Swaggart Steps Down After Admitting Misconduct

By ALAN SAYRE
Associated Press Writer

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Church leaders left the door open for evangelist Jimmy Swaggart to resume his TV ministry after he delivered a tearful confession of sin and stepped down from the pulpit.

"I think he is a man of integrity. I think he made a mistake. I don't think it's a fatal mistake," Cecil Janway, district superintendent of the 2 million-member Assemblies of God, said late Sunday.

Swaggart did not describe his misconduct Sunday in his confession, which drew gasps and tears from his congregation. An overflow crowd packed his 7,500-seat family worship center after reports that church officials had been given photographs purporting to show Swaggart and a known prostitute going into and out of a motel room.

The Washington Post reported today, quoting a source who spoke to a Jimmy Swaggart World Ministries board member, that Swaggart said he did not engage in sexual intercourse with the woman but "paid her to perform pornographic acts."

The evangelist had confessed to a fascination with pornography stemming from his boyhood, the source said.

Cal Thomas, a columnist who once worked for the Rev. Jerry Falwell and has written about the evangelical movement, said the same thing Friday on ABC-TV's "Nightline." Thomas said he understood from sources inside Swaggart's organization that the incident was not sexual but "pornographic."

The evangelist was expected to meet this afternoon in Alexandria with the district presbytery, which Janway said would report its findings privately to the general council of the country's largest Pentecostal denomination, in Springfield, Mo.

"He confessed to specific incidents of moral failure," Forest H. Hall, secretary-treasurer of the Assemblies' Louisiana District, told Swaggart's congregation. "In the opinion of the officers of the Louisiana District, he has shown true humility and repentance and has not tried to blame anyone else for his failure."

Eleven months ago, Swaggart scathingly denounced fellow Assemblies of God evangelist Jim Bakker for committing adultery, comparing him to a cancer that had to be excised.

Swaggart, tears streaming down his face, said Sunday he would step down from the pulpit "for an undetermined, indeterminate period of time. We will leave that in the hands of the Lord."

He said he was cooperating with the Assemblies' investigation that will determine his future as a minister.

Negotiators Get Month To Carve Out A Treaty

By MARK J. PORUBCANSKY
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States and Soviet Union today gave their arms control negotiators one month to complete the key provisions of a new treaty to sharply reduce their strategic nuclear weapons.

The decision was taken as U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz wound up two days of talks in Moscow. He said negotiators in Geneva who have failed to make significant progress toward a 50 percent cut in long-range nuclear weapons were directed to report to him and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze in Washington March 22-23.

Shultz also told a news conference the Soviets indicated they would be more flexible in handling emigration applications, except for those from people who have had access to state secrets.

Shevardnadze confirmed "categor-ically" that only those with information the government considers important to national security would be barred from emigrating, according to Shultz.

Earlier today, as he opened talks with Shultz, Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev pledged to achieve peace in Afghanistan and to try to reach a new nuclear arms agreement by spring.

"We will just have a good, frank conversation," the Soviet Communist Party general secretary said.

Shultz and Gorbachev smiled broadly as they shook hands and sat down with their aides in opulent Catherine's Hall in the Kremlin.

Services Expanded

By JOHN BARE

The addition of two specialists in the eastern office of the Division of Archives and History in Greenville is broadening the type of service the office can deliver, according to Drucilla York, office director.

Clifford Tyndall is the eastern historical sites specialist, one of two specialists in North Carolina directing visitor programs at state historical sites.

William Bean Jr. is a specialist for the restoration and technical service branch of the state historical preservation office.

Both men began work in Greenville in January and "they are a tremendous asset to this region of the state," said Mrs. York. "We couldn't be more pleased about how the Humber House has become the center for these activities." The offices are located in the Robert Lee Humber House at 117 W. 5th St.

The General Assembly created the eastern office in 1983 and its primary job is to "encourage, develop and

Marine's Tape Released

By RIMA SALAMEH
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A pro-Iranian extremist group today released a videotaped message from a kidnapped U.S. Marine colonel calling on President Reagan to meet his captors' demands.

The 70-second tape from the Organization of the Oppressed on Earth was accompanied by a typewritten Arabic statement reiterating the group's claim that the hostage, Lt. Col. William R. Higgins, is a CIA agent.

The Arabic statement also warned Lebanon's mainstream Shiite Moslem militia, Amal, to stop searching for Higgins, 43, of Danville, Ky., who was abducted Wednesday near the southern port city of Tyre.

Amal, which continued its search today, has taken into custody dozens of members of Hezbollah, Lebanon's most radical Shiite group. Hezbollah, which is believed to be the umbrella organization for pro-Iranian groups holding most of the 24 foreign hostages in Lebanon, on Sunday declared support for Higgins' captors.

Hezbollah and Amal militiamen clashed in a brief firefight Sunday. No casualties were reported in the half-hour shootout in the southeastern village of Ein el-Tineh.

In the videotape delivered today to a Western news agency in Beirut, an unshaven Higgins appears to be reading from a statement. The statement by Higgins says Reagan "has to take responsibility for the crimes he has committed against the oppressed people in the region."

In the statement, Higgins then lists the same demands his captors made when they first claimed his abduction Friday in a statement that called the colonel a CIA spy. U.S. and U.N. officials denied the spying charge.

The demands, as given by Higgins, are:

—Israel's withdrawal from the self-proclaimed security zone it carved out in southern Lebanon when the bulk of its army withdrew from Lebanon in 1985, ending a three-year invasion.

—The release of all detained

Lebanese and Palestinian "mujahdeen," or holy warriors, from the Khiam detention camp in the security zone and in Israeli jails. An estimated 300 detainees are believed held at Khiam.

—An end to what they call U.S. intervention in Lebanon and to U.S.

diplomatic missions to the Middle East.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz is to travel to the region this week to present a peace plan aimed at ending 10 weeks of rioting by Palestinians in

Whichard On List

From Staff and Wire Reports

At least four members of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors reportedly are interested in becoming chairman when the post comes open in five months, but one would be able to serve only half of the two-year term.

The four who have expressed an interest are David J. Whichard II, the board's vice chairman and a Greenville newspaper publisher; Samuel H. Poole, a Southern Pines lawyer now based in Washington; Raleigh developer Robert L. "Roddy" Jones; and Charles Z. Flack Jr., a Forest City realtor.

Whichard has been on the board since 1973 but is ineligible to seek another term when his current one ends in 1989 — one year before the chairman's term ends.

The situation is a first for the UNC system, and officials asked the state attorney general's office whether Whichard would be eligible for the post.

In a letter Feb. 15 to Richard H. Robinson Jr., UNC's legal counsel,

AVAir's Future Pondered After Commuter Crash

By MEG REYNOLDS
Associated Press Writer

MORRISVILLE, N.C. (AP) — While investigators tried to piece together the events that led to a commuter plane crash that killed 12 people, airline industry observers wondered about the future of the aircraft's troubled operator, AVAir.

Some investigators in motorboats raked a shallow pond at Raleigh-Durham Airport Sunday for clues to the Friday night crash. Others examined broken trees and wreckage including the silver tail from the plane, strewn over an area measuring about 50 feet by 150 feet. Ted Lopatkiewicz of the National Transportation Safety Board said little had been learned about the cause of the crash.

The largest plane piece, a red, white- and blue-striped shroud from the fuselage measuring about 15 feet, lay amid several broken pine tree trunks. Wheels from the landing gear had broken off their axle, while about 30 yards away, a piece of the air-

Austin To Head Surgery Program

Dr. Erle H. Austin III has been named chief of the cardiac surgery program at the East Carolina University School of Medicine. He succeeds Dr. W. Randolph Chitwood Jr., who resigned to accept a faculty appointment at the University of Kentucky in Lexington.

Austin, associate professor of surgery at the medical school since 1985, was the second surgeon to join the nearly four-year-old program at ECU and was an assistant surgeon in the medical school's three successful cardiac transplants.

A graduate of the Harvard Medical School and the cardiothoracic surgery residency program at Duke University, Austin has expertise in several areas of cardiothoracic surgery and specializes in congenital heart surgery, procedures to correct heart defects present at birth in children.

Austin praised Chitwood for his role in establishing the cardiac surgery program.

"Dr. Chitwood is to be commended for his outstanding role in creating a program that now allows our surgeons to perform an average of two to three major heart surgeries per day," he said.

"Our goal now is to expand upon

Gore Visit Set

Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., will make a two-hour campaign stop in Greenville Tuesday for a pig picking and rally.

Gore will be joined by U.S. Rep. Charles Rose III, D-N.C., at the River Road Ranch from noon to 2 p.m. The luncheon is open to the public.

A Charlotte Observer poll published Sunday showed Gore with 11 percent of the vote in North Carolina, putting him behind Jesse Jackson, Massachusetts Governor Michael Dukakis and Missouri Congressman Richard Gephardt.

Prior to the Iowa caucuses, polls showed Gore with 16 percent of the vote. A campaign spokesman said the poll reflects name recognition and Gore's standing should improve with a blitz of television commercials.

The ranch, home of the North Tar River Fellowship Club, is off N.C. 33 north of Greenville on state road 1401. The program will feature remarks from Gore and bluegrass music.

Cobey To Speak

Assistant Secretary of Transportation Bill Cobey will speak at a public meeting Tuesday in the Willis Building on the East Carolina University campus. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

It is one of eight public meetings to be conducted across the state by the Governor's Highway Safety Commission to help focus public attention on driving while impaired.

The public will be allowed and make comments of up to five minutes in length. Citizens may also submit written material to the Governor's Highway Safety Program, 215 East Lane St., Raleigh, NC 27601.

Vore Joins Staff

Dr. Stephen Vore has joined the animal resources center staff at the East Carolina University School of Medicine as chief of the Veterinary Sciences Division. He has also been named assistant professor in the department of physiology.

At the animal center, Vore will oversee operation of the surgical and radiological sections of the animal health program. Additionally, he will assist faculty members in research and teaching projects requiring surgical, radiological and anesthetic support.

Vore is a graduate of the school of veterinary medicine at Michigan State University and received a master's degree in biohazard science at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He furthered his studies through a fellowship in laboratory animal science at UNC-CH.

His research interests include cardiopulmonary physiology.

Named Director

Alice S. Barkley has been named new executive director of the North Carolina Humanities Council, the state program of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The announcement was made by Janice Faulkner of Greenville, chairperson of the volunteer citizens council of the agency.

Drug Arrests

Greenville police arrested five people over the weekend on drug possession charges.

Officer L.C. Overby said Carey Ray Morris, 27, of Haliwea, Hawaii and Anthony Alvert Selinka, 21, of Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, were arrested on marijuana possession charges about 12:01 a.m. Saturday.

Officer D.C. Johnson said Alton Ray Gray, 35, of New Bern and Jeffrey Bryan Register, 31, of Route 2, New Bern, were arrested on possession of cocaine charges about 11:19 p.m.

Officer W.S. Heath said Donald Daily Kintz, 23, of Swansboro, was charged with possession of cocaine and resisting and delaying an officer in connection with a 12:19 a.m. Sunday incident.

Sunday Thefts

Investigators said eight thefts, including three camcorders from Cox Electronics on Memorial Drive, were reported to Greenville police Sunday.

Officer C.J. Melvin said the three video cameras, valued at $1,300 each, were taken in a break-in reported at 3:12 a.m. and several auto speakers were taken from Stereo Village at 317 Arlington Blvd. in a break-in reported at 6:59 a.m., while Officer S.D. Hilliard said an outside rear view mirror was taken from a car parked in a lot at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche streets in an incident reported at 1:16 a.m. and a camper — recovered and returned — was taken from 1101 Johnston St. in an incident reported at 4:03 a.m.

Officer R.C. Stroud said $300 worth of jewelry and a television set valued at $100 were taken from 1000 E. Third St. in an incident reported at 11:05 a.m., while Officer L.C. Overby said $17 of candy was taken from the Food Lion store on Red Banks Road by a juvenile in an incident reported at 6:34 p.m.

Officer W.T. McCarter said a bicycle was taken from the Blue and White Washerette on Dickinson Avenue in an incident reported at 7:06 p.m. and $9 in change and a video cassette recorder taken from 296 Millbrook St. in a break-in reported at 9:37 p.m.

Larceny Charges

Three people were arrested on larceny charges by Greenville police over the weekend.

Officer R.L. Smith said Daniel Augustus Leggett, 19, of 1983M Quail Ridge, was charged in connection with the theft of a cassette tape and two pieces of candy from the K-Mart store at Greenville Square Shopping Center about 5:32 p.m. Saturday. Smith said Leggett was also charged in connection with the theft of candy from Eckerd's at The Plaza mall and with the theft of sour cream and onion dip from Rose's at The Plaza at the same time.

Officer R.L. Vandiford said Danny Ray Edwards, 25, of 51 Oakwood Acres, was charged in connection with the theft of a car battery from 2704 E. 10th St. that was reported to the department about 9:17 a.m. Saturday.

According to Officer W.T. McCarter, Reginald Leon Peele, 20, of Route 3, Williamston, was charged in connection with the theft of a bottle of wine from Harris Super Market on North Memorial Drive about 3:32 p.m. Sunday.

GUC Meeting

The Greenville Utilities Commission board will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the utilities building at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Streets for a workshop session to review a hydraulic gradient study.

Meeting Set

The Pitt-Greenville Convention and Visitors Authority will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St.

In addition to various reports, items on the agenda include consideration of hiring an office assistant, opening an office and leasing or purchasing a vehicle for the executive director.

Pesticide Board

The North Carolina Pesticide Board will have a public meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Willis Building. The hearing, originally scheduled to be held on the Pitt Community College campus, has been moved to accommodate an anticipated large audience.

Proposed changes of regulations for aerial application of pesticides will be discussed. For more information, write John Smith, Secretary of the North Carolina Pesticide Board, P.O. Box 27647, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

PCC Foundation

Pitt Community College will begin the groundwork of the Pitt Community College Foundation Tuesday during its first meeting of its board of directors, Dr. Jim Young, executive director of the foundation and director of the college's institutional development said this morning in a telephone interview.

"This will be basically an organizational meeting," he said. "We will formerly bring the foundation board into session, elect officers ... (and) talk a little bit about the role of foundation and its responsibility."

An annual fund drive also will be discussed as a timetable is developed for different events of the drive, Young said.

Practicum Training

Eighteen music therapy students in the East Carolina University School of Music are involved in practicum training programs in eastern North Carolina this semester.

They include junior and senior students assigned to actual music therapy practice with a variety of clients: elderly persons, psychiatric and rehabilitation patients of all ages, physically handicapped children and adults, and children who are emotionally disturbed, mentally retarded, developmentally delayed, autistic or learning disabled.

Music therapy students from Pitt County and surrounding areas are Sherri Gray of Snow Hill and Carol Metzger of Greenville.

Free Testing

The Pitt Community College Rural Agricultural Assistance Center will have free dynamometer tests Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the Bell Arthur Fire Department. The test will determine the maximum PTO horsepower of a tractor and mechanical problems that a tractor may have in its power train. Tractors with either 540 rpm or 1000 rpm PTO shafts will be tested.

Dick Craft, chairman and instructor of the Diesel Mechanics and Farm Machinery Program at PCC will conduct the tests.

For more information, call Robert May, RAAC coordinator, at 756-3130, extension 214.

Welding Trip

A field trip to the Burroughs Wellcome manufacturing facility will follow a meeting of the American Welding Society to be held in Greenville at 7 p.m. today.

The meeting will be held at the Three Steers Restaurant on Memorial Drive.

Sprayer Workshop

The Rural Agricultural Assistance Center at Pitt Community College will present a sprayer calibration workshop at Buck Farm Supply Tuesday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. The supply is located one mile south of Winterville on Highway 11.

Calibration of PTO and ground driven sprayers will be discussed in addition to other topics related to proper use of farm sprayers.

For more information, call Robert May, RAAC coordinator at 756-3130, extension 214 or Sam Uzzell at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service at 830-6361.

P&Z Meeting

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission will continue its ongoing review of the proposed Greenville Zoning Ordinance update at a special call meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Council Chambers of City Hall.

Representatives of Greenville Planning and Development are scheduled to discuss multi-family development standards, exemptions and modifications, and development standards for all zoning districts.

Tuesday's meeting will be the fourth of a five-part topical review process intended to thoroughly review and update the Greenville Zoning Ordinance in its entirety.

The last comprehensive update of the city ordinance occurred in 1969.

According to Jack Simoneau, city planner, a comprehensive update of the zoning ordinance will benefit the city by insuring that all sections of the ordinance work in unison and by guaranteeing any zoning contradictions, unintentionally created by the passage of amendments, are eliminated.

Many cattlemen have recently purchased bulls for use in the upcoming breeding season. While most commercial cow-calf producers actually prefer bulls in the 2-year-old range that can be used heavily from the outset, many bulls are purchased as yearlings.

Newly purchased bulls should actually be brought in well in advance of the breeding season and quarantined from other animals for 30 days. Bulls should be fed to grow to maturity in a normal manner, but not to become fat. It must be remembered that yearling bulls are still growing and must be fed well.

Younger bulls (14 to 18 months) can be used during the breeding season if they have grown adequately and are properly managed. These yearling bulls should weigh a minimum of 900 pounds, at a year of age and 1,100 to 1,200 pounds at 15 to 16 months of age. During the breeding season, these bulls should be checked frequently. They might require additional feed if they lose condition and start to become thin.

Enough bulls should be available per cow to maximize the chance for breeding during a short breeding season. Fact Sheet SR 3003 from the Southern Regional Beef Cow-Calf Handbook gives these guidelines: For 15-month-old bulls, use 10 to 15 cows per breeding pasture; for 18-month-old bulls, use 15 to 18 cows per breeding pasture; for 2-year-old bulls, use 20-25 cows per breeding pasture; for mature bulls, use 25 to 35 cows per breeding pasture.

A thorough soundness and semen examination prior to the breeding season is a good practice. The breeding season should be limited to 90 days (or less for well managed herds). Bulls should be removed from the herd at the end of the season and confined in a small pasture or paddock until the next breeding season.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S., P.A.
Family & General Dentistry

REFERRED PAIN

One of the ways we know we have a dental problem is from a toothache. However, it can be more difficult than one imagines to locate the right tooth. The problem is that pain from the nerves in the tooth pulp may be referred to other teeth on the same side of the mouth. The nerve supply to the tooth pulp contains only pain fibers and does not provide a sense of location.

The absence of position-indicating nerves in the tooth pulp and the ability of pain arising in one tooth to be referred to another tooth on the same side of the mouth, in either the upper or lower jaw, frequently leads a patient to feel pain in a healthy tooth, and not in the tooth that needs treatment. These factors emphasize the importance of clinical and X-ray examination of each patient by his dentist. Thorough dental examination is essential to give the dentist and patient accurate information with which adequate treatment of diseased teeth can be undertaken.

Please call our office today for an appointment. Let us thoroughly examine your teeth and talk about the best treatment for you.

NOTE:
We welcome new patients,
both children and adults.

 Sunday, met until 1:30 a.m. today with Shevardnadze, then held talks with Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov before meeting Gorbachev.

would "do our best to achieve peace in Afghanistan and to have a non-aligned, neutral Afghanistan which would have good relations with its neighbors, with the United States and with the Soviet Union."
 An estimated 115,000 Soviet troops have been in the country since December 1979, backing a pro-Moscow government at war with U.S.-armed Moslem guerrillas.

 Gorbachev has promised to begin a withdrawal on May 15 if the Kabul government and Pakistan can agree on terms of a settlement by March 15. On nuclear arms, Gorbachev said

"there is still a chance" of an agreement to reduce U.S. and Soviet long-range nuclear weapons by the spring. The idea would be to have the pact ready for him and President Reagan to sign at a Moscow summit.
 One of Shultz's aims in the Moscow meetings is to bring the two sides closer to an agreement to cut their arsenals of long-range nuclear weapons by 50 percent. Gorbachev and Reagan signed an agreement in Washington Dec. 8 to eliminate their intermediate-range missiles, which have a range of about 300 to 3,000 miles.

Shultz met for more than eight hours on Sunday with Shevardnadze, and called their three sessions on arms control, human rights and regional conflicts "very worthwhile."
 Also Sunday, Shultz quizzed Andrei D. Sakharov about human rights, arms control and Soviet reforms and met with a group of Jewish refuseniks to underscore U.S. concern for human rights in the Soviet Union.

Sakharov, a physicist, helped develop the Soviet hydrogen bomb in the 1950s. He was exiled to the closed city of Gorky in January 1980 for speaking out against the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Shultz told refuseniks and members of divided families who gathered Sunday at the home of U.S. consulate chief Max Robinson that "We are never content until all these cases are resolved in the proper way. No matter how discouraging it may sometimes seem, we will never give up."

The secretary of state, who travels to the Middle East next week, has questioned whether the Soviet Union can play a bigger role in that region of its human rights record and its lack of relations with Israel.

 supervise architectural surveys within the 23-county region," said Mrs. York. Nine counties have conducted comprehensive surveys and she is working to survey the remaining counties in the region.

Federalists supported the Constitution in 1788, said Tyndal, and Anti-Federalists opposed it because it did not have a Bill of Rights and they feared states would lose their individual liberty.

Many people are surprised to find out North Carolina elected more Anti-Federalist delegates for the first convention and they voted against adopting the Constitution, said Tyndal. The state did not adopt the Constitution until 1789.

The town meetings will take place in Halifax, Tarboro, Bath, Edenton and Elizabeth City during March and April. Fred Ragan, chairman of the history department at East Carolina University, will lead the meetings, said Tyndal.

Tyndal is also working on the annual re-enactment of North Carolina's largest Civil War battle in Bentonville. More than 400 soldiers will spread out over the 6000-acre battlefield March 20, creating camps, headquarters and different battle scenes.

Tyndal locates and maintains weaponry and 19th century artillery, and he established a driving tour for the public to see the various battle sites.

During its last legislative session the General Assembly also created a position for a restoration specialist, and now the eastern office can supervise restoration projects, said Mrs. York.

Bean came to Greenville from Texas, where he has worked in contracting and restoration since 1972. He provides technical assistance for private and public restoration projects.

"I work with older buildings within the area that people might have questions about," said Bean. "I give them technical advice."

Bean has been reroofing historical houses in Edenton, but he does more than just make repairs. His job is to restore, not rehabilitate, said Mrs. York. "That's important in underscoring what project he is working on," she said.

Bean is presently working on a storefront renovation project in Elizabeth City. The goal is to keep costs down while emphasizing the interesting details in the buildings and unifying the paint scheme.

He has also met with a group in Ayden to discuss priorities in restoring the town's old high school that dates back to 1929. The gymnasium is heavily used and the school has a large auditorium, said Bean, but damage from age and from vandalism is beginning to show.

"So many old schools are being abandoned across the state," said Mrs. York. "We're trying to see how they can be adapted and used."

"I enjoy it a lot," said Bean. "The buildings I'm working on here are much earlier than the ones I was working with in Texas. We run into 18th century buildings here quite often."

The statement accompanying the videotape calls on Justice Minister Nabih Berri's Amal militia to call off its search for Higgins in southern Lebanon.

"We call on our brethren in Amal to understand the dangerous espionage role Higgins was carrying out, profiting from the U.N. observer role," the statement says. In an earlier statement given to a Beirut newspaper, the group said it was "lying in wait for any other suspicious American."

A decorated Vietnam veteran and one-time assistant to former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, Higgins heads a 76-man observer group attached to a U.N. peacekeeping force in south Lebanon.

His abduction has stirred tension between Amal and Hezbollah, which has been challenging Amal's dominance in southern Lebanon.

Tyndal coordinates and develops programs for the 14 state historical sites from Durham to the east coast. "A lot of my work deals with costume demonstrations," said Tyndal. The costumes are used for military uniforms, period cooking demonstrations and agriculture demonstrations, he said.

"The big thing I'm working on right now is a constitutional project," said Tyndal. "1988-89 marks the 200th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution. Archives and history is working in conjunction with the Historic Albermarle Tour to create a 1778 town meeting."

"The participants are costumed and they debate the pros and cons of the Constitution," he said. "In the spring of 1788 there were ongoing campaigns for an upcoming election. People were going to vote to elect delegates to go to Hillsborough and decide whether to adopt the Constitution or not."

Paid actors working from a historical script will act out the meeting, but the audience will also participate. "At the end of it we actually have a vote," said Tyndal. "The audience gets to vote on whether they want to vote for the Constitution or not."

Branch Parole Said Considered

Connie Hardee Branch, a Pitt County woman who went to prison in July, 1977, in connection with the murder of her husband, is being considered for parole, Sam Boyd, administrator of the North Carolina Parole Commission, said today.

He said any comment on the case "would be premature," since the investigation has just begun and will take 60 to 90 days to complete.

Mrs. Branch, based on portion of original sentence served, became eligible for parole in 1984 and is entitled to have the case reopened each year.

Her latest denial of parole was in November, 1987. She is said by Boyd to have had "good conduct while in prison."

Kenneth Branch, a brother of Linwood Branch, the alleged murder victim, said his family will be protesting the parole this year, as they have done in the past.

Asked if protest from the family would make any difference in whether Mrs. Branch is paroled, Boyd said, "It would be one of the factors."

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Tourism Director Key Position

The newly-named director of the Pitt-Greenville Convention and Visitors Authority will play a key role in the success of that organization and should field the position with leadership and propriety.

Promoting the area's travel and tourism industry is a goal worthy of broad support. It is for this reason the community should applaud the arrival of an executive director and the tentative opening of the authority's office March 1.

Now is the time for the authority to begin building a base for expansion of local travel and tourism. The financial support for such an effort — the occupancy tax — is in place, and the administrative details have been secured.

Bold leadership aimed at promoting the highest quality growth for the community is necessary. The director is the last link in the chain, and with his addition, work toward promoting the area's tourism potential can begin.

But along with providing leadership, the director must be cognizant of the need for standards that reflect correct procedure and image — standards that concurrently attract the caliber of business the community requires. A flashy, superfluous appearance created by expensive trappings is not the appropriate approach for Greenville.

The supervisory board for the authority must take care to articulate these standards of propriety to the new director. It is up to that body — also with the city and county managers — to set precepts for correctness.

The impact of the travel industry in Pitt County is substantial. Despite no formal effort to promote its growth, convention and meetings business has escalated sharply in the past five years. A developing regional medical center, a distinguished university, steadily improving highways and an expanding airport have fueled this increase.

Funding a visitors authority was a timely move to capitalize on the growth of an industry capable of playing a significant role in the county's economy. With a director in place, the potential of this growth can be tapped and its significance broadened.

The new director appears to have the credentials necessary to accomplish this goal. With proper leadership and energetic community support, the county's travel industry can be molded into a profitable yet appropriate endeavor.

Unpaved Roads Need Attention

In a state where highway planning focuses on corridors, freeways, interchanges and how to cope with ever-growing metropolitan traffic, it is not easy to envision that there are still people in rural areas living on poorly maintained dirt roads.

Such roads are there, however, despite years of secondary road paving which provided access to urban areas for thousands of rural homes.

Jack Murdock, secondary roads officer for the N.C. Department of Transportation, says secondary road paving shouldn't be overlooked in the highway construction program. He is correct.

In the next 10 years it was estimated that the state should spend $336.9 million to pave 3,534 miles of dirt roads which carry heavy traffic. Murdock said all roads which carry 100 vehicles per day should be paved. Those with less traffic should be upgraded to all-weather status.

Dirt roads present major problems to school systems who must send buses down them, regardless of weather, to pick up students. The navigation hazard that presents in enough in itself to justify paving.

Transportation officials told the General Assembly Highway Study Commission that secondary roads will need billion-dollar construction in the next 20 years. Of the 59,313 in state-maintained secondary roads, 16,932 miles are unpaved.

The 1.75 cents per gallon state motor fuel tax which is used for secondary road improvements is inadequate to do what needs to be done.

Somehow the state must find ways to do the job. People living on rural unpaved roads often don't have the political clout of a major city seeking a controlled access route. Nevertheless their needs are real.

Previous secondary road construction programs have changed our state economically and very likely have paid for themselves in increased commerce. A paved rural road provides ready access to urban areas for the families who live on them. For farmers it means his or her products can be transported to market in the least time and with the least damage.

Investment in secondary roads pays dividends in North Carolina and it is an area that should not be neglected.

AMERICAN DEMOCRACY: THAT EXALTED SYSTEM IN WHICH THE FUTURE LEADER OF THE FREE WORLD IS SELECTED BY THE VOTERS

Campaign Finance Laws Need Reform

WASHINGTON — By anyone's reckoning, 1988 should be the year of ethics. The record of the past few years has been a national disgrace — a time of corruption and scandal in Washington.

It's been a time when news headlines reported serious allegations of unethical or illegal conduct about 110 Reagan administration officials. It's been a time when our nation's chief law-enforcement officer, Attorney General Edwin Meese, faced repeated independent-counsel inquiries and General Accounting Office findings that he failed to comply with the Ethics in Government Act. It's been a time, to put it simply, when the Reagan administration has practiced an "anything goes" approach to ethics.

Congress is facing an ethics crisis, too, but it isn't getting the same attention. The problem there is money — PAC contributions, honoraria fees and the whole system for financing congressional elections. Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., has explained the system of institutionalized corruption this way: "We are the only human beings in the world who are expected to take thousands of dollars from perfect strangers on important matters and not be affected by it."

Congress faces a crossroads on ethics next week, when S2, the Senatorial Election Campaign Act, will be debated on the Senate floor.

S2, sponsored by 52 senators, would help end the money chase in Congress by limiting PAC contributions and creating a system of spending limits and public financing for Senate races. It's a measure of the ethical crisis on Capitol Hill that this bill faces a filibuster designed to prevent the Senate from even voting on the issue.

This isn't a new fight. When I first went to work for Common Cause as a lobbyist in 1971, I was assigned two issues to work on — campaign-finance reform and legislation to end U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War. I stopped working on the latter in 1975. A couple of years ago, I told a member of Congress I had been working on congressional campaign-finance reform legislation for 15 years. His response: "You're not doing too well, Fred, are you?"

To appreciate what passage of S2 could mean, look at one area of our national politics that's remarkably free of corruption today compared with the past — our presidential-election campaigns. That's largely because of the 1974 reforms, which provided a revolutionary system of public financing for presidential campaigns.

The presidential campaign-financing system has cleaned up what used to be a corrupt system. Of course, the system is not perfect; no system is. But one has only to take a short refresher course on what it was like before this law was enacted to fully understand what this law has accomplished.

A walk through history, for example, recalls news stories about the $2 million pledge by the milk producers to President Richard Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign — and its link in the public's mind to the subsequent increase in milk price supports. And we remember that in 1972, just 153 individuals accounted for $20 million in contributions to the Committee to Re-Elect the President.

In 1972, embassies were for sale. The future ambassador to Great Britain contributed $254,000; the future ambassador to Luxembourg, $300,000; the future ambassador to France, $303,000.

We remember, too, the letter from liberal "fat cat" Stewart Mott to Vice President Hubert Humphrey during his 1968 presidential campaign saying, "If we become 'turned-on' and enthusiastic towards your candidacy, we have the capacity to give $1 million or more to your campaign — and raise twice or three times that amount. But we will each make our own individual judgments on the basis of how you answer our several questions and how you conduct your campaign in the coming weeks."

These outrages ended after the 1974 reforms. Reviewing the post-1974 record, a commission chaired by Melvin Laird, secretary of defense in the Nixon administration, and Robert Strauss, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, concluded in 1985: "Public financing of presidential elections has clearly proved its worth in opening up the process, reducing undue influence of individuals and groups and virtually ending corruption in presidential election finance."

There's a simpler way to understand what this new system has meant to the office of the presidency. It's the fact that the corrupting effect of campaign money on presidential decisions is now a non-story.

The dirty money that was taken out of presidential elections in 1974 now pollutes Congress. Under our present congressional campaign-finance system, special interest PACs give members of Congress millions of dollars to buy access, influence and results.

Under this system, the average winning Senate candidate in 1986 spent $3 million to get elected — a 500 percent increase over 10 years ago. The massive sums being spent for campaigns increasingly are putting public office beyond the reach of those who are unable or unwilling to raise the vast amounts required or those who are not personally wealthy. The explosion in campaign spending is changing the very nature of elective office itself, forcing candidates to spend more and more time raising campaign funds at the expense of their congressional responsibilities.

Fred Wertheimer is president of Common Cause.

Of Preachers And Precedents

WASHINGTON — Pat Robertson doesn't want to be called a preacher any more and, somewhere along the way, Jesse L. Jackson seems to have lost his formal ministerial designation. He's just plain Jesse wherever he goes.

Nonetheless, these two political preachers are increasingly likely to have extraordinary, and perhaps decisive, influence over who will be the next president of the United States. There's no precedent for such a prospect in American political history.

The reasons are obvious. Since 1952, when television began to dominate the political process, presidential nomination campaigns have been decided earlier in each election year. In the TV age, national conventions no longer are places for real political battles and true decision-making. They're assemblages of delegates convened to ratify a fait accompli, participate in coronations. They're national TV stages for the parties to present a message to the electorate. The only suspense is over the vice presidential choice, never a presidential nominee.

This year, that previous experience does not apply. Initial Iowa and New Hampshire results have been inconclusive for Republican and Democratic candidates. No clear front-runner exists. The field remains crowded, and the race promises to see-saw for weeks as the many candidates divide up convention delegates. Both party's nomination contests — increasingly bitter, to judge by the language and tactics employed in Iowa and New Hampshire — may not be decided until the Atlanta and New Orleans conventions next summer.

In that regard, I believe that the Democratic nominee will be one of those now running, not a last-minute Lone Ranger party savior such as New York Gov. Mario M. Cuomo or the other usual suspects, Sens. Bill Bradley (N.J.) or Sam Nunn (Ga.). No candidate who labored so long, risked so much, compiled such debt and endured such a marathon will willingly turn over the prize to someone who never entered the race. Human nature, if not political logic, suggests that the losers eventually will coalesce around someone who shared their experience.

Thus, the critical final factor is likely to be the private bargaining process among the candidates themselves.

Here, the roles of the preachers could be crucial. The subject of religion in politics has always produced a schizophrenic reaction among voters. Americans want it — and want none of it. They have hungered for and responded to those who offered a moral message. At the same time, they've guarded against the emotion by erecting constitutional barriers between church and state. In colonial days, they were stirred by the preaching of grim, fire-breathing evangelists such as Jonathan Edwards. In more modern times, to pick only one example, they avidly followed the public pronouncements on political issues of the "radio priest," Father Coughlin.

Although American politicians have always invoked God's name and claimed to understand divine will, American voters have never supported a minister for the presidency. Of the 39 presidents, 24 were lawyers and six were generals. The rest came from the professional ranks of teaching, engineering or elective office-and, most recently, acting.

Nothing about this surprising political year suggests that voters are in any mood to alter the pattern of rejecting religious candidates. But this year, for the first time, two preachers are serious candidates. Neither Jackson nor Robertson will be his party's nominee. Nor will either likely be on his party's ticket. But each could go to the conventions with anywhere from one-fourth to one-third or more of the committed delegates.

If so, a divided field would give them the biggest political bargaining chips. It would also put them in position to wield great influence on the nominees and their party's stand on public issues, something no others like them have accomplished in two centuries of national life.

Public Forum

Strength For Today

To the editor:

In response to Bill Kroll's plea to ban tobacco product advertising in magazines or their promotion at sporting events and rock concerts, I would just like to say that I am very capable of choosing whether or not I care to smoke.

These ads have not warped my "innocentness," as I believe he puts it. I happen not to smoke by choice, my choice. But go ahead — take my freedom to choose away and, by the way, whatever happened to freedom of speech?

Why not just avoid those magazines and sporting events where these ads are placed if you find them offensive, but don't infringe on my rights or those of tobacco companies.

Recently a group of veterinarians made a thorough examination of the health and strength of a group of animals in a game preserve, and then compared their findings with the results of a similar examination of wild animals outside this preserve. They found a much larger proportion of weak and unhealthy animals inside the preserve than outside.

The same results of this test can be found in human life. On the whole, people who have to struggle for what they get develop stronger and more mature personalities than those who have everything handed to them on a silver platter.

Carried to an extreme, struggle can of course be as debilitating as ease. But when carried on within the limits of our capacities, it is a constructive-force in our lives.

Ex-Candidate Says His Campaign Failed, But System Worked

When I was campaigning in Iowa one day last month, a guy came up to me in dead seriousness and said: "I will deliver you my caucus vote if you can provide for me quickly the Ph and sediment density of the Congo River at its mouth." It turned out this man was raising tropical fish and those from the mouth of the Congo River kept dying. I told my staff people in Iowa to look into it.

That's retail politics, American-style. And looking back on my long campaign for the Democratic nomination — which ended last week — I'm not sure that I would change it very much. The one thing I know I would do differently is to have been born in Texas. Arizona is a mighty small base from which to walk out of the hinterlands into the cities and knock on the door and say, "I'm running for president of the United States."

There are a thousand particulars I could list to explain why I failed to do well in Iowa and New Hampshire: small political base, not well known, complicated message, not enough money, didn't go television charm school soon enough. But those are all superficial explanations. My basic problem was that it's too much the first time out to have both a new messenger and a different and challenging message.

It was like the stranger riding into town on the 4th of July and introducing himself around, a total stranger, and saying: By the way, this party can't go much longer. We've got to get to work rebuilding the town. It takes a lot of time to assimilate that message.

I would say to other present and potential candidates who are standing at the edge of the water hole of truth: My experience does not stand for the proposition that it's fatal to talk about taxes. That's too easy — to say that my withdrawal from the race is conclusive proof that mentioning the "T-word" is drinking political hemlock. I don't read it that way at all. My experience stands only for a limited proposition: A newcomer riding into town with a challenging message has a hard time.

I know some things about our nominating process I wouldn't change: •The length of the campaign. Those who say it's too long are dead wrong. It has to be long, to allow us to surface national leadership outside of a parliamentary system. Congress does not automatically produce national leadership. Instead, we are stuck with a system that creates national leadership in an almost random way. That's nothing new. We have a 200-year history of national leaders emerging from the most improbable quarters. So it is important that the process be long. Two years is not a long time for a continental nation to get some inkling of what's happening.

•The make-or-break early primaries. The Iowa-New Hampshire process is conceptually correct. Maybe other states should have a piece of the action. We could draw from a hat the names of several small states where early primaries would be held. But we need a "retail" point of entry, where candidates can spend months meeting with voters in their living rooms.

•The media's role. The notion that the media don't cover issues is ridiculous. I mean, every time a candidate gives off even a shred of evidence that he has something to say, it gets reported. The reason that issues don't get covered is that candidates aren't talking about them. The press does tend to run as a pack, however. There's a tendency to pile on when you're down and float you into the stratosphere when you're up. This exaggerates the normal ups and downs of a campaign. It turns a bumpy ride into a rollercoaster. But anybody who thinks the press is too powerful should look at my campaign: I got great coverage, but it did me little good with the voters.

American democracy is a wondrous process. We wait too long to confront problems. We dither in the face of challenge and emergency, sort of wandering around in complacency with our political leaders hiding in the bushes refusing to do their job. Then, when crisis strikes, we have an extraordinary capacity for rallying to an action.

The Democrats, unfortunately, are slipping into a campaign that is based on reaction, the negative side of populism in which the enemy is "them" — the Japanese, the Koreans, the fat cats on Wall Street. It's "their" success that's the enemy; it's "us" versus Wall Street and the foreigners. This is the old negative populism that will delay the day of reckoning.

Part of my problem as a candidate who was prepared to tell people the bad news was the Reagan legacy. They've painted reformers and truth-tellers into a very tight corner. By random luck, they stumbled on the idea of a massive tax cut counterbalanced by enormous borrowing. That has had two effects. One is sustaining the standard of living for the haves; the other is opening up a budget deficit that has made it difficult to move in any direction. Anybody who proposes to diagnose what's wrong carries the burden of saying: After seven years I'm here to tell you it can't continue. You sound like a spoilsport.

I had a problem with television, as everybody knows by now. I said after my first TV debate that if they could teach Mr. Ed to talk on TV, they could teach me. So I went to "charm school," in front of 20 million Americans, to learn things I should have learned 20 years ago. It was really wonderful. Really character building.

So what did I learn in charm school? Very simple. There is a picture-frame protocol for television that is very different from normal public speaking. If you watch me talking to a small group, you'll see all the problems that were evident on television. I tend to move around, my gestures are too expansive, I'm out of the picture frame. When you watch me on television, you get a sense of being on a roller coaster. So I tried to learn some basic things. Look at your subject. Be conversational. Tone down your gestures. And ultimately, forget about it all and relax.

Another problem in this campaign has been that the Democrats all sounded the same, and showed little willingness to take risks. The best time was early in the campaign, when we were just giving speeches and laying out positions and talking in a less intense environment. But by the end of 1987, there was a kind of closing of the ranks. Everybody became more vague and more consensus-oriented. You saw it very strikingly with the eruption of the demonstrations on the West Bank over Christmas. The Democrats had nothing to say about it.

The heart of the campaign process this year was the debates — and they were one of the most interesting sociological phenomena of all time. After each of them, the "big feet" of the press would be out there nudging each other and talking over the waterhole, cautiously sounding each other out to make sure their ideas weren't too nutty. Then came the spin controllers, who would move in subtly to try to shape reporters' perceptions of the debates. They even managed to train me. Rather than wading out into the audience after a debate, I learned to wade into the press.

As I think about my future, I know I don't want to become a spectator. There's a tendency for defeated candidates to think of themselves as journalists. I'm not a journalist. I am a player and I want to stay on the field, in the uniform of player, rather than writing the lofty articles about the future of American democracy. Our system is a fast-moving escalator and once they shove you off, it's kind of tough to get back on.

FATAL FIRE — Cove Creek volunteer firemen probe through the charred timbers of a two-story wood frame house near Boone that burned early Sunday. Watauga County authorities said a teen-age girl and her grandmother died in the fire. (AP Laserphoto)

2 Die As Fire Levels House

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — A fire engulfed a Watauga County house early Sunday, killing a teen-age girl and her grandmother, authorities said.

The teen-ager's mother, Joyce Rominger, 30, was injured after jumping from the second story. She was listed in stable condition at Watauga County Hospital, a nursing supervisor said.

The victims were identified tentatively as Helen Frances Rominger, 63, and Melissa Frances Rominger, 13, both of the Sugar Grove community.

The bodies were sent to the state medical examiner's office in Chapel Hill for positive identification and autopsies, Watauga County Sheriff James Lyons said.

The fire was reported at 1 a.m. Sunday by a passerby. Firefighters from three volunteer fire departments remained on the scene until 9:30 a.m. The house was fully engulfed by flames by the time firefighters arrived at the two-story wooden house, authorities said.

The cause of the fire was under investigation, Lyons said.

IN THE STATE

Helms Resistance

RALEIGH (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms' attempt to stall legislation to prevent development in part of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park continues to meet resistance from both sides of Congress.

The Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee has scheduled debate and a possible vote on the bill for Wednesday, despite objections from Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, the ranking Republican on the panel. But Helms vowed Friday to fight the measure and said Rep. Jamie Clarke, D-N.C., was risking his seat by backing the legislation.

The bill would designate about 465,000 acres of the park, which straddles North Carolina and Tennessee, as a wilderness area exempt from development. The proposal has renewed a long-standing dispute over the building an access road to more than 20 cemeteries in an isolated, 44,000-acre area on the north shore of Fontana Lake.

Helms said he is trying to protect area residents who want to visit their ancestors' graves.

Union Dispute

RALEIGH (AP) — Raleigh-based Orion Air Inc., rebounding from the loss of a $32 million contract to fly jets for United Parcel Service, has landed in the middle of a union dispute involving Miami-based Eastern Air Line Inc.

Orion has entered into a $50 million-a-year contract to fly a mainline jet for Eastern, which faces the prospect of a strike by its machinists and a sympathy walkout by its pilots. Orion has been criticized for the contract and for its safety record, as evidenced by a Federal Aviation Administration inspection made last year, a report of which was released last week.

The Eastern unions and a congressional panel questioned Orion's ability to fly passenger aircraft safely. Orion officials told The News and Observer of Raleigh nearly all the questions raised by the FAA involved record-keeping problems rather than examples of inadequately trained personnel, and they say the company will "match its safety record with any in the airline industry."

Eastern approached Orion last year about flying and operating some of its aircraft, said Robert C. Bushman, president and chief executive officer of The Aviation Group, Orion's parent firm.

In addition to the Eastern contract, Orion, which employs 950 people, has proposed building a $20 million heavy-maintenance hangar at Raleigh-Durham Airport that could employ 700 people and generate at least $20 million in annual revenues.

Highway Fatalities

RALEIGH (AP) — Five people, including an elderly Forest City man, died in weekend traffic wrecks on

North Carolina roads, the state Highway Patrol said today.

William Ransom Hooper, 82, of Forest City, died about 8 p.m. Saturday when the car in which he was riding hit a tree in Rutherford County, the patrol said.

Earlier Saturday, Rebecca Ferguson Caudill, 39, of Jefferson, died at 3:30 p.m. when the car in which she was traveling overturned on N.C. 115, 10 miles southeast of Wilkesboro, troopers said.

Blaine Marlin Sigmon, 37, of Claremont, died at 2:15 Saturday when he tried to pass several cars in his vehicle and struck a bridge abutment on N.C. 16, two miles north of Conover.

At 8:50 a.m. Sunday, Clyde Bullman, 42, of Marshall, died when the car in which he was riding hit an embankment seven miles north of Marshall, troopers said.

On Friday, Mary Ann Lemon, 57, of Barnardsville, was killed at about 11 p.m. when the car in which she was riding struck a telephone pole off U.S. 19 in Maggie Valley, troopers said.

So far this year, 134 people have died on North Carolina roads, compared with 182 fatalities at this same time last year, the patrol said.

Show Of Support

CANTON, N.C. (AP) — A busload of volunteers will head to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in Atlanta today with 86,000 letters of support for the Champion International paper mill, a spokeswoman for the group said.

Barbara Lukaszewski, spokeswoman for Save Champion Volunteers, said her group has been working since Jan. 22 to gather the signatures.

Monday is the final day public testimony may be submitted to the EPA in the ongoing battle between North Carolina and Tennessee officials over the mill's discharges into the Pigeon River, she said.

Note Forces Plane Evacuation

MORRISVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A threatening note scribbled "in a child's handwriting" forced the evacuation of an American Airlines passenger jet at Raleigh-Durham Airport Sunday, an official said.

The incident came two days after an American Eagle commuter plane crashed just outside the airport, killing all 12 people aboard. American Eagle is operated by AVAir under a contract with American Airlines.

The note was discovered about 10:30 a.m. Sunday as passengers traveling on a Boston-to-Miami flight were changing planes at RDU, said Teresa Damiano, a spokeswoman for the airport.

Passengers were forced to change planes because of mechanical troubles on the first aircraft, Ms. Damiano said. She did not know the nature of the trouble.

"What happened was one passenger who was on (the first plane) pulled a magazine out and found a note," she said.

The note, "scribbled in a child's handwriting," threatened harm to the American flight, the spokeswoman said. She would not disclose the contents of the note, which she said would be turned over to federal authorities.

Passengers were evacuated from the second plane while airport authorities searched their luggage, Ms. Damiano said.

No weapons were found, and the passengers were then transferred to a third plane, American Airlines Flight 873, which flew on to Miami safely, she said. She did not know how many passengers were on any of the planes.

Blaze Investigated

PHENIX, Va. (AP) — Fire officials said a house fire that killed five people in a crowded house was probably caused by a spark from a wood stove.

Two children and three mentally retarded wards of the state were killed in the fire at a two-story frame house in rural Charlotte County early Sunday morning.

"We don't know if it was a defective flue or if there was combustible material near the stove," Chief Walter Bailey of the Phenix Volunteer Fire Department said. "We think it probably came from a spark that flew out."

Bailey said the fire started at about 6 a.m., and had spread through the house, located on Virginia 758 between Phenix and Brookneal, by the time firefighters arrived on the scene shortly before 7 a.m.

"The fire just went straight up to the second floor and all over the house," he said. "That house was probably 70 years old. They didn't have fire stops in the walls."

The victims were identified as Helen Schofield, 49, Dennis Jones, 21, Ruth Berger, 64, Amir Hall, 3, and Rashanda Carrington, 18 months.

Woman Claims She Was Link Between Kennedy And Mafia

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A woman who 12 years ago described having an affair with President Kennedy in the White House says her terminal cancer led her to admit another secret, that she was a conduit between him and the Mafia.

"Now that I know I'm dying and nothing more can happen to me, I want to be completely honest," said Judith Campbell Exner, 54, in an interview published in the Feb. 29 issue of People magazine.

"If I'd told the truth, I'd have been killed. I kept my secret out of fear," she said.

Exner said she arranged about 10 face-to-face meetings between John F. Kennedy and Chicago mob boss Sam Giancana while she and Kennedy were having an affair in 1960-61.

Exner said she witnessed at least one of the Kennedy-Giancana meetings, and repeatedly crossed the country carrying envelopes between Kennedy, Giancana and another mobster.

Exner first spoke publicly of her affair with the president in 1975, but told the Senate intelligence committee that year that Kennedy was unaware of her links to Giancana. Exner's name came up in Senate hearings into the Kennedy administration's attempts to use the Mafia to kill Cuban leader Fidel Castro.

Exner said she now was revealing the Kennedy-Giancana link because she suffers from terminal cancer and wants "to put my life in order so that I may die peacefully."

Kennedy "knew everything about my dealings with Sam Giancana and Johnny Roselli (the Chicago mob's man in Las Vegas) because I was seeing them for him," she said.

The magazine said Exner produced plane tickets, hotel bills and her appointment books from 1960 to 1962 to support her contentions.

Exner said Frank Sinatra introduced her to Kennedy at a Las Vegas hotel on Feb. 7, 1960, and she and Kennedy began an affair about a month later. Shortly thereafter, Sinatra introduced her to Giancana in Miami Beach.

The article contained no response from Sinatra, who has always denied having ties to mobsters. There was no answer Sunday evening at the Los Angeles offices of his spokeswoman, Susan Reynolds.

G. Robert Blakey, a University of Notre Dame law professor who has argued that the Mafia participated in a plot to kill Kennedy, said Sunday he was skeptical of Exner's claims.

"The original story she told is true, but for her to suddenly elaborate on it after 13 years later suggests she's untrustworthy," he said.

Exner said Kennedy first suggested she act as his contact with Giancana at dinner in his Georgetown townhouse on April 6, 1960. He had been discussing the upcoming West Virginia primary with a lobbyist when he turned to her and said, "Could you quietly arrange a meeting with Sam for me?" according to Exner.

"I think I may need his help in the campaign," Kennedy allegedly added.

She said she arranged a meeting between the men at a Miami Beach hotel on April 12. Exner said she continued to set up meetings after Kennedy won the Democratic nomination and the general election.

She also carried sealed envelopes between Kennedy, Giancana and Roselli that "weighed about as much as a weekly magazine and felt as if they contained papers. But I don't know because I never looked inside," she said.

When Exner complained to Kennedy that she was being followed by FBI agents investigating Giancana, she said the president told her, "Don't worry, Sam works for us." He later told her the surveillance "is just part of (FBI Director J. Edgar) Hoover's vendetta against me."

By the summer of 1962, her affair with Kennedy had ended, she said, and she drifted into a brief affair with Giancana that ended when she rejected his proposal of marriage. He was shot to death in 1975, and Roselli was killed a year later.

Winds Boost Forest Fire

By MARTIN STEINBERG
Associated Press Writer
A forest fire sparked by a hiker's campfire and fanned by 90 mph gusts threatened at least 80 houses near Boulder, Colo., while a wind-whipped blaze raced through a Montana valley, destroying at least three homes.

No injuries were reported.

Roads in Colorado's Sunshine Valley area were closed late Sunday and occupants of one apartment building near the blaze voluntarily left the building, as did residents of five homes. But there were no ordered evacuations.

The fire grew to about 200 acres of grass and light timber by early today, the Boulder County Sheriff's Department said.

"The fire is burning out of control and it will remain out of control until the winds stop," said sheriff's spokesman Brian Leach.

The area was under a high wind warning with 90 mph gusts reported. Winds were expected to reach 100 mph today, the National Weather Service said.

Strong winds blew through much of the Rockies on Sunday. Afternoon and evening winds gusted to 65 mph in Cody, Wyo., and near Calgary, Alberta, chinook winds forced postponement of the final heats of the men's two-man bobsled competition at the Winter Olympics.

The Colorado fire started on Boulder's Mountain Park land in Sunshine Canyon and threatened 80 to 100 homes, said Leach.

"I don't know of one that has threatened as many structures as this one," he said.

Warm, dry and windy conditions existed just before the fire was reported about 5 p.m. Sunday. No buildings had burned by early today, as the fire burned about one-half mile southwest of Boulder Memorial Hospital.

About 100 firefighters battled the blaze.

Residents of suburban Sunshine Canyon were asked to be ready to leave their homes in case the fire crossed a ridge into their area, the sheriff's department said.

Charity Ball Has Golden Celebration Theme

The Service League of Greenville is observing 50 years of service to Pitt County this year. Charity Ball patrons and guests attended a golden celebration Saturday evening at the Greenville Country Club.

The country club was decorated outside with candlelight lamposts, trimmed with gold bows and streamers. The entrance doors were centered with gold bows with cascading streamers with arrangements of magnolia, gold baby's breath and gold numbers.

Lace and ribbons accented a version of the cart pushed throughout the hallways at Pitt County Memorial Hospital by league members. The cart, placed in the foyer, displayed a league scrapbook, other memorabilia, recalling 50 years of league history, and baskets of white and gold mums. A doll dressed in a league pinafore and a copy of the league prayer highlighted the sideboard. Potted plants adorned with miniature white lights, balloons and garlands of ribbon carried out the theme of a "Celebration of Service."

Ball patrons and guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Wilkerson Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Christopher B. McCoy Jr. Mrs. Wilkerson is president of the Service League and Mrs. McCoy served as overall ball chairperson.

The bandstand columns were highlighted in gold and entwined with miniature white lights and ivy. A gold satin swagged cornice decorated the top of the bandstand and was centered with a round medallion with a gold 50. Music for the evening was provided by the Burt Massengill Orchestra.

Individual tables featured decorated cakes and horns. Programs for the evening showed the Service League seal and were devoted to early leaders and main projects of the Service League. Lighted white tapers were placed in crystal candelabra.

The decorations in the Fieldcrest Room utilized the theme "Thrifty Shop 1938-1951". The focal point was a wooden window displaying clothing items of the period which might have been sold in the shop. Tall plants flanked the window.

Silhouettes of past ball themes against a white background highlighted the Grill Room. "Memories of Past Balls" reflected yearly themes of other charity balls.

Mrs. Wilkerson recognized Jesse Rountree Moye of Greenville, who designed the league's seal. She also paid special tribute to Emily Moye Hadley, Mrs. Wyatt Brown, Mrs. J.T. Little Sr., Mrs. H. Lyman Ormond Sr., Mrs. Walter Harrington, Mrs. J.C. Cummings and Mrs. E.C. Wilkerson.

Easels holding large photographs of past Service League activities highlighted other areas of the country club. Bouquets of gaily colored balloons were also placed throughout the club.

Serving as ushers and usherette this year were Chris Carter, Christie Coggins, Garrett Dawkins, Alex Ferguson, Bruce Koonce, Richard Lewis and David Tingelstad.

Serving as committee chairpersons and co-chairpersons were decorations, Mrs. Raymond W. MacKenzie Jr.; bandstand, Mrs. Lawton Nisbet and Mrs. Alexander B. Howard Jr.; Mrs. Charles W. Carter, clean-up; menu, Mrs. James W. Carter and Mrs. Jasper L. Lewis Jr.; driveway and lounges, Mrs. Thomas M. Reese and Mrs. James R. Bruner; Fieldcrest Room, Mrs. Ralph R. THOSE BEAUTIFUL VELVETS!

I'm frequently asked if velvet upholstery is practical for homes with kids and pets. Homeowners are reluctant to invest in "delicate" velvets for frequent use, though they love the warm look and feel it provides.

Fear no more! With a few precautions, you'll find velvets enjoyable even in heavy-use areas such as your den.

First, understand that velvet isn't a fiber, it's a weave. Original velvets were made of cotton, which was easily stained, faded and distorted. Therefore, the word velvet became synonymous with cotton—and problems! Today, velvets involve every synthetic fiber produced (nylon, polyester, acrylic and even olefin or "Herculon"). These fibers are, for the most part, warm and soft like cotton; but their chief advantage is that they retain color and texture better and are far easier to clean than their cotton counterparts. In fact, acrylic and olefin velvets are virtually immune to stains, even when subjected to the abuse of a 5-year-old's birthday party!

From the homeowner's standpoint, velvets may be maintained with two procedures. First, treat spills as rapidly as possible by blotting, followed by sponging with a mild detergent solution safe for fine fabrics. Finally, blot with towels. Never scrub a spot or irreversible pile damage will result! Instead, wipe or sponge with the velvet's nap-lay.

Second, velvet piles collect dust, dirt and abrasive soil. Therefore, monthly (assuming regular use), use your upholstery attachment to vacuum thoroughly—a great job for kids with "nothing to do" during summer vacation!

Now, about overall cleaning...In a word—DON'T!...At least, not you. True, I'm a professional cleaner, so I'd better explain why you should leave the cleaning to a pro.

First, it's doubtful that you'd have access to the specialized chemicals necessary to remove oily arm and headrest soils—particularly the dry solvents. Next, care must be exercised to avoid texture distortion. Finally, careful napping with a velvet finishing brush is imperative, both before and after cleaning. Velvets? Recommended—but only when selected and maintained with care! ©GFC 1987

Wedding Gowns Are More Seductive

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Although the tradition of ornate embellishment continues to reign in ever more elaborate wedding dresses, this year's bridal fashions reveal a new seductiveness in dresses with off-the-shoulder necklines, short sleeves and see-through cutouts in bodices. According to Cindy Rose, fashion director for Vogue Butterick Patterns in New York, puckering, ruching and ruffles are also turning up on dresses whose sweetheart necklines, shawl collars and even strapless tops are a departure from traditional styles.

Many dresses in all price ranges are heavily embellished and very sparkling, says Holly McMunn, Bridal Originals, New York.

The application of glitter in the form of rhinestones or embroidered and beaded lace is a feature of this year's dresses, she says. Embellishments come in the form of rosette appliques, passemeniere and soutache braiding and artificial flowers on the bodice, skirt or head-dress, or on all three.

Dresses can hardly be too elaborate. Long, full trains and the use of two or more fabrics are typical. Many dresses have lace or tulle netting over a base fabric of taffeta.

Miss Rose finds that styles vary depending on the area of the country and the weather. In some regions, like New York and New England, tailored dresses are the rule. In rural and suburban areas, puffer sleeves and fuller skirts are likely to be chosen by brides.

Regardless of style, traditional white and, to a lesser extent, ivory, remain the best selling colors for bridal dresses.

In headpieces, the trend is toward softer, less constructed looks. These floral, very feminine hair pieces are worn in a variety of ways — to the side or back of the head with the hair flowing loosely around the headpiece.

What will those brides with an adventurous fashion sense be wearing? According to Miss McMunn, short wedding dresses, including the bubble and dresses with pieplums and bolero jackets are among the most advanced fashion looks this year.

Mothers of the bride and groom are selecting outfits with less glitter and shine and more lace and sheer fabrics. A forecast for spring and summer is for more prints in soft watercolors.

Metallic and very shiny looks that once were so popular are definitely on the wane, in Miss Rose's opinion. However, an iridescent pearlized look is growing in popularity across the country. A bit of glitter may be present in the form of a beaded motif on bodice or at the hip, according to Miss McMunn.

Nowadays, weddings are presenting a more coordinated look, she says. The bride is likely to choose a color theme which is then carried over in bridesmaid's gowns, groomsmen's attire and even in the wedding decorations.

For example, bows and ruffles on the bridesmaid's dresses may complement similar decorations on the bridal gown. If bridesmaids are wearing peach dress, the groomsmen may be attired in ivory; if lavender, then silver gray suits could be a good choice for the men, according to Ken Hall, of After Six, Inc., a maker of men's formal wear. Often, cummerbunds and ties carry the color story into the men's clothing, he says.

Some new ideas on the horizon: the all white wedding in which the entire bridal party is dressed in white, perhaps with a touch of color. A variation is the black and white color scheme.

Among popular colors for attendants' dresses are the jewel-like brights, such as royal blue and red, and pastels, such as orchid. Tea length styles are gaining popularity, though floor length dresses are most often selected.

According to Hall, almost anything goes at a contemporary wedding when it comes to attire for the groom and his attendants. The traditional weddings still follow the prescribed rules of attire.

Pleated, wing-collar shirts, a throwback to 50 years ago, outsell laydown collars and ruffled shirts. Vests are starting to come back. Trousers are pleated and fit looser.

A trend for the future is a slightly oversized look for men, with thicker shoulder padding, looser fitting jackets and pants that are wider at the knee but tight at the ankle.

Traditional wedding attire is still worn. The gray cutaway with an ascot is the rule for a formal daytime wedding, while a stroller or regular-length jacket with a four-in-hand tie is proper at an informal one. In both cases, gray striped trousers are the rule. The evening formal wedding rates white tie and tails or a tuxedo.

Hall says there are only two rules he subscribes to: that the groom dress differently from the other men in the procession and that tails be worn only after 6 p.m.

Abby Releases Survey Results

DEAR READERS: Well, I asked for it. Last June (1987) I ran the following item: "Readers, I need your cooperation for an important survey. Question: Have you ever cheated on your mate? How long have you been together? You need not sign your name, but please state your age, and indicate whether you are male or female. Please send a postcard or letter."

My office was promptly deluged with not only postcards, but letters — some very long ones — explaining why they cheated, or why they didn't. (Mostly why they did.)

Several readers asked me to define the word "cheated." One man wrote from Portland, Ore.: "Would you call it cheating if the wife said, 'I don't care what you do as long as you don't bother me?'"

Others acknowledged open marriages: "I go my way, he goes his — no questions asked — so since there is no cheating going on, are we eligible for this survey?"

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Another free spirit put it more eloquently: "My wife and I are very much in love. We are also sophisticated, mature adults who realize that as we travel along life's way, eventually we will meet others to whom we will be physically attracted, so rather than suppress the normal desire for sexual variety, we choose to express our healthy feelings openly — without denial or deception. Would you call this 'cheating?'"

Good question. And the answer is YES. In my view, when two people wed, they vow to forsake all others until death do they part — not until they meet others to whom they are physically attracted. And to break that vow is indeed "cheating."

Ten weeks into the survey, Marcia Smith, a reporter for the Dallas

Times Herald called. "How's your survey coming?" she asked. I told her that we still had unopened cartons of mail stacked to the ceiling, and it was still pouring in. Then I added that although we were not tabulating cities or states, thus far, Dallas respondents appeared to be confessing their infidelities in greater numbers than the national average.

Well, the following day, the Dallas Times Herald ran a Page One story headlined: "DALLAS A HOTBED OF SIN, ABBY'S SURVEY FINDS."

Naturally, Dallas faithfuls came forward in droves, demanding to be counted. Soon a bale of mail arrived from the Dallas area, tilting the figures heavily in favor of the faithfuls. (You might call this stacking the deck — easily accomplished with a well-organized letter writing campaign.) One Dallas couple wrote: "Have a heart, Abby. It's bad enough that oil took a nosedive — now this! We've been together for 26 years, have been 100 percent faithful to each other, and nobody in our circle of friends is fooling around either."

Many readers asked why I was taking this survey. A Wisconsin woman wrote: "What will it prove? If the majority of married men admit to cheating, it will only comfort the cheaters, and encourage the faithful ones to cheat, too."

Another suggested that my survey would be flawed because in our culture it enhances a man's macho image to claim numerous sexual conquests, and, as Victorian as it may seem, it is not culturally acceptable for females to admit to sexual promiscuity.

Some of the letters I received were so funny, poignant and fascinating that reading them slowed down the tabulations.

Many couples married 50 years and longer sent their wedding anniversary pictures, proudly asking to be counted among those who "never cheated, never wanted to, never needed to and never expected to."

The results of this survey astonished me. I learned that we are a far more moral society than most people thought we were. This postcard came from Downers Grove, Ill.: "I'm 82 years young, male, married 56 years and never cheated, but like Jimmy Carter, I confess to having lusted in my heart a time or two."

From Chicago: "I'm 52 and female. Married 15 years. Never considered cheating, although I might change my mind if Paul Newman asked me."

So, my friends, everyone is not cheating, and I have the figures to prove it.

Tomorrow: The results from a survey that brought 210,336 responses from the USA and Canada.

DEAR ABBY: Add this to your file of ungrateful people: Two years ago, I went to the bank where I have had my account for many years. I handed the teller two 20s and a $10 bill, and asked her for 50 $1 bills.

She gave me 50 $10 bills — that's a total of $500! I started to tell her that she had made a mistake, when she said, "Please move along. I have a long line of people to wait on."

I finally was able to convince her that she had made a mistake and given me too much money. She took the money back, gave me the correct amount and turned to the next customer without so much as a "thank-you" to me.

But that night, I slept soundly. — JERRY PAYMER, BALTIMORE

DEAR JERRY: Although virtue is its own reward, a simple acknowledgment of yours would have been in order. The teller was not only rude, she was probably too arrogant to acknowledge her mistake.

Defense Keys Temple By UNC

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer
CHAPEL HILL — Temple coach John Chaney said defense has been a stabilizer for his team all year long and Sunday it was the catalyst for the Owls in a 83-66 basketball win over North Carolina.

The top-ranked Owls went on a 19-0 run to open the second-half that erased a five-point halftime deficit and helped Temple hand the Tar Heels their most lopsided defeat since they moved into the Dean E. Smith Student Activities Center just over two years ago.

"Our defense has always been the stabilizer," Chaney said. "Our defense has always been there but the shooting certainly has been up and down. We were real fortunate to shoot well in this game. That perhaps was the most important thing."

The Owls connected on 68 percent of their shots in the second half and forced UNC into 29 turnovers on the day, including 18 in the second half.

Mike Vreeswyk led the way for Temple with career-high 26 points, including five 3-pointers, while freshman Mark Macon added 19.

"I don't ever remember seeing any 19-0 runs," said UNC coach Dean Smith. "I was extremely impressed with Temple's second half. I can't remember a half against us quite like it. They played defense and shot it in against what I thought was good defense."

The Tar Heels led most of the first half, but never by more than seven points, and settled for a 39-34 edge by halftime.

But the second half was a different story.

"The difference in the second half was just Mark Macon," Chaney said. "He seemed to get all of us into a good position where we could feed off him."

"Howard Evans, I thought, was a great stabilizer. He played 40 minutes of stabilizing defense for us up the middle and that was important to control the type of pressure they put on us."

Vreeswyk opened things up in the second half with a follow of miss by Macon to make it 39-36.

With 17:35 remaining, Macon nailed a 3-pointer to tie it at 39-39.

On UNC's next possession, Macon stole the ball from Jeff Lebo and jammed it home at the other end to give Temple a lead it would never relinquish.

Evans followed by picking up another steal, one of his seven for the day, and hit a layup at the other end for a 43-39 edge.

"Once we got a 10-0 run I knew we had a great chance of coming out of here with a win," Evans said. "Once we got it to 10, (then) we got it to 19. I noticed they were getting panicky. J.R. was getting frustrated. We knew then we had it."

J.R. Reid was called for an offensive foul on UNC's next possession to turn the ball back over to the Owls. Vreeswyk turned that miscue into another 3-pointer for a 46-39 edge.

side, Perry rebounded and Vreeswyk hit another trey for a 51-39 lead.

Macon finished off the 19-0 run by the Owls with a jumper in the paint for a 53-39 advantage.

UNC's drought finally ended with a four-point play from Lebo with 13:22 left. Lebo hit a 3-pointer, was fouled by Vreeswyk, and made the free throw to trim the lead to 10 at 53-43.

Shortly thereafter, UNC cut it back to nine following a basket by King Rice at 55-46, but that was as close as the Tar Heels would get.

Try as they might, UNC just couldn't get back into the game. Nothing worked against the Owls. Not even the patented run-and-jump defense, which has keyed so many comebacks in the past, could help the Tar Heels.

"We worked on it (UNC's pressure defense) in practice so we were ready for it," Evans said. "You have to keep your head up and look for the open man. A lot of guards want to try and beat them with the dribble but you can't do that because they are moving with you. We didn't miss the open guy and he didn't miss the open shot."

The two teams just took opposite directions from half to half.

UNC shot 50 percent in the first half and then connected on only 10 of 29 shots over the final 20 minutes. Temple went from 40 percent shooting in

Tom Morris

CHAPEL HILL — While some may have had questions about Temple's number-one ranking before Sunday's clash with North Carolina, there were few doubters remaining after the dust had cleared following a convincing 83-66 pasting of the Tar Heels.

Least among them was UNC Coach Dean Smith. "I'm certainly voting them number one," he said.

Yes, the Owls put a hurting on the boys in blue. John Chaney's Owls, now 22-1, are for real.

"We looked at this game as a real big game for us," Chaney said. "This game will give us a lot of confidence going into the last leg of our schedule, the last five games. It's certainly a morale builder, coming into Carolina where there are traditionally good teams and winning."

While the win could go a long way in garnering some well-deserved respect for the Temple program, Chaney said he was sure there will always be some skeptics.

"There will always be doubts," he said. "We've shown two sides of the coin. We've shown people that we don't look so good at times and we've shown that we look good at times. There are going to be people that critique us either way. I'm not concerned about that one way or the other. I think we've stayed our course. I was real happy with the way our kids played out there today."

Temple overcame a five-point halftime deficit by opening the second half with a 19-0 run that the Tar Heels never really recovered from.

"I've had a lot of victories in my career that I'm happy about," said Chaney, who is in his sixth year at Temple with overall record of 368-96.

"This now at this particular moment is a very heartening one because we're trying to get into post-season play with a lot more verve as I see it. I think the only way you're going to get there is to overcome teams like Carolina."

And the Owls, who are from the Atlantic 10 Conference, did it in impressive fashion. They shut down J.R. Reid (10 points) and Scott Williams (nine points) inside and put enough pressure on the Tar Heels to force 29 turnovers while committing only nine themselves.

The win over UNC could be a big boon to the Owls in terms of both morale and respect.

"North Carolina's a top team and they have a bench full of All-Americans," said Temple guard Howard Evans. "Everybody on our team took it as a personal challenge to come into the Dean Smith Center and come out with a win. Not too many teams have won here."

Three to be exact and none by this large a margin.

"We haven't lost one like this in a while," Smith said. "The other three games we lost this year and the three we lost all last year all went down to the last 30 seconds."

The number-one ranking is the highest regular season ranking ever by Temple. And while it can mean a lot of prestige for the university, it can become a noose around the neck of the team that must wear it. Just ask the Tar Heels, who held the honor early in the season before falling to Vanderbilt, 78-76, Dec. 5.

The media crunch on the top team can be suffocating, resulting in a ridiculous amount of pressure. It's a new and uncomfortable experience for Chaney.

"That is part of the reason we've instituted a gag rule on some of our (younger) players," he said. "We've run into situations where people are constantly badgering our players on and off campus. It has become quite a problem. There is a lot of attention on them. I've tried to fight off some of that. It's been quite hectic for me."

"But I know that it is enjoyable for the fans and it's great for the University."

Only time will tell if that will have any effect on the Owls. It sure didn't seem to bother them against the Tar Heels.

Campbell Helps Tigers Top Cavs

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — When Clemson and Virginia battled earlier this year, Tiger center Elden Campbell watched the final seconds from the bench after he had fouled out.

Virginia took advantage of Campbell's absence and a turnover in the final seconds to forge a two-point victory.

Campbell had a better vantage point Sunday, and his three-point play with one second was the difference as the Tigers held off a 65-62 Atlantic Coast Conference victory.

"I think it's very fitting the game ended this way," Clemson coach Cliff Ellis said. "We lost a tough one earlier in the season, and we won a tough one today. It was the same situation, only today we scored."

Campbell finished the game with 24 points, 10 rebounds and three blocked shots to help the Tigers hand Virginia its fifth straight loss.

Virginia played without senior guard John Johnson, who was suspended Saturday after failing a university-administered drug test. His suspension is listed as indefinite but will probably be for the rest of the season, Coach Terry Holland said.

"I think it's fair to say that," Holland said when asked if Johnson's suspension was permanent. "John is still a member of the family, and we still love him. I'm tremendously disappointed, but no more than John himself."

The Tigers, 12-11 overall and 2-8 in the league after snapping a six-game losing streak, saw Virginia rally from a 14-point deficit to tie it at 60 with 1:13 left.

Jerry Pryor, who had 12 points, put the Tigers ahead with 48 seconds left.

but Mel Kennedy scored with 20 seconds left to tie it at 62. The 6-foot-10 Campbell then took a feed from Grayson Marshall, the ACC's career assist leader, in the final seconds and muscled inside for a layup and drew a foul from Kennedy.

Virginia was led by Kennedy with 26 points, 21 coming in the second half. Richard Morgan added 16 for the Cavaliers.

Virginia, 12-14 and 4-6, took an early 8-4 lead before Clemson guard Tim Kincaid, who scored 11 of his 16 points in the first half, ignited the Tigers to a 26-17 advantage with seven minutes left.

Virginia got within 30-27, but Pryor keyed another Clemson scoring surge to put the Tigers up 37-27 at halftime.

Bonnett Wins Disputed Pontiac 400

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Pontiac 400 stock car race turned into a two contests, one on the track and one at the scorers' table — and NASCAR ruled that Neil Bonnett won both.

A tire change dropped Bonnett two laps down in Sunday's race, but he charged back for a 1½-car-length victory over Ricky Rudd — only to have Rudd later dispute the results.

Nearly two hours after the race, NASCAR officials said they had dismissed Rudd's contention that Bonnett had made up only one of his two lost laps.

The victory snapped a 29-race winless drought for Bonnett, and, more importantly to the 41-year-old driver from Bessemer, Ala., it marked a milestone in his comeback from a serious crash Oct. 11 at Charlotte, N.C.

"It was a long time coming, and worse than that, it almost wasn't going to come," said Bonnett, who has a metal plate in his hip to help repair a leg broken in the wreck. "After I got hurt, it almost was a deal where I wasn't going to be able to come back. Thank goodness I had some good doctors and it worked out."

The race was the last Winston Cup event at the antiquated .542-mile Richmond Fairgrounds Raceway oval, which is being replaced with a ¾-mile track that officials plan to have ready for the Miller High Life 400 in September.

"I won my first race at this race track back in '77, and it feels good to win it just before they tear it down again," Bonnett said.

The victory was the 17th of Bonnett's career and was worth $45,900.

"I don't care if it pays anything," he said. "It just feels so good to win after so long. Man, I'm just tickled to death to win a race."

Bonnett was leading on the 193rd lap when Dale Earnhardt passed him. Bonnett's Pontiac continued to fall off the pace, and he pitted under a green flag on lap 228 to change all four tires, losing two laps in the process.

NASCAR ruled that Bonnett got one lap back by passing Earnhardt when the two-time defending Winston Cup champion was leading on lap 243, and Bonnett got back on the lead lap on the 302nd lap, just before Earnhardt had to pit for right-side tires.

Rudd didn't see it that way, and he and car owner Kenny Bernstein expressed their dissatisfaction to NASCAR officials after the race.

"We got cheated out of this race," Rudd said. "I won the race and Richard Petty run second. That's all I know. It's too bad the crew is getting cheated out of the Victory Lane ceremony."

Petty, who came in third, and Darrell Waltrip, who finished fourth, also were displeased with the race scoring.

"It was just an error," Petty said. "I'd say the way the race was screwed up was that nobody knows where anybody is when it got over with. They say to you, 'You finish here,' or, 'You finish there.'"

"There's not a soul in the pits who agrees with them," Waltrip said. "They are just going to have to work on the scoring system with the amount of good cars running now. It's not the same as when there were just four or five good cars in a race. And that's just constructive criticism."

Bonnett took the lead for good when he passed Lake Speed on the backstretch with 48 laps left.

Rudd was several car lengths behind Bonnett when the leader got caught in traffic with five laps left and bounced off the second-turn guardrail. But Bonnett was able to straighten out the car and hold off Rudd over the final laps.

"I didn't know that I was going to get off the wall," Bonnett said. "I hit it pretty good a time or two."

The scoring flap overshadowed Bonnett's use of Hoosier tires, which are in their first season as a sanctioned Winston Cup tire. The Hoosier victory broke a stranglehold Goodyear had held on the Winston Cup trail since 1971.

Bonnett said the tires were not to blame for his going two laps down.

"I stretched the first set and it got me in trouble," he said. "I wanted to see how far we could go on 'em, and we ran 'em too far and got behind. That's why I had to make up the difference."

Sterling Marlin finished fifth, followed by Speed, Rusty Wallace, Bobby Hillin, Terry Labonte and Earnhardt.

In addition to Bonnett, 12 other drivers were riding on Hoosiers, including Marlin, Speed and Hillin.

Morgan Shepherd, who started on the pole, came in 16th, two laps off the pace.

There were 11 lead changes among six drivers. Earnhardt and Bonnett each led three times, Earnhardt for a total of 151 laps and Bonnett for 141.

Earnhardt at times dominated the field, but fell one lap back when he blew a tire with about 85 laps left.

Disputed Victory

Rose Qualifies Three For State Meet

DURHAM — Mike House, Jeff House and Milton Leathers of Rose High all qualified for the state 4-A wrestling championship meet Saturday night.

Mike House, who was seeded second at 145 pounds, advanced the regional finals where he lost to Earl Sutton of Durham High, the number one seed, 12-5. Along the way House pinned Sinatra Brothers of Northeastern (2:25); pinned Tim Miller of Hillsborough Orange (3:35) and defeated Ricky Jay of Person (14:10) before losing to Sutton in the finals.

Milton Leathers, at 160 pounds, was seeded sixth and advanced to the finals before losing to Ocie Jackson of Northern Durham, 5-3. Leathers pinned Jimmy Winston of Smithfield Selma in the first round at 3:25 before defeating number-three seed Jeff Iglio of Raleigh Sanderson, 4-1 and followed that up by defeating James Gardner of Durham by pin at 1:56 to advance to the finals.

Jeff House, seeded third at 189 pounds, placed fourth, losing to eventual champion David Coufman of Cary in the semi-finals by a pin at the 4:58 mark.

House made it that far by defeating Mark Macklin of Northern Nash, 10-0, in the first round. In the second round, he decided Nelson Brown of Northeastern, 12-3, before to Kaufman. In the loser's bracket, he pinned James Trenner of Raleigh Enloe at 1:45 to go to the finals of the loser's bracket, where he lost to Wayne McKnight of Rocky Mount, 7-2.

The three advance to the finals this weekend at East Forsyth in Winston-Salem for the state tournament.

As a team, Rose placed sixth as a team out of 26 total squads.

Greenville Takes 8th At State Meet

WINSTON-SALEM — Greenville placed eighth out of 24 teams at the Class IV State Gymnastics meet this past weekend.

Raleigh School of Gymnastics took first followed by Sand Hills in second and Gym Carolina of Raleigh rounded out the top three.

In the 9-11 age group, Greenville was led by Stacey Bornstein who placed 17th in the all-around. She placed seventh in the balance beam with a score of 8.20.

In the 12-14 age group, Gray Robinson placed eighth in vaulting with an 8.0. Jennifer Miller, in the same age group, won a ribbon by placing 15th on the beam with 7.4.

In addition to the state meet, Greenville also had two girls to place in an individual meet for seven and eight year olds.

Heather Bullock was third on beam with a 7.1 while Katy Aydtlett was fifth in vaulting with a 7.75.

Conley's Hill Signs Volleyball Grant

D.H. Conley's Hanna Hill recently signed a grant-in-aid to attend the University of North Carolina on a volleyball scholarship.

Hill was an All-Coastal Conference pick during her junior and senior years as the Valkyries won Coastal titles both seasons. During her junior year, Conley was the state 3-A champion while the Valkyries advanced to the state semi-finals this past year.

Hill also was a member of the North Carolina Junior Olympic team during the summer of 1986.

Pitt Falls To North Carolina JV Team

CHAPEL HILL — North Carolina's JV team handed Pitt Community College a 79-69 college basketball defeat following the UNC-Temple game at the Smith Center Sunday.

Pitt trailed 39-33 at the half but rallied to within 59-58 with 7:22 remaining but UNC moved back out in front by as much as a 13-point lead over the final minutes to gain the win.

Pitt closes the regular season at 8-20 and advances to the Region X Division II Tournament Saturday at 3 p.m. at D.H. Conley High school.

Mike Hathaway led Pitt with 18 points while Doug Elstun had 34 points for the Tar Heels.

Pate Gains Second Win Of The Season

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — It's six weeks deep into the PGA Tour season and Steve Pate already has achieved his major target for the year.

"Starting out this season, I set a goal for myself. I wanted to win more than once," Pate said.

"I've done that."

"Now, I just want to keep on winning more. I want to win every time I tee it up. Realistically, you know you can't do that."

"But that's what you're trying to do," Pate said.

The wiry, 26-year-old scored his second victory of the young season Sunday with a last-hole birdie that broke a tie with Jay Haas and gave Pate the title in the Andy Williams Open.

The victory, the third of his 5-season Tour career and third in six months, was worth $117,000 from the total purse of $650,000 and increased Pate's earnings for the year to $229,888.

It also made him the first two-time winner of the season, confirming Pate as one of the hot young prospects and prompting a change in his schedule.

"I just decided, right now," Pate said, "to play the British Open for the first time. I'm excited about that."

Pate's earlier victory this season, in his first appearance at the elite Tournament of Champions at nearby La Costa, was a 54-hole affair.

He put himself in front of the pack after three rounds and was declared the winner when a storm delayed, interrupted and eventually washed out the final round.

He didn't have to face his last-round nerves in that one. This one was different.

Douglass Wins Seniors Event

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Dale Douglass kept the lead for the entire tournament, but struggled for a 2-over-par 74 Sunday to win the $300,000 Suncoast Seniors Classic at Tampa Palms Golf and Country Club.

Douglass claimed the $45,000 winner's check with a total of 210 for his two-stroke victory over Orville Moody, who closed with a 5-under-par 67, the only sub-70 score of the final round.

Agassi's Ground Game Sinks Pernfors

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Andre Agassi relied on his powerful ground strokes to dispose of Sweden's Mikael Pernfors in straight sets to capture the $415,000 U.S. Indoor Tennis Championship Sunday.

The 17-year-old Agassi, the tournament's sixth seed, outplayed No. 9 Pernfors from the baseline for the bulk of the two-hour, 13-minute match to become the youngest player to win the U.S. Indoor title since the tournament went to an open format in 1968.

Navratilova Wins Virginia Slims Title

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Martina Navratilova beat the Soviet Union's Larisa Savchenko 6-1, 6-2 Sunday to conclude a dominating week of tennis and win the $250,000 Virginia Slims of California event.

The top-seeded Navratilova won all five of her matches during the tournament in straight sets and lost only 16 games. A strong serving performance including four aces was the key to her victory over Savchenko, the unseeded 21-year-old who upset three seeded players to reach the finals.

Five Players Triple Income

NEW YORK (AP) — Vince Coleman, Terry Pendleton, Larry Sheets, Joe Carter and Ted Higuera — part of the first group of players affected by arbitration changes in 1985's strike settlement — tripled their salaries this winter.

Nineteen other first-time eligibles doubled their salaries, according to a survey by The Associated Press. The 49 arbitration rookies increased their salaries by an average of 114 percent.

Of the 108 players in arbitration, 90 settled before hearings. Owners won seven of 18 cases decided by arbitrators, the seventh consecutive year they won more cases than they lost. Owners have won 149 cases and the players 118 since the arbitration process began in 1974.

The 108 players in arbitration this year gained an average salary increase of $220,539.

The salaries used for the AP study were obtained during January and February from several player and management sources on the condition that they not be identified.

The overall group of players who filed increased their salaries 65 percent, the players' best year since 1985, when their salaries rose 70 percent. Salaries of players who filed for arbitration increased 60 percent in 1986 and 35 percent last year, the lowest increase since 1975.

The players eligible this year for the first time all passed three years of service in 1987. They were the first group affected by the 1985 strike settlement, which increased service time for arbitration to three years from two.

In 1987, the salaries for players in the two-to-three-year class decreased from $243,000 to $189,000, according to a study prepared for general managers last autumn by the owners' Player Relations Committee.

However, the players in this group who filed for arbitration this winter raised their salaries from an average of $215,000 to an average of $460,000. Last year, the average salary for players between their third and fourth years was $431,000, according to the PRC study.

Coleman increased his salary by 337 percent, from $160,000 to $700,000, the largest percentage increase of any player. Sheets increased his 272 percent ($145,000 to $540,000), Carter 236 percent ($250,000 to $840,000), Pendleton 214 percent ($210,000 to $660,000) and Higuera 206 percent ($335,000 to $1.025 million).

Purdue Defeats IU, Maintains First Place

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Todd Mitchell scored 21 of his 24 points in the second half and Troy Lewis had 22 points and a career-high 14 assists as No. 2 Purdue defeated Indiana 95-85 Sunday to retain possession of first place in the Big Ten Conference.

Melvin McCants scored a career-high 21 points as Purdue consistently went inside to Mitchell and McCants with Indiana center Dean Garrett in foul trouble.

The victory moved the Boiler-makers to 22-2, 11-1 in the conference and one game ahead of Michigan. Indiana dropped to 15-8 and 7-6.

McCants' basket put Purdue ahead to stay 76-75. Everett Stephens' two free throws gave Purdue an 88-81 advantage with 1:52 remaining and when Lewis added two free throws with 1:31 left, Purdue led 90-81.

But goals by Garrett and Jay Edwards cut Indiana's deficit to five before a Mitchell dunk with 34 seconds left.

Keith Smart led Indiana with 23 points and Edwards scored 20. Garrett, who scored a career-high 31 points when the Hoosiers upset Purdue 82-79 on Jan. 30, sat on the bench for the rest of the first half after picking up three fouls with only 4:31 gone in the period. He finished with only 10 points, although he never fouled out.

Purdue led 49-47 at halftime.

Lewis extended his streak of successful 3-pointers in the second half, making three. He's made at least one in 40 consecutive games and extended his record in conference play to 25.

Missouri.....92 Oklahoma St.....70

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Derrick Chievous scored 21 points Sunday to lead the 15th-ranked Missouri Tigers to a 92-70 victory over Oklahoma State in a Big Eight game.

Oklahoma State Coach Leonard Hamilton was thrown out of the game early in the second half when the Cowboys' bench was assessed its third technical foul. Hamilton had drawn a double technical foul three minutes into the game.

Missouri, 17-6 overall and 6-4 in the Big Eight, outscored the Cowboys 14-3 in the first 5½ minutes of the second half to take a 55-42 lead.

Mike Sandbothe, who finished with 10 points, led the Tigers' charge with six points. Chievous hit four free throws in the rally, including two after Hamilton was ejected.

The Cowboys, 12-12 and 3-7, had stayed close throughout the first half and built a 34-28 lead with about five minutes to play in the half. Missouri came back to outscore Oklahoma State 13-5 the rest of the way, and a 3-point shot by Lee Coward with three seconds left in the half gave the Tigers a 41-39 lead.

Doug Smith had 14 points and Coward finished with 13 for Missouri.

John Starks scored 19 points and Richard Dumas added 18 for the Cowboys.

Pirates Are Still Willing To Trade

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates, inactive during the winter trading market after making a flurry of deals last season, are still in the trading business.

General Manager Syd Thrift says his inability to make an off-season trade isn't a sign he's standing pat with a young team that won 27 of its last 38 games last season.

"We still have an open door and open telephone lines," he said Sunday. "I'm willing to talk to anybody ... I've been talking ever since I got here (spring training). We've centered on the teams that have hitting and are looking for pitching. ... We have a lot of good, young arms that people would like to have."

The Pirates tried to pry away power-hitting infielder Brook Jacoby from Cleveland during baseball's winter meetings in December, but Thrift said the deal was never close to completion.

"We've got pitchers, which is what they want, and they've got hitters ... but we've never been close to making a trade with them," he said. "Never."

Although the Pirates closed with a burst last season to tie Philadelphia for fourth place in the National League East, Thrift said, "You have to keep improving, you have to keep moving in this game or else you'll get run down from behind."

Thrift thinks it will be easier to make a deal once it gets closer to the start of the season and teams have a better idea of their immediate needs. Last April, the Pirates made a 3-for-1 trade with St. Louis involving catcher Tony Pena less than a week before the season started.

"That's why we were able to make so many trades last season," Thrift said. "We were able to capitalize on the right moment ... when teams had a need to fill, when teams were trying to win a pennant. It's hard to make a trade now unless the timing is just right. Teams want to see what they have."

handed starter and a right-handed power hitter "but I'm not going to go trading for a pitcher just because he's left-handed ... he's got to be better than what we've already got," he said.

"That's the thing about young people, all of a sudden they're ready to do the job ... and we have the youngest team in the major leagues, with only 2.2 average years of service. Right now is the time for refinement and fine tuning, to really evaluate what we have here."

Thrift said, "The mystery of spring training is that every year somebody comes out of nowhere to do the job. A club may spend all winter trying to fill a need and then discover in spring training that need was already filled."

Thrift placed an emphasis on acquiring young prospects when he dealt away nearly all of the Pirates' veteran talent last season, including Pena, infielders Jim Morrison and Johnny Ray and pitchers Rick Reuschel and Don Robinson.

Between the end of the 1986 season and the end of last season, Thrift made eight trades to acquire 11 players now on the Pirates' 38-man roster. Among those obtained were Andy Van Slyke, Mike LaValliere, Mike Dunne, Mackey Sasser, Darnell Coles, Jeff Robinson, Jim Gott and Al Pedrique.

French Skier Does It His Way

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — A French skier named after Frank Sinatra did it his way, Soviet hockey players skated closer to gold, and the world again left the United States behind in the Winter Olympics.

It would have taken a miracle for the U.S. hockey team to win a medal, but they used up their quota for the decade in 1980 and went down to defeat 4-1 against West Germany on Sunday.

The Debacle on Ice knocked the Americans out of medal contention for the second consecutive Olympics after they won the gold eight years ago.

"We played well; we didn't always play wisely," said U.S. Coach Dave Peterson. "The world didn't end. We only lost a hockey game."

The Soviets not only won a hockey game, 6-1 over tough Czechoslovakia, they also became the only team in the tournament with a perfect 5-0 record.

"If the Russians continue playing like they did today, I don't think they'll find a worthy opponent in the tournament," said Czech Coach Jan Starsi. "They showed great individual skills in every single performance that's important in hockey."

Some of the Soviets may not find a worthy opponent until they reach the National Hockey League, a prospect that may be inspiring some of the Soviet players.

Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players Association reaffirmed there is a chance the top Soviet players will join the NHL late this season and a 90 percent chance they'll play in the league next year.

The day began with promise for the U.S. team but ended more with no medals, the Americans stuck at three, while the Soviets moved up to 16, the East Germans held at 10 and Austria and Switzerland each notched their sixth.

The memory of Brian Boitano's figure skating gold and Eric Flaim's speed skating silver on Saturday lingered sweetly in the U.S. camp on Sunday morning.

American athletes and fans puffed out their chests a little more, raised their heads, looked up at the giant torch on the Calgary Tower instead of down at the ground and its sparse fringe of snow.

But U.S. fortunes changed as quickly as the fickle weather shifted from balmy to bone-chilling. Temperatures are expected to keep dropping today as American hopes for a fourth medal rest on speed skater Bonnie Blair of Champaign, Ill., in the 500 meters.

Franck Piccard of France, who grew up in the Alps but was named after Sinatra by admiring parents, won the super giant slalom and his country's first ski gold since Jean-Claude Killy in 1968.

Helmut Mayer of Austria won the silver, and Lars-Boerje Eriksson of Sweden took the bronze. The highest U.S. finisher was No. 18 Tiger Shaw of Stowe, Vt.

"I came here to live great moments. This is the biggest I have ever had," Piccard, 24, said.

Piccard, who has a brother named after John F. Kennedy and other siblings named after Americans, had not been having a very good year until he arrived in Calgary. Coming back from serious injuries, he had no victories on the World Cup tour but earned a bronze last week in the downhill.

He says the French may be on the verge of reclaiming some of their lost prestige on the slopes, but acknowledges, "I have done nothing compared to what Killy did." Killy won all three Alpine golds at Grenoble and boosted the popularity of the sport worldwide.

There were 40,000 fans and plenty of thrills at the women's aerial freestyle skiing but no official medals to be won. Melanie Palenik of Littleton, Colo., vaulted and twisted to victory in the demonstration event, followed by Sonja Reichart of West Germany and Carin Henskog of Sweden.

Another American, Maria Quintana, 21, of Steamboat Springs, Colo., survived a scary fall when she failed to pull out of a twisting maneuver and landed on her side, snapping her head against the slope. She lay unconscious for two minutes before she was revived. She was later treated for a mild concussion.

More than thrills were at stake in another demonstration sport — an American sweep in the giant slalom for disabled women. Winner Diana Golden, 24, of Lincoln, Mass., who lost her right leg to bone cancer when she was 12, said, "I'm very happy if what I do inspires other athletes with disabilities."

Cathy Gentile of Vail, Colo., won the silver and Martha Hill of Winter Park, Colo., took the bronze in a field of five skiers.

Alexander Spitz of West Germany won the disabled men's giant slalom, followed by Greg Mannino of Yorba Linda, Calif., and Fritz Berger of Switzerland.

Georgetown-Pitt Game Is Marred By Big Brawl

By David Aldridge
(c) 1988, The Washington Post
PITTSBURGH — Georgetown and Pittsburgh were four seconds away from finishing a clean, hard-fought basketball game Saturday. But chaos took control on the court and a bench-clearing fight ended the contest with the Panthers ahead, 70-65.

This game, which neither team led by more than six points throughout, will probably be remembered only for the melee that ended it. Before that, the Hoyas (17-7, 7-6 in the Big East) had outrebounded the Panthers 36-21, but Pittsburgh pounded the ball inside to its imposing duo of Jerome Lane and Charles Smith late in the game to take control.

The incident occurred with Sam Jefferson on the line with four seconds to play. Jefferson missed the first free throw, and was called for a lane violation on the second, which he missed intentionally.

Lane (15 points, seven rebounds) was underneath the basket, on the left side. Georgetown's Perry McDonald was opposite him. Lane told CBS-TV afterward that McDonald elbowed him in the back of the head as the two jockeyed for position on the second free throw. Television replays seemed to support Lane's assessment.

Three separate altercations then took place. McDonald and Lane squared off to the left of the basket, Lane throwing the first punch. They parted, as Lane backed up toward midcourt.

Meanwhile, Jefferson somehow wound up on the floor on the right side, near midcourt, with Pittsburgh's Demetreus Gore. Gore wound up on top of Jefferson, and bloodied Jefferson's face with an elbow.

Then, Pittsburgh's Smith exchanged punches briefly with Georgetown's Johnathan Edwards. But McDonald and Lane found each other, and continued wrestling, winding up by crashing into press row and taking out the table of the Pittsburgh Press.

Pacers Continue Recent Streak

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

Only one NBA team is undefeated since the All-Star break, and the answer isn't the Los Angeles Lakers.

The winner is ... Indiana, which won its seventh consecutive game Sunday, 130-112 over Sacramento.

The winning streak matches the Pacers' longest since they joined the NBA in 1976.

"Seven in a row, that makes life easier," said Coach Jack Ramsay, who celebrated his 63rd birthday with the victory. "We had some real good spots in the game, but we didn't handle their trap well."

A run of four games in five days, starting Tuesday in Atlanta, will be a real test for the Pacers, 28-22, who beat the Lakers in Los Angeles on Feb. 9, the second game of the winning streak.

The Pacers took a 31-16 lead en route to a 67-50 halftime margin as Long scored eight points during an 18-6 first-quarter run.

Long, who was 10-for-13 from the field for the game, also scored seven points during a 17-8 spurt that opened the third quarter, extending Indiana's lead to 86-60.

Lakers 117, Pistons 110
Los Angeles completed a 6-0 sweep of the Eastern Conference's top three teams as reserves Mychal Thompson and Wes Matthews sparkled in the final minute of overtime.

Dennis Rodman's free throw gave Detroit a 110-109 lead with 51 seconds left in overtime before Thompson converted a three-point play with 41 seconds left and Wes Matthews added five points in the last 30 seconds for the Lakers.

Hawks 129, SuperSonics 113
Atlanta beat Seattle for only its fourth victory in 12 games, but it was enough to move the Hawks back into first place in the Central Division, a half-game ahead of Detroit.

Bucks 120, 76ers 115
Milwaukee handed Philadelphia its 14th straight road defeat as Terry Cummings scored seven of his 36 points in overtime.

Cavaliers 113, Bulls 111
Cleveland survived a 46-point performance by Chicago's Michael Jordan as Brad Daugherty scored 11 of his 29 points in the fourth quarter, including a decisive three-point play with 16 seconds remaining.

Trail Blazers 117, Spurs 112
Portland rallied to beat San Antonio as Jerome Kersey, Kiki Vandeweghe and Clyde Drexler each scored more than 20 points.

Kersey had 25 points and 12 rebounds, while Drexler scored 24 and Vandeweghe 22. Vandeweghe scored 10 points in the first five minutes of the final period as the Trail Blazers rallied from a seven-point deficit.

Mike Mitchell scored 27 points and Alvin Robertson 23 for the Spurs.

Blair Is Hoping For Some Success

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — American Bonnie Blair hopes to use finesse and skill to break the East German stranglehold on women's speed skating.

"Basically I'm a technical skater," Blair said on the eve of today's 500-meter race. "That's the thing I concentrate on. I don't have the power and strength of GDR (German Democratic Republic) women, so I do have to try to surpass them in another way. That way for me is to have good technique. I think that is one of their flaws."

The East Germans have dominated women's speed skating since the 1984 Winter Olympics when they claimed nine of 12 medals and finished 1-2 in each of the four events.

"I think pretty much any woman's goal in speed skating is to beat the GDR," said Blair.

On the strength of her performance at the world sprint championships in Milwaukee, Wis., earlier this month, Blair might just be the one to do it.

Blair split two 500-meter races with world-record holder and defending Olympic champion Christa Rothenburger, winning the second in a rare head-to-head pairing.

Trump Apparently Cools On Pats

NEW YORK (AP) — Billionaire real estate developer Donald Trump, apparently afraid of taking huge financial losses, has abruptly backed out of the bidding for the New England Patriots.

"Despite the love Donald Trump has for New England and his fondness for the Sullivan family, Mr. Trump has decided not to pursue the purchase of the New England Patriots at this time," a spokesman for Trump said Sunday night.

The spokesman, who asked that his name not be revealed, said Trump did not immediately wish to discuss the reasons for his decision not to buy the NFL team. Trump was scheduled to be in Atlantic City, N.J. today.

But today's editions of the Boston Globe quoted an unidentified source close to Trump as saying that the real estate tycoon just didn't think the deal would be financially prudent.

"Donald had his numbers people look at the Patriots deal over the weekend and they told him this was one of the worst financial messes they have ever seen," the source said. "He really would like to have a team in the NFL, but this situation was so bad financially he just didn't want to deal with it."

Trump's accountants told him that between the team and Sullivan Stadium, the team's home in Foxboro, Mass., there was $104 million in debt and that the team could lose as much as $10 million this season, the source said.

According to the Globe, Trump told friends that if the Patriots went into bankruptcy or could be purchased at a more reasonable price in the future, he would be interested.

Trump entered the tangled negotiations for the Patriots Feb. 17 when he met with representatives of the team's current ownership, the family of William H. Sullivan, and a Philadelphia group headed by Fran Murray that has gone to court in an attempt to take control of the team.

The announcement that Trump was backing out came as a surprise to Patriots general manager Patrick Sullivan when reached Sunday night by telephone at his home in Newton, Mass.

"It's the first I've heard of it," Sullivan said, adding that there had been no plans to meet with Trump today and that there were no alternative plans in the event of a breakdown in negotiations.

The broken deal also threw into question a lawsuit by the Philadelphia group and apparently cleared the way for the sale of Sullivan Stadium, which has been scheduled for auction Tuesday in the absence of a prior sale agreement.

Trump, 41, was the owner of the New Jersey Generals in the defunct USFL, and the spearhead of a $1.69 billion antitrust suit against the NFL.

The USFL eventually was awarded $3 in damages, and it disbanded, although the case is under appeal.

Any agreement would have been subject to the approval of NFL owners, some of whom were hostile toward Trump. But several, including Tex Schramm of Dallas and Art Modell of Cleveland, have said publicly that they would not block a deal.

The sale price for the Patriots reportedly is $78 million.

Robert Popeo, lawyer for Murray-John Charlton group suing to buy the Patriots, and Joel Kozol, lawyer for the Sullivans, had met in court earlier this month in a dispute over the purchase rights to the club. That suit was put on hold when Trump entered the negotiations.

The Murray-Charlton group began lending the Sullivans what turned out to be $21 million over a 13-month period, dating back to December 1986, in return for an exclusive option to purchase the Patriots for $63 million.

Murray moved to complete the deal last December, but the Sullivans allegedly refused to forward his application for ownership to the NFL for final approval.

Popeo earlier received a restraining order that prevented the Sullivan family from selling the team to anyone else or filing for bankruptcy until the court heard a claim by Murray's group that it was the rightful owner.

Kozol had moved to lift the restraining order and block the takeover.

Popeo argued last week that because the Sullivans had defaulted on a payment of $1.2 million to Murray, his client had a claim to Sullivan's full ownership of Patriots stock.

But after the meeting last week, a Superior Court judge put off further hearings on the suit at the request of both sides. Negotiations were to continue, with a status conference scheduled for this Wednesday.

Last Friday, U.S. District Judge Joseph L. Tauro in Boston refused to block Tuesday's scheduled auction of Sullivan Stadium. The Connecticut Bank and Trust Co., a $2 million stadium creditor, has called for sale of the structure to the highest bidder.

However, Tauro said at the time he might reconsider if Kozol could provide documentation that an agreement had been reached with Trump to buy the team and the stadium by 11 a.m. Tuesday — the scheduled time of the auction.

Kidde Inc., a diversified firm in Saddle Brook, N.J., had sought a temporary injunction from Tauro to block the sale of the stadium. The company declared it is a $12 million creditor to Stadium Management Corp. through the Michael Jackson tour license.

Stadium Management is headed by Charles W. Sullivan, executive vice president of the Patriots and son of William H. Sullivan Jr., president and founder of the team.

Kidde's lawyer, S. Pitkin Marshall, told Tauro that his client would stand to gain full return on the debt if a proposed deal with Trump was made. However if the stadium is sold to the highest bidder, Marshall said, "Kidde knows for certain that $12 million is in jeopardy."

Player Fails Test

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — An unweelcome extra in a post-workout snack at a Winter Olympic ice rink must be the reason Poland's top hockey player tested positive for steroids, team officials said.

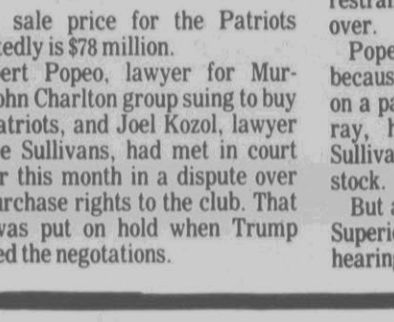

The Polish officials suggested Sunday that someone might have slipped the steroids into food or drink consumed by Jaroslaw Morawiecki after practice at the Corral, which they called "a site not strictly controlled and accessible to unauthorized persons."

The International Olympic Committee announced Saturday that two urine samples taken from Morawiecki after Thursday night's 6-2 victory over France contained large quantities of testosterone, a naturally occurring male hormone that helps build strength.

Death Toll Reaches At Least 80 In Rio Flooding

By LISA GENASCI
Associated Press Writer
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Rescuers struggled in the rain early today to find survivors in the rubble of a collapsed apartment building in Rio, where three days of mudslides and flash floods have killed at least 80 people.

Mayor Roberto Saturnino Braga said the mud, water and debris made the city look like "a giant stepped through" the area.

Officials said the flooding, the worst in the city's history, had rendered homeless at least 11,000 of Rio's 5.6 million residents, washing ramshackle homes down steep slopes and turning streets into raging torrents.

Throughout the city, army trucks and volunteers helped transport evacuated dwellers of precarious hillside shantytowns to temporary shelters in schools, churches and public buildings.

Citizens throughout the nation, prompted by all-night appeals on three commercial TV networks, donated truckloads of medicine, food, clothing and building supplies to the victims.

Using sledgehammers and chain saws, drenched firefighters worked frantically early today to pull people out of the concrete remains of a three-story, six-apartment building in the Abolicao district.

The dwelling was hit by a mudslide Sunday night that killed at least 11 inhabitants in an avalanche of concrete and plaster.

By Sunday night, 9.6 inches of rain had fallen on the city since Friday, when the flooding began.

Braga postponed the post-Carnival reopening of schools and asked private employers to give their workers today off, saying the city could not handle a normal flux of traffic.

Health Secretary Jose Noronha warned against an outbreak of leprosy. He told residents to boil drinking water and said the government would vaccinate for typhoid and tetanus.

The building that collapsed in Abolicao was in a lower-middle-class area. But most victims of the storms were poor people who had lived in shacks built on the city's steep mountainsides.

Water, mud and boulders washed many such shacks down the steep slopes and turned streets below into raging torrents and even lagoons.

"I can't even imagine what will happen to this city if the rains continue," said Vice Mayor Jo Rezende. "The situation is desperate. We estimate 50,000 people will have to be given new housing in safer areas."

At the collapsed building in Abolicao, rescue workers trudged through knee-deep mud and rubble searching for victims. At least 13 people were rescued.

In another district, rescue workers were forced to temporarily abandon their search for elderly patients and hospital staff killed when a mudslide wiped out a three-floor wing of the Santa Geneveva Hillside Clinic.

Although 350 mostly older patients were in the hospital when the slide occurred Saturday, civil defense officials said only about 30 were missing.

In the same district Santa Teresa, an eight-floor apartment building threatened to topple and was evacuated, engineers said.

Although the hillside slums that are home to about 2 million people were hardest hit, wealthy areas also suffered serious damage. Evacuations were ordered after flooding hit the wealthy Gavea, Lagoa and Jardim Botânico districts.

Torrents raged down streets, prompting some people to tie their cars to posts to prevent them from being swept away. Civil defense workers used amphibious vehicles and surfboards to reach people in partially submerged cars.

Meteorologists said the downpour, caused by an Antarctic cold front, was likely to continue through today.

Earlier this month, 207 people died in flooding and mudslides around the state and 13,000 were left homeless. The worst-hit area was Petropolis, a mountain resort town 40 miles north of Rio.

MAN RESCUED — Rescue workers pull a badly injured man from the rubble of a collapsed three-story apartment building Sunday in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, after three days of torrential rains and subsequent mudslides had weakened the structure's foundation. At least 80 people have died and over 11,000 left homeless as a result of the worst flooding in the city's history. (AP Laserphoto)

Communist-Backed Millionaire Elected President In Cyprus

By ALEX EFTY
Associated Press Writer
NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A communist-backed millionaire narrowly defeated his veteran conservative opponent Sunday to become president of Cyprus in his first political campaign.

"I see this as a victory for Cyprus," said George Vassiliou, 56. During his campaign he promised that as head of the Greek Cypriot government he would push for reunification talks with the Turkish side of the divided Mediterranean island.

Vassiliou urged restraint by supporters, but isolated street brawls broke out between his backers and those of conservative Glafcos Clerides in Nicosia, the capital.

Jubilant leftists set fire to Clerides posters and banners, broke several shop windows and stoned cars outside a right-wing club.

In unofficial final returns Vassiliou garnered 51.63 percent of the vote and Clerides 48.37 percent in the first closely contested election since independence from Britain in 1960.

Clerides, 68, and Vassiliou knocked out incumbent Spyros Kyprianou in a first round of balloting in the Greek Cypriot sector on Feb. 14.

Vassiliou called off a pre-dawn election rally, telling The Associated Press: "There is no victor or vanquished. We should all work together for the good of Cyprus."

He said he would make no immediate policy statements.

Clerides told state-run television: "The Cyprus people have chosen Vassiliou as a new president. Despite the small difference, there is no doubt he won the election."

More than 90 percent of the 363,000 voters turned out to vote in the runoff. With 325,062 valid ballots counted from Sunday's election, Vassiliou had 167,834 and Clerides 157,228. Voting was compulsory for all those 21, and there were several thousand ballots ruled invalid.

Kyprianou, 55, had sought a third five-year term on a platform of no negotiations with the Turkish side of the island unless 30,000 Turkish troops and 65,000 Turkish mainland settlers withdrew from the Turkish-occupied north.

Rauf Denkash, president of the Turkish Cypriot breakaway state established in northern Cyprus in 1983, has offered to meet the new president in preliminary negotiations aimed at breaking the 3-year-old deadlock in peace talks sponsored by the United Nations.

Cyprus has been divided since 1974, when the Turkish army invaded the eastern Mediterranean island following a short-lived coup by Greek Cypriot extremists favoring a union with Greece.

Turkey seized the the northern third of the island and forced about 180,000 Greek Cypriots to flee to the south. Turkish Cypriots declared their own republic in 1983, but Turkey is the only country to recognize it.

The separation of the island has been the dominant issue in the election. Clerides and Vassiliou both said they would hold talks with the other side.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY Feb. 23

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): If you have plans to make some improvements to your property, get several estimates. Pay at least part of an overdue debt.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Try to be more diplomatic today; the world doesn't revolve around your opinions. Be more affectionate to your friends this evening.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You may be anxious to gain more assets, but you'll need more preparation before you act. Finish any tasks you have left undone.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Much can be accomplished today if you enlist the aid of some loyal friends. Stay at home and enjoy your family tonight.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Putting pressure on a superior in order to achieve your goals would thwart your efforts. Don't react to an obstacle without thinking first.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Some information you need can be gathered from a close friend, but don't be forceful or rude. Don't get into any new recreations just now.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Be sure you don't inadvertently renege on a promise you have made. Your mate is trying to avoid an argument with you, so be cooperative.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): A public matter has been difficult to solve for some time, but with a little patience, you can easily achieve the desired results now.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Arrange a time schedule for your work, and your daily duties will seem much easier. Negligence could cause serious damage today.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Be more willing to go along with a plan your mate has, since it is better than what you have in mind. Don't take any risks today.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Avoid becoming involved in an argument with a family member, as this person is not impartial and will not yield on any points.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): The people you will be around today have vastly different opinions from your own, so be diplomatic and don't push your point of view.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠KQJ954 ♥84 ♦762 ♣93
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
 1 NT Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Even though you have a rather weak hand, it is still your duty to steer the contract to the best spot. Bid two spades. That is regressive, promising little more than a minimum response and long spades.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AQ52 ♥KJ1043 ♦85 ♣93
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
 1 NT Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 / —You have enough for a move toward game. However, you cannot bid two spades—that would be a reverse and, by responder, would be forcing to game. Therefore, all you can do is make an invitational raise to two no trump—since you hold so much in the majors, partner surely has the minors well stopped.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠KJ1043 ♥AQ52 ♦85 ♦93
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
 1 NT Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—You are worth one forward-going bid, and this time it's obvious—bid two hearts. Responder's rebid in a suit ranking lower than his first bid is not forcing on this auction, but you must not overlook the possibility of a 4-4 heart fit.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠KJ1043 ♥AQ52 ♦85 ♦93
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
 2 ♣ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Despite your excellent support for partner's suit, you still have a minimum no trump opening bid. Partner is expecting a hand something like the one you have—it contains no surprise except, perhaps, a fourth trump. Pass.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠KJ73 ♥AQ5 ♦QJ7 ♣K102
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 NT Pass 2 ♣ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Whether or not you play fourth-suit forcing, you should take the same action now—bid two no trump. You have a stopper in the fourth suit. If that's what partner wants, your tenaces indicate that you should be declarer at a no trump contract.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠KJ63 ♥85 ♦K95 ♣AQ102
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
 1 ♣ Pass 2 ♦ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Whether or not you play fourth-suit forcing, you should take the same action now—bid two no trump. You have a stopper in the fourth suit. If that's what partner wants, your tenaces indicate that you should be declarer at a no trump contract.

Grammys Snub Chart Toppers, Ignore Critics

By LARRY McSHANE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight million Americans can be wrong. That's how many people bought Bon Jovi's album "Slippery When Wet," which spent 38 weeks in the Top 5 of the album charts and churned out three hit singles.

But the boys from New Jersey received a goose egg from the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, which deemed "Slippery When Wet" worthy of zero Grammy nominations. And it's not just the platinum-haired, platinum-sellers the academy ignores: Critical favorites can and often do suffer the same fate.

The Beatles, one of the most popular and prolific musical entities of the century, were often ignored by the academy, winning only four Grammys as a group. The Rolling Stones have never won a Grammy.

REM, the acclaimed band from Athens, Ga., broke nationally with their "Document" album and its single, "The One I Love"; their album also received no nominations. However, the LP cover was nominated for best album package.

An assortment of artists, from John Cougar Mellencamp to The Beastie Boys, missed out on musical nominations for the March 2 show at Radio City Music Hall, passed over by a membership which "once more opted for studio craft over originality and vision," wrote Los Angeles Times music critic Robert Hilburn.

"You know what it is? It's just the way it is. You can't fight city hall," said rocker Richard Marx, who was snubbed for a best new artist nomination on a technicality.

"It does tend to be the same kind of people every year," he said. "A lot of times it's the people who've been on the cover of Time, or the real mainstream people. The artistic people are passed over many times."

For Marx, it was an obscure track he recorded for a B-movie soundtrack that prevented his new artist nomination. A similar controversy arose in 1986 when the academy refused to nominate Whitney Houston in the best new artist category because she had recorded duets with Jermaine Jackson and Teddy Pendergrass. She went on to win the best female pop vocal Grammy for "Saving All My Love for You."

But Crosby, Stills & Nash, who won the award in 1969, had been vocalists and songwriters in the Byrds, Buffalo Springfield and the Hollies. Cyndi Lauper, who won in 1985, recorded as lead vocalist with a group called Blue Angel before her "She's So Unusual" LP. And Freddie Jackson, who was nominated in that category in 1986, had been a part of a recording group called Mystic Merlin.

Nevertheless, singer Jody Watley — who scored several hits while recording with the band Shalimar — was nominated as a new artist this year.

"I was upset for about five minutes when I found out. Then I thought, 'Well, no big deal. I'll get nominated for a Grammy someday,'" said Marx, who wound up nominated this year for best rock vocal with his track, "Don't Mean Nothing."

His competition in that category includes Joe Cocker, Tina Turner, Bob Seger and superstar Bruce Springsteen. But even The Boss was a victim of the fickle Grammy selection process.

Springsteen's "Tunnel of Love," his first studio album in three years, was passed over for album for the year honors. But "Paradise by the Sea," an old tune recycled on Springsteen's five-record live set, inexplicably received a best rock instrumental nomination.

In fact, Springsteen has received only one Grammy Award, despite such multimillion selling and critically hailed albums as "Born to Run," "The River" and "Born in the USA."

As for Mellencamp, his fine "The Lonesome Jubilee" received no nominations; Mellencamp received a co-nomination for producer of the year with his studio partner, Don Gehman.

Springsteen's office has declined to comment on the nomination process, which is handled by the 5,000-member NARAS.

Magazine For Teens Tries New Approach

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sassy is making a brash entry into the teen magazine market, promising a plain-spoken approach to sex, death and other topics it contends other teen magazines handle gingerly.

The first issue of the magazine, aimed at teen-age girls, appeared on the newsstands last week and set the tone by asking on the cover, "So you think you're ready for sex? Read this first."

Under the headline "Losing your virginity," the story discussed questions like "Will I like it?" "Should I talk during sex?" "Will he know I'm a virgin?" and "How long will it take?"

Another story referenced on the cover of the premiere issue was "Three suicides: Stories you won't forget." In one of the recollections, the mother of a girl who killed herself described what happens in an autopsy.

"We are talking to them as peers just as they talk to each other," said Jane Pratt, the 25-year-old editor in chief of the magazine.

She said the staff develops story ideas by asking themselves what they wanted to know when they were 15 and no one wanted to tell them. In addition to the issue-oriented stories, the magazine also includes lighter topics such as how to flirt and what to do when you think your friends are talking about you.

Some of Sassy's competitors, however, say the approach is inappropriate.

Robert Brown, associate publisher of Teen magazine, said the feature on losing your virginity took "a very sensational approach."

He said his magazine has carried stories on delicate subjects involving sex but that it takes "a more responsible and educational approach."

Ira Garey, publisher of Seventeen, said his magazine handles similar issues "in a less provocative manner" than Sassy does and has built its circulation over 44 years to more than 1.8 million, tops among the teen magazines.

"We don't feel that gives us a reason to be critical of them, but ultimately it is left to the reader to make the decision," he said.

Sassy is published by Fairfax Publications Ltd., the U.S. unit of the Australian-based John Fairfax Ltd.

Sandra Yates, president of Fairfax Publications, said at least $10 million has been invested in the launch, that the initial circulation is 250,000 and that the goal is to reach a circulation of 1 million in five years.

The magazine is reaching the market as the number of teen-age girls continues to decline.

Teenage Research Unlimited, a market research firm based in Lake Forest, Ill., estimates that there are about 13.7 million girls aged 12-19 and that the numbers have been dropping for more than a decade.

While an increase in the number of teen-age girls is not expected for several more years, their buying power continues to grow, making them a compelling target for advertisers.

Moore Marries

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — British actor Dudley Moore, who staggered to fame as a lovable lush in the movie "Arthur," has married aspiring actress Brogan Lane, a week after his Valentine's Day proposal, his agent said.

Moore, 52, and Miss Lane, 28, were married Sunday by a justice of the peace at The Little Church of the West Chapel, said agent Lou Pitt.

Warhol Fame Not Fleeting

NEW YORK (AP) — Pop artist Andy Warhol, who gained fame by calling fame fleeting, has proved otherwise by his death.

A year after his fatal heart attack in a New York hospital, Warhol's legacy is a mirror of his life: a melange of high art, low kitsch, dramatic tension and, as much as ever, the gaze of a fascinated public.

"It's going to take a while still for his legacy to be sorted out," said David Bourdon, an art critic and Warhol biographer. "But if anybody thought he was going to be a flash in the pan, they are quite mistaken."

Artistically, scrutiny of Warhol's work has risen to a level it probably never attained in his life. Major film and painting retrospectives are in the works, as are several biographies and the publication of his private journal.

Socially, the cultish lifestyle in which Warhol enveloped himself will be unwrapped this spring at a huge auction of the artist's possessions, from Old Master paintings to a Superman touch-tone phone.

Commercially, the managers of Warhol's estate have signed a licensing agreement that principals say could create a billion-dollar business in retail goods, from calendars to towels, bearing Warhol images.

And legally, in its least expected ramification, Warhol's death continues to reverberate in the medical world. The state has accused New York Hospital of rendering him deficient care, and his estate has sued over his death.

"What would he think of all this? As far as the brouhaha is concerned, it's consistent with the way he lived — action, tension, all those kinds of things," said Edward Hayes, lawyer for the estate. "But in terms of his death? He'd probably just think his death was stupid."

SASSY APPROACH — Sassy, a magazine aimed at teen-age girls, appeared on newsstands last week making a brash entry into the teen magazine market. The publication is promising to take a plain-spoken approach to topics like sex and death that it contends other teen magazines handle only gingerly. The first issue set the tone with its cover headline reading, "So you think you're ready for sex? Read this first." (AP Laserphoto)
