Nofziger Found Guilty Of Lobbying Illegally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyn Nofziger, President Reagan's one-time political director, was found guilty today of charges he illegally lobbied top presidential aides for private clients after leaving the White House.

The jury convicted Nofziger on three of four felony charges that he had illegally lobbied former colleagues on behalf of Wedtech Corp., a maritime engineers union and the manufacturer of the Air Force's A-10 anti-tank plane.

In part, the jury found Nofziger guilty of illegally using his influence by sending an April 8, 1982, memo to then-presidential counselor Edwin K. Meese III suggesting that Meese enlist the support of top administration officials — including the president himself — to persuade the Army to give a no-bid contract to build small gasoline engines to the Bronx-based Wedtech Corp., since implicated in numerous plots to buy influence with high government officials.

Meese, now attorney general, had testified in the U.S. District Court trial that he could not recall discussing the Wedtech contract during an April 5, 1982, meeting that was referred to in Nofziger's April 8 memo.

The jury acquitted Nofziger of a single charge that he had illegally lobbied a White House official on behalf of Wedtech. The jury also cleared Nofziger's partner, Mark A. Bragg, of a felony charge of aiding and abetting that alleged contact, a May 28, 1982, letter to deputy presidential counselor James E. Jenkins.

Nofziger's defense had contended that his name on the Jenkins letter had been forged by another Wedtech lobbyist, Stephen Denlinger.

Nofziger could be sentenced to six years in prison and fined up to $30,000 on the three convictions. U.S. District Judge Thomas A. Flannery scheduled sentencing for March 25.

Nofziger, whose political association with the president dates back to Reagan's days as governor of California, was found guilty by a jury that deliberated less than eight hours.

The verdict came less than two months after another former Reagan aide, Michael K. Deaver, was convicted of lying under oath about his lobbying activities.

Nofziger headed the White House Office of Political Affairs from 1981, when Reagan took office, until early 1982.

Mrs. Helms Hospitalized

RALEIGH (AP) — Dorothy Helms, wife of Sen. Jesse A. Helms, was in satisfactory condition Wednesday following surgery at Rex Hospital. Bob Caudle, a Helms staff assistant in Raleigh, said Mrs. Helms was hospitalized for surgery to remove a tumor of the colon.

A spokesman in Helms' Washington office said Mrs. Helms needed surgery because of a diagnosis of cancer, according to the Durham Morning Herald. Helms' aides at both his Washington and Raleigh offices declined to comment further.

Americans Cite Violent 'Epidemic' By Israelis

JERUSALEM (AP) — A member of an American medical team that visited the West Bank and Gaza Strip said today the doctors saw evidence that Israeli soldiers were beating Palestinians in an "uncontrolled epidemic of violence."

Dr. H. Jack Geiger, a member of the Boston-based group Physicians for Human Rights, told reporters the abuse of Palestinians had become systematic and "the norm" in the occupied territories, where unrest broke out Dec. 8.

In the West Bank city of Ramallah today, soldiers fired tear gas and rubber bullets to disperse about 50 Arab protesters, some masked, who threw stones and blocked roads with burning tires.

In the Arab village of Taibe, protesters threw stones, burned tires and attacked a Jewish motorist, police said. The village is 20 miles northeast of Tel Aviv.

Arab protesters in the east Jerusalem neighborhood of Silwan stoned an Israeli bus taking residents to work, the army said. The driver fled, and the youths set fire to the bus. There were no injuries.

Geiger was one of four U.S. doctors who spent four days visiting hospitals in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. The fact-finding mission was organized by Physicians for Human Rights.

"We collected medical evidence of an uncontrolled epidemic of violence by the army ... on a scale and severity that might not be clear to the public," said Geiger, a medical professor at City University of New York.

"The numbers, rate and scope of the beatings and trauma we have seen cannot be considered deviations or aberrations. They come closer to being the norm," he told reporters.

Geiger said he saw six Palestinians permanently paralyzed in one or more limbs as a result of beatings, including one who was paralyzed from the neck down.

The fact-finding mission was organized by Physicians for Human Rights. (See VIOLENCE, A-16)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An earthquake jolted Southern California today, shaking buildings in downtown Los Angeles and 50 miles away. There were no immediate reports of injuries or damage.

The quake measured 5.0 on the Richter scale and struck at 7:25 a.m., coming as an aftershock of the Oct. 1 quake that struck the Los Angeles area, said Jacquelyn Dreher, spokeswoman for the California Institute of Technology, which monitors earthquakes in Southern California.

The U.S. Geological Survey in Washington, D.C., said the earthquake registered 4.7 on Richter scale and was centered 10 miles northwest of Whittier, where the Oct. 1 quake hit hardest.

An agreement between the city of Greenville and the C.M. Eppes Recreation Center was signed, and a nine-member advisory board for the River Park North Science and Nature Center was approved at the February meeting of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission Wednesday night.

Jean Darden, president of the C.M. Eppes Alumni Association, signed for the association and Dr. Carl Wille signed for the commission. The Eppes organization is housed in the gymnasium at Tom Foreman Park on West Fifth Street.

"The center insures that a part of the history of the city won't be lost, that we can be sure it will be kept alive," Mrs. Darden said. "The Eppes Center will contain memorabilia, portraits, papers, all that is left of the former C.M. Eppes School which burned some years ago."

The Eppes School for years was an all-black school. The only building not destroyed in the fire was the gymnasium, now used for recre-

High-Tech Cupid

By FELIX GUTIERREZ
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Not all love notes will arrive by mail, floral delivery or singing telegram this Valentine's Day. The high-tech Cupid of the '80s can now sling his amorous arrows via modems and microchips.

Computer bulletin boards with names like the Affection Connection, Fantasy Plaza, Dial-Your-Match, Luv Connection and Secret Partner offer adult users matchmaking, anonymous advice and other social services.

"You call into the bulletin board and all of a sudden it's a dating service or a friend-making service," said David Cornell, 25. For up to 10 minutes a night, he types and receives electronic messages via his home computer through the Affection Connection.

"Find your long-awaited heart" promises advertising for Secret Partner in a California computer magazine. The Affection Connection's ad offers "Matchmaking" to help find that special person "and a way to leave private messages "for whispering your sweet nothings."

The Affection Connection will celebrate its first anniversary on Valentine's Day. System operator Devin Woods expects another heavy Feb. 14th of electronic love letters, passion poetry, and party invitations.

"There was a lot of Valentine's Day messages gong through that day. It was busier than normal," said Woods, recalling 1987. "There were a lot of one or two-line messages. People writing poems to one girl and then posting it on the bulletin board for public view."

"In an age of anonymous sex, it's better if people use a keyboard than a bedboard," said Dan Brenner, head

United Way Honors Leaders

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

Celebrating its 30th anniversary of servicing needs in the community, the Pitt County United Way held its annual meeting and awards luncheon Wednesday at the Greenville Country Club.

Approximately 100 people attended the ceremony which served both to recognize leadership in employee campaigns and to name 1988 officers and board members.

This year the Pitt County United Way drive raised $1,032,793, exceeding its goal of $1,030,724 and becoming the organization's first million dollar campaign.

"It's exciting to see the support the United Way has received during the past year and it's also exciting to see the diversity of people who come together for an important event like this," said Lou Folger, the United Way's executive director.

Folger said contributions provide funds for 32 member-agencies throughout the county. Those services range from providing support for children with cancer and blood diseases, addressing the problems of illiteracy, to helping victims of domestic violence.

In addition, Folger said the organization this year provided grants to two growing services, Project Parenting and Pitt County Partnership for Progress.

Pitt County United Way began in 1958 when community leaders came together to form what was then the Pitt County United Fund.

Since that time, over $8 million has been contributed to meet human needs in Pitt County, according to Andy Warren, Pitt County United Way's outgoing president.

"Through an ongoing review process, the United Way and its allocations committee examine each agency's program to assure that community needs are being met," Warren said.

"Allocations volunteers have the task of converting contributed dollars into agency allocations. Almost 300 volunteer hours went into the budget review process this year," he added.

Incoming United Way President Mike Renn said 1988 efforts will include assessing campaign strategies to help optimize fund-raising efforts.

"This year we are celebrating our 30th birthday. Most of us at 30 step back and reassess our own individual situation relative to our environment and our goals. I believe that we should do the same thing," Renn said.

"This year we will try to assess our environment and ourselves, and develop strategies which will take us into the 1990s and beyond, in as strong a position as we find ourselves in 1988," he added.

In order to achieve this, Renn said he plans to gather volunteers and agency representatives to help establish updated funding guidelines, and define priorities and capabilities.

Smaller business recognized at the luncheon for outstanding campaigns were the Credit Bureau of Greenville; Equitable Life Assurance; Jefferson Pilot Life Insurance; Mid Atlantic Mortgage Co.; North Carolina Natural Gas, and Yellow Freight system.

Inmate Granted Stay 90 Minutes Before Execution

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A convicted murderer avoided the death chamber today for a fourth time when the U.S. Supreme Court halted his execution about 90 minutes before it was to occur.

Calvin Williams, 27, was scheduled for death by injection at midnight for the 1980 strangulation of a 28-year-old Houston travel agent.

The high court, however, responding to appeals from Williams' attorneys, voted 7-0 for a reprieve about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

"Thank you," Williams told an assistant warden who informed him of the stay.

A few minutes later, with chains around his wrists and ankles, he was removed from a small cell adjacent to the death chamber at the Department of Corrections' Walls Unit and returned to death row, where he has lived for nearly the last eight years.

Williams had promised that he would not be placed on the death chamber gurney without a fight.

"I'm not going to walk in there and just hop up on that table," Williams said in an interview last week.

Williams acknowledged breaking into the apartment where Emily Anderson was slain, but insisted the burglary occurred a month before. His fingerprints, however, were found in her car, which was stolen at the time of her death and recovered a few blocks from Williams home.

Williams' attorneys contended in appeals the Texas death penalty law is flawed in that it does not allow jurors to consider mitigating circumstances and forces them to return a death verdict.

On Wednesday, a federal judge in Houston and the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans rejected their arguments.

The argument, successful before the Supreme Court, has been used to obtain stays in many recent capital punishment cases because it is being used in a challenge pending before the high court in another Texas death row case.

Williams would have become the 95th inmate to be put to death nationwide and the 28th in Texas — more than any other state — since the Supreme Court's 1976 decision allowing resumption of executions.

Indicted

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The Forsyth County grand jury has indicted two people from Winston-Salem on charges of murder and common law robbery in the beating Oct. 26 of a 66-year-old man.

Johnny Gray, 39, and Lisa Renee McBride, 23, were indicted on charges of first-degree murder and common-law robbery in the beating death of Willis Eli Mabe of Winston-Salem.

During the day Wednesday, Williams was described as calm and cooperative, visiting with his mother, two sisters and clergymen.

A jury in 1980 took just six minutes to decide Williams should get the death penalty.

Williams, who said he was one of 19 children in his family, was in the 11th grade when he went to jail on a robbery conviction. He had been out 34 days when the slaying occurred.

"I would be glad to have it over with," Miss Anderson's sister, Ellen Yarrell said. "As far as I'm concerned, he's had eight years she didn't have."

City Signs Agreement For Eppes Center

ational purposes, with space set aside in the building for the C.M. Eppes collection.

The agreement is to be renewed annually, with provisions that no structural alterations shall be made without the prior written permission of the city.

The city of Greenville will provide maintenance and repair service and be responsible for providing utilities.

The association will carry, at its own expense, public liability insurance of at least $500,000.

Also included in the agreement are provisions that the association will make available to the public the archives on the life of C.M. Eppes and the history of the school, and that no fees will be charged to the citizens of Greenville for use of the facility.

The advisory board for River Park North, Wille said, "represents a cross section of people with a high degree of interest in the programs planned at the center. Our selection committee considered a large slate of possible members and contacted them before coming up with the nine persons nominated for this board."

The advisory board will have no voice in policy making. The board's role is strictly that of advisers, with the members to work through Howard Vainright, director at River Park North.

Board members approved for a one-year term are: Bob Wendling, Diane Hankins, Grace Smith, Amy Hannon, Dr. Charles Coble, Karen Vail Smith, Owen Burney, Dr. James Gaiser and Tom Daly.

These nine represent such varied areas of primary interest as the Sierra Club, birdwatchers, nature instructor personnel, science advocates, the planetarium and the Pitt County school system.

Community interest in the possibility of designating an area in Greenville for the use of skateboard and specialized bicycle performers was brought to the attention of the commission.

An hour-long presentation of this interest was given to commissioners by Barbara Hardy, president of the Safe Wheels of Pitt-Greenville Association, Dr. Richard H. Laing, and others on the association's steering committee.

Mrs. Hardy stressed the "tremendous interest in these sports, an interest that is not just a passing fad, but one that is gaining momentum."

The Safe Wheels of Pitt-Greenville Association was formed in late January. Mrs. Hardy gave the commissioners a petition bearing over 2,800 names of persons supporting the concept of a city location for these sports. "We have the names of 416 persons interested in being participants and direct supporters," she said.

The majority of those who are active in the two sports are boys between the ages of 6 and 18, with a scattering of girls and older people.

Laing explained that the major need for a site "is a smooth paved surface. Members of our steering committee visited a number of possible sites. Some would not be suitable because of the pavement condition, others would not be viable because of lack of suitable space or nearness to homes which could create problems due to noise."

The site Laing and other members of the committee feel is most suitable is the parking lot at the Teen Center.

Commissioners asked Boyd Lee, executive director of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, to assemble information and details on matters such as liability insurance, equipment safety, feasibility of space use and to bring this information to a future meeting. Commissioners will study all information and then further discuss the association's request.

On the issue of major maintenance items in the capital improvements budget, Lee informed commissioners several pressing needs exist, all of which cannot be covered by the $15,000 available in current budgeting allocations.

Emphasizing that the department "does not want to go to the City Council requesting additional funds at this time," Lee outlined a recommendation by state officials for the installation of fire and burglar alarms at the nearly completed Science and Nature Center at River Park North. Also needed there is at minimum a deck where school and other groups could receive orientation before going inside to the display area.

On the other hand, there exists pressing needs for long-delayed repairs such as the bathrooms at Elm Street Center.

Lorraine Shinn, the City Council's liaison member to the Recreation and Parks Department, suggested, "strictly as a personal feeling, that the council would probably be amenable to assistance to provide the needed additions at the new center. There has been considerable complaints to council members about such things as the needed repairs at Elm Street. It is my feeling these things should no longer be put off. My suggestion would be to take care of these and to present a need for assistance at River Park North to the council."

Mrs. Shinn said she would introduce the situation at the council's next workshop session.

In a brief discussion on the recent Medical Park Recreation Study, Lee said the study at this time does not entail action on part of the recreation commission, but that it is basically a document detailing information to the department and to the City Council.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Cost And Service Correct Priorities

The Greenville Public Transportation Commission should approach the issue of privatizing the city's transit system with caution and make sure all questions regarding service and expense are answered with the citizens in mind.

The commission should not accept any privatization offer that diminishes the level of service the bus system offers. Neither should it enter an arrangement that raises the cost of public transit to the users.

The board must also satisfactorily resolve questions concerning decision-making and community responsiveness that arise when a non-public entity assumes responsibility for a public service.

A reliable, flexible bus system is essential for the growth of an urban area. No city can develop into a major metropolis without mass transit that serves the needs of its citizens effectively. Although it is a service utilized by all segments of the population, the city's bus system is most important to low income residents and senior citizens who depend on it for mobility.

For this reason, the commission must prioritize service in its consideration of the issue. By no means should the level of service to the citizens be diminished by privatizing Greenville's mass transit. If a private enterprise cannot operate the system without cutbacks, that option should be dismissed.

Neither should the commission allow privatization that results in a steep cost increase to users. Bus riders absorbed a substantial fee increase several years ago to compensate for shrinking federal funds. Further increases could easily put the cost of the service out of reach to those who most need it.

Before it makes a decision, the commission must also carefully examine the bottom-line expense of privatization to the city, including overhead and indirect costs. Greenville's elected officials should weigh the savings, if any, against the service. An estimated saving of $9,000 dollars a year — the figure the private transit firm supplied — is not a substantial bargain if the level of service is reduced or cost to the customer rises.

Finally, the board must recognize the drawbacks of a private company operating a public system. A company operating for profit has a different priority than a municipality functioning for the public good, and would likely manage a bus system accordingly. When decisions are not made by public officials, it is more difficult for public transit to respond to community needs. That circumstance raises questions, again, about service and cost.

Privatizing mass transit is a tricky issue and the commission was correct to withdraw from a decision until armed with the correct data.

One Small Surprise

Once every four years Iowa is the most closely watched state of the union.

It is the time of the Iowa caucuses and the nation watches for some inkling of who will emerge as the leaders in the races for Democratic and Republican presidential nominations.

The nation watched Monday night and then left Iowa to itself. Iowa told the country that it preferred Republican Bob Dole and Democrat Richard Gephardt as the candidates for the two parties' presidential nominations.

There wasn't much else to report on the Democratic side. Gephardt's lead was not very convincing over Illinois Sen. Paul Simon and even third place finisher Michael Dukakis was satisfied to be where he was.

But in the Republican arena, things were a little more exciting. The major surprise was that Vice President George Bush ran third behind Pat Robertson. Robertson, who doesn't like to be referred to as a former television evangelist, was ecstatic and attempted to make the most of it. Robertson's totals were only 26,761, or 25 percent of the Iowa vote. That is an infinitesimal number of popular votes from the huge pool of voters which must be captured. Nevertheless, it was significant that Robertson had outrun the vice president in Iowa. The surprise is, however, that Bush has proven so unpopular in this early test of strength on the road to the Republican national convention.

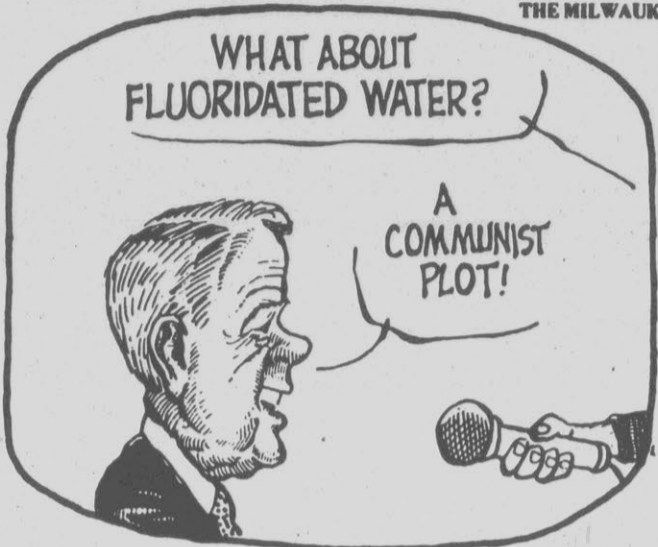

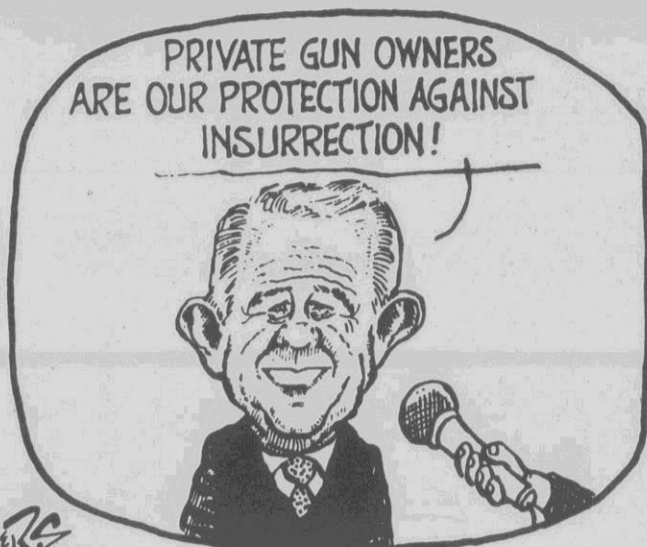

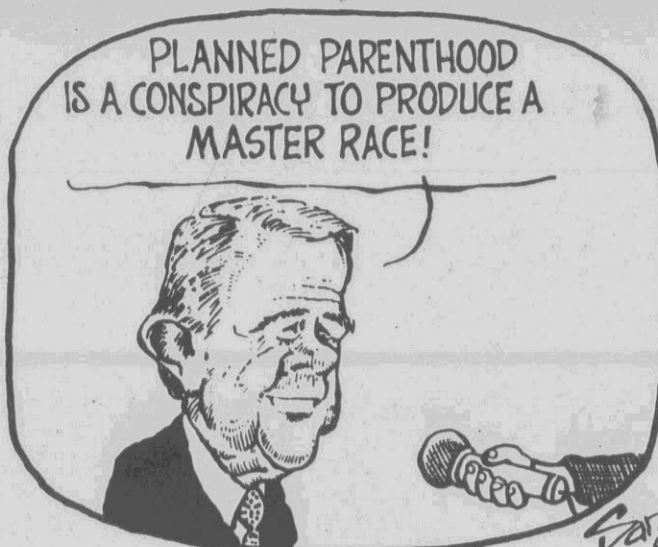

The questions rose swiftly:

•Did Bush hurt himself with his intransigence on the Iran arms situation?

•Does he really come across as not being decisive enough to be president?

•Did his celebrated confrontation with CBS anchorman Dan Rather hurt, rather than help Bush?

All of that pales in the light of the knowledge that Dole scored a decisive victory in the Iowa test.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Your editorial of Feb. 7 knocking the new 6-3 election method for electing county commissioners does not quite tell it like it is. But you do admit that the 6-3 method does provide, at least, an "increased opportunity" for minorities to elect a candidate of their choice.

First, it is a waste of time to try to create or perpetuate a method that is inadequate to gain federal approval. Second, there is no evidence to suggest that "the county's election method determines the quality of its leadership." The new method, however, will increase the likelihood of our having a greater diversity of leadership. Fewer people will feel that voting is a waste of time; a greater number of candidates will feel they have a fair chance of being elected.

Third, the "quality" of leadership does not derive from the geographic boundaries of a district, state or nation. Honesty, integrity, intelligence, compassion and a willingness to risk making hard decisions has nothing to do with geography, race or party affiliation.

One healthy outcome may be that future county commissioners will engage in substantive debate, get a lot more publicity and seek a lot more input from the public before making important decisions. Healthy, hearty and open debate may be a major plus for Pitt County's future.

To the editor:

The impression may have developed from the recent management audit of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill that the Search Committee for a new Chancellor and the Board of Trustees are in opposition to the Board of Governors and the President. That impression is incorrect.

The management audit is an analysis and set of recommendations by a group of academic consultants commissioned by the Search Committee. The goal in commissioning the report was to recommend qualities we need to look for in the new Chancellor and issues that might be considered in connection with the appointment of the new Chancellor that relate to the future of the University. We have sought recommendations on these points from other sources as well. The recommendations of the audit are only recommendations, and they are the product of the team of consultants, and not the Search Committee or the Board of Trustees. They have yet to be discussed by either body.

I am confident that the report will receive thoughtful consideration. We will take matters of concern to the President and the Board of Governors, as we always have done, should they arise.

U.S. Sent Mixed Signals To Noriega

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials have been privately criticizing Panamanian strongman Manuel Antonio Noriega for years, but say they were reluctant to abandon him because the stakes in Panama were too high.

Now, five years after Noriega became Panama's defense chief and de facto political leader, his split with the United States appears to be irrevocable.

But in the process, the United States has become more concerned about the safety of its interests in Panama than at any time since an outbreak of anti-American riots there almost a quarter century ago.

A spate of recent events, highlighting Noriega's purported twin roles as a U.S. intelligence asset and an international drug trafficking chieftain, have called stark attention once again to a country that ranks second only to Mexico as the hemisphere's most important nation for the United States.

The country is home to the Panama Canal and 10,000 American military personnel who are responsible for U.S. military operations throughout Latin America. And with Noriega's acquiescence, Panama has been for years a center of U.S. intelligence-gathering activities in the region.

The choice, somewhat oversimplified, that the Reagan administration has faced was not easy:

'While the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration was sending Noriega letters of praise for his cooperation in bringing to justice some drug traffickers, the State Department was encouraging him to give way to an elected civilian leadership.'

deal with Noriega and overlook his alleged sins or help ease him out of power and confront the possibility of a successor less willing to cooperate in intelligence matters. Even more troubling was the prospect that Noriega's departure could lead to political instability in Panama.

Norman Bailey, a former National Security Council aide, said the administration opted for the former course because he was an invaluable intelligence asset.

Bailey said recently that with the help of Panamanian double agents controlled by Noriega, the United States received important information about Cuban and Nicaraguan activities.

Those same agents also kept Cuba and Nicaragua informed of American activities but the United States felt it was "getting more than it was giving," Bailey said.

The United States was faced with competing interests: Noriega was strategically useful on the one hand but, as Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-

N.Y., put it, a "thug and a racketeer" on the other.

To move against Noriega could alienate him and risk exposure of highly sensitive U.S. intelligence information, according to U.S. officials. They said that the precipitous departure of Noriega could open the way to "psychotic killers" in Panama's Defense Forces who are positioning themselves to replace Noriega.

The administration's ambiguity about Noriega was reflected in contradictory signals from various U.S. agencies. While the CIA was cooperating with Noriega, the Justice Department was investigating him.

While the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration was sending Noriega letters of praise for his cooperation in bringing to justice some drug traffickers, the State Department was encouraging him to give way to an elected civilian leadership.

Privately, U.S. officials said the DEA was misguided in praising Noriega, contending that he co-operated in anti-drug crackdowns only when they involved smugglers who were not giving him a share of the profits.

The ambiguity appears to have ended with the indictments handed down last week in Florida portraying Noriega as a key member of an international narcotics trafficking conspiracy.

Noriega has struck back at the administration, contending over the weekend that former National Security adviser John Poindexter sought his cooperation in 1985 in turning Panama into a "beachhead" against Nicaragua. The claim drew emphatic denials from the administration.

Noriega also implied that he would seek the removal of U.S. military forces from Panama. The administration said the presence of those forces is assured under a bilateral agreement until the end of 1999, when the Panama Canal treaties mandate the transfer of the waterway to Panama.

Allegations this week at a congressional hearing, if true, indicate that Noriega's links to the CIA and the NSC were deeper than anyone had imagined.

Strength For Today

It is a terrible thing to watch a loved one die, and millions of people are having that experience every day. Sometimes it is an elderly parent who is passing away. Even more tragic, it is often a husband or wife, son or daughter, or perhaps a life-long friend.

What word of comfort is there to be said to people overcome by grief? No human word, certainly. But there is a divine assurance on the matter of death which runs through the New Testament from beginning to end. If we could see with the eyes of God we would no doubt be willing to give up our loved ones, knowing full well that they are safer in the Lord's hands than in ours.

"Whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord. Whether we live or die, therefore, we are the Lord's."

Troopers Fight Personal 'Battle Of The Bulge'

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer

State troopers are supposed to stay in shape, ready at a moment's notice for a violent confrontation, but hours spent behind the wheel of a patrol car and junk food can take their toll.

"We do require a lot of stamina and a lot of driving," said Maj. Robert Barefoot of the N.C. Highway Patrol. "Our people have a tendency to eat a lot of fast food, which isn't very good for you."

To combat the problem, the patrol has instituted a wellness program for its 1,187 employees. The voluntary program, which is being funded in part by a grant from First Citizens Bank, concentrates on exercise, nutrition and stress control.

"We think it's extremely important that our members understand how quality health management affects the quality of their lives — both professionally and personally," said Col. J.F. Cardwell, commander of the patrol.

Barefoot, director of training, said the patrol has had a health management program for the past 18 months. "But now we've got the complete package together," he said.

The exercise portion of the program was developed by Dr. Kenneth Cooper of the Aerobic Institut. of Dallas. Cooper has helped develop similar programs for federal and state law enforcement agencies across the country.

"The best thing about it is that each program is scaled to the needs of the individual," said Barefoot. "Someone who's not ready to run three miles isn't expected to try."

So far, the program has been a hit. "It was the troopers who wanted it," said Barefoot. "Participation is close to 99 percent, and about 80 percent of the people who started last year have shown great improvement."

Before a trooper or any other employee can begin the program, he or she is given a complete physical.

"We found that about 10 percent of our patrolmen had high blood pressure or hypertension or other problems that disqualified them from training," he said. "They will need a doctor's approval (to join)."

Stress control will be taught by highway patrol training instructors, using methods developed by Dr. Roger Solomon of the Colorado Springs Police Department. Solomon counsels police agencies on stress management throughout the U.S. and Canada.

"Stress is probably one of the greatest factors in our people having poor health," said Barefoot. "Our job isn't always as exciting as a television shootout, but troopers always have to be prepared for the worst."

Nutrition is the newest segment of the wellness program.

"When a man works for 35 years it's hard to dismiss him for being 35 pounds overweight," said Barefoot, who explained that the patrol does have weight guidelines. "It's the kind of thing that's very delicate to enforce," he said.

The grant from First Citizens bank was used to hire a part-time nutritionist. Before meeting with the nutritionist, troopers are asked to write down their eating habits over a period of several weeks.

"The troopers can sit down with the nutritionist and learn what they should eat and what to cut out," Barefoot said.

The 50-year-old Barefoot has benefited personally from the program. His pulse rate is 20 beats a minute slower than it was when he started.

"It really makes a difference," he said. "It gives you a good feeling about yourself."

Sara Lee Boosts Hanes Label By Adding Two New Plants

By The Associated Press

Sara Lee Corp.'s acquisition of an Asheboro underwear manufacturer and a High Point hosiery mill should help its Hanes label expand in worldwide markets, analysts say.

"We need their production capabilities," said Nancy Young, Sara Lee's corporate affairs manager in Winston-Salem. "Historically, when we make an acquisition, it's pretty much business as usual. We don't go in and clean house."

The purchase of Adams-Millis in High Point gives Sara Lee an entry into sock manufacturing, while Stedman Corp. of Asheboro makes underwear and T-shirts.

"It's a very wise move on (Hanes') part," Marvin Roffman, an analyst with Janney Montgomery Scott & Co. in Philadelphia, said. "They'd like to expand worldwide in hosiery areas and this gives them the opportunity."

Minneapolis analyst Craig Carver said the acquisitions enable Sara Lee to build on its Hanes label. "Hanes has been a shining star at Sara Lee," said Carver, who works for Dain Bosworth Inc. "We're going to see some rather aggressive expansion on the part of Hanes."

Sara Lee announced it had purchased Stedman Corp. Tuesday.

The Stedman family sold its company in 1986 to a management group headed by Lee Klinetobe, former president of Sara Lee's Hanes Knitwear Inc., now Hanes Knit Products Inc. Stedman had sales of about $125 million in 1987, Klinetobe said.

"When the opportunity comes along that you think will enhance your company and the people in your company long term, then you sell," said Klinetobe, who has agreed to stay on as president. "For the future of Stedman and the continued growth of Stedman, we believe this is a good place to be."

The move follows Sara Lee's announcement Monday of a $75 million offer for Adams-Millis, which had 1987 sales of about $198 million.

Sara Lee reported profits of $267 million on sales of $9.2 billion in 1987. International and U.S. food operations contributed $4.66 billion in sales; its apparel divisions contributed $1.63 billion; household products and food distribution services accounted for the remainder. The Adams-Millis and Stedman acquisitions together are expected to add about $300 million in sales a year.

"These acquisitions are part of our strategy for growing our traditional core businesses," Paul Fulton, Sara Lee's senior vice president, said.

Counting the acquisitions, Sara Lee will have about 18,500 workers in North and South Carolina at 45 plants. Hanes and affiliates have 13,000 employees in the two Carolinas and is best known for its L'eggs and Hanes panty hose and Isotoner gloves.

Sara Lee plans at first to operate Stedman as a division separate from its Hanes Knit Products division.

"While we will initially operate independently, we will also be looking for opportunities to work together to improve production and increase sales for both Stedman and Hanes Knit Products," Joe Neely, senior vice president in charge of Sara Lee's apparel divisions, said in a statement.

In addition to adding Adams-Millis and Stedman to its roster, Sara Lee in August acquired Rice Hosiery Corp. of High Point. It also began construction last year of a new Kitchens of Sara Lee plant near Tarboro in Edgecombe County.

Panel Backs Joint Environmental Unit

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Environmental Management Commission has endorsed combining North Carolina's environmental regulatory, environmental health and natural resource programs into a single "super agency."

In a resolution adopted unanimously Wednesday, the commission recommended that the governor and the legislature consolidate those programs into the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, which provides staff support to the commission.

With its vote, the commission joined a growing list of state officials, boards and agencies that have endorsed environmental consolidation. Such programs are scattered among eight departments, although NRCDC accounts for more than 80 percent of the state money spent on environmental programs.

"I think it was important that they let their voice be heard," NRCDC Secretary Tommy Rhodes said after the meeting. "The governor and the legislature already had heard from the health services commission."

Last month, the N.C. Commission for Health Services adopted a resolution supporting the consolidation of public health and environmental regulatory programs into a new department.

A legislative panel has been studying the issue since 1986, but has not yet proposed a reorganization plan. Gov. Jim Martin has set up a task force to study the issue, and said last week that he might order consolidation this year if he and legislative leaders could agree on a plan.

Boone Jury Orders Term In Shooting

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Jon Eric Clemmer has been sentenced to 15 years in prison after being found guilty of second-degree murder in the shooting of an Appalachian State University student last summer.

Darren Harold Waldrop, 22, of Gastonia, was found innocent by the same seven-man, five-woman jury after 3½ hours of deliberations Wednesday. The two had been charged with first-degree murder in the death of Jabe Hardee, 19, of Wilmington.

Waldrop heaved a sigh of relief when Superior Court Judge Charles Lamm read the not-guilty verdict.

Clemmer was convicted of deliberately shooting Hardee after a fraternity party the two defendants had twice visited the night of July 10. The shooting took place after a fight between Waldrop and another ASU student at the party.

Education Tour

RALEIGH (AP) — African students from Zimbabwe and Botswana will soon be coming to the United States to get farming, medical and engineering training at historically black universities, the president of St. Augustine's College says.

Prezell Robinson, who led a fact-finding mission to Africa last month, said the exchange program should help the United States cement relations with those nations.

Robinson, president of the predominately black Raleigh college for 20 years, signed an exchange agreement with officials during his 15-day visit that also will send American teachers to Africa.

Thornell and her assistants can check out any of the library's nearly 5,000 books, reference issues and periodicals.

She said the circulation program helps her gauge how frequently certain books are checked out, prompt the system to spit out automatic overdue slips and develop book lists for special topics.

Guilty Pleas

GREENSBORO (AP) — Two people convicted on cocaine charges in New York pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court in Greensboro to charges stemming from a major cocaine laboratory discovered near Gibsonville in 1985.

Carlos Gomez and Evelyn Carbarera, also known as Evelyn Dubore, pleaded guilty Tuesday to conspiring to manufacture and distribute 204 kilograms of cocaine from the Gibsonville lab. Gomez also pleaded guilty to manufacturing 200 kilograms of cocaine at the lab on Jan. 24, 1985.

Gomez faces up to 40 years in prison and a $500,000 fine, however, under his plea agreement, the U.S. Attorney's office will recommend that his sentence not exceed 20 years in prison. Ms. Carbarera faces up to 20 years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

Crash Report

RALEIGH (AP) — The pilot of a small airplane that crashed last summer approaching a Raleigh-Durham Airport runway behind a commercial jet had been warned about possible turbulence from the airliner, a federal report said.

The National Transportation Safety Board's investigation made public this week also said an RDU air traffic controller told the pilot that he could use the airport's other runway, which was clear at the time, but the pilot declined.

John William Strickland, 43, of Salisbury, pilot of the Cessna 172, and Mary T. Siebold, 32, of Charlotte, the only passenger, were injured July 14 when the plane flipped and crashed about 500 feet short of the runway.

Bennett Says State Now In Compliance

By The Associated Press
A consultant hired to work with colleges in improving desegregation plans says he disagrees with Secretary of Education William Bennett that North Carolina and other Southern states are in compliance with civil rights laws.

"It seems to me a superficial judgment of what compliance means," Reginald Wilson, director of the Office of Minority Concerns of the American Council on Education, said Wednesday. "I don't consider North Carolina or any of the other nine states yet in compliance."

Wilson was hired as a consultant by Florida and North Carolina.

Bennett said Wednesday that his department had found the community college systems in four Southern states, including North Carolina, to be in full compliance. Six others must take further steps to eliminate the vestiges of segregation.

Wilson said he felt Bennett was giving approval to intent and not the reality of increased participation by minorities.

Mark Van Sciver, director of community affairs for the state Department of Community Colleges, said Bennett's finding are a "mid-term grade."

"The board does not think the problem is over," Van Sciver said.

In addition to North Carolina, states in compliance with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act are Arkansas, South Carolina and West Virginia.

The six states that Bennett said were in partial violation of the law were Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Missouri, Oklahoma and Virginia.

The action was the latest turn in federal efforts that stretch back nearly 20 years to force states which once segregated their colleges by law to improve traditionally black institutions and open doors for minority students and faculty and at traditionally white campuses.

Army Faces Personnel Cuts To Pay For Arms Shipments

By GEORGE C. WILSON
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — The Army will shrink to a 10-year low of 772,600 soldiers this budget year and may drop to pre-Korean war levels to free money needed to pay for weaponry it ordered during the boom days of President Reagan's defense buildup, Army leaders said Wednesday.

James R. Ambrose, who leaves his post as undersecretary of the Army this month, said that, if zero-growth defense budgets continue, as seems likely, he would rather let the Army have as few as 521,000 soldiers than try to field a large force without arms needed to combat the Soviet threat.

With money saved through personnel cuts, Ambrose said, he would keep buying today's tanks and planes while developing for the 21st century a new generation of weaponry, including robots for driving tanks and clearing mine fields.

"The idea is to keep people off the battlefield, to keep them alive," he said in calling for a change in the military's "mind set."

"I don't even know whether the successor to the M-1 tank should be a tank," said the former aerospace executive, seeking new approaches to winning battles with conventional weapons in the next century.

"The first robotic vehicle that the Army put on the field was in World War I," Ambrose said. "Caterpillar (Tractor Co.) made one that was driven by field wire. It's been feasible all that time."

He said steady decreases in manpower must be accompanied by changes in tactics, such as robot infantrymen and radio-controlled armored cars and aircraft. It will take a 20-year effort to persuade Army leaders to devise ways to fight with fewer men, Ambrose predicted.

Ambrose's preference for hardware over manpower in budget conflicts with the views of many generals who have complained that the Army is too small to meet commitments worldwide and does not have the training base needed to prepare draftees to reinforce and replace volunteer troops.

The current Army of 781,000 compares with the Vietnam war peak of 1.57 million in 1968, the Korean war high of 1.59 million in 1952 and the World War II high of 5.98 million in 1945.

The proposed reduction this year to 772,600 active-duty men and women would bring the Army to its lowest strength since the 758,000 under arms in 1979. Army strength has not fallen below 600,000 since 1950 when the active force numbered 593,000.

The Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps are also cutting manpower as part of the retrenchment ordered by Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci to absorb $33 billion in cuts decreed in a budget summit with Congress last year.

The fiscal 1989 budget to be unveiled next week is expected to reveal only the first part of the biggest military retrenchment since Reagan took office in 1981, Defense Department officials said.

Federal Court Says Army Cannot Bar Gays From Military Service

By RUTH MARCUS
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

In a landmark decision on the rights of homosexuals, a divided federal appeals-court panel in California ruled Wednesday that Army regulations barring homosexuals from military service violate the constitutional guarantee of equal protection.

The panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in a 2-to-1 decision, found that homosexuals are a "suspect class" entitled to the same special constitutional protections as racial minorities and said the Army's justifications for excluding homosexuals "illegitimately cater to private biases."

The decision appears to be the first in which a federal appeals court has ruled that discrimination against homosexuals violates the equal-protection clause. It could have broad impact, not only in invalidating similar regulations adopted by other branches of the military but also by protecting homosexuals from governmental discrimination in employment, housing and other matters.

The case involves Sgt. Perry Watkins, a 14-year Army veteran who acknowledged on his enlistment questionnaire in 1967 that he had homosexual tendencies, performed in reviews as a female impersonator with the permission of his commanding officer, and admitted in a 1979 security-clearance interview that he was homosexual. Watkins' superiors consistently gave him outstanding ratings and said he had no problems dealing with other personnel.

Watkins was ordered discharged and denied reenlistment in 1982 on the basis of a regulation passed the year before requiring the discharge of all admitted homosexuals.

In a 60-page opinion by Judge William A. Norris, the court ordered that the Army be required to consider Watkins' application for reenlistment "without regard to his sexual orientation." Norris was joined by Judge William C. Canby Jr.

Judge Stephen Reinhardt dissented. Reinhardt said that although he shared the majority's belief "that homosexuals have been unfairly treated both historically and in the United States today," a 1986 Supreme Court ruling upholding Georgia's sodomy law, which Reinhardt said "egregiously misinterpreted the Constitution," required that the Army regulation be upheld.

All three judges were appointed by President Carter.

James Lobsenz, Watkins' lawyer, hailed the decision as a "tremendously broad and courageous ruling." Army spokesman Greg Rixon said he could not yet comment on the ruling but noted that other courts have upheld military regulations that bar homosexuals on the grounds that "homosexuality is incompatible with military service."

"Laws that limit the acceptable focus of one's sexual desires to members of the opposite sex, like laws that limit one's choice of spouse (or sexual partner) to members of the same race, cannot withstand constitutional scrutiny absent a compelling governmental justification," Norris said.

The majority opinion emphasized that the Army regulations not only prohibit homosexual conduct, but generally bar those who admit homosexual orientation — whether or not they engage in homosexual acts — from serving.

Norris said the case of Watkins, who was never proved to have actually engaged in homosexual acts, was therefore not covered by the Supreme Court's sodomy decision because "nothing in (the decision) suggests that the state may penalize gays for their sexual orientation."

Although "our review of military regulations must be more deferential than comparable review of laws governing civilians," Norris said the Army regulations must be overturned "because they illegitimately cater to private biases."

Norris compared the Army's justifications that the regulations are needed to avoid tensions between homosexuals and soldiers who "despise" homosexuals to arguments previously used to justify racial segregation in the military.

"These concerns strike a familiar chord ...," he said. "Today, it is unthinkable that the judiciary would defer to the Army's 'professional' judgment that black and white soldiers had to be segregated to avoid interracial tensions. Indeed, the Supreme Court has decisively rejected the notion that private prejudice against minorities can ever justify official discrimination, even when those private prejudices cause real and legitimate problems."

In addition, he said, while the Army apparently "believes that its ban against homosexuals simply codifies society's existing moral consensus that homosexuality is evil ... equal-protection doctrine does not permit notions of majoritarian morality to serve as compelling justification for laws that discriminate against suspect classes."

Reinhardt's dissent said Watkins was "regrettably, one of those times" he was "compelled" by a Supreme Court ruling "to reach a result I believe to be contrary to the proper interpretation of constitutional principles."

He agreed with the majority that "Sgt. Watkins has every reason to feel aggrieved" but said that under the Supreme Court decisions, "the Army is free to terminate (his) career solely because he is a homosexual."

Gay-rights advocates applauded the ruling. "This case ... signals what I believe is the beginning of courts' being willing to strike down policies against gay people which have been based for years on nothing more than a tradition of prejudice," said Nan Hunter, director of the American Civil Liberties Union's Gay Rights Project.

"The decision is very important both symbolically and in fact," said Urvashi Vaid of the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force. "Symbolically, it's important because gay people have been struggling against the armed services for years to be allowed to serve as openly gay. ... The language of the decision ... makes very clear that equal protection under the law should not be breached just because a person is gay or lesbian."

However, if the decision reaches the Supreme Court, its fate is unclear. The high court generally has been receptive to claims that the military must be given broad authority to maintain discipline in the ranks. In 1986, the court ruled 5 to 4 that the Air Force could bar an Orthodox Jewish officer from wearing a yarmulke because the military's "perceived need for uniformity" outweighed the First Amendment's guarantees of freedom of religious expression.

Soviets May Be Staging Landings On U.S. Island

By DEAN FOSDICK
Associated Press Writer

GAMBELL, Alaska (AP) — Soviet commandos may be staging covert landings on a U.S. island in the Bering Sea, say officials pointing to discoveries of Soviet military gear and sightings of mysterious strangers who ran away.

An increasing number of reports of unidentified aircraft, submarines, swimmers in Scuba gear and discarded Soviet military equipment have been turned in to U.S. intelligence agencies, officials said during a visit here this week. Although many sightings have occurred on or over mainland Alaska, the greatest number have come from St. Lawrence Island, a treeless, sparsely populated windswept island just 40 miles southeast of Siberia.

Most of the reports come from the Alaska Army National Guard's three Eskimo scout battalions, "the eyes and ears of the North."

"I don't want to speculate," said Maj. Gen. John Schaeffer, commander of the Alaska Guard.

"We don't have a Soviet person on hand so we can completely verify this, but circumstantial evidence is that they're conducting some activity on the island. They're doing it around the world — in Scandinavia and the Philippines — so why not here?"

The island's largest villages are Gambell on the northwest side and Saavoonga near its center.

The 100-mile-long island's shoreline collects debris from a variety of sources, much of it from fishing boats working the Bering Sea.

"St. Lawrence Island is a beachcomber's paradise," said Sgt. 1st Class Renard Nichols, with the Guard's 1st Scout Battalion in Nome. "What we concern ourselves with is a something like a Soviet-made battery found two miles inland. And when we hear about a frogman and there aren't any (fishing) boats around, that sets the alarm bells ringing."

Other items generating official curiosity include a Soviet liferaft found half-buried above a deserted beach, a Soviet gas mask with filters for a new chemical agent, shoulder board insignia from Soviet uniforms, fuel drums with Soviet markings and fresh boot prints headed inland.

"There have been lots of reports about humans on the island," said 1st Lt. Reuben Nicholson, who commands the island's company of Eskimo scouts. "But the people have run and we could not identify who they are. We know they are not from the island. People on the island do not run from each other."

Officials Say No Threat From Leaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials continue to assure people there is no evidence of product contamination or health threat from leaks of radioactive polonium at manufacturing facilities although leaks have been detected at three more plants.

Officials of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and 3M Corp., which makes the ionizing air gun that leaked the tiny particles of polonium, were meeting today in Glen Ellyn, Ill., to discuss issues surrounding the failure of the devices.

The latest plants where leaks were found include two photo labs, Cress in Pawtucket, R.I., and Photofinish in McCall, S.C., and a Block-Drugs plant in Humacao, Puerto Rico, which makes shampoo, the NRC's Robert Newlin said Wednesday.

"There is no evidence of product contamination at any of the plants, now totaling 28, where leaks have been detected, according to spokesmen for the NRC and the Food and Drug Administration.

"We have not found any products to be contaminated," said FDA spokesman Dave Duarte. "So far we've seen nothing that would pose a threat to the public health. We do not feel that any recall is warranted."

It appears the particles fell harmlessly to the floor and did not contaminate any items, ranging from beer to baby formula, on the production lines. Nor was there any serious threat to plant workers, the spokesmen said.

The problem involves an ionizing air gun used to control static electricity and remove dust from the air. About 2,000 of the devices were recalled from food, drug and cosmetic plants over the weekend, after NRC inspectors confirmed several instances in which the guns leaked tiny ceramic spheres containing polonium 210.

The FDA and various state agencies, however, initiated a crash product inspection program, and several plants were closed temporarily for the review. Most have reopened.

Polonium 210, a naturally occurring decay product of radium, emits alpha particles incapable of penetrating the skin. Though it could prove a health threat if ingested in sufficient amounts, the material used in the air gun is surrounded by a protective ceramic shell that, if intact, would pass safely through the body, officials said. Still, they expressed some concern over the possibility that some of the shells could be crushed or cracked, allowing more radiation to escape.

FDA Commissioner Frank Young said one of the particles, if ingested into a lung and absorbed there, would yield about 4 rem of radiation. As a comparison, the average cigarette smoker naturally absorbs about 6 rem of polonium radiation a year, he said.

Following disclosure of the leaks, the Arizona Health Department sought a recall of some Coca-Cola products and some baby formulas made at plants which used the suspect ionizing gun.

On Monday, Arizona officials had urged consumers not to drink Coca-Cola or other soft drinks in 12-ounce cans produced by the Coca-Cola bottler in Phoenix or use 13-ounce concentrate cans of Isomil and Similac baby formula produced by the Casa Grande plant, a subsidiary of Abbott Laboratory Inc. in Chicago.

But on Wednesday, state officials lifted their embargoes on the canned Coca-Cola products and the two brands of baby formulas. The Department of Health Services and the Radiation Regulatory Agency said hundreds of samples were tested from each of the products concerned and that they have been found to be free from any radioactive contamination.

Although non-radioactive devices are available, air guns using polonium 210 have become increasingly popular since being licensed by the NRC in 1964. About 20,000 of the 3M models are in use, and only those at plants producing food, drugs or cosmetics have been recalled.

Road Chase

SANFORD, N.C. (AP) — A Harnett County man was arrested after a 18-mile chase through three counties which ended when law enforcement officers set up a roadblock on N.C. 87, officials said. Two police cars were damaged in the chase, officials said.

The chase began at 1:03 p.m. Tuesday when Sanford Police detectives tried to stop the vehicle on a city street, according to Major Wayne Poe of the Sanford Police Department. The car did not stop and the detectives pursued the vehicle about 18 miles through Sanford, Lee and Harnett counties for the next 20 minutes.

Robert Edward Patterson, 25, of Broadway was charged with careless and reckless driving, failure to stop for a blue light and siren, speeding in excess of 100 miles per hour in a 35-mile per hour zone and a stoplight violation.

Presidential Hopefuls Aren't Hurting For Personal Money

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Multimillionaires Alexander Haig and Pete du Pont are the richest presidential candidates, but the field of 13 hopefuls includes no paupers, according to information supplied by the candidates.

Republicans Haig and du Pont have large investment portfolios, but Democratic Rep. Richard Gephardt has no investments beyond his St. Louis home, his vacation house on the Outer Banks of North Carolina and partial ownership of some land in his home state of Missouri.

Gephardt appears to be the poorest of the candidates.

The Associated Press examined the financial condition of all the candidates by studying tax returns, disclosure statements that provide ranges of income and assets, and net worth statements that show someone's precise financial condition on a specific date.

Because of the imprecise way some of the records are filed, it is impossible to tell whether Haig or du Pont is the wealthiest.

All the candidates, however, are far better off than the average American, whose median net worth totaled $32,667 in 1984, according to the Census Bureau.

Du Pont, whose great-great-great-grandfather founded the Wilmington, Del. corporate giant whose name he bears, filed a statement Dec. 31, 1986 showing assets of more than $7.8 billion; and a net worth of nearly $5.8 million.

One stock he doesn't own: Du Pont. But he's a beneficiary of du Pont family trusts that are expected to produce nearly $2.4 million in income, based on present value.

Haig's assets were only listed on the financial disclosure form required of all presidential candidates. His holdings, so vast that it took 34 pages to list them in the May, 1987 filing, ranged from $3.7 million to more than $8.8 million.

The amount over $8.8 million is unknown, because the form does not ask for a range of assets above $250,000. Thus, an asset worth more than $250,000 can be a dollar more, or many thousands more.

Gephardt, a House member from Missouri, listed assets ranging from $215,000 to $300,000 on his May 1987 disclosure form — the only information he has released so far.

Vice President George Bush, scion of a wealthy Connecticut family, has a blind trust that he established when he took office in January 1981. Its real value is unknown, although an official in the vice president's office, speaking on condition of anonymity, said on Jan. 18 the trust was worth about $1 million.

Republican Rep. Jack Kemp of New York also has a blind trust, value unknown.

The candidates' financial information often reveals more than who has the wealth.

Democratic Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois collects presidential autographs, and valued his collection — along with his household furniture — at $18,000. Simon also listed $13,816 in royalties, because he has written 11 books.

Book-writing proved to be popular on candidates' financial forms, although their wives were sometimes the authors.

Bush, for instance, listed $1,336 in book royalties. They turned out to be from "The C. Fred Story," a book his wife, Barbara, wrote about the family dog.

Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., listed $5,000 in royalties received by his wife, Tipper, author of "Raising PG Kids in an X-Rated Society."

Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas teamed up with his wife, Elizabeth — the former secretary of transportation — on a dual autobiography, "Unlimited Partners." He disclosed receipt of $50,000 in royalties.

"The Secret Kingdom" may sound like a mystery thriller, but it's Republican Pat Robertson's book on principles found in the Bible. Although that was his best seller, the former television evangelist has written four other books, and received some $320,000 in royalties over three years.

Democrat Gary Hart, though, did write a mystery novel along with Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine. In addition to his co-authorship of "The Double Man," Hart wrote "America Can Win," a book on military reform. He reported more than $71,000 in royalties.

In addition to writing, Robertson had a horse-breeding endeavor that failed, and the candidate claimed a farm income loss of $56,000 on his 1986 tax return.

Former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, a Democrat, lists a collection of Grand Canyon art among his $65,000 in household possessions.

Dole won the rags-to-riches award. In 1966, the senator and his first wife, Phyllis, reported just over $30,400 in income, virtually all from his salary as a congressman. In 1986, Bob and Elizabeth Dole earned more than a half-million dollars, according to their 1986 tax return. Mrs. Dole is from a wealthy North Carolina family.

A trust fund of Mrs. Dole was valued at $1.67 million when it was released earlier this year, after a week of questions about the trust's dealings with Dole political associates.

Haig listed income ranging from nearly $303,000 to almost $750,000 on his May 1987 form. But that was in addition to $2.7 million earned over a two-year period from his own company, Worldwide Associates Inc., of Washington.

How did Haig get so rich, considering that most of his life was spent as a career Army officer, and later as White House chief of staff and secretary of state?

"We're talking about a man who is a hard-working businessman," said Haig spokesman Dan Mariaschin.

Haig's company handles his international consulting business, his lectures, and also publishes books and articles.

Gephardt listed $81,425 in honoraria over 15 months, other income ranging between $8,500 and $22,500 — all in addition to his House salary of $75,100 in 1986 and $86,283 in 1987. Gephardt was able to retain only about a third of his honoraria income under House rules.

White House Contenders Jockeying For Position

By LAURA KING
Associated Press Writer

The Democratic presidential candidates sharpened their attacks on one another and Vice President George Bush insisted his Republican campaign could survive another setback, as the contenders jockeyed for position in the New Hampshire home stretch.

Nearly all of the 13 candidates were campaigning today in the state, which holds its first-in-the-nation presidential primary on Tuesday.

A poll suggested Bush's chief rival, Bob Dole, was narrowing the vice president's lead in New Hampshire in the wake of Bush's embarrassing third-place finish in the Iowa caucuses on Monday.

In an ABC-Washington Post survey, reported in today's editions of the Post, Bush led Dole by only four percentage points, within the poll's six-point margin of error.

Bush was asked whether his campaign is finished if he loses in New Hampshire.

"No, it's not finished," Bush told NBC in an interview Wednesday night, adding that he thought he would win.

The vice president, who spent part of the day at the White House and part on the campaign trail, said he and President Reagan hadn't discussed the trouncing he took in Iowa at the hands of Pat Robertson.

Robertson continued to crow about his second-place finish in Iowa, and lectured reporters who described him as a former television evangelist. He termed the tag a "bigoted slur," saying he preferred to be called a religious broadcaster.

The ABC-Post poll indicated Robertson's support had climbed into the double digits in New Hampshire. While he remained well behind the front-runners, he made greater gains over a survey a week ago than they did.

On the Democratic side, Rep. Richard Gephardt was riding the wave generated by his first-place finish in Iowa. Although Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis still enjoys a comfortable lead, the poll indicated a surge in support for the Missouri congressman.

Sen. Paul Simon, who finished a close second to Gephardt in Iowa, also rolled up an increase in New Hampshire, but a slightly smaller one.

Both Dukakis and Simon made Gephardt their principal target as they campaigned in New Hampshire. Simon was launching a new ad campaign in the state today, hammering away at the theme that Gephardt's populist campaign themes don't match up with his voting record.

Dukakis, meanwhile, attacked Gephardt for voting for Reagan's 1981 tax cut. But the Massachusetts governor added, "I hope we will not slip into the kind of spectacle we've been seeing on the Republican side ... bashing each other around."

Those who finished back in the pack in Iowa found themselves dogged by questions about how long they could hang on.

"I've got a 50-state campaign and will go all the way," said Gary Hart, who picked up less than 1 percent of the vote in Iowa. "There is no requirement of finishing anyplace."

Former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, who finished fifth among the six competing Democrats in Iowa, said he'd wait until the day after the primary to make an assessment.

Three of the Democrats took time out from campaigning Wednesday night to replenish their war chests. Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore staged a big-money evening in Dallas, netting $700,000.

Gore, who bypassed Iowa and registered almost no support in the caucuses, repeated his assertion that Iowa "cannot anoint the winner of the Democratic nomination."

Simon and Gephardt, meanwhile, were drumming up cash in New York and Washington respectively. Their campaigns both took out loans this week and rushed out urgent appeals to contributors to help finance advertising blitzes in New Hampshire this week.

Dole, who has often needled Bush about his patrician background and talked up his own humble beginnings, sounded a familiar theme as he campaigned in Londonderry, N.H.

"You've got to have a feel for real people," he said.

Such populism proved popular, as Rep. Jack Kemp donned a clerk's apron and began bagging groceries in Goffstown, N.H.

Austrian Coalition Begins Hunt For Possible Waldheim Successor

By ROLAND PRINZ
Associated Press Writer
VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The government coalition parties discussed a replacement for President Kurt Waldheim, who refused to step down despite a report criticizing his wartime past, government sources said today.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, also said Waldheim on Monday threatened to use his constitutional power to dismiss the government if it accepted the report questioning his moral integrity during World War II.

The conservative Vienna daily Die Presse, which has backed Waldheim and has good sources in the conservative People's Party, also reported today that Waldheim had threatened to dismiss the government.

The newspaper added that the Socialist Party and the People's Party, which make up the governing coalition, are considering a successor.

Waldheim had demanded the government reject the historians' report, the government sources told The Associated Press.

Socialist Chancellor Franz Vranitzky and Deputy Chancellor Alois Mock of the People's Party then agreed on a short government statement saying nothing about accepting the report, the sources said. The statement was issued Tuesday.

The government statement included an assertion by the chairman of the historians' panel, Hans Rudolf Kurz, that "there was no participation in war crimes and no personally culpable conduct by Dr. Waldheim."

Kurz's statement is not in the historians' report, but Waldheim has used it to justify staying in office.

The commission report, presented to the government Monday, suggested no evidence could be found of Waldheim having directly participated in war crimes.

However, it concluded that Waldheim was in "close proximity" to criminal actions and left open the question of whether he is guilty of any crime.

The 202-page document showed that Waldheim consistently concealed his past and lied about what he must have known about atrocities by the German army in the occupied Balkans during World War II.

The sources said the governing coalition is discussing Waldheim's resignation and replacement by Josef Ratzenboeck, head of the People's Party in Upper Austria province. Ratzenboeck, whose base is in the city of Linz, met Vranitzky in Vienna on Wednesday, the sources said.

Statements made Wednesday by Socialist officials and Waldheim's conservative backers indicated that the president is an increasing burden for the coalition government.

Waldheim, a former U.N. secretary-general, reiterated Wednesday that Kurz "has unequivocally stated that there was no culpable conduct on my part and that I was not involved in any war crime actions."

The chief secretary of the Socialist Party, Heinrich Keller, said on Wednesday: "The Socialist Party speaks neither for nor against a resignation" but is "ready to accept such a decision."

In an interview Wednesday on Austrian television, Heinz Fischer, the Socialists' parliamentary floor leader, showed his party's uneasiness about Waldheim remaining in office.

"I do not hide the fact that we ... in the coalition, and apparently outside it as well, live with a mortgage," said Fischer, using a German phrase meaning burden or strain.

He called for a fresh effort by the coalition partners "to reconsider the whole matter under the aspect of what is best for Austria, for our reputation, for our future policy."

South Africa Ends Coup In Homeland

L.A. Times-Washington Post
CAPE TOWN, South Africa — South African army troops moved into the ostensibly independent tribal homeland of Bophuthatswana Wednesday and crushed a military coup that 12 hours earlier had overthrown the homeland's president.

elsewhere in the capital and the deaths of several persons. South African officials said Wednesday night they did not know if there were any casualties during the army's intervention.

Bophuthatswana is mainly known for its sports events and Sun City gambling casino.

The combined police and army intervention came after Bophuthatswana's army commanders, alleging widespread governmental corruption, arrested homeland President Lucas Mangope and detained him and most of his Cabinet in a soccer stadium in the capital of Mmabatho.

South African President Pieter W. Botha, in a statement to Parliament here, said he ordered in troops because he opposes the forcible seizure of power and because Bophuthatswanan officials had asked for help.

Bophuthatswana, whose status as an independent state is recognized only by South Africa, is the showpiece homeland among the 10 tribal reservations established as part of Pretoria's apartheid policy. Six of the homelands have rejected independent status.

Witnesses in Mmabatho, the capital, said that about 20 homeland soldiers who had been holding Mangope surrendered with their hands raised after South African troops in armored vehicles surrounded the stadium.

A witness at the stadium said two helicopters landed a police anti-terrorist squad as an armored vehicle carrying South African army Chief Maj. Gen. Janie Geldenhuys arrived at the scene.

The witness said that as several armored vehicles crashed through a fence, the security forces stormed the stadium, firing one shot and killing a Bophuthatswanan soldier. About 60 homeland soldiers were reported to have been arrested during the assault.

More South African forces moved in and rescued the Bophuthatswanan and South African officials who had been held captive.

There were unconfirmed reports from Mmabatho of more shootings

Iraq Renews Bomb Raids On Iran; Tanker Set Afire

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq said its warplanes bombed industrial targets in southern Iran today and an Iranian frigate set a Norwegian supertanker ablaze in the Persian Gulf.

Commenting on the first major air strikes on the Iranian hinterland for several weeks, an Iraqi military spokesman said the warplanes simultaneously attacked an electronics complex in Shiraz and a power plant and fuel depots in the Imam Hassan region at 10:35 a.m.

The spokesman said several raids were carried out "on a series of important targets deep inside Iran" and all the jets returned safely to base.

The spokesman, who is not identified in line with Iraqi military rules, did not say how many planes were involved or give any other details.

In the southern gulf, the Norwegian tanker Happy Kari became the latest victim of the so-called "tanker war," an offshoot of the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

An Iranian frigate today set the 290,000-ton vessel on fire with rockets and machine-gun fire after shadowing it for two hours, its skipper, Capt. Haakon Liseth, told reporters by radio.

He said none of his crew was hurt in the attack near the Strait of Hormuz, gateway to the strategic waterway.

Two salvage tugboats fought "fierce flames" in the crew's quarters and along the tanker's starboard side for four hours before putting out the fire, shipping officials said.

The Gilbert and Phoenix island groups formed the Republic of Kiribati when the British colors were ceremoniously lowered in 1979. The Ellice islands, which had separated politically from the Gilberts in 1975, took the name Tuvalu at independence in 1978.

The tanker was carrying a shipment of crude oil from Kuwait to the Dutch port of Rotterdam. It spent three weeks in Dubai for repairs after Iranian gunboats attacked it on Dec. 18.

American, British, French, Italian and Soviet warships are in the gulf. Each protects its own tankers against Iranian attacks. The U.S. Navy can provide "humanitarian assistance" under the Pentagon rules of engagement for Navy ships in the gulf.

Iran usually singles out vessels dealing with Kuwait or Saudi Arabia, nations it accuses of helping Iraq's war effort.

It was Iran's sixth attack on neutral gulf shipping this month, in retaliation for sustained Iraqi strikes on Iran's own oil tanker shipping lines. Iran, which has depended on gunboats to carry out attacks in the gulf for the last 18 months, used its air force this week.

Shipping officials said an Iranian helicopter attacked a Liberian-flag oil tanker in the gulf Wednesday night.

Iraq said its planes raided two Iranian tankers Wednesday, but the claim could not be verified.

Eleven of Kuwait's state-owned fleet of 21 tankers have sailed since last July under the U.S. flag and with Navy escort for protection from Iranian attack.

Hong Kong Robbers Take $1.6 Million

HONG KONG (AP) — Five masked men made off with $1.6 million in gold and cash in a holdup of a trading company van early today in Hong Kong's biggest robbery on record, police said.

The van was carrying nearly 300 pounds of gold worth $1.86 million and $128,000 in cash to the airport for shipment to Taipei, Taiwan's capital, police said.

Robbers in two cars, armed with two pistols and an ax, forced the van to stop in a tunnel at about 8 a.m. and ordered it onto a side street, where they grabbed most of the loot and escaped.

About 50 pounds of the gold, worth $330,000, were left in the van, police said.

The van's driver was slightly injured during a struggle, but the other four people in the van were unharmed, police said.

The stolen property belonged to a trading company named Chi Fat Hong, police said. Each of the gold bars weight 6.6 ounces and was inscribed with the Chinese characters for "King Fook Goldsmith," police said.

The police Organised and Serious Crime Bureau was investigating the case. A spokesman said no arrests had been made.

Police spokesman Peter Hung said the robbery was the largest on record in this British colony.

In 1983, the Lane Crawford department store in Hong Kong's central business district was robbed of $1.54 million in diamonds and jewelry.

Vietnam Freeing Former Officials

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam announced today it was freeing more than 1,000 former officials of the overthrown South Vietnamese government who had been held in "re-education" camps since the Communist victory in 1975.

The amnesties were among more than 9,000 granted to prisoners and detainees who were being released or having their terms reduced to mark Tet, the lunar new year falling on Feb. 17, said Vice Minister of Information Phan Quang.

Authorities have been celebrating the 20th anniversary of the 1968 Tet offensive, when the Communists launched a widespread attack on U.S. and South Vietnamese troops in a turning point in the war.

Quang told a news conference in Hanoi that the officials were among 2,586 prisoners and 3,820 detainees being freed. He said 2,768 prisoners were having their terms reduced.

"In execution of an order of the State Council, the Council of Ministers of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam has decided to set free 1,014 former officers and officials of the Saigon puppet regime," the Vietnamese agency said.

Quang, quoted by the official Vietnam News Agency monitored in Bangkok, said the former officials included "quite a number" of generals, high-ranking officers, Cabinet ministers, senators, and members of the lower house.

Quang said only about 150 former South Vietnamese officials will be left in the camps.

They "will be considered and depending on their repentance, they will gradually be released within a short period of time," he said.

The Communist Party has sought national reconciliation and tried to improve its image abroad since Nguyen Van Linh became its chief a year ago. Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach has said the government wants to close the camps by the end of this year.

Quang said Thursday the camps once held 100,000 former South Vietnamese officials.

Today's was the second recent large-scale amnesty in the re-education system, which has been strongly criticized by Western countries and human rights groups. Prisoners are held without formal charges or trial.

Authorities said they freed 6,685 re-education prisoners and reduced the sentences of 5,320 others to mark National Day last Sept. 2. Official Vietnamese media said those released included 480 military and civilian personnel of the South Vietnam government, among them two ministers and nine generals.

The camps also hold common criminals and political dissidents and others detained since 1975.

Quang said those released will return to their families, mostly in Ho Chi Minh City, which was Saigon when it was the capital of South Vietnam.

Vietnamese officials have said those released may apply for the Orderly Departure Program, under which Vietnamese refugees and migrants resettle in the United States.

Scouts Fill Special Need

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Visually-impaired and emotionally disturbed boys are among children often "left out" of normal childhood experiences, but they can be Boy Scouts, several Scouting officials said in interviews as they commemorate Scout Week through Saturday.

Cub Scout Pack 200 in Winterville has two visually-impaired boys in a troop with four sighted boys, while Pack 932 in Greenville will have about four emotionally disturbed boys in a troop. Leaders say, "they can do the same things" as other Scouts.

"We try to make it as near like an ordinary pack as possible," Charlotte Copeland of the Greenville pack said. The boys attend banquets, build and race cars and go to day camp, she said. "They carry their membership cards in their pockets, (and) they even went (backyard) camping."

"We do all those same things" as other Scouts, Ms. Copeland said. The same literature is used and is read to the boys, and she said she could not remember any requirements that were adjusted for the boys, although it is allowed in Scouting guidelines.

The boys in the pack are emotionally disturbed in that they have "severe emotional problems that prevent them from functioning in a normal home or school situation," Ms. Copeland said. Material provided by Boys Scouts of America, such as "Scouting for the Emotionally Disturbed," has been helpful in planning activities, she said.

The boys are patients at the Eastern Area Regional Treatment Home (EARTH), a part of the Pitt County Mental Health Center, where employees of EARTH and parents help with the program, Ms. Copeland said.

The boys not only are being influenced by the principles of duty, loyalty, respect and service taught through Scouting, but it also provides incentive during treatment, she said.

"The reward system works great" for the boys as they receive a star, beads or badges for their accomplishments, and it re-enforces good behavior, she said. The Scouting program also is beneficial academically for the boys as safety, science and health are incorporated into class work.

Once the boys are discharged from the facility, they are placed in packs in their hometowns, whenever possible, she said.

The current Winterville troop organized in October and will be concentrating on learning activities, said Dawson Page, pack leader. "We're getting them to use their mental ability" by learning the motto, Scout promises and the Pledge of Allegiance.

Scouting handbooks have provisions for the visually impaired and other handicapped boys, said William Nobles, assistant scoutmaster. "But, we expect them to do just as well" as the other boys, he said.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars has donated braille Scouting handbooks to help the boys in the program.

Boys Scouts of America was federally chartered in 1916 and has a world membership of more than 16 million.

The Corsage Buds Anew

By SARAH BOOTH CONROY
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — In recent years only Daughters of the American Revolution and high school prom girls have kept up the tradition of women as walking vases.

During DAR Continental Congresses no orchid in town is safe. And in the spring, high school girls swap their jeans for bare shoulders, long skirts and corsages for one brief night, turning hotel ballrooms into moving gardens.

In the '30s, '40s and '50s, a woman would just as soon appear at a party or even an important date without a slip as without a corsage. It's difficult to credit now, but once suitors impoverished themselves to give their girls (as they were then called) a great good time.

Paying for both theater tickets, the entire restaurant bill or drinks at a nightclub was not enough; males also had to ante up for a corsage. Their reward — paltry though it might have been — came in pinning the corsage on the quivering bosom of the appreciative girlfriend.

If the girl was bold or an announcement imminent, and the parents in the other room, the boyfriend might also have received a kiss in return.

(Often, of course, the gift was to some extent depreciated when the corsage pin — usually with a pearl head — went into the girl instead of the dress. But nobody's perfect.)

In those times parents encouraged the sending and acceptance of corsages on the theory that their daughters would not snuggle close enough to get into trouble for bruising the flowers. Whether they were that much of a deterrent is unknown.

(Today's prom girls, being bolder, have solved that problem by asking for wrist corsages for dances, the only occasions for which they're apt to be bedecked.)

In case you're too young to remember, corsages were once also de rigueur for women speakers or the wives of speakers at luncheon clubs. The number of flowers that gave their lives in order that Eleanor Roosevelt might bloom must have been staggering. Surely they died a useful death, in helping her look like a traditional president's wife while she delivered her pioneering messages about the injustices of the times.

As late as Pat Nixon's tenure as second lady, an orchid corsage served as a badge of respect — though in one picture she has only three orchid blooms as opposed to the seven or eight blossoming on Gertrude Caraway of New Bern, N.C., the 1955 DAR president general.

During the last decades — probably beginning in the '60s when women were liberated from such frills as bows and lipstick and enchained into paying half the check and opening their own doors — interest in corsages withered.

Even for more formal and traditional events, corsages weren't standard. In the Reagan White House, neither the dresses of Nancy Reagan nor her state guests flower. And today's impassioned seducers tend to send a ficus tree, a pot of caviar or a pair of Nike running shoes.

But with the return to romance — in movies, clothes, parties and such — we may be seeing the budding of a new crop of corsages.

"Body flowers," as Bette O'Connell of Caruso Florists calls corsages and all other wearable flower arrangements, are beginning to flourish. "Used to be that corsages were only for grandmother's birthdays and proms," she says, "but this season, beginning last September, we've been getting many orders for other occasions. We're even having orders for mini-corsages for grammar-school children. For them we use mini-carnations."

O'Connell says carnations make the least expensive corsages, with orchids and gardenias as the ones to send when you care enough to pay the very most. Roses are in between in price. A rose corsage, by the way, for you penny pinchers, is cheaper (about $30, though priced according to the number of buds) than a dozen roses (about $60, depending on the length of the stem, the variety etc.).

"Spring is the real blooming time for corsages, for all those high school promenaders," says Kim Koehler of Johnson's Florists' design department, but she, like O'Connell, sees a year-round increase.

Abundance Of Mail Buoys Spirits Of U.S. Servicemen

DEAR ABBY: I am the naval chaplain aboard the USS Coral Sea. "Flabbergasted" is the only word to describe my feelings about the Operation Dear Abby-America Remembers campaign!

I was stunned by the outpouring of love, concern and generosity reflected in the literally countless thousands of cards, letters and packages we received from your readers. Day after day, the mail brought us hand-drawn pictures from children, photos of individuals and families, long handwritten letters, personal notes and beautiful greeting cards. One package was marked "Estimated value $100." Wrong! The contents were worth at least $1 million in love, concern and heightened morale. One family had sent a small menorah with the Hanukkah candles, which went directly to our Jewish lay reader.

You should have seen those sailors and Marines going through the mail — looking for a postmark near home, a feminine handwriting or a nicely scented envelope (they're still men!).

We had to limit each man to three minutes only to search the trays of mail so that more men could select letters to answer.

This year's campaign was an overwhelming, unqualified success.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Abby. Short of letters from our own families, this effort was the single biggest morale booster we have ever had.

These men in our Coral Sea battle group deserve all the love and affection that you heaped so generously on them. We thank you for lending your considerable influence to this project. Please convey to Don Grimes, the chairman, our deepest appreciation. Sincerely and gratefully ...
MICHAEL D. HALLEY, COMMAND CHAPLAIN

DEAR CHAPLAIN HALLEY: Now let's hear it from a civilian who was one of thousands of patriotic Dear Abby readers who participated in the America Remembers campaign:

DEAR ABBY: I just want to tell you about the responses I received from our GIs overseas from your America Remembers campaign.

I wrote 12 letters, and got 10 back! I was shocked when I got the first one, and when nine more followed, I couldn't believe it. Those guys were so grateful to think that a stranger would take the time to write or send a card, they couldn't thank me enough for raising their spirits at a time when they had expected to feel lonely and depressed.

Keep up the good work, Abby. I am one of your 19-year-old readers. Please keep printing those addresses for other readers. It's a great feeling to know you're helping to boost the morale of our men and women in uniform. — ROSETTA PENSIERO, TAMPA

DEAR ABBY: Did you know that more than 28,000 Christmas cards and letters were received by crew members of the USS Missouri? They were addressed to B.Y.M. (Beautiful Young Men), Operation Dear Abby III, to any and all sailors and Marines aboard this ship.

Being away from home during Christmas was not nearly as sad because of all those letters and packages. Many of us are answering letters by the dozens, and several divisions are donating many hours of off-duty time in order to answer letters from hundreds of school children whose teachers actually made letter-writing to us an assignment.

I want to say thank you to each and every one who wrote, because there is no way we can handle all this mail.

God bless you all. — PAUL LAHNEY, USS MISSOURI

P.S. If you ever come to Long Beach, I'd be glad to give you a tour of our great ship.

DEAR ABBY: We are members of the 349th Air Refueling Squadron at Beale Air Force Base, Calif., in the middle of three weeks temporary duty to Okinawa. We were dumbfounded at the number of cards and letters we received from your readers. You cannot imagine how much that outpouring of love and gratitude boosted our morale. — KAY, TONY, MIKE, LOU AND ROD

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letters Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage and handling are included).

Children Stand Tall In Front Of Clothes Hamper

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

There is an old Bombeck adage that no child ever stands so tall as when he stoops to pick up a mound of dirty underwear off the floor.

Children have always felt in their hearts that if God had meant for them to pick up things, He would have given them sweeper hands and a light in their noses. Clothes hampers are something for mice to hide behind and serve no other purpose.

Throughout the years, we have offered more incentives to pick up clothes than the airlines have offered people to fly. At one point, we got so desperate my husband took every piece of clothing he found on the floor and hid it. At the end of two weeks, the kids were ecstatic. There were no decisions to be made about what to wear. There was no nagging about picking up. And they could sleep in their clothes and sleep later in the mornings.

When the air quality deteriorated to a level where the elderly in our neighborhood could not go out of doors, we caved in.

A mother from Empire, Nev., took the academic approach using simple language that a teenager could understand.

Step One: Locate the closet.
Step Two: Firmly grasp a triangle-shaped metal object called a clothes hanger.

Step Three: Hold hanger while reaching down and picking up article of clothing you are standing on.

Step Four: Insert the clothes hanger into clothing and check to see if it hangs neat. (In the dictionary, "neat" is listed between nearsighted and Nebraska.)

Step Five: Locate pole in closet. Normal position of the pole is horizontal.

Step Six: Move the clothes hanger toward the pole until connection is made and release grip on hanger. If article falls to floor, repeat steps 4, 5 and 6.

The plan sounds wonderful, but I'd be willing to bet the kid didn't make it through Step One.

I have noted throughout the years that there is a relationship between the farther a child grows from the floor, and the less likely he is to retrieve things from it. I was cheered by the fact that when our children crawled they at least picked up everything they saw and put it into their mouths. When they stood up and began to walk, they never again saw anything worth picking up.

One mother I knew was so frustrated, she could not bear to look into the room occupied by her two sons so she just closed the door and pretended it led to the outside. When they decided to move, she simply wrote on a note, "We're moving," and slid it under the door.

It was cruel. She knew they'd never pick it up.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead today, extending Wednesday's broad advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial rose 3.81 to 1,965.85 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 9 to 5 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 739 up, 385 down and 507 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 31.78 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Stock prices have climbed lately on the strength of talk that the Federal Reserve is finding room to relax its credit policy, with the dollar having stabilized in foreign exchange.

Analysts say that belief has served to ease concern that the economy might be headed into a recession. Past recessions have usually begun in periods of tight money and rising interest rates.

The Fed's presumed action also is interpreted as a signal that Friday's report by the Commerce Department on the nation's trade deficit for December won't bring any nasty surprises.

Wall Streeters reason that the Fed would be sticking with a cautious approach if it believed or knew that bad news was coming on the trade balance.

Federated Department Stores gained 1 1/2 to 5 1/2%. Campeau Corp. of Toronto said Wednesday it had lined up $660 million in financing from Edward DeBartolo and the Reichmann family for its bid to acquire Federated.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .27 to 144.51. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.28 at 273.92.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 47.58 points to 1,962.04.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 7 to 2 on the NYSE, with 1,220 up, 351 down and 397 unchanged.

Cyclists Seek Evans' Space

Bicycle access was a major concern expressed Wednesday as approximately 50 people attended a public hearing at City Hall Wednesday on the planned widening of Evans Street.

According to Clarence Frizzell, design project engineer with the Department of Transportation in Raleigh, the widening will be from Greenville Boulevard to 10th Street.

Frizzell said some area residents attending the meeting voiced their desire for extra space on the roadway to be used for the expressed purpose of bicycle riding.

To accommodate bicycles, Frizzell said the department plans to mark the outside lane to provide an extra 12 inches for bicycles.

Instead of the usual 12-foot wide lane, the outside lane will be marked so the lane will be 13 feet.

Construction of the project is expected to begin in the spring of 1989 and be completed in December of that year at an estimated total cost of approximately $5 million.

The army said it had no reports of beatings in Halhoul on Monday.

The report said the allegations were contained in a letter written by left-wing legislators Chaikhe Grossman and Roh Cohen to Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

In testimony last week, the Asheville woman who is now 19 said Youngblood had sexual relations with her when she was a student in the county. A Northampton County jury sentenced Youngblood to three years in prison for each of the first seven counts with the last 13 to run concurrently.

Pirates Gain At Needed Positions

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

Linebackers and linemen were the goal for East Carolina football coach Art Baker and his staff during this year's recruiting wars and the Pirate coach feels he's met most of his needs.

ECU signed nine linemen and added six linebacking prospects to an overall list of 22 signees on Wednesday, the first day that high school football prospects can officially sign with their school of choice.

"Our greatest needs were defensive and offensive linemen," Baker said. "Linebackers were our number two and we hoped to bring in two quality quarterbacks. We fell one short there."

"I think that we did and we didn't (accomplish our goals). The ones we got, I really liked. We missed on some good ones (though). And I wish we had gotten a couple of more defensive linemen. But I'm not sure every year you recruit you don't come out saying that."

Leading the way on the line for ECU's recruits is 6-6, 260-pound offensive lineman Joe Fritz of Port Jefferson Station, N.Y.

Fritz was an All-State and All-Long Island choice and decided on the Pirates over Rutgers, Tulane and Boston College.

Marshall Haigler, a 6-3, 260-pound offensive lineman from Charlotte's Independence High School, chose ECU over Wake Forest and N.C. State.

Mike Diven, a 6-5, 285-pound center and offensive tackle from Pittsburgh, Pa., selected the Pirates over Temple, West Virginia and Pittsburgh.

Other linemen who chose the Pirates include Mike McCalup, a 6-0, 290 pounder from Warsaw, N.C.; Mark McConnell, a 6-3, 260-pound defensive lineman from Cumberland, Md.; Keith Arnold, a 6-4, 255-pounder from Kennesaw, Ga.; Nick Wilson, a 6-4, 250-pounder from Marietta, Ga. and Greg Gardill, a 6-3, 235-pounder from Johnston, Pa.

ECU hooked up with one of the two quarterbacks it wanted to sign in Jeff Blake while losing LeVon Brown, a 6-0, 190-pounder from Moore's Haven, Fla., who signed with Florida State after giving an oral commitment to the Pirates early this week.

"We brought in Jeff Blake and we think he's just outstanding," Baker said. "We had the other one committed but lost him to FSU."

Blake though is no slouch. The 6-2, 180-pounder from Sanford, Fla. was an All-State choice after throwing for 16 touchdowns and 3,065 yards last season. He entertained offers from Florida, Central Florida and Missouri before deciding on the Pirates.

Two of the six linebackers ECU signed are local products.

Dave Daniels (5-11, 210) and Adrian Barnhill (6-0, 215) helped lead J.H. Rose to an 11-1 mark this past season and the Big East title. They played alongside each other on defense and split time in the backfield at fullback.

"I think they are the kind of players that can come in and have a good chance to make travel squad," Baker said.

But overall, ECU signed just five players out of the state of North Carolina.

"We hoped to recruit better than that in North Carolina, certainly the length of our contract (one year) didn't help but at the same time we tried to recruit every top player in this state," Baker said.

"We didn't get visits out of some of them. Some of the ones we did get visits out of, they chose to go other places. We're pleased with the five we got out of North Carolina."

"Where we did not fare well in North Carolina, I thought we fared exceptionally well out of state, particularly in Florida."

Of the other linebackers, one of the top prospects is 6-2, 215-pound Earnest Lewis from Sanford, Fla.

Lewis was an All-State choice and was one of the top 25 players in the Orlando area. He was also recruited by Miami, Western Kentucky and Central Florida.

Baker said the Pirates could possibly sign one or two more players before the end of the recruiting season.

Last Quarter Lets Nash Top Rose

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's offense collapsed in the final quarter of the basketball game Wednesday night and Northern Nash captured its second win over the Rampants in less than a week, 63-55.

Rose's girls, meanwhile, held on to first place in the league with a 55-41 romp over the Lady Knights.

Rose, trailing 40-39 as the final quarter got underway, just failed to accomplish anything positive in the final quarter as the Knights built up as much as a 13-point lead during the quarter. Rose made just four of 13 shots from the floor, was five of 10 at the line, and was outrebounded 17-8 in the quarter.

"I thought that we could hang in there with them," a disappointed Rose coach Jim Brewington said. "And for three quarters, we did. But they are a real good ball club. I just hope we'll do better from here on in."

"We didn't shot the ball well or rebound well and we were terrible at the line," Brewington said. "And when we don't do those things well, it kills us. This as a big game, but I guess we put too much into (Tuesday night's) game and were just tired out."

Northern opened with a 3-point basket by Carlos Edmundson and trailed until Errol Wooten followed his own miss with a basket at 1:59 for a 7-6 lead. The two exchanged the lead the rest of the first quarter, which saw Northern ahead, 11-9 after another 3-pointer by Edmundson.

Keyford Langley hit a jumper to open the second quarter, tying it at 11-11. Then, after another Knight basket, Wooten scored on a turnaround jumper and Langley hit on a layup for a 15-13 Rose lead with 6:07 showing.

Langley was fouled the next time down the court but made just one of the two shots. Kevin Cobb then added another layup to give Rose an 18-13 lead and it looked like the Rampants might be off and rolling.

But Northern struggled back behind Keith Thomas and tied it again, 18-18, when Tony Richardson hit a jumper in the lane. Rose went back out, but another 3-pointer by Edmundson put Northern ahead, 21-20.

The two exchanged the lead, but two free throws by Tony Smith gave the Knights a 25-22 edge. Brian Wille made a free throw to cut it back to two, and two more at the line by Johnny Ebron tied it at 25-25 with 11 seconds left in the half.

A 3-pointer by Langley gave Rose a 28-25 lead to open the third period, but two baskets by Thomas returned the Knights to the lead, 29-28. Wooten put Rose back up and a basket by Ebron and a free throw by Wooten made it 33-29 with 5:05 left.

Northern again struggled back, regaining the lead at 36-35 on a 3-point play by Richardson. Wooten made two free throws to put Rose back up, 37-38, but it was to be their last lead.

With 46 seconds to go, Kenny Manning scored on a driving layup and Richardson added a jumper in the lane with 17 seconds showing. Cobb hit for Rose with 10 seconds to go to cut it to 40-39.

Northern hit the first three baskets of the final period to up its lead to 46-39 before Wooten hit a 3-pointer. But Northern added six more after that before another 3-pointer, this by Langley.

After that, six more by the Knights opened up a 58-45 lead with 2:10 to go and it was all over.

Richardson led Northern with 19 points while Thomas hit 18. Rose was led by Wooten with 19 and Langley with 17.

"We still have a chance to finish second," Brewington said. "Everyone in the league still has to play just about everyone else, so a lot can still happen if we can get going."

Rose drops to 12-5 overall, 5-4 in the Big East.

For the second night in a row, Rose had little trouble in gaining a win in the girls' game. The Rampettes stormed out to a 7-0 lead before a 3-point goal by Laura Godwin initiated the Northern scoring. Rose then added eight more for a 15-3 lead. The Rampettes held a 19-7 edge at the end of the period.

Rose built up as much as a 16-point lead in the second quarter, at 27-11 before substituting and allowing a comeback that cut it to 33-22 at the horn.

Rose scored five in a row to open the third period, allowed a free throw, then scored nine more to open up a 47-23 lead.

After that, Rose substituted again liberally, and led 51-30 at the end of the period. Northern outscored Rose, 11-4, in the final period to wrap it up.

"I thought we played very well in the first half when we had our first unit in there," Coach Bill Kuykendall said. "But we still are having a little problem when we go to the bench. I thought Nichol (Maxon) and Lisa (Leisten) did an excellent job on defense and Tina (Smith) had an excellent night on the boards."

"Our pressure bothered them in the first half and got us the big lead and gave us a chance to do some experimenting," he added. "We played about as well as we have all season when we had the first team in there.

If we can keep it up, we might have a chance to win the title again."

Smith led Rose with 19 points while Leisten added 18 and Maxon had 10. Godwin had 13, Angela Brinson had

11 and Felica Joyner, 10, for Northern. Rose is now 14-1, 8-1. The Rampants play at Wilson Beddingfield on Friday.

Time Out Keys Maryland Win

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — A Maryland timeout proved to be the turning point that allowed the Teraps to slow Clemson's momentum, Maryland coach Bob Wade said.

"Clemson had the momentum and the crowd was in the game," Wade said after Maryland's 70-66 victory Wednesday night. "We took the timeout and encouraged them not to drop their heads. They did a good job of maintaining their composure."

Wade took the timeout with 4:08 left and the Tigers ahead 61-54. The Teraps came back to score 12 of the next 17 points for a 66-66 tie with 56 seconds left. That's when Teyon McCoy, a 6-2 guard who scored 10 points, went to work.

He stole a Clemson inbound pass with 11 seconds left, missed a 3-point shot and watched as Tony Massenberr got the putback for a 68-66 Maryland lead. Then he stole another Clemson inbound pass, was fouled and made a pair of free throws with one second remaining to seal the outcome.

The loss was one of the more disappointing ones for Clemson coach Cliff Ellis, whose team has been struggling along with just two guards for the last several weeks.

"I don't care how you cut it," Ellis said. "We should have been on the line there at the end, but they were instead. I'm proud of our kids. They played hard and deserved to win."

"This is the toughest loss this year. I really don't know what else can happen to this team. Everything that can happen that you don't want to happen has happened."

Maryland, a 15-point victor over Clemson earlier in the season, improved to 13-7 overall and 4-4 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. The Tigers, who have now lost five in a row, are 11-10 overall and 1-7 in the conference.

Maryland followed Derrick Lewis, who led the Terps with 16 points and 11 rebounds, to as much as a 7-point lead in the first half before Clemson's Elden Campbell, who finished with a game-high 23 points, pulled the Tigers to within one, 34-33, at intermission.

Maryland jumped to a 38-35 lead early in the second half before Clemson scored 11 straight during a rally that put them up by eight points with 8:13 remaining.

Schrader Says He Doesn't Feel Like He's Favorite

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla (AP) — Ken Schrader says his role as the pole-sitter for Sunday's $1.5-million Daytona 500 doesn't make him the favorite in the 30th running of stock car racing's premier event, and Dale Earnhardt agrees.

Schrader, who has qualified his Chevrolet at 193.823 mph, will make no predictions. But two-time defending Winston Cup champion Earnhardt isn't reluctant at all.

Who, he was asked, did he think would be the most logical choice?

"Why not me?" he said Wednesday.

Why not? Earnhardt, whose speed of 190.670 mph in his Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS was ninth fastest in time trials, is a man on a roll. He is coming off a phenomenal season in which he won 11 of 29 races on the NASCAR stock car circuit and $2.2 million.

"A thing like that will give you confidence," he said. "My confidence is real high."

Schrader is also confident, but speaks cautiously, as could be expected in view of a record that shows only one NASCAR victory, that in a 125-mile qualifying race for last year's Daytona 500.

"The way I look at it is that I've got a good chance," Schrader said. "But there are a whole lot of drivers who feel the same way, who'll be coming after me."

And they'll do that today in the first of two qualifying races to lock in positions three through 30 for Sunday's race. Schrader and Davey Allison, who has the pole in the second qualifier on a lap on 193.311 in a Ford Thunderbird, comprise the first row in the 500-miler at the 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway.

"Fortunately, I don't have to worry about gaining a good starting position for the Daytona 500 (in the qualifier)," Schrader said. "But it's not that we have nothing to lose. We have our race car to lose. That's a pretty big thing."

But Earnhardt has plenty to lose, and has no thoughts of changing his patented hard-charging tactics.

"I've got to go out and run hard to get a good position for Sunday's race," he said. "Then I've got to try to run up front and hope to put myself in a good position for the finish."

Schrader agrees with Earnhardt on the importance of running close to the lead with the re-emergence of the draft as a major factor at the track.

"Basically, we'll try to be in the draft all day long," Schrader said. "If not, we're in trouble."

The draft figures to prevail for the first time in the last few years because NASCAR has mandated a carburetor change that has slowed the cars dramatically in the interest of safety.

Schrader's qualifying speed was nearly 17 mph slower than that of Bill Elliott, who had the pole last year.

The carburetor change, a restrictor plate, also could effect strategy as the cars battle for position on final lap for a possible slingshot maneuver.

"I don't know how much of that you'll see," said Earnhardt, who held off Allison last Sunday to win the Busch Clash by a car length. "It might take two of them going together to get by, and they better do it on the backstretch, because the third turn is probably too late."

Others expected to make a strong run for position today were Darrell Waltrip, two-time and defending 500 winner Elliott, 1985 champion Geoff Bodine and two-time winner Bobby Allison.

Waltrip started second in the second race, followed by Elliott. Bodine and Bobby Allison sat behind Schrader in the opener.

The status of driver Tim Richmond, first suspended after failing a drug test, then reinstated after a second test came back negative, was unsettled Wednesday.

But Richmond's appearance in the Daytona 500 hinges on track doctors being given the answers to questions related to the driver's medical condition, NASCAR president Bill France Jr. said.

House Still Big Leader; Girls' Race Tightens Up

Robin House continues to lead the area boys' basketball scoring race, but the girls' top spot and the boys' second are neck-and-neck after games Tuesday night.

House, who plays for Greenville Christian, continues to run away with the boys' scoring race, holding a 29.7 average this week.

But the race for second place has heated up even more with only a tenth of a point separating the next two competitors.

Ronnell Peterson of Ayden-Grifton is still in second place at 18.3, while Guy Spruill is third at 18.2.

Rose High School's Errol Wooten holds to fourth place at 17.4 while Chocowinity's Curtis Myers has moved from sixth to fifth this week at 17.2.

In the girls' race, Keisha Pilgreen of North Pitt, last week's leader, continues to hold first at 18.44, just two-hundredths of a point ahead of second place Janet Rogerson of Bear Grass. Rogerson is averaging 18.42 points this week.

Third place is still held by Druscilla Crawford of Chocowinity at 16.8, while teammate China Grice has moved from seventh to fourth at 15.7. Fifth place has been taken over by Chanel Hooker of Greene Central, up from eighth place, with a 15.4 average.

Greenville Christian continues to lead the area boys' teams in scoring with a 77.4 average. Washington is still second with a 71.9 average.

Trinity remains the top boys' defensive leader, giving up 46.3 points a game. Jamesville is also still in second place at 52.4.

Greenville Christian is also still the leader in girls' team offense, scoring 62.9 points a game. Chocowinity has moved past North Pitt to take over second at 56.8.

On defense, Trinity has become the leader, allowing only 31.3 points a game. Washington falls to second at 32.2.

- and defensive teams, follow. Averages are rounded off to the nearest tenth, but competed to the nearest hundredth. Ties are noted where they occur.

Temple Proving It Really Belongs

By The Associated Press

For Temple to prove it belonged at the top of the Top 20, the Owls needed the right opponent.

"People have been saying that we've beaten hash-house teams and Villanova had beaten some good teams," Temple's Howard Evans said. "So we wanted to show we could beat them. We wanted Villanova badly."

Evans had a school-record 20 assists and 17 points and freshman Mark Macon scored 31 Wednesday night as No. 1 Temple beat No. 20 Villanova 98-86.

Temple, promoted to the top spot this week, got its first victory of the season against a ranked team. The Owls lost by one point at Nevada-Las Vegas in their only other game versus a Top 20 opponent.

Villanova led 65-61 with 10:42 left before Temple responded with a 10-2 burst. The Owls made 14 foul shots in the final 1:50 to preserve the victory over their Philadelphia Big 5 rivals.

"We showed our character in coming back," Coach John Chaney said of his Owls, 19-1, after their 79th victory in the last 81 games at McGonigle Hall.

In other games, No. 2 Purdue beat Michigan State 72-70, No. 11 Syracuse stopped No. 5 Pitt 84-75, No. 10 Kentucky defeated Auburn 67-62, No. 13 Iowa downed Ohio State 92-75, DePaul surprised No. 15 Bradley 86-80 and No. 17 Vanderbilt trounced Tennessee 90-62.

Villanova scored the first eight points of the game, including a pair of 3-pointers by Doug West, who finished with 27.

Temple surged back to tie it at 12, and neither team led by more than three points as the Owls took a 41-40 halftime lead.

The Wildcats used a 13-4 run for a 53-47 lead with 15:51 remaining before Temple rallied.

Mike Vreeswyk scored 19 points and Tim Perry 14 as the Owls won their fifth straight game.

No. 2 Purdue 72, Michigan St. 70

Todd Mitchell scored 16 points and sparked a second-half surge that carried Purdue past Michigan State in the Big Ten.

Mitchell had six points during a 10-2 burst that put the Boilermakers ahead 65-56 with 6:32 remaining.

Ken Redfield, who scored 21 points, rallied the host Spartans within 70-68 with 52 seconds remaining, but Purdue's Everette Stephens made two foul shots with seven seconds left.

Purdue is 20-2 overall and 9-1 in the conference. Michigan State is 8-12 and 3-7.

No. 11 Syracuse 84, No. 5 Pitt 75

Matt Roe scored 25 points and Derrick Coleman and Rony Seikaly 18 each as Syracuse beat Pitt in the Big East.

The Orangemen rallied from a seven-point deficit to improve to 19-5 overall. The Panthers, 16-3, lost for the first time in 10 home games.

Sherman Douglas scored 16 for Syracuse. The Orangemen, who lost to Pitt twice in the regular season last year, when Stephen Thompson made a free throw and Douglas hit a 17-footer to give Syracuse the lead for good at 69-68 with 6:20 left.

Sean Miller scored 18 for Pitt.

No. 10 Kentucky 69, Auburn 62

Rex Chapman scored 25 points as Kentucky won at Auburn in the Southeastern Conference.

Freshman Eric Manuel scored 12 points for the Wildcats, including eight in the final 2½ minutes.

Lenoir Runs Past Pitt, 101-83

WINTERVILLE — Lenoir Community College pulled away in the second half and recorded a 101-83 basketball victory over Pitt Community College Wednesday night.

Pitt gained a 5-2 lead in the early going but Lenoir rallied after the first three minutes and came back to tie it at 13-13 with 11:51 left in the first half. After that, the Lancers pushed out to a 34-25 lead with 4:11 to go. Pitt closed the gap back to 46-38 in the time remaining.

Early in the second half, Lenoir caught fire and ran out to a 59-42 lead with 15:29 to play. The Paladins rallied, closing within 77-67 at the 7:43 mark, but that was as close as they could come.

"I was impressed with some thing we did last night," Coach Charles Coburn said. "But we are still having too many turnovers (30). We did shoot better from the line (77.8 percent)."

Coburn, who recently lost two members off the team, added Alex Dunn and Ken Hadnott and said he got them some valuable playing time in the contest.

"Jesse Pratt had his best game of the year, pulling 10 rebounds and scoring a season-high 26 points," he added.

Lenoir's scoring was led by Marvin Smith with 27, while Miguel Barrow and Stuart Carlyle each had 15, and Jeffrey Harris had 10.

Eric Dunn added 23 for Pitt while Maurice Williams had 13.

Pitt is now 8-17 on the year and plays at home against Chowan on Friday.

Earnhardt Favored To Win Title Again

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — NASCAR stock car star Dale Earnhardt is the overwhelming choice among members of the motorsports media to win a third straight Winston Cup championship.

Earnhardt drew 29 of 40 first-place votes and 774 points in a preseason poll conducted by Valvoline Oil Co. and announced here Wednesday.

Bill Elliott, who still is looking for his first points championship, was second in the poll with four first-place votes and 638 points.

Darrell Waltrip, like Earnhardt a three-time Winston Cup champion, was third in the poll with three first-place votes and 546 points and also was picked by the panelists as the favorite to win Comeback Driver honors in 1988.

Fourth place in the poll went to Rusty Wallace, followed by 1984 Winston Cup champion Terry Labonte, Ricky Rudd, 1987 Rookie of the Year Davey Allison and Kyle Petty.

Wallace and Labonte each drew one first-place vote and Rudd polled the other two.

Rounding out the top 10 were Ken Schrader, who won the pole position for Sunday's race, and Geoff Bodine.

The second 10 was Bobby Allison, Richard Petty, Neil Bonnett, Alan Kulwicki, Mark Martin, Harry Gant, Phil Parsons, Sterling Marlin, Morgan Shepherd and Brett Bodine.

Schrader was picked by the panel to win the Most Improved Driver award, while Hut Stricklin beat out Ernie Irvan as the favorite for Rookie of the Year.

The 1988 season opens Sunday with the 30th annual Daytona 500.

Watson Remembers 1st Hawaiian Open

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — Tom Watson first came to national attention in the Hawaiian Open 15 years ago.

It wasn't the kind of attention he wanted.

"I choked," he said.

"I had a four-shot lead going into the last round in '73 and shot 75.

"It's the most nervous I've ever been on a golf course. It was my first real chance to win a tournament and I didn't know how to handle it.

"I blew it.

"I thought I had to hit every shot perfect.

"I didn't know then about axiom that says, 'It isn't how good your good shots are, it's how good your bad shots are,'" Watson said.

And, he said before teeing off today in the first round of the $600,000 Hawaiian Open, there was another lesson he had to master.

"I had to learn how to win. I finally did. I got myself in position often enough that I was able to learn," he said.

Watson learned the lesson well. He went on to win five British Open championships and 32 American PGA Tour titles.

Strangely enough, however, none have been in this tournament. It's a situation that could be corrected this week, Watson said.

"I'm starting to hit the ball pretty well, hitting a lot of good shots.

"But my putting is a little tentative. Putting obviously is the key to my success or failure. If I putt well, I can win. If I don't putt well, I won't win. It's that simple," said Watson, who ended a 3-year non-winning string late last year.

And, despite a top-10 finish, his putting was not what he wanted it to be last week at Pebble Beach.

"It's elusive. 'I'm missing everything on the low side. I just don't understand it.

"I'm just not quite comfortable putting," he said.

"I need to start making all those 3-4 footers I've been missing, then make some 10-footers, and a 30-footer or two, and I'll win again.

"I know how it's done. I just haven't been able to do it," Watson said before beginning the chase for a $108,000 first prize.

His chief opposition is in the person of Corey Pavin, winner of the last year's Hawaiian Open.

Some other principal contenders at the Waiale Country Club are U.S. Open champ Scott Simpson, PGA title-holder Larry Nelson, Paul Azinger, Ben Crenshaw, Lanny Wadkins and Steve Jones, fresh from his career-first victory at Pebble Beach.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by NBC.

Richmond's Status Still Uncertain

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Tim Richmond's future as a race driver remains uncertain, with his attorney offering NASCAR a written report from his doctor in an effort to settle questions about his physical condition.

Barry Slotnick, the attorney for Richmond, said Wednesday he sees no reason why Richmond can't be back in a race car in time for Sunday's Daytona 500.

Richmond was suspended from competition last Saturday after testing positive for a prohibited substance under NASCAR's new drug testing guidelines.

The 32-year-old Charlotte, N.C., resident, at his own request, took a second test Saturday night and, when it came back negative, was reinstated.

He still must be given medical clearance by Dr. Ronald Hinebaugh, has to find a ride and must drive in at least one practice by Saturday in order to even be a relief driver in Sunday's season-opening race.

Slotnick, speaking from his New York City Office, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview, "The report will indicate he (Richmond) entered the hospital (Cleveland Clinic) because of pneumonia, was treated for pneumonia and was discharged from the hospital in sound condition.

"We have the body of Tim Richmond in Daytona and they can examine him to their heart's content," Slotnick said. "They can put a stethoscope to his chest, check his ears and do whatever they want.

"Then we expect by tomorrow (this) afternoon it will then be determined that he will be able to drive in a race car in the Daytona 500. We have gone more than the nine yards we are supposed to."

Richmond regained his NASCAR driver's license Monday after testing negative on a second drug test. But, Dr. Hinebaugh, the Daytona International Speedway medical director, still had not cleared him for driving, continuing efforts to get information on the driver's serious bout with pneumonia that began in December 1986 and lasted through much of 1987.

Bill France Jr., president of NASCAR, held an impromptu news conference Wednesday about the Richmond affair.

He said, "Basically, what it gets down to is the (speedway) care center gets its questions answered, and they're satisfied and sign off (Richmond's physical examination), he's ready to go like anybody else is.

"The doctors like to talk to some other doctor in a situation like that, from my experience," France added. "NASCAR is involved, but the doctor at the care center provides a service. He makes the physical call at the various events."

Slotnick said he dealt with Washington, D.C. attorney Jim Rocop, whose firm represents NASCAR.

"They asked for other materials that were irrelevant," Slotnick said of NASCAR. "They wanted a full hospital report, which was nonsense. We're giving them something better."

Asked what would happen if Richmond is not cleared to drive on Thursday, Slotnick replied: "If they don't clear him by tomorrow then it becomes a serious question physically and emotionally for Tim Richmond."

Brown Feels UNC Did Well

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

Mack Brown was about one month behind the rest of the Atlantic Coast Conference football coaches in recruiting high school seniors, but he thinks the incoming freshman class heading to North Carolina provides a pretty good foundation to build on.

"I think our numbers may be off balance in the positions, but the quality is better than the distribution of numbers," Brown said in a telephone interview.

Brown, saying he was helped by Joe Robinson, who was a recruiter under former Coach Dick Crum, signed 19 players to grants-in-aid Wednesday on the first day prep football players could sign with colleges.

Four of Brown's announced signees were members of the 1987 Associated Press all-North Carolina high school football team, among them J.R. Boldin, a 6-foot-2, 240-pound linebacker from Hillsborough Orange.

"I think we had a very good year, but I don't know of any coach who would say he had a very poor year," Brown said. "However, based on the late start we got in recruiting, I am very happy with what we were able to accomplish."

Brown wants to establish a recruiting stronghold in the state, he said.

"The kids in this area obviously know a great deal about North Carolina, its tradition and its rivalries, and are going to be more interested," Brown said. "I think in the future, we will recruit more people from outside this area, but our primary area of concern should be North Carolina and the Atlantic Coast Conference area."

Of the 19 players Brown signed, eight were from North Carolina and six were from Virginia. His recruiting stretched into Florida, where he lured Willie Joe Walker, a 6-3½, 250-pound lineman from Bradenton.

ACC champion Clemson got at least 23 signees, including Mark Taylor, a 4.0 student who runs the 40-yard dash in 4.4 seconds. The Tigers raided North Carolina for all-state tight end Chester McGlockton of Whiteville, then went to Florida to get Tyrone Mouton of Clearwater.

Two coaches who recently received contract extensions celebrated with good recruiting crops on Wednesday.

Wake Forest's Bill Dooley, whose Demon Deacons went 7-4 last season, got in his first full recruiting season and brought in 20 players. Last month, Dooley's contract at the Winston-Salem school was extended for an undetermined period.

When he joined Wake Forest in January 1987, Dooley had just three weeks to recruit before the signing date.

"We're very pleased with the quality and number of young men that we have signed and the ones that are committed to sign," Dooley said in a prepared statement. "This is a good group, the type of group that we need to be competitive in the Atlantic Coast Conference."

Among those signing at Wake Forest was Clayton Aken, an all-state center from Fayetteville Byrd. Dooley also got a commitment from South Carolina Shrine Bowl quarterback Keith West of Sumter.

North Carolina State Coach Dick Sheridan received what could develop into an 11-year agreement. He got a three-year extension on his current five-year contract, which has three years remaining. In addition, his new contract automatically will be extended for five more seasons unless either he or the school objects before Jan. 1, 1992.

Sheridan announced that 18 high school standouts had signed with N.C. State on Wednesday. Ten of those players are from North Carolina, including Garner record-setter Anthony Barbour, the AP player of the year who scored 47 touchdowns and led his team to a 15-0 record and the state 4-A title.

"Our coaches have done an excellent job of not only identifying talent, but finding the type of young people that we are proud to have represent N.C. State," Sheridan said.

The Wolfpack also signed 6-5, 212-pound Neal Auer of Fairview, the brother of N.C. State senior linebacker Scott Auer. Both will be listed as outside linebackers this fall.

Duke has two Parade magazine all-Americans among its 24 signees. One of them is Randy Cuthbert, a six-way performer from Central Bucks West High School in Pennsylvania. He threw for 500 yards and four touchdowns, rushed for 600 yards and 12 touchdowns, and intercepted four passes.

"I think we've helped ourselves, but we have to wait to see how these players improve after they become Blue Devils," Duke Coach Steve Spurrier said. "I will say that there are several players who will have a chance to play some as freshmen, mostly at the skill positions — defensive back, wide receiver, maybe running back."

Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Ross went for size on the line, and he recruited two defensive tackles and two offensive linemen, each of whom weigh at least 270 pounds and are at least 6-4.

The biggest of the quartet is Kevin Battle, a 6-5, 300-pound defensive tackle from Atlanta. In all, 25 players signed with Georgia Tech — nine were interior linemen.

"One of our biggest needs is offensive linemen," Ross said. "There were times last year when we could not have contact drills because we were short on offensive linemen. That, obviously, was a big priority."

Virginia, coming off an 8-4 season capped with a victory over Brigham Young in the All-American Bowl, announced that six players had signed. Five of the six players who signed to play for George Welsh are from Virginia.

Welsh said the Cavaliers' successful 1987 season most likely played a role in landing the recruits.

"I think there was one difference this year in state and out of state for a lot of kids, because we found out that we were ahead in the beginning and we didn't have to catch up," Welsh said. "We were ahead and a lot of teams had to catch up to us."

The Cavaliers also got a written commitment from Terry Tomlin, a wide receiver from Lauderhill, Fla. Welsh said Tomlin is in the same mold as John Ford.

Ahoskie Runs By Williamston

WILLIAMSTON — Ahoskie High School romped to a 77-54 basketball victory over Williamston in the Northeastern Conference Wednesday night.

Williamston's girls crushed Ahoskie, 75-25, in a foul-filled game earlier in the evening.

The Tigers were held to only four points in the first quarter as the Cougars dumped in 10 to gain the initial lead. Williamston picked up the pace in the second quarter, but was still outscored, 17-16, and trailed 27-20 at intermission.

Ahoskie continued to pull away in the third quarter, outscoring the Tigers, 20-11, to boost the lead to 57-31. The Cougars finished off the Tigers, 30-23, in the last period.

Dustin Shuler led Ahoskie with 18 points while Lester Holley had 17 and Phillip Sessoms had 11.

The Tigers were paced by Guy Spruill with 19 and Fred Huff with 12. Williamston falls to 6-13 overall, 4-5 in league play. Williamston plays host to Edenton on Friday.

In the girls' game, Ahoskie was whistled for 40 fouls, sending Williamston to the line for 70 free throws, of which the Lady Tigers hit 33 — enough to have won the game without a field goal.

Williamston led 11-4 after one period and 33-10 at the half. The Lady Tigers extended their margin to 54-18 in the third period and recorded a 21-7 margin in the final quarter.

Dana Hardison led Williamston with 26 points while Kim Hawkins had 19, Keisha Moore had 12 and Tepeka Manning had 11.

Williamston's girls are now 4-13 overall, 3-6 in the NEAC.

Rich Get Richer With Signings

By The Associated Press
The rich got richer in Wednesday's grab-bag of high school football talent.

The Top Ten teams in the final 1987 Associated Press poll all increased their talent pools significantly as the seven-week signing period got under way.

Of course, the actual results won't be known for several years, but on the surface Miami, Florida State, Oklahoma, Syracuse, LSU, Nebraska, Auburn, Michigan State, UCLA and Texas A&M all had outstanding success in the recruiting wars.

"How we stack up with the rest of them around the country we really don't know," Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson said. "We'll probably find out three or four years from now when we win some championships."

Johnson said the Hurricanes "signed a quality class, especially as far as filling our needs. We signed some outstanding receivers, running backs and a couple of good defensive backs. And the bonus comes with the big, strong defensive linemen we signed."

Johnson listed Miami's top recruits as running back Ellery Roberts of Mineola, N.Y.; wide receivers Lamar Thomas of Gainesville, Fla., and Leslie Shepherd of Forestville, Md.; defensive linemen Kipp Vickers of Tarpon Springs, Fla., and Diego London of Riverdale, Md., and defensive back Charles Pharm of Houston.

Miami proved that success breeds success.

"We signed some top players in areas of the country where we hadn't gotten top players before," Johnson said.

Florida State announced the signing of seven linemen and seven linebackers, including offensive linemen Oliver Strickland of Philadelphia, and Tyrone Barber of Thomasville, Ga.

Coach Bobby Bowden termed his prospects "predominantly a blue-collar recruiting class, a very impressive group. It's not one I want to swap with anybody else."

Oklahoma went into Texas and signed SuperPrep Magazine's All-Southwest Offensive and Defensive Players of the Year — running back Ike Lewis of Dallas and linebacker Joe Bowden of North Mesquite. The Sooners also signed running back Kenyon Rasheed of Kansas City, Mo., and SuperPrep's All-Midlands Defensive Player of the Year, tackle Mike Filson of Edmond, Okla.

"We were looking for people who could start for us and help us as sophomores. I think we got that," Coach Barry Switzer said. "Every player we recruit we think can play for us as a sophomore. We think this is a good class."

Syracuse's incoming class includes three Parade Magazine All-Americans.

"We are extremely pleased over the quality of our recruiting class," recruiting coordinator Bob Casullo said. "It's probably one of the best, if not the best."

The recruits include quarterback Wendal Lowery, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and defensive linemen George Rooks, of White Plains, N.Y., and Garland Hawkins of Hyattsville, Md.

"This is an unusual year. We found everything we were looking for and signed everyone we found," Casullo said. "We were looking to get help on the defensive line, and we got it. We were looking for linebackers, and we got them. We got the quarterback we wanted and we got a kicker. We covered all the areas."

LSU invaded Texas to sign linebackers Tyrone Malone of Houston and Nigel Ventress of Port Arthur, running back Wayne Williams of Brazoria and defensive back rafael Adams of Jasper. The Tigers signed only nine players from Louisiana.

Nebraska's top recruits included defensive tackle Dave Jensen of Omaha and tight end William Washington of Tyler, Texas.

Coach Tom Osborne said Jensen "was probably the No. 1 priority for us because of the position he plays and his ability. Dave was as good a defensive lineman as we saw this year. We didn't end up going back and taking a lot of second choices. We applied pretty strict standards to what we offered."

"I'm not saying this is a worldbeater (group), but it's good, it's solid. We didn't get one of the top five running backs in the country, but we've got all the positions covered. We've got a lot of really good players, but I'm kind of amazed we got as many good ones as we did when you look at the distance we were pulling them. We're really battling some difficult odds."

Auburn signees were headed by offensive lineman Ed King of Phenix City, Ala., defensive lineman Richard Shea of Birmingham and quarterback Herbert Casey of Foley, Ala.

Michigan State rode its Rose Bowl victory to an excellent recruiting year although Tom Lemming, a Chicago-based talent scout for The Prep Football Report, said that "Michigan was the leader in the Big Ten. Michigan brought in a lot of skilled players and seven of the country's best offensive linemen."

Michigan State landed Matthew Amacker, a 290-pound tackle from Detroit, and Willie Hill, a 295-pound fullback from West Palm Beach, Fla.

The Spartans' biggest catch at a skill position was defensive back-wide receiver Courtney Hawkins of Flint, Mich.

Running back Kevin Williams of Spring, Texas, and quarterback Bret Johnson of El Toro, Calif., were among 18 players who signed with UCLA. Williams, who rushed for 1,339 yards in only eight games last season, was rated the nation's No. 1 prospect by the National High School Football Recruiting Service.

Johnson, a 6-1, 175-pounder, passed for 6,538 yards and 63 touchdowns during his prep career. Ten of UCLA's signees earned first-team All-America honors from at least one publication.

"Overall, I feel this is another solid class, probably on par with the groups we have recruited in the last three or four years," Coach Terry Donahue said. "I think we were successful in several areas, especially the skill positions and the offensive line."

Texas A&M added to an already deep roster that has won three straight SWC titles. Running back Robert Wilson of Houston signed with the Aggies, who also got three of the best junior college players in the nation — tight end Mike Jones and defensive lineman Pat Cunningham of Sacramento Junior College and John Cooper, a defensive back from Tyler, Texas, J.C.

"We got as much quality as we've had in any year since I've been here," Coach Jackie Sherrill said. "We got quality in different positions this time. And the Wilson kid is already a man. He's going to be something."

As expected, Notre Dame signed many of the nation's top high school players while Southern Cal got the nation's premier quarterback.

How about a nice boring investment that pays you plenty with no risk?

With so many economic uncertainties, go for a sure thing with your hard-earned savings. It's no time to take chances. Values of many non-insured investments can drop substantially—particularly in a time of severe market volatility.

Nobody knows what the future will bring. But with IRAs and other insured savings investments here, you'll sleep easy knowing your money is safe, sure and secure.

It will also be yielding an excellent return you can always count on right down to the last penny earned.

No other investment offers all these advantages . . .

- SAFETY. Deposits insured by a federal agency, backed by the full faith and credit of the United States.
- YOU KNOW WHAT YOUR INVESTMENT WILL BE WORTH.
- YOU CAN GET YOUR MONEY WHEN YOU WANT IT—even with an early withdrawal penalty.
- LOCAL CONVENIENCE. We're near where you live or work.
- WE QUOTE ACTUAL YIELDS—not "projections" based on past performance that may never be repeated.
- NO BIG FEES, LOADS, OR COMMISSIONS.

Martin Dies

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Charles Brantley Martin, who resigned as mayor of Tarboro Monday night, died Wednesday of cancer. He was 75.

Martin was elected mayor in November 1985 after serving six years on the Edgecombe County Board of Commissioners. He also served in the General Assembly as a representative from Martin County in 1946 and was superintendent of the Tarboro city school system from 1957 to 1976.

In a brief letter to the Tarboro Town Council, Martin said Monday he felt it necessary to resign because of ill health.

Funeral services are scheduled for 11 a.m. Friday at Tarboro's First Baptist Church, with burial in Greenwood Cemetery.

Notification

RALEIGH (AP) — All persons with known AIDS virus infection are required as of Feb. 1 to notify their sexual and needle partners of this infection, state officials said.

"This was one of the most controversial provisions adopted by the Commission for Health Services at its December 1987 meeting," said Dr. Rebecca Meriwether, head of the Communicable Disease Control Branch for the N.C. Department of Human Resources' Division of Health Services. "However, it was passed in an effort to protect public health and prevent the spread of AIDS."

Veteran Actor Finds Niche As 'L.A. Law' Office Boy

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Larry Drake is so convincing as Benny, the retarded office boy on NBC's "L.A. Law," that some of the other actors weren't sure at first whether he was acting or not.

"The first time I worked with him, I didn't talk to him before the scene, so I made sure I talked to him afterward," confessed Alan Rachins, who plays lawyer Douglas Brackman. "He was so good, I wanted to see for myself."

Drake's role as Benny Stulwicz has not only captivated his fellow actors, but the public as well. Because of Drake's sensitive portrayal of the mentally retarded office boy, the Association of Retarded Citizens plans to present the show with an award later this month.

"The plaque says for 'encouraging ability rather than dwelling on disability,'" said Drake. "The award's for the show, but I'll be there when it's presented."

Drake, a graduate of the University of Oklahoma, is suddenly hot after 14 years as a relatively unknown actor.

He played Lenny in "Of Mice and Men" at San Diego's Old Globe Theater three years ago and played a retarded man in a TV movie called "Dark Night of the Scarecrow." But usually he's been cast as a heavy.

Drake, 6-foot-3 and 230 pounds, says, "I usually play big and mean, big and stupid or big and funny."

He made his first appearance as Benny at the end of the last season in what was supposed to be a brief role. He had been charged with robbery, but it turned out he had been exploited by a neighborhood thug. His case was the first courtroom victory for Abby Perkins, the inexperienced young lawyer played by Michele Greene.

"It was only her second time in court, and she was very fearful," Drake said. "I was originally in just one scene, the courtroom scene. Then they added another scene."

He was brought back this season and has been in 10 of 16 episodes and expects to appear in 16 of this season's 22.

"I still work week to week," Drake said. "They call me in when they have something."

At the beginning of the season, his mother, played by Lesley Woods, told Abby she was dying of leukemia and asked Abby to put her affairs in order, including finding a way for Benny to support himself. Abby arranged for the law firm to hire him.

Benny developed an unlikely friendship with Arnie Becker, the slick, womanizing divorce lawyer played by Corbin Bernsen.

In a recent episode, which Drake says is his favorite so far, Benny was arrested on a sex charge.

The police had mistakenly arrested him on an assault charge. Benny guiltily admitted doing "something bad" — he had gone to a peep show and thought that was grounds for arrest. He was acquitted, but not before others in the law firm, as naive about mental retardation as Benny is about sex, had presumed he was guilty.

"I loved the scene in the stairwell with Corbin Bernsen," Drake said. "That's when Corbin figures out the truth of what really happened, and I figure out what they think I did. He learns I was nowhere near the scene of the incident. Later, he admits he thought I did it."

In next week's episode, on Feb. 18, Benny has his first date.

"As a result of his arrest, the guys in the office discuss how much I really know about sex," Drake said. "Do I need advice? Jimmy Smits (who plays attorney Victor Sifuentes) takes me under his wing. Benny's biggest problem is loneliness. Jimmy suggests he go to a center to meet other people with development problems. I meet a girl and take her out to dinner."

She is played by Heidi Hennessey, a mentally retarded actress from Theater Unlimited in San Francisco.

Drake did some research on mental retardation when he played Lenny in "Of Mice and Men." Now he frequently consults Nora Baladerian, a therapist who treats the retarded. She introduced Drake to one of her clients.

"I hang around with him and see what his problems are," Drake said. "It's discovering what Benny would know at this stage of his life, at 38. I think Benny was overprotected by his mother, so he's more socially awkward. It makes for a more interesting character, because it allows the writers to start at square one and watch him progress."

Singer Developing AIDS Foundation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Singer Dionne Warwick, already a major contributor to AIDS research, says she is forming a foundation to focus on getting more money for treatment and education about the disease.

"But a foundation without money is moot," she said Wednesday in a speech at the National Press Club. "So over the weekend of June 10-12, I will host a gala in the nation's capital to raise funds for AIDS programs."

The entertainer has contributed more than $1.5 million to the American Foundation for AIDS Research in proceeds from the hit record "That's What Friends Are For."

Her decision to set up a separate foundation reflects what she said is the need for renewed emphasis on prevention and treatment.

Major events during the June fund-raiser, she said, will include a golf and tennis tournament headed by Bob Hope and Sammy Davis Jr., the world premier of a yet-to-be-announced motion picture and a concert at the Kennedy Center featuring herself and Gladys Knight.

Miss Warwick added in a jovial tone that "soon to follow will be the commitment of Stevie Wonder" and that she had no doubt British singer Elton John also would appear "for the recreation of 'Friends.'"

The appearance of Wonder and John would reunite the quartet that made the successful "That's What Friends Are For" record and video.

She said Whoopi Goldberg has agreed to host the evening and that entertainers Robin Williams and Lionel Richie also have agreed to help.

Miss Warwick was careful not to criticize the American Foundation for AIDS Research, headed by actress Elizabeth Taylor.

But, she said, "It is my view that research is getting the overwhelming majority of funds available for AIDS. AMFAR and other organizations are certainly insuring that research dollars continue to flow."

Former TV News Crews Form Firm

By DEBORAH MESCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former CBS newsmen like Pappas has formed his own television production company and plans to hire reporters, producers and technicians who, like himself, lost their jobs in network layoffs.

Pappas says the company, based in an office next door to his former CBS News bureau in downtown Washington, is developing network-quality news programming for independent TV and radio stations as well as video presentations for industry, trade associations and government. The company's name is like Pappas Network Productions.

Pappas, who worked at CBS for 23 years before he was laid off nearly a year ago, is one of four full-time employees and the only on-air talent at the company so far. He plans to contract for some projects with others among the "wealth of talent that has been let go by the networks," particularly CBS.

"We have a vast network of people who used to work with CBS who did not lose their talent," he said in an interview Wednesday. "These are the first people I give work to."

He also has tapped a pool of freelance producers and technicians used by all three major networks, he said.

Pappas was among more than 200 people cut from the CBS news operation in March 1987 when the network trimmed its news budget by about $300 million.

He opened his company Jan. 1 in an office building that also houses a video company which leases its production facilities to Pappas.

Pappas's company hasn't yet distributed any programming for broadcast, but is developing several projects, he said.

"We're gearing up for the (political) conventions," and planning several programs on the presidential campaign, he said.

In addition, he's considering documentaries and feature programming "to offer the independent stations a way to compete in prime time with the networks," he said.

The company also plans to market itself to industry, government and trade associations for production of internal promotional presentations and training films, he said.

This effort will be targeted at the defense industry, a field well known to Pappas who was CBS's Pentagon correspondent for seven years.

The bidding:

Opening lead: King of ♣
 When, as young men, we ventured forth into the wide world, we were given the following admonition: "Never bet against a man who tells you that the jack of spades is going to pop out of the pack and squirt water in your face; and never give a ruff-and-sluff!" The first bit of advice has stood us in good stead over the years. We began to have reservations about the latter when we came across this hand.

After South's third-hand one spade opening bid, North was on the borderline of a raise to game. However, he adopted a slightly conservative pose in case his partner had opened light in third seat. South had more than enough to proceed to four spades.

The defenders got off to a fast start when West cashed two high hearts and then shifted to the jack of diamonds. South tried the queen from dummy just in case, but East covered with the king and declarer won. With a sure loser in diamonds and a near certain club loser, declarer's best hope was for a defensive miscue.

Declarer drew the outstanding trumps and then surrendered a diamond trick as East followed with the three to show an original holding of four cards in the suit. Aware that a red-suit lead would yield a ruff-sluff, West shifted to a club. He chose the queen, to make it look as if he held the jack as well. Declarer, however, elected to play for split honors. He won in dummy with the king and ran the eight to bring home his contract.

Since declarer was marked with a 5-2-2-4 distribution, West should have realized that one discard from either hand would not help declarer. Instead of breaking the club suit, West should have conceded a ruff-sluff, and declarer would still have had to lose a club trick for down one.

Trio Accused Of Promising Salvation

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — An elderly woman turned over thousands of dollars, jewelry and a new car to fortunetellers promising eternal salvation and release from curses in a scheme that may involve many victims, authorities said.

Charges have been filed against three people and one arrest has been made, East Peoria Detective Steve Deatherage said Wednesday. Police were still searching for the two others.

"I don't know how many victims are involved," Deatherage said. "We're starting to get a lot of calls all of a sudden."

"With all the victims we're going to have, I'd estimate the losses will be more than $100,000."

Felony theft warrants, carrying bonds of $100,000 each, have been issued against Ann L. Corricelli, 24, of East Peoria, and Marie "Lena" Wilson, 52, and Joe L. Marks, 37, both of Galesburg.

The charges, filed Tuesday in Peoria County, allege the three were involved in an ongoing theft from the unidentified elderly Peoria woman from June 1986 to January 1988.

Convictions on the charges carry penalties of two to five years in prison and up to a $10,000 fine.

Prosecutors alleged that the three obtained money, jewelry and a new car from the woman by deception.

"They took a little bit of everything," said Darlynn Krauss, assistant state's attorney in charge of the case. "The victims of these people are not crazy. This is not insanity. They are just vulnerable for some reason."

The three promised "they could raise the souls of her two deceased husbands from hell to heaven and help her money multiply if she did as she was told," said the complaint.

Also, Marks and Wilson were charged with one count of conspiracy to commit theft resulting from an incident Saturday in which they are accused of ordering the woman to bring them $300.

Police declined to release further details.
