Two Men Held In White Death

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County law enforcement officers arrested two men Thursday and charged them with conspiring in January with Sandra Faye Haddock White to murder her husband, Bobby Charles White.

James Earl Manning, 23, Route 2, Grimesland, was arrested about 3 p.m. Thursday and appeared in Pitt County District Court today. Manning said he could not afford an attorney and judge J.W.H. Roberts appointed attorney Robin L. Fornes to represent Manning.

Roberts also appointed an attorney from the law firm of Jim Roberts to assist in the case. Fornes said he did not know who the law office would assign. A probable cause hearing must be set for Manning within 15 days.

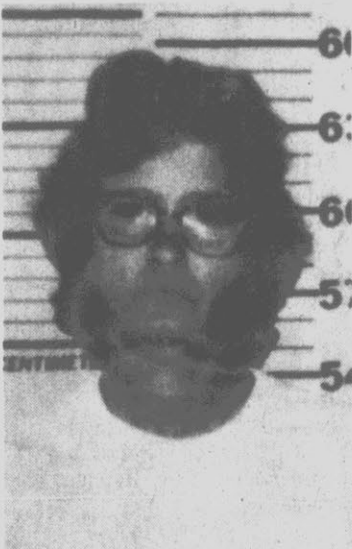

Manning is charged with conspiring in January with James Alton Mobley, 21, Route 1, Grimesland, to commit the murder.

Mobley was arrested Thursday about 4 p.m. and was scheduled to appear in District Court today at 2 p.m. He was charged with conspiring with Manning and Mrs. White in January to "commit the felony of murder against Bobby Charles White."

Manning, Mobley and Mrs. White were being held without bond.

Mrs. White, also of Route 2, Grimesland, was arrested Wednesday and charged with soliciting a third man, Michael Ray Rogers, to commit the murder. Sheriff's Investigator Larry Parker said the charge does not mean Rogers accepted the offer, only that Mrs. White is accused of approaching him. Parker said Rogers, who is a witness in the case, would not be arrested.

OLD AND NEW — A truck rides down Dickinson Avenue Thursday past old bricks in the street. The bricks, once the top surface for the street, were uncovered by a work crew when three inches of paving material were removed. According to Ed Howell, general superintendent for the crew, the surface that was removed will be recycled and the uncovered bricks will once again be covered by asphalt. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis)

Du Pont Planning Major Upgrading

The Du Pont Company's Textile Fibers Department will invest more than $150 million during the next two years to modernize production of Dacron polyester fiber at its plants near Kinston, Wilmington and Charleston, S.C., a company official said today.

According to Paul G. Gillese, director of Du Pont's Textile Division, modernization plans include developments to improve ingredients, provide larger packages for partially oriented yarn, generate new filament yarns for high-speed texturing, and improve high strength staple fibers.

He said improvements will be made to provide more flexible manufacturing for a broader product range and increased capability to meet customers' delivery needs.

Cliff Nix, plant manager of Du Pont's Kinston site, said a significant amount of the $150 million investment will be used to modernize the Lenoir County facility in the Grangers community.

"This investment enables us to continue to be competitive in a global marketplace. Kinston has been in the forefront of creative change and welcomes the opportunity to produce higher quality and higher value products," Nix said.

"We are especially pleased to make this announcement during the 35th anniversary of Dacron polyester at the Kinston site," he said.

According to company spokesman R.J. Hargitt, about 33 percent of the Kinston plant's 2,000 workers live in Pitt County. Hargitt also said the plant is in the process of hiring 74 additional full-time employees.

Ballet Founder Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Choreographer Robert Joffrey, who founded a dance troupe on a shoestring and built the Joffrey Ballet into one of the nation's top companies, died this morning. He was 57.

Joffrey, who had curtailed his duties at the company because of illness, died at 6 a.m. at New York University Hospital, said Pennie Curry, a spokeswoman for the company.

He had suffered from a liver ailment caused by medication he was receiving for asthma and a muscle condition, and had been in intensive care for two weeks, she said.

A lifelong asthmatic, Joffrey suffered severe asthma attacks in August and had been working from his home since then, she said.

Joffrey became ill in April 1986 and was diagnosed as having severe myositis, which causes deterioration of the muscles, enlarged liver and asthma. Earlier this month, he announced a three-person advisory group to help Gerald Arpino, the company's associate director, run the company.

The possibility of a municipal golf course being built in the city was among the items of mutual interest discussed today by East Carolina University and city of Greenville officials at a breakfast meeting at the Jaycee Park Building on Cedar Lane.

Greenville City Manager Greg Knowles told the approximately 35 people who attended the breakfast that unnamed ECU representatives have made inquiries to the city regarding the possibility of constructing a public golf course on the former city landfill site near Cemtery Lane and Fifth Street.

"The potential exists that we could, with a little effort, maybe get together enough land where we could get a golf course out there," Knowles said.

"The possibility is there and we're investigating it this year," he added.

"If there's that much demand for public golf courses, and we have two private golf courses in Greenville, we were thinking maybe a public golf course would make some money," he theorized.

Knowles said that ECU would probably have an interest in such a venture through school golf teams, student discounts and faculty memberships.

The city manager said the idea has previously been discussed by city staff members. He said there is enough room at the site for a 12-hole course, but removal of the sewage plant at that location could enlarge the proposed course to accommodate 18 holes.

He also indicated two or three holes could be arranged along the river to form course water hazards.

This morning's meeting was the second of its kind between city and East Carolina officials. The two groups previously met Jan. 15 on the ECU campus. The informal meetings are designed to enhance communication between the two groups and to promote mutual cooperation.

"I think these meetings serve a tremendous purpose," said Mayor Ed Carter. "We feel good about the university and its leadership, we feel good about its cooperative spirit, and I get the feeling they feel the same about the city," he said.

Also discussed at the meeting was the possibility of the city turning over to the school the small section of land on the corner of Reade and Fifth streets to be used as part of an official entrance to the college. The land is currently used as a parking lot.

Mayor Carter said he felt such an action is the right thing to do.

"We indicated we are trying to go through the parking authority and all the proper channels to see if we can't probably make that available to the university at fair market value. We've got parking problems but I don't think those 12 spaces are going to make much of a difference," he said.

In addition, representatives of ECU brought up the possibility of placing a left turn signal at the intersection of 10th Street and College Hill Drive.

City officials agreed the intersection was in need of improvements.

"There is a big problem with jaywalking around that area," said Council member Bill Hadden. "For a long time we've thought that was a place looking for an accident."

Carter said he believed the meetings have lived up to his hopes and expectations of greater cooperation between the college and the city.

"That's the whole spirit of these meetings, to explore areas where we can mutually support each other so we can continue to grow and prosper," he said.

Expo Draws 6,700 On First Day

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

About 6,700 people visited Expo '88 on its opening day Thursday and gathered plastic bags full of literature and samples, and hands full of balloons, pencils and the like as they moved from booth to booth of displayed goods and services.

Exhibitors said the best eye-catchers were the drawings, the free samples and the free services — not their brightly colored, decorated booths.

"You have to spend money to make money," said Steve Brody of the Metropolitan Life booth, which was conducting a drawing. He said $100 spent on a gift certificate for a winner could make the company $100,000.

People "have been stopping to get their blood pressure checked," said Karen Stegall of Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Visitors also were given biodots, which are placed on a person's arm and change colors as their mood changes.

Dave Cox of Piano and Organ Distributors was offering free lessons for those who purchased a piano or organ, while Allen Elmore of The Albritton Co. discussed types of carpet and credit opportunities with interested onlookers. "I haven't been out here two hours and already I've seen a couple hundred" people, he said.

A three-day pass to the Greenville Athletic Club brings people into the club. Once the card is filled out, "they're real intrigued by the machines," she said.

The club is displaying its Liferower and Stairmaster exercise equipment at the show.

Lots of folks stopped to smell the flowers at the Creative Gardens Inc. booth, said Susan Whaley. And, a few did "some buying." People are planting lots of trees, such as dogwoods, or spirea this time of year, she said.

The first day of Expo was a learning experience for some exhibitors. Inez Fridley and Wanda James of the East Carolina University booth said they needed to get more information on graduate schools for the booth.

Scouts will be judged on originality, creativity, knowledge of the subject and whether they can prepare the exhibit in time for display, said Payne. "I feel it gives them a good sense of sportsmanship and it gives them a chance to meet other Scouts from across the county," he said. "It's good fun, fellowship and togetherness."

"I have personally been involved in Scouting 24 years," said Payne, who has served as Scoutmaster for 12 years. "I thoroughly enjoy it."

Arts-Crafts Unit May Be Relocated

City staff members are considering relocating the Arts and Crafts Center as one of several temporary stopgap measures to help meet growing municipal office space needs, according to a city official.

Loretta Lewellyn, city public information director, said the center's space on the second floor of the City Community Building at 302 S. Greene St. is needed for expansion of municipal departments at City Hall, which is located just a block away.

She said members of the city staff and the Recreation & Parks Commission will examine prospective sites for the relocated arts and crafts programs and will seek input from affected parties. She said that, meanwhile, other space needs and possible alternatives for department relocations will be reviewed by city officials.

City Manager Greg Knowles said the city does not intend to terminate or lessen in any way the programs offered by the Recreation & Parks Department.

"I wholeheartedly support the programs and activities of the Arts and Crafts Center, and they will be protected," Knowles said.

"We need space desperately, and this was the one group that didn't interrelate with other departments to the extent that it would be detrimental to move them to another location, but only if a suitable site can be found. No decision has been made at this point. If and when changes are made, it would be to an equal or better facility," Knowles added.

Board Allows Sale Of Fuel

The Greenville Board of Adjustment approved a request Thursday to allow gasoline to be sold at a convenience store on the southwest corner of 10th and Charles Street.

The request was submitted by Lee-Moore Oil Co. and Ray Mashburn Jr. The property is zoned CDF (commercial downtown fringe).

The board also granted a special use permit to Ann Pearce and Ledyard E. Ross to operate a beauty shop at 602 E. 10th Street. The property is zoned O&I (office and institutional).

In other matters, the board:

- Denied a special use permit to Bobby Dixon to construct two multifamily projects under the land use intensity development standards (lot 1: 2.1 acres — 52 units; lot 2: 4.1 acres — 60 units). The properties are located on Shenandoah Circle between Tobacco Road and Rollinwood Cluster Homes and are zoned R-6 (high density residential).

- Granted a special use permit to Alton E. Corey and Donald McGlohan to operate a hair replacement business on the southeast corner of Red Banks Road and Charles Boulevard. The property is zoned O&I.

- Decided not to rehear a request by W. Ray and Eunice Lassiter for a special use permit to place a mobile home on the north side of SR 1417 approximately .75 miles west of N.C. 11. The request was previously denied at the Feb. 25 meeting.

- Denied a variance to Charles L. McLawhorn Jr. to use a detached garage as a dwelling unit at 310 E. 13th St. The property is zoned CDF.

- Granted a variance to Danny Lee Williams to replace a mobile home with a site built house on a lot that is one acre in area and 480 feet from a public dedicated street. The lot is 480 feet south of SR 1417 approximately .75 miles west of N.C. 11. The property is zoned RA-20.

Also Thursday night, representatives from Greenville Planning Department presented to the board proposed amendments to the board's rules of procedure concerning the filing of decisions, which will be considered at the next board meeting in April.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Conflicting Actions Create Confusion

The Pitt County Commission needs to clear the fog of confusion created by its contradictory actions concerning the construction of a new jail.

The board should make its intent clear, and that intent should include addressing construction needs jointly with the Greenville City Council. The conflicting actions make the board seem it is saying one thing while doing another. With an issue as important as million-dollar law enforcement and office needs, consistency of direction is imperative.

First, the commissioners and the City Council informally agreed to approach combined law enforcement space problems jointly. Next, the County Commissioners voted to seek an architect specializing in jail design for the project. The board even set a timetable for a county facilities master plan and a jail plan.

But commissioners voted Monday to have the current architect continue planning on another approach — one that clearly addresses only county needs. That action is not congruous with the previous position of the board, giving the appearance the county is striking out on its own instead of seeking unity.

The disparity of these actions indicates uncertainty by the County Commission about which direction to take. This irresolution should be resolved, and the two conflicting approaches reconciled.

Saying one thing, then doing another, does not build public confidence in a board or project. Neither does it foster cooperation and trust between public entities, and it is essential for the County Commission and City Council to have this type of rapport.

The commissioners were correct to approach the issue of future construction jointly with the City Council. The board was right to ask for a master plan for a government complex and law enforcement center. It should clarify its support for this project and proceed with it.

The board should not make decisions which send conflicting signals on important issues.

Cease Fire First Step

The cease-fire agreement between the Sandinistas and the Contras in Nicaragua might not create the ideal political climate in Central American but it does stop the killing.

It also, for now, ends the debate in the United States concerning the need for military aid to the Contras.

The cease fire is for 60 days but it can lead to a permanent end to hostilities in Nicaragua. It is no great victory for President Reagan's foreign policy, however. The Contras had been virtually run out of Nicaragua prior to the agreement. It prompted Reagan to send United States troops into Honduras on maneuvers. Reagan also applied new pressure on Congress to provide additional aid to the Contras in what was already a lost cause.

The Sandinistas will likely agree to a release of prisoners, allowing political exiles to return and Contra participation in national affairs.

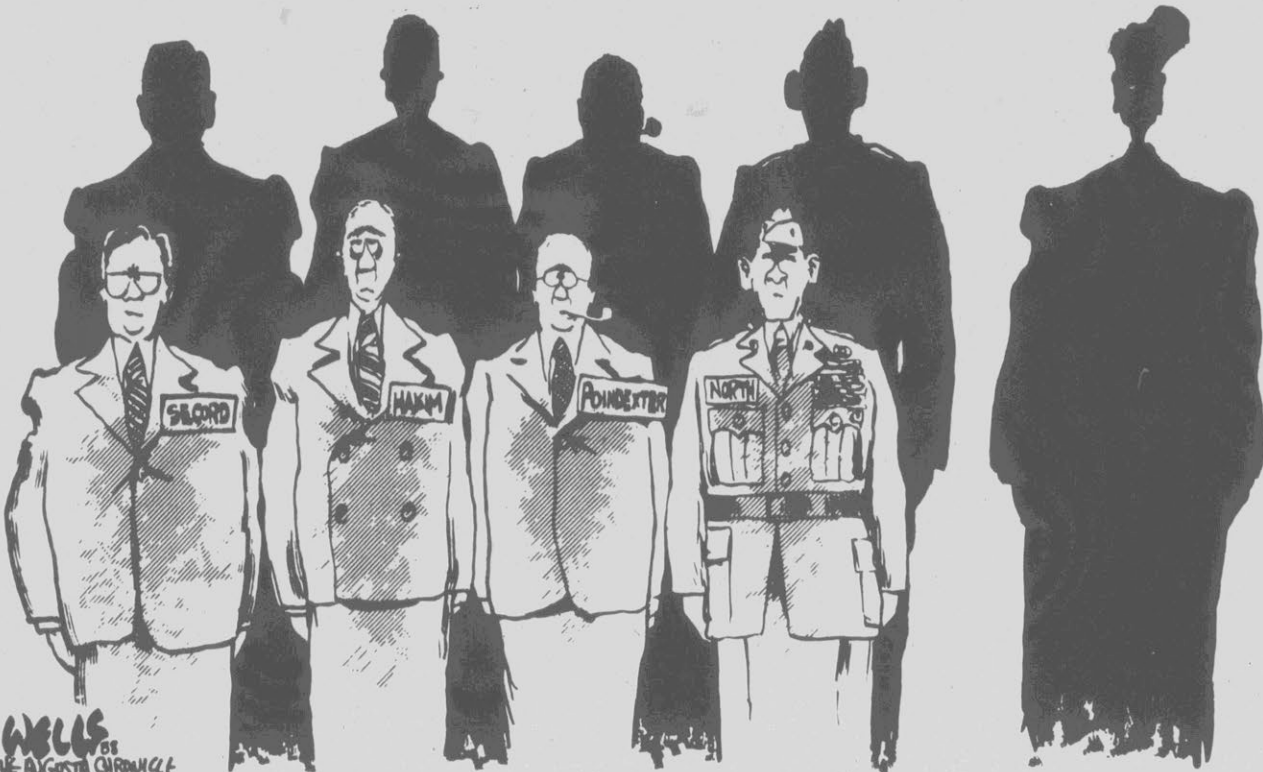

That is not what the Contras have been fighting for over the past six years, but they were fighting at the end with little hope of renewed American aid. Congress simply wasn't going to approve it.

The United States has, appropriately, reacted positively to the cease fire. It is a preferable alternative to war.

A Sandinista Nicaragua might not be ideal for the hemisphere but that is the most likely occurrence. The United States has been tied to the Contras almost throughout the two terms of Ronald Reagan. It is not probable there is much left for Reagan to back with the Contras.

The Reagan administration must do all it can to keep the fighting from erupting again. It should provide strength of support for the peace effort. The nation must also begin to deal with the political situation as it exists in Nicaragua — accepting the reality of the political climate there.

Now the administration must work toward persuading Nicaragua toward more democratic government. That, after all, is a most important role of the United States in the global realm. That goal should be the most prominent aspect of the nation's Nicaraguan policy.

Contras Gain Little With Pact

'Contra leaders have agreed to a 60-day cease-fire in exchange for little more than freedom for jailed supporters and the right to take part in Nicaraguan politics.'

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — After fighting six years with U.S. support to overthrow the Sandinista government, Contra leaders have agreed to a 60-day cease-fire in exchange for little more than freedom for jailed supporters and the right to take part in Nicaraguan politics.

But rebel officials said Thursday they might raise new political demands, calling for the dismantling of what they call a one-party state, in the follow-up negotiations on disarmament of their 10,000-member guerrilla force.

The agreement Wednesday night is the first formal step toward ending a war that has embroiled Central America in superpower conflict, wrecked the Nicaraguan economy and claimed more than 25,000 lives.

It could also mark the first stage in a difficult transition for the Contras from a U.S.-financed rural insurgency to a conservative political movement in a Soviet-allied revolutionary state led by the Sandinista National Liberation Front.

Rebel leaders said they had little choice but to seek the best possible terms for a truce after Congress last month cut off their military aid.

Their agreement extended the informal truce declared Monday at the start of the peace talks. It called for a supervised 60-day cease-fire starting April 1, followed by the release of 3,360 political prisoners.

As soon as rebel troops start moving into cease-fire zones, Contra leaders may send up to eight delegates to join a "national dialogue" in Managua where the government and 14 civic opposition parties are negotiating political reform.

"It was a tradeoff," rebel leader Alfredo Cesar said after signing the accord at the Nicaraguan border post of Sapoa. "They recognized us as a legitimate political force, and we recognized Daniel Ortega as the constitutional president of Nicaragua."

But Cesar and other Contra officials warned that the good will could be severely tested over the next two months as new political pressures try the Sandinistas' stated commitment to democratic pluralism.

The Contras have proposed suspending the military draft and endorsed an opposition bid for a private television station. They also support 17 legal changes proposed by the 14 opposition groups, which range from Communists to conservatives.

Those proposals include "eliminating the partisan character" of the 85,000-member Sandinista People's Army and reducing its size. They call for breaking total Sandinista control of the electoral court and the judiciary and abolishing Sandinista-run neighborhood defense councils.

While the proposals are discussed in the so-called national dialogue, separate negotiations are to begin April 6 on terms of the rebels' disarmament and return to civilian life.

Adolfo Calero, another leading Contra negotiator, vowed Thursday the rebels will not disarm if there is no significant progress in the national dialogue.

"If the Sandinistas don't find a way to separate the state, the army and the party, then as far as we're concerned there is no democracy, and as long as there is no democracy, there can be no definitive cease-fire," he said.

In a separate interview, Cesar said: "Our only guarantee is our guns. We're not giving them up until we see irreversible democratic progress in Nicaragua."

Even if a cease-fire holds, the rebel leaders' comments raised the prospect of a prolonged stalemate in which thousands of rebel troops would remain armed and in the field awaiting the outcome of difficult negotiations.

Rebel leaders broadcast radio messages to their troops Thursday, describing the agreement as "the first step toward peace with freedom and democratization." They said they would seek new non-lethal aid from the United States to keep the troops in the field throughout the coming negotiations.

Since the national dialogue started last October, the Sandinistas have shown no inclination to ease their control of state institutions and have vowed to continue the draft in peacetime. The dialogue was suspended last December, over what opposition leaders called Sandinista intransigence, and resumed only this week.

Paul S. Reichler, an American lawyer who advised the Sandinista negotiators, said government negotiators in the national dialogue will now consider changes in the military service law and in a decree that puts all television broadcasting in state hands.

Reichler said the Sandinistas at first insisted on negotiating an entire cease-fire agreement, including disarmament terms, in a single round of talks. He said the government first suspected the rebels wanted only a temporary truce, to recover from the beating they took earlier this month when Sandinista forces cut their main overland supply line from Honduras.

But Reichler said Calero, Cesar and other rebel negotiators gained the Sandinistas' trust during the talks and got agreement on separate talks for disarmament.

"We gave them that 60-day space so the Contras can see that this (agreement) is real. It's a period for confidence-building," he said. "They will see that all the steps taken by the government toward democratization are for real, that these changes are irreversible."

If Contra leaders return, however, they face certain hostility — some of it encouraged by Sandinista party activists — for the years of bloodshed.

A pro-Sandinista newspaper, El Nuevo Diario, said in an editorial earlier this week that it is one thing to negotiate with the Contras to end the war and quite another thing to forgive them.

"Ronald Reagan's freedom fighters can never be respectfully treated by the Nicaraguan people ... to whom they will always be traitors and murderers," the paper said.

The Contras first arose in late 1981 as an irregular band of peasant farmers, angry over land confiscations, and former members of the late President Anastasio Somoza's National Guard. The guard was defeated in the 1979 insurrection that brought the Sandinistas to power.

With covert CIA funding, the rebels staged their first major attacks in March, 1982, and grew to a force of more than 16,000 fighters with millions of dollars in military aid voted by Congress.

The Reagan administration first justified the aid as a means of halting arms shipments through Nicaragua to leftist guerrillas in El Salvador. Later, Washington acknowledged that the Contras were a proxy army attempting to change the Sandinista regime or at least force it, as Reagan once said, to "cry uncle."

The Contras never managed to capture and hold a single town. But as a major Contra offensive in 1987 pushed the economy to new depths of ruin, a peace plan offered by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez broke the stalemate.

Are Artistic Barriers Effective?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The post-and-chain barrier being erected outside the White House fence has yet to be tested by a terrorist attack, but it already has passed one test: it won grudging approval from the Commission of Fine Arts.

And, if you wonder what fine arts have to do with protecting the president and the White House from a truckload of high explosives, well, as Secret Service spokeswoman Jane Vezeris puts it, "Washington is a strange place, isn't it?"

Neither the arts commission nor the Secret Service actually is in charge of building the protective devices. That's the domain of the Park Service, which has been responsible for the White House grounds since the place was declared a national monument by Congress in 1961.

After the terrorist attack on the Marine barracks in Lebanon in 1983, which killed 241 American servicemen, low concrete walls called jersey barriers were erected around the White House and many other public buildings in Washington.

Charles H. Atherton, administrative officer of the arts panel, said that after the Park Service received an appropriation for a permanent barrier, its first idea was a 42-inch-high concrete wall, with the existing ornamental iron fence on top of it.

"It would have made the White House look even more like a fortress," Atherton said. "The commission didn't like it."

So there were a series of proposals and a series of meetings of the commission, ending up with the present plan.

It consists of 274 bollards, or thick cement and aggregate posts, each 38 inches high, placed four feet apart and joined by chains, along 832 feet of Pennsylvania Avenue sidewalk.

"We, of course, would have hoped that they would be farther apart," Atherton said of the bollards. "They're actually awfully close together."

The Secret Service, however, determined that this spacing was the most effective way to stop a vehicle of a certain size, going at a certain speed, from crashing into the White House.

"That would not allow for our concept, which had them much farther apart than they are going to be," said Atherton.

Atherton said J. Carter Brown, chairman of the commission, at one point suggested that the bollards be placed inside the fence, but the Secret Service wanted them outside to keep the grounds from being penetrated.

Atherton rejected any idea that the commission would give higher priority to an attractive design than to safety.

"We certainly agree that the first order of business would be the protection of the president at any cost, and if the aesthetic element has to be compromised, so be it, sad as that may be," he said.

McDaniel said the security work will cost $670,000 and the Park Service is spending an additional $365,000 to replace the sidewalk with a more decorative granite walk with trees and tree boxes.

Strength For Today

A supporter of the contention that mankind is to be saved by secular enlightenment was the German philosopher Hegel. He maintained that if we knew more we would sin less, and that if we knew "all" we would cease to sin.

Yet one hundred years after Hegel died the German nation fell into the hands of Hitler and was almost destroyed. And some argue that the United States today does not appear likely to become the earthly counterpart of the kingdom of God because we are very likely to destroy ourselves and the rest of the world. This destruction will come with atomic weapons which our "wisdom" has created.

Theodore Roosevelt once remarked that to educate a person without educating his conscience was to create a potential criminal. In the same way, to enlighten the mind of a nation and not to enlighten its conscience is to court unimaginable disaster.

FSU Will 'Guarantee' Teachers

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Fayetteville State University Chancellor Lloyd Hackley is so sure that he can raise the quality of the school's education students that he will offer a warranty on every teacher graduating after 1993.

If a fledgling teacher fresh from FSU — or the school district where he or she is employed — can identify weaknesses in the teacher's preparation, a team of FSU specialists "will make their product good," Hackley said.

The warranty, which Hackley unveiled Thursday as part of a sweeping plan for improvements, will be offered beginning with students that enroll this fall.

An FSU teacher training team will work with any local school district supervisor who reports a problem with an FSU graduate. The team will make recommendations on course work, consultation or counseling, and establish a baseline to document the improvement of the teacher.

The warranty is only one aspect of a 22-page academic development plan Hackley presented to the board of trustees.

Other key elements of Hackley's plan call for restructuring the university into "upper" and "lower" divisions, with stringent requirements on deficient students during the first two years before they can select a major and advance to the junior level.

The plan also calls for a special effort to increase the number and performance of black teachers, and remedy deficiencies in existing academic programs. It also calls for significant improvements in the appearance and maintenance of the campus buildings and grounds.

"FSU's enrollment this year consisted of the greatest proportion of academically deprived students among all four-year institutions in North Carolina — a circumstance not acknowledged in funding policies and educational expectations," Hackley said in his report.

Hackley said the school's development has been retarded by a lack of adequate state and federal funding during most of its existence, plus low financial support from alumni.

He said the school's course offerings need to be expanded, and the university needs to overcome its historical identity as a black school if it is to reach all the prospective students in the region.

He said some aspects of his development plan already are in the works. The university will spend $300,000 in the near future to upgrade the campus, Hackley said.

Laurens Bondshu, chairman of the board's student affairs committee, said the university has obtained a $1.5-million loan from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to upgrade dormitories. Mrs. Bondshu said room costs will be increased $200 a year to pay back the loan. The dorm rates at FSU now range from $1,050 to $1,200 a year.

Hackley said FSU is now 15th out of the 16 University of North Carolina campuses in dormitory costs for students.

"Even when we change, we will only be 13th," he said.

Coast Says Bye Bye, Red Tide

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin and other state officials have bid the toxic red tide a less-than-sad goodbye with a party to help fishermen affected by the plague.

"I hope this puts the fish back in your diet," Martin told about 1,000 people at the farewell party Thursday. "It's better than any federal program or any state program would be to have ... people put seafood back on the table."

The red tide forced the closing of nearly 200 miles of North Carolina's coast to shellfishing last October, but state officials hope to reopen the entire coast to shellfishing within the next few weeks.

That was welcome news to fishermen, who have lost an estimated $5.5 million because of closed fishing areas.

For a $10 per person donation, party-goers Thursday dined on trout, hush puppies, cole slaw and potato salad and listen to the Embers Band. Proceeds from the event will go to the Red Tide Relief Fund.

"We're going to celebrate the end of the red tide," Martin said. "We never had that problem before. The fin-fish, trout, shrimp and crab weren't affected by the red tide yet people inland were afraid of it. It was the same as if the red tide had gutted them too."

With the red tide gone, Martin invited people to return to the coast, where state officials have estimated that the algae cost the local economy $25 million in lost revenues.

Haywood County Educator Selected 'Teacher Of Year'

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Tuscola High School English teacher Merv Sessoms was named North Carolina's Teacher of the Year Thursday.

He is the first Western North Carolina teacher to win the honor.

For the next school year, Sessoms will leave his Haywood County classroom for speaking engagements throughout the state before students, PTAs and community groups.

Tuscola Principal Charles Starnes said Thursday that Sessoms will be an "outstanding representative" of the teaching profession.

"He's a very personable, outgoing person," said Starnes, who stood beside Sessoms as he took the call Thursday afternoon from state superintendent Craig Phillips.

"Merv just gave me a thumbs up, indicating he had gotten it," Starnes said. "We weren't surprised; we kind of suspected he would get it."

Sessoms, of Maggie Valley, was selected from three finalists chosen from the state's eight district representatives. The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill graduate said he was confident after the selection committee's visit to the school Monday, but he admitted that that confidence began to slip as the week progressed.

"By the time this morning rolled around I had decided I was in third place," he said. "You know how you just pick yourself apart."

Sessoms, who has taught English, journalism and creative writing at Tuscola for 12 years, could not pinpoint one particular characteristic or style that might have impressed the committee.

Forest Fire Contained

By The Associated Press
Firefighters say a 200-acre forest fire in Madison County is staying inside fire lines, and another blaze in Buncombe County that sent flames soaring 50 feet in the air was contained early today.

The fire on Hamburg Mountain near Weaverville burned about 80 acres, fire officials said, and at one point threatened several houses.

Firefighters managed to cut the fire off and no one was evacuated.

Two volunteer fire departments and a crew from the N.C. Forest Service was keeping an eye on the fire this morning.

Several smaller fires were reported in Buncombe, Yancey, Madison and Polk counties Thursday, but none caused much damage.

Sentenced

WARRENTON, N.C. (AP) — A Norlina youth sentenced to 20 years for burning the Four Oaks School in Smithfield has received another 20-year sentence after pleading guilty to stealing a car and burning a middle school in Warren County.

Robert Edward Norris, 16, was sentenced under a plea-bargain agreement negotiated by his attorney, Marvin Rooker, to ensure the youth's jail term would not exceed the previous sentence and would run concurrently.

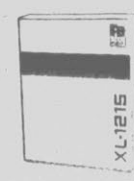

In addition, Norris must pay restitution of $800 to the owner of the stolen vehicle if he becomes eligible for work release.

Hearing Speakers Support Martin Proposal To Realign State Agencies

SOUTHERN VIEWS — North Carolina Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, right, talks with S. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, in Washington, D.C., on Thursday. Jordan testified at a committee hearing on economic development in the South. (AP Laserphoto)

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin's plan to dismantle the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development and combine health, environmental and natural resources programs in a new agency has drawn support from both environmentalists and business groups.

Most of the state officials and representatives of environmental, professional, business and public-interest groups who spoke before a legislative study committee Thursday praised the consolidation concept, though some disagreed with details of Martin's complicated blueprint.

The most frequently voiced concerns were that certain programs would get less attention and funding under the governor's proposal.

The most debated issue in the hearing was whether public health programs such as epidemiology, maternal and child health and dental health should be shifted from the Department of Human Resources to the new Department of Health and Environment.

Martin's plan would move the programs to keep them together with environmental health programs.

Paul Wilms, director of the Division of Environmental Management, said that the two belong together because public health and the environment are inextricably bound.

"Traditional human health protection programs in and of themselves are incapable of protecting human health without a concomitant effort to protect the ecology of which all life ultimately depends," Wilms told members of the legislative study committee on environmental regulatory agencies.

Consolidation would improve the efficiency and effectiveness of existing programs, he said, because there will be a single set of policies and a single thrust. Budget priorities will also be easier to set if programs are in one department, he said.

Phil Kirk, Martin's chief of staff, joined Wilms in urging that environmental and public health programs be kept together, as did state health director Ron Levine.

But Stephanie Register, president of the N.C. Speech, Hearing and Language Association, questioned whether children's health programs would get lost in a consolidated department.

"It's hard to see why maternal and child health should be in a department with a primary focus on the environment," she said. "How will those programs fare compared to the environment? We feel there will inevitably be trade-offs."

Roberta W. Faison, president of the North Carolina Community Action Association, said her group was not necessarily opposed to shifting the Division of Economic Opportunity from NRCD to the Department of Human Resources.

But she voiced concern that the DEO's anti-poverty programs would be "lost in the shuffle" in DHR and urged lawmakers to ensure that the beneficiaries wouldn't be hurt. "These are the silent minority of our state. ... They deserve a voice."

Ellis Hankins, general counsel for the North Carolina League of Municipalities, proposed creation of a department on housing and community development to ensure that those programs would not be scattered and lose their clout.

The purpose of the consolidation plan, which Martin presented to the study committee in mid-February, is to boost efficiency by consolidating environmental, health and economic development programs currently scattered among numerous departments, agencies, boards and commissions.

Jordan Says Cuts Hurt Rural South

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan says the federal government has dismantled or severely cut programs which were designated to support rural areas, further isolating those areas from the economic mainstream.

Jordan, a Democrat, told the Senate Budget Committee Thursday that Southerners "were stripped of our tools for responding to economic crises just at the time we were afflicted by the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression. That is the legacy of the new federalism for the rural South."

Jordan said the South remained "the nation's No. 1 domestic problem."

The committee was discussing rural development in general rather than a specific bill. Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., the chairman, said the federal budget was too tight to allow for major new programs, "but I believe that there is a federal role in assisting rural areas and it can be undertaken within a constrained budget."

Jordan said three "unintended consequences" of federal policies have added to the economic problems of rural areas:

— High interest rates and the high value of the dollar have hurt exports, including many products made in the South.

— "Deregulation of transportation has meant that it is more expensive to move goods and people in and out of rural areas by truck and by plane," Jordan said.

— "Banking deregulation, while generally positive, has tended to place funds (for loans) in the hands of those who have little understanding of the credit needs of non-metropolitan producers," he said.

Audit Raps NCCU Bookkeeping

DURHAM (AP) — The financial records of North Carolina Central University were in such disarray that auditors were forced to spend twice the normal time examining them, a routine audit says.

The audit called the university's financial practices "among the worst" ever seen at a University of North Carolina campus.

"It's bad bookkeeping," L. Felix Joyner, the UNC system vice president of finance, told the News and Observer of Raleigh. "It's a lot of instances of bad bookkeeping — and some clear need for organization and procedural change that is beyond bookkeeping."

Among the problems were late bill-paying, sloppy collection of outstanding loans and inconsistent records.

Martin Says Aged Need More Funds

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin says he will ask the General Assembly for an additional $5 million this summer to expand services for older adults and help them remain in their own homes when possible instead of moving to rest homes.

Martin said he would include the proposals in his 1988-89 budget supplement the Legislature will consider during its June session. He said he would ask that the expenditures be continued in the 1989-90 biennium, when he'll seek an additional $43 million for further program improvements.

"These initiatives will address some of the most pressing concerns of our older adults in North Carolina, but will in no way provide full and complete funding for all the services necessary," Martin said. "We are, however, beginning the effort."

The Republican governor unveiled his plan before employees of the state Division of Aging and other officials on the grounds of a senior activity center in suburban Raleigh.

He spoke from a platform flanked by the U.S. and North Carolina flags. Behind him, a banner fluttered in the breeze that read: "Celebrating a Lifetime — Year of the Older Adult in 1988." Martin proclaimed 1988 as a year for state government to emphasize the elderly.

At a news conference, he said the program had not been timed to coincide with the election campaign. "Every year we have to come along with something. I don't think you'd ask us to be looking for ways to improve the quality of life in North Carolina just because it's an election year."

The Legislature ordered the administration to develop an aging policy last year, and some Democratic lawmakers have accused Martin of trying to reap credit for their idea.

"You don't have to mention my name at all or give me credit," he said. "I'm making a proposal."

WHEN DO WE SLEEP?

The question is sometimes asked of us in the real estate profession "When do you sleep?" We usually answer "In between appointments!"

There is an interesting aspect to our profession, that being that we do not have "jobs" in real estate. In a way, real estate isn't even a "career". It's a way of life! Since we work by appointment with buyers and sellers, we don't have set working hours. You may find us in our office or car at 6:30 AM or 12 midnight, weekdays or weekends.

Because ours is a service business, we understand that we must tailor our appointment times to coincide with the needs of you, our buying and selling public, and so we do. And with a little advance notice, we'll be happy to set aside time to include you and your housing needs in our busy schedule.

When we're not working directly with our customers and clients, we can usually be found out in the neighborhoods inspecting new homes, or at the courthouse examining deeds and other records. We also spend a great deal of time staying in touch with mortgage lenders, bankers, lawyers and other real estate related individuals.

We believe that serving your housing needs requires that we maintain a high level of knowledge and expertise. We do that through our many daily contacts and frequent attendance at training and educational functions.

'976' Phone Service Offers Callers

RALEIGH (AP) — For $3 a call, lonely people in Raleigh are now trying to reach out and touch someone. "Hello. All I have to say is ... I'm lonely and looking for somebody lonely like me," said one hesitant female voice taking advantage of a new telephone dating service. "And ... I am 19."

The dating service, offered by Continental Communications, is just one of 10 information services — known as "976 services" for the first three digits of the phone numbers — using the telephone lines of Southern Bell Telephone Co.

Callers can learn the latest sports scores, hear a new ethnic joke or a romance story, or find out what happened on their favorite afternoon soap operas.

Even though one of the most controversial new services, "Dial-A-Porn," is not a 976 service, some parents don't like the content of the 976 calls or the extra charges that are showing up on their phone bills.

Costs of the dating services range from $2.49 to $3 a call; calls for jokes and other services are 95 cents a call. The maximum cost per call is limited to $5. Companies providing 976 services get most of the money, but the calls also provide revenue for Southern Bell, which earns 10 cents for the first 30 seconds of a call and a penny for each additional 30 seconds.

The 976 services became available in Raleigh March 1, but they have been offered in Charlotte since 1985. People living outside those areas can reach them with long-distance calls.

Gene A. Clemmons, director of the communications division for the state utilities commission Public Staff, said most of the complaints his office had received so far dealt with the cost of 976 calls.

Southern Bell spokesman Lois B. Jones said that 976 calls can become a useful telephone service once consumers educate themselves about its uses and costs.

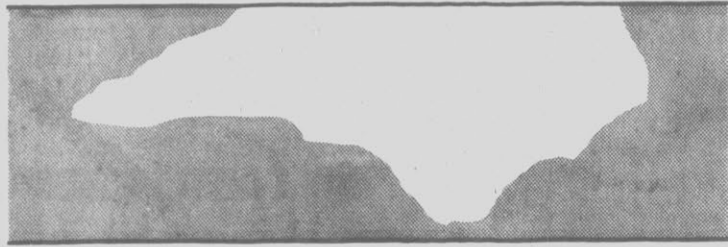

or from offering conversation lines, such as a teen "Gabbline" in Charlotte that allows callers to join in group calls.

The company doesn't allow Dial-A-Porn services and prohibits 976 companies from providing any message which refers to sexual conduct, or which contains "sexual innuendo which arouses or attempts to arouse sexual desire." Meanwhile, letters have started coming into the Utilities Commission seeking action against Dial-A-Porn services, which are located in other states.

"There is inconceivable obscene conversation being made available to our children by purveyors of this smut," James White of Cary said in a January letter to commission Chairman Robert Wells. "Literally millions of dollars are being made by pornographers and what is even more inconceivable to me is that the phone companies — public utilities — are willing partners in this moral crime against our children."

Timothy D. Johnson, president of Continental Advertisers, said that the controversy over Dial-A-Porn had given all 976 services a bad name. His company is managing partner of Continental Communications, one of two 976 companies in the Raleigh area.

Skulls Taken

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — The Edgecombe County Sheriff's Department is investigating the thefts of skulls from two graves at Marks Chapel Church cemetery.

A caretaker reported this week that the two crypt-type graves had been disturbed. The coffins in the crypts had been forced open and the skulls were removed.

Shaw was charged with possession with intent to sell cocaine and maintaining a dwelling for controlled substance. He has been placed in the Lenoir County Jail under $50,000 bond.

The 14-year-old was charged under a juvenile petition with possession with intent to sell and deliver cocaine and maintaining a dwelling for controlled substance. He was taken to the Juvenile Detention facility in Greenville.

Sentenced

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Convicted murderer Kenneth Freeman has been sentenced to life imprisonment plus 48 years, following a jury's recommendation that rejected the death penalty.

Freeman, 24, of Route 7, Fayetteville, was convicted of first-degree murder, first-degree burglary and felony larceny, in the November 1986 slaying of 70-year-old Jonas Buxton.

Judge Robert Hobgood sentenced Freeman to a mandatory life term for first-degree murder, a consecutive 40-year term for the first-degree burglary, and an eight-year term consecutive to the sentence in the burglary case for the felony larceny.

Farm Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — Strong support from farmers has improved the chances for legislation that would require lenders and farmers to negotiate over delinquent accounts before foreclosure, the sponsor of the measure said Wednesday.

"I'm encouraged," Rep. Sidney Locks, D-Robeson, said after a legislative study commission meeting on the issue. "My feeling is that we probably have more support than we did at the outset."

The study commission authorized its staff to begin working with lending institutions and farm groups in an effort to reach a compromise bill. But any bill will not be considered until the 1989 session of the General Assembly.

Mom Drops Cream Suit

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Rowan County woman has dropped a $12 million lawsuit against Ciba-Geigy Corp. because she couldn't prove that a cream it sells for poison ivy relief caused her daughter's death, a Ciba-Geigy attorney says.

"She wasn't able to find any expert testimony to link the drug PBZ to her daughter's ultimate death," Kiran Mehta, a Charlotte attorney for Ciba-Geigy, said Wednesday. "Without that kind of testimony, she wouldn't have been able to win."

Both Patsy Wiles of Rockwell and Ciba-Geigy agreed to dismiss the lawsuit in papers filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Greensboro. Mehta said Wiles did not receive a financial settlement from Ciba-Geigy to drop the case.

No Protest

RALEIGH (AP) — A Carolina Power & Light Co. representative says the utility would not object to placing a regional low-level radioactive waste facility on its land if the land met the state's siting criteria.

Robert Richey, manager of licensing and nuclear fuel, responded to environmentalists' claims that the best place for such a facility in north carolina is at the power plants where the waste is created.

Richey added, however, that the plant site may not be the best site because the criteria used to locate a nuclear plant are not necessarily the same criteria used for siting a waste facility.

Richey's comments came after Raleigh public hearing on the state's siting criteria for the proposed regional waste facility.

Spell Award

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Attorneys representing Henry Spell have filed documents seeking an additional $388,608 from Fayetteville for representing Spell during the city's unsuccessful appeals in a police brutality lawsuit.

Attorneys for the city have filed a response saying the hourly rate requested by Spell's attorneys and the number of hours they claim to have spent on the case are "unreasonable."

A U.S. District Court jury ruled in 1985 that Spell was left sterile when police officer Charles D. McDaniel kned him in the groin in November 1983. Spell, 31, a former Autryville man now living in Meigs, Ga., was under arrest for driving while impaired and possession of methamphetamine at the time of the incident.

The city appealed the case to 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear the case on Jan. 19. The city paid Spell $1.46 million on Jan. 20 for damages, attorney fees and interest on the 1985 judgment.

Drug Raid

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Kinston police arrested two juveniles from New York City and confiscated money and drugs totaling about $11,957 Wednesday at the Holiday Inn on U.S. 70.

Troy Shaw, 16, and a 14-year-old juvenile were arrested at the hotel.

Bush Speaks Out; Gephardt Looks For A 'Miracle'

By LAURA KING

Associated Press Writer
Vice President George Bush lashed out at Jesse Jackson for criticizing him on civil rights, accusing the Democratic contender of "talking when he should have been listening." Democrat Richard Gephardt, meanwhile, clung to a candidacy he said could be saved by a "Michigan miracle."

All five Democratic presidential candidates were in Michigan today, scouring the state for votes on the eve of Saturday's caucuses, with 138 delegates at stake.

Gephardt aides said Thursday that without a win this weekend, the Missouri congressman would end his presidential bid and run for re-election to his House seat. The filing deadline for the House seat is Tuesday.

Bush campaigned in Connecticut, where he was expected to cruise to an easy win in Tuesday's primary. He grew up in the state, and his father was a U.S. senator from Connecticut.

Bush has been under fire in recent days for supporting President Reagan's veto of a sweeping civil rights bill. Congress overrode the veto this week.

The vice president said he favored the basic premise of the bill, but didn't want to go against the president on the matter. Besides, he said, the legislation was flawed. Jackson has scoffed at that, saying Bush lacks leadership.

"Perhaps Rev. Jackson was talking when he should have been listening," Bush retorted Thursday. "If he's the nominee, we'll have a chance to discuss civil rights records and I'll lay my record on the ground with anybody."

Bush suggested Jackson's Democratic rivals were too timid about criticizing him. "It's not that I'm afraid to do what some Democrats are afraid to do — go after him," he said.

At a news conference, the vice president also expressed admiration for former White House aide Oliver North, who pleaded innocent Thursday in Washington to criminal charges in connection with the Iran-Contra affair.

"I think anybody who sheds his blood for his country and wins a Purple Heart — three of them — and a Silver Star deserves whatever accolades one gets for that kind of stellar heroic performance," he said.

Bush said he did not expect the arms-for-hostages affair to hurt his campaign.

"The Democrats will be trying to raise it and make an issue out of it," he said, but added: "I don't think anyone has ever implicated me or suggested any wrongdoing."

For the second time this week, a poll suggested Bush would have a tough fight on his hands if he were running against Democrat Michael Dukakis. A CBS-New York Times poll indicated 46 percent of all registered voters polled favored Bush and 45 percent backed Dukakis. The margin of error was plus or minus 3 percentage points.

A survey by ABC News and The Washington Post also put the two neck and neck, with Dukakis polling the best against Bush among the Democrats.

Dukakis had a round of appearances today in Michigan. On Thursday, he was replenishing an already impressive campaign treasury with fundraisers in California.

In Los Angeles, the Massachusetts governor fielded questions in English and Spanish. Asked whether he would consider a Hispanic running mate, he answered "Vamos a ver" — we'll see.

Republican Pat Robertson, who was crushed in the big round of Super Tuesday contests earlier this month, said no matter what the press or anyone else says, his candidacy isn't dead.

Teen-Ager Comes Down From Pole After 517 Days

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — After nearly a year and a half perched atop two 43-foot poles to raise money for cancer research, Mellissa L. Sanders came down to earth to a place in the record books and the fiance she has never dated.

"Everything looks so small, so different from here," Miss Sanders, 19, said Thursday after a fire truck's bucket brought her down from the three-story-high shack where she spent 517 days with her feline companion, Pole Cat.

"My knees are wobbly but I feel great," said Miss Sanders, who was embraced by her mother, Mauri Rose Sanders.

"Without the cat, I would never have made it," she said. "It was pretty cramped quarters, but it wasn't so bad. I'll miss it."

Miss Sanders' shack in the sky measured 6-by-7-by-9 feet. It had a plastic kiddie pool for bathing, a chemical toilet, television and a telephone that resulted in regular $300 phone bills.

Among the 1,000 people waiting on the ground for Miss Sanders was her fiance, 25-year-old Keith Seal of Monterey, Calif.

"She's kind of hesitant," Seal said. "She's wondering what's going to happen and knows she'll miss all the attention."

The pole sitter thanked her sponsors, and accepted bouquets and contributions. Then she climbed into a stretch limousine for a drive around town. Miss Sanders said she was looking forward to "a good long walk and a real shower."

She raised $10,000 for cancer research, but had hoped her effort would bring $100,000. Her sister, Rebecca, has cancer and has been in remission for four years.

The Tucson, Ariz., native broke the world pole sitting record Feb. 26 when she overtook the 488-day mark set by Mark Sutton of Victoria, British Columbia, winning her a place in the Guinness Book of World Records.

Pole sitting runs in the family. Her mother set a record in 1959 by spending 211 days in the air.

"I'm sure she'll look back on this with fond memories," said Miss Sanders' aunt, Tanya Bowles of Indianapolis. "Maybe she saved a life by doing this. And that's about all you can ask for."

Firefighters were on hand to make sure Miss Sanders got down safely.

"She's going to look up and be lonely when she passes by here next," said Perry Township Fire Chief David Betzner. "It's been her home and when you take someone out of their home — no matter how much they want to go — they're going to look back with longing."

However, Seal said Miss Sanders was not coming down a moment too soon. "I've been waiting a year for this," he said.

Mrs. Sanders agreed it was time for her daughter to return to earth.

"All this doesn't seem real," said Mrs. Sanders. "We want her back with us, but honestly it seems like only yesterday that she went up there."

Before coming down, Miss Sanders said there "were some real sad times, times that were real hard."

"But I always knew I would make it, even when I was scared or going through hard times," said Miss Sanders, who rode out 70 mph winds during a February snowstorm.

Miss Sanders plans to return to Arizona in May, and hopes to go to a trade school there.

Seal first contacted Miss Sanders after reading a newspaper story about her in November 1986. They communicated, but did not meet in person until November 1987.

"Now that she's getting down, we have to start dating," said Seal. "I mean we're already engaged and we haven't even gone on a date."

He predicted that the next time the couple passed by the intersection where they first met, "I'll probably look up, then over to her and say she was crazy for spending a year and a half of her life up there."

DOWN TO EARTH — Mellissa Sanders, 19, of Indianapolis celebrates after leaving her 5-by-7-perch tree-level house Thursday. She spent 516 days in the house 43 feet above the ground. She had attempted to raise $100,000 for cancer research, but donations totaled only $10,000. (AP Laserphoto)

Du Pont Ending CFC Production

L.A. Times-Washington Post

WASHINGTON — E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., the world's leading producer of chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs), called Thursday for a total phaseout of the chemicals to prevent destruction of the Earth's protective ozone layer.

In a dramatic reversal of its position, Du Pont said that recent scientific findings about the extent of global ozone depletion had convinced the company that an international treaty calling for 50 percent cuts in CFC production over the next decade is not stringent enough to prevent serious damage to the ozone layer.

"Du Pont sets as its goal an orderly transition to the total phaseout" of the most damaging CFC products, the company said in a statement delivered Thursday to the Environmental Protection Agency and several members of Congress.

Du Pont invented CFCs and sells $600 million worth of them annually, about one-fourth of the world's supply.

46 Aliens Found In Airless Boxcar

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — A special sweep of railroad traffic is credited with rescuing illegal aliens from possible suffocation in airtight boxcars, Border Patrol agents say.

"We feel that at least some of them would not have made it to Houston," Silvestre Reyes, chief of the Border Patrol's McAllen Sector, said Thursday.

The 46 aliens, some of them dehydrated, had been crouched in a four-foot-high space in the boxcar about seven hours when discovered with the aid of dogs, Reyes said.

"Many of them were happy that they were finally out of that place, and said they were concerned that they were going to die in there," he said.

Agents this week have been searching nearly every train car at a stop about six miles north of Harlingen. By Thursday the crackdown had netted 370 undocumented aliens and 120 pounds of marijuana, the patrol said.

"We identified three particular (smuggling) organizations out of this," Reyes said.

In discovering the dehydrated group in the sealed car, along with 16 more in two other cars, he said agents probably averted a tragedy similar to the incident last summer in the West Texas town of Sierra Blanca.

Agents there found 18 aliens suffocated to death inside a sealed boxcar.

Although temperatures in the lower Rio Grande Valley have ranged in the 50s this week, the temperature inside the boxcar with 46 people in it was around 90 degrees, and would have become hotter, Reyes said.

The group rescued Monday was dehydrated, but did not require hospitalization, Reyes said.

More than 100 aliens escaped during the train raids, agents reported.

Kremlin OKs Armenian Appeasement Program But Orders Troops On Patrol

MOSCOW (AP) — Red Army helicopters and troops patrolled the Armenian capital today after the Kremlin endorsed a plan aimed at ending ethnic strife in the region by improving the lot of Armenians cut off from their homeland.

Also today, the governments of the two southern republics plagued by the unrest — Armenia and Azerbaijan — issued regulations prohibiting public meetings without official permission in an apparent attempt to prevent more violence.

The Politburo adopted an eight-year plan to build more housing, roads, schools and social services in Nagorno-Karabakh, a region of Azerbaijan where Armenians make up more than 75 percent of the 160,000 population, the official Tass news agency reported Thursday night.

Armenians, who are predominantly Christian, have been demanding that the region, which is smaller than Delaware, be annexed to the neighboring Armenian republic, though there is no common border. Azerbaijan is overwhelmingly Moslem.

The Kremlin plan for Nagorno-Karabakh also assures the local population that television transmission will be upgraded so they can receive broadcasts in Armenian as well as the national network and Azeri programming.

Other assurances, such as better supplies of Armenian-language books and preservation of historical and cultural monuments, address issues that incited Armenians to demand annexation for the mountainous region, which has been part of Azerbaijan since 1923.

The annexation drive drew hundreds of thousands of Armenians into the streets of the Armenian capital of Yerevan last month and triggered rioting in Azerbaijan that, by official count, killed at least 32 people and injured nearly 200.

In Azerbaijan, Radio Baku reported today that public assemblies, meetings and street demonstrations will be allowed only by permit to be applied for at least 10 days in advance. Those violating the order face criminal penalties, ac-ording to the broadcast monitored in London.

Armenia instituted a similar ban on unsanctioned demonstrations earlier in the week, according to Radio Yerevan.

It was not immediately clear whether the government plan would succeed in pacifying Armenians worried that Nagorno-Karabakh is losing its ethnic identity. But one official source in Armenia reported a generally quiet, though tense, atmosphere today.

A duty officer at the republic's Ministry of Internal Affairs, responsible for police operations, told The Associated Press by telephone from Yerevan that the city was "fairly quiet."

The officer, who declined to give his name or detailed information, confirmed Red Army helicopters and security troops were patrolling the capital to keep order.

Calls to Azerbaijan did not go through today.

Moscow-based dissidents reported Thursday that the atmosphere in Armenia was "filled with tension."

Britain Opens Hunt For Nazi Criminals

LONDON (AP) — Minister Margaret Thatcher's government advertised in national circulation newspapers today for information about Nazi war criminals at home or abroad.

The ads were taken out in the Times of London and other papers by a special war crimes inquiry panel established after the Nazi-hunting Simon Wiesenthal Center accused the government of failing to seek and prosecute war criminals.

"War Criminals — Evidence Wanted," reads the ad's heading.

"It is alleged that some war criminals responsible for genocide, murder or manslaughter in Germany or German-occupied territories during the Second World War are in the UK (United Kingdom)," it says. "Others with British nationality may be living elsewhere in the world. The names of some suspects have already been sent to the Home Office."

The advertisements say that when the inquiry is complete, Home Minister Douglas Hurd will advise the government "whether there is sufficient evidence to justify the prosecution of the alleged offenders."

They ask anyone with "any information that you think may be relevant" to write the Home Office. The ads are to be repeated in newspapers Sunday.

The inquiry panel is headed by the former director of public prosecutions, Sir Thomas Hetherington, and William Chambers, a former senior government official in Scotland.

Hetherington and Chambers will spend a year investigating evidence and interviewing people with information in Britain and abroad, including in the Soviet Union.

Efrain Zurroff, director of the Wiesenthal Center's Israel office, last month gave British officials the names of two more alleged war criminals and more evidence against nine suspects the government already confirmed are living in Britain.

Zurroff said at that time that the center expects dozens of suspected war criminals living in Britain and other Western countries to stand trial within 18 months as new legal changes close in on the suspects.

He said in an interview in London last month that, before Hurd set up the inquiry, Britain was the only major Western country that refused to take any action against alleged war criminals.

The Los Angeles-based Wiesenthal center has submitted the names of a total of 256 suspects to eight countries — Australia, Brazil, Britain, Canada, Sweden, the United States, Venezuela and West Germany.

Sandinistas Recall Field Patrols

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Sandinistas began pulling army patrols out of jungle war zones throughout Nicaragua to avoid clashes that could imperil their newly signed peace accord with the U.S.-supported Contra rebels.

The Defense Ministry reported no fighting on Thursday, the third full day of a cease-fire agreed to during talks at the southern border town of Sapoa that ended with the previous night's unexpected agreement. Radio Liberacion, the Contras' radio station, has reported no combat since Monday.

Both sides had called the Sapoa talks Nicaragua's last chance for peace, and civilians greeted word of the pact with hope. One critic of the leftist Sandinista government called it a miracle.

Vice President Sergio Ramirez, in Mexico City to brief Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid, called Thursday night for direct talks with the Reagan administration to ensure the truce holds.

The White House has rejected previous Sandinista calls for such talks, saying the Sandinistas had first to negotiate with the rebels.

In Nicaragua, Sandinista troops withdrew Thursday from a jungle war zone in central Chontales province, said a state security official who spoke on condition of anonymity. The province has been a hot spot in the 6-year-old war that has cost more than 40,000 lives.

To celebrate the accord, dozens of women gathered in the main square of the Chontales city of Juigalpa and "lit candles to the Virgin Mary," a Defense Ministry spokesman said.

As part of the agreement, Contra and Sandinista leaders extended the informal cease-fire to April 1, when a 60-day truce takes effect and they will meet in Managua to seek a permanent peace.

The media celebrated the accord as promising a definitive end to the conflict with its promise to allow the Contras a role in the political process.

The headline in Thursday's opposition daily La Prensa said: "Nicaragua Triumphs."

FDA Moving Slowly On Drug Standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has moved too slowly on guidelines for drug testing and labeling designed to prevent a growing misuse of drugs by the elderly, a Senate panel was told today.

On June 28, 1983, an FDA deputy commissioner told the Senate Committee on Aging that the agency was developing standards to make sure elderly patients were included in tests of new drugs used for ailments common in elderly people.

But the guidelines remained unpublished, witnesses told the same panel in prepared testimony today.

"Although the FDA has been discussing the possibility of guidelines for including the elderly in pre-marketing tests for years, no requirement has yet been promulgated," said physician Jerry Avorn of the Harvard Medical School.

Without the standards, he said there has been "great variability in the eagerness with which drug companies have sought out the elderly in the investigational stages of a new drug."

The committee's ranking Republican, Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., said, "Five years later, the FDA is still dragging its feet."

FDA spokesman Bill Grigg said in an interview before the hearing that the agency has circulated draft guidelines among drug companies for the past two years.

Asked why the geriatric testing standards had not yet been promulgated, Grigg said they were being fine-tuned and that the industry was following them, even in their unfinished form.

Grigg said the FDA was invited March 15 by committee chairman John Melcher, D-Mont., to testify at today's hearing, but declined because it had received such short notice. He said the agency was supplying the panel with any information it wanted.

Better drug labeling and including senior citizens in early testing of drugs were seen by Avorn and William Simonson, associate professor of pharmacy at Oregon State University, as a key to curbing adverse drug reactions among the elderly.

They had concentrated on providing undergraduate and performing arts information.

Co-chairmen of Expo Wayne Dempsey of Wachovia Bank and Mark Garner of Rivers and Associates said they were pleased with the first day of Expo.

"It went very well yesterday," Dempsey said. "It was very organized, and there are a lot of interesting exhibits."

Attendance is "about what we anticipated" and is comparable to last year's record for the first day, he said. "We project it will increase today and tomorrow based on previous years."

Garner said many of the exhibitors are new to the trade show, so "they're not all repeats." People visiting "will see some different things."

ELISHA, ALONE, TENDS TO THE DEAD YOUTH...

...THE PROPHET PLACES HIS MOUTH ON THAT OF THE YOUNG LAD...

...AND NOW HE PRAYS TO THE LORD...

Charm Bracelets Return With A Whimsical Touch

By JOY HAENLEIN
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Drag out your jewelry box and start digging: Charm bracelets are back in style.

Top designers are showing them with today's pared-down clothing in glossy fashion magazines. Jewelry manufacturers are dangling everything from '50s memorabilia to guitar-strumming mummies and big buttons from chunky-link bracelets.

Magazine editors think they may be the most exciting "retro" item to hit the comeback trail since limoleum and tuna noodle casserole.

"They're sort of charming and witty and fun," Elissa Santisi, accessories editor at Glamour magazine, said of charm bracelets. "With clothes so simple now they're a natural accessory. And they fall right into that retro trend, with all the gingham and little checks and little handbags."

The charm bracelet revival is expected to continue at least through fall, when antique-looking charm bracelets with a baroque or byzantine feeling hit jewelry showrooms.

"Charm bracelets are an interesting way of collecting whatever is popular," said Arnold Desmarais, vice-president of jewelry at the Franklin Mint, where a '50s charm bracelet sells for $195.

"And the scale and size of today's charm bracelet allows you to do so much," he added.

True, many charm bracelets of 20 years ago were smaller — and yes, cornier — than this year's model, with charms that commemorated the wearer's church confirmation or family trip to St. Louis. While some design authorities say the old costume varieties are definitely out — "There're such stagey little things," a Chanel spokeswoman said others have a soft spot for the sentimental pieces.

"I like charms because, to me, they are a very personal thing," said Robert E. Green of Hartford, president of the Jewelers of America. "It used to be that a boyfriend would give a scissor charm to a girlfriend who was a hairdresser. You went to San Francisco, and you'd bring back a trolley charm. Every charm meant something."

Today's charm bracelets make more of a fashion than a personal statement, with charms that are whimsical, not nostalgic. Said Camilla Macheson of Chanel: "It's high fashion with a sense of humor." Charm bracelets are a natural progression from the bold buttons and link chain clothing details used so frequently at Chanel, Macheson explained. Designers expanded on the look by creating charms for spring that depict different aspects of founder Coco Chanel's life. There's a handbag, shoe, medallion with Chanel's face, a number 5 to signify her perfume, clover leaf for luck and a reproduction of a painting of the reclining Chanel smoking a cigarette.

For fall, two charms — a coin with Chanel's picture and the Eiffel Tower — will repeat on one bracelet, Macheson said. Suggested retail price: about $785.

Donna Karan's pebble and medallion charm bracelets are like her form-fitting spring clothing — fun and frivolous, with plenty of movement, said a spokesperson for Artwear's Robert Lee Morris, who designed Karan's bracelets.

But there's more. Karan apparently thinks charm bracelets are downright primal.

"Donna thinks the noise of a woman is a charm bracelet, in the same way that perfume is a woman's scent," said Patty Cohen of Karan's accessory division. "Charm bracelets have a very sensual feeling. A moving, sensual feeling."

They can also border on the bizarre — a development widely attributed to English jewelry designer Tom Binns. Guitar-playing mummies, angels pushing lawnmowers, and Donald Duck characters in high heels make his charm bracelets decidedly off-beat.

The look is a bit tamer at Erwin Pearl in New York, with an anchor, sand dollar, shell and other nautical symbols "with a feeling of the royal Navy" dangling from a $52 bracelet for spring, said Suzanne Pearl, the company's vice president. There's a baroque version to complement a more Old World look in clothing this fall, with coins, family crests, scarabs, horses and other charms with an antique finish, Pearl said. Those bracelets will retail for $46 to $122, and will be available at Saks Fifth Avenue and Bloomingdale's in Stamford in late April.

Nocturnal saw so much promise in the charm bracelet revival last fall that it purchased the inventory of a Manhattan button company. The fruits of that venture are now in Saks Fifth Avenue showcases all over the country, in the form of 30-button charm bracelets, said designer Henrik Bang. The pieces retail for about $70.

The "enormous, clunky" bracelets are the perfect complement for the season's pared-down, basic clothing, Bang maintained.

"Because you're wearing something this spring that doesn't look clumsy, you can wear a piece of jewelry that is very loud," he said, "which this bracelet is."

Old Wounds Scar Plans

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My wedding plans are giving me nightmares. I have two fathers — my biological father (he and my mother were divorced when I was 3 years old) and my stepfather who raised me from the age of 5.

I want both my fathers to give me away, but I couldn't possibly choose between them. I also want my mother to have a part in giving me away, but she may not come. The problem is my biological father's wife. I really don't want her. She's the one who caused my parents' divorce, and my mother does not even speak to her. My real father says he won't come without his wife.

My mother said she could tolerate having my real father at my wedding, but she will not come if his wife is there.

I want this day to be a happy one, so how do I solve these problems? My stepfather is an angel, and says he will do whatever makes me happy. — WEDDING WORRIES

DEAR WORRIES: While "giving the bride away" is traditional in most wedding ceremonies, it is not essential and can be omitted. In recent years, the mother alone has given her daughter in marriage.

What a pity that your mother and biological father cannot put away their bitterness for the sake of family harmony on their daughter's wedding day. You cannot (nor should you try to) coerce either parent into doing anything. Invite them both and let the decision rest with them.

DEAR ABBY: The gentleman I am presently dating is 56 years old and twice divorced. He takes frequent business trips and sends me letters when he's away. His letters are very graphic — telling me what he would like to share with me (sexually), then describing it all in what he considers erotic detail.

Abby, I am a lady. None of this turns me on — in fact it turns me off!

Why would a man write this sort of stuff? Does he think I enjoy it? I am definitely going to tell him how I feel about it, but I'd like to know if there is some psychological reason for his behavior. — TURNED OFF

DEAR TURNED OFF: Some men do it to turn themselves on — hoping it will create the same effect in the recipient. There are women who enjoy such letters, but since you're not one of them, by all means tell the man that you find such explicit letters offensive, and you want no more.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old female who has never been married. Over the past 18 years (half my life) I have been invited to, and given, more bridal showers than I can count! It has always been my pleasure to attend these showers of close friends and family members. I do not live extravagantly and I've always managed to "make ends meet" living from paycheck to paycheck.

Two of my aunts have decided it's time that a "single's shower" was held for me! This is very tempting, as I would love to have matching towels, a complete set of china, crystal, etc.

I do not begrudge any of the gifts I have given brides, but had I kept everything I've given, I would not need a thing! My aunts feel that people who live alone need the same basic items as those who are about to be married, and it's high time I was on the receiving end. I really appreciate my family wanting to help me out, but I'm not sure it would be in good taste. What's your opinion? — MISS VICKI IN TORONTO

DEAR MISS VICKI: When I first heard about such a shower for a single woman, I thought, "Here's an idea whose time has come!" I think it's a great idea, and cannot imagine anyone to whom you have given taking offense. (Call it a "Don't get mad — get even" shower.)

P.S. Should you become engaged, please don't allow anyone to shower you, lest those who have already given object to being "soaked."

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letters Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Postage and handling are included.

Designer Shooting For High-Caliber Style

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press Writer
CANONSBURG, Pa. (AP) —
Every week or so, Patty Ludwin lugs a rifle out to the back yard, casually aims at a pile of jeans on the ground, then fires once, twice, so many times she loses count.

"It's putting bullets to a good use, rather than going around killing people with them," the fashion designer said, blasting holes into a pair of blue denims.

The 33-year-old entrepreneur sells her bullet-riddled Calamity Jeans for $45 a pair. Her trademark is a leather bull's eye stitched to the right hip pocket and a spent .357-caliber Magnum cartridge that dangles from the patch.

She also creates Calamity Jewels: earrings, necklaces, belts, boot bracelets, key chains and just about anything else she can make with dull, lead bullets and the shinier brass and nickel casings.

Her jewelry, which ranges in price from $4 to $65, triggered intense interest at specialty stores from Pittsburgh to Hawaii.

"You couldn't wear it with a business suit or a nice dress. That would be kind of strange," said Debbie Bragle of Pittsburgh's trendy J. DeStefino Cosmetique shop. "But with the right outfit, it's great."

There are those who wouldn't be caught dead packing the "loaded" look.

"I wish I were there. I'd picket her. I think it's sick. I honestly think it's sick," said Mr. Blackwell, a Los Angeles fashion designer and creator of the annual 10 Worst Dressed List.

Still, the acerbic arbiter of haute couture isn't surprised by the appeal.

"There's a certain amount of fashion madness that will be bought," he says. "If Seventh Avenue would come out with greasy paper bags, you'd have every woman (in Manhattan) wearing a greasy paper bag."

In a townhouse in a quiet, woody complex 350 miles from New York City, Ms. Ludwin is taking her best shot at breaking into the fickle fashion market.

She took up designer jeans in 1986 after a friend invited her over for target practice on a roving boyfriend's treasured possession.

"She said he was cheating on her and she was going to take his favorite pair of blue jeans and shoot holes in them," Ms. Ludwin recalled, laughing.

Afterward, when the women pulled the tattered trousers down from the tree, Ms. Ludwin liked what she saw. So did the boyfriend.

And a style was born. The next step was to stock up on bullets.

"I had to go to these gun shops and these guys looked at me like I was a space alien," Ms. Ludwin says. "I'd say, 'Do you have anything in silver?' And they're like, 'What? What do you mean silver?'"

"I was looking at them appearance-wise. They were looking at them as functional."

Once she got the ammunition home, Ms. Ludwin carefully pried open the .22-caliber cartridges and dumped out the gunpowder. She then faced the problem of detonating the primer in the shell that explodes and ignites the gunpowder.

Being rather gun-shy, she fried the casings in a skillet. "I covered it, then I ran because I didn't know what was going to happen," she said. It was "like popcorn," and it worked.

She forged the de-activated casings with bullets into jewelry, then peddled her wares from store to store and at craft shows. The jewelry eventually made its way into shops around the country.

Buoyed by her success, Ms. Ludwin borrowed a friend's .22-caliber rifle and branched into jeans last year, using her back yard or occasionally a friend's farm as her shooting range.

So far, she has shot and sold more than 200 pairs of jeans, mostly to folks in their teens, 20s and 30s.

She has orders for dozens more as well as for skirts, vests and jackets peppered with small, frayed holes.

Requests come from as far away as Europe, where people have read about her efforts.

Demand is so great she's begun ordering generic clothes in bulk.

"A lot of hunters like them because they're into their guns," Ms. Ludwin said. "The teen-agers want to be different."

Although she's sold more than $21,000 worth of merchandise, the divorced mother of one barely is breaking even, due largely to business start-up costs. Still, she believes hers will be a genuine "rags to riches" story.

"I totally think this is a great idea and it's going to go," she says. "And if it doesn't, I'm sure one day, I will think of something."

Duke, Temple Win East Games

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The NCAA East Regional's upset express stopped at the Meadowlands.

Top-ranked Temple crushed Richmond 69-47 Thursday night and will meet No. 5 Duke in Saturday's battle for a berth in the Final Four.

The Blue Devils, second seeds in the East, edged 11th-seeded Rhode Island 73-72 in the first game.

"We lost to a very, very good basketball team, certainly the best we've played all year," said Coach Dick Tarrant of Richmond, which upset defending champion Indiana and Georgia Tech in the first two rounds.

"Temple just has too many weapons," Tarrant said. "Even when the game was close, I don't think there was a point in the game when the Temple kids weren't sure they were in control."

Rhode Island, which finished 28-7 with three losses to Atlantic 10 rival Temple, nearly pulled off another upset of Duke to go with the Rams' surprising victories over Missouri and Syracuse.

Duke, 27-6, got off to an 18-5 start, but fell behind 51-46 in the second half before taking the lead for good with a 22-10, 13-minute streak led by Kevin Strickland's 11 points.

"Some guy came up to me after the game and I thought he was going to congratulate me," said Strickland, who scored 12 of his 14 points in the second half. "But he told me I was sleeping in the first half and he was right."

"Kevin's play in the second half was critical," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "You could see he was ready to play in the second half. He gave everyone a lift."

Strickland got himself going with Duke's only 3-pointer of the game, cutting Rhode Island's lead to 53-52. He later put the Blue Devils ahead to stay, 57-55, with a basket with 10:17 left.

"The 3-point shot got me going," Strickland said. "It's a momentum kind of shot for me."

"At the start of the second half, we were playing like we were waiting for something to happen instead of making something happen," Krzyzewski said. "But we played winning basketball the last 10 minutes. We made a lot of good decisions."

The Blue Devils, looking to make their sixth trip to the Final Four, finished the 22-10 streak with two free throws by Strickland, giving them a 68-61 lead with 2:13 left.

Rhode Island closed the gap to 68-65 on two free throws by Kenny Green with 1:10 left.

But Robert Brickey, who scored 15 points, hit four straight free throws in the final 1:04 and grabbed a key rebound off a missed free throw by Strickland with 50 seconds remaining.

"Only one play really hurt us and that was our failure to get the rebound on that missed free throw," Rhode Island Coach Tom Penders said.

"We went to a different level this year when Robert learned to play without getting into foul trouble," Krzyzewski said. "He's an innovative player and that makes us a much better team when he's in there. He's also turned himself into a good free throw shooter."

Danny Ferry led Duke with 17 points and 12 rebounds, and John Smith added 12 points, all in the first half. Smith suffered a probable broken hand and did not play after halftime.

"This team isn't Danny Ferry and four clowns," Penders said. "They proved that."

Rhode Island was led by Owens with 19 points and John Evans, Tom Garrick and Mergin Sina with 14 each.

Garrick averaged 30 points in Rhode Island's five previous postseason games, which included a 68-63 loss to Temple in the Atlantic 10 tournament final. He played all but a few seconds of the game despite picking up three fouls in the first seven minutes.

"I couldn't afford to be as aggressive as usual," said Garrick, who was 7-for-19 from the field. "They did a great job forcing the ball back outside once we got it in."

Tarrant, whose Richmond team finished 26-7, said Temple was too much for the Spiders to handle.

"I don't see a weakness on that team," Tarrant said. "No matter what defense they played, we had big-time difficulty scoring points. We defended them the best we could and challenged a lot of shots, but they made them anyway."

Temple, 32-1, took the lead for good with less than three minutes gone. The margin was only 39-34 with 16:25 left, but the Owls steadily pulled away to their big final margin.

In the second half, Temple shot 60.9 percent from the field and Richmond 30.8, sealing the outcome.

"We were impatient," said Temple guard Howard Evans, who had 11 points and 11 assists. "In the first half, we were rushing it, trying to blow out Richmond in the first five minutes. You just can't do that. In the second half, we regrouped and did the things we needed to do."

Freshman sensation Mark Macon scored 24 points and Mike Vreeswyk added 19 for Temple, while Ken Atkinson paced Richmond with 15.

Temple Coach John Chaney said he saw only the end of the Duke-Rhode Island game.

"But I know Coach K quite well. He's a strong, defensive-minded coach who pays attention to detail. That team plays in his image," Chaney said.

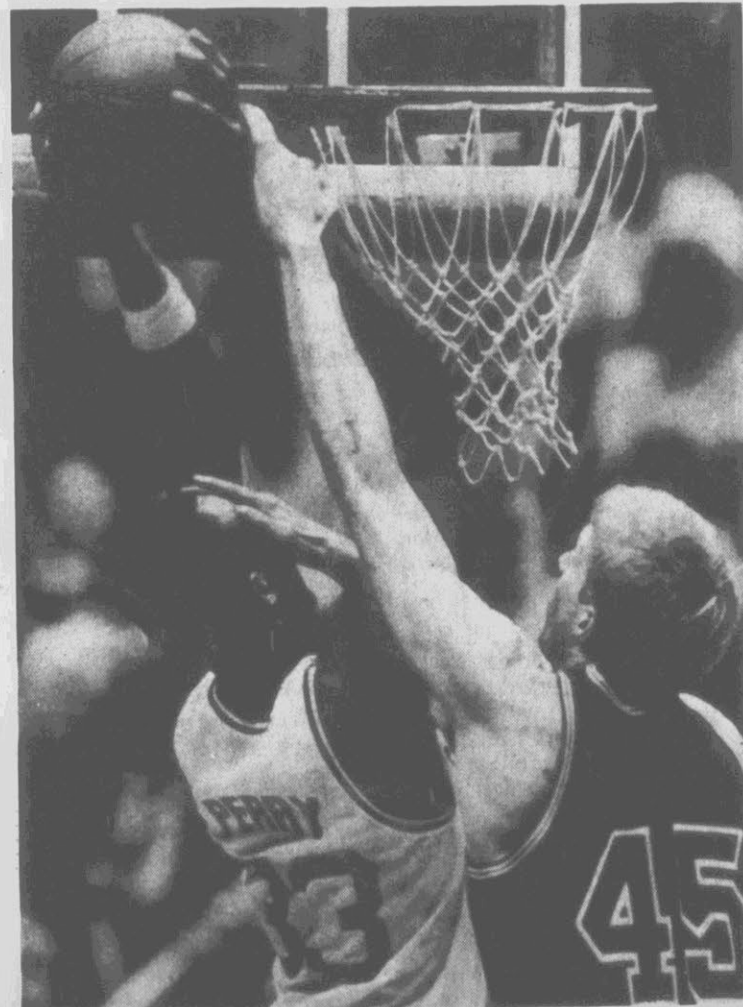

"I expect a hard-fought ballgame out of Duke on Saturday."

By WOODY PEELE

"It's a strange game" East Carolina baseball coach Gary Overton said after watching his Pirates take a 10-2 victory over Cleveland State Thursday night.

Strange, indeed. A night earlier, Overton had watched as Campbell University rallied for a 7-4 win over the Pirates. Thursday afternoon on the Camels' home field, Cleveland State pounded Campbell, 8-6, holding off a late rally that closed it to within two.

Then, Thursday night, the circle was completed as the Pirates bombed the Vikings.

Still, the win was quite pleasing to Overton, whose Pirates open a key 3-game Colonial Athletic Association series with pre-season favorite James Madison on Saturday.

"It was a win that we needed," Overton said. "I feel like we're in the toughest part of our schedule right now. That's not to say that things are going to get easier, but this week we will have faced Wilmington on their field, Campbell, Cleveland State and James Madison.

"And I feel like we're playing well, we just haven't gotten the key hits we need at the right time," the coach continued. The Pirates lost a pair of one-run games to the Seahawks on Saturday, beat them on Sunday, then lost the close game to Campbell when the Camels scored three times in the top of the ninth.

"Tonight, we jumped on them early and got them out of their game," Overton said.

The Pirates opened with John White on the mound and he pitched five excellent innings, allowing only two hits and one run, that unearned. He walked four and struck out five.

"John was a little wild," Overton said, "but he was effectively wild. He got them to chase pitches and we got a lot of outs from them."

Afterward, Overton went with Tim Langdon, David Willis and Mike Whitten in single inning performances to complete the game.

East Carolina jumped into the lead in the second inning. With one away, Chris Cauble walked and Steve Godin beat out a bunt to third. John Adams also walked, loading the bases. Dom DiGirolamo drew still another walk, forcing in Cauble. A fielder's choice on Tommy Braswell's grounder scored Godin.

The Pirates added four more in the third. Again with one down, John Thomas walked and moved up on a wild pitch. With two away, Calvin Brown was intentionally walked and Cauble unintentionally walked, loading the bases. Godin singled to left, scoring both Thomas and Brown. Adams followed with another base hit, driving in both Cauble and Godin.

Three more came over in the fourth for a 9-0 lead. Boswell beat out an infield hit and scored on a double by David Ritchie to center. Thomas followed with a triple to deep center, scoring Ritchie. Brown's sacrifice fly scored Thomas.

The final Pirate run came in the sixth. Ritchie walked, moved up on a hit by Jay McGraw and scored on another by Brown.

Cleveland State broke the ice with one in the sixth. Ben Jonozzo led off with a single and Doug Olgiate reached on an error, with one down, David Leslie walked. Eric Kuckenmeister's sacrifice fly scored Jonozzo.

Schrader Turns Fastest Lap

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — When Ken Schrader was able to avoid the inviting turn-three wall at Darlington International Raceway, he thought he had a good lap going.
It wasn't just good, it was great.
Schrader's fast lap at 162.657 mph was nearly 3/4 mph faster than anybody ever had gone on the 1.366-mile oval prior to Thursday's round of qualifying for the TransSouth 500 NASCAR stock car race.
The quick lap by Schrader's Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, the fastest of seven cars which eclipsed Geoff Bodine's two-year-old track record of 159.197, was a startling 30.233 seconds, .657 seconds faster than the old mark.
"I got through (turns) one and two real good, but I got into (turn) three kind of high and I wasn't sure it was going to turn," Schrader said.
"I jerked it around a little and when it got through there, I knew I could kind of abuse it in four and it would hold. I knew after it got through three that it was a good lap."
It was Schrader's second pole of the season and third of his career. The first one came last fall on this treacherous track.
"I don't think I run this place differently than anybody else," Schrader said.

"But I like this place and I try to run it aggressively."
"The car was just right today," added Schrader, who is in his first season with car-owner Rick Hendrick and crew chief Harry Hyde.
"Last year, (car-owner) Junie Donlavey and (crew chief) Bob Johnson had the car right. Ain't nobody going to start up front here if the car isn't right."
But Hyde said, "We figured we could run 30.5 (seconds). Kenny got the other three-tenths on his own."
Dale Earnhardt, coming off his first victory of the season — last Sunday at Atlanta — was second Thursday, but considerably behind Schrader at 160.774 mph in another Chevrolet.
Earnhardt's crew had to change engines, the oiling system and oil tanks prior to qualifying because of a bad bearing.
"Considering we had no practice, it wasn't too bad," Earnhardt, the two-time defending Winston Cup

NASCAR Drivers Endure The Pain

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Richard Petty, who still suffers pain from a torn cartilage in his ankle, says driving with injuries is "mind over matter — if you don't mind, it don't matter."
Petty, 50, is a typical race driver, ignoring physical problems that keep lesser beings in a hospital or at least away from work.
He suffered his ankle injury in a spectacular crash during the Daytona 500 on Feb. 14. A week later, the seven-time Winston Cup champion and winner of 200 races was back in action at Richmond, Va.
This weekend at Darlington International Raceway, 32-year-old Bill Elliott and 27-year-old Davey Allison are among the walking — and driving — wounded.
Elliott suffered a severely bruised right shoulder and Allison a possible cracked rib and either a bruised or broken breastbone in separate crashes during last Sunday's Motorcraft 500 at Atlanta International Raceway.
"I feel better now than going into Atlanta," Elliott said. "I was coming down with something last week. I had a head cold and sore throat Sunday night after the wreck and that bothered me more than anything else."
But Elliott still spent two nights in an Atlanta hospital for observation to make sure there were no internal injuries.
Thursday, shortly before he went out and qualified 15th for Sunday's TransSouth 500 here, Elliott could not lift his right arm above shoulder level.
"It feels about like it usually feels after about 200 laps here," Elliott joked.
Allison, the son of longtime NASCAR star Bobby Allison, was uncertain of the extent of his injuries since he decided not to go to the hospital.
"I think I cracked a rib, and it hurts here," he said, fingering his sternum. "But not as bad as the rib."
"There's nothing they can do for it except put a belt on it, and that hurts worse," Allison added. "It compresses it and it's uncomfortable when I'm in the seat."
The younger Allison, last year's Rookie of the Year, qualified ninth on Thursday.

- The top 20 starters for Sunday's TransSouth 500 NASCAR stock car race, with hometown, type of car and qualifying speed in mph (Rest of 40-car field will be determined in time trials Friday):

Ogrin Tames TPC With An Early 67

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — David Ogrin gained a position among the leaders with an early 67 and declared the once-feared TPC at Sawgrass not as intimidating as in past years.
"The novelty has worn off. The field has learned to play it. That's why the scores are lower," Ogrin said Thursday.
And they were remarkably low in the first round of the Players Championship, the $1.25 million event formerly called the Tournament Players Championship.
Mark McCumber had a 65 that included a last-hole eagle. He was only one shot off the course record but only one shot ahead of the field after the opening round.
Greg Norman of Australia and Curt Byrum had 66s, while Tom Kite, Fuzzy Zoeller, John Mahaffey, Ed Fiori and South African David Frost joined Ogrin at 67.
While the novelty may be gone, the course still produced some novel experiences for a field of golf's greatest names.
Take Norman, for example. The man who dominated world golf in 1986 whiffed a little chip.
"The ball was sitting up in the grass and the clubhead went right under it, never touched it," Norman said. He one-putted for bogey on the fifth hole.
Jack Nicklaus also one-putted — from about 40 feet — for a bogey six. He'd been tangled up in trees and trash for a while, hit a wood club for his fourth shot on the 16th, got it into a bunker and then saved a world-class bogey with the huge putt. He finished with a 73.
Jay Haas, the year's leading money winner, didn't finish. He was disqualified. After missing a short putt on the ninth hole, he hurled the putter against his golf bag hard enough to twist and bend it. He continued to use the misshapen club for a couple of holes until an official ruled it no longer conformed to the rules of golf.
But he wasn't alone in his miseries on a warm, sunny day. Seve Ballesteros spewed some unprintable Spanish after a shot found the water on the island-green 17th. He had a 76.
Defending champion Sandy Lyle wasn't so fortunate. The burly Scot required 79 shots.
McCumber, whose home is "about three miles from here," took the lead with a 112-yard sand wedge shot that found the cup for an eagle-3 on the ninth, his final hole of the day.
Norman also made an eagle, dropping a 14-footer on the 16th that gave him, briefly, a share of the lead. He backed off with a three-putt bogey on the next hole.
Byrum, too, was tied for the lead at one point, but he bogeyed the 18th after driving into an old divot.

West Will Send Worthy Rep

SEATTLE (AP) — Whether it is his team or not, Arizona Coach Lute Olson says the NCAA Tournament's West Region will send a worthy representative to the Final Four.

In fact, Olson said the teams that will play in the regional semifinals at the Kingdome tonight are good enough to make up a Final Four that would rival any combination in the country.

All four are in the Top Twenty, all have won at least 24 games and all finished in the top 10 nationally in field goal accuracy. In addition, three of the five All-Americans are in the West semifinals and there's one second-team selection here as well.

Olson's No. 2-ranked Wildcats, 33-2, will play No. 17 Iowa, 24-9, in the second game of the doubleheader. No. 7 North Carolina, 26-6, squares off against No. 10 Michigan, 26-7, in the opener.

"You put these four teams into the Final Four and you would have an outstanding Final Four," said Olson, who is trying to get Arizona to college basketball's biggest party for the first time.

"When I first saw the bracketing and saw that something like seven teams in the top 17 in the AP poll were in the West, I knew it was going to be tough. It's pretty obvious when you look at who's left in the four regions that this is far and away the toughest."

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith echoed Olson's remarks during a press conference Thursday as the teams went through their final workouts at the Kingdome, where some 22,000 are expected to assemble to see who moves one step closer to next week's Final Four at Kansas City.

"I think it's the strongest regional," said Smith, who has the Tar Heels in the final 16 for a record eighth consecutive year.

"Arizona has been tremendous all year, but you have to remember where Michigan has played, going through that Big Ten. I think these four teams would certainly match up with any regional."

The All-Americans who'll grace the Kingdome floor tonight are North Carolina center J.R. Reid, Michigan guard Gary Grant and Arizona forward Sean Elliott. Arizona guard Steve Kerr was a second-team choice.

And while Iowa has no All-Americans, the Hawkeyes are a balanced club led by a point guard, B.J. Armstrong, who often was mentioned in the same breath as Grant in the Big Ten Conference.

Iowa and Michigan each have scores to settle. Arizona defeated Iowa 66-59 at Iowa City on Dec. 12 in Olson's first appearance in Carver-Hawkeye Arena since he resigned as coach of the Hawkeyes in 1983 to take the Arizona job.

Olson's return overshadowed the actual game, but he said that won't be the case tonight.

"We're in the final 16 now," he said. "There's no longer any special feeling regarding who it is we're playing, whether it's North Carolina, Michigan or Iowa."

North Carolina eliminated Michigan from last year's NCAA Tournament, whipping the Wolverines 109-97 in a second-round game at Charlotte, N.C.

"We really haven't discussed that game that much," Michigan Coach Bill Frieder said. "But I'm sure inside they're thinking about it and they want to avenge last year's loss."

The Iowa-Arizona game will match teams of contrasting styles. Iowa plays at a break-neck pace, trapping and pressing all over the court and running its fast break at every opportunity. The Hawkeyes have scored 100 or more points a school-record 15 times, including 104 and 102 in their two NCAA games.

Arizona plays a more deliberate game centering around its strong front court of the 6-foot-8 Elliott, 6-9 Anthony Cook and 6-7, 240-pound Tom Tolbert. However, the Wildcats have rolled up some big scores and average 85 points a game.

Armstrong is Iowa's leading scorer with a 17.1 average and 6-6 forward Roy Marble averages 15.4 points a game. Elliott leads Arizona at 18.9 per game, while Kerr, who averages 12.6 points, is making 60 percent of his 3-point shots.

Arizona led the nation in field goal percentage at 54.9. Iowa was 10th at 52.7, but the Hawkeyes shot only 35.5 percent in the first game with Arizona.

Frieder and Smith both have injury concerns. Rice, the Big Ten scoring champion, has an ankle sprain and North Carolina's Jeff Lebo has been playing on what Smith says is "like a stress fracture" in his foot.

Rice's injury aside, Frieder's main worry is stopping Reid, the 6-9, wide-bodied junior who averages 18.3 points and 8.9 rebounds and is shooting 68 percent from the field.

ROSEWOOD — North Pitt earned a split with Rosewood to earn its first softball victory of the year Thursday.

The Pant-Hers took a 20-8 win in the opening game, keyed by two homers from Keisha Pilgreen. Rosewood, though, came back to take the second game, 10-4.

In the first game, North Pitt used a eight-run second inning to erase a 3-0 deficit.

Sebrina Baker started things off when she reached on an error. Renee Jacobs followed with a single to score Baker. Pam Peele and Eva Harris followed with consecutive walks. Keisha Pilgreen then homered to score Jacobs and Peele and make it 4-3.

Tonya Clemons then reached on an error. Gwen Pilgreen then reached on another error which also scored Harris and Pilgreen to make it 6-3.

Maggie Blount followed with a singled to score Clemons and Gwen Pilgreen to make it 8-3.

North Pitt added four runs in the fourth and five more in the sixth on the way to the win.

Keisha Pilgreen went 4-6 with two homeruns, the other was a three-run shot in the fourth.

Clemons added three hits, with a three-run homer in the sixth.

In the second game, North Pitt took an early 1-0 lead before Rosewood rallied in the fourth with two runs of its own to take a 2-1 lead.

Rosewood then scored three runs in the fifth and five more in the sixth to make it 10-2.

Keisha Pilgreen had a two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh but it was too little, too late for the Pant-Hers.

Pam Peele had two hits to lead North Pitt in the second game.

North Pitt moves to 1-3 overall and returns to action Friday at Greene Central.

Budd Suspended Again

By The Associated Press
College Baseball

LONDON (AP)—Zola Budd's latest suspension has got British track officials steaming, but according to the sport's world governing body, a decision won't come before next month.

"This is totally out of order," British Amateur Athletic Board spokesman Tony Ward said Thursday after the British citizen was barred from participating in a 10-km road race through New York's Central Park. The decision was issued by the The Athletic Congress, a United States track organization.

"It smacks of a suspension," Ward said. "As far as we are concerned, Zola is perfectly entitled to take part. We are extremely angry."

The action came a day after TAC received a letter from the world governing body, the International Amateur Athletic Federation, barring the South African-born Budd from competing in the U.S. The ban will be the subject of an official hearing on April 15.

TAC said a letter from IAAF general secretary John Holt stated that the BAAB "could not guarantee Zola Budd's eligibility following her activities in South Africa in 1987."

"Without this permit," Holt said, "any participation by the athlete is against IAAF rules and we ask you to notify meeting organizers of this fact."

The directive ruled Budd out of this weekend's 10-kilometer road race in Central Park, which was the only meet she had entered during a U.S. vacation.

Budd has been accused of competing last June in her homeland, which has been suspended from international competition by the IAAF since 1976 because of its racial policy of apartheid.

At a news conference Friday, Holt said the IAAF had accepted a sworn affidavit from Budd that she did not compete in South Africa.

He said the affidavit was taken under legal conditions and "did not differ from our readings of events."

"Zola Budd has said in her sworn affidavit that she was not on the start line and did not take part as a competitor in the South African race," Holt said. "We accept her affidavit, which is borne out by eye witness accounts."

Manning, Perdue On Same Stage

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Danny Manning and Will Perdue began their college careers much differently. Manning starred, Perdue struggled.

Now, as seniors, the similarities are striking. Both play for teams trying to win the NCAA basketball title. And both have key roles as their teams attempt to succeed.

Manning, an All-American who could be the top choice in this year's NBA draft, leads Kansas tonight into an NCAA Tournament Midwest Region semifinal against Vanderbilt, which is led by Perdue, a third-team All-American. In the second game, third-ranked Purdue takes on 20th-ranked Kansas State.

"Our teams are a lot alike," Kansas Coach Larry Brown said. "You've got two great centers."

The 6-foot-10 Manning, one of two high school players at the 1984 Olympic tryouts, can score from all over the court and handles the ball well. The 7-foot Perdue is a powerful inside player.

Manning averaged 14.6 points per game as a freshman, 16.7 as a sophomore, 23.9 as a junior and 24.4 as a senior.

"I think Danny Manning is a great, great player. Not a great player, but a great, great player," Vanderbilt Coach C.M. Newton said.

Perdue averaged 2.7 points as a freshman and 3.5 as a sophomore. In his last two seasons, his averages increased to 17.4 and 18.4.

"He has just come so far as a player," Newton said.

"Vanderbilt's philosophy is to figure out a way to get Will the ball. He not only is a great scorer, he's a great passer," Brown said.

Manning is expected to guard Perdue, while the Commodores plan to mix up their defenses against the Kansas star.

"We're going to have several people take a shot at him," Newton said. "I don't know how you guard him."

"I'm just going to have to make him work for everything he gets," said 6-foot-8 forward Frank Kornet, one of the Commodores who figures to get a crack at Manning. "He can shoot outside. He can make 3-pointers. He's a devastating inside player."

Manning's importance to the Jayhawks increased as the team's misfortunes increased. The loss of players to injuries, suspensions and academic ineligibility forced Brown to restructure his team.

"I told Danny he's going to have to accept more responsibility," Brown said. "He's benefitted more than anybody" from the team's problems.

At one point, Kansas was 1-4 in the Big Eight. A four-game losing streak dropped its overall record to 12-8 but Kansas won 11 of its last 14 games and is 23-11. It is in the Final 16 for the third consecutive year.

Vanderbilt, 20-10, is in the NAAs for the first time in 14 years. It reached the Final 16 with an 80-74 overtime victory over Pittsburgh after Barry Goheen's desperation 3-pointer tied the game 69-69 at the end of regulation.

The Commodores won without Perdue, who had fouled out before Goheen's shot. It will be difficult to win without him tonight.

"Will's tough. He's a very good, solid, fundamentally sound post-up player," Manning said. "He can score so many ways. He can take a hook or turn around and shoot a fadeaway jumper."

The Kansas-Vanderbilt matchup figures to be closer than the game between Purdue, 29-3, and Kansas State, 24-8.

Purdue seems to have the easiest competition of the top-seeded teams in the four regionals.

Grant Makes Cardinals Pay

BIRMINGHAM, La. (AP) — Oklahoma's Harvey Grant was still smarting from a sub-par night in the sub-regionals, and he took it out on Louisville.

Grant, who had 10 points against Auburn a week ago, scored 34 in a 108-96 victory over Louisville in the NCAA Southeast Regional on Thursday night.

"I've been in some kind of slump lately," said Grant, who averaged 21 points a game for the season and had 25 in the Sooners' opening game of the tournament against Tennessee-Chattanooga. "Tonight, I wanted to prove to my teammates and myself that I can still play."

Oklahoma's victory completed the eviction of the Bluegrass State from the NCAA tournament. Villanova beat Kentucky 80-74 in the early game.

Oklahoma hit 10 of 19 from the 3-point line and only 20 of 36 from the free throw line.

"I thought we played well," Louisville Coach Denny Crum said.

"We couldn't stop their 3-point shooting. I felt coming in that we'd have to stop their perimeter shooting, but even with hands in their faces, they shot well."

Grant said the long-range gunning was largely responsible for his breakout from his self-described slump.

"When Dave Sieger and Mookie Blaylock and Ricky Grace are hitting from outside, that opens things up inside for Stacey King and myself," he said.

Sieger, Blaylock and Grace each had three 3-point goals. King had 24 points to go with Grant's 34.

"We shot 58 percent, and we got beat," Crum complained.

Oklahoma, 33-3, is the nation's sixth-ranked team and the No. 1 seed in the Southeast Regional. Villanova, 24-12, was unranked and the No. 6 seed.

Villanova shot 57 percent from the field and 17-of-17 from the free throw line in beating Kentucky.

Kentucky shot better from outside the 3-point line, 8-16 for 50 percent, than from closer in, 27-59 for 46 percent.

Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino said defense was the key to his team's victory.

"This was the best defensive effort by this particular team since it was assembled," he said. "The defensive slides these guys made were the best since the championship team of 1985."

It was a particularly appropriate comparison, because it was in the Birmingham-Jefferson Coliseum that the underdog 1985 team beat Maryland and North Carolina to win a berth in the Final Four on the way to the national championship.

Doug West had 20 points for Villanova and Mark Plansky had 16.

Plansky, the only senior starter, said it's a good feeling to be back in Birmingham in pursuit of another title, but he didn't want to take it too far.

"This team has established its own identity," he said. "There's no feeling of deja vu."

Fouts Retires From Chargers

RANCHO SANTA FE, Calif. (AP) — Quarterback Dan Fouts, whose 43,040 passing yards ranks second in NFL history, let his battered body convince his mind it was time to retire after 15 years with the San Diego Chargers.

"I think I had to be honest with myself and I came to the realization that physically, I just don't think I can play the caliber I would like to," Fouts said during a news conference Thursday. "You just can't realize how big and strong and fast these guys are and how slow and puny and weak I am and what a mismatch it is."

"I know I won't have to run into people like Howie Long anymore."

Fouts, 36, who directed San Diego's record-setting offense of the late 1970s and early 1980s, chose to make his retirement announcement at his home in Rancho Santa Fe estate, about 20 miles north of San Diego.

He said he wasn't pressured by the team into leaving, calling his decision one reached mutually with club officials.

"I'm very happy with the decision, and looking forward to moving on," said Fouts, who cited sports casting and commercial real estate among his interests for the future.

Fouts came to the Chargers in 1973 as a third-round draft choice out of the University of Oregon. He assumed the starting role in his rookie season, replacing his boyhood idol, Johnny Unitas.

Fourteen years later, Fouts moved past Unitas on the career yardage list. He retires only some 4,000 yard shy of the record, Fran Tarkenton's 47,003, despite throwing 863 fewer passes.

Among Fouts' NFL records is his total of 51 300-yard passing games, and he ranks fourth all-time with 254 touchdowns.

Fouts' emergence coincided with the arrival in 1978 of Don Coryell, who coached the Chargers through the quarterback's best years. Coryell resigned midway through the 1986 season and has retired from football.

"If it wasn't for Don, I'd be building houses like these instead of living in them," Fouts said.

Tutored by then-assistant coach Bill Walsh and given the freedom to operate a wide-open offense, Fouts led the league in passing a league-record four straight years beginning in 1979.

"We were so good. We were so explosive. We had so much confidence in what we were doing and we had a lot of fun," Fouts said. "Scoring touchdowns is about as much fun as you can have. We did a lot of that."

During those high-scoring seasons, Fouts was known almost as much for his courage as his passing. He was willing to stand in the pocket until the last split-second, risking the hits of rushing linemen to allow his receivers the time needed to get open.

The many hits he took began to take a toll eventually. Back and shoulder problems, torn knee ligaments and several concussions were among the injuries that sidelined him for 18 games over the past five seasons. Among the games he missed was the 1987 season finale, which ended in the Chargers' sixth straight loss after an 8-1 start and knocked them out of playoff contention. The Chargers were trying to get into the playoffs for the first time since 1982.

Fouts acknowledged he had differences at times with some club officials, including owner Alex Spanos, but said he held no grudges. "If I harbored ill feelings over everything that happened in the last 15 years, I'd be a wreck."

The club reportedly reached a buyout agreement with Fouts last November in which the six-time Pro Bowler gave up all contractual guarantees beyond 1987 in return for an undisclosed bonus, last year's full $750,000 salary despite the strike-interrupted season, and $375,000 for 1988, when the pact was to expire.

"I don't think there's anything about the game I won't miss. I've lived the greatest dreams and the worst nightmares. It's really been quite a journey," Fouts said.

Fouts, who twice led the Chargers to the AFC championship game but never to the Super Bowl, said his biggest disappointment was a 34-27 loss to the Oakland Raiders in the 1981 AFC title game.

"It was a wild and crazy game," he said. "I have never seen two teams play as hard or with as much emotion as the two teams played with that day."

The low point of his career may have come after the 1976 season when he told a federal judge he would rather retire than stay with the struggling Chargers, who had improved only slightly — from 2-12 to 6-8 — in 1975.

Fouts had joined 16 other NFL players in a lawsuit challenging the lack of free agency under the collective bargaining agreement between the league and players' union when he made the statement.

After upsetting team officials with subsequent comments that the Chargers weren't a Super Bowl contender, Fouts sat out the first 10 games of the 1977 season before settling his differences with management.

The Chargers have been actively trying to trade for an experienced replacement for Fouts because backup Mark Herrmann has been effective only in relief and third-stringer Mark Vlasic, a rookie last year, lacks seasoning.

"Replacing someone of Dan Fouts' ability, character and courage is not going to be an easy task," Chargers Coach Al Saunders said. "We're going to miss him a great deal. He has been one of the greatest quarterbacks ever to play the game."

Bears Use Rally To Top Indians

BEAR GRASS — Bear Grass used an 11-run sixth inning to come from behind and take a 15-7 win over Chocowinity Thursday.

Chocowinity led 7-4 before the Bears collected eight hits during the key inning. Donnie Peaks and Jimmy Scott both had two-run doubles while Steve Cowan doubled in another run.

Ray Rawls and Jimmy Scott went 2-4 for the Bears while Peaks went 2-3.

Jonathan Holley went 3-4 to lead the Tribe. Dale Cole and Levi Norman had two hits apiece for Chocowinity.

Bear Grass moves to 1-1 and returns to action Tuesday at Creswell.

After a base on balls to Craig Dickerson, Moore followed with a single to score Phelps and Spruill and give the Bullets a 4-1 lead.

Jamesville added one run apiece in both the fourth and fifth innings along with two more in the sixth on the way to the win.

Phelps also had two hits for Jamesville, which moves to 2-1 overall and 2-0 in the conference. The Bullets return to action Tuesday at home hosting Bath.

Chris Harris went 2-4 to lead Mattamuskeet.

JAMESVILLE — Kelby Moore went 2-3 with three RBI to lead Jamesville to a 8-2 win over Mattamuskeet Thursday in Tobacco Belt 1-A Conference baseball action.

Jamesville jumped on too early, pushing across two runs apiece in the first two innings.

In the first, Jeff Phelps opened with a walk and moved to second on a wild pickoff throw. Craig Dickerson followed with a walk. Moore then singled in Phelps. Dickerson later came home on an error to make it 2-0.

Jamesville then added two more runs in the second as Kent Dickerson opened with a single. Ernie Gardner then hit into a fielder's choice, forcing Dickerson. Phelps followed that up with a single to put runners at first and second. Eric Spruill then hit into a fielder's choice that put out Gardner at third.

Infection Halts Trumpeter Al Hirt

HOUSTON (AP) — Trumpeter Al Hirt missed a charity concert after being hospitalized with an infection in his playing hand, but doctors said his prognosis was excellent. "I'm OK," Hirt said Thursday. "I had this infection or something in my hand. It's like blood poisoning. It looks like it's from a bite or something. It's all swollen and has red streaks." Hirt, 65, flew from his home in New Orleans Thursday and was admitted to Houston Methodist Hospital after consulting with his longtime friend, famed heart surgeon Michael DeBakey. Doctors said the infection spread throughout his right hand and arm. Hirt was being given antibiotics intravenously. Hirt said doctors think the problem may be related to his trumpet playing and a growth that has developed on one of the fingers of his right hand. "I've never had anything like this before in my life," he said. "I've been playing for 59 years and I want to keep playing ... I'm going to be OK as long as I can keep blowing the trumpet." Hirt missed a charity concert Thursday night to benefit New Orleans' symphony. He also said he would miss a weekend appearance in Fairfield, Conn.

Bob Hope Goes Home

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope, buoyed by best wishes from President Reagan, went home four days after prostate surgery.

Hope, who will be 85 on May 29, was released from the University of Southern California Kenneth Norris Jr. Cancer Hospital on Thursday morning, said hospital spokesman Gordon Cohn.

Hope spokesman Frank Liberman wasn't available Thursday and it was unclear whether the comedian would continue recuperation at his desert home near Palm Springs or at his Toluca Lake estate 10 miles northwest of downtown.

Among well-wishers was Reagan, who telephoned Hope at the hospital Wednesday, said Cohn.

Hope had the scheduled surgery Monday. Doctors said he was referred to a physician who practices at the cancer hospital, adding that the entertainer doesn't have cancer.

ECU Music School Gets $10,000 Check

A contribution of $10,000 was presented to the East Carolina University School of Music Thursday night by the Friends of the ECU School of Music. Presentation was made during the annual meeting and reception hosted for Friends members by Chancellor and Mrs. Richard Eakin in Mendenhall Student Center. The contribution will be used for scholarships to music students at ECU during the academic school year 1988-1989. Twenty-six music students are currently recipients of Friends scholarships.

Presentation of the $10,000 contribution was made by Barbara White, president of the Friends, to Dr. Charles Stevens, dean of the ECU School of Music. The funds are derived from three primary sources — proceeds realized from the annual gala sponsored by the Friends, fees from memberships and public donations from various sources.

The Thursday contribution brings to over $45,000 the amount contributed by the Friends to the School of Music since its founding in 1982 as a liaison group between the school and the community.

Also at the meeting, new officers were elected and continuing officers named.

New officers are: Sam White, vice president for membership; Herbert Carter, vice president for programs; Carolyn Powell, vice president for social events; Patsy Duke, recording secretary; Earl Trevathan, parliamentarian, and Gladys White, music faculty representative.

Continuing officers are: Barbara White, president; Harrit Wooten, vice president for the newsletter; Sara White, corresponding secretary, and Vashiti Forrest, vice president for publicity.

Ex-officio members in the organization are Charles Stevens, Brad Foley, Marilyn Lucht, Jo Ann Eakin and Julia Allen. Ms. Allen also serves as treasurer.

Wrong Spot

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frankie Avalon returned to his hometown to do a little sidewalk sweeping, but found out after he had moved a fair amount of dirt that he was cleaning the wrong spot.

The star of "Beach Blanket Bingo" and other surf and sun movies appeared Thursday at the Academy of Music to plug the Philadelphia Music Foundation's "Hall of Fame" ceremonies next week.

Avalon and 10 other native Philadelphian entertainers will be honored at the $150-a-plate dinner. Brass plaques engraved with their names also will be installed in the foundation's "Walk of Fame."

After ceremoniously sweeping a section of the sidewalk in front of the academy, the actor and singer learned his plaque would be placed down the street.

Untreated Diseases Can Cause Dangerous Pregnancies

By BRENDA C. COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Women who let sexually transmitted diseases go untreated run the risk of dangerous pregnancies, researchers say.

Medical investigators at the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta explored 22 possible problems they thought might lead to ectopic or tubal pregnancies, in which the fetus develops outside the womb.

Their study is reported in today's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Ectopic pregnancies occur tens of thousands of times annually, and account for 10 percent of all U.S. maternal deaths and are a major cause of infertility, the researchers said.

They examined 274 cases of ectopic pregnancy diagnosed from 1935 to 1982 in Rochester, Minn., and compared the cases with 548 live-birth deliveries during the same period among similar women.

One of four problems researchers identified more often among women with ectopic pregnancies was previous pelvic inflammatory disease, an infection of the upper genital tract that can result from untreated diseases of the lower tract.

The study's lead authors, Polly A. Marchbanks of the CDC, said a history of venereal disease alone does not appear to increase ectopic pregnancy risk, but appears to increase risk if it advances to the upper genital tract.

That means women have another good reason to seek medical help if they think they have a sexually transmitted disease, she said.

Other problems in women with ectopic pregnancies were previous infertility for at least one year and having undergone reproductive surgery of the Fallopian tubes, the researchers said.

And they found a strong association between conception while using an intrauterine birth control device and ectopic pregnancies. Women who had an ectopic pregnancy were 13.7 times more likely to have been using IUDs at the time of conception than women in the comparison group, the study said.

A CDC researcher not involved in the study, Dr. Nancy Lee, said that figure is inaccurate because it compares two groups that shouldn't be compared: women using birth control and women using no birth control.

In an ectopic pregnancy, the fertilized egg lodges somewhere in the abdomen besides the womb. In 97 percent of cases, the site is in the Fallopian tubes, where as the fetus enlarges, it can rupture the tubes or cause severe bleeding.

Though ectopic pregnancy is dangerous, it can now be detected early and the pregnancy ended surgically before damage makes a woman infertile, wrote Dr. Robert N. Taylor, in an editorial accompanying the study.

Genes Play Big Role In Longevity

BOSTON (AP) — Whether people die young or have normal lifespans appears to be ruled more by their genes than their upbringing, a study today concludes.

The research, conducted in Denmark, was based on a followup of infants who were separated from their parents at birth.

If the biologic parents died at an early age, there was an increased chance that their children would die during their first five decades, as well. But there was no such link with the deaths of adoptive parents.

"We conclude that premature death in adults has a strong genetic background — especially death due to infections and vascular causes," wrote Dr. Thorkild I.A. Sorensen and colleagues from Hvidovre University Hospital in Copenhagen.

By contrast, they wrote in the New England Journal of Medicine, they found that early death from cancer appears to be associated with behavior learned in the family.

Researchers have long known that some diseases, such as heart attacks and some forms of cancer, run in families. But it is often unclear how much of the risk is inherited and how much results from living habits that people pick up from their parents.

The Danish study, based on people who never lived with their biological parents, helps sort out these factors. It suggests that genes play the largest role in determining whether people will die at unusually young ages.

The researchers wrote, "The family environment apparently had no effect" on the overall mortality rate from natural causes, although such influences cannot be ruled out.

The researchers studied 960 families who gave up their children for adoption between 1924 and 1926. They looked at whether the adoptees died between ages 16 and 58 and whether their biological or adoptive parents had died of the same causes by age 50.

Among the findings:

—If a biological mother or father died of natural causes before age 50, this doubled the risk of premature death for their child. However, there was no association between the deaths of adoptive parents and their children.

—If a biological parent died of an infection before age 50, the mortality rate among the adoptees from infections was five times higher than usual. The researchers said that suggests the strength of people's immune systems is inherited.

—Vascular disease that underlies heart trouble and stroke also were strongly influenced by inheritance. If a biological parent died early of this disease, the child was five times more likely than the others to die of this cause.

—In cancer, the situation was reversed. Those whose adoptive parents died before 50 of cancer had a five-fold increased risk of dying themselves of cancer. But the adoptees' cancer death risk was not increased if the biological parents died of cancer.

Study Says Pill Safe

CHICAGO (AP) — Women who began taking birth-control pills as teen-agers and used oral contraceptives over several years do not face an increased, long-term risk of breast cancer, according to a study published today.

Previous studies have disagreed over whether the use of birth-control pills increases the risk of breast cancer for women through middle age. Some researchers have suggested the conflicting conclusions might be the result of a long-term latent effect from early use.

"But we found no direct human evidence for such a latent effect," said Dr. Bruce Stadel, one of four authors reporting on the study of more than 9,000 women in today's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Early and prolonged use of birth-control pills was defined as using oral contraceptives for at least six years before the age of 25, according to Stadel and his colleagues, who were from the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences at Bethesda, Md.

Study Suggests Breast Cancer Cure May Be Linked To Menstrual Cycle

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A woman's chance of being cured by breast cancer surgery may depend on the point in her menstrual cycle at which her surgery is performed, a study of mice suggests.

The study released today said researchers doubled the breast cancer cure rate in mice by removing the tumor at the right time in the mouse menstrual cycle.

"Within a few years we may know if this is true in human beings," said William Hrushesky of the University of Minnesota.

The goal would be to define just what creates any such advantage in people, and to use drugs to simulate it during surgery, he said.

"We could do that in any woman, whether she was pre- or post-menopausal," Hrushesky told science writers at an American Cancer Society seminar.

Breast cancer will appear in 135,000 American women this year and kill 42,000, the society estimates.

Surgery can remove the tumor, but cancer cells that escaped before surgery can cause recurrence elsewhere in the body.

The experiment focused on the 5.5-day mouse estrous cycle, which corresponds to the monthly menstrual cycle in women.

Tumors that grow faster in response to the hormone estrogen, as many human breast tumors do, were implanted in the mice. Later analysis showed the timing of the implant in the estrous cycle made no difference in cure rates.

But the timing of surgery to remove the tumors markedly influenced the likelihood that cancer would have spread to the lungs by 28 days after the operation, Hrushesky said.

Sixteen of 60 mice that underwent surgery near the fertility peak of the cycle were found to be free of lung involvement, compared with nine of 73 that had surgery in the infertile phase.

That translates to 27 percent versus 12.3 percent. Under a different method to determine estrous stage, the percentages came to 31.3 percent and 14.9 percent.

In human terms, the highest cure rate corresponds to surgery just before and during ovulation, with the lowest rate corresponding to surgery around menstruation, Hrushesky said.

In the mice, fluctuation in the cure rate mirrored changes in activity levels of "splenocyte natural killer" cells, which attack cancer cells that have spread to tumors, he said. But that does not prove the cells play a role in the findings, he said.

Hrushesky said he had no detailed explanation for the results. The trauma of surgery may affect the balance between cancer and the disease-fighting immune system differently at different times in the estrous cycle, he said.

He emphasized the results do not imply that cancer cells are spread from the tumor by surgery.

The next step is to examine hospital charts to see if a similar pattern appears in human breast cancers, and to study women after they have breast cancer surgery at known points in the menstrual cycle, he said.

Opening lead: Ten of ♣
 You never know where a trick might be lurking. In yesterday's column, the missing trick could be found in a ruff. See if you can spot the best chance for the game—going trick on this hand.

Because of the fact that he held a weak doubleton, South had a dreadful problem in finding a suitable opening bid. A bid of one of a minor could easily be passed all round; but the alternative of two no trump risked having the heart suit run against him when there might even be a slam in a suit. South decided the latter was the lesser evil, and landed in an excellent game.

After a club lead, declarer took a cursory glance at dummy and concluded that his best chance lay in finding East with either the king of jack of spades. So after winning the club trick he crossed to dummy with the ace of hearts and took a losing finesse of the queen of spades. West persisted with clubs, declarer re-entered dummy with a heart and tried another spade finesse, losing again.

Now there was no way he could collect nine tricks before the defenders had five.

Declarer's problem was that he did not pay enough attention to the spots—dummy's nine of spades was the key to success. As long as an entry remained on the table, there was no way the defenders could stop declarer from setting up a spade trick by force.

At trick two declarer should simply have cashed the ace of spades and continued with the queen. Assume West wins the king and, seeing the danger, switches to a heart. He is a tempo too late. Declarer wins and leads a spade to the ten and though that loses to the jack, the nine of spades is the fulfilling trick and there's still a high heart on the board as an entry.

If you are self-motivated, quick and eager to learn, personable and diligent in the pursuit of your goals, we have a program designed to help you turn dreams into goals and goals into reality.
We're AmerLink, the nation's leading telemarketer of log and conventional home packages, and we're ready to share the secrets of our success with you-to show you everything you need to know to be successful.

How successful? Listen to what a couple of those who "answered the door" have to say:

"In the past four months, I've sold over $337,000.00 in home packages for AmerLink. That's almost $34,000 worth of commissions in just four months!"

- Linda Thorne Wilson NC

"During December and January, I wrote over $104,000.00 in new log home package orders. At that rate, I will easily exceed even my most optimistic income goals!"

- Milt Capute Nashville NC

As your training proceeds, we'll give you as many qualified sales leads as you can handle. And, if you show us that you have what it takes to be successful, we'll enroll you in our start-up cash program. Once training is completed, you can begin to take advantage of our flexible hours and set your own schedule.

Our sales program is not for everybody. But, if $50,000, $75,000, $100,000 in earnings per year is where you want to be, we want to talk with you.

Does it sound too good to be true? Isn't it worth a phone call to find out? Call, toll-free, today or send your resume to:

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending March 18.

By a vote of 302 for and 104 against, the House authorized a $49.4 million budget (H Res 388) for some of its committee operations in calendar 1988. This is an increase of about $1.5 million, or 3 percent, over the comparable 1987 resolution.

The $49.4 million is expected to fund roughly half of the cost of the House committee system this year, with the remainder provided by the legislative branch appropriation bill. This "investigations and studies" budget covers domestic travel, consultants, miscellany and salaries for more than half of the nearly 2,000 House committee employees.

Supporter Joseph Gaydos, D-Pa., termed the measure "the best possible agreement" on committee funding levels.

Opponent Robert Walker, R-Pa., estimated only about two percent of the population feels "there is absolutely no place in the Congress that we can cut."

Members voting yes in support of the committee funding resolution: Walter Jones, Jr., D-1; Tim Valentine, D-2; Martin Lancaster, D-3; David Price, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; W.G. Hefner, D-8; Cass Ballenger, R-10; and James Clarke, D-11. Voting no were: Howard Coble, R-6; and Alex McMillan, R-9. Not voting was Charles Rose, D-7.

By a vote of 41 for and 340 against, the House rejected an amendment to strip about $25 million for driftwood collection in New York Harbor and $100 million over five years for Great Lakes erosion control from disaster relief legislation.

As later passed and sent to the Senate, the overall bill (HR 2707) expands federal aid to victims of natural disasters such as floods and tornadoes. Its cost aside from the New York Harbor and Great Lakes outlays is estimated at $50 million annually on top of the hundreds of millions of dollars already being spent each year on disaster relief.

The driftwood results from rotting piers, for whose dismantling the bill would help pay.

Amendment sponsor Robert Walker, R-Pa., complained that the Great Lakes and New York Harbor outlays violated restrictions on new federal programs contained in the 1987 "budget summit" agreement between Congress and the White House.

Opponent Toby Roth, R-Wis., said the erosion control grants "will provide vital relief" along the 365-mile Great Lakes shoreline.

All members voted against the bill, except Clarke who did not vote.

SENATE
By a vote of 53 for and 41 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment making private operators of federal nuclear weapons plants financially liable for accidents caused by their gross negligence.

The vote preserved the system whereby the U.S. Treasury rages that contractors must pay damages in such instances.

It occurred during debate on legislation (HR 1414) to reauthorize the Price-Anderson Act, which limits the damages paid to victims of a catastrophic accident at a nuclear power plant or weapons facility.

Bennett Johnston, D-La., voted to table the amendment because, he said, it would "drive away the best of our nuclear contractors."

William Proxmire, D-Wis., said the government now "has no way of punishing (nuclear weapons) contractors who mismanage its facilities, so it comes as no surprise these facilities have serious safety problems."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R, voted yes to oppose making nuclear weapons contractors financially liable for their accidents and Sen. Terry Sanford, D, voted no.

By a vote of 71 for and 19 against, the Senate passed and sent to the House a bill (S 1721) tightening the law under which presidents must notify Congress of major covert operations.

The bill provides that congressional leaders be notified in advance of the operation, or within 48 hours afterwards "on rare occasions where time is of the essence."

It is a response to scandal that developed after the Administration failed to tell Congress about its sale of arms to Iran and diversion of profits to Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

Sanford voted yes in favor of the bill, and Helms voted no.

By a vote of 60 for and 32 against, the Senate tabled an amendment to S 1721 (above) lengthening from 48 hours to 10 days the deadline by which presidents must inform congressional leaders of covert actions already undertaken.

Under the bill, the 48-hour notification deadline is to apply except when the White House must give congressional intelligence oversight committees advance word of planned operations.

Sanford voted yes, to put intelligence agencies on a tighter reporting leash, and Helms voted no.
