Shamir, Shultz Seek Common Grounds On Mideast Peace

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said today he is "always open to new and constructive proposals" to bring peace to the Middle East, but urged the United States to base negotiations on the 1978 Camp David agreements. Shamir, arriving on an overnight flight from Tel Aviv, indicated in his statement at Andrews Air Force Base that he will give the Reagan Administration a qualified reply to the U.S. proposal to hold peace talks by May 1.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz escorted Shamir to his hotel in downtown Washington and talked with him for a half-hour over coffee. Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci is making a similar courtesy call later in the day.

In his arrival statement, Shamir appealed for understanding. "In our search for peace," he said, "the United States has always been helpful, open and indispensable."

He said "violence, terrorism and war are endemic" in the Middle East and the area "is littered with broken agreements."

Shamir said the Camp David agreement, which led to a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel in 1979 but failed to resolve the Palestinian issue, "should serve as our guide" in the current search for a negotiating formula.

He said if past accords were ignored "future agreements will be meaningless." The Camp David agreement called for self-rule for the 1.5 million Palestinian Arabs who live on the Israeli-held West Bank and in Jordan. Jordan and the Palestinians did not participate in the talks, which ended in failure in 1981.

Under that agreement, a tem-

Panama Distributes 'Dignity' Food Bags

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — The Panamanian government began distributing low-cost bags of food to unpaid public employees today as it struggled with a fiscal crisis that has crippled the nation.

The sacks of basic foodstuffs, called "dignity bags," were being sold for between $15 and $16 each. It was believed that officials were not demanding cash, and it was not clear how the workers were paying for the supplies.

The government has said it does not have enough money to meet this week's public payroll of $33 million for its 130,000 public employees.

Horacio Rodriguez, director of the Ministry of Farm and Dairy Products Marketing, said his agency had prepared 12,000 of the bags for distribution this week.

They contained basic staples of the Panamanian diet such as rice, beans, flour, potatoes, fresh vegetables and beef.

The nation's military strongman, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, its new civilian chief executive, Manuel Solis Palma, and other top government officials ended an emergency meeting at 2 a.m. today. There was no immediate comment on what action, if any, they took to overcome U.S. economic sanctions aimed at bringing down the military regime.

In another development, men in civilian clothes fired guns outside a church service in Panama City on

Meese Won't Step Down During Probe

By AL KAMEN
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Edwin Meese III said Sunday he would not step down pending completion of an investigation of his role in a proposed $1 billion Iraqi oil pipeline, saying he would not be "hounded out of office" by political or news media attacks.

Meese, appearing on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," disputed an article in Sunday's editions of The Washington Post that said Meese took part in a briefing of then-Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres in October 1985 about the planned pipeline that would carry oil from Iraq to Jordan. The pipeline never was built.

The article cited memos written by Meese's close friend, E. Bob Wallach. One said Meese joined in a "briefing" of Peres for about 10 minutes during a reception at the Israeli Embassy here. The memo appears to challenge Meese's statements that the encounter was a short chat.

Asked if the article was correct, Meese said, "No, it's not. It's the usual thing you can expect these days from The Washington Post, taking a small fact that's well known and try to blow it up into a new news story."

"Actually I have said many times that at that particular reception I had a brief conversation with Prime Minister Peres. There's nothing new to it. All it does, I guess, is fill up some space for a Sunday edition."

A Wallach memo to Meese that describes payments to Israel and to the Israeli Labor Party if the pipeline were built and insured against possible Israeli attack is part of independent counsel James C. McKay's investigation of Meese's connection to the abandoned project.

It is illegal for U.S. companies to bribe foreign officials. Meese has said he did not recall the memo referring to payments.

Eleven Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee last week sent Meese a letter asking that he step down temporarily until investigations into his connection to the pipeline and other matters are completed.

Meese said he would not do so. "If honest public officials can be hounded out of office by partisan political attacks, by media barrages, then no honest public official is safe."

Meese insisted Sunday that he handled the matter correctly when Wallach told him of the pipeline project. "I referred it to the National Security Council staff, and it was dealt with there entirely."

Meese said Wallach "has never asked me to do anything that was wrong, and in this case a lot of people are taking a very simple situation where I turned something over to the National Security Council staff, and then for political reasons or media-attack reasons, they're trying to make a big deal out of it."

Meese said he was "confident the facts are going to speak for themselves." In response to a question about whether he would resign if indicted, Meese said he did not expect to be indicted.

SPENDING COMPARISON — This pie chart compares the total spent on consultants by the top six government users of consultant services since the beginning of the 1985-1986 fiscal year. The percentages represent: Pitt County Memorial Hospital's $774,004; the Greenville

Utilities Commission's $505,600; the city of Greenville's $90,179; Pitt County's $72,863; Pitt County Schools' $60,199, and the Pitt County Development Commission's $49,000. (Reflector Chart by David Barbour)

Gorbachev Opens Visit To Belgrade

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev today began a five-day official visit to Yugoslavia, a Communist nation suffering from high inflation and unemployment and a $20 billion foreign debt.

The Soviet Communist Party general secretary, accompanied by his wife, Raisa, landed in Belgrade in a special Aeroflot Ilyushin jet that flew directly from Moscow.

Yugoslavia's top party and government leaders were on hand at the airport to greet the Gorbachevs.

Gorbachev is the first Soviet leader to visit Yugoslavia since the May 1980 death of Josip Broz Tito, who pulled his nation out of the Soviet bloc in 1948 to pursue a non-aligned foreign policy and a once-vaunted system of worker self-management in the economy.

That system looks increasingly frail as Yugoslavia battles 170 percent inflation and 15 percent unemployment and struggles to repay its foreign debt.

PCMH Is Top User Of Consultants

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Staff writers Cherie Evans, Carol Tyer, Greg Laudick and Jerry Raynor contributed to research for this article.

More than $1.61 million has been spent by various units of government in Pitt County since mid-1985 on consultants — "experts" who come in to give advice or provide services in fields in which they have special knowledge or training.

Pitt County Memorial Hospital — with an annual budget exceeding $100 million — has been the biggest user of consultants in the county, spending $774,000 for outside expertise, since the beginning of the 1985-86 fiscal year.

Long-range planning has accounted for the largest part of the hospital's cost, according to Dave McRae, PCMH's executive vice president.

In 1985-86, PCMH paid $83,570 to Hamilton and Associates and $69,553 to Planning and Design for a long-range plan for the hospital.

"Much of the long-range planning has to do with meeting state and federal regulations and justifying expansion of services to each of these entities," McRae said. "This is the reason that both firms were considered needed. Hamilton and Associates bring the national perspective, while representatives of Planning and Design know state regulations and statistics that must be worked within."

During the same year another firm was paid $3,000 "to carry out consumer and physician surveys,"

This is the second article in a four-part series exploring the amount of money spent on consulting fees by public entities in Pitt County since 1985.

McRae said, while Arthur Andersen Co. was paid $382,600 "to help the hospital evaluate its need for an in-house computer system and whether having its own would save money and improve efficiency over the then-current experience of being served by the East Carolina University and county computer system."

The result? The hospital bought and installed its own mainframe computer.

But McRae said, "Once the computer was installed, it was quickly learned that it was not going to handle the quantity of information the hospital needed handled."

Did the consultant give PCMH bad advice on choosing a computer? "Absolutely not," according to Gene Paramore, chairman of the trustees' Information Services Committee. "I was intimately involved in every phase of the planning and dealt directly with the consultants over the whole time."

"The advice they gave us was sound. No one could have predicted the growth of the hospital and the way the volume of activity would increase," Paramore said. And "they were very helpful in helping us decide whether to add on software to make the system we had bought last

Man Hanged

A 24-year-old Williamston man, Darryl Ray Hogan of 219 S. Elm St., was discovered hanged by his neck on the back porch of his home Sunday night. Sheriff Willie Rogers said friends discovered Hagan at 11:15 p.m. and contacted the sheriff's office. Rogers said the body has been sent to the medical examiner's office in Greenville to determine the cause of death. "At this time it is an apparent suicide with no indications of homicide, but an investigation is being carried out on the case," Rogers said.

Funds Approved

The N.C. Board of Transportation has approved $10,000 to begin preliminary engineering for widening Evans Street, from 10th Street to Howell Street. Randy Doub of Greenville, a member of the transportation board, said the money for the preliminary engineering is to come from small urban construction funds. Plans call for that 4 mile portion of Evans Street to be widened to 50 feet, at an estimated cost of $600,000. The remainder of the Evans Street widening project, from Howell Street to Greenville Boulevard, is scheduled for contract letting in November, Doub said. Final construction plans for the part that portion of Evans Street, Doub said, should be completed by June 1, with right-of-way acquisition to be completed by September.

Drowning

A Route 2, Walstonburg, man apparently drowned Saturday while fishing on a pond near Speight's Bridge near Walstonburg.

Greene County Sheriff Early Whaley said the body of John Wooten Jr., 33, was found Saturday about 11 p.m. Rescue squads from Walstonburg and Castoria conducted a search after Wooten was reported missing earlier Saturday evening when he did not go home from fishing. Whaley said Wooten apparently fell out of the small boat in which he was fishing alone and was unable to save himself.

Citizen Bee

Panel To Hear Zoning Requests

Four separate rezoning requests totaling approximately 60 acres and three subdivision approval requests will be among the items addressed by the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission at its regular monthly meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Council Chambers at City Hall. The commission will consider a request by Christine McCaskill to rezone 48.7 acres located north of N.C. 33, east of Country Squire Estates and south of the Procter and Gamble property. The land is requested rezoned from RA-20 (residential-agricultural) to R6-MH (mobile home). Robert Smith has requested the rezoning of an 11.27 acre tract east of North Green Street and south of Farmer's Street from RA-20 to I (industrial) in order to bring a salvage yard into zoning compliance. Virginia Nichols has requested the rezoning of 2.07 acres located off the Evans Street Extension and west of the Roy H. Park Broadcasting Co. from RA-20 to O&I (office and institutional). Also to be considered for rezoning is a .27 acre tract located off the northwest intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Alexander Circle. Charlie Speight has requested the tract be rezoned from R-9 (medium density residential) to O&I. The Planning and Zoning Commission will also consider a request by Greenville Properties to annex 128.15 acres of the West Pointe Subdivision, a planned unit development located on Stantonsburg Road approximately two miles from Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The annexation request is for the purpose of obtaining utility services to the previously approved PUD. Subdivisions to be considered for approval include a preliminary plat of Cypress Glen Villas Phase II, located east of the proposed Brownlea Drive and north of Fourth Street. The plat involves 66 duplex units and 550 lineal feet of street on a 20.36-acre tract. The commission will also consider a revised preliminary plat of South Hall consisting of 75 single family lots on 76.9 acres located west of the Evans Street Extension and north of White Road. Also to be considered is the preliminary plat of Treetops Section VI, located on Hidden Branches Close and south of White Road (SR 1708). The plat involves 20 townhouse units on a 2.1-acre tract. Meanwhile, the commission will consider two requests by the Greenville Planning and Development Department. The first request is to amend Section 32-61 of the Zoning Ordinance to allow banks and savings and loan institutions within the CN (neighborhood commercial) zoning district. The second request is to amend Section 32-74.6 of the Zoning Ordinance by reducing the minimum side yard setback requirements for duplex (single family attached) units in Planned Unit Developments from 16 feet to 12 feet.

Forester Say Tax Changes Confusing

Some forest landowners are confused by the sweeping changes made under the 1986 Tax Reform Act, according to James Kea, area extension forester. The most prominent change is the loss of the 60 percent long-term capital gains exclusion for tax years beginning on or after Jan. 1, 1987. The concept of long-term capital gains is retained, however, and many landowners can still benefit by reporting timber income on Schedule D as long-term capital gain, said Kea. The Reforestation Tax Credit and Amortization remains the same, Kea said. Landowners will want to claim a 10 percent investment tax credit against up to $10,000 of reforestation expenses each year. Also, 95 percent of the reforestation expenses can be deducted from income from any source over eight tax years beginning in the year of reforestation, said Kea. Timber management expenses included as part of a trade or business remain fully deductible, said Kea. Most non-industrial woodlot owners are not in the trade of business but are classed as investors. It is important that individuals actively participate in supervising and decision-making relative to timber management, he said. These active investors may continue to claim annual timber management expenses as miscellaneous deductions which under new laws are limited to those amounts which exceed 2 percent of one's adjusted gross income, said Kea. Those individuals who do not actively participate in timber management are termed passive by the IRS. Passive expenses may only be deducted to the extent of passive income from all sources, said Kea. For more information contact Jim Kea in Williamston at P.O. Box 1148, or at 792-1621.

The commission will also consider a request by the city Planning Office to change the street name of Cheshire Drive to Guider Lane, and a request by Garnett B. Roberts to annex .48 acres at 716 Mumford Road. The commission will also discuss the Airport Land Use Plan and a Tar River Neighborhood historic district.

Bush Looks Like Shoo-In, Jackson Gains In Illinois

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Simon, about even with Jesse Jackson in new Illinois polls, said today "I have to win and I will win" in Tuesday's home-state primary. The Republican contest was looking like another George Bush runaway.

One poll out today said Jackson was pulling ahead of Simon in the battle of Illinois favorite sons, while another showed Simon maintaining his advantage. But the percentages separating them were within the polls' potential margins of sampling error.

Both showed Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis in third place, trying to cut into the home state support of his two Democratic rivals and claim some of the state's 187 Democratic delegates.

A poll published today in the Chicago Tribune said 32 percent of likely Democratic voters supported Jackson, 29 percent backed Simon and 20 percent said they would vote for Dukakis. Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri was the choice of 5 percent and Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee had the backing of 4 percent.

The poll, conducted by Peter Hart Research Associates, interviewed 500 likely voters on Friday and Saturday and had a margin of error of 5 percentage points.

An ABC News-Washington Post poll, conducted Saturday and Sunday and published today in the newspaper, gave Simon the lead with 39 percent support to Jackson's 34 percent among very likely Democratic voters. Dukakis had 17 percent with Gore and Gephardt far behind. The potential sampling error was plus or minus 6 percentage points.

Simon, who is counting heavily on a victory on Tuesday, said as he campaigned at a commuter-train stop today that he had to win. "A strong second isn't very strong," he said.

Dukakis, also campaigning in Chicago, said today that the days of brokered conventions "are gone forever." He was making his final plea to Illinois voters to abandon Simon and support his own presidential bid.

Gore greeted workers during a shift change at a factory in Rockford,

Ill., and said, "I think we're going to do better than people expect here."

Barring a major upset, Bush was expected to pick up the lion's share of the 92 GOP delegates at stake on Tuesday and deliver another blow to Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole's fading candidacy. The Tribune poll showed Bush the choice of 62 percent of GOP voters, compared to just 28 percent for Dole.

As it became more apparent that the vice president was locking up his party's presidential nomination, he became the target of more criticism from Republican and Democratic rivals.

"He certainly has a lot of baggage," Jackson said of Bush.

"I'd like George Bush to tell us whether (Panamanian Gen. Manuel) Noriega was on his payroll when he was CIA director," said Dole.

In a speech at Northwestern University Law School, Gore focused on the Iran-Contra affair and said, "We still don't know what George Bush's role was."

Presidential politicking was picking up in two other states.

Gephardt was holding a rally in Flint, Mich., which holds Democratic caucuses on March 26 to choose 138 convention delegates. The Missouri congressman, Jackson and Dukakis all were in the state over the weekend.

Dukakis was joined in Detroit by Mayor Coleman Young who said: "I am not endorsing anybody but I intend to vote for Governor Dukakis." Young was one of the few black elected officials not allied with Jackson.

In North Dakota, Democrats began a two-week process of selecting delegates to a state convention in April at which national convention delegates will be allocated.

Jackson was the big winner Saturday in South Carolina's Democratic caucuses. He received 54 percent of the vote and 23 delegates. Gore got 18 percent of the vote and six delegates, while 15 others will be uncommitted.

Dukakis with 460 and Jackson with 423 are the leaders in the Democratic delegate race, according to The Associated Press tally.

Simon said he was being hurt by the lack of money to buy television time.

"Obviously, not to have paid media hampers me in Illinois," Simon said as he campaigned in the city's Chinatown neighborhood. "But the only way I could have paid media would be to use up the resources and obligate the matching funds that are coming."

Simon insists that no Democrat will have the nomination in hand when the party convention convenes in Atlanta in July and that he will have as good a chance as anyone to come out a winner at a brokered convention.

"I think the notion of a brokered convention would be an absolute disaster," said Dukakis, during a campaign stop in a Hispanic neighborhood in Chicago.

"I can't imagine anything worse — the idea of taking the right of the people to elect their president with their votes and putting it in some back rooms in Atlanta," he said.

Simon fired back that Dukakis was showing "a touch of arrogance."

He said, "Mike has been wrong on other things and he's certainly wrong on that."

Dole was interviewed on the CBS show, "Face the Nation," and said that regardless of the outcome in Illinois he would continue his campaign.

"Sooner or later, the voters in one of these states are going to say, wait a minute, we're about to nominate a candidate who can't win in November," he said.

Tass Reports Quake Hit Soviet Area

MOSCOW (AP) — A moderate earthquake shook the Soviet republic of Kirgizia, the official news agency Tass said. It was the third tremor in Central Asia in less than a month.

No injuries were reported in the quake Sunday, but older buildings near the epicenter in the Kochkork area sustained slight damage, Tass said.

The earthquake registered 5 points on the Soviet scale at its center and 2 points in the republic's capital of Frunze, 200 miles northeast of the area hit 12 days ago and 450 miles northeast of the area jolted 24 days ago.

On the 12-point Soviet scale, a 5-point earthquake is considered capable of shaking buildings, furniture and cracking windows and plaster.

The March 2 quake measured 5.5 near its center in the Namagan region of Uzbekistan, Kirgizia's neighboring republic to the southwest. The Feb. 20 quake was centered 100 miles east of Dushanbe, the capital of Tadjikistan, which borders Kirgizia to the south. Neither of the earlier quakes caused damage or injuries, according to Tass.

Kirgizia has a population of 3.2 million and is bounded to the east by China.

Educator Steps Down

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The University of Minnesota's president has resigned, citing controversy over the $1.5 million renovation of his official residence, Eastcliff, and the $200,000 remodeling of his campus office suite.

"Over the past few weeks, you and I have lived with stories about Eastcliff renovations and repairs," Kenneth Keller, president for three years, told a news conference Sunday night at the 55,000-student Big 10 school.

After repeated assertions recently that he planned to stay in office, Keller, 53, said he now believes he cannot overcome the controversy. He said he was informing the university's Board of Regents he would step aside as soon as they arrange for an interim replacement.

The regents never gave formal approval for the mansion renovation, which was originally supposed to cost $400,000, a recent report by the legislative auditor's office said.

The report said the involvement of Keller and his wife, university attorney Bonita Sindelir, in the renovation led to some of the additional costs.

Correction

Sycamore Chapel Missionary Baptist Church, Route 5, Greenville, will celebrate its 106th anniversary tonight through Friday and on Sunday. The pastor, Henry Flournoy, will speak each day at 7:30 p.m.

Services Sunday will include an 11 a.m. worship service led by the pastor and a 2 p.m. service with the Rev. Walter Charry and his congregation.

An article in Friday's edition of The Daily Reflector incorrectly identified the church as Sycamore Hill Missionary Baptist Church.

In The Area

Commander

Dr. Walter Pories of Greenville has taken command of the 3274th U.S. Army Reserve Hospital at Womack Army Community Hospital at Fort Bragg.

Pories, who is chairman of the department of surgery of East Carolina University School of Medicine, previously was assistant chief of the department of surgery of the Army Reserve hospital.

Reserve hospital personnel provide weekend replacement for nearly all active Army personnel of the 1,000-bed Womack Hospital. They also participate in physical examinations of the approximately 4,000 ROTC cadets who assemble each year at Fort Bragg for training.

Man Shot

Terry D. Roberson, 34, of Route 1, Stokes, was recuperating at Pitt County Memorial Hospital this morning after being shot in the face early Saturday morning with a .12 gauge shotgun.

A Pitt County Sheriff's Department spokesman said this morning that Roberson was apparently sitting in his car at his home on Secondary Road 1523 when the shooting occurred about 2:32 a.m.

The spokesman, who said the shooting followed an argument, said Clifton Cpgdell, 34, of Smith's Trailer Park, Route 6, Greenville, was arrested on charges of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill inflicting serious bodily injury in connection with the shooting.

Veterans Meet

The Vietnam Veterans of American chapter meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Peace Officers Building on Port Terminal Road.

A trip to will be planned. Brownie Futrell of the Washington, N.C., Daily News, who recently returned from Southeast Asia, will give a slide presentation.

The meeting is free and open to the public. For more details, call 756-3628.

Hearing-Impaired President Named

WASHINGTON (AP) — I. King Jordan said today his appointment as the first hearing-impaired president of Gallaudet University, the nation's only liberal arts college for the deaf, is a victory for students and the deaf community across the country.

"What it means to the students, it means to the deaf community at large and that's — it opens up new horizons for deaf people," Jordan said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America."

Jordan, dean of the school's college of arts and sciences, was selected by Gallaudet trustees on Sunday after what began as an isolated campus protest last week turned into an international forum on deaf rights.

Students had sought a deaf leader to serve as the school's eighth president, but last week the board of trustees selected Elisabeth Ann Zinser, a hearing woman who did not know sign language.

A week of protests shut down the campus as students called for the appointment of a deaf president and the resignation of board of trustees Chairwoman Jane Bassett Spilman, who had come under fire for her handling of the crisis. Sunday night, seven days after their protest began, the students were victorious on both counts.

Officials announced the appointment of Jordan, 44, to replace Zinser, who resigned Friday, and the resignation of Spilman, who also hears normally and had chaired the board for six years.

She will be replaced by Philip W. Bravin, one of four deaf members of the board.

"I took this step willingly," Spilman said. "In the minds of some, I've become an obstacle to the future of the university. I am removing that obstacle."

PREMATURE PRIMARY TEETH

"Baby", or primary, teeth usually begin to erupt in the mouth at about six months of age. This schedule of eruption allows the baby to nurse from the mother's breast for the first six months. When baby teeth arrive, breast-feeding may become painful to the mother because the infant tends to bite the nipples.

Some babies are born with a tooth (or teeth) already present in the mouth. Such teeth are usually EXTRA primary teeth. If so, they should be removed by the dentist. In some infants, the problem is that the NORMAL baby teeth erupt prematurely. These teeth should NOT be removed. If breast-feeding becomes too difficult, the infant can be bottle-fed.

In either case, the presence of teeth at birth or soon thereafter should be called to the attention of a dentist. He can evaluate the situation and make a recommendation. Extra baby teeth may cause difficulty not only with breast-feeding, but may interfere with the natural eruption of the normal baby teeth.

Call our office if your child needs an evaluation. We will be glad to give you our recommendations.

Financing Method Determines Success

The $51 million "blueprint for the future" the Pitt County Board of Education is considering is an ambitious but realistic look at the physical needs of a growing school system.

But its success or failure will be determined by the method of financing the building requirements identified by the plan.

The board will face two choices if it opts to implement the proposed 10-year capital outlay plan. Raising $51 million for school construction can be accomplished by either a "pay as you go" strategy or by a bond referendum approved by voters. Both methods have drawbacks and advantages and the board should be aware of these factors as they make decisions.

A "pay as you go" approach keeps the county out of debt but usually mandates a tax increase to finance projects. "Pay as you go" plans seldom keep pace with inflation. By the time money is available for a specific project, the cost of the project has risen significantly. In addition, by the time funding accumulates to address a specific need, the need often has increased beyond original estimates.

In contrast, issuing bonds to pay for school construction allows a county to fund projects immediately at current prices. In addition, needs would be addressed quickly, eliminating the "catch-up" approach most school systems have found so ineffective. Currently, with interest rates low, bonds would be an economical, cost-efficient means of raising money without burdening taxpayers.

Since 1988 is both tax revaluation and election year, reducing taxes while addressing school needs might be a politically attractive alternative to the county commissioners. Issuing bonds could provide them the opportunity to accomplish this goal. With this in mind, a referendum might be a feasible means of funding the school's "blueprint for the future."

The capital needs study pinpoints a significant issue facing Pitt County's newly consolidated and rapidly growing school system. That issue is funding — providing for the physical needs of an expanding student population. The study correctly projects that a new elementary, junior high and high school will be necessary within a decade. The evidence backing up this statement convinces that plans need to be made now to address future problems.

Pitt is fortunate to have a growing student base. As many North Carolina school systems face decisions about closing schools, Pitt struggles with the question of building new ones. To keep quality education a priority, steps must be taken now to ensure the county can keep up with the growth of its school system.

Those steps, however, have a price tag, and meeting that cost is the key to the long-term capital outlay plan's effectiveness.

U.S. Can Still Break Mideast Impasse

Everything is wrong with the Arab-Israeli peace process begun by Secretary of State George P. Shultz. No one has accepted his plan, it is based on "old ideas," it is mechanical and cumbersome, and the Reagan administration has only a little over 300 days to go. Yet Shultz can succeed.

That judgment is not based on the secretary's recent visit to the Middle East. In a mini-shuttle, Shultz paid a succession of visits to Jerusalem, Cairo, Amman and Damascus. No one said no to his ideas, but no one in authority said yes, either. The next round will begin when Shultz gets answers to letters that he left behind with regional leaders.

Many experts argue that Shultz's effort is doomed because of the conditions that he has imposed. For Palestinians to take part, they must accept U.N. Security Council Resolutions 242 and 338, which imply Israel's right to exist. That would mean a major leap for anyone associated with the Palestine Liberation Organization, which still has a hammerlock on Palestinian politics. For its part, Israel must accept that Resolution 242 enshrines the principle of trading land for peace — that is, Israel must agree in advance to cede most of the West Bank and Gaza. The Labor Party led by Foreign Minister Shimon Peres accepts the idea; it is anathema to the Likud Party and Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

Shultz also insists on an absurd timetable. The secretary wants talks on the interim arrangements for the occupied territories to begin about May 1 and to last for no more than six months. Talks on the final status of the territories should begin no later than the end of the seventh month and be concluded within a year from then. The period from the first talking to the implementing of the final status should be no more than three years and nine months, tops. This intricate timing has more to do with the administration's expiring lease than with reality; peace is usually built at a pyramid-like pace.

The promise in the U.S. effort lies not in its substance but in the fact of its happening. Indeed, any successful outcome is sure to look radically different from Shultz's opening bid and to take much longer. But so what? The object is agreement, and it matters not how circuitous the route must be to get there.

In the words of Bob Dylan, "The times they are a-changing." Most important have been the riots that erupted three months ago in Gaza and the West Bank. They were a decisive break with past Palestinian behavior, and became regular fare on the U.S. nightly news. Now, on all sides, old assumptions are being revisited. As the 1973 Yom Kippur War shook things up enough to start the march to the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty, what is happening today could recast politics throughout the region.

Every successful Arab-Israeli negotiation has had two elements. One has been the desire on the part of Israel and at least one Arab partner to accomplish something. Jordan's King Hussein and Israel's Peres fit this bill. Yet the king needs the blessing of an international conference to take a step toward Israel, plus some Palestinians willing to take part. But such a conference invites Soviet meddling, and Palestinians acceptable to Israel may not be available.

Another complicating factor arose this week in a PLO guerrilla attack on an Israeli bus in which three civilians were killed. That attack eliminated a good deal of the sympathy that has been engendered by television images of Palestinians being beaten and killed, and it is bound to harden opinion in Israel. This isn't the first time that PLO terrorism has been used to destroy a peace process.

Peres, meanwhile, has to contend with Prime Minister Shamir, who will go to Washington next week to argue against the principle of "land for peace." Yet the effect of the Palestinian riots can be seen in an unprecedented event: a letter to Shamir from 30 U.S. senators, including strong supporters of Israel, urging him to change his stance.

The impasse can be broken by the second element of successful negotiations: the active and sustained involvement of the U.S. government, beginning with the secretary of state and including the president. This will be the test — whether Shultz decides to devote to Arab-Israeli diplomacy at least half the time left to him in the Reagan administration.

History argues that such American involvement, with pit bull tenacity, can gradually reshape Arab-Israeli politics in ways that, while they cannot be foreseen, can be a success. If so, Shultz has an excellent chance of handing to his successor at least a new framework for sorting out once-intractable issues.

But it is equally true that, once begun, the effort cannot be abandoned. A host of characters wait in the wings for American failure — including radicals in the PLO, the Syrians and the Soviets. America and its regional friends would take more hard knocks. Thus, when next week's visit from the Israeli premier is over, Ronald Reagan and George Shultz must decide between "go" and "no go." Once they start, there is a high price for quitting.

Shultz Plan Lacks Leverage

JERUSALEM — For all the detailed press and television coverage of the uprising in the occupied territories, it has admittedly always been difficult for Western observers to fully appreciate the ferocity of the emotions and fears that inform the sides to the 40-year-old Arab-Israeli conflict. A longstanding joke has such a typically puzzled American asking: "I don't understand why those crazy Arabs and Jews can't just turn around, shake hands, and become friends, like good Christians should."

The truth is that deep-seated national conflicts are never settled in such reasonable fashion. In the present case there is quite a bit of confusion and intentional obfuscation of what the conflict is all about. The issue of the territories and of the understandable desire of the Palestinians to get the Israelis off their backs has come to occupy center stage. But in their occasional moments of candor, most of the parties would admit that while an Israeli withdrawal from most — or even from all — of the occupied territories might bring about an abatement in the popular Palestinian uprising, it will not bring on a peaceful solution to the wider Arab-Israel conflict.

A democratic and a profoundly self-critical and argumentative Jewish Israel has always been split on the issue of the territories. The public debate during these past 20 years has been dominated, nearly exclusively, by the extremes: one side believing that the territories should eventually be annexed to Israel for religious, national or security reasons, without addressing itself to the problem of what to do with a large and growing

Palestinian population that will continue to be hostile to Israel; the other extreme agonizing over the "intrinsic evil" of an Israel in the role of occupier, without giving an answer to the very profound threat to Israel's security entailed in territorial concessions in the absence of any persuasive signs of an Arab change of heart on making peace with Israel.

The near monopolization of the public debate by those extremes, which together account for perhaps 20 percent to 25 percent of the Israeli public, has served to divert attention from the fact that the large majority of Israelis, who are very alive to the dilemmas entailed in the occupation of the territories and their Palestinian population, have always subscribed to various versions of the "territories for peace" formula that is at the heart of the peace plan being pushed by U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

The problem has been that the Arabs have always rejected that formula and continue, in effect, to reject it today. This was true during the first 10 years of the occupation, when territories-for-peace was the official policy of Israel's Labor governments. In the years of the Likud government, the ideological commitment to the proposition of the settlement and eventual Israeli annexation of all the territories was never put to the test of real politics as a result of that adamant Arab rejection of peace.

The only exception to that latter assertion was the response to the late President Anwar Sadat's territories-for-peace initiative in 1977. At that time, Prime Minister Menachem Begin agreed to return all of Sinai in exchange for peace with Egypt, and the overwhelming majority of the Israeli public ecstatically welcomed that trade-off with all its risks.

The tragedy of the present situation is that the Palestinians in the occupied territories, who together with the Israelis have been the major victims of the ongoing conflict, are in no frame of mind or position to give Israel the security guarantees that alone could persuade a majority of Israelis to run the risk of withdrawing from most of the territories.

To be sure, there are Palestinians in the territories who would acquiesce in such a pragmatic trade-off. The trouble is that they are not calling the shots and have, in effect, abdicated responsibility to their firebrand teen-age and older children, who have been manning and orchestrating the current violent uprising. These Palestinian youngsters, who have undoubtedly succeeded in discomfiting Israel, are even more extreme than the mainline Palestine Liberation Organization leadership in their antipathy to Israel. And the PLO itself has always been a curious combination of a legitimate movement of national liberation and a very illegitimate movement dedicated to the proposition of achieving such national self-determination only as a result of the annihilation of Israel.

Around Again

To the editor:

The Greenville-Pitt County area is one step closer to indeed "having it all," as the familiar bumper stickers proudly boast. The new manned recycling collection center located at the Bells Fork container site is an invaluable public service which is not available elsewhere in eastern North Carolina. Recycling solid wastes is a proven cost-effective practice which saves money, energy and natural resources.

The League of Women Voters, which supports policies that reduce the generation of waste and promote the recycling of solid wastes, commends county engineer Phil Dickerson and all individuals involved in the Bells Fork pilot program for recognizing that the time to recycle is now. The beauty and natural resources that we enjoy in North Carolina, and particularly in our own coastal region, are far too valuable to wait until our legislators mandate the recycling of household wastes.

If you do not currently separate glass, aluminum, cardboard, newspaper and assorted paper (magazines, etc.) from the trash that you generate, I urge you to give it a try. The percentage of our trash which is reusable is truly astounding. If you think that trip to the container site is not worth your time, think of it as an investment in your children or grandchildren, for they will soon inherit our dumps, our taxes, and our environment. Recycle, because once is not enough!

To the editor:

John Bare, in his article in The Daily Reflector of March 7, 1988, described the electronic tax return. He quoted Deborah Diamond, IRS public affairs director in Greensboro, "This (electronic return) is a wave of the future..." The advantage, she relates, is a savings to the IRS (the taxpayer) of 51 cents per return compared to the paper process cost of 34 cents.

The article also mentions that the cost H&R Block charges its customers (the taxpayer) for the electronic return is $20 for returns they have prepared and $30 for ones they have not.

This means that the IRS plan costs me (the taxpayer) $20 (or $30) to save me (the taxpayer) 51 cents — a truly inspired governmental solution. I fear the day the Post Office gets into the electronic mail business to save me postage.

Strength For Today

Success is usually conceived in terms of wealth, power and recognition. But to a small minority of people it means service.

This is the highest form of success, and often it can be attached only at the sacrifice of power and recognition. The missionary, the social worker, the ungeralded, unobtrusive volunteer for community service — these are some, but certainly not all, of the people who devote their lives to others rather than to themselves and those nearest them.

And often these are the people who achieve the one thing which so often eludes the seekers after personal success — real happiness.

The successful man in the eyes of the world often dies with a tragic sense of failure which the person who has devoted his life to service never feels.

Gorbachev Faces Two Crucial Leadership Tests At Home

Analysis

MOSCOW — As Mikhail Gorbachev enters his fourth year in power, he is widely recognized as having already surpassed his Kremlin predecessors as a flexible arms negotiator, dynamic leader and successful image maker for the Soviet Union.

Gorbachev's spring plans to hold a summit meeting with President Reagan in Moscow and to withdraw Soviet troops from Afghanistan are — if they go well — expected to raise further the prestige of his country and to boost his own reputation, particularly in the West, where he is known for emphasizing pragmatism over ideology.

But at home, he faces two crucial tests to his leadership.

One of them was unexpected: the sudden outbreak of nationalist grievances in Armenia and Azerbaijan involving protests by hundreds of thousands of people. The potential explosiveness of these developments, in a country riddled with national and ethnic differences, threatens to undermine Gorbachev's leadership and his policy of greater openness as more conservative forces blame him and that policy for raising expectations that may not be fulfilled.

The other test centers on the next phase of his domestic economic and political reform program, in particular his accelerating campaign to reverse a prolonged slump in the Soviet economy. Here, in contrast to his foreign policy initiatives and general image-making, Gorbachev's prospects for success look bleak, yet in the long run this may be the most important test.

After winning the support of Soviet intellectuals by loosening the state's control over the arts, Gorbachev is now wooing the more skeptical constituency of Soviet workers.

Using the momentum he has gained through perestroika or restructuring of unwieldy Soviet ministries and inefficient state enterprises, Gorbachev is now seeking to extend reform to the most powerful and intractable institution in the whole country: the Communist Party.

Despite the ouster of ally Boris Yeltsin from the Kremlin leadership and other political setbacks, Gorbachev has apparently lost none of the drive and verve that attracted worldwide attention soon after he took office on March 11, 1985. Last week, two days after celebrating his 57th birthday, Gorbachev went out stumping in a Moscow factory for his program to bolster the production and quality of Soviet goods.

And yet, almost three months after Gorbachev's reforms were introduced in the majority of plants across the Soviet Union, his program seems mired in red tape and confusion. In particular, the key reform — a plan to transfer industries from dependence on Moscow's central ministries to a system of self-financing — is facing so many difficulties that Soviet economists predict it will not yield concrete results until the early 1990s.

"While the policy of glasnost or openness has probably reached the stage of irreversibility," an aide to Gorbachev said in a recent interview here, "the economic reforms have not."

The first stage of Gorbachev's drive ended last summer, when the Soviet leadership passed a package of 11 economic reforms, following a hard-fought lobbying campaign by the Soviet leader. The reforms, centering on the plan to introduce self-financing in 60 percent of the country's enterprises, became effective Jan. 1.

Recently, in apparent response to the discouraging start of this second stage of his reform bid, Gorbachev visited a Moscow ball-bearing factory that is running into trouble with the new program. "If the bureaucracy once again stops the beginning of the reorganization," he told workers there, "it will be disastrous for the country."

When Gorbachev asked how the effort to achieve self-financing was progressing, the factory manager appealed to the Soviet leader to further loosen the state's control. "A state order makes up 99.7 percent of what we are able to produce now," V. Nosov told the Soviet leader. "And the most unprofitable products are put into a state order. As you see, we don't have much room to maneuver."

Gorbachev has already responded to the difficulties by reshuffling the senior economic planners in Moscow, who are in charge of enforcing the new reforms. Last month Nikolai Talyzin, who headed the State Planning Commission or Gosplan, was ousted and replaced by a senior official with long experience in planning for the most successful Soviet industry: defense production.

Perhaps more important, Gorbachev has launched a bid to win the hearts of Soviet workers, whose commitment to the reforms is regarded as crucial to their success.

Long discouraged by the lack of incentives for them to work harder and by the shabby quality of goods available in stores, Soviet workers have also been the loudest to complain about Gorbachev's three-year-long crackdown against vodka drinking, which has made vodka costly and difficult to obtain.

Although he has taken no concrete steps to alleviate workers' concerns, Gorbachev has at least begun to address them directly. "You buy a television and it breaks down after working days or hours," he told a crowd in the city of Murmansk a few weeks ago. "We earn money," he told Moscow workers last week, "but in the stores there is nothing."

Despite Gorbachev's special appeal for their support, grumbling about the antialcohol campaign and some of his other reforms continues to surface in the Soviet press. After bread prices were raised 80 percent as an experiment in Stavropol, the Soviet leader's home town, a local resident griped in a letter to the official weekly Ogonyok.

As critical as Gorbachev's reform of the domestic economy is his push to bring about changes in the leadership and structure of the ruling Communist Party.

Gorbachev last month raised a proposal that would, if approved, compel the central party organs to relinquish their absolute control for the first time in postwar Soviet history. In a speech to the party's powerful Central Committee, Gorbachev advocated "handing over a part of the powers of central bodies to the grass-roots level."

Gorbachev also used the Central Committee address to float some other proposals for reforming the party, including granting increased power to local soviets, or town councils. The soviets, originally conceived as powerful local authorities, have become largely figurehead organizations.

The key party reform proposal, now the subject of an intensive behind-the-scenes debate between two camps of party leaders, is to use the special party conference scheduled to begin June 28 to elect members of the Central Committee.

Gorbachev and his backers are said to favor the elections as a way to consolidate support for some of his more controversial proposals in the 300-member policy-making body.

Some party leaders oppose the proposed special elections out of fear that they would lose seats on the Central Committee. Party rules do not allow Central Committee elections to take place at the conference, they argue.

State Campaigns Take Over Again

RALEIGH (AP) — Super Tuesday came and went none too soon for Bill Boyd.

The state representative and Asheboro businessman has about seven weeks left to mount a winning campaign for lieutenant governor — a formidable task when a poll recently indicated 85 percent of his fellow Republicans don't know who he is.

If it's any consolation, however, none of his opponents in either party fared much better in The Charlotte Observer survey taken in late February.

What this means is few people outside the political junkie circuit have begun to think about state races — with the possible exception of the gubernatorial contest.

And many of those who normally would have become involved in the campaigns were caught up in presidential politics. With North Carolina and 13 other Southern and border states holding primaries or caucuses the same day, presidential fever was contagious and the other races slowed to a crawl.

"I'm glad the presidential business is over," Boyd said two days after Super Tuesday. He spoke at a news conference at which he announced his campaign platform and sought to establish himself as the most conservative of the GOP hopefuls for lieutenant governor.

Other candidates were emerging from the storm cellars last week as the Super Tuesday whirlwind died down.

Wendell Sawyer, another Republican candidate for secretary of state, accused state GOP chairman Jack Hawke of showing favoritism to Jim Gardner in the race and demanded Hawke's resignation. Hawke declined.

Dan Bell, candidate for secretary of state, called a news conference to challenge Democratic rival Rufus Edmisten to resign not to ruin any of the department's employees if elected.

The gubernatorial contest heated up again as the Democratic Party attacked Republican Gov. Jim Martin for alleged abuses of the state personnel system.

And over the weekend, Martin took to the airwaves with the first television commercials of his re-election campaign.

The 30-second spots have an upbeat message reminiscent of President Reagan's "morning in America" theme of 1984, as Martin boasts that his record includes better roads, better schools and 300,000 new jobs for North Carolina.

Kevin Brown, the governor's campaign manager, said the ad blitz was timed to take advantage of heavy viewership during the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament, not to re-focus attention on Martin's race in the aftermath of Super Tuesday.

Nevertheless, Brown acknowledged the governor's campaign, like those of other state candidates, took a lower profile in the weeks leading to Super Tuesday than it might have otherwise.

"It wasn't a planned hibernation, but as it worked out it (the campaign) did take a back seat there for at least a month or so ... and part of that was the result of the Super Tuesday hoopla," he said. There was less media coverage of the race and some Republican activists were involved in the presidential campaign, he said.

Candidates and strategists interviewed last week said they preferred this year's arrangement to the usual policy of having presidential balloting on the same day as state and local primaries.

"It's nice to have the presidential candidates out of the way so these other offices can get the attention they deserve," said Glenn Wells, campaign manager for Rufus Ed-misten, the former attorney general who's running for secretary of state.

Wells said since Super Tuesday he had been "swamped" with calls from Democrats whose help he had sought earlier but who were tied up with the presidential campaign. Apparently, few if any activists are burned out from their exertions; Brown says what's happened so far has "whetted their appetites" for more. "People who love politics enjoy working in campaigns," Hawke agreed. "Besides, I didn't see the presidential primary as being as exhausting and intense for the volunteers as our state races are."

But Hawke is not sold on the split primary arrangement. He worries that it confuses voters and may hurt turnout for the state elections, since presidential races usually draw people to the polls.

Divided primaries might also give a boost to incumbents or other well-known candidates running against newcomers, who have less time to develop statewide name recognition.

Expanded Supervision Program Keeps Inmates Out Of Prison

By KATHERINE JOYCE
Henderson Daily Dispatch

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Jimmy could be in prison now, but instead he's working and living at home with his family in Vance County.

An intensive supervision program operated by the N.C. Department of Correction has kept him out of already overcrowded prisons where he would be a greater burden on taxpayers.

"It's a good program that I think has given me another chance," Jimmy, who asked not to be further identified, said. "It's great for those who can be rehabilitated because it lets you stay home without going to prison."

However, this program, which accepts no more than 25 offenders either on probation or parole, is not a picnic for those enrolled in it, according to the two officers who operate the program in Vance and Franklin counties.

"We take any violations from these people seriously," said Nathaniel Gay Jr., the intensive officer for the Henderson-based program. "These are often not first-time offenders, so we see them a minimum of five times a week face-to-face."

In comparison, regular probation and parole officers see offenders released in their care from as little as once every two weeks to once every 90 days, Gay said. A regular probation or parole officer also has a caseload of 120 to 130 released offenders as well.

Offenders in the local intensive supervision program, all of whom are convicted of felonies or serious misdemeanors, have strict curfews and unexpected checkups from surveillance officer Thomas McCafferty. Curfew is from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. and the offender is somewhat limited in what he may do outside those hours.

All the offenders do a minimum of 72 hours of community service work and they must find paid employment as well. If an offender does not find a job, he or she will be assigned more community service hours to keep him busy in a constructive activity, Gay said.

"We use community service as a motivation for finding employment," he said. "If he has to pick up garbage somewhere all day for no pay, that encourages him to get a job that does pay."

This aspect of the program is a successful rehabilitation tool for convicted offenders, Gay said.

"This program works," he said. "We haven't had any of our 12 offenders convicted of a new crime since we've been here. I believe it's because of the intense supervision and the work they do."

The program is also helpful to the community as well.

"It's a money-saving program," Gay said. "It costs about $30 a day to keep someone in prison, while it costs only $7.20 to get him out on parole."

Even though this program does save the state and its taxpayers money, some community members are skeptical about having a convicted felon living next door to them, Gay said.

"We do community interviews before we release an offender in a neighborhood," he said. "If there are strong objections, we lay that to the parole board and they try to work out the situation."

The program began in large cities in the state in 1983 in an attempt to ease overcrowded conditions in state prisons.

In March 1987, the General Assembly approved funding for five additional intensive supervision programs in more rural areas of the state, including the one for Franklin and Vance counties. The funding came as a response to an emergency situation within the state's prison population. Under a state law, when the prison population exceeds 17,460 inmates for 15 consecutive days, about 200 inmates must be given early parole.

IN THE STATE

Robeson Deaths

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — American Indians in Robeson County are 2½ times more likely to die violent deaths than whites, according to a published report.

Nearly one in six, or 218 of the 1,183 Indian deaths in Robeson County from 1982 through 1986 were violent, according to a review published Sunday by the Winston-Salem Journal.

By comparison, there were 133 violent deaths among blacks in the county and 154 among whites, the newspaper said.

The newspaper also reported Indians were twice as likely as blacks or whites to be charged with murder.

Between July 1, 1984, and Dec. 31, 1987, Indians were charged with murder 31 times — more than double the rate for whites or blacks during the same period, the Journal said. Twelve white defendants and 16 black defendants were charged with murder in the same period.

Plane Crash

MAIDEN, N.C. (AP) — Two men suffered minor injuries Sunday after their single-engine airplane crashed in southern Catawba County, officials say.

The crash occurred about 1:15 p.m. when a Taylor craft BC65 dove from a about 100 feet up and crashed near U.S. 321. There was no fire and witnesses said the two crawled out of cockpit by themselves.

Michael Pine, 35, of Denver, N.C., the pilot, and his 27-year-old passenger, Kurt Widmer, of Maiden were taken to Catawba Memorial Hospital where they were treated for cuts, bruises and some minor fractures.

Tuition Rises

GREENSBORO (AP) — Private college tuition is on its way up again.

A survey of seven private colleges and universities in the Piedmont shows that tuition for incoming freshmen will increase an average of 9.2 percent in the 1988-89 school year.

The tuition changes ranged from no increase at Bennett College in Greensboro to a 19.5 percent rise for incoming freshmen at Duke University in Durham.

Nationally, colleges plan increases ranging from 5.5 percent to 10 percent, according to a recent report in The Chronicle of Higher Education.

Body Found

DURHAM (AP) — The body of a missing Roxboro basketball coach has been found in Jordan Lake, police said. Sam Jones, 39, who had been missing since Feb. 5, was found by authorities Saturday.

Jones' car had been found Feb. 18 in Chatham County. The car was locked, the keys were not inside and there was no sign of foul play, said Lt. Charles Thomas of the Chatham County Sheriff's Department.

Jones was basketball coach at Southern Junior High School in Roxboro.

Balloon Fight

HUDSON, N.C. (AP) — Nearly 100 members of a citizens group trying to close Caldwell County's controversial chemical-waste incinerator released 500 black balloons near the plant Saturday, officials said.

The balloons, adorned with skull and crossbones and the message "Toxic Air Kills," floated above Lick Mountain toward the county-owned incinerator, which, since 1977, has been run by Caldwell Systems Inc.

The purpose of the protest, said members of Caldwell Concerned Citizens for a Clean Environment, was to underscore a health survey the group recently completed.

"Our survey shows definite respiratory problems among residents in this area," said group spokesman L.C. Coonse.

Caldwell County commissioners voted in November to close the plant and evict CSI. A Catawba County Superior Court hearing on the eviction is scheduled for March 21.

Red Tide May Have Killed Next Year's Scallop Crop

RALEIGH (AP) — While the toxic red tide has mostly dissipated along North Carolina's shores, shellfishermen will have a bitter reminder of its impact next year because baby bay scallops have been wiped out, a researcher says.

"The scallops won't be abundant enough to be worth the gasoline and time it takes to try to catch them," said Charles Peterson, a professor of marine sciences and biology at the University of North Carolina's Institute of Marine Sciences in Morehead City.

Peterson noticed the impact of the red tide on baby scallops he was using for an experiment last fall.

"Back in August, baby scallops were so numerous in some places that you couldn't put your feet down without stepping on at least one," Peterson said Sunday in a telephone interview from his home in Morehead City. "Now in some places, you can't find any at all."

Scientists said about 98 percent of the young scallops were wiped out, leaving few, if any, to harvest next year.

The algae is toxic to humans who eat scallops, oysters and other shellfish contaminated with it. Last fall's outbreak, the first in the state's recorded history, forced the closing of more than 200 miles of the North Carolina and South Carolina coast to shellfishing. Only a handful of those shellfish beds have been re-opened.

The study found baby scallop populations ranging from zero to 9 percent along major scallop fields off the North Carolina coast. Emerald Isle, traditionally one of the best scallop fields in the state, contained about 2 percent of the normal number of juvenile scallops, Peterson said.

This year's ruined bay scallop crop in North Carolina has meant the near-absence of bay scallops on the U.S. market, Peterson said.

The smaller-sized bay scallops, which have a sweeter taste than their larger relatives known as sea scallops, are obtained for the rest of the country chiefly through the North Carolina and Long Island coasts, he said.

In recent years, however, an outbreak of a different type of algae known as "brown tide" has destroyed Long Island bay scallop crops, leaving North Carolina to provide bay scallops to the rest of the country.

Peterson said the public may not have noticed the lack because restaurants and fish sellers frequently do not distinguish between bay and sea scallops. Sea scallops, harvested mainly along the Florida coast, are in plentiful supply, he said.

To date, the red tide has cost North Carolina an estimated $16 to $24 million, according to the state Division of Marine Fisheries. Losses from tainted oysters and clams alone amount to approximately $3.5 million.

Students Who Wore Flags Face Discipline

By The Associated Press

Fourteen Durham junior high school students will be suspended for wearing Confederate flags on the backs of their clothing and three school bus drivers who wore the flags tied around their legs may be fired, school officials say.

The students and drivers were sent home immediately after arriving on campus Friday, said Larry Coble, superintendent of Durham County schools.

"It was clearly deliberate — the students who were wearing the Confederate flags will be suspended," Coble said by telephone Sunday.

He said he considered the flags a racial insult to black students.

"Generally, students are aware that the wearing of Confederate flags would be offensive to black students, just as the wearing of Black Power symbols would be offensive to white students."

Beginning Monday, Coble said, the students involved would receive suspensions ranging from three to 10 days, depending on their behavior records at the school. One or two might also be recommended for long-term suspension.

Honorary Seats On UNC Board Causing Concern In Legislature

RALEIGH (AP) — Some of the state's most powerful legislators say they are having second thoughts about adding honorary posts to the University of North Carolina Board of Governors.

"I don't think sufficient thought was given to the number of additional people this might put on the board and then leave there," Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, told The News and Observer of Raleigh. "It has the potential of changing the dynamics of the board."

Anxiety has surfaced less than a year after lawmakers created a new type of board member, known as a "member emeritus," to which all former board chairmen automatically are appointed.

The post was created last summer when legislators, who were doling out appointments to the prestigious governing board, realized that they had more attractive candidates than available seats.

So they declared all former chairmen "members emeriti" and gave them the right to do everything regular board members could, except vote, until age 70.

In addition to its 32 voting members appointed by the legislature, the board has two members emeriti: William Dees Jr. of Goldsboro, the board's first chairman, and William Johnson of Lillington, who succeeded Dees as chairman in 1976. Both men are 67. The board's third chairman, Raleigh attorney John R. Jordan Jr., holds an active term on the board.

The bill that created board members emeriti also called for halving board members' eight-year terms. While House Speaker Lister

Ramsey supported it, he says he thought he was voting only to halve the terms, not to enable former chairmen to serve until age 70.

Dees and Johnson are reluctant to discuss the merits of having emeritus board members. Dees acknowledges, however, that concern over enlarging the board is understandable.

"The board's large enough, and probably too large with 32 members," Dees said.

Board member Sam Poole, a Southern Pines lawyer, downplayed the extent to which having members emeriti would bloat the board, noting that if all chairmen served two consecutive two-year terms, only five members would be added over a 20-year period.

Poole said that the decision to halve board members' eight-year terms had made it more important for former chairmen to play an active role in board matters.

"It takes a lot of time to learn the university system," Poole said. "If we have a big turnover, then we're going to need the experience of the former chairmen."

Adult Literacy Program Draws National Attention

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — A unique literacy program started by Central Piedmont Community College is having its share of successes in a state where as many as 750,000 people can't read or write.

Horace Blakeney, 23, entered the Adult Basic Literacy Education program in November 1984 with a second-grade reading level. He's now completing courses for his high school equivalence degree.

"I didn't work or listen in school," said Blakeney. "It opened up a whole new world for me. I hope to go on to college."

Eighteen-year-old Chris Sanders had dropped out of school in the eighth grade. This month, he enrolled in ABLÉ out of pure practicality.

"I couldn't find any job," Sanders said during a break from his studies. "I came here for my GED (high school equivalency degree). I really need to improve my math skills."

Cindy Johnston, who runs the program, said Sanders is typical of the estimated 27 million people in this country who are classified as "functionally illiterate."

"There's such a focus on the non-reader," she said as she led a visitor on the tour of the center. "They are out there, but there are a lot more who can read a little bit and need to improve their literacy skills."

The average student is 34 years old. Most are holding down jobs, but many are unemployed. More women than men sign up and about 75 percent are black.

ABLE was conceived in 1983 when CPCC President Richard Hagameyer realized many incoming students were reading below the 9th-grade level. When no state funds became available because of budget constraints, Hagameyer went to area businesses and the county commissioners and raised more than $300,000.

When the first ABLÉ center opened in July 1983 at the Freedom Mall, Ms. Johnston didn't know what to expect.

"When we opened the doors we had more than 200 people outside waiting in line," she said.

The program continued to grow. There are now six ABLÉ centers in Mecklenburg County — including one at a minimum-security prison. Another center is due to open later this month at a downtown YMCA.

"The people who join the program are self-motivated," Ms. Johnston said. "They have to make up their own minds. This is not a quick fix. It may take them a year or more to reach their goal."

ABLE teaches reading by phonics, a method of teaching beginners to read by learning the sounds of letters or groups of letters. Students learn the alphabet, then words. When a student's reading level reaches the fourth grade, he or she begins working on the computers.

Individuals who are below a fourth grade reading level usually take about 34 hours of work to move up a grade, Ms. Johnston said. Those who come into the program at that level or better take 30 hours to move up one notch.

"You can see why it takes a long time," she said. "We want our students to put in a minimum of three to five hours per week."

ABLE would not succeed without the support of hundreds of volunteers who donate their time to tutor the students.

"We've trained more than 650 volunteers since we opened," Ms. Johnston said. "They range from college students to retired businessmen. We also have some businessmen and businesswomen who come in after work."

The volunteer tutors work with the same students until they are ready to go off on their own.

"Learning these skills takes a lot of one-on-one attention," Ms. Johnston said. "They need caring, loving and a lot of assistance. A lot of lifelong friendships have started here."

Unfortunately, there are some failures.

"We don't call them dropouts, we call them stopouts," Ms. Johnston said. "It's not a reflection on the program. The people who need to improve their literacy skills have jobs. Their schedules change. They have transportation and child-care problems. We encourage them to come back once they've worked out their problems."

While more than 4,000 individuals have enrolled in the free course since it opened nearly four years ago, many more either haven't learned about it or don't have the courage to admit they have a problem. Others want to sign up but can't because of problems such as job schedules, transportation or lack of child-care, Ms. Johnston said.

ABLE is among the first programs in the country to use computers and other technology to help functionally illiterate adults.

Barbara Bush, wife of vice president George Bush, met with Ms. Johnston and some ABLÉ students at a recent visit to the campus.

"Since she first saw it in May 1985, Mrs. Bush has extolled the virtues of the program," Ms. Johnston said. "She told us she's seen a lot of other literacy programs and believes this is still tops."

GREENSBORO (AP) — An Elkin native kidnapped by Contras and held with some Nicaraguans earlier this month said he was not physically abused, but he feared for the life of another captive.

Richard Boren, a volunteer for an organization called Witness for Peace, said he lost nearly 10 pounds in the eight days he was held, although prisoners were fed beans and tortillas, usually twice a day.

But he said he was particularly worried about the fate of a 40-year-old farmer who was among 12 people seized March 1 in the village of Mantocotal.

"I was afraid he would be killed since kidnapped Nicaraguans are made to either fight with the Contras or be killed," Boren said in a telephone interview from his sister's Carrboro home.

Four days before his release on Wednesday, Boren said, he began negotiating for the farmer's safe release.

"I'd been told he had to undergo an investigation for crimes and that if he was found guilty he'd be given a punishment," Boren said. "He said if I wanted to receive the same punishment we could be released together at the completion of the punishment."

Boren said he agreed to the terms.

"When I was about to be turned over to the Witness for Peace volunteers, I demanded he be released with me," Boren said. "At first the Contra leader refused, but after a few tense moments we were set free to go."

Boren, who is staying with his sister, Carol Boren Owens of Carrboro, arrived in the state early Sunday morning.

"He is home, and we're mighty thrilled to have him home," said Boren's grandmother, Nell Boren of Greensboro.

Israel Imposes Economic Restrictions On West Bank

JERUSALEM (AP) — The army cut off gasoline supplies to the West Bank after Palestinian protesters set fire to two fuel trucks and stoned others during a day of scattered violence in the occupied territories.

The economic restriction, announced Sunday, followed a PLO-inspired campaign that led 450 Arab police and dozens of tax collectors to resign.

In another development, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir left Sunday for talks in Washington ready to oppose a proposed U.S. peace plan. His stand won the approval of about 200,000 supporters who held a rally in Tel Aviv on Sunday.

At Jerusalem's Hadassah Hospital, a 22-year-old Palestinian died Sunday after being shot in the eye in a clash last week, the army said. The United Nations says at least 91

Palestinians have been killed since anti-Israeli rioting began Dec. 8 in the occupied territories.

The army said the West Bank commander, Maj. Gen. Amram Mitzna, banned fuel trucks from entering the area after the two trucks were burned and others stoned. No injuries were reported in the attacks.

Fuel will now be delivered in guarded trucks to stations that serve ambulances and service vehicles, the army said Sunday. Israeli media reports said fuel also will be delivered to service stations owned by Jewish settlers.

Israel Television on Sunday showed Arab drivers from the Ramallah area waiting in line at one such station in the West Bank Jewish settlement of Bet El while Israelis entered the station without having to wait.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin said last month that Israel might have to impose economic restrictions on the 1.5 million Arabs in the West Bank and Gaza Strip if general strikes and violence persisted.

The ban on fuel "is only the first step in a series of measures planned by the Defense Ministry," Israel Television said.

Economic restrictions had been imposed on Qabatiyah, a West Bank village where angry Palestinians hanged an alleged collaborator from an electrical pole last month after he shot a child to death.

The army punished Qabatiyah for forbidding its principal export of stone to Jordan and by banning visits of family members from abroad, an army official said. The village is also without electricity, he said.

Meanwhile, Nachum Mendel, Police Ministry spokesman, on Sunday said 450 of the 850 Arab police officers in the West Bank and Gaza handed in their papers after after PLO-inspired underground leaflets called for their resignations.

He said Israeli police might be called to help but not enough could be summoned to provide the same crime-fighting and traffic-control services. The Arab police are not used to quell Palestinian unrest in the occupied lands.

"The thieves will celebrate, traffic violators will celebrate, that's what it means," Police Minister Chaim Bar-Lev said on Israel army radio.

Referring to last week's brutal slaying in Jericho of a police officer accused of being a collaborator, Bar-Lev said on Sunday: "No doubt, a murder like that has a lot of influence."

Dozens of Arab tax collectors have also resigned. Leaflets called on Arabs to refuse to pay taxes. But a senior Israeli official said tax receipts were down only about 10 percent for January and February. The taxes are used to fund the $239.3 million annual budget of Israel's territorial administration.

Minor protests were reported on Sunday in Gaza Strip. In the West Bank, an Israeli bus was destroyed by a firebomb near Ramallah. Its driver and a guard escaped unharmed. No injuries were reported among Arabs who staged the attack.

Before leaving Sunday, Shamir told reporters he hopes during his eight-day visit to Washington to persuade U.S. officials to make changes in a peace plan that would have Israel trade land for peace in the occupied lands.

Shamir, who opposes key elements of the plan, including its call for an international peace conference, said: "I know I will be able to convince my interlocutors and then all the others will say 'Amen.'"

About 40,000 leftists attended a protest rally Saturday staged by the Peace Now movement in Tel Aviv's Plaza of Israeli Kings. They called for government acceptance of the U.S. proposals and an end to the 20-year occupation.

At the same plaza, Shamir's right-wing supporters on Sunday held a counterprotest. Police and the organizers said 200,000 to 250,000 took part.

The demonstrators held signs that read "Peace now, pay later," "Yes to peace, no to withdrawal," and "America to the Indians."

Shamir's deputy, David Levy, told the crowd that "if, God forbid, this plan would be implemented... (Israel) will have to go to war in the future."

Police Resignations Shake Israeli Plans

BETHLEHEM, Occupied West Bank (AP) — A mass resignation of Arab policemen has displaced the muscle of the PLO and posed a security dilemma for Israel and Palestinians alike in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

A national police spokesman, Yehoshua Goldapfel, on Sunday said that 450 of the 850 Arab police in the occupied territories "have asked to leave the force." He left open the possibility more would depart.

The police control crime and direct traffic, but they are not used to quell Arab rioting in the occupied lands, now in its fourth month.

Arab officers in Bethlehem said all 70 Arab policemen would be off the job today at the city's headquarters office for the southern half of the West Bank. As a shift ended at noon Sunday, newly retired officers drifted from the station in jeans and jackets into the central Manger Square. A dozen Israeli soldiers in riot gear stood watch beside a phalanx of huge tour buses.

"I will be left without a job, without income," said traffic officer Mohammed Abu Ghayada, who spent 12 of his 36 years on the force. He said he might try driving a taxi.

"The people have decided, and we go with the decision of the Palestinian people," said policeman Fadl Najajri, a 15-year veteran and a father of nine.

The walkout was triggered by a communique issued March 10 by the Palestine Liberation Organization and clandestine local leaders of the violent protests against Israeli rule of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The message was driven home for some officers by the March 8 stabbing death of a Palestinian policeman in Jericho accused of cooperating too closely with Israeli authorities.

"The killing in Jericho made me decide very quickly," said a 33-year-old policeman who gave his name only as Ramis.

The National Police Commissioner, David Krauss, told Israel radio on Sunday: "There's pressure on them from the outside and a system of threats. But each one of them is organizing his friends, and we'll deal with them."

He did not specify how.

The resignations threaten to open wider cracks in Israel's territorial administration, which employs 18,000 Arabs and is an important buffer between Israelis and the already rebellious Palestinians.

"It is a precedent for many more civil servants to resign," said Bethlehem Mayor Elias Freij.

Forty tax collectors in the Gaza Strip quit last week under pressure from underground organizers.

Rioters in the village of Qabatiyah on Feb. 24 lynched an alleged Israeli collaborator who opened fire on a crowd near his house and killed a child.

Authorities punished Qabatiyah by banning visits of family members from abroad and forbidding the town's major export of stone to Jordan.

Authorities also demolished houses of people accused of involvement in attacks on alleged collaborators.

Japan Cuts Infant Mortality Rate To Lowest Level Anywhere In World

By MARI TAKETA
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — In less than a generation, Japan has slashed its infant death rate to the lowest in the world, thanks to a formula that combines intensive prenatal care with government policy.

But Japan also has one of the world's highest abortion rates, which could help in keeping figures low for the infant-death rate.

The officially reported infant mortality rate, in any case, has fallen from a high of more than 60 deaths per 1,000 in the years after World War II to 4.9 per 1,000 in 1987 — meaning that of every 1,000 babies born, 995.1 will live to their first birthdays.

No other nation comes close. The United States lags far behind with a rate of 10.6 per 1,000. Finland and Sweden rank second behind Japan, with 6.0, according to 1986 figures.

Experts list several things that led to Japan's low rate:

- A literate society eager for medical advice.
- A system of universal health insurance.
- A Maternal and Child Health Handbook, standard issue for every pregnant woman since World War II, which has 58 pages of health records and advice on pregnancy and child care from birth to age 6.

house calls on rural newborns and report their progress to local officials.

But abortions are not figured in the official infant mortality rate; the abortion figures themselves are difficult to establish.

Japan's registered abortion rate is 17.1 per 1,000 women of childbearing age, near the top among Western nations. Doctors say, however, the real figure could be two to four times higher, because not all abortions are reported to the government as required by law. Adding the doctors' estimates of unreported abortions would put Japan well ahead of the United States, which had a 1983 rate of 27.4 per 1,000.

Officials say the hidden abortions take place among teen-agers. While they accounted for only 5.4 percent of registered abortions in 1986, that number has been rising along with teen pregnancies.

Babies born to teens and women over 35 are at highest risk for late fetal and early neonatal deaths. Women over 35 are almost twice as likely to have infants with congenital defects.

In Japan, the two groups of high-risk mothers account for 42 percent of registered abortions and only 8.8 percent of live births. They are the only groups among whom abortion is increasing.

"Looking at the national statistics, it seems there could be a link between a high rate of abortion among high-risk mothers and the infant mortality rate," said Dr. Eikichi Matsuyama, director of obstetrics and gynecology at Tokyo's Kosei Nenkin Hospital, when asked why the figures showed infant mortality at the bottom and abortions near the top. "It's a connection I've never thought of until now. But it's not illogical."

Japan's Eugenic Protection Law

allows abortions even as late as the second trimester of pregnancy to "prevent the increase of inferior descendants and to protect the life of the mother."

"Abortion is quite a big program in Japanese family planning," said Haruo Konagai of the Japan Family Planning Association. "One-fourth of Japanese women have experienced abortions."

Matsuyama and others say that preventing high-risk births is not the key to lowering infant mortality. They say it's an incidental factor in an already successful program.

But the government is pushing programs for telephone counseling and sex education in schools to lower the teen-age abortion rate, Miyagishima said.

"In general, mother and child health is on a high standard already," he said. "It is a very hard task to find a (new) target."

Iran Says 20 Killed As Missiles Hit Tehran In Latest Exchange

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran and Iraq fired long-range missiles into each other's capitals today as the so-called "war of the cities" flared again after a two-day lull. Iran said at least 20 people were killed in Tehran.

On the battlefield, Iran said it attacked mountainous northeast Iraq and downed an Iraqi warplane. Iraq said Iran continued shelling border towns.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said six rockets exploded in residential areas of Tehran today, killing at least 20 people and injuring 50.

Iran said it fired two missiles today into "the dens of corruption" in Baghdad. The news agency, monitored in Nicosia, said the missiles were aimed at "military and economic centers" in Baghdad.

Baghdad Radio, also monitored in Nicosia, said one Iranian missile crashed into a residential district of the city of 5 million around noon, killing some civilians. It gave no figures and made no mention of a second Iranian missile.

The Iranian missile hit as oil and energy ministers from 20 Arab countries gathered in the capital of Baghdad for the opening of a four-day meeting on improving cooperation in energy and mineral resources. It was not known how far from the conference hall the missile exploded.

The Iraqis say they have shot seven missiles into Tehran since Sunday to avenge Iranian shelling of Iraqi towns over the weekend that killed at least 21 people and wounded 79.

The official Iraqi News Agency said Iranian shellfire continued to hit the southern port city of Basra, the nearby city of Qurnah and the northern city of Halbahah today. It reported "many civilians," including women and children, killed or wounded in a barrage that hit schools, houses and stores.

Family-Run Cafe Shows Limits

By MARK J. PORUBCANSKY
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — A few months ago, Olga Osipov had a good income from a prestigious job teaching Chinese. Now she and her family run a Chinese restaurant and they are $25,000 in debt.

But they saw it as an opportunity opened up to them by General-Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev's economic reforms. "Perestroika," the name given Gorbachev's modernization program, has changed the lives of people like Mrs. Osipov and her family and promises to touch millions more as the drive for a more efficient Soviet economy gathers steam.

The small Chinese restaurant run by Mrs. Osipov and her family is their own, with each member owning a share and getting a share of the profits. It is officially recognized as a cooperative.

The Meikhua also is a model of what Soviet authorities had in mind when they loosened laws last year to permit cooperatives and individual labor, such as moonlighting, giving Soviet citizens an official touch of private enterprise.

Opened Nov. 17, the Meikhua cafe is the only known family-run Chinese restaurant in the whole of the Soviet Union, which shares a 3,000-mile border with China.

Operating a cooperative gets around a major theoretical hurdle, because anyone who does not work for himself or for the state is thought to be exploited by an employer.

But the Meikhua cafe and other cooperatives face difficulties in offering alternatives to the state-run economy.

Meals in the cooperatives are more expensive than in the multitude of state-run restaurants. Ingredients are hard to come by and consumer resistance is high because cooperatives' prices fluctuate with the market and availability.

Among the co-ops that have sprung up under the new law are establishments that produce plastic beach shoes and children's jackets sewn from scraps in Armenia. Others harvest fish, pick wild berries and repair apartments in the Siberian city of Kurgan.

Moscow has a cooperative extermination service and a cooperative that refers callers to other cooperatives. About 70 co-op restaurants have opened in Moscow, which has a population of nearly 9 million.

Gorbachev told writers and editors in mid-January that 13,000 co-ops had been established and more than 300,000 people were working for themselves within the narrow confines of new regulations intended to encourage better supply, goods and services that in the state-run economy are notoriously slow and of poor quality.

"This is not particularly many for a country like ours, but nevertheless a step forward has been made," he said.

Each new venture must be approved, granted a location and outfitted by local authorities and the state-run enterprises against whom the cooperative competes. Those who want to start a cooperative or work for themselves often report discouraging bureaucracy and heavy licensing fees.

But Mrs. Osipov, taking a break one recent morning from chopping vegetables and meat in the Meikhua's kitchen, said the bureaucrats moved quickly in her case because Moscow had no cooperative serving Chinese food.

That is one indication officials are more interested in providing a little variety than in fostering competition.

Mrs. Osipov's son, Volodya, 27, a teacher of English and Chinese, was washing floors and cleaning tables on his day off from teaching.

"I come at 9 o'clock in the morning and don't leave until 11 o'clock at night," Mrs. Osipov said. "And my son, he's teaching at school from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m. Then when he's done at school, he comes here by 3 o'clock."

"We work a lot," she said. "Honestly, it's hard."

Main dishes at the Meikhua can cost from 2.90 rubles (about $4.75) for a pork and cabbage dish to 8 rubles ($13.25) for braised sea slugs, a specialty. The sea slugs must be marinated for several days and take several hours to prepare, Mrs. Osipov said.

A five-ounce serving of rice costs 30 kopeks (50 cents). A few more kopeks brings a pot of jasmine tea.

Service at the restaurant's nine tables was quick and friendly, and everything on the menu was available. At state-run restaurants, it often is easier to ask the waiter which of the dishes on the menu actually are available, and service is notoriously slow.

Mrs. Osipov was born in northeast China of a Russian mother and Chinese father. She and her husband cook home-style food from her native region.

Volodya, and another son, a daughter and son-in-law do everything else. All but the 49-year-old Mrs. Osipov kept their old jobs or remained at their studies.

The family would like to hire an extra cook and keep the cafe open longer than five hours a day, six days a week. But their intent to keep it essentially a family-run business fits well within the limited scope of the law.

Asked if he would prefer to teach or run the cafe, Volodya said: "I would like, if it was possible, to be more creative as a teacher, to work there. But it has been very interesting here so far. To create something is always interesting. Here it's possible to govern yourself fully."

The family needed 15,000 rubles ($25,000) to get started, and friends advanced some of the money to help them turn a former two-family apartment building into a restaurant.

A bank lent more money at 3 percent interest, and government organization provided the kitchen equipment and furniture.

The cafe's income is about 500 rubles (about $825) a night, roughly half of which goes for food, heat and electricity. Family members are paid about 250 rubles ($413) each a month, some 50 rubles ($82.50) more than the typical Soviet factory worker.

Because prices in cooperative restaurants are higher than in state-run restaurants, some Soviets grumble that the cooperatives are too expensive for the average citizen.

In a recent article, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda printed several letters from readers complaining about prices at cooperatives.

One letter writer, I. Cherkashin of Moscow, said cooperatives had not forced prices down by providing more competition but had driven them up.

"Who is it that makes the laws on prices — the market, cooperatives, or the government?" he asked.

Cooperatives get the bulk of their food from farmers markets, where prices are unregulated and run substantially higher than state markets and stores. Supply, while still uncertain, is usually better in the farmers markets, particularly for fresh fruits and vegetables rarely found in Moscow during the long winter.

"We'd like to have a constant supply ... so we don't have to depend on the market," Volodya said. "If they are selling meat one day for seven rubles a kilogram and the next day for 12 rubles, our prices jump."

To get the spices she needs for Chinese cuisine, Mrs. Osipov travels occasionally to Kirghizia, a republic of Soviet Central Asia bordering China. But some spices, she said, cost a ruble ($1.65) a spoonful, adding more to the prices on her menu.

Sweats Are In Mood Of Spring's Bold Colors

NEW YORK (AP) — Even the once-humble sweatshirt, now a major fashion category, is feeling the impact of the bright color mood predicted for spring 1988.

Colors ranging from hot pinks and corals to yellow, gold and rich blues will mark the fashion for sweats, says Sarah Britt, director of fashion merchandising for Bassett-Walker, a major manufacturer of sweatshirts and sweatpants.

The bright colors will be complemented by bleached pastel shades in the same family, such as pale peach against coral, she says.

"Bold colors, always important in sweatshirt fashion, will have new appeal as the fashion trend filters into all markets from the high-color looks seen for this season on the runways of such designers as Christian Lacroix," Ms. Britt says.

"The color excitement is felt in both women's and men's wear, where the ever-popular red, white and blue combination will be even more significant than in past seasons," she adds.

Color in sweatshirts will often be blocked; that is, sleeves may have panels of a color contrasting to the body of the shirt, and pants will coordinate with either color block. The wide blocks of color give a stripe effect and white, as an accent, adds snap to the look, Ms. Britt points out.

The most popular prints are those with words incorporated in the pattern, she says, adding that her company's leading screen print for spring interplays designs of sports equipment with the words "Graphic Sports." She feels that words — any words — are an important part of the design element for the coming season.

Silhouettes in the women's market for sweats will not change radically; however, oversize fleece mock turtle-necks, tapered fleece pants, shorts and miniskirts will supplement the popular basics.

Ms. Britt notes that these items have been in sweats lines previously, but reports that for this spring they are getting a fashion boost from designer sportswear trends.

"Fashion may come and go, but the sweatshirt market has consumer appeal that is expected to continue well into the 1990s," Ms. Britt predicts. "Quality producers have had some difficulty meeting the demand for basic fleece, and see alternative fabrics such as rib knits as a possible replacement in future seasons."

"For spring, the rib knit will be one of the offerings in our 'Cotton Works' line, bridging the gap between active sportswear and fashion."

Conviction Has Student Down

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago, I made the most stupid mistake of my life. I was arrested for shoplifting from a K-mart department store. I appeared in court and was fined $200 on a misdemeanor charge. Very few people know about this.

Since then, I've graduated from college in social work. I am presently unemployed, and social work jobs are hard to come by. But my situation makes it worse. I'm afraid to fill out a job application. When I see a question concerning "convictions," I leave it blank. The guilt I carry is so enormous, I have even considered suicide. My life is ruined. What can I do if I am unemployable? How I wish I would have thought out the devastating consequences before I committed such a stupid act.

I've enrolled in a nursing program recently. I answered "No" on the application concerning convictions. I called my state licensing board and explained my situation. They advised me to inform the school, and answer "Yes" to a couple of questions on the nursing board examinations. But they added it would not be cause for denying me a license.

Abby, I can't bring myself to inform the school. I am not a bad person. In fact, most people would say that I am an outstanding young woman. (I have many awards to prove it.) Yet I feel worthless and depressed. How can I get out of this nightmare? — DEPRESSED DOWN SOUTH

DEAR DEPRESSED: You need counseling in order to forgive yourself. We all make stupid mistakes when we are young, but it's not the end of the world. I checked with the director of the nursing school and she said if you tell your counselor, they will not throw you out because of this one blemish on your record. You can rise above it and succeed in your chosen field. Now, go for it — and good luck. And if any more suicidal thoughts should surface, call your suicide prevention hotline. The people there are wonderfully helpful.

DEAR ABBY: I never dreamed I would ever write to you, but here goes:

Everywhere I go, I see bumper stickers on people's cars that say, "HAVE YOU HUGGED YOUR CHILD TODAY?"

Just once, I would like to see one that says, "HAVE YOU HUGGED YOUR PARENT(S) TODAY?"

It seems to me that a parent could use a hug every once in a while.

Please print this and sign me ... ALICE T.

DEAR ALICE: Why only a parent? Everybody could use a hug once in a while.

DEAR ABBY: As a registered nurse in a large county hospital emergency room, I have seen this "it can't happen to me" attitude over and over again.

I heard those words screamed by a young father who had had "a few beers" just before he wrapped his car around a telephone pole and sent his 4-year-old son to the morgue.

"This can't happen to us" both families cried as a 14-year-old girl lay dying, and her 15-year-old boyfriend was paralyzed from the neck down. He had been driving 120 mph on the interstate when his car was caught by the end of a semi-trailer truck. Cocaine was found in the car.

Or the day we lost a battle to save a beautiful 6-month-old baby who had been thrown out of the car during a "minor" accident. Moments before, she had been lying comfortably in her mother's arms, while the infant car seat was sitting empty in the back seat.

I could go on and on, but I think you get the idea. Abby, please keep telling your readers not to drink and drive, to use seat belts and car seats — and don't use drugs! Terrible things can and do happen to them. They are your readers, but they end up being our patients. — LINDA M., R.N., POMPANO BEACH, FLA.

DEAR LINDA: Maybe we saved a life or two today. Thanks for caring enough to put your thoughts on paper.

Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.

Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 33.00; Wallace 33.00; Spivey's Corner 33.50; Rowland 33.00.

N.C. BROILER-FRYERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 44.00 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. The market is firm and the live supply is adequate for a moderate to good demand. Average weights mostly desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina on Monday was 2,119,000, compared to 2,155,000 last Monday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady to 1 cent lower at mostly 2.10-2.22 in the East and mostly 2.31-2.38 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 4 to 5 cents higher at mostly 6.07-6.20 in the East and mostly 6.00-6.10 in the Piedmont; new crop corn 1.89-2.24; new crop soybeans 5.93-6.27; new crop wheat 2.73-2.84. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady and ranged from 101 to 102 1/2 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned downward in quiet trading today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks slipped .99 to 2,033.99 in the first half hour of trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 7 to 4 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 393 up, 687 down and 451 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to just 16.88 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Homestake Mining fell 1/4 to 15. Mesa L.P. withdrew a $20-a-share takeover bid that Homestake had opposed.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost 20 to 149.25. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .08 at 296.17.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 8.95 to 2,034.98, cutting its loss for the week to 22.88 points.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 7 to 5 on the NYSE, with 864 up, 658 down and 458 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 200.02 million shares, against 197.26 million in the previous session.

 Sunday and attacked a TV cameraman after roughing up a woman who was selling an anti-government newsletter. No one was injured.

The attack came at the Roman Catholic Church of Christ the King, long a center of government opposition activity, as its pastor, the Rev. Xavier Villanueva, was beginning a late-morning Mass.

Solis Palma, installed by the ruling military last month as minister in charge of the presidency, has been meeting with his chief advisors almost constantly since last Thursday. Sunday's meeting was the first time that Noriega had been known to join them.

Meanwhile, Noriega was said by a chief aide to be "in excellent spirits, working very hard, always on the phone and maintaining his determination not to surrender."

Maj. Edgardo Lopez, the general's press officer, said Noriega was telephoning other countries in search of financial assistance and received "some very positive answers from some friendly governments."

Lopez declined to elaborate, but he added, "this is a very complex situation that cannot be solved in 72 hours."

Noriega is under indictment in the United States on federal drug trafficking and money laundering charges.

Almost one in every five workers in this nation of 2.5 million people is employed by the government. While Noriega's popularity has fallen recently, he has so far enjoyed at least the outward support of government employees.

In Washington, administration officials acknowledged Sunday that the economic sanctions imposed by President Reagan on Friday were intended to make it harder for the Panamanian government to pay the public employees.

The timing of the sanctions "was not a coincidence," said one administration source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

 a little longer or to spend more money and go with a system that would meet our present needs better and take us well into the future.

"The system we ultimately went with," according to Paramore, "was not even developed at the time the original advice was given, so we couldn't have chosen it then. We feel the Arthur Andersen people have more than provided our money's worth (and) continue to use them for on-going service."

The 1985-86 fiscal year saw another $12,200 paid to Arthur Andersen for consulting in medical records, to make computer processing changes that would bring the hospital in line for better Medicare reimbursement, while $9,000 went to Voluntary Hospitals of America as Pitt and nine other hospitals in North Carolina studied and participated in the national organization of hospitals to determine whether PCMH could save money through bulk buying, continuing education and other programs.

"It was finally determined," McRae said, that the services offered by the VHA were not worth the time and money that participation would involve, "that PCMH is large enough to realize comparable savings in buying on its own and to make its own contacts for continuing education."

Also that year, Dr. Richard Israel was paid $2,500 to help develop the hospital's employee wellness program.

The following year, Hamilton and Associates was paid $20,500 and Planning and Design another $10,905 as their long-range planning services continued, McRae said, while Arthur Andersen received another $12,500 for a continuation of its computer consulting. And Project One Marketing got another $5,100 for the continuation of its survey.

The accounting firm of Ernst and Whinney received $82,362 in 1986-87 for consulting on the financial aspects of long-range planning. It conducted a study of the hospital's debt capacity and the financial impact of expansion of services long-range, McRae said. And in a separate study, gave opinions on whether the hospital could be designated a Rural Referral Center and thus collect more federal Medicaid money.

Because of a $6,300 study to determine whether the hospital should consider liability self-insurance, McRae said, it has been determined that the hospital should keep cap liability insurance for large claims, but should develop a fund to enable it to increase its deductibles and thereby reduce its premiums.

Another expert was paid $4,000 for work on setting up the hospital's cardiac surgery program, while Israel was paid another $1,913 for continued work on the employee wellness program.

So far this fiscal year, McRae said, Hamilton and Associates has been paid $20,433 for long-range planning work (another $14,000 is budgeted). Planning and Design has received $188, and Ernest and Whinney has been paid $13,575 for a study of reorganizational needs in the financial services department at PCMH.

McRae said various members of the ECU medical school faculty have been paid a total of $18,164 for consulting on certificate of need and health planning activities and on medical liability and risk management, while another $9,925 has been paid to an outside firm for additional risk management consulting.

Other consultant work so far this year: $2,270 for a study on reorganization of the nursing department and $3,226 for an operations and safety review of the hospital's EastCare air ambulance service. "This was deemed necessary," McRae said, "following the January 8, 1987, helicopter crash that killed four people."

According to McRae, "Our computer system is now in place and constantly having its capacity and its uses added to is a good example of how valuable consulting services are to the hospital. We couldn't possibly have had in-house the expertise needed to advise on the complicated decisions that had to be made to determine not only whether to go with our own system, but which system to choose and how to work it into the everyday service of each department of the hospital."

How do PCMH's consulting fees compare with the hospital's overall budget: in fiscal 1985-86 the cost was 63 cents out of every $100; in 1986-87 14 cents, and so far this year, 11 cents out of every $100.

Shamir Visits U.S.

 porary arrangement would last five years, setting the stage for negotiations on an overall Arab-Israeli settlement in which all options, including statehood, would be open.

Shultz has proposed a three-year interim arrangement, with the final negotiations to begin by the end of this year.

"We are always open to new and constructive proposals, with our positive reaction to your useful ideas," Shamir told his American hosts.

The Israeli leader made no mention of the international peace conference Shultz also proposed. His statement suggested he will attempt, during four days of talks here, to persuade Shultz to make some changes in the proposal Shultz also has presented to Jordan.

The U.S. position is that Israel should relinquish at least some of the land it captured from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Six-Day War in exchange for Arab recognition.

Shamir is committed to Palestinian autonomy under the 1978 Camp David agreement signed by the United States, Egypt and Israel, but he is reluctant to cede the lands on which 1.5 million Palestinian Arabs live under Israeli control.

Before leaving for the United States, Shamir said Sunday that he would not call for a government vote until after his trip.

"After I come back with a summation of my talks with representatives of the American government, the Cabinet will meet immediately and I think we'll have a decision on this subject," Shamir said on Israeli radio. "It's a matter of about a week."

Shultz urged Shamir last week to consider the "ticking demographic time bomb" of the rapidly growing Palestinian population. At a congressional hearing, Shultz suggested Israel had much to gain by territorial compromise.

He did not say who would take over the land — the Palestinians or Jordan, which occupied the West Bank from 1950 to 1967. Egypt held Gaza during the same period.

The Palestine Liberation Organization, designated by the Arab countries as the Palestinians' sole legitimate representative, has vowed to dismantle Israel as a Jewish state.

Shultz and Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci planned separate courtesy calls today on Shamir after his overnight flight from Israel. The tough bargaining begins Tuesday with Shultz and continues Wednesday with President Reagan at the White House.

The trip was planned before Palestinians on the West Bank and in Gaza began staging protest demonstrations. As of Sunday, 91 had been killed in three months of bloody clashes with Israeli forces.

Shamir wrote Shultz in January offering to grant Palestinians living in the territories self-rule on all matters except security and foreign affairs. In a letter last week to critical U.S. senators, Shamir reaffirmed his commitment to the Camp David formula.

It provides for negotiations on an overall settlement after five years of Palestinian autonomy. All options, including statehood, would be open.

"We have sought peace relentlessly, but our Arab neighbors, except Egypt, still have to prove in deeds that they are willing to negotiate peace with us," Shamir said.

Shultz proposed his plan for negotiations to Shamir and Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, to King Hussein of Jordan, and to Presidents Hafez Assad of Syria and Hosni Mubarak of Egypt. So far, none of the governments has responded formally.

However, Shamir was quoted last week as saying the U.S. proposal was "fraught with danger" and incapable of bringing peace to the region.

"The only word I agree with in the U.S. plan is the name Shultz," Shamir said.

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Danny Ferry doesn't think much of individual honors, and even after his shooting in the closing minutes of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament helped Duke beat North Carolina, he was still giving credit where he felt it was due.

"This year, it was really a team thing," said Ferry, named the tournament's most valuable player after the eighth-ranked Blue Devils took a 65-61 victory over the ninth-rated Tar Heels.

"Everybody played a role in it more than ever. I think. Everybody played a big part in getting the championship. That was because we came together as a team over the last two weeks. It's great to be successful that way," Ferry said.

Duke raised its record to 24-6 and gained the league's automatic NCAA berth, and the added gift of a first-round appearance in Chapel Hill. North Carolina dropped to 24-6 and was sent to the West Regional at Salt Lake City.

The idea of the team victory stems from Duke's last ACC tournament title, which launched Coach Mike Krzyzewski's march to the 1986 Final Four in Dallas.

"The last ACC title was a seven-man effort," Krzyzewski said. "This win was the result of effort by the whole unit."

That unit began at Ferry, whose shooting had been off in the tournament, but who managed to be at the right place at the right time against the Tar Heels. Ferry shot eight of 20 field goals in the title matchup, giving him a tournament mark of 21 for 52, or 40.4 percent.

percent entering the championship game and sank a little lower with a 36.8 percent outing against the Tar Heels. Krzyzewski doesn't find that to be a major problem for now.

"You take what you get against great defense, and Carolina played great defense against us today," Krzyzewski said. "Both teams shot under 40 percent. It was a game of people just beating on one another — in a positive way."

North Carolina shot 33.3 percent, including a 28 percent field goal effort in the second half. It was the worst output by the Tar Heels this season and was worsened by a Duke defense which made life miserable for inside men J.R. Reid and Scott Williams.

Reid failed to score in the first half and Williams had just two free throws, yet the Tar Heels managed a tie at 37 at halftime.

"J.R. is probably first team all-American, he's a great athlete and you want to take advantage of his talents," said North Carolina guard Jeff Lebo, whose 13 points led the North Carolina scoring in the first half. "When I'm in the game with him, I'm always conscious of where he's at and I want to get him the ball because when he gets it, good things happen."

Reid got the ball six times in the first three minutes of the second half, netting four fouls and two baskets.

Duke erased a six-point North Carolina lead, tied the score at 55 on two Robert Brickey free throws with 9:02 left, and broke the tie with 8:31 remaining on a free throw by John Smith. North Carolina regained the lead on Steve Bucknall's jumper off the fast break at 5:27, and that was the last Tar Heel field goal. North Carolina missed its last six shots.

Smith hit a layup for a 58-57 lead for Duke with 5:09 remaining and Ferry connected on a 3-pointer at 4:13 for a 61-57 lead.

Williams retaliated with two free throws for North Carolina with 2:26 left, and Lebo fouled Billy King, Duke's poorest free throw shooter, in an attempt to get possession for the Tar Heels.

King, a career 47 percent free throw shooter, missed the front end of a one-and-one, but Ferry got the rebound and hit a short jumper to stretch Duke's lead to 63-59.

"I just stepped in there and the ball bounced my way," Ferry said. "It's something that's been taught to me all my life was just to always be there. I don't think I've always done that, but I was definitely there that time and the ball bounced my way and thank God it did."

Kevin Madden got two free throws for North Carolina with 57 seconds left, thus setting up a frantic finish. Lebo got a steal inside and passed to King Rice, who missed the layup. Duke's Kevin Strickland got the rebound and passed up court to Brickey, who missed the layup.

Snyder grabbed the rebound, was fouled and hit his two clinching free throws.

"As good a team as they are, they always seem to get the lucky break," Strickland said. "All I could think about was they could get a 3-pointer and win the game. I didn't want to think like that but that came into my mind because it was Carolina."

North Carolina had been implored by Coach Dean Smith to prove he could win the big game that has eluded many of his talented teams in the past.

"He was fired up," Lebo said of Smith. "He was ready to play, ready to get all the guys together and he said 'Let's prove everybody wrong this year, prove that we can do it.'"

Smith even admitted at the post-game news conference that he turned up the intensity.

"We are very disappointed. We put a good bit of emotion in this one for the first time in a long time," he said. "We wanted to win it, but congratulate Duke on a great win."

Ferry led the Blue Devils with 19 points. Smith scored 12 and Strickland and Snyder scored 11 for Duke. Lebo led the Tar Heels with 16 points and Madden scored 13 points.

Blue Devils Are Close To Home

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski would like to try a few decorating ideas on the Dean Smith Center when the Blue Devils play their first-round game in the NCAA East Regional at Chapel Hill.

"Hopefully, we can put some royal blue or Duke blue people in those light blue seats," Krzyzewski said in an interview shortly after the announcement of the 64-team tournament field.

The Blue Devils, who won the Atlantic Coast Conference championship by beating North Carolina Sunday, led five of the league's teams into the NCAA basketball tournament and got the additional good news of its berth in Chapel Hill, just 10 miles from home.

The Blue Devils, 24-6, will face Boston University, 23-7, Thursday in the first round of the East Regional at the Dean Smith Center on the University of North Carolina campus. Meanwhile, North Carolina, also 24-6, was sent to the West Regional in Salt Lake City, where it will face North Texas State.

"The tournament committee made a great statement by not just putting people on their home courts unless they felt that they deserved it," Krzyzewski said. "Although Carolina's had a great year, I think we've earned the right to stay in the East."

Tournament selection committee chairman Arnie Ferrin said the winner of the ACC tournament was going to be seeded in Chapel Hill and the loser would go to Salt Lake City.

The Tar Heels weren't the only

ACC team to lose the home-court advantage. Georgia Tech, 21-9, didn't get seeded in the Southeast Regional first round in Atlanta, but instead was bracketed in the East Regional first round at Hartford, where it will face Iowa State of the Big 8 Conference on Friday.

North Carolina State, 24-7, again heads westward, facing Murray State in the Midwest Regional first round at Lincoln, Neb., on Friday. Maryland, which got a first-round ACC tournament victory to enhance its shot at the NCAA, will meet California-Santa Barbara in the first round next Friday in Cincinnati.

In addition to the chance to draw Duke fans to nearby Chapel Hill, Krzyzewski said the Blue Devils need to stay close to home and get some time to heal from the three-day grind of the ACC.

"There are a lot of bumps and bruises. We had so many ice bags out today — Danny's (Ferry) hand, Quin's (Snyder) leg, Kevin's (Strickland) hip, my head," Krzyzewski said. "But, it's nicer recovering after you've won."

"We needed to be close if we're going to play on Thursday because our team's kind of battered right now, physically and emotionally," he said. "To travel would really hurt us, so we're pleased to be there."

Georgia Tech sports information director Mike Finn said while the Yellow Jackets don't play all their home games in The Omni, it is in Atlanta and that might have played a factor.

"The committee was very sensitive to that issue this year," Finn said.

A Long Rebound Ended A Threat

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — One rebound got away from North Carolina and with it went a last chance at the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

Trailing 61-59 with 1:28 to play in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament title game, the Tar Heels sent Billy King, a career 47 percent foul shooter, to the free throw line.

Figuring King would miss, the Tar Heels intended to get the rebound and set up for a tying basket.

That's where Duke's Danny Ferry spoiled things.

King missed, Ferry, rather than a Tar Heel, grabbed the rebound and put up a short jumper that gave the Blue Devils their second ACC tournament championship in three years with a 65-61 victory Sunday.

"You have to hand it to Danny Ferry. We intentionally put King on the line when we were down two," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "We put five men there to squash Ferry and somehow he came up with the rebound and knocked that in."

There was nothing North Carolina could do.

"It was a long rebound. We knew that King wasn't a very good free-throw shooter," Tar Heels forward J.R. Reid said. "It just bounced long and (Ferry) got it."

Years of learning the game of basketball went into that final rebound, Ferry said.

"I just stepped in there and the ball bounced my way," Ferry said. "Something that has been taught to me all my life was just to always be there. I don't think I've always done that, but I was definitely there that time and the ball bounced my way. Thank God it did."

The lost rebound proved to be the last straw for a North Carolina team that had been out to win its first ACC tournament title in six years. Both players and coach showed more emotion than usual.

"He was fired up. He was ready to play, he got us ready to play," Lebo said of Coach Dean Smith.

Smith said, "We put a good deal of emotion into this one, for the first time in a long time."

"I thought we played awfully hard. There was nothing more we could do," Lebo said. "We were ready to win. We were fired up, diving on the floor, talking a lot on the floor, coming together."

"It hurts when you lose a game like that."

North Carolina made just one field goal the final 12 minutes of the title game and made seven of 25 shots (28 percent) the second half.

"We were getting open shots ... maybe the third game our legs were a little gone on the jump shot," Lebo said.

Smith would not let one lost rebound overshadow North Carolina's effort in the final game.

"You saw the game — two teams fighting very hard, and playing very well," Smith said. "But I'm proud of our team and their effort. Yet, I think we can play better."

With the NCAA's post-season tournament, the Tar Heels will have to put their disappointment away quickly.

"I wish we had a week off at this point," Smith said. "But I expect us to regroup and play well in the tournament."

No Real Home Matchups In NCAAs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — There'll be no home cooking in this year's NCAA basketball tournament.

"The process was just excellent this year," committee chairman Arnie Ferrin said Sunday. "We've had some years when we were filling things in as we came down the hallway to be at this news conference. But I believe it's the cleanest bracket we've had in my five years on the committee."

"I think everyone is happy," said Jim Delany, commissioner of the Ohio Valley Conference and a member of the nine-man panel that unveiled the 64-team bracket after four days of closed-door meetings. "It was a tough four days."

As expected, the top four teams in the Associated Press poll captured the No. 1 seeds in the four regionals — Temple in the East, Purdue in the Midwest, Arizona in the West and Oklahoma in the Southeast. But, in something of a surprise, Notre Dame and North Carolina both will be far away when first-round games are played this weekend on their home floors.

Notre Dame, one of two independents in the field, will be at Chapel Hill, N.C., to battle SMU in the East Regional. North Carolina travels to Salt Lake City for a meeting with North Texas State in the West.

Teams playing first and second-round games on their home floor in recent years has been one of the most stinging controversies the committee has weathered.

"We do not have any home-court advantages. It's as simple as that," Ferrin said. "In addition, we tried to eliminate conferences playing against any conference member before their regional. We tried to eliminate any replays of late-season games, whether independents or conference members. Because the process went smoothly, we were able to look at all those details."

Oklahoma is the only top seed shipped out of its natural geographic region. "In the seeding process, Temple was the No. 1 seed in the East," Ferrin said. "Arizona was the No. 1 seed in the West and Purdue is obviously seeded ahead of Oklahoma, and that's why Oklahoma went to the Southeast."

The inevitable complaints arose from 20-victory teams that were left out, notably Arkansas-Little Rock, 24-6, Georgia Southern, 24-6, and New Mexico, 20-13, all of whom accepted invitations to the NIT. The poorest record in the NCAA field belongs to Louisiana State, 16-13.

"LSU played 14 games against top 50 opponents, a very difficult schedule," Ferrin said. "We base at-large candidacies on won-loss record, strength of schedule and strength of opponent schedule. And when your strength of schedule is that good ..."

The Big East leads the conferences with six tournament teams, tying the Big Ten record. The Big Ten has five tournament entries, the first time in four years it did not field six. The Big Eight, Atlantic Coast and Southeastern Conference also had five.

"In my five years on the committee, this is the toughest bracket we've ever put together because of parity," said Ferrin.

First-round action begins Thursday at eight sites in the richest tournament in NCAA history. A bid is worth an estimated $230,000, not counting travel and per diem expenses, which the NCAA provides. Teams advancing to the Final Four April 2-4 in Kansas City will receive more than $1.15 million.

Defending champion Indiana, 19-9, which had been thought to be on the cutting edge, was among 34 teams given at-large bids along with the 30 automatic qualifiers who won their conferences or conference tournaments.

Also on the outside looking in are Louisiana Tech, 21-8, and New Orleans, 21-10, from the new American South Conference, which doesn't get an automatic bid. Siena, 23-5, of the ECAC North Atlantic, also was left out.

"There was a little bit of a sick feeling at first, but you have to expect this," Marshall Coach Rick Huckabay said. Marshall won the Southern Conference regular-season title but lost to Tennessee-Chattanooga in the tournament.

"After I saw where they seeded Chattanooga (16th in the Southeast), then I knew that the respect for our conference just wasn't there," Huckabay said.

Sooners Sitting Pretty

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

With 30 victories, the Big Eight Conference tournament title and the No. 1 seeding in the NCAA Southeast Regional, Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs almost has everything he wants.

"You've got to be happy with it," Tubbs said Sunday after his fourth-ranked Sooners defeated Kansas State 88-83 in the final of the Big Eight tournament. "I thought we would be playing Texas A&I. That's the team we wanted to play."

"But they aren't in the tournament, they aren't even in Division I. So you don't always get to play who you want to."

Instead, Oklahoma will face Tennessee-Chattanooga in a first-round NCAA tournament game.

Stacey King scored 34 points to give Oklahoma the league's automatic bid to the NCAA tournament. King, named the tournament's most valuable player, scored 10 points down the stretch to snuff a Kansas State rally.

"A lot of my success revolves around Harvey (Grant), because if people try to double-team him that leaves me open," King said. "I'm sort of an offensive threat now, too."

Dave Sieger scored 18 points and Grant added 16 for the Sooners, 30-3.

"It's an outstanding thing to win the championship in the tournament and the conference," Tubbs said. "It's special for us because it is a 30-win season. A 20-win season is a heck of a season, but a 30-win season is special."

Kansas State, 22-8, received an at-large invitation for postseason play and will meet LaSalle in the first round of the Midwest Regional. The Wildcats handed Oklahoma one of its three regular-season losses.

In Sunday's contest, Kansas State rallied from a 13-point deficit to cut Oklahoma's lead to 72-66 before falling short.

"We hung in there and kept fighting to the end," Kansas State guard Will Scott said. "We've been fighting all year. We'll be back; no doubt about it."

Steve Henson led Kansas State with 20 points. Mitch Richmond had 19 and Scott 17.

In other conference championship games Sunday, No. 8 Duke defeated No. 9 North Carolina 65-61 in the Atlantic Coast; No. 6 Kentucky beat Georgia 62-57 in the Southeastern; No. 13 Syracuse routed Villanova 85-68 in the Big East; Southern Methodist downed Baylor 75-64 in the Southwest; No. 3 Arizona routed Oregon State 93-67 in the Pacific-10; and Louisville beat Memphis State 81-73 in the Metro.

Tournament winners Saturday were No. 14 Wyoming (Western Athletic), No. 20 Xavier of Ohio (Midwestern Collegiate), Boston University (ECAC North Atlantic), Utah State (Pacific Coast Athletic Association), Eastern Michigan (Mid-American), Murray State (Ohio Valley), Texas-San Antonio (Trans America), and Boise State (Big Sky).

Big East
No. 13 Syracuse 85, Villanova 68
Syracuse, last year's runner-up in the NCAA tournament, won its second Big East tournament title behind 25 points by Stephen Thompson and 24 by Sherman Douglas.

Syracuse led by five points at halftime, and the closest Villanova could get in the second half was 62-56 with 5:14 left. The Orangemen's only previous Big East tournament title came in 1981, when they beat Villanova in triple overtime.

Doug West paced Villanova with 25 points.

Metro
Louisville 81, Memphis St. 73
Herbert Crook scored 24 points as Louisville won its second Metro tournament in three years.

Memphis State rallied in the second half to take a 42-40 lead on Elliot Perry's basket. But the Cardinals went on a 14-2 run to regain control of the game.

Louisville improved to 22-10, while Memphis State dropped to 19-11.

Pacific-10
No. 3 Arizona 93, Oregon St. 67
Sean Elliot scored 20 points and Anthony Cook added 19 for the Wildcats 31-2, while Oregon State fell to 20-10. Arizona's 31 victories broke the Pac-10 record of 30 set by UCLA in 1972-73.

Southeastern
No. 6 Kentucky 62, Georgia 57
Rex Chapman scored four of his 23 points in the final 16 seconds to spark Kentucky.

Georgia, playing for the fourth day in a row, led the Wildcats much of the game before Winston Bennett's short jumper gave Kentucky the lead for good at 58-57.

The Wildcats, 25-5, will carry a seven-game winning streak into the NCAA tournament. It was their 16th title in 27 conference tournaments.

Southwest
SMU 75, Baylor 64
Kato Armstrong scored 23 points as Southern Methodist won its first SWC tournament and set a school record with its 27th victory against six losses.

The defeat snapped a 10-game winning streak for Baylor, 23-9. Michael Williams scored 31 points for Baylor, including 21 on 3-point shots.

Western Athletic
No. 14 Wyoming 79, Texas-El Paso 75
Eric Leckner scored 22 points, including four late in the game, as Wyoming won the WAC for the second straight year. The victory gave the Cowboys a 26-5 record, their most victories since the 1951-52 season.

REGULAR SEASON
No. 2 Purdue 93, Minnesota 66
Big Ten champion Purdue got 17 points from Troy Lewis and outscored Minnesota 19-4 over the final five minutes to finish the season with a school-record 27 victories.

No. 10 Michigan 95, Ohio St. 76
Glen Rice scored 29 points for the Wolverines, 24-7, who scored the final eight points of the first half to take a 42-31 lead.

Indiana 116, No. 15 Iowa 89
Keith Smart scored a career-high 32 points as Indiana set an Assembly Hall record for points in its third highest-scoring game ever. The Hoosiers improved to 19-9.

No. 19 Illinois 79, Northwestern 74
Ken Battle had 21 points as Illinois tied Iowa for third place in the Big Ten. The Illini ended the regular season 22-9 overall and 12-6 in the conference.

The tract previously being sometimes referred to as the Schoolhouse Lot, excepting that portion as shown in the aforesaid Robert Sutton Deed.

No farm acreage allotments.

The aforesaid Tract No. 7D, having been duly raised, will be sold at an opening bid of TWELVE THOUSAND EIGHT HUNDRED SIXTY DOLLARS ($12,860.00).

The described lands shall be sold subject to ad valorem tax and drainage assessments which may be assessed against the property beginning with the year 1988 and subsequent years of cropland acres on each farm tract.

The described lands shall be sold according to the highest bid over the first One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00). All bids shall remain open for ten (10) days, subject to a raised bid, and are subject to the confirmation of the Court.

Anyone desiring to see maps of the properties to be sold may contact Mr. James Nelson of the firm of Owens, Rouse and Nelson, 105 West 3rd Street, Greenville, NC.

The farm acreage allotments on the above described lands for the year 1987 are as follows:
Farm C556: 86.4 acres cropland; 21.7 acres corn base; 6.7 acres tobacco (13,976 lbs.)
Farm C61: 38.2 acres cropland; 12.2 acres corn; 4.2 acres wheat; 58.8 acres tobacco (5,157 lbs.)
Farm C8998: 79.2 acres cropland; 21.8 acres corn; 5.1 acres wheat; 6.68 acres tobacco (13,974 lbs.)
Farm Q2477: 18.9 acres cropland; 9.9 acres corn; 1.92 acres tobacco (3,817 lbs.)

Top Four Retain Spots For Final Top 20 Poll

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Basketball Writer

Temple, Arizona, Purdue and Oklahoma, the top four seeds in the NCAA tournament, remained the top four teams in the final college basketball poll of the season, which was released today.

The four teams have held those spots for the past five weeks, although Arizona and Purdue switched places from those previous polls.

Temple, 29-1 and Atlantic 10 champions, was tabbed top seed in the poll with 51 first-place votes and 1,187 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters.

The Pac-10 champion Arizona Wildcats, 31-2, received eight first-place votes and 1,123 points in moving up one place in the voting.

The Top Twenty teams in the final Associated Press college basketball poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, total points based on 20-19-18-17-16-15-14-13-12-11-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1, records through March 13 and last week's ranking:

Record	Pts	Pvs
1. Temple (51)	29-1	1187-1
2. Arizona (8)	31-2	1123-3
3. Purdue (1)	27-3	1059-2

March Madness ...

appearance are Eastern Michigan, North Texas State, Cal-Santa Barbara, Seton Hall and Texas-San Antonio.

"We had to leave out some excellent teams," Ferrin said. "One of the things that helped a great deal is we did not have a lot of postseason tournament upsets. We were very fortunate. I believe this is the cleanest bracket we've ever had."

Only the Ivy League, Big Ten and Mid-Continent conferences give their automatic berths to their regular-season champions. Purdue, Cornell and Southwest Missouri State got this bids.

Second-round action at all sites that begin play on Thursday will be on Saturday. Other first-round games will be held on Friday, with the second round on Sunday.

Second-round winners advance to the regionals — at Pontiac, Mich., March 25-27 in the Midwest; at East Rutherford, N.J., March 24-26 in the East; at Seattle March 25-27 in the West, and at Birmingham, Ala., March 24-26 in the Southeast.

In the East on Friday, Temple, 27-1, the top-ranked team in the nation, meets Lehigh, 21-9, at Hartford, Conn.; Georgetown, 19-9, duels Louisiana State, 16-13; Georgia Tech, 21-9, meets Iowa State, 20-11, and Indiana, 19-9, plays Richmond, 24-6.

In the Midwest Regional at Lincoln, Neb., on Friday, Kansas, 21-11, meets Xavier, Ohio, 26-3; North Carolina State, 24-7, faces Murray State, 21-8; Vanderbilt, 18-10, plays Utah State, 21-9, and Pitt, 23-6, takes on Eastern Michigan, 22-7.

In the West Regional on Friday at Los Angeles, Arizona, 31-2, meets Cornell, 17-9; Seton Hall, 21-12, plays Texas-El Paso, 23-9; Iowa, 22-9, battles Florida State, 19-10, and Nevada-Las Vegas, 27-5, plays Southwest Missouri State, 22-6.

At Cincinnati on Friday in the Southeast Regional, first-round action will conclude with Villanova, 21-12, against Arkansas, 21-8; Illinois, 22-9, against Texas-San Antonio, 22-8; Maryland, 17-12, against Cal-Santa Barbara, 22-7, and Kentucky, 25-5, against Southern-Baton Rouge, 24-6.

12. Nev.-Las Vegas	27-5	533-7
13. Wyoming	26-5	446-14
14. N. Carolina State	24-7	418-11
15. Loyola, Calif.	27-3	335-16
16. Illinois	22-9	302-19
17. Iowa	22-9	198-15
18. Xavier, Ohio	26-3	166-20
19. Brigham Young	25-5	142-17
20. Kansas State	22-8	122--

FINAL FOUR COUNTDOWN

2nd Half Keys Wins

By The Associated Press
 Whatever Denver Coach Doug Moe and Seattle's Bernie Bickert said at halftime, Alex English and Tom Chambers must have been listening. English made all seven of his shots and scored 14 of his 36 points in the third period of the Nuggets' 108-100 NBA victory over the Indiana Pacers on Sunday.

"I didn't shoot well in the first half (2-of-11) because I was getting hit on my shots," English said. "By the time the second half rolled around, I was getting open shots."

Meanwhile, Chambers was 6-for-6 from the floor and 7-of-7 from the foul line and scored 19 of his 25 points in the third period of the SuperSonics' 115-102 triumph over the New Jersey Nets.

Fat Lever scored 21 points, one of six Denver players in double figures. Wayman Tisdale led Indiana with 29. "We played tough defense," English said. "Our third-quarter defense is what really broke this game open. We were able to get out in front and keep the Pacers at bay."

Bucks 117, Suns 107
 Terry Cummings scored 27 points and reserve Ricky Pierce added 22 as Milwaukee handed Phoenix its ninth straight defeat. Phoenix was led by Armon Gilliam and Kevin Johnson with 18 points.

Rockets 125, Warriors 112
 Akeem Olajuwon scored 25 points and grabbed eight rebounds and Sleepy Floyd added 23 points, giving Houston a five-game sweep of the Warriors this season. Golden State, playing without Ralph Sampson and Larry Smith, was led by Dave Feit with a career-high 19 points. Trail Blazers 121, Clippers 100

 Kevin Duckworth scored 29 points and Clyde Drexler added 22. It was Portland's eighth straight victory and 11th in the last 12 games. Los Angeles, led by Larry Drew's 22 points, lost its seventh consecutive game and 23rd straight on the road. The Clippers haven't won in Portland since Feb. 24, 1981.

Sports Notes

ECU's McNeill Takes 7th Place At NCAAs

OKLAHOMA CITY — East Carolina's Lee Vernon McNeill finished seventh in the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Meet's 55-meter dash Saturday night. Lee McRae of Pittsburgh won the race in 6.07 seconds while McNeill finished in 6.24.

ECU's Baseball Game Rained Out

The East Carolina baseball team's scheduled doubleheader with Rhode Island Sunday was cancelled and will not be rescheduled, ECU officials announced. Today, the Pirates, 10-3, begin a two-game series with Connecticut beginning at 3 p.m.

Ferry Tops ACC All-Tournament Choices

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Danny Ferry, whose late basket led eighth-ranked Duke to a 65-61 victory over No. 9 North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament championship, was a unanimous selection in Sunday's balloting for the all-tournament team. Ferry got 196 points, followed by North Carolina's J.R. Reid with 193, Robert Brickey of Duke was next in the balloting at 160, and North Carolina's Scott Williams received 142 points. Charles Shackelford of North Carolina State capped the team with 139 points. Named to the second team were Jeff Lebo of North Carolina with 134, Duke's Quin Snyder with 107 and Maryland's Keith Gatlin with 91 points. Vinny Del Negro of N.C. State got 57 points and teammate Rodney Monroe got 52 points.

Duke Happy To Be In Chapel Hill

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — It may not be home for eighth-ranked Duke, but it's close enough. The Blue Devils, 24-6, were made the No. 2 seed in the East bracket of the NCAA post-season basketball tournament and that means they'll play their first two tournament games in the home of a close rival — Dean Smith Center at Chapel Hill, N.C.

"We're especially pleased that we're the No. 2 seed," Krzyzewski said in a telephone interview Sunday night. "That's a big sign from the NCAA that says, 'You're one of the top eight teams in the country.' I'm really pleased for my team as far as that goes."

Playing just 10 miles from their Durham, N.C., campus is just what the Blue Devils need coming off a hard-fought Atlantic Coast Conference tournament championship. The Blue Devils defeated the North Carolina 65-61 in Sunday's title game.

"As far as playing in Chapel Hill, I think that's a Thursday game, and for us, we needed to be close (to home) because our team is really battered right now emotionally and physically," Krzyzewski said. "I think to travel a lot would really hurt us."

"So we're pleased to be there. Hopefully, we can put some Duke blue people in those light blue seats."

The Blue Devils will play Boston University, 23-7, in one of four games Thursday on the campus of the University of North Carolina. Boston University finished second in the ECAC North Atlantic Conference and then won the conference's tournament.

Temple, the top-ranked team in the East bracket, top eight teams which will open tournament play in Hartford, Conn. Syracuse, 25-8, the No. 3 seed in the East, also opens tournament play Thursday at Chapel Hill against North Carolina A&T, 26-2.

The other two games scheduled for Thursday will be Southern Methodist, 26-6, against Notre Dame, 20-8; and Missouri, 19-10, against Rhode Island, 26-6.

Second-round games are scheduled for Saturday.

Clemson at 14-14 Makes NIT Tourney

NEW YORK (AP) — The 32-team National Invitation Tournament field includes 14 of the 20 teams with at least 20 victories that didn't make the NCAA Tournament. Clemson, however, isn't one of them.

The Tigers are the only team in either tourney with a .500 record and their 14-14 log earned them the right to visit defending NIT champion Southern Mississippi on Friday night.

"The way we finished the season with wins over Duke and Georgia Tech and the way we played in the ACC Tournament against North Carolina State certainly had an effect on us getting into the tournament," Coach Cliff Ellis said.

"Overall, we are happy to be in the NIT because we have a young team and we can use more experience toward next year. We are going to play hard and do the best we can."

The NIT, the nation's oldest postseason college basketball tourney, gets under way Wednesday night when Old Dominion, 18-11, visits Ohio State, 16-12. The tournament will be held at campus sites until the semifinals and finals in New York's Madison Square Garden on March 29-30.

Six teams with at least 20 wins failed to make either tournament. They are Akron, 21-7; Florida A&M, 22-8; George Mason, 20-10; Lamar, 20-11; St. Peter's, 20-9, and Texas Southern, 21-8. Akron tied NCAA invitee DePaul for the best record among the nation's independents.

The opening round includes two games between teams with 20 or more victories — Louisiana Tech, 21-8, at Arkansas-Little Rock, 24-6, on Thursday night and Virginia Commonwealth, 21-11, at Marshall, 24-7, on Friday night.

It also includes two interesting intrastate pairings — Georgia Southern, 24-6, at Georgia, 19-15, on Thursday night and Tennessee, 16-12, at Middle Tennessee State, 21-10, on Friday night.

After Wednesday's Old Dominion-Ohio State opener, the first round continues on Thursday night with eight games, including Louisiana Tech at Arkansas-Little Rock and Georgia Southern-Georgia. The others are Connecticut, 15-14, at West Virginia, 18-13; Fordham, 18-14, at Houston, 17-12; Utah, 19-10, at Evansville, 20-7; Pepperdine, 17-12, at New Mexico, 20-13; Siena, 23-5, at Boston College, 15-13, and Santa Clara, 20-10, at Oregon, 15-13.

Seven games will be held on Friday night. Besides Clemson-Southern Mississippi, Virginia Commonwealth-Marshall and Tennessee-Middle Tennessee, they are Northeast Louisiana, 21-8, at Arkansas State, 19-13; New Orleans, 20-10, at Colorado State, 18-12; Illinois State, 18-12, at Cleveland State, 21-7, and Long Beach State, 17-11, at Stanford, 20-11. It is Stanford's first postseason appearance since it won the NCAA Tournament in 1942.

The second round is scheduled for March 21-22 and the quarter-finals March 25-26.

The NCAA bypassed New Mexico for the second year in a row. The Lobos were 25-10 last year. This season, their victims included Arizona and Wyoming. Coach Gary Colson had said that he would prefer not to play in the NIT.

"I don't care anything about it because I had another dream, another goal," he said.

But after New Mexico accepted the NIT bid, Colson said: "I know some people will be critical because it's a three-letter tournament, but I think the only thing that matters is what the players want."

For a luxurious Centipede lawn USE Centi-Seed®

Centi-Seed® has produced more good lifetime Southern lawns than any other grass seed brand in history.

- For more than a generation, thousands of lovely lawns have been established annually with Centi-Seed, the original and dependable Centipede grass seed. New Centi-Seed is treated for fungus and bacteria protection and with a natural growth stimulant for quicker, surer results. Centipede develops and grows slower than other grasses but unlike "quicker starters" it produces a dense, weed-free, lifetime turf. Ask your neighbor who has used it and insist on Centi-Seed for planting your new lawn or converting your old lawn.
- Thrives in sun and light shade
  - Grows in any soil, rich or poor
  - Hugs the ground—requires little mowing
  - Permanent, grows more lovely each year
  - Requires very little fertilization
  - Develops weed-resistant dense sod
  - For new lawns or to convert old lawns
  - Costs less to plant and far less to maintain

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY March 15

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You can easily gain the necessary backing from a superior for a project you have in mind. Have more confidence in your abilities.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You will be faced with a tough decision concerning a credit matter, so study the details carefully before you make up your mind.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You will have to make a spur-of-the-moment trip soon, so be ready for it. Delve into a new interest, and you can get some fine results.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): A good business deal will be offered to you today, so don't let it slip through your fingers. Team-work is your key word today.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): You tend to stick to old-fashioned ideas and procedures, but you can greatly improve your productivity by seeking out some more modern methods.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Get together with your co-workers and brainstorm about how you can be more efficient. Some very fine results can come of this.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Your energy level, both mentally and physically, is very high right now, so be sure to use it wisely. Don't refuse to do a favor for a friend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): A talk with some family friends can open your eyes to a great opportunity. This evening will be a good time for socializing.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): You may be in a rather gloomy mood today, so visit some cheerful friends who will revive your spirits. Pay attention to traffic laws.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Find a way to improve the value of your property, then get right to work on it. Seek out and heed the advice of a financial expert.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Take the time to indulge in fulfilling a personal wish this morning. Don't allow a stubborn friend to sidetrack your plans.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Get started on a plan you have had in mind, as you can now make a go of it and get good results. Try to be more understanding of your mate.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠Q943 ♥7 ♦AQ65 ♣KJ52
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 3 ♥ Dbl Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—You have a hand which might produce a slam in any one, or all, of three suits. Since you are not in a position to select either the strain or the level, tell partner of your good hand by cue-bidding four hearts.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠Q982 ♥85 ♦K107 ♣Q876
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 3 ♥ Dbl Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—When partner doubles for takeout at the three-level, he expects to find you with some 6-8 points. You hold just your fair share of the outstanding points, so don't do any more than simply respond three spades.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AQ10952 ♥8 ♦KJ6 ♣K95
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 3 ♥ Dbl Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Opposite a three-level takeout double, especially since partner has guaranteed spade support. Don't beat around the bush. Ask for ace via Blackwood. Your only quandary is whether to go for a grand slam should partner hold all the missing aces.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠Q9852 ♥KJ9 ♦Q103 ♣J5
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 3 ♥ Dbl Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—With a sure spade fit, it might seem that three or four spades would be the recommended action. However, with half of your values in the enemy suit, three no trump seems more logical. Your spades will be a source of tricks at no trump as well.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AKJ10 ♥95 ♦K107 ♣AK97
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—You have a close decision between two no trump and one spade.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AJ54 ♥83 ♦K72 ♣KQ6
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Despite the great disparity in strength between this hand and the previous example, the correct rebid is still one spade. This time, however, there isn't even a second choice. Never suppress a reasonable four-card suit at the one-level in favor of bidding one no trump.

"Advertisement Of The City of Greenville Tax Lien On Real Property"

Under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by Section 105-369 of the North Carolina General Statutes and pursuant to an order of the City Council of the City of Greenville, dated February 11, 1988, I am hereby advertising unpaid taxes that are liens on real estate described below for the tax year 1987. The amount advertised is computed for payment thru March 31, 1988, however, the omission of interest and cost from the amount advertised will not constitute a waiver of this taxing units claim for these items.

The real estate is listed in the name of the listed owner as of January 1, 1987 and if applicable to whom the real property has transferred to since listed; along with the tax parcel, map block and not numbers.

If the taxes remain unpaid, the lien will be foreclosed by the taxing unit of the property sold to satisfy the taxing units claim.

This the 14th day of March, 1988.

Floyd E. Little Collector of Revenue

Note: For payments in March add $2.00 Cost.

'Rat Pack' Tour Opens To Sell-Out

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr. and Dean Martin opened their 29-city "rat pack" reunion tour to a sell-out crowd of 14,500, proving they can still doo-be-doo-be-do it with the best.

"How long have I been on?" a bawling Martin asked the bandleader as the 35-piece orchestra warmed up for the first number, "When You're Drinking," a parody of the old "When You're Smiling."

Martin's cocktail lounge manner and slurred one-liners, with trademark cigarette and drink in hand, set the tone for an evening that brought young and old fans to their feet.

Sunday night's Oakland Coliseum show was the first of 40 performances on the tour, which is expected to generate $20 million and a Home Box Office cable television special.

Martin, 70, Davis, 62, and Sinatra, 72, first appeared together at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev., in January 1960.

Martin joked his way through sometimes sentimental versions of "Everybody Loves Somebody (Sometime)," "That's Amore," and "Little Ole Wine Drinker Me."

Davis provided a powerful contrast to his seemingly sloshed co-star, winning applause when he announced that this is his 59th year in show business and when he told the audience he had been sober for the last three.

"I gotta tell you the truth. Everybody backstage is being very cool," he said. "I wasn't this scared when I lived at 147th Street and 8th Avenue in New York."

Davis, who recently underwent hip surgery, did not dance but won ovations for "Candy Man," "What Kind of Fool Am I?" and "Bojangles."

But it was Sinatra who stole the show, opening the second half with a string of the songs that have kept him in superstar ranks for almost a half century.

Sinatra fans, young and old, went wild as "Old Blue Eyes" belted out such favorites as "What Now My Love?" "Maybe This Time," "For Once in My Life," "Mack The Knife" and "New York, New York."

Sinatra was then rejoined by Martin and Davis, who told Sinatra, "As far as we're concerned, and I can say this for the two of us, you're still the chairman of the board."

"Yeah," quipped Martin. "You're still the chairman and we're still bored."

The fans weren't bored, though. "I saw Frank 15 years ago in Vegas and he's better than he's ever been," said Karen Chaux, 38, of Alameda. Her husband, Dan, added, "I'm sorry we didn't buy tickets for our parents."

The "Rat Pack" moniker, from Humphrey Bogart, was given to Davis, Sinatra, Martin, the late Peter Lawford and other performers who lived in the same area of Beverly Hills nearly three decades ago.

Bill Cosby Gathers Four 'People's Choice' Awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Bill Cosby won four People's Choice Awards and the movie "Fatal Attraction" won three from an admiring public that also bestowed honors on Cybill Shepherd, Dolly Parton and Whitney Houston.

"This is particularly special for me," said Miss Shepherd, named favorite female television performer for her role in ABC's "Moonlighting" despite a shortened role last year due to her pregnancy with twins.

"When you're out of the limelight, you're pregnant with twins and gain 45 pounds and you go through this enormous change, it always goes through the back of your mind, 'Are they going to forget?'"

"It's really nice to know they didn't forget."

The public chose the winners in the 14th annual People's Choice Awards, broadcast Sunday night by CBS-TV.

Winners were determined by a Gallup poll of 5,000 people older than 12, a statistical representation of nearly 196 million people.

Cosby was named favorite male TV performer for the fourth consecutive year and favorite all-around male entertainer for the third. He also won a new award — all-time favorite TV star — while his top-rated NBC-TV series, "The Cosby Show," won its fourth comedy program award.

NBC's "L.A. Law" was the favorite TV dramatic program.

"Three Men and A Baby" won for comedy movie and "Fatal Attraction" for dramatic motion picture. Its leads, Michael Douglas and Glenn Close, were picked top motion picture performers.

"I want to thank you as my favorite father, and a supporter," Douglas told his father, Kirk Douglas, who presented the award.

"I got so nervous when I got up I didn't thank the people," Miss Close said afterward. "And that's what makes it so special. It's just a cross section of people who have nothing to do with the industry."

Clint Eastwood was chosen all-time favorite movie star, an award presented by Jimmy Stewart.

Miss Parton won favorite all-around female entertainer, and favorite female performer in a new TV program for ABC's "Dolly."

"It's always nice to be recognized," she said backstage. "This has been a hard year and I've been working really hard on this TV show. It's really nice to know the people are on my side."

Kenny Rogers won his eighth award as male musical performer, tying with Cosby, Burt Reynolds and Barbara Mandrell as an eight-time winner of an individual category.

In other awards, Oprah Winfrey dethroned Johnny Carson as favorite television talk show host, Miss Houston was the favorite female musical performer, the group Bon Jovi was chosen favorite rock group, and Barbra Streisand was the favorite all-time musical star.

John Ritter was the favorite male performer in a new television program for ABC's "Hooperman," while Kirk Cameron of ABC's "Growing Pains" and Keshia Knight-Pulliam of

Porno Film Star John Holmes Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pornographic film star John Holmes has died, his manager said. He was 43 years old and reportedly had AIDS.

Holmes, the leading male star of sex films of the 1970s and early '80s, died Saturday night at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Sepulveda, 20 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles, said his manager, adult film producer William Amerson.

The cause of death was not immediately known, Amerson said. The Los Angeles Times, citing anonymous sources, reported earlier this month that Holmes was gravely ill with acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Holmes' death came weeks after police questioned him in the unsolved 1981 bludgeoning murders of four people in a Laurel Canyon home. Holmes was acquitted of the murders during a 1982 trial.

'Rat Pack' Tour Opens To Sell-Out

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr. and Dean Martin opened their 29-city "rat pack" reunion tour to a sell-out crowd of 14,500, proving they can still doo-be-doo-be-do it with the best.

"How long have I been on?" a bawling Martin asked the bandleader as the 35-piece orchestra warmed up for the first number, "When You're Drinking," a parody of the old "When You're Smiling."

Martin's cocktail lounge manner and slurred one-liners, with trademark cigarette and drink in hand, set the tone for an evening that brought young and old fans to their feet.

Sunday night's Oakland Coliseum show was the first of 40 performances on the tour, which is expected to generate $20 million and a Home Box Office cable television special.

Martin, 70, Davis, 62, and Sinatra, 72, first appeared together at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev., in January 1960.

Martin joked his way through sometimes sentimental versions of "Everybody Loves Somebody (Sometime)," "That's Amore," and "Little Ole Wine Drinker Me."

Davis provided a powerful contrast to his seemingly sloshed co-star, winning applause when he announced that this is his 59th year in show business and when he told the audience he had been sober for the last three.

"I gotta tell you the truth. Everybody backstage is being very cool," he said. "I wasn't this scared when I lived at 147th Street and 8th Avenue in New York."

Davis, who recently underwent hip surgery, did not dance but won ovations for "Candy Man," "What Kind of Fool Am I?" and "Bojangles."

But it was Sinatra who stole the show, opening the second half with a string of the songs that have kept him in superstar ranks for almost a half century.

Sinatra fans, young and old, went wild as "Old Blue Eyes" belted out such favorites as "What Now My Love?" "Maybe This Time," "For Once in My Life," "Mack The Knife" and "New York, New York."

Sinatra was then rejoined by Martin and Davis, who told Sinatra, "As far as we're concerned, and I can say this for the two of us, you're still the chairman of the board."

"Yeah," quipped Martin. "You're still the chairman and we're still bored."

The fans weren't bored, though. "I saw Frank 15 years ago in Vegas and he's better than he's ever been," said Karen Chaux, 38, of Alameda. Her husband, Dan, added, "I'm sorry we didn't buy tickets for our parents."

The "Rat Pack" moniker, from Humphrey Bogart, was given to Davis, Sinatra, Martin, the late Peter Lawford and other performers who lived in the same area of Beverly Hills nearly three decades ago.

Bill Cosby Gathers Four 'People's Choice' Awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Bill Cosby won four People's Choice Awards and the movie "Fatal Attraction" won three from an admiring public that also bestowed honors on Cybill Shepherd, Dolly Parton and Whitney Houston.

"This is particularly special for me," said Miss Shepherd, named favorite female television performer for her role in ABC's "Moonlighting" despite a shortened role last year due to her pregnancy with twins.

"When you're out of the limelight, you're pregnant with twins and gain 45 pounds and you go through this enormous change, it always goes through the back of your mind, 'Are they going to forget?'"

"It's really nice to know they didn't forget."

The public chose the winners in the 14th annual People's Choice Awards, broadcast Sunday night by CBS-TV.

Winners were determined by a Gallup poll of 5,000 people older than 12, a statistical representation of nearly 196 million people.

Cosby was named favorite male TV performer for the fourth consecutive year and favorite all-around male entertainer for the third. He also won a new award — all-time favorite TV star — while his top-rated NBC-TV series, "The Cosby Show," won its fourth comedy program award.

NBC's "L.A. Law" was the favorite TV dramatic program.

"Three Men and A Baby" won for comedy movie and "Fatal Attraction" for dramatic motion picture. Its leads, Michael Douglas and Glenn Close, were picked top motion picture performers.

"I want to thank you as my favorite father, and a supporter," Douglas told his father, Kirk Douglas, who presented the award.

"I got so nervous when I got up I didn't thank the people," Miss Close said afterward. "And that's what makes it so special. It's just a cross section of people who have nothing to do with the industry."

Clint Eastwood was chosen all-time favorite movie star, an award presented by Jimmy Stewart.

Miss Parton won favorite all-around female entertainer, and favorite female performer in a new TV program for ABC's "Dolly."

"It's always nice to be recognized," she said backstage. "This has been a hard year and I've been working really hard on this TV show. It's really nice to know the people are on my side."

Kenny Rogers won his eighth award as male musical performer, tying with Cosby, Burt Reynolds and Barbara Mandrell as an eight-time winner of an individual category.

In other awards, Oprah Winfrey dethroned Johnny Carson as favorite television talk show host, Miss Houston was the favorite female musical performer, the group Bon Jovi was chosen favorite rock group, and Barbra Streisand was the favorite all-time musical star.

John Ritter was the favorite male performer in a new television program for ABC's "Hooperman," while Kirk Cameron of ABC's "Growing Pains" and Keshia Knight-Pulliam of

"The Cosby Show" tied for favorite young TV performer.

The top new TV dramatic program was "thirtysomething" on ABC, while NBC's "A Different World" and "My Two Dads" tied in the new TV comedy category.

In a new category, the all-time favorite song was "Somewhere My Love (Lara's Theme)" from the 1965 film, "Dr. Zhivago."

Where does Wayne Wagoner get all that energy?

Average energy is enough for average people. But to become an achiever, you need above average energy. Wayne Wagoner found that out. He discovered that building a successful career meant building his energy level. And he's been doing just that through a goal-oriented exercise program with the facilities of Athletic Clubs, Inc. Wayne credits a good deal of his success to the extra stamina and endurance we've helped him develop. And we can do the same for you.

At the Greenville Athletic Club, you'll gain the stamina that a competitive work day demands. Your heart will become more efficient, your lung capacity greater, your legs and lower back stronger. So you can work longer and more efficiently.

Every Greenville Athletic Club exercise program is individualized. Highly trained staff members design and supervise your program.

Increasing the pace gradually. And safely. You'll never do more than your body can handle.

The Greenville Athletic Club is an exclusive health club. Luxurious facilities. State-of-the-art amenities. Superior staff. Quality of service equal to none. You'll be in and out in an hour. With no appointments.

Our 1,500 plus members include over 20 corporations. Chief executive officers. Vice presidents. Managers. Men and women who look fitter, feel better and are more energetic.

So come on in and have a look around. You'll see men and women like yourself. Running, rowing, cycling, swimming, lifting and climbing their way to success.
