Debt Grows For U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deficit in the broadest measure of U.S. foreign trade surged to a record $160.7 billion in 1987 with the additional red ink pushing the country further into the hole as the world's largest debtor nation, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said that the current account deficit last year was 13.7 percent higher than the previous record of $141.4 billion set in 1986 despite the fact that the deficit for the final three months of the year narrowed slightly.

The current account covers not only the flow of merchandise across the U.S. border but also the flow of services, primarily investment earnings, between countries.

While the United States has run deficits in merchandise trade for 16 of the past 17 years, the current account was in surplus as recently as 1981 as Americans' earnings on overseas investments were enough to offset the merchandise deficits.

But since that time Americans have handed over billions of dollars to foreigners in exchange for imported goods. With all of that wealth now in foreign hands, the perennial advantage the United States has had in investments has shifted and America has become the world's largest debtor country.

Being a net debtor means that foreigners now own more in U.S. investments than Americans hold in

Jackson Predicts Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — Democrat Jesse Jackson predicted victory and a "significant breakthrough" in today's Illinois presidential primary, which began with a light turnout in cold weather, while Vice President George Bush wondered aloud what was keeping Republican rival Bob Dole in the race.

"I'm not sure I understand what he's doing," said Bush during a final campaign swing in the state where polls were forecasting a landslide victory over his GOP rivals.

But both Dole and Pat Robertson were insisting they were staying in the race, though the former television evangelist said he would re-evaluate his status if he gets less than 5 percent of the vote.

Between 2.5 million and 3 million voters were expected to turn out for the primary on a wintry day. Kel Hudson, associate director of the state Board of Elections, said that would represent 46 percent to 48 percent of the registered voters.

Illinois does not have party registration so voters could choose a Democratic or Republican ballot at their polling place.

Initial reports from Chicago precincts were of a light turnout. Precinct captain William Smar said that during the first hour and a half his polling place was open, only 15 of the 498 registered voters had cast ballots, nearly all of them Democrats.

"It's more quiet than normal for this type of election," said Thomas Leach, spokesman for the city election commission.

Illinois voters express their presidential preference in a non-binding beauty contest and also elect convention delegates. It was possible a candidate would do well in the popular vote, but lose out in the contest for delegates to a contender who had stronger slates filed in the state's 22 congressional districts.

As if to emphasize his determination to fight on, Dole flew to Wisconsin and Connecticut to campaign in two of the states that follow Illinois.

Sen. Paul Simon said, "I will win" his home state's Democratic primary, and conceded second place in either the popular vote or the delegate contest would not be good enough.

Young Drivers To Stay

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Department of Labor officials have agreed to a transition plan under which certain 17-year-olds can continue to drive North Carolina school buses until June 15, Gov. Jim Martin announced today.

The agreement requires the state to comply with several department stipulations. It came after Labor Secretary Ann McLaughlin's announced earlier this month that a previous extension allowing 17-year-olds to drive buses for the remainder of the 1987-88 school year had been terminated.

"My office has worked very hard with the Department of Labor to resolve this problem," Martin said in a prepared statement issued this morning. "I have informed Secretary McLaughlin that, with the full support of the North Carolina State Board of Education, I will seek a $24 million budget amendment during the June session of the General Assembly to increase the school bus drivers pay rate."

Martin said the higher pay will make it possible for the state to attract and hire additional adult drivers.

"During our discussions with Secretary McLaughlin, I think it became apparent that our school children would be a lot safer riding with 17-year-olds with seven or eight months of bus driving experience than it would be to have them riding with drivers who have little or no experi-

Players' Trials Postponed

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

Five East Carolina University football players had their trials continued in Pitt County District Court Monday.

Lester Errol McCorvey, 19, of Pensacola, Fla., Ernest L. Pendleton, 18, of Devon, Pa., and Lewis E. Wilson, 21, of Foley, Ala., will return to District Court April 11 to face charges stemming from a reported assault on a female in Scott Residence Hall on Feb. 21.

Milton Fitch, attorney for McCorvey and Pendleton, and Hugh Cox, Wilson's attorney, said they were ready to try the case, but Assistant District Attorney Betsy Warren asked Judge Jim Martin for a continuance because the prosecution's witness had not been subpoenaed and one of the investigating campus officers, Stanley Kittrell, was sick and unable to appear in court.

At least five other campus police officers were also involved in the case, said Joe Caulder, ECU Director of Public Safety.

Once the continuance was granted, Fitch requested April 11 for the new trial date. Ms. Warren asked Martin for a different date because she could not appear in court that day to resume the case, but Martin rescheduled the trial for April 11. Someone else from the district attorney's office will likely take over the case.

Michael Shane Hubbell, 18, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Ernest Edward Logan II, 19, of Spring Lake were also in court Monday on charges stemming from separate incidents near College Hill Drive on Feb. 27.

Hubbell will return to District Court March 31 to face charges of assault and damage to personal property and Logan will return to court April 18 to face assault charges.

All five students have been suspended from the football team pending the outcome of their trials. Associate Athletic Director Henry Van Sant said each situation will be reviewed individually.

GUC 2nd In Consultants' Use

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Staff writers Cherie Evans, Carol Tyer, Greg Laudick and Jerry Raynor contributed to research for this article.

The Greenville Utilities Commission ranks a high second — just behind Pitt County Memorial Hospital — among governmental entities in Pitt County on the amount spent for consultants since the beginning of the 1985-86 fiscal year.

The GUC's total in the past 2½ years: more than $505,600 spent for professional advice or services.

"Most any utility, regardless of size, has a need for consultants," according to Malcolm Green, GUC's general manager. "You have a need for their expertise regardless of your staff size, whether you're a small or medium size utility. It just simply means that you're using a different level of consultants or you're using, as in our case, a much higher, specialized level of consultant to do the work.

"The level and size of our staff is very much larger than maybe some of our neighboring cities. A lot of the things that they need and legitimately use consultants for, we probably do in-house. But for them to do it in-house, they would have to staff way higher than they should," Green suggested.

"You can use a consultant to do something for you that you don't need to do full time," Green said. "Consultants can come in and give you the benefit of their high level of expertise for a short period of time ... give you an end product and then be off the payroll."

This is the third article in a four-part series exploring the amount of money spent on consulting fees by public entities in Pitt County since 1985.

Green cited the asbestos problem at the old power plant complex off West Third Street as an example of how a consultant can be brought in to examine a problem and provide alternatives for the problem's solution.

"The steam pipes had asbestos. We were going to take bids on having the asbestos removed. But we know that if we can define exactly how much asbestos is there and in what area of that power plant, and which area its not in ... define volumes and types of material," the cost of removal

"might be reduced by 10 to 15 percent."

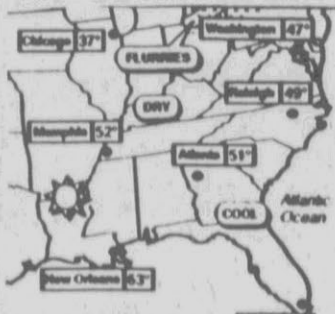

"If we can hire someone to do the inventory and write a specification proposal that reduces the cost (estimated at $500,000) of having it removed by 10 percent, then I spend $5,000 to save $50,000. That certainly is an effective use of a consultant," Green said.

The GUC board, in January, approved spending up to $2,025 for the asbestos inventory. That has been completed, Green said. The next step is to write specifications for a contract for the asbestos removal.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES

The Extension Service provides unbiased publications, weed response charts, weed identification guides, training programs and computer programs to help farmers understand capabilities and limitations of various herbicides, proper selection and application of herbicides and weed information.

Most of our dealers and distributors are also doing a good job in this area.

I am very concerned, however, that some farmers apparently still do not understand certain basic principles of weed management. In particular, too many farmers are still asking what is the best soybean herbicide program. With the numerous soybean herbicides now available, there may be several suitable programs for a given situation. There is, however, no single best program for all fields on all farms.

Selecting a soybean herbicide program is not a simple matter. It takes time and effort. The first and most important thing to consider is the weed problem itself. Think of herbicides as being wrenches in your tool box. Just as you would use different wrenches for different jobs, you should also use different her-

Teachers Will Teach Each Other

ECU News Bureau

Public school teachers who participate in the Coastal Plains Writing Project this summer are likely to find themselves "teaching each other how to teach writing," according to the project's co-director.

A basic assumption of the project is "that teachers should teach teachers how to teach writing and that the best teachers of writing are writers themselves," says Dr. Patrick Bizzaro of East Carolina University.

"We're going to ask the teachers themselves to give presentations and, also, they will do a considerable amount of writing themselves," Bizzaro said.

Up to 25 teachers from grades kindergarten through 12 will be accepted for the writing project program at ECU which includes a four-week institute on campus July 5-29 and a follow-up program during the 1988-89 school year.

Teachers who are accepted will receive a $400 stipend, tuition and fees for six hours in graduate credit at ECU in English or education, and materials on teaching writing.

Teachers from schools in the northeast North Carolina education district may apply for the Coastal Plains Writing Project fellowships. Applications should be sent to Bizzaro in the Department of English, ECU, Greenville, N.C. 27858, and must include a one-page description of how writing is used in the classroom and an explanation of specific successful activities. Signature or letter of support from the applicant's local supervisor must accompany the application. Applications are requested by April 15.

The Coastal Plains Writing Project is part of the statewide North Carolina Writing project funded by the State Board of Education.

Bizzaro, associate professor of English and director of the Writing Center at ECU for the past five years, also headed ECU's Writing Across the Curriculum program. He will co-direct the Coastal Plains Writing Project with Dr. Joanna Mink, assistant professor of English and director of writing programs at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson.

Bizzaro said he expects "the best ideas will come from the teachers themselves — teachers giving ideas to each other by the sharing of ideas."

Participants will earn graduate credit of three semester hours in writing and three semester hours in teaching of writing.

Ayden Board Approves 10 Housing Projects

The Ayden Board of Commissioners Monday night approved 10 new housing rehabilitation projects funded by the Community Development Block Grant Program.

The federal government funds the program and the state administers the finances, said Ayden town clerk Ralph Ford. The board targets specific areas and residents can apply for the program.

The board approved bids for projects at 206 Blount St., Avery Construction Co. $14,834; 204 Blount St.,

Trueblood Builders, $10,850; 112 Blount St., Vernon Pittman, $15,940; 310 E. 1st St., Jones Plumbing and Contracting, $15,840; 408 E. 1st St., Trueblood Builders, $15,885, 315 E. 1st St., Trueblood Builders, $11,800; 116 E. 1st St., Jones Plumbing and Contracting, $13,400; 305 Hart St., Hugh and Jasper Warren, $16,783; 831 E. Avenue, Ernest Leggett, $12,200; 708 S. Lee St., Jones Plumbing and Contracting, $11,100.

The board set a $16,000 ceiling on each project in order allow more houses into the program. Its approval of the bids is contingent upon negotiations to lower the cost of the project at 305 Hart St. to $16,000. Homeowners may elect to pay the surplus costs or the contractor may eliminate some of the improvements to lower the cost.

The board adopted the Housing Authority's $352,920 operating budget for 1988-1989, said authority director Jimmy Cox. The authority's fiscal year begins April 1 and ends March 31, 1989.

The authority is eligible for $56,924 from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, said Cox, and it expects the full amount.

The HUD money would give the authority a surplus of $27,927 this year, Cox said, and it would increase the total reserve to more than $155,000, which is 89 percent of the maximum reserve the authority is allowed to hold.

The board also adopted a large industrial electric rate. Until now, Ayden only offered residential and general service rates, said Ford, but the town needed to offer a competitive rate for large industries. It is essentially the same rate Greenville offers, he said.

The planning committee has been working on a new zoning ordinance for about a year, said Ford, and the board scheduled a public hearing April 11 to consider the new zoning map and ordinance.

In other business the board approved the transfer of $5,000 from the contingency fund to the police department budget to pay for increased jail insurance; concurred with the fire department's election of Barry Wood as chief and took no action of a mutual aid agreement between the town and Pitt County.

There were legal questions in the mutual aid agreement regarding workman's compensation and municipal liabilities, said Ford. The agreement would ensure the town aid in case of emergency or disaster.

Arms Treaty Brings Helms, Shultz Spat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz says that seven weeks of Senate testimony have produced nothing to bar the speedy ratification of the new arms reduction treaty with the Soviet Union.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Monday, Shultz angrily dismissed an allegation by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., that the administration's public defense of the pact is based on "misrepresentation" and is at odds with facts presented in closed-door secret sessions.

Shultz also said the Senate should firmly discard all proposed amendments or reservations to the treaty, including one that would tie its implementation to reversing Soviet superiority in conventional arms in Europe.

He ticked off objections that have been mounted to the terms of the pact, which bans medium-range nuclear missiles, and asserted that all those objections have been refuted.

The secretary of state, whose testimony opened the committee's examination of the treaty in January, commented as he made a return appearance to offer a summing up.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the Senate's deputy majority leader and a respected vote counter, predicted that the pact will be ratified by the full Senate by a margin far greater than the required two-thirds majority.

Cranston said the Senate will act well in advance of a planned Moscow summit meeting this spring between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

"We believe the treaty stands on its merits," Shultz said. "It is self-contained and should not be made a vehicle for statements on other issues," including the Soviet military occupation of Afghanistan. But he bristled after hearing Helms declare that there is "a wide gap between the administration's public representations about the treaty and the information which we have received in closed session."

"Indeed," Helms said, "after many hours of listening to testimony both private and public, the administration's public presentation of the treaty has been a tissue of confusion, misstatements and — and I use the word advisedly — even misrepresentations."

Shultz told Helms: "In a sense I don't know what I'm doing here. Are you sitting here accusing me of deliberately misrepresenting? ... I can handle it fine when people say they don't agree with me, but when they say I have misrepresented, I have trouble with that."

Balloon From Texas

A Route 2, Greenville, woman found a helium-filled balloon Friday near her home that had been released three days earlier by Auralio Ramirez, a third-grader at L.O. Donald School in Dallas.

Geraldine Smith, who lives on State Road 1749 near Chicod, said she spotted the yellow balloon bobbing up and down in a field several hundred yards from her house.

Mrs. Smith said that a call to Auralio revealed that he and his classmates released their balloons on March 8 from Texas.

Mrs. Smith says she plans to write to Auralio and send him a North Carolina picture postcard.

Rodino To Leave Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The changing face of his home district finally caught up with Rep. Peter Rodino, an Italian-American who spent 20 terms crusading for civil rights but who is now reluctantly giving up his House seat to make way for a black successor.

The New Jersey Democrat, who gained national prominence when he chaired the impeachment hearings of former President Richard Nixon, yielded Monday to calls from minority constituents who want one of their own to represent them.

Rodino, 78, one of the most senior members of the House and chairman of its powerful Judiciary Committee, issued a statement saying he would step aside in January.

The Field Narrows

As expected, the field of candidates for both Democratic and Republican nominations for president is being whittled down.

Former Secretary of State Alexander Haig was one of the first to withdraw when it became obvious that he was not attracting delegates in the GOP race.

Vice President George Bush is the frontrunner for the nomination although Dole and Pat Robertson are still in the race.

The Democratic picture is not so clear even though the field is narrowing. Bruce Babbitt left the race and was followed by Gary Hart.

Still in the race are Michael S. Dukakis, Richard Gephardt, Al Gore, Jesse Jackson and Paul Simon.

The long primary and caucus process is gruelling and difficult for the candidates. Eventually, however, it fills its role of bringing forth the strongest candidates as those who are attracting little support withdraw from the race.

Making Amends

Last week Austria remembered. It was the 50th anniversary of the annexation of Austria by Hitler's Germany — an event which was followed by the horrors of World War II and which radically changed the world that we now know.

For Austria the change was even more stark than for most nations. To this day Austria's role in Hitler's carnage is debated. It continues to engulf President Kurt Waldheim who regularly faces questions about his part as a young military officer of that time.

Walheim and other leaders participated in ceremonies marking the anniversary of the annexation, laying wreaths on the monuments of the nation's unknown soldiers and the victims of the Nazis.

There were apologies for the Austrians who willingly took part in the Nazi atrocities. Waldheim himself apologized on the part of his countrymen although, as always, he admitted no personal guilt.

In a televised speech he said, "We must not forget that many of the worst Nazi hangmen were Austrians. There were Austrians who were victims and others who were perpetrators.

"Obviously, there is no collective guilt" for war crimes, the president added. "Nevertheless, as head of state of the Republic of Austria, I wish to apologize for Nazi crimes committed by Austrians."

Austria was generally represented by Hitler as welcoming the annexation and embracing Nazism. It was said that over a half million Austrians joined the Nazi party and 250,000 cheered Hitler when he visited Vienna.

Today many Austrians call for Waldheim's resignation because of his suspected role in the military at the time. The question of Austria's involvement in Nazism hangs on the national conscious.

In 1938, however, there were few who could see where the Nazi expansion which engulfed Austria was to lead. Even today Austrians of conscious do what they can to make amends.

Praise For The Young People

To the editor: I was most impressed with the March 8 addition insert in your paper. I am referring to the Design-An-Ad contest winners.

I feel that it should be noted that some adults look upon our youth as being delinquent. If we as adults would look at the Design-An-Ad contest winners, we would see just how creative, constructive and productive our youth can be. Their drawings made me take a close look at products I had paid very little attention to before now. Our young people deserve much more credit from adults than they sometimes receive.

Keep up the good work, young people. Some day it will pay off. My wife and I are as proud of you as if you

Bush Campaigns For General Election

CHICAGO — Having clinched the nomination Super Tuesday, George Bush spent six days in Illinois, not for a showdown with Sen. Robert J. Dole, but to follow Gov. James R. Thompson's advice to start campaigning for the general election "right now" — doing it just the way Big Jim would.

Not only did Bush put himself in Thompson's hands for what the vice president called "retail politics" — hand-shaking and Lincoln Day dinners — he also followed the Thompson formula of not sounding too conservative or too Republican.

This is the ironic conclusion of seven years of work transforming the vice president from moderate to heir of the Reagan Revolution and candidate of old-line Reaganites. But there was no viable opponent to upbraid the prospective nominee for abandoning the revolution.

A month ago this state was winnable for Dole. His organization, built by Lee Daniels, GOP leader of the State House of Representatives, was the match of Bush's with delegate candidates probably a shade better known.

The Super Tuesday deluge changed all that, assuring Bush of victory and changing his style. Bob Dole, target of bitter attacks in Iowa and New Hampshire last month, was ignored.

It took Bush 16 minutes to read it nearly word-for-word in a conversational tone. Members of the $1,000-a-year Governor's Club, including lots of Thompson administration alumni, were anesthetized by the post-luncheon delivery at the Chicago Hilton Hotel.

However lacking in fervor, the speech was pregnant with political importance. In a rare ad-lib, Bush said he would speak "somewhat philosophically." The philosophy was pragmatism.

More remarkable was what was left unsaid. Nothing about Contras, Strategic Defense Initiative or Afghan freedom fighters. No social conservatism. The line-item veto was relegated to sometime "down the line," while Bush promised deficit negotiations of the kind that necessarily end in tax increases.

was a comment that with "Dr. Zhivago" now read on Moscow streetcars, "something is happening in the Soviet Union."

This is the pragmatic approach that has won Big Jim Thompson the governorship four times, with Big Labor's endorsement no less. Had Rep. Jack Kemp stayed in the race, his state campaign manager — Cook County Republican Chairman Don Totten — planned to tie Bush to Thompson's high-tax tendencies (including his latest increase rejected by the Legislature).

But Kemp was gone and Dole, fighting for his life here, launched no ideological assault on the vice president. His post-New Hampshire bitterness dissipated, Dole was witty and relaxed. After addressing about 200 lawyers in downtown Chicago, he asked wryly "if any of you have any good ideas" to let him know.

However, Dole had not moved markedly toward refining a message in a year's campaigning. When prospects were bright and now with defeat imminent, he talked about "electability" and being a "hands-on" president.

While Kemp said of Bush and Dole in his public withdrawal statement that "we're all conservatives," he privately has reaffirmed what he declared in the Atlanta debate: The victory of either means the end of the Reagan Revolution.

U.S. Holds Key To Noriega's Fate

PANAMA, Panama (AP) — If military strongman Gen. Manuel Noriega steps down from his post as head of the Defense Forces, the United States, and not Panama's fledgling opposition, will have brought it about.

U.S. sanctions freezing Panamanian assets have dealt a serious blow to the military regime of Noriega, who is indicted in the United States on drug trafficking and other charges.

But the opposition has done little to further the process.

President Eric Arturo Delvalle tried to fire the general late last month but instead was booted out of office himself and went underground, still recognized by Washington as Panama's head of state.

Delvalle's wife, Mrs. Mariela Diaz de Delvalle, said last week that her husband was considering asking the United States for military intervention.

The opposition grouped under the Civic Crusade, an assortment of political parties, private groups and businessmen's associations, has tried to stir up a protest movement against Noriega but failed to rally enough popular support for large street demonstrations.

"Only those with rifles can overthrow Noriega," said an opposition businessman who spoke on condition of anonymity. "Those with rifles here (the Defense Forces) or those with rifles over there (the United States). The opposition has no weapons."

Noriega loyalists in the Legislative Assembly forced Delvalle out on Feb. 26, the day after Delvalle, encouraged by the United States, tried to dismiss the general.

The U.S. determination to force Noriega out of office has brought the country to the brink of economic collapse. Shortly after Delvalle was dismissed the U.S. Federal Reserve, which provides the dollars Panama uses as its currency, withheld shipments of cash to the Panamanian central bank.

Then the United States froze all other Panamanian government assets in the United States and stopped monthly payments for operations of the Panama Canal.

The result was a money crunch that left the Panamanian government unable to pay its employees in cash and forced banks to remain closed for the past 11 days.

The government is working out barter deals with supermarkets in an attempt to overcome the crisis, but business has come to a standstill.

"Unless something happens soon, people will have to take to the streets to search for food," said Winston Robles, managing editor of the opposition newspaper La Prensa, which the government closed down Feb. 25.

Noriega has been hanging on thanks to the loyalty of his colleagues in the military's top ranks. Many of them, like himself, come from middle-class families.

In office since 1983, Noriega is ideologically and politically an heir to Gen. Omar Torrijos, the officer who rode a crest of Panamanian nationalism and concluded the agreement that set a timetable for total Panamanian control of the Panama Canal by the year 2000.

Noriega uses Defense Forces, the only armed authority in Panama, the way a politician would use the party to whip up support in small towns where the soldiers build roads or perform other civic jobs.

"He has established a very close relationship — even more than friendship — between the Defense Forces and the people," said Boris Moreno, director of the government's National Information Service. "The political opposition here cannot overthrow Noriega."

The political opposition is made up of badly organized liberal parties whose leaders spend much time criticizing each other. The best organized party is the Christian Democrats led by Ricardo Arias, who is in Miami because he was refused entry into Panama two weeks ago.

The Christian Democrats led the opposition alliance in 1984 and refused to recognize the election results that put in Nicolas Ardito Barletta as president. They claimed Noriega rigged the vote.

It was the first election in 16 years in Panama. The last popularly elected regime lasted 11 days in 1968. Barletta was forced out, following a disagreement with Noriega, and Delvalle, who was then vice president, took his place. The next presidential elections are scheduled for May 1989.

Strength For Today

In the 26th chapter of Job we have an interesting description of God manifesting himself through nature. Says Job: "Lo, these are but the outskirts of His ways; And how small a whisper do we hear from him!"

The testimony which nature gives about God is ambiguous. When the hurricane blows, what then?

When pestilence sweeps through the land, what testimony does it bear of God's solicitude?

Nature and the revelation it provides are not enough to provide a basis for religious faith. As Job said, the phenomena of nature constitutes only the outskirts of his ways, the small whisper of his mighty voice.

We get a picture of God which satisfies the soul only when we behold him as He is revealed in the Bible. We cannot understand everything about God; this is the test of our faith.

IN THE STATE

Quiet Day

DURHAM (AP) — Some parents threatened to take their children to a Durham junior high school Monday in defiance of Confederate flag-burning suspensions, but school officials say no parents appeared. Had it not been for the half-dozen deputy sheriffs patrolling the school, students might have believed Monday was a normal day at Chevington Junior High School, school officials said.

"We have had a very smooth opening," said Joseph Johnson, assistant superintendent for instructional support. "We are trying to pursue a regular school day." Gladys Cartwright, principal at Chevington, told the parents of 14 students Sunday night that the pupils could be suspended for wearing Confederate flags to Chevington on Friday. The suspensions, effective Monday, ranged from three to 10 days, although a few students may be placed on long-term suspension, she said.

Gun Search

ALEXANDER, N.C. (AP) — A diver from the Greensboro Police department's underwater recovery team says he has found pop tops, car parts and iron bars on the bottom of the French Broad River, but no gun yet. "There are a lot of objects on the bottom that I can see, either wedged under rocks or on the backside of large rocks where the current's not pulling them away," Lt. Al Stewart said after about 90 minutes underwater Monday.

Buncombe County officials are hoping the team will come up with a gun believed to be the murder weapon in the 1986 slaying of an Ohio couple.

Authorities believe that Wesley and Bonnie Mahaffey were shot to death at Buzzard Rock and the gun was thrown off the Alexander Bridge into the river.

EMC Permits

WILMINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Management Commission is considering increasing air and water quality permits fees by as much as 15 times — from $100 to $1,500 a year.

The 1987 General Assembly authorized the increases to bring permit fees more in line with what it actually costs the state to process applications and monitor discharge facilities. The proposal goes before the public this week.

State officials estimate the increased fees would generate about $3.5 million during the first five years they are phased in, said Don Follmer, spokesman for the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development. After that, he said, they should generate about $750,000 a year.

The revenue would pay for additional salaries, Follmer said. With more employees, the state should be able to process permits faster and better enforce air and water quality regulations, he said.

Poultry Agreement

WILMINGTON (AP) — The state has accepted $104,520 for $517,520 in civil penalties levied against a poultry processing firm in Rose Hill, and officials say they want to help the firm upgrade its wastewater treatment plant.

Duplin County officials say they have received preliminary approval for a $350,000 grant to help House of Raeford.

Since July 1985, the state Division of Environmental Management has charged House of Raeford with 191 violations. Most of them were levied last year for wastewater treatment violations.

The Duplin County Commissioners applied for the state grant to help the poultry processor but the grant was withheld until a decision was reached on the fines. W.W. Brinson Jr., Duplin's economic development director, said final approval of the grant is contingent on the state approving plans to upgrade the plant.

Brinson said the county plans to loan $335,000 of the grant to the firm, with $15,000 going for administrative expenses.

More Time

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina farmers who hire migrant labor have been given more time to comply with new immigration laws, which a majority of farmers have ignored so far, agriculture officials say.

The 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act makes it illegal for farmers to hire illegal aliens. More than 50,000 migrant workers — up to half illegal — find jobs on North Carolina and South Carolina farms each year, farming officials say. Most harvest tobacco, vegetables and Christmas trees.

The law had required farmers to obtain proof of citizenship for their migrant employees by June 1. Few farmers have started gathering that information or filed required forms with the government, says Stephen Sutter, a N.C. Agricultural Extension Service specialist.

But the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service recently postponed the deadline until Dec. 1 after complaints by two farm agencies.

Wintry Blast Brings Record Snow Flurries To Mountains

By The Associated Press

The official start of spring is only a week away, but winter is getting in a final blast of cold air that brought snow to the mountains and sent thermometers plunging into the 20s overnight.

Asheville, Boone and Blowing Rock reported snow flurries late Monday evening, making roads treacherous and causing a number of accidents.

The National Weather Service said Asheville set a record shortly before midnight when the temperature dropped to 22 degrees. The previous record was 24 degrees set in 1979.

And forecasters said more record-breaking temperatures are possible.

"We're going to be about 15 degrees below normal for the next couple of days," said Larry Gabric, a meteorologist at Raleigh-Durham Airport.

The low in the central part of the state is expected to be about 20 degrees by early Wednesday, which would tie a record set in 1970.

Normally, daytime temperatures are around 60 degrees this time of year, with lows about 37.

A shift in the jet stream dropped the temperature from weekend highs in the 70s, said Gabric.

"Last week, the jet stream was providing a southwesterly flow of air, but that has changed to bring in a more northwesterly flow, so cold air masses originating in Canada may move across the United States into the mid-Atlantic states," he said.

The statewide forecast calls for temperatures to gradually warm by the end of the week, with highs warming to the 60s by Friday.

Although spring doesn't arrive until Sunday morning, many gardeners got a jump on the season this past weekend. But the cold weather could be a blessing in disguise, horticulturists say.

The cold may cause minor damage to a few blooms, such as saucer magnolias, but it probably will help more than it will hurt, said Erv Evans of the Wake County Agricultural Extension office. The small trees are in full bloom and the cold could cause them to drop their blooms or turn brown.

The cold actually may hold back some plants, keep them from blooming early, and prevent them from being harmed by another cold snap later.

"I think we're going to come out pretty good," Evans said. "Most things aren't going to get hurt."

There should be no problem at all with azaleas, fruit trees or strawberry plants because they have not yet begun to open, said Tony G. Avent, horticulture director of the N.C. State Fair.

Commandos Grab Child In Jordan

By The Associated Press

A woman and her daughter have returned to Texas after a team of retired U.S. commandos based in Fayetteville, N.C., reportedly grabbed the girl in Jordan where she had been taken by her father in a custody dispute.

Meanwhile, the United States expressed regret to Jordan over the incident, and an American Embassy officer in Amman was recalled to Washington for questioning about his knowledge of the affair, State Department spokesman Charles Redman said Monday in Washington.

Kathy Mahoon and the commandos reportedly entered Jordan and seized Lauren Bayan, 7, from a school bus Jan. 28 in Jerash, north of Amman, according to a story in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The woman claims her ex-husband, Jordanian-born Mohammed Ali Bayan, kidnapped the child and took her to Jordan although she was granted custody of the child following a divorce.

Dallas County court records confirm that a judge granted Ms. Mahoon custody of her daughter, but police say they have no record of the reported kidnapping in September.

"She (Ms. Mahoon) called me from Texas and said they're alive and well and very happy," Holly Planells, of White Plains, N.Y., who heads American Children Held Hostage, said Monday.

Ms. Mahoon, unable to get her daughter back through legal channels, hired former Army commandos to take the girl away from her father, who claimed legal custody of the child under Jordanian law.

Corporate Training Unlimited, a company in Fayetteville that specializes in "hostage rescue training," plotted and carried out the seizure for expenses and a hefty, undisclosed fee, the Inquirer said.

Company president Donald Feeney denied the story, but other well-placed sources described the company's role, the Inquirer said.

Seminary Trustees Accept Drummond

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP) — The new president of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary says he will preserve academic quality and freedom, but also uphold a mandate from the trustees that only conservative professors be hired.

Lewis A. Drummond, 61, an associate of evangelist Billy Graham and professor of evangelism at Southern Baptist Seminary in Louisville, Ky., was elected president of the seminary Monday by a 21-6 vote of the trustees.

"It will be my prayer ... that a fresh wind of spiritual renewal could sweep the campus, fostering a spirit of love, harmony and reconciliation and commitment to all that God would accomplish in and through the institution," Drummond said after his election.

Drummond has vowed to uphold a controversial report approved by the Southern Baptist Convention last summer and endorsed by a majority of trustees. The report cites specific examples of what it says the majority of Baptists believe about the Bible: that supernatural events actually occurred and that Adam and Eve were real people.

Erosion Threatening Oregon Inlet Station

By The Associated Press

Coast Guard officials say they may be forced to abandon the Oregon Inlet station because of rapid erosion that has brought pounding waves within 200 feet of the station's fresh-water well.

Erosion had been claiming about 140 feet a year from the northern tip of Pea Island until last year, when the rate accelerated, said Capt. Anthony Pettit, chief of the Coast Guard's search and rescue division in Washington. About 230 feet of shoreline has eroded since December.

"With the rate we've had lately, we've got to start looking at other options," Pettit said Monday. "We feel that with one good storm, we would have to abandon the station."

Coast Guard officials said the station is about 1,000 feet from the turbulent waters causing the most severe erosion, but the station's well is only about 200 feet from the waves.

Options are limited, Pettit said, because the crews should be near the inlet, where the most serious boating emergencies occur. He said it would cost about $2.5 million to build a new station.

The Oregon Inlet station, which has 33 employees, handled about 200 calls last year in its service area, which extends from Hatteras Inlet to Virginia. Its four largest boats were moved to a commercial marina near the inlet last year because of shoaling a sand buildup in the station's navigation channel, Master Chief Petty Officer Wayne Gray said.

Pettit was scheduled to testify today before a subcommittee of the U.S. House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee that is studying the effect on erosion of building jetties at the inlet.

Unlike the supercool hideaway beds in James Bond movies — the ones that vanish into thin air at the touch of a button — trundle beds have generally been endowed with stuffer personalities.

Maybe it has something to do with their declass origins (trundle beds were first invented in the 15th Century for servants). Or maybe it has to do with the fact that they are the most disguised form of hideaway bed. On top of that, the idea of thrift, even when it applies to space, isn't exactly the most glamorous concern. In any case, trundle beds have obstinately resisted notions of good design. Routinely hospitalish and heavy looking, or else juvenile and too clever, they've generally been designed for kids' rooms and attics, not for showcasing in a living room or an adult's bedroom.

But things are changing. Americans, and especially New Yorkers, are watching their homes shrink a few inches each year, according to Andy Young, the president of New Moon Natural Comfort Co. in Boston. The furniture industry is responding, Young says, by designing attractive pieces that are also space-savers. Some of them double as beds and sofas, and others consolidate the main bedroom with the guest room.

"Housing is smaller in general," Young said, "and a room that might have been used as a second bedroom for a guest bedroom is now being forced to do double duty. These days, someone might use it as an office and guest bedroom."

New Moon has jumped on the bandwagon by manufacturing a graceful cot-sized futon daybed on a contemporary hardwood frame, with pull-out trundle on casters. Simple and clean, it is a design that can be adapted to a contemporary or a country look, and it can be easily assimilated into a living room or a bedroom.

The New Moon daybed, which retails for about $500, comes with two cot-sized futons; customers can choose their futon coverings from various shades of cotton duck or linen. And the futons, though cot-sized, do not need special sheets — they can easily be used with non-fitted twin sheets.

Besides the relatively new stylishness of trundle beds, many of them are also being designed so that they're sturdier, simpler and less prone to mechanical breakdowns.

"I remember the old kind," said Philip Slattery, a furniture salesman at Conran's. "My sisters used to have one. I think they got it from my mother, who got it from my grandmother."

"Those things were dangerous," Slattery went on. "They were solid metal and they had a lever to pull the bed up and the whole thing would come up, squeaking all the way. Then after a while, the lever got bent, and the bed would spring up on you."

The trundle bed that Conran's offers has almost nothing in common with the old spring-loaded clunker from Slattery's childhood. Instead, it consists of a flat, high-density foam mattress of single-bed size, without boxspring, fitted inside a rugged painted steel frame on wide, non-swiveling wheels.

Conran's trundle bed is not attached in any way to the bed it is stowed underneath, and so it can be rolled out across the room, or into another room. Its wheels are quiet and smooth. And when the featherweight trundle bed is lifted, its legs flop down and suddenly it's as tall as the main bed.

Though the trundle can be purchased separately, Conran's usually sells it to go underneath the store's Marlowe bed, a clean, Shaker-inspired model that comes in matching white metal, black metal and unpainted ash. The metal Marlowe bed, which retails for $450, and the trundle bed, which retails for $175, have been discontinued, according to a spokeswoman, but there are still plenty in stock.

Amisco, a Quebec-based company that, since the late '70s, has produced cheerful children's bedroom sets with trundle beds, is now offering several models that work in adults' rooms. One of them, a handsome single bed made out of painted tubular steel, is similar in style to the Marlowe bed. Appropriate for both children and adults, the Amisco bed comes in 17 colors and can be purchased with or without a stowaway trundle bed.

(For more information about stores that carry Amisco beds, call Robert A. Spellman Home Furnishing Services in Washington, D.C., at (202) 686-0601).

Like the Conran's trundle bed, the Amisco version doesn't have a boxspring. In fact, it works a whole lot like the Conran's model: The hearts of both mechanisms rely on a handful of screws.

"The bed rolls out very smoothly, even on carpeting," said Amisco design supervisor Martin DeBlois. "When you lift it, the legs fall down, because of the gravity. It's less complicated than an ironing board, actually."

"The leg is U-shaped tubing with two holes, one on each side, and there's a screw going through the tube, which is attached to the frame," DeBlois said. "So it's virtually impossible to break unless you break the screw — and you'd have to be very, very heavy to do that."

What happens if one loses one of the screws?

"That would be unusual," DeBlois said. "But if it happens, look in the carpet. If it's not there, the screws and self-lugging nuts are similar to the ones used in boats and airplanes, and they're standard, easily replaceable items."

Freshman Frolic Is Too Formal

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a freshman in high school. Coming up in June is our Freshman Frolic, a formal dance for ninth-graders. Our principal just announced that she is banning the use of limousines to and from the Frolic. She has also banned the rental of tuxedos and full-length gowns. This has been allowed in all previous years.

The majority of our class does not believe that this is a fair decision. We feel that if the students' parents are willing to foot the bill for gown, tuxedo and limo, they should have the right to do so. We would rather not be driven by our parents, and we want to wear whatever we consider formal and nice.

Our principal has received calls for and against her decision. She explained that by allowing limousines, gowns and tuxedos, the students who can't afford them will stay home because they'll be embarrassed to arrive in an ordinary car and not dressed as fancy as others.

She also says that we will have the chance to do these expensive things in the upper grades. We feel that since it has been allowed before, and our parents are willing to pay for it, we should be entitled to enjoy such privileges. How do you feel about this? — FLUSTERED FRESHMAN, WEST NEWBURY, MASS.

DEAR FLUSTERED: I hate to rain on your parade, but I can't believe that the parents of every ninth-grader can afford to hire a limo and rent a tuxedo. I agree with the principal. Too many children are rushing to grow up too fast these days. Thank heavens for one principal who is willing to say, "Whoa!"

DEAR ABBY: I understand that it is considered rude to talk to someone who is reading a newspaper or watching TV, and my husband says it's rude to talk at mealtimes.

When we're in the car, he always has the radio on, so we can't talk then. When he's in the garden, there is either the mower or the weed-wacker making noise, so it's useless to talk. At bedtime, it's "time to go to sleep," and other times he's at home, he's showering or shaving.

I have asked him to go for a walk with me, but he doesn't like to walk.

So when are we supposed to discuss important matters — or unimportant ones? — SHUT OUT IN VICTORIA, B.C.

DEAR SHUT OUT: Good question. Why don't you schedule an "appointment" with your non-verbal man? I'm serious. Ask HIM. Perhaps counseling would bring to the surface the reason your husband consistently dodges conversing with you.

Most teen-agers do not know the facts about drugs, AIDS, how to prevent unwanted pregnancy and how to handle the pain of growing up. It's all in Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Postage and handling are included.

Clyde Didn't Enter Canine Race

At Wits End

Erma Bombeck

Occasionally, I take a walk along a popular running path in my neighborhood where I have always been impressed with Clyde. Clyde is a nondescript dog and a familiar fixture to everyone who uses the path. He sprawls under a tree every morning while his owner pursues leg cramps. Clyde's tongue is about three feet long and hangs limp. His sad eyes reflect a look that says it all. "Who ARE all these people?" He moves only when he hears the motor of the car turn over for home.

I have always envied Clyde. He doesn't cave in to guilt because his owner is "into sweat." There's no pressure to join the parade of dogs who leave him in the dust and who kill themselves trying to keep up with their masters. He has no illusions about his soft, lumpy body.

My husband brought home a form last week that I feared might change Clyde's life. It was an entry blank for a two-mile walk/run for dogs.

I couldn't believe it. But there it was. All dogs who entered had to have rabies inoculations, be licensed, be kept on a leash at all times, be accompanied by an adult, and if their behavior was unruly or might prove hazardous, they could be asked to leave the race. Female dogs in any stage of heat would not be allowed to compete. Entrants were urged to send in their $12 entry fee and get a free red bandanna.

It sounded so innocent, but you don't have to be a genius to figure out what is coming. Cute doggie designer shorts and shirts, Paw shoes (four of them) that cost $80, special watches to record times, sweatbands to keep their ears out of their eyes, ankle weights to build muscles, a monthly magazine showing top canine runners, five pages in the phone book of vets who specialize in runner's injuries. Meals planned around the dog's running schedule so he doesn't run on a full stomach ... driving 70 miles Sunday morning so your dog can run in a 10K and get a loaf of bread, a six-pack and a T-shirt when he crosses the finish line. A psychiatrist for the dog who, because of injuries for some reason, can't run and no longer wants to go on living.

I wanted to find Clyde and say, "Hang tough! Don't let the pooch-jocks intimidate you. I know what I'm talking about. They tried to do it to me. 'Eat like a bird ... get exercise.' Have you ever looked at a bird, Clyde? Good legs, but no waistline. They're all built like avocados. Speed skaters exercise and look at those thighs. I'm telling you, don't cave in."

I looked for Clyde the day of the race and found him sprawled out in his usual spot, lying on his back with four feet suspended in midair. His mouth was open and flies were buzzing around his eyes. Some dogs can't be bought ... not even for a red bandanna. That's comforting.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today in early trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 0.16 point to 2,050.23 in the first half hour of trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 9 to 5 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 678 up, 380 down and 499 unchanged just before 10 a.m.

Volume on the Big Board came to 19,050,000 million shares.

The government reported today that the deficit in the broadest measure of U.S. foreign trade surged to a record $160.7 billion in 1987 with the additional red ink pushing the country further into the hole as the world's largest debtor nation. The Commerce Department said the current account deficit last year was 13.7 percent higher than the previous record of $141.4 billion set in 1986 despite the fact that the deficit for the final three months of the year narrowed slightly.

Firestone rose 5/8 to 62 1/4. The company said it doesn't expect to complete the sale of its tire operations to Bridgestone because of an unsolicited tender offer from Pirelli of Italy.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was unchanged at 150.06. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 0.35 at 297.29.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average gained 15.09 to 2,050.07. But declining issues slightly outnumbered advances on the New York Stock Exchange, with 737 up, 794 down and 445 unchanged.

Big Board volume came to 131.89 million shares, down from 200.02 million in the previous session, and the lightest total since a 111.58 million-share day Dec. 29.

Drivers Continue

 ence driving a school bus," Martin said.

According to conditions outlined by the Labor Department, all counties will be able to use 17-year-old drivers who will turn 18 by June 15, and that specified counties that have shown difficulty hiring older drivers will be allowed to use drivers who will not turn 18 years old by June 15.

The state also must remove any and all 17-year-olds who either have tickets for moving violations or at-fault accidents on their driving records, or who have not successfully passed a physical examination within the last year, according to the governor's statement. The state also will be responsible for monitoring the school districts to ensure compliance with these conditions.

Legislation that would override the Labor Department's Feb. 25 decision to disallow 17-year-old drivers after April 1 passed the House earlier this month.

Senate staffers said if the Labor Department didn't grant the states an extension through the end of the school year, the legislation likely would be passed and go to President Reagan for his signature.

The 17-year-olds have been permitted to drive in the two states under an exemption to the Fair Labor Standards Act.

It was repealed after Labor Department investigations during January and February of this year found North Carolina had violated the act 80 times, and South Carolina had recorded 200 violations during the two-month period.

The investigation was triggered after a 4-year-old boy in West Columbia, S.C., was struck and killed by a 17-year-old bus driver with a bad driving record.

Under the Labor Department's rules, 17-year-olds aren't allowed to drive school buses if they have traffic violations or have been involved in accidents in which they were at fault.

U.S. Sen. Terry Sanford, D-N.C., sent McLaughlin a letter Monday saying he didn't think the legislative solution was the answer.

"A better solution would be to handle the matter administratively by granting an extension until the end of this school year and then requiring school officials to develop a workable plan for the fall," Sanford said.

"But we've said all along that handling the situation administratively is the way it can be handled most efficiently," said Karen Hayes Rotterman, communications director for Gov. Martin's office.

Ms. Rotterman said the Martin administration has been providing the Labor Department with additional statistics about the state's 2,085 student bus drivers and had expected to hear something soon.

A spokesman for Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said the senator had facilitated

Jake Jacobs Hurls Two-Hit Gem As ECU Pirates Top Connecticut By 5-0 Score

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Jake Jacobs had what might have been his best performance ever in an East Carolina University baseball uniform Monday as he blanked the University of Connecticut, 5-0, on a two-hitter.

"I thought it was Jake's best performance ever — and the best we've had in quite a while by anyone," Pirate coach Gary Overton said. Jacobs gave up a hit in the first inning, walked a man in the second and then retired 15 batters in a row before allowing the second hit of the game in the eighth inning. He then put down the next five in a row to end the game.

"Jake had full command of the game. He had the hitters right where he wanted them. And I thought both of their guys did a good job too," Overton said. Dave Fradkin, who started the game for the Huskies, gave up just three hits, but suffered some wildness, walking seven. He struck out four. Tom Eccles, who came on in relief in the sixth, allowed two hits.

Jacobs struck out only two and walked one, but kept the Huskies from getting any good hits.

"We played a fine defensive game," Overton said. "That was the most pleasing part of the day. I've told the guys that there are days when we're not going to get that many hits and runs and that the defense will have to carry us."

John Thomas banged out two hits for the Pirates, and drove in two runs. "He had a good day but the rest of us struggled," the coach said. "But we were able to manufacture some runs without a lot of hits. Thomas' bases-loaded single certainly helped in that."

The Pirate defense had only one lapse, that in the first, and a defensive gem that followed helped erase the only threat the Huskies made in the game.

Scott Reimond reached when his grounder to third was errored. He moved up on an out and the first of the two Huskie hits, by Andy Walker, putting runners at the corners.

Jacobs then picked Walker off first, and while he was in the rundown, Reimond broke for home but was thrown out by Calvin Brown.

In the third, Jacobs walked Chris Schauder, but he was doubled off first on Chris Lunsford's line drive to Mike Adams at second base.

Dave Federowicz got the only other hit, that in the eighth inning.

In the second, the Pirates pushed over two unearned runs to take the lead for good. Brown walked and moved up on an out. He took third on a wild pitch and scored when Dom DiGirolamo reached on an error. Courtesy runner Tommy Yarbrough stole second, moved to third on an error and scored on a hit up the middle by David Ritchie.

The other two runs came in on the fourth. Adams, Ritchie and Tommy Boswell all drew walks and Adams and Ritchie came in on Thomas' hit.

The Pirates threatened in the third, and fifth also, but didn't score again until the eighth.

In that inning, Adams led off with a single, DiGirolamo walked and Ritchie reached on a fielder's choice when he attempted to bunt the other two up. Boswell then laid down a perfect suicide squeeze, scoring Adams.

The win boosts the Pirates to 11-3 on the year while Connecticut falls to 3-1. The two teams will meet again this afternoon at 3 p.m. The Pirates are idle Wednesday and play host to Vermont on Thursday in a 1 p.m. doubleheader.

State Must Break Bad Habits To Be A Success

RALEIGH (AP) — Jim Valvano says he plans to work on a list of habits his North Carolina State basketball team must break if they are to make it to the Final Four and win another national championship. "We haven't been aggressive on the offensive boards. We've stopped going to the glass, so we want to drill a little bit on offensive rebounding," Valvano said Monday. "We haven't run the floor well... We've been getting into such a half-court mode because it's toward the end of the season. But we've lost the ability to get that quick basket." Valvano also wants to work on play calling in crucial situations. Against Duke in the ACC semifinals, N.C. State had to call a timeout to set up a play, giving the Blue Devils time to call a defense that would stop the Wolfpack. "I didn't want to call a timeout, yet the kids weren't sure what we wanted done there, so I had to call one," he said. "We want to re-emphasize those situations when they come up, which are the difference between winning and losing a game." But Valvano likes his chances, given that he can work out the kinks in the Wolfpack arsenal, because he has options. "In the World Series, when you're down three games to one, you don't worry about two games from now. You do what you've got to do to win," he said. "I feel, at least going in, that I have some choices if the game isn't going well."

Despite the list, Valvano said he believes it's just fine-tuning in preparation for Murray State. "I think we're going to play well enough to win," Valvano said. "I don't feel we have a gaping weakness going in. We just have to play well."

N.C. State is 24-7 after losing to Duke in the semifinals of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament, but in two games showcased its combination of perimeter shooting and inside strength. He has yet to see Murray State on film, but his attention will be focused on Jeff Martin, who is averaging 26.2 points per game, and Don Mann, who is scoring 17.9 points per game.

With Murray State's tallest players at 6-foot-7, the Wolfpack will enjoy a height advantage. Still, Valvano has spotted a few things in the closing weeks of the season that could derail his bid for a second national championship. "We've stopped probing the defense," Valvano said. "It goes (inside), it goes up, or if it stays out, it goes up. I think what's happened is we've gotten an awful lot of confidence individually in our players."

That confidence is built on the inside power games of 6-10 center Charles Shackleford and 6-8 forward Chucky Brown. Shackleford was the key in some late-season victories, boosting his scoring average to 16.7 points per game, and he also provided rebounding strength, averaging 9.5 per game. Brown scored 16.6 points per game and grabbed six rebounds per game.

Preliminary Games Scheduled Tonight

Four area basketball teams will open their quest tonight for berths in the Eastern Regional Basketball Tournament, which begins Wednesday in Fayetteville.

They will be trying to join D.H. Conley, which has already wrapped up a berth in the 3-A ranks. Conley, 20-7, will take on Western Alamance, 18-9, at 8:30 p.m. Thursday at Cumberland County Arena.

Tonight, one 1-A team, Chocowinity's girls, and three 2-A teams, Ayden-Grifton and Greene Central's boys and North Pitt's girls, will play in the regional preliminaries to determine which teams advance into the true regionals.

In the 1-A ranks, Chocowinity's girls will travel to Littlefield for a game to determine one of the four semifinalists in the region. The winner of that game will advance to play the winner of the Hallsboro-Princeton winner at 7 p.m. at Fayetteville South View High School on Thursday.

In the 2-A girls pairings, North Pitt will play host to James Kenan tonight. The winner of that game will move on to South View on Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. to face the survivor of the East Duplin-West Montgomery.

Greene Central's boys will face the team that many consider the favorite in the 2-A east ranks, entertaining Whiteville tonight at Snow Hill. The winner of that game will move on to the Cumberland County Arena on Thursday at 5:30 p.m. meeting the winner of the Wallace-Rose Hill/Wake Forest-Rolesville game.

Ayden-Grifton, meanwhile, travels to Bunn, tonight for the preliminary game. The winner will move on to Fayetteville, Wednesday, facing the winner of the South Granville-Pender game at 5:30 p.m.

The championship games in all divisions will be played on Saturday, the boys' at the Cumberland County Arena and the girls' at South View. The winners in the regionals will advance to the state championship games to be played on March 26 at Chapel Hill. The boys will play in the Dean Smith Student Activity Center and the girls in Carmichael Gym.

Olson Says All-Americans Both Unselfish As Players

NEW YORK (AP) — Arizona Coach Lute Olson says a lesson for basketball teams in his having a player on both the first and second All-America teams.

Junior forward Sean Elliott was named to the first team on Monday and senior guard Steve Kerr was on the second team. Olson said having two players of such high caliber has not been a problem.

"The biggest thing is they're all so completely unselfish. They don't care who scores," Olson said after learning the two players from his second-ranked Wildcats were chosen. "Individual honors are the least of their concern but it's interesting to see individual honors go with teams that perform well and it's a great lesson for teams to learn."

Joining Elliott on the first team, which was selected by a 20-member panel of sportswriters from the AP and its member newspapers, were seniors Danny Manning of Kansas, Hersey Hawkins of Michigan and Gary Grant of Michigan and sophomore forward J.R. Reid of North Carolina.

Elliott averaged 19 points and 5.8 rebounds for the Wildcats who were ranked No. 1 for six weeks this season.

"To me I can't imagine a player who could have done more for his team than what Sean has done for us," Olson said. "We're sort of a team, with the exception of Sean, of role players and you better have one fantastic player to go with them, one who can create opportunities for himself and his team. He's probably the closest thing to Magic Johnson that's been around for awhile."

The 6-foot-10 Manning, named to the first team for the second straight year, managed a fine senior season despite injury and academic problems that plagued the Jayhawks.

"I think he's had a phenomenal year considering we've had so many problems this year, and it's added extra responsibility to Danny, and he's done a tremendous job," Kansas Coach Larry Brown said. "It's an honor to be a repeat choice and that doesn't happen too often."

Brown said Manning would be missed at Kansas for reasons other than his basketball ability.

"I don't think it's possible to replace a player like Danny," Brown said. "I'm thrilled that we had a chance to coach him and be with him. The next step will be to look back, see him play where he does in the future, and have unbelievable pride that we were part of it. You don't replace kids like him, but you benefit from having had him."

Manning, named Big Eight player of the year as a sophomore and junior, averaged 22.3 points and 8.9 rebounds this season.

Hawkins, a 6-3 guard, enters tournament play with a 36.0 scoring average, the highest since Freeman Williams of Portland State averaged 38.8 in 1977. He's also the first player to score 1,000 points in a season since Williams 11 years ago.

"He's the consummate collegiate player because he has an absolute great demeanor for the game and has seen every type of defense thrown at him and he's unflappable, yet remarkably consistent, inasmuch as he's averaging 36 points," Bradley Coach Stan Albeck said of Hawkins. "The honor is super and well-deserved as far as we're concerned because he not only elevated himself but our program."

Grant averaged 22 points and 6.9 assists this year and led the Big Ten in steals three consecutive seasons.

"I think it's a well-deserved honor not only because he was outstanding this year but he had a tremendous career," Michigan Coach Bill Frieder said. "He's one of the few players over the years that was instrumentally offensively and defensively game after game. He made the big plays defensively to turn games around. He shut down a lot of great players."

The Alabama Gang Is Close But Also Very Competitive

HUEYTOWN, Ala. (AP) — At Hueytown, a small town on the outskirts of Birmingham, members of the Alabama Gang pull for each other, but on the big tracks it's every man — young and old — for himself.

Neil Bonnett, Bobby Allison and his son Davey have dominated the NASCAR circuit so far in cars they and their crews put together in shops within shouting distance of each other.

Bobby Allison, at 50, with his son Daytona 500 Feb. 14, with his son right behind him and Bonnett fourth.

Bonnett, 41, has won three straight — the Pontiac 400 at Richmond, an unofficial NASCAR race in Australia and the Goodwrench 500 at Rockingham on March 6.

He is out to prove to everyone that he can still drive a race car. He got off to a great start and that means we are going to have to really work to catch up with him.

Bonnett said that when he was breaking in, Bobby Allison "opened the door for me in so many ways."

"Now I look around and see Davey coming along the same way. When you go to the Bobby Allison school of driving, you learn it all. You learn how to build the car and you learn every end of it, and Davey is doing the same thing right now."

Mickey Gibbs of Glencoe is getting ready to join the Alabama Gang. Most of the 29-year-old driver's experience has been on short tracks, but his team is preparing cars to enter in two races at Alabama International Motor Speedway, the ARCA 500K on April 30 and the NASCAR Winston 500 the next day.

who has never told anyone his age. He has won the national short track title four times and has raced for more than 30 years.

Farmer said he has had a feeler from a car owner who wants him to run five Winston Cup races this year.

"I don't know if I'll go that route or not," he said. "It may depend on my responsibility to Davey. I'm working for him now as crew chief... and that could conflict with some of my other plans."

"I've had more options lately than at any other time in my career and that's great, but where were these guys 20 years ago when I needed them?"

"I don't know what I'm going to do," Farmer said. "I just might turn all of it down, climb up on one of the trucks on race day, pop a cold one and root for the Alabama Gang."

Leach Again Comes To Mets' Rescue

By The Associated Press
The New York Mets pay Terry Leach to be a fill-in. He fills the bill perfectly.

Leach, who spent 11 years in the minor leagues, was something of a savior for the Mets' starting pitching rotation last year. He was 11-1 after making the team only because reliever Roger McDowell was recovering from hernia surgery.

On Monday, Leach once again proved his value as an emergency replacement. Sid Fernandez was scratched with back spasms, so the 34-year-old right-hander took his place and pitched four strong innings. Leach struck out four and allowed two hits and a run as the Mets beat Cincinnati 5-4.

That was in keeping with Leach's performances last year. He was 7-1 as a starter with a 3.51 earned run average, despite pitching much of the season with torn cartilage in his right knee.

"I could run late last year but I couldn't pitch," said Leach, who set a team record with 10 straight victories at the start of the season. "My knee has still got a little pain to it, but that's normal recuperation according to my doctor. Gary Carter told me he had one knee operation where it took him two years before it quit hurting. I'm hoping for a year."

He's also hoping for a repeat of his results last year — as a starter or reliever. With Fernandez sidelined, Leach could slip right back into the rotation.

"Fernandez is hurting pretty bad. He's got a big knot in his back." Manager Davey Johnson said.

Elsewhere in exhibition baseball Monday, it was Toronto 5, Philadelphia 3; Houston 5, Pittsburgh 0; Texas 4, Atlanta 3 in 10 innings; Baltimore 5, Detroit 4; San Diego 9, San Francisco 4; Seattle 9, California 8; and Kansas City 4, Minnesota 3.

In games involving split squads, the Chicago White Sox edged St. Louis 12-11 and lost to the Yankees 7-4; Los Angeles beat Boston 3-2 in 10 innings and Montreal 6-1; and Cleveland beat Milwaukee 1-0 and the Chicago Cubs 8-6.

Mets 5, Reds 4
The Mets scored three times in the seventh inning, with Bill Almon singling in a run and scoring on John Gibbons' double.

Cincinnati's Mario Soto and Leach, both coming off surgery, allowed one run each over four innings.

Eddie Milner and Chris Sabo homered for the Reds.

Blue Jays 5, Phillies 3

Toronto Blue Jays took advantage of Joe Cowley's wildness to score three runs in the seventh inning. With the Phillies leading 3-2, Cowley loaded the bases by walking two batters and hitting a third. He then walked Cecil Upshaw to force in the tying run. Rick Leach followed with a two-run single.

Fred McCriff had a two-run homer for Toronto.

Royals 5, Twins 4

Bill Pecota scored the winning run on two Minnesota errors in the 10th inning. Jim Eisenreich, who had homered earlier, tripled and scored the tying run on Pecota's single. Pecota stole second, advanced to third on catcher Sal Butera's throwing error and came home on center fielder Mark Davidson's throwing error.

Shortstop Brad Wellman committed an error in the 10th inning, allowing Tom Brunansky to score an unearned run and give the Twins a 3-2 lead.

Dan Gladden and Randy Bush had homers for Minnesota.

Astros 5, Pirates 0

Bob Knepper, Rob Mallicoat, Charley Kerfeld and Dave Smith combined on a four-hitter and Terry Puhl drove in two runs with a double.

Rangers 4, Braves 3

Steve Kemp knocked in two runs with a pinch-hit single in the 10th inning, handing the Braves their fifth straight loss. Curtis Wilkerson opened the 10th with a single, Ruben Sierra doubled and both men scored on Kemp's single.

Gerald Perry hit a solo home run for the Braves.

Orioles 5, Tigers 4

Mike Young's three-run homer off rookie John Wetteland keyed a four-run Baltimore fifth inning as Detroit lost for the seventh consecutive game.

"We're not here to win spring ball," Detroit Manager Sparky

Anderson said. "Otherwise, they wouldn't call it spring training. They'd call it something else."

Mike Morgan, worked the first six innings for Baltimore, the first Orioles' pitcher to go that far this spring. Morgan gave up one run on six hits, walking one and striking out two.

Padres 9, Giants 4

Both Benito Santiago and rookie Brad Ponder had two-run homers and rookie Roberto Alomar added a bases-loaded triple as the Padres snapped San Francisco's four-game winning streak. Former Giant Mark Grant worked the first five innings for San Diego, yielding two hits and one run.

Kevin Mitchell, the only Giant with a homer this spring, hit his third. John Kruk had three singles for the Padres.

Mariners 9, Angels 8

A balk by Bryan Harvey scored Donell Nixon with the go-ahead run in the seventh inning. The Mariners rallied for four runs in the seventh off Jack Lazorko and Harvey to overcome an 8-5 deficit.

Seattle tied the score 8-8 on Ken Phelps' run-scoring double. Nixon ran for Phelps and went to third on Patrick Lennon's long flyout. After Mickey Brantley walked, Harvey replaced Lazorko but before he threw his first pitch he was called for a balk, allowing Nixon to score.

Both Mark Ryal and Bob Boone had two-run doubles in California's five-run fifth inning.

White Sox 12, Cardinals 11
Yankees 7, White Sox 4

Dave Gallagher, trying to make the team as a non-roster outfielder, hit a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning as Chicago edged St. Louis. Gallagher's homer was one of three in the game that included 34 hits, 19 by the White Sox, and three errors by each team.

Harold Baines also hit one for Chicago while Tom Pagnozzi and Mike Fitzgerald homered for St. Louis.

The White Sox scored five runs off starter Greg Mathews in his two-inning stint, while the Cardinals countered with six runs off starter Adam Peterson in the first three innings.

The rest of the White Sox lost to the Yankees as rookie Roberto Kelly hit a three-run, eighth-inning home run.

Kelly, bidding for the center field job, is hitting .333.

Rickey Henderson paced a 13-hit attack, going 3-for-4 with three runs scored for the Yankees. Henderson hit his third homer of the spring.

Dodgers 3, Red Sox 2
Dodgers 6, Expos 1

A portion of the Dodgers stayed home at Vero Beach, Fla., and nipped Boston when Mike Marshall singled with the bases loaded in the 10th inning. Craig Shipley led off the inning with a single and Gilberto Reyes was hit by a pitch. The runners advanced on Dave Anderson's groundout and Darrin Fletcher was walked intentionally before Marshall got his game-winning hit.

Shipley singled four times in four at-bats, and Marshall went 3-for-5, including a double.

At San Juan, Puerto Rico, Tracy Woodson homered and doubled, driving in three runs. Woodson homered in the fifth inning off Neal Heaton and added a two-run double in the sixth as the Dodgers won the opener in an annual two-game series to benefit the Roberto Clemente Sports City.

Left-hander Fernando Valenzuela backed Woodson's effort by pitching five scoreless innings. Ralph Bryant also homered for Los Angeles.

Indians 1, Brewers 0
Indians 8, Cubs 6

Charlie Scott, Jack O'Connor and Greg Harris combined on a five-hitter and Carmen Castillo homered for the game's only run against the Brewers, who have lost seven in a row. Castillo homered with two outs in the fourth inning off Bill Wegman. Castillo and Gary Allanson had three hits each in Cleveland's 12-hit attack.

Scott pitched five innings, giving up just three hits and striking out six.

In Cleveland's other game, Ron Tingley's two-out, two-run double in the ninth inning won it. Julio Franco opened with a single, and one out later, Milt Harper walked. After an infield out advanced both runners, Tingley doubled home the winning runs.

UNCC Is Happy To Be In Atlanta

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina-Charlotte coach Jeff Mullins says playing the opening round of the NCAA tournament in Atlanta is the next best thing to home, especially considering his team's history in The Omni.

The 49ers last NCAA tournament appearance was in Atlanta in 1977, when they became that year's so-called Cinderella team by battling into the Final Four by defeating Central Michigan, Syracuse and Michigan.

A controversial tap-in at the buzzer by Jerome Whitehead gave Marquette a 51-49 victory over the 49ers, and that robbed them of a chance of facing North Carolina, the in-state big brother they have never played.

"It is almost like home," Mullins said of The Omni, which is a four-hour drive from Charlotte. "It's not Charlotte, but I guess it's the next best thing to it and a lot of our fans can get there. The Omni is very familiar to our players so it should work out very well."

The 49ers face 19th-ranked Brigham Young in the opening round of the Southeast Regional.

After beating Virginia Commonwealth for the Sun Belt Conference championship one week ago, Coach Jeff Mullins and his team sweated out Sunday's selection process at a party.

"It's a lot more fun waiting around to see who you're going to play than if you're going to play," Mullins said. "When you get this far, you don't worry about who you're going to play. You just hurry up and get prepared for them."

After seven years of decline which bottomed out at a 5-23 record in 1984-85, Mullins took over the program in 1986. He discovered the team in poor physical shape and learned his players were preparing for his first season by scrimmaging the UNCC women's team.

"The biggest thing was there were no expectations around the program. The kids didn't expect to do well," Mullins said. "It was just a situation where everything had slid to a very low point."

Following 8-20 and 18-14 seasons, this year's club finished at 22-8, capping the season by taking the Sun Belt title and the automatic NCAA berth that comes with it.

"I thought 20 wins would come, but I didn't think that we'd be regular-season champions," he said. "We've ... always set a team goal of how many wins we were going to have and do the best you can in the conference. This season, all of a sudden, it just slipped up on us."

UNCC would like to surprise the Cougars, but Mullins expects Brigham Young has learned its lesson from Sun Belt opponents after a loss to Alabama-Birmingham.

"I have a tremendous amount of respect for them and what Coach LaDell Andersen has done for that team," Mullins said. "They're a very disciplined team and, like us, have a very unorthodox style of play."

Leading the attack for UNCC is Byron Dinkins, who earned conference player of the year honors scoring 21 points per game. Inside is Dan Plondke, a 6-foot-8 player who led the Sun Belt in field goal accuracy at 61 percent and averaged 12 points per game.

"We're not an overly talented team, but we've got some very nice players," Mullins said. "They play well together, they really worked hard to reach their goals this year."

 When you play in a matchpoint event, you don't have to worry about how much it costs if you go down 1,100 points—you can't do worse than zero. As a result, players preempt and sacrifice a lot more freely in the competitive game than at rubber bridge, especially if the vulnerability is in their favor.

East's opening diamond preempt is typical of pairs' tactics. Understandably, South was reluctant to pass three no trump, a contract which would have done well with a diamond lead. West made no bones about the fact that the double was for penalties.

West led the ace of diamonds and declarer ruffed. When a low club lead fetched the king, marking East with 11 or 12 cards in the minor suits, declarer saw that there was only one combination of cards that would permit the contract to be made—West's shape would have to be 5-4-3-1.

Declarer ruffed a diamond, cashed three high hearts and then entered dummy by ruffing his heart winner. Another diamond ruff bought declarer's trick total to eight and at the same time reduced his trump holding to two fewer than West's. It also set the stage for two amusing end plays.

Declarer exited with a club and West was forced to ruff and lead away from his spade honors. Declarer won the jack and exited with a club, and again West could do no more than ruff and endplay himself.

Down to only the ace-queen trumps, he was forced to surrender the game-going trick to declarer. West could score only one trump trick.

Singer Off Critical List

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Doctors removed singer Dennis Day from the critical list after he responded to treatment for a head injury he suffered last week in a fall at home.

His condition was upgraded to serious Monday after surgery Saturday relieved swelling of the brain, said Armen Markarian, spokesman for St. John's Hospital.

Day, 71, was diagnosed last July as suffering from amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, or Lou Gehrig's disease, a progressive nerve disorder that causes loss of muscle control.

Day became famous by performing with comedian Jack Benny starting in 1939. An accomplished Irish tenor, Day also was known for playing the innocent foil to Benny's irascible character on television and radio.

Cash Hiccups

MITCHELL, S.D. (AP) — Country singer Johnny Cash ended a three-city South Dakota tour here with an unwelcome non-musical sidekick — the hiccups.

"This is an all-time first for me," Cash told his audience in the Corn Palace. "It's the first time I've done a show with the hiccups."

Cash, who also had a recent bout with the flu, sipped water during Sunday afternoon's performance. He even left the stage for a short time to try unsuccessfully to get rid of his hiccups.

He and his wife, June Carter Cash, performed to the audience of 2,000 for about two hours.

(Spanish-speaking) people who are not watching network television, or are watching it and not getting the full impact of it."

Despite the availability of a Spanish sound track, radio stations in New York City, Miami and Sacramento, Calif. have refused to participate in the simulcast for one reason: In accordance with a directive from CBS, none of the show's commercials will be translated from English into Spanish.

CBS, Radio Stations Will Carry TV Show In Spanish

By DIANE HAITHAM
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Tuesday night, CBS will begin airing a new comedy called "Trial and Error," the story of two Latino friends in Los Angeles who have followed wildly different career paths: one is an attorney, the other sells T-shirts.

And also beginning Tuesday night, the Spanish-speaking communities in seven major American cities will get a chance to enjoy the show: Through the cooperation of CBS, Columbia Pictures Television and Spanish-language radio stations in each city, "Trial and Error" will become the first network situation comedy to be simulcast in Spanish.

Participating radio stations include those in Los Angeles, Houston, Chicago, San Antonio, Texas, Albuquerque, N.M., Tampa, Fla. and Tucson, Ariz. — all cities with large Spanish-speaking populations. The cost of the radio broadcasts will be absorbed by the show's producer, Columbia, which has bought half-hour time blocks for the simulcasts.

Producing the Spanish sound track and purchasing radio time will add more than $100,000 to Columbia's costs for making the eight episodes that CBS has ordered for now.

Eduardo Cervantes, vice president of current programs at Columbia Pictures Television, believes that simulcasting could provide advertisers a unique link with the growing community of Latino consumers. A recent study published by a Miami-based research corporation says that there are 20 million Latinos in the United States, and that population is growing at six times the rate of other ethnic groups here. They collectively spend about $134 billion a year.

"When there's a group that's spending that kind of money, and advertisers are looking to home in on their market for a particular product, any sponsor would be silly not to pursue it," Cervantes said. "No conduit has been developed that is as strong as television. Right now there are a tremendous number of monolingual

Jackson Cancels

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pop singer Michael Jackson canceled a performance at the 18,000-seat Arena, the second time in 72 hours illness forced him to skip a scheduled concert on his 13-city tour.

"It's been a tough past three days. Michael Jackson is not known as 'no-show,'" Arena manager Roger Dixon said Monday. "He's always been known to give it his all (but) he's only human. This just proves it."

Monday night's show by Jackson, whose tour started Feb. 24 in Kansas

City and has taken him to New York City, originally had been scheduled for Saturday night.

Jackson performed Sunday night as scheduled before about 19,000 at the Arena despite suffering from a cold. Dixon said he had been notified by the singer's promotion company, TCC Productions of Encino, Calif., that Jackson's illness progressed Monday to laryngitis.

His tour is scheduled to end in mid-May.

'Morning' Ties Box Office Record

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Good Morning, Vietnam" was moviegoers' favorite for the the ninth-straight weekend, tying it with "Crocodile Dundee" for the longest consecutive time at the top.

Second in last weekend's box office survey was "Vice Versa," featuring a Judge Reinhold transformation into a prepubescent kid, followed by "Masquerade" in third and "Off Limits" fourth.

All 10 top grossing films combined took in about $30 million, with "Good Morning, Vietnam" ringing up a mere $4.36 million during the pre-Easter vacation box office doldrums.

"It's another down week," said John Krier of Exhibitor Relations Co., which surveys the studios' weekly performance at the box office. "It looks like we're marking time until Easter."

For the Easter break, the studios are releasing the animated feature "The Fox and the Hounds," Alan Alda's "A New Life," Matthew Broderick's "Biloxi Blues" and Anthony Michael Hall's "Johnny B. Goode."

In addition to "Good Morning, Vietnam," the Disney Studios had two other pictures in the top 10. "Three Men and a Baby" was seventh 7 after 15 weeks in release and "Shoot to Kill" ninth.

The lure of romance between Rob Lowe and Meg Tilly gave "Masquerade" a debut weekend gross of $3.5 million while the Willem Dafoe-Gregory Hines cop thriller "Off Limits" earned $2.8 million.

In fifth was Cher's critically-acclaimed "Moonstruck," which won her a Golden Globe trophy and an Oscar nomination, followed by Harrison Ford's "Frantic" in sixth and "Three Men and a Baby" in seventh.

"Moving," starring Richard Pryor as a New York engineer forced to relocate his family to Boise, Idaho, earned more than $2.4 million to place eighth, followed by "Shoot to Kill."
