McLawhorn, Taft Trade Barbs On Spending

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

Two Democratic candidates running for the N.C. Senate from District 9 traded sharp words over campaign spending Monday.

Charles McLawhorn, who is running against incumbent Sen. Tom Taft, released campaign finance reports for the 1984 and 1986 elections that showed Taft spent more than $117,000 in the two campaigns.

McLawhorn also criticized Taft for "launching a media blitz the likes of which we have never seen in a local campaign." Taft has purchased more than 100 television commercials to air this month, he said.

"The cost of newspaper and television advertising is a substantial barrier to those of us who run for public office," said McLawhorn.

When McLawhorn was asked if he was implying that Taft was trying to buy the election, McLawhorn said, "That's what I was trying to say, and I've got the figures here to back it up."

"The figures he's given are erroneous," Taft said later in an interview. The records kept at the State Board of Elections Campaign Reporting Office in Raleigh match

McLawhorn's figures, but Taft said the totals are inflated because the records include loans received and loan payments as expenditures.

For example, Taft borrowed $25,000 from Wachovia for his 1984 election. Campaign finance records list the loan as an expense and the records also show the monthly payments Taft made to repay the loan as an expense.

"McLawhorn's failure to be accurate or to understand the figures distorts and torpedoes the points that he attempted to make in his direct attack on me," Taft said in a statement released today. "He has shot himself in the foot."

Taft said he purchased television commercials to get his message to the voters because, "The most effective way of telling the story is through the media."

"I am proud of the fact that I believe this job as state senator is important enough to make the effort to communicate my message to the voters," said Taft.

"On the issue of campaign spending, either my opponent was attempting to grossly distort the figures and mislead the public, failed to do his homework, or just doesn't understand the pages of facts and figures that he has attempted to present as part of his campaign," said Taft.

The figures McLawhorn released show Taft spent a total of $117,974 in the last two elections — $88,112 in 1984 and $29,862 in 1986. "Senate District No. 9 has become the most expensive seat in eastern North Carolina," said McLawhorn. "The average total expenditures per Senate district during the last two elections was $33,465."

Taft contributed more than $73,000 to his own campaigns in 1984 and 1986, according to McLawhorn. "My opponent's financial contributions to his own campaigns have created a barrier which has been impossible to overcome."

McLawhorn has spent about $12,000 so far in his campaign, with about $7,000 coming from contributors, according to Charles McLawhorn Jr., McLawhorn's campaign manager.

Taft is "by far the big spender, way out ahead of everybody," said McLawhorn, who called for the General Assembly to place a ceiling on campaign spending.

Arab Hijackers Steer Kuwaiti Jet With 112 Aboard To Iran

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Arabic-speaking hijackers today commandeered a Kuwait Airways jumbo jet with 112 people aboard, forced it to land in Iran and threatened to blow it up.

Three members of Kuwait's royal Al-Sabah family and one passenger with an American passport reportedly were aboard the Boeing 747, which was hijacked to Mashhad in north-eastern Iran on a flight from Bangkok to Kuwait.

Kuwait urged Iran to handle the incident "wisely" and asked that the plane not be allowed to take off.

Iran first denied the plane permission to land, but reversed its decision when the pilot said the jet was running out of fuel, said Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency.

IRNA said the hijackers demanded fuel, but it was not known what their other demands were. IRNA said the hijackers threatened to blow up the aircraft if "any person should attempt to approach it."

Prime Minister Hussein Musavi of Iran told Tehran Radio he was trying to "resolve the incident peacefully to save the lives of the people on board."

He sent his deputy for political affairs, Ali Reza Moayyeri, to Mashhad to "look into the hijack situation," said the broadcast, monitored in Nicosia.

Kuwait Airways said Flight 422 from the Thai capital was carrying 97 passengers and 15 crew members.

Elias H. Shiber, the airline's manager in Bangkok, said the passenger list included 30 Kuwaitis, 22 Britons, eight Thais, various other nationalities and one person with both an American and Egyptian passport. The airline identified him as R. Attiaallaali.

Shiber said the three members of Kuwait's ruling family aboard were Ibtisam Khaled Al-Sabah, Fadil Khaled Al-Sabah and the wife of Khaled Anwar Al-Sabah. Hundreds of Kuwaitis are related to Kuwait's emir.

IRNA, also monitored in Nicosia, had reported that the flight originated in Kuwait. But Kuwaiti Airways offices in Kuwait and Bangkok said the plane took off from Bangkok.

IRNA said the aircraft landed in Mashhad at 7:30 a.m. (midnight EDT) and completed refueling three hours later.

It said the aircraft was "preparing to fly to an unidentified destination." But several hours later, there still was no word that the jet had taken off.

Kuwait is the closest Arab nation to Iran and Iraq.

Lobsters At Home

CAPE ELIZABETH, Maine (AP) — "Shirley," a 25-pound male lobster with claws as big as baseball mitts, returned to the ocean today, saved from a dinner plate by animal rights activists, a seafood vendor and state officials.

Lifting the giant crustacean by its claws and tail, seafood dealers from Portland and Philadelphia gently swung him over the side of a Maine Marine Patrol boat into 22-foot-deep water near fog-shrouded Portland Head Light in this Portland suburb.

Bob, a companion lobster weighing in at 19 1/2 pounds, was dropped into the water moments later.

Dana Neuts, retail manager of Harbor Fish Market in Portland, said he wasn't used to the idea of returning potential seafood to the sea, but in the case of Shirley and Bob he had no complaints.

"These are well-traveled lobsters," said Kevin Hill, the Philadelphia seafood vendor who accompanied Shirley and Bob on their flight to Portland on Monday. "We shouldn't be catching lobsters this size. Maine is the only state that's doing anything to protect them, and that's why we're here."

The two lobsters spent the night in a 12-by-4-foot tank in Neuts' market along the Portland waterfront before being placed aboard the 35-foot boat for the half-hour ride through choppy seas to a protected cove off Cape Elizabeth.

Shirley, whose age has been estimated at 40 to 125 years old, and her smaller companion were rescued from a Philadelphia man who wanted to serve them for Easter dinner.

Jordan, Solons Agree To 2nd Robeson Judge

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislative leaders have agreed to support a second Superior Court judgeship for Robeson County, eliminating the need for a special session sought by supporters of slain judicial candidate Julian Pierce.

Monday's agreement came during a three-hour meeting in Lumberton between Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, Robeson County legislators and members of Pierce's campaign committee.

If approved by the General Assembly in its June session, Republican Gov. Jim Martin could appoint a new Superior Court judge from Robeson County. The new judge could be sworn in Jan. 1 along with other judges elected this fall.

"This prevents the need for a special session," Jordan said. He said the agreement could help ease racial tensions in Robeson County.

"I think it certainly can do wonders, at least for the feelings they have about the justice system," he said.

The proposal also would virtually assure that Joe Freeman Britt, Robeson County's district attorney, would be elected Superior Court judge this fall. Pierce, a Lumbee Indian leader in Robeson County, was Britt's only opposition for the special judgeship created last year.

Martin said he supported the agreement and pledged to appoint a minority, and probably an Indian, if the new judgeship is approved.

"I think it's a neat solution to a very difficult dilemma we were facing," Martin said. "It does provide for a way to have a racial minority judge in Robeson County without retroactively affecting the judgeship that Mr. Britt had become entitled to."

But not everyone was happy with the compromise. Maurice Geiger, director of the Rural Justice Center, called the proposal "devious."

"I think it flies in the face of the fundamental idea of democracy that people have the right to govern themselves," Geiger said this morning as he prepared to leave North Carolina for New Hampshire, where the center is based.

"It ... absolutely prevents the mi-

ECU Interviews 3 For Vice Chancellor

Two candidates for the post of vice chancellor for academic affairs at East Carolina University have visited the campus for interviews and a third is scheduled to visit ECU April 18-19.

The three selected for on-campus interviews were invited as a result of a national search which began last fall. The successful candidate will succeed Dr. Angelo A. Volpe who became president of Tennessee Tech University last August.

Dr. Ronald E. Fox, dean of the school of professional psychology at Wright State University, Dayton, Ohio, visited ECU on March 29 and Dr. William Byrd, dean of the college of arts and sciences at Appalachian State University in Boone visited March 31. Byrd is a former professor and chairman of the physics department at ECU.

The third candidate invited for interviews is Dr. Phillip Thomas, dean of arts and sciences at Wichita State University, Wichita, Kan.

Dr. Carl Adler, professor and chair of the physics department, is chairman of the search committee which is to submit the names of three candidates to ECU Chancellor Richard Eakin.

Pitt Board Backs Road Projects

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

County Commissioners Monday adopted a resolution, to be presented at a state Transportation Improvement Plan hearing later this month, endorsing a dozen highway improvement projects in Pitt County for inclusion or retention in the TIP.

The projects are also supported by the Greenville City Council and the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

The transportation improvement priorities include five primary highway projects, six urban projects and one bridge project — the replacement of the Greene Street bridge crossing the Tar River in Greenville.

The primary highway projects supported by the resolution include:

— U.S. 264: complete the Farmville bypass (construction is scheduled to begin on the first portion this year) and the northwest bypass at Greenville (for which right-of-way acquisition is scheduled to begin this year, with construction scheduled for 1990-1994) and replace at-grade intersections with interchanges.

— N.C. 33: widen 1.8 miles of the existing two-lane roadway to a multilane facility from the Greenville city limits east to the intersection of Secondary Road 1726.

— N.C. 43: widen 1.2 miles of the existing two-lane roadway to a five-lane facility from the Greenville city limits south to Bells Fork.

— Greenville southwest loop: build a four-lane connector from U.S. 264 to N.C. 11 south of Pitt Community College.

— U.S. 13-N.C. 11: plan for the four-laning of the U.S. 13-N.C. 11 corridor from the Virginia state Line to Greenville.

Urban projects supported by the commissioner's resolution include:

— Evans Street in Greenville: widen two miles of the existing two-lane street to a five-lane curb and gutter section from 10th Street to Greenville Boulevard (already in the TIP and scheduled for right-of-way acquisition and construction in the near future).

— Arlington Boulevard in Greenville: build a 2.3 mile four-lane roadway from Hooker Road to N.C. 43.

— Secondary Road 1708 (the Cannon's Cross Roads Road) and SR 1725 (the County Home Road): widen 3.4 miles of existing two-lane road to a five-lane facility from N.C. 11 to SR 1726.

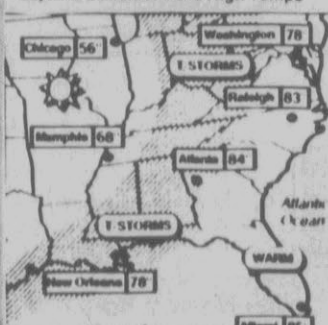

— Fourteenth Street in Greenville: construct 1.6 miles of five-lane curb and gutter section from Charles Street to Greenville Boulevard and 1.4 miles of four-lane curb and gutter section from Greenville Boulevard to SR 1725.

— Dickinson Avenue in Greenville: build 1.3 miles of four-lane curb and gutter roadway from Reade Circle to Memorial Drive.

Food Lion Plans Florida Center

PLANT CITY, Fla. (AP) — A North Carolina-based food store chain was expected to announce today plans to build a $22 million distribution center here to service the 70 supermarkets it figures to open in the Tampa Bay area. Food Lion Inc. of Salisbury, N.C., has been gobbling up market share all along the Eastern Seaboard as its no-frills, low-prices approach has been reshaping the grocery business. The distribution center will eventually employ 200 people, company spokesman Mike Mozingo said Monday. The 700,000-square-foot distribution center will take 15 to 17 months to construct and should be open by late 1989. The company should open its first stores in the Bay area during the first quarter of 1989, Mozingo said.

Electronic Gear Taken From Center

Housing Authority OK's Fire Repairs

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville Housing Authority Commissioners agreed unanimously Monday to appropriate $2,500 from the authority's budget to cover repairs of a unit damaged by fire in March.

According to GHA Executive Director Kenneth E. Noland, the $2,500 appropriation will be used toward the repair of a unit at 1807 Hopkins Drive. Noland said the authority's insurance has agreed to a settlement of $4,295 on the fire. However, the additional appropriation was required to make up the difference between the insurance dollars provided, the $1,000 insurance deductible, and the change of building code requirements since the time of original construction.

The authority opened bids on the project March 18 and accepted a low bid of $6,347 by a contractor from Rocky Mount for the repairs.

The $2,500 repair project was just one of several appropriations made by authority commissioners at their monthly meeting at the Housing Authority Office.

The commissioners also revised the authority budget for the appropriation of $2,150 for the purchase six refrigerators to replace old refrigerators beyond the state of repair.

In addition, the commissioners unanimously agreed to appropriate $11,500 to hire two part-time laborers from May through October.

Noland said the two part-time employees would be hired as grounds caretakers and would be paid the entry-level laborer classification in the city pay plan.

In other action, the commissioners approved placing advertisements seeking a person for the position of development-modification coordinator. According to Noland, the position will be responsible for the coordination of the Moyewood modernization project and monitoring construction once it starts. Noland said the position would pay approximately $19,000 to $23,000 per year. In a related matter, Noland said Bradford and Associates, the architectural firm conducting the project, is expected to present specifications of the Moyewood modernization effort this week.

In other matters, Noland reported the authority staff is still in the process of checking prices for a replacement automobile. Authority commissioners approved the appropriation of $6,000 to purchase a vehicle at the last GHA meeting.

Noland also told commissioners in his Section 8 report that there are several prospective tenants in the process of seeking a rental home in the private market who are experiencing difficulty finding landlords willing to participate in the assisted housing programs.

Authority commissioners also approved the GHA's quarterly write-off accounts receivable. The quarterly write-off amount for the period ending March 31 was $5,403.13 involving 22 cases.

GHA Director of Operations James E. Barnhill reported to commissioners that the repairs on 407 Roundtree are approximately 65 percent complete. A tentative date of May 14 has been set for completion of repairs to the five bedroom unit which was damaged by fire on Dec. 9.

Sallye C. Streeter, director of resident affairs, reported that the average rent at authority developments in March totaled $131.59. Rent at Meadowbrook was $127.84; Kearney Park, $138.71; Moyewood I, $132.48; Moyewood II, $137.95; Hopkins Park, $129.58; Newtown, $119.01, and West Meadowbrook, $128.72.

U.S. Sending 1,300 More Troops To Panama

By JOSEPH B. FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer
PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — A military-run newspaper warned the public to prepare for an invasion after the United States said it was sending 1,300 more soldiers to Panama to safeguard the lives and property of American citizens.

Some of the additional U.S. troops were expected to arrive today in Panama, where a two-week general strike aimed at ousting strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega crumbled on Monday when most businesses opened.

In another development, an offer by the Roman Catholic Church to mediate Panama's crisis appeared doomed when a government official said only hours before the church-imposed midnight Monday deadline that the government had received no official invitation to take part.

The Pentagon said last week it was sending the additional soldiers to guard 10,500 U.S. troops and installations used to protect the Panama Canal.

The decision followed five weeks of unrest and an opposition attempt to oust Noriega. As head of the 15,000-member Panamanian Defense Forces, Noriega is the power behind the civilian government. He is under indictment in the United States on federal drug trafficking charges.

La Republica, a military-run newspaper, told its readers Sunday, "Panamanians must prepare themselves to reject the invasion."

The United States contends the troop buildup is within the bounds of the 1977 treaties that gave the Panama Canal Zone back to Panama in 1979 and will give Panama the canal at the end of 1999.

The United States, which supports the opposition move to oust Noriega, has cut off Panama's flow of dollars, virtually paralyzing the already-bankrupt government and leading to closure of the nation's banks.

The U.S. government said on Monday it does not plan military or further economic actions against Panama.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said in Washington that even though it might take more time than anticipated, Noriega will eventually step down.

Opposition leaders insisted on Monday that the strike officially remained in effect, but their call appeared to be generally unheeded by retailers.

Many factories, which are more directly under the control of the strike organizers, remained closed.

Monsignor Marcos Antonio McGrath, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Panama City, had offered to mediate Panama's dispute between Noriega and opposition groups. But government-controlled television stations on Monday quoted unidentified government officials as saying the government never received a formal, written invitation from the church.

Monsignor Oscar Brown, the auxiliary bishop of Panama City, said in an interview on the Channel 2 television station, "We didn't make the invitation in a formal, written fashion to each of the parties involved."

"The invitation was made through our public press conference," he said. "We made this public, open invitation to all the parties involved."

The government held its own "national dialogue" Monday at a downtown convention center, without the presence of either the Catholic Church or the National Civic Crusade, the main opposition alliance.

Mario Rognoni, minister of commerce and industry, told reporters, "The government hopes the church and representatives of the opposition who have not taken part in this dialogue today take part in Wednesday's session."

On Sunday, a Panamanian military patrol car chased U.S. Ambassador Arthur Davis' limousine for two miles after he left the residence of the papal ambassador, where he had gone to pay Easter respects.

The State Department called the action "deliberate harassment," but Panama said it was only a police matter triggered by a display of weapons in a car providing security for Davis.

Justice Minister Rodolfo Chiari de Leon said the incident occurred when a patrol spotted "an exaggerated display of automatic arms carried by civilian elements traveling in three vehicles" that followed the ambassador.

Cynthia Farrell, a spokeswoman for the ambassador, acknowledged on Monday that U.S. security guards were following Davis in at least one other vehicle. She called it a routine precaution but declined to give details.

In Washington, Phyllis Oakley, the State Department's deputy spokeswoman, used the incident to step up Reagan administration criticism of Noriega.

"We consider any threat to the safety of the ambassador to be serious as always," she said. "We will take the necessary steps to protect Americans. I am condemning the incident... We regard the action as deliberate harassment."

Shultz Greeted Coolly

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz, carrying Middle East peace proposals, arrived in the Syrian capital today to a critical reception after an indecisive meeting with King Hussein of Jordan.

Shultz came to Damascus from Amman as a semi-official Syrian paper asked: "What is the use of this tour?"

The English-language Syria Times said Shultz's proposal for limited Palestinian self-rule in Israeli-occupied territories ignored "the inalienable rights of the Arab people of Palestine."

That reflected a serious challenge from Syria, Moscow's main Arab ally, to Shultz's blueprint for a Middle East peace plan. In Damascus, Shultz is to meet with President Hafez Assad.

In Amman, Shultz met with King Hussein for 90 minutes and State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said they had a "useful, thoughtful discussion."

Asked if there was any change in Shultz's statement that neither Israel nor Arab nations had made any commitment to Washington's latest blueprint for a Middle East peace plan, he said: "Nothing has changed on that."

He said that Hussein had insisted on an international peace conference as the only way to achieve a Middle East peace settlement.

Monday, Shultz met with Israeli leaders.

"We do have a sense of movement," a senior U.S. official said in Jerusalem after Shultz met Monday with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

A senior Israeli defense official said, meanwhile, that the government remained deadlocked and the only way to gain acceptance of the plan would be for Shultz to persuade Hussein to accept it.

"I feel it can bring about a change," the Israeli official said in a briefing for American reporters, under rules that barred identifying him.

But the U.S. official, who also spoke on condition of anonymity, said Hussein might reply that Israel should act first.

Canal Employees Nervous About Future

By JOSEPH B. FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer

BALBOA HEIGHTS, Panama (AP) — Panama's political crisis, with its uncertainties and hardships, has prompted concern among the more than 1,100 Americans and their families who still live in the former Panama Canal Zone.

The artificially high quality of life the zone afforded Americans for more than 60 years before it was returned to Panama in 1979 has changed, and there are fears that Americans could be casualties of the political turmoil.

About 1,300 American troops are to arrive this week to protect the 10,000 soldiers assigned to watch the Panama Canal and to guard American lives and property.

But that does not convince all the Americans in the zone that they are secure. "The (U.S.) army is for the army," said Ann Fahren, the wife of a Panama Canal ship pilot who has lived in Panama 10 years.

During the worst days of the recent crisis, she said, she was refused permission to shop at U.S. military-run grocery stores even after the military advised against going into the city to shop because of protests and riots.

"It burns me up," she said. "The army should not have slammed its doors in our face."

When the Panama Canal Zone existed, it had its own police force, courts, clubs, schools, stores and even postage stamps. The 10-mile strip that ran the width of Panama was a self-contained, subsidized enclave whose residents could forget they were in Panama. Legally, they were not.

The zone was turned over to Panama in 1979 as part of the 1977 treaties that transfer control of the canal to Panama at the end of this century.

The zone is now feeling the problems of one of the region's more unstable countries. Since June, Panama has been rocked by sometimes-violent protests as opposition groups pushed for the ouster of Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

Noriega, as head of the 15,000-member Panamanian Defense Forces, is the power behind the civilian government. He is under indictment in the United States on federal drug trafficking charges.

Panama's banks have been closed since March 3, creating a critical cash shortage. The United States has frozen Panamanian money held in U.S. banks and imposed other economic sanctions.

The unguarded entrance to the canal zone is across a boulevard from one of Panama City's toughest neighborhoods, which is filled with old barracks used in some cases to house workers who built the canal for the United States from 1904 to 1914.

Street gangs occasionally enter the area, something unheard of in the old days. "It's the lull before the storm," said Mrs. Fahren. "We used to go out to the beach, everywhere. Now you don't even see people out on the streets."

Some residents are third-generation Zonians, as long-term residents are known, but they are getting fewer and some zone residents talk now of sending families back to the United States.

"I have a daughter who will go to Florida State University this fall," said Jim Kaufman, deputy branch agent for the Panama Canal Pilots Association, the organization of pilots who guide ships through the canal.

"She is scheduled to come back but I may not bring her back," said Kaufman, who has lived in Panama 20 years.

"I have a boy in the 11th grade and I'm looking for a place for him to stay in the States," he said. "Even if Gen. Noriega goes tomorrow, how long will it be before things are normal again here?"

Several residents said they were worried that the Panamanian Defense Forces are responsible for their security.

U.S., Philippines Discuss Bases

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Talks began today on the future of the last major U.S. military garrisons in Southeast Asia, and the chief U.S. negotiator said the outcome will affect U.S.-Philippine relations and regional security.

"The significant Soviet presence in the immediate area casts a shadow over expanding economic activity throughout the region," U.S. Ambassador Nicholas Platt, head of the 10-member American panel, said in opening remarks.

The review of a 41-year-old agreement on U.S. bases in the Philippines comes amid a growing clamor by many Filipinos for phasing out the garrisons, which they see as a vestige of U.S. colonialism.

About 500 people marched this afternoon from the Philippine Senate to the U.S. Embassy chanting slogans demanding the bases be closed. Police stood guard in front of the embassy compound but there were no incidents.

U.S. and Philippine officials described the opening session as cordial.

"Both sides expressed their desire for a successful review and pledged to work toward this end in a harmonious, business-like manner," the two panels said in a joint statement.

Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus, chief Filipino negotiator, has called for substantial increases in the $180 million which Manila receives annually for use of the six installations.

Filipino officials say they will also press U.S. officials for details of nuclear weapons that may be stored there and for expanding the right to try American troops charged with criminal offenses.

The outcome of the talks, expected to last three months, will determine whether the Philippines allows the bases to remain in the nation after their lease expires in 1991.

Under a new Filipino Constitution, a lease extension must be approved by two-thirds of the 23-member Senate, where opposition to the bases is strong.

Platt has refused to say whether Washington will agree to a major increase in lease payments. Last month, Manglapus suggested U.S. payments of $1.2 billion for the bases.

Platt noted today the presence of American troops enables the Philippines to spend scarce resources on economic development instead of defense.

"An overnight shift in Soviet intentions can transform this presence into a serious economic and military threat to the Philippines and the region," Platt said.

He said the talks "will lay the groundwork to create a positive atmosphere for discussions to come later on the future of our security relations."

The United States is the Philippines' chief weapons supplier in the government's 19-year-old fight against communist rebels.

Under the agreement, the United States maintains Clark Air Base, Subic Bay Naval Base and four smaller installations. About 20,000 U.S. troops and Defense Department workers are stationed at the bases, which the United States says are crucial for defense of the western Pacific.

The bases are officially under Filipino command but are effectively controlled by the United States.

President Corason Aquino has promised to let the bases remain until 1991 but has refused to say whether she supports an extension.

U.S. authorities say 40 percent of the warships that call at Subic Bay are nuclear-powered.

Israelis Kill 2 Arab Infiltrators

KIRYAT SHMONA, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops surrounded Arab guerrillas trying to enter Israel from Lebanon and attacked them at dawn's first light today, the army said. Two guerrillas were killed and four soldiers were wounded.

It was ninth penetration or attempted infiltration of Israel in four and a half months, since a guerrilla on a hanglider coasted into Israel and killed six Israeli soldiers before being shot to death.

Israel radio reported that Fatah, the main wing of the Palestine Liberation Organization led by Yasser Arafat, claimed responsibility for today's attempt. The radio said the guerrillas apparently intended to take Israeli civilians as hostages.

The army said troops initially spotted a band of guerrillas just yards from the Israeli border near Kfar Yuval north of Kiryat Shmona.

"The patrol opened fire at the terrorists who returned the fire and threw grenades," an army spokesman said. "The army surrounded the band and, at first light of morning, attacked them."

The statement from the army did not say how many guerrillas were involved or if any were captured or escaped. It said the guerrillas intended to "carry out a deadly attack."

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Reducing Class Size Effective

The U.S. Education Department better listen to the advice of those in the trenches.

Educators — including those in Pitt County — vehemently and correctly disagreed with a study released last week suggesting reducing class size would be a waste of money. School reformers should look for better ways to manage children in the classrooms, the document concluded, than spend money on more teacher power.

Poppycock. Score another victory for bureaucratic problem-solving. It follows that those who sit in an office all day would talk about "managing children." Managing kids — if indeed it can be accomplished — doesn't replace individualized attention.

A classroom is a learning environment and an atmosphere where growth is constant — if the teacher is doing his or her job right. Intellectual growth is a very individual occurrence. It happens differently for each student. Concurrently, if the process is to be successful, a teacher must try to approach each student's needs as closely as possible. The more kids there are to approach, the less individualized the attention becomes. The atmosphere of dynamic learning is diminished and the classroom is less effective.

Put in simple terms, smaller classes allow teachers to work with students more closely. It allows students more input. Low teacher-to-student ratios encourage participation and communication.

That's what educators — those in the classrooms — are saying, and the government should listen.

Besides, there is already evidence that the class reductions of a decade ago in North Carolina improved the quality of education. This impact can be documented through student performance and improving test scores.

Reducing class size is not the panacea for the nation's education system. But it's a good starting place and should be acknowledged as such. A document that denounces it is about what can be expected from a study done by bureaucrats.

And as for better management of children in the classroom, let those who conducted the study face a classroom of 25 to 30 youngsters with diverse needs and abilities. Chances are, they will shout "uncle" and ask for a smaller class in the same breath.

Polls Say Race Close

It may not yet be clear who the Democratic front runner for the presidential nomination is, but the CBS-New York Times polls shows that Michael Dukakis can run a close race to Republican George Bush.

The outcome in Michigan and the results of today's activity in Wisconsin may alter that perspective, but nevertheless, the poll showed Dukakis is competitive.

Vice President Bush is clearly the front runner for the GOP nomination, and the CBS-New York Times poll shows him ahead of other Democratic presidential nomination candidates.

The poll showed that if Bush and Dukakis are the opponents, 46 percent of all registered voters would be for Bush and 45 percent for Dukakis. Given a margin for error, the race would be too close to call.

An ABC-Washington Post poll gave Dukakis 50 percent and Bush 45 percent.

The CBS-New York Times poll of Democrats only showed 53 percent felt Dukakis was most likely to defeat Bush.

The polls can change many times before the November election. Dukakis first has to be nominated. While Bush seems headed toward the nomination, he still is hounded by the Iran-contra affair.

If both are nominated, Dukakis' fate might hinge on how well the economy holds up. The Reagan administration has been popular because of a sound economy and a low inflation rate. Voters could decide to go with the flow of the Reagan policies and elect his vice president.

Bush faces danger from the Iran-Contra situation, particularly since indictments have been brought and a cease fire has been arranged between the Sandinistas and the Contras.

While the polls no doubt bring joy to the front runners it is far too soon to concede anything. Jesse Jackson, after all, has since won Michigan, and today's results in Wisconsin may make a difference. The nominations will have to be made and the campaign fought ... and there will be the opportunity for a number of unexpected turns before a president is elected.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I have been employed in public education for the past 27 years. My three children are graduates of a public high school and a public university. I believe in public education. There were many times during this period that I have asked the questions: "Why would parents elect to send their child to a private school when there are good public schools in our area?" I now have the answer to that question: It is a single word — stability.

When parents elect to send their child to a private school, they at least know what school their child will be attending each year, which makes for a stable assignment, thus a more stable learning environment. When parents in Pitt County send their child to a public school, they never know from one year to the next which school the child will be attending; thus an unstable assignment which often leads to an unstable learning environment. Without physically relocating the family, a child who attends an elementary school within the Pitt County school system can be assigned to as many as three different schools in as many years. This does not include the transition to junior high school nor senior high school.

How can our Pitt County school administrators or the Board of Education make a decision regarding school district lines and to build into that decision that no major change will be made within a period of three to five years. Can they do that? Continued support for public education in Pitt County will, in a large measure, depend upon the ability of the Pitt County Board of Education to assure greater stability in pupil assignments. Are they willing to make a commitment to help build the stability that children, parents, grandparents and other citizens want for our public schools. I hope so.

Jean J. Garriss

To the editor:

In the March 30 edition of The Daily Reflector, we read that legislators Marc Basnight and J. Fred Bowman are thinking that we need legislation to require the General Assembly to confirm or reject appointments to "state boards and commissions dealing with environmental problems along the coast." Their reason? To "remove politics" from the boards and commissions, according to them. Let me ask, since when did the General Assembly cease to be a political entity?

And on the general subject of environmental concerns, was it not these gentlemen and their peers who passed legislation prohibiting N.C. agencies from making environmental regulations that might be more stringent than federal regulations? In other words, if they want to carp about the appointive process, they need to blush in shame about the legislation they helped pass.

In the same issue, an economic panel headed by a banker wants to "deregulate credit card interest rates and fees" because, if we don't, 1,500

1,800 banking jobs would move out of state to places without limits, notably Delaware and Georgia. Without limits, "credit card centers can let interest rates fluctuate with the market." When donkeys fly!

The cost of funds to financial institutions is quite low. If you don't believe me, see how little a six-month CD will provide you, the customer — somewhere less than 6.5 percent, probably, versus credit card rates of 18 percent.

Simmons First National Bank of Pine Bluff, Arkansas, gladly furnishes VISA at less than 11 percent. And their processing center is still in Arkansas.

Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr. presented and won approval in the House last year a bill to give customers some relief. Will our senators follow through and pass that bill into law? Ask them!

To the editor:

I do not bemoan Charlotte Purrington's right to expression in a public forum (Public Forum, Thursday, March 31). I do, however, take issue with the manner in which she reported and made use of her observations. As an example, the person in military dress could have been an ROTC cadet from ECU majoring in teacher education making an observation for a class.

I also take issue with her implications that Greenville is becoming a center for military activity and that the military presence in Greenville has led to a deterioration in quality of life. Regardless of her target of criticism, bashing through innuendo, as well as the cynicism exhibit by the author is counterproductive. Without a doubt, her concerns and questions are legitimate; however, it appears that the logic on which she based her apparent conclusion is faulty. May I suggest that if she or anyone else who share her feelings has time to write that they take time to find out "what's going on" before suggesting, for example, that a relationship exists between a military presence and the lowering of quality of life, or before implying cause and effect.

This forum and the other opportunities for freedom of expression which so many of us take for granted are made possible in part by a strong, vital and visible military. The warrior/professional soldier recognizes this and places his/her life on the line daily so everyone, regardless of viewpoint, is afforded the opportunity to say or do what they wish and in whatever manner they see fit.

After 20 Years, The Struggle Continues

"I may not get there with you, but our people will get to the Promised Land."
—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Sitting in the White House Executive Office Building in the spring of 1978, 10 years after the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., I was convinced that Martin's prophecy was on the verge of becoming true.

I was the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and I was sitting at a conference with more than a dozen young White House staff members, all of them black.

I had asked to meet the black staffers, for I wanted them to realize that they were there as a result of the suffering and sacrifice of thousands of people of all races who had led our country to a confrontation with its conscience.

Jimmy Carter was well aware that his march to the presidency as a Southerner would have been impossible without the presence of the black vote and the martyrdom of Martin Luther King Jr. But many of the college-educated young professionals on the White House staff had no such sense of history. They were the black youth who received opportunities in the wake of Martin's assassination and the Kerner Commission report that foretold the dangers of two Americas, one black and one white.

Truly, some of us did reach the Promised Land of equal opportunity. But for many more the struggle for freedom floundered in a drug-induced slavery, or wandered aimlessly in a wilderness of debt-ridden materialism. The nation seems captive of an economy distorted by needless militarism while suffering from an absence of policy and direction.

The inflation and unemployment of the 1970s produced a level of anxiety in our nation that caused us to turn our back on the Great Society.

'What would Martin be doing if he were alive today? Would he be president? I doubt it, because for him the world's highest calling was that of prophet to the nations of the world and pastor to its people.'

But the struggle has continued. It has moved from the streets and courtrooms to the city council chambers, state legislatures and the halls of Congress. In spite of apathy from the White House in recent years, the movement has become so strong and secure politically that it has pushed a passive president to proclaim a national holiday in honor of Dr. King, and, however reluctantly, extend the 1965 Voting Rights Act for 25 years.

The nation has only begun to realize how fortunate we were to have non-violent leadership in the South following World War II. Atlanta could have easily been a Beirut or a Johannesburg, but instead men and women of reason and good will prevailed.

We also might have a completely different world had either King or Robert Kennedy survived the spring and summer of 1968.

We might have avoided the Chicago Democratic convention chaos and we might have avoided the election of Richard Nixon and, as a result, Watergate.

In the absence of strong leaders, we have seen the emergence of a stronger people and we have taken democracy to a new level of participation and activism.

The problems, however, remain. The triple evils of racism, poverty and war continue with us. Legal segregation has almost completely disappeared but the population is only beginning to appreciate the strength and beauty of ethnic and cultural pluralism.

As poverty spreads to growing numbers of whites, the embers of smoldering racism occasionally flare into open conflict. But violent crime, whether across racial lines or within racial communities, is much more derivative of the failure of society to house, educate and employ our citizens.

In spite of new wealth and progress, there is rapid growth in homelessness. Health-care costs limit the medical care available to the poor. And AIDS, cancer, drug abuse and alcoholism continue to destroy the family and community institutions.

Grass-roots democracy without strong leadership creates a danger of chaos. King spoke to us in 1967 about the need to ask the right questions in order to avoid a chaotic future:

"In the days ahead, we must not consider it unpatriotic to raise questions about our national character," he said.

What would Martin be doing if he were alive today? Would he be president? I doubt it, because for him the world's highest calling was that of prophet to the nations of the world and pastor to its people.

Andrew Young, former King associate and ambassador to the United Nations, is mayor of Atlanta.

Strength For Today

The gyroscope compasses used aboard ships are so designed that if a ship for any reason is forced off its course, alarm bells are rung.

And so it is and always has been with a person's conscience. If the bell does not ring, it means either that the person does not have a conscience or else has grown so deaf that no warning bell on earth could alert him to his danger.

A healthy conscience is always equipped with warning bells. The cowardly compromise, the mental reservation, the betrayal of a friend, the violation of a trust — these and many more offenses to moral sensibilities set the bells to clanging in our ears.

For most people, the first yielding to iniquity brings shame. But if the bell keeps ringing and the person does nothing about it, the time comes when the ringing is in vain.

Wisconsin Primary Assumes Dramatic Importance For Democrats

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Michael Dukakis and the Democratic Party establishment are holding their breath today while Wisconsin votes.

Not to mention New York Gov. Mario Cuomo and the scenario-spinners who are watching the Democratic drama play itself out.

In his wildest dreams, Dukakis probably never imagined that he'd be engaged in a state-by-state duel with Jesse Jackson for the nomination. Or running neck-and-neck with his black rival in a state that is 96 percent white and may have a profound influence over the winner of the Democratic presidential marathon.

A victory would restore some of the luster that Dukakis gained with his Super Tuesday wins last month in Florida, Texas, Maryland and elsewhere. A defeat would compound stinging losses in Illinois and Michigan and raise serious new questions about the Massachusetts governor's ability to compete.

A Dukakis defeat would almost certainly lead to another round of Cuomo-drafting scenarios in the two weeks before the New York primary. For all the talk of rallying around the candidate with the most delegates, enough Democratic Party leaders are worried about a Jackson-led party debacle this fall to make some sort of draft movement extremely likely if Dukakis falters.

For Jackson, a victory would make him the leading contender in the nomination fight, in fact if not in delegate totals. A defeat might suggest that his remarkable campaign has peaked — just as he moves into the delegate-rich states of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio over the next month.

For Sen. Albert Gore, a victory would be miraculous. The result forecast by the polls — third place — would be another devastating finish to an expensive effort. And already Dukakis' aides are seeking to undermine Gore's New York campaign.

The fourth man in the race, Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois, would settle for survival.

Dukakis, the marathoner, told reporters on Monday, "I don't have to win" in Wisconsin. "I just have to win a good plurality of delegates by June 9," the day the primary season ends.

His aides were doing their best to cushion the impact of a possible defeat, as well, although Tom Loftus, speaker of the Wisconsin House of Representatives, told reporters, "I think Dukakis is going to win by enough — 3, 4, 5 points."

Even before the polls opened today in Wisconsin for the state's Democratic presidential primary, Dukakis' aides were explaining why their man might lose in this industrial state to Jackson, as he did in Michigan 10 days ago and in Illinois before that.

The Illinois loss was the result of facing two favorite sons at the same time, Jackson and Simon, the governor's aides argued. The Michigan loss was the result of a primary-caucus hybrid and a large black vote in Detroit that played into Jackson's hands, they added.

Wisconsin allows crossover votes, meaning that mischievous Republicans could vote for the Democrat who now appears to be least likely to beat George Bush in November — Jackson.

So has it gone with the Dukakis campaign in recent weeks: trying to explain the last big-state loss while hoping to lower public expectations about the contest just ahead. All the while, Dukakis is hoping that the Jackson tide will crest before it engulfs him.

Dukakis took advantage of his Connecticut primary victory and a full week of campaigning in Wisconsin to retool his campaign. He talked gingerly of differences between himself and Jackson, served lunch to senior citizens and visited hospitalized children in an attempt to shed his image as an aloof technocrat. He unveiled a new speech designed to appeal to blue-collar voters.

All that simply raised the stakes for him in the state. By whatever reckoning, a loss in Wisconsin would leave Dukakis winless in the first three Midwestern industrial states, and raise fresh questions about whether he has the ability to gain the type of blue-collar support needed to produce a Democratic victory in November. From there, it's only a short hop to Cuomo, the governor of New York who has flirted all year with the Democratic Party and whose state holds the next primary in two weeks.

Refused

— Laurie Asseo —

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Former Gov. Evan Mecham was removed from office by the Legislature because he was too loyal to some aides and disregarded advice from politicians who could have helped him, both supporters and opponents say.

But some observers were more critical of the first-term governor, who was convicted by the state Senate on Monday.

"Here's a guy who was going to clean up state government because it was too corrupt, and he brings in a whole legion of people who are accused in various sorts of ways of being corrupt, and some are facing trial now," said Democratic Minority Leader Alan Stephens.

Mecham exhibited "a pattern of behavior that is given to deceit as standard operating procedure," added Sen. Greg Lunn.

Still others said the former Republican governor failed to build support, apparently forgetting that he won the governorship with only 40 percent of the vote in a three-way race.

"You've got to understand that here was a man who was elected essentially without the press and without the (Republican) party. ... What he forgot was that he couldn't survive without them," said former top Mecham aide Sam Steiger, who resigned to face an extortion charge for allegedly trying to influence a Parole Board member's vote.

Even Mecham backers did not agree with his claim that he was a victim of a conspiracy by legislators and others in the GOP establishment, such as Attorney General Bob Corbin.

Mecham insisted on making Max Hawkins, a loyal backer, director of the Department of Administration despite strong opposition from many legislators. Hawkins eventually admitted that he told the governor an alleged death threat by DOA aide Lee Watkins was "a lot of hot air" and would go away.

On Monday, Mecham was convicted of obstructing a state investigation of the alleged death threat, one of two impeachment articles that led to his removal.

Watkins himself was allowed to stay on for a while after allegedly making the threat and after a decades-old youthful robbery conviction came to light.

In addition, Mecham ignored advice from his chief of staff, Jim Colter, who said it would be politically unwise to loan $80,000 from the governor's protocol fund to Mecham Pontiac. On the basis of that loan, Mecham was also convicted Monday of misusing state funds.

Sen. James Sossaman, a Republican who generally has supported the governor, said he believed Mecham's problems stemmed more from "perception of his inability to make a good chief executive officer for the state of Arizona than ... whether he committed any crimes."

Mecham's relations with the media and the Legislature were often stormy, spurred on by his "continual ability to undermine his own credibility by silly or stupid statements," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Urdane, a Republican.

Lunn, also a Republican, cited the governor's claim in Senate testimony — retracted a day later — that the former head of his security detail had stolen a report from Colter's desk.

Former governor and U.S. Sen. Paul Fannin was a member of a group of Arizona "elder statesmen" formed last summer to help Mecham with his troubles. Fannin said he advised the governor to try harder to get along with the media and the Legislature. "But he's very stubborn and determined in his ways."

House Speaker Joe Lane contended, however, that Mecham's relations with the Legislature were really no worse than those of his predecessor, Democrat Bruce Babbitt.

Laurie Asseo is covering her fourth session of the Arizona Legislature for The Associated Press.

Spat Over Driveway Led To Church Shootings

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer
EDNEYVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A legal squabble over the use of a driveway came to a bloody conclusion when the owners of the access road were gunned down during an Easter funeral, family members say.

Michael Leslie Rainey was upset because his former in-laws, Ponnelle and Wilford Owensby, had barred access through their property to his home about a half-mile from the church where witnesses say he killed the Owensbys and pallbearer Scott Bowles Sunday afternoon.

"They closed that gate and that made him mad," said David Justice, who was Ponnelle Owensby's uncle.

Rainey wanted to buy the land where the driveway is located, but the Owensbys refused to sell, Justice said. He said Rainey could have built a driveway to another road that bordered his property. "But he didn't want to," Justice said. "He had plenty of money to do it."

Rainey, 41, of Fletcher, was charged Sunday with three counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of the Owensbys and Bowles. He also was charged with three counts of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill in the wounding of three people, including his ex-wife, Andrea Rainey, 40, of Kennesaw, Ga., authorities said.

Barefooted and wearing a green jumpsuit, Rainey appeared before Henderson County District Court Judge Zoro Guice Monday morning. Guice ordered Rainey held without bond until an April 12 probable cause hearing.

District Attorney Alan Leonard told the judge he would be seeking the death penalty in the case.

Rainey's only statement came in response to Guice's inquiry about whether he wanted a court-appointed attorney.

"I signed a waiver a few minutes ago. I don't want one," Rainey said. "I'd like to think about it awhile."

Rainey told the judge he intended to hire his own attorney to represent him.

"It would seem Mr. Rainey that you will need the services of an attorney very badly," Guice said. "These charges are as serious as they can get."

In an interview before the hearing, Roy Neill, assistant district attorney, described Rainey as "dangerous and unstable."

"There were multiple gunshot wounds (at the shooting scene)," Neill said. "He shot some of the victims while they were down. This shows some instability. We would argue against someone like that being out on the street."

"This was not your garden variety murder. This was brutal," Neill said.

Court records showed Rainey had filed a lawsuit against the Owensby family last August. The complaint alleged that the Owensbys had erected a gate on a 30-foot driveway which extended from a state road across their property and onto Rainey's property.

According to the complaint, the gate was locked and no trespassing signs were placed nearby. Rainey said in the suit that the gate prevented him from getting to his personal vehicles on his property.

According to the court records, Rainey and his former wife were given the land by his former wife's grandparents, D.T. and Effie Justice, in November 1979. Sunday's shooting occurred just as Effie Justice's funeral was about to begin. Her husband died several years ago.

His complaint asks for a court order requiring the Owensbys to open the gate and pay him $5,000 in damages. Guice ruled in favor of Rainey, issuing a preliminary injunction on Aug. 28, 1987.

The last entry in the court case came in November when the Owensbys filed their answer to the lawsuit.

The shootings halted Mrs. Justice's funeral. At the graveyard Monday afternoon, the protective awning lay partially collapsed over the empty grave. Flowers sent by mourners lay strewn on the ground.

Witnesses said the minister and six pallbearers were receiving Mrs. Justice's closest relatives on the porch of Mountain Home Baptist Church when the shooting began.

Rainey's ex-wife, one of her friends and the friend's daughter were wounded as they pulled into the church parking lot. The Owensbys were killed in their pickup truck, and Bowles, 24, was shot and killed as he sprang from the church porch to help other victims.

People outside ran into the church and closed the doors, watching the gunman through the crack between the two doors, said one witness, who asked not to be identified.

"It started in the back and it slowly passed on, what had happened," the witness said. "There was a lotta screaming."

"I guess overall the congregation was OK," he said. "They were scared, but there was really no panic. I don't know, maybe everybody was too scared to panic."

Nearly everyone interviewed in Edneyville Monday knew about the dispute between Rainey and the Owensbys.

Ted Russell, who works at a grocery store in Edneyville, said many of his customers came in Monday talking about the dispute.

"From what everyone is saying, they backed him into a corner," he said.

Jim MacKenzie, who owns an auto supply store in Edneyville, said Rainey used to stop by his store frequently. "He was a real nice guy, real happy-go-lucky," he said. "But anyone can be pushed too far. He was by no means a Charlie Manson."

Rainey stopped by MacKenzie's shop about three weeks ago with startling news, he said. "He said he was considering selling his house and moving away," he said. "He said all of this was too much trouble."

"It's terrible, ain't it?" a passerby asked Justice Monday.

"It's worse than that," he answered softly.

Panel Says No To Rose

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charlie Rose cannot collect a $50,000 IOU from his campaign due this month because he never proved his contention that the campaign owed him the money, the U.S. House ethics committee has ruled.

The ruling was contained in the ethics committee's 525-page report released yesterday that details the arguments and background for its conclusion March 23 that Rose was guilty of four counts of violating House rules regarding the use and reporting of campaign funds.

Rose, a Democrat from Fayetteville, has accepted the ruling and will not attempt to cash the 1987 campaign promissory note that was to be paid to him this month, a spokesman in his office said Monday.

The ethics committee, formally known as the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, concluded that there were mitigating circumstances in the case and recommended no punishment for Rose. It issued a "letter of reproof," instructing Rose to "refrain from any future campaign borrowings and/or use of campaign assets as collateral."

The committee found that Rose had borrowed $63,995 from his campaign in eight transactions from 1978 to 1985 and had used a campaign certificate of deposit to secure a personal loan. Both actions violated a House rule prohibiting the use of campaign money for anything other than campaign purposes.

Rose's main defense against the charges was that his campaign had owed him about $50,000 because of loans that he had made or guaranteed to it in 1972.

Robeson Turns King March Into Memorial For Pierce

By ERICA JOHNSTON
Associated Press Writer

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — Organizers of the second annual Unity March had intended to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr., but the march took on a local tone after the shooting of Indian judicial candidate Julian Pierce 11 days ago.

"We know from history a bullet may slay the dreamer, but the bullet can never slay the dream," the Rev. Ben Chavis told about 600 marchers after a 20-minute walk through the rain Monday. "The dream of Julian Pierce is the dream of Martin Luther King Jr. And that dream lives."

"We must keep the faith. We must not let tragedy keep us down. We must press on," said Chavis, a former member of the Wilmington 10 who is now an official of the United Church of Christ.

"You keep on marching," Chavis, an Oxford native, told the crowd that quietly walked several blocks from the Robeson County Courthouse to the Bill Sapp Recreation Center.

Chavis was among the nine black men and one white woman convicted in 1972 on charges stemming from the 1971 firebombing of a white-owned grocery store in a black neighborhood during a period of racial unrest in Wilmington.

The marchers sang "Amazing Grace" and "We Shall Not Be Moved," and carried signs reading "Register And Vote In Memory" and "Justice for All."

Pierce was shot to death at his home on in what authorities said was a domestic dispute. One Lumbee Indian was charged with murder and another suspect committed suicide.

Many Lumbees and blacks in the county say they are discriminated against, and that they are not represented adequately in local political offices. The county's population is 37 percent Indian, 37 percent white and 26 percent black.

Speaker after speaker at the rally following the march called on members of the crowd to register their displeasure with elected officials by voting.

"Don't let them take us for granted," said Lonnie Revels, head of the state Commission on Indian Affairs. "It's time to let them know that if they don't join you, you can't join them at the polls."

Christine Griffin, acting co-director of the legal-services office that Pierce headed until January, said many Lumbees historically have stayed out of the electoral process.

"My grandparents believed it was a sin to take part in politics," she said, sobbing. "To my knowledge, they never cast a vote. They thought it was the devil's work. But I believe it's God's will ... to use these laws we have."

Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson sent a statement urging Robeson County citizens to "keep up the fight."

The march was sponsored by Concerned Citizens For Better Government, a coalition of 10 local groups that are seeking change in the county. It was not endorsed by local elected officials, who criticize the group for being too liberal and for encouraging "outsiders" to become involved in the county's affairs.

"There are no such things as outsiders," said the Rev. Franklin Reeves of Operation Help, which is based in South Carolina. "This happens to be the United States of America — it's not the United States of Robeson County."

SUC Allows Phone Patrons To Have 976 Calls Blocked

RALEIGH (AP) — People who want to stop phone calls being made from their homes to telephone dating services and information services soon will be able to block them free of charge.

Free blocking of such calls — known as 976 services because of the first three digits of the phone numbers — was ordered Monday by the State Utilities Commission. A formal order reflecting the commission's vote is pending.

Southern Bell Telephone Co. had proposed offering its customers free blocking of 976 calls for three months and then charging a one-time fee of $5, but commissioners said at a hearing on the proposal that consumers should not have to pay extra to block a service they didn't want.

Commissioners also expressed a concern about misuse of the telephone line by children leading to exorbitant bills for parents.

"Those charges for unsuspecting parents really leave me cold right now," commissioner William W.

Redman Jr. said. "It is obvious there is a problem. There is an image problem for Southern Bell that needs to be protected. ... I would hope the industry will take a look at its image from some of these calls, not because of the content, but because of what is happening at home to unsuspecting parents."

The 976 services are offered in North Carolina by private companies through contracts with Southern Bell. They became available in Raleigh March 1 but have been offered in Charlotte since 1985. Under state regulations, the maximum charge allowed per call is $5.

In Raleigh, 10 services are available, including a dating service offered by Continental Communications for $3 a call. Calls to hear jokes, the latest sports scores or a summary of the afternoon soap operas are 95 cents each.

USAir To Stress Charlotte Service

CHARLOTTE (AP) — USAir is glad to have flights to London out of Charlotte, but the company plans to build its merger with North Carolina's Piedmont Airlines to increase domestic service, the company's chairman says.

"You have to remember that Frankfurt and Paris and Amsterdam — none of those markets have the same traffic potential out of Charlotte as London does," USAir chairman and president Edwin Colodny said. "So when we start looking at European services, they have to have enough potential to be operated profitably."

"A 767 (Boeing jet) requires an investment of over $50 million and it requires a very judicious use of those dollars if you're going to commit to the service. And I'm just not prepared at this point to make those decisions."

"We do not intend to become a major international carrier over the next few years," Colodny said. "Our job is to become a significant player in the domestic market and we intend to build the Charlotte hub domestically."

Colodny, in an interview, said the company may add one more international destination in mind. But he reiterated his company's commitment to Charlotte, which has been Piedmont's largest hub airport.

He said USAir's new maintenance facility at Charlotte-Douglas International Airport will be used to overhaul Boeing jets, instead of simple inspections and routine work as previously planned. The difference could mean another 50 to 200 jobs here, industry observers told The Observer.

USAir acquired Piedmont on Nov. 5 for about $1.6 billion, marking the Arlington, Va.-based company's second airline purchase in 1987. Five months earlier, USAir acquired Pacific Southwest Airlines, a West Coast regional carrier in San Diego, for about $385 million.

To finance the acquisitions, USAir borrowed $2 billion.

IN THE STATE

Lawyers

DURHAM (AP) — Improving services to poor people and stepping up efforts to recruit minorities are among goals members of the N.C. State Bar have set to promote public service and enhance lawyers' quality of life.

James Preston, a Charlotte attorney and president of the state bar, said the state should study its system of providing legal representation for poor people in death penalty cases.

Currently, the state pays for a defense lawyer at two levels of legal proceedings, a trial and an appeal. The state, however, does not pay lawyers to represent poor defendants in the numerous possible post-conviction hearings.

Consumer Education

RALEIGH (AP) — Investment industry fraud has grown in North Carolina as the state's economy has grown, a candidate for secretary of state says.

"For too many market players today, the expected benefits of violating the securities laws appear to have outweighed the potential costs of getting caught," Bell said at a news conference.

Bell, who has released a series of position papers on issues involving the secretary of state's office, repeated his claim that Democratic rival Rufus Edmisten is ducking the issues by refusing to debate.

Bell insisted he had a good chance to defeat the former attorney general and 1984 Democratic gubernatorial nominee. "He's not out there working for this job and I am," Bell said.

Super Collider

RALEIGH (AP) — The Department of Energy's Site Task Force for the superconducting super collider will visit North Carolina and the six other best qualified sites for the project in April through July, officials said.

The purpose of the visits is to confirm and clarify DOE's understanding of the information provided in the states' proposals and for the task force to become familiar with the proposed sites, said Secretary of Energy John Herrington.

"These visits are an important part of the site selection process," Herrington said. "The task force will be looking for information to best evaluate the overall merits of the site proposals."

The North Carolina visit will be April 18-21, officials said.

The other states competing with North Carolina for the atom smashing project include Arizona, Colorado, Illinois, Michigan, Tennessee and Texas.

Fatal Crash

CONWAY, S.C. (AP) — Two Horry County teen-agers died when the car in which they were riding crashed into the side of a tractor-trailer that was backing across a highway near Loris, authorities say.

The truck driver, Ronald Clifford Gentry, 33, of Jonesville, N.C., was charged with two counts of involuntary manslaughter following the accident Monday, South Carolina Highway Patrol Trooper Edward Gasque said.

Gentry, who was not injured, was released from the Horry County Jail on $10,000 bond, Gasque said.

Anthony Goff, 17, of Loris, and his cousin, Petrez Goff, 15, of Galivant's Ferry were pronounced dead at the scene of the 2:20 a.m. accident, Horry County Coroner Gene R. Johnson said. They suffered severe head and chest injuries.

The driver of the car, Kenneth Dixon, 18, of Pensacola, Fla., and a fourth passenger, Alonzo Bellamy, 17, of Loris, suffered multiple injuries and were in critical condition late Monday at the Medical University of South Carolina in Charleston, a hospital spokesman said.

Arrest

RALEIGH (AP) — A Raleigh man has been charged with the shooting of a police officer at a Clayton grocery store, Clayton police said Monday.

The suspect was arrested in Michigan. He was returned to North Carolina, and was in the Wake County Jail Monday night.

Officers of the Detroit police armed robbery division arrested Jerry Edward Seaberry, 24, on Saturday. Sgt. George N. Anthony, public information officer for the Detroit police, said Seaberry was carrying a handgun and a substantial amount of money when he was arrested.

The warrant filed against Seaberry charges him with assault with a firearm on a law enforcement officer, assault with a deadly weapon with the intent to kill or inflict serious injury, and robbery with a deadly weapon, police said.

Mecham Ousted As Governor

By LAURIE ASSEO
Associated Press Writer
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Evan Mecham was convicted on impeachment charges and removed as governor in a finale to 15 months of national ridicule that began the week the political outsider took office.

"I feel relieved that this nightmare is over," Republican Sen. Greg Lunn said Monday after Mecham, a first-term Republican, became the first U.S. governor in 59 years to be impeached and stripped of his office.

Mecham, 63, showed no emotion as the Arizona Senate voted 21-9 to convict him of trying to obstruct an investigation of an alleged death threat and 26-4 of misusing $80,000 from the governor's protocol fund. Twenty votes were required for conviction.

Minutes later, Mecham smiled and told reporters, "Well, they don't like my politics, so we finished a political trial; it's as simple as that."

The 30-member Senate defeated, 17-13, a motion to bar Mecham from holding any public office again, making it unclear whether he will be permitted to run in a May 17 recall election to regain the governor's post. There is no precedent and the matter probably will be decided by the courts, said Attorney General Bob Corbin.

Acting Gov. Rose Mofford, a Democrat, became governor with Mecham's conviction.

"Let us purge our hearts of suspicion and hate," she said in a statement. "I did not ask for this burden. But I do not shrink from the job before me."

EVAN MECHAM

Mecham faces an April 21 criminal trial on a charge he concealed a $350,000 campaign loan. The Senate dropped a charge on that issue last week.

Mecham said he did not know what he will do next, including whether he will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. "We'll know in a couple, three days," he said.

Mecham was removed less than a week after his family announced the Mecham Pontiac dealership, which he has owned since 1950, was being sold because of declining sales his son blamed on an "avalanche" of bad publicity.

"Ladies and gentlemen, Governor Mecham has struck out," Democratic Sen. Jesus "Chuy" Higuera said as he voted for conviction on the two counts.

"The only defense that we have heard is ignorance of the law," Higuera said. "The citizens of this state will not tolerate this evil insensitivity to the (Arizona) Constitution and the laws of the state."

The vote ended 15 tumultuous months that shook this staunchly Republican state and brought ridicule and criticism from politicians, comedians and the comic strip "Doodlesbury."

On his fifth try for governor, Mecham was elected in 1986 in a three-way race with 40 percent of the vote. He made national headlines seven days after his inauguration by canceling a Martin Luther King holiday for state workers on the grounds it was illegally created by his Democratic predecessor, Bruce Babbitt. He subsequently offended blacks, Jews, women and homosexuals with offhand remarks and official actions.

On Feb. 5, the House impeached Mecham, making the 65-year-old Mrs. Mofford, who had been secretary of state, acting governor.

Mecham's supporters and opponents gathered all day outside the Senate building and listened to the proceedings over the radio. Each group cheered as votes favorable to their side were announced.

Afterward, Mesa resident Millie Pratt said, "I feel betrayed by our Legislature. I had more faith in them."

Barry Gabriel, who carried a sign saying, "Guilty. Guilty. Guilty," said he was "happy and relieved" because "I think he's a menace."

The Senate convicted Mecham of ordering Department of Public Safety Director Ralph Milstead not to cooperate with Corbin's investigation of an alleged death threat by a Mecham confidant against former Mecham aide Donna Carlson. At the time, Ms. Carlson was about to testify before a state grand jury about the $350,000 loan.

Mecham maintained he did not intend to obstruct justice, although he admitted telling Milstead, "The attorney general is out to hang me and I'm not going to help him in any way." The governor also insisted he was not informed of the alleged threat's seriousness.

He was convicted of misusing the $80,000 in protocol money by loaning it to his suburban Glendale auto dealership. The prosecution contended the fund was public money and that the dealership desperately needed the funds to make a payroll.

Mecham testified that he was told he could use the protocol fund for almost anything he wanted. His son, Dennis, the dealership's general manager, testified the dealership was in strong financial shape at the time of the loan. A day after his testimony, he announced it was being sold to avert financial ruin.

FDA Says 'Aging' Creams Must Go

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says it is time for cosmetic companies to stop talking and start changing labels that claim skin creams can retard or reverse aging of the skin.

The federal agency wrote 22 companies on Monday that it will take another look at the labels in 30 days — and then crack down on any that persist in misleading claims.

"We believe that FDA has clearly stated its views regarding the types of claims that can appropriately be made on cosmetic skin care products and the types of claims that make skin products unapproved new drugs," wrote John M. Taylor, associate commissioner for regulatory affairs.

"Accordingly, we do not believe that a detailed review or a prolonged discussion regarding individual product labeling is necessary. We hope that you will make the changes in your labeling that are necessary to bring it into compliance with the act and with FDA's stated views."

The Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act defines cosmetics, which can be sold without pre-approval by the FDA, as products intended to cleanse or to beautify superficially.

In written warnings to the cosmetic industry last year, the agency said that when a product is said to counteract, retard or control the aging process or to rejuvenate, repair or renew the skin, then those statements put the product in the drug category — with all its stringent scientific review requirements. That is so, the letter said, because such claims indicate that a "function of the body, or that the structure of the body, will be affected by the product."

The FDA said then it was "unaware of any substantial scientific evidence that demonstrates the safety and effectiveness" of the so-called anti-aging skin care products.

Implicit in the latest letter was the FDA view that talks started with the companies last spring intended to lead to voluntary changes in labeling claims have gone on long enough.

Some companies have modified their labels since last spring, but the FDA said last November it could not accept the labeling claims continuing to appear on many products.

The latest letter said the agency will examine the labeling and promotions of the creams in 30 days and that a product still in "substantial violation" may be subject to immediate regulatory action. This can include seizure of products on shelves and court injunctions against further distribution.

Use Of Drug Tests Increases As Lawmakers Study Rights

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The chairman of a legislative commission studying drug testing by companies in North Carolina says his panel is divided between the right of businesses to have safe, productive workplaces and the privacy rights of employees.

"We're evenly split on whether to have a law or not," state Rep. Milton Fitch, D-Wilson, told The Charlotte Observer. "It's not a foregone conclusion — but we could do nothing or do something to regulate drug testing on a broad or modified scale."

Fitch introduced a bill last year that would outlaw random drug testing and would require minimum standards for drug-testing laboratories. The measure was referred to the study commission which Fitch co-chairs.

Fitch says he's learned that some drug tests are better than others, that tests do not measure on-the-job impairment and that tests fail to account for all types of drug abuse.

"Marijuana, for example: You can't get a quantum measurement to say the person was under the influence at the time he wet in a bottle," Fitch says. "The experts agree we can tell if you've used drugs, but we can't tell if you're impaired."

Precise numbers are hard to come by, but experts agree drug-testing has soared in the last five years. The Business Roundtable, a business study group, reported a 35 percent increase in 1987 alone in the number of companies that said they were screening prospective employees for drugs.

Charles Jeffress, assistant labor commissioner for the N.C. Department of Labor, says no one knows for sure the extent of workplace drug testing in the state, but says "anywhere from 200 to 900 companies are doing it."

"Three years ago, less than a dozen companies were doing drug testing," Jeffress says.

"In the last five years, there's been a recognition that controls we've had on drug use have failed," says Ted Shults, a Durham lawyer, toxicologist and drug testing consultant. "By and far, the war on drugs has been somewhat lost. Businesses have been adversely impacted by substance abuse, and they're trying to develop methods to minimize the adverse effects."

Companies say they test for drugs to enhance safety and productivity and to hold down health-care costs. And some feel a competitive pressure to screen for drug use.

"For the past two to three years, companies have been gradually adopting pre-employment screening of applicants, partly because they don't want to be left with other people's problems," says Keith McClellan, director of Charlotte's Health Interventions employee assistance program and vice president of the Employee Assistance Society of North America.

"They feel if other companies are screening and they're not, they'll get what's left over."

Six states have comprehensive laws regulating drug testing in the workplace — Connecticut, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, Rhode Island and Vermont.

The U.S. military began drug testing in 1981, but President Reagan hastened the trend in the private workplace when, in 1986, he required federal agencies to submit plans for broad, mandatory testing of urine for up to 1.2 million federal workers in sensitive jobs.

But the Supreme Court in February agreed to decide whether the government's testing is an unreasonable invasion of employees' privacy. That decision will apply only to government workers.

Dukakis Gets Edge In Colorado, Turns To Wisconsin

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

Presidential contenders Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson head into battle in today's Wisconsin primary on the heels of a hard-fought and inconclusive contest in Colorado that seemed to mirror their dramatic duel for the Democratic nomination.

Monday night's Colorado caucuses were a see-saw battle that saw first one and then the other gain the upper hand. When the state Democratic party quit counting early this morning, Dukakis had 46 percent to Jackson's 40 percent, with just under half the precincts reporting.

Dukakis had grabbed an early lead Monday night in the Colorado contest. But Jackson quickly caught up and even passed him when Denver results began coming in. Then Dukakis pulled ahead again.

Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore lagged far behind with 4 percent, and Sen. Paul Simon didn't get enough votes to count.

On the Republican side, Vice President George Bush sailed to a strong lead in Colorado's GOP straw polls.

While voters were calling the shots in Wisconsin today, the candidates scattered to regroup for big-state contests coming up in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio in the next month.

Dukakis sounded upbeat as he awaited the verdict in Wisconsin. "It looks good," he said as he arrived home in Boston Monday night. "We worked hard."

The four Democratic presidential hopefuls campaigned Monday across Wisconsin, with Jackson getting heat from rivals for his contact with Panamanian strongman Manuel Antonio Noriega.

Dukakis joined the criticism of Jackson. But that didn't stop Gore from saying the Massachusetts governor "gives the impression of being scared to death" to take Jackson.

Dukakis, in turn, icily suggested Gore spend more time campaigning for votes and less time criticizing other candidates.

Although Bush has the GOP nomination wrapped up, former television evangelist Pat Robertson still contested Colorado, with its 36 delegates at stake.

Jackson and Dukakis made weekend campaign swings to Colorado trying to rally support for 2-784 precinct caucuses that began the state's delegate-selection process.

Jackson's enthusiastic crowds on Saturday and Sunday were taken as an indication of his strength. But Dukakis had the backing of Colorado Gov. Roy Romer and state Democratic chairman Buie Seawell.

The Democratic front-runners are locked in a close delegate battle nationally, meaning Colorado's 45 national convention delegates were a prize well worth pursuing.

Before Colorado, Dukakis had 671.55 votes and Jackson 665.55. Gore had 381.8 and Simon 170.5. A total of 508.6 were uncommitted. At the Atlanta convention in July, 2,082 votes are needed to win.

Today's Wisconsin primary was the week's big prize.

Not only are at 81 Democratic delegates at stake, but the state offered a chance for each of the candidates to make a crucial point.

Dukakis sought a win in a big Midwestern primary to demonstrate his campaign is back on track after losses in Illinois and Michigan

Jackson looked to demonstrate that he could keep his momentum going, and win a big state with a small black population on the strength of major white support.

Gore made major television buys to try to make a splash before the New York primary on April 19, the do-or-die contest for him. And Simon needed a victory or something close to it to avoid withdrawing from the race later this week.

Monday's campaigning was marked by quarreling among the Democrats about who had said what and who had done what.

Much of the attention focused on Jackson, who made public Noriega's reply to his March 22 letter asking the Panamanian strongman to give up power. Noriega refused and Jackson restated his plea.

"I remain convinced that it is in the best interests of the Panamanian people for Gen. Noriega to leave. Today I reiterate my public moral appeal for him to depart," Jackson said.

Jackson's actions drew criticism inside the campaign and outside.

"I think it's a bad idea for a private citizen to try to inject himself" into a delicate international situation, Dukakis said. But he said he believed Jackson's intentions were good.

That's more than Gore gave Jackson credit for. "I seriously doubt if he would help in Panama," the Tennessee senator said.

And the State Department added its criticism as well.

"In our view proliferation of channels is a tactic that Noriega likes to use to buy time," said department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley.

But Gore didn't make Jackson his only target.

"Michael Dukakis gives the impression of being scared to death" to criticize Jackson and appears "absolutely timid," Gore said.

Dukakis was clearly irritated.

"Sen. Gore ought to start campaigning for the presidency," he retorted, pointing to Gore's lack of success since Super Tuesday.

Two non-candidates said flatly Jackson could not win in the fall, even if he did get the nomination.

"If nominated, I don't think there'd be much chance of winning," said Sen. Sam Nunn, the Georgia Democrat who declined to enter the 1988 race.

And former President Nixon ventured his opinion on the opposition party.

"If he is nominated, it goes without saying he cannot win. But everyone is overplaying the fact that he would be a liability because he is black," Nixon told The Washington Times. "That is simply not true. Jackson would be a liability because his views are radical."

U.S. Households Decline In Size

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — American households have shrunk to their smallest size ever, containing just half as many people as at the start of the Civil War.

The Census Bureau reports that the average household contained 2.64 people as of last July 1, continuing a long-term decline. By comparison, the 1860 census found an average household of 5.28 people.

While the household size has declined, the number of households has continued to climb, topping 90 million for the first time in 1987, the bureau said Monday.

Household size is shrinking because the number of households is increasing faster than the overall population. This is occurring, said bureau population expert Campbell Gibson, because of changes in the country's age structure.

The many Americans born in the post-World War II baby boom are now in their 20s and 30s, when they are most likely to set up households on their own, he said.

The number of households rose from 80.4 million in 1980 to 88.8 million in 1986 and is now past the 90 million mark.

At the same time the average number of persons per household declined from 2.75 in 1985 to 2.65 in 1986 and now to 2.64, Gibson said.

By comparison, the 1970 Census found the average household contained 3.14 people. In 1930 households averaged more than 4 people, and they averaged more than 5 in 1880. The nation's first census in 1790 found an average household size of 5.79 people.

In North Carolina, the average household in 1987 stood at 2.60, compared to 2.78 in 1980.

While the growing number of ever smaller households continues a trend, Gibson pointed out that household growth isn't outpacing population increases as fast as in the 1970s.

The same age factors that are increasing households now also occurred then, Gibson said. But in addition, in the 1970s the proportion of households in each age group was also growing. That has not continued in the 1980s, he said.

"This could be occurring for a number of reasons," Gibson said.

For example, in this decade more young people have chosen to remain home with their parents instead of setting up housekeeping on their own, as many had done in the 1970s. This could be caused by the increasing cost of housing, he said.

Delays in marriage, while young people pursue careers and school, have also been widely reported as a factor, but Gibson cautioned that it is too simplistic to attribute all of the household changes to this.

"There's a whole bunch of things" that affect the rates, he said.

For example, the elderly tend to have high household rates because a fair number are widowed, resulting in many one-person households.

Continued low birth rates in the United States are also a factor. The presence of children increases household size, while populations with a larger share of adults tend to have smaller households.

Asked what the future holds, Gibson said he expects to see households continue to lead population in growth rates over the next few years. "But that should change at some point" as the smaller "baby bust" generation born following the baby boom comes into the household formation ages.

GIs Killed In Crash

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — A U.S. Army helicopter crashed in southern West Germany today, killing the pilot and another soldier on board, officials said.

There were no other casualties in the 9 a.m. crash near Nabern, 25 miles southeast of Stuttgart, said a spokeswoman at the Stuttgart-based Army 7th Corps.

"The helicopter was on a routine support mission. There were no weapons or ammunition on board," said Army spokeswoman Hilda Goodhand.

Stuttgart police said the small Bell helicopter apparently went down after running into tree branches in a heavy fog.

The helicopter crashed in an open area, police said. U.S. military officials immediately cordoned off the site.

Ms. Goodhand said the cause of the crash was under investigation. She said the helicopter was assigned to the 25th Aviation Company at Stuttgart.

The names of the dead were withheld pending notification of relatives. However, Ms. Goodhand said one was the helicopter pilot and the other was a soldier riding as a passenger. West German police initially said the second victim was the co-pilot.

It was the third crash of a NATO military aircraft in less than a week.

A French Mirage jet fighter crashed on March 30 one mile from a nuclear power plant in the southern state of Bavaria, killing the pilot.

One day later, a U.S. Air Force F-16 fighter jet crashed into the southern town of Forst, demolishing three houses and killing a resident and the pilot.

Richard III was crowned King of England in 1483. A brother of Edward IV, Richard was accused of involvement in the deaths of his two nephews in order to gain the throne. His reputation has not been enhanced by theatrical portrayals of the king.

Graham To Visit China

HONG KONG (AP) — America evangelist the Rev. Billy Graham will tour China this month, it was announced today. The 16-day trip will be Graham's first visit to China.

The Christian Tien Dao Publishing House said in a statement issued in this British colony that Graham, a Southern Baptist, would visit Beijing, Nanking, Shanghai and Canton beginning April 13.

Graham also will visit Huaiyan in China's eastern Jiangsu province, the birthplace of his wife, Ruth, who will be accompanying him on the tour, the statement said.

It said North Carolina preacher is scheduled to preach in churches in Beijing and Shanghai.

He will also address a meeting of pastors in Shanghai and meet scholars in Shanghai and at the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences in Beijing.

The statement quoted Graham as saying he was going to China as a "learner."

"It has been my desire to visit the country where my wife was born... I especially want to learn more about the religious situation in China in light of the vast changes that have been taking there," he said.

Special Counsel Planning To Question Mrs. Meese

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese's wife, Ursula, will undergo questioning shortly in the criminal investigation of her husband about her own $40,000-a-year job, say sources familiar with the case.

The office of independent counsel James McKay is trying to determine whether longtime Meese friend E. Robert Wallach in effect helped supplement the Meeses' income by recommending Mrs. Meese for jobs, said sources familiar with the probe, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Mrs. Meese has retained the same Washington law firm representing her husband, said James Rocap, one of Meese's lawyers. She will either make a federal grand jury appearance or be questioned by investigators from McKay's office.

McKay said last week that his investigation of Meese, also encompassing an examination of the circumstances surrounding Mrs. Meese's job, would continue at least until the end of April.

McKay last month subpoenaed records relating to Mrs. Meese's post with the Washington chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society, said a lawyer for the chapter, James Bierbower.

A lawyer for Wallach, George Walker, has told The Washington Post that Wallach had suggested Mrs. Meese for a job with a local radio station owned by the Bender family of Washington.

Mrs. Meese took the position with the MS Society instead. However, Bierbower said the Bender Foundation of Washington, controlled by the same family that owns the radio station, is contributing the $40,000 a year that constitutes Mrs. Meese's salary with the MS group.

Calls to the Bender Foundation seeking its reasons for paying Mrs. Meese's salary were not returned.

Mrs. Meese has been a volunteer for the MS Society since 1981 and for the past two years has been in charge of a program called Operation Job Match, matching MS victims with employers.

Mrs. Meese also was questioned in an earlier independent counsel's investigation of Meese in 1984. In that investigation, independent counsel Jacob Stein probed Meese's failure to include in his financial disclosure statements a $15,000 loan by Edwin Thomas to Mrs. Meese. Thomas later became Meese's assistant counselor at the White House. The independent counsel found no connection between the loan and federal jobs obtained by Thomas, his wife and his son.

In another development Monday, Justice Department sources said Meese will face an ethics investigation by his own department's Office of Professional Responsibility if McKay doesn't seek an indictment. Such an inquiry ultimately could lead to a recommendation to President Reagan that Meese be fired.

Former Assistant Attorney General William Weld's files on the attorney general's dealings with Wallach were moved to OPR last Friday, the sources said.

Material collected by Weld's criminal division last year led to McKay's criminal investigation of Meese.

McKay said Friday he has insufficient evidence to date to warrant seeking an indictment of Meese in connection with his involvement with a $1 billion Iraqi oil pipeline touted by Wallach or his involvement with the regional Bell telephone companies at a time when he held $14,000 in Baby Bell stock. In December, McKay said he didn't have sufficient evidence at that time to warrant seeking an indictment of Meese in connection with his assistance to scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp.

Farmers' Insurance Benefits Stay Low

WASHINGTON (AP) — The providers of all-risk crop insurance last year paid out the lowest amount of benefits per premium dollar since a new program went into effect in 1981, according to the American Association of Crop Insurers.

Farmers carried $6.07 billion worth of "multiple peril" crop insurance in 1987 on a record 62 million acres of production.

E. Eugene Gantz, executive vice president of the association, said Monday that farmers paid $274 million in 1987 premiums and received $335 million in loss payments for the year. Nationally, that meant for each $1 paid in premiums, farmers received $1.22 in indemnities.

The multiple peril crop insurance program includes commercial companies that are reinsured against catastrophic loss by the Federal Crop Insurance Corp., an agency of the Agriculture Department. The FCIC also handles insurance directly through master marketers, who account for about 20 percent of the total.

Up to 30 percent of a farmer's all-risk insurance premium is subsidized by the FCIC.

When the federal subsidies are included, the 1987 premiums totaled $365 million, compared with the benefits of $335 million. Thus, the 1987 loss ratio was 0.92, or 92 cents paid out for each $1 of premium.

Guarding Borders

Women Train As Police

By GEORGE BOEHMER
Associated Press Writer
SWISTTAL-HEIMERZHEIM, West Germany (AP) — Bored with her office job, Michaela Busemann went off to learn how to shoot a machine gun and become part of an elite group of women breaking into an all-male domain — the West German border police.

The police are responsible for guarding the country's borders, including those separating West Germany from the communist East.

They also provide security at federal facilities and airports, run patrol boats along the coast in the North and Baltic seas, arrest drug smugglers, and are deployed to help state police control unruly demonstrators.

Since the federal border police force was founded in 1951, only men were permitted to join. But last year the government permitted enlistment of women.

On Oct. 1, 1987, 31 women chosen from a group of 1,000 applicants began 30 months of training at Swisttal-Heimerzheim, 12 miles west of Bonn.

"I was working in an office and it was boring," Ms. Busemann said in an interview, "so I joined the border police because this is much more interesting."

Ms. Busemann, who is 20 years old, has her sights set on completing the tough 30-month course, which includes handgun and machine gun target practice.

The recruits also regularly train in the martial art of jujitsu, scramble through obstacle courses, and do regular conditioning sports such as swimming and long-distance running.

In addition they have a full classroom schedule, including law courses and other police-related subjects.

Asked how she and the other women were accepted by the men, Ms. Busemann said: "At first there were a few funny remarks, but that ended quickly."

Ms. Busemann is one of 29 women remaining from the 31 that began the training.

"Two of them dropped out because they kept getting homesick," said spokesman Hartmut Ortlepp of Border Police Command Group West in Bonn.

He added that when the border police opened up for women applicants in 1987, "there were 1,000 applicants for the initial 30 slots offered."

"We culled that down and finally started with 31 last October," Ortlepp said.

West Germany's constitution bans women from the regular military services. Ortlepp said authorities at first had some reservations about women becoming part of the 20,000-member border police forces.

"But when the women joined there was a very quick change. The tone of the men has become more respectful, more courteous; it's a change for the better," said Ortlepp.

"The average age of the women is between 20 and 21 and they are more than the male recruits who average between 18 to 19."

Ortlepp added that political opinion would play a role in what assignments the women receive, but those completing the course would be considered qualified to apply for any border police assignment or advanced training.

That could include, he said, joining the GSG-9 anti-terrorist commando squad, the most elite branch of the border police — "but that's a political question."

In October 1977, GSG-9 commandos stormed a Lufthansa airliner hijacked by Arab terrorists to Mogadishu, Somalia. The action rescued 86 hostages aboard and resulted in the capture of one hijacker and the death of two others.

Whatever assignment they get, the women are still enthusiastic about the prospects.

"It's fun, and there are a lot of new things to do and learn," said 20-year-old Heike Hartmann.

A short distance down the forest road, where Ms. Hartmann and the others were taking part in a field exercise, 21-year-old Sybille Jakoby from the Saarland gave another reason for joining the border police.

"I always wanted to do police work, but I couldn't join the Saarland state police because their minimum height for a woman is 1.68 meters (5 feet 6)."

"But the federal border police minimum is 1.65 meters (5 feet 5) and that's exactly what I am."

Double-Ring Vows Exchanged Sunday

Deborah Ann Jackson and John Pope Wade Sr. were united in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. in a double-ring ceremony. The Rev. Patrick Welch conducted the ceremony held at the Cherry Oaks Clubhouse.

The bride is the daughter of Evelyn Boyd of Chocowinity and William J. Jackson of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mamie Wade of Wilson and the late Robert Wade.

Janet Jackson of Chocowinity was honor attendant for her sister-in-law. Flower girls were Stephanie Dawn Smith of Chocowinity, niece of the bride, and Kari Michelle Boyd of Chesapeake, Va., cousin of the bride.

The best man was John Pope Wade II of Greenville, son of the bridegroom. Tony C. Jackson of Chocowinity ushered.

Linda Proctor of Greenville directed the wedding. Jennifer Wade of Greenville, daughter of the bridegroom, presided at the register.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a light mauve teal-length dress accented with fitted sleeves and lace collar. Her bridal hat was trimmed with satin, pearls and a fingertip bow in back. She carried a silk cascade bouquet of roses, stephanotis, lilies, dogwood and pearls.

The honor attendant wore a floral tea-length dress of mauve, beige and blue accented with a corsage of roses. The flower girls wore dresses of pink and white accented with ruffles. Each distributed silk rosettes filled with birdseed.

Lisa Wade of Greenville, daughter of the bridegroom, presided at the gift table.

The mothers and grandmothers were honored with corsages of roses.

A pig picking and reception was held after the ceremony, given by Mr. and Mrs. Billy Ray Boyd of Chocowinity. Cake was cut by Linda Proctor and punch was poured by Lisa Wade.

After a wedding trip to Charleston, S.C., the couple will live in Greenville.

The bride attended Beaufort Community College and the bridegroom attended Martin Community College. Both are employed by Burroughs Wellcome in Greenville.

Diners Want Their Leftovers Bagged Without Much Ado

My husband and I both work downtown and live in the suburbs, so we often eat dinner together downtown after work. We are usually served more than we can eat, so we ask for a "doggie" bag to take home the leftovers.

We tried a new place, and when we asked our waiter if we could take our leftovers home, he came back with a pint-sized carton with a little wire handle — the kind you get when you buy ice cream to carry home. We felt embarrassed putting our leftovers, like so much "garbage," into this carton in plain view of everybody. In other restaurants, they transfer your leftovers into a doggie bag in the kitchen and give it to you at the end of the meal.

Please print this so we can mail it to the guilty restaurateur. Thank you. — DINERS

DEAR DINERS: The "guilty restaurateur" may not feel so guilty after all. Read on for a letter I received the same day yours arrived, and file them both under: "Damned if you do, and damned if you don't."

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are both 75 years old and we go out to eat two or three times a week. We usually order two meals and take home what is left.

Last Sunday we went to a nice place and the food was not cheap. We both ordered prime rib steak. We shared my plate, and my wife ate a small piece of her steak, and asked the waiter to wrap up the remainder to take home.

When we were ready to leave, we asked the waiter for our check and the leftover meat. He came back and told us that the meat had already been thrown out, so I told him to bring us another piece of beef! He returned with a piece of meat, saying he was able to retrieve it before they threw it in the garbage. We looked at the meat, and it wasn't ours. We were sure it wasn't, because it had some rice on it and we didn't order rice! (Evidently he took it out of the garbage can.)

We were outraged, and told him to bring us a new piece of beef — which he did.

From now on, if we have food to take home, we always ask the waiter to bring the container to our table! — RUTH & PAUL BRANDER, DELRAY BEACH, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: You were right on in your response to "Life Must Go On" — the 31-year-old widow whose in-laws thought she should wait a while before starting to date again. She had two children, 7 and 3, and had gone through grief counseling, and after six months she felt ready to get on with her life.

Thanks for saying that no one can presume to make rules that will apply to everyone following the death of a beloved spouse. — BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN THERE: It's only natural for the in-laws of the young widow to think she should wait a while before starting to date again. They are probably afraid that she will remarry and make a new life for herself and they will lose contact with their precious grandchildren.

DEAR ABBY: If you're not too tired of the bee issue, here's a little poem for you:

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 44.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. The final weighted average was 46.16 cents. The market tone for next week's trading is mostly steady to firm and the live supply is mostly adequate for a good demand. Average weights desirable to heavy. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Tuesday was 1,953,000, compared to 1,588,000 last Tuesday.

HENS: Market steady. Supply barely adequate for a good demand. Prices paid per pound day of negotiation generally for slaughter the following week, heavy types, 7 pounds and up, 7 cents at farm with buyer loading.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady to mostly 1 cent lower at mostly 2.46-2.27 in East and mostly 2.37-2.49 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 15 cents higher at mostly 6.58-6.74 in East and mostly 6.59-6.64 in the Piedmont; new crop wheat 2.78-2.88; new crop corn 1.99-2.23; new crop soybeans 6.58-6.78. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady and ranged from 100 to 101 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced in early trading today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 9.78 to 1,990.38 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 12 to 7 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Volume on the Big Board came to 20.22 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Among actively traded issues, Woolworth was up 1% to 55 3/4 after rising 8% in the previous session when Dart Group Corp. said it was interested in acquiring a stake in the retailer.

Lucky Stores, the target of a takeover bid by American Stores, was up 3/4 to 48 3/4. International Business Machines was up 3/4 to 107 3/4.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .49 to 145.66. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .09 at 295.10.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 7.46 to 1,980.60.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by more than 2 to 1 on the NYSE, with 452 up, 1086 down and 420 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 182.24 million shares, against 139.87 million in the previous session.

Judgeship Proposed

But he said the compromise appeared acceptable to most people in the county.

Martin told reporters he was not angry that Jordan convened Monday's meeting without informing the governor. Martin said he did not expect the Robeson situation to affect his re-election battle with Jordan and said he had no qualms about endorsing a solution negotiated by his opponent.

"That would be absurd," Martin said. "I don't think I ought to be playing games with something this important."

Pierce supporters had pressured Martin to call a special legislative session to reopen filing for a judgeship created last year. The judgeship was one of nine established in areas with predominantly black or Indian populations in an effort to increase the number of minority judges.

Pierce was gunned down March 26 in what authorities say was a domestic dispute.

Pierce supporters wanted the Legislature to amend state law to allow another minority candidate to run. Filing for the judgeship closed in February, and state law does not allow a replacement for a candidate who dies more than 30 days after the filing period ends.

But Martin said there was division among legislators and others in Robeson County about whether to have a special legislative session.

Horace Locklear, a Lumbie Indian and minority member of the Robeson County bar, said he thought some local leaders would be unhappy with the solution but would accept it.

mainframe scheduled to be purchased by the county in the coming months.
 Commissioners Monday also named David Lawrence of 2301 Jefferson Drive as an alternate geologist member of the Sediment and Erosion Control Commission and scheduled Board of Equalization and Review meetings for 2 p.m. on May 2, May 16 and June 6.

The board discussed, with County Planner Jeff Ulma, a proposed outdoor advertising sign ordinance. A public hearing on the ordinance is scheduled for 7 p.m. tonight at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St.

Ulma told commissioners that the proposed ordinance would effectively prohibit any billboard on U.S. 264 between Greenville and Farmville. He explained that the ordinance allows placement of billboards only on property that has "frontage and direct access" to a roadway.

Since the four-lane U.S. 264 between Farmville and Greenville is classified a freeway by the transportation department, no direct access is allowed.

In addition to preventing outdoor advertising signs along the U.S. 264 freeway, the ordinance would regulate the placement of billboards along other roadways in the unincorporated areas of the county.

Commissioners also spent more than three hours Monday afternoon interviewing representatives of five firms in an effort to select an architect to do a county facilities master plan.

The board voted last month to have a master plan for county facilities completed before moving ahead with the location, design and construction of a new jail.

Representatives of Hellmuth, Obata and Kassabaum of Washington, D.C. (which associated with Dudley, Shoe and Ellenwood & Associates of Greenville for the project), J.N. Pease Associates of Charlotte, Black and Veatch of Raleigh, Wm. F. Freeman Associates of High Point and Grier, Fripp and Orkan of Charlotte, reviewed their experience in the field of master planning and jail design and construction for the board.

But commissioners postponed action on selecting a firm to do a master plan.

Grier, Fripp & Orkan has done four master plans, 18 prisons and four jails — over 10,000 cells — in North Carolina, while the Freeman firm has done two master plans and one jail and Black and Veatch has four master plans and one prison in the state to its credit.

The Pease firm and Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum have both been involved with planning, design and construction of the N.C. Central Prison project in Raleigh.

Pease has five master plans and two other jail projects in the state to its credit. Although HOK has done no other jails in North Carolina, the firm — one of the largest designers of jail facilities in the world — has 107 jail projects to its credit in other states and nations.

Spending Questioned

Taft, who also said he is concerned about the cost of running a campaign, released figures today showing he spent $61,000 in the 1984 election, with about $24,000 coming from contributors.
 "In my first election cycle, I started running against former Senator Vernon White in July, before he announced his intention not to seek re-election," said Taft.

Manning, Kansas Are Champs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The ball caromed off the glass backboard as time ran out, and it fell, fittingly, into the hands of Danny Manning. They were the hands that built Kansas' first national basketball championship in 33 years.

Kansas beat fifth-ranked Oklahoma 83-79 Monday night in the 50th NCAA final, and the so-called one-man team was the nation's No. 1 team.

When Manning rolled the ball onto the hardwood floor at Kemper Arena, the Jayhawks had won the national title with the most losses of any team in NCAA history. And Coach Larry Brown had turned a team in disarray into team of champions.

The game was the last collegiately for the senior Manning, and some wondered if it would be the last at Kansas for the vagabond coach Brown.

"I'm trying to be part of a national championship team here," Brown said. "I can't talk about that now."

The Jayhawks took control of the game from Oklahoma with about 10 minutes left, slowing the tempo and sending coach Billy Tubbs' run-and-gun Sooners home with only their fourth loss of the season against 35 victories.

Oklahoma was a team that admitted it liked to beat people bad. And this was a bad way to end a super season.

"It's a bitter defeat," Tubbs said.

"We thought we could win, and we didn't. We're still proud."

Kansas, meanwhile, had lost 11, but its 27th victory gave the Jayhawks their first national title since 1952. That's also the last time a Big Eight team won the championship.

"I just wanted to tell all the people who said it couldn't be done: The national champions are No. 1, and how do you like us now?" Manning said as the postgame news conference ended.

Manning scored 31 points, had 18 rebounds and helped Kansas control not only the tempo but also Oklahoma's two big men, Stacey King and Harvey Grant. King had 17 points, five below his average, and Grant 14, seven below his. Manning and Chris Piper held them to four apiece in the second half.

"Like I said yesterday, I knew Danny Manning wanted it bad, and he came out and proved it today," King said.

Like Villanova in 1985 and North Carolina State in 1983, both of which had 10 losses, Kansas had struggled from mediocrity to the top during the course of the season. Brown had lost starters Archie Marshall to injury and Marvin Branch to academics, and the Jayhawks were 12-8 after 20 games.

The responsibility fell to Manning, the 6-foot-10 two-time All-American, who was expected to carry the team. He got them into the NCAA tournament, where they advanced with victories over Xavier, Murray State, Vanderbilt and Kansas State to win the Midwest Regional.

The Jayhawks upset No. 5 Duke 66-59 in the semifinals behind Manning's 25 points and advanced against Oklahoma, which was an eight-point favorite and had twice beaten Kansas during the Big Eight season.

"When you have a fine defensive club and a great player like Danny, you always have a chance," Brown said.

Manning Made Choice To Stay

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A year ago, Kansas All-American Danny Manning had a choice to make. Either he would take the NBA's offer of instant wealth or he would take another year of listening to Larry Brown, the coach he once called "a little man with a big mouth."

Manning chose the mouth instead of the money, and because he did Brown and Kansas are the NCAA champions today.

The 6-foot-10 senior carried the Jayhawks to an 83-79 victory over Oklahoma Monday night in a virtuoso MVP performance that was a microcosm of his four years at Kansas.

His line in the box score tells the story: 31 points, 18 rebounds, five steals, two assists, two blocks.

Any questions?

Well, as a matter of fact, there was one. Twice in the last few minutes, he threw up low-percentage shots that missed badly and kept Oklahoma alive. On the bench, Brown and assistant coach Ed Manning, Danny's dad, cringed.

"We told him during a timeout that's not the kind of shots we want at that time," Coach Manning said. "At that time we wanted to take time off the clock."

"I was excited and maybe I tried to do too much at that point," his son said.

It was the only smudge on an otherwise spotless performance by Manning, who punctuated his night by dropping in four crucial free throws in the final 14 seconds to seal the victory.

What was he thinking as he stepped to the foul line?

"It's over," he said.

And that was before he shot the free throws.

The fact of the matter is it was over, and after Manning converted the shots, he made sure of that by grabbing one last rebound.

"I knew Danny wanted it bad," Oklahoma's Stacey King said. "He came out and proved it."

King and Horace Grant, who worked against Manning underneath, made sure he worked for his points. Grant said Manning had turned the game Kansas' way.

"Whenever they need a big basket, they go to the big man," he said.

There was a second-half stretch of seven straight points that took Kansas from a three-point deficit and thrust the Jayhawks into a lead they would not surrender.

This after he drew a third personal foul 25 seconds into the half. He never got the fourth, though.

"This wasn't a gift," Manning said of Kansas' first national championship since 1952. "We weren't lucky. We prepared for the opportunities

Rose Powers Into Finals

By TOM MORRIS

HOLLYWOOD — Havelock coach Charlie Smith said his biggest concern coming into the game against Greenville Rose was preventing the Rampants from having a big inning, yet that was exactly what did his team in.

Rose, a 4-A school, broke open a 2-2 tie ballgame in the fourth inning with 10 runs and went on to take a 13-2 win over the 3-A Rams of the Coastal Conference in the semi-finals of the Pitt County Easter Baseball Tournament Monday.

"We talked before the game that against a team like Greenville Rose, you have to prevent the big inning," Smith said. "We didn't. Our pitchers started to think about it too much."

Tom Moye opened the fourth for Rose by drawing a walk off Havelock starter Jeffery Sykes, who up until then had given up only one hit.

Jamie Brewington followed with another walk before Wes Jackson reached on an error to load the bases. Jackson had laid down a bunt along the first base line but Sykes mishandled it, allowing him to reach.

Brian Wille brought in Moye with a bloop single and Heath Clark followed with another RBI single, this one down the third base line, to make it 4-2.

That chased Sykes, a righthander, and brought on David Seaton, a lefthander, to face the top of Rose's lineup with no outs and the bases loaded.

Tim Moore, who had batted lefthanded during his previous two at bats, switched to the other side of the plate this time and ripped a grand slam homer to clear the bases and put Rose ahead 8-2.

David Leisten added another run on the next at bat with a solo shot to make it 9-2. Axel Smith followed by reaching on a walk before moving to second on a single by Dave Daniels.

Moye then came up for the second time in the inning and nailed a three-run homer to make it 12-2 and closed out the scoring for the inning.

"They didn't make the play on that bunt and then we got some key hits out of Brian and Heath," Rose coach Ronald Vincent said. "And you know what happened after that. Timmy's home run basically ended it. We'd been waiting for something like that to happen."

"We'd been taking some good cuts at the ball and we had hit the ball hard a couple of times early on."

Brewington, who pitched the win while giving up three hits and striking out five, fanned two batters and got the third to ground out in the fourth to put Rose back at the plate again.

Moore opened the fifth with a single and scored on Leisten's triple to make it 13-2.

Havelock loaded the bases in the fifth as Jimmy Amidan reached on an error and Shane Kensey followed with a double. After one out, Clint Breed drew a walk to load the bases.

But Stephen Gainey followed by hitting into a double play as Wille tossed the ball to Clark to put out Breed at second and Clark then relayed to first to put out Gainey as Rose took advantage of the 10-run rule to end the game after five innings.

"In my four years of coaching, their top of the lineup is the most powerful I have seen," Smith said. "One to five in their lineup have the potential to put it away. But they're solid throughout the lineup."

"We got too far behind in the count. We were trying to be too fine with our pitches."

Rose rapped out 10 hits for the game as Moore, Leisten and Moye had two hits apiece. Both of Moye's hits were homers, the first was a two-run shot in the first that staked the Rampants to an early 2-0 lead.

"I thought Brewington did a good job," Vincent said. "He came through in some tough situations. Our pitching and defense has been solid so far."

Rose, which moves to 9-0 on the year, advances to the finals tonight against D.H. Conley at 8 p.m.

Conley Romps By Kinston, 10-0

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley didn't have its offense in gear early in the game, but thanks to numerous Kinston miscues, it didn't matter.

Conley took advantage of eight errors by Kinston to roll to a 10-0 win in the nightcap game of the Pitt County Easter Baseball Tournament Monday night.

"Early in the ball game, until the fifth inning, we didn't hit the ball," said Conley coach Allan Wilson. "Everything we got, they gave us. It's been like that all year. We haven't hit the ball well early in the game."

Scottie Barnhill opened the bottom of the first by reaching on an error on the shortstop. Brian Bullock followed by reaching on an error by the second baseman which allowed Barnhill to score and stake the Vikings to an early 1-0 lead.

Conley extended its lead to 3-0 in the third when Barnhill opened with a single and Bullock followed by reaching on a throwing error by the third baseman.

After one out, Barnhill scored on a ground out by Sherwood Wilder to make it 2-0. Bullock later scored on a wild pitch to make it 3-0.

Conley added another run in the fourth when William Crandall reached on another error by the third baseman, went to third on an error on the leftfielder and scored on an error on the third baseman to make it 4-0.

"Errors did us in," said Kinston coach Ron Battle. "I don't know what to say other than you expect to lose (sometimes) but you don't expect to get beat this way, not like this. But those kind of things happen."

With a 4-0 lead under its belt, Conley got its bats going in the fifth inning as Wilder opened with a double and went to third on a wild pitch.

McGraw Named CAA Player Of Week

Jay McGraw, a senior outfielder/first baseman from Charlotte, has been selected as the Colonial Athletic Association baseball player of the week.

During the past week, he helped lead the Pirates to five straight victories, including a doubleheader over St. Bonaventure and a three-game sweep over CAA rival William & Mary.

During the five games, he went five for 13 (.384). His five hits included two homers, a triple and two doubles, which drove in seven runs. He also stole three bases and scored nine times. He also had nine walks during the five games.

He is the second CAA player to earn the honor this season. Ironically, last week's winner Dana Allison, earned it against the Pirates.

McGraw is hitting .333 for the season and leads the team in homers with six, is tied for lead in doubles with seven and in triples with two. He also leads the team in total bases with 62.

McGraw is second on the ECU all-time home run, runs batted in and doubles lists.

Winterville Softball Opening Up

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Recreation League is gathering teams for three different softball leagues.

There will be a men's open league, a men's church league and a women's open league. Play will begin May 23. For more information, contact Cindi Brown at 756-8691.

Krzyzewski's Car Stolen In Break-In

DURHAM (AP) — Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski's house was broken into and his car stolen over the weekend while he was coaching the Blue Devils in the NCAA tournament in Kansas City, Mo., authorities said.

A car stolen from the Krzyzewski house was used in a break-in Friday night, according to Lt. W.L. Lawrence of the Durham County Sheriff's Department.

Deputies were called about 11:30 p.m. Friday by someone who reported a break-in in northeastern Durham County. The person reportedly got in his pickup truck and chased the car for several miles to a dead end, where the man jumped out of the car and fled into the woods, police said.

Deputies then ran a check on the car, a 1987 Chevrolet Celebrity, and discovered that it belonged to Krzyzewski.

Krzyzewski's house was checked, Lawrence said, and it was discovered that a back door had been kicked open and the keys to the Chevrolet were missing.

Deputies secured Krzyzewski's house, but decided not to tell the coach about the break-in until after Saturday's Final Four semifinal game, which Duke lost to Kansas 66-59.

No one has been arrested in the case, police said.

Jordan Named Player Of The Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Chicago's Michael Jordan, who scored a season-high 59 points against Detroit Sunday, has been named NBA Player of the Week for the period ending Sunday.

The league also announced Monday that San Antonio's Greg Anderson, the final selection in the first round of the 1987 NBA draft, was named Rookie of the Month for March.

Jordan, a former University of North Carolina standout, averaged 39.8 points, 6.3 rebounds, 5.1 assists and 3.3 steals per game last week as the Bulls won three of four road contests. He also shot .576 from the field and .880 from the foul line.

Jordan leads the league in scoring with a 34.7 average and in steals with a 3.14 average.

In winning the Player of the Week award, he beat out Cleveland's Mark Price, New York's Patrick Ewing, Portland's Kevin Duckworth, Utah's John Stockton and Thurl Bailey, Indiana's Wayman Tisdale, Golden State's Chris Mullin, San Antonio's Jon Sundvold and the Los Angeles Lakers' Byron Scott.

Anderson, playing all three frontcourt positions for the Spurs, averaged 14.6 points, 8.8 rebounds and 2.0 blocks in 17 games last month. He led San Antonio in rebounding nine times and in blocks 10 times.

Among the players he beat for the monthly honor were the Los Angeles Clippers' Ken Norman, Phoenix's Armon Gilliam and New York's Mark Jackson.

UNCC Women's Cage Coach Resigns

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina-Charlotte women's basketball coach Cindy Connelley has resigned, school officials said Monday.

"I resigned today as women's basketball coach to pursue other opportunities, possibly within basketball and/or within another athletic realm," Connelley said in a written statement.

Connelley, 33, has been an NCAA Division I head coach for the past five years, and produced a four-year record of 56-51 as coach of the 49ers. Her best record of 18-9 came during the 1986-87 season.

Connelley also served as head coach of Bucknell University in 1983-84, and was an assistant coach under N.C.-Charlotte Coach Ann Payne in 1981-82.

Kansas Fans Celebrate In Streets

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Dancing in the streets and climbing everything from trees to light poles, thousands of basketball fans turned the University of Kansas campus into a party zone Monday night after the Jayhawks won the national championship.

Firecrackers exploded, music blared and chants of "Rock, chalk, Jayhawk, K-U!" echoed across the campus following Kansas' 83-79 victory over fourth-ranked Oklahoma in the finals of the NCAA Tournament.

University police estimated between 12,000 and 17,000 people converged on the campus after the game.

"It's awesome," Elizabeth Woodworth, a junior from St. Louis, said of the impromptu celebration. "I can't believe the people keep coming and coming."

Officials canceled classes today in honor of the team, which was set to return home by afternoon. A parade through downtown Lawrence was planned by officials for April 13.

Jayhawk Boulevard, the main street on the KU campus, was closed by police after revelers began pouring into the area within minutes of the victory. Residents reported hearing car horns throughout the city.

Authorities reported that many of those estimated 17,000 jamming the campus, later moved into the downtown area around 1 a.m. today. Police said cars were bumper to bumper on Massachusetts and Tennessee streets, the two main streets. And officers said there were a few arrests because of incidents of unruliness attributed to intoxication.

"I've got two sisters in Oklahoma that will never hear the end of this," said KU junior Tim Downs of Oshkosh, Wis. "They called me up all the time and told me we couldn't win. It's just a great feeling to think we were 12-8 at one time and now we're national champions."

"All-American Danny Manning led Kansas with 31 points to close out his college career and help avenge two earlier losses to the Sooners, who were favored to win."

"It was the best script Danny Manning could have ever written," said Don Robertson, a Kansas senior from Kansas City, Kan. "They were underdogs, they pulled together, decided they wanted to win and won it all."

"What does it mean to beat Oklahoma?" asked KU senior Scott Vickers of Kansas City, Kan. "It means they're No. 2."

In nearby Kansas City, Mo., police closed off the trendy Westport area when thousands of patrons of area bars and clubs streamed into streets. The celebration in Lawrence, meanwhile, continued well after midnight.

"We congratulate Coach (Larry) Brown and his basketball squad," Judith A. Ramaley, executive vice chancellor for the Lawrence campus, said in announcing the cancellation of classes. "We are delighted with their success and we appreciate the fine way they have represented the University of Kansas."

"They have demonstrated courage and commitment in overcoming the adversities they have faced this season. We all can learn something from their example."

the game. I wanted to keep the game in the 70s, if I could."

Manning picked up his third foul 25 seconds into the second half, but he never got his fourth.

Oklahoma took a 65-60 lead, its biggest of the game, on eight straight points, capped by King's layup with 12:13 to play. The Jayhawks got two back on a jumper by Piper, and Manning converted a three-point play with 11:13 to play, tying the score 65-65.

Mookie Blaylock pulled Oklahoma ahead 68-65 with a 3-pointer with 11 minutes left, and that's when Kansas finally went into the slowdown. The Jayhawks scored 12 of the game's next 15 points, six by Manning, to take a 77-71 lead with 3:05 to play.

"We never really had firm control of this game," Tubbs said. "I don't think either team had control until the last three minutes. That's when they tucked it away."

After Manning made a pair of free throws, giving Kansas an 81-77 lead, Ricky Grace drove the length of the court to pull Oklahoma within 81-79 with seven seconds left.

Manning was fouled by Grant with five seconds left, and he made both free throws to put the Jayhawks up by four. Grace missed a long shot off the glass as the game ended, the rebound falling into Manning's hands.

Tubbs said he supposed that Kansas' slowdown had an effect, "but we can play at that speed. I never sit on the bench worrying that the game is too slow. It was just the nature of this game that it was going to come down to the very end."

Neither King nor Grant was able to get the ball inside consistently in the second half.

"Kansas did a good job of making it look deceptively like the guys in the middle were open, then they cut in front and knock the ball away or steal it," Grace said.

While Oklahoma's press helped force 23 Kansas turnovers, the Jayhawks shot 63.6 percent for the game, 71 percent in the first half. The Sooners came out of the press early in the second half before returning to it later.

"They did a pretty good job against the press in the first half," Tubbs said. "They got a lot of good shots on it. When we came out of the press, that's actually when we got our lead. And then we went back to it and lost the lead."

Dave Sieger and Mookie Blaylock helped keep Oklahoma alive in the first half. Sieger had six of his seven 3-pointers in the first half, and Blaylock had four of his seven steals.

Pritchard handled the ball against the press most of the time in the first half and made four turnovers. He wound up the game with just five, however.

"The biggest concern I had," Brown said, "was utilizing the clock and getting our big people to handle the ball. Their guards are so great, I felt their big people would be less able to handle Manning and Piper."

"I just wanted our kids to know that if we could get them into the last five minutes, we can defend, and with Danny there, we had a chance. It was wishful thinking, but it turned out right."

Conley-Rose Game Is A Unique Matchup

The baseball teams from D.H. Conley and J.H. Rose enjoy a rare opportunity tonight when they meet in the finals of the Pitt County Easter Baseball Tournament.

They get to play a game for fun. It will have no real bearing on whether or not each team gets to go to the playoffs, nor will it affect their conference standings.

The two schools, which are less than 10 miles apart, don't schedule each other during the regular season but invariably meet in the finals of this tournament. And that's good because both the 4-A Rampants and the 3-A Vikings are arguably among the best teams in the East in their respective classifications.

"It's just good for this area," said Conley coach Allan Wilson. "I think there will be a good crowd. They probably want to beat us as bad as we want to beat them. It's sort of bragging rights."

Last year, the two played a tight ball game with Rose taking a 6-4 win as the Rampants broke a 4-4 tie with two runs in the eighth inning.

"As (Rampant catcher) Axel (Smith) says, it's a talking game for all year," said Rose coach Ronald Vincent. "It's bragging rights. For me, it's a fun game. You get a chance to play in a tight situation and nothing (record-wise) is at stake. It's just a game."

"It's going to be the game everybody wants to see. I think it will be a good ball game, a fine ball game. I really think Conley has one of the better teams in the state."

And this time, just like last year, the two teams will be showcasing their aces — Bronswell Patrick for the Vikings and Tom Moyer for the Rampants.

"Both of them are fine pitchers, probably two of the finest in the East," Wilson said. "I feel fortunate to have had Bronswell and I'm sure Rose feels fortunate to have had Tom."

Moyer and Patrick are seniors and, like a number of players on the two squads, were teammates last summer on Pitt County's American Legion team that advanced to the eastern finals before bowing to Hamlet.

Kinston coach Ron Battle knows both teams fairly well. His Vikings fell to Conley, 10-0, in the semifinals of the tournament. Kinston also matches up with Rose twice a year during Big East Conference play.

"It's a big rivalry-type game," he said. "That in itself is going to make the game close. Pitching is also going to keep both teams in the game. They are both good, experienced pitchers."

And both teams are on a roll. Conley is 6-2 while Rose is 9-0. Before Conley rolled by Kinston, Rose routed Havelock 13-2 while hitting three home runs, including two during a 10-run fourth inning that keyed the victory.

"It could be a long night for us the way Rose can hit the ball," Wilson said. "(The question is) can we stop them from scoring and can we score ourselves? There is not an easy out in their lineup. Last year, we went eight innings with them and I don't think there is any doubt that they had more talent."

Game time is 8 p.m. at Conley.

scored Wilder. Robbie Nichols then singled before Travis Clemons came up and brought in Vines with a base hit to make it 6-0.

Crandall followed by scoring Nichols with a single. Gray Mills reached on a bunt before Barnhill came up and laced a double that scored Clemons and Crandall.

Mills, though, was called out for not stepping on home plate. Wilder then came up for the second time and singled in Barnhill to complete the scoring for the inning and put Conley ahead 10-0.

Freshman Hal Conger then put Kinston down in order on three straight strikeouts to end the game after five innings with the 10-run rule employed by the tournament.

"It was our first time under the lights," Battle said. "I think that had a lot to do with it, but I just might be making excuses."

Conger went the distance for the win, giving up only two hits while striking out five.

"I thought as the game progressed he settled down," Wilson said. "I don't know what happened. He's young but he's been in a lot of key situations. He's loose and he's competitive out there."

Barnhill, Wilder and Nichols had two hits apiece for the Vikings, who move to 6-2 on the year.

And while Conley collected eight hits on the game, the Kinston errors were the key, according to Wilson.

"I've never seen Kinston make so many mistakes," he said. "It helped us because we had a young pitcher and he had something to work with."

JAMESVILLE — Washington and Williamston won their way into the championship game of the Jamesville Easter Baseball Tournament Monday. Washington downed Plymouth, 1-0, while Williamston took a 7-2 win over Roanoke.

In the consolation bracket, Jamesville and Columbia advanced to the finals. Jamesville beat Bath, 6-3, while Columbia romped over Bear Grass, 14-4.

Tonight at 5 p.m., Jamesville and Columbia meet for the consolation game, while Williamston and Washington collide at 7:30 p.m.

Jamesville took the lead in its game in the fourth inning scoring three times, but Bath rallied for three of its own in the top of the fifth.

Jamesville then put the game away with three runs in the sixth. Craig Dickerson walked and Kelby Moore got a single. Successive walks to Kent Dickerson, Michael Cox, David Bell and Jeff Phelps brought in the three runs.

Moore led the Jamesville hitting with two while Brian Tuten, Chris Edwards and Leslie Everette each had two for Bath.

Jamesville is now 4-3.

The lone run in the Washington-Plymouth game came over in the second inning. Donnell Albritton led off for Washington with a single and Tripp Leggett also got a hit, moving Albritton to third. He scored when Rod Gorham reached on an error.

Danny Radwick and Eric Riddick each had two hits for Plymouth, while no one had more than one hit for the Pam Pack.

Roanoke scored first in the final game of the evening, pushing over a run in the bottom of the second. Jeff Nicholson singled and stole second. He scored when Jesse Carlyle reached on an error.

Williamston scored enough to win in the fourth, pushing over four runs. Guy Spruill singled and J.D. Ambrose walked. Toby Gardner was safe on an error which allowed Spruill to score. Mark Raynor also reached on an error, scoring Ambrose. Tommy Taylor singled in Gardner and Raynor scored the fourth run on a sacrifice fly by Tyrone Rodgers.

Williamston added two in the fifth and one in the sixth, while Roanoke scored its other run in the seventh.

Spruill led Williamston with two hits, one of them a triple, while no one had more than one hit for Roanoke.

No details were available on the Columbia-Bear Grass game, which was called after five innings of play.

Bell's Three Homers Key Blue Jays

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Some things never change — Toronto's George Bell still is hitting home runs and Boston's bullpen still is giving them up.

Bell, Toronto's MVP and unhappy designated hitter, became the first player in baseball history to hit three home runs on opening day when he powered the Blue Jays to a 5-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals on Monday.

How about a big smile, George. "I've got too many things on my mind to be happy," said Bell, who encored last year's 47-homer season with a solo shot in the second inning, a two-run homer that put Toronto ahead 3-2 in the fourth and a bases-empty homer in the eighth, all off Bret Saberhagen.

Things were supposed to be different in Boston, where the Red Sox tired of watching Wes Gardner and Calvin Schiraldi give up 32 home runs in 173 innings a year ago. They acquired fireballing Lee Smith, one of baseball's top relievers, from the Chicago Cubs.

Smith's 36 saves last year were 20 more than the entire Boston bullpen. But after allowing only run and four hits in 13 exhibition outings, he surrendered a two-out, two-run homer to Detroit's Alan Trammell in the top of the 10th inning Monday and the Tigers beat the Red Sox 5-3.

"I've never faced Alan Trammell in my life, but that had nothing to do with it," Smith said. "It's a situation at 2-1 where you've got to throw strikes. It's just one pitch, one game, and he hit a good pitch. I didn't hang anything.

"I was trying to throw a strike and Alan Trammell hit it. I thought it was a good pitch, down low where I wanted it. I'm not the type of guy to take this home with me. If I lose a game, I'm not going to jump off a bridge. Hopefully, the fans won't judge me by this outing."

In other American League openers, Oakland downed Seattle 4-1, Milwaukee crushed Baltimore 12-0, Chicago beat California 8-5 and Texas edged Cleveland 4-3. Minnesota and New York were not scheduled.

Blue Jays 5, Royals 3
Bell, who was fined $1,000 when he balked at DHing during an exhibition game, reached a temporary truce with Manager Jimmy Williams shortly before opening day and agreed to move from left field. But he wasn't happy about it.

"A lot of people have been hounding me, but it doesn't bother me because I just have to go out and play my game," he said.

Bell referred questions concerning his DH role to his agent and Williams said, "I'm not here to discuss the designated hitter. I'm here to talk about the ballplayer. It's amazing. He's got to be happy, I know that. He's a pure hitter and he hit them off a good pitcher."

Jimmy Key, the AL's ERA leader in 1987, gave up a two-run homer to George Brett in the first inning but didn't allow another run in his six innings. Saberhagen gave up seven hits and five runs, three earned, in eight innings.

"That's one record I don't care to look back on," Saberhagen said of Bell's three homers. "The situation never came up where I could pitch around him. He got the best of me today, but maybe it will be different next time."

Tigers 5, Red Sox 3
Trammell's two-run homer — both runs were unearned because of an error by Boston shortstop Spike Owen — decided a game that began as a pitching duel between Roger Clemens, Boston's two-time Cy Young Award winner, and Detroit's Jack Morris. A crowd of 34,781 attended at Fenway Park.

Both pitchers went nine innings, with Clemens striking out 11 and Morris fanning nine. Clemens gave up six hits, including Matt Nokes' game-tying homer in the sixth inning, and also was called for three balks.

"I guess I'm a little lucky," Trammell said after his game-winning homer. "I had never seen him (Smith) before, and I hit a home run off him. I was geared up to hit a fastball because he was behind (in the count) and I know what his best pitch is. The next time out he's going to pitch even harder. I probably got him mad today."

Athletics 4, Mariners 1
Dave Stewart allowed two hits in 8 1-3 innings — a single on the first pitch of the game and a one-out single in the ninth — and Dave Henderson and Jose Canseco homered.

Mike Kingery singled cleanly to left field to open the game and scored on Stewart's two-out, bases-loaded balk. But after the first inning, the Oakland right-hander, a 20-game winner last year, allowed only one baserunner, on a walk, until the ninth. He had retired 18 consecutive batters when Mickey Brantley's one-hopper caromed off his glove for an infield hit.

Rick Honeycutt and Dennis Eckersley each got one out in the ninth before a sellout crowd of 45,333 in Oakland.

Henderson homered off Seattle ace Mark Langston in the second inning. Henderson snapped a 1-1 tie with a run-scoring double in the sixth after Dave Parker got his first AL hit, a two-out single, and took second on Langston's wild pitch. Don Baylor delivered an RBI single after Henderson's double and Canseco homered in the eighth.

Brewers 12, Orioles 0
Teddy Higuera pitched three-hit ball for seven innings and Dale Sveum's two-run homer highlighted a 16-hit barrage as Milwaukee handed the Orioles their worst opening-day loss before 52,395, the largest regular-season crowd in Baltimore history.

Higuera struck out seven, walked one and allowed only one runner past first base. Loser Mike Boddicker gave up four runs in 5 1-3 innings and left with a slightly sprained ankle.

Rob Deer hit two RBI doubles, Ernest Riles had three hits and Paul Molitor stole three bases, including home. Sveum's homer off rookie Oswaldo Perez came during a six-run eighth inning.

White Sox 8, Angels 5
Kenny Williams homered, doubled and drove in three runs before a crowd of 35,899 in Chicago. Williams, whose homer capped a three-run fifth inning, doubled to key a five-run seventh that erased a 4-3 California lead and spoiled the managerial debut of Cookie Rojas, who took over last month when Gene Mauch stepped down.

Williams, who has switched from center field to third base, has a sore ankle and said that "if the game was yesterday (Sunday), I couldn't have played."

Rangers 4, Indians 3
Pete O'Brien hit his second home run of the game to break a tie in the bottom of the eighth inning. O'Brien, who hit a second-inning homer off Tom Candiotti, got his game-winner off Chris Codiroli before 37,613 in Arlington, Texas.

O'Brien's homers enabled Charlie Hough to beat Cleveland for the 13th consecutive time, with ninth-inning help from Mitch Williams. Hough is 16-4 lifetime against the Indians and hasn't lost to them since April 3, 1984.

The veteran knuckleballer allowed five hits, including home runs by Willie Upshaw, Julio Franco and Cory Snyder.

Strawberry, Mets Use Homers To Take 10-6 Win Over Expos

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

A season after the Year of the Home Run, Darryl Strawberry and the New York Mets are making this the Year of the Home Run II.

Strawberry and Kevin McReynolds hit two home runs each as the Mets set a club record with six homers — the most ever by any team on opening day — and beat the Montreal Expos 10-6 Monday.

If this is the time pitchers are supposed to be ahead of hitters, no one told the batters in Montreal. They got 28 hits off eight pitchers, obviously not helped by the higher strike zone.

"Both teams got their hits today," Expos Manager Buck Rodgers said. "The difference was they added the long ball to theirs."

National League pitchers also struggled with balks on opening day. Cincinnati's Mario Soto and St. Louis' Joe Magrane each were called for two balks and Dwight Gooden of the Mets and Dennis Martinez were cited once apiece as umpires began enforcing tighter balk rules.

In other openers, Cincinnati beat St. Louis 5-4 in 12 innings and San Francisco defeated Los Angeles. Today, everyone else opens as Pittsburgh is at Philadelphia, Chicago is in Atlanta and San Diego visits Houston.

Mets 10, Expos 6

Strawberry, who created controversy in spring training by criticizing teammates and manager Davey Johnson, caused a commotion by homering in his first at-bat, the third season he's done that. In the seventh inning, he hit a 500-foot drive off the Olympic Stadium roof, giving him four opening-day homers.

"I've been looking forward to the challenge of getting on with my career this year and showing people what I can do," said Strawberry, who went 4-for-4.

Bulked-up Len Dykstra and rookie Kevin Elster also homered for the Mets, who broke the record of five homers set by the New York Yankees against the Philadelphia Athletics on April 12, 1932, and tied four times since.

Hubie Brooks homered for Montreal as the clubs tied the record for opening day homers by both teams last accomplished by Milwaukee and Boston in 1980. It was the first seven-homer opener in National League history.

Dykstra's three-run homer broke a 4-4 tie in the sixth. Strawberry and McReynolds, who had four hits and drove in three runs, got consecutive homers in the seventh against Randy St. Claire.

Brooks homered and tripled for the Expos, who had 15 hits.

Dwight Gooden, who missed opening day last season while undergoing cocaine rehabilitation, gave up a career-high 11 hits and four runs in five innings for the victory.

"That was not a Mets victory, but I'll take it," Gooden said. Loser Dennis Martinez allowed seven runs on nine hits in six innings.

Giants 5, Dodgers 1

Dave Dravecky pitched a three-hitter and newcomer Brett Butler had three hits as San Francisco improved to 3-0 in opening days under manager Roger Craig.

The NL West champions took advantage of Los Angeles' sloppy fielding and beat Fernando Valenzuela before a crowd of 48,484 at Dodger Stadium.

Dravecky gave up a home run to Steve Sax on his first pitch but did not allow another hit until Sax singled in the sixth. Dravecky walked one and struck out six.

Butler, signed as a free agent during the winter, hit a two-run triple in the fourth for a 4-1 lead. Butler approached Los Angeles about a contract after leaving Cleveland and becoming a free agent, but was rejected. He vowed to get the Dodgers on opening day and went 3-for-5, but also was picked off and caught stealing.

Throwing errors by Valenzuela and center fielder John Shelby helped the Giants score twice in the third. A late throw by Valenzuela keyed a three-run fourth.

Kirk Gibson, Alfredo Griffin and Mike Davis, acquired by the Dodgers to help punch up the offense, were a combined 0-for-11.

Reds 5, Cardinals 4
Kal Daniels singled home Jeff Treadway with two outs in the bottom of the 12th as Cincinnati won its fifth straight opener.

Daniels, who grounded out in his first two at-bats, also hit a solo homer in the sixth inning before his winning single. A crowd of 55,348 fans, the largest regular-season attendance in Riverfront Stadium's 18-year history, saw the Reds win.

Treadway, a rookie, opened the 12th with a walk from Bob Forsch, the sixth of seven Cardinals pitchers. Treadway moved to third on a sacrifice and a wild pitch before Daniels singled against Larry McWilliams.

Aggies Plan To Act Quick To Answer NCAA Charges

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M plans to move quickly to answer NCAA allegations of 31 rules violations and 7 procedural infractions, Coach Jackie Sherrill says.

"We've gone through the process before," Sherrill said Monday after releasing a letter from the NCAA outlining its charges. "We have an outside firm that will go out and interview people."

Sherrill said the school has until the end of June to prepare its answer to the charges but the school would not take that long to respond.

No academic violations were cited in the 38-point letter.

Names of players and coaches also were withheld.

Investigators concluded that the nature of the violations "demonstrate a lack of appropriate institutional control and monitoring in the administration of the institution's intercollegiate football program." Sherrill said the procedural violations outlined by the NCAA were not major problems.

"We take them all seriously but there are questions where you may not have followed procedures," Sherrill said. "Most of them (probes of other schools) have that part in there."

Sherrill said the NCAA did not want the allegations revealed but that A&M insisted on making them public.

"They asked us not to release it but because of the circumstances and how long it's been going on and because of the media process, we had to do it," Sherrill said.

The NCAA cited an unnamed coach who acted unethically and showed a "knowing and willful effort" to operate the football program contrary to NCAA requirements.

It also said that during interviews with NCAA enforcement officials on June 12, 1985, and Dec. 16, 1987, that coach gave false and misleading information about his involvement in and knowledge of an alleged violation.

"We'd like to thank the NCAA for expediting the processing of the official inquiry so that we can put this matter behind us. It's been hanging over our heads for a long time," A&M President Frank Vandiver said.

"I am pleased to note that no academic allegations are involved."

News of the accusations became public as the Aggies football team went through a spring practice.

"Myself, it will be easy to put it in the back of my mind," senior fullback Matt Gurley said. "If we got put on probation, it would be on the downside."

"But you can't look at it like that because you have to think about playing next year."

Texas A&M released an 850-page report last year that told of players selling complimentary tickets in violation of NCAA rules.

The report, released after numerous open records-law requests and suits, stemmed from a probe that began in 1985 after media reports alleged Dallas booster Rod Dockery paid then-A&M quarterback Kevin Murray $3,550 in 1983-84 for cleaning printing presses.

The in-house A&M report, however, did not mention Dockery or Murray.

Two of Dockery's former employees told the NCAA that Murray — who declined to play last season in his final year of eligibility — never performed the work for which he was paid. Such an activity could be a violation of NCAA rules.

Although large parts of the in-house report were blanked out at Attorney General Jim Mattox's direction, it included information that former assistant coach Jess Stiles said he loaned $60 to someone and received $50 in return.

The report said the ticket-selling violations mainly involved former scholarship football players in violation of NCAA, SWC and university ticket policy rules.

But the report said it found no evidence "of a pattern of conscious or willful violation of NCAA or SWC rules and regulations by either present or former Texas A&M University staff or alumni."

The internal inquiry was handled by two former Aggies — Arno W. Krebs Jr. and Otway B. Denny Jr. Both were members of the Houston law firm of Fulbright and Jaworski.

Of the nine SWC schools, only Arkansas, Rice and Baylor have not been subject to football investigations.

Houston is awaiting findings on alleged violations of extra-benefits rules. Its own investigation into the Cougars football program resulted in the barring of a booster from contact with players.

At Southern Methodist, the football program was suspended for all of last season under the NCAA "death penalty" rule for repeated recruiting violations.

SMU also voluntarily has suspended its 1988 season after the NCAA reduced its schedule to seven away games. Football scholarships have been trimmed to 15 per year through 1990.

At Texas, a two-year NCAA probation reduced from 25 to 20 the number of scholarships for the 1988-89 school year. Recruiting visits were trimmed from 95 to 75.

Texas Christian is in the midst of a three-year probation for football violations. TCU was banned from bowl appearances in 1986, had scholarships restricted in 1987-88 and forfeited some $343,000 in television revenue from the 1983-84 season.

Texas Tech served a one-year probation with a reduction of three scholarships.

Manning Made Choice...

and capitalized on all of them to get this far.

Injuries and academic problems stripped Kansas' starting lineup during the regular season and left Manning working with a group of replacement parts. It was like surrounding a diamond with costume jewelry.

"If I had left after last year and seen all that happened, I would have felt terrible about walking out," Manning said.

His father said that last year's edition of this All-American still wasn't a finished product. "I knew he was not ready to step out," the coach said. "There was plenty of time to do that."

So Manning stayed in on Monday night, he displayed the finished product. His father glowed over it.

"I'm proud the way he played, the way he's grown up and learned to be a leader," he said. "He's ready to play when the ball is thrown up and that's very important."

"A year ago, he was not strong enough. I didn't think his head was into it. It was not time to go. He had a lot to still work on. This year was a chance to do that."

It also was a chance to redeem one of the few bad moments of his Kansas career. Two years ago, when the Jayhawks reached the Final Four, they lost in the semifinals against Duke as Manning scored just four points and fouled out after playing only 23 minutes.

This year, against Duke in the semifinals again, Manning was a different player, scoring 25 points, grabbing 10 rebounds and blocking six shots.

Umpires Follow Through On Calling More Balks

By The Associated Press

Umpires said during spring training that there would be a great increase in the number of balks this season and on opening day that was. Eleven balks were called in openers Monday as umpires began enforcing tighter balk rules, a pace that would lead to 2,574 balks this season, more than seven times the record set last year.

Three balks were called on Roger Clemens, two each on Mario Soto and Joe Magrane.

Last year, just one balk was called in eight games on opening day.

"They told us they were going to call it," said Detroit's Jack Morris, who started against Clemens in Boston. "They could have called 10 more on Roger today. I don't mean that as a knock on him, but he's going to have to adjust."

"They called it five times on me this spring and I adjusted. If I can adjust, he can, too."

Dwight Gooden and Dennis Martinez were caught once apiece. Monday night, Cleveland knuckleballer Tom Candiotti was called for a balk and Oakland's Dave Stewart got nabbed, too.

A record 219 balks were called in the National League last season and a record 137 in the American League.

This year, umpires were told to crack down even more and make sure pitchers come to a full stop in their set position. Umpires are also checking whether pitchers move their feet when they set.

The balk rule clarifications are under a one-year experiment. The players' union and management will review the results after the season ends.

Many more balks were called in spring training this season, leading to several arguments.

In one spring game, nine balks were called on Charlie Hough of Texas — including seven in one inning. Hough pitched against the Indians Monday night and did not commit any balks.

Tim Matheson Stars In ABC TV Comedy Debuting Wednesday

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tim Matheson hopes his new ABC comedy, "Just in Time," will disprove the network belief that once a couple gets together, the relationship is no longer interesting.

"Just in Time" brings Matheson and co-star Patricia Kalember together not only in a personal relationship but in a professional relationship that often has them at swords' point.

"They think the steam goes out of the relationship once they get together," said Matheson, whose romantic comedy — he's co-executive producer with Fred Barron — premieres Wednesday.

There's an element of truth in that network belief.

When Diane Chambers and Sam Malone got together on NBC's "Cheers," the producers had to keep pulling them apart to keep the story going. ABC's "Moonlighting" has suffered since David and Maddie went to bed, although the show's problems are more complicated than that.

"Fred Barron, who had worked on 'Kate & Allie,' created the show and he wanted to set up a contemporary relationship," said Matheson. "Fred thinks that things don't start to get interesting until the couple gets together. Having been married 2½ years, I can say that's certainly so."

The show is set in a Los Angeles magazine publishing company.

"I play a hot shot Chicago editor who's brought in to take what's basically a conservative, staid monthly and turn it into a hip, contemporary weekly," Matheson said.

"Patricia's the star columnist and their professional relationship soon evolves into a romantic liaison. It's difficult because we work together. And she has a long-distance relationship. She's playing it safe, and he's just come out of a divorce and tends to be a little more reckless."

The relationship between the two will change in the course of the series' spring run. "In the beginning, she's resistant and has a million reasons why they shouldn't," he said. "He says let's go for it."

Matheson is best-known to movie audiences from his role as a womanizing fraternity brother in the hit movie "National Lampoon's Animal House." He later starred in "A Little Sex."

Matheson has a long line of TV credits dating back to 1961 when he was a child and starred in "Window on Main Street," with Robert Young. He did guest shots on "Leave It to Beaver" and was a regular on "The Virginian," "Bonanza," "The Quest" and "Tucker's Witch."

"A series is so grueling," he said, "especially an hour show. A half-hour show's much better. We rehearse one day and then shoot it one-camera with no laugh track. It's not an audience show, because when you do that you need two laughs a page. With that kind of structure you can't deal with the emotions or any depth of character."

"We let the humor come out of the situations, rather than do a set-up, then a joke, then another set-up."

Matheson has also begun producing movies. He recently went to Australia to check out movie locations for "Blind Fury," an action-adventure that he will produce but not appear in. It's based on a series of films from Japan called "Zatoichi" — "the blind one."

"As an actor you get a creative catharsis," Matheson said. "You prepare, then you do it and leave it behind. As a producer you must have some creative satisfaction.

"You're juggling balls. It's problem-solving and people-matching. It's getting to the point where I now trust my first instinct. I've found from experience if I don't like somebody going in, it's going to be a problem."

Matheson and his wife, former ballerina Megan Murphy, recently became parents for the second time. Their new daughter is Emma. The have another daughter, Mollie.

Producer Buys War Insurance During Movie Filming In Israel

By MASHA HAMILTON
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — When movie stars Mariel Hemingway and Ben Cross were filming in the occupied West Bank, they checked to make sure sounds of explosions were coming from the set, not from battling Arabs and Israelis.

Israeli-born producer Yoram Ben-Ami bought war insurance for $10,000 from the Israeli government and hired extra guards to protect the actors and crew.

The insurance means that the movie-makers are covered for up to $2 million if production on their television movie is affected by Arab-Israeli strife.

The 4-month-old Palestinian uprising interfered in another way: several Arab villages chosen for filming had to be crossed off the schedule because "we just couldn't take the risk," said production designer Keith Wilson.

But actors and crew in "Steal the Sky" said during their five weeks of filming in Israel they were largely untouched by the nearly daily violence that has left more than 135 Palestinians and one Israeli soldier dead.

"We have been incredibly lucky," Cross said in an interview on a Tel Aviv set. "We have filmed in Arab quarters and Jewish quarters and have been in no danger."

At a time when the unrest has caused tourism to decline, tennis star Chris Evert to cancel plans to appear in a tournament in Israel and Roman Catholic church officials to call off a Palm Sunday procession, the presence of actors and a film crew in the West Bank is cause for some surprise.

The Home Box Office Inc. film is the first movie to be made in Israel since the uprising began Dec. 8, said Ben-Ami.

"In a way, I wanted to make a statement by doing this film here now," said Ben-Ami, an American citizen who lives in Los Angeles.

"Steal the Sky" is based on a true story and deals with an aspect of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Hemingway plays an Israeli Mossad secret agent who persuades an Iraqi pilot, portrayed by Cross, to defect and fly to Israel in August 1966 aboard one of the coveted, Soviet-built MiG-21 airplanes the West wants to examine.

The plane, studied by the United States and Israel, is today in the Israeli Air Force Museum. The agent and the defector vanished, their identities protected.

Scenes that were to take place in Iraq were filmed in the Israeli-occupied West Bank's biblical town of Jericho and nearby Anatot.

The West Bank shooting took about two weeks. In the disputed hills, crew members could be heard shouting in English and Hebrew: "Quiet on the set please. Sheket, bevakasha."

In one scene, a military jeep was blown up.

"When we were filming and heard shots or special effects, I often wondered if it was real or not," said Hemingway.

In Israel, where politics is interwoven with daily life, Cross said it was impossible to avoid conversations about the current debate over what should be done to end the Palestinian rioting.

"Everyone wants to talk about the Arab-Israel conflict," he said. "But because it's an emotional subject, it is very dangerous for me to get caught up in it."

Ben-Ami said he got the idea to make the film about three years ago, and got approval from HBO for the $5.5 million movie last year. Three days of filming in Rome and additional days in Reno, Nev., are also scheduled.

Ben-Ami said he understood other producers had canceled plans to film in Israel, although he had no specific details.

"I am extremely sad that people are so much afraid of suffering that they are missing wonderful locations here," he said.

The production of "Steal the Sky" was a model for coexistence, said Ben-Ami. "We had Arabs working as extras," he said, "and both Arabs and Israelis on the crew and our guards are Druse," members of a mystical sect which is an offshoot of Islam.

Ben-Ami said the dialogue in his movie "is up-to-date. It's a film that shows things that were an issue in Israel and the Middle East 25 years ago are still an issue today."

"The Israelis have to be strong. You cannot make peace with a scared people," he said. "We are in a marathon race with the Arabs. Whoever is strong will win."

Eva Accepts Life Alone

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It's taken most of her 68 years, but entertainer-businesswoman Eva Gabor says she has finally learned to live alone without fretting.

"The last five years is the first time I'm not married in my life, and I've found my center — a sense of self-responsibility," said Gabor, who is promoting her upcoming autobiography, to be published by Little-Brown.

Gabor, the younger sister of actress Zsa Zsa Gabor and the former co-star of the television series "Green Acres," has been married five times.

"I enjoy, really enjoy, living alone, which is strange for a lady who was the clinging vine of all times," she said recently. "I became a grown-up being, an idea I always fought, and have discovered that it's better to live alone and be at peace with yourself than to be married and to be under continuous stress."

Besides running her 16-year-old, international wig business and tending her garden at home in Los Angeles, Gabor works for AIDS patients and cancer victims.

"To die with AIDS is to die without dignity," she said. "I've seen it in my hospice work."

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY April 6

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You will be faced with a situation where you must decide between several new projects, but don't base your decision solely on intuition.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): A trip you have been planning needs to be arranged more precisely if you are to avoid a costly setback. Don't neglect pressing property matters.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A dynamic associate has some fine ideas to proffer, so listen carefully to this person. Take it easy tonight, and get plenty of rest.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): It is very important that you stop procrastinating about some important obligation. A long-time friend can help with this.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): If you have been somewhat concerned about a health matter, this is a good time to make the necessary appointments with professionals.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Routine chores may seem somewhat boring today, but handle them quickly so you will have the time for more important matters.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Get busy answering letters and paying bills (which have been piling up for some time. Meet with a friend you want as a business partner.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Focus your attention on financial and property matters today, and improve them considerably. Take it easy tonight, and get to bed early.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Try to add to your personal progress today, and use more efficient methods than in the past. If you go out socially, stick with close friends.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Be certain to keep any promises you have made to your mate, or a big argument could ensue. Be more affectionate to this person.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Even if it is a bit difficult to handle, do a favor for a friend who is in a tight spot. You will be repaid in spades for your effort.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): A superior has been keeping an eye on your work, so be sure to put your best foot forward. Don't let anyone disrupt your schedule today.

Entries are precious gems. We are continually surprised by the cavalier attitude many players display toward such exquisite possessions. To make our point, we would like you to cover the East and West hands with your thumbs and decide which finesse declarer should take when he gets to dummy for the one and only time with the ace of spades.

South's choice of four hearts as his rebid is reasonable, but we do feel that one other bid should have been considered—a jump to three no trump. That contract would have posed no difficulty, regardless of the opening lead.

If you answered that declarer should use his entry to the table to take either rounded-suit finesse, you have missed the point of the hand. Declarer has 10 tricks available if dummy's lone entry is put to good use rather than squandered as an entry for a finesse.

Declarer should win the opening lead in hand, cash the ace of trumps and then play ace of clubs followed by the jack. The defenders are helpless. The best they can do is win the king of clubs and persevere with spades. But now declarer can win the ace, discard one of his side-suit losers and then revert to trumps. Declarer will score two spade tricks, five trumps, one diamond and two clubs no matter what.

Note that it would be wrong for declarer to try to draw more than one round of trumps before playing on clubs. The defenders will win the second trump and force out the ace of spades before South has set up a second club trick, and he will be forced to rely on the club finesse for his contract.

Teflon Still Slick Contender After Half-Century

By GARY LANGER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It's been slipped into everything from frying pans to space suits to the nation's political vernacular, and now Teflon, still the slickest solid on Earth, is sliding into its second half-century.
Discovered accidentally April 6, 1938, by a young chemist named Roy J. Plunkett, the waxy white plastic turns 50 this week, still dominating dozens of scientific and consumer uses with no hint of a higher-tech replacement.
It keeps the eggs from sticking to frying pans, for sure. But it also coats electrical wires, chemical tanks, jogging suits and lightbulbs. It's used to patch human hearts. It keeps the Statue of Liberty from rusting.

"The applications, as far as I can tell, are no smaller than our imaginations," says Plunkett, now a septuagenarian retiree from the Du Pont chemical company. "I'm amazed at the impact. And there's more to go."
The reason for Teflon's endurance is simple: Nothing else is so slippery, so tough and such a good insulator, all at the same time. Even after five decades, "It is unique in these qualities," says professor Fred McGarry, a specialist in such materials at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
It's a discovery that almost slipped away. Plunkett, two years out of college, was working with refrigeration gases in a Du Pont lab in Deepwater, N.J., when an assistant pulled a cylinder of Freon out of a dry ice storage bin, turned it on — and nothing came out.

Someone else might have assumed the cylinder had leaked and tossed it away. Plunkett didn't. He weighed the cylinder. He shook it. He cut it open.
"A white solid material was obtained, which was supposed to be a polymerized product" of the Freon compound, Plunkett recorded laconically in his lab notebook entry of 4-6-38.
Voila.
"People describe it as a lucky chance, a bit of serendipity or a flash of brilliance," says Plunkett, an inductee into the National Inventors Hall of Fame. "I like to think of it as a combination of all three."

The serendipity, he notes, extended beyond the discovery itself. It soon was found that the chance chemical reaction that produced Teflon can have unhappy consequences. "If there was any luck involved in the discovery," says Plunkett, "probably part of it was that we didn't get blown up."
Du Pont testers gradually established Teflon's extraordinary properties. It is "damn near inert," says McGarry; it won't react with chemicals or break down in the environment. It withstands temperatures from 400 degrees below zero to 500 degrees above. Energy passes through it without heating it up. It holds together in a vacuum, meaning it's perfect for use in outer space.

Lawrence English, editor of Materials Engineering magazine, likens the impact of Teflon to that of the transistor. "There's nothing quite like it," he says. "It's pervasive in technical environments — all over the place, in a lot of really curious and diverse applications."
At the beginning, it was under wraps, restricted to government defense work from 1941, when Du Pont first was able to produce it, until 1948. It was used in the Manhattan Project for gaskets and vessel linings to contain a highly corrosive chemical needed in the production of the atom bomb.
It also coated wires in electronic devices, making them considerably fire resistant. Today, the greatest commercial use of Teflon is in wire coating, followed by gaskets and shaft seals and pipe and tank coatings.
Teflon didn't reach the public eye until May 1956, when a store in Nice, France, put the first Teflon-lined pan on its shelves. The idea stuck, and an estimated 500 million pots and pans coated with Teflon have been sold since.

It wasn't until 20 years later that Teflon moved from kitchen to clothes closet. Robert Gore, who was in the wire coating business, found that a piece of stretched Teflon has pores big enough to let water vapor out but too small to let water droplets in. He stuck it to fabric and called it Gore-Tex, the first waterproof-breathable clothing.
Teflon's next frontier was the language. That breakthrough came the morning of Aug. 2, 1983, as Pat Schroeder was cooking eggs for the kids. Schroeder happens to be a Democratic congresswoman, and as she slid the eggs out of a frying pan, she reflected on the way political accountability, in her view, slid off President Reagan.

"I said, 'He's just like this pan,' she recalled last week. "Nothing sticks."

How They Voted

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending April 1.
HOUSE — The House approved 345 for and 70 against, a $47.9 million humanitarian aid package that will keep Contra forces in the field during early stages of the March 23 truce between the American-backed rebel forces and the Sandinista government of Nicaragua.
The measure (HJ Res 523) was approved by the senate and signed into law by President Reagan. It earmarks about $10 million for Organization of American States efforts to verify the 60-day ceasefire that launches the peace agreement and $2.5 million for administrative costs.
The remaining $35.4 million is to be split evenly between medical care for children injured in the Nicaraguan war and non-lethal aid for the Contras.
Members voting yes supported the aid package. Representatives voting yes from North Carolina were: Tim Valentine, D-2, Martin Lancaster, D-3, David Price, D-4, Howard Coble, R-6, Alex McMillan, R-9, Cass Ballenger, R-10, James Clark, D-11. Representatives voting no from North Carolina were: Walter Jones, D-1, Stephen Neal, D-5. Those not voting from North Carolina were Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8.
By a vote of 234 for and 180 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 3396) requiring the government to rehire at least 1,000 of the 11,400 air traffic controllers fired by President Reagan in 1981.

The discharged Federal Aviation Administration workers had belonged to the now defunct Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization (PATCO) and were striking in violation of federal law.
Supporter William Ford, D-Mich., said experienced PATCO controllers are needed because "the air traffic control system is at the stress point — too much traffic and too few qualified controllers."
Opponent John Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., said "putting the strikers and their replacements in the same control tower is sure to create animosity between the two factions" and undermine air safety.
Members voting yes favored rehiring the fired controllers. From North Carolina voting yes were David Price, Neal and Clarke. Voting no from North Carolina were Walter Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, Coble, McMillan and Ballenger. Not voting from North Carolina were Rose and Hefner.
By a vote of 203 for and 187 against, the House adopted and amendment to prevent presidents-elect from accepting private contributions to defray their official transition costs.
The vote occurred during debate on a bill (HR 3932), sent to the Senate, authorizing $3.5 million in transition funds for incoming presidents and $1 million for those leaving the White House.

At issue was whether private contributors to transition costs are trying to buy influence.
Members voting yes wanted to outlaw private contributions toward presidential transition costs.
North Carolina representatives voting yes were Neal and Ballenger. Voting no from North Carolina were Walter Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, David Price, Coble Hefner, McMillan and Clarke. Not voting on the issue was Rose.
SENATE — By a vote of 87 for and 7 against, the Senate approved the $47.9 million Contra aid package cleared earlier by the House. Reagan then signed the measure.
Senators voting yes favored the legislation. From North Carolina, Terry Sanford, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted yes.
By a vote of 42 for and 52 against, the Senate failed for the fourth time in a week to silence a filibuster against legislation requiring businesses to notify workers of exposure to toxic chemicals, radiation and other hazardous agents.
The vote caused the bill (S 79) to be pulled from the floor and amounted to defeat of the High Risk Disease Notification and Prevention Act.
Supporter Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said the bill could help to "prevent workers from coming down with cancer and other diseases that come (from) the workplace."
Opponent Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said the bill "just plain unnecessarily duplicates a whole raft of programs already in existence in the federal government."
Senators voting yes supported the bill. Senators Sanford and Helms voted no against the bill.
By a vote of 47 for and 45 against, the Senate tabled an amendment on whether to protect America's uranium industry and the Department of Energy's uranium enrichment program.

The vote occurred during debate on S 2097, a bill that overhauls government programs affecting all stages of uranium use from mining to disposal. The bill later was sent to the House.
The vote preserved language to impose financial penalties on nuclear power utilities that depend too heavily on imported uranium to fuel their plants. The protection would help uranium mines in the West as well as government enrichment plants that have lost considerable business to foreign suppliers such as Canada.
Senators voting yes favored the protectionist language. From North Carolina, Sanford voted no and Helms voted yes.

NOTICE OF RIGHT TO NOMINATE BY PETITION
The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) is accepting nominations for County Committee elections for Pitt County. This notice is issued to inform eligible voters of the right to nominate candidates by petition. Copies of the petition and instructions on its completion can be obtained from your local FmHA Office.
Persons nominated should have an interest in a farm as an owner, tenant or sharecropper within the county or area in which activities of the county or area committee are carried out. They must be citizens of the United States or aliens lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence and be well qualified for committee work. Spouses of those persons who meet the eligibility criteria are also eligible for nomination for election to the county committee. Nominations must be received in the FmHA office at 1411 S. Evans Street, Greenville, NC no later than May 19, 1988. FmHA committee elections are open to all eligible voters without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, age, political affiliation, marital status, sex and/or handicap.
