Gephardt Says Trade Reforms Are Necessary

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

Democratic presidential hopeful Richard Gephardt brought his campaign of trade reform to Greenville Monday afternoon, telling more than 200 local supporters at the American Legion post that a trade deficit does not have to be a fact of life in the United States.

President Reagan recently said the deficit was a sign of strength in the American economy, and the Wall Street Journal printed an editorial calling the deficit a "fact of life," said Gephardt.

"They are trying to anesthetize us," Gephardt said to the crowd. "I don't like those facts of life and I don't think you do either. If you will stand with me, we will change those facts of life and we will make America over again."

Gephardt traveled from Winston-Salem to Greenville and arrived at the Legion hall at 1:48 p.m. The Missouri congressman owns a vacation home on the North Carolina Outer Banks in Duck, and state Sen. Marc Basnight, D-Dare, introduced him as the trade reform candidate.

"He is the one person, and the one person alone, who has talked about how there should be fair treatment for all Americans in the marketplace," said Basnight.

"We must ask our trading partners to treat us as we treat them. I want us to be able to go there and sell our products with equal ease," said Gephardt, who has authored trade reform legislation and driven a Chrysler K-car through Iowa to draw attention to the severity of the trade deficit.

Firm Selling After 56 Years

Richfood Gains Agreement To Buy Ormond Wholesale

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Owners of Ormond Wholesale Co., a local wholesale grocery distributor, said today that they have signed an agreement to sell the firm's inventory and equipment to Richfood Inc. of Richmond, Va.

H.L. Ormond Jr., president of Ormond Wholesale, said this morning that he sent a letter to the firm's customers "last Thursday," telling them of the agreement to sell. The sale will be completed by the end of March, Ormond said. "We'll be making deliveries out of here through the 25th of March."

Ormond Wholesale was founded in May 1932 by H.L. Ormond Sr., who died 12 years ago.

"For the past 56 years Ormond Wholesale Co. has enjoyed the privilege of serving individual retailers in eastern North Carolina," Ormond said today. "The area has been good to us and we feel we have been a good corporate citizen."

But Ormond said, "Many changes have taken place in the grocery business over the years. In view of these changes and for personal reasons, we have elected to sell our inventory and equipment to Richfoods."

While Ormond would not discuss the terms of the sale, Pitt County Tax Department records show the firm listed equipment, vehicles and inventory worth $3.1 million for tax purposes in 1987.

Ormond, who said he will remain as a consultant with Richfood for five years, said Richfood will operate out of the present 110,000 square-foot Ormond Wholesale facility on Industrial Boulevard.

The building, on 30 acres of land, was built in 1983.

The Ormond company employs about 60 people to supply independently owned retailers in eastern North Carolina, including Foodland and Clover Farm supermarkets.

Ormond said he has "not been advised" what the status of the Foodland and Clover Farm franchises will be. But he said Richfood has agreed to "interview" Ormond Wholesale's present employees. "Some have already taken (other) jobs," Ormond said, while others are "lined up to leave after we leave here."

Garner Wholesale Merchandisers of Greenville — a non-food distributor — became a subsidiary of Richfood last year.

Richfood is a retailer-owned food distributor serving more than 600 independent food retailers in North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia. Richfood's non-food sales in 1986 exceeded $27 million and its total company sales were $967 million.

Two More ECU Players Arrested

Two members of the East Carolina University football team were arrested by campus police on assault charges in connection with separate incidents Saturday.

University spokesmen said this morning that Michael Shane Hubble, 18, of St. Petersburg, Fla., was charged with assault and damage to personal property in connection with a 5 p.m. "altercation."

A 9:25 p.m. "altercation" resulted in the arrest of Ernest Edward Logan II, 19, of Spring Lake, on assault charges, the spokesmen said.

Logan is a starting defensive end while Hubble is a reserve linebacker for the football team.

ECU officials said that, although both incidents occurred in parking lots in the College Hill Drive area of the campus, they were not connected.

Both Hubble, who stands 6-feet-4 and weighs 230 pounds, and Logan, 6-4 and 225 pounds, are scheduled for trial in District Court on March 14.

According to sources from within the university's athletic department, both men have been suspended from the team pending outcome of their respective trials.

Investigation is continuing in both incidents, according to the university's department of public safety.

The arrests brings to five the number of ECU football players arrested on assault charges in the last two weeks.

Garrett, James File For Board

D.D. Garrett of Greenville filed Monday afternoon as a candidate for the Pitt County Board of Commissioners from Consolidated District A and Eugene James filed for re-election today from District 2.

Filing reopened Monday at noon after U.S. District Judge Earl Britt signed a consent order Friday creating a new "six-three" election plan for the county board. The new filing period will close March 21.

The order ended a suit brought by the Pitt County Concerned Citizens for Justice. That suit challenged the previous method of electing six members of the board by at-large vote.

Under the new plan, the board will include nine members, with one from each of six consolidated districts. The same as used to elect members of the Pitt County Board of Education. Only voters residing in a district will be voting in the primary and general election for the commissioner from that district.

The remaining three members will be elected from consolidated districts. Consolidated District A consists of regular Districts 1 and 2, Consolidated District B consists of regular Districts 3 and 6, and Consolidated District C consists of regular Districts 4 and 5.

Only voters living in a consolidated district will vote in the primary and general election for a commissioner from that particular district.

A Fairmont native, Garrett has owned and managed the D.D. Garrett Agency since 1946. The agency handles real estate, public accounting and general insurance.

"I would like to see the County Commissioners move toward a more equally represented board. I think I can fill that," said Garrett, so far the only candidate to file for Consolidated District A. "I think my experience in the community will give credence to the board."

Garrett is a member of the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors, the Greenville-Pitt Chamber of Commerce, the National Society of Public Accountants and the Greenville Mayor's Advisory Council.

He also serves as president of the Greenville-Pitt County Housing Resource Board and the Pitt County Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and as second vice chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Committee.

Garrett graduated from Greenville Industrial High School and received

Ms. Rowe will repeat the session Wednesday from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at Greenville Middle School. The evening session is open to public.

Class Reunion

The class of 1978 of North Pitt High School is planning a reunion.

Class members interested in taking part or anyone who knows a person who was in the class should contact Tammy Moore, 756-2686; Sharon Tyson, 752-7166, extension 321, or Twana White, 757-7389.

Program Participants

Students in Raymond Hart's class at Wellcome Middle School are participating in the "Visions of Glory — Olympic Education Program" sponsored by McDonald's.

After completion of the program, a contest will be held with participants receiving gold, silver and bronze medals for their knowledge on the Olympics.

Mathcounts Winners

The Mathcounts team at E.B. Aycock Junior High School won first place in competition with 33 teams Saturday at J.H. Rose High School Saturday.

Team members also scored high individually. Laura Howell scored in first place, while Katrina Cherry was second, Jon Ames was third and Kevin Alligood finished fifth.

Alternate Edward Rampersaud scored in first place in the alternate competition, and the team placed first in the special ciphering competition.

The Aycock team will compete statewide March 26 in Raleigh. Aycock teachers Margaret Powers and Ann Mewborn and volunteer coach Vann Latham work with the team.

City, County Leaders To Meet

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

Medical District zoning and facilities for government administration are two items of mutual interest scheduled to be discussed at a dinner meeting Wednesday by Greenville City Council and the Pitt County Commissioners.

Scheduled at 6:30 p.m. at the King and Queen Restaurant, 103 Eastbrook Drive, the meeting is designed as an informal venue for the two governing bodies to share common concerns, according to City Manager Greg Knowles.

"There are a series of opportunities for us to work together for our mutual best interest," Knowles said.

Among those items of mutual interest are the development of shared government facilities between the two governing entities.

"The County Board has approached the city with the possibility the city might be interested in joining the county for the development of a joint law enforcement center," Knowles said.

"If we don't do something soon, there may be some developments, or things happening out there that we really wouldn't want to have out there," Knowles said.

Wednesday's meeting at The King and Queen is a further example of the city's policy to increase cooperation and combine efforts with neighboring entities in formulating policies to deal with mutual growth.

In addition, Knowles said the school board is looking at downtown Greenville for a viable site for its administrative offices and has expressed interest in a specific site currently owned by the city.

Also slated for the dinner meeting is a discussion of zoning in the Medical District.

In light of the rapid growth occurring in the area surrounding Pitt Memorial Hospital, Knowles said Greenville City Council has expressed concern in regard to land not zoned in the medical park which is outside the city's extraterritorial jurisdiction.

Other cooperative efforts included a breakfast which city staff shared with East Carolina University officials on Jan. 15 to discuss policies and mutual interests.

Knowles said city and county officials have met previously, and have in the past been successful at sharing information related to forward planning.

"It's worth it to the city and the county to consider looking at things with a broad perspective instead of one item at a time," he said.

Pitt School Board Agrees To Study Attendance Lines

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Racial balancing, student growth projections and busing developed as key issues Monday night as the Pitt County Board of Education was presented an analysis of school attendance lines.

During the workshop session at Ayden-Grifton High School, Gib Chauncey, management information director with the Pitt County schools, led the board through a review of the current policy in addition to presenting factors to be considered if the board makes changes in the policy.

Each school was outlined by attendance area according to its grade organization, areas to be changed in adjusting students, racial ratio and construction schedule according to the current plan.

With each attendance area, board members tried to match the criteria for drawing the attendance lines, such as building capacity, growth potential, cost effectiveness, racial balance, equitable education and others, with those outlined changes.

The North Pitt and J.H. Rose attendance areas drew considerable attention as the board studied the areas to be changed in the 1988-89 school year.

In the current plan, students of Greenfield Terrace, the area behind the airport and an area east of N.C. 11 encompassed by Parkers Creek that currently attend Third Street School will attend Belvoir and Pactolus Elementary schools.

Board member Mary Williams was concerned with the distance students would have to be bused from those areas to Pactolus, saying that this may be another hardship on some students who already are economically deprived in those areas.

"That's too much to do to a child," she said.

Those students are being moved to meet the criteria of racial balancing, Superintendent Eddie West said.

The board also was concerned about the condition of Stokes School and the lack of plans for student movement and construction at the school. West said the cost of bringing the school up to standard would be extensive, and three architectural engineering studies have advised that the facility not be upgraded.

After reviewing the current plan, only Wintergreen Elementary School was not close to its projected 1987-88 ratio. Projected at a ratio of 33 blacks to 67 whites, it actually has a ratio of 23 blacks to 77 whites. West attributed the disparity to developing the new attendance area.

The board agreed to meet for a daylong workshop March 11 to study the attendance line policy and how it inter-relates with capital outlay plans. It also will discuss heterogeneous and homogeneous grouping.

Chauncey said factors the board will need to consider when making any changes include timeframe of implementing any changes, staffing needed to make changes, budget considerations and gains and losses in regard to racial balance, pupil and parent contentment, transportation, building capacity, current construction projects, land acquisition, and others.

Taft Thinks Career Ladder Should Be Replaced By Lead Teacher Plan

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Sen. Tom Taft, seeking election to his third term in the North Carolina Senate, released a campaign position paper on education this morning, saying that the state must continue to make "major improvements" in its public schools.

At a press conference at the Willis Building on East Carolina University's campus, Taft said, "I believe that my greatest legislative obligation and goal is to continue to help fashion an education system for North Carolina that is different, goal-oriented, accountable and successful."

"To do this," Taft said, "we must be willing to seek change, fashion it into programs and put it into place in 100 counties. To do otherwise," he suggested, "is to fail."

Taft said that, in the state Senate, "I have been a strong supporter of steps to improve the public schools, including tightened graduation standards and curriculum requirements ... toughened certification requirements for teachers, increased salaries for teachers and increasing funding for schools.

While "we have made major steps forward," Taft said "we must not slow down. I believe the window of opportunity is still open for major improvements in our school system."

"If re-elected ... my public school priorities will be: reducing drop-outs; continuing the Basic Education Plan to full implementation; continuing to increase teacher salaries, (and) developing better means of improving the teaching profession, including greater decision making authority at the local level."

According to Taft, the state "should focus major new resources" to address the drop-out problem.

Approaches that have been successful in attacking the drop-out problem "that should be emphasized," Taft said, include: "early childhood education for probable or identified slow learners or disadvantaged students; increasing counseling services for identified problem children; smaller classes in tutoring support for elementary students falling behind grade level, and summer school."

Taft said the state's Basic Education Plan, which "is now half funded and is designed to bring in thousands of new personnel, including teachers, guidance counselors and other personnel that enrich the school program, as well as a broad range of new programs in math, science and humanities ... must continue to be the state's number one education funding priority."

"I believe good schools depend on good teachers," Taft said. "Between 1984 and 1988, the state has increased salaries nearly 37 percent, but recent studies in the Southeast found an alarming gap of over $8,500 per year in earning power between teachers and comparable jobs in private industry."

While the career ladder for teachers now being tested is supposed to improve the teachers' lot, Taft said it is "generating a steady and growing stream of complaints about the process, time demands and especially the effect on teacher morale.

"A review of the early results tends to suggest to me that the career ladder is not the best way to further improve the teaching profession financially."

"For that reason," Taft said, "I support funding of Lead Teacher Projects (being tried in three school systems) which bring together a number of teachers working together as a department. Each one is headed by a lead teacher who receives additional salary and responsibilities."

"One strength of that project," Taft suggested, "is more local flexibility and decision-making power. The law allows the schools to determine the best instructional plan for their community without regard to state statute or policy."

"Local flexibility must be encouraged," Taft said. "We must find ways to move decision-making responsibility, with accountability, to the school system and building level and away from the Raleigh level."

Social Services Board Moves Start Of Meetings To 5:15 P.M.

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Social Services made changes in its regular monthly meeting schedule Monday in an effort to accommodate persons interested in attending board meetings.

The board agreed to change its monthly meeting time from noon to 5:15 p.m. on the last Monday of each month. The board will operate under the new schedule on a trial basis to evaluate its effect.

In other matters, departmental Director Ed Garrison told the board "our capability of helping people ... is almost at an end" as funds in the emergency assistance programs continue to dwindle. Funds the department anticipates receiving in a grant, about $12,800 for emergency, food and shelter, were expected by the end of February, Garrison said, but they are late. That money, when it arrives, will help the department meet needs through the end of the fiscal year in June, he said.

The board adopted a non-discriminatory provision of services policy in an effort to deal with the AIDS syndrome. The policy assures department staff of information on clients affected by AIDS as they render services to those clients. It also asks clients to sign release forms, making information about their condition available as necessary to receive service. Clients also are assured confidentiality on their condition.

The board also approved that an attitude and opinion survey be conducted of the staff of the department to allow more input of employees and to detect any problems of the staff.

In discussion of the 1988-89 fiscal budget for the department, the board recognized that the Medicaid and the Aid to Families with Dependent Children programs will demand an increase in county funds because of expansions and limited federal and state resources. The board agreed to adopt a budget workshop schedule to consider the budget.

In a report on the commodities distribution program, the board was told that the supply of commodities was low, and after August only butter, corn meal and flour will be offered as the federal government continues to empty its warehouses.

Board Chairman Burney Tucker reported results of an executive session held in February to evaluate Garrison as director of the department. He said, "Overall, we believe we have one of the best Social Services departments in North Carolina" due to Garrison's leadership of a good staff. He encouraged the attitude and opinion study of employees to gauge more input from the staff.

UNC Group Accused Of Racism

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — About a half dozen people, led by a Durham minister, have accused administrators at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill of creating a racist atmosphere at the university's school of education.

The message was delivered in a seven-paragraph letter by Lorenzo A. Lynch, minister of White Rock Baptist Church in Durham, at the end of a faculty meeting held to discuss upcoming changes in the school.

Monday's meeting followed a volatile session among school of education officials Wednesday during which angry professors criticized Frank Brown, dean of the school, and Provost Samuel R. Williamson Jr. for what the professors called their lack of leadership in efforts to upgrade the school. Brown is one of two black deans at UNC-CH.

Lynch attended the meeting with about half a dozen other Brown supporters from various churches.

Reagan Pledging Support To NATO Partners

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan headed for Europe today to assure the NATO allies they will not be left defenseless. He pledged that America will keep its troops in Europe "as long as Europeans want them to stay."

Reagan, as he left the White House for a two-day NATO summit in Belgium, said the session comes at a historic moment for both East and West.

"For four decades, the combination of a strong common defense and pursuit of dialogue with the East has been a winning formula for NATO," Reagan said. "It is a combination that can lead us to a future of peace, freedom and prosperity for generations to come."

A throng of teen-age participants in the White House Conference on a Drug-Free America, brought to the diplomatic entrance to give Reagan a sendoff, sang "God Bless America" as the president emerged.

Reagan attempted to calm allied fears that the U.S.-Soviet treaty banning medium-range nuclear missiles portends an American abandonment of its long-time commitment to the European democracies.

"That historic agreement was possible because the alliance's steadfast political and military resolve backed up our negotiations with the Soviets," Reagan said.

The NATO allies are also concerned that the force of 326,000 U.S. troops stationed in Europe might be cut due to the U.S. economic budget crunch.

"My Atlantic colleagues and I will rededicate ourselves to maintaining the deterrent that has protected our freedom and prosperity for almost 40 years," Reagan said. "I will repeat to my colleagues my strong conviction that American troops will remain in Europe, under any administration, so long as Europeans want them to stay."

As the first full-scale North Atlantic Treaty Organization summit since 1982, the meeting has been touted as a chance for the 16-nation alliance to evaluate its goals and accentuate its solidarity.

But the summit, Reagan said, will not be held for "self-congratulations." Instead, he said, it will be a time for a rededication to the democratic goals that forged the alliance in 1949 in the face of the spread of Soviet influence in Eastern Europe.

"If our common approach to the East over the years has given coherence to our message of peace and world freedom, it has been our unwavering commitment to defend ourselves that has given it credibility," Reagan said. "Arms reduction can only succeed if it is backed up by a strong defense."

His first priority, Reagan said, "is to maintain a strong and healthy partnership between North America and Europe."

Reagan pledged anew to forge ahead with attempts to achieve a 50 percent cut in strategic nuclear arms, as well as a global ban on chemical weapons.

He asserted that he also intends to press the Soviets on human rights violations and its "external aggression," apparently a reference to its involvement in nations such as Afghanistan and Nicaragua.

The summit meeting comes as Reagan prepares for an expected round of spring summitry with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, and as the allies must cope with the Soviet public relations campaign that paints Gorbachev as a champion of peace and arms control.

For the most part, Reagan will appear only in brief photo opportunities at the NATO session. The meetings among the heads of state or government Wednesday and Thursday will be private.

Reagan is slated to deliver closing remarks on Thursday.

On Monday, Reagan previewed his slant on the summit in an address to the annual convention of the American Legion.

He promised to forge ahead with attempts to cut superpower strategic arsenals in half and to seek a ban on chemical weapons. But he also pledged that negotiations to reduce Warsaw Pact conventional forces will receive equal weight.

"The serious imbalance of conventional forces in Europe must be addressed as an equally high priority," Reagan said. "Warsaw Pact tanks and artillery far outnumber our own. Ours are positioned for defense, theirs for an offensive attack."

Reagan attempted to sweep aside European doubts about America's willingness to help its friends, but he advised that the alliance cannot stand still.

"The Warsaw Pact's numerical superiority and the Soviet strategy which emphasizes surprise attack means that our remaining nuclear forces are fully capable of supporting NATO's flexible response strategy," Reagan said.

"At the same time we must modernize our chemical weapons to deter Soviet first-use and we must provide for conventional forces that are capable of protecting free Europe," Reagan said.

Iraq-Iran Fighting Escalates

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq said today it fired 14 surface-to-surface missiles of its own design and production into the Iranian capital in a 24-hour blitz lasting late into this afternoon.

Iran vowed revenge and said one Iraqi strike killed 16 people when it struck a Tehran hospital. At least one other fatality was reported in the Iranian capital.

It was the worst escalation of the so-called "war of the cities" that has killed thousands of civilians since 1985. Iran and Iraq have been at war since 1980.

Iraq said it began firing the missiles into Tehran Monday afternoon in retaliation for two pre-dawn missile strikes on Baghdad, the Iraqi capital.

Iran initially reported its capital of 6 million people was under attack by Iraqi warplanes. It later said missiles had struck the city.

One person was killed and several wounded this morning by a missile that destroyed or damaged several houses and shops in Tehran, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

IRNA said at least 16 civilians were killed and dozens wounded, "including newborn babies," when the hospital was hit Monday night. An unspecified number of people were buried when part of the hospital building collapsed, the agency said.

The Iranians did not say whether the missiles were fired from land or air.

Iraq's air force outnumbered Iran's 8-to-1. Iraq had never before used surface-to-surface missiles to attack Tehran, which is 200 miles from the Iraqi border.

Iran protested to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar and vowed revenge if the attacks did not stop.

"Iran's Moslem combatants will not sit quiet until they take revenge," IRNA quoted a military communique as saying.

An Iranian military communique called on residents of Baghdad to evacuate "and seek shelter in the four previously identified holy cities in Iraq to protect their lives" from retaliation.

Iran is determined to demonstrate "who is stronger when it comes to demonstration of power," warned the communique.

Kidnappers Want Trial For Marine

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Kidnappers of a U.S. Marine officer said in a statement released today they are determined to put him on "trial" for espionage.

The typewritten Arabic statement from the Organization of the Oppressed on Earth, said the "trial" would begin once the interrogation of Lt. Col. William R. Higgins was completed.

The statement, delivered to a Western news agency, said Israel's crackdown on Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza Strip and the Middle East trip of U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz "make us more determined to try this criminal, Higgins."

"This will be done after the completion of the investigation to make the world understand that any hand that reaches out to hurt (our) pride, Islam, or the dignity of our people will be chopped off," the statement said.

The group has alleged Higgins worked for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. Both the United States and the United Nations denied it.

Higgins, 43, of Danville, Ky., was serving with the United Nations in south Lebanon when he was kidnapped Feb. 17 near Tyre. Higgins, a decorated Vietnam War veteran, heads a 76-man U.N. observers group that monitors truce violations on the Lebanon-Israel border under a 1949 armistice agreement concluded by the two nations.

The statement issued today was the third from the Organization of the Oppressed on Earth. The group is believed to be made up of pro-Iranian Shiite Moslems. It had previously claimed responsibility for kidnapping 12 Lebanese Jews in Moslem west Beirut and said it killed eight of them.

Twenty-five foreigners are missing and presumed kidnapped in Lebanon. They are nine Americans, four Frenchmen, three Britons, one Irishman, one Italian, two West Germans, one Indian, one Swede, one Norwegian and two unidentified men. The longest held is Terry A. Anderson, 40, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, who was kidnapped March 16, 1985.

Strike Producing Little Effect

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — A general strike called to protest the rule of Gen. Manuel Noriega appeared to have little effect today for the second day in a row.

Eric Arturo Delvalle, whose removal from the presidency on Friday prompted the strike call, predicted from hiding that the political crisis would worsen Panama's already dire economic straits.

Organizers of the indefinite work stoppage, which failed to significantly disrupt transport or commerce on Monday, had predicted the action would spread to the Panama Canal today.

But Canal Commission spokesman

Franklin Castellon told The Associated Press that, as of midmorning, traffic there was "normal." He said all 38 vessels scheduled to pass through the waterway on Monday did so, four more than on an average day.

Economic Index Drops, But Recession Unlikely

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's chief economic forecasting gauge dropped a sharp 0.6 percent in January, but an upward revision for December eased fears of an imminent recession.

The Commerce Department reported a month ago that the index had declined 0.2 percent in December after falling in October and November.

Three consecutive monthly declines in the index is the traditional, but not infallible, signal of an impending recession.

In today's report, however, the December calculation was revised to show an increase of 0.3 percent.

Since it was created in 1948, the index has correctly forecast every recession the country has had with declines for at least three consecutive months. Thus, the revision to December was taken by economists as a heartening sign that the country is unlikely to suffer a downturn this year.

The index has taken on added significance since Oct. 19, when stock prices plunged a record 508 points, eclipsing the 1929 market crash, which preceded the Great Depression.

Since October's steep decline, however, a number of business barometers have shown strength, including continued declines in the unemployment rate. Even the stock market has rallied in recent weeks, climbing more than 48 points on Monday to close at its highest level since the October collapse.

Economists are looking for the economy to slow in the first half of 1988, but they now believe that the sluggish growth will not worsen into a recession.

The National Association of Business Economists said Monday that while more than half of its members responding to a November survey believed the country would suffer a recession this year, that figure had now dropped to about one-fourth.

The 0.6 percent January decline was led by a big increase in new claims for unemployment benefits, which averaged 351,000 a week in January, up 12.5 percent from the December level. Since January, however, the weekly unemployment claims figures have been falling, further easing recession fears.

In all, five of the nine available indicators showed weakness during January. After unemployment claims, the negative factors were a drop in building permits, a decline in manufacturers' orders for consumer goods, changes in raw materials prices and a drop in business delivery times.

Four indicators showed strength during the month, with a rise in stock prices making the biggest gain. Other positive forces were the growth of the money supply, increases in the length of the average workweek and a rise in orders for plant and equipment.

The various changes left the index at 190.2 percent of its 1967 base of 100.

Michael Evans, head of a Washington forecasting firm, until recently had been expecting a recession in the early part of 1988. But he said he was now less pessimistic because a variety of business barometers have rebounded after an initial shock from the stock market decline.

"The economy isn't out of the woods yet, but a recession forecast is a diminished probability now," he said.

The overall economy, as measured by the gross national product, raced ahead at a 4.5 percent rate in the final three months of 1987. But almost all of that increase came from a big buildup of unsold products.

Jail Faces Deficiencies

Add the Pitt County jail to the growth problems which face the county.

Something soon will have to be done to provide more adequate facilities and changes will have to be made in the meantime to make the present jail in the basement of the court house annex more usable.

The Pitt County commissioners listened to a Charlotte architect who has designed many jail facilities recently. His conclusions on the Pitt facility raised serious doubts about its safety and security. His recommendations left little question that changes — likely expensive ones — are needed to appropriately house prisoners.

William Fripp was critical of the present jail, although he said the county employees are doing a "whale of a job" with what they have to work with.

He saw the Pitt jail as a "dungeon in a basement" and said it is one of the "most insecure facilities I've ever been in."

Workers are providing and good quality and quantity of food, but the facility lacks any exercise area.

Until a new jail can be designed he suggested a law library be established for prisoners and improvements be made to sick call procedures. Electrical lighting and ventilation should be improved with reverse ventilation for use in the event of a fire. He expressed concern about the fire hazard. He suggested a closed circuit television monitoring system and the issuing of jump-suits and throw-away slippers to prisoners in place of their own clothing.

The total answer, however, is planning a jail complex for the future. The present jail could then be used only as a holding facility for prisoners awaiting trial.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said the 84-bed jail is now operating at capacity. Some prisoners are being placed in jails in Farmville and Ayden. The existing facility simply wasn't designed to accommodate the number of incarcerated persons it is being forced to by growth and changing laws.

And so the Pitt County jail problem is outlined. Planning must get under way for a replacement facility. Until that is done, improvements must be made in the current facilities to make them more usable.

As a county grows, so does the number of prisoners held in jail. For Pitt County there is no time to be lost, for the problem will only worsen. Jail planning will have to proceed promptly.

The Right Stuff For New Recruits

The East Carolina University football program has relied on academic exceptions in the past to bring in the caliber athlete deemed necessary to build a national program.

This year Coach Art Baker, Athletic Director Dave Hart and the administration are to be commended for the recruitment of football players who will attend the university on athletic scholarships without the need for special admissions. Those priorities in recruiting are correct and they can be seen as a move to improve the quality of athlete representing the University.

Commended they were by the ECU faculty senate. The 50-member faculty senate gave applause to Athletic Director Hart when he reported the football recruits would require no "special admits."

The senate passed a resolution introduced by Dr. James LeRoy Smith, professor of philosophy and former faculty chair. Smith said it was his understanding that ECU is the only University of North Carolina system division 1A school which recruited a group all meeting normal UNC requirements.

Hart said his goal is to "not at any time, sacrifice integrity for success." Hart spoke of promoting ECU's athletic program as a "quality program."

No doubt there were some exceptional athletes that could have been of considerable assistance to the football program who were passed over due to academic requirements. Still reports are that the university had a good recruiting year, and it did so while maintaining academic requirements.

Many faculty members at the university are ardent sports fans, but it is rare when the faculty and athletics are in accord on academic standards for athletes.

Clearly this year emphasis has been placed on recruiting, not only good football players, but also the type of young man who has a reasonable chance of completing his education. The university and the football program will be better off for that.

The Roots Of The Bush-Dole Feud

'In 1972, Richard Nixon unceremoniously dumped Dole from the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee and installed Bush in his place. Dole didn't like it.'

WASHINGTON — Everybody knows that George Bush and Bob Dole don't like each other, and that the antipathy dates back to long before this presidential campaign. In 1972, Richard Nixon unceremoniously dumped Dole from the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee and installed Bush in his place. Dole didn't like it.

This minor episode seems fascinating right now, and it's possible to find out what really happened by consulting the National Archives' "Nixon Presidential Materials Project."

Nixon's closest aides, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, kept detailed notes on every conversation they had with Nixon; Ehrlichman's notes contain the whole story of Bush's move to the RNC.

Bush first caught Nixon's eye during a meeting at San Clemente in 1969, when he gave an impassioned argument for keeping the deduction for intangible drilling costs, a tax break much loved by oilmen. Ever since then, Nixon had been nurturing Bush's career. On Nov. 14, 1972, Nixon, who was at Camp David planning his new administration in a mood of triumphal sourness, told Ehrlichman, according to the notes, "Eliminate the politicians. Except George Bush. He'd do anything for the cause."

Later that month, back at the White House, Nixon explained why he wanted Bush at the RNC. Ehrlichman's notes have him saying, "Dole — he must go. In self-interest. Need full-time man. RNC chairman must be 1. Youth 2. Image 3. Builds new majority 4. Center 5. South or Midwest 6. Bush?"

The answer to the mystery of why Nixon wanted Dole out seems to lie in the parts about "full-time man" (Dole was in the Senate), "Image" (Dole was a heavy) and "Center" (Dole was then seen as more conservative than Bush).

On Nov. 20, Bush was flown by military helicopter to Camp David and ushered into Nixon's house there, Aspen Lodge, for a long meeting. In Bush's campaign autobiography, "Looking Forward," he says that just before the meeting with Nixon he had met with George Shultz, then secretary of the Treasury, and that he wanted to become Shultz's deputy secretary. But judging from Ehrlichman's notes, Bush's book doesn't tell the whole truth: the job he really wanted was one he doesn't mention at all, deputy secretary of state. Treasury was his second choice, and the RNC his third.

According to the notes, Nixon began the meeting by telling Bush he had done a good job as ambassador to the United Nations. He said he wanted a shakeup of the staff of the U.S. mission at the UN, to weed out people who were disloyal. "Our staff from now on," the notes say. Bush broke in to supply the name of one disloyal person on the staff. Nixon continued. He asked Bush to write him a "tough, political memo" for his eyes only, not Henry Kissinger's — send it to Ehrlichman, he said, and Ehrlichman would pass it on unopened. "Gives us the names of loyalists" at the U.N., the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and also the State Department, Nixon said. "Not brains, loyalty."

Then Nixon moved on to the subject of Bush's next job. At the time, Nixon was in the process of setting up a five-member "Super Cabinet," whose purpose was to keep power in the White House, away from the executive-branch agencies, which were infested with non-loyalists. He told Bush that because Shultz would be in the Super Cabinet, the deputy's job at Treasury would be an especially important No. 2 job. But the RNC was where he really wanted Bush. Nixon said he had a "new concept" for the RNC job. Politics would be taken out of the hands of the White House staff completely, so that the RNC's chairman would be "the president's top political advisor." His job would be to build the Republican Party to a level of popularity commensurate with Nixon's vote in the 1972 election. "A higher calling than Treasury," the notes say. As a "third option," Nixon mentioned the possibility of Bush's leaving government to run for office from New York, Connecticut or Texas.

Then Bush began to talk. At this point, tantalizingly, there is a page of notes that Nixon's staff has removed from the archives. The notes pick up with Bush saying that his U.N. experience would hurt him politically in Texas, but help him in Connecticut. The RNC job, the notes have him saying, "kills Texas chance." Bush came to the point. While he had a "real interest in Treasury," he loved foreign affairs and wanted to be deputy secretary of state. "Can tiptoe between Henry Kissinger and William Rogers," the notes say.

But Nixon seems to have been completely uninterested. He mentioned one of the three undersecretary jobs at State. Bush parried by reiterating that deputy secretary of state was his first choice, the Treasury job his second and the RNC his third. The notes continue: "President: Will you let me decide?" "Bush: Stay alive, stay visible." "President: RNC high risk, high opportunity. I was 48 when defeated for president. Ray Moley (an aide to Franklin Roosevelt who later became a conservative Republican) came to my house, said greatest service — be RNC chairman."

Now Nixon delivered the clincher: he told Bush that if he took the RNC job, he could expect a Cabinet appointment after the 1974 congressional elections, regardless of their outcome. If he went to Treasury, on the other hand, there would be "a chance for Cabinet via the deputy route but George Shultz is vigorous and could be secretary for four years." The "in clique" of the second Nixon administration, he said, would consist of Ehrlichman, Haldeman, Kissinger, Roy Ash and Bush. John Mitchell, the attorney general, would handle the unpleasant task of telling Dole to leave the RNC.

After Bush left the room, Nixon told Ehrlichman to call him that night after dinner and say, according to the notes, "none his peers at top of White House — only Ash." Bush took the job, of course.

Cuomo Wows Tar Heels But Still Says No

RALEIGH (AP) — A resigned smile spread across Jim Van Hecke's face when the state Democratic chairman was asked how many North Carolinians had told him they wished Mario Cuomo were running for president.

"A bunch," Van Hecke admitted during Saturday night's fund-raiser for Sen. Terry Sanford, D-N.C. Cuomo was keynote speaker and lived up to his billing, delivering an impassioned speech as tough as Tar Heels, attended the $1,000-per-couple event to retire the $550,000 debt from Sanford's 1986 campaign.

Sam Poole, who managed Sanford's campaign and was with Cuomo much of the time he was in North Carolina, said the New York governor was besieged by people with one thought in mind.

"Everybody comes up and says 'I wish your name was on the ballot,'" Poole said.

Such entreaties are nothing new to Cuomo, of course. Despite announcing about a year ago that he would not run for president, Democrats from coast to coast have pleaded with him to reconsider.

And with no consensus front-runner in the Democratic field, the political rumor mills continue to grind out scenarios that envision Cuomo making a late plunge into the race.

Publicly, at least, Cuomo discourages such speculation. "The more you talk about it, what you're saying by implication is that one of these candidates is not going to win," he told reporters. "You say that often enough by implication and it'll happen. So you shouldn't even entertain discussions" of a brokered convention.

But some observers contend that Cuomo's actions don't match his words. He never seems far from the spotlight, traveling and delivering speeches that deal with issues that transcend New York state politics.

For example, his weekend itinerary included participation in a discussion of education sponsored by the North Carolina Leadership Forum. Cuomo sat opposite former Gov. Jim Hunt and drew frequent applause with forceful pronouncements on the economy, the dropout problem, civic responsibility and the teaching of values in public schools.

Yet he wove numerous references to his home state into his remarks as if determined to live up to Hunt's description of him as "truly a national leader" who nevertheless has not "gotten his eye off the ball in his own state."

Perhaps the strongest evidence of Cuomo's strength is that many North Carolina Democrats don't seem at all bothered that he is an ethnic Northerner with a reputation as a liberal — characteristics that some predict will keep Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis from winning the South.

"There's no doubt ... if he'd chosen to run for president or if he runs in the future, he'll have a lot of support here," Van Hecke said of Cuomo. "There's a lot of New Yorkers who live in North Carolina."

What's so special about Cuomo? Most of the responses Democrats gave to that question could be summed up in the same word: charisma.

"He's got that star quality," Poole said.

Cuomo offered his own theory on why so many commentators — and Democratic activists — describe the crisp of presidential contenders as uninspiring. The candidates, fearful of mixing politics and religion, are too reluctant to discuss moral values such as honesty and generosity, he says.

"People are hungry ... desperate for something to hold onto," he said. "What that reflects is a yearning in the American people for something that they can get their hands around and say ... this is my banner. This is what I believe."

Strength For Today

One of the best ways of keeping weeds out of a lawn is to fertilize the lawn generously in the fall. If the grass has plenty of food to tide it over the winter and encourage its growth in the spring, it will crowd most of the weeds out of existence.

The same process is equally effective in keeping the weeds out of our spiritual lives. If we carefully foster the growth of good moral principles and habits, the evil things of life will have much less chance to take root and grow.

Of course, if weeds in our lawns or in our spiritual lives get a head start, it is necessary to dig them out by the roots. This is at best a painful procedure, and will leave scars. Wisdom dictates, therefore, that the best way to foster the growth of our spiritual lives is to feed them the things which will lead to fruition.

View Of Israel Shifts Sharply In U.S. Jewish Community

Except for Jesse Jackson, the presidential candidates largely have been silent about the ongoing reports of Israeli brutality in the West Bank and Gaza. At most, they utter vague statements of concern and promise a renewed commitment to the process begun at Camp David.

Perhaps this silence reflects a wholesome concern that any remarks critical of Israel might encourage an outpouring of latent anti-Semitism. More likely, it reflects a fear of being branded as "anti-Israel."

The candidates seem to assume that there are only political negatives in daring to break ranks with the Israeli lobby. This assumption reflects a lack of solid political information about the rapidly changing views of the American Jewish community.

Until the last few years, the impulse among Jews to protect Israel chilled any public airing of dissent over Israeli policies. By 1986, however, American Jews had come to reject, by a 63 percent to 22 percent margin, the notion that they should not criticize Israel, according to a survey by the mainstream American Jewish Committee.

There is no question that American Jews take a special interest in Israel's well-being and pride in its achievements. But Israel's 1982 debacle in Lebanon, the Pollard spy affair, the Iran arms sales and the Orthodox Establishment's stranglehold over religious affairs in Israel have estranged American Jews. The American Jewish Committee's survey found that only among the Orthodox — approximately 10 percent of the American Jewish population — is attachment to Israel on the rise; among Reform and unaffiliated Jews — 55 percent of the population — attachment to Israel is on the decline.

The harsh Israeli response to the Palestinian uprising has deepened American Jewish discontent with Israeli policies. As the president of the National Assembly of Conservative Rabbis, Kassel Abelson, recently put it: "You no longer find unanimity and confidence in Israel's leaders."

The American Jewish Committee survey also shows that a substantial plurality of Jews believe that Palestinians have a right to a homeland on the West Bank so long as it does not threaten Israel; that Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and his Likud party have been too unwilling to compromise to make peace, and that Foreign Minister Shimon Peres is far more popular than Shamir. Peres favors an international peace conference and a "territory-for-peace" formula to settle the conflict; Shamir opposes such a conference and rejects the idea of relinquishing the occupied territories in exchange for Arab recognition of Israel.

Not surprisingly, the U.S. presidential candidates hear a different story from the Israel lobby.

Fund-raising for Israel among American Jews is up, the lobby claims, and support for the Jewish state remains solid.

Support for the Shamir government and military occupation, however, is not solid. There is growing recognition among American and Israeli Jews that the occupation is corroding Israel's moral claim on the international community. As the former head of Israeli military intelligence, Yehoshafat Harkabi, recently observed, a "country that insists that it can exist only if this principle (of self-determination) is violated is destined to endanger the legitimacy of its own existence."

American Jews know that the uprising is a watershed: Even Israel-lobby publicists acknowledge that major change is coming. Eric Rosenman, the editor of the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee's Near East Report, predicted earlier this month that the imminent establishment of a Palestinian state in the West Bank and Gaza, observing that events in the territories have advanced the Palestinian cause more than all the Arab-Israeli wars did.

The volatility of the situation in the territories and the ever-deepening crack in the once solid Jewish wall of support for Israeli policies present an unprecedented opportunity for presidential aspirants to demonstrate the quality of their statesmanship.

The candidate who can persuade American Jews that as president he will extricate Israel from ruling over an increasingly hostile Arab population, and in the process gain Arab recognition of Israel, will be pleasantly surprised by the response at the polls.

Do Politics And Religion Mix In Public Life?

WASHINGTON — The success of presidential candidate Pat Robertson in the Iowa and Minnesota caucuses and in the South Dakota Republican primary has legitimized his candidacy while raising again the issue of the role of religion in politics.

Some of the most important of those questions were asked of 3,017 Americans who participated in surveys conducted in December for the Williamsburg Charter foundation in Washington, D.C., a private non-profit and nonsectarian organization devoted to the study of religion in American life.

This ambitious project included special samples of young people, business executives, college professors, ministers, priests and rabbis, as well as a general population telephone survey of 1,889 American adults.

Those surveyed expressed broad but qualified tolerance of most expressions of religious faith in public life.

ance, but the evidence is not entirely convincing. Only 3 percent of those surveyed by Gallup in 1958 were hostile to a Baptist candidate, while 13 percent in the most recent poll claimed they would refuse to vote for a "born-again Baptist." (As other poll findings suggest, this result might have been different if the phrase "born-again" had been dropped.)

Americans retain their traditional intolerance of atheists. More than three out of five respondents — 62 percent — said they would be unwilling to vote for an atheist for president. Seven of 10 said it is important that the president have strong religious beliefs. About two out of three said they would be unwilling to vote for a homosexual. And Gary Hart, take note: 43 percent said they would be unwilling to vote for a married candidate who "has been having other love affairs." (Robertson also should note that one of five respondents said he or she would be have a legal right to get involved in politics." But nearly three of five said they would prefer religious groups to "stay out of politics." And a plurality said the Moral Majority should steer clear of politics.

More than three out of five said it was proper for religious leaders to attempt to close pornographic bookstores, and 56 percent "do not fault the Right to Life movement for injecting religious issues into the abortion debate," Hunter and Adams wrote.

The researchers also found that most Americans don't tolerate non-traditional religious practices. Just over half of those surveyed approved of laws against the practice of Satan worship. Nearly three of five — 57 percent — endorsed the proposition that "the FBI should keep a close watch on new religious cults." And two-thirds said "it should be against the law for unusual religious cults to try to convert teen-agers." (The statement begs an inquiry: What is a usual religious cult?)

The poll documented clear divisions in attitudes between what researchers termed secularists and evangelicals. Secularists were defined as the "so-called religious nones" — individuals who claim no particular religious faith. This group is "one of the fastest growing groups in American society, increasing from around 2 percent in 1962 to about 10 percent today," they wrote. Evangelicals were defined as Protestants who believe in the literal truth of the Bible and who have had a "born-again" experience — about 18 percent of their sample. Some evangelicals would argue that this definition is too narrow and that their faith is not based on a literal interpretation of the Bible.

Among the major differences: •61 percent of all secularists said churches should have to pay taxes on their property, while 34 percent of all evangelicals agreed.

•Nearly nine of 10 evangelicals said public schools should "set aside a moment of silence each day for students to pray if they want to," while 59 percent of all secularists agreed.

•About half of all evangelicals agreed that "the government should require that Judeo-Christian values be emphasized in public schools," compared with 18 percent of all secularists.

•Only 15 percent of all secularists said it is "very important that the next president be someone who has strong religious beliefs," compared with two out of three evangelicals.

"Evangelicals and secularists represent two ends of a barbell — each about as far from the national average as the other," the researchers wrote, adding that "they also show a tendency toward mutual hostility."

The survey showed that nearly one of five secularists-17 percent-said that evangelicals have too much influence compared with other religious groups. About one of 10 secularists said that evangelicals are a "threat to democracy." Other sectors of the population shared a distrust of evangelicals — "most notably, the Jewish leadership and academics," the researchers wrote. Nearly one of five academics said evangelicals have too much power and influence compared with other religious groups. One of three academics said evangelicals are "a threat to democracy," a sentiment shared by 27 percent of the rabbinic survey.

As with most polls, the researchers again documented how little Americans know about so much. Only one of three respondents, they found, knew that "the freedom of religion is guaranteed by the First Amendment."

Richard Morin is director of polling for The Washington Post.

'Those surveyed expressed broad but qualified tolerance of most expressions of religious faith in public life. Apparently gone are the days when a devout Catholic or Jew dared not aspire to higher office.'

Apparently gone are the days when a devout Catholic or Jew dared not aspire to higher office. Only 8 percent of the adults surveyed said they would refuse to vote for a Catholic on the basis of religion, compared with 25 percent in a Gallup survey conducted in 1958. And only 10 percent today said they would refuse to vote for a Jewish candidate, while 28 percent said the same thing 30 years ago.

Researchers did note one finding that suggests an increase in intoler-unwilling to vote for a candidate who had been a minister of a church.)

The survey was conducted by William C. Adams, a professor in the department of public administration at George Washington University. The data were analyzed by sociologist James Davison Hunter of the University of Virginia. Adams and Hunter found limited acceptance of religious activism in public life.

About two of three — 68 percent — agreed that "religious groups should

Jackson Compares Robeson To South Africa

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP) — Presidential candidate Jesse Jackson says the conditions in racially troubled Robeson County are similar to South Africa, where a minority white government denies equal rights to minorities.

"In South Africa people have been abandoned by the law. No law protects them," the Democratic candidate told about 50 people Monday. "What is happening right here ... is a whole body of people has been abandoned by the law."

The audience at a downtown community center repeatedly applauded and murmured "amen" as Jackson urged residents of the poverty-stricken county to join his "Rainbow Coalition" and vote for him on March 8, when North Carolina and 19 other states hold presidential primaries and caucuses.

"In Robeson County, blacks and whites and Indians are going to have to live together and find the point of common ground and equal protection under the law," Jackson told members of two grassroots community organizations pushing for local government reforms.

"We're seeking to pull the people together in order that you can accomplish what you could never do apart," Jackson said. "You must come together."

The black civil rights leader also spoke by telephone with accused hostage taker Eddie Hatcher and delivered a speech at Pembroke State University, where he celebrated his second-place finish to Michael Dukakis in Maine's Democratic caucuses.

After his 10-minute speech, Jackson spoke briefly by telephone with Hatcher, who called the community center from jail. Jackson said he assured Hatcher of his concern.

Hatcher and Timothy Jacobs, who call themselves members of the Tuscarora faction of the Lumbee Indian tribe, were charged with holding hostages Feb. 1 at The Robesonian newspaper office. As many as 19 people were held hostage for up to 10 hours.

The hostage takers, who are awaiting trial and could receive life prison sentences if convicted, said they were calling attention to corruption in the county's criminal justice system and racism in the local government.

Posters with slogans of support Hatcher and Jacobs covered the front windows of the community center. One proclaimed, "They risked their lives to save ours." Said another: "Drop the charges."

Jackson declined to say whether he favored dismissing charges against the two Indians, saying he did not "have all the details involved." But he added, "the quicker people are released, and the quicker we move toward negotiations ... the quicker we will relieve the tension."

Jackson urged his community center audience not to allow the hostage incident to divert attention from the underlying problems he said spawned it.

"In this situation, poor people are trapped, (putting) one against the other," he said. "The real issue ... is covered up. It's substandard housing, children born without prenatal care, the loss of family farms, the lack of day care, the lack of Head Start."

Helen Oxendine, secretary of the Robeson County Justice Committee and a Lumbee Indian, said she believed Jackson's visit would generate public attention and help solve the county's problems.

"I feel he's going to make a great impact," Ms. Oxendine said. "It's not a publicity stunt ... We want an end to the corruption, an end to the murders, an end to discrimination."

Betty McKellar, a black, said Jackson's stopover would be "a great help. Justice needs to be done. If you're poor, they throw you in jail and forget about you. If you're rich, they take care of you."

Mrs. McKellar is mother of Billy McKellar, whose death in the Robeson County Jail was one of the issues raised by Hatcher and Jacobs during the hostage siege. Mrs. McKellar said her son died of an asthma attack after authorities denied him medication.

Officials have called McKellar's death an accident.

Later, addressing 1,000 cheering students in a packed auditorium at Pembroke State University, Jackson said young voters could make a difference in the election.

He asked the students to prove wrong those who say he cannot win, saying his showings in Iowa, New Hampshire and Maine demonstrated his appeal was broadening.

"Talk about mainstream; try the state of Maine," he shouted.

In impassioned tones, Jackson appealed to the students to reject drugs. Saying the days were gone when blacks lived in fear of lynching by the Ku Klux Klan, Jackson said, "Today's challenge is not the rope, it's dope. Every gain we've made is threatened by drugs."

He criticized the Reagan administration for seeking cuts in the Coast Guard budget, which he said would cripple efforts to halt the flow of drugs into the United States.

"They busted the Coast Guard and then said 'Just say no to drugs,'" Jackson said.

IN THE STATE

No 'Witch Hunt'

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP) — The man recommended by a search committee to be the next president of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary says he will stress conservative principles, but not conduct a "witch hunt" for moderate faculty members.

In a two-hour meeting with faculty and administrators Monday, Drummond stressed that the Baptist Faith and Message, a document asserting the Bible is "truth, without any mixture of error," would be the guiding document for future hirings at the seminary.

"I do think in future appointments of faculty, these things will have to be considered," said Drummond, the Billy Graham Professor of Evangelism at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky.

"I certainly have no intention of coming in here and mounting any kind of a witch hunt," Drummond said. "Academic excellence must be right at the core of theological education or we prostitute the whole venture."

Appointed

RALEIGH (AP) — State Rep. Joe Hege, R-Davidson, has been appointed by Gov. Jim Martin to the Education Council of North Carolina. Hege, a seven term representative, will serve on the council until June 29, 1990.

The North Carolina Education Council considers recommendations made by the Education Commission of the States and other matters proposed by the four council members.

Murder

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP) — An Elon College man has been charged with murder in the shooting death of a man who had come to his home to collect a loan, authorities say.

Terry Lee Smith, 39, was charged in the shooting death Saturday of Kenneth Lee Murray, 30, also of Elon College. Smith was arrested early Sunday morning at his residence and he is being held in Alamance County Jail without bond.

Scallops Still Out As Tide Continues

RALEIGH (AP) — A group of Carteret County fishermen asked the North Carolina Division of Marine Fisheries Monday to allow the harvest of scallops in waters that have been closed because of the poisonous red tide, but officials said the scallops were still "extremely toxic."

Jerry Wolff of Straits, a spokesman for the group, said fishermen thought scallops were safe to eat because scientists said the toxin associated with the red tide did not accumulate in the scallop muscle. He said the internal organs that could hold the tox-

CP&L Ordered To Refund $4.1 Million To Customers

RALEIGH (AP) — Carolina Power & Light Co. has been ordered to refund $4.1 million, or about $2.85 per residential customer, for excess fuel charges the company collected in 1985 and 1986.

Monday's refund order by the state Utilities Commission apparently ends a two-year dispute over whether the commission had the right to adjust fuel surcharges for companies prior to 1987.

The commission actually ordered CP&L to refund $14.1 million in fuel charges collected in 1985. But because the utility's fuel costs were $10 million lower than expected in 1986, the commission reduced the refund to $4.1 million.

"We are still reviewing the order and have not at this point made a determination of whether we might appeal the order," said CP&L spokesman Wayne Ennis.

State Attorney General Lacy

Thornburg called the decision a victory for consumers.

"It has been my position that the utility companies should not receive any money to which they are not entitled by law," Thornburg said in a statement. "We tried to get every cent of benefit to consumers that the law allows."

Fuel costs for utilities can vary widely in North Carolina, depending primarily on the efficiency of nuclear power plants. Weather conditions and the price of coal also can influence those costs.

The dispute began in September 1985, when the Utilities Commission allowed CP&L to raise its rates by $14.1 million to recover higher-than-expected fuel costs. The Public Staff and the state Department of Justice said the Utilities Commission did not have the authority to make the adjustment, known as a "true-up," and appealed it.

At the time, state law allowed utilities to seek annual fuel adjustments to cover anticipated increased costs. The "true-up" was designed to allow companies to recover past fuel costs that had exceeded predictions.

On May 26, 1986, the Utilities Commission ordered another "true-up" that resulted in a $10 million refund to CP&L customers.

But since the first order was under appeal, the commission said that if the decisions were overturned by the appeals court, its ruling would apply to both adjustments in rates. It said it would be "fundamentally unfair" to require a refund of $14.1 million in one case, but not allow CP&L to keep $10 million in the second.

The state Court of Appeal ruled in March 1987 that the Utilities Commission had no authority to order "true-ups."

Five months later, state law lawmakers rewrote the law to allow the adjustments, a move that was supported by utilities and the Public Staff, but was opposed by Thornburg. Under the new law, CP&L has refunded $63.7 million in excess fuel charges.

Task Force Tactics Drawing Criticism

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — Critics of a state task force set up to end a hostage siege say the group has done little to investigate allegations of corruption in Robeson County, but task force members say they have been given little to go on.

"Basically, we're on a listening mission," said James Trotter, Gov. Jim Martin's chief counsel.

And the focus of that mission, he told the Winston-Salem Journal, is to find specifics — not generalities — about the corruption charges made by Eddie Hatcher and Timothy Jacobs when they held up to 19 people hostage for 10 hours at The Robesonian newspaper in Lumberton Feb. 1.

"There are a lot of suspicions, innuendoes, inferences and conclusions being drawn," Trotter said. "But there's a world of difference between having evidence and suspicion. Until we get evidence, we don't have anything."

"We've got nothing to work with."

Robeson County critics say they thought the task force demanded by Hatcher and Jacobs as part of the hostage negotiations would take an active role in investigating their allegations. But they say the panel has done little more than take notes and field calls in Raleigh.

Hatcher, who negotiated the agreement with Phil Kirk, Martin's chief of staff, said he expected the task force to come to Robeson County and investigate its problems firsthand.

"Anybody can sit there in a three-piece suit behind a desk and sort through the mail, hoping a statement comes his way," Hatcher said in a telephone interview from the Cumberland County Jail. "But you can't expect the information to just come to you. You have to go out and find it."

Hatcher proposed that the task force hold a hearing in Robeson County to introduce itself and tell people how best to offer information.

Melanie Fisher Wed In Evening Ceremony

MRS. McLAWHON

After a wedding trip to Hilton Head, S.C., the couple will live in Greenville.

The wedding of Melanie Lynne Fisher and Larry Keith McLawhon was conducted at St. Mary's Chapel in Charlotte Feb. 27 at 6 p.m. by the Rev. J. Ed Wayland.

Parents of the couple are the late Mr. and Mrs. Clayborne Carr Fisher, formerly of Albemarle, and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Eugene McLawhon of Bethel.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Dr. Phillip Richard Goodson. She wore her mother's wedding gown which was made of chantilly lace and silk. She carried a small white Bible given to her by her grandparents, with a single orchid on top. Her veil was of fingertip-length illusion attached to a silk cap trimmed in pearls.

The matron of honor was June Fisher Tyson, sister of the bride, of Charlotte. Bridesmaids were Gail F. Harwood, sister of the bride of Davidson, and Dana B. Lieberman of Greenville. They wore waltz-length dresses made of ivory lace with satin sashes. Each carried loosely tied white flowers.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Craig E. McLawhon, brother of the bridegroom of Knightdale, and Chris James and Thomas Clayton Carson, III of Greenville.

The organist was Mary Mathes. Music selections were Claire de Lune, a selection played in the bride's mother's wedding, and additional traditional, sacred and classical pieces.

The bride's sister and brother-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Phillips R. Goodson, hosted a reception at the historic Overcarsh House in Charlotte immediately following the ceremony.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at Jonathan's Uptown in Charlotte Friday evening. The bride's cousin, Kay Sparks, hosted a luncheon for her.

Reader Was So Offended By Vulgarity She Hasn't Seen A Movie In 13 Years

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad I'm not the only person in the world who finds vulgar language offensive. Thirteen years ago, I went to a movie, and in the opening scene a little girl (about 6 years old) was talking to her doll. She used a gross four-letter word! I was so shocked, I walked out, and I haven't seen a movie since.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

In addition to the language problem, I recently received an ad in the mail soliciting customers for porno videotapes. I went to the post office and filled out a form to get my name off the list of the people who were selling that garbage. I also wrote them a letter telling them how I felt about that kind of sewage.

Norman Cousins wrote an article titled "Dehumanization" in the Saturday Review (Sept. 20, 1975). I kept it because it expressed my view so perfectly. He wrote:

"The trouble with this wide-open pornography is not that it corrupts, but that it desensitizes; not that it unleashes the passions, but that it cripples the emotions; not that it encourages a mature attitude, but that it is a reversion to infantile obsessions; not that it removes the blinders, but that it distorts the view. Prowess is proclaimed, but love is denied. What we have is not liberation, but dehumanization."

We are like the frog that was placed in a pan of cold water over a low flame. The heat was turned up gradually. The poor frog didn't realize he was in hot water until he was cooked. Thanks for listening. — MAXINE DUMONT, BUENA PARK, CALIF.

DEAR MAXINE: Thanks for speaking up. I loved the Cousins quote. It's worth keeping.

DEAR ABBY: I am a beautician and own my own shop. While a customer's perm was processing, I picked up the newspaper and read the letter in your column from a beauty shop owner who complained about her customers' kids running wild around her shop.

I knew how she felt because I had the same problem. It was a hassle for me trying to keep kids quiet so they wouldn't bother my customers. I also spent a lot of time chasing them out of the dispensary where the chemicals were kept. It wasn't easy.

Finally, I got a great idea. I bought a child-size picnic table for $35 and put it in a corner. I bought some crayons and coloring books, gathered up some toys my children no longer played with, tacked a few posters and pictures on the wall, and called it "The Kids' Corner."

If the children don't know about it when they come in, I show them. Those who do know head for it the minute they get here. Now some kids are upset because Mom gets finished with her hair too soon.

My Kids' Corner has saved me and my customers many a headache. Not everybody can get sitters. Pass this along, Abby. — PAT MILLER, DASSEL, MINN.

DEAR PAT: A great idea. Children become restless and unruly when they're bored. You've hit on a wonderful way to keep the little ones out of your hair while you're working on their mothers'.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a man would rent a motel room and ask a lady to go there with him — just to "cuddle"? This is no joke. — THE LADY

DEAR LADY: Only if he couldn't do anything else.

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letters Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage and handling are included).

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market stuttered at the start today after zooming to a new post-crash high on Monday.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue-chip stocks slipped 0.50, or 0.02 percent, to 2,071.12 in the first half hour of trading.

But in the broader market, stocks gaining in price slightly outnumbered losers in the early going by 397 to 372 with 432 issues unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 29.88 million as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street, down markedly from Monday when early dividend plays on utility stocks touched off heavy trading.

The government said today its chief economic forecasting gauge dropped a sharp 0.6 percent in January, but an upward revision for December eased fears of an imminent recession. The Commerce Department reported a month ago that the index had declined 0.2 percent in December after falling in October and November.

Aides Supplying President Minute-By-Minute Scripts

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan was known during his acting days as a quick study, but nowadays his White House staff leaves nothing to chance, scripting his performance at each meeting from the opening "Welcome to the White House" to the closing "God Bless You."

A peek at background memos prepared for the president reveals that he is provided with an extremely detailed minute-by-minute schedule of the day's meetings and activities, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Reagan is given "suggested talking points," papers that lay out specific greetings he should offer, questions he should ask and closing remarks to be made. Also included are breaks in the copy where the other participants may be called upon to speak.

Each event is covered on a separate page, with the time, place, names of the participants and possible type of press coverage, as well as an explanation of why the session is being held.

A 20-page package of memos, dated Feb. 25, was first obtained and reported on by ABC White House correspondent Sam Donaldson, who made them available to The Associated Press.

The package included remarks prepared for outside visitors to the White House, ranging from singer Wayne Newton to an interview with Washington Post reporter Lou Cannon.

Absent from the package were any comments prepared for the president's daily top-level staff meeting or national security briefing.

The fact that such usually closely guarded scheduling papers have gotten into reporters' hands is clearly an embarrassment for White House officials.

But some White House staffers dismiss the disclosures with a laugh, contending the paperwork is similar to that provided other high administration officials or corporate officers and is nothing more than the product of an overzealous staff.

"I think the insinuation that President Reagan needs to be told to say 'Goodbye' or 'God Bless You' is a cheap shot," said Reagan's domestic policy adviser, Gary Bauer.

"Anyone who's around the president frequently knows that the best stuff he says at meetings are the things he comes up with on his own. It's unfair and silly to insinuate that he can't function without those papers," said Bauer.

"It's little worker bees who have little jobs to do," said Elaine Crispin, press secretary to first lady Nancy Reagan.

One of the president's meetings — a brief session known as a "drop by" in the Cabinet Room with several corporation executives — was scheduled to last 20 minutes. The memo on it was prepared by Rebecca Range, a deputy assistant to the president and White House director of public liaison.

For that get-together, Range was provided with the following "Sequence of Events":

"11:30 a.m. — You enter Cabinet Room, are introduced by Senator Baker and deliver remarks. At the conclusion of your remarks you open the meeting to discussion." "11:47 a.m. — Rebecca Range will signal the end of the official portion of the meeting."

Charged

GRIFTON — Jesse James Wilkes, 34, of Grifton has been charged with sexually assaulting a 14-month-old boy he was babysitting.

The boy's mother told investigators Wilkes offered to babysit Friday, telling the child's mother that he had kept his sister's two children.

Investigators said when the mother was bathing the child Saturday morning, she discovered bruises on his lower body and called police. The child was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for examination.

Grifton Police Chief Linwood Outlaw said investigation of the case is continuing.

"You move to the end of the Cabinet Room (under President Coolidge's picture) for handshake photos with the participants." "11:50 a.m. — You depart."

Reagan was provided with the following script for a 30-minute, 2 p.m. meeting with leaders of Congress who had recently met with North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies about the arms control treaty signed in December:

"Bob (Byrd), I appreciate you and your colleagues coming down today."

"I know there has been a good deal of discussion in your hearings about the treaty's implications for NATO."

"On that point, I'm pleased you were able to make this trip together, and Bob, I want to thank you especially for undertaking this and for handling your discussions over there so effectively. And I'm really glad that you made it to Turkey. I want to hear about that part of your trip in particular."

(Senator Byrd and other senators report on their trip.) "I want to thank all of you for your input and advice."

"The next several weeks will be critical in terms of your ratification activities on the INF treaty, and I will continue to work closely with you."

Gephardt Says Deficit Can Be Removed

(Continued from A-1) in the United States, said Gephardt, and it competes with the Hyundai from South Korea that costs about $7,000.

"I welcome this competition," said Gephardt, but South Korea adds nine taxes and tariffs to the cost of a K-car exported to their country and the price tag is inflated to $48,000.

As president, Gephardt said he would ask the South Korean government to lift the tariffs. "If they refuse, we will walk away from the negotiating table wondering how they're going to sell Hyundais in this country for $48,000."

Critics claim his legislation will trigger trade wars, but Japan and Canada opened their markets only after the United States threatened tariffs, said Gephardt. "Why have we been timid? Why have we lacked the courage to stand up and ask for what is basically fair?"

"Once we get the rules to be fair, we've got to be good," said Gephardt, emphasizing the need for increased production and improved education.

Gephardt recalled John Kennedy's pledge in 1960 to put a man on the moon within 10 years. Gephardt said he would like to make his own pledge: "By the year 2000 America will have the best educated people in the world."

"The country needs a new attitude and spirit," said Gephardt. "We need to manage better and lead better and we need to stop the fighting between labor and management."

Gephardt criticized the Reagan administration for delivering a message of "selfishness ... greed ... get your money now and worry about everybody else later."

Companies looking for takeovers and quick profits hurt the United States, Gephardt said. "That attitude will never get us anywhere. I want to be in the White House changing the policy."

Gephardt also criticized the Reagan administration for spending more money on agricultural programs than education. "We're going to spend $11 billion on corn subsidies alone," said Gephardt, and just $10 billion this year on education. "Half of it is going to rot. We think more of rotten corn than we do our kids' minds. It's a crazy program."

In addition to agricultural reform, Gephardt called for Social Security and welfare reform. "We're going to take Social Security and welfare out of the budget and make them independent agencies and never let them be cut through again."

Gephardt has won in Iowa and South Dakota and goes into the March 8 Super Tuesday primary having won more delegates than any Democrat except Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

"This election in 1988 is the most important election of our lifetime," Gephardt said to the crowd. And with more than 1,400 delegates at stake in the 20-state primary March 8, Gephardt told the crowd they will make a difference. "North Carolina and all the Southern states are going to have the most powerful voice in this land," he said.

"You have to stand up for change," said Gephardt. "We don't send people in back rooms to decide. You decide."

Gephardt already has television commercials airing in parts of the South and they should begin in North Carolina this week, said Bob Geolas, state political director for Gephardt's campaign.

The rally was Gephardt's first visit to Greenville, but he does use eastern North Carolina in his campaign. Posters showing him and his family walking along the Outer Banks lined the walls of the building. Gephardt stayed at the Legion hall only about 30 minutes, leaving to fly to Williamsburg, Va., for a Democratic debate.

Win Doesn't Please Valvano State Slips By UNC-A, 87-76

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State coach Jim Valvano says he was glad to see his 16th-ranked team win their 21st game of the season, but he was not happy with the way they won it.

"I want to go to work tomorrow. I know it's a long year, but I'm disappointed," Valvano said Monday after the Wolfpack defeated North Carolina-Asheville 87-76.

Junior forward Chucky Brown scored 25 points and Vinnie Del Negro added 23 for the Wolfpack, which saw a 52-32 halftime lead disintegrate to 78-70 with 3:20 left.

"And we played perhaps the poorest half we've played this year. We did not come out to play the second half. I am very disappointed in the way we played late in the game," Valvano said.

The Wolfpack regained control when freshman Chris Corchiani hit a pair of free throws and Brown followed with a dunk with 1:30 left to increase the Wolfpack lead to 84-72.

"We have accomplished all of our preseason goals, of 20 wins, at least 7-7 in the conference ...." Valvano said. "Twenty-one-and-six is a good season any way you look at it, and I'm proud of the way the kids have played."

"I thought in the second half we did a much better job on both offense and defense. We fought very hard, and were able to make a game out of it," said North Carolina-Asheville coach Jerry Green. "We've been an up-and-down team all year long, and I hope this game gives us some confidence as our (Big South) tournament approaches."

The Bulldogs, 13-14, took their only lead at 22-21 with 9:07 left in the first half on a basket by Funderburk. But Del Negro and Brown sparked a 9-0 spurt that gave the Wolfpack a 30-22 with 7:11 left.

N.C. State then outscored the Bulldogs 22-10 the rest of the half, with Del Negro and Brown combining for 13 points. Del Negro closed the half with a steal and a driving slam-dunk.

Charles Shackelford added 10 points for North Carolina State.

William Funderburk and Ricky Chatman scored 22 points each for North Carolina-Asheville.

Little Celebrating For Musketeers

CINCINNATI (AP) — There was little celebrating when Xavier University basketball Coach Pete Gillen learned his team had vaulted into The Associated Press' Top Twenty for the first time in 30 years.

Gillen, who has led the small Jesuit school to basketball prominence in his three years as head coach, worried Monday that the Musketeers' No. 20 ranking could be their downfall.

"We're honored by the recognition, but we're even more concerned with our team working hard and playing to its capabilities," Gillen said. "My point is that we don't want to live on the recognition and become paper tigers."

Gillen's Musketeers have learned to growl the last three years.

They were 25-5, the best record in school history, during Gillen's first season. Xavier gained national attention last year when it stunned No. 14 Missouri in the NCAA tournament and nearly beat Duke. The Musketeers have compiled a 22-3 record this year with a schedule that doesn't include any current Top Twenty clubs.

That was good enough to earn Xavier the No. 20 ranking in the AP poll released Monday, its first Top Twenty ranking since December, 1958. Temple remained No. 1 in the poll, Purdue second.

"Frankly, we're surprised that we're ranked so high because there are so many great teams in the United States today," Gillen said. "The parity throughout college basketball is unbelievable."

"Hopefully, we can continue to work hard. We are not the type of team like a Temple or a Purdue that can come out and bowl you over. We have to be ready every night. We still have a lot of room for improvement."

That's been Gillen's theme throughout the season. He constantly reminds his players that they can't beat any of their opponents with a half-hearted effort.

"It's nice for the students and fans, but it often can work against you," Gillen said of the national ranking. "It can act as an incentive for the other team and give your own team a false sense of security. I hope our kids show the kind of maturity that is necessary to handle this kind of recognition. It's not easy."

Although Xavier has won a school-record 11 consecutive games, 18 of its last 19, and its last 25 home games, its schedule has weighed against Top Twenty ranking until this week. In addition to its Midwestern Collegiate Conference games, it has played non-conference games against Wright State, Florida International, Cincinnati and Marquette. The Musketeers have two regular-season games left, against Niagara today and against Butler on Sunday, before the MCC tournament.

The Jesuit school of 6,265 students was ranked No. 7 at the start of the 1958-59 season, then dropped after losing to Marquette. Xavier dropped out of the Top Twenty completely in December, 1958, after losing to Oklahoma City and Bowling Green. Gillen said the Musketeers can't consider themselves a big-time basketball school until they've strung together successful tournament appearances.

"You don't make it big until you make it into the field of 64 (for the NCAA tournament) year after year," he said. "We haven't made it this year yet."

SNOW HILL — Winning opening round games Monday night in the Eastern Plains Conference basketball tournament was vital for both Ayden-Grifton and North Pitt, but for far different reasons.

The Chargers, seeded second in the tournament, rolled past South Lenoir, 86-59, in a runaway game that has them peaking towards an eventual rematch with top-seed Farmville Central.

For the fifth-seeded Panthers, Monday's 63-42 win over C.B. Aycock allowed them to stay alive for at least one more game. The only way the Panthers can keep their season going is to keep winning since they must win the tournament to qualify for the playoffs.

The Chargers took control of their game early in the second quarter. South Lenoir, which had gone 0-12 in the EPC this season, pulled within 17-12 with just over seven minutes left in the period on two free throws by Ray Koonce.

But from there, Ayden-Grifton took control.

Aaron Harper scored on a follow shot to make it 19-12. Then, Ronnell Peterson stole the ball from Steve Sassnett and laved it in for a 21-11 edge. Steve Waller then missed outside for the Blue Devils and Leon Dixon hit a short jumper at the other end for a 23-12 Charger lead.

"When they made a run, we always seemed to get a basket," said Ayden-Grifton coach Bob Murphrey. "We seemed to get a couple of easy shots around the basket."

"We thought we could speed things up and get some easy baskets."

Against a team like that, you like to dictate the pace."

From there, the Chargers kept the pressure on. After South Lenoir pulled back to within 23-16 on two free throws by Montez Davis, Ayden-Grifton went on a 10-0 run to break the game open.

Harper started things off with a rebound basket. Dixon added another bucket inside after a South Lenoir turnover. Harper then came up with a steal and followed it up with a bucket in the paint for a 29-11 lead. Eric Blount added two free throws and Peterson hit a jumper for a 33-16 Charger advantage.

For the Blue Devils, that was about it. Ayden-Grifton ended up with a 43-24 edge by halftime and expanded that to 68-43 by the end of the third quarter.

"There's got to be a loser," said South Lenoir coach Bobby Davis. "I guess you could say we improved. They didn't beat us as bad this time."

"We played well enough in spurts. We just didn't have any consistency. The lack of concentration has really hurt us."

Peterson ended up with 25 points to lead the Chargers. Blount chipped in 22 while Harper added 13. Ayden-Grifton, 16-6, advances to play the winner of tonight's Greene Central-Pamlico game on Thursday.

For Murphrey, the final score was a welcome relief.

"Sometimes in the first round, you don't play well," he said. "I would rather have a game like this, assuming you can get through it and taking nothing away from South Lenoir, than get the bye (that the number one seed earns)."

"Sometimes in the first round of a tournament, strange things can happen. I was concerned about this game. I didn't think we were great but we were solid."

Donald Swinson had 19 points to lead South Lenoir, while Koonce and Davis added 12 apiece for the Blue Devils, who close out the year 3-20.

North Pitt used an overpowering edge on the boards to take the win over the fourth-seeded Falcons.

The Panthers outrebounded the Falcons, 35-13, and broke open a tight game with an 10-0 run that opened the second half.

The teams had battled fairly evenly through the first two quarters with the Panthers holding a 24-23 edge by halftime.

Reggie Daniels, who led North Pitt with 17 points, opened the second half scoring with a steal and a layup for a 26-23 lead.

Aycock's Johnny Smith then missed from the outside and Daniels hit again for a 28-23 edge.

Dion Battle then misfired for the Falcons, North Pitt rebounded and Clayton Cherry scored on a drive inside for a 30-23 edge.

Aycock stayed cold from the outside as Corey Dickerson missed a jumper on the Falcons' next possession and Calvin Hunter rebounded the miss. Cherry then scored on a follow shot for a 32-23 advantage.

After the two teams traded turnovers, Hunter split the middle of the Aycock defense and hit a layup for a 34-23 North Pitt lead.

Aycock finally broke the ice when Calvin Artis hit two free throws with 3:05 remaining in the period. That broke a 4:55 scoreless streak for the Falcons, during which they went 0-6 from the field and turned the ball over twice.

"I think defensively we happened to hit it right (in the second half)," said North Pitt coach Cobby Deans. "They were trying to get it inside and they tried to force it in. In games past, they've got a lot of second shots. We did a better job on the boards."

Aycock, though, crawled back into the game. The Falcons pulled within 36-29 by the end of the period before twice narrowing the gap to two and to three once, before North Pitt regrouped and closed out the scoring with a 18-0 run that provided the final margin.

"I thought North Pitt got the key baskets every time," said Aycock coach Randy Bledsoe. "We got it down to two (a couple of times) and then they'd hit a key basket."

"I thought we just stood around offensively. Those guys didn't hit the boards. Defensively, I thought we played great intense defense in the first half and then we seemed a bit dazed the second half. We got it back and then they (again) hit the key baskets. It's just one of those nights. North Pitt deserved to win, we deserved to go home. We could have sent North Pitt home instead they get to play at least one more night."

Daniels went 6-6 from the field, including five for five in the second half and also pulled down seven rebounds

Northeastern Eliminates Rose

ELIZABETH CITY — Rose High School held Kenny Williams to just 35 points Monday night, but it still wasn't enough as the Northeastern Eagles flew to an 80-59 win over the Rampans in the first round of the Big East Conference basketball tournament.

The loss ends the Rose season at 14-9 while Northeastern advances to face Wilson Fike in the second round of the tournament. Fike, unbeaten in 23 games this year, rolled to a 104-70 win over last place Rocky Mount Monday night. Second seeded Northern Nash topped number seven Hunt, 85-76, and number three Kinston beat number six Beddingfield, 64-54, to wind up the first round.

Tonight, girls' play gets underway with Kinston hosting Northern Nash, Rose entertaining Rocky Mount, Fike at home against Hunt, and Beddingfield hosting Northeastern.

Williams, who scored 44 points on Friday when Northeastern defeated Rose clinch fourth place in the Big East standings, scored nine field goals Monday night — three of them 3-pointers. He also was perfect from the free throw line, hitting 14 of 14 for his 35 point total.

"We kept him out of the paint and had someone on his constantly, but we still couldn't stop him," assistant coach Tommy Peacock said.

Northeastern shot out to a 24-10 lead in the first quarter of the game and never looked back. The Eagles pushed through 22 points in the second quarter, while Rose improved to 20, but Northeastern still took a 46-30 lead into the dressing rooms at the half.

In the third period, Rose was held to only nine points while the Eagles added 19. That ran the lead out to 65-39. Rose managed a 20-15 rally in the final quarter, but was too far back to catch up.

Kelsey Brown added 14 points for Northeastern, scoring 12 of them at the stripe as Northeastern copped 39 of 47 free throws.

Rose was led by Keyford Langley, who scored 14 points and was the only Rampant in double figures.

Shanahan Hopes To Meet Challenge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mike Shanahan knows a lot is expected of him as coach of the Los Angeles Raiders. He says he's ready to meet the challenge.

"My concern is not really with the playoffs because my standards are higher than getting into the playoffs," Shanahan said Monday at a news conference called to introduce him as the Raiders' new head coach. "Our standards are to win world championships.

"It's been a situation of great tradition and great success. I'm going to try and add to that success."

The Raiders are the only AFC team to win a Super Bowl in the 1980s, having accomplished the feat following the 1980 and 1983 seasons. But the club has missed the playoffs the last two years, going 8-8 and 5-10.

The Raiders' record last year was their poorest since 1962, perhaps prompting Tom Flores to announce his retirement as head coach on Jan. 20 at age 50 after nine years on the job. His teams were 83-53 in regular-season games.

Flores had succeeded John Madden, whose teams were 103-32-7 in 10 years and won the Super Bowl following the 1976 season.

So it would appear the pressure is on Shanahan, but he didn't sound concerned about that Monday. Rather, he sounded confident.

"It's indeed a great honor and a privilege to be the head coach of the Raiders," he said. "It's always been a goal of mine to be a head coach in the National Football League; to be the head coach of the most successful team in professional sports history makes it that much better."

"It's going to be a privilege to me to keep up the tradition of a Tom Flores, a John Madden, and an Al Davis, that kind of tradition and the championships that were won here. I know these goals can be achieved."

In introducing Shanahan, Davis, the Raiders' owner, said, "As I went into his character, as I went into his background, I found no flaw. His record speaks for itself. His vast amount of experience for a young man is unequaled by many."

Shanahan, who said he signed a three-year contract with the Raiders, has been an assistant coach under Dan Reeves at Denver the last four years and the offensive coordinator for the Broncos the last three.

He than anything for getting the team to the last two Super Bowls.

At 35, Shanahan is the youngest coach in the NFL. But he isn't the youngest coach hired by the Raiders — Davis was 33 when he took command in 1963 and Madden was 33 when he was named in 1969.

Shanahan will be a head coach for the first time, as were Madden and Flores when they were hired by Davis.

"I've always been asked a lot of things about my age," Shanahan said. "It comes down to one thing, you've got to get the job done. I think of my age as a plus, but you've got to get the job done, and I intend to do that."

Davis characterized Shanahan as "bright, enthusiastic, and with a love of the game of football," and called the hiring "a new chapter in Raider history."

Davis said he first interviewed Shanahan the night after the Broncos were beaten 42-10 by Washington in the Super Bowl on Jan. 31. Davis said he spoke several times with Shanahan and with a total of six people about the job.

"I started looking into him in 1984," Davis said of Shanahan. "Just like we watch all the great players who come into the league, we watch all the young coaches who come into the league."

"His record while at Denver is synonymous with greatness. You have to respect what's been going on in Denver the last few years. We certainly respect it. I was looking for an excellent coach. I was looking for someone who I thought could bring greatness to the Raiders."

Reed Was Fully Aware Of The Nets' Problems

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Willis Reed did not take the New Jersey Nets head coaching job unaware that the club has problems, lots of problems.

Injuries, lack of leadership, drug problems and three straight losing seasons only highlight the Nets' woes.

But beyond the problems, Willis Reed found something he has been looking for for almost 10 years, a return to the NBA head coaching ranks.

"This is going to be a challenge," the 45-year-old Reed said. "But I like coaching. There are only 23 jobs like this in this league and when you get the opportunity for one you have to take it."

The Nets ended a 12-week search for a coach Monday by naming Reed as their third coach this season and giving him the job of turning around a team that has won only 12 of 54 games this season.

The Nets did not disclose the length of Reed's contract, but sources said it was three years.

"I don't know if this is a troubled franchise," said Reed, a Hall of Fame center with the New York Knicks in their heyday in the late 1960s and early 70s. "I think they have problems. However, I don't see them as problems that can't be resolved."

New Jersey is tied with the Los Angeles Clippers for the worst record in the league. The club has lost 240 manpower games due to injuries, and twice in the past three seasons has lost players due to drug problems.

Two years ago, Micheal Ray Richardson was banned from the NBA for violating its drug policy for a third time, and just last week forward Orlando Woolridge, Reed's cousin, admitted he has a drug problem and was suspended while he undergoes rehabilitation.

Reed said his main job will be to evaluate his players the rest of the season.

"I'm looking at this as a 28-game season," said Reed, who debuts tonight when the Nets play the Clippers at home. "We'll be looking to win as many as possible and then take it from there."

In taking over, Reed replaces interim coach Bob MacKinnon, who compiled a 10-29 mark after taking over for the fired Dave Wohl in early December. Under Wohl, the club won only two of its first 15 games.

MacKinnon will return to his job as assistant general manager, and Reed said he plans to retain assistant coaches Garry St. Jean, and Bob Wenzel for at least the rest of the season.

Bob Casciola, the Nets chief operating officer, said the field for the job was narrowed last week to Reed, an assistant at Sacramento under Bill Russell. The two sides ironed out the final details of a contract on Sunday afternoon and Reed signed it later that day, Casciola said.

"This team needs a leader," Casciola said. "We have players who are individual and players who have some ability. We don't have a take-charge guy. We had to find a coach with those leadership qualities, and Willis Reed is that kind of man."

Reed spoke with the Nets players for about 10 minutes before attending the news conference to officially announce his appointment.

"I think it's good to bring him in now and throw him into the fire," Nets captain Buck Williams said. "This way he can evaluate who can play and who can't. He can get a feel for the players in game situations. I think this is the best time to bring him in."

Reed added that coming in now will also give him a say in the team's off-season training and a chance to have an active role in the NBA draft. He also said injuries are something no coach has control over.

"A lot of people look at this organization as being at rock bottom," Reed said. "I think we have a good young nucleus. If we can get everyone healthy and playing again things will change."

Reed played 10 seasons in the NBA and led the Knicks to league titles in 1969 and 1973. A seven-time All-Star, he was named the Knicks head coach in 1977 and led to team to the playoffs.

Shanahan is credited with tailoring Denver's offense to fit the talents of quarterback John Elway, an offense which probably was more responsi-

Plymouth Rolls Past Williamston

PLYMOUTH — Plymouth High School, a visitor on its own home court, romped to an 84-60 victory over "home-standing" Williamston in the first round of the Northeastern Conference basketball tournament Monday night.

In the other game Monday night, Plymouth's second-seeded girls ripped Ahsokie, 59-38, to advance to the second round.

First round play winds up tonight at Northampton East, with the Lady Rams facing Williamston at 6:30 p.m. and the Rams taking on Roanoke at 8 p.m.

Plymouth's boys shot out to a 19-11 lead in the opening quarter of their game with the Tigers and were never headed. The Vikings outscored Williamston, 14-10, in the second period to forge a 33-21 halftime lead.

Plymouth continued to pull away in the third period, 24-19, running its lead out to 57-40. Plymouth finished off the Tigers, 27-20, in the final quarter.

Marvin Armond led Plymouth with 30 points while James Carter added 22. Walter Simmons had 12 and Shawn Walker 11. Guy Spruill led Williamston with 21 while Felix Purvis had 11 and Vince Speller 10.

Williamston, now 8-14, must await the outcome of the tournament to see if it will still advance to the sectional tournament. The Tigers, seeded fourth, would drop out of the field should a team seeded below them win the tournament.

Plymouth will now face Ahsokie on Thursday at Ahsokie at 8 p.m. Plymouth's girls will take on the Northampton East-Williamston winner, also on Thursday at Ahsokie at 6:30 p.m.

South Lenoir Tops Rams EPC...

SNOW HILL — South Lenoir's girls ended Greene Central's basketball season, handing the Lady Rams a 34-28 loss that knocked them out of the Eastern Plains Conference basketball tournament Monday.

The Lady Blue Devils trailed 11-8 early on as Greene Central ended up with a 22-20 halftime edge. But South Lenoir held Greene Central scoreless in the third period while scoring nine points of their own for a 29-22 edge. South Lenoir then outscored the Lady Rams, 10-6, over the final frame to take the win.

Chanel Hooker had a game-high 17 points for Greene Central. Sonya King and Joanna Grant had eight points apiece to lead Aycock.

Greene Central closes out the year at 10-13 and takes on top-seeded North Pitt Wednesday at 6:30 p.m.

Tonight's girls' action sends third-seeded C.B. Aycock against Ayden-Grifton at 5:30 p.m., while number two Farmville Central takes on Pamlico at 7 p.m.

for the Panthers. Cherry led North Pitt with eight rebounds.

"We wanted to keep (Johnny) Smith off the boards and then concentrate on the outside shooting," Deans said. "(Corey) Ruffin gave us fits last time. In times past, Smith was getting offensive rebounds. We shut that down tonight."

Smith led Aycock, 10-13, with 14 while Ruffin added 12.

"They cut off our inside play," Bledsoe said. "North Pitt just took it away from us."

Cherry added 12 points for North Pitt, 9-14, while Hunter had 11.

North Pitt advances to play top-seeded Farmville Wednesday at 8 p.m.

NO WAY OUT

Sometimes it seems that there is no earthly way for declarer to bring home his contract. On those occasions it does no harm to run a long suit—there is no telling what pressure that could exert on the defenders.

Note South's simple one spade bid after the overcall. It was forcing, and South felt that he would learn more about North's hand, and the subsequent bidding would be easier, if he did not jump. When North raised voluntarily, South decided he wanted to be in slam if North controlled the enemy suit. His bid over game asked about that, and North cue-bid the ace of hearts in response. South was satisfied with a small slam.

After West led a low heart, prospects were grim. The opening heart lead set up a trick in that suit, and the defenders still held the ace of clubs. A 3-3 diamond split seemed to offer the only hope, but that was distinctly against the odds. Declarer decided to postpone any decision as long as possible, so he won the ace of hearts and proceeded to reel off his trumps, bringing about this position:

When declarer led his last trump, West was caught in an unusual "squeeze without the count." While he did not have to give up any card in a key suit, he could not afford to part with anything other than a heart—his only safe exit. Reading the position perfectly, declarer discarded a diamond from dummy and then led a club. West was forced to win the ace and return a diamond, and declarer took the last four tricks with three diamonds and the king of clubs.

Monroe Named ACC Rookie Of The Week

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State guard Rodney Monroe, who came off the bench to average 16.5 points in a pair of Wolfpack victories, has been named the Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the week.

Monroe, a native of Hagerstown, Md., hit 12 of 21 field goal attempts, including five of eight from three-point range, and was four for four from the free-throw line.

He opened the week with 15 points, two rebounds and three assists in an 89-78 victory over fifth-ranked Duke. He hit 18 points and pulled down four rebounds in a 64-63 victory over Virginia.

Monroe's selection was made by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association, which earlier named Georgia Tech's Craig Neal as the conference player of the week.

Neal averaged 18 assists a game in leading the Yellow Jackets to a pair of Atlantic Coast Conference victories last week.

Neal, a 6-foot-5, 180-pound senior, keyed Georgia Tech's seventh straight victory as he handed out 19 assists and scored seven points to lead the Yellow Jackets to a 91-87 victory over Duke.

Earlier in the week, Neal hit four of six field goals for 11 points and also had 17 assists in a 76-71 victory over Virginia.

For the season, Neal is averaging a league-leading 9.6 assists per game while scoring 7.7 points per game.

NCHSAA Proposes 5 Passing Grades Rule

RALEIGH (AP) — Students will need to pass five rather than four courses per semester to play in high school sports under a proposal the North Carolina High School Athletic Association will ask the state Board of Education to approve Wednesday.

The association is asking for tougher academic requirements to keep pace with the state's minimum graduation standards, said Executive Director Charles Adams.

"The state board is requiring 20 courses for graduation," Adams said. "Our requirement of passing four courses did not keep our athletes on track for graduation."

New standards would take effect in the 1988-89 school year. Athletes who fail to pass five courses next fall would have to stay on the sidelines next spring.

Association board members Richard G. Phillips, athletic director and track coach at J.H. Rose High School in Greenville, and Carl H. Salmon, athletic director and boys basketball coach at Union Pines High School near Carthage in Moore County, opposed the proposal.

Their main concern, they said, is that the policy would be unfair to athletes in spring sports. If athletes in fall sports failed to pass five courses, they could make up the deficit in summer school, but spring athletes would not have the same opportunity, they said.

The association has no estimate on how many athletes would be benched statewide by the new policy. However, other states that recently began requiring athletes to pass five courses found they lost few players providing they warned them at least a semester in advance about the new standards, Adams said.

The association's board voted 15 to 5 on Jan. 20 to propose the new standards on the advice of an academic commission that had studied the issue for a year, Adams said.

Hawkins Leads Bradley To Win

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Bradley Coach Stan Albeck looked out at the court, saw Hersey Hawkins warming up early and figured there was "no way" the 14th-ranked Braves would fail to win the Missouri Valley Conference crown.

And they didn't, thanks to Hawkins, who scored 49 points as Bradley beat Southern Illinois 113-102 Monday night to clinch the title.

"Whenever he comes early and shoots, we know he's going to have a good game," Albeck said of Hawkins. "We knew he was going to have a good night, and tonight there was no way he was going to let us lose this game."

But it wasn't easy. Hawkins, the nation's leading collegiate scorer, was forced to outduel SIU's Steve Middleton, who scored 42 points in his final game at Carbondale.

"Middleton is a tremendous basketball player," Albeck said. "If it wasn't for Hawkins, he would probably be the player of the year in the Valley."

Only three games involved Top Twenty teams. In the others, it was No. 7 Pittsburgh 87, Boston College 79, and No. 16 North Carolina State 87, North Carolina-Asheville 76.

Hawkins scored 29 first-half points, pushing Bradley, 12-2 in the conference and 23-4 overall, to a 56-48 halftime lead.

SIU, 6-8 and 12-15, had a 15-8 lead with 15:35 left in the first half, but Bradley came back to lead 20-19 after Luke Jackson hit a turnaround jumper. The Braves extended the lead to 42-27 with seven minutes to play in the half, but SIU closed to within eight points on a Todd Krueger tip-in at the buzzer.

The Salukis came back to make a strong challenge in the second half, but Bradley was equal to the task.

"Any time you're picked as the preseason conference favorite, there's pressure on you," Albeck said. "I think we responded well all season, and, importantly, tonight, SIU made a good run at us in the second half, but we kept our heads and held them off."

Bradley raced to a 17-point lead in the first three minutes after intermission, but the Salukis scored eight straight points to close within 72-67 with 13 minutes remaining.

SIU tied the game at 76-76 with 11:43 left to play on a Middleton free throw.

The Braves' Jerry Thomas then scored nine straight points as Bradley built the lead to 92-78 with 7:55 remaining.

Hawkins set an SIU Arena scoring record and added 11 rebounds. Jackson added 12 points and 13 rebound for Bradley. Donald Powell came off the bench to score 18 points.

No. 7 Pittsburgh 87, Boston College 79
Charles Smith scored 23 points to become the second-leading scorer in Pitt history as the first-place Panthers improved to 11-3 in the Big East Conference and 21-4 overall.

Ironically, Smith had the first 3-point goal of his career.

"The funny thing is he's actually a good three-point shooter," Coach Paul Evans said. "We have some plays designed for that but he doesn't take that many."

Demetreus Gore scored 14 of his 20 points in the second half for Pitt. Sean Miller added 16 points, including four 3-pointers.

Dana Barros led Boston College with 32 points, hitting on 11 of 22 shots and six of 10 three-pointers. Steve Benton and Jamie Benton added 14 points apiece for Boston College, 15-12 overall and 6-10 in the conference.

Other Games

Forwards Ken Battle and Nick Anderson scored 22 points each and Illinois beat Indiana 75-65, giving Coach Lou Henson his 500th career victory. Henson, 500-243, is major college basketball's sixth-winningest active coach.

Illinois is 9-6 in the Big Ten Conference and 19-9 overall. Indiana, 8-7 and 16-9, was led by Jay Edwards with 29 points.

Reserve Mike Abram hit a 16-foot jump shot with 10 seconds left as Louisville, 19-8, scored the final six points of the game to defeat Memphis State 71-69 and clinch the Metro Conference championship.

Herbert Crook and Pervis Ellison led Louisville, 19-9 overall and 9-3 in the conference, with 16 points each and Abram added 13. Dewayne Bailey led Memphis State with 17 points and Dwight Boyd added 16.

Mark Tillmon scored seven of his 17 second-half points in the final three minutes as Georgetown handed Providence its fifth straight Big East loss and 12th in 14 games overall 73-63. Tillmon finished with 22 points as did Steve Wright for Providence.

Michael Porter scored 22 points and Shelton Jones added 18 as St. John's, 17-9, beat Big East foe Connecticut for the 16th straight time 77-62. Tate George led Connecticut with 24 points.

Sam Graham scored a career-high 23 points to lead St. Bonaventure to a 78-76 Atlantic 10 victory over Duquesne. Darrell White scored a career-high 28 points, but Duquesne, 9-20, lost 20 games in a season for the first time ever.

Skip Henderson scored 23 points to lead Southern Conference champion Marshall to a 93-77 victory over Tennessee-Chattanooga. The Thundering Herd, which finished 14-2 in the conference, is 23-6 overall.

Johnny Smith hit both ends of a one-and-one with five seconds in overtime to give The Citadel a 73-71 Southern Conference victory over Appalachian State.

Porter's Testimony Opens Agents' Trial

OPELIKA, Ala. (AP) — Kevin Porter knew his Auburn football career could end abruptly by taking $3,800 from an Atlanta sports agent in violation of NCAA rules.

But he said he took the money, including two cash payments of $900 during the 1987 season, to help his mother through financial problems and at first didn't admit it to his Auburn coaches after it was exposed in a newspaper report.

Porter testified Monday on the opening day of the misdemeanor bribery and tampering trial of Jim Abernethy, whose lawyers said the former sports agent violated no state law and exposed corruption in the sports agent business to help clean up college athletics.

Defense lawyer Bill Baxley also said the indictment against Abernethy wrongly describes Porter as "an employee" of Auburn University. "Football players just don't come under that description," he said.

State prosecutors, however, said Abernethy knowingly violated laws with payments that eventually barred Porter, an All-Southeastern Conference cornerback, from playing in the Sugar Bowl last New Year's Day.

Assistant Attorney General William Wasden told the Lee County circuit court jury that the payments broke Porter's student-athlete contract with Auburn and that Abernethy willfully jeopardized the player's career.

"Auburn has been penalized. Kevin Porter has been penalized. There is only one member of that trio who has not been penalized," Wasden said in reference to Abernethy.

Abernethy is charged with commercial bribery, tampering with a sports event and violation of deceptive trade law. Each misdemeanor count carries a maximum penalty of a $2,000 fine and a year in jail if convicted.

Porter's testimony came after Lee County Circuit Judge Robert M. Harper ruled Monday that Atlanta sports writer Chris Mortensen, who broke the Abernethy story last December, must take the witness stand under subpoena from the prosecution.

Baxley, who previously has served as Alabama's lieutenant governor and attorney general, said Abernethy made his disclosures to Mortensen after learning that a similar payment by another agent to Alabama basketball star Derrick McKey cost that university more than $200,000 in forfeited playoff revenue. Baxley said Abernethy wanted to save Auburn perhaps $1 million in forfeited Sugar Bowl revenues if Porter played and later was found ineligible.

Mortensen, a reporter with The Atlanta Constitution and The Atlanta Journal, testified that Abernethy never mentioned that to him.

Porter, a senior last season, told the jury he knew the payments from Abernethy were in violation of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules. But he said he took the money "because my mother was in serious financial trouble."

He said he was introduced to Abernethy by a Georgia Tech football player, Ricardo Ingram. "Ricardo was in a similar situation himself," Porter said.

Porter said he met Abernethy and his former partner, Gary Wilson, on Aug. 3, 1987, at Abernethy's Atlanta office. He said he signed the contract that day and got $2,000. He said a go-between, who was not named, delivered $900 in cash to him in envelopes at a Wal-Mart store on two later occasions.

Porter said he tore up the contract after learning that Abernethy had left the sports agent business. After the payments were exposed in Mortensen's report, Porter said, he met with defensive coach Wayne Hall and at first denied taking any money. But, he said, "I felt bad. Auburn had been good to me. Fifteen minutes later I admitted it."

Porter said he never previously told Auburn Coach Pat Dye or any university or athletic official about the payments. He said Abernethy promised not to tell "because it would destroy his own reputation."

Abernethy declined comment to reporters outside the courtroom.

Mortensen said prior to the trial that he is still investigating "the whole sports agent field." His attorney, Michael Fisher of Atlanta, urged Harper not to compel testimony from the newspaper reporter on grounds it might have "a chilling effect" on similar investigative journalism.

Harper, however, ruled that the reporter's testimony was essential. The judge limited it generally to questions directly related to the newspaper stories written by Mortensen, but other questions surfaced as Assistant Attorney General Don Valeska examined the witness.

Also, when responding to questions from Baxley, Mortensen testified that Abernethy made disclosures to him to a greater extent than any other sports agent in the stories he has published. And he said an NCAA official had remarked that the stories had done more to clean up the agent business than the NCAA's investigations.

Scmittour Is Set On Moving Team

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Larry Scmittour says he hasn't given up his plan for buying the Columbus, Ga., AA baseball franchise and moving it to Greensboro, despite a judge's ruling upholding the Southern League's rejection of the proposal.

"It's not over yet," Scmittour said Monday after U.S. District Court Judge Richard Erwin ruled against him. "We've still got our due process of law, and we are still trying."

Scmittour wanted to have the AA team in Greensboro in time for the 1988 season. But the proposal was subject to approval of the Southern League, which meant a majority vote of its 10 directors.

League president Jimmy Bragan says the league turned down Scmittour's bid when the ballot ended in a 4-4 tie. Scmittour claims the vote should have been 5-3 in his favor because of a written proxy vote for Charlotte.

That proxy, signed by Charlotte owner Frances Crockett Ringley, was not voted when the Greensboro move was brought up at the league's winter meeting in Jacksonville, Fla., last October.

Scmittour says the written proxy was presented to Bragan at the meeting as prescribed by the league's bylaws — but was not voted as directed by Ms. Ringley.

"The proxy was handed to Birmingham president Art Clarkson by Ringley's lawyer, Bob Hull, at the meeting," Scmittour's lawyer, Bynum Hunter, said Monday. "Clarkson turned it over to Bragan as required by the SL bylaws."

"I clearly instructed Clarkson what to do," said Hunter. "The key sentence in the proxy read: 'I expressly order my proxy to vote yes for the sale of the Columbus, Ga., baseball team to Larry Scmittour.'"

"That didn't happen," said Hunter. "It didn't because Clarkson remained mute when the vote on Scmittour's proposal was acted on by the directors. Yet, the league's bylaws state that each member shall be entitled to a vote."

"Earlier at the meeting, on routine matters, Clarkson voted Charlotte's proxy," said Hunter. "But he just sat there on the Greensboro matter."

The defense argued that a proxy is only a document authorizing a person to act for another. That "the proxy holder is free to carry out at his own risk of liability whatever he chooses to do at a meeting," argued Robert Dearborn, legal counsel for the league.

"When the Greensboro issue came up and Mr. Clarkson saw that nothing had changed in Greensboro's ownership structure, I think he took it upon himself not to vote the proxy," said Dearborn.

Scmittour already owns Huntsville, Ala., in the Southern League and the National Association of Professional Baseball Rules do not allow one owner to control two teams in the same league.

"That's clearly pointed out in the Blue Book which governs baseball," said Dearborn.

Hunter said the rule was not always followed, that there was precedent for dual ownership in the minor leagues.

"What's more, there's been absolutely no change in Greensboro's ownership since league directors voted in 1985 to allow both Greensboro and Durham to join the league when the major leagues expanded," Hunter said.

"When it began to appear that the major leagues might not expand for a while, Mr. Scmittour saw an opportunity to get a Double-A team in Greensboro by buying the Columbus franchise," said Hunter. "Nothing else has changed and the league took his money ($25,000) and kept it for two years after agreeing to accept Greensboro during the Southern League meeting in San Diego in 1985."

"Though nothing has changed, some of the directors voted against him," Hunter said. "Mr. Scmittour was led to believe there would be no problem and I think he was taken by surprise at the meeting."

Hunter said after the hearing the appeal would turn on the proxy vote.

"It's pure and simple," said Hunter. "Clarkson did not vote as directed by the proxy, and that's going to be the basis of our appeal. Our contention is that it constituted a valid vote for the sale of the club. That's where our disagreement over the ruling is."

"I'm glad to see that it came out this way," said Dearborn, "because I thought all along that the action the Southern League had taken was proper."

"Now, we can get on with the new season," said Bragan, who attended the hearing.

NOTIFICATION OF INTENT TO ISSUE A STATE NPDES PERMIT

Public notice of intent to issue a State NPDES permit to the following:

1. NPDES No. NC0020277. Contentnea Metropolitan Sewerage District has applied for a permit modification. The facility discharges 2.0 MGD of treated domestic and industrial wastewater from one outfall into Contentnea Creek located on the 19th in Griffin, Pitt County. The modification is to increase the design capacity from 2.0 MGD to 2.8 MGD.

On the basis of preliminary staff review and application of Article 21 of Chapter 143, General Statutes of North Carolina, Public Law 92-500 and other lawful standards and regulations, the North Carolina Environmental Management Commission proposes to issue a permit to discharge to the persons listed above effective April 15, 1988 and subject to special conditions.

Persons wishing to comment upon or object to the proposed determination are invited to submit same in writing to the above address no later than April 1, 1988. All comments received prior to that date will be considered in the formulation of final determinations regarding the proposed permit. A public hearing may be held where the Director of the Division of Environmental Management finds a significant degree of public interest in a proposed permit. A copy of the draft permit is available by writing or calling the Division of Environmental Management, Archdale Building, Raleigh, NC, 919/733-5083 or the Washington Regional Office, 1424 Carolina Avenue, Washington, NC, 919/246-6481.

The application and other information may be inspected at these locations during normal office hours. Copies of the information on file are available upon request and payment of the costs of reproduction. All such comments or requests regarding a proposed permit should make reference to the NPDES permit number listed above.

Date: February 23, 1988
R. Paul Wilms, Director
Division of Environmental Management

Moscow Theater Makes A Splash In Munich Show

By TERRENCE PETTY Associated Press Writer MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — After years of Kremlin-imposed restrictions on artists, Soviet drama director Genrietta Yanovskaya finally knows she has the talent to please audiences abroad as well as at home.

"When we first got approval to do this play in Moscow, everybody had forgotten about our theater because nothing that was permitted was what people wanted to see," said Yanovskaya, who has been in professional theater since the 1960s.

German Actor, 83, Isn't Ready To Quit

By JOAN FISCHER Associated Press Writer FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — The career of German stage great Bernhard Minetti spans from the tumultuous days of the Weimar Republic to a current round of accolades for his contribution to the theater.

Wallenstein in Schiller's "Wallenstein." One of his favorite roles, the craggy-faced actor said in an interview is King Lear. "I would play Lear again any time," he said, speaking in German.

He recently was made an honorary member of Frankfurt's prestigious theater ensemble after receiving lengthy standing ovations for his final performance in Samuel Beckett's classic "Krapp's Last Tape," at the city playhouse.

Her troupe was one of six from the Soviet capital that performed in the "Moscow in Munich" theater festival, whose West German backers say reflects the sweeping Soviet reforms under Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The Jan. 14-Feb. 6 festival showcased works that two years ago would have never made it past Soviet officials because they focus on such topics as the repression of past Kremlin regimes.

That same year, the 47-year-old Yanovskaya received permission to stage Chervinsky's version of Bulgakov's novel. Muscovites packed her theater in the Soviet capital to see the performances.

Funding

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Arts & Entertainment Cable Network is providing funding for the American Film Institute's Directing Workshop for Women, a 14-year-old program whose alumni include Dyan Cannon, Lee Grant, Marsha Mason and Joanne Woodward.

But Yanovskaya says that because people in her country were for years harshly restricted in what they could perform, write or otherwise create, the Soviet reforms are putting artists to an unexpected test.

"Glasnost gave us more freedom in choosing what to do. But that does not mean we always know how to make the right artistic decisions. This is a real challenge," she said in Russian, with Chervinsky translating her remarks into English.

West German theater producer Jochen Hahn thought up the idea for the "Moscow in Munich" theater festival and flew to Moscow to try to put it together.

Yanovskaya says Bulgakov's ability to find comedy in the bleakest of circumstances is a trait she and her colleagues also relied on heavily in the pre-glasnost days.

'Reality' Shows Replacing Sitcoms In TV Syndication

By JERRY BUCK AP Television Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first-run situation comedy may have peaked in the television syndication market, and "reality" programming — talk and information shows — seems to be the trend for the fall.

grams and for station program executives to pick and choose syndicated shows for the next television season.

The National Association of Television Program Executives has just concluded its 25th-anniversary convention in Houston, and a number of the new programs being offered are reality based, such as "USA Today," a news show designed to be a TV version of the newspaper.

Other "reality" shows being offered include "Group One Medical," from MGM, "Public People, Private Lives," from Orbis Communications, "The Howard Cosell Show," from Casablanca, and "On Trial," from Republic.

"I think this trend will pick up speed if any of these shows are successful," said Corvo. "Another trend I see is that some shows are leaning toward horror and science fiction."

Lorimar has "Nightmare on Elm Street" and MCA has "The Munsters," a revival of the horror spoof from the 1960s. Already on the market are Paramount's "Star Trek" and "Friday the 13th."

MGM has 30 new episodes of "The Twilight Zone," in addition to 64 vintage shows from the Rod Serling classic series.

By far the most successful of the distributors is King World, which has

"Wheel of Fortune," "Jeopardy" and "The Oprah Winfrey Show."

"There doesn't seem to be a dent in the popularity of those shows," said Corvo. "Stations are buying them three or four years in advance. In the old days you never bought a game show more than a year in advance. Most didn't last that long."

"The popularity of the original situation comedies has leveled off and may even be going into a decline. 'The Munsters' is the only new comedy show. Stations tried a checker-board arrangement with the comedies, with a different show each night, but they seem to be getting away from that. I think they'll go back to stripping game and reality shows (running them each night of the week). I think that's what Grant Tinker's looking for with 'USA Today.'"

That doesn't mean reruns of network comedies aren't selling, however.

"Bill Cosby is going into syndication in 1988 or '89 with the highest-priced off-network show in the history of television," said Corvo. "Who's the Boss?" is also going into syndication and that is getting some very high prices. In fact, the off-network stuff is so expensive that it's helping the sale of first-run syndicated shows. It's making them more attractive economically."

Corvo said he also sees renewed interest in hourlong, off-network shows, which have not done well in syndicated sales in recent years.

Throat Operation

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — A throat operation couldn't stop Katharine Hepburn from making the upcoming TV film "Laura Lansing Slept Here," but it wasn't an easy decision.

Hepburn said her problem became evident when she showed up for the first script reading last fall in Vancouver, British Columbia.

She opened her mouth and "no voice. Total hoarse. Just a rasp," she wrote in the March 5 issue of TV Guide. "I was thinking: Do it — don't do it. ... If I can't talk, then there is no movie — that's a lot of people out of work."

She identified herself as her doctor's Aunt Nora when she checked into Vancouver General Hospital, but

"everyone immediately recognized me, and they were trying not to show it."

A day later, she found out the growth wasn't cancerous. It was "just one of those growths that the human body throws out to torment us," Hepburn said.

10% Low Price Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees our everyday low prices. If you find an identical advertised item at any retail competitor currently priced lower than ours, simply bring us written proof of that price. We'll match that price PLUS give you an additional 10% of the difference between the two prices when you buy from us. It must be an identical in-stock item. Closeout, discontinued and other clearance type sale items are excluded from this offer.

Satisfaction Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees that you will be satisfied with your purchase. If you are not completely happy with your purchase, simply return it along with your original sales receipt to any Lowe's store. We'll repair it, replace it, or refund your money.

Lowe's Raincheck Policy:

If an advertised item is temporarily out-of-stock, we will gladly issue a raincheck (except for items marked limited quantities, discontinued or closeout). When we restock you will be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price. Some stores may not stock all advertised items; however, every item shown can be ordered for you.

Lowe's Fair Purchase Policy:

In order to provide fair purchase opportunity to all our customers, Lowe's reserves the right to limit quantities sold to individual customers. No dealers, please.

UP TO $1,000 INSTANT CREDIT

Apply For Your Handy Lowe's Credit Card!

Over one million satisfied customers use Lowe's Credit Card. Shouldn't you? Just present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard or Sears card and you may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit on a new Lowe's card. (Even without these cards, your application will be processed with minimum delay.) Stop by Lowe's today for complete details and an application.

Finance Major Purchases Of Up To $5,000 On Our Low Monthly Payment Credit Plan:

Our Low Payment Plan offers you an easier way to make those major home improvements and larger purchases, by letting you finance purchases of $250 to $5,000 for up to five years. So apply today. You may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit when you present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard, Sears or Lowe's Card. Complete details are at Lowe's.

Warranty And Financing Details:

Details on product warranties & Lowe's financing policy available in stores.

Lowe's Low Payment Plan — Terms Of Repayment:

Your credit must be satisfactory. No down payment required. The monthly payment includes sales tax of 5% and finance charges. If sales tax differs in your area, the monthly payment may vary slightly. The monthly payment has been estimated and may vary depending upon state laws and charges. Insurance is available upon request. The APR is as follows:
