Bank Bandits Hold 40

LOS MOCHIS, Mexico (AP) — Hundreds of police today surrounded a bank in northwestern Mexico where seven gunmen were holding more than 40 customers and employees captive. The Red Cross said five people were killed and at least 15 were wounded.

The gunmen demanded a plane to fly them safely to an undisclosed location and said they were not political.

Jesus Acosta, a spokesman for the local Red Cross, said one of its rescue workers was among those killed in a gunfight Wednesday between police and the gunmen. He said the other four victims were a female bank teller and three customers.

Other accounts said the dead included a bank official and a policeman.

Acosta said one of the seven gunmen was wounded. Earlier reports said there were six gunmen.

The gunmen are demanding to be allowed to travel to a nearby airport and leave on a plane, said Ignacio Lara, spokesman for the Sinaloa state governor.

The standoff in this coastal Gulf of California city of 120,000, about 500 miles south of Tucson, Ariz., began at 12:45 p.m. Wednesday (3:45 p.m. EDT). Witnesses said the gunmen burst into the Banamex bank and took hostages after an alarm alerted police to the robbery. The governor's office said there were no developments during the night and that Gov. Francisco Labastida Ochoa was monitoring the crisis.

Ochoa, in a live interview with the major private Televisa network, said the negotiations were being conducted "with serenity" in hopes the gunmen would turn themselves in.

But he said the goal is for the gunmen "to accept that they have committed a crime, that they take care of the lives of innocent people, that they accept reality."

One of the gunmen, in an interview broadcast live on Televisa this morning, said all the hostages were being treated well.

Asked where they could go if given safe passage, he replied: "I wouldn't be able to tell you where we could go."

The gunman, who did not give his name, said the last contact with the government was at about 6:15 a.m. (9:15 a.m. EDT).

"We can't turn ourselves in," he said. "They want to kill us. ... We're young."

Televisa said the gunmen appeared to be about 19 or 20 and that none wore masks.

The gunmen made telephone calls to Ochoa and Televisa demanding to be allowed to leave the site. "We don't have anything to do with politics," one was quoted as saying.

Lara said one of two police officers inside conducting business, Roberto Soto Cruz, tried to prevent the robbery and was shot. He said the other officer apparently was disarmed by the robbers.

Hostage Trial

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A pro-Iranian underground group said today it will try Marine Lt. Col. William R. Higgins on charges of spying.

"This criminal will be turned over today to the tribunal of the oppressed to try him for the crimes he has committed," said a type-written statement signed the Organization of the Oppressed on Earth.

The Arabic-language statement was accompanied by a black-and-white photograph of Higgins, 43, of Danville, Ky. Higgins was serving with a U.N. observer group in south Lebanon when he was kidnapped Feb. 17.

The picture showed the balding Higgins with a stubbled gray beard grown in captivity, wearing a dark field jacket, his eyes looking down and away from the camera.

It was the first photograph of Higgins released by his captors since he was kidnapped near the ancient port of Tyre. It was not known when it was taken.

Press Representatives Say Glance At Pitt Area Left Favorable Marks

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

Several invited representatives of nationally circulated publications had favorable remarks about Greenville and Pitt County today following three days of extensive touring within the community.

The careful examination was a part of a three-day planned press tour sponsored by the Pitt County Development Commission.

Seven press representatives participated in the tour which concluded today with a wrapup luncheon at the Greenville Sheraton.

Ronald Stevens, senior editor from PurchasingWorld magazine, said he has been pleased with the development commission's tour and with what he's seen of the area.

"Overall I've been very impressed from what I've seen from Greenville so far," said the Cleveland native.

"I'm from an area that's gone through some economic difficulties and is just now beginning to emerge from them. Obviously this area has worked real hard to stay out of economic trouble," he commented.

Frank Yanacek, a representative of Transportation and Distribution Magazine, said, although he has not yet seen some of the transportation-related facilities in Pitt County, he has enjoyed the tour.

"The tour has been very positive so far," he said. "The people have been very gracious and the area appears to have a lot to offer."

Magoyoshi Kaneko toured the community representing a Tokyo daily newspaper with a circulation of over 600,000.

Featured among the area tour sites were the Burroughs Wellcome plant, Procter and Gamble, Pitt County Memorial Hospital and other facilities in the medical park, the Yale Materials facility and TRW.

The press representatives also had the opportunity to talk with local officials at a dinner Wednesday at the King and Queen Restaurant.

According to John D. Chaffee, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, the purpose of the tour was to expose to the media the positive activities currently taking place in Greenville and Pitt County.

"The exposure is really twofold," he explained. "The tour offers exposure for both local area businesses and also the community at large."

He said the tour was financed by the development commission with additional support from the private business community and the city.

"Everything has gone relatively well so far," he commented.

Chaffee said the idea for having a press tour was suggested by a New York-based public relations firm retained by the commission to assist in the promotion of the community. The firm, Development Counselors International, assisted in targeting the particular publications and inviting the representatives for the tour.

"These aren't your typical newstand-type magazines," Chaffee said. "These are magazines that aim for a specific business segment ... They're the people that we want to get information to about what is in this area and what is available here," he said.

"Hopefully, they'll find some stories (here) that will fit into a storyline that they would want to develop in their magazines, or they may write a story just on what is taking place in Greenville and Pitt County, what's taking place here, and what the opportunities are," he added.

Chaffee said he believes the press tour is important and envisions it becoming an annual event. Others agree with him.

"I think it's one of many approaches which could be helpful in marketing the city," said Greenville Mayor Ed Carter. "These people represent publications specializing in different things and they certainly reach audiences with different interests," he said.

"I was impressed with the backgrounds of the individuals on the tour as well as their interest in our community," he added.

Waller Heads Pierce Fellowship

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Charles Waller was elected president of the John Pierce Fellowship Club at the organization's 66th annual meeting Wednesday at Camp Contentment on the banks of Contentnea Creek between Ayden and Grifton.

Among the estimated 200 people attending the annual gathering were Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham, Attorney General Lacy Thornburg and State Auditor Ed Renfrow.

Other officers elected Wednesday, in addition to Waller, who replaces Superior Court Judge David Reid, were Sammy Carson as vice president, Wayne Harris as secretary and Leroy Smith as assistant secretary.

Other candidates introduced at the session included Harold Hardison, a candidate for lieutenant governor; incumbent Tom Taft and Charles McLawhorn, who are seeking the Democratic nomination for the 9th Senate District seat; Ed Warren and Walter Jones Jr., who are seeking re-election to the House; incumbent Chief District Court Judge Burt Aycock and Bob Wheeler, who are seeking the nomination for a district court judgeship; Annie Holder, a candidate for nomination as Pitt County Register of Deeds, and several Pitt County commissioner hopefuls, including incumbent Charles Gaskins, D.D. Garrett, Linwood Mercer, Wilton Duke, Walter Dale and Carl Whitfield.

J.B. Spilman, chairman of the Pitt

County Democratic Party, gave a brief history of the club, saying the organization had its beginning on April 4, 1922, when a group of 19 men met at Peele's Beach on the Pamlico River in Beaufort County to celebrate the 48th birthday of John B. Pierce, an Ayden merchant and cotton broker.

The group so enjoyed the outing, Spilman said, that it decided to celebrate again the following year.

The first meetings were known as "J.B.'s Birthday Party," then later as "the John Pierce Birthday Party." In 1942, the year Pierce died, the name was officially changed to the "John Pierce Fellowship Club" and the first president was elected.

NEW DIRECTOR — Nelson Britt, a native of Rochester, N.Y., has been named by the Greenville Museum of Art Board of Trustees as the museum's new director. He is the museum's first male director. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Museum Of Art Names First Male As Executive Director

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Nelson Britt has arrived in Greenville as executive director of the Greenville Museum of Art, ending a six-month search for a permanent successor to Mary Ann Pennington, who resigned last October to accept a museum directorship in Laurel, Miss.

Nell Webb, president of the board of trustees and chairman of the search committee, said her group "interviewed ... 13 highly qualified candidates, and decided that Nelson was the person best suited for the work to be done here."

A native of Rochester, N.Y., Britt is the first male director of the Greenville Museum of Art. He succeeds Becky Young, who served as interim director during the board's search for a new permanent director. Previous directors of the museum were Lucy Cherry Crisp during the early days of establishing the museum's forerunner, followed in turn by Edith Brunell and Ms. Pennington.

"Several things about the museum and Greenville impressed me and influenced my decision to accept the position," Britt said Wednesday. "First of all is the evident support given to the arts by the business community I became aware of while I was here for an interview-visit in February. Another situation that impressed me very much is the presence in Greenville of an outstanding school of art at East Carolina University."

Mentioning his pleasure about the Greenville Museum of Art facility, Britt said, "My feeling is that this is a museum that has flexibility, a potential for expanding the already fine quality of exhibitions and community projects."

"Personally, as a director, I consider one of my main missions to be the objective of working to secure a broad, continuing support in arts from the community, both from businesses and from local people."

He noted also that he will dedicate his efforts to "the policy of the museum's board to give tangible support to local, regional and national artists both from the standpoint of the museum's exhibitions and in building its permanent collections. I'm definitely pleased with the quality of art in the collection and in the variety of exhibitions that have been shown in the past."

Britt is married to the former Rima Danielson. The couple has a 7-year-old son, Aaron. "They will be joining me in Greenville at an early date," he said.

He holds a bachelor's degree from the State University of New York at Buffalo and a master's degree from the Rhode Island School of Design, Providence.

His previous experience has included acting chairman of the public school art department in Salem, Mass.; superintendent of art education for the Peabody, Mass., public school system, and executive director of the Springfield Art Association in Illinois. Most recently, Britt was executive director of the Arts and Science Center for Southeastern Arkansas, Pine Bluffs.

As a painter, Britt has had extensive shows and is represented in numerous corporate collections, including work in the Sperry-Hutchinson Building in New York and the state of Illinois collections.

Festival

The Farmville Dogwood and the Arts Festival opens Friday at 4 p.m., with an official opening ceremony at 6 p.m. and continuation throughout Friday evening and all day Saturday.

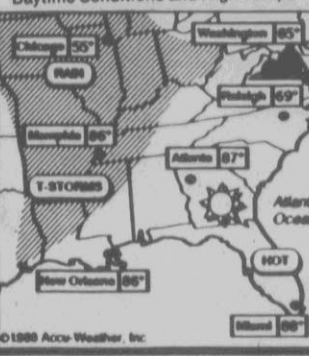

The opening ceremony will be held on the Walter B. Jones Town Common, with church bells scheduled to ring throughout the town. Judge John B. Lewis Jr. will be the master of ceremonies and Farmville Mayor Edna Earle Baker and Barbara Owens, festival coordinator, will speak. A dogwood will be planted to commemorate the first year of the festival which the Farmville Community Arts Council plans to make an annual event.

Two blocks of Main Street will be closed to traffic Saturday and merchants will hold sidewalk sales from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Witness Says Sneed Told About Killing Tripp In Robbery Effort

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

A witness in the first-degree murder trial of Eurston Ivon Sneed testified Wednesday in Pitt County Superior Court that Sneed told him the night of Dec. 31, 1983, that he had shot Willie Hubert Tripp Sr. three times and thought he had killed him.

Sneed, 35, of Beaufort County, is charged with first-degree murder and armed robbery in the 1983 New Year's Eve killing of Tripp at Tripp's Bypass Service Center on Memorial Drive. District Attorney Thomas Haigwood was scheduled to continue presenting evidence for the state today.

Under direct examination from Haigwood, James E. "Dick" Sherman of Greenville testified that Sneed often stayed at his house, and he had done so Dec. 30, 1983. Sherman testified that Sneed said "he had a deal to pull" on New Year's Eve, and Sherman drove him to Fifth Street that evening to meet some friends.

Sneed called about 8 p.m. and asked Sherman to pick him up, ac-ording to Sherman's testimony, and when Sneed got in the car he said, "I think I killed a man."

Sherman said he questioned Sneed because he was not sure whether or not to believe him, and Sneed explained how he had stopped at Tripp's to buy cigarettes but the station was closed and the door was locked. After Sneed knocked on the door and told Tripp he wanted to purchase cigarettes, Tripp opened the door and Sneed forced his way into the station, according to Sherman's account of what Sneed told him.

Sherman testified that Sneed said he thought Tripp was reaching for a gun, and he shot Tripp three times. Sneed said he left the scene when people across Memorial Drive in the Holiday Inn parking lot noticed the commotion, according to Sherman.

Sherman said Sneed later told him he had taken a gun from Sherman's house and used it in the incident.

State Bureau of Investigation agent Dennis Honeycutt testified Wednesday that during his investigation of the crime scene he found a fully loaded pistol inside a drawer below the cash register in Tripp's station.

Sherman said he did not tell police about the incident until 1986, after another friend, Roland Rhodes, visited him and secretly recorded his account of what happened in 1983. Rhodes had supplied Sneed with a car and a place to live after the shooting, Sherman testified.

Two other witnesses for the state, Alvin Harding and Robert Pettus Jr., also testified Wednesday that Sneed told them in December of 1983 he planned to rob a service station.

Harding testified during direct examination from Haigwood he saw Sneed on Fifth Street in Greenville

Dec. 16, 1983. Sneed discussed going to California and said he needed money, according to Harding.

Harding testified that Sneed said he had been "casing out" Tripp's service station, and a man there often carried about $2,000 in cash. Sneed also asked if Harding had a gun he could borrow, and Harding said he told him no.

Greenville police officer John Fleming testified Tuesday that he and a nurse found about $1,600 in Tripp's pockets after he died.

When Harding saw television news accounts of the shooting, he said he thought Sneed was responsible. Two days after the shooting police stopped Harding and asked him what he was doing in the neighborhood near Tripp's. Harding said he was visiting his sister, and the next day he called Greenville police to tell them what he knew so that the police would not hassle him.

Pettus testified that he spoke with Sneed on Fifth Street about 6:30 p.m. Dec. 31, and Sneed asked "for a bag of dope" and said he was preparing to rob a man on Memorial Drive and would have money soon. Sneed showed him a pistol, Pettus said.

Sneed left within 10 minutes, and Pettus said he heard sirens and saw

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

No Duplication

Chamber Request Too Steep

When you double your money, you don't necessarily double your benefit. And when you're talking about public money, duplication is out of the question.

That's why the City Council must sharply question a $44,000 request from the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce to sell Greenville to business and industry prospects. The request comes too close to duplicating efforts already under way — projects that are effective and paid for by public money.

The Pitt County Development Commission is funded by dollars collected from both city and county citizens under a tax levied specifically for industrial development. Since city taxpayers contribute a sizable portion of this tax it seems unnecessary to further burden Greenville citizens unless extraordinary need is identified.

And there is no clear indication of a special need above and beyond current funding levels. The Development Commission's budget, at the direction of the County Commissioners, has expanded substantially — from $108,730 in 1985 to $257,007 in 1988. Its budget is earmarked for continued increases in 1989 and this growth is appropriate and necessary.

The motivation for this expansion was the acknowledged need for a more aggressive approach for marketing Pitt County to industrial prospects. That need is real, and the program under way and funded by these increases in Development Commission appropriations is sound. It includes comprehensive advertising efforts. Furthermore, it represents a unified approach to expanded recruiting because it includes both city and county money and perspective.

Why, then, with these facts in mind, does the chamber feel the need to conduct, at public expense, what appears to be a duplication of this tax-paid program?

There's no question advertising and marketing dollars are well-spent when it comes to recruiting new business and industry. There's no doubt the city needs to more actively participate in funding marketing efforts than it has in the past.

But the $44,000 request from the chamber seems too steep. That amount represents half the chamber's $93,287 budget for 1988. The chamber's request also appears to separate the city's marketing effort from Pitt County's, a flawed and counterproductive measure.

If the chamber wants to conduct its own advertising campaign for the community, it should do so. But it should be privately funded. The Development Commission's marketing strategy is ambitious and inclusive and City Council members should strongly consider that fact when deciding how much to spend selling Greenville.

Good Judgment

Making Way For New Talent

The announced resignation of United States Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd from that post next year is an appropriate move that can make way for new Democratic leadership in the Senate.

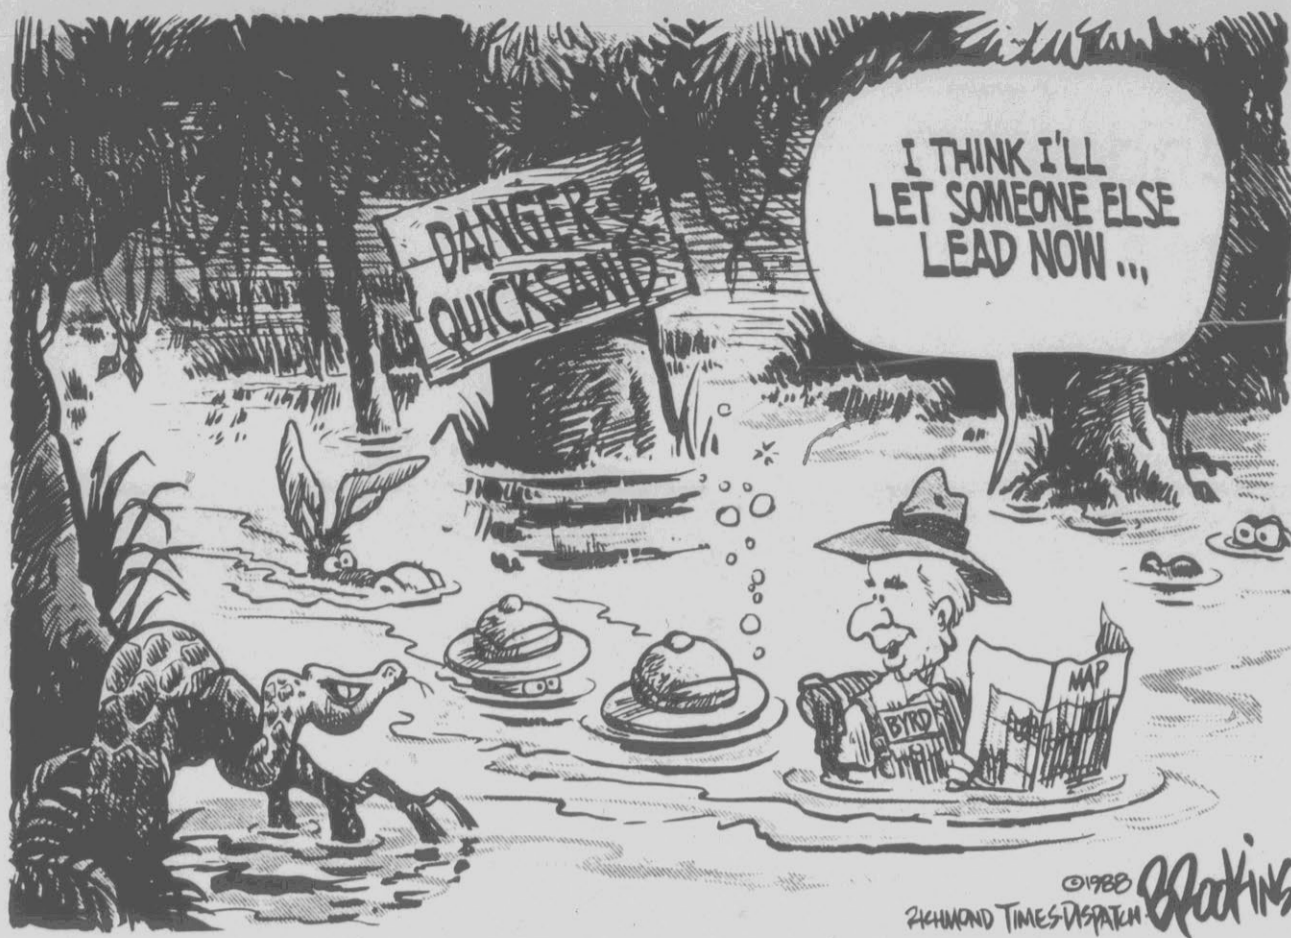

Byrd, at age 70, has been a leader for the time he has served in the position. It is, however, proper that he now relinquish the post and allow new Democratic talent to develop in the Senate. There has been criticism of his style and his television image. While that might not be appropriate, it does lend weight to the argument that new leadership is needed.

There is effective new leadership available in the Senate among the Democrats. Already mentioned are Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine; Daniel Inoye, D-Hawaii and J. Bennett Johnston, D-La. While none has emerged as front runner it is expected to be a spirited campaign among the Democrats to choose a new majority leader.

Certainly the position is important. For two presidential terms Congress has been dealing with a Republican president and the Senate majority leader post may have been the most influential Democratic position in Washington. In such a situation the majority leader most projects to the public the image of the Democratic Party.

While Byrd has done a credible job, he is showing good judgment now that he will not continue to be majority leader. Certainly adequate new talent is available and it is time to allow that new talent to emerge.

Byrd expects, however, to remain in the Senate, and his contribution would be welcome there. If he is re-elected to a sixth term and the Democrats control the Senate he plans to become chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee. That position can also lend itself to the type of "quiet labor" Byrd says his leadership as Senate majority leader has been.

To the editor:

1988 will be remembered as the first time the state's largest environmental groups played a pivotal role in the outcome of the May primary. With little more than gifts from ordinary citizens in their treasuries, the N.C. League of Conservation Voters (which has targeted Harold Hardison for defeat) and the Sierra Club (which endorses Tony Rand for lieutenant governor) are flinging their limited resources into the political arena. Their message is that during his long career in the General Assembly Hardison's voting record on environmental issues is so dismal he's been known to many as "Hazardous Harold" for years.

North Carolina's environmental community includes everyone who realizes that the quality of our daily lives is affected by how our elected officials deal with pollution, acid rain, the protection of endangered species, the disposal of toxic wastes, the continuing disappearance of wildlife habitat and a host of similar issues. The May 3 primary gives us the best chance ever to show that North Carolina's environmental community extends far beyond the rolls of organized groups.

Our next lieutenant governor will hold the second highest office in the state and will preside over the Senate. If Hardison has been "hazardous" in the General Assembly, how much damage could he do as President of the Senate?

North Carolina's largest environmental groups don't want to find out ... and neither should we.

To the editor:

Last Thursday, April 14, 1988, I attended the 22nd Annual Suzuki Festival at Wahl-Coates School. This is the first time I have attended the Suzuki Festival.

I was appalled by the behavior of the audience — they talked through the whole concert. Many people got out of their seats and walked around during the performance. This was not just the children, but many grownups as well. I think this was terribly rude to the children and teachers who had worked so hard to put on an excellent concert and to those in the audience who had come to listen to the music.

Elan And Daring Only Nostalgia

'There are others — though not in the National Unity cabinet — who believe that elan and daring are not enough, and that it makes better sense to talk to one's enemies rather than simply kill them.'

JERUSALEM — As the bullet-riddled body of Khalil Wazir, the military chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was being lowered into a martyr's grave in Damascus' Yarmuk cemetery Wednesday, the commanders of the Israel Defense Forces and the Mossad secret service were patting themselves on the back over a nasty job very well done.

Wazir, better known by his nom de guerre, Abu Jihad, died before dawn last Saturday when eight members of a 30-man squad of Israeli commandos, led to their target by Mossad agents, burst into his villa outside Tunis and shot him in front of his wife and children. The other soldiers provided cover outside.

Despite the continuing official silence in Israel, the details that have emerged so far about the assassination single it out as an operation of unsurpassed technical brilliance that combined thorough intelligence with flawless execution.

John Le Carre could not have written a more dramatic story. The Mossad operatives, using false Lebanese passports and speaking the right Arabic dialect to match, formed the advance party, the detailed reconnaissance of the villa and the route to it was carried out long before.

The Mossad men rented the three vehicles used to bring the commandos — members of an elite reconnaissance unit attached to the general staff and wearing Tunisian National Guard uniforms for the occasion — from the beach where they landed in rubber dinghies that were launched from a missile boat waiting safely off shore.

An air force Boeing 707 electronic warfare plane — Israel's equivalent of the American AWACS — flying in international air space between southern Sicily and northern Tunisia, served as a command and control center, linking the hit team with its mother ship.

On board the plane commanding the operation was a senior Israeli officer, probably Gen. Ehud Barak, a former head of military intelligence and now the deputy chief of staff. Jamming equipment was used on the ground to disrupt telephone and radio links in the Sidi Bou Said area where Abu Jihad lived, ensuring the raiding party a safe retreat after the killing.

Considering the scale of the operation and the immense risks involved, it was mounted at fairly short notice. Israeli sources said Wednesday that the plan was first raised on March 9, three days after three Palestinians who infiltrated from Egypt seized a civilian bus in the Negev desert and killed three of its passengers before dying themselves in the Israeli assault.

Abu Jihad, the Israelis say, planned that and scores of other terrorist attacks. In April 1985, he sent a boat called The Atavarius from Algeria with a squad of Palestinians briefed to land in Tel Aviv and storm the Defence Ministry complex in the centre of town. His killing was finally given the go-ahead on Wednesday April 13, three days before execution.

The Mossad, responsible for targeting and producing psychological profiles of plo leaders, did not underestimate its victim. A secret graphological test carried out by the Israelis five years ago found Abu Jihad to be a perfectionist of high intelligence and a precise and analytical mind. He was a dangerous foe.

Saturday's liquidation of Khalil Wazir will doubtless go down in Israeli history as a feat on a par with some of the country's most famous exploits in its shadowy war with its Palestinian enemies and serve as a textbook example of the aggressive use of good intelligence and precision planning in a complex inter-service operation.

Abu Jihad, a tubby, genial man with a penchant for neat safari suits, would not have been surprised by the way he died. He would have understood, too, that he was killed because of his "military" activities — what the Israelis call terrorism — and not because of his limited role in supporting the four-month long Palestinian uprising in the occupied territories.

On the eve of Thursday's celebrations of the 40th anniversary of the foundation of the Jewish state, the Tunis killing has come as a badly needed boost to Israeli morale, currently at its lowest point since the invasion of Lebanon in 1982.

Ezer Weizmann, the dovish former defense minister who opposed the assassination, has no compunction about shooting terrorist leaders. But, like other liberal Israelis, Weizmann recognizes that Abu Jihad, who was on the right wing of the PLO and represented that awkward combination of violence and pragmatism that makes the organization so morally and practically awkward to deal with, might, under the right circumstances, have become a man of compromise.

There are others — though not in the National Unity cabinet — who believe that elan and daring are not enough, and that it makes better sense to talk to one's enemies rather than simply kill them. "The Abu Jihad operation may make us feel good, may be good for our egos," wrote the columnist Yoel Marcus in Wednesday's Ha'Aretz newspaper, "but it does not in itself really address the weighty problems this country should be struggling with."

"The killing of Abu Jihad is a symbolic illustration of what is happening to us. It was an operation made for a nostalgia movie about the good old days of brilliant punitive raids — because it does not advance us one inch towards a solution."

Strength For Today

Three things the ancient prophets always told the people of their generation with reference to international events. First, they assured them that systems based upon force and cruelty would eventually be destroyed: these prophets had a profound respect for the heavy hand of God. In the second place, they urged those who believed in God to keep themselves free of the evil influence of godless nations. They sometimes advocated the most rigorous measures for the suppression of godlessness.

Last of all, they continually assured their hearers that those who believed in God would find their only real security in trusting him. Armies, they declared, were of only temporary avail, but a man's trust in God gives him adequate and lasting security in the day of darkness.

These are messages coming to us from an ancient day, and we may well ponder them in these chaotic times.

Navy Has Its Gulf Act Together

Analysis

WASHINGTON — The recent exchange of hostilities in the Persian Gulf reminds us of three recurring truisms that have yet to be resolved in American security policy. The first is that we proceed from crisis to crisis without clearly stated national goals, reacting to, rather than controlling, the diplomatic environment in which we work. The second is that our national political leaders have yet to comprehend the proper way to use force, and by seeking to minimize the risk of casualties in the short term, vastly increase those risks over the long term. And the third is that the military commanders and troops in the field continue to serve their national leaders far better than their national leaders serve them.

The American Navy has operated with exceptional skill in the Persian Gulf, despite the administration's introduction of an unwieldy and in some cases inappropriate force structure, and despite its hesitance to use its forces as other than diplomatic symbols, floating targets that are invitations to an international incident. Last week the Iranians took the administration up on that invitation, again sowing a mine field in international waters — an act of war — and scoring a hit on an American warship. The superb skill of the crew saved the ship. Retaliatory acts occurred this week, and in the end the Iranian navy was dealt a serious setback. The numbers are still coming in, but it appears that two frigates are destroyed, a guided missile PT boat is sunk and a number of "boghammar" gunboats are done away with.

Oh, yes. And we also shot the hell out of two oil platforms. It is important to remember the oil platforms, because they were the only intended targets of an administration that is now basking in the glory of a military success that it did not direct.

As we examine the superb performance of the Navy this week, it should be remembered that the administration again chose a minimal course of retaliation against Iran, one that in itself would neither have deterred the Iranians nor insulated our sailors from further actions by Iran. Conducting target practice on a couple of oil platforms was hardly designed to send chills up the spine of the average Iranian sailor, particularly those who make a living laying mines. Nor would it have affected the ability of the Iranian military to again perform an aggressive mission at the time and place of its choosing, using American warships and sailors to communicate its foreign policy to the world, and just possibly — as in Beirut — to win the tragedy sweepstakes and put America on its ear.

As it was, a few foolhardy Iranians got in the way of the work on the oil platforms, a few others attacked a U.S.-owned tugboat and a Panamanian barge with U.S. citizens aboard, and then two frigates attempted to pull out of port at Bandar Abbas, firing a stray round or two at some American aircraft. Local commanders determined that "hostile intent" existed in each case, and the Iranian naval assets were all quickly destroyed.

In other words, military commanders on the scene took the type of action that the administration has been too fearful to direct itself, the type of action that should have been taken five months ago and the only type of action that can ensure the operational security of our forces in the Gulf.

The administration has carefully nurtured the notion of "proportional response" with respect to our Persian Gulf activities. One would imagine that 25 years of failure would be enough for any concept. Proportional response doomed us in Vietnam, enabling the enemy to adjust continually, and even to control the tempo of the war. Those in the military who watched Vietnamese railroad tracks and bridges destroyed (and then quickly replaced) in exchange for attacks on people know full well that the destruction of Iranian oil platforms in exchange for attacks on people will not work. The way to eliminate mine-laying is not to blow up oil platforms, or even to continually sweep mines. It is to eliminate the mine-layers. If we are not prepared to do so, we have no moral right to expose dozens of U.S. ships and thousands of U.S. lives to the consequences of our cowardice.

Politicians adore proportional response. It gives them the best of both worlds. On the one hand, they are supporting retaliatory action. On the other, they are not supporting the type of action that will cause them to be accused of being, well, warlike. But military people detest proportional response, and in my view quite rightly so. It is like kicking the shins of a man with a machine gun. You do not take his capabilities away, and you do not demonstrate to him that you are serious about using your own capabilities. And you must nervously await his reaction, at the time and place of his choosing.

Now that we have demonstrated our naval capabilities to Iran, and at the same time destroyed much of its navy, we can afford to take a much-needed and appropriate step: to declare victory, put Iran on harsh notice and markedly reduce our naval structure in the Persian Gulf. The greatest advantage of a navy such as ours is its ability to concentrate forces during crisis and then disappear back into the sea when the crisis is resolved. This allows diplomacy to be tested without offering up our naval assets as convenient targets, and also would enable us to control the initiative if military force again became necessary.

James Webb, former secretary of the Navy, resigned over policy differences in February.

More Cause For Sorrow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once again President Reagan may face what he says is his saddest task: comforting the families of American servicemen lost in the line of duty.

He has had to do a lot of it. More than 300 American servicemen have lost their lives in combat or to terrorists overseas since Reagan took office in January 1981.

By contrast, the only servicemen who died in the line of duty during the four years Jimmy Carter was president were the eight killed when a helicopter collided with a transport plane during the abortive attempt in April 1980 to rescue the Americans held hostage in Iran.

The latest U.S. military involvement in the Persian Gulf may have added to the current toll. The White House said Wednesday the Navy has abandoned its search for a Marine helicopter that disappeared Monday over the gulf. The pilot and copilot were declared missing.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan might call the relatives of the missing crewmen, although he knew of no immediate plans to do so.

In an interview in February, asked what his greatest regrets were about his presidency, Reagan spoke of "calls that have had to be made to families who have lost someone" and said, "Those are things for which you have to be very sorry."

Asked whether the contrast between the Reagan and Carter figures is the fruit of a belligerent posture by Reagan, Joshua M. Epstein, a research associate in foreign policy studies at the Brookings Institute, said, "It's a tough question."

"It's hard to know what another administration would have done under the circumstances," said Epstein, author of defense studies including an analysis of U.S. strategy and force planning in the Persian Gulf.

Reagan, who came to office charging that Carter had weakened America and vowing to regain respect abroad with a stern policy toward potential foes, has sometimes raised hackles in Congress with his bristling rhetoric and his acts to back it up.

Critics charged that he failed to think through the reasons for sending U.S. Marines to Lebanon, where 241 service personnel died in an attack on a Marine barracks on Oct. 23, 1983. The Marines were later withdrawn.

Of the Marine peace-keeping force in Lebanon, he said in a February interview with The Washington Post that "the terrible thing was that they were actually succeeding in their mission and that's why the violence was turned on them."

And he said of the Grenada invasion: "I ... can't help but be proud that there is an island now down in the Caribbean where there aren't any signs 'Yankee go home' but where somebody sent me a postcard the other day ... a photograph of a wall ... painted with all kinds of graffiti ... about 'God love the U.S.A.'" police cars headed to Tripp's service station within 20 minutes.

Under cross-examination from defense attorney Calvin King, Harding said he had received a $500 reward in 1986 from Crimestoppers, for information leading to Sneed's arrest.

Harding, now serving a four-year sentence for assault with a deadly weapon, told King he did not ask the police about a reward when he provided the information.

Harding also denied he provided the information to the police to turn the investigation away from him. Harding testified he was with his family in Washington, N.C., on New Year's Eve and was never a suspect. King questioned Pettus about previous drug convictions. Pettus said he has been convicted on various cocaine and heroin charges four times since 1980, and he has twice gone to prison.

Pettus was also arrested in 1986 on charges of possession and delivery of heroin and the case has never reached court. When King asked Pettus if the state delayed the case because they needed his testimony in the Sneed trial, Pettus replied, "I doubt it seriously."

When questioned a second time, Pettus said, "That's between my lawyer and the state of North Carolina, when it goes to court."

Coastal Workshops

Two coastal initiative workshops are scheduled for eastern North Carolina next week.

The first session will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday in the council chambers of the municipal building in Edenton. The second will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday in the new Onslow County Courthouse in Jacksonville.

Twenty coastal counties are covered by the Coastal Management Act and their municipalities are eligible to participate.

For more details on the workshops contact Edythe McKinney in Raleigh at 733-6376.

Trombone Recital

Scott H. Ruedger of Durham, a student of George Broussard in the East Carolina University School of Music, will present his senior trombone recital at 9 p.m. Friday in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall on campus.

For his program, Ruedger will perform works by Marcello, Jacob, Serocki and Busser. He will be accompanied by Mark Gansor, piano, and assisted by Jimmy Wooten, tuba; Brad Langhaus and Scott Pagona, trumpets, and Kim Kelly, French horn.

The recital is free and open to the public.

Public Hearing Set

The Pitt County Board of Education will have a public hearing on the 1988-89 local expansion budget Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room of the Pitt County Office Building.

Each person addressing the board will be given two minutes for a presentation. Applications for addressing the board may be obtained from the office of public information at 830-4258.

Youth Art Winners

Winners were selected for the Pitt County schools Youth Art Competition, sponsored by First Union National Bank and held as part of the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival. Students winning first, second or third place received awards.

Winners in their categories were: kindergarten and first grade — Krista Harrington, first; Demetrius Grant, second, and Lauren Foust, third. Courtney Boyles and Shawntez Tyree received honorable mentions.

Grades second through fourth — Virginia Lynn Bullock, first; Maria Hoffman, second, and Gwendolyn Perkins, third. Brian Harrison, Wendy Stancill and Nyeema Morgan received honorable mentions.

Grades five and six: Contina Foreman and Stephanie Searingan, first; Virginia Feiway, second, and Haven Bade, third. Teresa Gandy won honorable mention.

Grades seventh through ninth — Randall Harris, first; Damian Barrett, second, and Garrick Witherspoon, third. Carlton Barnhill, Kevin Summerlin and Randy Miller received honorable mentions.

All Species Day Set At Park

The first in what may be an annual event, the All Species Day, will take place Saturday in Greenville's River Park North. Activities are open to the public without charge.

Termed a "celebration of the Coastal Carolina bio-region," the festival will get under way at 10:30 a.m. based on the theme, "In Praise of Diversity, The Voices Among Us."

Guest speaker for the opening ceremony will be Dr. Thomas Berry, a historian of cultures. Berry has taught at several universities in this country and has lectured extensively on the emerging ecological period of earth history in Europe and Asia as well as in America. He is founder and director of the Riverdale Center for Religious Research, and since 1975 has been president of the American Teilhard Association for the Future of Man.

He has published a number of articles and is the author of a study, "The Hudson River Basin as a Bio-Region." His book of essays, "The Dream of the Earth," will be published this fall by Sierra Club Books.

Other activities scheduled for the day are:

• 11:30 a.m. — A parade of creatures featuring masks and banners made by participants and the performance of an original play, "The Council of Critters."

• 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. — A display of Native American sculpture and a story telling session by Ken March, visiting artist at Pitt Community College and story telling by Louise Kessel.

A program of folk music will be presented by Mike Hammer, Sue Luddeke and Bob Gravelin, and there will be exhibit of crafts and persons engaged in face-painting.

A special event will be a display of live animals from the North Carolina Raptor Center from the collections of Rusty Gaul.

"All Species Day" has been planned, coordinated and is jointly sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, Pamlico-Tar River Foundation, Streamwath and the Sierra Club.

River Park North is Greenville's 367-acre nature park, and is located on Mumford Road north of the Tar River.

Young Soviets Begin N.C. Tour

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A group of young Soviet leaders is getting a taste of North Carolina barbecue, baseball and politics in a five-day visit to the Research Triangle area.

The 15 members of the Soviet delegation, which includes a banker, machinist, communist party official and a journalist, arrived today on a visit sponsored by the Committee of Youth Organizations of the U.S.S.R. and the American Council of Young Political Leaders.

A U.S. delegation will visit the Soviet Union in June.

The exchange is designed to give young leaders in the two superpowers a chance to learn more about each other's political and economic systems, said Beth A. Branch, executive director of the North Carolina Leadership Forum. The forum is hosting the Soviets during their stopover in North Carolina.

"We hope it will help shape their understanding of how foreign policy and other policy is shaped in this country," Ms. Branch said.

The chairman of the Soviet group Valery Tsybukh, first secretary of the Ukraine Komsomol Central Committee and deputy to Supreme Soviet of the Ukraine.

The first activity will be a roundtable discussion in the Senate chamber of the state Capitol. The Soviet delegation will talk with a North Carolina group consisting of state Reps. Bill Alexander, D-Cabarrus, Judy Hunt, D-Watauga and Johnathan Rhyne, R-Davidson; Alan Pugh, political adviser to Gov. Jim Martin; Chris Scott, president of the state AFL-CIO; and Thomas Stith, director of minority affairs for the state Republican Party.

The discussion will center on state government operations and issues, including the relationship between the Republican administration and the Democrat-dominated General Assembly, Ms. Branch said.

Pugh said he also expected to discuss foreign policy.

"Soviet-American relations is something I've been interested in a long time ... since Krushchev was taking his shoe off at the U.N. and waving it around," Pugh said.

The visit will provide an opportunity to "challenge their preconceptions, as they can do with us. It will be a learning process for both groups," he said.

"I certainly intend to vigorously defend the free enterprise system and the foreign policy of the United States, but I also intend to listen to what the Soviet delegation has to say," he said.

After the discussion, the groups travel to Durham Athletic Park for a barbecue supper. Then they'll watch a minor-league baseball game between the Durham Bulls and the Lynchburg Red Sox.

Friday morning, the Soviets will tour GTE Co., Glaxo Corp. and Northern Telecom facilities at Research Triangle Park.

Families Of Missing Marines Cling To Hope

By The Associated Press

The Navy has ended its search for two North Carolina Marines missing in the Persian Gulf, but families of the two fliers say it is difficult for them to give up hope.

"It's awful to say we've given up," said Bob Hill of Thomasville, the father of Capt. Kenneth Hill. "At the same time, our son has a 4-year-old who has to be told something — and we assume it will be that he's not going to see his daddy again."

"I can't imagine it being a week from now and life could still be like this. Just how do you live with a story that has no conclusion?"

A White House spokesman announced Wednesday that the Navy had ended its search for Hill, 33, of Thomasville, and Capt. Stephen Leslie, 30, of New Bern.

The spokesman said that "the search and rescue effort was terminated ... with negative results. The pilot and co-pilot have been declared missing."

The news came little more than a day after the families of both men learned they had failed to return from a night patrol mission in the Gulf.

The two Marines, stationed at New

CAPT. STEPHEN LESLIE

River Air Station, were aboard an AH-1 Cobra helicopter Monday and were to have returned to the guided missile cruiser Wainwright following the flight. Iran claims it shot down the helicopter down, but the Pentagon denies that story. "We don't blame anyone for calling off the search," Bob Hill said Wednesday afternoon, as tears welled in his eyes. "We knew they couldn't keep nine ships out there endlessly."

"But we don't know how people are supposed to get through times like these. At times we're OK. At other times, we feel like the end of the world has come."

"We're just holding on to faith that Stephen and Ken (Hill) will be home soon," Kenneth Hill's wife, Lora, said. "We love him and we want him to come home. But sometimes we don't always get what we want."

Meanwhile, in another part of North Carolina, a member of the Leslie family was feeling a mixture of sorrow and pride.

"He told the family if he ever got lost or didn't come back to remember that he was doing what he wanted to do, and to hold on to that thought," said Leslie's younger sister, 24-year-old Kris.

"The waiting has been the worst part. ... We are a close-knit family and we are banding together," Ms. Leslie told The Sun-Journal of New Bern.

Leslie and his wife, Lisa, live in Jacksonville and the couple is expecting its first child, Ms. Leslie said.

"We're very numb right now," Ms. Leslie said.

Elderly Care Proposed

RALEIGH (AP) — A legislative study commission has rejected Gov. Jim Martin's proposal to build 19 new senior citizen centers across the state, but will support $5.6 million to improve in-house services and transportation for the elderly.

Under the study commission's recommendation released Wednesday, $360,000 would be appropriated to refurbish existing senior centers that need capital improvements. An additional $360,000 would be appropriated to allow existing senior centers to expand their role and offer "outreach programs" in counties that do not have senior centers.

Martin has proposed spending $5 million on senior citizen programs, including $1.47 million to build centers in 19 counties that do not have them.

The N.C. Study Commission on Aging also will recommend that the General Assembly appropriate $1 million for families that choose to care for elderly relatives at home rather than place them in nursing or rest homes that are partially subsidized by the state. Part of that $1 million could be used for "respite care" — temporary supervision of the elderly relative so that family members can leave the house to run errands.

Task Force Backs Inlet Jetties

RALEIGH (AP) — A state task force says jetties are the best long-term solution to erosion and wild currents at Oregon Inlet that are threatening the Herbert C. Bonner Bridge.

David G. Prather, spokesman for the state Department of Transportation, said Wednesday the engineering task force had strongly recommended placing jetties to keep the inlet clear. But environmentalists have criticized the $110 million plan, saying jetties would cause erosion in other places.

DOT officials will study the recommendations to determine cost-effective and environmental outcomes, Prather said, and state Transportation Secretary James E.

Harrington will review all the information sometime next week.

In recent years, Oregon Inlet has become a trap where northeasters have dumped tons of sand, forming shoals and sometimes making the channel impassable. Strong currents caused by the shoals have created an erosion problem that at times has forced the closing of Bonner Bridge, the only access road to Hatteras Island.

A storm that hit the coast last week chewed about 275 feet of sand from the southern approach to the bridge, but officials said the structure was not in danger. The task force of engineers and other DOT officials was formed to see what — if any — measures should be taken to protect the bridge and keep the inlet passable.

The task force also recommended using rip-rap or sand bags at the south end of the bridge as a short-term means of protecting the bridge ramp from further erosion.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will begin taking bids next week for a hopper dredge that would begin immediately hauling sand out of the inlet to make it safe for fishing boats navigating the channel.

James A. Poteat, spokesman for the Corps of Engineers in Wilmington, said, a crew will be hired to dredge Oregon Inlet possibly as early as the first week of May.

Wind Hits Pamlico

RALEIGH (AP) — The National Weather Service says a line of storms may have spawned a tornado in Pamlico County Tuesday, tearing down trees and power lines in an area 100 yards wide and 1,000 yards long.

"To my knowledge, it hasn't been investigated yet," said Jim Brackett of the weather service at Raleigh-Durham Airport. "It's not confirmed (as a tornado). It could be straight-line wind, not a tornado. Oftentimes, they follow a thunderstorm."

Brackett said the wind hit at about 2:10 p.m., knocking trees across N.C. 55 near Meritt and damaging power lines. No homes were damaged and no injuries were reported.

Four-Year Ocean Study Tracks Path Of Metal Particles

By MEG REYNOLDS
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Scientists are studying the sea floor from Chesapeake Bay to Cape Hatteras to see if metal particles produced by power plants in New York, New Jersey and Delaware are accumulating in marine life, a North Carolina researcher says.

"The question is, where do they go?" said Leonard Pietrafesa, an oceanographer at North Carolina State University. "Are they lying dormant somewhere, or are they being eaten by critters higher and higher up in the food chain?"

In a four-year, $4 million study begun in February and funded by the Department of Energy, Pietrafesa and scientists at five other research centers are collecting sediment, sea plants, fish and other samples from waters stretching from north of Norfolk, Va., to Cape Hatteras, N.C.

There are about 20 nuclear power plants and 40 fossil-fuel plants in the three-state coastal area, which each year release a total of about 20 million pounds of metals classified as "heavy" — including mercury, lead, copper and cadmium, Pietrafesa said.

Researchers hope to determine whether the metals, harmful to humans in large doses, are clinging to microscopic sea life on the coastal shelf extending about 60 miles from shore, said Pierre Biscaye, a marine geochemist from Columbia University.

If they don't wash out to deeper waters, the metals eventually will be absorbed by vegetation eaten by small sea animals and fish, which in turn are consumed by larger fish that may be caught for seafood, Biscaye said. Because the metals accumulate in bone and fatty tissue, the concentrations may become dangerously high as they ascend the food chain, he said.

Most of the seafood caught along the East Coast — including tuna and shellfish — comes from the shallower, sunlit shelf area, where plant life is more plentiful, Biscaye said.

"Sure, some gets into the fish," he said in a telephone interview from New York Tuesday. "The question is, how much? Or how rapidly does it (the metal) fall into the deeper sea, so we don't have to worry?"

People who occasionally eat seafood contaminated with heavy metals are not likely to suffer any ill effects, Biscaye said. Over time and with heavy consumption, however, it's possible for the metals to build up in the body, causing metal poisoning.

Symptoms of heavy-metal poisoning range from irritability and lethargy to organ damage, brain disorders and delayed development in children, said Karen Westervelt, a poison specialist at Duke University Regional Poison Control Center.

Because ocean currents tend to move in a southeasterly direction, scientists believe the metals are working their way down the coast from the Mid-Atlantic states, Biscaye said.

Pietrafesa, who is also working with scientists at Yale University, the University of South Florida, Old Dominion and Brookhaven National Laboratory, says differences in water temperature and salt content between shallow and deep waters may prevent the metals from returning to shallower waters once they have settled on the ocean floor.

"But what if, say, a winter storm stirs up the bottoms of the (deeper) ocean, stirs up things lying dormant?" he said. "These particles get re-suspended, and where do they go?"

Inmate Death

RALEIGH (AP) — State Correction Department officials say a 25-year-old inmate at Harnett Correctional Center died Wednesday when he stumbled and hit his head during a basketball game.

Correction Department spokesman David Guth said witnesses reported Aaron E. Pigott fell down while backing down the court and hit his head. Guth said the accident occurred at 4:55 p.m. and Pigott was pronounced dead at 6 p.m. at Good Hope Hospital in Erwin.

Guth says no foul play is suspected but the body will be sent to Chapel Hill for an autopsy Thursday.

Guth said Pigott, of Shallotte, was serving a life sentence after being convicted of first-degree rape in Brunswick County. His sentence started Sept. 12, 1985.

Sex Charges

RALEIGH (AP) — A 62-year-old Raleigh Sunday school teacher has been charged with sexually exploiting and taking indecent liberties with minors, police said.

The 11 charges against David Voyles Ellis Jr. involve two boys who are both under the age of 12, according to warrants.

Police confiscated nude photographs of children, slides, photo albums, a camera and photography equipment, a computer and computer software from Ellis' apartment, Det. W.L. Massey said Tuesday.

Police were able to identify about 10 children from the photographs, but only two of those children are believed to be from the Raleigh area, Massey said. The other children in the photographs apparently live out of state and the photos were probably taken over a period of years, he said.

Rail Line

BRYSON CITY, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin has contacted top officials of Norfolk-Southern Railway and is working with them to keep the 67-mile Dillsboro to Murphy rail line open, transportation officials said.

"Governor Martin wants this line saved and this gives me a lot of confidence this will be done," said Mark Sullivan of the state Department of Transportation's Rail Program.

Martin does not feel that abandonment is an option, Sullivan said, indicating that the state might even buy the line.

Steve Stroud, president of the North Carolina Railroad, said it is predicted that higher transportation costs in the next 10 to 20 years will make rail shipment of freight more attractive and that the state is trying to keep the line open.

Brinkley Talk

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Mass media and politics will be the focus of a talk by David Brinkley, a 40-year veteran of broadcast news, Sunday at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Brinkley's talk will begin at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall auditorium.

Brinkley, a Wilmington native, has won every major broadcasting award, including 10 Emmy Awards and two George Foster Peabody awards. His program, "This Week With David Brinkley," first aired on ABC in 1981.

UNC Ceremony

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — National leaders in medicine and children's rights, the president emeritus of North Carolina's university system and a federal judge will receive honorary degrees during commencement at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill May 8.

Recipients will be James E. Davis, president-elect of the American Medical Association; Marian Wright Edelman, president and founder of the Children's Defense Fund; William C. Friday, president emeritus of the 16-campus UNC system, and U.S. District Court Judge James B. McMillan.

Davis will receive a doctor of laws degree, while Edelman, Friday and McMillan will receive doctor of letters degrees.

Tuberculosis Tests

RALEIGH (AP) — St. Augustine's students and staff are being tested for tuberculosis after a former student was found to have the contagious, potentially fatal, disease.

"The school instituted a plan to test people who have been exposed to the student," Dr. Cyril A. Allen, the college's physician, said Wednesday. "Because of our wish to include as many as we can, we want to test everyone here as a precautionary measure."

PTL Loses Tax Appeal

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service isn't saying yet just what move it will take now that a federal court has cleared the way for the PTL's tax-exempt status to be revoked.

A three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., on Wednesday affirmed a decision by U.S. District Judge Karen L. Henderson of Columbia.

She found that the bankruptcy court where PTL is under reorganization proceedings did not have the authority to issue a preliminary injunction preventing the IRS from lifting the ministry's tax-exempt status.

Trustee David Clark said the ministry is considering additional appeals.

"Our hope is that we have demonstrated good faith to the IRS by the way the place has been run and the (changes) that have been made to operations and integrity that they might be willing to hold off," he said.

Clark made the comment after a hearing in U.S. Bankruptcy Court, during which Judge Rufus Reynolds approved the sale of $3.2 million in PTL property.

Lawyers for the Fort Mill-based ministry had argued that the loss of the status could scuttle efforts to reorganize the ministry. A plan for that reorganization is due May 16.

But attorneys for the IRS, seeking to have the revocation retroactive to May 31, 1981, said failure to revoke the status could cost the government from $55 million to $82 million in back taxes.

"Although a revocation may potentially obstruct the orderly administration in bankruptcy, we decline to create an exception ... in the absence of expressed congressional intent," the panel said.

A spokesman for the IRS in Washington, Steven Pyrek, declined to comment on the ruling or the agency's next move.

In Columbia Wednesday, Reynolds approved the sale of $3.2 million worth of property — eight houses and some land in the Lake Wylie area.

One of the houses belonged to Richard Dortch, Bakker's top aide, and sold for $425,000 at an auction.

The net gain to the ministry from the sale will be nearly $2 million, according to C. Edwin Allman III, an attorney for Clark.

Pitt Schools Get $29,970 Grant

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County schools recently received a state grant of $29,970 to develop vocational education programs for exceptional children in the school system for the 1988-89 school year.

Current academic programs in the schools are not adequate for providing practical, vocational education and skills to handicapped students, so that they "can leave school and go out to the world of work," according to Jean Averette, coordinator of programs for exceptional children.

The belief that the students are capable of working is a fundamental element in the exceptional children's program, she said.

Mildly handicapped students may be integrated into vocational programs already existing in the high schools with some adaptation, she said. But, "moderately to severely handicapped students are educated in self-contained classrooms," where vocational courses are not part of the academic curriculum.

The money will be used to develop "Project Life" — Living, Independence and Full Employment — which is funded by the N.C. Council on Developmental Disabilities. The project may be funded for two additional years as it is monitored for its effect, Ms. Averette said.

Designed for students age 6 to 21, the vocational-oriented project "will allow them to have the opportunity to get job experience within school or on a job site," she said. "And we hope to work with businesses and industries to make that happen."

A coordinator will be employed for the project, which will be piloted in seven middle schools next year.

Vocational education was targeted as an area for improvement for the school system's exceptional curriculum by an advisory committee that evaluated it after consolidation of the former Greenville and Pitt County school systems, Ms. Averette said.

A task force was developed to look at integrating vocational education into the curriculum, and it made recommendations to the school system, she said. It focused on the mildly handicapped and the moderately to severely handicapped students.

ENROLLMENT ANNOUNCEMENT HEAD START

Martin County Community Action, Inc. Project Head Start is now accepting applications for the 1988 enrollment. Eligibility is determined by HHS income guidelines, family needs and handicapping and/or special conditions of the child.

Head Start is a comprehensive developmental program for children ages 3-5. Head Start is based on the premise that all children share certain needs, and that children from low-income families, in particular, can benefit from a program designed to meet those needs.

The program operates in the context of the child's total environment - classroom, family, neighborhood - stressing not only education but also health, nutrition, mental health, social services and parent involvement.

The Head Start program has been operating in the Martin County area since 1965; in the Beaufort County area since 1977; and in the Pitt County area since 1985. Funding is received from the Office of Child Development, Department of Health and Human Services.

The Head Start program operates nine (9) months of the year - September through May. The Head Start centers are open Monday through Friday and the hours of operation are 8:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.

For more information or to enroll a child, please call Mrs. Mary Lloyd at 792-1761 or come by the Martin County Community Action Head Start Social Services Office, located in the American Legion Head Start Center, on Watts Street in Williamston, North Carolina or contact the West Sixth Street Head Start Center located at 1610 West Sixth Street.

Jewelry Stolen

Investigators said eight thefts, including $7,000 worth of jewelry and $825 worth of electronics equipment from a Farmville Boulevard home, were reported to Greenville police Wednesday.

Officer T.A. Lee said a microwave oven, a television set, a tape deck, two rings, a bracelet and a gold chain and cross were taken from 1202 Farmville Blvd. in a break-in reported at 9:15 a.m.

Officer N.B. Rice said $150 worth of cassette tapes and $100 in cash were taken from one car and two purses were taken from another vehicle at 409 Elizabeth St. in incidents reported at 1:03 a.m.

Officer R.C. Stroud said an industrial balance scale valued at $618 was taken from a vehicle parked at Carolina Benchmark at 102 Oakmont Drive in an incident reported at 8:09 a.m., while Officer B.M. Highland said a pair of shorts, a shirt and skirt, with a combined value of $206, were taken from Susan's Fashions at 331 Arlington Blvd. in an incident reported at 12:55 p.m.

Officer R.C. Stroud said a scooter was taken from L6 Wilson Acres in an incident reported at 2:19 p.m., while Officer R.S. Sawyer said several signs and golf ball washers, with a combined value of $1,440, were taken from the Greenville Country Club in an incident reported at 5:12 p.m.

According to Officer B.W. Lewis, a wallet containing $30 in cash was lost or stolen in the area of the intersection of Tenth Street and Charles Boulevard in an incident reported at 7:15 p.m.

The 4-Hers in the Southeastern District started a beautification project recently at the Ronald McDonald House in Greenville.

Participants planted 20 azaleas in a bed across the front of the house and more will be planted on May 10 at 5 p.m. There will be between 100 and 150 plants in the bed when the project is completed, a spokesman said.

The project is voluntary and is part of a larger 4-H program called "Kids Helping Kids" across North Carolina.

Chicod Activities

Triad Enrichment Program students at Chicod School completed their writing unit with the production of books.

The authors celebrated National Library Week this week by placing their books in the school media center. The authors were entertained with a tea by their teachers, Ann Davis and Mary-Anne Brannon.

In recognition of Library Week, Mickey West, a local storyteller, entertained fourth- and fifth-graders in the media center with various stories.

Second-graders held a fiesta to conclude a two-week unit on Mexico, taught by East Carolina University student teachers Sheri Stokes and Gail Williams. The students earned pesos for good behavior and used them to "buy" Mexican food and crafts. The fiesta ended with singing, dancing and breaking the pinata.

Leaf Firm Purchased

ROCKY MOUNT — The world's largest tobacco dealer — Universal Leaf Tobacco Co. of Richmond, Va. — has bought Thorpe & Ricks Inc., a tobacco processing company in Rocky Mount.

In a joint announcement by Universal Leaf and Thorpe & Ricks, officials of the firms said the Rocky Mount firm, founded in 1886, will continue to operate under its present management team as an independent subsidiary of Universal Leaf.

Thorpe & Ricks, a family owned business, last year had sales of $100 million and employed up to 500 people, while Universal Leaf's parent company, Universal Corp., employed 20,000 people and had sales of $2.1 billion, half of which involved tobacco products. Tobacco earnings for Universal last year amounted to more than $18 million.

Greenville Tobacco Co. in Greenville entered a joint venture with Thorpe and Ricks — as Thorpe Export Tobacco Co. — in 1971. But spokesmen said today that Greenville Tobacco sold its interest in the venture to Thorpe & Ricks three years ago.

"We're not involved in this (purchase) in any way," a Greenville spokesman said.

Lawyers Title Insurance Co., bought by Universal in 1985, accounted for about one-third of Universal's $56 million in earnings in 1987.

Hartwell Roper, vice president and controller of Universal Leaf, said Thorpe & Ricks "has a young and aggressive team of managers who will help us sell our product around the world (and) they have a factory and capacity that can be more totally used by us than if it was separate."

Universal Leaf's largest customer is Philip Morris Cos. Inc., a Richmond, Va., cigarette manufacturer. Thorpe & Ricks, whose largest customer is Japan Tobacco Co., has a processing plant in Brazil and exports tobacco to more than 20 countries.

The United States annexed Hawaii in 1898.

THE ONLY AUTOMOBILE THAT COMES CLOSE TO MERCEDES-BENZ IS ANOTHER MERCEDES-BENZ.

CONTRARY to what some automakers would have you believe, only one automobile can be fairly compared to the Mercedes-Benz. And that's another Mercedes-Benz. The reason is simple. Mercedes-Benz is the undisputed industry standard for automotive quality, prestige, technology and engineering excellence. Other automakers believe this as well. Which is why they are constantly comparing themselves to us. But ask yourself this: Isn't it more sensible to drive the one automobile everyone else is trying so hard to emulate? Video Machine Readers Tell Dental Horror Stories

Changes Hair

By MAUREEN HOUSTON
Bellefonte News-Democrat
FAIRVIEW HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Kim Seppi of Belleville knows just what she looks like with Linda Evans' hair.

But she didn't have to change her style to find out — thanks to a new piece of equipment at Casablanca Hair and Skin Care Center.

The video imaging machine lets you see how a hair style in a photograph will look on your head. Find the style you like in a magazine and it can be yours in a matter of minutes.

The machine uses two video cameras and a special effects generator to superimpose the two images. One camera focuses on the photograph, another focuses on the client.

The stylist adjusts the cameras to align the two faces, then refines brightness and tones. Magically, your face appears on the TV monitor with the new hair style. Or a new hair color.

"We will bring up six different styles on our video monitor and at the same time explain to (customers) what's do-able and what's not," said Sharon Langenberg, who owns the salon with her husband, Bill. The charge for the service is $20.

"We encourage clients to bring in their own pictures or they can use ours," she said.

Seppi, who has curly, layered, dark ash-blond hair, spent a recent lunch hour trying on new hairstyles. She laughed when Linda Evans' long page boy appeared on her head.

"I'm not quite a Carrington," she said, referring to the character Evans plays on the television series "Dynasty."

"It makes my face a little too long." A minute later, she wore Elizabeth Taylor's short, dark coif. Then a wispy, layered style that belonged to actress Donna Mills.

Seppi's goal was to find a style a bit different from the one she wore, but the drastic changes were fun, too. "I need a new cut for summer," she said. "It'll help me decide on a style that's right for me."

Langenberg said Seppi's thick hair could be styled in a number of ways. But some types of hair don't have that versatility.

"Just because we can make a picture doesn't mean we can ever do that," she said. If you have thin, fine hair, no matter how good you look beneath Farrah Fawcett's thick layered locks, it's just not going to happen. But you can still have some fun.

Sharon Langenberg advises whether a hairstyle will work, then explains in terms of time and money what it will cost to keep up the look.

"If you're changing your hair color, you can test and see whether a certain hue looks good on you or not," she said. And for $2.50 you can have that look for posterity.

"We can actually take Polaroid hard copies," said Bill Langenberg. "If you think it's the look for you, we can take a Polaroid of that and you can show it to your friends or your husband before you have it done."

Langenberg, who's been in the hair care business 14 years, was fascinated with the machine from the first time he saw it.

"It's the wave of the future," he said.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Disgusted in Virginia," who was upset because his dentist had sent him to an oral surgeon to have a tooth pulled. "Disgusted" doesn't know how lucky he was.

Thirty years ago I went through two hours of torture in a dentist's chair while he attempted to pull an impacted wisdom tooth. Abby, that primitive practitioner was sweating from the effort, and he had to inject Novocain three times to help me endure the agony. I was a petite 22-year-old at the time and had recently given birth to my first child. When I got home, the Novocain had worn off and the pain was worse than going through childbirth!

The pain lingered on to a lesser degree for two months, so I went back to the dentist, who acknowledged that while nearly yanking my jaw apart, he had broken a healthy molar next to the one he had extracted! Although he had "repaired" the broken molar, it had to be removed because an abscess had formed.

The whole horrible experience caused me physical problems for years, but I was too naive at the time to sue anybody. How I wish I had been referred to an oral surgeon. — TORTURED IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR TORTURED: Meet a reader who was similarly tortured:

DEAR ABBY: "Disgusted in Virginia," who was annoyed when his dentist referred him (her) to an oral surgeon to have a tooth pulled, should be grateful!

Twenty years ago, a dentist told me that a tooth had to come out — then he proceeded to pull it. It cracked at the gumline, so he called his associate in from the next room — more painkillers while they both stood over me taking turns trying to dig the tooth out! Meanwhile, there was blood all over the place! That instilled in me a fear of dentists that I didn't have before. This fear caused me to avoid regular maintenance visits, so a few years later I needed another tooth pulled. This time, the dentist sent me to an oral surgeon,

Dear Abby

who extracted the tooth with no effort, no pain, no problems. It cost me a few extra dollars, but it was well worth it. — V.J. GIBBONS, PORT ST. LUCIE, FLA.

DEAR V.J.: Now let's hear it from the "Drill Sergeant":

DEAR ABBY: I think it's important for the public to be better informed, so I am responding to "Disgusted in Virginia."

The dentist referred his patient to an oral surgeon because he had the patient's welfare in mind. Dentists refer to oral surgeons when:

1. The patient is not in good health, and the extraction of a tooth could jeopardize health or life.
2. The tooth is exceedingly difficult to remove where neighboring teeth, the sinus or other vital structures may be damaged.
3. The patient is what I call a "dental loser." A dental loser is someone who sees a dentist only when he has pain. A dental loser accepts no responsibility for the deterioration of his teeth; instead he says, "My parents have dentures ... bad teeth run in the family."

Abby, it's disgusting to have to extract teeth that could have been saved with only a little effort on the part of the original owners. — PARK L. FIREBAUGH, DDS, INDIANAPOLIS

George McCoy Is First In Pilot Program

RALEIGH — For many, a simple cut causes little pain and is a matter of only momentary concern. Yet for George McCoy, a coordinator of special programs in rehabilitation engineering and vocational evaluation with the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation Services, even a small cut can become a matter of life and death.

George has hemophilia, a genetic disorder that prevents his blood from clotting usefully. He is also the only person in the world to undergo testing of a new synthetic clotting factor which could eventually lead to a cure for hemophilia.

According to statistics from the National Hemophilia Foundation, 20,000 Americans have severe hemophilia, and a total of 100,000 live with some form of hemophilia. Until the 1960s, hemophiliacs were confined to their homes and had to avoid any activity which might cause injury, even simple activities. They could not travel, since any injury would require immediate medical attention. Without a cure for their disorder, hemophiliacs led an isolated and lonely life, unable to work or attend school regularly, unable to enjoy even the simple pleasures which are the experiences of a normal life.

McCoy led just such a life as a child, often missing school, often confined to a bed, or moving about with crutches. He had friends, but was limited in the ways he could enjoy them. He had the love of concerned but not overprotective parents — parents who encouraged his interest in reading and helped him to remain in the public school system to allow some element of normalcy in his life. He also had an older brother and two sisters; like him, McCoy's brother was a hemophiliac and died at age 29 when the younger McCoy was in high school. One of McCoy's sisters is a carrier of the disease.

Despite the challenges he faced, McCoy did well in school, was elected student council president in his senior year in high school, and graduated from college with a bachelor's degree. But finding work was a different matter.

McCoy graduated from UNC-Chapel Hill and began regular employment in May, 1974, as a vocational rehabilitation counselor at Duke University Medical Center. In October, 1978, he came to work in Raleigh as a coordinator of special programs in rehabilitation engineering and vocational evaluation and is now coordinator for computer services at Vocational Rehabilitation. But his involvement with the Hemophilia Center in Chapel Hill and invited them to be part of the pilot project to test this new clotting factor on humans.

"It was sort of historical poetry, going back 20 years later and involving Chapel Hill again," McCoy said.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration had approved human testing of Recombinant DNA Factor VIII, and the genetic engineering program began in 1987, using McCoy as its only test case.

"The trust factor was pretty big, but I had known the folks at Chapel Hill for 17 years, and they had saved my life several times," McCoy remembers. "They brought me from disability to become a university graduate and productive employee."

The synthetic factor had been successfully tested on dogs to determine if it stopped bleeding, and on mice to check for an antibody reaction. The animals passed the test, but it was still unknown how the human body would react.

But McCoy accepted the risk and entered the pilot program. He was first admitted to the hospital for 24 hours of baseline studies. One week later, he was again admitted for 24 hours to administer the synthetic product and draw blood. Every two weeks on Saturday for the first 3-4 months of the program, McCoy traveled to Chapel Hill. Doctors were testing to see if the product was present in his blood in the proper amounts and if the product was creating any unexpected side effects in his other organ systems. No toxic reaction had built up, and the results seemed positive.

"The day will come within 10 to 20 years when there will be a breakthrough leading to a cure through the use of genetic engineering," McCoy said. "Through gene therapy, doctors will be able to take a virus, encode it with the message, 'make Factor VIII,' expose the body to the virus, and the body will begin to make Factor VIII on its own."

McCoy's involvement in these pilot projects has gained him some measure of fame. In February, 1988, WQED, a Pittsburg-based public television station, interviewed McCoy for the "Infinite Voyage" series which explores new frontiers in science. The program is currently scheduled to be aired on public television June 1, 1988.

Living From Meal To Meal

I ran out in the driveway the other night waving a bag of cold spareribs and shouting to one of my grown kids, "Put this in a 350-degree oven for 20 minutes and eat a green salad with it."

He threw it in his glove compartment and sped away.

God forgive me, I have turned into my own mother. She fed me at birth and never stopped. She lived in fear that I would have 15 minutes of spare time and nothing to eat. I'm the same way. I fed my children when they got up in the morning, when they came home, when they watched television, and when they were bored and had nothing to do. I force-fed them when they were sick, fed them to keep them quiet in the car and fed them when I was hungry. I'm still feeding them. I can't let them leave the house when they visit without putting a leftover in their hands.

Why do we do this? Because the entire country is consumed with eating, that's why. I read a comment once on a group of Japanese who were visiting our country and they observed Americans were friendly, but fat. They said we had food on every street corner.

It's true. Not only is food on every street corner, but eating is all we do all day long. We eat in the car on the way to work. At the office the first thing we do is get another cup of coffee and a doughnut. We eat at sports events and at the movies. The first thing we do when we board an airplane is put our tray tables in position. When you're served a meal in a hospital, a menu is on the tray so you can choose your next meal.

Feed a cold! Starve a fever! I never starved anything. Eating constantly is one of those lifelong habits that is hard to break. I blame it all on my grandmother who never let people leave her house without sending home a leftover with them. When she baked bread, you'd have thought she was feeding the 32nd Airborne Division. All of the children and the grandchildren went home with a loaf of her homemade bread.

My mother carried on the tradition. I went home with old bones for soup, leftover chicken for chicken salad, half a pie, cookies for lunches, and mystery packages that "your father wouldn't eat." Our car wasn't out of the driveway before she was preparing leftovers to send home for the next visit.

As I told my husband, "All this eating has to stop. Food is a false god. You are looking at a woman born again. I'm going on a diet and stop thinking about food."

"What are you doing?" he asked. "Planning my diet menus for the next week."

Pine nuts, also called Indian nuts, pignon, pignolia and pinon, are used in confectionery and pastries as well as in meats, salads, sauces and rice dishes in Mediterranean cooking.

Baltimore Flies Into Record Book With Its 14th Straight Loss To Open The Season

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A sign flapping in the biting wind at County Stadium poked some fun at the Baltimore Orioles, a team that's had little to laugh about since the 1988 baseball season began.

"O-and-162," the sign read. "That's why they call them the O's."

With more than 140 games left, Baltimore's Birds already have flown into baseball's record book with an 0-14 start. It's the worst opening to a season in major league history.

The Orioles have changed managers, changed pitchers, changed lineups and even tried a different uniform color. The results, however, have not changed, and now they've passed the 1904 Washington Senators and 1920 Detroit Tigers, who began their seasons with 13 straight defeats.

"This is not the way you want to make history," Baltimore second baseman Billy Ripken said after Wednesday night's record-setting 8-6 loss to the Milwaukee Brewers.

"It's definitely a downer," said Terry Kennedy, a veteran catcher in his second year with the Orioles.

"The Orioles are always remembered for something, mostly for winning, but they're going to be remembered for this, too," he said. "I'm sure it's embarrassing to the owner. I feel bad for him, but we're doing what we can."

"Maybe 30 years from now when we're old, we'll be watching some other team creeping up around 12 or 13 and we'll be laughing at them. But now it's not funny. But it may be someday."

Manager Frank Robinson, who is 0-8 since replacing Cal Ripken Sr., is frustrated but maintains that neither he nor his players are embarrassed.

"We're professional baseball players and we're not embarrassed," said Robinson. "Nobody likes to lose 14 in a row. We're playing decent baseball now, starting to hit the ball. The pitchers did a decent job before the hitting came around, and now that the hitting is coming around the pitching is not doing the job."

"We have to get them together to win some games. We know that."

Baltimore right-hander Mike Boddicker, who has lost nine straight decisions dating back to last September, couldn't hold a 5-3 lead Wednesday night as the Brewers scored four times in the fifth inning to win their fourth straight.

The Orioles, who had a .186 team batting average before the series in Milwaukee began, had 12 hits, and their six runs were the most they've scored in a game this season. They even loaded the bases in the ninth off Milwaukee relief ace Dan Plesac, who got pinch-hitter Carl Nichols on a fly ball to end the game.

But the Brewers had 15 hits, including a bases-loaded, two-out single by Jim Gantner to key the four-run fifth. The inning was kept alive when the Orioles lost Rob Deer's towering pop in the lights. The ball dropped between four Orioles in shallow center field for a single, a play that perhaps symbolized the Orioles' frustrating beginning.

"Until we win, nothing is going to take the pressure off," Robinson said. "Right now they're going to feel the pressure until they win. They're human."

Glenn Braggs staked Milwaukee winner Bill Wegman, 1-2, to an early lead with a three-run homer in the second inning. But the Orioles tied it with five singles off Wegman in the third and then took the lead at 4-3 on Billy Ripken's sacrifice fly in the fourth and at 5-3 on Larry Sheets' homer in the fifth.

But Robin Yount's fifth homer got the Brewers rolling in the fifth, and Gantner, hitting .147, delivered the key hit as Milwaukee beat the Orioles for the fourth time this season and for the 19th time in their last 22 games.

The 14th straight loss also tied a Baltimore franchise record.

"We've worn out everything about how we feel. We told everybody about our emotions. And now we just have to go out and one of these days we'll win a game and it will all be behind us," Kennedy said.

Milwaukee manager Tom Trebelhorn said his team has tried to stay away from streak talk. The Brewers had enough last year when they won 13 straight to open the season and then dropped 12 in a row in May.

"I don't think we think about the misfortune they're going through," said Trebelhorn. "It's more of a media event. It's not a fun one, but it's intriguing. This doesn't happen very often."

Pitching Aces Do Their Thing In Wednesday Wins

By The Associated Press
Everything came up aces for the Astros, Mets and Giants.

Pitchers Mike Scott, Dwight Gooden and Rick Reuschel, the acknowledged aces of their respective staffs, did as they are supposed to following losses by their teams with victories Wednesday night.

Scott threw a four-hitter and struck out seven in Houston's 1-0 victory over Atlanta. Gooden also had a four-hitter and fanned 11 as New York beat Philadelphia 6-2. Reuschel allowed six hits for his fourth straight win as San Francisco took Cincinnati 5-3.

Elsewhere, it was Montreal 5, Chicago 1, and Pittsburgh 8, St. Louis 1. The Padres and Dodgers were rained out for the second straight day at Los Angeles.

Astros 1, Braves 0
Scott took over the NL lead with 31 strikeouts and was in total command against the Braves, who had won two straight after opening the season with 10 losses.

Scott, 3-0, didn't walk a batter in his second complete game of the season. He retired 10 of the first 11 men he faced and didn't allow a hit until Albert Hall's infield single led off the fourth.

"My split-finger was working good and I threw it a lot, particularly near the end of the game," said Scott, the 1986 Cy Young Award winner. "I was as good as it's been all year."

"I didn't want to make a mistake in a one-run game. I just wanted to make all quality pitches."

Houston got its run in the fourth when Bill Doran had a one-out single, moved to third on a Glenn Davis single and scored when Kevin Bass singled to right.

"When someone pitches a game like that," Astros manager Hal Lanier said, "you don't worry about getting more than one run."

Mets 6, Phillies 2
Gooden, 4-0, was overpowering in holding down the Phillies, who had scored 10 runs in each of their last two games at New York. He pitched perfect baseball until Steve Jeltz lined a single to left with one out in the sixth inning. Jeltz, a lifetime .215 hitter, was 4-for-26 in his career against Gooden prior to breaking up the no-hit bid.

Gooden did not walk a batter and had a two-run single in the eighth. "The breaking ball was the key," Gooden said. "I was hitting my spots. Each game I have made progress."

"It was good to get the win tonight because the team needed it. I was thinking about that."

Kevin Elster and Darryl Strawberry homered for the Mets, while Mike Schmidt had a two-run shot for Philadelphia. It was Schmidt's 533rd career homer, one behind Jimmie Foxx for eighth spot on the all-time list.

Giants 5, Reds 3
Reuschel allowed five singles and Chris Sabo's solo homer in six-plus innings and is 8-3 in 12 games since he was acquired by the Giants last Aug. 21 from Pittsburgh. Atlee Hammaker pitched the final three innings for his second save.

Reuschel pitched carefully, uncharacteristically walking three. He'd walked just 10 batters in his 17 previous games, a span of 95 1-3 innings.

"Tonight was probably the wildest you'll ever see him," San Francisco manager Roger Craig said. "But it was kind of intentional wildness because he was trying to get them to chase bad pitches."

The 38-year-old veteran was unavailable for comments after the game. But catcher Bob Brenly knew how the Reds felt facing Reuschel.

"They took some very healthy cuts against him, but they hit the top of the ball," Brenly said. "I know the feeling from batting against him. You feel like you're right on him, then you go back to the dugout wondering why you didn't get a hit off him."

Candy Maldonado drove in a first-inning run with a sacrifice fly and singled home a run in the third. San Francisco scored all five runs in the first four innings.

The game also featured a steal of home by Robby Thompson on the back end of a double-steal in the fourth.

Expos 5, Cubs 1
At Chicago, Hubie Brooks had a three-run homer, Andres Galarraga a solo shot and Tom Foley singled in the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning. Montreal has won five straight games; Chicago has lost four in a row.

The game-winning single was Foley's third hit of the season, all singles, but gave him four runs batted in and his second game-winner.

"I'm glad I can do what I'm doing," said Foley, whose best RBI production was 28 last season. "I know I'm not going to get 70 hits and drive in 80 runs."

Pirates 8, Cardinals 1
Pittsburgh continued getting sensational pitching and timely hitting in winning its fifth straight home game this year and ninth in a row, dating back to last season. The Pirates are 10-3 overall, their best start since going 11-2 in 1962.

Pigskin Pigout Party Set To Get Under Way Today

The 5th annual Great Pirate Purple/Gold Pigskin Pigout Party kicks off its weekend this afternoon with activities continuing through Saturday evening.

The Pigout Party, which revolves around the annual spring football game, is a fund-raising effort for the Pirate Club, which funds scholarships for East Carolina University.

This year's featured attraction is a "reunion" for the Miller Lite All-Stars who have appeared at previous Pigouts, plus the first appearance of all-stars Lee Meredith, who plays "The Doll" in the beer commercials. Meredith is due to appear tonight at the social and auction for those participating in the Pig-Out Golf Classic. That event will be held at the Greenville Hilton at 7 p.m.

Other all-stars in attendance will be L.C. Greenwood, Ben Davidson, Boog Powell, Jack "Hacksaw"

Reynolds, Larry Csonka and Conrad Dabler.

The first event of the weekend is a baseball game at Harrington Field where ECU's takes on the University of North Carolina. The game is scheduled to begin at 4 p.m.

Friday, the golf tournament will begin at 8:30 a.m. and will conclude with a luncheon.

Other Friday activities, all in the Ficklen Stadium area, include a softball tournament, which will begin at 3:30 p.m.; balloon tether rides and a carnival will begin at 6 p.m.; a boat show at 6:30 p.m., live radio shows at 7 p.m., a live band at 9 p.m. and the beginning of the pig cooking at that time also. A fireworks display is scheduled for 10 p.m.

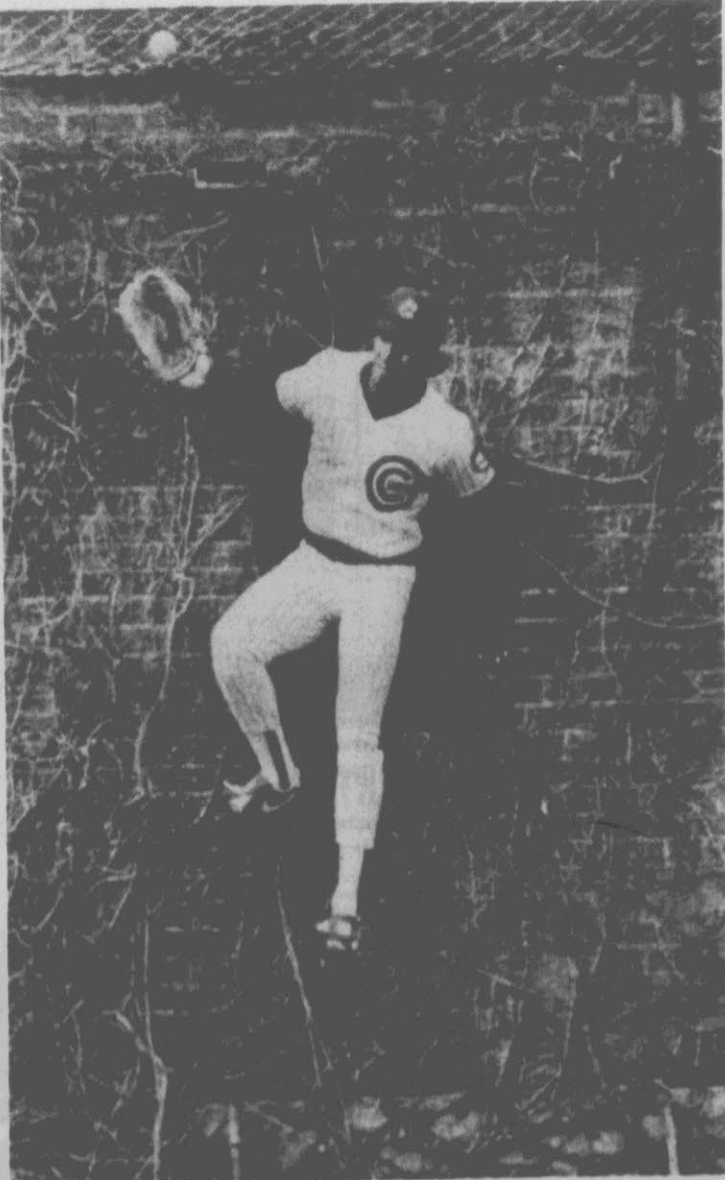

In addition, at the Greenville Hilton from 6 to 9 p.m., "An Evening With the Stars," the all-star reunion banquet, will be held. Tickers for this event are $50 and a few tickets remain available.

Saturday, activities in the stadium area will begin at 7 a.m., with the judging of the pigs, with the mini-carnival and boat show resuming at 10 a.m.

Various other activities are set during the morning and afternoon, including the ECU Marching Pirates, a dunking booth, clowns, the all-star competition, the championship game of the softball tournament, kiddie games, autograph sessions with the Pirates and the all-stars, the Suntan Bikini contest, the best-dressed fans contest, and, of course, barbecue dinners.

The central feature of it all, the Purple-Gold football game, is set to start at 3:30 p.m.

Fiesta Biathlon Set For Sunday

The Fiesta Biathlon will be held Sunday starting at 12:30 p.m. in downtown Greenville.

The event, sponsored by the Bicycle Post and Chico's Restaurant, includes a 3.1 mile run and a 15-mile bicycle ride.

Final registration will be held from 10 a.m. until noon. Late registration fees are $22 per individual or $27 per team. The entry fee includes the race fee, a T-shirt and post-race meal and refreshments. All proceeds will be donated to the Greenville Special Olympics.

Some 280 entries from at least five states are expected to take part. Prizes will be awarded to the top three finishers overall and in each age group for both men and women.

The run will begin at the corner of Cotanche and Reid streets, with the course returning to that point for the start of the bicycle race, which will also end at that point.

UNC Takes Two Softball Wins Over ECU

Kara Geary tossed a two-hitter in the second game of a college softball doubleheader as North Carolina took a pair of games from East Carolina Wednesday.

Geary's two-hitter keyed a 5-2 win in the second game to top off a 3-1 win by the Lady Tar Heels in the opening game.

In the second game, UNC took an early 2-0 lead with two runs in the top of the second and added one run each in both the third, fourth and fifth.

ECU pushed across its two runs in the sixth. Debbie Atkinson singled and stole second. Mickey Ford singled to score Atkinson before eventually coming home on a passed ball.

In the first game, UNC scored two runs in the top of the first and added its other run in the fourth.

ECU's lone run came in the fifth when Jeannie Murray singled and went to second on an error that allowed Leslie Cramer to reach. Murray went to third on a passed ball and scored on Mona Jackson's single.

ECU was led by Tracy Kee with a 2-4 performance. ECU falls to 24-11-1 and returns to action Friday at Furman for a doubleheader.

Conley JV Baseball Team Tops Vikings

KINSTON — Conley's junior varsity baseball team gained a 9-8 victory over Kinston Wednesday.

Paul Jackson started the game and left after two innings with an 8-1 lead, but Bill Jenkins took the win as a reliever.

Andy Fassett and Tim Allen each collected two hits for the Baby Vikings. Conley is now 7-2 and will play against Havelock tonight.

PCC Takes Tennis Win Over Chowan

Pitt Community College eased past Chowan College, 5-4, in a tennis match Wednesday.

Pitt won four of the six singles matches to get a leg up on the match. The Paladins then picked up the number one doubles match to wrap it up. Pitt had to forfeit both the number two singles and number two doubles, accounting for half of the Chowan total.

Now 2-0, Pitt will play at Coastal Carolina of Jacksonville today.

NCHSAA Considering 4-A Title Game Site

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Wake Forest, North Carolina and N.C. State are being considered as sites for next season's 4-A high school football title game, according to a North Carolina High School Athletic Association official.

A site recommendation will to the NCHSAA board of directors next month, Charlie Adams, executive director of the NCHSAA, said Wednesday while attending a conference with state athletic directors.

Adams said N.C. State and North Carolina have offered use of their stadiums free. Because Wake Forest is a private school, the association would have to pay "about $10,000" to use Groves Stadium.

Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. of Winston-Salem has offered to help solicit funds to cover the costs at Groves, Adams said.

In past years, the 4-A title game has rotated between East and West sites of the schools participating.

Adams also said the association is no longer considering a 5-A football playoff system.

Despite an overwhelming vote by 4-A schools to try the proposal, Adams said it won't happen soon.

Adams said he suggested trying a 5-A playoff system because state education officials were concerned about enrollment differential in the classification.

"Whatever we do for 4-A, we've got to be able to do for 3-A, 2-A and 1-A (schools)," Adams said.

Lakers Rebound, Top Mavs

By BILL BARNARD
 AP Basketball Writer

After a recent streak of 10 losses in 19 games and five straight defeats on the road, the Los Angeles Lakers are back to what they do best — beating the other top teams in the NBA.

"We are on track now," Byron Scott said after scoring 31 points in the Lakers' 114-107 victory at Dallas Wednesday night. "If anyone wants to win the title, they have to go through LA."

"We're ready now," Coach Pat Riley said. "We played a money-type game against the Mavericks."

It was the Lakers' fourth victory in five games against Dallas this season and gave them 60 victories for the fourth straight year, an NBA first.

"We are excited about the playoffs," Riley said. "We're under no pressure because we totally believe in ourselves."

Dallas coach John MacLeod, who hopes his team can still make up a two-game deficit against Denver for the Midwest Division championship, was impressed with the Lakers' latest conquest of the Mavericks.

"There's no doubt about it, they are still the best," MacLeod said of the Lakers. "It's amazing what they have done this year. They are just a dominant team in a very tough league. They killed us on defense and we only shot 35 percent. That was the story of the game."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Indiana 116, Atlanta 98; Milwaukee 132, Washington 94; Utah 112, Los Angeles Clippers 106; Portland 131, Golden State 117; and Seattle 121, Phoenix 98.

The Lakers built a 17-point lead before Dallas cut it to 110-107 with 19 seconds to play behind reserve Roy Tarpley, who scored 16 of his 24 points in the fourth period and finished with 13 rebounds.

Michael Cooper hit two free throws with 14 seconds to play and Scott made two more with three seconds to go, sealing the victory.

Magic Johnson had 23 assists and Mychal Thompson came off the bench for 18 points and 11 rebounds for the Lakers, while Derek Harper and Rolando Blackman each had 20 points for Dallas.

Sonics 121, Suns 98
 Phoenix, needing to win all of its remaining games to have a chance at catching San Antonio for the last playoff spot in the West, was outscored 45-19 in the last 13½ minutes against Seattle.

The Suns led 79-76 with 1:30 left in the third quarter after Eddie Johnson scored eight straight Suns points. But the Sonics took an 82-80 lead into the fourth quarter and outscored Phoenix 39-18 in the final period.

Dale Ellis, who started his first game since March 31 because of an injury to his arch, scored 24 points for the Sonics, while rookie Derrick McKey scored all of his 19 points in the second half. Johnson had 22 points for the Suns.

Bucks 132, Bullets 94
 Milwaukee snapped a five-game losing streak and knocked Washington into a three-way tie for seventh place in the Eastern Conference.

Terry Cummings had 26 points and 10 rebounds for the Bucks, who took control of the game by outscoring the Bullets 32-16 in each of the first two quarters.

Milwaukee, winning for only the second time in its last 10 games, never let the Bullets get closer than 36 points in the fourth quarter after finishing the third period with a 102-62 lead.

Paul Pressey had 17 points and 12 of Milwaukee's season-high 46 assists, while reserves Bernard King and Mark Alarie had 14 points apiece for Washington, one of four teams still battling for two playoff spots with four days left in the regular season.

Pacers 116, Hawks 98
 Indiana is even with Washington and New York in the race for the last two NBA playoff spots after Herb Williams, starting for the injured Wayman Tisdale, scored 20 points at Atlanta.

The Pacers opened a 59-51 lead at halftime, then extended the margin to as many as 21 points in the second half.

The Hawks shot 43.0 percent for the game, and Dominique Wilkins, who is 30-for-90 from the field in his last three outings, was 6-for-26 against the Pacers and finished with 18 points, 13 under his season average.

Blazers 131, Warriors 117
 Clyde Drexler scored 15 of his 29 points in the third quarter for Portland at Golden State.

The Trail Blazers led 67-55 at halftime and they extended the margin to 99-77 after three periods. Kevin Duckworth scored nine of his 25 points in the quarter for Portland.

Kiki Vandeweghe added 21 points for the Blazers, while Chris Mullin scored 23 points and Otis Smith added 22 for the Warriors.

Clark's Home Run Lifts Yankees

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer
Claudell Washington got the New York Yankees to the 10,000-home run mark. Jack Clark's homer got them their victory.

Dave Winfield also homered Wednesday night as the Yankees beat the Minnesota Twins 7-6 in the 10th inning.

In the ninth, Washington hit a pinch-homer off relief ace Jeff Reardon for a 6-5 lead. It gave the Yankees, who began in 1903 as the Highlanders, the 10,000th home run in their franchise history, most in the majors.

Washington said he would not give the historic bat or ball to the Baseball Hall of Fame. The ball landed in the right-field upper deck but was thrown back by a fan, as is the custom when an opponent hits a homer at the Metrodome.

"There'll be no negotiating," Washington said. "These are mine."
After the Twins tied it in the ninth on Gene Larkin's two-out, RBI single, Clark homered in the 10th against Reardon.

"I wasn't expecting to get up there again after Claudell hit his," Clark said.

"I saw that (the Yankees were closing in on 10,000) in the paper today. That's quite an accomplishment. Claudell's was a tremendous shot for the 10,000th. That said it for the Babe Ruths and Joe DiMaggios. That was a fitting shot. But mine ... felt great. It came at a nice time, too."

The Baltimore Orioles, meanwhile, did not have a nice time. They set a major league record by losing their 14th straight game to start the season, falling to the Milwaukee Brewers 8-6.

In other AL games, Toronto defeated Kansas City 3-0, Oakland rallied past California 9-8 and Seattle downed Chicago 5-4. The Boston at Detroit game was rained out.

The Yankees, which won their third straight game, are 5-0 against Minnesota this season. New York has outscored the World Series champions 45-20. The Twins have lost four in a row.

Reardon, 0-1, had not allowed a run in six innings this season.

"He's not Superman," Twins manager Tom Kelly said. "He's going to have his good days and his bad days, and today wasn't what you'd call a good day."

Righetti won his first decision of the season despite giving up the Twins' tying run in the ninth.

Winfield's three-run homer against Frank Viola in the sixth inning made it 5-5. Winfield is batting .411 with five home runs, and his 24 RBI lead the majors. Winfield homered after shortstop Greg Gagne's throwing error and a walk to Clark.

Baltimore surpassed the 1904 Washington Senators and the 1920 Detroit Tigers for the worst start in major league history. The Orioles, who led 5-3 in the fifth inning, could not hold off Milwaukee's rally.

Jim Gantner's two-run single sparked a four-run fifth against Mike Boddicker that put the host Brewers ahead 7-5. Boddicker, 0-4, has lost nine straight decisions since last Sept. 4.

Bill Wegman, 1-2, went five innings. Dan Plesac got his second save, pitching out of his own bases-loaded jam by retiring pinch-hitter Carl Nichols on a fly ball to end the game.

Indians 2, Rangers 1
Tom Candiotti scattered nine hits and Cleveland stopped Charlie Hough's 13-game winning streak against the Indians.

Hough, who lost despite a four-hitter, had won his last 13 starts versus Cleveland since April 23, 1984.

Candiotti is 3-0 with a 1.08 ERA. He struck out eight Texas batters in his third complete game. The Indians' staff leads the majors with a 1.78 ERA and seven complete games.

Hough, 2-2, retired the first 12 batters before Joe Carter and Mel Hall hit RBI doubles to start the fifth. Jay Bell's RBI single made it 2-1.

Blue Jays 3, Royals 0

Dave Stieb and two relievers shut out Kansas City on eight hits and Toronto scored three runs in the second inning of the rain-delayed game.

Stieb, 1-2, gave up six hits and struck out five in 6 1/3 innings. Dave Wells yielded one hit in one inning and Tom Henke went 1 2/3 innings for his third save.

Huan Beniquez hit an RBI single and Tony Fernandez had a two-run single against Charlie Leibrandt, 1-3.

The start in Toronto was delayed for 1 hour, 47 minutes by rain and the game began in 39-degree temperatures.

Athletics 9, Angels 8

Ron Hassey hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning, rallying Oakland over visiting California.

Hassey, who began the game batting .120, hit his first home run of the season. He connected off Donnie

Moore, 1-2, who relieved Stu Cliburn and struck out Mark McGwire and Dave Parker before facing Hassey.

Gene Nelson, 1-2, pitched two innings of relief for the victory.

Johnny Ray's two-run single keyed a five-run sixth inning that put the Angels ahead 8-5.

Neither starter did well. Bob Welch allowed eight runs, four of them earned, in 5 2/3 innings for the Athletics and Mike Witt gave up 10 hits in five innings.

Mariners 5, White Sox 4

Henry Cotto hit a two-run homer during a four-run sixth inning that sent Seattle past Chicago.

Cotto's first home run highlighted the Mariners' biggest inning of the season. They had not scored more than two runs in any inning during their current nine-game homestand.

Mike Moore, 2-1, pitched a complete game and allowed eight hits, including Mark Salas' three-run homer. Rick Horton, 2-2, gave up Cotto's home run.

Rose Girls Capture Big East Track Win

Rose High School's girls' track team had little trouble in romping to a 110-13 victory over Wilson Hunt Wednesday afternoon.

The Rampettes won all but two events during the afternoon. One event, the 3,200-meter relay, was not held.

Rose returns to action on Wednesday, facing Fike and defending Big East champion Northeastern.

Farmville 67
Ayden-Grifton 39
Pamlico 21

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's girls track team captured first place in a meet against the other two Eastern Plains Conference members Wednesday.

The Lady Jaguars finished the meet with 67 points while Ayden-Grifton was second with 39. Pamlico finished third with 21 points.

Farmville won six individual events while Ayden-Grifton took three and Pamlico won two. Farmville won the three contested relay events.

There were no entries in the 3,200 run, the 3,200 relay and the 300 hurdles.

Farmville is now 7-4 overall and 4-0 in conference action. The Lady Jaguars next return to action on May 4, hosting the EPC championships.

Evert Will Marry Mill

HOUSTON (AP) — Tennis star Chris Evert announced Wednesday she will wed former Olympic skier Andy Mill on July 30.

Evert, 33, said she and Mill set the date after she defeated Laxmi Prorui of Upland, Calif., 6-1, 6-4 in the featured night match Wednesday at the Virginia Slims of Houston tennis tournament.

National...

Darnell Coles hit a tie-breaking, two-run double in the fifth inning and Jose Lind added a two-run single in the sixth. Bob Walk allowed five hits in seven innings and Jeff Robinson stopped St. Louis for the final two innings. Pittsburgh has an 0.80 earned run average at home.

"We're being aggressive as a staff ... all we have to do is put the ball in play because the defense will catch it," said Walk, who is 10-3 over the last two seasons.

The defending National League champion Cardinals lost for the 10th time in 13 games to fall seven games behind the Pirates. They are 0-7 on the road.

"I don't know what you can do," Manager Whitey Herzog said. "It's had me bothered since spring training. We've got to get some hits to generate some offense ... it seems like it's always been that way for us."

McKeel, Jones Key Rams Win

PIKEVILLE — Walt McKeel went 3-4 with a double and a homer while Anthony Jones went 3-5 with two homers as Greene Central defeated C.B. Aycock, 12-8, Wednesday in Eastern Plains Conference baseball action.

The Rams scored nine times in the second inning to take an early lead.

Cornelius Hill opened the inning with a walk. McKeel doubled and Allen Vandford was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Jeff Tyson's single scored Hill. Cedric Collins brought in McKeel with another single. Vandford came home on a sacrifice fly by T.J. Johnson.

Jones followed with his first homer of the game to clear the bases and bring home three more runs. Tommy Eason got things started again with a double, followed by another walk to Hill. McKeel then homered to knock in the final three runs of the inning.

The two teams traded two runs apiece in the fourth inning, with Greene Central's runs coming courtesy of a two-run homer by Shay Beaman, before the Rams pushed across a run in the top of the fifth to make it 12-2.

C.B. Aycock countered with six runs in the bottom of the inning, keyed by a grand slam from Bob Grant to make it 12-8, but that was as close as it would get.

Timmy Matthews went 4-4 to lead the Falcons while Paul Reese and Michael Odom had two hits apiece.

Greene Central moves to 9-1 overall and 3-0 in the EPC and returns to action at home against Farmville Central tonight.

HOLLYWOOD — Bronswell Patrick limited Havelock to just one hit as D.H. Conley shut out Havelock, 7-0, in a Coastal Conference baseball game Wednesday.

Patrick, who moves to 4-1 with the win, struck out eight while issuing only one walk.

Conley scored all seven of its runs in the sixth inning.

Sherwood Wilder started things off when he singled and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Kervin Vines before going to third on a wild pitch. Jim Faulkner knocked in Wilder with a single. Patrick doubled to move Faulkner to third. Both runners moved up on a wild pitch to make it 2-0. Robbie Nichols walked. Another wild pitch allowed Patrick to score. William Crandall reached after being hit by a pitch. Gray Mills was also hit by a pitch which loaded the bases. Brian Bullock doubled in Nichols and Crandall. Scottie Barnhill's sacrifice fly scored Mills and an error on the throw in allowed Bullock to score.

Faulkner and Patrick both went 2-3 to lead the Vikings, who improve to 8-4 overall and 3-1 in the Coastal Conference. Conley returns to action Friday night against West Craven.

JAMESVILLE — North Edgecombe pitcher Dwayne Underhill tossed a one-hitter at Jamesville Wednesday as the Warriors gain a 5-1 Tobacco Belt Conference baseball victory.

Underhill struck out seven and walked four. The lone hit off him came in the second inning as Doug Jones beat out an infield roller.

The Warriors scored all they needed in the first inning, getting two. Underhill walked and stole second, scoring on a hit by David Viverette. Antonio Williams walked and Edwin Thornton's hit brought in Viverette.

North Edgecombe added two in the second and one in the seventh.

Jamesville's only run came over in the fifth. Kent Dickerson reached on an error and both David Bell and Ernie Gardner walked, loading the bases. Jeff Phelps then hit a sacrifice fly to score Dickerson with the Bullet run.

Thornton went 3-4 for the Warriors while Viverette went 2-3 with a double and three runs batted in, and Derrick Belcher was 2-2.

Jamesville is now 4-3 in TBC action and 6-5 overall. Jamesville will play Aurora tonight.

DEEP RUN — North Pitt rallied for three runs in the top of the seventh to tie South Lenoir, 6-6, but the Blue Devils pushed over a run in the bottom of the frame to come away with a 7-6 win in their Eastern Plains Conference baseball game Wednesday.

North Pitt struck first with a run in the top of the first. But South Lenoir came up with four in the bottom of the frame. North Pitt scored once in the second to cut it to 4-2. Both teams scored single runs in the fourth and South Lenoir added another in the fifth to make it 6-3.

In the top of the seventh, the Panthers rallied and tied it up. Reggie Daniels walked and moved up on a passed ball. Johnny Sherrod's single brought him home. Sherrod stole second and Randy House walked. Both advanced on a passed ball and after Craig Willoughby reached on an infield single to load the bases, David Rhodes hit a two-run double.

But the Blue Devils came back with a run in the bottom of the frame to win it. Cranford Heath singled, advanced on an infield out, and took third on Chris Cawley's single. Danny Jones walked to load the bases and a wild pitch allowed Heath to score.

Heath collected two hits to lead South Lenoir while Rhodes had a pair for North Pitt.

North Pitt is now 1-5 overall and 0-3 in Eastern Plains play. The Chargers will entertain Ayden-Grifton today.

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke pushed across five runs in the second inning and two more in the third to rally past Williamston en route to a 9-7 high school baseball win Wednesday.

Roanoke's five runs in the second was keyed by a grand slam by Mark Whitaker.

The Redskins added two runs in the third when Jesse Carlisle walked and Rusty Carson singled. An error allowed Carlisle to score and Jeff Nicholson to reach. An error moved Nicholson to second. Kevin Raynor walked to put Nicholson on third before he came home on a walk to Darren Staton.

Guy Spruill had four hits for Williamston. Roanoke was led by Kevin Raynor with two hits.

Roanoke moves to 3-6 overall.

Havelock Rallies Past Valkyries

HOLLYWOOD — Havelock overcame an early deficit to take a 7-3 win over D.H. Conley in a high school softball game Wednesday.

Conley got on top first, pushing a run across in the bottom of the first. Tracy Summerell singled and with two outs moved to third on an error that allowed Lori Powell to reach. Charlene Davenport singled Summerell to give the Valkyries the early lead.

Havelock tied the game at 1-1 with a run in the top of the third but Conley came back with another run of its own in the bottom of the inning to make it 2-1.

Havelock rallied in the fourth, pushing across three runs. Brenda Maxwell opened the inning with a single. Gretta Diederich followed with another singled. An error on the play allowed Maxwell to score. Niki Griffin singled in Diederich to make it 3-2. After one out, Stacey Sitt-niewski reached on a fielder's choice, putting out Griffin. Lisa Mason reached on an error that allowed Sitt-niewski to reach third. Laura Maxwell closed out the innings scoring by singling in Sitt-niewski to make it 4-1.

Havelock added three more runs in the sixth while Conley could only manage one more run, also in the sixth.

Diederich went 2-3 to lead the Lady Rams. Tabitha Daughton led Conley with a double and a triple. The Valkyries drop to 7-5 overall and 1-3 in the Coastal Conference and return to action at home against West Craven.

JAMESVILLE — Jennifer Getchell hit a three-run homer and pitched the win as Jamesville gained an 11-2 softball victory over North Edgecombe in Tobacco Belt Conference action Wednesday.

North Edgecombe took the lead with a run in the first, that on a homer by Benigi Underhill. Jamesville matched the run in its half of the inning. North Edgecombe then scored once in the third for a 2-1 lead.

But Jamesville then scored four times for a 5-2 edge that the Lady Warriors never overcame. Anita Hardison led off with a single, moving to second on an error on the play. She scored on Jill Rogerson's single. Kim Goldberg walked and Getchell cracked a three-run homer.

Jamesville added two more in the fourth and four in the fifth to wrap up the scoring.

Getchell and Karen Styons each went 2-3 in the game, with Styons adding a double. Underhill led North Edgecombe with a 2-3 performance, adding a double to her homer.

Jamesville is now 4-2 in the TBC and 4-3 overall. The Lady Bullets will entertain Aurora this afternoon.

Luxury, performance and value without surrender to fad or passing fancy.

To a world choking on superficiality comes an automobile offering legitimate quality and value: the Mazda 929.

Its standard equipment is so extensive it's described in a separate list you'll come to later. But note that even that will only give you the highlights. There's more. Just as there's more than equipment to the story of this exceptional Mazda. Take the subject of quiet, for example. The interior of the 929 is quieter than some European luxury cars that cost many thousands of dollars more.

Consider performance. The 929 can accelerate from 0 to 60 in just 9.2 seconds and reach a top speed of 121 mph. It outruns some "high-performance" cars priced as much as $10,000 more.

Think about this. The 929's 99 cubic feet of passenger room and 15 cubic feet of cargo space are more than you'd get in an Acura Legend. Even though the Acura's priced over $2,000 higher.

Finally, there's this. The Mazda 929, like every new Mazda, is backed by a 36-month/50,000-mile "bumper-to-bumper" warranty. It's among the best in the entire automotive world.

Don't think the story ends here. The best is waiting for you at your Mazda dealer's—behind the wheel of a 929. Come test drive one today. It'll be a lot more rewarding than chasing after the latest fad.

- 929 Standard Features Include:
- 3.0-litre, 18-valve, fuel-injected V6 engine.
 - Choice of 5-speed manual or 4-speed automatic transmission at no extra cost.
 - 100-watt AM/FM ETR stereo cassette with graphic equalizer and six speakers.
 - Electronically controlled automatic air conditioning.
 - Cruise control.
 - 4-wheel power disc brakes.
 - Variable-assist power steering.
 - Tilt/telescopic, leather-wrapped steering wheel.
 - 6-way adjustable driver's seat.
 - Theft-deterrent system.
 - Orthopedically correct reclining front bucket seats.

36 MONTH-50,000 MILE "BUMPER TO BUMPER" WARRANTY

*Comparisons based on published competitive data and Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Prices. M.S.R.P.'s exclude taxes, license, freight, options and other dealer charges. Actual prices set by dealers. Equalizer not available with optional compact disc player.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY April 22

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): This could be a very successful day, with the exception of some problem that arises at home. A successful friend can help you to be more prosperous.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Don't let a family member throw cold water on a new project which could be quite lucrative. Have a happy evening at home.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Don't allow yourself to be conned into a peculiar situation by a scheming acquaintance. Listen to the suggestions of your mate.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): A well-off friend and a business partner are willing to back you in a new project, so just ask. Avoid an argument with your mate.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): A clever co-worker with good organizational skills can be very helpful to you at this time. Work on turning your dreams into realities.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Instead of foolishly wasting your free time today, look around for some way to get ahead on your work. Be sure to drive carefully.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Some plan you have to increase production should be discussed with experts before any action is taken. Don't strain your budget tonight.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Try to establish a firm relationship with a prominent person who can be of great assistance to you. Enjoy your family this evening.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Make better arrangements with your fellow workers, and you will gain more cooperation. Rest up, and be ready for a busy day tomorrow.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): You are highly motivated now, and can make a big headway in creative areas, so get to it even if you have to neglect other matters.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): A private conversation with your family can bring greater understanding between everyone. Be sure to drive with great care.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): If you are direct with friends and associates, and let them know exactly what it is you want. Start putting money away in the bank.

 Rarely do both defenders pose an equal threat to the contract. More often than not, only one will be a menace—and he will be quickly and easily identified. Your job, then, is to keep him off lead until your contract is safe.

 North was a wee bit aggressive on this hand. Since his partner had, at best, 15 points and could be as weak as 12 or 13, it might seem more judicious to have passed one no trump. But North gave full weight to his intermediates and five-card suit, and South accepted the invitation for the same reasons.
 After the normal lead of the fourth-best diamond, declarer soon knew who was the danger hand. He ducked the queen of diamonds at the first trick, and played low again on the diamond continuation. A third round of the suit, on which East discarded a spade, was won by the ace.
 Obviously, the club finesse had to be right for the contract to succeed—if West held the king of clubs, he could cash two more diamonds when he gained the lead with that card. A careless declarer would have crossed to the table and led a club for a finesse. When that succeeded, he would have cashed the ace of clubs—and gone down if East were an able defender. That worthy would jettison the king of clubs under the ace, and West's jack would have become an entry.

 South correctly entered dummy with the queen of spades and successfully finessed the queen of clubs. He then crossed back to the table with the ace of spades for another club lead. Had East played low, declarer intended to take his ace and continue a club. However, East did the best he could by popping up with the king, but declarer was equal to the task. He countered neatly by allowing East to hold the trick, and the contract could not be defeated.

Senate OKs Plan To Pay Internees

By JOSH GETLIN
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — The Senate, moving to close a controversial chapter in American history, overwhelmingly passed legislation Wednesday that would pay $20,000 each to about 60,000 Japanese-Americans who were ordered from homes in West Coast states during World War II and put in detention camps.

Under the historic bill, which was approved 69-27, the federal government also would issue a formal apology to these persons, most of whom were American citizens at the time of their incarceration. The estimated $1.3 billion in payments would be spread out over five years.

House members, who already have passed the legislation, are expected to give quick approval to some minor changes in the Senate version before sending it on to the White House, possibly next week. Sponsors are hopeful that President Reagan will sign the bill.

"There is a debt here," said Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, a key sponsor of the legislation. "These Japanese-Americans were unfairly branded as disloyal during wartime, solely on the ground of racial ancestry. Their internment was unprecedented in the history of American civil rights deprivation."

Several Japanese-Americans who spent time in the detention camps expressed relief that the bill had passed, saying their wartime experience had been a psychological burden for years.

"Our name has finally been cleared," said Grace Uyebara, executive director of the Japanese-American Citizens League, who was uprooted from her home in Stockton, Calif., and sent to a camp in Arkansas during the war. "We are Americans."

The detention policy began in 1942, when the nation experienced a wave of anti-Japanese sentiment after the attack on Pearl Harbor. Amid mounting fears of an invasion on the West Coast, the federal government required the mandatory evacuation from the area of all individuals of Japanese ancestry, saying they might be security risks.

Eventually, more than 120,000 people were sent from their homes, mostly in California. Many had to sell all of their belongings, often on 72 hours notice. More than 77,000 of the evacuees were American citizens, according to a U.S. Senate report.

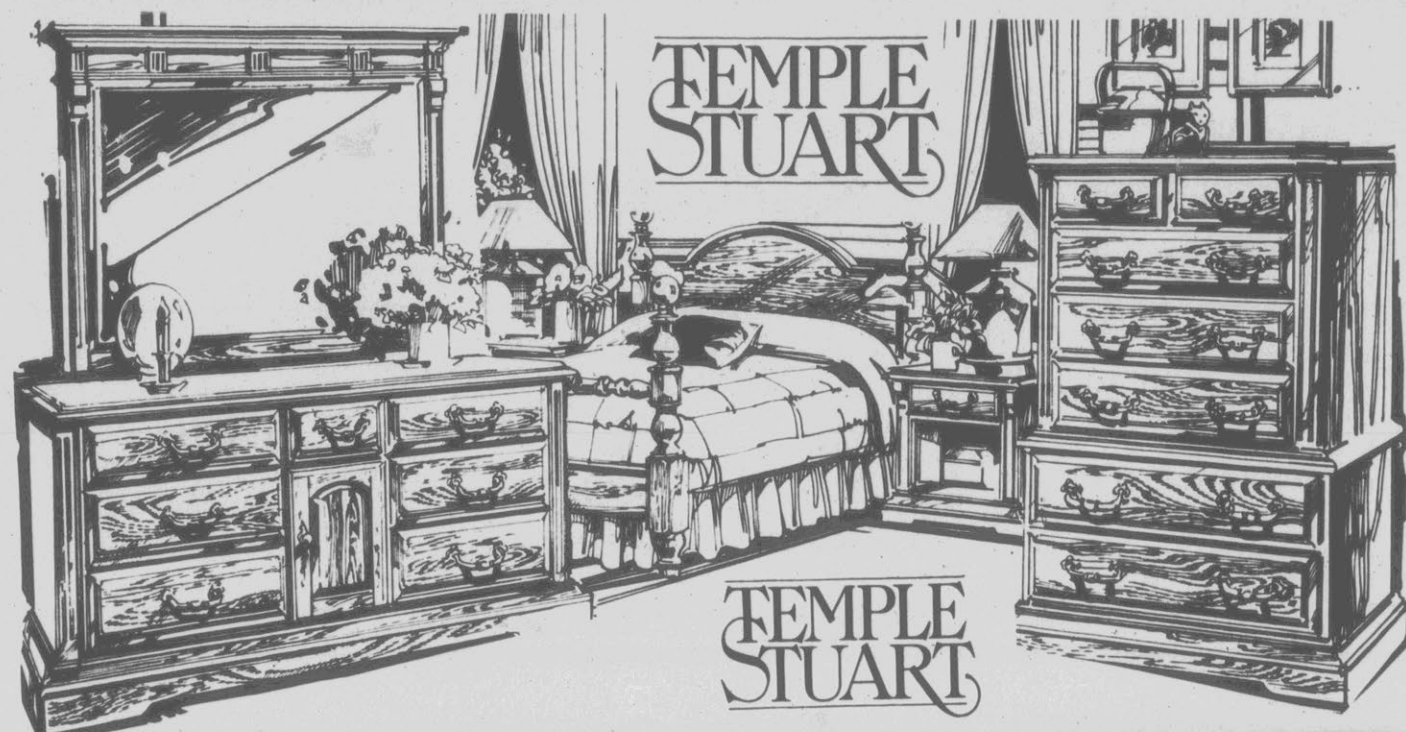

Although most of these persons spent the war in the camps, about 35,000 were allowed to leave after taking a loyalty oath, by joining the U.S. Army, or by taking jobs or attending college outside the West Coast. The internment policy ended in December 1944.

Army Will Fire 2,600 Civilians

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army will soon begin firing up to 2,600 civilian workers around the country, but remains optimistic Congress will help avoid furloughs for up to 150,000 more, a top general says.

Maj. Gen. James F. McCall, the Army's budget director, said Wednesday in an interview the service would have to reduce its civilian workforce from 412,000 to 400,000 by Oct. 1, the start of the 1989 fiscal year.

That reduction is part of a cut in strength ordered by Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci to meet the terms of a deficit-reduction agreement with Congress last fall.

"You can't get those 12,000 people down solely by way of hiring freezes, reductions (in temporary workers) and early outs," the two-star general said. Although the number of layoffs needed is still subject to change, the current estimate "is about 2,500 to 2,600 reductions-in-force ... to get 12,000 people off the rolls," McCall said.

The Pentagon disclosed in its fiscal 1989 budget plan last February that all the services would face reductions in civilian employment and that all but the Navy would see actual cuts in military strength as well.

The Army has said it will slash 8,600 active-duty positions this year to reach a new level of 772,300. McCall's comments are the first to detail the precise impact on the civilian side.

Coastal States Lose Ground In Growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government statistics may be signaling the beginning of the end of a mid-1980s trend that saw booming growth in coastal states outstrip the rest of the country, economists say.

Residents of densely populated coastal states like Connecticut, New Jersey, Massachusetts and California continued to have the highest average incomes in the nation last year, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

States like Mississippi, West Virginia, Utah and Louisiana that are dependent on farming, mining or oil were at or near the bottom.

Connecticut was the highest-income state in the nation, with an average of $20,980 earned for every man, woman and child in 1987. That was more than double the $10,204 income in Mississippi, the perennial last-place finisher.

Also as in the recent past, income growth was strongest in the Northeast and weakest in energy and mining states.

But, Rudolph E. DePass, an analyst with the Commerce Department, says the figures show growth is accelerating in the Southwest and Rocky Mountain regions and slowing elsewhere.

The national average in 1987 was $15,340, up 4.8 percent from a year earlier. Taking the 4.4 percent inflation rate into account, it was the worst gain since the recession year of 1982.

That was reflected in even the healthiest regions. The growth of income in New England fell from 7.6 percent in 1986 to 6.7 percent last year. Income growth slipped from 6.5 percent to 6 percent in the Mid-Atlantic states.

However, income growth in the tottering Southwest increased from 0.9 percent to 2.2 percent. It improved in the Mountain states from 3.5 percent to 3.6 percent.

"I think it's signaling the end of the bicoastal economy," said Mark Zandi, an economist with the Wefa Group, a Philadelphia-area forecasting service.

"The bicoastal trend came to the forefront in 1984 and continued on through most of the first half of 1987. Since last summer ... the bicoastal phenomenon has been on the wane," Zandi said.

"As we move into 1989 and 1990, it will become a thing of the past, almost as the Sun Belt-Frost Belt phenomenon waned in the middle 1980s," he said.

Zandi cited these reasons: —The increase in exports, which are growing as the falling dollar makes U.S. goods cheaper overseas, will boost manufacturing in the Midwest and in parts of the South.

—Oil and commodity prices are on the way up, brightening prospects for the Oil Patch, Farm Belt and mining states.

—Growth in the economy's service sector — which had benefited financial centers like New York, Boston and Los Angeles — is slowing. The effects of the October stock market collapse are more severe there than elsewhere.

Seven of the 10 states with the lowest per capita income were in the South.

Stealth Bomber To Make First Flight In Fall

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Imagine two huge wings from an airplane bolted together without any fuselage in the center. The Air Force says that's the general shape of the new Stealth bomber.

Piercing a decade of official secrecy, the Air Force on Wednesday released an artist's drawing of its newest strategic bomber and announced the plane would make its maiden flight later this fall.

The service also acknowledged the program was suffering some cost overruns and that a new estimate would have to be released later this year.

"Some cost growth is to be expected in any development program that is on the leading edge of technology like the B-2," the Air Force said, using the bomber's official military designation.

"But the acquisition of the B-2 ensures our capability to effectively penetrate Soviet defenses well into the 21st century."

The Stealth bomber is so named because it is designed to fly without showing up on radar. While the Air Force has flatly refused to discuss the bomber since design work began in the 1970s, its general shape has actually been known since 1985 when former Arizona Sen. Barry

Goldwater disclosed its resemblance to a "flying wing."

The drawing distributed by the Air Force Wednesday shows an airplane that to some extent resembles a boomerang. A small cockpit rises in the middle on top and inlets for the jet engines are placed to each side of the cockpit, also on top of the wing.

The design allows the aircraft to be made without any sharp or right angles. According to Pentagon sources, the plane also relies on the use of radar-absorbing coatings on its exterior surfaces and composite materials for construction.

The design has long been the object of experimentation by the Northrop

Corp., which is building the B-2 for the Air Force. The company flew a propeller-driven version of such a plane, known as the XB-35, in 1946.

A jet-powered version, the YB-49, first flew in late 1947 and was tested by the Air Force. But the service never purchased any of the planes, and experimentation with the prototypes ended by the early 1950s.

The Air Force declined Wednesday to give a precise date for the maiden flight, saying only that it would occur "this fall" and involve a short hop from the manufacturing plant at Palmdale, Calif., to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

"As the first flight approaches, many actions associated with preparations for that flight can best be accomplished in the open, without compromising program security," the service said in explaining its relaxation of secrecy.

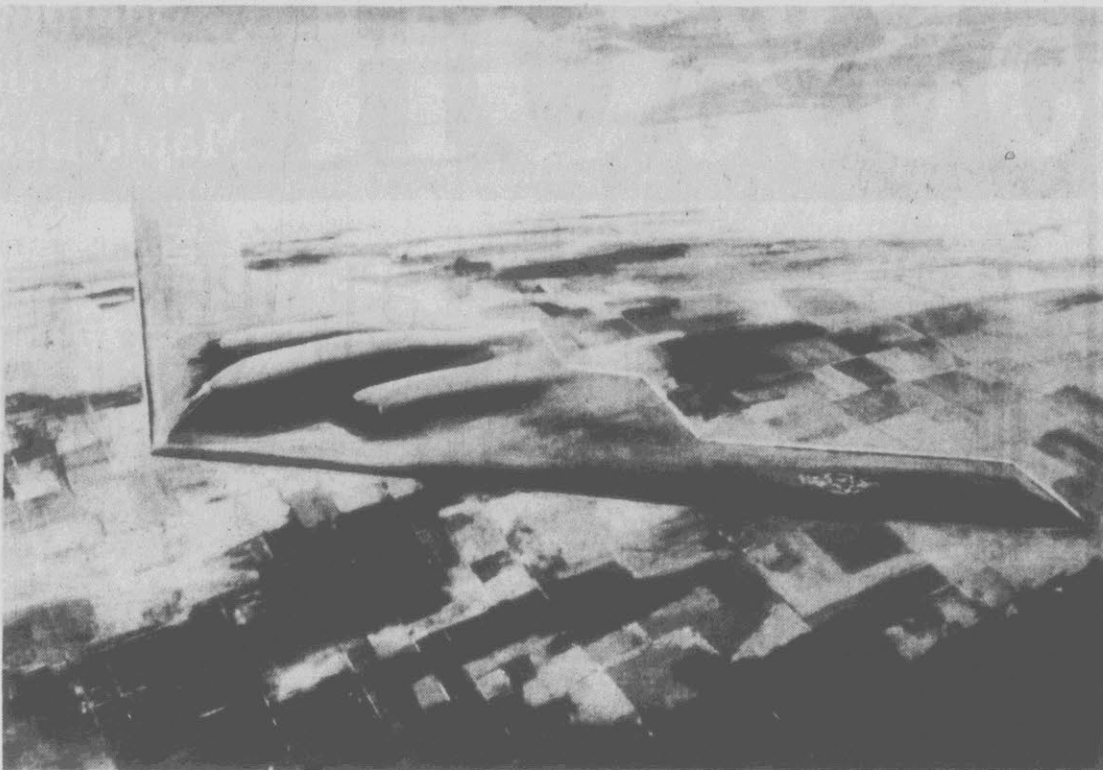

Details of such things as performance characteristics, crew size and maximum payload remain classified, however, the Air Force said. Indeed, some of the details about the plane's design — for example, the placement of the engine exhaust outlets — have been deliberately masked in the artist's rendering, service sources said.

The Air Force did acknowledge, however, the plane is going to cost more than originally projected.

"While the acquisition of 132 B-2 bombers was originally estimated to cost $36.6 billion in 1981 dollars, the Air Force is re-evaluating cost estimates for the program as a result of current and projected fiscal constraints," the service said.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, lauded the Air Force for releasing more information about the plane, saying the public needs to learn about "a revolutionary addition to our nuclear deterrent."

He predicted the bomber "will render obsolete billions of dollars of Soviet investment in their current air defense."

FLIGHT SCHEDULED — The first flight of the Stealth bomber, also known as the B-2, will take place this fall. The flying wing-design bomber, shown in this artist's rendering released by the Pentagon on Wednesday, will fly from Palmdale, Calif., to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., where it will undergo extensive testing. Brazilian Gets Tiger Cage Assist BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Students shouted "Tiger bait! Tiger, bait!" at a man who for nearly five hours occupied the outer cage of Louisiana State University's 500-pound Bengal tiger mascot before he surrendered.

The intruder, Moacyr Cezar, a 49-year-old native of Sao Paulo, Brazil, who has lived in Baton Rouge two years, merely wanted a job, authorities said.

He seized the keys of the cage from a student trainer Wednesday evening and then demanded in broken English and Portuguese to speak with LSU basketball coach Dale Brown, said university spokesman Gary Ballard.

Marksman stood by with tranquilizer guns in case the tiger got loose. A police SWAT team also stood by.

At one point, some of the hundreds of students who came to watch chanted: "Tiger bait! Tiger bait!" — the cry used at LSU sporting events when opposing teams enter.

Cezar surrendered after talking with Jose Vargas, LSU's center who is from the Dominican Republic.

"He's upset, man. He's going to be all right," Vargas said after Cezar surrendered.

Cezar was booked on first-degree robbery, criminal mischief and criminal trespassing, said police Sgt. Greg Phares. No bond was set immediately.

Ballard said Cezar served for the past two semesters as a proctor who was given room and board in LSU's athletic dormitory in return for his services as an unpaid supervisor.

"He wants a job. He has some sort of problem with his temporary visa. He says he wants a work permit," said Ballard.

Although authorities said they feared he had a pistol and heard him say he had a bomb, Ballard said no weapons or bomb were found when the standoff ended.

Cezar himself was never in danger from the tiger, a 13-year-old named Mike IV who paced restlessly behind him. And though he threatened to free the tiger, Cezar didn't leave the barred outer cage that surrounds the main cage where the big cat actually lives.

Shuttle's Redesigned Booster Apparently Passes Major Test

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — An apparently flawless test-firing of the space shuttle's redesigned booster rocket has improved the odds of NASA meeting its goal of resuming manned space flight in mid-August, officials say.

Wednesday's two-minute firing of the 126-foot rocket went smoothly, but spokesmen for NASA and Morton Thiokol, which manufactures the booster, say it will take a week to 10 days to verify the test was a success.

A cursory inspection of the rocket afterward indicated the redesigned seals in the booster's joints prevented an escape of hot gases despite deliberately built-in flaws.

"It's a happy day for a lot of people," said Royce Mitchell, solid rocket program manager for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "So far, it looks excellent."

In a post-test briefing, Alan McDonald, Morton Thiokol vice president for engineering, displayed a graph on which nearly identical curves compared engineers' predictions with a preliminary test evaluation taken from electronic monitors.

"Unless you're about only eight millimeters away, you can't tell any difference," McDonald said.

Barring discovery of problems as the rocket is dismantled, Wednesday's success means Morton Thiokol must conduct only two more full-scale tests, in June and July, before NASA can proceed with an August launch of the shuttle Discovery.

It would be America's first manned space flight since the shuttle Challenger exploded 70 seconds after liftoff on Jan. 28, 1986, killing seven crew members.

"It's like finally winning the quarterfinals of the NCAA," McDonald said of the test.

The critical concern is whether super-hot gases escaped the flawed seals. A presidential commission blamed the Challenger disaster on a joint between segments of the booster rocket whose seals failed, allowing gases to escape and ignite the space craft's exterior fuel tank.

Since then, engineers have added a third O-ring to the seals and a metal lip, or capture feature, to contain gases that may leak around the joints linking the four segments of the rocket.

The case-to-nozzle joint also has been strengthened with 100 radial bolts to prevent vibration during launch, part of a redesign planned before the Challenger exploded. This joint attaches the nozzle to the aft segment.

Group Wants Funds To Clean Waterways

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of local environmental groups wants Congress to create an "Aquafund" to clean up harbors and waterways that are toxic "hot spots."

A report released Wednesday by dozens of organizations from New England to California said the program should be modeled on the government's "Superfund" program, which is designed to locate and clean up toxic waste sites on land.

"Our waterways can only be as clean as their container," the coalition said in the report issued to lawmakers.

The Aquafund proposal and other recommendations came out of an October conference to set a national agenda for the clean up of America's bays, sounds and the Great Lakes, said Trudy Cox, executive director of Save the Bay of Rhode Island and head of the national conference.

"We're trying to tell you that our bays are worth protecting and fighting for," Ms. Cox told a dozen lawmakers gathered at a conference to discuss the report.

"America's coastal waters are dying, and we need to take action now, or lose a critical economic resource," she said. "We refuse to endure another summer of coastal horror stories, where dolphins and diseased fish and shellfish are pulled from our marine waters."

Environmentalists called the October conference, sponsored in part by the Environmental Protection Agency, the first of its kind for coastal activists and the report the first national coastal agenda.

David J. Miller, executive director of Great Lakes United, said the problem of toxic sediments has become "enormous."

He said polychlorinated biphenyls, or PCBs, found in New Bedford Harbor in Massachusetts and the Great Lakes, and heavy metals in the Chesapeake Bay, San Francisco Bay and Puget Sound, have contaminated fish and limit public use.

The proposed Aquafund would create a national priority list to identify the toxic "hot spots" and fund their clean up. EPA now only regulates water quality, not the sediments on the floors of bays and waterways, Miller said.

Ms. Cox did not put a price tag on the program, saying only it would be a "multi-multi-million dollar project."

The report also called for limiting or eliminating federal subsidies that environmentalists say encourage pollution. The group targeted the National Flood Insurance Program, saying it promotes development of fragile coastal areas.

The report also called for tougher environmental laws and more stringent enforcement, and a program to protect surviving wetlands.

Peter Ustinov Learns German To Star As Beethoven's Ghost

By JUERGEN METKEMEYER
Associated Press Writer
BERLIN (AP) — Actor Peter Ustinov, whose roles have ranged from Babar the Elephant to Rome's mad emperor Nero, is now playing Beethoven's ghost before packed houses in West Berlin.

The play, "Beethoven's Tenth," was written by Ustinov and has been performed in the United States and in Britain. However, its West Berlin debut at the Schiller Theater marks the first time Ustinov has delivered his lines in German.

Ustinov, who turned 67 on April 16, admits that speaking German is his biggest challenge in the performance.

"For me, every night at the Schiller is a premiere," he said in a recent interview. "German is a difficult language. It forces me to attempt linguistic acrobatics with my mouth that I'm not used to; I'm constantly in danger of getting stuck."

For the interview, Ustinov made his remarks in nearly fluent but cautiously enunciated German.

The play opened in West Berlin in January and has been sold out ever since. More than 40,000 people are expected to see the production before its scheduled April 30 closing, Gisela Huwe, a theater spokeswoman, said.

"Beethoven's Tenth" is one of the greatest successes in the 40-year history of the Schiller," Huwe said of the two-act play written by Ustinov.

Much of the play's action concentrates on efforts by a fictional London music critic named Stephen Winter to imagine how Beethoven's 10th Symphony might have sounded. It also focuses on his often stormy relations with his son, Pascal, who composes modern symphonies which Winter has no use for.

A Viennese au-pair girl named Irmgard, who loves Beethoven and Pascal, manages to wake the composer from the dead. The composer rings the doorbell and strides, with long hair flowing, across the stage.

With the help of a hearing aid provided by the family doctor, the old deaf master is able to hear his symphonies for the first time.

Ludwig van Beethoven's last completed symphony is his ninth — The Choral. Music researchers, however, say they have discovered sketches for an unfinished symphony, possibly a 10th, dated after completion of his Ninth Symphony and before his death in 1827.

In Ustinov's play, the audience never learns how the 10th Symphony really sounded, but the resurrected genius helps bring the feuding Winter family closer together.

Critics say Ustinov's often deliberate German delivery adds to the performance, increasing audience empathy to the character of Beethoven, who makes a grumpy visit to the 20th century in a rumpled coat and wig after 160 years in the grave.

Ustinov said he especially enjoys playing on the West Berlin stage.

"The actor is in direct contact with the audience here," he said. "The people are very warmhearted."

Ustinov is internationally known for his versatility as a stage and screen actor, and in recent years has become best known for his portrayal of Agatha Christie's Belgian sleuth Hercule Poirot.

He has written several other plays, a collection of short stories and a novel.

In film, he gained prominence for his portrayal of Nero in Mervyn Le Roy's 1951 Hollywood epic, "Quo Vadis." He is also known as the voice of Babar the Elephant, a popular children's book character created by the late French author Jean De Brunhoff.

ABC-TV Monday Night Movie Is Based On True Texas Story

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tess Harper's incredibly blue eyes flash when she talks about ABC's "Little Girl Lost," in which she plays a foster mother battling an insensitive bureaucracy to save a sexually molested child.

Ms. Harper and Frederic Forrest play Clara and Tim Brady, who love the young girl placed in their care but see her wrenched away, even though they complain the natural father is abusing the child.

"When the child tells us she's been abused, the social services caseworker doesn't believe her," said Ms. Harper. "Then a newly elected judge takes her away from us and awards her to the father. We're told we have no rights, because foster parents are only paid baby sitters."

The two-hour movie, filmed in Texas, is based on a true story. It was brought to the screen by executive producer Marian Rees, who won an Emmy for "Love Is Never Silent." ABC will show the movie Monday.

Patricia Kalember co-stars as a TV reporter who supports the Bradys in their quest to regain custody of the child. Marie Martin plays the child, Tella DeBusk, who is nicknamed "Beans."

"It's getting to where the word of children is being taken more seriously in court, but at the time of our story, in the 1970s, the word of a child wasn't taken seriously," said Ms. Harper.

"It's amazing how much children are regarded as property. To a large degree, the legal system treats children as property. They have no civil rights."

Ms. Harper said that even after physical proof of molestation was found, social service officials declined to prosecute the father.

"Instead, they forced him to give up custody of the child," she said. "Tella was placed with another foster family. They wouldn't return her to us, and they wouldn't let us adopt her. We had bucked the system and had embarrassed them. It was all vindictive pettiness. That's when the fight really began."

The social services workers argued that the Bradys, only foster parents, had become emotionally involved.

Throwing up her hands in bewilderment, Ms. Harper said, "How can you take a child into your home and not become emotionally involved? You become emotionally involved with a pet. It's part of nurturing and raising a child."

The Bradys eventually got Tella back, but a trailer at the end says, "The child they got back was not the same child that had been taken away."

Turner Fined

MONTICELLO, Fla. (AP) — Broadcast executive Ted Turner, who has tried in the past to tame the broadcast industry, pleaded no contest to illegally importing wild mountain lions and was fined $1,500.

Turner, 49, also was ordered to produce public service announcements for two wildlife groups after entering the plea Tuesday in Jefferson County Court to three counts of importing the animals to his plantation near here without a permit.

The charges were filed last month after one of the lions brought from a plantation in South Carolina was hit by a vehicle on Interstate 10.

Astaire Specials

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three Fred Astaire specials, unseen since their debut on television nearly 30 years ago, will be shown on the Disney Channel. The tapes, recorded on outmoded equipment, are being restored at the UCLA Film and Television Archives.

CAR WARS

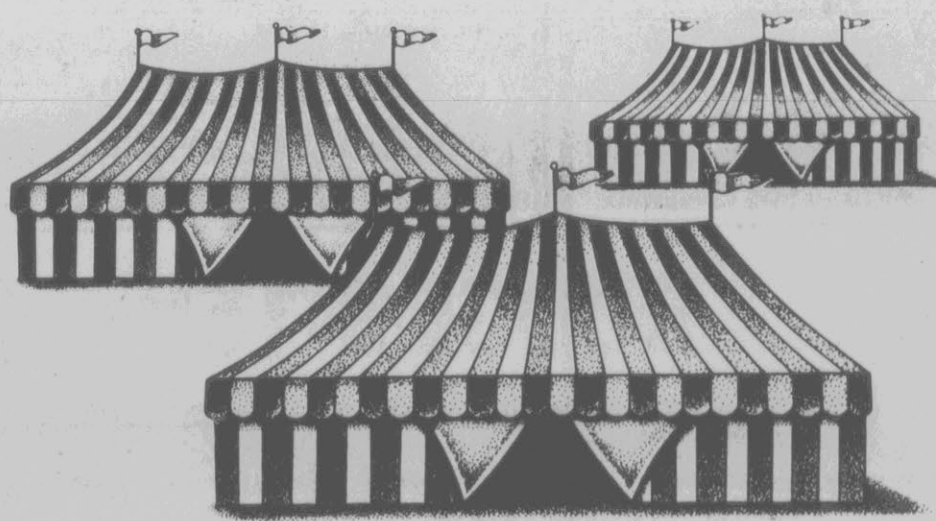

Greenville's Largest Selection Ever!—Pontiac, Lincoln, Isuzu, Cadillac, Toyota, GMC Truck, Mercury, Merkur, Mercedes-Benz, and Used Models, Too!

What do you call the largest new car and truck inventory ever assembled in the Greenville area? Car Wars!

For four unbelievable days Brown-Wood Pontiac-Cadillac-Isuzu, East Carolina Lincoln-Mercury-Merkur-GMC Truck, and Toyota East Toyota & Mercedes-Benz are teaming up at Stanton Square Shopping Center. We've come together to bring you this sale, but once you arrive, we'll be competing for your business! Take advantage of our rivalry and save like never before!

From 9am-9pm, Wednesday through Friday and 10-8 on Saturday, look for the three big tents! We'll have special bank and finance company representatives on-hand to aid you in making your purchase. Used car buyers will also be available to help you get the best value for your trade-in.

Car Wars—you'll probably never see this many cars and trucks in so many different makes and models again. Don't miss the selection. Don't miss the savings. Don't miss your chance to play one car dealer against another, for the absolute deal of a lifetime!
