MURDER SCENE — A Route 2, Grimesland, man, Bobby Charles White, was murdered at his home Saturday night, according to the Pitt County Sheriff's Department. Law enforcement agents were still investigating the scene this morning. Officers said White had been stabbed or cut at least 30 times. (Reflector Photo by Thomas Forrest)

Dynamite Found In Capitol Area

RALEIGH (AP) — Raleigh police removed a box of dynamite from the Capitol grounds today after an anonymous telephone call tipped them to its location.

Police used squad cars to block traffic, and directed pedestrians around the immediate area at the corner of Morgan and Salisbury streets.

Two sticks of dynamite were found in a small cardboard box, placed under a bush a few feet from the sidewalk. The sidewalks around the Capitol grounds are being removed and replaced. The dynamite was found in one of the areas of construction.

Herbert F. Gay, chief of the State Capitol Police, said his office had not received any bomb threats or had any other similar problems with the State Capitol Building or grounds.

Gay said the dynamite wouldn't have exploded.

"You've got to have caps," to detonate it, he said. "And there was nothing there but the two sticks of dynamite."

Vehicle and pedestrian traffic were rerouted until the dynamite was removed about 7:30 a.m.

Sgt. J. W. Pierce, the department's bomb squad officer, put the dynamite into a paper bag and drove away to dispose of it.

Capt. R. D. Williams, on the scene with a dozen Raleigh police, State Capitol police, and Highway Patrol officers, said police received an anonymous telephone call about 6:45 a.m. that there was dynamite on the Capitol grounds.

Police looked into the box, but didn't touch the box or its contents until Pierce arrived. After he inspected it, Pierce went back to his police car, pulled on a pair of rubber gloves to avoid putting his fingerprints on the box and removed the dynamite.

"It's two sticks of dynamite," he said. "It's pretty old and deteriorated." Williams said police know that the anonymous telephone call was made from a pay telephone on South Saunders Street, but wouldn't say exactly where it was located.

Williams said it was the only such threat, or warning call made to police last night or early today.

Gay said his department isn't treating the phone call and dynamite as someone's idea of a prank.

"We take it serious," he said. "Anytime you've got dynamite around, it's serious. But if somebody's going to bother to call you, they're not ready to detonate anything," he said.

SBI special agent Billy G. Green said two sticks of dynamite is about a

Grimesland Man Stabbed 30 Times

Bobby Charles White, 47, of Route 2, Grimesland, was cut and stabbed to death in an attack in his home on N.C. 33 just east of the Brick Kiln Road — state road 1762 — Saturday night, according to Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson. Law enforcement officers are continuing their hunt for the killer.

Tyson said this morning that White had more than 30 stab and cut wounds on his neck, chest and back as a result of the attack.

According to Tyson, White's wife left the home about 7 p.m. and returned about 9 p.m. to find her husband dead in the living room. Tyson said it is believed that White was attacked and died shortly after Mrs. White left the residence.

There was no sign of forced entry, Tyson said, and there was no sign of a violent struggle.

"While we're not ruling it out," Tyson said that robbery did not appear to be a motive. White's wallet with about $80 in cash, was found at the scene, according to Tyson.

Tyson said the State Bureau of Investigation is assisting in the investigation of the case.

White was a mechanic for the city of Greenville's public works department, Tyson said.

Strickland Quits Board Race; Bethel Man Files

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

Democrat Bruce Strickland of Bell Arthur withdrew today as a candidate for the Pitt County Board of Commissioners' election.

In a letter to the Pitt County Board of Elections, Strickland said he withdrew due to recent illness and death in his family and to devote more time to family business interests.

Noon today was the deadline for candidates to file under the new method of election for a seat on the board. Strickland had filed as a candidate in District 4.

Meanwhile, James H. Dupree, a Democrat from Bethel, filed his candidacy today in Consolidated District A.

Dupree served as a town commissioner of Bethel for two terms and as mayor for four terms.

In addition, Barbara Brockett-Fenner, a Democrat from Greenville, re-filed her candidacy Friday in District 2 under the new method of election.

Meeting today's filing deadline were the following candidates:

District 1, Democrat Farney M. Moore Jr. and Republican Jim Rouse, both of Greenville; District 2, Democrat Eugene (Gene) James of Route 4, Tarboro, and Democrat Barbara Brockett-Fenner of Greenville, and District 4, Democrats Lin-

IRA Kills Officer In Street Attack

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republican Army shot dead a policeman today, two days after a mob at an IRA funeral killed two British soldiers.

Police said the policeman was shot in the head in a jeep in the Roman Catholic Creggan district of Londonderry, and died at a hospital.

The IRA claimed responsibility in a clandestine message to Belfast media.

The officer, whose name was not made public immediately, was the 23rd person and the second policeman to die in the British province this year.

Police sources said today about 30 suspects were being sought in connection with the mob attack Saturday on two British soldiers. The outlawed IRA also claimed responsibility for the killings of the soldiers.

Irish and British newspapers said a police roundup of suspects in Catholic strongholds in Belfast was imminent.

Police made no formal statement, but the sources, requesting anonymity, said suspects were identified by studying videotape of Saturday's rampage, in which the two soldiers were beatend and stripped naked by the crowd and shot by IRA gunmen.

Three suspects were arrested immediately after the killings.

In the Catholic Markets district of West Belfast, police seized 600 pounds of "explosive material" early today and said they arrested a woman.

In London, Protestant politicians demanded that Northern Ireland Secretary Tom King resume heavy security at IRA funerals. King was to make a statement in the House of Commons today.

In all, five people died during burials or funeral corteges in a four-day period last week.

Concerning the search for the killers of the soldiers, a statement by the Royal Ulster Constabulary, the Northern Ireland police force, said only that, "Inquiries are being actively pursued."

But police sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said about 30 suspects were identified after officers scrutinized film of the slayings.

Soldiers Patrol Panama Streets

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Shops and stores remained shuttered today and thousands of soldiers toting M-16 rifles and tear gas canisters patrolled the capital at the outset of a general strike aimed at ousting strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

Buses and taxis were operating normally, but many were empty or were carrying fewer passengers than normal. Traffic was light.

Many government offices appeared to be operating with limited personnel, despite a government warning that public employees would be suspended if they joined in the work stoppage.

In the city's central business district, where six previous strikes in the past nine months have had little effect, most stores didn't open.

Businessmen there have never before joined larger, wealthier merchants and industrialists in a strike.

"We're sending Noriega a message," said the owner of one small shoe store, who asked not to be identified. "We hope he's listening."

Helmeted soldiers in battle garb patrolled nearby. No violence was reported early in the day.

The government said the troops were deployed to assure transit of buses and taxis and to provide security for businesses and store owners that wanted to open despite the strike call by the National Civic Crusade.

Many of the transportation companies are owned by the Panamanian Defense Forces and those that aren't require government licenses to operate.

Aurelio Barria, head of the opposition National Civic Crusade, said Sunday the government may try to use an emergency decree to forcibly open industries and businesses that close during the strike.

The indefinite work stoppage was called after Noriega, commander of the Defense Forces and the force behind the civilian government, rejected a U.S. plan for his removal as "unacceptable, illogical and anti-Panamanian."

Noriega, who has been indicted in the United States on drug trafficking charges, reportedly told William Walker, a U.S. deputy assistant secretary of state, he wanted to remain in Panama and help from a transitional government.

Walker and Michael Kozak, a State

Department legal officer, were said to have offered Noriega freedom from U.S. extradition if he sought asylum in a third country. They met with the general and his high command on Friday.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, appearing Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press," said Noriega "can't expect to have any say in the transition."

New Contra Aid Proposal Pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is indicating support for a new congressional plan to send military aid to the Contra rebels even as supporters of the package said today there may be no more Nicaraguan troops in Honduras.

"They seem to be pulling back across the border," Senate Intelligence Committee Chairman David Boren said of 1,500 Sandinista troops that the administration says crossed into Honduras last week in pursuit of the Contras.

"In fact, they may now all be out," Boren, D-Okla., said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America." "I think our show of strength helped the situation."

Secretary of State George Shultz, offering the administration's first comment on the Contra aid proposal put together last week by Boren and several other senators, said Sunday that it "should go forward."

Commenting on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press," he said the package was "a little low on money" but under study by the administration.

Boren said he was "amazed that there hasn't already been more action" in advancing the plan.

However, Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., a senior member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and an opponent of further military aid to the Contras, said today that a favorable vote in the House is much more problematic.

"The events of last week probably enhanced the possibility of some kind of aid package moving forward," Hamilton said on the same ABC-TV show. "But there are a lot of

Expo '88 Will Open On Thursday

A ribbon-cutting ceremony Thursday will formally open the fourth annual trade show, EXPO '88, at the New Greenville Warehouse on N.C. 33 in Greenville.

Scheduled for 9:45 a.m., the ceremony will precede the unveiling of business, industry, education, home and garden exhibits. Live entertainment and refreshments also will be provided during the show, which will be held through Saturday.

Sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, more than 25,000 people from eastern North Carolina are expected to attend the show, said Mark Garner. He along with Wayne Dempsey are co-chairmen for the event.

"EXPO '88 is an opportunity for exhibitors to tell their story, and for visitors to shop for every variety of goods and services available in this growing market," Garner said in an earlier statement.

"Many people do not realize that 98 percent of the chamber's membership is comprised of small businesses offering specialized goods and services," Dempsey said.

Entertainment will include the Band of Oz Thursday from 6:30 p.m. to 7:15 p.m. and from 7:45 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.; Super Grit Cowboy Band Friday from 6:30 p.m. to 7:15 p.m. and from 7:45 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., and Nicky Harris Saturday from 2 p.m. to 2:45 p.m. and from 3:15 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Hours for the trade show are from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. For more information, call 752-4101.

Jones To Speak

State Rep. Walter Jones Jr. will speak in a public meeting in Hickory tonight on a campaign finance bill, House Bill 1124, which will be considered by the N.C. General Assembly during the short session this summer. The meeting is sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

In addition, Jones will speak Tuesday in Greenville at a meeting of the Greenville Credit Women's Association.

Jones is a sponsor of the legislation, which seeks to limit campaign spending in North Carolina. In the N.C. House he serves on the House Committee on Governmental Ethics and chairs the House Committees on Commissions and Schools for the Blind and Deaf. He is also a member of the Committees on Education, Finance, Local Government, Small Business and State Personnel.

Attended Seminar

Carlton G. Hardee attended the 7th Annual Governmental Affairs Seminar in Washington, D.C. recently. He is the legislative representative for the Local Chapter IV of the North Carolina Rehabilitation Association.

Seminar participants met with senators, representatives, and legislative aides from North Carolina as well as senators from across the nation.

Information regarding the procedures for legislative action will be presented with the general membership of the Local Chapter IV. For further information contact Dr. Steve Thomas, chapter IV chairperson, at 757-6961 or Billy Ross, field coordinator, at 830-3426.

Webb Honored

A luncheon honoring Elizabeth Webb was given Friday by the North Carolina Employment Security Commission.

Mrs. Webb, 79, is employed by the Mid-East Commission.

Bill Riggins, 75, employed by Hastings Ford Inc., was an honored guest at the luncheon. Ralph Nevils, Employment Security Commission older worker specialist for applicant services, presented the certificates of merit.

David J. Whichard, chairman of the board of The Daily Reflector, received the same award that Mrs. Webb received last year. He will receive a certificate of appreciation this year.

The award and the luncheon are designed to focus attention on the employment needs of older workers who remain in the work force.

Arrests Made

Greenville police arrested six people in connection with three theft incidents reported to the department Saturday.

Officer M.E. Hayes said Morris Earl Warren, 17, of Route 1, Jamesville, and a juvenile, were charged with larceny in connection with the theft of $7.97 worth of window film from the K-Mart store at Greenville Square Shopping Center about 6:41 p.m.

Officer J.G. Jenkins said Donnie Ray Miller, 18, of 202B Arthur St. was charged with shoplifting in connection with the theft of $2.58 worth of candy from the Farm Fresh store on Greenville Boulevard about 9:16 p.m.

Jenkins said Antonio Devon Davis, 17, of 1808B Norcott Circle was charged with aiding and abetting shoplifting in connection with the incident, while a juvenile involved in the incident was turned over to the department's juvenile division.

Officer R.L. Vandiford said John Michael Couillard, 21, of Camp Lejeune was arrested on larceny charges in connection with the theft of $3.05 from the Rafter's at 209 E. Fifth St. in an incident reported at 10:41 p.m.

Train Accident

A tractor-trailer which apparently stalled on a railroad track in Grimesland was struck by a train Saturday morning, according to the N.C. Highway Patrol.

Trooper J.B. Heath said the driver of the truck, John Dowdy, 30, of Sanford, was not in the vehicle when it was struck. Approximately $4,000 damage was done to the trailer.

Neither the train engineer, Sherwood Wall Keel, 44, of Route 7, Rocky Mount, nor any other of the three people on the train were hurt. Approximately $10,000 damage was done to the front of the train.

The accident occurred at the train crossing on River Street 25 feet north of Carr Street, Grimesland, at 8:25 a.m.

54 Tanker Crewmen Missing After Iraqi Attack

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — As many as 54 crewmen are missing and presumed dead after Iraqi jets attacked two Iranian-owned oil tankers, Norwegian government and shipping officials said today.

The Norwegian Foreign Ministry reported the men were presumed to have died in the attack Saturday on Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal. Most of the crew were Iranians or Asians, although a Swedish officer was among the missing.

If the report is correct, it would be the worst death toll from an Iraqi raid on Iranian vessels since the so-called "tanker war" erupted in 1984, an offshoot of the 7½-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

Iraq, meanwhile, said it fired a long-range missile into Tehran today, the 105th in three weeks, and that Iranian gunners pounded its southern port city of Basra in an 18-hour artillery and rocket barrage.

There was no immediate report from Tehran of a missile strike.

But the official Iraqi News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, reported that the missile was fired at 3:40 p.m. in retaliation for the bombardment of Basra.

It said there were "heavy casualties" in Basra, which the Iranians were hammering in apparent retaliation for rocket and air attacks on Tehran and other cities Sunday.

Iran's official media said at least 33 civilians were killed and 65 wounded in those strikes.

In Oslo, Norway, Christen Puntervoid of the Norwegian Shipping Association said four of the 29-man crew of the tanker 253,837-ton Sanandaj had been found alive after the attack Saturday.

"The others are missing. About the other ship, we don't know for sure, but we are afraid it could be the same for them," he said, referring to the 316,379-ton Avaj which also carried a crew of 29.

Both ships were owned by the National Iranian Tanker Co., but Sanandaj's crew was enlisted by Viking Engineering, which is Norwegian owned.

Persian Gulf-based shipping sources said Iranian gunboats today attacked a Liberian tanker near the Strait of Hormuz, setting it ablaze. The Iranian attack was in apparent retaliation for Iraq's raid on Kharg.

Gulf-based shipping executives said at least one Iranian gunboat fired up to 10 rocket-propelled grenades at the 61,762-ton Liberian-registered Fumi.

PLO Prompts Widespread Strike

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli soldiers shot and killed a Palestinian in the Gaza Strip today, Arab reports said, and Palestinians carried out a widespread general strike in the occupied territories.

The strike, which left shops shuttered and public transport idle, came in response to a PLO call for "the most severe confrontation" to commemorate the 20th anniversary of a Palestinian guerrilla clash with Israel.

Also today, attackers fired at a moderate Arab's home, the army bulldozed homes of suspected firebombers and a leaflet by Arab underground leaders urged more Arabs working for the Israeli government to quit by Saturday.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin warned Sunday night the army may use tougher measures against Palestinians after the shooting death of an Israeli soldier, the first member of the military to be killed in four months of rioting.

In the Gaza town of Rafah, soldiers today fired tear gas and ammunition at stone-throwing protesters. Abdel Ahmed Jaber al Mudalal, 17, of Rafah, died after he was shot in the chest, according to the Palestine Press Service and other Arab reports.

Al Mudalal's body was taken to Khan Yunis' Nasser Hospital, the reports said. The army confirmed the death, but said it could not establish a cause because the youth's family had taken the body from the hospital.

U.N. officials, meanwhile, confirmed Arab reports that two men died Sunday from gunshot wounds suffered earlier.

Khalid Mohammed Taher, 25, was shot March 16 during a protest in Tulkarim. Mohammed Mahmoud Hamad, 25, was hit by gunfire March 4 in the village of Silwad, near Ramallah.

The fatalities brought to 106 the number of Palestinians killed since the uprising began Dec. 8, including four deaths from tear gas inhalation, according to U.N. figures.

Rabin told reporters the army was investigating whether the shooting death of Sgt. Moshe Katz indicated Palestinians intended to expand the scope of their protests to firearms from the usual stones and gasoline bombs.

Katz, a reserve soldier, died Sunday in Bethlehem after he was shot in the head at close range while on guard duty at a government building.

If "extremist Palestinian terrorist elements try to combine terrorist acts with civilian protests, we will have to change our operations and take harsher measures to handle both," Rabin said.

Attackers fired shots before dawn today at the home and car of Jack Khazmo, a prominent moderate Palestinian newspaper editor, workers at the weekly Al Bayader Assiyasi said. No injuries were reported.

Wajiha Awadallah, Khazmo's secretary, said attackers "fired many shots" into Khazmo's house in the village of Ram, just north of Jerusalem, at about 2:45 a.m.

She said they also "tried to burn the car, but it was windy and rainy," and the effort failed. She said she did not know who attacked the editor, whose newspaper follows a mainstream nationalist Palestinian line.

The domestic news agency Itim reported the army demolished nine Arab houses during the night — three because they belonged to people suspected of firebomb attacks. The agency said it was the first time the army demolished homes of suspected firebombers.

Farm Seminar

The Rural Agricultural Assistance Center at Pitt Community College, in cooperation with the Pitt County Farm Bureau, will present the seminar "Understanding Government Farm Programs" Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Pitt County Farm Bureau Building, 402 Greenville Blvd.

John Parker, assistant to the president of the N.C. Farm Bureau, will direct the program. Topics include ASCS and SCS programs, new Social Security regulations, an update on immigration laws and requirements, and other topics affecting agribusiness in eastern North Carolina.

The seminar is open to all farmers, landowners and other interested persons.

For more information, contact Robert May, RAAC coordinator, at 756-3130, extension 214, or John Brown, Pitt County Farm Bureau president, at 756-3165.

AIDS Workshop

Pitt County Memorial Hospital is sponsoring a workshop on AIDS for members of the clergy Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the hospital auditorium.

Participants will examine the medical, ethical, moral and emotional issues surrounding the disease, according to Lewis E. Lint, director of the hospital's pastoral care program.

Workshop presenters include Drs. Leo Waivers, Richard Rumley and Loretta Kopelman, all of the East Carolina University School of Medicine; Jack Davies, epidemiologist at PCMH; Chaplains Lint and Irvin Moore from PCMH; the Rev. Malloy Owen III of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, Greenville, and the Rev. Dan Wilkers of the First Presbyterian Church, Greenville.

The workshop is open to all members of the clergy. For information, call the hospital's department of pastoral care, 551-4790.

Assault Charges

A 20-year-old Williamston man, Lee Ernest Slade, Jr. of 520 West Church Street, has been charged with two counts of an assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill in connection with a Saturday shooting, according to police.

Detective Sgt. Bucky Holloman of the Williamston Police Department said Slade was arrested at 5:45 p.m. Saturday following the shooting of two men who were seated in a car at Moore's Stop and Go on Wilson Street, Williamston.

The two victims were Reginald Pearsall of P.O. Box 32, Jamesville, and Billy James Brown of Route 2, Box 731, Williamston.

According to Holloman, Pearsall, the most seriously injured of the two victims, was first taken to Martin General Hospital and then transported by EastCare to Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville, where a bullet was removed from his neck. Pearsall, Holloman said, "was taken off the critical list this morning but remains in serious condition."

Brown, who was shot in the upper left chest area, was treated at Martin General Hospital and was later released.

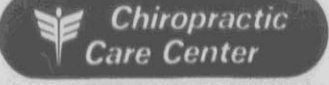

Holloman said that Slade remains in jail and is scheduled for a first hearing this morning.

Insulated World Narrows Scope

It is disturbing when the students of Gallaudet University in Washington, the nation's only university for the hearing impaired, cause the rejection of a new president without ever allowing her the chance to demonstrate her abilities.

The students are celebrating the resignation of Elisabeth Ann Zinser, a vice chancellor of University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Ms. Zinser had been appointed president of Gallaudet and was preparing to take office when campus demonstrations grew to the point where there were student boycotts of classes and blocking of gates. Ultimately Ms. Zinser resigned from her new position and the students got what they wanted, a hearing impaired president. I. King Jordan, who was dean of the school's college of arts and sciences, was named president after Ms. Zinser's resignation.

The protests also brought down the chairperson of the board Jane Bassett Spilman with the students demanding a hearing impaired chairman. They got their way in that area too. Philip W. Bravin, a deaf member of the board, was named new chairman.

Some, including the new president, saw the activities as a student victory and a victory for the deaf community at large.

The large question hanging over the entire situation, however, is whether Gallaudet University has deprived itself of an outstanding academic and administrative leader. Most colleges and universities undertake an exhaustive search process prior to choosing a new president or chancellor. The searches are often nationwide in an attempt to find the most outstanding leader possible. To undo all that with protests and disobedience has to raise questions about maintaining the academic quality of a university.

No doubt Gallaudet's student body represents the keenest minds about the nation's hearing impaired. They thus deserve the best available in administrators and faculty. While the best may be a hearing impaired person, Gallaudet should never limit itself to the hearing impaired for its leadership. That is tantamount to retreating into an insulated world, as opposed to preparing to live and work in a larger society where deafness is only a minor handicap.

Equal Time

Twice a year, there's true equality on earth, thanks to the heavens.

One of those rare occasions just passed, and we can thank Vernal Equinox for it.

No, Vernal's not old Uncle John's long lost step son twice removed, or even cousin Lizzie's brother that lived in the woods all his life. Vernal means springtime and equinox means equal length.

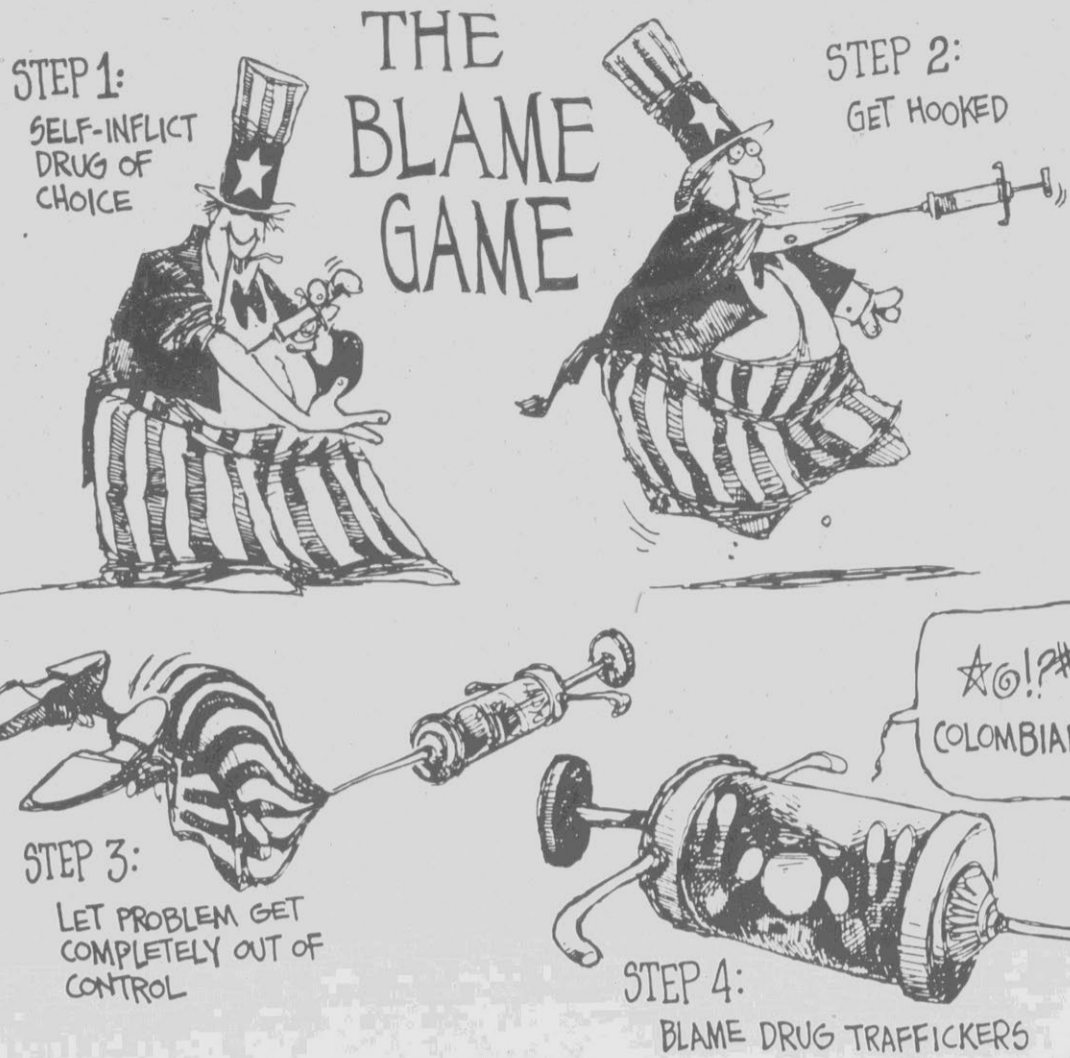

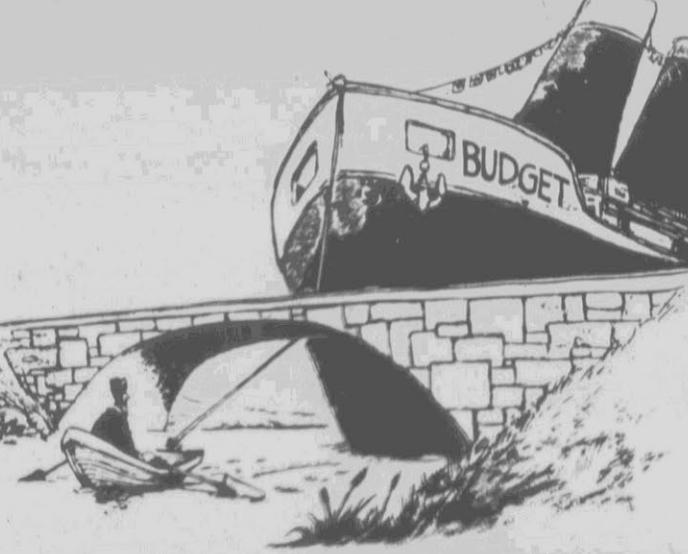

The vernal equinox is the spring day when the amount of light is identical to the amount of dark. That means sun lovers and lovers of the night got equal opportunity to do their things, whatever their things might be.

For beach bunnies, that meant hours of bliss on the sand — where it was warm enough to be blissful. For those irritating little crickets that mar the night with obnoxious chirps, it was an opportunity to rub and rest their legs for equal times. For possums, it meant as many hours of worry about crossing a dark road as hours of no worry in the daytime. What a perspective.

So for celebrators of sol and things that go peep in the night, 'twas the time to boogie. There were 12 hours for each cause. The equal time rule went to work. For those who missed it, you won't get another chance until September. That's when the autumnal equinox rolls around and brings another day of equality to earth.

So when the inequity of this world weighs heavy in the next six months — when things seem too dark or too light, too uneven — remember the day of balance the world is due. We'll see it in September.

Lancaster Could Influence Military Issues

RALEIGH (AP) — It won't happen overnight, but freshman Rep. Martin Lancaster may become one of the most influential members of Congress on military issues as the nation's defense policy undergoes a fundamental reassessment.

Lancaster, a North Carolina Democrat, earlier this year won a coveted appointment to the House Armed Services Committee. Although he's lowest in seniority among the panel's 31 Democrats, at age 45 he's young enough to climb into a leadership position.

His prospects for doing so are enhanced by the fact that his 3rd District seat is considered one of the most entrenched Democratic strongholds in Congress.

"Barring unforeseen difficulty, he will occupy a safe Democratic seat in Washington for as long as he likes," says a Congressional Quarterly biography of Lancaster, a Goldsboro lawyer who served four terms in the General Assembly before successfully running to succeed Rep. Charles Whitley, who retired in 1986.

Another advantage for Lancaster is that the armed services are big business in his district, which is home to Seymour Johnson Air Force Base at Goldsboro and the Camp Lejeune Marine facility near Jacksonville. Voters may be reluctant to turn out a congressman positioned to ward off attempts to close or downgrade the bases.

Against this backdrop, Lancaster recently returned home to Goldsboro

'Another advantage for Lancaster is that the armed services are big business in his district, which is home to Seymour Johnson Air Force Base at Goldsboro and the Camp Lejeune Marine facility near Jacksonville.'

to deliver his first major speech on military issues since his election. Addressing members of the Air Force Association, he emphasized the need for the United States and its allies to beef up their conventional fighting capability as nuclear arms reduction gains momentum.

"It is, after all, the massive Soviet military presence that has maintained the unnatural division of Europe and suppression of human rights and personal freedoms," Lancaster said. The North Atlantic Treaty Organization "has nuclear arms to answer the Soviets' nuclear arms but we have no counterpart to the Berlin Wall."

In a telephone interview last week, Lancaster said he didn't object to the intermediate range nuclear forces treaty signed by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and under consideration by the U.S. Senate.

But he said as the two nations discuss far more drastic cuts in nuclear arsenals, it's important for the U.S. side to insist that conventional warfare figure into the equation.

The 31 Soviet ground divisions in Central Europe, which far outnumber Allied conventional forces, are there to "intimidate the West, to keep Warsaw Pact nations in submission, and above all to squash such anti-Soviet popular movements as those we remember in Hungary, Poland, East Germany and Czechoslovakia," Lancaster said in the speech.

He acknowledged in the interview that persuading the Soviets to scale back their troops and armaments is half the battle; the other half is persuading the Allies to spend more on conventional arms and troops, a recurrent topic in discussions between members of the U.S. Congress and European parliaments.

"I hope we're getting through to them that ... we cannot continue to be the world's defender by ourselves," Lancaster said. "We've got to have some help from those folks who are beating us about the head on trade and yet rely on us for their defense."

European leaders frequently point out that while many of those countries have military drafts, the United States doesn't. A resumption of the U.S. draft is unlikely, but Lancaster concedes the nation's pool of top-notch military recruits is shrinking.

In his speech, he endorsed a concept that appears to be gaining popularity on Capitol Hill: "national service." The idea is to offer young people — probably as they leave high school — a choice between a year or two of military service and work in other government programs such as the Peace Corps.

Aside from providing manpower to fight illiteracy, rebuild the nation's infrastructure and care for children of welfare mothers as they receive job training, the program could instill "a new sense of citizenship" in the young, he said.

But such a program is just beginning to take shape on the drawing board and won't stand a chance of enactment unless the next president fights for it, Lancaster said.

Nuclear disarmament, conventional buildup and national service are just a few of the defense-related issues that confront Congress as the Reagan administration winds down. Another undoubtedly will be how much the nation can spend on defense while struggling to reduce the federal budget deficit.

Conventional weaponry and manpower is more expensive than nuclear forces, Lancaster says. "But we'll have to pay the cost (of a conventional buildup). The alternative is a more vulnerable Europe, and this is scarier than trying to balance the budget out of the defense budget."

No Tolerance For Rambo Action

'This group of Americans, shaped by Vietnam and taught by events to hold a more cynical view of public leaders, will not accept passively a Rambo action to support a failed policy ...'

believes and what it is willing to do about several obvious problems: Central America, economic competitiveness, the deficit.

Even more vexing is to try to understand why so many Americans remain aloof from public questions and why they refrain from public involvement.

Obviously, there are no simple answers, but fascinating new evidence exists about the attitudes of a large slice of the American electorate. The current issue of Rolling Stone magazine contains preliminary findings from a group portrait of the so-called "baby boomers" — Americans between 18 and 44 — the nation's largest bloc of voters.

As author William Greider writes of this critical group, "They are the first generation to experience life, from infancy to adulthood, in the glowing presence of television. At least potentially, they are the generation that will set the tone of the national experience for the next 20 years or so."

Greider's initial report, and others that will follow, are based on a poll begun two years ago by Peter D. Hart Research Associates, one of the nation's best-known political polling firms. The object of the survey, commissioned by the magazine, was to provide the most extensive analysis to date of these Americans and to make it available in a watershed presidential election year.

Greider points to one finding as perhaps the most revealing. When asked to pick the two people in public life they had admired most in the past 20 years, the baby boomers "did not choose a great president or a titan of business and finance or name a celebrity from the world of sports or entertainment. They turned instead to the past, when the idealism of many of them was a powerful force at work in American society."

Strength For Today

Only when we detach ourselves from the world, can we make some discoveries. Those discoveries can only be made in total, uninterrupted, solitude. There are certain fine flavors in life which can be tasted only in quiet, unhurried moments.

For example, when the prophet Habakkuk was dismayed about the conditions in the world of his day, he went into his watch tower and God spoke to him as he meditated in silence.

It is true that retreat from the world can sometimes be cowardly, but we may well leave the clamor of this busy life behind for an hour, a day, a week or a month and search for a new inward experience. A sojourn in places, and in the mind, amid conditions which make it possible for us to meditate and reflect can lead to discoveries which cannot be made anywhere else.

Another finding is more striking — and timely. This generation, according to the survey, is isolationist, a generation that has "retreated into itself." Specifically, it has no desire for foreign adventures — and certainly not war.

There's much to be disturbed about in that finding — and some reason for cheer. It strongly suggests that this group of Americans, shaped by Vietnam and taught by events to hold a more cynical view of public leaders, will not accept passively a Rambo action to support a failed policy in the jungles of Central America.

Differing Views On U.S. Educational System Quality

Is America's educational system in trouble? The answer seems to depend on whom you ask. When the general public is asked, the answer is "yes" — our educational system is weak in comparison with other Western countries and it has not improved much in the last few years. But when the people who administer the public educational system are asked, they resoundingly say the schools are superior and getting better.

It is not surprising that the people running the educational enterprise think more highly of it than those of us outside the loop. But the degree of disparity is truly striking: 87 percent of superintendents think the schools in their communities have improved in the last five years; only 25 percent of the public agrees with them.

The disparity extends beyond this general assessment to a host of other related issues. The National Center for Education Information explored these issues in surveys administered to 3,577 superintendents and public- and private-school principals last fall. We compared our results to answers to the same questions posed to the general public in polls conducted by the Gallup Organization, Louis Harris & Associates, Yankelovich and other organizations during the last year. On not a single one of the 26 items compared was there substantial agreement between the people running the public-school system and the people who pay for it.

Spokespersons for the special-interest groups that represent school administrators say that nothing more is involved than a public-relations problem. But it is hard to believe that faulty public relations accounts for many of the discrepancies we discovered.

Some examples:

— The public cites drug use and lack of discipline as the major problems facing public schools; administrators point to insufficient financial support — and lack of parental interest. (This last belief is especially hard to reconcile with the facts that more than half of public-school parents think they should have more say regarding what courses are offered but only 13 to 14 percent of principals and superintendents want more parent input on curricula.)

• More disagreements: Three out of four parents think they should have the right to choose which local schools their children attend; only a third of superintendents and principals agree; large majorities of both school officials and parents favor sex education in the school, but support for sex education in grades four through eight is considerably weaker among public-school parents (60 percent favor it) than among school officials, of whom more than 80 percent support such education.

• Support for busing of school children to achieve racial balance is considerably stronger among the public than it used to be (Harris found 41 percent of the public favoring busing in the fall of 1986, up from 14 percent a decade earlier.) But only 16 percent of superintendents, 20 percent of public-school principals and 20 percent of private-school principals surveyed by NCEI in fall 1987 favored busing to achieve racial balance.

Sharp differences also exist on the question of federal-government support for and influence over education in this country. Two out of three Americans want the federal government to be "very involved" in helping people get an affordable education and more than a third would like to see Washington have more influence in improving local public schools. But only 14 percent of superintendents and 23 percent of the principals want the federal government to be "very involved" in helping people afford education, and only about 10 percent want Washington to have more influence on improving local schools — in fact, more than half (56 percent) want less federal influence.

About the only thing that the stewards of America's public-school system seem to think is wrong with that system is — you guessed it — not enough money. At least three-fourths of them think we are spending too little on almost every aspect of education — this despite the fact that, since 1970, spending per student enrolled in elementary and secondary schools in this nation has increased 60 percent, after adjusting for inflation while per-capita income has outpaced inflation by only half that much. Moreover, less than half of the public polled last summer said they felt they were getting an excellent or good value for these tax dollars.

So, what's going on? Is our educational system in as good a shape as the people administering it say it is? Have we been misled by gloom and doom media stories? Or do we have a bunch of "good ol' boys" running the schools who are out of touch with what those of us paying for the system think and want?

There is much of a positive nature that can be said about our education system: The rate of high-school completions has increased steadily and dramatically in this country; a large proportion of young people of all races who drop out of high school in their teens go back and graduate or get a high-school-equivalency diploma; three-fourths of Americans 25 years and over are now high-school graduates — in 1940 only one-fourth were; in 1960, fewer than 8 percent of adults had four years of college — today, one in five do. While ensuring that everyone in the United States gets at least a high-school education and as much education beyond as desired is a laudable goal, the fact that this is not currently the case is not this country's major educational problem.

But neither, as school administrators would have it, is the real problem simply bad public relations. A trip to any local fast-food establishment to negotiate the purchase of a hamburger or a job interview with a recent graduate for just about any kind of job will demonstrate that. Too many young people are coming through our education system — even graduating — who do not know the rudiments of history, literature, math or science, who cannot reason or comprehend, who are unprepared for the modern workplace.

School superintendents and principals think the system is in pretty good shape and just needs more money. The public doesn't agree. These two groups need to start moving toward each other. The public needs to get more involved in public education (really involved in a positive fashion not just as vocal critics) and stop expecting schools to be child sitters and social agencies. School officials need to open their doors.

There are vast numbers of taxpayers in this country who simply do not have the interest, much the less the time, to get involved in all the superintendent-principals-school board-teacher union parleying. They don't want "pie in the sky" reports of successes or "the sky is falling" scare tactics designed to get more money. They want young people who are educated, articulate and who can reason and function productively in society. They don't feel that's what they are getting, and somehow learning that 90 percent of the administrators of the schools give their schools an A or B grade is not consoling.

Emily Feistritz is a former teacher who is director of the National Center for Education Information.

Why Mideast Talks Go Nowhere

Nine years ago, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin signed a historic peace treaty between their two countries on the front lawn of the White House. For the three of us sitting in the audience — the U.S. ambassadors to Egypt and Israel and a member of National Security Council staff, all deeply involved in the Camp David negotiations — there was a feeling of relief, pride, satisfaction, and hope mixed with some apprehension about what would come next.

Even then we realized that, without common ground between Israel and the Arabs on how to resolve the Palestinian problem, it would be difficult to make further progress toward Arab-Israeli peace. Now nine years later, as the Reagan administration tries to get the Middle East peace process restarted, we feel the time has come for our government to try to bring representative Palestinians, as well as Jordan, into direct negotiations with Israel.

This is not just our personal reaction to recent events on the West Bank or Gaza. More importantly, it is the conclusion reached by a broader group of 19 Americans with interest and expertise in the Middle East who have been meeting since last spring. The group's report, to be published later this week by the Brookings Institution, will recommend Israeli-Palestinian negotiations within an international framework.

Much of what we propose in the report is not so different from what the administration is now attempting. While we can admire the diplomatic and political tactics now being employed and the personal commitment of Secretary of State George P. Shultz, we wonder if the current initiative has a serious chance of success. Even in the best of circumstances, Shultz will be able to do little more than start a process. It is not at all clear that the ground has yet been well prepared for peace negotiations, and we are skeptical that the compressed time frame outlined by Shultz is realistic in view of the impending Israeli elections and the complex political crosscurrents in the Arab world that must be navigated.

Still, we do agree with the need for some form of international framework for negotiations. We also support the idea that two related sets of negotiations will be needed, one on transitional measures and one on the terms of a final settlement.

It is tempting to look at the Egyptian-Israeli negotiation as a model for present diplomatic efforts. But the West Bank and Gaza do not lend themselves readily to a straightforward application of the "territory for peace" formula from U.N. Resolution 242, as was the case with the Sinai. This is why some form of transitional arrangement is essential, and why creative new political concepts involving Israel, the Palestinians, and Jordan are also required that would allow for shared sovereignty, joint authority, open borders, and so forth.

The violent confrontations of the past three months have driven home the centrality of the Israeli-Palestinian dimension of the Arab-Israeli conflict. In light of these developments, our study group concluded that, while Jordan has a central role to play, Palestinians should be represented in negotiations with Israel by spokesmen of their own choosing, whether in a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation or in some other configuration.

As a general guideline, we feel that the United States should have no objection to the participation of Palestinians who are on record as being prepared to coexist with the state of Israel, are committed to peaceful negotiations, can contribute to that objective, and agree to renounce the use of force.

In practical terms, however, we recognize that Palestinians are unlikely to come forward to negotiate with Israel without having the implicit or explicit endorsement of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO). We also recognize that Israelis, even those most eager to negotiate, will be extremely reluctant to deal directly with the PLO leadership because of its past and present policies. Still, we believe that it is possible to arrange for Israeli-Palestinian negotiations and that this should be a central goal of U.S. diplomatic efforts.

With the arrival of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze in Washington this week, it is appropriate to emphasize that the Soviet Union does have a role to play in Arab-Israeli peacemaking. This derives, in part, from its relations with Syria and the PLO, and from the sense among Arabs that negotiations must take place within an international conference with Moscow's participation. Indeed, it seems doubtful to us that any Arab party will respond positively to the Shultz plan unless the Soviet Union is already on record in support of the current initiative. We must recognize that the Soviet Union is once again active throughout the Middle East and that we will have to maintain a serious dialogue about regional issues, including the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The initial focus of any negotiations will necessarily be on transitional arrangements. But those in-involved must also have an idea of what will come next. We believe that the United States is well-positioned to articulate a future vision of how Israelis, Palestinians, Jordanians, and other Arab parties can attain their rights to security and self-determination through some political formula based on ideas of peaceful interchange and political pluralism, and the exchange of "territory for peace" as envisaged in U.N. Resolution 242. Concepts of federation or confederation, respect for minority rights, economic development and principles of democratic governance are all potential building blocks for a just, lasting, and genuine peace settlement.

Finally, we want to emphasize that the details of an Arab-Israeli peace settlement should not, indeed cannot, be successfully dictated by the United States or any other outside party. Working out the terms of an agreement is up to the parties who have to live with the results of negotiations. It is the durability of any agreement that should be foremost in the minds of Americans. U.S. interests, we have no doubt, will be well served by widening the scope of Arab-Israeli peace.

Dukakis, Jackson Heading Democratic Parade

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Michael Dukakis has a quarter of the delegates needed to win the Democratic presidential nomination, but Jesse Jackson is right behind after a weekend of good showings for both Democrats in Kansas, Texas and Puerto Rico. Among Republicans, George Bush swept to victory No. 23.

Democratic candidates turned their attention to Michigan, where caucuses Saturday offer the next big delegate prize of the season.

Rep. Richard Gephardt leads the parade into the state today, talking with auto executives and steel workers as he works for the victory he must have here to rescue his campaign.

"What does it profit this nation to conquer Grenada if we are losing the auto industries of Pontiac, Flint and Detroit?" the Missouri congressman told Michigan Democrats over the weekend.

Wisconsin looks like the next major battleground for the Republicans, after Bush won his latest victory in the Puerto Rico primary on Sunday. The vice president won with ease over Sen. Bob Dole, who admitted that he has done little to slow down Bush's drive for the GOP nomination.

"I still have a lot of supporters out there," Dole said in Milwaukee. "We want them to know Bob Dole is a fighter, that we're going to stay in this race. ... I've got a lot of hill to climb before April 5" and the Wisconsin primary where polls give Bush a big lead.

Bush picked up the 14 delegates at stake in Puerto Rico, boosting his total to 788. That's nearly 70 percent of the 1,139 he needs to win at the national convention in New Orleans this summer. Dole, who hasn't won an event since Feb. 23, has only 178. Former television evangelist Pat Robertson had 17.

Resuming campaigning after a break, Bush headed to New Jersey today to talk with Gov. Thomas H. Kean about what could be another endorsement for the GOP front-runner. Later in the week, Bush is to visit Connecticut, where the polls said the primary March 29 should be another win for him.

Democrats as well were scattering across the country, looking for support after a busy weekend of events.

For example, Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee heads to Albany today to talk to New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, the non-candidate with enormous influence in his state's April 19 primary.

In Puerto Rico, Jackson won the non-binding preference poll with Dukakis running second and Simon third. But it was a fight more about local matters than presidential politics.

The 51 delegates from Puerto Rico all ran as uncommitted, and the campaigns promised major efforts to woo them in coming weeks.

Dukakis won the Kansas caucuses on Saturday, picking up 16 delegates. But Jackson rode strong urban support into a surprising second place and 14 delegates.

"It's the first farm and agriculture state that I've won and won decisively," Dukakis said at a dinner in Detroit on Saturday night. "I think that's a very good sign for the future. ... Now we're on to Michigan and here we are."

In Texas, Jackson appeared to do better, splitting the delegates there in county conventions that were the next step in allocated at-large delegates for the state. That gave Jackson a one-delegate edge over Dukakis in the Texas national delegate count — including both the primary and caucus results — but more complete returns could change that.

In South Dakota, a Saturday caucus followed the results of the Feb. 23 primary and gave Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri the No. 1 spot in state delegates.

All that activity left the latest AP delegate count this way: Dukakis, 526.5; Jackson, 508.55; Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee, 362.8; Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois, 171.5; and Gephardt, 154. Of those chosen, 343.65 were uncommitted. To nominate, 2,082 delegates are needed.

Michigan's Saturday caucuses offer 138 to be divided up, and a weekend poll suggested Dukakis and Jackson were far ahead in that battle as well.

A Detroit News survey of 385 likely caucus-goers gave the Massachusetts governor 33 percent and Jackson 30 percent — a virtual tie. Gephardt had 14 percent in the survey conducted March 15-17, with the others trailing.

Dukakis and Gore sounded the traditional party themes in Michigan, where auto industry troubles have thrown thousands out of work.

"We're not going to sit on the sidelines while our neighbors are thrown out of work and America's hometowns are boarded up and left to die," Dukakis told the party dinner in Detroit on Saturday.

Gore emphasized that "I'm a friend of organized labor and always will be. I believe it is time to put the White House back on the side of working men and women."

Simon, who is looking to Wisconsin for victory, admitted that "I'd be fooling you if I said we expected to win in Michigan" as he campaign through the state.

In Wisconsin, Dukakis held the lead with 38 percent in a poll published in the Milwaukee Journal. Jackson had 30 percent. Gephardt had 11 percent; Simon, 11 percent, and Gore, 10 percent.

Among the Republicans, the news for Bush was good. The Journal's survey of likely Republican voters said 69 percent backed Bush, while 25 percent supported Dole. Robertson trailed with 6 percent. The GOP poll had a six-point margin of error and the Democratic survey's margin of error was five points.

Hollings Proposes Curb On Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Advocates of spending limits for Senate campaigns are regrouping for another battle, pursuing a new route after Republicans talked the last attempt to death less than a month ago.

The push is being led by Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., who is the chief sponsor of a 19-word resolution that he hopes will become the 27th amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

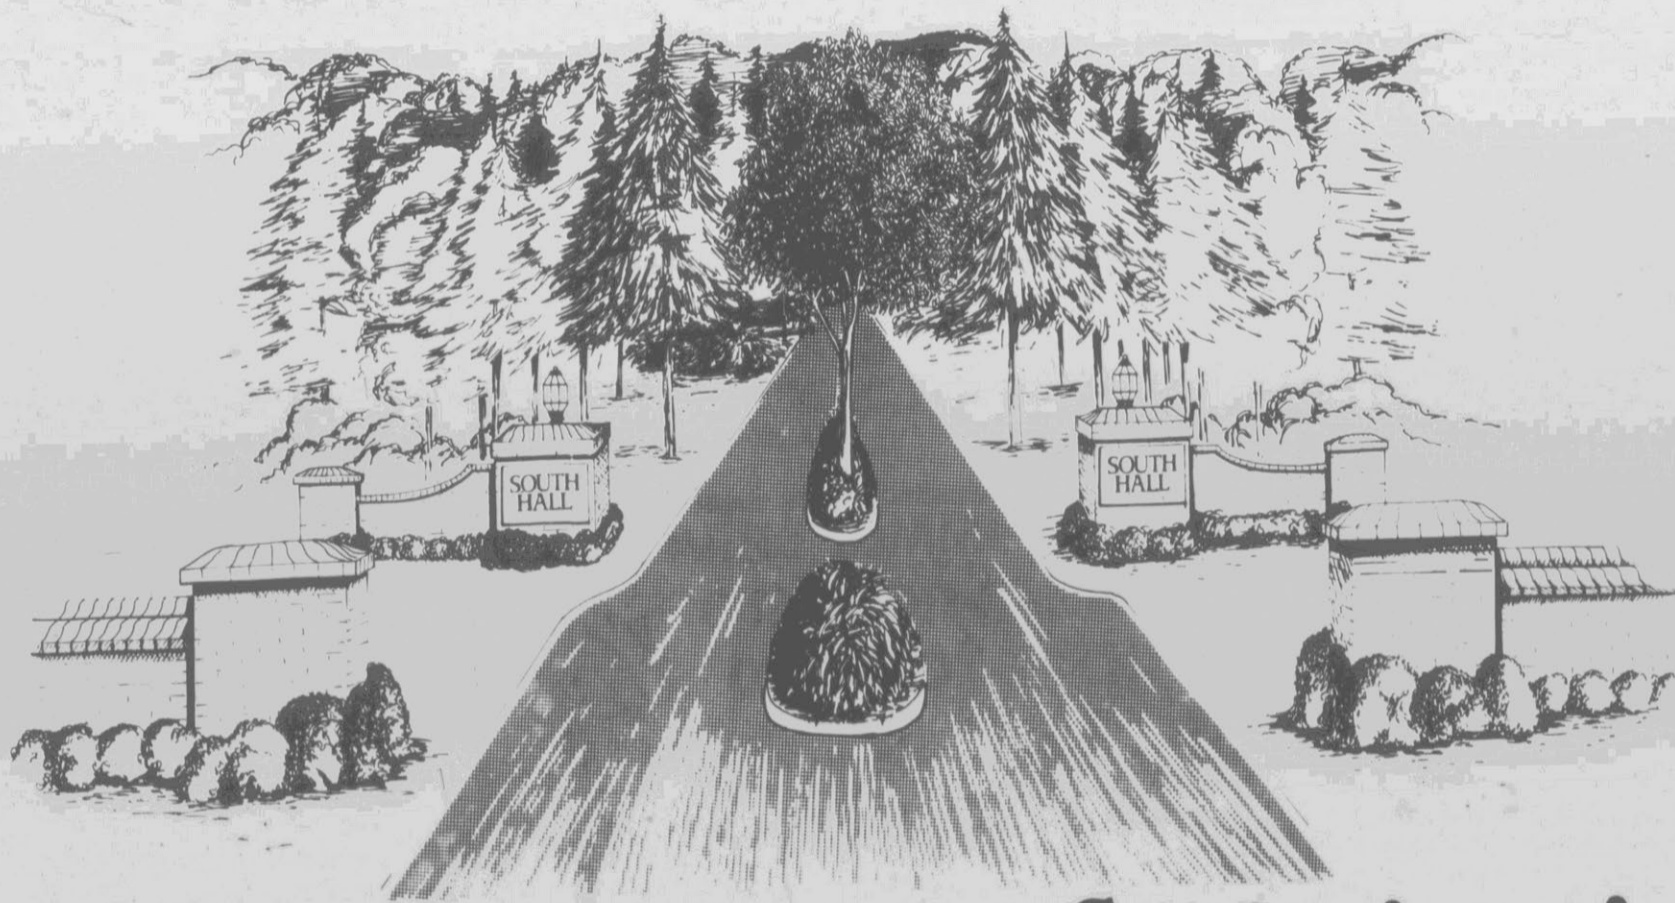

Hollings is proposing the amendment as an alternative to legislation that was stymied by a 53-hour Republican filibuster late last month.

The amendment seeks to overcome a Supreme Court ruling — Buckley vs. Valeo in 1976 — that says congressionally mandated spending limits for election campaigns violate First Amendment free-speech rights.

The Hollings plan specifically would allow Congress to restrict the amounts candidates can receive and spend. If the amendment were ratified, Congress would have to pass legislation setting limits.

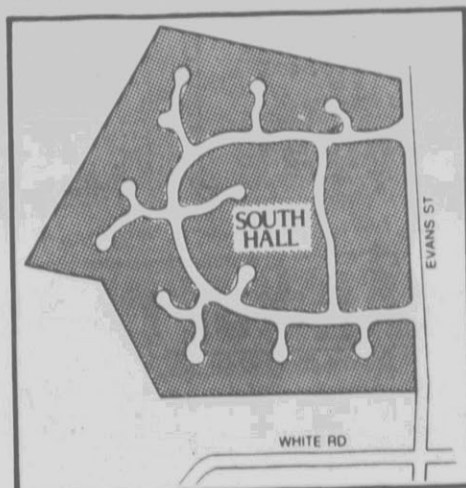

Advocates of limits recite a litany of escalating campaign costs: The average Senate winner spent $3 million in 1984, up from $600,000 in 1976. Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., says this translates into having to raise $10,000 a week during a six-year Senate term.

The legislation the amendment would supplant called for a system of voluntary spending limits for Senate campaigns, with incentives like cheap postal and television advertising rates for participants and public financing for them if opponents refused to observe the limits.

Introducing A Lot Of Distinction

Discover a neighborhood with a distinct difference. One where the homes will be equaled only by the spacious lots they stand on... Introducing South Hall.

As you drive through the extensively landscaped entrance you will discover a feeling for detail and exclusiveness. South Hall is a uniquely planned neighborhood with more living space than any other neighborhood can offer. The extra large lots are beautifully landscaped, enhancing the natural beauty of the mature hardwoods and pines. Within the city of Greenville, this quiet, distinguished neighborhood will boast beautiful custom homes. Designed so that most lots face a cul-de-sac, this uniqueness enhances the privacy and beauty of each homesite.

CRASH KILLS THREE — Three people, including two from the High Point, N.C., area, were killed Sunday when their single-engine Cessna crashed on Quantico

Marine Corps Base during a violent snow squall. The plane was reported en route from High Point to Washington National Airport. (AP Laserphoto)

Three Killed When Plane Crashes On Marine Base

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — A small civilian plane that flew into a snowstorm crashed on the Quantico Marine Corps Base between a church and the base headquarters, killing the three people on the aircraft.

No one on the ground was injured in the Sunday morning crash, said Fred Farrar of the Federal Aviation Administration.

Chief Warrant Officer Randy Gaddo, spokesman at the Marine base, said the plane crashed in a field between a chapel, where services were in progress, and Lejeune Hall, the base headquarters.

"Thank God it crashed between buildings and not on top of one of them," Gaddo said.

State police Sgt. Richard Keevil identified the pilot as Charles W. Ridge of High Point, N.C.

Keevil said the second man had been tentatively identified as a High Point resident as well, but state police were withholding his name until relatives could be notified.

"The third man is completely a mystery to everybody," Keevil said. "The bodies were all completely disfigured."

The single-engine Cessna 210, leased to Atlantic Arrow Co. of High Point, left Piedmont Triad Airport in Greensboro, N.C., at 8:25 a.m. Sunday en route to Washington National Airport. Farrar said that shortly after 10 a.m., the pilot radioed an air traffic control center at Leesburg to ask for directions for flying out of the storm.

"The center was trying to provide that assistance when it lost radio and radar contact with the aircraft at an altitude of 5,000 feet," Farrar said.

The National Transportation Safety Board was investigating the crash.

Costs Close Hospitals

CHICAGO (AP) — Rising costs last year forced a record 79 hospitals to close their doors, the American Hospital Association reported today.

The closings, most in hospitals with fewer than 100 beds, were heavy in four southern states but were evenly split overall between rural and urban areas, the hospital group said.

"Hospitals that barely break even or continually lose money cannot buy needed medical equipment, replace deteriorating buildings or add important services," Carol McCarthy, president of the Chicago-based organization, said in a statement.

Federal Medicare payments, which represent 40 percent of a hospital's income, may be partly to blame for the closings, she added.

"Hospitals saw the price of goods and services they purchase rise 22 percent between 1984 and 1988 while Medicare raised the prices it pays hospitals ... only 11 percent," she said.

Of the 79 hospitals that closed in 30 states, 35 were for-profit, 30 were non-profit and 14 were government-owned, the association said.

Twenty-five hospitals closed in four states: Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas.

Most of the closed hospitals ranged from 25 beds to 99.

"In the past year, nearly seven in 10 rural hospitals in this country lost money caring for patients, and 50 percent of urban hospitals operated in the red," Ms. McCarthy said.

Jan Shulman, an AHA spokeswoman, said the 42 hospitals that closed in 1986 was the previous record.

Victim's Cries Stir Mob; Suspect Killed

NEW YORK (AP) — A suspected drug addict accused of snatching $20 from a woman in a bakery was beaten to death by an angry mob that responded to her pleas for help, police said.

Residents of nearby buildings watching the chase from their windows yelled encouragement as the man was pummeled Sunday, reflecting their growing hostility to the street crime and crack dealers in the neighborhood, police said.

The crowd of more than a dozen people used sticks and their bare hands to beat the man, identified by police as Raymond Carraballo, 41, of Manhattan. One man grabbed a garbage can and banged it down on the man's chest as he lay on the sidewalk and then others used the can to hit him again and again, said Sgt. Ed Burns, a police spokesman.

Police have ruled the death a homicide and are looking for the attackers.

While Carraballo was being beaten, two Housing Authority police officers rescued him and placed him in a police car, which took him to Housing Authority headquarters, Burns said.

From there an ambulance took Carraballo to Mount Sinai Hospital, where he lost consciousness and died Sunday evening, Burns said. An autopsy was scheduled.

Meese Probe Has Failed To Clear Up Profit Issue

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — After 10 months, one of the many unanswered questions in the criminal investigation of Attorney General Edwin Meese III is whether he benefited financially from his efforts on behalf of an Iraqi oil pipeline project or scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp., sources familiar with the probe say.

Last May 11, independent counsel James McKay launched his inquiry of Meese's assistance to Wedtech and the probe has spread to the attorney general's involvement with the pipeline.

In both instances, McKay's investigators have been examining stock trades made on Meese's behalf by his investment manager, W. Franklyn Chinn. Chinn and Meese were brought together by Meese's longtime friend E. Robert Wallach, a central figure in both the Wedtech scandal and the pipeline project.

It was disclosed earlier this month that:

—In connection with the $1 billion proposed pipeline, Swiss oilman Bruce Rappaport paid $150,000 to his attorney Wallach, who directed the funds to an account owned by Chinn.

Rappaport was a partner in the project with San Francisco-based Bechtel Group Inc., which was going to build the pipeline. Rappaport was brought into the deal in 1985 primarily because of his close ties to then-Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres.

—The money from the Meese Partners account, Wallach's $150,000 placed in the Chinn account and several hundred thousand dollars from Chinn's biggest customer, Marymount College of Palos Verdes, Calif., were used as capital by Chinn to buy hard-to-get, brand-new stock issues, which Chinn sold later the same day. It would have been difficult for Chinn to obtain such stock with Meese's money alone.

"Without using the holdings of the other accounts he controlled, ... Mr. Chinn may not have been able to conduct the number of trades he did ... on behalf of Meese Partners," a congressional subcommittee said in a report this month.

—Once the stock was sold and the profit and loss determined, Chinn assigned profits and losses to his various customers.

Overall, Meese invested $50,000 and came away 18 months later with $95,000, almost all of it gained through a total of 23 one-day stock trades. Eighteen of the trades were profitable.

In seven of the trades, the attorney general didn't have enough money in his account to generate the profits and losses that were assigned him.

Chinn's biggest customer, Marymount College, didn't fare nearly as well as Meese.

Was the stock trading actually a well-disguised payoff to Meese?

That question is one that McKay's office has been unable to resolve, say the sources, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Central to the criminal investigation is whether there was a plan to steer the proceeds of Chinn's stock transactions to Meese and whether the attorney general knew about it.

The attorney general says he knew nothing about the transactions because he had set up a limited blind partnership with Chinn's company under which details were to be kept secret from Meese as a way to protect the attorney general from violating rules against conflict of interest.

The investigators face a wall of silence from the others involved in setting up the financial arrangements, Chinn and Wallach, who are both under indictment for racketeering in the Wedtech scandal.

Wallach denied McKay's investigators that he gave anything of value to Meese, but Wallach refused to tell McKay anything about his dealings with Wedtech, his knowledge of the Meese-Chinn partnership and his dealings with Chinn.

McKay said that after the Wedtech trial expected later this year of Wallach, Chinn and business associate R. Kent London, the independent counsel may seek their testimony again.

The attorney general's good fortune in stock trading began months after he smoothed the way for Wallach to discuss the pipeline with then-National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane, who met with Wallach and Rappaport in June 1985. Later in the year, Meese and Wallach met with Peres about the pipeline, which was never built.

Also during the period the stock trading was taking place, Chinn sat on the board of directors of Wedtech, the Bronx, N.Y., defense contractor that allegedly paid out millions of dollars to lawyers and lobbyists in an attempt to influence various public officials, including Meese, in the awarding of federal contracts.

The stock trades that made profits for the attorney general took place some four years after Meese, then White House counselor, arranged for his deputy, James Jenkins, to intervene on behalf of Wedtech in connection with a $32 million no-bid contract to build small engines for the Army.

Kayaking Brings Thrills

By JEFF DUEWEL
Grants Pass Daily Courier
GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — White water rafters and boaters tend to practice their sport in the summer, when the sun warms the rivers to bath water and headship is little more than sandy snappers.

Not so for hard-core kayakers, who defy convention and comfort in the pursuit of faster, bouncier and more exotic waters to navigate.

While the average rafter is warming his toes in front of the fireplace, these acrobats are taking advantage of the expanded selection of southern Oregon waterways in the rainy, winter months.

Hikers can virtually step across some of these waters in the summer — the South Fork of the Coquille River, the Middle Fork of the Applegate River, the North Fork of the Smith River, Jump-Off Joe Creek and Grave Creek. In the cold, rainy, winter months, however, they are left to these thrill seekers.

"A lot of us live for the winter, that's when all the small rivers are running and that's when you have your best water," says Debra Whiting, secretary-treasurer of Southern Oregon Association of Kayakers, a 52-member club based in Medford.

"Last year we ran the South Fork of the Coquille. That was a gnarly one," recalls Greg Ramp, who used to make inflatable kayaks in Grants Pass and recently moved to Boise, Idaho. "It was only about 350 cubic feet per second and it was tight and bouncy. That was the closest I've ever come to dying."

"Everybody else was out in front of me and I went through this innocent-looking swell and my boat flipped over," Ramp says. "I went down and the entire river was running under a rock and the next thing I knew I was under it and trying to get out the other side. I'm sure I was under water about 40 seconds. It was long enough to think about what it would be like to die."

"I finally just bobbed up on the other side."

Rivers are rated for difficulty by navigating by raft or kayak, from Class 1 for flat water to Class 6, which is life-threatening.

"You might have a Class 3 river in June that is a Class 5 in the winter," said Kirby Schmidt, president of the kayakers' group. "That's the charm of winter boating, there's water everywhere and the harder it is the more fun it is."

Although most kayakers use hard-shell craft, there is a small number of boaters, such as Ramp, who have found the inflatable more appropriate.

These aren't your average "Tahiti" style kayaks commonly seen floating down southern Oregon's rivers in the summer. Ramp uses durable, custom inflatables.

"We definitely do a lot of rock-bouncing and hard-shells couldn't take that kind of abuse," says Dennis Putnam, an inflatable-kayak user. "We don't see too many hard-shells where we go. We are nuts, but we have a good time."

Putnam became interested in the sport a few years ago through Ramp, a former butcher who began making custom inflatable kayaks and formed R&R Outdoors.

Once Ramp began cranking out his craft full-bore in the summer he found he didn't have time to hit the typical summertime white water anymore. That left the slow months of winter, and Ramp's winter kayaking adventures began.

"We started trying some rivers in the winter and we found out that there are a lot of rivers you can run in the winter that we'd never noticed before," Ramp says. "People think you're nuts to run a river in the winter but it's just not that bad. People are getting better equipment all of the time and the coastal rivers really aren't all that cold."

He also found that his inflatable kayaks were perfect for boulder-strewn cracks like the Middle Fork of the Applegate River, a twisting, churning gorge above Applegate Reservoir and just across the California border. It drops 120 feet a mile, and is a rated Class 4 when running high.

Most hard-core kayakers have defied death at one time or another, as Putnam did recently in a trip down Deer Creek and part of the Illinois River.

"I got eaten by a massive hydraulic and my rain slicker got wrapped around my ankles," Putnam says. "I couldn't get it off and I couldn't move my legs. I was just lucky I grabbed my boat, or I might be dead."

"There's no time to think about anything but what you're doing when you're going," Putnam adds. "It's just a rush."

Prevention Is Best Antidote

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago I wrote to tell you that the incidence of child deaths from aspirin had been reduced by 88 percent due to the child-resistant caps on pill containers.

I also mentioned that because older people with painful arthritis in their fingers complained about how difficult it was to open those child-proof caps, regular caps could be obtained from the pharmacist for the asking. I then urged you to warn grandparents to poison-proof their homes in case their grandchildren visited them because small children love to explore the cupboards, cabinets and drawers in their grandparents' homes.

I was at the Seattle Poison Center at the time — and I am still here — so I hope you will run your valuable tips again on how to poison-proof your home. It would be ideal if you ran it during the week of March 20-26 as that is Poison Prevention Week.

Thank you, Abby, on behalf of all your readers who will clip that column and keep it handy. — ELIZABETH BENNETT, SEATTLE POISON CENTER

DEAR ELIZABETH: The number of children who have died and/or have been seriously injured ingesting poisonous substances found in the home would make you weep.

It is the responsibility of adults to poison-proof their homes to prevent children from becoming victims.

First: Never take medicine in front of children. They love to imitate adults. Also, never call medicine "candy."

— Store all cleaning supplies out of sight and out of reach of children. (Never leave cleanser or detergent under the kitchen or bathroom sink.)

— Keep all products in their original containers.

— Discard old medicines by flushing them down the toilet.

Here is a checklist of potential poisons found in the home. These products should be locked up or kept out of reach of children.

KITCHEN: aspirin, drain

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

CLEANSERS (lye), furniture polish, powdered and liquid detergents, cleansers and scouring powders, ammonia, oven cleaner, rust remover, dishwasher detergents.

BEDROOM: all medication, jewelry cleaner, cosmetics, perfume.

LAUNDRY: bleaches, soaps, detergents, disinfectants, bluing, dyes, spot removers.

CLOSETS, ATTIC, STORAGE PLACES: rat poison, roach poison, mothballs, insect sprays.

PURSE: aspirin, all drugs, cigarettes.

BATHROOM: all drugs and pills, shampoo, wave-set lotions and sprays, nail polish and polish remover, suntan products, shaving lotions, toilet bowl cleaner, rubbing alcohol, room deodorizer, hair remover, boric acid, denture tablets, deodorants, pine oil and bath oil.

GARAGE, BASEMENT, WORKSHOP: lye, kerosene bug killers, gasoline, lighter fluid, turpentine, paint remover and thinner, paint, weed killers, anti-freeze and fertilizers.

GENERAL: flaking paint, repainted toys, broken plaster. Some flowers and plants are poisonous.

FIRST AID FOR POISONINGS: Keep syrup of ipecac on hand in your home, but do not use it except on the advice of your physician or the poison center. (Call information now for your local poison center's 24-hour hot-line number, and keep it on or near your phone.)

Poison prevention is the best antidote for poisonings, but accidental poisoning can occur in any home. The natural impulse is to act at once, but the wrong treatment for poisoning is often more harmful than none. So call your physician or your local poison center for advice immediately.

DEAR ABBY: After reading the article about the churchgoing woman whose minister asked her (loudly) every Sunday morning, "Where is your husband today?" I was reminded of the following:

My mother-in-law was also a churchgoing woman, but my father-in-law seldom accompanied her. One day the minister visited their home, and "Pop" couldn't hide fast enough. Sure enough, the minister cornered him and asked, "Why don't you ever come to church?"

Pop replied, "Because the seats are too hard and you talk too long!" That's the last time the minister mentioned Pop's absence. This is a true story. — LILLIAN LANG, CHICAGO

DEAR LILLIAN: Pop was a righteous man. ("He that speaketh truth sheweth forth righteousness." Proverbs 12:17.) Your father-in-law rates an "A" for honesty, but he flunked diplomacy.

Most teen-agers do not know the facts about drugs, AIDS, how to prevent unwanted pregnancy and how to handle the pain of growing up. It's all in Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage and handling included).

STAIN-RESIST REVOLUTION!

Well, looks like the fiber manufacturers have done it again! "Done what?" you say. Once again they've come up with a new generation of fibers—the stain resisters. These fibers comprise the new carpet you see advertised everywhere: DuPont STAINMASTER; Monsanto Silver and Gold Label with Stain Blocker; BASF Zeftron with Stain Release; Allied Anso V Worry-Free Carpet, and others.

"OK," you reply, "but I think I missed the first four generations... how about filling me in."

Sure; the fiber generations go like this:

- First - early synthetics, mostly nylons.
- Second - shaped synthetics designed for better soil hiding.
- Third - shaped synthetics with static resistance.
- Fourth - shaped, anti-static synthetics with stain repellency.
- Fifth - shaped, anti-static synthetics with stain repellency and stain resistance.

N.C. BROILER-FRYERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 45.25 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. The market is steady and the live supply is fully adequate for a moderate demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina on Monday was 2,101,000, compared to 2,073,000 last Monday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn 1 cent lower at mostly 2.11-2.23 in the East and mostly 2.32-2.40 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans 3 cents lower at mostly 6.21-6.35 1/2 in the East and mostly 6.14-6.26 in the Piedmont. New crop wheat (June-July) 2.82-2.93; new crop corn 1.93-2.28; new crop soybeans 6.12-6.48. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were about steady and ranged from 101 to 102 1/2 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks fell in early active trading today, eroding gains of the previous week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 19.23 points to 2,068.14 as of 10 a.m. EST.

Among broader market barometers, the New York Stock Exchange composite index of all listed issues fell 1.16 to 151.49. The American Stock Exchange market value index fell 1.07 to 298.04.

obstacles to overcome. It's very hard to predict at this point. The $48 million plan, which would permit the delivery of as much as $2.5 million of previously authorized arms and ammunition, was proposed Friday by a bipartisan group of senators in the wake of President Reagan's decision to airlift more than 3,100 U.S. troops to Honduras.

Reagan dispatched the troops Wednesday after Nicaragua's leftist government mounted an offensive against Contra rebels along the Honduran border.

Administration officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Reagan could express support for the new aid plan, perhaps as soon as today. "It's his last-ditch effort," said one aide.

pound of explosive, but it wouldn't have exploded without detonators or a very severe impact, such as striking it with a sledgehammer.

If it had exploded, it would have made a lot of noise and created a blast in the immediate area, Green said. He said if the explosive had been detonated, it would have been dangerous only to an immediate passerby, would have probably broken some windows in the Ruffin and Revenue buildings, and would have likely broken car windows of anyone who happened to be driving directly past it.

Green said if a casual passerby had flipped a lighted cigarette or match into the cardboard box, the dynamite and box would have burned.

Dynamite is disposed of by laying it out on shredded paper, setting the paper afire, and moving away while it burns, he said.

"That would have been a lot more dangerous if it had been a pound of gunpowder," said Green.

Professionalism can be priceless, but it costs no more.

In funeral prearrangement or pre-need grave or crypt site selection nothing is more important than consultation with professionals. It helps ease the burden when the time comes. And it helps you be sure there are no surprises.

There are many questions to be answered. Like marker selection. Site selection. Vaults and differences between them. And then there are the "what ifs?"... Like "what if" you're thousands of miles from home?

As professionals with 50 years as funeral directors and 26 years as ceterians, we can help you with these questions in private consultation.

Richmond coach Dick Tarrant cheers his team as it played Georgia Tech in the second round of the NCAA East Regionals in Hartford Sunday. The Spiders upset Georgia Tech, 59-55, to advance to the regional semifinals. (AP Laserphoto)

Temple Rips Georgetown

Spiders Shock Georgia Tech

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Chalk up two for the little guys.

Temple and Richmond, winners on the court but losers over the years in the battle for recognition, are being noticed. Knocking off the big guys will often do that.

For the past six weeks, Temple has been the nation's top-ranked basketball team. Still, Coach John Chaney perceives a lack of respect for his powerhouse from the lightly regarded Atlantic 10 despite five consecutive seasons with at least 25 victories.

In four of the last five seasons, Richmond has won more than 20 games and played in post-season tournaments. Still, Coach Dick Tarrant concedes that television rightfully focuses on bigger conferences than his Colonial Athletic Association.

"It can't avoid paying attention this week.

Temple and Richmond, winners in Sunday's East Regional games of the NCAA Tournament, play each other Thursday night in the regional semifinal at East Rutherford, N.J. In the other semifinal, Rhode Island, another Atlantic 10 team, meets Duke, the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament champion.

On Sunday, Temple crushed Georgetown 74-53 while Richmond edged Georgia Tech 59-55. Temple, 31-1, is on a 17-game winning streak while Richmond, 26-6, has won nine straight.

"I just look at it as an opportunity to show that we can play good basketball and have a pretty good conference," said forward Peter Woolfolk, who led Richmond with 27 points.

The Spiders stunned defending national champion Indiana, a member of the prestigious Big Ten, last Friday before beating an ACC opponent Sunday. Temple's latest victim, a member of the Big East, won the national championship in 1984 and was runnerup in 1985.

Georgetown Coach John Thompson said it is Chaney's time to enjoy success.

"This is his run," Thompson said. "In other years, it had been my run. I wanted to beat him, believe me, but this year it was his run."

Chaney has said television exposure helps a team gain respect and Temple hasn't gotten much of either. The Owls' continuing success, however, "gives us great visibility," he said. "We're at the point that TV sometimes comes to us."

It still hasn't found Richmond, the lowest seed of the 16 teams still in the tournament.

"The public demands top basketball and the television people think top basketball is the Big 10, ACC and Big East, and they're probably right," Tarrant said. "You're going to be entertained more when Purdue plays Indiana ... than when William & Mary plays Richmond."

Tarrant, however, is savoring his time in the spotlight.

"Little did I dream years ago that I'd be in the Final 16," he said. "Talk about being with the elites. We can get those clippings and put it in a scrapbook."

Temple and Richmond both won Sunday by holding opponents to season-low point totals and field-goal percentages.

"Maybe we're a distant cousin to Temple in that we believe many of the same things," Tarrant said. "We don't go up and down recklessly and we try to take care of the ball ... put it out. That's Temple, and maybe it's Richmond on a lesser scale."

Georgetown, 20-10, made just 30.2

percent of its shots against a team that led the nation by holding opponents to a 39.5 percent accuracy rate.

The Hoyas trailed only 30-26 at halftime but made just three of its first 15 shots in the first nine minutes of the second half.

Meanwhile, Temple made five of eight in outscoring Georgetown 15-6 to take a 45-32 lead with 11:15 left. The lead ranged from 10 to 22 points the rest of the way.

"The only thing we can count on is playing consistent defense," Chaney said. "We have done that in every game."

Temple, which broke a four-year streak of second-round eliminations, was led by Mark Macon and Mike Vreeswyk with 21 points each. Ramon Rivas, a 250-pound center, had 13 points and 12 rebounds, 11 of them on the defensive boards as he continually kept Georgetown from following up its misses.

Charles Smith, Mark Tillmon and Jaren Jackson had 13 points each for the Hoyas.

Georgia Tech, 22-10, had averaged 82.6 points per game before Sunday but made just 33.3 percent of its shots

Wildcat Teams Both Advance

CINCINNATI (AP) — Mark Plansky can't daydream about his part in Villanova's 1985 national championship game. He had just one free throw, and missed it badly.

Three years later, his clutch shooting has the Wildcats dreaming the improbable again.

Plansky hit two free throws with four seconds to play Sunday as Villanova erased a 14-point second-half deficit to stun No. 16 Illinois 66-63 in a second-round NCAA Tournament game in the Southeast Regional.

No. 6 Kentucky used a hot second half by Rex Chapman to beat Maryland 90-81 in the other second-round game at Riverfront Coliseum, setting up a regional semifinal with Villanova on Thursday at Birmingham, Ala.

Villanova relived its glory days on Sunday behind Plansky, the only holdover from the 1985 team that beat Georgetown to win the national title.

The Wildcats came unglued in the first half against Illinois, hitting just one field goal in the last 10 minutes as the Illini ran off a 23-5 spurt.

The first-half performance was a complete reversal of the 1985 victory over Georgetown, when the Wildcats shot 78.6 percent. They were shooting just 37 percent and trailed 30-20 when Coach Rollie Massimino dusted off a halftime speech from the championship season.

"I told this team before the game started that this had to be one of the best teams I've ever been associated with," Massimino said. "At halftime, I gave them the same kind of response as we gave them when we played North Carolina to get to the Final Four."

The message: play relaxed. Villanova came out and shot 50 percent in the second half, cutting the lead to four points with 1:41 left on Plansky's two 3-pointers. The Wildcats then gambled that Illinois, a weak free-throw shooting team, would crumble at the foul line.

The strategy worked. Illinois missed five of six free throws in the closing minutes, including a miss by Ken Battle with 14 seconds to play that left Illinois ahead 63-62.

Villanova pushed the ball up the court and got it to Plansky, who put a fake on Kendall Gill on the left side and drew a two-shot foul with four seconds to play.

"I was hoping he would go for the fake," Plansky said. "I kind of figured he would, after I made those two (3-pointers). They're all better athletes than I am. That was the only option I had."

For Plansky, it was a moment of redemption.

The 6-foot-7 forward played just a couple minutes in the 1985 championship game, committing one foul and failing to score. His free throw, he recalled, "was a brick."

That was on his mind as he went to the line.

"I said, 'No way I'm going to start and end my career the same way.'"

Plansky said. "I was really confident."

He hit both shots cleanly. And when Rodney Taylor stole the inbounds pass and sank two free throws with one second left, the Wildcats and their fans basked in a celebration reminiscent of the 1985 championship drive.

"I don't think we as a team have experienced more, except for the 1985 team," Plansky said.

Plansky scored 10 of Villanova's final 18 points to finish with 16. Tom Greis also had 16 for Villanova, 23-12. Illinois, 23-10, got 15 from Battle and 13 apiece from Nick Anderson and Steve Bardo, but converted just 10 of 23 free throws.

"There comes a time when skill takes over, and it took over tonight," Illinois Coach Lou Henson said. "Their ability to shoot it and make those free throws, and we just couldn't get it done."

"We missed five one-and-ones and, of course, that was the ballgame. You've got to make your free throws."

There are many similarities between Villanova's 1985 tournament and its regional success this year. The 1985 team opened tournament play at nearby Dayton, Ohio, both were coming off 9-7 conference seasons and third-place finishes in the Big East, and both will play regional semifinals at Birmingham.

"It's really bizarre," Plansky said.

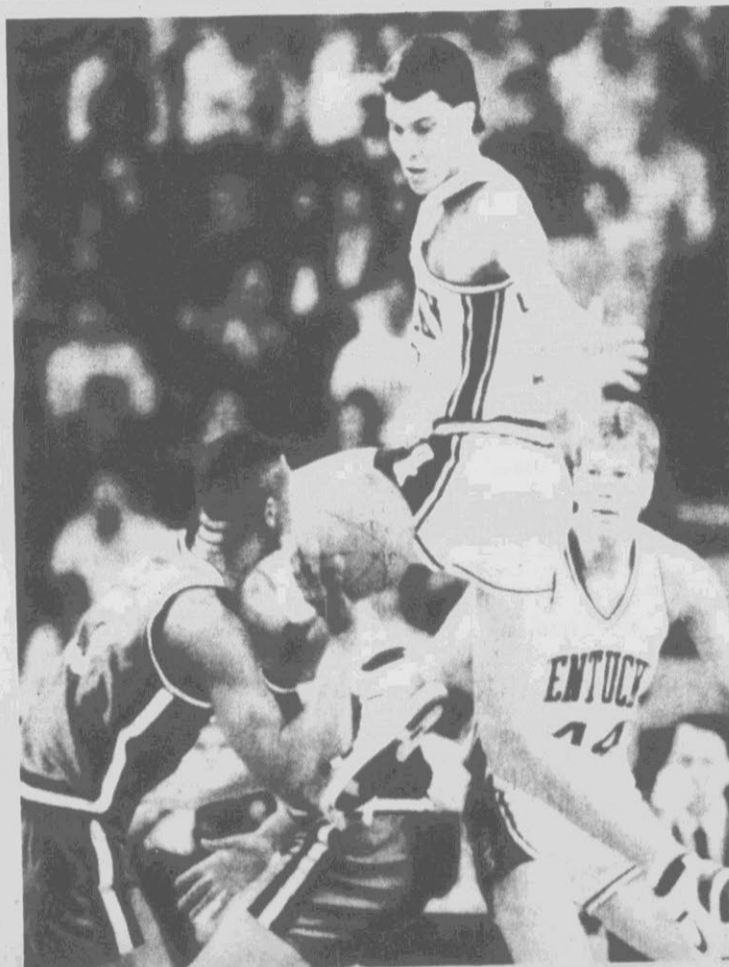

One final irony: Villanova won the 1985 championship at Rupp Arena, the home court of its next opponent, Kentucky.

Kentucky built a 42-41 halftime lead over Maryland even though Chapman and center Rob Lock were struggling. Chapman had just three points on 1-for-6 shooting both from the field and the foul line. Lock had just two points and no rebounds in nine minutes.

Coach Eddie Sutton encouraged the two starters at halftime.

"We tried to get him (Lock) some confidence, and we basically said the same thing to Rex as we did to Rob," Sutton said.

The talk got quick results.

Lock and Chapman combined on an 18-10 run at the start of the second half, with Lock scoring four and Chapman 10. Chapman went on to hit eight of 12 from the floor in the second half to finish with 23 points. Ed Davender also had 23 for Kentucky, 27-5.

Chapman decided at the half to take matters into his own hands.

"I was trying to set some screens (in the first half) and get the ball to Winston (Bennett) and the people who were getting the points in the first half," Chapman said. "In the second half I came out and tried to get my hands on the ball."

Maryland, 18-13, tied the game with three minutes to play, but Bennett hit a jumper and made a steal to set up a basket by Chapman. Davender hit all six of his free throws in the final 37 seconds to send Kentucky to the regional semifinals for the 27th time in 33 NCAA appearances.

"I thought we were right there, even when they (Kentucky) made the early run," Maryland Coach Bob Wade said. "We hung right in there. We just couldn't get over the hump."

McNeill Leads Pirate Wins

CHAPEL HILL - East Carolina won two events during the Carolina Tar Heel Track and Field Classic, held this weekend in Chapel Hill.

Eugene McNeill captured the 100-meter dash with a time of 10.67. McNeill also helped the ECU 4x100 relay team take a first place finish with a time of 41.11. Other members of the team were Lee Vernon McNeill, Calvin Wrighton and Anthony Henry.

Phil Estes took a third place finish in the 400-meter dash in 48.29, while Ken Daughtry was fourth in 48.30.

In the women's competition, Sonya Baldwin took second place in the 100-meter dash in 12.26 while Vanessa Smith was third at 12.48. Smith finished second in the 200 meter dash in 25.57.

The 4x100 relay team for the Lady Pirates also took a second, finishing in 47.17.

Pirates Bounce Back; Top Seahawks By 7-4 Score

WILMINGTON — East Carolina University's baseball Pirates bounced back after suffering a pair of losses on Saturday to take a single game from the UNC-Wilmington Seahawks, 7-4, Sunday afternoon.

The win allowed the Pirates to escape a sweep by the Seahawks in their first series in the Colonial Athletic Association this year. The series was the only road series in the league for East Carolina this year, as the remaining four will all be at home.

East Carolina struck for the lead in the first inning, scoring a single run. John Thomas walked and moved up on an infield out. Calvin Brown then doubled, driving in Thomas for a 1-0 lead.

The Pirates added another run in the second for a 2-0 edge. Steve Godin walked as did John Adams. Both were sacrificed up and David Ritchie also walked, loading the bases. A walk to Thomas brought in Godin.

The Pirates pushed over three in the top of the fourth to up their lead to 5-0. Whit Whitley walked and Tommy Boswell was safe when his sacrifice bunt was errorred. However, Whitley was then caught straying too far off second base by Seahawk catcher Al Frank Catucci.

Ritchie and Thomas walked to load the bases and McGraw singled to score both Boswell and Ritchie. Thomas, who moved to third, scored on Brown's sacrifice fly.

The Seahawks came to life in the bottom of the fourth, scoring four times to close within one. Eric Hickman singled and Scott Brady walked. Both were sacrificed up and Ed Stoudemire's sacrifice fly scored Hickman. Jeff Kafer singled over Brady and Catucci followed with a two-run homer, pulling the Seahawks back within striking distance.

However, the Pirates quickly came back to add two in the fifth, upping their lead to 7-4.

Chris Cauble singled as did Godin. Both were sacrificed up and a passed ball scored Cauble. Godin then scored on a hit by Whitley.

Gary Smith, who had come on in relief of starter Jake Jacobs, went the final five and a third innings, allowing only one more hit by the Seahawks.

Cauble and Adams each picked up a pair of hits for the Pirates, while Hickman had two to lead Wilmington.

The Pirates boost their overall record to 14-6 while improving their CAA mark to 1-2. UNCW drops to 5-16, 2-1 in the league.

East Carolina returns home on Wednesday, hosting red-hot Campbell University in a 7 p.m. game at Harrington Field.

Frye Wins Kick Title

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Greenville's Dale Frye captured the World Lightweight Kickboxing championship Saturday night in a bout at American University in Washington.

Frye, the U.S. champion, rallied from two near-losses during the match to gain a technical knockout of Tyrone Whisnett when Whisnett was unable to answer the bell for the 11th round.

Whisnett floored Frye in the first round, but the U.S. champ was able to regain his feet and finish the round. Again in the sixth, Whisnett got Frye in trouble by causing a cut over his eye. But the damage was repaired between rounds and the fight was allowed to continue.

Finally, in the ninth and 10th rounds, Frye began to connect with body punches and Whisnett suffered several broken ribs and could not continue after the 10th round.

Frye is managed by Greenville's Bill McDonald and the title was the fourth earned by a McDonald-trained kickboxer.

Spiders Shock Tech...

as Richmond slowed the pace and controlled the Yellow Jackets' inside game.

"We couldn't stop Woolfolk," Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins said.

Woolfolk, at 6-foot-5 and 230 pounds, has the build, not to mention some of the skills, of a young Charles Barkley, the Philadelphia 76ers' "Round Mound of Rebound."

"He has so many moves," Georgia Tech center Tom Hammonds said. "He can get up in the air, and when he's up in the air he leans into you and draws a foul. He took us apart."

Georgia Tech was led by Dennis Scott and Brian Oliver with 15 points each.

Richmond, which made 42.9 percent of its shots for the game, led 29-

18 at halftime as Georgia Tech reached a season low for points in a half.

Tech cut the deficit to 40-37 with 10:15 left and 57-55 with 32 seconds remaining. But Benjy Taylor sank two free throws with 28 seconds to go and Georgia Tech missed its last three field goal attempts.

"It might not have been the most handsome game in the eyes of American basketball junkies," Tarrant said of the slow pace and poor shooting, "but in my eyes it was very pretty."

Azinger In Golf Win

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Paul Azinger changed the question marks to exclamation points.

"Every article that has been written about Paul Azinger this year has ended in a question mark," the 1987 Player of the Year said Sunday after firing a 5-under-par 66 for a five-stroke victory over Tom Kite in the Bay Hill Classic.

"There's been a lot of expectations heaped on me. I put some on myself. I haven't enjoyed 1988 all that much. It's been live and die on every shot. So this was pretty sweet."

The expectations came from his 1987 season, when he won three tournaments, more than $800,000 and earned professional golf's Player of the Year honors.

The questions came from a recent history of next-year failures by players of the year. Not since Tom Watson in 1980 has a player of the year been able to win a tournament the following season.

But Azinger, who led throughout the tournament and entered Sunday's round with a one-shot edge over Kite, answered all the questions by winning a shootout with Kite over Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill Club course.

"It was punch and counter-punch," said Kite, who closed to within a single stroke of the lead twice on the back nine.

"I was hitting him pretty hard, but he kept hitting back," Kite said. "I knew Paul was playing well, but I didn't know he was playing that well."

"The best I've ever played under pressure," Azinger said after completing the tournament in 271, 13 shots under par. Kite, with a closing 70, was second at 276.

The victory, the fourth of Azinger's career, was worth $135,000 from the total purse of $750,000 and pushed his earnings for the year to $209,025.

Perhaps more importantly, it answered any questions about his ability to continue his superior play of 1987.

"My game hasn't changed since '87. If anything, it's a little better," Azinger said. "But because the calendar changed, the question comes up: Can he do it again?"

He answered the question on the 12th and 13th holes Sunday, each time dropping a birdie putt to match a birdie by Kite.

Then Azinger won it with a chip-in birdie on the 14th while Kite had a bogey from a bunker.

Earnhardt Back In Victory Lane

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt had begun wondering when he was going to win again.

"That's a good question. I asked myself the same question," said the two-time defending Winston Cup points champion, who hadn't won in 10 races after dominating with 11 victories in 1987.

He snapped the losing streak on Sunday in capturing the Motorcraft 500 stock car race at Atlanta International Raceway.

"It's just been luck," he said of his winless streak. "A flat tire here, something just happens. But we got it together today and had a car that could lap the field."

Earnhardt, whose best finish this year was a third at Richmond two weeks ago, lapped all but the Chevrolet of second-place finisher Rusty Wallace, winning by 1.05 seconds.

"Earnhardt was tough. We definitely had the second-toughest car," Wallace said. "I ran my wheels off but Earnhardt was just too tough. I don't really think I could have won it."

Earnhardt said he knew right from the start it was going to be his day.

"Once I passed (Geoff) Bodine at the start, I felt I had the car to beat all day," said Earnhardt, who passed the pole-sitting Bodine on the second lap after starting in the second spot before a crowd estimated at 70,000.

The triumph moved him to within four points — 632-628 — of Winston Cup leader Neil Bonnett, who had won three straight races, but wasn't a factor Sunday.

Earnhardt, who had won the unofficial Busch Clash earlier this year, had not won a NASCAR points race since capturing the Richmond race last September.

"It was a good race. I enjoyed it," Earnhardt said. "I put the pressure on all day. I didn't fool around."

"There's just too much competition to win most every race. But we got it all together today," he said.

Bonnett, who started 31st in the 42-car field, was never in contention and placed 22nd.

"We never did run that good right from the beginning," he said. "After our problems started today, it was decided I should stay out on the track to try to keep my point lead and I just found out that I kept it by four points, so that made the day worthwhile."

It was not that good for others, including Bodine, Benny Parsons and Bill Elliott.

Bodine had problems with a burned piston after about 150 miles over the 328-lap, 1.522-oval. He placed 22nd.

Parsons' Ford ran with Earnhardt's Chevrolet for much of the race, and led four times for 45 laps. But Parsons relinquished the lead for good on lap 265 when he ran out of gas.

"I felt like my dog had died," Parsons said of that experience. "I really felt like we could win, but that Earnhardt is going to be awfully hard to beat."

Elliott had a distributor problem early and was running four to five laps back all day. He ended his day by crashing on lap 312 and placing 19th.

"The day just started out bad and ended up bad," said Elliott, who injured his shoulder in the crash.

Earnhardt's winning margin didn't indicate his domination of the race he led for 269 laps.

The 35-year-old Earnhardt held a 20.6-second lead over Wallace before the sixth of seven caution flags came out at lap 298. There were several accidents, but no one was injured seriously.

Earnhardt averaged 137.588 miles and earned $67,950 from the purse of $511,220.

Darrell Waltrip and Terry Labonte, both in Chevrolets, finished third and fourth, with Kyle Petty, in a Ford, taking fifth.

Defending champion Ricky Rudd went out on lap 253 and placed 24th.

Tyson Makes Quick Work Of Tubbs In 2nd Round

TOKYO (AP) — Mike Tyson says he's not interested in being seen as a heroic heavyweight champion who can come from behind while hurt. He'd rather just do his job quickly and get on to the next fight.

"What if I knock everybody out? If I beat everyone simple and easy, it should be a mark for me. ... The object is not to get hurt," Tyson said today after needing less than six minutes to successfully defend his undisputed championship by stopping Tony Tubbs at 2:54 of the second round before 51,000 spectators at the Tokyo Dome.

Tyson's next fight is against Michael Spinks on June 27 at Atlantic City, N.J. in a defense for which he is expected to make $17-20 million.

"Spinks will be different. He can be very evasive. He knows what he's got coming to him. Let's see what he's got," Tyson said.

Tubbs, who weighed in at a tubby 238 1/2 pounds, won the first round on one judge's card. But he never was really in the second round, which ended with six second left, when his handlers threw in the towel as he lay on his back with blood spurting from a cut over his right eye.

Tyson, who extended his record to 34-0 with 30 knockouts, said he was satisfied with his first round. "I thought I was wearing him down. I landed some good shots."

Then, late in the second, "I landed a punch to the body, he countered with a left hook, I countered right back ... and caught him in the eye."

But the body punches actually had put Tubbs away before that, said Fred Whitaker, one of Tyson's sparring partners. Tubbs was wobbling even before the sayonara punch.

It was only the second defeat for Tubbs, 30, a former World Boxing Association champion, who has won 25 fights, 16 of them by knockout.

Knowing that he was unlikely to win a decision against the powerful Tyson, Tubbs had said he would try to slug his way to a knockout. He never had a chance.

"Tyson is the world champion and he came out with his lefts in the second round," said Tubbs, who added, "I will be back."

Tubbs collected $500,000 for his six minutes of work. Tyson, who weighed in at 216 1/4, received $10 million for his seventh championship fight.

The fight was not sanctioned by the International Boxing Federation, which is not recognized by the Japanese Boxing Commission.

Asked what he would do if the IBF stripped him of the heavyweight title as a result of the unsanctioned fight, Tyson replied, "I'll win it back again."

But his co-manager, Bill Cayton, said he believed "that once we get back to the United States and all factors are considered, the title will be unaffected."

Tubbs said he suffered the cut over his eye when Tyson's elbow hit him on the follow-through from a left hook. His trainer, Odel Hadley, said he told the referee to stop the fight because of blood streaming from the cut.

But Tyson said it was just one punch that flattened Tubbs and opened the cut.

Asked about another left hook that he threw as Tubbs was falling on his back, after staggering into a neutral corner, Tyson said he first thought Tubbs might land on the ropes, still on his feet, or he might be faking injury before counter-attacking.

In the ring immediately after the fight, Tyson said, "I did what I was supposed to do to a guy supposedly out of shape. I got rid of him quickly. If he had lasted six or seven rounds, I could have been criticized. It's his prerogative to come into the ring the way he wants."

"He's an easy target to hit," Tyson added. "I was surprised he had his hands so high. So I went to the body to bring his hands down."

At a post-fight news conference, Tyson, wearing a Japanese rising sun headband bearing the characters "Must win," summed up Tubbs this way: "He had very, very fast hands. That's about it."

He said, "He didn't fight like he was out of shape."

"I think Tony Tubbs did come to fight," Cayton added. "I think he was in excellent condition, even though he was a little overweight. I think he did the best he could under the pressure of Mike Tyson, which is irresistible."

Robin Givens, Tyson's wife of one month, said of the fight, "They can never be short enough."

She said Tyson was in a hugging mood in the morning, and "I hoped he was in a fighting mood."

The fight was only the second event in Tokyo's new $275 million dome, dubbed the "Big Egg." Tickets ranged from $787 at ringside to $23 in the upper deck. Many of the faraway seats were empty.

Gymnasts Qualify

Three members of the Greenville Gymnastics Club qualified for the state championships during a Class II qualifying sectional meet in Charlotte this weekend.

In the 15 and over age group, Mary Kegel finish first in vaulting with a score of 17.70 and was also first on the balance beam with a 15.65. She finished second in the all-around competition with a 64.40 score, meeting state qualifying levels.

In the 12-14 age group, Katherine Daniel took second on the uneven bars with a 16.05 and was seventh in floor exercises with a 16.05. She finished 11th in the all-around with a 63.30. Diane Dorney took fourth in floor exercises with a 16.40 and was 10th on the bars with a 15.55. She finished with a 62.0 score in the all-around and both she and Daniel met the qualifying standard for the state meet.

Jennifer Mohror took sixth in the floor exercises with a 16.10, but just missed in her all-around score from qualifying for the state.

For a luxurious Centipede lawn USE Centi-Seed®

Centi-Seed® has produced more good lifetime Southern lawns than any other grass seed brand in history.

- For more than a generation, thousands of lovely lawns have been established annually with Centi-Seed, the original and dependable Centipede grass seed. New Centi-Seed is treated for fungus and bacteria protection and with a natural growth stimulant for quicker, surer results. Centipede develops and grows slower than other grasses but unlike "quicker starters" it produces a dense, weed-free, lifetime turf. Ask your neighbor who has used it and insist on Centi-Seed for planting your new lawn or converting your old lawn.
- Thrives in sun and light shade
 - Grows in any soil, rich or poor
 - Hugs the ground - requires little mowing
 - Permanent, grows more lovely each year
 - Requires very little fertilization
 - Develops weed-resistant dense sod
 - For new lawns or to convert old lawns
 - Costs less to plant and far less to maintain

Where does Wayne Wagoner get all that energy?

Average energy is enough for average people. But to become an achiever, you need above average energy. Wayne Wagoner found that out. He discovered that building a successful career meant building his energy level. And he's been doing just that through a goal-oriented exercise program with the facilities of Athletic Clubs, Inc. Wayne credits a good deal of his success to the extra stamina and endurance we've helped him develop. And we can do the same for you.

At the Greenville Athletic Club, you'll gain the stamina that a competitive work day demands. Your heart will become more efficient, your lung capacity greater, your legs and lower back stronger. So you can work longer and more efficiently.

Every Greenville Athletic Club exercise program is individualized. Highly trained staff members design and supervise your program.

Pam Was First Star On 'Dallas'

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was 10 years ago that we first met the Ewing family, those oil barons of the Southfork Ranch and CBS' "Dallas." How times have changed — and how "Dallas" has changed. Few people today remember that the original star of "Dallas" was Pamela Barnes Ewing, played by Victoria Principal, and that her marriage to Bobby Ewing (Patrick Duffy) would give the show its theme of "Romeo and Juliet." The feuding Barneses and the Ewings would be the show's Montagues and Capulets. It also had a dash of "Giant" and "Peyton Place" tossed in.

"Dallas" captured the interest of the audience, Katzman believes, because there had never been a family like this on television before.

"They were very wealthy, but they had no airs," he says. "Jim Davis was plain folks. They fought with each other, then made up. Plus, we showed that you can't equate money with happiness."

"Dallas" did not become a serial until its first full season.

"Sue Ellen became pregnant and no one knew whether the father was J.R. or Cliff Barnes," says Katzman. "We carried that story for quite a while. It caught on with the audience. So we began doing more stories that ran from week to week."

It was even considered, but only briefly, that Bobby would be killed in the fifth episode and it would be Pam vs. the family.

J.R. Ewing, played by Larry Hagman, was a supporting character, and his wife, Sue Ellen (Linda Gray), was such a minor character she didn't even speak in the first show on April 2, 1978. The script referred to her only as the "brunette on the couch" and didn't even identify her as J.R.'s wife.

Still, Hagman emerged with the meatiest role in the first show and he made the most of it. "He is deliciously wicked as he attempts to eject Principal from the family bosom by any foul means," a pre-debut story said.

Writer David Jacobs created the show with Pamela as the focus. "This is a poor girl who marries into a rich family — and her own family's enemy," Jacobs said in a 1978 interview.

"Dallas" was actually a spinoff of "Knots Landing," although "Dallas" got on the air first. The Dallas locale was picked because CBS and Lorimar Productions wanted to get away from the usual Los Angeles background.

"It all seems like yesterday and a hundred years ago," says Leonard Katzman, the current executive producer. He has been with the show since the beginning except for the season when both he and Patrick Duffy left the show. He calls it "the season that didn't exist" because it was all passed off as Pamela's dream when Duffy returned.

He says there is some talk of putting together a retrospective of the show's 10 years during the summer for a special.

"We came on in the spring with five shows," he recalls. "As far as we knew that's all we were going to do. Then CBS picked us up for seven more shows. Then enough shows to complete the first full season. We had a cliffhanger that year, but nobody remembers it."

Few remember the first cliffhanger, in which Sue Ellen wrecked her car and you didn't know if she and her unborn baby would survive.

The second cliffhanger, in 1980, caused a phenomenon around the world that was unprecedented in the history of television. "Who Shot J.R.?" was on the lips of millions upon millions of people, from Seattle to New York to London to Paris.

By the time it was revealed that Kristin had pulled the trigger, "Dallas" had climbed to No. 1 in the Nielsen ratings. It reigned over the ratings for the next four years, slipping once to second place, until NBC overtook CBS as the first-place network and "The Cosby Show" put the sitcoms back at the top of the ratings.

A less well-known event of the summer of 1980 occurred when Hagman asked Lorimar to raise his salary to $100,000 an episode. Lorimar not only refused but told Hagman that J.R. could wake up in the hospital after plastic surgery and be Robert Culp.

Hagman got the last laugh, however. Katzman says he is by far the highest paid performer on television today. "And several other people on 'Dallas' are not too far behind," he says.

ABC Film Tries To Shake Myths About Homeless

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dorian Harewood predicts that the ABC Theater presentation of "God Bless The Child" is going to shatter some myths about the homeless. The two-hour movie tells the story of a desperate young mother trapped in poverty and an Outreach worker who tries to help her and her young daughter.

"It's a myth that the majority of the poor and homeless are lazy and don't want to work and want to take advantage of the welfare system," he said. "The fact is that most of them do want to work, and those who are working are being paid at a sub-poverty level."

"It's a myth that the majority of the homeless are minorities. The fact is most are white. That should shake up people into solving this problem." Harewood stars as Calvin Reid, the Outreach worker. Mare Winningham is the young Appalachian mother, Theresa, and Grace Johnson is Hilary, her daughter. Dennis Nemeec wrote the screenplay and Larry Elikann directed on location in Montreal. ABC will telecast the movie on Monday.

"My character was inspired by a real Outreach worker, Otis Woodard in St. Louis," said Harewood. "He's a very special guy who's done a lot for the homeless."

The story's set in an unspecified Midwestern city. It follows the tribulations of the young Appalachian woman and her daughter, who through no fault of their own, are in a downward spiral of poverty. "It's a cycle that leaves her homeless and without much prospect of improvement," Harewood said.

Harewood notes that many programs set up in the 1960s and '70s to aid the poor have been scaled down.

"This film doesn't make a political statement," he said, "but it does make the statement that the government has got to become involved. Children are our greatest resource and too many are growing up malnourished. Is it any wonder that we've fallen behind the rest of the world in educating our children?"

Harewood is involved with several programs that help people in need, among them LIFE (Love Is Feeding Everyone) and CHIP-IN (Community Housing Involving People In Need).

By the time the movie goes on the air, Harewood expects to be well into the filming of a pilot for ABC called "Mama's Boys." He and Perry King star as half-brothers who inherit an investigative newspaper.

"Perry and I are good friends and we're looking forward to working together again," he said. "The movie 'Foster and Laurie' in 1975 was our only time to work together. They wanted to make a series out of that, strange as it seems, since we were both assassinated (they played police officers)."

"But the chemistry between us is good. We didn't want to do that as a series, but we have been wanting to do something together for a long time."

The idea for the series came from Harewood's wife, actress Ann McCurry, and her friend, Louise Haven. "I met Ann when we did one musical in New York and we started dating when we did another," he said. "Louise was in 'General Hospital.'"

The concept is of two half-brothers, one white, one black, who inherit the newspaper and are forced to settle their differences to keep it running. William Blinn ("Brian's Song," "Roots") wrote the screenplay.

The last year or so has been extremely busy for Harewood.

Vandy, Kansas Claim Victories

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Vanderbilt is heading for the NCAA Midwest Regional semifinals thanks in large part to the 3-point shot. Coach C.M. Newton figures he owes Ed Steitz a big favor.

"I ought to give him half my paycheck," Newton said. "He'll remember this."

Steitz, secretary of the NCAA Rules Committee, is considered the father of the 3-point shot. Vanderbilt sent its game against eighth-ranked Pitt into overtime Sunday when Barry Goheen drilled a 3-pointer at the buzzer, then went on to win 80-74.

Steitz watched the game from court-side, and Newton noticed him at the post-game news conference.

"When I was chairman of the rules committee, I was adamantly opposed to the 3-point play," Newton said. "He kept saying it'll add a lot to the game. It sure has added a lot. It's been good for the game. Ed, you were right."

Vanderbilt, 20-10 and the No. 7 seed in the region, will play sixth-seeded Kansas in Friday's semifinal game at Pontiac, Mich. Kansas, 23-11, beat upstart Murray State 61-58 behind the play of Danny Manning.

Newton said two last-second 3-pointers cost his team victories in the Sugar Bowl Tournament last season.

"I've always believed that with those kinds of things, what goes around comes around," he said. "We had one more of those to win to get even."

Goheen had given the Commodores life with a 3-pointer from the left baseline with six seconds left, making the score 67-66.

Pitt center Charles Smith, who scored 21 points to become the school's career scoring leader, then sank two free throws with four seconds remaining. Vanderbilt had to inbound the ball from under Pitt's basket.

"With four seconds, you don't have a lot of time to screen or run anything," Goheen said. "I was just trying to get down the court as quick as I could. I thought they might foul me in the backcourt before I got a shot off. I was surprised I got a good shot as I did."

"We were hoping to foul," said Pitt Coach Paul Evans, whose second-seeded team ended its season 24-7. "We couldn't catch up with him. ... Porter was chasing him, he just couldn't catch up with him. We would've fouled any guard."

Newton had two other 3-point shooters in the lineup for those final seconds, Barry Booker and Scott Draud.

"My feeling was it was going to be hard for them to cover all three," Newton said. "We would have felt just as good if Booker or Draud had uncovered for the shot."

Vanderbilt had trailed 25-12 in the first half — "We were so tight it was scary," Newton said — but went on a 14-2 run that made it an even game. The Commodores rallied from a 48-43 deficit in the second half, then had to play the overtime without 7-foot center Will Perdue, who fouled out with four seconds remaining in regulation.

But Vandy scored the first six points of the extra session, and Pitt never got closer than three.

"This team has proved it can play without me in the game," said Perdue, who scored 15. "We're a basketball team; this isn't a one-man show."

Said Evans: "Obviously it was a very tough loss. It's just a tough way to lose a ball game."

Kansas had a tough time against the 14th-seeded Racers from Murray State, who had surprised a lot of people with a first-round victory over third-seeded North Carolina State.

The Jayhawks jumped out to a 12-point lead in the first half before Murray State, 22-9, rallied and eventually grabbed the lead.

The Racers of the Ohio Valley Conference wound up being done in by Manning down the stretch.

After Jeff Martin's two free throws gave Murray State a 58-57 lead with 51 seconds left, Manning took over. He made a jump hook with 38 seconds left to give the Jayhawks the lead, then grabbed a crucial rebound with one second left after Don Mann missed a leaning, off-balance jumper in the lane.

"Usually you win on a second shot when you're going for one," Kansas Coach Larry Brown said. "The great thing about it was Danny got a great rebound. I've been on his back all year to rebound. He got the biggest rebound of the year, as far as I'm concerned."

Manning was fouled on the play and sank two free throws to give him 25 points. Then he knocked away the Racers' long inbound pass at the buzzer.

"I look at the last minute and it typifies our season," Brown said. "Danny makes a shot to put us ahead, he gets a key rebound, makes two free throws and steals the inbound pass."

The victory sends Kansas to the round of 16 for the third consecutive year. Murray State exits after making its first NCAA Tournament appearance since 1969.

"Outside of the final 20 seconds," Coach Steve Newton said, "it's just been a magnificent year."

Arizona Looks For More In Semis Against Iowa

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A warning to the University of Iowa: Arizona Coach Luke Olson thought his Wildcats were great against Seton Hall; he expects they'll be even better against Iowa.

Second-ranked Arizona looked every bit the national champion on Sunday as it stalled for five minutes, then took off like a rocket to beat Seton Hall 84-55 in a second-round game of the NCAA Tournament's West Regional. "They made us look the worst we've looked all season," Pirates Coach P.J. Carlesimo said.

It was the 13th consecutive victory for the Wildcats, who will take a 33-2 record to Seattle for the West Region semifinals.

Arizona will take on Iowa, which advanced by beating Nevada-Las Vegas 104-86 in a reversal of last year's West Region final. Ed Horton and Jeff Moe each had 24 points and Roy Marble 22 for the Hawkeyes, who join North Carolina and Michigan in regional play beginning Friday.

"I was really pleased with our defense and tremendously pleased with our board work," Olson said. "Defensively, we just shut pretty much everything out that they wanted to do."

"Friday we'll play better," he added. "That's the way we've played all along. This team has not had a lull."

"The team that would beat us would be a mirror image of ourselves," forward Sean Elliott said, smiling as if he didn't see many such images waiting out there.

For a time, it looked the more physical Pirates might make a game of it, holding Arizona without a field goal for five minutes while hitting an 8-3 lead.

But then Steve Kerr hit a 3-pointer and the Wildcats took off, outscoring Seton Hall 22-4 en route to a 45-25 halftime lead. That spurt began with three-point plays by Elliott, who finished with 19 points, and his 6-foot-9 book-end, Anthony Cook, who finished with 20.

Seton Hall, 22-13, got no closer than 16 in the second half and left impressed. No, make that overwhelmed.

"They're a great team. They don't make many mistakes" said 6-9 forward Mark Bryant, who was in foul trouble all day and scored only 11 points, 10 under his average. "I think they might go all the way."

So does Coach Tom Davis of 17th-ranked Iowa, whose team represents the next obstacle.

The Hawkeyes made it to triple figures for the 15th time this season, using the press to destroy the 12th-ranked Runnin' Rebels. That assured that there will be no repeaters in this year's Final Four — UNLV, Syracuse and Providence didn't make the 64-team field.

The Iowa-Arizona matchup is a familiar one to the Hawkeyes, who lost 66-59 to Arizona at Iowa City earlier this year in a match of Olson's former and current teams. It was the lowest point total of the season for Iowa.

"We may have in advantage in that at least we know what we're up against," Davis said. "Anyone who can come in an beat us on our home court has to be a good team. We'll have to play great to beat them — and even if we play our best, we may still lose."

"Maybe they're the best team in the country."

Iowa ran off the first 10 points of the game, using its defense to disrupt the UNLV offense, and led 51-39 in intermission.

"We all thought at halftime we had a chance to come back in the second half," said UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian, whose team came from 18 down at the half to beat Iowa 97-93 in last year's West Region final.

"But we just didn't play any defense in the second half. We shot the ball very well but we just couldn't defend."

The best of the shooters was Gerald Paddio, who had six of his eight 3-point shots in the second half and finished with 34 points to lead the Rebels. Karl James had 21 but Jarvis Basnight, UNLV's second-leading scorer and its top rebounder, played just 15 minutes and fouled out with 13:39 to play.

"Their press just destroyed us," said Tarkanian, whose team finished 28-6. "It not only disrupted our offense, it destroyed our defense. We just couldn't stop them."

For Iowa, 24-9, it's time to savor Sunday's victory before thinking of what's to come.

"We're back in the Top 16 and that's about as great a tribute as I can pay to these guys," Davis said.

Every Year There's Somebody Waiting

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

Every year in the NCAA Tournament, there's a spider waiting in the corner, ready to ensnare a defending champion in its web. Or a bad-tempered ram ready to butt a finalist from the previous season.

The Indiana Hoosiers, who were shocked in the first round by unheralded Cleveland State in 1986 only to win the national title on a last-gasp shot by Keith Smart a year ago, were stung by the upset bug again over the weekend.

The culprits were the Richmond Spiders, who also defeated Georgia Tech Sunday to advance to the East Regional semifinals against top-ranked Temple.

The East also is the home to this year's other upstarts, the Rhode Island Rams, who followed their first-round victory over Missouri with an upset win Saturday over Big East champ Syracuse, which lost last season's title game to Indiana.

Rhode Island faces Duke in this Thursday's other East Regional semifinal.

Richmond is coached by Dick Tarrant, a crafty veteran who Indiana's Bobby Knight said "was a good coach before I even started coaching."

Knight gave Tarrant full credit for Richmond's basketball success when he said, "There isn't any reason why Richmond should be any good."

Tarrant played the underdog role to the hilt against Indiana and Georgia Tech.

"Indiana has better people at every position and we're undersized at every spot," Tarrant said.

After the game, he admitted, "I was blowing smoke all right. I thought we could beat them."

Tech's Bobby Cremins was impressed with the Spiders.

"They look like they're on some kind of mission," he said. "They're hungry, they're not scared of anybody and they're incredibly well coached."

It's not really surprising that one or two teams from conferences with little exposure come into the NCAA Tournament every year with everything to prove and nothing to lose. They manage to beat the guys who are on television so often they have their own makeup powder in the locker room.

Rhode Island guard Carlton Owens said he was happy not only to knock Syracuse out of the tournament, but to silence the Orangemen.

"They were talking (during the game) about playing some weak Atlantic 10 team," Owens said. "I just returned and said, 'That was an Atlantic 10 dunk.'"

"We had to prove that we were a great ballclub and that we're from a great conference, and I think we did that."

North Carolina Charlotte, a first-round loser in overtime to Brigham Young this year, was one of the first unheralded teams to shock the experts since the NCAA tournament was expanded.

Led by Cedric Maxwell, who later excelled for the Boston Celtics, North Carolina-Charlotte beat Syracuse and top-ranked Michigan en route to the Final Four in 1977.

Two years later, Ivy League champion Penn shocked North Carolina in the first round when the Tar Heels had counted on playing host to the East Regional. In front of sparse crowds, Penn went on to upset Syracuse and St. John's to advance to the Final Four.

Penn did it again in 1980, beating Washington State, and in 1983

Princeton gave the Ivy League its last NCAA victory, against Oklahoma State.

Lamar, of the Southland Conference, made a habit of upsetting highly ranked teams in the 1980s. In 1980, the Cardinals beat Oregon State and Steve Johnson in the second round, in 1981 they defeated Missouri in the first round and in 1983, Alabama was the victim.

Other big shockers in 1981 was St. Joseph's defeat of No. 1 DePaul and James Madison's upset of Georgetown.

1982 was the year that unheralded Tennessee schools made headlines as Middle Tennessee beat Kentucky, spoiling an eagerly awaited Kentucky-Louisville showdown, and Tennessee-Chattanooga ousted North Carolina State, which went on to win the national title the following year.

Richmond pulled its first big upset in 1984, when it defeated Auburn, led by Charles Barkley and Chuck Person.

Karl Malone carried Louisiana Tech, another Southern team, to two easy victories in 1985 before losing to Oklahoma in overtime in the regional semifinals. Before that, Louisiana Tech crushed Pittsburgh 78-54 and defeated Ohio State 79-67.

Often, however, the biggest upsets are followed by devastating defeats.

In 1979, when Penn reached the Final Four, the Quakers lost 101-67 to eventual champion Michigan State. St. Joseph's, after its last-second defeat of DePaul in 1980, fell 78-46 to Indiana in the regional finals.

Foreman In TKO Win

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Former heavyweight champion George Foreman says his comeback effort should be an inspiration for everyone over the age of 40.

"It proves the age of 40 is not a death sentence at all," Foreman said after stopping Dwight Muhammad Qawi in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-round fight Saturday night.

Foreman looked his age, however, appearing slow and plodding as he went after a flabby Qawi for six rounds before finally catching him with some solid shots.

"He's not as sharp as he could be," promoter Bob Arum said of the 40-year-old Foreman. "He needs some intensive sparring to sharpen himself up."

Qawi, carrying 222 pounds on his 5-foot-7 frame, landed several clean shots early but faded late in the fight and finally quit while still on his feet after a Foreman left-right combination to the head in the seventh round.

"I was surprised at how strong he (Foreman) was," Qawi said. "He really wore me down."

Foreman won for the eighth time since beginning a comeback a year ago after a decade outside the ring. But the unimpressive showing brought boos from the crowd at Caesars Palace which looked for an early Foreman knockout.

"It didn't discourage me at all," Foreman said. "I'm not going for one-, two-, three-round knockouts. I'm an old man."

Arum said before the fight that he planned to match Foreman against a more competitive heavyweight on a June 6 card headed by Thomas Hearns' middleweight title defense against Iran Barkley.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

"Hear that, Sam? I've got another think coming!"

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY March 22

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): This morning will start out fine where business is concerned, but before long a troubled person will create some problems for you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You may get a message from a good friend who needs your help. Avoid becoming involved in an argument between a pal and a co-worker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Handle your business duties early today, since later much time will be consumed explaining a financial situation to an associate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Handle your duties carefully and conscientiously, but set aside some time for relaxation. Avoid contact with strangers today.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Be sure you don't forget to keep any promises you have made, or you could get in some big trouble. Give your mate more attention than usual.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Learn to be more independent, and don't ask any favors of your friends or co-workers. Take care of a civic matter which will help others.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Some great new ideas will occur to you, so get out of your easy chair and take action. Be sure that you drive with the utmost care.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Study all the promises you have made, and schedule them well so you can handle them efficiently. Be more understanding to your mate.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Listening to the ideas of an associate is wiser than relying on your intuition. If a partner breaks a promise, don't let it upset you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Handle your duties with precision, and don't take any risks or cut any corners which could boomerang on you. Don't be overly critical.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): You may be tempted to get involved in an expensive recreation, but it really isn't worthwhile. Use your energy constructively.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Think carefully before saying or doing anything of importance, and save yourself much money and friction. Get plenty of rest tonight.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠J6 ♥AQ103 ♦AJ9 ♣KQ63
 Your right-hand opponent opens one diamond. What action do you take?
A.—Even though any action you take is flawed, you cannot afford to wait to see how the auction develops. We dislike a takeout double when we don't have the spade suit and we have no clear rebid should partner respond in that suit to our double. Therefore, we would settle for one no trump despite the fact that we don't have a spade stopper.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠KQ63 ♥AQ103 ♦AJ9 ♣J6
 Your right-hand opponent opens one diamond. What action do you take?
A.—The same hand as above, except that we have transposed the black suits. Since you hold four cards in each major, the double is clear-cut. If partner responds in a major, you can show the strength of your hand by raising.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AQ9842 ♥Q103 ♦AQ ♣73
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
 What do you bid now?
A.—It might seem that it is automatic to rebid your six-card major, but that will leave you awkwardly placed should partner be short in spades (and, if you don't play two-over-one forcing for one round, partner might pass two spades with a misfit). Since you have a known eight-card fit, why not simply raise to three hearts?

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠6 ♥K53 ♦Q82 ♣AQ9852
 The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
 2 ♣ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Although the possibility of a misfit looms, your hand is worth a try for game. Since most players use a rebid of three clubs in this sequence to show a sub-minimum two-over-one response and a self-sufficient suit, the logical effort is two no trump—if partner has a modicum of club support, you have a source of tricks.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠Q9 ♥KQJ984 ♦AJ6 ♣83
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
 2 ♥ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—Partner has shown a strong hand by introducing a new suit at the three-level, and you have quite a problem. You can't bid no trump without a stopper in the unbid suit, you have already shown a six-card heart suit and you don't have adequate support for either of partner's suits. The solution is a temporizing bid of three spades, to see what partner does next—he might have delayed heart support for you.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable as South you hold:
 ♠AQ63 ♥KJ9 ♦8 ♣AJ1062
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—You have a very fine hand, but not quite good enough to force to game. You should plan to make three bids, so simply rebid one spade now and then support hearts at your next turn. That will show your 4-3-1-5 pattern while inviting game.
