Haig Bows Out, Throws His Support To Dole

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Alexander M. Haig Jr. withdrew from the Republican presidential race today and threw his support to Bob Dole — a man he called "head and shoulders above George Bush as a potential president."

Though Haig had picked up little support in his darkhorse bid for the GOP nomination, the former secretary of state's stark assessment of Dole vs. Bush landed a fresh blow to the vice president's struggling presidential bid.

He said Dole was the best man to go eyeball to eyeball with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, and he embraced Dole's deficit-reduction program as the best among the remaining five Republican candidates.

"I want to make a difference," Haig said of his decision to quit the race before New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary next Tuesday. Dole is dueling Bush for top honors here and said he was "very, very grateful."

Haig, who had lingered at the bottom of public opinion polls, becomes the first of the 13 major party presidential candidates to call it quits in 1988.

"I am announcing today my withdrawal as a candidate for the Republican nomination and my support for the candidate best qualified to run this nation," he said.

Haig said Dole was that man.

"He has risen from among the people with hard work and honest effort," he said. "... He knows from experience how to make government work."

"From my point of view Bob Dole is head and shoulders above George Bush as a potential president."

Haig, who has been the most vocal critic of Bush in the race, said, "Bob Dole has the strength of character a president must have to deal with Mikhail Gorbachev."

As Haig was making his announcement at a crowded news conference, Dole joined him.

"I want to say to General Haig that I appreciate this very much," Dole said. "I won't let you down. I'll work hard. This is a close race in New Hampshire and I look forward to working with Al Haig in the future."

Haig's decision comes only a few days before the primary in New Hampshire, where he had concentrated his campaign effort over the last year. Despite his efforts, Haig remained at the bottom of public opinion polls.

"It is evident to me that the contests in Hawaii, Michigan and Iowa and my own assessment of New Hampshire make it clear that Al Haig will not be the Republican candidate in 1988," Haig said.

He said he evaluated his chances in New Hampshire and decided it would be egotistical to take the votes "that would be so critical to another candidate to the political grave."

"If I can get them (his supporters) to throw their weight to Bob Dole, the right man, it could make a difference," Haig said.

Soviets 'Bump' U.S. Ships

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Soviet warships deliberately bumped into the sides of two U.S. Navy warships early today while the American vessels were steaming in the Black Sea, the Pentagon said.

No injuries were reported. One American ship suffered "minor damage" to its port side, the Pentagon said.

"The United States will protest these incidents to Soviet authorities," the Pentagon added.

The ships involved were identified as the destroyed USS Caron and the USS Yorktown, a cruiser.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, accompanying President Reagan to Los Angeles on Air Force One, said the "incident was notified early this morning."

"He has received a full briefing on the incident," Fitzwater said in a brief telephone interview.

In Moscow, a Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman had no comment on the incident.

The collisions occurred as the "two U.S. Navy ships were conducting routine operations (and) exercising their internationally recognized right of innocent passage through the Soviet 12-mile territorial sea," the Pentagon said.

"The incidents took place at about 9 miles and 11 miles distance from the Crimean coastline."

According to the Defense Department, the U.S. ships were struck by different Russian naval vessels around 3 a.m. EST today — or about 11 a.m. local time.

The Caron, a so-called Spruance-class destroyer, "was struck on the port side by a Mirka-class light frigate," the Pentagon said. "There was no damage to the Caron."

"Three minutes later, the cruiser USS Yorktown, which was steaming in company with the Caron, was struck on the port side by a Krivak-class frigate. Yorktown sustained minor damage."

The Pentagon did not immediately elaborate on the "minor" damage.

The damage to the Soviet vessels "is unknown, but believed to be minor," the Pentagon added.

The Yorktown is a so-called Aegis-class cruiser, considered the most sophisticated air-defense ship in the world.

According to the Pentagon, the Caron and Yorktown — both assigned to the 6th Fleet — sailed through the Turkish Straits into the Black Sea on Wednesday to conduct "routine operations."

Lennon Is Teacher Of Year

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Billie Lennon of J.H. Rose High School was named Teacher of the Year in the Pitt County schools Thursday during a luncheon at the Greenville Country Club to honor nominees for 1988-89.

Ms. Lennon teaches honors American history and research and independent study at Rose and has taught in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg schools, St. Peter's Catholic School, W.H. Robinson and A.G. Cox. She is a graduate of N.C. Wesleyan and East Carolina University.

"My philosophy of education centers around three basic concepts: academic preparation, enthusiasm and concern for students," Ms. Lennon says. Teachers must have an excellent background in their subject area; must be enthusiastic to stimulate student interest and must genuinely care about students, their growth and development, she says.

Lois Chenault, Teacher of the Year for Region I and a teacher recruiter, was the speaker for the event. She said "a teacher is a jack of all trades" and wears many hats.

Teachers, she said, are handymen who fix simple machines; accountants who record lots of information; artists who colorfully decorate rooms; coaches and referees who provide direction, organize teamwork and settle disputes; policemen who direct student traffic; scholars who are continuously learning; historians who pass along events of significance.

"One thing that always amazes me about teachers ... we are not strangers," Ms. Chenault said. "Immediately I sense a connection, a kind of bond."

Ms. Lennon was presented the Teacher of the Year plaque by the 1987-88 Teacher of the Year, LuAnn Jordan, and was recognized by J.B. Smith, president of the principal's organization.

Pitt County school board Chairman George Williams and Vice Chairman Donovan Phillips presented plaques to the 1988-89 nominees, who represented their schools.

Contract For Bypass Awarded

RALEIGH — A contract for grading, drainage, fencing and structures on the U.S. 264 Farmville Bypass, from SR 1311 in Greene County to east of U.S. 258 north of Farmville, was awarded by the N.C. Board of Transportation this morning.

Randy Doub of Greenville, a transportation board member, said the contract was awarded to Johnny C. Johnson Inc. of Mount Airy at a bid price of $4,253,426.

The scheduled completion date for the work is Nov. 1, 1989, according to Doub, who said the bid was 23.2 percent under the engineer's estimate.

The final contract for grading, drainage and construction of structures on the Farmville Bypass, from east of U.S. 258 to the Farmville eastern thoroughfare, is now scheduled for contract letting in January 1989, Doub said.

In addition to the U.S. 264 contract, Doub said the transportation board this morning approved $12,800 for construction of two left turn lanes on N.C. 11 at the crossover at Carolina East Center. "These storage lanes should help with traffic congestion in and around the development occurring across from Carolina East Mall," he said.

Tourism Bureau Names Director

The Pitt-Greenville Convention and Visitors Authority has hired Al Nichols, a travel industry professional from Tucson, Ariz., as its executive director, Rudolph Alexander, the authority's chairman, said this morning.

Alexander, assistant vice chancellor for student life and director of university unions and student activities at East Carolina University, said Nichols was selected for the position because "he has the right combination of experience, expertise and skills to serve most effectively" as the new organization's chief executive officer.

"We believe that we picked the right person to develop and implement a bold new program from promoting the highest quality growth and progress for the Greenville-Pitt County convention and tourism industry," according to Alexander.

Alexander said Nichols "has an impressive background as a manager and practitioner in the convention and tourism industry, having held such key positions as executive director of the Williamsburg, Va., convention and visitors bureau and director of advertising and public

Council Approves Requests To Annex Two Subdivisions

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

Two subdivision annexation requests, collectively amounting to over 120 acres of residential property, were unanimously approved by the Greenville City Council Thursday night.

The first request approved was the annexation of the approved preliminary plat of South Hall, a subdivision located northwest of the intersection of SR 1700 and SR 1708 and consisting of 75 single-family homes on a 75.34-acre tract.

The second request approved was the annexation of Phases 1 and 2 of Planter's Walk. The subdivision is on a 48.3-acre tract located off SR 1704, south of Quail Ridge and East of Tuckahoe.

No opposition to the annexation was voiced at the public hearing.

The City Council also unanimously approved extending the extrajurisdictional jurisdiction (ETJ) of the city south and parallel to SR 1708 from the western border of the Geneva M. Jackson property on the east, to the Treetops Subdivision on the west.

Three properties, comprising approximately 149 acres, were involved in the ETJ extension ordinance.

Approximately 27 acres owned by

Harry M. Dudley entered the ETJ zoned RA-20 (residential-agricultural) while approximately 50 acres owned by W.E. Dansey and approximately 60 acres owned by Wilton Evans entered the ETJ zoned R6-MH (mobile home park). Existing or previously approved commercial operations on the land will be allowed to exist as non-conforming uses.

In other matters Thursday night, the council unanimously approved a resolution of intent to close an unopened section of East Third

In The Area

Thursday Thefts

Three thefts, including two television sets, were reported to Greenville police Thursday.

Officer D.R. Wyrick said a television set was taken from a storage area at Toyota East on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 12:25 p.m., while Officer C.A. Elks said a television was taken from 308 Paris Ave. in a break-in reported at 2:44 p.m.

According to Officer M.E. Hayes, a purse was taken from 303 Plaza Drive in an incident reported at 7:05 p.m.

Multiple Charges

Multiple charges were lodged against Jimmie Reginald Johnson, 24, of 211A Bryton Hills by Greenville police Thursday.

Officer N.B. Rice said Johnson was arrested on two counts of possession of stolen property after a car, reported stolen from Phelps Chevrolet on Memorial Drive on Feb. 2, was found in his possession at the intersection of Red Banks Road and Sherwood Drive about 1:47 a.m.

James Dirk Carter, 26, of 1509A W. 14th St. was also arrested on two counts of possession of stolen property in connection with the same case, Rice said.

Rice and Detective G.W. Williams said Johnson was charged later Tuesday with two counts of forgery and one count of uttering a forged instrument in connection with incidents reported to the department in late 1987.

Break-In Reported

Greenville police said various leather goods were taken from J&E Harley Davidson Co. in a break-in reported early today.

Officer J.W. Corbett said the break-in at the 1008 Dickinson Ave. motorcycle shop was reported at 12:08 a.m.

Robbery Arrest

Greenville police have arrested Tony Alonzo Edwards, 25, of 1808A Norcott Circle on an armed robbery charge in connection with a robbery at the Fast Fare on Hooker Road that occurred about midnight Tuesday.

Morgan Will Deliver ECU's Distinguished Alumni Lecture

Robert B. Morgan, director of the State Bureau of Investigation and a former U.S. senator, will serve as East Carolina University's 1988 Distinguished Alumni Lecturer March 20-21. Morgan will also participate in Scholars Weekend activities.

Morgan will deliver a public lecture titled "On Politics, Civil Liberties and Ethics," March 21 at 8 p.m. in Amphitheatre 1010 of ECU's new general classroom building.

Morgan will address Scholars Weekend guests at a banquet March 20. The weekend is arranged for top-ranking high school juniors who visit the ECU campus to preview opportunities for honor students. The weekend will include a reception at the chancellor's home, meetings with student and faculty leaders, class visitations, and the banquet.

Morgan will participate in informal meetings with campus leaders, honor students and ECU Ambassadors. He will specifically visit students and faculty in the departments of criminal justice and political science.

A native of Harnett County, Morgan became director of the SBI in 1985. During a lifetime of political and legal work, Morgan has served four years as a clerk of court, 10 as a state senator, six as state attorney general, and six as a U.S. senator. He has also practiced law in Lillington.

Morgan graduated from East Carolina in 1947 with a bachelor's degree in math and chemistry.

He has served as chairman of the ECU board of trustees and president of the alumni association. He received one of the university's first honorary doctorate of letters degrees in 1975 and the Outstanding Alumni Award in 1965.

Morgan served in the U.S. Navy in both World War II and the Korean Conflict. He has served in the U.S. Naval Reserves and the U.S. Air Force Reserves.

Candidates File For May Primary

A State Board of Elections list of candidates for nomination to offices to be included in the May primary includes the names of several men with Pitt County ties.

Greenville native John C. Brooks has filed as a candidate for re-election as the state's commissioner of labor. He will be faced by Jack Brooks Weaver of Dallas and Robert Bingham of Boone in his bid for the Democratic nomination. Republican hopefuls filing as candidates for the GOP nomination include Joseph Overby of Raleigh and Richard Levy of Greensboro.

John B. "Jack" Lewis of Farmville has filed as a candidate for the Democratic nomination as judge of the Court of Appeals, as have William Davis of Chadbourn and William J. Houck of Hickory. The sole Republican candidate to file for the appeals court seat is Donald Smith of Raleigh.

Democrat incumbent Walter Jones of Farmville has filed — unopposed — for re-election as a member of Congress from the 1st Congressional District, while Republicans William J. Wahl Jr. and Howard Moye, both of Farmville, have filed as candidates for the GOP nomination.

Incumbent Chief District Court Judge E. Burt Aycock has filed as a candidate for re-election to his seat in the 3rd Judicial District.

Aycock is being opposed in his bid for the Democratic nomination by Robert D. Wheeler of Grifton. Wheeler was a District Court judge for 15 years before he resigned effective Dec. 31, 1983, for family and financial reasons, to join a New Bern law firm.

David A. Leech of Greenville is also seeking a District Court seat, and is opposed in his bid for the Democratic nomination by Jerry Waddell of New Bern.

Other Greenville men seeking District Court seats unopposed include Rusty Duke and incumbents Jim Martin and H. Horton Rountree.

None of the 3rd Judicial District Democratic hopefuls has Republican opposition.

Commissioners Meet

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday at 9 a.m. at the county office building, 1717 W. Fifth St.

Agenda items scheduled for consideration include: a request to approve contracts totaling $1.64 million for capital improvement projects at A.G. Cox, Ayden Elementary, Grifton and W.H. Robinson schools; approval of $32,287.50 in local matching money to fund a $62,175 flood prevention and erosion control project at H.B. Sugg School; a proposal to do away with the county motor pool and allow department heads to assign vehicles; a proposal to lease a computer hardware and software system for 12 to 15 months (at about $2,000 a month) to maintain tax maps, and to authorize the taking of bids for a new mainframe and software for the data processing department.

Commission Session

The Pitt County Sediment Control Commission will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the county office building, 1717 W. Fifth St.

Agenda items scheduled for consideration include erosion control plans for: Valley Landing on N.C. 33 in Grimesland township; Contentnea Creek Estates off Secondary Road 1109 in Ayden township; Brittany Ridge, sections V and VI off SR 1728 in Grimesland township, and Brittany Ridge, section VII.

Post Office Cuts Window Service

In an effort to reduce operating expenses, the Greenville Post Office will reduce retail window service hours and eliminate Sunday operations, according to Greenville Postmaster Charles Caulk.

Effective Saturday, window hours for the Main Post Office and the East Carolina University Station will be 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Monday, Thursday and Friday. Windows at both stations will be closed Saturday and Sunday. The Main Post Office will be open from 8:30 a.m. to noon on Tuesday and from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Wednesday. The ECU branch will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday, and 8:30 a.m. to noon on Wednesday.

In addition, no mail will be collected or dispatched from Greenville on Sunday.

Caulk said the adjustments are the result of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act, which mandates cuts in postal operational spending of $430 million and $815 million in capital commitments during the next 20 months.

Caulk said the move will not affect caller service and parcel pick-up service. Mail delivery will continue as usual, including Express Mail deliveries on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

The local adjustments reflect those taking place nationwide as the Postal Service strives to meet budget requirements.

Caulk said approximately one-third of the operational savings will come from service which directly affects customers. Two-thirds will come from internal cutbacks in training, purchase of supplies and other administrative expenses.

He said the elimination of Sunday operations will have a minimal effect on the public due to the small volume of mail collected and processed on Sunday.

Mail should be deposited at the Main Post Office before 6 p.m. on Saturday in order to leave on the last dispatch of outgoing mail for the weekend. The next dispatch, after Saturday, will be on 3 p.m. Monday.

He said to help customers deal with the reduction in window service hours, several options have been introduced or expanded during the past two years to increase customer convenience: lobby vending equipment, self-service postal units, Stamps by Mail, postal contract stations, expanded hours at selected area facilities and the stamps by consignment program, which allows commercial retailers to offer stamps at regular postal prices.

Alumni Gathering

The Eva J. Lewis Alumni Chapter of Elizabeth City State University will meet Saturday at 5 p.m. at the home of Mary Gorham, 1004 Colonial Ave.

Detective J.E. Nichols said Edwards was charged about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Edwards is the second man charged in connection with the incident. Officers took Reginald Maurice Langley, 20, of C19 Glendale Court into custody shortly after the holdup.

Langley has also been charged with armed robbery in connection with a Jan. 30 incident at the Quality Mart at the intersection of Greenville and Arlington boulevards.

Detective J.E. Harris said Timothy Purvis, 26, of 1923 S. Pitt St. was taken into custody Wednesday on a possession of stolen goods charge in connection with the Quality Mart robbery.

Museum Anniversary

The Rocky Mount Children's Museum will celebrate its 36th anniversary Sunday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. The activities will feature a cake cutting and a free show in the Civitan Planetarium.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Deficits Largest Economic Factor

The casual concern expressed by local economists over three consecutive months of decline by the government's index of leading economic indicators is likely appropriate without further evidence a recession is on the way in 1988.

But the real key to the nation's long-term economic future lies in how well lawmakers in Washington address federal deficits. Despite data that reflects a comfortable situation, a federal budget deficit that continues to rage beyond realistic bounds can effectively destroy this rosy business and industrial climate in America.

There are several sound reasons not to overreact to three months of falling indicators. First, the drops were small ones, not huge gaps. The largest was two-tenths of a percent. These declines can be seen as expected random fluctuation, a sign of an economic slowdown but not a recession.

Second, 1988 is an election year and it's a safe bet that the federal government will do everything it can to keep the economy from becoming an issue in political debate.

Third, the indicators that rose showed consumer confidence remained high — orders for consumer goods were constant and the nation's money supply increased. Back these factors up with seemingly well-controlled inflation and dipping interest rates, and the result is an economic picture where growth flattens out but does not decline into a recession.

This seeming stability is surprising when examined in perspective of the Oct. 19 stock market crash. Consumer confidence may not be as closely tied to market occurrences as experts predicted.

Still, behind the encouraging predictions for 1988 loom federal budget and trade deficits that threaten the nation's security in a global economy. The nation saw in October what a dangerously out-of-control fiscal policy can do to the stock market. Real progress toward revising this deficit approach will have to be made if this lesson is not repeated with the entire economy.

If the deficits can be reasonably reduced, however, based on the indicators, the economic outlook for 1988 should produce only moderate concern.

Olympic Spirit Surpasses Conflict

Every four years, a global phenomenon pits the nations of the world against each other, yet brings them sharply together in spirit.

It is an occurrence that eclipses race, ideology, doctrine and religion for a brief interval. It puts differences in perspective by replacing conflict with competitive desire.

This phenomenon, the Olympics, will begin Saturday in Calgary, Alberta, Canada. This tradition had its beginnings in ancient Greece, when two warring factions peacefully put aside political differences to spar athletically. Although this theory of apolitical intent continues, the games have in several instances become the stage for political protest, such as in 1980 when the United States refused to participate to protest Soviet actions, and in 1984, when the Soviets returned the favor.

But the competitive spirit of the games persists, despite the intrusion of superpower conflicts and the determination of television to make the Olympics a mere marketing spectacle. Everyone is already sick of seeing the "official whatever of the 1988 Olympics" touted at every available moment. But the competition supersedes the commercialism that threatens to overwhelm it.

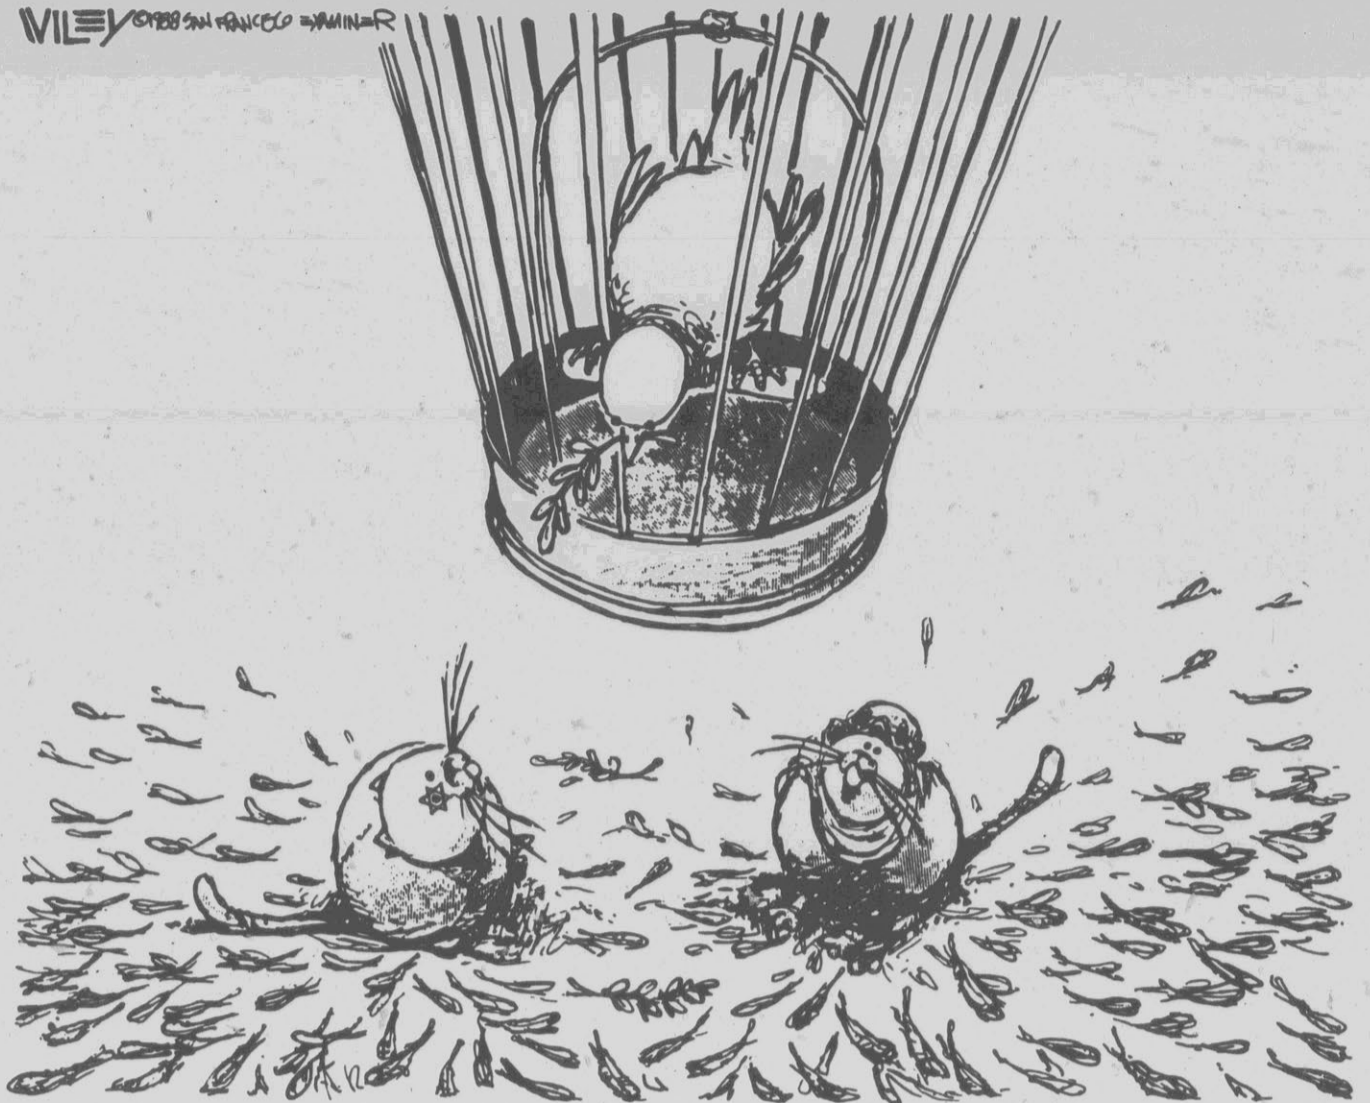

For this reason, the Olympics compel the best in both participants and spectators. As the finest amateur athletes on earth fight for gold, silver and bronze medals, the citizens of the world watch with high hopes. During these moments when competition becomes more important than conflict, differences are set aside for the admiration of performance and the thrill of perfection. The world is at peace, if only on the athletic field, ski jump and ice rink.

Understanding and tolerance among the varied young participants intensifies with the spirit of competition. This education on diverse cultures and insight into differences is valuable experience for them. It teaches lessons about coexistence that can last a lifetime.

On Saturday this quadrennial spectacle unfolds. The most talented young athletes — individuals who have worked entire lifetimes for the opportunity to compete in this arena — will push their limits and vie for the top spot.

It is a phenomenon that should be observed and applauded.

U.S. Plan Mocks Reality

EAST JERUSALEM — Palestinians, like any other people in the world, hope to live freely on their land. We like to choose our form of government, elect our leaders and have control over our natural resources.

Such basic demands are impossible in the context of the autonomy plan being promoted for us.

Palestinians who have struggled for the past 20 years to end the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip are not prepared to accept as a solution having control of our garbage collection and postal service. This is the concept of autonomy that is now being imposed by Washington and Israel on Palestinians.

Instead of supporting the idea of an international conference for peace, the United States is trying to put a new wrapping on a rejected and outdated plan. Palestinians did not participate in the Camp David process, and they are not being asked to take part in the present scheme. U.S. officials continue to want the Palestinians to be the subject of a political plan regarding their future rather than parties to it.

The plan is supposed to be an interim arrangement, but there are no guarantees that it will not become permanent. The second step of the plan would not be determined until next December — after the Israeli parliamentary election. In other words, Palestinians are asked to put their future in the hands of Israeli voters. No way will we accept that.

For the past eight weeks Palestinians in the occupied territories have demonstrated to the world that they are sick and tired of the Israeli occupation and the lack of any genuine political settlement. The current uprising is not an act of disorder or a lack of respect for the law. It is a popular expression of rejection of an illegal occupation.

For Palestinians the United States' maneuverings, and to a lesser degree Egyptian and Jordanian political movement, are an attempt to abort the momentum of the uprising. These political powers are trying to do what Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin and the Israeli government have failed to do. They are trying to defuse the Palestinian will — now that unnecessary killings, immoral beatings and abhorrent curfews have failed to stop the expressions of Palestinian anger. No wonder the stubborn Israeli prime minister gladly welcomed Secretary of State George P. Shultz's autonomy plan.

The Shultz plan satisfies Israel on a number of counts. Israel doesn't have to accept an international conference or talk to the Palestinians' representatives, the Palestine Liberation Organization, or make a commitment on ending the Israeli occupation or dismantling Israeli settlements on the West Bank. And by leaving the plan open-ended, there are no guarantees that real negotiations for the end of Israeli rule over the 1.5 million Palestinians would ever have to take place.

The so-called autonomy plan would defuse the Palestinian uprising in the same way that the Camp David agreement neutralized Egypt. Later, just as the Israelis balked on autonomy talks in 1979, they can renege on any promises that they have to make now.

Some would argue that autonomy is better than occupation, so why don't the Palestinians take it and then work for something better?

The answer is that the Israeli government is committed to staying in the West Bank and Gaza forever. That is why the Israelis established Jewish settlements in contradiction to international law. Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir even said last week that Israel will continue to build Jewish settlements in what he calls Judea and Samaria. This is not a government that Palestinians can put much trust in.

Palestinians fear, therefore, that autonomy over a few civil services would become the final offer. We would be left without our land, without a state and without any political rights. No people in the world would accept that.

The United Nations has made it clear in the Human Rights Declaration that all the people of the world have the right to determine their future, choose their representatives and enjoy political rights on their own soil.

Israel and the United States are among the signatories to that declaration. Yet both the United States and the state of Israel continue to deny our simple right of determining our future.

Where Are The Missiles?

WASHINGTON (AP) — David Aaron, bureaucrat turned author, says he's worried the U.S. nuclear arsenal is so unmanageable that one or two weapons could easily get lost in the shuffle and find their way into the hands of terrorists.

Aaron was President Carter's deputy assistant for national security affairs from 1977 to 1981, and a member of the U.S. arms control team that negotiated the 1972 SALT I treaty with the Soviet Union.

He also is a best-selling author. "State Scarlet" begins with a call to the White House from a man who claims to have stolen a U.S. nuclear weapon. Everybody thinks he is crazy. But the president takes the threat seriously and insists on an inventory.

The military discovers to its dismay that it cannot locate dozens of missiles. The terrorist threat is real. It verges on touching off nuclear war between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Fiction, of course.

'The United States and the Soviet Union together have about 25,000 nuclear weapons. Keeping track of them obviously is a severe problem.'

But Aaron, in an interview while in town to plug the paperback version of his book, discussed some real-life problems.

The gray hair, horn-rimmed glasses and pin-stripe suit conceal a zany sense of humor that a few years ago produced one of the funniest parodies ever written about Henry Kissinger, for whom Aaron also worked.

But Aaron doesn't laugh about nuclear strategy or about terrorism.

He is alarmed that it's become customary to think in terms of limited nuclear war. Aaron calls it "posturing."

"This theory that you can have little escalation boundaries, and bargain in the midst of nuclear war when you couldn't bargain before the war seems to me to be completely foolish," he said.

"If we plan on that basis, I think we'll only hasten the likelihood that it actually could come about."

Nuclear weapons, Aaron said, are not gunboats, which the United States used in the age of imperialism to force troublesome small countries to back down.

"Threaten to use nuclear weapons and pretty soon we take each other's threat seriously," Aaron said. "And the worst situation is when both sides think the other is going to attack. That's when you have this terrible risk of surprise attack."

The United States and the Soviet Union together have about 25,000 nuclear weapons. Keeping track of them obviously is a severe problem.

That's one reason Aaron supports the current negotiations for a 50 percent overall reduction in long-range bombers, land-based missiles and nuclear submarines. And why he thinks the NATO decision in 1983 to scrap 1,400 of the oldest tactical weapons was smart.

"They are old, but they are even more dangerous because they don't have the kind of controls over them," Aaron said. "Some of them just have padlocks."

The former diplomat is critical, however, of what he calls foot-dragging by the NATO allies on funding a program to guard nuclear weapons against theft by terrorists.

"The military bureaucracy just doesn't put a large degree of emphasis on something like guarding igloos and little huts," Aaron said.

Barry Schweid, head of the AP's State Department staff, has covered diplomacy since 1973.

To the editor:

Thank you for the interest in Downtown Greenville expressed in your editorial of February 8, 1988. However, your implication that the Downtown Greenville Association is working for the removal of the Evans Street Mall is incorrect. The Downtown Greenville Association has no position on the Evans Street Mall. The DGA support a professional planning effort for the Downtown area and will carefully consider the recommendations in that study before taking any position, pro or con, on the mall. Even as your editorial appeared, dozens of the nation's most qualified downtown planning firms were being solicited for their interest in performing the Greenville Downtown Planning Study which is being sponsored by the Downtown Greenville Property Owners' Association and endorsed by the Downtown Greenville Association and Evergreen.

We are confident that this will be an exciting year in the development of Downtown. There will undoubtedly be spirited debate and discussion between individuals over various facets of the Downtown effort. It is important not to paint the Downtown Greenville Association or other downtown boosters' associations with the narrow brush of personal opinion.

Strength For Today

The famous statement of Lord Nelson just before the Battle of Trafalgar has come down across the generations to inspire Englishmen and people of all countries who believe that doing one's duty is an important goal in life.

On the morning of the battle, Nelson instructed his lieutenant to announce to the fleet that England expected every man to do his duty. By means of flags the signal went from ship to ship.

Trafalgar was won. Napoleon was far from defeated, but the naval battle made certain that the triumph which he then gloried was destined to come to a bitter end.

"England expects every man to do his duty." As the British seamen pondered this statement it probably conjured up a vision of the people back home looking out to sea, confident of the fidelity of their sons, brothers, and husbands.

The Superkids: What Makes Young Olympians?

Where do these kids come from? Chances are that thought will cross your mind more than once if you are among the millions who will watch the Winter Olympics that will open Saturday.

For 16 days and nights thereafter, television screens around the world will be filled with images of men and women coaxing impressively honed muscles to perform at the edge of human possibility. Most of these men and women will be young. More than a few will actually still be in their teens. Athletic genius — that mysterious blend of grace and power and uncanny reflex possessed by a Larry Bird or a Willie Mays, a Pirmir Zurbriggen or a Katarina Witt — is always electrifying to behold. To see that kind of genius wrapped in the body of a child is enough to make one's head spin.

It seems like more and more of the loftiest slots in jockdom are being usurped by teen-agers: A 15-year-old gymnast becomes the first person to be awarded a perfect score of 10.00 in the Olympic Games; national swimming records are captured by youngsters still in junior-high school; pink-cheeked tennis players with braces on their teeth knock-off Wimbledon champions.

What magic transforms some children into world-caliber performers at an age when the majority of their contemporaries are struggling to master the rudiments of the stick shift? If you guess that parents — both for their genes and their rearing — are a crucial factor, you'd be right. But probably not quite in the ways that you imagine.

Inheriting a set of world-caliber genes, certainly, has a lot to do with it. But, just as certainly, much more than hatching a kid with kick-ass chromosomes goes into the making of a Robby Naish — the Hawaiian boardsailor who won his first Windsurfer World Championship in 1976 as a skinny, 87-pound, 13 year old, and has recaptured the sport's premier title every year since — or a Boris Becker — who won his first Wimbledon title in 1985 at the age of 17.

The old question of nature vs. nurture comes up right away in any analysis of athletic prodigies, and the evidence is compelling that subtle aspects of family interaction have at least as much bearing on the creation of a prodigy as his or her lineage. Virtually every coach and sports psychologist I spoke to while researching this article emphasized that, without question, the shaping of the psyche factors as heavily into the championship equation as the engineering of the physique.

In "Little Winners" teen-skating-star-turned author Emily Greenspan points out that many physically gifted young athletes who shine early also burn out early from psychological rather than physical pressures.

"For in sports, as in other aspects of life, those who survive tend not only to be the fittest, but also those with stronger personalities. Psychological studies indicate that successful athletes in all sports consistently show fewer signs of psychopathology and lower levels of anxiety, neuroticism, and depression than less-successful athletes and the general population." Greenspan goes on to note that competitors may have widely different types of personality, but they all seem to share one trait: emotional stability. "Those without strong self-assurance," she writes, "simply aren't strong enough to perform well consistently."

Sports psychologists Bruce Ogilvie and Thomas Tutko agree that along with the laurels bestowed upon young champions comes tremendous stress. In a Psychology Today article entitled, "Sport: If You Want to Build Character, Try Something Else," they elaborate: "A very young athlete often must face in hours or days the kind of pressure that occurs in the life of an achievement-oriented man over several years. The potential for laying bare the personality structure of the individual is considerable. When the athlete's ego is deeply invested in sports achievement, very few of the neurotic mechanisms provide adequate or sustaining cover. Basically, each must face his moment of truth and live with the consequences."

The pressures magnify almost geometrically as you go up the sports ladder. When the child is young," Ogilvie explains, "sports are a very innocent thing. The demands are there, but they aren't that important. The child starts doing something because he or she has some aptitude and finds joy in it. But then the parents start getting their needs involved, and then the neighborhood, school, community, state, nation, and world enter in. When children reach the age of about 16 they begin to feel social responsibility. Their performance has to be of a certain order or they feel they have disappointed their parents, coach, fans, or the press."

Those teen-age jocks who do manage to grapple their way to the top of the heap — however disparate their personalities may otherwise be — invariably prove to have remarkably tough, resilient psyches. One way or another, the burr of powerful ambition — an insatiable hunger to excel — must become firmly lodged under the saddle of a prodigy at a very early age. The complex, murky dynamics of almost any family will generate a wealth of opportunities for such a burr to form. Ordinary sibling rivalry, for example, or routine oedipal tension, or the fallout from a bitter divorce could easily do the trick. What puts the right burr in the right place to bring about brilliant achievement rather than adolescent rebellion or self-destructive behavior is, however, far from understood.

Most surprising, perhaps, is the picture of the appropriate parental model for real-life super kids. Forget the stereotype of the meddling and overbearing Little League dad, or the pushy mother of the classic tennis brat. According to Greenspan, a key quality in parents of prodigies who not only start competing very young but are still going strong 10 years down the road is the ability "to convey enthusiasm without conveying expectation. They reward their children more for trying than for winning."

Take, for example, the parents of the aforementioned Robby Naish (though Naish's name is hardly a household word in this country, throughout Europe and Japan — where a single sailboard race on the World Cup circuit might draw 100,000 spectators — he is besieged by autograph hounds and would-be groupies wherever he goes). Steve Wilkings, a sports photographer who has been a longtime friend of the family, told me that Naish's parents are "for all intents and purposes, adventurous, athletic, ex-Berkeley flower children."

This is an important point. The elder Naishes are both high-achievers, but they're not the controlling, aggressive parents that one associates with high-performing children. Wilkings explains that "Rick, the father, instilled in the kids — by example more than anything else — an intense desire to excel at whatever they chose to do, but there was never the least bit of push; his attitude was like, 'Hey, whatever you want to do is cool with me.'"

A generous dose of non-judgmental, no-strings-attached encouragement, however, is by no means all that budding superstars demand of their parents. Greenspan points out that as the young athlete "starts to achieve, the parental role expands. Mothers are called upon to chauffeur the child to daily practice sessions, competitions, exhibitions. Fathers must annually produce thousands of dollars for equipment, coaching, travel. Siblings, too, must make sacrifices. Often their share of their mother's attention dwindles. And they see that a sizable proportion of the family budget is allotted to their sister or brother, not to them.

"A child's sports career," Greenspan continues, "is like a flooding stream, sweeping the entire family into the current. By necessity, the family must draw together to coordinate schedules and juggle finances. Psychic boundaries between family members blur as joys and sorrows are communally shared. Yet keeping the family together, identities separate, and the athlete's career going requires a flexibility and continuing commitment that only a few families can successfully muster."

So, the parents of young athletes who achieve great and enduring success make a point of being there when their progenies need a pat on the back or money to attend training camp. But they pointedly refrain from burdening the kids with the freight of their own unrealized ambitions, never carp at them to train harder, wouldn't dream of criticizing a subpar performance.

Be warned, however, that if you're thinking of forging little Johnny or Suzy into a sure-fire world-beater, there is no sure-fire recipe for success no matter how impressive their gene pedigree or how well-tempered and steadfast your parental ambition. David Feldman, a psychologist from Tufts University who has studied child prodigies at some length, has pointed out that for genius of any kind to occur, "all of the things that go into it must coincide at exactly the right time, in exactly the right place, under exactly the right conditions." The occurrence of genius — athletic or otherwise — remains, more than anything else, a fortuitous cosmic accident.

A tall, lithe 18 year old from Juneau, Alaska, name of Hilary Lindh, is one such cosmic accident. Most notable among the things Ms. Lindh does so much better than the rest of us is go fast on skis. Next Thursday, she will be representing the United States in the Olympic Downhill at Calgary.

Nothing in the vitae of either Lindh mere or pere (she is currently employed by an airline; he is a land-use consultant to the State of Alaska) broadcasts the existence of world-class genes in the blood line. Both parents are enthusiastic skiers, though, and started taking their daughter up to the local slopes when she was still in diapers. Lindh remembers "days when I'd cry because instead of getting to watch Saturday-morning cartoons, I'd have to go skiing."

Somewhere along the line, though, Lindh became enamored of the cold, fast sport: By the age of six she was racing — and winning — regularly, most often against boys; by the time she was 14 she'd won a national Junior Olympic downhill title. "It was about that time," she says, "that I decided to get serious." With her parents' backing, she left home as a ninth-grader to attend a prep school in Salt Lake City with a distinguished ski-racing program.

In 1986, at the age of 16, she became the youngest member of the U.S. Alpine Ski Team, outraced the best skiers in North America to win the U.S. National Downhill, and took the World Junior Championship Downhill. Despite capturing second in last year's National Downhill at Crested Butte, Colo., Lindh was disappointed by her first full season in the World Cup big leagues. She explains that "it was really hard for me not being at the top; it's hard to get used to not being right up there all the time."

Incredibly, for all these travails, Lindh seems to have recovered her full physical prowess (already in the 1988 season she has placed tenth in a difficult World Cup downhill), and Olle Larsson — the respected Swedish ski coach who founded Rowmark Academy — believes that the horrible crash left her confidence and courage — traits absolutely vital to a downhill — completely unbruised.

N.C. CAMPAIGN — Democratic presidential hopeful Albert Gore of Tennessee is greeted at the Statesville airport Thursday by former N.C. Gov. Jim Hunt. Gore, during his campaign stopover, said he expects a major battle in the South between himself and fellow contender the Rev. Jesse Jackson. (AP Laserphoto)

Gore Says South Has 2-Man Battle

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer
STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Presidential candidate Albert Gore Jr. says he expects the Rev. Jesse Jackson to be his major competitor in the Super Tuesday Democratic primary in the South, not Iowa caucuses winner Richard Gephardt. "Essentially, I think it will be a two-man race in the South," Gore said Thursday during a campaign stop in Statesville. Gore, who captured less than 1 percent of the vote in the Iowa caucuses, said the outcome was about what he expected after concentrating his campaign in the South. "It was a muddle with three bunched up and no clear outcome," he said after touring the Paola Yards Inc. mill. "Everyone was paying attention to the Republicans. "I think we might do better than expected in New Hampshire," the Tennessee senator said. "I plan to be one of the two leaders on Super Tuesday." Gore, who shunned the Iowa campaign, told reporters he felt the importance of the caucuses was "blown out of proportion." "When you go duck hunting, you go where the ducks are," he said. "When you're delegate hunting, you go where the delegates are." Gore noted that he has spent more time campaigning in North Carolina than all of his Democratic opponents combined. Gore also traveled to the dairy farm of Howard Stamey during his visit. There, he was given a tour of the barn and treated to a barbecue with about 200 supporters.

During a news conference in which he held onto the leash of a donkey, he poked fun at North Carolina Republican Party chairman Jack Hawke. One day earlier, Hawke described Gore as a liberal masquerading as a traditional Southern conservative.

"I heard a prominent Republican was talking about grits," he said as a supporter handed him a bowl of grits. "I also know he (Hawke) was raised in Pennsylvania. I brought these to show him what they are."

Jordan Says Jobs Bill May Be Delayed

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan has told a state panel a package of job-creation measures may have to wait until the 1989 session of the legislature, but funding for worker training programs is essential this year. Jordan, a Democrat running for governor, also asked the North Carolina Commission on Jobs and Economic Growth Thursday to support the centerpiece of his campaign platform — replacing the state Department of Commerce with a public-private partnership that would have jurisdiction over all state programs dealing with jobs and the state economy. Jordan's plan, which has been criticized by Republican Gov. Jim Martin, calls for the North Carolina Economic Development Corp. to be governed by a board of directors with the governor acting as chairman and chief executive officer. "I believe the corporation can serve as a catalyst for strengthening the state's economic development program in venture capital, in export and trade assistance, and in coordinating the variety of job training programs that are currently available," he said.

Jordan said legislative leaders want to keep the June session as short as possible and that there would be little time for complex or controversial issues. Because of that, he said, a package of bills for encouraging new jobs might have to wait until the next full-length sessions in 1989.

But he said funding of worker training programs could not wait until next year, noting that a legislative study committee is studying the issue and will report to the June session.

He asked the commission to assess programs in other states and decide how much money should be appropriated from interest earned on the state's Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund.

Patent

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — The Associated Press incorrectly reported Feb. 9 that Burroughs Wellcome applied for a patent on Sept. 17, 1987, for the AIDS-fighting compound AZT. The company applied for, and received, a patent for the use of the compounds in AIDS treatment, said spokeswoman Kathy Bartlett but the compound itself can't be patented. The patent application was made on Sept. 17, 1985, and the company began testing it in humans in July 1985.

Orion Air

RALEIGH (AP) — Orion Air Inc. has signed a $50 million-a-year contract to fly and maintain planes for Eastern Airlines, which has been involved in labor disputes with some of its unions. Under the three-year contract, Orion will hire 400 flight attendants, some from North Carolina, as well as 300 pilots and 100 mechanics from across the country, said Robert Bushman, president and chief executive officer of The Aviation Group, which owns Orion. That would represent about a tenth of Eastern's pilots and about 2 percent of its 13,000 mechanics. It would cover 26 jets, which represent about 10 percent of Eastern's fleet.

Finalists

RALEIGH (AP) — A presidential search committee meeting in St. Louis has named three finalists to succeed W. Randall Lolley as president of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary. The finalists named Thursday are the Rev. Paige Patterson, president of the Criswell Center for Biblical Studies in Dallas; the Rev. Charles Chaney, assistant to the chancellor and dean of the Redford School of Theology and Church Vocations at Southwest Baptist University in Bolivar, Mo.; and the Rev. Lewis Drummond, administrative director of the Billy Graham Center and Billy Graham professor of evangelism at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky.

Resignation

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — The dean of the School of Education and Human Development at Fayetteville State University has been asked to resign, a Fayetteville newspaper reported Thursday. Chancellor Vic Hackley advised Dean Willie Kimmons in a Feb. 8 letter that he had decided to seek new leadership for the School of Education at Fayetteville State University no later than the end of the current academic year, the Fayetteville Observer reported. Kimmons, who came to the school in 1986, last year became embroiled in controversy when it was revealed that one of his assistant deans had been convicted of murder in Virginia and was on parole while at FSU.

Stevens Suit

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Class action suits have been filed against five senior managers at J.P. Stevens Co., seeking to block a proposed $666.5 million leveraged buyout of the New York-based textile giant. The suits were filed Wednesday in Chancery Court of Delaware and the New York Supreme Court, a Stevens press release said. Stevens officials refused to identify who filed the suits or provide other details. Stevens is the fifth largest U.S. textile maker with $1.6 billion in 1987 sales. About 19,000 of Stevens' 24,000 workers are in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Dottie Martin Opens Session On Sexual Abuse Of Children

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — Sexual abuse of children is an ugly problem that is finally coming out of the closet and needs urgent attention, first lady Dottie Martin says.

"The problem is very real in North Carolina," Mrs. Martin said Thursday at the opening session of a conference at the University of North Carolina-Charlotte. "It's something you can't let go of once you finally get started working on it. "It's an ugly, ugly situation that nobody wants to think is right around the corner. But it is," she said.

Mrs. Martin has been active in the fight against sexual abuse of children for several years. She co-authored a report on victimization of children that was presented to her husband, Gov. Jim Martin, in September 1986.

The two-day conference, which is sponsored by the state Department of Human Services, is titled: "TEAMING for Children: The Multidisciplinary Response to the Sexual Victimization of Children." It is designed to benefit police, district attorneys, child protective service workers, school administrators and educators and other professionals likely to encounter sexually abused children.

A number of experts will lecture and conduct workshops. Some of them include Mary Ann Wycoff of the Police Foundation of Washington D.C.; Jane Burnley, director of the Office for Victims of Crime in the U.S. Justice Department; Joe Jackson, a detective in the Chapel Hill Police Department; Jane Thompson, an assistant North Carolina attorney general; and Ethel Amacher of the Rape and Sexual Abuse Center in Nashville, Tenn.

In her remarks to Thursday morning's opening session, Mrs. Martin said she believed a team approach using professionals from several specialties was the best way to approach the problem.

"This is a very complex problem," she said. "If we hope to make inroads we will have to take a multidisciplinary approach. "It's a very ugly problem," she said. "At times you have to struggle to keep yourself going."

Mrs. Martin said she has noticed a growing awareness across the state to the problem.

"At last it is coming out of the closet," she said. "These children are dependant and vulnerable. They need our advocacy, and the quicker the better."

Borrowing a phrase from the United Negro College Fund, the first lady said, "A child is a terrible thing to waste ... All of us need to be part of the solution."

Quake Causes One Death, Dozens Of Injuries

By GEORGE GARTIES
Associated Press Writer
WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) — A strong aftershock from last October's devastating earthquake rumbled across Southern California Thursday, injuring dozens, contributing to a heart-attack death and shattering glass and nerves.

"I'm ready to pack up and leave," said Marjorie Simons, a former Florida resident who was hospitalized for a cracked vertebra suffered in a fall during Thursday's quake, which measured 5.0 on the Richter scale.

"I can live through a hurricane — a hurricane there's warning and you can get up and leave. This you can't get away from," said Mrs. Simons, 64.

The quake struck at 7:25 a.m. and was centered in the Whittier Narrows area 15 miles east of downtown Los Angeles, said Jacquelyn Dreher, a spokeswoman for Pasadena's California Institute of Technology.

At least 31 people were hurt, officials said.

"You could really feel it swaying up here," said Thomas Mariner, a cook at Los Angeles City Hall. "The heat lamps swung back and forth and the plates rattled. But nothing fell and nothing broke."

Officials said the temblor was an unusually powerful aftershock of the Oct. 1 quake that measured 5.9 on the Richter scale and was followed by a 5.2 quake Oct. 4. Those two temblors caused $358 million in damage in Los Angeles and Orange counties and were blamed for at least seven deaths.

The area escaped relatively unscathed this time, although Whittier, which was hit hardest by the October quakes, again suffered the most damage.

Emergency workers reported broken windows, damaged chimneys, jammed phone lines, a number of minor injuries, and a brief power outage in the area.

Broken glass also was reported in the suburban communities of Montebello, Fullerton, Santa Ana and East Los Angeles.

At Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina, a 57-year-old man died after suffering a heart attack at his home during the quake, said spokeswoman Cathleen Rodman. Paramedics attributed his death to the temblor, she said.

Five others were treated for quake-related injuries at Queen of the Valley and released, another spokeswoman said.

At Whittier's Presbyterian Intercommunity Hospital 21 patients were treated for cuts, bruises and sprains, said spokeswoman Maria Adams. Two were treated for minor injuries at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and three were treated at hospitals in Anaheim, officials said.

In Los Angeles, fire trucks rolled through city neighborhoods from San Pedro to the San Fernando Valley after the quake but could find no damage or injuries.

"We did go into earthquake mode, which means we vacated the buildings and we surveyed the districts. Everything looked fine," said Assistant Chief Robert Ramirez.

People reported feeling the quake from points as far apart as Fallbrook in San Diego County to Lancaster in the Mojave Desert, 100 miles to the north. It also was reported in Redlands, some 70 miles east of Los Angeles, Malibu, 30 miles west of the coast, and Barstow, 90 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

The Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released by an earthquake as measured by the ground motion re-

Nofziger Loses His Argument White House Not Interested

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Jurors who convicted former presidential aide Lyn Nofziger of illegal lobbying say they didn't buy his argument that the White House had little interest in the multimillion-dollar military contracts he sought for clients.

Jurors interviewed after Thursday's verdict disagreed with the defense's technical argument that what Nofziger lobbied about was not of "direct and substantial interest" to the White House.

"Oh yes it was," said juror Leslie Charles. "Didn't Judge Flannery instruct us that it did not have to do with a broad topic such as poverty or welfare?"

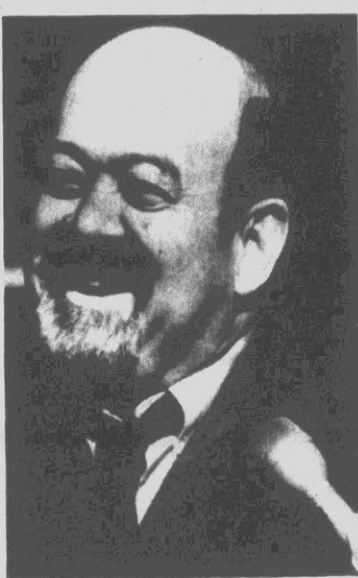

"It had to do with an A-10 bomber, it had to do with MEBA (the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association)," Ms. Charles said. "I don't think those are broad topics."

"The evidence just kept coming up all the time," foreman Towana Braxton said after the jury convicted Nofziger on three counts of illegally lobbying former White House colleagues within a year of leaving President Reagan's staff. Such contacts are prohibited by the Ethics in Government Act.

Nofziger was White House political director during the first year of Reagan's presidency, and then became a private lobbyist. He was found guilty of illegally pressing then-presidential counselor Edwin Meese III about a defense contract for Wedtech Corp.

Meese, now attorney general, testified that he couldn't recall receiving a memo from Nofziger about Wedtech.

Nofziger also was convicted of lobbying other presidential aides about continued production of the A-10 anti-tank plane for Fairchild Republic Corp., and a Navy policy favored by the marine engineers union.

LYN NOFZIGER

Each conviction carries a potential two-year sentence and a $10,000 fine. U.S. District Judge Thomas A. Flannery scheduled sentencing for March 25.

The jury acquitted Nofziger, 63, of a fourth count involving an alleged contact about Wedtech's ultimately successful quest for a $32 million non-competitive Army contract.

Nofziger's partner, Mark A. Bragg, was acquitted of a single aiding and abetting count arising from the same charge — that Nofziger sent a May 28, 1982 letter about Wedtech to deputy presidential adviser James E. Jenkins.

The defense denied that Nofziger signed the letter or knew anything about it, suggesting his signature was forged.

"There was not enough convincing or credible evidence" that Nofziger signed it, Ms. Braxton said.

Nofziger's lawyers conceded he made the other lobbying contacts but contended he was trying to create White House interest that wasn't there.

But prosecutors produced presidential directives about the A-10 and civilian manning of Navy support ships to document White House interest.

Army and Small Business Administration officials testified that without the pressure from Jenkins, Wedtech would not have received the contract to build small engines.

After the verdict, Nofziger said he would appeal and compared his actions to "running a stop sign."

"I feel that I am innocent," he said. "I don't think I did anything wrong."

But juror Herbert Robinson said he was swayed by testimony that the A-10 "was obsolete or useless."

Nofziger was "using his influence within a year after leaving" the White House to continue production of the anti-tank aircraft even though the Air Force was saying "we didn't need it," he said.

"That was paramount in my mind."

The definition of White House interest is expected to be a basis of Nofziger's appeal because he is the first former top government official to be convicted under the revolving-door provisions of the 1978 Ethics in Government Act.

Nofziger called the statute "a lousy law. It doesn't apply to Congress, it doesn't apply to the judiciary, it doesn't apply to those below a certain salary level" in the executive branch.

"All men are not created equal under that law," Nofziger said.

Hostages Escape When Car Wrecks

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — A fatal accident on a icy interstate slowed traffic to a crawl, giving two hostages the chance to escape their kidnapper, authorities said. A suspect was captured early today.

Larry F. Johnson, 43, who recently left a drug rehabilitation program and was wanted in five states, allegedly wrecked three stolen cars and took two other people hostage before being captured alone and on foot about 2 a.m., said state Trooper Jackie Strode, public information officer at the Bowling Green post.

The two other hostages escaped unharmed while pushing one of the commandeered cars from a ditch, he said.

Four counts of kidnapping and three of theft by unlawful taking were pending against Johnson this morning, said Strode.

The search for Johnson, described as armed and a martial arts expert, began after two people fled from a car Thursday afternoon during a traffic tie-up and told police they had been kidnapped.

A collision of several tractor-trailer trucks on snow-covered Interstate 65 about eight miles south of Bowling Green killed a 20-year-old woman whose car ran underneath one of the trucks.

It took rescue officials more than an hour to free the woman and her husband from the wreckage. The husband and two truck drivers were injured in the accident.

Storm Leaves 14 Inches Of Snow On Trail From Gulf To Michigan

By The Associated Press
A storm rolled northeast today after dumping up to 14 inches of snow from the Gulf Coast to Michigan and causing hundreds of traffic accidents and at least 11 deaths.

"As of this morning, the main center of the storm is over eastern Ohio and there is another one over southeastern Virginia," said Lyle Alexander, a meteorologist at the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

He said the two low-pressure systems would combine over northern New England tonight, dropping snow mostly in the mountains of New England, New York and Pennsylvania before moving over Canada on Saturday.

The storm, which began Wednesday in the Midwest, plunged into the Deep South, where temperatures were in the teens this morning. By Thursday night, up to 3 inches of snow, freezing rain and sleet had left roads slick and icy in northwest Alabama, closing schools today.

Subzero cold continued in Minnesota and Wisconsin, with a reading of 25 degrees below zero in Duluth, Minn. But the High Plains enjoyed a warming trend, with the temperature at Rapid City, S.D., rising from 25 degrees to 42 degrees in one hour late Thursday night.

It was even balmy on the West Coast, where many California cities enjoyed another day of record highs Thursday. San Juan Capistrano reached 88 degrees and the San Francisco area had readings in the mid-70s.

In the wake of the storm, however, forecasters said there would be blustery cold. "You've got your winds out of the northwest behind the low-pressure system, and that draws in the cold air," said Alexander.

Among those killed was a Kentucky woman who died when her southbound car ran underneath a tractor-trailer that had been hit head-on by a skidding truck south of Bowling Green, police said. Three others were injured in that crash.

Eleven inches of snow fell Thursday at Montpelier, in Ohio's northwest corner, as southeast Ohioans enjoyed temperatures in the 50s. But the storm moved slowly east across Ohio overnight, and forecasters said at least an inch of snow would drape the state today, with up to 5 inches in Cleveland.

Southeast lower Michigan had 6 to 8 inches of snow and Allentown, Pa., reported 6 inches of snow in 5 hours, including 2 inches in one hour.

Illinois had a chance to dig out today after two days of steady snow that snarled Chicago traffic, forced widespread school closings, and canceled many flights at O'Hare International Airport on Thursday. Snow totals included more than 9 inches in Moline, 7 inches in Peoria, and up to 14 inches in the Chicago suburbs.

More than 7 inches fell at Detroit and a like amount at Fort Wayne, Ind., which declared a snow emergency. Wichita Falls, Texas, got 3 inches of snow.

The storm left roads slippery and hazardous, particularly in unacclimated Southern cities such as Memphis, Tenn., which got 3 to 4 inches of snow Thursday, and Nashville, which had 1 inch.

"Basically the city's at a standstill," said Nashville police Lt. Jim

New Space Policy Adds Thrust To Civilian Roles

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's new national space policy is intended to put American business into orbit and U.S. astronauts on other planets beginning with Mars.

The policy, outlined Thursday by administration officials, calls for an initial $100 million federal investment to develop technology needed to mount expeditions to other planets in the solar system. It also envisions far more commercial activity in space and authorizes private rocket launches, once the province only of NASA.

James C. Fletcher, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Reagan's space policy adds "a major new thrust" to the civilian space effort.

"The policy clearly establishes that, for the first time, the United States has a long-range goal of expanding human presence and activity beyond Earth orbit and into the solar system," Fletcher said at a White House news conference.

The plan envisions creation of a scientific base on the moon around the year 2000 and a Mars mission in the early 21st century.

The policy also gives both the Department of Commerce and the Department of Transportation roles in the commercialization of space.

"It shifts the major responsibility for space development from public to the private sector," said Commerce Secretary C. William Verity.

Jim Burnley, the transportation secretary, said his department has approved the nation's first commercial launch license. The license will permit Conatec, Inc., a company based in Lanham, Md., to launch a series of sounding rockets from White Sands, N.M. for an unnamed European industrial company, Burnley said.

Fletcher said President Reagan also has re-emphasized his support for NASA's plan to build a permanent space station in orbit.

But the policy also obligates the space agency to lease up to 70 percent of a space module that will be developed by private industry. Fletcher had said previously that NASA had no need for the module, and some in the space agency feared that it would drain money from the space station project.

Fletcher said Thursday that, although NASA would be obligated to spend up to $140 million a year to lease room on the privately owned module, the money is to be an "add-on" and not part of NASA's planned budget.

In the budget proposal he will make to Congress next week, the president plans to ask for $1 billion for the space station. NASA had asked for nearly twice that much.

Fletcher said he expects to complete a contract within 150 days to lease space aboard a commercially developed space module, which will be carried into space by NASA's shuttle. Fletcher said there will be open competition for the contract.

Space Industries Inc. of Houston has a long-standing agreement with NASA for launch of an "Industrial Space Facility" and is thought to be a leading candidate for the module contract. Before the 1986 Challenger accident that grounded the shuttle fleet, NASA had agreed to place a Space Industries module into orbit.

For fiscal 1989, the administration has requested $11.3 billion for NASA, up from about $9 billion this year. The figure includes money for "Project Pathfinder," which is to study technology for establishing a scientific base on the moon, perhaps about the year 2000, and for dispatching a manned mission to Mars early in the 21st century.

Three Educators Wounded As Student Starts Shooting

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer

PINELLAS PARK, Fla. (AP) — A school administrator was in critical condition today after a 15-year-old student shot him in the head and wounded two other educators during a scuffle in a packed cafeteria, police said.

About 500 Pinellas Park High School students toppled tables for protection, ran for cover and hid in classrooms when the shots rang out in their cafeteria Thursday, but none were hit.

Jason Harless, who came to school packing a .38-caliber pistol, was shot in the shoulder by police as he tried to flee, authorities said. A similarly armed friend fled without firing a shot, but was arrested later at a friend's house, police said.

"It was weird, chaos," said Jeff Oliver, a 15-year-old student who was in the cafeteria when the bullets started flying. "People were crying and shaking. I was shaking. It was terrible."

Assistant Principal Richard Allen, 33, shot in the head at point-blank range, remained in critical condition today at Bayfront Medical Center in St. Petersburg, said nursing supervisor Gayle Hogan.

Nancy Blackwelder, 35, another assistant principal, was wounded in the abdomen and right arm. She was in serious but stable condition after surgery at Humana Hospital Northside, said a nursing supervisor who refused to give her name.

Student teacher Joseph Bloznalis, 22, grazed in the leg by a bullet, was treated at Humana Northside and released.

Harless was charged with five counts of attempted murder and one count of armed burglary, police said. He was treated by paramedics before being taken Thursday night to the Pinellas County Juvenile Detention Center.

His friend, 15-year-old Jason McCoy, was booked at the detention center on three counts of attempted murder and one count of armed burglary.

Harless had received a three-day suspension Wednesday for cursing a teacher, a punishment given final approval by Ms. Blackwelder, police said. McCoy had been living with Harless' family since summer.

Police and students said Harless and McCoy came to school armed with .38-caliber revolvers apparently stolen from a neighbor's home. When school officials spotted the suspended teen, they called Pinellas Park police with a trespassing complaint. Both teens were later confronted in the cafeteria.

A brief struggle ensued. Bloznalis grabbed one of the boys and Ms. Blackwelder grabbed another. As Allen approached, he was shot in the head, witnesses said.

"We were eating and we heard a gunshot, and everybody in the lunchroom started running," said Missy Benedetti, 17. "Mr. Allen was lying bleeding on the floor."

Harless and McCoy fled out the school's front door just as police were arriving. When Harless raised his gun to fire at officers, they fired, clipping his shoulder and capturing him.

Classmates, neighbors and family could offer no explanation for the shootings.

"He is way off in another world," McCoy's stepfather, Mike Scott, said after talking briefly to the youth. "I think it was on an impulse."

Record Exports Cut Into U.S. Trade Deficit

By TOM RAUM
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit narrowed to $12.2 billion in December, the smallest gap since January, as exports hit a record, the Commerce Department said today.

For the year, the trade deficit widened to $171.2 billion, the largest ever. But financial markets were expected to pay more attention to the December numbers, which came two months after the Oct. 19 stock market crash.

December's merchandise trade deficit of $12.2 billion was an improvement from the $13.2 billion gap posted in November.

December's deficit, the smallest since January's $11.9 billion shortfall, was paced by a record $24.8 billion in exports, a 4.2 percent improvement over November. November's gain had also resulted from surging exports.

Imports, meanwhile, were at $37 billion in December, the same level as in the previous month.

Still, for the year, the difference between what the United States imported and what it exported soared 9.6 percent from the previous record deficit of $156.2 billion in 1986.

For all of 1987, imports totaled $424.1 billion and exports totaled $252.9 billion — up from imports of $383 billion and exports of $226.8 billion in 1986.

The Reagan administration was

LONDON (AP) — The dollar surged in Europe today on news of a sharp improvement in U.S. trade performance in December.

Gold bullion prices also advanced.

The dollar rose above 130 Japanese yen for the first time since mid-December, trading at 131.15 yen — up from 129.95 yen earlier in Tokyo and from 129.03 yen on Wednesday. Tokyo markets were closed Thursday for a national holiday.

The British pound sank to $1.7365, down from $1.7565 earlier in the day and $1.7595 late Thursday.

Gold bullion rose to a bid price of $445.25 a troy ounce in London, up from the morning fixing of $440.30 and late Thursday's $441.50.

quick to hail the new numbers. Trade Representative Clayton K. Yeutter said the drop in the deficit "is good news, particularly since this is the second straight monthly decline. ... We hope this is a sign that there are better days ahead on the trade front."

Jay Goldinger, economist for Cantor, Fitzgerald, a Los Angeles bond brokerage, said the trade figures demonstrate "we are in the middle of a major change in course" on the balance-of-trade.

"But it's a big ship. And you don't turn it on a dime. But at least we know we're headed home," Goldinger said.

Exports have been climbing in recent months under pressure from a weaker dollar — which makes U.S. goods more competitive abroad while driving up the price of imports.

Government and private economists have suggested that an export boom could be the major factor in finally bringing down the trade deficit, which has been increasing steadily since the late 1970s.

The United States continued to run its largest deficit with Japan — $59.8 billion in 1987, up from $58.6 billion in 1986.

The deficit with Western Europe, however, narrowed to $30.2 billion from $32.7 billion. The deficit with Taiwan increased to $19.0 billion from $15.7 billion. And with Canada, it was down to $11.7 billion from $13.2 billion.

The deficit with South Korea in 1987 was $9.9 billion, up from $7.1 billion in 1986. With Hong Kong, it was up to $6.5 billion from $6.4 billion. And with Mexico, the U.S. trade shortfall rose to $5.9 billion from $5.2 billion in 1986.

For December alone, the trade deficit with Japan was $4.8 billion, about the same as November; with Western Europe, $2.7 billion, up from $2.4 billion; with Canada, $632.8 million, down from $1.3 billion; with Taiwan, $1.1 billion, down from $1.2 billion; with South Korea, $762.8 million, up from $760.2 million.

Imports for all of 1987 were up 10.7 percent while exports rose 11.5 percent. That compares to an 8.7 percent rise in imports in 1986 and only a 3.7 percent rise in exports.

For the full year, imports of manufactured goods rose to $325.2 billion, from $293.8 billion. Oil imports surged to $44.8 billion from $37.6 billion.

Meanwhile, exports of U.S. manufactured goods were up to $171.5 billion, from $148.7 billion in 1986.

In agricultural goods, one of the few categories where the United States maintained a trade surplus, exports were up to $28.6 billion from $26.1 billion in 1987.

New car imports from Japan were $2.0 billion in December, the same level as in November. For the year, car imports from Japan totaled $22.2 billion, up slightly from $22.0 billion in 1986.

New auto imports from Canada were $1.0 billion in December, down from $1.2 billion in November — and $10.2 billion for the year, down from $11.8 billion in 1986.

From other countries, auto imports were $1.6 billion, up from $1.5 billion in November — and $16.8 billion for all of 1987, up from $12.7 billion.

The monthly trade figures — which government analysts caution can be misleading because they are not adjusted for either seasonal factors or inflation — have become one of the most closely watched set of government statistics by financial markets.

In fact, the task force appointed by President Reagan to study the market collapse identified a weaker-than-expected trade report released in early October as one factor triggering the 508-point stock price plunge.

A weaker dollar can help ease the U.S. trade deficit by making imports more expensive and U.S. goods more competitive abroad. But reports of a smaller trade deficit tend to raise the value of the dollar — which in turn can cause the deficit to widen.

The Reagan administration in past months has joined with its major economic allies in seeking a stable dollar against other key currencies. Too rapid a fall in the value of the dollar can produce inflation.

The dollar has fallen 50 percent since mid-1985 against the Japanese yen and key European currencies.

Study Shows More People Finding Their Future Mates At The Office

By PHYLLIS MESSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — More and more people who work in offices are bringing home a mate as well as a paycheck, according to a new study that also finds some managerial headaches associated with 9-to-5 romances, a new study says.

"It is now more likely that future spouses will meet at work than at school, social or neighborhood settings," says one of the research reports quoted in the study by the Bureau of National Affairs, a private publisher based in Washington.

The study, "Corporate Affairs: Nepotism, Office Romance and Sexual Harassment," said romance in the work place emerged as an issue after women began to enter the work force in large numbers in the 1970s. The percentage of females who work increased from 34.8 percent in 1960 to 54.7 percent in 1986, Commerce Department figures show.

Office romances also have become more common as the average age of first marriage increases and the number of divorces and remarriages rises, the study says.

And what better place to get to know someone?

"If you work with someone, you can see what kind of person he is," said Sarah Crim, principal researcher for the study. "Does he have a messy desk? Does he easily become angry at meetings? Does he come to work on time and work late? You find out a lot more about a person at work than if you go to a party, where you'll just get a superficial impression."

In compiling the report, Ms. Crim said, she consulted a panel of nine people who have dealt with the issue. The nine agreed that not every office romance is disruptive and some even felt that a romance between co-workers can be positive because people in love are happy to go to work and are not rushing out the door to get ready for a date.

However, nearly all the experts felt office romances can be bad for the work place if one of the people involved in the affair ranks higher than the other. The experts found that the co-workers of those involved in the affair often have negative perceptions or jealousy.

Most corporations do not have formal policies discouraging romances between employees, although some do have policies against married couples working together, the study said.

The report, which offered no recommendations to employers, found that rules adopted in the 1950s and early 1960s to prevent the hiring of incompetent male relatives of male employees are being applied to married couples.

Those rules are being used when one spouse seeks a job where the other works or a married couple applies for jobs with the same company.

The report also found that "although sexual harassment has existed in the work place ever since persons of opposite sexes came into contact there, it did not become a subject of judicial interest" until about 15 years ago. That was when women realized they could use Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 as a remedy, the study said.

But, the report said, sexual harassment remains difficult to stop because it is hard to define.

Teen Apologizes, Draws Prison Term

NEW YORK (AP) — The last of the three teen-agers convicted of manslaughter in the Howard Beach racial attack case apologized to the victim's mother and was sentenced to five to 15 years in prison.

The sentence given Jason Ladone Thursday was the lightest of the three. Jon Lester had received 10 to 30 years and Scott Kern six to 18 years from Justice Thomas Demakos, who had noted a lack of remorse in Lester and Kern.

On Dec. 20, 1986, a gang of whites attacked a group of blacks in the predominantly white Howard Beach section of Queens. Michael Griffith, a 23-year-old black man, was chased to a freeway, where a car struck and killed him.

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Griffith, for your senseless loss," Ladone said Thursday, referring to Griffith's mother, Jean Griffith, who was sitting in the courtroom.

"I'm sorry, Mom and Dad, that your lives and hopes have been so violently turned around," the 17-year-old Ladone said, reading from a piece of paper.

Ladone was also convicted of assault in the beating of Cedric Sandiford, 37, one of Griffith's companions that night. Ladone received consecutive terms of 2½ to 7½ years on each of the felonies.

The lawyer had pleaded with Demakos to treat his client as a youthful offender, saying the crimes occurred only 5½ weeks after Ladone turned 16.

"During the trial the judge was the chief prosecutor and now he's the chief persecutor," Rubinstein said.

Ladone was applauded by supporters as he left the courtroom, an act which drew criticism from Mrs. Griffith.

"My son is dead," she said. "That night, when all this was happening, it was fun for them. They didn't care."

The Rev. Herbert Daughtry, a black activist who accompanied Mrs. Griffith, said he hoped the punishment would be a deterrent.

"I don't think the sentence equaled the crime," Daughtry added.

Ladone, who had been free on $50,000 bail, was jailed after sentencing, but released later Thursday after Justice Richard A. Brown of the Appellate Division set Ladone's bail at $150,000 pending an appeal. The family posted the bail using collateral, including his mother's home.

Kern, 19, who was sentenced last week, was granted bail Wednesday and returned home after his family posted a $300,000 bond. Lester, 18, already imprisoned on an unrelated gun charge before the three-month trial that ended in December, is serving time at Attica state prison.

A fourth defendant, tried with Ladone, Kern and Lester, was acquitted. Seven others await trial on lesser charges.

PROTESTERS — Palestinian demonstrators throw rocks at an approaching army vehicle and a passenger bus as black smoke rises behind the bus from a burning tire in Ramallah, on the Occupied West Bank on Thursday.

Two Palestinian Protesters Killed By Israeli Gunfire

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli soldiers opened fire on Palestinian demonstrators in the West Bank city of Nablus today, killing two and wounding 10, a hospital official and an Arab news report said.

An army spokeswoman said the report was being checked.

Reached by telephone, a staff member who answered the telephone at Al Ittihad Hospital said shots were fired inside the hospital compound. The official declined to identify himself.

The Palestine Press Service, an Arab-run news agency based in Jerusalem, said the shootings occurred during a demonstration outside the Grand Mosque after noon prayers on the Moslem Sabbath.

The agency said soldiers later entered the Al Ittihad Hospital, arrested three of the wounded and struck doctors and nurses with clubs.

It said one of the victims was a 12-year-old boy who was shot in the head, but gave no name. The second victim was identified as Bashar Al Masri, 17, who the agency said was shot in the chest.

The army command also said today that a 20-year-old Palestinian was fatally wounded when a soldier slipped and fell, setting off his rifle. A spokesman said the soldier's conduct was being investigated.

The shooting occurred Thursday in the West Bank refugee camp of Tulkarem, 38 miles northeast of Jerusalem, after a protest erupted when soldiers carried out a nighttime raid to arrest agitators, the army spokesman said.

Before today's clashes, U.N. officials said 52 Arabs had been killed since anti-occupation unrest began Dec. 8 in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

In Jerusalem, 5,000 Arabs gathered for noon prayers on the Moslem Sabbath today, and reporters saw police arrest two youths, one for carrying a slingshot and the other for waving a Palestinian flag.

About 100 Palestinian teen-agers and some women waved their fists and shout "Allahu Akbar," or God is Great, as they emerged from the silver-domed Al Aqsa mosque. They briefly unfurled a Palestinian flag, while others wrapped their faces in masks of red, white, green and black, the colors of the Palestinian flag.

In his sermon, the prayer leader attacked U.S. policy, saying "the main enemy of the Moslems and the Palestinian people is the United States, because it supports Israel and denies Palestinian self-determination."

The upsurge of violence came as Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres argued today over a U.S. peace initiative calling for Palestinian self-rule in the occupied lands.

In stinging criticism of his political rival, Shamir told Israel radio that Peres had "surrendered everything" and undercut his bargaining power by leaking details of the U.S. proposals.

"Every expression of cooperation on my part is thrown in my face immediately. I show Mr. Peres a letter and after a few hours it is in the hands of all the reporters," said Shamir.

"You can't conduct negotiations and certainly not achieve peace by announcing every day that you're ready to accept everything," Shamir added.

Shamir, leader of the right-wing Likud Bloc, charged that the Arabs want Israel to give up all its land, not just the territories seized in the 1967 Middle East war — the West Bank, Gaza Strip and east Jerusalem.

He said Peres was giving the Arabs the impression "that the Jews are surrendering."

European Leaders Deadlock Over Cure For Farm Crisis

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Leaders of the 12-nation European Economic Community today deadlocked five minutes after resuming talks in an emergency summit to resolve the trading bloc's financial crisis.

The summit, which began Thursday and was scheduled to run two days, abruptly adjourned after France and Germany threw out proposals for relatively stringent curbs on the EEC's runaway farm spending.

France, seeking less painful measures for its farmers as the spring presidential election looms, declared it could yield no more. British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Dutch Premier Ruud Lubbers held out for austerity.

Through most of the morning, the leaders sat around in groups with their foreign ministers in the main conference room at EEC headquarters, chatting informally while the summit stalled.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, striving to head off a third successive EEC summit failure in eight months, met separately with several of the prime ministers, including Lubbers, France's Jacques Chirac, and Spain's Felipe Gonzalez.

"On the steep and difficult climb toward the summit there is a dense fog and some people have lost their way," West German government spokesman Friedhelm Ost told reporters.

He said Kohl wanted "a success, but not a success at any price."

Earlier, French agriculture minister Francois Guillaume, said in a French radio interview that "France has no more to give on the agriculture issue."

"When you reach a certain moment, you have to know how to say no," said Guillaume.

Dutch spokesman Nic-Jan Jonker told reporters, "It is wrong to assume that the Netherlands will give in."

In Paris, angry farmers today plowed furrows in the Champ de Mars, a park near the Eiffel Tower, to protest some EEC members' proposals for cuts in farm spending.

About 50 people participated in the demonstration. They dug several furrows, then left peacefully when police arrived shortly after noon.

European leaders argued late into the night Thursday in an effort to reach agreement on a number of issues. Kohl urged them to forget their national interests, saying, "National go-it-alone policies are doomed to fail now."

The Common Market members are grappling with these interrelated issues:

—Curbing agriculture spending that totaled $33.8 billion last year, or two-thirds of the total EEC budget.

—Raising funds for regional development in the EEC's poorest areas of Spain, Portugal, Greece and Ireland.

—Devising a new EEC funding formula based on the relative wealth of each member state, which now contribute 1.4 percent of their sales taxes.

Two previous summits failed to produce agreement on any of these issues. Lacking a 1988 budget, the Community is now operating at last year's funding levels.

Britain and the Netherlands want the EEC's farm spending to be raised by $625,000 in 1988. France and West Germany, both with politically powerful farming lobbies, have sought an increase of $3.1 billion.

France also wants production of cereals, a commodity already in gross oversupply, to be held at 160 million tons annually, as opposed to 155 million tons as demanded by the Dutch and the British.

"If we accede to the French, we face severe trade problems (with the United States and other producers). It is not a budgetary issue," Dutch Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek told reporters after the summit's first day.

But France joined the rich northern countries to defeat proposals for nearly doubling the $8.8 billion allowance for regional development. Britain and other northern nations seek an increase of just 50 percent.

Iranian 'Copter Damages Tanker

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — An Iranian helicopter attacked a Danish supertanker in the Persian Gulf at dawn today, setting it ablaze, killing a crew member and wounding three others, shipping executives said.

Iraqi warplanes raided a tanker in Iranian oil shipping lanes, a Baghdad war communication said. There was no independent confirmation of the raid.

The Iraqi News Agency quoted a military spokesman as saying the warplanes attacked a "very large maritime target" near the Iranian coast at 11:05 p.m. Thursday, scoring an "accurate and effective hit."

The strike was in pursuit of Baghdad's avowed policy "to strip the Iranian regime of the economic resources that help it continue its aggression against Iraq," said the unidentified spokesman. The report was monitored in Cyprus.

Shipping executives said the 339,000-ton Kate Maersk may have suffered some engine room damage. One source said the ship was left "dead in the water." Salvage tugboats rushed to help.

Palle Genckel, spokesman for the operating company A.P. Moller, told The Associated Press in Copenhagen that the seaman killed was a 26-year-old radio operator, Jan Michael Fabrin.

Genckel identified those injured as second officer Carsten Andersen, 24, machinist Alfred Schmidt, 26, and sailor Poul Egon Pedersen, 46. All are Danes.

Helicopters airlifted the injured to the southern gulf port of Dubai, the sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

An Associated Press stringer and an NBC News crew in Dubai said two of the three injured were rushed to the Intensive Care Unit at Al-Rashid Hospital. One of the reporters said he could see they were badly burned and unconscious.

Genckel confirmed the supertanker had picked up a full load of crude oil at the Saudi Arabian terminal of Ras Tanura and was on its way out of the gulf when the attack took place.

He said the attack occurred about 130 miles west of Dubai, and a small fire that erupted after the raid was extinguished by the crew. The tanker was under tow by mid-morning en route to the Dubai repair yard.

The shipping executives said the helicopter apparently came out of the Iranian offshore oil fields of Sassan and struck at 4 a.m.

It was Iran's eighth attack on a neutral merchant vessel this month and the second in as many days.

Shultz To Promote Talks In Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz announced today he will go to the Middle East in what a U.S. official said would be an effort to promote negotiations between Israel and Jordan on Palestinian self-rule.

State Department spokesman Ben Justesen said Shultz would leave about Feb. 24 "for the purpose of advancing the Middle East peace process."

The visit is designed to demonstrate a commitment to aiding the 1.5 million Arab Palestinians who live on the West Bank and in Gaza and to ending violence in the Israeli-held territories, said an official Thursday night, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Shultz intends to make the trip a brief one, planning stops in Israel, Jordan and probably Egypt. The trip would follow talks in Moscow Feb. 21-23.

After the Middle East trip, Shultz will return to Washington to help President Reagan prepare for a summit meeting with West European leaders in Brussels beginning March 2.

The official cautioned against reports that Shultz would try to set up an international peace conference, an idea which has drawn objections from Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

On his last visit to the region last October, Shultz said he understood why Shamir would be reluctant to hold negotiations in a way that gave the Soviet Union a chance to play an influential role.

The Soviets generally side with the Arabs in their dispute with Israel and do not have diplomatic relations with Jerusalem.

The trip would be so short Shultz would not have time to try to shuttle back and forth between the Israeli capital and Amman, Jordan, to narrow differences between Shamir and King Hussein.

But there would be enough time to seek their consent for direct talks. One option under consideration is inviting them to Washington to negotiate here.

Shamir already has accepted an invitation from Reagan to visit Washington on March 16.

Martin Hospital Receives Grant

WILLIAMSTON- The Duke Endowment has agreed to grant $150,000 to the Martin General Hospital's current renovation and expansion program.

The money will be used for the modernization and renovation of the medical arts building which houses physicians' offices, hospital administrator George Brandt said.

The hospital's board of directors applied for the grant last year after learning planned improvements for the medical arts building could not be covered under the $1.5 million bond referendum passed by the county in 1986.

General obligation bonds cover only non-profit, non-taxable entities, and physicians are considered private business.

Brandt noted the endowment has provided nearly $500,000 to Martin General since 1951, $230,000 since he became administrator in 1985.

Recent grants from the endowment include $40,000 for surgery renovation and $40,000 to help establish the hospital's Oak City satellite.

West Helps Fund Bibles For China's Resurging Church

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Now rolling off the press in Communist China, where Christianity is regarded as displaying about the fastest growth in the world.

Church life there, which emerged in surprising dimensions after years of suppression and seeming extinction, has a new, steady source of Scriptures, hymnals and other religious literature.

The Amity Foundation printing plant, built in Nanking with $7.1 million from Bible societies around the world and dedicated in December, has a capacity of about 750,000 volumes annually.

They are being distributed to churches whose modern resurgence "has been a marvelous, completely unexpected gift of the Holy Spirit," says the Rev. John D. Erickson, general secretary of the American Bible Society.

"It's just a modern miracle," he said in an interview. "There's no other explanation for it. It's evidence of God's promise to be with his people whatever the circumstances."

Erickson, who has made a half dozen recent trips to China, including dedication of the new printing facilities, said the vastly expanded church life began appearing about a decade ago, after having seemed obliterated.

That had been during the so-called "cultural revolution" of 1966-76, a reign of terror when Bibles were burned, clergy imprisoned or put in labor camps, and the last vestiges of churches converted to warehouses or factories.

While there were about 4 million Christians in China when the Communists took over in 1949 - about 3.3 million Catholics and 750,000 Protestants - estimates of the total now range up to 75 million.

The church's survival "gives us ground to think that Christianity is not likely to be displaced by forces hostile to it," says Bishop K. H. Ting, head of the China Christian Council.

It includes all Chinese Protestants in what is called a post-denominational church, uniting various traditions and styles. Ting estimates Protestants now number about 4 million, a fivefold increase under Communist rule.

His figures likely reflect government policy. Others put the total much higher.

During the suppression, Ting told a recent Lutheran meeting in Denmark, church organizations disappeared and "we didn't know what was going on... Later I came to learn that Christians were meeting in homes all over China."

It turned out that without buildings, "the church can exist in all sorts of places wherever Jesus is with his disciples," he said.

An international church statistician, the Rev. David Barrett, says his studies indicate China now has 21.5 million baptized adults, and a total Christian community of 52 million, counting children - a more moderate figure than some estimates.

Barrett, editor of the World Christian Encyclopedia, now serving as a consultant to the Southern Baptist Foreign Missions Board, says China has had the "fastest-expanding church growth ever."

Ting says 5,000 Protestant churches have been reopened for public worship, with new ones opening at a rate of one per day, plus "tens of thousands of groups meeting in homes."

Additionally, about 2,000 Catholic churches have reopened, coordinated through the Chinese Catholic Patriotic Association. It shuns ties with the Vatican, emphasizing - like Protestants - indigenous Christianity.

Ting says Chinese churches had managed to get 2 million Bibles printed since 1980, but the new plant would provide a continuing, growing supply of Scriptures and other needed materials.

The plant was established through the social service Amity Foundation, established as a channel for Western assistance, since Chinese churches are keenly wary of any hint of past foreign financing or control.

Ting credits growth of Chinese Christianity to its "three-self movement" - self-governing, self-supporting and self-propagating.

Overalls Firm Overhauls Kids' Fashions

By MARYANN MROWCA
Associated Press Writer
OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP) — In the brick building that serves as Oshkosh B'Gosh Inc. headquarters, a photo of a smiling 2-year-old clad in a pair of blue denim bib overalls tells the story.

Once known solely for its farmer's overalls, Oshkosh B'Gosh has sewn up a sizeable business with pint-sized fashions that quadrupled sales in five years. Now, the company is looking for ways to grow with children, who may not want to wear the same label proudly displayed by toddlers.

The company hired a new designer for older children's fashions and introduced a redesigned youthwear line last Christmas season that the company said sold well in markets like Chicago, Boston, Los Angeles and New York.

The line trimmed the size of the trademark blue-and-white Oshkosh B'Gosh label and tucked it inside the older children's shirts so they wouldn't have to wear the name on their sleeve like toddlers do.

"Obviously, that's a fact of life that children age," Douglas W. Hyde, merchandising vice president, said in an interview. "Some buyers have said the Oshkosh name is so ingrained with baby clothes that older children won't want it."

The company is studying whether that may be true and has made growth of its youthwear line a priority second only to improving delivery and ordering systems that it has outgrown, Hyde said.

It hopes to boost sales of its girls' and boys' sizes 7-14 from about 12 million last year to $50 million by 1990, he said.

"I think growing with the children, following (them) down the pipeline is important," said Jay Van Cleave, an analyst with Robert W. Baird and Company in Milwaukee.

But he said the company, which saw its sales stretch from $47.5 million in 1981 to $198 million in 1986, still has a few more years of growth left from "the baby boom echo." In addition, it has a strong potential for growth in international markets, Van Cleave said.

According to his calculations, about 2 percent of Oshkosh B'Gosh's sales are through exports and Van Cleave said overseas markets want the clothes.

"I was in London recently ... and everyone wanted to talk about Oshkosh B'Gosh because they see their young princes wearing them and there is brand recognition for it," Van Cleave said.

But it wasn't always that way for the company, which began in 1895 as a regional manufacturer of overalls for farmers and railroad workers.

Children's clothing was "an afterthought kind of business" the company added to its staple work clothes around the 1940s so grandfathers could dress their grandsons in similar duds, Hyde said.

Children's clothing received a bit more attention after Miles Kimball, a local mail-order house, included a small pair of B'Gosh hickory stripe overalls in a 1968 national catalog.

But the clothes were scaled-down versions of the same dark brown, navy blue and rust-colored pants made for men, said Hyde, 37, who helped steer the company heavily into children's fashions.

"In those days, we couldn't afford other dyes," he recalled.

"Back then, we had one pair of bib overalls and they were unisex. Now, on any given season, we may have four, five or six boy's overalls as well as six or seven girl's overalls, not to mention pants, tops, jumpers, etc.," Hyde said.

In 1975, children's clothing accounted for 14 percent of the company's business. Last year, it accounted for 89 percent of the company's sales, said Mary Carter, a company spokeswoman.

Now, the children's clothes include bright pinks, yellows and blues. The jeans have elastic halfway around to help keep them on toddler waists. And the company makes tops with the same print bunny on the sleeve as is on a pair of pants. This year, it added country-style dresses for little girls.

"Our sales of Oshkosh have been very strong," said Pat Bartone, a buyer for Bloomingdale's in New York. "It's a very well-made garment."

Hyde, one of four family members holding top posts in the company, said the work clothes image has served the company, based in this city of about 50,000 in eastern Wisconsin, well.

"Still to this day, we try to use a little heavier denim than everybody else and try to put more stitches per inch," he said. "To this day, we probably overconstruct our products, but I think that's one of the reasons we've been successful."

The result may be a higher price, but the price gap between Oshkosh clothes and those of other companies that manufacture overseas has decreased as the U.S. dollar has fallen in the last two years, Van Cleave said.

"I think the one thing that has changed with Oshkosh since the early 80s is the company has made a concerted effort to control its growth," Van Cleave said. "The company could grow much more rapidly than they are."

Last year's sales and income figures won't be available until mid-February, but Van Cleave said he believed it was another strong year and he expected increased sales and earnings for the company in 1988.

The denim overall remains the company's No. 1 selling item and Oshkosh expects to sell 10 million pairs of bib overalls this year, Hyde said. But, the company's dependence on overalls has decreased as it has introduced other items, he said.

"If nobody wanted to dress their kids in bib overalls tomorrow, we wouldn't go out of business," he said.

EARLY AMERICAN

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Until at least the mid-19th century, bed and window curtains were designed to be both functional and decorative.

According to Country Home Magazine, studies made at Old Sturbridge Village, a living-history museum in Sturbridge, Mass., indicate that fewer than half the people in any rural New England town would have had curtains prior to the mid-1800s. However, anyone who was able to afford curtains cherished the warmth, color and design they could provide for a room.

Throughout the 18th and early 19th centuries, curtains were usually made in simple ways that required cutting the fabric in as frugal a manner as possible. The installations also were generally simple. Often, the fabric was nailed directly to the window frame.

Mrs. Gay Touched By Generosity

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Ask Brenda Gay if people are good-hearted. She will give you a resounding yes.

Mrs. Gay's co-workers at the district office of the Internal Revenue Service in Greensboro have proved to her the generosity of the human spirit. They have petitioned their employer, the federal government, to let them give her portions of their annual leave time. This will relieve her from losing so much pay from having to take time off while she undergoes kidney dialysis three times a week.

Each Tuesday and Thursday for five hours, she has to be out of work to undergo the hemodialysis treatment which cleanses her bloodstream of the impurities that build up because her own kidneys do not work and to keep a proper balance of fluids in her body. She also has hemodialysis at the Greensboro Kidney Center each Saturday. Last year, she had to use 77 unpaid days of work, mostly for dialysis, reducing her paycheck by about 25 percent.

Mrs. Gay, 38, is the daughter-in-law of Dannie Ruth Gay of Farmville. A Wilson County native and a graduate of Springfield High School in Lucama and A&T State University, she has been employed by the IRS for the past 10 years. She and her Farmville native husband, Herman, a lab technician at P. Lorillard Co. in Greensboro, have a 7-year-old son, Sheldon.

U.S. Rep. Howard Coble, at Mrs. Gay's co-workers' request, has put through Congress a private bill that will enable any of the taxpayer specialist's 800 IRS co-workers in North Carolina to give her annual leave time. As soon as guidelines come through from the Office of Personnel Management, the plan will become reality.

Mrs. Gay says she is touched by the effort of her co-workers. "To be ill is one thing, but to know you have that much support — from the people beside you to the district director — just makes you feel good," she said.

"Brenda is a very good employee," said Tita Wofford, staff assistant in taxpayer services. "She's soft and low-key with the public. She's an asset to the division."

Mrs. Gay is now out of work recuperating from gallstone removal surgery, but plans to go back to work next week.

The surgery her heart yearns for is a kidney transplant that, if successful, would eliminate the need for hemodialysis and, therefore, the need to be out of work so much. She has been a candidate for many months, but so far a donor organ that's a good match for her has not come through. Members of her family have been ruled out as donors. Her renal failure has been caused by an inherited hypertension condition and virtually everyone in her family suffers varying degrees of the same condition.

This is not the first time such an act of kindness has been legislated. IRS employees in Florida donated leave time to a co-worker with cancer after enabling legislation was put through by a Florida congressman. And similar arrangements have been worked out for donating to three other federal workers. Federal workers earn four weeks of annual vacation after three years of service and five weeks after 15 years. They can carry forward 240 hours from one year to the next.

Former First Ladies Open Atlanta Meet

By CAROLYN S. CARLSON
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Lady Bird Johnson and Rosalynn Carter, whose lives were dictated by their husbands' political ambitions, told some of America's leading women they hope their granddaughters will have greater opportunities.

"When I graduated from high school, I could have been a nurse, a secretary or a schoolteacher," Mrs. Carter, 60, recalled on the eve of today's national symposium on women and their role in developing the Constitution.

The two-day conference celebrating the 200th anniversary of the Constitution has attracted 1,500 participants, including female scholars and politicians from all 50 states and 10 foreign countries.

Among those expected to attend were Eleanor Smeal, former president of the National Organization for Women; Coretta Scott King, widow of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.; and Rosa Parks, whose refusal to sit in the segregated section of a Montgomery, Ala., bus sparked a protest that made civil rights history.

Mrs. Carter, who planned the symposium along with Mrs. Johnson and fellow former first ladies Betty Ford and Pat Nixon, said hundreds more applied to attend but were turned away because of space limitations.

In a round-table discussion at the Carter Presidential Center on Wednesday night, Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Johnson reminisced about their mutual fear of public speaking and how they persevered because their husbands needed their help in campaigns.

Mrs. Johnson, 76, said she graduated from college with a degree in journalism but never was a reporter because she married and immersed herself in her husband's political career.

"I was propelled by necessity and belief in my husband. He never seemed to have an easy campaign," she said. The camaraderie that developed in those campaigns "was an experience I cherish, but it was Lyndon's life, not mine."

After Johnson's death in 1973, she said, she was able to devote herself to her "long love affair with the physical country ... trying to encourage the use of wildflowers in the landscaping patterns of the land."

"I have six granddaughters, as well as a grandson," Mrs. Johnson

'Make A Valentine Call'

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: My, how time flies. St. Valentine's Day is just around the corner, and we just finished with Christmas. Well, be a sweetheart and call someone you love and say, "I love you." Make two or three calls. Who said you can't love more than one person — in different ways, of course?

Go through your closets and get rid of all those clothes you've been saving until you lose 10 pounds. Your favorite charity can turn those good-as-new garments into money.

Visit someone in a nursing home and take him or her for a ride. Forgive an enemy, hug your children, neuter your cat, spay your dog, listen to a bore, tell your parents you appreciate them, send a donation to the charity of your choice, fix up a date for someone who doesn't get many, quit smoking, get some exercise, count your calories, pay your dentist, donate some blood, return the book you borrowed, update your will, drive carefully, and if you're walking, thank God you're able to, and watch where you're going. And don't wait until next St. Valentine's Day to be a sweetheart again.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for eight years. We have two children — a beautiful 5-year-old boy and a newborn baby girl. My husband and I agree that our family is complete, but here's the problem:

I have been on the pill since the day we were married, and I think it's his turn to take the responsibility for limiting the size of our family. Abby, I have gone through enough carrying two babies for 18 months, enduring the pains of labor twice, and I want my husband to have a vasectomy so I won't have to worry about an unwanted pregnancy. He has absolutely refused to consider it!

Why can't he bear a 20-minute outpatient operation with a little discomfort for a day or two? I've tried to explain that there will be a tiny scar — not more than half an inch long — and a vasectomy would in no way diminish his precious masculinity if that's what he's worried about. I am very angry about his selfish, inconsiderate attitude. He's 28 and I'm 28. What do you think? — ANGRY

DEAR ANGRY: Don't judge your husband so harshly. We never know what tomorrow may bring. If, God forbid, you should lose one or both of your children, you might want another child. You may even change your mind about the size of your family later on.

But there are other options — for both men and women. Consult your physician for advice on other forms of birth control.

DEAR ABBY: Being the mother of three sons, I appreciate most sports, but baseball is my favorite. Abby, I do not understand why baseball managers and coaches need to wear baseball uniforms. I can understand that at one time they were probably players, but there is really no need for them to wear uniforms now.

There are several managers and coaches who look rather ridiculous with their potbellies hanging out. Of course, they wouldn't look a whole lot better in a three-piece suit. — BARBARA DELONG, OHIO

DEAR BARBARA: Obviously, baseball managers and coaches wear uniforms to identify them with their team. I don't know when or why this tradition began, but it makes sense to me. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: I'm 23 and have been dating the same man for eight years. We have decided to get married soon. The problem: My fiance has a group of buddies — most of them he has grown up with and they are very close. When one of these buddies gets married, they have a traditional bachelor party, including strippers.

I don't approve of this at all and asked my fiance how he felt about it, and he said he didn't care for that sort of thing either. When he told the organizer of this party that he didn't want strippers at the stag, he was told it wasn't up to him, it was up to the guys giving the party, and they wanted strippers.

One of the wives said it was no big deal, but I disagree. What's the solution? — PRUDE

DEAR PRUDE: Your fiance should inform his buddies that if they insist on having strippers, knowing how strongly he feels about it, they should not be surprised if he skips out when the strippers shimmy in.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with this guy for nearly a year. I like him a lot and he says he likes me, too, but every time I mention going steady, he says he needs more "space." What should I do? — DANGLING

DEAR DANGLING: Give him the air.

Engagement Announced

JACQUELINE ANNETTE HOLLIDAY — is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Holliday of Williamston, who announce her engagement to Jimmy Ray Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Arnold of Greenville. A March 5 wedding is planned.

said. "That's why I have an interest in what you are talking about here — the changing role of women. I want them to have just as many opportunities to grow and to contribute as my grandson will."

"I married a Navy man and expected to travel to all the ports in the world," added Mrs. Carter. "I had no idea I'd be doing what I did."

"I didn't have the opportunities that Amy has now," she said, referring to her 20-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Carter said public speaking, which she still does almost daily, was never something she wanted to do. She avoided speaking engagements when her husband first ran for governor of Georgia in 1966, but found she couldn't avoid them during his successful 1970 gubernatorial campaign.

"I gave speeches because I wanted my husband to be governor," she said.

Now, Mrs. Carter said, she speaks on subjects of interest to her, such as mental health, the Carter Presidential Center and its activities and Habitat for Humanity, a program that builds houses for the poor.

Asked what she wants for the future, Mrs. Carter replied, "I dream of the day the Equal Rights Amendment is already passed and we look back and say, 'Why did it take so long and why was it so much trouble?'"

Japanese Quilting Program Given

A program on the technique of Japanese quilting was given for the Greenville Quilters Guild last week. Sharon Lee of Raleigh was speaker.

Seventeen completed quilts have been given to the Ronald McDonald House.

A workshop on machine cutwork will be held at the Community Building Wednesday and will be conducted by Jennifer Amor of South Carolina. Kay Clemons is in charge of arrangements and registration. For further information call 756-5221.

A workshop on miniatures will be included in the program for the next meeting.

Cook turkey frozen in broth or gravy keeps up to six months. Use turkey frozen dry within one month.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose today in what analysts described as a muted response to news of a smaller U.S. trade deficit.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 15.91 to 1,977.45 by noon on Wall Street.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 2 to 1 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 856 up, 418 down and 522 unchanged.

Before the market opened the Commerce Department reported that the nation's trade deficit narrowed to $12.20 billion in December from $13.22 billion the month before.

The figure came in at the low end of analysts' estimates, and lent support to the growing belief that the international trade situation was improving. American exports set a record for the second straight month.

But analysts said traders in the stock and bond markets didn't see the news as purely positive.

Given the strength it showed in U.S. manufacturing, they said, the chances seemed less that the Federal Reserve might soon relax its credit policy further. Interest rates rose and prices declined in the credit markets.

Another apparent drag on the markets was the Labor Department's report that the producer price index of finished goods rose 0.4 percent in January, after falling about the same amount in December.

Gainers among the blue chips included International Business Machines, up 1 at 112 1/4; General Electric, up 1/2 at 43 1/4; Ford Motor, up 1/2 at 43 3/4, and Exxon, up 7/8 at 41 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks added .94 to 144.93. At the Market Value Exchange, the market value index was up 1.96 at 276.36.

Volume on the Big Board came to 113.17 million shares at noon, against 107.27 million at the same point Thursday.

Electrocuted
HAVELOCK, N.C. (AP) — A 25-year-old Swansboro man was electrocuted Wednesday in a construction accident at Cherry Point air station, according to a Cherry Point spokeswoman.

Annexations OK'd

Street. The section, located west of Hickory Street and stretching 925 feet, is adjacent to Methodist Retirement Homes Inc. In an additional action, council declared a public hearing on the closing of the street will be conducted March 10.

The council also adopted a resolution requesting the Pitt County Commissioners to appoint a representative to the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission, and approved a 2.6-acre annexation request of a lot in the Nina Tripp Heirs Division, located southwest of US 264 Business and Grace Avenue.

Meanwhile, the council approved a municipal agreement between the city and the state Department of Transportation for the planned widening of 14th Street south of Greenville Boulevard. It approved eight streets for permanent maintenance.

The council approved five budget-related ordinances, including amending the capital reserve fund to provide $75,000 for the acquisition of the Town Common Radio Tower, while reducing by the same amount the construction of a fire-rescue headquarters station.

Other approved budget ordinances were the appropriation of $18,750 for the down payment to acquire the radio tower, with three, additional annual installments of the same amount; amending the Water Fund Budget of the 1987-88 Greenville Utilities Budget Ordinance to reflect the purchase of a portion of the Bell Arthur water system; appropriating $30,550 in additional revenues received from donations and a grant for the Town Common Amphitheater Project, and the appropriation of $87,500 from the capital reserve for the city's share of the Airport Glide Slope Project.

The council unanimously approved the consent agenda which included provisions appointing a Greenville Utilities commissioner to the N.C. Eastern Municipal Power Agency; approving a contract with the Greenville Area Preservation Association for use of a copyright on the City's Historic Preservation Survey; passing an amendment to the city code regarding a lot cutting and cleaning procedure; adopting an optional relocation policy for use in the Community Development Block Grant Program; approving tax releases and refunds; approving a refund of a bid deposit, and approving the advertisement of delinquent city taxes.

Also at the meeting, Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce President Ed Walker submitted for the council's consideration a resolution that the chamber support the city in its efforts to revitalize downtown Greenville by encouraging downtown economic development.

Mayor Ed Carter began the council meeting by recognizing several city employees for outstanding service to the community.

Recognized were retired Street Superintendent Charles Roger Wainright, for 30 years of service; the family of the late Marvin Lee Cox, who retired as a supervisor after 17 years of service; Elmer Harrell, a retired transit driver who served the city for 10 years, and Thomas C. Reddick, who retired as a laborer after serving 10 years.

An executive session dealing with the acquisition of property was conducted after the meeting.

Council Again Delays Vote On Floral Shop Arguments

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

After listening to arguments concerning whether to allow flower shops as permitted uses in the MD-2 (medical) zoning district, the Greenville City Council agreed Thursday to delay a decision on the matter until the next council workshop session, scheduled for Feb. 22.

"I would like to have more time to look into this and evaluate both sides, I'm just not prepared to make a decision on this tonight," said council member Rufus Huggins after listening to approximately 30 minutes of arguments for and against the request.

The request, which has been up for consideration and continued four times since Oct. 8, is to amend sections 32-46 of the Zoning Ordinance to allow "Florist Shop" as a permitted use in the MD-2 zoning district. Currently, flower shops are allowed as special uses.

Originally, Clyde Simmons requested a special use permit from the Greenville Board of Adjustment to allow the flower shop to exist at a site near the hospital. That request was denied.

After being denied the special use permit from the Board of Adjustment, Simmons then went before the Planning and Zoning Commission, requesting to have floral shops allowed as permitted uses in the MD-2 zoning district.

The MD-2 zoning district was designated for directly medical related uses. The purpose of the district is to create areas in which hospitals, rehabilitation centers, medical offices and clinics may be compatibly mixed.

ECU Travels To Navy, American

East Carolina's Pirates, after snapping a six-game losing streak, take to the road for another pair of Colonial Athletic Association basketball games.

The Pirates will visit Navy's Halsey Field House on Saturday at 7:30 p.m., then visit American University's new Bender Arena on Monday.

The Bucs will be attempting to snap an unbroken Navy winning streak at home against East Carolina, and win their first of the year against American.

Navy comes into the game after winning their last games, including four in the conference. The Midshipmen opened the year with five straight league losses, including a 61-49 decision in Greenville against the Pirates. But since Jan. 27, they are unbeaten, including a 74-59 decision over then league-leading Richmond. The Middies downed William & Mary, 63-61, in overtime at Williamsburg, Va., on Wednesday in their last game.

East Carolina downed James Madison, 70-66, on Monday night to end their six-game tumble that included five straight league games. The Pirates, however, have never beaten Navy at Halsey in six previous visits, and has only two wins to post in 13 games between the two.

Reed Lose led the Pirates to victory in the first game of the year, hitting 17 while Gus Hill had 14 and Jeff Kelly scored a career-high 11. Byron Hopkins, a 6-9 sophomore center, was the only Middie in double figures with 14 as ECU held Navy to just 37 percent of their field goals.

Navy, 8-12, overall, is led by 6-4 senior guard Cliff Rees, scoring 14.2 points per game. Hopkins is at 10.9, while 6-5 sophomore Matt Nordmann rounds out those in double figures with a 10.6 average.

The other starters include 6-6 freshman forward Eddie Reddick (7.1 ppg) and 6-2 freshman guard Mel Davis (2.5 ppg). Reddick is the leading rebounder for the Middies at 6.7, while Nordmann is pulling 5.3 per game and Hopkins has a 5.2 average.

The Pirates may see the return of Jeff Kelly, who has been sidelined for the last week and a half with a shoulder injury sustained against Campbell on Feb. 1. Kelly missed the last two games and Terhern Harvey, a freshman, has started in his place.

American, meanwhile, upped its record to 10-12 overall and to 5-4 in the Colonial on Wednesday night when it handed Richmond its second straight CAA loss, 68-63 — on the Spiders' home court.

The Eagles, who will face UNC-Wilmington on Saturday at home, will be seeking their second win over the Pirates this winter. They won the earlier Greenville meeting, 75-69 in overtime after the Pirates failed to convert a free throw with one second left in regulation.

American holds a 5-3 lead in the series between the two schools.

The Eagles were led by 6-6 sophomore forward Daryl Holmes in their first meeting with ECU, as he scored 18 points and pulled seven rebounds. Mike Sampson, a 6-0 senior guard, added 14 while Dale Spears, a 6-3 junior, scored 11 off the bench.

Hill, who missed the one-and-one with a second left, led ECU with 25 points and had hit 13 of 14 free throws at that point.

The Eagles are led in scoring by Sampson with a 15.1 average, while Holmes is next at 10.3. Right behind is 6-4 sophomore guard Mike Sumner at 10.2.

The other starters are 6-1 freshman forward Brock Wortman (4.1 ppg) and 6-9 senior center Tom Scherer (3.5 ppg). Holmes is the leading rebounder at 6.1.

The Pirate scoring is led by Hill at 18.6, while Lose is next at 15.4.

The game will be only the third played this year in Bender Arena.

Coach Mike Steele says he thinks the win over JMU came at a key time for the Pirates. "(It) threw us right back into the hunt to start moving up the ladder. Navy has shown a great deal of character by bouncing back from a rough start and they feel like they can keep winning. We've definitely got our hands full on Saturday.

"American beat us in overtime after we had a chance to win in regulation from the free throw line... They have some very talented players in Sampson, Holmes and Spears. That will be a tough place to try and get a win."

Following this weekend's two games, the Pirates return home on Feb. 20 to host Richmond and will have only one road game left among their final four games, a CAA trip to William & Mary.

Duke, Heels Post Wins

By The Associated Press

Sixth-ranked North Carolina was under siege from a barrage of 3-pointers, but the Tar Heels found that layups were the best way to win a 75-73 victory over No. 16 North Carolina State in Chapel Hill.

Rodney Monroe hit three 3-pointers, and Chris Corchiani hit both of his long-range attempts to help bring the Wolfpack back from a 57-47 second half deficit.

But it was an errant pass that gave N.C. State an opportunity to tie the score at 67 and send the game into overtime. But once they got there, they couldn't stop the inside combination of forward J.R. Reid and center Scott Williams.

In the other Atlantic Coast Conference game, Duke reserve Phil Henderson scored 19 points to lead the eighth-ranked Blue Devils to an 98-67 victory over Wake Forest.

With 26 seconds left, Chucky Brown stole a Reid pass and Vinny Del Negro scored on an offensive rebound to send the game into overtime. But Reid redeemed himself by scoring four points in overtime, including the first basket.

"You can't make those dumb mistakes at the end and expect to be successful," Reid said.

Williams, who also scored four points in the extra period, punctuated the rally when freshman King Rice found him alone under the basket with 10 seconds left to give North Carolina a 75-71 lead.

"Anytime you have the ball and everybody's running at you, somebody's got to be wide open," Rice said.

It was a night of spurts for North Carolina. The Tar Heels outscored the Wolfpack 15-3 in the final eight minutes of the first half, coming back from a 32-19 deficit to pull within 35-34 on Kevin Madden's 3-point jump shot.

The comeback continued in the second half, as North Carolina grabbed a 57-47 lead with 7:58 left. But the momentum didn't last, as N.C. State chipped away with four 3-point jumpers in the final seven minutes.

"It was a heck of a comeback," said N.C. State coach Jim Valvano. "In overtime, we really had every opportunity to win. I think we had chances to take the lead and we didn't."

"Obviously, it was a heck of a ball game," he said. "It was a great one to win and an extra difficult one to lose."

Ranzino Smith and Steve Bucknall led North Carolina with 14 points each, and Reid and Williams added 13 for the Tar Heels, 17-3 and 6-2 in the ACC.

Monroe finished with 19 points and Del Negro added 16 for the Wolfpack, 15-5 and 5-3.

In Durham, Henderson hit 8 of 9 shots and 2 of 2 free throws in 22 minutes of playing time and helped fuel Duke's 74.2 percent shooting in the second half.

"The key word is opportunity," Henderson said. "I think everybody on the team at one time or another during the year is going to have an opportunity to excel. I took the opportunity tonight."

Wake Forest pulled to 26-20 with 9:17 left on a rebound basket by

Slingshot Fails In 125s

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla (AP) — The slingshot, that storied and ancient weapon of mankind, has apparently outlived its usefulness on the last battlefield where it was held in high esteem — the stock car superspeedway.

In racing, the slingshot is a maneuver in which drivers use a partial vacuum to gain the momentum necessary to pass another car. But it may have been rendered extinct Thursday by Bobby Allison and Darrell Waltrip.

At the Daytona International Speedway, where close races have traditionally been decided by a slingshot pass on the final lap, Waltrip and Allison had no problem holding leads that gave them victories in qualifying races for Sunday's $1.5 million Daytona 500.

"It didn't turn out the way I thought it would," Waltrip said after a nearly unprecedented wire-to-wire victory in the second of two 125-mile races. "Nobody even threatened me on the last lap."

Allison, who along with Waltrip won the fifth Daytona qualifier of his career, also was puzzled.

"It makes me wonder if anybody can pass the leader," said Allison, who in the first 50-lap qualifier led the last 31 trips around the 2.5-mile oval.

While the handling of their cars enabled them to dominate Thursday's races, a decision by NASCAR also may have contributed. The sanctioning body has mandated carburetor restrictions to slow the cars at Daytona and the track at Talladega, Ala.

The qualifying speed of Sunday's polesitter Ken Schrader — 193.823 mph — was nearly 17 mph slower than that of defending champion Bill Elliott, who started first a year ago.

Ironically, the slower pace was not a safer one. There were five accidents, including a massive pileup in the second race involving at least eight cars and causing two minor injuries.

Injured were J.D. McDuffie and Bobby Wawak, both listed in good condition at Halifax Medical Center. McDuffie suffered second-degree burns and Wawak a fractured vertebrae.

"The slower speeds have given us an element of danger," Allison said. "The guys feel more secure and that probably contributed to the things you saw out there today."

The significance of those mishaps also caught the attention of Waltrip.

"I'm going to try to lead from start to finish," he said of his strategy for the 500-miler. "Running out front is the safest place to be."

Waltrip also said he would not wait until the final lap to attempt to pass because, "If I can't do it, at least I'll have another chance."

Allison doubted that any pass could be made up front without a drafting partner.

"And passing in traffic is another serious concern," he said. "It disrupts the air around the car and makes it difficult."

Testimony to that was provided by Richard Petty and Cale Yarborough, who between them have won 10 Daytona 500s and an equal number of Winston Cup championships. Both spun in heavy traffic without making contact with another car.

"The air just made it take off," Petty said. "You can't control these things."

"The back end just came off going into turn one," Yarborough said.

As a result, Yarborough's Oldsmobile will start 10 spots from the rear of Sunday's 42-car field with Petty's Pontiac another four spots back.

Allison's victory in a Buick, at an average speed of 130.966, puts him third on the grid, immediately behind his son Davey.

Jones slides away. McDuffie received second degree burns on his hands during the mishap in the second 125-mile qualifying race Thursday for the Daytona 500. (AP Laserphoto)

Winter Olympics Begin Saturday In Calgary

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — The biggest, brashest, most expensive Winter Olympics ever is set to begin Saturday, holding the grim prospect for the United States of a wipeout on the slopes and shootouts on the ice for a tiny fistful of medals.

These Western style Games in a bustling oil and cow town on the edge of the Rockies open with an extravaganza featuring more than 1,600 athletes from 57 nations, a crowd of 60,000 and millions of television viewers.

That's the most skiers, skaters and sled riders, most countries and most fans that have gathered in the 64-year history of this quadrennial tribute to winter fun.

Even athletes from countries that have no winter are here, including Jamaica and the British Virgin Islands with bobsled teams, Guam and Fiji with biathletes, Puerto Rico and the Philippines with luge racers and the U.S. Virgin Islands with a luge racer and two bobsled teams.

Calgary, founded in 1875 by a detachment of scarlet-coated North West Mounted Police and grown now to a city of 647,000, spent more than $500 million on new and existing facilities as an expression of pride in holding the Olympics.

Most of that money was recovered with the richest television deal ever for the Winter Games, a $309 million sale of broadcasting rights to ABC-TV, which is showing about 90 hours of action.

These Games will set records for most tickets sold, more than 1.5 million, and most tickets unsold, nearly 300,000, and for most events, 46.

East Germany, the Soviet Union and Switzerland may win the most medals, Canada has a good chance of capturing the cherished hockey gold, but for the United States this could be its weakest showing.

If the United States wins as few as five medals overall, as many observers predict it will, it would be the worst American showing in the Winter Games. The United States won only four medals in the first Games in 1924 and the fourth Games in 1936, but the competition had far fewer competitors and events in those years. In 1924, 16 nations competed in 13 events. In 1936 there were 28 nations competing in 17 events.

The U.S. won eight medals at Sarajevo in 1984, when there were 40 events, and 12 medals at Lake Placid, N.Y., in 1980, when there were 39 events.

America's king and queen of figure skating, Brian Boitano and Debi Thomas, and speed skaters Bonnie Blair and Dan Jansen have the most realistic chances for medals on the U.S. team this year.

Thomas received plenty of good luck wishes from Americans at the airport upon her arrival Thursday but declined to speak with reporters.

Alex McGowan, her coach, did the talking.

Thomas, like Boitano, is in the process of fine-tuning her routines. She also had a session with ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov earlier this month. Baryshnikov helped Thomas with her choreography last summer.

Dissension already has destroyed some of the team spirit among the U.S. bobsledders and speed skaters.

The bobsled controversy may have been resolved Thursday, although hard feelings could persist. Willie Gault and Don LaVigne, once rivals for a spot on the squad, became teammates under a waiver granted by the International Olympic Committee that allowed the United States to add an extra bobsledder.

GGO Changes Date For Future

GREENSBORO (AP) — Two things have always plagued the Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament, and officials have taken one big step they hope will take care of both of them.

Because previous GGOs had been scheduled prior to the Masters, the field in recent years had lost some of its glamor as the so-called big names on the PGA Tour skipped Greensboro to head for practice rounds at Augusta National. Also, because the tournament was scheduled for the last weekend in March, the weather was always unpredictable.

Officials announced Thursday that, effective with the 1989 GGO, the 50-year-old tournament will move to April 20-23 and will be played at Forest Oaks Country Club, the current tournament site. Those dates — the latest staging ever of the GGO — will put the tournament immediately following the MCI Heritage Classic and two weeks after the Masters.

The Independent Insurance Agents Open, formerly the Houston Open, will take over the GGO's dates immediately preceding the Masters. ESPN is scheduled to provide coverage of the tournament this year, but officials also announced that CBS Sports has signed a three-year contract to televise the tournament starting in 1989.

"We have finally gotten the kind of exposure we wanted back in Greensboro," said 1988 GGO chairman Mike Solomon. "This has been a long time in coming. This is a big step for the tournament."

The tournament received a major boost late last year when the GGO secured K mart as a primary sponsor and the prize money was raised to $1 million.

The necessity of obtaining new dates was not so much a product of the GGO's positioning prior to the Masters as it was the often inclement weather that accompanied the tournament.

Regular purse increases during this decade, culminating in the $1 million payoff for 1988 made possible through K mart, have enabled the GGO to draw a competitive field. But the weather — which last year featured rain, snow and temperatures that never climbed above 50 — had become a definite disadvantage.

"The new date will be much more favorable in terms of the weather," Solomon said. "People have always told us that if it weren't for the weather, this could be one of the great events in golf but that we couldn't change that. Well, I'm here to tell you that we did."

Solomon said he expects the change will be very positive for both Greensboro and Houston.

"Believe it or not, it is a lot hotter (in Texas) in late April and the course is not in as good shape," Solomon said. "They were also opposite a major PGA seniors event called the Legends of Golf (played in Austin)."

ECU-Miami Date Changed To Oct. 29

East Carolina's football game with defending national champion Miami has been moved to Oct. 29, 1988, to allow the Hurricanes to appear in a television game. The date change will allow Miami to host defending national runner-up Florida State in a nationally televised meeting in early September. The ECU-Miami game, which was originally scheduled for Nov. 12, will be played at 1:30 p.m. on Oct. 29 at Ficklen Stadium.

ECU Inks Northern Nash's Tim Marshman

East Carolina University's added a 23rd signee to its football recruiting list Thursday. The newest recruit is Tim Marshman, a 5-10, 175-pound defensive back/quarterback from Northern Nash High School near Rocky Mount. He joins the 22 listed following the initial signing date on Wednesday. The Pirates may still sign a few more players, ECU football staff members said.

ECU Swimmers Dueling At CAA Event

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Three members of East Carolina's women swimming team won championships in the first day of competition at Colonial Athletic Association mens' and womens' swimming and diving championships at the U.S. Naval Academy Thursday. Patty Walsh finished first in the 500 freestyle with a time of 5:04.32. She set a new CAA and ECU varsity record with that time. Diver Sherry Campbell won the 3-meter diving title with a total score of 394. ECU's other champion was the 800 freestyle relay team of Ryan Philyaw, Leslie Wilson, Carolyn Green and Walsh, which recorded a time of 7:50.12. That set both a CAA and ECU varsity record. Navy's women lead the event after the first day with a total of 222. ECU is second with 205, followed by James Madison, 196; William and Mary, 158; UNC-Wilmington, 99; Richmond, 89, and American with 73. In the mens' competition, ECU's best finisher was Brian Kinsfield who took second in the 500 free style with a time of 4:35.4. Navy leads the mens' competition with 184 points. Second is JMU with 159, followed by ECU, 151; American, 98; Richmond, 95; William and Mary, 74, and UNC-Wilmington with 72. The meet runs through Saturday.

Lady Redskins Earn 45-32 Win

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Roanoke High School's girls got back on the winning track with a 45-32 victory over Roanoke Rapids Thursday night. Roanoke had been handed its first loss in the Northeastern Conference on Tuesday night by Plymouth.

Roanoke Rapids' boys rolled up a 56-43 win in their game.

Roanoke Rapids pushed out to a 13-10 lead in the opening period of the boys' game. They followed that up with a 17-10 margin in the second quarter, giving the Yellow Jackets a 30-20 lead to take into the dressing room.

The Redskins put on a small rally in the third quarter, 13-8, trimming the lead back to 33-33, but they ran out of gas. The Jackets outthit them, 18-10, in the final quarter to post the win.

Brian Frazier led Roanoke Rapids with 19 points while Maurice Moody added 12. Roanoke was paced by Fred McFadden with 13 while Quati Teele had 10.

Roanoke Rapids' girls inched into an 8-7 lead in the first period of their game. But Roanoke came back, 13-10, in the second frame to edge into a 20-18 halftime lead.

Roanoke Rapids again outthit the Lady Redskins, 10-6, in the third period, moving back ahead, 28-26, but Roanoke raced through the final period, 19-4, to post the win.

Vickie Teele led Roanoke with 16 points while Joyce Outlaw added 10. Susan Hockaday led Roanoke Rapids with 10.

Roanoke's boys drop to 6-11 overall, 2-7 in the Northeastern. The girls are now 13-1, 8-1.

Roanoke is at home to Ahsokie on Tuesday.

David Carlyle, but Duke then outscored the Demon Deacons 18-2 over a 7½-minute span to take a 44-22 lead on a Henderson layup with 1:36 remaining. Ralph Kitley broke Wake Forest's six-minute scoring drought, scoring on a layup with 1:21 left.

Wake Forest rallied again to pull within 11 points, but Duke went on a 12-2 run, capped by Kevin Strickland's 3-pointer with 13:35 left, to increase the margin to 63-42.

A pair of free throws by Henderson with about four minutes remaining gave Duke its biggest margin at 89-58.

"That is a great basketball team that has defeated us twice," said Wake Forest Coach Bob Staak.

"They came out firing all guns tonight."

Danny Ferry had 15 points, Strickland scored 14 and freshman Greg Koubek had 12 for Duke, now 17-3 and 6-2.

Carlyle led Wake Forest, 8-12 and 2-6, with 18 points, while Sam Ivey and Todd Sanders had 12 each.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY Feb. 13

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Try to get your work all cleared up early in the day, since you probably won't have the time later on. Show loyalty to your good friends.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20): Find out where you stand financially, but be careful in making any new investments. Don't provoke a silly argument with your mate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Handle an important discussion with your associates early in the day, and don't allow any disagreements to get out of proportion.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Get your chores and other duties finished up early in the day. Plan time for some recreation, but nothing strenuous or expensive.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Don't make any sudden changes in plans which have already been arranged. If you go out anywhere today, be sure to drive carefully.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): This is not a good day to invite any friends into your home. Instead, concentrate on improving your family relationships.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Walking or driving could be dangerous later in the day, so finish your shopping and errands early. Have lunch with a good friend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Financial affairs are your first priority today, so do your best to improve them. If your property needs repairs, get estimates first.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): A close friend could be a bit troublesome today, so don't add fuel to the fire by being argumentative or sarcastic.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Don't do anything which might make an associate think you are indifferent or untrustworthy. Handle private matters quietly.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): You may be delighted to see some old friends, but don't neglect important business matters, even if you have to work this evening.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): If you have to contact a superior, do so in the afternoon for best results. Driving may be dangerous today, so be more cautious than usual.

One of the most popular duplicate games in Ft. Worth, Texas, is run by Bruce Shields. While the quality of the game is excellent, it pales in comparison to the home-cooked buffet dinner served to all participants.

In a recent game, Shields held the South hand in a pair game. He and his partner reached the excellent contract of four spades, and all that remained was to make it after the defenders attacked with two rounds of hearts.

Trumps had to be 3-2; if they broke 4-1, the contract was doomed—declarer could not avoid losing three spade tricks in addition to the heart the defenders already had in the bank. And at least two rounds of trumps would have to be drawn, to prevent the defender with the short trumps from ruffing a diamond.

If declarer were to play ace of trumps and another, he would expose himself to defeat. One of the defenders might be able to draw a third trump, in which case he could cash a heart for down one.

The secret of drawing trumps while retaining control is quite simple, as Shields quickly demonstrated. At trick three, he led a low trump from hand. If the defender who won that trick persisted with hearts, declarer could ruff, cash the ace of trumps and then run diamonds until the defender with the remaining trump ruffed for the defense's third and last trick. If the opponent switched to some other suit, declarer would win, cash the ace of trumps and, still leaving the master trump outstanding, again start the diamonds to assure the contract.

Vincent Price: A Film Legend Who Survives With Amazing Versatility

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vincent Price is a screen legend who manages to survive by being versatile.

Oscar Wilde. He appears on "Hollywood Squares," TV talk shows and commercials. He sang and devised villainous plots as the voice of Professor Ratigan in Disney's animated feature, "The Great Mouse Detective."

WALL ART — A spectator shakes hands with one of "The Living Paintings" at New York's New Museum of Contemporary Art in Manhattan. British performance artists Stephen Taylor Woodrow, James Melloy and Dale Devereux Barker hang from the wall of the museum from framed backgrounds, interacting with their viewers in untraditional ways. (AP Laserphoto)

Actor Sought Roles Different From Dad

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Michael Douglas says that for a long time he preferred playing bland characters because he didn't want people to compare his performances with the intense ones of his father, Kirk Douglas.

Because of the blandness, "People tended to forget I was Kirk's son, which was important to me at that time."

But the younger Douglas has shown some heat in his two latest movies, "Fatal Attraction" and "Wall Street," and his father paid him the highest compliment, he said.

"He said, 'Son, I noticed the resemblance between us, but five minutes into the picture ('Wall Street'), I forgot you were my son. I forgot everything. I was watching Gordon Gekko. You really nailed that part,'" Michael Douglas said.

August," Lindsay Anderson's drama co-starring Bette Davis, Lillian Gish and Ann Sothorn.

Critics have marveled about such a galaxy of film greats, though some have carpooled about the dramatic values. At his home in the Hollywood Hills, filled with great works of art, Price reflected on his acquaintance with the great women of the screen.

"I worked with Bette years ago (1939) in a thing called 'The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex,' with Errol Flynn. It was great fun," he said. "She was wonderful and imperious, but of course she had a right to be: She was playing Queen Elizabeth I. The only person she didn't win with was Errol."

"People are always worried about her cantankerousness, but it's consistent. She been that way for years. She's marvelous to work with."

He met Miss Gish when he was in "Victoria Regina" (1936) with Helen Hayes, who was a close friend of hers.

"Then we corresponded, and I still have all the letters from her," he said. "I admired her enormously, and I saw her on opening night of her first Broadway play she ever did: 'Uncle Vanya' with Osgood Perkins. I happened to be at Yale, and I had enough money to come down to New York and see the play. It was a majestic moment to see this legend of the screen walk out on the stage for the first time."

At 76, Price was the youngest of the quartet; Miss Gish is reported to be 91, though she denies it, Miss Davis is 79, Miss Sothorn 78. How did he feel about working with such grande dames?

"I found that the grande dames aren't so grande when you get them on a set, particularly on a small island in Maine. Some of their grandness disappears," he said.

"They were very down-to-earth, complaining a lot, as we all were. It was kind of a miserable location. The people on the island were wonderful to us, but it was cold. There was no place to meet; at night you could only invite someone from their little cold cabin to your little cold cabin."

In "The Whales of August," Price plays a Russian nobleman and friend of the two quarreling sisters (Gish and Davis). It's a small role, he admitted, the kind he likes: "You don't have to carry the picture. You walk in, play your little scene and walk out with people remembering you. I notice that most of the lines critics quote were my lines. So I must have made some impression."

Comparing the two lead actresses, Price remarked: "Bette is a very studied actress; nothing will happen that you don't expect on the set. There are always surprises for the audience, especially in this kind of role."

"Lillian, being her age and always the ethereal kind of lady, had her usual quality. But what I liked in this role was the toughness you never suspected was there. (The location) was a little difficult because she's a little deaf and a little frail. And I'm a little frail."

"One day someone walked on the set and saw a cane here and a crutch there. He said, 'My God, it looks like Lourdes!'"

Carson Misses Show With Flu

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The flu has forced Johnny Carson to stay home since Tuesday, and NBC rushed comedian Jay Leno back from Florida to stand in as host of "The Tonight Show," says a network spokesman.

Carson came in for rehearsal Tuesday, but left before doing the show, Charles Barrett, an NBC spokesman, said Thursday.

"A Best of Carson" rerun scheduled for next Monday night was substituted on Tuesday night.

Leno, the show's regular fill-in for Carson on his days off, was completing an engagement in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and flew back to be host of the Wednesday and Thursday night shows.

Kansas-Born Opera Star Featured On PBS Series

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Italian tenor Luciano Pavarotti and Spanish tenor Placido Domingo aren't the only male opera stars. Samuel Ramey is a bass, and he comes from Kansas.

Tonight he sings the title role in Mozart's "Don Giovanni" as part of the Great Performances series on PBS.

The opera, conducted by Herbert von Karajan, is based on the legend of Don Juan, the Spanish libertine and seducer. In the opera, he is foiled in his attempted seductions of Donna Anna, sung by Bulgarian soprano Anna Tomova-Sintow, and Zerlina, a peasant bride, sung by American soprano Kathleen Battle.

"I assume he has been more successful in the past," Ramey says with a smile.

Karajan, the famous conductor of the Berlin Philharmonic, "is very awe-inspiring," Ramey says. "The first time I met him, I went to audition for him for Giovanni, in the summer of 1983. I was scared to death. I didn't think I sang a very good audition, but he said if he decided to do 'Giovanni,' I'd be his Giovanni.

"Then I thought, 'I'll get there and he won't like me. He'll fire me and send me home.'"

Ramey needn't have worried. The television performance was taped during a series of performances in Salzburg last July.

"Don Giovanni" is generally considered Mozart's greatest opera. However, in Ramey's view, the title character doesn't get his fair share of the best music. "He doesn't have a great aria. He has the Champagne Aria, a minute and a half of the hardest music I've ever sung, and a little serenade in the second act. He's in a lot of ensembles and has a lot of recitatives."

The recitatives, which are sung conversations and actually sound like speech, are Ramey's favorite parts of the Don Giovanni role.

"Maestro von Karajan spent most of the time rehearsing the recitatives, which was really fascinating," he said. "Usually when you do 'Don Giovanni,' very little attention is paid to the recitatives. It is just something between the arias, quartets and trios. Most of the time they forget that's where the story is."

Ramey says that Don Giovanni's servant, Leporello, also a bass, has better music than his boss.

Ramey first sang in "Don Giovanni" at the New York City Opera in 1974. In that company, he and Justino Diaz alternated the roles of Giovanni and Leporello.

Ferruccio Furlanetto of Italy, who sings Leporello in the television production, and Ramey discuss the two characters during intermission.

Reviewers, who consistently praise Ramey's acting, called his Giovanni in the 1980 New York City Opera production "swashbuckling." They won't say that about his televised performance, he says. There, Giovanni is "very much a gentleman character, a persuader, formally costumed."

"He's not a very aggressive person in this production," Ramey says.

Like other operatic superstars, Ramey has started to record popular music. His first venture was as a member of the cast of a new release of "Carousel." He plans a solo recording of Rodgers and Hammerstein music this spring.

"I sang all that music when I was young. Singing for ladies club programs, I put myself through college."

His next role is King Philip in a new production of "Don Carlo" in Geneva. Next season at the Met, he'll sing in a new production of "Bluebeard's Castle," which he recorded last spring, but hasn't yet performed on stage. He'll sing Golaud in "Pelleas and Melisande" for the first time next season in Florence. The summer of 1989 will find him singing a villain at the Rossini Festival in Pesaro, Italy. "Basses very often sing villains," Ramey says. "What I say is: bad guys have more fun."

Model Sues Hugh Hefner

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Playboy magazine publisher Hugh Hefner has lashed back at a former model whose $5 million lawsuit against him claims he abandoned promises to support her and father a child.

"It is sad to see a loving relationship reduced to such hurtful exploitation," Hefner said in a statement read Thursday by spokesman Bill Farley. "This is not a 'palimony' suit, it is a publicity stunt."

Carrie Leigh, 24, said in her suit filed Thursday in Los Angeles County

Superior Court that she had received an engagement ring from Hefner, 61, and was his companion and social hostess at the Playboy Mansion from April 1983 until two weeks ago.

Her attorney, Marvin Mitchelson, said during a news conference that Jessica Hahn, one of the mansion's newest residents, was responsible for the breakup. Miss Hahn, best known for her sexual encounter with former PTL minister Jim Bakker, has since appeared nude in Playboy.
