Jordan Vs. Martin

Who Gets The Credit In Robeson 'Solution'?

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan says the agreement he hammered out for a second judgeship in Robeson County shows his leadership skills, but Republicans say Gov. Jim Martin has shown "masterful" handling of the tense racial situation.

"Leadership is not just talking about doing something; it's doing something," Jordan said Tuesday, one day after he flew to Robeson County to negotiate with local legislators and supporters of slain judicial candidate Julian Pierce.

Jordan, Martin's likely Democratic opponent in November, flew to Lumberton Monday on a state helicopter for the negotiations without Martin's knowledge. Martin learned of the deal for a second judgeship Monday night when Jordan called to ask for his pledge to name a minority to the post.

State Republican Chairman Jack

Hawke, while praising the compromise, said Jordan appeared to have made "a sad attempt to get a headline."

Ken Eudy, state Democratic Party executive director, said the incident was one of many in which Martin had failed to act decisively. "When it comes time to make what may be a controversial decision, he tries to pitch it to anybody but himself."

Martin made no overtly political comments about the Robeson controversy Tuesday, endorsing the agreement in a Council of State meeting and telling reporters he did not resent Jordan's failure to tell him about the negotiations until they had ended.

But the governor said that since he is willing to give Jordan credit for his accomplishments and ideas with which Martin agrees, Jordan should do the same for Martin but usually doesn't.

"My view is that you ought to support good ideas regardless of who benefits politically," Martin said. "I don't think I ought to try to undercut it just because it's an idea he's an associated with."

The settlement, reached in a three-hour meeting in Lumberton, calls for the Legislature to create a Superior Court judgeship in tri-racial Robeson County in addition to the one established last year.

Pierce, a Lumbee Indian, was running for the judgeship when he was murdered March 26 in what authorities called a domestic dispute. He was to face District Attorney Joe Freeman Britt, a white, in the May 3 Democratic primary.

State law says when a primary candidate dies more than 30 days after the filing period closed, his opponent wins the nomination.

Pierce supporters asked Martin to convene a special General Assembly session to change the law so a minor-

TALKING IT OVER — Both Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, left, and Gov. Jim Martin are supporting a plan for a second judgeship in Robeson County, but the plan — worked out by Jordan without Martin's knowledge — has created a new dispute: who gets the credit for easing Robeson County's multiracial crisis? Jordan proposed the plan, won approval in Robeson County, and then asked Martin to go along. They are shown here at a meeting in Raleigh Tuesday.

Pitt Board Schedules Vote On Billboard Curbs

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners are expected to take action on an ordinance to regulate billboards on highways in unincorporated areas of the county and possibly select an architect to do a county facilities master plan at a workshop meeting Monday.

The workshop was scheduled following a public hearing Tuesday night on the proposed outdoor advertising sign ordinance. All but one of the 10 speakers at the hearing voiced support for the proposed ordinance.

County Planner Jeff Ulma said the proposed regulations, which do not apply to on-site business signs, are designed to control billboards which advertise off-site activities, products and services.

Ulma said that, as recommended by the county planning board last month, the proposed ordinance would allow billboards to be placed within 500 feet of the principal structure of commercial or industrial facilities that have both frontage and access to a roadway. But signs would have to be placed at least 1,000 feet apart.

Ulma said the provision requiring both frontage and direct access to a roadway would "effectively prohibit" billboards along the U.S. 264 freeway between Greenville and Farmville, because under state regulations, no business would have direct access to the roadway.

Other provisions of the proposed law would restrict signs to a maximum of 400 square feet — a maximum of 20 vertical feet and 40 horizontal feet — with a maximum height of 35 feet.

And as proposed by the planning board, signs would have to be 50 feet from the highway right-of-way and would have to be at least 500 feet from a lot containing an existing residence, church, school or public institution.

But Ulma suggested to commissioners that the recommended setback be changed to allow signs up to 100 square feet to be placed within 20 feet of the right-of-way, signs 101 to 300 square feet to be placed 35 feet from the right-of-way and 301 to 400 square feet signs placed 50 feet from the right-of-way.

And in an effort to "clarify the overall intent" and effect of the ordinance, Ulma suggested that language be added saying the proposed law "prohibits outdoor advertising signs along freeways."

"Up front that would notify the public, that no signs are allowed on freeways," Ulma said.

The state Board of Transportation has named the section of U.S. 264 between Greenville and Farmville the John P. East Freeway in honor of the late U.S. senator from Greenville.

During the public hearing, Priscilla East, the senator's widow, told commissioners, "I believe in ... keeping that road free of what I consider to be litter."

"As a member of the public," Mrs. East said, "it is not clear to me the intent (to prohibit billboards along that stretch of roadway) has no loopholes. I think it's imperative," she said, that the board "do away with loopholes."

Dianne Hankins of Greenville told commissioners, "When you are motorist traveling, there's no escaping the billboards."

"I have a special feeling about that stretch of highway (U.S. 264 between Greenville and Farmville)," which now has no outdoor advertising signs, she said. She then encouraged the board to "enact the ordinance so we can keep it that way."

Lawrence Watts of Greenville suggested that billboards in Raleigh and on Evans Street in Greenville represent "an eye sore," and said, "I consider these signs rather unsightly."

"I hope you can be fair with the sign companies," Watts said. But he added, "I enjoy the trees," and asked commissioners to "keep the landscape (along the U.S. 264 freeway) free from signs."

Charles R. Coble of Greenville told commissioners, "I am really proud of what you are trying to do — put a good ordinance in place." And he said the board has "a real unique opportunity" to control the beauty of Pitt County's landscape.

"There are only four signs on the 69-mile freeway portion" of the route between Greenville and Raleigh, Coble said. The proposed ordinance, he suggested, "puts Pitt County in a very forward-reaching position."

TRUCK OVERTURNS — This truck operated by Phillip Mayo Russ of Farmville overturned at the intersection of Third and Tyson streets in Greenville Tuesday afternoon. Greenville Police Officer D.R. Myrick said Russ was blinded by the sun while traveling east on Third Street and lost control of the truck, which hit a street sign and a utility pole before overturning. Russ was treated at Pitt County Memorial Hospital for injuries. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis).

Civilian Fighting Leaves Israeli Girl, 2 Arabs Dead

NABLUS, Occupied West Bank (AP) — An Israeli girl and two Palestinians were shot to death in a clash today between Israeli civilians and Arabs in a West Bank village, the army said. It said 14 Israelis were wounded.

There were conflicting reports on what led to the violence in Beita, about 15 miles from Nablus.

Palestinians who said they witnessed the clash from a half-mile away said about 30 Israeli settlers entered the village on foot and fired without provocation, killing one Arab.

Angry villagers then charged the settlers, the Palestinians said.

"The first man who was killed, Mousa Saleh Abu Shamsheh, was plowing his land," said Mohammed Abbas Aly. Abu Shamsheh was 20.

"When they heard a farmer was killed, they attacked the settlers with axes, picks and rocks. There was hand-to-hand fighting," said Aly, who was interviewed at Nablus' Al-Itihad Hospital.

Aly said Fayez Al Jabr, 22, was killed when he ran toward the settlers brandishing a stick.

The army said the violence began when Palestinians stoned a bus filled with Israeli civilians.

An army statement said two security guards on the bus opened fire at the stone-throwers, killing two Arabs and wounding two others. During the clash, the statement said Arabs grabbed the guards' guns and opened fire on the Israelis, killing the girl and wounding three others.

The army gave no details on how the other Israelis were wounded.

The Israeli news agency Itim said the Israelis were on an outing and that the dead girl was a passenger. Israel radio said three of the injured Israelis were children.

Jihad Hawari, the Arab head of the Israeli-appointed village council of nearby Hawara, said the incident began at about 10 a.m. He said a large number of Arabs had gathered in the village, which had been declared "liberated" from Israeli rule and was bedecked with the outlawed Palestinian flag.

"The settlers asked the people in the village to take down the Palestinian flags. So people at the village started throwing rocks at the settlers who began to fire back directly into the crowd," said Hawari.

Hawari, who said he was in Beita when the incident took place, said Palestinian youths took about 10 Israelis captive briefly. After one hour, more settlers came and tried to enter the village, but they could not get inside. He said the Israelis were released.

Arab witnesses said the clash lasted about 1½ hours, until soldiers arrived and sealed the village.

The entrance to the village was blocked by seven army jeeps by afternoon. Two army ambulances entered the village and an army helicopter hovered overhead.

The army statement said a curfew was imposed on the area confining the village's 12,000 residents to their homes.

Hijackers Call Doctor To Plane

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Masked Arabs wielding grenades and pistols and demanding freedom for pro-Iranian terrorists in Kuwait today called a doctor aboard a hijacked jet to treat two women believed to be members of Kuwait's royal family.

The physician, identified only as Dr. Qassem, was quoted by Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency as describing the condition of one of the women as "not satisfactory." The hijackers reportedly said some passengers were "unwell."

The five or six Arabic-speaking hijackers said Tuesday that three members of Kuwait's royal Al-Sabah family on the jet would be in "imminent danger" unless Kuwait freed 17 convicted pro-Iranian extremists in 12 hours. Kuwait rejected the demand.

The deadline passed at 10 a.m. (2:30 a.m. EDT), according to Tehran radio. The hijackers then contacted the Mashhad Airport tower in northeastern Iran "to remind that the respite is nearing the end," IRNA said.

The doctor did not identify the women he treated or say what was wrong with them. He said he asked the hijackers to let the women leave the plane, but they refused.

According to a passenger list from the Kuwait Airways Boeing 747, they were the only women among the 87 hostages remaining after the release today of 24 female passengers and flight attendants.

The Kuwaiti Cabinet called the hijackers' demands "blackmail," and it sent a team to Iran to negotiate with the hijackers after meeting in emergency session under Crown Prince Sheikh Saad al-Abdullah Al-Sabah.

The U.S. State Department said it believed there were no Americans aboard the jet, which was commandeered Tuesday en route to Kuwait from Bangkok and forced to land in Iran. The hijackers have threatened to blow the plane up.

One man still aboard the plane has a U.S. and an Egyptian passport.

According to the passenger list, the two women from Kuwait's royal family are Ebbesam Khaled Al-Sabah and Anware Khaled Al-Sabah. A male member of the royal family on the jet was identified as Fadel Khalid Al-Sabah.

Kuwaiti sources who demanded anonymity said Fadel is a businessman and distant relative of Kuwait's emir, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed Al-Sabah, the target of an assassination attempt by pro-Iranian extremists in 1986.

Ayden Board Considers Foreclosure Action On Delinquent Tax Accounts

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — Members of the Ayden Board of Commissioners agreed at their workshop Tuesday night to consider a plan that would call for the town to foreclose on residents at least two years behind in tax payments.

Town Clerk Ralph Ford told the board the town needs to adopt a policy now to let residents know they will have to pay taxes. Residents who fall one year behind in tax payments may be able to catch up but those two years behind or more will probably remain behind, said Ford.

Board members asked Ford to send them a copy of the plan for consideration.

The board also discussed adopting a policy to ensure that the town receives timely utility payments for service provided to farmers leasing land in Pitt County during the summer.

Town Manager Don Russell explained to the board that farmers living outside the county often lease Pitt County land for farming. When the utilities are terminated at the close of the summer, the town has no recourse because the farmer lives outside the county.

The bill is often paid the following spring, said Russell, allowing the farmer to clear the account but leaving the county without the money for several months.

Board members discussed requiring farmers from outside the county who rent or lease land inside Pitt county to provide a cash deposit when opening the account each year.

Ayden needs a new personnel ordinance and a new pay classification system, Russell told the board, and he recommended the town ask the League of Municipalities to write both.

The league wrote policies for the town in 1979 and 1983 and Russell said the plan needs updating. It will cost the town about $5,100 for the new pay classification system and about $1,600 for the new personnel ordinance, he said.

Russell recommended to the board that the town proceed with borrowing $550,000 under the Betterment Program, a program sponsored by Electricities to allow towns to upgrade their electric systems.

The board will need to approve the application to the program and the ordinance authorizing the town to finance the improvements, said Russell. The loan will be used to finance a new substation.

Russell said the town would probably want to wait until late 1988 or early 1989 before borrowing the money from NCNB but the board needs to move forward.

Russell also asked the board to examine the proposed zoning ordinance prior to receiving comments at the public hearing Monday night. The plan covers the majority of questions the board has had in the past, he said.

In other business, the board discussed creating a new trash collection rate for residents and businesses with three containers that are picked up twice a week; banning parking on one or both sides of Joyner Street between Orman Street and Jackson Street to allow space for traffic flow and attending the League of Municipalities regional meeting April 20 at the Sheraton in Greenville.

May House Work OK'd By Board

FARMVILLE — Farmville commissioners Tuesday night approved the renovation of the kitchen building of the May House now being restored as a town museum.

The town has nearly completed renovation of the house at Main and Pine streets that was willed to the town along with renovation funds by Tabitha M. DeVisconti, who died several years ago. It was pointed out that approximately $111,000 is expected to be left in the renovation account when the main house is finished. It is expected that the kitchen renovation will cost about $20,350.

Approval was given for the sale of the town administrative building to McDavid Associates for $42,000.

McDavid's was the only bid received. It is expected that the building will be vacated in September.

The Gerrelene Walker Certified Public Accountant firm of Tarboro was awarded the town's audit contract for next year, with the town having the option of renewing the contract for two more years. The Walker firm, the low bidder, proposed a price of $9,250 for 1987-88 and $8,325 for each of the next two years.

Approval was given for the purchase of filter medium for the Utilities Department from Northern Gravel Co. for $8,019 and nozzles from Walker Process Corporation, also for Utilities, for $6,480. Both were low bidders.

Shultz Pushes Ahead With Mideast Peace Plan, But Finds Few Takers

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz flew to Egypt after a final and apparently unsuccessful meeting today with Israel's prime minister. He declared that his Middle East peace initiative nevertheless was "intact and alive."

The stop in Cairo primarily was a courtesy call on President Hosni Mubarak, who played a leading role in shaping Shultz's proposal for Arab-Israeli negotiations and is the only regional leader to endorse it.

Mubarak has insisted, however, on a direct role in the talks for the PLO, which Shultz has ruled out.

In a statement to reporters moments before he left Israel for Egypt, Shultz said he made some progress but "the differences haven't been substantially narrowed."

"There's no masking the deep-seated obstacles to peace," Shultz said at Ben Gurion airport. "Emotions are deeply felt, principles are proudly held, great traditions, cultures, and rights are involved ... But with a serious commitment to work, it can happen."

Shultz made an emotional appeal to Israeli and Arab leaders to "say yes" to his peace initiative, which he pledged to continue despite the difficulties.

"The initiative we have discussed so intensively and thoroughly over these past weeks is intact and alive," he said.

After talks with Mubarak, Shultz was scheduled to travel to Amman, Jordan, to continue talks with King Hussein. His Middle East trip will also take him to Saudi Arabia.

Council To Study Road Plan

Greenville's City Council will consider a resolution establishing local street and highway improvement priorities at a council workshop session Thursday at 6 p.m. in the third floor conference room of City Hall.

If approved, the resolution will be forwarded to the North Carolina Department of Transportation as a recommendation for inclusion in DOT's Transportation Improvement Plan.

City Manager Greg Knowles said the resolution, if passed, will be submitted to DOT officials at a public hearing scheduled April 13 at 2 p.m. at the County Office Complex in Snow Hill, 229 King Gold Blvd.

Transportation projects to be considered by the City Council Thursday include:

- U.S. 264 (Greenville Northwest Loop) — Complete all sections of U.S. 264 from Wilson to Greenville with coordinated openings of the Farmville Bypass and the Greenville Northwest Bypass, which would stretch from U.S. 264 around Pitt Memorial Hospital to N.C. 11.

- SR 1702 (Evans Street) — Widen existing two-lane section to five-lanes with curb and gutter from 10th Street to SR 1708.

- Arlington Street Extension — Construct a five-lane, 1.9 mile road from Hooker Road to N.C. 43.

- Farmville Boulevard Extension — Construct a five-lane, 0.6 mile, road from 14th Street to the Greenville central business district.

- Dickinson Avenue — Construct a four-lane, 1.3 mile road from Reade Circle to U.S. 13.

- Greenville Southwest Loop — Construct a four-lane, median divided, limited access connector from future U.S. 264 to N.C. 11 south of Pitt Community College.

- SR 1703 and SR 1704 (Fourteenth Street) — Construct a five-lane, 1.6 mile road from Charles Street to U.S. 264 and a four-lane, 1.4 mile section from U.S. 264 to SR 1725.

- SR 1708 and SR 1725 — Widen existing two-lane roadway to a five-lane road from Memorial Drive to SR 1726.

- N.C. 43 — Widen existing two-lane road to five-lanes from the existing city limits to SR 1735.

- N.C. 33 — Widen existing two-lane road to five-lanes from the city limits to SR-1726.

- Greene Street Bridge — Replace the Greene Street Bridge crossing the Tar River in accordance with the federal bridge replacement program.

The council will also consider recommending several items regarding public transportation and bicycle routes.

Among those items include funding for the purchase of a spare bus engine; funding for the purchase of an additional bus to serve additional routes and ridership, and the construction of bicycle routes from Cannons Crossroads to Reade Circle; from Reade Circle to Red Banks Road; from Greenville Boulevard to Fifth Street by way of Albermarle Avenue, and from SR 1725 to Evans Street.

Also scheduled for Thursday's council workshop is a review and discussion of agenda items for the council's next monthly action meeting scheduled for April 14 at 7:30 p.m. in Council Chambers of City Hall.

Church Anniversary

Dildy's Chapel Church off N.C. 222 near Fountain will celebrate its anniversary with services tonight through Sunday.

Services at 7:30 p.m. include the following: today, Elder Chester Aycock and St. Paul Disciples Church of Christ of Wilson; Thursday, the Rev. Ronnie Staton and Lily of the Valley Missionary Baptist Church of Everetts; Friday, Elder James Nobles and Dilda's Chapel Junior Choir, and Saturday, Holy Communion.

A quarterly meeting will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Four People Face Charges In Thefts

Four people were arrested on theft charges by Greenville police Tuesday in connection with separate cases reported to the department.

Detective G.W. Williams said Kathy Edward Baker, 29, of 29 Lang's Mobile Home Park, Farmville, was charged with embezzlement in connection with an incident at Sears Roebuck & Co. at Carolina East Mall that was reported March 8.

Officer J.E. Williams said Katherine Denise Johnson, 30, of 207B Roundtree Drive was arrested about 11 a.m. on common law robbery and assault on a child charges. The arrest stemmed from a Feb. 26 incident at 1906 Norcott Circle, Williams said, where money was taken from the home.

Officer M.R. Benton said Douglas

Wayne Boseman, 36, of 310 Powell St. was charged with shoplifting in connection with the theft of a carton of cigarettes from Harris Super Market on South Memorial Drive about 11:54 a.m.

Officer B.M. Highland said Arcacelis Berrios, 28, of 24 Play Meadows was charged with larceny in connection with the theft of two packs of cigarettes and a bottle of a hair care product from Harris Super Market on North Memorial Drive about 12:46 p.m.

Officer M.T. Scheid said Michael Williamson, 22, of 404 Gum Road was charged with larceny about 5:51 p.m. in connection with the theft of three cartons of cigarettes from the K mart store at Greenville Square Shopping Center.

Key To Parks

The state parks system is the stepchild of North Carolina.

The parks are under-staffed, under-funded, and de-emphasized, even though they provide an important recreation outlet for millions of North Carolinians and harbor significant portions of the state's natural heritage.

It's ironic that North Carolina's lawmakers consider pride in this heritage one of the parks systems' charges, yet they don't have enough pride in these facilities to fund them sufficiently.

Thursday at 7 p.m. at Jaycee Park in Greenville the public will get an opportunity to object to this system of shortchanging and to impact on the direction the park system will take at a N.C. Department of Natural Resources public hearing.

The state parks act of 1987 says North Carolina's park lands should be used to "promote understanding of and pride in the natural heritage of the state." Yet the public can't use nearly half of them because there's no money to provide facilities, access or staff.

Consider these facts:

Of 53 state parks, only 32 are sufficiently staffed to accommodate the public.

Over $20 million in repairs to building and utility systems are needed, and these repairs are to essential items like bathrooms and sewer systems. Many buildings are more than 30 years old and inadequate funding has left them in serious disrepair.

An estimated $80 is needed for minimal development of park facilities — parking, trails, toilets, picnic tables.

An additional $15 million is required to purchase land for essential environmental buffers around these facilities. A park that backs up to a freeway, shopping center or housing development is useless.

These figure don't correspond with a notion of pride.

The citizens that use these parks and pay for them might ask how they're being gypped out of the full value of their investment. Here's the answer:

North Carolina ranks last in the nation on per capita spending on parks. It lays out only 99 cents per citizen — .7 percent of its budget — to staff and operate the facilities.

Compared with the average in the Southeast — $3.20 per resident — and the national average — $4.09 per citizen — that figure is pitifully inadequate.

Another pertinent question to ask is why? Why has North Carolina — whose parks system contains some of the most unique and beautiful resources the state possesses — chosen to orphan this asset?

Thursday is an opportunity for Greenville residents to verbalize their support for the many parks accessible to them as well as those hours away. It is also a chance to question the public policy that has placed the system in disrepair and insist on a new direction.

Dukakis Steps Out In Wisconsin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael Dukakis says he doesn't expect to land any knockout blows in the Democratic presidential nomination fight, but his Wisconsin landslide makes him the man to beat in New York on April 19 — and at the party's nominating convention in July.

No matter what the self-styled Democratic convention power brokers say.

And it may mean that Jesse Jackson, the biggest surprise of the year, has peaked halfway through the primary and caucus season.

In another time, a solid Democratic regular like Dukakis carrying blue-collar Wisconsin might not seem like much. But by the reckoning in use for the unpredictable 1988 campaign, Dukakis scored several important successes in a single Tuesday night.

•He won a state he had to win, by more than anyone expected, and at the moment of Jesse Jackson's greatest momentum. In any other year, Jackson's showing would have been spectacular. But this week, basking in the glow of his stunning Michigan caucus victory, pictured on the cover of Time and Newsweek, drawing boisterous crowds from one town to the next, he could not match the expectations that had been set for him.

•Dukakis probably succeeded in winning the field as well, with Sen. Paul Simon expected to suspend active campaigning later this week. That will mean one less white candidate to siphon off white votes in future primaries in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, where Jackson's black constituency is substantially larger than it was in Wisconsin.

•He benefited from Sen. Albert Gore's failure to emerge as a strong challenger in the race. Gore was gaining less than 20 percent of the vote, far behind Jackson, and now has failed utterly in a month-long bid to turn his Super Tuesday victories into success outside the South. Already, Dukakis' aides are trying to undermine Gore's campaign in New York, raising questions about the large loans he is relying on.

•Dukakis' victory should reassure the party leaders who were beginning to wonder if a son of New England would ever be able to carry one of the Great Lakes industrial states. That, in turn, should put a damper on the incessant talk of drafting Mario Cuomo into the Democratic race — and increase the odds that Cuomo will lend his support.

And along the same lines, Dukakis has been working the phones, hoping a victory in Wisconsin might set off a movement of party leaders, members of Congress and governors to his side. Not so much because they are enamored of him — they are not — but because he is their best chance to stop Jackson, who they fear would lead the party to defeat.

None of this is to say that Dukakis is now the inevitable nominee. He tried to portray himself that way a few weeks ago, and it almost made him the inevitable governor of Massachusetts through the end of his term in 1990. He campaigned lackadaisically and finished third in Illinois before being buried under Jackson's landslide in Michigan.

And in a year in which the much-sought after Iowa caucus prize proved worth little to winner Richard Gephardt and in which Jackson has broken new ground, Dukakis may yet have to fend off a charge or two before the nomination can be his.

Still, Dukakis demonstrated not only that he could win this week, but that he could do so on his own terms.

Under pressure from party officials to do something — anything — to regroup and stop Jackson, he gambled that he could do so without assaulting him and driving away the black votes so essential to a general election victory.

When he offered criticism, he did cautiously, as when he said it was a "bad idea" for his rival to become involved in Panama — but then quickly added that Jackson had issued a clarification of his own position.

Instead, he attacked the Reagan administration sharply in speeches and in a new television commercial that evoked images of human suffering in the era of Ronald Reagan.

Quit Whining About Tax Time!

WASHINGTON — A whole lot of hell is being raised by people who say the tax-reform bill of 1986 isn't working.

Most of this comes from misuse of the word "reform," a word that copy editors everywhere have been taught to avoid, take out or change ever since Robin Hood and the Sheriff of Nottingham disagreed on its exact meaning. One person's reform, Fidel Castro might tell Fulgencio Batista, is another's catastrophe.

So while the words "tax reform" are explosive and deceptive enough, the semantic difficulty here is not nearly as difficult as a double-barreled phenomenon of human behavior: the idea that something can be had for nothing, coupled with the notion that changes in the law apply to everybody but Me. Note capital M on Me.

It is quite fashionable to blame all the ills of 1988 society on yuppies, Baby Boomers, their children the Boomer Babies, Ronald Reagan, the Jackson candidacy, Oliver North, Michael Jackson, Rupert Murdoch or Strongman Noriega. There is also a lot of moaning and gnashing of capped teeth over the fact that the United States has cut its tax rates, has closed off a lot of incredibly outrageous loopholes and has asked its citizens to (a) honestly fill out a simple form so that realistic withholding can be accomplished, and (b) live up to the idea that to cheat on income tax is to be a fraud and a crook and an immoral person.

Now I am no smarter than most people, and certainly no more moral, but I did not wince when my W-4 forms arrived early last year. The guidelines seemed no more difficult than the instructions in the owner's manual for a BMW, which seem to be easily understood by almost anybody. I filled out the W-4 form honestly, following the very clear and simple directions, predicted a little more income this year than last, and accounted for the 33 1-3 drop in my interest deductions, added 5 percent for breakage, like any good race-track patron might do on a bright Saturday, and turned it in. I got a little argument from the man who accepted it, who said I had claimed either too many or too few exemptions, I forget which, but I stayed the course.

Now this year is the last year of the "reform" bill phase-in, and I got a total of about $170 in refunds from both my federal and state governments. True, I'd gotten $1,500 or $2,000 in earlier years, but that's because I was making interest-free loans to my dear Uncle Sam for most of the year just so I could be surprised by this fat bonus each spring. My weekly withholding dropped, but not so much that I found myself measuring it in terms of big-ticket consumer items such as a Hart, Schaffner & Marx suit. The point is my W-4 worked just right, letting me pay my fair share as I went through 1987, and letting me accept my current living standard with a good deal of honesty, humility and, yes, grace.

I have been freed by tax reform. And I use that term freely, and correctly. In my case.

Senate Worry Affecting Decision

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has tipped national security insiders that he will approve a $6 billion to $12 billion satellite program to lessen Soviet treaty cheating without which, key senators of both parties warn him, the new START pact he hopes to sign in Moscow will be dead on arrival in the Senate.

This top-secret plan to break last year's budget accord with a huge supplemental has lukewarm backing at best in the Pentagon and the CIA, but full support from the national security aide, Lt. Gen. Colin Powell. Sen. David Boren, Democratic chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, and Sen. William Cohen, Republican vice chairman, have spent hours pushing the project with Reagan. Choosing between the Senate-Powell alliance or the Pentagon-CIA bureaucracy, Reagan told a recent meeting he will go with the former (though nothing is in writing).

Driving one of the most important weapons decisions in decades is Senate worry over the hell-bent pace of Reagan's arms control policy. Without better verification, START's planned 50 percent cut in strategic missiles could threaten U.S. capacity to retaliate against surprise Soviet attack. With only one old-type spy satellite launched since the 1986 space shuttle explosion, the new program is the rock-bottom minimum these senators demand for Senate ratification of START.

But foot-dragging continues inside the Air Force, where the satellite's high cost is seen cutting into cherished offensive weapons programs. As for the CIA, insiders say its resources are already strained under new verification demands of the INF treaty. To receive and analyze the 24-hour-a-day output from up to a half-dozen or so of the new satellites, called Indigo-Lacrosse, will force the CIA to divert dollars from other intelligence programs and to recruit and train new analysts.

The CIA, the Defense Intelligence Agency and the National Security Agency are generically skeptical about all nuclear agreements with Moscow, particularly INF and START. Theirs is the all-but-impossible duty of checking on Soviet compliance or Soviet cheating. That role of nuclear-treaty cop becomes tougher and tougher with each new unverifiable pact, leading them to suspect the effectiveness of Indigo-Lacrosse. One intelligence analyst told us that the proposed new system "may cost more than it's worth."

That argument runs head-on into the president's determination to get a START agreement before he leaves office. It also faces trouble from Sen. Sam Nunn, the influential Democratic chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Sen. Jesse Helms, the conservative Republican watchdog on arms control. They have signaled the president that a START treaty would be harshly received in the Senate under even the best of conditions and is doomed without his commitment to Indigo-Lacrosse.

The political road that has led to such intense battling over how to render START less vulnerable to cheating than it would be today is shrouded in top-secret intelligence. Only members of the Intelligence Committees and a few influential such as Nunn are aware that the first Indigo-Lacrosse satellite — the "first ball" — was actually supposed to be launched on the space shuttle in October 1986. It was to have been a verification tool for INF as well as START.

When the shuttle exploded in January, Indigo-Lacrosse was put on indefinite hold for an ominous reason: It is so large and heavy that no rocket booster is big enough to carry it into space. Indeed, destruction of the shuttle could have blinded the U.S. altogether from any satellite inspection of Soviet territory had not a single older satellite in orbit, seemingly ready to expire, kept working by sheer luck.

It was joined last winter by a second old-type satellite, rocketed into space. The coverage of these two satellites is weak at best, although this did not impede Reagan's swift course to the INF treaty. If and when they are replaced by Indigo-Lacrosse, the U.S. will have 24-hour access in rain or shine to most of the vast Soviet territory, with "real time" transmission of images back to the U.S. for CIA analysis only minutes after they are taken.

Strength For Today

We are sometimes prone to congratulate ourselves on our tolerance of other faiths when — in reality we are merely indifferent to them — and probably to our own.

It is not hard, for instance, for a person who is neither a Christian nor a Buddhist and unaffected by either to be tolerant toward both. But it is an entirely different thing for a man who believes that salvation can be gained only through Christ to tolerate a religion which in his opinion is directing millions of people away from the truth.

Tolerance is easy for the unbelieving. But the believing person needs great strength of character to be tolerant. His dislike of the erroneous religion must be exceeded by his love for its communicants. The truly tolerant will strike at such beliefs only by moral suasion, never by force.

Wife Gets New Trial In Death Of Husband

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Court of Appeals has expanded the state's law on self-defense by ordering a new trial for a Rutherford County woman who killed her sleeping husband after 20 years of abuse so severe that a psychologist likened her to a prisoner of war.

Judy Ann Laws Norman, indicted on a charge of first-degree murder, was convicted of voluntary manslaughter last year and sentenced to six years in prison for shooting her husband, John Thomas, in the head in June 1985.

Norman had forced his wife into prostitution, made her eat dog and cat food and often made her bark like a dog, witnesses said at her trial in Rutherford County.

A three-judge panel of the North Carolina Court of Appeals ruled unanimously Tuesday that Judy Ann Laws Norman, of Rutherford County, was a victim of "severe battered spouse syndrome" and might have felt compelled to kill her husband to spare her life.

The trial brought forth a litany of alleged abuse, the opinion said. Norman was accused of beating his wife with his fists, baseball bats, fly swatters and shoes. He sometimes abused the woman in front of friends to "show off," witnesses said.

When Mrs. Norman was pregnant with the youngest of her five children, her husband beat and kicked her down a flight of stairs, causing the baby to be born prematurely, the opinion said.

The day before his death, he was released from jail after being charged with drunken driving. Authorities were summoned to the Norman home twice that day — once in response to a reported domestic disturbance and the second time because Mrs. Norman had taken an overdose of pills.

Norman interfered with emergency personnel, the opinion said, saying his wife deserved to die and that "she ain't nothing but a dog."

The next day, after beating his wife repeatedly, Norman fell asleep. Mrs. Norman took her baby to her mother's home, fearing the infant's crying would awaken Norman and provoke more abuse, the opinion said.

Mrs. Norman got a pistol at her mother's house, returned home and shot her husband.

Candidates Begin Lining Up For Second Seat On Court

By ERICA JOHNSTON
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Now that legislative leaders have agreed to support a second Superior Court judgeship for Robeson County, the race is on for a minority candidate to be appointed to the seat.

Pembroke lawyer Dexter Brooks Tuesday he thought his name would be submitted to Gov. Jim Martin for appointment to the seat because he has the support of many minority lawyers in the county.

But the campaign manager for slain judicial candidate Julian Pierce, whose shooting spawned the movement that eventually led to the proposal for a second judicial seat, said Brooks' remarks were premature.

"It's surprising to me he would be out front with that," said Harvey Godwin, a Lumbiee who managed Pierce's campaign for Superior Court judge. Godwin said Brooks had been approached by Pierce's supporters immediately after Pierce was killed March 26 and had been asked to run in the fallen activist's place. Brooks turned them down, he said.

"He would be an excellent judge," Godwin said Tuesday. "He's highly qualified ... this just seems a little premature."

Godwin said he did not know when the Pierce campaign would make a recommendation.

Brooks said he had spent the afternoon talking with minority members of the Robeson County bar and leaders in the Indian community. He said he had found unanimous support.

Horace Locklear, a Lumbiee and a Lumberton lawyer, said that he had talked with Brooks and that he supported Brooks' effort to become the appointee. He said other members of the bar supported him as well.

Locklear earlier said he has been asked to submit his name for consideration for the judgeship.

Locklear said he would "prefer not to do so," but added that he had not decided whether to throw his name into the hat.

The judgeship agreement came Monday during a three-hour meeting in Lumberton between Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, Robeson County legislators and members of Pierce's campaign committee. The proposal will go before state lawmakers when they convene for their short session in June.

Martin, who would appoint the second judge, said he supported the plan. He also said he would name a minority — probably a Lumbiee — to the post.

Pierce, a Lumbiee who was running against white district attorney Joe Freeman Britt, was shot to death at his home March 26 in what authorities say was a domestic dispute.

Britt is virtually assured of the first judgeship. Under state law, he clinched the Democratic Party's nomination with Pierce's death, and no Republican filed for the post.

"We're pleased" with the plan, said the Rev. Joy Johnson, chairman of Concerned Citizens For Better Group, a coalition of 10 local groups seeking change in Robeson County.

"I think we would have been in court for a long time if we had asked for a special session" to try to alter state laws in order to run another candidate to oppose Britt, Johnson said.

"Joe Freeman Britt has certain constitutional rights," said Johnson, who was in the meeting with Jordan Monday. "We felt that it would be more palatable to citizens of Robeson County to help relieve the tension here now."

The proposal would also leave a vacancy in the district attorney's office, thereby potentially opening another elected office for a Lumbiee or black, Johnson said. A replacement for Britt would be named until 1990, and then that person would have to run for re-election.

"We'd like to see a minority appointed," he said. "We're looking with great anticipation for that. Two seats (the superior court judgeship and the district attorney's post) are possible."

"This is going to open up some doors," Locklear said.

But both Locklear and Johnson acknowledged that many people don't support the two-judge proposal.

"We're having to sell them on this item," Locklear said. "No, they're not completely satisfied. But I think if the leadership gets out in the community and shows them, it will be all right."

"They think they ought to have a choice in the primaries in May," when Britt's name will be the only one on the ballot for the superior court judgeship, Johnson said. "They don't want to see Britt run unopposed. But you've got to face realities."

"The people who are really concerned are doing something about it," Johnson said. "We're sitting down, and working on better jobs, better opportunities. It's going to take all of us to do it. We've got to be able to compromise."

Jordan Says Democratic Primary Is Crucial Test

By JOHN FLESHER

Associated Press Writer
Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan has virtually ignored his little-known Democratic opponents in the May 3 primary, but he says he doesn't want his campaign organization to take the primary lightly.

"This is our opportunity to test our organization," Jordan said Tuesday. "We take it serious. ... Strange things happen when you have small turnouts so we'll be working to have our organization working."

Since declaring his candidacy Jan. 4, Jordan has focused on Republican

Gov. Jim Martin, who is seeking re-election and has no opponent for the GOP nomination.

Jordan's opponents are Billy Martin, a gas station attendant from Carthage; Carrol Crawford of Mount Ulla, James Lloyd of Salisbury and Bruce Friedman, an anti-nuclear candidate from Sylva. None has a serious campaign organization.

Jordan said he wasn't concerned that Democrats might confuse Billy Martin with Jim Martin, though he acknowledged that in past elections Frank Jordan had benefited from having the same last name as Bob Jordan.

Frank Jordan, of Rockingham County, has run for statewide office several times and is seeking the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor this year.

"Frank Jordan has been following me around for about 10 years now," Bob Jordan said. In 1984, Frank Jordan finished second in the race for the GOP nomination for lieutenant governor.

On another issue, Jordan said he was not concerned that the state

Democratic ticket would suffer if Jesse Jackson wins the party's presidential nomination.

In 1984, many Democrats said Walter Mondale was a drag on the Democratic ticket in North Carolina.

Some party leaders across the nation are said to be worrying privately that the same thing could happen if Jackson, who is proving more successful in Democratic primaries and caucuses than had been expected, confounds the experts by winning the nomination.

"When you look at George Bush and when you look at potential candidates we have the Democratic Party will be more competitive in 1988 than it was in 1984," Jordan said.

Jordan said he would merge his campaign with those of other Democrats after securing the nomination and that the presidential nominee would be invited to do likewise.

"We don't want to have them walking down one side of the street and us walking down the other side," he said.

Prisoners Transferred

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Two Lumbee Indians held in Cumberland County Jail since Feb. 12 on charges of taking hostages at The Robesonian newspaper in Lumberton have been moved to the Onslow County Jail in Jacksonville.

Eddie Hatcher, 30, and Timothy Bryan Jacobs, 19, of Pembroke are being held without bond pending trial in U.S. District Court.

Cumberland County Sheriff Morris Bedsole said Tuesday that the transfers were the result of a demand by the state Department of Human Resources to relieve crowding in the county jail.

Bedsole said the Division of Facility Services of the DHR notified him on March 24 that a plan for corrective action in several areas must be submitted to the division by April 25.

The sheriff said the move is not related to any pressure or problems with friends and supporters of Hatcher and Jacobs.

Hatcher and Jacobs were indicted by a federal grand jury on Feb. 9 and were initially placed in the federal correctional facility in Butner.

They were transferred to Cumberland County after defense attorneys and the U.S. Attorney's office filed a joint motion asking for the move.

Defense attorney Bruce Cunningham Jr. of Southern Pines, who is Hatcher's attorney, said the men were being moved to Fayetteville because it would be closer to his office.

Parachutist's Death Is Ruled Accidental

LOUISBURG, N.C. (AP) — Investigators say there are no indications of foul play or suicide in the death of a veteran parachutist who jumped from a plane without a parachute and fell 10,500 feet.

Franklin County Sheriff's Capt. Ralph Brown said Tuesday the death of Ivan Lester McGuire Saturday was an accident, although "a man who has jumped 800 times ought to remember his parachute."

McGuire, 35, was carrying a video camera mounted on his helmet and was filming an instructor and a student at Franklin County Sports Parachute Center. The videotape was mangled in the crash, but salvaged by investigators.

The videotape showed that McGuire jumped from the airplane and that the jump was going smoothly until the parachutes worn by the instructor and the student opened and McGuire hurtled below them.

"It kind of appears he reached for his parachute and didn't have one," Brown said. "You could only see the instructor and the student falling on the video. But the release for his parachute is on his right hip, and when that right hand goes down, the left hand comes forward and it comes into camera view."

"Then the pictures get to moving real fast because he's approaching the ground at 150 mph. The only thing the camera shows is the ground coming."

McGuire's body was found in a wooded area about 1 1/2 miles from the airfield and had landed on the right side although "everything was contained in the skin and there was minimal bleeding," Brown said.

Brown said blood samples will show whether McGuire had alcohol or drugs in his system and test results should be ready in about a week.

Band Buses Collide On Florida Bridge

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Two tour buses full of North Carolina high school band members collided on a Jacksonville bridge, but none were seriously hurt, officials said. Of 31 people injured, 10 were taken to local hospitals, where they were treated for minor complaints and released. "They complained about sore backs and necks — real minor," said University Hospital spokeswoman Judi Skelton.

Officials at St. Luke's and Humana Orange Park also reported that students there were treated for bumps and bruises and released in good condition. The two buses collided on Interstate 295's Buckman Bridge crossing the St. Johns River in southern Duval County midmorning Tuesday, according to the Florida Highway Patrol. The America Charter Ltd. buses apparently had slowed in traffic, which was backed up because of another unrelated minor accident. One of the buses was unable to stop and ran into the rear of the other bus, according to reports. James L. Hullet, the driver of the second bus, was charged with reckless driving and having faulty brakes. Total damages to the buses was estimated at $50,000. The students, from St. Stephen's High School in Hickory, N.C., were en route to St. Petersburg, where the Marching Indians band was to compete in the Festival of States band contest this weekend. The Marching Indians continued their trip to St. Petersburg for the festival, where they were scheduled to arrive late Tuesday, according to Larry Helton, a chaperone. Another America Charter bus was sent to pick up the uninjured students and their luggage. The southbound lanes of the bridge were closed for about an hour after the accident, and traffic remained backed up at noon.

Excursion

ALBEMARLE, N.C. (AP) — Whit Cannon figured at age 72 he needed to slow down a little and take in the sights — so he is making the 700-mile trip to Mississippi State for his 50th college reunion by bicycle. "It is something I have always wanted to do," the white-haired Mississippi native said. "Besides, it might just be of some inspiration for those of advancing maturity to show them they can still do whatever they set their minds to do." The 72-year-old retired veterinarian and his friend, Darrell Jernigan, left Tuesday on the 10-day trip. The two plan to ride at least 75 miles a day on the journey. Cannon graduated from Mississippi State with a degree in business administration and went on to Auburn, where he earned his doctor of veterinary medicine degree in 1944.

Tobacco Market

WASHINGTON (AP) — The flue-cured tobacco markets at Carthage and Aberdeen, N.C., will be administered as a single auction market beginning with the 1988 marketing season, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday. Ninety-seven percent of the growers who voted in a mail referendum last month favored the merger, officials said. At least a two-thirds vote was required for approval. The Carthage and Aberdeen markets began operations in 1942. The combined operation will be called the Carthage-Aberdeen Tobacco Auction Market.

Fire Death

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A disabled Burlington man died in a house fire Tuesday after he was overcome by heat and smoke, authorities say. Arthur Lee Burton, 46, who was paralyzed after suffering a stroke a year ago, was found lying in the bed in the back bedroom of the home during the 8:46 a.m. blaze, according to Chief J.G. Johnson of the Burlington Fire Department. Johnson said the preliminary report indicated that the fire started after Burton's mother, Fannie Burton, refilled a kerosene heater and spilled some of the fuel. Fannie Burton escaped injury.

Papers Say Hardin Will Go To UNC

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Drew University President Paul Hardin is expected to be recommended as the next chancellor of University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Friday, two newspapers are reporting today. New York University Chancellor Jay Oliva, the other finalist for the job, told the Durham Morning Herald Tuesday that he had withdrawn his name from consideration last Wednesday after his interview with UNC President C.D. Spangler Jr. Oliva said in a telephone interview that he withdrew primarily because of "my affection for my own institution. UNC was just great, but I prefer to be where I am." Hardin, reached at his home in Madison, N.J., declined to comment on his selection. "I really have to take the position that it's in the hands of the Board of Governors at this point," he told the Durham newspaper. Both the Durham newspaper and the Greensboro News & Record said sources, who declined to be named, had told them Spangler would present Hardin's name to the UNC Board of Governors for approval Friday morning. If approved by the board, Hardin would replace Chancellor Christopher C. Fordham III, who retires June 30. Spangler's recommendation for the post must be approved by the Board of Governors' personnel committee before being presented to the full board. The personnel committee is scheduled to meet just before the full board meeting. Board of Governors Chairman Philip Carson of Asheville would not comment on the matter Tuesday afternoon. He said, however, that the board has never rejected a president's nomination for chancellor. Both newspapers said Hardin has reservations at the Carolina Inn, a UNC-operated hotel on campus, beginning Thursday. Several people said Hardin was favored for the post in part because of his ties to North Carolina. A Charlotte native, he attended Duke University, briefly practiced law, and returned to Duke as a faculty member. He ran for Durham mayor in 1967, but lost. Hardin, 56, became president of Wofford College in Spartanburg, S.C., in 1968. He became president of Southern Methodist University in Dallas in 1972, where he tangled with the university's board of trustees over its reluctance to reform athletic programs. He resigned under pressure in 1974, and became president of Drew in 1975.

in Orlando, Fla., and April 19 in Nashville, Tenn. "These public meetings will be North Carolina's only chance to have input into the implementation of the Endangered Species Protection Program," said N.C. Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham. "To be sure that the program is designed and implemented in such a way that its purpose is served without adversely impacting agriculture in this state, every interested party needs to get involved in the process and have their say."

Sentence

WILMINGTON (AP) — A Columbus County man was sentenced Tuesday to two years in prison and ordered to pay more than $44,000 in restitution for burning his Wilmington coin laundry in 1986 and attempting to defraud an insurance company. Samuel Lester Hardie Jr., 42, of Lake Waccamaw pleaded guilty in December in Wilmington to federal arson and fraud charges. U.S. District Judge James C. Fox imposed the sentence in U.S. District Court in Wilmington.

School Merger

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — There will be a recount of the March 8 referendum in which consolidation of Robeson County's five school systems was approved. The merger — viewed by some as a must for education and by others as a threat of increased taxes and unfavorable school conditions — passed by 364 votes, 11,252 to 10,888. Save Our Schools Inc., a group against merger, had filed affidavits with the State Board of Elections asking for a recount after that request had been denied by the county board. The allegations said that in some precincts more ballots had been tabulated than the number of voters listed on the poll books. The foes on the issue agreed to a recount during a meeting of the county elections board Tuesday. Thomas Farr, a Raleigh lawyer representing Save Our Schools, read a statement that said both sides would agree to the outcome of the recount, barring major discrepancies.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III is trying to fill a key Justice Department post left vacant by a protest resignation, after settling for his second choice for the department's No. 2 post.

Meese announced Tuesday that he is recommending former American Bar Association president John C. Shepherd for the No. 2 job. He also said he has chosen Treasury Department enforcement chief Francis A. Keating for the department's No. 3 position, which had opened before six protest resignations rocked the department last week.

Still unfilled is the job of head of the department's criminal division.

The choices announced Tuesday drew support from the ranking Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee. Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina last week had conveyed congressional concern to Meese over problems at the Justice Department in the wake of the protest resignations by Deputy Attorney General Arnold Burns, Assistant Attorney General William Weld of the criminal division, and four of their aides.

Burns and Weld resigned out of concern that the nearly 11-month criminal investigation of Meese by independent counsel James C. McKay was hurting the Justice Department's operations and image.

FRANCIS A. KEATING II

JOHN C. SHEPHERD

Shepherd was Meese's second choice to replace Burns, after former federal appeals judge Arlin Adams of Philadelphia turned it down, citing a heavy private caseload.

Keating, a former FBI agent, would fill the post vacated by Associate Attorney General Stephen Trott, who is leaving the department to become a federal appeals court judge.

Thurmond said of Shepherd and Keating, "From what I now know about these two fine individuals I look forward to supporting their confirmation."

Meese said he probably will announce a recommended replacement for Weld after returning from a week-long trip to South America to discuss drugs with officials in several countries there.

A Justice Department source said Salvatore R. Martoche, now an assistant secretary in the Labor Department, had rejected a request from Meese to take Weld's job, assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division.

Martoche decided not to take the job "because of the taint factor" relating to the continuing criminal investigation of Meese, said the source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Meese declined to say whether he had offered Martoche the job, but said he had spoken to a number of people about it.

Keating was asked whether he had had second thoughts about accepting his appointment.

"Certainly the events of last week made me, as a professional, pause," he said. "But I have every confidence in the leadership of the department and the attorney general. I think with our new team here the operation of the department will continue."

Shepherd said he had no reservations about taking the job in the wake of Burns' protest resignation. But Shepherd did acknowledge Meese's continuing legal problems, saying "we all see that."

The White House allowed Meese to proceed with the replacements, despite a lack of completed FBI background checks. The move was an attempt to quell questions about Meese's ability to lead the department effectively in the aftermath of the Burns-Weld resignations.

Shepherd and Keating will begin serving shortly on an acting basis until after their nomination by President Reagan and Senate confirmation. Burns and Trott will stay on while Meese is in South America.

Such nominations normally are announced by the president, but Meese was allowed to announce them at a Justice Department news conference after checking with White House chief of staff Howard Baker.

Shepherd, who is 62, was ABA president in 1984-85 and is a partner in a St. Louis law firm. Meese said he "will be a highly distinguished and most welcome addition to the Justice Department."

Meese said Keating, 44, the assistant Treasury secretary for enforcement, "can hit the ground running" in the Justice Department's work combating illegal drugs.

Median Age Hits Record High

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are easing into their middle years, as growing numbers of maturing Baby Boomers boost the nation's median age to a record high of just over 32 years.

The 35-44 age group represents the leading edge of the post-World War II Baby Boom and is the fastest-growing segment of the U.S. population, the Census Bureau reported Tuesday.

And the population segments aged 85 and over and 75-

84 rank second and third in growth since 1980, the Bureau said.

This combination helped boost the nation's median age to 32.1 years as of last July 1, the highest ever.

"The 'Graying of America' is ... documented by its increasing age," observed bureau statistician Louisa Miller.

Up from 31.8 in 1986, the median means that half of all Americans are older than that age and half younger.

By race, blacks remain younger than whites, although both groups are maturing.

Number Of Americans Charged Overseas Jumps Dramatically

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of Americans caught in foreign drug busts jumped 22 percent last year, the State Department reported in an effort to scare U.S. tourists out of taking controlled substances on overseas vacations.

"As we approach the busy travel season, many Americans are getting ready for that long-awaited trip abroad; for some, the trip will become a nightmare," the department said Tuesday in a report to Congress.

Police abroad seized 1,242 Americans on drug charges last year, compared with 1,013 in 1986, the report said.

The biggest increases in drug-related arrests of Americans were in Mexico and Jamaica, where governments are under pressure from Washington to get tough on narcotics.

Of the 3,041 Americans taken into custody in foreign countries, 41 percent were suspected of drug violations.

"Americans have been arrested for possessing as little as a third of an ounce of marijuana," the report said.

It added: "Those Americans who assume there is no real danger in buying or carrying just a 'small' amount of drugs on their overseas trip may be in for a very unpleasant surprise."

"Many travelers also assume that, as American citizens, they are immune from prosecution under foreign laws."

That was underscored Tuesday by a Spanish court's conviction of Conan Owen, a 23-year-old Virginia photographer, on cocaine importation charges. Despite U.S. government belief that Owen was an innocent traveler duped by an acquaintance into carrying the drugs into Spain, he was sentenced to six years in jail.

The 10 countries that arrested the most Americans on all charges last year were Mexico, 990; Jamaica, 346; Canada, 267; the Bahamas, 196; West Germany, 128; Britain, 124; the Dominican Republic, 74; Japan, 60; Spain, 53 and Israel, 52.

At year's end, 596 Americans were serving jail sentences overseas.

Blue-Collar Vote Gives Dukakis Wisconsin Victory

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Michael Dukakis said today he is hoping for a repeat of his Wisconsin victory over Jesse Jackson as the 1988 Democratic presidential campaign moves on to delegate-rich New York.

The Massachusetts governor won his first Midwestern primary on the strength of the blue-collar vote Tuesday, helping to ease doubts about his appeal even as it was raising questions about Jackson's ability to turn his enthusiastic crowds into success at the polls.

Wisconsin also rang the closing bell for Paul Simon's campaign, giving the Illinois senator a last-place finish.

Albert Gore Jr. spent heavily but remained an also-ran in third place. Just as Simon did here, Gore has put all his chips on the New York primary on April 19.

"The people looked at us and made a decision as to who they thought had the strength and the experience and the values to lead this country ... Fortunately, I was on top," Dukakis said on NBC-TV's "Today" show. "I hope I can do the same in New York. I believe I can and go on and win the nomination."

Jackson, who appeared on "CBS This Morning," congratulated Dukakis for running "a good, effective campaign" in Wisconsin, but noted his own strong showings to date.

"Of 40 contests that have been run now, I've come in No. 1 or No. 2 in 30 of them and I have 250,000-plus popular vote lead and so at this stage of the campaign I feel very good."

The New York contest puts the spotlight on Gov. Mario Cuomo, who has often been mentioned as a potential draft at a deadlocked convention. But Dukakis' win is likely to tone down talk of drafting Cuomo or another Democrat.

The New York governor has not made an endorsement, but the Dukakis camp is hoping the Wisconsin win could put Dukakis in a good position to finally win the nod from his fellow governor.

There was a Republican primary in Wisconsin, but there were no doubts. Vice President George Bush, the nomination his in everything but name, bested Pat Robertson by a 10-1 margin.

In the Democratic battle, Wisconsin gave Dukakis the boost he had to have and perhaps pointed to a ceiling on Jackson's support.

"I hope it's a sign of things to come," said Dukakis of what he called "a great victory."

With 99 percent of the precincts reporting, Dukakis had 481,857 or 48 percent, to 285,575 or 28 percent for Jackson. Gore had 176,009 for 17 percent, while Simon drew only 48,877 about 5 percent.

Dukakis edged Jackson among blue-collar workers, network exit polls said, and won white union workers outright. That was good news for the Massachusetts governor, who needed to show he can win that group, which is key to the party's hopes in the fall.

Even in Kenosha County, home of the doomed Chrysler plant where Jackson had made a splash by joining the picket line, Dukakis won better than a 2-1 margin.

"I'm doing very well with working families ... because people see in me someone who doesn't just talk about jobs," Dukakis said.

The Massachusetts governor also won in Colorado's precinct caucuses, which were held Monday, even though the counting dragged into Tuesday.

With 77 percent counted, Dukakis won with 44 percent to Jackson's 37 percent. Uncommitted groups took 16 percent and Gore 3 percent.

In the Republican caucuses in Colorado, Bush won easily over Robertson.

Dukakis' campaign was in serious trouble after Jackson's stunning victory in the March 26 caucuses. But he has now won three of four events in the past eight days — adding Wisconsin and Colorado to his Connecticut primary win. Jackson won the Virgin Islands caucuses over the weekend.

"This is going to be a 15-round bout and it will be by a decision ... there's no such thing as a knockout punch," Dukakis said.

The delegate numbers showed why the Democratic race could continue to drag on. Dukakis moved ahead, but the party's rules splitting the delegates up among the top finishers kept Jackson close.

Despite his victory margin, Dukakis picked up on 43 delegates in Wisconsin to 26 for Jackson. Gore won 12.

In Colorado, Dukakis picked up 21 national convention delegates and Jackson 17. The other seven are uncommitted. That, plus partial Wisconsin results, left the AP delegate count this way: Dukakis 735.55; Jackson, 706.55; Gore 394.8; Simon, 170.5; and uncommitted 516.6. A total of 2,082 votes are need to win at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta.

Tuesday's results give Dukakis the momentum going into the New York primary, where 255 delegates are stake in the biggest single state thus far. Then comes the Pennsylvania primary, where the rules could allow Dukakis to win the lion's share of the delegates, on April 26.

Perhaps equally important, his victories this week give Dukakis new, stronger arguments to make to the senators and representatives who will be chosen as super delegates the same week as the New York primary.

With the pledged delegate count still close, the verdict of the unpledged super delegates — governors, Democratic National Committee members and members of Congress — could provide the numbers to give Dukakis a majority.

The news Tuesday was a great disappointment to Jackson, who had been riding a wave since March 26. His crowds were big across this mostly white state as he drew cheers from workers and farmers fired by his message. Jackson was on the covers of both Time and Newsweek as party leader began to ask if he could become the first black to win the Democratic nomination.

Jackson vowed to press on.

"I'm not inclined to pull the flower out of the vase after every race to see if the flower is still growing," Jackson said while campaigning in Arizona, which has caucuses later in the month.

"I'm a long distance runner ... It is a 50-state decathlon event. I feel good with our pace, our momentum, and our growth at this stage."

Jackson did win between 20 and 25 percent of the white vote, his best showing in a big state. The question for the civil rights leader is whether it is possible for him to do even better among white voters — a precondition for victories in many of the states to come.

High-Income Americans Find Numbers, And Taxes, Rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of high-income Americans has risen sharply during the Reagan administration, and so has their share of the total federal tax burden.

The 1 million or so couples and individuals whose incomes put them among the nation's wealthiest 1 percent of taxpayers paid 26.1 percent of all personal income taxes collected in 1986, the Treasury Department says. That share is up from 18.1 percent in 1981, when President Reagan took office.

In its study issued Tuesday, the department did not say what income level would place taxpayers into that highest 1 percent.

But it issued a parallel set of statistics showing that during the same period, the share borne by those making over $100,000 rose from 15.2 percent of the total to 30.6 percent.

Meanwhile, the portion of taxes paid by those with incomes under $50,000 — the majority of Americans — dropped from 66.8 percent in 1981, before enactment of across-the-board tax cuts, to 45.7 percent in 1986, the department said.

Those in between, making $50,000 to $100,000, paid the rest, with their share rising from 18 percent to 23.7 percent.

The Treasury attributed part of the higher tax payments by the wealthy to "the extraordinary level of capital gains realized in 1986 in anticipation of the 1987 rate increase on capital gains."

In 1986, the maximum tax rate on capital gains, which are profits from the sale of stock, real estate and other investments, was 20 percent. Knowing the rate would rise to 28 percent in 1987, investors sold billions of dollars worth of assets in the closing days of 1986, which boosted their total incomes for that year.

That sell-off helped capital gains account for nearly 25 percent of the total income of the richest 1 percent of Americans in 1986. In 1985, capital gains accounted for 15 percent; in 1981, 11 percent. By contrast, capital gains make up on the average less than 2 percent of the income of the other 99 percent of Americans.

The preliminary analysis is based on a sampling of tax returns filed last year, reflecting income earned in 1986.

The study made no attempt to fully explain the growing share of taxes paid by the richest Americans. However, once its analysis is complete, the administration is likely to claim that the increase results from the big 1981 across-the-board tax cut that Congress enacted at Reagan's behest.

That law slashed the top marginal rate from 70 percent to 50 percent. It since has been cut to 33 percent.

The administration reasons that reducing tax rates gives workers and investors incentive to produce and save more.

Mofford Takes Oath As Governor

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Democrat Rose Mofford, who began her government career 47 years ago as a secretary, was sworn in as Arizona's first female governor, saying she's proud of her new job but sad about how she got it.

Mrs. Mofford, 65, widely known as "Auntie Rose," commenced her term with wholesale housecleaning of the administration of Evan Mecham, the elected Republican governor convicted and removed from office Monday by a Senate court of impeachment.

She ordered Mecham's personal staff of about 20 off the payroll as of April 15, withdrew the names of 45 Mecham appointees from Senate consideration for now and said she would review agency chiefs to see who would stay.

Mrs. Mofford, who had been acting governor since Feb. 5, also promised to sign a tax increase, a policy opposed by the Mecham administration, but did not know how large it would be.

"I am relieved to have the 'acting' qualifier removed from in front of the title of this office, and I am moving forward with enthusiasm," Mrs. Mofford, who became Arizona's 18th governor, told a news conference.

"Little did I realize 47 years ago that this would happen," she told an invitation-only group of staff members in her protocol office earlier in the day.

Mecham, the first U.S. governor in 59 years to lose his job through impeachment conviction, told supporters Tuesday he isn't ready to give up politics.

"This is just another chapter in a book, and this book isn't near the end," he said. "I haven't yet determined what my course will be."

Also Tuesday, the Arizona Supreme Court allowed a pro-Mecham group to drop its challenge to the May 17 gubernatorial recall election. Concerned Arizona Voters said it wanted to dismiss its case because it now sees the recall as the former governor's last hope for regaining his office.

However, Mecham attorney Jerris Leonard said he does not believe Mecham can run in any election until 1990 because the Senate removed him from the four-year term he began in January 1987.

The Supreme Court could decide this week whether a recall election is necessary since Mecham was the target.

It is possible the election could remove Mrs. Mofford from office. Her chief of staff, Andrew Hurwitz, said he had been negotiating with acting Secretary of State Karen Osborne and Attorney General Bob Corbin in hopes of exempting Mrs. Mofford from the recall.

Corbin believes the recall should be held as scheduled, but Mrs. Osborne, a longtime Mofford aide, hopes to have it cancelled.

Mrs. Mofford has refused to comment about the recall, and a state resign-to-run law could put her in jeopardy if she campaigns actively.

"I have no idea," she said when asked about her plans for the recall election. "The courts are going to have to decide it."

Also uncertain was Mecham's ballot status.

Mrs. Mofford said she hoped to decide shortly on which nominations to resubmit and which agency officials to keep. Most of the nominees can continue serving in the interim and are on relatively minor boards and commissions.

She also said she planned to travel to Washington next week to lobby for Arizona as the site of the Superconducting Super Collider and to testify before Congress on the Central Arizona Project, a giant canal system.

Mrs. Mofford, known throughout government for her silver beehive hairdo and her stories about her days as a champion softball player, said she was proud to be the first woman in charge of the government where she has worked with 11 of the state's 17 previous governors, but added, "It's very sad that I had to be elevated this way."

She has been the elected secretary of state for the last nine years and had been serving as acting governor since Mecham was impeached by the state House in February. Arizona does not have a lieutenant governor.

Spain-Barefoot Vows Said

DISTRICT MEETING — A Farm Bureau Women's Leadership District Conference was held in Greenville Tuesday. Special guests included W.B. Jenkins, president, N.C. Farm Bureau, and Nancy Facey, Ag in the Classroom coordinator. They are pictured with Alma Worthington of Pitt County. Women attended from Hyde, Martin, Greene, Pitt, Wilson and Washington counties. (Reflector photo by Cliff Hollis)

ROSEBORO — The wedding ceremony of Bonita Bliss Barefoot and Reginald Coleman Spain took place Saturday in the Peniel Pentecostal Holiness Church at 6 p.m. Conducting the double-ring ceremony were the Revs. Noah B. Barefoot Jr. and Gene Sizemore.

Organist Deane Jackson of Fayetteville and soloist the Rev. Wiley Clark of Falcon presented nuptial music. The Rev. Charles Griffith of Roseboro was trumpeteer.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noah B. Barefoot of Roseboro, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Margaret Spain of Greenville, and the late Earl Spain.

Dawn Barefoot of Roseboro, sister of the bride, and Kathy Joyner of Charlotte were maids of honor.

Bridesmaids were Brenda Barefoot of Warrenton, sister-in-law of the bride, Pat Spain, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Erika Spain, niece of the bridegroom, both of Greenville, LaRue Shipp of Spring Lake, Jan Humphries of Charleston, S.C., Allyson James of Athens, Ga., and Kathy Castania of Fremont. Honorary attendants were Debbie Grady of Grimesland and Maria McDaniel of Ayden.

The best man was Leon Raymond Hardee of Greenville. Ushers were Donnie Spain and Keith Spain, both of Greenville, and Aaron Spain of Washington, D.C., all brothers of the bridegroom, Jeff Aldridge and Wes Jackson, cousin of the bride, both of Greenville, Shea McLawhorn of Hookerton, Scott Brady of Atlanta, and Carlton Venters of Ayden.

The bride wore a formal gown of ivory bridal satin. The bodice had a sweetheart neckline accented with seed pearls on schiffli lace and Renaissance sleeves. The princess waistline flowed into a full skirt extending into a cathedral train. The gown was designed like the one worn by the bride's mother.

Each of the attendants wore a floor-length royal blue slipper satin gown. The bodice was overlaid with royal blue lace with a Sabrina neckline. The princess waistline was accented by a bow in back. Each carried a cascade bouquet of mixed flowers including cymbidium orchids and lilies.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

After a wedding trip to Treasure Cay, the couple will live in Greenville.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of East Carolina University. She is employed by Pitt County schools and he is a general contractor.

The mother of the bridegroom gave a rehearsal dinner. Pre-nuptial parties honoring the couple included a bridesmaids' luncheon, several miscellaneous showers and an afternoon reception.

Inventory Proves Waste

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a third-grader at Marion Street School in Lynbrook, N.Y. Our teacher, Mr. Freifeld, took the class down to the lunchroom to find out how many students threw out their lunches, because we talked about that letter in your column about how much they wasted in Arizona lunchrooms.

First we found out how many kids ate in the lunchroom every day. There were 252. Then we looked in the garbage cans and counted the whole sandwiches that were thrown out. There were 39 untouched sandwiches, still in their wrappers. There were 30 half-sandwiches still wrapped. Peanut butter and jelly was thrown out the most!

We figured that almost one out of every four people threw away all or half their lunch. With people starving all over the world, that is a lot of food to waste. It was enough to make you sick.

We counted the drinks, too. We found 22 whole cartons of drink thrown out. Some were milk, but most were juice.

There was a whole pile of fruit — apples, oranges and bananas — that was thrown into the garbage. Good grapes, too.

Our class decided that maybe the parents should ask their kids what they want for lunch, then maybe the kids wouldn't throw out so much. Thank you. — CLAYTON COHN, LYNBROOK, N.Y.

DEAR CLAYTON: Thanks for reporting the results of your lunchroom investigation. And how lucky you are to have a teacher like Mr. Freifeld, who makes learning fun and memorable.

DEAR ABBY: I could have written the letter from the lady in Arizona who was appalled at the waste of food at the schools. My husband is also a custodian at an elementary school, and he sees good food thrown away every day.

Once the food is served, if it's not eaten, it cannot be given away or served again — it must be thrown into the garbage can. Untouched trays of lasagna, potato salad, fruit salad and jello molds are thrown away. Even unopened cartons of chocolate milk and orange juice that could be used the next day are thrown out.

By the way, it's the children who get free lunches who throw out most of the food, so it's our tax dollars that go into the garbage cans! — FROM OHIO (DON'T SAY WHICH TOWN)

DEAR FROM OHIO: I regret to say that your letter was one of many that carried the same message. A pity that all edible food and unopened cartons can't be sent to the city mission to feed the hungry and homeless.

DEAR ABBY: An Arizona reader was appalled at the waste of good food by the children in the school lunchroom where she and her husband work.

I feel exactly the same way about what's happening in our area. My son has laughed about the frequent "food fights" in the school cafeteria. The kids see nothing wrong in throwing food at each other. What a terrible waste! — BALTIMORE

Lacy Pattern Stitch Accents Top

Welcome spring and summer with an elegant knit top designed to be made with an acrylic blend yarn with the feel of silky cotton. A touch of rayon in the blend gives shimmering highlights while the rippled texture creates visual interest. Graceful, banded V-neck and cap sleeves accentuate the lovely, lacy pattern stitch of this figure-flattering design featuring comfort and versatility for any time of year.

The gauge is 5 1/2 stitches to the inch, and easy-to-follow directions are given for small, medium and large sizes with finished bust measurements of 40, 42 and 44 inches respectively. Recommended for intermediate knitters.

To obtain directions for making the Soft Elegance Top, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-040388 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-040388 by sending a check or money order for $22.95 for small and medium or $25.95 for large to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, instruction leaflet and acrylic yarn in your choice of peach or royal blue.

Dear Pat: Having learned the hard way, I realize the importance of making a sample swatch to check my gauge for any knit garment. Stockinette stitch presents no problem, but when a pattern stitch is involved, how do you determine the correct number of stitches to use for the swatch when you are not informed of the stitch multiple? — Alice M., Santa Ana, Calif.

Dear Alice: This is a puzzler for many people, and most just decide not to bother with the test swatch, which always should be made. Since you included a copy of your pattern stitch, I'll use it as an example of how to figure out the multiple.

First, a stitch multiple refers to the exact number of stitches needed for each pattern stitch repeat plus any extra stitches used at the beginning and/or end of the row. Your pattern stitch will not work out unless you have the correct number.

In Alice's pattern, the first row is worked as follows. Step 1: Knit 2. Step 2: Purl 1, knit 1, purl 1, knit 4, purl 1, knit 1. Step 2 is to be repeated over and over to the end of the row.

If you count the number of stitches involved in Step 2, you will see that 9 stitches are required for each pattern repeat and you also need 2 stitches for Step 1, which is repeated only once. Therefore, your stitch multiple is 9 plus 2.

For your swatch, cast on any number of stitches evenly divisible by 9 and then add 2 more. For example, you could cast on 20 stitches (18 plus 2) for your swatch — just the right size with a 5-stitch-per-inch gauge.

If this pattern had extra stitches at the end of the row after the last pattern repeat, the multiple would have been 9 plus 4. If you will just study the stitches listed in the first row, you will easily determine your correct stitch multiple.

Patterns combining several different pattern stitches on each row, as often found in Aran Isle knits, are a different story. Most direction writers list the gauge tested in stockinette stitch for this type of pattern, but if they do not, you will find it difficult — if not impossible — to test your gauge accurately on a small swatch.

Here's a suggestion to eliminate that problem. If the sleeves have basically the same pattern stitches, start on a sleeve. There will be fewer total stitches involved than on the back or front, and you will be able to tell after you have worked 4 to 6 inches above the cuff if your gauge is correct.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

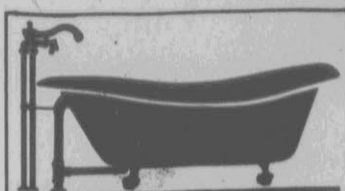

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

PURPLE GRASS?

LONDON (AP) — It's just a quirk of evolution that we don't have purple lawns, according to a report in Discover magazine.

Biologist Andrew Goldsworthy of London's Imperial College said an obscure purple-hued bacterium uses a chemical other than chlorophyll to make energy from sunlight. Goldsworthy believes organisms such as this purple example thrived on earth long before the common green, chlorophyll-fueled plants took over.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices edged higher in early trading today, resuming a rally that began late in the previous session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 5.47 points to 2,002.98 as of 10 a.m. EDT.

The volume of shares traded totaled 20.01 million.

Prices advanced on the New York Stock Exchange in spite of a rise in the federal funds rate, a key interest rate that is influenced by the Federal Reserve.

The rise in the fed funds rate to slightly above 7 percent caused some investors to worry that the Federal Reserve was clamping down on monetary policy, which could hurt stock prices.

Advancing issues outnumbered declining ones about 3 to 2 in early trading, with 559 issues stocks higher, 367 lower and 472 unchanged.

Utilities led the NYSE's list of most active issues. Among other actively traded issues, Tandy was up 1/2 to 42 1/2, PepsiCo was up 1/2 to 35 1/4 and Schlumberger was up 1/2 to 34 1/2.

F.W. Woolworth was down 1/2 to 56 1/2. The stock shot up more than $11 a share in the previous two sessions after a group led by Dart Group Corp. Chairman Herbert Haft expressed interest in acquiring a stake in the retailer.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average, down at midday, rose 16.91 points to close at 1,997.51.

Advancing issues outnumbered losers by about 3 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 911 up, 585 down and 467 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 135.29 million shares, against 182.24 million in the previous session.

Vote Expected On Sign Rules

"Where signs are strictly controlled," Coble said, the economic climate of the area is enhanced.

"I urge you to support the ordinance regulating billboards on the John P. East Freeway," Ruth Treva-tion of Greenville said, suggesting that commissioners will have "no second chance" to keep the roadway free of signs. Bob Wendley of Greenville said, "I want to live in a county that is clean and beautiful. To preserve these things is a grave responsibility."

"There are better forms of advertising than billboards," Windley told commissioners.

Two of the speakers, Betty Walker of Greenville and Chris McCoy, representing the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, voiced support for the ordinance, but questioned the planning board's intent to ban all signs along the U.S. 264 freeway.

Ms. Walker, an attorney, told the board that the proposed ordinance is "one of the clearest, well drafted ordinances dealing with outdoor advertising signs I've ever encountered. It's a good ordinance and will serve the county well."

But she said, "My understanding is that the planning board did not intend to prohibit billboards on (U.S.) 264. I would urge the County Commissioners to consider that."

McCoy, too, said "my recollection" is that "a window was left open for businesses in that area" by the planning board.

But McCoy said the chamber "is in support" of the ordinance. "We are in favor of it."

J.T. Williams of Greenville said "to some degree I believe there's a place for signs." And he told the board that he thought the proposed ordinance is "good." But Williams added, "I hope you don't go beyond this."

The only opposition to the ordinance was voiced by Sam Smith, a landowner along the U.S. 264, who has signed an agreement with a company to locate two billboards on his property.

"I have a financial interest in this area," he told commissioners. "If people ... want parks, let them get together and build parks," Smith suggested.

At the March planning board hearing, Smith said a ban on signs along the freeway would hurt landowners who would lease land to sign companies and would "eliminate businesses" along the roadway.

After the hearing, commissioners set a workshop meeting for Monday to further consider the sign ordinance and to discuss architects who have submitted proposals to do a master plan for the location of county facilities, including a new jail.

The board on Monday interviewed representatives of five firms which are seeking the master plan contract.

Crisis Stirs Debate Over Credit

ty stand-in could run against Britt.

Martin met separately last week with Pierce supporters and with Britt, who spoke against a special session and declared himself the lawful nominee.

Martin said he wanted to consult over the weekend with Jordan, House Speaker Liston Ramsey and others. Martin told reporters he had planned to announce a decision after Tuesday's Council of State meeting and had been leaning toward calling the special session.

Under the agreement, Pierce backers agreed to drop their call for a special session and Jordan promised to support creation of the second judgeship when the Legislature meets this summer.

Martin said he would appoint a minority — probably an Indian — to the judgeship. The appointment would take effect Jan. 1, 1989, and the judge would serve four years before standing for election.

The Robeson County situation remained outside the gubernatorial campaign fray before Tuesday, when Martin and Jordan strategists sought to put a favorable spin on news coverage of the events. Both candidates, however, said they did not consider the matter political.

Martin and Jordan have boasted of their leadership abilities and effectiveness while accusing each other of deficiencies in both areas.

At a news conference, Jordan said he had no criticism of Martin's handling of the Robeson situation. But Jordan implied he had been more effective and said he had felt compelled to act because Martin hadn't.

"All I know was the issue was coming to a head," Jordan said. "I felt the deadline (for Martin's decision on the special session) was Tuesday morning ... I didn't see anybody else coming forth with a firm proposal."

Jordan said he didn't know whether the Robeson incident would surface in his campaign but said he viewed it as "an issue where I can show I got something done without hammering the opposition."

Eudy said in an interview that

Martin wasted time consulting with Democratic leaders because "he wanted to share the political risk" of his decision on the special session.

Hawke, however, said at a news conference the Democrats were making a political football of an incident that shouldn't be part of the campaign.

Women Released

The women were identified as Fadel's sisters.

IRNA, monitored in Nicosia, said that in their last contact with the control tower today, the hijackers asked for breakfast, oxygen, a doctor, and a generator to keep the air conditioning working. It quoted them as telling the airport tower that "some of the passengers are feeling unwell."

The hijackers also said they did not believe "negotiations between them and Iranian negotiators at the airport here would prove useful," IRNA said.

They repeated a threat to force the plane to take off for an unspecified destination.

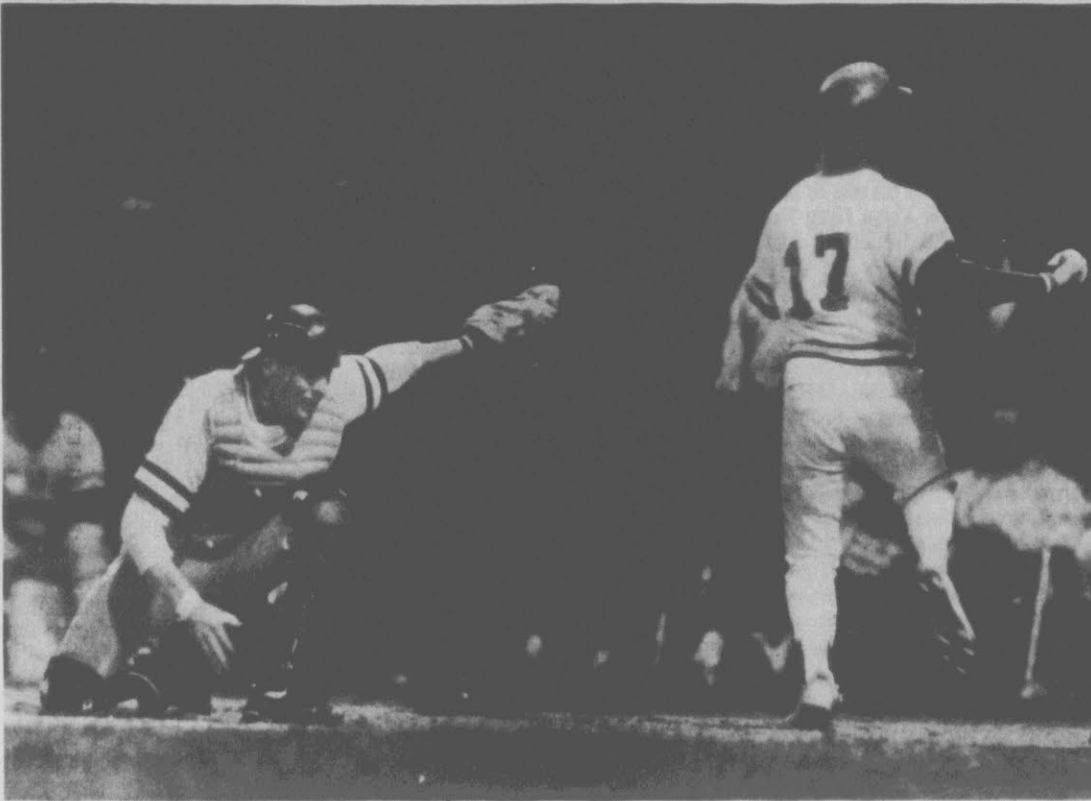

There have been conflicting reports in the Iranian media over whether the Boeing 747 has been refueled since it landed Tuesday. Kuwait has asked Iran not to allow the jetliner to take off.

The Iranians said the plane will have to leave if the crisis is not resolved soon but surrounded it to keep it from taking off, Iranian media said.

The hijackers freed 24 women after negotiations with Iran's Deputy Prime Minister, Ali Reza Moayyeri, Iran's official media said. Another passenger, a Jordanian with a heart condition, was freed Tuesday.

The nationalities of the hijackers were not disclosed, but their demand echoed that of Iranian-backed Shiite Moslems holding American hostages in Lebanon — that Kuwait release 17 militants convicted in the December 1983 bombings of the French and U.S. embassies and other targets in Kuwait.

Iran accuses Kuwait of aiding Iraq in the 7 1/2-year-old Iran-Iraq war. Kuwait has been a target of Iranian-backed Shiite terrorists for years and has jailed scores for sabotage and bombings since 1983.</

McGraw's Leadership Is Keeping Bucs In The Race

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Jay McGraw's first experiences in baseball came when he was five years old. His older brother's midget team used to let him drag bats for them — and occasionally — when the score got lopsided enough, they might even let him bat.

Nowadays, having McGraw at the plate would be the norm rather than the rare occasion. The senior outfielder from Charlotte is the number two hitter on the East Carolina University baseball team and has just been named as the Colonial Athletic Association's Player of the Week.

The honor came after McGraw banged out five hits in 13 at bats in five games last week, all five victories for the Pirates. Three of those were against CAA conference rival William & Mary. The five hits included two doubles, a triple and two home runs. He drove in seven runs, stole three bases and scored nine runs himself. He also drew nine walks during the five games — a witness that opposing pitchers don't want to give him anything to hit if they can help it.

"Jay is a very, very tough, hard-nosed competitor," ECU Coach Gary Overton said. "He's the kind of East Carolina baseball player that the school has achieved its tradition for having."

Overton said that former Pirate coaches who have watched McGraw play have agreed with him that McGraw is the typical ECU player. "He's a leader on the field and one of the most coachable players I've been associated with," Overton added.

And that carries quite a bit of territory. Overton, as a student manager, a graduate assistant, an assistant coach and the head coach, has been around since 1969.

"Jay is in the top 10 percent in terms of quality of the players I've seen in the 60's, 70's and 80's," Overton said. "There are just a handful who compare to him, people like Ron Staggs, Chris Bradberry, John Hallow and Raymie Styons."

The Player of the Week honor is the second earned by McGraw. Ironically, the one he got last year came after the Pirates swept William & Mary, too.

"I think I'll always remember Jay from that series," Overton said. "In the third game, we were down by one with two outs in the last inning. They purposely walked Calvin Brown to get to Jay, and loaded the bases. As soon as the ump called ball four, Jay ran to the plate. He hit the first pitch up the middle to drive in two runs and win the game for us."

"I'll always remember him from that," he said.

McGraw has seen a lot of baseball in his time, but says that he's learned more at East Carolina than he ever thought he could.

"Coach Overton and Coach (Billy)

Best (ECU aide) know so much about the game," McGraw said.

Coming up through the ranks of Little League, junior high and high school baseball, McGraw has played every position, but admits that he likes the outfield best.

"I played left field when I was in high school, so moving back to left (this year) hasn't been much of a problem. There was more of a transition when I came here and moved into right field," McGraw said. "I think it's more of a challenge to play right field. You have longer throws to make."

McGraw underwent arm surgery in the off-season to correct an accumulation of problems and is still in the process of recovering from that.

"He's still not back where he was," Overton said, "but he should be better than ever once he does get over it."

"I love the outfield, but I love catching, too," McGraw said. "You have to concentrate when you play either position, but I guess you have to concentrate more when you're catching."

A fine hitter at North Mecklenburg High School in Charlotte, McGraw also played basketball and football and wrestled for the Vikings, earning eight letters. He was twice named to the all-conference team in baseball and was all-state in 1984, hitting .517.

A .303 career hitter for the Pirates, McGraw is at a .333 pace this year. He said the key to hitting is day-to-day work and his coaches, as well as a season in the Valley League.

"In the Valley League, you see everyone's ace because you've got to be good to be there (pitching)," McGraw said. "Coach Overton and

Moye's Two-Hitter Helps Rose Defeat Conley, 5-1, In Pitt Tournament Finals

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — In a game that figured to be close, any lead would probably be a key for either pitcher. In this case, that happened to be Rose's Tom Moye.

Moye threw a two-hitter with four strikeouts and one walk to help the Rampants defeat D.H. Conley, 5-1, Tuesday in the finals of the Pitt County Easter Tournament.

4-A Rose took a 2-0 lead in the top of the fourth and steadily pulled away from the 3-A Vikings for the win.

"I think the key was the defense," said Moye, who was named the tournament's most valuable player. "It always is harder to pitch when you get behind. It helps a lot to have a lead."

"We were more up for the game than they were. We knew what (Conley starter) Bronswell (Patrick) had this time. It helps a lot when the first couple of guys get on. The first couple of innings, we didn't do much but the team stuck together."

And things started happening for the Rampants in the fourth. Axel Smith opened the inning with a double, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on an error on the catcher.

Patrick had struck out Dave Daniels on the play, but catcher Robbie Nichols dropped the ball and then misfired on his throw to first allowing Smith to score and Daniels to reach base.

Daniels stole second and after two outs, scored on a single by designated hitter John Bolen for a 2-0 Rose lead.

"After those two runs I felt good because Tom normally gets stronger as the game goes on," said Rose coach Ronald Vincent.

But Conley came right back in the bottom of the fourth to narrow the gap to 2-1, and the Vikings had the opportunity to do more.

With one out, Brian Bullock drew Moye's only walk of the game and went to third on an error that allowed Patrick to reach. Patrick was put out by the second baseman on a double play attempt which allowed Sherwood Wilder to reach and Bullock to score, making it 2-1.

But Conley was still very much in the game. The Vikings had the tying run on base and Kervin Vines followed by reaching on an error. But then Wilder was picked off trying to steal third, ending the inning.

Rose then added two more runs in the top of the fifth as Tim Moore singled with one out and went to second on a base hit by David Leisten. An error then moved Moore to third.

Smith brought in Moore with a sacrifice fly and an error on the throw home allowed Leisten to score to make it 4-1.

Rose then added an insurance run in the sixth as Jay Surles drew a walk with two away, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Heath Clark's triple for the game's final run.

"They've got a good ballclub, probably the best we'll face all year," Conley coach Allan Wilson said. "Against a team like Rose, you can't afford to get down. They capitalize on mistakes."

Gray Mills, the No. 9 hitter for the Vikings, got the first hit off Moye when he singled in the fifth inning. William Crandall had reached base on an error during the previous at bat, but Conley stranded them there. The Vikings then went out three in a row in the sixth.

In the seventh, Vines opened with a single and went to second on a wild pitch, but he went no further as a strikeout, a popout and a groundout ended the game.

Patrick went the distance for the Vikings, giving up nine hits while striking out 10 and walking one.

"Moye was tough to hit," Wilson said. "Patrick has to face nine tough batters while we've got maybe three or four that can hit."

"With what he had to face, he pitched well. They got some infield hits but they never unleashed on him like I've seen them do for the last two days. You probably saw two of the best pitchers in the East out there."

Vincent said he had hoped Rose could eventually wear Patrick down.

"Bronswell Patrick is a class pitcher," he said. "Our boys had to battle him. One of the things we talked about before the game, they have to get us out for seven innings. We had to make every at bat count."

And they did, specifically at the top of the order where Moore and Leisten both went 2-3 with one run scored. But the Rampants also got good support throughout their lineup.

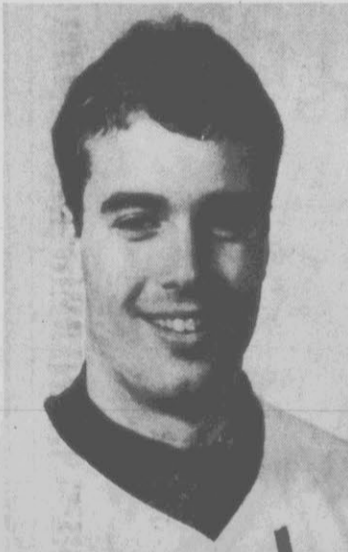

"Jay Surles got one rally started and Heath (Clark) finished off another with a triple," Vincent said. "That's all we want them to do, get on base and wait for the big boys. The big hit might have been Bolen's."

"It was a fine high school baseball game. Those first two runs made a big difference. Tom just keeps coming after you and you have to talk about our defense with Brian Wille and Heath."

Conley falls to 6-3 while Rose moves to 10-0.

The Vikings return to action Tuesday at Washington while Rose gets back on the field the same day at home against Wilson Beddingfield.

Smilin' Jack At The Masters

Jack Nicklaus, a six-time winner of the Masters Golf title, smiles during a practice session Tuesday at the Augusta National Golf

Masters Tourney Is Golf's Annual Rite Of Spring

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — It is the Masters. Nothing more, and certainly nothing less.

It is golf's annual rite of spring, a renewal, a new beginning.

It is a golf tournament that transcends golf; it is a happening. Alistair Cooke and John Updike, hardly the ordinary golf writers, are frequent visitors.

It has an aura, a mystique that belongs to this place and to no other.

It defies description except to say it is the Masters. "There is something very special about the Masters, about Augusta National," said Jack Nicklaus, the only six-time winner of this title.

"I start thinking of Augusta the first time I pick up a club every year," Tom Watson said.

"Augusta is golf," Ben Crenshaw added. "It is history and legend and lore and tradition. I'll play it, and love every minute of it, as long as I live."

"There are so many memories," Arnold Palmer said. It is those memories that help define the Masters — Roberto de Vicenzo, in tears after signing an incorrect scorecard, Gene Sarazen's double-eagle, the grace and courage of Ed Sneed in defeat.

The Masters isn't the championship of anything, except perhaps the Augusta National Golf Club. The other members of golf's Big Four, the Grand Slam tournaments, have built-in reasons for importance. The U.S. Open is the championship of the United States. The British Open is the championship of the rest of the world. The PGA is the championship of a national organization.

The Masters has its own reasons for grandeur. There is the association with its founder, Robert Tyre Jones, the immortal Bobby, the personification of golf at its greatest.

There is the course, created by Jones on the rolling hills of a one-time nursery called Fruitlands.

In its fashion, it is perhaps the most beautiful course of them all, providing the soft splendor of southern spring amid the dogwood and azalea, jasmine and wisteria, redbud and magnolia.

There is the white, pillared clubhouse with its wrap-around veranda where the great and grand of golf gather to swap stories of other days. Sarazen, now 86, holds court there today as he has done for a half-century.

It is the fading pictures of early Masters — Cliff Roberts and Grantland Rice playing poker, a skinny, boyish Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan puffing on a cigarette during a 1954 playoff with Sam Snead.

It is Rice and the other major sports writers — the giant voices of their times — stopping off at Augusta on their way north from baseball spring training, giving Jones' gathering of his old friends the national exposure that meant so much to the tournament's acceptance.

It is the Eisenhower cottage, where the president stayed during his frequent visits. It is Amen Corner, that fearful little loop threaded by Rae's Creek where Larry Mize scored his playoff pitch-in birdie last year.

It is DeVicenzo's "I am a stupid" declaration after signing away the 1968 title, and Nicklaus' journey into nostalgia in 1986, and Cliff Roberts' unrelenting iron will, and the throat-grabbing drive up Magnolia Lane, and the hills where Hagen strode.

It is the green jacket.

It is the ghost of the youthful Palmer, sharing a laugh with Ike, Gary Player's 7-iron shot that won in 1978. It is Tom Watson in '77, destroying the myth that he couldn't win under pressure. It is Jimmy Demaret, whose left-to-right action made it impossible for him to win here, but winning three times nevertheless.

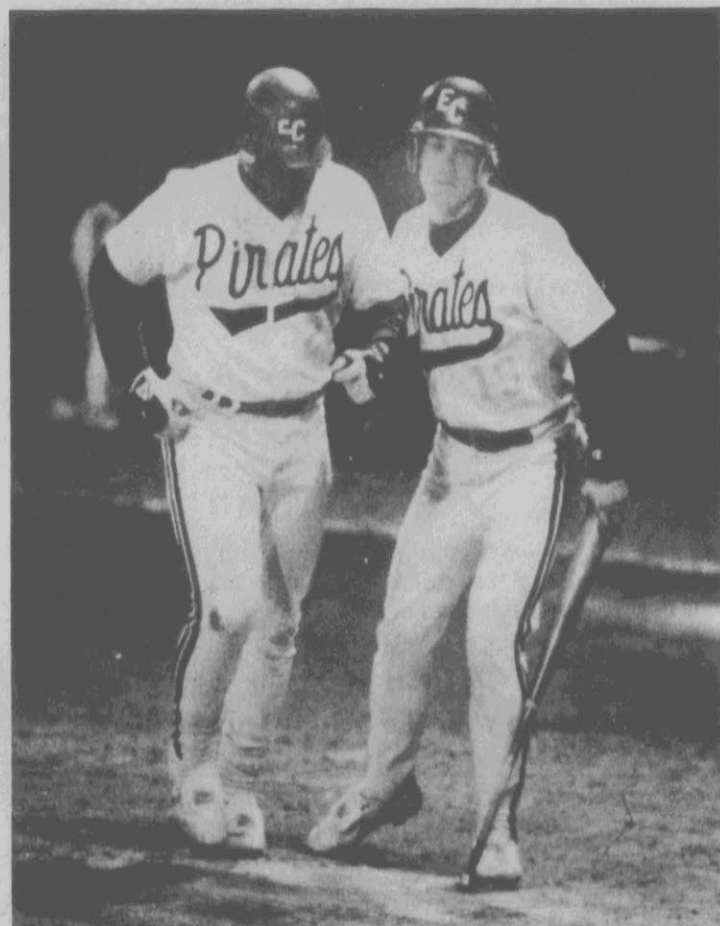

It is the Masters. Nothing more. Certainly nothing less.

Reports Says Lefty To Be Named At JMU

HARRISONBURG, Va. (AP) — Former Maryland basketball coach Lefty Driesell, saying "I can't tell you anything," declined comment on a published report that he would be named coach at James Madison.

The Daily News-Record said in today's editions that it learned from an unnamed source at the school that Driesell, forced to resign as Maryland coach in October 1986 in the wake of Len Bias' death from a cocaine overdose, would be named to the post.

James Madison, an NCAA Division I school, called a 2 p.m. news conference today to announce the selection of a new coach.

Driesell would become the Dukes' fifth full-time coach since the school began its men's program in 1969. He would succeed John Thurston, who resigned during the 1987-88 season.

Driesell, who won 524 games in nine years at Davidson and 17 at Maryland, said Tuesday in a telephone interview from his home in College Park, Md., that he couldn't comment on the James Madison job.

"I can't tell you anything," he said. "I'm sorry, but I just can't."

JMU Athletic Director Dean Ehlers would not comment when contacted late Tuesday.

"But I'll talk tomorrow," Ehlers said. Driesell has received overwhelming backing from James Madison alumni, said alumni director Steve Smith.

Smith said 90 percent of the alumni he has dealt with in the past few weeks have endorsed the hiring of Driesell.

"Very frankly, it's surprised me," he said. "I would have assumed that the problems at Maryland would have caused some more concern."

"Maybe we're just a forgiving group here at JMU," he said. Teachers at James Madison "have seen our academic reputation grow quite a bit. They wonder if the hiring of Lefty would change that," Smith said.

Driesell's players at Maryland had a 56 percent graduation rate. In the Bias case, a grand jury cleared Driesell of any criminal wrongdoing, but it was alleged that he directed players and an assistant coach to remove evidence of drug use from Bias' room after his death and before police began an investigation.

"I think many of us wonder exactly what kind of moral baggage he brings with him," said one James Madison faculty member who asked not to be identified.

Driesell reportedly will receive a base salary of $65,000 at James Madison, as well as a $10,000 bonus in lieu of retirement benefits. Driesell has seven years remaining on a 10-year pact with Maryland, but he confirmed Monday that Maryland will pay the difference between his JMU salary and his $150,000 contract with the Terrapins.

Two weeks after Thurston resigned and assistant Tom McCorry was named interim coach in late January, Driesell was asked if he would be interested in the James Madison vacancy.

But he didn't meet James Madison officials face-to-face until early March, when school president Ronald Carrier and Ehlers escorted him on a campus tour. Two weeks later, on March 21, Driesell was formally interviewed for the job, meeting with Ehlers and the school's search committee.

Driesell was one of three finalists whose names were given to Carrier by the search committee on March 24. Georgia Tech assistant coach Perry Clark also was among the finalists. Also interviewed were McCorry, Missouri assistant Rich Daly, Davidson coach Bobby Hussey, Bridgewater coach Bill Leatherman and Memphis State assistant Dave Loos.

Thurston became JMU's coach three years ago after spending 10 years as a Madison assistant under Lou Campanelli, who left to become head coach at California. His first team finished 5-23 but the Dukes rebounded for a 20-10 record and a berth in the National Invitation Tournament the following season. This year, Thurston quit after JMU said it would not renew his contract for next season. McCorry coached the Dukes during their final 11 games.

Shackleford Loses His Driving License

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State University's basketball center Charles Shackleford pleaded guilty to a speeding charge Tuesday and will lose his driver's license for 30 days.

Defense attorney Donald R. Soule of Raleigh entered the plea in Wake County District Court and told the judge that Shackleford intended to remain in school for his senior season.

Shackleford was arrested in Garner shortly after midnight Nov. 23 and charged with driving 70 miles per hour in a 45-mph zone on U.S. 70.

The speed was reduced in the charge to 65 mph as part of a plea bargain worked out with prosecutors Tuesday. Wake County District Attorney C. Colan Willoughby Jr. and assistant prosecutor Carrie Carroll refused Soule's request to have the charge reduced further.

Judge Jerry W. Leonard ordered that Shackleford turn in his driver's license to the N.C. Division of Motor Vehicles by Wednesday and not drive a car for 30 days. Shackleford must pay a $25 fine and $40 court costs.

Leonard then asked Soule whether Shackleford, who was not in court, "was turning pro" this year and passing up his senior year.

Soule said he had talked to Shackleford at length Tuesday, and "he told me he's planning to go back to school." Soule said he had told Shackleford he agreed with the decision, "even though I'm a Carolina fan."

Shackleford pleaded guilty Dec. 14 to driving in excess of 55 mph and to driving without his license Oct. 23. He was ordered to pay $40 in court costs, but he appealed the decision to Wake County Superior Court. Soule said Tuesday that Shackleford would withdraw the appeal and comply with the order sometime before the scheduled trial date of May 2.

Duke, Krzyzewski Still Pleased With Year

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The Duke Blue Devils returned to their campus without a national championship, but coach Mike Krzyzewski says the disappointment doesn't make the season a loss.

"(The loss) does not diminish what this team has accomplished. To be in the national championship and to be Atlantic Coast Conference champions is a tremendous accomplishment."

"And if I ever hear a lot of stuff about how Duke doesn't make it to the Final Four, but that the team has achieved as much as it can, that'll really make me mad," he said.

About 1,500 students and fans welcomed the Blue Devils home from the NCAA Final Four in Kansas City Tuesday.

Duke lost 66-59 to Kansas Saturday. The Jayhawks went on to defeat Oklahoma Monday for the championship.

Mize Set To Defend Title

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — It's unlikely Larry Mize will ever hit a more memorable shot, but it's one he can't afford to dwell on this week.

"I've got to think about this year," Mize said Tuesday as he prepared to defend his championship when the 52nd Masters begins on Thursday.

"It's come up about 4 billion times," Mize said of the 140-foot chip he made a year ago to capture this revered title on the second hole of a playoff with two of the game's top performers — Greg Norman and Seve Ballesteros, who bowed out on the first extra hole.

"It's a great memory ... but I'm really concentrating hard on this year," Mize said.

"I'm trying hard to try and relieve myself of all pressure. I'm working as hard as I can to get my game in good shape. Defending at Augusta should be a fun and enjoyable week."

The season's first major golf championship historically hasn't been kind to defending champions, and Mize really doesn't rank among the favorites this week.

Only one player has ever put together consecutive victories on the storied Augusta National Golf Club course — Jack Nicklaus, perhaps the greatest golfer in history.

Nicklaus owns a record six Masters championships, including titles in 1965 and 1966.

Even at age 48, Nicklaus can't be counted out. He won this event only two years ago.

"When thinking of players to beat, you have to think about Greg Norman and Seve Ballesteros," Mize said.

The two foreign stars are generally regarded as the pre-tournament favorites.

Norman, an Australian, tied for second in the last two Masters. Ballesteros, the dashing Spaniard, won this championship in 1980 and 1983, was in the second-place tie with Norman last year and also has three other finishes in the top five.

Mize hasn't won since last year's triumph on this 6,905-yard, par-72 layout. He had five finishes in the top 10 following the Masters, but hasn't fared well at all this season.

He's missed three cuts in eight events, with his best finish a tie for 11th in the Tournament of Champions.

"It's not as good as it was a year ago," Mize said of his game. "But I feel like it's real close. Today I played OK. I hit the ball pretty solid. One more good day and I feel like I'll be ready. I've done all I can to get ready."

Norman won three events in Australia this season to run his global career victory total to 45. He missed by one shot of getting into a playoff at Pebble Beach in February.

"I feel very strong, very confident about my game," Norman said Tuesday.

"I feel confident in my ability that I can win here, maybe not this year and maybe not next year."

"Down the line I'm going to crack the egg," Norman said. "Yes, I will win here some day."

The field of 90 for this invitational event includes an especially strong international contingent.

Besides Norman and Ballesteros, the foreign group includes Sandy Lyle of Scotland, Ian Woosnam of Wales, Bernhard Langer of West Germany and England's Nick Faldo, the current British Open champion.

Lyle has won twice on the PGA Tour this season, at Phoenix early in the year and at Greensboro last week.

The only two-time winner this year among the 62 American professionals is Steve Pate, winner of the Tournament of Champions and the Andy Williams Open.

Other Americans to watch include U.S. Open champion Scott Simpson, PGA winner Larry Nelson, two-time Masters champion Tom Watson and Ben Crenshaw, the 1984 Masters champion who has nine other, top 10 finishes in his 14 appearances at Augusta.

Tom Kite has never won this event, but has been consistently among the leaders, posting 10 finishes in the top 10 in 15 years.

McGraw...

Coach Best have helped me a lot too. Coach O stresses defense a lot, but he also pushes us and that's one reason I've become a better hitter."

McGraw's ECU career will end a month or so from now, but he's made his mark in the ECU record book. He's currently second in home runs, total bases, doubles and runs batted in behind Winfred Johnson.

And while he says he'll always remember last year's rally to win the CAA championship and earn an NCAA regional berth as the highlight of his college career, he also will never forget his freshman year either.

In that season, Johnson helped lead the Pirates to another championship and a trip to the regionals where the Pirates finished third.

"Going 40-10 that year with Winfred and those guys was something I'll always remember," McGraw said. "I learned more from them on how to conduct myself on the field and I hope I've passed some of that on to the younger guys this year."

McGraw hopes to continue his baseball with a pro career, but meanwhile he'd like to win just one more CAA championship.

Joy Shown In Manning's Eyes

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The pure joy in Danny Manning's eyes told you everything you need to know about what is so special about college basketball. After injuries and grades stripped the roster bare, Kansas Coach Larry Brown surrounded Manning with spare parts and won a national championship.

And when it was over Monday night, this very special franchise player, this man who seemed to will his team through the minefield of the NCAA Tournament to the title, positively glowed.

He ran up the floor at the Kemper Arena, the basketball cradled under one arm, the other arm thrust in the air in triumph, looking for people to hug. He found plenty.

There was Archie Marshall, who came to Kansas with Manning four years ago, but whose playing career had been wrecked not once but twice by devastating knee injuries. Marshall suited up for warmups against Oklahoma, one last chance to be on the floor with his teammates and his friends.

There was Chris Piper, the other senior, who played the season with a painful pelvic bone injury that will require surgery. It was supposed to keep him from starting, until the rest of the regulars began disappearing.

There was Milt Newton, who was buried on the Kansas bench until Marshall got hurt. Then he became a vital scoring cog for the team.

There was Scooter Barry, son of Hall of Famer Rick Barry. The basketball resemblance ends with the name. But Brown needed help at guard and his ex-ABA roommate's son delivered some quality time.

There was Kevin Pritchard, who made a midseason conversion from off-guard to point guard because that was what the team needed.

There was Jeff Gueldner, another of the shock troops, who inherited Pritchard's off-guard job.

There was Clint Normore, the stubby guard who is built like a football player because, well, he is a football player. Normore transferred from Wichita State when that school dropped football and now doubles as a defensive back and backup guard for the Jayhawks.

This was the last time Manning will play basketball with these people because there doesn't seem to be an NBA draft choice in the whole collection. They are merely a strange assortment of replacement pieces that brought Kansas a championship. And Manning, whose basketball skills tower over theirs, hugged them all, with joy in his eyes and in his heart.

He came perilously close to missing this magic moment, this once-in-a-lifetime emotional feeling. Last summer, the NBA was after him to declare for the pro draft, to pass up his final year of collegiate eligibility. He thought about it, long and hard.

The bottom line, however, came from his father, an assistant coach at Kansas. "He was not ready," Ed Manning said. "It was not time for him."

So, instead of playing at Sacramento or Golden State or New Jersey or some other NBA outpost, Danny Manning returned for a final year at Kansas. It was a year to polish the rough spots, to hone his skills. And, it turned out, it was a year to win the national championship.

That was unexpected, especially with the troubles this team endured. And maybe the fact that it was such a longshot made it even nicer.

Manning will be the No. 1 choice in what is regarded by pro scouts as a rather thin draft year. That fact has some promising college players thinking of coming out early, just the way Danny Manning thought about it last summer. The names that are whispered over and over are Derrick Coleman of Syracuse, J.R. Reid of North Carolina, Jerome Lane of Pittsburgh and Rod Strickland of DePaul.

Each of them has an NBA future. But what they must ask themselves is whether they are ready for it right now. There are very few athletes like Magic Johnson, Isiah Thomas and Michael Jordan, who can step right into pro stardom without the full maturation that four years of college ball provides.

It's hard to turn away from the lure of big bucks, but Danny Manning provided one persuasive argument for doing just that. It was that twinkle in his eyes as he hugged a bunch of anonymous teammates and celebrated every college player's dream, a national championship.

Pam Pack Takes Jamesville Tournament Title By 7-6

JAMESVILLE — Washington rallied for two runs in the seventh inning to tie the championship game of the Jamesville Easter Baseball Tournament, then won the game, 7-6, with a run in the eighth, defeating Williamston Tuesday night.

In the consolation bracket game, Jamesville defeated Columbia, 6-4.

Williamston took the early lead with a run in the first, but Washington came back with two in the top of the second.

Williamston then grabbed a 5-2 lead with four in the second. Tommy Taylor and Tyrone Rodgers both singled and Grant Manseau walked to load the bases. Guy Spruill singled in both Taylor and Rodgers and J.D. Ambrose followed with a double, driving in both Manseau and Spruill.

The Tigers added a run in the fourth to make it 6-2, only to see Washington rallied for two in the fifth and two more in the seventh, knotting it at 6-6.

Then, in the top of the eighth, the Pam Pack pushed over the winning run. Jeremiah Jackson walked as did Franz Holscher. Both were sacrificed up and Jackson scored on Rod Gorham's sacrifice fly.

Derrick Curtis, Donnell Albritton and Gary Hodges each had two hits to lead Washington, one of Hodges' hits a triple. Rodgers had three to lead Williamston while Ambrose had two, both doubles.

In the consolation game, Columbia took the lead with three runs in the first inning.

But Jamesville rallied to score six times in the second. Kelby Moore and Doug Jones both walked, but Jones was forced at second on Kent Dickerson's grounder. Michael Cox walked, loading the bases and a walk to David Bell scored Moore with the first run. Ernie Gardner doubled to drive in Dickerson and Cox, tying it at 3-3. Jeff Phelps then singled in Bell and Gardner, moving on to third when the ball was errored in the outfield. He then scored on a passed ball.

Columbia rallied for one in the fifth, but go no closer.

Phelps had two hits to lead Jamesville, while Eric Brown had three and Jeff Creef had two.

Jamesville is now 5-3 and returns to action on Tuesday at Bear Grass.

New Bern Rallies Past Farmville

HOLLYWOOD — New Bern came from behind in the bottom of the sixth inning to top Farmville Central, 5-4, and claim seventh place in the Pitt County Easter Baseball Tournament Tuesday.

Farmville scored two runs in the second to take the early lead and after New Bern rallied to within 2-1, the Jaguars added one run apiece in both the fourth and fifth innings. George Burnette got things started in the fourth when he doubled, stole third and scored on a wild pitch to make it 3-1.

In the fifth, Eddie Little reached on an error, went to second on a fielder's choice and later scored on error to make it 4-2.

But New Bern rallied back in the final two innings as C.P. Seagroves walked to open the fifth and stole second. Steven Phifer singled and Seagroves later scored on a sacrifice fly.

In the sixth, with one away, Carlie Metts walked, went to second on a fielder's choice and third on an error which allowed Eric Dennis to reach. Bill McClay followed by doubling home both runners as the Bears gained the lead.

New Bern then held off the Jaguars during the final inning to take the win.

Mike Vandiford had two hits to lead Farmville.

Cubs Edge Braves In Season Opener

By The Associated Press
The Atlanta Braves and Chicago Cubs opened with a bang. The San Francisco Giants went out without a whimper in a bizarre day in the National League.

The Braves and Cubs combined for seven home runs to tie an opening day record Tuesday night before Chicago pulled out a wild 10-9 triumph in 13 innings.

The defending NL West champion Giants, meanwhile, were handled easily by Los Angeles right-hander Orel Hershiser in a 5-0 loss.

In the only other NL action, it was Pittsburgh 5, Philadelphia 3, and Houston 6, San Diego 3.

Cubs 10, Braves 9

Manny Trillo's 13th-inning sacrifice fly lifted Chicago in a game that included a controversial interference call on the Braves along with the rash of homers.

Trillo's fly ball off reliever Jim Acker, 0-1, scored Vance Law, who had doubled and was sacrificed to third. Mike Bielecki gained the victory with two scoreless innings of relief.

The game included four home runs by the Braves and three by Chicago. The New York Mets and Montreal also combined for seven homers on Monday.

The Braves appeared to have won the game in the bottom of the ninth. Albert Hall bounced a two-out grounder behind second base with Gerald Perry at second. Perry, who was caught in a rundown between third and home, scored when catcher Jody Davis' throw hit him on the helmet and bounced toward shortstop.

But home plate umpire Bruce Froemming ruled that Perry interfered with third baseman Law and called him out.

"It was obvious to me that he (Perry) went out of his way to make contact with the ball," Cubs catcher Jody Davis said. "There was no question about it."

Said Atlanta Manager Chuck Tanner: "I thought the game was over and we had won it. I was going out to congratulate the guys when Froemming called Perry out. I argued with him, but he told me how he saw it and I believe him. He's a good umpire."

The contest marked Don Zimmer's managerial debut with the Cubs.

Dodgers 5, Giants 0

In Los Angeles, Hershiser outduelled San Francisco's Kelly Downs with a three-hitter and squeezed home a run in the sixth inning.

Hershiser, making his 1988 debut after consecutive 500 seasons, struck out six and walked two en route to his 12th career shutout. He retired 17 of the last 18 batters to secure his ninth career win over the Giants in 12 decisions.

Downs surrendered only two hits in seven innings, but still trailed 1-0 when he left the game.

Reliever Scott Garrelts came on in the eighth, and was responsible for four more Dodgers runs. Los Angeles scored on an RBI single by Mike Scioscia, a two-run single by Alfredo Griffen and an error.

"I knew I was getting people out, but I wasn't too confident because it was a 0-0 game," Hershiser said. "I was very fortunate, because the Giants hit the ball right at people for four innings. Even though I had smooth sailing, I had a lot of hard outs."

Pirates 5, Phillies 3

Darnell Coles' three-run homer highlighted a four-run third inning that carried Pittsburgh.

The Pirates erased a 2-0 deficit in the third as Mike Schmidt's error at third base set up three unearned runs.

Prior to Coles' homer, Barry Bonds' homered with one out to cut the Phillies' lead to 2-1. Coles' homer gave the Pirates a 4-2 lead, and he tripled home a run in the eighth.

Mike Dunne, 13-6 in his rookie season last year, pitched 5 2-3 innings and earned his first victory with relief help from Jeff Robinson. Robinson held on for the save despite giving up a homer to Schmidt, his 531st that put him three behind eighth-place Jimmie Foxx on the all-time list.

Coles' performance was a continuation of a fine spring training performance. Coles said spring training was the best in his career "and that's a plus. I had a bad spring last year and started off bad."

Astros 6, Padres 3

Kevin Bass pinch-hit a two-run single and Billy Hatcher doubled in the winning run in the eighth inning, rallying Houston over San Diego.

Bass' hit off Lance McCullers, 0-1, tied the score at 3 before Hatcher's double knocked in the winning run.

The Astros added two more runs in the eighth, one scoring on an RBI single by Steve Henderson and another on a wild pitch by Mark Davis.

The Padres had taken a 3-1 lead on Keith Moreland's two-run double in the eighth off Mike Scott, 1-0.

Earlier this week, it was rumored Bass would be traded to the New York Yankees in a deal involving Dave Winfield. But Winfield reportedly nullified the trade as a 10-and-5 player.

"It was a day when my emotions were mixed, but when you go to the plate it becomes second nature," Bass said. "You go up and concentrate and do what you have to do."

Bass' hit helped make Mike Scott the winning opening day pitcher for the second season in a row.

"I just tried to keep us in the game and I did that for eight innings," Scott said. "But we came back in the eighth inning. It was fun to watch."

North Lenoir.....11 Ayden-Grifton.....1

HOLLYWOOD — North Lenoir gained fifth place in the Pitt County Easter Baseball Tournament by handing Ayden-Grifton an 11-1 loss Tuesday afternoon.

The Chargers lone run came in the second inning when Steven Tucker doubled, moved to third on a ground out and scored on a single by Billy Miller.

North Lenoir, which built up a 4-1 lead after three innings, broke the game open in the fourth as Eddy Dawson hit a three-run homer.

North Lenoir added four more runs in the fifth to complete the scoring.

Tournament Notes
In the other game, Kinston defeated Havelock, 5-3, to claim third place in the tournament.

Burnette represented Farmville Central on the All-Tournament team. He was joined by C.P. Seagroves of New Bern; Steven Tucker of Ayden-Grifton; Steve Stroud and Eddie Dawson of North Lenoir; Brian Kelly and Shane Kinsey of Havelock; Ricky Dean, John Hinson and Cabot Hearn of Kinston; Hal Conger, Scottie Barnhill and Sherwood Wilder of Conley and Heath Clark, Axel Smith, Dave Daniels and Jamie Brewington of Rose.

Tom Moye of the Rampants was named MVP.

Cougars Edge Past North Pitt

PINETOPS — Hosting SouthWest Edgecombe held off North Pitt to gain a 5-4 baseball victory in the first round of the Cougars' own Easter Baseball Tournament Tuesday night.

SouthWest will meet Northampton East, a 9-5 winner over North Edgecombe, in the championship game tonight while the Panthers take on the Warriors in the consolation game.

North Pitt had to make an early adjustment in the game when Reggie Daniels, their planned starting pitcher, was struck by an errant throw while standing in the dugout during warmups and suffered a broken nose. The Panthers brought on sophomore Randy House, who, coming off a sprained ankle, struck out 10 and allowed just four hits in five innings of work.

But his effort wasn't enough.

North Pitt took an early lead in the first, scoring a single run. SouthWest came up with three in the fourth to take the lead, but North Pitt countered with three in the fifth, taking a 4-3 lead.

Craig Willoughby led off the fifth with a double and Charles Lewis singled him in. Lewis was thrown out, however, trying to stretch his hit to a double. David Rhodes singled and scored on a double by Johnny Sherrord. Sherrord moved up on an out and scored on Roosevelt Hines' groundout.

But the Panthers couldn't hold their lead as the Cougars came back with two in the bottom of the frame for a 5-4 lead. Ken Lewis doubled and Robert Baker reached on an error, allowing Lewis to score. Baker moved up on the play and scored when William Rhodes hit a ground-ruled double.

Sherrord led North Pitt with three hits, two of them doubles, while Lewis had three for SouthWest.

North Pitt is now 1-3.

Welch Helps A's Gain 6-0 Win

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — If Bob Welch didn't have his best stuff in his Oakland Athletics' debut, as his manager said, then opposing American League batters are in for a grim year.

Welch scattered seven hits and pitched seven shutout innings Tuesday night, recording six strikeouts and never allowing a runner past second base as the A's blanked the Seattle Mariners 6-0.

In the only other American League game played, the New York Yankees beat the World Champion Minnesota Twins 8-0.

Welch, a 31-year-old right-hander, flirted with danger several times, retiring the side in order only once and relying on outstanding defense behind him to keep Seattle from scoring. But it was more than satisfactory for a pitcher who was admittedly "quite nervous" making his first AL start and allowed two of the first three hitters to face him to reach base.

"I was able to stop them from getting the big hit," Welch said. "I was just trying to stay ahead of the hitters."

"Any time you go out there and come away with a win, it doesn't matter what kind of stuff you had. The win is all that counts."

The victory was Oakland's second straight over Seattle to begin the season after the A's went 0-5 at the start of 1987. The Mariners have scored only a single run, on a first-inning bloop by Dave Stewart in the opener, and mustered 11 hits for the two games.

Oakland Manager Tony La Russa expects even greater things from Welch, who also started fast last season, winning eight of his first 10 decisions en route to a 15-9 record in his 10th season with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"He made a lot of good pitches, especially with men on base, and threw a lot of good breaking balls," said La Russa, who said Welch was not as fast as he can be. "But I'm sure we'll see him out there when he's sharper. He was rushing at times."

Until the A's broke the game open with four runs in the eighth on Jose Canseco's two-run double, a run-scoring bloop by Mike Jackson and Stan Javier's sacrifice fly, Welch was locked in a pitching duel with Seattle starter Mike Moore.

Moore, a 19-game loser last year, allowed only three hits over the first seven innings and retired 14 consecutive batters. But the A's bunched all three hits in the second for the only support Welch needed.

Mark McGwire's bloop single in front of Glenn Wilson in right and Javier's double over Mickey Brantley's glove in left set the stage for an RBI double by Mike Gallego and a sacrifice fly by Dick Weiss.

Seattle Manager Dick Williams said a team that isn't hitting can't afford defensive lapses, too.

"Our outfielders misjudged two fly balls that should have been caught," he said. "It should have been 0-0 in the eighth."

Meanwhile, Welch's fielders were doing their part. Gallego threw out Jim Pressley trying to advance from first to third on a single to short right in the third, and Canseco made a sprinting catch of Wilson's sinking liner in the with a man on in the sixth.

Tony Phillips, sent in after center fielder Dave Henderson strained a groin muscle in the third, also made a fine running grab, and the A's turned in their second errorless performance and third double play in two nights.

"That probably was as good a defensive game as anybody has played behind me," said Welch, who played 10 seasons with the Los Angeles Dodgers, a team which had the National League's lowest fielding percentage last year.

Yankees 8, Twins 0
Minnesota did not get off to an auspicious debut as World Series champions. But the road loss was in keeping with last year, when the Twins were 29-52 away from the Metrodome.

Rick Rhoden pitched a three-hitter, Mike Pagliarulo and Rickey Henderson homered and Billy Martin was a winner in his first game of his fifth term as Yankees manager.

But I Was Safe!

Seattle Mariner Jim Presley argues with 3rd base umpire Don Denkinger as coach Ozzie Virgil looks on in the 4th inning of their game at Oakland Coliseum Tuesday. Presley was out on a close play at third on a single off the bat on Rey Quinones. (AP Laserphoto)

Lever Leads Nuggets' Win

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer
Lafayette Lever continues to be as good as gold for the red-hot Denver Nuggets.

The 6-foot-3 guard had 22 points and a career-high 21 rebounds Tuesday night as the Nuggets beat Houston 110-97 for their ninth consecutive victory. Denver also pulled within four percentage points of first-place Dallas in the NBA's Midwest Division.

"I don't think we can play any better than that," coach Doug Moe said. "We were playing well in the first half when we were shooting 30 percent and were down by only nine points. We played perfect in the second half."

The Nuggets trailed 54-45 at halftime, but Lever kept them in the game with 12 rebounds.

"I had to have the rebounds because we were struggling early," Lever said. "The way we play offense with so much movement, I'm always in a better position to grab missed shots. Most guards remain on the perimeter."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Detroit 107, New Jersey 95; New York 136, Philadelphia 119; Atlanta 121, Milwaukee 110; Indiana 106, Cleveland 105; Washington 105, Chicago 94; Phoenix 111, Utah 106; Los Angeles Lakers 94, Seattle 90;

San Antonio 117, Golden State 104; and Portland 141, Los Angeles Clippers 119.

Joe Barry Carroll scored 25 points for Houston and center Akeem Olujuwon added 19 points and 16 rebounds.

Alex English, 1-for-10 in the first half, hit his first four attempts of the third period, but Denver still trailed 66-55 as Carroll had five baskets in the quarter.

Houston led 86-83 with 9:30 left after Olujuwon scored the first six points of the fourth period. Denver then launched a decisive 25-11 run capped by Danny Schayes' two free throws with 1:47 to go.

"Right now we're not playing well enough to even get into the playoffs," Houston's Rodney McCray said. "You can't help but worry this late in the season, because tonight was a bad game."

Pistons 107, Nets 95
Detroit snapped a season-high four-game losing streak and stayed in first place in the Central Division behind Adrian Dantley's 27 points and Isiah Thomas' 26 points and 12 assists.

Dantley, who had 16 points in the fourth quarter, moved into 12th place on the NBA all-time scoring list with 20,897 career points, passing Bob Pettit.

A 17-8 second-quarter spurt, with Vinnie Johnson scoring six points, gave the visiting Pistons the lead for good, 46-36 with 55 seconds left in the period.

Hawks 121, Bucks 110
Atlanta won its sixth straight game and stayed on the heels of the Pistons as Dominique Wilkins scored 34 of his 39 points in the first half and Kevin Willis finished with 25. Wilkins, the NBA's second-leading scorer, helped the Hawks pull ahead by 19 in the first half. But John Lucas hit two 3-pointers as Milwaukee, which got 21 points from Ricky Pierce, came back from a 17-point deficit in the fourth quarter to get within five with 1:18 left.

Pacers 106, Cavaliers 105
Indiana snapped a four-game losing streak and pulled into sixth place in the East when Steve Stipanovich sank a pair of free throws with two seconds remaining.

Stipanovich, who has won three games in the closing seconds this season, was fouled by Cleveland's Dell Curry to set up the winning shots.

The Cavaliers led 105-104 with five seconds left, but the Pacers regained possession when Larry Nance failed to inbound the ball within five seconds.

Wayman Tisdale led Indiana with 27 points and Chuck Person had 21. Cleveland was led by Mike Sanders with 20 points.

Knicks 136, 76ers 119
New York established season highs in points for a quarter, half and game as Johnny Newman scored a career-high 29 points and Gerald Wilkins added 27 at Philadelphia.

Newman scored 21 points in the first half as the Knicks, who have lost 30 of 36 road games this year but have won their last two, matched their longest winning streak of the season with their third straight victory. New York had 45 points in the second quarter and 76 at halftime.

Charles Barkley had 13 of his 31 points in the first quarter for the 76ers, but New York's 27-7 run erased a 36-31 Philadelphia lead after the first period and opened a 62-45 advantage with 5:39 to go in the half. Mark Jackson had 21 points and 16 assists for New York.

Bullets 105, Bulls 94
Washington pulled into eighth place in the East as John Williams scored 23 points and Moses Malone 21 at Chicago. Washington's frontcourt players outscored the Bulls' front line 70-30.

Michael Jordan led all scorers with 29 points for Chicago, which clinched a playoff spot when New York beat Philadelphia. Sam Vincent added a career-high 23 points.

Trail Blazers 141, Clippers 119
Portland beat Los Angeles for the 12th consecutive time, a Trail Blazers record, as Clyde Drexler and Kevin Duckworth scored 25 points each.

A layup by Mike Woodson, who scored 11 of his 29 points in the third period, helped cut a 16-point deficit to 95-90 with 3:03 left in the quarter. But the Trail Blazers outscored the Clippers 12-2 in the closing minutes of the period, with Drexler scoring nine of those 12, and Portland led 110-92 going into the final 12 minutes.

Benoit Benjamin had 22 points and 11 rebounds for the Clippers.

Lakers 94, Sonics 90
James Worthy had 28 points and Byron Scott 27, while A.C. Green scored 11 of his 18 points in the fourth quarter for Los Angeles.

After Xavier McDaniel's jumper gave Seattle a 73-72 lead with 6:18 remaining, the Lakers outscored the Sonics 10-3 in the next 3:21 for an 82-76 lead. Seattle, which was led by Tom Chambers with 21 points, got no closer than two the rest of the way.

Suns 111, Jazz 106
Phoenix kept pace with San Antonio, beating Utah as Armon Gilliam had 17 points and 12 rebounds and Walter Davis scored 10 of his 16 points in the third period.

Utah, down 62-49 at halftime, tied the score 81-81 with 2:03 left in the third period. But the Suns closed out the quarter with a 9-2 run as Kevin Johnson completed a three-point play and Davis scored on a jumper for a 90-83 lead.

Karl Malone and Thurl Bailey scored 25 points each for the Jazz.

Spurs 117, Warriors 104
Alvin Robertson scored 26 points and Frank Brickowski added 25 as San Antonio handed the Warriors their sixth consecutive loss.

The Warriors trailed 80-61 with 6:35 remaining in the third quarter, but closed to 92-82 by the end of the period as reserve guard Steve Harris contributed eight points.

Golden State made it 94-88 with 9:24 left in the game on Ben McDonald's hook shot. But Robertson scored eight points and Brickowski six the rest of the way as the Spurs maintained their lead.

Mike Mitchell scored 22 points for San Antonio and Jon Sundvold contributed 14 points and a career-high 14 assists. Chris Mullin led the Warriors with 24 points despite an injury to his left foot.

The Miami Dolphins now play in Joe Robbie Stadium. In their former park, the Orange Bowl, they had a record in regular season and post-season games of 120 wins, 42 losses and three ties.

Fryar Is Indicted On Three Charges

BOSTON (AP) — New England Patriots wide receiver Irving Fryar has been indicted on three weapons charges by a grand jury in Burlington County, N.J., according to a published report.

Fryar, 25, was charged with unlawful possession of a handgun, unlawful possession of a shotgun and possession of a prohibited device, hollow-point bullets found in the handgun, The Boston Herald reported Wednesday.

The guns and bullets allegedly were found in Fryar's car after he was stopped for speeding on the New Jersey Turnpike last Feb. 14. He had been visiting his mother in Mount Holly, N.J.

Fryar has valid Massachusetts licenses to carry both weapons but is not licensed to carry either in New Jersey.

All three counts are felony charges, and Fryar, if convicted, could be sentenced to 11½ years in prison and fined $22,500. The indictments were issued Tuesday.

"Here in New Jersey, we have what is a presumption of non-imprisonment for people involved with this kind of crime," Frank Hughes of the Burlington County prosecutor's office told the Herald.

"If the person involved has no prison record, the courts don't ordinarily impose jail sentences," he said.

The case may not go to trial, the newspaper reported.

Fryar, through his lawyer, has applied for pre-trial intervention, a procedure in which a judge hears the evidence out of court and decides whether a trial should be held or the accused put on probation.

"There is no routine disposition under pre-trial intervention," Hughes said.

"It involves a case-by-case determination by the court whether the candidate and the crime are suitable for diversion as opposed to criminal prosecution."

If the diversion process is completed successfully, the charges would be dismissed.

Winfield Gets Warm Reception

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Winfield has done with his pen what he couldn't do with his bat — played his way into the hearts of New York Yankees fans.

Winfield has been given lukewarm receptions in Yankee Stadium for much of his seven years in New York, but on Tuesday the crowd roared when he was introduced before the season opener.

He was given another ovation when he trotted out to right field and a half-minute standing-O when he stepped up to the plate for the first time.

"It was warm," Winfield said. "It was pleasant. It was welcome. What else can I say? The weather was right. The crowd was right."

On a sunny and warm April afternoon, the Yankees opened with an 8-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins. Winfield drove in the first run of the game with a fifth-inning single.

That would be the story on most other teams. But not in New York.

Not on the Yankees, where the game is the least of a ballplayer's difficulties.

In his autobiography, which began appearing in bookstores last week, Winfield wrote about how playing for the Yankees is different from playing anywhere else, primarily because of the bullying principal owner, George Steinbrenner.

"Win or lose, the man is always there hyping, screaming and threatening," Winfield wrote.

Steinbrenner retaliated by accusing Winfield's charitable foundation of financial improprieties and apparently has instructed his baseball people to try to trade Winfield.

The latest attempt was a deal to Houston for Kevin Bass that Winfield vetoed on Monday. Winfield wouldn't give direct answers to trade questions, preferring to dwell on the Yankees' season, an approach stressed Monday by manager Billy Martin.

"I'm still here, that's all I can tell you," he said.

Reporters trailed him to all corners of the Yankees' clubhouse Tuesday attempting to elicit some information on the latest trade talk. But Winfield didn't want to play the game.

Winfield had been living in Reggie Jackson's shadow since arriving in New York in 1981. Reggie thrived under Steinbrenner's browbeating and Steinbrenner now talks fondly of Jackson.

But Steinbrenner still holds Winfield responsible for the Yankees' collapse in the 1981 World Series, when Winfield went 1-for-22 and the Yankees blew a 2-games-to-0 lead.

Three seasons ago, Steinbrenner made his thoughts on Winfield perfectly and publicly clear.

"Has anybody seen Reggie Jackson?" Steinbrenner said after a September 1985 series against Toronto. "I need Mr. October. All I have is a Mr. May, Dave Winfield."

In his book, Winfield refers to instances when Steinbrenner belittled him privately, and others where he harrassed him with the late Roy Cohn, the lawyer who was a friend of the Yankees owner and a frequent guest in his private box.

So when Steinbrenner issued his latest outburst 10 days ago, Winfield was not surprised.

"This isn't a change," Winfield said, cornered now by a group of reporters in front of the trainer's room. "I've been through it every year. You just didn't read about it every day or care about it. It's not anything new."

Navratilova Is Back In The Family Circle

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Martina's back.

The last time Martina Navratilova played in the Family Circle women's tennis tournament was 1983, when she won her second straight title.

Five years later, as the tournament's top-seeded player, she meets unseeded Terry Phelps in the second round.

Navratilova had a first-round bye, while Phelps, of Larchmont, N.Y., defeated Diane "Dinky" Van Rensberg 6-2, 6-1 on Tuesday.

Phelps dominated the match with a fast-paced, two-handed backhand and precise passing shots.

Phelps said she's glad her match against Navratilova is on clay.

"Her serve is really hard... I can't play tentative at all," she said. "I have to hit everything deep, and go for it on second serve."

Phelps played a baseline game against Van Rensberg, of Zimbabwe, but she says that won't be the case against Navratilova, who beat Tracy Austin 5-7, 6-1, 6-0 to win the 1983 title.

"I've been practicing my net game and I feel effective at the net," she said. "I definitely will come in against Martina."

Meanwhile, Sylvia Hanika struggled to defeat newcomer Sandra Wasserman on Tuesday to get to the second round of the $300,000 tournament.

"My concentration in the first two sets was so bad, my mind was all over the place," the 28-year-old West German said.

Hanika, ranked 18th, was down 2-5 in the first set to Wasserman, of Belgium, who is ranked 100th in the world. Hanika came back to win the set en route to a 7-5, 2-6, 6-2 victory.

"Well, I've never played her and I really didn't know her at all, so I didn't quite know what to expect," she said. "I started hitting the ball better after the first set."

Hanika said she felt at a disadvantage in the tournament because of her seeding. The top eight seeds drew byes for the first round. Hanika was seeded ninth.

"I think it's a disadvantage, because if you get through you have to play one more match, and it can make a difference," she said.

Hanika said she expects "a tough match" from her second round opponent, Arantxa Sanchez of Spain.

Only two unseeded players — Federica Bonsignori of Italy and Gisele Miro of Brazil — were able to play on Monday before the tournament was suspended because of rain.

Bonsignori defeated Miro 3-6, 7-6, 7-5 to advance to the second round against fifth-seeded Lori McNeil.

"McNeil is a good serve-and-volley player, so my return will be very important," Bonsignori said. "Also my service, because if I can serve well she cannot get to the net and attack."

Bonsignori beat McNeil at the International Player's Tournament in Florida last month.

"I am not so confident because I'm not playing as well as I was then," she said. "I like to play the top players in the world — it's always a good lesson."

Patricia Tarabini of Argentina defeated Katrina Adams 7-5, 6-3 to advance to a second-round match against No.2-seed Gabriela Sabatini.

By singling out Winfield for criticism, Steinbrenner has created a potential martyr for Yankees fans, who seem to have rallied around him and against the owner.

"I don't try to interpret that," Winfield said of the ovations. "It means I'm here and they like me and they're happy to have us back."

Winfield took a blue Yankees suitcase from a corner, turned it on its side and sat down on his makeshift podium. He smiled and said he was proud that he has kept his composure through Steinbrenner's tirades.

"And still, with all that, no cursing," Winfield said, reviewing his behavior. "I didn't curse him out. I didn't call names."

A couple hours after the victory, Winfield was downtown in media-crazy Manhattan, doing what is expected of New York authors — hosting a book party.

Sixty-five floors above Manhattan, dozens of photographers circled him for photos. He had changed into a slate-blue double-breasted suit and was surrounded by his new wife, his mother, his brother and his in-laws, soaking up all the attention.

Off in the distance, Yankee Stadium was visible over the shimmering lakes and reservoir of Central Park. New York City twinkled in the twilight of a perfect spring evening as a pianist played Gershwin and Cole Porter.

Dave Winfield was still a Yankee, living it up at the top of the town.

CLASSIFIED IS MONEY IN YOUR BANK

"A penny saved is a penny earned." Words of wisdom from a guy named Poor Richard.

If those words still mean something to you, chances are you're looking for the best investment for your money. In recruitment, merchandise, real estate and automotive, classified advertising is the best investment with the best results for your money.

Classified remains one of the best read sources of information in the newspaper. In advertising, classified is one of the most efficient and inexpensive means to buy or sell goods or services.

This adds up to more money in the bank—your bank. Consult the classified department and find out how you can accomplish more for less.

Classified makes dollars and sense for the wise advertiser. And you can take that to the bank.

Frigid Chinese City Uses Ice To Thaw Winter

By DAVID HOLLEY

L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

HARBIN, China — During the long winter months, as icy winds blow in from Siberia, street market vegetable seller Zhao Guilian spends her days trying to keep her spicy green chili peppers from freezing.

Zhao advertises her produce by placing a single pepper, frozen hard as an ice cube, on top of a thick blue-gray quilt that envelops the rest of her supply.

The peppers, which come by rail from South China, are wrapped "so they won't freeze," Zhao, herself bundled in padded trousers and down parka, explained cheerfully.

Nearby fish sellers have it easy. Frozen squid shipped from the coast and 30-inch salmon from local northeast China rivers need only the brutally cold air to protect them from spoilage.

Mid-winter days in Harbin typically hit highs of zero degrees Fahrenheit, with overnight lows at minus 15 degrees.

But, like a handful of other cities that year after year face a long, dreary and frigid winter, Harbin has found ways to brighten the season. Most spectacular of its glories is the two-month-long Ice Lantern Festival, in which 1,500 ice sculptures — most of them with internal wiring and colored lights — transform a Harbin park into a frozen Chinese version of Disneyland. Now in its 14th year, the festival opens in early January and draws more than 20,000 visitors every evening through the end of February.

A 20-foot-high, 40-foot-long ice dragon, marking this as the Year of the Dragon by the Chinese lunar calendar, stands at the park entrance. There are traditional Chinese pavilions cut from ice, with names taken from the classic Chinese novel of the late 17th century, "Dream of the Red Chamber." And providing an international touch, this year there is even a 50-foot-high Cinderella's castle.

Several of the sculptures, including one of the exits from Cinderella's castle and an undulating 80-foot-long dragon, also serve as ice slides for children and the more athletic adults.

Ice sculptures have become part of the winter culture of Harbin. Scattered around the city are dragons, lions and peacocks carved in ice. Often they stand in front of government office buildings and near important monuments. Despite frequent sunshine, moderate snowfall and pollution from the smoke of coal heating fires, most sculptures remain in fairly good condition until early March.

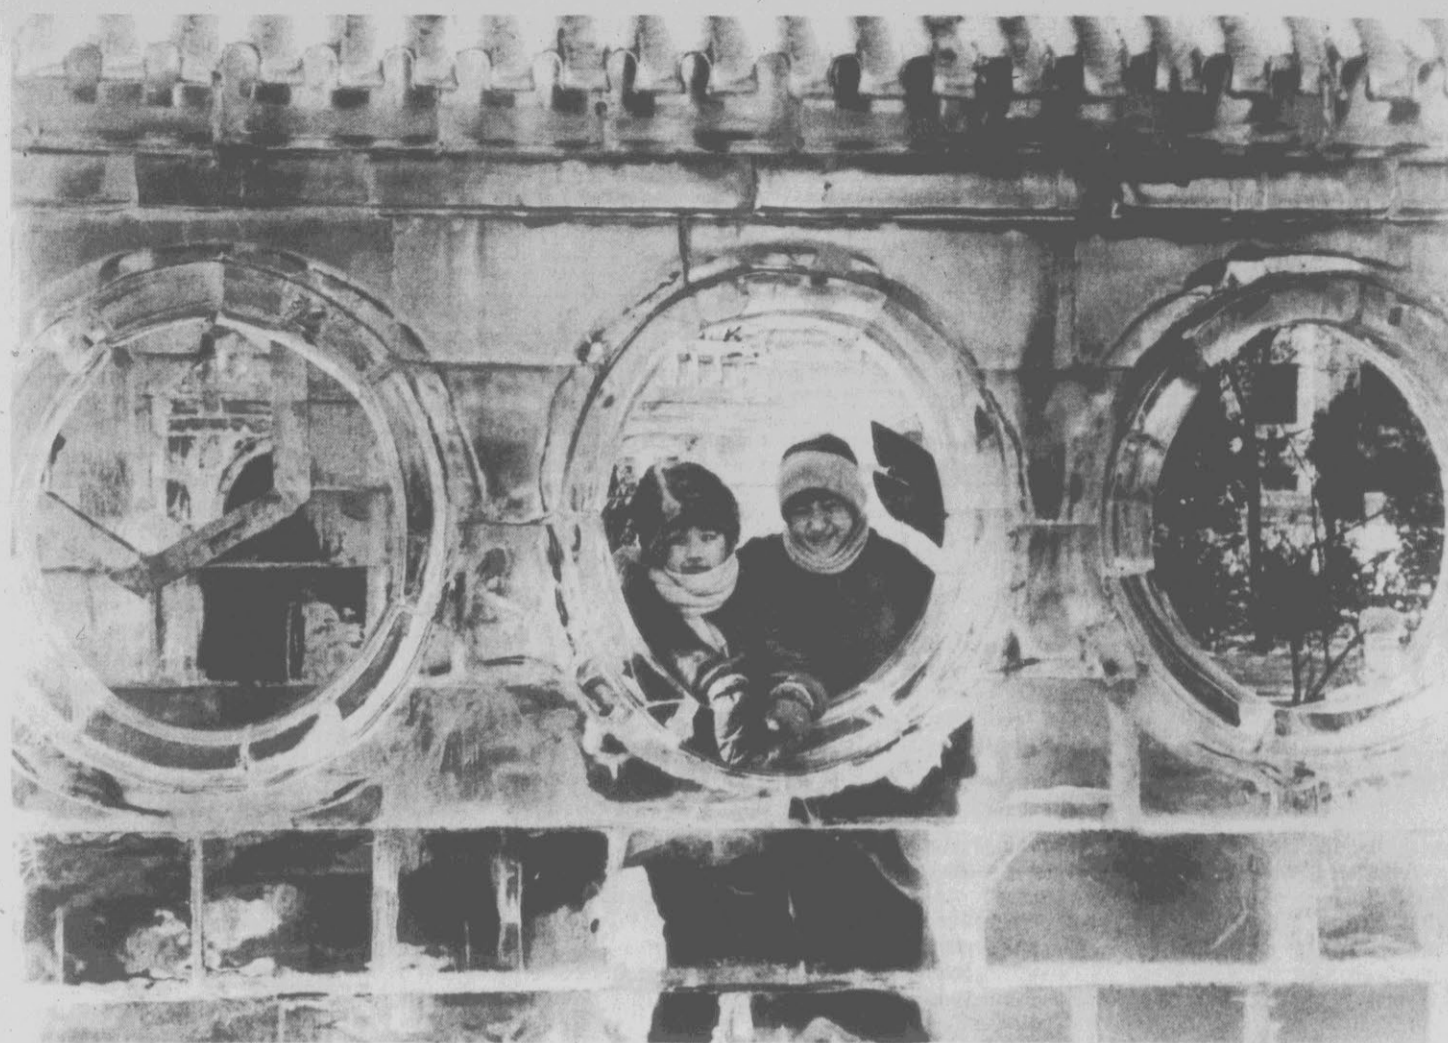

Harbin's winter also offers other pleasures. Children enjoy schoolyard skating rinks. Families take weekend outings to the frozen expanses of the half-mile-wide Songhua River, where peasants offer horse-sled rides for a fee. And a small but famous band of physical fitness fanatics called the Harbin Penguins maintains a tradition of quick morning swims where the 3-foot-thick ice over the Songhua has been chopped away.

The solidly frozen Songhua Jiang — the River of Pines and Flowers that is famous throughout China for its scenery in both summer and winter — becomes a giant winter park and playground. It also provides the building blocks of the Ice Lantern Festival.

A work unit whose primary task is to cut out and store ice for summer use sells the city 12,000 cubic meters of Songhua River ice for the sculptures, according to Zhu Xianqi, an engineer who is deputy director of the festival.

'Colby's' Actress Is Queen

Wilmington Ready To Kick Off 41st Annual Azalea Festival Thursday

WILMINGTON — The 41st annual North Carolina Azalea Festival, one of the largest and best-known of all festivals in the Southeastern United States, opens Thursday and will continue through Sunday.

Several entertainment celebrities will be on hand to take part in the four days of festivities. Also scheduled in conjunction with the festival will be a historic homes tour, an azalea gardens tour, a big downtown parade, special arts and music events, the Golden Knights of the U.S. Army's precision air team, appearances by Miss North Carolina, and celebrations at the USS North Carolina Battleship Memorial.

This year's Azalea Queen is Kim Morgan Greene, an actress in the television drama, "The Colby's." She will be crowned by Gov. Jim Martin.

Singer Tom Jones will be in concert on opening night Thursday. Another performer, singer-songwriter Neil Sedaka, will be featured in the show segment of the Queen's Coronation Pageant on Saturday night.

Other entertainers scheduled to appear at the festival are Andrew Stevens of the CBS-TV show, "Dallas"; Kassie Wesley of the CBS-TV daytime drama, "Guiding Light"; actress Krystyne Haje of the ABC-TV series, "Head of the Class"; and Larry Drake of the NBC-TV series, "L.A. Law."

The highlight entertainment event of the festival is the Queen's Coronation and Show to be held at 8 p.m. Saturday in Trask Coliseum on the UNC-Wilmington campus.

The Cape Fear Garden Club Azalea Garden Tour will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Entertainment celebrities will be in attendance at the garden party and refreshments will be served.

Additionally, a bus tour for those who prefer not to drive to the garden sites will be provided at an extra cost. For reservations call 799-8825 or 791-5138.

Twelve gardens will be featured on the tour with Azalea Belles dressed in antebellum gowns to serve as hostesses. Gardens will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day, with proceeds to benefit community beautification projects.

The self-guided walking tour of eight spacious and historic homes within the Historic District of Wilmington will take place on two days, Saturday and Sunday, between the hours of 2 to 6 p.m. The tour is sponsored by Residents of Old Wilmington Inc. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

As its part of celebrating the annual Azalea Festival, the USS North Carolina Battleship Memorial will present a sound and light spectacular, "The Immortal Showboat." The 70-minute drama, which tells the battleship's history through voice, music, sound effect and lights, will be presented at 9 p.m. on Friday and Saturdays nights.

Spectators will be seated in a 1,000-seat grandstand just across from the ship's port bow. During the show, over 4,000 lights create the ship's many moods. Special effects will include 20mm and 40mm anti-aircraft gunfire, the blast and flames of large 5-inch and 16-inch guns, and a simulated torpedo explosion.

In addition to the night spectacle, the battleship will be open for touring Thursday through Sunday. Open hours for the ship are 8 a.m. until 8 p.m.

For additional information on the schedule of the festival, call 799-2357 or 762-2676.

Washington Preparing For Second Showing Of Revived Tulip Festival

WASHINGTON, N.C. — The Downtown Washington Association will present the second annual revival of the Tulip Festival April 15-17, returning an event begun in 1937 to honor Dutch residents of the Terra Ceia community of Beaufort County.

The popular festival was an annual event until the days of World War II and was revived last year after a long absence.

The festival will open with the farewell performance of "North Carolina Is My Home," a musical narrative celebration of North Carolina composed and performed by Charles Kuralt and Loonis McGlohon, both eastern North Carolina natives. The performance will be held April 15 at 8 p.m. in the Washington High School Auditorium.

Also making an appearance at the Tulip Festival is the Elizabeth II. The ship will arrive April 13 at noon, escorted by a flotilla of boats, and will dock at the Haven's Wharf along the parkway during the festival. While docked at the waterfront, tours of the boat will be available for the regular admission fee charged for a guided tour.

Events on April 16 will open with sculling races on the Pamlico River and a five-kilometer run followed by a parade at 10 a.m.

Other scheduled activities include the crowning of the Tulip Queen and Little Miss Tulip; student oratory contests; parachute jumps by members of the 82d Airborne Division from Fort Bragg; concerts by the U.S. Marine Corps Band, and performances by folk musicians, magicians and clowns.

Dutch food will be prepared by residents of the Terra Ceia community, who will also offer tulips for sale.

Additional attractions will include horse rides, carriage rides, a children's petting zoo, and vendors. Downtown merchants plan sidewalk displays.

Unless otherwise noted, all listed events will take place on the town's Riverfront Parkway.

The Washington Civic Center is the site of the Tulip Ball the night of April 16, with music to be provided by the Tommy Campbell Band's big band sound.

The weekend will conclude with the April 17 afternoon performance of Malarne, a chamber music ensemble from Duke University. This will be held at the Civic Center.

Admission fees will be charged for two of the events — the "North Carolina Is My Home" performance and the Tulip Ball. Ticket information may be obtained by calling the Beaufort County Arts Council at 946-2504.

All other events are open to the public without charge.

Passengers Leave Fate With Gods

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — One of the thousands of small commuter buses that careen about Kenya every day carries an appropriate bumper sticker: "You never know, heaven could be nearer than home."

Authorities say the overcrowded, poorly maintained, wildly driven buses called "matatus" have contributed heavily to Kenya's highway death toll of nearly 200 so far this year.

At that rate, the toll is roughly on pace with 1987 when 1,889 people died in traffic accidents — or one person killed for every 166 cars on Kenya's roads. A similar rate in the United States would mean that annual highway fatalities, now fewer than 50,000, would reach more than 1 million a year.

The privately owned matatus carry such names as "Survival of the Fittest" and "Living Devil." Scary as it all may be, the poor people who use them have no other choice.

The brightly colored vehicles are legally allowed to carry no more than 25 passengers. But usually matatu crews cram in twice that many or more to get more fares. Those who can't fit inside climb onto the roof and cling to luggage as the buses go into a list on high-speed turns.

Thirty-one people were killed Feb. 29 in a three-matatu crash that incensed a nation already accustomed to headlines screaming of "horror smashes," and "matatu madness."

For days after the crash, newspapers printed pictures of victims strewn across the road and of the crumpled matatus.

Commentaries called for something to be done about matatus, and a road-safety program was reintroduced on the government's Voice of Kenya television.

The head of the Matatu Association of Kenya resigned rather, he said, than be "cursed by the innocent blood of the commuters who die daily on our roads at the hands of reckless matatu drivers."

President Daniel arap Moi, whose government in 1984 passed the first legislation aimed at controlling matatus, decided they had become more "an agent of death and destruction than an asset to the commuter."

Police began a crackdown, netting hundreds of unroadworthy and overcrowded vehicles. Matatu crews, as well as unseated passengers, were hit with heavy fines.

The Ministry of Transport issued a new and more stringent list of regulations and ordered all matatu drivers retested.

But the matatu industry retaliated with a strike that stranded hundreds of thousands of people. Moi rescinded the retesting order, and the matatus returned after a day off the roads.

Moi's response to the strike underscored the matatu industry's stranglehold on the nation's transportation sector.

Less than 1 percent of Kenya's 22 million people own cars and fewer than 600 buses are on the roads. The lack of vehicles leaves a demand for transportation met by the tens of thousands of matatus, which mostly are vans and minibuses, that travel even the most rural routes.

Matatus first appeared as pirate taxis in the mid-1950s when Kenya was a British colony and movement by the native population was restricted.

British Prime Minister Has Sharp Impact On Writers

By MATT WOLF
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — David Hare, a leading British playwright, has remarked that when Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher came to office nearly nine years ago, the usually vibrant, challenging British theater fell silent.

"A lot of writers stopped writing because they didn't know how to deal with her arrival," said the author of "Plenty" and other works. "Now people are really beginning to get to grips."

Today, secure in her third term of office, Mrs. Thatcher's imprint on Britain is indelible — nowhere more so than in the arts, where disaffection is being turned into the stuff of provocative films and plays.

"The topicality itself is nothing new, as 'angry young playwrights' such as John Osborne and Arnold Wesker and such filmmakers as Karel Reisz and John Schlesinger were demonstrating 30 years ago.

But no post-war government, Conservative or Labor, has come under such concerted artistic attack as Mrs. Thatcher's, and few serious works today fail to address themselves somehow to the phenomenon of Thatcherism, most often from an angry, left-wing viewpoint.

"Emasculated politically by the march of Thatcherite capitalism, the left has dug in on stage and screen to attack her bourgeois, pro-business values.

So sustained is the onslaught that a backlash is being felt from artists who ordinarily would stay out of the political crossfire.

"I'd much rather have a frank disinterest in culture than a phony and deliberate one," novelist Peter Ackroyd recently said. "And I find the patronizing snobbery of those who despise Mrs. Thatcher and her supporters very unpleasant indeed."

In a recent Sunday Times article, right-wing historian Norman Stone of Oxford University said the growing tendency was "to run down Mrs. Thatcher, to assume that capitalism is parasitism, that the established order in this country is imperialist, racist, profiteering."

Earlier, critic Francis King had asked in the conservative Sunday Telegraph: "Why is there so much stage Left?" and yearned for a play to counter the "vicious denigration of poor old Mrs. Thatcher" which he saw proliferating in theater.

Many of the works have a common message: Under Mrs. Thatcher, Britain is becoming a greedy society, heartless to the poor, hostile to free speech, in thrall equally to nuclear weapons and America under President Reagan.

Works both new and old are being mobilized against Thatcherism. In Alan Ayckbourn's "A Small Family Business," the upstanding hero falls into a spiral of corruption in which vanishing paper clips become a metaphor for vanishing morals. Olwen Wymark has adapted Emile Zola's 1880 novel "Nana" for the London stage because, she says, it matches her sense of Britain today.

Both dramatists acknowledge the anti-Thatcherite message. "I couldn't have written that play 10 years ago," Ayckbourn, 48, said in an interview. "The disease (of greed) much more deeply permeates the society now than it once did."

The American-born Wymark says she chose "Nana" because "the book is about the kind of tendencies Thatcher has been able to nail to the mast. ... I feel very strongly that the urge towards greed is being fostered, the sense of communal responsibility is drying up."

Hanif Kureishi, the Anglo-Pakistani screenwriter of two low-budget hit movies, "Sammy and Rosie Get Laid" and "My Beautiful Laundrette," says he and director Stephen Frears want their movies "to shoot bullets at Thatcherism and everything it stands for."

"Because things are so terrible in this country, we have to be able to look at what's going on and discuss it publicly," Kureishi said in an interview.

"Sammy and Rosie" opens with images of a riot-torn, rubbish-strewn London and the voice of Mrs. Thatcher promising to tackle the problems of the inner cities.

Other works share Kureishi's view: David Hare's "Wetherby" and Derek Jarman's "The Last of England" on screen; Karim Alrawi's "A Colder Climate" and Kay Ad-head's "Thatcher's Women" on stage.

On television, various drama series consistently portray the government as authoritarian, secrecy-obsessed, even murderous. "Spitting Image," a satirical program, uses rubber dolls to portray Mrs. Thatcher and her ministers as Hitler's Nazis.

More benignly, John Mortimer in "Paradise Postponed" has pointed out the irony of post-war Britain: the traditional working-class vote has swung to Mrs. Thatcher, the self-made grocer's daughter, because she, rather than the ideological left, embodies blue-collar aspirations.

Mortimer, a committed Laborite, gently mourns the loss of an older, dreamier, more compassionate Britain. Other playwrights, such as Caryl Churchill in "Serious Money" Tony Marchant in "Speculators," vilify the London's financial district as a nest of greed, fraud and raw ambition.

Director Christine Edzard's six-hour film version of Charles Dickens' novel "Little Dorrit" draws parallels between the Victorian virtues and vices and Mrs. Thatcher's Britain. Its juxtaposition of obscene wealth and tragic destitution, she says,

CBN Offers Two-Hour Review Of Top Gospel Hits Saturday

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Be thankful for the low spots and the dull narration in "Family Reunion — A Gospel Music Celebration."

Without the low points, the voltage from this musical blowout might leave viewers writhing on the floor. Television sets might explode and fires break out across the land.

"Family Reunion," appearing Saturday on the CBN Cable Network, offers two hours of hits from some of the biggest names in gospel music, including the Rev. James Cleveland, the Clark Sisters, Andrae Crouch, Sandra Crouch, Jessy Dixon, Edwin Hawkins, Thelma Houston, Billy Preston, Bebe and Cece Winans, and The Mighty Clouds of Joy.

What's wrong with the packaging can be summed up in two words: Dick Clark.

The ageless record-spinner, planted beside a fireplace, has little to say about the history or the meaning of gospel music. His role seems to be to assure the uninitiated that it's OK to listen, because the Beatles did, too.

He might have said more about the history of gospel, because a lot is implied by the songs and the singers. "Precious Lord," sung here by Della Reese, was written in 1931 by Thomas A. Dorsey, the man who invented gospel.

Cleveland was a boy soprano in Dorsey's choir at the Pilgrim Baptist Church in Chicago. In the 1960s, as the "crown prince of gospel," Cleveland worked with such young people as Billy Preston, Jessy Dixon and Aretha Franklin.

Dixon hits one of the program's high points with a bluesy rendition of Professor Alex Bradford's "I'm Too Close to Heaven (and I Can't Turn Around)."

Cleveland, whose growing voice and dabbling handkerchief recall Louis Armstrong, comes up next and steals the show with "Peace, Be Still."

The song was a huge hit in gospel terms, selling 800,000 albums in the 1960s. It's a dramatic piece in which Cleveland sweats, shouts, sings and preaches, turning down the volume with a peremptory "shhh!" and then building to another plateau.

"Family Reunion" covers some of the same territory covered last year with Paul Simon in the Cinemax special, "Everybody Say Yeah!" Andrae Crouch, Jennifer Holliday, the Hawkins Singers and the Mighty Clouds of Joy appeared on both shows.

There's even the same quotation from James Baldwin — "there is no music like that music" — which, if you think about it, applies to Lawrence Welk and a lot of other styles, too. But you get the point.

High follows high, sometimes in unexpected places. Hawkins' familiar hit, "Oh Happy Day," is given some needed rough edges by the fiery, strutting solo work of Thelma Houston.

Tramaine Hawkins — wife of Edwin's brother, Walter — lights up the place with "Changed."

Finally, the Crouch who wrecks the house isn't Andrae, but his sister, Sandra. This regal lady, a hard-working choir director through much of the show, takes the solo part as she whips a quartet and chorus through a rousing performance of "He's Worthy."

Amid all the stars, the show's last high point is hit by an unidentified young woman who steps out of the choir in "He's Worthy," and she's ready.

Not only has she picked up a couple of microphone moves from Joe Ligon of the Mighty Clouds, but she has a huge voice that lifts the roof. It bodes well for the future of gospel.

Art Critic Madoff To Lecture At ECU

Art critic Steven Henry Madoff will present a lecture on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Jenkins Auditorium on the campus of East Carolina University. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Funding for this event was provided by the North Carolina Arts Council.

Madoff's lecture is sponsored by the ECU School of Art's Visiting Critics Program. While on campus, he will also visit art classes and individual studios.

Madoff was born in New York and is a 1979 graduate of Columbia College of Columbia University as the Butler Scholar in the Humanities.

Awards he has received include the Academy of American Poets Poetry Prize and the alumni award for most distinguished undergraduate achievement in the arts.

Madoff studied at the Sorbonne and the College de France, and received his master's and doctorate from Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif., in 20th century English and American literature. While in California, he served as contributing editor to University Publishing, a quarterly review in Berkeley, Calif.

Madoff's publications include art and literary criticism as well as poetry. He has written for numerous art publications and newspapers and has contributed to a number of books, including art, photography and museum guide books.

Madoff has taught and lectured at Stanford University, Bennington College, The Pratt Institute, University of Texas at Austin, New York University and the National Art Academies in Stockholm, Helsinki, and Oslo.

His song cycle, "The Last World," in collaboration with composer Rhys Chatham, was premiered by soprano Joan La Barbara at Symphony Space in New York.

Going Like '60s Is New Trend For The '80s

By BETH ANN KRIER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

By most accounts, it started five years ago with the release of "The Big Chill" — the film that introduced a whole new generation to Vietnam "angst," free love and such '60s classics as "I Heard It Through the Grapevine" way before those dancing raisins did.

Other trend watchers point to New York fashion designer Stephen Sprouse's revival of neon-bright miniskirts in 1984 as a key influence.

Still other observers figure it was all those '60s reruns — "Leave It to Beaver," "The Twilight Zone" and "The Munsters" to name a few — that kicked the phenomenon into high gear.

Though many wrote off such initial evidence of '60s fever as passing forays into nostalgia, the trend seems to be growing with each additional replay.

Three current major films are set in the '60s ("Good Morning, Vietnam," "Dirty Dancing" and "Hairspray," the movie featuring teased hair, angel blouses, pegged pants and tab collars). Dozens of other films about the '60s are in the works, including at least three movies on the Woodstock concert of 1969.

Commodities from automobiles to athletic shoes are being advertised on national television with '60s music and themes.

In the music world, there is serious talk of a Beatles reunion. And numerous pop stars of the decade — notably Roy Orbison (who was recently backed up by Bruce Springsteen) and Little Richard (who is doing commercials for McDonald's) — are in the midst of major comebacks.

Shorter skirts for women and longer hair for men are "de rigueur" for the chic throughout the world.

"Classic rock" radio stations are so prevalent throughout the United States (there are at least six in Los Angeles) that some radio programmers fear that new bands will be denied sufficient air time.

Why are people increasingly enamored of the '60s, the decade that is remembered for its ideals (love and peace) and its excesses (sex, drugs and violence) at home and abroad?

Why are marketing experts predicting the current rehash will last at least another year, probably culminating in the summer of 1989 with the anniversary of Woodstock?

In short, why can't we let go of the '60s?

To Wavy Gravy, a former member of Ken Kesey's Merry Pranksters and the man who eeced the party for about half-a-million people at Woodstock, the answer to all those questions is simple: "The '80s are the '60s. These are the good old days."

And Gravy, who is still a member of the Berkeley, Calif.-based commune called the Hog Farm, is part of the cultural comeback. He recently appeared at New York City's old Fillmore East (renamed The Saint) in what was billed as a "Psychedelic Daze Revue" featuring Gravy, a psychedelic light show and a Country Joe concert. It was so successful that more evenings (with Abbie Hoffman and the rock group Iron Butterfly) were scheduled.

Author David Wallechinsky, who interviewed his classmates and others for his 1986 book, "Midterm Report, the Class of '65: Chronicle of an American Generation," suspects that the fascination with the '60s stems from the tumultuous events young people were forced to confront then.

"You had to expand one way or another. If you were a male, you had a choice to make regarding the Vietnam War," he says. "Both those who went to war and those who protested it thought they were doing something to make the world a better place...."

"Part of the reason we can't let go of the '60s is that they brought to the surface a welter of feelings and visions and inclinations which have been at war with each other ever since and have not been settled," says Todd Gitlin, a University of California, Berkeley, sociology professor and author of "The '60s, Years of Hope, Days of Rage." "Therefore, talking about the '60s is an indirect way of talking about where we are now in the culture and politics."

Ironically, along with the paramount issues of the decade, a long-lost sense of silliness and abandon is often mentioned by those who have written about the era.

Journalist-television producer Sara Davidson, whose 1977 book, "Loose Change," was a memoir of her journey through the '60s, sees the time as connected with "feeling young, feeling passionate, feeling good and having time."

"Nobody has time these days to spend an entire weekend listening to music, lying on the floor and hanging out with friends," she laments.

But some veterans of the '60s aren't put off at all by the fact that many old hippies are the ambitious yuppies of the '80s. "They're not apathetic," social philosopher and stand-up comic Timothy Leary says of the baby boom generation. "You can't be apathetic if you're jogging and you've got two jobs and nine plans for your life. The summer of love (1967) kids have smartened up and they're more realistic and practical. They're now moving into positions of authority."

"In the '50s, they were the Mouseketeers, learning how to be electronic people. In the late '60s, they were called hippies. In the '70s, they were yuppies. In the '80s, they're yuppies, young upscale pragmatics. In the '90s, they're going to take over."

In the meantime, some of the trappings, if not the substance of the era, are back in our closets. "The new designers are knocking off the '60s, but when we did it, it was totally different," says New York designer Giorgio di Sant' Angelo, who — with creators such as the late Rudi Gernreich of Los Angeles, New York's Betsey Johnson and London's Mary Quant — was responsible for many of the unique styles of the decade.

Los Angeles designer Holly Harp, who opened a Sunset Strip boutique bearing her name in 1968 and was an immediate hit with many rock and film stars, says the clothes she now manufactures for specialty stores and better department stores have much in common with those she made for her shop 20 years ago.

"The clothes are still fluid, romantic and hopefully reflect a certain amount of wit," says Harp, who was known for her "rich hippie" looks of often fashioned of lace, beads and matte jersey. "I'm not trying to do tasteful little uniforms. Being dressed in perfect taste is very aging."

Movie producer Linda Gottlieb, whose '60s dance movie "Dirty Dancing" is among the largest-grossing independent feature films ever made, says she is heartened by all the letters she gets from teen-aged fans of the movie.

"They write that they relate to the emotional aspects of the movie, things they had only dreamed of before," Gottlieb says. "These kids weren't even born until the '70s, but they see the '60s as a more simple, innocent and emotional time and they want more of that in their lives."

Marc Mancini, who teaches cinema at Loyola Marymount University, is concerned about the obsession with the past he observes in many of his students.

Mancini sometimes shows his classes films made in the '60s such as "The Graduate" or made about the decade, such as "Easy Rider." He has found the students typically understand the traditional values of "The Graduate" and are rather mystified by the hippie values of "Easy Rider."

"They find 'Easy Rider' either quaint, silly or troubling," Mancini says, noting that the students particularly have a tough time understanding the film's view that material ambition was a joke during the time.

In the opinion of Ray Browne, chairman of the Department of Popular Culture at Bowling Green (Ohio) State University, "We have been in a conservative span for so long that many of us think it may be dangerous and want more freedom and liberalization." However, the author of 38 books on popular culture, literature and folk lore cautions that trying to go back to the '60s is "like trying to go back into a suit that no longer fits," and calls instead for taking a run at the '90s "with a new frame of mind. We don't want to reinvent the liberalism of the '60s, we want to invent the liberalism of the '90s."

some sculptures, explained that long iron stakes are driven into the river ice to break loose blocks measuring 3 feet by 6 feet.

"Then they use hooks and ropes to pull the ice blocks from the river, and they bring them here by truck," Liu said.

Regular carpenter's saws, and also a 3-foot-diameter electric power saw, specially designed and mounted for use in festival work, are used to cut the ice into smaller blocks. These are then assembled and carved by artists, laborers and electricians to build the ice lanterns.

"The ice lanterns are built by major state-owned companies in Harbin," Liu said. "They hire some carpenters who work as professional carpenters during the summer. My father was a carpenter, and I'm a carpenter myself. It's interesting to work with ice, too."

During December, 2,500 people work for three weeks to carve the ice sculptures, festival deputy director Zhu said.

The first city-sponsored Ice Lantern Festival was held in 1963, as China was recovering from the disastrous economic policies of the Great Leap Forward, when impractical industrialization schemes led to insufficient agricultural efforts and widespread starvation.

"That was right after things had gotten better, after a difficult period," Zhu said. "The purpose was to enliven the spiritual life of the people. The festival was stopped during the Cultural Revolution (1966 to 1976). Then it was started again in 1978. It's getting bigger every year."

"If Harbin didn't have this kind of activity, everybody would stay inside during the winter, watching television or movies. Life is richer if there are outdoor activities, too."

"Winter starts in November and goes until the end of March. But people are used to it. By May 1, the grass begins to appear and leaves are coming out. People here are very happy to have spring come."

Tracks End Is Home For Dozens Of Railroad Men

By ELIZABETH LELAND
The Charlotte Observer
LINWOOD, N.C. (AP) — For dozens of men who make their living on the railroad between North Carolina and South Carolina, a lonely outpost in Davidson County is home — Tracks End, they call it.

Between runs to Asheville, Columbia and Greenville, S.C., the men sleep in a dormitory on the side of Interstate 85 south of Lexington. They know waitresses at Tracks End Restaurant by their first names, and waitresses know them by the food they eat.

"Is this your dinner, Ace?" Mary Broadway calls from the hot griddle. "Ace, you hear me? I'm going to send it out just like it is on the ticket and you tell me what's wrong."

Ace Murphy, 36, an engineer from Spartanburg, likes his mashed potatoes with gravy — and Ms. Broadway knows it. No matter that waitress Regina Gray forgot to mark it on the ticket.

"We know their habits," Ms. Broadway says.

Railway workers such as Bob Collins spend half their nights in the rural Davidson County town of Linwood. Collins, 48, of Easley, S.C., is a conductor for Southern Railway and rides daily between Linwood and Greenville, S.C. The Linwood yard is about a mile away from Tracks End, down a winding rural road past the Acme Poultry Farm & Hatchery and several plowed fields. A railroad van shuttles the crew back and forth.

Collins arrived from Greenville shortly after midnight on a recent Wednesday and was on his own for the next eight hours. Railroad regulations require crews to take eight-hour breaks between runs. That's why 30 or more crew members at any given time are sleeping in the 50-room dormitory or eating at the restaurant.

They lay over at Tracks End anywhere from eight to 24 hours. A Little Rock, Ark., company operates the facility under contract with Norfolk Southern Corp., parent company of Southern Railway and Norfolk & Western Railway.

After eight hours, the crew is on call. Collins got his about noon — No. 219 was taking off at 1 p.m. and he was to be on it.

"That's a good train," Collins said as much to himself as to engineer Dan Greer, who would be riding with him. Greer, 49, of Greenville, had come in the night before with Collins. He'd slept a little, then hit a few golf balls on a course in Salisbury. Like a lot of crew members, Greer keeps a car in Linwood. Otherwise, he'd be stuck at Tracks End.

"Out in the boonies," as one engineer put it.

On one side is the VIP Massage. On the other, New Zion Baptist Church.

"I play pool, watch TV, used to run a lot," Collins says. "I just stay around here, drink coffee. Socialize, I reckon. . . Really and truly, we're like a close-knit family. We sympathize with each other's family troubles. And the ladies who work in here, we know them about as well as (we know) the men who work on the road."

Collins bought a 1973 Ford for a couple hundred dollars and keeps it parked at Tracks End. The lot is full of rusty Fords, Chevys, Pontiacs.

"Most of them out here are running on one leg," Collins says. "But they get us out of here."

Most days, Greer drives his 1978 Pontiac to Salisbury to work out in a gym. He usually eats in Salisbury, too.

"Eating at the same place all the time can get old," he says. "That's the reason we have automobiles."

Mary Leonard, manager of Tracks End Restaurant, doesn't mind. She knows that when the train pulls in at 1 a.m., they'll be heading to one of her eight Formica tables. The restaurant is decorated with railroad memorabilia — pictures of trains, railroad ties, a few station signs. And it's open whenever the crew is hungry — 24 hours a day.

Used to be, it was open 365 days a year. Now it closes for Christmas and New Year's Day. But last Dec. 25, three crew members were stranded at Tracks End and Ms. Leonard rushed in to fix two club sandwiches and an order of fried eggs, hash browns and smoked sausage.

"We serve breakfast 24 hours a day," says Ms. Leonard, who used to manage the restaurant at the Howard Johnson in Charlotte. "The lines run here from Greenville, Columbia and Asheville. Their destination is here and sometimes it's in the middle of the night."

Motorists on I-85 can stop and eat at Tracks End, too. But if a crew member comes in, Ms. Leonard serves him first.

Buses

The industry burgeoned after independence in 1963 when restrictions were lifted and people were allowed to move to the cities, swelling metropolitan populations and increasing the need for public transport.

The name matatu comes from the Kikuyu term "mang'otore matatus," meaning 30 Kenyan cents, which at that time was the standard matatu fare.

Today, the average fare around Nairobi is 3 shillings (19 U.S. cents) and routes are flexible.

To increase profits and their own $40 to $75 monthly salaries, matatu crews overload the buses, work overly long hours at the wheel and drive at high speeds in order to meet daily quotas set by matatu owners.

At least 80 percent of the matatu crews work seven-day weeks and average 10 hours a day in vehicles that suffer most often from engine, brake or gear-box failure, according to a 1982 study by the Nairobi-based Mazengira Institute.

Many drivers admit to chewing khat, a stimulative twig, or smoking marijuana to keep themselves alert.

In one of the dozens of commentaries on matatus, a columnist for the Daily Nation, Kenya's leading newspaper, blamed "greed, brainless bravado and showmanship" for the road carnage caused by matatus.

"The nation should not allow lunatics to ply the roads any longer," the columnist said.

Actor Bacon Plans Wedding

NEW YORK (AP) — Movie star Kevin Bacon plans to marry blue-blooded actress Kyra Minter Sedgwick in September, says a spokesman for the actor.

Publicist Allen Eichhorn made the announcement Monday.

Miss Sedgwick has been rehearsing with Jason Robards and Colleen Dewhurst in a production of Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness!" opening today in New Haven, Conn.

Bacon's screen credits include "Footloose," "Quicksilver" and the recent films "She's Having a Baby" and "End of the Line." He has also appeared on stage and television.

Miss Sedgwick is the daughter of Patricia Heller of New York, an educational and family therapist, and Henry D. Sedgwick of New York and Stockbridge, Mass., a venture capitalist. Her great-grandfather, Endicott Peabody, founded the Groton School.

Bacon's father, Edmund, is former director of the Philadelphia City Planning Commission. His mother, Ruth, teaches preschool children.

Producer Switch

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rick Wallace has joined the NBC hit show "L.A. Law" as co-executive producer with Steven Bochco, succeeding Gregory Hoblit who has gone off to direct Al Pacino in a feature film called "Sea of Love."

Hoblit was a writer and producer of Bochco's "Hill Street Blues." Wallace was a director on that series and produced Bochco's "Bay City Blues."

Honored

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Director Blake Edwards will be honored at the second annual American Comedy Awards with the Lifetime Creative Achievement Award. Edwards made such films as "The Pink Panther," "Victor-Victoria," "10," and more recently "Blind Date" and "That's Life."

The awards show will be broadcast May 17 on ABC.

My Granddaddy's Barbecue

By Emily Privette

I love barbecue. My granddaddy makes barbecue. He makes the best barbecue in the world. His barbecue is very hot. He has a secret recipe for the sauce. He won't tell anyone. Barbecue comes from pigs.

The meat is called pork. The pig is very big and you cook it in one piece. It takes a long time to cook the pig. My granddaddy has to get up very early in the morning to start the fire. He cooks the pig all day. It looks disgusting because it still has the head and the tail and the feet. But it tastes delicious.

My granddaddy always cooks pigs for the state fair. He has been in many contests and sometimes wins first place. My granddaddy's barbecue is the best ever.

Emily Privette, 8, a student at W.H. Robinson School wins this week's writing contest.

Teenagers of Today

By Pamela Michell Teel

The teens of today would just like to say, that we know you adults had it rough. But growing up in the world today is also very tough.

It seems to us that we have a longer road to success. And down that road, there are people who try to stop us from being our best.

There are our peers who try to make us do things we don't normally do.

And if you say, "no" or give your opinion, they always have a name for you.

There are more rules and regulations that we must abide by.

And the pressures of school, day after day, make us want to cry.

There are also more activities today than there were in yesteryear.

And the results of teens getting involved is what most parents fear.

But we teens know how hard it is and what we need to get. So don't you worry moms and dads because we teens will make it yet!

Pamela Michell Teel, 15, a student at North Pitt High School receives special mention.

Snowwoman

By Jamie Kimble

If I were a snowwoman I would go sledding and throw snowballs with the boys and girls. I would wear a magic hat and I would go to school. I would wear buttons and a charcoal nose. I would make a friend. We would play games.

Jamie Kimble, 6, a student at Sadie Sautler School receives special mention.

All About Me

By Kellie Cannon

I was born December 12, 1979. Then I got older and went to kindergarten. I turned six. I started to take ballet, but I didn't make it to the Nutcracker. I learned how to bow and stand on my tiptoes. Sometimes we'd stop and play games. One day a new girl came. She was my friend. Then she moved so, I retired later on.

When I went to first grade and we got out for the summer, I stayed with my grandma everyday. One day my aunt was off of work, and all of grandma's grandchildren went to her pool. Then I jumped in and split my chin, so I went to the hospital and got stitches.

Then a day in first grade, I lost my library book. So...I couldn't check out another. I found it that night in my closet.

That same summer my mom took me to King's Dominion. I met one of my mother's friends there. Down the street was where my cousin lived. He has a playroom, and I played in it.

When I turned 7 and 1/2, I had the best party ever! It was a surprise. My mother said we were going to the grocery store...but, she took me to Sportsworld and I had a surprise birthday party there.

Kellie Cannon, 8, a student at Falkland Elementary School receives special mention.

Holly

By Denise Sumerlin

I've known her I guess, fifteen years or so. We did everything together--learn, talk, and grow. She was there for me with every step I took. We were bound together like the pages of a book.

My tears she dried, my eyes she soothed; With everything she did for me, my heart was moved. You would never imagine what we shared-- Fears, hopes, dreams; even our souls we bared.

With memories in my eyes I see us playing. Who could ever guess a doll could come to life? She is still with me, my Everlasting Friend. Holly might just be a doll, but she'll be with me until the end. Denise Sumerlin, 17, a student at D.H. Conley High School receives special mention.

Qadriyyah Dawkins, 9, a student at Pactolus Elementary School receives special mention.

Granny's Soup

By David Ezzell

My granny's soup is so good. She cooks it in a big, gray pot. She puts ham, corn, green peas, potatoes, butter beans, tomatoes and chopped cabbage in it.

When I smell it, it makes me hungry. Whenever I am sick, I wish that I had some to eat. She makes it for me because she loves me.

David Ezzell, 7, a student at W.H. Robinson School receives special mention.

The Dinosaurs

By Brian Flye

One morning there were two dinosaurs. One dinosaur was named Tom and the other was named Fred. That morning when he woke up they found something. It was a plant. The plant was a rose. The rose had some thorns on it. Fred touched the plant.

When Fred touched it, it hurt him. Then he went and woke up Tom. Tom helped him. Tom put a band-aid on him. Then he was better.

Brian Flye, 6, a student at Elmhurst Elementary School receives special mention.

Tar Heel Trivia

Official Insect

North Carolina's state insect is as "busy as a bee". Named North Carolina's official insect in 1973, the honey bee helps to pollinate the crops of the state as well as produce raw honey for eating. Our state also has an official fish, the channel bass. This fish is usually found in coastal waters and averages between thirty and forty pounds. The channel bass was selected as the state fish in 1971 by the General Assembly

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY April 7

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Be sure to listen to the opinions of others, as these could help you update your point of view. You will be presented with a fine opportunity.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): With the help of an expert, you can get that big idea you have been working on across to a superior. Be more considerate of your mate.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Be more enthusiastic about your work, and your attitude will spread to co-workers. You can make a shrewd business deal this evening.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Your energy level will be unusually high today, so use it to get ahead on your work. Later, relax with your good friends.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Do something special for your mate which will show how much you care. Stop limiting your own progress, and think big for a change.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Your family can be greatly pleased by a few small improvements around the house. Use care in handling the details of all your undertakings.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): If a visit to a good friend has been put off for much too long, this is a good time to make it, but be very careful while driving this evening.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Don't ignore practical concerns in order to have a good time with your friends. Enlist the aid of a pal to do some home improvement work.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): If you get up and at 'em early today, you can make a fantastic coup in business. Put some time aside for recreation tonight.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Be very careful about losing your temper with anyone today, or you'll regret it later. Try to come to a better understanding with your mate.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): You will have the ability to deepen relationships and improve understanding today, so get together with all your good friends.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): With a little bit of effort, you can greatly improve your credit and civic situations. Others will listen to your opinions readily today.

 The person who first defined a pessimist as someone who spent some time with an optimist must have been a bridge player. Over the green baize, more often than not it pays to look at life through a glass, darkly. Then, if things turn out well, you can be pleasantly surprised. If they do not, it is not a shock for the system.

We like North's courageous bidding. South's jump to three clubs showed a hand worth something like 18 points and at least a good six-card suit. With 15 HCP, virtually all prime, and a doubleton trump, North wasted no time in getting to what he felt was the optimum contract, although six no trump would have been equally viable.

How well declarer does at six clubs depends on whether he looks at life through rose-colored glasses or always carries an umbrella just in case. Those who believe that nothing can go wrong win the first trick and bang out the ace-king of clubs, then find they are down one when trumps break 4-1 and there was no singleton honor.

Those who believe in gloom and doom take a more careful approach to the hand. Since the contract hinges solely on losing no more than one trump trick, they set out to protect against that possibility while at the same time leaving open the option of making an overtrick should either defender hold the bare Q-J of trumps.

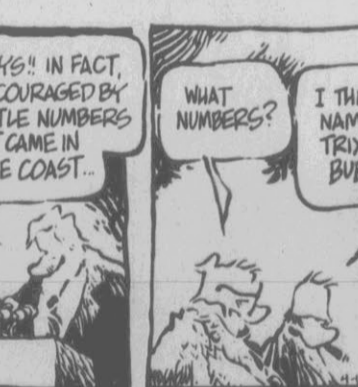

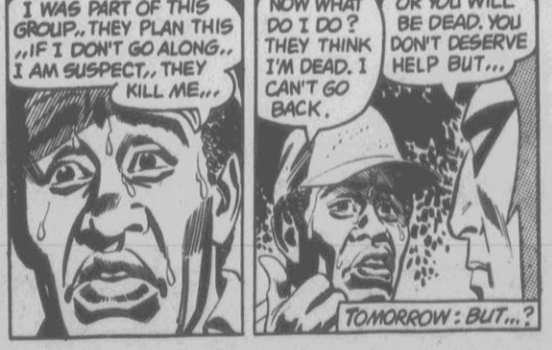

After winning the first spade trick they, too, lead a trump to the ace. At trick three, however, after only low clubs appear on the previous trick, they re-enter dummy with a heart, lead a trump and, when East follows low, they finesse the nine. If it loses, only one trump remains outstanding and it will be drawn with the king. But if trumps lie as they do, the "safety play" will have held the trump losers to one and the slam is safe.

MEXICAN FIESTA — When you start with frozen prepared burritos and refrigerated biscuits, a Mexican fiesta is as easy as uno, dos, tres. The whole family will enjoy preparing and eating this meal.

Mexican Fiesta May Be Waiting In The Freezer

Tacos are great, and your family undoubtedly loves them, but don't stop there when you're thinking Mexican. With the help of a few convenience foods, you can throw a Mexican fiesta in a matter of minutes.

Start with frozen prepared burritos, any flavor, and top them with salsa and other garnishes. Toss a salad, using plenty of avocados and tomatoes. Slice and steam a few calabacitas (you may know them better as zucchini), or opt for frozen corn with some chopped sweet red pepper as a side dish.

Don't be afraid to get the kids involved. With a little help from Mom or Dad, they can put together Mexican Pull-Apart Biscuits. While the biscuits bake, make Lemon-Raspberry Swirl. It can chill while you eat dinner.

The food is important in any Mexican fiesta, but atmosphere is important, too.

Set the table with colorful placemats and napkins, and serve the food in pottery bowls, if you have them. Group a half-dozen or more brightly colored candles in the middle of the table and maybe tuck in a cactus or two from the kitchen window. With any luck, you may even find some Mexican music on the radio.

A good time is all but guaranteed. And the best part is that nothing takes more than 20 minutes to prepare.

BURRITOS WITH SPICY SALSA
4 packages (5 ounces each) frozen prepared burritos, any flavor
1 jar (8 ounces) salsa
1 can (2 1/4 ounces) sliced ripe olives.

1 small red or green pepper, chopped (about 1 cup)
1 teaspoon chopped cilantro (optional)

1 avocado, peeled and sliced
Crushed tortilla chips (optional)
Dairy sour cream (optional)

Prepare burritos according to package instructions. In small bowl, combine salsa, olives, red pepper and cilantro, if desired. Top burritos with avocado slices and salsa mixture. Garnish with tortilla chips and sour cream, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

MEXICAN PULL-APART BISCUITS

3 tablespoons margarine, melted
1/2 teaspoon chili powder
1 package (7.5 ounces) refrigerated biscuits (10 biscuits)
1/2 cup (2 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

1/4 cup chopped jalapeno pepper
In 9-inch pie plate, combine margarine and chili powder. Cut biscuits into quarters. Place in pie plate and toss to coat each piece with margarine mixture. Sprinkle cheese and jalapeno peppers on top. Bake in 350 degree oven 15 minutes or until

Avocado Has Its Fans

By Nina Killham
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

An avocado is a sensuous fruit: smooth and creamy as mousse. It is often nixed, though, because of its high percentage of fat: about 5 grams per ounce. It doesn't matter what Angie Dickinson says, that's still 150 calories for half an avocado.

But, as it is rich in minerals and fiber and has become, for many, an uncontrolled passion, the avocado will never be abandoned.

There are two main American varieties: haas, bumpy-skinned and black, which is available in summer; and fuerte (meaning strong in

Avocados are usually pear-shaped, prompting the French to call them poires d'avocat.

All varieties are native to South and Central America, where they have been grown for centuries. In 1848, according to Joyce Carlisle in "The Avocado Lover's Cookbook" (Celestial Arts, 1985), the first avocado trees were planted in California.

When harvested, avocados are plucked unripe from the trees to avoid any bruising from fallen fruit. It is advised, therefore, to buy avocados several days before eating; otherwise, you could break your teeth on your salad.

A very hard avocado will take up to five days to ripen. If you are in a rush, place it in a paper bag with a ripe tomato or banana. (This adds an extra dosage of ethylene gas for quick ripening.) To slow the process, store in the refrigerator.

If using only half an avocado, leave the pit in the unused portion, brush the cut area with lemon juice and cover tightly with plastic wrap for refrigerator storage up to three days.

Avocado pulp may even be frozen, though unless you live in the middle of a California avocado grove, there is little reason. Mash or puree one quart of pulp with one tablespoon lemon or lime juice, place in an airtight container and freeze up to several weeks.

Best known for its role in guacamole, the avocado can lend a richness to many dishes. Try adding it to dips and sauces, or to appetizers and entrees like this variation on seviche from "The Avocado Lover's Cookbook":

Marinate 1/2 pound of firm white fish or shellfish cut into small pieces in 1/2 cup of lime juice overnight. Gently toss together 1 diced avocado, 2 tablespoons chopped scallions, 1 chopped and seeded tomato, 3 tablespoons chopped fresh cilantro leaves and 2 tablespoons diced green chilies with fish mixture. Combine 1 tablespoon salad oil, 1 tablespoon red wine and 1 tablespoon chopped fresh oregano (or 1 teaspoon dried). Pour oil mixture over fish and gently toss

Create Your Own Curry Mixture

By Betsy Balsley
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Curry is an often misunderstood seasoning. To many, it is simply a bottle of yellow powder to be found in the spice section at the nearest supermarket. Even those who profess to like the zingy bite provided by this ubiquitous yellow flavoring rarely bother to glance at the label.

If they did, it quite likely would come as a shock to find that curry powder per se is not a single exotic spice, but a mixture of spices whose end flavor depends entirely on the amounts and variety of ingredients that a particular brand contains. The list of ingredients and the quantities of each used varies from brand to brand.

Thus it should be no surprise to find that a homemade curry mixture will have a very different taste from the commercial blends one finds so handy. A true, from-scratch curry blend depends entirely on the likes and at-the-moment whim of the cook.

Curry mixtures, whether commercially packed or homemade, can be blazing hot or mild as a cucumber. In India and other parts of the world where curry-flavored foods are popular, these spice mixtures are decidedly individual as whoever concocts them adds their own personal touch.

Each batch is freshly prepared and may contain varying amounts of as many as 15 or 16 spices and herbs, all pounded and blended together to enhance whatever food the cook is preparing. A from-scratch curry mix often contains ground dried chiles, cumin seeds, turmeric, black pepper, coriander, garlic, ginger, anise seeds, fenugreek, bay leaves and numerous other spices in addition. Or, if the cook prefers, a curry may be an interesting blend of only a few of the

The foods cooked with the spice blends we call curry can be as varied as the mixtures. Meats, vegetables, grains — even fruits — benefit from the flavors provided by different seasoning combinations.

The sweetness found in dried fruits can be elegantly enhanced with many of the spices normally found in a curry mix. And stronger meats such as lamb and beef take on new character when seasoned with some of the spicier curry blends. One of the recipes included in the following recipes is a pear dessert flavored with just a hint of a bottled curry powder. It may sound strange to flavor a dessert with a curry blend but this one was an instant hit with those lucky enough to taste it.

If the flavors found in prepackaged curry mixtures are not to your liking, it may be that they can be pleasantly adjusted to something more palatable by simply adding a few extra seasonings. If you prefer a hotter (spicier) seasoning, try adding more cumin powder or seed to the mix you are using.

Or if the bottled mix you have is too spicy for your liking, try creating, from scratch, a blend that suits you better. Cloves and cinnamon will add a touch of sweetening and anise seeds will add a hint of licorice. All it takes is a mortar and pestle or a mini-food processor — or even a coffee bean grinder — and a collection of spices and herbs.

Start with small amounts of spices you know you like and add others as you go along. But — and this is important — a curry blend will only be as good as the spices are fresh. If you have had bottles of turmeric or bay leaves or cumin stashed away on a

Kathy Kolasa

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

In a recent column, you gave guidelines for adults and cholesterol. What should we do for our children? E.H., Greenville.

A. We all want our children to grow up with health promoting food habits. So, introduce your children to a wide variety of foods. Keep fats in moderation and total calories right for their size, activity level and stage of growth. It's important to remember that children are not just little adults, and their needs vary as they grow. When it comes to cholesterol, the experts have not yet issued guidelines for children like they did for adults. They are trying to come to some agreement. The American Heart Association has encouraged the Prudent Diet, or no more than 30 percent of calories from fat, for everyone over the age of 2. But in recent years, there have been cases of "low growth or short status syndrome" in children. It seems that most of these cases occurred in families where parents, very concerned about obesity and/or heart disease, strictly kept fat out of the children's diets. Children do need fat to grow and develop. I think the experts will soon say that we should not try to restrict the total fat in the child's diet to 30 percent of the calories until they are school age. Then, they should be eating the same lean meats and low-fat dairy products that adults eat.

But, I think we should still watch the kinds of fats even before they go to school. The healthy heart recommendation is for no more than 10 percent of the fats to be saturated. Most research shows local children getting more than 25 percent of their fat from saturated sources. So, try to limit the processed foods that have coconut or palm oil and hydrogenated or saturated fats in them. Read the label for these words. And, use foods with these fats in moderation. I understand that the Lance Co. which makes "nabs" has switched from palm and coconut to canola oil. Canola oil is a much better choice.

You will want to ask your pediatrician or family doctor, but unless you have family history of heart disease, it's probably not necessary to have your children's blood cholesterol measured. As yet, we don't have very many studies of what happens to blood cholesterol levels in children as they grow. We have learned that cholesterol levels do vary with age and that they don't seem to predict adult cholesterol levels for very many — unless their mom, dad or grandparents had high blood cholesterol.

Oh yes, I recently heard a physician in the University of Tennessee Medical School report that the more time a child watches television, the more likely they are to become obese.

Fresh Fish Perfect For Outdoor Grill

By Toni Tipton
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Does spring fever make you hunger for the taste of foods fresh off the grill? The smell of any number of food items hot off the barbie is guaranteed to wake up winter menu doldrums. Or, if it is too soon (or too cold) to dust off the hibachi or crank up the gas grill, the broiler is always available.

For variety during the Lenten season, try grilling fish and vegetables. Because they are leaner, white-fleshed soles, cods and bass have a tendency to dry out during cooking — creating a need for basting. To avoid the extra calories this can add up to, choose instead, from these slightly fattier, rich fleshed fishes: salmon, albacore, swordfish and sablefish.

Because of the dry heat involved in barbecuing fish, basting with lemon and herbs and a dash of butter, or marinating in olive oil, wine and vinegar is suggested to give fish a savory flavor. Marinating is the best way to cut back on the calories that accumulate so quickly when butter-based sauces are used to spruce up the flavor of fish. Another way to avoid extra calories is to use non-stick coating spray on the broiler pan, or brush grill grates with olive oil (which is monounsaturated) to prevent sticking.

Pacific albacore has mild flavor, light colored flesh. A member of the tuna family, its firm, meaty texture makes it perfect for grilling.

Albacore has a high level of protein and a moderate share of fat and calories. It is available year-round and should always be cooked medium-rare leaving a pink center to ensure a moist tender texture.

An average 3 1/2-ounce serving of albacore has a hefty 1.5 grams of omega-3 fatty acid — about the same amount found in salmon — compared with just .2 grams available in the same proportion of swordfish, according to "The Omega-3 Breakthrough" by Julius Fast, (The Body Press; $15.95, hard cover, 228 pp., non-illustrated).

Swordfish has an even milder taste, is usually available as individual steaks and offers about 125 calories per 3 1/2-ounce serving, a smidgen less fat than albacore.

Almost any vegetable is suitable for grilling; tougher varieties like carrots may require pre-cooking while tender ones such as mushrooms and tomatoes should be cooked at the last minute to avoid overbrowning.

BROWNIE DELIGHTS — Offer a friend a coconut-topped brownie, a peanutty brownie wedge or double decker confetti brownie and see if it is refused.

Brownies Are Hard Items To Turn Down

Not many people can say no to a brownie. Especially not to chocolaty creations like these made with "M&M's" Chocolate Candies. They add color and crunch to make these brownie delights even more appetizing and delicious.

The Peanutty Brownie Wedges are cut and served from a brownie "pie". Double Decker Confetti Brownies are double good — two layers of color and flavor. Coconut Topped Brownies are a rich treat for chocolate lovers with a crunchy sweet coconut and "M&M's" Chocolate Candies topping.

For dessert or a snack, brownies are always certain to be a hit. These special recipes use new ideas on a traditional favorite to make some truly delightful brownies. Everyone is certain to want seconds.

1 package (about 21.5 oz.) brownie mix

Ingredients per brownie package directions
1 1/4 cups "M&M's" Plain Chocolate Candies
1 cup flaked coconut
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted

Prepare brownie mix according to package directions; stir in 3/4 cup candies. Spread batter into greased 13x9-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until center is set.

Meanwhile, combine coconut, sugar, butter and remaining candies. Gently spread over brownies. Broil 2 to 3 minutes or until coconut is lightly browned. Remove to wire rack to cool. Makes one 13x9-inch pan of brownies.

Ice Cream — Some Facts On How It Got Started

(According to The Latest Scoop, the International Ice Cream Association Facts and Figures of Ice Cream and Related Products)

Ice cream probably evolved from chilled wines and other iced beverages. In the fourth century before Christ, Alexander the Great was reputed to be fond of iced beverages.

From ancient records, it is learned that in 62 A.D., the Roman Emperor, Nero, sent fleets of slaves to the mountains of the Apennines to fetch snow and ice which were then flavored with nectar, fruit pulp and honey.

Marco Polo, the 13th century bard and adventurer, brought with him to Europe from the Far East recipes for water ices said to be used in asia for thousands of years. These water ices became popular in Venice and throughout Italy.

When Catherine de Medici married Henry II and became Queen of France in 1533, she brought with her recipes for Italian sherbert. It is said that her son, Henry III, was addicted to these delicacies and consumed them daily.

This delicacy found its way to America and in 1700 Governor Bladen of Maryland was serving ice cream to his guests.

Dolly Madison created a sensation when she served ice cream as a dessert in the White House at the second inaugural ball in 1812.

The first hand-ranked freezer was invented by Nancy Johnson in 1846.

She failed to patent it, however, and a similar type was patented by a Mr. Young in 1847.

The ice cream cone was first made and sold at the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904. It has remained a favorite to this date, with billions of cones consumed each year. Other products, such as ice cream on sticks, ice cream bars and other forms of ice cream, such as ice mild and sherbert, had their beginning in the 1920's.

ICE CREAM FACTS AND STATISTICS

The ice cream industry has consistently reached record sales production and consumption volumes over the past several years. Research indicates this growth trend will continue. (The following information has been compiled by the International Ice Cream Association.)

•Ice Cream is consumed by more than 98 percent of all households in the United States, with 86 percent purchasing ice cream at least once a month.

•The consumption of ice cream in the United States during 1986 reached an all time high of 1.4 billion gallons.

•Retail sales of ice cream and related products topped $9 billion for 1986. Approximately $4.6 billion is attributed to supermarket sales, while $4.5 billion is attributed to food service sales, including ice cream shops, restaurants, schools, military bases and hospitals.

cream represent about 35 percent of the total dollar sales of ice cream.

•Ice cream novelty sales represent about 1/3 of the total snack market.

•After several year of phenomenal growth, the novelty market is expected to reach a record $2 billion in sales by the end of 1987.

•Children ages 2-17 and adults age 45 and above eat the most ice cream per person.

•Most ice cream is eaten in households where housewives are ages 35-54.

•The amount of ice cream consumed increases with income and education.

•The typical heavy user of packaged ice cream tends to be married, economically upscale, lives in a larger household, has children in all age groups and resides in the western United States.

•An average scoop of ice cream has only 160 calories — the same as a banana.

LEMON-RASPBERRY SWIRL

1 tablespoon sugar

1/8 teaspoon ground cinnamon

2 tablespoons margarine, melted

1 box (3 ounces) instant lemon pudding mix

2 cups milk

1/4 teaspoon lemon peel

2 tablespoons raspberry preserves, melted

In small bowl, combine graham cracker crumbs, sugar and cinnamon. Stir in margarine. Divide crumb mixture between four 10-ounce custard cups and press into bottom of cups. Prepare pudding according to package instructions. Stir in lemon peel. Pour pudding into prepared custard cups. Spoon 1/2 tablespoon preserves on each cup and swirl with a knife. again. Chill until ready to serve.

Or try the recipe below, making sure you have butter and black pepper in your kitchen before heading out for the express lane.

Express-lane list: onion, ginger, avocado, chicken stock, light cream and scallion.

AVOCADO AND GINGER VICHYSOISE

1/2 cup butter

1 medium onion, finely chopped

1 ounce fresh ginger, peeled and grated

1 large avocado, peeled and mashed

2 cups chicken stock

1 teaspoon black pepper

1/2 cup light cream

1 scallion, finely chopped

Melt the butter in a saute pan. Cook the onions and grated ginger for about 2 minutes. Add the mashed avocado and chicken stock. Mix all ingredients thoroughly, using a wire whisk to eliminate lumps. Simmer slowly for about 10 to 15 minutes. Add salt, pepper and cream. Stir and chill for at least an hour. Chill bowls before serving. Garnish each bowl with scallions.

OATMEAL REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

1/2 cup shortening

3 tablespoons sugar

1 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup boiling water

1 cup oats

1 envelope dry yeast or package fresh yeast

1/2 cup warm water

1 egg, beaten

2 to 2 1/2 cups flour

Melted butter or margarine

Place shortening, sugar and salt in large bowl. Add boiling water and stir until shortening is melted. Add oats and cool to lukewarm.

Soften yeast in warm water and add beaten egg. Stir yeast mixture into oatmeal mixture. Stir in 1 cup flour and beat hard. Add remaining flour and beat well. Cover with towel and plate and place in refrigerator until needed.

About 2 hours before baking, remove dough to floured board and roll into large circle. Cut into 24 pie-shaped wedges. Spread with melted butter and roll each wedge from wide edge to point. Place on greased baking sheet. Brush rolls with melted butter and let rise in warm place until doubled. Bake at 400 degrees 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 24 rolls.

Homemade Curry Mixtures Won't Taste Like Commercial Blends

spice shelf for a year or so, forget them. They are over the hill and will provide nothing but a dry grassy flavor and aroma to the foods they are used to season. Learn to trust your nose when it comes to spices. A good quick whiff will tell you whether it's time to replace one or not. If it smells dry and stale, that's exactly how it will taste.

The following recipes will show how easy it is to create your own personal curry mix as well as how to use these heavily spiced mixtures. We have also included several recipes that call for the readily available bottled commercial products just in case you would like the easy way out.

CHICKEN-YOGURT CURRY

1 cup yogurt
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1/2 teaspoon ground turmeric
1 teaspoon minced garlic
1/4 teaspoon crushed red chiles
1 cup oil
2 large onions, chopped
1 tablespoon ground coriander
1 tablespoon ground cumin
1 tablespoon ground almonds
1/2 cup shredded coconut
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon ground mace
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
1 tablespoon ground cardamom
1 cup warm water
2 tablespoons milk
1/4 teaspoon saffron
1/2 cup finely chopped cilantro leaves

Lemon Juice
Remove skin and pierce chicken thighs with fork. Mix yogurt with salt, ginger, turmeric, garlic and chiles. Rub paste over chicken and marinate 2 hours.

Heat oil in large, heavy skillet and saute onions until golden. Remove onions and set aside to cool. Dry roast ground coriander, cumin, almonds, coconut, nutmeg and mace over medium low heat 3 minutes in heavy skillet, stirring often. Place onions and coriander mixture in blender and grind to fine paste. Transfer to bowl and add cinnamon, cloves and cardamom. Mix well.

Reheat oil in which onions were fried and brown marinated chicken. Pour spice paste over chicken and stir in any leftover yogurt marinade. Add warm water. Simmer until chicken is tender. In small saucepan, warm milk and add saffron. Add gradually to chicken, stirring slowly. Cook 2 more minutes. Sprinkle cilantro leaves and lemon juice over chicken. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

CURRIED SKEWERED PORK

1 (8-ounce) package dried mixed fruit
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
1 tablespoon minced ginger root
Juice of 3 large oranges
3 to 4 pounds lean pork
Salt, pepper
1 egg, beaten
Water
1/2 cup seasoned bread crumbs

PEANUTTY BROWNIE WEDGES
1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened

1/2 cup peanut butter
1 1/4 cups brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 1/4 cups "M&M's" Peanut Chocolate Candies

Beat butter, peanut butter and brown sugar until fluffy; beat in vanilla and egg. Stir in flour mixed with baking powder and salt, mixing well. Stir in 1 cup candies. Spread into well-greased 9-inch pie plate. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Sprinkle with remaining candies; pressing in slightly. Bake an additional 5 minutes or until center is set. Remove to wire rack to cool. Cut into wedges to serve. Makes one 9-inch round of brownies.

DOUBLE DECKER CONFETTI BROWNIES

3/4 cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 eggs
2 1/2 cups flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup unsweetened cocoa
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted
3/4 cup "M&M's" Plain Chocolate Candies

Beat softened butter and sugars until fluffy; beat in vanilla and eggs. Stir in 2 1/4 cups flour mixed with baking powder and salt, mixing well. Divide batter in half. Into one half of the batter, stir in cocoa and melted butter. Spread into a greased 13-by-9-inch pan. Into remaining batter, stir in remaining flour; fold in 1/2 cup plain candies. Spread evenly over chocolate layer. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Sprinkle with remaining candies; pressing slightly. Bake an additional 15 minutes or until edges are lightly browned. Remove to wire rack to cool. Makes one 13x9-inch pan.

2 tablespoons oil

1 teaspoon cornstarch

1/2 cup shredded fresh coconut

Toss dried fruit in small bowl with cumin and ginger. Stir in orange juice and let stand about 20 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Cut pork into 15 (1-by-2 1/2-inch) cubes. Thread 5 meat cubes on each of 3 heavy 6- to 7-inch long wood skewers. Season meat to taste with salt and pepper.

Combine beaten egg with 1 tablespoon water in shallow bowl and dip each skewer into egg mixture, turning to coat well. Immediately dip into bread crumbs, coating well. Brown meat on all sides in hot oil in skillet.

Drain fruit, reserving juice, and add fruit to skillet. Add enough water to reserved juice to measure at least 1/2 cup liquid. Add to pan, stirring up any browned bits. Cover, reduce heat and simmer mixture 30 to 40 minutes or until meat is tender and cooked through.

Remove meat and fruit to warm platter and thicken sauce in skillet with cornstarch blended with 1 tablespoon water, if desired. Serve sauce over meat and sprinkle fruit with shredded fresh coconut. Makes 3 servings.

CURRIED DESSERT PEARS

2 cups water
2 cups sugar
1/4 cup julienned ginger root
4 pears, peeled and halved
Gingered Whipped Cream
Combine water and sugar in saucepan over medium heat, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Stir in ginger and set aside. Arrange pear halves in 13-by-9-inch baking dish and pour sugar syrup over them.

Cover with foil and bake at 350 degrees about 1 hour or until pears are tender. Remove from oven and chill in syrup.

To serve, arrange 2 pear halves on plate and fill centers with Gingered Whipped Cream. Makes 4 servings.

Gingered Whipped Cream

1/2 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons powdered sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon minced candied ginger

Whip cream until foamy. Add sugar, vanilla and curry powder and continue whipping until mixture holds shape when beaters are lifted out. Lightly fold in candied ginger. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

RAM'S CHICKEN CURRY

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 large onion, minced
1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 cup water
1 medium tomato, peeled and chopped
1/3 cup low-fat yogurt
1 tablespoon paprika
2 chicken breasts, halved and skinned

Curry Mix
Salt
Melt butter in skillet. Add onion, garlic and ginger and saute until golden. Carefully add water and mix well. Add tomato and yogurt and cook until mixture becomes thick paste. Add paprika.

Reduce heat and add chicken pieces, turning to coat well. Cover and cook until chicken is nearly done, stirring occasionally. Add Curry Mix and stir to mix thoroughly. Remove cover and continue cooking until chicken is done. Season to taste with salt. Makes 4 servings.

Curry Mix

1/4 teaspoon coriander seeds

1/2 teaspoon cumin seeds

1 bay leaf, crushed

Combine coriander, cumin and bay leaf in dry skillet. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, about 3 or 4 minutes. Remove from heat and pour onto cutting board. With rolling pin, grind into powder.

Note: This is fairly hot curry. If less hot curry is desired, add milk to reduce heat.

ULTIMATE LAMB CURRY

3 pounds lean, boneless lamb

3 tablespoons oil

1 large onion, chopped

Green Mix

Curry Mix

2 tablespoons tomato paste

2 tablespoons cider vinegar

1 cup water, about

Salt

Hot cooked rice

Condiments: chutney, chopped green onions, chopped hard-cooked eggs, golden raisins, chopped peanuts, shredded coconut, minced crisp cooked bacon, slivered candied ginger, etc.

Cut lamb into 1-inch cubes. Brown lightly in oil, remove from pan and set aside.

Add onion to oil remaining in pan and brown lightly. Add more oil, if needed. Blend in green mix and cook 2 minutes. Stir in curry mix, tomato paste, vinegar and enough water to make thick sauce.

Return lamb to pan and cook, covered, until lamb is very tender, adding water as needed. Season to taste with salt. Serve with hot rice. Serve condiments in separate bowls. Makes about 8 servings.

Green Mix

1 bunch parsley

4 cloves garlic

1 (3-inch) piece ginger root, peeled and coarsely chopped

Discard tougher stems of cilantro and parsley. Place remaining cilantro and parsley, garlic and ginger in blender container or food processor bowl. Chop mixture very fine.

Curry Mix

4 teaspoons ground coriander

1 tablespoon ground cumin

1 tablespoon turmeric

1/2 teaspoon chili powder

2 teaspoons dry mustard

1/2 teaspoon ground cloves

1/2 teaspoon ground cardamom

chili powder, dry mustard, cloves

and cardamom, mixing well.

Fish And Vegetables Are Perfect Choices For Outdoor Grilling

Combine olive oil, wine, vinegar, green onions, parsley, dill and season to taste with pepper. Blend well and set aside.

Place fish in single layer in shallow baking dish. Pour marinade over, cover and let stand 30 minutes at room temperature, or 2 hours in refrigerator (If marinating in refrigerator, let stand at room temperature 30 minutes before cooking).

Remove fish from marinade and reserve marinade. Grill fish 5 minutes per side 3 to 4 inches above hot coals or from heat in pre-heated broiler. Brush once or twice during cooking time with reserved marinade. Makes 4 servings.

GRILLED TUNA AND EGGPLANT

1 (1-to 1 1/2-pound) eggplant, trimmed and sliced 1/4-inch thick
Salt, pepper
1/4 cup olive oil
1 sweet red pepper
1/2 teaspoon crumbled rosemary leaves

1 pound fresh tuna steak, 1/4-inch thick

2 tomatoes, sliced
Season sliced eggplant to taste with salt and pepper. Heat 2 tablespoons olive oil in large skillet over moderately high heat. Add eggplant and cook until charred. Turn and char other side. Remove from heat and set aside.

Broil red pepper, turning frequently with tongs, 10 minutes or until all sides of pepper are blistered. Place red pepper in brown paper bag. Close and let stand 10 minutes (pepper will flatten). Under cold running water, gently rub pepper to peel off skin. Remove seeds and slice pepper.

Combine charred eggplant and red pepper with 2 tablespoons olive oil and rosemary. Let stand 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, season tuna to taste with salt and pepper. Grill or broil 1 minute per side or until medium rare. Place tuna on serving plate. Cover with eggplant and pepper mixture and serve with sliced tomato. Makes 4 servings.

GRILLED ALBACORE SANDWICH WITH RED PEPPERS

1 1/3 pounds skinless albacore, cut into 3/4-inch thick loin cuts
Olive oil
6 tablespoons lemon juice
1/8 teaspoon black pepper
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dried oregano leaves, crushed
Dash cayenne

Sauteed Red Peppers
2 French rolls, split lengthwise

1/4 cup chopped fresh basil leaves
Rinse fish with cold water, pat dry with paper towels and set aside. Make vinaigrette by combining 2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons oil, lemon juice, pepper, salt, oregano and cayenne. Mix well and divide in half.

Marinate albacore in half of vinaigrette 30 minutes, turning once. While fish is marinating, make Sauteed Red Peppers.

Drain albacore, reserving marinade. Brush grill grates or broiler pan with 2 teaspoons olive oil. Place fish on grates, 4 to 5 inches from hot coals or from heat of broiler and cook 5 to 6 minutes, turning once and basting frequently with reserved marinade. Do not overcook, albacore should be pink in center when removed from heat.

Toast rolls lightly. Brush toasted sides with remaining vinaigrette. Make 4 open-face sandwiches by topping with albacore, Sauteed Red Peppers and fresh basil. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Sauteed Red Peppers

2 teaspoons minced garlic
1 medium onion, sliced into thin half rings

2 teaspoons olive oil
1 red pepper, roasted, peeled and cut into 1/2 inch strips

Saute garlic and onion in oil in non-stick pan until onion is translucent. Stir in red peppers and remove from heat. Set aside.

SAVORY GRILLED SWORDFISH

1/4 cup soy sauce
1/4 cup dry Sherry
1/4 cup minced green onions
2 tablespoons oil
2 tablespoons rice vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon minced garlic
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon minced ginger root
1 1/2 pounds swordfish steaks

Combine soy sauce, Sherry, green onions, oil, vinegar, sugar, garlic, mustard and ginger. Place swordfish in shallow baking dish. Add marinade, cover and let stand 1 hour.

Over medium hot coals or on broiler, cook swordfish 8 to 10 minutes per side. Makes 4 servings.

BROILED SWORDFISH STEAKS WITH LEMON-DILL SAUCE

1 (14 1/2-ounce) can chicken broth
1/4 cup olive oil
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
White pepper

1 pound swordfish or salmon steaks, cut 3/4-inch thick
1/2 pound baby carrots, peeled
2 small zucchini, sliced
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon chopped dill weed

Combine 1/2 cup broth, oil, lemon juice, mustard and pepper to taste in 12- by 8-inch dish. Place fish in marinade and refrigerate, covered, 1 hour, turning occasionally.

About 20 minutes before serving time, bring remaining broth to boil in 2-quart saucepan. Add carrots and zucchini, reduce heat to low and simmer, covered, 15 minutes, or until vegetables are tender-crisp. Remove vegetables with slotted spoon to platter and keep warm. Reserve broth.

Meanwhile, about 15 minutes before serving, remove fish from marinade, reserving marinade, and arrange on broiler pan. Broil fish 4 inches from heat, 10 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when tested with fork, basting with reserved marinade and turning once. Remove fish to platter with vegetables.

Blend cornstarch and water in cup until smooth. Stir in saucepan with reserved hot broth from vegetables. Add remaining marinade and dil and cook until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Serve with fish and vegetables. Makes 4 servings.

SKEWERED MONKFISH AND AVOCADO

1 (12-ounce) can vegetable juice cocktail
2 tablespoons oil
1 tablespoon lime juice
1 teaspoon bottled teriyaki sauce
1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
Dash pepper

1 pound monkfish or swordfish, cut into 1 1/2-inch pieces

1 peeled medium avocado, cut into 1 1/2-inch pieces
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Stir together juice, oil, lime juice, teriyaki sauce, ginger and pepper in 12- by 8-inch dish. Place fish in marinade and refrigerate 1 hour, covered, turning occasionally.

Remove fish from marinade, reserving marinade, and thread fish alternately on 4 metal skewers with avocado pieces.

Combine reserved marinade, remaining vegetable juice, cornstarch and parsley in 1-quart saucepan. Stir until blended. Cook over medium heat until slightly thickened, stirring constantly.

Broil fish skewers 4 inches from heat 10 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when tested with fork, basting and turning frequently. Serve with remaining sauce. Makes 4 servings.

Prices Effective Thru April 16, 1988

It is our intention to maintain the prices in this circular until April 16, 1988. However special circumstances beyond our control may make it necessary to increase or reduce the prices before that date. For example, unusual market conditions in many commodities may result in price fluctuations after this circular is issued. In such cases we reserve the right to revise our prices. You will be notified of the changes at our store prior to processing your purchase.

Raincheck Policy
Should we be out of stock on any advertised sale item our manager will be happy to order this item for you at the same advertised sale price, if the same item is not available for reorder, the manager will make available to you a comparable item or the same value at the advertised price.

Credit-Terms Details
If you have an existing Wickes Charge Account balance, addition of any new purchase may or may not change your current monthly payment depending on the highest balance of your account. Delivery charges (if any) and state sales tax may cause quoted minimum monthly payments to be higher.

Kenmore 8 central air conditioning system can show you big savings in home cooling!

A Kenmore® Premium central air conditioning system is among our best values. It's economical to buy and economical to operate. It could cut your heating costs up to 31%*. It's a great replacement for an old system. Call today and arrange for a Sears home improvement specialist to come to your home and give you a FREE estimate for the size system you need. Includes compressor and coil.

(INSTALLATION EXTRA)

*Based on a comparison with a 10-15 year old system with an estimated seasonal energy efficiency ratio. Actual dollar savings will vary.

Installed custom mobile home roofcover

A roof-over is custom-made to go over your present roof. It not only stops leaks but adds insulation to help cut down on energy costs, reduce roof rumble and rain drumming. Overhang and trim adds a handsome finished look to the home. A Sears roofing specialist will prepare a FREE estimate for your home.

15% OFF

Corner to corner without a seam, this virtually maintenance-free guttering is custom-fabricated on the job. Enameled finish virtually eliminates messy scraping and repainting.

15% OFF

25-yr. fiber glass roofing shingles when purchased installed by Sears

Our shingles have a glass fiber mat base, covered with asphalt, then sprinkled with ceramic granules for a handsome appearance and long life. Each shingle has a sun activated self-adhesive strip that seals it to the roof to resist blow-off even in gale force winds.

UL Class A fire resistant, won't absorb moisture...won't crack, peel or split. Ask a Sears salesperson for details on our 25-year limited, pro-rated warranty.

Custom-made vinyl replacement windows

These great-looking windows are virtually maintenance-free! Never need painting or scraping, won't rot or rust. Choose your style... double-hung, slider, picture windows...even j bows or bays! Double-hung windows tilt in for easy cleaning. Sliders lift out. Most styles custom-made to your measurements.

15% OFF

Enamel-finished in colors to match your gutters. Custom-fitted and installed to give a finished look, and end the need for frequent painting.

SEARS: THE WHEEL ALIGNMENT SPECIALISTS

Front end alignment Most cars 24⁹⁹

We check and set adjustable angles to manufacturer's specifications.

4-wheel alignment
Does your car need it?

Every car, rear or front wheel drive, has an imaginary centerline. All 4 wheels must be parallel to this line for proper handling and tire wear. When either the front or rear wheels are not parallel, you will have poor handling, and increased tire and suspension wear.

Thrust line alignment

Total 4-wheel alignment
