Sandinistas, Contras Sign 60-Day Cease-Fire

Related story on A-10

By BRYNA BRENNAN
Associated Press Writer
SAPOA, Nicaragua (AP) — Pro-government newspapers today announced the 60-day cease-fire between the Sandinistas and Contra rebels with banner headlines but said the accord was only a beginning in efforts to end six years of war.
The government and Contra rebels on Wednesday night agreed to the cease-fire to negotiate an end to their war and signed a nine-point accord that promises the rebels a role in Nicaragua's political process.

"Cease-Fire! Peace Explodes?" read the eight-column headline in El Nuevo Diario. Barricada, the official paper of the leftist Sandinistas, said: "The First Step Toward Peace."
The agreement was the first concrete step toward ending the conflict that has killed more than 40,000 people.
State-run Radio Voice of Nicaragua in broadcasting the cease-fire softened its tones and referred to the rebels as "the Contras," instead of "the mercenaries."

El Nuevo Diario, in an editorial, offered a sombering note.
"Is the mercenary directorate really disposed to fulfill the Sapoa agreements?" the editorial said. "And if they are, are they capable of maintaining their positions while facing a negative reaction from the president of the United States?"
The cease-fire is to begin April 1, with negotiators meeting again April 6 in Managua to work out a permanent truce. In the interim, a truce that took effect Monday is to remain in force.

President Daniel Ortega unexpectedly traveled to this small village on the Costa Rican border for the signing, which followed three days of talks.
He called the plan "a great challenge for all Nicaraguans" and called on the United States "to support this effort and get ready to normalize its relations with Nicaragua."
"I think, I hope and I believe that we have made a start, a firm start to end this war that is killing ... sons of the same country, sons of the same mothers," said Contra leader Adolfo Calero.

Alfredo Cesar, another leader of the U.S.-supported rebels, said the nine points in the agreement "are not solely an opportunity to achieve peace and agreement, but the only opportunity."
The agreement was made "among Nicaraguans, full of good will and confidence in the future," said Cesar, who was among Contra and Sandinista leaders crowded on a makeshift dais.

Neither the State Department nor the White House had any immediate comment on the agreement, which calls for the estimated 10,000 rebels to move into specified zones in Nicaragua during the first 15 days of April. Delegations from both sides will return to Sapoa on Monday to determine the zones.
The Contras also agreed to accept only humanitarian aid from a neutral organization. This would rule out fur-

Widow Held In Death

Sandra Faye Haddock White of Route 2, Grimesland, is being held without bond while waiting for a probable cause hearing April 15 on charges of solicitation of murder in the stabbing death of her husband, Bobby Charles White, on Saturday.
Mrs. White was arrested Wednesday and appeared in Pitt County District Court today before Judge James E. Ragan.
"We had to arrest her because, if we hadn't arrested her, she would have been gone," said Sheriff Ralph Tyson. He supported the court's decision not to grant bond.
Ragan advised Mrs. White of her rights and said "they must be exercised in a timely and proper manner" or she could forfeit them. Ragan appointed a public defender after Mrs. White told Ragan she could not afford an attorney.

"We're still continuing the investigation," said Tyson. "We're trying to get all the people involved in this thing."
The warrant for Mrs. White's arrest states she solicited a man identified in the warrant as Michael Ray Rogers to commit the murder, but more than one person was involved, Tyson said.
Mrs. White reported finding her husband dead in his living room Saturday about 9 p.m. after she had been away for about two hours. White suffered more than 30 stab and cut wounds.

Ground Broken For New PCC Vocational Building

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer
The first shovel loads of dirt were tossed to begin construction of the A.B. Whitley vocational education building on Pitt Community College's campus by the college's board of trustees Wednesday.
During a ground-breaking ceremony before more than 50 people representing state, county and city governments, advisory councils, PCC faculty, staff, students and friends, the dream of putting all vocational programs under one roof at the college became a vivid image as the board members lined up to clear the path for the new building.
"This groundbreaking symbolizes the hopes we have had for this program over the years" as many of the vocational courses currently are taught in leased buildings in the area,

Clifton Everett, chairman of the PCC Board of Trustees, said. Vocational education benefits the economy of Pitt County as students are trained in skills and trades to meet the needs of the community, he said.
"We have pushed it hard and have rendered the best service that we could ... and people are beginning to recognize and realize the benefit this institution renders to this community," Everett said.
Everett said it was most fitting that the building be named for Whitley, a member of the board, because of his contribution to the community. "He has been a watchdog" over most of the construction at the college and has assured that safe and appropriate facilities have been built, Everett said. "Above all, he has saved us (huge) amounts of money."

"It makes me feel very humble but needless to say, I feel very proud I'm being honored in this way," Whitley said. "I'm grateful to see a building of this magnitude being built for vocational trades."
The building cost is $2,561,726 and is being funded by the state Department of Community Colleges, $2,331,000, and the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, $230,726.
The two-story Georgian-style building will have more than 32,000 square feet and will house vocational classrooms and shops and labs to include diesel engine and farm machinery, machinist, electronic servicing, electrical technology, architectural drafting and manufacturing engineering programs.
The projected completion date is June, 1989.

PCC Board Says No To Authority Shift

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer
The Pitt Community College Board of Trustees approved a resolution Wednesday that was best summarized by its chairman, who said, "if it ain't broke, don't fix it."
Clifton Everett made his remark in support of a resolution opposing "any change in existing policy or authority that would result in shifting the selection of local presidents ... from the local boards of trustees to the state Board of Community Colleges or the N.C. Department of Community Colleges."
During a recent meeting of about 180 community college trustees, Bob Scott, the president of the state Board of Community Colleges, proposed that the state board be delegated the authority to appoint local community college presidents, Everett said. This currently is the responsibility of the local community college board of trustees.

The proposal was "bluntly turned down by all of the trustees," he said. "I think the outcry had its effect on somebody in Raleigh."
The state board drafted a new proposal, which in essence reaffirms its authority to evaluate the selection of

BLAZE BATTLED — Firemen from Farmville, Bell Arthur, Falkland, Fountain and Staton House fought a fire at Stancil's Body Shop in Farmville for about 2½ hours Wednesday. The body shop was a loss and four vehicles inside were destroyed. Damage was done to a neighboring office and auto mechanic's garage. (Reflector Photo By Thomas Forrest)

Farmville Shop Burns

FARMVILLE — Fire destroyed the contents of a Farmville auto body shop Wednesday afternoon and damaged two neighboring businesses.
The fire at Stancil's Body Shop at 111 W. Wilson St. was reported at 4:45 p.m.
Paul LaGant, who worked in the body shop, said he had gone next door to Stancil's Auto Service only about two minutes before he was told there was fire inside the body shop. He said he ran back and managed, with help, to get two cars out of the building before smoke and heat made it impossible to do more.

Four vehicles stored in the rear of the building were destroyed, along with several thousand dollars worth of auto body equipment. The building is owned by the Davis Heirs of Farmville.

According to Farmville Fire Chief John Baker, firemen spent approximately 2½ hours extinguishing the blaze. He said the Farmville Fire Department was assisted by the Bell Arthur, Falkland, Fountain and Staton House fire departments. He said the cause of the fire is not known, but he believes it started in a storage room in the center of the building.

Damage was done to the office of Louis Allen and the auto mechanics shop of Marvin Speight next door.

Baker estimated total damage at more than $100,000.

Baker said fireman James Dildy was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for treatment for smoke inhalation. He was released Wednesday night after treatment, Baker said.

Innocent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oliver North, John Poindexter and two businessmen pleaded innocent today to charges of conspiring to defraud the government and steal $17 million in the Iran-Contra affair.

The four, making their first court appearance since their indictment last week, each told U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell they would plead "not guilty."

Gesell released them on their own recognizance and said they would

Media Hit For Election Coverage

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer
News media have played a significant role in the 1988 presidential election process by treating the nomination process as a kind of spectator sport, according to an expert in media and politics.
David Paletz, professor of political science at Duke University, told approximately 40 people at a East Carolina University lecture hall that the media have reduced the complicated nominating process to a mere win-loss contest to the detriment of the public.

"I've looked at the (media) coverage in great detail this election year, and I'm sorry to say that most of it is 'horse race.' That is — who's in the race, who's won, who's last, and who might enter the race later," he said.

"What is very intriguing about this is that winning is defined by the candidate who is ahead in the vote in a state at a particular time," he added.

"Usually the questions (to the candidates) are defined in terms of winning and losing — 'you lost, are you going to survive, 'you won, but you're still in bad shape,' or 'you won, how are you going to do the next time.'"

Paletz said it was surprising that after all the media coverage, most people know very little about the candidates.

Drug Arrest Made

Torrence Genteal Payton, 16, of 407A Darden Drive was arrested on a drug charge by Greenville police Wednesday.

Officer T.E. Evans said Payton was charged with possession with intent to sell and deliver cocaine following a 6:19 p.m. incident in the 500 block of Watauga Avenue.

Evans said 39 vials of cocaine-based crack, valued at $300, and $180 in cash were confiscated when Payton was taken into custody.

Top Juniors At ECU

Some of the top high school juniors from North Carolina and Virginia visited East Carolina University recently for the annual Scholars Weekend activities.

The students previewed opportunities for honor students who attend ECU. While on campus they also visited classes, attended social events and received information about scholarships available to academically gifted students.

Robert B. Morgan, director of the State Bureau of Investigation and former U.S. senator, addressed the students at a banquet.

Scholars Weekend participants are recommended by high school principals and guidance counselors. Selected students must rank in the top 5 percent of their junior class and have at least a 3.5 grade point average.

ECU offers scholarships for $3,000, $1,500, and $1,000 a year to high school students who excel academically.

Students who participated and their counties included: Sandy An-draws, Jeff Bell, Billy "B.J." Coggins, Christy Hardee and John Weathington, (Pitt); Renee Justice, Bonnie Kincaid and Holland Midyette, (Beaufort), and Antony Roberson, (Martin).

City-ECU Meeting

The city of Greenville will host the second breakfast meeting between city officials and representatives of East Carolina University at 7:30 a.m. Friday at the Jaycee Park building on Cedar Lane.

City Manager Greg Knowles said the meeting is the second in a series designed to enhance communication and cooperation between city and college officials in developing and formulating future plans and policies.

Although no formal agenda has been set for the meeting, Knowles indicated mutual problems related to parking might be brought up for discussion.

The first breakfast meeting between the two groups was held Jan. 15 at Mendenhall Student Center at ECU. Among the topics discussed were future growth of the college, parking problems, and city beautification efforts.

NO RETIN-A IN COSMETICS

The North Carolina Department of Agriculture Food and Drug Protection Division has warned consumers that they are being cheated when they purchase over-the-counter creams and lotions that claim to contain Retin-A or have the same effects on skin as Retin-A.

Retin-A is available by prescription only, said Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham. Manufactured by Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp. of Raritan, N.J., this drug came under intense interest when a short-term study of the use of it to treat sun-related aging showed statistically significant improvement in 30 patients. Cosmetic companies claiming to include the drug in their skin preparations are springing up, Graham said.

The FDA is currently allowing Ortho to conduct clinical trials of Retin-A for safety and effectiveness for photoging under an investigational new drug exemption. The FDA reminds consumers that no drug is without side effects. Side effects of Retin-A include redness, blistering, local swelling, peeling and photosensitivity in some people. And the possible cancer-causing effects of its use over prolonged periods of time have not been evaluated.

Young Democrats Gather In Greenville On Saturday

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

Journalists and political scientists from across the state will take part in a forum on the Super Tuesday primary at the North Carolina Young Democrats convention at the Hilton in Greenville Saturday.

More than 200 Democrats, including the North Carolina Federation of College Democrats, will attend the weekend convention, according to Jim Gallaher, a Winston-Salem attorney and state president of the Young Democrats.

In addition to the Super Tuesday discussion, Gayle Tauzin, wife of Rep. Billy Tauzin, D-La., and Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan will speak and the Young Democrats will elect new state officers.

East Carolina University political science professor Dr. Tinsley Yarbrough will moderate the 10:30 a.m. forum. Others participating include: Dr. Dorothy Clayton and Dr. Carmine Scavo of the ECU Political Science Department; Elliot Warnock, editor of Lawyers Weekly, and Betty Speir, a member of the Democratic National Committee.

The group will look at the origin of the 20-state primary, the results of the March 8 voting and the future of Super Tuesday, Johnson said. "I think it will be very interesting. I don't know that anybody has gone through a thorough analysis of it yet," he said.

Mrs. Tauzin will be the featured speaker at the banquet Saturday at 7:30 p.m. She is a school teacher and member of the Democratic Women's Speakers Bureau, the Congressional Wives' Club and the Louisiana Federation of Democratic Women.

House speaker Jim Wright, D-Tex., was scheduled to address the convention but he canceled.

Jordan, a candidate for the 1988 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, will address the group at a 12:15 p.m. luncheon Saturday.

Gallaher, who is not running for re-election, first became involved with the college Democrats in 1975 while a student at Duke University. Three years later he became president of the North Carolina College Federation of Democrats and last year was elected state president of the Young Democrats.

All of the candidates running for state office this year have been heavily involved in the organization and will probably run unopposed, said Gallaher. "People just tend to know who might fit best in the position," he said.

The group will elect officers Saturday afternoon to fill five positions. Candidates have already announced they are running and group members received information about them in a recent newsletter, said Gallaher.

Lecil Henderson of Charlotte, currently vice president, is running for president; Libby Lefler of Durham, currently secretary, is running for vice president; Owen Spears of Fayetteville, currently treasurer, is running for National Committee representative; Debbie Nelson of New Bern is running for treasurer, and Cathy Hudson of Weddington is running for secretary.

The Young Democrats established a platform at their fall convention, but they will consider resolutions and constitutional amendments at the meeting Saturday.

The college Democrats will elect their officers at a meeting Friday night and they will also consider resolutions and amendments. More than 25 colleges will be represented, Gallaher said, and the elected officers will hold places on the Young Democrats' executive committee.

FEC Grants Federal Matching Funds To LaRouche Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Election Commission today agreed to grant federal matching funds to the presidential campaign of political extremist Lyndon LaRouche, who is standing trial on a charge relating to alleged irregularity in his 1984 campaign.

The commission on a 5-1 vote said that LaRouche has fulfilled the requirements for eligibility to receive matching funds.

Commissioner Joan Aikens, voting against the majority, said that an FEC survey of LaRouche contributors raised "a question of patent irregularity" in fund raising.

But Commissioner Scott Thomas said there was not enough evidence to deny certification, and he added, "Presidential candidates and campaigns can come in many different shapes and colors."

A survey by the FEC's audit staff found that several people whose checks ended up in LaRouche's 1988 presidential coffers did not intend to contribute to his campaign.

That was the response of 6 percent of the 713 LaRouche contributors who answered the FEC's survey.

In describing the responses, the FEC audit staff wrote in a report:

"Many of the responses included unsolicited written comments wherein the individuals described instances where he/she 1. felt pressured into making a contribution, 2. made contributions believing that the contribution was for a specific purpose other than furthering Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr.'s presidential nomination campaign, 3. made loans to the campaign, and 4. had contributed to a number of LaRouche's interests, while making all checks payable to LDC."

The audit staff recommended the commission find that LaRouche is not eligible for matching funds.

But the FEC's legal staff came up with the opposite recommendation, stating that the "patent irregularities indicated by the survey results do not justify an unfavorable eligibility report."

The commission was expected to make its decision at a meeting early today.

FEC legal counsel Lawrence Noble's written opinion said some of the responding contributors seemed confused, or contributed to LaRouche thinking he was a Republican or independent candidate instead of a Democrat, which he is. Those responses should not have been considered negative, Noble said, because the donors did apparently intend to give money to a presidential campaign.

The auditors contacted 1,062 of those contributors, after finding that some of the checks he submitted with his application for federal matching funds were made out simply to the initials "L.D.C."

Some contributors contacted by The Associated Press said they were under the impression they were contributing to an anti-AIDS campaign when they gave checks to LaRouche solicitors.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

State AIDS Policy Correct

The approval of a policy that bars discrimination against state workers with AIDS is rational management of an issue that predictably prompts emotional responses.

The State Personnel Commission should be commended for setting an example that discourages hysteria and encourages a calm, reasonable approach to the disease based on facts.

The policy represents an appropriate and important beginning for North Carolina in dealing with a communicable disease having immense implications on public health and policy. Because of the potential impact, the state needs a firm, non-biased policy in place. The policy should encourage a level-headed approach to the issue based on the most up-to-date factual research.

The recommendations approved meet those criteria. The policy correctly ensures that employees with AIDS could not be discriminated against unless the conditions result in unacceptable job performance. It also appropriately bars discrimination in transfers, promotions or hiring those infected with AIDS. In addition, the policy provides reasonable accommodation for employees whose ability to work might be affected by the disease.

Those are the same considerations state employees with other communicable diseases might expect. No data suggests AIDS should be treated differently from other diseases. There is no evidence that employing a person with AIDS presents a health hazard to other persons in the work place. Unless that proof exists, the state would be on questionable ground proposing special treatment.

After all, those infected with AIDS have qualifications, capabilities and can contribute to the work place. That's why they were hired to begin with — because they offered the skills for a specific job. It would be foolish and wrong to dismiss these qualifications because of incorrect notions of danger to public health.

AIDS in the public work place should be treated with the facts, not with discrimination. The state was correct to adopt a rational policy based on medical knowledge, not emotional or political considerations.

Don't Miss Expo

An event not to be missed is Expo '88, the community's fourth annual trade show at New Greenville Warehouse today, Friday and Saturday.

Expo '88 will open your eyes to the wide variety of products produced and sold in Pitt County.

The show features booths by area businesses, industry, education, as well as home and garden exhibits. The booths and displays fill a large tobacco auction warehouse and they show an array of goods and services which are manufactured or are available in our area.

Officials of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce say Expo '88 is an opportunity for the exhibitors to tell their story. They point out that 98 percent of the chamber's membership is made up of small business which offer specialized goods and services.

The 25,000-plus anticipated visitors can spend hours browsing among the various exhibits. There is also entertainment each day, including the Band of Oz, Super Grit Cowboy Band and Nicky Harris.

The trade show reflects the commercial growth of our community each year and the impact is amazing.

Most of us who live and work in Pitt County are aware of the large number of commercial establishments, industry and services available. Seeing such an array as is represented at Expo '88 brings home just how vibrant an economy the community has.

Expo '88 is something to see.

To the editor:

Reference to the blatant criticism from The Daily Reflector and a few others concerning my position and the position of the council on the flower shop in the medical park, I am extremely proud that the council had the wisdom, courage and concern to take action to protect the future integrity of the undeveloped areas of the medical park.

It does not take exceptional visual acuity or keen intelligence for one to immediately determine that the south side of Stantonsburg Road, from Moye Drive west to the medical complex near Allen Road, is heavily developed with non-medical related businesses. To suggest a flower shop adulterates the area is complete nonsense!

My position and the position of the majority on the issue is as follows:

1. The medical park plan is basically sound, but it has some deficiencies, for example, the 50/50 rule does not define the professional businesses permitted in the medical park, nor are there any provisions set up to monitor compliance with this provision. There are obvious inconsistencies in granting special use permits in the medical district, etc.

2. When special uses are permitted in an area, the City Council relinquished its responsibility and control over whether or not a business is allowed in an area. If the Daily Reflector and the City Council persons feel, as I do, that it is critical that the integrity of the medical district be protected, I'm sure they will join me in my attempt to eliminate special uses in the area and only allow permitted uses. This would allow the City Council to have direct control over the future growth in that area.

I am determined to be fair in leading the Greenville City Council in deciding the issues which vitally affect the future of this city. I am in no way affected by the opinions of The Daily Reflector or any other institution as long as I am carrying out the mandate of the citizens of Greenville. I vowed to stand up for what I thought was right and I shall continue to do so.

Incidentally, the council retreat has proven to be a great success. How about a favorable article on Mayor Carter for a change, Daily Reflector? This is your sixth or seventh critical article editorial on the flower shop!

To the editor:

The Pitt County Council on Substance Abuse is a newly formed volunteer organization working to prevent and reduce substance abuse and substance abuse-related problems in Pitt County.

It has come to our attention that administrative changes are occurring at the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center. We see this as an opportunity for the Center, under new leadership, to become the flagship of substance abuse services in Eastern North Carolina.

We do not need an institution closed from the public, the helping professions and the recovering community. Rather, we need strong professional leadership that is active and aggressive in the field of substance abuse addiction.

The Pitt County Council on Substance Abuse has a vital interest in the education about and prevention of substance abuse in our county.

The Shutdown Of Panama

'Within days, the economy — already immobilized by anti-Noriega strikes — became almost dysfunctional. Merchants were refusing to accept checks from their customers, because they had no confidence that they would be able to cash them.'

WASHINGTON — Shutting down a country is a daunting task. But in the case of Panama, all it took to knock the props from under the nation's economy was a couple of well-placed kicks.

The astonishingly rapid deterioration of Panama — a nation that was once the economic envy of Central America — resulted from some deft legal maneuvers by the U.S. government acting in concert with forces opposed to Panama's military leader, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

As recently as last summer, Panama was the repository of an estimated $40 billion in foreign bank deposits, and it boasted the highest per-capita annual income by far in its region — $2,261. Today, the country's banks and businesses are paralyzed, and it is so starved for cash that its citizens are resorting to primitive bartering to obtain necessities.

How did the plug get pulled on Panama? The tale is a textbook illustration of a basic economic principle: A nation's economy depends critically upon public confidence in the financial and monetary system. Once that confidence evaporates, ordinary commerce grinds to a halt.

In this case, U.S. officials and anti-Noriega forces, who were looking for a way to depose the Panamanian strongman, found an unusually convenient method for undermining that confidence. Early this month Noriega's foes obtained court orders, based on a World War II anti-Nazi law, that froze the Panamanian government's deposits in New York, thereby cutting off the nation's most important source of cash.

Panama uses the U.S. dollar as its currency, so it was particularly vulnerable to such a move. Within days of the court judgments, Panamanian banks found themselves unable to meet the panicked demand by citizens for cash, and Noriega reluctantly ordered the banks to close to prevent a disastrous run on the system.

"Using the dollar as their currency had worked quite well for them — up to now," chuckled a State Department official.

But as simple as it sounds, the scheme to squeeze Panama required speedy execution and a bit of luck. It was also made possible because of a colossal error by the Noriega regime.

In February, after the general was indicted in Florida on drug-trafficking charges, State Department officials urged that the U.S. government declare all-out economic war on Panama by invoking the International Economic Emergency Powers Act (IEEPA), which could have entailed a host of economic sanctions including the freezing of private bank accounts held by Panamanians in the United States.

But Treasury Department and Federal Reserve officials objected, arguing that IEEPA — which has been applied only against Iran, Libya and Nicaragua — tends to shake the confidence of foreign investors in the American economy and should be used only sparingly.

What is more, other officials contended, invoking IEEPA seemed too heavy-handed an action to take against a country whose population is relatively friendly to the United States.

The opening for a more subtle approach came Feb. 25, when Eric Arturo Delvalle, the man Noriega had named president of Panama, tried to force the general to step down as commander of the armed forces. Although Noriega refused to do so and Delvalle went into hiding the schism within the Panamanian government gave U.S. officials new options.

At that point, said one official, "great minds began thinking alike." U.S. officials soon coalesced behind a plan launched by William D. Rogers, a Washington lawyer and former State Department official who had been retained to represent the Delvalle government-in-hiding.

The plan was based around the incredible fact that Noriega, despite having been indicted by the U.S. Justice Department, had left the bulk of Panama's holdings — about $60 million — in four U.S. banks. "If he had been well-advised, he would have stripped every dollar out of the United States when he had the chance," Rogers said.

In the first week of March, officials and attorneys at Rogers' law firm, Arnold & Porter, quickly began preparing the legal documents to make sure the money stayed out of Noriega's hands.

The State Department certified that Delvalle was the legitimate president of Panama, and that Panama's ambassador to the United States, Juan B. Sosa — a Delvalle loyalist — was Panama's legitimate representative.

Meanwhile, Rogers obtained a court order against the four New York banks holding Panama's deposits — Republic National, Marine Midland, Irving Trust and Bankers Trust — requiring them to handle the funds in accord with the wishes of Panama's legitimate representative, Sosa. The suits were evidently filed just in time; according to Rogers, Republic was hours away from shipping $10 million in dollar bills to Panama.

Back in Panama, meanwhile, the nation was suffering from a shortage of cash. "People had begun to do what economists call 'demonstrating liquidity preference,'" Rogers said.

Worried about the political crisis enveloping the country, individuals were withdrawing money from their bank accounts and socking the bills away in safe places. At the same time, banks were starting to move dollars abroad.

During that first week in March, the demand for cash grew rapidly; it became a panicked clamor when the government's holdings were frozen in New York. On March 3, Panama's semi-official central bank, the National Bank of Panama, told private banks it couldn't supply them with any more cash. Bankers limited withdrawals to small amounts, but were quickly overwhelmed by long lines of depositors. On Friday, March 4, the government ordered all banks to close.

Within days, the economy — already immobilized by anti-Noriega strikes — became almost dysfunctional. Merchants were refusing to accept checks from their customers, because they had no confidence that they would be able to cash them.

There are rumors that Noriega will be able to obtain an emergency infusion of dollars on the international-currency markets. But for now, Panama's economy is sinking into chaos according to plan.

Strength For Today

Bramwell Booth, son of the founder of the Salvation Army, was once traveling on a train with Cecil Rhodes, a leading builder of the British Empire in South Africa during the late 19th century.

Noticing that Rhodes seemed depressed, Booth asked him this question directly: "Are you a happy man, Mr. Rhodes?" "Happy?" replied Rhodes, "Good God, no." He then continued, "I would give everything that I possess if I had the religious faith your father has or could believe what he believes." Rhodes died a short time later, one of the richest men in the world and universally admired for his abilities. Yet his last words, spoken in deep sorrow, were, "So much to do, and so little time in which to do it."

It is an old story, indeed, but many people who have achieved wealth and fame do not have what is of greatest value — to be at peace with themselves and the universe. Unfortunately, they will never find peace and contentment until they look inwardly to discover these great gifts.

Ethics Panel Rebukes Rose Over Funds' Use

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A U.S. House committee has issued Rep. Charles Rose a letter of reproof after finding that he diverted nearly $64,000 from his campaign to his personal use and filed incomplete financial disclosure statements.

The Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, in a letter to Rose Wednesday, said no further action would be taken. Rose said the letter was the most lenient punishment the committee could impose and it will not be brought before the entire House.

Rose said he was disappointed the committee did not accept his contention that money he took from his campaign amounted to repayment of loans. He said he told the House committee he "advanced monies to the (campaign) committee in 1972 for which I was entitled to be repaid."

"Even though my campaign has mischaracterized them (his withdrawals) as loans, in effect they were reimbursements," he said.

Rose said he had corrected

REP. CHARLES ROSE

mistakes and omissions on his financial disclosure statements and that he regretted "these human errors that resulted in failure to list all the banking transactions I have had in the past 16 years."

The ethics committee letter acknowledges his corrections and says the committee "respects your forthrightness in this area."

"I am very happy that the committee found that no further action was warranted, other than the letter to me," Rose said, adding that he did not expect the situation to hamper his future re-election bids. He said he would not resign and described his violations as "technical."

"They sent me a letter that says, 'We think you violated rules of the House, but we think there are mitigating circumstances,'" Rose said. "I can live with that."

The letter said Rose borrowed money from his campaign on eight separate occasions — a total of $63,995 between 1978 and 1985 — violating a ban on using campaign funds for personal purposes. He also failed to list the funds on legally required financial disclosure reports, the letter said.

In another violation, Rose pledged $75,000 in a campaign-held certificate of deposit as collateral on a personal loan, the committee said. In addition, Rose failed to report various liabilities to financial institutions on his disclosure statements.

"The committee holds you responsible for being familiar with the rules governing this area," said the letter, signed by committee chairman Rep. Julian C. Dixon, D-Calif., and by Rep. Floyd D. Spence, R-S.C., the ranking minority member.

"Your mishandling of campaign funds and concurrent violations of House rules in such matters are deserving of reproof," the letter said. Rose said the committee's decision not to take tougher action demonstrated it considered his mistakes technical in nature.

"I'm happy that it's behind me, I'm satisfied with the result and I'm glad I can move on to total concentration on what the people elected me to do," he said in a telephone interview from Washington, D.C. "My head is high..."

The state Republican Party first raised allegations about Rose's finances in 1986. Bob Bradshaw of Charlotte was the state GOP chairman in September 1986 when he made the first public charges that Rose had misused campaign funds.

"In view of the fact that Congressman Rose had repeatedly said that he was not guilty of improper conduct and had criticized the Republican Party for filing the complaint, this vindicates the Republican Party," Bradshaw said Wednesday.

"The ethics committee's been criticized by a number of people for rather lenient punishment of people it has found guilty," he said. "This seems to be fitting with that pattern. ... It seems to me to be just a slap on the wrist."

Republicans predicted in 1986 the disclosures would bolster the campaign of his opponent, Tommy Harrelson. But Rose easily won election to an eighth term in the House, where he is chairman of the Agriculture Subcommittee on Tobacco and Peanuts.

"I rather expect that the Republicans will be angry that the committee gave me the lightest possible action they can give ...," Rose said.

Rose said the state GOP had retaliated against him for accusing the National Congressional Club and Jefferson Marketing, political organizations allied with Sen. Jesse Helms, of violating federal campaign laws in 1984.

The ruling comes in the wake of criticism of the House committee by public watchdog groups and minority Republicans who say it has been too soft on errant members.

Last October, House conservatives issued a report entitled "House of Ill Repute" that accused the committee of failing to fulfill its oversight role.

A Fayetteville attorney, Rose was a prosecutor before becoming an aide to former Gov. Terry Sanford, now a U.S. senator, in the early 1960s. He was first elected to the House in 1972.

Lawyers Form Statewide Network To Assist In Robeson County Probe

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — A statewide network of lawyers is helping people provide information about alleged corruption in Robeson County without fear of reprisal, an attorney who helped develop the "lawyer bank" says.

An increasing number of lawyers across North Carolina are interviewing witnesses with information on officials in Robeson County and businessmen with alleged drug connections, Bob Warren of the Carrboro-based civil rights law firm Christie Institute South said.

"This is a brand new, innovative idea," Warren told The Fayetteville Times. "We had no idea how to deal with the problem and we brainstormed ... and this is what we came up with."

Warren is part of a team of lawyers defending two Robeson County Indians charged with the Feb. 1 takeover of The Robesonian newspaper in Lumberton. Warren said the men "acted out of necessity" to protect their lives.

Eddie Hatcher, 30, of Pembroke and Timothy Jacobs, 19, of the Pembroke area claimed that knowledge of drug dealers endangered their lives and they took over the newspaper as a last-ditch attempt to draw attention to problems in the county.

Hatcher and others have said that people in the county want to expose corrupt officials but are afraid to present the information.

The problem, Warren said, was getting the information to the courts without endangering or incriminating those who provide it. He said a "lawyer bank" was their answer.

"Law firms from across the state of North Carolina involving very prominent defense lawyers, from very prestigious firms to single practitioners, are involved," Warren said. The lawyers, or law students working for them, evaluate information from interviews set up by a third party.

Legal representation based on a client's ability to pay will be arranged if a witness needs it, Warren said.

The attorneys will attempt to get federal or state authorities to grant their clients immunity from prosecution for the information they provide, he said.

Attorneys are pressing for a special prosecutor to be appointed to examine allegations in Robeson County. The special prosecutor would grant immunity, evaluate witnesses' statements and present a bill of indictments to a grand jury, he said.

"We started out thinking maybe a half dozen witnesses (would volunteer information) and we did that in the first day, so we had to quickly expand the number of lawyers and we continue to expand," he said.

Warren said workers in Robeson County refer people with verifiable information to the Christie Institute, or Lumberton attorneys Horace Locklear and Ken Ransom. The lawyers then contact an attorney in the "lawyer bank."

Ransom said the system "is working well" and that he expects more people to come forward if the state and U.S. Attorney agree to grant witnesses immunity.

Only lawyers "in the bank" seek information to avoid confidentiality problems, Warren said.

Attorneys in the bank are not identified publicly, Warren said, because "some lawyers coming into the county were experiencing security problems and we didn't want anybody followed to interview a client."

Fear has long been cited as a deterrent for people to come forward with information.

Warren said that feedback has led him to believe verifiable information backing Hatcher's and Jacobs' claims of corrupt public officials is reaching the lawyers.

"Several lawyers have told us that the information that they have received is very substantial," Warren said. "One lawyer described it as 'red hot.'"

"Other lawyers are trying to substantiate the information themselves through investigators or are trying to check into the allegations of these witnesses before they do anything else, and some have come up with verification of what the witnesses said," Warren said.

Supreme Court Questions Charity Disclosure Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court justices have sharply questioned a North Carolina law designed to force professional fund-raisers to disclose how much they charge to raise money for charities.

In questions to N.C. Attorney General Lacy Thornburg Wednesday, the justices challenged several key aspects of the law, which was enacted in 1985, but never took effect because chairities and fund-raisers obtained court orders to block it.

The justices focused mainly on a provision that would require telephone solicitors and other fund-raisers to disclose the percentage of donations they kept for themselves over the preceding year.

Thornburg said most people did not realize that, in many cases, less than 20 percent of donations actually go to a charity.

But several justices said it was a charity's prerogative to decide how much to pay a professional fund-raiser, and that the fund-raiser's track record for the past year might have no bearing on the current project.

"It doesn't mean anything," Justice Antonin Scalia said.

Justice Harry Blackmun said that requiring such information to be given would "almost kill" telephone solicitations for charities, place strict new regulations on professional organizations that solicit contributions for charities.

Justice Thurgood Marshall questioned the authority of states to tell chairities how to allocate their resources.

"Could you stop them from throwing away their money?" he said.

Professional fund-raisers "are keeping too much" of the money, Thornburg said. "We want it to go back to the charities."

But charitable groups said if the North Carolina plan were adopted nationwide it would severely threaten their ability to raise money.

The North Carolina regulations also could limit the fees paid by charities to the professional fund-raisers. A licensing provision of the statute presumes that in most cases if more than 35 percent of donations goes for the solicitor's fee, that is unreasonable.

Errol Copilevitz, an attorney representing professional fund-raisers and charities, said the law "creates a real and present danger of censorship."

Madison Jail

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Buncombe County officials say they don't mind keeping a couple of Madison County jail inmates who were left without a home when Madison Sheriff Dedrick Brown closed his jail — but they want $18 a day per prisoner.

Brown closed the jail in Marshall and sent one of his three prisoners to the jail in Asheville Wednesday because he said Madison's all-Democrat board of commissioners has cut his department's funding.

One of the prisoners was released a few days early for good behavior, and another who is on work release probably will be transferred to Buncombe later, Brown said.

But while Buncombe County wants $18 a day for each prisoner, the Madison commissioners have agreed to give Brown only $6 a day to pay the fee.

Lt. Johnny Lloyd, press liaison for Buncombe County Sheriff Buck Lyda, said Lyda would give Brown and his board of commissioners a few days to work out the difference between the $6 and $18 fee.

CP&L Request

RALEIGH (AP) — The Public Staff of the North Carolina Utilities Commission has recommended that Carolina Power & Light Co. receive a 5 percent rate increase instead of the 13.86 percent increase the utility has requested.

Under CP&L's requested increase, the monthly charge for residential customers using 1,000 kilowatt hours per month would increase from $73.19 to $84.77. Under the Public Staff's proposal, the monthly charges for residential customers using 1,000 kilowatts per month would increase to about $77.14.

The Public Staff's recommended Wednesday that CP&L be allowed a 12.04 percent rate of return on common stock, rather than the 13.5 percent return the company had requested.

Farm Relief

RALEIGH (AP) — An official with the Farmers Home Administration says the FmHa has provided many programs to help farmers, but a spokesman for the state's farmers says those programs have not been effective.

Relations between farmers and the Farmers Home Administration have been strained in recent years and attempts at relief for farmers has been inadequate, Benny Bunting, the chairman of the United Farmers Organization, said Wednesday.

Bunting, speaking before the General Assembly's Legislative Research Committee on Farm Issues and Farmland Preservation, said that the need for mandatory mediation in debtor-creditor disputes is of primary importance for North Carolina farmers. He said there has been a significant decrease in agricultural foreclosures and bankruptcies in the states that have enacted such legislation.

Attorney Shot

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Cumberland County Attorney Neil Yarborough was shot and seriously wounded in an apparent domestic dispute at his home Wednesday, authorities said.

Police said Yarborough, 36, was shot in the left arm and twice in the back with a .22-caliber pistol around 6:30 a.m. while he was taking a shower at his home. He was in serious condition in Cape Fear Valley Medical Center's intensive care unit.

Yarborough was named county attorney in February 1982 after serving as a staff attorney for the county since 1977. He served as interim county manager from November 1980 to February 1981.

Chemical Clean-Up

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The federal Environmental Protection Agency will spend between $250,000 and $600,000 to clean up vats of chemicals that were abandoned at the site of a former furniture plant in Lexington, a scientist who works for the EPA said.

The scientist, Gregory W. Powell, said about 230 drums and 56 vats of chemical waste from a metal-plating process were abandoned behind the site of the JMC Furniture Co. Inc.'s plant on the south end of the city. The vats contain metals, cyanides and acids that could react to form a poisonous gas, Powell said.

The site has been under investigation for almost two years by the N.C. Department of Human Resources because of allegations that hazardous waste had been illegally dumped or buried at the plant.

State Leases

RALEIGH (AP) — A developer from Garner who is a longtime ally of the Republican Party has nearly quadrupled his annual income from leasing buildings to state agencies since Republican Gov. Jim Martin took office.

Records show Algie Stephens will draw more than $554,000 a year in state and federal funds from eight state leases. He earned $121,500 from five leases before Martin's inauguration.

Stephens' portfolio of state business will swell in October with the completion of a building he is building south of Raleigh. Office space there will be leased to the state Department of Human Resources for $391,500 the first year and $450,000 year for the next four years.

Officials at the State Property Office said no one in the Martin administration has directed them to send business to Stephens.

Road Leaves Residents Stranded

CANADA, N.C. (AP) — When Herbert Paul's son was burned lighting a fire this winter, it took two days to get him medical help because the narrow, twisting Charley's Creek Road was impassable — even for four-wheel drive vehicles.

The McCalls telephoned a doctor who told them what to do until they could get help.

For more than 30 years, residents have tried without success to get the 10-mile road paved. They say their children miss a lot of school because the school bus frequently can't make the four-hour round-trip from southeastern Jackson County to Camp Laboratory School in Cullowhee.

"We had a fun trip coming home Friday," Len Hoxit, 15, said Wednesday. "It got to snowing hard and me and some of the young boys got out there and helped the bus driver put on chains. She got it (the bus) to going up the hill and the bus got to sliding from side to side. My aunt and cousin came along and we asked to get off and go home with them."

Len's father, Leeward Hoxit, 57, remembers walking 15 miles from his homeplace — because the road was impassable — to take his physical for the armed forces in 1956.

"I went to Korea and found gravel roads there you could travel on real good," Hoxit said.

The road runs past 38 permanent houses, eight part-time homes, tree farms, Forest Service lands, the Roy Taylor National Forest and the Pin Hook community. It stops within a stone's throw of the Blue Ridge Parkway.

A delegation of residents attended a Department of Transportation hearing Tuesday to again ask that the road be placed higher on the priority list for paving. It is now No. 29 on a list of 30 and DOT officials could give no estimate of when the road might be paved.

DOT board member James P. Myers said $90,000 was spent putting gravel on the road during the past fiscal year. That was 70 percent of the stabilization funds allocated for the county last year, he said.

DOT officials believe it would take the county's entire allotment for paving secondary roads for three years to pave the road. This year's allotment for paving was $946,850.

Residents argue that the state would save money by paving the road rather than spending so much money scraping and putting gravel on it. "Every time they scrape it, the gravel goes into the ditches," said Margaret Harris.

"The Canada township is the largest in Jackson County. We have one four-mile stretch of paved road in the entire township," Ms. Harris said.

"The road has no guard rails, no speed limit signs, no warning signs, no information signs. The shrubbery is grown out into the road. We have blind, sharp curves. All winter the road is mud, ice, snow and deep ruts that cause dragging and spinning," she said.

"When children are being deprived of an education and we see thousands of dollars being spent planting flowers and shrubbery on our four-lane highways, one wonders about children on Charley's Creek who can't get to school. Where are our priorities?" Ms. Harris asked DOT officials.

Fires Hit Five Western Counties

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Warm, dry and breezy weather conditions have fanned forest fires in five North Carolina counties, including a blaze near Hot Springs that had burned 100 acres and was still spreading, authorities said.

U.S. Forest Service spokesman Karen Hughes said about 100 acres were burned in the French Broad Ranger District about five miles northeast of Hot Springs Wednesday. The blaze started about 1 p.m. Wednesday, and five acres were already damaged when firefighters arrived on the scene.

More than 45 firefighters were working to put a line around the fire Wednesday night and firefighters from other districts were arriving to help fight the blaze, Ms. Hughes said.

Retardant was dropped on the fire by airtankers and a helicopter was scheduled to arrive this morning to begin dropping water on the "hard to reach places," said Junior Woody, a dispatcher with the U.S. Forest Service.

"Today was bad, but we expect tomorrow to be even worse," Woody said.

Our Carolina East Mall Store's 2nd Anniversary!

A lot has changed since Brody's opened its first Greenville store 32 years ago. Five stores later, we're serving an Eastern North Carolina our 1930's customers couldn't have dreamed of. And selling fashions that would have astonished them. In fact, there's only one thing they'd recognize about today's version of Brody's. The commitment to quality, value and service we opened within 1936. Because it's the one part of our business that never goes out of style. # Moore Town Faces Loss Of Railroad

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer
SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — In this Moore County town of 9,700, even the downtown streets yield to the railroad tracks.

"The right-of-way belongs to cars coming across the tracks — which slice the middle of Broad Street, Mayor Alex Bowness said.

"This is our Main Street," Bowness said. "But that 'Main Street' is being threatened by CSX Transportation Co., which owns and maintains the track leased by Amtrak through the eastern Carolinas. CSX has proposed rerouting the Silver Star from Raleigh and Columbia, S.C., to a route through Fayetteville and Charleston, S.C.

"The change also would halt passenger service in Southern Pines in the Sandhills of North Carolina.

"Bowness and other citizens are fighting the end of the railway service in Southern Pines, where the railroad existed before the town did.

"The Raleigh and Augusta Railway (which later became the Seaboard Airline Railway) inched from Raleigh to Moore County in the 1870s, according to the recently published book 'The 1st Hundred Years of Southern Pines, North Carolina.' Small freight stations were set up every 10 miles or so along the line.

"The town was founded in 1887 by John Patrick, who was hired by Gov. Zebulon Vance to attract settlers to the underpopulated areas of the state. Patrick laid out the town, using names from the New England area for the avenues that run perpendicular to the tracks and the names of famous North Carolinians for the streets that ran beside the railroad station.

"The history of Southern Pines is interwoven with the railroad," Bowness said. "It would be a shame to lose that charm and special quality our downtown has."

The train is especially important to Southern Pines because no interstate highway goes through the town and the nearest airport is more than an hour away in Raleigh.

Despite the lack of transportation, travel and tourism brought in $193 million to Moore County in 1987, according to an article in the local newspaper, The Pilot. Few of those tourists used the train to get to the area, Bowness said. But he said the area now has a 3 percent room tax that could be used to promote the use of Amtrak.

Bowness has gone to Washington with a proposal to use 25 percent of the budget of the Pinehurst Area Convention and Visitors Bureau for promotion and travel to the area by Amtrak.

Elected officials were "very impressed and thought we were making a very positive proposal," Bowness said. Amtrak President William Graham Claytor liked the proposal but said if CSX carries through with its plans, "there's not going to be a track here for him to utilize," he said.

Now the town is trying to decide what incentives it can offer CSX to withdraw the rerouting proposal, Bowness said.

Some of the tourists who drive or fly to the resort area to golf at nearby Pinehurst enjoy the trains, said Joan Scott, owner of The Country Bookshop on Broad Street across from the railroad.

"The tourists stand out and watch trains come by because they don't see them anymore," she said.

But one local historian says that's the problem — people only stand and watch the train go by. They aren't willing to spend the money or the time it takes to ride a train, says Garland Pierce, 79, who has lived in Southern Pines most of his life.

At one time, 12 passenger trains a day came through Southern Pines. Now one train makes two stops a day — once in the morning and once at night.

Pierce remembers traveling to Raleigh and back for 75 cents round-trip. Now the cost is $28 and it takes an hour and a half — about 15 minutes longer than a car-trip.

"Nobody takes the train anymore," Pierce said. "Twenty-eight dollars. Who wants to pay 28 dollars to go to Raleigh?"

But Pierce remembers the Southern Pines train station in its heyday, when Seaboard Airline ran an excursion train to Jacksonville, Fla., for $1.75 round-trip. Some 1,200 people boarded the train in Southern Pines, he said.

"Some had never been on a train before. Some were barefoot," he said.

And every Friday night, a train called the Carolina Golfer would leave Penn Station in New York. The Pullmans would park on the side of the track so the golfers could return to spend the night after playing golf all day in Pinehurst.

But that kind of interest and support for the train doesn't exist now, he said. "If people in this area want the service, they ought to buy tickets on the railroad."

One reason for the lack of support is it's cheaper to fly, he said. Another is that people just like driving their cars. "It just boils down to people just won't ride the train," he said. "We've got bumper-to-bumper traffic from New York to LA. It's one solid mess of cars."

Despite the efforts of Bowness and others, Pierce sees no reason to believe Amtrak will stay in Southern Pines.

"I think this is the end of Amtrak (in Southern Pines)," he said. "It's the end. I hate to say it, but I don't see any hope for it."

Officer Subdues Man With Knife

ASHEVILLE (AP) — An Asheville police officer climbed through the drive-in window of a McDonald's restaurant to subdue a man who threatened to kill his estranged wife with a butcher knife, authorities say.

The incident occurred about 7:45 a.m. Wednesday when a man chased his wife into the restaurant and began struggling with her behind the counter.

Terry Prater, an employee at McDonald's, was working when the incident occurred.

"It was very confusing at first," Prater said. "The man ordered everybody to leave. Some ran, some walked. He threatened to kill the manager if he didn't leave, too."

"Everybody acted pretty calm once they got outside," Prater said. "They didn't try to interfere, though, because he had that big butcher knife."

At least 10 customers were inside when the ruckus started, said Sgt. Herbert Watts of the Asheville Police Department. "I think some employees may have stayed inside, but they kept out of sight."

Officer Rick Ingle said he peeked inside the restaurant's drive-through window and saw a man pushing a woman to the floor behind the front counter in the restaurant. He said the man was holding a butcher knife.

Ingle drew his .357-caliber revolver and ordered the man to drop the knife.

"I told him to drop it or I would shoot," Ingle said. "He hesitated for about 10 seconds as though he was trying to make up his mind what he wanted to do. He then dropped his knife and I climbed through the drive-through window, cuffed him and took him to jail."

Authorities charged Gary Allen Elliott, 36, of Asheville with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and second-degree kidnapping.

Wednesday's incident marked the second time this month that Elliott has threatened to kill his wife with a butcher knife, Watts said.

Elliott held lawmen at bay for 1½ hours on March 3 at Sheila Elliott's home before trying to stab an officer with a knife, police said.

Elliott was held in jail on $1,800 secured bond for a week before court officials agreed to release him into his parents' custody on an unsecured bond.

Bob Fisher, Buncombe County district attorney, said his office will request Thursday that Elliott be held "on high bond or possibly without bond" until his trial.

Airline Prohibits Smoking

NEW YORK (AP) — Major U.S. airlines have no immediate plans to match Northwest Airlines' bold new move to ban smoking on most of its flights, and some industry analysts say the carriers are unlikely to do so.

Northwest, the nation's fifth-largest airline, announced Wednesday it will prohibit smoking on all its domestic flights except those to and from Hawaii and on some foreign routes.

The ban makes Minneapolis-based Northwest the first major U.S. airline to mandate a smoke-free environment in the air. It goes beyond federal regulations that will outlaw smoking on all domestic flights of two hours or less beginning April 23.

Northwest said its prohibition was a response to passenger and employee requests. A.B. "Sky" Magary, Northwest's executive vice president for marketing, told a news conference in New York that while the policy is not without risk, "we believe more nonsmokers will switch to Northwest than smokers will leave."

Wall Street seemed unimpressed by Northwest's smoke-free innovation. The airline's stock closed on the New York Stock Exchange at $45.75 a share, down 12½ cents from Tuesday.

Some analysts believe Northwest risks chasing away potential passengers, and other big airlines appear reluctant to follow the carrier's lead.

"We have no plans to follow that move," said Mary O'Neill, a spokeswoman for No. 2 American Airlines. Recent surveys conducted by American indicated a significant segment of people who want to smoke on planes, despite a growing demand for smoke-free areas, she said.

American and several other big airlines contacted Wednesday stressed that they planned to establish no-smoking policies in line with the new federal law.

State Will Not Join In Lawsuit

RALEIGH (AP) — Though North Carolina cities and businesses have been hit hard by a so-called liability insurance crisis, state officials say they have no plans to join a lawsuit charging that major insurance companies conspired to manipulate the liability insurance market.

The attorneys general of nine states filed suits Tuesday accusing four major U.S. insurance companies; members of Lloyd's of London; the Insurance Service Organization, an industry-backed group; and others with violating federal and state antitrust laws by conspiring to boycott or eliminate certain types of insurance and to make other types unaffordable in 1984 and 1985.

"We are in favor of the lawsuit, and we believe the case has merit," said John Simmons, a spokesman for state Attorney General Lacy Thornburg. "But we determined that North Carolina's participation, at least at this time, wasn't critical to the outcome."

Simmons said even though North Carolina is not a party in the suit, its consumers would benefit — if the suit succeeds.

State Insurance Commissioner Jim Long said he did not see a need for North Carolina to be involved in the suits because from what he had read in the newspaper accounts, the nine states seemed to be "chasing ghosts." Long said the states might have difficulty proving their case.

LETTER FROM HOME — Army Cpl. Rodney Brooks of North Conway, N.H., reads a heart-shaped letter from his fiancée Wednesday during a training exercise at Zambrano Artillery Range in Honduras. Brooks is a member of the 82nd Airborne Division, based at Fort Bragg, N.C., and is scheduled to be married this summer. (AP Laserphoto)

American Soldiers Practice Amid Thoughts Of Home

By CAM ROSSIE
Associated Press Writer
ZAMBRANO, Honduras (AP) — Amid the deafening boom of live mortar fire and the sizzling heat of a Honduran spring, American soldiers practiced for battle but thought about going home soon.

A Honduran artillery school in the sprawling pine-covered mountains of south-central Honduras, was the setting Wednesday for training exercises between American and Honduran troops.

About 120 soldiers worked together, loading and firing mortars and howitzers, radioing messages from the field, plotting diagrams of make-believe enemy positions and cheering when the artillery hit its mark a mile away.

Officers from both countries said the training was worthwhile.

"We're learning to adapt our ways to different areas," said Cpl. Charles Schneider, 22, of Washington, D.C. "I'm learning Spanish," said Sgt. Scott Craig, 25, of Charlotte, N.C.

Col. Rene Fonseca, commander of the Honduran company taking part in the exercises, said his soldiers do not often get a chance to use live artillery. Money is scarce in this country, so the exercises are U.S. funded.

"We don't have enough ammunition to last the whole year, so while they're here we take advantage of the opportunity to use live ammunition," he said.

All the U.S. soldiers training at Zambrano, 25 miles north of the capital of Tegucigalpa, are from the 82nd Airborne Division based at Fort Bragg, N.C.

President Reagan rushed 3,200 American soldiers to Honduras last week after Honduran President Jose Azcona Hoyo said Sandinista troops from neighboring Nicaragua had pursued U.S.-backed Contra rebels into Honduran territory.

The Reagan administration said the Americans were in Honduras as an emergency training exercise meant to show support for Azcona.

Late Wednesday, a Honduran military source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said about 300 Nicaraguan troops entered Honduran territory in the region where Sandinista soldiers had fought Contra rebels last week.

"Because of that, the state of alert continues for all combat units of the armed forces," said the source.

The location was given as the San Andres de Bocay region in Olancho province, but no other details were available.

Pentagon officials in Washington said earlier Wednesday that, unless the military situation in the region changed, the U.S. soldiers tentatively will return home early next week.

Cpl. Rodney Brooks, 22, who took time out from artillery practice to read letters from his fiancée in North Conway, N.H., said he hoped he would be home in time for his June 18 wedding.

He said he was "relieved, very relieved" when he learned that Sandinista forces had retreated last week and that truce talks between the Sandinistas and Contras had begun in Sapoa, Nicaragua.

"We came down here to do what we had to do in any way, shape or form," he said from behind a 105mm howitzer.

"But if we can keep from firing one shot and the problems still get resolved, then that's great," he said.

Opposition Says Military Must Act To Oust Noriega

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Although U.S. sanctions and a general strike have devastated Panama's economy, opposition leaders said it may take another mutiny in the military to drive Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega from power.

As the strike entered its fourth day today, a prominent opposition leader was expected to return to join in the fight to oust Noriega, the country's de facto leader and head of its 15,000-strong Defense Forces.

Almost all businesses were shut down across the country again Wednesday. Lacking food and money, thousands of people lined up at soup kitchens set up by churches throughout the country.

Also Wednesday, the government ordered a U.S. diplomat expelled, but the State Department said in Washington that economics counselor David Miller would not leave as demanded. The State Department said it would ignore the order because it considers Panama's current government illegitimate.

It gave the same reason for rejecting an earlier attempt to expel Terence Kneebone, head of the U.S. Information Service in Panama.

In other developments Wednesday, a dozen U.S. soldiers were detained by Panamanian police, and 100 people shouted anti-Noriega slogans after a funeral for a man killed at an earlier anti-government rally.

In Washington, an anti-Noriega Panamanian diplomat released a secret document showing Noriega is trying to arrange through a U.S. arms dealer for the immediate delivery of 5,000 semi-automatic pistols to his forces.

Coupled with the reported acquisition of large quantities of weapons from Cuba in recent days, the proposed purchase of the Belgian-made Browning 9mm pistols from a Wisconsin firm indicates Noriega may be intent on using force to remain in power, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

Panama is out of cash because Washington cut off the supply of U.S. dollars, the Panamanian national currency, in a bid to drive Noriega into exile. The general was indicted in the United States last month on federal cocaine trafficking charges.

Jose Mulino, an attorney active in the opposition National Civic Crusade, acknowledged that some action from within the Defense Forces may be necessary to end the monthlong crisis.

"There are growing pockets within the Defense Forces that are against Noriega," he said. "What we don't know is if they will act."

Israeli Attack Leaves 9 Dead

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes divebombed Palestinian guerrilla bases on the outskirts of this southern port city today for the second day, killing nine people and wounding five, police said.

A police spokesman said six Israeli fighter-bombers hit the bases six times in 55 minutes with 30 rockets and bombs, starting at 1 p.m.

The bases were manned by Abu Nidal's Fatah-Revolutionary Council and the Moscow-oriented Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, police said.

It was the third Israeli strike against Palestinian bases in Lebanon in a week and the fifth this year. Forty-seven people have been killed and 6 wounded in Israeli air strikes on guerrilla bases in Lebanon this year.

An Israeli army statement identified the targets as buildings used by the guerrillas to store weapons and equipment. The statement said Israeli pilots returned safely and reported accurate hits on the targets.

Smoke and dust engulfed the villages of Bekasta, Majdelyoun, Saliyeh and Abra after the raids, and ambulances raced to the scene.

North Gets Full Retirement Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Oliver North is beginning his retirement with more notoriety than most officers, but he is still entitled to the same benefits as any of the other more than 1.5 million men and women drawing military pensions.

North, the former national security aide who was indicted last week in the Iran-Contra affair, announced two days later he had decided to retire on May 1 from the Marine Corps.

North said he was taking the step because he would probably have to subpoena high-ranking government officials to mount his legal defense and didn't want to do so as a military officer.

By specifying a May 1 retirement — a request that has been approved — North will have completed the minimum 20 years of active duty required to retire with a pension.

Unless an officer has served 20 years, he is not eligible to receive any type of pension. Starting at 20 years of service, the size of the pension for officers of North's age is computed on a rising scale — going from 50 percent of basic pay up to 75 percent of basic pay after 30 years' service.

In North's case, the lieutenant colonel is drawing $3,693.60 in basic pay a month, or $44,323.20 a year. With exactly 20 years of service, he will be entitled to 50 percent of that as a pension payment.

North's former boss, Rear Adm. John Poindexter, retired in December with more than 29 years of service and is drawing a pension of more than $52,700 a year.

North will have to pay federal income tax on his pension payments. But unless he goes back to work for the federal government, he's free to collect his military pension without limit for the rest of his life.

Like his other former brothers in arms, North also will be eligible for a number of other benefits to help ease his entry into private life.

For example, if he wants to continue shopping at a military commissary or exchange, he'll have that right. The former Marine will also be able to relax at military officer clubs.

Stuck Bridge Closes Off Keys

ISLAMORADA, Fla. (AP) — A drawbridge that got stuck in the up position, snarling traffic for 20 miles and stranding hundreds of motorists, was fixed today after blocking auto travel to most of the Keys, police said.

"The bridge just opened," Florida Highway Patrol duty officer Terri Magee said at 8:30 a.m.

Rush-hour traffic on the Snake Creek Bridge is normally heavy, she said. That, coupled with the hundreds of motorists stranded when the bridge broke down Wednesday, means traffic jams will continue for a while, she said.

The 300-foot bridge is about 30 miles down the 135-mile chain of islands, and is the only road link between the southern Keys and those to the north and the mainland.

"I think every tourist in Monroe County has called us tonight," Highway Patrol duty officer Gregory Harris said as crews worked to fix the bridge. "Apparently the bridge was raising ... most likely for a boat. I guess it just went up too far or the wind caught it and the gears are stuck in the upright position."

Stranded motorists were sheltered for the night in hotels and in schools. Some drivers simply left their cars in the traffic jam and walked to nearby bars or restaurants.

Plantation Elementary School teacher Barbara Young said about 25 children spent the night at the building because a bus taking about 45 of them home was stuck on the south side of the bridge.

Some students stayed at the home of friends who live on the south side, and others were fetched home by boat, she said.

The Florida Keys are linked by the Overseas Highway. Harris said the last time he could remember a similar incident was in 1981.

Court Says Texaco Free To Operate

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — After four years of tortuous litigation, Texaco Inc. has won permission to emerge from the bankruptcy protection forced by its losing a multibillion-dollar legal battle with Pennzoil Co.

Texaco's troubles, however, are far from over. As the nation's third-largest oil company, it is seen as vulnerable to a takeover by investors who hope to reap big profits by selling off its assets.

Such raiders may have allies among legions of shareholders that analysts say were disenchanted with Texaco management even before it became entangled in the legal morass that prompted its April 12 bankruptcy filing.

Texaco management has vowed to resist any attempt to dismember the company but many industry analysts expect at least one full-scale takeover attempt.

U.S. Bankruptcy Court Judge Howard Schwartzberg on Wednesday affirmed Texaco's plan to emerge from bankruptcy protection, which hinges on a $3 billion cash settlement with Pennzoil.

Having agreed to pay Pennzoil that amount in cash to drop its $10.3 billion judgment, White Plains-based Texaco is gearing up for a reorganization involving sales of $3 billion in assets.

Texaco's troubles began in November 1985, when a Houston jury made the unprecedented $10.3 billion award to Pennzoil after deciding Texaco improperly had interfered with Pennzoil's acquisition of part of Getty Oil Co. so that Texaco itself could buy Getty.

Honda Agrees To Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 370 blacks and women who were rejected for jobs at Honda of America Manufacturing Inc. will be receiving checks from the company averaging $16,200 to settle a discrimination complaint.

Roger Lambert, a spokesman for the automaker, stressed that all the workers involved had been hired over the past few years and that the $6 million settlement had not been prompted by anyone suing the company for alleged discrimination.

Honda and the EEOC reached agreement in a settlement signed by the commission Tuesday and announced by both parties Wednesday.

"I think the very fact that it has been reached in good faith and announced indicates that both sides feel it is a fair, just and reasonable agreement," Lambert said.

The settlement "provides $6 million in monetary relief and seniority adjustments to the approximately 370 specifically identified black and female individuals who applied for jobs at Honda between 1983 and 1986," EEOC Chairman Clarence Thomas said in a statement.

In addition to the $6 million in back pay, Honda also was required to provide jobs for all those people by Feb. 29, Friedman said.

The settlement was among the larger monetary agreements reached in cases where no lawsuit was involved, but the $6 million is dwarfed by some other EEOC cases, commission spokeswoman Renee Devine said.

'Tomboy' As Term For Girls Is Obsolete

By ALLAN PARACHINI
L.A. Times-Washington Post

News Service
Internationally acclaimed operatic soprano Carol Neblett remembers the pride with which she called herself a tomboy when she was a girl.

Now 42, Neblett plays the role of mother to her teen-aged son and two young girls with the same tough resourcefulness she brought to bear when she elected to sing the title role in a scene in Jules Massenet's "Thais" nude.

But Neblett — a self-professed jock — acknowledges with a mix of ruefulness and thankfulness, that the term tomboy is far less relevant to today's girls than it was to their mothers.

In fact, sociologists and behavior experts who monitor such things suggest that the concept of the tomboy may have reached obsolescence.

"I'm going to put a tennis racquet in her hand," Neblett says of her 2½-year-old. "But you don't hear tomboy very much. People just say, 'It looks like you've got a jock for a kid.'"

Once strictly derisive — with overtones of homosexuality — the term has survived from before Shakespeare to the late 20th century. But with girls finding their way into previously all-boys' team sports and, eventually, into male-dominated professions, a variety of experts agree that tomboy has become a term largely irrelevant to the girls for whom it would most likely apply.

It is used, according to observers like Barrie Thorne, a sociology professor in University of Southern California's Program for the Study of Women and Men in Society, by contemporary mothers to describe daughters who may find the term meaningless since it describes behavior now broadly normal among their peers, and not at all deviant.

Many experts see the demise of the concept of tomboyism as something of a sign of victory in the fight to eliminate artificial gender role stereotypes. According to this reasoning, as young girls and teen-agers grow up in social systems in which pejorative gender identities are increasingly rare, the term loses more and more of its relevance.

But some observers like Thorne fret that the changing situation may also mean that females are only accepted to the extent that they conform more with the dominant male culture. So in this sense, the end of tomboyism, Thorne contends, may symbolize capitulation as much as equality.

"One still hears adults (using the term) talking about their childhoods," said Thorne, one of only a handful of academic researchers to have explored tomboyism. "But I think tomboy is moving to obsolescence among children. It is no longer seen as a form of defiance for a girl to be physically active."

"I think the main reason for the shift is that the term lady has been undermined. It is no longer held out as an ideal for little girls. And when you undermine lady, it leaves tomboy dangling."

Janet Hyde, a professor of psychology and director of the women's studies center at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, reported in a 1977 study that 78 percent of a group of undergraduate college women she interviewed said that they had been tomboys when they were girls. Another 51 percent of a sample of adult women said the same.

Hyde's original research, published in Psychology of Women Quarterly, was one of the first projects to call into question the societal notion that tomboy-like behavior was somehow aberrant.

Today, Hyde, 39, says that the situation has changed. "Back in the early 1970s," she said, "there were lots of tomboys because we were in a stage of traditional sex roles."

"But now, sex roles have liberalized so much. All the kids wear jeans and play on athletic teams. It (tomboy behavior) just isn't an issue. The term feels dated to me."

"I was an only child for nine years until my sister was born," recalled opera singer Neblett, who now lives in San Diego. "I did everything with Daddy. I never thought about being a tomboy. I just did what he did. If he went hunting and fishing, I went hunting and fishing."

"I worked under the car with him. I was big, muscular and tall but we also had music in common. He was a mixture of jock and musician."

As part of her research for a chapter on tomboys to be included in a forthcoming book, Thorne spent 11 months observing boys and girls as they interacted on an elementary school playground. Only twice, she said, did she hear children use the word "tomboy," though adults did so fairly commonly.

Many children, she found, were "clearly unfamiliar with the term" and several children said that they had never heard it. Within the next decade, Thorne predicted, the term tomboy "may simply disappear."

"It grew out of a system where there were more rigid stereotypes and a whole kind of imposition on girls of the idea of being a lady and being confined," she said. "It no longer fits the reality.... On the other hand, we should remember that social change is very complicated."

"Boys and girls by and large are still not friends with one another. By fourth and fifth grade, they have separate worlds. Girls are not as valued in our culture as boys. All of those painful facts are still with us. It troubles me when women come up and say, 'I was a tomboy. I've always done well with men. I'm accepted.' It's a way of saying 'separated.' It's male-identified."

"In feminist thought, one strand is to have gender not make a difference. As I watch (young girls and boys interact) as an outsider, I see girls do things that boys would do well to learn from. What's going to happen to the culture if the future is based only on girls getting access to what the boys are doing?"

To Richard Green, a University of California, Los Angeles, expert on the implications of tomboys and their approximate male counterparts — sissies — the questions raised by tomboys are intriguing. But more than anything, perhaps, he said, comparison of the two terms underscores the different ways similar behavior is viewed in males and females.

Through much of its contemporary history, said Green and co-researcher Katherine Williams, tomboyism has been perceived as a backhanded compliment. A girl's future sexual preference is in no way presumed by her being a tomboy and she is seen as the object of at least grudging admiration.

Sissy, on the other hand, implies something much more socially ominous in a boy who prefers girls as playmates, likes dolls and seeks out female role models. Such a boy is viewed far more pejoratively than the comparable girl, Green said.

In a paper published in the journal Archives of Sexual Behavior in 1982, Green and Williams found that tomboys play more often with trucks than with dolls and frequently with guns, too. When tomboys play house, they take the role of the father or brother most often and they gravitate to their fathers as favorite parents.

Tomboys, the 1982 study found, are slightly shorter and lighter weight than non-tomboys. Overwhelmingly, they join with boys in sports. A third of tomboys say such boys' games are their favorite activities.

Green and his co-workers defined a tomboy as a girl called that by her family, with an equal or greater number of male playmates as female, who rarely plays with dolls, who more often takes male roles than female in make-believe games, who plays in predominantly boys' sports, who prefers boys' clothes and who has verbally expressed a wish to be a boy.

The last specification, said Green, clearly is not part of the self-image of many women who considered themselves tomboys, and co-researcher Williams suggested it was not essential to the understanding of tomboy behavior.

"It's a sexist society and being masculine is preferred to being feminine," Green said, "and so people who move up the scale of social hierarchy (women acting like men) don't get teased. They're actually doing what society considers is good to be, which is masculine."

"Whereas boys who behave in a way society disapproves of — being a girl — are essentially in a socially downwardly mobile set of behaviors."

Too, he said, while being a sissy is accurately identified with subsequent homosexuality, there is probably a far less direct connection between tomboyism and being a lesbian. In fact, he said, tomboys probably most commonly develop heterosexually. This difference, he said, contributes significantly to the social unacceptability of sissies and the far different reception accorded tomboys.

Beauty And Gowns Come In All Sizes

DEAR ABBY: I have recently become engaged to a wonderful man. My fiancé and I have chosen my four sisters and his one sister to be bridesmaids in our wedding. My dearest friend will be my maid of honor. All have accepted.

I now find myself in a terribly

Dear Abby

awkward position. Two of my sisters are very overweight — one is extremely heavy.

How can I offer to help them lose some weight — or suggest that they do so — without offending them? They are my sisters, and I love them, fat or thin, but I'm having an impossible time trying to find dresses to fit them all. A friend suggested that I cut out and send them pictures of some of the gowns I have in mind for the wedding party, hoping their response will be: "I'd have to lose weight to wear something like this."

My wedding is five months in the future, but I need your help now. Any suggestions? — TWO LARGE PROBLEMS

DEAR PROBLEMS: You say, "They are my sisters, and I love them, fat or thin," yet you are trying to find ways to get them to lose weight without "offending" them. There is no inoffensive way. Your wedding is not a fashion show — it's a loving celebration including your nearest and dearest friends. Take them as they are. Beauty comes in all sizes. And so do dresses.

DEAR ABBY: Nineteen years ago I wrote to you for help. I was young, pregnant and unmarried. My boyfriend was also very young and said he couldn't marry me. I didn't know whether I should keep the baby or not. I felt confused, alone and frightened, so I wrote to you. That was in October of 1968. You advised me to tell my family and talk to my minister right away, so that's what I did.

My mother stood by me, but my father disowned me. I stayed home, and on March 24, 1969, I had a beautiful baby boy. I kept my son and went to work while my mother babysat. Five months later the baby's father married me.

I am writing to you now to tell you how grateful I am to you. I hate to think what could have happened to me if I had gone through with some of the ideas that went through my head at that time.

My son will be graduating from high school in a few months, and I am so proud of him. He is a fine boy, has a part-time job and I have never had any trouble with him.

So, thank you, Abby, from the bottom of my heart for the good advice you gave me nearly 20 years ago. God bless you.

All my love, G.L.M. IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR G.L.M.: I am publishing your letter on your son's birthday. May he have many, many more.

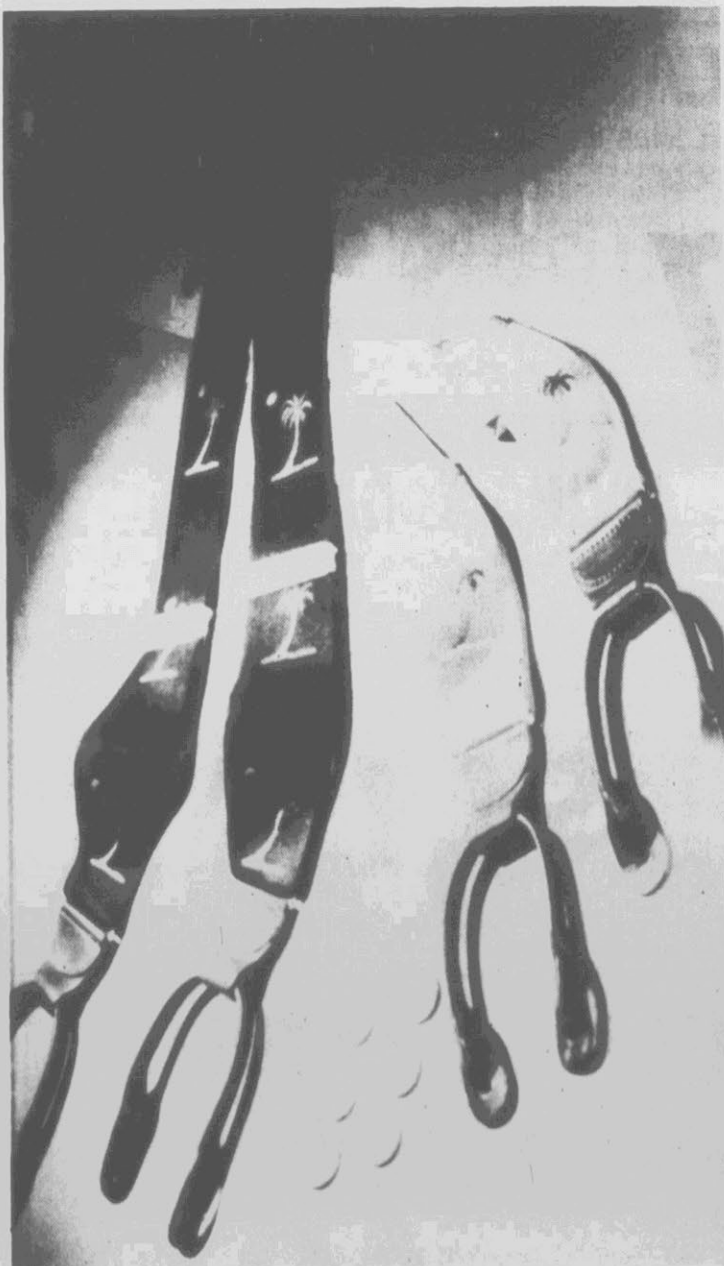

DEAR ABBY: My oldest son is preparing for his bar mitzvah, and I have started to make up a list of people to send invitations to.

Whenever I get an invitation from someone I haven't seen in many years — especially those who live out of town — I feel as though I am being solicited for a gift.

Therefore, I feel that I should not send a bar mitzvah invitation to anyone we have not seen or communicated with for years — or who lives too far away to attend (relatives included).

My brother thinks that sending invitations is a good way to keep in touch and letting them know that this milestone is occurring in our family. What is your opinion? — TO SEND OR NOT TO SEND

DEAR TO SEND: Your brother is entitled to his opinion, but I agree with you. Most people will regard an "invitation" that is not likely to be accepted as a bid for a gift.

HOLDUP SPECIALISTS — Braces. Suspenders. Straps. By whatever name, those bands over the shoulders that hold up your pants or skirt are holding up as fashion statements, too. "They have become so popular that most trousers are being manufactured today suspender button-ready. As with ties, suspender styles are more exotic," says Larry Levy, president of Field Brothers menswear. Indeed, suspenders are being "snapped up," he says, with sales rising 400 percent in the past year. (AP Laserphoto)

Fall-Winter Fashions Will Have Mood Change

By NINA HYDE
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

PARIS — Puff out your poufs. Fluff up your flowers. Rustle your ruffles. Wear them as much as you can these days, because designers are gearing up for a fresh look for fall that will make them obsolete.

In New York, Paris and Milan they are saying the bloom is off the rose.

"When you have only cake and sweet, you want something with salt," says Karl Lagerfeld, the innovative designer who creates collections under his own label in Paris and Munich as well as designs for Chanel and Fendi. "I'm sick of fantasy, of flowers and poufs and mixes of prints. They now look cheap. Fantasy has been killed by vulgarity."

It's more than just time for a change of mood, says Lagerfeld. "There is a need for beautifully made, simple-looking clothes. It's another atmosphere," he says: more serious, with more attention to dressmaking.

"After you have done something wild, you need a quiet time. Things will be more tailored with a beautiful cut. There will be tight sleeves and tiny shoulders. But it calls for really knowing how to make a dress. You cannot hide behind the excesses of ruffles and huge shoulders. These are far more difficult clothes to make."

Christian Lacroix, in whose garden the most influential flowers and flower prints blossomed, has switched gears for his first fall ready-to-wear collection.

"People who see my collection may be disappointed," said Lacroix before his show last week. "There are not a lot of accessories and ruffles. As a designer I must follow the times we live in. I think we are ready for another kind of fashion. I'm not afraid of change."

Lacroix, like Lagerfeld, explains the change as a reaction to an overdose of fantasy fashion. "I'm tired of the Spanish look. Of course, I love Spain; I grew up there. But (that look) is being done so cheaply now, I prefer to leave it behind. I don't want to be prisoner of one image. I want to keep the spirit and be faithful to my taste."

Lacroix adds, "A lot of designers are frustrated not to do their dream. I was frustrated the other way, always allowed to do my dream. A lot of people don't think I am able to do wearable clothes, that my clothes are only for fashion victims. I needed to show that I was able to do day wear."

Lacroix never did much in the way of daytime clothes for his couture collections. Other designers, such as Yves Saint Laurent and Lagerfeld for Chanel, make daytime clothes for the couture customer.

Lacroix doesn't feel the need for that. "But the ready-to-wear (off-the-rack) customer has a different life than the (made-to-order) customer. Her needs are much more conservative."

His collection has no theme; it's not Spanish or Italian, says Lacroix. "Rather it is built to a marketing plan. It has to be easy to make, easy to sell, easy to buy, easy to wear."

This conservative swing is just as strong in the United States as with European designers. "Yes, we are moving away from fantasy," says Bill Blass. "It is the natural reaction to the past few seasons of extreme fantasy," he says, which has created a desire "for some very realistic clothes again."

For Blass, the new mood is slim, tight and covered up, epitomized in a long, snug evening dress. "It's the return to sophisticated, normal clothes. Even the palette is more subdued," says Blass. "Conservatism is in the air, hopefully still looking fresh."

If other designers are not joining the swing to a more serious mood in clothes, away from the candy-sweet confections of this spring, some are expressing it by dropping their hems to a more ladylike knee-length or longer, reviving pantsuits and introducing many cuts of pants, particularly high-waisted, soft and draped.

Both Calvin Klein and Donna Karan, for example, will make a major point about longer hemlines and a wide variety of pants shapes when they show their collections in New York next month.

Still others are simply evolving new ways to do the styles they do best. Such as Emanuel Ungaro, who led the way to the draped and slim, short and sexy dress. "I'm looking for a new souffle, a new breath," says Ungaro. "It is like trying to find a new language." There will be chemises that are less fitted from this king of the dresses, dresses that go more with the flow of the body.

"But I'm not rejecting the draped dress," which is almost his trademark, he said.

For Yves Saint Laurent the classicism has always existed in the rigorous line; the fantasy was injected primarily in his use of color. In the couture collection earlier, there was a lavender suit with a jade-green blouse, an apple-green scarf and sapphire-blue belt. "That kind of fantasy will continue in the ready-to-wear collection," says the designer.

Valentino agrees. "A good collection is always full of fantasy," he said, but "all of us, we were a little too much concerned with sexy clothes, with too much glamor ... Things had gone too far." And so Valentino's collection will be toned down a bit with greater emphasis on the detail and trim of the clothes.

American designer Ralph Lauren shakes off this move to serious clothes as against what he thinks clothes should do. "Clothes are entertainment," he says, a bit nervous that he will be misunderstood.

"People buy clothes to make them feel good, to lighten their spirits," says Lauren. "I think there is nothing wrong with expressive clothes. If you have the money to be able to spend on something that is one of a kind, then why not do it within the range you can afford? Kids that don't have enough money express themselves very imaginatively by mixing old and new clothes from wherever they find them. If you can afford it, go to Paris and buy the latest excitement. But if you can't afford it, do it however you can yourself," he says. "Expressive clothes are part of our lives and are very important."

Some buyers, also, are nervous about the move toward more serious styles. "I think the more fantasy in fashion, the more fantasy in dressing, the more we stimulate business and excitement," says Ellin Saltzman, vice president and fashion director of Saks Fifth Avenue.

She's happy to see the demise of "silly clothes that make you say, 'Where the hell would you ever wear it?'" says Saltzman. But she's worried about an overdose of realism in fashions. "Realism in clothes may make them too functional and boring. I think we will see more realism for daytime wear, which should cause more fantasy for evening."

Marjorie Deane, chairman of The Tobe Report, which guides many top American stores, agrees. "Fashion had to take a very wide swing to get the story across and get the fun back into fashion. But now that everyone is aware of what women want — to enjoy getting dressed in the morning — designers are settling down to what is right. Not back to basics and not pruned of all the detailing. It would be terrible if clothes became totally no-nonsense again."

Women Ready For High Office

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

This started off as a great week. I had my teeth cleaned and there were no cavities. I found my favorite lipstick in an old handbag that I thought was lost. And the daffodil bulbs I planted upside down were pushing up through the soil.

Then I got a letter from an attorney in Ohio saying he was running me for President of the United States. His name is Thomas Cecil, Kettering, Ohio, and he is beating the crabgrass roots on my behalf to "put a little life in the White House."

Tom, believe me when I tell you I am flattered by the offer and the buttons, "BUCKEYES FOR BOMBECCK" and "BILL FOR FIRST MAN," but the truth is, I don't want to be President.

It has nothing to do with being a woman and swimming against the tide. Actually the polls say more than 50 percent of the population believe a woman could run the country. As a feminist once pointed out, "Why not a woman President! Ginger Rogers did everything Fred Astaire did ... she just did it backwards and in high heels."

The truth is I'm overqualified. I don't want to run around kissing babies and licking spoons. I've done that for 30 years. And I've spent a lifetime sitting around high school gymnasiums and finger-painting at the local day nurseries. Unless the national convention is held on a beach in the Caribbean, I don't want to run.

I don't want to spend my weekdays washing out blouses in a Holiday Inn and my Sundays facing Sam Donaldson and George Will on television. Sam looks like every credit manager I've ever known, and George reminds me of the kid in grade school that the teacher always put in charge of taking names while she was out of the room. And he always did.

I don't want another job where I have to work out of my home. I've done that and it's the pits ... people running in and out using your phone and asking where the extra tissue is.

I'm sick of balancing budgets ... trying to figure out if we go out to dinner or make a house payment. No thank you. As for entertaining every dignitary who comes down Pennsylvania Avenue, that gets stale. For too many years I've hosted and hoisted until I thought my face would break from smiling.

I'm bored to death with the responsibility of telling people what to do and when to do it, making new laws and enforcing them and serving as a mediator to promote peace. I don't want to work with Congress. Heaven knows, I've raised enough children.

I didn't mean to overreact, Tom, but the Presidency is a dead-end job for women. We're ready for something bigger ... something at a higher entry level.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 44.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. Too few percent of the loads offered have been confirmed. The market is steady and the live supply is adequate for a moderate demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,516,000, compared to 2,014,000 last Monday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn 1 cent lower at mostly 2.12-2.24 in East and mostly 2.33-2.37 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 3 cents lower at mostly 6.30-6.45 in East and mostly 6.23-6.35 in the Piedmont; new crop wheat 2.82-2.95; oats 1.48-2.10; new crop corn 1.85-2.30; new crop soybeans 6.22-6.46. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady and ranged from 101 to 102 1/2 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today as the dollar slumped in foreign exchange and U.S. interest rates headed higher.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial fell 31.17 to 2,036.47 in the first half hour of trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than 6 to 1 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Volume on the Big Board came to 32.18 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

With the dollar losing ground, prices of long-term government bonds dropped about $5 for each $1,000 in face value this morning, putting their yields in the 8.75 to 8.8 percent range.

At their best recent levels, yields on Treasury bonds were as low as 8.3 percent.

Analysts said pressure on the dollar prompted concern in markets around the world. Prices fell in both the London and Tokyo stock markets.

Among actively traded blue chips, General Electric dropped 1 1/2 to 41 1/2; International Business Machines 1 1/2 to 110 1/2; American Express 3/8 to 25 3/4, and American Telephone & Telegraph 3/8 to 27 3/4.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost 1.97 to 149.85. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.34 at 299.07.

On Wednesday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 1.49 to 2,067.64.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 3 to 2 in NYSE composite trading, with 917 up, 611 down and 457 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 167.37 million shares, against 142.0 million in the previous session.

House OKs $1 Trillion '89 Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers are crediting the budget summit accord between congressional leaders and the White House for the bipartisan ease with which the House sent a $1.1 trillion budget for fiscal 1989 to the Senate.

The spending plan, which alters some of the domestic priorities President Reagan had included in his own proposed package last month, was approved 319-102 on Wednesday by the Democratic-controlled House. In contrast to last year, when budget writers toiled several weeks longer amid staunch opposition by Republicans, GOP lawmakers this time voted 92-78 for the resolution.

"I think it would have been impossible without the summit," Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio, ranking Republican on the House Budget Committee, said afterward.

"Democrats and Republicans in the House are trying to work together," said Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Pa., chairman of the budget panel.

The spending plan would produce a deficit of $134 billion. It would thus avoid spending cuts that would be required under the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law should the deficit miss the 1989 deficit target of $136 billion by more than $10 billion.

To achieve that $134 billion figure, however, lawmakers agreed to use economic forecasts made by the administration.

Campbell Scores 3 Runs In Ninth Inning To Ease Past Pirates By 7-4 Score

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's Pirates, trying to piece together a pitching performance to prepare for this weekend's Colonial Athletic Association series with James Madison, ran out of gas in the ninth inning against Campbell Wednesday night.

Playing for the first time under the lights this year, the Pirates fell to the Camels, 7-4, when the fourth pitcher in their short-work pattern gave up three runs in the top of the ninth inning.

Campbell, which boosted its record to 15-6, banged out 10 hits, five of them for extra bases while the Pirates got six hits, four of them for extra bases.

For the most part, however, the pitchers for both teams did the job — along with outstanding fielding backing them up.

"Both teams played a five game until the ninth when they were able to get the big hits at the right time," ECU coach Gary Overton said.

"We had to piecemeal our pitching together to get everyone ready for this weekend. Each of them needed to throw a little and this was our way of getting it done."

The first of the Pirate pitchers, freshman Scott Stevens, did an outstanding job. He allowed only one hit, a slow roller on the infield grass that the hitter beat out. Meanwhile, he struck out seven batters in three full innings of work.

"Stevens did a fine job, an outstanding job in his three innings of work," Overton praised.

But after that, the level dropped for the Pirates. Both Tim Langdon and Jonathan Jenkins were greeted by home runs by the first batters they faced, Randy Hood and Corey Satterfield, respectively. The latter hit a 2-run homer and erased an ECU 3-1 lead.

Brian Berckman came on in the eighth and took the loss when he was tagged for four hits in the ninth. "Brian really didn't have his stuff," Overton said. Gary Smith came on to finally put the fire out but the damage had already been done.

Barry Wilson opened for the Camels and went the first seven innings but did not figure in the decision. He gave up five hits and four runs. Scott Evans, who came on to start the eighth, got the win, his third in four decisions, while Kenny Milton earned a save in the ninth.

Campbell started the scoring in the fourth inning when Hood cracked a leadoff homer to greet Langdon.

East Carolina struck back in the bottom of the inning, however, scoring three times. Jay McGraw opened with a walk and Calvin Brown banded the ball out of the park in dead center field for a 2-1 lead. With one out, Steve Godin walked and John Adams singled him to third. Whit Whitley tried to lay down a suicide squeeze bunt but missed and Godin was thrown out trying to get back to third.

Whitley then followed with a double to left, scoring Adams, who had moved to second on the rundown.

Campbell tied it up in the fifth with a pair of runs. Ricky Berrier walked and Jenkins came on to face Satterfield, who promptly homered to right, knotting it at 3-3.

The Camels then moved back ahead with a run in the sixth. Chris Mitta opened with a double to left and moved up on an infield out. He scored on a passed ball, the first of the year against a Pirate catcher.

Safe At Second

Campbell's Tim Trexler slides safely into second base after reaching on an error on East Carolina right fielder Steve Godin in the seventh inning. Trexler's pop fly was dropped as he raced all the way to second base. Shortstop Tommy Boswell (12) goes after the ball as he bounced away from him on the relay. Campbell defeated ECU, 7-4, in the game. (Reflector Photo by Thomas Forrest)

Davis Might Be Edge For Iowa

SEATTLE (AP) — Michigan has Gary Grant, North Carolina has J.R. Reid and Arizona has Sean Elliott, all members of the All-America team.

Iowa, the fourth team in the NCAA Tournament's West Regional, doesn't have an All-America. But the Hawkeyes do have Tom Davis, their 49-year-old coach, and that might be just the edge Iowa needs.

Iowa, 24-9, will face second-ranked Arizona, 33-2, on Friday in the second game of a Kingdom doubleheader, with the winner advancing to Sunday's region final. The other semifinal matches Michigan, 26-7, and North Carolina, 26-6.

An Iowa victory over Arizona, while not expected, wouldn't be considered that big an upset, in part because of Davis' record in the tournament. He took Boston College to the Midwest Region final in 1982 and had Iowa in the same position last season.

Iowa, a team without a superstar, helps itself by using a tenacious pressing defense. It made a big difference last Sunday as Iowa manhandled Nevada-Las Vegas 104-86 in a second-round game.

"The press just took us out of the game," Tarkanian said. "I think it has a demoralizing effect."

Davis said he learned the value of the press from John Wooden, whose UCLA teams won 10 NCAA titles in 12 seasons in the 1960's and 1970's.

"I don't know when I first met Coach Wooden, but I can tell you where I first saw him — that would be in the Dairyland Classic in Milwaukee (in 1963) when I was coaching at Portage High School in Wisconsin.

"Each coach put on a one-hour clinic, and then I watched UCLA play Boston College that night," Davis recalled. "I went away thoroughly impressed with pressure defense."

Last December, when Arizona came to Iowa City and beat the Hawkeyes 66-59, Davis went away impressed with Wildcat guards Steve Kerr and Craig McMillan. Neither was charged with a turnover despite facing the press all night.

"They have a very, very good set of guards and nothing seemed to bother them," Davis said.

Whether Iowa is able to disrupt the Arizona guard play remains to be seen, but the Hawkeyes should fare better than did Arizona's first two tournament opponents. The Wildcats beat Cornell 90-50 and Seton Hall 84-55.

Michigan and North Carolina also were impressive in reaching Seattle. The Tar Heels beat Loyola-Marymount, the nation's highest-scoring team, 123-97 and Michigan flattened Florida 108-85.

North Carolina advanced to the NCAA's final 16 for a record eighth consecutive year.

"I was shocked that we'd gone there eight times," North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said. "That kind of shows you something there, that it isn't the easiest thing in the world to do."

And getting to the Final 16 is no guarantee of making the Final Four, either. The Tar Heels haven't been there since 1982, when North Carolina won Smith's only national title.

Evans Makes Temple Go

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — His scoring average, steals and rebounds per game are down. His turnovers are up. Sometimes just the thought of Howard Evans causes Temple Coach John Chaney to start yelling.

But ask Chaney who pushes the right buttons for his top-ranked Owls, the winner of 31 games this season and the top seed in the NCAA Tournament's East Region, and he'll tell you it's his point guard — Howard Evans.

Temple, 31-1, goes for its 18th straight victory tonight when it meets upstart Richmond, 26-6, in the semifinals of the East Region at the Brendan Byrne Arena. Fifth-ranked Duke, 26-6, will meet another surprise of sorts, Rhode Island, 28-6, in the opener of the doubleheader at 7:40 p.m. EST.

It's a regional dominated by guards, a couple of teams and conferences looking to make fairy tales come true, and one old hand — Duke.

One of the more interesting stories concerns Evans, the 6-foot-1 senior from Philadelphia who made the switch from shooting guard to point guard this season, and in the process became Chaney's whipping boy.

"Howard Evans runs the show for us," Chaney said. "If things are not going properly, I blame him. If someone else doesn't play well, I blame him. He is a tough, tough young man. He never argues. He never answers back."

One might think Evans has not been yelled at a lot this season because Temple has rarely lost. Guess again. Just last week, Chaney let Evans have it after the Owls were lackluster in an 87-73 win over Lehigh in the opening round of the tournament.

"After the Lehigh game we had a two-hour practice," said Evans, who is averaging 11.1 points per game. "He was on me for an hour and 15 minutes. I thought I had heard it all until then."

What Evans does well at times on the court is move the ball around. "Without question, Howard is the key to our team because he gets everyone involved," Temple forward Mike Vreeswyk said.

And that's what Temple, champion of the Atlantic 10 Conference, will have to do against Richmond, a team just as comfortable as the Owls in playing a half-court offense and equally playing defense.

The Spiders of the Colonial Athletic Association are also peaking. They beat defending national champion Indiana and Georgia Tech last weekend in Hartford to get to the Sweet 16.

"Our goal at the beginning of the season was to get to the NAAs," Richmond Coach Dick Tarrant said. "Once we got that, we decided to make Hartford our Final Four. After Hartford, we had a team meeting, reassessed our goals and said, 'Let's beat the No. 1 team in the country.' Our goals will end tomorrow at midnight if we can beat the No. 1 team."

To beat Temple, Richmond must get big games from forward Peter Woolfolk (18.5 points per game) and guard Rodney Rice (14.1).

Temple's leading scorer is freshman guard Mark Macon (20.7). The opener of the doubleheader could also be decided by the play of the guards, with Duke, the champions of the Atlantic Coast Conference, trying to shut down Rhode Island's senior duo of Tom Garrick and Carlton Owens, who both average more than 20 points per game.

The big man in the defensive assignment for Duke will be 6-foot-6 forward Billy King.

"He's a great defensive player," said Owens, who runs the Rams' run-and-gun offense. "It doesn't concern me who he plays. We're still going to play our game."

Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski is hoping Duke does the same thing against Rhode Island of the Atlantic 10, meaning the Blue Devils play good defense and play as a unit.

"We can't let Owens or Garrick have career games, or let Green take off," said Krzyzewski, whose team beat Boston University and Southern Methodist in the opening rounds of the tournament. "We have to try not to do anything different. We have to play our style."

Rhode Island comes into the game on an emotional high after victories over Missouri and Syracuse, the latter seeded third in the East. Duke is the second seed behind Temple. Rhode Island is the No. 11 seed, Richmond No. 13.

"The pressure is on Duke," Rhode Island Coach Tom Penders said. "If they lose to us, it's tough."

Rose Tops Warriors, 9-2

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

Rose coach Ronald Vincent said he was pretty sure his baseball team would play better against Eastern Wayne than it did against New Bern in a narrow 3-2 win Tuesday. And the Rampants didn't disappoint their coach, handing the visiting Warriors a 9-2 loss Wednesday afternoon.

"The guys will play better a lot of times when they have two games in a row," Vincent said. "I think they woke up."

Rose responded to every challenge the Warriors presented, coming up with the runs it needed while giving up only two runs off of four hits to Eastern Wayne.

After the Warriors tied it at 2-2, Rose responded with a three-run third to regain control of the game.

Tim Moore started off the inning with a reach off an error on the first baseman. Axel Smith then blasted a home run over the left field fence to make it 4-2.

And the homer by Smith changed the complexion of the game, according to Eastern Wayne coach Gerald Whisenhunt.

"(Smith) hit that home run," he said. "If he had missed that would have been strike three. It might have been a different. It doesn't take but a couple of plays in a ballgame."

Tom Moyer followed that up with a double and was replaced by courtesy runner Chris Fuqua, who later scored on another error on the first baseman to give Rose a 5-2 lead.

"We had a few plays that hurt us," said Whisenhunt. "It seemed like every time we would walk someone or someone would get on an error, they would score (off of it)."

Eastern Wayne went out quickly in the fourth as Rose pulled off a double play. With one out, Allen Cox, who opened the inning with a base on balls, was tagged out by Heath Clark who then threw out Gary Cox at first.

Eastern Wayne fared little better in the fifth as Leslie Jackson opened with a single but was forced out on a fielder's choice. That was as far as the Warriors would advance a man that inning.

Rose came back to break the game open in the bottom of the fifth as Dave Daniels opened with a double and moved to third when Moyer reached on a passed ball. Jamie Brewington then singled home Daniels and Fuqua, who was running for Moyer, to make it 7-2. Brewington later scored on Clark's single to make it 8-2.

Rose then added a solo homer by Wes Johnson in the sixth to complete the scoring.

"We did get some key hits," Vincent said. "Brewington really got a key hit to drive in those two runs. And prior to that, Axel hit that other home run. It took a lot of pressure off our batters. We put the ball in play better (today)."

Rose rapped out 10 hits on the day, nine off starter Todd Mewborn and one off of reliever Andre Altice. Daniels went 2-3 with a double to lead the Rampants while Clark also had two hits and two RBI.

Moyer got the win for Rose as he struck out five, walked one while giving up five hits. And that was after pitching the final out in Tuesday's win over New Bern.

"Tom really didn't have his good stuff, but he kept it in the strike zone and got the ground balls," Vincent said. "It's tough for Tom to pitch two days in a row."

"(When) Tom is throwing strikes, everybody out there is on their toes. Everybody plays better then."

Rose opened the scoring in the first when Smith drew a walk. Fuqua came in to run and stole second before coming home after a single by Daniels.

The Rampants then made it 2-0 when Jay Surles doubled with two outs in the second and then scored on a single by Clark.

Rose moves to 4-0 while Eastern Wayne drops to 0-4. Included in those losses is a 18-0 loss to the Rampants March 17.

Kenny James led Eastern Wayne with a 2-3 performance, including a two-run homer in the third inning that provided the Warriors with both their runs.

Rose returns to action Friday against Greene Central, the defending 2-A state champions, in Snow Hill at 4 p.m.

Karl Resigns; Warriors Get Win

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

With little left to do in the season aside from testing their young players, the Golden State Warriors received a dividend by doing just that.

Golden State Coach George Karl resigned Wednesday, a few hours before the Warriors defeated Sacramento 126-118 with acting head coach Ed Gregory running the team.

General Manager Don Nelson, who has been offered the head coaching job, and Gregory decided that young players such as reserves Steve Harris and Dave Feitl would get considerable playing time. Harris scored 21 points and Feitl a career-high 20 to go with Chris Mullin's 29 for the Warriors, who snapped a five-game losing streak.

"Our objective is to play the young kids, decide who can play and who can't," Gregory said. "The veterans won't be getting so many minutes. We know what they can do."

Gregory said being the head coach felt strange before and after the game, but not during it.

"At the time we're playing, it goes out of your mind," he said of his appointment. "Running the game is the easy part. It feels kind of strange now."

In other NBA games, it was Boston 104, Washington 89; Cleveland 105, New Jersey 96; Chicago 118, Philadelphia 102; Denver 118, Los Angeles Clippers 108, and Seattle 118, Portland 108.

The Warriors are only 17-48 this season with the victory, but Mullin did not applaud Karl's resignation.

"I think George Karl helped us a lot," Mullin said. "He made a decision, though, and I wish him success in the future."

"We've played hard all year, and that's not going to change."

Sacramento's Jerry Reynolds, who replaced Bill Russell as coach of the Kings, 19-47, on March 7, said the contribution of the Golden State bench was the key to the victory.

"Feitl and Harris are the kind of players we should step head up, and we didn't do it," Reynolds said. "We shouldn't have to double-team a Harris or Feitl."

Harris was 9-for-15 from the floor, Feitl 5-for-7, and the Warriors shot 59 percent as a team.

"We've obviously got defensive problems. We've had them all year," Reynolds said.

Derek Smith scored a season-high 30 points and Otis Thorpe added 22 for the Kings, who trailed 102-96 with five minutes remaining before jumpers by Harris and Mullin started an 8-0 run for Golden State.

Mullin scored 13 points in the opening quarter, with seven coming in a 17-3 spurt that gave the Warriors the lead to stay at 27-13. The Kings, losers of six straight road games, trailed by at least four points the rest of the way.

Sonics 118, Trail Blazers 108
Dale Ellis scored 35 points and Xavier McDaniel added 31 as Seattle handed Portland its first loss by more than a point since Feb. 19.

Ellis hit seven of 10 shots in the second half and McDaniel seven of nine for the SuperSonics as the Trail Blazers suffered only their second loss in 13 games.

Clyde Drexler led Portland with 26 points, while Jerome Kersey added 25 and Kevin Duckworth 24 for Portland.

At the beginning of the fourth quarter, with Seattle leading 88-84, Derrick McKey scored the Sonics' first eight points, sparking a 13-6 run that gave them a 101-90 lead with 7:22 left in the game.

Bulls 118, 76ers 102
Chicago snapped a six-game road losing streak as Michael Jordan scored 33 of his 49 points in the second half and Sam Vincent had 22 points and 12 assists against Philadelphia.

Philadelphia trailed only 108-102 on a layup by Charles Barkley with 3:01 remaining, but the 76ers didn't score again. A three-point play by Charles Oakley, who had 19 rebounds, started a 10-0 run in the last 2:39.

Celtics 104, Bullets 89
Larry Bird scored 14 of his 37 points in the third quarter, and his basket with 1:38 left in the period gave Boston the lead for good against Washington.

Bird helped the Celtics overcome a 51-48 Bullets' lead at the half and gave Boston a 74-73 advantage after three quarters. Bird, who also grabbed 14 rebounds, hit two 3-pointers in the fourth quarter as Boston outscored the Bullets 24-11 to take a 98-84 lead with 1:34 to play.

Cavaliers 105, Nets 96
Cleveland snapped a five-game losing streak, rallying from a 17-point deficit by outscoring New Jersey 34-15 in the fourth quarter.

Dell Curry came off the bench to score 10 of his 22 points during a 21-2 fourth-quarter rally by the Cavaliers that turned an 88-75 deficit into a 96-90 lead.

Curry hit three consecutive baskets to ignite the Cleveland charge, and his jump shot put the Cavaliers ahead 89-88 with 4:56 left. After a basket by Otis Birdsong gave the Nets their last lead, 90-89, Craig Ehlo made a 3-point shot to put Cleveland in front for good with 4:03 remaining.

Jaguars Bow To Pam Pack

FARMVILLE — Washington High School took the lead in the third inning and held on for a 5-2 baseball win over Farmville Central Wednesday afternoon.

The Pam Pack struck for the lead in the third inning, scoring a single run. Mike Landon singled and scored on a double by E.J. Paszt.

Washington added another in the fourth, then pushed over what proved to be the difference in the fifth. Donnell Albritton reached on an error and stole second. He came around to score on Gary Hodges' single.

Farmville tried to get back in it in the bottom of the fifth, scoring a run. Eddie Little singled and both Alexander Daniels and George Burnette walked, loading the bases. Mike Vandiford grounded out, scoring Little and trimming it to 2-1.

Washington added two in the sixth, however, for a 5-1 lead and Farmville's last gasp in the seventh produced only one more run.

Jeremiah Jackson led Washington with three hits while Albritton had two. No one had more than one hit for the Jaguars.

Farmville falls to 3-1 on the year and will play West Craven at home on Monday. Washington is now 3-2 and travels to Bertie on Friday.

Pirates...

The Pirates got back even in the bottom of the seventh on the first homer of the year for Whitley, to left center.

The Pirates followed that up with a threat later in the inning on a double by David Ritchie, and they also threatened in the eighth and ninth, but got no more runs.

Campbell, which left a man at second in the eighth, pushed over three in the ninth to pull out the win. Jimmy Creech led off with a single to center and Tim Trexler doubled to left center. Hood followed with a single to center, driving in both runners. Hood stole up and took third on an infield out, scoring when Mitta reached on an error.

Hood, Charlie Lietizia and Trexler each had two hits to pace the Camel attack. Whitley had a pair for East Carolina, which slips to 14-7 with the loss.

East Carolina continues its home stand tonight, hosting Cleveland State in an 8 p.m. game. They return to CAA play on Saturday and Sunday, facings James Madison. The Saturday series is a 1 p.m. doubleheader with a 1 p.m. single game Sunday.

Rose Girls Run Past Farmville

Rose High School's girls' track team outdistanced Farmville Central, despite some top performances by the Lady Jaguars, 92-40, Wednesday.

"Today was the results of quality against quantity," Rose coach Dennis Gibson said. "Farmville had the quality athletes and will do very well in their division. But we used depth to outdistance them all afternoon and will have to depend on that factor until we can get some more experience."

events while Farmville won five. The teams split the four relays, each winning two.

Farmville had two double winners. Cheryl Hopkins won the long and triple jumps while Beverly Vines won the 100 and 200-meter dashes. Rose's Shawn Sutton won both the shot and the discus.

Rose returns to action on Monday, hosting Beddingfield. Farmville entertains the other Eastern Plains Conference members on Wednesday.

House, Rogerson Capture Area Cage Scoring Race

Robin House held onto and won the area basketball scoring championship for boys for the 1987-88 season, but Janet Rogerson bounced back in the final standings to win the girls' scoring title.

House, who played for Greenville Christian Academy, finished the 1987-88 season with an outstanding 28.89 scoring average for 27 games, leading his team to second place in the North Carolina Christian Activities Association's championship tournament.

No one else in the area broke the 20-point barrier.

The closest to it was Williamston's Guy Spruill, who took second place in the race with a 19.39 average. Ayden-Grifton's Ronnell Peterson finished third at 18.39. The two players switched positions from the previous rankings, published just prior to the start of the tournament season.

Curtis Myers of Chocowinity moved up from fourth to fifth in the final standings with an 18.04 mark, while Kirk Welch of Trinity Christian took fifth, moving up from sixth.

Rogerson, who played for Bear Grass, finished the year with an 18.76 average, moving up from second to third in the final averages. Druscilla Crawford of Chocowinity moved up from third to second with a 17.48 mark.

Keisha Pilgreen of North Pitt, which led most of the season, dropped to third with a 17.38 mark, while cousin and teammate Gwen Pilgreen vaulted from seventh to fourth at 15.85. Roanoke's Joyce Outlaw, up one spot, finished fifth with a 15.63 average.

Greenville Christian ended the season still in first place in team offense among the boys. The Knights averaged 72.26 points a game while Washington ended up second at 70.96. Ayden-Grifton moved from fourth to third in the final standings with a 68.54 average.

In defense, Trinity held to the lead at 46.77 points allowed per game. North Pitt moved from third to second at 51.72 while Jamesville dropped a notch to 52.61.

Greenville Christian's girls also won the offensive battle, holding on with a 62.58 mark. Chocowinity clung to second at 57.11 while North Pitt ended up third at 55.81.

On defense, Trinity led the way, allowing 30.58 points a game. Washington took second at 32.72 while Rose was third, giving up 37.46 points a game.

Sooner Coach Says Field Loaded

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Billy Tubbs has an idea what might happen to the team that survives the NCAA Southeast Region.

"I think we have an outstanding field here," the Oklahoma coach said Wednesday. "I wouldn't be surprised to see the national champion come out of here."

It may be wishful thinking for Tubbs.

His high-scoring Sooners, who have topped the 100-point mark 19 times this season, are seeded No. 1 in the region and favored to advance to the Final Four in Kansas City next week.

Tubbs does, however, coach the only school remaining in the region that has never captured the NCAA championship.

Oklahoma, ranked fourth nationally, will have to get by two of them to advance, starting with two-time champion Louisville tonight at 10:30 EST in the nightcap of the semifinals.

The opener, set for an 8:10 tipoff, pairs No. 6 Kentucky, a five-time winner, against the last of six Big East Conference teams still alive, Villanova, which won the Southeast Region at Birmingham in 1985 and went on to capture the national title on Kentucky's home floor.

The oddsmakers favor Oklahoma over Louisville, which has a rich recent history in the tournament.

Louisville won the national crown in 1980 and 1986 and lost in the semifinals in 1982 and 1983. The Cards didn't make the NCAA field last year and thus enter tonight's contest with an eight-game winning streak in the tournament.

That history doesn't phase Tubbs. "Yesterday and next year are immaterial," Tubbs said. "Right now is what's important. I'm not interested in advantages and excuses. I'm interested in finding ways to pull it out."

Oklahoma, 32-3, will be meeting a team that likes to play the same style — pressing on defense and running on offense.

"We don't really get pre sed that often," Sooner guard Ricky Grace said. "It's going to be different being pressed. I like the fact that they're a fast-paced team."

Coach Denny Crum acknowledges his Cardinals, 24-10, are the underdog, but says he likes that.

"We think we can beat anyone," Crum said. "We've got two guys that have won a national championship and they don't have that."

Pervis Ellison was the Most Valuable Player in the Final Four when he led the Cards to the title as a freshman. Herbert Crook also started on that team.

Ellison leads the Cards with a 17.5 scoring average, followed by Crook at 16.1.

They will be facing an outstanding inside duo for the Sooners — Stacey King averaged 22.2 points a game and Harvey Grant 21. All five Oklahoma starters average in double figures.

"I think it's going to come down to the one with the least turnovers," Crook said.

Victories by the two teams from the Bluegrass State could set up a Louisville-Kentucky battle for a Final Four berth, but Crum isn't talking about that.

"Kentucky is only 70 miles away, but they're the farthest thing on my mind."

Sutton, too, is more concerned with the immediate problem.

Kentucky, 27-5, carries a nine-game winning streak into the battle with Villanova, 23-12. Both teams are nicknamed Wildcats.

The Kentucky version is led by guards Rex Chapman, 18.7 points per game, and Ed Davender, 16 per game. Villanova's balanced attack is led by Doug West at 15.6 per game.

"I don't think that our kids are in awe," Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino said. "The team that's going to win is the team that believes in itself ... and gets out and plays at a little higher level."

Earlier Purdue Victory Means Little At This Stage

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Purdue Coach Gene Keady says a rout earlier this season of Kansas State shouldn't mean much when his third-ranked Boilermakers meet the Wildcats in the NCAA Midwest Regional semifinals.

Vanderbilt will play Kansas, 23-11, in the other Midwest regional semifinal game Friday at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Purdue is considered a heavy favorite to win the regional. The Boilermakers, 29-3, trounced 20th-ranked Kansas State 101-72 in December.

"I don't think playing them earlier will have an effect at all," Keady said. "Kansas State certainly is completely different. They're very talented in all areas."

Kansas State, 22-8, is led by Mitch Richmond, who averaged 22.8 points per game this season. Purdue has a balanced attack that features Troy Lewis, Todd Mitchell and Everett Stephens.

If the Boilermakers beat Kansas State, their biggest obstacle to reaching the Final Four in Kansas City, Mo., could be Purdue of Vanderbilt.

Will Perdue, the 7-foot Southeastern Conference Player of the Year, is the main reason the Commodores have a 20-11 record this season after finishing below .500 just two years ago. This season, Perdue averaged 18.4 points and 10.2 rebounds a game.

Vanderbilt needed a last-second 3-point basket from Barry Goheen to force overtime against Pittsburgh. The Commodores went on to beat the Big East regular season champs 80-74 to advance to the regional finals.

Meanwhile, Kansas is a one-Manning gang. All-American forward Danny Manning almost singlehandedly lifted the Jayhawks past Murray State and also was overpowering against Xavier, Ohio in the first round. He has 49 points in two games.

Some experts have said Purdue might be too slow and small to win it all, but Keady dismissed such factors.

"Size is the most overrated theory in basketball," he said. "I'm more interested in the size of the heart — for two reasons. One, how hard you play. Two, how long you play."

The Boilermakers have exited the tournament in either the first or second round the last five years, but Lewis said the team is in good shape to win the national championship this year. He said Purdue is well-rested because unlike last year, winning the Big Ten conference title was not a high priority.

"We are a lot more refreshed than last year," he said. "Last year, we put a lot of pressure on ourselves to win the Big Ten title and it may have drained us."

Unlikely Pair In Title Games

By DAVID DROSCHEK Associated Press Writer

The state basketball championships this weekend feature an unlikely pair of teams that almost nobody would have picked to be playing for a state title just a few seasons ago.

Three years ago, the East Henderson women were putting the finishing touches on a 62-game losing streak. Saturday they battle defending 3-A champion Trinity in Chapel Hill for the state title.

And the Richmond County 4-A men, who had a 5-19 season last year, are just one game away from a state championship. They knocked off powerful Wilson Fike and Goldsboro in the playoffs on the way to a 19-9 record and a shot at the title.

Who would have ever thought?

"We really don't think about it (the losing streak) anymore," said East Henderson Coach David Hawkins, who came to the school four seasons ago when the losing streak was at 56. "The key thing is that we did play out of that adversity. That's one of our team mottoes. We've had some pretty tough adversity."

Hawkins, 38, came to the school from North Buncombe and compiled marks of 4-19, 10-13 and 14-7 before this season's 25-4 record.

"I think one of the big keys was that I came from a program that didn't quit," Hawkins said, referring to North Buncombe. "It was tradition there to have good teams. One thing I wanted to add to this program was intensity."

During the 1984-85 season the losing streak ended with a 39-30 slowdown victory over conference champion Canton Pisgah.

"The first year (of coaching at East Henderson) was the most memorable," said Hawkins, who is trying to bring the 28-year-old school its first team championship. "The place went crazy (when we won). People were throwing paper everywhere. It took 30 minutes to get the boys' game started."

After several years of basketball camps and hard work, Hawkins said he and his team are where they want to be.

"Right now I feel confident ... and so do the players," he said about Saturday's title matchup with Trinity. "But I know we're playing probably the best 3-A team in the state."

East Henderson, a team that has won 10 games by 20 points or more, is led by Kim Stephens, who averages 23.0 points and 8.0 rebounds.

Meanwhile, Richmond County's Tom Baucom coached in the junior high ranks for more than 15 seasons before taking over the Raiders, who returned only four reserves off a dismal 5-19 team.

Baucom said he dreamed of respectability, not a state title, at the beginning of the season.

"No way, in reality we didn't think (we could get this far)," said the first-year coach. "At the beginning of the season our priority was trying to be the conference winner. That was the beginning of it all."

"You really have to work hard to come up with something to keep yourself on top," Baucom said. "The kids fought real hard this year and it paid off."

So did Baucom's hard work at the lower ranks as he brought many of his junior high players up to the varsity.

Baucom said he and his players don't mind being called the Cinderella of the state tournament "because that's what we are."

"That's our team motto, 'You've Got To Believe,'" he said.

Players Championship Strives For Recognition

POINTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The debate about its stature in the game continued as the enriched and re-named Players Championship got under way.

"We want to make the tournament as good as we can make it," said PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman, who devised the event that serves as the annual championship of golf's touring players.

But is it a major championship? Does it enjoy the stature held by the game's recognized Big Four: the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA?

"We don't have any control over how it's accepted, or what it's called," Beman said Wednesday, then added:

"I hope it's called the best in the world."

But most of the world's premier performers stopped somewhere short of that point.

"No, it doesn't have the traditions. It doesn't have the atmosphere," Tom Watson said. "It has to grow roots. It has a very shallow root structure right now."

And he had another area of complaint.

"Our tour is a very commercial thing now. This tournament is an appendage of our tour; it is our championship. And it is very commercial. 'You can't buy a major,' he said.

Earlier, defending champion Sandy Lyle of Scotland said: "It is a major." And Payne Stewart said it is not. "There is no fifth major and I hope there never will be," Stewart said.

Ben Crenshaw took a more thoughtful approach to it.

"Why rush it?" he asked.

"There are many, many complex things that go into making a major. I think it may be just a shade below the others.

"But it's a very subjective thing. 'I think the tournament is strong enough to stand on its own.

"Why can't we be satisfied in saying it's a real, real important championship?"

"It may be too soon to judge just what its stature may be," Crenshaw said of the event that previously was titled the Tournament Players Championship.

But there is no question that the 144-man field represents the strongest field that will be assembled in pro golf this year. And the $1.25-million purse is among the top five in the game.

Lyle, a winner in Phoenix earlier this year and a consistent challenger, leads a foreign field that includes Seve Ballesteros of Spain, Greg Norman of Australia, Bernhard Langer of West Germany, British Open champ Nick Faldo of England and Ian Woosnam of Wales, winner of $1.8 million in world-wide earnings last year.

In addition to Watson and Crenshaw, the American contingent includes U.S. Open winner Scott Simpson, Masters champ Larry Mize and PGA title-holder Larry Nelson.

Jack Nicklaus made a last-minute decision to make this his final start before the Masters.

Hussey Bows Out As JMU Candidate

DAVIDSON (AP) — Davidson basketball coach Bobby Hussey said Wednesday that he is no longer a candidate for the head coaching job at James Madison University.

Hussey was interviewed last Thursday and Friday.

"I'm flattered to have been considered," Hussey said. "But at this time I've decided to withdraw. My No. 1 priority is to complete our recruiting and to continue the development of the best program possible at Davidson."

In his seventh season with the Wildcats, Hussey's team posted a 15-13 record. Hussey's career record in 17 seasons at Davidson and Belmont Abbey is 290-214.

The James Madison job opened in late January when John Thurston resigned after being told his three-year contract would not be renewed. Tom McCorry, one of Thurston's assistants was named interim coach. Former Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell has been interviewed by school officials. Other candidates include Missouri assistant Rich Daly, George Tech assistant Perry Clark, Bridgewater coach Bill Leatherman and Memphis State assistant Dave Loos.

South Carolina Ready To Interview

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Acting Athletic Director Johnny Gregory says he will interview at least two candidates this week for the athletic director's job at South Carolina.

Gregory declined Tuesday to identify the candidates and said the discussions would not be held on the South Carolina campus.

"I'm going to visit with a couple of folks this week," Gregory said. "That's all I have scheduled right now."

Gregory said he has cut the list of 75 to 100 candidates to at least five and that he will interview all the finalists before submitting recommendations to university President James B. Holderman within the next two to three weeks.

Holderman will interview the finalists before naming a replacement for Bob Marcum, who was fired by Holderman on March 1 after a task force reported the school had not conducted random drug tests on its athletes since the spring of 1986.

East Carolina football coach Art Baker, who is in the final year of a four-year contract, is reported to be one of the top candidates for the job. Baker is a former head coach at Furman and The Citadel.

Others who have said they are interested in the job include Georgia assistant Athletic Director John Shafer and Dick Bestwick, an athletic administrator at Georgia. Bestwick is a former assistant football coach at South Carolina and later was head coach at Virginia.

Rose Tops Eastern Wayne In Softball

Rose High School's girls' softball team rolled up a 7-2 victory over Eastern Wayne Wednesday afternoon.

The Rampettes spotted Eastern a 2-0 lead in the top of the first, then held the Lady Warriors scoreless the rest of the way as Amy Barr tossed a two-hitter.

Rose came back with one run in the bottom of the inning. With two outs, Cammie Smith reached on an error and Joann Brown got a hit. Andrea Rogers followed with another single, scoring Smith.

Then, in the second, Rose pushed over four for a 5-2 lead. Toronda Gilbert, Tiki Hair and Janna Potter all singled, loading the bases. Kristen Shae sacrificed in Gilbert and Gina Parrott singled to score Hair. Potter scored on a hit by Smith and Brown brought in Parrott with another hit.

Rose added one each in the third and fifth innings.

Parrott, Brown, Rogers and Jenny Stoneham each had two hits to lead the Rose effort. No one had more than one hit for Eastern.

Rose, now 4-1, travels to Greene Central on Friday.

CSU Coach Gets His 'A'

By The Associated Press
Lucky for Colorado State's Boyd Grant, his players are better shooters than he was.

Grant was carried off the court on the shoulders of those players after the Rams beat Houston 71-61 in the second round of the National Invitation Tournament. The Rams, 20-12, will play Arkansas State, 21-13, Friday night, with the winner advancing to the semifinals in New York.

"It's the first time I ever got carried off the floor at Colorado State," said Grant, an alumnus of the school. "I wasn't a good enough player. Whenever I had the last-second shot, I never made it."

CSU didn't need any last-second shots in reaching the 20-victory level for only the second time. The Rams trailed 53-52 with 4:53 to go, then surged ahead for good.

Then they carried Grant off the court, and he lost his glasses. By the time they were retrieved from the floor, Grant had slipped off the broad shoulders of his players.

"At the end of the game tonight," Grant said Tuesday night. "The kids told me, 'Hey, 20 games coach.' It was their way of saying I was going to get an 'A' for the season."

The season also continues Friday night for New Mexico, which hosts Ohio State; and Connecticut, which is home to Virginia Commonwealth. On Saturday, Boston College is at Middle Tennessee State.

The semifinals are next Tuesday at Madison Square Garden, with the finals set for the next night.

Arkansas State, 21-13, surprised even its coach by winning at Stanford in the second round. Nelson Catalina had so little faith in his Indians that he didn't expect Rhon Johnson, the team's worst free throw shooter, to make a foul shot with time expired and the score tied.

"On the bench, the coach said whether I made the free throws or not, we had had a great year," Johnson said. "But I thought, 'Wait a minute, the year's not over yet.'"

It isn't over for the Indians because Johnson made the first free throw for a 60-59 victory.

New Mexico, 22-13, would seem to have the biggest edge in the third round. The Lobos are 19-1 at home this season and beat Ohio State 74-65 last December.

The Buckeyes, 18-12, recently beat Purdue, the top seed in the Midwest Regional of the NCAA Tournament. They also have upset three other ranked teams this season.

Of the eight remaining teams, Ohio State is the only one that has won an NIT title — in 1986.

Virginia Commonwealth ousted defending champion Southern Mississippi in the second round. Connecticut, like Boston College, has come out of the Big East to score two impressive NIT victories. Middle Tennessee has eliminated a pair of SEC teams, Tennessee and Georgia.

Morris Has Simple Goals: To Dominate The 1980s

By The Associated Press
Jack Morris' long-range goals are anything but modest as he looks ahead to the 1988 baseball season.

All the Detroit right-hander wants is to be the dominating pitcher of the 1980s and the Tigers' all-time winner.

"I'm just trying to be consistent," Morris said Wednesday after pitching six-hit ball over eight innings as the Tigers broke a five-game exhibition losing streak with a 7-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

So far, Morris is on track to achieve his first goal, because 141 of his 162 big league victories have come in this decade. No one else has as many.

As for the other goal, Hooks Dauss won 221 from 1912 to 1926 for the Tigers. So Morris, who turns 33 on May 16, would seem to have a good shot at that record, as well.

Manager Sparky Anderson likes his chances.

"He works very hard," Anderson said. "I've been nine springs with Jack. He's always pitched the first day every spring and opening day. So that says something about the shape he comes here in."

"Jack never comes here with a pound on him. You look at him stripped down and he looks lean, even though he's very strong. Everybody thinks Jack's lucky but it's not luck. Jack will be pitching five to seven years from now."

Morris, 2-2 so far this spring, had a two-hitter through seven innings before giving up two runs in the eighth. He is the first Tiger to go eight innings this spring.

Yankees (ss) 3, Braves (ss) 2

Tommy John gave up two hits and struck out three in six innings as the Yankees beat Atlanta in a split-squad game.

John, who raised his exhibition record to 2-2, did not allow a walk.

The loser was Tom Glavine, whose failure to handle Roberto Kelly's bunt in the first inning led to two unearned runs. The Yankees got another unearned run in the sixth when Gary Ward doubled and scored on an error by shortstop Andres Thomas.

Braves (ss) 6, Yankees (ss) 0

Terry Blocker had three hits, drove in a run and scored one as Atlanta a second split-squad game.

Jim Acker started and worked three innings of two-hit ball. Charlie Puleo allowed four hits over the next three innings. Juan Eichelberger, Joe Boever, and Gary Eave then each pitched a scoreless inning, combining for an eight-hitter.

White Sox 7, Rangers 3

Mark Salas hit a two-run homer to lead Chicago over Texas.

Texas starter Edwin Correa, who gave up six runs in three innings, complained of soreness in his right shoulder. The pain was similar to one that forced him to miss the second half of last season.

Red Sox 4, Expos 3

Sam Horn's leadoff homer in the 13th inning gave Boston the victory.

Horn ended the 3-hour, 39-minute marathon by hitting his fourth homer of the spring, a 380-footer off Kurt Kepshire.

Rookie Zach Crouch, the fifth Boston pitcher, blanked the Expos three hits over the last four innings.

Cardinals 10, Blue Jays 3

Jose Oquendo's three-run triple in the fifth inning helped St. Louis beat Toronto.

Trailing 3-1, the Cardinals loaded the bases in the fifth with three singles off Toronto starter Jim Clancy. Tony Pena then drove in a run with an infield grounder.

After Clancy walked Curt Ford to reload the bases, Toronto Manager Jimmy Williams brought in reliever Mark Eichhorn, who gave up the bases-clearing triple to Oquendo.

Astros 4, Dodgers 3

Bob Knepper pitched six scoreless innings and Reid Nichols and Jim Pankovits homered to lead Houston over Los Angeles.

Knepper scattered five hits, walked one and struck out four as he evened his spring record at 1-1. Rocky Childress pitched a scoreless ninth to pick up the save.

Both Nichols and Pankovits hit two-run homers off loser Don Sutton.

Royals 6, Twins 2

Danny Tartabull's two-run homer in the fifth inning helped Kansas City beat Minnesota. Tartabull hit Joe Niekro's knuckleball over the left-field fence after Bo Jackson had singled.

Jim Eisenreich had three hits, including a double, and scored three runs for the Royals. Frank White added two hits and drove in the game-winning run in the fourth.

Brewers 1, Giants 0

Juan Castillo drew a two-out, bases-loaded walk from reliever Don Robinson in the ninth inning to lift the Brewers over San Francisco.

Robinson retired the first two batters before Joey Meyer singled. Jim Gantner's infield pop fly was misplayed by Giants' third baseman Kevin Mitchell for an error and put runners at second and third.

After Robinson walked pinch-hitter Dale Sveum intentionally, he got two strikes on Castillo before walking him to force in the game's only run.

Indians 6, Mariners 3

Ron Kittle hit two homers, his third and fourth of the spring, to power Cleveland.

Kittle, signed as a free agent during the offseason, connected for a two-run homer over the 420-foot sign in center field off Mariners starter Steve Trout to cap a three-run fifth inning. He added a solo homer off Edwin Nunez in the seventh.

Cubs 11, Angels 0

David Martinez' three-run triple keyed a six-run fourth inning as the Cubs beat California.

The Cubs began the fourth inning with five consecutive hits off Dan Petry. Singles by Jody Davis, Jerry Humphrey, Vance Law and Shawon Dunston preceded Martinez' triple.

Leon Durham doubled and scored on Rafael Palmeiro's single off Joe Johnson to complete the rally and give Chicago an 8-0 lead.

Reds 5, Phillies 3

Pinch-hitter Dave Collins hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning to lead Cincinnati over Philadelphia.

Tracy Jones singled off Wally Ritchie and Collins then hit a 0-2 pitch over the left field wall to win the game.

Mets 4, Orioles 3

Gregg Jefferies singled home the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning to lead the New York Mets to their seventh straight exhibition victory.

After the game, Jefferies, the Minor League Player of the Year in each of the past two seasons, was assigned to Tidewater of the Class AAA International League despite a .333 spring average.

Actor Sees His Role In 'Probe' As Bumbling Sherlock Holmes

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Parker Stevenson smiles at the suggestion that his character on the new ABC series "Probe" appears to be a cros between Sherlock Holmes and Tom Swift.

Austin James is an eccentric scientist who uses his remarkable mental skills to fight crime. His knowledge has made him fabulously wealthy, but he prefers to avoid the think tank he founded and live in an old warehouse he calls the "batcave."

"I think of him more as Sherlock Holmes and Elmer Fudd," said Stevenson, "since there is a fumbling aspect to his personality. I'm playing a whacko. He's clever, but whacko. That's what made me anxious to go back and do another series. I don't see myself getting bored doing this."

"He sleeps naked in an isolation tank. Actually, it's a tool cabinet. He drink martinis and eat blocks of frozen peas. He's different than 'MacGyver' or 'The Knight Rider.' You always know that Sherlock Holmes can figure it out. In some episodes you're never really sure if Austin James will get it."

Austin James in "Probe" is sort of a one-man brain trust. He solves crimes by being receptive to data that other people miss. Ashley Crow plays naive and inexperienced Mickey Castle, his Dr. Watson.

"Her point of view becomes valuable to him," Stevenson said. "And she's fascinated enough by what he does to stick around and put up with the grief."

The one-hour series was created by famed science-fiction writer Isaac Asimov and Michael Wagner, former story editor of "Hill Street Blues." Asimov came up with the characters and concept and Wagner wrote the pilot.

"I've never met Isaac," said Stevenson. "But I'd love to have him come on the show as my mentor and throw me a few words of wisdom if I start to run amok. Isaac lives in New York and won't fly."

"Probe" appears on ABC at 8 p.m. EST Thursdays, where it's up against NBC's "The Cosby Show" and "A Different World." Fortunately for Stevenson, it's not up against NBC's "Cheers," which stars his wife, Kirstie Alley.

This is the first series for Stevenson since he did a half-season on CBS' "Falcon Crest" in the 1984-85 season. Before that he was in "The Hardy Boys" in 1977-79.

"I was a bad guy on 'Falcon Crest,' which was fun," he said. "You don't want to do the same kind of character all the time. The last few years I've been doing different kinds of roles. It's helped me rediscover why I went into this business in the first place."

"I think the intention was to bring me in and kill me off. I did more episodes than I thought I would, but they still ended up burying me in a graveyard."

In recent times he's also played an amoral newspaper reporter in the CBS movie "Betrayal of Trust" and in episodes of "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" and "The Hitchhiker."

Last year he was in the second part of the ABC miniseries "North and South." He played Bill Hazzard from the Northern family, who married Genie Francis from the Southern family. Kirstie Alley played his sister in both installments.

Stevenson grew up in New York City, where he started doing commercials and movies when he was about 14. His first movie was "A Separate Peace."

ECU Concerts Will Feature Symphonic Band, Chorale

Two East Carolina University School of Music concert programs will be presented on campus Sunday. Both are free and open to the public.

The ECU Symphonic Band, with Thomas W. Goolsby conducting, will perform at 3:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

Compositions to be performed are: "Viva Musica!" (a concert overture for winds) by Alfred Reed; J.S. Bach's "Komm, Susser Tod" transcribed by E. Leidzen; three movements of "Sinfonia No. 4," by Walter S. Hartley; the allegro of Mozart "Concerto No. 3 in E-Flat," transcribed by R. Bardeen, with French horn soloist Mary Burroughs, faculty member of the ECU School of Music; Ralph Vaughan Williams' "Rhosymedre" (Prelude on a Welsh hymn tune); K.L. Kings' "Two Circus Marches," and "Enzig der Gladiatoren" by Julius Fucik.

The ECU Symphonic Band is comprised of 48 members.

At 8:15 p.m. Sunday, the ECU University Chorale, directed by Rhonda Fleming, will present its spring concert in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

The chorale, comprised of about 70 students, is one of four choral ensembles at the university.

The program will open with two selections by Hassler — "Alleluia" and "Cantate Domino." These will be followed by the William Byrd motet, "Ave Verum Corpus" and a balletta, "All Ye Who Music Love" by Baldassare Donata.

Mozart's "Gloria in Excelsis," conducted by graduate student Janina Brendell will conclude the first section of the program. The work includes a solo double quartet, which will feature sopranos Lori McLelland and Grace Oh; altos Susan Deyton and Ameer Forster; tenors Jerry Cullum and Dwayne Williams, and baritones Billy Sharpe and ERic Shine.

Two smaller ensembles formed from the chorale will perform. A mixed ensemble, directed by Ms. Brendell, will sing a selection of show tunes. The second small ensemble is a men's Barbershop Quartet directed by graduate assistant Ed Pierce. The quartet will sing four selections.

The concert will conclude with the entire chorale singing Benjamin Britten's "Choral Dances," Harry Somers' "Feller from Fortune" and the spiritual, "Let Me Fly."

Stars Ad Lib Gap In Show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Moonlighting" stars Cybill Shepherd and Bruce Willis were left speechless by the 2½-week script-writers' strike, but filled a five-minute gap in their latest script by rocking to the tune of "Wooly Bully."

Miss Shepherd and Willis kicked and sang along as Curtis Armstrong, who plays novice detective Bert Viola, danced about in a pharaoh's outfit, mouthing the words to the 1965 song by Sam the Sham & the Pharaohs.

The script for Tuesday night's ABC-TV show was written before the Writers Guild of America struck March 7. But when it was filmed last week, the producers discovered it fell about five minutes short. So the cast improvised.

"Remember on the Ozzie and Harriet show?" Willis told the audience. "See, sometimes their show would be short and then they would bring Ricky Nelson out and he would sing a song."

Co-executive producer Jay Daniel said there are no more scripts left, so "Moonlighting" probably will go into reruns.

No new talks are scheduled between the 9,000-member guild and the producers.

USA Today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A daily television show based on the newspaper USA Today is being prepared for a Sept. 12 debut. Steve Friedman, president of GTG East, said the four anchors for the syndicated show would be introduced on a "flying press conference" to six cities in April.

The Front Page anchor will be announced later, but anchors already chosen are Bill Macatee for Sports, Robin Young for Life and Kenneth Walker for Money.

"This is my dream team," said Friedman. "People who will take television into the '90s. Folks who have been born and raised as part of the television generation."

Soviets View O'Neill Classic

MOSCOW (AP) — Eugene O'Neill's classic "Desire Under the Elms" opened to a sold-out audience on a Moscow stage, the first play directed by an American in the Soviet Union.

Mark Lamos, 42, artistic director of the Hartford Stage Co. of Connecticut, received a standing ovation after the opening performance of O'Neill's 1924 play about the struggle for dominance between father and son on a 19th-century New England farm.

Lamos had to confront linguistic and cultural barriers in bringing the play before a Soviet audience.

The 870 people at the performance

Wednesday night applauded politely in rhythm for the Soviet actors, and then rose to applaud energetically for Lamos.

O'Neill and Tennessee Williams are the best known and best loved American playwrights in the Soviet Union. Lamos said Soviets know little about other American playwrights, especially more contemporary ones whose work he prefers, and was unhappy with the choice of "Desire Under the Elms" for his direction.

The play was chosen by the Pushkin Theater's artistic director, Yuri Yeremin, as an appropriate way to celebrate the centennial of O'Neill's 1888 birth.

"Desire Under the Elms" was the first play performed in the Pushkin Theater in 1926 and has become a standard in the Soviet repertoire. Lamos was invited to stage the play in Moscow after he met a group of Soviet theater directors in New York last summer.

"Daddy, will you take us to... the zoo?"

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You may be confused about practical affairs this morning, so handle them carefully. Invite some interesting friends into your home tonight.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Don't get involved in an out-of-town matter, or you will become terribly confused. Finish up any important reports or statements.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You may find it difficult to keep a promise you have made, so try to arrange a postponement. Don't let your mate's mood confuse you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Instead of letting an older person impose his views on you, follow your own ideas. Don't get involved in any arguments tonight.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Be very conscientious in handling your work today, and gain some fine benefits. Try to establish better relations with your co-workers.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): This is not a good day to take any risks which could put you behind the eight ball. Stick to the tried-and-true methods in your work.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): You can ask a superior for a favor and get it without any trouble after lunch today. Get busy at taking care of an important credit matter.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Plan a trip to see a family friend who means much to you, as he or she will appreciate it and the change of pace will do you good.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Your financial situation is in a very delicate condition, so get some advice from an expert before you start trying to change it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Try to create a more cooperative atmosphere at your workplace, and you can all become much more efficient and successful.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): This morning may start rather slowly, but you can accomplish a great deal today. Be helpful if your co-workers are in doubt.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): You may be in doubt about trying to get your talents across to others this morning, but you can succeed with a little help from your good friends.

Opening lead: Jack of ♥

"Your Honor:

"What we are seeking is not financial compensation, but a 'Cease and Desist' order. Mr. North, who we acknowledge is an accomplished bridge player, maligns my client, South, at every opportunity. He goes around the club calling my client a 'trick-reduction expert,' all because of this hand.

"After a normal auction, South became declarer at four spades. He won the opening heart lead perforce, crossed to the nine of trumps and took a losing club finesse. He won the trump return in dummy and tried a club to the king. That lost to West's ace, and the trump return removed dummy's last fang. As a result, declarer still had to lose a trick in each minor suit for down one.

"You must surely agree that South was a victim of bad luck. Both club honors were wrong, trumps did not break and West, the defender with the long trump, also was the one who held the ace of clubs. We ask for judgment in our favor."

"My client, Mr. North, feels that anything he says about South is complimentary, considering the way he played this hand. He started out with nine tricks in top cards. Once the defenders did not start by leading trumps, there was no way he could be stopped from scoring a club ruff for his fulfilling trick.

"After winning the ace of hearts, South should simply have led a club from hand, then led a club again when he regained the lead. The contract would then have been iron-clad, since declarer's last club could be ruffed in dummy. What South did was to reduce his tricks from 10 to nine!"

"Case dismissed. North's description of South is accurate, not slanderous!"
