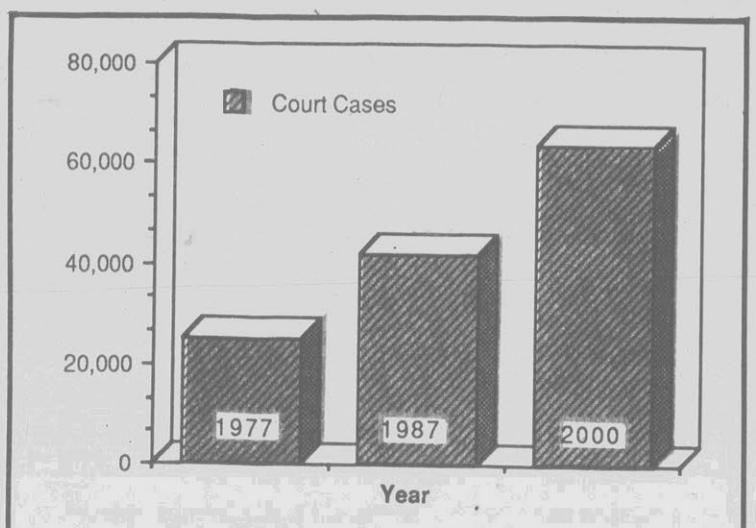
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Greenville, N.C. Sunday Morning, May 22, 1988 75¢



COURT CASES — This graph shows the increase in court cases in Pitt County from 1977 to 1987 and the projected number of cases for the year 2000. There were 25,000 cases in 1977, 42,000 cases in 1987 and 62,600 cases projected for the year 2000. The statistics include all Superior Court criminal and civil cases, District Court criminal and civil cases, small claims, domestic cases and juvenile cases. (Reflector Graphic by Stuart Savage)

Caseload Growth Underlines Pitt's Need For Court Space

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

This is the first in a three-part series focusing on the needs of a growing Pitt County court system.

Every Tuesday for the last couple of years juvenile court has been held in a cramped conference room in the magistrate's office across the street from the Pitt County Courthouse in Greenville.

Youngsters not able to squeeze into the building and find an available plastic chair waited outside on the sidewalk along Washington Street.

"That's not really the circumstances which you would like to place a juvenile in for a hearing," said Pitt County Superior Court Clerk Sandra Gaskins.

As economic development attracted more people to Pitt County over the last decade, the volume of court cases has outgrown courthouse facilities, and Miss Gaskins has had the job of finding other places to hold court.

In addition to the magistrate's office, District Court has been held in Greenville City Hall chambers — where there is no direct telephone access — and in Ayden City Hall, Miss Gaskins said. District Attorney Thomas Haigwood also said court has been moved to the courthouse law library and to Superior Court Judge David Reid's office.

"Wherever a vacant spot is — we camp out," Miss Gaskins said. "The city of Greenville has been very good to us as far as letting us borrow their facilities when they are not in use, and so has Ayden." Farmville is also building a new facility which may be used, she said.

Some relief arrived last week, when the finishing touches on Greenville's fourth courtroom were completed.

Miss Gaskins said she will move juvenile court into the new space on the fourth floor of the courthouse — overlooking the magistrate's office — and the courtroom should ease some of the pressures caused by the swollen district court calendars.

"We probably won't have to move

Pitt Officials Against Plan For Waste Site

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Edgecombe County officials last week publicly proposed the creation of a 3,000-acre "North Carolina Waste Management Park" — to include a low-level radioactive waste disposal site, a hazardous waste treatment facility and a regional solid waste management operation — in the eastern section of the county near the Pitt County line a few miles from Bethel.

Asked for their reaction to the proposal, a number of Pitt County officials — almost to a man — voiced opposition to the idea.

"I feel very strongly in opposition to it," Eugene James, a Pitt County commissioner and resident of the Belvoir area said Friday.

"I'm concerned with the Contentnea water shed," James said, "... the high water table. It drains all the way down ... to the Tar River and into Greenville. What I'm concerned about is how it will affect the people in this area.

"They're talking about a site located within 16 air miles of Pitt County Memorial Hospital. That is very close. We here in this area and the people in Bethel will do

Shiite Pledges To Help Free Hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Shiite Moslem leader pledged in a statement Saturday to "invest all my energies" and exert pressure to free foreign hostages held in Lebanon.

"I feel with the families of the hostages and I am doing all I can to reach a happy ending," Sheik Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, spiritual leader of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, said in the statement.

The Rev. Ray Barnett, head of the Seattle-based Friends in the West, said Fadlallah issued the statement Saturday after the two made contact.

"Despite the limited means I have in this respect, I will invest all my energies in this direction," Fadlallah said in the statement.

"I have sought to close this file with all the means that I have and I am still working on exerting pressure to reach a humanitarian solution to this problem," he said, without specifying who he was exerting pressure on.

An aide to Barnett gave a copy of Fadlallah's statement in Arabic to The Associated Press.

Barnett, of Vancouver, Canada, arrived in Lebanon Friday, seeking to deliver a petition to Fadlallah asking him to help free the hostages.

State Democrats Pick Delegates

By The Associated Press

Many North Carolina Democrats speculated about the Rev. Jesse Jackson's impact on the Democratic National Convention as 53 delegates were chosen Saturday in district conventions across the state.

"The final nominee will have to reckon with our candidate," said Earline Parmon of Winston-Salem, an alternate for Jackson in the 5th District. "We will have an impact on the platform coming from the Democratic party."

Larry Womble, a Jackson delegate from Winston-Salem, said Jackson's supporters want to go to Atlanta carrying his message on education, national health care, drugs and voter registration.

"That's my primary goal, to protect and uphold those objectives," Womble said.

Meanwhile, Michael Dukakis delegate John Chamis of Winston-Salem said he hoped Jackson and the Massachusetts governor would come to an agreement later this month on how the build the Democratic platform.

"If it gets to the floor in Atlanta, it'll be a big mess. I think it will be settled long before then," he said.

James Gallaher of Winston-Salem, Martha Martinat of Winston-Salem and Jim Reeves of West Jefferson were named delegates for Tennessee Sen. Al Gore, who has dropped out of the race, and Garry Tudor of Eden was chosen as the alternate.

In one of many partisan speeches at the district conventions, Rep. Steve Neal gave convention-goers in the 5th District "important reasons for electing Democrats and getting rid of Republicans."

Neal attacked the Reagan administration's record on the economy, Social Security, the arms race, education, the environment and foreign policy.

"The Republicans hate our government and are setting about wrecking it. Democrats use it to begin solving our problems," he said.

In the 6th District, Democratic congressional candidate Tom Gilmore slammed his opponent, Rep. Howard Coble, for his record on education, economic development and concern for the elderly. In each case, he described Coble's record as "dismal" and "one of the worst in the entire Congress."

On economic development, Gilmore said Coble is "one of a small minority of free-trade extremists who opposed the trade bill to protect American jobs from unfair competition."

"Coble does not deserve to be in Congress because he is not willing to protect the jobs of North Carolina's working men and women," Gilmore said.

Gilmore also critized a trip Coble took last winter to Hawaii, Australia and Antarctica, saying, "When members of Congress, like Howard Coble, spend $500,000 of our hard-earned tax money to fancy vacations ... we'll never balance the federal budget."

In the 6th District, the Dukakis delegate will be Rachel Gray, a former state senator and early backer of Dukakis. The two Gore delegates chosen were Wally Harrelson, the public defender for Guilford County and a former county party chairman, and Carrie Thompson of Alamance County. Anne Gaines-Swygert of Guilford County was chosen as Jackson's delegate. The alternates

Sophomore Wins Duke Scholarship

Rose High School sophomore Lydia Coulter, who was one of 148 students competing in the 10th annual North Carolina Mathematics Contest recently, will receive a Duke scholarship of about $60,000, upon acceptance to the university, for placing 20th among contest participants.

Students participating in the contest are enrolled in a course beyond Algebra II and qualify to compete in the state contest by scoring in the top 6 percent of their division at a regional contest earlier this spring.

Ms. Coulter, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Bryon Coulter of Greenville, is involved in the Rose Anchor Club, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Spanish Club, Science Club and First Presbyterian Church. She has played the violin for 11 years and plans to attend Governor's School in the strings area this summer.

She is a finalist for the North Carolina School of Science and Math in Durham where her brother, Stewart, is attending as a senior.

PCC Awards Degrees, Diplomas

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Families and friends filled the main level and overflowed into the balcony of Wright Auditorium at East Carolina University as about 200 Pitt Community College students received degrees and diplomas during the spring commencement.

The graduates, many of whom arrived early to take photos and to celebrate with their counterparts in a flurry of excitement, ended their educational trek at PCC with the commencement exercises, but "the most commonly used definition of commencement is beginning," the speaker at Friday night's event said.

Dr. William E. Laupus, vice chancellor and dean of the ECU School of Medicine, said, "Your past years of study, your accumulated education, now become the ticket by which you enter this world of work. You are now at the moment of your commencement, but you may find that the beginning comes only after the commencement is past."

Laupus warned the graduates that "the real world you will encounter will not be as protective of you and your feelings as the world of the academy has been."

The graduates will be expected to be reliable, dependable, responsible and competitive as rapid changes occur in the world, he said.

"I don't recall any time in my life

Pitt In Need Of Court Space

court as regularly as we have been," Haigwood said. "I'm hoping we'll hold most of our court in this courthouse."

Miss Gaskins, who has worked in the county court system since 1969, said she will still need to schedule court in city hall, and the county could use a fifth courtroom.

"Yes, sir. I think if we could get another one ... it would really help us for many months to come," Miss Gaskins said. "We will still be needing the city hall; that will be when we have five courts going."

"That's not unusual — to have five. It's not something that happens all the time, but it happens fairly frequently," Haigwood said.

"There's no doubt about it," Pitt County Trial Court Administrator William W. Nicholls Jr. said of the need for a fifth courtroom. "I would say if we had the fifth courtroom next year we would be able to keep it full.

Most of the fourth floor of the courthouse annex was originally intended to be used for courtrooms, Nicholls said, but the space was needed for offices. The Public Defender's office was moved to another location to create space for the fourth courtroom, but county manager Kramer Jackson said it will be three or four years before more space is available.

The county purchased the city block directly behind the courthouse, between Second and First street, and the Internal Revenue Service has three years remaining on its lease there and Barclays Bank has four years remaining on its lease.

Once the office space is available, Jackson said courthouse workers will be among those employees moved to the new buildings and space will be available for the fifth courtroom.

The caseload in Pitt County is already large enough to justify a fifth courtroom, Nicholls said.

There were about 17,000 District Court criminal cases in 1983, and the number ballooned to 34,000 in fiscal 1987, said Haigwood, whose attorney staff has grown from four to five during that time.

In addition to the 34,000 criminal cases in District Court in Pitt County in 1987, there were 8,000 juvenile, civil, domestic, small claims and Superior Court cases, according Nicholls.

Using the average yearly increases in the caseload in Pitt County from 1971 to 1986, Nicholls predicts the court system will handle more than 62,600 cases in the year 2000, just 12 years from now.

The Pitt County population will increase to 121,000 by the year 2010, according to the North Carolina Office of State Budget and Management, but Nicholls said he thinks it will be higher because the projection does not include the impact of the Medical Office Park, which is expected to attract large numbers of medical personnel.

"Court action, civil and criminal, follows population wherever you go. It's always been that way," Nicholls said.

An increase in population means more divorces, damage suits, domestic cases and traffic cases, and therefore a direct increase in the court system's caseload, Nicholls said, and the East Carolina University student population represents a large number of people at the prime age for traffic violations.

Included in the 34,000 District Court criminal cases in 1987 are 10,000 infractions, which are minor traffic violations in which no accident is involved, Nicholls said. Violations such as failing to use a signal and speeding less than 10 miles an hour over the speed limit are infractions.

In an effort to decriminalize certain offenses and to whittle away at the district court caseload, the General Assembly created the infractions category in 1986, and offenders may pay their fine without appearing in court.

"It was kind of a multifold thing," Nicholls said. "One, it decriminalized essentially minor mistakes ... and it also reduced the volume of more or less minor things that show up in district court."

The infractions category, which took effect Sept. 1, 1986, allows judges to concentrate on more important matters, Nicholls said. "You want (judges) to try misdemeanor assaults, and not decide whether somebody stopped at a stop sign."

Until statistics are available from fiscal 1988, it will not be clear whether the infractions category is giving the courts more breathing space, Nicholls said.

Infractions require less administrative paperwork than criminal violations and they do not always require police officers to appear in court, Nichols said, thus officers may be handing out more infractions and still issuing about the same number of criminal citiations.

that I was not trying to deal consciously with new, and more often than not, poorly understood knowledge and technology," Laupus said. "My life has spanned the period of greatest change in factual information and technologic change since the big bang when the universe was formed."

He and his contemporaries survived the rapid changes because "first and foremost, we have been willing to look upon and to practice learning as a lifetime undertaking," Laupus said.

Other items in his "recipe" are to "know where you are and keep your compass pointed in the right direction; be optimistic — regard a glass as half full rather than half empty; give service and leave your turf better than you found it; work as a team; be good listeners and communicators, and follow a well-established code of ethics."

Laupus said "the golden rule and the Ten Commandments are still hard to beat."

Laupus was introduced by G. Henry Leslie, a member of the PCC Board of Trustees.

Jeri Denise Darden, a graduate in the Electronics Engineering Technology Program, said what she learned at PCC is immeasurable as she presented the student response to the college.

"Being a member of one of the largest graduating classes in the Electronics Engineering Technology Program, it gives me great pleasure to say thank you to the instructors, who have encouraged us to strive for excellence and provided us with the necessary knowledge to achieve our chosen careers with a sense of pride and confidence in the future," she said. "Everyone at Pitt Community College has been an inspiration."

Degrees and diplomas were conferred by Clifton W. Everett, chairman of the board of trustees, assisted by Dr. E.B. Bright, dean of instruction at PCC.

Nuclear Test Reported

YUCCA FLAT, Nev. (AP) — An underground nuclear weapons test rocked the Nevada Test Site Saturday, the second blast at the desert facility in the past eight days, a federal official said.

The test, codenamed "Laredo," was originally scheduled Thursday, but it was postponed because of strong winds blowing toward Las Vegas, about 75 miles to the southeast. The U.S. Department of Energy, which oversees the testing program, prohibits blasts under certain weather conditions.

Jim Boyer, an Energy Department spokesman, said the test was not as large as the 150 kiloton maximum limit adhered to by the United States and the Soviet Union, but he declined to reveal the weapon's power.

He said the blast appeared normal, with no indications that radioactivity had escaped.

The nuclear warhead was detonated about 1,200 feet underground as seven Soviet scientists spent the weekend in nearby Mercury, Nevada, a small town about 32 miles from ground zero. The town houses test site workers.

The Soviets are in the area in preparation for an experiment later this summer in which they will monitor a U.S. test. More than two dozen American scientists are at the Soviet test site.

Airport Problems

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Airport officials say federal budget cuts may force a reduction in National Weather Service workers and cause Savannah International Airport to close earlier next year.

Executive Director Eldon Davidson said the cuts could close the weather service office from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m., leaving no one to handle weather for flights during those hours.

Officials Against Plan For Waste Disposal Site In Edgecombe

everything we possibly can to prevent it."

James, who was at the meeting in Tarboro Wednesday night when the Edgecombe board made the proposal public, said "If I didn't know so much about it, it (the information presented at the session) sounded okay.

But James said, "the people pushing it ... the thing they are thinking about is the money that's going to the county."

The officials that spoke at the meeting in Tarboro implied that millions of dollars in state incentives and in tax revenue from businesses operating in the waste park would help improve roads, schools, fire and rescue service and other programs throughout Edgecombe County.

Pitt County Commissioner Kenneth Dews, who also attended the Tarboro meeting, said, "First of all, as one county commissioner,I'm opposed to it.

"Secondly, the meeting that I attended in Tarboro Wednesday night was an informational meeting having to do with benefits the County of Edgecombe would derive from the placement of this facility," in that county.

"During the meeting," Dews said, "very little information was give to those attending about the liabilities of having such a facility at that location.

"We need to learn more about it (and) I'm sure that the (Pitt) commissioners will be looking at it the first of the week."

Another Pitt board member who heard the Edgecombe presentation Wednesday was Tom Johnson.

"I've been contacting a lot of key people to find out what's going on," Johnson said Friday. "I had a conversation with House Speaker Liston Ramsey in yesterday in Raleigh. I spoke to him about what's happening.

"I'm trying to proceed as rapidly as I can to get as much information for the board as possible."

Johnson said, "I don't think we can sit back and wait. There are too many unknowns. We can't afford to accept it in the proposed location ... because of the watershed and air flow.

"I'm opposed, based upon the facts that I know. There are too many unanswered questions," Johnson said.

Johnson characterized the Wednesday meeting as "just a big show," and said, "It seems to me the officials of Edgecombe County seem more interested in the money (the county might receive) than facts on the possible long range effects," of a nuclear disposal and hazardous waste site.

Johnson said, "I did propose to one of the officials that they place the waste park in the center of the (Edgecombe) county. They said no way would they do that."

Bethel Mayor Frank Hemingway said, "My personal reaction ... I have deep rooted feelings that putting a waste plant this close to a populated area ... the Tar River basin ... could affect several thousand people. It would have an adverse effect on the quality of life in the area."

Hemingway, who was present to hear what Edgecombe officials had to say Wednesday, said, "My problem lies in human error ... and with the stigma that goes with this. People will not want to move into an area near a nuclear waste site or hazardous waste site.

"What Edgecome County has done," Hemingway suggested, "is to put it just as far away from them as they can get it ... right up in the very edge of the county. Bethel is the closest community, unfortunately."

According to Hemingway, "We organized yesterday (Thursday) and will have a public meeting at North Pitt (High School) Wednesday night at 7:30. It's a general meeting for people in our area regarding the effect on the area."

And, Hemingway said, "I have been asked to draw a strong resolution opposing the proposed waste site location," for a meeting of the Bethel town board. "We are meeting Monday night at 7:30 at the town hall," Hemingway said.

Fountain resident Mark Owens, a member of the Pitt County Board of Education said Friday, "after listening to two or three of the (Edgecombe) commissioners (Wednesday night), I'm of the opinion they felt that the location of the facility in Edgecombe County is what they wanted and would be beneficial to parts of the county as it pertains to income."

But Owens said, "personally, I would prefer it not be located this close to my home and my friends.

"I'm aware of what scientific controls there are alleged to be as far as safety, the effect it might have on water, the health of all of our people. But I'm also conscious of the fact that errors and omission cannot be controlled and danger does flow from facilities of this type."

Rep. Walter Jones Jr. of Farmville, and Sens. Bob Martin of Bethel and Tom Taft of Greenville also attended the Wednesday briefing by Edgecombe officials.

"I'm very concerned about the possibility of a site located in Edgecombe County," Jones said. "There are too many questions that need to be answered.

"You may be certain that I will work with the Pitt County leadership for the best interests of the people of Pitt County," Jones said.

"I thought it was a good meeting," Martin said. "I thought that the (Edgecombe) county commissioners stated their position and what they wanted the county to do.

"I presume that after the public hearings, they will make a final determination on what they want to do."

Martin said, "I don't know where the site is going to be. Until such time, I don't know how to make a statement.

"I don't know enough about the technical problems ... what effect, if any, it will have.

"Until I know, I can't say whether I object to it or not."

But Taft, Friday, was more direct: "I reserve the right to make a final decision after I know more specifically what and where. But my initial reaction is severe opposition."

According to Taft, "There are numerous other sites technically much better suited for both of these facilities (the low-level radioactive waste site and the hazardous waste site) than Edgecombe County. Lee County, for example, has a 50-foot clay strata under the site being proposed there."

The General Assembly in 1987 passed legislation requiring seven feet between ground water and the engineered portion of a low-level nuclear site, Taft said. "I don't think Edgecombe County has it."

But, Taft said, "It is unresolved whether they can build the site above ground, but they porobably can from an engineering point of view."

Taft said the state's low-level radioactive waste authority "has the authority to site and approve a location (for the nuclear disposal site) without going back to the General Assembly.

And he said the Department of Human Resources' solid and hazardous waste branch "has the authority to study sites and issue permits," for the hazardous waste facility, again without going to the Legislature.

"There are no incentives at the present time. It's being talked about by the study commission," Taft said. "But everyone understands that the nature of the radioactive waste site is so negative you have to have community incentives to get a volunteer.

"Edgecombe County is talking about incentivees as if the host county is the sole beneficiary. In my opinion, that's not true," Taft said.

"I think incentives will be looked at according to community impact, with little reference to geopolitical boundries.

"In my opinion there is substantially more community impact on Pitt, Martin and Beaufort Counties than there is on Edgecombe County.

"My opinion, if sited in Edgecombe," the nuclear waste facility would probably "entitle (other areas) to a substantial portion of those incentives and I would intend to fight for those incentives."

As for the Wednesday meeting, Taft said, "I thought they provided only the positive side of the question, with little discussion of the risks and problems associated with such facilities.

"It was clear they had little or no concern for the implications for counties downwind and downstream."

And, Taft said, "I think it's real interesting that Rep. (Joe) Mavretic has been such an arch opponent of these dangerous facilities in the past and has had such a complete reversal."

(Mavretic, who represents Edgecombe County in the Legislature, has, in the past, decried plans to put a regional low-level radioactive waste facility anywhere in the state. But he has been credited with initially presenting the idea to the Edgecombe commissioners and voiced support for the plan at the public meeting last week.)

"What Pitt County needs to do at this point," Taft said, "... they shoud appoint a regional task force — a blue-ribbon task force — of political and technical citizens to assess what is proposed and its impact on our area. Local governments should give ample funding to employ independent scientific, technical and legal brainpower.

"That would be the group to lead the fight and public education.

"We have to be informed on what they are proposing before deciding what our position is," Taft said.

Suggesting that Edgecombe officials "have not taken adequate steps to inform the residents of Pitt, Martin and Beaufort Counties or our political leadership," about their proposal, Taft said, "we have to be informed.

"My concern is that it could taint or color our area as a dangerous place to locate businesses and to raise families. That could occur," Taft suggested, "even if the facilities were well engineered and safe."

Pitt County Manager Kramer Jackson, who could not attend the Edgecombe County meeting last week because of a prior commitment, said Friday, "while the board hasn't taken any official action, unofficially the board has discussed opposition to the proposed site from the standpoint of hazardous waste being located in the Contentnea Creek watershed, which flows directly into the Tar River ... the danger from accident, whether water or airwise is a concern of the board of commissioners.

And Jackson said, "I believe the board might take some sort of official action," in the coming week.

Delegates Chosen

were Annie Frank Bowland of Alamance County, for Gore, and Roy Moore of Guilford for Jackson. Moore was Jackson's county campaign coordinator.

In Whiteville, a 17-year-old Fayetteville youth became the youngest delegate ever elected from the 7th Congressional District to attend the Democratic National Convention.

Jerry Meek, president of the Teen Democrats of America, headquartered in Fayetteville, will go to the convention for Gore. He is eligible to vote and be a delegate because he will be 18 on Nov. 1.

In The Area

Thefts Probed

Investigators said several thefts — including an undetermined amount of shirts from a local clothing store — were reported to Greenville police Friday.

Officer T.A. Lee said the shirts were taken from Carolina Imprints, 714 Albermarle Ave., during a break-in reported at 8:36 a.m.

Officer S.C. Locke said a gold watch was taken from 1713-A Hopkins Ave. in an incident reported at 10:17 a.m., while Officer E.M. Haddock said two cassette cases and about 80 tapes were taken from K-1 Kingston Place in an incident reported at 2:40 p.m.

Officer T.A. Lee said a wallet containing $25 was taken from Kroger Sav-On in an incident reported at 10:59 p.m.

Robbery Arrest

Greenville police arrested a man on an armed robbery charge in connection with an incident reported at 9:40 a.m. Friday.

Detective C.E. Wetherington identified the man as Mitchell Eugene Foreman, 37, of Lot 8, Roberson's Trailer Park.

Wetherington said the incident occurred on County Home Road.

Man Injured

A Greenville man was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital after being hit in the head with baseball bat in an incident reported to Greenville police Saturday, investigators said.

Officer C.G. Alphin said Ivory Johnson was hit during an incident reported at 4:59 a.m. at 705 Church St. Alphin said three knives, a baseball bat and a wooden stick were confiscated in connection with the incident.

Exposure Count

Greenville police said a local man was charged with indecent exposure in connection with an incident reported Friday afternoon.

Officer E.M. Haddock said Ray Gregory Simmons, 24, of Route 1, Box 511, Greenville, was charged in the incident at Doctors Park No. 8, reported at 1:20 p.m.

Eastern Book Fair

Eastern Elementary School, 1700 Cedar Lane, will continue its book fair through Monday from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Various paperback books for children are included in the selection at the fair.

Lois Girdharry's first-grade class recently visited Pitt County Memorial Hospital to prepare the children for summer safety. They were told that if they need to visit the hospital because of an accident, it is a friendly place. The tour was led by Billy Jean Trevathan.

First-grade classes also visited Tryon Palace, the state's first Capitol, in New Bern. The students saw tulips in full bloom, the work of the blacksmith and other ways of colonial life. The trip concluded a unit on plants and colonial life.

Festival Chorus

Four ninth-grade students at E.B. Aycock Junior High School recently participated in the first N.C. Junior High All-State Festival Chorus.

Jeri McGalliard, Kim Marsh, Tracy Haddock and Michelle Murphy have participated in the Aycock choral program for two years and also sang at the Pitt County Solo Day. The students were accompanied by their director, Patricia Hiss.

BSA Event Planned

The CROATAN Lodge of the Order of the Arrow of the East Carolina Council of Boy Scouts of America will celebrate its 50th anniversary Nov. 4-6.

Anyone who ever was a member of the Order of the Arrow is invited to participate in the celebration, a spokesman said. For information call 522-1521 or write East Carolina Council of the BSA, P.O. Box 7698, Kinston, N.C., 28503.

Obedience Class

An orientation for an obedience class for dogs will be held June 1 at 7 p.m. The class will be conducted every Monday and Wednesday at 7 p.m. for five weeks. Lessons will last from 45 minutes to an hour.

A 20 percent discount on the cost of the course will be given to owners of dogs that came from the Pitt County Humane Society or the Pitt-Greenville Animal Shelter, a spokesman said. The class will also benefit the Humane Society with 20 percent of the proceeds.

The course is sponsored by Professional K-9 Services and the Pitt County Humane Society. For more information call them at 830-1787 or 756-1268, respectively.

Spring Band Concert

The Rose High School Symphonic Band will present its spring concert Tuesday at the Gene West Amphitheater on the Town Common beginning at 7 p.m.

The concert will feature a variety of music, including music of the 1920s and 1950s, along with other popular tunes.

The band, under the direction of Mike Fussell, has received "Superior" ratings in Grande VI music on the state level for the past three years.

The event is open to the public.

Opticians Gathered

Billy Eugene Creech, optician and manager of Greenville Opticians, attended the North Carolina Opticians convention held recently in Greensboro.

Seminars at the convention included prescribing and dispensing glasses for children, new prescription lens, technology and design and state law for opticians.

GOP Women's Club

The Pitt County Republican Women's Club will hold a business meeting at noon Wednesday at the Three Steers Restaurant.

ARTISTIC DISCOVERY — Jennifer Elmore, a student at J.H. Rose High School, presents her artwork, "Three Little Indians," to U.S. Rep. Walter B. Jones Sr., D-N.C., Saturday in his Farmville office. Ms. Elmore's artwork was chosen among other art pieces to represent the 1st Congressional District in the national art contest, An Artistic Discovery, implemented by the U.S. House of Representatives. It will be displayed among others representing each congressional district in the annual exhibition in a corridor of the U.S. Capitol in Washington, D.C. (Reflector Photo by Thomas Forrest)

NCRSP Chapter

The Pitt County Chapter of the North Carolina Retired School Personnel will meet Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. at the Greenville Country Club.

Kevin Keil, music director of St. Peter's Catholic Church, will provide entertainment.

Tobacco Meeting

The 42nd annual membership meeting of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stablaization Corp. will be held at 10 a.m. Friday at the Kerr Scott Pavilion on the North Carolina State Fairgrounds in Raleigh.

Officials from the three areas of the U.S. Department of Agriculture will appear on the program, including Thomas O. Kay, administrator of the USDA Foreign Agriculture Service; J. Patrick Boyles, administrator of the USDA Agriculture Marketing Service, and Mack Gray, special assistant to the chief of the USDA Soil Conservation Service. N.C. Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham will also speak.

The program will include a recap of the 1987 marketing season and information concerning the 1988 marketing season.

Youth Gymnastics

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will have registration for its youth gymnastics summer program Wednesday from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. and Thursday from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at the Elm Street Center.

The program is for boys and girls ages 2 1/2 to 14 years old and includes beginners, advanced beginners, intermediate and advanced classes.

Classes will be held in the afternoon and early evenings in three three-week sessions. Limited spaces are available. For more information call April Butler at 752-9432.

Water System Work

Water will be shut off for system repairs Tuesday from approximately 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. for Greenville Utilities' water customers along 14th Street between York Road and Scarborough Road, including Windy Ridge, GUC said.

For further information call 752-7166.

GCA Baccalaureate

Greenville Christian Academy will conduct the baccalaureate service for the 1988 graduates Sunday at 6 p.m. in the auditorium of People's Baptist Temple.

The address will be given by the Rev. Gary Moore, pastor of Stanley Heights Baptist Church in Chattanooga, Tenn.

The Greenville Christian Academy high school chorus will provide music for the event, in addition to the trio of Anna Ralston, Stephanie Parker and Russell Jones.

Prior to the service the graduates will hold a reception for their parents and faculty members.

Deaf Awareness

Deaf Awareness Days are being observed this weekend at Carolina East Mall, including Sunday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The Fantasy musical signing group is performing. Information booths are being provided by Vocational Rehabilitation, the East Carolina University Program for the Hearing Impaired, the Coastal Carolina Registry of Interpreters for the Deaf, the Quota Club, the Hearing Impaired Citizens of Pitt County and the North Carolina Council for the Hearing Impaired. A "Sign-A-Thon" is being held.

WFU Graduates

Four local students recently received degrees from Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem. They are Elizabeth Jane Kopelman, Michelle Dawn Maxon, Emily Atterbury McDonnell and Roy Bruce Thompson, all of Greenville.

Club Meets Monday

The Self-Defense Club will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Elm Street Recreation Center. For more information call Russell White at 355-7943 after 2 p.m.

Lambeth Scholarship

Daean Balcom Menke, a graduate student in the East Carolina University School of Allied Health Sciences, is the 1988 recipient of the Beth Lambeth Memorial Scholarship at ECU.

The award, which includes a $300 cash scholarship, was established in memory of an ECU student who died in the last semester of her studies in 1980.

Ms. Menke is pursuing a dual-track master's degree in rehabilitation counseling and vocational evaluation. She is vice president of the ECU Rehabilitation Association.

An alumna of Virginia Wesleyan College, she is the wife of Jay B. Menke, a master's degree candidate in microbiology, and the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. David A. Balcom of Richmond, Va.

Recipients of the award are selected on the basis of academic achievement, character, enthusiasm for the rehabilitation profession and dedication to helping others. Their names are engraved on a permanent plaque located in the ECU Department of Rehabilitation Studies.

Legislative Breakfast

The Pitt County Interagency Child Service Team will sponsor the annual legislative breakfast Monday at 7:30 a.m. at Three Steers Restaurant in Greenville.

The breakfast allows Pitt County legislators to report issues and pending legislation affecting persons with special needs.

Area ACC Graduates

Several area students were among the 240 graduating seniors who participated in the Atlantic Christian College annual commencment recently.

Area graduates included: Dennis James Suggs, Greene County; Gary Lee Arnold, Gail Moore Leanderts and Julie Kent Forehand, Martin County, and Barbara Jean Eubanks, Mary Susan Farrior, Joey Keith Exum, Katrina Yvonne Gray, Wanda Mae Fink, Deborah Kay Gaskins, Leslie Susan Holloman and Willa Moore Dixon, all of Pitt County.

Sam T. Ragan, editor of The Pilot in Southern Pines and poet laureate of North Carolina, was the speaker for the event.

Homebuyers School

The Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service is sponsoring a homebuyers school on June 1 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Willis Building in Greenville.

The purpose is to help future homebuyers make informed decisions when buying a house. There is no charge, but preregistration is required.

Dr. Michael L. Walden, professor and extension economist at North Carolina State University, will discuss the advantages of owning vs. renting, calculating the tax benefits of home ownership, estimating how much house a buyer can afford, qualifying for a mortgage, fixed vs. adjustable rate mortgages, and home equity loans.

Walden has a bachelor's degree in economics from the University of Cincinnati and a master's and doctorate in consumer economics from Cornell University.

To preregister call the Agricultural Extension Service at 830-6370 by Friday.

Youth Competition

Evans Project On Workshop Agenda

The planned Evans Street widening project is one of several items to be addressed by the Greenville City Council at a workshop session Monday at 5:30 p.m. in the third floor conference room of City Hall.

The council is scheduled to consider a Municipal Street Agreement with the North Carolina Department of Transportation relating to the section of the widening project to be completed on a joint state/city basis. The section proposed for joint participation is Evans Street extending from 10th Street to Howell Street.

According to City Manager Greg Knowles, the agreement is a standard procedure which provides an in-depth description of financial and legal details surrounding the project.

In other matters, the council will consider a recommendation by the Greenville Parking Authority to sell to East Carolina University a small section of land at the entrance of the school.

Situated on the corner of Fifth Street and Reade Circle, there are currently 25 parking spaces located on the former swimming pool site. University officials have expressed interest in using the land as part of a modified entrance to the school.

The council will also consider a proposal by Pitt County Manager Kramer Jackson to form a joint city/county commission which might examine and control land use within the East Carolina Medical Park. Currently the park is separated into the planning and zoning jurisdictions of both the city and the county.

Bids regarding the city's banking services will also be considered as well as a grant application for state monies to assist in the control of mosquitos.

Also slated for Monday is a presentation to the council by representatives of the Environmental Advisory Commission regarding the city's greenways program.

An executive session of the council is also scheduled to discuss litigation and land matters.

Haiti's Role Said Growing In Cocaine Trade

MIAMI (AP) — Haiti has joined Panama as a growing drug-smuggling center, and members of its dreaded secret police are muscling into crack cocaine distribution in Florida, witnesses told a special U.S. Senate hearing Saturday.

The drug connection reaches high into the Haitian government, including Interior and Defense Minister Gen. Williams Regala and his liaison officer to the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, two Haitians testified.

"Our intelligence indicates that major Colombian trafficking organizations are using Haiti as a base of operations," Tom Cash, head of DEA in Miami, told Sens. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., and Bob Graham, D-Fla.

Haiti sits astride a natural drug-smuggling route from Colombia, providing planes and boats with a staging area for the last leg of the run into the Bahamas and Florida, he said.

D'Amato compared Haiti to Panama as a drug menace, and noted that the military of the two nations had close communications.

"Birds of a feather flock together," the senator said.

Cash said the investigation that led to the Miami indictment of Haitian Col. Jean-Claude Paul in March for allegedly flying cocaine into Florida is continuing, but refused to say if higher Haitian officials were implicated.

Other witnesses said the army took in the secret police, called Tonton Macoute, after the overthrow of President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier in 1986, and that soldiers and secret police now trafficked drugs in both Haiti and the United States.

Roger Biamby, director of the Haitian American Community Association of Dade, testified that the Haitian liaison to the new DEA office in Port-au-Prince was a drug dealer who personally supervised cocaine loading operations on one U.S. bound freighter.

Regala, Paul and other officers "have created an effective drug-smuggling network in Haiti and the United States," Biamby said.

"We must find out whether the people we are working with are the devils themselves," D'Amato demanded after the testimony.

Fritz Pierre-Louis, a former lieutenant in the Haitian army who later defected, said he personally turned over cocaine confiscated in raids to Paul only to have it disappear. He estimated that 70 percent of Paul's powerful Dessalines Barracks forces are involved in the trafficking.

Earlier this year, Paul even raided an army jail to free some of his soldiers arrested for receiving cocaine at an airstrip, said Pierre-Louis.

"This incident indicates that Col. Paul has, if not the support, at least the acquiescence of army headquarters in his drug operation," he testified.

Florida Department of Law Enforcement spokesman Michael Lanfersiek said the Haitian connection continued into street distribution in Florida.

An informant "stated that much of Haitian crack cocaine distribution in this country was being directed by corrupt military officers (and) the former secret police of the Duvalier regime, the Tonton Macoute," Lanfersiek said.

Haitian immigrants now control distribution of the potent cocaine derivative crack throughout South and Central Florida, he said.

After Paul was indicted in March, the government of Haitian President Leslie Manigat vowed to redouble its efforts to fight drug traffic.

School, was the Boys Club of Pitt County's Youth of the Year for 1987.

In addition to competition interviews, Simmons participated a tour of the Dean Smith Center in Chapel Hill and attended a luncheon in honor of the 21 North Carolina Boys Club youths of the year. He was accompanied by Kirk Dominick, his adviser from the Boys Club.

AOMA Fellow

Dr. Jack Koontz was elected a fellow in the American Occupational Medical Association during its recent meeting in New Orleans.

Koontz is a medical supervisor for Du Pont Co. at its Kinston plant.

Academic Honors

Bobby H. Hardy II, a student at North Carolina Central University, has earned academic honors with a 3.6 cumulative grade point average on a 4.0 scale for his first semester.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby H. Hardy of Greenville.

Alumni Scholarships

East Carolina University has announced the awarding of 20 alumni honor scholarships to outstanding high school graduates who will enter ECU in the fall.

The scholarships were awarded on the basis of superior academic achievement and upon the recommendation of high school guidance counselors. The 1988 recipients are from 14 North Carolina counties and from Maryland, Delaware, Michigan and South Carolina.

Local students awarded the scholarships are Melanie Joy Hardee and Penny Leigh McLawhorn, both of Greenville; Wesley Wayne Stallings of Fountain; Marian Elizabeth Woolard of Washington, N.C., and Cynthia Jane Gurkin of Williamston.

Christian Singles

The Greenville Christian Singles will meet Saturday at 7 p.m. at Fosdick's Seafood Restaurant. For further information call 355-2940 after 5 p.m.

FBLA Awards Event

D.H. Conley Future Business Leaders of America recently held its annual awards banquet. Barbara Cleary spoke on the importance of words.

Awards and certificates were given to students who were recognized for accomplishments during the year. Mary Thompson was honored for her years of service as adviser for the club.

New officers for next year are Leigh Cowan, president; Christa Smith, secretary; Shannon Stallings, reporter, and Diana Byrum, historian.

Master's Degree

Joni Hobgood Tyson graduated from the University of North Carolina-Greensboro with a master's degree in counseling.

She has an undergraduate degree in history and psychology from UNC-G. A graduate of Farmville Central High School, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grigg Thomas Tyson of the Ballard's Crossroads community.

Writing Contest

Five Pactolus Elementary School students were recent winners in the Elizabeth Savage Writing Contest.

Amy Hamm, Jody Mizell, Carla Newton, Tommy Greene and Crystal Griffin are students in Jean Swanner's fifth-grade language arts class.

Association Leader

Tony R. Moore was elected president of the Northeastern North Carolina Driver and Traffic Safety Education Association recently.

Moore will succeed Dr. Joe Shrader, a professor at East Carolina University with the driver education department.

Moore, who teaches at D.H. Coney High School, has been employed as a teacher with the Pitt County schools for the past 12 years.

Class Took Trip

The second-grade classes at Eastern Elementary School recently visited the North Carolina Aquarium at Atlantic Beach.

Students toured the museum, collected seashells and ate a picnic lunch on the beach. The trip culminated a second-grade unit on beaches and oceans.

A&T Honor Roll

Tammy Yvette Parker of Greenville has made the honor roll at North Carolina A&T State University and been named a member of Alpha Lambda Delta Scholastic Honor Society.

An accounting major, Miss Parker is a rising sophomore with a grade point average of 4.0. She is a Rose High School graduate.

State May Add More Pollutants To List Of Regulated Compounds

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina now regulates only six primary air pollutants, but state officials are considering increasing that number to 116 chemical compounds that can cause health problems.

"These are insidious air pollutants," said R. Paul Wilms, director of the N.C. Division of Environmental Management. "They aren't seen. A lot of them can't be smelled. And they, heretofore, have not been controlled. We're out to correct that oversight.

"The problem is that air quality protection is not a visible issue to most people," Wilms said. "There are no dead fish floating on the surface. We've eliminated the black smokestacks."

The chemicals that might be added to the list of regulated substances range from relatively common irritants, such as ammonia and chlorine, to such poisonous or cancer-causing chemicals such as benzene, arsenic and asbestos.

The state now regulates just six primary air pollutants: particulates, sulfur dioxide, nitrogen oxides, carbon monoxide, ozone and lead.

State environmental officials plan to consider the changes next week. Neither the state nor the federal government currently regulates the 116 chemicals under consideration.

"The point is protecting human health," said Ogden Gerald, chief of the DEM's air quality section. "Anything that's adversely affecting human health, we're looking at."

According to a state economic study, the proposed regulations would apply to about one-fourth of the state's industries and about 3 percent of the industries would have to spend substantial amounts of money to comply with the rules. Those affected would include a wide range of industries, such as chemical, textile, furniture, and paper companies.

"We have a great number of facilities that will be affected," said Gerald. "The economic assessment leads me to believe that only a small fraction of those will be significantly affected."

The study did not estimate the total cost of carrying out the program.

"If they like what we have, they'll take it to the full commission and ask to hold a public hearing," Gerald said of the committee that will consider the changes. "The earliest something like this could get all the way through and become regulation would be next fall. That's if everything went smoothly. And quite frankly, we've had some bumpy going on these regulations.

"Nothing is written in stone. The numbers that we are proposing, as well as any compounds, could all be changed as a result of the public comment or the commission's review," he said.

The division has been developing the regulations for about three years, with consultation from the N.C. Academy of Sciences. That scientific input should put the regulations on strong footing, said Robert Harris Jr., an air pollution authority.

"This is something that we've needed for quite some time," said Harris, an environmental sciences professor at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "We've been somewhat slow in getting it, but the delay may be justified."

Pitt Voters Facing Primary Deadlines

Pitt County voters face two deadlines this week regarding the May 31 second primary, according to an election official.

Margaret Hardee, supervisor of the Pitt County Board of Elections, said the deadline for applying for absentee ballots that have to be mailed and returned is Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Friday at 5 p.m. is the deadline for walk-in, or "one-stop" absentee voting by a qualified, registered Democratic voter who will be out of Pitt County during voting hours on business or vacation, Mrs. Hardee said.

"Pitt County voters should reaffirm their leadership by having the largest voter turnout for the second primary in the state on May 31," she said.

She said any qualified, registered Democratic voters in Pitt County may vote by absentee ballot in the second primary to be held on May 31 if they are unable to vote in person on elections day because they are physically unable to enter the voting place, if they are ill, disabled or feeble due to age, or if they will be out of Pitt County during voting hours.

Democratic voters in Consolidated County Commissioner District A, made up of County Commissioner Districts 1 and 2, will be eligible to vote in the second primary between James H. Dupree of Bethel and D.D. Garrett of Greenville.

Registered Democratic voters in the county will be eligible to vote in the second primary for the Court of Appeals unexpired term ending Dec. 31, 1992, between John B. (Jack) Lewis Jr. of Farmville and William L. Davis III of Lumberton.

There will be no Republican ballot for the May 31 second primary.

Mrs. Hardee said electronic voting equipment will again be used in the Winterville precinct, Greenville 1 precinct, and also in Greenville 7.

"Voter registration cards previously received by Pitt County voters identify the various districts in which they are eligible to vote," she said.

All polling places in Pitt County will be open from 6:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on May 31.

Questions concerning absentee ballots and voting should be directed to the elections office at 830-4121.

Takeoff Mishap Hurts 6

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — An American Airlines DC-10 carrying 254 people aborted its takeoff Saturday, ran off the runway at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and slid to a stop on its nose when its front landing gear collapsed.

Six people, including the three-person cockpit crew, were injured in the accident, which occured about 4 p.m., airline spokesmen said. None of the injuries was serious, they added.

Flight 70 was beginning a non-stop flight to Frankfurt, West Germany, with 240 passengers, a cockpit crew of three, and 11 flight attendants, American Airlines spokesman John Hotard said. The plane had a capacity for 244 passengers.

Another spokesman, Steve McGregor, said a cockpit warning light flashed during the takeoff, and Capt. Bob Cornelison radioed the tower that he was aborting the flight.

"But he was rolling at such a speed," Hotard said, "that by the time the plane slowed, it had run off the runway and into a grassy area, which had been softened by a rain. Sinking into this soft grassy area caused the nose gear to collapse," Hotard said.

As a precautionary measure, passengers were evacuated by emergency chute, Hotard said.

The captain, co-pilot, flight engineer and three passengers suffered minor injuries and were taken to area hospitals, American spokesman Al Becker said. The three passengers suffered back injuries, Becker said.

The crew, Hotard noted, "would have been the ones to drop the farthest. They were right over the nose gear."

A passenger on the flight, Juhani Jamia, of Helsinki, Finland, said that before takeoff "it seemed the plane was having some kind of technical difficulty. The power was going on and off."

The flight was scheduled to depart at 2:50 p.m., but it left the passenger gate at 3:28 p.m. and was in position for takeoff shortly after 4 p.m., the spokesman said. They did not give a reason for the delay.

Lunch Menus

Lunch menus in the Pitt County schools this week, as announced, are:

Former ASU Student Charged With Embezzlement

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — A former student at Appalachian State University, described as a genius with computers, has been charged with fleecing the law firm that defended him on previous embezzlement and larceny charges.

Remi Len Wellborn, 28, of Boone was released Friday from the Watauga County Jail after posting a $80,100 bond. He was brought to Boone Thursday after being arrested earlier this week in Maplewood, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis.

Wellborn, indicted by a Watauga County grand jury in April, is charged with 25 felony counts of embezzlement and 25 counts of forgery and uttering, said Assistant District Attorney Jerry Wilson.

According to the indictments, about $100,000 was embezzled last year while Wellborn worked for the law firm of Finger Watson DiSanti & McGee in Boone.

Linda A. McGee, who represented Wellborn on his earlier embezzlement and larceny charges, said that the firm was offering Wellborn a chance to prove himself.

"It was a second chance," Ms. McGee told the Winston-Salem Journal. "We're certainly concerned. We try to place our trust well, but in this case we got burned badly."

Wellborn, a computer programmer, was hired to work on the firm's computer system. Wellborn left the firm in February, Ms. McGee said, and about a week later the firm discovered that something was amiss.

Wilson said that investigators have only been able to guess how the scheme worked and that they know that checks were forged.

"Most of the records were cleared off the computer," Wilson said. "He was a genius — a real whiz."

Wilson said that investigators believe that some of the missing money was found in Wellborn's checking account and that he cashed unauthorized checks from the firm.

Wellborn, who graduated from Appalachian State with an associate's degree in 1984, pleaded guilty in 1986 to two counts of misdemeanor larceny in the theft of two computer units owned by Appalachian State worth $3,528. He received a one-year suspended sentence and was ordered to pay a $500 fine.

In 1987, he pleaded guilty to two counts of misdemeanor larceny after being charged with embezzling $637 from the Data Processing Management Association, a university student club in which he served as president. In that case Wilson was sentenced to two years' probation, and ordered to serve 40 days in the county jail and perform 200 hours of community service.

Wilson said that Weliborn portrayed himself as a sedate, conservative businessman.

While he worked there, Ms. McGee said, the firm had no idea that money was missing.

"But once a new person got involved with the system, we began seeing a problem," she said. "It became obvious something was wrong."

Trustee Has Fought Bankruptcy Wars

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — PTL's new trustee is no rookie when it comes to dealing with bankruptcy.

M.C. "Red" Benton, a former mayor of Winston-Salem, N.C., oversaw the reorganization of Spector Red Ball Inc., the nation's sixth-largest trucking firm, in 1982 when the 6,500-employee company filed for bankruptcy, PTL attorney Brad Leggett said.

Benton, 70, was vice chairman of the Dallas-based holding company TeleCom Inc. that controlled Spector Red Ball.

In 1970, Benton bought the bankrupt Hennis Freight Lines of Winston-Salem. He and W. Dennie Spry, a law partner of Leggett's, bought Hennis and 13 other affiliated businesses through their holding company Benton-Spry Inc. for $10 million.

Hennis merged into Spector Red Ball, Leggett said.

Benton was hired Friday to replace David Clark, who announced his resignation as PTL's bankruptcy trustee. Benton had served as executive vice president for accounting and operational affairs at PTL since Feb. 1.

"He was hired to assist on the business and finance end of the PTL organization," Leggett said. "Mr. Benton had experience in other Chapter 11 situations."

Benton graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1938 with a bachelor of science degree in commerce and a major in accounting, Leggett said.

In 1939, Benton began a 32-year career with McLean Trucking Co. in Winston-Salem.

He served as Winston-Salem's Democratic mayor 1963-71.

IN THE STATE

Martin Newsletter

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin, seeking to build support among Christian fundamentalists, has issued a campaign newsletter stressing his efforts to cut state spending for abortions for poor women.

The eight-page newsletter includes quotes from newspaper articles stressing Martin's efforts to cut the funds. It also criticizes Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan's record on abortion.

Martin, a Republican, will face Jordan, a Democrat, in the gubernatorial race in November.

Martin spokesman Tim Pittman said the campaign mailed 88,000 copies of the newsletter to addresses from lists developed by conservative Christian political activists.

Jordan said he saw the move as an indication Martin's campaign is not moving as it wants to.

"I'm surprised that they brought it out this early," he said. "It means there's a certain amount of desperation on their part. That's an emotional issue they want to use."

Reciprocal Visit

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Two Cuban nuclear officials who toured a Duke Power Co. nuclear plant this week offered a reciprocal visit to their host.

They invited Duke Chairman Bill Lee to see their two Soviet-designed nuclear reactors under construction in Cuba. No date was set for Lee's visit.

Javier Rosales Arias, vice secretary of the Cuban Atomic Energy Commission, and Alejandro Victor Bilboa Alfonso, a top safety official, got to know the characteristics of the McGuire plant on their two-day visit. Lee had invited the Cubans during an international nuclear safety conference in Paris following the Chernobyl nuclear accident in the Soviet Union in 1986.

The two Cuban reactors, scheduled to operate in 1990 and 1991, do not have the same design as Chernobyl. They are similar to McGuire in that they are pressurized water reactors.

Scholars Grant

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — The University of North Carolina Mathematics and Science Education Network has received a $128,762 grant to help support a summer scholars program, the network director announced.

Vinetta Jones said the program is a major component of the pre-college program established in 1986 to help minority and female students graduate from high school with sufficient interest in math, science and English to pursue those areas in college.

About 320 junior and senior high school students nominated by their teachers will participate in the summer scholars program to be conducted at several UNC System locations.

Inmate Checks

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina inmates who have spent up to 15 years behind bars get a check for $15 from the state prison system when they are released, which doesn't make much sense to House Speaker Liston Ramsey.

"To turn them out like that with $15 ... they can't check into the cheapest motel in town for one night," said Ramsey, a Madison County Democrat who wants the $15 payment raised to $45. "I feel like that would be a reason for a lot of them to resort to stealing and right back in they go. Back in prison."

Ramsey figures that increasing the amount of money prisoners are given when they are released or paroled will save some money by keeping at least a few of them from ending up back in prison. He would like lawmakers to consider raising the sum when the General Assembly meets next month.

The state spent $27,432 last year on "gate money" payments to inmates who had served at least two years in prison, according to figures compiled by legislative staffers.

Shootout Probed

DENTON, N.C. (AP) — Investigators say they don't know whether a Davidson County man died from a police bullet or in a car accident as he fled the scene of a downtown shootout.

Denton Police Chief Don Clark opened fire Friday after Harlan Loren Richenberg, 44, of Rt. 7, Lexington, began shooting a .22-caliber pistol at his estranged wife and three others sitting in a car at a convenience store, officers said.

Jim E. Johnson, the chief deputy of the Davidson County Sheriff's Department, said that Friday's shooting was rooted in a domestic dispute.

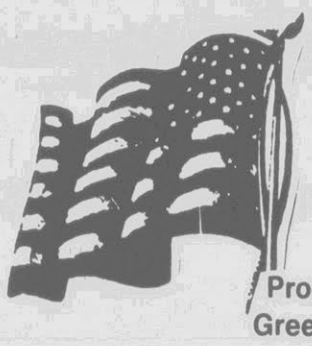
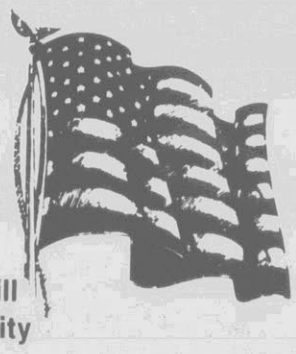
May 23, 1988





Proclaimed By Mayors Of New Bern, Washington, Snow Hill
Greenville, Ayden, Farmville, Kinston, Simpson & Chocowinity

Marilyn Langston (Daughter of Frank Reed, Hostage) and Mr. Donald Mell (Associated Press Photographer, the last American to see Terry Anderson free) will join citizens in the heart of eastern North Carolina in dedicating a memorial as a lasting tribute to Americans held hostage in Lebanon, as well as hostages from other foreign countries. It is our sincere hope that on that day these men will be home and once again enjoying their freedom. Please join us in praying for that end. The ceremony will begin at 7 p.m. at Homestead Memorial Gardens and Funeral Home, two miles east of Greenville, N.C. on Highway 33.

Invitations have been extended to President and Mrs. Reagan, Vice President and Mrs. Bush, Governor Jim Martin, Senators, Congressional Representatives, Presidential Candidates, State Department Representatives, Embassy Officials, Terry's fellow journalists, Second Marine Division Band from Camp Lejeune under the direction of Captain Bill Clemons, Americans and Foreign Hostage Families and an open invitation to all who are concerned with the plight of these hostages. Your part and/or presence on May 23, will be a reminder to the world that no American will stand by in silence while the freedom of any American is violated.

Edgecombe Afraid To Give Up Opportunity For Development

By ERICA JOHNSTON
Associated Press Writer

TARBORO (AP) — Colonial-era lawmakers came to this Edgecombe County town 200 years ago to discuss whether to ratify the U.S. Constitution. Aside from historical reasons, they would have little reason to make the same trip today.

"I think the spirit in Edgecombe County has withered," said Mabrey Bass, a former editor of the city's newspaper, The Daily Southerner.

The area's agricultural base is fading fast, and the county's population peaked about 30 years ago. About a third of the workforce is functionally illiterate, says state Rep. Joe Mavretic, who represents the county.

"We're jealous" of neighboring counties that have higher tax bases and better school systems and other services, said County Manager Ellis Williford. "Our residents deserve more."

Faced last week with the prospect of volunteering their county as host site for the state's first commercial hazardous-waste facility and waste park, residents said the key question is not whether the 3,200-acre project — which would be the largest capital investment ever in the county — represents their ideal of economic development. They know it does not.

The issue now, many residents say, is whether the county can afford to pass up the opportunity for development.

"I feel rather emotional about this thing. I don't want to do the wrong thing," said Vines Cobb, who was one of five county commissioners who unanimously proposed the idea to more than 500 county residents at the Moose Lodge in Tarboro on Wednesday night.

Cobb, whose ancestors settled in Edgecombe County in the 1750s, said he didn't "want to do anything that would be detrimental to Conetoe," a town of 350 people in eastern Edgecombe County. Conetoe has been mentioned by commissioners as a possible site for the waste-treatment complex.

But at the same time, he said, "It would take years and years for us to attract the industries that would increase the tax base enough so that we could do the things that we need to do.

"This is an opportunity that's simply so unique ... that if safety factors are dealt with, we simply can't afford to pass it up," said Cobb, a banker in Pinetops, a town of about 1,800 people about eight miles from Conetoe.

"On the other hand, we don't want to sell our birthright for a bowl of pottage," he said. "If and when I vote for (the county to host the waste facilities), I hope that will not be the case."

Under a plan approved by commissioners and engineered largely by Mavretic, the county would volunteer to host a massive waste-treatment complex containing the hazardous waste plant and a low-level radioactive waste repository.

In return, the county would receive at least $5 million a year in revenues and fees. The county also wants the two-lane U.S. 64 upgraded to "interstate quality" from Tarboro to Bethel, state-provided utilities at the waste facilities and other incentives.

No formal proposal has been made yet. And county officials say that move will come only when — and if — county residents approve it. But county and state officials are urging support of the plan.

"It's the chance in a lifetime to bring Edgecombe County up to parity," said state Rep. Milton Fitch of Wilson, whose district includes part of Edgecombe.

"The benefits outweigh the risks. And that's what it comes down to these days," Williford said. "You've got to be realistic."

Edgecombe County, about 75 miles east of Raleigh, is not as bad off as some counties in the state, particularly in the east. But county officials say Edgecombe has consistently lost out on efforts to recruit industry, and will continue to lose unless its highway system is improved.

County residents were so eager to recruit new industry that individuals and corporations pitched in last year to help the Sara Lee Corp. buy land for a new plant that eventually will employ 400 people.

In 72 hours, residents raised $200,000, subsidizing by $1,500 an acre land that the company then bought for an additional $2,000 an acre, Williford said.

But revenues from the waste facilities would dwarf even Sara Lee's contributions to county coffers, officials say. Sara Lee is expected to pay $250,000 in taxes, while the waste facilities would provide revenues of about 20 times that amount, Williford said.

The county must turn to new development strategies because many of the old ones no longer work, officials said. For example, Edgecombe traditionally has relied on its inexpensive labor force to lure industry. But that drawing card is no longer doing the trick.

"With robots and computerization, companies don't care as much about that any more," he said. "The only job opportunities in the next 25 years will be for the well-educated."

That's another reason why Edgecombe County officials are worried. They say money earmarked for schools by the financially strained county ranks in the bottom 10 percent among North Carolina counties. With funds brought in by the waste facilities, the county could climb into the top 25 percent, they say.

Given the anticipated educational and industry-recruiting benefits of the waste facilities, Bass said he, too, would probably support the idea. But he said he wasn't expecting a miracle.

"If it were put to a vote tomorrow, I'd vote for it, but I'd have some apprehensions," he said. "I don't see this as any panacea to the financial problems we're having. You can't be too Pollyanna-ish."

Residents of Conetoe were markedly less enthusiastic. Several people interviewed in the farming town — pronounced Coe-NEE-ta — said they wanted nothing to do with the waste facilities.

"All the farmers is bitterly against it," said Jean Roberson. The farm where she and her husband live has been in his family for three generations, she said.

"Even with the incentives, we wouldn't want it," Mrs. Roberson said. "What would a four-lane (highway) do? It would take away more of our farmland.

"How does (Mavretic) think that farmers are going to make a living?" she asked.

But M.L. Nobles, 83, was less opposed.

"I would not object," he said. "Progress has got to go on. If progress stops, we stop."

State officials hope to allay some fears of Edgecombe County citizens with a state-sponsored bus trip Monday to Barnwell, S.C., site of the only low-level radioactive waste facility in the Southeast now in operation. About 250 people had signed up for the 14-hour round-trip by Friday.

"The question I want to get across is, if (the low-level waste facility) is so bad, how come it's not bad for Barnwell?" Mavretic said. "How come they don't want it to leave there? They love it."

About 225 people are employed at the Barnwell facility, and their average wage is $26,000, officials said.

North Carolina's low-level radioactive waste facility, scheduled to open in 1993, will replace Barnwell for 20 years as the repository for wastes in eight Southeastern states.

Mavretic said he would like to see county citizens make up their minds soon on the issue so the General Assembly can approve expenditures for the project this year.

A public hearing is scheduled for next week, with a second planned for an unspecified date. Williford said officials would like to settle the issue within a month, but he denied that they were rushing things.

"Some people say that things are moving so fast that they don't feel they'll have time to be informed or to muster opposition," he said. "They shouldn't feel that way. I don't think that will be the case at all."

Bass said those he had spoken with were "very open" to the idea of hosting the facilities.

"But nobody really seems to understand what low-level radioactive waste is," he said. "The word 'radiation' is just a no-no."

Winthrop Panel Seeks President

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP) — The committee looking for a president for Winthrop College plans to contact at least 18 prospective candidates to replace Martha Kime Piper, who died last month of cancer.

Five other candidates contacted by the committee have said they were not interested in the position.

Five of the seven members of the committee were in Columbia this past week for their first meeting since being selected following the death of Mrs. Piper, 56, on April 24. The committee plans to meet again early next month.

Search committee chairman Palmer Freeman said the committee would continue adding names to its list, but added: "We'll at some point feel like we've got enough people to review, and we'll start taking names off."

Koop's Nicotine Report May Fuel Continued Drop In Tobacco Usage

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The golden leaf of tobacco is offering little shade from the heat generated by U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop's declaration that nicotine in cigarettes is addictive.

His report lumping nicotine with heroin and cocaine as physiologically addictive drugs underscored the seeming contradiction between the government's support of tobacco prices and its warnings about using the product.

But at the Agriculture Department, where cafeteria patrons have no-smoking or smoking areas, ban-the-butt crusades are viewed with a certain cynicism. The attitude is that Congress makes the laws, and if Congress wants the farm price of tobacco supported at minimum levels, it's USDA's job to do it.

"Careful examination of the data makes it clear that cigarettes and other forms of tobacco are addicting," Koop said last week in the surgeon general's annual report on smoking and health. "An extensive body of research has shown that nicotine is the drug in tobacco that causes addiction."

The USDA has run federal price supports for tobacco since the early 1930s. Basically, in return for going along with controls on plantings and marketings, growers are assured a floor price on what they produce.

The anti-smoking campaigns have affected cigarette use, although it's hard to be precise about their impact, says Verner Grise of the department's Economic Research Service. Price increases by cigarette manufacturers and rising taxes have boosted retail costs sharply, prompting some smokers to quit or cut down.

Since 1981, total U.S. cigarette consumption has dropped more than 10 percent, and last year Americans consumed 575 billion cigarettes, or "pieces," the fewest since 1972.

Grise said the decline in domestic cigarette use isn't over and the surgeon general's report last week will add to the downturn.

"I don't know that we'll see any accelerated drop in consumption, but certainly it (the report) will be a factor in the continued drop in consumption of one-half to 2 percent a year," Grise said in an interview.

Grise said he thinks that "there will be a push for an additional warning label" on cigarette packages to indicate nicotine is addictive. "And I suppose that a push for prohibition or restrictions on where minors can buy cigarettes ... is going to be stepped up," he said.

More than 40 states and the District of Columbia have laws that either ban smoking in certain places or segregate smokers from non-smokers. At least 10 states regulate smoking in workplaces.

The rate of smoking cigarettes by adults 18 years and older peaked at 4,345 cigarettes a year — more than 217 packs of 20 each — in 1963 and has generally declined since then. Last year's average was 3,201 cigarattes, or 160 packs, the lowest since World War II.

The figures are used statistically to compare year-to-year changes and include both smokers and non-smokers.

Meanwhile, U.S. cigarette exports are up sharply — a record 100.2 billion pieces last year, a 56 percent jump from 1986.

With domestic use declining, the export market grows in importance to the cigarette industry. An additional boost could have been provided if a proposal by tobacco-state lawmakers had succeeded.

The Senate Agriculture Committee, at the urging of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., last year inserted in the trade bill a move to make tobacco exports eligible for Export Enhancement Program subsidies, with any resultant losses to be borne by the USDA's Commodity Credit Corp.

The panel acted without much fanfare and major debate did not come until the measure moved to the Senate floor.

The Senate last July 10 killed, 51-43, an attempt by Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., to delete the plan from the bill.

Chafee claimed the $39 million cost estimated by the Congressional Budget Office represented a violation of the 1982 no-net-cost agreement governing the tobacco program.

Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., and other tobacco-state lawmakers retorted that the agreement was never supposed to have affected export programs and that in any case it was not a smoking issue but an economic one.

No similar measure, however, was contained in the House version of the legislation and when the trade bill went to a House-Senate conference committee the tobacco provision was quietly dropped.

The 1982 No-Net-Cost Tobacco Program Act required that growers had to pay, through assessments, the costs of operating the federal support program. To be eligible, producers of most kinds of tobacco are required to go along with federal production controls.

In 1986, additional legislation changed the quota-setting procedure, price support levels and the no-net-cost assessments for flue-cured and burley tobacco, the main types produced by U.S. growers. The changes were aimed at making U.S. tobacco more competitive in world markets and to bring supplies into balance with demands.

Bizarre Events Preceded School Shootings

By ELIZABETH SHOGREN
Associated Press Writer

WINNETKA, Ill. (AP) — A woman who went on a deadly shooting rampage at a school apparently first delivered mysterious containers of juice to at least six homes and arsenic-laced snacks to a pair of Northwestern University fraternities, police said Saturday.

Three people who ate the snacks at Alpha Tau Omega were made seriously ill and taken to Evanston Hospital, Police Chief Herbert Timm said. University and hospital officials said a total of six students were taken to the hospital, and were treated and released.

"The situation with Lori has not ended," Timm said.

HEALING BEGINS — A hug is shared Saturday in front of Winnetka's Hubbard Woods Elementary School after a counseling session where families met to come to grips with the aftermath of a shooting spree that left one student dead. (AP Laserphoto)

The chief said Lori Dann, 30, dropped off Capri Sun drinks at the doors of six homes in Glencoe, Highland Park and unincorporated Winnetka where she once worked as a babysitter.

One Glencoe girl felt ill after sipping the juice, but was never taken to a hospital, Timm said. A Highland Park child was taken to Highland Park Hospital as a precaution, but it was not known if she was actually ill.

There were no other reports of illness, and while the drinks were being examined at a crime lab, police were still not actually sure if the juices were spiked, Timm said.

At one of the homes, the juice carried a note that read, "Love your little sisters. Enjoy."

The developments added a bizarre twist to the case of Ms. Dann. On Friday, she walked into Hubbard Woods Elementary School and opened fire, killing an 8-year-old boy and wounding five other children. She later wounded a sixth person at a nearby home where she holed up before killing herself.

Four of the wounded children were listed in critical condition Saturday.

Timm was not sure why Ms. Dann delivered arsenic-laced Rice Krispie snacks to the Alpha Tau Omega and Psi Upsilon fraternities, though "she did have a friend at the Northwestern campus," Timm said.

At Ms. Dann's Madison, Wis., apartment, the police chief said, authorities found a list of people who received the drink deliveries. They also recovered two vials with powdered substance, one black and one white.

Meanwhile, hundreds of parents and children touched by the tragedy gathered at the school Saturday to discuss the shootings and offer prayers for the victims and for Ms. Dann. Social workers were on hand to talk privately with them.

Nine-year-old Tom Sawyer said he and many of his friends were "freaked" when they heard the shots inside the school.

"Scared? No. Now that I know (Ms. Dann) is dead, I'm fine. A couple of my friends are still scared. A lot of them are sad," said Sawyer.

Police believe Ms. Dann became distraught when a family that hired her to babysit said they were leaving Illinois. Before the shootings, she tried to set fire Friday to the family's home and another school, police said. They also believe she tried to serve contaminated milk to the family's children.

Police found books about poison in Ms. Dann's Madison apartment.

Ms. Dann's attack on the youngsters ages 6 to 8, her shooting of a 20-year-old man who tried to wrest a gun from her at the house, and the siege there were a nine-hour nightmare for residents of this affluent suburb just north of Chicago.

"Winnetka is a very quiet, sedate bedroom community," said Sgt. Jim Brewer, a 22-year police veteran. "No one ever thinks anything like this would occur here."

The last murder, he said, occurred 31 years ago when a police officer was shot.

"It's disconcerting, but it's an odd event," said Irene Kerr, 38, who lives across the street from the school. "It will never happen again."

The discussions at the school were closed to the news media, but some of the people leaving said participants had prayed for the victims and Ms. Dann.

Dr. Ira Sloan, chairman of the psychiatry department at Evanston Hospital, said there was a wide range of reactions among those at the meeting.

"There were children who were crying," Sloan said. "There were children helping each other, hugging each other and handing Kleenex to each other. There were children who were angry."

Liz Dickey, 37, said she was trying to allay the fears of her 6-year-old son by telling him that Ms. Dann was "a sick person."

"It's something that usually doesn't happen," Mrs. Dickey said. "The children lack a certain amount of safety at this point. We have to help them realize that it's an isolated incident."

"I just think it's sad for such a little kid," said young Tom Sawyer, referring to the slain youngster, Nicholas Corwin, a soccer pal of his.

At Evanston Hospital, Mark Tebourek, 8, Robert Trossman, 6, and Kathryn Miller, 7, were in critical but stable condition. Lindsay Fisher, 8, was critical but unstable as doctors performed more surgery, a spokesman said.

At Highland Park Hospital, Peter Munro, 8, and Philip Andrew, 20, were in serious but stable condition, spokeswoman Sue Masaracchia said.

FBI Didn't Locate Dann Soon Enough

By PHYLLIS MENSING
Associated Press Writer

WINNETKA, Ill. (AP) — The FBI knew about Lori Dann. So did prosecutors in three states. So did her neighbors and her former husband and in-laws.

Prosecutors were trying to track her down for making harassing telephone calls and threats as she became increasingly disturbed, but they were losing a race with time.

"After awhile you start to develop a sixth sense for these things," said Lake County State's Attorney Fred Foreman said. "I had a feeling that this person was about to explode."

On Friday, the 30-year-old woman set fire to the house where she worked as a babysitter, went to an elementary school and shot six children, killing one, then wounded a 20-year-old man in a nearby house and barricaded herself there.

The nine-hour ordeal ended Friday night when police discovered that Ms. Dann had shot herself to death.

Authorities said Saturday they believe Ms. Dann also tried to deliver poison to several families she once worked for.

Lori Dann left a long trail that led to Friday's rampage.

Among other things, she had harassed an old boyfriend for two years with telephone calls and she was known for her odd behavior at an apartment complex in Madison, Wis., where she was found last week lying on garbage bags.

Her former husband woke up one night in May 1986 to find himself bleeding from a stab wound made with an ice pick. He suspected his wife.

Ms. Dann was charged about a year ago with misdemeanor harrassment by telephone, after authorities traced harassment calls to a place where she had lived, said assistant Lake County state's attorney Michael Waller. Charges were dropped after authorities found out others had access to the same telephone.

The evidence that she was violent was thin, and proper procedures had to be followed. Her old boyfriend, a doctor in Tucson, Ariz., refused to press charges. And some families Ms. Dann worked for as a babysitter praised her work.

"If only we had known," said Dan Knauss, an assistant U.S. attorney in Tucson, Ariz. "But you can't anticipate things like this."

Herbert Timm, police chief of this affluent Chicago suburb, said that Ms. Dann had been seeing a psychiatrist, but he gave no further details.

At some point, Timm said, she obtained a license for a gun — one of the three she used Friday.

Authorities in Arizona said Saturday they had been ready to indict Ms. Dann for making a threatening phone call to a man she had dated at the University of Arizona in the late 1970s.

BIDEN GOES HOME — Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., flanked by his wife, Jill, and daughter, Ashley, meets with reporters following his release Saturday from Walter Reed Army Medical Center. Biden underwent successful surgery earlier this month to correct an aneurysm near his brain. (AP Laserphoto)

Joseph Biden Leaves Hospital After Surgery

By JOAN MOWER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., plagued with health problems since February, was released from the hospital Saturday about three weeks after he underwent surgery to repair an artery near his brain.

"I am happier than you can possibly believe to be out of the hospital," Biden said at a news conference outside Walter Reed Army Medical Center. "I am in good shape and anxious to go back to work."

He also said that though his health problem didn't come to light until after he dropped out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, ending his campaign may have saved his life.

"I think getting out of the race was, quite frankly, a godsend," he said. If he had stayed in the race, "the percentages are I might not have made it down here," he said.

The 45-year-old senator withdrew from the race after acknowledging he plagiarized a law school exam and exaggerated his achievements.

Biden, appearing thin but relaxed and in good humor, said he planned to recuperate at his home in Wilmington, Del., before resuming his duties in the Senate, where he is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee and a member of the Foreign Relations Committee. He left the hospital in a car driven by his wife, Jill, and accompanied by his 6-year-old daughter, Ashley, and his mother, Jean.

"There is no reason why I cannot resume all of my Senate duties with the same vigor that I have before," Biden said, noting that he routinely worked 15-to-18-hour days in the past.

"I feel like I could go back now, but they (doctors) won't let me ... until I build up my strength," Biden said. He said he hoped to resume his schedule in the Senate "between now and September, but it's kind of hard to tell."

Biden said he had generally followed developments in the Judiciary Foreign Relations committees, although he had not kept up with the day-to-day events.

To gain strength, Biden said he follows a regimen that includes lifting weights and riding a stationary bicycle. He plans to return to the hospital in about a month for a checkup.

Peter Esker, a spokesman at Walter Reed, said a team of neurological surgeons, headed by Dr. Eugene George, is "extremely pleased" with Biden's progress. "His overall health is excellent," he said. Doctors have found no additional aneurysm or "other problems that would interfere with his complete recovery."

Biden, who dropped out of the Democratic presidential race last September, first underwent surgery on Feb. 12 to repair an aneurysm in an artery supplying blood to the left side of his brain.

At that time, doctors discovered — but were unable to fix — a second, smaller aneurysm in an artery on the right side of the brain. Doctors repaired the second aneurysm during a 4 12 hour operation on May 3.

Students Arraigned In Frat Death

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Fifteen Rutgers University students who face aggravated hazing charges in the drinking death of a freshman are being punished for an accident, their attorneys said.

"One boy accidentally died and now the state is going to punish 15 others," said Mark Denbeaux, a Newark attorney for one of the students.

Superior Court Judge George J. Nicola released the students on their own recognizance after they pleaded innocent Friday. They are scheduled to appear at a pre-trial conference July 5.

The students, seven of whom were officers of the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity house, were named in a Middlesex County grand jury indictment that charged them with aggravated hazing in the Feb. 12 death of James Callahan of North Bergen.

An autopsy showed Callahan, 18, died from alcohol poisoning after drinking more than 23 ounces of alcohol at a Lambda Chi Alpha initiation party, prosecutor Alan Rockoff said.

An autopsy showed Callahan had a 0.434 percent blood alcohol content, or four times the level considered legally drunk in New Jersey.

"I still maintain it was not a hazing incident," said attorney Joseph J. Discenza, who represents Lambda Chi Alpha's Board of Trustees and one student. "It was really a tragic incident and criminal charges should never have been brought." Aggravated hazing charges carry a maximum sentence of 18 months in prison and a $7,500 fine, Rockoff said.

THERE'S A BIG ONE OUT THERE, BILLY!

If you hook him, hold on tight! Back up fast but easy, Billy! Don't let your line go slack. Your daddy always said: "There's a big one out there for Billy!"

And daddy knew. Daddy knew because he planned for a big one to be out there for Billy. With his attorney's help, he planned for Billy's care and education, just as he planned for Billy's mother's future. And he made a plan to eliminate from his family the strain of deciding on details of "the arrangements" at the time of their sad bereavement. An attorney can help with the one plan. We can help with the other. Just call us, if you will.

Jackson Denies Ailment Report; Bush Takes A Stand On Noriega

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Democratic rivals Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson were continuing their dialogue Saturday, while Vice President George Bush was making his strongest move so far away from President Reagan.

Dukakis, aiming to lock up the Democratic presidential nomination in the final primaries on June 7, completed a California campaign swing with a visit to a community health clinic and then planned to attend a fund-raiser in St. Louis before flying home to Boston.

Jackson, appearing at a rally at a shipyard in San Pedro, denied reports circulated by a campaign staff member earlier in the day that he had been hospitalized Friday night in San Francisco, possibly for a stomach ailment.

"There was some rumor about my health," Jackson told the crowd. "My health is fantastic. Ain't nothing wrong with me; feel so good, I want to jump off the stage. Feel so fine."

Dukakis, during a stop at a community clinic, told the mostly Hispanic crowd that if elected president he would "put basic health insurance for all of our citizens at the top of the national agenda."

Dukakis said he would build coalitions with representatives of business, labor and politics to enact legislation that would require businesses to provide health insurance for their employees. He recently signed such an insurance plan into law in his home state.

Dukakis received a loud round of applause at the clinic when he lapsed into Spanish, which he speaks fluently.

Bush, who attended a 2½-hour meeting at the White House, had no response when reporters called out questions to him as he left the session on U.S. policy on Panama.

In an interview on his campaign plane late Friday, Dukakis said he had talked earlier in the day by telephone with Jackson.

He did not say what they talked about but described his contacts with Jackson as routine.

"What we try to do is arrange things so that when our paths cross, we spend some time together," said Dukakis.

He rejected the notion that he was negotiating with Jackson.

"We respect each other; we like each other," he said. "We agree on some things, we disagree on others. It's a good relationship and it will continue to be."

Jackson told the shipyard crowd, which heard earlier that the candidate had been hospitalized, that flight delays not an illness was the reason he was late.

"Let me set the record straight. This morning in San Francisco we sat on the runway for nearly an hour and threw our plane late," he said.

But Rick Roberts, a spokesman in Jackson's Los Angeles office, said earlier: "He was hospitalized. We don't know for sure what it was."

"It was a possible stomach ailment. We don't want to speculate until the national campaign people get here," Roberts said.

Jackson was appearing at the rally and then attending three fund-raisers in the Los Angeles area.

There are 466 Democratic delegates at stake in the party's final four primaries on June 7. California is the biggest prize with 314, while New Jersey has 109. The other two primaries were New Mexico with 24 delegates and Montana with 19.

In Colorado, backers of Dukakis on Friday withdrew their challenge of a decision to add 198 Jackson representatives to the Democratic state convention. The state's Democrats are meeting this weekend to finalize delegates to the national convention in Atlanta, July 18-21.

Evelyn Davidson, representing 18 Denver Democrats who challenged the expanded convention delegation on May 2, said that although party rules were violated, the Jackson delegates would not change the final outcome.

"Mike Dukakis will clearly win the nomination. One or two delegates from Denver will make no significant difference," Ms. Davidson said.

In Vermont, Republicans and Democrats also held their respective state conventions this weekend to determine the delegates to the national convention.

Dukakis was sounding increasingly certain of getting enough delegates on June 7 to top the 2,081 needed for a convention majority.

During his latest campaign swing through California, he often made only passing reference to the primary, while tailoring his rhetoric to his anticipated confrontation with Bush in the fall.

Dukakis is heavily favored to defeat Jackson in California and New Jersey.

Bush, with the Republican nomination already locked up, appeared to have found the issue on which to separate himself from the president — the controversial negotiations with Panamanian strongman Manuel Antonio Noriega.

The administration, according to a State Department source, was considering a deal in which Noriega would leave Panama for nine months in exchange for the United States dropping drug charges against him.

Craig Fuller, Bush's chief of staff, said Friday that "administration sources who have suggested that the vice president favors ending the negotiations (with Noriega) and bringing the envoy back to Washington are essentially correct."

In an interview with Cable News Network, White House staff chief Howard H. Baker Jr. said Bush had stated his differences with the Noriega negotiations "persistently ... and enthusiastically."

"George Bush must stake out his position as a candidate for president of the United States," said Baker.

At a news conference in Sacramento on Friday, Dukakis demanded that the administration explain its past dealings with Noriega.

Assailant Kills Federal Judge

By JIM FITZGERALD
Associated Press Writer

PELHAM, N.Y. (AP) — A federal judge was shot and killed at his home in this wealthy New York City suburb Saturday by an assailant who then committed suicide, police said.

Richard J. Daronco, was shot several times by an assailant who apparently arrived as the judge was mowing his lawn, said Police Chief Anthony M. Quatroni.

The chief said Daronco ran into his house, and was pursued and killed. The assailant apparently then turned the gun on himself, Quatroni said.

It was not known whether the victim was alone. Daronco and his wife, Joan O'Rourke, were married in 1957 and have five grown children.

"He was a family man. He was a churchgoer. He was always out working on his house," said William Hynes, a neighbor.

Another neighbor, Joseph Kish, who said he had known Daronco for 14 years, called the judge "a wonderful person, a beautiful neighbor, a great family man. He's gonna be missed. It's a terrible tragedy."

Daronco was appointed in 1987 as a federal judge for the Southern District of New York.

His brother, Paul, is the supervisor in this affluent town of about 5,000 people just north of New York City in Westchester County.

Daronco was born and reared in Pelham and attended Providence College in Rhode Island and the Albany Law School of Union University.

Daronco began his judicial career in 1971 when Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller appointed him to Westchester County Family Court. In 1984, Daronco was elevated from a state judgeship in White Plains to deputy chief administrative judge of the state's office of court administration.

Anti-Drug Group Kicks Spuds

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The English bull terrier popularized as "Spuds The Party Animal" in beer commercials should not be allowed in a Portland parade because he glamorizes alcohol, says a leader of an anti-drug group.

"They have spent millions of dollars to come up with the magic advertisement," said Lynn Coonrod, executive director of development for the Oregon Federation for Drug Free Youth. "It's not the right message."

The dog is depicted in Budweiser television commercials and advertisements as a hit with attractive women at beer parties.

Coonrod said Friday that a letter-writing and signature-gathering campaign is under way in hopes of convincing the Portland Rose Festival Association to ban the dog from its Starlight Parade.

"What does Spuds represent?" Coonrod asked. "Drinking."

Gene Leo, executive manager of the festival association, said Spuds will remain in the June 4 parade.

Six Arrested During Klan March Scuffles

By MIKE OWEN
Associated Press Writer

PARKSIDE, Pa. (AP) — A crowd of 1,000, some shouting profanities or holding anti-racism signs, greeted about 40 people dressed in Ku Klux Klan robes Saturday as they marched along a court-sanctioned route flanked by rows of police.

At least six people were arrested, some led away in handcuffs after minor scuffles including one in which an officer was knocked to the ground. Most in the largely white crowd limited their protests to shouting, but some threw bottles and other objects.

Police estimated the crowd at 750 to 1,000 people, but said it may have been larger. The militant Jewish Defense League, which had promised to show up with guns, did not make a show of force, but authorities said the group was represented.

A row of six officers on horseback led the marchers about five blocks up and down state Route 352, the main street in this 112-acre borough of about 2,500 residents, while a police helicopter hovered overhead.

"We Shall Overcome. Knights of the Ku Klux Klan," read a sign carried by a marcher.

John Weiss of Philadelphia, who identified himself as a Klan spokesman, said the Klan simply wanted to march on Armed Forces Day "because we've got a lot of veterans in the organization."

One woman bolted from the sidewalk and ripped the hood off a marcher. Police quickly wrestled her to the ground and led her away in handcuffs. Another woman who became involved was also handcuffed, and an officer was knocked to the ground in the scuffle.

About a block away, two men were detained after mounted police helped quell an incident.

Unspecified charges were being filed against the six arrested, Parkside Borough Council President Samuel Iannucci said. The only one immediately identified was George Snider, who had made the Klan's request to borough council for a parade permit. No circumstances of his arrest were released.

Police far outnumbered Klan marchers, with some 150 from Delaware County communities and 95 officers from the state police.

After the march, as Klan members prepared to leave the shopping center parking lot where they had gathered, in the adjoining borough of Brookhaven, some in the crowd behind police lines broke into a chant of "Send the cops home." One sign read, "Just Say No to Racism."

Brookhaven Police Chief John Eller said the only disturbance at the shopping center was some rock-throwing right before Klan members left. Some rocks hit store employees' cars but no Klan targets, he said. No arrests were made.

The march was staged according to the terms of an agreement approved Thursday in federal court in Philadelphia after a borough ordinance designed to stop the march had been overturned on constitutional grounds.

Gregory Watson of nearby Chester was one of relatively few blacks in the crowd at the shopping center. "I always heard about hatred with the KKK," he said. "I wanted to see hatred eye to eye. ... I'm surprised more blacks aren't showing up."

School Reform Gets Low Marks

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven out of 10 teachers give school reform a grade of "C" or less, and half feel that teacher morale has declined even though student achievement is up, according to a nationwide survey released Saturday.

Overall, a majority of the 13,500 public school teachers surveyed by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching said that five years of reform had improved the lot of students much more than that of teachers.

"Teaching is a grueling, thankless job. Most people who criticize teachers could not long survive in many of the nation's schools," concluded the 85-page survey, "Report Card on School Reform: The Teachers Speak."

On the bright side, the survey found that 66 percent of teachers reported higher math achievement among their students, and 64 percent said reading and writing have improved.

Seventy-six percent said educational goals at their schools are more clearly defined than they were five years ago, and 74 percent reported that more is expected of students. Fifty-six percent said the leadership role of their principals had improved.

But when teachers were asked, "If you were to give a grade to the education reform movement, what would it be?" 50 percent gave it a "C," 13 percent a "D," and 6 percent a failing grade. Twenty-nine percent gave it a "B," and only 2 percent an "A."

Forty-nine percent said teacher morale had worsened since 1983, the year a national commission heralded the school reform movement with its report, "A Nation at Risk." Twenty-eight percent reported no change, and 23 percent said morale had improved.

Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation and author of the latest report, said that teachers believe school reform has boosted student performance in the basics like reading.

"But what the data show is that teachers feel largely bypassed in the process. Regulations have added more paperwork and the bureacracy has increased. Teaching conditions have gotten worse. And in the process, morale has gone down," he said in an interview.

A majority of those surveyed reported no improvement or a worsening in key issues affecting working conditions such as study space for teachers, daily teaching load, class preparation time, class size, freedom from non-teaching duties, teacher awards and money to support innovative ideas.

Fifty-nine percent said the salary picture was better than in 1983. But only one in four felt that community respect for teachers had increased.

In his paid weekly column due to appear in Sunday's New York Times, American Federation of Teachers president Albert Shanker said the Carnegie survey indicates teachers "feel they've been had on the promises of professionalism."

Reports assessing school reform issued in the last few weeks have sharply differed on the role teachers have played.

Maxwell FURNITURE

Greenville Blvd. Greenville, N.C.

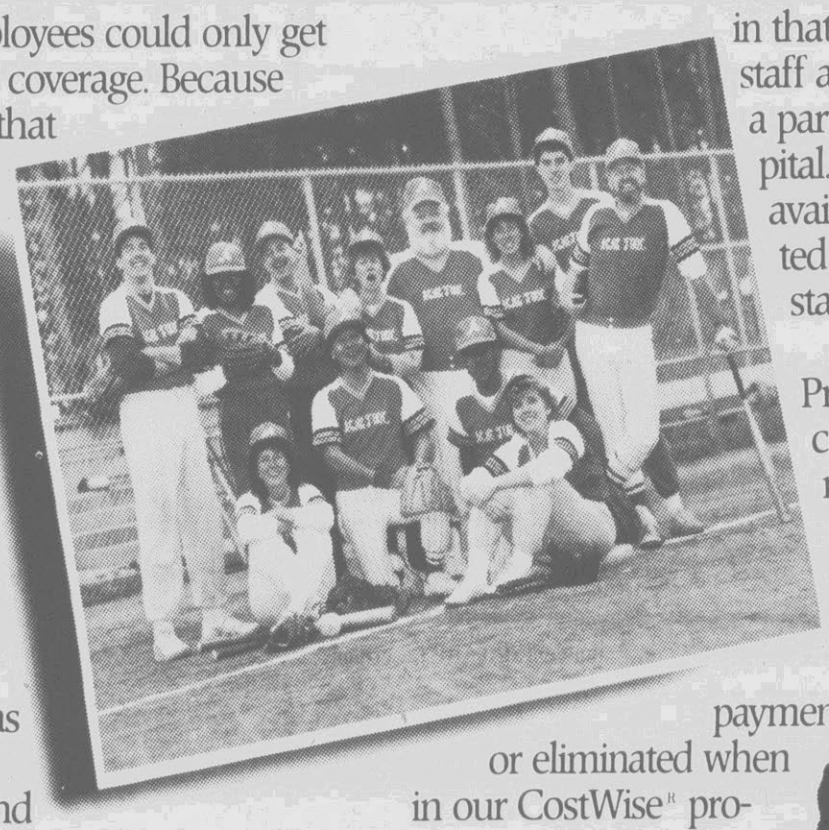
Heilig Meyer's Co. recently announced that Maxwell Furniture, one of the chain acquired by them in August, 1987, will remain open contrary to rumors that it would be closed.

A spokesperson for the Richmond, Va. based Heilig Meyer's Co. said that although several Maxwell stores in Eastern North Carolina have been closed, the company has chosen to keep the Greenville location open for an indefinite period.

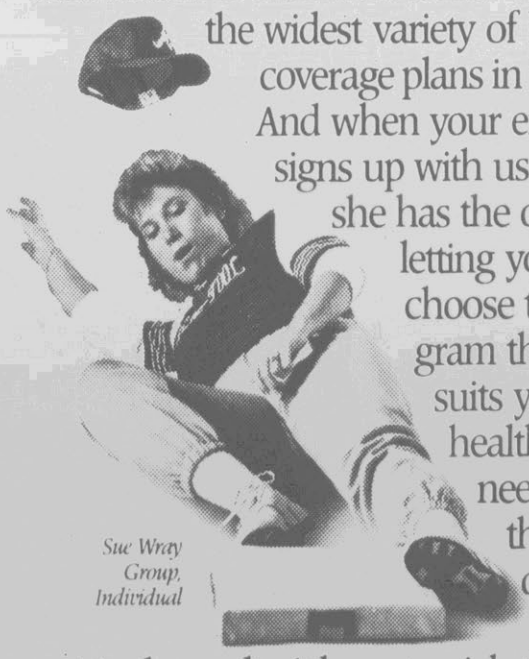
We Offer Your Company More Health Coverage Choices Than Anyone Else In The Field.

Not long ago, employees could only get one type of health coverage. Because basically that's all that was available.

But times have changed. Employers and employees have become more health conscious. And the people who provide health coverage have found new ways to deliver it.



But nobody has found more ways than Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina. We offer the widest variety of health coverage plans in the state. And when your employer signs up with us, he or she has the option of letting you choose the program that best suits your health care needs and the needs of your family.



Sue Wray
Group, Individual

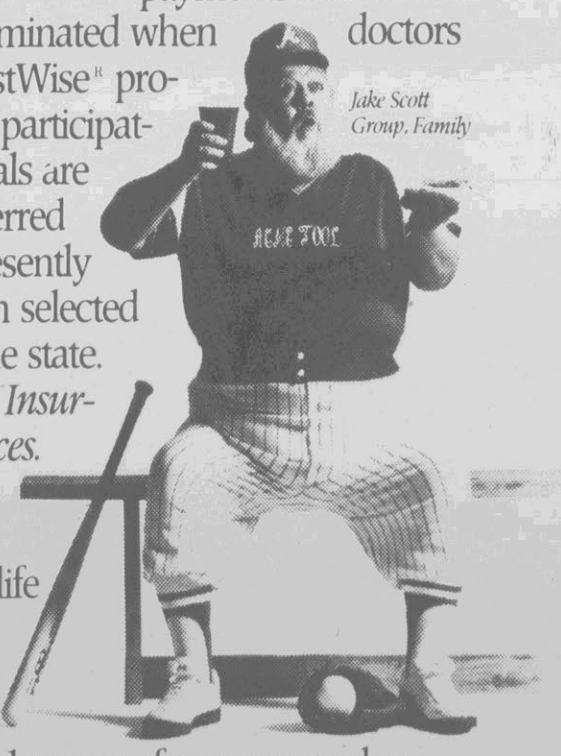
And you don't have to pick the same plan as the person working next to you. Because your needs and that person's needs may be completely different.

Here's what you get to choose from:

Traditional Group. This is the plan you're probably most familiar with. It offers basic comprehensive coverage.

The Personal Care Plan or HMO of North Carolina. Your company may select one of the two. The Personal Care Plan is an HMO. One monthly payment covers virtually every health care need. HMO of North Carolina is an HMO, too. But it differs from the Personal Care Plan in that it utilizes the staff and facilities of a participating hospital. It is presently available in selected areas of the state.

Preferred Care. Preferred Care covers treatment wherever a patient prefers. But deductables and co-payments are reduced or eliminated when in our CostWise® program and participating hospitals are used. Preferred Care is presently available in selected areas of the state.



Jake Scott
Group, Family

Group Insurance Services. Group Insurance Services is life insurance coverage that can be attached to any of our group plans.

So there they are. The widest choice of health programs in North Carolina. And one of the reasons nearly two million North Carolinians choose us as their coverage carrier.

If your company has Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage, talk to your employer about providing you the option of picking the plan you like best. And if your company's not covered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield, ask your employer to pick up the phone and call us. Because when it comes to health coverage, we're clearly the best in our field.

Swaggart Returning To Pulpit After A Three-Month Absence

By ALAN SAYRE
Associated Press Writer

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Defrocked TV evangelist Jimmy Swaggart plans to return to the pulpit Sunday, three months after he made a tearful confession of sin and was accused of hiring a prostitute to pose for him in a motel room.

The ensuing fight in the Assemblies of God over the length of Swaggart's punishment led to his dismissal from the Pentecostal denomination April 8.

"It has been nearly three months since I stepped down from the ministry, and now we feel that it is in God's timing for us to come back," Swaggart said in the May issue of The Evangelist, the magazine of Jimmy Swaggart World Ministries.

He said his return "will be a glorious time as the choir starts to sing the beginning song and the 7,000-strong congregation joins in."

His return comes amid financial problems for his ministry, the resignations of several key administrators and a report that several top-level officials will leave Jimmy Swaggart Bible College, part of the ministry's complex outside Baton Rouge.

Although Swaggart did not specify his sin when he stepped down Feb. 21, Assemblies of God officials have said he was photographed with a woman outside a New Orleans motel.

Marvin Gorman, a defrocked minister who contends in a lawsuit that Swaggart ruined his New Orleans ministry with false rumors of adulterous affairs, reportedly hired private detectives to take the pictures.

A prostitute has said that Swaggart paid her to pose nude for him. The woman, Debra Murphree, is scheduled to be the subject of a photo spread and interview in Penthouse magazine next month.

Swaggart's hiatus is in accordance with a three-month suspension ordered by the Louisiana council of the Assemblies shortly after his confession.

National leaders of the denomination, however, overruled the state council and ordered Swaggart out of the pulpit and off television for at least a year. Swaggart refused and the denomination dismissed him after he submitted his resignation.

JIMMY SWAGGART

Swaggart, who has avoided preaching on television during his exile, recently appeared on a telethon in which he said the ministry needs $6 million, much of it to pay stations that carry his programs.

"We are scraping the bottom," Swaggart said on the telecast.

Ministry officials refuse to say how much was raised. However, Swaggart's appearance led three cable television outlets — the PTL network, the Christian Broadcasting Network and Black Entertainment Television — to cancel his programs. The three networks reach a total of about 70 million homes.

On Friday, the Baton Rouge State-Times reported that a number of top-level administrators plan to leave the Bible college.

Several weeks ago, at least six high-ranking officials of Swaggart's ministry left their posts, including two who started their own churches in the Baton Rouge area.

Ministry officials have been silent about the reports, but the ministry's magazine makes it clear there are financial problems. An advertisement boosting seven crusades scheduled by Swaggart for the rest of the year notes that one in June in Toronto has been postponed.

In the back of the magazine, a four-page spread notes that such items as a videotape of "The Best of Jimmy Swaggart" and record albums of Swaggart's songs are available at cut-rate prices. "We've slashed prices on overstocked ministry items — save up to 50 percent!" the advertisement proclaims.

Despite the problems, Swaggart said he is confident his ministry will survive and prosper.

'Kickback' Deals For Eye Doctors Cited In Report

By JEFF BARKER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Changes in the way Medicare reimburses for cataract surgery has spawned "kickback arrangements" between eye care professionals and led to shoddy patient treatment, a Republican congressional report said Saturday.

The Inspector General's Office of the Department of Health and Human Services also has been investigating the referral arrangements, and says legislation may be necessary to change the system.

The problem stems largely from a 7-year-old law permitting optometrists to be paid by Medicare for post-surgical cataract work for which Medicare had previously only reimbursed ophthalmologists, according to a report of the Republican staff of the Special Senate Committee on Aging.

Ophthalmologists are eye surgeons trained in medical school and residency programs. Optometrists, who do not need medical-school training but attend their own training programs, examine eyes, diagnose cataracts and other ailments and prescribe corrective lenses.

The new reimbursement policy, which was clarified in Medicare guidelines issued last year, has made optometrists and ophthalmologists increasingly reliant on each other for business, and has "created the opportunity for highly questionable referral arrangements and kickbacks," the report said.

"Some ophthalmologists, who depend on optometrists for patient referrals, are being held hostage by optometrists who refuse to refer patients unless they are guaranteed that the patient will be returned to them for postoperative care," the report said.

It said the "kickback arrangements" have placed profits ahead of medical judgment, sometimes encouraging inappropriate surgery or poor postoperative care by optometrists performing work for which they are not properly trained.

The report was based largely on some three-dozen case studies in Florida, New York, Pennsylvania, California, Utah and other states. The case examples are to be presented along with the report at a hearing in Philadelphia on Monday with Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., as chairman.

Also at the hearing, Bryan Mitchell, deputy inspector general of HHS, is to present preliminary findings of an investigation into the questionable referral arrangements.

So far, the probe has found that 28 percent of ophthalmologists interviewed permit optometrists to do cataract follow-up care, according to an advance copy of Mitchell's statement.

Those physicians perform a "significantly greater" number of cataract surgeries than their counterparts who do their own postoperative work, Mitchell's prepared testimony said.

This year, some 1.3 million Americans are expected to have cataract surgery, in which an artificial lens is placed in the eye.

The American Academy of Ophthalmology said in a statement to the committee that while it was tempting to make deals to surrender postoperative cataract care, "the overwhelming majority of our members insist on taking care of their patients from the pre-operative work-up through the postoperative recovery period."

Harvey Hanlen of the American Optometric Association told the panel there was "a very legitimate and natural referral relationship" between optometrists and ophthalmologists in cataract work.

He said his organization believes that referrals "motivated solely on some 'quid pro quo' economic agreement have no place in the system."

A bill signed into law last year prohibits payments made in return for steering Medicare patients to a specific health professional for care. However, final regulation implementing the law have not yet been issued.

Teacher Is Charged In Topless Incident

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Sarasota County's teacher of the year has been charged with having five 17-year-old girls dance topless for him in a class.

David John Schram, 34, also faces a count of battery for holding one of the student's breasts Feb. 9 during class at Booker High School in Sarasota, police said.

Schram, who has taught at Booker for 10 years and directs the school's Visual and Performing Arts Center, refused comment Friday as he left the Sarasota County Jail after posting $250 bail.

In an affidavit, police Detective Terry Winkel said that during dance and drama classes on Feb. 8 and 9, Schram instructed the five girls "to take off their tops." Schram "then instructed the students to dance in place while he walked around viewing their performance."

A boy student also was instructed to remove his clothes above the waist during the rehearsals. The five girls and a boy were the only students present, Winkel said.

Because the girls danced "with their breasts exposed while he watched, (Schram) committed the act of sexual performance of a child," according to the warrant issued by Circuit Judge James Parker.

The personnel director for the Sarasota County School Board, Walter Pierce, said detectives contacted school officials after one of the students and her parents filed a complaint with police in March.

Pierce said Schram has been suspended with pay at least until the June 7 meeting of the Sarasota County School Board.

Schram was selected from 34 candidates as Sarasota County Teacher of the Year for the 1987-1988 school year.

Runway Roundup

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Airport employees had to moonlight as wranglers when about 50 cows wandered onto a runway and temporarily disrupted operations.

Police Sgt. Frank Rute said the cattle strayed onto Santa Fe Municipal Airport on Friday from grazing land to the west that the U.S. Bureau of Land Management leases to ranchers.

Airport workers, sheriff deputies and city and county animal control officers herded the cattle to an area near the city's sewage treatment plant. Rute said airport security officers stood guard until the owners were contacted.

Airport operations were temporarily disrupted while the animals were corralled.

Highway Distraction

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A nude woman walking along a road caused two distracted drivers to crash Saturday, then took off in the ambulance that came to their aid and drove the wrong way on a freeway until she hit a bread truck, police said.

No one was seriously hurt in the accidents that began about dawn, said Lt. Dave Waterman.

Paramedics who came to the scene of the first accident found a nude woman lying in the street. They put her in the ambulance, and when they went to check on the men, she drove off in the vehicle, authorities said.

Valerie Morales, 27, of Los Angeles was arrested by a passing Los Angeles County sheriff's unit after the ambulance, heading northbound in the southbound lanes of the Glendale Freeway, ran into a bread truck, Waterman said.

Ms. Morales was booked for investigation of felony drunken driving and driving without the owner's consent.

Leadership Shakeup Speculated At Communist Party Conference

By GIRARD C. STEICHEN
Associated Press Writer

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — A leading Communist Party member on Saturday defended his plan to allow independent trade unions and political groups in a spirited attack on the ideals of aging party boss Janos Kadar.

Imre Pozsgay, a Central Committee member and leading reformist in the party, called for a "broadening of civil law" to give Hungarians more of a voice in national affairs.

Pozsgay made his speech to a national Communist Party conference amid speculation that Kadar would be replaced by Premier Karoly Grosz.

There was also speculation that Kadar, who has run the party for 31 years, would be appointed party president, a ceremonial post created to ease him into retirement. The 75-year-old Hungarian leader has been under pressure from many reformists to resign.

On Friday, Kadar lauded the benefits of single-party rule and condemned demands for political change that he said would undermine party control.

Kadar's conservative assault was clearly aimed at Pozsgay and other advocates of political change who have expressed support for independent political and trade union groups in Hungary.

Pozgay launched his defense.

"We need a new socialist pluralism so that we can work to make socialism more attractive, a socialism based on individual responsibility," Pozsgay said.

"We must do away with barriers, or barriers will destroy us."

Hungary's first independent trade union was formed last week, and a growing number of other groups are seeking official recognition outside the umbrella of the Communist Party.

Pozsgay on Saturday reaffirmed his support for changes to the constitution that would guarantee the independence of interest groups outside the party.

He also said Saturday that Hungary was considering merging the posts of party general secretary and premier in a move that could lead to Kadar's ouster.

"This could happen provisionally, although I am not certain that it will," Pozsgay said. "We have gone further than than we expected."

Earlier Saturday, Grosz, 57, told the delegates that the party "should break with the practice of secretiveness, self-isolation and inflexible working style."

While he affirmed the role of the Communist Party leadership, Grosz said the party must "rid itself of ideological prejudices" if economic and political reforms are to succeed.

Kadar pioneered economic reforms that led Hungary to relative prosperity in the late 1960s and 1970s but is increasingly blamed for recent economic setbacks and for resistance to political change.

A Western diplomatic source, who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity, said there appeared to be "a growing consensus" within the party that Kadar would be asked to step dowen.

But the diplomat said Kadar, who has led the party since the Kremlin crushed an anti-Soviet uprising in 1956, may still have considerable support among the party's old guard.

Personnel changes are not expected to be announced until after the conference concludes Sunday.

Reformists say economic reforms will fail without sweeping political changes.

Inflation in Hungary reached 18.5 percent in the first quarter of this year, and its gross foreign debt has mounted steadily to $18 billion.

Rally Held To Honor Repression Victims

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of people gathered in the capital of the Lithuanian republic Saturday for an official rally paying tribute to those who suffered repression under dictator Josef V. Stalin, Tass said.

The official news agency said the rally in Vilnius honored the "innocent victims of the violation of laws during the years of Stalin's personality cult." It said the gathering drew old Communist revolutionaries as well as people "notorious for their extremist actions," a reference to Lithuanian activists.

The rally apparently was intended to head off unofficial ceremonies marking the 40th anniversary of the deportation of thousands of Lithuanians from their homeland to Siberia and the northern Soviet Union.

Lithuania was part of the Russian Empire until the 1917 Bolshevik revolution, when it gained its independence. The Soviet military again took control of Lithuania in 1940 as a result of a secret agreement between Stalin and German dictator Adolf Hitler.

In February, a large police presence stifled efforts by nationalists to mark the anniversary of the republic's declaration of independence after World War I.

The United States does not recognize Lithuania and the two other republics on the northern Baltic Sea, Latvia and Estonia, as parts of the Soviet Union.

Lithuanian groups in the United States have announced that activists intend to hold religious services, processions and a rally in Vilnius on Sunday.

They said the activities would mark the 40th anniversary of the largest in a series of deportations from Lithuania under Stalin in which 320,000 to 520,000 were forcibly moved to camps.

Party Leaders Fired

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist Party authorities on Saturday fired the leaders of the southern republics of Armenia and Azerbaijan in an apparent effort to prevent more of the ethnic turmoil that has killed at least 32 people this year.

The official Tass news agency said Karen Demirchyan, first secretary of Armenia's Communist Party, was ousted during a meeting of his republic's Central Committee in the capital city of Yerevan.

Azerbaijani party First Secretary Kyamran Bagirov was fired during a meeting in Baku, the Azerbaijani capital, Tass said.

Both meetings were attended by Politburo officials in charge of party organization, ideology and propaganda, a sign of Moscow's concern about events in the two southern republics and its direct involvement in the changes.

The Kremlin's No. 2 man, Yegor K. Ligachev, addressed the Baku meeting. Politburo member Alexander N. Yakovlev, party propaganda chief and a key adviser to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, spoke to the meeting in Yerevan. Tass gave no details about what either man said.

Tass said Demirchyan and Bagirov were retired for health reasons. But their replacement likely reflected dissatisfaction in Moscow with their failure to contain the dispute over control of the mountainous Nagorno-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan.

Armenians are demanding that the Armenian-dominated region be annexed to their republic.

Shiite Violence Leaves 7 Dead; Official Says Troops Set To Move

By MOHAMMED SALAM
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite guerrillas from rival militias rocketed each other's positions Saturday in the slums of south Beirut after Iranian efforts to end 16 days of bloodletting collapsed. Police said seven people were killed.

In a separate conflict, two warring factions of the Palestine Liberation Organization called a cease-fire after battles that killed five people.

A Lebanese leader said Syrian troops would soon enter the slums to quell the struggle between the Shiite militias — the Iranian-backed Hezbollah and pro-Syrian Amal.

"The doors of the suburbs are open for the Syrian army," Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah said in an interview with the conservative Beirut daily Al-Anwar that will appear Sunday. An advance copy was made available to The Associated Press.

"No party in the suburbs intends to confront the Syrians," Fadlallah, Hezbollah's spiritual guide, was quoted as saying. He also denied there were Iranian Revolutionary Guards fighting alongside Hezbollah.

His statement coincided with a another by a spokesman for the Syrian command in Beirut who said: "We're knocking on the door of the suburbs. If it doesn't open, we shall break it."

Police said seven people died and 45 were wounded in howitzer and mortar clashes Saturday between Hezbollah and Amal. At least 260 people have been killed and 859 wounded since May 6 when fighting broke out in the slums where most of the 18 Western hostages, including nine Americans, are believed held.

The warren of narrow alleys and cement-block shanties is a longtime Shiite stronghold.

In the Palestinian conflict, police said rival guerrilla bands observed a cease-fire in the nearby refugee camps of Chatilla and Bourj el-Barajneh after a night of clashes in which five people were killed and 45 wounded.

The truce was reached after Yasser Arafat's Fatah, the main PLO faction, dislodged Syrian-backed dissidents of Col. Saeed Mousa's Fatah-Uprising from most of their positions in the camps.

Mousa's defeated followers sought refuge in Syrian-controlled territory on the edges of the shantytowns, a police spokesman said.

Assem Kanso, leader of the Baath party, the Lebanese chapter of Syria's ruling party, said the Syrians will move into south Beirut soon, "and, God willing, sooner than expected."

He announced that orders to move into south Beirut might be issued in the next 24 hours. He said the Syrian deployment will be "peaceful so that there will be no more blood and destruction."

Syria massed 7,500 troops and 500 tanks and armored vehicles around the slums after Hezbollah overran Amal positions to seize control of 90 percent of the urban battleground.

In Barcelona, Spain, the daily La Vanguardia quoted Fadlallah as saying, "For the safety of residents, we have accepted that the Syrians deploy in the suburbs."

Syria began threatening to move into the shantytown almost immediately after the violence began.

The fighting persisted despite eight cease-fire accords brokered by an Iranian mediator, acting Foreign Minister Ali Mohammed Besharati.

Efforts to contain the fighting then shifted to the Syrian capital of Damascus, where Besharati delivered a message to Syrian President Hafez Assad from Iran's president, Ali Khamenei.

Syria's official media, reporting the Friday night meeting, did not disclose the contents of the message.

In a related development, Kuwait's Al-Qabas newspaper, quoting an unnamed European foreign ministry report, said two of the Shiites who hijacked a Kuwaiti jetliner last month died in the south Beirut fighting.

It said Qassem Zaineddin and Nihad Khashman, or his brother Fuad, were killed in a clash Monday night.

It said all three were involved in the April 5 hijacking, which ended when the Shiites surrendered in return for safe passage to an unidentified country. Two passengers were killed in the hijacking.

Brig. Gen. Ghazi Kenaan, chief of Syria's military intelligence in Lebanon, returned to Beirut on Saturday after consulting with military commanders in Damascus on the crisis, a source at the Syrian command in Beirut said.

The Syrian Arab News Agency said that Vernon Walters, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, met with Assad in Damascus on Saturday and discussed "the situation in the region."

It gave no other details. But Walters, who arrived in Damascus Friday, had been expected to discuss Syrian efforts to free the hostages held in Beirut.

Syrian officers said the decision to move into south Beirut to quell the fighting had been delayed to give political efforts a chance to arrange a settlement.

Syria, the main power broker in Lebanon, is Iran's main Arab ally in its war against Iraq, a longtime rival of the Syrians.

But Damascus has been alarmed by Iran's efforts through Hezbollah to dominate Lebanon's 1.2 million Shiites, the country's largest single sect.

COMRADE BURIAL — Shiite Moslem Amal militiamen carry the coffin of an armed comrade for burial Saturday in Beirut, Lebanon. The man was killed during the 16 days of dueling between Syrian-backed Amal and pro-Iranian Hezbollah fighters for control of the 16-square-mile Shiite enclave. Spokesmen say 258 people have died and 855 have been wounded during the conflict. (AP Laserphoto)

Moslems Die In Clashes

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Up to 14 people were reported killed Saturday in gunfights between rival Moslem groups in northern Pakistan, and a U.S. official said foreign tourists were being evacuated from the region.

Joanne Clifton of the U.S. Information Service said Pakistan had promised to fly 94 tourists from the remote northern town of Gilgit to Islamabad in a military transport plane Sunday if weather prevented civilian flights.

In a phone interview from Gilgit, Clifton said Pakistan International Airlines canceled at least two flights Saturday because of heavy cloud cover in the rugged Korakoram mountains.

U.S. Embassy sources in Islamabad, speaking on conditon of anonymity, said they had heard that 10 to 14 people were killed in violence between Sunni and Shiite Moslems. Ms. Clifton said no foreigners were reported among the victims. Pakistani officials claimed no knowledge of the situation.

Combined Western sources said fighting between the two groups had been going on as long as a week, but first reports reached the capital late Friday.

Reports conflicted on the duration and details of the fighting.

They indicated clashes had occurred in Gilgit's central bazaar and several roads leading out of town.

Pakistan's 90 million population is mainly Sunni, with an estimated 15 percent Shiite.

The rivals occasionally clash, but there was no word on the cause of the latest fighting.

Gilgit is a tourist resort 155 miles north of Islamabad.

Two Of Jet Hijackers Killed

KUWAIT (AP) — Two of the Shiite Moslem militants who hijacked a Kuwaiti jetliner last month have been killed in fighting between Shiite militias in the slums of south Beirut, the Al-Qabas daily reported Saturday.

The newspaper, quoting a report by a European foreign ministry that it did not identify, said one of the men killed was Qassem Zaineddin. The paper said the other man was either Nihad Khashman or his brother, Fuad.

Reagan Administration Is Still Pursuing A Deal With Noriega

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan met with his top advisers Saturday to discuss policy on Panama, but an administration official said the 2½-hour session produced no deal to get Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega out of power.

"There is no definitive deal or agreement or understanding" with Noriega, said the official, who spoke on condition he not be identified. In response to a question, he said also that "it is safe to assume" there is no tentative deal, either, "at this stage."

Roman Popadiuk, deputy White House press secretary for foreign affairs, said there were "no immediate plans" for Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Michael G. Kozak, who returned from Panama on Friday after talks with Noriega, to return to Panama.

"He will remain in Washington for consultation," Popadiuk said. Kozak attended the meeting with the president and reported on his negotiations, the spokesman said. He added that no further meeting between Kozak and the president had been set.

Popadiuk said the president and his advisers met in the residential quarters of the White House. The president left the meeting for a few minutes toward its end to deliver his weekly radio address.

Popadiuk said the president convened the meeting "to review the Panama situation and hear Deputy Assistant Secretary Kozak's report on his discussions in Panama."

Also attending were Vice President George Bush, Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Secretary of Defense Frank C. Carlucci, White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr., Attorney General Edwin Meese III, Deputy White House Chief of Staff Kenneth Duberstein, National Security Adviser Colin Powell, Deputy National Security Adviser John Negroponte, CIA Director William Webster, Under Secretary of State Michael H. Armacost and Elliott Abrams, the assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs.

Baker, in an interview with Cable News Network that was taped Friday for broadcast Saturday, said, "I believe in the final analysis that Gen. Noriega will leave — will leave power and leave the country — but that is not a done deal."

Baker said the indictment of Noriega was "a useful part of the technique to try to get Noriega so that he can no longer use the government of Panama, the armed forces of Panama, to advance the cause of his own drug trafficking and trading."

Bush and Baker were asked as they left the meeting whether a deal had been made. Neither man responded to the questions called out by reporters.

Under an arrangement described by a U.S. official on Friday, Noriega would transfer power to an interim government that he would have a hand in selecting. Then Noriega would leave the country for nine months, returning after presidential elections are held in May 1989, said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The United States would drop federal drug trafficking charges pending against Noriega.

Dismissing the drug indictment and giving Noriega a role in setting up the transition government were said to be the elements that some administration figures were having the most difficulty swallowing.

That difficulty was reflected earlier in the week by an 86-10 Senate vote against any concession that would lead to dismissal of the drug smuggling indictments.

The State Department view is that dropping the indictments against Noriega is a defensible bargaining position because he cannot be extradited so long as he remains in Panama.

The Reagan administration has been urging Noriega to step down since the indictments were returned on Feb. 5, and has since refused to recognize the legitimacy of the government headed by a Noriega-approved president.

The United States imposed massive economic sanctions against Panama hoping to break Noriega's grip on power, but the strategy, so far, has failed.

Council Negligent

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — King Birendra dissolved the National Sports Council after a government report blamed the group for failing to control a stadium stampede in which more than 70 people died, the royal palace said.

The action backed the request from Prime Minister Marich Man Singh Shrestha. A government commission found the organization negligent in its ownership, control and protection of the stadium and for failing to keep the stadium gates in proper condition.

On March 12, panic broke out in the crowd watching a soccer match when a hailstorm began suddenly. Fans rushed toward the exit gates — which were all locked except for one exit — and more than 70 people were killed and 100 injured in the stampede.

The government earlier dissolved the All-Nepal Football Association, which organized the match, saying it failed to handle the incident properly.

Emperor's Relatives Are Freed After Prison Stints

By MICHELLE FAUL
Associated Press Writer

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — The government Saturday freed seven female members of the former royal family imprisoned since a 1974 Marxist revolution ended the 44-year rule of Emperor Haile Selassie.

The women were greeted by relatives in a tearful reunion in the courtyard of the police headquarters, said an East bloc journalist who witnessed the release.

The government-owned Ethiopia News Agency announced the release in a short statement.

"The State Council of the People's Democratic Republic of Ethiopia today granted amnesty to seven members of the former royal family of the defunct feudal regime," the agency said.

Freed Saturday were Selassie's 79-year-old daughter, Tenagne-Work Haile-Selassie; her four daughters, Aida, Hirut, Seble and Sofia; her daughter-in-law, Sara Gizaw; and Zuriash-Work Gebere-Egziabher, identified only as a relative of the princess.

No ages were available on the other royals.

The release of the seven princesses leaves three grandsons of Haile Selassie still behind bars. All are sons of Tenagne-Work Haile-Selassie. They are believed to range in age from 27 to 40 years.

In addition to his daughter, Haile Selassie claimed three other children, all sons. Two of the sons have been dead for more than 20 years.

The crown prince, Merid Azmatch Asfa-Wossen Haile Selassie, 71, lives in London. He had been in London for nearly two years undergoing treatment for diabetes when his father's reign ended.

They princesses spent nearly 14 years of detention in the women's section of the Central Prison in Addis Ababa.

Over the years, a number of Ethiopians living in the West have passed themselves off as the crown prince or a princess of the Ethiopian royal family.

The government kept the jailed royals under tight wraps, and it was only in 1986 that they were permitted outside their cells to receive regular medical and dental treatment in hospitals in Addis Ababa. Before then, physicians were taken to the prison to treat the royals.

The 10 relatives were never brought to trial. Amnesty International, the London-based human rights group, listed them among its prisoners of conscience in Ethiopia, and the government had ignored appeals for their release.

In Britain, conservative members of Parliament had led an international campaign to win the royals' freedom.

"This has come about because of the buildup of international pressure in which we played our part," said David Harris, one of the leaders in the campaign.

"It was an act of great inhumanity that they had been locked up without trial and without charge," he said. "This is wonderful news and brings to an end one of the worst cases of imprisonment without trial in modern history."

Harris said the princess were held under "appalling conditions." He said Princess Tenagne-Work suffers from stomach ulcers and chronic rheumatism, one of her daughters is partially paralyzed, another has skin cancer and a third has hepatitis.

Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, reported "that if the princesses wanted to come to Britain, no bar will be placed in their way." The agency did not attribute those comments to any government official.

Haile Selassie, who received worldwide attention in the 1930s when Italy occupied his country, ruled Ethiopia for 44 years as head of one of the world's last feudal states. He was deposed on Sept. 12, 1974 by a military clique that established a Marxist government.

The emperor, who had made Ethiopia the United States' strongest ally in Africa, was last seen alive climbing into the back seat of a Volkswagen Beetle parked outside his main palace in the center of Addis Ababa.

He died under obscure circumstances 11 months later while in detention, and the government buried his body in a secret location.

The military leaders who dethroned Haile Selassie, led by Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam, swung Ethiopia into the Soviet Union's camp and made the East Africa country Moscow's closest ally in Africa.

CASH BACK

How Did Over 100 of Your Friends and Neighbors Receive Cash for Saying "Good-bye" to High Heating and Cooling Bills?

They did it by replacing that old inefficient heating/cooling equipment with high-efficient equipment that qualified for Greenville Utilities CASH BACK rebates.

Whether you are remodeling or building a new home, you can get a CASH BACK Rebate ranging from $75.00 to $400.00 per piece of equipment. The amount depends on the type and efficiency of the equipment you select.

All GUC residential customers are eligible to apply.

If you'd like a free information packet on a CASH BACK Rebate, call Greenville Utilities Energy Services Office at 752-7166.

This program is funded by the North Carolina Department of Commerce, Energy Division, from money made available through Exxon oil overcharges.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Right Questions Haven't Been Asked

Haste and hazardous waste can produce a noxious mixture. Maybe even deadly.

And for Pitt County, the effects of such a combination can be economically and environmentally disastrous. For this reason, the community's leaders should make sure a proposal to locate an eight-state waste site in neighboring Edgecombe County is explored judiciously, not impulsively.

No railroading should occur on an issue of this magnitude; a waste disposal facility is no theme park. The surprise proposal and hurried scheduling of public hearings implies Edgecombe County intends to settle the question quickly. That kind of haphazard decision-making must be prevented. There's no room for mistakes with hazardous waste.

The Pitt County Commission should appoint a task force immediately to explore Edgecombe's slick sales pitch to host a dump. That group, along with the county's lawmakers, should be charged with asking pertinent questions about the serious risks posed by having a hazardous waste facility on the community's doorstep. Their responsibility is to make sure the issue is discussed with care, not recklessness.

It is also the duty of Pitt's public officials to ensure the priority for locating a waste site is safety, environmental feasibility and effect on the community, not merely economic incentive.

In addition, leaders should insist the proposal be handled as the regional issue it is; that those who share the risks of a waste facility — like Pitt County — are also included in decision-making and benefits.

The environmental liabilities are clear. A low-level nuclear waste site could threaten Pitt County's groundwater supply if something went wrong, just as it would threaten Edgecombe's. An incinerator could pollute Pitt's air resources just as quickly as it could Edgecombe's.

The aesthetic and economic side effects are less obvious but equally ominous. having the "waste mecca" of the Southeast in the county's backyard could harm industrial recruiting. If all other aspects of competition were equal, would an industry choose to locate next door to a hazardous waste facility or 200 miles from one? Residential growth can be similarly affected by the unpleasant notion of having nuclear and hazardous waste for neighbors.

Clearly, the movement of the issue should be slowed to a reasonable pace and the interests of Pitt County prominently considered in decision-making. Not only have the appropriate questions not been answered, they haven't even been asked.

Good Investment

Financial Support For Good Ideas

Some economic development assistance for the state's rural counties is in sight with the creation of $100 million loan program to be backed by the North Carolina Rural Economic Development Center.

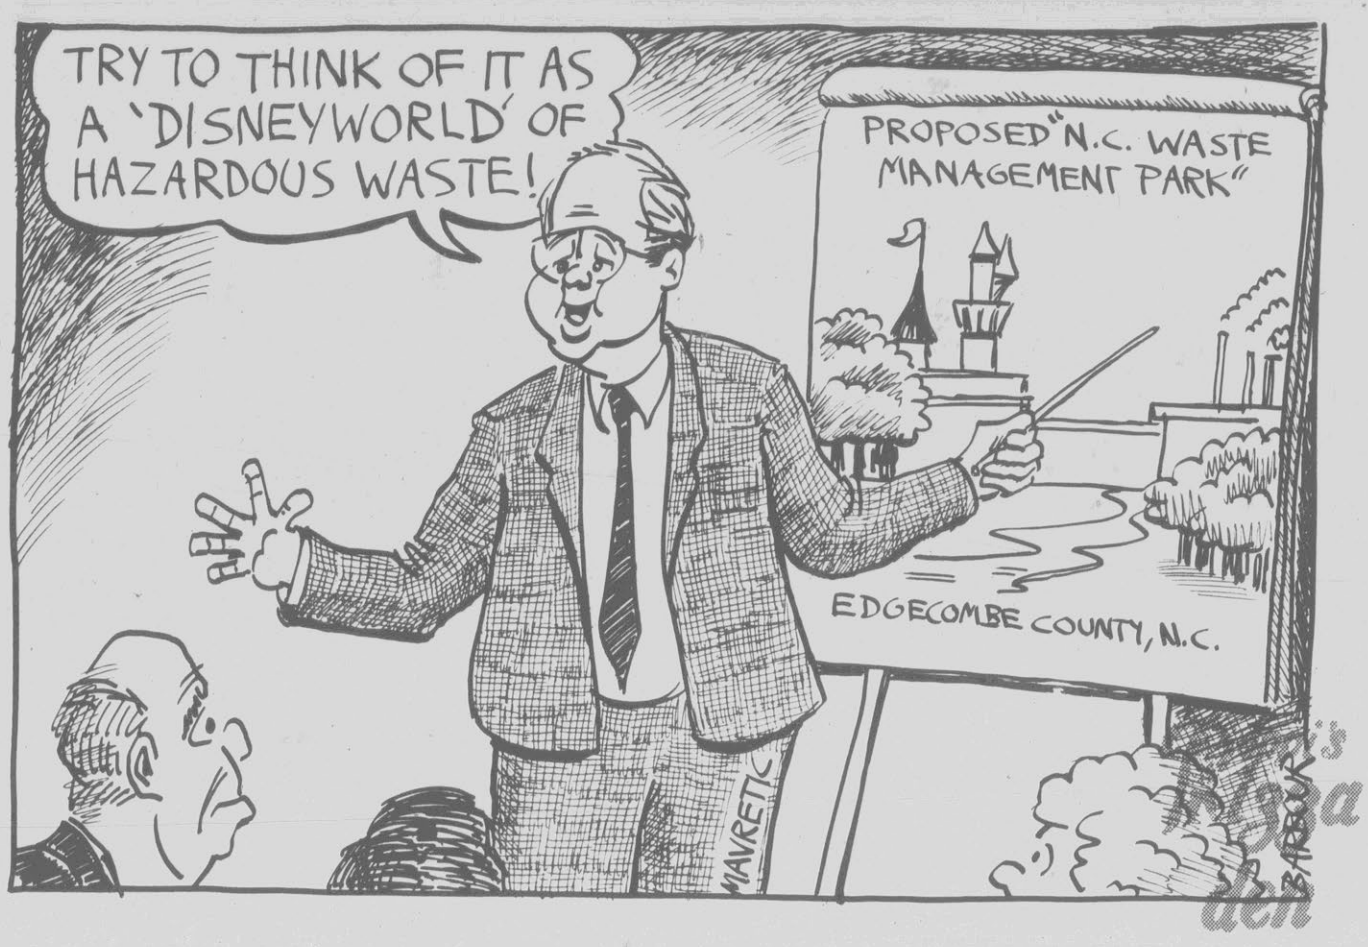
Center Chairman William Friday said the idea is to provide funds to "entrepreneurs with good ideas." The North Carolina Enterprise Corp. will include investments from the private sector as well as state funding.

By spreading the risks, the corporation will be able to provide loans for firms which cannot obtain conventional financing. The loans will be available in 91 counties — those which do not have a city of at least 50,000 population. While the loans are expected to be in the $100,000 to $200,000 range, they could go up to $1 million.

It's a safe wager that the corporation will have a good track record in making successful loans, as seen a decade from now. There are many counties in North Carolina that haven't successfully weathered the shift of industry to metropolitan areas and the decline in farm employment. There are many individuals there who are ready and willing to provide the ideas that can lead to new employment, yet they cannot obtain the financing.

Many eastern North Carolina industries were begun by people with ideas who started production in back shop operations. It is difficult to compete in the same manner now in a world of international conglomerates. But with reasonable financing some of today's ideas can be turned into productive situations.

It is not easy to find financing to take a chance on rural North Carolina areas even though the people living in those areas are willing to try new ideas to improve their economic situation. Now the state may have found a way to get them started. The people of North Carolina are always a good investment.



A Bridge Just For Crossing

Alvin Taylor

Sunday Morning Notes

By the mid 1990s motorist of Pitt County will have a new view of the Tar River.

It is projected that a controlled access northwest bypass will be completed by 1995 and it will include two bridges to take traffic across the waterway on its route from the U.S. 264 west of Greenville to U.S. 13-N.C. 11 at the Burroughs Wellcome plant site.

Thus the natural barrier of the Tar, which hampered development of north Pitt County for 200 years, will become less of an obstacle. Greenville was located on the banks of the Tar because the river offered transportation. However, it also split the county and development tended to the south rather than the north.

No doubt the Indians who preceded us easily traversed the river in canoes. The white man, however, had heavier loads on mules and wagons and eventually ferries took them across. Then there was a road bridge at Pitt Street in Greenville which was later replaced by a bridge on Greene. The railroad came with its trestle across the Tar near the old power plant.

Now in Pitt County there are bridges at Grimesland, between Falkland and Belvoir, on Memorial Drive in Greenville and at the Eastern bypass.

The new plans call for a pair of bridges west of the city. Because of the angle and the width of the river there they will be longer than most. By driving across must of us will see a view of the river that we have never before seen.

That and future expansions can change the make-up of Pitt County. There are plans for replacing the Greene Street bridge with two bridges, one in the original location on Pitt Street and the other where the present bridge stands on Greene.

In this era of the motor vehicle, rivers can't stand in the way of people getting where they want to go.

Historically bridges in Pitt County have meant access to the river. Fishermen could put in small boats there and fish to their hearts content. That likely won't be the case at the northwest bypass bridges. The right-of-way will be fenced and there will be no place to park, much less launch a boat. Motorists can only ride across and look.

If, however, you are compelled to put a boat on the river, there is a boat launch at the Pillsbury bridge (between Falkland and Belvoir) right now and there is also one at the old Port Terminal, as well as at the Greenville Town Common. Getting a small boat into the Tar is no problem.

Public Forum

To the editor:

As a very concerned citizen of Pitt County as well as a health care worker and mother, I would like to address the nuclear waste disposal site issue now being waged in Edgecombe County.

This is not an issue to be taken lightly because of a few financial gains such as a new sewage system.

The risks of such a waste disposal "park," if weighed against the benefits, would in the long run certainly outweigh the gain. Such risks as water pollution, air pollution and the constant threat of nuclear waste leakage should be considered when a community embarks on a project such as this.

I ask that Edgecombe County citizens consider a safer solution for alleviating their financial problems and consider the future health of their children and the children of surrounding counties.

Jacqueline Ragland, R.N.
Route 1, Bethel

To the editor:

Wednesday evening I attended the public meeting in Tarboro hoping to hear a discussion about the pros and cons of locating a Low-Level Radiation Waste facility in Edgecombe County. Instead, the audience listened without opportunity for response to unanimous rhetorical endorsements by the commissioners for the "once in a lifetime" economic opportunities in store for the county if they accept, followed by brief allowances that "you, the people, should decide for yourselves."

As Tuesday's Reflector editorial cautioned, the speakers addressed strictly local (Edgecombe County) implications of the plan, except for the improvement of US 64 beyond county lines. I was struck by the very minimal discussion of environmental impact and potential health risks posed by an LLRW dump. These topics took a noticeable back seat to economic enticement. Certainly, the jobs and money that such industry would bring to the area deserve careful consideration, but a comprehensive evaluation of all costs involved is in order. Why has no other county in North Carolina volunteered to host the dump, given such incentives?

The commissioners invited all citizens to visit the existing dump in Barnwell, S.C. — except children under 18 and pregnant women, as prohibited by South Carolina law. How safe will pregnant women and children be just outside the waste "park" in Conetoe? Will industries which are heavy producers of hazardous waste locate in the adjoining industrial park? Is this the "shining future" we want for eastern North Carolina?

This issue truly deserves regional community attention. Living just miles downstream from a site volunteered for one of the nation's largest — if not the largest — facilities of this kind, it is at least prudent to ponder more than the economics involved. Pitt citizens, please consider attending a public hearing May 26 at 7:30 p.m. at Edgecombe Community College in Tarboro.

Ed Meese And The '60s

Haynes Johnson

WASHINGTON — Once again, the nation is awash in nostalgia for supposedly vanished glories of a decade remembered as more wonderful than it was. This time, it is the '60s.

Each morning this week, for instance, CBS has devoted extensive retrospective coverage to that period, and several new books are commemorating it. The nation experienced a similar glow about the '50s, which Hollywood movies and television sitcoms still depict as a benign, happy time when all America was innocent, tranquil and content.

The '50s were anything but — a terrible decade marked by character assassination, racism and sexism, pathological fears of alien, and thus dangerous, doctrines growing out of the worst of Cold War mentality; digging of bomb shelters; bloody beginnings of the civil rights revolution with sit-ins and freedom marches in the South; no-win war in Korea that left its veterans feeling at least as unappreciated by the country at large as those who later served in Vietnam.

Much the same can be said about the '60s, but more so. It was our most turbulent and violent decade and, for millions of Americans, a destroyer of hopes and dreams. Twenty years later, we're still digging our way out of the social and political wreckage of that time.

A new intolerance arose in the '60s that stood in marked contrast to earlier gains in civil rights and liberties. It was a self-righteous intolerance, born of fury and hatred and hurt, that led otherwise intelligent people to brand anyone they didn't agree with — college presidents, deans, professors, soldiers, police officers — as evil. Filled with a self-vindicating sense of their superiority, they believed they had a right to take matters into their hands.

Some of the after-effects of that pervasive ugliness and divisiveness, the sheer incivility and know-nothingism of it, are with us still.

As one such symbol, I offer signs that sprouted in Washington this week and are posted strategically around the capital. "Meese is a pig," they proclaim.

Shades of the '60s. Off the wall, and off the pigs — pigs being, of course, anyone with whom you disagree.

I have been no defender of Attorney General Edwin Meese III's record — or of Ronald Reagan's, for that matter. If there is a more bumbling attorney general than Meese in the nation's history, he doesn't come to mind.

And the president's record of repeated insensitivity to ethical questions surrounding many members of his administration has been unfortunate at best and deplorable at worst. His failure to set proper public standards of conduct for them and all public servants — or even to address the subject — almost certainly will cost him dearly in history's judgment.

Still, while far from completely satisfying, the president's latest response to Meese's continuing problems is worth pondering.

In reasserting his "complete confidence" in Meese at a news conference this week, Reagan explained why he holds that conviction so ardently:

"Because there have been a great many allegations made, but nothing has been proven, and I have seen no evidence of wrongdoing on his part of the kind that is inferred in the allegations that are being kicked around. ..."

He further explained why he doesn't believe Meese should resign: "I think there's been a wave, and for quite a long time — and not just with him, but with others — in which accusation or allegation is taken to mean conviction. And there's been too much of that. In this land of ours, you are innocent until you are proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. And nothing has been proven. These allegations areh — continue to be made. This has been true of others.

However sorry Meese's record, the implicit concern for fairness in the president's statement is admirable. Yes, there must be higher standards for the nation's chief law officer than merely avoiding indictment and hiring public relations firms to defend you. But we don't need a return to the lynch-mob mentality of recent memory, either.

U.S. Vs. Panama: Which Is The Real Banana Republic?

George Gedda

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just a few weeks ago, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega seemed to be another hapless dictator teetering on the brink, about to suffer the same fate as Haiti's Jean Claude Duvalier and the Philippines' Ferdinand Marcos.

But not only has the Panamanian strongman survived, he also has been an unsettling presence on the U.S. political scene, causing George Bush to break with established policy and producing a degree of interagency turmoil which is unusual even by this administration's contentious standards.

At times, administration bureaucrats seem angrier with each other than with Noriega.

Ideas aired within the administration and the Congress on how to deal with Noriega have gone from one extreme to the other:

Why not kidnap him? How about a trade embargo against Panama? Let Noriega think the United States will invade; maybe that will scare him into exile. Since Noriega is not inclined to listen to the United States, perhaps other Latin American governments can talk him into stepping down.

Almost nothing has gone right. The State Department, after being accused of winking at Noriega's alleged drug smuggling activities for years, found itself on the defensive when its efforts to remove him came up short. Noriega even has Bush turning on the administration these days. Bush said Wednesday that, if elected, he would not "bargain with drug dealers ... whether they are on U.S. or foreign soil" — an implied criticism of government attempts to use dismissal of drug smuggling indictments to get Noriega out of power.

Bush seems intent on not allowing the Democrats to outflank him on the drug issue. His comment followed polls showing him trailing Democratic front-runner Michael Dukakis and a Senate vote that reflected strong opposition to lettin indicted drug smugglers off the hook.

Meanwhile, State Department officials are angry with Justice Department counterparts who leaked details of the secret negotiations with Noriega last week. And Pentagon officials accuse the State Department of coming up with "harebrained schemes" for an anti-Noriega plot that included use of U.S. military forces.

When White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater outlined a portion of the State Department negotiating position two weeks ago, department officials exploded, venting their anger not so much at the spokesman but at whoever authorized him to go public.

This has not been an easy time for the administration. But Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., says the critics should withhold their fire until they can come up with some workable ideas of their own for dealing with Noriega.

Almost everyone agrees the administration erred last February in leaving the impression that Noriega would soon leave. As far back as seven weeks ago, Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams was saying that Noriega was clinging to power "by his fingernails."

Yet Noriega survives, forcing the administration to make one concession after another in negotiations with him.

Initially, the administration was determined to try to force him out without promising not to extradite him once he left Panama. Dismissing the indictments was out of the question.

As the weeks passed, the administration retreated steadily, first assuring Noriega he would not be extradited, then offering to drop the indictments, then, reportedly, offering to let him return to Panama after a post-resignation period in exile.

All this has been a blow to the administration's prestige, partially erasing the memory of its 1986 successes in Haiti and the Philippines when Duvalier and Marcos fled under U.S. pressure.

Some, including a Pentagon expert on Latin America, Nestor Sanchez, had warned that Noriega could not be toppled so easily. After all, unlike Duvalier and Marcos, Noriega was commander of his country's defense forces; as long as they remained loyal, he stayed, even if Panama's economy collapsed, Sanchez correctly argued.

But the conventional wisdom in the administration last February was quite different. The combination of U.S. pressure and the strong anti-Noriega sentiment in Panama was certain to topple him, or so it was thought.

There was another seemingly favorable portent. What appeared to be the most serious blow against Noriega — the abortive bid by President Eric Arturo Delvalle to fire him — occurred on Feb. 25, the second anniversary of Ferdinand Marcos' escape to exile from the Philippines.

But while Marcos languishes in gloomy exile in Hawaii, Noriega continues to call the shots in Panama, protected by his U.S.-trained military backers.

George Gedda has covered foreign affairs for The Associated Press since 1968.

Military Wrong Answer

Caspar Weinberger

WASHINGTON — Calling for the use of the government's full military resources to put a stop to the drug trade makes for hot and exciting rhetoric. But responding to those calls, as Congress is on the verge of doing, would make for terrible national security policy, poor politics and guaranteed failure in the campaign against drugs.

Certainly, drug abuse — and the complex web of criminal activity that supports it — present the United States with a national security threat. Estimates of those who are impaired to some degree by drugs run as high as 25 million Americans. Drug dependent Americans will not be able to maintain global leadership, set the scientific and industrial pace for developed nations or guard freedom, individual liberty and democratic principle at home. Drugs further jeopardize the spread of democracy — in parts of our hemisphere, large, well armed drug organizations have gained such strength that they actually control large portions of the country. Governments that appear powerless against drug lords do not inspire confidence in democracy among their populations.

So indeed there is a threat, a serious one. But military force is not the appropriate response:

•The drug crisis is not a military threat. This should not surprise anyone. The United States faces a variety of national security threats that may not be military threats. For example, threats to the continued strength of our economy or those of key allies, insistence of Congress on deep cuts in the defense budget, possible interruptions in availability of essential raw materials could all be serious security threats. The Philippines, late in Marcos' tenure, provides an example of how an undeniable national security threat is best addressed by political, diplomatic and economic initiatives, rather than military action.

•Military intervention would have modest results at best. With more than 250 million people crossing our land borders each year, 30 million air passengers arriving on a half million commercial flights and 7.5 million containers arriving by land and sea, building an impenetrable ring around our borders is impractical with or without an "order" from Congress. As long as Americans are willing to pay for illicit drugs, criminals will be willing to run huge risks to deliver those drugs and reap great profit.

Our significant experience in drug interdiction confirms this simple fact. Last year, the U.S. intercepted a record amount of drugs and seized the boats, ships, aircraft and cars used to transport them. Forfeiture actions also confiscated millions of dollars in cash and property. Still, the flow of drugs continued at such a pace that street prices did not even reflect the huge losses or dramatically increased risk inflicted on drug traffickers. While this testifies to the size of the worldwide drug supply, it also testifies, unhappily, to the size of the domestic drug market. Expanded interdiction efforts are certainly part of the answer but in the end there is only one sure way to stop the flow of drugs to this country: Eliminate the demand for drugs.

An expanded role for the military would have undesirable political ramifications. Our constitutional tradition argues strongly against the use of the military to enforce domestic law under any circumstances short of direct threat to the legitimately established government. The military can and does interdict drug shipments on the high seas and tracks suspect aircraft. But that is a long way from having our soldiers acting as local policemen at ports of entry or conducting clandestine surveillance of domestic suspects.

There is another argument to be considered. Many of our finest men and women join the military for the purpose of defending the nation, a commitment which is largely an extension of defending people you love and care about. If military forces are turned against all our people, (because in a sweeping effort such as Congress is considering, all must be suspect) discipline, esprit, morale and recruiting will suffer drastically. Further, no military activity can be sustained without popular support. Would such support be forthcoming for drastic military action aimed at domestic targets?

•The military can help in the drug control effort — but only in carefully limited ways. Certainly the military can, and does, provide direct support (intelligence, logistics, communication, training, even command and control) to law-enforcement agencies engaged against international drug organizations. The Coast Guard itself is a military force already being heavily employed in the drug war and its unique situation, both as a military service and law enforcement agency, provides one legitimate way to increase military involvement.

Further, direct military support for other nations involved in counterinsurgency operations, even when those insurgents are drug organizations, lies within the proper scope of our military action. For example, in 1986, at the invitation of the Bolivian government, our Defense Department provided helicopters, other equipment and support to carry Bolivian troops to the laboratory sites. The resulting damage inflicted on coca processing facilities caused prices paid for coca leaf in the Beni region to drop to about one-seventh of the previous level.

The military can be, and is being, used effectively in the war against drugs, but it is not a magic cure for this cancer that infects our nation and many other nations. The solution must be found within ourselves.

Caspar Weinberger was secretary of defense from 1981 through November 1987.

Call Of The Promised Land

Rachel Patron

In 1938, my father, a wealthy industrialist in Poland, received a letter from my aunt in Palestine asking if he would like to buy a piece of land north of Tel Aviv. He looked at the walls of his living room, hung with beautiful paintings and illuminated by a crystal chandelier, and declared: "I have Palestine right here."

A year later the Germans invaded and the Promised Land of the Jews in Poland came to an end. A month later the Soviets marched in and confiscated all our worldly possessions. In 1941 they deported us to Siberia. When we returned after the war, we learned that our entire family had gone to the gas chambers: my grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins.

We settled in the city of Lodz and almost immediately my father departed for Austria, to help smuggle Jewish survivors to the West.

The day that I started school a woman approached me on the street, stared and said, "You dirty Jewish bastard. And I thought Hitler killed you all." Thus, at age 10, I became a Zionist, which for me meant escaping to a place where no one would wish me dead.

That place I saw many months later on the screen, in a Polish newsreel that preceded a movie my mother had taken me to see. I remember the announcer saying the word "Palestyna." A man with a halo of white hair strode onto the screen, waving his arms to a crowd. My mother explained that the Jews now had a state of their own and the white-haired man was the prime minister, "Pan" (Mr.) Ben-Gurion.

That summer my mother and I started on our long trek to freedom: from Lodz to Prague, Czechoslovakia, through the mountains to Salzburg, Austria, and then to a displaced persons' camp in Marseilles, France. After a two-month wait we boarded an ancient Greek schooner renamed the "Negbah." Five hundred people would have been too many on that boat, and we were 1,400.

We arrived in Israel at night. Some passengers wondered why there were no lights on shore. Because we were at war with the Arabs, someone said. Who were the Arabs? I asked my mother. And she, of blessed memory, educated in the romantic tradition of Europe, said that all she could think about was that Rudolf Valentino was an Arab in a movie called "The Sheik."

Soon my father joined us. Life settled into a pleasant routine, marred only by the fact that out there, unseen, residing beyond the white border stones, were hordes of Arabs who did not accept Israel's right to exist. We were taught that one day we would have to fight them and win.

My aunt's husband explained: While the Arabs were living here with us in Palestine, they listened to evil leaders from abroad. These strangers didn't care about the Arabs of Palestine and told them to leave their homes because soon they would return triumphant. Unfortunately, they listened, although many good Jews had begged them to stay.

I never asked why they couldn't return. It was obvious. The Arabs had lost the war and a new distribution of power was established in the Middle East. Such is life. I learned that axiom early.

When the state was founded, there were 600,000 Jews in Israel. Within the next decade the country had absorbed 1 million more, among them survivors of the Holocaust and refugees fleeing persecution in North Africa, Yemen, Iraq and Syria.

We thought we were the generation to finally make peace. We called ourselves the Canaanites, after the early settlers, long before the persecutions and the Holocaust. The name meant purity, eternal attachment to the land. We Canaanites would prevail not only in war, but in peace. All we needed was a chance to meet our Arab cousins face to face.

But as we waited, the country seemed to shrink before our eyes. Everyone was restless, claustrophobic. We couldn't visit Beirut, Damascus, Baghdad, Amman or Cairo because of the state of war between us and our neighbors. Not far from the university was the Mandelbaum Gate, shutting off East Jerusalem with rolls of barbed wire and white border stones.

One day a friend and I decided to see just how small Israel was. We walked from the beach in Natanya, through the center of town and onto a stretch of highway. We soon reached the main bus station at Beit-Lidd, and proceeded to the huge police fortress built by the British. Behind it were the white stones demarcating the border between Israel and Jordan and a sign reading: "Danger. Frontier Ahead." We covered seven miles in two hours. A few hundred yards beyond the white stones was the village of Kalkilya, the land of the Arabs.

There were several dozen Israeli Arab students at the university, and we relegated them to two groups: the fawning and the hostile. I remember two boys especially, Raif the fawning and Boudrous the hostile. Raif was gregarious. He brought more pretzels and potato chips to parties than anyone else. He told all the girls how pretty they looked, and took a course in Hebrew literature of the Enlightenment. One day he told me how lonely he was, having left a big family in a cohesive village in the Galilee. All he wanted was to have friends and be popular, even if it took extra potato chips and learning poetry toward which he felt no affinity.

Boudrous got straight A's and didn't frequent our parties. He called Raif "a dog" and said that the Arabs would triumph in the end because they were prepared to die, whereas the Jews were too attached to life. His extracurricular activity was the Arab Communist Party, which allowed him and his friends to use the democratic process to show their opposition to the Israeli government.

In 1967, after the Six-Day War, Israel conquered the West Bank and Gaza, and my generation, the Canaanites, had its chance to make peace with the Arabs. By then, I had already moved to America, but I kept in touch and visited the country every year.

Neither I nor any of my friends ever dreamed in the summer or fall of 1967 that Israelis would keep any of the conquered territories for any length of time. People who today may be diametrically opposed to each other as to what to do with the West Bank and Gaza, 20 years ago spoke out in one voice: Finally we have something that the Arabs want and we are willing to give back. Let them take it and give us peace in return.

In the meantime, waiting for peace, my friends tried to perform good deeds. One friend, a doctor, wrote that Israel was supplying the Arabs with better nutrition, vitamin supplements and clinics for prenatal and dental care. Two other friends, a history professor and a Middle Eastern studies professor, had entered into philosophical dialogues with Arab intellectuals aimed at bringing the two groups together.

But the politicians on both sides have lagged behind. For years the leaders of the Arab countries surrounding Israel and the top echelons of the Palestine Liberation Organization have demanded an immediate and unconditional return of the West Bank and Gaza; in fact, they want the victor to capitulate. The Israelis, meanwhile, began to build settlements in the occupied territories, slowly and methodically encroaching on Arab land. The incidents of Arab terror against Jews increased, and the crates of oranges the Jewish children used to send Arab children, decreased. Each side claimed the other sought its annihilation. Finally, last December, Arab frustration with the 40-year futile struggle aginst Israel erupted into a violent uprising.

As I watch the tortured images on the television screen, I feel that I know the participants on both sides. The Israelis are still torn between memories of the Holocaust, the need for security and a fierce desire to be like all people and live in peace. The love-seeking, accommodating Raifs of my youth have disappeared. Only the children of the proud and intractable Boudrouses remain, throwing stones.

It pains me to see how much they hate us, and I am sorry that so many Arabs have been killed. It's also been unbearable over the years to watch the procession of coffins draped in the Star of David, and the weeping mothers, the comrades hugging each other.

Both sides must learn to live with the inevitable. The Israelis must learn that the Palestinians want their independence, a piece of land where they can control their own destiny and pay taxes to their own treasury. And the Arabs must bid farewell to their illusions, to the notion that the Israelis are crusaders from faraway lands, or a passing yellow wind in the desert. We, the Jews, are an ancient people, who have returned to the only real estate on God's Earth to which we have been attached for nearly 4,000 years — the land of Israel.

Anti-American Mood Growing Stronger In The Philippines

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Anti-foreign, and particularly anti-American sentiment, is growing here as the nation rides the crest of national pride brought about by the ouster of Ferdinand Marcos and the rise of President Corazon Aquino.

Some Filipino and foreign observers see the phenomenon as a healthy corrective to centuries-long subservience among a people dominated by Spanish and American colonial power for about four centuries.

"The Filipinos should look to America purely as a market instead of engaging in sentimental nonsense such as partners in democracy, historical ties and special relations," wrote columnist Hector Villaneuva in the Philippine Daily Globe.

But the mood may complicate the government's relations with the United States and other foreign countries as the Philippines seeks economic and political support to rebuild after 20 years of ruinous administration under Marcos.

Anti-foreign sentiment by no means approaches the level of xenophobia in such turbulent societies as Iran or Lebanon.

Tens of thousands of Filipinos live, work and study abroad. Mixed marriages are widespread in Manila and other urban areas, and foreign goods, many of them pilfered from U.S. military exchanges, are favored by those who can afford them.

But renewed Filipino pride, which emerged after the ouster of the Marcos administration in February 1986, has been coupled with a deep resentment of foreign influence.

Politicians and newspaper columnists routinely blame foreigners for the country's economic problems, prostitution in Manila, and for bankrolling the Communist New People's Army.

Legislation is pending in Senate to ban advertising that uses foreign models or depicts "an alien and unrealistic lifestyle." Many lawmakers have called for repudiating part of the country's $29 billion foreign debt.

One Western diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity, believes the ongoing talks between the United States and the Philippines on the future of U.S. military bases here has galvanized latent anti-foreign sentiment.

A growing number of Filipinos believe the six bases should be closed because they see them not as protection from Soviet expansionism but as an odious remnant of American colonial rule.

Last month, the two governments began a review of the bases agreement, which expires in 1991. Filipino negotiators claim privately that the Americans have been "stonewalling" in the talks.

American diplomats complain privately that their Philippine counterparts are violating an agreement to keep the substance of the talks confidential.

Several leading politicians and newspaper commentators have reacted negatively to reports that Washington is putting together a multinational aid package for the Philippines.

Although terms and conditions of the package have not been announced, critics have accused the United States of using the promised aid as leverage to allow its bases to remain here.

Resentment of foreign — particularly American — influence has run deep in Philippine society for generations. In 1898, the United States helped Filipino insurgents defeat Spanish rulers, then turned against them and took over the country after a two-year guerrilla war.

In 1946, the United States granted independence to the Philippines but forced the new government to accept a trade measure under which American firms had equal rights with Filipino companies to exploit the nation's resources.

U.S. support for Marcos, including acquiesence of his 1972 declaration of martial law, revived anti-American sentiment in the generation that now wields considerable influence over the nation's government and mass media.

Columnist Hilarion Henares, writing in the Philippine Daily Inquirer, suggested American dipiomats attend the musical, titled "Yanky-Panky," to see "the hypocrisy, the deceit, the betrayal, the vicious greed, the love-hate that characterize Philippine-American relations today."

Some Western diplomats believe the current, free-wheeling mood may complicate Philippine dealings with important foreign countries, from whom the government is seeking economic aid and political support.

Last week, Manila newspapers bannered reports from unidentified military sources claiming a television crew from the British Broadcasting Corp., paid Communist rebels to stage an ambush in which 11 soldiers were killed.

23 Die In Thailand Crash

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Amphetamines were found on the body of a driver whose truck crashed through a railway crossing and struck a moving passenger train, killing at least 23 people, authorities said today.

Two cars of the train were thrown into an irrigation canal during Friday's crash in the Takhli district of central Nakhon Sawan province, about 200 miles north of Bangkok.

Police said 23 people died, but Takhli hospital officials said the bodies of 24 people were recovered. Reports said there were two other bodies at another hospital.

Doctors said 15 people remain hospitalized today.

Takhli police Sub-Lt. Wallop Kangtaratip said police found amphetamines, a stimulant, on the body of Somkid Fakkao, 20, whose truck was loaded with rocks bound for a cement factory when it crashed.

Winning Colors Takes Third

Late Lead Keys Risen Star's Win

At The Finish

Risen Star, ridden by Eddie Delahoussaye, crosses the finish line at the Preakness Stakes Saturday at Pimlico Park in Baltimore. (AP Laserphoto)

BALTIMORE (AP) — Risen Star took the lead on the final turn and went on to win the Preakness Stakes Saturday as Kentucky Derby winner Winning Colors finished third, ending hopes for a Triple Crown winner this year.

The filly was in the hunt but appeared to get roughed up in the backstretch and was carried wide on the turn.

Winning Colors finished behind Brian's Time and failed in her bid to become the first filly to win two Triple Crown races.

Thoroughbred racing's last Triple Crown winner was Affirmed in 1978.

Risen Star, ridden by Eddie Delahoussaye, was third in the Derby.

Louie Roussel III, co-owner and trainer of Risen Star, hedged all week on whether he would start the colt, despite his good showing in the Derby.

Roussel was especially reluctant because rain had made the Pimlico track muddy. However, the track condition was changed to good after the sixth race.

"This is the best racehorse I've had in 20 years and I don't want him to run on an off-track if I don't have to," Roussel said.

Risen Star ran the race of his life, carrying scale weight of 126 pounds over 1 3-16 miles in 1:56 1-5.

Risen Star's winning margin over Brian's Time was 1¼ lengths. Brian's Time was another 1¼ lengths over Winning Colors, who was 2½ lengths in front of Private Terms.

Completing the order of finish were Cefis, Regal Classic, Forty Niner, Sorry About That and Finder's Choice.

"Very tough race," said Winning Colors' jockey Gary Stevens. "Forty Niner took too much out of her. She got knocked around a lot in the backstretch. She pulled up terrific.

"We had heard that Pat Day (aboard Forty Niner) was told to go to the lead. We were getting pack wide and as we came down the backstretch it kept getting wider and wider. Jealousy is a powerful thing and it cost that man a lot more than it cost us," Stevens said.

"You saw who beat who in the end. All week long they were saying it was going to be a match race, but there were eight other horses in the race. It seems that jealousy got the best here," he said.

Risen Star, who earned $403,700 for Roussel and co-owner Ronnie Lamarque, paid $15.60, $7.80 and $4. Brian's Time, owned by Mr. and Mrs. James W. Phillips and ridden by Angel Cordero, was $6.40 and $3.60, while Eugene V. Klein's filly, was $3.40.

Trainer D. Wayne Lukas had expressed concern before the race about the safety of his roan filly because the track looked like a marsh Saturday morning.

"Hell, I'm more concerned with the safety of the horse than the race," he said, adding that she would start because "we're committed; America committed us."

The filly, who led all the way in winning the 1¼-mile Derby by a neck, ran a big race Saturday but just didn't have it in the stretch.

Winning Colors and Forty Niner broke on top, with Forty Niner in the lead when they went past the finish line the first time, with a mile to go.

The filly was second and Sorry About That was third.

These three led the nine-horse field into the clubhouse turn and onto the backstretch. Delahoussaye had Risen Star fourth at this point.

Risen Star moved into third midway down the backstretch and followed Forty Niner and Winning Colors into the final turn. Approaching the quarter pole, Delahoussaye moved Risen Star into the lead. He opened up too much of a lead for the hard-charging Brian's Time to catch him.

Before the race, Forty Niner's trainer, Woody Stephens said, "I think I'm going to leave there running with her. He may be last but he's going to hurt some others, too."

Forty Niner wasn't last, but he did take something out of the filly.

Winning Colors was the first filly to start in the Preakness since Kentucky Derby winner Genuine Risk finished second in 1980 to Codex, who was trained by Lukas.

Winning Colors went into the Preakness with three straight wire-to-wire victories.

Risen Star, who earned a start in the Kentucky Derby by winning the Louisiana Derby, boosted his record for the year to five victories in seven starts, with a second and a third.

The colt didn't get his first post-Derby workout until Friday, when he blew out three-eights of a mile in 34 4-5 seconds on a muddy track.

After that workout, Roussel, who had reluctantly entered the colt on Thursday, still would not commit himself.

Co-owner Lamarque had wanted to run the colt all along. After Roussell entered him following a discussion with Pimlico president Frank DeFrancis Wednesday night, Lamarque said, "I just can't wait to see his face when the big horse comes across the finish first, and Louie Roussel is recognized as a great trainer, which he is."

Roussel stood in the winner's circle, and said, "The thrill is the greatest in the world."

Winning Colors got some rough treatment in the Preakness, just like another filly, Genuine Risk, received eight years ago.

Winning Colors, a front-running winner in the Kentucky Derby, was beaten to the lead by Forty Niner and carried wide into the first turn and down the backstretch.

She finished third, failing in her bid to become the first filly to win two Triple Crown races.

In 1980, Codex carried Genuine Risk wide into the stretch and her backers contended that cost her a shot at racing history. A foul was claimed on behalf of Genuine Risk, but it was disallowed by track stewards. She went on to also finish second in the Belmont.

There was no foul claimed by Stevens, who rode Winning Colors at Pimlico on Saturday, but he said when the filly started into the first turn, Forty Niner "immediately bumped into me and packed me out a little ways."

"Down the backside we were about eight or nine lengths off the inside fence. We were bumping continuously. I was just trying to get my filly settled into a nice stride. Finally, at the 4½ pole, I moved out just to get away from him. And he moved out to me again further."

Jockey Pat Day, who rode Forty Niner, said he was just trying to put the Woody Stephens-trained colt where the footing was best.

"It seemed the entire week that best place to be was off the rail," Day said. "I just tried to put my horse in the best place on the track, which was three or four horses off the fence.

"The filly, of course, she was trying to hold her ground, too, and her and I bumped a few times. It probably hurt her more than it did me."

Lakers Top Upstart Jazz To Win Best Of 7 Series

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — As far as Los Angeles coach Pat Riley is concerned, the Lakers may have cleared their biggest hurdle in trying to repeat as NBA champions.

The Lakers, trying to become the first team in 20 years to win consecutive NBA titles, beat the upstart Utah Jazz 109-98 Saturday in Game 7 of the Western Conference semifinal series.

"I don't think we'll play a better team in the playoffs, and that's no disrespect to the remaining teams," a relieved Riley said.

"They (the Jazz) are well-coached and they have three of the best players in the league in (John) Stockton, (Karl) Malone and (Thurl) Bailey."

The Lakers now face Dallas in the Western Conference finals, with the first game of the best-of-seven series scheduled for Monday night at the Forum. The series winner will meet the Eastern Conference champion for the NBA title.

Although Stockton, with 29 points and 20 assists, and Malone, with 31 points and 14 rebounds, played superbly for Utah in Game 7, Riley said Magic Johnson, with 23 points, 16 assists and nine rebounds, made the difference for the Lakers.

"Magic dug down deep, played a hard 40 minutes," Riley said. "... That why he makes what he makes ($2.5 million a year), he has to deliver."

There was no doubt in Magic Johnson's mind that the Los Angeles Lakers would be playing more basketball this season.

"We knew we'd do it," the Los Angeles guard said after the defending NBA champion Lakers beat Utah 109-98 Saturday in Game 7 of the Western Conference semifinals.

"We came out and played our game and had to forget about the other night," Johnson said, referring to the Lakers' 108-80 humbling by the Jazz Thursday night in Game 6.

"We hung in there and played smart," said Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the Lakers' 41-year-old center. "We held our poise and that was the key for us. We were motivated to win and we did."

While Johnson seemed confident the Lakers would beat the underdog Jazz, backcourt mate Byron Scott wasn't all that sure.

"It was kind of scary to know that you could be eliminated here in your own building," Scott said. "The home court advantage meant nothing; they had just won here."

Scott led the Lakers with 29 points.

The Lakers had been humbled 108-80 in Game 6 Thursday in Salt Lake City, but they came back with a well-balanced performance for a convincing victory in the deciding game.

James Worthy had 23 points and four steals for Los Angeles; Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 11 points and blocked four shots (two more than Utah center Mark Eaton, and the Lakers had just 11 turnovers to 15 for the Jazz.

Utah Coach Frank Layden said he told his players afterward that they should be proud.

"I thought we played as good as we could," he said. "Every time we got in a hole, we fought our way back.

"I've been in coaching for 32 years on various levels, and I've had teams go farther than this; but I've never been prouder or happier with a team.

"I told our players that the Lakers will go all the way now and win, and we can chalk this up, that we were contenders against them.

"I said all along that the best team would win this, and they did."

Although the Lakers won the series, Stockton finished with a couple of NBA playoff records. His 115 assists topped Johnson's previous mark of 95, set in 1984; and his 28 steals bettered the playoff mark of 27 set by Philadelphia's Maurice Cheeks in 1979.

The Lakers, whose fast-break offense was shut down by Utah's defense for most of the series, got their running game untracked for a two-minute span of the first quarter and never looked back.

Tied 15-15 midway through the opening quarter, the Lakers reeled off 11 straight points over the next

Clippers Win NBA Lottery

NEW YORK (AP) — Both the Los Angeles Clippers and Danny Manning got what they wanted Saturday when the Clippers won the right to draft the Kansas forward No. 1 in the June 28 draft.

"I've been praying every single day," Clippers general manager Elgin Baylor said after winning the NBA draft lottery. "The Los Angeles Clippers really needed a break. It would have been very unfortunate if we didn't get him."

Baylor said he talked with Manning at the U.S. Olympic Trials in Colorado Springs, Colo., last week "and he told me he liked the direction we are going."

"He said the Clippers are the team he wanted. He likes Los Angeles."

The Clippers, 17-65 this season, became the first team in the four-year history of the lottery to win the first pick in the draft after having the worst record in the NBA. The last time the franchise made the playoffs was 1976, when the team was located in Buffalo.

"If any team needed to pick No. 1, it was us," Baylor said. "The team with the worst record should have one of the top two picks. I felt that way last year when we picked fourth, and I still do."

After winning the lottery Clippers general manager Elgin Baylor unveiled a jersey with Manning's No. 25 on the back.

Foyt, Eight Others Qualify For The Indianapolis 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt and eight other drivers, including five rookies, made it into the tentative lineup for the May 29 Indianapolis 500 on Saturday, a qualifying day marred by three crashes and marked by the continuing problems of former champions Johnny Rutherford and Gordon Johncock.

Three positions remain open in the 33-car field for the 72nd Indy race following the third of four days of time trials. Qualifications at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will end at 6 p.m. EST Sunday.

Pancho Carter, trying to make the Indy race for the 15th time, escaped injury in two crashes Saturday, while half-brother Johnny Parsons also walked away from a meeting with the Speedway wall.

Foyt, 53 and a four-time winner, decided to switch to his backup car Saturday and put the year-old Lola solidly into the tentative field at 209.696 mph.

That wasn't the fastest among Saturday's qualifiers, but Foyt, who qualified for a record 31st consecutive start here, said he was happy with the effort.

"I was pretty conservative and pretty safe," he said. "I wasn't hanging it out, I just wanted to get in the race."

Foyt said he never worried that he would fail to make the race.

"Not really," he said. "You always know anything can happen in racing, but we had a couple of cars and I kne we had enough speed. It was just a matter of keeping ' engine together for four laps."

Both Raul Boesel of Brazil and rookie Dominic Dobs were faster than Foyt, with Boesel turning a four-la 10-mile average of 211.058 — the 10th-fastest among th 30 qualifiers — and Dobson averaging 210.096 to become the fastest first-year qualifier ever at the Speedway.

Boesel switched from a March to a Lola before making his fast qualifying run.

"We were struggling with the March," he explained. "One day we'd run well and the next day we come back and couldn't make the same speed for some reason. When the track changed, the car changed a lot. The only way to go is to change. Actually, it was a hard decision. But it was a good one."

Other qualifiers Saturday included third-generation driver Billy Vukovich III, a rookie, at 208.545; second-generation driver Tony Bettenhausen at 208.342; rookie Tero Palmroth of Finland at 208.001; Chassey at 207.951; John Andretti, Mario Andretti's nephew, qualified for his first Indy race at 207.894, and rookie Rocky Moran, in another Foyt team car, at 207.181.

None of the third-day qualifiers approached the record run of pole-winner Rick Mears last Saturday.

Garris-Evans.....10

Shop EZ broke out to an big early lead and then held off a late rally by Garris Evans to take a 14-10 Prep League baseball win Saturday.

Shop EZ moved out to an early 5-1 lead before scoring six runs in the fourth, keyed by triples by Michael Beland and Will Pleasant.

Garris-Evans rallied with nine runs in the fifth, keyed by base hits by James Nobles and Buddy Foley, but that was as close as it would get.

Brian Hill had three hits for Shop EZ while Beland and Cole Yarbrough had two hits apiece.

Foley had two hits to lead Garris-Evans.

Pepsi-Cola.....12
Coca-Cola.....2

Troy Clemons and Carlos Ebron had two hits apiece and combined to drive in seven runs to power Pepsi-Cola past Coca-Cola in a Babe Ruth League baseball game Saturday.

Clemons doubled in two runs to key a five-run second inning that moved Pepsi ahead 5-2. Ebron then drove in three runs with a triple to key a five-run third inning for Pepsi that broke the game wide open.

Steven Nobles had two hits to lead Coke.

Computerland.....18
Wachovia.....4

Kelvin Yarrell tossed a three-hitter with eight strikeouts as Computerland defeated Wachovia, 18-4, Saturday in Babe Ruth League baseball action.

Mitch Jones and Drew Johnson each drove in a run in the first inning to get Computerland going early on.

Wachovia tied the game with two runs in the bottom of the inning, but Computerland pushed across three runs in the second and six runs in the third to break the game wide open.

Hollis Gunn had an RBI single and Anthony Freeman had an RBI triple to key the third-inning spurt.

Scott Byrd, Jones, Johnson and Freeman had two hits apiece for Computerland.

Everette's.....4
Home Builders.....1

Randy Miller had two hits and limited Home Builders to six hits altogether in a 4-1 Babe Ruth Baseball League baseball game Saturday.

Everette's pushed across one run apiece in both the second and third innings before scoring two more in the fourth to make it 4-0. William Gibbs scored one of the runs in the fourth off a passed ball while Miller scored the other off an error.

Aaron Tschetter scred Home Builders' only run in the fifth inning when he singled and eventually scored off an error.

Robin Joyner had three hits for Home Builders while Tscetter had two.

New Strategy At The Winston

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Much of the traditional NASCAR racing strategy will be left in the pits Sunday when 19 drivers battle for the $200,000 top prize in the circuit's controversial race for winners only.

The Winston, in its fourth season, is NASCAR's youngest race, but may be the most debated.

The $600,000 race, broken into three segments of 75 laps, 50 laps and a 10-lap shootout, features NASCAR's most recent winners and breeds an aggressive nature for most chasing the big money at the 1.5-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway.

"You have to look in (the other drivers') eyes," said pole sitter Darrell Waltrip, "to see if they are open or not."

Waltrip, who turned in a track record one-lap qualifying time of 174.154 mph on Friday, won the first The Winston by nipping Harry Gant in 1985.

The event was switched to Atlanta the next season, where Bill Elliott donimated, but the fans didn't as about 15,000 showed up to watch the race.

The format was changed last season at the Charlotte track — broken into three segments — with controversy surrounding the 10-lap shootout when Elliott, Dale Earnhardt and Geoff Bodine got tangled up in an attempt to surge to the front. Earnhardt took to the infield grass and won the race, but several pit crews almost came to blows after the race.

Earnhardt refuses to talk about the incident, saying he doesn't like the way promoters have used last year's mishap to hype this year's event.

"Let me put this in perspective for you," said Waltrip, whose last win at Charlotte came duirng the 1985 Coca-Cola 600. "Normally a 500-mile race pays somewhere between $30,000 to $40,000 for the winner. So how many more chances would you take for $250,000?"

Not only does the winner of the race receive a $200,000 purse, but the leader after each of the first two segments receives $20,000.

"I have to wait and see what kind of shape I'm in," Waltrip said when asked how many chances he would take.

Rose All Alone In Colonial Lead

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — For the first time in three rounds, Clarence Rose has the lead all to himself at the Colonial National Invitation tournament.

Rose was in a five-way tie for the lead after Thursday's opening round of the $750,000 event. The group at the top was down to three after Friday's second round.

The other two dropped away Saturday, leaving Rose three shots in front with the chance to score his first victory in eight seasons on the PGA Tour.

"We have to chase him," Ben Crenshaw said after Rose used a burst of four birdies in a stretch of six holes to pull away from the pack.

And chasing him may not be easy, Joey Sindelar said.

"I don't think Clarence has reached his potential yet," said Sindelar, in second place going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $135,000 first prize.

"I think you're going to see his name a lot. Nobody knows how good he can be. That gets into the mental side of it. But I think you'll see a lot of him.

"He hasn't won — but he hasn't blown any either. He hasn't been there that much. He hasn't been tested. he might run away with it," Sindelar said.

Rose's playoff loss to Bruce Lietzke last week in Dallas could be an important factor.

"After playing well last week, he's in his comfort zone," Sindelar said. "He'll be a lot more comfortable tomorrow."

Rose, who had a 5-under-par 65 in the third round, agreed.

"Last week helps a lot going into tomorrow," he said after completing three trips around the Colonial Country Club course in 10-under-par 200. "I feel pretty comfortable. I'm there. I'm just waiting for myself to go ahead and take it or somebody to give it to me."

Sindelar's 15-foot birdie putt on the final hole completed a 67 that left him alone in second at 203.

Ben Crenshaw was next at 204 after a 68.

Lanny Wadkins, who shared the lead through the first two rounds, could do no better than match par 70 and fell five shots back at 205. He was tied with Mark Calcavecchia, who had a 68.

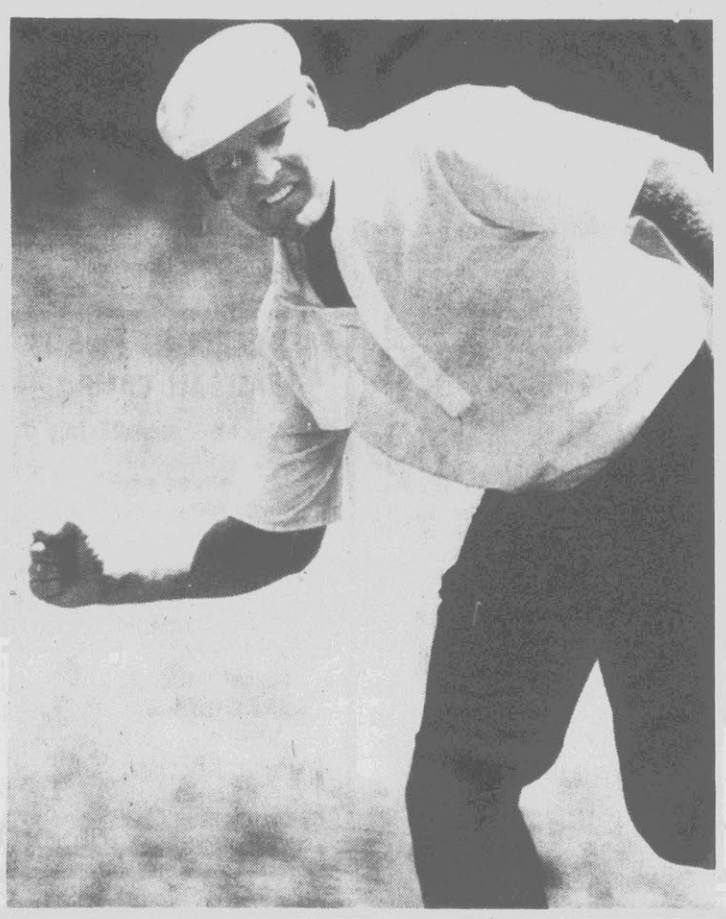
Scott Hoch, also a co-leader through the first 36 holes, went to a 71 and was tied at 206 with Mark Lye, John Huston, John Mahaffey and John Inman.

Mark Lye scored nine "3's" and a "2" in a 63, one stroke off the course record. Mahaffey had a bogey-free 66, Inman shot 67 and Huston had a 69.

Lee Trevino had a 68 and was at 208.

Crenshaw, Wadkins, Sindelar and Hoch all had a share of the lead at one point during the round before Rose pulled away on the back nine.

The low-key 30-year-old scored from about 10 feet on the 10th and chipped to 6 feet for birdie-4 on the 11th.



Lucky On 13

Clippers Win Top Draft Pick

with two chances to win the No. 1 pick because of a 1986 trade it made with Sacramento, another non-playoff team. The Clippers will have the Kings' pick — No. 6 overall as determined in the lottery — in the first round because of that trade, in which Derek Smith went from the Clippers to Sacramento.

This year's lottery, held at the Museum of Natural History, determined the order of the first seven draft picks. After the Clippers, the selection order is Indiana, Philadelphia, New Jersey, Golden State, the Clippers and Phoenix, all of whom missed the playoffs.

Centers Rony Seikaly of Syracuse and Rik Smits of Marist, forwards Charles Smith of Pittsburgh, Tim Perry of Temple, Chris Morris of Auburn and Harvey Grant of Oklahoma and guards Hersey Hawkins of Bradley, Rex Chapman of Kentucky, Gary Grant of Michigan and Mitch Richmond of Kansas State are among the names mentioned as possible picks by the lottery teams.

But the prize of the draft is Manning, the 6-foot-10 forward who led underdog Kansas to the NCAA championship.

"He's definitely an impact player," Baylor said. "He has all the qualities of a star player. He makes his teammates better, he knows how to get position on the floor, he's a fine passer and he's real good on the fast break. He'll turn this team around."

Only three players in NCAA history — Lew Alcindor, Patrick Ewing and David Robinson — had 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds and shot 60 percent from the field. All three were centers, but Manning just missed joining their company with 2,951 points and 1,187 rebounds and 59.3 percent shooting.

Manning heard the news while working out at the trials in Colorado Springs. He showed no reaction and made no immediate comment.

"What we've gone through, we deserve it," said Alan Rothenberg, the Clippers president, at a party at his Beverly Hills home.

"This is a big, big, incredible situation that has happened," said Coach Gene Shue, who was at the Olympic Trials. "I'm just shocked."

Donnie Walsh, general manager of the Pacers, said he would choose from among Hawkins, Chapman, Smith, Perry, Smits, Morris and Seikaly for the No. 2 pick.

"I'd be satisfied with any of those," Walsh said. "In a lot of ways, I've got the first choice in the draft and I haven't made up my mind."

Walsh predicted that at least one of those players will be as good or better than Manning in five years, "and it's my job to decide who that is."

Walsh said that since the Pacers had the best record among the six lottery teams, he was happy to be picking higher than seventh.

"We came in here with 38 wins and there were teams in the playoffs with worse records than us," Walsh said. "We got a better spot than our record dictated."

George Irvine, director of player personnel for the Pacers who was also scouting the Olympic Trials, said, 'Two's a lot better than seven. It leaves us with a lot of options open.

two minutes for a 26-15 lead.

The Jazz never caught them after that, although Utah did close to within 59-56 two minutes into the third period before the Lakers scored eight consecutive points to take command.

Los Angeles led 87-75 heading into the final period after being in front 57-51 at halftime and 32-27 at the end of the first quarter.

The Lakers, who had a 62-20 regular-season record, the league's best, had breezed though the opening round of the playoffs with three straight victories over San Antonio. The Jazz, 47-35, advanced by beating Portland in four games.

"They played great," Johnson said. "They played us as well as any other team has ever played us. They played their hearts out."

Greenwell Keys Sox By Angels

BOSTON (AP) — Mike Greenwell drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a run-scoring single, leading the Boston Red Sox past the California Angels 8-4 Saturday.

Greenwell singled home a run in the first off Ray Krawczyk then hit a three-run homer in the third to put the Red Sox ahead 5-3. Greenwell also single in a three-run fifth.

Backed by a 12-hit attack, lefthander Bruce Hurst won his sixth game in seven decisions, allowing four runs in 7 2-3 innings while improving his record to 5-0 in Fenway Park this year.

Hurst survived a shaky third inning when California combined three hits and an error for three runs for a 3-2 lead.

Chili Davis homered with two out in the eighth off Hurst and Lee Smith came on to get his sixth save.

Krawczyk, 0-1, got one out before the Red Sox went ahead 2-0 in the first on consecutive singles by Marty Barrett, Wade Boggs, Dwight Evans and Greenwell.

With two out in the third, the Angels took a 3-2 lead. Mark McLemore beat out an infield hit and scored on Johnny Ray's double off the left-field wall.

Ray scored as Evans fielded Wally Joyner's routine grounder to first and threw wildly to Hurst covering. Davis followed with a triple to center, scoring Joyner.

Barrett was hit by a pitch in the third and Boggs walked before Greenwell hit his homer. It was a line drive to right which Davis just missed on a dive into the stands in the corner.

The Red Sox got to Krawczyk in the fifth on a walk to Boggs, a single by Greenwell and RBI singles by Rick Cerone, Rich Gedman and Ed Romero.

Every batter in the Boston lineup had at least one hit except Todd Benzinger, who struck out four times in five at-bats.

CHICAGO (AP) — Chet Lemon and Darrell Evans hit solo home runs and Jack Morris allowed five hits in seven innings as the Detroit Tigers beat Chicago 3-1 Saturday, sending the White Sox to their sixth straight defeat.

Morris, 4-5, entered the game having lost five of his last six decisions, but he cruised through the first six innings.

But with one out in the seventh, Mark Salas doubled off Morris and Steve Lyons followed with a run-scoring single. Guillermo Hernandez pitched 1 1-3 innings and Mike Henneman got the last two outs for his 11th save.

Chicago starter Jeff Bittiger, making his first start since joining the White Sox from Class AAA Vancouver last week, held Detroit hitless through the first three innings.

Matt Nokes led off the Tiger fourth with a double, moved to third on a sacrifice, and scored on Ray Knight's sacrifice fly to center field.

In the fifth, Lemon hit Bittiger's first pitch of the inning into the lower left-field seats for his second homer.

Evans worked Bittiger, 0-1, to a full count with one out in the seventh and then hit his second home run. The homer moved Evans into 25th place on the all-time major league list with 383.

It was the Tigers' fourth straight victory.

Athletics.....2

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Rhoden, who came off the disabled list on Saturday, pitched five strong innings for his first victory since opening day as the New York Yankees defeated the Oakland Athletics 3-2.

With a 26-14 record, the Yankees are off to their best start since 1978, when they had an identical record after their first 40 games.

Rhoden, activated earlier in the day after being out since April 29 with a lower back injury, allowed five hits and one run to improve to 2-3.

The Yankees scored all their runs in the first inning, taking advantage of wildness by starter Curt Young, 3-2.

Young gave up only four hits, but walked seven. He had walked only eight batters in his six previous starts this season.

New York reliever Cecilio Guante worked his way out of a first and third, one-out jam in the sixth by striking out Dave Henderson and Glenn Hubbard. In four innnings, the right-hander allowed only two hits and struck out four.

Dave Righetti got the final three outs for his seventh save. In the Oakland ninth, pinch-hitter Don Baylor led off with a walk and pinch runner Steve Ontiveros was balked to second. Glenn Hubbard then singled to send Ontiveros to third. It was Hubbard's 1,000th career hit. But Righetti struck out Mike Gallego and got Carney Lansford to pop to center to end the game.

Don Mattingly's single sandwiched between walks to Rickey Henderson and Jack Clark loaded the bases with one out in the first. Dave Winfield walked to force in one run, Young balked home another and Jay Buhner hit a sacrifice fly.

Ron Hassey drove in both Oakland runs with an RBI double in the fourth and a run-scoring single in the sixth.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Keith Hughes' eighth-inning triple scored Bill Ripken with the tie-breaking run as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Seattle Mariners 3-1 Saturday night.

Jeff Ballard, 1-0, in his first start since being recalled from Class AAA Rochester on Thursday, got the victory. He allowed 10 hits, struck out three and walked none in 8 1-3 innings. Tom Niedenfuer got the last two outs for his third save.

Ripken opened the eighth with a walk from Dennis Powell, 1-2, and Hughes then tripled to center. Fred Lynn followed with a single to make it 3-1.

It was only the Orioles' seventh victory in 41 games.

Eddie Murray, who went 4-for-4, singled off starter Scott Bankhead and came around to score when Larry Sheets doubled to give the Orioles a 1-0 lead in the second.

Aycock Tops Chargers, 5-3

SNOW HILL — C.B. Aycock held off a late Ayden-Grifton charge to take a 5-3 baseball win Saturday night in a game that determined Eastern 2-A playoff seeding.

The two teams tied for second in the Eastern Plains Conference during the regular season and played this game to see which team would get the higher seed and the home-field advantage.

The Chargers led 1-0 after the first inning, courtesy of a solo homer by Ronnell Peterson.

But Aycock came back with one run in the second and two more in the third to make it 3-1.

The Chargers tied the game up by scoring one run in the fourth and one more in the sixth.

John Tyndall tripled home Gary Eubanks with the first run in the fourth. Then in the sixth, Ty Little walked and Stephen Tucker singled. Darren Lister, pinch running for Little, scored on Tyndall's single.

Aycock regained the lead with two runs in the top of the seventh. Marvin Ford and Mike Odom opened the inning with two walks. A double steal put runners at second and third. Greg Chase then singled both of them home.

Ayden-Grifton put runners in scoring position in the bottom of the seventh as Gene Stancill and Darryl Moye both singled, but that was as close as the Chargers would get.

Tyndall went 2-3 with two RBI to lead the Chargers, Chase was 2-2 for Aycock with two RBI.

Ayden-Grifton closes the regular season at 11-11 and travels to Roanoke Rapids Tuesday to play in the first round of the state baseball playoffs.

Aycock will host Williamston in another playoff game Tuesday.

Farmville Wins East Regional

From Staff and Wire Reports

CLAYTON — Farmville Central boys team totaled 80 points to finish in first place while the Lady Jaguars finished in second place at the 1-A-2-A Eastern Regional Track Championships Saturday.

Tyrone Joyner keyed the Farmville boys, winning both the long and triple jump events. Gary Tripp won the shot put and took third in the discus. Farmville also won the 3,200 meter relay and the 1,600 meter relay events.

South Granville won the girls' meet, totaling 91 points while the Lady Jaguars and Lejeune tied for second with 50 points.

Cheryl Hopkins led the Lady Jaguars, taking first in the triple jump and second in the long jump.

The top four in each event advance to state meet.

Youmans, Expos Blank Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Floyd Youmans pitched a two-hitter for his first victory of the season as the Montreal Expos beat the San Francisco Giants 6-0 Saturday.

Youmans, 1-3, struck out seven and walked one en route to his first victory since Sept. 6, 1987. He retired 18 of the first 19 batters he faced.

Youmans allowed singles to Candy Maldonado in the second and Chris Speier in the seventh. It was the right-hander's fourth career two-hitter.

The Expos scored three runs in the fourth inning off Rick Reuschel, 5-3. Reuschel has been shut out in all three of his losses.

Consecutive doubles by Tim Raines and Hubie Brooks gave the Expos a 1-0 lead in the fourth. Andres Galarraga followed with a single that sent Brooks to third and Galarraga moved to second on the throw home. Jeff Reed followed with a two-run single.

Johnny Paredes was struck by a pitch from reliever Don Robinson leading off the seventh and went to third on a groudner. Paredes was trapped off third on a missed squeeze attempt by Youmans, and made it back to the bag on a throwing error by catcher Bob Melvin.

Paredes scored on Youmans' single, and Youmans came around on a groundout and a run-scoring single by Tim Wallach.

With one out in the eighth, Galarraga hit his ninth home run to make it 6-0.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Vance Law and Darrin Jackson hit consecutive home runs Saturday night, highlighting an 18-hit attack that led the Chicago Cubs over the Cincinnati Reds 11-6.

Jody Davis, who had a pair of RBI singles, and Ryne Sandberg each got three hits. Every Chicago starter got at least one hit.

Leon Durham, traded by the Cubs to Cincinnati on Wednesday, hit a solo home run, his first for the Reds.

Les Lancaster, 2-4, got the victory in relief. Danny Jackson, 5-2, allowed seven runs on 13 hits.

Law hit an RBI double and Sandberg had a two-run single for a 3-0 lead in the second inning.

Durham homered off Bob Tewksbury in the bottom of the second, but Law hit a two-run homer and Jackson followed with a home run for a 6-1 lead in the third.

The Reds chased Tewsbury and closed within 7-6 with four runs in the fourth. Pinch hitter Bo Diaz had an RBI groundout, Kal Daniels doubled home a run and Barry Larkin and Eric Davis had sacrifice flies.

Chicago got four runs in the sixth for an 11-6 lead. Sandberg singled, stole second and scored on pinch hitter Mark Grace's single. Singles by Andre Dawson and Jody Davis produced another run, Law walked and Dave Martinez hit a two-run double.

Pirates.....7
Braves.....3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Andy Van Slyke hit a tiebreaking, three-run homer in the fifth inning Saturday night, carrying the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Atlanta Braves 7-3.

With the score 3-3, Braves starter Kevin Coffman, 2-4, retired the first two hitters in the fifth before Barry Bonds beat out a high-bouncing grounder to third and Jose Lind walked.

Van Slyke, who had only one hit in 23 at-bats, then lifted an 0-1 pitch over the right-field wall for his sixth homer of the season and his first since May 4.

Brian Fisher, 4-0, survived a three-run first inning for the victory, allowing three runs and six hits in five innings. Bob Kipper, Barry Jones and Jeff Robinson finished up.

The victory was the first since April 19 for Fisher, who recently spent 15 days on the disabled list with a strained right shoulder. Don Robinson, who started 1982 with a 5-0 record, was the last Pirate to win more than three consecutive decisions to start a season.

The Braves, whose 11-27 record is the National League's worst, took a 3-0 lead in the first on Ken Griffey's sacrifice fly and Gerald Perry's two-run homer, his third of the season.

The Pirates got the runs back in their half of the inning with the help of a balk and two Braves' errors. Bonds walked and Lind singled before advancing on Coffman's balk.

Paris Bracing For French Open

PARIS (AP) — The cafes and boulevards of Paris are being invaded this spring by two groups of teen-age visitors. One carries knapsacks, the other tennis rackets.

Led by punk-haired Andre Agassi of the United States and glamourous Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina, these young challengers are expected to grab a major share of the spotlight when the French Open begins Monday.

Ivan Lendl, secure atop the men's rankings, and Steffi Graf, a teen-ager herself but a comparative old-timer as the top-ranked woman, are the top seeds and favored to retain the singles titles they won last year.

New Look?

Martina Navratilova wears a cowboy hat and dark glasses to ward off the sun after a training session at Roland Garros Tennis Stadium Saturday. Navratilova and the rest of the field from the French Open begin play Monday. (AP Laserphoto)

"All I want to do is lift that trophy in Paris," Lendl said on his way to the men's championship in the Italian Open earlier this month.

The Czechoslovak native has won the French Open three of the last four years, and has reached at least the semifinals in all of his last 10 Grand Slam tournaments.

Graf, the 18-year-old West German who won her first Grand Slam singles title here a year ago by beating Martina Navratilova in the women's final, also comes in with a big victory in her last outing.

"This is a good sign for Paris next week," Graf said after beating Helena Sukova in the final in Berlin.

Lendl, Graf and the other 254 players in the main draws will find the familiar red clay courts at Roland Garros as slow as ever. The Parisian crowds will mingle under the chestnut trees, patiently watching long baseline rallies.

At stake is a purse totaling $3.97 million, with $246,750 going to the men's singles champion and $246,362 to the women's winner. Last year's top prizes were $219,500 for men and $198,500 for women.

At least one familiar name will be missing from the tournament.

Jimmy Connors of the United States, who battled into the quarterfinals last year, pulled out last week with an injured right foot. The 35-year-old was seeded fifth in the men's field.

Doubts also have been raised about the participation of another American veteran, John McEnroe. Trying again to regain the form that made him No. 1 in the world three years ago, McEnroe had to pull out of a tournament in Florence, Italy, last week because of strained neck ligaments.

In the women's field, both two-time winner Navratilova and seven-time champion Chris Evert of the United States are coming off injuries.

Navratilova, 31, skipped the Italian Open, while Evert, 33, had to withdraw midway through because of a bone spur in her foot. Both are expected to play in Paris.

But their chances of staging a repeat of the 1986 women's final, which Evert won, will depend as much on young bodies as old.

There's Graf, of course, at No. 1. The West German has not had the overpowering start to her season that she had last year, when she left Paris with a 39-match winning streak and her seventh tournament title of the year, but she feels she is in good shape.

"At the moment I'm in absolutely my best form," Graf said. "Things are working as I want and my forehand is going well."

If form is the key to this tournament, then Sabatini could have a chance of fulfilling her prophesy after winning the Italian Open women's title three weeks ago.

"I think I'm ready to win the French Open," said the 18-year-old Argentine, the youngest semifinalist ever here three years ago, who has beaten Graf twice this year.

In Rome, Sabatini's tennis often took a back seat to her appearance for many fans. Teen-age boys, and not a few of their fathers, sat in the Foro Italico spellbound by Sabatini's mixture of grace and power.

To win the Italian title, Sabatini beat another up-and-coming teenager, 18-year-old Helen Kelesi of Canada.

The story in the men's field is not quite so dominated by youth, although its most talked-about entrant just turned 18.

Agassi, a native of the gambling mecca of Las Vegas, Nev., and in only his second full year on the pro tour, has won three tournaments this season, including the U.S. Clay Courts Championships and the Tournament of Champions, another big clay-court event.

"He could be the superstar Americans are dying for," Lendl said.

He is seeded ninth in Paris, where his spikey blond hair, denim tennis shorts and easy-going style are expected to make him a crowd favorite.

"I like to go out and have some fun with it," Agassi said.

Swedes Stefan Edberg and Wilander, the Australian Open winner, are seeded second and third behind Lendl, with Wimbledon champion Pat Cash of Australia fourth and Boris Becker, the West German just turned 20, moving into Connors' old spot at fifth.

Guillermo Perez-Roldan, an Argentine who took Lendl to five sets in the Italian final, joins Agassi as a teen-age seed. Perez-Roldan, 18 years old, is seeded 15th. McEnroe, who had been unseeded, was promoted to the 16th slot when Connors and Czechoslovak Miloslav Mecir were forced to withdraw because of injuries.

Tim Mayotte, at No. 8, and Agassi are the only other Americans among the men's seeds. The last U.S. man to win in Paris was Tony Trabert in 1955.

When the ballots were counted in the 1987 mayoralty election in Alexandria, Minn., star outfielder Kirby Puckett of the Minnesota Twins was found to have received six write-invotes.

How Sweet It Is

Amy Alcott reacts to a birdie putt on the 14th hole during third-round action from the Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship Saturday. Alcott shot a five-under par 69 to take a two-stroke lead in the event's final round Sunday. (AP Laserphoto)

Alcott's Strategy Paying Off

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Amy Alcott said her secret for playing well in major championships is simple: ignore their importance.

Alcott moved closer to her second straight Grand Slam title Saturday with a 3-under-par 69 for a two-stroke lead heading into the final round of the LPGA Championship at the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center.

"I downplay their importance," said Alcott, who has won four Grand Slam events, including the Dinah Shore last month. "Too many people come into it and study their schedule and say, 'Oh my gosh, next week's the Open.' ... That creates anxiety.

"The bottom line is you put the ball on a peg, knock it down the fairway, find it, then hit it again. All other things are out there. What's important is right here. It takes heart, guts and an understanding of self."

A victory would put Alcott, winner of last month's Dinah Shore tournament, halfway toward a sweep of the women's Grand Slam events.

"I'm not thinking about it or what it means or why I'm here," she said. "It's a round of golf, an important round of golf. ... I just want to play my game."

Still, she admitted that she was capable of making a run at winning the four majors.

"I'm playing well enough to do it. I'm in a good position," she said.

She added, "If I win (the LPGA Championship), I'm going to be tough in the next two (majors)."

Alcott held a four-stroke lead going into the final hole, but that advantage was cut in half when she bogeyed and Amy Benz birdied the 18th.

"Before what happened on the last hole, I could have seen it being awfully tough to catch (Alcott)," said Benz, winless during her pro career. "But I finished on a good note, and if I can get my driver straightened out, I'll really feel confident going in."

Alcott, who has won every major women's championship except the LPGA at least once, had a 54-hole total of 208.

Benz, who had bogeyed the three holes preceding her final-hole birdie, finished with a 69 and was in second place at 6-under-par 210 on the 6,389-yard, par-72 Grizzly Course. Benz, who started the day at 3-under, had gotten to 8-under through 14 holes and a tie for the lead.

In third place was 1988 Player of the Year Ayako Okamoto of Japan. She carded a 69 for 211.

Dot Germain, shooting a 71 on her 41st birthday, was at 212 and tied with Missie Berteotti, Sally Little, Judy Dickinson and Kathy Postlewait. Berteotti's 68 was the low round of the day.

Defending champion Jane Geddes was at 213, while Jan Stephenson was at 215.

JoAnne Carner was in a group at 218, while Nancy Lopez faltered with a 74 that put her at 219.

Sally Quinlan, who started the day with a two-stroke lead, faded to a 79 and fell eight strokes back at 216.

Charles' Birdies Pave Way To Lead

SCARBOROUGH-ON-HUDSON, N.Y. (AP) — Bob Charles of New Zealand had five birdies en route to a 3-under-par 67 Saturday and a three-shot lead after two rounds of the $300,000 Commemorative Tournament at the Sleepy Hollow Country Club.

Charles' who shot a course-record 63 in Friday's opening round, was at 10-under 130. Don Massengale, who joined the PGA Senior Tour last year, shot a 65 for a two-round total of 133 on the par-70, 6,545-yard course.

Harold Henning had his second consecutive 67 to move into third place at 134, one stroke better than Bruce Crampton and Larry Mowry.

Dave Hill shot a 67, Miller Barber 68 and Charles Coody 70 and were tied for sixth at 136.

Twenty-one golfers were at par or better going into Sunday's final round.

"I'm on track," said the 52-year-old Charles, who has not won on the Senior Tour this year. "After yesterday's round I set a goal to be five under par after each round.

"I'm looking for a 65 tomorrow. That should put the pressure on everybody else."

Charles, winner of the 1963 British Open, used a 6-iron on the par-4, 405-yard 18th hole to get within 12 feet of the pin to set the stage for his fifth birdie.

"My tee shots jelled today, unlike yesterday," Charles said. "My iron play and my putting were not as good, but everything evened out."

Massengale, who won $100,191 in 28 outings as a rookie on the Senior Tour last year, figures he needs at least a 66 to challenge Charles.

"Today's 65 was my lowest score on the Senior Tour," said Massengale, who had two victories on the PGA Tour, the Bing Crosby and the Canadian Open in 1966.

"I drove the ball well and felt good about my game today," Massengale said. "I don't know if I can do any better. I have found it tough to put together two great rounds back here.

Bob Brew, who shot a 76 on Friday, came back with a 65, including a 29 on the front nine — the low score on the Senior Tour this year. Brew, who won only $42,709 on the PGA Tour, had six birdies on the front nine. He had a bogey on the 16th hole.

"I thought about 29 on the seventh hole," Brew said. "My thought on the back nine was not to give it away. I wanted two more birdies to try and break the course record. Missing the (14-foot) birdie putt on the 15th hurt."

A-G, Jags Take Wins

DEEP RUN — Ayden-Grifton's Ty Little shut out South Lenoir and the Chargers scored late to pull out a 7-0 baseball victory Friday night and tie for second place in the final Eastern Plains Conference standings.

The Chargers finished 9-3 in the league, tied with Charles B. Aycock for second. The two were to meet Saturday night at Greene Central to decide second and third seeding for the 2-A state playoffs.

The winner of that game will play host to Williamston on Tuesday while the loser will travel to Roanoke Rapids, also on Tuesday.

The game was scoreless until the fifth inning when Ayden-Grifton pushed over a run. John Tyndall reached on an error and moved to second when a pickoff attempt went awry. He then scored on Gene Stancil's single.

In the sixth, the Chargers added three more for a 4-0 lead. Ronnell Peterson opened the inning with a solo homer. Little followed with a hit and Steven Tucker also singled. Tyndall added another, loading the bases. Stancil reached on a fielder's choice scoring Little and an error on the relay allowed Tucker to score.

Ayden-Grifton closed out the scoring in the seventh getting three more off another homer, this by Tucker.

Tucker led the Ayden-Grifton hitting with three while Stancil had two. No one had more than one for South Lenoir, which got only three off Little's pitching.

Ayden-Grifton is now 11-10 overall.

Pamlico County.....1

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central closed out the 1988 baseball season with its second straight victory Friday, downing Pamlico County, 8-1.

The Jaguars scored all they would need in the first inning of the game, pushing over two runs. George Burnette led off with a single and stole second. He then scored on Mike Vandiford's hit. Shae Terrell singled and Howard Collins added another hit, driving in Vandiford.

Farmville went on to add two in the second, one each in the third and fourth and two more in the fifth.

Pamlico's only run came over in the seventh inning.

Kevin Wade hit a solo homer for Farmville in the third inning while Chris Ross blasted a two-run round-tripper in the fifth.

Burnette led the Farmville hitting with four while Vandiford added two, one of them a double.

Byrd had two hits to lead Pamlico.

Farmville closes out the year with a 7-15 overall record and a 4-8 mark in the Eastern Plains Conference.

Rose Wins

WILSON — Rose High School's girls won a make-up game from Wilson Hunt and finished the 1988 regular season tied for second in the Big East softball standings at 9-5. Rose downed the Lady Warriors, 15-6, in the game.

The tie brought about a coin toss for second seeding in the 4A state playoffs, with Rose coming out on top there. Rose will thus face Wilmington Hoggard in the first round of the playoffs in a home game in Greenville. The game is tentatively set for Tuesday, with the time to be announced.

Rose scored six times in the first inning to take the lead, but that proved to be the winning run scored in the third. Andrea Rogers singled and Tiki Hair walked. Kristen Shea then reached on an error that allowed Rogers to score.

Rose added insurance in the fourth, getting another run. Sherry Speier and Gina Parrott both reached on errors. Jenny Stoneham then singled in Speier.

Rose added four more in the fifth and three in the sixth. Hunt had scored twice in the first and once in the third before adding three more in the sixth, never leading.

Parrott, Stoneham, Amy Barr and Shea each had two hits to lead Rose. No one had more than one for Hunt.

Rose winds up the regular season with a 13-7 overall record.

Oakland Triumphs In Battle Of The Best

By The Associated Press

The standings say they are the two best teams in the American League. Only the Oakland Athletics lived up to the part.

Carney Lansford, the leading hitter in the major leagues, had four hits and drove in three runs as the Athletics, with the best record in the majors, routed the AL East-leading New York Yankees 11-3 Friday night.

Ron Hassey also produced three runs and Dave Parker homered as Oakland won for the 14th time in the last 16 road games. Dave Henderson, with two doubles, and Glenn Hubbard contributed three hits apiece.

Henderson, who had been 2-for-20 against Yankees starter Tommy John, singled with one out in the second inning and Hubbard also singled. Hassey sliced a two-run double to left.

Parker led off the third with his fifth home run. Henderson started the fourth with a double and John left after throwing two balls to Hubbard. Reliever Neil Allen completed the walk and then walked Walt Weiss before Lansford's two-run single.

Tigers 14, White Sox 6

Veterans Alan Trammell, Darrell Evans and Ray Knight paced a 20-hit attack for Detroit. Frank Tanana, 7-2, was the beneficiary of the onslaught at Chicago.

Royals 4, Indians 3

Bo Jackson had a big night at Kansas City with two RBI doubles. Frank White added a two-run homer for the Royals, while Cory Snyder had a two-run shot for Cleveland.

Angels 4, Red Sox 2

First the Angels snapped Roger Clemens' scoreless string at 19 innings — Clemens had a pair of three-hitters last week. Then California beat Clemens as Butch Wynegar lined a tie-breaking double after failing to sacrifice in the 10th inning.

Blue Jays 3, Brewers 1

At Milwaukee, Jim Clancy got his first victory in a month and Lloyd Moseby homered for Toronto. Clancy, 2-4 and winless in his five previous starts, struck out six and gave up seven hits. But he needed help from David Wells with one out in the seventh after a single by Jim Gantner and double by Paul Molitor.

Mariners 3, Orioles 2

Ken Phelps's two-run homer, the 100th of his career, tied the game, then Seattle won it on Alvin Davis' eighth-inning RBI single after a key error by second baseman Bill Ripken.

National League

Astros 5, Cardinals 3

Billy Hatcher went 5-for-5 against the St. Louis Cardinals, including a tie-breaking RBI single in the ninth inning that lifted the Houston Astros to a 5-3 victory.

The hit came off ace Cardinals reliever Todd Worrell.

"He got it in on me. I just got the bat on the ball and it fell in," said Hatcher, who had five singles, two RBI, scored one run and stole a base. "I played against Todd Worrell in Triple-A. You know you're going to see a 92-mph fastball. You just try to get ready."

Reds 7, Cubs 2

Paul O'Neill drove in three runs and Mario Soto won the 100th game of his career as the Reds beat the Cubs in Cincinnati.

Soto, 3-2, allowed five hits, three of them by first baseman Mark Grace.

Pirates 10, Braves 3

Mike Diaz drove in three runs with his first two hits of the season and Mike Dunne won his first game since opening day as Pittsburgh snapped a five-game losing streak.

Mets 5, Dodgers 2

Howard Johnson homered and Mookie Wilson singled in two runs as the Mets won their fifth straight game.

Sid Fernandez, 2-3, allowed six hits, struck out six and walked one over 6 1-3 innings before leaving with stiffness in his elbow. It was the longest outing of the year for the left-hander, whom the Mets obtained from the Dodgers in a 1983 trade.

Padres 4, Phillies 3

Roberto Alomar drove in the winning run with a two-out single in the bottom of the ninth inning as the Padres snapped a four-game losing streak.

Mike Schmidt hit his 535th career homer for the Phillies, moving him past Jimmie Foxx into eighth place on the all-time lost.

Giants 11, Expos 2

Chris Speier's sixth-inning grand slam, one of four San Francisco home runs, sparked the Giants' win.

Candy Maldonado, Will Clark and Bob Melvin also homered for the Giants.

Prep Playoff Schedules Set

Five area baseball teams and four softball teams will enter the state playoffs starting Monday, including defending 2A baseball champ Greene Central.

The Rams, which lost only to 4A power Greenville Rose, plays host to Wake Forest-Rolesville, the number three team from the Capital Area Conference at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Greene Central won the Eastern Plains Conference title again this year.

Other teams in the baseball playoffs include 4A Rose, 3A D.H. Conley, and 2A Ayden-Grifton and Williamston. Making the field for softball are Rose, Conley, Greene Central and Williamston.

Greenville Rose's baseball team completed a perfect regular season with a 22-0 record and will put that on the line against Wilmington Hoggard. The Rampants, who won their third straight Big East title this year, are expected to host Mideastern No. 3 Hoggard in a Tuesday night game at 7:30 p.m. However, as of Saturday, final details had not been completed.

Rose's girls will also face Hoggard, and will also be the host team. Rose finished tied for second in the Big East and won a coin toss for second seeding. Hoggard ended up second in the Mideastern Conference. Again, final details have not been arranged, but the game is expected to be played Tuesday at 4 p.m.

In the 3A ranks, Conley's boys will take on Southern Nash Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Conley. The Vikings won the Coastal Conference championship, while Southern Nash tied for second in the Tar Roanoke and won a draw, then elected to take the number three seeding.

Conley's girls finished second in the Coastal and will be the host team against South Johnston, the runner-up from the Triangle Conference. That game will be played Tuesday at 5 p.m.

In the 2A ranks, a Saturday night game was to determine the final pairings from the Eastern Carolina Conference. Ayden-Grifton and Charles B. Aycock tied for second place and met in a game at Greene Central Saturday night to decide the second and third seedings.

Should Ayden-Grifton win, it would be the host team against Williamston, the runner-up from the Northeastern. That game will probably be played Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. Should Aycock win, then it would be the host team against the Tigers.

Should Ayden-Grifton lose, it will play at Roanoke Rapids, the Northeastern's number one team. That game will also be played on Tuesday at a time to be decided. Again, Aycock, with a loss, would play at Roanoke Rapids.

Greene Central's girls finished second in the Eastern Plains and will be the host team against Northampton East, the number two team from the Northeastern. That game is set for Tuesday at 5:30 p.m.

Williamston, meanwhile, the number three team from the Northeastern, will travel to South Granville, the Capital Area champion for a 5 p.m. game on Tuesday.

Second round games in the softball playoffs must be played no later than Thursday, while second round baseball games must be played by Friday.

The playoffs continue next week with two games, including the Eastern finals.

The championship series will be played the week of June 6 in softball and June 9-11 in baseball. The 2A and 3A championship series will be at the site of the eastern winner, while the 4A series will be in the west for both baseball and softball.

Perry Up To 377 Pounds

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Now it can be told. William "The Refrigerator" Perry weighs a whopping 377 pounds.

Perry and the Chicago Bears have refused to reveal the numbers for the past two seasons, but Coach Mike Ditka had a slip-of-the-lip Friday when the Bears concluded their three-day mini-camp.

Discussing the switching of Perry from defensive tackle to end, Ditka suddenly said, "I don't want a 377-pound defensive end."

Sticking to the subject, Ditka said the timetable is to get Perry down to 320 by the time the Bears open their regular pre-seson camp July 21.

Brian Hill recorded eight strikeouts en route to a three-hit performance as Shop-Ez defeated Legal Eagles, 4-2, Friday in Prep League baseball action.

Shop Ez scored three runs in the third to break a scoreless tie but Legal Eagles came right back with two runs in the top of the fourth to make it 4-2, but that was as close as it would get.

Shop Ez added an insurance run in the bottom of the seventh to provide the final margin.

Hill led the way for Shop Ez with two hits.

WINTERVILLE — Depco defeated Computerland, 9-6, in the Winterville Bambino League Friday.

Jason Wethington got the win for Depco on the mound. Depco was led by Jason Purvis with three hits. No one had more than one hit for Computerland.

Little League

Bill Clark.....13
Kiwanis.....10

Brandon Moore collected three hits and drove in three runs as Bill Clark Construction held off a late charge from Kiwanis to take a 13-10 victory in North State Little League baseball action Friday.

Moore keyed a three-run first inning with an RBI double and followed that up with a two-double in the second inning as Bill Clark moved out to an early 7-0 lead.

Kory Welch added two hits for Bill Clark while Tutu Moye had three hits for Kiwanis. Andre Richardson and James Richardson added two hits apiece.

MacKenzie 23
Moose 0

MacKenzie Security's Craig Brannon and Monte Roundtree combined for a no-hitter and used a 15-hit attack to batter Moose, 23-0, Friday in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game.

MacKenzie broke the game open in the fourth inning, scoring 10 runs to take a 12-0 lead. Beau Williams drove in three runs during the inning while Bubba Williams, Roundtree and Brannon all had an RBI apiece.

MacKenzie added nine more runs in the fifth to further increase the MacKenzie lead.

Celts' Win Forces 7th Game

ATLANTA (AP) — The Boston Celtics had too much pride to close up shop this early in the NBA playoffs.

"We needed this for the team's morale," Larry Bird said after the Celtics trimmed the Atlanta Hawks 102-100 Friday night, forcing Game 7 in their best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal series and avoiding their earliest elimination in the playoffs in five years.

"There is no question in my mind about the character of our team," Dennis Johnson said. "We're not planning on losing Sunday, simply because we worked so hard to get it back to Boston."

The two teams will settle the issue at 1 p.m. EDT Sunday at the Boston Garden, on the parquet floor with 16 NBA championship banners fluttering overhead.

The winner will draw Detroit in the best-of-seven Eastern final next week, with the Pistons having completed a 4-1 victory over Chicago on Wednesday night. Today, the Utah Jazz visits the Los Angeles Lakers with the winner to meet Dallas next week for the Western Conference crown.

It took a struggle for the Celtics to square this series at 3-3.

After seemingly having taken control when Danny Ainge scored nine points in an 11-4 burst late in the third quarter, the Celtics had two turnovers in the final minute that gave Atlanta opportunities to win.

Ainge was called for traveling with 52 seconds to play, converted only one of two free throws with 33 seconds left and Bird allowed a 24-second shot clock violation with a cross-court pass with five seconds to play.

The Hawks could have forced overtime with a basket, but Cliff Levingston's shot off a drive down the middle bounced outside, where Johnson claimed the rebound for Boston.

"With our backs against the wall, we came out fighting the way Atlanta had," Celtics coach K.C. Jones said. "It was up to us to come out and play like we knew we could."

Jones, who already has announced his retirement as coach, has steered the Celtics into the NBA finals for the last four years, twice winning championships.

"We had to come out and fight and scratch and do anything to stay alive and take it back home," Jones said.

Atlanta had posted three consecutive victories in the series after Boston had won the first two games. An Atlanta victory in the series would make the Celtics only the fifth team in NBA history to lose a best-of-seven set after starting with a 2-0 lead.

"Boston played great defense, had the right plays and shots at the right times," Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello said. "This was the poorest game overall in what we were attempting to accomplish. With all the excitement, everyone tried to do his own thing."

Boston won this one with defense, holding Kevin Willis, a hero in earlier Atlanta victories, to only eight points. The Celtics also held Atlanta's bench, which had entered the game with a 169-47 edge over the Boston bench, to only a 21-12 advantage.

Kevin McHale led the Celtics with 26 points, despite sitting out six minutes of the second half in foul trouble. Bird added 23 points and Ainge scored 22.

Atlanta was a two-man show on this night that had a sellout crowd of 16,451 screaming for the Boston scalp throughout the game. Dominique Wilkins led the Hawks with 35 points and Glenn Rivers added 32.

"We must take it to them in Boston and not take anything for granted," McHale said. "I think we can win this series."

"We've been sitting around getting a lot of flak the last couple of days," Bird said. "I think we'll play like we did today, except we'll be at home. I'd say Sunday is going to be a big win for the Celtics."

"We were so emotional throughout the game that it took something out of us," Rivers said.

The Century 21 Golf Classic for Easter Seals will hold its regional tournament on June 6 at the Goldsboro Country Club.

The tournament is open to all amateur golfers with an established handicap. The tournament format is an 18-hole better ball of pair. There will be two divisions of play, men's and mixed.

The entry fee is $35 per person and includes greens fee and cart along with refreshments and a buffet.

Prizes will be awarded to the top four gross and top four net teams with the top winners in each classification advancing to the state tournament, to be played at Raintree Country Club in Matthews on Oct. 13-14.

For more information, contact Ray Rogers or Ed Crawford at Century 21, Dees & Tyndall Realtors, P.O. Box 10219, Goldsboro, N.C. 27532, or call (919) 778-8001.

Ayden Golf and Country Club

The annual Ayden Golf and Country Club Four-Ball Tournament was held last weekend at the club. A total of 104 two-man teams participated in the two-day event.

Jim Hillard and Whitney Miller III took top honors in the championship A flight, while Rudy Proctor and Butch O'Briant were second. Glenn Gulledge and Don Krutzer finished third.

In the championship B flight, Tim Shadle and Jeff Wingate took first, followed by Paul Andrews and Jimmy Walls in second and Tom Boyd and Dallas Jackson, third.

Mike Ventura and Joe Phillips took the title in the 1st flight A, followed by Mike Bryant and Mac Sykes in second and Al Hart and Ben Liverman in third. Julian Lassiter and Bill Warmack won the 1st flight B, trailed by Lester Watkins and Jack Lamb Jr. in second and Barry Kearney and Todd Hallow and Kenny Beamon and Robbie Pinner, tied for third.

In the 2nd flight A, Bill Johnson and Orren Babcock took first, followed by Morris Beasley and Jim Wheeler in second and Ralph Wingate and Bill Wingate in third. In the 2nd flight B, Jim Brewington and Charles McCullough took first, followed by Anthony Kennedy and Luby Powell in second and Robert Kennedy and George Smith in third.

Larry Farmer and Bob Lee took the title in the 3rd flight A, followed by James Flythe and Clark Whitley in second and Luke Smith and Jerry Saunders in third. Gary Hess and Harry Pawlick took the 3rd flight B, followed by Bruce Woolard and Donald Cutler in second and Cedric Bryant and Joe Beasley in third.

Scott Allsbrook, Bill Wingate, Dennis Askew and Ric Milliken took closest to the pins on Saturday, while Morris Weisner, Jim Wheeler, Lee Allen and Wes Barwick on Sunday.

Don Riberio scored a hole-in-one on the 12th hole at Ayden while playing with Bobby Pennington. The hole is 175 yards long.

Boating Business Recognized

A Greenville boating business has become one of the first businesses in the country to be recognized by the National Association of State Boating Law Administrators for the promotion of safe boating through advertisements.

The N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission nominated Overton's Inc., one of the largest boating mail order catalog businesses in the nation, for the award. Overton's catalog has included information concerning personal flotation devices and the legal requirements for carrying thoese devices aboard boats.

During the summer of 1987, Overton's radio advertisements included timely reports of lake information, such as low water levels, and reminders about safe boating and water skiing. Overton's boating and water reports also reminded boaters to avoid alcoholic beverages while operating a boat or skiing.

"Their messages were presented in a common-sense manner that could be understood by the young radio auidience hearing reports," said Col. Harold Ragland, chief of the Commission's Division of Enforcement.

He added that this national award is given to those companies "who include safe boat operation practices in their advertising messages. We recognize and appreciate the efforts Overton's has made to promote safe boat operation and encourage others to join these efforts."

Capt. Wilton Pate, chief safety officer for the commission, presented the award to Parker Overton, owner of Overton's Inc., and Chris Pardue, manager of the sporting good center's hunting and fishing section.

Boaters Warned About Damage

Drive-on boat trailers may have made it easier to load a boat at the end of a day of fishing or water skiing, but they have created a new maintenance problem at public boat ramps such as Tar River's access ramp at Port Terminal off N.C. 33.

"When boat owners gun the motor to drive the boat onto the trailer, the prop-wash runs down the ramps, and, when it hits the end of the concrete, it eats a hole in the dirt," said Cape Carnes, Piedmont supervisor of the N.C. Wildlife Commission's Division of the Boating and Inland Fisheries.

Drought conditions in the state in the past two years have aggravated the problem. As the water level drops, boaters have to back farther into the lake to load and unload their boats, often backing off the end of the ramp and into the hole that has been created by the prop-wash. These holes can be several feet deep. In areas like the the Chowan River, where much larger boats are being used, the problem is worse.

"This past winter when the water was down 10 feet at Gaston Lake, we were able to repair ramps on that lake by filling in the holes and then extending the cement another 30 feet," Carnes said. "This should prevent prop-wash problems at these ramps.

"It's tough to do this type of repair when the ramp is still under water, as is usually the case. When the water's low at other ramps, we'll make needed repairs. Until then, wherever we are aware that a problem exists we will be placing signs that indicate where the end of the ramp is."

Boaters should not back beyond the signs.

Boaters who back into one of the holes should take the boat off the trailer before trying to get out. Putting the truck in four-wheel drive and attempting to pull out a loaded trailer has resulted in serious damage — even pulling the axle out of the trailer.

Once the boat has been unloaded, the trailer should be lifted manually out of the hole and back onto the ramp. Then, the boat should be reloaded in more shallow water.

Boaters who drop off a ramp that does not have an "End of Ramp" sign should report it to the Wildlife Commission.

Saltwater Fishing Report

Anglers fishing in coastal areas of the state have reported nice catches of Spanish mackerel, as well as gray trout, during the past week.

According to sportsfishermen, trout weighing from one to two pounds were biting recently at Wallace Channel, while nice Spanish mackerel catches were reported by anglers fishing out of marinas at Morehead City.

Pier fishermen have reported good catches of bluefish, Spanish mackerel, a few spots and some flounder.

Surf fishermen at Carolina and Kure beaches said blues in the three to four-pound range were being hooked.

The weather and water both continue to warm, causing fish to move closer to shore. This allows boat fishermen more fishing time because they don't have to travel as far for success. Fish are also more plentiful for pier and surf fishermen.

Strong Runs Continue

By The Associated Press

The Spanish and king mackerel continued their strong early showings along the North Carolina coastline last week — when the weather allowed fishermen to get their hooks in.

"They've been catching a lot of Spanish ... and they caught a few kings earlier this week," said George Fokakis of the Crystal Pier in Wrightsville Beach. Offshore fishing was also plentiful along the coast, with several reports of tuna, king mackerel and other fish being caught.

Here is a look at how some selected areas fared along the coast last week.

Hatteras

Dave Hissey of the Pelican's Roost reported a big week.

"In the surf, we've had big blues from Cape Point to Hatteras Inlet, from 12 to 20 pounds," Hissey said. "We've had sea mullet, a few flounder and a few pan trout in the surf, also.

"In the sound, we've had excellent catches of grey trout, big blues and a few flounder. Inshore fishing, we've had real good catches of bonito and Spanish mackerel.

"Offshore has been escellent for tuna, wahoo, dolphin, king mackerel and billfish."

Hissey also reported catches of red drum in Hatteras Inlet and Ocracoke Inlet as well as a good run of cobia in Ocracoke Inlet.

Southport

Jim Ratcliffe of the Long Beach Pier reported good pier fishing.

"The Spanish and blues have been plentiful off the pier," he said. "There's also been plenty of spots, a few flounder and few whiting.

"Offshore they're picking up some kings, grouper and black fish."

Topsail Island

Hollis Whitley of the Jolly Roger Pier reported a "general mixture of fish."

"The blues and the Spanish are still running real good," he said. "We had some spots (Wednesday), not in great quantity and not in great size."

Rare River Pearl Mussel Still Exists

By EMERSON HEFFNER
The (Hazleton) Standard-Speaker

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP) — A small, pure-water trout stream in Schuylkill County is the only home in the state for an extremely rare creature called the Eastern River Pearl Mussel.

A clam-like invertebrate, the mussel was killed off by mine pollution and trinket collectors who hunted it because of the beautiful pink and pearl colors inside its shell.

Thirteen scientists from the northeast United States waded through several miles of Locust Creek recently to find, count and study the mussel in hopes of keeping the species there for years to come.

According to Tony Wilkinson of the Nature Conservancy's Pennsylvania Natural Diversity Inventory program, the mussels were distributed when glaciers left the state 10,000 years ago.

"As the glaciers receded, there weren't appropriate sites for it," Wilkinson said. "It just so happens that this is a pocket that has the conditions it needs, so it's survived here. It really is a relic."

The conservationists and workers from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and U.S. Department of Forestry came from as far away as Maine and Virginia to participate in a week-long symposium in the Poconos.

While one group was studying a scrub oak plain near Long Pond last week, the group led by Wilkinson was at the creek to determine the range of the mussel and to give some of the conservationists a chance to spot the mussels.

The scientists met at a tiny bridge spanning the stream and split into two groups, one going upstream, the other downstream. What they found was a good population of pearl mussels that they hope will be preserved, according to Dr. Robert E. Jenkins, vice president of science programs for the Nature Conservancy.

"It was a good trip," Jenkins said. "We had never looked at the population to (that) extent. I didn't know what to expect, but it's obviously a real healthy population."

The scientists crept through the chilly water, hunched over and peered through plastic buckets with Plexiglass bottoms to spy the tops of the mussels sticking out of the sandy creek bottom.

In a 100-yard stretch above the bridge, 36 pearl mussels were spotted, and many more were seen farther upstream.

Public Notice

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will hold a public hearing on June 2, 1988 at 7:00 P.M. in the Commissioner's Auditorium located on the second floor of the Pitt County Office Building, 1717 West Fifth Street, Greenville, N.C. 27834. The purpose of this hearing is to solicit public comment regarding a request to amend State Wildlife Laws to allow a doe season for deer hunting in Pitt County.

Small Firms Make A Big Splash At High Point Furniture Market

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Eight years ago, Charlie Sutton, founder of a furniture reproductions firm in North Carolina, was bent on a career in college administration.

Around the same time, Rhett and Barbara Sypher, who started Shoal Creek lamps and accessories in 1980, were assembling orders at their kitchen table.

Though small by any measure, both companies made a big splash at the recent furniture market in High Point, N. C. Their success illustrates the fact that the twice-yearly markets offer individuals who think they have a good idea for home furnishings an opportunity to test their ideas — and maybe to come up with a successful business.

According to Bill Peterson, editor-in-chief of Furniture Today, a trade publication headquartered in High Point, even though the trend in furniture manufacturing is toward consolidation into larger units, an entrepreneur can succeed just about as easily as 20 years ago. "If something is a little different and the consumer likes it, it goes," he said.

Furthermore, coming to High Point is less expensive than setting up a national sales organization and it's a way of reaching perhaps as many as 80 percent of furniture retailers.

The statistics bear Peterson out. Between 1977 and 1987, the number of exhibitors at the market went from 1,300 to 1,600.

At the same time, showroom space in High Point increased from 4 million to 6 million square feet, said Richard Barentine, executive director of the Furniture Factories' Marketing Association, the market sponsor.

A million square feet of that space was relocated from the western part of the state and the other million represents the addition of new exhibitors. In the same period, the number of showroom buildings has increased 66 percent from 90 to 150. Typically, a new small company might lease temporary space. Then after they've tested the waters, they often decide to take permanent space.

The Syphers set up Shoal Creek's first small showroom space in High Point in 1982. This year sales are expected to be about $6.5 million. Besides a spacious showroom building, there is a parking lot large enough to hold several thousand marketgoers who during the last year were treated to rock concerts featuring the Coasters singing group. Sypher, tenor and once warmup singer for the group, also entertained.

He acknowledged he did not come unprepared for success in the furniture industry. He was a business major in college and during his singing career he handled the business affairs of the various bands.

Before starting his own business, he worked for a lamp wholesaler as a sales representatives. His first product line consisted of lamps made of Chinese procelain vases he imported.

Today, the Shoal Creek product line includes about 900 items of lamps and decorative accessories.

Both Syphers are active in their business, continuing a partnership that began at the kitchen table when Barbara Sypher assembled orders. Today, she is executive vice president of the company, responsible for day-to-day administration, advertising and public relations. Rhett concentrates on marketing and merchandising. The design emphasis of the firm is on providing good values that are traditional, not trendy.

Concentrating on tradition has also helped Sutton build his small cabinetmaking firm into a company important enough to attract the attention of Century Furniture Co.

Here's The Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — You once answered a reader who had trouble with a sweating toilet tank. I clipped it out of the paper because I had a similar problem. I can't find the clip. I am sure others have the same problem and, like me, would appreciate another explanation of this sweating.

A. — Condensation, which shows up in the form of sweating or dripping water, occurs when warm, moist air settles on a cold surface. The outside of a toilet tank is usually cold because of the cold water inside it. When the warmer air inside the bathroom hits the tank, the resulting condensation drips down the tank to the floor. It's often mistaken for a leak, which it isn't. A tank with a fabric cover on it does not sweat because the warm air doesn't settle on the tank. The fabric cover thus serves the double purpose of being decorative and useful. It isn't perfect because the warm air can get under the fabric, sometimes immediately and sometimes after a period of time, but it's one way of preventing the problem, at least over the part of the tank that is covered. There are two other solutions. One is to drain the water out of the tank and apply a tank liner made of insulating material. Some hardware stores, home centers and plumbing supply houses carry them, but sometimes they are a bit difficult to get. If you wish, you can cut and shape a liner of your own from an insulating material. The best and most permanent solution is to have a plumber install a mixing device that will allow enough hot water into the tank to keep the contents of the tank lukewarm. This will prevent the outside of the tank from getting cold and thus there will be no condensation.

Q. — Our house has a dirt driveway. I would like to put down a concrete covering. I have had some experience in working with concrete, but have never tackled anything as big as a driveway. I think I know most of the answers and I intend to have the mixture brought to the site by truck. The thing I am not sure about is how long to wait between the time the concrete is installed and the process of doing the finishing operations. Is there a special time for this?

A. — Frankly, it sounds as though you need some kind of refresher course. Get yourself a book that deals with this kind of work. As for your specific question, the finishing operations should take place as the concrete begins to set a little. This is when the surface water begins to disappear. It is not an easy matter to do a driveway by yourself. You should have some help.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much helpful information on a variety of subjects in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $2 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J., 07666.)

Garden Clinic

Q. Can I divide a clump of agapanthus bulbs in order to increase them?
A. Agapanthus is very easily propagated by dividing the clumps. This can be done at most any time of year.

Q. Why do mockingbirds periodically spread their wings when they perch or walk across the lawn? They look similar to people flexing their muscles or stretching when they yawn.
A. No one knows for sure what purpose this action serves. It has been suggested that the shadow created by the outstretched wings may make it easier to spot an insect. It is an instinctive action; baby mockingbirds raised away from other mockingbirds exhibit the same trait.

Q. A colony of pink ladyslipper orchids is growing in my woods. I want to move some to my garden. What is the best time to do this?
A. Do not try to move the pink ladyslippers (Cypripedium acaule) from where they are growing. In order for the pink ladyslipper (also called pink moccasin flower) to survive transplanting, a fungal partner needs to remain attached to the roots. This fungus joins the germinated orchid seed and develops with the orchid in a symbiotic relationship. The tiny fungal hairs are attached to the roots and absorb water and nutrients used by the orchid. The orchid, in turn, provides the fungus with food that the orchid produced through photosynthesis. When this delicate environment is disturbed even a little bit, the fungus becomes detached from the orchid's roots and both decline. Within three years of transplanting, the pink ladyslipper is dead. If you ordered a pink ladyslipper from a catalogue, it probably did bloom the first year. The second year only leaves appeared, and by the third year when it did not return at all, you may have thought you did something wrong or blamed the weather. It is important for the survival of the pink ladyslipper and other beautiful native orchids that we leave them where they are found. Protect the plant's habitat, support local conservation efforts, and take a photograph of the orchids and bring it home to enjoy year-round.

er you remove the old finish a piece of furniture, you may ver traces of color still remain wood.

he stain residue fails to come off a light sanding, you must resort me kind of bleach to get the ed result. Exactly which kind of h depends on how stubborn the lor is.

some cases, the stain may yield rdinary household bleach, the used for clothes. This is cially so when only a part of the is darker than the surrounding ce. A little careful rubbing often do the trick. "Careful" rubbing, use even a household bleach can e damage to your hands. Wear er gloves and work with caution. any bleach, something must be n the wood later to neutralize the In the case of household bleach, ffective neutralizer is vinegar. If vood begins to get lighter but not ight as you want, repeat the tment.

ofessional wood finishers often bleach the wood after removing the old finish on the theory it produces a uniform color (or lack of it) that will "take" stain very evenly. They generally use a commercial bleach, which comes in separate containers. It is vital the instructions be followed to the letter, as to mixing or non-mixing and the kind of neutralizer to be used. Also, check to see whether a light sanding is necessary if it appears the bleach has raised the grain of the wood. And, most definitely, observe the recommendations about rubber gloves and any other safety precautions. Generally, you will be advised to use a nylon brush for the application of the bleach. A certain amount of time, usually about 20 minutes, must elapse between the first application and the second. Whatever it says on the label, do it meticulously, since different brands of bleaches sometimes require different procedures.

A cabinetmaker of my acquaintance said he always got excellent bleaching results on open-grained woods, such as oak and ash, by using three solutions. The first called for a mixture of three ounces of oxalic acid and one quart of water. The second, a mixtures of three ounces of sodium hyposulphate with a quart of water. And the third, an ounce of borax with a quart of water. The oxalic acid solution was applied first with a stiff brush. When it was partly dry, the hypo solution was applied. And when that was completely dry, the borax solution was used as the neutralizer. The new finish was not put on for at least 24 hours. The cabinetmaker said this was a superior bleach for the open-grained woods, but some wood finishers have various other bleach combinations, all of them utilizing oxalic acid.

There are various products on the market that can lighten wood. Lightener stains are pigmented and are rubbed on, allowing the pigment to be absorbed and giving the wood a lighter appearance. Whether you use these or the more properly called bleaches, it's a good idea to get the hang of what you are doing by testing the products first on scrap wood.

candinavian Design Reflects efreshing, Elegant Simplicity

By HOUSE BEAUTIFUL
A Hearst Magazine

nericans are rediscovering dinavian interior design — ttered, lighthearted and some-s whimsical.

is fresh breeze from the north e just in time, according to an ar- in the current issue of House tiful — just as people were tir-of overdecorated rooms, fur-ngs so shiny the materials can't th and show-room slick styling s inhospitable to life at home.

e elegant simplicity of Scan-via is more refined than rustic, e pared down than palatial.

e classical country looks of nark, Finland, Norway and en derive from the courtly s of the 18th century. Here are of the elements that define the of Scandinavia.

Painted finishes dominate with el-washed straight-backed s, settees and high tables that for taking tea, playing games ading.

en King Gustavus III of Sweden took up the fashionable look from southern Europe in the late 1700s, all shades of white from oyster to heavy cream were used to lighten the Louis XVI and Queen-Anne-like lines of furniture. The treatment still works wonders.

— Spare arrangements of furniture on bare or rag-rug-scattered scrubbed-pine floors keep clutter at bay.

— Pastel palettes are neutralized with blond wood and the liberal use of white and pearl gray.

Scandinavian color schemes may call for tender blues, greens and yellows, but they are never too sweet. Rooms seem meant to blush, rather than appear overly made-up.

Special effects with faux finishes, swag and bow borders and "petticoat" slipcovers are show-stoppers.

— Fine handicrafts humanize spaces, whether homespun sill-length curtains, bouquets of gathered flowers strung up to dry by the hearth or the carved panels that front a country cupboard.

— A sense of suitability casts an appealing air of the real over Scandinavian schemes. There's no wasted space, no showcasing of the precious at the expense of the practical. A touch of whimsy saves them from being too serious.

There is an uncompromising sense of design in interiors from Nordic lands, whether in tiny teahouses or country manors.

A wonderful example of Scandinavian style is a teahouse at the open-air museum in Aarhus, Denmark.

The limed walls are melon-colored, the trim is painted ginger and white. The casement windows are decorated by simple curtains swagged with rosettes. Furniture is detailed in burnished brown. Bare floors and minimal fabrics keep the setting light and its diminutive scale is typically Danish.

The Scandinavian look can be created with look-alikes and reproductions that promise harmony with clean-lined American furniture or offer a calm counterpoint to highly ornamental antiques and sleek modern pieces.

Earnings Reported

Integon Corp. reported that premiums from its life insurance and property and casualty insurance operations showed strong growth during the first quarter of 1988.

James R. Ridley, president, said combined premiums from Integon's insurance companies rose 55 percent to $111.9 million for the quarter ended March 31, up from $72.2 million for the same period a year ago.

First quarter life insurance premiums increased 42 percent to $65.2 million, up from $45.8 million in 1987, while property and casualty premiums rose 77 percent to $46.7 million, up from $26.4 million last year.

First quarter income from operations dipped 15 percent to $5.9 million, partially as the result of interest payments on loans associated with Integon's acquisition of Georgia International Life Insurance Co. last March, Ridley said. Integon's net income for the quarter totaled $41,000.

Employees Honored

Four employees of Belk at Carolina East Mall were among more than 210 Belk associates with 25 or more years of service honored recently by the company.

Honored at a recognition luncheon in Raleigh were Estelle Jomp, 37 years of service; Greenville Banks Jr., 31 years; Johnnie Small, 30 years, and Ruby Moore, 27 years.

Employees with 25 or 50 years of service received a plaque recognizing their tenures. All of the attendees received a leather bookmark and will receive a copy of the recently completed Belk history book upon its publication later this year.

The luncheon was one of seven being held throughout the Belk 16-state market area as part of the organization's 100th anniversary celebration.

Belk said it is the largest family- and management-owned department store organization in the United States, with nearly 350 stores and 35,000 employees.

Club Induction

Andy Warren, senior vice president and regional executive for the Northern Region of Peoples Bank & Trust Co. in Greenville, was inducted recently into the bank's President's Club.

Fritz Smith, vice president and sales manager for the bank, said that club membership is the "premier recognition of outstanding achievement awarded by Peoples Bank to its employees."

The bank said 27 inductees from the Peoples system and their spouses were honored with a trip to The Tides Lodge Resort in Irvington, Va., near the Chesapeake Bay. Events included the annual awards celebration, where Marshall Tetterton, president, presented awards and gifts to members and their spouses.

Smith said that Warren qualified for President's Club membership based on his individual performance in relationship to his goal and for the performance of participants in his region.

Planners Cited

Jim Bengala and Leon Smith Jr., registered representatives with IDS/American Express in Greenville, were recognition recently as being among the top 10 financial planners in the Raleigh division, which covers an area from Durham to the Outer Banks.

IDS/American/Express said the Financial Planning Award they received is in recognition of superior service to clients, quality business, and outstanding production results.

Smith and Bengala have been with the company for 31 years and five years, respectively.

Purchase Approved

First Citizens Bank announced that it has received final regulatory approval from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the State Banking Commission to acquire six offices of Barclays Bank of North Carolina.

First Citizens said the offices are located in Ahoskie, Bayboro, Clinton, Rockingham, Tarboro and Windsor and have deposits totaling approximately $46 million.

Record Figures

Vermont American Corp. reported record sales and earnings for the first quarter of fiscal 1988.

The company said net sales for the quarter ended March 31 were $95,347,000 compared with $80,684,000 in the year-earlier period.

Net income was $6,641,000 or 65 cents per share compared with $5,877,000 or 57 cents per share in the first quarter of 1987.

Vermont American's board of directors, meeting recently, declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of 10 cents per share on the company's Class A and Class B common stock, payable May 25 to shareholders of record May 2.

The company, which has a plant in Greenville, manufactures and markets cutting tools, power took accessories, hand tools, and lawn and garden products for consumer and industrial use.

Real Estate Seminar

Cindy Hoblitzell and Richard Lane of Ball & Lane in Greenville attended a one-day real estate seminar recently in Raleigh.

Seminar topics included effective communications, establishing accurate market values and providing professional services.

Sales Post Filled

Hatteras Canvas announced the appointment of Kimberly "Cookie" Davis as its sales representative in the Greenville market.

The company said Ms. Davis will represent the newest division of the Hatteras Group — Hatteras Screenprint.

Ms. Davis holds an associate degree from Pitt Community College and is completing requirements for a degree in business management at East Carolina University. She has previously held positions as new business administrator, sales, and stock market postings.

An Enfield native, Ms. Davis has been a resident of Greenville for five years. She is a member of the ECU Pirates Club and the American Business Women's Association.

Banking Officer

Chris Kondracki Lewis has been promoted to banking officer by the board of directors of Branch Banking and Trust Co. in Wilson, according to Jerry W. Powell, senior vice president and area manager in Greenville.

A mortgage loan officer in Greenville, Ms. Lewis joined the bank in 1986 as a senior mortgage loan processor and has worked as a mortgage loan officer since 1987.

A native of Greenville, Ms. Lewis is a graduate of East Carolina University with a bachelor's degree in home economics. She is a member of the Womens Council of Realtors and the Mortgage Lenders Association. She is a member of St. Peter's Church.

Ms. Lewis has one child.

Credit Manager

Eddy R. Jones, president of East Carolina Farm Credit Service in Greenville, announced the employment of Ronnie G. James as credit manager with the agency.

RONNIE G. JAMES

Jones said James will be assisting the organization's chief credit manager in credit administration responsibilities and will support the area and branch staff in the supervision of large and complex loans.

James was formerly an area manager for Farm Credit Service in southwest Florida and has been associated with the system since 1976.

He is a graduate of East Carolina University and resides in Greenville with his wife, Katherine, and two daughters, Amber and Amy.

Dividend Declared

J. Allen Fine, president and chairman of the board of Investors Title Co., announced that the company's board of directors declared a cash dividend of 1 cent per share to shareholders of record June 1, payable June 13.

Fine said the action brings the total dividends paid this year by Investors Title to 2 cents per share.

New Staff Members

Coldwell Banker-W.G. Blount & Associates, Realtors, announced that Shirley Herald and Ray Everett have joined the Greenville agency as Realtors.

A native of Bethel who has lived in Windsor since 1962, Ms. Herald received a bachelor's degree from Salem College. She owned a restaurant for 10 years and a ladies apparel store for 11 years. She has been a caterer for 25 years.

She and her husband, Jerry, have two children, Ashley and Greg, and two granddaughters.

Everett retired from the Air Force with six years experience as a real estate broker. He is a member of the Pitt-Greenville Board of Realtors and was formerly associated with Carolina East Realty Inc.

Account Executive

Fickling Insurance Associates announced that Bruce R. Wackelin has joined the agency's staff as an account executive specializing in commercial property, casualty, life and health products.

Wackelin joins the Greenville firm after nine years with a multiline insurance carrier in eastern North Carolina.

A candidate for the CIC and CLU designations, he is the recipient of various National Association of Life Underwriters awards for sales achievement and performance.

Retail Salesman

Garris Evans Lumber Co. Inc. of 701 W. 14th St. announced the appointment of William (Bill) Cary as a retail salesman.

The firm said that Cary, who was formerly general manager for an independent tire store in New Jersey, has over 20 years of retail sales and management experience.

Cary and his wife, Joyce, reside on King George Road in Greenville. The family attends St. Peter's Catholic Church.

Show On Network

Barbara Cleary, director of Business Forum of Greenville, announced that "Barbara King On Business," weekday radio program she produces through her firm, is now airing on The Southern Farm Network.

She said that network affiliation offers the program to 18 AM and FM stations primarily in eastern North Carolina, but including Charlotte and bordering South Carolina.

In addition to the program's hub, WNCT-FM 108 in Greenville, and other stations airing "Barbara King On Business," the program continues airing on WTEB FM 89.3, eastern North Carolina's National Public Radio affiliate.

The program, sponsored by Barclays Bank of North Carolina and COECO, presents a different topic each day featuring people, places, trends, events and resources in the region, she said.

Technicians Honored

Copypro Business Systems Inc. announced that it honored service technicians Dana Mills, Lee Davenport, Marty Watts and Butch Lewis recently for their performance during the first quarter of 1988.

PSI Chapter Meets

The Greenville Chapter Professional Secretaries International will meet Monday at 6:15 p.m. at the Three Steers Restaurant on Memorial Drive.

Earnings Increased

Reginald M. Fountain Jr., president and chief executive officer of Fountain Powerboat Industries Inc., Washington, N.C., announced that the company's earnings for the three months ended March 31 were $181,964 or 4 cents per share compared to $96,848 or 2 cents per share for the same period in 1987.

Fountain said earnings for the six-month period ended March 31 were $250,981 or 6 cents per share compared to $101,757 or 2 cents per share in 1987.

Sales for the three-month period were $4.7 million, more than double that of the same period in 1987, according to the spokesman. Sales for the six-month period were $8.1 million, up 143 percent from the same period in 1987.

The company, through its wholly-owned subsidiary, Fountain Powerboats Inc., designs, manufactures and sells deepwater sport and sport fishing boats.

National Ranking

First Union Corporation's Capital Management Group has been ranked one of the nation's best investment managers — among banks, insurance companies and mutual funds — for a 10-year period which ended Dec. 31, 1987, the Charlotte-based company said.

First Union said the 10-year rankings were conducted and published by CDA Investment Technologies Inc., an independent investment performance measurement service based in Silver Spring, Md.

The firm's value equity fund for retirement accounts posted a 466.9 percent return during the rating period, while the group's common stock fund for individuals posted a 10-year cumulative return of 545.6 percent for the period. The performance of the two stock funds placed them 10th and third, respectively, among 887 banks, insurance companies and mutual funds ranked.

The CDA survey indicated First Union's performance for the past 10 years places it in the top 2 percent of money managers nationwide for the period.

Cash Dividend

The board of directors of The Planters Corp. declared a second quarter cash dividend of 13 cents per share, payable June 15 to shareholders of record on May 31.

Planters said the dividend represents an 8 percent increase from the dividend paid in the second quarter of 1987, which was 12 cents per share.

The corporation, with its subsidiary Planters National Bank, reported total assets on March 31 of $937 million.

Business Activity

Business activity in North Carolina was up 0.8 percent in the first quarter, according to the First Wachovia North Carolina Business Index, while over the past year, the index has risen 3.9 percent.

First Wachovia said the index, which has four components, rose because of a 1 percent increase in non-agricultural employment during the quarter. The average manufacturing workweek was unchanged.

Initial claims for unemployment insurance rose 23 percent, while the value of residential building permits, which reflect construction plans, fell 9.3 percent.

Nationaly, non-agricultural employment was up 0.9 percent for the quarter. Over the past year, non-agricultural employment in the state has grown 4 percent; for the nation it has increased 3.1 percent.

North Carolina manufacturing employment rose 0.7 percent for the quarter. Higher employment was reported in the furniture and chemical industries.

Non-manufacturing employment was up 1.1 percent during the quarter. Employment was lower in the trade, government and construction sectors.

The index measures the state's economic activity quarterly.

Store Gets Award

Belk at Carolina East Mall has received an award for the best tie-in with Belk Stores Services during a fashions promotion week, presented by the Belk/Leggett stores Sales Promotion Association at the organization's annual meeting.

Lori Deal, visual merchandiser, accepted the award for the Greenville store.

All of the nearly 350 Belk/Leggett stores in 16 states were eligible to enter the competition. Entrants were judged according to store size, Belk said.

Awards were presented for 1987 achievements in the areas of newspaper, radio, magazine and television adversiting, visual merchandising, special events, and multimedia advertising.

The SPA is a professional organization for Belk/Leggett associates in the fields of sales promotion, advertising, special events and visual merchandising.

Standard-Setting At Center Of Computer Makers' Battle

By PETER COY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Computers would be easier to use if the companies that make them would stop their bickering, something that became clear this past week in a bitter battle over a simplification plan.

The fight over Unix, a base layer of computer software, is reminiscent of the days when railroads laid tracks of different gauges and couldn't agree who should rip theirs up.

Railroad museums have pictures showing that stevedores once had to lug freight between trains that couldn't run on the same tracks.

Most railroads overcame their differences decades ago, but computer makers are still at each other's throats.

There are few pure hearts in the fight over computer standards, which pits American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the upstart Sun Microsystems Inc. against International Business Machines Corp., Digital Equipment Corp., Hewlett-Packard Co. and four others.

Customers are clamoring for Unix, the prize in this battle, because it allows them to run the same programs on different kinds of computers.

As things are now, it's as if someone had to buy one kind of television to watch "Dallas" and another kind to watch "Monday Night Football."

AT&T made the telephone easy to use and says it can do the same for computers. AT&T invented Unix and wants to continue controlling its development, with Sun's help.

But by the end of the week, some people were saying that AT&T had miscalculated, alienating not only its rivals but some customers as well.

William H. Anderson, the computer chief for Prudential-Bache Securities Inc., said AT&T had performed a "disservice" to customers by altering Unix to make it more dependent on a computer chip designed by its partner, Sun Microsystems.

AT&T denies it has doctored Unix for its own purposes. The company says Unix is in good hands and questions the motives of some of its rivals, which want to turn over development of Unix to an Open Software Foundation.

The foundation, announced Tuesday, is backed by $90 million over its first three years. Its mission is to create a computing "environment" that would include a unified version of Unix.

AT&T is refusing to join the foundation, and there is a possibility that Unix will split in half just as it reaches the big leagues.

"I think that AT&T has not learned that it is no longer possible for a single company to control standards," said Marvin Sirbu, a computer standards expert at Carnegie-Mellon University who takes the side of the Open Software Foundation.

The stakes are high. Computer systems that primarily use Unix are likely to make up 22 percent of a $120 billion world market by 1991, up from 6 percent of an $87 billion world market in 1986, International Data Corp. estimates.

Some AT&T executives are hinting that IBM and Digital might impede progress toward a unified Unix for selfish reasons.

It is indisputable that computer makers such as IBM and Digital benefit when they can lock customers into their own, private operating systems. That way they can charge more for products because there is less competition. Customers can't afford to switch to another supplier because they would have to junk all their existing equipment.

But like it or not, IBM and Digital are being pushed to support open operating systems such as Unix because customers are demanding them.

Prudential-Bache is insisting on Unix for many uses because it allows the company to choose computers with the best combination of price and performance without worrying that they won't be able to run the company's software, Anderson said.

Anderson dismisses the theory that IBM and Digital would try to fragment Unix to keep customers using their own, private operating systems. "I've listened to talk like that for the last 30 years," he said.

Other observers are more willing to attribute ulterior motives to IBM and Digital. But they say any impulses by those companies to undermine Unix would be checked by Hewlett-Packard, Apollo Computer Inc. and other members of the new foundation.

Financial Problems Buckle Land Bank

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government regulators are holding out hope of an early reopening date for the Jackson, Miss., Federal Land Bank, whose doors have been closed as a result of long-running financial problems.

The bank will reopen under the management of a receiver "as soon as it is practicable," Farm Credit Administration Chairman Frank W. Naylor Jr. said in a statement.

He announced that the billion-dollar Farm Credit System bank was being closed and that Ronald E. Watkins of Jackson was being appointed as a receiver to manage its strained finances.

Officials formally closed the doors of the bank and its 90 branches in Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana at 5:30 p.m. EDT on Friday.

The institution is the most troubled component of the $50 billion Farm Credit System, a nationwide network of borrower-owned banks and lending associations that represents a major credit source for American agriculture.

Financial woes that have plagued the Farm Credit System through the 1980s prompted Congress to pass a major bailout law last year. The Jackson bank earlier received $30 million under the plan to raise loan money but had been losing $4.7 million a month since the first of the year.

The loan portfolio totaled $1.68 billion a year's end, but 40 percent of that amount was classified as either nonperforming or high risk. Meanwhile, liabilities climbed to $1.9 billion on March 31.

In closing the bank's doors and naming a receiver, authorities moved to reassure both borrowers and creditors.

"We have taken this prudent action in order to enable the Farm Credit System to continue to provide a full range of credit services to the borrowers in the three-state area," Naylor said. His agency regulates institutions within the system.

"Borrower stock is protected by the recently passed Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 and will be retired by the receiver with funds provided under the act," Naylor said. He said earlier legislation "provides mechanisms to assure that there will be no disruption of payment of principle and interest on the banks' outstanding securities."

REW Enterprises Inc., headed by Watkins, issued a letter saying that "every available effort will be made to continue serving ... all the borrowers."

Mill Ponders Water Cleaning Invention

ASHEVILLE (AP) — A western North Carolina paper mill and the inventor of a process to clean up paper mill wastewater are close to agreement on a deal to let company scientists try out the invention.

Retired research engineer Philip Neal of Asheville has applied for a patent on the technique, which uses four ingredients to turn dirty, coffee-colored water sparkling clear.

Neal has declined to reveal the ingredients until his patent is awarded. However, he and officials at Champion International's paper mill in Canton are working out a deal to allow the company to use the discovery while keeping its formula a secret.

"We are most anxious to sit down and discuss his technology and hope that we can have this agreement completed as soon as possible," said Charles Curtis, a spokesman for the mill. "We want to evaluate (the invention) and see if we can apply it to our technology here at the mill."

The pollution in the Pigeon River, which runs through Canton into eastern Tennessee, has been the source of bitter dispute between Tennessee and North Carolina. Each day, Champion dumps about 45 million gallons of coffee-colored discharge into the river, which is stained brown as far as the Tennessee state line, some 40 miles away.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency had proposed that Champion reduce the color in the discharge by 65 percent, but company officials claimed it could not be done with available technology. A compromise agreement was reached in March to reduce the color by half. To comply, Champion has said it will have to spend about $100 million.

Meanwhile, Richard Maas, an environmental scientist at the University of North Carolina at Asheville, is working with Neal to refine the invention. He said a miniature wastewater treatment plant would be set up at the university within about a week.

Maas also said he has contracted with a laboratory to determine if Neal's invention would be successful in removing cancer-causing dioxins from the paper mill discharge. Dioxins are believed by some scientists to be a byproduct of paper mill production.

In a demonstration April 28 at the university, Neal used his potion to transform a vial of dirty water taken from the Pigeon River into liquid nearly as clear as tap water. When the ingredients were added, the discolored water immediately turned milky white and cleared within about 20 minutes as a white sludge settled to the bottom of the vial.

"We have a research program up and in full swing on this color removal process," Maas told the Asheville Citizen Thursday. "I've hired two students, and we're working on this full time, running lots of experiments and learning new things each day. We anticipate that we will be operating a pilot plant set up here within a week."

Neal, 69, worked as a research engineer for the Feldspar Corp. in Spruce Pine and in Asheville for North Carolina State University's Minerals Research Laboratory before retiring in 1982.

Last month, he formed the Hansel Corp. to apply for the patent. He believes his invention can inexpensively remove 90 percent of the color from the Canton mill's discharge.

Maas said he would meet with Champion scientists within a month.

He said at least two other processes exist that will clean paper mill wastewater in a batch test the way Neal's did in the demonstration.

"But one creates a sludge that is difficult to deal with, and the other takes large volumes of materials," he said.

Platinum Futures Jump Keys Metals Spurt

By DAVID DISHNEAU
Associated Press Writer

Platinum futures prices jumped more than $11 a troy ounce Friday, leading other precious metals higher as key indicators reinforced ideas that inflation is worsening, analysts said.

On other markets, most livestock and meat futures gained; the pork markets received some startling news about supplies; grains and soybeans advanced; energy futures were mixed; and stock index futures retreated.

A combination of inflationary signals and indications of economic growth have made platinum the leader of the precious-metals complex because platinum is used as both an industrial metal and a hedge against inflation, analysts said.

Friday's government report showing a 0.4 percent increase in consumer prices in April supported the metals rally on Friday. But the real boost came late in the day when a sudden surge in soybean and grain futures prices propelled the Commodity Research Bureau's price index of 21 commodities up sharply.

With Friday's 1.31-point gain, the CRB index for May delivery ended the week at 246.11, up 6.81 points from the previous Friday's close on the New York Futures Exchange.

"That's really a fantastic move," said Craig Sloane, metals analyst for Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co. in New York. "All these things — commodity prices, strength of the economy — they're all feeding into why the metals are beginning to move."

Platinum settled $11.10 to $11.20 higher on the New York Mercantile Exchange, with the contract for delivery in July at $568.60 a troy ounce.

On the Commodity Exchange in New York, gold was 50 cents to 70 cents higher with June at $458.70 a troy ounce; silver was 7.5 cents to 7.9 cents higher with May at $6.69 a troy ounce.

Livestock and meat futures finished mostly higher in light, pre-weekend trading on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. But a government cold-storage report released after the close prompted predictions that pork futures would open lower on Monday.

The Agriculture Department said the number of hams in cold storage nearly doubled during April to 51.6 million pounds. That compares with 24 million pounds on April 1 and 11.3 million pounds on May 1, 1987.

The USDA said the total amount of pork in cold storage was up 82 percent from last year, including 102.5 million pounds of frozen pork bellies, the third-largest May 1 total ever, said Chuck Levitt, an analysts in Chicago with Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc.

The large stocks of frozen pork won't have an immediate impact on futures prices but will begin exerting heavy price pressure in July, when demand for pork products typically out-strips the supply of fresh meat, Levitt said.

Live cattle settled .40 cent lower to .25 cent higher with June at 73.37 cents a pound; feeder cattle were .05 cent to .25 cent higher with May at 80.90 cents a pound; hogs were .05 cent lower to .35 cent higher with June at 53.87 cents a pound; frozen pork bellies were .75 cent lower to .37 cent higher with May at 53.25 cents a pound.

Grain and soybean futures closed higher on the Chicago Board of Trade with soybeans up sharply on fears of continued dry weather.

Weekend weather forecasts were mixed, but even the most optimistic outlooks called for scattered showers to bring only slight moisture to parts of the Corn Belt, analysts said.

With soybean stockpiles declining, a poor crop this year could lead to tight supplies next year.

The National Weather Serv-ice, in a six-to-10 day outlook issued after the close, predicted warm temperatures and normal rainfall for most of the Midwest during the latter half of next week and the Memorial Day weekend.

Wheat settled unchanged to 5¼ cents higher with July at $3.46½ a bushel; corn was unchanged to 3¾ cents higher with July at $2.21¼ a bushel; oats were 1 cent to 1½ cents higher with July at $1.73¾ a bushel; soybeans were unchanged to 11¾ cents higher with July at $7.78¾ a bushel.

Energy futures finished mixed on the New York Mercantile Exchange as the contract for June delivery of crude oil expired at $17.17 a barrel.

Bell-Mail Collaboration

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois Bell is using the mail to reach thousands of customers in six western suburbs to make sure service is back after a two-week disruption by a fire at a switching station.

Illinois Bell spokesman Dick Hill said that as of Saturday almost all of the 35,000 customers who lost dial tones after the May 8 fire have had partial service restored, although there were still some "spotty problems" with about 200 to 300 lines still not working.

Those people should have limited service restored by the end of the weekend.

To make sure they didn't miss anyone, Illinois Bell officials took the unusual step of mailing postcards Thursday to all 35,000 customers in the Hinsdale area asking those still without phone service or with phone-related problems to contact the company.

The Greenville Aquatics & Fitness Center

A Boondoggle-To- Bounty Experience

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The gymnasium and pool that comprise much of the Greenville Aquatics and Fitness Center once sat like an elephantine blob of red ink on the books of the East Carolina Vocational Center.

Today the fitness center, located in an annex of the vocational center, has become a thriving city-run community recreation facility kept solvent by enthusiastic buying of minimally priced individual and group memberships. It is run by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department with a directive from the city council that it can continue only as long as it is financially self-sufficient. Its future looks bright, since, now well into its second year, it continues to add memberships and programs and seems fully capable of meeting its next year's $280,000 budget.

"ECVC's mandate from the state of North Carolina was to provide training for handicapped people, not recreation," Daneel LeRoux, director of the Vocational Center, said. "The annex housing the pool and gym were built in 1982. Especially after the federal start-up money for the project ran out in 1984, we were in a financial crunch. The recreation facility, nice as it was, was costing us thousands we didn't have. My salary and some other people's were even being docked by the state for the portion of time they felt we spent doing anything in connection with the recreation facility. We tried letting some community groups use the pool for swimming classes and therapeutic aquatics programs, but what we earned from these didn't even put a dent in our costs.

"We hated so badly to close it down that we even tried ourselves to sell memberships to people in the community, but we didn't have the background nor the expertise to run a place like that. Our board of directors finally shut it down in April of 1986."

There was community outcry at the time about the waste of such a fine facility — especially about the loss of the only potentially public indoor pool in town except two at East Carolina University largely unavailable to anyone outside university students and faculty. Boyd Lee, director of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, remembers that it was Dr. Ben Shappley, chairman of the recreation committee of the ECVC board, who first questioned him about whether the city would take over the operation of the facility.

Lee took the proposal to the Recreation and Parks Commission, which, after some deliberation and an affirming nod from the city council, hired a study by a Jacksonville marketing firm experienced in studies for health clubs. The firm determined there was ample reason to believe that the public would use and pay for the services of a city-run health club.

The city council then had to be sold on the idea. "The council members gave us a go-ahead," Lee remembers, "after they were convinced about the marketing prospects, but they put us on notice that, if at any time, the facility began to cost the taxpayers, it would have to be shut down."

Greenville citizen Charlene Hill was contracted to market the facility. It was largely she and a troop of volunteer senior citizens who sold the idea. Within a few months, sufficient money was in the center coffers that cleanup and renovation of the facility could be undertaken. The center was opened in October 1986 with money from charter memberships. The entire facility was opened in November, once some further renovation was done.

Membership grew rapidly from the time the center opened. In fact, there was a short while in early 1987 when memberships were frozen, but now there seems a steady ebb and flow of members so no one has to be turned down, Richel Saleeby, marketing director of the facility, said.

Bill Twine, a veteran recreation and parks specialist, is the director of the facility. Kathleen Shank, recreation supervisor, runs the pool and exercise programs, including the continuous training of about 30 part-time employees, mostly exercise instructors and lifeguards. Theresa Holley supervises the wellness program for city employees, which is run out of the center, and she also devises individual wellness programs for other center clients.

Titles of classes include toning, aerobics, low-impact aerobics, aquaaerobics, pre- and post-natal exercise, and healthy back excercise. Varying proficiency and age levels of Red Cross-approved swim lessons are taught. Fitness programs via weight lifting, swimming, stationary bicycling, walking and running are offered. Team- and free-playing of basketball, volleyball and other team sports are available, as is table tennis.

Children's programs are offered, with special day camps provided in coordination with the Pitt County schools schedules to afford parents supervised recreation for their children on teacher workdays and holiday vacations. There are also special programs like summer day camps, baseball and softball minicamps, and even adult-supervised "Kids' All-Nighters" which include movies, swimming and the serving of pizza.

Individual fees are charged for some of the programs and services like the all-nighters and the use of a tanning bed. But many others are paid for in the membership fee.

Individual, family, senior citizen, student and corporate fee schedules are offered. Payment may be yearly, quarterly or by monthly bank draft, Ms. Saleeby said. She suggested that those wishing information visit or call the center, 758-6892, and arrange for a free tour.

"We're so very glad the fitness center is here," LeRoux said. "It has in no way detracted from our Vocational Center program. In fact, we so much approve of it that we have paid for memberships for our staff and our clients."

He said separation of the heating and cooling of the fitness facility from that of the major part of the vocational center still needs to be worked out, so neither is wasting money because of their differing needs, but he sees no other problems.

Lee said he foresees even more services being offered center clients as money becomes available. "The nice thing is," he said, "that while the city plans to spend no taxpayers' money on the center, the council also has assured us that any money we make over expenses, we can use to keep improving the facility and its programs. We think this is what will keep attracting old members back and enrolling new members."

"We make sure the center is kept immaculate, well-equipped and well-staffed," Ms. Saleeby said. "People are always commenting about how clean and fresh it seems here. We don't have fancy chandeliers like some health clubs, but we have soap in the showers, a clean pool, and an enthusiastic staff. People seem to like what they find here."

Morris Brody, a Greenville citizen who chaired the drive which locally raised $1.5 million to match the $5 million provided by the federal government for building the vocational center annex, is a member of the Fitness Center. He swims there almost every morning. "The recreation facility did turn out to be a drain on the vocational center finances," he said, "But we can still thank the late Howard Dawkins" — the center director from 1971-1981 — "that it was ever built here in the first place. It was meant to be part of a pilot program, a model for providing recreation for handicapped people. But the philosophy of the federal government changed and the state wouldn't go along with the idea.

"As it is, with the city's having taken it over, we have a wonderful situation for everyone. The vocational center clients still have the use of it right there on the site and many use it every day, I understand. And other people, many who couldn't afford privately run health club programs, also have it to use. I certainly enjoy it."

LeRoux echoed Brody's sentiments. "We're just so happy," he said, "that the fitness center is now being run like it should be, by people trained and dedicated to providing the best recreation programs possible. The Aquatics and Fitness Center is a real asset to the people of the Greenville area."

Gaskins-Worsham Vows Said

MRS. GASKINS

ROANOKE RAPIDS — The wedding ceremony of Jan Elizabeth Worsham and Jon Maurice Gaskins was solemnized Saturday afternoon at four o'clock. The Rev. Thomas Bodkin conducted the double-ring ceremony in Rosemary Baptist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. David W. Worsham and Mr. and Mrs. James Maurice Gaskins, all of Roanoke Rapids.

Toni W. Floyd of Roanoke Rapids, sister of the bride, was honor attendant. Deanna Carol Gaskins of Roanoke Rapids, sister of the bridegroom, Karen Elizabeth Haddock of Raleigh, and Melodie Gaskins Hummel of New Jersey, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids.

Laura Elizabeth Cross was junior bridesmaid, Lindsey Elizabeth Floyd, niece of the bride, was flower girl and Courtney Joseph Floyd, nephew of the bride, was junior usher. All are from Roanoke Rapids.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers included David Randell Hargrave of Garysburg, William Douglas Higgins of Rutherfordton and Michael Daniel Wood of Flemington, N.J.

Organist Mrs. James T. Barnett and vocalists Lewis Johns of Roanoke Rapids and Lynn Culpepper of Elizabeth City presented wedding music. Presiding at the guest register was Judy L. Collins of Roanoke Rapids.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of bridal taffeta with re-embroidered alencon lace. The fitted bodice featured a bateau neckline with illusion sweetheart yoke outlined with alencon lace, long, tapered sleeves and basque waist. Alencon lace motifs embellished with seed pearls and sequins appliqued the bodice, V-back and sleeves. A fluted edge rosette accented the back of the waist. The skirt extended into a cathedral train with scalloped alencon lace encircling the hemline and train. She wore a waltz-length scalloped veil of illusion edged with garlands of seed pearls and accented with scattered alencon lace motifs flowing from a bandeau of alencon lace petals. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of peach bridal roses, baby's breath and other flowers accented with tulle and streamers of lace and satin ribbon.

The honor attendant wore a peach satin tea-length dress fashioned with a batteau neckline, inverted waist and long, fitted sleeves. The V-back was accented with a self-fabric bow. The attendants and flower girl were dressed identically. Each carried a crescent bouquet matching their gown. The flower girl carried a white fireside basket of peach sweetheart roses with off-white baby's breath adorned with ribbon streamers.

A reception was held at the Roanoke Rapids Women's Club. Linda W. Carawan served cake and punch was poured by Shirley M. Clements and Lynn C. Rooker. Music was provided by Dwight P. Berry.

The couple will live in Roanoke Rapids after a wedding trip to Maui, Hawaii.

The bridal couple graduated from Roanoke Rapide High School. She graduated from Pitt Community College and is a registered nurse with Halifax County Health Department. He attended Campbell University and is a surveyor.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents. A bridesmaids luncheon was also held before the wedding.

Couple Marries In Greenville

Jennifer Lynne Davis and William Tiffany Dymond Jr. were united in marriage Saturday at 3 p.m. in St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The Revs. Lawrence P. Houston and Paul Vaeth performed the double-ring ceremony.

Dr. Charles Bath, organist, was joined by violinists Joanne Bath and Pamela Bath Kelly in presenting a program of wedding music.

Parents of the bridal couple are Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Joeseph Davis of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. William Tiffany Dymond of Latrobe, Pa.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white lalique taffeta designed with a sabrina neckline and short pouf gathered sleeves, accented with scattered pearls. The fitted basque bodice was embellished with alencon lace, pearls and iridescents. The back waist was accented with a taffeta bustle enhanced with appliques of alencon lace, pearls and large self fabric roses. The full skirt and semi-cathedral train were bordered at the hemline with re-embroidered lace. Her two-tiered semi-cathedral veil of illusion with an edging of pearls was attached to a band of silk flowers, pearls and lace.

She carried a garden bouquet of white tearoses, freesia, tulips and baby's breath hand tied with white satin streamers.

Anne-Lynne Davis, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Lynn Ann Dymond, sister of the bridegroom of Yardley, Pa.; Michelle Dymond Heacox, sister of the bridegroom of Baltimore, Md.; Wendy Carolyn Biesecker of Orlando, Fla.; Joni Denise Bullock of Atlanta, Ga.; Patricia Bath Hancock of Tampa, Fla. and Martha Carla Tadlock of New Bern. Carrying European hand-tied clusters of spring flowers — tulips, tearoses, snap-dragons, lillies and baby's breath — the attendants wore formal length gowns of andante blue moire chintz, designed with princess necklines and fitted basque waists. The gowns had pouf gathered sleeves and softly pleated skirts. The back was accented with large bows at the waist.

The flower girl was Jennifer Hodge and the ring bearer was Bo Hodge of Bogart, Ga., cousins of the bride.

The best man was Michael Arthur Thomas of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Ushers were Joeseph Phillip Dymond, brother of the bridegroom of

MRS. DYMOND JR.

Latrobe, Pa.; Gregory Joeseph Davis and Scott Christopher Davis of Greenville, brothers of the bride; Franklin Eric Hancock of Tampa, Fla.; Harold Gregory McNeill of Orlando, Fla.; Thomas Edward Francis of Orlando, Fla.; William Thomas Krahe of Pittsburgh, Pa. and D.R. Papalia of Pittsburgh, Pa.

A garden reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The parents of the bridegroom gave an after-rehearsal dinner at the Greenville Country Club. A dance followed given by friends of the bride's family. The bride was honored at a bridesmaid's luncheon and the bridal couple was entertained at a champagne buffet and at a wedding brunch.

The bride is a graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill and is a certified public accountant with Ernst and Whinney in Orlando. The groom is a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College in Washington, Pa. and UNC-Chapel Hill School of Law. He is an attorney with the law firm of Lowndes, Drosdick, Doster, Kantor and Reid in Orlando.

After the wedding trip to San Francisco and Carmel, Ca. the couple will reside in Orlando.

Miss D'Amour, Dr. Orr Marry

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH — St. Therese Catholic Church was the setting for the wedding ceremony of Carolyn Anne Marie D'Amour and Dr. Liston Anderson Orr Saturday at 1 p.m.

The Rev. James Waters performed the double-ring ceremony. Organist Sherry Lockhart and vocalists Mr. and Mrs. Dunkin Kane presented a program of wedding music.

Daughter of Renee D'Amour of Wilmington and Richard D'Amour of Terre Haute, Ind., the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride attended Purdue University and East Carolina University. She is employed by Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

MRS. ORR

The bridegroom is the son of Georgia B. Orr of High Point. He attended Washington and Lee University and ECU School of Medicine. He is a student at Eastern Virginia Graduate School of Medicine.

The bride wore a formal gown of white satin designed with an off-shoulder neckline, fitted elongated bodice and circular chapel train. Alencon lace beaded with pearls and sequins trimmed the bodice and short, puffed sleeves. Scalloped beaded lace bordered the bodice and the low back was accented by a bow. Her fingertip veil of illusion flowed from a double-V of lace and pearls.

Krista Gemlich of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., was honor attendant and bridesmaids included Lisa Park, Jean Sauve and Jane Sauve, all of Greenville.

Dr. Richard L. Orr of High Point, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers included Dr. Geoff Trembley of Philadelphia, Pa., Dr. George Pantelakos of Newport News, Va., Sami Hassan of Greenville, and Karl D'Amour of Winston-Salem, brother of the bride.

Plum colored gowns in embossed satin were worn by the attendants. The gowns were designed with off-shoulder elongated torso princess seam bodices with candy box bows. The full shirred tea-length skirt flowed from a dropped basque waistline.

A reception was held at Popuar Grove Plantation in Wilmington and a rehersal dinner was held at the Blockade Runner Hotes given by the mother of the bridegroom. The bride was honored by a lingerie shower held before the wedding.

Wedding Vows Spoken Saturday Afternoon

Leslie Ann Wooles and Gary Lee Murray were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in St. Peters Catholic Church. Parents of the bridal couple are Dr. and Mrs. Wallace R. Wooles of Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. Winford Murray of Franklinton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown with a cathedral train of bridal satin with sposabella lace. The fitted bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline outlined with scalloped lace motifs, Juliet pouf, long tapered sleeves and torso waist. Sposabella lace motifs etched with pearls and sequins appliqued the bodice and sleeves. Sposabella lace garlands adorned the skirt and train. Scalloped lace bordered the hemline. The bride wore a wreath of lace motifs with floral iridescents interspersed with pearl sprays and tiered veil of llusion with a fluted edge and pouf accented with scattered pearls. She carried a cascade of phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis, yellow tea roses and ivy.

The bride attended the University of North Carolina-Wilmington. The bridegroom attended Vance-Granville Community College and is self-employed.

Jennifer Wooles of Greenville was honor attendant for her sister. Connie Sappenfield and Jackie Brown, both of Greenville, Tonya Bobbitt of Franklinton, niece of the bridegroom, Jill Absher and Joy Absher of Richmond, Va., nieces of the bride, were bridesmaids. Molly Sappenfield was flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers included Sam Green, Larry Thompson, Tommy Honeycutt, Romie House and Greg Bobbitt, nephew of the bridegroom, all of Franklinton.

Kevin Kyle, organist, and vocalists Curtis Wright and Don Cox presented wedding music. "She is the Woman" and "Wedding Day" were vocal selections.

The honor attendant and bridesmaids wore tea-length gowns of royal blue satin and lace overlay styled with fitted waistlines and above-elbow sleeves. Each carried a crescent bouquet of white lilies and yellow daisies. The flower girl wore a yellow dotted swiss gown and carried a white basket of blue delphinium, white daisies and yellow alstromeria lilies. She wore a hairpiece of blue delphinium and baby's breath.

A reception was held at the Brook Valley Country Club given by the bride's parents. Janet Absher and Portia Jenkins assisted in serving cake. Michael Wooles, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Wooles and Diane Murray greeted guests.

After a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Canada, the couple will live in Franklinton.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom for the bridal party.

The wedding was directed by Jane Laughinghouse and Barbara Greer presided at the register.

Daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Clifton Ferrell Jr., the bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a formal gown of white satin and Venise lace featuring a sweetheart neckline, ballgown sleeves and corded basque waistline. The princess bodice was adorned with hand-clipped silk Venise lace medallions beaded with pearls and iridescents. Venise lace accented the neckline. The gathered skirt and semi-cathedral train were trimmed with Venise lace. She wore a satin and pearl wreath headpiece with silk leaves and a pouf of imported silk illusion with a hand-rolled edge. She carried a cascade of white roses, lilacs and freesia.

MRS. PATTERSON

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and the University of North Carolina-Greensboro. She is employed by the Virginia Beach City Public Schools. The bridegroom graduated from Smithfield-Selma Senior High School, UNC-Chapel Hill and the East Carolina School of Medicine. He is a resident at Virginia Medical Center.

Mary Elizabeth Ferrell Granger of Greensboro, sister of the bride, was the honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Hailey Moore Ferrell of Hickory, cousin of the bride, Krispin Vee Wagoner of Charlotte, Barbara Annette Little of Fayetteville, Elizabeth Ann Longino of New York, Sharon Ann Hawley and Teresa Michelle Morefield, both of Virginia Beach, Va.

The honor attendant wore a floor-length gown of aqua floral print cotton. It featured a sweetheart neckline, puffed sleeves and a fitted bodice with dropped waistline and circular skirt. She carried pink and rose tulips accented with freesia and tube roses. The gowns and flowers of the bridesmaids were identical.

Lynn Hobbs and Rebecca Sexton, both of Greensboro, were honorary bridesmaids.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers included John Byron Patterson of Smithfield, brother of the bridegroom, Henry Clifton Ferrell III, brother of the bride, Gregory Harold Narron and William Ricks Hanna Jr., all of Greenville, Michael David Granger of Greensboro, brother-in-law of the bride, Bobby Eugene Cooley of Boone, James Holmes Chesson Jr. of Edenton, and Keith Michael Weddington of Charlotte.

Organist Mark Gansor and vocalist the Rev. Charles Michael Smith presented music. "Be Thou my Vision" and "If With all Your Hearts" were vocal selections.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception at the Hilton Inn. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Luther Daniel Moore, Ann Moore Johnson, and Dr. and Mrs. George Edward Davis.

The parents of the bridegroom and his paternal grandmother entertained at a rehearsal dinner. Several showers, tea dance, several luncheons, cocktail party, a dance and family dinner were given for the couple prior to the wedding.

ABWA Members Hear Leslie Parker

Leslie Parker spoke to the Pirate Charter chapter of the American Business Women's Association at their May meeting.

She is regional staff, N.C. Council on the Status of Women. Her topic was "The Function of the Council and how it Helps Women."

"The N.C. Council on the Status Women is the only state agency which advocates exclusively on behalf of women's needs. It continually assesses the problems and potential of women throughout the state and offers a variety of programs and services," she said.

Jane Whealton, chairman of the enrollment event, received the friendship star pin from national headquarters of ABWA while Jean Verdick, chapter president, received the friedship lapel pin and Kathy Green, the chapter's Woman of the Year received a certificate from national in recognition of her honor.

A candlelight ceremony was conducted by Mrs. Verdick to welcome new members, Kim Davis, Tanya Hankins, Debra Wells and Wanda Biggs.

Sharon Pogue was appointed orientation officer.

Evening Wedding Vows Said

CHARLOTTE — Teresa Diane Lance and William Hayden Higgins, both of Charlotte, were married Saturday evening at seven o'clock in Dilworth United Methodist Church. Conducting the double-ring ceremony were the Revs. Timothy Auman and Floyd Berrier.

Parents of the bridal couple are Lois Gentry Lance of Fletcher and Henry Lewis Lance Jr. of Asheville, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalton Higgins of Hampstead.

William Albert Gentry, grandfather of the bride, gave her in marriage. Darlene Lance Soyars of Acworth, Ga., was honor attendant for her sister. Alice Ruth Price of Charlotte was bridesmaid.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Robert Higgins of Greenville, S.C., brother of the bridegroom, Dr. Duncan Baker of Jacksonville, Fla., Dr. Richard Offut and Robert Cramer, both of Charlotte, Henry Lewis Lance III of Asheville, and William Daryl Lance of Fletcher, both brothers of the bride, were ushers.

Nuptial music was provided by organist Jane Ridgel, trumpeter Doug Burns and vocalist Linda Warren, who sang "Ave Maria" and "Praise to the Lord, the Almighty."

The bride wore a formal candlelight satin gown with a full cathedral train. The gown had an illusion and pearl bodice ending in a V-front and back with long illusion sleeves. Her headpiece of ivory braided satin was intertwined with pearl rope attached to an illusion veil. She carried a sheath of calla lilies, amaryllis and fern.

An ivory moire satin tea-length gown with peach bows on the sleeves and back waist was worn by the honor attendant. She carried an amaryllis with ribbons. The bridesmaids were dressed identical.

A reception was held at the Myers Park Country Club. Cruisomatics provided entertainment.

The couple plan to live in Charlotte after a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga.

The bride is employed by the office of Dr. J.P. O'Malley. She is a graduate of Brevard College, Mercy School of Nursing and is enrolled at Queens College. The bridegroom is a partner at Smith, Helms, Mullis and Moore law firm. He is a graduate of Davidson College and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Law School.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents at the home of the bride. A cocktail party, resort shower, cook-out and yard and garden shower honored the couple prior to the wedding.

MRS. HIGGINS

Double-Ring Ceremony Performed Saturday

WINTERVILLE — Pennie Frances Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robert Thompson Sr. of Route 2, Grifton, and Jerry Paul Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Thomas Arnold of Route 10, Raleigh, were married Saturday at 3 p.m.

The Rev. Bill Leary conducted the double-ring ceremony in the Winterville Baptist Church.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attended by Sherri Wiggins Meadows of Greenville as matron of honor; and bridesmaids, Terrie Ward, Diane Gillikin and Jennifer Hulsey, all of Greenville.

Emily Porterfield of Grifton was flower girl.

The best man was father of the bridegroom. Ushers included Mike Beasley, Steve Caldwell and Scott Arnold, cousin of the bridegroom, all of Garner, and Michael Arnold of Raleigh, brother of the bridegroom.

Organist Libby Braxton Sellers and Carol Hawkins, vocalist, presented music. She sang "Whither Thou Goest," "I'll Still be Loving You" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride attended the East Carolina University School of Nursing and the bridegroom attended the University of North Carolina-Charlotte. He is employed by the Raleigh City Police Department.

The bride wore a formal gown of candlelight satin designed by Yvonne Accurso of Farmville. The fitted bodice with basque waistline was overlaid in flowered Niagera lace. The sweetheart neckline was adorned with hand-sewn lace scallops and the elbow-length, puffed sleeves were of matching lace. The full satin skirt featured hand-sewn lace motifs. The back plunged into a lace V-scallop cascading into a chapel-length train with lace motifs. Her headpiece featured a lace overlay with pearls. The blusher and fingertip veil had scalloped edges with the veil having lace motifs and pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and ivory miniature carnations centered with an ivory rose, baby's breath and ivy.

The honor attendant wore a tea-length gown in shocking pink satin. It had a fitted bodice, short puff sleeves and V-back. She carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations ivory daisies, baby's breath and pink and ivory streamers. The bridesmaids were dressed like the honor attendant and their flowers were similar. The flower girl wore a pink tea-length dress and carried an ivory basket of mixed daisies and miniature carnations.

A reception was held after in the church fellowship hall. Helena Cox and Lisa Brooks greeted guests. Diane Rouse served wedding cake and punch was poured by Judy Vanderford. Warren Gordan provided piano music.

The couple will live in Raleigh after a wedding trip to Orlando, Fla.

MRS. ARNOLD

A rehearsal dinner was held in the church fellowship hall. Several showers were given for the couple prior to the wedding.

Swimming Coach Makes A Splash

By DOUG KAUFMAN
Belleville News-Democrat

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — John Fernandez stood before the audience, repeatedly swaying his hips back and forth.

"Remember folks, the kick starts here," he said, pointing to his wiggling hips. "Not here," he added, pointing kneeward.

Fernandez isn't a dance instructor teaching the hula, but a swim coach teaching the dolphin kick. Seven teen-age swimmers listened intently, then plunged into the pool at the Downtown Belleville Center YMCA.

"Not bad, not bad. Keep it coming, use your hips," Fernandez bellowed as the team churned the water with their legs.

As he watched a wispy girl leave a strapping boy in her wake, he said, "You can see it doesn't matter who the powerhouses are."

Fernandez, who has 23 years of coaching experience, has been with the YMCA's Belleville Flyers since 1980.

The 36-member team managed a fifth-place finish in a recent 13-team district meet against much larger squads, typical of the accomplishments Fernandez has brought out of small Flyers teams.

Since starting as a coach in 1965, the 54-year-old Fernandez has coached about 1,000 swimmers and directed 35,000 workouts.

Tom Jaeger of Collinsville, the current world record holder in the 50-meter freestyle, was a student of Fernandez at age 6. Another, Sun Woo of Granite City, won a medal in the breast stroke for Formosa in the 1972 Munich Olympics.

Several others have been nationally ranked. While gratifying, these accomplishments don't tell the whole story.

"If I'm going to measure my success by the number of kids I'm sending to the nationals or Olympics, then I'm barely scratching the surface," he said. "I take pride in kids who go on to college and get a degree."

Fernandez can tell you how many trophies his 1987-88 squad won at the district meet — four. But he can also tell you how many of his former swimmers have earned college degrees while swimming on full or partial scholarships — 12, including his daughter, Maria, a nurse.

Fernandez swam competitively in high school and is a former swim coach at St. Louis University.

In the pool, he stresses discipline and consistency.

Couple Marries Saturday

JAMESVILLE — Donna Jo Hardison and Richard Earl Hardee, both of Greenville, were united in marriage Saturday at 7 p.m. The double-ring ceremony took place in Poplar Chapel Church of Christ.

Ernie Williams of Jamesville and C.B. Owens of Greenville were the officiating ministers. Organist Suzanne Modlin, pianist Betty Williams, and vocalist Ernie Williams presented wedding music.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. A. Eugene Hardison of Jamesville, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Earl Hardee of Greenville.

Linda Hardison Moore of Knoxville, Tenn., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Nancy Johnson Hardison of Jamesville, sister-in-law of the bride, Tammy Hardee Wright, sister of the bridegroom, Teresa Wooles, Teresa Stancill and Lisa Stancill, all of Greenville.

Whitney Victoria Davis of Creswell, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. Her usher was Chad Jarrad Hardison of Jamesville, nephew of the bridegroom. Joshua Brandon Hardison of Jamesville, nephew of the bride, was the ring bearer.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Jerry Hardison and Mark Hardison, both brothers of the bride, of Jamesville, Mark Hardee, brother of the bridegroom, Bert Wright, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Barry Sutton, all of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of ivory crystal organza and satin with a high collar of lace and pearls. The sheer yoke of illusion extended to a low v back and was enhanced with embroidery of lace and pearls. The Elizabethan sleeves of satin and illusion were appliqued with floral embroidered motifs. The fitted basque bodice was overlaid with matching motifs beaded with pearls. The full skirt and cathedral train were encircled with scalloped lace. Her waltz-length veil of illusion had a fluted edge and pouf attached to a bandeau of silk flowers and pearls. Her cascade bouquet was of white sweetheart roses, stephanotis and baby's breath, miniature apricot carnations and beaded pearl streamers.

Each of the attendants were dressed identically in formal gowns of apricot matte taffeta designed with high collars of silk Venise lace and ballgown sleeves. The princess bodices featured corded V-waistlines and heart-shaped back cutouts with back sashes. They carried nosegays of peach and ivory roses with streamers.

The flower girl wore a formal gown of apricot linen overlaid with ivory and sashed in back. Her headpiece was a bandeau of apricot silk flowers with streamers. She carried a basket of miniature roses and baby's breath.

MRS. HARDEE

The bride's parents gave a reception in the church fellowship hall.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will live in Greenville.

The bride is a nurse at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and attended Johnson Bible College of Knoxville, Tenn., and Beaufort School of Nursing. The bridegroom is employed by SAB NIFE Battery in Greenville and graduated from Rose High School.

The wedding was directed by Becky Hardison of Jamesville and Sarah Willis presided at the register. Rerko Vernon passed out programs.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Candlelight Wedding Performed

Sherry Lee Peaden of Greenville became the bride of Keith Carr Wainwright of Farmville in a candlelight ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Grace Church. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ed Walker.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. amd Mrs. Stanley David Peaden of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Richard Wainwright, Jr. of Farmville.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal-length gown of white satin designed with a Queen Anne neckline and Renaissance sleeves with appliques of Brussels lace extending to form calla points at the wrists. The fitted bodice was appliqued with matching lace extending over the torso into a basque waistline. The full circular skirt featured a centered peacock motif and appliques of Brussels lace. The skirt and attached chapel-length train were finished with a scalloped border of Brussels lace. She wore a white hat to which was attached a veil of imported silk illusion accented with a ruffled pouf at the back. A spray of silk flowers was tucked under the left brim of the hat. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, tulips, freesia, white lilac, dendrobim and baby's breath, and English ivy.

Melinda Hudson of Greenville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a tea-length royal blue dress of amourette taffeta. The dress had a gathered fitted bodice and sweetheart neckline with ruffled off-shoulder sleeves. She carried a crescent bouquet of white freesia, pink tulips sprinkled with minuette roses, yellow buttons, blue statis and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Jeri Cook, Sonya Daniels, Melissa Quinn, Vonda Stokes, all of Greenville, Michelle Edwards of Winterville, and Elaine Norville, cousin of the bridegroom, of Farmville. Their dresses and bouquets were identical to that of the honor attendant's. Junior bridesmaids were Jan Jones of Winterville and Amanda Pollard of Greenville. They also carried crescent bouquets and each wore a tea-length royal blue dress of amourette taffeta similar to that of the bridesmaids. Kristen McClanahan of Greenville was the flower girl. Her dress was of white taffeta with a chiffon overlay. She carried a basket of long stemmed minuette roses.

The father of the bridegroom was the best man. Ushers were Kevin Wainwright, brother of the bridegroom, Tom Wainwright and Phillip Wainwright, both cousins of the bridegroom, Sonny Fisher, all of Farmville, Randy Corbett of Fountain and Troy Hudson of Greenville. Junior ushers were Worth Lewis of Winterville, cousin of the bride, and Lee Norris of Greenville. Michael Flake of Winterville was the ring bearer.

Wedding music was presented by Susan Forlines, organist; Lee Norris, violinist; Ronnie Buffington, Todd Harris and Stacey Pugh, trumpeteers, and Jane Randlett, vocalist.

The wedding was directed by the mother of the bride and Ida Lyn Stox, aunt of the bride. Troy Stox, cousin of the bride, presided at the register. Brian Lancaster passed out the programs and Kristi Overton presented guests with momentos.

A reception was given by the parents of the bride in the church fellowship hall. Greetings and goodbyes were said by Oscar and Carol Holloman, Curtis and Rita Quinn, Doug and Jane Randlett and Jackie and Anne Harrington.

A pig pickin' and several showers and parties were given in honor of the couple. An after-rehearsal dinner was given by the parents, grandparents and great-grandmother of the bridegroom.

The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and is employed by the Pitt County Board of Elections. The bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville Central and is employed by C.A. Lewis, Inc.

After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Winterville.

Lynch-Fulp Vows Said Saturday

Allison Ann Fulp and John Chaplain Lynch Jr. were married in St. James United Methodist Church Saturday at 3 p.m.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Bob R. Dunbar of Fayetteville and the late Walter C. Fulp. Mr. and Mrs. John Lynch Sr. of Greenville are parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Caswell Shaw conducted the double-ring ceremony. Music was presented by organist Frances Cain. Arnold Lynch and Kim Neal sang "One Hand, One Heart," "The Wedding Prayer" and "Through the Eyes of Love."

Debra Price of Summerfield was honor attendant for her sister. Paula Lynch of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, Nancy Mayhew of Raleigh, Michele Slate of Chapel Hill and Diana Howell of Apex were bridesmaids. Lorie Cooper of Stokesdale, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers included Todd Lynch of Raleigh, brother of the bridegroom, Arnold Lynch of Durham, cousin of the bridegroom, Thomas Matchunis and Tadd Kendall, both of Greenville, and Daniel Kelley of Morehead City. Carey Price of Summerfield, nephew of the bride, was the ring bearer.

The bride is a registered nurse at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and is a graduate of East Carolina University School of Nursing. The bridegroom attended the University of North Carolina-Wilmington and is associated with Lynch Medical Products.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a formal gown of white summer satin organza designed with a basque waistline, short Gibson Girl sleeves and a Venise neckline. The bodice was appliqued with silk Venise lace and seed pearls. The full skirt was encircled with venise lace and extended into a chapel-length train. She wore a derby style hat appliqued with silk Venise lace and seed pearls. A fingertip veil was attached. She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses, stephanotis, freesia and baby's breath.

MRS. LYNCH

Each of the attendants wore a rose-colored taffeta tea-length gown with balloon style skirt and a dropped waistline. They carried pink and white arm bouquets of lilies, freesia and baby's breath.

The reception was held at the Holiday Inn Holidome.

After a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the couple will live in Greenville.

Several showers, a bridesmaids luncheon and a rehearsal dinner honored the couple prior to their marriage.

French Quarter Teacher Tells How To Tell Fortunes

By MARY FOSTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The trappings look right: A little shop in the French Quarter where books on the occult line the wall and crystal balls catch the last strands of sunlight in the window.

However, the little group of would-be psychics who gathered to learn the mysteries of the tarot don't fit the picture.

Eight students have assembled for a six-week course on tarot card reading at the Bottom of the Cup Tea Room.

The tarot is the ancient deck of cards used to tell fortunes. Once considered the "devil's deck" its secrets were closely guarded, and those who used it were branded witches.

Adele Mullin, the proprietress of the tea room, says some people still fear the cards, but not many. And judging by her latest group of students, interest in the cards is no longer confined to witches, warlocks and gypsies.

The class consists of an insurance adjuster, a hair dresser, a receptionist, a housewife, a collection agent, and several college students.

Only one hopes to become a full time "reader," as those who tell fortunes through the tarot are called. The others say they're only interested in learning more.

"I'm just curious," said Inez LaMonte, a hairdresser who drives 70 miles for the once-a-week classes. "When someone has read my cards for me, they've always been very accurate. I want to know more about it."

Ms. Mullen, who looks more like the elementary school teacher she once was than the fulltime fortune teller she has become, says she began teaching the classes several years ago.

"I get doctors, business people, street cleaners. You'd be surprised at who's interested in learning," Ms. Mullen said.

Ms. Mullen says the more common deck of traditional playing cards is based on the tarot, which has 78 cards divided into four suits. The tarot can be dealt in a number of patterns that are then read to reveal a person's fortune.

Although Ms. Mullen claims that anyone can learn to read the cards, she admits not everyone can translate the message they recieve from them.

"Some people can't relax and learn to trust their own sense of what's there. They can give you a literal reading of the cards, but they can't go beyond that and tell you how it applies to you," she said.

Learning to read the tarot offers an understanding of the mystical or hidden side of life, Ms. Mullen said.

Wedding Vows Said Saturday

MRS. STANCIL

Regina Lynn Eakes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Eakes of Greenville, and Jeffrey Brett Stancil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stancil, were united in marriage Saturday at 7 p.m.

The Rev. Bobby Parker conducted the double-ring ceremony in Temple Free Will Baptist Church. Organist Eloise Jackson and vocalist Beverly Welch presented wedding music. Vocal selections included "Surround Me With Love," "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Lisa O'Mary of Greenville was the honor attendant. Denise Sumerlin of Greenville, cousin of the bride, and Tammy Stancil of Farmville, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. Chrissy Ivey of Rocky Mount, cousin of the bridegroom, was the flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Michael Eakes of Greenville, brother of the bride, and Gene Stancil of Washington, N.C., brother of the bridegroom. Scott Eakes of Greenville, nephew of the bride, was the miniature usher. The ring bearer was Eddie Stancil of Farmville, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a satin gown styled with a stand-up collar appliqued with Venise lace and a net yoke. It had schiffli embroidered lace and a flounced sweetheart neckline and bodice. The flounced lace hem extended into a chapel-length train. She carried a bouquet of miniature white and pink roses, daisies and streamers. Her two-tiered veil was trimmed in chantilly lace and was attached to a Juliet cap trimmed in seed pearls and sequins.

The honor attendant wore a tea-length pink fantanza-over-satin gown. The gown had a basque waist with a self-tie and elasticized shoulders. The full skirt was accented with lace and satin bows. She carried a miniature bouquet similar to that of the bride. The bridesmaids were dressed identically and each carried two long-stemmed pink rosebuds tied with lace ribbon and streamers.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall.

After a wedding trip to the coast, the couple will live on Route 2, Farmville.

The bride graduated from North Pitt High School and attends Pitt Community College. The bridegroom graduated from Farmville Central High School and is employed by Stancil's Auto Service of Farmville.

The couple was entertained at several showers given by friends and relatives.

Couple Marries In Afternoon Ceremony

MRS. WOODS

Sweet Gum Grove Free Will Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding Saturday at 3 p.m. of Rita Carol Best and Timothy Joseph Woods. The Rev. David Hill performed the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Best of Route 1, Stokes, and Mr. and Mrs. John J. Woods of Highlands, N.J.

Wedding music was presented by pianist Ginger Briley and Billy Warren, who sang "Wedding Prayer" and "One Hand, One Heart."

Sue Stox of Route 2, Ayden, was honor attendant for her niece. Kristy Bullock of Belvoir, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Bridesmaids were Joyce Bullock of Belvoir, aunt of the bride, Melanie Cottingham of Stokes, cousin of the bride, Jennifer Woods of New Jersey, sister of the bridegroom, Mindy McInnis of Virginia, Kathy Nobles of Greenville, and Donna Foyles of Kinston, cousin of the bride.

The best man was John J. Woods Jr. of Seabright, N.J., brother of the bridegroom. Bryan Phair of Highlands, N.J., was ring bearer for his cousin. Ushers included Christopher J. Woods of Highlands, N.J., brother of the bridegroom, Thomas Phair of Highlands, N.J., cousin of the bridegroom, Martin Gillan of Ohio, Ron E. Best of Stokes, brother of the bride, Michael Baker of Ayden, cousin of the bride, and Joseph Fontanella of New Jersey.

The bride attended East Carolina University and is associated with Eastern Carolina Neurological Associates. The bridegroom attended Rutgers University and is associated with Best Concrete Construction Co.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white peau de soie with a princess bodice and sweetheart neckline trimmed with pearls, cathedral train with a back bow and short sleeves. She carried a bouquet of baby pink roses, snapdragons and wildflowers.

The honor attendant wore a formal-length cherry pink satin gown styled with a train and back bow. She carried a bouquet of pink snapdragons and baby's breath. Bridesmaids were dressed identically.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. A rehearsal party was held at the home of the bride Friday.

Several showers and a bridesmaids luncheon were given for the bride before her marriage.

Prince Charles Has No Last Name

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have two questions I've always wanted to know the answers to, but nobody seems to know, so I'm asking you:

(1) What is the last name of Prince Charles and Princess Diana? (2) Will Princess Diana ever become queen of England?

I hope my letter makes your column, as I'm sure there are many others who are dying to know. — JUST ME IN ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA.

DEAR JUST: Prince Charles does not have a last name, but he is from "The House of Windsor." (No prince of royal blood who is in line for the throne has a last name. Charles signed his wedding registry as "Charles" — nothing more.)

If and when Charles becomes king, Princess Diana will be given the courtesy title of "queen consort." She will never be the "queen regnant" (the ruling queen) as is her mother-in-law, Elizabeth II, who became queen at the age of 25 on the death of her father, George VI, in 1952.

This may be more than you wanted to know, but at least your questions have been answered.

DEAR ABBY: I found a folded piece of paper in my husband's wallet. It had an address, phone number and name of a girl he works with.

When I asked him about it, he said he didn't remember writing it, and doesn't know how it got in his wallet.

What do you recommend, before I load my shotgun? — ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Forget the shotgun and consider the evidence — circumstantial as it may be.

Now I'll tell you what NOT to do. Don't yell and scream and tear up the scenery. Wait for a quiet time when you can have a calm discussion. It may be nothing serious. If it were, he'd have her telephone number memorized. If you feel your marriage is seriously threatened, you should both see a counselor. If he won't go with you — go alone.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder if secondhand tobacco smoke affects animals? If it's hazardous to the health of humans, it's probably bad for animals, too. I doubt if anything can be done about this legally — but morally, people should consider how secondhand smoke can affect the life span of their pets. I would be sad to learn that my smoking caused the early death of my dog, and I'm sure other people feel the same. — ROBERT J. DMUCHOWSKI, BETHPAGE, N.Y.

DEAR MR. DMUCHOWSKI: That secondhand smoke might harm a dog has never occurred to me. Of course it's cruel to subject an animal to that which might be hazardous to its health — but if smokers don't consider their spouses and children, they're not likely to be concerned about a pet.

DEAR ABBY: "Young Teacher" is concerned about paying future adults to get to school on time and have a good attendance record. It reminds me of that old question: "Do you reward your child for being good, or is he good for nothing?" — ALSO CONCERNED IN MARYLAND

CONFIDENTIAL TO KERRY D. IN GREAT FALLS, MONT.: It was Lord Chesterfield who supposedly said regarding sex: "The price is preposterous, the pleasure is transitory and the position is ridiculous."

DEAR ABBY: You have had several letters recently from people who are fed up with receiving overdue notices and nasty letters from service companies. You say that most billings these days are handled by computers, which are sorely lacking in common sense.

My trash collecting service uses computer billing, and what its computer lacks in common sense, it makes up in a sense of humor. After I missed one payment, my second bill read: "Hello. I am a computer. Your account is past due. If you don't pay soon, I will tell a human."

That kind of message will get better results than one that puts me on the defensive. — ALL FOR HUMOR IN BOULDER

BETSY DRAKE LEWIS' DECORATING TIPS
YOU CAN GET ANOTHER DIMENSION WITH PATTERNS

While it's wise to be careful about how, and where, you use patterns, it's also wise to consider patterns for the added dimensions they can bring to the overall decorating of your home.

Patterns can be overdone or over-used-but they can also give a vitality that may be needed.

Very often, patterns, if properly selected can really help an ordinary room. And you can think about patterns on any of your furnishings, ranging from carpets to walls to upholstered furniture.

Patterns are a popular look today because they can add drama to a room and bring a certain fresh, bold spirit that you may want.

Another advantage of patterns is that they call attention to what they're on, and thereby make that particular furnishing stand out.

There used to be lots of rules prohibiting the use of patterns in many ways, but along with other decorating trends, those rules have been eased to allow more freedom and imagination, still within the bounds of good taste. Thus, patterns can be used in more ways, and repeated for good effects, too.

Primarily, we want you to be aware of the advantages that patterns might bring to your rooms, and we'll be happy to discuss them--and any of your furnishings needs--with you.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY May 22

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): If you are in the mood to go out on the town, or just to visit some friends or relatives, don't try to force anyone to accompany you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Take the time to schedule your activities for the coming week, and increase your efficiency. Avoid arguments at all costs today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Avoid individuals who feel they have a right to control the course of your life. It would be wise to get plenty of extra rest this evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): It would ill behoove you to discuss financial or property matters with anyone today. Don't let an outsider cause strife in your home.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Running away from your problems only guarantees that they will be bigger when you get back. Don't lose your temper with anyone today.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You may find it difficult to express your feelings today, but don't try to blame this problem on anyone. Get some work done around the house.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You may be itching to go off for a little adventure with friends, but it would be better to stay at home and get to know your family again.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Don't argue with anyone about finances unless you are absolutely sure of your facts and figures. Drive very carefully today and tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Arrange a schedule for your work this week that you can stick to easily. Don't let a temperamental friend get your dander up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan.20): You may feel that you have more work to do than you can handle, but this is only in your mind. Be honest with yourself and others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Stop worrying about an annoying situation which you can do little to change. Try to soothe an associate who has gotten himself in a lather.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Don't complain about conditions which can't be changed; learn to adapt, instead. Be prepared for some strange surprises this week.

(c)1988, The McNaught Syndicate Inc.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY May 23

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You would be much better off accomplishing some worthwhile goals than running off for recreation. Be more cooperative with your mate.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Don't waste any valuable time arguing a moot point this morning. Let your talents shine this evening, but don't stay out too late.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Be very careful in the handling of communications this morning, and avoid alienating anyone. Entertain some good friends this evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Don't jeopardize your security in any way this morning. Get together with an old friend, and enjoy a favorite hobby together.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): If you are having trouble solving a personal problem, seek out the help of a professional. Be sure property repairs are within your budget.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): If you and a close friend coordinate your efforts, you can accomplish much in a short time. Don't let an annoying situation ruin your mood.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): An acquaintance who is angry may try to use you as a whipping boy, so try to calm this person down. Enjoy the company of your mate tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Keep your eyes open for an opportunity to do something which will add to your prestige. Don't take any risks while driving.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Keep your eyes open for an opportunity to do something which will add to your prestige. Don't take any risks while driving.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan.20): Steer clear of an argument with your mate this morning. Study the details of a trip you are planning on taking in the near future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): A very lucrative business opportunity will be present today, so stay on your toes. Help out a friend who is in a sticky situation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Instead of arguing with a co-worker who you think is not pulling his weight, be calm and reasonable and let this person know how you feel.

Opening lead: Ten of ◇

Sometimes the percentage play might not be good enough. On occasion, a slightly inferior line, combined with a bit of deception, might produce the desired result.

This hand was played in a national championship some 20 years ago. Sitting South was the late Sidney Silodor, not only one of the great players of his day, but a master psychologist. He reached six hearts via the auction shown. (We, too, would have opened the South hand with one heart and continued with a "high reverse" after North's two-diamond response.) West found the lead of the ten of diamonds, striking at declarer's weak spot. How would you play the hand?

Silodor rose with dummy's ace of diamonds and dropped the queen from hand! He crossed to the ace of hearts and ran the jack. When that held, he drew the last trump and ran the club suit to make an overtrick.

Now Silodor knew full well that the percentage play in trumps, with a combined holding of nine cards in the suit, was to play for the drop of the queen. Why then did he finesse?

Simply because that gave him a strong tactical edge. Suppose that the finesse had lost to East. Would that worthy have tried to cash the king of diamonds when South seemed to be out of that suit? We think not, and neither did Silodor. If not, declarer would have had ample time to set up his club suit for all the discards he needed from dummy to bring home his slam.

Now we are not suggesting that you give up a line which is a heavy favorite to indulge in some petty larceny. But here the difference between the drop and the finesse is only 52-48 percent, so Silodor's line rather tickles our fancy.

LEGAL NOTICE
PUBLIC HEARING FOR GREENVILLE UTILITIES COMMISSION'S 201 FACILITIES PLAN AMENDMENT

Notice is hereby given that the Greenville Utilities Commission will hold a public hearing on an amendment to the 201 Facilities Plan. The amendment provides for construction of approximately 38,000 linear feet of interceptor sewers along Hardee Creek, Bell Branch, Meeting House Branch, between N.C. 43 and N.C. 33 along the south side of the Tar River. The purpose of the hearing is to receive comments related to construction, environmental concerns, and financing to provide sanitary sewer services. The hearing will be held on June 21, 1988 at 7:30 P.M. in the Board Room, 3rd floor, Greenville Utilities Commission Main Office, 200 West Fifth Street, Greenville, N.C.

A description of the proposed project design, environmental effects, and costs will be available for public review during normal business hours after June 6, 1988 at the Sheppard Memorial Library, Greenville City Hall, and at the Water/Sewer Systems Office in the Greenville Utilities Commission Engineering Center.
May 22, 29, 1988.

NOTICE OF SUBSTITUTE TRUSTEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

File No. 88 SP 72
IN THE GENERAL COURT OF JUSTICE SUPERIOR COURT DIVISION
STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
COUNTY OF PITT
IN THE MATTER OF THE FORECLOSURE OF THE DEED OF TRUST OF JOE LOUIS DANIELS AND WIFE, IRENE HARRIS DANIELS, Grantor, TO
WILLARD GOURLEY, JR., Trustee,
As recorded in Book L 40 at Page 89 of the Pitt County Public Registry.
See Appointment of Substitute Trustee as recorded in Book 171 at Page 26, Pitt County Public Registry.
Under and by virtue of the power and authority contained in that certain Deed of Trust executed and delivered by Joe Louis Daniels and Irene Harris Daniels, dated November 16, 1971, and recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, North Carolina, in Book L 40 at Page 89 and because of default in the payment of the indebtedness thereby secured and failure to carry out or perform the stipulations and agreements therein contained and pursuant to the demand of the owner and holder of the indebtedness secured by said Deed of Trust, and pursuant to the Order of the Clerk of Superior Court for Pitt County, North Carolina, entered in this foreclosure proceeding, the undersigned, Ronald H. Davis, Substitute Trustee, will expose for sale at public auction on the 10th day of June, 1988, at 12:00 p.m. on the steps of the Pitt County Courthouse, Greenville, North Carolina, the following described real property:

Lying and being in the City of Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina and BEGINNING at a point in the southern property line of Myrtle Avenue, said point being located N. 61-00 E. 60 feet from the southeast corner of the intersection of Myrtle Avenue and Boyd (formerly Broadway) Avenue; thence from said point N. 61-00 E. 120 feet along the southern property line of Myrtle Avenue to a stake; thence S. 29-00 E. 150 feet to a stake, cornering; thence S. 61-00 W. 120 feet to a stake, thence N. 29-00 W. 150 feet to the point of BEGINNING and being portions of Lots 2, 3, and 4 in Block G-1, Map Book 2, p. 130 of the Higgs Bros. Subdivision and being the same property described in Book H-30, p. 189 of the Pitt County Registry, and being the same property as appears on map of George R. Schackleford R.L.S. dated November 10, 1971.
Property Address: 1209 Myrtle Avenue, Greenville, NC 27834
The sale will be made subject to all prior liens, unpaid taxes, restrictions and easements of record and assessments, if any.
The record owner Joe Louis Daniels and wife, Irene Harris Daniels of the above described real property as reflected on the records of the Pitt County Register of Deeds not more than ten (10) days prior to the posting of this Notice May 18, 1988.
Pursuant to North Carolina General Statute 45-21.10(b), and the terms of the Deed of Trust, any successful bidder may be required to deposit with the Substitute Trustee immediately upon conclusion of the sale a cash deposit of ten (10%) percent of the bid up to and including $1,000 plus five (5%) percent of any excess over $1,000. Any successful bidder shall be required to tender the full balance purchase price so bid in cash or certified check at the time the Substitute Trustee tenders to him a deed for the property or attempts to tender such deed, and should said successful bidder fail to pay the full balance purchase price so bid at that time, he shall remain liable on his bid as provided for in North Carolina General Statutes 45-21.30 (d) and (e).
This sale will be held open ten (10) days for upset bids as required by law.
This the 19 day of May, 1988.

PONTIAC'S GOT YOUR NEW CAR

Excitement

We Now Offer Two Special Finance Plans For The New Car Buyer!

PONTIAC

COLLEGE GRADUATE FINANCE PLAN

NO MONEY DOWN* NO PAYMENTS FOR 3 MONTHS FOR QUALIFIED BUYERS

Congratulations! You deserve a lot of credit for your college achievements. And Pontiac wants to be the first to give you the credit you deserve . . . with Pontiac's College Graduate Finance Plan through GMAC. This plan can put you in the driver's seat of a high-performance road machine at financing terms within your budget. That's right. Now you can begin establishing that all-important credit history with Pontiac's help and drive the excitement of one of Pontiac's most popular models!

EXACTLY HOW DOES THIS PLAN WORK?

It's simple. Participating Pontiac dealers offer you . . .

A Pontiac "No Down Payment" Exclusive through GMAC. Pontiac pays the down payment of up to 5% of the cash selling price.

AND

A Deferred First Payment* with equal monthly payments of up to 60 months, beginning 90 days after date of purchase.

WHO'S ELIGIBLE?

It's easy to qualify. All we require is . . . Receipt of a degree from any graduate degree program, four-year college or registered nursing (diploma) program within the past year (seniors within six months of graduation at a four-year college are also eligible), or current enrollment in a graduate degree program.
Verifiable permanent employment, or commitment for employment.
No derogatory credit references or no credit history at all.
The ability to meet the monthly payments.

HOW LONG DOES THIS OFFER LAST?

You can take advantage of this exclusive finance plan between now and Sept. 30, 1988.

PONTIAC

1st TIME BUYER FINANCE PLAN

$600 OFF TOWARDS DOWN PAYMENT FOR QUALIFIED NEW CAR BUYERS

Make no mistake. As a first-time buyer, your business is very important to Pontiac. And just to prove it, we're offering a $600 allowance that can be applied towards the down payment on selected all-new 1988 Pontiacs! It's called Pontiac's First-Time-Buyer Finance Plan through GMAC. And the best part is, while you're enjoying the ride of your life, you'll be establishing strong credit ties with GMAC.

IS ANY PRIOR CREDIT HISTORY NEEDED TO QUALIFY?

No. All we require is . . .
No derogatory credit history.
No prior new-auto financing.
Verifiable satisfactory employment and residence.
Confirmed physical damage insurance. (In some states, this requirement must be met with six months' worth of prepaid insurance. Ask your dealer for specifics.)
Acceptance by GMAC.

WHICH CARS ARE ELIGIBLE FOR THIS OFFER?

Just some of the hottest machines on the road is all . . .

Fiero
Firebird (Base and Formula only)
LeMans
Sunbird
AND Grand Am

ANYTHING ELSE?

Yes. This unique program is offered in addition to existing incentive programs available on the models mentioned above at the time of purchase. (See your dealer for details.)
NOTE: First-Time-Buyer Finance Plan cannot be combined with the College Graduate Finance Plan.

WHAT ARE THE TERMS?

Equal monthly payments for up to 60 months. Of course, your monthly payments and financing costs will depend on how much you put towards your down payment. Simply put, the more you put down . . . the less your monthly payments.

That's it. That's all.

NOBODY DOES IT BETTER

How Jeannette Cox has become Greenville's Most Successful Relocation Specialist.

When corporations need help in the transfer and relocation of their employees in the Greenville area, more of them call Jeannette Cox than any other Realtor. Because no one equals her experience in managing residential properties. Or her success in selling them.

Jeannette heads the Relocation Division of Jeannette Cox Agency, Inc., one of Greenville's most dynamic real estate firms. Working with sales Associates, she coordinates the relocation services required by her corporate clients. Market analysis, sales, mortgage financing and the care and upkeep of vacant homes. It's all handled efficiently and at the lowest possible cost by the Relocation Division at Jeannette Cox Agency, Inc.

In addition to working directly with major corporations, Jeannette also represents relocation firms such as Equitable Relocation Management Company, Merrill Lynch Relocation management, Bank of St. Lewis, Procter and Gamble Company and Homequity. Here, too, her property management and sales skills find a ready market.

If your company is involved in employee transfer and relocation in Greenville or the surrounding counties, call Jeannette Cox at (919) 756-1322.

House Hunting?

Now You Can Receive A Loan Commitment Before You Shop For Your Home

Introducing the Fleet
EXPEDITER

Today's solution to the complexity of the home mortgage process.

Looking for a home should be an exciting, enjoyable experience, and it could be, if there weren't so many problems with financing. You've heard the horror stories: the loan commitment that came too late; the dream home that was lost to someone with faster financing. The EXPEDITER solves those old-fashioned financing problems. The EXPEDITER is the home mortgage plan that gives you an earlier closing once you've found it.

The Fleet EXPEDITER

- makes house hunting easier
- gives you Fleet's valuable rate option
- lets you negotiate for your new home with confidence
- reduces paperwork delays

SAVE $150

Contact a participating Realtor to find out more about the Fleet EXPEDITER. He'll also give you a $150 coupon to reduce your closing costs.

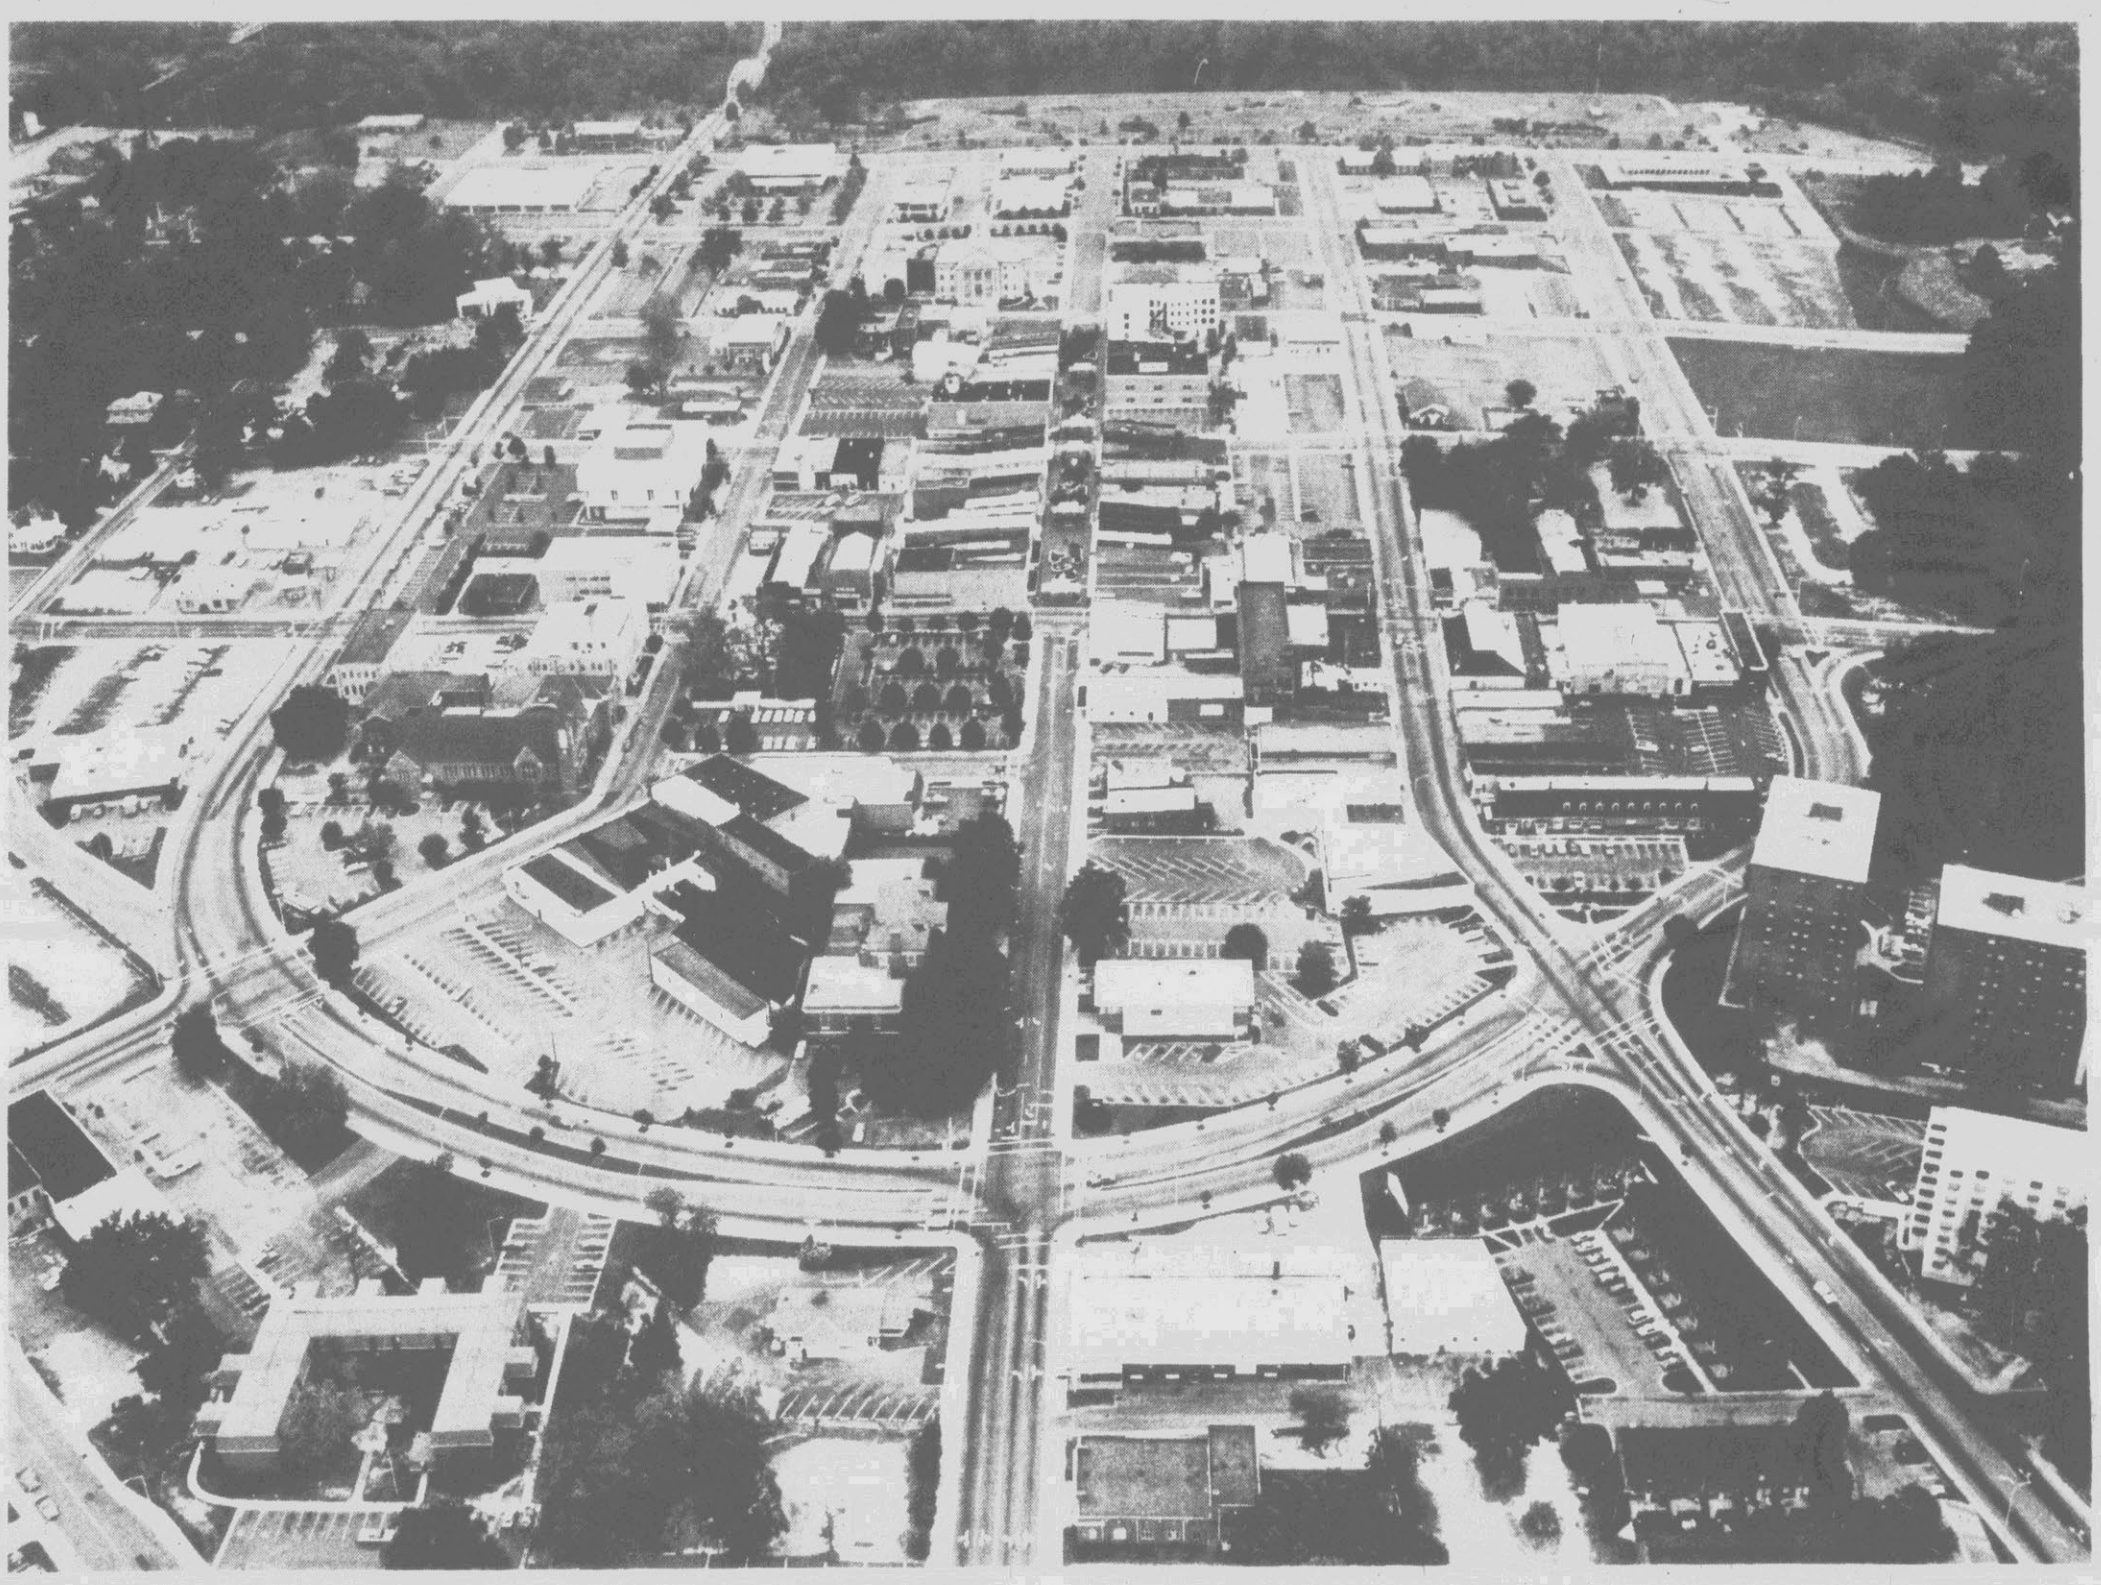
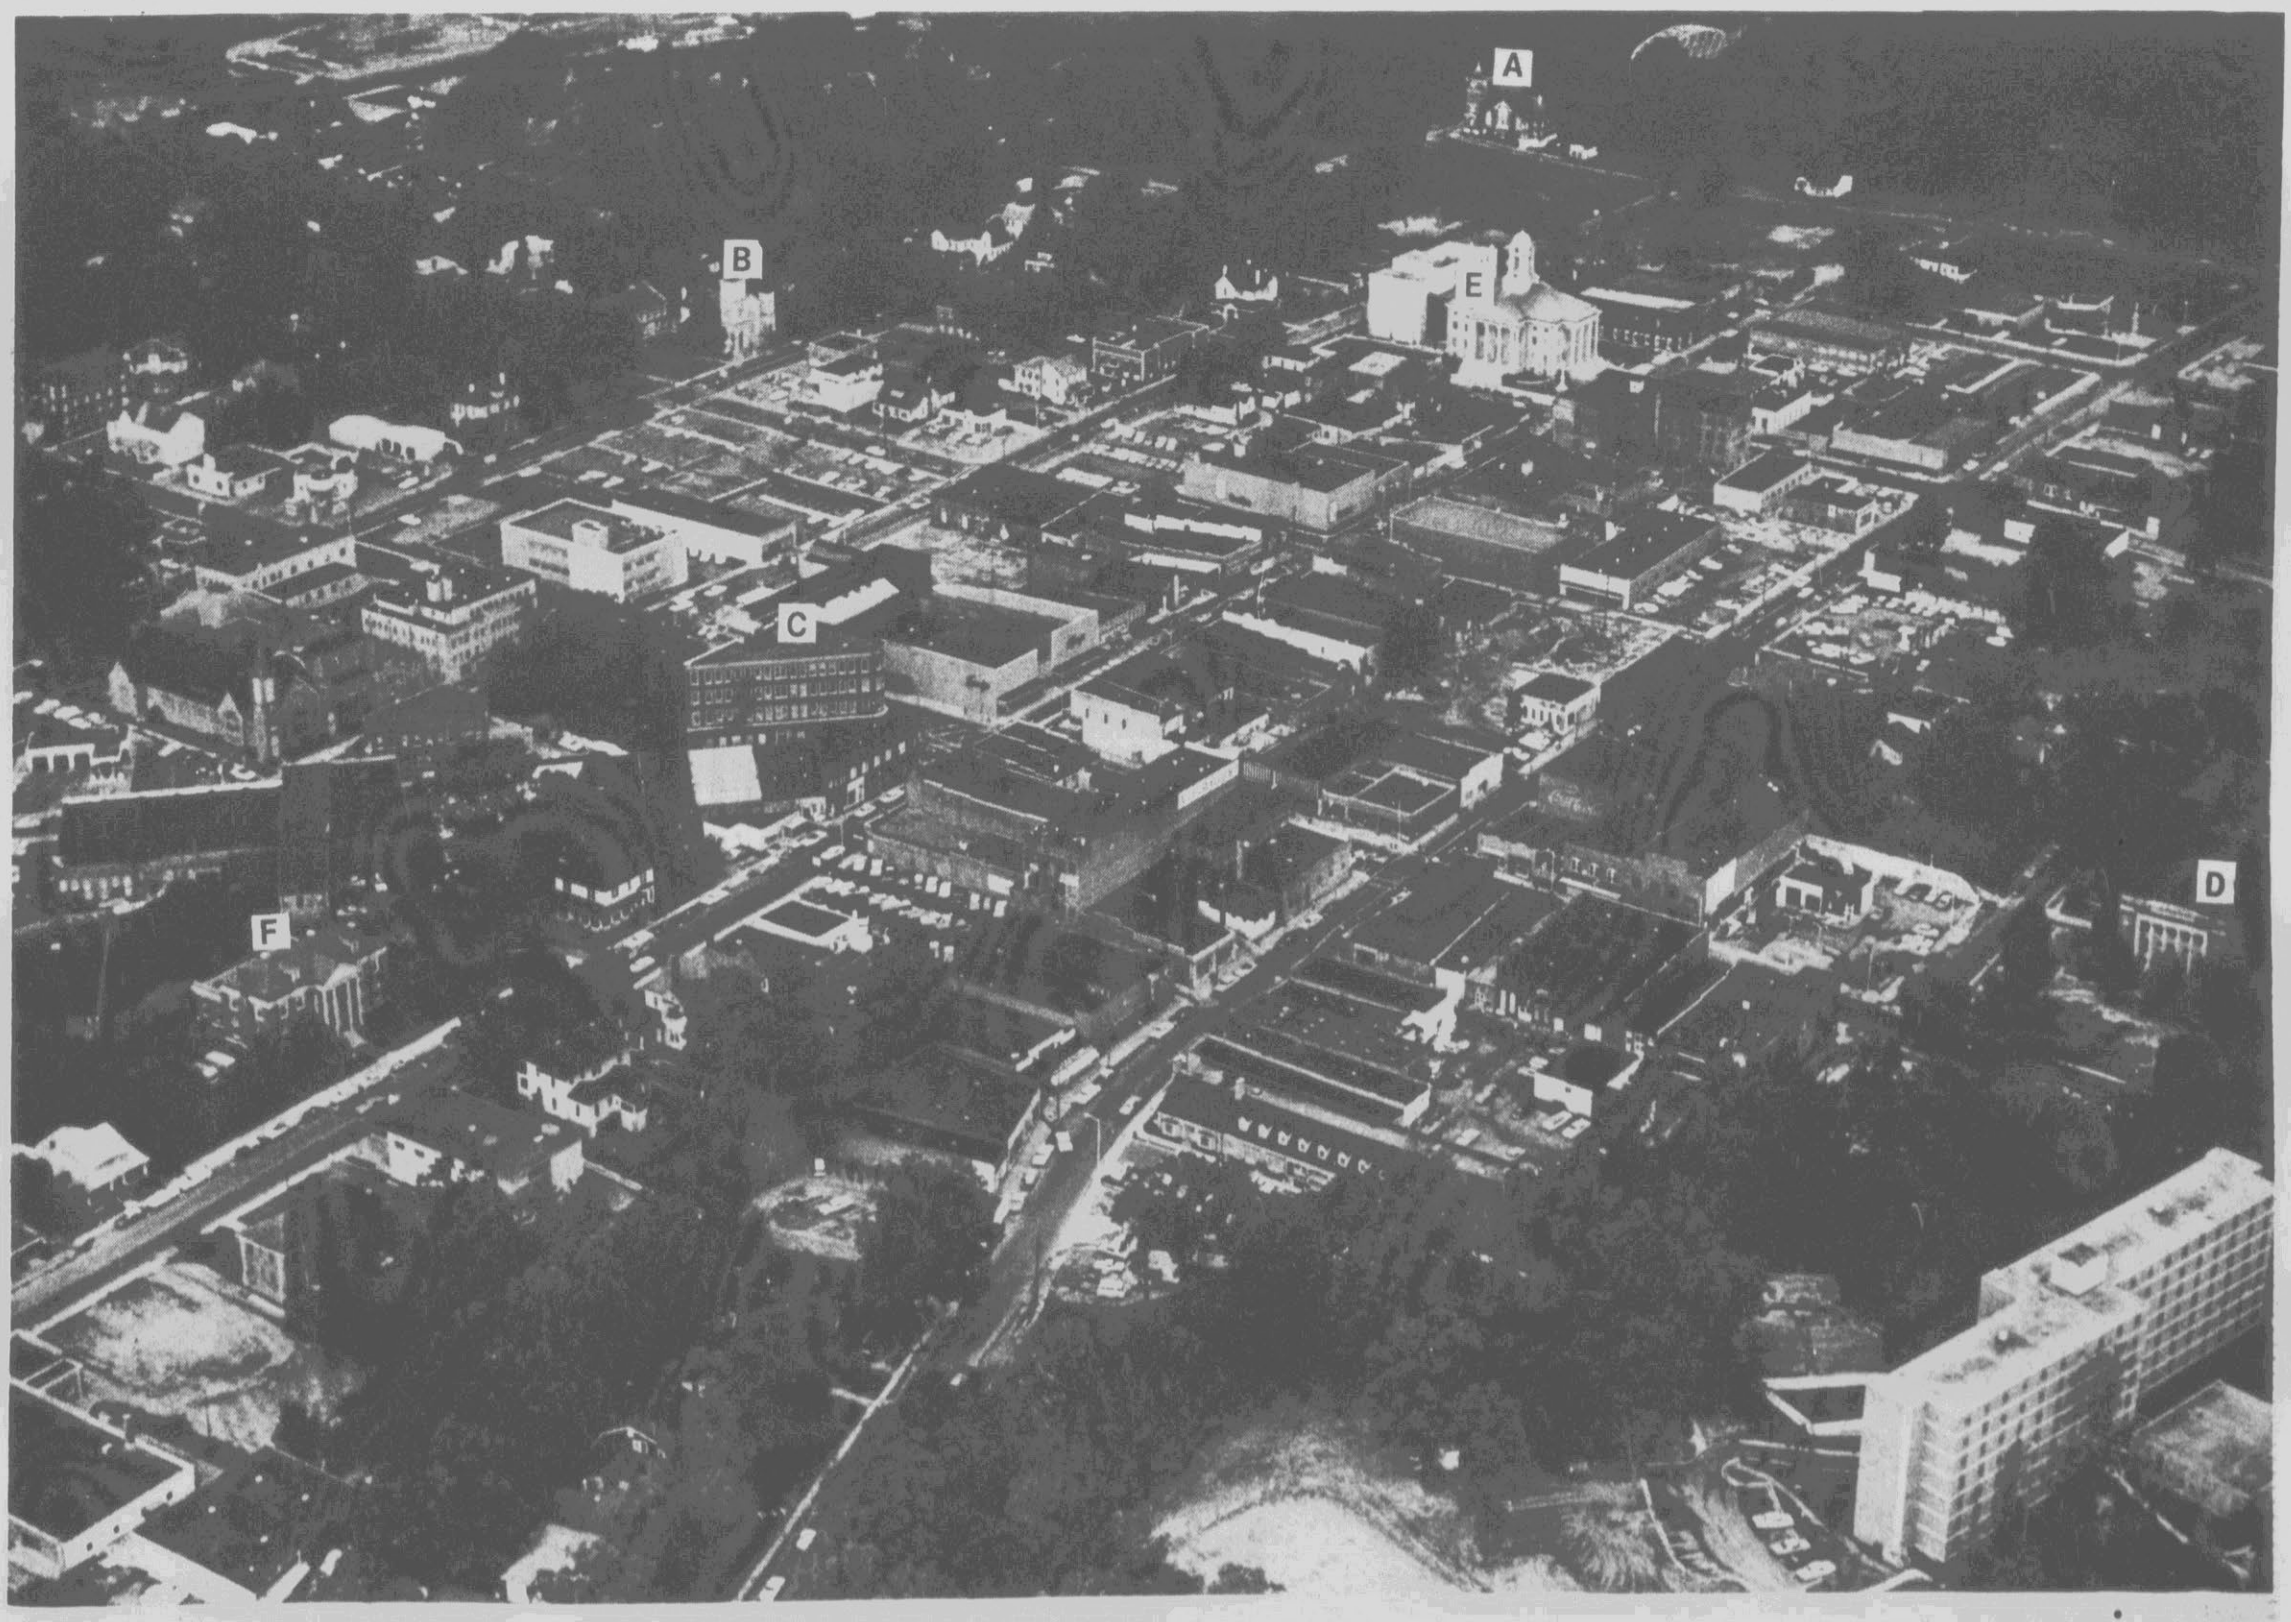
Downtown Greenville — 1967 And Now



These aerial photographs of downtown Greenville show construction and deletion activities of the past 21 years. The top photo was taken Monday; the lower one on Aug. 8, 1967. Street pattern changes are visible, including the addition of Reade Circle and Evans Mall and the elimination of the Five Points intersection at the south end of what is now Evans Mall.

Landmarks that may be seen in the 1967 photo include (A) Sycamore Hill Baptist Church at First and Greene streets, (B) the old Memorial Baptist Church on Greene Street, (C) State Bank Building at what was then Five Points, and (D) Greenville High School on Reade Street. The Town Common by the Tar River was under construction at the time. Clement and White dormitories on the western edge of the East Carolina University campus were not built when the 1967 photo was taken. Buildings to use for reference in both photos are (E) the Pitt County Courthouse and (F) Sheppard Memorial Library. (Reflector Photos By Thomas Forrest)



Grifton Poets Honored

Jane K. Lambert and Maxine Carey Harker, both of Grifton, were named winners in the annual poetry contest sponsored by the North Carolina Poetry Society Inc. during its annual meeting at Weymouth Hall in Southern Pines.

Ms. Lambert won second place in the Caldwell W. Nixon Jr. Award for the entry "The Rare Specimen." The category is for poems by adults for children.

Ms. Harker received an honorable mention for the entry "Piracy at the Supermarket" in the Ogden Nash Award category.

During a business session, officers elected include Lois Holt of Durham, president; Marie Gilbert of Greensboro, first vice president; Sandra Redding of Greensboro, second vice president; Susan Rose of Chapel Hill, third vice president; Nancy Cotter Gates of Greensboro, corresponding secretary; Janet Adkins of Arapahoe, recording secretary; Robert J. Collins of Wilmington, treasurer; Nina Wicker of Sanford and Judith Settle of Mebane, board members at large.

AUTHOR — Author Clifford Irving, shown here during an interview last week, has written numerous novels but will most likely be remembered for his Howard Hughes hoax in the early 1970s. Irving spoke about the hoax and his career as a novelist during the interview in Boston. (AP Laserphoto)

Hughes Hoaxer Ends Isolation To Discuss Houston Homicide

By STEFAN FATSIS
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Mention "the hoax" and Clifford Irving casts his eyes downward, shakes his head and offers a smirk of mild disgust that 16 years and six books later the subject still pops up.

Irving would like to talk about books he has written, not about the chicanery that put him in prison in the early 1970s after he duped a publisher out of $650,000 by claiming he had compiled an autobiography of the late reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes.

The bearded, pensive New Yorker is something of a recluse himself now, living in a small Mexican mountain community. He has emerged to talk about his latest book — a chronicle of the 1982 murders of a Houston lawyer and his wife, plotted by their daughter, carried out by her boyfriend, uncovered by a private eye.

But he knows the Hughes scam will dog him to the end.

"I just don't want to talk about it because I don't think it's fair. It's so long ago. Whatever penalties there are for avoiding the question, I will endure them. I just don't want to discuss it," he said.

But ask Irving about "Daddy's Girl: The Campbell Murder Case" (Summit Books, $19.95) and he'll ramble on about the underbelly of American life and the criminal justice system he says he discovered while researching — and ultimately becoming a player in — the Texas case.

In June 1982, James M. Campbell, 55, and his wife, Virginia, 50, were killed by a .45-caliber pistol while they slept. The killer fired over their two grandchildren, who were asleep at the foot of the bed.

Nearly three years later, a 23-year-old private detective named Kim Paris romanced David Duval West into confessing to the Campbell murders. He was convicted of murder. The Campbells' daughter, Cynthia Ray, was found guilty in a separate trial of plotting the crime in order to gain an inheritance.

For Irving, what started as a trip to Houston in search of a good dentist ended as a two-year investigation culminating with the author taking the stand to dispute the testimony of a key prosection witness.

"My interest was superficial at the beginning — a beautiful young private eye seduces a murderer into confession," Irving said during a promotional swing through Boston. "Then I got to know the murderer — the alleged murderer — and I wasn't so sure he had done it."

Irving testified in the West trial that a witness he had interviewed lied on the stand when he said Irving had made him get drunk in order to obtain information. He battled with a prosecutor.

"I was so involved at this point that I couldn't believe it," Irving said. "I certainly had never intended it."

His involvement stretched to attending judge's conferences with attorneys, taping courtroom proceedings despite a court ban and developing close friendships with lawyers on both sides of the case. The experience was uniquely Texan.

"Texas is different. It's still the frontier, the Wild West," said Irving, dressed in a brown tweed jacket and a pair of elephant-hide boots. "Certainly the intimacy of the courtroom is different. It's clubby. A Philadelphia lawyer who knew what I was doing said you could never do this in Philadelphia, you could never get that close."

Since the Campbell trials ended last year, the 55-year-old Irving has returned to San Miguel Allende, population 20,000, where he lives with the youngest of his three sons.

Irving's steely blue eyes and public love affairs once commanded as much attention as the hoax. He's living alone now, adding that after four divorces, "I'm not very good at domesticity."

He's working on a new project, a "twisty novel about the ethics of the law" set in Texas. A screenplay about young love in the 1950s is on hold because of a strike by Hollywood writers. CBS is negotiating to make a TV movie out of the Campbell case.

Group Seeks Nominations For Awards

Nominations are now open in nine categories for annual awards to organizations and individuals which will be presented by the North Carolina Society of Historians for outstanding achievements in historical research, writing, publishing and preservation. More than one award may be presented in each category.

Nominations for the awards may be made by anyone. All the awards are open to any resident of North Carolina; some of the awards are open also to non-residents, provided the subject matter of the entry deals with North Carolina.

The deadline for nominations is July 31 and they must be accompanied by the proper registration forms avaible from the North Carolina Society of Historians, P.O. Box 848, Rockingham, N.C.

Awards for which nominations are solicited are listed:

The D.T. Smithwick Newspaper Article Award; Willie Parker Peace History Book Award; Robert Bruce Cook Family History Book Award; McDaniel Lewis Historian of the Year Award; Malcolm Fowler Society Award; Publisher's Award; Newsletter Award; History Through Archaeology Award, and the Religious History Book Award.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By JIM FALCONI

The library's copy of "The Best Plays of 1986-87" has recently arrived and adds to a set that begins with 1894. This set should appeal to both the theater lover or any individual looking for some interesting reading. Usually, the best plays of one year are the ones produced as little theater or university productions the following year.

Each of the 10 selected best plays is presented with both a synopsis and excerpts of dialogue so readers get a feel for not only the plot and structure but characterizations as well.

This year's issue includes the musical "Les Miserables" based on the Victor hugo novel; "Broadway Bound," Neil Simon's continuation of the autobiographical "Brighton Beach Memoirs" and "Biloxi Blues"; "The Widow Claire" by Horton Foote, author of Trip to Bountiful and Tender Mercies; and the Pulizter Prize winning "Fences" by black playwright, August Wilson.

In addition to the plays, the volume offers page upon page of facts and figures including enough lists, dates, awards and necrologies to please any theater researcher or trivia buff. The 1986-87 volume includes dozens of photographs and a 65-page section of Hirschfield caricatures of theater personalities.

Although it is always said that plays are meant to be seen performed not read in a book, for those of us who cannot readily go to Broadway or Off-Broadway, this volume provides a clear picture of what last year's theater season was like.

Collector Plans Fossil Exhibition

WILMINGTON — Dewayne Carson Varnum will display and discuss his fossil collection at New Hanover County Museum of the Lower Cape Fear May 29 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Varnum will exhibit 80 fossil specimens from his collection. Items to be displayed include a giant bear jaw with teeth, a mastodon tooth, prehistoric beaver teeth and 500-million-year-old trilobites. There will be no appraisals but collectors are encouraged to bring their specimens for discussion and examination.

A native of Supply, Varnum has been collecting fossils for nine years. he found his first fossil shark tooth on a dredge subsequently catching the collecting "bug" as he has not been "able to stop." He will answer questions throughout the afternoon.

This is the first in a summer series of Collector's Corners highlighting local collection. All programs are free.

Ms. Wheelchair Pageant Planned

CHARLOTTE — The 11th annual Ms. Wheelchair North Carolina Pageant will be held at the Holiday Inn-Woodlawn Road in Charlotte July 21-24.

The pageant stresses personal achievement, personality, intelligence and capability of the physically disabled in the competition with peers.

During the four-day event, participants will attend workshops relating to self-esteem, sexuality after disability, career planning, legislation updates and communication skills.

Tryon Palace To Celebrate Colonial Life

NEW BERN — Tryon Palace will be setting for the celebration of the 10th annual Colonial Living Day May 28 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The gardens and grounds are open to the public on this day as many events have been planned to entertain visitors.

More than 35 craftspeople from eastern North Carolina will demostrate traditional methods of spinning, weaving, soap and candle making, chair caning and basket weaving among other disciplines. This year, for the first time, a lace maker will demonstrate her skill in this 18th century craft.

Young visitors will find entertainment flying 18th century style kites as well as joining in hoop races and games of quoits or visiting Goldie the horse. A magician will surprise and mystify visitors as he wanders on the grounds.

A highlight of the day will be the encampmnent of the Highland Regiment on the Great Lawn of the Palace. The regiment will present drills and musket demonstrations throughout the weekend.

Memorial Day Monday will mark the opening of the eighth season of the Tryon Palace summer drama tours that offer a glimpse at life in the Palace in 1770. Drama tours will be presented alternately with the regular interpretive tours throughout the tour day except on Sundays and Mondays when all Tryon Palace tours will be conducted by museum guides.

The Tryon Palace Restoration Complex is open from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays and from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday afternoons. For more information, call 919-638-1560.

Carter Contributed Chapter In Guide

John Marshall Carter of the history department at East Carolina University contributed a chapter titled "Military Developments in England to 1485" in the recently published "A Guide To the Sources of British Military History." (New York: Garland Publishing).

The 500-plus pages book includes chapters on all phases of British Military History from the Roman period to the present day.

The volume contains contributions from scholars in the United States, Canada and England. The work provides historiographical essays on British military history, including naval history.

Art Museum Publications Get Awards

RALEIGH — Two publications of the North Carolina Museum of Art have received awards in an annual competition sponsored by the American Federation of Arts. The competition is held to acknowledge and promote design excellence in publications produced by art museums.

Both of the museum's publications, "The Catalogue of Spanish Paintings" and the gallery guide for the exhibition "A Richard C. Chrestomathy: Fine, Medium and Course Art, or Doodads of Cosmic Significance," received the Award of Excellence, the AFA's only award.

"The Catalogue of Spanish Paintings," designed by the museum's chief designer, Lida Lowrey, was published by the museum in 1986 and documents the paintings by Spanish artists in the museum's collections. Funding for research and publication of this four-color catalogue was provided by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation and the National Endowment for the Arts. The catalogue is available for sale in the museum shop.

The gallery guide, "A Richard C. Chrestomathy," was designed by Nancy Ahrens, assistant graphic designer. The guide was a free publication available to visitors interested in more information about the exhibition when it was on view at the museum in 1987.

The awards mark the fifth time in six years that the museum publications have placed in the competition.

The winning publications were two of 120 winners selected from more than 1,000 entries judged in December 1987 at the New York headquarters of the AFA. The AFA is a merger of the Art Museum Association of America and the American Federation of Arts, two national museum service organizations founded in 1921 and 1909, respectively.

ECU Faculty Member Writes On Family Issues

By FRANCEINE PERRY
ECU News Bureau

Recent writings on a variety of family-related issues are included in "Families in Transition: An Annotated Bibliography" by East Carolina University faculty member Judith DeBoard Sadler. The book is scheduled for publication this month by Archon Books of Connecticut.

The 251-page hard-cover volume surveys published material on such topics as single-parenting, stepfamilies, foster families, teenage-parent families, homosexual relationships, child custody and visitation, "latchkey" children, commuting couples and other issues dealing with changes in family configurations during the past two decades.

The book is recommended for those with a professional or personal interest in family issues, particularly social workers, counselors, educators, ministers and attorneys. More than 900 books and articles, including some 100 fiction and nonfiction books for children, along with 40 films and audio or video cassettes are surveyed in the Sadler bibliography. While some publications were designed for professionals, many were intended for the general reader, among them articles from mass-market magazines.

In a pre-publication review, Hamilton I. McCubbin, dean of the University of Wisconsin's School of Family Resources and Consumer Sciences, said Sadler's book "will emerge as a classic in the field and establish itself as a major reference document for family scholars."

Judith Sadler, an associate professor of library and information studies at ECU, precedes her bibliography with an introduction explaining changes in the make-up of family units. The percentage of families that fit the traditional concept of two parents with children is on the decline across the nation, while divorce rates have risen sharply.

She cites current statistics:

—Approximately 75 percent of divorced women and 83 percent of divorced men remarry, and remarriages have a 50 percent "survival rate."

—About half a million adults become stepparents each year in the U.S. with between a third and a sixth of all children in the U.S. having at least one stepparent.

—It is likely that by 1990 the number of stepfamilies and single-parent households will be greater than the number of "traditional" two-parent families.

"No longer is the nuclear family predominant in this country," Ms. Sadler says. "As a result, the American family is in a state of transition.

"There are now single-parent families, stepfamilies, dual earner families, and commuter families. The challenges families confront include latchkey kids, day care, custody, child support, displaced homemakers, teen-age pregnancy, parental kidnapping, surrogate parentage, and homosexual parents."

Although "a number of social and economic forces" have brought about change in the structure of families, Ms. Sadler says, the family unit retains its important role in society.

"While individuals in Western society have found various ways to meet material needs, no one has yet devised a more successful alternative form for providing emotional security than the family," she says.

Tennessee Gardens Expanding

GATLINBURG, Tenn. — Gatlinburg's leading visitor attraction, Christus Gardens, recently announced a comprehensive expansion program in its 28-year history, involving expenditures of about a million dollars.

Ronald S. Ligon, the Nashville, Tenn., businessman who founded the non-denominational religious attraction in 1960, said the expansion started March 1 and includes the addition of 6,500 square feet of space to the marble Christus Gardens building as well as extensive development of both inferior and exterior garden areas.

A major part of the work — the structural enlargement in preparation for new displays and exhibits — is being completed this month, Ligon said. The overall expansion, including both interior and exterior development, will be carried out as a continuing project and should be completed by fall of 1989.

Joe E. Waggoner, executive vice president and general manager of Christus Gardens, emphasized that the project makes the attraction "new and different," even for visitors who have toured the gardens recently.

"The most visible part of the work is being completed well ahead of the summer season, and visitors will find major changes which make the gardens even more appealing and greatly enhance the quality of overall presentation," Waggoner said.

Since its founding, Christus Gardens has been toured by millions of people from all 50 states and more than 72 foreign countries.

In addition to its recreation of scenes of the life of Christ, beginning with The Nativity and ending with The Ascension, Christus Gardens owns a collection of Biblical coins, described as the finest in the United States and one of the three finest in the world.

Coins from the collection will be placed on individual display in the new circular gallery area.

Writer's First Book Captures Life As Student In Berkeley In The '60s

A Reflector Review

BERKELEY THROUGH BIFOCALS. By LaRue M. Evans. Winterville, N.C.: Marksman Press, 1988, 283 pp. Soft cover, Illustrated.

In the turbulent '60s the University of California at Berkeley, seen through bifocals, plain glasses or no glasses at all, was a hotbed of liberals, radicals, dissenters from practically everything.

Into this maelstrom of malcontents, LaRue Evans was suddenly thrust — a middle-aged teacher from Pitt County, North Carolina. This delightful book is an account of her adventures as she "captures the spirit and the temper of Berkeley in 1965-66."

In that year the author was the lucky recipient of a John Hay Fellowship and was assigned to Berkeley for a full year of study that would add enrichment to her already-abundant qualifications as a public school teacher.

It was a year of sharp contrasts. Mrs. Evans tells of her sheltered background in eastern North Carolina — a background in rural, agricultural Pitt County, where cultural opportunities were notable for their absence. She attended secondary schools in Stokes and then moved on to the then-East Carolina Teachers College in Greenville, and from there to the classroom in the same area.

One can only imagine the cultural shock when she moved into International House at Berkeley and became a part of the "most liberal, most culturally advanced, most volatile academic environment in the United States, perhaps in the whole world." The result is funny, sad, poignant — and lasting.

In this charming book, written with artfully artless simplicity, Mrs. Evans tells of life in International House, in close contact with students — most of them of a younger generation — from 75 different counties. She says, "French, Hindi, Arabic, Swedish, Spanish, Japanese, Russian and innumerable other languages, including my own 'Southernese,' made dining hall a Tower of Babel."

Instead of drawing into herself and saying "Tsk-tsk, what is the young generation coming to?" as might be expected, the author opens up her mind and resolves to make the most of every opportunity — to see everything, to hear everything, to sample it all.

And so she does. What courses she can't take, she audits. She refuses to be a stereotyped Southerner and champions her home state and its people. She attends plays, operas, political discussions, labor union meetings, management meetings, protests, rallies, fairs, football games and tennis matches. She sees and hears internationally famous people like Princess Margaret; Erich Fromm; Bishop John "Honest-to-God" Robinson; Bishop James A. Pike; Victor Hugo's grandson, Dr. Howard Hugo; Vu Van Thai, Saigon's ambassador to Washington; and Alexander Kerensky, one-time revolutionary leader in Russia.

She makes lasting friends from all nationalities, cultures and races. She eats in exotic restaurants and samples strange foods. She listens to the outpourings of the Vietnam War protesters, to the Communists, the anti-Communists, the Socialists, the right-wing extremists — and to the "sneers, obscenities and insults hurled at all of them."

The author digresses at times. She tells of her trip to Hawaii, to cities in the Eastern Bay area, to wineries and movies. But the digressions do not distract; they add depth and completeness to her year of enrichment.

In the end, she describes the letdown feeling when she leaves the stimulating, scintillating environment of Berkeley and returns to the mundane world of eastern North Carolina — her old world of soybeans and tobacco, and when is it gonna rain? and what's for supper?

However, on an upbeat note, she realizes that this mundane world is where her heart is, where she is loved. "And though I have all knowledge ... and have not love ...."

LaRue Mooring Evans is retired now and lives in a still-busy life with her husband in Winterville. This is her first book.

Actress Patricia Neal Tells All In New Book

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Her life is a casebook of survival, and Patricia Neal is talking about it these days with complete candor, revealing her forbidden love for Gary Cooper and the deception by her former husband, writer Roald Dahl.

She is calling attention to her autobiography, "As I Am," by doing interviews. Three a day is all she can manage.

The effects of her near-fatal stroke and a Job-like series of tragedies are still apparent: difficulty in walking, furtive searches for words and memories. But she dismisses her failings with the familiar throaty laugh.

Miss Neal's voice retains that mellow quality that fascinated viewers of "The Fountainhead," "A Face in the Crowd," "Hud," for which she received the Academy Award as best actress, and "The Subject Was Roses." It reflects the years as wife and mother in England, but the undertones of her beginnings in Packard, Ky., are unmistakable. And there is no mistaking that she remains, at 62, a rare beauty.

"As I Am," written with Richard DeNeut, tells it all. She arrived in Hollywood in 1948 after a smashing success on Broadway in "Another Part of the Forest." All of the studios sought her, but she signed a Warner Bros. contract because Jack Warner promised her the hit play "John Loves Mary." Her co-star was Ronald Reagan.

"When I started 'John Loves Mary,' Jane Wyman announced that she was divorcing Ronnie," Miss Neal recalled, "so he didn't have an easy time on that film. Then I did 'The Fountainhead,' and Ronnie and I both went to London to do 'The Hasty Heart.' We lived side by side in a hotel, and while we never dated, we often went to dinner together.

"I was in love with someone he didn't know about; no one did. And he was still very much enamored of Jane Wyman. After we finished the picture, he went back and started going with his present wife, Nancy."

The romance that no one knew about was with her "Fountainhead" co-star, Gary Cooper. It had to be secret, because he was married to the socialite Veronica "Rocky" Balfe.

LIFE OF SURVIVAL — Patricia Neal displays a copy of her book "As I Am" during an interview in Los Angeles. In the autobiography, she talks about her life with candor, revealing her forbidden love for Gary Cooper and the deception by her former husband, writer Ronald Dahl. (AP Laserphoto)

Miss Neal writes that Cooper once hit her because she dated Kirk Douglas and that she had an abortion after becoming pregnant by Cooper.

Why is she finally telling the story of her love for Cooper?

"Well, if I write a book on my life, and I leave Gary Cooper out, it won't be a real, true story," she said. "He was my great passion for a long time. Looking back, I still adore him and will always adore him. He was 'my man.'

"When it first started, I didn't think of marrying Gary ever. It was just my quick love, and I hoped that no one would know. But I really loved him and it went on and on. In the end we had to break it up."

In 1953 Miss Neal married the writer of mystery and children's stories, Roald Dahl. They settled in Great Missenden, near London, and had three children. The tragedies began: Baby Theo was hit by a New York taxi and nearly died; young Olivia died suddenly of measles.

Miss Neal suffered a massive stroke while preparing to film "Seven Women" with John Ford. Only after 21 days did her doctor tell Dahl that his wife, who was pregnant, would live.

"It was a hard time to learn to talk again, to walk again," she said. "I didn't know one word from the other. My son had great cards with words written on them — 'he,' 'she,' 'cat,' 'dog' — and he would hold them up to me."

Recovery was long and slow, and she was constantly driven by Dahl. Their fourth child, Ophelia, was born with no ill effects from her mother's illness.

In 1968 Dahl pushed his wife into doing the film "The Subject Was Roses" much against her will, though she was later glad that she did it. She continued acting in films and television, always returning to Great Missenden. What she didn't know was that Dahl was carrying on an affair with Felicity Crossland, an English fashion coordinator.

"My husband was a tricky man, it turned out," Miss Neal said. "I don't know how many years he had other women. In the end he wanted a divorce so he could marry his now-wife.

"I was so bitter! You have no idea how horrible I was. But all of a sudden it vanished. I don't feel bitter anymore."

The family stayed in England, and Miss Neal now lives in a New York apartment and a summer home on Martha's Vineyard. Gary Cooper's daughter, Maria, who first contacted her after the strokes, had recommended a Connecticut abbey where Miss Neal found solace in retreats. She wrote her book there. It was also through Maria that she met Rocky Cooper.

"When Rocky's second husband died, I wrote her a letter," Miss Neal said. "She was so delighted with it, and I got a letter from her. It was written on the birthday of my darling Olivia, the one who died. It's extraordinary how these things happen on a certain day." A meeting was arranged, and the two women shared memories of the man they both loved.

River Raft Race Slated

HALIFAX — The 1988 Great Roanoke River Raft Race is scheduled for June 4 along the Roanoke River from Rapids-Gaston to Weldon.

The annual fund-raising event is sponsored by the Juvenile Court Counselor's Fund of the Sixth Judicial District Inc., a Halifax County non-profit organization. The corporation was founded to prevent and treat juvenile delinquency in the 6th Judicial District and is headquartered in the Juvenile Court Counselor's office at the new Halifax County Courthouse.

According to John Brady, chairman of the board of directors and chief court counselor for the 6th Judicial District, "We do not attempt to excuse youth fo their delinquent actions, rather we try to help them establish good reasons for a better lifestyle.

"We looked a many fund raising activities and began with an annual auction that ran for several years. But that was very time consuming and the profits were limited. We wanted to develop an annual event, which was unique to the area, involved a great many people and businesses, utilized natural resources and was cost efficient to us to produce."

This year's race will have five categories of water craft: canoes, inflatable craft (such as inner tubes or inflatable rafts), Huck Finn rafts, speed craft and sleek craft.

"We anticipate about 70 vessels with over 500 people riding them," Brady said.

"At the finish line in Weldon, we operate the Riverside Festival which is a family-oriented affair. There are booths for rent to arts and craft people, game promoters, food sales and just about anyone who wants to sell a product or service." Entertainment for the festival include a Fat Amonds Band concert.

Official sponsors for the race are Coca Cola, Coors, BB&T, Daily Herald, N.C. Power, Domino's and WPTM-FM.

For more information about the fund, the race or the festival, contact J.R. Brady, P.O. Box 407, Halifax, N.C. 27839 or call 919-583-5371.

Cribbage Event Planned

RALEIGH — The 15th annual National Open Cribbage Tournament will be held at Raleigh's North Raleigh Hilton and Towers July 30 through Aug. 1. The double elmination event is mathematically limited to a field of 512 contestants and tournament officials expect to fill the field before the July 15 entry deadline.

Part of the entry fee is donated to the Easter Seal Society of North Carolina. Entry information may be obtained by writing or calling Nick Pond, tournament director, P.O. Box 12800, Raleigh, N.C. 27605, 919-890-6064.

The 1987 tournament drew a field of 400 players from 33 states and awarded a total of $34,505 in the event's various competitions. With field of 512 players, this year, the tournament's total prize purse will exceed $40,000 with $25,000 earmarked for the championship competition.

The tourament format calls for head-to-head best four-of-seven game matches between players picked by computer-generated blind draw. A player must lose two matches to be eliminated from the championship competition.

WASHINGTON ESTATE — Mount Vernon, the home of George and Martha Washington, has been maintained and preserved since 1858 by the Mount Vernon Ladies Assocation, with one member from each of 30 states and he District of Columbia. The group has, over the years, reacquired many of the mansion's original furnishings and, during the last decade, repainted the interior using the original bright colors, formulas and techniques. Mount Vernon Ladies Preserve Washington's Virginia Estate

By CHARLES HILLINGER
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

MOUNT VERNON, Va. — "If George Washington could see his mansion and plantation today, he would be delighted with what the Ladies have accomplished. And, he would feel right at home," Eugenia Seamans mused.

Ms. Seamans, wife of Robert C. Seamans Jr., former secretary of the Air Force, heads a little-known group of a handful of women called the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association, owners-caretakers of George Washington's Mount Vernon estate since 1858.

The Mount Vernon Ladies' Association is the first national historic preservation organization established in America and the oldest women's patriotic society in the country.

With more than 1 million visitors each year, Mount Vernon on the Potomac River, 16 miles south of Washington, is the most visited historic home in the United States, except for the White House.

Thirty-one prominent women, each from a different state and the District of Columbia, make up the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association.

Ms. Seamans, from Beverly Farms, Mass., is the regent. The other women are vice regents.

Ever since Ann Pamela Cunningham of South Carolina formed the preservation group, its purpose has been to restore George Washington's Mount Vernon mansion, furnish it with original belongings of the first president and preserve his estate as closely as possible to what it was when he was alive.

In her farewell address in 1874, when she resigned as founder and first regent a few months before her death, Ms. Cunningham renewed the organization's original pledge "to save the home and tomb of Washington. The mansion and grounds around it should be religiously guarded from change — should be kept as the father of our country left them."

Ms. Cunningham founded the national organization of women in 1853, a few weeks after she sailed down the Potomac River one bright moonlit night. As was the custom then and now, the ship's bell tolled in respect to Washington when passing Mount Vernon and his tomb.

Ms. Cunningham was shocked by what she saw. Washington's home was crumbling in disrepair.

"Mount Vernon is a disgrace to the nation. If the men of our country will not save it, then the ladies will," she later wrote in a letter to a newspaper.

Washington, who died in 1799 at age 67, had no children. His wife, Martha, had two children from a previous marriage. When Martha died in 1802, Washington's nephew, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Bushrod Washington, inherited the 8,000-acre Mount Vernon estate. He had no children, and when he died, his nephew, John Augustine Washington, inherited the plantation.

John Augustine Washington Jr. inherited the property next. The estate was no longer productive. He believed Mount Vernon should be preserved. He tried to sell the mansion and plantation headquarters to the federal government and to the state of Virginia for $200,000. He was turned down.

There was talk at the time of making Mount Vernon an old soldiers' home or a summer home for presidents. But nothing came of either proposal.

That's when Ann Pamela Cunningham and the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association entered the picture. Ms. Cunningham recruited one woman from each of 30 states and the District of Columbia to form the association 134 years ago and to launch a nationwide grass-roots fund drive to buy Mount Vernon.

Five years later, they had raised $200,000 and bought the mansion, the plantation headquarters and 200 acres of the 8,000-acre estate to set it aside as a shrine to the nation's Founding Father. Today, the Ladies own 500 acres of Washington's original homestead.

"Once purchased, Ann Cunningham formulated a restoration and accessions policy in 1858 that we still live by today. She set the tone. At that time, nobody else was attempting anything like this. She was a real pioneer as a preservationist," curator Christine Meadows said.

"The Mount Vernon Ladies' Association opened the doors of the mansion almost immediately after the acquisition, charging 25 cents admission. Few of Washington's possessions were there in the beginning, the famous Jean Houdon bust of the president, the custom-made globe that Washington ordered from London, the key to the Bastille given to him by Lafayette, but not much more."

Throughout the Civil War, the Ladies kept Mount Vernon open. President Lincoln declared Mount Vernon neutral ground and Union and Confederate soldiers came here at the same time without one reported incident of violence or bloodshed.

Through the years, the Ladies have amassed an incredible collection of Washingtoniana, generous gifts from Martha Washington's descendants, from descendants of the president's brothers and sister, from others and through purchases.

The acquisitions continue to this day. Curator Meadows maintains files on all known Washington items and who owns them. "The Smithsonian has an excellent collection, parts of which are often on loan for exhibit here," she explained.

Today, Mount Vernon is furnished as it was when the Washingtons lived there with numerous original paintings, original pieces of furniture, dinnerware, with the president's chair and desk in his study, his maps, books, the bed in which he died.

During the last 10 years, all rooms in the three-story mansion have been repainted, using 18th century formulas and techniques and round paint brushes of that day. Chemical analysis of the first of as many as 22 layers of paint determined the original color, room by room.

Fourteen of the 24 rooms in the mansion are open to the public including the large dining room with a spectacular ornate Palladian window, the room in which Washington was informed he had been named president, the room in which his body lay in state for three days.

"There is this fascination about George Washington," the curator observed. "People want to see what he owned, the chairs he sat on, the cups he drank from, the looking glass he looked into, the bed he slept in."

A path from the mansion leads to the 40-foot-long, 40-foot-wide red brick vault constructed after his death. It is built according to Washington's directions to hold his

War, Hunters And Society Threaten Continuted Life Of Philippine Eagle

By MARK FINEMAN
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

DAVAO, Philippines — For four years, Bernardino Salarza has watched troubles beset his nation — and its most endangered species.

Salarza, 36, has watched the decline at his wildlife retreat in Mount Apo National Park on Mindanao Island.

He has seen the spectacular Philippine eagle, which many Filipinos regard as a national symbol, shot and killed by starving tribal hunters, and he has seen loggers illegally stripping the rain forests — depriving the eagle of its habitat and at the same time threatening entire villages with floods and landslides encouraged by deforestation.

In recent months, Salarza has seen the Communist insurgency creep ever closer, and as rebel and government troops alternate on the offensive, his wildlife retreat has been trapped in the cross fire. This has made it necessary for him to prepare to move.

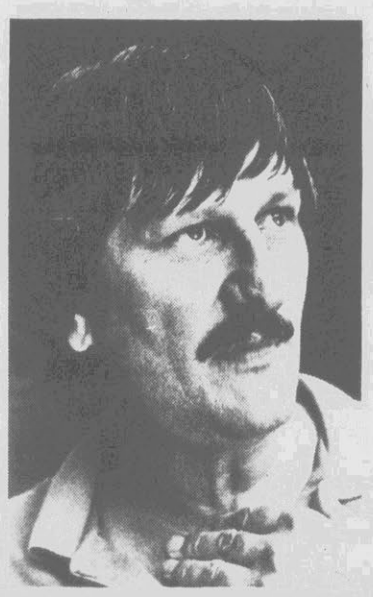
Now the eagle is at the center of another of the Philippines' problems. Politics and bureaucracy are holding up development in many key areas, and the eagles, Salarza told a recent visitor, are facing starvation. The government of President Corazon Aquino, which has been funding the eagle conservation project, has delayed the delivery of money to provide food for the eagles, apparently because of political squabbling over who should direct the project.

"My God," Salarza said, "I think to myself sometimes, the poor birds! But then I think, no, the poor Filipinos!"

Ron Krupa, 39, a Chicago-born American who has spent the last 10 years here on the eagle project and is its technical director, put it like this:

"The eagle is the storyteller. It is telling the story of the Philippines today because it forces us ... to deal with the bureaucracy, with the insurgency and, now, with politics. Dealing with the Philippine eagle isn't just a life's experience. It is life."

Nature could not have provided a more striking subject. The Philippine eagle has a wingspan of more than 6 feet, stands 3 feet tall and weighs about 15 pounds. It ranks among the largest of all eagles, and it is made all the more striking by its huge plumed head.



RON KRUPA

It defends up to 40 square miles of jungle, and when the bird numbered in the thousands, in the pre-colonial days when there were 60 million acres of virgin Philippine forest, there was ample nesting and feeding ground. But now, after decades of exploitation and uncontrolled development, there are just 2 million acres of forest. The number of eagles has declined to fewer than 300.

In 1969 the government of President Ferdinand E. Marcos, recognizing that the eagle was in danger of becoming extinct, established the conservation project. But little was done until 1979, when Krupa arrived and helped set up the semi-private conservation and breeding project on Mt. Apo.

Krupa, relying more on personal experience than his unfinished college education in Illinois, assembled a staff of Philippine experts and undertook to save both the eagle and the remaining forest land.

Last year his staff started an adopt-a-nest program in Mindanao's most remote regions. Natives are paid $50 if they lead the staff to an eagle nest containing an egg. There are larger rewards — up to $100 larger — if the tribe protects the egg until it hatches and then sees to it that the eaglet safely leaves the nest.

"Protecting the nest means protecting miles and miles of forest around it from illegal logging activities," Krupa said. "We've already located four nests through the program, and that means dozens of square miles of forest. It's grass-roots ecology."

Krupa's group has been practicing grass-roots science as well. Under the direction of technicians like Salarza, the program has, for the first time ever, bred Philippine eagles in captivity.

After years of trying, the technicians finally found two compatible birds last December. The fertilized egg they produced died in early January, but Krupa refuses to concede that it was a failure.

"I knew that scientifically the chances of bringing this egg through were less than 20 percent," he said. "My God, we were the first in the world to get a fertilized egg from a Philippine eagle bred in captivity. It's not a failure. It's another step in the right direction."

The breeding part of the program is now the subject of political controversy. New officials in the government's Department of Natural Resources propose to transfer the program to a campus of the University of the Philippines near Manila. There, they say, are better facilities and better trained scientists to oversee the program.

In Salarza's view, such a move would destroy the program.

"Be practical," he said. "We are the ones who started this, and now that they know it's highly successful, they want it. They want to take credit for it.

"But these people have no real experience. We are the ones who have been living with these eagles.... If the breeding component is taken away from here, the entire project will collapse, and all of us will walk out en masse."

As it is, Salarza said, neither he nor the eight other technicians in the project have been paid for the past four months because the government has not released the budgeted money. There is little money left for the eagles' food, and he and Krupa are beginning to believe that the department is trying to starve them and the eagles into submission.

The moving force behind the proposal to move the program is a department undersecretary, Celso Roque, who resigned as president of a private wildlife conservation foundation to join the department after Mrs. Aquino took office two years ago. Roque has insisted in interviews with the local press that the proposed move is not politically motivated. He says the program has shown too little success under Krupa and his Filipino managers and should be turned over to academics and scientists.

Krupa and his staff bristle at the charges.

"I don't care how many degrees you have or how many institutions you belong to, you simply can't know anything unless you experience it," Krupa said.

Even if the eagles are not forced to move to the campus, they will have to move.

Computer Helps Injured Singer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Singer-musician Teddy Pendergrass, paralyzed in an auto crash six years ago, says he is competitive at the top level of the music industry thanks to a versatile computer.

"I have come to realize that music and technology suddenly got married," Pendergrass told the Senate subcommittee on the handicapped.

Pendergrass said his MIDI — musical instrument digital interface — permits him to compose, arrange, create sounds and "play literally every instrument that would be included in a 100-piece orchestra."

"That allows me to compete at the highest level. It erases the handicap," he said.

The Philadelphia singer-composer, who uses an automatic wheelchair and has limited use of his hands, was among the witnesses at a hearing on assistive technology for the disabled. The panel was urged to make such technology more accessible to those who need it.

Johnny Cash, Gatlins Set Busch Concert

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — It's a Memorial Day celebraton country-style when Johnny Cash and Larry Gatling & The Gatlin Brothers come to Busch Gardens, The Old Country, May 30.

Performances will be held at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. in the Royal Palace Concert Theater, located in the France section of Busch Gardens.

Johnny Cash has been a recording star for 32 years. Counting American and European releases alone, he has recorded nearly 1,500 songs on over 470 albums. He is also the youngest man ever selected for the Country Music Hall of Fame.

In addition to his accomplishments as a singer and a writer, Cash has also performed at dozens of prison benefits, spearheaded drives for prison reform, corresponded with prisoners and aided many of them in returning into society.

Music is the force that guides the lives of Larry, Steve and Rudy Gatlin, who have been performing together for more than three decades. Larry is the songwriter and leader of the group which is best known for its well-tuned harmonies.

The Gatlins have made numerous television appearances on such shows as "The Love Boat" and "Entertainment Tonight."

Larry, Steve and Rudy Gatlin reside in Brentwood, Tenn., near Nashville. They perform about 200 concerts a year including many benefits. They are active in drug and alcohol abuse awareness programs, particularly those aimed at teenagers.

Tickets for the performances may be purchased at the Royal Palace Concert Theater's ticket booth in the park, the Coliseum Mall in Hampton or by mail.

remains, the remains of his wife and other members of the family.

On a stone tablet over the entrance to the vault is inscribed "Within this enclosure rest the remains of Gen. George Washington." Directly inside an iron gate are two marble sarcophagi holding the nation's founding father and Martha Washington.

"People are really moved when they look inside the iron gate into the vault and see the marble tomb inscribed 'Washington' with an eagle, shield and flag, and the second tomb inscribed 'Martha, Consort of Washington' " said Phil Donnelly, an officer on duty guarding the vault containing the remains of the Washingtons and 25 of their relatives.

On the grounds of Mount Vernon are plantation outbuildings, slave and overseer's quarters, a spinning house, store houses, stables, laundry, kitchen, smoke house, shops and gardens with the type of plants Washington grew, several trees he personally planted flanking his spacious bowling green.

A museum is filled with Washington memorabilia, including the president's guns, swords, clothing, and personal items such as the black silk bag to hold his queue, a short braid worn by 18th century gentlemen. The Washingtons' china and silver, examples of Martha Washington's needlework, her satin wedding slippers, the necklace she wore on her wedding day, and much much more are in the museum.

Since 1858, entrance fees, donations, and in recent years, sales from a gift shop have represented the principal revenue supporting Mount Vernon. Admission is $5. No government funds have ever been used in the restoration, preservation and protection of the historic site.

Five years ago, the Ladies completed an $11 million fund-raising drive, money to construct the new Ann Pamela Cunningham Administration Building, a new greenhouse and for major capital improvements.

To help support the cost of operating George Washington's estate — it has a permanent staff of 150 seasonal workers and an annual budget of $8 million — Mount Vernon One Hundred, comprised of individuals and corporations donating more than $5,000 a year, and the Friends of Historic Mount Vernon, with minimum annual dues of a $25, was formed two years ago. So far, there are 47 members of the One Hundred and more than 1,000 Friends.

Ship Services

WILMINGTON — Traditional Memorial Day services will be held on board the USS North Carolina Battleship Memorial at 5:45 p.m. May 30.

The battleship serves as an official memorial to the 10,000 North Carolinians who died during World War II, but its annual Memorial Day observance honors men and women of all United States military services who have given their lives for their country.

Brig. Gen. Dona'd R. Gardner, assistant division commander of the Second Marine Division at Camp Lejeune, will present the address for the service.

Preminger and Dandridge: Lovers—but no "love child"

Q. Dorothy Dandridge, who starred in the film "Carmen Jones," was, in the opinion of many, one of the most beautiful actress-singers this country has ever produced. She died in 1965 at age 42. Did she ever have a baby out of wedlock by the late Otto Preminger, who directed her in "Carmen Jones," or was it some other beautiful black actress who gave Preminger a son out of wedlock? —C.J., Cleveland, Ohio

A. The late Dorothy Dandridge was engaged in a serious relationship with Preminger. But it was not she who gave birth to his son out of wedlock. It was the stripteaser Gypsy Rose Lee, who died in 1970. The Preminger-Lee affair has been widely publicized and is detailed in a book by their son, Erik Lee Preminger, titled "Gypsy & Me."

Q. Is Margaret Thatcher Great Britain's longest continuously serving prime minister? My daughter says "yes." I say "no," but I can't recall a British prime minister who has served longer than Mrs. Thatcher. Can you please help?—Jane R., Easton, Md.

A. Margaret Thatcher, 62, who was elected prime minister on May 3, 1979, is Great Britain's longest continuously serving prime minister of the 20th century. She is not, however, Britain's all-time longest continuously serving prime minister. Robert Jenkinson, Second Earl of Liverpool, served from 1812 to 1827.

Q. What is the true story about Bill Cosby and "Leonard Part 6," the comedy flop of the year? Did Columbia really pay Cosby half of the $25 million it supposedly cost to make this movie? —P. Zimmerman, Phoenix, Ariz.

A. Cosby was paid $5 million to act in "Leonard Part 6" and $750,000 to help in its production.

Q. Who, if not Will Rogers, was responsible for these one-liners: "I've never met a nymphomaniac I didn't like" and "Money isn't everything—it can't buy poverty"?—Dick White, El Paso, Tex.

A. Will Rogers (1879-1935), stage and screen humorist from Oologah, Okla., did not originate those two witticisms. They were part of a monologue used by the late comedian Joe E. Lewis (1902-71) in his nightclub routine.

Q. A few of the people I work with, as well as myself, would like to know if Michael J. Fox owns a Ferrari and a Mercedes, if he's married to a 32-year-old woman named Elane and if his true birthdate is June 9, 1961.—Kelly Cole, Everett, Wash.

A. Michael J. Fox (real name: Michael Andrew Fox) is a Canadian, born on June 9, 1961. He drives a Ferrari and a Mercedes 560 SL. He is not married to a woman named Elane. His girlfriend is the actress Tracy Pollan, 24, who co-starred with him in the "Family Ties" TV series and with whom he plans, at this writing, to share his future in Hollywood, New York, Vermont and elsewhere.

Q. It's extremely difficult for me to believe, but is it a fact that the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., intelligent and educated as he was, died intestate? —Manetta Long, Dayton, Ohio

A. It's true. When Dr. King was assassinated in Memphis on April 4, 1968, he left no will. He was 39, the father of four children, and his failure to have drawn a last will and testament was an imprudent omission of paternal responsibility.

AP/Wide World

Dr. King and family in 1963: He left no will

Q. Is "The New York Times" reporter Joel Brinkley any relation to David Brinkley, the TV commentator?—Anne Randolph, Savannah, Ga.

NYT Pictures

Joel Brinkley

A. Joel Brinkley, 35, is the son of David Brinkley and an ace print journalist in his own right. Young Brinkley, who was graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1975, has worked for the Associated Press, "The Richmond News Leader" and the Louisville "Courier-Journal." In 1980 he shared a Pulitzer Prize with Jay Mather for a series of outstanding reports on Cambodian refugees. In 1983 he became a Washington correspondent for "The New York Times," and last month the newspaper assigned him to Jerusalem as its bureau chief.

WHAT THIS SUMMIT CAN MEAN

WHEN REAGAN MEETS GORBACHEV

Eddie Adams

Yuri V. Dubinin

Yuri V. Dubinin, Soviet Ambassador to the United States, writing his first article for the American press in the March 1, 1987, issue of PARADE, predicted that the months ahead would see a substantial improvement in U.S.-Soviet relations, particularly in the area of arms control. Despite the forebodings expressed by many at the time, that forecast has largely come true, with U.S.-Soviet negotiations proceeding at an accelerated and productive pace. Now, on the eve of the summit conference in Moscow between President Reagan and General Secretary Gorbachev, PARADE has again asked Ambassador Dubinin to express his views on the current state of U.S.-Soviet relations.

WRITING IN THIS SPACE MORE than a year ago, I talked about the challenges facing U.S.-Soviet relations, but also about the opportunities and our hopes for bold and far-reaching decisions. Today, the Soviet leader's visit to the United States, the historic Reagan-Gorbachev summit in Washington and the conclusion of the INF (Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces) Treaty are accomplished facts. And now, one week from today, our leaders will be meeting in Moscow. Looking back on the events of the past year, one begins to understand the true meaning of "political will." For it is the political will—a willingness to set ambitious goals and seek their realization despite all odds—that has made all this possible.

While different factors have had a role in producing these new realities, one thing is undeniable: It took nothing short of a fundamental change in attitude and a will to rethink past positions to complete the first U.S.-Soviet treaty eliminating two classes of deadly weapons. This change, in turn, would have been impossible without our glasnost and perestroika and their foreign-policy dimension, which has come to be known as new political thinking.

The INF Treaty has often been described as a useful first step toward genuine nuclear disarmament, and this is true. But there is, perhaps, something more to it than the mere fact of concluding a treaty cutting into our increasingly sophisticated nuclear arsenals. For the first time, universal human values, whose absolute priority has been underscored repeatedly by Mikhail Gorbachev, have prevailed over powerful military and political prejudices.

Whether this may portend a decisive reversal is very hard to say at this point, but it was definitely a breakthrough which already has had a profound psychological impact on traditional strategic thinking and the mood of public opinion in both our countries and the world at large.

Admittedly, political experience, particularly in relations between the two great powers, does not come easy or cost-free. Breaking with well-established concepts and stereotypes is a painful process, and adoption of the new political thinking, with all its practical implications, involved quite a bit of intense soul-searching on our part. But having gone through this reappraisal, we now are convinced that this is the only sensible way to proceed if the Soviet Union and the United States are ever to change their relationship and the overall international environment for the better. And we are encouraged that our policy course of perestroika in its broadest political sense, and the resulting innovative and dynamic Soviet policies, are taken seriously by different political forces in this country.

In preparation for the upcoming summit in Moscow, our foreign ministers have been meeting on a monthly basis, each time taking our relations a step further toward closer cooperation and better understanding. In March our defense ministers had a meeting of their own, the first substantive encounter of this kind ever. Both agreed afterward that the meeting was useful and productive.

But aside from progress in the all-important area of disarmament and arms control, we already are witnessing tangible movement in other areas of our relationship. From bitter recriminations and largely sterile debate on human rights, we have moved to a sustained and meaningful dialogue on the entire spectrum of humanitarian issues, one that Secretary of State George Shultz had every reason to call a "two-way street." And this effort, as was proposed by Mikhail Gorbachev last December, also has involved our parliaments, which at the Soviet initiative are now working on a plan to establish a mechanism for the discussion of human rights and humanitarian cooperation at the level of the USSR Supreme Soviet and the U.S. Congress.

While the volume of our trade is still woefully inadequate, its prospects have improved dramatically: We now are talking about setting up joint ventures and consortia, and the recent meetings of the U.S.-USSR Trade and Economic Council and the Joint Commercial Commission saw nearly 500 American businessmen come to Moscow, an unprecedented number. Our cultural exchanges are on the rise: Witness the cultural festival recently held in Boston—a spectacular event where Soviet and American artists performed together.

Yet if today we feel justifiably proud of what we have been able to accomplish, we also are aware of the obstacles we still have to overcome and the magnitude of the tasks at hand. Clearly, there is no reason to be complacent, for there is no guarantee against a recurrence of the old and stubborn phenomenon of a period of improvement in U.S.-Soviet relations always being followed by a period of deterioration.

To put our relationship on the track of sustained positive development, it is essential that this on-again, off-again pattern be broken. Our two countries and the world are tired of stress and tension and have approached a point where we must seriously reflect on what we can do to ensure that there will be no reversal in our relationship, that the forces that continue to cling to the past will no longer be able to throw us back.

We can do that, first, by building on what we already have accomplished, recognizing that if we have indeed opted for cooperation, it is only natural that all our efforts should be geared toward fostering the budding positive trends. Next, we already know that by applying imagination and a sense of purpose, we can deal with the most intractable problems. We proved this when we negotiated the INF Treaty. We can do it again.

We want our first real step toward nuclear disarmament to be followed by an even more important treaty. We want this sooner, rather than later. I feel that the year 1988 promises to be very important in getting us closer to the goal of radical reductions in our nuclear arsenals. At least we believe this can be done.

The same approach is guiding the Soviet Union in addressing the issue of conventional forces in Europe, which is becoming increasingly urgent. We are hopeful that the negotiations on the reductions of conventional forces in Europe will begin before the end of this year, and we are doing everything to bring this about. But it is essential that, once they are started, these talks should vigorously pursue real disarmament measures. To this end, we have proposed an early exchange of data between the NATO and Warsaw Treaty member-states on their armed forces and conventional arms in Europe. We should indeed begin, as Mikhail Gorbachev put it, by "laying all our cards on the table," examining the situation most carefully and then deciding how to go about reducing the level of conventional confrontation in Europe, recognizing that there are asymmetries on both sides to deal with.

Verification, which both sides regard as central to any viable arms-control agreement, is an area which constantly reveals new opportunities for an imaginative approach that the Soviet Union has actively pursued. Which is not surprising, since the now-popular maxim "Trust, but verify" is, after all, a Russian saying.

There are, of course, other important arms-control areas in which, given reciprocal will, we have every reason to expect tangible progress. It is not unreasonable, for example, to hope for the completion of the convention banning and eliminating chemical weapons.

As we have already repeatedly made clear, we no longer want to put up with continued regional conflicts. We are strongly in favor of resolving these situations and have proved this by our actions in dealing with such an extremely difficult conflict as that in Afghanistan.

As we pursue our perestroika and new thinking, motivated by the desire to achieve a better life for ourselves, we believe it is obvious that there has to be a balance of interests and recognition of interdependence of all in this fast-changing world.

History is urgently confronting us with the challenge to restructure international relations on a new, democratic basis, on the basis of peace and cooperation, and to work for a world free of nuclear weapons. And I believe that the greatest historic mission of our two countries is to contribute, in cooperation with other nations, to the attainment of this objective.

Breaking with established concepts and stereotypes is a painful process

Why struggle with high living costs, winter snow and cold or summer heat and humidity, unsafe city streets and lonely evenings when in Mexico you can find:

—Food, housing and recreation costs a small fraction of those in the U.S.

—Springlike weather year round.

—Friendly communities of retired Americans.

—Safety and security in a country where violent crime is far less common than in the U.S.

—A government and a people who extend a gracious welcome to Americans who choose to settle there.

The value of the dollar has skyrocketed from about 400 to well over 2,000 Mexican Pesos in the past two years. Retirees who made the mistake (cautioned against in this book) of converting their funds into Mexican currency were severely hurt. Those whose continue to draw upon dollars deposited in the U.S. are prospering. CHOOSE MEXICO is full of useful advice on managing your funds so as to make the most of Mexico's bargains and maintain your financial security. It provides detailed information on retirement havens in all parts of Mexico—the housing, recreation, health care and community service opportunities they offer. It tells how to avoid the costly mistakes that many tourists and retirees make and instructs in how to become a happy resident of this neighborly land.

Whether you're looking for a year-round retirement spot . . . or a beautifully inexpensive part-time retreat only a few hours by plane from anywhere in the U.S., you owe it to yourself to get a copy of this eye-opening guide. Put a little adventure in your life and extra money in your pocket—see why so many Americans are choosing Mexico today!

CROCODILE IS BACK

Paramount

Heating up: Linda Kozlowski, Paul Hogan

The great fun of Crocodile Dundee was in watching a dashing but naïve Australian crocodile-hunter cope with New York. For Crocodile Dundee II, Paul Hogan (both star and co-writer) clearly kept in mind how we all roared when Mick held up his humongous knife and scared off a would-be mugger: "Action and laughs, but no gore," says Hogan. And it's what we'll get in the sequel, he adds. Mick, still in New York, rescues his girlfriend, Sue, from Colombian drug-dealers and takes off for the Outback, the bad guys hot on the trail. Only now, they're in his territory. Does Mick still make those macho cracks to Sue? "Sure," says Hogan. "He's a male chauvinist. That's what Australian bushmen are, so I can't change him into Phil Donahue."

Baby M Case Makes a Miniseries

The prolonged battle over Baby M is now a four-hour, two-night miniseries starring JoBeth Williams as Mary Beth Whitehead, the New Jersey woman who signed a contract in 1985, agreeing to give birth to William Stern's child—but found she could not give up her baby. John Shea plays Stern and Robin Strasser his wife, Elizabeth. Intriguingly, Strasser herself was involved in a custody battle as a child when her grandmother tried to take her away from her mother. Breakthrough In Flea Control.

Now there is a flea control product so advanced only a veterinarian can dispense it. Pro-Spot® fenthion is available in squeeze tubes containing 5.6% or 13.8% solutions. Apply directly on the skin in one spot on your dog's back according to directions. Pro-Spot sends protection everywhere—with treatment every two weeks. For best results it is recommended to use Pro-Spot in conjunction with Haver's advanced compatible flea products and a premise control.

Ask Your Veterinarian For Details.

Pro-Spot® Fenthion

HAVER®

DESCRIPTION: Pro-Spot® Solution is available as 5.6% and 13.8% concentrations of fenthion in a glycol ether base.
SPECIAL NOTE: As with all the flea control products for dogs, treatment with Pro-Spot® Solution must be used with a control program aimed at reducing flea populations and flea breeding areas in the dog's environment (bedding, carpets, yard, etc.)
INDICATION: Pro-Spot® (fenthion) Solution is indicated for the control of fleas on dogs only.
CAUTION: Federal law restricts this drug to use by or on the order of a licensed veterinarian.
OVERDOSAGE: Symptoms of overdosage are neurotoxicity (muscular tremors), weakness, salivation, vomition, and diarrhea.
PRECAUTIONS: Repeated or prolonged use may cause marked cholinesterase depression. Fenthion is a cholinesterase inhibitor. Do not use this product on dogs at the same time or within 14 days before or after treatment with other cholinesterase inhibiting pesticides, drugs or chemicals. Do not use with flea or tick collars. Toxicologic interactions between cholinesterase inhibitors and various muscle relaxants and central nervous system depressants have been reported. The use of Pro-Spot® with these drugs is not recommended. The following drugs may enhance fenthion toxicity: succinylcholine, procaine, aminoglycosides, and various neuromuscular blocking agents. Do not use more often than once every 2 weeks.

Treatment with Pro-Spot® Solution at 2-week intervals should not exceed 6 months as controlled safety studies of longer duration have not been conducted.

CONTRAINDICATIONS: Do not use on puppies under 10 weeks of age. Do not use on sick, stressed or convalescing dogs.

The safe use of fenthion in breeding males has not been established.

ADVERSE REACTIONS: Adverse reactions reported from the use of fenthion in clinical field trials included occasional incidences of vomiting, loose stool, diarrhea, anorexia, and intermittent coughing.
ANIMAL TOXICOLOGY: Multiple treatments with Pro-Spot® Solution at 2 week intervals with 60 mg./kg. (7.5X) have induced toxicosis.

Anemic, parasitized, young puppies showed an increased incidence of diarrhea following multiple treatments with 10 or 50 mg./kg.

WARNING: Keep out of reach of children. This material contains a cholinesterase inhibitor. If swallowed by human, immediately call a physician, poison control center or hospital emergency room. Upon medical advice induce vomiting with ipecac syrup. If ipecac is not available, have person drink water then gently try to induce vomiting with finger. Be extremely careful not to damage throat. May be harmful if absorbed through the skin. Do not get in eyes, on skin, or on clothing. Avoid breathing vapors. Wash thoroughly with soap and warm water after handling. Wash contaminated clothing. Do not contaminate feed or food. If spilled on skin, wash immediately with soap and warm water. If in eyes, rinse immediately with large amounts of water and obtain medical aid.

Skin swab tests on dogs treated with Pro-Spot® Solution at greater than label rate revealed that the amount of active ingredient at the treatment site declined rapidly with only 51% of the dose remaining at 15 minutes, 22% at 2 hours and less than 3% at 8 hours post treatment. Avoid grooming, direct contact, or unventilated confinement with dog(s) for 8 hours after administration of Pro-Spot®

GREAT IDEAS FROM THE SILVER PALATE CHEFS

'CAN I ENJOY EATING AGAIN?'

Eating habits change as we get older—but meals should be as appetizing as ever

AMERICANS ARE GROWING OLDER! And as we age, our dietary needs and preferences change. Metabolism rates decrease, lifestyles become less active, and we may experience difficulties in digestion. All of these can result in a general lack of interest in food and, without careful monitoring, poor nutrition. Whether we have to deal with new eating patterns of a parent, a friend or ourselves, ultimately each of us must learn what mealtime means in "the golden years."

To understand the reasons for poor eating habits in older people, we consulted Dr. Paula Fishman, assistant professor at the Center on Aging at New York's Hunter College School of Health Sciences. She pointed out that:

- As we age, our senses of smell and taste diminish, making food less interesting.
- Medication and prolonged special diets can affect appetites. Often, they are adhered to long after the physician's recommended time period has passed.
- Digestion problems can make it necessary to avoid seeds, spices and heavily textured foods. The result is an unexciting diet of mainly soft, bland foods.
- People on fixed budgets often tend to cut back on quality of food as a way of economizing. The result: Meals are not enjoyed and not nutritious.

Together, we worked up a 10-point program to wake up an uninterested appetite: 1. Plan weekly menus with attention to variety and interesting use of leftovers.

2. Emphasize complex carbohydrates and vegetables, whole grains, poultry and fish. Reduce fats and red meats.
3. Exaggerate flavors! Substitute lemon, herbs, spices (if allowed) and vinegar for salt.
4. Include childhood favorites and foods that bring back happy family memories.
5. Reinforce cooking habits. See that the kitchen is an effective, safe workspace.
6. Invest in a microwave oven and perhaps cooking lessons.
7. Make marketing convenient and arrange for assistance, if necessary.
8. Cook for more when you are one. Plan make-ahead meals as a regular part of meal preparation. Use your freezer.
9. Reinforce the rituals of dining. Feast the eye by making food attractive and setting a pretty table.
10. Dining is a time to be together. Make mealtime a pleasant social experience.

With Dr. Fishman's suggestions in mind, we created recipes that combine visual appeal, interesting flavor, nutrition and ease of preparation and storage. Our Beef & Vegetable Lasagna and Broccoli Spinach Puree can be made in quantity and frozen or refrigerated for future use. And our Chicken, Avocado & Cheddar Melt is easy and luscious.

With interest in food renewed through great taste, and ease of marketing and preparation assured, dining can again become the enlivening experience it should be.

Chicken, Avocado & Cheddar Melt

A delicious warm, open-faced sandwich—great for lunch or dinner, and a lovely way to use leftover chicken.

1/4 cup mayonnaise (light, if desired)
1/4 cup ketchup
1 scallion, cleaned and thinly sliced on the diagonal
3 teaspoons chopped Italian parsley
1 whole boneless chicken breast, cooked and skin removed
4 slices whole-wheat bread, toasted
1 ripe avocado, peeled, pitted and cut lengthwise into 8 thin slices
4 slices sharp Cheddar cheese, large enough to cover bread
Paprika

1. In a bowl, mix mayonnaise, ketchup, 1 teaspoon scallion slices and 2 teaspoons parsley. Reserve dressing.
2. Cut chicken breast in half down the center. Cut each half into 4 thin slices.
3. Place 2 slices of chicken on each piece of toast. Spread half the dressing over the chicken. Lay 2 avocado slices over dressing on each. Cover avocado with remaining dressing. Place a piece of Cheddar cheese on top of each sandwich. Sprinkle lightly with paprika and remaining scallion slices.
4. Place sandwiches under preheated broiler, 3" from flame, for 1½ minutes, or until cheese melts. Remove, sprinkle with remaining parsley and serve.

Makes 4 open-faced sandwiches

Beef & Vegetable Lasagna

Lasagna made the easiest possible way, with layers of beef, tomato sauce, vegetables and cheese. Carefully refrigerated or frozen, this recipe makes four light meals for two (divide the preparation time by four, and you'll see how effortless this really is).

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 pound lean ground round beef
4 cups tomato sauce
4 tablespoons chopped Italian parsley
3½ cups low-fat ricotta cheese
1 cup chopped spinach, cooked and well-drained
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon dried oregano
3/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
8 lasagna noodles, cooked
3 cups grated low-fat mozzarella cheese

1. Preheat oven to 350°F.
2. Heat olive oil in a skillet over medium heat. Add ground beef and cook until browned. Drain oil.
3. Place tomato sauce in a saucepan. Add browned beef and 2 tablespoons parsley. Cook for 5 minutes. Remove from heat.
4. In a bowl, mix the ricotta cheese, chopped spinach, Parmesan cheese, remaining 2 tablespoons parsley, oregano, nutmeg and black pepper.
5. Place 2 cups tomato-and-meat sauce in bottom of a 9" x 13" baking dish. Place 4 lasagna noodles on top of sauce. Place half of the ricotta mixture over lasagna. Sprinkle with 1 cup mozzarella cheese.
6. Proceed with another 2 cups sauce, remaining 4 lasagna noodles and remaining ricotta mixture; sprinkle with 1 more cup mozzarella cheese.
7. Top with remaining sauce and remaining 1 cup mozzarella, sprinkled evenly over top.
8. Cover dish loosely with aluminum foil. Place on cookie sheet and bake 45 minutes. Remove foil and bake 20 minutes more. Remove from oven and let rest 10 to 15 minutes before serving.

TIP: For individual portions, cut lasagna into 8 pieces. To store portions for future use, place in aluminum foil containers with lids. Freeze when cool. To reheat, defrost lasagna and bake, covered with aluminum foil, in 350°F oven for 20 minutes.

Broccoli Spinach Puree

If you believe the myth that purees are baby foods, you're missing some great vegetable tastes. They keep well in the refrigerator.

4 tablespoons unsalted butter or margarine
2 ribs of celery, washed and diced
1 medium-sized yellow onion, diced
1 small all-purpose potato, peeled and cut into 1/4" dice
1 large bunch broccoli
1½ cups chicken broth, defatted
3 cups slivered fresh spinach leaves (stems removed before slivering)
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
Salt to taste (optional)
1 tablespoon finely grated lemon zest

1. Melt butter or margarine in a pot over low heat. Add celery, onion and potato. Cook over low heat for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally, until wilted.
2. While vegetables are cooking, prepare broccoli. Cut 1/2 inch off bottom of each stem and cut stem from head. With a vegetable peeler, peel off tough outer surface of entire stem. Cut stems in thin slices crosswise, then into quarters.
3. Reserve 1 cup of florets from head of the broccoli for garnish. Chop remainder of head into small pieces. Add stems and pieces to wilted vegetables. Add chicken broth and cook, covered, over low heat for 30 minutes.
4. Meanwhile, cook reserved florets in pot of boiling water for 2 minutes; drain, refresh with cold water and reserve.
5. After vegetables have cooked for 30 minutes, add spinach, nutmeg, pepper and salt (optional). Cook 1 minute more.
6. Remove from heat and puree until smooth in a blender or food processor with steel blade. Remove to a bowl and fold in grated lemon zest. Adjust seasonings and serve garnished with florets.

TIP: To reheat, place puree, without florets, in ovenproof serving dish. Cover with foil and bake in preheated 350°F oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Remove foil and garnish with florets.

BY JAMES BRADY

Larry King

King's life has been turbulent at times, but at 54 he's definitely on top now, with popular interview shows on TV and radio. His greatest gift may be his curiosity.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN interviews on television and on the radio is time. I once interviewed Norman Mailer on TV about a book it had taken him seven years to write. We spoke for four minutes, leaving Mr. Mailer understandably chagrined. On television shows, four minutes is an eternity. Radio gives you time and space.

Larry King may be the best interviewer on American radio. He also does TV, but radio is his medium. Every night over 300 stations, coast to coast, he talks while the country listens. And frequently interrupts. The phone calls come from all over the place. King says one night he got a call from Hunan, China—something of a shortwave miracle.

Like so many of us, King was born in Brooklyn. He was Larry Zeiger then, the son of Russian immigrants, a poor student but a fanatic about the Dodgers and radio. His first radio job was as a floor-sweeper at a rinky-dink station in Miami; his first air time came when the announcer suddenly walked out. He became a deejay, needling Miami politicians, and became something of a local character. In 1961, he got his own nighttime talk show, married a Playboy bunny, bought a big house, began living high and gambling heavily.

The creditors came calling, his marriage fell apart, he was fired and legal woes piled up. But the man is an elevator. He struggled back with free-lance work, wrote a newspaper column, found a new wife in 1976 and a job broadcasting Miami Dolphins football games. But the debts were still there, and finally he was forced to declare bankruptcy. He owed $350,000. For years, King turned his paychecks over to his wife to be cashed by her (they were divorced in 1982).

About 10 years ago, the elevator started up again. Mutual put King on the radio with his national late-night talk show. He has been on top ever since. He now has a regular TV spot on CNN too. Does he prefer radio? "I like them both," King says. "I could toss a coin. The TV show is perfect for me—30-minute interviews—and I like the studio atmosphere. And radio gives you the long form, time really to talk."

I've been on his radio show. He wears a red sweater, drinks endless cups of coffee and makes a point of not preparing ahead of time; he wants to be just like his audience of 3 million—full of questions and curiosity but not burdened with advance assumptions. In fact, King says, sometimes when he drives to the studio, he can't even remember just who's going to be on that night.

It sounds crazy. But it works.

BORN: Nov. 19, 1933, Brooklyn, N.Y. PERSONAL: Married to Alene Dowling, 1961-64 and 1967-71; daughter, Chaia, and son, Andy. BRADY'S BITS

Last year the hyperactive King suffered a heart attack, followed last winter by a major heart operation. "I feel fine," he told me. "I've really been careful since the operation. I've lost 15 pounds, I walk a lot, I've cut down on my speaking engagements. And now I do three hours live on the radio every night and then the three hours are repeated. I still do the column every Monday. I didn't even miss during the operation. I'm proud of that." He also sounds proud of his current girlfriend—none other than that beautiful actress Angie Dickinson.

If you enjoy Larry King on the radio, you'll love his new book. "It's all stories about famous people," says Larry. And it's just out: "Tell It to the King."

Play It Safe

Do you plan, in the weeks or months ahead, to leave the U.S.? If so, your friendly State Department wants you to know that the trip can easily turn into a prolonged nightmare if you are picked up on a drug charge. Last year, it discloses, some 3000 Americans were arrested abroad. More than 40% were held on drug-related offenses. The five countries that accounted for the majority of arrests were Mexico, Jamaica, the Bahamas, the Dominican Republic and West Germany.

"The global war on drugs is heating up," says the State Department, "and there are increased efforts by all countries to stop the flow of illegal narcotics. Those who assume there is no real danger in buying or carrying just a 'small' amount of drugs overseas may be in for a very unpleasant surprise. Americans have been arrested for possessing as little as a third of an ounce of marijuana."

Many Americans travel under the delusion that, as U.S. citizens, they are immune from arrest or prosecution under foreign laws. That assumption is totally incorrect. Americans suspected of drug violations can be detained for months or even years without trial and then sentenced to lengthy prison terms. You should know that when you leave U.S. soil, you also leave behind the protection provided by the U.S. Constitution—especially the Sixth Amendment, which states: "In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial."

Parents and brother of Conan Owen (below) stroll outside his Modelo Prison cell in Barcelona before drug trial

AP/Wide World

If you are arrested and jailed in a foreign country, an officer from the U.S. consulate will visit to try to determine your condition and how you're being treated. But he can't get you out of jail.

It's best, therefore, to say "no" to any stranger or recent acquaintance who asks you to deliver a package or drive a vehicle across a border. Drug traffickers have victimized dozens of innocents abroad. A widely publicized case in point is that of Conan Owen, a 23-year-old photographer from Annandale, Va., who was arrested by Spanish customs officials for carrying into Barcelona a piece of luggage with a false bottom containing cocaine. Owen steadfastly insisted that he was set up by a friend and had no idea he was carrying the drug. He was held in pretrial detention for more than a year. When finally tried two months ago, Owen was found guilty of smuggling, fined $18,000 and sentenced to six years in jail.

A final word of warning: If you suffer from a malady that requires you to take narcotics, be sure you have a doctor's certificate attesting to that fact, and carry all such drugs in their original, labeled containers.

In a sentence, play it safe.

New Deal for Brits

ZuffanteStar File

Britain's Joan Collins, U.S. resident

Starting as early as this summer, British citizens traveling to the U.S. for business or pleasure for stays of 90 days or less will no longer require visas. All they'll need is a valid passport and a return ticket. If they plan to reside or work here, however, they will need visas—a requirement Americans visiting Britain have never had to meet.

For those of you young people who plan on going to college, be sure you know something about cooperative education, an "earning-while-you're-learning" concept that began at the University of Cincinnati in 1906 and is now in effect in more than 1000 American colleges.

Co-op education is a system—with variations—of working your way through college (off campus and on), of integrating theory with practicality and of obtaining important on-the-job training so that, when you graduate or leave college, you can tell your potential employer that you're a person with valuable job experience in your major or minor field of study.

IBM, Exxon, Eastman Kodak, Du Pont, General Dynamics and hundreds of other first-rate corporations—as well as nonprofit organizations and the federal government—offer programs for co-op students and are eager to hire the best of them. The average annual pay for students is $7000.

To learn about co-op education and what it offers you, write for the free 12-page booklet Cooperative Education, offered by the National Commission for Cooperative Education, Dept. P, 501 Stearns Center, 360 Huntington Ave., Boston, Mass. 02115. You also may request a free copy of the Co-op Education Undergraduate Program Directory.

Postage Hike

Back in 1931, the first-class postage rate in the United States was 2 cents. Fifty years later, it was 18 cents. Last month, it rose from 22 cents to 25 cents. How much do you reckon it will cost in this country to mail a typical one-ounce letter first-class by the year 2000?

Janet Steiger

A few weeks ago, we put that question to several postal authorities, including Janet Steiger, chairman of the Postal Rate Commission since 1982; Van H. Seagraves, the publisher of Business Mailers Review; our neighborhood mail carrier, Valerie Knapp, and two other mail carriers who declined to be named in print. The average of their projections: 50 cents.

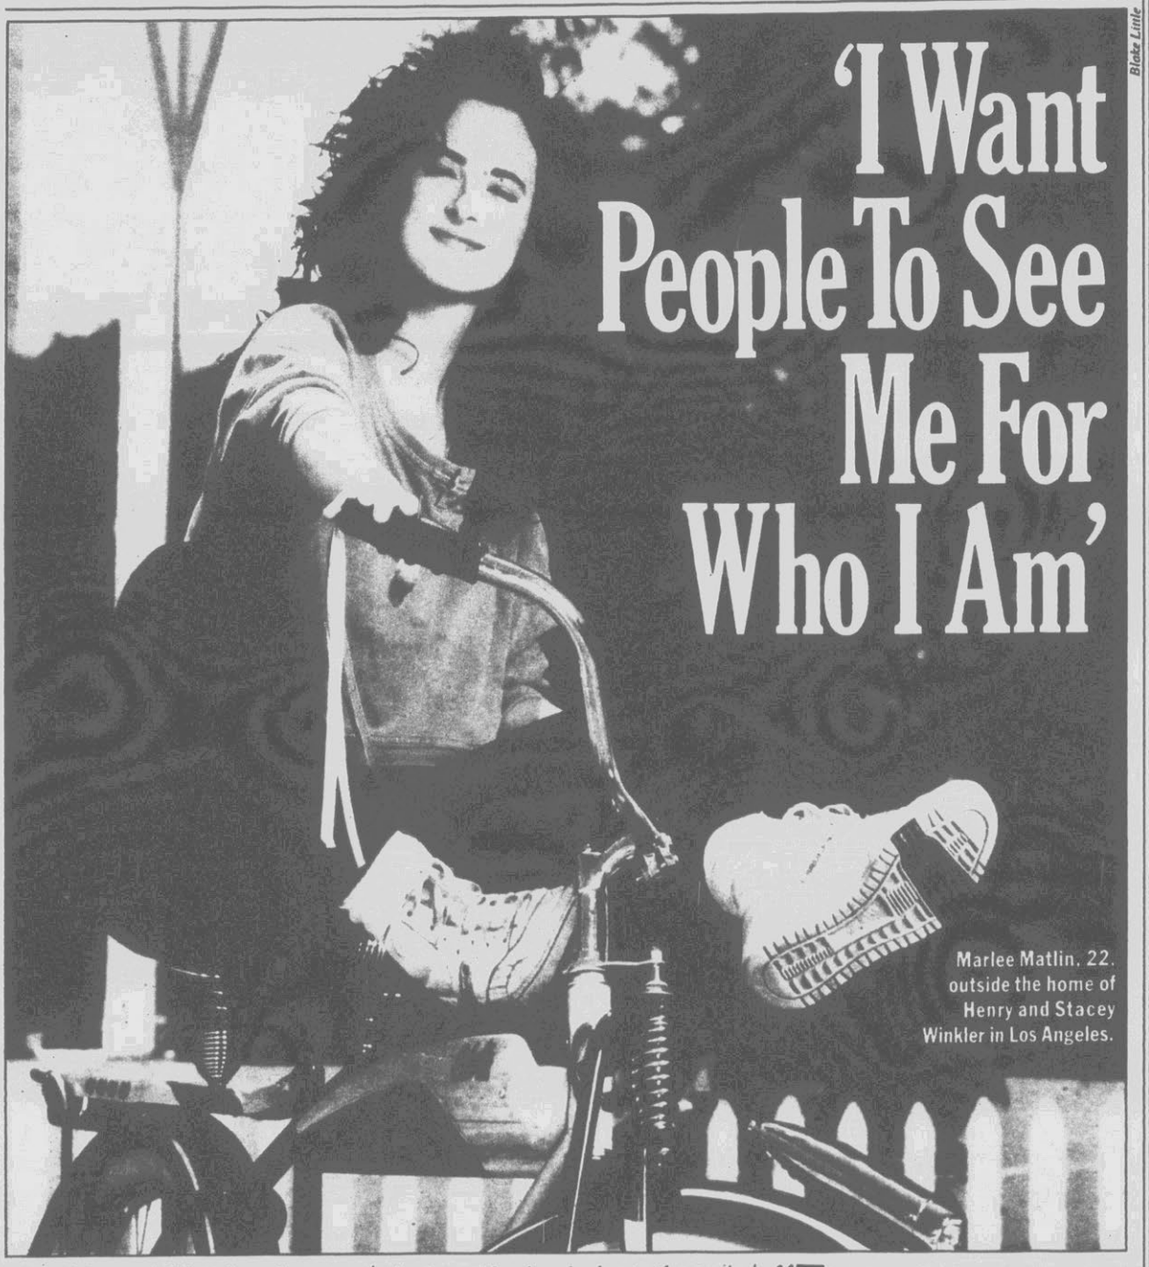
Actress Marlee Matlin has the same dreams as any talented 22-year-old who can hear—and she's going after them

'I Want People To See Me For Who I Am'



Blake Little

Marlee Matlin, 22, outside the home of Henry and Stacey Winkler in Los Angeles.

FOR MARLEE MATLIN, Academy Awards night this year was tremendously exciting. Not only was she returning to the scene of her victory as last year's Best Actress, but she also was showing the world the results of months of intensive speech therapy. Alluring in a raspberry-colored strapless dress, she strode to the podium and began signing, with her interpreter speaking. Then she dropped her hands and, in her own voice, announced the nominees for Best Actor. The audience was hushed.

In her Oscar-winning role as Sarah Norman in Children of a Lesser God, Matlin had used her voice in only one harrowing shrieking scene. Clearly, this year, she wanted to prove to Hollywood that she could play a variety of parts. In fact, this year, she'll have a speaking role in a new Paramount film, Fox.

"I'm not trying to be hearing," she warns. "I take advantage of the hearing I have. But I don't like being labeled 'the deaf actress.'" She signs vigorously: "I'm an actress who happens to be deaf." She emphasizes the sign for "actress."

I spent an unusual day in Los Angeles with her—much of it driving—and it was a rousing, rollicking experience. She's a spunky young woman, in some ways a lot like Sarah Norman. Like Sarah, she's a fighter. But Matlin has learned to be more at ease with herself than Sarah is in the movie. And she's much wittier.

For Matlin, our interview is something of a relief, because she can sign directly to me—my parents are also deaf, and sign language is natural to me. Matlin is profoundly deaf, although she has a bit of residual hearing in the high-voice range, and so hearing aids help. And she's an extremely good lip-reader. Still, she uses an interpreter to be certain that she gets exactly what's said.

Meeting Matlin is a surprise. She's more petite than I expected, but she comes across as strong. Her whole body is in constant motion, almost dancing as she's standing still. Her face is extremely expressive—a trait in many deaf people who have learned to communicate visually and a real boon for an actress.

In some ways, she's a typical 22-year-old. Her clothes are youthful and funky: On this day, she is wearing a black braided jacket and black stretch miniskirt, a yellow blouse, lacy white stockings and cowboy boots. Her blue eyes crinkle up behind oversized glasses when she smiles. And her skin is milky soft, translucent—almost porcelain.

But in plenty of ways, she's more mature than other 22-year-olds. She knows exactly where she's headed. "When I was a kid, I dreamed I'd make at least one movie," she says. "But I was always proud. I wanted people to see me for who I was, not just a deaf little girl."

Matlin is at the wheel as we drive along Wilshire Boulevard, her left, lace-covered knee steering as she signs. "See, I had a lot of rejections as a kid," she says. "I wanted to be perfect. But now I've learned to accept myself as I am."

"And your dreams now?" I ask in sign. Momentarily, she closes her eyes and hunches up her shoulders. "I have many, many dreams," she says. "More work. A family of my own. I want to have the best life I can. I want to be happy."

Suddenly, she toots the horn impatiently and begins signing to the car in front of us: "Hey! Where am I supposed to turn?" In that car are her interpreter for the last couple of years, Jack Jason, and her brother Marc, 30. We're heading for The Brown Derby in Hollywood, where Matlin has been invited to autograph a drawing that will hang permanently in the restaurant.

Right away, a notable advantage to sign language becomes apparent as Jason signs the directions. "I love signing between cars," Matlin says, laughing as her hands quickly pass each other.

After lunch, Matlin heads for business meetings. She's polite, but I can tell she's itching to go out and have a

"I don't like being labeled 'the deaf actress,'" says Matlin vigorously. "I'm an actress who happens to be deaf." She stresses the word actress.

BY LOU ANN WALKER

wild old time. "I love people," she says. "I explore. Sometimes I stare—well, I try not to stare. And I try never to judge. No judgment," she signs emphatically, whisking her right hand out. "I have another dream: I be myself and people be themselves. It's simple."

"What are your pet peeves?" I ask. "They're very typical," she answers. "Anyone who makes fun of signing. And people who ask me if I can drive. I say 'yes.' They say 'how?' " she sighs, exasperated.

"I'm very independent," she says. "Ask my brother."

Her independence comes out whenever she's asked about her romantic life. Reviewers often mentioned how sexy she was in Children. Although she and co-star William Hurt lived together for a while, she refused to talk about their relationship or their breakup. "It's my own business," she said temperamentally. But these days, she is seen around Hollywood with Richard Dean Anderson, the star of TV's MacGyver, and she has the radiance of a woman in love.

"I started acting when I was 7 in the Wizard of Oz," Matlin says. "I did a lot of work with the children's theater established by The Center on Deafness, near Chicago. I stayed seven or eight years. We did plays all over Illinois, Nebraska and Indiana." She met Henry Winkler ("the Fonz") when she was about 12. He came to one of her performances and then backstage for a chat. They stayed in touch, and when she decided to come to Hollywood, the Winklers invited her to live with them. It's a cozy, sun-filled home in which Matlin feels very comfortable.

Matlin has been attending speech therapy every day for eight months. Her speech therapist, Lillian Glass—who has just written a book, Talk To Win, about improving "vocal image"—has coached Rob Lowe and Julio Iglesias, among others. "Marlee is so animated, so electric," Glass says. "She has worked so hard that even her friends call and say they can't believe the change in her." (For deaf people, the ability to speak depends upon a number of factors, including how old the person was at the onset of deafness and how much residual hearing there is.)

Like that of many deaf people, Matlin's voice was something of a monotone, and she spoke too quickly. Although her voice is soft, her words now are clear, and she has more inflection in her speech. As she signed and spoke to me, she would sometimes catch herself in a bad habit, then repeat the word to herself, just to make sure she'd got it right.

We stop off to visit Matlin's grandmothers, both of whom live in Southern California. She speaks affectionately about her family. Half Russian, half Polish, she's proud of her Jewish heritage. Back behind the wheel, she is reminded that it was on a visit to one grandmother that her deafness was discovered.

"I had roseola when I was 18 months old," she tells me. "My grandmother's best friend was babysitting and told my parents there was something wrong with my hearing. They said, 'No, she's just being stubborn.' But when we got home from vacation, they had my hearing tested. It was hard for my parents.

"Early on, I went to an oral school—I remember that: 'Speak, don't sign.' Later, I went to a mainstream school. I loved going to school. But the teachers had to put up with a lot from me. I had terrible temper tantrums. I couldn't accept my deafness. I was so angry and frightened. Way down inside me, there was something saying, 'Stop that. You will make it.' Finally I accepted who I am. I'm a person who is deaf."

Children of a Lesser God was her start in beginning to accept her deafness. "Working with the cast and crew and the director," she says, "I learned about Sarah. She didn't trust anyone, not even herself. Sarah grew up fast. I did too. Now I have to slow my pace."

Matlin is passionate about many things. "I loved my neighborhood so much," she says of Morton Grove, Ill., where she was born. Her parents still live in the Chicago area, and so does Marc and her oldest brother, Eric, 33, and his family. Her best friend, Liz Tannebaum, who is deaf, is from there too. "I adore her so much," Matlin says. "She's really special."

But Matlin is as passionate about her dislikes as she is about her loves. "I don't drink alcohol or do drugs," she says. "They're killers. It's not worth it."

She does public-service announcements for AIDS and for the telephone company about using telecommunications devices for the deaf (TDDs), as well as other charity work. "One thing I dreamed of as a little girl is that I would help the community," she signs. "But I'm not political. I don't get into certain things. I'm young," she adds knowingly.

Another of her current projects is getting old movies closed-captioned—subtitled, really—for hearing-impaired people. Recently a cable network captioned four classic movies, including Play It Again Sam and Pat and Mike. Matlin's goal now is to get more movies done, possibly by having stars hold benefits for old films to raise the $3000 to $6000 for captioning.

Although her second movie, Walker, died at the box office, Matlin is undaunted. She has a number of other projects in the works, and Jack Jason, her interpreter, also is writing scripts, including one about a deaf barnstorming pilot from the 1920s. Matlin currently is filming Bridge to Silence, a movie for CBS-TV. The story is about a deaf mother who fights her own mother for custody of her hearing child.

"I once dreamed I wanted the whole world to be able to sign," she says. "I guess I'm a little selfish in that respect. We deaf people have to learn how to speak—not necessarily in the verbal sense—but we have to learn to cope with the world we live in.

"I think Children of a Lesser God really brings out that message ["message" is signed with the hands closed at the forehead and opening upward and out], that listening is the most important thing. It's about communication between human beings.

"It was a friend who told me to try out for Children. Thank God for my friend. I learned: Don't ever give up."

Summertime Fun Ahead

AS SCHOOL ENDS, YOU'LL need to prepare some worthwhile diversions for your children's long summer days. Two suggestions:

• Sing-alongs. Make a list of your own favorites and teach them to your kids. Or bring audiocassettes along when traveling. Try Peanut Heaven's "On Vacation," a tape of 10 playful tunes. Father/performer Frank Cappelli knows just how to keep his three children, aged 6, 5 and 2—and yours—occupied for hours. It's $8.98 at major bookstores; for location near you, call 1-800-422-5350.

• Starting a diary. Encourage your child to keep a journal. Some jumping-off points suggested in a guide for teenage girls titled The Days of My Life (New Chapter Press, $10.95): "If I could be anyone in the world, I would be..." or "A letter to myself five years in the future..." or "Where I go to be alone..."

We'd like to hear from you. Send your suggestions to "Bright Ideas," PARADE, 750 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Former Soap Star Acts A Real-Life Drama

By Evan Levin

When Robin Strasser saw a clip of herself in ABC's "Baby M," playing Elizabeth Stern, the woman who became involved in a battle over a surrogate-mother contract, her first reaction was, "Oh, my God, what if people think I'm really like this?"

The four-hour docudrama, which airs Sunday, May 22, and Monday, May 23, focuses on the custody battle that evolved when William Stern (John Shea) and his wife Elizabeth (Strasser) contracted for Mary Beth Whitehead (JoBeth Williams) to bear a child for them. When Whitehead decided she wanted to keep the baby, the case turned into a test over the rights of surrogate mothers.

Strasser was used to lots of glamour in her role as Dorian Lord, reigning villainess on the ABC soap "One Life to Life." As Elizabeth Stern in "Baby M," her looks were totally changed.

"My knees started knocking when I saw the clip," she recalls. "I was used to being perceived in a very different way on the soap.

"I guess I had had no clear picture of Elizabeth," she says. "The proceedings were upstaged by Whitehead."

In addition to changing her looks, Strasser was also forced to readjust her thinking. "I thought initially that Mary Beth Whitehead was right to take the child," Strasser explains. "It was hard to throw those feelings out the window."

The movie was shot while the real proceedings were being conducted a few miles away. Wasn't Strasser worried about charges of exploitation?

"We don't want to cause the people involved any discomfort," she says carefully. "But there's no doubt the project will be controversial." Despite the fact that press releases assure that the goal of the movie is to present it without any particular point of view, the project will still no doubt arouse controversy. The historic nature of the case, the fierce debate over the ethics of surrogate motherhood, and the personalities of those involved make it almost impossible not to provoke some strong judgements.

Strasser, however, avoids talking about any of the participants in black-and-white terms. "When I was on the soap, I never thought I was playing a villainess," she says. "I tried to do the same thing here. People have to realize that surrogate parenting is an absolutely impossible thing to do."

John Shea and Robin Strasser star as William and Elizabeth Stern, the couple whose hiring of a surrogate mother set off an historic custody case. The docudrama airs Sunday, May 22, and Monday, May 23, on ABC.

SOAP OPERA WEEK

'DOOL' actress originally planned to be a dancer

By Kimberly Redmond

Please give me some facts about Melissa Brennan, who plays Jennifer Horton on "Days of Our Lives." I think she's a good actress. – C.R., Cottage Grove, Minn.

Melissa Brennan

Brennan joined the cast of "DOOL" in October, 1985, when she was 18. Previously, she had played the role of Jade Perkins on "Santa Barbara."

Brennan has been appearing in commercials since she was 15. She originally had plans to become a dancer until she started becoming successful in commercials. She also studied acting at the Lee Strasberg Institute in New York City.

Brennan's other credits include HBO's "Somewhere Tomorrow" and the "Afterschool Special" "The Lakeside High Experiment."

I served in the Navy with John Beradino, who plays Steve Hardy on "General Hospital." Can you give me an address where I can write to him? – D.R., Santa Cruz, Calif.

Write to Beradino c/o "General Hospital," ABC-TV, 4151 Prospect Ave., Hollywood, CA 90067.

Recently I wrote to CBS and requested a photo of Rod Arrants, who plays Steven Lassiter on "The Young and the Restless." They said that they couldn't fulfill my request. How can I get a photo of Arrants? – H.C., Willoughby, Ohio

Rod Arrants

You should write directly to Arrants c/o "Y&R," CBS-TV, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90036. Not all actors send photos upon request, but give it a try.

(Have a question about soap operas? Write Kimberly Redmond at 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, NY 10166. Questions cannot be answered personally but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

Michele Will Tell

By Michele Marks

Dear Michele: I think Dana Carvey, who appears as the Church Lady on "Saturday Night Live," is very funny! Could you provide some information on his personal life? – G. O'BRIEN, W. RUTLAND, VT.

The son of schoolteachers, Dana Carvey was born June 6, 1955, in Missoula, Mont., and raised with his four siblings in San Carlos, Calif. A self-described "nerd" in high school, he immersed himself in track and cross country, where he did impressions of Jacques Cousteau and Marlin Perkins for his teammates. A graduate of San Francisco State University with a degree in communications, Carvey won the San Francisco Stand-Up Comedy Competition while still an undergraduate. In 1981, he moved to Los Angeles, where he co-starred in two TV pilots and played Mickey Rooney's grandson in the 1982 sitcom "One of the Boys." In 1984, he co-starred in the series "Blue Thunder" with James Farentino, and appeared in the feature films "This Is Spinal Tap" and "Racing with the Moon." More recently, he portrayed the street-smart parole officer of Burt Lancaster and Kirk Douglas in "Tough Guys" (1986) and the schizophrenic Brad Williams in "Moving" (1988) with Richard Pryorand Rodney Dangerfield. Due to his bi-coastal career, Carvey and his wife Paula maintain apartments in both San Francisco and New York.

Dear Michele: Who was the actor who played Gil Favor on "Rawhide"? Also, wasn't Rowdy Yates played by Clint Eastwood, or do I have this Western mixed up with "Wagon Train"? – SHERRELL WARREN, SECURITY, COLO.

No, you haven't confused your oaters. "Rawhide" aired from 1959-66 on CBS, and Eric Fleming played trail boss Gil Favor from 1959 to 1965. Clint Eastwood starred as Rowdy Yates, Favor's right-hand man, and took over the reins as trail boss when Fleming left the show.

Dear Michele: Help! I've been sick with the flu for a week, so all the movies I've been watching are blurred. Are any of these actors the same: the leading man with Elizabeth Taylor in "A Little Night Music"; "Dreamscape" 's English-type doctor; and Darth Vader in "Star Wars"? – BRENDA SPENCER, PALMDALE, CALIF.

Blame it on the flu! None of the three films starred the same actor. Len Carriou and Lawrence Guittard appeared with Liz Taylor in "A Little Night Music" (1978). Max Von Sydow starred in"Dreamscape" (1984) with Dennis Quaid. The voice of Darth Vader in the "Star Wars" sagas belongs to James Earl Jones.

Please address questions to Michele Will Tell, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 2315, Grand Central Station, New York, NY 10163. Because of the volume of mail received, personal replies cannot be sent.

HBO's look at death row packs a horrifying punch

By Connie Passalacqua

"Execution: Fourteen Days in May," airing May 23, is another episode of HBO's "America Undercover." This documentary series is the ultimate in grim: It deals with gut-wrenching human tragedies such as drunk driving and mercy killing. The subject matter is always so chilling and disturbing it's usually easier to turn the TV off.

Edward Johnson

This episode, focusing on capital punishment, provides more footage for your nightmares. It focuses on the last 14 days in the life of 26-year-old black Mississippi death-row convict Edward Johnson. In 1979, Johnson was convicted of killing a police marshal who had intervened when Johnson assaulted a white woman. Johnson signed a confession, but maintained that he was physically coerced by the police to do so. Many people, including New York Times columnist Tom Wicker, who narrates the episode, feel there were racial motivations in his trial and sentencing. Johnson was the first man to die after the Supreme Court ruling that even a demonstrable pattern of racial discrimination does not make the death penalty unconstitutional.

This episode pretty much puts race and legal questions aside and focuses on one thing: death. And, no matter how you feel idealistically, whether you think capital punishment is right or wrong, Johnson's last few days can't fail to turn your stomach. A week before the execution, officials of the prison decided to test the electric chair by killing some rabbits. With their eyes open, the rabbits jerk around violently and die in front of the cameras. Horrifying is not a strong enough word for what it looks like – or for the thought of what's to come.

In contrast, Johnson remains calm almost up to the last minute. He's seen meeting with lawyers and relatives, almost peacefully going into his fate. He doesn't even get emotional when his last stays of executions are turned down.

Johnson's cellmates and guards seem to have the most emotional reaction to his execution. Says one convict in tears, "They say we're the ones who are violent and cruel. But I've never seen anything more violent and cruel than this."

TV Chatter

By Frank Sanello

The legal mess created by the Baby M case, in which surrogate mother Mary Beth Whitehead refused to give up her baby to the couple who paid her $10,000 for the child, has led many people to conclude that surrogate motherhood should be outlawed. JoBeth Williams, who plays Whitehead in the four-hour docudrama "Baby M," airing May 22 and 23 on ABC, isn't one of them. "I don't think there's anything morally wrong with surrogacy," says Williams. "The sad thing for me is that the Baby M case is only one unsuccessful case out of thousands of successful ones. Millions of couples in this country are infertile, and surrogacy should be an option for them."

Williams also disagrees with those who think surrogacy should be allowed, but that the surrogate mother should not be paid. "If a woman is going to give up nine months of her life, you can't expect her not to be compensated for that in some way. If she can't work for four months, someone has to provide for her expenses."

Further, Williams would like to see current surrogacy proceedings improved by better screening of both the adoptive parents and the surrogate mother. She points out that psychological tests prior to Whitehead's pregnancy indicated she might have trouble giving up her baby, but Whitehead was allowed to go through with the pregnancy anyway.

Alex McArthur, the star of all three "Desperado" TV movies, doesn't believe the Western feature film is dead. "You can't generalize about the Western. It's too big a category," says the 31-year-old former carpenter, who stars in NBC's "Desperado: Avalanche at Devil's Ridge" on May 24. "It depends on the film itself. If a good feature Western were made, it would do well because I believe the Western has an audience. At least from the mail I get from around the country and the people I talk to, they seem very receptive to a good Western," says McArthur, who plays a good guy falsely accused of murder.

The actor believes Westerns fail when they "try to jazz up a story that's supposed to take place in the 1800s by transporting the characters into the future or when they take a classic story and make fun of it."

Actors considering working for director William Friedkin ("The French Connection") beware: You will be doing all your own stunts. That's what Joe Cortese found out when he signed on to do the two "C.A.T. Squad" films for NBC, the second of which airs May 23. In "C.A.T. Squad: Python Wolf," which deals with the covert activities of an ultra secret government agency, Cortese ended up hanging from the fifth story of a building and doing all his own fight scenes. "When you do a Billy Friedkin movie, you're an actor and a stunt man. As Billy likes to say, 'Hey, babe! It's real.' "The athletic Cortese didn't object to all the risks he took on the film. "I figure I'm just as much at risk crossing a street in some areas of Los Angeles."

Loretta Young explains why she will never write her memoirs: "If you want to read about me, you can read a movie magazine."... Here's Roger Ebert on the purpose of the film critic: "It's not to be the director, actor or writer, but to be a member of the audience."

BEHIND THE SCENES

Smothers Brothers uphold their tradition of comedy

By Frank Lovece

On Wednesday, May 25, the Smothers Brothers wrap up the last of their nine shows on CBS. Their comedy-variety series, revived after 19 years, stands a good chance of returning in the fall: Even if it doesn't, the exposure has done wonders for the duo's career.

Tom and Dick Smothers

Yet the whole show almost collapsed when The Writers Guild went on strike.

Luckily, The Guild granted the Smothers one of only two exemptions. As Tom Smothers relates, "We knew that during the last strike, they gave waivers to production companies that adjusted to the provisions they wanted. We just agreed with whatever it was."

"And also, the day after we got our waiver," Dick jokes, "the Kuwaiti hostages were released from that airplane."

"I don't know if we're allowed to talk about that, Dick."

"Tom's right," Dick says. "We're not allowed to discuss the terms of the waiver. I can just say we had a few writers on that plane, and we had to get them off. We were going to do some Middle East humor..."

"...Except they don't have any," Tom jumps in.

The Smothers Brothers comeback started with a CBS special this past March. It turned out so well that the network brought the duo back for more. It's quite ironic, since it was CBS that canceled them in 1969, after battles over political and artistic censorship.

History came around to the Smothers' side, and so, eventually, did CBS. "The network does encourage us to do political humor," Tom asserts. So far it's been mild, almost expected jabs at such topics as U.S. Central American policy, or lack thereof. "They want us to be a little dangerous, to take risks," Tom adds. Whether this means satirical pokes at Ed Meese, Oliver North and other targets that can fire back remains to be seen.

The Smothers, for their part, are taking it slowly. "When we did the special," says Dick, "we said that we were going to continue as if nothing had happened. Your lifestyle has to react to changing circumstances, but we're not taking anything for granted. So far, everything is positive."

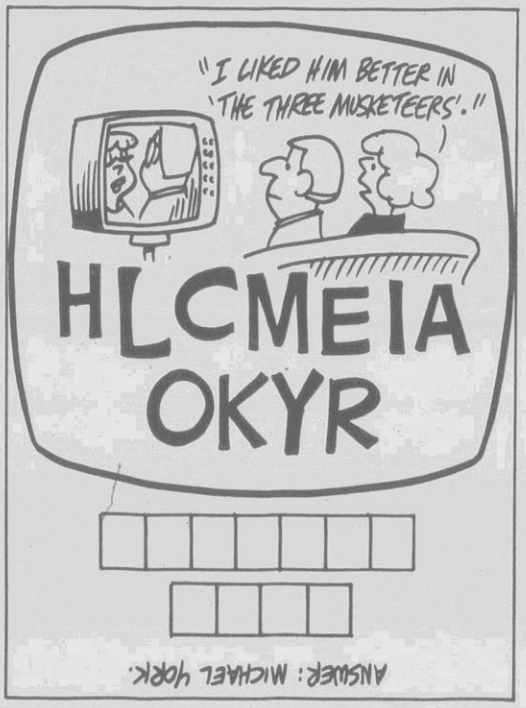
TV TANGLE by HERNDON

UNTANGLE THE LETTERS AND USE THE CLUE SHOWN TO SPELL THE NAME OF A MOVIE and TV ACTOR.



The Great Escape

The latest NBC project to film in Yugoslavia is "The Great Escape: The Final Chapter," a four-hour miniseries starring Christopher Reeve, Donald Pleasence and Charles Haid. Based on a book by Paul Brickhill, the movie is about former World War II prisoners of war who pursue their captors, hoping to avenge the deaths of 50 fellow prisoners. "The Dirty Dozen" and "The Fortunate Pilgrim"were also filmed in Yugoslavia, ostensibly to save money.

Markoe Experiments With The Glamorous Life

By Andrew J. Edelstein

Here we go again: Another self-indulgent, not-fully-developed "Cinemax Comedy Experiment." This time out it's "Merrill Markoe's Guide to Glamorous Living" (airing May 22 and 24). Markoe is the former head writer and producer of "Late Night with David Letterman" (and, yes, his ex-live-in girlfriend), and this half-hour special is molded in the arch, ironic tones of that show.

Accompanied by two to-die-for male models (Ron and Don), Markoe offers tips on how to be glamorous. Also along for the ride are several semi-big-name guest stars (Garry Shandling, Polly Draper, Martin Mull, Elayne Boosler) who demonstrate Markoe's tips. The special, consisting of a series of disparate skits mixed in with real footage of a beauty-products trade show, is only sporadically successful.

The segments taped at the trade show — very "Late Night"ish — are the funniest part of this special. What scriptwriter's creation can top the real-life saga of a balding man wearing a buttonthat reads "I'm growing new hair. Ask me how," or a born-again woman who designs cubic zirconium jewelry that can be imbedded in one's nails?

Most of the skits seem hastily conceived. But one, featuring TV's two top neurotic singles, Shandling and Draper (who plays the desperate Ellyn on "thirtysomething"), hits the mark. As a romantic couple cozying up before a fire, they are demonstrating Markoe's notion that one aspect of being glamorous is knowing when to shut up.

Ghost Story

Eric Idle is the star of "Ghost Story," a possible NBC series that recently completed its pilot episode. Idle, once a member of the Monty Python TV comedy troupe, plays a ghost who tries to drive out the American family that lives in the house he haunts. Caroline McWilliams, who played Marcy Hill on "Benson," plays his phantom wife, Claire.

Herzog Has His Injury Theory; We Have Ours

By Marty Linehan

At the start of the baseball season, lovable old Whitey Herzog, the St. Louis Cardinal manager, commented that two of his pitchers had sore arms, and he credited it to the fact that both were vegetarians. "Maybe if they ate a few pounds of meat, they would be better," he said.

He might have something there, but he could be overlooking another angle. The cold, rainy weather in the northern part of the country — where most major-league baseball is played — could have something to do with it.

Let's face it. The big leaguers spend almost two months in Florida or Arizona, basking in the hot sun and warm breezes. Then, overnight, they jump on a plane for Detroit, Boston, New York or some other cold-weather city. Some bodies just can't take the quick change.

It wasn't always this way. Back when ball teams traveled on trains instead of planes, they took their time going from South to North. A big part of spring training was the whistle-stop tour on the way up. This stopping in small towns gave the locals a chance to see big-league players. It also acclimated the players to the northern spring.

But jet planes and television have put a stop to that. Television enables small-town viewers to watch their big-league heroes every week, not just once a year. And the players put their careers on the line and fight the weather at the same time.

* On Saturday, May 28, NBC's baseball "Game of the Week" presents the San Francisco Giants playing the Phillies in Philadelphia, or the St. Louis Cardinals (led by Herzog, who's still hoping his vegetarian pitchers will break down and let him buy them hot dogs) visiting the Atlanta Braves.

* The weather shouldn't be a factor when the Ladies Professional Golfers Championship is played Sunday, May 22, at the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center in Kings Island, Ohio, and televised by NBC.Nor are cold winds likely to bother the men's Colonial National Invitation at the Colonial CC in Fort Worth, Texas, which will be shown on CBS.

* On Sunday, May 22, CBS will present an NBA Eastern Conference playoff game.

* On Monday, May 23, ESPN covers, live, from Stade Roland Garros, Paris, the first day of the French Open. ESPN will also be televising the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup finals during the week.

Guessing What Shows Will And Won't Get Axed

By Bob Remington

It's time to dust off the crystal ball and predict what Canadian shows will be back next season.

CTV won't officially announce its fall lineup until mid-June, and CBC is remaining mum until mid-July. But as network executives huddle in back rooms deciding which series will return, the rumormill is working overtime with speculation on which series will be back or be canceled. Here are some guesses, along with a few confirmations from network brass:

Although CTV isn't saying, odds are that Mount Royal — the most expensive Canadian series ever made — is getting the ax. The show was plagued by schedule disruptions caused by the Winter Olympics on CTV, but it's hard to blame postponements for "Mount Royal" 's inability to find an audience.

FREE PIZZA

Buy one pizza and get one pizza FREE!

At Little Caesars, when you buy one pizza, you get another one free. But that's not all you get. Every one of our pizzas is smothered in a special blend of real, all natural cheeses.

Because the only thing we ever skimp on is the price.

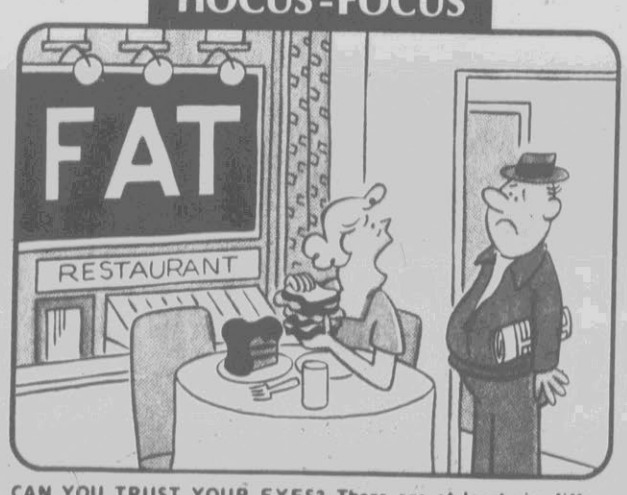
HOCUS-FOCUS



CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. EAT is changed to FAT. 2. Plant is missing. 3. Hair is different. 4. Switch is missing. 5. Jacket is opened. 6. Newspaper is moved.

• SUM MAGIC! Insert numbers 1, 2, 3 and 4 correctly in the diagram at right and the figures form a magic square. Each row horizontally, vertically and diagonally will total 34.

In addition, any four adjacent numbers within the whole will total 34.

7	12		14
	13	8	11
16		10	5
9	6	15

DROP-A-LETTER WORD TEST

Beginning with the word SERGEANT below, drop one letter and rearrange remaining letters as necessary in each step, to fill blanks.

The SERGEANT displays XXXXXX behavior that sometimes XXXXXX his troops. Once, while on the rifle XXXXX, he XXXX a bell, and XXX up a white flag when XX awkward group of new recruits failed to hit X single bull's-eye.

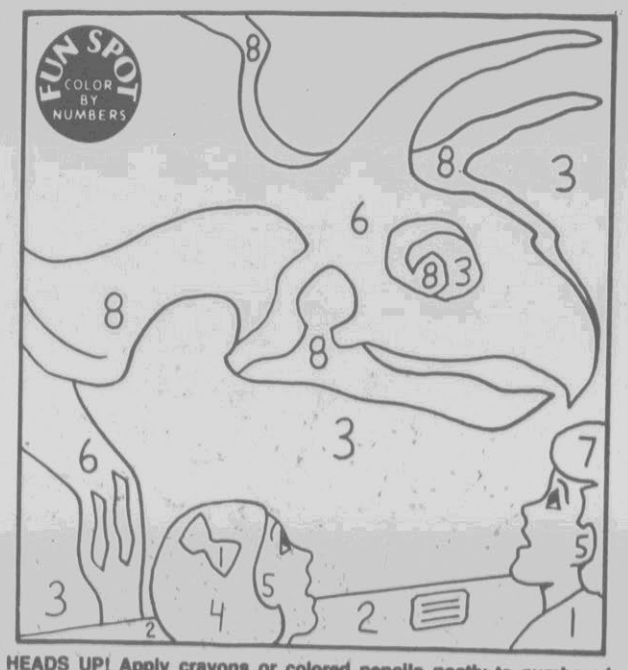
Each X stands for a letter. First word in progression is 'strange.'

Sergeant, strange, angera, range, rang, ran, an, a, will do it.

• SALAD BOWL! Find a salad ingredient in each sentence: 1. I called Tom at once. 2. Let the old car rot away. 3. Who can spin a chain? 4. Put tortoni on the menu. 5. Today we'll dress in gray.

1. Tomato. 2. Carrot. 3. Spinach. 4. Onion. 5. Dressing.

UPBEAT! Something is missing from this wake-up scene. To complete the picture, add lines from dot 1 to dot 2, 3, etc.



HEADS UP! Apply crayons or colored pencils neatly to numbered segments above. Code: 1—Red. 2—Lt. blue. 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh tones. 6—Lt. purple. 7—Dk. brown. 8—Dk. purple.

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

HARDIEST

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 50 points.

Possible anagram: Hide, star
