Wholesale Prices Dropping Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell 0.2 percent in February, pushed downward by drops in both food and energy costs, the government said today.

Food prices fell 1.1 percent; energy prices, 0.8 percent. The cost of lettuce, which had skyrocketed through the late fall and early winter, fell a remarkable 70.0 percent.

If the overall February drop held for 12 straight months, prices for that year would be down 2.2 percent.

For the first two months of 1988, prices rose at an annual rate of 1.1

percent, half the modest 2.2 percent rate for all of last year. Prices had risen a brisk 0.4 percent in January but had declined 0.4 percent in December.

Today's report again showed there was little justification for worries of a resurgence in inflation. Economist Donald Ratajczak of Georgia State University said that, "on balance, the inflationary fears that were generated with the January report should be dissipated."

Energy prices were down, but far less than in January, when they plummeted 4.5 percent.

Gasoline prices fell 0.5 percent after an 8.4 percent plunge in January. Home heating oil costs were off 4.2 percent after a 6.2 percent drop. Natural gas prices, up 0.8 percent in January, fell 1.4 percent.

As for food, vegetable prices, which had increased 16.2 percent in January, dropped 26.3 percent, a decline largely driven by the drop in lettuce prices.

Fruits, down 3.0 percent in January, fell an additional 3.5 percent. Beef and veal prices were up 0.3 percent after a 3.4 percent rise in January. Pork costs, up 13.2 percent in the previous month, rose just 0.2 percent.

Coffee prices fell 0.8 percent for the second consecutive month. Alcoholic beverage costs were up 0.8 percent after rising 0.1 percent in the preceding month.

The index of wholesale prices minus food and energy was up 0.3 percent in February, after a 0.5 percent increase in January.

Tourism Bureau To Open Office Early Next Week

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

Problems installing a telephone system prevented the Pitt-Greenville Convention and Visitors Bureau from opening as scheduled March 1, but the office at 563 S. Evans St. should open early next week, according to executive director Al Nichols.

Nichols met with the convention and visitors authority Thursday night for the first time since he accepted the executive director's job in February. Nichols said he has mapped out a plan for the office, the initial staff and the long-range goals of the bureau.

A temporary assistant will work in the office until a permanent staff member is hired, said Nichols. The job is described as an administrative assistant-secretary position, he said, and the staff member will perform clerical duties as well as work with convention and visitors marketing.

"It is a general type of job description which parallels a level 63 job with county government," said Nichols. "This does not get into the specific functions which relate to our business which will be provided to that employee in a more detailed description."

The authority unanimously approved the job description and salary, which begins at $16,354 and rises according to the county's scale to $17,160 as of July 1. The salary will rise to $18,018 Jan. 1, 1989.

The authority also unanimously approved purchasing furniture for the office from Taff Office Equipment Co. for about $5,200. Nichols presented the authority with an itemized list of furnishings for the executive director, the administrative assistant and an artist.

The authority approved a plan in which Nichols will submit three reports at the group's monthly meetings, in addition to a list of leads and contacts. Nichols will prepare a

REV. G.L. HARRIS

Harris Enters Race

The Rev. G.L. Harris of 300 Wilson Drive, Ayden, filed Thursday as a candidate for the Pitt County Board of Commissioners from Consolidated District B.

The district includes Ayden, Grifton, Simpson and Pactolus townships.

A 33rd degree Mason, Harris was born and raised in Farmville. He has lived in Ayden for the past 10 years and is minister at Wynn Chapel in Robersonville.

A graduate of H.B. Suggs High School in Farmville, Harris earned a theology degree from Howard University in Washington, D.C. He also received an honorary divinity degree from Howard.

"I was the first black policeman employed in Ayden some 30 years ago," said Harris. "I've seen the city and county grow. A lot has been done, but a lot needs to be done."

Harris said he wants to help bring growth to the county, generate more jobs and improve education.

New Deaf School President Resigns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the student protests at Gallaudet University say the resignation early today of Elisabeth Ann Zinser as president of the deaf liberal arts college leaves other key demands yet to be addressed.

Zinser's appointment Sunday had sparked heated protests over the board of trustees' failure to appoint a deaf president, something the school never has had in its 124-year history.

Zinser, who has normal hearing and does not know sign language, resigned just after midnight, saying her decision "was reached with great difficulty as I came to understand how deeply some see the social stature of deaf persons reflected in the presidency of this university."

She told a later news conference that the student protests had not caused her to change her mind.

"The best way to restore order and return this university to its business of education was to pave the way for the board of trustees to consider the selection of president who is hearing-impaired...."

"I have responded to this extraordinary movement of deaf people, not to the demands of protesters."

Student protest leader Jerry Covell said that while the students are "very excited" about Zinser's resignation, they plan to insist on other changes to make the school more sensitive to its hearing-impaired students.

Their first priority, Covell said, is for Zinser to be replaced with a deaf president. In addition, the students are seeking:

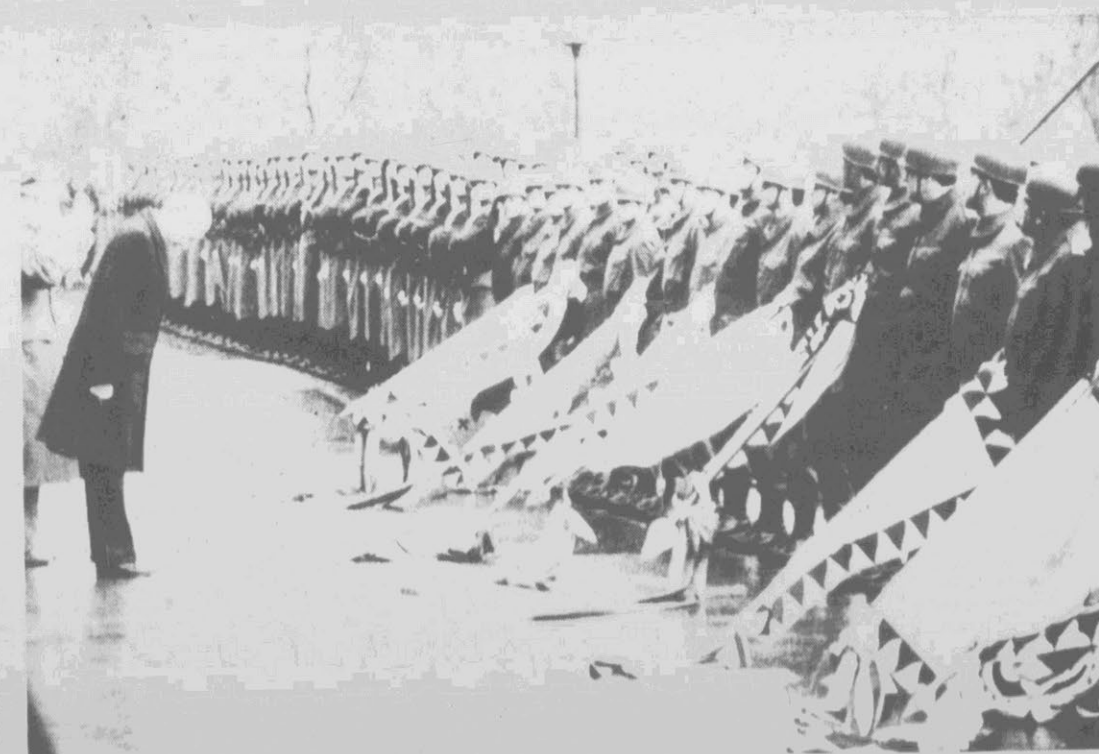

—The resignation of Jane Bassett Spilman as chairman of the board of trustees.

—A minimum of 51 percent deaf people on the board of trustees.

—A guarantee of no reprisals against students, faculty and staff who were involved in the protests.

"The school institution from the outside looks beautiful," said Covell, whose sign language was voiced by an interpreter on CBS-TV's "This Morning" program. "There are people there who don't understand and are not sensitive to our needs. And now it is time. We feel that we are ready and we have ample support and numerous people who agree with us. So why should we stop now?"

Mark Zangara, a spokesman for the school's Deaf President Now Committee, said Zinser's resignation "has not satisfied the students. It's just bolstered our cause."

Rural Aid Center Now In Operation

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

After about five months of operation, the Pitt Community College Rural Agricultural Assistance Center has detailed some primary goals and functions for the service, its coordinator said in an interview Thursday afternoon.

Implemented in October to provide training and assistance to farmers, it acts as a "clearing house for sources of information" for farmers and agribusinesses, Robert May said. "We're trying to catalogue resources and make them available to local farmers and agribusinesses."

For example, the center has subscriptions to several agricultural magazines and guides and has ordered several tapes on areas of farming diversification, he said.

In addition to the traditional kinds of information, the center is "building a source of material and information outside the realm you may normally consider," May said. The center recently received information on a call-in service for farmers who need answered questions, he said.

Another function of the center is to determine the interests and needs of the agricomunity and to find practitioners to teach or guide people in those areas, May said.

Current activities include the catfish farming classes and tractor dynamometer tests. The dynamometer "is a device to measure the horsepower of tractors while they're stationary," May said. It is a valuable service because it alerts farmers to problems they may have while in the field, he said.

"It's kind of like your car in getting it ready for a trip," May said.

Hart Out

DENVER (AP) — Gary Hart ended his on-again, off-again bid for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination today, saying, "I got a fair hearing and...I should not go forward."

It was the second withdrawal for the man who once was the prohibitive front-runner for his party's nomination, coming 10 months after he quit because of questions concerning his relationship with Miami model Donna Rice.

Flanked by members of his family, Hart told a news conference that when he rejoined the race last December, he said he wanted to "let the people decide."

"I got a fair hearing and the people have decided and now I should not go forward," he declared.

Zoning Plans Draw Opposition

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

Concerns arising from proposed multifamily and commercial zoning in an area south of White Road were brought before the Greenville City Council Thursday at a public hearing regarding a request to extend the city's extraterritorial planning and zoning jurisdiction.

The ETJ request was just one of the issues addressed by the council at its regular monthly action meeting at City Hall.

The concerns are centered around the proposed zoning of a 70-acre tract requested to be brought into the city's ETJ. The tract, owned by Geneva M. Jackson, is located south of White Road, west of SR 1709, and east of the Wilton Evans property.

The southernmost 50 acres of the tract has been requested to enter the ETJ zoned R15S (single family), the 18 acres on the northwestern section has been requested to be zoned R-6 (multifamily), and the northeastern two acres situated on the corner of SR 1709 and SR 1708 is requested to be zoned CN (neighborhood commercial).

On Feb. 16, the Planning and Zoning Commission recommended approval of the ETJ extension with the requested zoning by a vote of 5-1.

Five area residents voiced their opposition Thursday night regarding the proposed zoning of the 70-acre tract. James Meeks Jr., who lives on a lot in the proposed R-15S zoning section, argued that passage of the proposed zoning request would adversely affect his property value.

R-15S zoning permits single family homes with a minimum lot size of 15,000 square feet. R-6 zoning permits duplex and multifamily units with a minimum lot size of 6,000 square feet. "The proposed zoning of that commercial, I feel like, would devalue my personal residential property," Meeks said.

Meeks said he had previously approached representatives of the Jackson estate to learn what kind of homes or proposals would be on that 70-acre tract.

"They assured me that it would be suitable homes as is in Windsor, developed down the street. There was no mention of any commercial prop-

Society Had Speaker

The Pitt County Humane Society heard a talk Wednesday by Dr. Greg Thompson, a local veterinarian, who discussed problems pets experience during hot weather. Thompson said pets can get sunburn. Dogs perspire only through their mouths and tongues and the pads of their feet, he said. Dogs, especially young animals, can suffer severely from heat stroke. If a dog should pass out, he said, check his gums and see if they have changed from normal pink to dark orange-red. If the coloration has changed, it's heat stroke, he said. Thompson said the dog should be cooled as quickly as possible by wetting down the animal's entire body and a veterinarian should be called. The society discussed its annual fund-raiser, the Greenville Horse and Pony Show to be held April 9 and April 10 at the Pitt County Fairgrounds.

Marine Squadron Plans Reunion

It will be a homecoming of sorts for former members of Marine Scout Bombing Squadron 343 late next month when they arrive in Greenville for a reunion. Gregory's Gorillas — VMSB 343 — were stationed at Pitt-Greenville Airport, then Marine Corps Auxiliary Air Facility, Greenville, from Dec. 4, 1943, until July 15, 1944.

And Ralph Heidenreich of Greenville hopes 50 or more of the former squadron members will attend the April 18-22 reunion. Heidenreich, chairman of the reunion, first came to Greenville as a member of the squadron, as did Billy Wells.

The squadron was commissioned in August 1943 at the Marine Corps Auxiliary Air Facility, Atlantic, under the command of Maj. W.E.

Gregory. And the 225 men and 50 officers that moved to Greenville in December 1943 were the first large contingent of Marines to be stationed at the airport during World War II.

The city-county airport — leased to the Navy Department — was used for final flight training before shipment overseas.

The squadron left Greenville for Miramar, Calif., then in August 1944 sailed for Ewa, Hawaii. Moved to Sand Island in April 1945, VMSB 343 moved again in September and October 1945 to Tsingtao, China.

Heidenreich said 20 former squadron members gathered in Reno, Nev., last March for a reunion.

This year's reunion, Heidenreich said, will include a bus trip to the Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station and to Atlantic Field and Morehead City.

Heidenreich said any area residents who have memorabilia relating to the squadron's stay in Greenville, or have addresses for any VMSB 343 members, are asked to call him at 758-8030.

REAL ESTATE FACTS

by: Rudy Schulte

WHAT'S THE BOTTOM LINE?
When you sell your home, how can you know in advance the amount of cash you will receive? How can you determine the "bottom-line" before you even sell?
The starting point would be to ask for a "Market Analysis" from a real estate professional. This analysis will show you an approximate value for your home. This price will be your starting point and will most likely will be the highest price you might expect to receive.
Add to this price the value of any prorata refunds you might be due such as prepaid property insurance, mortgage insurance premiums, and the purchaser's prorata share of property taxes. The total of those figures will represent cash in, or due you when the sale takes place.
Next add up all items which will be paid out at closing. Start with the balance on your existing loan on the home. This must be paid in full out of the sale proceeds. To that amount, add one month's interest on the loan. Since interest is paid in arrears, your last payment pays interest for the prior month leaving interest due from the first of the month until closing (a maximum of one month).
Next, add the sales fee paid to the real estate broker, loan fees, your prorata share of property taxes, inspection fees, attorney fees, etc. Finally, to find your cash at closing, subtract the total cash outlay from cash received. Or, call me! I'll be happy to figure it all for you!

All these details are second nature to us at Blanche Forbes Realty! I'd gladly answer any questions you have or help you in all the steps required to sell a home. Just call me at 756-2121.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Focus On Instruction

Taxpayers in Pitt County lost two days of their investment in public schools when the Pitt County Board of Education decided to waive makeup of snow days lost in January.

But the real shame is that students lost two days of education — a factor more vital than dollars or the outside activities that keep interfering with teaching time.

The decision not to make the days up was a poor one and for board members, represents the easy way out of requests not to interfere with field trips, Easter vacation and sports. The board apparently does not consider instruction to students its top priority when scheduling classes.

That attitude reflects a trend by boards, when constructing a school calendar, to allow extracurricular activities and personnel preferences to supersede concern for the education of students. This perspective is not in the best interest of quality education and certainly isn't congruent with strong dedication to instruction.

Granted, many outside activities, field trips and visits to colleges campuses, for example, are valuable and supplement the instruction that takes place inside classrooms. It is important to allow students the opportunity to further skills and broaden perspectives through extracurricular involvement and travel.

But classroom time, already pitifully inadequate, already overtaxed by increasingly complex needs of students, should not be sacrificed for amenities. It is the responsibility of the board of education to safeguard this valuable instruction time by firmly supporting its importance.

Allowing the two snow days to be waived is not consistent with this obligation. The board should set clear rules when adopting or revising a calendar, and those standards should send the message that instruction time is sacred — the most valuable part of public education.

Waiving two days of instruction time should be done only in an extreme emergency and the circumstances surrounding the days in question did not warrant the action.

The school board must support standards firm enough to guarantee students — and taxpayers — the full benefit of the public education they are entitled to.

Close Look Warranted

The Federal Aviation Administration plans to take a close look at the commuter airline industry.

Certainly the FAA should look carefully at the industry. The agency is concerned about a number of commuter airline accidents which have taken 56 lives over a five-month period.

Commuter airlines need proper safety requirements and procedures, just as larger airlines do. Safe operation is just as important to the passengers and communities served by these commuters as it is to large metropolitan areas.

The FAA will inspect 173 commuter airlines with the focus being on some 20 percent of the lines. To be examined will be the areas of airline management, training programs, record keeping and the condition of the airplanes.

This is very proper attention for the FAA to pay to a growing segment of the commercial air industry. Commuter airlines had a good safety record a few years back, but such airlines were also virtually unknown to most of the nation. With the advent of the hub system instituted by major airlines the commuters became important feeders in bringing passengers to the hub airports where they then transfer to jet flights.

Last year the commuters flew almost 30 million passengers and the number is expected to increase yearly. More traffic meant more accidents, however, and now the FAA is looking carefully at the situation. In 1986 the commuters had their safest year in history and FAA is looking to a return to that safety record in the future.

A flurry of accidents like those that occurred in the past year isn't necessarily an indication something is amiss, but it is evidence a close look at commuter service is warranted. The study should be a constructive one that yields tangible measures for improvement.

Commuter services is important to eastern North Carolina where most community airports are served by commuter planes which transport passengers to Piedmont's hub in Charlotte or American's new hub at Raleigh-Durham.

Obviously it is to eastern North Carolina's advantage that commuters be as safe as possible and the FAA year-long study seems the best way to assure safety.

Noriega's Civilian Support Deteriorating

PANAMA CITY, Panama — Mounting pressure on military strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega is chipping away his remaining civilian support and constricting his room for maneuver in maintaining his five-year grip on power here, according to Panamanian and foreign diplomatic sources.

The pressures — from U.S. economic sanctions, a domestic financial crash and spreading opposition sentiment — may be forcing Noriega to seek a way out by agreeing to leave power in return for a U.S. pledge not to try to extradite him on drug-smuggling and racketeering charges, Panamanian sources say. But the existence of such a deal cannot be confirmed, and there is no indication yet of when, if ever, Noriega might voluntarily give up command of the Panama Defense Forces.

What is clear is that his efforts to counter the pressures by fomenting an anti-American backlash have failed. Given the depth and breadth of the anti-Noriega sentiment here, it would seem that the likeliest chance of a popular backlash against the United States would be if Washington failed to take strong enough measures to get rid of Noriega.

"The pressures are clearly building up in Panama," one diplomat said.

Not only is the Noriega government almost out of money, unable to pay its bills, it is practically without credibility internally and lacking international recognition, analysts said. It also now faces a more united domestic opposition, a more critical

'Not only is the Noriega government almost out of money, unable to pay its bills, it is practically without credibility internally and lacking international recognition, analysts said.'

Roman Catholic church and an erosion of its civilian base of support among government employees.

The United States has been applying pressure on Noriega to step down since he was indicted in early February by two Florida grand juries on drug charges. The pressure has increased since Feb. 26, when Noriega ousted civilian figurehead President Eric Arturo Delvalle for having tried to fire him as Defense Forces commander.

The general appears to have passed his latest test by paying at least some members of the 15,000-strong Defense Forces, whose bimonthly salaries were due Thursday. As much as $10 million reportedly was withdrawn from the depleted banking system last week to meet the military payroll, which has been estimated at $6 million to $9 million a month, a knowledgeable foreign source said.

However, salaries for teachers and other government employees who make up the state's 145,000-member payroll are due next week, and it is unclear where the money to pay them will come from.

In a statement published Thursday, the National Banking Association, which represents most of the 130 banks here, said it was impossible to resume deposit and transfer operations Thursday as announced Wednesday by the National Banking Commission, a state regulatory body. The statement said the causes of the bank holiday declared March 5 — the unavailability of cash from the National Bank of Panama and fears of a massive run — have not been overcome.

Contributing to the diplomatic isolation of Noriega and his new acting figurehead president, Manuel Solis Palma, were the defections Wednesday of two Panamanian envoys associated with Noriega's more popular predecessor, the late Gen. Omar Torrijos. Emilia Arosemena Vallarino, Panama's ambassador to Mexico, where she is dean of the diplomatic corps, resigned in protest against the Noriega regime along with the Panamanian consul in Los Angeles, Santiago Torrijos, a nephew of Torrijos. The defections are considered important here because the Defense Forces claims to be the bastion of Torrijos' nationalist ideals.

Additional pressure came Wednesday from Panama's highly cautious Roman Catholic Church, which issued its most critical statement to date about the military. It called on the military to submit itself to civilian authority, allow credible national elections and restore civil rights and press freedom.

Another indication of the pressure on Noriega is increasingly open approval among Panamanians of U.S. intervention to get rid of him. In an interview Wednesday, the wife of ousted President Delvalle, Mariela Delvalle, said she had urged the Reagan administration to be prepared to intervene militarily if her husband requested it.

A diplomat said Thursday that Delvalle, who is in hiding, has not indicated any intention of asking for such a U.S. move.

According to a source close to Delvalle, he had been led to believe during a meeting last month with U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams that the indictments against Noriega could be dropped. Delvalle planned to offer Noriega an arrangement under which the indictments would be dropped in return for his voluntary resignation as military commander, but the deal fell through when the U.S. Justice Department announced that the indictments would stand.

Mariela Delvalle said her husband would still agree to allow Noriega to remain in Panama with immunity from prosecution if he stepped down.

"What we want is a democracy here," she said. "We don't want to have anybody being judged for what they did or anything. We want to forget about what has happened and start a new republic."

She added that she believed powerful Colombian narcotics traffickers "would kill him (Noriega) wherever he goes" if he left the country, "because they need him here."

This Week, Democrats Have The Edge

It was super for Vice President George Bush and pretty super for Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts. But, as I see it, both parties still have a problem.

Only a few days ago the conventional wisdom was that the Republican Party was threatened by a pragmatist-fundamentalist split. That already looks like ancient history. Evidently it is the Democrats who have a problem-preacher within their ranks. All this should remind us, as British Prime Minister Harold Wilson remarked in the 1970s, that a week is a long time in politics.

The interest has now definitely switched to the Democratic race, however, and that should help the party. The dismal showing by religious broadcaster Pat Robertson in his own region and the final collapse of Rep. Jack Kemp of New York leaves the pragmatic Bush-Dole Republican rump in uncontested control. What could be duller than that? I for one will not be following the remainder of the Republican race with any great anticipation.

The Democratic contest remains surprisingly open. My sense is that the party elders (among them Robert Strauss) have, without telling us, restored influence to brokers inside smoke-filled (or no doubt now smokeless) rooms. A large uncommitted bloc of delegates (mostly elected officials) may well have the final say in Atlanta. It seems highly likely that Dukakis will win the nomination. Who finishes second? Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee did better than expected, winning five of 13 Southern and border states, and, if forced to predict, I would suggest a Dukakis-Gore ticket in the end. It would be a strong ticket, too — certainly more formidable than the 1984 odd couple, Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro.

But what about Jesse Jackson? Everyone keeps asking what he will demand, and no one knows the answer — no doubt including Jackson himself.

Notice, however, that he came in ahead of Gore in eight of those 13 states. So it may yet turn out that the process that was intended to push the party gently to the right ended up promoting a liberal Massachusetts governor and a black preacher who is frankly appealing to the left.

A week ago Republicans were worrying about the prospect of a Democratic ticket headed by Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri. It turned out that Democrats were even more worried. A combined Dukakis-Gore onslaught pushed Gephardt into a fourth place from which he may not recover.

On the Republican side, I don't see how Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas can recover. He has challenged the vice president to debate him, Lincoln-Douglas style, and no doubt the vice president will decline. Lashing out will do Dole no good, but remaining dutifully caged by his handlers (as he has in the past three weeks) will presumably do no good, either.

For conservatives, the decline and fall of Robertson comes mainly as a relief. He indeed was threatening to make life very difficult for the Republicans. Even to his own supporters, Robertson turned out to be a disappointment — especially in his baseless and unwise attribution of the Jimmy Swaggart scandal to Machiavellians in the Bush campaign.

Bush could of course have a good chance against Dukakis. The economy, often said to be decisive on these occasions, is in better shape than is generally recognized: employment and income up, gross national product still rising, inflation down.

But Dukakis is fluent, mellifluous, articulate — seemingly imbued with plan and purpose. It is said that he is vulnerable on the issues of defense and foreign policy, as the Democrats so frequently have been in recent decades. But the pragmatic Republicans, whose standard-bearer is George Bush, have already thrown away this big issue with nouveau detente and arms control. And what is Bush calling for in his inauspiciously isolated, keep-'em-at-a-distance campaign? Even more arms control.

This week I give the Democrats the edge in November.

Strength For Today

"Why should I bother about religion?" a student asked. "Religion is for people who need comfort. I'm satisfied with my life right now."

Perhaps an appropriate response to this remark might be contained in the story of a man and a picture. A man was attracted by a painting in a shop window, so he bought it and hung it in a room of his home.

Then he noticed how dirty the wall around it looked, so he re-painted the walls. Then he re-did the floor and the ceiling because they looked so dirty by comparison. With the room decorated, he realized how shabby the rug and furniture appeared. So he replaced these. Therefore, by now the picture had brought a transformation of the room about it.

Religion makes one dissatisfied with elements of life which seemed adequate before its coming. But just ask the man with the picture if he would want to go back to the old room.

Blend Of Liberalism And Conservatism Key For Democrats

WASHINGTON — A while back, Democratic members of Congress spent a long weekend strategy session mulling over the "family" issue, and wondering why they don't quite own it. The session was very instructive.

When you picture the average family and its practical struggles, the word that comes to mind is "vulnerable." Typically, both parents work, or the family has a single working parent. In all likelihood, the community has schools that are stretched to the limit, no public day care programs for toddlers or after-school program for grade-school kids.

In addition, the parents are likely to be worried about their own aging parents, who are vulnerable financially, emotionally and logistically; and worried about how to get their own grown children out of the house, into their own homes, in an astronomically expensive housing market.

At first blush, this all seems fine grist for the usual Democratic themes: the housing, the better schools, the child care, the security for seniors and so on. But for the most part it is conservatives and Republicans who are still hitting pay dirt with "family" issues. According to Ethel Klein, a Columbia University political scientist who addressed the assembled Democrats, conservatives own the family issue mainly because few Americans view their own family problems in terms of a programmatic agenda.

For the most part, Klein observed, parents experience the problem as a loss of control over their own lives. Concretely, parents are worried that norms of decent behavior are disintegrating; that schools aren't teaching; that nobody is minding the kids after school; that sons will get into drugs and that daughters will get pregnant.

These are authority issues. As such, they strike essentially conservative themes. The idea that children ought to obey their parents and their teachers is a conservative idea. And for that matter, navigating a family through the vicissitudes of modern life is an essentially conservative enterprise.

This was brought home vividly in my own community recently when parents of eighth graders held an emergency meeting after a teen party where drugs were in evidence and the host's parents apparently were not. We good liberals sounded like Cotton Mather. Few parents are very liberal where 13-year-olds and drugs are concerned.

For ordinary voters who are not particularly ideological, when President Reagan talks about the value of prayer in schools, what he is really communicating is the virtue of respect. When Pat Robertson talks about traditional values, many voters who may doubt that the good reverend diverted a hurricane may still feel some kinship.

The New Right would privatize the turmoil of the family. It would treat the temptations of modern life with traditional religiosity; it would treat economic stresses with self-help. The liberal left would address the concerns by attempting to expand secular community resources, programmatically.

The good news, however, is that the Democrats are catching on to the more visceral concerns. Such Democrats as Gephardt, Jackson and Simon, offering a populist appeal — an empathy for the little guy whose dreams have been deferred — have all done better than originally forecast. Jackson, the most "left-wing" candidate, also articulates a profoundly conservative plea of hard work and self-discipline for black youth.

Liberalism at its best is nothing but the idea that some very conservative aspirations ought to be available to everybody: the opportunity to live in a decent house, to raise a family, to send your kids to decent schools, to work for a living wage and to be secure in old age. Yet the idea that everyone has a right to those dreams is liberal, even radical.

After all, the notion that the pursuit of happiness is too basic a human endeavor to be merely the privilege of an elite was the revolutionary premise of the American republic. And the notion that the practical pursuit of happiness also involved economics was the essence of the New Deal.

The most effective Democrats — Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy — got that combination of liberalism and conservatism just right. If the Democrats can get that back, they will regain the White House. And they will deserve to.

Bill Imperiled

Congress has a historic opportunity to redefine an outmoded welfare system. But reform legislation, adopted by the House in December, is in peril in the Senate.

The House bill preserves four essential elements of reform:

- It improves benefits to meet the basic needs of poor families.
- It commits substantial funding to support state programs for the education, training and employment of adult welfare recipients.
- It requires a coordinated effort to help families gain access to a range of services to escape welfare dependency.
- It recognizes that single parents cannot be expected to get an education or go to work without day care for their young children.

In the Senate, Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York is perhaps the most knowledgeable and eloquent spokesman on welfare issues. As a Nixon White House aide, Moynihan authored the Family Assistance Plan. That proposal, which was defeated in Congress, still stands as the most sweeping welfare reform scheme devised in the system's 50-year history.

Nearly 20 years later, Moynihan has introduced the Family Security Act. He has worked hard to secure strong bipartisan support. A majority of the Senate signed on as co-sponsors, but this broad sponsorship came at a steep price.

The bill does make child-support enforcement a cornerstone of national welfare policy. Moynihan is absolutely right that parental support is the first line of defense against public dependency. It also requires every state to provide benefits to two-parent households in which the principal wage earner has exhausted unemployment compensation — 24 states don't provide assistance if both parents are in the home.

But the Senate legislation is a weak companion to the House bill in other respects. Unlike the House version, the Senate bill would not require comprehensive state welfare-to-work programs. Under the Senate measure, states might only require welfare recipients to participate in minimal job-search activities. That accomplishes nothing for the person who cannot read, the person who has difficulty with English or the person who has never held a job.

While national legislation should give states flexibility, states must be obligated to meet welfare recipients where they are — and provide remedial education, basic job skills or on-the-job training if they need them. Reducing dependency means preparing welfare recipients to meet the demand for educated, skilled workers.

While both bills require welfare recipients to take part in work programs, only the House bill acknowledges that mandatory participation is feasible if support services, notably child care, are available. We expect single welfare recipients to be good parents and good employees. But the two are at odds unless adequate, affordable and reliable child care is guaranteed.

My colleagues in the American Public Welfare Association view welfare, not welfare reform, as the contract: the mutual rights and obligations shared between government and its citizens.

These mutual responsibilities are best expressed in simple, written client-agency agreements and best realized through case management. Client-agency agreements would spell out activities the family will undertake to become self-supporting, such as job training, as well as the services the agency will provide to support the client's efforts.

Case management would change the role of the welfare worker from passive auditor of hundreds of technical eligibility requirements to activist broker of the various services families may need to become self-sufficient. Case managers help families navigate the confusing bureaucracy of social services and monitor progress toward the client-agency agreement.

The Senate bill would make client-agency agreements and case management optional, whereas the House would require them.

In addition, some senators want to reduce the funds for education, training and support services. Others want to impose arbitrary quotas for the numbers of welfare recipients required to participate in jobs or training. States failing to meet the quotas would be penalized financially. This would provide an incentive to enroll large numbers of recipients in less effective programs. Still other senators wish to eliminate the requirement that states provide assistance to two-parent households.

States like Connecticut are proving that comprehensive reform strategies can work. We can help poor families replace their welfare checks with paychecks. We can help them regain their self-esteem. We can provide a brighter future for our children. The House agrees. Will the Senate?

Stephen B. Heintz is commissioner of the Connecticut Department of Income Maintenance and chairman of the American Public Welfare Association's welfare reform project.

Seminary Faces Accreditation Review

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP) — The resignations of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary's president and dean have prompted an investigation by one of the school's accrediting boards.

"We are looking at serious issues," said William Baumgaertner of Vandalia, Ohio, associate director of the Association of Theological Schools in the United States and Canada.

"When a president and dean resign, any accrediting agency would look at that," he said. "It's our responsibility to monitor the health of member institutions."

An inquiry committee from the ATS will be on the campus in Wake Forest next Friday for discussions with trustees, faculty, students and outgoing administrators, Baumgaertner said.

Baumgaertner said loss of accreditation has no automatic consequences, but could affect acceptance of transfer credits at peer institutions or eligibility for grants.

"That's where it begins to cut," he said.

Southeastern, which trains pastors and staff for about one-third of North Carolina's Southern Baptist churches, is jointly accredited by ATS and the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. It is one of six seminaries operated by the 14.7 million-member Southern Baptist Convention.

President Randall Lolley and Dean Morris Ashcraft resigned last November after a new fundamentalist majority on the seminary board voted to change the way faculty members are selected.

The majority trustees, led by the Rev. Robert Crowley of Rockville, Md., then vowed to fill all future vacancies with people who believe the Bible is literally true.

Panel Rejects Tag On Carteret Areas

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Environmental Management Commission has narrowly rejected a staff recommendation to designate two Carteret County areas as "outstanding resource waters," a move environmentalists say leaves the coast open "to the highest bidder."

EMC Chairman Charles L. Baker cast the deciding vote in Thursday's 6-5 decision. Commission members voting against the designation said there was a lack of detailed criteria for such areas, but environmentalists said the move was a "sellout" on commitments by the commission and Gov. Jim Martin's administration.

The environmental groups' petition would have nominated ORWs in two Carteret County areas, the western portion of Bogue Sound and the southern portion of Core Sound. The EMC's staff in the state Division of Environmental Management said both areas qualified for consideration as ORWs under the commission's current guidelines.

Last fall, when the EMC adopted new coastal storm-water controls that were opposed by environmentalists, commissioners had presented the outstanding resource waters.

Contras Release Peace Activist

By BRYNA BRENNAN
Associated Press Writer
MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A U.S. peace activist from Elkin, N.C., has been freed by Contra rebels nine days after he was taken at gunpoint from a village near the Nicaraguan border, Witness for Peace officials say.

Edward Griffin, the head of Witness for Peace in Nicaragua, said Richard Boren was released Wednesday night near the isolated town of Quilali, 187 miles north of Managua.

In a telephone interview, Griffin said Boren, 30, "had a cold and was very tired, but otherwise was fine." He said he got news of Boren's release by radio from other volunteers working in the area.

Boren had been living in Nicaragua since last November, working to document reports of human rights violations by the Contras, said Betsy Crites, the executive director of Witness For Peace in Durham, N.C.

"We haven't gotten to talk to him yet, but we know that he's in good health, except that he has a cold and he's very tired," Ms. Crites said Thursday. "We do know that he was marched many miles and was found about 50 kilometers as the crow flies from where he was seized. But it's very rugged territory and I would say he probably hiked at least three times that amount on those trails."

Ms. Crites said she was unsure what Boren's plans are.

"Most likely, he'll be coming back to North Carolina this weekend and visiting his family," Ms. Crites said. "But this is tentative because we haven't really been able to sit down with him and see what he feels like he can do."

Boren's 25-year-old brother, Robert, who is a senior at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, said the family was relieved that he was all right.

"Isn't it good to have a happy ending for a change?" he said in a telephone interview with the Durham

Morning Herald from his mother's home in Elkin. "We'll be glad to have him for whatever length of time he's here," he said.

Boren was seized along with 12 Nicaraguans March 1 when "Contra troops forced him out of a private home at gunpoint," Witness for Peace officials said.

The group is made up of American volunteers opposed to the Reagan administration's continued support of the Contra rebels in their 6-year-old fight to overthrow Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

Boren's grandmother, Nell Boren of Greensboro, said, "It's simply wonderful. Everybody's been so supportive and everybody in the building here's been praying for him."

Mrs. Boren said the past week had been "heartbreaking."

On Tuesday, the government filed a diplomatic note of protest with the U.S. Embassy against the Contra abductions. The Sandinistas claimed 12 men were taken by the Contras, Witness for Peace said there were 13.

Boren was the second American Witness for Peace member seized by the Contras. The first was Paul Fishcer, who was abducted in October in central Chontales province and held for two weeks.

Attorneys Say Government Holding Tuscaroras Illegally

RALEIGH (AP) — Attorneys for two Robeson County Indians accused of taking hostages at a Lumberton newspaper Feb. 1 have filed motions arguing that the two men were improperly charged with federal crimes.

Lawyers for Eddie Hatcher and Timothy Jacobs argue that the federal hostage-taking law used to charge their clients was intended to apply only to foreign terrorists.

A memorandum filed with the motion in U.S. District Court in Raleigh says the law covers international terrorists inside the United States who attempt to make the government act or abstain from an act.

"Even if the defendants sought an FBI agent to be sent for their surrender, which the defendants deny, the mere surrender to an FBI agent does not constitute the offense of hostage taking," the motion says.

U.S. Magistrate Wallace Dixon in Fayetteville twice has denied bond for Hatcher and Jacobs on the grounds that they pose a threat to the community if released and may not appear for trial.

Hatcher and Jacobs entered The Robesonian newspaper in Lumberton armed with sawed-off shotguns and held up to 19 people hostage while they negotiated a four-point list of demands with law enforcement officials. All hostages were released unharmed after officials agreed to investigate allegations of drug dealing by members of the Robeson County Sheriff's Department and prominent county businessmen, investigate the death a black Robeson County Jail inmate, and offer to relocate another county jail inmate.

The agreement also included a stipulation for the two men to surrender to FBI agents. That part of the agreement is what prosecutors have said makes it a federal case.

In a telephone interview from the Cumberland County jail Thursday night, Hatcher told The Fayetteville Times he has a transcript of the Feb. 1 telephone conversation that he had with an FBI agent in Atlanta who suggested he surrender to the FBI. Hatcher said he wanted to surrender to any official from outside of Robeson County.

Their defense is a team of attorneys from The Christic Institute South of Carrboro, The Center for Constitutional Rights of New York and Kenneth Ransom and Horace Locklear of Lumberton. The institute and the center are non-profit civil rights law firms. Seven motions and a disclosure request were filed Thursday on behalf of the defendants.

William Kunstler, vice president of the Center for Constitutional Rights, met with Hatcher and Jacobs in the Cumberland County Jail Wednesday to discuss their defense.

Hatcher said that he thinks Kunstler is important to his defense because "he has nothing to fear if he bucks" the system.

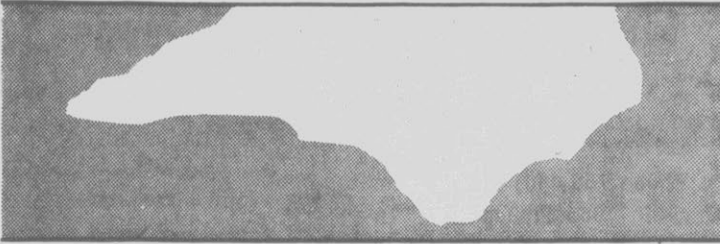

"I'm glad Kunstler has come because it lifted my spirits," Hatcher said Thursday night. "I feel charged and his visit really uplifted the morale of people in Robeson County who are concerned with this situation."

Hatcher said he hopes to get a new bond hearing within the next two weeks.

Another motion to dismiss the indictments contests the court's jurisdiction in the case because of treaties the government may not have followed with Tuscarora Indians. Hatcher and Jacobs say they are Tuscaroras, a faction of the Lumbee Indians. Attorneys are researching the treaties and will submit a detailed memorandum supporting the motion when their research is complete, the motion states.

Other motions ask for information on the composition of the federal grand jury that indicted Hatcher and Jacobs.

IN THE STATE

Conviction

WILMINGTON (AP) — The former Kure Beach postmaster, who was accused of skimming more than $12,000 from the post office she ran for nearly seven years, was found guilty Thursday of falsifying government records and embezzlement.

The jury acquitted Faye Teague on one of four charges contained in a federal indictment, that she failed to account for and return the missing money. But the jury found her guilty on two counts of falsifying her account books and converting the missing money to her personal use.

Ms. Teague, 55, faces up to 30 years in prison and $25,000 in fines. Sentencing is scheduled June 13.

Water Program

GREENBORO (AP) — The North Carolina Department of Human Resources has announced a program to alert the public to the dangers of lead-contaminated drinking water.

The effort, mandated by the federal Safe Drinking Water Act, requires owners of community water supplies to notify water customers of the potential hazards posed by lead contamination.

All 3,000 North Carolina community water suppliers test treated water and fall well below federal ceilings of lead levels greater than 50 parts per million.

Dental Grants

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Six universities have been awarded up to $1 million each in the second phase of a program to help U.S. dental schools to changes in the areas of research, patient care and service activities in the face of a national decline in applicants and student enrollment.

The program is managed by the School of Dentistry at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Created in 1985, the Pew program is designed to help dental schools plan and carry out changes that respond to the drop in demand for dental education and issues including shifting demographics, advances in technology and changing disease patterns while preserving the national resource the schools represent.

Bequest

GREENSBORO (AP) — The University of North Carolina at Greensboro has received a distribution of $375,000 from the estate of Hugh B. Hester of Asheville, a retired brigadier general in the United States Army.

"Hugh Hester served his country nobly as a military officer for 34 years and during two world wars," said UNC-Greensboro Chancellor William Moran. "He was the recipient of the Distinguished Service Medal, the Silver Star and the French Legion of Honor, among other awards."

Hester's wife, Pauline, graduated from UNC-Greensboro in 1921. Hester established the Pauline Green Hester and the Brigadier General Hugh B. Bester Student Loan Fund at the school.

Hester died in 1983 at the age of 88 in Asheville.

Study

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The Bowman Gray School of Medicine is coordinating a national study to determine whether estrogen and another hormone reduce heart disease risk factors in postmenopausal women.

The study also will look at the effect of various combinations of estrogen and the other hormone, progesterin, on bone loss, a key element of osteoporosis.

The study, called Postmenopausal Estrogen-Progestin Inventions, is the first large federally-sponsored clinical trial devoted entirely to women, said Dr. Bradley Wells, professor of biostatistics, who directs the coordinating center.

The eight-center study is being paid for under cooperative agreements with the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute and four other National Health Institutes.

DWI Program

RALEIGH (AP) — A joint law enforcement effort, targeted at persons who drive while impaired, will be launched later this month by the North Carolina Highway Patrol, Alcohol Law Enforcement, officials say.

The crackdown, known as Operation Eagle, will be conducted in at least a half dozen areas around the state and will run through the early summer, according to Joseph Dean, state Secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety.

Alcohol Law Enforcement agents will randomly pick establishments holding ABC permits and check to see if sales are being made to intoxicated patrons. Highway Patrol checking stations will be set up on thoroughfares near these locations to check drivers in the areas of ABC licensed establishments.

Tree Death

KINSTON - A Kinston man was killed Wednesday when he was struck by a falling tree while he was working on a logging crew, authorities said.

David Henry Blake, 36, and another man were reportedly hooking a tree when another tree nearby was cut. The tree fell in the direction of the two men, and Blake was struck by a limb from the falling tree, authorities said. He was thrown against another tree by the impact and was pronounced dead on arrival at Duplin County Hospital.

Betting Backers

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A High Point-based group organized to promote horse and dog racing in North Carolina says it is hopeful that political peer pressure will help gain approval for paramutuel betting in the state.

Randall Terry of the Carolina Sports Association says the Virginia Legislature's approval Thursday of a referendum on paramutuel betting will help his cause.

Terry says horse and dog racing would bring in about $260 million a year in revenues, and would lead to the creation of 6,000 jobs. He said it would also increase the number of horse farms in the state.

Airlines

WILMINGTON (AP) — United Airlines will cease operations in Wilmington April 30 because it is losing money every day at the city's airport, an airline official announced Thursday.

John Philp, special assistant to United Airlines Chairman James Hartigan, would not disclose the losses.

Volcker Cites 'High' Spending

RALEIGH (AP) — Current economic policies cannot sustain continued economic expansion, the former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board says.

"This leaps out — as a nation, we are spending significantly more than we're producing," Paul Volcker said Thursday in the opening session of the Emerging Issues Forum at North Carolina State University. "We are not just spending too much, we're consuming too much."

The United States last year imported $150 billion more in goods than it exported, Volcker said. The country also borrowed too much money from foreign sources, he said.

"We wanted to spend, and they wanted to lend. But in the end, we ran up a sizeable bill," he said.

"The fact is, we're going to have to stop spending as much, and begin saving more," Volcker said. "There isn't any amount of talk that can get around it. Sooner or later, we're going to have to stop living beyond our means."

Volcker said an economic doomsday is not inevitable, but one is probable unless the private and public sectors rein in an economy that depends too much on deficit spending and foreign capital.

U.S. Ready To Impose Sanctions On Panama

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is likely to impose five sanctions against Panama in the next several days designed to cripple the country's tottering economy and force out military leader Manuel Antonio Noriega, administration sources say.

Although no final decisions were reached during a high-level interagency meeting attended by Reagan on Thursday, the officials said they expected approval shortly of a package that included the five sanctions.

The sanction with potentially the greatest impact appears to be a cutoff of Panamanian revenues from a pipeline that carries Alaskan oil to tankers serving East Coast ports.

Gabriel Lewis, a former Panamanian ambassador to the United States who is a leader of the exiled opposition to Noriega, said in an interview Thursday night that the action would cost Panama about $10 million a month in tolls, taxes and other revenues.

The officials, who insisted on anonymity, reaffirmed that it is virtually certain the administration will withhold a $6.5 million payment due to Panama next Tuesday for operations related to the Panama Canal.

Lewis said he was pleased with the signs that the administration apparently plans to step up pressure on Noriega, who is under federal indiction on drug smuggling charges. "The only money coming into the country is drug money," he said.

According to the officials, other sanctions being contemplated are the withdrawal of Panama's right to participate in a tariff preference system for Third World countries and the Caribbean Basin Initiative.

Under the CBI, Panama and about 20 other countries are eligible to sell most products duty-free to U.S. markets.

But this measure would have mostly symbolic impact because the bulk of Panama's exports to the United States are not subject to duties in the first place. Panama exported between $342 million and $388 million worth of products to the United States last year, according to figures provided by U.S. government agencies.

A final sanction would involve increasing surveillance on all Panamanian individuals and goods moving across U.S. borders and stepping up efforts to discourage other countries from doing anything that assists Noriega's hold on Panama.

"I think we're getting pretty close to doing them all," said one source, "but the president didn't say that today. It will be at least a day or so."

A second official agreed: "We had the meeting and the president heard all sides of the issue. But it wasn't finalized."

Meanwhile, the House voted Thursday 367-2 in support of a non-binding resolution demanding Noriega's ouster.

The resolution, which took note of allegations of drug trafficking, murder, money laundering and racketeering against Panama's Defense Forces, was approved shortly before the White House meeting was convened.

It called on Reagan to "consider seriously" additional economic and political sanctions.

Members on both sides of the political spectrum lashed out at Noriega and gave the administration virtually carte blanche to impose additional sanctions. Rep. Mel Levine, D-Calif., said "the government of Panama is in the hands of a thug, a common criminal."

Collider Attracting Foreign Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary John Herrington says foreign money may pay for up to half the $4.4 billion superconducting super collider project, and House committee members want the international commitments before approving U.S. funds.

Japan, Taiwan, South Korea, France, Italy and Canada are interested in investing in the project, Herrington said Thursday in testimony before the House Appropriations Committee's energy and water development subcommittee.

"I fully expect you to see 40 (percent) to 50 percent of this project will be international financing," Herrington said. "I think the money is there and the interest is there. It is an international project."

Herrington's estimate of foreign participation was about double the 25 percent level previously stated by department officials.

The subcommittee's chairman, Rep. Tom Bevill, D-Ala., said foreign money would help win congressional funding for the physics research complex, which would include a 53-mile-round atom smasher.

But he and Herrington differed on who should commit money first, Congress or foreign investors.

"It seems to me this is the only way under our present budget situation that we would even start this project, with the participation of the countries," Bevill said. Herrington replied: "It is not in the interests of the United States government to say to the world, 'We are the leaders in high-energy physics and we are ready to take the next step. ... but we are not willing to do that until we get foreign commitments.' That's not leadership."

Bevill said he was considering how to pay for the project, while Herrington was thinking of the United States being first in physics.

"Unless we can get allocated another billion dollars pretty soon and start it ... we could not possibly initiate the funding," Bevill said. "But if we had assurance 50 percent or 75 percent would be contributed by other countries, it would be a whole new game."

The Reagan administration has proposed spending $363 million for super-collider construction in 1989, but critics in Congress say that would divert money from other important research projects.

Seven states have sites competing for the project, which will produce 3,000 jobs and have an annual operating budget of $279 million.

The states are Arizona, Colorado, Illinois, Michigan, North Carolina, Tennessee and Texas.

Farm Fresh Gets Buyout Offer

By The Associated Press
Citicorp Capital Investors Ltd. has agreed to commit at least $62.5 million to back the purchase of Farm Fresh Inc., Virginia's 118-store grocery giant.

The Norfolk-based Farm Fresh issued a six-paragraph statement Thursday saying Citicorp Capital will back the buyout by a newly created company named FF Holdings Corp.

Farm Fresh said neither Chief Executive Officer Joseph A. Vita Jr. nor Executive Vice President Michael E. Julian was available to answer questions about the offer.

Farm Fresh also did not disclose whether the board of directors received a competing offer.

Through a firm called GF Investments Two Inc., members of Pennsylvania businessman Alex Grass' family bought 950,000 shares of Farm Fresh stock last summer and said they would consider a possible acquisition of the company.

Farm Fresh earlier this week reported a fourth-quarter loss of $3.67 million, or 27 cents a share, compared with a profit of $3.14 million, or 23 cents a share, for the same period in 1986.

Barge Costs High For Stored Grain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The four-month tab for storing Midwest grain on river barges to help make room in country elevators for the new 1986 harvest came to $62 million, or nearly a dollar a bushel, the General Accounting Office says.

Overall, the cost to taxpayers was sharply higher than the storage fees normally paid by the government for grain inventories in elevators and farm bins. The program was announced in August 1986 as one of a number of emergency measures to help relieve pressure on elevators getting ready for another bumper corn harvest.

The GAO, an investigative agency of Congress, said in a recent report to Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., that the Agriculture Department awarded storage contracts to a dozen grain companies. A total of about 64.9 million bushels of grain — 98 percent corn and 2 percent soybeans — was loaded on 1,253 barges along the Illinois, Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio rivers.

All of the barge grain originated from the Corn Belt states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio and Wisconsin, the GAO said. Most had been in country and terminal elevators in those states, but some had been stored by producers on their farms.

Eventually, the department's Kansas City Commodity Office, which handled the program, disposed of most of the barge grain by trading it to the contractors for grain they had stored in inland elevators. The remainder was sold, redeemed by farmers or returned to storage elsewhere.

"We estimate that the additional cost of the special barge storage program, over and above the normal costs for shipping, storing and disposing of the grain, was about $4.8 million, or an additional cost of 69 cents per bushel to store the grain for an average of four months," the GAO said.

Corn market prices nationally averaged $1.73 per bushel when the program was announced and dropped to $1.40 in October 1986, the peak of the new harvest.

Youth Who Killed 'To Know What It Was Like' Gets Life Sentence

By BRIAN MURPHY
Associated Press Writer
DEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — A 15-year-old boy convicted of killing a classmate with a baseball bat "to know what it was like" has been sentenced to life in prison, becoming the state's youngest prison inmate.

Rod Matthews could be paroled in 15 years under the mandatory sentence he received Thursday after being found guilty of second-degree murder in the Nov. 20, 1986, slaying of 14-year-old Shaun Ouillette.

Two former friends of Matthews testified he told them of planning the killing and took them to see Ouillette's body, which police did not find until nearly four weeks later in woods in Canton, a suburb 15 miles south of Boston.

Matthews showed no emotion when the verdict, reached after almost 10 hours of deliberations over two days by the Norfolk County Superior Court jury, was announced. Throughout the trial he had been expressionless, eyes downcast.

The decision satisfied neither the victim's mother, Jeanne Quinn, nor the defendants' parents.

Mrs. Quinn, carrying a portrait of her son and choking back tears, told reporters she had hoped Matthews would be convicted of first-degree murder, which carries a mandatory life sentence without parole.

"He planned this," she said. "Fifteen years. No, I'm sorry, that's wrong. Shaun is not coming home in 15 years, is he? He's not ever coming home."

"It's terrible," Matthews' mother, Janice, said on the courthouse steps hours after the verdict. "A child shouldn't be persecuted and forced to go through something like this."

"God only knows how much worse it's (prison) going to make his condition," she said.

ROD MATTHEWS

Matthews takes Ritalin for hyperactivity, and defense attorney John Philip White argued for acquittal by reason of insanity.

White portrayed Matthews as a mentally unstable child whose pleas for help were ignored by teachers and friends and whose irrational behavior was possibly exacerbated by Ritalin.

"He was overlooked," said Mrs. Matthews. "He was overlooked in the third grade, junior high school. We overlooked him because we didn't think there was a problem."

White, expressing concern for Matthews' safety and the possibility the youth might attempt suicide, said he will try to have the boy moved from prison to a mental health center while considering whether to appeal.

An appeal must be made within 30 days, said Superior Court Judge Roger Donahue.

Matthews is the youngest of more than 6,500 Massachusetts prison inmates, said Correction Department spokeswoman Mary McGeown.

"It just doesn't make any sense because there's no treatment facility there," said Matthews' father, Kenneth.

Prosecutor Peter Casey, a Norfolk County assistant district attorney, called the decision an "appropriate, well-counseled verdict."

The case has been compared to that of Anthony Broussard, 18, sentenced to 25 years to life in 1982, in San Jose, Calif., for killing his girlfriend in 1981. Broussard, who was also tried as an adult, took at least 13 schoolmates to see the body. The movie "The River's Edge" was based on that case.

Matthews' trial, which began March 2, was broadcast on a Canton cable television station. It was highlighted by graphic descriptions of the slaying and testimony by Matthews' former friends, Rob Peterson and Jonathan Cash, who said he told them of his desire to kill in the fall of 1986.

"He said he wanted to know what it was like to kill somebody," Peterson said.

After rejecting two possible victims, Matthews chose Ouillette, an overweight high school freshman relatively new to Canton, because he felt he would not be missed, the youngsters testified.

Ouillette was lured to the woods after school by the promise of fireworks before being hit at least three times in the head with the baseball bat.

Matthews took Peterson to see the body several hours after the slaying, and they hid a knife Matthews planned to use to cut off Ouillette's arms and legs, Peterson said.

Several days later, Peterson and Cash went with Matthews to see the body, then went to a pizzeria.

Police found the body Dec. 15, 1986, after receiving an anonymous letter from Cash.

Matthews told a psychiatric counselor after the slaying that he first decided to kill someone after viewing the videotape "Faces of Death," which shows animal and human deaths.

Dole Says He'll Remain In Race

CHICAGO (AP) — Presidential candidates are foraging through delegate-rich Illinois, with Republican Bob Dole saying he is "no dropout" and three out-of-state Democrats trying to win support away from a pair of favorite sons.

Five days before the Illinois primary, Democratic candidates participated in a televised forum Thursday night, but in contrast to many of their joint appearances, not a cross word was exchanged.

It was "all sweetness and light," said Illinois Sen. Paul Simon after the forum sponsored by WLS-TV and the Roosevelt Center for American Policy Studies.

A Washington Post-ABC News poll published today but conducted Wednesday, the day after the Super Tuesday primaries and six days before Illinois votes, said Vice President George Bush had the support of 58 percent of Republicans.

On the Democratic side, Simon was backed by 38 percent of the likely voters surveyed and Chicago-based Jesse Jackson had support of 33 percent. The figures for Simon and Jackson were well within the 8 percentage point margin of error.

Gary Hart, who dropped out of the Democratic race last May after disclosure of his relationship with model Donna Rice and then re-entered in December, was ready to drop out again.

Hart, who failed to win any delegates in the primaries and caucuses to date, polled no more than 5 percent of the vote in any of the Super Tuesday primaries and lost his eligibility for further federal matching funds.

Rep. Jack Kemp of New York ended his presidential bid on Thursday and said the idea of being the Republican candidate for vice president was "a very flattering and awesome thought."

Kemp declined to endorse any of the surviving candidates — Bush, Dole and Pat Robertson — describing them all as "Reagan conservatives."

Dole scotched rumors that he was about to join Kemp on the campaign sidelines.

WATCHING PRODUCTION — Edward Lewis, left, takes notes under the supervision of Robert C. Hill as products move on a high-speed production line at Burroughs Wellcome Co. in Greenville. Information Lewis gathers ultimately creates a data base useful in troubleshooting probable problems in production. Lewis is from Goldsboro and is a graduate student in the East Carolina University Industrial Graduate Fellowship Program. Hill is the supervisor of technical packing at Burroughs Wellcome. Industrial Students Get Hands-On Jobs

By TONY M. RUMPLE
ECU News Bureau

A program unique to East Carolina University is giving graduate students and advanced seniors in the departments of manufacturing and construction management an edge on their counterparts at other colleges and universities across the nation.

Paying, hands-on work experiences in industrial settings are provided by the Industrial Graduate Fellowship Program, which is described by its coordinator, Dr. William H. McPherson, as "a partnership between industry and East Carolina University."

There are many cooperative education programs for undergraduates where students are paid by their employers to work in a variety of settings as part of their course work.

The Industrial Graduate Fellowship Program at ECU is similar to those programs. But it is for graduate students who have their bachelor's degrees in the area of industrial technology and are in a master's program. As the master's program develops, working in an industrial setting outside the university will not be optional, but a course requirement.

In return for working 20 hours a week, or 280 to 300 hours a semester, the student is paid $2,400. Stipends are paid by the industries to the university which, in turn, pays the students.

Without this kind of financial support we would not have as many graduate students in our program," McPherson acknowledged.

While there are graduate internships, such as teaching, tutoring and research assistant jobs supported entirely by the university, none can be used by graduate students working in industrial settings.

The program began almost two years ago after meetings between McPherson and Dr. Gabriel R. Cipau, vice president of production and engineering at the Burroughs Wellcome Co. in Greenville. After merging the needs of the company and the university, the program was established.

"Our main concern was about the experience the students would be able to get in a manufacturing facility, like Burroughs," says McPherson. "Most of them had never been in a factory system like that, but it turned out to be very helpful."

Since its beginning, 26 fellowship students have worked in programs at Burroughs Wellcome, Black and Decker, Consolidated Diesel, Empire Brush and Robersonville Products.

In addition to financial support, equipment and teaching assistance have been made available. Along with the services of personnel from various companies who, as adjunct professors, teach courses, the school has been given a mainframe computer, an injection molder, two spray robots and a new research and development diesel test engine.

Students are interviewed and chosen for placement by industry representatives. Resumes and academic transcripts are supplied by ECU. Some of the types of work being performed include: packing and material handling assignments, computer programming, routine statistical analysis for quality control and simple manufacturing engineering and design projects.

At this time, the fellowship program is composed mostly of male students, "primarily because our school is male-dominated," says McPherson. "We probably have a 10 percent female enrollment in the manufacturing department."

"There is no question about it," says McPherson. "Industries are very much interested in getting females and minorities. Some industries specifically request them. We have a good representation of blacks and minorities in the program, well within a range of 15-20 percent."

The only factor limiting the growth of the fellowship program is that of faculty, staff and space. For that reason, McPherson says, "Our recruitment is done pretty much internally, but in the future, we will have to do more recruiting from our own, as well as our sister universities."

Center

The center also is providing an agricultural computer workshop in cooperation with the Pitt County Agricultural Assistance Service, and fertilizer dealers are helping with a sprayer calibration workshop, he said.

In organizing the center, PCC officials visited Kirkwood Community College in Iowa, which has an agricultural resource center, and developed some ideas from that visit, May said.

A concept that was popular in Iowa was bed and breakfast lodging on the farm, he said. Interest in that area was mounting there, but "each situation is going to be different."

Farmers in Pitt County have diversified from the traditional tobacco, soybean, corn and peanut crops in several areas, including strawberries, other vegetables, peach trees and Christmas trees. Other areas the center is considering to explore through workshops are crawfish farming and sheep production, May said.

The center is funded through a $30,000 grant from the state Department of Community Colleges. For more information on the center or its services, May can be contacted at PCC, 756-3130.

Adonica Lynette Smith, a freshman at Bennett College in Greensboro, has been on spring tour with the Bennett College Choir.

The concert tour, which ends today, has taken its 40 members to several cities, including Charleston, W.Va., Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati and Chicago.

Miss Smith, the daughter of Linda Smith Langley of Greenville, is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School.

Zoning Plans Opposed

erty or any other type situation mentioned," he said.

Garry McKinny, also a resident of the area, said he recently built a home in the tract and had also questioned how the remaining land would be zoned.

"I was told at the time the lots would be comparable size to mine and that comparable homes would be built on it," he said.

He said he had concerns that the lots adjoining the backside of his property would be zoned for lots half the size of his property.

B.H. Taylor, owner of property east of the Jackson tract, said he disapproves of the proposed commercial zoning on the corner of White Road and SR 1709.

"As a neighbor of this area and a family man with a 2 and a 4 year old, I really don't want commercial in my front yard," he said.

"How much more traffic can that road take without more serious accidents being caused. ... I don't want gas pumps in my front yard, I don't want types of liquor and beverages of this nature being sold right under my children's eyes and the types of books they possibly may sell," he added.

Fred Mattox, attorney for the Jackson estate, argued that neighborhood commercial was a just and logical zoning for the corner lot and that the R-6, multifamily zoning would be an appropriate zoning to back into the mobile home park which exists on the Wilton Evans property.

Mattox also argued there are natural buffers on the property which separate the different zoning districts.

During the hearing council members Bill Hadden and Rufus Huggins expressed concerns that some of the residents of the area had apparently not been notified of the proposed zoning.

After listening to arguments, an initial motion to approve the ETJ extension with the R-15S zoning and a holding pattern zoning for the remainder of the property did not muster the necessary four council votes for passage.

A subsequent motion to send the entire request back to the planning and zoning board for further consideration also died due to lack of support.

Finally, Lorraine Shinn made a motion to continue the item to the council meeting on April 14.

"Let us go back and have the opportunity to look at the minutes, give these people the opportunity to talk with the neighbors and see maybe if they can work something out. That way we save the months and months down the road if this were to be sent back to planning and zoning," she said.

That motion was unanimously approved.

In other matters, the council unanimously approved a request by the Methodist Retirement Homes to close an unopened portion of Third Street. Closed was an approximately 500-foot section stretching east from the proposed Brownlea Drive Extension to Hickory Street.

In addition, the council unanimously approved an amendment to the Budget Ordinance appropriating $11,200 for the purchase of an additional air conditioning unit for the computer room at City Hall.

The council unanimously approved also the appointments of City Clerk Lois Worthington to the Firemen's Relief Fund and William Blount to the Greenville Utilities Commission.

Council also unanimously approved consent agenda items which included establishing a 25 mph speed limit on Quail Ridge Road; establishing a no parking zone on Arlington Boulevard from Merry Lane to Mulberry Lane; amending the City Ordinance by making it illegal for a train to block city streets for longer than 10 minutes; the sale of Disposal Parcel 42-E-5A in the South Evans Redevelopment area for $32,000; approving tax releases and refunds; the placement of new stop signs, and approving Country Club Drive and Ridgeway Street for permanent city maintenance.

Several items on Thursday's agenda were requested to be continued until the April 14 council meeting.

Continued was a request by Greenville properties to rezone two tracts located on the northwest corner of White Road and the Evans Street Extension; a request by Gladys P. Tice to rezone the 9.9 acres which was formerly the drive-in theater west of N.C. 11 and north of Pitt Community College, and a request to extend the ETJ south of White Road, east of SR 1725, west of N.C. 43, and involving approximately 275 acres.

Inez Fridley was absent from Thursday's meeting.

Suspect Listed On FBI Posters

GREENSBORO (AP) — The man accused of kidnapping a Guilford County sheriff's deputy and turning her loose four days later in Chicago is a federal prison escapee who is on the FBI's 10 most-wanted list, authorities say.

Deputy Susan Vincent said Thursday she picked Danny Michael Weeks out of a photograph lineup the day after she was released.

Greensboro police issued second-degree kidnapping and robbery with a dangerous weapon warrants against Weeks Thursday, accusing him of kidnapping Ms. Vincent, 27, of High Point from a Greensboro shopping center parking lot on Feb. 23.

"We're close to him," Detective Doug Schmidt said. "We just seem to be one step behind him."

Weeks, 34, was convicted of murdering an Air Force airman on Christmas Day 1981.

Weeks escaped from the Louisiana State Penitentiary on Aug. 25, 1986.

Due to renovations at the C.M. Eppes Recreation Center the Greenville Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta, Inc. has rescheduled its College Bound Cottillion from March 26, 1988 to April 9, 1988

Japanese Christians Cherish Secrecy Of Ancient Church

OISO, Japan (AP) — They worshipped in village homes at night. They hid the symbols of their foreign faith inside Buddhist altars and images. These were times when their discovery could mean torture or death.

They were Japanese who became Christians after St. Francis Xavier visited Japan in 1549-1551.

Today, Japan's Christians worship freely, but they cherish their secret past.

Some 13,000 of the nation's 1 million or so Christians continue the tradition of secret worship, mostly on remote islands in southern Japan. Most are the elderly who do so out of habit rather than out of fear.

And now artifacts of the secret-Christian era, many collected by a woman who once worshipped secretly herself, soon will be displayed in a museum here in Oiso.

Hundreds of thousands of Japanese embraced Christianity under Jesuit and Roman Catholic leadership in the 16th century, when Western influence was first felt in their isolated archipelago.

The government banned what it regarded as a disruptive foreign religion after Europeans were expelled from Japan in 1639. In periodic persecutions, suspected Christians were forced to recant, or be tortured, crucified or burned at the stake.

But Christians continued to worship privately for more than 200 years, and during that time, Japanese Christianity acquired a unique flavor.

The hundreds of statues and scrolls already collected by the museum at Oiso attest to the ambiguity of religion in Japan, where adherents to various faiths have customarily mixed Christian, Buddhist and Shinto rituals to mark the major turning points in their lives.

As the Christians originally concentrated in Kyushu gradually spread throughout Japan, they preserved symbols of their faith in hidden ways, said Shigeru Tai, the curator of the museum's collection.

"Carpenters built crosses into Buddhist temples," he said. "They worshipped symbols of fish and family crests that were shaped like crosses, and other Japanese didn't guess those were also Christian symbols."

"In one temple, the walls were studded with cross-shaped windows, but the (Buddhist) priests had no idea they were made by Christians."

The secret Christians took advantage of this lack of awareness and of the close similarity of the Christian Madonna and the Buddhist god of mercy. They painted on their breasts tiny gold crucifixes that apparently passed unnoticed.

The back of one artifact, a statue of a Japanese warrior-god brandishing a spear, opens to reveal an ivory and gold crucifix. Other statues have false bottoms, with crosses and icons inside.

The prohibition on Christianity, enforced sporadically, was lifted when Japan reopened its door to the West in 1854.

Designers Spice Fall Fashions With Variety

By BETTIJANE LEVINE
L.A. Times-Washington Post

MILAN, Italy — The leggy look is alive and well on Italian runways. But those who still have not acquired a taste for it will find an amazing number of other options for fall. In fact, if retailers adopt all the styles shown on designer runways these past three days, stores will be crammed with short, long and longer dresses along with pants outfits of every description.

Buyers here for the shows said that they were relieved when it finally became evident that short skirts were still running rampant for next season.

"It would be unfair to women if designers had suddenly shifted course and dropped their hemlines precipitously," said Monty Ventura, fashion director of Bullocks.

"We'll be seeing a little bit of everything, including short skirts," said Basha Cohen, fashion director of Associated Merchandising Corp.

Joan Kaner, fashion director of Macy's, said that she was "happy to see top-of-the-knee hemlines along with everything else."

"It wouldn't be right to direct customers into a trend and then rush them right out of it, but it's really time to stop saying that women should wear all this or all that," she said. "Everything goes these days."

Kaner's own skirt was just above the knee, a length she said she would continue to wear for fall.

"I like top of the knee or quite long," she said, pronouncing anything just below the knee "a little bit dowdy, especially for those with good legs."

There was not a dowdy minute at the Byblos show Tuesday morning. Designers Keith Varty and Alan Cleaver began with a monotone tableau of oyster-color wools: suits with short jackets and wide pants cropped at the ankle. Suits with short skirts and fitted jackets. Suits with ankle-sweeping circle skirts topped with nipped-waistline jackets. Another group teamed black and white tweed jackets with lantern-shaped tapestry print skirts that stopped at mid-thigh, and yet more tweed jackets were shown with wide velvet trousers.

The most applause went to a monotone group of pantsuits in exquisite chalky pastels. These had loose jackets, wide-leg pants and turtlenecks dyed to match the same confectioner's colors. Brilliant red, purple and pink Tyrolean embroidery festooned black jackets shown with black velvet riding pants tucked into boots, and some ankle length skirts were embellished with Turkish embroidery in gold below matching bolero jackets. The audience loved it all.

Gianfranco Ferre cafers to a more sophisticated crowd. His show Monday night offered lots of red, black and white in a variety of sleek dress and pants shapes. A red rib-knit dress flaired from the shoulder to a few inches above the knee. A short black slim suit had double-breasted gold buttons on the skirt as well as the jacket. And there was an abundance of pants, usually belted at the waistline beneath short jackets and white blouses with stiffened collars that projected toward the chin or out in front.

Accessories buffs applauded Ferre's use of a circle of fox fur. Sometimes it was wrapped around the shoulders for a portrait neckline effect; at other times it showed up around the waistline or hips to dress up the simplest slim knit dresses or pants outfits. For a bit of glitter, Ferre attached what looked like gold Slinkys to the edges of cardigan jackets or around dress necklines and sleeves. One evening outfit was composed of a black mink strapless bodice above gray pinstripe pants. The finishing touch was a huge black lace hanky spilling out of the bosom. Also for evening, a bunch of shiny fake grapes was attached to evening jackets also adorned with appliques and embroidery, shown with satin pants.

Karl Lagerfeld's furs for Fendi took the prize for undiluted opulence. Mink, fox, lynx, sable and broadtail were worked into patterns resembling plowed rice paddies, parquet floors, corduroy and crushed velvet, then shaped into a staggering variety of long and short capes and coats. The Fendis have now mastered the art of fur mocking, as well as bonding one kind of fur to another, so that a leopard coat can reverse to mink or sable.

The most dramatic shape was a trapezoid style that slanted from a high, shawl collar neckline straight down to the sleeves, with no shoulder definition at all. Lagerfeld's daytime ready-to-wear for Fendi was a bit ambivalent as to lengths. He showed knit outfits with long, slim skirts beneath tunic tops that could be worn as dresses if the wearer wanted a higher hemline. It was an unusually on-the-fence approach. Some evening dresses, however, were unequivocally short. These were mostly black and featured ruffled tulle.

Dollars And Sense Don't Mix

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the man who was dunned for months by the General Telephone Co. of Holiday, Fla., for a 1-cent bill reminded me of my own experience.

My dear departed wife left me one share of some vague stock that earns 8 cents a quarter — that's 32 cents per year! I have pleaded with the bank that sends me these "8-cent checks" to forget the whole thing, as my CPA, in preparing my tax returns, charges me the same amount to report that one share as all the other earnings — $10 for each listing.

I have subscribed to a soft-water service for 30 years, never missing a payment — and always punctual. Recently, I received a threatening, dunning computer printout in RED to show that I was "seriously in arrears in my payments," and if I didn't send my 6 cents immediately, service would be discontinued and legal action taken.

Dutifully I endorsed one of my quarterly 8-cent checks and sent it to the company requesting that a check for 2 cents be returned to me.

In due course, the check for 2 cents arrived. Any company that uses computers and doesn't have a built-in sense of humor is in trouble. I canceled that purified water service, am now drinking water from my tap, and I never felt better in my life. — JACK DEDERICK, COSTA MESA, CALIF.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the telephone bill of 1 cent, I'd like to bring you up to date. It would seem ridiculous, as you say, if the bill had been sent by a human being. Today these matters are handled by computers. Computers have many fine qualities, but common sense is not one of them.

A friend of ours, on returning from vacation, received a bill for $0.00. When he ignored it, he received a letter threatening to cut off his utilities if the bill was not paid immediately. He sent a check for $0.00. The computer was satisfied. — BERTHA PIERCEY, COOLIDGE, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to be married next summer. My fiancé and I have lived away from our respective homes for several years and have almost everything we need to set up housekeeping. We are now trying to come up with some way to inform our friends that we have already selected a color TV, microwave oven and VCR at a certain store, so if they want to give us a gift, they should go to that store and put their money toward one of those gifts.

I hope I don't sound terrible saying this, but we really don't want anyone to spend their money on some junky little gift that we can't use. We would rather have them put their money toward something important.

How should I word a message of this kind to send along in our wedding invitations? — PLANNING AHEAD

DEAR PLANNING: To enclose with your wedding invitations a suggestion concerning a gift would be very poor taste. The only acceptable way to convey your suggestions would be for a close friend to inform other friends. But don't be disappointed if some people prefer to make their own selections.

DEAR ABBY: I live in Phoenix, and when I travel out of state, I get questions like: "How do you get from place to place?" "Do you go on horseback on dirt roads?" And, "Do you live in an adobe?"

I find such ignorant questions annoying. Phoenix is a very modern city — and one of the fastest growing cities in the United States! I travel by automobile on paved streets and highways and I live in a house!

Why do so many people have the wrong idea about Phoenix? — FED-UP PHOENICIAN

DEAR FED UP: Perhaps Phoenix needs a public relations phace-lift?

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad I read you every day; otherwise I never would have discovered that I could be seeing the wrong doctor. I was. For a long time I had been having a lot of pain in my neck, jaw and face. You mentioned TMJ, and how a dentist was the person to see. I went to my dentist and he sent me to an orthodontist. I am also seeing a chiropractor, and now for the first time since I can remember, I'm sleeping just great. Thanks, Abby. — YOUR FRIEND IN TEXAS

CONFIDENTIAL TO: Ellen, age 44, faithfully married to "John" in Fort Wayne: Please write again and include your name and address. I want to answer your question.

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letters Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage and handling are included).

TREES MAKE OXYGEN
ATLANTA (AP) — About 170,000 acres of healthy trees produce the equivalent of the daily oxygen requirement for residents in a city the size of Chicago, says Georgia-Pacific Corp.
Tree leaves absorb carbon dioxide and release oxygen during the photosynthesis, or food-making process.

BREAKDOWN OF CARTILAGE
ATLANTA (AP) — A new medication has been discovered by researchers that may eventually prevent the damage done by osteoarthritis, according to Arthritis Today.

It says the medication was found by researchers in Miami, Fla. The chief characteristics of osteoarthritis, the most common form of arthritis, is the breakdown of cartilage, the elastic material that covers the ends of bone and acts as a shock absorber. In initial laboratory tests, an experimental substance known as arteparon successfully reduced cartilage breakdown in animals.

Although at least several more years of study is needed, the magazine says the drug offers some hope for eventually reducing the effects of osteoarthritis in humans.

Rainbow Room Brings Back Familiar Figures

By BILL STIEG
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The cigarette girl has returned to the fabled Rainbow Room on the Manhattan skyline like a vision from an old movie of wasp-waisted men in tails and gorgeous dames in sequined gowns.

"Cigars, cigarettes?" she coos to the swells sipping cocktails, a girl with a tray of smokes, a jaunty pillbox hat, puffed sleeves, pumps and fishnet stockings, a neckline down to there and a skirt slit up to here.

This is the 1980s, though, and you may call her a "cigarette woman." The people who run the Rainbow Room atop the art-deco RCA Building use both terms.

The rehabilitation of the famous Rockefeller Center nightspot reportedly cost $25 million, much of it for new plumbing, lighting, kitchens, carpets and custom work. But there was enough left over to hire cigarette girls.

"They seem to fit in beautifully," said Joseph Baum, the restaurateur who masterminded the restoration intent on recapturing the nightclub's glory days of the '30s and '40s. "It's a lighthearted expression of the time."

"They're in their wonderful flouncy dresses and their little pageboy hats — it just makes everyone smile. I think that is just part of the scene," he said.

The four girls — and cigarette girl

Katherine Reddick prefers that term — were chosen from the ranks of pagers and coat-checkers. "It sounded interesting," said Ms. Reddick, 24, of Manhattan.

"I'm here not so much to sell cigarettes, but I'm really adding elegance to the room," she said, though sales are brisk, with occasional $100 nights and plenty of generous tips. "I get lots of comments. People say it brings them back to the '30s and '40s. I'm glad to be able to reminisce with them."

Her costume is a 1930s style created by theatrical costume designer Carrie Robbins. "I saw it and said, 'No problem,'" Ms. Reddick recalled with a smile.

"I wanted it so that it was suggesting rather than suggestive," Baum said. "It's lighthearted, rather than what a lot of people have in mind when they think of a cigarette girl. There's plenty of romance without having to add to it."

And just what do people have in mind? Judging from the movies, perhaps a bit of a tart, a young woman in the wrong kind of place at too late an hour?

"I've run into so many ladies who were cigarette girls in the '40s," said Ms. Reddick. "They were flabbergasted to see me. If I help bring back those memories, that's a great feeling. They say being a cigarette girl in those days was a very, very important thing."

"Of course, they did it without having their parents find out — they were working in bars."

Patrons of the new-old Rainbow

Room welcome the women who sell the cigarettes at $2 a pack with smiles.

"Whenever I thought of a cigarette girl, it was in a 1930s movie, with a big, chic nightclub," said Tom Corisco, 27, of Brooklyn. "That's what it reminds you of."

That's just what Baum had in mind. "A lot of things that were part of that scene disappeared," he said. "Costs went up, places didn't do these sort of things for a long time."

Bringing back cigarette girls, he said, "brings back the sound of Astaire, and lobster Thermidor, and dancing, and the Rainbow."

Keepsake Dolls Dressed Alike

By PAT SARGENT
Austin Daily Herald

NORTH BRANCH, Minn. (AP) — Darlene Studer went to London to visit — not the queen, but the Duchess of York.

Studer, who runs Heirlooms for Brides out of her North Branch home, for the past eight years has been dressing dolls in formal attire designed identical to gowns worn by brides who are to receive the special gifts.

Several celebrities have Studer's dolls among their wedding keepsakes, including Sarah Ferguson, Duchess of York and wife of England's Prince Andrew.

"The doll involved 100 hours of labor with 8,350 pearls and hand-sewn beads and sequins and also included a specially designed ring, tiara, jewelry and bouquet," said Studer.

In June, Studer received a letter from Buckingham Palace: "Her Royal Highness would be delighted to receive the doll you have made."

Studer and her husband, Del, immediately made plans for the trip to London in late September.

"I did not get to meet the duchess," she said, "as they were leaving on state business the next morning and were very busy with wardrobe fittings. My husband and I were invited into the palace and he took a photo after I assembled the doll. The lady-in-waiting told me it would be put in a showcase right there in Buckingham Palace."

Studer has been featured in Modern Bride magazine and in the "Life in America" segment of a recent issue of Star magazine. She also has appeared on local and national television shows.

When Studer read about the forthcoming marriage of Maria Shriver and actor Arnold Schwarzenegger, she decided to make a doll for the bride. With attire accurate in every detail, the doll went to Shriver at the CBS Morning News show, where she was then the anchorwoman.

Shriver called to thank Studer and inquired about ordering a doll for a friend.

"I was kind of hoping the friend was Caroline Kennedy, who was planning to marry Edwin Schlossberg a short time later," Studer said. She was right. Shriver ordered a bridal doll for her cousin Caroline.

Could she design the gown from a sketch? She could, and did.

"I had 48 hours to get it done and in the mail in time for Caroline to receive it on her wedding day," Studer said.

Kennedy's gown featured shamrocks appliqued over the dropped-waist torso, sleeves, train and a headpiece.

"Luckily, I happened to have a yard of lace with four-leaf clovers," Studer said. "I had to cut a leaf off each clover and sew them on. Then I ran out of lace and had to run to the Twin Cities, but the store no longer carried that pattern, so I had to take five-leaf clovers and do more snipping."

The train on the doll gown extended 50 inches and was "a tough job," as was duplicating pearl and diamond drop earrings, plus orchids and stephanotis for the bouquet, Studer said.

Of course, most of her dolls are dressed for non-celebrity brides.

Studer's work started with the marriage of one of her daughters about eight years ago.

"I had made her wedding gown, so I decided to use the fabric that was left to make a replica to dress a doll. A local bank was sponsoring a doll contest, so I entered it and won the grand prize. I did the same thing when my second daughter was married and won the grand prize again," she said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted lower today, extending Thursday's sharp decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, down 48.24 points on Thursday, dropped 3.48 to 2,022.55 by noontime today on Wall Street.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 7 to 6 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 642 up, 760 down and 474 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 115.49 million shares at noontime, against 80.39 million at the same point Thursday.

A big chunk of that activity came in the stock of MFS Intermediate Income Trust, which traded at 10 after a 200 million-share initial offering at that price.

The debut of the closed-end investment company specializing in interest-bearing securities with maturities of 10 years or less marked the largest initial public stock offering ever in the U.S. market.

Stocks drew some support from falling interest rates in the credit markets, where prices of long-term Treasury bonds rose as much as $5 for each $1,000 in face value.

The bond market got a lift from news of an unexpected 0.2 percent decline in the producer price index last month and a relatively modest 0.6 percent rise in retail sales for the same period.

Among actively traded blue chips, General Electric dropped 1/4 to 42 3/4; American Express 3/8 to 26 1/8; International Business Machines 1/8 to 113 3/8, and Dow Chemical 1 3/8 to 85 1/4.

Home Shopping Network, traded on the American Stock Exchange, fell 7/8 to 6 1/8. The company reported lower quarterly earnings.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks stood at 148.92, unchanged from Thursday's close. The Amex market value index was down .28 at 295.72.

Gains Sectional Finals, 63-53

Conley Defeats East Wake

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley coach Walter Claybrook said his basketball team has been winning ugly all season, and Thursday night's game against East Wake was no exception.

The Vikings used a strong first half to upend the Warriors, 63-53, and advance to the 3-A high school sectionals finals. There they will play Burlington Williams, which beat Southwest Edgecombe, 62-53, behind 37 points by Darryl Cheeley, in the first game Thursday night.

"We've won ugly all year," Claybrook said. "But that game, no matter what the score ended up, whether it was one point or ten, still puts us in the championship game.

"We played like we have all year. At times we're our own worst enemy. You get this far and you don't like to say anything negative. You should just be happy you won."

Phil Medlin led the way for Conley. The 6-8 center scored 21 points, hitting on eight of 11 shots, and pulled down 10 rebounds. He also was an intimidating presence on defense against the smaller Warriors, blocking seven of the Warriors' shots.

For East Wake coach Jim Serine, Conley's first-half play was the key to the game.

"The only thing that hurt us was a lack of experience," he said. "They beat us in the first half. We kind of stood around and watched. What hurt us was at the start of the game, we got intimidated in warmups. That's what I was worried about."

After going ahead 14-8 after the first quarter, Conley broke it open in the second quarter, going on a 9-2 run to open the period.

Paul Merritt started things off with a dunk on a fast break after a Warrior turnover for a 16-8 lead.

After another East Wake turnover, Terry Williams scored on a follow shot to make it 18-8.

East Wake countered with two free throws by Gary Richardson, but Medlin hit one of two free throws at the other end for a 19-10 lead.

James Smith hit another free throw for Conley with 5:35 remaining to a 20-10 Viking lead. Medlin then blocked Ron Holden's shot and scored on a follow shot at the other end for a 22-10 bulge.

With 3:10 remaining, Medlin hit the front end of a one-and-one attempt to make it 23-10.

Richardson finally broke the Warriors' cold streak with a jumper with 2:25 to go in the quarter, but Conley was firmly in control by that time.

"The first half had to be the difference in the ballgame," Claybrook said. "They just got too far back to make up the difference."

But the Warriors sure made a run at it.

Serine said it became evident early on that he couldn't use his usual three-guard lineup against the taller Vikings so he took out Jay Poole and used a number of bigger players to try to compensate.

"That hurt us (the height disadvantage). I knew it would," he said. "I went to a taller lineup. That's why we played much better."

East Wake outscored the Vikings, 19-11, in the third quarter, significantly narrowing the gap in the final two minutes of the period.

Williams had given Conley a 39-28 edge with 2:35 left in the quarter by hitting one of two free throw attempts, but Rob Battle countered for the Warriors with a basket inside to make it 39-30.

Conley turned the ball over at the other end and Battle scored inside again, was fouled and hit the free throw with 1:42 left to make it 39-33.

Smith hit a jumper with 1:03 left to make it 41-33, but Battle scored on a tip-in at the buzzer to pull East Wake within six at 41-35.

"In the second half, the difference was just intensity," Serine said. "Our kids were no longer fearful of the situation."

The Warriors continued to rally in the fourth quarter. Conley briefly moved back out to a 12-point lead at 52-40 but it was shortlived.

The Vikings missed two straight one-and-one chances and then turned the ball over two times in a row and the Warriors took advantage. Richardson hit two free throws. Holden hit a free throw and then Richardson hit two jumpers in a row to make it 52-47 with 2:05 remaining.

With 1:56 left, Conley's Bronswell Patrick missed the front end of a one-and-one but Merritt rebounded the miss, scored, drew a foul and hit the free throw to make it 55-47.

But East Wake came right back as Richardson sandwiched two jumpers, the second a 3-pointer, around a missed one-and-one by the Vikings' Jonathan Bonner to pull within three at 55-52 with 1:25 left in the game.

But Conley regrouped from there. Patrick hit two free throws with 1:23 left on the clock.

Billy Quinn missed at the other end and Bonner scored on a follow shot to move the Vikings back out by seven at 59-52, and that was it for the Warriors.

"In the second half, you have to give our kids credit, they played with them," Serine said. "I knew we could play with them. We showed it in the second half."

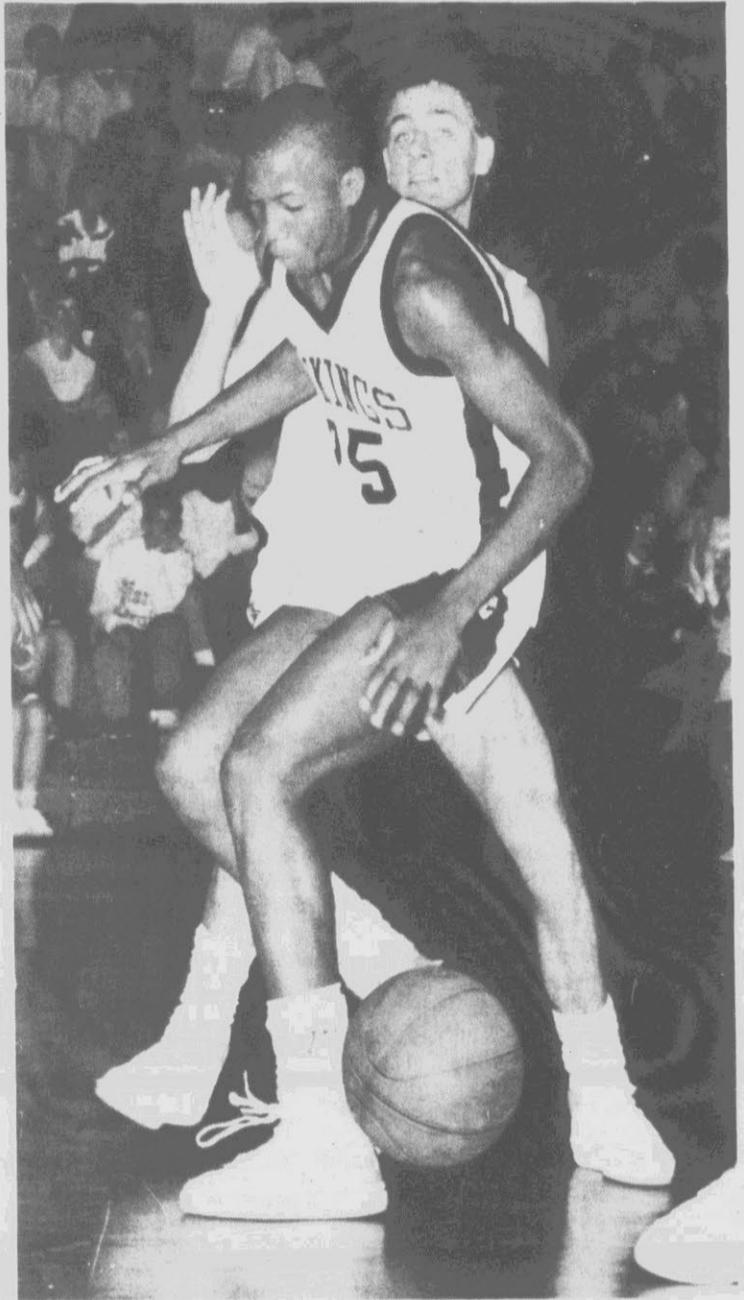

Richardson was the main offensive force for East Wake, scoring 24 points.

Merritt had 11 for Conley while Bonner had 10.

East Wake closes out the year at 10-12 while Conley, 18-7, advances.

Greene Central Ousts Ahoskie

WILLIAMSTON — Greene Central rounded out the domination of the Northeastern Conference by the Eastern Plains Conference, taking a 65-57 overtime win over Ahoskie in the 2-A Sectional Basketball Tournament Thursday night.

The Rams, the second seed from the EPC, eliminated the NEAC's regular season champion in the game, and assured themselves of a berth in Tuesday's regional preliminary regardless of the outcome of Saturday night's championship game with Ayden-Grifton.

The two EPC teams will meet in the title game at 8 p.m. while North Pitt's girls will face Charles B. Aycock at 6 p.m. for the championship. The winner of the two titles will be a host team in Tuesday's preliminary, while the loser will go on the road.

Greene Central fell behind the Cougars early as Ahoskie built up an 18-11 lead in the first quarter. Greene Central began to pull back in the second period, outscoring Ahoskie, 14-11. That trimmed the lead back to 29-25 at intermission.

In the early going of the third period, however, Ahoskie pushed out to a 13-point lead with about four and a half minutes to go. But Reggie Atkinson, with six points and Anthony Jones, with five, helped rally Greene Central to cut the lead back to three, 44-41.

In the final quarter, Greene Central moved ahead, but Phillip Sessoms finally tied it up on a 3-pointer at 54-54. The Rams held the ball for the final shot, but failed to connect, sending the game into overtime.

In that, the Rams had a balanced attack and Atkinson dominated the boards, allowing Greene Central to outscore Ahoskie, 11-3, and claim the victory.

Atkinson finished the game with 21 points while Jones added 18 and Maurice Streeter had 11. Sessoms led Ahoskie with 16 while Darrin Askew had 15 and Darrin Mitchell added 14.

The Rams improve their record to 16-11.

George Mason Tops Lady Bucs

WASHINGTON, D.C. — George Mason pulled away from East Carolina in the final six minutes of the first half and gained an 81-71 victory over the Lady Pirates in the first round of the Colonial Athletic Association's women's basketball tournament Thursday night.

Mason, now 19-8, advances into the second round of the tournament, being played at American University's Bender Arena.

The Lady Patriots opened the game cold, not scoring until 15:38 was left in the period. But East Carolina did not do much better, scoring only two points in the first 4:22 when they could have taken a big lead over the Patriots.

Mason then got moving, took the lead and held it until Irish Hamilton tied it up for the Pirates at 22-22 with 6:40 remaining. But in the next few minutes, GMU outscored the Pirates 10-0 to take a 32-22 lead.

Mason held a 38-32 halftime lead.

In the second half, East Carolina fought back to within 50-45 with 15:27 left, but could come no closer.

"Alma Bethea got into early foul trouble and that hurt us," first-year coach Pat Pierson said. "Overall, we just didn't play as well as we could. We didn't hit any of our open shots and we had trouble shooting all year. That is something we're going to have to change before next year."

"Now, I guess it's just time to hit the recruiting trail hard."

Beverly McLaughlin led George Mason with 24 points while Veronica Holland had 18 and Cindy Baruch had 13. McLaughlin pulled 12 rebounds to lead in that department.

East Carolina was led by Bethea and Chris O'Connor, each with 17 while Gretta O'Neal Savage had 12. Sandra Grace and Bethea led in rebounding with nine each, while Hamilton had eight. For Grace and Hamilton, the totals were career highs.

East Carolina closes out its season at 8-20.

Just Practice

Last Time For Greensboro Site?

GREENSBORO (AP) — Greensboro has been the site of some memorable Atlantic Coast Conference tournament games, but the construction of a new arena in Charlotte may bring that tradition to an end.

As the finishing touches are put on Charlotte's new 23,000-seat coliseum, rumors abound that the 15,000-seat Greensboro Coliseum will be abandoned as one of the three sites which hosts the tournament.

The 1989 ACC tournament will be held in Atlanta, one of the three cities in the league's rotation. But the future of the tournament's location after 1989 will be determined this spring at the annual meeting of athletic directors at Myrtle Beach. Those cities interested in hosting the tournament will make presentations at the meeting.

Also among the rumors is the possibility that Charlotte may not get to host the tournament. One issue that could pose a stumbling block is the skyboxes leased for personal use. They could force the ACC to look for another city, and that could bring Greensboro back into the picture.

ACC Assistant Commissioner Marvin "Skeeter" Francis wouldn't speculate on the tournament's future.

"We can't say that the tournament will never be back in Greensboro," he said. "There are a lot of factors involved. Greensboro has been a good place for us."

Voters in Guilford County have twice refused to support a bond issue that would have provided money for the expansion of the coliseum to about 20,000 seats.

Greensboro first hosted the ACC tournament in 1967, ending the 13-year run at Reynolds Coliseum on the North Carolina State campus. Although Maryland's Cole Field House was larger, league officials settled on Greensboro because of its central location.

In those days, the coliseum seated about 9,000, but it was the choice of the conference because it was about to be expanded to a capacity which would push it past Charlotte's 11,000-seat coliseum.

The first tournament produced the first of Coach Dean Smith's nine ACC titles. Duke, under Coach Vic Bubas, had dominated the league for the five previous seasons, but the Blue Devils were on the wane and Bubas retired two years later.

"There's no arguing the fact that the tournament was much fairer when it was played on a neutral court," Bubas said in an interview with the Winston-Salem Journal. "There was no doubt about it."

Bubas added, "Actually, what we traded was a bunch of State fans for a bunch of Carolina fans."

In 1974 came the game most regarded as the greatest ACC game ever played. N.C. State edged Maryland 103-100 to take the title and start its march toward the national collegiate championship. At that time, only the tournament champion went on to NCAA tournament play.

South Carolina won its only ACC title in 1971 when 6-foot-3 guard Kevin Joyce out-jumped 6-10 center Lee Dedmon to control a jump ball and give the Gamecocks a 52-51 victory over North Carolina.

Among the most bizarre games was a first-round game in 1975 when the Tar Heels defeated Wake Forest 101-100 in overtime.

Driesell To Interview For Hornets' Job

GREENSBORO (AP) — Lefty Driesell, who first expressed interest in the Charlotte Hornets coaching job more than a year ago, will interview for the position this weekend.

Driesell, former coach at Davidson and Maryland, will meet with Hornets vice president Carl Scheer sometime during the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament, which began Friday at the Greensboro Coliseum and continues through Sunday.

Driesell is at the tournament as a commentator for the ACC's Raycom/Jefferson-Pilot television network.

"I'm coming to the tournament to scout players," Scheer said Thursday. "Lefty long ago said he was interested in discussing the job. This will be an opportunity for me to talk to him, and I plan to take advantage of it."

Driesell, who resigned under pressure 16 months ago as Terrapins head coach, is an assistant athletic director at Maryland. He has 6½ years left on his contract.

The Hornets interview will be Driesell's second of the week. He met Tuesday with officials of James Madison in Harrisonburg, Va., to discuss that school's coaching position, which will come open at the end of the season.

"I have a good job and I'm not looking for another one," Driesell said. "But if somebody is interested I'll listen."

"I'm not sure when Carl and I are going to talk. He's supposed to call me when he gets in and we'll see when we can meet."

Driesell has never coached in the pros but said he didn't consider that a factor in the Hornets talks.

"Are you telling me Dean Smith couldn't coach in the pros, or Bob Knight?" Driesell said. "I don't think it's any different, but I guess I'd have to experience it to find out."

Duke's Koubek Ready For ACC Tournament

GREENSBORO (AP) — When Greg Koubek played his first basketball game along what is known as Tobacco Road, he was among some of the nation's best talent competing in the U.S. Olympic Festival.

Now, a freshman at Duke, Koubek is meeting a new challenge — life in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"It's really intense here and I think just for basketball, it's really tough," Koubek said after he and the Blue Devils completed their practice session Thursday.

Koubek's playing time has been plentiful, considering he is still trying to master Coach Mike Krzyzewski's motion offense. He is averaging 4.3 points per game entering today's first round of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament with a season high of 14 in an early-season game against East Carolina.

His trademark has been his 3-point shooting. Although hitting 17 of 43 shots from 3-point range, most of those shots have come from well beyond the 3-point line.

Koubek said he felt his game had reached a point at mid-season where he could be happy with his progress. His feeling — and his game — have changed since then.

"I felt right there like I should have made a couple of steps up," he said. "Instead, I got thrown back a little bit. But I'm confident, I'm still working on my game and hopefully I can help my team out this weekend."

One way Koubek intends to improve is to become a more diverse offensive player, adding an inside game to his long-range shooting.

"They're also trying to work on me driving and stuff like that, not just thinking of myself as a 3-point shooter," he said.

Knights To Play In South Carolina?

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP) — The Charlotte Knights may be playing their home games in South Carolina.

George Shinn, a Charlotte, N.C., businessman, said it is "very possible" the professional-size stadium he intends to build initially for his minor league baseball team could be located on Interstate 77 in York County.

"I have spent five years now in getting pro sports to this area," Shinn said Wednesday in an interview at the Carolinas Counties Coalition meeting at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

"When I was selling my team to the NBA, I sold the region, not just Charlotte," said Shinn, who owns the Charlotte Hornets, a newly franchised National Basketball Association team.

He also owns the Knights, formerly the Charlotte O's, a class AA minor league baseball team.

Shinn is looking for a 100- to 125-acre site to build a stadium for the Knights. He said he hopes to expand the stadium to 65,000 seats for a major league baseball team and possibly a professional football franchise.

"If I wanted to do a minor league stadium, all I would need is about 30 or 40 acres," Shinn said. "I want to have room to expand and put a football field in there, so that one day you could play the Shrine Bowl there or hold an ACC (baseball) tournament," he said.

The stadium could not be located "too far into York County," he said. "It would have to be close to the (state) line in that hub (of Charlotte)," Shinn said. "Rock Hill is a great area, but the closer to the line, the better it would be."

Bulls Top Hobbled Lakers

CHICAGO (AP) — Can the Los Angeles Lakers win without Magic Johnson?

"Probably not," Lakers Coach Pat Riley says. "But, when you've already lost Michael Cooper (sprained left ankle) and Wes Matthews (corneal abrasion of the right eye) is unavailable, the loss of the NBA's most valuable player does not make for a good evening."

With Johnson playing only 10 minutes Thursday night before re-injuring his groin, Michael Jordan led the Chicago Bulls to a 128-107 victory over the Lakers.

Jordan's 38 points, including 17 in the third quarter, enabled the Bulls to beat the defending world champions for the first time since Dec. 2, 1984.

Johnson is the Lakers' leading scorer and is second in the league in assists.

"There's no doubt about it, Magic is the heart and soul of the Lakers, and without him running their fast break and half-court game they are literally doomed," Jordan said.

Jordan's third-quarter effort along with Charles Oakley's 20 points allowed the Bulls to defeat Los Angeles for the first time in Chicago since Jan. 8, 1982. The loss also was the first in five games for the Lakers and only the second in their last 16.

Elsewhere, it was Portland 112, Houston 109, and Golden State 128, New Jersey 112.

Chicago broke open a close game with a 16-6 third quarter run as Jordan scored eight points and Oakley four while the Bulls were hitting all eight shots from the field to open an 81-68 advantage.

"If anyone had said we'd win by 20 points this morning, I'd have laughed in their face," Jordan said.

Johnson, who scored only seven points, explained, "I hurt myself about a week and a half ago. My groin was tight in the beginning, but I thought playing would loosen it up."

"Like Jordan, I came to play, but it wasn't to be. And without Michael Cooper and Wes Matthews, we had to use Milt Wagner, who just doesn't have the experience."

Riley said the schedule also hurt his team.

"The fact we played our fourth game in five nights did us in, and it's obvious we just ran into a good team," Riley said. "We made a run at them, closing the gap to 88-82 in the third quarter, but then we committed a couple of turnovers and before you knew it, they were back in front by double digits."

Bulls Coach Doug Collins also noted the schedule.

"We caught them in a travel day," he said. "But we also knew we had to push the ball up the court to win. And it's a kind of game that's good for Scottie Pippen," a reserve who had 16 points.

"But Oakley set the key for us early with his big buckets and rebounding early, and our offensive rebounding (21-14) prevented them from running their fast break," Collins said.

James Worthy, who led the Lakers team with 21 points, said, "The loss of Johnson for any spread is tough on the whole team, especially when it's for most of the game. He is our floor leader. But the Bulls played well and we knew we would be fatigued."

Byron Scott added 20 points for the Lakers.

Trail Blazers 112, Rockets 109

Clyde Drexler scored 33 points, a career-high for him against Houston, and Kevin Duckworth had 30 points and 13 rebounds to lead Portland to its seventh straight victory, snapping the Trail Blazers' five-game losing streak to Houston.

Drexler scored six straight points in the fourth quarter to open up a 89-78 lead before Houston surged back to tie the game at 105 and 107 on Akeem Oluajun's tip-in at 2:08 and his 10-foot jumper at 1:44.

Drexler's three-point play with 1:35 remaining gave Portland the lead for good. Houston's Sleepy Floyd, who scored 12 of his 16 points in the final period, sank an 18-footer to pull Houston within one point, but he missed his next shot and Terry Porter hit a layup for the Trail Blazers with one second to play.

Jerome Kersey added 19 points and 11 rebounds for Portland, which tied the club record for consecutive road victories at five.

Oluajun paced the Rockets with 28 points and 20 rebounds.

Warriors 128, Nets 112

Chris Mullin scored 26 points and reserve guard Steve Harris had a career-high 24 as Golden State snapped an eight-game losing streak by handing New Jersey only its second loss in six games since Willis Reed took over as coach.

The Nets were led by Tim McCormick's 26 points and Roy Hinson's 21.

With Ben McDonald scoring 11 points, the Warriors led 32-29 after the first quarter and extended the margin to 63-55 at halftime. Golden State's Rod Higgins, who finished with 22 points, sparked a 17-4 run to break a 45-45 tie midway through the second period by connecting on a trio of 3-point baskets.

The Warriors announced that 7-foot-4 center Ralph Sampson underwent successful arthroscopic surgery on his right knee in Charlottesville, Va., and would rejoin the team Saturday in Houston.

Pearson Captures Tripleheader Pole

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Larry Pearson, the two-time defending Busch Grand National champion, captured the pole Thursday for his division's portion of Sunday's Miller High Life Classic NASCAR tripleheader stock car event.

Pearson, of Spartanburg, S.C., guided his Chevrolet around Martinsville Speedway's .526-mile oval at a speed of 91.346 mph to earn his first pole of the 1988 season and the top starting spot for Sunday's 200-lap race.

Ed Berrier of Winston-Salem, N.C., took the outside pole with a speed of 91.179 in a Buick. Elton Sawyer of Chesapeake, Va., was third, followed by L.D. Ottinger of Newport, Tenn., and Dale Jarrett of Hickory, N.C.

Twenty drivers earned starting positions in Thursday's time trials. The remainder of the 30-car starting field will be set Saturday in a pair of 25-lap qualifying races.

Among the drivers who will stake their starting spots on the qualifying race outcome are NASCAR Winston Cup regulars Harry Gant, Morgan Shepherd and Brad Teague, all of whom elected against taking part in Thursday's time trials.

Pearson ranks 14th in this year's Grand National standings. Mike Alexander of Franklin, Tenn., who leads this year's points chase, did not attempt to qualify Thursday after his Buick failed to pass technical inspection because NASCAR officials ruled his roll bars did not meet series standards.

The rest of Sunday's tripleheader includes a 100-lap Late Model Stock race and a 200-lap Modified event.

Results from Thursday's time trials for the 200-lap Busch Grand National portion of Sunday's $172,000 Miller High Life Classic tripleheader NASCAR race, with hometown, type of car and qualifying speed in mph (the remainder of the 30-car starting field will be set Saturday in two 25-lap qualifying races):

Black's Birdies Good For Lead

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Birdies, even eagles, are not all that uncommon on the PGA Tour. But sea gulls?

Ronnie Black scored seven birdies in a wind-blown, rain-dampened 67 that gave him the first round lead in the $700,000 Honda Classic. And Fred Wadsworth scored two eagles in a round of 69.

Brad Faxon managed a 70, despite an encounter with a meddlesome sea gull that prompted an arm-waving run by a marshal and a ruling by a chuckling PGA Tour official.

There were few chuckles from the players, however.

"The conditions were just awful," Faxon said of the wind and rain.

The rains lifted in the afternoon, but the winds became even more severe.

"I think I've played here every year they've had the tournament and I can't remember the wind this strong," said John Mahaffey, who reached the green on a downwind, 521-yard par-5 with an 8-iron second shot. He also hit a 7-iron to a 214-yard par-3.

He was tied at 69 with Wadsworth and Ken Brown of Scotland. Joey Sindelar was second alone at 68.

Faxon and 16 others, including Paul Azinger and Curtis Strange, were tied at 70.

But all were upstaged by the sea gull.

Faxon, Bruce Fleisher and Bruce Lietzke, playing the first hole of the TPC course at Eagle Trace, all hit their drives down the middle of the fairway.

"But when we got down there," Faxon said, "there were only two balls in the fairway. The marshal came running out to tell us about the sea gull."

It seems the gull scooped up Faxon's ball in his beak, flew 50 yards into the rough and deposited the ball into a hazard, about a foot from a lake.

The bird then returned to the fairway and was nudging Fleisher's ball in the same direction when the shouting, arm-waving marshal scared it away.

"We didn't know what to do," Faxon said. "So we called for a ruling. When (PGA Tour official) Mike Shea got there, we told him about it. He started laughing. First time I ever saw an official laughing when he made a ruling."

The players replaced the balls as close as possible to their pre-sea gull positions and played on.

The conditions caused some players to post embarrassing numbers. An example: 80 by former Masters champion Bernhard Langer of West Germany.

Black, on the other hand, had his best round of the season. But he was at a loss to explain why.

"It's hard to figure," said Black, winner of two titles in a seven-season Tour career. "It's tough to explain how you can shoot a round like this in conditions like this."

Gates County Downs Indians

GATESVILLE — Gates County used a 3-point goal to get back into the ball game and take an 82-79 victory over Chocowinity in the semifinals of the I-A Sectional Basketball Tournament Thursday night.

The loss ended Chocowinity's hopes for a berth in the regionals.

The Indians inched ahead in the first period, capturing a 17-15 lead. Gates County, however, rallied in the second quarter, 21-20, and trailed by only 37-36 at the half.

In the third period, Chocowinity pulled away again, 20-16, and built up a 57-52 lead at the horn. But in the final quarter, after the Indians had continued their five-point lead, Gates got a 3-point basket from Eric Knight to pull within a pair. They scored again on their next possession to tie it up.

Chocowinity had a chance to tie, but missed their shot and a tap in the final seconds.

In the overtime, Gates took the lead and outscored Chocowinity 13-10 to capture the win.

Alan Moore led Gates with 25 points while Knight had 23, Steve Davis had 20 and Ben Sanders had 10. Chocowinity was led by Dale Garrett with 22 and Curtis Myers with 21 while Greg Heggie and Vance Bryant each had 12.

Chocowinity finishes its season at 19-6 while Gates advances to the finals Saturday night at Edenton.

Chocowinity will face Gates for the girls' championship at Edenton, also on Saturday. The girls are also assured of a berth in the regional preliminaries on Tuesday.

UNLV, BYU Squeak By For Wins

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Nevada-Las Vegas and Brigham Young were expecting to be challenged in their conference tournaments. They just didn't think it would happen so soon.

The Runnin' Rebels, ranked seventh and top seed in the PCAA, were pushed by Fullerton State before surviving 61-56 in a first-round game. BYU, ranked 17th, had even more trouble — and on its home court, no less, against a last-place team. The Cougars edged Hawaii 76-74.

Two teams earned NCAA bids with conference tournament championships Thursday night. Fairleigh Dickinson beat Monmouth 90-75 for the ECAC Metro crown, while North Texas State took the Southland with an 87-70 victory over Northeast Louisiana.

In the only regular-season contest involving a ranked team, No. 15 Iowa routed Wisconsin 103-70.

Pacific Coast

UNLV had just enough to avoid the upset. Clint Rossium had all of his 10 points in the second half and played an especially significant role after Jarvis Basnight fouled out with 3:54 to go.

Richard Morton had 28 points for the Titans, who never trailed by more than six points.

The victory was the 500th for Nevada-Las Vegas Coach Jerry Tarkanian. But, as he watched the game he began to worry that he would be stuck on 499.

"I wasn't even aware of the 500 until some people told me they were planning to give me a party after the game," Tarkanian said. "Then when I looked up at the scoreboard I thought, 'I'm not sure I'm going to make it.'"

"We were in a position to win the game," Fullerton State Coach George McQuam said. "A lack of depth was our biggest failing. (Richard) Morton had a heck of a game for us but he got very tired in the second half."

Wayne Engelstad had 31 points and a season-high 15 rebounds for Cal-

Irvine, which had lost three straight before surprising Long Beach State 74-69. Andre Purry scored 26 points for the fourth-seeded 49ers, who ended the season 17-11.

Cal-Irvine plays UNLV tonight. Dan Conway scored a career-high 28 points as second-seeded Utah State got past San Jose State 80-72. Reid Newey added 22 points for the Aggies, 19-9.

Brian Shaw and Mike Doyle scored 13 points apiece for Santa Barbara, which led most of the way in a 56-52 victory. But New Mexico State took a 38-35 lead with 11:57 left to play before Doyle hit two consecutive baskets and Shaw hit three in a row, including a 3-pointer to cap a 13-4 run.

Western Athletic

Brigham Young nearly wound up on the sidelines in an embarrassing manner. The Cougars, who managed just a two-point victory at Hawaii this season, barely survived on their home court against the 4-25 Rainbows.

A tip-in by Jeff Chatman with 1:43 remaining was the difference in the game, which ended after four shots by Hawaii failed to drop in the final seconds.

Chatman finished with 21 points and 12 rebounds and Jim Usevitch had 18 points and 13 rebounds for the Cougars, 25-4.

"I'll tell you this about Hawaii," BYU Coach Ladell Andersen said, "To see a team like that keep their heads up all year long, you've got to give them credit."

"I don't think the team is struggling," said Chatman, an All-WAC forward. "In the last few weeks, every team has been playing us better."

Four WAC teams have been ranked this season and entered the tournament hopeful of NCAA bids. BYU and second-seeded Wyoming seem certain to receive invitations. Texas-El Paso and New Mexico were on the edge and had to play each other in the quarterfinals.

It was no contest as UTEP avenged a pair of regular-season losses to

New Mexico with a 74-61 decision. Chris Sandle, playing on a sore ankle, scored 22 points and Tim Hardaway added 20. New Mexico was hampered by the loss of starting forward Antonio Davis, who was hurt in the first half.

While the Miners, 22-8, are the only team to advance to the semifinals of the tournament in each of its five years — UTEP is the only school with two WAC tournament titles — New Mexico must wait and see if its 20-13 record will get it into the big tourney.

Wyoming slipped past San Diego State 83-76 with a strong second half. The Cowboys, 24-5, won their seventh straight game as Reggie Fox scored 19 points and Eric Leckner got 14 of his 16 in the final 20 minutes.

"We'll get better now that we know we're set the next couple of days," Leckner said.

Utah, which never cracked the Top Twenty, also was looking to sneak into the NCAAs with a good week. That week was cut short by Colorado State as Pat Durham scored 27 points in a 78-68 victory.

Colorado State, which lost twice to Utah this season, plays Wyoming in the semifinals. BYU plays UTEP.

ECAC Metro

Fairleigh Dickinson beat New Jersey rival Monmouth as Jamie Latney scored a career-high 39 points, 30 in the first half. He set a conference tourney points mark as FDU, 23-6, won for the 18th time in its last 20 games.

The loss ended a surprisingly strong run for tiny Monmouth, which was playing in its first Division I postseason tournament.

The Knights opened a 10-0 lead and never looked back. Latney hit FDU's first four baskets.

"That probably was the best half of basketball I have ever seen anyone play, and I have been involved in college basketball for 17 years," Knights Coach Tom Green said.

Southland

Playing on its home court, North Texas State struggled for a half, then blew out Northeast Louisiana. Tony Worrell, the league's player of the year, scored 33 points, 20 in the first half, and freshman Ronnie Morgan added 19 as NTSU, 17-12, earned its first NCAA bid in the school's 72-year history.

Spurts of nine and eight points put the game away for the Eagles, who have won 11 straight games.

"This is just what the school, the city of Denton and the community needed," said Coach Jimmy Gales, who was given a three-year contract extension before the game. "At the start of the season I talked about putting a marketable product on the floor that would sell. If this is any indication, I think we're headed in the right direction."

ECAC North Atlantic

Jeff Timberlake and Frederick Irving scored 22 points apiece, leading Boston University to an 82-73 victory over host Hartford. BU, 22-7, faces Niagara in the championship game Saturday.

Juan Neal made two free throws with 17 seconds left to blunt a New Hampshire come back as Niagara beat the Wildcats 62-59.

Big Sky

Montana State, losers twice to state rival Montana this season, got four clutch points each from Scott Peiper and Chris Conway and held off the Grizzlies 60-54. The Bobcats, who are hosting the tournament, take on Idaho tonight.

In the other game Thursday, Idaho State nipped Weber State 58-57 behind 17 points by Rodney Harris, whose two free throws with four seconds remaining clinched the victory. ISU meets top seed Boise State tonight.

Trans-America

At Daytona Beach, Fla., Mercer beat Hardin-Simmons 57-52, Georgia Southern took Georgia State 71-55, Texas-San Antonio downed host Stetson 78-74 and Arkansas-Little Rock routed Centenary 99-71.

Jeff Sanders scored 25 points and grabbed nine rebounds for top-seeded Georgia Southern, which meets Mercer tonight.

Frank Hampton was the key to UTSA's upset win with 22 points and 11 rebounds. The Roadrunners play Arkansas-Little Rock, 24-5, in the other semifinal. The Trojans got 23 points and 10 rebounds from Johnnie Bell and outscored Centenary 56-33 in the second half.

Southeastern

At Baton Rouge, La., Mississippi beat Alabama 64-59 in overtime and Georgia romped over Mississippi State 64-43.

Ole Miss, which next meets sixth-ranked Kentucky, the conference's regular-season champion, fought back from a 52-43 deficit in the final 2:32 of regulation against Alabama. The Rebels never trailed in overtime.

"We were very close to being dead," Rebels Coach Ed Murphy said. "If one play goes against us, we're in a deep hole. We stopped them three times down the floor and hit a couple of 3-pointers."

Willie Anderson had 22 points for Georgia, which faces Auburn tonight.

Big East

At New York, Cliff Robinson scored 24 points and Phil Gamble added 23 as Connecticut beat Providence 75-62. Providence, which went to the Final Four last season, this year went 11-17. The Huskies, who finished last in the nine-team conference, will meet fifth-ranked and top-seeded Pittsburgh tonight.

The other Big East games had Villanova against St. John's, Seton Hall vs. Georgetown and Boston College playing Syracuse.

Pacific-10

At Tucson, Ariz., freshman Ryan Drew scored 25 points, all but two in the first half, and tied his school record with six 3-point shots as California eliminated Southern Cal 75-59. The Golden Bears took on No. 3 Arizona today.

Eldridge Recasner scored 24 points as Washington handed Arizona State its ninth straight loss, 96-82. Washington plays Oregon State.

Midwestern Collegiate Gerald Hayward's 26 points led Loyola, Ill., past Butler 67-59. The Ramblers, who lost twice this season to Butler, play 20th-ranked Xavier, Ohio, tonight at Indianapolis.

Detroit, with a school-record 22 losses against only six victories this season, edged St. Louis 69-66, snapping a 27-game road losing streak. Marvin Owens scored 26 points and Archie Tullos added 21 for the Titans, who play Evansville tonight.

Regular Season

B.J. Armstrong scored a career-high 30 points, 21 in the first half, for Iowa. Armstrong hit five 3-pointers in the first half as Iowa, 22-8, used aggressive rebounding and stingy defense to build a 56-34 halftime advantage.

"We just had too many horses for Wisconsin," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said.

Freshman Jay Edwards made eight of nine 3-point shots and finished with a personal high of 36 points in Indiana's 91-85 Big Ten victory over Minnesota. Only Michigan's Glen Rice, who had 40 points against the Gophers on Jan. 9, has scored more points in a conference game this season.

Edwards also set a conference season high with his eight 3-pointers, breaking the record of six he shared with three others.

Michigan State handed Northwestern its 12th consecutive loss, 55-53.

Former World-Class Runner Dies Of A Heart Attack

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Glenn Cunningham, America's premier middle distance runner in the 1930s, refused to let even the near loss of his legs keep him from setting a world record for the mile.

"As long as you believe you can do things, they're not impossible," Cunningham, who died Thursday of a heart attack at age 78, said in an interview some 10 years ago. "You place limits on yourself mentally, not physically. People say something's never been done, so it can't be done. But that's not so. It's never been done because no one has set about the task of doing it."

Cunningham died at his exotic animal preserve near Menifee, Conway County Coroner Robert Mitchell said. Cunningham was found in his pickup truck on the farm, which he maintained as a retreat for disadvantaged or troubled youngsters.

Cunningham's greatest task was to walk after the severe injuries he received in a 1917 schoolhouse fire that killed his older brother, Floyd. Doctors feared the extensive damage to the 7-year-old Cunningham's legs might require amputation and surely would prevent him from walking.

But Cunningham proved them wrong. Not only did he walk, he ran as fast as any mile of his generation. Throughout his career, Cunningham's perseverance overcame his constant pain.

"I was 179 pounds, too heavy for a runner," he recalled a few years ago. "I also had broken-down arches, bad legs and such badly abscessed teeth — eight of them — that doctors didn't see how I could walk. I never knew when my teeth would cause me great pain. But I just knew I could do it — run and win."

He set a world outdoor record of 4 minutes, 6.7 seconds at Princeton, N.J., in 1938. He had an indoor best of 4:04.4 which wasn't recognized as a record because it was considered a paced race, a practice which became acceptable only after Cunningham had retired.

Cunningham, a native of Elkhart, Kan., who later attended Kansas University — the Glenn Cunningham Mile is a premier event of the Kansas Relays — ran the 1,500 in two Olympics, finishing fourth in the 1932 Games at Los Angeles and winning the silver medal in the 1936 Games at Berlin. New Zealand's John Lovelock, who had edged Cunningham in a mile race at Princeton in 1935 that was dubbed, "The Mile of the Century," had to set a world record of 3:47.8 to beat Cunningham by four yards in the 1,500 at Berlin. Cunningham's time of 3:48.4 was also under the previous record.

Cunningham, who excelled indoors, six times won the prestigious Wanamaker Mile in the Millrose Games at New York. He won it the first time in 1933, the year he was voted the Sullivan Award as the best amateur athlete in the United States.

He won 21 of his 31 races at Madison Square Garden, set six world records at 1,500 meters or one mile and another at 1,000 yards. In those days before the use of "rabbits," milers competed to win and not to set records. A classic example was Cunningham's victory in 1936 in a Garden race dubbed the "typographical error mile." His time of 4:46.8 that was published in the next day's newspapers was thought by readers to be a typographical error but was in fact the result of an especially slow pace.

In 1979, Cunningham was voted best track athlete in the 100-year history of Madison Square Garden, and on Feb. 28 returned to the Millrose Games to run a lap during a commemorative ceremony.

After a tour with the Navy in World War II, Cunningham and his wife, Ruth, bought an 840-acre ranch near Wichita, Kan. Cunningham tended exotic animals and he and his wife cared for any wayward or troubled child sent his way.

"We have worked 18 hours a day, seven days a week, to rehabilitate 9,000 wayward or orphaned youths who passed through our care," Cunningham, who had 12 children of his own, said a few years ago.

"He has quite a few animals, like llamas and Arabian horses," Ruth Cunningham said Thursday. "He did that to keep busy. But his main thrust in life was trying to help children."

"I'd be on a speaking tour," Cunningham recalled in 1963, "and I'd hear about a youngster who was having troubles ... was becoming a juvenile delinquent. I'd say, 'Send him out to the farm and we'll take care of him as long as he wants to stay.'"

"The farm itself was never meant to make money ... but I bought the animals for the kids, because I'm convinced that learning to get along with animals does more for troubled kids than anything else."

Bill Easton, track coach at Kansas from 1948 to 1965, said Cunningham "was always in such good condition. He always kept up with his running."

"I talked with him in the middle of last summer. It comes as a shock, especially from a man who was always in such great shape."

Bob Timmons, the KU coach since Easton left the program, said Cunningham's "achievements are quite remarkable — surviving a fire and the loss of a brother and battling back from all the problems to become such a great runner."

"I know he had great feelings about KU and his days of competition there," Timmons said.

Lauren Bacall Narrates PBS Special On Bogart On 'Great Performances'

By SHEILA BENSON
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Class tells, always has and always will. And the mounting of "Bacall on Bogart" Friday night on PBS' "Great Performances" series is a class act down to its smallest detail.

The first American television biography of Bogart to have his widow's participation, this affectionate account of his life, minus a previous wife or three, is studded with the crucial people of his career, writer-directors John Huston, Richard Brooks, Peter Bogdanovich, screenwriters Julius J. Epstein and Budd Schulberg; Katharine Hepburn, Ingrid Bergman, Van Johnson and Alistair Cooke.

Lauren Bacall, looking splendid, strides authoritatively down between Warner Brothers sound stages to tell us sternly that she will be talking about Bogart the actor and his craft. Do not be crestfallen; the bedrock stuff that made Bogart so singular is here in abundance.

Richard Brooks is one of the best at distilling it: being a tough guy, he says, had little to do with muscle or a general level of irascibility. ... "It has to do with living 24 hours a day and being able to handle it." It was that ability that made Bogart "the mature heroic figure that we remember forever."

This is a careful biography, required viewing for any Bogart lover but also wonderfully satisfying for the care its makers — director David Heeley, who co-produced with Joan Kramer, and writer John L. Miller — have taken with its aesthetics.

The film clips, which for once are allowed to run amply and in context, are sometimes set off by each particular movie's opening credits, so we get a visual sense of each of the periods that Bogart's 75-film career touched. And when "The Maltese Falcon" is discussed, not only do we learn about its two earlier botched adaptations, we see 1931's "Dangerous Female" and 1936's "Satan Was a Lady" and compare for ourselves.

The parade of early roles — all those forgettable, ingratiating juveniles, heavies of every variety from cowboy to Latino, and the lowest ebb of all, 1939's "Return of Dr. X," in which Bogart wears pince-nez with a white streak in his hair — are laced with Ms. Bacall's tart comments. When she moves into their work together, she illustrates Bogart's considerable influence on her work with film-clip examples, fascinating stuff.

"Bacall on Bogart" was shot last year, but it benefits enormously by the presence of John Huston and Ingrid Bergman, sadly gone before the program was made. The Huston footage is from two different interviews.

One for the BBC, in which he sports a horse-blanket plaid jacket and a foot-long cigar, tells the details of "The Maltese Falcon," Huston's adaptation and first directing job. It was precisely because he was a neophyte director that George Raft turned the project down, Huston confides. The second footage, about "The African Queen," was part of a Director's Guild interview from the early '80s, by which time Huston had his white whiskers.

These marvelous moments are further enlivened by co-star Katharine Hepburn's pungent observations on the location and Bogart's general foot-dragging attitude toward everything foreign — and by home-movie footage by Ms. Bacall.

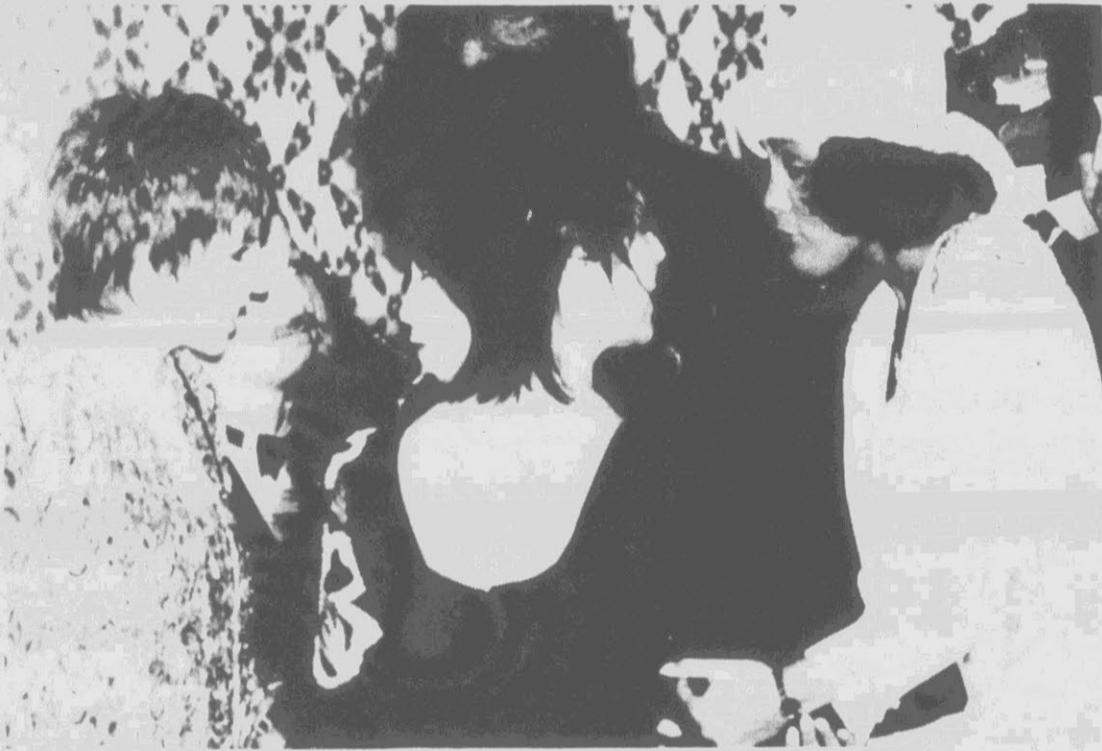

The Bergman interview, about "Casablanca," and the general hysteria that surrounded its ending, comes from a David Frost special, and it too has a fine, dry chaser in the form of comments by the estimable Julius Epstein.

Andy Gibb Dies At 30 In London

LONDON (AP) — Andy Gibb, who followed his brothers, the Bee Gees, to pop stardom but saw his career falter after he became heavily involved with drugs, died Thursday. He was 30.

Gibb had been hospitalized with stomach pains, but a cause of death was not announced. Gibb had a string of hits in the late 1970s and early 1980s and was twice nominated for Grammy awards. His chart-toppers included "I Just Want To Be Your Everything," "Love Is Thicker Than Water," "Shadow Dancing," "Everlasting Love," and "Our Love (Don't Throw It All)." In addition to his singing career, Gibb had a stint as a co-host on TV's "Solid Gold," the syndicated musical variety show, but he was fired in 1982 for missing too many tapings.

'Family Man' Joins ABC Lineup

HOLLYWOOD — ABC will remove "The Thorns" from its prime-time schedule and will replace it with "Family Man," a comedy series that was previously turned down by both NBC and Fox Broadcasting. "The Thorns" will have its last telecast Friday night, the network said Thursday. "Family Man" will begin a limited trial run March 18 in the same Friday night time slot. The low-rated "Thorns" may return this summer, according to an ABC spokesman. "Family Man," a family comedy executive-produced by Earl Pomerantz for Universal Television, was originally developed for NBC. NBC turned the idea down, so the studio took the project to Fox, which liked it enough to produce seven episodes. Then Fox decided not to put them on the air.

"Basically, the show didn't fit into our line-up — it wasn't a question of quality," Fox Broadcasting spokesman Brad Turell said Thursday. ABC spokesman Jim Brochu said that the network's decision to air "Family Man" now is unrelated to the continuing Writers Guild of America strike. "We just decided to try it out in ... our Friday comedy line-up," he said. "Comedy has worked well for us in the past, and yes, 'The Thorns' wasn't doing particularly well. And we liked the show." Pomerantz, the original producer of NBC's top-rated "The Cosby Show," said ABC's decision came as a surprise. "I just returned from watching spring training in Florida," he said Thursday. "They paged me in the airport and told me it was going on the air."

Pomerantz said that "Family Man," a half-hour comedy starring Richard Libertini and Mimi Kennedy as a husband and wife trying to manage his career as a comedy writer and also raise three children, was based on his own family life and was intended, like "Cosby," to be a show about the everyday problems of everyday people. "I really wanted to make a show that people would like at home, rather than a show people would like in the studio," he said. "In the stories that happened, I wanted to use dialogue that people actually use. I think it is a different kind of a show."

George Burns Still Keeps Busy Slate

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Comedian George Burns may be 92, but it's not slowing him down — he's doing stand-up routines at casinos, has just finished a movie and is working on a new book. "There isn't anything I can't do now that I couldn't do when I was 18 — which shows you how pathetic I was at 18," he said during a recent one-hour performance at Caesars Palace on the Strip.

Burns is a regular at the Palace and other Caesars properties in Lake Tahoe, Nev., and Atlantic City, N.J. His new movie, "18 Again," opens April 9. Burns' newest book is about the one true love of his life, Gracie Allen, his stage partner and wife of 38 years until her death in 1964. "I've written six books. That's pretty good for a guy who only read two," he told the audience at Caesars.

His formula for acting? "If the director wants me to cry, I think of my sex life," he said. "If the director wants me to laugh, I think of my sex life." "I'd go out with women my age, but there are no women my age!" Burns smokes 15 to 20 cigars and drinks several martinis daily. What do his doctors think of that? "They're all dead."

Show Watcher
NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Bob Newhart says he watches every episode of his "Newhart" television show, but not the way the average viewer would. "I check to see what jokes we left out and what works and what doesn't," he said in an interview published in the April issue of Good Housekeeping.

The following activities have been prepared by The Daily Reflector's Newspaper In Education Department in celebration of NIE Week March 7-11.
 Family Circus will return to this space on Monday, March 14th.

Select a story in today's newspaper which does not have a picture with it. Read the story and be certain that you understand the story completely. Draw a picture which you feel could best illustrate what you have read. Also write the cutline (words under the picture) for what you have drawn. Be sure to include the 5 W's in your cutline. The 5 W's are Who, What, Why or How, When and Where.

For an entire week look for money-saving coupons located in the newspaper. At the end of the week put them in order from the most savings to the least savings. Also add together the total saving you would have if you used each of the coupons.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY March 12

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): This morning is a good time to discuss your ambitions with a superior. Stay at home with your mate tonight, and get plenty of rest.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You can learn some valuable shortcuts from an expert in your area of endeavor. If you make any criticisms, make them constructive.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Some special thought for your mate could bring you fine results, but if you purchase a gift for this person, make sure it is practical.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): When conversing with a business associate, make sure your facts and figures are correct. Avoid a troublemaker this evening.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): You have been trying to solve problems on a "policy" level, but you'll have to get down to the basics if you're to have any positive results at all.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Let your talents be noticed by your superiors, and you can benefit greatly from them. Be extra cautious while driving today.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Make any repairs to your home which you can handle by yourself. Tonight would be a good time to have some upbeat guests into your home.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Any business dealings you have today can bring you better results than usual, so be energetic and apply yourself seriously.

Opening lead: Jack of ♥
 If there is one characteristic in the defense of a hand that separates the expert from the rank-and-file player, it is the speed with which the non-expert grabs his tricks. This was highlighted by the above hand from the Bermuda Regional, held annually at the end of January at the Southampton Princess.

This hand cropped up in the Open Pairs event. Because of matchpoint considerations in duplicate events, several pairs chose the higher-scoring no trump slam in preference to the minor-suit one. At the table we watched, East took advantage of the vulnerability for a three heart preempt, and South overcalled with three no trump. Since North expected his hand to produce a lot of tricks, he bounced right into the no trump slam.

A diamond lead was more likely to give a trick away than to help his side's cause, so West opted to lead the jack of hearts. The fate of the contract hinged on East's play to the very first trick. Those who feared they would lose the ace of hearts unless they flew up with it at the first trick, lived to regret it. Declarer then had no trouble scoring two spade tricks, two hearts, two diamonds and six clubs.

Observe the difference if East allows the jack of hearts to run to South's queen. Declarer has only 11 tricks, and his only chance for a 12th is the diamond finesse. When it fails, he goes down a trick.

Those players who were not so greedy and settled in the club slam had no problem. Declarer simply led a heart toward dummy. If East ducked, his side got no heart trick and declarer lost only one spade trick; if he rose with the ace, declarer could take two spade discards on the K-Q of hearts, to avoid losing a spade trick.
