Pitt Elections Board Seeking Orderly Primary Vote

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

With the "Super Tuesday" presidential preference primary less than a day away, officials at the Pitt County Board of Elections are making preparations to ensure that an accurate and orderly election process occurs at all 25 election precincts in the county.

"There are many new poll workers for this election and we're making sure these workers know how to conduct the elections," said Margaret Hardee, supervisor of the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Mrs. Hardee said that, along with detailed precinct operating instructions, precinct registrars and judges will also be receiving an "office in a bag."

"The 'office in a bag' consists of a large satchel containing many of the tools and forms necessary for conducting an election," she said.

Among the items included in the portable office kit are pencils, scissors, tape, rulers and maps. Other items include voter tally sheets, precinct return forms, expense sheets and worker nametags.

Mrs. Hardee said not only do new workers have to be informed of election protocol, but experienced elections workers need to be briefed and reminded of the rules and procedures as well.

"There's always an instructional meeting conducted before each election as is required by statute," Mrs. Hardee said.

She said new and complex election rule changes have occurred for this election along with an increasing amount of election paperwork.

Mrs. Hardee said the most significant rule change in this election is a rule which says that unaffiliated voters will be eligible to vote with registered Republicans in the GOP primary. Unaffiliated voters may not vote in the Democratic primary, which is open only to registered Democrats.

Although Mrs. Hardee said Pitt County voter turnout is difficult to predict, she said recent appearances by many of the presidential candidates in Greenville have generated considerable interest among Pitt County voters regarding the Super Tuesday election.

Mrs. Hardee said the primaries are important as they will decide how the state's delegates vote on the first nomination ballot at the Democratic and Republican conventions this summer.

The percentage of the vote received by each candidate Tuesday will determine how many delegates each candidate will receive.

North Carolina will send 54 delegates to the Republican convention in New Orleans and 89 delegates to the Democratic convention in Atlanta.

Mrs. Hardee said polls will open Tuesday at 6:30 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m.

Robertson Libel Suit Dismissed

Dole, Kemp Make Last-Minute Appeals To Stem Bush's Tide

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

Republican presidential contenders Bob Dole and Jack Kemp invoked President Reagan's name today in an effort to stem a George Bush tide on Super Tuesday that could propel the vice president far ahead of his rivals, as the Democrats focused on Texas on the last full day of campaigning before the most delegate-rich showdown in political history.

In Washington, a federal judge dismissed GOP candidate Pat Robertson's $35 million libel suit against a former congressman who questioned his Korean war record.

Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, the leader in a new poll of Texas Democrats, spoke Spanish as he sought support from the state's Hispanic voters Sunday and then flew to Georgia where he met with former President Jimmy Carter.

Dole told a news conference in Atlanta that "polls do demonstrate that I beat all the Democrats. He (Bush) doesn't beat any of them. ... We're trying to continue to Reaganize the Republican Party, to let it grow."

Kemp, struggling to survive after finishing no better than third in any contest so far, told an audience at Louisiana State University, "I think the Republican Party wants a Reagan Republican progressive conservative to be nominated and frankly, George Bush, Bob Dole and Pat Robertson don't qualify."

"We are in the race," insisted Kemp, brushing aside questions of how well he had to do on Tuesday to survive.

While Dukakis met with Carter,

Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee picked up backing from another influential Georgian, Sen. Sam Nunn. As the Georgia senator left for a week-long trip to the Soviet Union, his office released a statement saying he had cast his absentee ballot for Gore because "his views come closest to my own views as to the steps our nation must take to meet our challenges at home and abroad."

Four of Dukakis' rivals — Jesse Jackson, Gary Hart, Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri and Gore — were in Texas today, as was Robertson. Bush was ending his campaign day in his hometown of Houston.

Texas, which votes with 19 other states on Tuesday, offers a trove of 183 Democratic delegates and 111 on the Republican side.

In Washington, U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green signed a brief

Iran Claims Credit For Saturday Attack On Navy Helicopters

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — U.S. Navy helicopters dodged heavy machine-gun fire in the Persian Gulf and Iran today claimed responsibility for the attack which came after the helicopters ignored a warning to stay clear of an "Iranian zone."

The account carried by Tehran's official Islamic Republic News Agency evidently referred to the incident Saturday night reported earlier by U.S. officials.

They said American helicopters took "evasive action" when fired on from an oil platform and several small boats in the central gulf about midnight Saturday.

Meanwhile, U.S. officials said there was no connection between the helicopter incident and the movement of six U.S. warships up the gulf today.

The ships' appearance off Dubai triggered speculation that the United States was planning to retaliate for the shooting Saturday.

All six, including a missile cruiser, three missile frigates, a combat stores ship and a chartered Navy tanker, were part of "routine movement, not connected with any other recent events in the gulf," said Lt. Col. John Head, a spokesman for the U.S. Central Command.

Saturday's helicopter incident occurred as the aircraft were scouting ahead of the missile frigate Simpson, returning up the gulf after a convoy escort mission.

A U.S. statement said the helicopters took evasive action and did not return fire when the Iranians shot at them.

It did not say what kind of helicopters were involved or how many there were. Nor did the statement mention any warning by the Iranians before they started shooting.

The platform was not identified by name or exact location, although the statement said it was not the Rostam platform. Rostam was shelled by U.S. destroyers last October in a retaliatory raid after an Iranian Silkworm missile hit a U.S. flagged Kuwaiti tanker, the Sea Isle City, anchored off Kuwait.

The Iranian account said: "Two U.S. helicopters attempting to approach an Iranian zone in the Persian Gulf early Sunday were forced to flee by the anti-aircraft fire of naval forces of the Islamic Republic of Iran."

It added: "The navy anti-aircraft (unit) detected the two helicopters on its radar and warned them to stay out of the Iranian zone. However, the Iranian navy fired warning shots after the U.S. helicopters violated the Iranian zone."

Shortly after midnight Friday, U.S. officials said the missile frigate John A. Moore fired at what were believed to be Iranian speedboats seen on the radar screen before they disappeared.

Also Sunday, thousands of Iranians marched through central Tehran to the Soviet Embassy, claiming Moscow had supplied Iraq with long-range missiles, Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency said in a report monitored in Nicosia.

Problems Over Quick Refunds Dog IRS Effort To Computerize Returns

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Internal Revenue Service's electronic filing system has made tax preparation quicker and more accurate, but the technology has also spawned a more problematic quick loan program created by tax preparers.

The IRS is in the first phase of implementing the electronic filing program nationwide, said Deborah Diamond, IRS public affairs director in Greensboro. It was available in only three metropolitan areas two years ago and seven metropolitan areas last year. This year it is available in 14 states and it will be nationwide by 1990.

"Electronic filing is a means of filing your return without paper," said Ms. Diamond. Tax preparers enter the returns directly into the IRS computer system and the IRS can acknowledge receipt of the return within 24 hours and mail the refund within three weeks. The system will not accept forms prepared incorrectly.

"It catches everything. It tells you if you're breathing wrong," said Anne Kozak, district manager for H&R Block.

It also saves time and money, said Ms. Kozak, because most tax preparers already use computers. "They were putting it in electronically, then turning around and putting it in a form to send in. Then the IRS was putting it in again electronically." H&R Block charges $20 to file electronically if they prepare the

Gaskins Refiles For County Board

Charles P. Gaskins, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, has filed as a candidate for re-election from Combined District B, which includes Pactolus, Grimesland, Chicod, Swift Creek, Ayden, Grifton and a portion of Greenville townships.

Gaskins had filed earlier for re-election from Greenville Township under the old method of electing the board.

A Greenville native, Gaskins has served as a county commissioner from Greenville Township since 1967.

"Pitt County is one of the leading counties in North Carolina," Gaskins said. "It's at the center of the state's agricultural economy and has the diversity, the potential and the means to become the leader in the state's industrial and economic growth."

"I'm thankful to have played a part in its development and hope to continue. I believe I can contribute a great deal and will continue to serve the people of the county to the best of my ability," Gaskins said.

A World War II veteran, Gaskins operated Greenville Feed Mills from 1945 until 1947 when he became Pitt County register of deeds, a post he held for three years. He then entered the oil and gasoline distribution business from which he retired in 1965. He is also a farmer.

In addition to serving as chairman of the Board of Commissioners several times, Gaskins has served as chairman of the Board of Health and is currently a member of the board of trustees of Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Gaskins is a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church and has been a member of Masonic bodies for over 40 years. He is also a member and past president of the Greenville Kiwanis Club.

Paper Reports New Investigation

By The Associated Press

The highly publicized trial of a Winston-Salem hospital nurse accused of euthanizing a patient is prompting health officials to call for tougher review of hospital deaths.

Anthony Shook, a former nurse at North Carolina Baptist Hospital, was convicted of first-degree murder last month after prosecutors said he withheld life-sustaining drugs from a comatose patient in 1985.

Now the State Bureau of Investigation is probing Shook in connection with hospital deaths in Greenville and elsewhere, according to a report published Sunday in the Winston-Salem Journal.

But Pitt County Memorial Hospital officials said this morning that they have heard nothing from the SBI concerning the investigation of Shook since last fall when an investigator spent several days at the hospital going through medical records.

The SBI agent in charge of the case could not be reached this morning for comment.

Shook's license was temporarily suspended last Friday.

Health officials across the Southeast say hospitals should step up techniques used to review patient deaths and the records of the nurses who care for them. North Carolina has 51,000 registered nurses.

Beatrice Yorker, chairwoman of the department of psychiatric nursing at Georgia State University, said mercy often is not the primary motive in such slayings.

In an article to be published in the May 1988 issue of the American Journal of Nursing, Ms. Yorker theorizes that nurses implicated in euthanasia cases may suffer from a condition known as Munchausen's syndrome, a personality disorder in which a person feels a need to inflict or receive pain.

North Carolina has had its share of so-called euthanasia cases.

In September 1985, Michael Grant, a nurse at Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville, pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter in the death of a newborn baby born without part of a brain. Grant was accused of squeeze-

Red Cross Sends Gifts To Children

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The sentiments of a Pitt County girl will cross the seas to El Salvador in the arms of a Raggedy Ann doll as part of an international program of the American Red Cross.

"Dear Little Girl," the letter says. "I gave you this gift because I love you. I hope you like it."

The Pitt County Red Cross will send the doll and its note along with other friendship boxes created by the Pitt County Girl Scouts and Brownies to children in El Salvador. The boxes include tokens such as pencils, paper, soap, shampoo and hair combs, and the Scouts are using the project to earn their international badges.

As March is observed as Red Cross

Month, Raquel Zimmerman, executive director of the Pitt County chapter, recently discussed the international project and other programs the organization provides.

A Basic Aid Training Course will be offered to school children in Pitt and Greene counties, she said. "We'll be able to teach children safety awareness" by discussing emergency rules, poison control, substance and physical abuse and personal safety among others.

"It's a very inclusive, fantastic new course that the Red Cross put together," she said. Teachers and parents will be trained to teach the program, and it is hoped that high school students will become involved and will teach younger students, Ms. Zimmerman said.

The Red Cross also will offer a babysitting course for children beginning at age 11, she said. "It will teach them how to prevent accidents, what to do in emergencies" and the importance of their job as a sitter.

Another new course teaches people how to be home nurses, Ms. Zimmerman said. The course, to be taught at University Nursing Home, will tell "how to deal with prospective patients coming back into the home," she said.

Red Cross offers services based on needs of the community, Ms. Zimmerman said. And, it will continue to offer courses such as first aid, CPR and Advance Lifesaving. It also continues to facilitate blood services and will have a Bloodmobile Tuesday from noon to 6 p.m. at the Moose Lodge in Greenville.

But it also is planning for possible needs of the community, such as when disaster strikes. The Red Cross has helped 28 families this year who have been victims of fire, Ms. Zimmerman said. The Red Cross assists the families with shelter, food and clothing, and acts as a referral service for Department of Social Services and Salvation Army and others.

It also is organizing a disaster team with Department of Social Services representatives who would serve as shelter managers in the case of a disaster such as a tornado or hurricane.

"We want people to know we are here, and they can call to find what services we do have ... to find out what we can do for them and what they can do for us," she said.

Volunteers are a major component of the Red Cross and its services, Ms. Zimmerman said. Echoing those sentiments, Mike Colombo, chairman of the Pitt County Red Cross, said the organization is dependent on volunteers and contributions to carry out its worldwide services.

"There are over 1.8 million men and women who volunteer their time to the Red Cross on a regular basis. They are its strength."

"Many people have the idea that Red Cross volunteers are active only in wartime or during a disaster," when they actually work in the entire spectrum of the services. Locally, volunteers are used to work with military and families, bloodmobiles and office work, he said.

The Pitt County chapter receives its funds through the United Way drive. Therefore, "our volunteers and staff are marking Red Cross Month with a three-prong campaign to thank people for supporting Red Cross through their United Way gift, to inform them about the many Red Cross services and to recruit additional volunteers," Colombo said.

Those wanting to be a volunteer for the Red Cross or needing information on its services may call the Pitt County chapter at 752-4222.

ASK FOR GENERIC

I recently went to my pharmacy, knowing that there was a generic flu medication available that would have cost $2 less for the very same number of capsules as the one written on the prescription form. But because my doctor had signed his name beneath the words, "fill as prescribed," I had to pay the larger amount. I would like for everyone to be aware of this and at least ask his or her doctor for the generic prescription rather than the brand name one. It will save us all on health care. L.T.

SAM UZZELL

Agricultural Extension Agent

What can I do with my lawn? This is a very common question for agricultural extension agents, garden center operators and lawn care managers to hear at this time of year. To answer a few of the most common questions, it would be good to begin with some basic information that is more or less common to all lawns in eastern North Carolina.

The one best thing that a homeowner can do to improve a lawn during the upcoming growing season is to take a soil sample and follow the recommendations for liming and fertilizing. This step will eliminate all the guess work about how much and what type of fertilizer to apply to a lawn. People who are trying to establish an even, durable and well established stand of grass should spread the recommended lime and fertilizer and then physically till or disk with a tractor these nutrients into the soil. Several important things happen when this is done.

First, the lime is placed into the top six or eight inches of soil. This creates a more favorable root zone in which the grass can develop. A deeply established root system will allow the lawn to be much more tolerant of drought, more resistant to heat and cold injury, and be more able to utilize the plant nutrients that are available to it.

Soils in Pitt County are naturally quite acid and low in fertility. The addition of dolomitic lime will correct excessive acidity and provide both calcium and magnesium. Also, the roots of the grass will proliferate through the zone of fertilization.

Secondly, tilling the soil will often break up the soil and provide more air spaces which in turn helps roots to more fully develop. Many yards in this area will never have a decent lawn because the soil is so tightly packed that neither water, air and, consequently, roots of plants can penetrate it. During the land clearing and landscaping operations on new home sites often the top soil is removed and the subsoil is packed, thus causing a poor situation in which to grow grass or plants. In other words, if an area is prepared for planting so as to allow the root system to grow, then the above ground portions of the plants will take care of themselves.

A third factor that comes about as a result of properly preparing a lawn is that a few of the weeds showing will be eliminated. There will be lots of others to take their place, but a vigorous stand of grass has always been more resistant to the growth of weeds.

What grasses should be planted? Each of the grasses that can be planted in eastern North Carolina have advantages and disadvantages. A comparison of a few of the characteristics of the warm-season grasses gives an idea of some of these.

Centipede grass is slow-growing, adapted to more acid soils and low fertility situations. It tolerates shade better than some other summer grasses. It is often lacking in iron especially where the soil has been overlimed. It has a light green color that can be described as "apple green." It should not be fertilized in early spring and does not tolerate nitrogen and phosphorus in excessive amounts. It cannot be sprayed with many weed killers without damage. It is the most mismanaged grass that is planted in this area.

Once centipede is established well, it does not require many inputs. Seeds are rather expensive (around $30 per pound). It takes more than one year to get established well. It should be deeply watered during dry times in the summer. Centipede can also be planted using plugs or sprigs.

Bermudagrass is a very aggressive, drought tolerant grass that is resilient, tolerant of many weed killers, and is the best choice of lawns that are in full sun or sandy soils. It does not tolerate shade as well as centipede or St. Augustine grass, but will generally out perform them in sunny locations. It can easily cover a lawn within a few weeks. With light applications of nitrogen fertilizer, a deep green color can be expected. It must be mowed at least once a week during the summer. It will grow well on almost any soil that has been fertilized. It is often a severe pest of gardens and shrubbery beds and must be controlled with applications of herbicides that contain glyphosate (Roundup, Kleenup, etc.) Seeds are less expensive ($3-6 per pound). There are hybrid bermudagrasses that must be planted by sprigs or plugs. They should only be planted in highly maintained areas. Hybrid bermudas are expensive.

St. Augustine grass resembles a coarse, wide-bladed centipede grass. It does well in areas where summers are warm and humid. St. Augustine must be planted by using sprigs or plugs. It has a dark green color and good resistance to heat. The major problems with St. Augustine are, insect damage due to chinch bugs, high cost of planting material, and occasionally, winter kill. Like bermudagrass, if St. Augustine is fertilized often or heavily, it will be a very high quality lawn, but will need frequent mowing.

Zoysia is another grass that is planted in eastern North Carolina. It is a very thick turf, very stiff bladed (due to high content of silica in the leaves), and fairly well adapted to this area. Zoysia requires the use of a "reel" type mower rather than the circular type of rotary mower used on most other lawns. Also it requires de-thatching more often than other grasses. Another potential problem with it is that it will often get a leaf disease, leaf rust.

Ryegrass and fescue are cool season grasses and should not be expected to survive the summer if they are planted in the spring. They should be established in the fall so that a deep root system can be developed over the winter. In order to have fescue survive more than a season or two, it is necessary to till fertilizer and lime into the soil prior to planting.

Once the recommended soil amendments are made and the grass is chosen, then seeding should proceed at the proper time of year and at the proper rate. If the seedlings are watered sufficiently and good germination is achieved, the grower has done about all that he or she can do. After the grass has been mowed three times, it is considered to be well enough established to be a maturing lawn.

Soil sampling should be done every three years to maintain adequate soil fertility, and keep plants in optimum shape regardless of whether a lawn, shrubbery bed or garden is being tended. Soil sampling is free of charge in North Carolina and is the best first step in getting any planting off to the best possible start. Where can you get further information? Contact your agricultural extension office, a Pitt County garden center or a local landscaping contractor.

Tibet Demonstrations Leave Officer Dead

BELJING (AP) — At least one policeman was killed and 28 injured in Tibet over the weekend in clashes between police and protesters demanding Tibet's independence from China, the People's Daily reported today.

The newspaper, the voice of the Communist Party, quoted Tibet's top police official in its report on rioting Saturday in the Tibetan capital of Lhasa.

The newspaper did not say how many Tibetans were injured. Unconfirmed reports from Western sources in Lhasa said three to nine people were killed, including one Buddhist monk and two Chinese police officers.

Western sources contacted in Lhasa said the city was quiet today and Sunday but that the Jokhang Temple, around which Tibetans battled police, was closed. The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said stores were open and marketplace stalls were doing business today.

In India, meanwhile, 500 Tibetan refugees, chanting "We shall overcome," demonstrated in New Delhi today against the Chinese crackdown in Lhasa.

Police prevented the demonstrators from going to the Chinese Embassy. No injuries were reported in sporadic clashes between protesters and police.

The demonstration was organized by Tibetan Freedom Movement, an organization of self-exiled Tibetans, and the Tibetan Youth Congress.

India has allowed 120,000 Tibetans and their temporal leader, the Dalai Lama, to stay in India. The Dalai Lama fled to India in 1959 after an abortive Tibetan uprising against the Chinese.

The People's Daily today quoted the Tibetan police official, Public Security Bureau Chief Lang Jie, as saying on Tibetan television Sunday that the disturbances in Lhasa began when "separatists" infiltrated a crowd on the final day of a 10-day prayer festival. He said they started shouting "independence for Tibet" and other "counter-revolutionary" slogans.

Lang said 20 to 30 Buddhist monks circled the Jokhang Temple, shouting slogans and throwing stones and damaging Chinese television vans. The official China News Service earlier gave the number as 60.

They also attacked the Tibetan branch of the Buddhist Association and set fire to a car belonging to the group, controlled by the Chinese government.

Probe Reported

ing the child to death. A colleague of Grant's, Robert Jonas, was exonerated in the death but had his license suspended, in part for failing to intervene.

Milton Shearer, a nurse at Beaufort County Hospital in Washington, pleaded guilty to manslaughter while under the influence of drugs in connection with a patient's 1983 death. His license was revoked.

"In the intensive care unit, any given patient that dies you can argue that it could have happened, anyway," said Dr. Jeffrey Sacks, an investigator in the division of injury control at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Sacks and his colleagues have written an article recommending that hospitals use epidemiological techniques, or those used to track the spread of infection, for investigating questionable deaths in hospitals.

The article was published last month in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Such techniques not only discourage those tempted to kill, Sack says, but also can help detect suspicious trends in hospital deaths — as in the case of an unidentified hospital he and his colleagues investigated.

Using statistical computer charts, Sack's team found that the incidence of heart attacks was 20 percent higher among hospital patients attended by a single nurse.

"I'm not saying you can stop these things from happening," Sack said. "But one can certainly pick them up once you look for them."

Others suggest sophisticated techniques may do little to deter a nurse determined to commit euthanasia.

Charles Wins, Shakes Hands

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Prince Charles thrilled spectators by shaking hands on both sidelines after beating an American polo squad assembled for the royal occasion.

"I can't believe it. I was so shocked," said Anabelle Mariaca, who shook hands with the Prince of Wales after the 90-minute match Sunday at the Palm Beach Polo and Country Club. "I told him I was from Bolivia, and he said, 'I bet the weather is better there than here.'"

The prince's Windsor Park team beat Palm Beach 6-4 on a soggy field doused by occasional rain. The prince, scheduled to fly home today via New York, scored a goal on a penalty shot, and teammate Peter Brant said Charles saved five or six goals on defense.

"He played very well," Brant said. "He hadn't played in competition since the end of August, but he made some beautiful back shots."

CHECKING FOR TMJ SYNDROME

Aside from checking the teeth and gums during a routine examination, our office also examines the joints on each side near the ears. This is to determine whether or not you have temporomandibular joint dysfunction (TMJ Syndrome for short) and whether it requires treatment.

We check for popping or clicking when you open and close your mouth. We will also try to correlate that with any history of pain or limited ability in mouth opening. We will feel the chewing muscles to see if there is any tenderness and ask whether you have many headaches, stiff neck, or problems with the chewing muscles or joints, that you have noticed.

Such questions are important. Many cases of TMJ pain are related to disharmonies in the bite (the way the teeth meet and chew), but there are a number of other possible causes. We have to put all this information together to know how to treat you if it's needed.

Call our office for an appointment today. Let us thoroughly examine your teeth and gums and recommend the best treatment for you.

NOTE:
We welcome new patients, both children and adults.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Enough Reasons
To Vote Tuesday

Pitt County voters tomorrow will have the opportunity to take part in a unique primary.

Called Super Tuesday, the primary will give voters in most southern states, as well as some states outside the South, the opportunity to participate in the naming of both Democratic and Republican presidential nominees.

Primaries are being held for both major parties, and voters — whether Democrat or Republican — have choices to make between the candidates who are running.

Anyone who doesn't know there is a race would have to live in a vacuum. Several of the candidates have been to Pitt County and most have been to North Carolina in their quest for votes they hope will spark their campaigns and lead to the nomination at the party conventions this summer.

There has not always been a presidential primary in North Carolina. Our citizens could only watch as the nominations were made at the conventions. Now, however, all who are registered can participate and perhaps influence the direction this nation will take for the remainder of the century. Not only that, but North Carolina voters will be joining voters in other participating southern states which allows the region to be heard in a unified manner.

That is something new and different in presidential politics and Super Tuesday will determine how effective the approach will be. It won't be successful at all, however, if there is not a representative turnout of voters. In Pitt County, the polling places will open at 6:30 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m. Voters will cast their ballots on voting equipment and results will be coming in Tuesday evening.

The reasons to vote are as numerous as the freedoms Americans enjoy. The president the nation eventually chooses should be effective in protecting freedoms, maintaining economic well being and keeping the country free from foreign dominance.

In addition, consider the responsibility each citizen has to participate in the Democratic process. Now consider the consequences of not being involved in Tuesday's effort.

Those are reasons enough for all eligible voters to visit the polls tomorrow.

Continuing Era
Of Improvement

With the appointment of Jerome M. "Jerry" Tesmond, Greenville has a new chief of police, hopefully continuing an era of steadily improving law enforcement.

After an exhaustive search, the announcement was made by Greenville City Manager Greg Knowles at a press conference.

The candidates were put through a rigorous screening process and Knowles said the new chief excelled at the assessment center. City Manager Knowles said Tesmond has the education and qualifications that "we felt would be necessary to lead this department into the 21st century."

Tesmond said he saw law enforcement work as a lifetime commitment. "I don't know how to work as a grandstander. I only know how to work as a team member," he said.

There has been considerable progress made in employing better educated and better trained police officers on the local police force in recent years. The key to a higher level of law enforcement is increased education requirements for potential officers and a strong law enforcement training program for officers after they join the department.

Tesmond has a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Lewis University in Lockport, Ill. He holds a master's degree in public administration from Roosevelt University in Chicago. He is also a graduate of the FBI National Academy and has participated in other law enforcement training sessions.

His record shows he knows the value of education and expertise for police officers. It is hopeful his leadership will further direct the department's path toward progressive operation.

The new chief takes over a police department in a growing city, one in which increasingly more sophisticated police methods will be needed as the community moves toward the 21st century. As in other areas, the best in law enforcement is required. The community should look forward to an improving era of police work under Chief Tesmond.

"AS THEY APPROACH THE FINISH LINE IT'S 'BLACK VOTE' NECK-AND-NECK WITH 'MASSACHUSETTS MIRACLE,' 'FLIP-FLOP' AND 'SOUTHERN STRATEGY' ARE CLOSING ON THE INSIDE, 'LOVER BOY' IS TRAILING THE FIELD!"

Campaign Shows Fragmented Nation

'The universal experiences that once bound us together, the 1940s movies and the military draft the community-wide high school and network TV programs, the labor union and the political machine, are gone or dwindling in importance.'

Now we are just hours from Super Tuesday, hoping that this monster plebiscite will clarify a presidential race that is still mighty murky. After a 1984 campaign that was fought out mostly on national issues and national themes, the first results of 1988 campaign show a politics — and a country — that is increasingly fragmented. This is not the traditional fragmentation of interest block or economic class — business vs. labor, farmers vs. banks and railroads, haves vs. have-nots. So far the election shows a nation shattered into regional and cultural fragments.

Some evidence: The first contests were regional victories. "He's one of us," proclaimed the Iowa spots of Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kans. Rep. Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., in his flat Midwestern accent appealed to Iowa's "workers, farmers, seniors" who feel left out of the Reagan prosperity in the state with the nation's biggest population loss in the 1980s. Both bristled with hostility to outsiders, Dole to opponents who were born rich, Gephardt to a conveniently hazy "establishment."

New Hampshire — bursting with prosperity, the fastest growing state east of the Rockies and north of Florida — voted for Democrat Michael Dukakis, who campaigned on "the Massachusetts miracle." It also voted for George Bush, who stole New York GOP Rep. Jack Kemp's New Hampshire-specific message and charged that Bob Dole was "straddling" on taxes and the oil import fee. Gephardt replicated his Iowa win in hard-stricken South Dakota; Dole won in South Dakota and Minnesota; Bush and Dukakis won in Maine and Vermont and Dukakis, with a strong organization centered in the high-tech, fast-growing Twin Cities, won Minnesota.

Cultural, rather than economic bases support the two reverends. Republican Pat Robertson depends primarily upon evangelical Christians, Democrat Jesse Jackson upon black voters. Robertson proved in Michigan, Hawaii, Iowa, Minnesota, and Alaska that he can get thousands of his supporters to attend caucuses; but he flopped in New Hampshire's primary. Since 77 percent of Republican delegates are elected in primary states, he must do better. Jackson in Iowa and New Hampshire has found a left-leaning white electorate — mostly a graduate student proletariat — providing 8 percent of white votes in Iowa and New Hampshire and more in Maine and Vermont. His white percentage may be lower in the South and in racially polarized Illinois, but with large black turnouts he could win half a dozen primaries in March.

Neither can win his party's nomination; their issue positions are too far out and they have no experience in public office. The distinctiveness which fires their followers' enthusiasm arouses apprehensions in most other voters. But they have already fragmented their parties, both of which will nominate candidates who have made little or no effort to win black or evangelical votes.

The Super Tuesday South — created to provide a strong, clear southern voice in the campaign — is likely to send a muffled message. Instead of a unified, regional primary, it has turned out to be a contest for fragments of 20 states, 97 media markets and 167 congressional districts. Among Democrats, Jesse Jackson is targeting blacks and Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., whites, but only in some states. Michael Dukakis is looking at growth areas in Florida, the Carolinas, and Georgia, and Hispanics in Texas. Dick Gephardt is looking for the rural, older, less educated whites who provided his base in Iowa and New Hampshire. The Democrats all argue that you should score Super Tuesday not by wins but by delegate count. With proportional representation it's possible that every candidate going into Super Tuesday could still be in the race coming out.

Bob Dole on Super Tuesday is looking at North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky, Arkansas and Oklahoma, Florida — states with Civil War Republicans or recent migrants from the North. George Bush is all over the tarmacs and airwaves of the South, but his strongest states are the biggest, Texas and Florida — which, with California, have had most of the nation's population growth in the 1980s. Dole is the candidate of older, ancestral, economically ailing Republicans, Bush of younger, newly converted, economically thriving ones.

This political fragmentation is no accident. We live in a culturally fragmented country, where peace and prosperity have enabled almost everyone to choose from a wide variety of lifestyles, to live in his own little cubicle, to listen to his own music and watch his own channel on cable TV. We mix very little with people who have different cultural attitudes: people who play squash spend little time in bowling alleys.

The universal experiences that once bound us together — the 1940s movies and the military draft, the community-wide high school and network TV programs, the labor union and the political machine — are gone or dwindling in importance. Loyalties to political parties have long since atrophied.

The monumental 1987 Times Mirror poll, that divided the electorate into 11 separate groups, defined more by cultural attitudes than by economic interest — enterprisers, moralists, upbeats, disaffecteds, bystanders, '60s Democrats, partisan poor, passive poor, seculars and followers — shows vividly how fragmented the American electorate is, and suggests how hard it is to assemble a majority.

Hard, but not impossible: somebody will. Our political system is majority-forcing. The Republicans and Democrats will each nominate a ticket, and one ticket will win 270 electoral votes. Someone will glue the shards together. But how strong the glue will prove and whether it will hold more than momentarily, depends a lot on how the campaign goes — and how it has gone so far is not entirely reassuring.

Old Conflict With A New Twist

'Now, it's no longer a question of a black being on the ballot or winning high office. The question is whether a new wave of racial polarization will result from the highly emotional Jackson campaign.'

result from the highly emotional Jackson campaign.

As the voter colloquy here suggests, many black voters are likely to attribute a Jackson defeat to racism when that is not the case or always the case. Many whites will resent the imputation that their decision not to vote for Jackson was motivated by racism.

Here, too, the exchange of black-white voter views was revealing, especially given Cukor's white liberal background.

She crossed the Mason-Dixon line for the first time 29 years ago on a family vacation, heading from Detroit to Florida on a trip that left an indelible memory.

"I was glad my children were too young to read then," she said, "because we saw these white-only signs everywhere. When we stopped at gasoline stations, they had three keys for the rest rooms. My smart little kids wanted to know why there were three keys instead of just two. I remember going to the race track in Miami and guards running out to us telling us that that was the black entrance."

With that in mind, she greeted with dismay the news of her husband's move south six years later.

"When my husband said he was going to take a job here in Atlanta in 1965, I cried, I cried for days," she said. "The only thing I can say is that, over those six years since we had been South, those things had changed. Those segregation signs were gone in Atlanta even though for years I always identified myself not as a Georgia Democrat but as a national Democrat because I didn't want to be aligned with some of the people in the state who call themselves Democrats. I'm not saying there still isn't discrimination,

Strength For Today

In the Gospel of John, Jesus is referred to as the only begotten Son who is in the bosom of the Father.

This means that Jesus is the revelation of the heart of God. He did not come to reveal the wisdom and power of God. We find these revelations in the natural world around us. But Jesus came so that men might know with certainty which could not be shaken that in God they have a heavenly Father who loved them.

The revelation of God which we get in the natural but we've seen that part of it gone. Things have changed. ... We've done a lot of positive things. Let's not forget that."

Jackson is not running a racial campaign. His message, expressed passionately wherever he goes in the South these final days before Tuesday's primary votes are cast, is an evocation of the "new South" theme first sounded a century ago in a famous speech by the white Atlanta editor, Henry W. Grady. "There was a South of slavery and secession," Grady began, in words generations of southern schoolchildren knew by heart. "That South is dead. There is a South of union and freedom. That South, thank God, is living, breathing, growing every hour."

world is sometimes terrifying. The world seems to be under the rule of ruthless laws which have no place for mercy and love. It is when we look to Jesus who is the revelation of the heart of God that we realize that love is behind it all. In our finite state we only dimly comprehend the wisdom and power of the Most High. But always we can understand love. And when we see the love of God being shown forth in Jesus, then we comprehend God in a new dimension.

Shultz Plan Ingenious But Faces An Uncertain Future

Analysis

WASHINGTON — If the United States had the power to impose its will on the rest of the world, the new American plan for Middle East peace would seem to be a just and equitable way to end four decades of strife between Arabs and Israelis.

It has something for for almost everyone. And it tries to avoid the things that each of the parties most strongly oppose.

For Israel, it holds out the prospect of peace with all of its neighbors for the first time in its modern history. For the Palestinians it offers more control over their own destinies than they have enjoyed for years, and maybe more than they have ever known. And for the Arab states of the region, it offers an end to the humiliation which followed their military defeat by Israel in 1967.

But the United States does not have the power to impose a settlement. And the new U.S. plan already seems to have attracted more critics than supporters.

"There are so many people who can pull the rug out," Secretary of State George P. Shultz mused as his Air Force plane began the last leg of an exhausting 21,916-mile Middle East shuttle which ended Saturday.

The list of potential spoilers — any one of which could probably torpedo the plan — is a long one:

- Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who immediately passed the word to Israel Radio that the proposal was not acceptable without significant changes, and who has never embraced the land-for-peace concept at the heart of Shultz's latest plan.

- The Palestine Liberation Organization, which maintains a strong influence over the Arab population of the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, but which is offered no official role in the proposed settlement despite its longstanding claim to be the only representative of the Palestinian people.

- The Soviet Union, Britain, France and China, which are called upon to play cameo roles in launching negotiations but are offered no real influence.

- Jordan's King Hussein, who has long insisted that he will make peace only if Israel gives up all of the Arab land it occupied in 1967, something that the Shultz plan does not provide.

- Syria, Israel's most implacable foe, which has indicated that it would consider a peace settlement only if it could recover the Golan Heights, which Israel has formally annexed.

That sort of opposition has destroyed all attempts at Middle East peace since the 1978 Camp David conference, which fashioned the only peace treaty Israel has ever signed, its 1979 pact with Egypt.

In normal times, Shultz admits, his plan would almost surely be shot down by some group that preferred the status quo that it knows to the uncertainties of a negotiated future. But, Shultz maintains, these are not normal times.

"There are many things about what we are doing that are very ambitious and the timeline is very ambitious," Shultz said. "But we also think that there is an attitude of readiness to work to change things that should be taken advantage of by everybody."

The sense of urgency results from the bloody 12-week-old uprising of Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Both Israelis and Arabs agree that things will never again be quite the same as they were before the riots began last December.

But it is not yet clear whether the violence will produce a compromise. West Bank and Gaza Palestinians say that, despite at least 80 deaths, the uprising has put their cause back on the international front burner. They might want to keep it there a while longer. And Israeli leaders, for their part, are reluctant to appear to be giving in to the demonstrators.

Shultz tried to neutralize the opposition with an interlocking package in which the most cherished position of each party is linked to issues that party opposes.

He delivered a page-and-a-half memo on the proposal to Israel, Jordan, Syria and Egypt Thursday and Friday. And, as the trip drew to a close, the secretary of state clearly was pleased with his work.

The plan calls for an interim period of limited self-rule for West Bank and Gaza Palestinians while negotiations are proceeding over the shape of a final settlement. Shamir supports some sort of "autonomy" for the Palestinians and would like to make that the final settlement, not just an interim measure. For their part, the Palestinians, joined by Arab governments, complain that limited self-rule is not enough and they are worried that if they accept autonomy, that will be all they can ever get.

Shultz's proposed compromise calls for negotiations, expected to last six months or less, to establish the outlines of an interim period of autonomy. The interim arrangement would not take effect, however, until negotiations on a final status have begun.

That is intended to reassure the Palestinians that they will have a fair chance at their ultimate objective, an independent state. But the autonomy plan would last for exactly three years, regardless of progress in the final status talks. That is intended to reassure Shamir that autonomy will get a fair trial and that Israel will not be stampeded into a final settlement.

Similarly, Shultz is attempting to finesse the issue of an international conference. Jordan, joined by other Arab states, demanded a conference to be attended by the major powers and all of the parties to the dispute. Although King Hussein said he would engage in direct talks with Israeli leaders at such a conference, he said the conference itself must play a substantial role. Israelis, even those favorably disposed to the conference idea, wanted a much less formal gathering that would have no real power.

Deaf Students Protest Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gallaudet University's board of trustees bypassed two deaf candidates and instead chose a woman who can hear as president of the school for the deaf Sunday, triggering a renewal of protests by hundreds of students.

Elisabeth A. Zinser has been vice chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro since 1983 and has a long career in education and administration in the medical and health services.

"She was picked over (the deaf candidates) because neither of the other two candidates had the breadth of her experience," trustee board Chairwoman Jane Bassett Spilman told The Associated Press. The board voted 10-4 for Zinser.

DR. ELISABETH ZINSER

Of the four deaf board members, three voted against Zinser and one could not vote since he was a candidate for the job. One hearing board member voted against her.

"That she does not know sign language is obviously critically important," Spilman said. She added that from the time Zinser was notified of her candidacy for the position, she has been studying sign language and "reading about deaf culture and the historical perspective of deafness."

Hundreds of outraged students who had wanted a deaf appointee immediately took to the streets in protest, marching two dozen blocks from the university to the Mayflower Hotel downtown where the meeting was held, police said.

The deaf candidates for the job were Harvey J. Corson, 44, superintendent of the Louisiana School for the Deaf in Baton Rouge and a Gallaudet board member; and I. King Jordan, 45, dean of Gallaudet's College of Arts and Sciences.

Earlier in the day, throngs of students, faculty and alumni of Gallaudet University gathered at the gates Sunday and waved signs urging "Deaf President Now," hours before the board of trustees was expected to name a new school president.

Gallaudet, established by Congress in 1864, has an enrollment of 2,200 university students, 400 high school students and 200 elementary school students. Nearly all the undergraduates are deaf.

The rally was the latest in a week of demonstrations aimed at pressuring the board to name a deaf president of Gallaudet, which is the only university for the deaf in the world.

Gallaudet has never had a deaf president in its 124-year history.

"I think we made an impression on the board of trustees," Jerry Covell, a student organizer for the Deaf President Now Committee, said before the vote. "In deaf culture, we're always dominated by hearing people. Now we know what we want and we have qualified people" to be president.

Members of the Deaf President Now Committee have gained some powerful supporters, including members of Congress and the National Association for the Deaf.

"In 124 years we didn't give them a chance," residence hall supervisor Tina Jo Breindel wrote on notepaper. "Like eating Italian food in Chinese restaurant — strange."

Turnout Could Be Key Factor In State's Super Tuesday Vote

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Despite a flurry of presidential visits to North Carolina, the outcome of Tuesday's primaries appeared to rest mainly on how many voters show up and who has the best television commercials, political observers say.

"It all comes down to turnout," said Ted Arrington, political scientist at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and a Republican.

"It's just impossible to predict the winners at this point," said Merle Black, political scientist at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "The situation is very volatile, very fluid. ... TV, voter turnout, name recognition (are) all very important."

Arrington said Vice President George Bush, locked in a tight race with Sen. Bob Dole, might benefit greatly from his lopsided victory in the South Carolina primary on Saturday.

"Dole doesn't have to win everywhere in the South," Arrington said. "He does need to win one or two states and finish close in the others. He really needs to win North Carolina."

Democratic and Republican candidates dashed in and out of the state over the weekend to lure votes in the third-largest of 14 Southern and border states that will hold primaries or caucuses on "Super Tuesday."

While Bush played up his South Carolina victory, Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., sounded a defiant note at an airport news conference but top strategists acknowledged his campaign was tottering.

Meanwhile, Democrat Al Gore delivered an impassioned speech at the Jefferson-Jackson Dinner in Raleigh and aired a television ad blasting rival Michael Dukakis, whose own commercials debuted in the state last week. Jesse Jackson missed his scheduled appearance at the dinner when his plane was grounded in Washington, D.C., but his state chairman predicted he would win in North Carolina.

With Gore, Dukakis and Richard Gephardt vying among themselves, Jackson looks increasingly formidable with his solid base in the black community, said Black.

"You've got the three main white candidates tearing each other up and he (Jackson) sits back and appears to be a peacemaker or somehow above it all," Black said.

In North Carolina, two of the state's best-known Democrats, Sen. Terry Sanford and former Gov. Jim Hunt, threw their support to Gore. Only two weeks ago, it appeared the move might prove a bust as polls showed the Tennessee senator running fourth.

But surveys taken within the past week suggest his support is growing. Results published over the weekend by the Charlotte Observer showed Gore and Jackson with 21 percent support each, followed by Dukakis with 14 percent, Gephardt with 11 percent, Gary Hart with 8 percent and Paul Simon with 2 percent.

Those are voters who might be swayed by a last-minute commercial, Black said.

Gore has relied heavily on endorsements by Democratic officeholders and appeals to regional pride. But his improved standing may have resulted more from his media blitz and a sharper message built on populist themes.

Gephardt also has tailored a populist message that figures to play well in North Carolina, especially with the embattled textile industry.

fact that involvement at the grassroots level determines the number of delegates allowed to each candidate," he said. "Super Tuesday is not as important as election day in November — this is a misconception the public holds. People must get involved to get enough delegates to lend strong support to their preferred candidate."

Paul Renner, a junior history major from Jacksonville, Fla., took the winter term off to work for the campaign of Republican Pat Robertson. Last summer, Renner coordinated a national petition drive to collect 3.5 million signatures for the former religious broadcaster turned presidential candidate.

Renner is now a paid staff member of the Robertson campaign. He is in

College Students Get Crash Course In Presidential Races

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — The campaign for Super Tuesday has provided a learning laboratory for many college students getting their first taste of behind-the-scenes politics.

"I had no idea how a campaign was conducted," said Molly Cochran, a junior at Davidson College who majors in political science. She and Davidson senior Darek Newby signed up to work in the Charlotte headquarters of Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Newby, 22, of Jamestown, and Ms. Cochran, of Athens, Ga., say their primary task is to get Dukakis supporters to the polls on Tuesday.

Two mornings each week, the two have supervised the volunteers who man the phone banks and organize poll watchers and canvassers.

"I've gained a different perspective of the campaigning process," said Newby. "It's not complex work, but it's a lot of work. It's our job to find out who's supporting our candidate and get them out to vote on Tuesday."

While neither are getting paid for their campaign work, Newby and Ms. Cochran are earning college credits.

Flake Sherrill, a sophomore from Statesville who is campaigning for U.S. Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., has distributed fliers door-to-door while learning about the intricacies of primaries.

"I learned about caucuses and the charge of mobilizing volunteers to run for delegate seats in North Carolina's 9th, 10th and 11th congressional districts.

During January, Renner worked at Robertson's national headquarters in Virginia Beach, Va., soliciting delegates so his candidate would appear on every state's ballot. Renner hopes to attend the Republican national convention this August in New Orleans.

At the end of his internship, Newby will write a paper describing his political work. But he's too busy now to think about it.

"Everything is building for Super Tuesday," he said. "It's going to be a lot of fun."

Murder-Suicide

FAIRMONT, N.C. (AP) — A Robeson County man and woman were shot to death Sunday afternoon outside their home in what authorities believe was a murder-suicide.

Chester Chavis, about 60, was shot once in the chest at close range and died instantly, authorities said. His wife Judy Saxon Chavis, 44, died instantly of a single gunshot blast to the face, according to Robeson County Sheriff Hubert Stone.

Mrs. Chavis' body was found in the backyard at the side of the house and Chavis' body was found about 20 yards from her near the back porch, Stone said. He said that neighbors told authorities they heard the shots about 2 p.m. Sunday but thought nothing of it because Chavis often was outdoors shooting at dogs.

Shooting Death

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP) — A Robeson County man who worked as a nightclub bouncer in neighboring Hoke County was shot to death early Sunday morning, and a 19-year-old man has been charged with murder, Robeson County Sheriff Hubert Stone said.

The victim was identified as Mark Cassidy Locklear, 27, of Maxton. Kendall Hunt, 19, of Pembroke, was arrested Sunday morning and was being held without bail in Robeson County jail charged with first-degree murder, authorities said.

The two men and others were riding home from the club about 3 a.m. Sunday when they stopped beside the road about two miles north of Pembroke, an argument broke out, and Hunt allegedly shot Locklear, Stone said.

Sniper

ROBBINS, N.C. (AP) — A Robbins man who was wounded during a weekend gun battle with Moore County sheriff's deputies was hospitalized in stable condition with minor gunshot wounds, officials say.

About 4 p.m. Saturday, Moore County Sheriff's deputies received calls that a sniper was standing at the intersection of N.C. 705 and a state road, firing gunshots at passing cars, according to Moore County Sheriff's Department Sgt. Tommy L. Handy said. The man exchanged gunfire with officers before being taken into custody.

Wilbert W. Horner, 39, of Robbins was charged with felonious assault on a police officer in connection with the incident and was being held under a $20,000 secured bond.

Robeson County Votes Tuesday On Merging 5 School Systems

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP) — Black and Indian leaders will watch Tuesday's vote on a proposed Robeson County school merger closely to see whether recent discontent among minorities will forge them into a coalition.

Those leading the fight for merger say opponents are out to deny Robeson's blacks and Indians an equal chance to learn. Those who oppose it say the results will be a lower standard of education in the tri-racial county plus large tax hikes and forced busing.

Discontent that some say has been growing since the 1986 shooting of a Lumbee Indian by a white sheriff's deputy came to a head last month when two Indians took hostages at The Robesonian newspaper in Lumberton, protesting what they called discrimination and corruption in the criminal justice system.

"This is going to be a test of strength," said Jimmy Hunt, a Baptist minister, a Lumbee Indian and a worker with a citizens' group called Friend in Court.

The schools are especially crucial in Robeson, says county school board Chairman Dalton Brooks, because they provide one of the few settings where the races mix.

Blacks and Indians make up about 75 percent of all students in the county. None of the five school systems in the county has a white majority, but about 46 percent of all administrators, teachers and other professionals are white.

"The magic question is not about achievement, attitudes and transporting kids; those are the underlying issues," said Brooks, a Lumbee Indian who directs institutional research at Pembroke State University.

"The primary issue is about people and their cultural, social and racial settings," he said. "It's about three groups of people trying to find a niche in the governing structure of the schools. To me it's the most important social movement that we've had since we've been here."

Palestinians Hijack Bus

JERUSALEM (AP) — Palestinian protesters today hurled a grenade in a clash with Israeli troops in the occupied West Bank and Arab guerrillas commandeered a bus in southern Israel, the army said. Six people died in the bus attack.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir on Sunday blocked a Cabinet decision on the U.S. Middle East peace plan and two Arabs were killed by Israeli army gunfire during a West Bank protest.

In Lebanon, Israeli soldiers and Israeli-backed militiamen shot and killed six guerrillas over the weekend, including three who were on a mission to infiltrate Israel and carry out a terror attack.

In the bus hijacking, Arab guerrillas held the bus for three hours before soldiers and police stormed it, leaving three gunmen and three civilians dead, the army said.

A special anti-terrorist unit and border police were used to storm the bus near the Aroer junction, 12 miles southeast of Beersheva.

Hospital officials said eight women suffered gunshot wounds.

Shamir linked the infiltration from Egypt to the rioting in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

"These are the same people who incite violence in the (occupied) territories. We shall not tire from fighting them," said Shamir.

In the grenade attack, one soldier was slightly wounded when the device was thrown at troops in Idna, 20 miles southwest of Jerusalem. They soldiers were moving through the West Bank village to arrest "rioters and inciters of rioting," an army spokesman said.

The army said soldiers shot seven Palestinians as they fired in the direction from which the grenade came. The Arab-run Palestine Press Service said eight were wounded in the clash.

The incident was the third time since the unrest began Dec. 8 that Palestinians used weapons against Israeli soldiers, despite orders by the Palestine Liberation Organization not to do so.

Witness Granted Immunity

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — State senators hearing Gov. Evan Mecham's impeachment trial decided today against granting immunity to a witness who is accused of making a death threat against a former top Mecham aide.

Attorney General Bob Corbin told lawmakers that granting immunity to Lee Watkins, former head of state prison construction, could wind up protecting him from prosecution for alleged crimes "you have no way of knowing about today."

Senators were considering whether to grant "use immunity" to Watkins to force him to say whether he threatened the life of Donna Carlson last November, which would have meant his testimony could not be used against him in criminal court.

Impeachment charges against the 63-year-old Mecham, first-term Republican, included a charge that he tried to thwart an investigation into Watkins' alleged threat.

On Friday, Watkins invoked the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination in refusing to testify before the Senate. Watkins said today that if the state grand jury probe were over he would have no problem with testifying.

Passengers Bumped

MIAMI (AP) — A crowd of 200 Eastern Airlines passengers who had been bumped from New York-bound flights angrily confronted ticket agents, and one man was arrested for assaulting police officers, authorities said.

Several similar scuffles have occurred at Miami International Airport in recent months when Eastern flights to the Northeast were canceled.

The latest incident took place at the airport Sunday when members of the crowd pressed against a ticket stand demanding to know if they could board the last flight to New York.

Eastern spokesman Bob Carson said 226 passengers were bumped from a 3:15 p.m. Eastern flight to La Guardia. Some passengers were then bumped repeatedly from later flights.

IRA Guerrillas Killed

GIBRALTAR (AP) — British soldiers and police shot and killed three Irish Republican Army guerrillas after they planted a car bomb set to go off during a military parade in this British colony, officials and security sources said today.

But Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe denied British news reports and said no bomb had been planted. Still, Howe told the House of Commons that a "dreadful terrorist act has been averted" by the shootout Sunday.

He said a second car linked to the unarmed guerrillas and parked in Spanish territory near border with Gibraltar, a British colony, contained three false passports and other equipment, including an alarm clock, insulating tape, gloves and wire.

British news reports said the two men and a woman were killed after authorities uncovered the plot to set off the car bomb on Tuesday. The reports quoted unidentified security sources.

The reports said bomb-disposal experts defused 440 pounds of explosives in a Spanish-registered car parked near Gov. Sir Peter Terry's official residence in Gibraltar, on the southern tip of Spain.

British Armed Forces Minister Ian Stewart said "an intelligence tip-off" led to information about the three members of the Irish Republican Army, which is fighting a guerrilla war to drive the British out of Northern Ireland.

Ronald Sinton, a spokesman for the governor, said local police coordinated the effort.

"The operation was under the control of the Gibraltar police commissioner, and British forces acted in support of Gibraltar police," he said.

Bush Claims Lead In South

order dismissing Robertson's libel suit "with prejudice," which means that former Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., R-Calif. is legally the victor in the dispute.

Robertson accepted the condition the judge imposed on Friday in a one-sentence letter from his attorney Douglas V. Riegler that was delivered to the judge's chambers by messenger.

Under terms of the dismissal, Robertson must pay court fees, printing costs and court reporters' fees, but not McCloskey's attorney's fees, which he has said total about $400,000.

"This is a confirmation of my integrity," McCloskey said today in a telephone interview from his home in San Francisco. "I don't like at the age of 60 to be called a pathological liar all over the United States. He is admitting that he is the one who is the liar."

Dole conceded Sunday he was involved in "a long, hard fight" for the GOP nomination and he had little cause for optimism about his prospects on Tuesday when 17 states hold Republican primaries and 20 hold Democratic contests.

There are 712 Republican and 1,307 Democratic delegates at stake, including the four to be selected from American Samoa.

Southern and border states dominate the day and William Brock, Dole's campaign manager, said Bush held a "2-1 or a 3-1 lead in virtually every Southern state."

The vice president demonstrated his strength in the region on Saturday when he overwhelmed his rivals in the South Carolina primary and swept the state's 37 delegates.

On the Democratic side, Dukakis looked strongest with leads in surveys in Texas and Florida, the two biggest Super Tuesday states, and a lock on his home state of Massachusetts, which also votes on Tuesday.

"It could be he'll come out of Super Tuesday the front-runner," said a Gephardt aide of Dukakis.

But Carter, during his meeting Sunday evening with Dukakis, predicted no clear winner on Tuesday.

"I think it's going to be closely bunched among the leaders," the former president said. Carter is maintaining his neutrality in the Democratic race.

Jackson's support in the black community gives him the biggest Southern base of any candidate. Interviewed Sunday on the ABC program, "This Week With David Brinkley," he said, "I'm running strong in the South," but he refused to predict how many delegates he might win in the region.

Gore appeared on the same program and conceded he needs to win more than his home state of Tennessee on Tuesday. He predicted he would carry "several other" states, but refused to say which ones.

Robertson was interviewed on the NBC show "Meet the Press" and said that if he doesn't get 200 to 300 delegates on Tuesday "it will be difficult."

The former television evangelist had a disappointing third-place finish in South Carolina, a state he once predicted he'd carry. Instead, he finished behind Bush and Dole.

Kemp was last in South Carolina and appeared left with no choice but to fold up his campaign after Super Tuesday.

The vast Super Tuesday landscape was too much for any candidate to cover in person. Millions of dollars was being spent to reach voters through television and radio commercials, with many of the candidates trying to sell themselves by attacking their rivals.

Gephardt commercials accused Dukakis of dirty tricks against other Democratic contenders, while the Massachusetts governor was running an ad showing an acrobat doing flips, a pointed reference to Gephardt shifts on issues.

Dole continued to run commercials attacking Bush for his role in the Iran-Contra affair, while the vice president was portraying the Kansas senator as straddling on taxes.

In another weekend delegate contest, Dukakis and Gore won four delegates each in Wyoming, while Gephardt came out with three. Two others were uncommitted.

In GOP caucuses in Wyoming, Bush and Dole got five delegates each. Two others were uncommitted.

Phillip Evancho of Greenville served as master of ceremonies and Carol-Ann Tucker of Greenville was the special guest entertainer. A highlight of the evening was the farewell speech by Laura Newton, last year's Pitt County Junior Miss.

The annual program is sponsored by the Farmville Junior Woman's Club and is supported by clubs, Giving the welcome Saturday night was Margaret Wells, president of the Farmville Junior Woman's Club. Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr. was a special guest for the program.

Others providing special entertainment were Miss Newton, Julie Padgett, N.C.'s Junior Miss, Malana Harris, Christie Evans, Melissa Byzek, Marcia Sherrod and Nechol Boone.

Program judging was based on scholastic achievement, physical fitness, creative and performing arts, poise and appearance and judges' interview.

The program theme was "A Magical Journey."

Pitt County's program received the best program award in North Carolina in February at an awards breakfast held in Greensboro.

Approximately 1,000 attended the scholarship program held in Wright Auditorium.

Civil War Sword Reunites Friends

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter from Doug Frazier in Minnesota who wanted to find Charlie Wheatley.

My sister-in-law, Kate Bonar, called from West Virginia saying she had read Dear Abby that morning in the Wheeling Intelligencer, and she wondered if I was the Charlie Wheatley Mr. Frazier was looking for.

Well, I am, Doug and I were college roommates in Orlando, Fla., back in the early '70s. At that time I needed the money, so I sold him my grandfather's Civil War sword, and never gave it another moment's thought. Imagine my surprise and delight upon learning that the sword might be returned to me!

Dear Abby

I'd like to contact Doug personally, but I don't know where in Minnesota he's living. I would be most appreciative if you could help me. — CHARLES T. WHEATLEY, RESTON, VA.

DEAR CHARLES: By the time this is published, you and Doug will have been in touch with each other, and the sword should be on its way to you. When I phoned Mr. Frazier — now a prosperous farmer in Canby, Minn. — I asked him why, after all these years, he decided to return the sword. He replied: "When I'd see it hanging on our living room wall, I got to feeling guilty because I knew the sword was a family heirloom and really belonged to someone in the Wheatley family, so I took a chance and wrote to you asking if you could help me find Charlie. And you certainly did!"

In this world, when we so often hear, "It's every man for himself," isn't it nice to know that there are still people around like Doug Frazier?

DEAR ABBY: No complaints. My husband still sends me flowers on Valentine's Day, and our wedding anniversary. This year will be our 40th and I'm only 80. Ha! He still opens the car door for me, and pulls out my chair to seat me at the table.

I am enclosing a nice little message about the value of hugging. It tickled me so much, I sent it out with our Christmas cards. Someone gave it to me and I don't know who originated it, but I think it's worth sharing, don't you? — MRS. ALLEN ELLIOTT, JOPLIN, MO.

DEAR MRS. ELLIOTT: You bet I do.

HUGGING
Hugging is healthy: It helps the body's immunity system, it keeps you healthier, it cures depression, it reduces stress, it induces sleep, it's invigorating, it's rejuvenating, it has no unpleasant side effects, and hugging is nothing less than a miracle drug.

Hugging is all natural: It is organic, naturally sweet, no pesticides, no preservatives, no artificial ingredients and 100 percent wholesome.

Hugging is practically perfect: There are no movable parts, no batteries to wear out, no periodic checkups, low energy consumption, high energy yield, inflation-proof, non-fattening, no monthly payments, no insurance requirements, theft-proof, non-taxable, non-polluting and, of course, fully returnable.

VACUUM FREQUENCY

It's true! Most homeowners aren't interested in carpet maintenance because their busy schedules leave little time to worry about those abrasive soils slowly accumulating—that is, until carpet replacement time arrives! Then, like new year's resolutions never kept, we vow to "do it differently this time!"

But what if the job could be accomplished with better results in less time?! Janitorial contractors must vacuum quantities of carpet nightly. If we used their techniques, time spent vacuuming would be cut by half...OK, one third!

First, how often? I'm tempted to suggest daily vacuuming, hoping that some will be accomplished every other day. I'll be practical, however, recognizing that your home's as active as ours, and you're lucky to get to the carpet twice a week without your teenager accusing you of "getting carried away with this vacuuming thing!" Point is, you're better off doing a thorough job bi-weekly than a "half-way" job more frequently. Traffic lanes should be vacuumed twice and entry areas four or five times. Semi-annually, you should consider hand-vacuuming entry areas with a crevice tool. It's amazing how this will improve the appearance of the carpet and greatly extend its life.

Here's How

To save time, select a vacuum with a 30-foot electrical cord and plug it into an outlet near the center of the area being vacuumed. Begin near that outlet, constantly working away so the cord never gets in front of your vacuum. Develop a procedure, and you'll be surprised how efficiently the job can be completed.

Finally, clip sprouting tufts as soon as they appear, particularly on loop-pile carpet. This avoids pulling out an entire row (similar to a run in your stockings). Raking or combing the nap of shags or Saxony's in traffic areas is essential to prevent the formation of hard, matted rows of yarn (corn-rowing).

The average carpet contains 79% gritty soil which, at least in theory, can be vacuumed out. Let's concentrate on keeping the sand box in the back yard—not in the carpet where it cuts life-expectancy in half! ©GFC 1987 taxes and $30 if someone else prepares them.

"This is the wave of the future," said Ms. Diamond. "We estimate that two-thirds of the people in the country will be able to file electronically." Paper returns cost 54 cents each to process, but electronic returns cost just 3 cents each. The system will save the IRS $200 million over the next 10 years, she said.

Tax preparers can also create their own program in which customers are able to obtain a bank loan equal to their refund. The IRS refers to this as a refund anticipation loan. H&R Block, in conjunction with Beneficial National Bank of Delaware, offers a program they call Rapid Refund.

At the same time taxpayers file electronically, they may apply for a loan from Beneficial. If the refund is $300 or more, Beneficial will loan them the money for a flat fee of $35.

Once the IRS acknowledges receipt of the return, a cashier's check is mailed the next day. Ms. Kozak said there is usually a 5 to 7 day wait for taxpayers to receive their loans. The $35 fee is deducted from the loan and the IRS refund is sent directly to Beneficial to close out the account.

H&R Block has had problems this year with its Rapid Refund plan. They underestimated the popularity of the program and their equipment could not handle the volume, said Ms. Kozak. During their peak time in February it took up to two weeks before the checks were mailed.

"It was really strange. I guess I didn't really know how desperate people were," said Ms. Kozak, pointing out that the Rapid Refund program was overrun in all of their test centers. "We have one in Dallas and one up in New York. They found the same thing in every one of the centers."

The $35 fee is steep interest for a one-month loan. On a $300 refund, Beneficial will loan the taxpayer $265. Beneficial receives the IRS refund in about one month, so the fee amounts to more than 11 percent interest monthly, or nearly 140 percent annually. Major credit cards charge about 18 percent annually.

Carol Hillis, owner of Berkeley Service Co. in Greenville, said she has kept her accounting firm away from such loan programs because of the high interest rates. "I've had a number of people who are interested in finding out about it. Once they find out it is a loan, they say, 'We knew there had to be some kind of scam involved,'" she said.

While the refund anticipation loan is not actually a scam, Ms. Diamond said there are three basic problems: The tax preparers may be overworked and not able to enter the data into the IRS system; the bank has to review the loan application to verify that the applicant does not owe taxes, child support or student loans, or there may be a hold placed on the check while a local bank waits for it to clear.

The biggest complaint has been from customers who had to wait 10 days for the out-of-state check to clear at their local bank, said Ms. Kozak. "It's been horrendous. We've had more complaints this year than I have had in 13 years in this business," she said.

"It turned out to be a problem we thought we had taken care of," said Ms. Kozak. H&R Block mailed letters to local banks explaining the program in advance, she said, but many customers still had to wait. "I cannot change banking policy. It's a standard banking policy if you do not have money in the account, they hold it until it clears."

If a customer receives a check from Beneficial in five to seven and then waits 10 days for it to clear, the refund anticipation loan has not been much faster than the average IRS electronic refund. The IRS is able to mail refunds to taxpayers who file electronically in an average of 18 days, said Ms. Diamond.

"It's unfortunate H&R has an account out-of-state," said Wachovia city executive John West. "I'm not being critical, but it seems like it would be to their advantage and their customers advantage to have an account in-state."

Terry Taylor, city executive with First Citizens Bank, said he has had no experience with checks from Beneficial, but out-of-state checks in general are not instantly payable because it takes time for them to clear at the Federal Reserve in Richmond, Va.

After banks cash a check, the period of time it takes before they receive their money is called "the float," said Taylor. A check is actually an "interest-free loan, even though there is no doubt the check is good," he said.

"If the check is absolute solid gold, there is no doubt that it's good, I've still got to absorb the float time before I get my money," said Taylor. First Citizens absorbs the float for regular customers, he said, but cannot afford to do so for others.

Garland Frazier, branch administrator with NCNB, said he was familiar with the Beneficial checks and the refund anticipation loan.

NCNB was cashing some checks for a short time, said Frazier, "but it got to the point we just couldn't handle it, so we told them we had to use our regular check-cashing procedures." NCNB will cash checks only for regular customers, he said.

Ms. Kozak said she informed customers about the potential delay in cashing the checks, but they still had more business than they could handle in February. "Most were in some financial difficulty, that's why they needed it so fast," she said.

Montgomery Ward Sold To Investors

NEW YORK (AP) — Mobil Corp. said today it has agreed to sell its Montgomery Ward department store division to a management-led investor group in a $3.8 billion leveraged buyout.

Mobil said in a statement that the investor group would pay more than $1.5 billion in cash for Montgomery Ward and assume $2.3 billion of its debt.

It has been reported for some time that Montgomery Ward President Bernard Brennan, credited with turning the retailer around in recent years, was negotiating to acquire the 115-year-old department store company.

Brennan said in the statement issued by Mobil that GE Capital Corp., a unit of General Electric Co., was a substantial investor in the leveraged buyout.

In a leveraged buyout, investors borrow heavily to buy out a company and then pay off the debt with that company's cash flow or the sale of its assets.

Mobil, which bought Montgomery Ward in 1976, has wanted to sell the chain for some time. In its statement today, the oil company said it would concentrate on its core businesses.

"We held discussions with a number of other interested parties," said John Lord, a spokesman for Mobil, but he declined to elaborate.

Mobil stock jumped $1.25 to $44.87 1/2 in early New York Stock Exchange trading today.

The retailer, the nation's eighth-largest, lost money in the early 1980s, but under Brennan has restructured and returned to profitability. The company laid off employees, closed its Jefferson Ward discount stores and other unprofitable branches and shut down the catalog division that dated back to the company's early days.

Duke's 2nd Half Spurt Sinks Heels

Going For Two

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — With the score tied at 36 at halftime, Duke co-captain Billy King had a clear message for his teammates — play hard or don't come out for the second half.

"Before we came out for the second half, I told 'em. If there's anybody who's not willing to put it all on the line for these last 20 minutes, they just as well stay in the dressing room," he said.

Ninth-ranked Duke started with a 20-9 run in the second half and finished with a 96-81 victory over No. 6 North Carolina.

"They'd been in a shooting slump; but they started hitting everything," said North Carolina center Scott Williams. "They hit the outside shots, and they also beat us down the floor. And we also got out of our offense a little, forcing some things. Still, we fought back."

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak for the Blue Devils. King said the solution to the slump came when Duke decided to go back to what had been successful in the past.

"We have two great scorers in (Danny) Ferry and Kevin (Strickland) and we had to get the ball to them," King said. "Quin (Snyder) has to run the show. I have to play defense. And Robert (Brickey) has to sort of patrol, take advantage of his abilities to do whatever else we need."

Strickland scored 24 points — 17 in the second half, and Brickey was the catalyst for the Blue Devils in the first half. He finished with 17, and scored 12 in the first half to help Duke back to a halftime tie.

Duke, using a barrage of 3-point jump shots and dunks, outscored North Carolina 20-9 to start the second half, grabbing a 56-45 lead with 14:33 left.

"I think we kind of felt the pressure early on," Strickland said. "We were a little scared, really. And early on, you could tell. But as the game went on, our intensity picked up and we hit the shots."

The Blue Devils led by as many as 17 at 64-47 with 11:47 left. But North Carolina steadily pulled back. The Tar Heels used short scoring spurts to pull within 76-71 on an inside basket by Steve Bucknall with 4:09 left.

Duke came back with 3-point jump shots by Snyder and Strickland, the last coming with 2:42 left.

The Blue Devils, used their spread offense in the final minutes and hit eight free throws in the last 1:25.

"We congratulate Duke on what I thought was a marvelous second half," said North Carolina coach Dean Smith. "That's the most points per possession ever scored on us in a half. They could have beaten any team in the country today."

Duke trailed by as many as six points in the first half, but the Blue Devils came back behind Brickey to take a 29-23 lead with 5:12 left. North Carolina recovered by returning to its inside game, and pulled back to a tie at halftime.

Snyder scored 21 points, including six free throws in the final two minutes, and Ferry added 20 for Duke, 21-6 and 9-5 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Bucknall led North Carolina, 22-5 and 11-3, with 22 points and Kevin Madden added 19.

Pack Squeezes By Deacons, 86-82

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Jim Valvano rushed home after his 16th-ranked North Carolina State team held off Wake Forest for an 86-82 victory. He said it was the intestinal flu, but it might have been the Demon Deacons who unsettled his stomach.

Trying to close out the regular season on a high note, Wake Forest made the Wolfpack work for the victory that raised its record to 23-6.

"We need some rest," Valvano said of his team. "I may give the kids a couple of days off and then get them cranked back up Wednesday gearing for the tournament."

Charles Shackelford led the Wolfpack into its brief vacation by scoring 12 of his 16 points in the final 10 minutes of the second half. Included in his streak were six free throws in eight attempts.

"We had to have some big free throws down the stretch and we got them," Valvano said.

Before Shackelford's run in the second half, Wake Forest's zone defense had forced N.C. State to rely on the outside shot in the first half. At the other end, the Demon Deacons beat the Wolfpack defense thanks to Sam Ivy and Ralph Kitley, who shared the team's first 17 points. Ivy had nine of those points.

Berckman's Shutout Keys Bucs To Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Brian Berckman tossed a six-hit shutout as East Carolina rolled up a 13-0 baseball victory over Fairfield University Sunday afternoon.

Berckman, tossing his second complete game of the young season, was backed by flawless fielding by his teammates, who recorded a pair of double plays behind him. Only twice did the sophomore allow more than one baserunner in the same inning and only one runner advanced as far as third. Berckman struck out six — including four in the final two innings — and walked only two.

"There's no question that the key was the exceptional job Berckman did," ECU coach Gary Overton said. "They're a better offensive team than they showed today, but I think Berckman just did a great job against them."

"I was also pleased with the way we manufactured runs in the early innings of the game. We pecked away at them early and got a lead, then had a couple of big innings late. They forced us to work for those early runs though."

The Pirates banged out 12 hits on the day, including three each by Jay McGraw and Steve Godin. McGraw had a double while Godin collected a double and a solo home run. He drove in three runs while Calvin Brown accounted for three.

East Carolina scored in the first three innings — a streak of seven consecutive innings counting the last four of Saturday's second game against Providence. After being held in check in the fourth and fifth, the Pirates then scored in each of their final three chances — giving them runs in 10 of their last 12 innings.

A double play in the second inning took Fairfield out of its first scoring opportunity. Joe Solimine opened the inning with a single and just did get back to first when Mike Svab lined to third. Rob Banasiak followed with a single to left, putting runners on first and second, but a liner to second by Dave Arnott finally caught Solimine too far off for the double play.

Only one other time did the Stags advance a runner past first. Svab opened the seven with a single and Banasiak walked. Svab moved to third when Arnott grounded into a double play and a grounder back to the mound ended the inning.

East Carolina meanwhile had taken complete control of the game by that time.

The Pirates pushed over two runs in the first inning. John Thomas led off with a walk and stole second. With one away, McGraw singled and Calvin Brown's grounder to first brought in Thomas. Godin beat out a bunt down the third base line, scoring McGraw.

A third Pirate run scored in the second. Brooks Lowery singled to center and scored on Tommy Eoswell's double to left center.

The Bucs made it 4-0 with one in the third. McGraw reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. He scored on Godin's double to left center.

After being shut out twice, the Pirates got one in the sixth to make it 5-0. That came on a lead-off homer to left by Godin — his first collegiate home run.

In the seventh, the Pirates came up with five more runs despite getting only two hits. With one down, Thomas and Chris Cauble both walked. McGraw singled to load the bases and Brown singled to center, scoring Thomas and courtesy runner Kevin Riggs. McGraw then scored on a wild pitch.

With two away, four straight walks, to John Adams, David Ritchie, Lowery and Boswell brought in Brown and Adams, giving the Pirates a 10-0 lead.

The final three came over in the eighth. Cauble opened with a single and Tommy Yarborough got a hit. Whit Whitley walked to load the bases and Godin grounded out, scoring courtesy runner Eric Gupton. Riggs, pinchhitting, singled in Yarborough and Ed Tant's grounder got Whitley across.

The victory was the sixth straight for the Pirates, who go to 7-2 on the season. Fairfield was opening its season with the game.

The Stags and Pirates meet for a second time today at 3 p.m. and will also collide on Tuesday at 3 p.m. at Harrington Field.

Birdie For Ben

Ben Crenshaw reacts after making a birdie putt on the 18th green of the blue monster golf course at the Doral Open Sunday. Crenshaw's long birdie putt won the event for him. (AP Laserphoto)

Crenshaw's Putt Gains Doral Win

MIAMI (AP) — Ben Crenshaw tried, with little success, to mask his delight when the 18-foot birdie putt found the cup on the final hole of the Doral Open.

A grin twitched at his lips. "I wanted to yell. You bet I did," Crenshaw said of the stroke that proved to be the difference in his one-shot victory Sunday.

"A pretty sight," Ben said. It was viewed by thousands of spectators. And millions of television viewers. But it wasn't seen by the three people — other than Crenshaw — most concerned.

Ben's wife Julie lost her contact lenses early in the week. Standing in the gallery with 5-month-old Katherine in her arms, she watched as Ben tried to break the tie.

"I could see the putt rolling, but I couldn't see it go in. I haven't seen it yet," she said.

And Mark McCumber, tied with Crenshaw and waiting to hit his approach, couldn't see either.

"I know enough to be scared when Ben is putting," McCumber said. "I couldn't see it, but I knew from the crowd reaction he'd made it," McCumber said.

And Chip Beck, also tied with Crenshaw after a birdie on the 17th, said he didn't know Ben had made it "until I got to the 18th tee. When he made it, well, that made it pretty tough," Beck said.

Beck, who scored the first victory of his career a week earlier, and McCumber, a two-time winner of this title, each came to the 18th needing a birdie to tie Crenshaw and force a playoff. Each had a putt in the 30-foot range to do it. Each left it short.

But Ben didn't see those misses, either.

"I couldn't look," he said. "I kept thinking about the LA Open last year," where T.C. Chen dropped a long birdie putt on the final hole to tie Crenshaw, then beat Ben in a playoff.

"This time it worked out different," Crenshaw said after the 14th victory of his career was secured with a 274 total, 14 shots under par on Doral's Blue Monster course that was dampened by morning showers.

Aided by the collapse of Bobby Wadkins, Crenshaw came from four shots back with a bogey-free final round of 66, which included birdies on two of the last four holes.

King Wins Kemper

PRINCEVILLE, Hawaii (AP) — Betsy King says she couldn't have beaten Beth Daniel down the stretch in the LPGA Kemper Open on her own.

"I didn't play that well — she had to falter," King said. "I feel bad for Beth, she played a lot better than I did."

King started Sunday's final round of the $300,000 tournament three strokes behind Daniel, who had led since the second round.

King closed to within one stroke of Daniel on the 15th and overtook her on the 18th by hitting a risky approach shot over the water.

King landed the shot 40 feet away and two-putted for birdie. Daniel tried to match King's shot, but dropped it into the water and bogeyed the hole.

Daniel said she planned to play for an easier shot, but King's effort left her no alternative.

"It was Betsy's call," Daniel said. "She hit a great shot."

"It was one of the few good shots I hit today," King said of her 5-would shot on 18.

Daniel missed a 15-foot putt for par that would have forced a sudden-death playoff. The putt went just left of the cup.

"I hit a great putt," Daniel said. "I really thought I'd made it."

Pirate Golfers Stumble In Final Round

OCEAN POINT, S.C. — East Carolina fell from second place to sixth after the final round of action from the Fripp Island Invitational golf tournament Sunday with a three-day total of 1,197. Ball State won the event with a 1,166 total, followed by Austin Peay with 1,167, Virginia Tech at 1,169, Shorter and Methodist with 1,196 and then ECU. ECU had been in second place behind Tech after two days of competition, but faltered in the final day. Tee Davis, an ECU freshman, finished tied for first in the event but lost in a playoff. Tom Pagent of Catawba Valley College while Virginia Tech's Chris Greenwood took second in the playoff, followed by Davis. Davis shot a 225 for the tournament, with a 73 in Sunday's final round. Jeff Craig of ECU shot a 231 for ninth place.

McNeills Lead Bucs To Seventh Place

PRINCETON, N.J. — Lee and Eugene McNeill both won sprint events at the ICA Indoor Track Championships, leading East Carolina to a seventh-place finish that tied them with Pittsburgh. The finish was ECU best ever at this event. Georgetown was first with 70, followed by George Mason with 58. Lee McNeill won the 55 meter sprint with a time of 6.29. He was the defending champion in the event and will represent ECU next week at the U.S. Indoor Championships. Eugene McNeill won the 200 meters with a time of 21.53, which was a new ICA record. McNeill also finished third in the 55 meters with a time of 6.37.

Taylor Tops For Greenville Gymnasts

FAYETTEVILLE — Greenville's Ragan Taylor, competing in the 9-11 year-old age group, finished fourth at a Class III Optional Qualifying Sectional gymnastics meet this past weekend. Taylor was fourth in the all-around with a 27.70. She tied for third on floor exercises with a 7.55, which tied her with teammate Susu Hunnicutt. Taylor also took sixth on the balance beam with a 6.65; seventh in vaulting with a 7.6 and ninth on the uneven bars with a 5.9. Hunnicutt was ninth on the vault with a 7.55 to close out the 9-11 year-old age group. In the 12-14 age group, Wendy Dixon was third on floor exercise with a 8.05 and 10th on the balance beam with a 6.35. Amy Rose took fourth in floor exercise with a 7.95. Ann Taylor was eighth on the balance beam with a 6.4. In the 15-and-over group, Nikki Harris was fourth on floor exercise with a 7.55 and sixth on vaulting with a 7.5. Karen Riddick took sixth on the bars with a 6.35; sixth on beam with a 5.85 and sixth in the all-around with a 25.65.

Valvano Selected ACC Coach Of The Year

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Jim Valvano, whose North Carolina State basketball team stayed in contention for the top seed in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament down to the final week, has been selected the league's coach of the year by The Associated Press. In voting by 10 sportswriters and broadcasters from the conference area, Valvano drew five votes. North Carolina's Dean Smith, whose team took the top seed going into this week's ACC tournament, got three votes. The remaining two votes went to Bobby Cremins of Georgia Tech, whose team rallied from a 2-4 start to climb into contention for the championship in the final week of the regular season. Valvano's team enters the tournament at 23-6 with a 10-4 ACC mark and said in an interview that he hoped the recognition didn't cramp his style. "I'm proud that people saw fit to honor me, but I think you're ruining my image," Valvano said. "I can still crack jokes, can't I." N.C. State's basketball has been nothing to laugh at this season. After some rough going in the early portion of the schedule — two losses in their first five games — the Wolfpack captured the Rainbow Classic to embark on a seven-game winning streak. That streak helped put the Wolfpack in the top 20 in January, but the visit was short-lived after Wake Forest pulled off a 71-67 upset and North Carolina took a 77-73 victory. It was at an identical point in the schedule last season that N.C. State ran into troubles and needed its ACC championship to gain a spot in the NCAA tournament. This season, the tide reversed and the Wolfpack ran off five more victories before losing again to North Carolina in Chapel Hill. "I think what this team has done has been very consistent," Valvano said. "We only lost two games in a row once. We have a nice blending of talent. There's more experience, and there have been some players who came on." On the inside, Valvano has come to rely on junior center Charles Shackleford and junior forward Chucky Brown. From the outside, Vinny Del Negro moved into a starting role and Chris Corchiani and Brian Howard provided additional perimeter shooting. A bonus for the Wolfpack has been the emergence of freshman Rodney Monroe, whose 3-point touch and ability to penetrate has added 10 points per game to the N.C. State arsenal. The first goal Valvano set has been established, that of getting 20 victories. The next challenge is the ACC tournament and a meeting with Clemson. And Valvano also is thinking of an NCAA title to go with the storybook march to the top in 1983. "We're at 23-6 and 10-4 and I'm very happy about that," Valvano said. "But I'm mostly proud of our kids. They've done a great job all season long."

State Wins ACC Wrestling Tournament

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Mike Stokes easily captured the 126-pound division Saturday to help North Carolina State win the Atlantic Coast Conference wrestling tournament. The Wolfpack finished with 83.25 points. North Carolina, which entered the tournament as the four-time defending ACC champion, finished second with 74.5 points. Maryland was third at 62, Clemson fourth with 46, Virginia fifth at 30.6 and Duke sixth with 10.5. Stokes, the tournament MVP, defeated Maryland's Troy Lawrence 19-7 and was among four Wolfpack grapplers to win their individual weight classes. Bill Hershey defeated North Carolina's Enzo Catullo 6-3 in the 134-pound division, Joe Cesari edged the Tar Heels' Lenny Bernstein 2-1 at 142 pounds, and Scott Turner defeated Clemson's Tom Salisbury 5-1 at 150 pounds. North Carolina and Clemson each took two weight classes. For the Tar Heels, Bob Koll won by default over Maryland's Phil Brown at 2:49 of the 158-pound bout while Glen Pazinko won the 190-pound division with a 4-2 decision over Mike Owens. For Clemson, Donnie Heckel defeated Dan McIntyre of Maryland 12-3 in the 118-pound match, and Jim Meetze defeated the Wolfpack's Mike Lantz 3-1 at 167 pounds.

Bonnett Wins Goodwrench 500

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Neil Bonnett says misfortune made him smarter and being smarter has made him a winner.

The 41-year-old driver kept his hot hand Sunday, passing Lake Speed with 20 laps to go and staying out front to win the Goodwrench 500

NASCAR stock car race at North Carolina Motor Speedway.

Bonnett, who never before has led the Winston Cup standings, increased the lead he already owned to 58 points — 530-472 — over Sterling Marlin.

"I've always run hard, but I couldn't run a race car any smarter than I have been," Bonnett said when asked about the hot streak that has seen him win three races in a row — two of them Winston Cup events and the other an all-star race in Australia.

It didn't look real good for the Bessemer, Ala., driver at the start, as he opened the 492-lap, 500-mile event on the 1.017-mile oval 30th on the 41-car grid.

But, with his Pontiac Grand Prix 2+2 running smoothly, Bonnett knifed through the field, moving to the lead for the first time on lap 122.

"People kept asking me about starting 30th, but I just smiled and kept quiet," he said. "I knew we had too good a race car to stay there long."

Bonnett is coming back from a severely broken leg, an injury suffered in a crash last October during a race at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

The leg, which has a big steel pin in it, nearly ended his career. And Bonnett says it helped him learn a valuable lesson.

"I've learned patience. Today, I just took my time, more than I ever have before. I really paced myself. I just got to where I'm using my head more. I've got more discipline."

"Instead of seeing how fast I can go, I'm trying to see if I can win some races instead."

In all, Bonnett led six times for 165 laps, taking the top spot for the final time 20 laps from the end.

Actually, it appeared that Marlin, looking for his first Winston Cup victory, might have the race locked up until Bobby Hill spun on lap 453 and brought out the last of seven caution flags in the race.

Marlin was holding about a six-second lead over Speed, with Bonnett running third, when the leaders all went to the pits at the start of that final caution period.

Speed beat Marlin onto the track and, after Marlin had to pit again to have a tire nut tightened, he fell to fifth.

Meanwhile, Bonnett settled in behind Speed and defending race champion Dale Earnhardt.

The green flag came back out 35 laps from the end and Bonnett quickly swept past Earnhardt and began to stalk Speed.

On lap 473, Speed got caught behind a slower car and Bonnett slipped past.

"I wasn't going to try to go to the front that soon," he said. "When I saw the door open with that lapped car, I figured I might as well go ahead and try it. I was afraid I might have gone too soon."

"I wanted to be out front with 10 laps to go. I knew I could hold off anybody for that long."

Speed, who equaled his best previous finish, never threatened again, finishing a deceptively-close 0.62-seconds behind.

Marlin got past Alan Kulwicki and held on for third place, while Earnhardt, the two-time defending Winston Cup champion, was fifth, the last competitor on the lead lap.

Pole-winner Bill Elliott, who led the first 89 laps, finished a lap behind in sixth after sustaining body damage when he tagged the wall midway through the race.

There were several accidents, but no injuries were reported.

Bonnett, who won $45,800, averaged 120.159 mph.

A record Rockingham crowd estimated at 56,300 saw Bonnett pick up his 18th career Winston Cup victory.

Moody's Unorthodox Putting Carries Him To Seniors' Win

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (AP) — After watching Orville Moody on the greens, other members of the PGA Senior Tour may junk their putters to try the unorthodox club Moody's using.

Using an oversized, 50-inch putter, Moody carded the lowest 72-hole tournament score ever on the tour for players 50 years old and up, winding up the $350,000 Vintage Invitational Sunday with a 25-under-par total of 263.

"This is the first time I've ever putted this way," said Moody, who finished the tournament with birdies on six of the last eight holes for a 9-under-par 63 that gave him a whopping 11-stroke victory.

"Dale Douglass told me I've become the best putter on the senior tour," Moody said. "Earlier in the week he told me I have become the best putter on either tour."

"I'm turning rounds that used to be 70 into rounds of 64 and 66 like I had the last two days."

Using the putter that's some 20 inches longer than those used by most golfers, Moody had rounds of 64-66-70-63 over the 6,907-yard Mountain Course at the Vintage Club.

The former 72-hole Seniors Tour record was 24-under-par 264 set by Miller Barber in the 1982 Suntime Classic.

Al Geiberger, who was three shots behind Moody heading into the final round, had a closing 71 to finish tied for second with Harold Henning, who shot 64 to finish at 274.

Henning, who had a third-round 65 to move into contention, has begun using the same type of Corvi putter favored by Moody.

"I guess on the last 20 holes I was something like 16-under. It's the putter," Henning said. "Dr. Corvi developed the putter and Orville has made a believer out of me."

"No question about it, the putter is an advantage. For the older player, the longer putter is a lot easier on the nerves."

Moody's final round of 63 also set a Vintage tournament record and a course record. The former low for both was an 8-under-par 64 by Gene Littler in 1981.

Moody won $48,000, while Geiberger and Henning pocketed $26,000 each.

Larry Mowry shot a 69 to finish fourth with a 10-under 277, worth $19,500.

Barber shot a final-round 70 and Ben Smith a 68 to tie for fifth at 278.

Defending champ Bob Charles from New Zealand ballooned to 75 to finish in a tie for ninth with Gary Player and Don Bies at 7-under 281.

Arnold Palmer and Chi Chi Rodriguez both finished with a 6-under 282. Palmer shot 69 while Rodriguez shot a 70.

Sanders Scores

Spiders, Pats Advance To Finals

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — The championship game of the Colonial Athletic Association tournament will feature a team that doesn't want to wait against a team that believes it has waited too long.

"We just want to win ... to get the sure bid to the NCAA," said Richmond's Peter Woolfolk after the Spiders got by North Carolina-Wilmington 54-53 in Sunday's semifinals. "We don't want to wait out the week for a bid."

The 23-6 Spiders probably will be invited to the NCAA tournament even if they don't win tonight's championship game and an automatic bid to the 64-team playoffs.

George Mason, 20-9, on the other hand probably will have to defeat Richmond to receive an invitation to the NCAA.

"We're just one game away from the (NCAA) tournament. It's something I wanted for a long time," said Kenny Sanders after Mason disposed of William & Mary 95-76 in Sunday's other game.

Two years ago, Mason lost in the finals to Navy and David Robinson 53-43. Robinson was named the tournament's most valuable player, led the Middies to a second title in 1987 and was the first college player picked in last year's National Basketball Association draft.

"The difference between this year and two years ago," Sanders said, "is that our seniors are keeping our spirits up and we're more positive... and Navy doesn't have David Robinson."

But Richmond does have Woolfolk who scored 15 points and grabbed 18 rebounds in the win over North Carolina-Wilmington. In two games, the 6-foot-5 senior has scored 36 points and hauled down 31 rebounds.

In their narrow win over North Carolina-Wilmington, the Spiders appeared to have the game firmly in hand 52-46 with 1:04 to play.

But the Seahawks, 15-14, used a harassing press to force and convert two turnovers into four points and cut the lead to 52-50 with 33 seconds remaining.

Woolfolk was fouled 10 seconds later and made both ends of the one-and-one for a 54-50 lead. He then was fouled grabbing a defensive rebound, but missed the lead shot of the one-and-one with 15 seconds left.

It took the Seahawks seven seconds to get the ball where they wanted — into the hands of Mark Gary, who was five of 10 from 3-point range and led all scorers with 19. Gary hit the 3-pointer with eight seconds remaining.

But Richmond successfully inbounded the ball and ran out the clock.

"They are so much more experienced than we are and it showed down the stretch," Gary said.

Rodney Rice added 13 points for the Spiders.

Roy Walker had 15 points and 18 rebounds for the Seahawks.

While Woolfolk had two strong games in a row, Sanders, the CAA's leading scorer averaging 22.6 points a game, had been held to nine points and eight rebounds in an first-round game against James Madison.

Against William & Mary, 10-19, Sanders had 28 points and 13 rebounds, hitting nine of 20 from the field and eight of eight from the free-throw line.

Though the Indians never could get close to the Patriots, they got career-high performances from senior Tim Trout, who had 31 points on 14-of-19 shooting from the floor, and junior Greg Buzzell, who was five of nine from the 3-point range and finished with 24 points.

"We just had a great game from a lot of our guys," said Patriots Coach Rick Barnes. "We got off to a great start and just carried that effort the rest of the way."

The Mason press forced early Indian turnovers and Sanders and guard Anthony Davis, who had 17 points, kept making baskets.

The Patriots' 95 points set a CAA tournament record for most points scored in a game. The old record was 94, set in 1985 by Navy.

49ers, VCU In Sun Belt Finals

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — North Carolina-Charlotte and Virginia Commonwealth took different routes to the Sun Belt Conference tournament championship, and their coaches have differing opinions about meeting in the title game.

"This is the way it should be — the best two teams in the conference out there playing," Virginia Commonwealth Coach Mike Pollio said.

The second-seeded Rams earned a berth in tonight's championship with a pair of lopsided victories: 82-60 over South Florida in the first round and 91-69 over Old Dominion in Sunday's semifinals.

North Carolina-Charlotte was a 73-72 winner Saturday over Jacksonville, seeded last in the eight-team field, and the top-seeded 49ers went down to the wire again Sunday in a 71-67 victory over South Alabama.

In addition, Coach Jeff Mullins' 49ers lost both regular-season games with Virginia Commonwealth, and are 0-10 against the Rams at the Richmond Coliseum, site of this year's tournament.

"We'd rather play Randolph-Macon, actually," Mullins said, referring to a Division II school nearby.

There were 10 ties and 12 lead changes before Byron Dinkins put North Carolina-Charlotte ahead to stay at 69-67 on a pair of free throws with 28 seconds remaining.

After South Alabama's Terrance Ingram missed a short jumper, the 49ers' Dan Plondke rebounded, was fouled with nine seconds remaining and made both free throws.

South Alabama's Junie Lewis, who led all scorers with 29 points, missed a 3-point shot with four seconds left and the Jaguars were unable to get off another attempt before time expired.

Dinkins finished with 15 points as North Carolina-Charlotte improved to 21-8. The 49ers also got 13 points from Cedric Ball, 12 from Reggie Barnes and 10 from Plondke.

Terrance Brodnick added 19 points and Jeff Hodge had 11 for the fourth-seeded Jaguars, who wound up 15-14 in their first year under Coach Ronnie Arrow.

"We came in fourth in the tournament and the top team beat us by four," Arrow said. "We don't have anything to be embarrassed about."

Mullins said the 49ers are coping well as the team everyone is trying to beat.

"We have a good work ethic and we come to play night in and night out," he said. "But with teams gunning for us, it's tough."

One by one, challengers have tested their ability against the defending champion Los Angeles Lakers this season, and one by one they have left the court shaking their heads.

After a 108-97 victory Sunday over Dallas, the Lakers are now 9-0 against the Mavericks, Boston, Atlanta and Detroit — the four teams considered to be the most serious threats to take the title away.

"Dallas had been running roughshod over people and that got our attention," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said, referring to the Mavericks' club-record 11-game winning streak. "We've not played anywhere near this level for the past few weeks. So Dallas really brought it out in us."

"We answered the challenge," said Magic Johnson, who had 14 points, 16 assists and 10 rebounds, his eighth triple-double of the season. "We wanted to play good defense and take the crowd out of the situation. They were No. 1 in rebounding coming in and that was a challenge to us."

Dallas was outbounded 52-40 by the Lakers, who won an NBA-high 15 straight games earlier this season.

"They (the Lakers) could have done a big favor for us," Dallas owner Donald Carter said. "If we had walked over 'em it would have given us false confidence and the Lakers might have slaughtered us later. Now we know we need to improve in a lot of areas."

Byron Scott scored 28 points to lead the Lakers in scoring for the fourth consecutive game. Mark Aguirre paced Dallas with 27.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Philadelphia 105, Indiana 100; Boston 127, Cleveland 98; and Detroit 109, Milwaukee 99.

The Mavericks left the game impressed with the defending champions.

"The Lakers are still No. 1 and we are No. 2 based on the standings," center James Donaldson said. "The streak was fun and it is good to beat up on the rest of the league, but you have to beat these guys to prove how good you really are."

"The Lakers are really good in the clutch time," guard Derek Harper added. "They are the greatest, the world champions. I don't think we really got a message. They are great and were clicking on all cylinders."

James Worthy added 23 points, and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, held to a total of 16 points in the last three games, broke out of a slump with 20 for the Lakers.

The Lakers outscored Dallas 33-19 in the second period for a 60-42 halftime lead. It was the most the Mavericks trailed halfway through any game this season, and they got no closer than seven points in the second half.

Scott had 18 points in the first half and Abdul-Jabbar added 12 as the Mavericks shot only 36 per cent from the field.

76ers 105, Pacers 100
Philadelphia won its first road game since Dec. 23, beating Indiana behind Charles Barkley's 29 points and 16 rebounds.

Barkley, who was knocked unconscious in a game at New York on Friday, was 9-for-11 from the field as the 76ers snapped a 20-game road losing streak.

A jumper by John Long, who scored 20 points for the Pacers, left Philadelphia with a 101-100 lead with 17 seconds left, but Albert King hit four straight free throws in the final 13 seconds to preserve the lead.

Chuck Person led the Pacers with 23 points and 10 rebounds, while Cliff Robinson had 18 points for the 76ers, who outscored Indiana 26-17 in the fourth quarter and held the Pacers to 5-for-19 shooting in the period.

The loss was Indiana's fourth straight, its longest losing streak of the season, and its seventh in the last eight games.

A Cal Boyd 3-point basket gave Wake Forest a 47-40 edge with 1:22 left, but the Wolfpack got seven straight points and tied the score at 47 at halftime on Rodney Monroe's jumper from the right baseline just before the buzzer sounded.

Shackleford's run started in the midst of a six-point burst which led the Wolfpack from a 67-66 deficit to a 72-67 lead with 6:55 remaining. Until that point, the two teams had engaged in a nip-and-tuck battle in which the lead changed hands 16 times through the first 32 minutes.

"It was a tough game, just as we expected," Vaivano said. "Wake does not go down easy. They have an excellent shooting basketball team."

In the first half, Wake Forest shot 61.3 percent of its field goals, but the Demon Deacons fell off to 45.2 percent in the second half, missing short jumper inside trying to catch the Wolfpack.

"We played very well, probably as well as we have in some of our wins this year," Wake Forest Coach Bob Staak said. "I feel that fatigue was probably a factor for us down the stretch. It seemed like we got a lot of the same shots the last few minutes that we had been getting, but they were short or just didn't fall."

The Wolfpack apparently caught its shooting wind in the second half, hitting 61.5 percent of its field goals to finish at 57.9 percent.

Vinny Del Negro celebrated senior day by leading N.C. State with 24 points. Chucky Brown scored 18 points and Monroe had 17 as the Wolfpack finished the ACC campaign at 10-4.

Wake Forest, beset by injuries since the middle of the season, brought six scholarship players to Raleigh and 10 players in all. Kitley scored a career-high 22 points, Ivy and Boyd scored 19 each and David Carlyle had 17 as the Demon Deacons dropped to 10-17 and 3-11.

In the ACC tournament which begins Friday, the Demon Deacons will face North Carolina. N.C. State will play Clemson.

Henderson Concludes Rewrite Of So. Conference Record Book

By The Associated Press. Skip Henderson says he never had a scheme to break the Southern Conference's scoring record - even when it became apparent earlier this year that he stood a good chance to do so.

As it season went on, Marshall's 6-foot-2 senior guard from Cartersville, Ga., averaged more than 24 points a game, gradually working toward the mark of 2,538 points set by Furman's Frank Selvy in the mid-1950s.

Saturday, Henderson got there. With an 23-point performance against Tennessee-Chattanooga, he pushed his career mark to 2,544. He passed Selvy with a 3-point shot from the top of the key with six minutes left.

The record was the biggest shot for Henderson this year. Among the highlights: -In a game against Kent State earlier this season, Henderson passed Leo Byrd's school career scoring record of 1,695;

-Henderson's 774 points this year set a single-season mark for points by a Marshall player;

-And with a 55-point performance against The Citadel in a Southern Conference Tournament first-round game Friday, Henderson broke tournament and school marks for points in a game. It also put him back on track to break Selvy's record. In the second to last game of the season, he was held to eight points by Western Carolina.

"What I was trying to do this season was have a good senior year," Henderson said. "I just wanted to have a better year than I did in the past three years."

But whether Henderson developed into the Southern Conference's best-ever player still is subject to debate.

Selvy holds the NCAA record for points in a game, with 100 against Newberry on Feb. 13, 1954. He also set his career mark in just three years to Henderson's four.

Selvy also holds the NCAA mark for field goals in a game (41), free throws made in a career (355) and is sixth in career scoring average (32.5). Henderson's career average is 20.2.

"I just wanted to keep improving," said Henderson, who is hoping to earn a spot in the Olympic tryouts and considering a chance to play in a new professional league for players 6-4 and under.

"I've accomplished a little bit, but I've got a little ways to go."

Moccasins Hold Off VMI To Claim Conference Title

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) - The cast of Tennessee-Chattanooga stars that fell more than expected during the regular season finally rose to the top when it counted the most.

Senior center Lance Fulse powered his way inside for 17 points, 11 in the second half, as the Moccasins won their first Southern Conference title in five years with a 75-61 victory over VMI on Sunday.

"The big difference was everyone out there was pulling together," said Coach Mack McCarthy. "During the year ... everybody thought they were going to be THE GUY. Finally they realized that if we all pull together and don't care who gets the credit we're going to be OK."

"Not that they are selfish people, it's just that they were all stars coming in and they all want to be stars now. They finally realized that pulling together we could accomplish what we set out to do all along ..."

Tennessee-Chattanooga also accomplished something that had eluded them over the past four years - winning a big tournament game.

The Moccasins had a double overtime loss to Marshall in the finals in 1984, an overtime loss to VMI in the 1985 semifinals, a two-point loss to Davidson in the 1986 final and a first-round overtime loss to Western Carolina last season.

"It's been such a hard year ... this is extremely satisfying," McCarthy said. "I think it's more a monkey off the back for the fans than for the players and coaches."

The victory gives the fifth-seeded Moccasins, 20-12, the conference's automatic berth in the NCAA tournament and its eighth straight season of 20 or more victories. The seventh-seeded Keydets, who had pulled earlier upsets of Furman and East Tennessee State, finished at 13-17.

"We have nothing to be ashamed of ... our kids had a great tournament," said VMI Coach Joe Cantafio.

Fulse, the hero in Saturday's 71-70 semifinal victory over Marshall when he sank a pair of free throws with two seconds left, scored six of the Moccasins' first 11 points in the second half.

The Moccasins had outscored Virginia Military Institute 14-4 to end the first half to grab a 36-25 lead at intermission.

"That run in the first half that got the lead to double figures was the game," McCarthy said.

The Keydets pulled within seven points with 17 minutes left on a layup by Ramon Williams, but would never get closer.

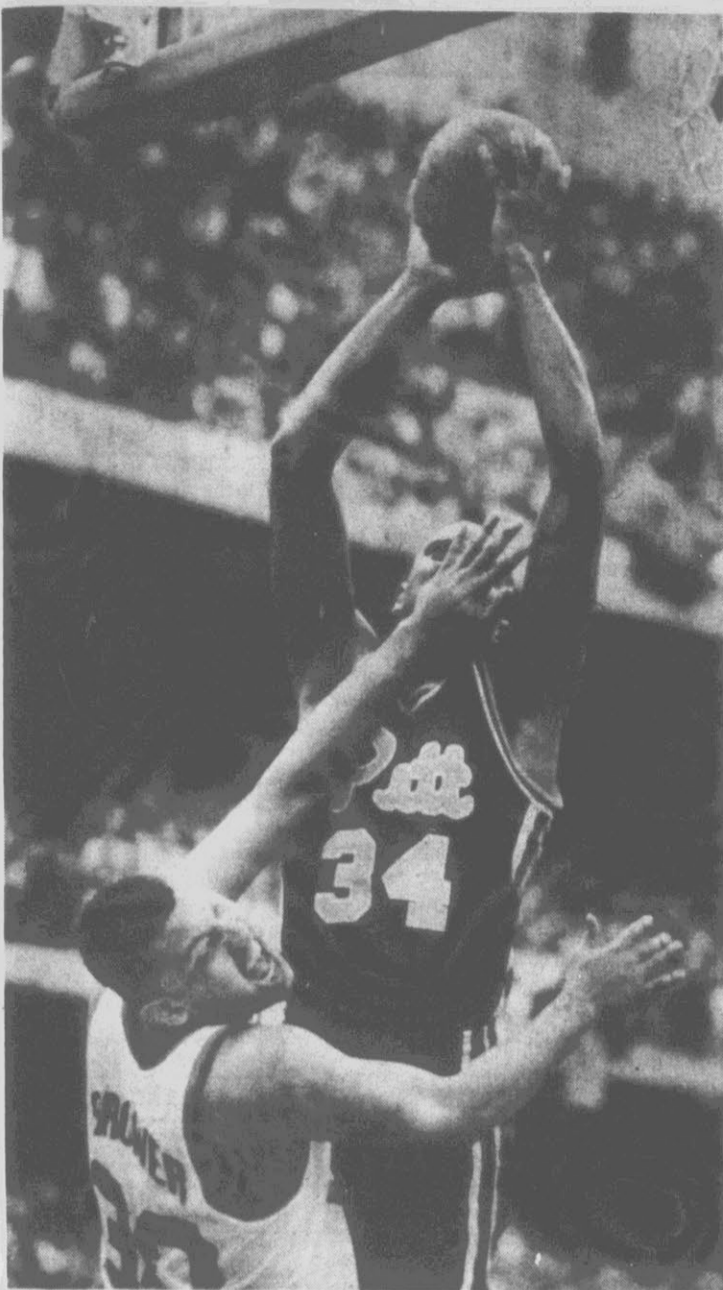

Reserve Chris Bremers also managed to hurt the smaller Keydets inside, scoring six straight points on two layups and a pair of free throws to give the Moccasins their biggest lead of the contest at 61-44 with 9:29 left.

"Anytime you play a three-guard lineup, you are going to have match problems inside," Cantafio said.

Macon Leads Temple To Win

Rough Play

Syracuse's Derek Brower fouls Pitt's Jerome Lane (34) as Lane heads for the basket during first period action from their Big East game Sunday that was won by the Panthers, 85-84.

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — Mark Macon, the Atlantic 10 Conference's Freshman of the Year, scored 28 points Sunday to help No. 1 Temple beat Duquesne 77-57 in the quarterfinals of the league tournament.

The Owls, 27-1 and the winners of 13 straight, advanced to a Tuesday semifinal against Penn State or St. Joseph's, which meet in a quarterfinal Monday. Duquesne's season ended at 11-21.

In the day's other quarterfinal, West Virginia defeated St. Bonaventure 57-40 to advance to the semifinal round.

Temple and Duquesne played evenly until 12:53 was left in the first half, when Tim Perry's dunk gave Temple a 14-12 lead. Mike Vreeswyk hit a 3-pointer a half-minute later to push the lead to five.

Over the next three minutes, Macon had a layup and two 15-foot jumpers during a 12-2 spurt that gave Temple a 29-14 lead.

Vreeswyk had 20 points for Temple and Perry added 16.

Duquesne was led by Darrell White's 19 points — 12 in the second half — and Collins Dobbs' 10.

The 20-point margin was the closest Duquesne came to Temple this year. In two regular season meetings, the Owls won by 40 and 39 points.

Macon's 28 points marked the 27th time he has scored in double figures since starting his college career. The only time he did not score in double figures this season was during a regular-season game against West Virginia at the WVU Coliseum, where the Atlantic 10 tournament is being held.

The guard was honored as the conference's top freshman earlier this week.

Pittsburgh.....85
Syracuse.....84

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Jerome Lane scored a 18 first-half points and foul-plagued Pittsburgh survived a late Syracuse surge to claim the Big East regular-season title with an 85-84 triumph Sunday afternoon.

Lane finished with career-high 29 points and 15 rebounds as No. 7 Pittsburgh had to hold off the 12th-ranked Orangemen, who drew even with the Panthers during the final five minutes after trailing by as much as 14 points in the second half.

The Panthers took the lead for good on center Charles Smith's 16-foot jumper with 2:01 to play after Syracuse center Rony Seikaly had tied the game, 79-79, on a spinning layup with 2:38 left.

Smith, who finished with 18 points, later added a pair of free throws with 17 seconds remaining to give the Panthers an 85-82 lead. Syracuse twice missed 3-point shots in the waning seconds and made the final margin a single point with reserve center Derek Brower scored a layup at the buzzer.

The Orangemen led 2-0, then Pitt ran off 10 straight points and never trailed. The Panthers led 43-36 at halftime and extended it to 56-42 early in the second half.

Smith, Lane and freshman point guard Sean Miller all picked up their fourth personal fouls early in the second half but did not foul out.

Pittsburgh, which shared the league title last season with the Orangemen and Georgetown, finished with a 12-4 record and will take its 22-5 record into the Big East tournament next weekend as the top seed. Syracuse ended the conference season 11-5, 22-8 overall.

Seikaly led the Orangemen with 20 points and 14 rebounds, while Sherman Douglas had 17 and Earl Duncan 12, all in the second half.

Demetreus Gore added 15 for Pitt.

Bradley.....101
Creighton.....77

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Hersey Hawkins scored 38 points and grabbed nine rebounds as No. 14 Bradley beat Creighton 101-77 Sunday, advancing to the final of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament.

The Braves, already regular season conference champions, improved their record to 25-4 and will face Illinois State Tuesday night.

Illinois State is the only team to beat Bradley this season at home in Carver Arena, the tournament sites.

Creighton ended its season with a 16-16 record after losing to Bradley for the third time this season.

Creighton took a three-point lead early on the game, but Bradley quickly took command and built a lead of 51-31 at the half.

In the second half, Bradley buried the Bluejays as Donald Powell came off the bench and controlled the inside with 25 points and 14 rebounds. Hawkins shredded Creighton with driving layups and keen outside shooting.

Creighton battled back and within 14 midway in the second half behind senior Rod Mason and freshman Bob Harstad. Mason finished with 28 and Harstad had 18 points and 13 rebounds.

But Bradley blew it open with a 14-4 spurt in a seven-minute stretch to lead 85-61.

A 6-foot-3 guard, Hawkins is 38 points from tying Oscar Robertson's career Missouri Valley scoring record of 2,973 set at Cincinnati from 1957-60.

Hawkins entered the game leading the NCAA Division I in scoring with an average of 36.2 points per game.

Xavier, Ohio.....71
Butler.....70

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Byron Larkin scored 20 of his 25 points in the second half, including two free throws to provide the winning margin as No. 20 Xavier edged Butler 71-70 Sunday in a Midwestern Collegiate Conference game.

The Musketeers recorded their 13th straight win to improve to 24-3 overall and 9-1 in the MCC. Butler dropped to 14-13 and 5-5.

Stan Kimbrough, who finished with 14 points, hit a 3-pointer to give Xavier the lead for good at 67-65 with 1:21 remaining. Jamal Walker, who had 15 points, added two free throws to boost the lead to four points.

Butler cut the margin to two on a Jody Littrell layup with 20 seconds left, but then Larkin's free throws made it 71-67. Butler's Thad Matta hit a 3-pointer to cut it to 71-70 with six seconds remaining and Walker was fouled three seconds later.

Walker missed the front end of a one-and-one, but Larkin grabbed the rebound to seal the win.

Butler, ahead 35-29 at halftime, took its biggest lead of the game when Chad Tucker hit a 3-pointer to begin the second half. The Bulldogs led 52-45 with 10:49 left in the game before Larkin scored five straight on a 3-pointer and two free throws. Five ties followed before Kimbrough's 3-pointer gave Xavier the lead for good.

Tucker led Butler with 29 points and Darren Fowlkes had 21.

Illinois.....94
Iowa.....81

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Nick Anderson scored 23 points to lead Illinois to a 94-81 victory over No. 11 Iowa in a Big Ten conference game Sunday.

The Illini led throughout the game, staving off Buckeye rallies with a tight defense and a fastbreak that placed four players in double figures.

The victory improved Illinois' record to 20-9 overall and 10-6 in the Big Ten. Iowa fell to 21-8 and 11-5.

Illinois overcame Iowa's early hot shooting to take a 42-34 halftime lead before a standing-room-only crowd at Assembly Hall. The Hawkeyes shot 72 percent from the field compared to Illinois' 52 percent in the first half but committed 11 turnovers caused by the Illini's full-court defense.

B.J. Armstrong sparked an Iowa rally early in the second half, hitting two 3-pointers and a two-point basket to key a 10-2 Hawkeye run and tie the score at 44-44.

But the Illini staged a rally of their own on consecutive baskets by Anderson, Jens Kujawa and Lowell Hamilton, scoring nine straight points and taking a 53-44 lead with 14 minutes left. They never trailed after that and stretched their lead by as much as 17 points.

Ken Battle had 15 points for Illinois, while Kujawa added 12 and Glyn Blackwell chipped in 13.

Iowa was led by Armstrong's 16 points and 14 from Ed Horton.

LSU.....86
Florida.....69

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The old feeling was overdue.

"We had to get to feeling we could win again. We had lost four straight," said Louisiana State University forward Ricky Blanton.

LSU beat Florida 86-69 Sunday to close out the Southeastern Conference regular season at 15-12, 10-8 in the conference. Florida finished 21-10 and 11-7.

With the SEC tournament and its automatic bid to the NCAA playoffs, Sunday's victory was even more important, Blanton said.

"You could say it gives us momentum going into the tournament," he said. "But momentum won't mean anything unless we play well."

"We have Vanderbilt, and if we go in and say, 'We beat them twice this year, so we'll beat them again,' we won't be in it long. If we go at it like they have a quality ball club, which we know they do, and we play our best, we'll be all right."

Valenzuela Is Back In Form

By The Associated Press
Spring training is a time to find things out. And so far, Fernando Valenzuela likes the results.

Valenzuela, the ace of the Los Angeles Dodgers' staff this decade, had an off-season in 1987 going 14-14 with a 3.98 earned run average. He also allowed 254 hits in 251 innings.

On Sunday, he pitched three perfect innings as the Dodgers beat the Houston Astros 3-0, improving their Grapefruit record 3-0.

To recover from a fifth-place finish, the Dodgers went out and got Kirk Gibson, Mike Davis and Alfredo Griffin among others. But Los Angeles will also need a big year from Fernando to get back in the race in the National League West.

The Dodgers hope Valenzuela can return to his 1986 form, when he was 21-11 and struck out 242.

Right-hander Tim Learly followed Valenzuela with three scoreless innings, allowing one hit, while walking one and striking out two. Rookie right-hander Tim Crews pitched out of trouble in the ninth inning to record his first save of the spring.

Gibson and Mike Marshall had a pair of hits each to pace the Los Angeles offense.

Royals 6, Tigers 2

Bo Jackson, trying to win a spot in the starting lineup, hit a home run to lead off the second inning and drove in another run in the third to spark Kansas City.

Jackson's homer came off losing pitcher Frank Tanana. Jackson's third-inning sacrifice fly scored Frank White.

Reds 2, Cardinals 1

Eric Davis hit a solo homer, Kal Daniels singled home a run and four Cincinnati pitchers held St. Louis to three hits.

Left-hander Danny Jackson pitched three perfect innings in his first start for the Reds. Jackson, acquired from Kansas City in a trade last November, struck out three and didn't walk a batter.

Orioles 5, Yankees 2

Eddie Murray hit a long three-run homer as Baltimore completed a weekend sweep of the Yankees.

Murray's third-inning homer, which gave the Orioles a 4-0 lead, cleared the 360-foot sign on Miami Stadium's right-field wall, a small parking lot and another row of parked cars before landing on the street running parallel to the stadium.

Phillies 9, White Sox 5

Rich Schu hit a two-run double to help Philadelphia beat Chicago.

Three straight walks by rookie left-hander Grady Hall, who then committed a two-run error, led to a seven-run sixth inning as the Phillies spoiled Chicago's Grapefruit League opener.

Blue Jays 2, Phillies 1

Pinch-hitter Rich Leach drove in one run and rookie Jimmy Kelly scored on a wild pitch to lift Toronto over a Philadelphia split squad. Both runs came against loser David Palmer in the sixth inning.

Pirates 6, Rangers 1

Rangers 11, Pittsburgh 1
Sid Bream hit a tie-breaking single and Felix Fermin followed with a two-run single as Pittsburgh scored five runs in the eighth inning to beat exas.

The Rangers, who had 15 hits in a 6-2 loss to the Detroit Tigers on Friday, managed only two hits off four Pirates' pitchers.

Expos 3, Braves 2

Montreal's Ron Shepherd singled home Jeff Huson with the go-ahead run in the sixth inning. Shepherd eventually scored on a throwing error by catcher Todd Dewey, giving the Expos a 3-1 lead.

Twins 8, Chunichi 3

Dan Gladden and Chris Pittaro homered for Minnesota. Les Straker and Fred Toliver combined to allow just one run over the first six innings.

Cubs 5, Brewers 4

Catcher Damon Berryhill hit a two-run home run in the eighth inning to lead Chicago past Milwaukee. The Cubs' second straight victory over the Brewers improved their record to 3-0.

Bob Tewksbury, 1-0, pitched two innings in relief for the win.

Padres 3, Angels 0

Three San Diego pitchers scattered seven hits to blank California.

Andy Hawkins, the winner, pitched three innings of four-hit ball.

The following activities have been prepared by The Daily Reflector's Newspaper In Education Department in celebration of NIE Week March 7-11. Family Circus will return to this space on Monday, March 14th.

Enjoy this activity as a family. Give each member of the family a page from the newspaper and a crayon. Use the first letter of your last name and ask the family to circle all the capital letters that they can. For example, if your last name begins with the letter W, find all the capital W's on the page and circle them. Time this activity, approximately five minutes. Which person found the most capital letters? Try this activity again using the letter which begins each member's first name.

Comic strips are fun to read in the newspaper, but you can make the comics more interesting by writing your own words to the comic strip. Here's what you do. In the bubble where the words of the comic strip are written, either erase or whittle out the words. Now you look at the actions of the characters and see if you can write your own comic strip.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY March 8

- ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Get your assets and liabilities organized more efficiently, and you will see exactly how to proceed. Don't make any drastic changes today.
- TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Do something special to cheer up your mate, as this person has been down in the dumps lately. Retire early and get plenty of rest tonight.
- GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Avoid a person who usually depresses you, or that mood will stick with you all day. Be more cooperative with your co-workers.
- MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): If you have some entertainment plans, make sure these are activities you will truly enjoy, and which won't cost too much.
- LEO (July 22 to August 21): If you want to have guests into your home, make it in the daytime only. Pay particular attention to the plumbing in your home.
- VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Handle any reports or statements wisely and accurately. Make sure you drive carefully today. Retire early and rest up this evening.
- LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Avoid a friend who has a tale of woe to trouble you with, as you have enough problems of your own. Keep your mind on your personal goals.
- SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Be careful this evening, and don't allow yourself to be drawn into an activity you don't approve of. Be firm about this, but polite.
- SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): A long-standing worry could depress you if you allow it to. If there is nothing you can do to rectify the situation, forget it.
- CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): A good friend of yours has been feeling depressed and helpless, so try to raise the spirits of this person who has done so much for you.
- AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): You can accomplish a great deal today if you get an early start and use your energy constructively. Steer clear of an irate superior.
- PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Study every aspect of a new venture before you proceed. Listen to the views of others which may be quite different from your own.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠83 ♥AQ7 ♦K983 ♣AQ76
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 Pass 3 ♣ ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Beware, everything is against you! The vulnerability is unfavorable, you have the death holding, a doubleton, in the enemy suit, only three-card heart support with no intermediates, and partner is a passed hand. Act only if money means nothing to you; otherwise pass.

four trumps to a high honor is a powerful holding opposite a demand bid. If you have some method of showing a singleton, do so; if not, we prefer a positive response of three hearts to a negative two no trump. Who cares about point count?

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠Q872 ♥Q762 ♦8543 ♣7
 Your partner opens the bidding with a forcing bid of two hearts. What do you respond?
 A.—If you think you have a poor hand, you need to brush up on your hand evaluation. A singleton and

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠963 ♥A8 ♦KQ7653 ♣A6
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
 2 ♦ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Although partner is not showing much with his rebid except a six-card suit, your hand has become enormous. Your prime controls and three trumps are all gold, so much so that we think a raise to three spades is an underbid. We would jump to four spades.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠K5 ♥KJ8 ♦AQ7652 ♣K6
 What is your opening bid?
 A.—Despite your six-card suit, we suggest you open the bidding with one no trump. If you don't, you will have a difficult task ahead trying to describe your good, balanced hand. If you were to replace a low diamond with a low club, you would have had no qualms about opening one no trump. Where's the difference?

with your singleton spade, or two clubs, with your rotten suit. Since partner might pass your second suit with only three-card support, we think one no trump is the lesser evil.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠7 ♥AJ954 ♦AK7 ♣9832
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
 What do you bid now?
 A.—The one thing you can't do is rebid two hearts—that promises a six-card suit. Therefore, you have to choose between one no trump,

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠8 ♥AK9762 ♦872 ♣AJ3
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♥ 2 ♦ 4 NT Pass
 5 ♥ Pass 6 ♦ Pass
 What action do you take?
 A.—Why should partner be cue-bidding at the six-level when he could have done so at the three-level? The answer must be that he's not cue-bidding, but placing the contract. West must have taken advantage of the vulnerability to make a psychic bid. Pass. If you're wrong, simply remind partner that the Blackwood bidder is captain of the auction.

'Mr. Rogers' Show Focuses On Soviets

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mister Rogers is introducing his young viewers to a new neighbor this week, and he'd like nothing more than for everyone to be friends.

The land is the Soviet Union, which he visited last year as a guest on Moscow's "Good Night, Little Ones." The neighbor is Tatiana Vedeneeva, the Soviet television program's host who subsequently dropped by "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood."

The aim, both say, is to foster a better understanding between the two countries through the eyes and ears of the young.

"That's the goal of the neighborhood anyway, to be able to understand and care for yourself better and as you understand and care for yourself, you look through understanding eyes at your neighbor," said Fred Rogers, creator and host of "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood."

"Just like children grow little by little, one increment after another, that's the way human beings grow. I think that that's the way countries grow in trust, just one step at a time," he explained with the same gentleness that has become his on-screen trademark.

This exchange of pint-sized culture, a year in the making, could turn those steps into leaps, according to Rogers and Vedeneeva. An inspired Rogers, in fact, is considering trips to other countries.

"Even though they (children) are tiny, it's a big bridge," Vedeneeva said during her November visit to Pittsburgh's WQED-TV, home of "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" for the past 20 years.

Rogers' visit to "Good Night, Little Ones" last September will be aired by the Public Broadcasting Service on Tuesday. The show includes street scenes of Moscow.

"Even though I can't see those people right now, I can think about them and know that they're somewhere," Rogers tells his viewers. "And they're not pretend. They're real. Just like you. Even though you're not in this room on this couch with me, you're somewhere and you're real."

Ms. Vedeneeva's visit to "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" will be shown Thursday. Rogers greets her with a song he composed just for the occasion.

"We would like to welcome you. It's good to be in touch. We would like to welcome you. Our friendship means so much," he sings, accompanying himself at the piano.

The message of this week's programs, according to Rogers, is "that children in the Soviet Union start out as babies and get to be toddlers and get to be pre-schoolers and school-age children just like children here."

"It's (also) trying to demonstrate that adults throughout the world care for children and that people as far away as the Soviet Union have tender feelings about their children, just the way Americans do," he said. For Vedeneeva, the similarities are just as striking.

"Our children love the same thing as your children love to do," she said in Russian. "They would love to get acquainted with American children and especially with Mister Rogers."

Soviet children last December got their first glimpse of the cardigan-and sneakers-clad Rogers, the first guest ever to appear on Ms. Vedeneeva's nightly 15-minute show. The broadcast coincided with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's summit meeting with President Reagan.

Except for a few words of Russian, the 59-year-old Rogers spoke English on the Soviet set. Still, he managed to master one phrase that he repeated again and again to the many children he met: "Boodish li ti moy savyad?" or "Won't you be my neighbor?"

Ms. Vedeneeva, who speaks little English, was assisted by a translator for "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood." The interpreter figures prominently on Thursday's show, narrating a segment showing how Russian Matruska dolls are made.

"I don't think we've ever had an interpreter on the set. So that could help children see what that's like," Rogers said.

Rogers was accompanied to Moscow by hand puppets Daniel Tiger and 'X' the Owl. Vedeneeva made her first journey to the United States with Stepashka the Rabbit and Xrysha the Pig.

The puppets — kukli in Russian — seemed to have as much fun as their creators. Daniel Tiger and Xrysha the Pig, in fact, shared a shy smooch in Moscow.

"Oooh, you're such a big pig. A Bolshoi pig," Daniel Tiger told Xrysha. "I like you."

Hepburn Still Hard At Work

NEW YORK (AP) — Katharine Hepburn, the only four-time Oscar winner, says she's still working hard at age 80 after battling back from a serious car accident and a benign growth on her vocal cords.

Miss Hepburn said she has recovered from a 1982 accident that severely injured her foot, and recent surgery to correct damage to her vocal cords.

"I trained myself not to limp, but it still doesn't feel all that comfortable," she said in this week's People magazine, adding that she still plays tennis and swims in the Long Island Sound near her Fenwick, Conn., home for exercise.

Tonight, she stars in "Laura Lansing Slept Here," an NBC-TV movie, as a wealthy novelist who boards with a suburban family and learns something about life.

Miss Hepburn said she has plenty to look forward to even though some good friends have died.

"You think about people who were dear to you, of course," she said. "But it's not to be plumbed, not to be held onto. You cannot live with yesterday's tragedy. You must go onward, onward. It's like swimming in the Long Island Sound. You just have to dive in and do it."

Ambassador

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — Singer Harry Belafonte, traveling in Mozambique as a goodwill ambassador for UNICEF, met with children who had been abducted and trained by anti-government guerrillas, the national news agency said.

UNICEF operates programs throughout Mozambique for the benefit of children affected by the country's 11-year-old guerrilla war.

After arriving from Zimbabwe, where he attended a conference about children in southern Africa, the American singer on Sunday was taken to a school in Maputo for youths who escaped or were freed after being abducted by the Mozambique National Resistance rebels, the AIM news agency said.

'Empire Of The Sun' Wins Photo Award

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steven Spielberg's "Empire of the Sun" was honored for outstanding achievement in cinematography by the American Society of Cinematographers.

The award for best cinematography in a motion picture of theatrical length went Sunday to Allen Daviau, a society member who was the cinematographer on "Empire." Philip Lathrop, also a society member, won for the best television miniseries or special for his work on "Christmas Snow." Woody Omens won for best single episode of a television series for the pilot of "Heart of the City."

Honored for lifetime achievement was George Folsey, who has worked on such films as "Adam's Rib," "Green Dolphin Street" and "Forbidden Planet," and has earned 13 Oscar nominations in his 50-year career. He was director of photography on more than 150 films.

The second-annual awards were handed out during a ceremony and dinner in the Alfred Hitchcock Studios at Universal Studios, said spokeswoman Rosalind May.

Some of the celebrities attending the banquet were actors Charlton Heston; Katharine Ross and husband, Sam Elliot; Michael Landon; Cheryl Ladd; Earl Holliman; Jill Eikenberry and Michael Tucker of "L.A. Law"; and Dennis Weaver.

The winners were chosen by members of the cinematography society.

'Magnum' Farewell

HONOLULU (AP) — Actor Tom Selleck says he's grown attached to his character in "Magnum, P.I.," and will miss the irreverent private detective now that the TV series is ending.

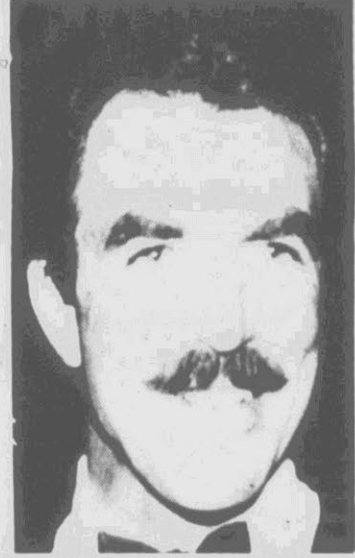

"It's emotional," he said. "I hope he never quite leaves me. I don't know what life is like without Magnum."

Selleck's lips were sealed about the show's final episode, expected to be broadcast in May.

"The bus doesn't go over the side of the cliff," Selleck said Saturday at a kind of farewell news conference at the Diamond Head sound stage, home for the CBS-TV show the past eight years.

"But I ... I ... I won't tell you any more," he said. "I can't say how it's going to turn out. He's (Magnum) going to be in a lot of trouble this time, though."
