ECU Installs Eakin As Its 9th Leader

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Richard R. Eakin was installed — with traditional academic pomp and pageantry — as the ninth chief administrator of East Carolina University this morning in inaugural ceremonies in Wright Auditorium on the ECU campus.

"I pledge to those assembled and to the countless thousands of East Carolina loyalists who stretch across our state and nation and, indeed, around the world my steadfast devotion to the mission of service given to us by the founders. And I offer my tireless efforts on behalf of East Carolina University," Eakin said in his response after taking the oath of office administered by N.C. Court of Appeals Judge Gerald Arnold, a 1963 East Carolina graduate.

C.D. Spangler, president of the University of North Carolina, presided at the inaugural, which was attended by Gov. Jim Martin, Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, representatives of many colleges and universities, and delegates from learned and professional societies. The dignitaries joined members of the ECU faculty and administration in a traditional academic procession which began the formal 11 a.m. ceremony.

Phillip G. Carson, chairman of the UNC Board of Governors, said in his inaugural address, "East Carolina has experienced an amazing growth since it was chartered by the North Carolina General Assembly on March 8, 1907.

"It was established after two struggles ... the first a statewide conflict over the need for an educational institution in the East and the second a regional rivalry over which of eight cities would be the home of the school," Carson said.

"Robert Herring Wright, for whom this building was named, became the first president in 1909, the year when the first students were enrolled for two-year degrees. By 1921," Carson said, "the institution had been elevated to college status, renamed East Carolina Teachers College, and authorized to offer baccalaureate degrees," and in 1929 a master of arts was authorized and in 1951 the name was changed to East Carolina College.

"Then in 1967, the name was changed again to recognize the graduate and professional programs of a university," and "in rapid developments, the medical school was authorized and the first M.D. degrees were conferred in 1982 and the first Ph.D. degree was conferred in 1983.

"East Carolina University had become not only the pride of the East, but the third largest institution of higher education in North Carolina," according to Carson. "It had also become a constituent of the UNC System. Its quality was recognized in 1985 when the U.S. News and World Report listed ECU among the top 10 comprehensive universities in the South and border states.

"Reciprocating the support of its constituency," Carson said, East Carolina developed a strong service approach. In addition to its functions of teaching and research, it emphasized more than is usual its public service. It made its expertise available to people beyond the classroom.

"By encouraging its faculty and staff to respond to requests for their assistance in solving public problems, and by a group of public service programs in the Regional Development Institute, the Rural Education Institute, the Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources and others," Carson said ECU "has gained a reputation as the focal point of the region's development.

"The most impressive one component of this outreach," according to Carson, "is the services of the medi-

Financial Markets Reel Again

NEW YORK (AP) — A big jump in wholesale prices dealt another blow today to financial markets still reeling from an unexpected rise in the trade deficit, pushing stocks down further after Thursday's $100 billion selloff.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 21.89 points in active trading at 1,983.75 at 11 a.m. EDT, 1½ hours after the opening of the New York Stock Exchange.

That came after a 101.46-point plunge Thursday, which was triggered by a report from the Commerce Department that the U.S.

merchandise trade deficit rose to $13.8 billion in February.

The rise of 0.6 percent in wholesale prices in March reported by the Labor Department today was the biggest in 11 months and heightened concerns that the economy was becoming overheated.

"It's part of the whole inflationary thesis: the weak dollar, rising imports and strengthening prices all spell difficulty for the economy later on," said Michael Metz, an investment strategist at Oppenheimer & Co.

But Metz, noting the big decline in the markets on Thursday, said, "I think that we've paid for this bad news in the last day and a half already." Long-term Treasury bond prices also fell again today, putting interest rates at a three-month high. But the dollar held about even today after falling sharply Thursday.

Overnight on the Tokyo Stock Exchange, the Nikkei Stock Average of 225 selected issues lost 217.78 points to end the day at 26,893.57, a decline of less than 1 percent.

In London, stock prices were modestly lower. The Financial Times-Stock Exchange 100-stock index was down 11.9 points, or 0.6 percent, at 1,775.3 with an hour of trading to go. It was off 24.1 points at the opening.

In today's report, the Labor Department said the March rise in wholesale prices of 0.6 percent followed a 0.2 percent drop in February.

Many analysts had been looking for an increase in March on the order of a 0.2 percent rise.

In early trading in New York today, the dollar was bid at 123.9 Japanese yen and 1.661 West German marks.

White Hearing Reset For April 29

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

A probable cause hearing in the Bobby Charles White murder case was continued today to April 29 in Pitt County District Court.

White was stabbed to death in his Grimesland home March 19 and his wife, Sandra Faye Haddock White, 45, of Route 2, Grimesland, and James Alton Mobley, 21, of Lot 18, Country Estates, Greenville, have been charged with first degree murder.

James Earl Manning, 24, of Route 2, Grimesland, was charged in the case with conspiring to commit murder. Mrs. White and Mobley also face conspiracy charges and Mrs. White faces a third charge of solicitation to commit murder. All three are being held without bond.

Assistant District Attorney Betsy Warren first asked Judge J.W.H. Roberts to continue the cases to April 22 because District Attorney Thomas Haigwood and the chief investigating officer in the case were in Pitt County Superior Court and unable to be in District Court today.

After Howard Cummings, Mobley's attorney, said he could not be present April 22, Ms. Warren requested April 29 and there was no objection.

The state does not present its entire case at a probable cause hearing, only enough evidence to show the judge there is probable cause that the crime did occur and the persons charged committed the crime.

If probable cause is found, the case will be sent to an 18-member grand jury, which will hear evidence in the case and decide whether or not to indict those charged. If at least 12 grand jurors agree there is probable cause, they return a "true" bill of indictment, and the defendants will be arraigned and will enter a plea.

The district attorney can also bypass the probable cause hearing and send the case directly to the grand jury.

ECU Will Raise Fees, Room Rent

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A proposed $36 increase in student fees and a $40 increase in room rent was approved — with no discussion or comment — by the East Carolina University Board of Trustees at a meeting Thursday afternoon at Mendenhall Student Center.

While the board's approval amounts to a recommendation to the University of North Carolina Board of Governors, which sets student fees and room rent for all 16 campuses in the UNC system, past history suggests that the fee hike will be accepted.

An information paper distributed at the meeting said the proposed increases are needed "to cover increased cost of operations, programs, maintenance of facilities" and to maintain or enhance current standards.

The proposed $36 increase in student fees amounts to an 8.8 increase over the present $410 students now pay, while the proposed $40 increase in dorm room rent would increase the present $980 by 4.1 percent.

The proposal calls for the existing athletic fee of $115 to be increased to $145 and the intramural-recreational services fee of $34 to be upped to $36.

Other student fees to be increased under the proposal include a $1 hike in the present $18.75 media board fee to $19.75 and a $3 increase in the Student Government Association fee of $8.75 to $11.75.

Fees which would not change under the scheduled approved Thursday include: $10 for SGA transit; $2 for student fund accounting; $104 for student health services; $74 for Mendenhall Student Center operations and debt service; $22.50 for student union programs and $21 for other debt services.

The student fees and room rent — for those who live in residence halls on campus — are in addition to tuition paid by each student.

Total fees and room rent now amount to $1,390 a year. With the proposed increases, which amount to a 5.5 percent increase, total fees and room rent would be $1,466 a year.

A memorandum to board members from Chancellor Richard Eakin said, "Strictly speaking, the board ... is not required to approve fees ... The responsibility for determining the type and level of student services rests with the boards of trustees, but the responsibility for setting fees rests with the Board of Governors."

In another memorandum, Vice Chancellor for Student Life Elmer Meyer said the proposed $2 increase in the intramural-recreational services fee "is to be used to help fund the renovation of the gym floor in Memorial Gymnasium and repair of the tennis courts on College Hill Drive."

Meyer's memorandum said the $3 increase in the SGA fee would be used "primarily to support university fine arts programs and other SGA activities," while the $40 increase in student housing room rent would "begin building reserves for future air conditioning of more residence halls."

"The SGA Legislature had no objections to the proposed increases," Meyer's memorandum said.

In other action Thursday, the board approved the conferral of degrees on students who will graduate May 7.

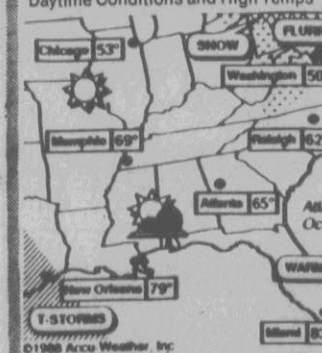

Scott Thomas, a member of the board as SGA president, was recognized for his service during the past year and SGA president-elect Larry Murphy, who will replace Thomas, was introduced.

Athletics Up $30	Room Rent Up $40	All Other Fees Up $6	Total
Present Room Rent $980	Fees $410		$1,390
Proposed Room Rent $1,020	Fees $446		$1,466

HOUSE DESTROYED — An unoccupied house in the Cox's Mill community off N.C. 43 south of Greenville was engulfed in fire when firemen arrived at 4:30 a.m. today, Eastern Pines Fire Chief Lyman Hardee said. He called the house a "fireman's nightmare," saying it was a

OM Competition Scheduled

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

About 750 North Carolina students representing 105 teams will compete in the state finals of the Odyssey of the Mind competition in Greenville Saturday.

"Will the paper aircraft they've designed really fly and hit its target?"

"Will their rendition of a cartoon character 'come to life' impress the judges?"

"Will their creation of a submersible vessel protect them from a 'sea monster'?"

Those are among questions that will plague the mind of the students as they participate in the creative problem-solving tournament, according to Anne Harrison, the state tournament director. Winners will compete with student winners from other states, Canadian provinces, Newfoundland, Mexico and the People's Republic of China at the World Finals at the University of Maryland June 2-4.

"We have over 2,000 people involved" in the event, Ms. Harrison said. Businesses and industries have been very supportive and "IBM has been tremendously supportive in providing judges" and other necessities. IBM is the sponsor of the event.

"Local merchants have donated equipment and materials," she said.

The program has the theme that "every child is a winner and we're celebrating the winners of North Carolina and selecting the ones that will represent (the state) at the World Conference," Ms. Harrison said.

An extracurricular activity developed by Samuel Micklus, a professor of technology at Glassboro State College in New Jersey, OM was introduced into the classroom this year at the request of teachers. Curriculum materials were developed based on OM problems for science, mathematics, social studies, language arts and technology education in primary, elementary and secondary classes.

OM problem solutions are judged on effectiveness of the solution to the long-term problem, style and the ability to solve a spontaneous problem given a team at the World Finals.

Pitt County schools participating in the event are A.G. Cox, Elmhurst, G.R. Whitfield and South Greenville.

Tourism Agency Planning Reception

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt-Greenville Convention and Visitors Authority voted Thursday night to spend more than $5,000 for a reception to introduce the public to the newly formed convention and visitors bureau and its director, Al Nichols.

Don Leggett, a member of the authority's Ad Hoc Reception Committee, presented three proposals to the group. The group adopted a plan in which it would invite members of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, city and county elected officials, East Carolina University officials, representatives from groups in a position to bring conferences to the area and representatives from the local media. The guest list will include more than 1,600 people.

After examining bids from the Hilton, the Sheraton and the Greenville Country Club, the authority voted to hold the open house at the Hilton.

The Hilton reception will cost the authority $5,000 for 500 guests and $5 per person exceeding 500. There is also a $32 charge for serving wine to every 100 people.

John West and Joe Joyner voted against the plan to invite more than 1,600 guests, but the proposal passed easily. West, Joyner, Art Thompson and Paul Komaneky abstained from voting on which bid to accept. Thompson is the general manager of the Hilton and Komaneky manages the Sheraton.

No date was set, but the group agreed it would be best to hold the reception on a weekday. Nichols, who has been on the job about two months, suggested the week of May 14, which is National Tourism Week.

The group also asked Nichols to meet with county planner Jeff Ulma to discuss the county's new ordinance regulating outdoor advertising signs. Thompson voiced concerns that there are no informational signs along the new stretch of U.S. 264 to direct motorists to area hotels.

The group agreed to invite Ulma to its May meeting to explain the ordinance.

The group voted unanimously to ask the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority to return money which was to be used to provide an informational panel in the airport promoting the authority.

Rudy Alexander, chairman of the authority, told the group that the panel would not be in place until the airport's expansion project was completed, and it could take more than a year.

Ten Jurors Chosen For Sneed Trial

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

Jury selection for the first degree murder trial of Eurston Ivon Sneed, 35, of Beaufort County continued today in Pitt County Superior Court.

Pitt County District Attorney Thomas Haigwood and Sneed's attorneys, Calvin King and Benjamin Alford, had seated 10 jurors — 8 women and 2 men — when Judge Hurbert O. Phillips III ordered a recess Thursday afternoon.

Sneed is charged with armed robbery and murder in connection with the 1983 New Year's Eve killing of Willie Hubert Tripp Sr., owner of Tripp's Bypass Service Center of Memorial Drive.

A Pitt County grand jury indicted Sneed on murder and robbery charges in December of 1986. Already convicted of larceny in October of 1986, Sneed was beginning a seven-year sentence at the Eastern Correctional Institute in Maury, which he is still serving.

The defense has excused eight jurors on peremptory challenges and the prosecution has excused two. The defense and the prosecution are each allowed to excuse 14 jurors on peremptory challenges, in which they do not have to offer the court an explanation for the dismissal.

The court can also excuse jurors for cause, and Phillips has excused 13 people, some of whom were excused because they said they could not ever conceive of imposing the death penalty. Under North Carolina law, first degree murder is punishable by death or life imprisonment.

Sneed sat calmly between his attorneys during the jury selection Thursday, as Alford asked jurors why they supported capital punishment and in what cases would it be appropriate. All 10 jurors seated said they could conceive of imposing the death penalty at some time.

Jury selection began Tuesday, and 50 more jurors were sworn in for possible questioning today. The process was slowed somewhat when Haigwood and Alford began questioning jurors one at a time to prevent others from hearing prejudicial statements. Seated jurors and those not yet called waited outside the courtroom Thursday afternoon.

Sneed has had several attorneys since he was first indicted in December of 1986, according to court records. Judge J.W.H. Roberts initially appointed the public defender to represent Sneed, but Assistant Public Defender Arthur McGlauffin asked the court to appoint someone from the private bar to represent Sneed because of the office's caseload and because the office had previously represented people that provided information in Sneed's case.

The court then appointed attorney Michael Strickland to represent Sneed, but he was removed within days. The court then appointed attorney James Roberts and Jeffery Miller in early January of 1987.

Roberts and Miller remained on the case until late August when Sneed filed a grievance against Miller with the Grievance Committee of the North Carolina State Bar Association. Roberts and Miller then asked the court to allow them to withdraw from the case and it was continued to allow Sneed time to find counsel.

Court records show Roberts presented the state with an order for payment of $4,800 for more than 96 hours of work plus expenses and Miller presented an order for more than $5,500 for more than 108 hours of work plus expenses.

The court then appointed New Bern attorneys King and John Harmon to the case, but King asked the court for another continuance in December of 1987 because he had not had adequate time to prepare the case and because Sneed had requested that Harmon withdraw from the case. Alford, also from New Bern, joined King on the case that month.

The case was set for Feb. 1, 1988, but King asked the court for a continuance to allow a private detective to complete his investigation.

Judge David Reid Jr. signed an order in late January of 1987 authorizing the state to provide up to $2,000 for Sneed's attorneys to hire a private detective. Sneed asked the court to pay for the detective because he was incarcerated, indigent and there were a number of witnesses to interview.

Reid also authorized an additional $1,000 last month to pay for Sneed's counsel to pay a private detective.

REAL ESTATE FACTS

GROW A MONEY TREE!

Plant a money tree seedling today and what will you have in five years? Growth!

Let's plant two trees and watch their growth. We'll plant the first by placing $20,000 in a savings account which earns 5% interest and leave it there for five years. At the end of five years, we'll withdraw our initial investment ($20,000) plus the interest ($5,525) for a total of $25,525. We invested $20,000 and received back $25,525, a 5% yield.

Now let's plant the second tree. We'll buy a home for $100,000 and invest $20,000 (the downpayment). We'll assume that the home will appreciate at 5% each year (just as the savings account earned 5% interest). At the end of five years, the home will be worth about $128,335, a $28,335 gain in value (that's an annual rate of 5%). We invested the same $20,000, and received back our $20,000 investment plus another $28,335 (the increase in value) for a total of $48,335. The rate of return is a sizable 19.3 percent.

By purchasing the home, we were able to earn 5% appreciation on the entire $100,000, whereas on the savings account we earned 5% only on the $20,000 investment. Incidentally, if we had invested only $10,000 in the same $100,000 home ($10,000 downpayment - $90,000 loan), we would have received the same $48,335 in return for only a $10,000 investment - a whopping 37.04 percent return. The benefits of owning your own home are many. Call me today for more details.

Renting provides no return on your money. And with less cash than you might imagine, you can own your own home and receive not only these benefits, but tax benefits as well. Please call me to get an idea how much money you could borrow for a home.

Welcome But Weak
New Sign Ordinance Unclear On 264

Pitt County's new billboard ordinance is a sign of progress. It is an essential safeguard for a county where rapid growth threatens the aesthetics and effectiveness of major roadways.

But the new law is weakened by the fact the county commission failed to make clear its stance on signs along U.S. 264 from Farmville to Greenville. Although the ordinance is adequate for most highways in the county, it does not clarify whether or not billboards will appear along this thoroughfare — or on other key freeways that may be built in the county.

Granted, the ordinance gives the road some protection, but only because this stretch is designated a freeway by the state. Whether billboards can and will appear at the two intersections on the road is not addressed by the language of the law. Elected public officials were remiss in their reluctance to adopt distinct measures and take a firm stance.

The ordinance will provide reasonable and acceptable protection for other county roads. But U.S. 264 — present and future segments — merits special attention. That highway connects Greenville with Raleigh and Interstate 95. Its integrity is vital to the community's successful economic growth and essential to successful industrial recruiting. If this major thoroughfare suffers a loss of effectiveness from inappropriate development and clutter, that impairment will be a major blow to Pitt County's potential.

If this type of damage is to be circumvented, satisfactory regulations are needed. Vaguely-defined controls are unfair and confusing and encourage decay of transportation arteries. Pitt's commissioners should not have hesitated to add strong language and sufficient restrictions for freeways in a sign ordinance. Strong, decisive action would have left no question in the minds of taxpayers that the hard-won progress the community made when it secured money to four-lane U.S. 264 would be protected.

As future key highway segments are built — the Farmville and northwest Greenville bypasses, for example — the county may be forced to re-examine the ordinance. These roadways must be kept effective as arteries. It may be essential for more absolute controls to be placed on thoroughfares where the presence of signs may not necessarily signal progress.

Taxtime Blues

The Day Procrastinators Dread Passes

Put away the pencil, the eraser, the calculator, the aspirin.

Tax day has come, and either you've mailed your best effort and are breathing a sigh of relief or you're too late.

If the latter is the case, no need to worry now. You're already being penalized by Uncle Sam. May as well relax along with all the finishers and wait until next week to get that stress level back up.

The words "April 15" have come to be regarded with the same dread and trepidation a 5-year-old attributes to "bath time." Maybe the phrase "dental appointment" is a good comparison for adults. Everybody knows tax day is there, lurking somewhere over the horizon, waiting to attack procrastinators.

Few people want to deal with it, though. Better just to keep it at arm's length. Let the accountant square it away at the proper time, or wait for the spouse to panic and frantically go to work on the tax forms.

For those who successfully took this approach, today was the end of the rainbow. You can celebrate tonight. Treat your accountant or spouse (perhaps tax-preparer is the correct technical term) to a suitable meal. For example, if you're getting money back, go for a steak ooh-la-la with some kind of flaming dessert. If you had to mail a check along with your tax form, a chili dog will do just fine.

For those who diligently dodged the dogged duty, resolve to do better — at a later date. In the meantime, prepare for a substantial bill from an irate Big Brother.

Yes, today was the day the "Taxtime Blues" hit the top of the charts. But as the last returns are being stamped with that crucial April 15 postmark, the popularity of that tune is yielding to a new song. It's a mellow arrangement, sort of haunting — the "Empty Bank Account-I Can't Believe I Paid That Much Tax" medley.

The Other Jordan's Bingo Game

RALEIGH — A Democratic friend has a recurring nightmare: He wakes on the morning of May 4 to find that Frank Jordan, the little-known former Army sergeant who has made a political career of trading on Bob Jordan's name, is the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor.

Sound far-fetched? Maybe not. In 1984, Frank Jordan won the Republican Party's first primary for lieutenant governor, knocking party regular Bill Hiatt out of the race. He eventually lost to John Carrington in the runoff.

Frank is now a Democrat — he switched parties in 1986 — and he worries the Democratic establishment. "I'm concerned that some people are going to think he is Bob Jordan, vote for him, and that he might just get enough votes to force a runoff," says one party worker. That's not so far-fetched when one considers that Frank Jordan has actually led in some of the early polls.

Frank Jordan doesn't get much press coverage, and he gripes about that. Occasionally someone writes a homespun column about him and his indomitable spirit. Something like, "David takes on Goliath." But before any of us rush out to vote for Frank because we always root for the little guy, let's look at his proposals. They might explain why so few folks take Frank seriously.

Frank Jordan wants a system of free, statewide health care. He plans to find two million North Carolinians who will invest $20,000 each in a state health care trust fund. The $40 billion raised would draw the $3 billion to $4 billion in interest a year that would pay for the health care system.

For your $20,000 investment, you'd get more than health care. You'd also get lottery tickets — 20,000 of them a week. So long as you left your money in the bonds, you'd have 20,000 shots a week at winning $1 million. But you wouldn't get any interest from the $20,000 investment.

Frank Jordan also wants a "Pothole Free North Carolina." He says it is based on the theory that "if you use the road, you'd have to pay a little bit." That means, literally, toll booths thrown up at the intersections of every major road in the state. The magnitude of his proposed toll system is so large that he envisions creating jobs for between 20,000 and 200,000 toll booth workers. When asked if he was aware that federal government doesn't allow the charging of tolls on its roads, Frank Jordan said that wouldn't be a problem, the state's congressional delegation could get that law repealed.

The candidate doesn't know how much money this scheme would raise, but he figures he'd devote about one-fifth of the new revenue to salaries and the rest to fixing the roads.

Frank Jordan wants the insurance companies to tell the truth. Now that's a noble pursuit. He is so angry with the insurance companies, that he wants to introduce socialized insurance. He would have the state take over the auto insurance business.

Under his plan, everyone would get a clean driving slate the day the state insurance system went into effect. Drivers would bring $150 with them to the license plate bureau and when they got their tags, they'd pay for their insurance. When drivers were convicted of a moving offense, they'd then have to face a judge who was doubling as a rate adjuster. You'd pay your fine and the judge would determine how much your insurance rates were going up.

Now, to be fair to Frank Jordan, he's also backing some far more traditional issues like the gubernatorial veto, the end of state-paid abortions for poor women, full citizenship rights at age 18 and a constitutional amendment allowing citizen initiative and referendum.

Bingo, anyone?

West Must Work For Afghan Unity

What are the Soviets up to in Afghanistan? Their willingness to withdraw forces can be interpreted two ways.

The optimists (which includes the Reagan administration) believe that Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev must get out of the war in Afghanistan if he is to go forward with his plans for "perestroika," the restructuring of Soviet society. According to them, the war is an inherited burden (a "bleeding wound") that must be cast off as quickly as possible.

The main reason to doubt that the Soviets really intend to withdraw is that they have too much to lose by leaving Afghanistan, the pessimists say. Even though Soviet forces have not been able to pacify the entire country, they nevertheless enjoy significant benefits there. They control several principal cities and are feverishly exploiting Afghanistan's extensive mineral and gas reserves. In addition, they control airfields that bring Soviet forces hundreds of miles closer to the Persian Gulf and to potential hegemony over the huge oil and gas reserves there. Control over these would give the Soviet Union major leverage over the world economy.

Abandoning Afghanistan would exact more than a material price; the psychological cost for the Soviet state would be immense. Moscow's place in the world, after all, depends on its being perceived as powerful — a defeat by rag-tag insurgents would badly erode its reputation. Also, there would be domestic consequences for Gorbachev, as Soviet military leaders will surely not accept a defeat in war with grace.

For all these reasons, abandoning the country will cost the Soviets dearly. Why, then, do they agree to withdraw their forces? Recent Soviet activities suggest that they are embarking on a new and more sophisticated strategy to achieve precisely the same goals they have fought for since 1979. Withdrawal may provide the most realistic and least costly means of doing this.

Moscow's problem lies in the worldwide agreement that the Red Army brutally and wrongly invaded Afghanistan. Afghans and Americans, as well as the Pakistani and Chinese leadership, all agree on this, as do many West Europeans and Moslems. There is no other issue in the world today that generates such wide anti-Soviet hostility. This consensus carries great weight; indeed, it is the single most important source of support for the Afghan "mujahedeen," or resistance fighters. Without such massive backing, the mujahedeen would be a far weaker force.

The United States has a tradition of winning the war and losing the peace. After both world wars, Americans washed their hands of conflict to get back to more pleasurable pursuits. In both cases, this quick loss of interest created terrible problems in subsequent decades. It is important to keep a close eye on Afghanistan to make sure that eight years of war are not in vain.

What can Washington do to prevent losing the peace? Much hinges on mujahedeen disunity. As long as there was a joint enemy, disunity was manageable. But it could have a lethal effect once most of the Red Army evacuates and Afghans are left to govern their own country. If Afghanistan is to regain its independence, the mujahedeen must unify to form a single authority that can govern the country. Until that happens, the Soviet forces will continue to threaten.

Therefore, the West should concentrate on helping to build Afghan unity. The composition and orientation of the government matters less than its ability to control Afghan territory. (The same applies to Iran: Bad as it is, the Khomeini government is far preferable to a breakdown of authority and the threat of a Soviet invasion.)

Keeping this in mind, Washington should work with others to establish a government in Kabul. Efforts devoted to getting the seven mujahedeen groups to cooperate have so far had little success. And with the taste of power in their mouths, the Peshawar leaders are less likely than ever to work together.

New thinking is needed here. One idea is to pick just one mujahedeen group and build up its power and authority. This group alone would then receive all the outside world's financial aid and diplomatic backing. If arms continue to be supplied, it alone gets them. With luck and dexterity, concentrating resources in this fashion would lead to the emergence of a single authority capable of maintaining order in Afghanistan.

Public Forum

To the editor:

In your April 8 editorial, "No Hasty Changes for School Lines," you stated that "the board will have to address the uneven racial balance at Wintergreen School. A 70 percent white, 30 percent black student population is not acceptable." I wish you had been as vocal last year when it was decided to open the new school with a 70-30 "uneven racial balance." Contrary to your editorial, the current lack of racial balance at Wintergreen far exceeds 70-30. Before Wintergreen opened for this current school year, '87-'88, about 125 white students had moved into that school district so that it actually opened with a ratio of around 76 percent white-24 percent black. The racial imbalance has continued to grow during this school year, leaving Wintergreen clearly far out of federal guidelines for racial balance. Anyone with an eye for the obvious (or who read the Research Triangle Institute Study) could have predicted that this would happen.

Once the problem has been created, then as you point out, it must be solved. I have heard such suggestions as busing black children into the Wintergreen district and changing attendance lines so that some white children would be moved out of the Wintergreen district. Such solutions generally and understandably anger and upset the group that must make the change. The solutions are never easy, so why do we continue to create such problems?

Problems with respect to racial balance will exist in our school system until we attempt to achieve reasonable and consistent balance in all our schools. As long as we have some public schools with obvious racial imbalance, people will move to those schools escalating the imbalance in all the schools and causing a continual need for upsetting solutions!

Skydiver Killed In Jump Had Forgotten Parachute

RALEIGH (AP) — A veteran skydiver who was killed after leaping from a plane without a parachute had forgotten to put on a parachute during an earlier jump the same day, a federal investigator says.

Ivan McGuire, 35, fell 10,000 feet to his death April 2 while filming an instructor and student at the Franklin County Sport Parachute Center. The fatal jump was his third of the day.

"There was no problem with the first time, during which he videotaped the jump of a student and instructor," Walter Rigsbee, an inspector for the Federal Aviation Administration, said Thursday. "On the second, he forgot to put on his chute but one of the other parachutists brought it to his attention before he boarded the plane."

Rigsbee said McGuire apparently made the same mistake when he boarded the plane for the third jump, but nobody caught it.

Rigsbee would not say when he had learned the information or who had given it to him.

After viewing the tape McGuire made on that last jump, investigators said it appeared McGuire had been reaching for the release pin of a parachute that wasn't there.

"When they complete a jump, they go back to the parachute rigging room, reunit up, and they mill around outside until everyone is ready for the next jump," Rigsbee said. Typically, instructors check the gear for students and veteran jumpers check each other.

Michael Johnston, director of training for the U.S. Parachute Association in Alexandria, Va., said this was the first time he'd heard of such a problem in 30 years.

"People here are finding it hard to believe that this happened," Johnston said of some of USPA's 17,000 members. "Veteran 'chutists go through a prejump check in the same way that a pilot does a preflight check. It's a reflex action. It's automatic."

Rigsbee said McGuire's videotaping may have caused confusion.

"The harness McGuire wore for the video equipment is similar to that of a parachute. It has the same feel," Rigsbee said.

Rigsbee said the investigation is open, but at this point McGuire's death is considered an accident.

"I have no evidence that has convinced me otherwise," he said, adding that he had no estimate of when the FAA investigation would be complete.

Salesman Gets Long Test Drive

By The Associated Press

A Greensboro car salesman thought he was going on a routine test drive until one of his prospective customers pulled a gun, robbed him and left him locked in the trunk on a deserted road.

Clarence Harrington, 39, of Greensboro, a salesman at Bob Dunn Ford, was discovered near Yanceyville Thursday morning, 15 hours after he had left the dealership on a test drive. A Highway Patrol trooper, suspicious because the car had dealer plates, stopped to check the car and heard Harrington banging on the trunk lid.

Sgt. J.A. Holloway of the Caswell County Sheriff's Department said a black woman about 25 years old came by the car lot at 5:15 p.m. Wednesday to test drive the car. Harrington accompanied the woman, who then stopped at a nearby restaurant to pick up a man whom she identified either as her husband, boyfriend or brother.

"He (Harrington) let them ride around a little bit, then the black male turned around with a gun, pointed it at him and told him to lay down in the back seat," Holloway said. "He took his money off him — his watch and stuff — and made him get in the trunk. He did so. He doesn't know at that point where he was or what was going on."

Parker said the couple drove around with Harrington in the trunk "about half the night. ... They apparently ran out of gas and had to leave."

Joe Parker, manager of the car dealership, said Harrington told him that "when he heard cars coming, he would go to screaming and beating on trunk but couldn't nobody hear him. Then he heard a car turn around and stop and he hollered and liked to scared the highway patrolman to death."

IN THE STATE

Lolley

RALEIGH (AP) — The Rev. Randall Lolley will be nominated for first vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention at the denomination's annual convention this summer, an Asheville preacher says.

The Rev. John Hewett, pastor of Asheville's First Baptist Church, said Thursday he would nominate Lolley and that the former president of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary had agreed to the nomination. A new president, first vice president and second vice president will be elected when the SBC meets June 14-16 in San Antonio, Texas.

Lolley resigned from the seminary in Wake Forest April 1 because of philosophical differences with the school's conservative-controlled trustee board. He was elected pastor of Raleigh's moderate First Baptist Church last week.

Disaster Funds

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Apple growers whose 1986 crops were destroyed by frost will get additional disaster money from Washington, a spokeswoman for Rep. Jamie Clarke confirmed Thursday.

Robin Cochran said an additional $12 million in disaster money has been approved by Congress. The money is farm disaster money that will cover several crops, including sugar beets and peanuts, but Ms. Cochran said most of the money in North Carolina would go to apple growers.

Last August, 300 growers in Henderson, Buncombe, Clay, Haywood, Macon, McDowell and Rutherford counties received $4 million in disaster relief money.

Market Opens

HIGH POINT (AP) — The most heavily promoted offering at this spring's Southern Furniture Market isn't a sofa, a chair or bedroom suite — it's the well-worn battle cry of cautious optimism, the keep-your-head-up-and-sell attitude.

As the semi-annual market opened Thursday, furniture and home furnishings sellers and their retail customers said that the bottom hadn't dropped out after the stock market crash last October. But virtually everyone predicts that growth will come slowly, if at all — at least for the other guy.

Bruce Miller, president of the Southern Furniture Market Center, said preregistration for buyers at the nine-day show was up 20 percent compared to last spring.

Postmark

RALEIGH (AP) — Local opposition has canceled a proposed new postmark for the Triangle.

Raleigh postmaster Ross Garulski, who had recommended a postmark reading Research Triangle Area, N.C., said Thursday he has withdrawn the proposal in favor of one that lists the major cities in the area. Garulski said that his newest suggestion so far has received a favorable reception from local officials.

Unless Garulski hears another storm of protest, he said he probably will approve a new postmark that covers the Research Triangle, Raleigh, Durham and Chapel Hill by listing all three in the bar that goes beside the postmark circle.

Martin Wants Emergency Action To Stem Erosion

RALEIGH (AP) — State and Dare County officials, worried that storm damage near a bridge over Oregon Inlet could cripple much of the Outer Banks, have begun working on emergency plans to stem erosion as Gov. Jim Martin renewed his support for jetties at the inlet.

Martin and state transportation officials Thursday inspected the Herbert C. Bonner Bridge and outlined possible emergency options in the wake of a storm that washed away about 275 feet of beach on the north end of Hatteras Island. When stormy water receded Thursday, the southern tip of the bridge was an estimated 1,800 feet from the cutting breakers.

"If we lose this bridge in a storm, how will the people on Hatteras Island get off in an emergency," Martin said at a public meeting. "We've got to see to it that this bridge is secured."

Department officials said the bridge remained safe for traffic, but it faced a continuing threat because of erosion that has scoured away 500 to 700 feet of beach since last fall. Options include placing rip-rap or sandbags on the eroding shoreline.

Martin said the bridge could be in jeopardy if there is a similar northeaster in the near future. Similar erosion problems in 1978 prompted the temporary closing of the bridge and isolated Hatteras Island from the mainland.

To the north at Nags Head, where a beach cottage collapsed into the ocean during the Wednesday storm, several more houses were in danger.

Ronnie Earl Ballance, chief building inspector in Nags Head, said that 10 beach cottages had been condemned because of the storm.

"That means that the ocean has gotten into or under the structure enough to do structural damage," he said. "Of those, I've only got two additional houses that have a real possibility of falling into the ocean."

"This was a severe storm but surprisingly enough we did not get as much severe damage as I expected," he said.

W.D. Campbell, an engineer with the Division of Highways, said an estimate of the costs to protect the Bonner Bridge had not been developed. He said state officials would discuss options with various agencies and make recommendations in the next few days.

Campbell said establishing a temporary ferry service if the bridge was forced to close would cost about $1 million for access roads and docking facilities, and about $22,000 a day to operate.

BOMB ATTACK — Burned and damaged cars line the street outside a USO club in Naples, Italy, after a bomb attack Thursday night. Five people, including an American servicewoman, died in the attack and 17 were injured. (AP Laserphoto)

Japanese Terrorist Suspected In Blast At USO Club In Italy

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Police said today that a member of Japan's Red Army terrorist group was the prime suspect in a car bomb explosion outside a U.S. military club that killed an American servicewoman and four Italians.

Investigators said they were searching for Junzo Okudaira, 39, who is also suspected in rocket and bomb attacks on the U.S. and British embassies in Rome last June.

At least 17 people, including four U.S. sailors, were hurt in the Thursday night blast outside the United Services Organization club in downtown Naples.

The Pentagon identified the slain sailor as 21-year-old Angela Simone Santos, a radioman 3rd class from Ocala, Fla. She had been stationed at the Naval Communications Area Major Station in Naples since March 1985.

A man called a French news agency office in Rome today and claimed the attack in the name of a group calling itself the Organization of Jihad Brigades.

"The American imperialists must die today, two years after their barbarous attack against the Libyan Arab state," the caller said in accented English. "Jihad" means "holy war" in Arabic.

At 2 a.m. on April 15, 1986, the United States bombed the Libyan capital in retaliation for alleged Libyan involvement in the bombing of a West Berlin nightclub. Two U.S. servicemen and a Turkish woman died in the nightclub blast.

The Libyan ambassador to Italy, Abdulrahman Shargam, told the ANSA news agency that attempts to link Libya to the bombing were disinformation.

Romano Argenio of Italy's anti-terrorist police said investigators believed Okudaira had accomplices and that they were taking the claim seriously.

"We do not think that the attack was organized by the Red Army alone," said Argenio, who is leading the investigation. "We think he was working with other terrorist groups which we are still trying to identify."

Argenio said Okudaira is believed to have parked the rented car, laden with explosives, outside the club.

Earlier, ANSA quoted an unidentified police official as saying "the Middle East connection seems most likely." State-run RAI television reported receiving a call today from a man who said "Justice has been done for the Lebanese people."

The blast damaged the club's interior, wrecked cars and shattered windows along narrow San Marco street.

The slain Italians included a souvenir vendor who regularly sat outside the club and three passers-by.

The bomb, in a white car with Milan license plates, exploded at about 8 p.m. (2 p.m. EDT). Navy spokesman Lt. David Morris said most of the sailors in the club were from the frigates USS Capodanno and USS Paul, which are anchored in Naples.

U.S. sailor John Nichols from the USS Paul was quoted in Naples' Il Mattino newspaper as saying he saw a man with dark hair and olive skin, who "didn't look like an Italian," put something inside the car and flee just before it exploded.

"We were getting ready to lower the shutters when the world exploded around us. We heard desperate shouts. We ran out into the street," said Valeria Spinetti, 22, who works at a nearby store.

"God what a terrible scene. I saw three or four people transformed into torches who were crying for help," she added. "I went back into the store to get a fire extinguisher. When I went back into the street they were already burned beyond recognition."

One of the bodies was later draped with an American flag.

Okudaira was identified as having rented the car that blew up outside the U.S. Embassy in Rome last June. There were no injuries in either that attack or the one on the British Em-

Four Youths Stabbed To Death

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Four members of a family were found stabbed to death early today in a mobile home, and the bodies were so brutally mutilated that police did not recognize at first that one victim was a male.

"It resembles the Charles Manson thing. It's the worst I've seen in 28 years on the department," Sgt. George Wilson said.

"It's unbelievable. All of them were savagely stabbed. There are knives broken off in their necks," said Wilson.

Officers were searching for a man who was seen leaving the mobile home in a car belonging to one of the victims.

Police first reported that four girls had been killed, but the mother of the victims later confirmed that one was a boy. The mother collapsed after identifying her children, police said.

The killer used an entire set of kitchen steak knives, police said. Broken knife blades were scattered around the mobile home and some knives had been broken off and left in the bodies.

Police Lt. Weldon Stinson said three of the victims, believed to range in age from about 12 to about 18, were nude.

Officers were unable to determine whether they had been sexually assaulted.

An ambulance attendant who was inside the mobile home park told reporters the interior of the home looked like "a slaughterhouse."

Officers were called to the mobile home in the Villa Grande Mobile Home Park at 3:27 a.m. by a person who said a girl was fighting with her boyfriend, Stinson said. When police arrived at 3:55 a.m., Stinson said, officers found the bodies.

Officers said there were signs that at least some of the victims had struggled with their assailants. Others may have been killed in their sleep, officers said.

Authorities said the telephone jacks had been ripped from the wall of the mobile home.

Manson was convicted of directing the murder of actress Sharon Tate and six other people in 1969. Four members of Manson's cult were convicted of committing the murders.

Virginia Executes One-Time Escapee

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Earl Clanton Jr. had pleaded for his life and even escaped once from death row, but in the end he walked wide-eyed and silent to his death in Virginia's electric chair for the 1980 killing of a librarian.

Rebuffed by the U.S. Supreme Court after his lawyers made a frantic plea, Clanton, 33, was administered two jolts of electricity late Thursday night and pronounced dead at 11:07 p.m.

Outside the prison, about 50 opponents of capital punishment conducted a vigil and prayer service. They were interrupted by a single supporter of the death penalty who shouted, "Pray for the woman that died."

Clanton had been on death row since 1981 for the robbery and strangling of Wilhemina Smith, a Petersburg school librarian who lived in his apartment building.

On Tuesday, U.S. District Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr. granted Clanton a stay to review evidence of childhood abuse that the condemned man said he suffered. Attorneys for Clanton said he had suppressed memories of the abuse and thus was incompetent to help his trial lawyer in offering mitigating evidence at the sentencing hearing.

ECU Installs Richard R. Eakin As Its Ninth Top Administrator

cal, nursing and allied health schools.

"The medical school, for example, was intended ... to provide sophisticated medical services as well as family care doctors. Medical services rarely available in a rural area — radiation oncology, open heart surgery, transplant surgery — are available in Greenville. The medical school and Pitt County Memorial Hospital have become the focus of better health for a large area.

"This is the institution that Richard R. Eakin has been called to lead, and it is already very clear that the man and the institution are well met," Carson said.

But Carson said "three of the principal tasks" which Eakin and the university will face include "the problems of growth;" an increased involvement of minority North Carolinians, and "the preparation of teachers for the public schools of eastern North Carolina."

"Here in eastern North Carolina there is a special need to raise the expectations and the level of preparation of all our youth if the people of this region are to have a better life.

"East Carolina University has a vital role to play in this effort," Carson emphasized.

"The future of all North Carolinians depends in part on how successful we are now — in our time — in closing the education gap between blacks and whites," Carson said.

"Just in this decade, when black college attendance across the nation has been in decline," Carson said, "we have experienced an impressive growth in black enrollment in the institutions of the University of North Carolina."

"East Carolina University has contributed in a major way to this success ...," according to Carson.

"Chancellor Eakin, you have the privilege of leading a great university that is unique in the strength of the bonds that tie it to the people who live here in this region. It is a complex institution, and it faces exceptionally demanding tasks.

"If it is to be all that it can be, and make the contributions that North Carolina rightfully expects of it, you must give it exceptional leadership. That is no easy task.

"But we are confident that you are more than able to meet the obligations we entrust to you today. Please know that you have the support and trust of all members of this university community that you lead."

And, Carson said, "you may be assured also of the abiding good will and full confidence of the Board of Governors and the president. We know that you will give unselfishly of yourself. You should know that you have our friendship, our respect, and our expectation that this will be an even greater university because of your leadership."

Pledging "steadfast devotion" to the school's mission of service, and "tireless efforts" on behalf of ECU loyalists, Eakin, after taking the oath of office, said East Carolina, as a constituent of the University of North Carolina system, "is blessed."

"It is blessed with a base of support from the people of North Carolina that is second to none," Eakin said, "for, you see, the people of North Carolina can point with pride to the fact that per capita support for higher education ranks fourth in the nation and their support for higher education per $1,000 of personal income ranks third, only behind Alaska and Wyoming — two states whose small populations have a pronounced effect on these statistics."

And Eakin suggested, "We should be proud of our state's commitment to higher education, and we should build upon that commitment."

"Much has been written to suggest that North Carolina's laurels may be a little squashed lately from those of us in higher education resting upon them," Eakin said. "While, I'm sure, that is a state of affairs which should be avoided, and we should be ever vigilant to guard against complacency, I see no evidence of such problems in my first year here."

Instead, Eakin said, "I see a system of higher education with a forceful commitment to leadership. I see a commitment to the social and economic well-being of our citizens. I see a clear understanding that lasting social improvement emerges only from enlightened learning. I see a system of higher education with the capacity to go far beyond its present limits. I see faculty and administrators who are equal to the challenge — who are ready to bring even greater distinction to our university."

"Clearly, East Carolina University is not resting on its laurels," Eakin emphasized. "It never has and never will. If there is anything that can be said about East Carolina it is that the meeting of challenges is the fabric of which our university is made. More than once ... we have seen the need for service, and we have stepped boldly forward to serve. It is, after all, our mission to serve."

"Service to the citizens of North Carolina and particularly to those who reside in eastern North Carolina has been not only the motto of East Carolina University, but also the hallmark of our performance."

According to Eakin, "I have seen and heard enough in these first months to know that there is a fierce and justifiable pride in this 'Down East' university. I have learned that ECU belongs to many people."

ECU, Eakin said, "is the university of the people of eastern North Carolina ... the university of many who have never attended a university and have no prospect of attending one. They appreciate the influence of the university in countless ways. They feel it in the life-giving medical care that comes from the school of medicine. They experience it from the cultural and recreational opportunities present here. They see, in ECU, real hope for their children's future."

"ECU is the university of the schools and governmental and social service agencies of this region. It is a source to help them in their quest to improve services and to bring new opportunities to eastern North Carolina."

"ECU is the university of the students in rural high schools who would not be able to receive instruction in high school physics and technology were it not for the Down East Instructional Telecommunications Network."

"ECU is the university of countless men and women engaged in small businesses who are learning to evaluate new business opportunities and to effectively manage ongoing operations thanks to the Small Business and Technology Development Center."

"ECU is the university of opportunity for minority students, especially in eastern North Carolina. We represent for them not only an opportunity to gain an education, but also to earn an important place in the corps of North Carolinians who will guide our way into the 21st century."

And, Eakin said, ECU is the university of its 55,000 alumni "who serve across this state and nation as teachers, lawyers, medical doctors, legislators, social workers, nurses, musicians, artists and a variety of other professions ...

"We bear an obligation to our alumni," Eakin said. "The worth of their diploma surely is measured by the strength of their individual commitment to learning. But it is measured also by the academic strength of their alma mater in the years following their graduation. We recognize that being the best that we can be in educating our present students is being the best we can be for our alumni as well.

Eakin said, "ECU is, in short, the university of tens of thousands of North Carolinians. It is your university."

"Today, I am proud to be numbered among those who can say it is my university."

"Our university has a proud past, a vital, exciting present, and a challenging future," Eakin said. "East Carolina can and must make a difference. We have an important agenda. In a region that is beset by the plague of illiteracy; a region that is in serious need of economic development; a region whose people need only the opportunity to achieve; a region largely untapped in its potential, we can and must be catalyst for change."

"If we fail to improve the social and economic fiber of eastern North Carolina," Eakin said, "we will have failed in our responsibilities to this region and we will have failed all of the people of North Carolina."

"As fundamental as is our commitment to the eastern North Carolina region, let us not forget that ours is a university for all of North Carolina ... In fact ..., our mission cannot be contained within the confines of either regional or state boundaries. We must serve eastern North Carolina, we must serve North Carolina, but we must not allow ourselves to limit our broader responsibilities to the larger national and international academic community."

Eakin, 49, a native of Pennsylvania, was named chancellor of ECU by the UNC Board of Governors in January 1987, and assumed his duties March 1, 1987.

He received undergraduate degrees in math and physics from Geneva College in 1960, a master's from Washington State University in 1962, and earned his doctorate in math from WSU in 1964.

He began his career at Bowling Green State University in Ohio as an assistant professor in 1964, became an associate professor in 1968, was named assistant dean of the graduate school and director of graduate admissions in 1969, and became associate dean in July 1972.

In August of that year Eakin was named vice provost for student affairs and in 1979 became vice provost for institutional planning and student affairs at Bowling Green. He was named executive vice provost for planning and budgeting in 1980 and became vice president for planning and budgeting in June 1983.

A bed race will be held Sunday at the Brody Building parking lot starting at 3 p.m. The American Cancer Society will receive all proceeds.

Hearing Reset

"A lot of times, in cases that are very serious, the state will take the case directly to the grand jury and not go through the probable cause hearing, and that is a possibility in this case," said attorney Robin Fornes, who was appointed by Judge J.W.H. Roberts to represent Manning.

The Pitt County grand jury is scheduled to reconvene Monday.

Mrs. White and Mobley could face the death penalty or life imprisonment if convicted of first degree murder; conspiracy to commit murder is a felony punishable by 10 years in prison, a fine, or both.

Mrs. White, Mobley and Manning are accused of planning in January to murder White, according to the arrest warrants. She offered about $35,000 to have her husband killed, according to State Bureau of Investigation agent Jim Roberts, who has been assisting county investigators in the case. Roberts said no money is believed to have changed hands.

Public defender Robert Shoffner is representing Mrs. White.

Thefts Investigated

Eight thefts, including some $2,255 worth of property from a Paris Avenue apartment, were reported to Greenville police Thursday.

Officer R.L. Panel Supports Nuclear Arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — A committee of bishops urges the Roman Catholic church to continue its "conditional acceptance" of nuclear weapons, saying they have been a significant factor in preventing nuclear war.

"In a dangerous world, a world of both widespread nuclear knowledge and extensive nuclear arsenals, we find condemning nuclear deterrence too drastic a solution and embracing it too simple a response," the committee said in a report to their fellow bishops.

As a result, the committee added, "the best moral evaluation is neither to condemn deterrence outright nor to accept it as self-regulating or normal."

The report calls deterrence "a significant factor in preventing the use of nuclear weapons" and said it has "contributed to a more cautious posture of the two nuclear powers in world affairs."

The church adopted the "conditional acceptance" posture in 1983.

The bishops, in urging its continuation, called the meeting of President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev last December "the beginning of responsible statesmanship."

They said it raised cautious hopes "that an authentically new opportunity for redefining the political relationship of the world's two major military powers may be at hand."

HOW JESUS' FEET WERE REALLY WASHED!

YEARS AGO A YOUNG BIBLE STUDENT FOUND WHAT HE BELIEVED TO BE AN ERROR IN ONE OF THE STORIES TOLD IN LUKE! HOW COULD IT BE, HE ASKED HIS INSTRUCTOR, FOR THE WOMAN TO WASH JESUS' FEET WHEN JESUS WAS ALREADY SITTING DOWN TO EAT AND THE WOMAN STANDING UP BEHIND HIM? (LUKE 7:38) WHEN IT WAS EXPLAINED TO HIM THAT IN THOSE DAYS PEOPLE DID NOT SIT AT THE TABLE AS WE DO TODAY, BUT INSTEAD LAY DOWN IN COUCHES WITH THE HEAD TO THE TABLE AND THE FEET STRETCHED OUT BEHIND THEM, IT BECAME APPARENT THAT THERE WAS NO ERROR IN THE STORY BUT JUST IN THE YOUNG STUDENT'S UNDERSTANDING THE WAYS OF THESE ANCIENT PEOPLE! LOTS OF THINGS TOLD ABOUT IN THE BIBLE SEEM ODD OR UNTRUE TO US...

...TODAY, BUT WHEN WE STUDY ABOUT THEM WITH QUALIFIED TEACHERS, WHO KNOW THEIR SUBJECTS, THEN WHAT SEEMED SO CONFUSING AND SO CONTRARY, SUDDENLY BECOMES VERY UNDERSTANDABLE AND COMPREHENSIVE!

Teacher Takes Leave For Campaign Trail

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Cumberland County first-grade teacher Karen Rand took a leave of absence this school year to go on the road and promote the candidacy of her husband, Tony, for the Democratic nomination for state lieutenant governor.

If Rand, a Fayetteville lawyer, wins his party's nomination, Mrs. Rand will face another decision — whether to extend the leave of absence into next school year.

If Rand were to become lieutenant governor and the couple would move to Raleigh, she said she probably will not seek a teaching job there. "I really need to get my master's in elementary education," she said, "and I'd probably get to work on it. She has a few hours of course credit from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill toward her master's taken while her husband was in the state Senate, she says.

Teaching is a career choice she made after having been an interior decorator. She pursued her teaching degree at Methodist College in Fayetteville. "I love teaching," she said, "and I miss my school children."

An Illinois native, she has a degree in interior design from Florida State University. She said she met her husband when she decorated a house for him, a house in which she now lives. "If I'd known I was going to live in it, I'd have talked him out of some of those browns and beiges," she said.

Rand, a Garner native, grew up in a family which ran an electrical contracting and supply business and worked as an electrician to see himself through college and law school. His now deceased father, Walter Rand, was once mayor of Garner and his mother, Geneva, has taught piano in Garner for 50 years.

A UNC graduate, he has practiced criminal law in Fayetteville since 1968 and has served in the Senate since 1982. His son, Ripley, 20, a student at UNC, and his son, Craven, 18, a high school senior, have been active in his campaign.

Mrs. Rand said she believes in her husband's stands on education, law enforcement and environmental protection and is happy about the groups that have endorsed him, including the North Carolina Association of Educators and the Sierra Club. She said she believes that his 10-point plan for opening up the legislative budgeting process to public scrutiny is a good one and she feels that it can be implemented only if he is elected.

Engagement Announced

RHONDA SUE ROUSE — is the daughter of John Wayne Rouse of Fountain, and Elizabeth Hardee Goude of Doraville, Ga., who announce her engagement to William Ray Jones, son of Leroy Jones of Sebring, Fla., and Irma Jones of Farmville. A May 7 wedding is planned.

Wet hair is easier to cut, so when shaving, the beard area should be very wet, thus extending the life of the razor blade and reducing irritation, according to one razor manufacturer who recommends shaving in the shower.

Silhouettes Reveal Shape

By CURT SUPLEE

L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

The body politic has spoken: The mini-skirt is officially dead. Despite a year-long seige by hemline hoisters, the female American thigh remains fully upholstered. Rag-biz barons are bewildered: "Short looked so right and so now," one New York designer sighed to the press.

Actually, it couldn't have been less right. The mini putsch was doomed from the outset by the recent convergence of three powerful sociopsychological factors: the new cultural premium placed on fertility, motherhood and "parenting"; the aging of the Baby Boom generation; and, most important, the cyclical nature of sartorial-anatomical symbolism in Western society.

Our predilection for one body part over another is no accident of pop caprice. It is emblematic of prevailing values and aspirations. From that perspective, the late '80s are plainly not a leg epoch; they are a breast epoch. And the two are antithetical in ways that make cultural, if not common, sense.

In periods of relative libidinal calm and pro-family emphasis, skirts tend to lengthen, to bind the woman both physically and symbolically, and attention shifts up the torso. "Review your images of the '50s," says John Lowe, a cultural anthropologist with Research & Forecasts Inc. in New York, "and you don't think of legs. You think of the face and breast."

They are also the images of the present day. Scorned in the gaunt-chic '70s and squashed in the suppress-for-success early '80s, the American bosom once seemed on the verge of visual extinction. But in the fall of '86, we entered a new era: Vogue magazine, after years of photographing thistle-thin ladies whose most prominent feature was the clavicle, devoted its cover to a conspicuously buxom model. To be sure, the bust boom had been growing for several years previously, as our video appetite gradually turned to heavier fare, from Darryl Hannah to Joan Collins and (incessantly) Madonna — the woman who has done for the bosom what Humphrey Bogart did for the trench coat. Not to mention the generous photo play accorded such inadvertent celebrities as Donna Rice. After a decade of fitness mania, and with a few more pounds on the collective carcass of post-war baby bulgers, the nation was plainly feeling the need for more bulk in its anatomical diet.

By mid-'86, Eileen Ford of the Ford model agency was observing that breast implants were suddenly "epidemic" among her ramp regulars, what with the success of Carol Alt, Paulina and other sizable models. Thousands of women were following stars such as Mariel Hemingway into the operating room. In 1986 alone, according to the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons, 93,500 breast-augmentation operations were performed — at up to $6,000 a pop — compared to 48,600 breast-reduction procedures. Moreover, the augmentations themselves have been augmented. A few years ago the typical request was for transformation from an A cup to a B cup (representing approximately 1.5 to 2 inches of horizontal protrusion.) But now Bs want to be Cs, with who-knows-what epic heft on the surgical horizon.

The bosomic renaissance, however, bespeaks more than mass vanity.

Our periodic preference for one body part over another seems to follow a systematic pattern of the sort advanced by psychologist John Carl Flugel in 1930. He argued that what drives fashion change is a system of "shifting erogenous zones" which derives from social-sexual competition: Each new generation gains competitive advantage by emphasizing a different body area. It can be as obvious as flaunting the posterior in the cancan during the late 19th Century, or as subtle and seemingly gratuitous as the mid-century habit of exposing one shoulder in a floor-length gown.

In American society, the locus of attention customarily revolves from legs to buttocks to breasts and back again. In the most recent cycle, it has gone from the androgynous and tubular Twiggy to the waggling rump-o-rama of the designer-jeans craze and thence to the newly accentuated chest.

Such changes in the physiological hit parade in turn reflect the larger social conceptions of the day: The relative dominance of men or women, the prevailing view of libido and the social status accorded to the family unit. So if current taste seems to be calling for prominent curves at the same time that the last strident cries of feminism are receding amid a national backlash at "wimpy" males, it makes a certain kind of emblematic sense.

"In periods of marked male domination," writes fashion historian James Laver, "the clothes of the two sexes are as different as possible." In the 1870s, for example, with women in vast crinolined skirts and men in frock coats, "the two silhouettes were so dissimilar that the distinction between men and women was visible half a mile off."

A hundred years ago, the derriere was pre-eminent. Bustles the size of peach baskets elevated the female buttocks into monumental extrusion, supported by wads of horsehair or Yankee ingenuity: A "braided wire health bustle" of the 1880s, for example, was advertised as "warranted to be less heating to the spine"; and the infamous (Lily) "Langtry" model, "an arrangement of metal bands working on a pivot," writes fashion historian James Laver, "could be raised when sitting down and sprang back automatically into place when the lady rose to her feet."

The exaggerated backside soon gave way to the vast cantilevered chest-mass popular during the Victorian and Edwardian eras. "The new century," writes art critic Bernhard Rudofsky, "saw the enthusiastic acceptance of a sweeping homogenous front bulge, a highly artificial protuberance that I shall call the monobosom ... the merger of two pointed secondary sexual characteristics into a single mass of flesh that has no precedent in human history."

"Quite logically," he concludes, "these manipulations climaxed in the total suppression of the bosom" during the Roaring '20s. Whereupon, "the event that, so to speak, ensured the continuity of human propagation was the unveiling of the female leg."

The prevailing image was girlish. "The principal legacy of the Jazz Age," writes fashion historian Rachel Kemper, "was not the bare knee and even barer back," but "an emphasis on youthful looks." As a result, "the heyday of the mature woman was over," and "haute couture belonged to skinny girls with bright eyes, bobbed hair, and boundless energy." The look (like its counterpart in the late '60s and early '70s) was provocative but not fertile. "Edwardian fashions had favored mature, regal ladies who had the wherewithal to fill the majestically proportioned corsets. In the '20s, the

Colors Revealed Before Wedding

DEAR ABBY: My son, "Steve," was to be married in June. He broke off the engagement last December when he realized that "Angie" was not the girl he wanted to spend the rest of his life with. Angie's parents refused to pay for anything having to do with the wedding, so I bought Angie's wedding gown. My mother made a beautiful bedspread for Steve and Angie, and gave it to Angie when they became engaged.

After the engagement was broken, I called Angie and asked if I could please pick up the wedding gown and bedspread. I explained that I wanted to save the wedding gown for my own daughter, and the bedspread would be considered a family heirloom since it had been handmade by my mother. She said she had no intentions of giving anything back. I was shocked and hurt, but I suppose I should be glad Angie's true colors came out before it was too late.

Was I wrong to ask for those things back? What else can I do? She reads your column faithfully, so maybe if she sees this she will realize how wrong she is. — HURT AND DISAPPOINTED

DEAR HURT: The wedding gown and bedspread were given to Angie in anticipation of a wedding that was canceled, so you were justified in asking her to return them.

You could sue her, but it might be costly (and messy) and not worth it in the long run. If I were you, I'd settle for learning Angie's true colors before it was too late.

DEAR ABBY: I am a student in a small Colorado high school. Recently, a girl in our school was killed instantly in a car accident, and the Monday after her death, we came to school to see the American flag flying at half-mast!

Abby, according to the rules of flag etiquette, the American flag can be flown at half-mast only with the consent of the president of the United States. I was appalled to find that the principal of our school did not know proper flag etiquette.

Am I overreacting, or are my feelings justified? — APPALLED

DEAR APPALLED: According to the World Book Encyclopedia: "By tradition, the national flag flies at half-mast only when the entire country is in mourning. If local flags are flown at half-mast, the national flag must be flown at full mast with them."

But I do think you're overreacting.

Even though your principal did not follow "flag etiquette" to the letter, he or she deserves high marks for showing compassion and respect for a student whose life ended so suddenly and tragically.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I send a card to someone who's in a hospital or nursing home, instead of putting my own name and address in the upper left-hand corner of the envelope, I write the home address of the person I'm sending the card to. That way, if he has been discharged, the card will reach him at home instead of being returned to me. — CLAIRE BROWN, CICERO, ILL.

DEAR CLAIRE: Good thinking.

Wedding bells? Wedding bills! Who pays for what and everything else you need to know if you're planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage and handling included).

Council Approves Zoning For Tract

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer
The Greenville City Council has unanimously approved extending the city's extraterritorial jurisdiction south to cover approximately 70 acres.

In addition the council, at its monthly meeting in City Hall, agreed upon subsequent land-use zoning of the tract following a public hearing on the matter.

The 72.06 acres, owned by Geneva M. Jackson, is located south of White Road, west of SR 1709 and east of the Wilton Evans property.

The council voted to bring the southernmost 50 acres of the tract into the city's ETJ zoned R-15S (single family residential, minimum 15,000 square feet per lot). The 18 northwestern acres of the tract were zoned R-6 (single family, duplex, and multifamily residential), while two acres situated on the corner of White Road and 1709 were zoned office and institutional.

According to the city Zoning Ordinance, the purpose of the office-institutional district is to create and protect areas in which residential, business and professional uses may be compatibly mixed. Examples of permitted uses which could be located on the corner of White Road and SR 1709 include a church, office building or a public school.

According to Bobby Roberson, director of planning and development, an ETJ is a designated area set aside for physical planning and implemented through the zoning and subdivision regulations of the city.

He said such designations prevent the negative consequences of "leap frog" development.

The City Council also voted unanimously to rezone 8.29 acres on the northwest corner of Cannons Crossroads from RA-20 (residential-agricultural) to O&I II. Approximately 4.5 acres of the tract situated along the corner of the intersection were originally requested by Greenville Properties to be zoned CN (neighborhood commercial). The developer agreed to an O&I II designation following a lengthy public hearing.

Several residents of the area spoke in opposition to both O&I and CN zoning, arguing it would adversely affect the neighborhood by creating an increase in traffic, pollution and possibly crime. Dorothy Hudson, a resident of the Evans Street Extension, said the zoning as was approved by council, conflicts with the intentions of the city's comprehensive plan adopted about eight years ago.

Also at Thursday night's meeting, the council voted 4-2 to deny a request by Robert Smith to rezone 11.27 acres located east of North Greene Street and south of Farmer's Street from RA-20 to I (industrial). Council members Rufus Huggins and Mildred Council voted in favor of the request.

In another rezoning matter, the council unanimously approved a request rezoning 2.07 acres located off the Evans Street Extension west of the Roy H. Park Broadcasting property from RA-20 to O&I. The request was submitted by Virginia Nichols and was recommended for approval by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

East Carolina Rallies To Defeat Mount Olive By 9-1; Thomas Homers

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina spotted Mount Olive College a 1-0 lead Thursday night at Harrington Field, then stormed back to take a 9-1 victory in the non-conference baseball game.

The Pirates boosted their record to 23-11 with the win while Mount Olive, an NAIA member, fell to 19-8.

The Pirates used four pitchers in the contest and gave up seven hits, but managed to keep the Trojans away from home plate except for one lone time in the second inning. It served, however, to give Mount Olive a 1-0 lead before the Pirates came back in the bottom of the second to tie it up, then take the lead with three runs in the third.

"I've been pleased with the way we've been playing the last couple of weeks," Pirate coach Gary Overton said. "Even though we lost two games against George Mason, we played pretty well. We lost one of those to a good pitcher and the other game, we had a chance to win.

"We're still not where I want us to be, but we are played better than we did earlier in the season.

"Tonight," Overton said, "we played a fine game. This is the time of year when we need to start building towards (Colonial Athletic Association) tournament. We seem to be ironing things out, but we're still not playing flawlessly, just better."

And Overton also reminded that the regular season of the CAA is just for seeding, that the league champion comes from the tournament winner. "We know that for sure. Two years ago, we won the regular season, but lost out in the tournament. Last year, we finished fourth and we win it all. So you never can tell."

Meanwhile, the Pirates had to move past the Trojans to add one more to the total. And Mount Olive made it look difficult — for a little while anyway.

After striking out the side in the first inning, starter and winner Scott Stevens, now 4-5, gave up a run in the second. With one away, Charlie Long singled to right. Then, with two away, Brad Reeves doubled to right center, scoring Long for the 1-0 lead.

That was to be it for the Trojans. They threatened again in the third, fourth, sixth and eighth innings, but never could get the key hit to start another rally going.

East Carolina, meanwhile, tied it up with a run in the bottom of the second. John Thomas opened with a single and moved up on an infield out. Chris Cauble walked and David Ritchie was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Steve Godin then laid down a perfect bunt on the third base line, scoring Thomas with the tying run.

Then, in the third, the Pirates added three more runs, taking a 4-1 lead. Calvin Brown opened with a single and John Adams walked. He was forced at second on Thomas' grounder, but an error on the play allowed him to move on to second and plated Brown with the go-ahead run. Thomas then stole third and scored when the ball was thrown into left field by the Trojan catcher. Tommy Yarborough walked and stole second, scoring on a double by Cauble.

Thomas provided a run in the fifth with his first home run of a season, with no one aboard.

The Pirates scored four more in the sixth to close it out. Cauble walked and Tommy Boswell came on to run for him. Ritchie also walked and with one away, Jay McGraw singled to right, driving in Boswell. With two away, Adams doubled in both Ritchie and McGraw. Thomas was intentionally walked and Yarborough

Recruits Defend Kentucky Aide

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Several high school players and their coaches say Kentucky assistant coach Dwane Casey never offered them illegal inducements to sign with the school, and some hinted that an allegation he sent $1,000 by mail to the father of one recruit could be a setup.

"I can't believe Coach Casey would do anything like that," said Sean Woods, a 6-foot guard from Indianapolis who signed with Kentucky in November. "He's a straight-forward person. He was straight-forward with me. It was strictly basketball, really. It wasn't anything under the table. No bribes or anything like that."

The Daily News of Los Angeles, in a copyright story in Thursday's edition, said a package mailed by Casey to the father of high school standout Chris Mills in Los Angeles allegedly contained $1,000.

The newspaper said the money was uncovered when the package, mailed March 30, accidentally came open at the Emery Worldwide air freight distribution center in Los Angeles.

"I don't put any credence in this Daily News story at all. It's almost like it's a setup," said Bob Hawking, the high school coach of Don MacLean, a Kentucky recruit. MacLean, a 6-10 forward from Simi Valley, Calif., has narrowed his choices to Kentucky, UCLA, Georgia Tech, Pittsburgh and UNLV.

"Everything that Kentucky has done in Don MacLean's recruitment has been above board," Hawking said. "I have nothing but the highest regard for (head coach) Eddie Sutton, (assistant) James Dickey and Dwane Casey."

"They've abided by all the NCAA rules, abided by the guidelines that we set down in the recruitment of Don, because we had some specific things that we were concerned about."

Bob Burdick, the editor of the Daily News, said his paper had no reason to believe that Kentucky or Emery were victims of a conspiracy to keep Mills from playing at Kentucky.

"I think the idea of a conspiracy is patently absurd," Burdick told The Lexington Herald-Leader. "I think that borders on paranoia."

Burdick declined to reveal how the newspaper got the story.

Managing Editor Doug Dowie said the newspaper interviewed numerous Emery employees independently over three days and found no reason for them to "make up a story."

But Joseph Wiltz, high school coach of Harold Boudreaux of Cecelia, La., who was recruited by Casey but signed with LSU, agreed with Hawking.

"I know Coach Casey and Coach Sutton. No way in the world they would even dream of doing things like that. That's not their style. There's no doubt in my mind that this is nothing but a setup," Wiltz said.

Casey declined when given the opportunity on Thursday to deny that he sent the money to Chris' father, Claud Mills, in a videotape he was returning of the younger Mills.

Casey, in Louisiana to interview for the head coaching position at the University of New Orleans, was asked by reporters how he would reply to the question: "Did you send the money?"

"I would say, 'No comment,'" Casey responded. "Anytime you're recruiting, you're going to have a lot of allegations, innuendos and assumptions."

"The situation everyone is talking about is very unfortunate. It was one of many that's been going on all year long. The school is investigating, the NCAA is investigating and the ultimate thing is to wait and see what they come up with."

Casey had told the Daily News that he did not send the money.

Chris Mills, a 6-7 Parade All-American who signed with Kentucky on Nov. 11, was in Albuquerque, N.M., Thursday practicing for Sunday's McDonald's All-American Classic and refused comment. Chris Mills had told the Daily News he knew nothing about the money.

His father told WAVE-TV in Louisville on Thursday that he never received any money from Casey.

"Nobody every offered us nothing," he said. "The only thing they offered us was a four-year scholarship."

Chris Mills' coach at Los Angeles Fairfax High School, Harvey Kitani, said the player was "really upset" by the reports. "I told him to be strong, that there are cruel people out there, but he had no reason not to hold his head up. Chris and his family are very honest people."

Sutton declined comment on Thursday.

UK President David Roselle on Thursday said the investigation was being jointly conducted by the school and the NCAA.

"Right now, we don't know the status of the investigation," he said. "I have no report" on the investigation, and said he didn't know when he would receive one.

Roselle said the school has hired an outside attorney, James Park, formerly a judge in Fayette Circuit Court and on the Kentucky Court of Appeals, to guide its investigation.

Kentucky had conducted an earlier investigation into alleged recruiting violations without seeking outside legal counsel.

Park said he would look for "objective facts and evidence" to determine whether Kentucky had been involved in violations.

"At this point, things haven't opened up enough. I'm educating myself," he said.

Kentucky players on Thursday came to the defense of Casey.

"We believe in our coaches," sophomore forward Eric Manuel said. "We don't think anything ever happened. We hope somebody is making it up. We know that Coach Casey is a fine coach and he would never do anything like send money to get a player to come to school here."

The mood, however, was down on the Kentucky campus.

Dan Hassert, editor of The Kentucky Kernel, the UK student newspaper, said of the alleged payoff that "there is a feeling that things like this go on, and I don't think the (previous) NCAA investigation got rid of that perception."

Last month, the NCAA Committee on Infractions publicly reprimanded the university for not fully cooperating with the earlier NCAA investigation and ordered it to monitor athletic expenditures and report its results to the NCAA for three years.

That investigation was prompted by a series in the Lexington Herald-Leader that quoted former players as saying that some received cash, clothing, and extravagant gifts in a consistent pattern of abuse dating back to the 1970s.

The NCAA said it found no proof of violations within its four-year statute of limitations.

Hassert said many students believe Kentucky "squeaked through" its own probe and the NCAA investigation of those charges.

"If that (belief) is wrong, now is the time to get rid of that perception," he said. But if the new charge is true, "then I think they need a massive cleaning of house in the athletic department."

Pigout Time For ECU Fans

By TIM CHANDLER
Reflector Sports Writer

The trees are budding, the flowers are blooming and the grass is growing.

These are all indications that it's the heart of April and at East Carolina University it means the Fifth Annual Great Pirate Purple/Gold Pigskin Pigout Party is just around the corner.

This year's party is set for April 21-23 and the lineup could prove to make it the best one yet.

Miller Lite is once again one of the primary sponsors of the event and is this year joined by Frito Lay, who is making its first sponsorship appearance to the event, and the Hilton Inn-Greenville.

The Pigout Party, although only five years old, has grabbed not only the attention of people locally, but it has also turned heads nationally, according to ECU Athletic Marketing Director Lee Workman.

Workman says that he has received calls from other schools all across the nation who are interested in the idea.

This year the event is even more of a spectacle event for the fans as seven Miller-Lite All-Stars will be in attendance, instead of the usual two attendees. The idea here was to have a reunion of the stars of past events join in with Lee Meredith ("The Doll") this year. Other stars to be present include L.C. Greenwood, Ben Davidson, Boog Powell, Jack "Hacksaw" Reynolds, Larry Csonka and Conrad Dobler.

This year's weekend will get underway Thursday night with the

Lee Meredith

Pigout Golf Classic Social and Auction at the Hilton at 7 p.m. Early arrivals to the event may also want to sneak a peak at the Pirate baseball team on Thursday afternoon as it will be playing host to North Carolina at 4 p.m. at Harrington Field.

The golf tournament will get a busy Friday started as Meredith and approximately 140 other golfers will hit the links at Brook Valley Country Club at 8:30 a.m.

The golf tournament should wind up around 2 p.m., giving the contestants enough time to head back to the main campus area in time for game one of the Rental Tool Company/ECU Intramural Recreational Services All-Night Softball Tournament.

The softball tournament starts up at 3:30 p.m. on Friday and features an around-the-clock format. Double elimination tournaments will be held for both men's and women's teams with 16 men's teams and eight women's teams competing.

The action will then shift to Ficklen Stadium, where the mini-carnival will open at 6 p.m. with rides for the kiddies. The kids probably also wouldn't mind if Mom and Dad would take them up for a ride in a hot air balloon. The balloon rides will be offered from 6 to 8 p.m.

Also, for those a little too big for the carnival rides and a little too scared for the balloon rides, a boat show will be open to public view around the stadium beginning at 6:30 p.m.

An "Evening with the Stars Reunion Banquet" will be held at the Hilton Inn starting at 6 p.m. The banquet will be attended by all seven All-Stars and can be attended for a price of $50 per person.

The Entertainers, which specialize in beach and top 40 music, will be in concert under the stands of Ficklen and in the heart of the midway Friday beginning at 9 p.m. and lasting until the midnight hour.

Also at 9 p.m., one of the principal reasons for the weekend will begin as the pigs for the barbecue will be played on the fires.

The judging of the pigs will get underway at 7 a.m. Saturday, while the boat show and carnival will resume at 10 a.m.

Also opening at 10 a.m. will be the booths selling tickets to both the Purple/Gold game and to the barbecue lunch. Tickets for the game can be purchased in advance for $1.50, while on game day the price will be $2.50. The barbecue plates will sell for $3.50.

The food will begin hitting the plates around 10:30 a.m. and continue until 3 p.m. or until all the pigs have been pigged up.

The dunkin' booth will start the 11 o'clock hour rolling followed by purple and gold balloon-packing clowns, which will circulate the midway area beginning at 11:30 a.m.

While no list is ready yet as to who will be sitting in the hot seat of the Dunkin' Booth, ECU Athletic Director Dave Hart is a shoo-in to take a dip, according to sources in the ECU Marketing Office.

The championship game of the all-night softball tournament will take place at high noon on the intramural fields beside Ficklen. At the same time, the All-Stars will be having some competition of their own down on the midway.

Kiddie games are set for 1 p.m. and the Sutan Bikini Contest will get underway at 2 p.m.

The afternoon's festivities will continue with autograph sessions planned with both the Pirate football players and the All-Stars. The Pirates will be available beginning at 1:30 p.m., followed by the All-Stars at 2:30 p.m.

The reason for the whole weekend will be getting underway at 3:30 p.m. on the Ficklen turf as the Purple takes on the Gold in the spring football game.

And that's what the whole thing is all about, anyway.

Charles Named Voice Of The Pirates

Jeff Charles has been named director of electronic media at East Carolina, Pirate athletic director Dave Hart announced Thursday.

Charles, 35, comes to ECU after five years as director of radio and television affairs at Virginia Tech, where he was the "Voice of the Hokies" and the coordinator of a statewide network of radio and television shows.

In addition to becoming the "Voice of the Pirates," Charles will be the executive producer of the Pirate Sports Network in charge of expanding the number of affiliates and market coverage of ECU football and basketball.

"Bringing Jeff Charles into our department is consistent with our desires to surround ourselves with highly-qualified people who project a positive image," Hart said. "Jeff is greatly respected among his broadcasting peers and is considered one of the top play-by-play announcers in the college ranks."

"I'm very grateful for the opportunity to join the East Carolina staff," Charles said. "What attracted me to the position was the fact that the program is really moving forward and making great strides."

"The future is very bright at ECU and I also welcome the opportunity to work with Dave Hart and Charlie Carr (ECU associate athletic director for external relations)."

Prior to his tenure at Virginia Tech, Charles was the radio "Voice of the Furman Paladins" in 1982-83. He was sports director of WSB radio in Atlanta and the host of a nightly sports talk show in 1981-82. He also was the "Voice of the Peach Bowl."

Charles also has experience as the play-by-play announcer for the University of Illinois from 1979-81.

The native of Piqua, Ohio, is a graduate of the Career Academy Broadcasting School of Columbus, Ohio, and he received a degree in speech communications from Goshen College in Indiana in 1975.

Charles and his wife, Debbie, have two children, Heather, 14, and Britt, 12. He replaces Frank Giardina, who was recently named coordinator of radio and television at Penn State. Charles' first duties at ECU will be to broadcast the spring football game on April 23.

Hapless Braves Now Have To Hit The Road

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves couldn't win a game in their opening home stand of 1988, and they begin their first road trip with a miserable statistic: a franchise record for the most losses at the start of a season.

"We'll try to get it started on the road," Manager Chuck Tanner said as the Braves head to Los Angeles to start a three-game series Friday night.

"It's frustrating," said outfielder Dale Murphy. "I expect us to start hitting better every night."

Atlanta's 0-8 record after the home stand erased the record of the 1980 Braves, who lost their first seven. The 1988 club is only one loss shy of the modern National League mark of nine, shared by four teams.

Conley Nips Pam Pack, 3-2

WASHINGTON — Gray Mills scored the winning error off an error in the top of the seventh inning as D.H. Conley edged Washington, 3-2, Thursday in a Coastal Conference baseball game.

Washington took an early 2-0 lead on a two-run homer by Franz Holscher.

Conley rallied to tie the game in the fifth, when Gray Mills opened the inning with a walk. Scottie Barnhill followed with a reach off an error. Brian Bullock then drove in both runners to score both runners and tie the game at 2-2.

In the seventh, with two outs, Mills walked and moved to second on a wild pitch. Scottie Barnhill then reached on an error when the short-stop dropped a pop fly which allowed Mills to score from second.

Washington then went out in order in the bottom of the seventh as Bronswell Patrick, who went the distance for the win, recorded three straight strikeouts to end the game.

Patrick had 11 strikeouts and three walks on the day as he moved to 3-1 on the year.

Conley moves to 7-3 and returns to action today at North Lenoir.

BETHEL — Farmville Central broke open a close game with North Pitt in the second inning Thursday afternoon and rolled to an easy 14-3 victory.

The game was called after five and one-half innings under the 10-run rule.

Two first inning errors on the Panthers allowed Farmville to pull out to a quick 2-0 lead.

North Pitt, however, battled back and tied the game in the bottom half of the frame when Randy House ripped a two-run home run over the left-field fence. It was his first home run of the year.

In the second inning, Chris Ross started things off for Farmville by reaching on an error. Alexander Daniels singled. George Burnette followed with a three-run homer to make it 5-2. The Jaguars added another run when Mike Vandiford singled and went to second on a ground out, stole third and scored on a passed ball.

Farmville added another run in the third and one more in the fifth to make it 8-3 before breaking the game wide open with six more runs, keyed by RBI singles from Alexander Daniels and George Burnette in the fifth.

Leading the way at the plate for Farmville was Burnette, who was 3-5 on the day with the homer and a pair of singles; Daniels, who was 3-4; pitcher Mike Vandiford, who was 2-4, and catcher Shay Terrell, who was 2-3 with a double.

The loss dropped North Pitt to 1-5 overall and 0-2 in Eastern Plains Conference. The Panthers will be back in action at Pamlico at 7:30 tonight.

Robbie Still Is Looking For Bright Spots After Loss

By The Associated Press

Frank Robinson tried to find some good signs in Baltimore's ninth straight defeat after left fielder Jeff Stone lost a ball in the lights to lose the game.

With the score tied 3-3, Jim Eisenreich came around from first base when Stone lost Frank White's drive in the lights with two outs in the top of the ninth inning as the Kansas City Royals beat the Orioles 4-3 Thursday night.

The 1904 Washington Senators and the 1920 Detroit Tigers lost 13 games from the start of the season and the 1968 Chicago White Sox lost 10. Four other teams have opened with nine consecutive losses.

The Pirates return to action on Saturday at 6 p.m., hosting CAA rival Richmond in a doubleheader. The two teams will also meet in a 1 p.m. single game on Sunday, closing out the league year for both teams.

"I like the way we battled back tonight against a good pitcher like (Bret) Saberhagen," Robinson said. "It was a good effort and hopefully we'll be able to build on this."

Robinson is 0-3 since taking over for Cal Ripken on Tuesday.

Elsewhere in the American League, it was New York 7, Toronto 3; Boston 2, Milwaukee 0; Texas 2, Detroit 1; Cleveland 3, Minnesota 1; and Oakland 5, Seattle 4. Chicago at California was postponed by rain.

After blowing a 3-0 lead, the Royals scored the winning run after starter Mike Boddicker had retired 18 consecutive batters. Eisenreich snapped that string with a single and then White hit a fly to left that Stone misplayed.

"I tried to block it with my body," Stone said. "I saw it come off the bat, but I lost it at the last second."

Saberhagen, 1-1, allowed three runs and seven hits over eight innings. Bud Black got two outs in the bottom of the ninth and Gene Garber got the final out for his second save.

In the nine losses, the Orioles have been outscored 62-14 and have scored only five runs in their last 32 innings.

Boddicker, 0-3, allowed five hits in his first complete game of the season. He struck out 10, walked none and was called for two balks.

"They're showing signs of busting out of this thing," Kansas City manager John Wathan said of the Orioles.

"They are going score some runs. They've got a good-hitting ball club. We're fortunate to get out of here with three wins."

Yankees 7, Blue Jays 3

Dave Winfield drove in four runs and rookie Al Leiter struck out 11 over eight innings as New York took three of four at Toronto and improved to 8-1, the club's best start ever.

Leiter, 2-0, allowed four hits and got relief help from Cecilio Guante.

With the Yankees leading 4-3 in the fifth, Winfield hit a two-run homer off Jimmy Key, 2-1. Rickey Henderson, who was 10-for-19 in the series, also homered.

Red Sox 2, Brewers 0

Roger Clemens pitched a six-hitter and struck out 13 as Boston sent visiting Milwaukee to its sixth straight defeat.

Clemens, 2-0, beat Bill Wegman, 0-2, as Boston swept a three-game series and improved its record to 6-3, going three games over .500 for the first time since winning the pennant in 1986.

Ellis Burks and Wade Boggs had run-scoring singles in the third inning for the Red Sox.

Rangers 2, Tigers 1

Jose Guzman combined with Mitch Williams on a four-hitter as Texas beat Jack Morris at Tiger Stadium.

Guzman, 1-1, allowed all four Detroit hits, struck out four and didn't walk a batter in eight innings.

The Rangers scored two runs in the second inning on Ruben Sierra's RBI double and Pete O'Brien's run-scoring single. O'Brien has hit in eight straight games.

Morris, 2-1, struck out 10 but hurt himself with nine walks. Morris also was called for a balk, his fourth of the season.

Indians 3, Twins 1

Tom Candiotti pitched his second straight complete game and Willie Upshaw scored twice as Cleveland beat visiting Minnesota for its eighth victory in 10 games. It's the Indians' best start since they went 10-0 in 1966.

Candiotti, 2-0, allowed eight hits, walked three and struck out six. The complete game was the Indians' fifth, and lowered their ERA to 2.02.

With the score tied 1-1 in the sixth, Upshaw blooped a single to center, stole second, took third on a ground-out, and scored on Joe Carter's single. Carter stole second and cored on Mel Hall's single.

Athletics 5, Mariners 4

Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire hit consecutive home runs in the eighth inning as Oakland beat Seattle at the Kingdome.

Starter Mark Langston held the Athletics hitless over five innings, and allowed two hits in seven, before yielding to reliever Jerry Reed, 1-1.

Hot Players Leading Hot Teams

By The Associated Press
The two hottest teams in the National League have, not surprisingly, the two hottest players.
Barry Bonds and Glenn Davis are off to torrid starts, and their blistering bats have lifted the Pittsburgh Pirates and Houston Astros to the top of their divisions.

Bonds had two homers, including one leading off the game, the seventh straight game he has hit safely in his first at-bat, as the Pirates beat Philadelphia 4-2. Pittsburgh completed a three-game sweep of the Phillies and is 6-2 overall.
Davis drove in five runs with a three-run homer and a pair of singles, leading the Astros to a 9-3 victory over Cincinnati. Houston is 7-1 and Davis leads the NL with five home runs and 15 runs batted in.

Also on Thursday, it was New York 1, Montreal 0, and San Diego 2, Los Angeles 0.
Pirates 4, Phillies 2
The Pirates won 27 of their last 38

games in 1987. And they've continued to win this year. Junior Ortiz also hit a homer and drove in the tie-breaking run with a bases-loaded walk in the third inning.
Bonds gave the Pirates an insurance run in the seventh with his second homer, the third multiple-homer game of his career. Bonds is batting .411 — he usually is a slow starter — and his last nine hits have been for extra bases.

"Have I ever had a streak like this? I haven't been up here long enough to do that," said Bonds, who has less than two full years of major league experience. "I haven't thought too much about it because it's a long time between now and October. I just want to stay quiet, keep doing my job and keep my attitude right."

All of the Pirates apparently have the right attitude.

"I don't preach getting off to a good start because it's such a long season, but there's always that suspense early in the season about what's going to happen," Pirates manager Jim Leyland said. "Anytime you win you feel fortunate, no matter what time of the year it is. Right now we're just trying to keep everything in perspective and keep it on a daily basis."

Bob Walk allowed four hits and two runs in six innings before Jeff Robinson worked the final three innings for his third save.

Astros 9, Reds 3

Davis' three-run homer in the first inning started Houston's rout and he also drove in runs with singles in the fourth and seventh innings. He is batting .375 and equaled a career high with his five runs batted in.

"I feel the same way as I did in spring," Davis said. "I just feel more patient at the plate and things are starting to fall for me."

Davis certainly impressed Reds manager Pete Rose.

"You could have brought back Cy Young and he still would have gotten a home run," Rose said. "He's on a lot of pitches. He's going good. He won't go like this all year, but he's hot now and he's knocking in a lot of runs and that's what good hitters do."

Danny Darwin, taking the place of injured Joaquin Andujar in the rotation, allowed three runs in 8 1-3 innings. Until Cincinnati scored in the eighth, Astros pitchers had gone 24 innings without allowing a run.

Mets 1, Expos 0

Both teams got only two hits, but one was Len Dykstra's leadoff homer in the sixth inning off Dennis Martinez. Bob Ojeda made the run stand up.

The shutout was the second straight by New York over Montreal and Ojeda beat the Expos for the second time in as many starts this season.

Ojeda allowed a one-out double to Andres Galarraga in the second inning, then retired 18 straight before Mike Fitzgerald singled in the eighth.

Dykstra, who singled with one out in the third for the Mets' other hit, homered on the first pitch in the sixth from Martinez, who was 4-0 against New York last year.

Ojeda, who underwent elbow surgery last May 23, pitched his first shutout since June 30, 1986.

"At the time of the operation, I thought my career might be over," said the 30-year old left-hander. "This game was important to me. But I still have some doubts about my elbow. Even though I was able to come back and pitch last season, I was still concerned."

"Maybe after I pitch all this season, I won't have any more doubts. Right now I'm totally drained, both physically and emotionally, and I can't appreciate what I just did."

Padres 2, Dodgers 0

Jimmy Jones, Mark Davis and Lance McCullers combined on the shutout. Jones, 1-1, won his fourth game in as many lifetime appearances against Los Angeles and lowered his lifetime ERA against the Dodgers to 0.63.

Davis got the last out in the seventh inning, and McCullers worked two scoreless innings, allowing one hit and striking out four for his second save.

Fernando Valenzuela yielded eight hits and four walks and struck out three as he lost to San Diego.

Valkyries Bounce Back To Take Win

WASHINGTON — D.H. Conley's girls' bounced back from a conference opening loss to take an 11-1 softball victory over Washington Thursday.

The Valkyries, now 1-1 in Coastal Conference action, had little trouble with the Lady Pam Pack, giving up the lone run in the bottom of the first.

By then, however, the Valkyries had already enough to win the game, having scored twice in the top of the first.

Tracy Sumrell reached on a fielder's choice and Lori Powell followed with a two-run homer.

Conley added three in the second, then came up with two more in the third, the latter two on a homer by Tabitha Daughton. Conley picked up four more in the fourth to account for the 11-run total.

Powell led the Conley hitting with three while Daughton, Sumrell and Eileen Evans each had two. No one had more than one hit for Washington.

Conley is now 7-3 overall and travels to North Lenoir today.

FARMVILLE — North Pitt remained unbeaten in the Eastern

Plains Conference softball race with a 6-5 victory over Farmville Central Thursday.

Farmville took the initial lead in the second inning scoring four times. M. Streeter singled and A. Williams got a hit. Gloria Brown walked and M. Jarman reached on an error that allowed all three runs to score. T. Little then sacrificed Jarman over.

North Pitt came back with a run in the third and added two more in the fifth. Farmville scored one in the bottom of the fifth to lead 5-3. But North Pitt scored again in the sixth to close it to 5-4.

Then, in the seventh, North Pitt added two more to take the win. Keisha Pilgreen walked and Tonya Clemons singled. Maggie Blount reached on an error that scored Pilgreen. Eva Harris grounded out, scoring Clemons with the winning run.

No one had more than one hit for the Pant-Hers, while K. Carter, D. Hudson and S. Stancil each had three for Farmville.

North Pitt is now 3-3 overall and 2-0 in the Eastern Plains. Farmville falls to 0-8 overall and 0-2 in the league.

EDENTON — Williamston High School rallied from a 2-0 deficit to take a 6-2 softball victory over Edenton in Northeastern Conference play on Thursday.

Prince William And Kinston Resume Their Fighting Ways

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Prince William and Kinston celebrated their nine-month truce since their last fight by staging a re-enactment.

Multiple fights broke out Thursday night in Prince William's 9-1 opening game victory before the Indians rebounded to win the second game, 7-2. The league office is expected to review details of the incident.

Holding a 7-0 lead in the opener, Prince William first baseman Kevin Maas was caught stealing in the fifth inning. In the sixth against Kinston reliever Steven Bird, the Yankees added to their lead after center fielder Bernie Williams singled, stole second and scored on a single by Gerald Williams.

Next up came Maas, who, after hitting a three-run homer in the first, was hit by a pitch from Indians starter and loser Mark Gilles in the second inning.

Bird's first two offerings to Maas were high and tight wild pitches with the second one going behind him. After Bird's third pitch hit Maas on the left elbow, he charged the mound and the brawl followed.

"Stealing the time before when I was on base and we were up 7-0 — I don't know whether that was a good move or not," admitted Maas. "But it's all part of the game."

Maas said he was beamed last season playing for Fort Lauderdale of the Florida State League in a similar situation.

"If they hadn't thrown at me, nothing would have happened," Maas said. "I had to go out there."

Kinston manager Glenn Adams was automatically ejected because he had been warned to keep his bench in the dugout. In addition, the Indians' Rob Swain — who was triple-teamed on the ground by Prince William players at one point — was tossed out along with Bird, Maas and Gerald Williams.

"I think their manager should have a little more class than to have them stealing when they're up by that many runs," said Bird, who admitted that he was more than perturbed about the stolen bases.

In Thursday night's melee, there were no injuries.

Gore Pins Hopes For Survival On N.Y. Primary

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — For Democrat Albert Gore Jr., Tuesday's New York presidential primary culminates six weeks of frustration since his breakthrough in the South and may mark the end of his bid for the presidential nomination.

The Tennessee senator is pinning his hopes on being able to distinguish himself in the remaining debates before New York voters and in his late television exposure. But so far, nothing seems to have worked for him in this critical state, and the air of desperation is unmistakable as Gore lashes at rival Michael Dukakis before sometimes unresponsive audiences.

"I've listened to Gore; I like him," said Ed Silverstein, a Westchester County Democrat who heard Gore and Dukakis speak at a Wednesday night dinner in Rye Brook. "I think he's a brilliant man, but he doesn't seem real strong, as a candidate."

The plight of Gore's situation was clear in polls of New York voters released Thursday by the Marist Institute, CBS, and ABC-The Washington Post.

All three showed the Tennessee senator still stuck in single digits far behind Dukakis and Jesse Jackson in the three-man race. His support remains essentially unchanged after spending half of a $1 million budget on the New York campaign, aided by prominent New York television consultant David Garth.

Gore campaign aides, including manager Fred Martin, contend the campaign will continue after New York no matter what.

But one adviser, speaking on condition he not be named, said of the prospect of Gore staying in the race despite finishing a distant third here: "Can he? Sure. Should he? No."

Gore managed to raise $330,000 in one evening this week, at a reception with rich city Democrats at a fashionable Manhattan hotel. Yet Gore has a debt of $1.6 million so far, and appears to be putting all he can raise into television ads. He needs a 20 percent primary showing to win a restoration of his eligibility for most future federal campaign matching money.

Gore jump-started his campaign and became a serious contender with his victories in six Southern states on Super Tuesday six weeks ago. But rather than gaining momentum with his impressive showing, Gore's candidacy immediately stalled as the campaign moved into the North. His best showing since then has been 17 percent of the vote in Wisconsin, and in four other states he failed to do better than 8 percent.

Trying to catch up in the few days left to him, Gore launched a vigorous attack on what his campaign regards as Dukakis' weakest flank — his lack of experience in foreign policy. He accused the Massachusetts governor of a revealing blunder in answering a newspaper's question on the scenario for use of America's nuclear arsenal, triggering a tense exchange of charges between the campaigns.

Senate May Delay Vote On Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders say the chamber is not in any hurry to vote on the U.S.-Soviet treaty eliminating medium-range nuclear weapons, raising the possibility the pact may not be ratified before President Reagan visits Moscow six weeks from now.

"I'm not driven by a calendar deadline. I want first, last and always to have a good treaty," Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., told reporters Thursday.

The Reagan administration has pushed for a ratification vote before Reagan's May 29-June 2 meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, but Byrd said there is a possible "hole in the treaty" that first has to be filled.

That question revolves around whether the treaty bans so-called "futuristic" weapons, using exotic technologies such as lasers, plasma, or ion beams.

Sen. John Warner of Virginia, ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee, said the treaty is not likely to come to the Senate floor before early May, after the chamber returns from a week-long recess.

When the Senate finally votes, ratification is probable, according to both Byrd and Republican leaders. Ratification requires a vote of 67 of the 100 senators, and both parties say the treaty will likely be supported by 88 to 90 senators.

The Armed Services Committee has been meeting behind closed doors with administration officials, including chief treaty negotiator Maynard Glitman, to try to resolve the issue of which technologies are banned.

The treaty doesn't mention futuristic weapons, but Glitman and administration officials have said the Soviet Union understands the pact bars the possession or flight testing of all medium-range weapons, no matter how they are armed or operated.

The Armed Services panel has already endorsed the pact, but it is planning to issue another report on the "futuristic" weapons issue, and Byrd said no floor action is likely before that report is done.

Two former top Reagan administration officials said in letters released Thursday they don't believe the treaty bans futuristic weapons.

The pair, former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and former Arms Control and Disarmament Agency Director Kenneth Adelman, outlined their views in letters to the Armed Services Committee.

Weinberger wrote, "I can simply state that there was no understanding of any kind that I knew about that the treaty covered anything related to these so-called futuristic weapons."

"Certainly, there was no discussion or evaluation of the military sufficiency questions involved in banning futuristic weaponry that I ever participated in, and I never heard any others having such a discussion," said Weinberger.

Recognition Sought For Washington Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tourists at Philadelphia's Independence National Historical Park aren't getting the whole story about the birth of the nation, says a group fighting for U.S. recognition of a burial ground for George Washington's army.

The 2,000 members of the underground army were buried more than 210 years ago in what is now Washington Square, and they should be honored by making the square a national park, a Senate energy and lands subcommittee was told Thursday.

Washington Square receives scant tourist attention compared to adjacent Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell.

"How pathetic that these greatest of patriots were buried without even a headstone to mark their contribution," Philadelphia attorney Malcolm Lazin said. "The fact that Washington Square is not a part of our National Park Service is a disgrace to their memory and an embarrassment to all who pride themselves on being an American."

In 1777, John Adams, later the second president, wrote in a letter to his wife, "I never in my whole life was affected with such melancholy" as at the sight of the graves and trenches. Adams wrote he had been told that "upwards of 2,000 soldiers" were buried at Potter's Field, later renamed Washington Square.

Only in 1957 was the flame of the tomb of the Unknown Revolutionary War Soldier placed at the square.

Now, it is time that "those who fought and died and are buried in unmarked mass graves in Washington Square should be honored and celebrated by the United States," said William E. W. Gowen of the Pennsylvania Society of the Sons of the Revolution.

Striking Writers Grant Exemptions To Crews For Film, TV Companies

By JAY SHARBUTT
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

NEW YORK — Striking TV and movie writers gave a film company and CBS's "The New Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" permission to call their writers back to work, but rejected similar requests by other companies, a spokesman said Thursday.

Writers Guild of America spokesman Martin Waldman also said that despite these two exceptions, the guild's strike, now in its sixth week, is continuing against NBC, CBS, ABC and film and TV production companies.

Meanwhile, board members of the commercial actors' unions voted resoundingly to end a strike that virtually halted new commercial productions for more than three weeks, officials announced in Los Angeles Thursday.

Negotiators for the 9,000-member Writers Guild, the networks and the approximately 200 companies represented by the Alliance of Motion and Television Producers are to resume negotiations Monday with a federal mediator in Los Angeles.

It will be their first bargaining session since March 10. Key issues in the dispute include residual payments for both network and syndicated programs, foreign residuals for telecast of programs and creative rights.

Guild recommendations to let writers on the Smothers Brothers' show and Ivan Reitman Productions, which wants to make a film called "Twins," were approved by guild members at meetings Wednesday in Los Angeles and here Thursday night.

Guild officials recommended approval because of what they called "legal considerations unique to these companies," Waldman said, declining to elaborate.

But guild members, acting on their leaders' recommendations, "overwhelmingly" rejected requests by other entertainment companies for "interim agreements and waivers" that would let their writers return to work, Waldman said.

He declined to say how many companies were involved. In urging rejection with what it called a "sense of the membership vote," the guild said that it had concluded that approval of their requests would hurt the organization.

It said in a statement that to let a

Liza Joins 'Rat Pack'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The "Rat Pack" tour has become "The Ultimate Event," as Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr. joined forces with Liza Minnelli for an 18-concert, 12-city U.S. tour.

Sinatra and Davis had begun a recent singing tour with rat-pack buddy Dean Martin, but Martin had to drop out after six concerts when an old kidney problem flared up.

"We miss Dean and we love him — he's like a brother to me and Sam," Sinatra said Thursday. "Liza is the greatest female performer of our time. She is a great lady and it is always a privilege to share a stage with her."

The tour, dubbed "The Ultimate Event," will debut at Houston's Summit Arena on Sept. 17 and end at the Chicago Theater on Oct. 16, said Susan Reynolds, vice president of entertainment, marketing and publicity for Burson-Marsteller.

"small number" of members return to work while the walkout continued "could lead to divisiveness and the destruction of morale among members..."

The guild also said that it "would not be in the interest of the membership to have different contract starting times."

The guild last struck for two weeks in 1985. Its current walkout has affected film and TV production and forced such entertainment programs as NBC's "Saturday Night Live," and nightly NBC programs such as "Late Night With David Letterman," and Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show" into re-runs.

Network and local news programs are not affected.

Street-Gang Movie Stirs Protest

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The movie "Colors" opens today in 425 theaters across the country amid protests by the Guardian Angels and others who claim the street-gang drama will incite violence.

But Dennis Hopper, the film's director, called the protesters "irresponsible" and said they were encouraging "blood to flow in the streets."

The movie stars Sean Penn and Robert Duvall as gang-fighting Los Angeles policemen. The movie, which used active Los Angeles-area gang members as extras and advisers, portrays the world of the Crips and the Bloods, rival gangs, who use the colors blue and red, respectively, to distinguish themselves.

Some theaters planned to increase security today as the film opened.

In Chicago, police Supt. LeRoy Martin said extra police might be assigned to patrol near theaters where "Colors" is playing. He said the film might send a message that there is "something clever and hip about being a gang member."

Six Guardian Angels including Curtis Sliwa, the founder of the volunteer crime-fighting group, were arrested Thursday on charges of disorderly conduct when they tried to enter the New York City office of the film's distributor, Orion Pictures.

"The movie ... glorifies street crack youth gangs," Sliwa declared during a rally in front of the midtown Manhattan building. The group had announced plans to "take over" the office.

Sliwa said the film provides a virtual "how-to" of street violence, including the killing of a police officer, and fosters negative stereotypes by depicting minority youths as violent toughs.

But Hopper said the protesters "are whipping up the probability and the possibility" of violence. "The people who are saying blood is going to flow in the streets are asking for blood to flow in the streets."

Charles O. Glenn, executive vice president of Orion Pictures, said the movie is a statement of conscience and could "shock" children into avoiding drugs and violence.

"If there is anything this picture does not do — it does not glorify gangs or gang violence," Glenn said. "We feel that 'Colors' is an honest and socially responsible portrayal of a problem that obviously exists in Los Angeles and in the streets of every other American city."

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY April 16

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): If you look at your activities from a new point of view, you will increase your chances for advancement. Make it a point to stay at home tonight.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Be sure you don't try to force your ideas and opinions on anyone today, or you will greatly regret it. Get plenty of rest tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Stop worrying over a private matter that is really not worth so much concern. It may not be wise to completely trust your judgment.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Steer clear of an acquaintance who is full of ego — and little else. Get involved in a civic affair, and gain much greater prestige.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): If you take a little trip today, make sure it is to a place where you can do something of a constructive nature. Show appreciation for your friends.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Avoid a silly, time-wasting person who wants to lead you in the wrong direction. Instead, spend your time and money carefully today.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Listen to the suggestions of a progressive friend, as these could prove invaluable to you later. Show more affection for the one you love.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): If you have a little at home project which needs to be done, make sure you have all the correct tools and information before starting.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Get together with a fun-loving friend, and enjoy a pleasant recreation together. Don't let a co-worker get you involved in a dull chore.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): If you have some ideas to make your home life more charming and harmonious, get your family's opinion before using them.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): This is a good time to catch up on correspondence with friends from a long distance away. Don't waste one moment of this great day.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Now is the time to handle any business or financial problems, and work on increasing your income. Don't listen to the advice of a neighbor.

The bidding:
South West North East
3 NT Pass 7 NT Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♥
It is surprising how you can promote tricks. This swindle occurred in a tournament some years ago.

North's leap to the grand slam was, to say the least, ambitious. South's opening bid showed 25-27 points, so the combined count might have been as low as 34. Not even North's five-card suit might have been enough to compensate for that, especially since the pair might have been missing an ace.

East-West were not doing all that well in the event, and West decided that it was time to roil the waters a little. So he selected as his opening lead the card nearest his thumb, and that turned out to be the jack of hearts. It proved to be a most fortuitous opening.

Outside of the heart suit, declarer had nine fast tricks—three spades, five diamonds and a club. It seemed that the opening lead guaranteed four heart tricks, for under normal circumstances the lead of the jack indicates possession of the ten. Therefore, declarer would not need the club finesse. South won the first trick with the king, cashed the queen and then led the eight. When West produced a low heart, declarer confidently finessed the nine. East was rather surprised to find that he had collected the setting trick.

Left to his own devices, declarer would have coasted home. He would first have tried for a 3-3 heart break, keeping the club finesse in reserve in case he amassed only three heart tricks. As the cards lie, both those chances come home, so declarer could roll up 16 tricks if that were permissible.

Senate Wants Sanctions On Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators voted overwhelmingly to impose aid sanctions on Mexico for its shortcomings in the war on drugs, ignoring warnings that the move would damage relations with the United States' third-largest trading partner.

"This may be just the signal Mexico needs to wake up before it is too late," said Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., a leader of the effort to slap penalties on drug-producing and transit countries that fall short in their enforcement efforts.

But in Mexico City, the Foreign Ministry released a statement condemning the Senate vote as "foreign interference."

In voting 63-27 Thursday for the sanctions, the Senate ignored vehement Mexican objections and a plea from President Reagan, who had certified six weeks ago that the government there was "fully cooperating" with the U.S. war on drugs and should receive all its normal U.S. aid and trade benefits.

Reagan, in a letter to Senate leaders, warned that the impact of the decertification bill "would almost certainly be an increase in the flow of drugs to the United States" because it would insult Mexico and make the government less inclined to cooperate.

In separate action, the Senate voted 54-40 not to impose similar sanctions on the Bahamas, and approved a resolution adding Haiti to the list of international drug producing and shipment points that are subject to close scrutiny and possible aid sanctions if their drug enforcement programs don't measure up.

Legislation to slap aid sanctions on Mexico and four other Latin American countries also is pending in the House, which would have to approve the Mexico resolution before it could become law. Even supporters of the bill conceded the measure has little likelihood of clearing all the hurdles, but said the symbolic value of the Senate vote was enough.

"It's all rather academic," said Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., the bill's primary sponsor. "But by adopting this resolution, we will be sending a message to the government of Mexico."

The Mexican government said the United States has no business sending that kind of a message.

"No power can claim for itself the right to certify the conduct of other societies or governments. No one has the right to impose from abroad conduct, ideas, political or economic systems on other peoples," the Foreign Ministry statement said.

However, Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said close to 40 percent of the cocaine that enters the United States comes through Mexico, making the 1,900-mile border between the two countries the No. 1 entry point for narcotics.

"We've got to take off the gloves," he said.

Court Overturns Surgeon's Conviction

WASHINGTON (AP) — A military appeals court said it overturned the conviction of a Navy heart surgeon on charges he killed three patients through surgical negligence because "the evidence was simply not sufficient."

The decision in the case of Dr. Donald M. Billig was released Thursday by the U.S. Navy-Marine Corps Court of Military Review. Billig, held behind bars at the Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, military prison since early 1986, was ordered released.

The court's 20-page opinion said prosecutors had failed to establish Billig's guilt "beyond a reasonable doubt."

The appeals court said the prosecutors at Billig's 1986 court martial "lost sight of the fact that coronary artery bypass surgery is an inherently risky business."

The prosecutors argued that Billig used questionable surgical techniques, the court said, but never really produced the evidence or testimony to demonstrate that Billig's work in the operating room was so out of line as to constitute criminal conduct.

"We shall set aside all findings of guilty based on this factual insufficiency of the evidence," the court said.

The Navy has 20 days to file a formal motion with the appeals court asking it to reconsider the matter. The service said Thursday it had made no decision yet on pursuing an appeal.

Billig, 57, was the former chief heart surgeon at the Navy's flagship Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital, and held the military rank of commander.

He was convicted in early 1986 of two counts of involuntary manslaughter and one count of negligent homicide in the deaths of three patients. He also was convicted on 18 of 24 counts of dereliction of duty stemming from other operations. He was sentenced on March 3, 1986, to four years in prison. Last summer, he was rebuffed in his first bid for parole.
