open. It also documented Waldheim's intimate knowledge of Nazi atrocities in the Balkans.

U.S. Says Soviets Got Better, But Just So-So

By HENRY GOTTLIEB
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mikhail Gorbachev instituted "more than cosmetic" improvements in Soviet human rights performance last year, but failed to meet Western hopes and expectations for more dramatic progress, the State Department said today.

In its annual report on human rights in 169 countries and territories, the department also said it observed positive signs in Poland, Hungary, South Korea and Taiwan.

On the negative side, the report repeated a long list of conditions imposed by the Israeli government on Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza territories, said hopes for the establishment of democracy in Haiti were set back and concluded "there was no progress toward respect for human rights in South Africa."

The 1,358-page report was sent to Congress to give senators and representatives guidance in deciding which nations are worthy of U.S. aid and trade benefits.

The report, for the most part, did not judge the nations, but merely stated conditions as observed by U.S. diplomats assigned to monitoring rights in each country. In a brief introduction, however, some national performances were highlighted.

"There is no doubt that the attention of a great many observers focused on developments in the Soviet Union," Richard Schifter, assistant secretary of state for human rights, said in the introduction.

"Was Mikhail S. Gorbachev, in this third year of his stewardship of the world's first Leninist dictatorship, bringing about fundamental change, or were the changes merely cosmetic?"

"The answer to this question, asked by so many observers, is that neither adjective fits. The changes were more than cosmetic and less than fundamental."

Schifter said the country continues to be controlled by "a small elite group" supported by the secret police.

On the other hand, he said, "some political prisoners were released" and some totalitarian controls were relaxed, notably on emigration of Jews, Armenians and ethnic Germans. Plays and films dealt with the realities of Soviet life "more honestly than had been allowed in a long time."

Curfews Lifted

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli authorities today lifted curfews that had confined 212,000 Arabs to their homes for up to 10 days, and a 12-year-old Palestinian boy said he was shot and wounded by Israeli civilians.

Sulien al Suwezi of Gaza City told The Associated Press he was at a lunch stand eating a sandwich today when he was shot in the right shoulder.

The youth, speaking from his bed at Ahli Arab Hospital, said he saw a truck drive by with two Israelis inside and then, "I heard a shot. They fired while the truck was moving."

The army said it was investigating. U.S. envoy Richard Murphy met with Israeli leaders in an effort to defuse tensions in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, where at least 51 Arabs have been killed in two months of unrest. Israeli officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said he presented a U.S. plan calling for Palestinian elections this year in the occupied territories.

South African Troops Go To Aid Of Ousted Leader

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Bophuthatswana's army seized control of the tribal homeland early today and deposed the president. South Africa's president then ordered South African troops to aid the ousted government.

President P.W. Botha of South Africa told Parliament that South African security forces were given the order after members of the Cabinet of deposed President Lucas Mangope requested help.

Bophuthatswana, 200 miles northwest of Johannesburg, is one of four nominally independent black homelands inside South Africa. No other country recognizes their independence.

In seizing control early today in the second military coup in a South African tribal homeland in six weeks, the Bophuthatswana army accused Mangope of corruption and human rights abuses. The army said power would be handed over to an opposition party.

Botha said in Cape Town the decision to send in troops came after a meeting of the National Security Council. He said he would inform Parliament of any developments.

South Africa's Foreign Minister, Roelof Botha, announced from Cape Town that he had received a message from People's Progressive Party leader Rocky Malebane-Metsing saying he was leading the new government and would pursue good relations with South Africa.

The Star newspaper in Johannesburg, quoting a dispatch from its correspondent in the Bophuthatswana capital of Mmabatho, said Malebane-Metsing had been picked up at his home this morning by army officers who told him he was being taken to Parliament to be sworn in as head of state.

The South African Press Association quoted sources in Bophuthatswana as saying Mangope and most of his Cabinet were believed to be held in dressing rooms at the national sports stadium.

In a statement broadcast by Bophuthatswana's government radio, the army described as fraudulent the October general elections in which Mangope's Democratic Party was returned to office with most of the seats in Parliament.

Women Debate Porno Issues

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

The controversial question of whether pornography is an expression of art or a harmful detriment to the general health of society brought approximately 500 people to an East Carolina University auditorium Tuesday as two experts presented their polarized views on the matter.

The debate, held at Hendrix Theater and sponsored by the Student Union Forum Committee, featured Gloria Leonard, publisher of High Society magazine, and Dolores Alexander, founder and former executive of Women Against Pornography.

Each woman was allowed 25 minutes to present their opinions, with a rebuttal period immediately following, where each speaker specifically addressed the other's remarks.

Speaking first was Ms. Alexander, who said she sees pornography as a civil rights violation against women. She first identified the distinction between pornography, which she described as the sexualization of women in a subordinate manner, and erotic materials, which she described as the celebration of sex between equals.

Ms. Alexander said pornography has become a conditioning agent in our society, a major form of socialization, and the major form of sex-education in the United States.

"That conditioning process both creates and reinforces a climate of contempt for women which generates everything from street harassment, to job discrimination, to real-life violence," she said.

Part of Ms. Alexander's presentation was a slide show that displayed examples of material from leading men's magazines as it has evolved from 1972 to 1984.

As she proceeded through the slides, Ms. Alexander explained how the graphic nature of pornography has changed in terms of the amount of flesh revealed, increasingly contorted body poses, and the display of masochistic pictorials, which she described as "an expression of male rage against women, and a cruel distortion of sexuality."

"These pictures are a glorification of the subordination of women. These are the poses of sexual servants, not of proud, autonomous women. This is not the sexualization of equality, this is the sexualization of inequality," she said.

Many in the audience laughed when some of the graphic pictures flashed upon the screen, prompting Ms. Alexander to remark, "I think the women in this audience are not laughing, and I think partly it might be nervous laughter from the men. ... I'll give you the benefit of the doubt."

After 25 minutes, Ms. Leonard took her turn to speak.

Ms. Leonard, star of the X-rated film "Misty Beethoven," described herself first as a feminist, saying the bottom line of the feminist movement is for women to achieve and to assert themselves.

"I think I've accomplished that," she said. "Frankly, I'm a bit disappointed there aren't more women in my corner, cheering me on and thanking me for breaking certain male barriers, so to speak."

Ms. Leonard criticized the current administration and the religious right for what she described as attempts to censor freedom of expression in magazines, records and school textbooks.

She also criticized conclusions drawn from the recently completed Meese Commission on Pornography, which she said by its members' composition had pre-determined conclusions before seeing any of the presented evidence.

"The premise that pornography promotes anti-social behavior against women is a crock," she said.

Ms. Leonard presented statistics that 53 percent of X-rated videos are, in fact, rented by women.

Carolina Telephone has donated orange safety vests which DOT is distributing to the volunteers who pick up litter. Employee volunteers of Carolina Telephone comprise one of the volunteer groups.

Upon reviewing the Adopt-A-Highway pilot, the program will be expanded in the spring to involve other interested groups, a DOT spokesman said.

Burroughs Wellcome Gets Patent On AZT

By The Associated Press

Burroughs Wellcome, the maker of the first drug approved by the federal government for the treatment of AIDS, was issued a patent Tuesday for the AZT compound, the company said in an announcement released in the Research Triangle Park.

Company spokeswoman Kathy Bartlett said Burroughs Wellcome filed for the patent Sept. 17, 1987.

The company began looking for an AIDS drug in June 1984. Ms. Bartlett said, and began testing it in people in July 1987. AZT is the only drug in widespread use for treatment of AIDS patients, although other compounds are being tested.

"We continue to have a very large research program to learn more about its use," she said.

AZT is manufactured in plants in Greenville and Dartford, England. AZT, or azidothymidine, has been trademarked under the name Retrovir and is sold in more than 20 countries.

The drug can stop the AIDS virus from replicating and prolong the lives of those infected with the virus, but it doesn't cure the disease.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome attacks the body's immune system, leaving it defenseless against a wide variety of diseases. The illness is transmitted through sexual contact, needles or syringes among intravenous drug users, infected blood or blood products and from pregnant mothers to their offspring.

Council Agenda

Two subdivision annexation requests, collectively amounting to over 120 acres of residential property, will be considered by the Greenville City Council Thursday at its regular monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. in Council Chambers of City Hall.

Greenville Properties has requested the annexation of 75.34 acres located northwest of the intersection of SR 1700 and SR 1708.

The area is the site of an approved preliminary plat, South Hall, consisting of 75 single-family homes. The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission unanimously recommended approval of the request. A public hearing will be held on the matter.

The second annexation request, involving 48.3 acres, involves Phases 1 and 2 of the Planter's Walk subdivision, located off SR 1704, south of Quail Ridge, and east of Tuckahoe. The request, made by the Westminster Company, was recommended for approval by the Planning and Zoning Commission at its Jan. 19 meeting.

In other matters, the council will consider an ordinance extending the extraterritorial jurisdiction (ETJ) of the city south and parallel to SR 1708 from the western border of the Geneva M. Jackson property on the east, to Treetops Subdivision on the west.

Three properties comprising approximately 149 acres are involved in the ETJ extension ordinance.

If approved, approximately 27 acres owned by Harry M. Dudley, will enter the ETJ zoned RA-20 (residential-agriculture) while approximately 50 acres owned by W.E. Dansey and approximately 60 acres owned by Wilton Evans, would both enter the ETJ zoned R6-MH (mobile home park). Any existing or previously approved commercial operations on the land would be allowed to exist as a non-conforming use.

Also Thursday night, the council will:

Consider a request by Clyde Simmons to amend the Greenville Zoning Ordinance to allow flower shops as permitted uses in the MD-2 zoning district. The Planning and Zoning Commission recommended denial of this request at its Sept. 15 meeting. This request has been continued from the Oct. 8, Nov. 12, Dec. 9, and Jan. 11 meetings. A public hearing will be held on the matter.

Consider a resolution of intent to close an unopened section of East Third Street. The section, located west of Hickory Street and stretching 925 feet, is adjacent to Methodist Retirement Homes Inc. The Planning and Zoning Commission recommended approval of the street closing request. A public hearing on the matter has been scheduled on March 10.

Consider a resolution requesting the Pitt County Commissioners appoint a representative to the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission, appointments to boards and commissions, and a request to annex a 2.6-acre tract of the Nina Tripp Heirs Division, located southwest of US 264 Business and Grace Avenue.

Look at a municipal agreement between the city and the state Department of Transportation for the planned widening of 14th Street south of Greenville Boulevard, and consider eight streets for permanent maintenance.

Take up five separate budget-related ordinances that include amending the capital reserve fund to provide $75,000 for the acquisition of the Town Common Radio Tower, while reducing by the same amount the construction of a fire-rescue headquarters station; the appropriation of $18,750 for the down payment for the acquisition of the town radio tower, with three additional annual installments of the same amount; amending the Water Fund Budget of the 1987-88 Greenville Utilities Budget Ordinance to reflect the purchase of a portion of the Bell Arthur water system; appropriating $30,550 in additional revenues received from donations and a grant for the Town Common Amphitheater Project, and appropriating $87,500 from the capital reserve for the city's share of the Airport Glide Slope Project.

Consent agenda items to be considered include a resolution appointing a Greenville Utilities commissioner to the N.C. Eastern Municipal Power Agency; consideration of a contract with the Greenville Area Preservation Association for use of a copyright on the city's Historic Preservation Survey; an amendment to the city code regarding the lot cutting and cleaning procedure; adopting an optional relocation policy for use in the Community Development Block Grant Program; consideration of tax releases and refunds, a request for refund of bid deposit, and authorizing the advertisement of delinquent city taxes.

Man Faces Charge In Fast Fare Theft

One man was in custody and police were looking for a second man some 20 minutes after an armed robbery was reported at the Fast Fare on Hooker Road about midnight Tuesday, according to Sgt. J.M. Simonowich.

Simonowich, a detective supervisor, said patrol officers responding to the scene of the robbery, where a small amount of cash was taken at gunpoint, saw a man running across Dickinson Avenue and gave chase.

Reggie Langley, 21, of C19 Glendale Court, was taken into custody about 12:20 a.m. following the chase and an extensive search in the Village Grove and Higgs neighborhood areas north of Dickinson Avenue. According to Simonowich, Langley was found hiding behind a house near the fire-rescue department drill tower on Skinner Street.

And officers were continuing their hunt at mid-morning for a second man believed to be involved in the midnight robbery, Simonowich said.

In addition to being charged with armed robbery of the Fast Fare, Simonowich said Langley was charged with armed robbery in connection with the theft of cash from the Quality Mart at the intersection of Greenville and Arlington boulevards about 5 a.m. on Jan. 30.

UNC-CH Audit Misses Mark

An audit of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, commissioned by a search committee for a new chancellor, goes far afield from being a document to assist the search committee in recommending a chancellor.

Rather it questions the entire structure of higher education in North Carolina. The audit, prepared by a team of academicians and consultants, claims concern for faculty and support staff salaries and fringe benefits, overly strict state regulations, financing and quality of some academic programs. It says there is a perception by some that a general malaise threatens faculty quality at the University at Chapel Hill.

An important part of the report was a call for clarification of the roles of the Chapel Hill chancellor and the president of the UNC system. Similarly, it says the role of the Board of Trustees and the Board of Governors needs clarifying. It even goes so far as to recommend moving the president's home from its present location in Chapel Hill. Some of its recommendations may be based on anonymous complaints by individuals the committee interviewed.

The team's contention that UNC-CH is "coasting on its former glory" intimates that this is a "glory" which precedes the University of North Carolina System of which UNC-CH is the flagship institution. That would be a coast of record proportions. It is obvious that much of UNC-CH's pre-eminence as one of the nation's most respected universities has occurred during that 16 year period.

The report offers no indication that the team considered the highly practical matter of North Carolina's success in managing and improving a major system of universities. That is, after all, one of the great successes in American higher education in the past two decades.

The team's members appear unaware of the agony North Carolina endured in shaping the University of North Carolina System which allows UNC-CH to flourish but still leaves adequate area for its sister universities to develop and strengthen.

The consultants certainly could not have done an exhaustive study of the intricate workings of the UNC System's various campuses. Little weight is given to the North Carolina heritage of low in-state tuitions or its high per capita spending for higher education.

The report may be valuable to the search committee in identifying a new chancellor, but it is by no means a reasonable evaluation of the state's university system or its needs. It must be viewed for what it is: a report from outside consultants, not a report of the UNC-CH Search Committee or the Chapel Hill Board of Trustees.

North Carolina has developed a university system that works to the best advantage of all and it should never be tampered with based on the results of this very narrowly drawn report.

A Real Beef

Farming has been tough for the past several years. If you don't believe it, ask the state of North Carolina.

State owned farms have been running in the red. They lost $122,376 in fiscal 1984, $192,974 in 1985, $241,417 in fiscal 1986 and $404,776 in 1987.

It's not that the farms don't have customers. They do — the Department of Human Resources, which would rather buy somewhere else.

Officials explain that they must buy beef from the state farms, but the state hospitals only use hamburger, roast and stew. Consequently the better cuts of beef are ground up to make hamburger, which is expensive to the state hospitals.

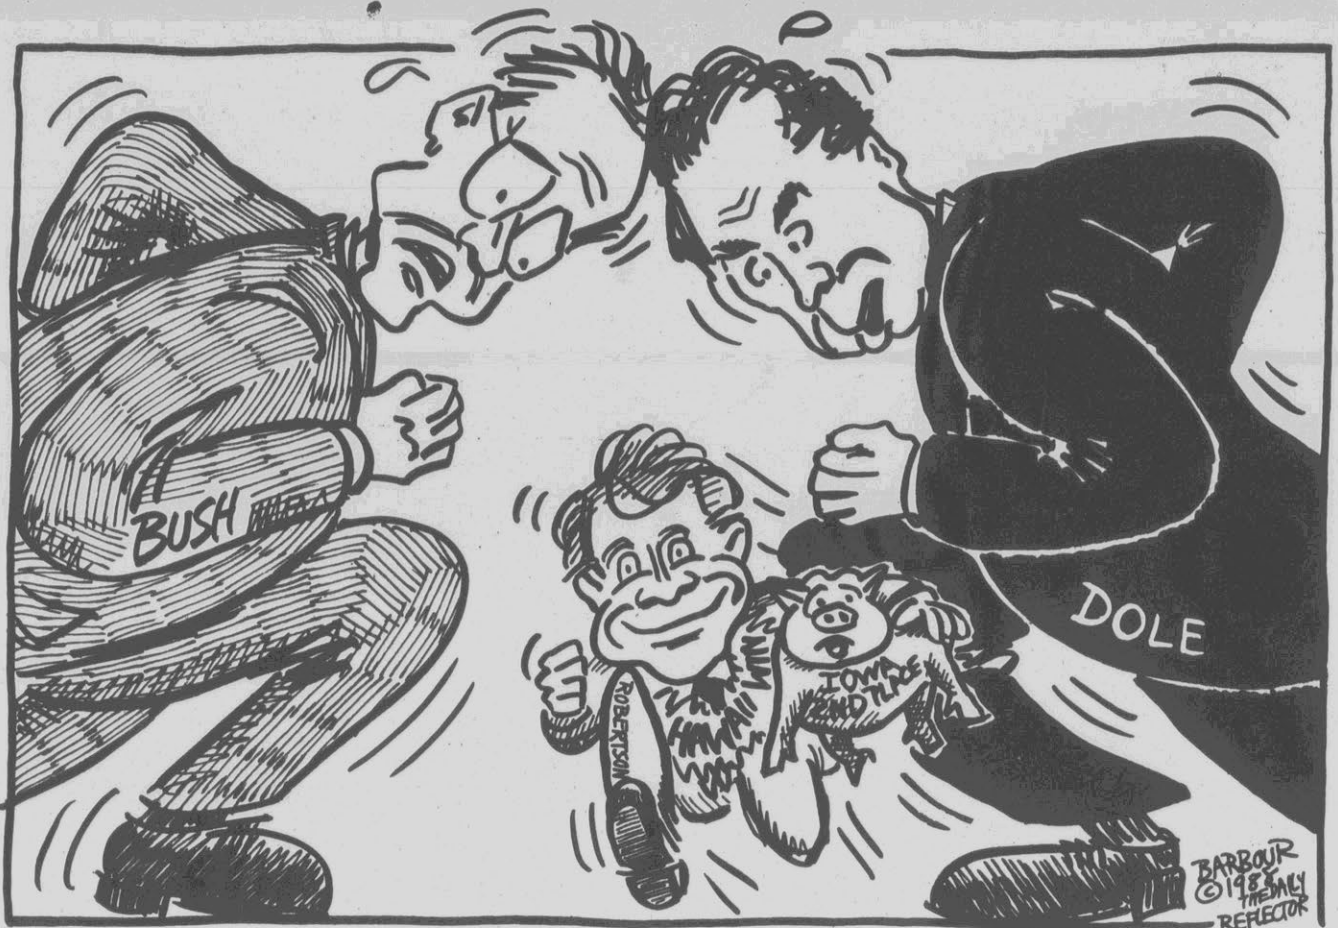

That's given DHR secretary David Flaherty, who says state law requires his department to buy from state farms, something to beef about. What the department is forced to do, he says, is pay for sirloin and grind it up for hamburger.

Flaherty said he would jump at the opportunity to go to the open market to buy beef and it would save tax money. He said the Governor's Efficiency Commission recommended that the state farms be sold 15 years ago, and that should be done.

William G. Parham, Jr., deputy commissioner of agriculture agreed that high price steaks should not be ground up for hamburger. He said that if "all they want is hamburger, it is not in the best interest of the state for us to furnish them cattle."

There seems to be an area of agreement there. There may be good reason as to why North Carolina continues in the farm business, even if the operations are losers. The taxpayers lose twice, however, if the state hospital costs are increased to buy beef that could be purchased at less cost on the open market.

Get together, state agencies, and accomplish this end in the most economical way.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Jack Beatty of The Atlantic Monthly, in his attack in The Daily Reflector on presidential candidate Pat Robertson has caught himself (Beatty) in a trap of his own design that should make his intellectual peers and the public cringe. Beatty infers that he has heard from God, or is setting himself up as a god, by saying that Pat Robertson is telling falsehoods about his experiences with spiritual matters. Beatty's clever words do not cover up his "double-knit" art of showing his own ignorance and bias in the areas he is attacking.

Pat Robertson's positive and honest "tell it like it is" approach to the American people is based on the same bedrock principles and beliefs that produced the greatest and highest form of government the world has ever known — our United States of America.

Beatty ignores Robertson's outstanding accomplishments and experience in education, national policy, business, administration, family and social areas, and in foreign relations over the past 35 years.

Robertson not only has a heart and the expertise for the current problem areas in our land, and what caused them, but he also has a positive plan to help solve these problems for the long run, rather than the ineffective "Band-Aid" approach we have been getting for many years out of Washington.

The Daily Reflector continues to show its anti-Robertson position by printing Beatty's "sick" and erroneous column the same day, Jan. 29, 1988, that Pat Robertson was in Greenville for a 550-person luncheon.

To the editor:

The No. 1 killer of children in the United States is the trauma they suffer as passengers in motor vehicle crashes. The correct use of child safety seats is over 70 percent effective in preventing these senseless deaths and 67 percent effective in reducing the need for hospitalization. Tragically, less than half of the nation's young children are properly protected in their car safety seats.

February 7-13 is "National Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week." Organizations representing areas such as government, insurance companies, health care institutions, auto manufacturers, and safety advocate groups have joined together this week to encourage adult motorists to take heed to the timely reminder to "Be A Valentine for Life: Buckle Up Your Family."

Due to the wide variety of safety seats available, specific directions vary. By carefully reviewing the instructions on correct installation and usage, you can be certain your child is properly protected.

Children depend on us for almost every aspect of their day-to-day living. Not only is it smart to protect our child passengers, it's the law. Each state now has enacted laws requiring young children to ride in safety seats. As a part of HealthQuest, Pitt County Memorial Hospital's Wellness program, we promote the use of seat belts among our employees and their families, and we are involved in community occupant safety promotion.

Let this Valentine's Day remind all of us of our responsibility to protect that which is most important to us — the lives of our children.

To the editor:

How does one pick up the pieces and go on when they have lost a child? You know, so many times families are faced with this question, and right here in Greenville, there are many of us who have had to deal with this. In our case, we lost a beautiful 15-month-old daughter five years ago this past Nov. 20 due to the fact that I did not put her in her car safety seat. It wasn't out of negligence. I did it because she was tired and I thought, just this once, she would rest better if I let her sleep lying in the seat. It only took that once. With two hours after making that decision, she fell out of my car, losing her life and leaving me with guilt and my entire family with the emptiness of never seeing her grow up. This is something we'll carry in our hearts for the rest of our lives.

Parents, I plead with each of you who have small children to take time to buckle your kids up. I've seen so many children not in their safety seats and each time I see this, my heart aches so badly because it brings back that horrible nightmare of losing our daughter and how she died. Never think this can't or won't happen to you. It could. Any time they're not buckled up, you're taking that chance, and the stakes are too high. I pray this will never happen to any one of you. Protect your children. God has been so good to have loaned them to us for ever how long it may be. Help make their lives long, happy, safe ones and hopefully you'll never experience the pain and agony that we've lived with for five years and will have to live with for the rest of our lives.

This is National Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week. Buckle up your child.

Iowa Results Mean Skirmish For GOP

DES MOINES, Iowa — The first serious skirmish of the 1988 presidential campaign here in Iowa has thrown the hitherto orderly contest for the GOP nomination into turmoil and increased the chances of it becoming a prolonged and divisive struggle.

The big questions are whether Vice President George Bush can recover from his humiliating third-place finish, whether the winner, Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, can take over Bush's front-runner role, and whether former television evangelist Pat Robertson, who finished a surprising second, can match his Iowa success in a broad-based primary.

On the other hand, as candidates in both parties girded for next Tuesday's first-in-the-nation presidential primary in New Hampshire, the results of Monday night's vote here seem to have put the Democratic competition into sharper focus. A strong possibility is emerging that the primary will turn into mainly a one-on-one contest between the Iowa victor, Missouri Rep. Richard A. Gephardt, and Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

Dukakis finished third here but has long held a commanding lead in polls in New Hampshire.

But the most dramatic change was in the Republican contest, which has long been defined by the commanding lead Bush that held in the polls almost everywhere in the country except in Iowa.

It had been anticipated that Bush might lose in this state to Dole. But most observers expected that the margin would be no greater than five to ten points and that Bush would quickly recover in New Hampshire, where polls have shown him to be well ahead of Dole.

But Bush lost to Dole by a two-to-one margin, and even more embarrassing, trailed behind Robertson.

Bush's strategists sought to explain their defeat by blaming the result in large part on the relative unpopularity of Reagan's policies

'But the most dramatic change was in the Republican contest, which has long been defined by the commanding lead Bush that held in the polls almost everywhere in the country except in Iowa.'

here. "If you liked Ronald Reagan you supported Bush and if you didn't you supported Dole," said Rich Bond, Bush national political director. "And there were twice as many of them as there were of us."

That contention was borne out in part by findings of a Los Angeles Times exit poll of caucus attendees, which showed that one-third of Dole's supporters disapproved of Reagan's job performance, but only one-tenth of Bush's did.

But polling by the Dole campaign suggested more fundamental problems with Bush's candidacy that did not bode well for his political future. When voters were asked which candidate could make a difference as president, according to Dole pollster Richard Wirthlin, Dole held a 25 percent advantage over Bush. And on the question of which would make a stronger leader, Dole edged Bush by 30 percent.

Bush himself was holding onto the hope that history would repeat itself — that, like Reagan in 1980, he would follow an Iowa loss with a New Hampshire victory. Ironically, it was Bush who was the Iowa victor that year.

"I remember 1980 and that's ringing very clearly in my mind right now," he said Tuesday as stood at the front door of a Nashua computer company, shaking hands in the frigid dawn.

Bush lost New Hampshire after winning in Iowa in that campaign year because, after gaining public attention, he had been unable to develop an effective message to attract support. And it was by no means clear Tuesday that the vice president and his advisers had found any more effective way to address the voters of New Hampshire than he had used in Iowa.

His most notable innovation on his first post-Iowa day of campaigning was to tell New Hampshire voters: "I'm one of you," a rephrasing of the "He's one of us" slogan that had helped carry Iowa for Midwesterner Dole.

Actually, it was Dole, the Iowa victor who was in the position that most resembled Bush's in 1980. Like Bush in that year, Dole has won a victory in Iowa that thrust him into the spotlight. "He now has the attention of the country and the party," his adviser Keene said.

But, as Keene acknowledged, Dole needs to find a broader framework for his positions if he is to gain support in New Hampshire, where he cannot lean so heavily as he did in Iowa on his common geographical roots with the electorate.

Dole will now get the sort of intensive scrutiny from the press and public that he has not yet received. It remains to be seen how he will respond to it.

Even more questions hover over the future of the third major player in the 1988 GOP campaign, Pat Robertson.

Robertson himself seemed uncertain of what he could accomplish in the Granite State. "New Hampshire is tough," he said. "I don't have a good organization there. I would be happy to come out in third place there."

Instead Robertson said he had his eyes on the South. "I'm throwing down the gauntlet in South Carolina," he said.

Strength For Today

Epictetus, the Greek philosopher, asks in one of his Discourses where a man can be found who will love his enemies, forgive his oppressors, or die that others might lead a fuller life. He declares that he has found no such person among even the philosophers of that day.

Whether Epictetus had any actual knowledge of the early Christian movement of his day we do not know. But if he had looked around him in the town in Asia

Minor in which he lived, he would have found men who, following the example of Jesus, were trying to love their enemies and do good to those that spitefully used them. If he had inquired of any of his Christian neighbors, they would have told him of a Man who died for the good of others.

When the Word became flesh, men beheld in living form the moral ideas of which great thinkers had caught but a faint glimpse.

Bush & 'Slo Mo'

Analysis

George Bush once claimed he'd found "big mo" in Iowa. This time it was more like slo mo.

The Republican momentum belonged to Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas and, in an embarrassing setback to the vice president, to former television evangelist Pat Robertson. Bush was relegated to third place in the Iowa precinct caucuses Monday night.

Dole gained 38 percent of the vote in a caucus night straw poll that gave Robertson 24 percent and Bush 19 percent.

While that left Bush a loser, he was hardly "mortally wounded," as Iowa Sen. Charles Grassley, Dole's state chairman, claimed. It won't be that easy to stop an incumbent vice president who leads national GOP preference polls, in the latest New Hampshire primary poll, and in campaign finances.

The benefits of Bush's upset victory over Ronald Reagan in Iowa eight years ago were short lived indeed. "What we will have is momentum," he said then as he headed for New Hampshire. "We will look forward to big mo being on our side, as they say in athletics."

It wasn't there for long. Reagan overwhelmed Bush and the rest of the Republican field in the leadoff presidential primary.

Now Bush is the shaken favorite, seeking the same turnaround.

The calendar makes his task more difficult. Reagan had more than a month to campaign for a New Hampshire reversal of the Iowa upset of 1980. Bush has seven days to undo the damage he suffered.

Iowa Democrats ranked their seven man field with no surprises. Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri was gaining 27 percent, Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois 24 percent, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis 21 percent.

Gephardt claimed victory and all three claimed headway for New Hampshire and the contests to follow.

While the verdict at the top was divided, the message at the bottom of the ballot was unmistakable: caucus voters don't want Gary Hart back. The fallen front runner was getting only 1 percent of the vote, in a state where the pollsters once ranked him the runaway leader.

"I'm back in the role of the underdog," said Hart, "a role I cherish."

Given that outlook and his standing in the polls, Hart may have something to savor in New Hampshire, too.

New Hampshire votes one week from today.

Vice President Bush wasn't denying that he had been slowed by the No. 3 showing in Iowa, but he said it wouldn't last. "I'm going to come back," he said. "I'm not going to be slinking around here."

Dole was as cautious in reacting to victory as Bush in accepting defeat. Robertson did the crowing. He said Iowa proved he had expanded his base into a coalition reaching beyond evangelical Christians to people of every faith, from every walk of life. "I am now the conservative candidate," he said without a kind word for Iowa also rans Jack Kemp and Pete du Pont.

Robertson said he could reach out for GOP voters as Reagan and Dwight Eisenhower did.

That's not what won for him in Iowa. His silent, solid army of evangelical supporters — many if not most of them newcomers to Republican politics — delivered his quarter of the caucus vote.

Proposal For Super Collider Raises Skepticism Among N.C. Residents

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RUTHERFORD, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin says he backs locating the superconducting super collider in North Carolina, but agrees it raises questions about the future of the environment and quality of life.

"Should the decision be made to locate the SSC in North Carolina, I believe that very careful planning must be undertaken to accommodate growth so that we will neither destroy our way of life nor destroy our environment," Martin said at a public hearing on the project sponsored by the federal Department of Energy.

Tuesday's "scoping" hearing is the first step in an environmental impact review of North Carolina's proposal to locate the $4.4 billion atom-smasher in Granville, Durham and Person counties. Similar studies are taking place in the six other states under consideration.

Martin voiced concern that the debate would become "needlessly polarized at extremes."

Some want a "perfect plan" that answers all questions before the project is started and oppose any project such as the super collider before every contingency is provided for, Martin said. "To accept that standard would halt all growth."

On the other extreme are those who favor "rapid growth at all costs because it provides additional wealth and income," Martin said. "They might advocate the SSC or any major project as a growth fetish, regardless of whether it brings genuine benefit to the state or if it endangers the public health, or places an undue strain upon the natural environment."

Despite federal assurances that the collider will be a boon to its host counties, some local residents who will be forced off their land and their neighbors were skeptical about the giant machine's impact on water supplies, farmland and wildlife.

"Many years of ... research experience in this country and around the world show us that the SSC can be operated safely and unobtrusively," Robert Diebold, director of the U.S. Department of energy's SSC Division, said.

"It's the little guy that gets hurt," countered Candy Scharver, a Durham property owner. "When North Carolina wins the super collider, I lose."

People who could be forced to surrender their land complained they had been kept in the dark about the 53-mile underground tunnel that will smash particles together.

"Everybody's been conned and not told everything they were needed to know," John W. Beach, editor of the Oxford Public Ledger, said in an interview. "I'd say no more than five percent of the folks around here favor it."

Charles H. Richards, executive director of the Granville County Chamber of Commerce, disagreed.

"The only objections I've heard are from a few people who want to conserve the old agricultural way of life," Richards said. "But if you look down the road 10 years, you don't know whether many of these tobacco jobs will be there."

Bill Dunn, a Raleigh engineer managing the state's SSC recruitment program, said state officials will hold several meetings with land owners in coming weeks to make clear who would have to move if

North Carolina won the super collider.

Dunn, Martin and other officials repeatedly promised that landowners would receive fair compensation.

Jim Clark, president of an environmentalist group called Save the Water, complained new and expanded highways planned to improve access to the super collider would harm reservoirs and rivers.

"It's unfortunate that Governor Martin is trying to play ring around the reservoir with our drinking water supplies," Clark said.

adding that his group was declaring a "drinking water emergency" for the Triangle area.

Earl Mac Cormac, Martin's science adviser, said Clark was basing his claim on faulty assumptions about where the roads would be built.

Mac Cormac complained in an interview that some environmentalists were spreading inaccurate information to "scare the daylight out of people."

Most of the opponents were landowners who spoke more about losing their property than possible environmental hazards.

Tobacco Farmers Join Conference Via Satellite

By DAVID DROSCHAK
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — About 1,500 tobacco farmers across the Southeast got information on world trade, exports, production techniques and domestic public affairs issues in the first satellite teleconference on tobacco.

"Right now in February, before the first beds are set out, the growers can get up-to-date information on world tobacco ... and have a real good idea going into the 1988 season," Reggie Lester, managing director of the Tobacco Growers Information Committee, said Tuesday.

"The technology is what makes it (the teleconference) possible now," said B.C. Langston, Tobacco Market News spokesman. "I think it is a very good idea to bring a lot of people together to get the same information at the same time. It's also an opportunity to have input into the program and that makes things like this very worthwhile."

Farmers in North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky and Tennessee gathered around large-screen television sets Tuesday for the World Tobacco Satellite Teleconference. After a panel of experts spoke, farmers were able to ask questions by telephone link-ups.

"I came to the conference because it had a lot of interesting people talking about things they specialize in," said Henderson farmer Pete Burgess, who's been a tobacco farmer for 20 years. "Being a tobacco farmer, I wanted to know as much about the industry, knowing what the problems are, solutions and what to expect."

The teleconference was produced by the Tobacco Radio Network and hosted by Ray Wilkinson, network vice president, and sponsored by Chevron-Orthene.

Lester said Wilkinson suggested the teleconference idea as a way to get as much information to as many tobacco farmers as possible.

"Tobacco farmers need to be aware of global influences and not just concentrate on the end of the tobacco root," Lester said.

Burgess said his only question to the panel would have been one the experts probably couldn't answer.

"What is the (tobacco) future is going to be?" he said. "What to do and what sort of plans we should make."

Workers Find Human Remains

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Construction workers on Tuesday uncovered human remains in an uptown Charlotte hotel that is being renovated.

The remains were found about 10:30 a.m. by workers cleaning out the 11-story hotel's boiler room and abandoned elevator shaft.

George Neal, a worker for D.L. Rogers Construction Co., had gone into the basement to remove stacks of boards when he found skeletal remains.

Grand Jury Indicts Indians Involved In Takeover

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Two American Indians who took hostages at gunpoint last week at a Robeson County newspaper have been indicted on seven federal charges by a grand jury in Fayetteville.

Eddie Hatcher, 30, of Pembroke, and Timothy Bryan Jacobs, 19, of the Pembroke area, were indicted after the grand jury heard at least six witnesses testify about the Feb. 1 takeover of The Robesonian in Lumberton. Hatcher was indicted under the name John Edward Clark, his name at birth.

Hatcher and Jacobs, armed with sawed-off shotguns and a pistol, held as many as 19 hostages in the newspaper office and demanded investigations into alleged racial discrimination in the county and alleged corruption among county and state officials.

"I just told them that Eddie Hatcher had made it clear that he had no intentions of harming anyone, that he never pointed a gun at anyone," said Tanya Dial, 23, a hostage who was at the newspaper office to apply for a job when the takeover occurred.

Miss Dial, 23, a Lumbee Indian from Pembroke, said she thought Hatcher and Jacobs should go to prison for the incident, but she said their concerns should receive attention.

"It wasn't right, but it was something they had to do," Miss Dial said. "I agree with why they were doing it. ... I only knew them for a period of 10 hours, and I could see the good in them."

Robesonian Editor Bob Horne said he testified but declined to give specifics of his testimony, saying officials asked him not to comment.

Horne said Hatcher and Jacobs managed to call attention to their "perceived problems" through the incident.

"I believe they accomplished more in 10 hours than has probably been accomplished in a hundred years," he said.

Larry Blue, a former Robesonian reporter who now works for the county government, said he also testified.

"They just asked us to tell them what happened last Monday, which is something we've been doing for a week now," Blue said. "They didn't ask for any opinions."

Others who testified were Robesonian employees Renee Bollinger and Linda Barnes, and Connee Brayboy, editor of The Carolina Indian Voice, a weekly newspaper in Pembroke.

Mrs. Brayboy is organizing a defense fund for Hatcher, Jacobs and John Hunt, an inmate in the Robeson County Jail at the time of the takeover. Hatcher demanded that Hunt be moved to another jail, but Hunt refused and was released on bail Friday with the help of some proceeds from the defense fund.

The seven-count indictment charges Hatcher and Jacobs with conspiracy to make and possess firearms, conspiracy to take hostages, hostage-taking, using firearms to commit a hostage-taking offense, two counts of making illegal firearms, possession of unregistered firearms and making false threats about explosives over the telephone.

Officials said last week that the hostage-taking charge carries a maximum sentence of life in prison.

The 10-hour siege ended after Gov. Jim Martin agreed to appoint a task force to hear the gunmen's allegations against the Robeson County Sheriff's Department, state and local State Bureau of Investigation agents in the area and the District Attorney's Office.

Also Tuesday, New York civil rights attorney William Kunstler said he was offering to defend Hatcher and Jacobs at no charge.

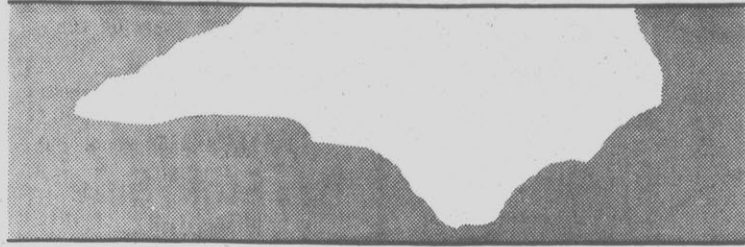

"I'm getting ready to send someone down there as soon as we get some word from Hatcher and Jacobs," Kunstler said. "They may not want us. ... They sound like political people, so the odds are that they will."

Kunstler is the former trial counsel for the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and has defended two American Indian Movement members who participated in a siege of the town of Wounded Knee, S.D., and members of the Black Panthers organization.

Kunstler said AIM officials are urging him to defend Hatcher and Jacobs.

"The seizure of a newspaper office or any place without injury to anybody to protest conditions ... is sort of a standard American practice," he said. "This is hardly a venal crime. The motives were pure and perhaps very much justified."

IN THE STATE

Immunity

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — A Raleigh man has been granted immunity from prosecution for his role in the 1984 slaying of a church music minister, court documents filed in Sampson County indicate.

Jerald Junious Tart, about 25, will not be prosecuted for his "relatively minor involvement" in the stabbing and beating death of Dan Arnold, according to an agreement signed Feb. 16, 1987, by District Attorney William Andrews.

The agreement was filed Friday in preparation for next week's first-degree murder trial of Arnold's wife, Donna Jones Arnold. Mrs. Arnold has been free on $300,000 bond while awaiting the trial.

Red Tide

WILMINGTON (AP) — Toxic levels of red tide algae have been found in only one sample taken this week, while samples from 15 other sites showed no algae at all, state officials say.

If the trend continues, officials said they soon hope to begin reopening some of the 360,000 acres of waters they have closed to shellfishing along more than 200 miles of the coast since early November.

"We might be able to get some of these areas open in a few weeks," William Hogarth, director of the state Division of Marine Fisheries, said Tuesday.

"We don't know how long it will take to cleanse these oysters and clams, but we're very encouraged. It still could be four to six weeks, two months in some these areas, before we open things back up," Hogarth said.

Breakfast

CHARLOTTE (AP) — About 350 people turned out for Charlotte Mayor Sue Myrick's first monthly "Mayor's Prayer Breakfast." The turnout Monday apparently overwhelmed Mayor Myrick.

"I still can't believe you're all here," she said in between tears. Flanked by U.S. and N.C. flags, she said: "Prayer throughout history has changed world events. ... Prayer does work."

Then, for 20 minutes, the participants took turns around each table praying aloud.

No city money went to the event. Private donations will pay for, among other expenses, the 500 sheets of city stationery and envelopes used for invitations, she said.

Plane Gear

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Piedmont Airlines jet with 116 passengers on board, en route to Charlotte, N.C., returned to Los Angeles International Airport minutes after departing when one of the landing gears failed to retract, a Piedmont spokesman said.

The Boeing 767 left Los Angeles Tuesday morning for the non-stop flight to Charlotte, but was back at the boarding gate in 13 minutes, said Don McGuire, vice president of public relations for North Carolina-based Piedmont.

"One of the landing gears did not retract. The plane is on the ground now. It landed without incident. We are trying to find out what malfunctioned so it can be put back in service," McGuire said.

Passengers were advised to stand by until Piedmont mechanics determined the cause of the problem, he said.

Prisons Nearing Cap On Inmates

RALEIGH (AP) — Unless North Carolina's prison population drops today, state officials will be forced to declare the second state of emergency in less than a year and give early parole to about 200 inmates.

"We've obviously got a bit of a cliff-hanger here," state Department of Correction spokesman David Guth said Tuesday. "We're taking it one day at a time."

"It's hard to tell (if the state of emergency will be needed)," state Correction Secretary Aaron Johnson said. "It's sort of up and down. We are doing all that we can within the guidelines we have."

In response to crowded conditions in many prisons, the General Assembly last year approved legislation creating a state of emergency when the prison population exceeds 17,460 inmates for 15 consecutive days.

Building's Top 12 Floors Must Go

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The top 12 floors of a 31-story Manhattan apartment building must be torn down because of zoning restrictions, according to the state's highest court in a decision that will cost the developer $10 million.

The Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday in favor of New York City, which had given the developer permission to build the extra stories on the basis of a faulty zoning map, then realized its mistake and revoked the building permit.

The developer, Parkview Associates of Queens, argued that it shouldn't be forced to demolish the floors because of the city's error.

The high court unanimously agreed with lower court rulings that Parkview Associates violated a special zone limiting the height of buildings along Park Avenue.

Parkview was granted a building permit for the project on Manhattan's Upper East Side on the basis of the faulty map in 1985, but the permit was revoked a year later by Buildings Commissioner Charles Smith after a neighborhood group pointed out the error.

Judge Joseph Bellacosa, writing for the high court, said that even if the city made a mistake in issuing the original permit, "reasonable diligence" by a "good-faith inquirer" would have uncovered the true zoning rules.

"We're gratified," Smith said. "As we have said from the beginning, the owners must legalize that building and that means taking off 12 stories."

"I feel that, given the way in which the zoning must be applied and interpreted, this does send a message to be very, very careful and to question anything about which there may be doubt," he said.

"We are disappointed," said Jeffrey Braun, an attorney for Parkview Associates. Braun said his client had been victimized by a series of city errors.

He said his client would pursue an application for a variance before the New York City Board of Standards and Appeals, and that the company would "consider other remedies," but would not comment on what they would be.

The building remains unoccupied. Parkview had planned to open the building last spring. Braun estimated that it would cost the company $10 million to tear down the 12 stories, but said he didn't know if the developer would do so.

Cities, States Face Federal Tax On Fuel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cities, counties and states are facing increases of up to 20 percent in their budgets for gasoline, thanks to a new law requiring them to pay federal tax on their fuel purchases.

Although state and local governments can file for refunds of the 9.1-cent per gallon gasoline tax, there is no indication how long it will take to get the money back. While they wait, some spending will have to be delayed.

"We anticipate the IRS is going to be flooded with applications for rebates and we have great concern whether they will be able to handle them in a timely fashion," said Lance Simmens, assistant executive director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors. "It could take anywhere from six to 12 months to get a rebate."

The requirement that state and local governments pay the tax was enacted in 1986 but took effect last Jan. 1.

A provision in the 1987 deficit-reduction tax increase, meanwhile, is causing fuel problems for farmers. Starting April 1, they will have to pay a tax of 15.1 cents on each gallon of diesel fuel they buy for off-the-road use, and apply for a refund when they file their federal income-tax returns.

The farmers and the states, cities and counties are being caught up in the federal government's efforts to stop tax cheating.

Congress concluded that the government is losing heavily to unscrupulous operators who developed a variety of schemes to avoid paying the fuel excise taxes. The legislators' solution was to require that the gasoline tax be collected by refineries and the diesel tax by producers.

That reduced the number of tax-collection points but it also deprived farmers and government units of the privilege of not paying the tax.

"The bottom line is that there is a revenue need by the feds," said Susan White, legislative representative of the National Association of Counties. "They want to curb abuse and don't mind doing it with our money."

The temporary cost to counties will be big, Ms. White said, noting a $1 million-a-year estimate for Dade County in Florida.

"We buy about $885,000 worth of gasoline a year and the tax on that is about $80,000," explained Mayor Wayne Corpening of Winston-Salem, N.C. "What we do is pay that $80,000 to the government and lose interest on it. We can't spend the money where it's needed. And the law creates a lot of paperwork for us and for the IRS."

John Colvin, minority tax counsel to the Senate Finance Committee, said lawmakers knew of the adverse impact when the law was being written.

Ex-Panamanian Official Says CIA Issued Reports On Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two senators said today that, despite CIA denials, they believe a former Panamanian official's testimony that the spy agency routinely sent Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega classified reports on U.S. lawmakers.

Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., one of the alleged subjects, and Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., said they don't doubt the veracity of former Panamanian diplomat Jose I. Blandon's assertions about the man who runs Panama's government.

Blandon is "a diplomat. He has never been accused of being involved in any illicit activities. ... So if you examine all of those things and his motives, I have to say that he is an extraordinarily credible witness who has no motive for saying this other than telling the truth," Kerry said on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

Blandon, testifying under oath, told the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on terrorism, narcotics and international communications Tuesday that Noriega often received reports on senators' political views and personal lives in advance of visits by congressional delegations to the Central American nation.

"Jose Blandon has demonstrated great credibility, insight," D'Amato said on the NBC program. "We do know that Noriega has been a paid CIA operative for many, many years — highly paid — so I think the story is consistent."

After Blandon's testimony, the CIA denied that it had supplied Noriega with information on U.S. lawmakers. "The CIA categorically denies Blandon's assertions that the agency furnished any such information regarding U.S. senators or their staffers to the government of Panama," said Sharon Foster, a CIA spokeswoman.

Blandon was slated for a second round of questioning today on the CIA claims, as well as Noriega's alleged involvement in sheltering narcotics traffickers and allowing Panamanian banks to be used as conduits for hundreds of millions of dollars in drug-sale profits.

Also on the witness list was Floyd Carlton, described by Senate investigators as a former Noriega pilot with detailed knowledge of narcotic shipments and other illegal acts.

Blandon also told the subcommittee Tuesday that Noriega actively assisted international drug traffickers, accumulated a personal fortune of more than $200 million, and essentially "turned Panama into a gigantic machine for all sorts of criminal activities and enterprises."

Noriega was indicted last week in Miami for allegedly accepting $4.6

million to provide a safe haven for narcotics and money-laundering operations.

Blandon's testimony appalled senators, especially those whose private lives and political stances were allegedly detailed in CIA dossiers given to Noriega.

Kerry, co-chairman of the Senate subcommittee, called it "as disturbing a revelation as I've heard in the course of a lot of disturbing revelations" about Noriega.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., called the prospect of CIA complicity with Noriega "reprehensible."

If true, Blandon's allegations would mean the CIA violated a law prohibiting it from gathering information about Americans inside the United States.

Noriega's lawyers disputed Blandon's testimony, describing Blandon as willing to "say what any particular bidder wants him to say at any particular time."

But Kerry, who is heading the investigation by the Senate panel, said Blandon is credible because his central accusations have been corroborated by other sources.

Blandon, who was fired by Noriega last month as Panama's consul general in New York City, said reports on senators also were received from the National Security Council and all were routinely passed to him as a member of Panama's security apparatus.

Most of the senators involved were sponsors of legislation aimed at cutting off U.S. aid to Panama because of Noriega's alleged drug connections.

Blandon has testified before the federal grand jury in Miami that indicted Noriega.

Blandon's testimony was marked by an outpouring of accusations, all of them disputed by Noriega and his lawyers. They included these:

- Noriega allied himself with international narcotics cartels and built a corrupt criminal "empire" and a personal fortune through military control of immigration, customs, airports and railroads and other Panamanian institutions.
- Noriega's organization provides armored cars and bodyguards for drug traffickers and money launderers for a fee.

—Cuban President Fidel Castro personally brokered settlement of a dispute between Noriega and Colombia's Medellin narcotics cartel that resulted in the release of 23 arrested Colombian drug traffickers without trial.

—Noriega duplicitously sold arms to leftist rebels in El Salvador while at the same time working with the CIA as it opposed the guerrillas.

—Noriega established a lavish lifestyle with a dozen homes in Panama, a residence in France, and a fleet of luxury automobiles and airplanes.

Panama Command Serves As Center For Military Units

QUARRY HEIGHTS, Panama (AP) — The Southern Command, the focus of strained relations between the United States and Panama, has become the center for U.S. military operations in Latin America, from fighting rebels to drug smugglers.

The command, initially created to protect the Panama Canal, took on those additional duties over the decades. Today, 10,000 Army, Navy and Air Force men and women respond to orders from the hillside headquarters of the command.

Called Southcom by its members, the command recently became the focus of the sharply deteriorated relations between the United States and Panama.

Strongman Gen. Antonio Manuel Noriega, who has been indicted in Florida on charges of smuggling drugs and laundering money, on Monday "rejected" the presence of the command in Panama. The officer corps of the Defense Forces he heads called for the removal of U.S. forces from Panama.

Many Panamanian officers now live in the whitewashed wooden homes built for American personnel in the 1920s with neatly groomed lawns along streets that still bear English, rather than Spanish, names.

About 370 military men and women are based at Southcom's Quarry Heights headquarters just outside Panama City. The other main installations are Howard air base, Fort Clayton, Fort Sherman and Fort William Davis.

Ormsbee said the U.S. government injected about $200 million into the Panamanian economy in goods, services and salaries during 1986.

The Southern Command traces its beginnings to the arrival of the Marines in Panama in 1903.

Noriega is the country's top military officer and de facto leader. He emerged as the top leader in Panama in 1983 and is widely regarded as retaining real power despite the election of a civilian government in 1985.

According to the 1977 Panama Canal Treaties, the 50-mile-long waterway linking the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and the U.S. military bases along its shores will be turned over to Panamanians on Dec. 31, 1999.

Until that time, the United States is responsible for running the canal. The treaties say the bases are under the "complete control" of Washington.

"We've been making preliminary plans for withdrawal (in 1999)," Southcom spokesman William Ormsbee said. "Withdrawal is not synonymous with the end of Southcom."

Even after the treaties are fully implemented and the bases are turned over to Panama, the United States is committed under the pacts to guarantee the neutrality of the waterway "indefinitely."

Since the treaties went into effect in 1978, several military installations have been turned over to Panama and the Canal Zone was dissolved as a legal entity.

Human-Powered Airplane Crashes

By THOMAS H. WAUGH II
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

LOS ANGELES — Daedalus, the human-powered airplane that a Massachusetts Institute of Technology team hopes to fly from Crete to Greece this spring, has crashed in a training flight at Edwards Air Force Base.

The Sunday accident is expected to set back the team's training schedule, already delayed by rain and winds, by at least another two weeks.

If successful, the 74-mile Crete-to-Greece flight, now set for late April or May, will break the distance record for human-powered flight set at Edwards by medical student Glenn Tremml in January 1987. Tremml flew a prototype of Daedalus, called the Eagle, 37.2 miles in 2 hours, 13 minutes, and 14 seconds.

Amateur cyclist Erik Schmidt was 17 minutes into his maiden flight in the 70-pound Daedalus Sunday morning when he attempted to make a right turn. During the turn, the left wing lifted suddenly, causing the right wing to strike the ground, followed by the fuselage.

"It was definitely not pilot error," said Peggie Scott, the team's administrative officer. Scott speculated that the crash was the result of turbulence caused by solar heating of the dry lake bed where the tests were being conducted.

Schmidt was not injured, but both the fuselage and the 112-foot wing assembly were damaged. Scott estimated that repairs will require about two weeks after the plane is returned to MIT.

"We've said all along that the project is primarily a hands-on learning and education experience," said project director John Langford. "Now we'll have a chance to see what's involved in getting a damaged aircraft repaired and back into the air."

Meanwhile, the student, faculty and alumni team at MIT is rushing to complete construction of an identical backup plane. Scott said that the team hopes to have the plane finished by next Wednesday. After that, it is to be trucked to California.

Sunday's flight was being conducted "to get the bugs out" of the Daedalus, Scott said. One earlier flight had shown, for example, that a control cable tended to slip off a pulley, forcing the pilot to land. Because of the bad weather, the team's five cyclist-pilots had so far managed a total of only one hour of such trouble-shooting flights.

When the backup plane arrives, the team hopes that each pilot will amass 2 to 2½ hours of flight time in it, she added. Both planes will then be shipped to Crete, along with the Eagle.

Soviets' Top Officers Endorse INF Treaty

By WILLIAM J. EATON
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union rolled out some of its biggest guns Tuesday to endorse the medium range nuclear missile treaty.

Yegor K. Ligachev, second in command to Mikhail S. Gorbachev, joined with Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze and Defense Minister Dmitry T. Yazov in defending the treaty against unidentified critics.

The so-called hearings sponsored by the Supreme Soviet, the parliament that has never voted down any proposal advanced by the Communist Party high command, opened the Soviet ratification process of the Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty with the United States.

While the outcome is not in doubt, the Gorbachev administration apparently wants to present the mirror image of the U.S. Senate's advise-and-consent process on the treaty signed by Gorbachev and President Reagan last December.

Three members of the Politburo and two non-voting members of that ruling body attended the session — roughly equivalent to a turnout by five members of the American president's 13-member Cabinet.

In its only unanimous decision Tuesday, the Foreign Affairs Commissions of the two chambers of the Supreme Soviet decided to name a 10-member preparatory committee to study the treaty and come back with its decision on ratification.

In the first two hours of talk, however, no dissenting voice was heard in the ceremonial meeting room in the Kremlin, where some of the Soviet Union's most celebrated officials were assembled.

"Where is your Jesse Helms?" an American reporter asked a Soviet official, referring to the arch-critic of the INF treaty who is leading the opposition in the U.S. Senate.

"We have to create our own Jesse Helms," the official replied, indicating that open opposition to the agreement would have to be orchestrated if it were going to be expressed.

Even so, speakers at the televised session said that many Soviet citizens were concerned that the Soviet Union had given away too much to the United States in the treaty negotiations.

Republicans Shun King Day Proposal

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Republicans who control the Legislature reacted coldly to Democratic acting Gov. Rose Mofford's proposal to revive a Martin Luther King holiday as a symbol of state government decisiveness and unity.

"Would it ever be divisive?" House Majority Leader Jim Ratliff said Tuesday. "Now is not the time to get into that one" as the Senate gears up for the impeachment trial of Gov. Evan Mecham.

However, House Minority Leader Art Hamilton, a Democrat, said he agreed with Mrs. Mofford that a King holiday could be an important part of the political healing process in Arizona.

Mecham, a Republican, first stirred controversy when he took office last year by rescinding Democratic former Gov. Bruce Babbitt's order for a King holiday for state employees.

The Senate on Tuesday formally scheduled an impeachment trial Feb. 22 for Mecham, who also faces a May 17 recall election and criminal charges of allegedly concealing a $350,000 campaign loan.

Mecham, who has pleaded innocent to the criminal charges, arrived alone at the Capitol to continue clearing out his office. He told reporters he would move out "as fast as I can, that's what they want." He said his goal was to "get to work and get it all straightened out so I can come back and put things on the course I want to."

He declined to comment on Mrs. Mofford's King Day proposal, adding, "I'm very hard to bother."

Mecham has contended Babbitt's executive order was illegal. Although each house of the Legislature has passed a King Day bill in recent years, the measure has not made it through both houses in the same year.

Mrs. Mofford, the secretary of state who became acting governor after Mecham was impeached by the House on Friday, does not intend to use an executive order to restore the holiday, but will not comment on whether she thinks Babbitt's was illegal, said her spokeswoman, Athia Hardt.

"This has been a national symbol of our disunity," Mrs. Mofford said Monday when she called for the Legislature to enact the holiday. "I feel one of the most decisive things that we can do is to work together and get it behind us."

Engineers Week

National Engineers Week will take place Feb. 21 through Feb. 27 and the Eastern Carolina Chapter of Professional Engineers of North Carolina has planned several activities in efforts to reach junior high and high school students.

The chapter will conduct a "Mouse Trap Car Race" at Washington Square Mall in Washington, N.C., Saturday at 10:30 a.m. The competition is open to high school juniors and seniors. Contestants will design, build and run small cars which must be powered only by the spring from a mouse trap.

The chapter will conduct its annual "Mathcounts" competition at Rose High School Feb. 27. Seventh- and eighth-grade students from the chapter area will compete in solving math problems.

Faculty Member

Dr. Alyne Ricker, a pediatric endocrinologist, has joined the East Carolina University School of Medicine faculty as assistant professor in the department of pediatrics.

She will direct the department's section of pediatric endocrinology and assist in coordinating medical-school sponsored programs such as Camp Needles in the Pines, an annual summer camp for diabetic children.

Dr. Ricker was formerly a faculty member in the endocrinology division at The Children's Hospital in Boston as well as an instructor in pediatrics at Harvard Medical School.

DR. ALYNE RICKER

The Boston native completed her undergraduate education at St. Mary's College in Notre Dame, Ind., and received her medical degree from the University of Geneva in Switzerland.

She finished a pediatrics internship and residency at Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester, N.Y., and completed clinical and research fellowships in pediatric endocrinology at the University of Calgary in Alberta, Canada, and Children's Hospital in Boston.

Benefit Project

The North Carolina Dry Cleaners Association completed during January a trial run of what the organization hopes to make an annual community benefit project — the collecting of coats to be cleaned and mended free and given to the Salvation Army for distribution.

Greenville resident Bill Bowen, vice president and public relations chairman of the state dry cleaners' group, said he was the only dry cleaner in the Greenville area who participated this year.

Bowen said his cleaners and laundromats in Greenville collected about 200 coats during January and his staff cleaned and mended the coats on Saturdays.

Bowen said cleaners in Wilmington and Greensboro conducted larger campaigns and collected thousands of coats. He said next year's project, to be carried out in January, will be larger with every member of the North Carolina Dry Cleaners Association invited to participate.

Selective Service

Barry G. Miller, state director of Selective Service, reminded young men that federal law requires them to register with the Selective Service 30 days before or after their 18th birthday.

Miller said the names of young men who do not register will be referred to the U.S. Department of Justice as potential violators.

Failure to register is a felony, punishable by a fine of up to $250,000 and/or up to five years imprisonment, if convicted, he said. Registration is now required for federal financial aid for school, for federal jobs including the U.S. Postal Service and benefits under the Job Training Partnership Act.

MDA Benefit Set

Sportsworld of Greenville will sponsor a "Great Skate" to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association on Feb. 19 from 6:30 p.m. to 11 p.m.

For more information call Kathy Rawl at Sportsworld, 756-6013, or Holly Marrow at MDA, 818-8714.

Counseling Week

In celebration of National School Counseling Week, teachers at Pacolus Elementary School were given information on how they can include guidance activities in the curriculum.

Students received folders containing information about their counselors. A bulletin board displayed answers to "What is counseling?"

A representative of the Greenville Museum of Art recently visited fifth-grade students. Various art forms, including watercolors, oils, acrylics, pen and ink sketches, etchings, lithographs and photographs, were presented.

In commemoration of Black History Month, sculpture and pottery from Africa were shared.

RECAST Gathering

Regional Eastern Carolina Affirmative Student Training steering committee members and advisers for the clubs met recently at Pitt County Memorial Hospital for a mid-year miniworkshop and program review.

RECAST is a cooperative effort by industries, businesses, the Pitt County schools and the Economic Education Committee of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce to assist in increasing the number of minority and female students in pursuing careers in math, science and engineering.

Each unit in the Pitt County schools with grades seven through 12 has a RECAST club, and participation is open to all professional, business and industrial employees who fulfill membership criteria.

A spokesman said 48 Pitt County RECAST club members will compete in math, science and writing skills during the conference March 10-11 at North Carolina State University.

An activity in late spring is being planned to include a quiz bowl, a rocket building and launching competition and other programs. Scholarships will be awarded to senior RECAST club students.

School Activities

A group of third-grade students at Bethel Elementary School recently visited the Bethel Post Office where the postmaster gave them a tour.

The school's Media Center will sponsor a book fair through Monday from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. each day. The event offers students opportunities to buy paperback books of their choice.

A talent show for grades kindergarten through five will be held Friday at 9:30 a.m. in the school auditorium. A talent show for grades six through eight will be held Feb. 19 from 1:30 p.m. to 2:15 p.m.

Falkland Elementary

Fifth-grade science students at Falkland Elementary School were visited recently by Jim Fountain, a representative of Carolina Telephone, who demonstrated some basics in electrical wiring and current electricity.

Students sent hand-made valentines to The Plaza for display. The valentines will be distributed later to local nursing homes and at the hospital.

The Student Council recently sponsored a "Brush Your Teeth" day. Students carried toothbrushes and toothpaste to brush after lunch as part of Dental Health Month activities planned at the school.

Frank Holden presented a program on video art and students learned the concept and worked in small groups to create their own video art. A language activity follow-up allowed students to describe what they saw in the visual art.

THE ASPIRIN YOU CAN LIVE WITH.

Ascriptin is aspirin with Maalox to protect your stomach.

This may be the most important ad you'll ever read. A single aspirin tablet every other day can cut a man's chances of getting a heart attack almost in half, according to a major new study.

But it can also upset your stomach. So ask your doctor about Ascriptin. The aspirin you can live with.

Only Ascriptin gives you the full power of aspirin with the unique stomach protection of Maalox in the same tablet. It's the buffered aspirin doctors choose most for themselves.

The Maalox comforts your stomach as only Maalox can.

While the aspirin works as only aspirin can. Either to relieve a headache. Or to reduce the risk of heart attack—along with proper diet and exercise.

Ascriptin is the aspirin brand more heart doctors recommend and hospitals use most.

By now you've probably heard the news of a major nationwide study of buffered aspirin.

But until now, probably only your doctor has known about Ascriptin.

In fact, it's the aspirin brand nearly twice as many doctors recommend over any others.

Now you know why.

Get Ascriptin. The aspirin you can live with.

Latest In Men's Fashion Frequently Fanciful

By SUZY PATTERSON
AP Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP) — If the hottest new women's fashions sometimes look weird, the men's frequently verge on the fantastical.

As four days of fall and winter menwear showings wound up Monday, it was obvious Paris was bent on enticing men out of their closets and old gray suits.

The International Menswear Salon at the Porte de Versailles attracted 900 exhibitors from 25 countries, plus about 50,000 buyers and journalists.

But the biggest action was on the runways around Paris where creators were showing both zany clothes and good ideas, even for corporate types who'd like to look a little wild on weekends.

Destructured, round-shouldered blazers and belted jackets, huge greatcoats or belted short trench coats and lots of new color — with a big bout of brown — were some overall trendy winners. Pants on the wild side were unpleated but gathered at the belted waist.

Way out guys will shrug their shoulders into padded but sloped looks, wear jackets buttoned up to the breastbone, sport some bicolored lapels, or wear little-boy collars on pea jackets.

Claude Montana's collection was full of strong ideas for a chunky bruiser with an eye to colorful fashion. It featured less leather than usual, with an occasional lamb skin blouson or a toggle-buttoned duffel in acid green with fur lining.

His all-red line was striking: long coats and suits mixing all shades from maroon to fire-engine in blousons, jackets buttoned high up to the red shirt and shortie tie, wide pants pleated at the waist.

Real Walter Mittys will look to Jean-Paul Gaultier, who borrowed his theatrical clothes right out of Sherwood Forest. Robin Hood and all his Merry Men were prancing around in hats shot with arrows, body-suit vests and jackets fastened under the crotch over shiny harlequin or diagonally-striped pants. The multicolored pointed-toe shoes were great for kicking up their little heels.

For evening some very sparkling bowlers with antennae topped velvet turtlenecks applied with fleur-de-lis, the casual silk belted pants sparkling with chain decor. There were some more wearable tunics, blazers and full or narrow pants here, mainly in tones of gold sienna and ochre.

Jean-Charles de Castelbajac played around with his favorite primary colors to jazz up sports clothes, putting huge plaid coats on Canadian Mountie or woodsmen's outfits.

An artist-on-holiday would opt for his fringed, tweed, plaid, blanket coats worn with caviar tweed trousers, complete with white little-boy collars and floppy chiffon bows at the neck.

Issey Miyake's collection came out looking like a bunch of sinister maitre d's at an exotic oriental restaurant. They wore simple white silk shirts notched in front over ultra-full leather or tuxedo-fabric wool. Their skull-capped heads sported a stiff Charlie Chan braid. And in lieu of ties they wore wiry little horsehair dragonflies.

Miyake's best ideas were the zillions of colorful jacquard sweaters — worn over heavily-full pants. The most original were in blue, yellow, olive checkerboard patterns, with bas-relief effects.

Yohji Yamamoto's sober collection based mainly on navy blue was a mix of cockneys, schoolboys and chimney sweeps. The pea jackets and undergraduate scarfs, the bursts of color in suspended pants added some fun. Some of the pants cropped way above the ankle looked like dinky hand-me-downs.

Angelo Tarlazzi not only showed lots of regular lodens and belted suits, but firmly wrapped many models in a shawl, or draped them in vests or sweaters knotted at the waist. These touches borrowed from women's wardrobes may become a trend for some.

More "ooregular guyoo" clothes were shown by Nino Cerruti, who nevertheless got what he called "oocausal chic" by mixing up luxury fabrics in suits with soft lines, many of them belted under the new ultralong full raincoat or trench coat.

For the young country squire he throws in some knit or side-laced knickers, very long cable-knit cardigans.

Pierre Cardin played the field. His colorful blazers, ties and contrasting pants were in a fairly classical vein. But his touch of wit surfaced in outfits like a wide basque belt paired with a burnt-orange shirt, topping the whole thing with a swirly straw hat borrowed from his women's collection. His pants are neater-looking and drag less at the instep.

Yves Saint Laurent's striking and solidly commercial men's collection was designed by Bernard Sanz, lured away from his former job as menswear designer for Hermes.

The clue was touches of color and luxury fabric in clothes cut for everyone from successful yuppies to bankers with a yearn to branch out, if not stifle.

For sport, the excellent fur-collared long parkas, the forest green suede blousons, even the fringed colorful western-style jackets looked wearable — with padded but natural shoulders and easy body lines.

Two-button suits and blazers in greenish, greyish or brown glen plaids or tweeds shot with color could be happily worn with flowered waistcoats and plain or figured ties.

Soft pigskin was a favorite here in pants or brightly-lined blousons. Excellent jacquard sweaters and bright turtlenecks look fine for wear in an informal office. Color also came out in some great reversible trenchcoats with bright silk quilted print linings.

And Sanz has Saint Laurent's touch with subtle color combinations in the luxury fabrics.

As some oocreators play to a stage-struck audience, perhaps in the world of advertising or pop music, the house of Saint Laurent seems to know which side its bread is buttered on. They are aiming at a vast market of well-off guys who don't believe in wearing clothes for gags, and every single piece of clothing shown is meant to sell.

Teen Urged To Have Second Thoughts

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm 19-years-old and have dated this one guy for three years. Since that time, we've done nothing but fight over stupid things. I'm naturally very outgoing and I enjoy being around people, but in the last two years, all that's changed. My boyfriend is four years older than me and he hates to be around people. He's jealous and forbids me even to look at other guys in public. He accuses me of seeing other guys behind his back, even though we're together seven nights a week. He gets mad if I wear clothes that show my legs because he doesn't want any other guys to see them except him.

He doesn't have any friends, and doesn't want any. He has bruised my arms, torn my clothes and called me every dirty name in the book. When he gets upset about anything, he takes it out on me, but for some crazy reason, I love him.

We are supposed to get married in March, but my friends tell me I'll make the biggest mistake of my life if I marry this guy. What do you think? — SECOND THOUGHTS IN MOLINE, ILL.

DEAR SECOND THOUGHTS: You are wise to have second thoughts. And you'd be wiser still to have third and fourth thoughts. Please read the letter you wrote to me, then ask yourself how you define "love."

The guy you "love" is abusive, possessive, jealous without cause, controlling and selfish. Is this the man you want to spend the rest of your life with? Think about it.

DEAR ABBY: Last spring, a classmate of mine from high school (30 years ago) called to tell me that his wife had died. I had only seen him once since we were in high school, and that was five years ago at our 25th high school reunion. (He dated my sister a few times, but not me.) He lives about 60 miles from here.

When he phoned, he said he had been thinking about me, and would love to get together. I said, "That would be nice; my husband and I would enjoy seeing you again." (I emphasized "my husband.")

I told my husband and grown son, and they both think this man is coming on to me. What do you think? Would you say he is being too pushy? All we have in common is having been classmates 30 years ago. — UNCOMFORTABLE

DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE: You are under no obligation to see this man. And yes, I think he is being too pushy. If you feel "uncomfortable," that is sufficient reason to avoid him.

If he calls again, be unavailable — and you needn't feel guilty.

Eyelet Stitch Highlights Sweater

Give yourself, or someone very special, the loveliest Valentine treat of all — an elegant, high-fashion ribbon sweater.

Knitting this classic design in a unique imported cotton ribbon will be a truly enjoyable experience. Two easy cable patterns decorate the front, and an eyelet stitch is worked on the sleeves.

This design is so appealing that I've worked it up in a basic worsted-weight yarn also. So take your pick. Get out your knitting needles and treat yourself to the beauty of ribbon or the more casual look of knitting worsted. Easy-to-follow directions are given for small, medium and large sizes with a quick-knit gauge of 4½ stitches to the inch.

To obtain directions for making the Romantic Ribbon knit, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-021488 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-021488 by sending a check or money order for $73.95 for small or medium, or $78.95 for large to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, instruction leaflet and white cotton ribbon.

Years ago, ribbon garments were fashioned with one-dimensional rayon ribbon that had to be held flat on the needle and adjusted with every stitch so it wouldn't twist.

Pat's Pointers Pat Trexler

Needless to say, this was a painstaking process. Happily, the ribbons made today can be twisted as you knit with them; the twisting only adds to the visual appeal of the garment.

Ribbon drapes beautifully and it is particularly striking when used in pattern stitches. It's great when you want a finished look with a fresh, crisp texture.

Decreasing is a skill every knitter must master, and anytime is a good time for a little refresher on the subject. There are several methods of decreasing. The most common is worked by simply knitting two stitches together. As with most decreases, this leaves a slightly slanted stitch — in this case it has a left-to-right slant.

This is important to know when you are working pairs of decreases, as on either side of a raglan seam line. With the right side of a raglan garment facing you, the decrease at the right edge of any piece should slant from right to left and those at the opposite side should slant from left to right.

So, you obviously need to know at least one other decrease method, and the next most common one happens to be a right-to-left-slanting decrease. In most knitting instructions this is usually abbreviated SKPSSO. Translated, this means to slip one stitch from the left to the right needle, knit the next stitch and then pass the slipped stitch off the needle, passing it over the knitted stitch.

When paired with a "knit two together" decrease used at the end of the row, the two do not seem to match. I find that by slipping the stitch knitwise instead of purlwise I get a better match. It is almost a cardinal rule in knitting that all slipped stitches should be slipped purlwise unless instructed otherwise, but this is the exception that proves the rule.

For a purlwise slip stitch, insert the needle into the first stitch on the left needle as if you were going to purl it; for a knitwise slip stitch, insert the needle into the first stitch as if you were going to knit it. In either case, do not complete the stitch — just slip it from one needle to the other.

into the front of the two slipped stitches, thus returning your needles to the proper knitting position, ready for you to knit these two stitches together.

Finally, you can achieve a right-to-left slant by knitting two stitches together through the back of the stitches. The effects achieved by each of these last three methods are very similar, so I suggest that you try all three and choose the one you prefer.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gained ground today, extending Tuesday's late rally amid talk of a possible easing of the Federal Reserve's credit policy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 12.10 to 1,926.56 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 5 to 2 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 716 up, 276 down and 483 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 32.85 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

A continuing decline in interest rates would stand to benefit stocks by lessening the competitive appeal of bonds and money-market investments.

But brokers said traders were still leery of taking big positions in the stock market in advance of Friday's scheduled report by the Commerce Department on the nation's international trade balance for December.

Gainers among the blue chips included Merck, up 3/4 at 153 1/2; General Motors, up 1/2 at 63 1/2; McDonald's, up 1/4 at 45 1/4, and International Business Machines, up 1/2 at 109 3/4.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .69 to 142.32. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.49 at 270.65.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 18.74 to 1,914.46.

Advancing issues outpaced declines by nearly 2 to 1 on the NYSE, with 967 up, 528 down and 478 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 162.35 million shares, against 168.85 million in the previous session.

for the kids, and then get "Misty Beethoven" for her and Dad," she said.

Addressing the issue of "kiddie-porn," the use of children in pornographic films, Ms. Leonard said people making and distributing such material should be dealt with severely.

"Kiddie porn is sold in an underground market the same way that drugs and illegal guns are sold. You cannot walk into any responsible adult entertainment store and buy kiddie porn," she said.

Ms. Leonard addressed the issue of violence against women in pornography by saying that the violence displayed in the R-rated "slasher" movies, available in video stores, and even the violence on prime-time TV is much worse and has more severe an effect on society.

"We seem to tell our kids that it's all right to be involved in violence, but it's not all right to be involved in sex. There's a strange dichotomy of morals that we are propagating here in this country," she said.

"It's a parental responsibility to keep pornographic material out of your children's hands," she added. "Mostly in the same way that as a parent, you don't let your kids drink your Scotch, drive your car or smoke your cigars."

The women's polarized views were emphasized by their delivery. Ms. Leonard, wearing a clingy, black dress with spiked heels, and dangling earrings, spoke loudly, often using vulgarity in her speech.

Ms. Alexander, in a conservative dress, spoke in a reserved, yet pointed manner.

Following the debate, members of the audience asked questions of the women and made comments regarding the topic.

Ms. Leonard, who signed autographs for fans after the debate's conclusion, said she thought the audience's questions were very good.

"I thought it was a real spicy, spirited debate," she commented.

Ms. Alexander agreed. "This audience was intelligent, well-behaved, polite, and treated us very well in comparison to some of the places that we've been to," she said.

GUC Cites Savings From Peak Switches

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville Utilities Commission board members were told Tuesday night that operation of the utility's load management program saved $178,387 in wholesale power costs in January.

Roger Jones, GUC's director of electric systems, said 15.1 megawatts were shaved from the system's demand between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. on Jan. 27, the time of Carolina Power & Light Company's monthly peak, to produce the demand charge reduction.

Jones said the use of radio-controlled Beat-the-Peak switches on water heaters accounted for $93,269 in savings, while voltage adjustments accounted for another $78,926. The use of generators at GUC's water plant and at Procter & Gamble Paper

Rampants Take 70-56 Victory

Rose Runs By Gryphons

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Keyford Langley canned three 3-point baskets in the third period — and five in all — to lead Rose High School to a 70-56 Big East Conference basketball victory over Rocky Mount Tuesday night.

Earlier, Rose's girls bombed Rocky Mount, 51-32, to retain first place in the league standings.

Rose, now 5-3 in Big East play, jumped off to an early lead, then had to struggle as Rocky Mount closed to within one at the end of the first half.

But Langley's three 3-pointers, all coming in the first four minutes of the third period, helped the Rampants run the lead out to a 12-point margin by the end of the quarter, and Rose cruised after that.

Rocky Mount shot extremely well in the game, hitting 59.1 percent of its shots, but it took 12 fewer than did Rose. The Rampants hit on 46.4 percent, but made six 3-pointers as compared to none for the Gryphons. Rose also added another eight points to the margin at the free throw line.

The Rampants were also aided by 26 turnovers by the Gryphons. Rose finished with 17, but most of those came after the regulars were on the bench in the final quarter. The Rampants also held a 30-25 rebounding margin — after being down 16 to 12 at the half.

Even so, Rose, after taking a 16-point lead three minutes into the final period, saw that lead shrink to 11 before it was finally closed out in a sloppy fourth quarter for both teams.

"I guess when you have a game like this, you try to do too many things," Rose coach Jim Brewington said.

"We had to get them out of the zone in the first half because we weren't hitting from the outside. Then, Keyford got hot in the second half and that broke them. Too, maybe we were thinking about (Wednesday) night's game."

Rose is to entertain Northern Nash in a make-up game from early January. The matchup will be the second between the two teams in less than a week's time. Northern beat Rose on Friday in overtime after scoring a 3-point goal at the horn to tie it up.

"I'm glad that we could get a lead because it gave us a chance to rest people for Wednesday's game. I thought we played better in the second half, both offensively and defensively and we rebounded pretty fair."

Brewington praised the play of Kevin Cobb, who scored 14 points, 10 of them in the second half. The Rampants were without the services of Carlester Crumpler, out sick.

"This is a big week for us," Brewington said. "We need to win them all to stay in the race." Rose, after facing Northern will travel to Wilson Beddingfield on Friday.

Three point goals by Langley and Errol Wooten staked Rose to an early 6-4 lead after the Gryphons had held it at 2-0 and 4-3. After that, Rose never trailed again.

Brian Wille added two free throws, and after an exchange of points, Wooten scored on the break to give Rose a 12-6 lead with 1:33 left.

Rocky Mount cut it back to 14-10 at the horn, however.

Rose stretched the lead to eight on a baseline jumper by Wille with 6:49 left in the half, but Rocky Mount rallied after that behind the play of Myron Sharpe. Sharpe scored five points in a 7-point stretch that closed the gap to 24-23 with 3:59 left.

But Rose managed to maintain the lead the rest of the way, taking a 30-29 lead into the dressing rooms.

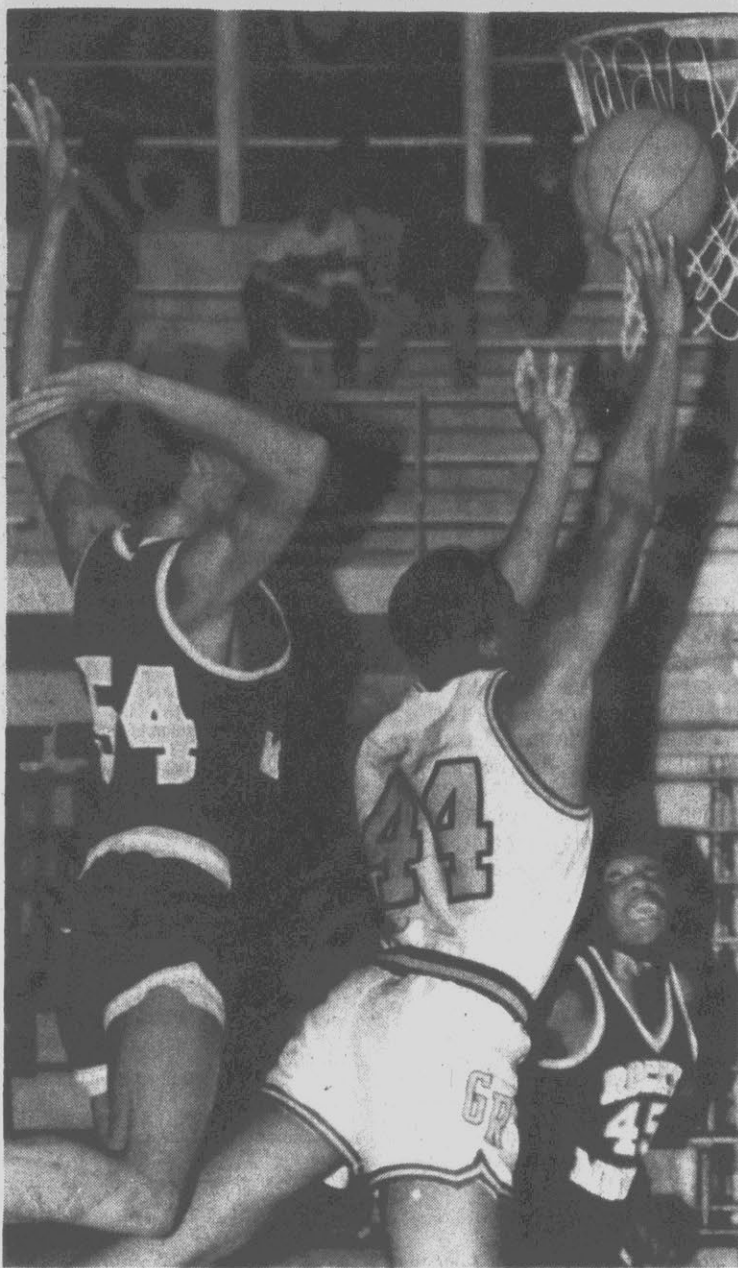

Langley opened the second half with a 3-pointer and after another exchange of baskets, hit another, then added a third for a 41-35 Rose lead. Johnny Ebron scored on a drive and Wooten got a slam. Then Cobb hit from the baseline to finish off a nine-point string and give Rose a 47-35 lead with 1:02 left. Rose led, 49-37, at the horn.

Rose stretched the lead to 57-41 in the first three minutes of the final period, then got a little sloppy after that, allowing Rocky Mount's Joseph Lindburger to score five straight and cut the lead back to 59-48. But a free throw by Wille, a basket by Cobb and one last 3-pointer by Langley ran it quickly back to 65-48 with 2:47 left and it was just a question of winding down the clock.

Langley finished with 21 points while Cobb had 14 and Wooten added 13. Lindburger had 15 and Issac

Blount, Daniels, Barnhill, Sheppard Sign For College

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

Four Pitt County high school football players signed grants with Division I universities today, the national signing date for high school prospects to give a formal commitment to their school of choice.

Ayden-Grifton's Eric Blount announced his intention to sign with North Carolina Feb. 4 and made it official today after considering offers from a number of schools before narrowing the field down to UNC, North Carolina State and Wake Forest.

Also signing today were J.H. Rose linebackers Dave Daniels (5-11, 215) and Adrian Barnhill (6-0, 215). The two were a big part of Rose's 11-1 Big East Championship season as they keyed the defense from their linebacker spots and also split time at fullback.

According to his coach, Chip Williams, Daniels will also be given the opportunity to play baseball for the Pirates.

The final Pitt county player to commit to a division I school is All-State linebacker Ashley Sheppard of North Pitt.

Sheppard committed to Clemson. He had been considering the Tigers, along with South Carolina and East Carolina. He was the only All-State pick in the area and also was the only area player selected to the Shrine Bowl. The 6-3, 210-pound linebacker is considered by many to be one of the top prospects in the state.

He has been a member of the Daily Reflector's All-Area team three years in a row at both linebacker and tight end.

Blount's oral commitment to North Carolina last week ended an intense recruiting period for the 5-10, 175 pound all-purpose back.

Up until two weeks ago, N.C. State had been considered the front runner but following a visit to the UNC campus on the last weekend of January, Blount began to lean towards UNC.

Blount's recruitment was complicated by his desire to also try to play college basketball. Blount has been a three-year starter for the Chargers in basketball, including a visit to the state finals during his sophomore year.

UNC coaches reportedly will give him the opportunity to play football and to try out for the JV basketball team with the promise that if he does well he will be given a shot on the varsity.

Blount played in the shadow of Jesse Hooker as a junior at Ayden-

Grifton, spending most of the year playing at wingback.

He went exclusively to running back his senior year and helped lead the Chargers to an 11-3 record and a trip to the State 2-A Eastern finals where they bowed to eventual state-champion Whiteville, 28-0.

Blount ran for over 1,100 yards during the regular season and another 300 more during the playoffs.

The colleges coveted him as a kick returner/wide receiver.

In other signings, Belhaven's Andreas O'Neal, a 6-5 245-pound linebacker/defensive end, cast his lot with N.C. State. He was a two-year starter for Belhaven and was selected to the Washington Daily News All-Area team this past season.

On Thursday night, Williamston's Francisco Clifford (a 6-1, 220-pound linebacker/fullback) and William Matthews (a 6-0, 180-pound defensive back) both will sign with Winston-Salem State.

North Pitt quarterback Calvin Hunter may sign with Guilford but is still considering other offers.

A number of other players in the area have received attention from colleges but no other commitments had been announced as of press time.

Bench Helps In Conley Victory

Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley coach Walter Claybrook said a solid performance from his reserve players was the catalyst for the Vikings' 73-65 win over Colonial Athletic Association foe North Lenoir in high school basketball Monday night.

"I think the difference tonight was our bench," Claybrook said. "I was telling the guys at the first of the year that since we've got a lot of seniors, who other than Phil (Medlin) don't really stand out that we're going to play a lot of people. I think that paid dividends tonight."

The Vikings placed four players in double figures, led by a senior, Jonathan Bonner, who had moved back into the starting lineup only one game before, with 21 points.

"He's got the potential to be an outstanding player," Claybrook said of Bonner. "It's just a question of mental attitude. He's got all the tools."

Phil Medlin and Bronswell Patrick added 13 points each for Conley.

But Claybrook said the Vikings also got good play out of reserves Major Best, Ed West and Terry Williams. Conley had eight players score and Williams had 10 points off the bench.

The win avenged a 70-68 loss to the Hawks Jan. 15 and gave the Vikings a two-game lead in the Coastal Conference standings with a 7-1 mark (13-5 overall).

But it was a different story for the Vikings this time.

"We got back on defense (this time) and cut out the easy layups," Claybrook said. "We know they are a good shooting team and going to get points that way (outside) but down there we must have given up 12-15 points off of layups."

The Hawks utilize the 3-point opportunity often and hit on four of them in the first half, but they also missed a lot of them.

"Probably the biggest difference (from last time) was we shot the ball a lot better down at our place," said North Lenoir coach Jerry Walton. "We probably had our best shooting night (there)."

"(But) I think Conley was a lot more aggressive on defense (this time). They just came right at us. We weren't getting the open shots. They didn't give them to us."

But the win was by no means easy as North Lenoir hung tough throughout.

Conley led from the outset, building up as much as a 13-point first-half lead before settling for a 37-30 advantage at halftime as North Lenoir scored the last seven points of the second quarter, led by five points by Tyrone Bryant, to narrow the gap.

The Vikings moved out to a 47-34 lead early in the third quarter, as Patrick keyed a 10-4 run with two baskets that gave the Vikings a 13-point edge.

Conley maintained at least a 10-point advantage until the early moments of the fourth quarter when the Hawks rallied.

Bryant opened the period with a jumper that cut it to 53-45 but Conley answered quickly as Medlin hit inside for a 55-45 lead.

Bryant scored again on a drive to cut it to 55-47 and then, following a Conley turnover, moved inside, got his shot blocked by Medlin, grabbed the loose ball, moved further out and nailed a jumper to cut the lead to 55-49 with 6:31 remaining.

The teams then traded individual free throws to make it 56-50 before Conley regained control.

With 5:58 to go, Medlin drove the lane, scored and Norwood Kittrell was called for blocking. Medlin hit the free throw and Conley led 59-50.

North Lenoir tried to get quickly back into it but Dave Hinson missed a 3-point attempt. The teams then traded turnovers before Patrick lobbed a pass to Williams, who tipped it into the basket for a 61-51 Viking lead with 4:58 to go.

North Lenoir later pulled back within seven at 68-61 on a basket by Glenn Whitley with 1:15 to go, but Patrick answered for Conley with a free throw to make it 69-61 with 55 seconds left.

Ed West added two more free throws with 27 seconds remaining to make it 71-61.

North Lenoir's Leon Morgan hit inside with 10 seconds on the clock to make it 71-63 but Bonner shook loose at the other end for a dunk in the closing seconds to score Conley's final points.

North Lenoir's final points came on Bryant's free throws due to a technical foul on Bonner for hanging on the rim.

With the win, Conley has a two-game Coastal lead heading into what may be the toughest part of its schedule. The Vikings must travel to contending conference foe Havelock,

State Extends Sheridan's Contract

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State football coach Dick Sheridan has been given a three-year extension to his original five-year contract, and an option for five more years that could keep him with the Wolfpack through 1998.

Sheridan had three years remaining on his original contract, but the new terms throw out that agreement. The new contract will stand for six years, with an option for five more years that could be picked up in 1992 if both parties agree.

"We feel very fortunate to have Dick Sheridan, and his staff, at N.C. State," Valvano said. "We're pretty close on the type of image we want to bring to N.C. State. The two words that come to mind are class and dignity, and Coach Sheridan has certainly brought that to this university."

Sheridan also was pleased with the agreement.

"I speak for the entire staff when I say it's a very good day for us," he said. "We, as a staff, are very satisfied with N.C. State, and I think this contract shows that N.C. State feels the same way toward us."

"After two years, we know that this is the place we want to be. It takes a special place, and a special harmony for you to want to make a long-term agreement, and this is it for us."

"We've enjoyed a great family atmosphere for the last two years. Jim, and his staff, are responsible for that. At State, we're all trying to be successful together. We're not going to be satisfied until we can compete in the conference, and on the national level. Plus, we want to achieve that with true student athletes who will represent the university with class and dignity."

Sheridan has a 12-10-1 record as the Wolfpack coach and an overall mark of 81-33-3.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Tim Richmond, who regained his NASCAR driver's license after testing negative on a second drug test, has not been in contact with the sanctioning body since his reinstatement on Monday.

A NASCAR spokesman said Tuesday that they have been unable to reach Richmond by telephone to notify him officially and have not heard from the 32-year-old Charlotte, N.C., resident.

Richmond, who was suspended from competition last Saturday after testing positive for a prohibited substance under NASCAR's new drug testing guidelines, still must pass a physical examination administered by the Daytona International Speedway track doctor before being allowed to compete in Sunday's Daytona 500.

But the bearded driver, who missed most of last season because of a bout with pneumonia, did not even have a ride as of Tuesday.

Car-owner and driver Ken Ragan, who was dealing with Richmond for a possible ride before the latter's suspension, said he would be glad to talk to Richmond, but had not heard from the driver.

The NASCAR spokesman also said certain medical records, relating to last year's illness, still had not been received. The records had been requested by the track doctor from Richmond two weeks ago.

Three ACC Teams Sending A Message

RALEIGH (AP) — Some Atlantic Coast Conference basketball players aren't waiting until they turn professional to have their own bubblegum cards.

The cards, being handed out by policemen, feature players from Duke, North Carolina and N.C. State with anti-drug messages on the back.

"We certainly are role models whether we want to be or not," North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said Tuesday during the weekly telephone news conference of ACC coaches. "We are the largest schools in the state, and with no professional team yet, our players are known from television."

"These cards are like Mickey Mantle baseball cards at some schools," Smith said.

"It's not cool to smoke now in high school or college," Smith said. "When I was growing up everybody watched old movies and smoked. This is a step forward."

"I think the ACC has really stepped to the forefront in the fight against drugs," said Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski, who along with his team, met President Reagan on Monday during his visit to Duke University for a drug abuse conference. "I know one thing, Duke will give it its full support."

The color cards were first started last year by the Oklahoma football team in conjunction with the NCAA, according to Jay Deutsch, president of Sports Market Inc., the Seattle company which produces the cards.

The North Carolina basketball team joined Oklahoma last year with an order of 10,000 sets, while Duke and N.C. State ordered the cards this year, according to Deutsch.

"The kids go nuts over these cards," he said. "This is the first way for a school to be involved in a drug awareness promotion. It makes the athletes into clean role models to follow. It's going over real well."

Deutsch said corporate sponsors like IBM, Glaxo Inc., Blue Cross Blue Shield and Adolescent Care Unit pay for the cost of the cards, which are distributed to police officers by schools.

Duke, N.C. State and North Carolina are among only six schools in the country to participate in the card project, Deutsch said.

BETHEL — Farmville Central's Jaguars continued their stroll through the Eastern Plains Conference, downing North Pitt, 68-56, Tuesday night to remain unbeaten in league play.

Farmville's boys, who are now 8-0 in league play, pushed out into a 19-14 lead in the first eight minutes of play. The pace slowed somewhat in the second quarter, but Farmville still came out ahead, 12-9, and took a 31-23 lead into the dressing rooms.

"It'll probably be in the back of our mind," Claybrook said. "But we've got to take it one game at a time."

In the girls' game, North Lenoir came from behind to post a 30-27 win over the Valkyries.

Conley led 15-9 at the half but North Lenoir opened the third quarter with 12 unanswered points to take a 21-15 lead before the Valkyries finally broke the ice on a layup by Amy Allen with 46 seconds to go in the period.

North Lenoir quickly answered with a follow shot by Lafontres Jones and two free throws by Tisha Bouie for a 25-17 lead.

But Conley rallied back. Trailing 26-20, Charlene Davenport scored on a follow shot and a 3-point bucket to pull within 26-25.

But with 26 seconds left, Bouie hit a layup to make it 28-27 and then came up with a steal and scored again to make it 30-27 with six seconds left, sealing the win for the Lady Hawks.

Sooners Run Past Cornhuskers

By The Associated Press
The Oklahoma Sooners are No. 1 in the Big Eight Conference. Nebraska Coach Danny Nee thinks they may be No. 1 in the nation as well.

"When I look at Oklahoma, I use superlatives," Nee said after the fourth-ranked Sooners whipped his Cornhuskers 92-77 Tuesday night. "I think they're very, very well-coached. I think they're a good defensive team and an explosive, powerful offensive team."

"They're a beautiful basketball team to watch because they're exciting, strong and talented. They seem to glide up and down the court."

The Sooners glided into first place in the Big Eight with a 7-1 record when 14th-ranked Kansas State lost to Missouri 79-75 and slipped to 6-1. In the only other game involving a member of the Associated Press Top Twenty, Michael Smith scored 24 points and Jeff Chatman added 21 as eighth-ranked Brigham Young rebounded from its only loss of the season and beat Miami of Florida 99-86.

Dave Sieger scored 19 points to lead five Oklahoma players in double figures at Lincoln, Neb. The Sooners never trailed, jumping out to a 10-1 lead in the first 2½ minutes as Nebraska missed its first nine shots.

Taking advantage of 16 first-half turnovers by the Cornhuskers, Oklahoma, 21-2 overall, built its lead to 47-27 at halftime. Nebraska never got closer than the 15-point final margin.

Joining Sieger in double figures were Ricky Grace and Stacey King, each with 18 points; Harvey Grant with 16 and Mookie Blaylock with 12. Derrick Vick scored 16 for Nebraska.

"The big thing was for us to get up early in the ballgame to get the crowd out of the game," Sieger said. "That early lead got to them and shook their confidence some."

Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs was happy to get an early lead.

"It's good to get up by as many as you can because nothing's sacred here," Tubbs said. "I'd advise anybody coming in here to get as big a lead as they can because you're probably going to need it later."

Missouri 79, No. 14 Kansas State 75
Mike Sandbothe and Derrick Chievous each sank two free throws in the final seconds as Missouri beat visiting Kansas State for the seventh straight time.

Kansas State's Fred McCoy made a 3-point shot to tie the score 75-75 with seven seconds left. But as Missouri tried to pass the ball in-bounds, K-State's Mitch Richmond was called for a deliberate foul on Sandbothe, who made his two free throws with five seconds left.

The Tigers retained possession and Chievous was fouled with three seconds remaining and sank two free throws for the final margin. Chievous scored 26 points and Lee Coward 25 for Missouri. William Scott had 20 and Richmond 18 for Kansas State.

The Wildcats lost despite making 12 of 18 shots from 3-point range; Missouri was 11-for-20 from long range.

"The 3-point play has changed the game," Missouri Coach Norm Stewart said. "To be honest with you, I don't know why I voted for that. Now you can foul for profit."

"I thought it was a good basketball game," Kansas State Coach Lon Kruger said. "It was tough to lose, but both teams played well. I don't feel good about us losing, but I'm proud of our effort. This loss doesn't destroy us."

No. 8 BYU 99, Miami, Fla. 86
At Provo, Utah, Miami led 21-20 with 11:30 left in the first half before Brian Taylor keyed a 12-4 run that put 18-1 BYU in control. Taylor had two 3-point baskets and a 2-pointer during the spurt.

BYU led 57-42 at halftime but Miami used a 10-2 spurt to close to 59-52 with 17:11 left. The Cougars responded with a 16-4 run of their own and Chatman's slam-dunk with 12 minutes remaining gave BYU a 75-57 lead.

Joining Smith and Chatman in double figures for BYU where Usevitch with 19 points, Taylor with 17 and Marty Haws with 11. Eric Brown led Miami with 28.

"We're a pretty good ballclub, but not quite in sync," said BYU Coach Ladell Andersen, whose club lost at Alabama-Birmingham 102-83 on Saturday night. "We got shaky four plays in a row and they capitalized on it."

Miami Coach Bill Foster wasn't disappointed with his team's play.

"We put ourselves in a position to win the second half, and that's with no seniors," Foster said. "I was really pleased with our second half."

Elsewhere:
—At East Rutherford, N.J.,

Charles Smith scored a career-high 28 points and Georgetown rallied from a 14-point first-half deficit to defeat Seton Hall 66-60 in a Big East Conference game. The Hoyas had lost two games in a row and dropped out of the Top Twenty.

Badly outplayed in the opening half, when it was held to a season-low 24 points, Georgetown turned things around in the first seven minutes of the second half, outscoring Seton Hall 13-2 to take a 37-34 lead. Smith, who scored 14 points in each half, hit a twisting underhand scoop shot and two jumpers to fuel a 10-4 burst that gave Georgetown a 49-43 lead.

Martin Salley topped Seton Hall with 13 points, all in the first half. He scored nine points in a 24-6 run that gave Seton Hall a 26-12 lead. Smith scored six points just before halftime to put the Hoyas in position for their second-half run.

—At Niagara Falls, N.Y., Rick Williams and Jeff Robinson each made four 3-point shots in the first half as Siena cruised to a 91-68 victory over Niagara. Williams led all scorers with a career-high 33 points and Robinson added 17 as the Indians, 10-1 and in first place in the ECAC North Atlantic conference, hit 10 of 16 shots from 3-point range. They are 16-3 overall.

"We came in here and we got beat last year by two points, and then they came and beat us at our place," Williams said. "You try not to forget things like that, especially when Niagara is one of the top teams in the conference."

—At Blacksburg, Va., Bimbo Coles scored 24 points and Wally Lancaster led a decisive second-half Virginia Tech run as the Hokies defeated South Carolina 79-62 in a Metro Conference game.

After trailing 44-33 at halftime, the Gamecocks cut Virginia Tech's lead to 62-57 with 5:51 left. But Lancaster scored 10 of his 20 points in a 15-0 run that increased the Hokies' lead to 77-57.

—At Philadelphia, Lionel Simmons scored 15 points and forward Bobby Johnson came off the bench to add 14 as La Salle defeated St. Peter's 56-47. The victory gave the Explorers sole possession of first place in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference with a 9-0 record to 8-1 for St. Peter's. La Salle led 44-40 with 6:50 remaining, then scored eight straight points, seven by Johnson.

—Also at Philadelphia, Dave Orlandini and Bob Scrabas each scored 16 points as Princeton held off a second-half rally by Ivy League rival Pennsylvania for a 60-57 victory. Princeton has a 4-1 Ivy record, trailing 6-0 Dartmouth and 5-1 Cornell.

Early Start Keys Knights To Win

Greenville Christian Academy used a strong first period to forge an early lead and went on to record an 87-65 basketball victory over Bethel Christian Tuesday night.

Greenville's girls also rolled along, downing Bethel, 73-41.

Greenville poured in 35 points during the first eight minutes of the boys' game while limiting Bethel to just nine. From there on out, it was just a question of margin.

"We had a good first quarter," Coach Dale Thatcher said. "The boys were ready to play and did a good job on the boards and the defense was doing well too."

Chocowinity Is Nearing Crown

BATH — Chocowinity's girls moved another step closer to clinching the Tobacco Belt Conference title with a 59-40 win over Bath Tuesday night. The Lady Indians are now 15-1 on the year, a game ahead of Belhaven in the league standings with two games left to play.

Chocowinity's boys also came up a winner on the trip, downing Bath 47-44.

Bath inched out into a 15-14 lead in the opening period of the boys' game. Chocowinity came back, however, 18-8, in the second quarter, building up a 32-23 halftime lead.

The Pirates made another run at the Indians in the third period, 10-6, trimming the lead down to 38-33. Bath again outscored the Tribe, 11-9, in the final quarter, but the rally fell short.

Dale Garrett led Chocowinity with 15 points while Curtis Myers hit 12. Melvin Smith led Bath with 16 while Tommy Warren had 12.

Chocowinity's girls edged out into a 8-2 lead in the first period. Then, in the second frame, the Lady Indians canned 12 of 14 field goal attempts and outshot the Lady Pirates, 26-8. That gave Chocowinity a strong 34-10 halftime lead.

Bath cut two off that in the third quarter, but was still well down, 48-26. A 14-11 margin by Bath in the final period closed it out.

China Grice led Chocowinity with 28 points while Druscilla Crawford added 12. Stephanie Satchell led Bath with 18.

Chocowinity's boys are now 13-5 overall, 12-4 in the TBC. The Tribe travels to Mattamuskeet on Friday.

Olympic Athletes Enjoying The Stay

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Snug inside the icy, windblown Olympic Village, unfazed by dissension ripping part of the U.S. team and mystery lurking among the Italians, most athletes at the Winter Games seem pretty happy.

And why not? They've got a discotheque pumping out the universal language of rock 'n roll, a movie theater showing three films a night, free video games, good grub, warm rooms and a few more days to dream about gold.

It's too cold to wander around outside, where bare trees poke starkly out of the snow and the temperature dips to 10 degrees below zero, and too close to the start of the Games for wild parties. So the athletes train and shop, jam the arcade and dance.

"You bump into everybody," says British bobsledder Dave Armstrong, who thinks one of the best aspects of the Olympics is the opportunity to meet athletes from other countries.

Among the athletes you can bump into most often at the video game arcade are Soviets. Eight of them quietly and very seriously worked the beeping, flashing machines Tuesday night while others waited their turn.

Canadian Robert Niven, the mayor of the village, says life there, however bizarre, "exemplifies what the Olympic movement is all about."

His only regret, he says, is that the popular video game room isn't three times larger.

"While the competition is going on in the other venues, the village is just the opposite," he says. "It is where there is mingling in a friendly environment, where the athletes can share experiences and set out on what can be lifelong relationships."

Some relationships, though, are rather strained. Take Willie Gault and the American bobsled team. Please. This feud is shaping up as an Olympic-size soap opera.

"I feel cheated," cried Don LaVigne, who postponed his senior year at Harvard to compete for the team, only to be dumped when Gault was given a spot. "I have taken the risks and made the sacrifices and commitments, and presumably had qualified."

LaVigne, speaking from his home in Albany, N.Y., apparently presumed too much. Gault, a wide receiver for the Chicago Bears and a former track star, joined bobsled training in January after the Bears were eliminated from the NFL playoffs. He was named as a side-pusher on an alternate four-man bobsled team, although LaVigne said the times with him helping to push the sled were slightly faster than with Gault.

joined the team. But they later reconsidered and said they would take part in the Games.

Gault, who has been criticized before by his Chicago teammates for promoting himself, shrugged off the controversy.

"It's no big deal," he told ABC-TV at the Olympic Village. "It's not a matter of life and death. Playing for the Chicago Bears prepares you for anything."

The Italians came up with a surprise of their own.

Two-time gold medal luge racer Paul Hildgartner says he has been secretly practicing on a "revolutionary sled" that may help him win his third gold.

"We have been testing it for months and I expect great times," he said at the start of the first luge training runs. He disclosed only that the sled has a new body to improve aerodynamics, plus a change in the position of the blades.

Hildgartner won't show the sled to anyone until Friday, the last day of training, because he is afraid other competitors will copy it. There was

Saberhagen, Coleman Agree To New Pacts

NEW YORK (AP) — Bret Saberhagen and Vince Coleman avoided arbitration hearings scheduled for today by agreeing to new contracts, but Tom Henke and John Franco lost their cases.

Free agents Don Baylor, Dan Schatzeder and Ron Kittle also found new teams Tuesday and the St. Louis Cardinals and the Chicago White Sox traded pitchers, with Cardinals sending Rick Horton and rookie outfielder Lance Johnson to the White Sox for Jose DeLeon.

penalizing me every year," said Henke, who made $291,000 in 1987. "There's a lot of money in $725,000, don't get me wrong there. It's more than I've ever made before. But I still don't think it's fair."

Arbitrator Frederick Reel awarded Schatzeder $675,000 instead of the $925,000 he sought. Franco made $300,000 last year.

"We would have preferred to settle without a hearing," Reds general manager Murray Cook said. "This was a decision by a third party over an honest difference of opinion."

Owners have now won five of six cases. Third baseman Mike Pagliarulo of the New York Yankees and pitcher Dave LaPoint of the White Sox had their cases heard Tuesday with decisions expected today. Pitcher Zane Smith of the Atlanta Braves goes before an arbitrator today.

Saberhagen, who was 18-10 last year, will receive $1.1 million in 1988, and $1,250,000 in 1989. The Royals have an option for 1990 at $1,375,000. Saberhagen can earn an additional $275,000 in 1988 in incentive bonuses and $250,000 in 1989 and 1990. Any bonus money will be added to his salary the next season.

He had asked for $1.2 million and the Royals had offered $950,000. Saberhagen made $740,000 in 1987 after winning $925,000 in arbitration in 1986.

Coleman's got a raise of 338 percent from his 1987 salary of $160,000 and can earn $170,000 more in incentives.

"Negotiations went very smoothly and we always felt we were in the ballpark to reach a settlement," said Richie Bry, who represents Coleman.

Coleman had asked for $775,000 while the Cardinals had offered $600,000.

Teufel got a $260,000 raise. He had asked for $615,000 while the Mets offered $477,500.

Saberhagen agreed to a two-year, $2.35 million contract with the Kansas City Royals. Coleman and Cardinals settled for one year at $700,000.

Two other players settled their cases Tuesday — Tim Teufel of the New York Mets for $537,500 and Mickey Tettleton of the Oakland Athletics for $155,000. That reduced the players in arbitration to three.

Baylor signed a one-year contract with the Oakland Athletics for $445,000 with a $50,000 signing bonus, while Schatzeder and Kittle signed one-year deals with the Cleveland Indians. Schatzeder signed for $325,000 and Kittle for $300,000, both with incentive bonus clauses.

Henke, who led the American League with 34 saves last season but was 0-6, had asked for $1,025,000 while the Blue Jays offered $725,000. Arbitrator Raymond Goetz, who heard the case Monday, ruled in favor of the Blue Jays.

"I hope I never have to do this again," Henke said from his home in Missouri, "because I really didn't enjoy it. I didn't enjoy sitting there listening to people I work for tell me I wasn't any good."

Tal Smith, a consultant who argued for the Blue Jays, said no player with less than four years experience was worth $1 million.

Plymouth Triumphs In Overtime, 67-65

Air Jordan Comes Crashing Down

By The Associated Press
After flying high during All-Star weekend, Air Jordan and the high-flying Chicago Bulls were grounded once the regular season resumed.

"It seemed like a letdown from the All-Star weekend," Michael Jordan said Tuesday night after the Detroit Pistons shut down Chicago 89-74. "I have to admit, I'm completely drained."

Jordan, the NBA's leading scorer, dominated the weekend. He won the slam-dunk championship Saturday and was the MVP of Sunday's All-Star Game in Chicago when he made 17 of 23 shots and had 40 points.

But he looked mortal on his home court against Detroit, shooting 7-for-22 from the field in scoring 20 points, about 14 below his average. He had only six points in the second half, including just one basket in the fourth quarter.

The Bulls came within one point of their all-time low, and tied a team record with eight points in the second period, when they shot 1-for-18.

"Tonight, we did not generate any offense," Jordan said. "We were simply awful on offense and definitely out of sync."

In other games, Indiana surprised the Los Angeles Lakers 110-108; Houston beat Boston 129-120; Atlanta edged Philadelphia 112-110; Washington got past New Jersey 126-117 in overtime; Dallas topped Utah 124-93; Milwaukee beat Cleveland 112-104; Denver trounced San Antonio 136-108; Phoenix overcame the Los Angeles Clippers 106-100; Golden State beat Sacramento 117-99 and Portland outscored Seattle 139-123.

Bill Laimbeer had 17 points and 18 rebounds for the visiting Pistons and Isiah Thomas scored 16.

"Defensively, I knew we would do well, but thanks to (Vinnie) Johnson and (Joe) Dumars and (Dennis) Rodman, we were more than a match for Jordan," Thomas said.

Thomas sat out the fourth quarter. He was knocked to the floor by Chicago's Mike Brown in a second-period collision.

"I landed on my back and twisted my knee. Let's just say it was a good hit," Thomas said. "But, if it was Jordan who had been knocked down, everyone in Chicago would have said it was dirty playing, and we would have had another donnybrook."

The teams fought last month and Laimbeer said the Bulls seemed ready to scuffle this time.

"The Bulls tried to start an altercation from the opening tipoff, just like on Jan. 16 when (Detroit's) Rick Mahorn and (Chicago's) Charles Oakley were tossed out of the game, but we were all business," Laimbeer said.

"We refused to fall for the bait, even when Isiah got decked, and we played great team defense."

Johnson and Rodman scored 15 each for Detroit, which Chicago to its second loss in the last 12 home games. The Pistons played without leading scorer Adrian Dantley, who hurt his ankle last week.

Hawks 112, 76ers 110
Dominique Wilkins scored 49 points, including the tiebreaking basket with two seconds left, and led Atlanta over Philadelphia despite Charles Barkley's career-high 47 points.

The 76ers lost in their first game under new coach Jim Lynam, who was promoted from assistant when Matt Guokas was fired.

Wilkins took a lob pass and sank a layup that put the Hawks ahead 112-110. Barkley, whose three-point play with 47 seconds remaining tied the game, missed a 3-point shot as time expired.

Wilkins broke his own Omni record with 25 points in the first quarter. He also had 10 of Atlanta's final 12 points.

Pacers 110, Lakers 108
Vern Fleming and John Long scored 19 points each and Indiana held off Los Angeles, ending the Lakers' seven-game winning streak.

The Pacers led 109-102 with 2:46 left and got only one more point, but still broke the Lakers' 13-game home court winning string and won for only the second time ever in 12 visits to the Forum.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar missed a sky hook with four seconds remaining and James Worthy tipped the rebound to teammate Byron Scott, who missed a 22-foot shot as time expired. Worthy had 30 points, Abdul-Jabbar 21, Magic Johnson 19 and Scott 16.

Rockets 129, Celtics 120
Akeem Olajuwon scored 30 points as Houston beat visiting Boston, which got 44 points from Larry Bird.

The Rockets won their fourth straight and ended a seven-game losing streak against the Celtics. Sleepy Floyd scored all 14 of his points in the second half and helped Houston expand a 123-119 lead with 1:15 remaining. Rodney McCray had 23 points and Purvis Short 21 for the Rockets.

Bird also had 15 rebounds and Kevin McHale added 28 points and 12 rebounds.

Warriors 117, Kings 99
Ralph Sampson had 34 points and 14 rebounds and Chris Mullin scored 27, leading Golden State past Sacramento.

The Warriors won two consecutive games for just the second time this season.

Otis Thorpe scored 24 for the Kings, 2-17 on the road.

Suns 106, Clippers 100
Walter Davis got 11 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter and Phoenix ended a 10-game losing streak by sending the Clippers to their 16th straight road loss.

Eddie Johnson scored 28 for Phoenix, which rallied from an 85-79 deficit after three quarters.

Quintin Dailey had a season-high 33 points for Los Angeles, which has lost seven in a row.

Bullets 126, Nets 117
Bernard King scored 34 points and Frank Johnson 23 as Washington, minus its Malones, beat New Jersey in overtime.

King and Johnson each reached their season highs and Steve Colter scored six of his eight points in overtime.

Moses Malone did not play because of a chipped bone in his left wrist suffered in the All-Star Game and Jeff Malone was out with an eye irritation.

Orlando Woolridge scored 24 for the Nets, now 1-21 on the road this season.

Bucks 112, Cavaliers 104
Terry Cummings scored 29 points as Milwaukee held off Cleveland.

The Bucks led by 10 going into the final quarter before Cleveland got within 93-88. Ricky Pierce and Cummings had two baskets each as Milwaukee responded with a 15-6 run.

Pierce made his first appearance of the season after missing the first half of the season because of a salary dispute.

Brad Daugherty scored 16 points for the Cavaliers.

Mavericks 124, Jazz 93
Derek Harper scored 21 points and sparked a third-quarter burst that helped Dallas defeat Utah.

Harper had seven points during a 21-4 burst that gave the Mavericks a 94-67 lead after three quarters. Roy Tarpley had 19 points and 13 rebounds and Rolando Blackman scored 18 points as Dallas ended a four-game losing streak.

Karl Malone scored 18 for the visiting Jazz, which had won four in a row.

Trail Blazers 139, SuperSonics 123
Kiki Vandeweghe, playing in his third game since returning from a back injury, scored 33 points as Portland defeated Seattle.

Tom Chambers scored 21 points for the SuperSonics, who lost their fifth straight game.

Tyson Marries, Looks To Tubbs

NEW YORK (AP) — The word is out on Mike Tyson, the unbeaten, undisputed heavyweight champion.

"He's very lovable."

That pronouncement came from the new Mrs. Tyson — television actress Robin Givens, who married Tyson in a civil ceremony here Tuesday morning.

The Tysons and Tony Tubbs appeared Tuesday night at a satellite news conference, where all three fielded questions from reporters in New York and Tokyo about Tyson's title defense against Tubbs March 21 at Tokyo — and about the marriage.

"She had a gun to my head," Tyson said when asked about the sudden marriage. "C'mon, I'm in love with her."

"Michael is very spontaneous," she said. "I love his mind."

Boxing fans love his mindset when it comes to his profession.

Asked from Tokyo about the essence of approach to boxing, lovable Mike said:

"I like getting paid and it's fun being rich, but I'd give it all away just for a win."

As a pro, wins are all he has known in 33 fights, and his fight against Tubbs is expected to be no different. Wheels already are turning for a major money match between Tyson and Michael Spinks, and a contract could be signed by early next week.

"I have to box to the best of my ability and make sure what I do is best for me," said Tubbs, who is a former World Boxing Association champion, and has a 24-1 record.

Promoter Don King addressed the news conference, but his pronouncements were kept to a minimum because of scheduled satellite time. He did get in a toast to the newlyweds.

"In Chicago he grabbed me and said, 'Let's get married,'" Givens said.

They attended the NBA All-Star Game at Chicago Sunday, then were married by the Rev. George Clements, a Catholic priest who is a friend of Tyson.

However, they didn't have time to fulfill Illinois regulations for a marriage license. So they came to New York, got the 24-hour waiting period waived and were married by a judge.

Educator Says Students, Parents Mislead By High Marks On Tests

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
 AP Education Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Parents and children alike are being misled by achievement tests with a "Lake Wobegon effect" in which most students' scores are declared above average, a top Education Department official says.
 Chester E. Finn Jr., the assistant secretary for educational research and improvement, likens such test results to the Lake Wobegon invented by author and radio personality Garrison Keillor. There, according to Keillor, "all of the women are strong, all of the men are good-looking, and all of the children are above average."

Statistically, half of the children taking a standardized test should be above average and half below it.
 The exams that are showing otherwise give "a falsely optimistic picture of the schools' performance," Finn told reporters Tuesday after a closed-door session with test publishers and experts.
 Finn called the meeting to discuss a report issued in November by a crusading West Virginia doctor, John Jacob Cannell, who canvassed every state and could not find a single one that reported its elementary pupils were below average on national tests.
 People are beginning to call it "the Lake Wobegon effect — more kids than half are above average," Finn said.

 Cannell also attended the session and said afterward that, "Seventy-five percent of children in the U.S. are told they are above average."
 He claimed that test publishers are in cahoots with school officials, who have a vested interest in being able to report ever-rising test scores.
 "This system allows the public schools in this country to continue to provide inferior, inadequate education," he charged.
 He also claimed that the tests are "racist" because schools use the results to avoid the expense of remedial education.
 David Deffley, general manager of CTBMcGraw Hill, which markets both the California Achievement Test and the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills, denied Cannell's allegations and said there was not "a scintilla of truth" to the allegation that "they'll give us money if we make them look good."

 "The tests serve a very fine purpose," including pointing out which children need remediation, said Deffley. "For one $3-a-child testing, you get a multiplicity of purposes ... all designed to improve education in that school district."
 Most school systems report a significant drop in test scores when they switch tests or use an updated version.

Markers Protect Lonely Graves Of Three Sisters

By CHARLES HILLINGER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

FOUR MILE FLAT, Nev. — The three little sisters crossing the wilds of the Central Nevada desert in a wagon train more than a century ago died of diphtheria within three days of each other.

But they have never been forgotten. A pile of rocks, a white picket fence and two crosses rising from the middle of a stark salt flat at the foot of Sand Mountain mark their graves.

"The burial site is like a beacon out here in this lonely spot. You can see it for miles from all directions," said Johnnie Johnson, 68, caretaker of the girls' final resting place.

Located 150 yards north of U.S. 50, about 25 miles east of Fallon, the grave site has been a mystery to most passing motorists for years.

For years a cross marking the graves was inscribed: "Two pioneer children. Known only to God."

Five years ago Johnson erected a new cross, on which is inscribed the identity of three (not two) sisters who had been buried here, Jennie Le Beau, 9, Louise Le Beau, 6, and Emma Le Beau, 3, and the fact that they died about 1865.

Johnson also placed a small plaque at the grave site "Dedicated to the memory of the hundreds of men, women and children and thousands of animals that perished on the Old Simpson Trail to California 1846 to the 1880s."

A retired U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service refuge field supervisor, Johnson, who lives in Fallon, is the latest in a series of volunteers who over the last century have protected and preserved the burial site of the Le Beau sisters.

The first to do so was an old prospector whose name has long been forgotten, who cared for the graves in the 1880s and 1890s.

Next came L.C. Benadums, who delivered mail and supplies from Fallon to Wonder and Fairview, two silver and gold mining encampments that since have vanished. He protected the graves from the turn of the century to the early 1920s. After the mailman came Sam Taylor and William Manley of Fallon.

A devastating cloudburst in 1940 washed out the remains of the three girls. Taylor and Manley found the skeletons of the two older sisters on the salt flat a year later according to Sharon Taylor, 41, historian, archeologist and long-time director of the Churchill County Museum in Fallon, and no relation to Sam Taylor.

The two men reburied the remains and erected a new cross replacing the one that had been destroyed in the storm. The remains of the youngest girl were never found.

R. M. "Mac" McAlexander, a mining engineer who made several trips into the area from Reno, was familiar with the cross erected by Manley and Taylor in the middle of the salt flat.

When that cross was blown over and damaged by the elements and no one replaced it McAlexander took it upon himself to erect a new one in the 1970s. He also placed a picket fence around the graves.

Knowing only that two skeletons of children were buried there and unaware of their identity, he provided the inscription on the cross that read: "Two pioneer children. Known only to God."

The next person who becomes part of the saga of the lonely graves of the three little sisters was Johnson.

"Once again the elements were at work destroying the burial site," Johnson recalled. "The picket fence and cross were blown over. I knew about the graves and decided to restore the burial site. I've had a lifelong interest in Nevada history and I've been involved in the restoration and preservation of many other unattended remote grave sites of early day pioneers and miners."

Beginning five years ago, Johnson made numerous trips to the salt flats bringing large rocks to stabilize the grave site. He erected a new redwood picket fence and the new cross and plaques.

(See GRAVES, C-3)

Watches, Once Just A Timepiece, Now Are Symbols Of Style Trends

By JESUS SANCHEZ
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Judy Reichel hunts for new ideas in high-style magazines such as Elle, Vogue and Interview. A Parisian fashion forecasting firm supplies her with reports about coming color and style trends. And she travels to California to find out what is in with young surfers.

Reichel is not in the business of designing clothes. She designs watches; Timex watches to be precise. The company that used to praise the durability of its watches — "Takes a licking but keeps on ticking" — now touts fashionable timepieces as "Sexy, scintillating watches for a style that's explosive." And for good reason.

"Timex had a place in the market with an affordable, quality product," Reichel said. "Then everybody had a lower-priced product that was reliable." So, Timex has turned to fashion to hold its own.

Welcome to the world of watchmaking in the 1980s. It is an industry — dominated by Swiss and Asian companies — in which watches have become regarded and sold as fashion accessories instead of timepieces. With a watch on nearly every wrist, watchmakers have managed to boost sales by jumping on the fashion bandwagon — changing long-held design, sales and advertising methods.

Watches have become symbols of social status — a shiny Rolex for the up-and-coming — and a way to stand out from the crowd — a brightly colored Swatch for a trendy teen-ager.

Watches may be more accurate than ever before, but telling time has become a secondary function.

"We have Swatch styles where you can't even read the time," said Jacques Irriger, president of the U.S. subsidiary of SMH, the Swiss company that produces Swatch, Omega and Tissot.

Swatch watches and similar products spurred the fashion movement in the industry. "Swatches pretty much changed the way a consumer looked at a watch," said Joseph Thompson, editor-in-chief of Modern Jeweler magazine. "It's a fashion accessory that happened to tell the time."

"People are now purchasing a wardrobe of watches," said Robert J.

Peggy Lee Cuts New LPs

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Peggy Lee, who cut the last of her 59 record albums a decade ago, is about to make four new LPs. The first will be the blues.

"I'm going to do an album of old blues — Bessie Smith, Lil Green," she said. "I've been a fan of Lil Green's for a long time. That's where I got 'Why Don't You Do Right.' Lil Green wrote the song."

"The first time I recorded after I came out of retirement, in 1944 or '45, I went down to Capitol and recorded an album of new American jazz," she said. "I sang two blues things on it. It immediately sold. That's how I came out of retirement. I hadn't intended to."

The singer didn't expect to follow the album with any performances. "There was a big demand. I turned a lot of things down. But finally my husband talked me into it. I didn't want to. I cried. I was the opposite of women wanting to get out of the house. I wanted to stay home."

"Being a jazz musician, he thought of me as a jazz singer. I never did. I didn't know what I was. I just liked to think of interpreting."

Miss Lee became a star singing in Benny Goodman's band from 1941 to 1943 when she retired after marrying Goodman's guitarist, Dave Barbour. They moved to California, where their daughter Nicki was born.

The singer will spend two weeks in New York performing such favorites as "Fever," "Manana" and "Is That All There Is?" at the Ballroom before heading off to the recording studio.

Last February, while on a bill in Las Vegas with George Burns she fell.

"There was a steel plate imbedded in the floor ... to protect the light plugs. I always put my arms out when I come out, you know. I did that and slid on the metal plate and crashed down and broke my pelvis," she said.

"Frankly, I prayed. A thousand things ran through my mind. I was in excruciating pain. I had them bring a chair and I sat and sang the show. I think it was something like a bullfighter gets when they've been gored. They act very foolishly and go back out again with the bull."

"That meant several months in bed. I got up to swimming 40 times around the pool. I rented an exercise bicycle and overdid it. That put me back in bed for a little bit."

She started writing her autobiography around that time.

"I know what a positive attitude can do and I suppose I know what a negative attitude can do," she said. "Each time I go through one of these things, when I come out the other side I'm stronger."

For a number of years, Miss Lee traveled with oxygen because of a lung problem. Three years ago she had heart bypass surgery.

Since she has been well enough to sing, Miss Lee has appeared in Toronto, Minneapolis, Atlantic City, Las Vegas and San Francisco. She recorded "How High the Moon" to be heard in the upcoming movie "Biloxi Blues."

Carol Burnett, Daughter Team Up For CBS Sunday Movie 'Hostage'

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The CBS Sunday movie "Hostage" rises above typical made-for-TV contrivances on fine performances from Carol Burnett and her daughter, Carrie

Ms. Hamilton plays Bonnie Lee Hopkins, a prison inmate who talks tough, but dutifully writes her mother every day, filling pages with chatty, pathetic accounts of prison life.

Miss Burnett plays Martha Maden, a wealthy widow who has only a fragile relationship with a grown daughter who lives in California and has just left after a brief, strained visit.

Martha's protected world collides with Bonnie Lee's when the girl breaks out of prison in a desperate attempt to escape her vicious, backwoods father, played by New York stage actor Leon Russom. He has threatened to kill her upon her release from jail, where she was serving time for an unsuccessful attempt to murder him.

After commandeering a prison bus, stealing a car from two teenagers and getting recognized by a gas station attendant, Bonnie Lee prowls a shopping center parking lot before selecting Martha as a hostage.

She shoves Martha into her car at gunpoint and forces her to drive aimlessly until Martha finally decides to take the fugitive home. There she tries to slam the door on the gun-toting girl and a struggle ensues. Bonnie Lee, ferocious in her desperation, quickly gets the upper hand.

But in the hours that follow in the beautiful, empty house, Bonnie Lee begins to display clues to her barren life. She attacks the canopied bed in Martha's daughter's abandoned bedroom. At one point, Martha, her face still swollen from blows landed in their fight, gently helps her select an outfit from her daughter's closet.

Gradually Martha earns the girl's tentative trust. When the father comes upon them, threatening them both and revealing the abuse that drove Bonnie Lee to shoot him, it is Martha who takes up the gun to protect them. He flees.

Bonnie Lee asks Martha to take her to New York City to hide. By the time they get there, Bonnie Lee is still playing kidnapper, but Martha no longer views her as a threat.

At this point, the plot becomes rather contrived, with the father easily finding the two in Manhattan. Brief reference was made to his being a farmer, but why does he own a police scanner? How does he know how to incapacitate another man with a single, expert blow, as he does in a restaurant men's room?

When he confronts Martha and Bonnie Lee in the dining room, Martha asks, "How'd you find us?"

"I told you, I'm a bloodhound, and she's my blood," is his inadequate explanation.

For the most part, writer Stephen Foreman's dialogue is spare and realistic, and the story moves quickly along, leaving little time to dwell on unlikely plot twists. The end is predictable but effective.

Miss Burnett, well-known as a comic actress, has also made a name for herself in such serious fare as the TV movie "Friendly Fire." She is excellent as the bored, lonely Martha, whose repressed maternal needs are released by the trapped emotional thrashings of Bonnie Lee.

Ms. Hamilton is called upon to portray both violent criminal and vulnerable child, which she does with great effect. The movie is not the first time she has worked with her mother. Miss Burnett once guest-starred on "Fame." Ms. Hamilton was a regular on the series.

Ms. Hamilton, 24, is also a rock musician and played the lead in the not-yet-released movie "Tokyo Pop." She and her mother are collaborating on a book, "Under One Roof," about mother-daughter relationships. They have also lectured about their handling of Ms. Hamilton's drug problems in her teens and plan to take their sobriety message to the Soviet Union this summer.

Miss Burnett recently performed with a younger daughter, Erin, in the TV movie "Plaza Suite."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — That oft-moved series "Designing Women," has moved again, though just down the block this time in a time swap with "Frank's Place," prompting the producers to send telegrams to television columnists to alert them.

Seeking a little insurance is only natural for a show that has been moved four times — Monday to Thursday to Sunday to off the schedule and back to Monday, where it has finally found a home and become one of CBS' top-rated shows. "Designing Women" can now be seen Monday at 8:30 p.m. EST instead of 9:30 p.m., where "Frank's Place" dwells until it moves days and the new comedy "Eisenhower & Lutz" premieres in March.

Animation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hanna Barbera Productions has acquired the animation rights to Whoopi Goldberg and will develop a Saturday morning cartoon show around the actress.

Ms. Goldberg calls it "the fulfillment of a childhood fantasy."

Ullmann Shuns Tinsel Glitter

BERLIN (AP) — The temperature was slightly below freezing in the damp graveyard filled with thistles and brambles, and actress Liv Ullmann ate bowls of chicken broth and paced about to keep warm.

She was in the cemetery, one of the few Jewish landmarks not destroyed by the Nazis, to film "La Amiga," a movie about Argentina's military regime and Nazi Germany. Ullmann would rather make a movie with a message than one laced with Hollywood-style commercialism and glamour.

"The film industry outside of the United States is less concerned with box office and image," said the 49-year-old Norwegian actress, clad in a simple brown coat with a woolen scarf swathed about her head.

"In Europe, producers and directors don't have to think so much about box office as they do in the United States. Not to be glamorous is looked upon as a bad thing if you're an American actress. That's a tragedy because it limits your acting possibilities."

"La Amiga," written and directed by the German filmmaker Claudia Meerpel, is the first West German-Argentine co-production. Ullmann is cast as Maria, a Argentine woman who leaves her dictator-run homeland for Berlin.

In the movie, Maria's oldest son — like thousands of Argentines under the 1976-83 military regime — disappears, presumably killed in the military's so-called "dirty war" against leftists.

"This woman is different than anything I've done before," said the blue-eyed Ullmann, who still retains her classic beauty.

"The role of Maria is one in which you draw from your understanding, the things you believe in and from the pain you yourself have felt."

Watches Tell Status

Stevens, advertising manager at Seiko Time Corp. "Women have a pocketbook to go with every outfit, why not a watch?"

The move to fashion has paid off. In 1986, consumers purchased $2.3 billion worth of watches — a 20 percent increase since 1984, National Jeweler magazine says. About 80 million watches are sold annually in the United States, more than in any other nation.

In the pursuit of fashion, watchmakers have segmented the market and expanded their lines. Last year, classic designs with Roman numerals and mother-of-pearl dials gained ground on the colorful plastic watches popularized by Swatch.

To sell an increasing array of watches, watchmakers have boosted ad budgets. In 1986, companies spent $93.1 million — up 50 percent from 1984 — to advertise products, according to National Leading Advertisers. That represents a 50 percent increase from ad spending in 1984.

Watch advertising itself has changed. Watch ads are more apt to associate the product with a customer's lifestyle — or desired lifestyle — instead of the traditional selling points of durability and engineering.

Concord watches claim to be "watchmakers to the gentry." Ads for Piaget — touted as "the world's most expensive watches" — features attractive young couples holding glasses of champagne.

"You have to make people emotionally involved with the product," said SMH's Irniger.

Swiss watchmakers like Irniger have benefited the most from the shift to fashion. The Swiss, banking on the fashion trend, have rebounded after being nearly driven to bankruptcy in the early 1980s by the popularity of less expensive but technologically superior quartz watches produced by the Japanese and other Asian companies.

Although the declining value of the dollar would normally make Swiss and Japanese watches more expensive in the United States, stiff competition has forced the watchmakers to limit price hikes. "I'm sure it's cutting into their profits to some extent," said Emilio G. Collado III, executive director of the American Watch Association.

Because of the dollar's decline, Hattori Seiko, the Japanese watchmaking giant that produces Seiko, Pulsar and Lorus, reported a 41 percent drop in pretax profit for 1987. Pretax profits also fell 52 percent at Citizen Watch Co. and 67 percent at Casio Computer.

The move to fashion itself has posed problems for watchmakers, who find they must update lines constantly — as opposed to once a year. The Swatch watch line, which is redesigned every three months, represents the more extreme example. Holding up a multicolored Swatch, Irniger said: "See, this is a fad. Today, people like red, orange and black. Tomorrow..."

Graves Protected

With the help of Sharon Taylor at the Churchill County Museum, Johnson was able to learn the identity of the three sisters and the history of the remote burial spot.

He told how it had special meaning for him: "I had a twin sister named Lucy Mae who died when she was 18 months old in 1918 from influenza. We were very poor. She was buried in a potter's grave in St. Louis. I have no idea where. I put a little plaque on the graves of the Le Beau sisters in memory of Lucy Mae."

In 1983 Johnson and Taylor tracked down a great-nephew of the little girls, Earl Le Beau of Hawthorne, Nev., who was unaware of the graves. Le Beau and his wife, Virginia, in turn contacted Joseph Le Beau, a cousin, in Vernal, Utah. Earl Le Beau died two years ago at the age of 70.

Joseph Le Beau's wife, Dorothy, has done extensive genealogy on the family.

"The three girls were daughters of Michael and Mary Louise Le Beau, French-Canadians who came to Nevada in the 1860s and eventually settled in a mining town called Elsworth that no longer exists," she said. "They had nine children. One son, Joseph Napoleon Le Beau, was my husband's grandfather."

'Latchkey Children' Take Refuge In Library Stacks

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer

At first glance, it's a librarian's dream: hordes of energetic children streaming into public libraries after school each day, a golden opportunity to foster young readers.

But it's more like a nightmare to some librarians.

Thousands of children, some as young as 2 or 3, are being left unattended at public libraries across the country by working parents who either can't afford or can't find adequate day care.

The problem, say librarians, is that public libraries are understaffed and not always the safe havens many parents believe them to be.

At the main branch of the Brooklyn Public Library in New York, for example, where 100 or more unattended children gather each day, street gangs sometimes snatch jewelry. Last December, there were four arrests for crack in the children's room despite the presence of security guards, according to librarians.

Chicago librarian Helen Goodman now compares afternoons amid the once-serene stacks to "scenes of the stock exchange that they show on television."

Worsening the impact of these legions of "library latchkey children" is their coming at a time when children's librarians are in increasingly short supply. Colleges conferred 3,538 library degrees in 1986, fewer than half the 8,091 degrees in 1979, according to the American Library Association.

There is nothing new, of course, in children coming to libraries after school. The problem is children who come for hours every day, without fail, with nothing to do, with no adult responsible for them, with energy to burn and in no mood to follow library rules.

No one knows how many thousands of children take refuge at libraries, but the latest U.S. Census Bureau statistics indicate 2,258,000 children aged 5 to 13 had no adult at home after school in 1984.

The situation is posing awkward choices for librarians and library organizations: Many librarians instinctively rebel against rules that even hint at restricting children's access to libraries, and some are critical of fellow librarians who speak of latchkey children as a "problem."

"We should do absolutely nothing to discourage library use by children," said Marguerite Dodson, a librarian since 1952 and now head of children's services of the 60-branch Brooklyn Public Library.

"Maybe we have large numbers of people in the library profession who shouldn't be there, whose interest is research and not serving the public," she said.

Nonetheless, the latchkey problem has gotten serious enough that the library association has drafted a position paper on latchkey children and some cities are taking action.

In Atlanta, signs in libraries warn parents about criminal charges of child abandonment.

Signs in Boston libraries insist that children be accompanied by an adult. But Mary Margaret Pitts, a main branch librarian, said some young patrons read the notices then ask with trepidation if they can enter the children's room.

"We want children to feel that they are wanted in the library, but we want to get the message across to adults that this is not a facility that can watch children like a day-care center," said Jeri Baker, assistant manager of the Children's Center at the Central Library in Dallas, where a task force has proposed banning unattended children under 7.

The latchkey phenomenon isn't limited to cities or the poor, said Mary Somerville, head of children's library services in Louisville, and president of the ALA's Association for Library Services to Children.

She said her cousins from a suburb of Birmingham, Ala., "tell me with great pride that they drop their 11-year-old at the public library each day."

In Long Beach, N.Y., a Long Island suburb with no organized day care, public library officials announced a policy aimed at unattended youngsters younger than 7. Librarians make every effort to find a parent or other responsible adult. Failing that, the police are called.

"We've had circumstances where 2- and 3-year-olds were left unattended," said Marianne Pilla, children's librarian in Long Beach.

A draft copy of the 46-page ALA paper, "Latchkey Children in the Public Library," urges libraries not to blame children for circumstances not of their own making.

A 1985 study of about 200 libraries in Los Angeles County found "about 2,000 children a day whose parents were using the library as an afterschool child-care center," said Penny Markey, children's service head for the county system.

"It is a problem in Los Angeles and Southern California," said Ms. Markey. "It's become more severe with the increase in cost and inaccessibility of adequate child care."

Safety is an urgent issue. Librarians say many parents don't understand that public libraries are not immune to the dangers youngsters might encounter at shopping malls or other hangouts. And they are particularly upset about parents who fail to pick up children at closing time.

"Parents don't realize. We have people who are sinister. We've had lots of frightening incidents — people coming in to stare at children," said Pitts at the Boston Public Library.

When Boston librarians overhear a parent tell a child to stay there and wait, "we dash up to the parent and say you leave your child at your own risk. Parents look very surprised," said Pitts.

Some librarians, however, have turned the latchkey influx to good advantage. The Huntington Park Public Library southeast of Los Angeles, where 150 to 200 children come after school, began a volunteer program using children to help return books to the shelves and set up displays.

"I've really seen a lot of kids become readers. Circulation has really gone up," said librarian Ruth Morse. "A lot of kids get hooked on reading because they're around the library so much."

Whole families of latchkey children sometimes spend days in the library. At the Brooklyn library, librarian

Pam Gunter said 7-year-old Bevaun, 9-year-old Vanessa and 11-year-old Patrick have been coming in almost every day after school for at least two years, staying until 5 or 6 in the evening.

Libraries commonly use story hours and arts and crafts activities to keep latchkey children occupied.

The ALA paper cited some other creative approaches. Libraries in Orange County, N.C., and Greenville, S.C., run afterschool survival skills classes for latchkey children. A library in Charles County, Md., has an afterschool club featuring library trivia games.

The groundhog hibernates in underground burrows. His home has many rooms in it. The rooms are connected by tunnels. The groundhog puts grass in his burrow to make it soft. He curls up into a ball to sleep.

The Ultimate Diss

By Tanja Murray

Listen up, girls. Pay attention on the double. Take heed, for guys ain't nothin' but trouble. There is no poem anything like this, So I gave it the title "The Ultimate Diss". Some guys may get angry and hold quite a grudge, But from these words of mine I will not budge. Now some guys diss girls and call us teasers. Is it that we have to gain respect by being their skeezers? These guys say and do vulgar things smooth as butter. Fellas, do me a favor and get your mind out of the gutter. The not-so-good-looking ones seem the most sweet,

While you awesomely hand-some ones stay filled with conceit. You strut around school with your Adidas and gold chains. Spreading among the females heartbreak and pain. You play inconsiderate games with our affection. Prepare yourselves, girls, give your hearts some protection. The ways you guys talk makes you seem quite amusing. But those smooth lines are only meant to be confusing. If you want to be chilled with the ladies and get much play, Don't be a fool. Be a real man and mean what you say. And for all you guys seeking one night stands,

Slow down your pace and just hold hands. Now there's nothing wrong with kissing and hugging, But this can be done without your truly bugging. And for you guys that fit selfish, egotistical, and rude, As far as the ladies go, you can hang it up, dudes. You take love, fake love, and become full-time abusers. If this were a crime, you'd serve a life sentence for girl abusers. And ladies, if they ever hand you that, "I'm a changed man" jive, Kindly tell them to find the nearest river and go take a dive. Now the kind-hearted guys I won't forget to mention. You are the ones that will get the most attention. So ladies, the next time one of the fellas offers you love's bliss, Before you make your decision, rethink these words of "The Ultimate Diss".

Tanja Murray, 17, a student at D.H. Conley High School receives special mention.

All Alone

By Karen Hardy

If I could've had my way I'd have been with you every-day.
There wouldn't have been any one around. Just you and me and the love we'd found.
This summer would have been all fun. Under the stars, in the sun.
But we're not together anymore She came back and you walked out my door.

You went and left me all alone, Just me, my tears at night, at home.
Someday I'll find someone new, But until then, I'll love you.

Karen Hardy, 15, a student at West Craven High School receives special mention.

Castles

By Connie Palmer

As the waves wash away my castle in the sand, I watch and think of you.
I wonder if you remember we walked along the beach looking for a place to build our sand castle.
I remember you laughing in boyish delight as our castle came together and stood tall.

Now in your mind those castles have long been washed away. But, as I sit and watch new castles being built by happy children, I realize that as one castle of sand is washed away another is lovingly and carefully built.
Connie Palmer, 15, a student at D.H. Conley High School receives special mention.

Friendship, The Mighty Oak

By Thomas Rouse

Friendship is like a mighty oak, outliving everything around it, standing the test of time. Friendship starts out small like a sapling in spring. If the conditions are right, it will grow. But it is during this time, when both friendship and the sapling are weak, that they can be bent or broken. This is when some friendships stop and die. Yet others flourish, growing stronger with every day, preparing for the winter of life--the parting of good friends.
When friends part, their friendship doesn't die. Nor does the oak when its leaves fall to the ground. The tree hibernates, remaining unchanged until spring's arrival renews it; with the meeting of old friends, the relationship is reborn. This time of renewing is important to both the tree and to friendship because it is a time of easing the pain of being apart and a time to start anew by getting to know one another again, and to discover the changes each has gone through while they were absent one from the other. As their lives continue, so does the friendship grow. When a sapling becomes a mighty oak and when strangers become true friends, nothing much can change that. The winds of life may blow through the branches, causing creaks and moans, but the tree prevails because its roots are solid and secure in its base of love.

Thomas Rouse, 17, a student at D.H. Conley High School wins this week's writing contest.

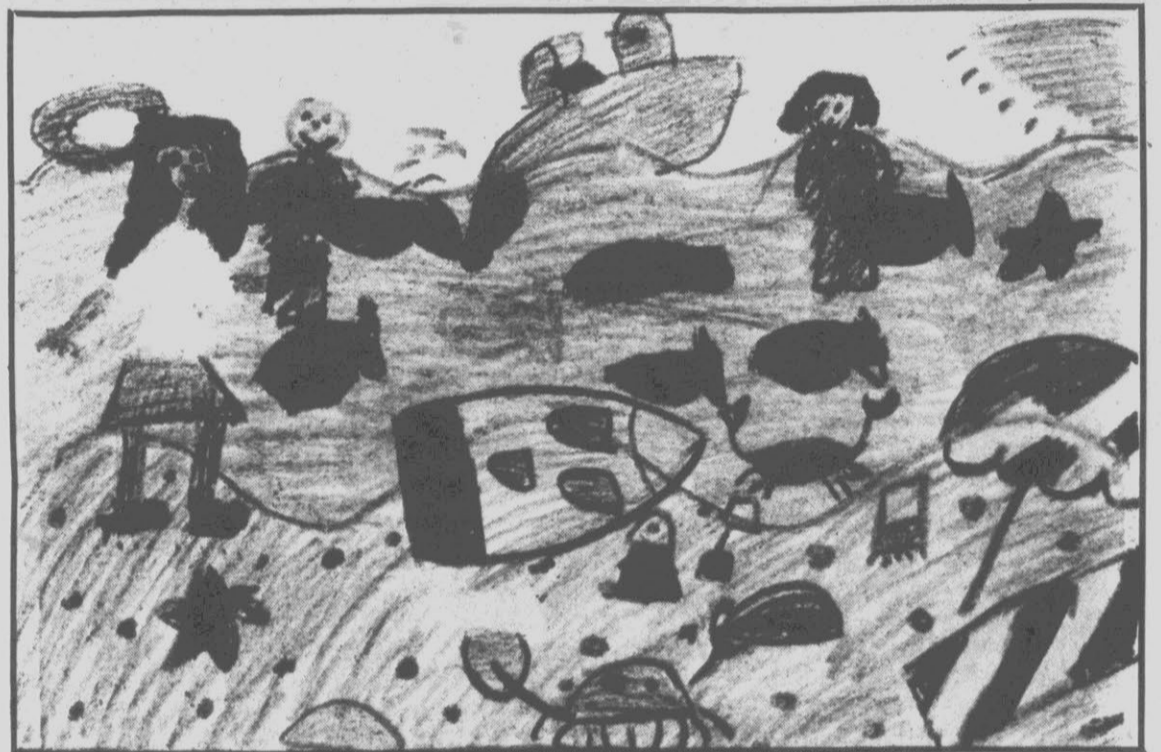

Descriptions

By Erinn Moore

What is love? It's not only a word. It's a quickened heartbeat--well heard. A change in mood on every hour, Counting the stars of the sky, Smelling sweet flowers. To have something in your heart and faithful and true. The feelings I always get, when I'm with you.

Erinn Moore, 15, a student at J.H. Rose High School receives special mention.

One day I was walking on the beach and I saw a boat but I couldn't do anything with it because there was a hole in it. So I thought of some ideas. I finally came up with an idea. It was to make a secret clubhouse. My mom said, "Don't get the yard dirty with that trash". I told my mom that it wasn't trash. It just had a hole in it. So I worked all afternoon. When it was time to go to bed I was finished. And I told my mom to come look at it. It was up in the tree. I asked my mom if I could have $5.00 for blue paint. She said, "Yes". I went and got the paint and painted it. When my friends came over to play they said, "You have a cute clubhouse!"
When it was time to go to bed, I was looking out my window. I saw my kitten get in my clubhouse. And she liked it, too.

Amy Purvis, 9, a student at Third Street School receives special mention.

 If we were asked for a one-word formula for better play, we would have no problem: Count! Not just points, but also suit length, so that you can gain a picture of all the hands. Had East done so, he might have avoided a fatal error on this deal.

 Despite 19 points in high cards, South did not feel any compulsion to jump shift at his second turn. There was no established fit, so there was no reason to consume bidding space when the final destination was not yet clear. When North showed a reasonable hand with his jump preference, South made up for his conservative approach by bidding what he thought he could make.
 West made the natural lead of the top of his sequence. Declarer won, drew trumps in two rounds, cashed the ace of hearts and then ran the jack of diamonds to East's queen. Since a heart return would give declarer a ruff-sluff (declarer would have ruffed a picture in dummy had he held one) and a diamond would lead into the table's tenace, East decided his best chance was to find partner with the jack of spades. Unfortunately, that was not the case, and declarer claimed the rest of the tricks.

 Had East stopped to count the hand, he could have given his side a fighting chance. Declarer obviously held five clubs, four spades (he did bid the suit), two hearts and two diamonds. A diamond return into the board's tenace would give declarer one discard, but not his contract. South would still have three spades, and either he would have a natural spade loser if West did have the jack, or else he would have to guess the location of the queen to succeed.

PANCAKE LOVERS DELIGHT — On Shrove Tuesday or any busy weekday morning, pancake lovers can enjoy Strawberry Banana Pancakes in short order. Easily prepared in advance, the pancakes may be frozen and reheated in the microwave oven. Topped with a warm blend of pancake syrup and strawberry preserves and garnished with fresh banana slices, they make a breakfast-in-minutes seem like a celebration.

Pancakes Are Just Right As Fix-And-Freeze Items

Shrove Tuesday tradition calls for pancakes. A centuries-old European custom, making pancakes the day before Lent was a festive way to use up ingredients which were disallowed until Easter.

Today's pancake lovers can continue this tradition and enjoy their favorite breakfast with contemporary speed and convenience. For a syrup-topped stack in minutes, prepare pancakes (why not a double batch?) whenever time allows and freeze. Reheat single servings in the microwave oven any time you feel a penchant for pancakes. What could be easier?

The Quaker Test Kitchens have developed two new pancake recipes ideal for this fix-and-freeze procedure. Both streamline preparation with complete pancake and waffle mix, and both boast lively, fresh flavors and special toppings that make breakfast seem like a special occasion.

Top fresh banana-flavored pancakes with a sweet-tart blend of pancake syrup, strawberry preserves and a hint of lemon to make Strawberry Banana Pancakes. For rich banana flavor, use well-ripened bananas in the batter. Save picture-pretty, just-ripe bananas to garnish each stack, if you wish.

Oatmeal Pecan Pancakes incorporate whole grain, fiber-rich oats into the pancake batter. A blend of pancake syrup, pecans and margarine sweetens the stack.

For more fast and flavorful variations of traditional favorites, look to "Hurry, Let's Eat!," a colorful collection of recipes available free from The Quaker Oats Co. This 48-page cookbook features streamlined dishes for every occasion and offers nutrition information, time-saving tips and more. Executive Dieting

By Toni Tipton
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

What makes the approach to dieting taken by executives different from the way the average person goes about calorie-watching? Quite a bit, according to June Roth and Harvey M. Ross, authors of "The Executive Success Diet" (McGraw-Hill Book Co.; $16.95, hardcover, 205 pages).

While most people generally are concerned about getting an adequate supply of vitamins and minerals while maintaining weight at a desirable level, the nature of the executive's business day makes this task significantly more difficult. It is not that a business person has different needs or exerts energy any differently; but power breakfasts, lunch and dinner meetings, discussions over cocktails and a plethora of meals eaten on airplanes and at conventions are all obstacles that are added to dieting plans of an executive.

As a result, the way in which these business types tackle dieting is often different from the approach taken by the average person. In addition to typical recommendations to reduce fat, cholesterol and sodium intake while getting sufficient vitamins, minerals and exercise, the authors give suggestions on how to manipulate meals at important events, how to have healthier in-flight meals, how to avoid the problems associated with eating on the highway, how to deal with hotel breakfasts and how to handle stress.

The book begins with an eight-point plan designed to step up health control for the executive: Step One differentiates between simple and complex carbohydrates, detailing some hidden sources of the former and offering good to excellent sources of the latter; Step Two discusses fat consumption, explaining the sources, types and digestion of the substance; Step Three recommends eating adequate protein, defining its bodily function, how much is recommended and where to find it; Step Four unfolds the mysteries of excess sodium; Step Five focuses on calorie-counting; Step Six is devoted to nutritional supplements; Step Seven is designed to help with a personal nutritional profile — items like blood drippings. This quick method sears the meat on the outside, while the center remains pink and juicy. Team the meat with oven-fried potatoes and a green salad.

Desperation Dinners Start With Old Favorite Entrees

By Joan Drake
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

For some, desperation dinners are what go on the table every night. For others, these are the meals served when one is out of time, energy or inspiration. Just about every cook has a small repertoire of "DD" recipes — tried, true and, typically, overused.

The beginning of a new year is a good time to retire a few of those oldies and replace them with some fresh ideas. Most of the recipes featured were inspired by classics, ones that take practically no time to prepare. The results are entrees that look impressive enough to serve guests, but are actually quick and easy.

For instance, remember chicken divan? Substitute jumbo shrimp for the poultry and this old favorite takes on new appeal. Use frozen broccoli spears for speed, or if you prefer, substitute fresh vegetables that have been steamed or microwaved. The remaining preparation is done in one skillet to limit cleanup.

Anyone who has lived in that belt of land that extends from southern Illinois south through Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas knows about chicken-fried steak. There it is served with cream gravy; but try it California-style instead, with fresh salsa. The steak is still prepared in the traditional manner — dredged in flour and fried in hot oil until golden brown.

If inclement weather limits use of the outdoor grill, try pan-frying a flank steak and serving it with a simple mushroom sauce made from the

Q. My 11-year-old son has diabetes and has to take insulin. He'd like to be with his friends, do what they do, and doesn't want to feel different. I try to watch his diet but want him to feel normal too. Can you help me? B.N., Greenville.

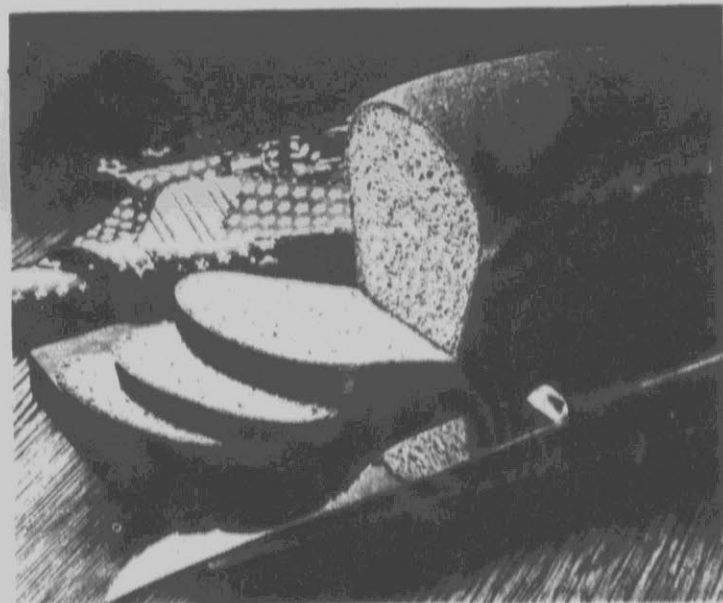

A. We daily get questions about diabetes. Since the staff at Pitt Internal and Renal Medicine Associates in Greenville is running a diabetes awareness campaign paper, I asked my colleague, Nancy Harris, also a registered dietitian, to answer your question. Here is her response.

You have similar concerns to many parents and young people. When a person has diabetes, it is especially important to be careful about what, how much and when they eat. This is particularly true if diabetic medicines are used. Diet control is easiest to manage when you use the exchange lists from the American Dietetic and the American Diabetes associations. Registered dietitians can help you develop a meal plan using the exchanges to suit your food habits and likes. These meal plans make it easier to decide when to eat, how much and what foods. These lists do have food choices. There are choices that make it easier to participate in special events. These lists even make it possible to eat some fast foods without losing control. A diabetic diet is really a diet that would be good eating habits for everyone.

Food is such an important part of our social lives that it is important to know how to be active and control for special needs. Good meal planning has to be a daily habit so that blood sugars are controlled and complications reduced.

Special help is available for young people each summer at a camp. For the past two years, I have helped with Camp Needles in the Pines in Swansboro, a weeklong program from the department of pediatrics at East Carolina University for young people with diabetes. Campers also spend time learning about good diabetes care. We have fun with crafts, games, boating, swimming, camping and field trips. We also learn how to live a normal life while controlling diabetes. Campers share their feelings, fears and triumphs. Everyone makes new friends and begins to feel better about himself. Your son should think about coming to camp this June. Ongoing diabetes control is important to prevent complications. Control comes through education and planning. If you have more questions, please feel free to call 752-8880.

Chicken Gives Brunswick Stew A Special Flavor

By Nancy Byal
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

A Southern tradition, Brunswick stew was made with rabbit or squirrel and seasoned with onion, tomatoes, corn and lima beans. We streamlined the recipe to make this satisfying oven main dish. You can brown the chicken and assemble the dish up to 24 hours before serving. Just add 15 minutes to the baking time.

BRUNSWICK CHICKEN BAKE

- One 2 1/2- to 3-pound broiler-fryer chicken, cut up
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- One 0.6- or 0.9-ounce envelope Italian salad dressing mix
- One 8-ounce can stewed tomatoes, cut up

- 1 bay leaf
- Two 10-ounce packages frozen succotash, thawed

In a skillet brown chicken in hot oil 15 minutes. Drain, reserving about 2 tablespoons drippings in skillet. Arrange chicken in 13- by 9- by 2-inch baking dish. In same skillet cook onion in drippings until tender. Stir in flour and salad dressing mix. Add undrained tomatoes and bay leaf. Cook and stir until mixture is thickened and bubbly. Stir in succotash; pour mixture over chicken. Cover and bake in a 350-degree oven for 1 hour. Skim fat. Remove bay leaf before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Mixing, Measuring Is Easy With This Bread

By NANCY BYAL

Crusty, fragrant homemade bread from just six ingredients — that's the promise in this recipe. Measuring and mixing time is short and you'll have two great-tasting loaves, one to eat now and one to share with a neighbor or freeze for later. Don't be tempted to save time by omitting the resting step; the 10-minute rest makes the dough relax so it's easier to shape.

- HONEY-WHEAT BREAD
- 3 to 3 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 package active dry yeast
- 1 2/3 cups water
- 1/3 cup honey

1/4 cup margarine or butter
2 cups whole wheat flour
In large mixer bowl combine 2 cups of the all-purpose flour and the yeast. Heat water, honey and margarine just until warm (115 degrees to 120 degrees), stirring constantly. Add to flour mixture. Beat with an electric mixer on low speed 1/2 minute, scraping sides of bowl. Beat on high speed 3 minutes. Stir in whole wheat flour and as much remaining all-purpose flour as you can mix in with a spoon.

On a lightly floured surface knead in enough remaining all-purpose flour to make a moderately stiff dough (6 to 8 minutes). Shape into a

1 cup julienned carrots, blanched
1 cup frozen leaf spinach, thawed and squeezed dry
1 cup frozen peas, thawed
Salt, pepper

ture and add eggs. When eggs begin to set, stir into rice mixture.

1 ounce dried shiitake mushrooms

1 tablespoon unsalted butter
1 cup whipping cream
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 pound fettuccine
Freshly ground pepper
Basil leaves, optional
Cut cheese into small pieces. Melt cheese and butter in top of double boiler over simmering water, whisking occasionally. Stir in cream.

3/4 cup flour, about
3/4 cup butter or margarine
Juice of 1 lemon
1/2 pound sliced mushrooms
1 cup dry white wine
Make 2 to 4 slashes through membrane on outer edges of turkey slices to prevent curling. Dredge each slice in flour and pound out between 2 sheets wax paper to very thin, even thickness, less than 1-16 inch. Continue dredging in flour while pounding to maintain even coating, using all flour and adding more if necessary. Cut large slices in half, if desired.

Melt 1/2 butter in large skillet over medium heat, adding half of lemon juice. Sauté turkey slices quickly in single layer until lightly browned, turning once. Remove and continue adding slices until all are cooked, adding remaining butter and remaining lemon juice as needed.

Remove all turkey slices, add mushrooms and sauté lightly. Stir in wine and bring to boil, scraping browned bits from sides and bottom of pan. Return turkey to pan. Cover, reduce heat and simmer gently 5 minutes. Serve turkey with sauce spooned over. Makes 4 servings.

Executive Dieting Takes On Different Twist

In the next part of the book, executives learn the basics of a successful diet plan — how to incorporate the preceding eight steps into a healthy diet for weight loss or maintenance — plus recipes and a list of foods that may be interchanged without increasing uptake of fat or calories.
The remaining chapters focus on various parts of successful health management: choosing the right exercise method, assessing weight-loss diets and the particular problems of business people. One basic guideline stressed by the authors is against the adult tendency to omit breakfast. See if this passage sounds familiar:
"What happens at breakfast? Do you skip it in a rush to get to the of-rice? That could be our worst mistake of the day. Your morning energy level is going to depend on the quality of the first meal of the day. Be sure it's low in fat, high in complex carbohydrates (grains and fruit), and provides adequate protein. This type of breakfast will set you up for several hours of sustained energy to cope with your business morning.

Here are a few recipes high in complex carbohydrates that are ideal for the adult breakfast.
GROWN-UP GORP
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup honey
1/4 cup maple syrup
2 cups whole grain cereal flakes
1 cup unsalted cashews
1 cup quick-cooking oats
1 cup puffed wheat cereal
1 cup dried banana chips

1 cup dried mixed fruit pieces
1/2 cup sunflower seeds
1 1/2 cups diced Gjetost cheese
Melt butter in large shallow baking pan in 325 degree oven. Add honey and maple syrup and blend well. Add whole grain cereal, cashews, oats and puffed wheat. Toss to blend. Bake 45 minutes, stirring every 10 minutes. Remove from oven and add dried fruit and sunflower seeds. Cool to room temperature. Add cheese. Makes 8 cups.
LOWER-FAT FRITTATA
1 cup julienned chicken breast
1 cup sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 small zucchini, thinly sliced
1/2 cup green pepper strips
1/2 cup sweet red pepper strips
3 egg yolks
2 tablespoons skim milk or water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon black pepper
6 egg whites
1 1/2 cups shredded Jarlsberg cheese
Brown chicken and mushrooms in butter in large skillet. Add zucchini and peppers and cook until tender, stirring often.
Meanwhile, beat egg yolks with milk, salt and pepper. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold in egg yolk mixture and 1 cup cheese. Add to skillet, then bake at 350 degrees until puffed and golden. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

HEARTY HASH
1 medium onion, chopped
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 cups diced cooked corned or lean roast beef
2 cups diced cooked potatoes
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1/8 teaspoon black pepper
4 eggs, optional
1 cup shredded Nookelost cheese
Cook onion in butter in large skillet over low heat 5 minutes, stirring often. Add beef, potatoes and Worcestershire sauce. Cook 10 minutes or until browned on bottom. Turn and cook 5 minutes longer, to brown other side. Add parsley and pepper.
Make 4 indentations in hash. Break eggs into wells and top with 1/2 cup cheese. Bake at 350 degrees 5 minutes or until eggs reach desired doneness. Top with remaining cheese. Or, eliminate eggs and top with entire cup cheese. Bake just until cheese is melted and bubbling. Makes 4 servings.

VEGETABLE-BACON FRIED RICE
6 slices bacon, diced
1/4 cup oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 cup julienned zucchini
1/2 cup julienned yellow squash
1 cup chopped bok choy
1/2 cup sweet red pepper strips
1 cup Chinese pea pods
Salt, pepper
6 cups cold unseasoned cooked rice
Soy sauce
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup chopped green onions
2 cups bean sprouts
1/2 cup toasted sliced almonds
Sauté bacon in wok until crisp. Drain on paper towels and set aside. Wipe wok out with paper towels, then heat oil. Stir-fry garlic 1 to 2 minutes. Add zucchini, yellow squash, bok choy, red pepper and pea pods. Stir-fry 2 to 3 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper.
Add rice and stir-fry 2 to 3 minutes. Add 1/4 cup soy sauce or to taste. Make well in center of mixture and add eggs. When eggs begin to set, stir into rice mixture. Add green onions, bean sprouts, reserved bacon and almonds. Heat through. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Microwave Cooking

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens

When I began living and cooking on my own, chicken cacciatore was one of the first for-company specialties I mastered. It took me an hour to make it. I was delighted when our Test Kitchen came up with a microwave version that takes just 25 minutes to cook and tastes every bit as good as my long-time favorite.

MICROWAVE CHICKEN CACCIATORE
One 2 1/2- to 3-pound broiler-fryer chicken, cut up
1 medium green pepper, seeded and chopped
1 medium onion, sliced and separated into rings
One 16-ounce can tomatoes, cut up
One 6-ounce can tomato paste
1/3 cup dry red wine
1 tablespoon quick-cooking tapioca
2 bay leaves
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon dried basil, crushed
1/4 teaspoon fennel seed
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Hot cooked spaghetti
Grated Parmesan cheese
Remove skin from chicken, if desired. Rinse and pat dry. Arrange chicken pieces in a 3-quart casserole with meaty portions toward edges of dish. Add green pepper and onion. In a small mixing bowl combine undrained tomatoes, tomato paste, wine, tapioca, bay leaves, garlic, basil, fennel seed and pepper. Pour over chicken.
Cover and cook on 100 percent power (high) for 20 to 25 minutes or until chicken and vegetables are done, giving the dish a half-turn and stirring the mixture after 10 minutes. Remove chicken and bay leaves. Skim fat from sauce, if necessary. Serve chicken and sauce over spaghetti; sprinkle with cheese. Makes 6 servings.

Old Armenian Traditions Kept Alive By Churchwomen

By Rose Dosti
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Long before Armenia was sliced up and its inhabitants scattered throughout the world centuries ago, it was a tradition for devout women to gather in a communal kitchen to prepare foods for whatever festivities centered around the church.

That was the tradition then and that is the tradition now wherever Armenians live.

Nothing much has changed in the way women divide their communal culinary duties, or even in the foods they have managed to keep alive.

The women at the St. James Armenian Church in Los Angeles prepare lulu kebab and shish kebab as did their ancestors in the Old World. They still make an incredible sou beoreg that is so much like lasagna you wonder which came first.

ARMENIAN KUFTA

1 1/2 cups water, about
1 pound lean ground lamb (ground 3 times)
Salt

Meat and Onion Filling
Gradually add bulgur and enough water to lamb to make mixture soft and pliable. Add salt to taste and continue to knead until well mixed. Mold mixture into 20 meat balls.

Place each meat ball in palm of hand, then with thumb, press large cavity in center. Fill cavity with ball of Meat and Onion Filling. Close cavity by pressing all sides of outer meat ball over filling, completely sealing in filling. Flatten ball into rounded patty.

Drop kufta in boiling salted water and cook until kufta floats to surface, about 8 to 10 minutes. Remove with slotted spoon. Serve hot or cold. Makes 20 meat patties.

Meat and Onion Filling
1 pound fine-ground beef
1 onion, minced
Salt, pepper
Dash allspice
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Saute meat until browned and crumbly. Add onion. Cook until onion is tender and golden. Add salt and pepper to taste and allspice. Blend in parsley, mixing well. Cool and shape into 20 balls. Refrigerate until ready to use.

ARMENIAN PILAF

1/4 cup medium vermicelli noodles
1 cup butter
1 cup long-grain rice
2 cups boiling chicken stock
Salt
Brown noodles in oven at 350 degrees 5 to 7 minutes. Remove. Melt butter in heavy saucepan. Add noodles and rice and saute until slightly glazed. Add chicken stock and salt to taste. Cook, covered, over very low heat 35 to 40 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

SOU BEOREG

1 teaspoon corn oil
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup water
2 cups flour
Cornstarch
3/4 cup butter, melted
Cheese Filling
Beat eggs. Add oil, salt and water. Beat in flour until dough is smooth and leaves sides of bowl. Dough should be firm.

Divide dough into 8 balls and place balls 1 inch apart on tray. Cover with plastic wrap and/or damp cloth and let stand 3 hours.

Roll out each ball into 13- by 9-inch rectangle, sprinkling with cornstarch to ease stretching of dough. Trim dough sheets to neat 13- by 9-inch rectangles.

Bring 2 gallons generously salted water to rolling boil in large pot. Drop 1 dough sheet at time into boiling water and cook 15 seconds or until sheet rises to surface. Remove sheet gently with wooden spoon and plunge immediately into ice water to prevent further cooking. Remove from ice water, squeeze gently by hand, then pat dry with cloth.

Continue to cook remaining sheets until all are cooked. Brush 13- by 9-inch baking pan with melted butter. Fit cooked dough sheet into bottom of pan. Brush sheet with melted butter. Continue to layer pan with 3 more dough sheets, brushing each with melted butter.

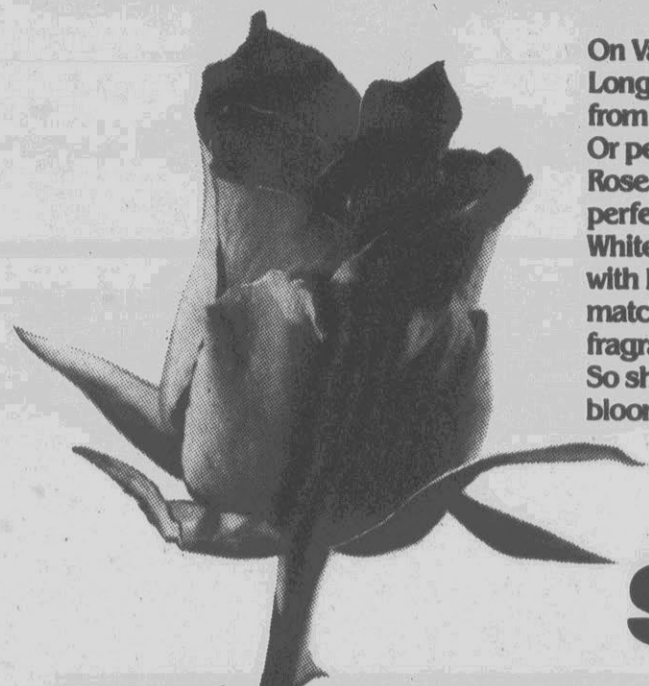

Sprinkle Cheese Filling over dough. Cover with remaining layers of dough, brushing each with melted butter. Butter top sheet generously. Score top into 2 1/4-inch squares, using sharp knife. Do not cut entirely through dough.

Bake at 400 degrees 45 minutes or until golden brown. To serve, cut through dough using scoring as guide. Serve hot. Makes 24 squares.

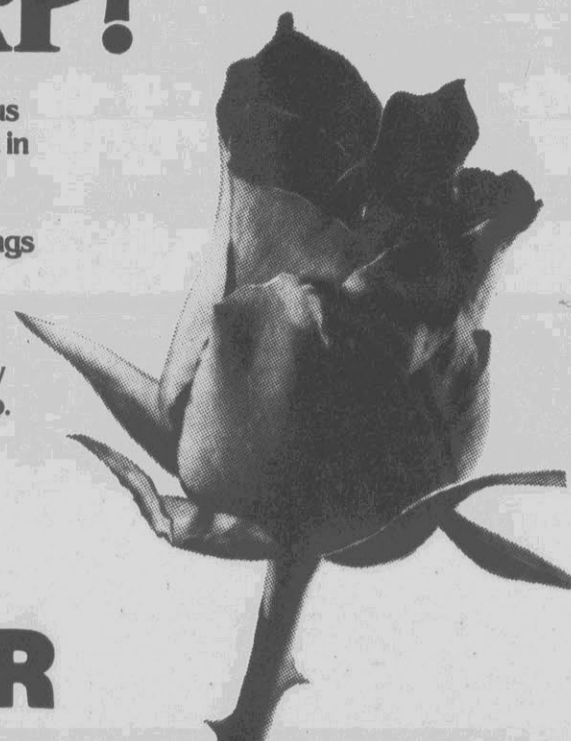

Note: Large sheets pasta dough, sometimes available at pasta stores, may be used in place of sou beoreg dough. Commercial pasta will absorb less melted butter.

Cheese Filling
2 pounds grated Jack cheese
1 bunch parsley, minced
Combine cheese and parsley.

Cooking

New England in style is still straightforward, as it was for Priscilla and John Alden and the middle class of the 17th century.

"It's far more interesting, however, because the 20th-century cooks have incorporated many more ethnic influences than the bland English tastes that took hold at Plymouth Rock," the Joneses write in "The L.L. Bean Book of New New England Cookery." (Random House) the result of their efforts.

Mrs. Jones is a cookbook writer and editor whose authors include Julia Child, Marcella Hazan and Marion Cunningham. She and her husband wrote "The Book of Bread," and Jones is the author of "American Food" and "The World of Cheese."

Their newest book is not a nostalgic look at old-country cooking, nor is it an effort to find historical recipes. Instead, the Joneses, who live in New York City and Vermont, try to catalog modern life at the dinner table. And despite the inclusion of more than 800 recipes, Mrs. Jones says "quite a few" were left out.

The book, published as the venerable L.L. Bean celebrates its 75th anniversary, began with the Joneses noticing changes in the foods that were grown, prepared and served in New England. They saw food that was fresher, "less stodgy" than in the past, more reflective of a pride in the region's ethnic diversity, Mrs. Jones said in a recent interview.

Another factor, Jones added, was that "in the '60s, New England was hit by the take-to-the-woods generation as hard as any part of the country," leading to new, young residents and changes in lifestyle.

What happened in New England, happened in various guises across the United States, they said.

But Jones noted that "American food was really founded on the English food of New England more than the English food of the South," adding that as a child in Minnesota he ate many foods considered New England, such as hermit cookies, baked beans and cod that traveled with pioneers as they moved West.

Such food, he said, "was a way of making a statement that you were American."

And the Jones include recipes for traditional dishes, such as finnan haddie, Fourth of July Salmon with new peas and potatoes, and New England boiled dinner.

There are many notes about history and tradition, including an explanation of the debate over just what scrod is and how tomatoes got into clam chowder. There also are discussions of church suppers and clambakes, native Americans' and immigrant groups' contributions to the food of New England.

There are eight recipes for cod, including two for cod cakes, one traditional with potatoes and bacon fat, one modern with cheese and spinach. There are five clam chowder recipes, as well as recipes for chowders with mussels, scallops and chicken.

Among unusual treatments for standard New England ingredients are a maple syrup-coated ham, cranberry-orange pork chops, pot roast with cranberries, a cold blueberry soup with maple syrup. Some of the heavier foods were made lighter by, for example, replacing sour cream with yogurt or cooking by stir-frying.

The couple spent 3½ years on the book, traveling extensively in all six New England states, reading food columns in weekly newspapers, asking questions at farmers' markets and in restaurants, poring over local fund-raising cookbooks.

PORTUGUESE FISHERMAN'S STEW

- 1 pound salt codfish
- 1 cup olive oil
- 2 large onions, chopped
- 2/3 garlic cloves, chopped
- 3 medium potatoes, peeled and diced

- 1/4 cup chopped black olives
- 4/5 tomatoes, peeled, seeded and sliced
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley
- 3/4 cup white wine

- Freshly ground pepper to taste
- 1 teaspoon dried thyme

Cover the codfish with water for about 24 hours, changing the water two or three times. Drain, cut the fish in 2- to 3-inch rectangles, cover with boiling water and simmer, covered, for 15 minutes, or until tender. Drain the pieces and remove the skin and any small bones, then break the fish into flakes and set aside.

Heat the oil in a skillet and when a haze can be seen over it, stir in the chopped onions and garlic and the diced potatoes. Cook gently until the onions are translucent, then add the fish, olives, tomatoes, parsley and wine. Season with thyme and pepper — no salt should be needed. Cover the pan and simmer very slowly for about 2½ hours, until the fish is very tender. Decorate each serving with pimiento strips.

Serves 4.

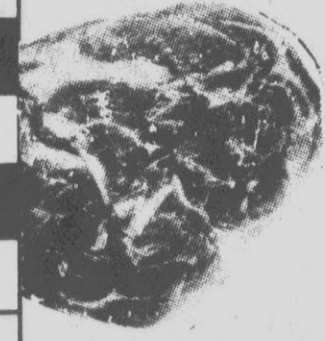

Chinese cabbage, also known as celery cabbage, resembles romaine lettuce. It can be used in a salad or served cooked.
