Congress Backs U.S. Action Against Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the Senate Armed Services Committee said today that while they support President Reagan's strikes against Iranian targets in the Persian Gulf, the United States should reassess its go-it-alone policy on protecting the vital sea lanes.

"This is an action that was taken that was justified, and, I think, measured," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the committee's chairman. "But I think we've got to make sure that we don't convert this into a U.S.-Iranian war."

Sen. John Warner of Virginia, the committee's ranking Republican, said "we'd like to see a more coordinated participation by our allies" in the gulf. "Our allies are there, but thus far they have declined efforts by our nation to suggest that we work at a more coordinated fashion."

Nunn and Warner were interviewed on NBC-TV's "Today" show as Reagan prepared to meet today with Republican congressional leaders at the White House.

Both Democrats and Republicans in Congress united Monday behind Reagan's warning that Iran will "pay a price" if it persists in trying to trade blows with a militarily superior force of American warships and aircraft in the Persian Gulf.

Nunn said today that "we need to re-examine our policy of protecting only 11 (Kuwaiti) ships. Many people don't realize it, but if a British ship or a French ship is attacked by an Iraqi aircraft right in the sight of our own American ship, we don't do anything. That has given the perception that we have lined up with the Iraqis."

"We've got to correct that perception and we've got to re-examine our policy," Nunn said. But the senator also said that "we need to get our allies ... to protect certain zones."

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., appearing on ABC's "Good Morning America," said "I think we don't want to unilaterally be there, the policemen over there."

Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-N.Y., a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said on the same program that "we're not really protecting international shipping. What we're protecting is ships flying the American flag. Many of the criticisms that we had when this policy began is that we began it unilaterally without getting international cooperation."

Meanwhile, U.S. Navy ships and aircraft pressed their search for a Marine Cobra helicopter missing in the gulf. The attack helicopter, on a reconnaissance mission with two crewmen on board, had been due to land on the USS Wainwright by mid-afternoon Monday, Washington time.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said that Iranian warships had brought down a U.S. helicopter.

Indictments Issued In White's Death

A Pitt County grand jury Monday returned indictments of first-degree murder against two people arrested in connection with the March 19 murder of Bobby Charles White.

White's wife, Sandra Faye Had-dock White, 45, of Route 2, Box 120, Grimesland, and James Alton Mobley, 21, of Lot 18, Country Estates, Greenville, were indicted on charges of first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder. Mrs. White was also indicted on a third charge of solicitation to commit murder.

No bill of indictment was sent to the grand jury for James Earl Manning, 23, of Route 2, Box 174, Grimesland, who also was charged with conspiracy to commit murder. All three are held without bond.

Mobley and Mrs. White are expected to be arraigned in early May. First-degree murder is punishable by death or life imprisonment. Conspiracy to commit murder is a felony punishable by 10 years in prison, a fine, or both.

Pitt County investigator Larry Parker testified before the grand jury, according to the bill of indictment, which alleges Mrs. White and Mobley murdered White "willfully" and with "malice."

From January through March 19, Mrs. White and Mobley "did" with common design and set purpose conspire ... scheme" and "plan" to murder White, according to the conspiracy indictment. The charges include Manning as a co-conspirator.

The third indictment against White states she solicited Michael Ray Rogers to commit the murder. The charge does not mean Rogers accepted the offer, only that Mrs. White made it, officers said.

Florida Tornado Kills Four

MADISON, Fla. (AP) — A tornado blasted through this North Florida town before dawn today, destroying homes and a library, blowing off rooftops, flipping cars and leaving four people dead and 12 injured, officials said.

The tornado touched down at 4:30 a.m. just west of Madison, about 50 miles east of Tallahassee, and cut a 12-mile swath of destruction, authorities said.

"There was this huge roar and then I heard a tree crack out there and thought we were all gone," said Marie Prince, a Madison County sheriff's dispatcher. The tornado passed only four blocks from the her office.

At least four people were killed north of town and at least a dozen people with injuries were at Madison Memorial Hospital, said Sheriff Joe Peavy.

A house-to-house search found no more bodies and Peavy said the death and injury count will probably stand. A man and a baby had to be freed from separate homes where they were trapped, he added.

"I've been here 32 years and I've never seen anything like this," said

Peavy. "This is the first tornado that has hit Madison that I can recall."

Rescue units from adjoining counties were helping out, along with state law enforcement and forestry officials. State prisoners were also on their way to help with the cleanup, Peavy said. He had no estimate of the damage.

The tornado was part of a storm system that struck across the Southeast with high winds and hail. Trees, roofs and mobile homes were damaged, and at least three other injuries were reported.

Pitt's College Corps Grows Larger

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Even with the increasing costs of secondary education in North Carolina, state universities and community colleges continue to thrive through increasing enrollment, according to figures supplied by the administration and schools in the university and community college system.

Enrollment in the 16 universities increased from 88,067 in 1972 to 132,140, in 1987. Enrollment in the 58 community colleges enrollment increased from 488,604 in 1976-77 to 653,822 in 1985-86.

Pitt County students were a factor in increasing enrollment as more of them are deciding to go to college.

This is the third of a three-part series evaluating financial aid, education costs and enrollment at North Carolina's colleges.

Pitt County seniors reporting their intentions after high school in 1975 and 1986 show an increase in both blacks and whites going to college. More students also are going into the military instead of directly entering the workforce.

More blacks were going into the military in 1986 than in 1975, but less were going directly into the workforce, while white students were entering the military at about the same percentage rate, but less were going directly into the workforce.

In 1975, 1,168 Pitt County seniors reported their intentions, according to the Statistical Profiles of North Carolina Public Schools, published by the state Department of Education.

About 51 percent of black students said they intended to enroll in some type of institution, including in-state, out-of-state, public, private, technical, community, four-year or two-year. About 69 percent of white students had the same plans. State percentages were 50 percent and 59 percent, respectively.

Twelve percent of black students intended to enter the military, while 3 percent of whites had the same plans.

Twenty-nine percent of black students intended to immediately join the work force, while 21 percent of white students had the same intentions.

In 1986, 951 seniors listed their intentions after high school graduation, and 57 percent of blacks said they intended to enroll in an institution, compared to 80 percent of the white students. State percentages were 53 percent and 66 percent, respectively.

Nineteen percent of the black students said they intended to enter the military, compared to 3 percent of whites with the same intentions.

Sixteen percent of the black students said they intended to immediately enter the workforce, compared to 13 percent of whites with the same intentions.

The rate of admissions over the university system was declining at one point, said Dr. Nathan Sims, vice president of student services and special programs in the University of North Carolina system. "The peak year was in 1983," and the system saw a decline until the 1986-87 academic year. "We can't explain that," he said of the decline.

Currently, enrollment in state universities is increasing, but that is not typical nationwide, Sims said. The state "pulls out-of-state students" but there is an 18 percent cap that keeps the number of those coming into the state for college education at a minimum, he said.

Cutting The Cost Of College

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Last August Jeanne Katrobas was enrolled at East Carolina University, with plans to start her freshman year in late August. One August day, a light bulb came on inside her head:

"If I went to Pitt Community College instead of ECU and got a nursing degree, in a year and nine months I'd have the earning power to get whatever future college degrees I'd like to, I'd free my parents from most of the expense of sending me to college, and I could be doing something I know I'd love — nursing," she said to herself.

A graduate of D.H. Conley High School in 1986 who had participated in the county schools' Honors Med

Program and in such honors courses as advanced chemistry and advanced biology, she said knew she had to act fast. She went to Pitt Community, talked to counselors and faculty of the nursing program, took the required entrance tests, enrolled herself, and requested a refund on her already-paid fees at ECU.

Her father, Bill Katrobas, was dismayed at first, she said, but he and her mother, Shirley Katrobas, let her know they would support her in whatever decision she made. Had she gone to ECU, she had planned to be a commuter from the family home in Black Jack and she continued with her plan to live at home.

"I've been delighted with my decision," Ms. Katrobas said. "It's been a lot less expensive for my parents sending me to Pitt Community instead of ECU and I love the nursing program and think it's an excellent one. It's very demanding, but also very interesting, and I love spending time at the hospital as well as in the classroom."

Earlier this school year she earned spending money as a tutor of other Pitt Community College students. Now she's clerking at the Winn-Dixie Store at Carolina East Center in order to afford a car payment.

She's been happy to discover that pursuing the PCC nursing degree will increase her earning power earlier than she had thought. Come August,

Board OKs Stokes School Plan

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education has agreed on attendance line and long-range plan recommendations that include building a new kindergarten through fifth-grade school in the Stokes area and using Third Street School for other than a teaching site.

During its workshop session Monday night before a capacity crowd in the Commissioners' Auditorium of the Pitt County Office Building, the board also agreed to improve the racial balance at Wintergreen School, to pilot a satellite learning system at Ayden-Grifton High School, to keep the fourth grade at Ayden Elementary School and to keep kindergarten through fifth grade at Belvoir, Pactolus and Stokes schools.

The board will officially vote on the recommendations during its regular monthly meeting in May.

The new Stokes School should relieve Belvoir of some students as the Belvoir attendance area continues to grow, the board said. But, attendance lines cannot be determined until a site has been identified.

As Third Street School is closed to students in the 1990-91 school year, students in the current Third Street attendance area will attend Eastern, Falkland and Wahl-Coates schools.

Board members held an extended discussion about some of the Third Street students, those in the Moyewood subdivision, moving out of the J.H. Rose attendance area into the Farmville Central attendance area for kindergarten through fifth grades and then moving back into the Rose area for the remaining of their education.

Superintendent Eddie West said this option was most feasible for the criteria established by the board for racial balancing and limiting the time spent on the bus. Integrating the students into the Rose attendance area for kindergarten through fifth grade would cause a greater imbalance in some schools, he said. Also, the Moyewood neighborhood would have to be divided among the Rose schools.

Students in and neighboring Hopkins Park will attend Wintergreen School instead of South Greenville to improve the racial balance from 77 percent white to 23 percent black to 67 percent white and 33 percent black. The reduction of students at South Greenville would make the racial balance there about 57 percent black and 43 percent white as opposed to the current balance of 64 percent black and 36 percent white.

A.G. Cox, instead of Greenville Middle, would gain the Hopkins Park

Robbery Arrests

Greenville police have arrested two Beaufort County men on armed robbery charges in connection with the theft of a wallet from a woman in a parking lot at The Plaza mall early Saturday night.

Detective J.E. Nichols identified the men Monday as Tyrone Hopkins, 21, of Washington, and Marvin Earl Smaw, 17, of Route 5, Washington.

Nichols said investigators are still looking for a third man believed to be involved in the incident.

Instruments Stolen

Investigators said eight thefts, including musical instruments from two schools and $1,355 worth of electronic items from a McClellan Street home, were reported to Greenville police Monday.

Officer S.C. Locke said a violin valued at $325 was taken from Greenville Middle School on Arlington Boulevard in an incident reported at 11:43 a.m., while a trumpet valued at $380 was taken from South Greenville School on Howell Street in an incident reported at 11:51 a.m.

Officer J.W. Isenhour said a television set, a stereo, a microwave oven and other items were taken from 1717 McClellan St. in a break-in reported at 3:20 p.m.

Officer J.G. Bridges said a wallet was taken from a vehicle parked in a lot at Kroger Sav-On on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 8:15 a.m., while a bicycle was taken from 14 Carriage House Apartments in an incident reported at 12:51 a.m.

Officer F.G. Pruitt said a bicycle was taken from 409 E. Third St. in an incident reported at 3:12 p.m.

Officer M.T. Scheid said a license plate was taken from a vehicle on North Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 7:40 p.m., while Officer J.W. Corbett said a pair of jeans was taken from JCPenney Co. at The Plaza mall in an incident reported at 7:42 p.m.

Player Draws 48-Hour Jail Term In Campus Assault

An East Carolina University football player was sentenced to 48 hours in the Pitt County jail, one year of probation and ordered to pay more than $200 in damages in Pitt County District Court Monday.

Judge Randy Hunter convicted Ernest Edward Logan II, 19, of Spring Lake of assault inflicting serious injury in connection with an incident on the ECU campus Feb. 27.

Richard Littiken, of 405-C Scott Residence Hall, told the court Logan assaulted him after a basketball game on the ECU campus.

Logan's attorney, John Smith, told the court Logan was provoked and it was a case of self-defense. "He had a reason to believe he was going to get hit, and as soon as he realized he wasn't going to get hit he stopped," Smith said.

Logan testified that he hit Littiken after he saw Littiken raise his hands, and that he struck him twice after Littiken rose to his feet after being knocked down.

Assistant District Attorney Rosa Shearin-White argued that the difference in size — Logan is 6 foot, 4 inches tall and weighs 245 pound, Littiken is 5 foot, 10 inches tall and weighs 165 pounds — shows that Logan was not just defending himself.

"I'm sure your honor can see through the veil the defense has tried to present to this court," said Ms. Shearin-White. "Mr. Logan had in his mind when he left the coliseum he was going to make contact with this young man."

Logan opened a cut on Littiken's forehead that required 10 stitches.

In sentencing Logan, Hunter said Littiken's behavior may have been improper, but it was not a case of provocation or self-defense. Hunter gave Logan a 90-day suspended sentence, one year of probation and ordered him to spend 48 hours in the county jail on weekends. Hunter also ordered Logan to pay medical bills of $207 and court costs and to not have any contact with Littiken for one year.

Computer Purchase Delayed

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

No action was taken by Pitt County commissioners Monday to award a contract to purchase a new computer mainframe, but the board did give approval to proposals from the Juvenile Task Force to spend $134,998 in community-based alternatives program grant funds on a half-dozen projects in the coming fiscal year.

Commissioners delayed action on awarding a contract to purchase an IBM mainframe computer to give additional time to study other ways to finance the purchase.

The bid price for the computer was $973,894, while the software bid was $288,045, for a total of more than $1.26 million.

County Manager Kramer Jackson told the board that the purchase could be financed over a three-year period, with an initial payment of $531,671 the first year and $521,626 each year for two additional years. The total cost of just over $1.57 million, Jackson said, would include $66,770 in interest (at 7.02 percent), as well as maintenance and other costs.

As recommended by the juvenile task force and approved by commissioners, present CBA programs to be funded in the coming fiscal year include the Juvenile Restitution Program, the Student Assistance Program, Project Care and Operation Sunshine.

New programs to receive a share of the $134,998 grant include the Pitt County Partners program — a type of "big brother" program — and an Active Parenting Program designed to develop parenting skills.

Commissioners, at the request of the Mid-East Regional Housing Authority, also voted to accept federal funds for 30 additional housing units under the Section 8 Housing Program.

Shad Festival Reports 1988 Attendance Up Threefold

The 18th annual Shad Festival, held Wednesday through Sunday throughout Grifton, was a complete success, according to a festival representative.

"Everything went smoothly and everybody had a good time," said Janet Haseley, festival publicity chairwoman.

According to Ms. Haseley, approximately three times as many people attended this year's parade as had attended in the past.

In addition to the parade, she said this year's festival featured games, rides, craft shows, a flea market, a clogging show, and various athletic competitions.

The winner of the 1988 Shad Queen Contest was Verna Johnson. First runner-up was Margaret Rogers while Wendy McKeel was second runner-up. Third runner-up was Tammy Gaskins, while Crystal Newby won the award for Miss Congeniality.

The first place band in Saturday's parade was Farmville Central High School, while Second Place Band was awarded to Kinston High School. Best Marching Unit was awarded to the North Lenoir High School band. Other parade awards were given to the Hillside Free Will Baptist Church for Best Fish Unit, Grifton Brownie Troop 36 for Best "Cast A Vote for Mo' Shad" Unit, while the Mayor's Award for the Overall Best Unit was given to Horton Engineering.

Barbara Hicks received an award for Best Brochure Cover Idea, while Tim Hathaway won the award for Best Brochure Cover Layout.

In the "Fishy Tales" contest, Lee Thompson won first place in the junior division fish story category. Junior tall-tale division winner was Christie Dowdy. Carl Horton was the winner of both the senior division Fish Story and Tall-Tale Story Contest.

In the Hickory Shad Fishing Contest, Al Newton of Jacksonville received the award for Largest Shad Caught By An Adult. The fish weighed 2 pounds, 12 ounces. The Largest Shad Caught By A Youth winner was John Maynard of Grifton, who caught a shad weighing 2 pounds, 7 ounces. In this year's Shad Festival Cane

Race, first place winners in both the open and racing division were Al Pittman of Lumberton and Mickey Turlington of Fayetteville.

In the coed division, first place was awarded to Al Pittman and Stephanie Brooks of Grifton.

In the Shad Festival Tennis Tournament, men's open division winners were John Swietzer and Richard Anderson, both of Tarboro. Men's open consolation winners were Joe Pezko of Greenville and Chris Heyde of Washington D.C.

In the men's age 35 and over division, winners were Tom Sayetta and Al King, both of Greenville. Consolation winners were Henry Rogers and Jerry Jones of Williamston.

Mixed doubles division winners were John and Kathy Swietzer of Tarboro. Mixed consolation winners were Glenn and Kathy Schrieber of New Bern.

In the Spring Shad Run, Phillip Rowan, 33, of Greenville was the winner of the 10 kilometer race with a time of 32:12.46; second place winner was Rob Powell of Greenville, with a time of 32:37.92 and third place went to Charlie Justice of Greenville with a time of 34:29.93.

Overall female winner in the 10 kilometer run was Lisa Bailey of Surf City, with a time of 43:07.49. Second was Cindy Wooten of Greenville with a time of 45:54.38, and Lynn Miess of Greenville finished third with a time of 48:57.51.

In the five kilometer race, first place went to Rob Powell, 29, of Greenville with a time of 15:41.36. Overall female winner was Mary Newman of Greenville with a time of 21:55.90.

In the one-mile race, overall male winner was Bill Kroll, 38, of Greenville with a time of 6:26.6. Overall female winner was Brook Odham, 9, of Castle Hayne with a time of 8:00.1.

Winner of the one-mile 12 and under division was Kevin Taylor, 10, of Ahoskie with a time of 6:54.5.

The oldest runner of the day was Ed Wolcott, 61, of Greenville, who ran in the five kilometer race. The youngest runner of the day was Eric Bramley, 6, of Greenville, who ran in the one mile race.

In the Shad Festival Golf Tournament, held at Indian Trails Country Club, a new course record was set Saturday by Jim Hillard of Greenville with a score of 65. Hillard's score was 6 under par breaking the previous course record of 67.

Championship Flight winners in the tournament were Hillard and Dick Decker.

First Flight winners were Tommy Riley of Greenville and Richard Riley of Hugo. Second Flight winners were Richard Taylor and Sam Cavanaugh, both of Wilson. Third Flight winners were Jim Deans and Charlie Wynne, both of Ayden. Fourth Flight winners were Gene Findersen and Donnie Cox of Jacksonville.

In the Shad Festival art contest, Dan Morgan of Greenville was the winner of the best in show adult division, while the best in show youth winner was Kimberly Wallace of Kinston.

In the 25-mile Shad Festival bicycle race there were 244 participants, compared to only 79 who participated last year.

In Category 1, 2 and 3, the winner was John Donnelly, second place went to George Adam, while third place went to Alan Pearce. All three are members of the Tidewater, Virginia McDonald's Team.

Category 4 first place was awarded to Scott Hetherington of Virginia.

In the Women's Sanctioned Division, Lucy Taylor of Virginia won first place. In the Veteran's Category, first place was awarded to Dwight Stephens of Raleigh. Junior Division first place was awarded to Brian Dykes of Virginia.

Trial Begins

District Attorney Thomas Haigwood was scheduled to begin presenting evidence for the state today in Pitt County Superior Court in the first-degree murder trial of Euston Ivon Sneed, 35, of Beaufort County.

The third and final alternate juror was seated at 5:15 p.m. Monday, ending five days of jury selection in which Haigwood and defense attorney Benjamin Alford questioned 52 jurors.

Twelve jurors and three alternates were seated, and the court excused 18 jurors for cause, the prosecution excused two and the defense excused 17. The jury is made up of nine women and three men and the alternates are two women and one man.

The jury of 12 was seated Friday at noon, and the prosecution and defense spent Friday afternoon and all day Monday interviewing alternates. The selection process was slowed Thursday afternoon when Judge Herbert O. Phillips III sequestered the seated jurors and Haigwood and Alford began interviewing jurors one at a time to prevent others from hearing prejudicial statements.

Sneed is charged with first-degree murder and armed robbery in connection with the 1983 New Year's Eve murder of Willie Hubert Tripp Sr., owner of Tripp's Bypass Service Center of Memorial Drive.

Haigwood read jurors a lengthy list of potential witnesses in the case that included local and state law enforcement officers and people who are serving or have served prison terms.

Scholarship Set Up

ECU News Bureau
Genevieve H. Gay of Northampton County, an alumna of East Carolina University, has established the Ballard S. and Genevieve H. Gay Scholarship Endowment Fund at ECU in memory of her late husband, Ballard S. Gay.

Starting with the 1989-90 academic year, the scholarship will provide up to $500 a year for the four years of the recipient's undergraduate career as long as all scholarship requirements are maintained by the recipient. The scholarship will be awarded to qualified incoming freshmen who are graduates of high schools in the 6th Judicial District with preference given to graduates from Northampton County.

Gay was an attorney, district solicitor for county court, and District Court judge for more than 40 years.

ENROLLMENT ANNOUNCEMENT HEAD START

Martin County Community Action, Inc. Project Head Start is now accepting applications for the 1988 enrollment. Eligibility is determined by HHS income guidelines, family needs and handicapping and/or special conditions of the child.

Head Start is a comprehensive developmental program for children ages 3-5. Head Start is based on the premise that all children share certain needs, and that children from low-income families, in particular, can benefit from a program designed to meet those needs.

The program operates in the context of the child's total environment - classroom, family, neighborhood - stressing not only education but also health, nutrition, mental health, social services and parent involvement.

The Head Start program has been operating in the Martin County area since 1965; in the Beaufort County area since 1977; and in the Pitt County area since 1985. Funding is received from the Office of Child Development, Department of Health and Human Services.

The Head Start program operates nine (9) months of the year - September through May. The Head Start centers are open Monday through Friday and the hours of operation are 8:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.

For more information or to enroll a child, please call Mrs. Mary Lloyd at 792-1761 or come by the Martin County Community Action Head Start Social Services Office, located in the American Legion Head Start Center, on Watts Street in Williamston, North Carolina or contact the West Sixth Street Head Start Center located at 1610 West Sixth Street.

Goodwill Week

Members of the Kiwanis Club of Greenville will mark Canada-United States Goodwill Week Sunday through April 30.

Mayo Allen, club president, said the annual observance is designed to focus attention on the nearly two centuries that Canada and the United States have lived together in peace. Their 5,000-mile undefended border is a constant reminder of the friendship that exists between the two countries and is a pattern for peace throughout the world, he said.

Since 1922, when the annual observance began, about three dozen "Kiwanis Peace Markers" have been placed along the U.S.-Canadian border.

Historical Group

The Collegeview Historical Association, a newly formed non-profit organization dedicated to neighborhood revitalization through historic preservation, is conducting its charter membership drive in April.

Residents of neighborhoods surrounding East Carolina University will receive membership information.

For more information call 752-0860.

Family Reunion Set

A reunion for the Joe and Mary Ward Lang family will be held Sunday at the home of Dan Lang in Gatesville. Relatives and friends will provide a picnic lunch. Paper supplies will be provided.

Committee Session

The Criminal Justice Committee of the Pitt County Council on Substance Abuse will meet Wednesday at 7:30 a.m. at the Three Steers Restaurant on Memorial Drive.

Judge E. Burt Aycock Jr., chief District Court judge of the 3rd Judicial District, will speak on obstacles to controlling substance abuse and what citizens of Pitt County can do to help.

For more information all Dottie Schmuck Blades, council coordinator, at 752-6847.

'Hog Strut '88'

The Harley Owners Group of Greenville will sponsor the "Hog Strut '88" motorcycle show Saturday from 9 a.m. to about 4 p.m. with awards to be presented at 3:15 p.m.

The judged show will be held at J&E Harley-Davidson at 1008 Dickin-son Ave. The show is free to public with only the entrants paying fees. Proceeds will be donated to the Pitt County Council on Aging.

WOW Lodge Meets

Lodge No. 218, Woodmen of the World, will have a Dutch dinner meeting at 6 p.m. Thursday at Tar Landing Seafood.

'All Species Day'

The Tar River Foundation and Streamwatch will sponsor "All Species Day," an environmental celebration, Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at River Park North in Greenville.

Featured activities include a parade of the animals, skits, folk music, craft and food sales.

There will be no admission charge. For more information call 355-6516.

Workshop Scheduled

A workshop for summer day camp operators will be sponsored by the child care section of the N.C. Department of Human Resources on April 27 at the Willis Building from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The workshop will introduce and explain rules adopted by the North Carolina Child Day Care Commission in March. The rules, which address such areas as sanitation, staff qualifications, water safety and activity plans, are effective July 1, according to Dr. Nancy Brown, chief of the child day care section of the Division of Facility Services, N.C. Department of Human Resources.

Revival Services

Bethel Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Bethel, will have revival services today through Friday with the Rev. Joe N. Dixon of Greenville as the speaker.

Guest choirs include Joseph Branch Young Adult Choir of Vanceboro, today; St. John Young Adult Choir of Stokes, Wednesday; Holly Hill Young Adult Choir of Belvoir, Thursday, and the Elder Joe N. Dixon Ensemble of Farmville, Friday.

Meeting Participant

Dr. Charles F. Willson of Greenville represented the North Carolina Pediatric Society at the first American Academy of Pediatrics Legislative Symposium recently in Washington, D.C.

The purpose of the meeting was advocacy for children's issues being discussed in the Congress. Willson met with legal aides from the offices of Sen. Jesse Helms, Rep. Walter B. Jones Sr. and Sen. Terry Sanford.

Issues included increased funding for childhood immunizations, AIDS research, banning all terrain vehicles for children, catastrophic health insurance for children and national guidelines for quality and funding for day care centers.

Willson is legislative chairman for the North Carolina Pediatric Society and is a past president of the Pitt County Medical Society. He is chairman of the medical/business task force of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Final Program Set

Special education and learning disabilities will be the focus of the final program in a series sponsored by the East Carolina University School of Education.

The four-session program is scheduled for Thursday in Room 129 Speight Building and is open to all interested persons.

Featured speaker is Dr. Cecil Mercer of the University of Florida, a specialist in the field of learning disabilities.

Program sessions will include: "Students with Learning Problems: Implications for Teacher Preservice Education," 9 a.m. to 10:15 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 2:15 p.m.; "The Implications for ECU" (follow-up discussion), 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., and "Students with Learning Problems: What the School Administrator and the Classroom Teacher Can Do," 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The learning problems program is the final presentation in a series sponsored by the ECU Visiting Scholars Planning Committee.

Underwriters Gather

The Pitt County Chapter of the National Association of Life Underwriters will meet Thursday at 8 a.m. at the Three Steers Restaurant.

The featured speaker will be Ben R. Strother, manager of the Wilson Agency of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Co.

students when they begin sixth grade, and E.B. Aycock, Rose and D.H. Conley would all experience some improvements in racial balance with movement of the students.

To offer Ayden-Grifton High School students a variety of course offerings already being offered students in other Pitt County high schools a telecommunication satellite learning system will be used beginning in the 1988-89 school year. Elementary Analysis, trigonometry and possibly Latin will be offered through the system.

Course requests that cannot be met through the satellite system will be met through instructors of Pitt Community College or instructors provided through a program equity fund to offer a specific course at the high school.

Keeping the fourth grade at Ayden Elementary will require an additional mobile unit — bringing a total of six mobile units — on the school grounds to accommodate the additional 103 fourth-grade students. The board would eventually build six classrooms to take the place of the mobile units.

Academically gifted fourth-grade students will go to Ayden Middle School for academically gifted activities. Not receiving the fourth grade gives Ayden Middle a growth potential of about 199 students, which would leave room for new programs the board may want to pilot for the school system.

A mobile unit will be added to Belvoir School to accommodate the 79 fifth-grade students in the 1990-91 school year. Growth at Belvoir is expected to necessitate the addition of a classroom for each the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years.

Stokes and Pactolus schools still will have room for growth as the fifth grade is retained at the schools, and Wellcome Middle — once targeted to receive the fifth graders — will not need the addition nine classrooms planned for school. The $535,000 appropriated for the classrooms will be used for other projects.

Employee Honored

Deborah Ryals, an employee of the Pitt County Department of Social Services, was honored by county commissioners Monday for her selection last week as the outstanding employee of the year by the N.C. Social Services Association.

The board presented Mrs. Ryals with a resolution recognizing the award.

Mrs. Ryals, director of eligibility for the Pitt DSS, has been a social services employee since February 1985.

The NCSSA is composed of more than 4,000 social services employees across the state.

Student Is A Page

Roger Brunson of Greenville, a senior at J.H. Rose High School, is serving as a page this week with the N.C. Department of Administration in Raleigh.

The page assignment is a part of Gov. Jim Martin's program for high school students.

Board Meeting

Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church will have a board meeting Wednesday at 6:30 p.m.

The combined choirs of the church will meet at Philippi Disciple Church today at 7:30 p.m. to participate in the revival.

The senior choir will rehearse Thursday at 7 p.m.

University Scholar

Christopher Marks, son of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Marks of Greenville, has been selected for the University Scholars Program of the University of Richmond in Richmond, Va.

Marks will receive a half tuition scholarship renewable for four years, as well as special opportunities within the university community. The award is based on academic merit.

In addition, Marks has been awarded a $10,000 music scholarship at the University of Richmond based on ability and potential.

Marks is a senior at the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics and is a former Rose High School student.

Rofelt Pasha Temple

The Divan of Rofelt Pasha Temple No. 175 will meet today at 7 p.m. in the temple in Rocky Mount.

Annual Convention

Big East Cosmetologist Chapter 74 of Greenville will host the 1988 North Carolina State Beauticians and Cosmetologists Association Inc. state convention Saturday through April 27.

Events scheduled to take place at the Hilton and Sheraton include a coronation ball, hairstyling competitions, a trade show, educational classes, annual awards banquet, dance and a night at the Rio nightclub.

The convention will be open to the public on Sunday and Monday.

WHAT SHOULD A CHILD BE TOLD ABOUT DEATH?

Do you explain Grandpa's death with a fairy tale?

Do you say that "God called him away?"

Or do you answer truthfully, and simply, so that the child may relate his grandfather's death to familiar things: flowers, for example, which live, grow, wither and finally die?

We believe the flower example can be understood by the child because it relates to things he's seen and can grasp. "Flowers," you may explain, "don't live a long time but we like them while we have them. Grandpa lived a long time and you and he had many good times together. But, like the flowers, he too, died. We will remember him with love, won't we?"

The child needs to understand that what has happened is a natural course of events - like the seasons and the rising and setting of the sun. He comes closer to his family through such honest involvement, maturing as he finds his own sadness is shared and understood.

Your questions and comments on this and other subjects are welcome - in private or publicly through this column.

Early Intervention

From High-Risk To Accomplishment

Identifying problems before they arise is the best way to solve them.

If Pitt County schools heeds the advice of its minority task force, it will incorporate that approach. The group, in a recently completed survey of minority issues in the schools, recommended high-risk students be identified as early as possible by the school system. Once a potential problem is pinpointed, the study suggests, resources should be applied to prevent it.

That's sound thinking. And although it is a concept that can strongly benefit minorities, it is an approach lending itself to effective across-the-board application.

The school system has an uncomfortably high number of minority students who develop difficulty with school. It is an unpleasant fact that this number perpetuates unfair and inaccurate stereotyping about ability levels. Targeting these youngsters can diminish the impact of that prejudice, and foster more realistic attitudes.

Encouraging that change is the charge of an responsive school system, and a high-risk intervention program is a tangible and effective approach.

But by no means are all high-risk students minorities. An early problem identification program could help all students by redflagging troubling trends and addressing them.

In addition, a project of this type could give teachers who see these difficulties a way to assist a child beyond the classroom. The task force suggested involving the parents of high risk students promptly and assisting kids, mom and dad as a family.

It also correctly recommended strong community involvement for troubled students. Mentorships, internships and leadership programs can teach skills vital to achievement. They can give minorities a head start on success, and turn high-risk into accomplishment.

Problem prevention is a relatively new direction for the field of education but represents the way of the future. It is a proactive approach that can yield significant benefits. In the case of Pitt County, those benefits include better minority achievement.

The fewer serious problems arise, the less time, energy and money spent solving these problems. A high-risk intervention program should be high priority.

Action Proper

A Somber Time For World Peace

Great danger is obvious in the United States Naval activities in the Persian Gulf but U.S. military moves there have been appropriate actions in the face of threatening circumstances.

Following a relatively tranquil time, a U.S. Navy frigate struck a mine last week and that was followed by swift American retaliation resulting in the destruction of two Iranian oil platforms.

Events escalated with reports of Iranian attacks on oil platforms and U.S. ships, the sinking of an Iranian patrol boat and the bombing of other Iranian warships.

The military activity is taking place in the relatively confined waters of the Persian Gulf and in an area of the world which is virtually a tinderbox. It is under way at a time when Middle East terrorists are highly active and response has also been violent.

It is a somber time for world peace. The United States, despite the War Powers Act, could suddenly find itself involved in a military action from which it cannot extract itself; yet it is a certainty that the nation must protect its interests and those of allies in the Middle East.

The Iranian military response to the U.S. action was not unexpected given the fanatical nature of that nation under Khomeini. The question is, how long can Iran, nearly bled to death in its long war with Iraq, continue to send its limited war ships, missiles and aircraft against the U.S. Navy? It would seem logical that, even with fanaticism on its side, Iran cannot afford continuing to lose its Naval equipment for any sustained period of time.

The United States Navy is committed to remaining in the Persian Gulf to protect shipping and bolster the nations of the area which are friendly. There can be no more dangerous duty for American forces in the world today. Their mission now becomes one of exercising great restraint, but appropriately responding to Iranian attacks. It is a thin line indeed between taking correct defensive actions and going on the offensive in the Persian Gulf. So far the United States seems to be putting forth the proper response.

Racing Ahead Without Direction

WASHINGTON — The economic problems for a Bush administration began about a month ago, when Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., dropped out of the presidential race. Dole had been pounding away at the federal budget deficit, preaching the old-time Republican religion of balanced budgets and spending freezes; in response, a Washington Post story reported, Vice President George Bush had come up with a detailed description of his own spending freeze. After Dole withdrew, Bush withdrew his detailed budget proposal. With Dole out, there was no urgency about proposing or promising a program.

Candidate Bush has it easy. While the Democrats scramble like mad gerbils to find a candidate who will lead them to something other than disaster in November, the vice president leads his unified party unopposed. On the other hand, President Bush — should there be a President Bush — has a problem: the affliction of his earlier good fortune.

The next president, Bush or anybody else, will have to move on the economy. The budget and trade deficits are still out of their cage: A majority of business economists in a recent survey predicted a recession for 1989. A bipartisan National Economic Commission (loaded with heavyweights appointed by Congress and the White House) will announce a budgetary and economic program in March of next year. Polls show that people want a change of direction, and the Democratic Left is resurgent on economic issues. Doing nothing is not an option. And if Bush and the Republicans do not develop a strong sense of what they want to do — as a tough primary would have forced them to — Bush will have his economic agenda set for him.

The recent record makes clear what a president with a sense of mission can achieve. In 1980 Ronald Reagan entered office with no one doubting what he was about: attacking inflation, reducing the burdens that government imposes on the private sector, balancing the budget, cutting taxes, spending more on defense and repealing the Carter presidency generally. The program conflicted with reality in some places and with itself in others but it gave purpose to Reagan's whole first term. And its electrifying effect on the Washington establishment made Reagan's reputation fearsome — an invaluable asset. Reaganomics put the president on the political offensive and kept him there for four years.

In 1984, Reagan ran a different campaign. The party threw a love feast; good feelings washed over the electorate like a warm bath. It was great politics. And it left the president adrift. As things turned out, he found something to do — tax reform; but when that was finished (and it never much inspired the country), the cupboard was bare. As it turned out, Reagan could get away with coasting for four years. He had his first-term blitzkrieg under his belt.

Bush won't have that luxury. If he comes to office without an agenda of his own, he risks being dominated by the agenda he inherits.

Campaigns are crucibles, burning rhetorical goo into crystalline substance. A primary season pitting Bush against Dole, with his harping on fiscal responsibility, and against Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., with his damn-the-deficits proselytizing for growth, would have forced the Republicans to figure out who they are and who they need to be. The process can be nasty and divisive but it also yields dividends as a party finds its voice.

The Democrats are already reaping those dividends, at least on economic policy. You may not like the emerging Democratic program, well to the left of where the party was even a year ago (and maybe too far left to win), but a program it is. The government needs to "invest" (big Democratic buzzword) heavily in education, research, technology, and infrastructure; it needs to guide and aid industrial change; business and labor need to work "with" rather than "against" each other; corporate mergers and yuppie "speculation" need to be curbed in favor of longer-term investments; corporations need to be pressed to show more loyalty to America; foreign countries need to be pressed to treat their workers better; allies need to do more to pay for their own defense. Above all, activist government is the solution, not the problem.

Meanwhile, on the Republican side, Bush talks about freezing federal spending, holding the line against higher taxes, holding the line against protectionism, cutting the capital-gains tax rate from 28 percent to 15 percent, reforming the congressional budget process, getting a line-item veto, and being an "education president." That's basically it. Nothing inspiring there, except maybe the part about education (which is also a major Democratic theme). Bush position papers are full of positions, but his candidacy lacks an economic center — in particular, any clear sense of what government should and should not be doing, and why. On one hand, Bush wants to privatize and deregulate; on the other, he calls for government initiatives on education, rural development and gasohol. What's he all about?

Bush may be about to relearn Reagan's lesson. That does not mean a Bush presidency would be unable to get anything done. It does mean that President Bush would have a hard time winning the offensive from the Democrats in Congress, whose economic views will have been toughened and sharpened by the 1988 campaign; from the National Economic Commission's anti-deficit pronouncements which are likely to draw headlines, and above all, from the deficits themselves. For a presidency, there has to be more to life than balancing the budget.

Jonathan Rauch covers economic policy for the National Journal.

Whose Words Are These?

Don't Worry, Mr. President, As Long As They Sound Good

Larry Speakes has been roundly criticized for putting words in President Reagan's mouth. As press secretary he made up quotes that he attributed to the President, causing untold damage to Mr. Reagan's reputation as the commander-in-chief of everything he utters.

People in the White House press corps were not so much amazed at Speakes' resorting to such subterfuge as they were puzzled about why the President permitted him to do it.

The best explanation is that President Reagan never worried about what Speakes said at his briefings as long as it sounded good to the public.

There were some close calls for the Gipper, however. One time Speakes came into the Oval Office and said, "Sir, we have just secured Grenada. Is there any statement you'd like to make?"

"How about, 'Fourscore and seven years ago our forefathers brought forth on this earth a new nation and that is why we have nothing to fear but fear itself?'"

"It's a bit wordy," Larry said.

"Well, you have the idea, just kick it around and use anything you want to."

"I will say, 'This is one of the greatest victories against communist in our lifetime and is a signal to our foes that we will never negotiate out of fear nor fear to negotiate.'"

"That's fine. Good night."

"But, sir, it's 4 o'clock in the afternoon. You have to make a speech this evening at your state dinner for Margaret Thatcher."

"What are you going to tell the press I said?" the President asked.

"I might tell them that you said Prime Minister Thatcher has brought us nothing but blood, sweat and tears."

"I hadn't planned on saying that. Why can't you report when I made my toast I had no comment."

"The press doesn't like that. Don't worry, I'll think of something."

"You're very good, Larry."

"I see it this way, Mr. President. A press secretary's job is to make the President look better than he really is. If I can have you expounding brilliant things we both win."

"How do we both win?"

"You come out of it as the Great Communicator and I get a much higher advance on my book."

"Larry, are we doing anything wrong?"

"Of course not. I am your spokesman. What difference does it make if you say it or I say it, as long as you get credit for it?"

"Suppose they find out the words aren't mine?"

"Only you and I know that, sir, and I sure as heck am not going to tell. Look, I won't make up quotes all the time. If you ever come up with anything original I'll use it."

"And you don't think it will hurt us when it comes out?"

"Not on your life. You don't think Abraham Lincoln said everything he was credited with?"

"Can I give you my statement now on how we won the war in Afghanistan?" the President asked.

"Try it out on me, and I'll see if I like it."

"You really take over, don't you, Larry?"

"Better me than Gorbachev."

Iran's Aggressive New Gulf Policy Surprises U.S.

WASHINGTON — After months of carefully avoiding confrontation with U.S. naval forces in the Persian Gulf, Iran has adopted a new and apparently far more aggressive strategy — and that strategy cost it two of the country's its four best warships Monday.

U.S. officials and academic analysts acknowledged that they were taken by surprise by Iran's decision to abandon its earlier, cautious approach. They speculate that the regime of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini was motivated either by internal political considerations or by a belief that Congress would bring home the U.S. task force if it was drawn into combat.

Iran clearly got the worst of Monday's action. One of its four modern frigates apparently was destroyed and another was heavily damaged.

Nevertheless, if Iran continues its present course, it could draw the United States into a far more dangerous phase of the nine-month-old U.S. campaign of protecting re-registered Kuwaiti tankers and other ships flying the U.S. flag in the war-torn gulf.

It seems unlikely that Iran could survive a frontal engagement at sea with the U.S. force. But the Khomeini government probably could increase its support for terrorism or find other ways to attack U.S. interests.

"They could move to attack ships in the Strait of Hormuz," an administration official said. "I wouldn't rule out escalation, either in the form of additional terrorism, which is always an option, or some other threat to shipping. With Iran, it is always difficult to predict."

Iran shifted course last week. Ending a six-month lull in naval mine warfare, it laid a field of mines that heavily damaged the U.S. frigate Samuel B. Roberts.

When U.S. warships retaliated against two Iranian offshore oil platforms Monday, Iran chose to fight back. That was a sharp departure from its reaction after the last U.S. retaliatory attack in October, when the Iranians fired Silkworm missiles at Kuwait but avoided direct engagement with the U.S. Navy.

U.S. experts both in and out of government speculated that Iran chose to escalate the war at sea because of reversals it has suffered on land in its war with Iraq. With Iranian parliamentary elections scheduled for later this month, the government may have felt pressure to take decisive military action for what basically are domestic political reasons.

"They've felt isolated lately, diplomatically and militarily," an administration official said. "They're at least feeling the pinch of public opinion."

Shireen T. Hunter, deputy director of the Middle East Project of the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington, said Iranian hawks seemed to have taken the upper hand because more moderate factions had been unable to show results for their policy of avoiding contact with the U.S. Navy.

"They see that circumspection is not working," Hunter said. "They may be feeling suicidal."

Anthony Cordesman, an adjunct professor of international security studies at Georgetown University, said Iran had made no secret of its objective of ending the U.S. presence in the gulf, which Tehran believes is hindering its war effort against Iraq.

"They are not looking at this as a confrontation with the United States, they are looking at it as a serious engagement in the war against Iraq," Cordesman said.

Cordesman said the Iranians might believe they could force a debate between the Reagan administration and Congress over the 1973 War Powers Resolution, which gave Congress a policy-making role in the event of hostilities involving U.S. forces abroad.

"If the War Powers Act is invoked, they have a chance to force the United States out of the gulf," he said. "Many intelligence people have warned that they might do something like this to try to inject the issue into the (U.S.) presidential race. If they can force the gulf as an issue in American politics, it's worth a couple of frigates."

One administration official conceded that Washington did not know what Iran would do next.

"The major question here for us is, how do you deter Iran?" the official said. "If they shoot a couple of Silkworms at an American warship, there would obviously be a major retaliation, but does that act as a deterrent to the Iranians? We really don't know."

Joseph Sisco, a former undersecretary of state, said there were severe limitations on the kind of military action Iran could sustain.

"It's altogether possible that we might have a continuation in the short term, but I don't see this as an extended period or any significant escalation," Sisco told Cable News Network.

Secretary of Defense Frank C. Carlucci said that the next move was Iran's.

"Hostilities have ended unless the Iranians once again demonstrate hostile intent," he said. "We hope Iran will now realize the futility of its attempts to interfere with peaceful international shipping in the Persian Gulf."

Read, Don't Watch

It's time for a political seminar.

Questions: Have you read the platforms of the presidential candidates? Have you read any of the candidates' speeches? Have you ever seen a candidate's platform or any of the candidates' speeches? Have you talked to any of the candidates and asked them anything about their plans for the future? If the answers to the above are no, then you are among the great American electorate.

The fact is that we Americans read the political articles in newspapers a little, but we watch a lot more on television. It is an anomaly of our educated society that when we go to the polls, either in a primary or in November, the likelihood is that about 97 percent of us will not have read a speech, evaluated a platform or talked with the candidate, and most of us will never have seen the candidate except on TV.

So how will we choose? The fact is that we will vote for a president as we select a wife or a husband: viscerally, not intellectually — but we will do it all on video, like one of those dating services. We will vote our passions, our prejudices and our intuition. What does it matter how the head turns if the heart hears a song? Who "turns us on" is more special than "which way is up?" Otherwise, in a paraphrase of William F. Buckley Jr., we would be better governed by the Harvard faculty.

This is why the television set becomes the prism through which all that we feel and think and measure will pass. Which is why the single most powerful weapon a candidate can carry is the way he talks and sounds and looks on the small TV set in the American living room. This is why the next president will take office with precious little really known about how he will react when the dagger is pressed against his belly.

Pundits decry this fact and call the TV caravan an insubstantial pageant, incurably marred by its triviality. Many believe that television allows an alien glory to mantle a candidate, an immensity of illusion overpowering all who hear and watch. But as the old political pro vouchsafed: "Hell, I don't make the rules, I just play by them."

President Reagan, whatever his critics may cry, has made radical changes in the compass course of this land. He was able to accomplish revolutionary changes mainly because, as Sheila Moore said of a famous British Tory Party leader, he radiated a ceaseless benevolence. The people followed him because he engaged them. They liked him; he did not threaten them, nor did he bore them. No one really hates him; there is an absence of malice that his predecessors were unable to achieve. And he did it all on TV. Those who follow him can learn from him.

Candidates, Republican and Democratic, disappeared from the screens over the past several weeks, not because they had no message or because they had no bent for leadership or lacked political skills. They fell because television soiled them or dismissed them or shrank them. Some of them never mastered the TV compulsories: brevity (and what passes for brittle wit), the 30-second strike, encapsulating a massive foreign policy in 20 remembered words, sidestepping cruel questions with a smile and shoeshine.

On television the Great Arbiter is the clock, spooning out destiny in seconds. So the candidate always knows if he dances with artful ambiguities. He doesn't have to worry about follow-up questions: "Thank you, our time's up; and now a message from our sponsor."

Walter Mondale was eminently correct when, at the end of the 1984 campaign, he suggested that unless a presidential candidate mastered the art of television, he was doomed to defeat. The professors and the observers of the scene, who occasionally stumble over the truth but hurriedly pick themselves up and hurry on as if nothing had happened, found this comment inhospitable. But Mondale saw with awful clarity what those on the sidelines see only gauzily. He saw how television would affect future elections. He saw what that old rascal Talleyrand revealed a long time ago: "Speech is used to conceal thought."

State Economy Again Tops U.S. Level

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The state's economy outperformed the nation's for the fifth straight year in 1987, with new and expanding businesses announcing 40 percent more new jobs than in the previous year, Gov. Jim Martin says.

The state will grow at a slightly slower clip this year, with the unemployment rate edging up half a point to 5 percent by year end, Martin's annual economic development report projected. But Martin and Commerce Secretary Claude Pope Monday weren't predicting a recession.

"We foresee a rather strong outlook for the rest of the year," Martin said at a news conference.

Martin said manufacturing investment soared by 62 percent over 1986. North Carolina led the nation in announcements of new manufacturing plants, although manufacturing plant expansion slumped by 23 percent.

Service-sector jobs rose 11.8 percent over 1986, while rural development was the best of any year this decade, Martin said. The travel and tourism and film industries generated more revenue than ever and the state's 4.5 unemployment rate percent was below the national average.

"North Carolina continues to be a national leader in economic growth and prosperity," Martin said.

The election-year report quickly became embroiled in the race between Martin, who is running for a second term, and Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, the likely Democratic nominee.

Martin said the statistics proved there was no need to restructure the state's economic development programs as Jordan wants. Jordan said the Martin administration could claim no credit for the successes of 1987.

"The governor doesn't understand the business world, and that is where you're always looking for ways to improve," Jordan said.

State Democratic Chairman Jim

Van Hecke called the report "an election-year stunt."

"Jim Martin thinks that the status quo for economic development is OK. But Jim Martin has done little for the economy in his first three years as governor," Van Hecke said. "It was the Democrats in the General Assembly who passed laws to promote economic development."

Total business investment in the state increased 3.1 percent over 1986, from $5.2 billion to nearly $5.4 billion, with 76,659 jobs expected to be created.

Martin and Pope said they did not have figures on the number of jobs lost in North Carolina due to plant closings and other business failures.

But they said the statistics on job gains were net totals and had been reduced by the number of lost jobs.

Critics say many of the service jobs being created are for clerks, fast-food restaurant employees and similar minimum-wage positions. Martin said that description fits some, but not all, of the new jobs.

"We have many adults in our working population who dropped out of school at an early age ... and as they overcome it they need work now for which they are qualified," Martin said.

Engineer Says Bridge Appears Safe

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
Associated Press Writer
Erosion caused by fierce Atlantic storms is a greater threat to the land around a bridge over Oregon Inlet than it is to the bridge itself, a state highway official says.

"There's a potential that you could wash the approach roadway out, and not get to the approach from the land," Don Idol, the assistant state inspection engineer in the DOT bridge maintenance section, said Monday. "It's possible (erosion) could eat that end of the land away."

Last week's nor'easter washed away about 275 feet of land near the Herbert C. Bonner Bridge, removing a large stretch of an old ferry road and threatening the nearby U.S. Coast Guard station. But no major problems were reported with the bridge.

A candidate for state Senate staged a vigil atop the bridge for several days to dramatize the need for jetties to stabilize Oregon Inlet. The candidate, Dan Lawrence, said he believed the next major storm would wash the bridge away and called for immediate action to save it from erosion.

The 4 1/2-mile Bonner bridge, named for the former First District congressman, was built in 1962 at a cost of $4.4 million. Before that, the only link between the northern end of the Outer Banks and Hatteras Island was a ferry. Until 1978, the bridge held up against the attack of the sea.

"We've had problems of erosion around the bottom. The worst of that occurred around 1978," Idol said. "We had some settlement of a bent," which is one of the supports that is driven into the inlet floor.

Idol said the erosion in 1978 caused a 1,200-foot section of bridge to drop about two inches.

"Your visible signs for telling that would be a sag in the rail. That's probably the only visible sign that a person might pick up," he said.

Fourteen bents were shored up with armor plating, and some steel piles were added at a cost of $1.9 million. More bents were repaired at a cost of $600,000 that same year.

Idol said more repairs were done in 1980, shoring up more bents with armor plating. Those repairs cost $3.4 million.

To monitor the supports, bridge maintenance personnel use a fathometer to check the bottom of the inlet every six months. They have been doing those inspections since the settling problem occurred in 1978, and recent checks have shown that some filling in has occurred below the surface.

"You have to keep a close eye on it. We don't expect any more problems," Idol said. "The potential problem would be with bents where there would be erosion where there hasn't been before."

FEC Fine

RALEIGH (AP) — The campaign committee for Gov. Jim Hunt's 1984 U.S. Senate bid has agreed to refund $6,610 in excessive campaign contributions and pay a $5,000 fine to settle a complaint by the Federal Election Commission, FEC officials say.

The FEC ruled that the Hunt committee received $41,014 in excessive contributions that it failed to refund "within a reasonable period of time," commission spokesman Karen Finucan told the News and Observer of Raleigh. The committee eventually refunded $14,944, she said, and now has agreed to refund the $6,610 to settle the complaint, initiated by the FEC.

The remaining $19,460 in alleged excessive contributions was allowed because either the donor or the targeted election were redesignated to satisfy FEC rules, Ms. Finucan said.

Indictments

BOLIVIA, N.C. (AP) — Forty-eight people, including the son of the developer of Ocean Isle, have been indicted by a Brunswick County grand jury on 270 counts of drug trafficking.

The indictments, which resulted from six months of work by the investigative grand jury, involve marijuana and cocaine worth about $2.5 million, according to District Attorney Mike Easley.

Among those indicted Monday was DeCarol Williamson, the 37-year-old son of Odell Williamson, who is the largest individual taxpayer in the county with more than $30 million in property. Odell Williamson also served six terms in the state House, the last in 1967.

Coach Killed

DURHAM (AP) — The wife of a Durham High School baseball coach was indicted Monday for first-degree murder in connection with the death of her husband, who was killed when a gun discharged under his pillow.

Durham County Sheriff's deputies at first said the Feb. 1 death of Allison Russell Stager III, 40, appeared to be accidental. But a Durham grand jury handed down the indictment Monday against 39-year-old Barbara T. Stager, who had been married to Stager for nine years.

Investigators said at the time that Mrs. Stager, who was sleeping beside her husband, had reached under his pillow and accidentally fired the gun he had placed there.

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The chairman of the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission says hiring quotas and the reduction of test standards to help minorities are insulting and inherently racist.

Clarence Thomas, the second-ranking black official in the Reagan administration, said Monday such policies assume that blacks are not bright enough to get jobs without such help.

"My belief is that there are tons of qualified blacks and women. I don't assume they're not out there. You give them a chance. If they can do a job, fine. But you don't make excuses and you don't lower standards," Thomas said.

Candidates Report Campaign Finances

RALEIGH (AP) — U.S. Rep. David E. Price, D-N.C., has raised almost twice as much money this year as his Republican opponent, Raleigh businessman Thomas H. Fetzer Jr., according to campaign finance reports.

Campaign finance reports from congressional candidates had to be postmarked Friday. Copies of the reports, which cover the first three months of 1988, were filed with the state Board of Elections.

With the general election still more than six months away, Price's campaign had just over $100,000 on hand. Price reported raising $110,471 this year, including $53,701 from political action committees, and spending $59,614.

Fetzer, who is backed by the National Congressional Club, reported contributions of $54,084 and expenditures of $53,288.95, the News and Observer of Raleigh reported. His campaign reported having $2,295 on hand and $56,130 in debts, much of that to organizations connected to the Congressional Club or Jefferson Marketing Inc., both part of Sen. Jesse Helms' political apparatus.

U.S. Rep. Cass Ballenger, a Republican from Hickory, reported raising $22,266, spending $15,278 and debts of $85,416. Virtually all of the debts were the result of loans Ballenger made to his campaign. Ballenger, a first-term congressman, reported $13,525 in contributions from PACs.

Three Democrats are seeking the nomination to challenge Ballenger in November.

Ted Blanton of Salisbury, a Republican challenging Rep. Bill Hefner, a Democrat from Concord, reported raising $34,244 and spending $15,277. Among his contributors were former U.S. Sen. James T. Broyhill, $500, and Elliott Abrams, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, $350.

Thomas Gilmore of Julian, a Democratic challenger to Rep. Howard Coble, a Greensboro Republican, reported raising $113,869, spending $71,161 and debts of $21,525.

Rep. Walter B. Jones, a Democrat from Farmville, reported raising $55,700 and spending $16,252. Jones, dean of the N.C. House delegation, had $291,304 on hand. He also reported $48,450 in contributions from PACs.

Rep. H. Martin Lancaster, a Democrat from Goldsboro, reported raising $28,132, including $10,000 from PACs, and spending $10,004. Lancaster, who is unopposed for re-election, had $41,271 on hand.

Rep. Alex McMillan, a Republican from Charlotte, reported raising $24,052 and spending $23,702. He reported having $97,378 on hand.

Mark Sholander, one of two Democrats seeking to challenge McMillan in the fall, reported raising $5,737 and spending $5,503.

Rep. I.T. "Tim" Valentine, a Democrat from Nashville, reported raising $10,150, including $9,050 from PACs, and spending $8,315. Valentine, who has no opposition, reported having $48,821 on hand.

In Wilderness School, Youths Change Attitude

By JEANETTE KREBS
The Harrisburg
Patriot-News

BOILING SPRINGS, Pa. (AP) — Morning classes finished, a cluster of youths strode through the snowy wooded trail toward the dining hall for lunch.

Some joked and took the worn quarter-mile trail easily in their loping strides; others hung back, introducing themselves to their unusual environment.

Junior, a muscular 16-year-old, talked easily about how life has changed since he came to live in the forest almost five months ago.

"When I first got here I thought it stunk," he said. "It's cool now. I feel liked I've improved, I don't fight as much."

Junior, a Bethlehem native, is one of 16 youths attending Tressler Care

Wilderness School in South Mid-dletown Township.

Started by Tressler-Lutheran Ser-vices, the residential treatment pro-gram houses youths 13 to 18 years old from throughout the state.

Set among the winter wildlife and bare trees, one cabin serves as a school, another as cafeteria and a vocational and home-economics classroom.

Eric Krohn, the school's super-visor, says the school allows the youths to feel a sense of accomplish-ment and believe in themselves.

Rob, 17, of Pike County, said he was learning more in school than he ever had and hoped that after his hearing he could go back to the Poconos.

"It's pretty good here. It helps (you) take a look at yourself and see good qualities in yourself," he said.

Youths referred here by judges or child welfare agencies have suffered some type of failure. Many are de-fiant, sometimes aggressive toward others and lacking self-esteem. Because of their past troubles, the youths also receive individual and group counseling.

"This isn't a kid's last chance at society or anything. These are kids who have been in trouble with the law or have had family problems," Krohn said. "It's called a wilderness school but it's not like we're here teaching kids to camp."

An instructor at the wilderness school said some of the youths had jumped several grade levels since joining the program. Others had learned to read.

Krohn said the school, which opened 16 months ago, was in the process of selling 700 of its 900 acres of forest to the state Game Preserve and would ask permission from the township in the spring to build more permanent buildings on the 200-acre campus.

While the program is licensed to house 16 youths, officials have asked the state Department of Public Welfare for permission to expand the capacity to 20.

The average length of stay at the camp is six months, and youths can earn the privilege of spending weekends at home.

While Krohn says running the school is rewarding, he admits work-ing with the young people can be try-ing.

"We're dealing with troubled kids," he said. "We're not successful all the time. All we can do is help, especially with some who are coming from horrendous backgrounds."

Along with the school, a year-round Outward Bound program is run from the wooded location. Youngsters spend a month outside learning about themselves while coping with the heat and insects of the summer and the cold and snowstorms of the winter.

Krohn said Outward Bound was a prerequisite for all youths entering the wilderness school.

One concept the school is built upon was developed by Campbell Loughmiller, a social worker from Texas. Loughmiller believes that youths with problems in the home environment can be better served in an environment providing the widest possible experiences.

"I don't think a program would have the same successes if it was located in the middle of Harrisburg," Krohn said.

Elanor Swank, the culinary and lifestyle instructor, agrees.

"Most of these kids are inner-city kids, so this is a whole different environment for them," she said. "After their frustrations are broken down they find out it's not so bad here."

The school cannot keep a youth past the age of 18. As yet no follow-up has been organized, but Krohn said he wanted to check up on the 17 youths who had completed the pro-gram.

Letters keep the counselors en-couraged. Swank said one youth had written that he was studying for the General Educational Development diploma and then wanted to attend college.

Avoid Wrong Mix Of Food, Drugs

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago you published a list of foods that people who are taking certain prescription drugs should avoid. At the time I was perfectly healthy, so I paid no attention to it. However, now my husband is taking three different prescribed drugs, and I am taking two, and it occurs to me that there may be certain foods in our regular diet that could change the action of the drugs we are taking.

Abby, you would be doing all of your readers, especially the senior citizens, a big favor if you reprint that information. — L.J.L., WATERLOO, IOWA

DEAR L.J.L.: Here it is: The Food and Drug Administration, in cooperation with the National Council on Patient Information and Education, has embarked on a program to inform and educate people about the medications they use.

Most people are unaware that there can be an interaction between the prescribed drugs they are taking and certain foods they eat. This interaction can cause some drugs to work faster or slower, or to become totally ineffective.

For example, people who are taking certain prescribed drugs for severe depression or high blood pressure should avoid aged cheese, Chianti wine, pickled herring, yogurt, chicken liver, bananas, avocados, sour cream, and all foods prepared with meat tenderizers.

Persons taking anti-coagulants (blood thinners) should avoid liver and large amounts of leafy vegetables because the vitamin K in those foods tends to promote blood clotting.

People on thyroid medication should avoid brussels sprouts, turnips, cabbage, soybeans and kale.

Dairy products should not be eaten by a person who is taking a specific kind of antibiotic.

Alcohol and even aspirin should not be combined with certain other drugs. Mixing alcohol with a high dosage of Valium or Darvon can be fatal.

The next time you are given a prescription, don't hesitate to ask your physician, or your pharmacist, the following questions:

1. What is the name of the drug, and what is it supposed to do? (Write it down so you won't forget.)

2. When do I take it, and for how long? (Does "three times a day" mean morning, noon and night? Should it be taken before meals, with meals or after meals? If the instructions say "every four hours," should I get up during the night to take it? Should I keep taking it until it's all gone?)

3. Are there any foods, beverages, medications or activities I should avoid while taking this drug? (Is alcohol allowed? How about aspirin and antacids? Please be aware that there is alcohol in beer, liquor and wine.)

4. Are there any side effects? And what should I do if they do occur?

5. Is there any written information you can give me about the drug you have prescribed for me?

6. Is there an approved generic version of this drug? (There usually is, and it is much cheaper and no less effective.)

Readers, for a free brochure about prescription drugs, write to: RX Drugs, Consumer Information Center, Department DA, Pueblo, Colo. 81009. No stamped, self-addressed envelope is necessary, but please allow 30 days for delivery. When this hits print, the center will be deluged.

P.S. Tomorrow: What you should tell your physician before he or she prescribes any kind of medication for you. Also, some valuable tips to help you use prescription drugs safely and effectively.

Get-Acquainted Meet Set

The Pirate Charter chapter of American Business Women's Association will hold a get-acquainted meeting today starting at 7 p.m. at the Humber House in Greenville.

Jean Verdick, president, Nina Redditt, secretary, and Cora Streep, vice chairman for publicity, represented the chapter at the ABWA Mid-Atlantic Spring Conference held in Greensboro.

Over 900 women from ABWA chapters in Virginia, Tennessee, North and South Carolina discussed how to further the goals of ABWA.

Nido R. Qubein, a motivational speaker and corporate consultant, opened the conference with a speech on "The Winning Difference." He has written over 30 books on sales, personal development and communication and he owns a company in High Point.

Gene Causby, executive director of the N.C. School Boards Association, spoke on personal experiences.

Women interested in learning more about ABWA or to apply for scholarship assistance should contact Jane Whealon, membership chairman, Maxine Anderson, scholarship chairman, Mrs. Verdick or Ms. Redditt.

Program Given On Wind Chimes

The process of making porcelain wind chimes was the program for the meeting of Eta Delta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held last week.

Patsy Garzik, an art teacher for Pitt County schools and a chapter member, was speaker. Members participated by making wind chimes.

Various committee reports including ways and means were given during the business session conducted by Audrey Harsany. Founder's Day will be held April 29 starting at 7 p.m. at the Three Steers with Xi Gamma Xi chapter.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Barbara Long. Ritual installations will be held.

Edmisten Wages Active Campaign

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer
 No one can say Rufus Edmisten doesn't have lofty ambitions. In 1984, the 46 year-old Boone, N.C. native campaigned through a blistering primary to become the Democratic candidate for the state's highest elected office. This year Edmisten has returned to the Tar Heel political arena, attempting to fill the shoes of Thad Eure, N.C.'s retiring secretary of state.

Edmisten is hoping the Democrats can hold on to the office from which Eure has operated from since 1936, and he believes he's the right candidate for the job. "I don't think anyone has ever called me a timid public official," Edmisten said in an interview Monday. "I think I would tackle this job with vigor."

With just two weeks left before the election, Edmisten stopped in Greenville to drum up support for his campaign at a political rally Monday evening at the American Legion Building. Approximately 150 people attended the rally, which featured speeches by Edmisten and other local Democratic candidates.

The role Edmisten hopes to acquire is that of the state's official recordkeeper. The secretary of state registers lobbyists, trademarks, and laws. The official also licenses stockbrokers and administers securities laws.

Edmisten says he would operate the office somewhat differently than Eure, using it as an office to facilitate the establishment of new businesses in North Carolina.

Edmisten said the N.C. Legislature has recently designated the office as a one-stop permit obtaining station for new businesses. He said the office will "act as a guiding hand" that leads people through what he termed a bureaucratic maze which business operators currently must go through to obtain the necessary operating licenses and permits. "I view this as a tremendous opportunity for the office to get into the business of recruiting industry and creating jobs," he said. He also said he envisions the office having a very close relationship with the state Commerce Department. "If you're going to have someone recruiting industry to come here, surely you want to tell them that they've got some help in getting their permits and things, which is generally the biggest hang up," he said.

In addition, Edmisten said he would use the powers of the office to help enforce the state's laws regarding the dealings of securities. He said he would be on the lookout for those who might want to abuse citizens by taking their life savings and throwing them away carelessly, recklessly or with fraudulent intent. If elected, Edmisten said he would attempt to "beef up substantially" the securities division by increasing the number of state investigators to prevent fraud from occurring in the marketplace.

"The thing that I cringe the most about is to see some person who has worked all their lives and built up a nest egg, and to have someone come attempt to "beef up substantially" the securities division by increasing the number of state investigators to prevent fraud from occurring in the marketplace.

along and defraud them out of it by saying let's invest in this, let's invest in that. I saw that happen when I was attorney general. I saw many extremely tragic cases," he said. Edmisten served as the state attorney general for 10 years after being elected to the post three times. Prior to that, Edmisten spent several years in Washington, D.C., where he obtained a law degree from George Washington University and worked under the late Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., during the Watergate years.

Edmisten had the distinction of serving a Watergate hearing subpoena to Richard Nixon, an act which he refers to as his "footnote in history."

After losing the 1984 governor's race to Republican Jim Martin, Edmisten started a law firm in Raleigh which he says has been very successful.

Edmisten faces three Democratic challengers to the secretary of state position, Dan Bell, a former deputy secretary of state; Brad Miller, a Wake County attorney, and Wayne Hardin, owner of a radio station in Forest City, N.C.

College Enrollments Increasing

 black institutions have increased, recent figures show that many schools are racially identifiable. The number of white students in the University of North Carolina system increased about 41 percent from 1972 to 1987, while the number of black students increased by about 66 percent during that period. American Indians and other races made up less than 1 percent. In 1972, the traditionally black schools were only 5 percent white, while in 1987 they were 16 percent white. In 1972 the 11 other institutions were about 3 percent black, compared to 8 percent in 1987. Schools in the state Community College System also have seen an increase in minority enrollment. In 1976-77, total community college enrollment across the state was 488,604 — 78 percent white and 22 percent non-white. (Non-white includes blacks, Asians and other minorities). In 1985-86, the total enrollment was 653,822 — 77 percent white and 20 percent black — a slight decrease in the number of whites attending, suggesting that the number of minorities attending community colleges has increased.

Pitt Community College boosted its enrollment from 8,919 in 1976-77 to 12,909 in 1985-86. The college had a slight increase in black enrollment from 26 percent to 28 percent, and a slight decrease in white enrollment from 74 percent to 71 percent. Figures for Martin and Lenoir community colleges also show a trend of increasing enrollment, with more black students and less white students, percentage-wise. The financial aid situation affects access and choices students have in choosing a college to attend and may be a factor in the colleges' segregated status, said Ray Edwards, director of student aid at ECU. All students should have access to education, but it "doesn't imply they can choose where they want to go. There needs to be a happy medium between the two," he said. Certain sectors of higher education are going to attract the same students, Edwards said. "A lot of low-income kids are going to community colleges" because the colleges are affordable, while four-year schools will get the students who can afford to attend them. "That runs counter to the historic trend in this country which increases heterogeneity for a dynamic education system," he said. "That's what we're going to start seeing."

Area Is Rich In Baseball Talent

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

If high school baseball talent in the area does indeed go in cycles, then there is no doubt that 1988 is an up year, according to area coaches and scouts.

Among Rose, Greene Central and D.H. Conley, there is as much individual talent as there has been in quite a few years.

"I think there really is," said Conley coach Allan Wilson. "You've got (Bronswell) Patrick here and Tom Moyer, Axel Smith and Dave Daniels at Rose. Then there's Tim Moore, he's young but he's got a lot of talent."

For Don Coley, a scout for the New York Yankees organization who is based in Powellsville, the change in the talent level has been quite noticeable.

"As far as eastern North Carolina, talent is really picking up. It's really been down the last five or ten years," Coley said.

Greene Central, the defending state 2-A champion, boasts as many as six players who are getting college attention while Rose could have three or four playing college ball next season.

Patrick, who has been a standout pitcher for the last three years, is attracting attention from both professional and college scouts.

Perhaps the best indication of the level of talent in the area was the final game of the Pitt County Easter Baseball Tournament that pitted Conley against Rose April 5. A number of college coaches and professional scouts attended the game.

"I counted seven (scouts) out there, mostly for Patrick, (Rose's) Dave Daniels and a follow up on (Rose's) Tim Moore," said East Carolina baseball coach Gary Overton.

"I think some of the best baseball talent is in the eastern part of the state."

Rose boasts one of the strongest teams in the state this season and has one of the most explosive offensive teams around.

"We've got as many college prospects as any year that I've ever had," said Rose coach Ronald Vincent. "We've got people who can throw and hit."

The Rampants, 11-0, have four players hitting .400 or better. Smith, a catcher, leads the team with a .484 percentage along with three homers and 15 RBI. Moyer, a pitcher/designated hitter, is hitting .441 with four homers and a team-high 18 RBI. Daniels, a first baseman, is at .411 with four home runs and 11 RBI, while center fielder Tim Moore is hitting .400 with three homers and nine RBI.

On the mound, Moyer boasts a 4-0 mark while junior Jamie Brewington is 5-0. Dallas McPherson and Paul Powers each have a win.

Overton said Moyer's stock has risen this season.

"I think people are coming around," he said. "He's polished, he has all the mechanics. There is some concern about whether or not he'll become better, but he has strength and knows how to place pitches. I think he's opening some eyes."

Vincent said Moyer has made great strides.

"Tom is a complete player, pitching and hitting," he said. "I feel that he's a division I prospect. He's got excellent location on his fastball which is a key in any league. His curve ball has improved too."

Rose, which made it to the Eastern 4-A finals last season before losing to eventual state champion Raleigh Broughton, returned most of the key players off that team. That has translated into a fast start for the Rampants.

"I saw sixteen teams play over the Easter holiday and they have the strongest team I've seen," said Greene Central coach Jim Fulghum, whose team dropped a 4-2 decision to the Rampants. "They got the strongest high school team I've seen. (But), that doesn't mean they can't be beat."

Smith batted .322 as a junior with four homers and 20 RBI. He is getting looks from a number of local colleges. Daniels hit .433 as a junior with four homers and 15 RBI. As a sophomore, Moore hit .446 with 16 RBI and three homers.

"Smith can play college ball, he could catch or he could play outfield," Coley said. "Moyer is a great kid. He's a good prospect. Tim Moore, he's just a junior, and Dave Daniels, are getting a little attention."

Daniels has already signed a football grant-in-aid with East Carolina for next year but he will also be given the opportunity to play baseball for the Pirates. Moore, an outstanding football prospect, will be one of the top running backs in the state next year.

"David is a combination of speed and power," Vincent said. "He hits the ball as hard as anybody who has ever been here. I think Axel is as good a hitter as anybody. He's quick with the bat. Axel could catch in college but he also could play other positions because of his speed and his arm."

Patrick, who is also a top football prospect, reportedly might be headed to junior college next season, possibly Chowan or Louisburg.

"I think Bronswell Patrick is a kid that has not reached his potential," Fulghum said. "He has shown signs of greatness. He is outstanding. That's my opinion. You see some signs of greatness. He can probably go further than most kids in this area."

Patrick has been the Vikings' ace since his sophomore year and has also been one of the top American Legion pitchers in the East for the past two summers.

After a late start due to basketball, Patrick is 3-1 and threw a no-hitter against West Carteret on March 31 in a 7-0 win.

"He's a good ball player," Coley said of Patrick. "Last year when we saw him, he had good command of his pitches. We like him."

But Coley wasn't sure if or when Patrick would be chosen in this spring's major league baseball amateur draft.

"So many things play into that," he said. "From what I understand, he's a good student. He's 6-2 and about 180, he could end up being a pitcher as we see him right now."

But the Vikings also boast two other young talented pitchers in junior Brian Bullock and freshman Hal Conger who could develop into top prospects by the time they are seniors.

People in Snow Hill take their baseball very seriously and with good reason. Year in and year out, Greene Central, 9-2 this season, has one of the top 2-A teams in the state as well as being a traditional eastern power.

Overton said Greene Central catcher Tommy Eason and second baseman-shortstop T.J. Johnson are division I prospects while outfielder Shay Beaman and pitcher Anthony Jones are also definite prospects.

"Those four are getting a lot of looks from colleges," Fulghum said. "(Pitchers) Chris Hooker and (Richie) Britt are boys that are getting better and while they are not getting as many looks, they are going to be able to play somewhere."

Johnson is batting .444 to lead the team. Eason is second with a .333 average along with 13 RBI and three home runs.

Due to his late start, Beaman is hitting .250, but last year hit .387.

Jones is batting .400 but has only pitched five innings so far due to his late start with basketball. He was 10-1 last year while leading the Rams to the state championship and recorded an 11-1 mark as a sophomore.

"He's a candidate," his coach said. "He might not be strong enough for upper level division I, but he can pitch college ball."

Any coach in the area will tell you a large part of developing that talent is American Legion baseball.

"They get a chance, regional wise, to play against some of the better competition," Coley said. "Sometimes you have college players playing. The competition is better. It would help a scout, it would help a recruiter judge better."

Tom Moyer

Other players in the area having outstanding years include Ayden-Grifton's Steven Tucker, who is hitting at a .500 pace, while teammate Ty Little is hitting .364.

Vaughn Leads ECU To CAA Golf Title

From Wire and Staff Reports

HOT SPRINGS, Va. — Francis Vaughn shot a 72 to help defending champion East Carolina capture the Colonial Athletic Association golf championship Monday.

East Carolina capitalized on Richmond's collapse on the last nine holes of the Cascades Course to produce a 54-hole team score of 915, winning the championship by 13 strokes. The final round was played on a windy, rainy day.

The Spiders, who moved into the final round with a 9-shot advantage and led by six strokes with nine holes to play, faded to a three-day total of 928, 22 shots higher than the champions.

In third place was James Madison which posted 942, while William & Mary finished in fourth place with 946.

Richmond's Dave Ranzulli, who completed the tournament with a 12-over-par 225, was the low individual finisher, one shot better than Rob Slavonia of James Madison.

Vaughn, who shot the tournament's best round Monday, finished in third place with 227, while teammates Tee Davies and Paul Garcia were fourth and fifth with 229 and 230 respectively. ECU's Chris Riley finished sixth with a 233.

Trinity Sweeps; Jaguars Beaten

Trinity Christian School swept a pair of baseball games from Raleigh Christian Monday, winning the opener, 8-2, and taking the nightcap, 12-3.

John Griffin scattered two hits in the opening game, striking out 13 and walking eight. Kirk Welch won the second game, which was ended after five innings, and allowed only one hit. He struck out nine and walked four.

Trinity got all it would need in the first inning of the opening game, scoring three times. Welch reached on a fielder's choice and John Griffin and Mike Chandler both walked to load the bases. Michael Harrell and Tavner Dixon drew walks forcing in the first two runs. Danny Bunting then reached on an error, scoring Chandler with the third run.

Trinity added single runs in the fourth and fifth and scored three more times in the sixth. Raleigh scored single runs in the second and third.

Trinity got six hits in the game, two by Mike Willis. Of the six, five were triples. Trinity also stole 12 bases in the game.

In the second game, Trinity took the lead with two runs in the first, then put the game away with six in the second inning, taking an 8-0 lead.

Harrell opened the second with a solo homer and later in the frame, Griffin banged a two-run shot, accounting for three of the six.

Trinity added two each in the third and fourth. Raleigh scored two in the third and one in the fourth.

Griffin led the Tiger hitting with three while Kreston Welch and Brian Stocks each had two.

Trinity is now 3-0 on the year and travels to Hookerton on Friday to face Mount Calvary.

West Craven.....13 Farmville C.....6

VANCEBORO — West Craven fell behind early but rallied with four runs apiece in both the second and third innings and went on to take a 13-6 non-conference baseball win over Farmville Central Monday.

Farmville took an early 1-0 lead in the first when Shea Terrell reached off an error and scored on Kevin Wade's single.

The Jaguars made it 2-0 with another run in the second. Mike Vandiford singled and stole second before scoring on an error.

But West Craven scored four runs apiece off 11 hits in both the second and third. David Boyd had a solo homer to make it an 8-2 lead.

West Craven added five runs in the fifth to make it 13-6.

Farmville was led by Vandiford, who went 3-4 with a double and a solo home run in the fourth. Kevin Wade went 2-3 while Eddie Little went 2-4.

West Craven was led by Adrian Cameron who went 3-4 with a double. Jonathan Taylor went 3-3 with two doubles.

Farmville falls to 5-8 overall and return to action today at home against C.B. Aycock.

Sutton To Talk On Investigation

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — University of Kentucky basketball coach Eddie Sutton said he will break his silence and issue a statement in support of assistant Dwane Casey, who is accused of sending $1,000 to the father of Wildcat recruit Chris Mills.

Sutton said he had wanted to issue the statement Monday, but couldn't reach UK President David Roselle, on business in Texas, for his approval.

Sutton declined Monday to reveal the exact wording of the statement, which he planned to release today, but added, "You know it's going to be supportive."

The head coach hasn't talked about the allegation since the story first broke in The Daily News of Los Angeles last Thursday. The newspaper reported that Casey had sent the $1,000 in a videotape via Emery Worldwide air freight to Claud Mills, Chris' father. Several Emery employees said the envelope popped open during handling.

Casey's attorney, Joe B. Campbell of Bowling Green, Ky., said Monday that the package was unsealed and contained only a videotape when Casey left it with a secretary to be sent out.

Campbell said Casey told UK investigators that when he met with them for 2½ hours on April 10.

"Dwane's remembrance is he did not seal the package," Campbell said. "He put it on her desk. Now, if Dwane was going to do something improper, he'd do it himself."

The receptionist, Larnetta McDowell, "couldn't remember if she sealed the package or a coach did," Campbell said.

McDowell declined comment on Monday.

"I do know it was tightly sealed when it left the coaches' office" and was picked up by Emery, Campbell said.

Campbell said he didn't know whether Emery officials were telling the truth about the incident. He said he conducted his own test of the Emery package's durability.

"I put a videotape in one and threw it on the floor 10 times. It was as tightly sealed after that as when I first sealed it. The evidence is the packages don't pop open."

The head security agent for Emery in Los Angeles, Chuck Bullerman, said Monday that it is ridiculous to believe that anyone there would try to "set up" Casey.

"You'd have to believe in the fairy godmother or Santa Claus or the Easter bunny to believe that story — that there was any kind of conspiracy," Bullerman said.

Bullerman said "those envelopes weren't made" to hold videotapes. The package was an 8-by-10-inch cardboard envelope.

"When you try to stuff a VHS tape into one of the envelopes, you're asking for trouble," he said. "They just break open."

Meanwhile Monday, WKYT-TV in Lexington reported that Don MacLean, a 6-foot-10 high school All-America forward, had crossed the Wildcats off his list.

MacLean's high school coach, Bob Hawking, denied that report Monday night, but said, "UK has been a little bit of a long shot ever since they signed Mills. But he hasn't told me that."

MacLean had told The Courier-Journal in November that he had made up his mind to attend Kentucky, but had postponed announcing his decision after Mills signed.

Maurice Brittan, a 6-9 junior-college center from Hutchinson, Kan., said Monday night in a telephone interview with The Courier-Journal that he still will visit Kentucky this weekend but has several questions regarding the alleged payoffs.

Brittan said he has narrowed his choices to Georgia Tech, Kansas and Kentucky.

Also Monday, Charles Smrt, the NCAA's assistant director of enforcement, said his organization is still investigating Kentucky.

Hussein Edges By Ikangaa

Softball Tournament Scheduled

A Class D softball tournament will be held April 30-May 1 in Pink Hill. First and second place trophies will be awarded for the tournament. For more information, contact Keith Whaley at 568-3789 after 7 p.m. or Chris Alphin at 298-5258.

Lady Jaguar Rally Falls Short

VANCEBORO — Farmville Central got a grand-slam home run in the top of the seventh inning, but it wasn't quite enough as West Craven survived for a 9-8 softball victory in the non-conference game Monday.

West Craven pushed over six runs in the third then added two in the fourth for an 8-0 lead before Farmville finally broke the ice with three in the fifth. West Craven got what proved to be the winning run in the bottom of the fifth, taking a 9-3 lead. Farmville got one more in the sixth, then got the grand-slam from Madelyn Streeter in the seventh, closing to within one, but they got no closer.

Peele, Blades and Bergman led West Craven with two hits each, while Susie Stencil and Karen Carter each had three for Farmville.

The loss drops the Lady Jaguars to 0-10 on the year. They return to action today, traveling to Charles B. Aycock.

Rose-Beddingfield Again Postponed

Rose High School's baseball game with Wilson Beddingfield, scheduled Monday at Guy Smith Stadium, was postponed because of weather conditions. The game, already postponed once, has now been rescheduled for April 27. Also postponed was the Rose-Beddingfield tennis match, that, too, reset for April 27.

Fike Thinclads Slip Past Jaguars

WILSON — Wilson Fike won all three relays and Terry Riggins added three individual wins as the Golden Demons slipped past 2-A Farmville Central, 82-64, in high school track and field action Monday.

Riggins won the long jump and the 100 and 200-meter dashes to pace Wilson to the win. James Pope added wins in both of the hurdle events.

Farmville Central had three double winners as it won nine individual events as compared to just five for Fike. Gary Tripp took the shot put and discus while Tyrone Joyner won the triple jump and the 400-meter dash. Marty Baker won the 1,600 and 3,200-meter runs.

Farmville is now 8-2 and will entertain Greene Central and Charles B. Aycock on Thursday.

Summary:

Bethel Middle Rolls Over Whitfield

BETHEL — Bethel Middle School gained a 19-2 baseball victory over G.R. Whitfield Monday.

Leon Parker got the win in the game, but did not go the distance. Jeffrey Wilson went 3-4 at the plate for Bethel, as did Cedric Jenkins, Brooks Whitehurst, Russell Brown and Cortez Smith. Brown added a double.

Whitfield was led by Michael Hardee with a double.

Rose Girls Capture Four-Way Meet

FARMVILLE — Rose High School, a late entrant into the meet, came away with first place in a four-way girls' track affair at Farmville Central Monday.

The Rampettes were scheduled to face Bertie Senior on Monday, but Bertie has dropped girls' track as a sport, leaving Rose with an open date before it was invited to join the meet at Farmville.

The Rampettes finished the day with 94 points while Wilson Fike came in second with 80. Hosting Farmville took third with 43 while D.H. Conley ended up with 42.

Rose took first place in only one individual and one relay event as compared to seven wins by Fike individually and two in relays. Farmville won three individual events while Conley won two, plus a relay.

Rose, however, put together enough depth points to pull out the victory.

Fike had one triple winner as Tonya Pope won the two hurdle events and the 200-meter dash. Cheryl Parker also won the shot and discus for the Lady Demons.

Vitale To Scrub Jayhawks' Gym Floor

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Television analyst Dick Vitale said he would keep his promise and scrub the floor at Kansas' Allen Field House when the Jayhawks begin practice next fall.

Vitale, a basketball commentator for ESPN and ABC, had insisted during a Kansas telecast in late February that Coach Larry Brown would not be back with the Jayhawks next year. If Brown was back, Vitale said he would scrub the floor when the national champion Jayhawks open practice with their annual "Late Night with Larry" session at midnight Oct. 15.

"Oh sure, I'll be there," Vitale said. "You've got to live by your word. A lot can happen in six months with the Larry Brown soap opera." Vitale added Monday in a telephone interview. "I'm sure any time a job opens up, he'll be the first guy called. He's a hot item."

Brown has been mentioned for several jobs and apparently had accepted the position at UCLA before changing his mind at the last minute.

Vitale performed a similar stunt in 1987, promising to stand on his head if Austin Peay beat Illinois in the NCAA tournament. He kept his promise and later spoke at the school's basketball banquet.

"I was there (at Kansas) during the Final Four, speaking before thousands of people," Vitale said. "They were teasing me, telling me Larry was coming back. It'll be what basketball is all about. It's not brain surgery. It's a good time."

BOSTON (AP) — They began running in the scenic countryside west of Boston. They found themselves, 26 miles and 385 yards later, a single stride apart amid the city's skyscrapers.

Just 100 yards from the end of their punishing journey through eight cities and towns, Ibrahim Hussein and Juma Ikangaa were close enough to touch each other. The two East Africans were so close that both thought they could win.

But more than two hours after he began the Boston Marathon on a rainy Monday, Hussein took off down the stretch, a long-distance survivor with the kick of a sprinter.

Under a gloomy sky, Hussein fashioned one of the most sparkling finishes in the 92 Boston Marathons starting with the first running in 1897, when John J. McDermott won by 6 minutes, 52 seconds.

Hussein won by one second. "I like to make history," said Hussein, who bolted past Ikangaa with 100 yards left. "It's great to be the first African to win the Boston Marathon."

The native of Kenya made history in another way. His margin of victory was the smallest ever in Boston, surpassing the two-second victories of Bill Rodgers over Jeff Wells in 1978 and Alberto Salazar over Dick Beardsley in 1982.

In 1982, Salazar's body temperature dropped to a dangerous level after the race before returning to normal. Hussein suffered no serious health problems and crossed the finish line with a broad smile a few steps in front of his Tanzanian rival.

"I wanted to concentrate on relaxing and letting Ikangaa do the work" by setting the pace until it was time to pull ahead, Hussein said.

"I thought that I had won the race" until Hussein whizzed past his right shoulder, and then "It was impossible (to catch up) because it was too late," Ikangaa said.

Although Hussein had won his three previous marathons, skeptics questioned his ability. He had never run in a top-flight field like Boston's and he had never run a marathon faster than 2 hours, 11 minutes, 1 second.

On Monday, he won in 2:08:43, the second fastest time in Boston to Rob de Castella's 2:07:51 in 1986. He was within two minutes of the world record of 2:06:50 set by Ethiopia's Belayneh Dinsamo in Sunday's Rotterdam Marathon.

"I think this will convince a lot of people," Hussein said.

Rosa Mota of Portugal, a big favorite, scored her second consecutive victory in the women's portion of the race by a convincing margin of nearly five minutes.

Her time of 2:24:30 was faster than her 1987 winning time of 2:25:21. Joan Benoit Samuelson, the 1983 winner in 2:22:43, is the only woman to run faster in Boston. She was not among the about 6,700 official entries in Monday's race.

"I like to run by myself," Mota said after her fifth consecutive marathon victory and ninth in 12 starts. "It's better for me because I can look at my split times."

Tuija Jousimaa of Finland finished second in 2:29:26 and Odette LaPierre of Canada was third in 2:30:35.

Hussein and Mota, the bronze medalist at the 1984 Olympics, each won $45,000 and a car valued at more than $35,000. Hussein also became a virtual certainty to run in the 1988 Olympics in South Korea.

Kenya, Tanzania and Finland all planned to use the Boston Marathon as their Olympic trials.

In the wheelchair competition, Moussetapha Badid of France, broke the world record with a winning time of 1:43:19. The old mark of 1:43:25 was set by Andre Viger of Canada in 1986 in Boston.

Philippe Coupric, also of France, was second in 1:54:58.

The marathon had a heavy international flavor since the top Americans plan to run in the U.S. Olympic Trials. They will be held next Sunday in New Jersey for men and the following Sunday in Pittsburgh for women.

Rodgers, a four-time Boston champion, had the best time of any American, 2:18:17, and finished 28th. Having turned 40 last December, he ran in the masters' competition for the first time and was second to Ryszard Marczak of Poland, who was 25th overall in 2:17:53.

In the regular portion of the race, Ikangaa finished second in 2:08:44 and John Treacy of Ireland was third in 2:09:15. Two Italians finished fourth and fifth, Gelindo Bordin in 2:09:27 and Gianni Poli in 2:09:33.

Italy had three runners in the top seven, while the top 15 included three Tanzanians and two Kenyans.

Hussein, 29, and Ikangaa, 28, were in the lead pack from the start of the race at noon in Hopkinton where the temperature was 48 degrees and a light wind blew from the southwest as the runners headed from west to east. When the pack began to spread out over the final five miles, they were still there.

Talk Show Host May Join Show

L.A. Times-Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It's not as if he needs the work, but talk show host Larry King is talking to the "USA Today: The Television Show" gang about weekly appearances on the weekend edition of the upcoming syndicated show.

King's attorney, Bob Woolf, is also chatting up Ted Turner, whose Cable News Network has first call on King's services and would have to approve the extra TV work.

"We're hopeful something can be worked out," Woolf said Monday. "Larry's appearance on 'USA Today' next fall would mean more exposure for his CNN show, 'Larry King Live.'"

King already writes a Monday column for "USA Today: The Newspaper." He also does a late-night call-in show for Mutual Broadcasting System.

King would reportedly do about 90 seconds each week on the weekend show in the "Lifestyle" section. Woolf expects to get the word by the end of the week.

TRIPLE THREAT — Actor Alan Alda is the star, writer and director of the Paramount film "A New Life," which also stars Veronika Hamel, left, Ann-Margret, top, and John Shea, right. The film concerns life after the divorce of a long-married couple portrayed by Alda and Ann-Margret. (AP Laserphoto)

Alan Alda Writes, Directs, Stars In Film About Divorce

By BOB THOMAS Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alan Alda, the star of "A New Life," recently talked about a dispute between the film's director and writer during the closing days of shooting the Paramount film.

The exchange went something like this:

Director (after cutting a scene in half, then half again): "You don't need it. Get rid of it. It's holding the picture up."

Writer: "Are you crazy? That's got information the audience must know to understand these characters."

Director: "Then send them a telegram. Don't waste my time with this scene."

Writer: "There are two good jokes in there. I'm not wasting the audience's time."

Both figures, of course, were Alan Alda, and he reports happily that the writer won the argument. Why did that please him? "Because I think I identify more closely with the writer," he said.

Performing three functions on a big-budget movie would seem to risk a severely split personality. Not Alda. He remains one of the most stable of show business personalities. Like his character Hawkeye Pierce of TV's "M-A-S-H," he seems able to face any situation with a sanity insulated with sly humor.

"A New Life," which drew a mixed reaction from critics, concerns life after the divorce of long-married Alda and Ann-Margret. He explores the swinging single scene with his hedonist pal, Hal Linden, while she returns to school to become a teacher. The script resulted from long research by Alda.

"I talked to a lot of people who had been through divorce, maybe a couple dozen, also to professionals who had talked to dozens of people who had been going through similar circumstances," he said. "I discovered that many of my preconceptions had been wrong."

"Some people I had known for years started telling me things they had never told me before. Intimate details of their lives. Neither of us was embarrassed because we both knew I was just trying to get at the truth for this screenplay."

In the film Alda ends up with a new partner, while Ann-Margret does not. Alda, a longtime feminist, denies any suggestion of a double standard: "For her, she winds up with something that at that particular time in her life is more important: the feeling of being free and knowing that she's in control of her own life."

Co-star Ann-Margret has long been noted for her sex-charged roles. Alda paints a different picture: "She's so sweet, so shy and unassuming, I always had to ask her to talk up. She talks in such a quiet voice; she never wants to intrude on anybody. Yet she has what the character needs: an inner strength. She is a strong woman who has been through a lot of reversals."

Alda's life appears to be remarkably free of reversals. He was born into the theatrical world, the son of Robert Alda, who played George Gershwin in the 1945 film "Rhapsody in Blue." Alan got his first exposure to show business by accompanying his father on the burlesque circuit. At 16 he made his stage debut in a Pennsylvania summer theater, where he appeared in "White Cargo" with the stripper Rose La Rose.

By the time he was 26, Alda was married and the father of three daughters and making a fair living in the New York theater as well as occasional films. After starring in "The Owl and the Pussycat" and "The Apple Tree," he was lured by the pilot script of a TV series about the Mobile Army Surgical Hospital in the Korean War. "M-A-S-H" proved to be an 11-year triumph.

His images of the series? "The first image that always comes into my mind is that dark cavern of a sound stage that we would lock ourselves into at 8 o'clock in the morning or even before it got light," he said.

Strike Could Delay New Season

ABC At Work Developing Prime-Time News Program

By KATHRYN BAKER AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC News is developing a new prime-time news program that could show up on the network's schedule next fall, says ABC Entertainment President Brandon Stoddard.

"They're developing a couple of shows and I think there's a possibility ABC News would have another hour prime time come fall. I just don't know what time period or when or what the show would be, but there is active development in that area," Stoddard told a news conference on Monday.

The ABC programmer stirred controversy last year when he announced he was moving ABC's "20-20" newsmagazine out of its successful Thursday night time period. The news division feared the show's ratings would decline, but much of its audience apparently followed it to Friday and it finished the season in the mid-range of the A.C. Nielsen Co. rankings.

If there is a new news show, it might be the only new show ready to start in the fall. Stoddard said he wasn't optimistic of an early end to the 6-week-old Writers Guild of America strike.

He suggested if it lasts into June, it could substantially delay the start of the 1988-89 television season, causing more defections by network viewers to alternatives like cable and videocassettes.

According to Nielsen figures, the three networks lost 9 percent of their audience between last season and this season, though the networks blame part of the reduction on a change in Nielsen's audience measurement system.

Stoddard said a delay in the start of the new season would force networks the keep running repeats. "In addition to that, when the strike is finished, and we start putting programs on the air, there's going to be tremendous pressure to get something up on that screen, and maybe it ain't perfect when we do," he said.

"I think there also could be some erosion caused by the lack of quality. This is a very serious problem."

Of this season's new shows, Stoddard said he was most disappointed in "Dolly!" and that the network was considering buying out star Dolly Parton and canning the show next year. Parton got a two-year guarantee last year.

"As you all know, we actually have the right not to do the show," Stoddard said. "There is a penalty payment we would pay if we did not go ahead on the second year." He would not say how much it is.

Stoddard also listed "Moonlighting" as a disappointment. Formerly a top-10 show, "Moonlighting" dropped into the top 20 this season, due to frequent repeats and episodes without Cybill Shepherd during her pregnancy. Nevertheless, Stoddard said, the show most likely will be back next season.

Other likely returnees are "The Wonder Years" and "thirtysomething." Stoddard said he was optimistic that "Hooperman" would be renewed and that executive producer Steven Bochco had even developed a spinoff. "The 'Slap' Maxwell Story" is going to be a tough call, Stoddard said.

While happy his network was second this season in the Nielsen ratings, with an average, prime-time rating of 13.7 to CBS' 13.5, Stoddard said the performance really was "not that terrific." NBC had a 16.1.

Without high-rated prime-time sports programming — the World Series, the Super Bowl and the Winter Olympics — ABC actually was third in the ratings.

The rating is a percentage of the nation's 88.6 million homes with televisions.

Entertainer Takes Control Of Album

NEW YORK (AP) — Meli'sa Morgan has taken control of her own show, but she would be the first to say that she's not a one-woman band.

On her debut, "Do Me Baby," she co-wrote and co-produced most of the material. She did the same on five songs on her new album, "Good Love"; two singles from the album — "Love Changes," her duet with Kashif, and "If You Can Do It: I Can Too" — are climbing the charts.

Still, she says, "I feel there are a lot of things around me that I do handle and I have control over certain situations, but I'm not in total control because I can't do it alone."

By co-writing and co-producing, Morgan feels she has "more control over my creativity which is important in establishing a new artist and getting your sound across."

"If someone is controlling your creativity then you feel limited and you're not letting all that you can be come out," Morgan said.

The result, "Good Love," is a little more romantic than her last LP, which turned out the hits "Do You Still Love Me" and "Do Me Baby."

"I feel on this album, whether I told a sad story or a happy story, it was just more romantic," she said. "On the last album I was definitely more rebellious as a writer, not only professionally but just in the struggle of being in this business — trying to get a deal and get people to listen to me. Now I don't think I'm as hungry as I am anxious. I'm anxious to get to that next level to prove that I can handle that, too."

Inspiration came to the performer — born Joyce Meli'sa Morgan — at a very young age. As the youngest of three brothers and a sister, she enjoyed singing along to the tunes on the stereo in her mother's living room in Queens.

At age 9, she started singing with a gospel community choir, the Starlettes of Corona. The choir broke up when she was 13.

"Right then and there, I realized I could either hang out with the girls and party every weekend or I could start auditioning for bands. So that's what I decided to do," Morgan said.

She sang with local bands until her high school graduation at age 16. Then she took on secretarial jobs during the day, sang at night in small Manhattan clubs and studied music theory at the Juilliard School of Music in New York.

In 1983, Miss Morgan toured with Chaka Khan. She began to work with Kashif, singing on his albums and those of Whitney Houston and Melba Moore, which he produced, and signed with the same management company that had signed Kashif, Hush Productions.

She also began her continuing partnership with keyboardist-composer Lesette Wilson. Hush Productions had established writers but Morgan thought that she and Wilson could write better songs.

"You're always a bit skeptical when there's some one brand new and you don't know what she can do," said Wayne Edwards, a Capital Records vice president.

Garner Faces Surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor James Garner has been hospitalized in preparation for surgery to clear an obstruction restricting the flow of blood from his heart, a spokeswoman said.

"He's feeling fine," said Garner's assistant, Maryann Rea, adding the aneurysm was discovered during a regular checkup. "He wasn't sick and had no pain. Yes, it was a surprise."

Garner checked into Cedars-Sinai Medical Center on Monday. Surgery was scheduled for Thursday.

During the three-hour operation, doctors will use a balloon to compress the aneurysm formed on the wall of the aorta, which takes blood from the left ventricle of the heart to the body.

Garner, 60, was expected to be hospitalized about 10 days.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY April 20

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Update your routines so they will be more efficient and, thereby, more successful. Stay at home and be happy with your mate tonight.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Make any changes with associates that can bring greater harmony to your place of business. Cut down on your personal expenses.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Be alert for an opportunity which will appear quite suddenly as this can bring you greater prosperity. Don't hesitate to take a trip.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Listen to the advice of your mate, as this person has some very good ideas. Be careful in motion of any kind this evening.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Follow your intuition in handling personal matters, and get fine results. Don't allow some insignificant problems to ruin your good mood.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Before going out socially, listen to the advice of your mate and follow it to the letter. Be sure to think before you speak tonight.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Your intuition is excellent at this time, so don't hesitate to follow it. Stop analyzing so much, and learn to act more quickly in making decisions.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Study the promises you have made, and be sure you can handle them in the days ahead. Avoid persons who tend to ruffle your feathers.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Find out what the expectations of your associates are, and come to a fine understanding with them. Be peaceful at home this evening.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): You have some fine ideas for adding to your present income, so don't waste any time foolishly today. Cooperate more with co-workers.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Do something unique to please your mate, and establish greater happiness between the two of you. Try to use your creative abilities.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Your home and family should be your first concern today, so focus your attention there. Enjoy a pleasant evening with your good friends.

 Of the original 10 Life Masters named by the American Contract Bridge League, only two survive, and they have homophonic last names. They are Richard L. Frey, No. 8, and Sam Fry, Jr., No. 10. Although he turned 83 two months ago, Frey, who is chairman of the Goren Editorial Board, still retains much of the skill that made him one of the most successful players of the '30s and '40s. Watch him in action from a rubber bridge game played at his winter retreat in Palm Beach.

 When his partner made a forcing jump raise of his one heart opening, Frey made a three-spade slam try on the South cards. With his flat minimum, North was having none of that.
 After the diamond opening lead, declarer was happy with his contract, despite the mildly disappointing dummy that appeared. That is, until he captured East's queen of diamonds with the king and cashed the king and ace of trumps, to find that he had two trump losers to go with an apparent spade and diamond loser.

 There was one chance. If West's distribution was exactly 2-4-4-3, the contract could still be brought home. Declarer continued with ace and another diamond. Ten won the jack, but dummy's west was now established.
 East shifted to a spade. Declarer won in hand, crossed to the ace of clubs and discarded a spade on the high diamond. A club ruff was followed by a spade to the ace and another club ruff. Frey had telescoped his spade and trump loser into one, and scored 10 tricks via two spades, two top hearts, two ruffs, three diamonds and a club.
