SECTION GONE — Paramedics and rescue personnel work next to an Aloha Airlines Boeing 737 that made a safe landing in Kahului, Hawaii, after an explosion tore out a huge chunk of its roof. Authorities said a flight attendant was sucked out of the hole and that 60 people were injured although the jet made an almost routine landing on the island of Maui. (AP Laserphoto)

Blast Rips 737 Roof But Jet Lands Safely

By BRUCE DUNFORD
Associated Press Writer

KAHULUI, Hawaii (AP) — A mysterious explosion ripped open an Aloha Airlines jet "like a convertible" at 24,000 feet, injuring 60 people and throwing or blowing a flight attendant to her death before the pilot landed safely.

"There was a big bang when it happened and everybody looked up and we were looking at blue sky," said passenger Bill Fink of Honolulu.

The Boeing 737, with one of its two engines aflame and about 15 to 20 feet of its cabin exposed behind the cockpit and down to the level of the passenger seats, flew for 25 miles after the blast and made an emergency landing at Kahului Airport at 2 p.m. Thursday (8 p.m. EDT), airline officials said.

The cause of the blast on Aloha Flight 243 was unknown Thursday night, said Kevin Morimatsu, a spokesman for the state Department of Transportation.

The National Transportation Safety Board was sending investigators to the scene and FBI agents were sent from Honolulu to determine whether the blast was caused by a bomb, said FBI spokesman Robert Heafner.

However, sources close to the federal investigation in Washington said investigators were focusing most heavily on a possible structural failure that may have been caused by a rapid decompression and that the force of strong wind at 24,000 feet may then have ripped away the huge section of fuselage. The sources spoke on condition they not be identified.

Another passenger, Alice Godwin of Boulder City, Nev., said she put on a life jacket and put her head between her knees. "I sang all the hymns I knew," she said. "That kept me busy."

"Everybody screamed," said Dan Dennin, also of Honolulu. "However, it was very brief — the panic. ... The rest of the plane was intact, and we did not go into any unusual attitudes or anything like that. I think that people realized

Aeronautical Unit Proposed In Area

By JERRY RAYNOR

A proposal to establish a North Carolina Aeronautical Museum in Greenville was publicly unveiled at the Willis Building on Thursday night. Along with the proposal, a preliminary design sketch for the hoped-for facility was shown.

Announcement of the proposal to build a museum on donated land at the Pitt-Greenville Airport was made by Richard H. Laing of the Regional Development Institute at East Carolina University. Included in the early stages of planning will be a drive to raise $1.5 million for the construction of the initial facility.

"People might ask why Greenville?" Laing commented during the presentation of a slide show featuring local scenes and those of aeronautical museums throughout the United States. "The answer is obvious. Greenville has the right kind of airport for a museum site, one that is almost downtown, a place easy for local people and visitors to get to."

Another reason pointed out by Laing is that "such a museum will bring tourists to Greenville and consequently to eastern North Carolina. We must remember that the early history of North Carolina is in east-

Jurors Find Sneed Guilty Of Murder

After finding Eurston Ivon Sneed guilty of first-degree murder Thursday, a Pitt County jury is in the second phase of the trial — deciding whether to sentence Sneed to death, or life in prison.

About 4 p.m. Thursday, after nearly 20 hours of deliberation over three days, the 12-member jury found Sneed guilty of first-degree murder and attempted armed robbery in connection with the shooting death of Willie Hubert Tripp Sr. Dec. 31, 1983.

As deputies escorted Sneed from the courtroom he spoke to reporters. "It was a crucial mistake in this trial ... It was a big conspiracy," Sneed said.

When asked what kind of conspiracy, Sneed, 35, of Washington, N.C., waved a folder over his head with his right hand and shouted back over his shoulder. "The witnesses, and the law enforcement officers," he said.

"We're just glad it's over with and justice has prevailed," said Billy Tripp Jr., a Pitt County sheriff's deputy.

In the sentencing phase of the trial, the jury can examine evidence presented earlier and attorneys for the prosecution and defense may introduce new evidence.

Attempted armed robbery is a felony punishable by up to 40 years in prison, a fine, or both.

District Attorney Thomas Haigwood had argued to the jury that the state had proven four crucial points: Sneed planned the crime; he said he was going to commit the crime; someone saw him commit the crime and he told someone how he had committed the crime.

Way Is Missing To The Other Side

By JOHN BARE

Milton Spain, a member of the county planning board, has been farming Pitt County land owned by Lillie Randolph for about four years, but he will not be able to drive directly from one side of the farm to the other when Greenville's northwest bypass is completed.

The bypass, a 7.3-mile stretch of highway linking the eastern bypass with new U.S. 264, will cut through Mrs. Randolph's land near SR 1422, where she has lived since 1936. State Department of Transportation plans do not provide for a bridge over the bypass and SR 1422 will become a dead end road.

"This is going to affect me dearly," Spain said at a DOT public hearing on the bypass at Wellcome Middle School Thursday night. "We would like an overpass, but we probably would accept some type of service road."

Without an overpass, the state would probably construct a service road to link traffic to SR 1440, where there is an overpass. That would allow Spain to cross to the other side of the farm, but he would have to go out of his way.

"It's a tremendous inconvenience no matter how they do it, unless there's an overpass. Our concern is, we need to get to the other side," Spain said.

Betty Ruth Staton's house is on the north side of where the bypass will be, and that puts her a long way from Mrs. Randolph's house without an

Rally Forming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sex-and-money scandals that have rocked television evangelism gave added impetus to today's Christian rally in the nation's capital, organizers say.

U.S. Park Police said 35,000 people had gathered by mid-morning. Dozens of speakers and musicians were enlisted to lead prayers for the dawn-to-dusk rally, including entertainer Pat Boone and former New York Giants and Los Angeles Rams football player Rosey Grier.

"We are going to Washington to pray," said the Rev. John Gimenez, pastor of Rock Church in Virginia Beach, Va., and chairman of the rally's national steering committee. "We're not going there to condemn. We're not going to denounce. We're going there to point the finger at ourselves."

The rally's aim, Gimenez said at a news conference Thursday, is to show repentance "so we can be more effective," to reconcile differences within the church and between races and neighborhoods and to "restore the church to holiness."

Volunteers Chant Own Praises

By CHERIE EVANS

Those attending the Pitt County schools annual Volunteer Appreciation Reception Thursday evening chanted: "We're doing better than good, and better than most. We're truly wonderful and getting better."

Led by speaker Matt Sinclair of Sinclair Associates in Durham, about 200 participants talked themselves into having an enthusiastic attitude.

When having such an enthusiastic attitude, sometimes "the subconscious mind can't distinguish between reality and a wish," Sinclair said. "Indeed you are better than most ... you, my friends, are here still with the hope of a new day to impact on others."

"People cannot resist a truly enthusiastic person," Sinclair said. Enthusiasm can break down racial, economic, social and other barriers and "is the producer of confidence that says I've got what it takes without uttering a word to boast."

Changing gears in his presentation, Sinclair said the recent report from Education Secretary William Bennett leaves experts disagreeing about the problems of the nation's schools, but one thing is clear, he said.

"We've got to do a better job than we're doing now."

"The answer is in the hearts and minds of people like yourselves because you're willing to make a difference," Sinclair said.

"We all have so much to give, but all too often we forget," he said. "If there's anything more precious than love, it's giving love."

The school volunteers are "winners" because they have taken the first step toward giving love and success to students, Sinclair said.

"Success is giving that little incremental amount that achieves everything," he said, comparing it to the inches needed for the touchdown and the one one-hundredth of a second needed to take first instead of second place.

"Success begins with the moment we decide to take that first step" toward a goal, Sinclair said. "Taking that first step toward that goal makes them (students) a winner. As volunteers, you've taken that step with them and guess what — you're a winner, too."

Remarks also were made by Leck Keeter, associate superintendent of the school system; George Williams,

In The Area

Competition Winner

David Winborne Rees of Greenville recently won a history competition at the 51st annual convention of the North Carolina Division, Children of the Confederacy.

He was the winner in the "Confederate Catechism Quiz," which consisted of questions about people and events of the Civil War.

Rees also led the assembly in the salute to the North Carolina flag at the convention's morning session and was a wreath-bearer in a memorial service at Wilson's Maplewood Cemetery where about 120 Confederate veterans are buried.

The son of James and Franceine Rees of Greenville, he is a third-grader at Third Street School.

Master Adviser

Brenda L. Little, home economics teacher at D.H. Conley High School, was recently awarded a Master Adviser Award by N.C. Future Homemakers of America-Home Economics Related Occupations.

The award is the first phase of a two-part adviser mentoring program sponsored by the national FHA-HERO.

Miss Little has been an FHA-HERO adviser for 20 years in the Pitt County schools and has attended three national conventions. She has served as a Region I adviser, has been co-adviser for two state officers and has served two years on the national FHA-HERO Student Body Team.

Master adviser recipients will be recognized at the 1988 national FHA-HERO meeting in Cincinnati in July.

LVA Seminars

Phyllis Makuck, Vicki Gregory and Jill Camnitz, representing the Literacy Volunteers of America-Pitt County, conducted several seminars at the annual North Carolina Literacy Association meeting held recently at Atlantic Beach.

The meeting was attended by literacy leaders from across the state.

Chaffee Honoree

John Chaffee, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, has been selected one of 15 "Outstanding Young Leaders" for 1988 by Site Selection Handbook, one of the foremost magazine-reference guides for industrial and economic development professionals and companies seeking to relocate.

Nominations for the international competition were submitted in January and final selections — from a field of several hundred nominees — were made in March. The announcement of the list of 15 was made in the April edition of Site Selection Handbook.

Chaffee was the only North Carolina professional selected for the award.

Since becoming director of the Pitt development commission in 1983, Chaffee, 35, has spearheaded efforts resulting in 19 new companies investing $60 million and creating 900 new jobs in the county. During the same period, 24 Pitt County companies have invested another $60 million in major expansions, resulting in 1,000 more jobs.

EAST MEETS WEST — Students of D.H. Conley High School in Greenville and Clyde A. Erwin High School in Asheville recently participated in an exchange program that took Conley students to the mountains and Erwin students to the coast. Both groups of students are pictured in Twain '88 T-shirts to commemorate their experiences.

Conley Students Trade Visits With Asheville School Group

"East is east and west is west, and never the twain shall meet," but ... they did.

Students at D.H. Conley High School in Greenville and at Clyde A. Erwin High School in Asheville participated in an exchange program recently that took 11 Conley students to the mountains and seven Erwin students to the coast for about four days each.

The exchange was the brainstorm of the school principals, Nelson Baldree of Conley and Steve Page of Erwin, during a principal's workshop in Chapel Hill. In addition to Baldree, Conley students were accompanied by mathematics teacher Chuck Dunn and guidance counselor Duffy Lincoln.

In addition to budding relationships and lifetime memories, the students participating in the exchange created a "Twain '88" T-shirt that features a warrior, Erwin's mascot, on a lighthouse, and a Viking, Conley's mascot, on a mountain trail.

Conley students said they were impressed by the view of Erwin School, which "sits on a mountain and has more than one story," said one student. Local students also were impressed that the classrooms are organized by departments and the school was carpeted.

The students participated in familiar activities such as viewing a dress rehearsal to the student play "Rumors," and going to a mall and eating hamburgers. But, Conley students also went clogging and square dancing to bluegrass music.

The strawberry jam left lasting impressions of the "delicious, wonderful" breakfast at the Pisgah View Ranch, while Critter Cumbo, which is similar to chicken gumbo, the students said, was a memorable dish at a camp on Smokemount located on "the other side of Cherokee." Also, there were "Cajun contests to see how hot they could get the food."

Students participated in Frisbee and football playing in addition to walking the cement trail to Clingman's Dome, the highest point in Tennessee.

Deer and pebbled streams framed the horseback ride in the mountains.

On the trip home, the back of the Biltmore House could be seen on the Blue Ridge Parkway.

Erwin students thought Conley students "work real hard" in class, Conley students said. Erwin students visited Pine Knoll Shores, the Mariner's Museum, the Marine Resource Center, Cape Lookout and the Grifton Shad Festival street dance.

Impressed with the flat land in eastern North Carolina, a welcome sign reading "Welcome Flatlanders. Which way to the Shad Festival," awaited the Conley arrivals in Asheville. "They were nice folks," the Conley students said.

The students are planning a reunion in August, and there are plans to join the ROTC students of the school in an exchange.

Conley students participating were Hall Dunn, Scott Hudson, Joey Johnson, Harold Worthington, Jennifer King, Jennifer Wing, Kim Colson, Katie Mohror, Kimsu Myers, Sarah Yarbrough and Renea Medford.

Larceny Charge

James Paige, 22, of 1505 Fleming St. was arrested on a larceny charge Thursday by Greenville police.

Officer D.C. Johnson said Paige was charged in connection with the theft of two bottles of cologne valued at $11 each from Kerr Drugs at Carolina East Mall. Johnson said the theft was reported at 5:18 p.m.

Property Is Taken

Greenville police said a radar detector was taken from a vehicle parked at Domino's Pizza at 1201 Charles Blvd. early today.

Officer K.M. Smeltzer said the theft was reported at 1:12 a.m.

Farmers Market

The Pitt County Farmers Market opens Saturday for its 11th year of operation.

The market, located about one mile south of Bell's Fork on the Old County Home Road, will be open from 8 a.m. until noon, or when the produce is sold out.

About 10 sellers are expected to be on hand Saturday, offering onions, turnip greens, sweet potatoes, collards and other early season vegetables.

Students Initiated Into Honor Society

ECU News Bureau

A total of 108 students with outstanding academic records during their freshman year at East Carolina University were initiated into Phi Eta Sigma honor society recently.

REAL ESTATE FACTS

by: Rudy Schulte

VARIETY IS THE SPICE!

When you are ready to buy a home, how many will you want to see before making a decision? Five? Ten? Twenty-five?

Naturally, you'll want to see at least several homes which meet the needs of your family. Yet, as you begin to look through the newspaper, you notice that those different homes are represented by a variety of real estate companies.

Does that mean you will need to contact many real estate companies to see all of the homes available? No, not at all.

In fact, by contacting just one company, you should be able to see all of the homes available. This is possible because almost all companies "cooperate" or "co-broke" on their homes listed for sale. This means that if a home is listed for sale with company "A", it is made available to the agents from all other companies. Thus if you are working with an agent from company "B", that agent can also show homes listed with company "A", company "C" or company "Z".

This inter-company cooperation becomes a real time-saver for you since it is necessary to work with only one agent from a single company.

Thus, it becomes even more important that you choose the right agent from the very beginning, an agent who will listen as you describe your needs in a home and devote the necessary time to locating just the right home.

Honestly, loyalty and finding just the right home for you are my main concerns. Please call me when you decide to buy a new home.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Danger Zone

Growth, Quality Of Life Clash

When an explosion occurs, debris is inevitable. Greenville is showing the side effects of volatile growth. The alluvium of rapid development is settling on the community, and is visible to residents through a decrease in quality of life.

It's also highly visible to public officials in the increased urgency of zoning and land use issues. This insistence sends a clear message: it's time for Greenville's leaders to look with care at the zoning issues facing them with regularity if the city is to maintain its quality of life.

Zoning is assuming tremendous importance in the community. A recently-completed city-wide zoning ordinance review is just one indication of the role zoning plays in a community's growth.

But the real proof is the escalating controversies that arise over land use conflicts. Public officials are faced with making decisions between profitability and propriety. How well they respond to these questions has a profound effect on the community's aesthetics and effective function.

Rapid development has already mixed commercial and residential land uses. Signs for businesses blink too close to backyards for comfort; homeowners hear noise from highways in places they never even expected to see a road. Transportation thoroughfares are clogged by too many stoplights and crippled by strip development that slows traffic to a crawl.

Growth — a phenomenon no city wants to curse — is putting pressure on the community's quality of life. Aesthetics, however, don't have to be sacrificed for urbanization, if public officials set the right priorities.

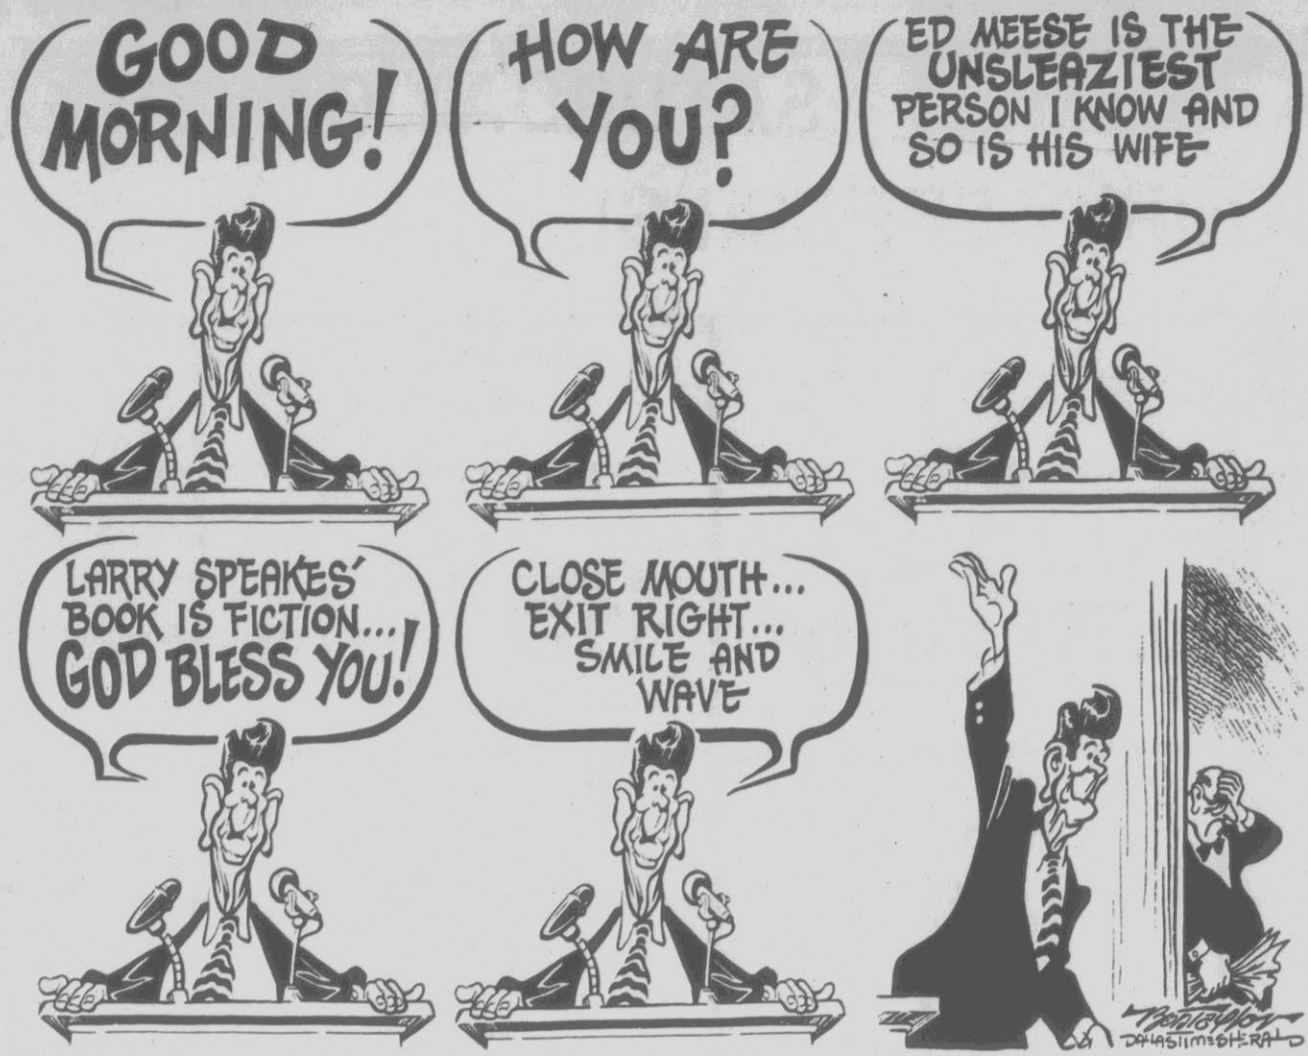

South of town, furor over extraterritorial jurisdiction and zoning near White Road exemplify the stress growth has created and points up the responsibility public officials bear to appropriately address the problems. What type of land uses are allowed will determine whether the area becomes urban sprawl or a well-planned community. Zoning decisions will affect what it looks like and how well its roads serve citizens.

Further southeast, development along Fire Tower Road and at Cannon's Cross Road threatens the proposed path of the southeast Greenville bypass. If this type of development persists, the road will be no thoroughway by the time it is constructed.

Other burgeoning areas await attention, but these two may be the most poignant examples of the need for more judicious land use decisions.

The Planning & Zoning Commission and the City Council must make careful, objective choices on these issues, recognizing the importance of the direction they provide. Public boards must not bow to the pressures of developers but must make decisions that preserve transportation arteries, protect neighborhoods and prompt commercial developers to be concerned with aesthetics.

Growth and quality of life are on a crash course in Greenville, and the city is already seeing symptoms of the upcoming collision. Now is the time for leaders to acknowledge this fact and minimize its impact — before the results are irreversible.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Recently the fast-growing hospitality industry of Greenville and Pitt County has generated a high degree of community interest and support.

Earlier this month the North Carolina Governor's Conference on Travel and Tourism, which was hosted by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, was a major success in every sense of the word. The professional and positive response of our area hotels and the entire community in meeting the high standards required by the Governor's Conference won praise from travel industry professionals from throughout the state. Furthermore, Greenville and Pitt County's response to this important conference demonstrated clearly our community's capability to host major conventions.

During the past year, in recognition of the special opportunities for convention and visitor growth in our area, local leaders from government and private enterprise have worked actively together to develop a framework for achieving the full range of growth potential for Pitt County's hospitality industry. Thanks to their contributions, we have a successful beginning with the establishment of a professional convention and visitors bureau.

The Greenville-Pitt County area can become one of the major meeting and conference centers in North Carolina. To achieve the full range of growth potential, however, will require continuing cooperation, dedication and the commitment of all of our resources. The rewards can be unprecedented growth in our area's hospitality industry, with major increases in new basic income, tax revenues and jobs.

S. Rudolph Alexander, chairman
 Convention and Visitors Authority

To the editor:

"The Chamber says taxpayers should share cost." (to market the city) I am a taxpayer. I don't agree. The "Chamber" represents the realtors, lawyers, barkeeps, restaurateurs, innkeepers, and developers. The "Chamber" does not represent me the ordinary resident.

Why is the city manager involved at this stage? He is there to execute policy, not to make it.

Growth is not a panacea. Here is what growth entails: more schools, more police protection, more fire protection, more demands on our water, more water treatment plant, more sewage treatment plant, more solid waste disposal, more roads, more traffic congestion and more taxes.

Tens of millions, perhaps hundreds of millions of dollars, have been added to the tax base over the past 20 years while the quality of life has decreased in step with an increase in taxes paid by the ordinary citizen.

It appears that our mayor, the city manager and several councilpersons are afflicted with "a growth at any cost mentality." It is fortunate that councilpersons Fridley, Shinn and Jenkins will at least study this proposed subsidy to the Chamber of Commerce before making a decision, rather than acting as rubberstamps for the Chamber of Commerce.

Is Greenville going to be a better place to live when we have 100,000 residents than it is now.

Media Criticism From The Left

By now, everyone is familiar with press criticism from the far right: How vicious and unfair the media are to the Reagan administration, for example, and how biased in favor of the liberals.

Over the years, quite a few right-wing organizations and individuals have been spreading this message on talk shows and in op-ed columns to the point where, for all anyone knows, some people might actually believe it. Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., for one, obviously does, judging by his complaints this week about campaign coverage.

What we don't get very much is criticism from the far left, which is why "Inventing Reality," a book about the press by Michael Parenti, comes as something of a relief. How nice to be called anti-Communist, for a change, rather than pro.

Parenti, who has taught at State University of New York at Stony Brook and other colleges, is, in some respects, much harder on the press than say, Accuracy in Media. Far from seeing reporters as dupes of communism, as Accuracy in Media and political columnist Patrick Buchanan do, Parenti sees them as mere capitalist tools in servitude to government and big business.

It is too bad that his criticism is so colored by his ideology that it sometimes results in the same kinds of excesses committed by the right, even if from an opposite perspective.

For example, he says the press "focuses public attention on crime in the streets with scarcely a mention of 'crime in the suites,'" downplaying such corporate crimes as bribes, kickbacks, safety violations and so forth.

That sort of conclusion, in light of the coverage that Wall Street insiders and Reagan administration felons have received in recent months, is simply not valid. The press may not give as much coverage as it should to white-collar crime, but to imply that it ignores it amounts to inventing a reality of a different kind. The same is true when Parenti says such issues as nuclear arms, Pentagon spending, tax reform and Central America are given short shrift in the media, and that only an "occasional" business tycoon is portrayed as evil in television dramas. Such dubious conclusions subtract from the many worthwhile observations and insights in his book.

For example, he says: "If Big Brother comes to America, he will not be a fearsome, foreboding figure" as in "1984," but "will come with a smile on his face, a quip on his lips (and) a wave to the crowd." I wonder who he had in mind.

Why Not Try A Negotiated Settlement In Panama?

U.S. efforts to remove Gen. Manuel Noriega from power in Panama through unilateral economic and political pressure are not working. Frustration with present policy is now pushing other options forward, but the U.S. government is badly divided over what to do. The choice for the United States in coming weeks is clear: either to move toward the use of military force in Panama or to press for a diplomatic solution.

U.S. military intervention in Panama would be a mistake. It would cost American lives, endanger the security of the canal and undermine U.S. interests in Panama and throughout Latin America. It would only benefit those who enjoy our failures: the Soviets and the Cubans.

A better course is to push for a mediated settlement between Noriega and his political opponents. The most important question for the United States is not Noriega's departure, but the nature of the Panamanian society and government that will follow. Only a negotiated, political solution can secure a peaceful succession.

Mistakes in recent U.S. policy are clear. First, we miscalculated the efficacy of economic pressure. Noriega has been able to withstand sanctions. Perhaps a period of protracted economic warfare could induce Noriega's collapse, but it is not clear how long that would take. Economic measures, in the meantime, are seriously damaging the country's economic and financial infrastructure. As the United States has acknowledged, they are hurting the Panamanian people. We may be unintentionally destroying the private sector — the base of moderate, democratic strength on which Panama's future stability will depend.

Second, we miscalculated support for Noriega within the Panama Defense Forces. He has proven resistant to discontent in the ranks, and he is alert to coup attempts orchestrated from outside or within. If he has the support of the drug cartel, as we claim, or quiet support from other governments, then he is likely to find the funds to ensure his troops' loyalty.

Third, we overestimated the effect in Panama of U.S. support for President Eric Delvalle. He was at first Noriega's man, and he has not won over the leadership of the opposition, the Civic Crusade. Moreover, many in the opposition are waiting for the United States to act, instead of working for a Panamanian solution to their country's problems. Our pressures have given them an excuse to sit on their hands.

Finally, we have failed to consult adequately with our friends and allies in Latin America. At the outset of the Panama crisis, many in the region expressed a general understanding of the U.S. position. Today, we are becoming increasingly isolated, and Latin American leaders are shying away from U.S. efforts.

At this point, we cannot return to business as usual in Panama. The departure of Noriega is a goal that still has regional support and bipartisan backing in Congress. But we must choose tactics that do not threaten broader U.S. interests.

To date this mediation effort has languished, in large part because of U.S. neglect. Many of Noriega's opponents expect the United States to come in and solve their problems, so they do not compromise. Noriega, for his part, knows the Latin Americans cannot deliver the United States, so he temporizes as well.

Despite the lack of U.S. interest, this mediation effort holds the most promise:

- A unified regional approach would increase pressures on Noriega, reducing his chances of outside support.

- Noriega is more likely to make concessions to Latin American interlocutors. He will not bow to U.S. officials calling for his ouster.

- A regional mediation effort with strong U.S. support would build momentum; it would quickly become the only game in town.

Mediation may not achieve Noriega's removal tomorrow, but it is likely to provide a better basis for the political succession in Panama that no doubt will come soon.

Some in the administration distrust Latin American initiatives and believe that the United States must rely on its own power to protect its interests. But we must be clear. Frustration and impatience should not push us into choices we shall later regret. If we can accept a negotiated settlement in Afghanistan and advocate one in the Middle East, what's wrong with trying one in our own backyard?

Settlers Wrong To Attack Israelis

Analysis

JERUSALEM — One of the repercussions of the Palestinian uprising in the Occupied Territories has been the renewed confrontation between Jewish settlers and the Israeli Defense Forces.

The situation intensified greatly after the military corrected the account of West Bank settlers concerning the death of a 15-year-old hiker earlier this month. The girl, the military said, had been shot in the head by a Jewish settler, not stoned to death by Palestinian villagers.

That outraged the leadership of the settlers, as well as many extreme right-wing members of the Knesset. They accused the military of spreading rumors and demanded the dismissal of both the chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Dan Shomron, and the central command chief, Maj. Gen. Amram Mitzna. In essence, the settlers and some of their political supporters were calling for a purge of the Israeli Defense Forces.

It is quite obvious what the settlers have in mind, even though they do not say so openly. They want the when Molotov cocktails were flung at Israeli vehicles in the territories, some settlers chose to call Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin a murderer. Soldiers who tried to bar settlers from breaking into an Arab refugee camp to attack stone-throwers were called Nazis and even beaten and shot.

Yet under the present political structure in Israel, and as long as the generals are not appointed or dismissed from office, they will be bound up with the settlers' views, Israelis on the West Bank will continue to realize their aims.

Consequently, the confrontation goes on, but it could be wrong to suppose that the settlers would do times which a party member holds the reins of power. A serious clash is expected when Moshe Arens of the cabinet bloc held

However, the settlers did enjoy special privileges when Ariel Sharon was defense minister. At the head of the defense forces stood Gen. Rafael Eytan, known for his extreme political views. For a time, the settlers did become part of the defense Establishment in the territories. They could be spotted at meetings on military affairs, and the military's allocation of weapons to the settlers reached its zenith. Eytan also ordered the creation of territorial reserve battalions manned by settlers. Contrary to other defense forces units, these battalions were of a political nature, the reservists sharing identical political views. They were not deployed along the border against an outside enemy; their task instead was to guard against their Arab neighbors.

About a year ago, when Shomron was made chief of staff and Mitzna the chief of central command, the settlers were deeply troubled. At the head of the military command dealing with the territories stood three officers (Shoh being the third) known for their liberal approach. Mitzna reorganized the settlers' territorial battalions with the clear idea of prohibiting their operations against Arab neighbors; they also were refused permission to establish a civil guard to operate outside the settlements. To circumvent those restrictions, the settlers formed a civilian militia that took upon itself the task of guarding roads into the settlements. The common pretext for taking the law into their hands was that the Israeli Defense Forces had failed to guarantee the safety of the Jewish settlers. But that was sheer demagoguery.

By provoking a confrontation with the defense forces, the extremist settlers broke off the branch on which they were sitting. Without the military, the settlers will be unable to stand their ground in the territories and will very soon find life there intolerable.

the post-parliamentary, extremist settlers, at least, overruled Arens' view which was in agreement with their demands.

Mitzna's also not the first central command chief to be the target of attacks and a layoff on the part of the settlers. When Arens was defense minister, they gave the same treatment to Gen. Uri Oh. Their hostility reached new peaks when they told Arens to keep his military commander out of a meeting on security affairs. Arens categorically refused to comply.

When he was head of the civilian administration, Brig. Ephraim Sneh was another senior defense forces officer to be threatened and maligned. The settlers disliked his liberal policy toward the Arab population.

Mitzna's predecessor, Ehud Barak, was also viewed with some suspicion. At a public gathering on the occasion of his replacement by Mitzna, Barak noted in his farewell speech that 20 years had gone by since the occupation of the territories. Because he had used the word "occupation," the settlers exploded out

If the settlements are enjoying the relative security even in these times of the Palestinian uprising, it is solely thanks to the Israeli Defense Forces — and the settlers should know it.

defense forces to let them do as they please in the territories, and the expulsion of the Arab inhabitants is not excluded. They want to bring the military in the territories under their command and influence, thus dictating Israel's defense policy as well. Such a policy would then bring about the annexation of the territories to Israel and create an intolerable situation for the Arab population, prompting many to contemplate emigration.

The settlers demand the impossible. They want the defense forces to provide perfect, deluxe security. There is no such thing anywhere in Israel today, nor has there ever been throughout much of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

Further, the public and its leaders have usually taken great efforts to view the military as a non-political entity. Thus, political attacks against the defense forces are quite exceptional.

Even when Palestinians were shelling settlements on the Lebanese frontier, no Israeli inhabitants ever criticized the defense forces. But

Court Removes Columbus Sheriff

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Columbus County Sheriff William Rhodes has been removed from office by a judge who ruled that Rhodes had failed to comply with court orders, falsified court documents and kissed two women against their will.

After the ruling Thursday, Rhodes said testimony by current and former employees had confirmed his suspicions that many of them were working against him. Several had had, or were mistaken, in their testimony about events at the department, he said.

"I think I had a fair hearing," he said. "The one thing I would say is, it helped me find out what I wanted to find out about the people I was dealing with.

"I definitely feel betrayed," Rhodes said, "and I definitely feel my intentions were not to do anything wrong. I do feel like ... the things I have done in law enforcement, I tried to do right."

In his ruling, Superior Court Judge Robert H. Hobgood found evidence supporting all 14 allegations made in a petition by District Attorney Michael Easley. The petition, filed April 7, asked for Rhodes' removal for willful misconduct or maladministration in office.

Rhodes pleaded guilty to misdemeanor charges of obstructing justice and attempting to obstruct justice last month. His guilty plea led to Easley's petition.

Alcohol Law Enforcement officers told Rhodes in November 1986 they planned to raid local country clubs for selling beer without a permit. Rhodes admitted he informed an attorney associated with one of the clubs that ALE agents were on their way and attempted to call an employee of another club, but could not reach the man by phone.

In testimony Thursday, Rhodes told Hobgood that his actions were not intended to obstruct justice, but the judge found that the sheriff "knew or should have known" that his telling about the raids would result in illegal beer supplies being hidden before agents arrived.

The judge also found that the sheriff directed one of his deputies to falsify a jail record to show that a defendant had served time in the county jail when in fact he had not.

In other findings, the judge ruled that Rhodes had violated court orders by allowing the temporary release of inmates from the jail to visit with their families, or to perform cleanup duties for the county.

ROBERT TINDAL

Hero Regrets Loss Of Second Swimmer

WILMINGTON (AP) — A Charlotte man says he's happy to win a heroism medal for saving an exhausted swimmer in the surf at Holden Beach, but regrets he could not help another man who drowned while trying to save the woman.

"I feel good about helping her ... it must have been a bad experience on her family's part, watching her," Robert Tindal said Thursday. "But it was bad that I couldn't help them both."

Gerner in, but could not return to shore. Mrs. Gerner's son-in-law also tried to reach her, but had to turn back, according to Holden Beach police.

While Tindal was swimming back to shore with Mrs. Gerner, Swanson called to him for help.

"I told him help was on the way," Tindal said. "I thought he'd be OK. I thought he'd make it back by himself."

Student Stops Bus

RALEIGH (AP) — Woodie Herring doesn't have a driver's license, but when his school bus careened out of control Thursday on a busy Raleigh street, he took the wheel and steered the bus to safety.

The bus driver, Laura W. Anderson, had a seizure as the bus headed toward Millbrook High School, police said. Herring, 16, the only passenger on the 20-seat bus, grabbed the wheel and turned it sharply, narrowly avoiding hitting a dump truck and other vehicles, police and a witness said.

Tindal and 18 others in the United States and Canada were recognized Thursday by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission. He will receive a bronze medal and $2,500 for his heroism.

Tindal pulled Sheila Gerner, a Phoenixville, Pa., resident who was vacationing with her family, from the waters off Holden Beach Aug. 26.

Tindal, 31, and Arnold Potter, 48, were painting a building several hundred feet from the water when someone told them there was a commotion on the beach.

As they approached the beach, Tindal said, Mrs. Gerner's daughter pointed to a woman floundering in the water and said, "That's my mom." Hoping to swim to shore, Mrs. Gerner had abandoned a raft that a strong current had carried away from the beach.

Potter, who didn't know how to swim, paddled toward Swanson in a rubber boat, but was unable to rescue him. Swanson, 58, drowned.

Interviewed several days after the rescue, Tindal described the current as "unbelievable." He struggled for about 25 minutes to bring Mrs. Gerner to shore, he said.

When Tindal visited Mrs. Gerner after the rescue, she thanked him "a thousand times," he said. Although he has not kept in touch with the Pennsylvania resident, he said he thought she suggested his name to the hero commission.

Tindal said the rescue was the first heroic thing he has ever done.

Since he and his wife Teresa were informed Monday he would receive the award, they have told only their parents. They will probably use the award money to pay bills, Tindal said.

The police officer investigating the accident called Herring a hero.

"Traffic was screaming to a halt," said the officer, who asked that her name not be used. "He missed a dump truck by inches. If it had not been for him, a whole lot of people could have been hurt."

The bus crossed the center line, hit a telephone ground box, and went back across all six lanes of traffic before hitting a utility pole and a street sign and stopping, said Sgt. S.B. Price.

Tindal said he sprinted across the beach and swam 100 to 200 yards to reach her.

"I just went out to help the lady," he said. "When I got there, she didn't say much. She was exhausted, tired. I told her everything would be all right."

Eugene Swanson, a Rockaway, N.J. resident, had tried to carry Mrs.

Pakistani Pilgrims Stage U.S. 17 Trek

TOWN CREEK, N.C. (AP) — The road to Mecca doesn't usually include U.S. 17, but to eight Pakistani Moslems on a self-guided tour of the American South, it has been a path of knowledge.

The eight men, all from the Pakistani city of Dera Ismail Khan, made a pilgrimage to the United States to "study the complicated machinery of mankind," said Faiz Mohammad, assistant professor of philosophy and psychology at a government-run university in Dera Ismail Khan.

The Moslems are traveling primarily by foot through five Southern states to learn about the lives of as many Americans as possible, Mohammad said. So far, they have not been impressed with the country's spiritual development.

"We observe that our American brothers have reached the peak of material prosperity, but have not developed their spiritual side," said group leader Jehanzeb Khan, who owns two rice factories and one brick factory in Pakistan. "They are leading a half life. Their lives are discontented because of this."

Khan, who does not speak English, spoke through Mohammad.

"People are very much busy, but they don't follow the religion to which they adhere," Khan said. "That's why they are discontent."

However, Mohammad said, most good things they have heard about Americans have proved true.

"When in our country, we heard that Americans are a civilized people, a brave nation," he said. "We heard they have hospitality, responsibility and are a fast-friendship people. This is all exactly true."

The Pakistanis, who paid for the trip out of their own pockets, flew in to New York City Dec. 12. They drove a van to Miami and began walking back north.

The men are more than halfway through their trip, which includes Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia. Their last stop, scheduled for June 21, will be Norfolk, Va.

The group travels 10 miles each day, calling towns a day in advance to find out where they can set up camp. Six of them travel by foot, while two members drive the van filled with tents, sleeping bags, clothes, food, and small gifts for people they meet along the way.

The men do not eat anything during the day because they are celebrating the Moslem month of Ramadan. During that month, their religion says they must fast from dawn to dusk, and spend the evening praying after breaking the fast with dates, bread and water.

Walking along major highways in traditional garb of sandals, long shirts, loose pants and turbans, the Pakistanis say they have drawn many long stares. Some law enforcement officials have also misunderstood their mission, said Mohammad.

"The police in West Palm Beach held us for a little while," he said. "They thought we were smugglers or something."

A police chief in McIntosh County, Ga., kicked the group out of town after they tried to explain what they were doing, he said.

IN THE STATE

Guilty Plea

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A Winston-Salem man pleaded guilty Thursday to second-degree murder in the drunken driving death of a Bowman-Gray medical student.

William Benson Maxfield, 31, of Winston-Salem, allegedly ran a red blinking light while being chased by a police officer on March 17, causing an accident with a car driven by Craig Gallanis, 24, also of Winston-Salem. Gallanis died from his injuries.

Police say Maxfield was driving under the influence and without a driver's license. His license had been permanently revoked after three previous convictions for drunken driving.

Funding

RALEIGH (AP) — In testimony before a congressional subcommittee Thursday, state labor commissioner John Brooks asked Congress to increase federal funding of state-operated occupational safety and health programs.

In testimony before the Senate appropriations subcommittee on labor, health and human services, Brooks asked senators to consider spending an additional $10 million for state occupational safety and health programs.

Separated

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A Superior Court judge has ordered two Fort Bragg soldiers accused of robbing and murdering an elderly Fayetteville couple to be tried separately.

Spec. 4 Jeffrey Karl Meyer and Pvt. Mark Edward Thompson are accused in the December 1986 deaths of Paul Kutz, 68, and his wife, Janie Lee Meares Kutz, 63.

Each is charged with two counts of first-degree murder and armed robbery and one count of first-degree burglary. They entered pleas of innocent Wednesday, with Thompson pleading innocent by reason of insanity.

Free Clinic

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A government-sponsored private medical clinic opens Monday in Fayetteville that will offer free medical care to the families of military personnel. The clinic will be operated by PHP Health Care Corp of Alexandria, Va., a private company that manages similar clinics on the east coast under an Army contract.

The Primary Care for the Uniformed Services Clinic (PRIMUS) will provide limited medical services for military dependents including medication, laboratory and radiological services.

Task Force Urges UNC-CH Pay Hikes

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — A task force at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill says current rates of pay for faculty and administrators are not sufficient to maintain the institution's stature and reputation.

"Our university cannot continue to rank in the 90th-percentile of major research universities in the country while being in the 60th-79th percentile in base pay," says a preliminary report to the UNC-Chapel Hill Board of Trustees.

The report outlines a series of recommendations for making the university more competitive in salary and benefits. Among other things, it calls for written commitments from the General Assembly and the UNC Board of Governors to return the university to the top levels of faculty pay nationwide, the Greensboro News & Record reported today.

"The question facing the citizens and leaders of North Carolina is, whether having devoted the energy, money and leadership necessary to develop this institution with its national reputation, they are willing to continue the commitment to maintain that position," the executive summary of the report says.

The task force, chaired by Greensboro businessman Tim Burnett, studied several compensation areas, including base pay, medical benefits, non-medical benefits and new benefits. Burnett declined to comment Thursday because the report had not been made public. It was to be presented to the board today.

Robeson Collision Kills Three People

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP) — Three people, including a woman returning from her son's birthday celebration, were killed in a three-vehicle crash thought to be caused by a drunken driver, authorities said.

Trooper H. L. Covington of the N.C. Highway Patrol said the driver who caused the crash was intoxicated and traveling about 80 mph Wednesday night when his car crossed the center line.

The driver, Tarry Locklear, 34, and his passenger, Travis Oxendine, 23, both of Route 1, Pembroke, died.

Joyce Cummings, 48, also of Pembroke, who had been to Fayetteville to celebrate her son's birthday, died after the crash even though she had been wearing her seat belt, Covington said.

Locklear and Oxendine were not wearing seat belts, Covington said.

Wayward Car Hits After-School Crowd, Kills 2 People, Injures 8

CHICAGO (AP) — A woman whose car plowed into an after-school crowd at an elementary school, killing a 4-year-old girl and a woman and injuring eight others, has been charged with negligent driving, police say.

Witnesses said the two-door sedan crashed through a chain-link fence and careened across an asphalt playground before running up a short flight of stairs to where the crowd was gathered Thursday afternoon in an entryway of Cyrus H. McCormick Elementary School.

"There were mothers screaming, looking for their children," said Araceli Hernandez, whose niece lives with her and attends the school. "Almost every child that was on the floor had their mother next to them."

Principal Jim Crowe and teachers helped lift the car, which was lodged in the two-story building, to free some victims trapped beneath the wheels.

"I called for 10 ambulances," Crowe said. "I told them there were bodies all over the playground."

Two of the injured youngsters remained in critical condition today.

Marcella Diaz, 30, was waiting for her 5-year-old son, Roger, and her 12-year-old daughter, Lynne, when the accident happened.

"I was picking up my son when I turned my head and saw the car coming," she says. "I just screamed and picked up my son with my hands and ran away. The car missed us by a yard and a half."

Isabel Fuentes, 37, was charged with leaving the scene of an accident and negligent driving, Officer Terry Pickens said. She was arrested near the school and freed after posting $100 cash bond and her driver's license.

Reuben Fuentes, a pupil at the school, said his mother apparently had come to the school to pick him up.

"Our opinion is that she was driving too fast for conditions," said Sgt. Thomas Reynolds of the police department's major accidents unit. He didn't know exactly how fast she was traveling but said Mrs. Fuentes, who suffered a bloody nose in the accident, was "going over the 20 mph speed limit."

There was no evidence of intoxication or use of drugs, Reynolds said, adding that authorities were investigating the possibility that the car's brakes failed or the accelerator malfunctioned.

A police spokeswoman who declined to give her name said today she was unsure whether Mrs. Fuentes honked her horn or tried to warn those in her car's path.

Alma Cordero, Mrs. Fuentes' niece, said she had been told the car needed repairs. "She is a real good driver," said Ms. Cordero, 28. "She never got into an accident."

The schoolground was left littered with shattered glass, bodies and blood.

Senate OKs AIDS Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate passage of a billion-dollar AIDS research and education bill shows that the government has finally "declared war on the virus and not on the victims," supporters say.

The Senate voted 87-4 for the $1.1 billion bill Thursday night after agreeing unanimously to require AIDS tests on people convicted of state or federal crimes related to sex or intravenous drug use.

The focus now shifts to the House, where a bill covering research on AIDS is committee but measures addressing other portions of the Senate legislation have not been introduced.

The Senate bill authorizes $665 million for state and federal AIDS education programs, increased hiring at the National Institutes of Health, a new home health care program for AIDS victims and special efforts to help high-risk minorities and intravenous drug abusers. A committee aide said open-ended research money would bring total annual spending to about $1.1 billion.

"Finally, we have declared war on the virus and not on the victims in our battle against AIDS," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who as chairman of the Labor and Human Resources Committee spearheaded support for the bill.

Victor Basile, executive director of the Human Rights Campaign Fund, the national political action committee for the gay and lesbian community, said he was "delighted" with bill, which he said "for the first time establishes a national policy on AIDS."

During frequently bitter debate, the Senate rejected or weakened a number of amendments proposed by conservatives, several of them by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

The most controversial was Helms' attempt to renew an expiring 1987 ban on federal money for educational materials that allegedly promote or encourage homosexual activity. The ban passed 94-2 last year, but some senators said it has hampered public health efforts to reach the gay community.

House Panel Backs Ban On Plastic Guns

WASHINGTON (AP) — A ban on plastic handguns that could slip past metal detectors and X-rays will stop a major security problem before it starts, says the chairman of the House committee that cleared such a gun-control measure.

"Plastic firearms cannot be detected at security checkpoints when subject to inspection by metal detectors and they do not generate a distinct X-ray image," Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said. "Consequently, plastic firearms offer the potential terrorist a window of opportunity and pose a serious threat to the public safety of all Americans."

On Thursday, Rodino's committee approved, by voice vote, legislation sponsored by Rep. Bill Hughes, D-

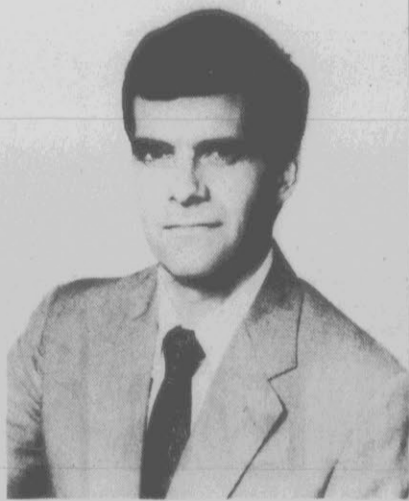

N.J., to ban the manufacture, sale or possession of undetectable plastic firearms.

The approval came after the panel defeated 23-12 an amendment by Rep. George W. Gekas, R-Pa., that would have led to the death penalty for anyone using a so-called "plastic gun" in the commission of a crime.

Law enforcement agencies and gun control groups have been lobbying intensely for standards that would prevent terrorists from concealing plastic guns and slipping them past detectors.

No plastic gun has been manufactured, but a Florida company has a patent on one that it has said it will manufacture for law enforcement agencies in about two years.

Dukakis Wants Trade Bill Signed

By LAURA KING
Associated Press Writer
Democratic front-runner Michael Dukakis is polishing his foreign-policy credentials to shore up a possible point of Republican attack while suggesting he may go on the offensive himself if President Reagan vetoes the trade bill.
Vice President George Bush, meanwhile, was campaigning today in Indiana, scene of a primary next week that — like the fight for the GOP nomination — is no real contest for him.
Dukakis spent most of Thursday in Boston before leaving for a swing through Ohio and Indiana. The Massachusetts governor, criticized by Bush for lacking foreign policy experience, met with Spain's prime minister, Felipe Gonzalez, and the two conversed in Spanish, aides said.

Dukakis aides say he also plans a series of meetings in coming weeks with foreign policy experts and congressional leaders in an attempt to bolster his credentials.
Dukakis urged Reagan not to veto the trade bill, which includes a provision requiring that workers be given advance notice of plant closings.
Bush has expressed support for the president's veto plan, and Dukakis indicated that if the president carries out his threat, he will make the plant-closing provision a campaign issue.

"I think the issues of workers being laid off, what is happening to the industrial base of this country and the failure of this administration to do much to deal with that ... will be very much one of the major issues," the Massachusetts governor said.
Jesse Jackson, Dukakis' only remaining Democratic rival, expressed determination during an Ohio campaign swing to stay in the race despite a series of setbacks.
"We're winning every day on this long and tortuous journey to the White House," Jackson told supporters in Canton on Thursday.

Later, in Akron, he vowed: "Nothing and nobody is going to turn us around."
Ohio holds its primary on Tuesday, along with Indiana and the District of Columbia.
Jackson took a few swipes at Dukakis, although the tone was far from harsh.
"I don't want to manage Reaganomics as Dukakis does, or keep Reaganomics as Bush does," he said. "I want to reverse Reaganomics and reinvest in America."

Wheelchair User Burns

CINCINNATI (AP) — A man crippled by multiple sclerosis died after his power wheelchair caught fire while other wheelchair-bound residents of a home for the disabled looked on in horror, authorities said.
Basil A. Vlahopoulos, 37, died Wednesday night before firefighters arrived at Hollister House. The building's automatic sprinkler system doused the flames.
The cause of the fire is undetermined, but is believed to be accidental, fire investigators said.
Nina Dalton, a wheelchair-bound neighbor of Vlahopoulos', said she watched as a woman and a man in a wheelchair opened a door found smoke pouring from the apartment where Vlahopoulos lived.
"When the fire alarms went off, it scared me to death," Ms. Dalton said.
Vlahopoulos came to Cincinnati from Greece planning to learn to be a family counselor. In 1980, he was diagnosed as having multiple sclerosis and he was in a wheelchair a year later.
But Vlahopoulos earned a doctorate in counseling from the University of Cincinnati. His sister, Maria O'Hearn of Norfolk, Va., said Thursday her brother worked with agencies that help the handicapped.

Librarians Seek Help

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Alarmed by the growing number of latchkey children thrust upon them, the nation's public librarians are shelving their normally quiet roles and clamoring for better day care and after-school programs.
"Librarians have to become political animals," says Sue Rosenzweig of the University of North Carolina's Center for Early Adolescence. "We've got to take care of our kids."
Their pleas, along with proposed solutions, are being presented in a 50-page policy paper today at the Public Library Association's national conference.
"We're really the voice of the children," said Jody Stefansson of San Marino, Calif.
The public library's image as a safe, friendly, educational and cost-free haven, has made it hardest hit by the growing number of latchkey children.
Like many children's librarians, Ms. Stefansson regularly finds herself serving as policeman, caretaker, referee and nurse. Forty to 60 children as young as first-graders descend upon her every weekday afternoon, many of them instructed to do so by their working parents.
"The parents think their children are really reading, and that's the biggest myth," she said Thursday during a four-day conference, which ended Saturday.
Youngsters keep pouring in, despite Ms. Stefansson's successful work with community groups to offer better after-school care. She's even developed a network of babysitters for working parents.
"I don't want to be a surrogate parent," she said.
It is a commonplace at many libraries, say leaders of the 6,000-member Public Library Association, a division of the American Library Association.
The problems whiz through reference rooms, bicycles clutter the halls, flower beds are trampled and parking lots are pickup and dropoff stations.

Adjustment Board Delays Vote On Housing Program

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

A decision by the Greenville Board of Adjustment on whether to allow the operation of a transitional housing program for some of the city's homeless was continued until a special meeting of the board on May 9.

The board Thursday agreed to continue the matter to provide time to ensure that all nearby neighborhood residents have been properly notified and have been given an opportunity to provide input on the matter.

The Greenville Community Life Center Inc. wants to amend a special use permit which would allow the operation of the transitional housing program at the old Agnes Fullilove School site on the corner of Manhattan Avenue and Chestnut Street. The property is zoned O&I (office and institutional).

The original special use permit, granted Dec. 19, permits the operation of the existing night shelter for the homeless on that site.

According to Dr. David Ames, chairman of the board of the life center, the organization intends to construct 13 apartment units in the facility which would be made available to local homeless people on an "ability to pay" financing arrangement for up to a maximum 12-month period.

"Our goal is to assist these people in getting their feet on the ground financially and becoming independent," Ames said.

Rufus Huggins, a member of the City Council, has indicated he will participate in the information-gathering session and has proposed a meeting among neighborhood residents on May 7 at 2 p.m. at the American Legion Building.

Huggins said he was concerned about appropriate notification in the neighborhood because a majority of the residents of the area rent property and might not become aware of the proposed facility.

"I want to give the people who actually live in the neighborhood an opportunity to fully understand what is being proposed and to see if they have any concerns about this," Huggins said.

According to City Planner Jack Simoneau, the special May meeting was arranged previous to the board's regular monthly May meeting so the life center could meet a financial grant request deadline with the property having the appropriate zoning.

In other matters, the board granted a special use permit to Carolina Mini-Storage of Greenville

Inc. to allow a resident manager's quarters in the mini-warehouse project being constructed at 3275 Landmark St. The property is zoned CH (highway commercial).

The board also granted a special use permit to Fred Webb to continue operating a temporary grain storage facility for nine months on a lot zoned RA-20 (residential-agricultural), and located east of River Park North, 240 feet south of Mumford Road on Azalea Street. The permit was granted on the condition that all grain will have to be removed from the facility after nine months. In addition, the petitioner will not be allowed to request another permit from the board after the nine month period has expired.

The board agreed to rehear a previously denied request by Bobby Dixon for a special use permit to construct two multifamily projects under land-use intensity development standards. The hearing on the matter will be conducted at a later meeting to provide time for the petitioner to submit revised maps to the city's Department of Planning and Development for further review. The properties involved are located on Shenandoah Circle between Tobacco Road and Rollingwood Cluster Homes and are zoned R-6 (high-density residential).

The board denied a variance to Charles L. McLawhorn to use a detached garage as a dwelling unit at 310 E. 13th St. The property is zoned CDF (commercial downtown fringe).

In other action, the board approved an amendment to the Board of Adjustment Rules of Procedure which allows aggrieved parties in matters before the board to receive upon request official record of the board's decisions.

In The Area

Boat Docking Policy

Transient boat docking at the state pier at Bath now requires registration for overnight use and is limited to 72 consecutive hours, according to the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources.

The policy is similar to regulations at other public and municipal waterfront areas in eastern North Carolina.

The state pier, built in the early 1960s by the Historic Bath Commission, is located at Harding's Landing on Main Street and is diagonally across the street from the Palmer-Marsh House.

Registration Set

Safewheels of Pitt County will hold registration Saturday at Jaycee Park for everyone interested in using the new skateboard-freestyle bicycle facility.

A registration fee includes use of the facility, a T-shirt, a newsletter and reduced rates for activities sponsored by Safewheels.

There will also be a yard sale and a bake sale May 14 to raise money for the facility. For more information call Christine Operario at 752-2349 or Barbara Hardy at 757-3634.

Roadside Cleanup

Employee volunteers from Carolina Telephone cleaned the shoulders on sections of the 264 Eastern Bypass in Greenville Thursday as part of their annual spring and fall participation in a statewide roadside cleanup campaign.

The company is coordinating its efforts with the statewide campaign promoted by Gov. and Mrs. Jim Martin. Mrs. Martin said that 23,000 volunteers participated statewide and saved taxpayers $504,000 that it would have cost if their time had been paid for.

Lions Broom Sale

The annual benefit sale of brooms by members of the Greenville Host Lions Club will get under way Monday, according to Reginald Gray, project chairman.

Gray said that beginning Monday and continuing through May, sales will be made of three different types of brooms — a regular size, a warehouse size and a round broom.

The brooms are handcrafted by blind persons at the Institution for the Blind in Greensboro who use the work as their principal means of contributing to their own support.

Gray said sales will be conducted throughout Greenville on a house to house basis as well as through representatives of the Host Lions Club.

Persons interested in getting one of the brooms can call Gray at 756-5406, Harry Allen at 756-0462, or Jimmie Hardee at 758-4379.

Benefit Activity

The Benevolent Circle of the Kings Daughters and Sons will have a benefit yard sale starting at 8 a.m. Saturday at 2008 Sherwood Drive. Household articles and clothes will be sold.

Mays Scholarship

Robert A. (Bob) Mays, owner and president of Mays Insurance Agency of Greensboro, has established the Robert A. and Lina W. Mays Alumni Honors Scholarship at East Carolina University.

The scholarship, valued at $1,000 per year, will be given for four years of the recipient's undergraduate career, as long as required grade levels are maintained. The scholarship will be awarded to an incoming freshman at ECU for the 1988-89 academic year.

Mays is a Hopewell, Va., native and a 1951 graduate of ECU. Ms. Mays, the former Lina Worthington of Greenville, graduated from ECU in 1951 with a bachelor's degree in primary education.

The Mays are members of the ECU Friends of the School of Music, the ECU Alumni Association and the Chancellor's Society. In 1972 they established the Robert and Lina Mays Award for Teaching Excellence, an award that each year recognizes an ECU professor for outstanding teaching.

Nursing Professor

Phyllis N. Horns has been appointed a professor on the faculty of the School of Nursing at East Carolina University and will be junior year coordinator in 1988-89, according to Dr. Emilie D. Henning, dean of the school.

Dr. Horns' clinical area of expertise is maternal-child nursing. She holds a nursing degree from ECU, a degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and a doctorate in nursing from the University of Alabama-Birmingham. She has completed a pediatric nurse practitioner program at the University of Rochester.

Dr. Horns served on the faculty of the ECU School of Nursing from 1969 to 1978 and since 1979 has been on the faculty of the University of Alabama, most recently as professor of nursing and professor of education. She has also held the administrative position of assistant dean for the baccalaureate program.

Month Proclaimed

The May observance as "Better Hearing and Speech Month" will be kicked off Sunday with a 2 p.m. Shatter Silence ceremony on the Town Common. A performance by the East Carolina University Fantasy sign language musicians will be part of this event.

The Quota Club is sponsoring the observance and will present assistive devices to hearing impaired persons in the county.

The Winterville chapter of the Ruritan Club has contributed $100 to assist a hearing impaired citizen of Pitt County.

Support Group

CanSurmount, a support group for cancer patients and their families, will meet Monday at 5:15 p.m. at the American Cancer Society office. For further information call 752-2574.

School Guests

Ken Marsh, visiting artist at Pitt Community College, presented a program of his work and heritage to fourth-grade students at South Greenville School during North Carolina Heritage Week this week.

Carol Gardner presented an antique show and students shared the North Carolina projects they had made.

Addie Gore, Pitt County home economics agent, visited the school to conclude a study on foods. Students participated in the discussion and preparation of foods, and each child was served food from the basic food groups.

Patricia Mair of Greenville, a teacher at South Greenville School, recently participated in the seminar, "Teaching as a Calling," at the North Carolina Center for the Advancement of Teaching.

'Loyalty Day'

Greenville Mayor Ed Carter has proclaimed Sunday as "Loyalty Day" in the city.

"The citizens of this city are extremely proud of this nation's more than 200-year Heritage of Freedom and are loyal to the ideals, traditions and institutions which have made our nation so great. Their obvious dedication to our way of life is indicative of a strong, continued desire to preserve the priceless American Heritage," Carter said.

"I call upon all my fellow citizens to take full advantage of the special occasion celebrated annually throughout the nation as an incentive for every true American to reaffirm his and her love of flag and country," he said.

Guns Said Stolen

Investigators said four thefts, including three guns and a quantity of jewelry from a Greenville Manor apartment, were reported to Greenville police Thursday.

Officer R.C. Stroud said $651 worth of jewelry, a 7mm magnum rifle, a 12-gauge automatic shotgun and a .22-caliber rifle with scope sight were taken from 12 Greenville Manor in an incident reported at 12:19 p.m.

Officer F.G. Pruitt said a hood ornament was taken from a vehicle parked at Trinity Free Will Baptist Church on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 8:34 a.m.

Officer T.A. Lee said a shirt valued at $23 was taken from Hostetter's Tennis Shop at 218C Arlington Blvd. in an incident reported at 1:56 p.m., while Officer D.C. Johnson said a bicycle was taken from 1309 E. First St. in an incident reported at 10:52 p.m.

Employee Honor

Deborah Glover Ryals, eligibility director in the Pitt County Department of Social Services and the Eastern District Employee of the Year, was recently named the N.C. Social Services Association Employee of the Year during the annual meeting in Charlotte.

Ms. Ryals has been active in NCCSSA since she began working in social services in 1972. She was previously employed in the Durham County Department of Social Services, has served as NCCSSA county and district membership chairwoman, was a member of the personnel committee and has co-chaired the committee.

She serves on the Income Maintenance Committee and is chairwoman of the Aid to Families with Dependent Children Policy Committee.

Man Sentenced To Die

CONCORD (AP) — A North Carolina man convicted of choking and stabbing to death the manager of a Concord cafeteria last year has been sentenced to die in the gas chamber this summer.

Ernest Paul McCarver, 27, of Monroe also was sentenced to 40 years in prison for robbing his victim with a dangerous weapon — just in case the death penalty should ever be altered to life imprisonment, said

Cabarrus County Superior Court Judge James Davis as he announced the sentence Thursday.

The jury, which delivered a guilty verdict for McCarver earlier in the week, recommended the death penalty late Thursday afternoon.

McCarver and Jimmy Rape, 26, of Matthews were accused of strangling 71-year-old Woodrow Hartley Jan. 2, 1987, in the K & W Cafeteria at the Carolina Mall in Concord.

Area Church News

Stake Conference
A stake conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will be held at the Kinston Stake Center in Kinston Saturday and Sunday, with a general authority from Salt Lake City headquarters of the church participating.
Sunday services will not be held at the Greenville LDS Church so Greenville ward members may attend the 10 a.m. to noon session of the conference.

Meeting Scheduled
Old Easter Missionary Baptist Union will meet Sunday at Sycamore Chapel Church starting at 2:30 p.m.

Group To Rehearse
The Echoes of Calvary Free Will Baptist Church will rehearse Saturday at noon at the church.
The Rev. Richard Mercer will conduct revival services at the church Monday through Friday at 7:30 p.m. Guest churches include Philippi Disciple, Monday; Sweet Hope FWB, Tuesday; York Memorial, Wednesday; Selvia Chapel, Thursday, and the guest minister's church Friday.

Church Board Meets
Board members of White Oak Baptist Church in Grimesland will meet Saturday at 11 a.m.

Youth Group Project
The Young People's Holy Association of Holy Trinity United Holy Church will have a benefit car wash Saturday beginning at 9 a.m. in front of the church fellowship hall, 1805 Spruce St.

Piano Concert
A benefit piano concert by Mitzi Benfield for the building fund of Winterville Christian Church, East Cooper Street, Winterville, will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday at the church.
Ms. Benfield, a student at East Carolina University, is pianist-organist for the church. She will present a program of baroque, classical, romantic, impressionistic and jazz music.
She has performed in various functions at ECU and was a member of the D.H. Conley High School Jazz Band.

Service In Greenville
Christopher J. Park is serving a portion of his mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Greenville.
Park, who attended the University of Utah and worked in a cabinet shop prior to beginning his mission, is from Salt Lake City. He served in New Bern, Jacksonville and Raleigh prior to coming to Greenville.
After completing his mission, he plans to return to the University of Utah to earn a degree in electrical engineering.

Film To Be Shown
"All the Kings Horses," a film depicting tensions facing many families and how they handle them through Jesus Christ, will be shown Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Lighthouse Church of God, Haddock's Crossroads.
For more information call 756-1898.

Hymnal Omits Deity Pronouns
ST. LOUIS (AP) — A newly updated hymnal for United Methodists has won preliminary approval at the church's governing general conference — except for some missing masculine pronouns about God.
The objections arose over phrases in the accompanying psalter of psalms, not the hymns themselves.
Noting that in many cases masculine personal pronouns, such as "he" and "him" had been replaced by "God" or "God's," the Rev. Riley Case of Marion, Indiana, said: "The truth is that this proposed psalter has no pronouns for God. It is a depersonalized God. And the feeling in the trenches will be that the Bible has been changed."

Women's Day
Women's Day will be observed Sunday at 11 a.m. at Jumping Runn Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Grifton. The speaker will be Eldress Daisey Barn.

Dermatologists Say

Suntanning Losing Favor
Among Fashion LeadersBy BRENDA C. COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Deep, dark sun-fans are fading from fashionability because of cancer and wrinkle fears, according to a survey sponsored by a dermatologists' group. But tanning-industry officials say the bronze look is alive and well.

Fifty fashion leaders surveyed by the American Academy of Dermatology and the Avon Foundation were "virtually unanimous" in their opinion that the dark tan once fashionable is no longer in vogue, the academy said.

"The main reasons for caution under the sun are fear of premature aging and knowledge about skin cancer," the doctors' group said.

Those polled ranged from Cosmopolitan magazine editor Helen Gurley Brown to New York modeling agency head Eileen Ford, the academy said in a statement promoting May as "Melanoma-Skin Cancer Detection and Prevention Month."

Doctors say the popularity of suntanning is partly to blame for the soaring U.S. rates of melanoma, a skin cancer that killed an estimated 5,800 Americans last year.

"There are still addicted-to-tan people who will never conquer the addiction," Ms. Brown told the survey. "The reason the rest of us are more careful is because of all the information being disseminated. You just could not avoid knowing, at this point, if you can read, that heavy suntanning does cause skin cancer."

Ms. Ford told the survey, "Today's style is a healthy glow, not sun-baked skin."

But those in the tanning trade point to booming business at tanning parlors, an increasing number of tourists at sun resorts and millions of dollars being spent on tanning aids.

There are more than 275,000 commercial tanning beds in the United States, said Bo Wunsch, a spokesman for Silver Solarium Inc., a tanning equipment importer in San Francisco.

"It is not only the fashion in this country. It is the fashion throughout Western Europe," he said in a telephone interview Thursday.

Vacations to sun resorts have not fallen off, either, according to figures from Club Med Sales Inc. in New York, which sold 350,400 trips to its 109 sun resorts last year, said spokeswoman Edwina Arnold. That was almost a 16 percent rise from the 302,100 trips in 1985, she said.

In the $450 million suntan-lotion market, products that promote tanning more than block it gained a slight market share from 1986 to 1987, from 46 percent to 52 percent, said Debra Bennetts, a spokeswoman for makers of Bain de Soleil.

She shared the view that lighter tanning is the trend and said her company, Richardson-Vicks in Wilton, Conn., for the first time is adding a new product this season with the highest possible sun protection factor, or SPF, rating — 30.

"And in our advertising for this current season, our model's tan is much lighter than in past years," she said in a telephone interview Thursday. "We like to think we're going to set what becomes fashionable."

But David Rollins, U.S. distributor of Eurotan Professional Tan Accelerator, said people are buying his product faster than ever, and his company in Harrisburg, Ill., has sold 500,000 bottles since February.

Managers of two Chicago tanning parlors randomly selected said they are having their best year ever.

"I really don't see tanning ever going out of style, to be honest with you," said Tom Neighbors, manager of Eurotan Halsted, which serves about 100 customers a day. "It's been around forever."

Clockmaker Lives With Time

By RAY KOEHLER
The Reading Eagle

READING, Pa. (AP) — The uneven passage of time has treated Miles Reist gently.

Time has provided the 84-year-old clockmaker with a comfortable living, a daily challenge and a status among the socially elite of Berks County.

In the 70 years that Reist has preserved the treasured timepieces of his area's rich and famous, he has gained a privileged glimpse into households known mostly only by reputation — or rumor.

"I have good clientele," the pleasant, sandy-haired horologist said. "I'm a terrific clockmaker!"

Surrounded by the ticking, clanging, chiming timepieces in his confined clock shop, he paused and observed wryly, "You don't get rich at it, but you make a good living."

"You don't work cheap. Your talent is worth something. It's not exactly what you do, it's what you know. If you have to fool around all day with a clock to find out what's wrong with it, you're not making any money. The minute you look at a clock, you have to know what's wrong with it."

In his own home, Reist has 50 clocks, constantly chiming and frantically tick-tocking.

"You've got to have good nerves to live in this house," he said. "I wind them every Friday morning about 9 o'clock."

Reist still works full time. He drives to the homes of customers, where he removes the works from the clocks and makes repairs in his shop.

Reist, a widower, is a clockmaker of singular talent. Although many a clock has tried his patience, none has defied his ability, he said.

"Some of those clocks were tough — and they still are," he said. "That's because they're wearing out ... like I am."

What distinguishes Reist from his associates is his ability and the equipment to make clock parts: a milling machine to cut gears, a drill press, a lathe.

"They don't make the parts anymore for many of these old clocks, and many clockmaking firms have gone out of business," he said. "Where do you get parts for chime clocks? You have to make them."

"I have a lot of knowledge about clocks. I can make the parts. Most people just clean 'em. In 70 years, you learn a lot."

The biggest clock of the estimated 50,000 Reist has worked on was 9 feet tall. He used a ladder to work on it. On the opposite end, he recalled working on a clock with works the size of a wristwatch.

Reist says it is important for a clockmaker to have good eyes and a steady hand.

Collectors Find Variety

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Even a decade ago, young artists whose work was in crafts instead of painting and sculpture often began by selling at street fairs, says Barbara Mayer, author of a recent book on craft art.

Today, they are more apt to be graduates of fine arts schools and to sell, right away, through galleries and juried crafts shows.

Now, Mayer says, a good place to buy craft art you like — and the value of which will increase — is at student shows at art schools and university art departments. They're all over the country.

"It's a fact that collectors are interested in the appreciation of value of the objects they buy," she says. "That's part of the game of collecting."

Mayer did research for four years for her new book, "Contemporary American Craft Art, a Collector's Guide." She says, "Basically, I asked myself what I would need and want to know if I were a collector."

Mayer, who writes a column on home decorating for The Associated Press, is not a collector, though her parents were antique dealers. She became interested when she attended a crafts fair and saw the delight with which buyers spent their money and artists enjoyed having their creations admired.

"There was no central place for this information," she says. "It was scattered in specialty magazines, exhibition catalogs."

She has chapters on the five divisions in craft art: ceramics; fiber art, which includes wall hangings, rugs and baskets; glass; metal, from jewelry to ironwork gates, and wood. Glass and ceramics are currently the most popular with collectors, she says.

If you're starting to collect, she advises, it's a good idea to pick one medium, form or theme that appeals to you.

Italian Women Demand Right To Walk Alone In Safety

By STEPHEN R. WILSON
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — A 30-year-old woman who was seized and raped by three young men in Rome's historic center has become a rallying point for Italian women seeking to be able to walk the streets alone at night in safety.

M.C., as the Italian press identifies her, has unwittingly galvanized a campaign for tougher laws against sexual assault and challenged the age-old taboo in Italy that women shouldn't be out alone after dark.

"Rome is splendid by day, but by night for any woman who ventures into the street, it's only dark and dangerous," said Tina Lagostena Bassi, a leading attorney for women's causes who helped represent M.C.

In 1986, 1,149 rapes were reported to police in Italy, according to the latest government statistics, but women's groups say many more cases go unreported.

None has attracted more public attention than the ordeal of M.C., whose rape March 6 in the heart of the capital and the trial of her three attackers has been front-page news in Italian newspapers and subject of an editorial in the Vatican's daily newspaper.

On March 26, two days after her attackers were convicted and each sentenced to prison for four years and eight months, more than 100,000 people marched through central

Rome in a demonstration for women's rights.

M.C. appeared on the podium at the end of the rally, the biggest women's demonstration in the capital since the pro-abortion marches at the end of the 1970s.

"We want a society without violence," Carla Passalacqua, one of the rally organizers, said as women of all ages from all parts of Italy, ranging from olive pickers from Calabria to computer programmers in Milan, marched past.

"We're in a very grave situation now," she added. "No woman can walk the streets alone at night without fear of being raped. But today we are saying she should be able to."

According to police and court testimony, M.C. was assaulted by three men near Piazza Navona, one of central Rome's most popular squares, as she walked home at about 1 a.m. after dinner with friends.

The three, all in their early 20s, were arrested by a policeman who happened on the scene. The policeman testified that he found the three men lined up with their pants down in front of the woman, who he said was half-naked on the ground, her face bloodied, in a dark corner.

"Aw c'mon, you don't want to arrest us for something like this?" one of the men was quoted by Italian media as telling the policeman.

M.C. was taken to a hospital, where she was reported as telling authorities: "Yes, they were raping me. Two boys were holding me by the arms and another was trying to do something with me."

The woman, with short dark hair and eyes covered by dark sunglasses, testified in the trial that she could not remember exactly what happened after the men approached her.

The defendants, who were described by their families as good, law-abiding "boys," gave conflicting testimony. One admitted to having sex with the woman, but all claimed that she had initiated the encounter.

The packed courtroom burst into chaos when a defense lawyer, Augusto Addamiano, said in closing arguments that M.C. decided to accuse the three of rape "rather than admit that she was willingly performing obscene acts in a public place."

The judge, Antonino Stipo, ordered police to clear the courtroom as feminists and the defendants' relatives screamed at each other and at the lawyers.

Hours later, the judge announced the three were guilty of rape, performing obscene acts in public and causing injury. Their lawyers have appealed.

"This trial was emblematic," Mrs. Bassi, one of M.C.'s lawyers, said in an interview. "It's one of so many cases. But I'm happy with the attention the trial received. In a way, it's women re-claiming their rights to go out alone and do what they want."

The notion that women shouldn't be out on the street alone at night was raised by the defendants' parents. "What was that woman doing at 1:30 in the morning walking around alone?" Giacomo Putti, father of one of the three men, told Italian newspapers. "A respectable person is at home at that hour. What was she looking for?"

When a reporter asked why his son was out so late, the father responded, "They're boys. A pizza with friends, then they go around to have fun."

An editorial in the L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, criticized the parents for expressing "wonder that a woman should walk around alone at that hour, rather than being upset and expressing pain for the crime committed by their sons."

A decade ago the country was shocked by a television documentary of a rape trial in Latina, near Rome. Defense lawyers suggested the victim, who was brutally raped by four men, had "asked for it." The defendants were convicted, but given sentences of less than a year and granted conditional releases.

The program helped spur a campaign for tougher anti-rape laws, but rape is still considered a "crime against morals," punishable by up to 10 years in prison.

A Senate panel recently began debate on proposed bills to make rape a "crime against the person," stiffen sentences, allow for summary trials and permit women's groups to be plaintiffs in rape cases.

'You Are Buying Cookies, Not Gratitude'

DEAR ABBY: Thirty-five-year-old "Girl Scouts" are almost unheard of — until cookie-selling season approaches. Then these badgeless mothers are turned loose in the workplace to unload goods for their 10-year-old kids.

Co-workers of parents whose children participate in sports or other activities are subjected to seasonal pitches for fund-raising items. Whatever happened to the Girl Scouts and Little Leaguers who used to go from door-to-door to sell their cookies and candies? I frequently buy wares from these children's parents, but just once I'd like to see a handwritten acknowledgment from the child on the bulletin board in Mom's or Dad's workplace.

I will remain skeptical that Girl Scouts even exist unless my co-workers are allowed to wear their green uniforms to the office.

Thanks, Abby, for letting me sound off. — HEIDI, FORMER DOOR KNOCKER

DEAR HEIDI: I see your point, and you are not alone. However, let's be fair. I've seen supervised Girl Scouts selling their cookies outside supermarkets and malls — always cheerful, persistent and enthusiastic. At the workplace, you are buying cookies, not gratitude. And if that leaves a bad taste in your mouth, that's the way the cookie crumbles!

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing the letter you ran in your column a couple of years ago on National Secretaries Day. I think your comment said it all. It's National Secretaries Week again already!

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Please run it again, Abby. — A SECRETARY IN HARTFORD

DEAR SECRETARY: I agree. Here it is.

DEAR ABBY: I am a certified public accountant who recently led a workshop involving secretaries and their bosses. I asked secretaries what they wanted most from their bosses on Secretaries Day. Then I asked the bosses what they thought their secretaries wanted most on "their" day. There were 201 responses from secretaries, and 143 responses from their bosses.

Guess what 22 percent of the secretaries said they wanted most on their day? A day off with pay! Only 6 percent of the bosses said that that's what their secretaries wanted most.

Concerning flowers: Only 7 percent of the secretaries said they wanted flowers. But 25 percent of the bosses said they thought their secretaries wanted flowers.

Interesting? — MARY L. CRAIG, CPA

DEAR MARY: Very. Unfortunately, what most secretaries want and what they get are vastly different. Moral: If one wants to know, one asks. But if one isn't asked, then one takes what one gets.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you asked how much profit the telephone company makes on local and long-distance calls. I cannot begin to answer that question, but the information in the enclosed article by Vic Sussman (Washington Post Magazine) might interest you. — A READER IN POTOMAC, MD.

DEAR READER: Indeed it did. In part, Mr. Sussman said: "In 1987 the U.S. phone companies lost $14 million to toll frauds alone. (Add to that all the unpaid telephone bills, and it comes to $500 million.) The phone companies obviously don't want to absorb such losses, so they raise their rates to compensate, and we all get stuck with the bill in the end. The problem — which isn't getting any better — involves a wide social cross section, from teen-genius hackers to white-collar professionals and unemployed executives who charge calls to telephone credit cards they're no longer entitled to use."

"... Last year, 415 students at a local university were nailed by MCI after stealing $25,000 worth of phone time with computer-generated codes and telephone credit cards stolen from mail boxes; 300 students at a Texas college got caught after taking Metromedia Long Distance for $100,000; and at a North Carolina university, 27 students were charged with stealing $600,000 in calls from MCI."

I accused "Ma Bell" of soaking the consumers when she reached out and

"touched someone." Methinks I owe her an apology.

DEAR READERS: Here's a powerful message that I think deserves a national audience:

"Every father is diminished when his daughter is denied a fair chance. Every son is a victim when his mother is denied fair pay. But when we lower barriers, open doors, and free women to reach wherever their dreams will take them — our talents are multiplied, and our country is stronger."

Who wrote those words? Betty Friedan? Gloria Steinem? Lily Tomlin?

None of the above. Give up? Try Geraldine Ferraro.

Access Requested

 overpass directly crossing the new highway.
 Mrs. Staton, a resident there since 1957, often drives Mrs. Randolph to church and uses SR 1422, a dirt road, to get to her home. "It's bumpy, but it's an outlet," Mrs. Randolph said.
 There will be interchanges at new U.S. 264, N.C. 43, N.C. 33 and U.S. 13-N.C. 11 along the new stretch of highway, according to W.A. Garrett Jr., public hearing officer for the state Division of Highways.

The location of the bypass has been approved, Garrett said at Thursday's public hearing, but the DOT has not finalized the design.
 The project has an estimated cost of $39.65 million, and it will require 22 families and two businesses to relocate. There will also be no private driveways and no direct access to the highway, and the state will provide service roads to link traffic to the bypass.
 Right-of-way acquisition is scheduled to begin this September, and the final paving is projected to begin in May 1993, Garrett said.

When a homeowner loses access, the DOT will either pay the owner for the lost access or construct a service road to serve the properties. If the DOT pays for the access, Garrett said it often pays close to the value of the land, and the homeowner still retains the deed to the property.

A relocation agent will work individually with each relocatee, Garrett said, and appraise the property and provide money for moving expenses, mortgage differential and incidental costs.

There is also a replacement housing payment to help homeowners make up the difference in purchasing a comparable home which costs more than the state paid for their land, or to offset increased costs for those people renting.

All questions were entered into the public record, and Garrett said the record would remain open for two weeks to allow people to submit written comments.

Museum Proposed

 ern North Carolina, and that Greenville is at the crossroads leading into the most historic area of the state.

"People are more and more thinking of Greenville as the cultural center of eastern North Carolina. Already we have much to offer in the fields of art, entertainment. The addition of an aeronautical museum will be another attraction, one that will benefit Greenville now and in the future."

Projected installations, services and attractions for the museum will include the display of airplanes representing a cross-section of aviation history over the years; a repository of manuscripts, photographs and other material; a library for research; a shop for construction and repairs; an honors room to specialize in the early stage of North Carolina aviation personalities, and space for a staff and association functions.

The initial board for the museum project consists of 10 members and a consultant, all but two now living in Greenville. Most are still or have been pilots, and several are retired from the Air Force or Navy.

Laing, a pilot, is board chairman. Other members are: Richard Allen, pilot and aeronautical artifact collector from Fayetteville; Retired Marine Maj. Gen. Victor Armstrong, now living in Morehead City; Robert E. Browning, attorney and pilot, retired USNR commander; Thomas W. Harwell, pilot, a retired USNR commander; Dr. Harold Jones, pilot and department chairman, ECU School of Music; Dr. Paul D. Knoke, a retired USAF lieutenant colonel and professor, ECU Department of English; Dr. David B. Stevens, pilot and attorney, retired USAF colonel; James C. Turcotte, pilot and manager Pitt-Greenville Airport who is serving as the board's secretary, and William A. Robie Jr., pilot and aviation historian.

Dr. John A. Tilley, a professor in the ECU Department of History, is consultant to the board.

Two of the board members made brief remarks on the roles of and the need for an aeronautical museum in Greenville.

Armstrong, former helicopter pilot for Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy and later commandant at the Cherry Point Marine Corps Base, commented on the growing number of air museums in the United States and the tremendous crowds they constantly draw.

"Here in North Carolina, acknowledged home of the birth of aviation, we have no good air museum. Greenville can have an aeronautical museum second to none, a facility that will be a real godsend to Greenville and the entire state," Armstrong said.

Robie focused on the close connection of North Carolina native-born persons to the 85-year history of modern aviation. Naming a few firsts in aviation from North Carolina — among them the first American aviator to die in combat during World War I and the first woman to make a parachute jump — Robie said "there are many firsts yet to be verified, to be discovered and honored, some of whom we know little or nothing about. This will be a challenge, one of the roles a Greenville aeronautical museum will play."

Janice H. Faulkner, director of the Regional Development Institute, in her opening remarks, said "the idea, the concept of an effort to establish an aeronautical museum began with a phone call from a person eager to have us help explore the idea of such a museum."

"Our job here is to listen, to respond to any ideas, to do research into the feasibility of any suggestion. And so, three years later, we now have this announcement of the proposal for a Greenville Aeronautical Museum. Although RDI is not directly connected to this proposal, it is our job to provide planning assistance. We will do what we can, what we are authorized to do to make this exciting dream happen," Ms. Faulkner said.

Blast Rips Jet

 the plane was still flying and they quickly went about the business of doing whatever they could do to save their lives."
 Passenger Daniel Westfall, of Novato, Calif., said the plane "jerked around, up and down."
 Mark Eberly, a ramp supervisor at the airport, said he dropped to his knees in shock as he watched the plane land with one of its engines smoking and the section of fuselage missing. "I saw hair flying in the wind and arms dangling," he said.
 Craig Nichols of Pocatello, Idaho, said after the plane came to a stop on the ground, he saw "some really mangled people," including one with an arm almost severed.
 "It looked like a normal landing with the whole top of the plane gone," he said.
 "It looked like a convertible," said Joe Ronderos of Los Angeles.
 "It was like somebody had peeled off a layer of skin. You could just see all the passengers sitting there," said George Harvey, area coordinator for the Federal Aviation Administration in Honolulu.
 Officials at Boeing Commercial Airplanes, the primary subsidiary of Boeing Co., said there were no fuel lines or other potential sources for an explosion in that part of the plane.
 Even in the extremely unlikely event that a turbine blade tore loose from an engine and ripped into the fuselage, it could not hit forward from the wing, and the effect would be nothing like what happened to the Aloha plane, he said.
 The plane was one of nine 737-200s delivered to Aloha in the late 1970s, said Boeing spokesman David Jimenez. The first 737-200 was put into service in April 1968.
 At a news conference in Honolulu, Maurice Myers, president of Aloha Airlines, said nothing is stored in the area of the blast.
 Myers cited the "extraordinary performance" of pilot Robert L. Schornstheimer in bringing the 737-200 in safely. Schornstheimer has flown for the airline for 12 years.
 "I give credit to the pilot. He brought that plane down so smoothly. It was just like riding in a Cadillac," said passenger John Lopez, 40, of Hilo.
 "I've had worse landings in normal aircraft," Dennis said.
 Sixty people were taken to Maui Memorial Hospital and 12 were admitted, two in critical condition and four serious, said Dr. Charles Mitchell, emergency room director. Injuries included burns, bruises and cuts, he said.
 The missing flight attendant, identified as Clarabelle B. Lansing of Honolulu, was probably either ejected by the blast or blown out of the plane by the wind, said Clifford Hue, another FAA area manager.
 The explosion occurred southeast of Maui while the plane was at an altitude of 24,000 feet, the airline said. It said the 110-mile flight from Hilo on Hawaii Island to Kahului carried 89 passengers, five crew members and an air traffic controller from Hilo Airport.

Sentenced

GREENSBORO (AP) — A former Guilford County clerk pleaded guilty Thursday to embezzling more than $5,500 from the county register of deeds office.

Vickie Hayes Williams was sentenced in Guilford County Superior Court to serve 26 consecutive weekends in jail and was ordered to repay the money to the county.

Prosecutors used videotapes taken of Ms. Williams that showed her taking money out of a cash register at the deeds office. The video camera had been placed in an air-conditioning duct above the register after officials detected some of the thefts.

An audit of the deeds office showed that $5,563 was taken from the register between July and October last year, prosecutors said.

O-Birds Set New Losing Record

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The winless Baltimore Orioles are wearing on Rollie Hemond.

Hemond was hired as Baltimore's general manager in November. He has yet to see them win. The Orioles set an American League record with their 21st straight defeat Thursday, when they lost 4-2 to the Minnesota Twins.

The Birds go into Chicago's Comiskey Park tonight to start a three-game series with hopes of avoiding the all-time modern major-league record of 23 consecutive losses by the 1961 Philadelphia Phillies.

If they tie that record Saturday, they will have gone 0-for-April.

"I'm going to keep wearing it until we win," Hemond said of the gray suit he donned for Thursday's last two innings.

It was the same suit he wore when he saw his former club, the White Sox, win the AL West in 1983.

The clothes were expressed to the Metrodome by White Sox co-owners Eddie Einhorn and Jerry Reinsdorf, along with a note reading: "Hope this lucky suit gets the Orioles their first win — before they come here."

No such luck, for either the White Sox or the Orioles.

The losing streak continues. So does the circus atmosphere.

"You can't get away from it, that's what so difficult," Baltimore's Larry Sheets said. "We want to just settle down, but we keep losing and bring more people every day to see us."

It's been more than a week since the Orioles set a major-league record with their 14th loss to start the season — and that didn't even include five straight losses at the end of spring training.

The previous AL record of 20 consecutive losses was set by Boston in 1906 and tied twice by the Philadelphia Athletics, in 1916 and 1943.

"It starts to wear you down mentally and physically," said Manager Frank Robinson, 0-15 since replacing the fired Cal Ripken Sr. "Everything is taking its toll on us right now."

"It's not going to go away. They know everyone is watching. The whole world is watching."

And a good chunk of the world is chuckling.

"They've got guys from all over the country watching them. It's getting to the point where it's sad, it's out of hand," Kirby Puckett of the Twins said.

"Nobody wants to come to the park and lose 20 in a row. What they're going through, it's not funny. It's nothing to laugh at."

He added that even if the Orioles are as bad as they appear to be, "something's still gotta happen for them."

Other Twins insisted that the Orioles have too many good players — like Cal Ripken Jr., Eddie Murray, Fred Lynn and Mike Boddicker — to keep losing for long.

But one has to wonder. The Orioles aren't 0-21 by accident. They've parlayed pitching breakdowns, poor clutch hitting and defensive miscues into trouble, trouble and more trouble.

Boddicker, 0-5 after his 10th straight loss, started Thursday and gave up only six hits in 7 1-3 innings. But two of those hits — a two-run homer by Kent Hrbek and a two-run double by John Moses — were all the Twins needed to hold off the offenseless Orioles.

Boddicker also issued six walks and hit three Twins with pitches.

"But, hey, I didn't balk," he joked.

Baltimore hitters were 1-for-9 with runners in scoring position, dropping their season batting average in such situations to .132. Their bats were silenced by career minor-leaguers Allan Anderson, 1-0, and Mark Portugal.

Second baseman Rene Gonzales and Ripken at shortstop committed errors. And rookie right-fielder Keith Hughes misplayed two catchable balls into doubles.

Despite the team's woes, Boddicker praised Robinson, saying the manager has gotten angry only at appropriate times.

"And when we needed a pat on the back," Boddicker said, "he patted us."

The Orioles revitalized Hrbek, who was batting .222 with no homers when the Birds came to town. In the three-game series — the seventh time Baltimore has been swept this year — Hrbek went 7-for-11 with four homers.

"I don't look at them like a team that's going to help anybody get healthy. They're not out there trying to cure any illnesses," Hrbek said. "They're just not getting any breaks right now."

He admitted that it was "nice to have the series over with," but added: "We gotta play them again in Baltimore (next week). Hopefully, they might win one by then."

Dawson Leads Cubs To Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It took a while, but Andre Dawson finally got to the Los Angeles Dodgers' fine pitching staff. It came at just the right time for the Chicago Cubs.

Dawson's two-run triple highlighted a four-run rally in the sixth inning Thursday night that broke a scoreless tie, and the Cubs went on to beat the Dodgers 5-1.

The victory enabled the Cubs to win two of the three games played between the teams at Dodger Stadium this week.

In the only other scheduled National League games, Pittsburgh edged San Francisco 2-1 in 10 innings and St. Louis beat San Diego 6-4.

Dawson went hitless in his first nine at-bats in the series before doubling in the fourth for the first Chicago hit off Los Angeles rookie Tim Belcher and lining his two-run triple into the right field corner in the sixth.

"They were pitching me off the ball a lot and I was pulling off the ball a lot," Dawson said. "I tried to remind myself to stay on the ball and hit it to right field. I can't go up there and try to pull the ball all the time."

Said Belcher: "I was reluctant to give in to Dawson in that situation. I threw too many pitches in the same spot to Dawson. I went with my best pitch and he hit it."

Belcher, 1-1, fanned six of the first 10 batters and finished with a career-high eight strikeouts. He allowed only the fourth-inning double by Dawson through the first five innings.

But the Cubs got to him in the sixth. Darrin Jackson singled with one out, Ryne Sandberg walked and Dawson sliced a 1-2 pitch into the right-field corner.

After Rafael Palmeiro greeted reliever Brad Havens with a run-scoring single to score Dawson, Jody Davis walked and Manny Trillo singled in Palmeiro.

The Cubs added a run in the seventh on a triple by Angel Salazar and a suicide squeeze by Sandberg.

Dawson joined the Cubs last year as a free agent and had a monster season, hitting .287 with a National League-leading 49 home runs and 137 runs batted in. This, he pointed out, is a new year.

"I don't try to duplicate last year's numbers," last year's NL MVP said. "I just want to be able to play every day, and the numbers will even out."

The Cubs survived a pair of errors to make a winner of Calvin Schiraldi. Schiraldi, 1-2, struck out seven and walked one over 5 1-3 innings. The right-hander missed a possible chance to go all the way for the first time in his career because of a pair of consecutive sixth-inning miscues — including one by himself.

"You don't know what's going to happen in the seventh, eighth or ninth innings, but if I make the play I should have made, I could have gone out there again in the seventh and probably finished the game," he said.

After issuing a one-out walk to Mike Davis, Schiraldi fielded Franklin Stubbs' comebacker and threw wildly into center field. Jeff Hamilton then hit a towering fly ball to Palmeiro, who dropped it at the left field fence. Davis scored on the play, but Stubbs had to hold up with one out.

Reliever Frank DiPino then retired Mike Scioscia and pinch-hitter Mickey Hatcher on flyouts to end the threat. DiPino blanked the Dodgers the rest of the way to earn his first save.

Schiraldi, who started only once in 118 appearances over the previous three seasons, was making his third start of the year and his ninth in the majors. He left runners in scoring position in three of the first five innings and got out of a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the second.

The Dodgers were without cleanup hitter Pedro Guerrero, who sat out the game because of tendinitis in his right knee.

Pirates 2, Giants 1

Considering the pitching on both sides, Darnell Coles felt no remorse over his decisive single being nothing more than a bloop.

"The game-winning hit had to be a chinker," Coles said after Pittsburgh won for the 13th time in its last 16 games.

Bobby Bonilla opened the 10th inning with a bloop single and was sacrificed to second by Sid Bream. Don Robinson relieved Craig Lefferts, 1-1, and Coles hit the ball just over the glove of second baseman Robby Thompson to hand the Giants their fifth loss in six games.

San Francisco's Kelly Downs had a perfect game through five innings, and gave up just two hits over eight while striking out seven and walking one.

Jeff Robinson, 2-0, pitched 3 2-3 innings of one-hit relief and Jim Gott got the last out for his third save. Mike Dunne, who came off the 21-day disabled list earlier in the day, gave up only four hits in six innings for Pittsburgh.

Cardinals 6, Padres 4

Tom Brunansky says he is a mistake-prone hitter, prone to hitting mistakes out of the ballpark.

"I would say that 100 percent of my homers come on mistakes made by the pitcher," Brunansky said after hitting two home runs to pace an 11-hit attack.

Brunansky, traded from Minnesota to St. Louis for second baseman Tom Herr on April 22, hit a two-run homer in the second inning off Padres starter Ed Whitson and a solo shot in the fifth off Mark Grant, his third in the last two games.

Larry McWilliams, 1-0, pitched 5 1-3 shutout innings to pick up the win after relieving starter Jose DeLeon in the second. Todd Worrell came on with two outs in the ninth to strike out Chris Brown for his sixth save.

Trailing 2-0 against Greg Booker, 0-1, the Cardinals scored four runs in the second. Brunansky's first homer tied the game. Then Ozzie Smith hit a sacrifice fly and Willie McGee a run-scoring double. Rookie Luis Alica's RBI grounder in the third gave the Cardinals the lead for good.

The Padres had tied it in the bottom of the second on Tony Gwynn's two-run single. Gwynn was 4-for-5.

Jordan Sparks Bulls' Victory

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

For a few minutes, the Chicago Bulls' playoff hopes lay writhing on the floor of Chicago Stadium.

Michael Jordan scored 50 points as the Bulls defeated Cleveland 104-93 in their playoff opener Thursday night, but even that appeared secondary when he went down with a twisted knee with 7:10 left in the game.

Jordan seemed to be in great pain for several minutes until he suddenly got to his feet and walked to the sidelines for a timeout. Then he hit three free throws — one for a technical on Craig Ehlo and two for a personal foul — keying a decisive 16-1 Chicago spurt at the start of the fourth quarter.

Jordan admitted that he let the crowd and his teammates believe that Ehlo had knocked him down.

"He barely touched me," Jordan said. "It was more or less the way I landed. If you've got an edge, you might as well keep it. If that puts pressure on Ehlo, so much the better."

Cavaliers coach Lenny Wilkens said the referees protected Jordan the whole game.

"Every time we breathed on Jordan, he went to the foul line," Wilkens said. "But we just turned the ball over a number of times when we shouldn't have. We were just in too much of a hurry."

In other playoff openers, Detroit beat Washington 96-87, Dallas defeated Houston 120-110 and Portland outlasted Utah 108-96. Milwaukee is at Atlanta, New York at Boston, Seattle at Denver and San Antonio at the Los Angeles Lakers in tonight's openers.

Ehlo, who led Cleveland with 21 points, was upset with the Bulls' Charles Oakley for fouling him after Jordan got up from his fall.

"I guess he feels he's the protector of Michael Jordan," Ehlo said of Oakley, who had 14 points and 15 rebounds.

Jordan scored 20 points in the second quarter, one more than the entire Cleveland team, to boost the Bulls to a 53-48 halftime lead, but they fell behind 76-73 after three quarters.

"The guys were a little tight, and I had to show my leadership and get something going," Jordan said.

A free throw by Jordan put the Bulls ahead to stay, 78-77, with 10:22 left in the game, and Chicago then went on to score the next 11 points, including the three straight free throws by Jordan after his fall.

Ehlo said the Cavaliers were doing everything they could to stop Jordan.

"We did prevent him from driving the lane quite a bit, but we couldn't stop him at the baseline," Ehlo said.

Ehlo scored nine in the third quarter, including a three-point play with 1:08 left.

Pistons 96, Bulls 87

Detroit trailed 48-41 early in the second half against underdog Washington before Isiah Thomas got the Pistons going, scoring 26 of his 34 points after halftime.

In the third quarter, Thomas scored 12 points and Adrian Dantley had seven to lead the Pistons' comeback. They took the lead for good, 62-61, on a breakaway layup by Thomas with 4:33 remaining in the third quarter and took a 67-61 advantage into the final period.

"I was really overanxious in the beginning," Thomas said. "I was rushing things. Then I settled down."

Thomas scored 12 of the Pistons' first 16 points to start the fourth quarter, but Jeff Malone, hitting 15 of his 33 points in the period, kept the Bulls close.

Moses Malone finished with 21 points and 13 rebounds for Washington, and Dantley had 21 points for Detroit, which outscored the Bulls 30-15 from the free-throw line.

Mavericks 120, Rockets 110

Dallas took an 18-point lead in the third quarter and held on to beat Houston.

Roy Tarpley had 24 points and James Donaldson added a playoff career-high 18, and the Mavericks had six other players in double figures against the Rockets, who were led by Akeem Olajuwon with 34 points and 14 rebounds.

"They got inside on us the whole game," Houston coach Bill Fitch said. "Tarpley and Donaldson did a better job than we thought they would."

Houston scored only one basket in the last seven minutes of the first half to fall behind 61-46, with Dallas scoring the last 12 points of the period.

It was the first playoff victory in Dallas history in which both Mark Aguirre and Rolando Blackman failed to score 20 points.

Trail Blazers 108, Jazz 96
Clyde Drexler and Jerome Kersey scored 26 points apiece and Portland stifled high-scoring Karl Malone to beat Utah.

Malone, who averaged 33.8 points per game against Portland during the regular season, scored 16, including four in the second half.

Rose Blanks Northern Nash, 5-0

BATTLEBORO — Lisa Leisten had two goals as Rose defeated Northern Nash, 5-0, in high school girls' soccer action Thursday.

Leisten opened the scoring for the Rampettes, putting them ahead only 3:51 into the game. Lucy Earnest added the second goal at the 7:43 mark. Leigh Cox made it 3-0 with a goal at the 22:59 mark. Tyler Hill closed out the first half scoring with a shot at the 26:14 mark, off an assist by Lisa Leisten.

Leisten closed out the scoring in the second half at the 68:35 mark. Tracey McDonald had the assist on that shot.

Rose outshot Northern Nash, 30-5. Rose moves to 7-0 on the year, both overall and in the conference.

Karen Kirkland, Penny McLawhorn and Margaret Broadous helped limit Northern Nash to five shots on goal.

Susan Grimsley had one save Scharles Cox had another save for the Rampettes.

Tripp, Joyner Lead Jaguar Track Win

DEEP RUN — Farmville Central's Gary Tripp and Tyrone Joyner each won three events as the Jaguars easily captured a three-way Eastern Plains Conference track meet Thursday.

Farmville finished with 101 points while hosting South Lenir was second with 57 and Ayden-Grifton was 21.

Tripp won the shot, discus and pole vault, while Joyner too the long and triple jumps and the 100-meter dash.

Farmville is now 13-2 overall, 10-0 in conference meets. The Jaguars will run in the Colonial Classics at New Bern on Saturday, then travel to South Lenir on Thursday for the Eastern Plains Championship Meet.

Correction Of Information In Outline

A outline in Thursday's Daily Reflector contained incorrect information. Carolina Telephone and Telegraph's scholarship awards, presented at each home East Carolina football game is not given to the most valuable player in the game. Instead, it is awarded in the name of a player for his outstanding achievements in academics and contributions to the ECU football program.

Junior High/JV Baseball Roundup

E.B. Aycock Junior High School's ninth graders defeated SouthWest Edgecombe High School's junior varsity baseball team, 10-2, Thursday afternoon.

William Gibbs tossed the win for Aycock, with help from Josh Potter.

Aycock's offense was led by Matthew Cagle with two hits and two stolen bases, Gibbs with two hits and the game winning RBI and Calvin Yarrell, who hit a grand slam homer.

MOREHEAD CITY — Ayden-Grifton took an 8-1 win over West Carteret in JV baseball action Thursday.

Wayne Lyerly was the winning pitcher for the Chargers and struck out 11. Jay Tripp and Blake Craft had two hits apiece to lead Ayden-Grifton.

Fisherman Records A Big Haul

CURRIE (AP) — Clyde Anderson landed four huge catfish in two days this week, weighing in at a total of 174 pounds.

The 30-, 45-, 47- and 52-pound fish all were caught in the Black River Tuesday and Wednesday, but Anderson isn't saying exactly where.

"What they're wanting to know is where I got them at," he said, grinning at some friends standing around. "That's just like all fishermen. You ain't going to tell where you caught your fish at."

The fish are the "biggest catfish caught out of Black River that I know of," said Anderson, 64, a Pender County native. Until this week, the biggest he had caught weighed about 25 pounds.

What was his bait?

Anderson walked over to his boat and removed the lid from a plastic lard bucket. Inside were one-inch cubes of Ivory and Octagon soap. One cube had a hook through it.

Slower Not Exactly Easier At International Speedway

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Slower isn't necessarily easier at Alabama International Motor Speedway.

Davey Allison's pole winning lap of 198.969 mph on Thursday for the Winston 500 was 13.84 mph slower than the all-time stock car record 212.809 lap that gave Bill Elliott the pole one year ago.

After NASCAR decided the cars were simply going too fast for the safety of the drivers and the spectators, the ordered the teams to use a carburetor restrictor plate this year at Daytona International Speedway and here — the two tracks where 200 mph laps had become routine.

The plate, which effects horsepower, obviously has worked, with nobody even approaching a 200 mph lap here after 39 of 41 starters qualified over that magic figure a year ago.

But Allison, the 27-year-old who was the 1987 Winston Cup Rookie of the Year, said that didn't make winning the pole any easier.

"It's not any more comfortable for me," he said. "No matter how slow or fast you run in qualifying, you're still on the ragged edge to get as much speed as you can."

"You're trying to get everything out of the race car and there's no margin for error."

Allison's eighth career pole ended Elliott's domination on the 2.66-mile, high-banked Talladega oval, where he had won the last six poles.

In fact, Elliott's Ford Thunderbird qualified 11th at 194.555.

"The restrictor just killed our combination, and that's all there is to it," Elliott said. "We just haven't got the right combination and we're fighting to find it. We've come back before and we'll get to the front again."

All the teams have struggled to find ways to overcome the restrictor plates, but Ford teams have been particularly hard hit by the new rule.

Still, Allison drives a Thunderbird, and he not only won the pole on Thursday, but also finished second in the Daytona 500 in February behind the Buick Regal of his father, Bobby Allison.

"Robert Yates is the guy that's probably responsible for all this," Davey said. "Robert's directing our engine shop and he had the guys working real hard on this restrictor plate, trying to make the engine as strong as possible."

"We just never gave up on it. We never accepted the fact that having a Ford was going to be a disadvantage ... But we don't want to be the best Ford, we want to be the best race car."

It's been a very competitive season so far, with eight different pole winners and six different winners heading into the ninth race.

The younger Allison expects that trend to continue on Sunday.

"Bill had everybody covered here the last three years," Allison said. "He had an aerodynamic advantage and his team found something in the Ford engine that nobody else could find. But nobody's got anybody covered now."

"When the flag drops Sunday, I'll have no advantage at all. It's still gonna be a tough race, with 500 miles here and so many guys this close together."

The top 20 qualifiers clinched starting spots Thursday, with just 1.595 seconds and 6.382 mph separating Allison from 20th-place Rick Wilson's 192.587.

Darrell Waltrip was second at 198.306, followed by Phil Parsons 197.999, Bobby Allison 197.021, Kyle Petty 196.984 and Daytona pole-winner Ken Schrader 196.258.

Rounding out the top 10 were Bobby Hillin Jr. at 196.177, Sterling Marlin 195.993, Neil Bonnett 195.880 and Buddy Baker 194.583.

Two-time defending Winston Cup champion Dale Earnhardt will start 16th after qualifying at 193.361.

Among the drivers who failed to finish among the top 20 were veterans Harry Gant, Alan Kulwicki, Benny Parsons, Richard Petty, Cale Yarborough, Dave Marcis and A.J. Foyt.

Another round of time trials is scheduled today, with all getting the opportunity to either make another qualifying attempt or stand on Thursday's lap.

The top 20 qualifiers for Sunday's Winston 500 NASCAR stock car race, with hometown, type of car and qualifying speed in mph:

1. Davey Allison, Hueytown, Ala., Ford Thunderbird, 198.969.
2. Darrell Waltrip, Franklin, Tenn., Chevrolet Monte Carlo, 198.306.
3. Phil Parsons, Denver, N.C., Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme, 197.999.
4. Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala., Buick Regal, 197.021.
5. Kyle Petty, High Point, N.C., Ford Thunderbird, 196.984.
6. Ken Schrader, Concord, N.C., Chevrolet Monte Carlo, 196.258.
7. Bobby Hillin Jr., Harrisburg, N.C., Buick Regal, 196.177.
8. Sterling Marlin, Thomasville, N.C., Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme, 195.993.
9. Neil Bonnett, Bessemer, Ala., Pontiac Grand Prix, 195.880.
10. Buddy Baker, Sherrills Ford, N.C., Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme, 194.583.
11. Bill Elliott, Dawsonville, Ga., Ford Thunderbird, 194.555.

Kevin Kirkland and Sean Gordon combined to drive in five runs to key a five-run fourth inning that staked Optimist to a early 9-6 lead.	Chicod..... 11
Gordon and Kirkland had two hits apiece for Optimist while Tutu Moye led Kiwanis with two hits.	Bethel..... 1
Winterville Bambino	BETHEL — Scott Hardee and Ron Evans had two hits apiece as the Chicod Hornets defeated the Bethel Phillies in Southern Pitt Little League baseball action Thursday.
	Todd Bess was the winning pitcher for the Hornets while William Smith took the loss for Bethel.

Pitchers Enjoying Hot Streaks

By The Associated Press
Hot, hot, hot.
When Buster Poindexter penned those simple lyrics, he didn't have Dave LaPoint, Frank Tanana or Mike Henneman in mind. Nor was he thinking about Floyd Bannister, Dave Stewart or Mike Campbell.

But they're as hot as Poindexter's hit song.
LaPoint, 3-1, pitched a four-hitter for his eighth career shutout as Chicago beat Boston 6-0 Thursday night. Detroit's Tanana, another quick-starting left-hander, moved to 5-0 with a 2-1 victor over California in which Henneman got his eighth save in nine chances.

Bannister, 3-1, has allowed just 23 hits in 32 innings for Kansas City this season and has won 11 of his last 13 decisions. His latest victory was a 6-3 verdict over the New York Yankees.

Stewart became the first six-game winner in the majors as he struck out eight for Oakland in a 6-2 win at Toronto. Stewart, 6-0, allowed five hits and balked twice, giving him 11 this season, tying Steve Carlton's major-league record, set in 1979.

Campbell, a rookie, threw a five-hitter, striking out seven and walking three for his second complete game of the year, as the Mariners beat Cleveland 3-1. The Indians have lost just three of the last 13 games. Cleveland's 16-5 record matches the best start in team history.

In an afternoon game, the Baltimore Orioles remained perfect, setting an AL record with their 21st straight loss, 4-2 at Minnesota.

White Sox 6, Red Sox 0
LaPoint lowered his league-leading earned run average to 0.95.

"I've never had an April like this," he said. "I'm on a cloud right now. This is fun, a great start. Maybe I can stay consistent and help this club."

Ken Williams certainly is helping at third base, where he was placed this year after playing center field in previous seasons. Williams hit a three-run homer to support LaPoint and made several fine plays in the field.

"The biggest thing is to set my mind that that's where I'm going to be and quit looking to center field," he said.

Twins 4, Orioles 2
Winless Baltimore's defeat broke the AL record of 20 set by Boston in 1906 and tied twice by the Philadelphia Athletics, in 1916 and 1943.

The Orioles are two games short of the 1961 Philadelphia Phillies' abysmal mark of 23 straight failures. They open a three-game series in Chicago tonight.

"It starts to wear you down mentally and physically," said manager Frank Robinson, 0-15 since replacing the fired Cal Ripken Sr. "Everything is taking its toll on us right now."

"It's not going to go away. They know everyone is watching. The whole world is watching."

A week after they established the AL record for consecutive losses at the start of a season, the Orioles still can't get into the win column. The litany of losing sounded familiar Thursday.

Baltimore hitters were 1-for-9 with runners in scoring position, dropping their season batting average in such situations to .132. Their bats were silenced by career minor-leaguers Allan Anderson, 1-0, and Mark Portugal.

Second baseman Rene Gonzales and Ripken at shortstop committed errors. Rookie right fielder Keith Hughes misplayed two catchable balls into doubles.

Such shortcomings victimized Mike Boddicker, 0-5 after his 10th straight loss. He gave up only six hits in 7 1-3 innings. But two of those hits were a two-run homer by Kent Hrbek and a two-run double by John Moses.

"They've got guys from all over the country watching them. It's getting to the point where it's sad, it's out of hand," Kirby Puckett of the Twins said. "Nobody wants to come to the park and lose 20 in a row. What they're going through, it's not funny. It's nothing to laugh at."

Tigers 2, Angels 1
Tanana allowed five hits, five walks and struck out five while becoming the first Tigers pitcher in 34 years to win his first five starts.

"This is similar to my start in 1978," Tanana said. "I won 18 games (with California) that year and had similar stuff. I'm just trying to make good pitches and they were missing tonight."

"It's nice to be able to make two runs stand up. Our bats are struggling a little right now, but they'll come along."

Henneman has come along sensationally. He had seven saves down the stretch as a rookie last season and has continued to roll this year.

"In a close game, like tonight, I knew I was going to be in the game and all I wanted to do was stay warm," he said. "It was cold down there (in the bullpen, where it was 47 degrees at game time). You've just got to approach it like any other game. Go in there, throw strikes and keep the ball down."

Royals 6, Yankees 3
Bannister, who left his previous start after five innings with a stiff back, had a one-hit shutout until the seventh. He got offensive support from George Brett, who drove in three runs with a homer and a double.

"It's kind of fun to go out and play with guys you played against and have a lot of respect for," Bannister said. "I don't feel I came over here just to pitch for one year."

Dan Quisenberry, who has more saves than any active pitcher, got his first of the year — and 23rd of his career — in what also was his first save situation.

Athletics 6, Blue Jays 2
Stewart befuddled the Blue Jays with a dancing forkball. But he wasn't satisfied.

"I'm still suffering a little on my control," he said. "I walked a few guys (four) tonight."

"I want to cut down on my number of pitches. Tonight I threw 128, which isn't bad."

Mariners 3, Indians 1
Campbell has made 14 major-league starts. This was the best.

"It took me a couple of innings to adjust to the mound," Campbell said. "It wasn't a real high mound. My curve ball was all over the place for the first few innings. About the third or fourth, I started throwing it over, and my fastball was good. I used the curve a lot for strikeouts and ground balls.

Attention Greenville Utilities' Customers!

Sorry for the Inconvenience -

We're Remodeling to Serve You Better!

Starting May 2, while our first floor is being renovated (including asbestos removal), all Cashiers and Customer Assistance Representatives will move temporarily to the Bowen Building, right next door. So, go to the Bowen Building (see diagram, below) if you need to....

- * Pay your utility bill
- * Disconnect service
- * Apply for service
- * Inquire about bills or service

The first floor will be closed to the public until renovations are complete, but you may enter the main building through the 5th Street entrance (across from City Hall) to get to the second and third floors where General Accounting, Personnel, Energy Services and the Administrative Offices are located.

If you have any questions, please call Customer Assistance, 752-7166.

Chargers Rally To Top Panthers

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton rallied four runs in the sixth inning, then held off North Pitt to gain an 8-7 Eastern Plains Conference baseball victory Thursday night.

The Panthers took the lead in the fourth inning, scoring three runs. David Rhodes singled and Roosevelt Hines got a hit. David Sawyer singled to drive Rhodes over. Randy House then singled in Hines and Charles Whitehurst got a hit. Al Roberson grounded out, scoring Sawyer.

The Panthers added three more in the fifth to up the lead to 6-0. Hines hit a two run homer and Reggie Daniels added a solo shot to account for those runs.

But Ayden-Grifton rallied for four in the bottom of the inning.

Then, in the sixth, the Chargers scored four more to take an 8-6 lead. Ty Little walked and Stephen Tucker singled. Gary Eubanks then slapped a three-run homer to put Ayden-Grifton into the lead for the first time, 7-6.

Gene Stancil then walked, moved up on a passed ball and came around on two consecutive wild pitches.

North Pitt rallied in the seventh, but fell a run short.

Ronnell Peterson and Eubanks each had two hits to pace the Chargers while Hines had three and Sawyer had two for the Panthers.

Ayden-Grifton is now 8-8 overall and 6-1 in league play. The Chargers travel to C.B. Aycock on Tuesday.

Burt, Loni Eye Altar

JUPITER, Fla. (AP) — Burt Reynolds built a white wedding chapel on his horse ranch to exchange marriage vows with Loni Anderson in a closely guarded ceremony before 20 guests today.

"They're getting married — they're definitely getting married," Bob Davidoff, a Palm Beach photographer who took the official pictures of Reynolds' marriage to actress Judy Carne 25 years ago, told The Palm Beach Post Thursday.

Reynolds, 52, mentioned his intentions two months ago in a magazine article that quoted him as saying he expected to be married within a year.

Several people told the newspaper the marriage ceremony was scheduled for 1 p.m. in the chapel, but David Gershenson, Reynolds' personal manager, refused to confirm or deny the rumors.

"It's Burt's personal life," he said by phone from Hollywood, Calif. "Over the last six years there have been rumors that they were getting married, that they had broken up. One of these days it's going to be true."

Miss Anderson, 42, best known for her role as a secretary in the TV series "WKRP in Cincinnati," reportedly was staying with Reynolds' sister, Nancy Brown, in Jupiter and her relatives were nearby in the Hilton of Jupiter Beach.

The couple planned to leave by helicopter after the ceremony for a honeymoon in the Bahamas, said a source close to Reynolds' pilot, Logan Fleming.

LONDON (AP) — Placido Domingo, one of the biggest draws in opera, has pulled out of the title role in Wagner's "Lohengrin" this summer at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, the management said.

PBS Special Will Take Viewers Inside Supreme Court Building

By DIANE DUSTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The traditionally camera-shy justices of the Supreme Court are the subjects of a PBS documentary starting Monday that gives viewers a look behind the scenes of the most secluded branch of government.

The marble temple, as the Supreme Court building is called, holds the offices of eight men and a woman who occasionally give formal interviews, but never before have allowed television cameras to film them talking to each other about their work.

"You get some sense of how they interact with each other," said Steve York, executive producer of the two-part series created for the Public Broadcasting Service by WETA-TV in Washington.

While the general public may not be duly impressed by such access, said York, "to those who spend a lot of time, really seasoned court watchers, scholars and reporters, it is a very big deal."

The two-hour "This Honorable Court" will be shown in two parts, the second on Monday, May 9. Air dates and times can vary on local PBS stations.

The first segment explores the history of the court, using archival film footage and interviews with legal experts to create an engaging story about its growth from seeming insignificance in the early days of the republic to a powerful and active third branch of government.

For the casual viewer, it is the easier of the two segments to watch, a concise history lesson that demonstrates how the court has changed itself and society.

One portion shows Thurgood Marshall, now a senior justice, as the young civil rights attorney who brought Brown vs. the Board of Education to the court and helped change forever the government's position on the treatment of blacks in public facilities.

The first hour also delves into the politics behind the appointment of the individual justices and the battles between the presidents and the court.

It covers the controversy over President Franklin Roosevelt's effort to pack the court when it ruled against New Deal legislation, the attempt by President Nixon to turn the Warren court into a more conservative body and President Reagan's problems with his nomination of Robert Bork.

In the second hour, the series takes on a deeply respectful tone and reporter-narrator Paul Duke avoids controversy in his questions to the justices.

"The justices do not talk about pending cases or the politics of the court," said producer York. "When it's a given, they are not going to talk about it and you know they aren't, let them talk about what they will talk about. There is enough there to give you a sense of how the court works that never has been discussed before."

Indeed, there is nothing in the series to rile the justices. Chief Justice William Rehnquist, at a reception before excerpts of the series were previewed, praised the producers for pursuing the program in an "understanding, thoughtful and careful way."

"All of the members of the court family think that WETA did a remarkably good job in making this film," he said.

Later, after the viewing, he said, "It has a sense of humanity about it." "I'm not a TV star," retired Justice Lewis Powell said, while adding, "I think it will be very informative."

CBS Delays Season

L.A. Times-Washington Post
NEW YORK — CBS, which had intended to begin the fall TV season Sept. 5, Thursday moved the start time to the end of October, blaming the delay on the writers' strike and other possible labor troubles.

With the postponement, the network also said it would not be announcing its lineup of prime-time series May 9, as it previously had planned. CBS will instead unveil its new prime-time schedule for next season in late May, about a week before it presents the schedule to advertisers here June 2, said Ann Morgen, a CBS spokeswoman.

The CBS action came as the Writers Guild of America's walkout against the three networks, producers and major Hollywood studios continued in its eighth week, with no negotiations scheduled.

The decision to postpone the fall season "demonstrates that the strike is definitely having an impact," guild spokeswoman Cheryl Rhoden said. "It demonstrates why the companies should return to the table and negotiate a resolution of these strike issues."

Neither ABC nor NBC has set a date for launching its fall season.

"A cattail? I was hopin' it was a hot dog on a stick."

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST For Saturday April 30

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You can make some valuable new friends today, so be charming and polite. Be very careful while you are driving or walking this evening.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): A co-worker who is down in the dumps needs a little ego boost. If you are having difficulty with a project, get some expert advice.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Make an appointment for a pleasant get-together with some of your best friends. Don't become involved in a get rich quick scheme.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Get your home in perfect order this morning, then invite your most charming friends in for an evening of fun and frivolity.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): If you are succinct in all your communications today, you can pull off a great coup in business. Show your friends how much you value them.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Be more cooperative with your daily business contacts, and get better results than usual. A financial expert can give you some good advice.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Remember the old adage: All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. It is extremely important that you don't drive recklessly tonight.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Any secret desires you have can be realized with just a little effort today. A small present to your mate will improve this person's mood.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Your social life can bring you some wonderful benefits right now, especially this evening. Be sure to think before you speak.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Contact persons in the same line of business as yourself, and benefit from their experience. Take care of a troubling credit matter.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Be alert, and make notes of your ideas, since your memory may not be at its best. Join in with a happy group of friends tonight.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Study every phase of your relationship with your mate, and find out how to improve communications. Don't overindulge this evening.

 Opening lead: Two of ♠

Sometimes it is easy to spot the different lines available to you as declarer, and how to combine them to maximize your chances. But once in a while your extra chance is hidden, and has to be ferreted out.
 After South showed a balanced hand of 25-27 points, North judged his six-card suit and smattering of cards on the side to be worth a shot at slam. Whether or not South should have corrected is debatable.
 West got his side off to its best start with his spade lead, knocking out one of dummy's crucial entries. Declarer cashed the ace-king of clubs, and was rudely jolted when East discarded a spade. Not yet willing to lower the flag, he crossed to the jack of hearts and cashed the queen of clubs for a spade discard. He successfully finessed the queen of diamonds, then cashed the ace. East alertly jettisoned the king of diamonds under the ace, so when declarer continued with a third round of the suit, West was able to gain the lead and cash the jack of clubs for a one-trick set.

 Declarer found his extra chance—an even diamond split with the king inside—but he did not come up with the right way to utilize his good fortune. See what a difference it makes if, at trick four, after cashing the ace-king of clubs, declarer were to concede a diamond trick to the defenders by playing low from his hand.
 The defenders can force out the ace of spades, but now declarer can enjoy the blessings of Dame Fortune. After crossing to dummy with the jack of hearts, he discards a spade on the queen of clubs. Then he takes a winning diamond finesse and cashes the ace. When both defenders follow, declarer's long diamond is set up as the fulfilling trick.

CAMBRIDGE

Hello, I'm The Cambridge, a home in Devonshire Square on Lot #8. I'm in need of occupants, someone to purchase me to call their own and take care of me.

I'm not necessarily lonely since I have visitors each day, but I need an individual or family to say that I'm uniquely theirs.

You'll enjoy my special features such as a dishwasher, an electric range and hood, a fireplace, a skylight and custom European cabinets. I'm also in the Winterville school district.

Come and see me! I'm open daily from noon until 7:00 p.m., Monday through Saturday and 1 until 7:00 p.m. on Sunday. I also have a brother on Lot #79.

Maybe...just maybe...you can call me your own today!

Hirohito Marks 87th Birthday

TOKYO (AP) — Thousands of people shouted "Banzai" and waved Japanese flags as Emperor Hirohito, the world's oldest and longest-reigning monarch, appeared briefly on his palace balcony today to mark his 87th birthday.

The emperor's birthday is a national holiday.

"Thank you for celebrating my birthday with me today. I am happy that so many of you have come today. I hope you will all have a happy future," Hirohito said from behind bullet-proof glass in a speech carried live on national television.

It was his second public appearance since he underwent surgery last September to bypass a tumor blocking his digestive tract. Doctors later said the growth was not malignant.

Hirohito, once worshiped as a living god, also spoke to well-wishers at the Imperial Palace grounds on New Year's Day.

Nobuyoshi Shimane, an accountant in Tokyo, was one of the estimated 35,000 who came in three shifts under a drizzling rain today and stood in a palace courtyard to see the emperor in his annual birthday appearance.

"I think this will be the last chance to see him because of his advanced age," Shimane said.

Hirohito has been on the throne since Dec. 25, 1926.

Despite rumors of ill health, Hirohito appeared relatively strong today, although he shuffled slowly as he walked. He was accompanied by Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko and other members of the imperial family. Missing was Empress Nagako, 85, who suffers back and leg ailments.

In a news conference marking his birthday, the emperor said he was recovering well from surgery and answered questions about his memories of World War II.

"After all is considered, the war was my most unpleasant memory. I am pleased with people's efforts for peace after the war. Hereafter, I hope the people do not forget this matter and protect peace," Hirohito said.

He refused to say what caused Japan to enter the war in the first place, saying, "I do not want to answer the question because this will involve criticism against persons."
