Meese: There's No Charge Yet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Independent Counsel James C. McKay said today there was no evidence "developed to date" to warrant a criminal indictment of Attorney General Edwin Meese III in connection with the Iraq-Jordan pipeline plan or his investment in telephone company stock.

McKay said the investigation is continuing.

In a two-paragraph statement, McKay's office said "the grand jury's investigation is not yet complete as to these and other matters, and will continue at least through the end of April."

"If at the end of that period of time there remains insufficient evidence to warrant a prosecution as to these or any other matters, ... the office of independent counsel will issue a report covering all the matters which have been under investigation."

McKay's office said the statement was being issued "to clarify the current status of this criminal investigation" and to contradict "recent media reports that an indictment is imminent."

In December, McKay's office issued a similar announcement stating there was insufficient evidence to bring criminal charges against Meese in connection with his efforts to help the scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp. get defense contracts.

If the investigation is concluded at the end of next month, McKay said he will "refer all of those matters for review and action by the appropriate administrative authorities."

The statement issued by McKay's office said that "based on the evidence developed to date, he (McKay) does not intend to recommend that the grand jury return an indictment against Meese as to the 'Aqaba pipeline' matter or as to matters relating to Mr. Meese's investments, including the so-called 'Baby Bells' matter," the statement said.

Since last spring, McKay has been investigating allegations of wrongdoing by Meese, including ownership of stock in companies created by the breakup of AT&T when he was in a position to make policy affecting the telecommunications industry.

Meese as attorney general met with executives of four of the regional Bell Telephone companies at a time when he owned $14,000 worth of stock in the Baby Bells, raising conflict-of-interest questions.

At the time, the Bell companies were seeking a reversal of the Justice Department's position opposing the Bells' expansion into new areas of business. Meese ended up approving a reversal of the department's position early in 1987 in accordance with the companies' wishes.

Meese says he had intended to sell the stock in 1985 but was unable to do so because he had lost the stock certificates. On his financial disclosure forms for 1985 and 1986, Meese listed the Bell stocks as having been sold. The fact that he still owned them wasn't uncovered until last summer, when pressure from Congress forced the attorney general to disclose the details of his financial holdings.

In addition to the so-called Baby Bells stock, McKay has been in-

Murder Charges Filed

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

Sandra Faye Haddock White, 45, of Route 2, Grimesland, and James Alton Mobley, 21, of Lot 18, Country Estates, Greenville, were charged Thursday with first degree murder in the March 19 stabbing death of Mrs. White's husband, Bobby Charles White.

First degree murder is punishable by death or life imprisonment.

Mrs. White has been in custody since she was arrested March 23 and initially charged with solicitation of murder. New charges of conspiracy to murder were filed against her two days later.

She offered between $30,000 and $35,000 to have her husband killed but no money changed hands, according to State Bureau of Investigation agent Jim Wilson.

Mobley and James Earl Manning, 23, of Route 2, Grimesland have been in custody since they were arrested March 24 and charged with conspiracy to commit murder.

The plan to kill White had been discussed for months, Pitt County investigator Larry Parker said Thursday, but the alleged business transaction took place in January. The motive for the murder involved love and greed, said Parker.

Judge Horton Rountree had set Manning's bond at $75,000 Wednesday afternoon, but Manning was never released and the bond was revoked following the new charges, according to a written statement released Thursday by District Attorney Thomas Haigwood and Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson. Manning is still charged with conspiracy to commit murder, which is a felony punishable by 10 years in prison, a fine, or both.

Mrs. White, Mobley and Manning were each being held without bond while awaiting a probable cause hearing April 15, in which a judge will determine whether or not the evidence shows probable cause that the crime occurred and those charged committed the crime. If the judge decides there is enough evidence, the case will be sent to the grand jury.

The court has appointed the public defender's office to represent Mrs. White, attorney Howard Cummings to represent Mobley and Robin L. Fornes to represent Manning.

Investigators from the Pitt County Sheriff's Department and the SBI will continue to work on the case and more charges may be filed in the future, according to the statement.

White, 47, worked for 11 years as a diesel mechanic with the Greenville Department of Public Works. His wife reported finding him dead in their home on N.C. 33 about 9 p.m. on the night of March 19, after she had been away for about two hours. White suffered more than 30 stab and cut wounds.

Mrs. White expected to find her husband dead when she returned to the house, according to Parker.

Students Pitch In To Help

By The Associated Press

Students at a Greenville Catholic school have raised $400 to buy Easter candy for children, and hams for 20 fishing families in the Swansboro area that were hit hard by the toxic red tide.

"We get lots of stuff for the holiday. We think since we get everything they should get something, too," said 12-year-old Katie McPherson of St. Peter's Catholic School.

Students began collecting donations in February when Regina Sewell, founder of Swansboro's Shellfishermen's Committee, talked to them about red tide's effects on the coastal economy.

During Lent, the 40 days of fasting and penitence Christian churches practice leading up to Easter, all students at the school donated five cents a day to help red tide families with children.

Elections Office Will Be Open

The Pitt County Board of Elections will stay open until 7:30 p.m. Monday to accommodate people wishing to register in state and local elections, according to Margaret Hardee, Pitt County elections supervisor.

Registration for the May 3 elections ends at closing time Monday. The election board was closed today in observance of Good Friday.

"New registrations after April 4 will not be eligible to vote in the May 3 primary or any second primary but would be eligible to vote in the general election in November," Mrs. Hardee said.

April 4 is the deadline for accepting new registrations, changes of address, and changes of party affiliation for the May 3 primary or any second primary.

In addition, Ms. Hardee said the deadline for obtaining applications for mailing absentee ballots is April 26, while April 29 is the last day for walk-in absentee voters.

ECU Football Player Faces Three Years Of Probation

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

East Carolina University football player Michael Shane Hubble, 18, of St. Petersburg, Fla., was ordered to pay $700 in damages and sentenced to three years of probation in Pitt County District Court Thursday after he pleaded guilty to charges of assault and damage to personal property.

Christopher Barnett, of 263 Aycock Residence Hall, filed the charges against Hubble in connection with an incident on campus Feb. 27. Barnett claimed Hubble dented the hood of his car and assaulted him when Barnett confronted him about the damage.

Judge J.W.H. Roberts gave Hubble a suspended sentence and ordered him to repay Barnett for medical bills and car repair. Assistant District Attorney Joe Blick presented Roberts a repair estimate of $661 and a doctor's bill of $40.

Hubble's attorney, Ernest Conner, argued that National Collegiate Athletic Association rules prohibit scholarship athletes from holding jobs during the school year, thus it would be difficult for Hubble to make restitution immediately. Roberts agreed to allow Hubble to pay $50 a week, beginning April 8, until the damages are covered.

Earlier Conner told the judge Hubble was willing to make arrangements to repay all damages, but he asked for a prayer for judgment continued, which would allow Hubble's record to remain free of a conviction if he did not violate the law within a

Principals Support Smaller Class Size

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Principals in Pitt County schools say they do not agree with an Education Department study released Wednesday that said reducing class sizes "would be a waste of money and effort."

"I am in total disagreement with that," said Norwood Randolph, principal of Falkland Elementary School. "I do feel that reducing class size would attribute to an improved quality of education and an improved performance for standardized tests."

With 28 or 29 students in a classroom, teachers have to divide their time too many different ways for individualized attention, he said.

The report, "Class Size and Public Policy: Politics and Panaceas," estimated it would cost up to $69 billion a year and require the hiring of 1 million new teachers to reduce the typical class size from 24 to 15 students.

It suggested school reformers look for better ways to manage children in the classrooms rather than "sink

Student Falls 4 Floors

An East Carolina University student escaped serious injury when he fell from a fourth-floor window at Jones Dorm on College Hill Drive this morning.

Joe Calder, director of security at ECU, identified the student as Alan Dwight Reid of Charlotte. Calder said Reid, a Jones resident, told investigators he was sitting in the window of a fourth-floor restroom just before the fall.

According to Calder, Reid suffered an injury to his right wrist as well as cuts to his feet and legs in his fall to the roof of the residence hall's cafeteria.

Reid was taken by a Greenville Fire-Rescue Department rescue truck to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for treatment of his injuries, Calder said.

Dr. William E. Laupus, retiring dean of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, was honored Thursday night as the eighth annual recipient of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Foundation Award.

Kenneth Dews, a foundation trustee who presented the award during the annual banquet, called the development of the medical school and Pitt Memorial, which serves as a teaching hospital for the medical school, "progress unparalleled by any other event in all of eastern North Carolina."

He credited Laupus's vision and calm and deliberate manner with "bridging the pitfalls that might have interrupted this rapid development."

He said, in addition to managing the medical school development, Laupus, dean since 1975, has served as a hospital trustee and "his stewardship in this role has not only been outstanding, but he has ... provided insights into the development of needed programs for the hospital."

Rose Graham, widow of James Graham, a member of the Hospital Foundation who died last year, was presented a resolution of appreciation for her husband's contribution to the hospital and community.

The dinner was attended by approximately 250 people and about $35 tickets were sold, according to Brenda Joyner, hospital development officer. The money raised by conducting the annual event will be used to add to the endowment fund of the foundation, which raises, receives and allocates gifts "for the benefit and growth of Pitt County Memorial Hospital."

NCFBLA Secretary

Leigh Cowan, a junior at D.H. Conley High School, was recently elected state secretary of the North Carolina Future Business Leaders of America.

Along with her duties as secretary, Ms. Cowan will represent the state at the national FBLA convention in Cincinnati in June and at the Southern Regional FBLA convention in Alabama in the fall.

She is the daughter of Wade and Janet Cowan of Greenville.

Students Get Science Awards

Awards have been presented to area high school students for science papers given at the District 7 meeting of the North Carolina Academy of Science at East Carolina University.

A total of 39 junior and senior high school students read scientific papers they had researched and written. Eighteen awards were presented in junior and senior level divisions for the papers judged most outstanding.

Students selected for the awards are eligible to compete in the state competition April 15-16 at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

The competition was sponsored by the N.C. Academy of Science and was hosted at ECU by the Department of Physics.

Dr. Paul Varlaskin, an ECU professor of physics, and Nancy Evan, a biology teacher at D. H. Conley High School in Greenville, served as co-directors.

Local students and their schools were:

E.B. Aycock Jr. High School — Jalyne Parsley, Laura Silverman, Greg Parker, Sean A. Scoopmire, Ken Wu, Mari Cejina Karo, Anna Worth, David Thomas and Jeffrey Li.

D. H. Conley High School — Hank Crapps and Michael Hardee.

J. H. Rose High School — Laura Guy, Lydia Coulter, Jonathan Li, Edward Norris and Scott Thomas.

School Bomb

RALEIGH (AP) — A small explosive device placed on an Apex Senior High School teacher's desk went off Thursday, causing no injuries or damage, and a 16-year-old sophomore has been charged in connection with the incident.

The device was hidden in a small cardboard box that someone had placed on the desk of English-journalism teacher Desmond G. Cornell Thursday morning before class began, authorities said.

Workplace Panel

The organizational meeting of the Workplace Committee of the Pitt County Council on Substance Abuse was held this week with representatives of about 15 businesses in the area attending.

The participants, mostly personnel managers, agreed to serve as members. Dick Welch, alcoholism coordinator for Pitt County Memorial Hospital, is serving as the acting chairman.

Among the topics discussed were community and workplace prevention measures, intervention, training of supervisors to recognize and deal with alcohol abuse among employees, sharing of information about business places on alcohol and drug policies, and availability of nearby treatment facilities and whether outpatient or inpatient treatment is best.

The next meeting of the group will be held at 7:30 a.m. April 14 at the Three Steers Restaurant.

NCAEOP President

Jean H. Waters, administrative assistant in the central office of the Martin County Board of Education, was installed recently as state president of the North Carolina Association of Educational Office Personnel at the group's annual conference in Greensboro.

Mrs. Waters is a graduate of Oak City High School and attended Martin Community College. She has been involved in association activities for about 20 years and has served on the district and state level at various offices and committees. She has worked with the education board for 21 years.

She and her husband, Rudy, live in Pinetown.

"Truth In Preference To Fiction"

Campaign Lacks
Right Momentum

In order to win the race, it's necessary to get a proper start from the gate.

North Carolina has failed to secure that pole position in its race for the proposed superconducting super collider, and that fact may hurt the state's chances of obtaining the facility.

The state has made half-hearted efforts, at best, to secure the location of the important research project. These efforts are inadequate in four respects.

First, North Carolina has failed to solidly and consistently support the project by keeping it on the public agenda. Dialogue on the super collider has been intermittent, punctuated by alternating bursts of support and opposition. The state has not presented a solid, unified campaign of support for the project.

Second, it failed to sell the citizens on the project. Strenuous objections to locating the facility in North Carolina have arisen, and this opposition emerged from a lack of knowledge and understanding of the super collider's significance and function. Had the state implemented an energetic education program, explaining how the proposed facility would work, misunderstandings over its impact would have been minimized.

Third, the state has not formed any type of coalition with nearby states in an effort to gather regional strength to locate the facility here. That is a tactic that could encourage political momentum for choosing the state over rivals like California, Illinois and Texas.

Finally, North Carolina has not strongly sold the state's assets — a perfect environmental setup for the structure and an already-venerable brain trust in the Research Triangle.

The quest for the super collider is a competition that bears large spoils for the victor. The benefits in jobs, income, scientific expertise and prestige are hardly imaginable. In addition to huge construction investment, the federal government will spend an estimated $250 million annually for operation of the research facility.

These figures translate to substantial economic growth. At the peak of construction, an estimated 4,500 workers will be employed. After completion, work will require 3,000 staff positions and can create another 3,000 supporting jobs. If North Carolina is chosen, most of these jobs would be for North Carolinians.

With these huge stakes in mind, it is difficult to comprehend why the state's governor and top leaders have not vigorously worked to establish intense state, regional and national support for locating the super collider in North Carolina.

By no means is the state out of the running for the super collider. But the lackadaisical attitude leaders have adopted has not helped in any way to secure the facility for North Carolina.

If the state wins the project, it will be thanks to its strengths, not its leaders. The race belongs to the swift and North Carolina's campaign for the super collider has lacked momentum.

Cut The Capital Gains Tax

WASHINGTON — Recently, the Congressional Budget Office and The Washington Post told you what they think the bad news is about reducing the capital gains tax rate (editorial, March 15). Let's put aside the debate over revenues. Both sides have their experts. We want to tell you what the good news is about reduced capital gains tax rates.

The most serious challenge facing the American economy in the coming years is our ability to compete in the global marketplace. America has always shown an uncanny ability to develop the new ideas and products of the future.

It is our strong belief that the federal government can and should support America's competitive edge. This can be done by using the tax code to direct private investments into the often risky and long-term ventures that become the job and economic miracles of the future. Reinstating a lower capital gains tax rate is the best way to do that.

Over the years, we have seen firsthand the development and growth of thousands of high-technology companies in California and Minnesota and elsewhere. The critical ingredient in the success of these new growth companies has been the infusion of venture capital by those willing to take long-term risks and invest in the future.

The biggest problem facing these new growth companies is getting access to low-cost capital. These companies need capital not just to get started but to survive and thrive as they move from some inventor's attic into a factory that creates jobs. To succeed and grow, these companies need equity investment, not more debt.

We need a lower tax rate on capital gains to improve our industrial competitiveness, help offset the flight of U.S. industries and jobs overseas and reduce our monstrous trade deficit. A lower rate on capital gains would help stimulate venture capital investments, especially in small, new companies with innovative ideas for new products.

These are high-risk enterprises that need all the investment incentives they can get. They are the enterprises that help us stay on the leading edge of scientific and technological development. And, along with other small businesses, they are the ones that create the most new jobs.

Between 1971 and 1975, electronics companies raised less capital than in any time in the previous 15-year period. Many were forced to sell their technology to foreign competitors to raise necessary capital.

After we lowered the rates on capital gains in 1978 and 1981, investment jumped from $39 million in 1977 to $600 million in 1978 and to $4.5 billion in 1983. Entrepreneurs were then able to secure the investments they needed from private sources.

All that has changed since the passage of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, when the capital gains tax rate was drastically increased. In the mad rush to pass the bill, an important exception for investments in long-term, job-creating assets was excluded.

The United States now has one of the highest capital gains tax rates in the world. In fact, our major overseas competitors — Japan, South Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong and West Germany — do not tax capital gains at all. Businesses in those countries are encouraged to reinvest their gains to produce more and better products — and to beat out American firms in both the U.S. and international markets.

America's entrepreneurial strength is the key to future economic growth. New technology and service companies have blossomed in cities and towns across the nation.

By establishing federal tax policies that encourage investment, the federal government can join with many farsighted state governments that are acting in productive partnership with these growth companies. Cutting the tax on capital gains is the best place to start.

Alan Cranston is a Democratic senator from California. Rudy Boschwitz is an Independent-Republican senator from Minnesota.

Does The Cease-Fire Have Staying Power?

The Nicaraguan cease-fire has surprised almost everybody: Ronald Reagan, Jim Wright, Oscar Arias, Cardinal Obando y Bravo and maybe even Adolfo Calero. The only principal not surprised has to be the cease-fire's chief architect: Daniel Ortega. He took a step toward implementation of the Esquipulas accords that only a couple of months ago seemed impossible.

Two big questions remain: Why did Ortega do it? Will it stick?

Almost nine years of broken Sandinista promises on pluralism and non-alignment have confirmed the deeply and emotionally rooted commitment of the Sandinista leadership to the Marxist-Leninist model and hostility to the United States. Ortega joined his first Marxist group at age 15 and committed his first terrorist act (fire-bombing vehicles at the U.S. Embassy) a year later. He spent more than seven years in Somoza jails and was tortured. He saw many of his comrades fall in battle, including his youngest brother. And, like his fellow comandantes of the National Directorate and so many Latin American intellectuals, he tended to blame Nicaragua's historic failure to build a modern, equitable society on "Yankee imperialism" and the U.S. relationship with Somoza — just what Lenin teaches.

Just a few months after the Sandinistas took over in 1979, and at the moment when the U.S. government was mobilizing massive aid for them, the Sandinista leadership told its second echelon: "We put you on notice with the greatest clarity that the true enemy whom we will have to confront is the imperialist power of the United States and, on a second plane, the exploitative and demagogic intentions of the reactionary local bourgeoisie."

Their actions up to the Sapoa negotiations have conformed to that dictum. But a lot has happened since September 1979.

The Sandinistas have probably learned that there is little tolerance for their domestic and foreign policies in the United States except on the left fringe and that the election of a Democratic president would not significantly alter that intolerance (after all, Jimmy Carter almost suspended aid in his last few days in office).

Oscar Arias attracted world attention and support with his peace plan predicated on democratization at the same time that the Contras had been demonstrating a degree of effectiveness and popular support that most observers — and probably most Sandinistas — thought impossible a few years ago.

Will it stick? To use the metaphor of a recent letter to the editor of The Washington Post, have the sharks become vegetarians? As an observer who has been profoundly skeptical of that possibility until Sapoa, I now find myself at least thinking the unthinkable — that it may stick.

But it may just work, and while keeping a firm — and, for a change, bipartisan — grip on the stick, we should be doing everything we can to further the process, including devising some attractive carrots.

How Do GOP Candidates Match Up?

RALEIGH — Republican candidates for lieutenant governor like to say that Gov. Jim Martin needs a friend in the number two state job. Each of the three major GOP candidates is likely to be more friendly to Martin in that position, but don't expect that any would agree totally with Martin.

That one observation can be made from the answers which the three major GOP candidates gave to a questionnaire from the N.C. Association of Afternoon Newspapers. Those answers have formed the basis for a series of columns on the issues in this race.

Wendell Sawyer was a maverick during the one term he served in the state Senate, and from the answers he gave to the 28 multi-part questions asked of him, it is fair to assume he'd be a maverick if elected lieutenant governor.

Sawyer takes a very narrow view of state government's role and state government spending. He opposes the Basic Education Plan, which Martin now vigorously endorses. Sawyer opposes Martin's career ladder plan for teachers. He opposes more spending for senior citizen programs at a time when Martin is calling for an extra $48 million in annual spending in this area by 1989. He opposes more state spending on housing and therefore must double up. Martin supports increased funding in these areas.

Bill Boyd differs with Martin less frequently. He doesn't support additional spending on housing. He prefers to attack the problem through economic development. He says that the state aging program should focus on essential needs and that anything more should come from the private sector. He says senior centers, which Martin backs strongly, are primarily a private responsibility.

Martin recently embraced the idea of an early educational program for children aged three and four. (Howard Haworth, chairman of the State Board of Education and a Martin appointee, is an avid proponent of such a program.) Martin endorses the idea as a way of helping children from high risk families get a fast start in school. Head Start is such a program. At a recent press conference, Martin's enthusiasm for the idea was obvious as he spent nearly 15 minutes praising the potential benefits of early education programs.

But all three of his potential running mates — Sawyer, Boyd, and Jim Gardner — oppose a state program of early education.

Sawyer and Boyd, when asked if they support such a program, simply said no. Garner said, "No. The education of three and four year olds should be the function of private day care centers and not the public school system."

The three major Democratic candidates do, of course, disagree with Martin on many issues. But it is interesting to note that there are some areas of agreement. For example, all three — Tony Rand, Parks Helms and Harold Hardison — support more funding for the aged.

Rand favors an early education plan that is limited in scope and probably very much along the lines of what Martin is considering. Helms favors a comprehensive program for all children. Hardison opposes it.

Hardison meanwhile supports many of Martin's positions — most notably on business matters.

Finally, to end this series of columns on a congenial note, there is one issue upon which Martin, Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and the six major candidates all agree. They'd all like to see North Carolina do more with its state parks system. The magnitude of their enthusiasm varies, but they all say the state should improve its existing parks while adding new ones.

Strength For Today

Ambrose Channel runs from the center of New York harbor out through the Narrows into the Atlantic Ocean. In the old days it was always hard for pilots to keep in the center of the channel, and often they veered to the right or left and went aground.

Then in recent times a cable was laid down the center of the channel which broadcast electronic impulses. The special receiving equipments aboard ships picked up these impulses and so enabled the pilots to keep the ships on the correct course.

The Bible performs much the same functions in our lives as does this cable in the navigation of ships. It is constantly sending signals to us indicating what we must do to keep going in the direction God wills for us.

14 Thefts Investigated

Investigators said 14 thefts, including $765 in cash and checks from one business and three telephones valued at $500 each from another, were reported to Greenville police Thursday.

Officer R.C. Allsbrook said the cash and checks were in an envelope taken from the Stop Shop at 213 E. Fifth St. in an incident reported at 8:44 p.m., while Officer L.R. Kepler said the telephones were taken from an office at Richbourg's Tool Rental at 101 Hooker Road in a break-in reported at 7:07 a.m.

Officer N.B. Rice said a citizens band radio was taken from a vehicle parked at 10 Edgewood Trailer Park in an incident reported at 7:37 a.m., while Officer J.E. Fleming said a dog was taken from a yard at 202 Cadillac St. in an incident reported at 7:52 a.m.

Officer J.G. Bridges said a mailbox was taken from a post at 216 Country Club Drive in an incident reported at 9:19 a.m., while Officer R.C. Stroud said a bicycle was taken from 424 Green Mill Run Apartments in an incident reported at 10:18 a.m.

Officer E.M. Haddock said a bicycle was taken from 1107 Forbes St. in an incident reported at 11:47 a.m., while a license plate was taken from a car parked in the Meadowbrook area of North Greenville in an incident reported at 2:07 p.m.

Detective D.R. Best said a wallet containing $38 in cash was taken from a man on Bonners Lane in a strong-armed robbery incident reported at 2:18 p.m.

Detective J.E. Harris said a wallet was taken from a grocery cart at the Farm Fresh store on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 2:29 p.m., while Officer M.R. Benton said a wallet containing $201 in cash was taken from the K mart store at Greenville Square Shopping Center in an incident reported at 2:53 p.m.

Officer E.E. Laughinghouse said assorted snacks worth $25 were taken from a Greenville Housing Authority facility at 601 Skinner St. in a break-in reported at 3:14 p.m., while Officer B.W. Lewis said two shirts were taken from 1700 Hopkins Drive in an incident reported at 7:31 p.m.

According to Officer R.L. Smith, one shirt was taken from 410 Manhattan Ave. by a juvenile in an incident reported at 7:40 p.m.

ECU Courses Scheduled

Graduate courses in family therapy, research methods, child development, education administration, health promotion and teacher education will be offered by East Carolina University in 11 eastern North Carolina counties this spring and summer.

ECU's Off-Campus Graduate Program, part of the ECU Division of Continuing Education, is designed for persons who wish to pursue a master's degree, renew or change their teacher certification, or explore a new field of study.

Courses are taught at all locations by ECU faculty members, and students enrolled in these off-campus courses may complete up to half of the requirements for a graduate degree through extension.

Further information about the off-campus graduate courses is available from the Division of Continuing Education, Erwin Hall, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C. 27858-4353.

Governor Will Decide Next Week On Special Session Over Robeson

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin says he will decide by early next week whether to call a special legislative session to consider allowing another minority candidate to replace slain Indian activist Julian Pierce in a Robeson County judicial race.

Martin and some of his aides met for 80 minutes Thursday behind closed doors with members of Pierce's campaign staff.

Harvey Godwin, who was manager of Pierce's campaign, said Martin promised nothing. But Godwin said he was pleased with the discussion and that the governor "listened to every word. ... I was impressed with him."

"I'm going to do my best to try to get input that I need and then take a brief time to think about it very prayerfully and come up with the best answer that I can," Martin told reporters.

He said he would meet today with Robeson County District Attorney Joe Freeman Britt, the only remaining candidate in the judicial race. Martin also plans to discuss the request for a special session with legislative leaders.

Pierce supporters have decided on a replacement candidate, Godwin said, but he declined to identify the person.

Pierce, 42, a Lumbee Indian lawyer, was seeking a Superior Court judgeship before he was murdered March 26. Pierce was killed by three shotgun blasts at his home in rural Robeson County, which has been plagued by strife among its whites, blacks and Indians.

Authorities on Tuesday arrested one Lumbee and another suspect committed suicide.

Britt, who was once listed in the Guinness Book of World Records as the "Deadliest D.A." because of the number of defendants he has sent to Death Row, is the only Democrat left in the May 3 primary. Because there is no Republican candidate, he is virtually assured election to the newly created judgeship.

Under state law, if a candidate dies more than 30 days after filing for a primary has closed, his opponent wins the nomination. If a special session were called, legislators could debate whether to amend the law to let another minority candidate enter the race. Also, the primary could be postponed.

Earlier, Martin said there was no reason to doubt that Pierce's murder resulted from a domestic dispute. He chided those who continue to suggest other scenarios, saying some want to stir up more racial strife in Robeson County.

"There are people who want to take advantage of the problems ...

and they're going to make up all kinds of theories," Martin said.

He acknowledged that "good, decent" Robeson residents might question the official explanation of Pierce's slaying. But allegations of a conspiracy involving racism or politics are groundless, he insisted.

"I can tell you it's clear who did it and it's clear why he did it," Martin said at a news conference. "There's no reason to suspect anything else other than just to raise additional questions. But any questions that are raised will be investigated."

The governor also praised Britt for asking Attorney General Lacy Thornburg to appoint a special prosecutor.

Martin said there is no reason to launch a state probe of the overall situation in Robeson as some have requested. The U.S. attorney's office in Raleigh has been conducting an undercover investigation of some of the county's problems, particularly drug trafficking, he said.

Sheriff Hubert Stone said John Goins, 24, killed Pierce and later took his own life. Goins blamed Pierce for disrupting Goins' relationship with the daughter of a woman Pierce was dating, according to Stone.

Earlier, Stone had referred to the killing as "an assassination" and others had speculated the murderer wanted to prevent Pierce's election as judge.

Martin said Goins had left suicide notes and that there was solid evidence linking him with the murder.

Vernon Bellecourt, a representative of the American Indian Movement, said Wednesday in Raleigh that Goins' personal feelings "could have been manipulated by those that would have motives to see that Julian Pierce was out of the way in terms of the judgeship race."

Martin displayed irritation when asked whether it was possible that Goins was forced to write the suicide notes.

"What basis do you have for that? That's weird," Martin said. "Where do you get those theories?"

He said Bellecourt was "not speaking on behalf of the people of Robeson County. ... Where's he from? South Dakota? Libya?"

Martin also defended the task force he created in the wake of the Feb. 1 seizure of the Robesonian newspaper office by two Lumbees who said they wanted to call attention to racial injustice and official corruption.

Some critics, including accused hostage taker Eddie Hatcher, have said the task force hasn't done much. But Martin said Hatcher, who claims to have evidence of corruption in Robeson, offered nothing concrete in his only meeting with the group and has canceled other scheduled meetings.

"We are still standing by to receive any evidence he may have ... and do with it as we agreed to," he said. Other people have contacted the task force with tips which have been passed to the U.S. attorney's office, he said.

Drivers Over 55 May Get Discount On Car Coverage

RALEIGH (AP) — Automobile insurance rates went up 0.7 percent overall today, but drivers who are 55 or older can get a break from the higher premiums through new senior citizen discounts.

The senior citizen discounts are the result of a law approved by the General Assembly last summer that allows companies to lower rates for older drivers. Unlike many other states, North Carolina prohibits insurance companies from basing auto rates on age or sex.

Older drivers can get breaks from four companies — including the two largest offering automobile insurance in the state — which have won approval for discounts ranging from 5 to 10 percent. The companies are Nationwide Mutual Insurance Co., State Farm Mutual Insurance Co., First of Georgia Insurance Co. and New York Underwriters Insurance Co.

"The reason for the discount is the favorable experience we have had with drivers 55 or older, mature and responsible individuals that tend to have good driving records," said Paul Thompson, regional personal lines manager for Nationwide, the largest seller of automobile insurance in the state. "It's our opinion and the industry's opinion that their experience warrants or justifies lower premiums."

Donald T. Zimmerman, regional vice president of State Farm, said that insurance companies have wanted to offer the discounts for a long time.

"The only reason we didn't do it in North Carolina before was because of the age factor," Zimmerman said. "The law wouldn't allow you to do it. In other states, we offer the discount down to the age of 50."

State Farm and First of Georgia are offering the discounts on policies that are purchased or renewed today. Nationwide and New York Underwriters will begin offering the discounts in May.

The amount of the discounts and restrictions placed on them varies.

Under State Farm's plan, older drivers can get a 10 discount on liability and physical damage coverage if there are no inexperienced drivers in their households. Inexperienced drivers are those with less than three years of driving experience.

Nationwide will provide a 5 percent discount if a driver is 55 or older, has one car covered by his policy and has no insurance points.

Roger Langley, a deputy insurance commissioner who heads the Life, Accident and Health Division of the Department of Insurance, said regulators were disappointed that more of the state's insurance companies have not offered the discounts. About 400 companies are licensed to write automobile insurance in the state.

"I expected a lot more companies than this," Langley said. "But companies are driven by competition. The fact that Nationwide and State Farm have both filed, and they are the two largest writers in the state, that ought to have an impact."

Meanwhile, the insurance industry is challenging a Feb. 2 order by state Insurance Commissioner Jim Long that auto rates be cut 3.9 percent overall. The companies are appealing Long's order and raising their rates while they await a decision by the N.C. Court of Appeals.

If Long's order is upheld by the courts, the insurance companies would have to refund the premiums collected under the rate increase and pay interest plus a 3 percent penalty.

Under the rate increase, liability insurance will go up an average of 13.7 percent, while the costs of physical damage coverage — collision and comprehensive — will be reduced an average of 14.7 percent.

Craven Chairman Gives Up His Post

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — The chairman of the Craven County Board of Elections resigned Wednesday after a daylong hearing before the state Board of Elections on charges of fraud.

Paul Harrison of New Bern, a 15-year board member, resigned as the state board was deliberating in closed-session in a civil district courtroom in New Bern.

Meanwhile, the attorney for LeVonia Frazier, the special registration commissioner who charged that Harrison had used unorthodox methods to monitor her performance, said he and his client were happy with the results.

"What we were seeking was to have him removed as board chairman and this accomplished the same thing," Mike Crowell said.

Frazier deferred comment to Crowell. Harrison declined comment after the hearing.

Ms. Frazier filed a complaint with the state following her appearance before the county board in January, when she alleged that Harrison, a registered Republican in New Bern's Fourth Ward, came to her in disguise to register to vote.

The incident happened Dec. 7 at West Craven High School, where Ms. Frazier works as a secretary and is authorized to register students when they reach legal voting age.

IN THE STATE

Toll Roads

RALEIGH (AP) — House Speaker Liston Ramsey says he opposes using sales tax money for highway improvements, but would not object to toll roads or other methods of charging motorists for roads.

"I don't object to toll roads for major new highways," Ramsey said Thursday. "You can't build all of the major roads simply by increasing gas taxes."

Ramsey said motorists should bear the cost of improving highways and that lawmakers should play a bigger role in assuring that highway money is fairly distributed.

Accident

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Investigators say a burning cigarette or a match that had not been extinguished was dropped in the bedroom of a house where two children were killed in a fire.

Burlington Fire Capt. Craig Yarborough said the fire appears to be an accident.

Ten-year-old Robert Kincaid and 9-year-old Sasha Burtze were killed in the Wednesday fire.

Hepatitis

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Two students have contracted hepatitis at Southwood Elementary School, and a third may also have the virus, officials say.

The Davidson Health Department is offering free shots to classmates of the sick students, who are in the third and fourth grades. The source of the virus has not been identified, said Diane Crouse, the supervisor of Davidson's public health nurses.

The disease at Southwood is Hepatitis A, which can be spread through close contact but not through the air. No cases of hepatitis have been reported in other Davidson County schools, Ms. Crouse said.

UNC-G Gift

GREENSBORO (AP) — Marion Stedman Covington of Greensboro has made a gift of $25,000 to the University of North Carolina at Greensboro to establish an endowed scholarship in the memory of her aunt, Annie Moring Alexander.

The gift has established the Annie Moring Alexander Scholarship Fund in political science at UNC-Greensboro. The fund will provide an undergraduate scholarship or a graduate fellowship of $2,000 annually to a student to be selected by a committee named by the head of the UNC-Greensboro department of political science.

The first award will be made for fall semester of 1988.

Attorney

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan plans to formally nominate Margaret P. Currin, a North Carolina law professor, to succeed her husband as a U.S. attorney, the White House announced Thursday.

The announcement said Mrs. Currin, 37, former assistant dean and assistant professor at Campbell University School of Law, would succeed Samuel T. Currin. The Currins live in Raleigh.

The nomination is for a four-year term as U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of North Carolina. Mrs. Currin was sworn in earlier this month as U.S. attorney pending confirmation proceedings by the U.S. Senate.

Smoking Poll

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The number of North Carolinians who smoke has fallen from 38 to 27 percent in the past five years, according to the Carolina Poll.

The poll, conducted by journalism students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, compares figures gathered in the spring of 1983 and the spring of 1988.

The decline of smoking in North Carolina parallels a national trend. In 1983, according to the General Social Survey of the University of Chicago, 37 percent of adult Americans smoked. By the spring of 1987, the last period for which the national data was available, the percentage of U.S. smokers was down to 31 percent.

The poll, conducted Feb. 28-March 3, asked 400 North Carolina adults if they smoked. The poll found that 72 percent of male respondents do not smoke and 74 percent of the females do not.

Union Vote

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Workers at Standard Products Company Inc. of Rocky Mount rejected an attempt Thursday to bring a union to the textile plant, and the union supporters claim "massive violations" during the election.

Employees and representatives from Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union will meet this week to decide whether to file election objections with the National Labor Relations Board. The objection must be filed within five days of the voting.

Officials said 181 workers voted for the union and 229 voted against it. Ten ballots were disputed, and union officials said those votes should not count.

Search

SEWANEET, Tenn. (AP) — Samuel R. Williamson Jr., provost and chief academic officer at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, was nominated Thursday to be the next president of the University of the South.

Williams, a history professor, was recommended from among 200 candidates considered by a 15-member search committee seeking a successor to Robert M. Ayres Jr., who plans to retire on Sept. 1.

The university's board of trustees will vote on the recommendation during its spring meeting May 5-6, said university spokesman Clay Scott.

Governed by 28 dioceses of the Episcopal Church in 12 states, the University of the South has a college of arts and sciences and a school of theology.

Chlorine Leak

WILMINGTON (AP) — About 150 people were evacuated from a New Hanover County mobile home park Thursday after a maintenance worker accidentally released chlorine gas into the air.

Around 3:45 p.m., a green cloud of about 50 gallons of the poisonous gas was released at the rear of Royal Palms Mobile Home Park.

An area one-eighth of a mile from the spill was evacuated, but afternoon traffic up and down busy Carolina Beach Road was not affected. Firefighters donned air masks to close the valve on the tank.

Chlorine gas, which is used in the sewage treatment process, turns into sulfuric acid in the lungs and is highly poisonous and corrosive. It is also flammable.

Seminars Slated To Boost Exports

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina is close to achieving a positive balance of trade, with more exports than imports, and state officials are hoping a series of quarterly seminars will help more businessmen sell their wares overseas.

Businesses in the state already export about $4.4 billion worth of goods annually. In 1987, North Carolina companies imported more than the exported but the difference between a positive and negative trade balance was only 5 percent, Commerce Secretary Claude Pope said Thursday.

"In light of that, we felt that at the state level we should set a goal for 1988 of having a positive trade balance..." Pope said.

Gov. Jim Martin said the Department of Commerce and the state's 58 community colleges will conduct "North Carolina Trade Days" sessions to "reach businesses in all parts of our state with local, one-on-one assistance for export start-ups."

Pope said it was hoped that during its first year, the trade days program would help at least one company in each of the state's 100 counties develop foreign markets.

Former Gov. Bob Scott, now president of the community college system, said the program would "further strengthen the business economy and thereby strengthen the total economy of North Carolina." Martin said the dollar's plunge on world currency exchanges offered North Carolina businesses a window of opportunity to establish themselves as exporters.

On another matter, Martin said his administration was distributing information to communities along the state's coast on ways to participate in the new "coastal initiative" program.

The program is billed as a three-pronged state effort to protect environmentally sensitive areas along the coast and upgrade the marine waterways system while promoting development in targeted coastal communities.

The application forms that communities must submit to receive state assistance must describe the projects local officials want to conduct. Also, the officials must submit detailed descriptions of their communities and explain why the state should invest in their development.

Up to 24 coastal communities eventually are expected to participate, Martin said. He hoped three or four would be approved this summer.

Martin also said: — He has not decided how big a pay increase to recommend for state employees and teachers for fiscal 1988-89.

Martin said he had wanted to grant a 4.9 percent raise for the current fiscal year and to hold in reserve enough money to provide an identical pay increase next year. Instead, the Legislature approved a 5 percent raise for this year and spent the reserve funds on other things, he said.

— His proposed budget supplement that he'll submit to the Legislature next month will include recommendations for spending a $45 million windfall from RJR Nabisco Co.

Pitt Native Gets AP Post

RALEIGH (AP) — Donald W. Evans has been appointed chief of communications for The Associated Press in North Carolina, AP President Louis D. Boccardi has announced.

Evans, 42, is a native of Greenville and joined the AP communications staff in 1969 in New York. He also has worked in Washington.

Frank Turner, who had been chief of communications in Raleigh, is currently on disability leave for health reasons.

Evans was named assistant chief of communications in the Columbus, Ohio, bureau in 1971 and became chief of communications in the Chicago bureau in 1978.

In 1983, Evans went to AP's technical center in East Brunswick, N.J., where his title before coming to Raleigh was director of communications services.

Congress Scraps Gephardt Trade Package, Proposes Compromise Bill

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter today said the compromise trade bill moving ahead in Congress has been cleared of "a lot of undesirable things" but it's too early to tell if the president would accept it.

"There certainly are some provisions in there of dubious merit," Yeutter said. "Whether they add up to a veto, I really can't tell yet."

In working through the package, House and Senate negotiators scrapped Rep. Richard Gephardt's controversial trade retaliation amendment while opting for repeal of the windfall oil profits tax, tough sanctions on Japan's Toshiba Corp. and a $1 billion boost in U.S. grain export subsidies.

The compromise trade bill completed late Thursday night also would require employers to give 60 days' notice of plant closings and would increase government aid to those left jobless as a result of competition from imports.

Yeutter, interviewed on NBC-TV's "Today" show, said the plant closing requirement "is probably a killer provision" that could justify a veto if not removed before the trade package receives final congressional approval.

"The Congress jettisoned a lot of undesirable things this last week," Yeutter said. "The question is whether they jettisoned enough. And we need a couple of days to assess that."

Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., said the plant-closing provision and several others "clearly would sink the legislation unless they were removed." The Senate Finance Committee chairman, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-

Texas, also expressed uncertainty about whether the president would sign the overall package.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House-Senate conference committee that produced the package, said there was bound to be some grumbling, but he was upbeat about the final product.

"We worked long and hard and I think evidence that it's a good product is that nobody's happy about it," he said.

At the heart of the measure are streamlined procedures for imposing restrictions to aid U.S. industries hard hit by imports and retaliate against barriers that trading partners put in the way of American exports.

Erased in last-minute, one-on-one bargaining between Rostenkowski and Bentsen was the provision that erstwhile Democratic presidential contender Gephardt had made the centerpiece of his campaign. It would have required 10 percent annual rollbacks in "excess and unwarranted" surpluses that other countries run in trade with the United States.

In its place, Rostenkowski and Bentsen settled on a modified Senate alternative that calls on the U.S. trade representative to list foreign trade barriers and, if necessary, use import curbs to force their removal.

The bill would transfer from the president to the U.S. trade representative authority to impose import restrictions in retaliation for unfair foreign trade practices. But it still would leave room to waive the curbs if the cost "would be substantially out of proportion to the benefits of action."

The president would retain the authority to decide what import relief to grant to U.S. industries hit hard by surges in imports.

The bill would repeal the windfall profits tax on oil companies, a measure approved by Congress in 1979 when petroleum prices were surging.

The collapse of OPEC sent prices plummeting in 1985, hammering the Texas economy and rendering the tax useless as a revenue raiser, at least for the time being. Its repeal is a goal dear to Bentsen, who is running for re-election this year.

Also approved was a plan to ban U.S. government purchases of Toshiba goods for three years. It also would bar import of products of the company's Toshiba Machine Corp.

U.S. Jobless Rate Hits Lowest Point In Decade

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp decline in the size of the American labor force last month sent the civilian unemployment rate to a decade-low 5.6 percent, the government said today.

While the number of people at work in March dropped by 306,000, those either holding jobs or looking for them fell by 445,000. The 0.1 percentage point drop from February's 5.7 percent jobless rate reflected a decrease of 137,000 — to 6.8 million — in the number of workers listed as unemployed.

The 5.6 percent, seasonally-adjusted, rate is the lowest since May 1979 and has not been lower since 1974, the Labor Department reported.

Janet L. Norwood, the commissioner of labor statistics, said a slowdown in the expansion of the labor force is beginning to be reflected in unemployment rates, which had, until last month, been dropping more on the basis of job growth.

"The birthrate decline in the 1960s and the early 1970s has resulted in fewer young people reaching labor force-age in the 1980s," she said.

While the number of Americans at work has grown by 3 million over the last year, "the labor force has increased by less than 2 million," she told the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

Even though the unemployment rate has fallen a full percentage point from March 1987, the latest government data indicate that the job boom may be coming to an end.

The number of so-called "discouraged workers" — people who have given up the search for a job out of the belief they cannot find one and are not included in the labor force or jobless rate calculations — rose by 115,000 in the first three months of 1988 to 1,027,000 after falling by more than 200,000 last year.

Two-thirds of the increase in discouraged workers was adult men, historically the primary family breadwinners. Factory employment, which had soared through the last half of 1987, was stagnant for the second month in a row.

At 19,417,000 people, manufacturers actually had 1,000 fewer people on their payrolls than in February. Factory employment, however, is still more than 420,000 above where it was a year ago.

Job increases in machinery and printing and publishing were offset by small declines in 11 other manufacturing industries, Ms. Norwood said.

Despite what appears to be an end to the manufacturing rebound, total payroll employment grew by 260,000 last month, according to a Labor Department employer survey.

The unemployment rate calculations are based on a sampling of the nation's households.

Health care and business services provided 85,000 of the new jobs, with construction adding 80,000 more. The growth in construction jobs plus a jump of 10,000 people on real-estate agency payrolls affirm earlier indications of a resurging housing market.

Things are not so well in banking and on Wall Street, however, with employment dropping by 5,000 last month. It was the second straight monthly decline.

Retail trade employment was flat last month after rising by 250,000 workers in January and February.

The jobless rate for whites fell from 4.8 percent to 4.7 percent while rising from 12.6 percent to 12.8 percent for blacks. The rate for Hispanics dropped from 8.3 percent to 8.2 percent.

Joblessness among men was unchanged at 4.9 percent but dropped among women from 5.2 percent to 4.8 percent.

The rate for teenagers rose from 15.4 percent to 16.5 percent. Black teens saw their rate drop from 38.3 percent to 36.9 percent.

An alternate unemployment calculation, including the 1.7 million members of the Armed Services stationed in the United States, also fell 0.1 percentage point to 5.5 percent.

U.S. Acts To Curb Flow Of Dollars To Embattled Noriega Government

By BILL MCALLISTER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration, frustrated that U.S. corporate tax payments may have extended the reign of Panamanian strongman Manuel Antonio Noriega, announced a new plan Thursday to stem the flow of U.S. dollars into Panama.

If U.S. corporations and Americans do not accept the plan voluntarily, the administration suggested it may seek more direct means to block them from sending money to the country.

The action came a day after the influx of tax payments from U.S. corporations appeared to have broken a 10-day general strike called by opponents of Noriega, who is under indictment in the United States on drug-trafficking charges.

Under the White House plan announced late Thursday, the U.S. government will place all the monies it owes Panama into an account at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York that will be controlled by the deposed Panamanian head of state, Eric Arturo Delvalle. The United States recognizes Delvalle, who attempted to fire Noriega, as Panama's legitimate ruler.

In addition, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the administration will encourage individuals and corporations to make any payments to Panama to a similar account that will be established by the Treasury Department. The Internal Revenue Service will issue regulations ensuring that the Americans who make their Panamanian tax payments into the accounts can receive credits on their U.S. taxes for foreign tax payments.

"Through these measures, we are giving U.S. companies and persons an incentive and opportunity not to provide financial support to the Noriega regime," Fitzwater said in a statement. But if the measures prove insufficient, he said the administration will review other steps that would deny funds to Noriega.

It apparently was the fear that U.S. firms would lose their U.S. tax credits that led a number of corporations to make tax payments to the Noriega government. Fitzwater said Thursday those payments came against the wishes of U.S. officials, but that the corporations had insisted they were legally obligated to make the payments.

It was not immediately clear whether the action came quickly enough to stem the flow of U.S. dollars into the country. Thursday was the day when millions in quarterly tax payments were due in Panama.

The Associated Press reported that the country has received an estimated $19 million in quarterly tax revenues, about $5.5 million of that reportedly from taxes and fees paid by U.S. companies doing business in Panama.

Fitzwater sought to minimize the impact of the corporate cash, describing it as "a minor setback" and the general strike as a success. "These are relatively small payments in the total picture and they're not going to solve Mr. Noriega's very serious and long-term problems," Fitzwater said.

The White House action came hours after the Senate passed a resolution 92 to 1 urging the president to invoke his emergency powers to block the transfer of more U.S. dollars to the Noriega regime. Only Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., opposed the measure.

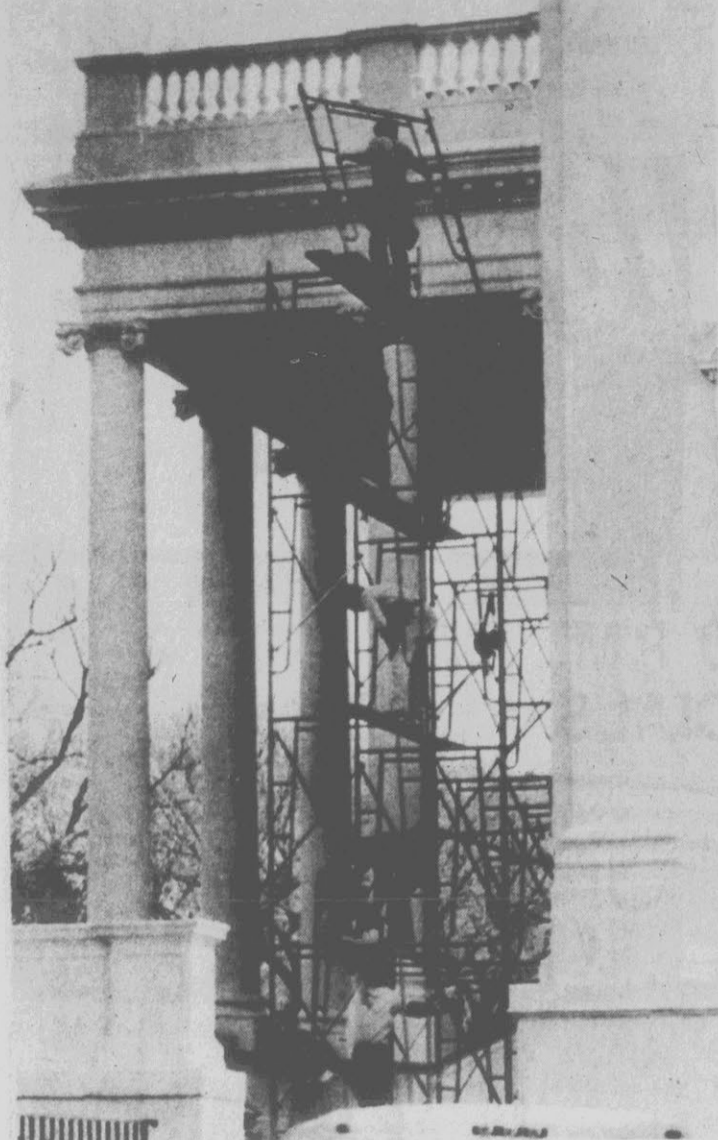

The resolution, which does not carry the weight of law, had suggested that the administration establish an escrow account to hold all such funds until the president decides to release them to Panama.

"Gen. Noriega should no longer be able to use funds under the jurisdiction of our government to break the general strike and continue to cling to power," Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., said in urging approval of the resolution.

Fitzwater did not condemn the companies for making the payments, saying the companies had believed they were under obligation to do so. A State Department spokesman said there was nothing illegal about the payments.

The administration imposed a number of economic sanctions on Panama on March 11 including placing payments from the Panama Canal Commission into escrow accounts.

White House Gets Birthday Facelift

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, which has had at least 30 coats of paint slathered on it since it was first whitewashed in 1797, is getting a facelift for its 200th birthday.

Scaffolding went up along the north wall and part of the south wall of the president's home this week as workers began the job of removing paint preparatory to repainting.

The elaborate sandstone carvings on the window pediments, balustrade and roofline cornice of the building also will be repaired in time for the bicentennial in 1992.

The White House has been the home and office of every president since John Adams, but the cornerstone was laid Oct. 13, 1792, in the administration of George Washington.

Five years later the building was first painted white.

Until 1980, the building was regularly painted every five years. Because of persistent paint failure, the White House and National Park Service asked the National Bureau of Standards in 1976 to make a study and recommend corrective action.

Scientists recommended in 1980 that the 30 or more layers of paint be removed. They said this would improve the building's appearance and make it easier to maintain.

The National Park Service says records show that the building became a white house for the first time when laborers working on its newly laid walls used whitewash as a sealer.

The original walls were damaged when the White House was burned by the British during the War of 1812. During reconstruction from 1815 to 1817, portions of the walls were replaced.

The interior of the White House was renovated from 1948 to 1952, during the Truman administration, but the new project is the largest exterior refurbishing since it was reconstructed.

Repair of the sandstone carvings is being overseen by Vincent Palumbo, master carver for the National Cathedral in Washington. Some of the stones will be replaced with stone removed from the Capitol during a recent renovation.

William Seale, in his authoritative book, "The President's House," writes that the sandstone, quarried from nearby Aquia Creek in Virginia, "was shaped to magnificence" by the hands of the Scots carvers who worked on it.

"The Ionic capitals on the colossal pilasters are carved in high relief with rich scrolls surmounted by acanthus leaves," Seale says. "From the center of each cap bursts a cabbage rose in stone, great in size and fanciful in conception beyond the flowers usually found on column capitals."

Roses also appear again as an ornamental feature in a carved swag over the northern door of the residence. Chains and fish-scale designs decorate the windowsills.

Contras May Get Aid In 2 Weeks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will give quick approval to an aid package for Nicaragua's Contras, but it probably will be at least two weeks before the rebels begin receiving supplies under the new legislation, a State Department official says.

The Senate on Thursday gave lopsided approval to the $48 million aid bill, sending it to the president on a vote of 87-7. The House had approved the measure 345-70 a day earlier.

"There certainly is an urgent need among the resistance for medical supplies, food, clothing, the basic commodities of life," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said. "This bill is very welcome in that regard and we support it."

Fitzwater said Reagan intended to sign the measure before leaving the White House for a 10-day Easter vacation. The Contras have been shut off from U.S. aid since Feb. 29.

The State Department official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said he "would be very surprised if any aid is delivered within the next two weeks" because of the time required by the bureaucracy to gear up for a new delivery effort.

Daylight Savings Time Will Return On Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lot of people will be sleeping late Sunday, but not out of a desire for extra rest.

It's the day that daylight-saving time returns, meaning that clocks should be shifted an hour forward.

The change occurs at 2 a.m. Sunday, meaning most people probably will want to set their clocks ahead one hour before retiring Saturday night. Although known as "daylight-saving time," the annual change doesn't really save any daylight, or time.

It simply moves an hour of light from morning to evening by delaying the timing of both sunrise and sunset by an hour.

That means that some children wind up waiting for school buses in the dark, for example, in exchange for more time after school to play ball or join the family in backyard cookouts.

The idea has been attributed to various people, including Benjamin Franklin, but it was William Willett of England who launched the eventually successful campaign for the idea in 1907.

More time for evening recreation, less need for costly artificial lights and a possible reduction of evening crime were cited as major advantages.

It was the potential for energy savings that prompted first use of daylight-saving time, in Germany in 1916.

PTL Pledge Was A Hoax

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — PTL won't be getting $500,000 from the estate of a "godly woman" after all.

The pledge from a Charleston woman turned out to be a hoax.

David Clark, the court-appointed trustee for the television ministry, broke the news to supporters at a fund-raising telethon Wednesday.

"I think there's a moment that we need to just all take a breath, and sort of realize that we've been hit hard," Clark said.

PTL thought it had raised $2.7 million of the approximately $4.5 million it needs by May 2 to begin climbing out of bankruptcy. But it only has $2.2 million.

"We've turned it over to the authorities, and they're going to be investigating wire fraud," Clark said. "You can't use the telephones like that, I don't think."

The caller identified himself as "Judge Frank Ward" and gave a Charleston telephone number. Ministry officials later discovered the number he gave belonged to a "T. Bailey."

Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Temple Free Will Baptist Church, located behind Sunshine Garden Center.

Musselman is chairman of the music division at Baptist University of America and has been the recipient of the 1985 national piano competition at Estes Park, Colo.

Cedar Grove Church

The Home Mission Society of Cedar Grove Missionary Baptist Church will observe Extension Day Sunday beginning at 2 p.m. with dinner, followed by a service at 3 p.m.

Bishop A.H. Hartsfield and his church family of Selvia Chapel Original Free Will Baptist Church will conduct the service.

THE PRIEST WHO KILLED!

PHINEHAS, THE PRIEST, WHO WAS THE GRANDSON OF THE HIGH PRIEST, AARON, WAS SO ANGERED WHEN HE SAW ZIMRI, A PRINCE OF ISRAEL, TAKE A MIDIANITISH WOMAN INTO HIS TENT FOR LICENTIOUS PURPOSES THAT HE TOOK UP A JAVELIN AND WENT AFTER THEM INTO THE TENT AND THRUST THEM THROUGH! THIS, ACCORDING TO MOSES, PUT A STOP TO THE PLAGUE THAT THE LORD HAD PLACED ON ISRAEL FOR "COMMITTING WHOREDOM WITH THE DAUGHTERS OF MOAB." AN EVERLASTING PRIESTHOOD WAS PROMISED TO HIM FOR THIS DEED! (NUM. 25:1-18)

Woman Dreams Of Museum

By BARBARA YOST
The Phoenix Gazette
WILCOX, Ariz. (AP) — Raynore Karlan's 82-year-old face looks as if someone crumpled it up, threw it away, then thought better and retrieved it.

Each deep line and crevice tells a story: of growing up in an immigrant New York neighborhood, of learning to keep her father's accounting books when she was 7, of living through two world wars and the annulment of her only marriage after three months because her husband reneged on his promise to make her lifelong dream of buying a farm come true.

Now Mrs. Karlan has a new dream: to turn the 160-acre farm she bought herself near Wilcox 20 years ago into a museum dedicated to those who entered America through Ellis Island.

Mrs. Karlan, nee Rivkah Goldstein, envisions the place as a sort of secular Vatican City, where former immigrants would come to live, work, ply the arts and help young people get a start in life.

"I want all those old people, not just Jews — senior citizens, those whose ancestors came through Ellis Island," Mrs. Karlan says. "If I'm lucky, I have another 10 to 15 years to live. That's why I want to get this started."

She's a small woman snug in a colorful kaftan with a gray sweatshirt underneath to ward off the chill breeze that blows through her open front door. Her recitation is sometimes accented with a punching fist and a pointing finger. She is articulate, eloquent, and her spirit is contagious.

She begins with the story of her parents, Jews who emigrated from Poland at the end of the last century. Her father was just 15, sent off from his homeland in a small boat, in the dark of night, seeking a better life in America. He landed on the shores of Germany and obtained passage to New York steerage class on an ocean liner full of people running away from home.

At Ellis Island, the mass of humanity was summarily processed and welcomed to the land of plenty. For expediency, the 15-year-old boy named Nissan Kolskivolsky became Nathan Goldstein. Young Nathan first got himself a job cleaning New York's trolley tracks and then found a better trade: collecting, repairing and selling used clothing. Soon he had a thriving peddling concern as well as his own shop.

At one fabric factory, where he bought remnants, he discovered a girl named Mary, a girl from his hometown. They were married, and Mary bore eight children. One of them was Rivkah, whose name became Raynore when she started school.

Raynore Karlan remembers her childhood fondly. She liked school, though she doesn't seem to have gone much or for very long. She says she learned quickly, and teachers allowed her to pass through courses quickly. She began keeping her father's books when she was 7, sometimes helping her teachers with their mathematics.

When Mrs. Karlan was a young woman, she moved into a flat in Greenwich Village, associating with arts and theater people. She met Max Karlan, an employee in a liquor store, and told him her dream of living on a farm.

They got married and headed for California to make Mrs. Karlan's dream come true. But when they got to Los Angeles, Max decided he didn't want to be a farmer. Raynore dumped him.

Mrs. Karlan got her accountant's license, given credit for her schoolwork and years of experience. She saved her pennies and moved to Tucson in 1968. In 1969, she says, "I found Wilcox."

A farm. It was during the Bicentennial that Mrs. Karlan first had the idea of building her "Vatican." She feared that when she died the government would take her 160 acres of land, since she has no heirs.

She will hire professional contractors to build it, and a building will be named for every contributor. She will run it like a cooperative, with residents pitching in to maintain the place and feed themselves. One building will house a school, where she will take in rebellious 13- to 16-year-olds whose parents have given up on them.

Money is no problem, she insists. "I don't need money. I need PEOPLE." She wants 35 people, or half a dozen to start with. "If I get half a dozen, I can start immediately."

Police Rookie Looks Forward

By DEBRA PRESSEY
The Champaign-Urbana News-Gazette
CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Starting a new career at the age of 50 may not be for everyone.

But Champaign's oldest rookie police officer says it's never too late to decide what you want to do with the rest of your life and go for it.

"Everybody has a stereotype that when you get older you get set in your ways," says Officer Max Hinton, 50, who went to work for the Champaign Police Department in late December.

"But I've always felt age shouldn't be that big a factor if you're willing to make a sacrifice," he added. "It's a personal decision on what you want to do with your life."

Hinton did more than surpass a traditional age barrier to become the city's first officer to be hired since a longtime maximum age limit of 35 was dropped in 1986.

He surpassed every younger police recruit in his training class and took the top physical conditioning award from the University of Illinois Police Training Institute this past December.

He worked with weights and ran two miles a day to get in shape. "I won't say it wasn't difficult," he admits.

Originally from Fisher, Hinton left a commercial egg operation south of Tolono to put on a badge and uniform.

He had tried police work in 1963, working as a state trooper until 1966, but found the job boring, he said.

"We were on rural highways a lot — there wasn't much going on," Hinton said.

He then worked as an accountant for 12 years and got into the egg business with his father-in-law, but when a new round of police eligibility tests began in 1986, Hinton decided to give law enforcement another try.

Family Harmony Will Help Kids

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Danny) and I were recently divorced. We have two school-age children. I invite Danny to every event that involves our children. I put things in the mail to let him know about their participation in school events, and invited him to come on times that are not "his" by court order. I try hard, for the children's sake. (He agrees I am more than fair.)

Our 6-year-old son ("Josh") had a hernia operation yesterday. Josh adores my mother, "Gram," and has spent a lot of time with her. Danny is still angry with my mother over some divorce matters, so he called to tell me that if my mother goes to the hospital to see Josh, there will be trouble. Danny refuses to rotate to let Gram see our son at all — and says he will not share the hospital room with her if she visits Josh.

I am heartbroken. Why can't Danny see that he is only hurting our son? Maybe he will listen to you. Please talk to him, and to all divorce-scared parents out there who are trying to raise kids together. — THINKING OF THE CHILD

DEAR THINKING: I cannot guarantee that Danny — or any of the small army of divorced parents — will "listen" to me, but here goes:

Children of divorced parents are the biggest losers when a parent uses a child to punish an ex-spouse or a member of the family. Everything that concerns the child, school and social events, matters of health — emotional as well as physical — should be shared by both parents. Even though the courts usually decide how much time each parent shall have with the children, the custodial parent can make it either difficult or easy for the other parent. To "poison" a child's mind against the absent parent or a member of his or her family is damaging to the child.

In all things, the child's well-being and happiness should take precedence over the feelings of either parent. Circumstances differ; not all parents are eager to share in the responsibilities of raising a child, but those who are should put aside their own grievances, however justified, to present a united front for the good of the child. I think all divorced parents owe their children that much.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Angry," that woman whose husband refuses to have a vasectomy. Boy, do I ever know how she feels. I'm married to the same kind of guy. We have five kids, and the sixth is due in July. They are 9, 4, 3 and 2 years old, and the baby is 7 months old.

I've had problems giving birth to two of them. My husband flatly refuses to have himself "taken care of,"

and I have had it! After this, I am positively through having kids, and I mean it. He's 46 and I'm 26. Sign me ... WASHED UP IN WINONA

DEAR WASHED UP: Dry up, and read on:

DEAR ABBY: You were wrong in your reply to "Angry," who wanted her husband to have a vasectomy. You suggested that she might change her mind about having more children.

Abby, the world is already so overpopulated that no family should have more than two children. We hope it will never be necessary to do in this country what the Chinese have done — limit families, by law, to only one child. You may be one of those people who feel people should have as many children as they can afford to feed, but, Abby, we are running out of space for people to live and we are depleting our natural resources.

You should have told that lady to sleep in separate beds until her husband comes to his senses (if he has any). What if he has a scar half an inch long? Who's going to see it? As for discomfort for one or two days, that's a lot of baloney. I could have gone back to work immediately after my vasectomy. Believe, me, it was no big deal. — ALL MAN IN WHEATON, MD.

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letters Booklet, P.O. Box 117, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage and handling are included).

Chief Wants Drunks Off City's Streets

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

Holiday weekends usually bring about warm family receptions and friendly neighborhood outings. Holiday weekends are also notable for an increase in the sale and consumption of alcohol. Combine that with having to drive home and you've got a potentially deadly combination.

Greenville's new Police Chief Jerry Tesmond said that, when it comes to enforcement, he doesn't turn the other cheek to driving drunk. "I believe in drunken driving enforcement because that's one of the top killers of people throughout the country," Tesmond said.

"If you take a 3,000 pound machine and put it on the road with somebody that's impaired, whether it's alcohol or drugs, you've got a lethal and potential killer."

Tesmond said that in Muscatine, Iowa, where he previously served as chief, he instructed officers to take drunken driving seriously and he plans to do the same in Greenville.

"I feel we've got an obligation to the community to make our streets safe for both pedestrians and other drivers," he said.

"If you get somebody that's not responsible, then that's why we have the law. If it's disturbing this community, if someone is impeaching on the security and the quality of life in this community, then we're going to do something about it," Tesmond warned.

Small Classes Backed

vast sums" in efforts to reduce class size.

With the projected shortage of teachers, "just like any other company or organization, they attack their shortage through salaries and job incentives," Norwood said. "Education has to do the same thing both public and private to get the qualified candidate as well as get more people into the profession."

Echoing those sentiments Roscoe Locke, principal at Stokes Elementary School, said, "We need an incentive to attract good teachers for the profession, and keep in mind what's best for students.

"We have already seen evidence in the school that reduction in class size enables the students to receive better learning," he said. It also allows teachers to work with students in a smaller ratio.

Charles Ross, associate superintendent for instruction in the county school system, said under the state's Basic Education Plan the daily average membership ratio of teacher to students for kindergarten through third grade students is 1 to 20. For fourth through sixth grades, the ratio is 1 to 22; seventh and eighth, 1 to 21, and ninth through 12th, 1 to 24.5.

Those figures are what is projected for BEP as it is fully implemented by the 1992-93 school year, Ross said. "I do think it makes a difference to have a smaller class size. There is more individual attention in a smaller class size."

Smaller classes allow teachers to draw more input from students, said Bill Wiggins, principal at Ayden-Grifton High School. In a Spanish class, for example, a teacher could call on most of her students in a translation exercise if it was a smaller size. And in a lab situation, students would benefit more if three students were assigned to a station as opposed to seven.

"I really think a smaller class enhances student achievement," he said. "The teacher can establish a better line of communication and fashion the lesson in a way that students feel a part of class and don't feel lost in a group of members."

"When I first began teaching about 29 years ago, I had 36 students in the room," said Esther Warren, principal of Sadie Sautter School. "Basically the class size is 29 because the state allows you to do that ... but even with 15 kids in a group, how many turns can they have?"

Another consideration is the paperwork it requires for teachers, she said. "It takes forever to grade all those papers, (and) good teachers are going to do a lot of planning," which is dependent on class size.

The recruiting effort in the school system for more teachers is an effort to counter the projected shortage of teachers, Wiggins said. "We're coming back with a move within our system to recruit young people even in our middle grades" through future teacher associations. There also are scholarships for those wanting to be teachers and other incentives toward the career.

Principals agreed with Charles Long, principal of Farmville Central High School, who said "making teaching more attractive" through better salaries also would combat the problem of a teaching shortage.

But, "money is the bottom line," said Josh Potter, principal of North Pitt High School. "Education is going to cost," but it is a matter of priorities. "If you don't have good quality education, it will cost taxpayers through more social programs" designed to aid those without a good education, he said.

Hubble Sentenced

time specified by the judge. A conviction might endanger Hubble's scholarship and his opportunity to finish his education, Connor said.

The university's athletic department and honor board have already punished Hubble by suspending him from spring football practice, expelling him from campus housing, assigning him more than 30 hours of community service work, levying a $100 fine and installing a mandatory study hall and curfew, Connor told the court.

Hubble is majoring in criminal justice and is in good standing academically, Connor said to the court, but if university officials revoke his scholarship he may not be able to afford to remain in college.

ECU Athletic Director Dave Hart is in Kansas City, Mo., attending the NCAA basketball finals, and no decision will be made on Hubble's future until Hart returns to Greenville next week, according to Associate Athletic Director Henry Van Sant.

University officials have said in the past they will review each case individually. ECU basketball player Theodore "Blue" Edwards, one of four players involved in dorm break-ins in late 1986, was suspended from the squad last fall after he pleaded guilty to the felony of receiving stolen property, but he was allowed to keep his scholarship and practice with the team. Two other players involved were suspended from school for academic reasons and another transferred.

Hubble, who was redshirted last season, will be a sophomore academically next year but he will still have four years of eligibility remaining on the football squad.

Four other ECU football players are scheduled to appear in District Court in April. Lester Errol McCorvey, 19, of Pensacola, Fla., Ernest L. Pendleton, 18, of Devon, Pa., and Lewis E. Wilson, 21, of Foley Ala., are scheduled to appear April 11 to face charges of assaulting a female and Ernest Edward Logan II, 19, of Spring Lake is scheduled to appear April 18 to face assault charges.

DO IT YOURSELF KIT!

Remember a few years back when "do it yourself" kits were so popular? It seemed that everything, from solar water heaters to leather moccasins to doll houses were offered in kit form. The kits came with all parts included (although they sometimes didn't fit) and complete instructions were included (which could be read only by an engineer).

Why were those "do it yourself" kits so popular? Several reasons. They satisfied the urge to make something ourselves and hopefully do it for less. Maybe some time could be saved in the process too, and by carefully following the instructions the quality might even exceed the "store bought" version.

Not unlike the "do it yourself" kit, selling a home "by owner" has been a

Students Help Out

The seventh-graders spearheaded the drive but said first- and second-graders were most generous. However, all of the 200 children at St. Peter's donated, they said.

"We just told everybody that these were needy people and they needed help. We reminded them everyday, and they just donated money. And they tried to take it out of their own allowance, not from their parents," Kara Bozik, 13, said.

St. Peter's has participated in fund drives before. Students have raised money for the needy and to purchase school supplies for children in Central America.

However, red tide hit closer to home for many of the students because their families eat area seafood or vacation at Bogue Banks.

"My family eats seafood, but we didn't eat any during red tide. When I found out some seafood was safe to eat I felt kind of bad we weren't eating any because it was really not fair to (fishermen)," said 14-year old Al DeBiase.

Others feared their spring and summer vacations would be canceled.

"I thought red tide would stick around for a year or two. I didn't know much about red tide until Mrs. Sewell came and talked to us about it," said Drew Williams, 13.

Mrs. Sewell said she never thought her talk would lead to such kindness.

"Oh, my gosh! I had no idea. I can't believe they did this. I think it was great," she said.

She said she hopes the donations represent the last such aid area fishermen will need.

"They're starting to come back now. I think by next Monday they'll be doing all right because crabbing is opening up and shrimping is coming," she said.

Last minute plans aren't always more difficult. Sometimes, they're impossible.

Isn't it odd that most people never make prearrangement plans? After all most people wouldn't think of waiting until the worst possible time to make plans for anything else. But with funeral and burial prearrangement, all too often, people shirk their responsibility and force their family to make arrangements under great stress. # For 'Labeled' Final Four Contenders It's Time For Final Battles

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The overrated Arizona team from the poor Pac-10. Oklahoma's better-sooner-than-later Sooners, who run but don't play defense. The Duke team that does everything the way Bob Knight would have. And the one-man show from Kansas, with the vagabond coach.

They all come into the 50th NCAA Final Four at Kansas City with labels, whether they deserve them or not.

"We have one game here Saturday," Duke forward Danny Ferry said Thursday night as the Blue Devils arrived at the Kansas City airport. "The object is to play two. It's the same for everybody. ... Now, it's time to concentrate on the game."

This weekend, that's all that will count, and there will be only one label that matters — the tag of national basketball champions.

Saturday's semifinals match No. 5 Duke, 28-6, of the Atlantic Coast Conference against unranked Kansas, 28-11, of the Big Eight, at 5:30 p.m. EST, and No. 2 Arizona, 35-2, vs. No. 4 Oklahoma, 34-3, also of the Big Eight, at 8 p.m. The final, which many think will belong to the Arizona-Oklahoma winner, is set for Monday night at 9 p.m.

Arizona-Oklahoma is the anticipated shootout. It may well become one, since both can score big. But the teams also have proven they can play halfcourt games, offensively and defensively.

"Take no prisoners. Right!" Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs said to enthusiastic boosters as his team arrived shortly after Duke. "It's great to be back. The first Final Four I ever witnessed was in this city — when UCLA won its first one (in 1964). That's a great omen."

Arizona, led by Sean Elliott and Steve Kerr, got to the Final Four by beating its opponents by an average of 26.75 points, including a 70-52 victory over No. 7 North Carolina in the West Regional final. It was the Tar Heels' worst NCAA Tournament loss since 1969.

UCLA set the tournament record for winning margin by a national champion of 23.75 in 1967. To break the record, Arizona would have to win its next two games by an average of 18 points.

By the same token, Arizona is a well-disciplined team that has adopted the precision-passing, halfcourt game that Coach Lute Olson brought with him from Iowa, which he took to the Final Four in 1980.

No Arizona player, even the All-American Elliott, averaged 20 points. Elliott led the team at 19.2, followed by three more players — Tom Tolbert (14.2), Anthony Cook (13.8) and Kerr (12.7) — at 10 or better.

"All of the talk — 'They play in a weak league, who have they played, they play better teams earlier in their schedule, and their league will make them soft for the tournament' — this team has proved from the beginning that they are a quality team," Olson said.

Both Arizona and Oklahoma are Final Four neophytes. The Wildcats had never been to a Final Four. The Sooners haven't gone since 1947, and a victory over Arizona would tie Billy Tubbs with Bruce Drake at 200 victories, most by any Oklahoma coach. Tubbs is the only coach here without Final Four experience.

The Sooners, led by 20-point scorer Stacey King and Harvey Grant, have built their record-breaking offense around a full court press that is designed to force turnovers, resulting in more Oklahoma points.

"Everyone is loose and having fun," Grant said, "but we know it'll be all business on the court."

The tag on Duke may be the most accurate of all, and what would be wrong with that, at least in a basketball sense. Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski — usually just called Coach K because most people can neither pronounce nor spell his name — played three years under Knight at Army and was Knight's graduate assistant in 1975 at Indiana.

Duke does have a great man-to-man defense. Asked recently whether his Blue Devils would use it against Kansas' Danny Manning, Coach K replied, almost incredulously: "We've played man-to-man all year."

Indeed, Krzyzewski uses man-to-man defense all the time, like Knight. Duke's top defender, Billy King, probably will draw the assignment on Manning. In Duke's East Regional championship victory over top-ranked Temple, King held Mark Macon, the nation's No. 1 freshman scorer, to 6-for-29 shooting, although Macon helped by throwing up eight shots that didn't even touch the rim.

"The key to every game we've played this year was defense," Ferry said. "If we shoot well, we can win. When we can put our offense together with our defense, then we're a very tough team to beat."

Like Arizona, Duke spreads its offense around. Ferry averaged 19.1 points, Kevin Strickland 16.3 and Robert Brickley 10.6. Junior point guard Quinn Snyder, who once complained to Coach K that his teammates weren't listening to him on the floor, is emerging as a leader, if not a scorer.

The Duke-Kansas game is a rematch of the 1986 national semifinal, which Duke won 71-67. Duke also won 74-70 in overtime at Kansas this season, getting 21 points from Snyder.

Kansas is the most lightly regarded team in the Final Four with one of the most highly regarded players in the nation, the two-time All-American Manning. The 6-foot-8 senior forward averaged 24.6 points this season for the Jayhawks. The next best average belonged to the team's defensive specialist, Milt Newton, at 11.2.

Yet, when it came time to beat Kansas State for the Midwest Regional title, it was left to support players, like Scooter Barry, to help out. Although Manning scored 20 points, he did not dominate as he has done so often for the Jayhawks. That's when Barry, son of NBA Hall of Famer Rick Barry, came to Kansas' aid with 15 points after averaging just 2.2 for his career.

"We've shown so much character the entire tournament," Barry said. "We deserve this."

Some say: Give much of the credit to Kansas Coach Larry Brown, who has been at the school five seasons and has taken the Jayhawks to the Final Four two of the past three years. Many others only question: Where will Brown be after this season?

Before coming to Kansas in 1983, Brown was coach for Carolina and Denver of the old American Basketball Association and later the NBA for seven seasons, UCLA for two seasons, and New Jersey of the NBA for two more seasons. Now, he is rumored to be on his way to either the new NBA franchise at Charlotte, N.C., or back to UCLA.

"Sometimes, it's comical," Brown said. "I can't ever say I'm going to be somewhere. But I intend to be here. After Danny graduates and I'm still here, that will put all that to rest."

Chaney Is Top Coach

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — John Chaney of Temple, who guided the Owls to their first No. 1 ranking and a berth in the round of eight in the NCAA tournament, was named today college basketball coach of the year by The Associated Press.

Chaney received 261 of 445 votes from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters which voted before the NCAA Tournament began.

Temple was ranked 12th in this year's preseason poll but jumped to the Top Ten two weeks later and finally took the No. 1 ranking for the final six weeks of the season.

The Owls, 32-2, had the top ranking entering the NCAA Tournament and they managed victories over Lehigh, Georgetown and Richmond before losing to No. 5 Duke 63-53 in the East Regional championship game. Temple's only other loss was in the regular season, at Nevada-Las Vegas.

Arizona's Lute Olson was second with 58 votes, followed by Purdue's Gene Keady, with 56, Paul Westhead of Loyola, Calif., with 21 and Billy Tubbs of Oklahoma, with 13.

This was Chaney's sixth season at Temple and every one has been successful after a 14-15 mark in his first year. The Owls went 26-5 the next year and won the Atlantic 10 championship with an 18-0 record.

Chaney won the Division II national championship at Cheyney State in 1978, and he has forged a career record of 379-96 in 16 seasons, including a 114-38 mark at Temple.

The Owls were led freshman sensation Mark Macon, whom Chaney praised when he was selected earlier this week to the All-Freshmen team.

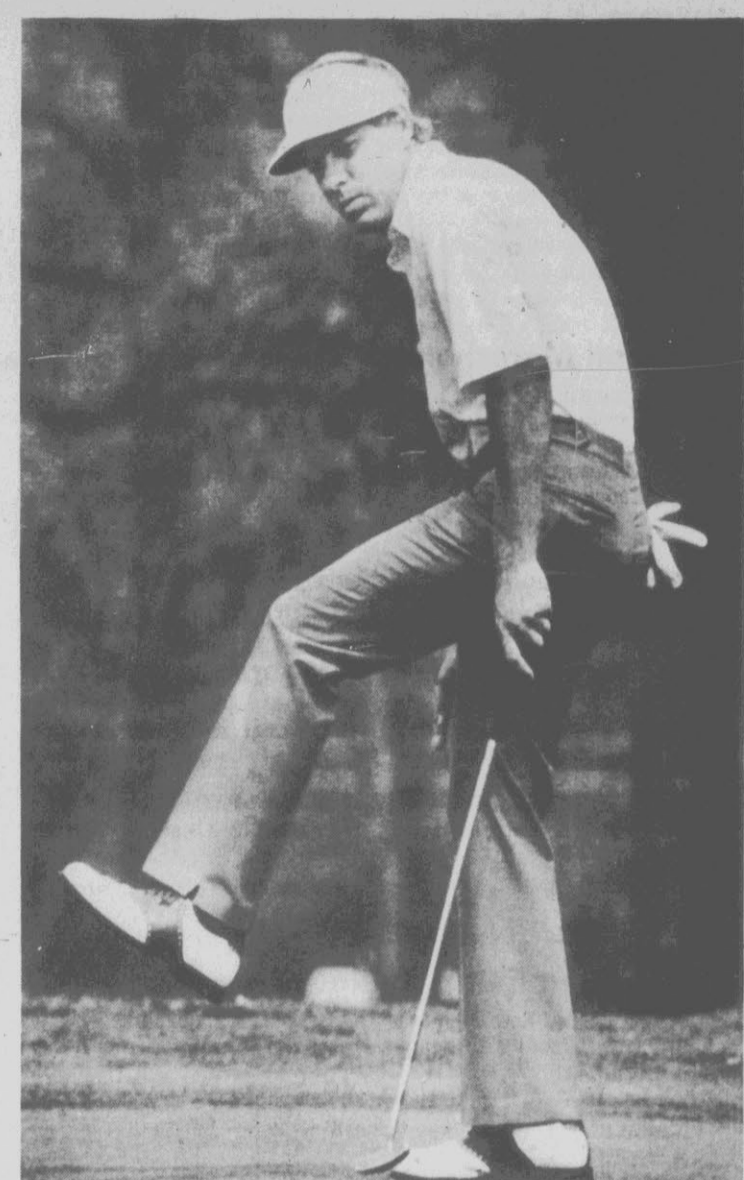

"We knew that he had a chance to be a great, great player in his first year. He had already shown that," Chaney said. "But it was his overall character, on and off the court, that lifted us to a level never reached before in the history of the university."

Iowa's Tom Davis won the award last season.

The Associated Press also announced that Bradley All-American Hersey Hawkins, who led Division I in scoring with the highest average in 11 years, was named today the college basketball player of the year.

The 6-foot-3 senior guard finished the 31-game season with a 36.3 scoring average, the highest mark since Freeman Williams of Portland State averaged 38.8 in 1977. His 1,125 points made him the first player to break the 1,000-point mark in a season since Williams and it was the highest figure in a season since Pistol Pete Maravich scored 1,381 in 1969-70, his senior season at Louisiana State.

Hawkins received 223 of 445 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters which voted before the NCAA Tournament began.

Sluman Captures Early GGO Lead

GREENSBORO (AP) — Jeff Sluman's tee shot on the 11th hole confirmed that his first round in the Greater Greensboro Open would rank as one of those special days.

Sluman's drive bounded down a cart path, found an opening between some trees, ran through a bunker and back onto the fairway. He capitalized on the break to birdie the hole.

"That was kind of a tip-off that I had something special going," Sluman said.

Sluman went on to complete an 8-under-par round of 64 that tied the course record and gave him a two-shot lead Thursday after the opening 18 holes of the $1 million Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

"I threw a new driver in the bag this week for the first time in three years, but it was the putter that did most of the work," said Sluman, who one-putted 10 times and chipped in once during his nine-birdie effort at the Forest Oaks Country Club.

Sluman, yet to win in five seasons on the PGA Tour, led this tournament through three rounds in 1985, but had his best chance for victory last season in the Tournament Players Championship.

He took Sandy Lyle of Scotland to a three-hole playoff before losing.

"I've been there a few times now, so I'm a little more comfortable in this position than I was the first time I led here," Sluman said. "I think it was only the fourth or fifth tournament I'd played in and I was pretty nervous." T.C. Chen of Taiwan played without a bogey in a round of 66 that put him in a tie for second with Robert Thompson and Mark Calcavecchia.

Scott Hoch and Donnie Hammond were next at 67 in the chase for a $180,000 first prize.

Lyle had a 68 and was tied with Gil Morgan, Rocco Mediate, Ken Green, Canadian Dan Halldorson and Bruce Zabriski.

PGA champion Larry Nelson was in a large group at 69.

Scott Simpson, the defending tournament champion and current U.S. Open title-holder, could do no better than a 74 and faced the prospect of having to improve today in order to qualify for the final two rounds.

Ian Woosnam of Wales, who collected $1.8 million in international winnings last season, had a 73 and also was in danger of missing a second consecutive cut.

Holiday Baseball Tourneys Open

Holiday baseball tournaments will open on several fronts during the coming week, with a couple of them getting underway on Saturday.

Four of the five high schools in Pitt County will be involved in the Pitt County Holiday Tournament, which begins at 11 a.m. Saturday at D.H. Conley. The eight team field will play three games daily to decide all eight places.

Meanwhile action will also begin on Saturday for the annual Jamesville Baseball Tournament, which will involve not only the Bullets, but also Bear Grass, Roanoke, Williamston and Washington.

Greene Central will play in the Wilson Optimist Tournament on April 7-8, while North Pitt will be in the SouthWest Edgecombe Tournament on Monday and Tuesday.

At Conley, the Pitt Tournament will open with Farmville Central taking on Havelock at 11 a.m. Saturday. Rose and North Lenoir will follow at 2 p.m. The night session sends Ayden-Grifton against Kinston at 5 p.m. while hosting Conley faces New Bern at 8 p.m.

Monday, the 11 a.m. game has the two afternoon losers facing each other, while the two night losers meet at 2 p.m. The two Saturday afternoon winners meet at 5 p.m. with the night winners at 8 p.m.

Tuesday, seventh place will be decided at 11 a.m., fifth at 2 p.m., third at 5 p.m. and the championship at 8 p.m.

In the first round of the Jamesville tournament, Plymouth will meet Bear Grass at noon, followed by Columbia and Washington at 2:30 p.m. Bath faces Williamston at 5 p.m. and Roanoke tangles with the Bullets at 7:30 p.m.

Monday, the losers of the Saturday afternoon games play at noon, followed by the night losers at 2:30 p.m. The Saturday afternoon winners play at 5 p.m. and the night winners at 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday, at 5 p.m., the consolation game will be played with the championship at 7:30 p.m.

At SouthWest Edgecombe, North Pitt plays North Edgecombe at 6 p.m. Monday while the hosting Cougars take on Northampton East at 8 p.m. The consolation and championship games are Tuesday at 6 and 8 p.m., respectively.

Next Thursday, Greene Central takes on Beddingfield at 5 p.m. at Fleming Stadium in Wilson, while Fike meets Hunt at 7:30 p.m. The consolation and championship games will be played April 8 at the same times.

Bell Keys New ECU Defense

By TIM CHANDLER
Reflector Sports Writer
For Richard Bell the key to a successful football team stems from improvement.

Bell, East Carolina University's new defensive coordinator, is in the midst of spring practice with the Pirates and hopes that by the time the 1988 football season kicks off his players will feel the same also.

"If every player on our team will just go out each Saturday and give over 100 percent, even if it is only one or two percent (over), then through an 11-game season the team should improve 10 to 20 percent — and that makes a big difference," Bell said. "If the players will employ this philosophy then I think the victories will take care of themselves."

It sounds like a tall order to ask if you consider the task that awaited Bell's arrival at ECU back in early February. The situation was far from pleasant. Gone from last year's 5-6 team were six defensive starters (Ellis Dillahunt, Vinson Smith, Bubba Waters, Medrick Rainbow, Ron Gilliard and John Williamson) and some key reserves.

But if there is anybody who is capable of reworking the Pirate defense it is Bell, according to ECU head coach Art Baker.

"I may be prejudiced, but I think that Richard Bell is the best defensive coordinator in the country," Baker said. "He is knowledgeable and and he is a great motivator. "Anytime you lose players of the caliber of the ones that we lost, you are going to have an uphill battle," Baker continued. "But the players have high hopes and Richard (Bell) is so well organized and prepared that we are very confident. In fact, in last Saturday's scrimmage, I thought the defense looked better than at anytime since I have been coaching here."

With all the departures from the defense of last year, Bell has installed a new defensive scheme into the Pirates playbook. The defense employs a multiple, eight-man front, which Baker says fits the team to a "T."

"It (the new defense) is an aggressive, attacking type of defense," Baker said.

Don't dare think for a moment that Bell's hopes were dampened when he was informed of the numerous gaps to be filled in the defense upon his arrival.

"I'm a firm believer in the old thought that 90 percent of the game is played above the shoulder pads," Bell said. "You've got to go into every game with the thought that you can win and that you do have a chance."

Bell came to Greenville after serving as defensive coordinator and assistant head coach at Duke University for the past five years. He has been serving as a defensive coordinator for the past 16 years, excluding the 1982 season when he was the head coach at South Carolina for one season. Bell has also served at Texas Tech, where he and Baker served together as members of the staff.

"Coaching is coaching no matter where you are," Bell said. "What you have to do is go in and try to sell yourself and what you believe in. The mental attitude of the players, whether at Duke or East Carolina or wherever, is the essential key to having success."

And with the proper mental attitude, according to Bell, comes the possibility for many wins.

"Right now, what I'm emphasizing to our players is to get better every day," Bell said. "If we do that, the wins will take care of themselves."

Bell, like most football coaches across the country, enters every season with the thoughts of having the perfect, unbeaten year.

"We will enter the year with that philosophy (of winning all 11 games) and build on it," he said. "I believe in putting goals out of reach, but never out of sight. If during the course of the season we need to adjust our plans or goals, then we will do it."

"All I want is for the kids to go out and play every Saturday and be able to walk off of the field and say that they played better than the week before," Bell said. "If that happens, everybody should be happy with the results."

Rose, Leisten Romp By Rocky Mount

ROCKY MOUNT — Rose High School's Lisa Leisten added three goals to her growing total as she led the Rampettes to an 8-1 soccer victory over Rocky Mount Thursday.

Leisten, in addition to the hat trick — all three goals in the second half — also recorded three saves. She now has 12 goals in four games thus far this year.

Rose scored three times in the first half. Maggi Brown hit the first at 18:37, while Scharles Cox added a second at the 20:12 mark. Jennifer King finished up the first half scoring on a penalty kick with 20:51 gone.

Rose is now 4-0 on the year, all against Big East opponents. Alone in first place, the Rampettes are idle until April 12 when they entertain Wilson Beddingfield.

ECU Is 15th At The Furman Intercollegiate

From Staff And Wire Reports

GREENVILLE, S.C. — East Carolina is in 15th place with a team score of 310 after one day of competition at the Furman Intercollegiate Golf Tournament Thursday.

Joe Gay shot a 4-under-par 68 to lead North Carolina State to first place after one round.

Gay carded a 1-under-par 35 Thursday on the front nine of the 6,800-yard, par-72 Furman University Golf Course, and came back with a 3-under-par 33 on the back nine, for the Wolfpack, who had a 289 total.

Wake Forest was in second place in the team standings at 290, followed by Georgia at 291. Virginia was in fourth at 296, followed by defending champion Georgia Tech at 298.

Tee Davies leads ECU with a 72, which put him in a five-way for fourth place.

Paul Garcia had a 76 for the Pirates, while teammates John Chapman had a 77, and Simon Moyer and Mark Hilday both chipped in with 85s.

The tournament concludes Saturday.

Farmville Middle School Wins 15-2

FARMVILLE — Farmville Middle School defeated G.R. Whitfield, 15-2, in a junior high school baseball game Thursday.

John Wade tossed the victory for Farmville, with relief in the final inning. Farmville was led by Troy Puryear, who hit two homers and drove in five runs.

Eastern Wayne Uses Balance To Top Rose

GOLDSBORO — Eastern Wayne used a balanced attack to take first place in a three-way golf match held at Walnut Creek Country Club Thursday.

The Warriors finished the round with a team score of 312, handing Rose High School its first loss of the year. Rose carded a 321 to take second while D.H. Conley had a 329 total.

Brian Mull, Paul Siler and Chip Spiron each carded 77 to lead Eastern. Rose was led by Rob Thomas with a 72, the low round of the day for all golfers.

John Pinner led Conley with a 77.

The loss drops Rose to 5-1 on the year. The Rampants are idle until April 11 when they play host to Kinston at Brook Valley.

Conley's next match is also on April 11 as they entertain Havelock.

Patrick Tosses No-Hitter For Vikes; Rose Rallies To Defeat Rocky Mount

MOREHEAD CITY — Bronswell Patrick tossed a no-hitter with 14 strikeouts and two walks to lead D.H. Conley to a 7-0 baseball win over West Carteret in the Vikings' Coastal Conference opener Thursday.

The win moved Patrick to 2-0 on the year while the Vikings improve to 2-2 overall and 1-0 in the Coastal.

Patrick got plenty of support from his teammates, who banged out seven runs on 11 hits.

Conley took the early lead, pushing across one run in both the first and second and then four more in the sixth and one in the seventh.

In the first, Scottie Barnhill led off with a double. Brian Bullock then walked while Patrick flew out to centerfield to move Barnhill to third. Sherwood Wilder then singled in Barnhill.

In the second, Travis Clemons opened with a walk. William Crandall walked. Scottie Barnhill then singled to move the runners up.

Brian Bullock then knocked in Clemons on a sacrifice fly.

In the sixth, Wilder had a two-run single to key a four-run inning that extended the Vikings lead.

Barnhill and Wilder had two hits apiece for the Vikings.

Conley returns to action Saturday night against New Bern in the D.H. Conley Easter Tournament.

ROCKY MOUNT — Tom Moyer singled in Tim Moore with the go-ahead run in the top of the seventh to lead Rose past Rocky Mount, 5-4, in a Big East baseball game Thursday.

Rose trailed 4-2 after three innings as Rocky Mount as Jeff Thomas keyed a three-run inning with a two-run homer.

But Rose rallied back, pushing across one run each in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

In the fifth, Axel Smith opened with a base on balls and advanced on an error that allowed Dave Daniels to reach. Jamie Brewington then brought pinch-runner Dallas McPherson home with a single to make it 4-3.

In the sixth, designated hitter John Bolen opened the inning with a single and went to second on a wild pitch. Bolen then went to third on a ground out by Jay Surles and came home on a sacrifice fly by Heath Clark to tie the game at 4-4.

Rose took the lead in the seventh when Moore opened with a single and moved up on another single by Daniels before Moyer brought home the winning run.

Moyer then kept the Gryphons scoreless over their final at-bat to end the game. He struck out the first batter and got the second one to ground out. Joseph Hill followed with a single, but Moyer struck out Scott Lewis for the final out.

After giving up the three runs in the third, Moyer didn't give up another hit or allow a baserunner until midway through the sixth. For the game, he finished with six strikeouts while giving up seven hits to earn the win.

Daniels, Moore and Bolen had two hits apiece to lead the Rampants, 7-0 overall and 2-0 in the conference.

Hill and Gary Miller had two hits apiece to lead Rocky Mount.

Rose returns to action Saturday in the D.H. Conley Eastern Tournament against North Lenoir at 2 p.m.

Chocowinity's only run came in the sixth. Dale Cole singled with two outs and Jonathan Hawley's long drive to the outfield hit the top of the fence and bounced back in for a run-scoring double.

No one on either team had more than one hit.

Chocowinity falls to 0-4, all in the TBC. The Indians return to action April 12, hosting Columbia.

CRESWELL — Eric Spruill climaxed a big day for the Jamesville Bullets with a grand-slam home run as they romped to an 11-2 Tobacco Belt Conference baseball win over hosting Creswell Thursday.

Jamesville took the lead in the second inning with a run, then put the game away with four more in the third.

Ernie Gardner reached on an error to open the third but was forced at second on Jeff Phelps' grounder. Spruill, Craig Dickerson and Ernie Coltrain each walked, forcing in Phelps. Doug Jones also walked, scoring Spruill. A balk brought in Dickerson and another scored Coltrain for a 5-0 lead.

The Bullets added six in the seventh, including Spruill's grand slam.

Creswell scored single runs in the fourth and sixth innings.

Coltrain led Jamesville's hitting with two while no one had more than one for Creswell.

Jamesville is now 3-2 overall and 3-1 in league play. The Bullets face Roanoke on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the first round of the Jamesville Easter Tournament.

Time Marches On For Cale

By RICK SCOPPE
AP Sports Writer

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Cale Yarborough grew up at Darlington International Raceway.

He listened to the radio broadcast of the first race at the track, crawled under the fence the next year to see the 1951 Southern 500 and drove his first race at the track at age 17 — four years under the NASCAR age limit.

Except for 1971-72, when he drove in the Indianapolis 500, Yarborough has always run Darlington. Until this year.

Before Sunday's TranSouth 500, Yarborough said not being behind the wheel made him feel odd.

"Really, this is where my racing career started ... and it's been my home race track, so to speak," said Yarborough, who grew up some 15 miles from the track in Timmonsville and now lives in nearby Sardis. "It's a little bit of a strange feeling, to be honest. But time marches on."

Yarborough, the fourth-winningest driver in NASCAR history, didn't run in the TranSouth 500 and won't drive in the Southern 500 on Sept. 4 at Darlington — a race he's won a record five times — because of his contract with Hardee's.

Yarborough has agreed to run 10 races — two each at Daytona, Talladega, Charlotte, Atlanta and Michigan — and let Dale Jarrett drive the other 19 races on the schedule.

The decision on which track to leave out came down between Darlington and Michigan, Yarborough said. He said Hardee's felt the Michigan races would give the company better television exposure.

Yarborough, who turned 48 Sunday, said he wasn't sure whether he had raced for the final time around the 1.366-mile oval that is the oldest superspeedway on the circuit.

"What will transpire next year, I don't know," he said. "I'm playing it a year at a time."

Through the years, Yarborough, who has the track record for the top winning speed — 134.033 mph in the 1973 Southern 500 — has accumulated his share of memories at the track, beginning with the first race he saw there.

While standing in line to get into the track, the 11-year-old Yarborough grew impatient. So he crawled under the fence.

"Oh, man, I was inside the Darlington Raceway," Yarborough wrote in his book, "Cale." "I was, at that moment, the happiest kid in the world."

But watching was not enough. He had to be down there racing against the best NASCAR had.

In 1957, he got his chance when he received his NASCAR license. But the day before he was to go to Darlington, he received a letter from NASCAR asking him to return the license because he was 17 and NASCAR required drivers to be 21.

Yarborough ignored the letter but ran into more trouble at the track. NASCAR officials said he couldn't drive. So Yarborough and fellow driver Bobby Weatherly said Weatherly would drive.

But Yarborough managed to sneak into the car and run a few practice laps before NASCAR officials pulled him off the track. Yarborough was not to be denied. He managed to get back into the car and turned in a qualifying speed of 108.45 mph, good enough for the 44th spot in the 53-car field.

But NASCAR officials saw Yarborough in the car afterward and escorted him out of the track. Yarborough crawled under the same spot in the fence he used six years earlier to get into the track and slipped back into his car.

Soon, the race had begun and Yarborough was in the middle of it — until NASCAR officials ordered him off the track after about 30 laps, this time for good.

"I can remember it very well, that first race here," Yarborough said. "I came straight from the dirt tracks. I had never even been on asphalt. I was fresh out of high school."

"I really thought I could come over here and beat Fireball Roberts and Junior Johnson," Yarborough said. "I was ready to go. I was after it. But it didn't take me a lap or two to realize that this was a brand new ball game and that it was going to take some time."

"But I think that day really was the day I made up my mind that I was going to do it, that this was where it was at for me."

Through the years, Victory Lane is where it's been for Yarborough. He has won 83 Winston Cup races, including 50 superspeedway victories, and has pocketed nearly $4.5 million. He's also the only driver to win three straight Winston Cup titles.

But of all his victories, one sticks out — his first Southern 500 triumph.

"The biggest memory I have of this race is when I won the Southern 500 in 1968 on the old race track before they redid it," he said. "It was a tough race track then, it's still a tough race track. But it was the toughest race track in the world to drive on at the time."

"I wouldn't take anything in the world for that win. It was the best win I ever had. Luckily, I went on and won five Southern 500s. Nobody else has ever done that. It's been good to me. I've got some fond memories, but you've got to look to the future."

Yarborough, in his 31st year of racing, began reducing the number of races he runs in 1981 so he could spend more time with his family. He went from 31 races to 18 in 1981 and has competed in just 16 races each year until this season.

Over that span, Yarborough has won 14 races but his last victory was in the 1985 Miller 500 in Charlotte, N.C.

In 1986, Yarborough bought his own team — another step toward his eventual retirement as a driver.

Valvano Said UCLA's Choice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA is without a basketball coach, but indications are that situation is only temporary.

In fact, it seems possible that Jim Valvano, the North Carolina State coach for the last nine seasons, could be hired as a replacement for Walt Hazzard shortly.

The UCLA job opened Wednesday when Hazzard was fired by Chancellor Charles Young after four years as the Bruins' coach. Hazzard had a 77-47 record at the school, including 16-14 this past season.

The Los Angeles Herald-Examiner reported on Thursday that UCLA officials had offered Valvano a five-year, $2.5 million contract. The newspaper quoted sources as saying Valvano was 90 percent certain he would accept the offer and would be in Los Angeles today to work out details.

The Los Angeles Times said in its Friday edition that Valvano was booked on a plane to Los Angeles today.

The Times also quoted UCLA Athletic Director Peter Dalis as saying Thursday, "We have not offered anyone the job."

When asked if it was a frontrunner, Dalis said, "No," and when asked if there was a timetable, Dalis said, "Next week, if I can get it."

Valvano, in Kansas City for the annual meeting of college coaches, sidestepped questions about the report, saying, "This is not an appropriate time" to comment.

Surrounded by reporters as he checked into a Kansas City hotel, Valvano would not respond directly when asked if he had talked to UCLA officials or if he was interested in the job.

"Obviously, gentlemen, I have nothing to say," said Valvano, who guided North Carolina State to the 1983 NCAA championship. "I'm sorry I can't help you."

"In situations like this, there are appropriate times to comment and inappropriate times. This is not an appropriate time. If there's an appropriate time, you know me, I never hesitate to talk."

UCLA sports information director Marc Dellins would neither confirm nor deny the report that a meeting was planned today with Valvano.

"It is UCLA's position that we will not discuss anyone who is being considered or not being considered, and when a selection is made there will be an announcement," Dellins said.

Valvano's record at N.C. State is 169-93. His career mark is 305-190 in 17 seasons.

Other names mentioned as possible successors to Hazzard have been Arizona Coach Lute Olson, Kansas

Coach Larry Brown, Pepperdine Coach Jim Harrick and Loyola, Calif., Coach Paul Westhead.

Brown coached the Bruins in 1980 and 1981. His first UCLA team advanced to the NCAA championship game, losing to Louisville 59-54. He left after the 1981 season to become coach of the New Jersey Nets of the NBA, but has since been quoted as saying that leaving UCLA was the biggest mistake of his life.

Harrick was an assistant at UCLA under Gary Cunningham in the 1978 and 1979 seasons.

Hazzard was named the Pac-10 Conference Coach of the Year after guiding the Bruins to the league championship in 1987. He played at UCLA under John Wooden and was the Bruins' fifth coach since Wooden retired after taking the school to the 1975 NCAA title — its 10th and 12 years.

UCLA has been to the Final Four only twice since then — in 1976 under Gene Bartow and in 1980 under Brown. Cunningham coached the two seasons between Bartow and Brown, and Larry Farmer held the job between the stints of Brown and Hazzard.

At Raleigh, N.C. State's associate athletic director Frank Weedon said, "I wasn't aware of any type of move" (by Valvano). ... Calls started coming in and that's how I got word of it. He was interviewed for other articles (Wednesday) and he didn't say anything."

Weedon wouldn't speculate on whether Valvano would leave, but he said it would be a major blow to the program if he did.

"Heck, anytime you lose a coach of Jim Valvano's quality, it's difficult to recover," he said. "All of this is premature, hopefully. But with change, there's always turmoil."

Valvano, who previously was head coach at Iona, succeeded Norm Sloan at N.C. State in 1980.

Hawkins Picked Player Of Year

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bradley All-American Hersey Hawkins, who led Division I in scoring with the highest average in 11 years, was named today the college basketball player of the year by The Associated Press.

The 6-foot-3 senior guard finished the 31-game season with a 36.3 scoring average, the highest mark since Freeman Williams of Portland State averaged 38.8 in 1977. His 1,125 points made him the first player to break the 1,000-point mark in a season since Williams and it was the highest figure in a season since Pistol Pete Maravich scored 1,381 in 1969-70, his senior season at Louisiana State.

Hawkins received 223 of 445 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters which voted before the NCAA Tournament began.

Two-time All-American Danny Manning of Kansas was second with 89 votes. He was followed by junior Danny Ferry of Duke and freshman Mark Macon of Temple, each of whom received 28, Gary Grant of Michigan, who received 25 votes, and Arizona's Sean Elliott, with 22, the only other player to receive more than 20 votes.

Hawkins was to be presented today with the Adolph F. Rupp Trophy which is presented to the player of the year by the Commonwealth Athletic Club of Kentucky.

Hawkins averaged more than 39 minutes per game this season for Coach Stan Albeck as the 11th-ranked Braves finished 26-5 after a first-round loss to Auburn in the NCAA Tournament. Hawkins scored 44 points in the 90-86 loss, still the highest individual game of the tournament.

The Chicago native shot 52 percent from the field and 85 percent from the free throw line while grabbing 7.8 rebounds per game and handing out 3.6 assists.

"He's the consummate college player," Albeck said, "because he has an absolute great demeanor for the game." He added that Hawkins "has seen every type of defense thrown at him and he's unflappable, yet remarkably consistent, inasmuch as he's averaging 36 points."

David Robinson of Navy was the 1987 winner.

Tennessee Looks To Defend Title

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Top-ranked Tennessee, the defending champion, will meet No. 5 Louisiana Tech and third-rated Auburn will play No. 7 Long Beach State tonight in the semifinals of the NCAA Women's Final Four.

Coach Pat Summitt's Lady Vols, 31-2, go against Louisiana Tech, 30-2, in the first semifinal game at the Tacoma Dome in a rematch of last year's title game. Tennessee beat the Lady Techsters 67-44 in Austin, Texas, for its first national crown. The Lady Vols enter the 1988 Final Four with a 22-game winning streak.

Auburn's Lady Tigers, Tennessee's Southeast Conference rivals who split two games with the Lady Vols this season, are 31-2 and Long Beach State is 28-5, with 20 victories in a row. They are scheduled to the second game.

The 35-year-old Summitt, coach of the gold medal U.S. basketball team in the 1984 Olympics, says this year's Final Four is the strongest of the nine she's been involved in during her 14 seasons at Tennessee.

"I think the challenge of being in a Final Four gets tougher and tougher," she said.

Tennessee reached the Final Four for the third consecutive season by beating Virginia 84-76 in the East Regional championship game last weekend.

"I think without a doubt we felt more pressure in the regionals," Summitt said. "We were not as relaxed as we were during the regular season. But the pressure is off now that we've gotten to the Final Four."

Louisiana Tech Coach Leon Barmore remembers last year's 23-point loss to Tennessee in last year's Final Four.

"I don't enjoy seeing Pat Summitt in this situation," he said. "Pat is the kind that will give you a smile and then she'll kick your tail."

Summitt has a 350-104 record at Tennessee, but is only 3-11 against Barmore.

"I told my players last year and I'll probably tell them again this year, they're going to have to outplay the Lady Techsters because I'm not going to outcoach Leon Barmore," she said.

Long Beach State was in last year's Final Four, too. Auburn is making its first trip to the Final Four, and Lady Tigers Coach Joe Ciampi is worried although his team turned in a near-perfect performance in beating Maryland 103-74 in the Mideast Regional title game.

"You have to be concerned with their (Long Beach State's) quickness," Ciampi said. "They're very explosive."

Although Long Beach State eliminated Washington 104-78 in the West Regionals in Long Beach last week, 49ers Coach Joan Bonvicini hopes the Tacoma Dome crowd will adopt the 49ers as the "home" team.

"We'd love to have the Seattle people behind us," she said. "I'm sorry we beat the Huskies so badly."

The Final Four features some of the best women's college basketball talent in the nation, including:

— Tennessee's Bridgette Gordon, a 6-foot junior forward and a three-time all-Southeastern Conference pick. She is the first Lady Vol in nine years to average more than 20 points (21.0) and also averages 6.9 rebounds, 2.4 steals and shoots 54.2 percent.

— Louisiana Tech's Teresa Weatherspoon, a 5-8 senior guard who is averaging 9.2 points, 4.4 rebounds and six assists. "I've never seen a point guard have total command of the situation like she does," said Washington Coach Chris Gobrecht, who picks the Lady Techsters to win it all in Tacoma.

— Louisiana Tech's 6-4 sophomore center Venus Lacy, who is averaging 15 points, 9.2 rebounds and 1.7 blocks.

— Louisiana Tech's Nora Lewis, a 6-0 junior forward who was the national high school player of the year in 1985. She averages 13.9 points, a team-high 6.9 rebounds and 2.1 steals.

— Long Beach State's Penny Toler, a 5-8 junior guard who is regarded as the best one-on-one player in the tournament. She averages 22.6 points, 4.8 assists and 2.2 steals.

— Auburn's Vickie Orr, a 6-2 junior center who was the SEC player of the year this season. She averages 16.6 points, 6.9 rebounds and 1.3 blocks, while shooting 54.5 percent.

West Carteret Tops Conley

MOREHEAD CITY — West Carteret scored twice in the bottom of the seventh inning to hand D.H. Conley its first softball loss of the season Thursday, 7-6.

Conley took the initial lead with a run in the first. Nikki Adams reached on an error and Rhonda Mills singled. Lori Powell reached on a fielder's choice scoring Adams.

The Valkyries added two in the third but West Carteret got on the board with four in the bottom of the inning, taking a 4-3 lead. Conley went back out with one in the fifth and two in the sixth, 6-4. But West scored once in the bottom of the sixth, then rallied for the win in the seventh.

M. Kanuck led off the seventh by reaching on an error. D. Lewis also was safe on an error. J. Wood followed with a single, driving in both runners to win the game.

Miriam Fulford and Mills each had three hits to lead Conley while no one had more than one hit for West Carteret.

Now 5-1 overall and 0-1 in the Coastal Conference, Conley will open play against Northern Nash in the Northern Nash Softball Tournament on Monday at 9 a.m.

CRESWELL — Creswell High School spotted Jamesville an early lead and then rallied for a 6-4 softball victory in Tobacco Belt Conference action Thursday.

Jamesville took the initial lead in the game in the first inning, scoring twice. Jennifer Getchell singled and moved around to third on an error on the play. Another error on the relay allowed her to score. Val Clark also reached on an error, moving to second on the play. She scored on Rochelle Rodgers' single.

Creswell scored one run in the bottom of the first, then scored twice in the second to take the lead. Two in the third, however, put the game away.

Shenita Moore led off the third with a single and Brenda Johnson got a hit. G. Leigh singled in Moore and Horton got a hit to plate Johnson, making it 5-2.

Jamesville closed it to 5-4 with two in the top of the fifth, but Creswell added an insurance run in the bottom of the frame, closing out the scoring. Getchell and Kim Goldberg each had two hits to lead Jamesville, while Moore had two for Creswell.

Jamesville is now 1-2 in TBC play and 1-3 overall. The Lady Bullets will play at Williamston on April 8.

WINDSOR — Williamston's unbeaten girls' softball team added another win to their total Thursday, downing Bertie Senior High, 12-0.

Donna Hardison scattered three hits in getting the shutout and her fifth win of the season.

Williamston put the game out of reach in the first inning, scoring seven times. Myra Bell sparked the inning with a three-run homer.

Bell also added a two-run homer in the second inning, running the score to 9-0. The other three runs crossed in the fourth inning.

Bell and Susan Forehand each had three hits for Williamston, while Kim Hawkins, Dana Hardison and Pam Bailey each had two. Hawkins had a triple while Hardison, Bailey and Kristie Barber all added doubles.

Now 5-0 overall and 2-0 in North-eastern Conference play, Williamston plays at home against Jamesville in a non-conference game on April 8.

LEGGETT — Chocowinity's girls' softball team finally opened its season Thursday, taking a 9-4 victory over North Edgecombe Thursday afternoon.

The Lady Indians had delayed the opening of the year because of their late participation in the Eastern Basketball Regional Tournament.

North Edgecombe jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the opening inning, but Chocowinity got moving in the second frame, scoring twice.

Then, in the third, Chocowinity put the game away, scoring three times. Mignon Langley reached on an error and Wendy Dixon drove her in with a home run. Christie Bradley followed with a solo shot that stakes the Tribe to a 5-4 lead.

Chocowinity added one in the fourth and scored three more in the seventh.

Corinna Paszt led the Chocowinity hitting with three, including a double, while Bradley and Dawn Woolard each had two. No one had more than one for North Edgecombe.

Chocowinity, 1-0, plays at home against Columbia on April 12.

Ayden-Grifton.....28

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central swept to victory in a three-way Eastern Plains Conference track meet Thursday.

The Jaguars compiled 119 points, well ahead of second place Pamlico, which finished with 30 and Ayden-Grifton, third with 28.

Farmville won all but two events, the 120-yard high hurdles and the 880-yard relay, both won by Ayden-Grifton.

The Jaguars had three double winners. Marty Baker won the mile and two-mile, Tyrone Joyner won the long and triple jumps and Gary Moore took the 100- and 220-yard dashes.

Farmville is now 6-1 on the year and returns to action on April 12, hosting Greene Central, Conley and Wilson Beddingfield. Ayden-Grifton is back in action on April 14 at South Lenoir.

Advice From Jack Helped Stephenson

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Jan Stephenson said she'd been given the same advice many times before.

But when one of the greatest golfers ever to play the game told her the same thing, she finally took note.

"Jack Nicklaus told me I needed patience," Stephenson recalled. "I had heard that 10 million times before."

"But when Jack Nicklaus said it (last year), I listened."

Stephenson, finally learning not to press too much, has been playing the best golf of her 15-year LPGA career.

She was just a stroke off the lead heading into today's second round of the $500,000 Dinah Shore tournament after an opening 69.

Muffin Spencer-Devlin fired a 4-under-par 68 to take the opening-day lead.

Marta Figueras-Dotti of Spain was another shot back at 70. A group at 71 included the tour's leading money-winner, Ayako Okamoto of Japan, Amy Alcott and Chris Johnson.

Stephenson, 36, had perhaps her finest season in 1987, winning three events and collecting $227,303, the most she'd ever won in a year.

"Everybody asks me what the difference is now, why I'm playing well," said Stephenson, a native of Sydney who still has a trace of an Australian accent.

"It's patience, and maybe I've grown up. I used to let one bad shot, one bad hole keep bothering me. Now I just look for something good to happen."

Her first round of the Dinah Shore provided an example.

She missed a four-foot par putt on the first hole, but didn't get rattled.

She birdied No. 2, then had another birdie on the ninth hole before going to three under with birdies on Nos. 12 and 14.

"I was getting frustrated, but I was fighting it," Stephenson said.

Stephenson, shooting for her first victory of 1987, posted a steady round despite winds that gusted to 35 mph in the morning.

"I like bad conditions; it keeps the scores up," she said. "I'm a good wind player."

Spencer-Devlin, sort of the LPGA's representative of the avant-garde, said the wind didn't bother her, either.

"I like to think I was born in the tempest," said Spencer-Devlin, who studies Zen, practices yoga and still harbors a dream of being an astronaut.

"When I woke up this morning, I lay in the bed listening to the wind in the trees. I imagined being in the wind, on the wind, of the wind."

"It's something you don't want to fight. There's no reason to dislike the wind or the rain."

Pats May Finally Be Sold

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Just before the 1985 NFL season, New England Patriots owner Billy Sullivan told his coaching staff money problems might force him to sell the team, Coach Raymond Berry says.

It took 2½ years and many failed efforts, but the franchise's founder finally has signed a tentative sale agreement.

Although Paul Fireman, the majority buyer, was optimistic, there was no guarantee that the deal would be completed or, if it was, that the team would stay in the Boston area.

Fireman, chief executive officer of Reebok International sports shoe and apparel company, said he would work to remove stumbling blocks to the deal, centering around Sullivan Stadium's state of bankruptcy and various lawsuits.

But on Thursday, when the tentative agreement with the Massachusetts native and resident was announced, all parties were confident and relieved.

Sullivan, who has owned the debt-ridden team for all but one year since it was formed in 1959, said he "said a prayer of Thanksgiving that on Holy Thursday this blessing has descended on our family."

His son Pat, the team's general manager, said, "It's like having a 10-ton block lifted from my back. It hasn't been a good situation the last month."

"It's a great relief to everybody," Berry said.

"We have an agreement that's very solid," Fireman said. He refused to disclose the sale price.

The Sullivans agreed to sell the team under pressure of a lawsuit.

The deal reportedly was signed less than an hour before Pat Sullivan was to resume testimony in a suit brought by Philadelphia businessman Fran Murray, who had an option to buy the team. He sued for control of the club on grounds that the team was in default on loan payments he made.

Norfolk Superior Court Judge Harold Flannery continued the case indefinitely. Robert Popeo, Murray's attorney, said it would be dismissed if the sale is finalized.

Under an agreement reached last week, Fireman would own 51 percent of the team and Murray 49 percent.

If the deal is closed, they would need NFL approval, which appears likely.

"We have already begun our review of Mr. Fireman and Mr. Murray," Joe Browne, the league's communications director, said Thursday. "But we have not seen the signed agreement."

He said a vote on whether to approve Fireman and Murray might take place at the next NFL meeting, scheduled for May 25-26 in Miami.

Fireman, who held a news conference at Sullivan Stadium on Thursday, said, he wouldn't have been there "if it was not my greatest intention to complete this deal."

In the last month, talks with New York businessman Donald Trump and former U.S. Postmaster General Robert Tisch failed to produce a sale agreement. Numerous other parties also had expressed interest or negotiated to buy the team. Fireman, who became involved with a little-known British shoe company in 1979, bought it in 1984 and reportedly is worth $435 million, thinks this deal will go through.

"I believe all parties have an interest in making this thing complete and we're going to make it complete," he said.

Fireman, 44, said he hoped the deal could be finalized in four weeks, then added, "We have some open-ended items in the contract that need to be complete for this deal to be complete on approximately June 1."

"One of them is the stadium and the other is contingent liabilities in the form of some suits pending," he said. "We think the stadium is part of this whole package and should get resolved."

Stadium Management Corp., which owns the stadium and is owned by Patriots' executive vice president Chuck Sullivan, declared bankruptcy in February to avoid having the facility auctioned.

Popeo said Fireman and Murray would try to buy the stadium, but it is not a prerequisite for the sale of the team.

Fireman said Billy Sullivan, 72, would remain as an adviser and Pat Sullivan would stay on as general manager, a position he has held since February 1983. He expressed satisfaction with Berry.

The elder Sullivan has owned the team since its formation as part of the American Football League, except for one year in the mid-1970s.

Fireman has strong local ties. He is a native of Brockton and lives in Newton. Reebok is based in Canton, about 10 miles from Sullivan Stadium.

He said he'd prefer to keep the Patriots at the stadium, but added, "our next big hope would be to build a new stadium in the New England market, the Boston market."

Murray said the option of moving the team out of the area "is so remote as not to be worthy of discussion," although Fireman said, "there's no guarantees" in the tentative agreement that the team would remain in the area.

The team's financial predicament was compounded by substantial losses incurred by Chuck Sullivan as promoter of Michael Jackson's Victory Tour several years ago.

"The reason we're in the position we're in is my father loves his children," Pat Sullivan said. "He could have said, 'you take care of your problems, Chuck, and I'll take care of mine.' He didn't do that."

Murray had an option to buy the team for $63 million before last Dec. 31 and $65 million thereafter. When he moved to exercise it last December, the Sullivans resisted.

Forbes magazine estimated Fireman's worth at $435 million. In 1986, he reportedly was paid $13.1 million in salary and bonuses, second only to the $20.5 million received by Chrysler's Lee Iacocca.

In 1979, Fireman obtained rights to distribute a British running shoe in the United States. He organized a buyout of J.W. Foster & Sons in 1984 and reorganized the company as Reebok. Sales had soared from $1.2 million to $66 million in the two years before the buyout and have continued to increase.

Rulemakers To Look At Curbing Fights

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The rulemakers of college basketball are about to take aim at the upsurge of violence in the game.

But the meeting here next week will probably not see any substantial changes in the way the game is played.

In their meeting Monday and Tuesday, the NCAA rules committee will discuss a variety of issues, but Ed Steitz, the group's head man, believes fighting will top the list.

"This has to be the No. 1 item on our agenda. We cannot tolerate one ugly scene, as far as I'm concerned, to mar this great NCAA basketball game that we have," said Steitz, who has been secretary-editor of the NCAA basketball rules committee for 21 years.

Steitz said during a news conference Thursday that the committee would consider suspensions of one or two games for players involved in fights during the regular season.

"The scary part about it is we're getting spectators into the act," he said. "And the rules committee has to address the problem."

Steitz said the extent of the punishment should depend on the seriousness of the altercation.

"We're the guardians of the game and we can't kick this under the rug. We've got to move quickly and forcefully," he said. "The ugly fight scenes we've seen this season have no place in an educational setting."

He said more fights occurred this season than in any of his 30 years in the college game. "There can be serious or even fatal injuries," he said.

"I don't think it's a one-factor situation. Sure, the player is the guy who belts somebody or takes a cheap shot or starts a fight. But I do believe the coaches have a responsibility of educating kids before the game starts, to make it clear in their mind that they will not tolerate this."

"The administrators have to pull up their guts as far as the game is administered. To put opponents right behind another team's bench purposefully, that's unconscionable. You get a lot of garbage thrown at the coach and the players. I think conference commissioners have to be given more authority."

Steitz's annual survey of more than 2,000 college coaches, referees, administrators and sports writers disclosed sharp disagreement among referees and coaches as to whether fouls that often lead to fights were being called properly. Twice as many officials as coaches felt that officials were doing a better job of policing rough play in games.

Of 641 coaches, fewer than 35 percent felt the officials were doing a better job of calling illegal screens, 43 percent thought they were calling rough post play, 44 percent saw an improvement in calling the intentional foul to stop the clock and only 33 percent felt they were properly calling the principle of verticality, a term coined by Steitz that gives players possession of a spot on the court from the floor to the ceiling.

Of the 715 referees polled, 73 percent felt they were doing a better job of calling the illegal screen, 82 percent said they were doing better with rough post play and 67 percent felt they were adequately calling the intentional foul. But 56 percent of the officials conceded they had trouble with the principle of verticality.

Steitz, whose committee introduced the 3-point shot to college basketball, also said that shooting statistics have been so stable over the past two seasons that he anticipated no changes, despite some dissatisfaction with the 19-foot, 9-inch distance for the long-range shots.

"Right now, we have nothing statistically that would justify moving the distance back," he said. Steitz also indicated he did not anticipate any changes in the 45-second shot clock. There is a suggestion, he said, to make it 35 seconds.

Knicks Ending Their Road Woes

By The Associated Press
The New York Knicks' road to the NBA playoffs may have started on the road.

Gerald Wilkins scored 20 points and Mark Jackson got 15 of his 19 in the second half Thursday night as the Knicks beat the Milwaukee Bucks 113-103.

New York, just 5-30 away from Madison Square Garden, ended Milwaukee's 10-game home winning streak.

"This was a win of monumental proportions for us because we're a team that has only won four games on the road," Knicks coach Rick Pitino said.

New York stayed in the race for one of eight Eastern Conference playoff spots. The Knicks are in ninth place at 31-40, trailing Cleveland (33-38) and Indiana (33-36).

"We really needed the victory tonight, and with 11 games left we have a chance at the playoffs. A loss tonight would have been disastrous," Pitino said.

Elsewhere, Houston beat Indiana 102-100, Denver defeated Sacramento 121-111, Utah downed Golden State 115-92 and San Antonio stopped Seattle 117-115.

Patrick Ewing scored 18 points and Trent Tucker 17 for the Knicks, who led 97-81 with 8:52 remaining.

Rickey Pierce, who finished with 24 points, got 16 in the fourth quarter and Milwaukee pulled within 106-102 with 1:18 to go. New York, however, withstood the rally.

"We've had about nine or 10 games where it's gone down to the wire," Pitino said. "We're used to this type of situation."

The Knicks outrebounded Milwaukee 51-39 with Ewing getting 11 and Bill Cartwright 10.

Rockets 102, Pacers 100
Joe Barry Carroll's hook shot with three seconds left led Houston to its seventh straight victory over Indiana.

Carroll, who finished with 29 points, won it after Indiana's Steve Stipanovich tied the score with two foul shots with 26 seconds remaining.

Cedric Maxwell had 23 points, 15 rebounds and 10 assists for the Rockets. Akeem Olajuwon missed his third straight game for Houston with a sprained knee.

John Long scored 23 points for the host Pacers.

Nuggets 121, Kings 111

Alex English scored 27 points and Lafayette Lever had 21 points, 14 assists and 10 rebounds as Denver beat Sacramento for its seventh straight victory.

Michael Adams made three 3-point baskets for the Nuggets and extended his league record for getting at least one 3-pointer to 32 straight games. Danny Schayes added 20 points for Denver, which led 20-6 after 5½ minutes.

Sacramento suited up just eight players, the NBA minimum, because of injuries. Otis Thorpe scored 22 points and Ed Pinckney 20 for the Kings, who lost their eighth straight on the road.

Jazz 115, Warriors 92
Karl Malone scored 25 points and Bobby Hansen 23 as Utah opened the second half with 11 straight points and beat visiting Golden State.

John Stockton had 19 assists and 14 points for the Jazz. His 918 assists this season are the fifth-most in NBA history and he became the 10th player to reach 900 in a season.

Chris Mullin scored 31 points for the Warriors. He made four 3-point shots, including one that put Golden State ahead 61-60 at halftime.

Hansen and Stockton scored four points each and Malone had three as Utah spurred to a 71-61 lead early in the third quarter.

Spurs 117, SuperSonics 115
Mike Mitchell made an eight-foot, baseline jump shot with 29 seconds remaining and San Antonio withstood Seattle.

The Spurs ended an 11-game road losing streak. Alvin Robertson scored 21 points and Frank Brickowski and Greg Anderson scored 20 each for the Spurs.

Tom Chambers and Dale Ellis scored 27 points each for Seattle, which missed five shots in the final seconds.

Baseball Is Big Bucks

NEW YORK (AP) — A record 77 baseball players will earn $1 million or more this season and nine players will make $2 million-plus, according to a study of major-league contracts conducted by The Associated Press.

Ozzie Smith, the St. Louis Cardinals' shortstop, will be the top-paid player this season, making $2.34 million.

Outfielder Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox is second at $2,229,822, catcher Gary Carter of the New York Mets third at $2,160,714 and first baseman Eddie Murray of the Baltimore Orioles fourth at $2,160,035.

Third baseman Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies is fifth at $2.15 million, pitcher Rick Sutcliffe of the Chicago Cubs sixth at $2.07 million and pitcher Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers seventh at $2.05 million.

Don Mattingly, the New York Yankees' first baseman, and Dale Murphy, the Atlanta Braves outfielder, are tied for eighth at $2 million.

Salaries include a pro-rated share of signing bonuses. If a player signed a two-year contract at $1 million a season with a $1-million signing bonus, his salary would be listed as $1.5 million.

Portions of salaries are being deferred without interest have been discounted to reflect their current value.

The World Series champion Minnesota Twins have the most millionaires with seven. The Twins had two last season, first baseman Kent Hrbek and pitcher Bert Blyleven. But re-signing the players who led the Twins to the World Series greatly increased the payroll.

Hrbek will make $1.41 million this season, World Series MVP Frank Viola $1.35 million, reliever Jeff Reardon $1.14 million, outfielder Tom Brunansky $1.1 million, outfielder Kirby Puckett $1.09 million and Blyleven $1 million.

"There will be some natural escalation of players' salaries," Minnesota general manager Andy MacPhail said after the World Series. "It doesn't cause us grave concern."

Naturally, the raises have pleased the players.

Oil Can Boyd Looks Strong Even During A 2-0 Defeat

By The Associated Press
Even in a loss, Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd is showing the Boston Red Sox what they want to see.

Boyd, continuing his comeback from a season lost to injuries, pitched seven strong innings Thursday in Boston's 2-0 loss to Texas in exhibition baseball.

Boyd, 3-1 this spring, gave up two runs on six hits. He struck out two and walked four.

"His control was off early, but he straightened himself out," Boston manager John McNamara said. "He was close on his pitches, but he really struggled early. He threw a lot of pitches in the first three innings."

Boyd made only seven starts last year because of arm problems. He was 1-3.

"I'll take the day, it was a confidence builder," Boyd said after throwing 97 pitches in 83-degree weather.

Elsewhere, Tim Teufel has earned the starting job as the New York Mets' second baseman and Dan Quisenberry appears to have survived the Kansas City Royals' cuts.

Mets manager Davey Johnson said he is abandoning his platoon of Teufel and Wally Backman at second base, and sent infielder Keith Miller back to the minors.

The Mets apparently have put off possible trades for Backman and center fielder Mookie Wilson, but expect to deal backup catcher John Gibbons by the weekend.

Quisenberry, who led the American League in saves for five years but had only eight last season, seemed to lock up a spot in the Royals' bullpen when Jerry Don Gleaton was sent to Class AAA Omaha.

Quisenberry pitched just 47 games and 49 innings last year, less than half of what he had averaged during his best year. He had been in danger of losing his job, but Kansas City kept Gene Garber and farmed out Gleaton, leaving 25 players on the roster.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who had been looking to trade a pitcher, sent Mike Bielecki to the Chicago Cubs for pitcher Mike Curtis, 23.

Bielecki was the minor league pitcher of the year in 1984 when he went 19-3 in Triple-A. Bielecki, 28, was 2-3 in eight games with Pittsburgh last year. Curtis was 6-9 at Class A Winston-Salem.

Also, St. Louis sent pitchers Tom Conroy and Randy O'Neal outright to Class AAA Louisville.

In exhibition games:
White Sox 5, Cardinals 1

Chicago's Donnie Hill drove in two runs with two hits and St. Louis lost its fifth straight game. Rick Horton, traded from the Cardinals to the White Sox in the off-season, tuned up for his opening day start with two scoreless innings for the victory. Joe Magrane, who will pitch St. Louis' opener, gave up two runs on four hits in three innings.

Yankees 3, Braves 2
New York's Rick Rhoden allowed two runs on five hits in seven innings and Claudell Washington had two hits, including a two-run single in the first. Dale Murphy homered and doubled, driving in both Atlanta runs.

Expos 4, Mets 2
Hubie Brooks hit a two-run triple and scored on Tim Wallach's single as Montreal scored three times in the third inning against Rick Aguilera.

Astros 13, Phillies 2
Glenn Davis homered and drove in four runs and Bill Doran drove in three as Houston shelled Shane Rawley for 10 runs on 11 hits in the first 2-3 innings. Billy Hatcher had two doubles and scored three times in the Astros' 19-hit attack, which featured seven doubles. Rawley is Philadelphia's opening-day starter.

Pirates 8, Blue Jays 2
Randy Milligan hit a two-run homer and Darnell Coles also homered for Pittsburgh. John Smiley gave up one run on seven hits in six innings.

Giants 5, Mariners 3
Bob Melvin drove in three runs with a double and a triple for San Francisco. Jim Presley homered for Seattle, which got only one hit over the final four innings off relievers Joe Price and Don Robinson.

Tigers 9, Reds 7
Luis Salazar hit a three-run homer off Pat Perry in the top of the ninth inning for Detroit. Dave Concepcion hit a two-run homer for Cincinnati.

Indians 10, Brewers 8
Mel Hall hit a two-run triple and scored on Cory Snyder's single as Cleveland rallied in the eighth inning. Ron Washington, battling with two other players for the Indians' final non-pitching roster spot, had four of Cleveland's 18 hits.

Cubs 13, Athletics 11
Paul Noye broke a 10-10 tie with an RBI double in the ninth inning and Greg Tabor added a two-run triple as Chicago outscored Oakland.

Petty's Treasures Shown In Museum

LEVEL CROSS (AP) — Treasures belong in a museum, and for three decades Richard Petty of Level Cross has been stock car racing's crown jewel.

So beginning Friday, Petty's illustrious racing career will be showcased in the new Richard Petty Museum, housed in what has been formerly known as the Trophy Room at the Petty Enterprises compound in Level Cross.

The museum will feature items from Petty's career, such as trophies, awards, personal mementos and photographs. Two of Petty's cars from the past — a 1974 Dodge and the famous 1970 winged Superbird — will also be on display and a wide screen television will continually show video-taped highlights of some of Petty's memorable racing moments.

The museum is the brainchild of Jamestown's John McKenzie, who has worked closely with Petty over the past several years as a co-owner of Motorsports Design. That firm, which specializes in designing sponsorship decals for Winston Cup cars, has been an associate sponsor for Petty's STP Pontiac for the past four years.

"Through the years I've developed a close relationship with Richard," McKenzie said Wednesday. "I knew the Trophy Room had not really been open for the past couple of years so I approached Richard back in November with the idea of opening it back up as a racing museum. Richard was receptive to the idea and it just went from there." There will be an admission price of $2 per person, with no cost for children under 12.

The museum will be opened from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

HBO Documentary Uses Vets' Letters For Story

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Bruce Springsteen has turned down untold amounts of money for commercial use of his song, "Born in the U.S.A." He gave it to the makers of HBO's "Dear America: Letters Home from Vietnam" for free.

Filmmaker Bill Couturie edited thousands of feet of archival footage into a backdrop for the letters in this devastating 90-minute documentary, premiering Sunday on HBO.

Besides Springsteen, the soundtrack includes vintage '60s rock from such artists as the Rolling Stones, Bob Dylan and Marvin Gaye. The letters are read off-camera by a star-studded cast of voices, including Robert De Niro, Kathleen Turner, Robin Williams and Michael J. Fox, who all donated their time.

At a recent screening in New York, some members of the audience were so moved by the film they were unable to get out of their seats when it was over.

The documentary is based on the book of the same name and plays on HBO throughout April.

"Dear America" is different from other Vietnam movies in that it is told in the words of the vets themselves in the often strikingly eloquent letters they wrote to loved ones back home:

— A lieutenant who had just seen a soldier lose his leg writes to his brother, "I've never seen such bravery and guts before and I'm stunned by it. You shoulda seen my men fight. They were going after wounded men no one else would go after. You shoulda seen my brave men."

— Writes Army nurse Lynda Van Devanter, "I'm sick of facing, every day, a new bunch of children ripped to pieces. They're just kids — eighteen, nineteen years old! It stinks! Whole lives ahead of them — cut off. I'm sick to death of it. I've got to get out of here..."

Almost all the footage came from the heretofore untapped NBC News archives. ABC's Vietnam footage had already been used in several movies, and CBS does not allow outside producers to use its archives. NBC's library had been closed to filmmakers until General Electric bought the network and changed the policy.

"I happened to be at the right place at the right time," said Couturie.

HBO said that because Couturie shot none of the film, the Academy Awards committee turned down the documentary for Oscar consideration, but HBO plans to put it up for an Emmy.

Couturie said his interviews with vets from an earlier project convinced him of the importance of the letters, virtually the only link between those in Vietnam and "the world." The other link was rock 'n' roll.

The soundtrack is an '60s treasury. But Springsteen's "Born in the U.S.A." became the anthem of Vietnam veterans' disillusionment and courage in the '80s.

Springsteen had allowed the song to be used once before, in the Vietnam play "Tracers," produced by Tom Bird, co-producer of the HBO film. Couturie just had to have the song for the ending of "Dear America."

"We went to Springsteen and asked him if we could use it, and he immediately said yes. It didn't take one second for him to say yes. In fact, his comment was, 'It's the vets' song. Of course, you can use it,'" Couturie said.

Springsteen donated the song on the condition that all the music be donated, giving the producers leverage to obtain the other music without cost.

The film is structured chronologically and punctuated by stark graphics describing the escalation of the conflict. The combination of music and pictures evokes the era, not just the war.

But above it all are the words. Couturie knew what he wanted in the reading of the letters — a delicate balance of emotion that didn't go over the edge into melodrama. He found himself giving direction to the biggest names in acting — De Niro, Williams, Turner, Fox, Martin Sheen, Sean Penn, Willem Dafoe, Brian Dennehy, John Heard, Harvey Keitel, Randy Quaid, Howard Rollins Jr. and John Savage, among others.

'Pyramid'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dick Clark will be host once again when "The $25,000 Pyramid" returns to CBS' daytime schedule Monday. The show, sometimes called "the thinking person's game show," was returned after a write-in campaign by viewers.

Ellen Burstyn reads the last, most devastating letter, from a mother to a son who died in the conflict 15 years earlier.

When Burstyn arrived at the studio, Couturie said, she brushed him off, insisting brusquely that they just get on with it.

"My heart was sinking," he said. "I was going, oh, God, this woman has a lunch date or something and wants to get out of here, and this is the most crucial letter in the film, and I really blew it. I've picked the wrong person. She was not the wrong person. She had been rehearsing the letter on her own and couldn't discuss it, she had to just do it."

"That's the only letter that was done in one take," Couturie said. "She went in and just nailed it. It was an awesome performance."

CBS President Denies TV Network Will Be For Sale

L.A. Times-Washington Post

NEW YORK — CBS President Laurence A. Tisch, whose company has sold off its records and other non-broadcast divisions to concentrate on broadcasting, said Thursday that the CBS television network "is not for sale."

His assertion — in which he also denied that he may sell the 24.9 percent interest that his Loews Corp. holds in CBS — came in a three-page memo to CBS employees in which he decried recent gossip about his next moves.

CBS spokesmen previously have denied speculation that Tisch has tired of the cost drain of the CBS television network, now third in prime-time ratings, and might sell it within a year or sell his CBS stock.

He won't do either, Tisch reiterated in his memo, made public by CBS.

"I have met with no one, had no conversation and have received no offer for the sale of Loews' CBS stock or the CBS network," he said. "If you hear or read anything to the contrary, it is absolutely, totally and categorically untrue."

There also has been published speculation that Tisch — who, with CBS board approval, last year sold CBS Records to the Sony Corp. for $2 billion — might try to sell all of CBS Inc., including the four TV stations it owns.

Although his memo did not touch on that, CBS spokeswoman Alice Henderson denied that speculation too.

In his memo, Tisch said he had been struck by an article this week in Variety, the show-biz trade publication, that described the origin of these rumors and how they spread.

"The whole thing might be amusing, except that somebody might just take it seriously," he said in explaining his desire to set matters straight. "And that could only create insecurity within CBS at a time when, I believe, we have restored financial and management stability."

In his memo, he also noted that the once-dominant CBS television network "has been buffeted by stories" about how it is going to finish third in the prime-time ratings this season for the first time in its history.

Work is under way for a comeback, he said, emphasizing that "finishing second or third is not our objective. First place is what counts. And we know it will take several years — not a few months — to get there."

"We are committed to build a schedule that makes us first again. With our eye on that long-term goal, we shouldn't be overly worried about small set-backs."

Tisch said that the source of the rumors about CBS apparently stemmed from "some gloomy comments I have been making about the economy. Yes, I am troubled by the economic outlook for the next two years and its potential impact on our business," he said. "But that has nothing to do with my deep personal interest in and my commitment to the long-term prospects of CBS."

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY April 2

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): A business associate may not agree with you, but don't react harshly. Instead, avoid an argument and try to reason it out together.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): If you are going to deal with individuals in a fast-paced business, you will have to think along more modern and realistic lines.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You may have to change your recreational plans for the weekend, but your friends won't mind. Keep an eye on your finances.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Don't let a fast-talking acquaintance change your mind on an important issue. Make a schedule for the day, and stick to it.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Don't allow a few unimportant chores to keep you from seeing some interesting friends. Use your time constructively and have some fun.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Your first priority today should be anything of a financial nature, as matters along these lines will tend to work to your benefit.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Don't let your family interfere with some important business plans you must make. If you are asked to volunteer some time to the community, do so.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Figure out how to handle your daily routines more efficiently, and your workload will seem to decrease greatly. Spend more time at home.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Put aside money and property affairs for now, and go after your personal wishes. Don't allow a friend to sidetrack your plans.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): If a close friend asks for your help, don't hesitate to lend this person a hand, as he or she has done you many valuable favors in the past.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Don't waste any time worrying about matters over which you have no control. Be sure to handle any important correspondence.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Avoid an argument with a long-time friend at all costs. It may be wise to set up a more practical and realistic budget at this time.

Although this is April Fool's Day, the bit of advice we are about to give you is not a prank: "Don't draw trumps unless you're sure you don't need them for another purpose." While that advice might seem self-evident, not too many pairs in a recent tournament succeeded in making 13 tricks on these cards.

With a two-loser hand, we heartily endorse South's decision to open with a demand bid even though he was light in terms of point-count. North's auction showed a hand with values concentrated in the major suits, and since that would have to include the ace of trumps, South chose to gamble on a grand slam.

At many tables declarer won the opening diamond lead, drew two rounds of trumps and eventually fell back on the club finesse for his 13th trick. Those only in a small slam didn't seem to mind conceding a trick on the hand. They were wrong—the overtrick would have been worth quite a few matchpoints.

At the table we watched, declarer fulfilled his slam with careful play. After winning the diamond lead, he led a low trump to dummy and ruffed a spade. Another trump, taken on the table, provided the entry for a second spade ruff.

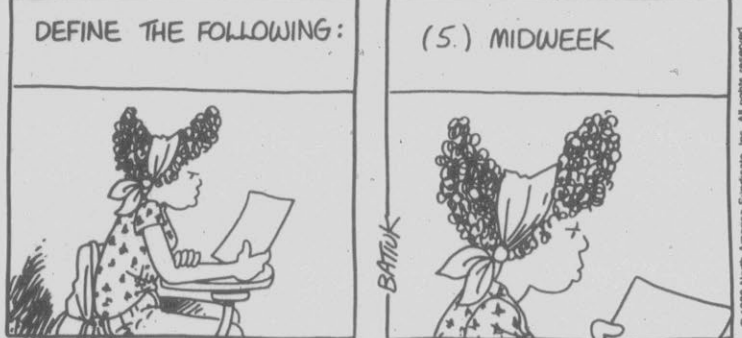

With his groundwork completed, declarer re-entered dummy with the last trump and cashed the ace-king of spades, discarding two clubs from his hand. When spades broke evenly, the board's long spade provided a discard for declarer's last club loser—making seven-odd.

This line gave up nothing. Had the spades not split well for declarer, he would still have been able to fall back on the club finesse in an attempt to land his 13th trick.

Evicted Farmer Returns

By BOB IMRIE

Associated Press Writer
BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — The government foreclosed on his farm, evicted him from the land and burned down his home, but Albert Schumaker wants to buy back the place.

"There was just poor judgment on somebody's part" to burn the house down in January, Schumaker said Thursday as he asked the Farmers Home Administration to rebuild his home and let him buy back part of the 2,460-acre farm.

The 58-year-old farmer, wearing a western hat and accompanied by 10 supporters, made his application at the FmHA's Burleigh County office here.

Schumaker said he could raise the $25,000 to $30,000 he estimates he'll need to buy back his farmstead and 10 acres in Driscoll, about 30 miles east of Bismarck.

"There (are) people pretty disgusted about the whole thing and will put the money out," he said. In addition, a petition is circulating calling for the ouster of some state and local FmHA officials, Schumaker said.

Schumaker, a farmer since 1959, said he hopes to eventually buy back all the acreage he lost through foreclosure. "I have two boys, (ages) 32 and 36, and they were with the operation. My boys might be eligible for a loan."

The FmHA acquired Schumaker's farm in March 1986 in a foreclosure, said Burleigh County FmHA Supervisor Sterling Breuer. Schumaker was evicted from his home in December.

The home, a corn crib and a garage were burned Jan. 30, Breuer said. Two barns and six steel grain bins were left standing. Breuer said the house was destroyed because repairs to bring it in line with agency standards would have cost too much.

Schumaker said he didn't learn about the fire until three days after it happened. "That's about the last kick they can give you after you lose a farm," he said.

Schumaker said the kitchen had been remodeled, and new windows, a furnace and water heater had been installed. "All the neighbors knew it was livable and a good house," he said.

These days he lives in a mobile home near Driscoll, and works for Farmers Livestock Exchange as a cattle consignor.

Schumaker made his application under the Dwelling Retention Program, part of the Agricultural Credit Act that Congress passed in December calling on FmHA, the lender of last resort for farmers, to go easier on growers behind in their payments.

Schumaker claims the agency violated his rights to retain the farmstead when it burned down his home.

Bob Zimmerman, head of FmHA farmer programs in North Dakota, said the agency would consider Schumaker's application, but said he was unsure whether the agency was liable for rebuilding the home.

At the time of the burning, one law was being phased out and another was being phased in, Zimmerman said.

FmHA had not received regulations for the dwelling retention program, he said. The agency was told Jan. 7 to stop certain foreclosures and liquidations, but received no instructions on situations like Schumaker's, where land was already in FmHA hands, Zimmerman said.

However, Don Vig, vice chairman of the Dakota Resource Council, an advocacy group for farmers and landowners, said FmHA should have known about the new law when it burned Schumaker's buildings.

"How is it possible for employees of a federal agency to be totally ignorant of the laws that they are supposed to be implementing?" asked Vig.

Thefts

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Two former security officers at Wake Forest University, who police say led an elaborate theft ring at the school for at least 1½ years, have pleaded guilty to dozens of theft charges.

Roger Lee Burnett, 41, of Kernersville pleaded guilty Thursday in Forsyth County Superior Court to 37 charges of felonious breaking and entering and larceny. The charges can carry a maximum prison sentence of 740 years.

In a plea agreement approved by Judge Thomas W. Seay Jr., the charges against Burnett were consolidated, and Burnett was sentenced to 15 years.

Dog Poisoning

WILLARD, N.C. (AP) — J.T. Carter returned from a weekend business trip to find that someone had poisoned 15 dogs in his kennel with insecticide-laced beef.

By the time the officials reached the remote community Saturday, all the dogs — 10 adults and five puppies between one and three months old — were beyond help, poisoned by a fast-acting insecticide that had been fed to the dogs in ground beef through the wires around the kennels.

Investigators said the poisoning appeared to be deliberate.

House Panel Orders New Study Of Tobacco Industry

L.A. Times-Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Based on new evidence uncovered at a smoking death trial, a congressional panel announced Thursday it would hold hearings to determine what the tobacco industry knew about the hazards of cigarettes and when did it know it.

An "outraged" Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., said his House

Commerce health subcommittee will hold a hearing sometime in May to "further our understanding of this dangerous industry and aid in the development of strategies to curtail the industry's powerful influence in Congress."

The chairman is the principal author of the 1984 legislation that required tougher, rotating health warnings on cigarette packs and in advertisements.

The new evidence, Waxman said, indicates that the industry "deliberately misled the Congress and the American people about what it knew about the adverse health effects of smoking."

"What the Congress and public learn about the tobacco industry from this investigation will be critical to our efforts to curtail further advertising and promotional campaigns for these deadly products," he said.

Lawyers for Antonio Cipollone, the widowed husband of longtime smoker Rose D. Cipollone, put the documents before a jury in U.S. District Court in Newark, N.J., during a trial that is now moving into its second month. The records were found in the files of the defendant tobacco companies, Liggett Group Inc., Philip Morris Inc. and Lorillard Inc.

Liggett spokesman Alan Hilburg criticized Waxman for scheduling the hearings even before Liggett and other drug companies have had a chance to present their case to the jury in Newark.

Philip Morris spokesman Thomas D. Ricke said, "We're not surprised to discover that Congress' leading anti-tobacco zealot has called for another hearing on the cigarette industry."
