Blue-Ribbon Panel Says Equality Of Opportunity Denied Minorities

WASHINGTON (AP) — A commission of political, civic and education leaders said today America "is moving backward" in efforts to achieve equality of opportunity for blacks, Hispanics and American Indians.

The panel, including former Presidents Gerald R. Ford and Jimmy Carter, called for renewed efforts to close the economic, educational and social gaps between members of those minority groups and the white majority.

Leaders of The Commission on Minority Participation in Education and American Life were releasing the report, "One-Third of a Nation," at a news conference at the National Press Club.

The commission was chaired by Cornell University President Frank H.T. Rhodes.

Without blaming any one party or sector of society, it said, "In the last 10 years, not only have we lost the momentum of earlier minority progress, we have suffered actual reversals in the drive to achieve full equality for minority citizens.

"America is moving backward — not forward — in its efforts to achieve the full participation of minority citizens in the life and prosperity of the nation," the commission declared in its 10,000-word report.

The commission called for forging "a new vision of affirmative action around which a broad national consensus can be formed."

Two national education groups, The American Council on Education and the Education Commission of the States, established the commission last fall to address "a shared deep

Hungary Replaces Party Chief

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — The selection of Premier Karoly Grosz as the head of the Communist Party is a victory for reform and a clear shift from the staunch ideology of Janos Kadar, whose 32-year grip on power had become an obstacle to progress, party officials said.

Grosz replaced Kadar as general secretary on Sunday night in a sweeping reshuffle of party leadership that favored the reformists, who now will get their chance to solve Hungary's deepening economic crisis. A Politburo member said Kadar had asked not to be nominated for the party leadership.

"There was no real reform possible as long as (Kadar) was in power," said a prominent party member who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Kadar, who turns 76 Thursday, was named to the newly created honorary post of party president at the end of a three-day party conference in which delegates assailed the veteran leader in a manner unprecedented in the Soviet bloc.

"This conference marks a radical change," Grosz told Hungarian television minutes after being named new general secretary of the Hungarian Socialist Workers' Party.

Grosz, 57, is viewed as a leader in the mold of Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev. Grosz has gained a reputation as a pragmatist willing to face unpleasant truths about Hungary's economic stagnation.

"Mr. Grosz's greatest merit is that he has not been afraid to make decisions that are highly unpopular," said Sandor Demjan, president and general manager of the Hungarian Credit Bank.

"I think he will personify responsibility and push for the removal of those who are incompetent and who have thwarted reforms," Demjan said.

Reformers were clearly on the offensive throughout the conference.

In debates that were often lively and critical, delegates relentlessly assailed Kadar and called openly for new faces and new policies.

Special Calendars Help Clear Court Dockets

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

A Pitt County District Court calendar from four years ago might list 300 cases for a single day, or it might list 50, and there might have been speeding cases tried in the same court with probable cause hearings for felonies.

As economic development attracted more people to Pitt County over the last decade, the volume of court cases has outgrown the courthouse facilities and District Attorney Thomas Haigwood has had to find ways to improve the efficiency of the system.

Since 1984 Haigwood has made two major changes: studied the Greenville police officers' arrest statistics to predict the number of cases each officer will generate and created special courts for specific types of cases that cluttered District Courts in the past.

"I think it addresses some of the more serious problems," Haigwood said. "I think that what we're doing is unique for our kind of caseload. Mecklenburg County — they have an approach, too, which is ... in some ways like ours, but it is on a totally different kind of scale."

Haigwood is responsible for assigning specific dates to Superior Court cases, but the volume of District Court cases makes it unrealistic for the district attorney to set a date for every case, so magistrates and police officers set court dates when an arrest is made or a ticket is written.

"Because of the tremendous volume and number of cases, you didn't have any management tool to allow you to sit down and draw up anything," Haigwood said of the problems prior to his policy of reviewing arrest statistics.

"When the dockets got so heavy, we started trying to do some things to address the problems of having days when you had 300 cases set and having days when you had only 50 cases set," he said.

This is the second in a three-part series focusing on the needs of a growing Pitt County court system.

The solution was to assign officers specific days in court — usually two a month — so that the caseload would be dispersed more evenly and every officer would not assign cases for the same day.

Because not all officers make the same number of arrests, the next obstacle was trying to determine the average number of cases each officer generated, and assigning court dates to officers in an effort to set no more than 165 cases a day on the calendar.

Arrest statistics are reviewed by Haigwood's office every six months and the officers' court dates are set based on the predicted number of cases each officer will generate. "The Greenville Police Department works with us very well about letting us set their days," Haigwood said. "We try to put officers who make more arrests in court with officers who make fewer arrests."

Haigwood has been using the system for more than three years, and he said the courts sometimes still have more than 165 cases a day on the calendar, but the average is close to that number now.

Haigwood's staff will review 1988 arrest statistics in the next 45 days in order to assign officers court dates for the fall. With a new police chief, Jerry Tesmond, and a new platoon joining the Greenville Police Department, Haigwood said it will be more difficult than usual to make precise predictions.

Officers also miss work due to illness or school, and their absence affects the statistics. "You can't factor those problems in. At best, it's just a rough measurement," Haigwood said.

Tesmond said he will be glad to work with Haigwood and establish whatever system will work best for the public and the courts.

"It think our officers' attitude is: anything that is an improvement in the system, they're more than happy to help out," Tesmond said. "It takes a continuous effort to improve the system."

About two years ago Haigwood also implemented another system: he set aside the fourth week of every month for special courts — things like worthless check cases, child support cases, juvenile cases, cruelty to animal cases, shoplifting cases and misdemeanor assaults.

In the fourth week of the month, probation and child support cases are set for Mondays; alcohol violations, cruelty to animal cases and Employment Security Commission cases are set for Tuesdays; shoplifting and misdemeanor larceny cases are set for Wednesdays; threats and misdemeanor assaults are set for Thursdays and worthless check cases are set for Fridays.

These are all in addition to Juvenile Court, held every Tuesday; probable cause hearings, held every Friday, and traffic violations that are set for regular District Court every week.

"One purpose is to help the court identify the habitual offenders," Haigwood said of devoting an entire day of court to one type of case, such as worthless check cases. "And also to dramatize to the judge the problems that we have in the community with worthless checks ... and also not to inconvenience people involved in other kinds of cases."

Report Says One-Fourth In Poverty Funds Asked For Elderly Services

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — One of every four elderly North Carolinians lives in poverty, says a report that calls for wide-ranging improvements of state services for older people.

The report shows that proposals crafted by the Martin administration and a legislative study committee fall short, said Daniel Hudgins, director of the Durham County Department of Social Services.

Both seek spending increases of around $5 million in the 1988-89 budget.

"They are a step in the right direction but we think that much more is needed if we are to address the large number of elderly in this state who we know are eligible for services and aren't receiving them," Hudgins said.

The report, unveiled at a news conference today, was compiled by the North Carolina Association of County Directors of Social Services and the Center for Aging, Research and Educational Services at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

It says in 1987, the income of one out of every four older North Carolinians was at or below the federal poverty level of $5,500 — a percentage significantly higher than the 14 percent national poverty rate for the elderly.

Between 1980 and 2000, the state's population of people age 65 and older will increase 56 percent, while the number of people over 85 will jump by 128 percent, it says.

The report makes recommendations in six areas: basic needs, health care, mental health, institutional care, protection from abuse and crime and staffing. But it speaks in generalities and avoids calling for specific amounts of money in given areas, often saying simply that "increased funding is needed."

In the area of basic needs, the report calls for basing benefit payment levels on an established family living standard, combining federal assistance programs used by the elderly into one payment, better coordination of services, more money for in-home services and housing programs and a higher personal exemption allowance for state income tax purposes.

The health care section notes that 60 percent of people age 85 and older

ECU Hits Another Enrollment Mark

Enrollment for the first session of summer school at East Carolina University is a record 5,260 students, ECU officials announced.

It marks the first time that enrollment for a summer session has exceeded 5,000, Registrar J. Gilbert Moore said. The previous high enrollment was 4,888 in 1986. Last year's first session drew 4,859 students, Moore said.

"It's exciting and we're very pleased," said Dr. Trenton G. Davis, director of summer school and associate vice chancellor for academic support. "I feel that the greater reason is that more students want to take courses toward a degree to speed up their graduation date."

Davis also said "We allocated more teaching positions this year so we could add a greater variety of courses and more sections, giving students a greater course selection. As a result we have more students coming from other institutions for credit to transfer back." ECU also has made the greater availability of summer sources known to the state's community colleges and has advertised summer school offerings in the state's newspapers for the third straight year, Davis said.

Budget Hearing Scheduled

The Greenville City Council will meet for its fourth session to review and discuss the 1988-89 city budget proposal Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. in the third floor conference room of City Hall.

Representatives from the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, Pitt County Development Commission, and the Greenville-Pitt County Tourism Bureau are scheduled to conduct a presentation to the council regarding future city marketing and promotions efforts.

The Greenville Chamber of Commerce has requested $39,000 in financial assistance from the city during the upcoming fiscal year for planned marketing endeavors.

Also scheduled to be discussed by the council are budget recommendations by City Manager Greg Knowles regarding the Recreation and Parks Department, Planning and Development Department, and the Police Department.

Knowles has proposed for the council's consideration an expansion of the 1988-89 city budget 7.8 percent over the current year — a rise from $19,656,163 to $21,693,443. In addition, Knowles has proposed to initiate a capital improvement program which would raise the proposed budget to 10.36 percent over last year. Knowles has not as yet outlined details of the program with the council.

A public hearing on the budget proposal is scheduled for June 6, while the proposed date for budget adoption is June 20.

Farm Scene

By SAM UZZELL

Many fishermen and pond owners are alarmed at this time of year by the uncontrolled and often rampant growth of aquatic weeds in ponds and bodies of water. The growth of various species of algae and other plants will often mean that the pond will be rendered unfit for many of the uses for which it was originally intended. To make matters worse, a heavy growth of algae at the surface of the pond will shade out and kill the algae below. As the plant material begins to decompose, the oxygen dissolved in the water will be used up and a fish kill may result.

Filamentous algae is probably the most common weed of aquatic situations. Anyone who has ever pitched a lure into the water and dragged a long strand of green, slimy "gunk" up with the lure, has captured some filamentous algae. This plant is often seen each year after it becomes established, especially in ponds that have shallow edges. Also, high levels of nutrients in the water will create a situation favorable for the algal blooms.

There are other aquatic weeds that can be considered as pests. In many cases, the problem can be minimized with careful management of nutrients, proper pond construction, and early intervention with the proper chemical to lessen the weed problem. A good deal of information is needed to correct a pond weed problem.

To help provide information to pond owners, a workshop has been scheduled in room 201 of the County Office Building on June 2, beginning at 10 a.m. The meeting is sponsored by the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service and there is no charge. The program will be conducted by Sam Uzzell, Pitt County Extension Service; Dr. Stratford Kay, aquatic weed specialist, NCSU; Dr. David DeMont, Department of Natural and Economic Resources, and Kent Nelson, fisheries biologist with the N.C. Wildlife Commission. Primary emphasis will be given to aquatic weed management and pond management as well.

This will be a good opportunity to learn more about the care and maintenance of a body of water, and how to identify and control unwanted aquatic growth so that the pond can be an asset rather than a liability.

To preregister and obtain further information, call the Extension Service at 830-6361.

Fire Kills 2 In Saratoga

SARATOGA, N.C. (AP) — Foul play is not suspected in the early Sunday morning fire that claimed the lives of two Saratoga residents and destroyed their home, authorities said today.

Saratoga Fire Chief Herbie Ellis said although the cause of the fire, which killed Mary Lane, 25, and Roscoe Braswell, 30, is still under investigation, they have ruled out any criminal intent.

"We don't think foul play was involved in any way," Ellis said. "We think the fire started in the kitchen area but we are not even sure of that. We are still investigating what actually caused the fire."

The blaze was spotted at the residence, located on rural paved road 1507 just outside Saratoga's town limits, by a neighbor around 3 a.m. Sunday.

Firefighters from Saratoga and Stantonsburg were on the scene shortly after the fire call was dispatched, but Ellis said the residence was fully engulfed when they arrived.

Reagan Wants Noriega Out By Summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has sent an emissary back to Panama for more talks aimed at the removal from power of ruler Manuel Antonio Noriega, and the administration wants the issue cleared up before the Moscow summit, an official said today.

"It would be desirable to clear it up while the president's on our own soil," said Michael Armacost, undersecretary of state.

Reagan leaves Washington on Wednesday for a stopover in Helsinki, Finland, before arriving in Moscow on Sunday.

Michael G. Kozak, the State Department's deputy assistant secretary, returned to Panama after briefing Reagan and other top officials over the weekend on negotiations for Noriega's removal. Kozak had spent virtually all of May in Panama trying to work out an agreement.

Armacost said that Kozak "wasn't going down with an ultimatum" and that it was uncertain whether the negotiations would be resolved before the summit.

"Kozak is back down there and I don't expect that the president's going to want to spend his time in Moscow talking to Mr. (Mikhail S.) Gorbachev about Noriega," Armacost said. He said negotiations with the Panamanian leader were proceeding.

Kozak's latest trip comes amid uncertainty about the administration's strategy in dealing with Noriega.

Lt. Gen. Colin Powell, the national security adviser, said Sunday that Reagan was undecided on approval of a deal for Noriega to step down. Powell said the United States has put the plan "on the table."

The proposal calls for the United States to continue recognizing ousted President Eric Arturo Delvalle as Panama's legitimate leader rather than Noriega's handpicked choice and the current president, Manuel Solis Palma, Powell said on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, interviewed on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," also denied reports that the Reagan administration had agreed to recognize Palma as part of the deal for Noriega to step down.

"No, I don't know where you get that understanding. There's nothing to that," Shultz said.

The secretary also said the United States "has had a lot of discussions" with Noriega, "but we haven't concluded any agreement."

Powell, who attended a 2½-hour session at the White House on Saturday with Reagan, Shultz and other senior advisers, said U.S.-Panamanian negotiations are "on hold," but the administration has proposed a deal.

"It's on the table. All the elements have not yet come together, the president has not yet made a decision," Powell said.

"The president has agreed for the deal to be put on the table, but it has not gone to closure," he said.

Powell said Reagan has not yet decided on the deal because "dropping an indictment of this nature is a very serious matter."

An administration official, who requested anonymity, said Friday that U.S. and Panamanian negotiators have tentatively agreed on a deal that calls for Noriega to leave Panama for nine months starting this August and for the United States to drop drug smuggling indictments against him.

The official said the deal would give Noriega a role in setting up a transition government before leaving, and also would allow Noriega to return to Panama for holidays and to go back permanently after elections set for May 1989.

Powell said the plan, which has not changed significantly in recent weeks, calls for Noriega to step down from power as commander of the Panamanian defense forces and allow free elections in May 1989.

"Over the last several months, we have been able to put together a deal if you would, a set of negotiations, which would require General Noriega to step down from power. He would then leave the country for a period of time," Powell said.

After Noriega steps down, the United States "would continue to recognize President Delvalle and Palma would work — we would hope — with President Delvalle and other opposition leaders to form a government of national reconciliation," he said.

The national security adviser said the deal's elements "that are on the table would remove him from the political process and he would not be a candidate for election in 1989."

Hijacker Releases Hostages, Keeps Jet

MEDELLIN, Colombia (AP) — A lone hijacker seized control of a Colombian jetliner today and forced the aircraft to head for Panama after releasing about 140 passengers and crew members, officials said.

The Avianca jet took off at 9:05 a.m. on a flight to Bogota, about 200 miles to the southeast, and was hijacked shortly afterward, airport officials said. The officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the pilot decided to return to Medellin.

Civil Aeronautics officials in Bogota said the passengers and flight attendants were freed after the Boeing 727 reached Jose Maria Cordoba Airport in Medellin.

The hijacker, the pilot, the co-pilot and a flight engineer remained aboard the aircraft, an official at the control tower in Medellin said.

The officials did not say if the hijacker was armed. He demanded to go to Panama, officials said, but his motive was not disclosed.

Inmates Flee Jail

WINTON, N.C. (AP) — Police are seeking two men who broke out of the Hertford County Jail today after they threw rubbing alcohol in a jailer's eyes and overpowered him, authorities said.

Dispatcher J. Stevens said the two escaped about 2 a.m. today and last were seen fleeing in a customized 1982 silver van with red trim.

The men being sought were identified as Alvin David Moore and James Arthur Jackson, Stevens said. Moore, 30, is from Norfolk, Va., and is considered dangerous because of a history of using automatic weapons, the dispatcher added.

The only physical description of the two is that they are black males.

Officers from three northeastern North Carolina counties, the Ahoskie Police Department, the North Carolina Highway Patrol and the Virginia Beach Police Department are searching for the men.

Stevens said the two escapees were being held on felony breaking and entering and larceny charges.

NEED FOR PROFESSIONAL CLEANING

If you want to keep your teeth and gums healthy so you can escape the threats of gum disease and tooth loss, it's extremely important to keep your teeth and gums clean. Good oral hygiene at home, faithfully performed, can help achieve this goal. You will also need to have your teeth professionally cleaned and get regular dental checkups.

Some people are more prone to gum disease and tooth decay than others, and for that reason they may have to have their teeth cleaned and checked more often. Some patients need to have their teeth cleaned every three months. It all depends on your individual condition and the best one to make that decision is your dentist.

Your dentist or hygienist can also give you good tips on how to properly clean your teeth at home, between checkups. You'll be shown how to do this without damaging your gums and making them more vulnerable to disease. Healthy gums are important if your aim is to keep your teeth in your mouth, where they belong.

If you are in need of a dental check up, call our office today for an appointment.

Note:
We welcome new patients, both children and adults.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the office of Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S., P.A., Evans St., Family and General Dentistry.

Public Value

Opposition To Refuge Short-Sighted

The Martin and Pitt County commissioners are taking a short-sighted view of a proposal to establish a Roanoke River Wildlife Refuge.

By opposing the refuge basing this objection on economic considerations, the boards have failed to focus on the most important aspect of the issue — the need to preserve what remains of a threatened part of the state's natural heritage.

There are sound environmental and conservation considerations for supporting the refuge. The plan is an opportunity to preserve a vanishing ecosystem and diverse wildlife habitat. Without establishing a refuge, there is no way to assure this resource is protected.

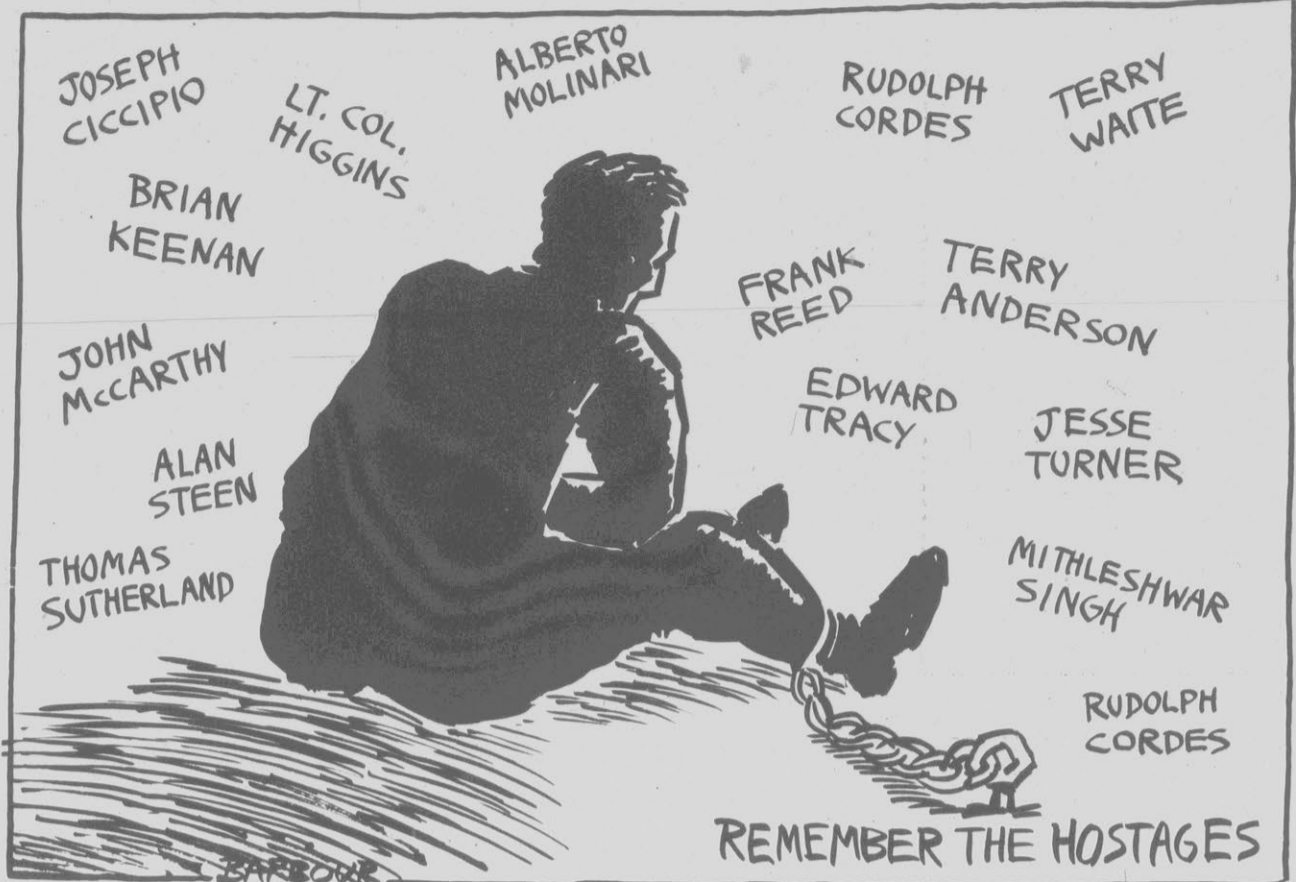

In addition, the argument that the refuge will usurp revenues from Martin County can be questioned. The land that would house the proposed refuge is not developable. Other than a one-time boom when timber is cut, it is doubtful Martin could expect significant tax funds from the tract. The figures on lost revenues in other counties containing wildlife refuges cited by the chairman of the county commissioners are not applicable to Martin's situation. The comparison is simply not an apt one.

The refuge would also guarantee the public access to the land — hiking, recreation, nature study and even hunting could be allowed. If the area remains in private hands there is little hope for this accessibility.

The proposed refuge would offer North Carolina a chance to further its involvement in the national wildlife refuge system. Adding an inland refuge will provide more diversity for the state's system of refuges — a fact critical to preserving a wide variety of wildlife and waterfowl.

Besides, the state of North Carolina already owns six tracts of property within the proposed protection area. The refuge would protect the environmentally sensitive land around this core area, strengthening the public's investment in the conservation effort.

The priority for decision-making should be the public value of a Roanoke River Wildlife preserve, a value which should be recognized by public officials.

Political Interests Demand Smooth Session

RALEIGH (AP) — In recent years, two things have been virtually certain before the start of every General Assembly session. The leadership would promise to be smooth and businesslike and adjourn in early July. And the promise would be broken.

Thus, one could be forgiven for reacting skeptically to vows that things will be different in this year's session, which convenes June 2. But lawmakers do have a powerful incentive: the 1988 election.

Democrats, who control the Legislature, would like to enact some popular measures and get out of town without a repetition of last year's House-Senate feuding that embarrassed Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, now the party's gubernatorial nominee.

"Every day you stay here, there's a potential for controversial issues to emerge and cause some of our leaders to have to take stands that they'd just as soon not," Rep. Ed Nye, D-Bladen, said.

Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, and Rep. Bob Etheridge, D-Harnett, the nominee for superintendent of public instruction, would benefit from a quiet and quick session, Nye said. So would Democratic legislators, who are up for re-election.

"I see for the first time since I've been here that we're really on the fast track," said Nye, co-chairman of a key budget subcommittee. He has been in the Legislature since 1975, except for the 1983-84 session.

There were hopeful signs last week during three days of hearings on Gov. Jim Martin's proposed $558 million supplement to the 1988-89 budget, which will be the chief item of business next month.

The Joint Appropriations Committee whisked through Martin's blueprint as presented by a parade of cabinet secretaries and other department heads, asking numerous questions but raising few controversial points that could prolong the session.

At one point, co-chairman Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, angered some Republicans by brusquely refusing to let Commerce Secretary Claude Pope recite statistics about North Carolina's good economic performance in 1987.

Watkins insisted he wasn't trying to be offensive but wanted to keep the focus on next year's budget.

"Really, we're trying to keep it businesslike," he said. Asked whether a smooth session would benefit Jordan, with whom Watkins clashed often last year, he laughed. "I think a quick, easy session ... will help every living, breathing soul."

The budget, more than any other factor, determines a session's timetable. Lawmakers cannot go home until the budget is finished. Once it is, there's a mad rush toward adjournment.

The biggest reason for the length of last year's session was the plodding pace of the budget process, which became mired in a House-Senate fight. Jordan, sensitive to media criticism of the secretive process, tried to open meetings of the "supersub" — the elite group of leaders who assemble the spending package. House leaders resisted his reforms, creating a weeks-long stalemate.

If predictions of adjournment by July 4 come true, it likely will be because Jordan, House Speaker Liston Ramsey and other key officials cut a deal on how the budget will be put together. Lawmakers said last week nothing had been decided.

They did say the Appropriations Committee would not divide into five subcommittees to study Martin's plan as it usually does — a decision that should enhance brevity.

A possible money shortage could create a snag. Some Democrats accuse Martin of packing $100 million more into his budget than revenue projections justify, a charge he denies.

If there's only enough to give state employees and teachers a 4.5 percent pay raise and fund a few capital projects, as Watkins says might be the case, the scramble will intensify.

This year, only two study panels will report — and deadlines for introducing other measures have been set.

Martin criticized a committee studying possible consolidation of state environmental agencies last month when it decided to recommend delaying action on his plan until 1989. He inserted the plan into his budget package to force a vote, but its defeat seems certain.

Religion, Politics

RALEIGH — After 8th District U.S. Rep. Bill Hefner voted for a civil rights bill this year, he came under a blistering attack from the Rev. Jerry Falwell, the conservative religious leader. Falwell said that the bill Hefner had supported could seriously undermine church freedom in America.

At a conference on religion and politics conducted by People For The American Way, Falwell's right to speak out on the civil rights bill was defended by those of conflicting political persuasions. Rep. Coy Privette, R-Cabarrus, a conservative Baptist minister, and former Charlotte Mayor Harvey Gantt, a Democrat, both defended Falwell's right to speak out. Some panelists even said it was a totally proper thing for a minister to do.

For example, the Rev. Joe Vetter, a Catholic priest from Raleigh, said that "the church has a responsibility to educate its members" and to get them talking "on what it means to be a moral person."

That isn't to say that a Hefner ally on the panel felt that Falwell's criticism was correct. Gantt said, Falwell "has a right to say whatever he wants to say, but he becomes a political commentator (when he does) and he risks losing his credibility if he is all wrong." Gantt did not hide his belief that Falwell was "all wrong" in his assessment of Hefner's vote.

Ed Williams, editor of the Charlotte Observer's editorial page, added that when a preacher "makes a moral statement in a political debate, then he deserves to (have it) examined as a political statement."

That means if Jerry Falwell calls a congressional position immoral, he must be able to support that statement with more than his own personal opinions. And, he must be able to make his case as to the secular ramifications of his position, also. In the words of Williams, "There is a good Democratic check on these people." Ministers can say whatever they please about a political issue, but if their arguments are without political merit, then they'll find that few Americans believe what they say.

People For The American Way was organized to fight what it perceived to be religious intolerance in some political circles. John Buchanan, the former Republican congressman from Alabama who heads the group, said that religion has a role in politics. But, when mixing religion with politics, he said, people should take certain precautions.

The most important precaution is to avoid appeals to intolerance. The rights of all to celebrate their own religion must be respected, he said.

Secondly, moral appeals should be made in universal language. Religious people should appeal across religious lines to those of other religions, too. There are common threads to all religions and messages should be tailored to those threads.

Third, Buchanan said, a candidate or group should not try to force its interpretation of the Bible (or any religious document) upon others.

Finally, Buchanan said that the personal faith or morality of political opponents should not be judged on the basis of their political positions. Biblical scoreboards are not constructive, he said.

There is certainly a place for religion in politics, the panelists said, but it is a place for all religions, not just one in particular.

Strength For Today

Many questions are asked about prayer. Why do we ask God for something when he already knows what's going to happen? Why pray when God's mind isn't going to be changed? Insight is often gained when such questions are translated into relationships we understand. Prayer is simply a form of communication between two beings who seek to become more intimate with each other. When we are depressed or angry, God already knows the the reasons better than we. We discuss our feelings with him for the same reason we do so with a loved one — to help gain self-understanding and comfort, and because honest sharing of our burdens builds intimacy. Prayer appropriately follows the same rules of communication which apply to any healthy relationship. It demands honesty, openness, frequency and an environment of love.

Stakes High For Syria And Iran

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Syria cannot afford to lose its war against Iran in Lebanon. At stake is an accord being mediated by the United States between Syrian and Lebanese leaders for the re-establishment of a Lebanese central government exercising full control in a unified, sovereign state.

The accord could enable orderly elections this summer for a new Lebanese president to succeed Amin Gemayel, who is not running for a second six-year term. A U.S. State Department spokeswoman said on May 13 that the United States was encouraged by negotiations for a power-sharing agreement to give more political influence to Lebanon's Moslem majority. Iran, through its local ally, Hezbollah (the "Party of God"), could both subvert the accord and block the election of Syria's chosen presidential candidate, thus undermining Syria's position as power broker in Lebanon.

Although Hezbollah has fared better in the latest round of fighting in Beirut's southern slum suburbs than Syria's client Amal, Iran cannot win the war. Damascus has the advantage of dominating Lebanon from next door; Tehran is 1,000 miles away. Amal was victorious in the first round of hostilities in the south, lasting from mid-February to mid-April. A Hezbollah affiliate supplied the pretext for this assault on Feb. 17, when it kidnapped U.S. Marine Lt. Col. William R. Higgins, who was serving as chief of the U.N. Truce Supervisory Organization on the Lebanon-Israel border.

During a series of battles, Amal dislodged Hezbollah from its main territorial base at Nabatiyeh and systematically expelled pro-Iranian militants from positions they held in the south. The Israelis cleared out the last of the Hezbollah fighters from the south on May 4 during an attack on Maydoun.

Although Hezbollah seized 80 percent of the Beirut suburbs, known locally as the "dahi," Syria secured the military and political advantage. Amal's assault concentrated the forces of Hezbollah and units of Iran's Revolutionary Guards in one place, enabling the Syrian army to encircle and contain them. Amal's continuous attacks constitute a war of attrition against Hezbollah, which has been reduced, through casualties and desertions, from an estimated 5,000 to 2,500-3,000 men.

Amal has also suffered from desertions. Some of its fighters have handed over their positions to Hezbollah, some have sold their arms, others have changed sides. Amal's leader, Nabih Berri, dismissed his militia chiefs on Thursday, but it is doubtful that will result in improved Amal performance. Syria has no illusions about its client: Amal's three-year siege of three Palestinian camps in this same area ended in failure last February. Syria simply expects Amal to engage Hezbollah in a running fight, and Amal requires only a few reasonable fighters to manage this.

The hostilities have cleared the area of 60 percent to 70 percent of the potential victims of an all-out Syrian assault. The 150,000-120,000 who remain are either Hezbollah supporters or poor people dependent on Iranian charity — reportedly $380 million last year, another $10 million in arms and aid pouring in during the first 10 days of the current fighting. The flight by residents of the dahi must seem like rank ingratitude to Tehran. Most of these refugees blame Hezbollah's presence for their current misfortune. The conflict has apparently turned the majority of the Lebanese Shias against Hezbollah.

Hezbollah's spiritual leader, Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, angrily charged the Syrian army with trying to "intimidate" Hezbollah by massing 7,000 troops backed by 100 T-54 battle tanks and artillery. Indeed, the Syrians brought in the intimidating Brig. Gen. Ali Deeb precisely for that purpose. In February, 1982, Deeb surrounded the central Syrian town of Hama with his army and wiped out Muslim rebels dug in there, destroying whole quarters in the process. Then in October 1985, Deeb assaulted another set of Muslim opponents in the northern Lebanese city of Tripoli and imposed Syrian army rule there. Syria's tactic of intimidation has clearly demonstrated to Tehran its limitations — geopolitical and military — in Lebanon.

Iran is nevertheless determined to preserve what it can of its political position. Syria cannot allow this because Iran's objectives are the establishment of a secessionist Shia "Islamic republic," radicalization of the Shias and confrontation with Israel along the frontier. Furthermore, Iran has a potential collaborator in the extremist Maronite Christian Lebanese Front in East Beirut, which seeks to establish a separatist state in the Maronite heartland. Syria's aims are Lebanese unity, rapprochement between the religious communities and quiet on the southern border.

The proselytizing clerics in Tehran must preserve Hezbollah because its adherents are the only "Islamic revolutionaries" the clerics have managed to convert en masse in their drive to export the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's religious ideology. For the Khomeinists, refusal to embrace the "revolution" among the Shias of Iraq, Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf is tantamount to apostasy, a rejection of the Imam Khomeini who is "God's spokesman on earth."

The dahi is Hezbollah's remaining redoubt in Lebanon. A large proportion of Iranian money spent in the suburbs has gone into military infrastructure — bunkers, underground command centers, hospitals, shelters. This provides a secure place for Hezbollah and its factions to hold the 22 Western hostages who have proved to be such valuable bargaining counters for Iran.

Damascus must balance its determination to curb Hezbollah against a need to maintain "strategic alliance" with Tehran. If Syrian actions were to produce a diplomatic break, the militant mullahs could still destabilize Lebanon through remaining agents, however dispersed. Conquest of the dahi could open a Pandora's box and could cost Syria the peace. But Tehran has its own balancing act. The regime wants to preserve both Hezbollah and its links with Damascus, all the more valuable because of the military and diplomatic reverses Iran has suffered since the beginning of the year.

Legislator Once Opposed Waste Plan But Now Backs Park For Edgecombe

By ERICA JOHNSTON
Associated Press Writer

CRISP, N.C. (AP) — Joe Mavretic lives in a house he refashioned from two 130-year-old tenant-farmer houses. The stove in his kitchen comes from an old restaurant. The marble slabs in his counter top had a former life in the men's bathroom of a Winston-Salem bank.

So why is this man who never seems to throw anything away trying to persuade his county to accept other people's waste?

Mavretic, a state legislator and former Marine pilot, spends much of his time on his chemical-free farm in the tiny community of Crisp, yet he says a "waste-management park" is the only way Edgecombe County can raise money to lift itself out of economic doldrums.

"Across the state, people are running away from it as fast as they can," he said. "But I think we have to stand up and say, 'OK, we'll take it, given the appropriate package of benefits.'"

That might sound a bit odd coming from a man who introduced bills in three sessions of the General Assembly to get North Carolina out of the Southeast Compact, a group of eight states that has agreed to pool its low-level radioactive wastes.

But appearances can be deceiving. When seen from the road, Mavretic's house looks modest, little different from the farmhouses that dot the Edgecombe County flatlands. But inside, rooms have been carefully designed according to principles of solar energy.

Likewise, the fields of wheat and corn outside look ordinary, until Mavretic explains the farm is chemical-free. The hoses he uses for drip irrigation come from old automobile tires. He's going to buy sheep next fall to take care of his fertilizing needs.

The Southeast Compact is the same group that in 1987 chose North Carolina to play host to the waste-treatment site for 20 years, starting in 1993. Mavretic wanted to get out of the group, but his effort failed in the General Assembly.

"We got our fanny kicked, three different years," Mavretic said with a smile. "But we fought the good fight."

After the attempt to get out of the compact failed, Mavretic complained that such waste facilities — widely recognized as unsafe — often are placed in rural areas. He fought for a bill that would require the low-level radioactive waste site to be placed in Wake, Mecklenburg or Brunswick county.

Those counties, he argued, were home to the state's nuclear power plants. After the counties reap the benefits of power plant tax dollars, Mavretic said, they should also take on the waste generated by the facilities.

Meanwhile, Mavretic said, he had been tossing around the possibility of putting the low-level radioactive waste site in his home county for at least three years.

He said he led the fight to get North Carolina out of the Southeast Compact because he didn't want to deal with other states' waste. But he had known since 1983 that North Carolina would have to figure out some way to handle its own hazardous and low-level radioactive wastes.

Even as he battled the compact in the General Assembly last year, Mavretic suggested the possibility of playing host to a "waste-management park" to Edgecombe County commissioners. Even if North Carolina withdrew from the compact, he said, it would need a place to put its own waste.

"The issue for me was always sovereignty," Mavretic said. "Total control. ... Even today, I'm more comfortable with the state of North Carolina having total control over all the radioactive waste that goes into the facility than I am with a compact."

In 1983, when he said he knew that North Carolina would end up with a hazardous and low-level radioactive waste facility, he started asking people whether the waste can be handled safely.

"The answers kept coming up, 'Yes, yes, yes,'" he said. "At this point, I'm thinking, Edgecombe County is a poor county. I was watching the agricultural trends, and the prices were dropping. ... I saw stores close that had been in downtown Tarboro for more than a century. I'm getting a feeling ..."

"This is the question," Mavretic said. "Can the county farm its way out of its problems? We made the decision 100 years ago to stay agricultural. But that decision is no longer apropos."

"The people in this county know what needs to be done," he said. There just isn't the money to do it.

"The answer is, you've got to carve yourself a niche," Mavretic said. "Be a specialist in something. For us, we could become North Carolina's specialist in waste management. There's an industry that's going to be around a long time."

Switching Station Failure Knocks Out Phone Service

By MEG REYNOLDS
Associated Press Writer

A mysterious power surge or sudden short-circuit at a Southern Bell switching station in Charlotte and the failure of workers to notice an alarm light knocked out phone service for up to 400,000 North Carolinians, officials say.

Southern Bell spokesman Ladd Baucum said Sunday that a battery-powered system took over after the power failure. But when no one noticed the alarm, the batteries ran down and service was disrupted.

"We missed it," he said. "Ideally, if we had caught the alarms when we should have, it would have been fixed."

Baucum said from now on, extra workers would be posted at the switching station's alarm area to monitor it seven days a week, 24 hours a day. Officials did not yet know the source of the power surge, he said.

Saturday's nine-hour scattered telephone failures affected customers from Boone in the western mountains to just west of Rockingham, about 180 miles away, frustrating callers and wreaking havoc with airline and retail computer systems dependent on touch-tone data transmission.

Calls to 911 were silenced as well, leading police in Charlotte, the state's largest city, to post officers at fire departments and major intersections here where they could be seen by people who might need help.

Most officers worked double shifts Saturday, said Chip Bailey, spokesman for the Mecklenburg County Police Department, which includes Charlotte.

"We don't have any horror stories to come out of it so far," Bailey said by telephone Sunday after service had been restored.

The police spokesman said to his knowledge, there had been no reports of crimes, fires or accidents going unanswered by authorities because of the telephone troubles.

"In fact, not too long after 911 came back, we got (a report of) an armed robbery in progress and were able to stop it," Bailey said.

Other phone customers were not so lucky.

"It's going to affect us massively," said Carol Mane, training manager at Ivey's department store in Gastonia.

"We're requiring credit approval on all credit purchases and we're really going to have a problem closing tonight because we can't transfer out data," she said Saturday evening.

Martha Eddins, a spokeswoman for Wachovia Bank in Winston-Salem, said automated teller machines in the affected areas could not operate without long-distance phone lines to connect computer data bases.

The situation also caused confusion at Charlotte-Douglas International Airport, where arriving passengers found they could not call relatives or friends or even a taxicab to pick them up, said J.F. Terrell of the airport's security force.

Terrell said airline reservation clerks were forced to hand-process tickets normally printed and filed by computer.

Telephone communication problems also caused short delays on several Piedmont Airlines flights leaving the airport Saturday night, said a Piedmont agent who asked not to be identified. Piedmont has a hub at the Charlotte airport.

Senators Get Own Hideaways

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Sen. Jesse Helms and Sen. Ted Kennedy may have little in common on the floor of the Senate, both have had access to the same hideaway office in the Capitol.

Helms is the most recent occupant of the office, where he can sometimes be seen bagging out as many as 100 letters a week on a manual typewriter.

Few people know about the senators' hideaway offices tucked away in the Capitol, a block away from their public offices.

The Capitol sanctuaries are where the senators with enough seniority to get one retreat to read, relax and reflect.

Barbara Lukens, Helms' press secretary, wouldn't guess how much of Helms' day is spent in his retreat because his staff often doesn't know he's there.

The person on Capitol Hill who perhaps knows most about the hideaways is Bill Cochrane, a North Carolina native who is senior adviser to the Senate Rules Committee. The rules committee decides which ranking senators get what hideaways.

"We don't make any secret of who has a hideaway office, but we don't announce where they are," Cochrane said.

But to list the locations, he said, "would defeat the whole purpose of the offices."

Martin, Assembly Again At Odds Over Tax Income

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin and General Assembly economists are once more at odds over how much tax money will be generated, and the $100 million gap could put a significant dent in the Republican governor's budget proposal.

Martin expects strong increases in tax collections to help pay for an additional $558.7 million on new projects as well as some potential tax cuts. But legislative economists say the Office of Budget and Management overestimated tax income by at least $100 million.

"It's not a matter of whether we're going to have a shortfall; it's a matter of how much," Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan told the Greensboro News & Record.

Martin, however, says the dispute is just partisan rhetoric from the Democratic-controlled Legislature. And his budget analysts are sticking to their guns. "I still feel the dollars will be there," said Mike Kiltie, an economist with the Office of Budget and Management.

In the balance hangs the fate of proposed tax breaks for business, pay raises for teachers and state employees, preschool for academically at-risk 4-year-olds, programs for the elderly and a variety of other spending items that would touch just about everyone in the state.

The budget watch is even closer this year because there's an election coming, with Martin facing Jordan in the gubernatorial race.

Martin's budget office says state general tax collections will increase $532.1 million this year and have given legislators a 71-page booklet saying how the money should be spent.

But legislative budget analysts say that picture is overly optimistic because it misreads a one-time boost in income taxes due to the recent federal income tax changes.

In April 1987, income tax payments soared as never before. The state took in 60 percent more in income taxes than the same month a year earlier — from $244.9 million in April 1986 to $391.9 million in April 1987. Through this decade, the largest previous increase for the month of April was 22 percent.

At the time, government forecasters issued concerns over just how much of the increase represented a taxpayer adjustment to new federal income tax laws and how much was related to real increases in income, which account for the year-to-year growth in income tax collection.

To meet the total amount to be raised through individual income taxes used in Martin's budget plan, $680 million — a quarter of the nearly $2.76 billion expected to be raised for the fiscal year — needs to come in during April, May and June.

In 1985 and 1986, those three months accounted for 23 percent and 24 percent of the total collected. Only last year — again, a year when individual income tax collections were extraordinarily high during April — did collections during the last three months of the fiscal year exceed 25 percent of the annual total.

This year, preliminary April figures show a return to normal — collections of $293.9 million.

Hal Hovey, editor of State Budget and Tax News, a biweekly newsletter, says the April 1987 quirk has made tax revenue forecasting difficult all over the nation.

Mountain Area Remains Dry

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — While drought hasn't been a big statewide problem so far in 1988, officials say western North Carolina is suffering from its third-straight year of dry conditions with little hope of recovery in sight.

It may take a year to two years of normal or above-normal rainfall to fully recover from the droughts of 1986 and 1987, when more than half of North Carolina was designated a disaster area. Yet long-term predictions by the National Weather Service suggest the west will continue to be drier than normal through mid-June, while the rest of the state has a 50-50 chance of normal rain, said forecaster Philip Duncan.

"Hopefully, we can at least have a normal scattering of precipitation throughout the growing season," said Grant Goadge, a climatologist with the National Climatic Data Center in Asheville.

BANKRUPTCY — A Ten Year Mistake
Bankruptcy does NOT wipe your Credit Slate clean and give you a "Fresh Start".

Bankruptcy stays on your credit report for 10 Years.

You'll have trouble getting credit. Creditors seldom grant credit to someone who has filed a Wage Earner Plan Chapter 13 or Chapter 7.

You'll have problems getting ANY type of consumer loan — car, home, credit cards, education, personal needs, etc. If you doubt this — contact a creditor.

Ten years of bad news, if you don't think so, ask those who have filed bankruptcy. Don't rely only on the advice of those who will make money off your bankruptcy and encourage you to go bankrupt.

There are options to bankruptcy: If you are having financial problems, contact your creditors first — remember, they want to see you solve your financial problems just as much as you do.

So before you make a Bankruptcy decision, THINK, consider the options and don't lock yourself into BANKRUPTCY — A Ten Year Mistake.

Gorbachev: Missile Pact Possible By '89

By ANDREW KATELL
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev said a U.S.-Soviet treaty reducing long-range nuclear weapons could be signed by January but that he will not set aside disputes over the "Star Wars" program to reach such an accord.

The Soviet leader also said his policy of "glasnost," or openness, includes freedom of speech, but he condemned a leading dissident as a "parasite" and accused him of "sponging on the democratic process."

Gorbachev's comments came in a pre-summit interview with two American news organizations. The Soviet news agency Tass on Sunday ran a partial transcript of the interview with The Washington Post and Newsweek.

Radio Moscow's English-language foreign service also carried a report about it as its lead item on Sunday. Soviet television's widely watched evening news program "Vremya" mentioned as its lead item that the interview had been published in Washington and would appear in today's Soviet newspapers.

The 90-minute discussion, in which Gorbachev also proposed a joint U.S.-Soviet trip to Mars, covered a wide range of foreign and domestic issues.

The interview, conducted in the Kremlin on Wednesday, produced a startling Biblical reference by the head of the officially atheistic state.

When asked about how far glasnost should go and about criticism of dictator Josef V. Stalin, the 57-year-old Communist Party leader said:

"Jesus Christ alone knew answers to all questions and knew how to feed 20,000 Jews with five loaves of bread. We don't possess that skill, we have no ready prescription to solve all our problems quickly."

The interview was conducted 11 days before President Reagan's arrival in Moscow for a five-day summit with Gorbachev. It will be their fourth meeting.

Although the Tass transcript included much of the interview, it deleted a reference to Yegor Ligachev, the Kremlin's No. 2 man.

It also left out a reference to Gorbachev's wife, Raisa.

Ligachev, considered more conservative than the Soviet leader, reportedly wants to slow Gorbachev's policy of "perestroika," or restructuring, of the Soviet economy and society.

Gorbachev acknowledged a lively debate between the two but said "to present these discussions — which are a normal part of the democratic process — as division within the leadership would be a great mistake itself."

Gorbachev expressed optimism that a superpower agreement to cut strategic, or long-range, nuclear weapons will be completed by the time Reagan leaves office in January. "We want to have that signed," he said.

If the agreement "comes to be drafted under the present U.S. administration, I see no reason why President Reagan and I should not sign it. I would certainly welcome that," Gorbachev added.

However, he cautioned that he has no plans to set aside disputes to hasten an agreement. "If we sign with one hand a treaty reducing strategic offensive forces in one area and at the same time launch an arms race in space or at sea, what would be the point? That would be senseless," he said.

He reiterated his opposition to Reagan's "Star Wars" missile defense program, known as the Strategic Defense Initiative, saying the leader who promotes an escalation of the arms race in space "is committing a crime against the people — his own people, and others."

U.S. and Soviet officials have said they don't believe the long-range nuclear weapons treaty will be completed by the end of Reagan's term.

Another treaty to ban short- and medium-range nuclear weapons is being debated by the U.S. Senate.

Gorbachev said he will ask Reagan at the summit to approve a joint Soviet-U.S. unmanned flight to Mars. "Why shouldn't we work together? We have great experience, you have great experience — let us cooperate to master the cosmos, to fulfill big programs," he said.

Communists Adopt Plan To Implement Reforms

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist Party Central Committee today adopted a new platform for implementing Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's economic and social reforms, the No. 2 Kremlin official announced.

Yegor K. Ligachev told a foreign policy meeting the Central Committee had chosen Gorbachev, the party general secretary, to present the blueprint to an important party conference next month.

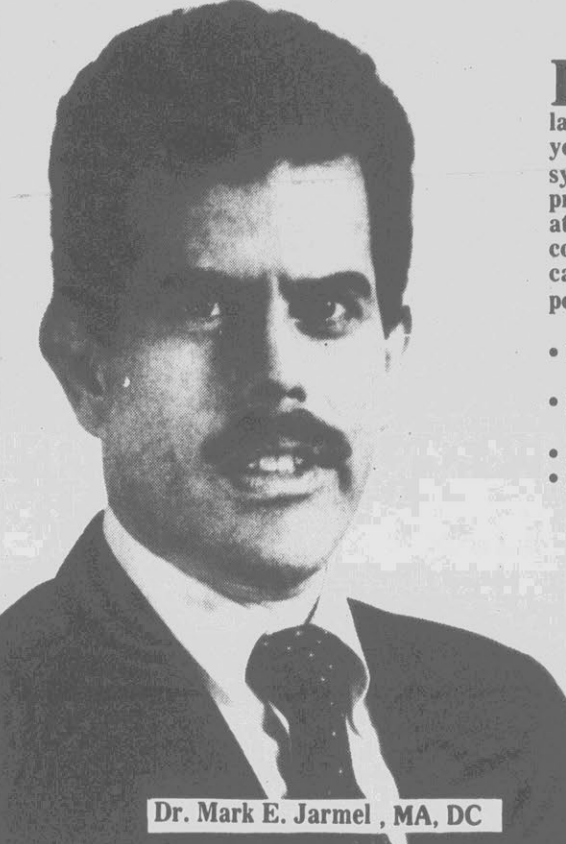

counterpart in the other Supreme Soviet chamber, the Soviet of Nationalities. The commissions are considering whether to recommend ratification of the U.S.-Soviet treaty to eliminate medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles.

Plenary meetings of the Central Committee often take place the day before the Supreme Soviet, the nation's nominal parliament, holds its semiannual meetings. The 1,500-member legislature begins a meeting Tuesday that may include ratification of the intermediate-range nuclear missile treaty signed by President Reagan and Gorbachev at the December summit in Washington.

The plenum took place six days before Reagan is scheduled to arrive in Moscow for his fourth meeting with Gorbachev.

"We have every reason to say that today's plenum has worked out a platform for the party to use in forging ahead to the all-union party conference," Ligachev said after the 2½ hour meeting of the Central Committee, the party's 300-plus member policy-making body.

Ligachev said the Central Committee had a "very interesting and lively debate," and then adopted the theses for the June 23 party conference. These, he said, "thoroughly analyze" developments since an April 1985 party plenum laid the theoretical basis for the 57-year-old Gorbachev's reforms.

The platform also makes "a number of important suggestions and proposals relative to the implementation of perestroika, glasnost, democratization and the implementation of a healthy political atmosphere," Ligachev said.

The announcement of the plenum results by Ligachev could be one more sign that the 67-year-old ideology chief is not in serious political trouble.

Reports of a major policy dispute between Gorbachev and Ligachev surfaced in Moscow last month. The reports suggested Ligachev had endorsed publication in March of an article in the newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya that questioned whether Gorbachev's reforms had gone too far. Ligachev has given speeches reflecting a more conservative approach than Gorbachev.

Ligachev is chairman of the Commission on Foreign Affairs of the Soviet of the Union, one of the two chambers of the Supreme Soviet, the nominal parliament. He reported on the plenum at the opening of a joint meeting of that commission and its SWAGGART RETURNS — Defrocked television evangelist Jimmy Swaggart and his wife Frances wave to the photographers gathered at his church in Baton Rouge on Sunday. Swaggart returned to the pulpit Sunday.

Swaggart Returns To His Pulpit In Bid To Save Sagging Ministry

By PETER H. KING
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

BATON ROUGE, La. — Jimmy Swaggart, defrocked but defiant, returned to the pulpit Sunday and sought to save his troubled ministry by unleashing the talent that once had made him and his operation the envy of television evangelism.

For more than two hours, the golden-haired preacher in the sharp black suit wept, shouted scripture, spoke in tongues, sang, danced, embraced cripples, grovelled on his knees, played piano, wept, hugged his weeping wife and told in whispers of dark, prophetic dreams and desperate, late-night conversations with the Lord.

He also asked for money more than once, but on this, his triumphal return from three months of penitence, Swaggart seemed less concerned with raising revenue than removing the paralysis that has clutched his $150 million-a-year ministry since his February confession to "moral failures."

Those among the crowd of 5,000 who came to the 7,500-seat Family Worship Center anticipating Swaggart would provide, as promised, the particulars of his fall were left unfulfilled. The preacher displayed a mastery of euphemism, referring obliquely to his "trying time" and his "burden" and "Satan" and "this leviathan." But he never specifically confirmed or elaborated upon reports that he has long struggled with a fascination for pornography and rendezvous regularly with at least one prostitute in seedy motels outside New Orleans. And he made it clear he probably never would.

"Guilt is not of God," Swaggart said at the close of the morning service, peering straight into one of three cameras that tracked his movements. "When Jesus took the sin away, he took the guilt away as well. ... I lay the guilt at the foot of the cross. I will never again look at it. I will never again pick it up. I will never again look back."

This was his unrelenting theme. The past was past. There would be no more awkward apologies or explanations.

He quoted Old Testament scripture, an epistle from St. Paul and lyrics from traditional Gospel songs to justify his decision to put his past behind him.

"I want to serve notice to the whole world: What's past is past. ... I want to serve notice on demons and devils in hell: The best is yet to come," he said.

Despite Swaggart's reluctance to divulge any details from the dark side, the 10 a.m. service did provide plenty of spectacle and, according to the church's attorney, enough good footage to fill two Sundays of television airtime.

For instance, even before Swaggart was summoned by a thunderous drumroll from behind a huge gray stage curtain, an odd scene was played out in the front row of the balcony. Geraldo Rivera, here in an attempt to land Swaggart as a guest on his television talk show, was surrounded by a knot of autograph seekers, one of whom requested and received the television journalist's signature on the back of his Bible.

And, almost three hours later, after the sermon was finished and Swaggart was accepting personal congratulations from church members gathered on the octagonal altar, a private detective sidled up, embraced the preacher, whispered a few kindnesses in his ear and then served him with a subpoena. It appeared that Swaggart refused to take the document in hand, and the detective stuffed it in the preacher's suitcoat.

The private investigator was Reed Bailey. He represents Marvin Gorman, a defrocked television preacher who is pressing a $90 million defamation suit against Swaggart. Gorman claims Swaggart and other preachers conspired to ruin his ministry by accusing him of adultery.

It was Gorman who early this year sent leaders of the Assembly of God denomination photographs alleged to show Swaggart leaving a motel room with a known prostitute. After reports of the photographs surfaced, Swaggart confessed in late February to unspecified sins and stepped away from preaching. A prostitute came forward and said that Swaggart hired her to pose nude, poses which she has repeated — for a fee — for Penthouse magazine.

Swaggart's scandal led to a dispute over terms of his punishment. The national elders of Assemblies of God wanted Swaggart to accept the same two-year suspension he himself had advocated for other fallen preachers, including Jim Bakker, of whom Swaggart was an outspoken critic. Swaggart refused, saying he would accept only a three-month exile, and subsequently he was defrocked by the Assemblies of God.

Ministry attorney William Treeby said that Swaggart was able to resume preaching under the auspices of the Jimmy Swaggart Bible College here, which has authority to credential independent ministers.

Nonetheless, his defrocking has prompted at least three of the ministry's 12 board members to resign, and several members of the Bible College faculty also have departed. Three cable networks have canceled Swaggart's shows. Attendance at the Family Worship Center's twice-weekly services has been paltry over the last three months, and in his absence Swaggart's wife and son have gone on the air regularly to plead for emergency donations to keep the ministry afloat.

New FmHA Loan Policies Could Force Out 64,800

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — New regulations to reshape the Farmers Home Administration's loan policies will cost $8.7 billion and push as many as 64,800 farmers into liquidation or foreclosure, the agency says.

The FmHA, an agency of the Agriculture Department, is scheduled to open the proposed changes to public comment this week. A summary of the agency's proposal was made available to The Associated Press.

Cheryl Cook, a lobbyist and lawyer for the National Farmers Union, said she had not had an opportunity to study the FmHA's proposal in detail but indicated that the figures cited by the agency appeared to be in line with estimates.

"If they had used the authority that they had gotten in the 1985 farm (law) to restructure this debt, we wouldn't be in a situation now where it was too late for 64,800 people," she said.

The FmHA is often called the government's farm lender of last resort because loans are made only to those who cannot qualify at banks or other commercial sources. Overall, the agency's farm loan portfolio totals around $26 billion to 250,000 borrowers.

With loan delinquencies rising, FmHA was directed by Congress in last year's Agricultural Credit Act to rewrite many of its regulations so that borrowers would be given a greater opportunity to restructure or spread out payments and still hold onto their land.

In many cases, debts far beyond the ability of farmers to repay would be "written down" to manageable levels or forgiven entirely. Many other regulatory changes also were ordered by the new law.

Basically, the write-down would reduce a farmer's FmHA debt to the level of his assets, depending upon his ability to operate with enough cash flow thereafter to repay the new loan balance.

The proposed regulations are scheduled for publication this week in the Federal Register, the government's official rulemaking document, and will be open for public comment for 30 days.

In its summary, the FmHA said about 118,000 borrowers "were delinquent or in some other default status in early 1988." Those included 16,000 borrowers who have been "accelerated" by the agency, a process that leads to forced liquidation or foreclosure for hopeless cases.

But the agency estimated that about 37,000 of the 118,000 delinquents "will be able to resolve repayment problems through normal servicing procedures" such as the rescheduling of loan installments and other alternatives.

"The remaining 81,000 borrowers would be eligible for consideration of restructuring with write-down of debt," the report said.

Costs of writing down FmHA debt for the estimated 16,200 qualified borrowers were estimated at a net of $2.1 billion.

Revenge Cited As Motive In Shooting Of U.S. Judge

PELHAM, N.Y. (AP) — A retired policeman who assassinated a federal judge and then committed suicide was seeking revenge because the jurist last week dismissed a $2.5 million lawsuit filed by the man's daughter, authorities say.

Charles L. Koster, 67, left a suicide note at his Bath, Pa., mobile home saying he was acting alone after he was notified of U.S. District Judge Richard J. Daronco's decision in the sexual harassment case, said the FBI's James C. Esposito.

"The Koster family was totally consumed with this case and it had become a crusade in their lives," Esposito said Sunday.

Koster's wife said her husband killed the judge "out of love" for his daughter, Carolee.

On Saturday, Daronco was gardening when Koster burst through a hedge and opened fire with a .38-caliber revolver, striking the judge several times, Esposito said.

It was only the second time this century a federal judge was assassinated. On May 29, 1979, Judge John Wood was shot by a sniper outside his San Antonio, Texas, home.

Daronco staggered toward the kitchen door 8 to 10 feet away.

"I need help! I need help!" he shouted, according to a neighbor who heard but did not see the attack. The New York Times reported today.

The 56-year-old judge ran into his study, closed the door and barricaded himself as the gunman followed, Esposito said. Daronco collapsed and died in the study.

"When he was satisfied the judge was dead, he turned the gun on himself," said Esposito, adding that Koster was found in the foyer a few feet away with the revolver in his hand.

Esposito said Koster's 38-year-old daughter filed the lawsuit in 1981 against Chase Manhattan Bank and her boss, Allan Ross.

She rejected a large settlement offered by the bank before the trial began March 23, the Times reported.

Candlelight Vows Performed Saturday

Gina Jon Prescott of Greenville and Stephen Mark Beaman of Tarboro were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony at 7 p.m. Saturday at The Memorial Baptist Church in Greenville.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Eugene Prescott of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Reid Beaman Sr. of Tarboro.

Officiating at the double-ring ceremony was the Rev. E. T. Vinson. Nuptial music was performed by Joseph H. Godwin, organist, with William P. Frazier, trumpeter. Mark T. Brown of Ramseur sang "The Wedding Song," "Surely the Presence of the Lord is in This Place" and "Saviour, Like A Shepherd Lead Us."

cascaded from the prayer book of her great-great-grandmother.

Merri Ellen Kendrick Turner of Chapel Hill was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Martie Manson Prescott of Montpelier, Vt., sister-in-law of the bride; Marcy Denny Beaman of Wendell, sister-in-law of the bridegroom; Stephanie Ann Lanier and Nina Carmen Lanier of Jacksonville, cousins of the bride; Janet Lee Beaman of Rocky Mount, cousin of the bridegroom; Karie Lynne Seykora and Melanie Anne Taft, both of Greenville. Junior bridesmaids were Sharon Michael Beaman of Rocky Mount and Christy Lynn Carr of Kinston, cousins of the bridegroom.

The attendants were dressed identically in gowns of black and white swirl satin. The two-toned bodice featured a sweetheart neckline, shirred pouf sleeves, a basque waist and an asymmetrical black drape with a bow and streamers at the side of the waist. The gathered skirt of white satin flowed to the floor. The junior bridesmaids wore white with black taffeta floor-length gowns. The white bodice featured a bateau neckline and full pouf sleeves. The attendants carried nosegays of white sweetheart roses, white irises, baby's breath and ivy.

The bridegroom's father was the best man. Groomsmen were C. Reid Beaman Jr. of Wendell, brother of the bridegroom; Jeffrey T. Prescott of Montpelier, Vt., and Jason H. Prescott of Greenville, brothers of the bride; R. Kemp Edwards of Washington, N.C.; G. Eugene Jordan and Johnathon S. Windley, both of Plymouth, and Randall L. Newman of Aurora.

MRS. BEAMAN

The wedding was directed by Mrs. E.T. Vinson. Presiding at the guest register were Mr. and Mrs. E. Hoover Taft III of Greenville.

Following the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at a garden reception at their home. Music was provided by Jerry F. Jolley, soloist, and Stephen K. Creech, guitarist.

After a wedding trip to the coast, the couple will live in Greenville. The bride graduated from East Carolina University and the bridegroom will graduate in August from ECU.

A rehearsal dinner for the couple was given at the Beef Barn Restaurant in Greenville. The couple also were honored with several other pre-wedding showers and parties.

Langley-Smith Vows Spoken

PLYMOUTH — Allison Smith and Ricky Langley were united in marriage Sunday in the First Baptist Church. Vows were spoken before Dr. Dennis Burton during the 4 p.m. ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of John and Sue Smith of Plymouth and the granddaughter of Nolia Mae Smith of Fountain. The bridegroom is the son of Edbert and Clara Langley of Fountain and the grandson of Elizabeth Langley of Fountain.

A program of wedding music was provided by Alva Rose Brown, organist; Scott Bradshaw, pianist; the adult handbell choir of First Baptist Church; Everett Coates, guitarist and Alan Edmisten, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a formal gown of white organza featuring pouf sleeves with appliques and a sweetheart neckline. The bodice was adorned with silk venise and pearls and the skirt extended into a chapel train. The tiara headpiece she chose was made of silk venise and scattered pearls which flowed into a chapel veil. She carried an arm lay of pink tea roses, white dutch iris, white fugi mums and fuschia statice.

The bride was attended by her sister, Celia Davenport of Roper, as matron of honor. Jennifer Johnson of Richmond, Va., was the maid of honor. Her bridesmaids were Connie DeRatt of Cary, sister of the bridegroom; Donna Langley of Fountain, sister of the bridegroom;

Janet Williams of Rocky Mount, aunt of the bride; Amy Swain of Roper and Vickie Hatch of Greenville. The bride's attendants wore tea-length gowns of fuschia satin, designed with asymmetrical waistlines and bodice and accented with rosettes. The dresses also featured triple pouf sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. The arm lays they carried matched the brides and were accented with white tulle.

Edbert Langley served as his son's best man. Groomsmen were Monty DeRatt of Cary, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Donald Davenport of Roper, brother-in-law of the bride; Kenny Cherry of Virginia, Terry Ellis and Rusty Owens, both of Saratoga, and Rufus Walston of Greenville.

The mother of the bride chose a cocktail-length dress of pink shell. The mother of the bridegroom wore a powder blue tea-length dress. They wore corsages of white orchids.

Grandmothers Nolia Mae Smith and Mrs. Elizabeth Langley and Mrs. Charles Russell were remembered with corsages.

Frances Lucas of Plymouth served as mistress of the ceremonies.

After the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained with a reception in the church fellowship hall. Michelle Wyatt, cousin of the bridegroom, attended the register at the reception and Judy Nicholson attended the register for the ceremony.

MRS. LANGLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Overman, uncle and aunt of the bride, welcomed guests. The wedding cake was decorated with the top piece the bride's parents used on their wedding cake and fresh flowers. Ellen Mintz, aunt of the bride, and Phyllis Parrish, aunt of the bride, served cake. Ruby Carr, aunt of the bridegroom, and Kim Carr, cousin of the bridegroom, served punch.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Saunders said goodbyes.

The bride attends East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a 1982 graduate of ECU and is employed by the Greenville Utilities Commission in the water treatment plant. After a wedding trip to Kiawah Island and Charleston, S.C., the couple will reside in Greenville.

A number of pig-pickins, showers and other parties were given for the couple.

"The bride, escorted and given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of traditional bridal satin with a cathedral-length train. The fitted torso bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline, long tapered sleeves accented with Juliete pouf shoulders and basque torso waist. Venise lace motifs encrusted with seed pearls and iridescents applied the bodice, sleeves and outlined the neckline. The V-illusion back and skirt were appliqued in a baroque pattern with accents on each side. Cascades of beaded sposabella lace cut-out motifs extended from the waist to the hemline of the train. The bride chose a tiered waltz-length veil of illusion with a hand-rolled edge and fluted pouf flowing from a bandeau of seed pearls, silk flowers and lace petals accented with pearl crystal sprays. Her bouquet of white roses, japhette brchids, baby's breath and needlepoint ivy tied with white ribbons

Check Reaches Wrong Party

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law, who lives in another state, sends a $50 check to each of us on our birthdays — this includes our three adult children. Last January, "Mom" sent our son, Todd, a check for $16 made out to the telephone company! Todd realized that his check had gone to the telephone company by mistake, so he returned the one he received to Grandma.

After three weeks Todd heard nothing from Grandma, but my husband phoned her on another matter, and in the course of the conversation he asked if the telephone company had ever returned the $50 check she sent them by mistake. She said, "No. When I called to tell them about the error, they said they had already endorsed my check and deposited it as 'credit' for future telephone service!"

My husband didn't ask his mother if she intended to send Todd another birthday check because he assumed that she would. Well, it's been five months, and she hasn't done so. First, I'm surprised that the telephone company could endorse and deposit a check that was not made out to them. Also, I feel sorry that Todd received no birthday check from Grandma this year.

Should I let the matter drop? Or when I get my birthday check from Grandma in June, should I give it to Todd and tell Grandma what I've done? — SORRY FOR TODD

DEAR SORRY: If you want to reimburse Todd for the botched birthday check, do it quietly, with no mention to Grandma. Assuming her memory isn't impaired, she's aware of the mix-up, and if she chooses to ignore it, so be it.

DEAR ABBY: A woman recently wrote to you and signed her first name and last name, and then "Esq." As an Englishman, I must protest.

Abby, the suffix "Esquire" comes from the old French or English form of address, relative to knighthood or gentry ranking just below a knight. It is never used to identify oneself, only by others who are aware of that person's standing. Also, it is never, never used as a feminine form of address, so I find that writer guilty on two counts.

My brother still uses that archaic form when writing to me, and even though I might be considered as landed gentry in these United States, I find the term to be quaint, even affected. — JUST PLAIN DALE EVAN ROGERS, WALNUT CREEK, CALIF.

DEAR MR. ROGERS: I phoned you, asking permission to use your letter and your name. (Obviously, you said yes.)

I also wondered if you were that famous Dale who married Roy Rogers. I learned that you are definitely a male who for years has been confused with Dale Evans. Thanks for an interesting item.

DEAR ABBY: Last evening I went to my daughter's "open house" at her school. Her English teacher posted all the students' names and their grades where the visitors could see them. My daughter, fortunately, is a good student, but some of her classmates got D's and F's.

I think the students' grades should be a private matter between the student and the teacher — not something to be put on display.

The students who didn't do well were humiliated, and their parents were sorry they came. I am sure after this open house, some parents will not show up for another one. What do you think? — LONG BEACH PARENT

DEAR PARENT: An open house should be a positive experience for parents and students. Your daughter's teacher could use some lessons in diplomacy and common sense.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed. Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed in very slow trading today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials edged up 1.99 to 1,954.58 in the first half hour of trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 6 to 5 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 400 up, 470 down and 452 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 11.36 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Arkansas Best rose 3/8 to 24 3/4. A group composed of two partnerships said it was willing to sweeten its offer to acquire the company.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped .17 to 143.13. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .04 to 291.80.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 6.13 to 1,952.59, bringing its loss for the week to 37.95.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 3 to 2 in nationwide trading of NYSE-listed stocks, with 841 issues up, 605 down and 514 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 120.6 million shares, against 165.16 million in the previous session.

Asylum

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two Peruvian policemen, who spent weeks hiding in the Swedish Embassy in Lima have arrived in Sweden, a news agency said.
 The two policemen intend to apply for political asylum on Tuesday, the national news agency TT reported on Sunday.
 The report said the unidentified policemen, who arrived Saturday night, had been activists trying to form a national Peruvian police union.
 One of them was arrested in June 1987 following a police strike. He escaped and arrived at the Swedish Embassy in March along with the other activist who had been living underground. The men spent some time in the embassy and then went in hiding outside, until they left for Sweden, TT said.

Bridge Walk

SANDY POINT, Md. (AP) — A record 65,000 people walked across the 4.3 mile eastbound span of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge.
 Strollers were met Sunday on the west side by Gov. William Donald Schaefer, who kicked off his One Million Marylanders bay clean-up campaign, an attempt to get residents to practice water conservation and change household disposal habits.
 The Bay Bridge Walk, which began at 9 a.m. and was completed by 5:30 p.m., drew 15,000 more people this year than last year's record, in part because Sunday was one of the first warm weekend days in what has been a rainy, cool spring.

Atkinson

Mr. Benjamin Atkinson of the Falkland community died today at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Arrangements will be announced by Flanagan Funeral Home.

Green

KINSTON — William Leland Green Jr., 68, of 1301 West Rd., died Saturday.

A graveside service will be held today at 11 a.m. at Westview Cemetery in Kinston by The Rev. Dick Whitley.

He was a retired shipping department supervisor with Dainty Maid Bakery and a member of the Emmanuel Baptist Church.

Surviving are his wife, Margarette Mann Green of the home; a daughter, Lorraine Green Shinn of Greenville; a stepdaughter, Margaret Lilly of Kinston; his mother, Thomps Whitley Green of Kinston, and five grandchildren.

Arrangements are by Garner-Howard Funeral Home in Kinston.

Lloyd

Mr. Billy Sample Lloyd, 18, died Sunday near Stokes.

Court

Prior to the special courts, someone in court who needed 10 minutes to dispose of a traffic ticket might have had to wait through several lengthy probable cause hearings, Haigwood said, and the new system is designed to minimize that kind of delay.

Bank officials that testify in worthless check cases are able to remain on telephone standby during the day and do not have to worry about going to court four or five times each month, Haigwood said.

"I think the retail merchants and the law enforcement officers like it," Haigwood said. "I personally think that it identifies the problems better than mixing worthless check cases throughout the month."

"And we get a whole lot more cooperation out of the retail merchants when we set aside days for them in court," he said.

Demolition

HONG KONG (AP) — Britain's chief rabbi has approved the demolition of Hong Kong's 86-year-old synagogue to make way for a complex containing a new synagogue and high-rise apartments, a local Jewish leader said.

The plan to demolish the Ohel Leah synagogue split the local Jewish community and enraged preservationists, who see the project as another blow to this British colony's heritage.

However, supporters argued that the Ohel Leah synagogue is dangerously old and better facilities are needed for a growing Jewish community.

The chief rabbi of the United Kingdom and the Commonwealth, Lord Immanuel Jakobovits, "waived any religious objection" to demolishing the Ohel Leah synagogue, said Robert Dorfman, a synagogue leader.

Synagogue trustees want to demolish the building and erect two 40-story towers and a new synagogue on the site.

Gang Shooting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 22-year-old man was shot to death in a confrontation with rival gang members as he walked down a street, authorities said.

After Theron Shakir was approached by two young men Sunday evening, words were exchanged and one of them pulled a gun and shot Shakir twice in the chest, said sheriff's Deputy Hal Grant.

Obituaries

His funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Revs. Curtis Haislip and Eddie Lloyd Jr. Burial will be in Hampton, Va., Wednesday.

Mr. Lloyd, a native of Hampton, Va., had lived in Pitt County for the past two years.

Surviving are his parents, Eddie Dean Lloyd of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Sample of Hampton, Va.; a sister, Myra Sample of Hampton, Va., and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lloyd of Greenville.

Arrangements are by Wilkerson Funeral Home of Greenville and Peninsula Funeral Home of Newport News, Va.

Oyler

Ms. Barbara L. Oyler, 62, died Saturday at her home, 401 Kirkland Drive.

Her funeral will be conducted at noon Wednesday in St. Paul's Episcopal Church by the Rev. L.P. Houston Jr. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

A native of Roanoke, Va., Ms. Oyler was reared in West Chester, Pa. She attended Episcopal Hospital

School of Nursing in Pittsburgh and served in the U.S. Army Nurse Corps during the Korean War. She then attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and received bachelor's and master's degrees. After serving as director of nursing service at Watts Hospital in Durham, she came to East Carolina University as chairman of the department of public health nursing, retiring in 1983 as assistant dean in the School of Nursing. She was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, the North Carolina Nurses Association and Sigma Theta Tau honorary nursing society.

Memorials may be made to the East Carolina University School of Nursing Scholarship Fund, Greenville. Arrangements are by Wilkerson Funeral Home.

She was born in Edgecombe County and attended the Edgecombe County schools and was a member of Bethel Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are her mother, Ms. Blanche E. Carney of Bethel; a sister, Mattie B. Taylor; seven daughters, Laura L. Barnhill and Doristeen Stator of New Haven, Conn., Mary B. Cherry and Hattie S. Cherry of Bethel, Wanda McNair of Greenville, Lydia E. Stator of Hinesville, Ga., and Shelia M. Stator of Eatontown, N.J.; four sons, Dorcine S. Stator and Derwin R. Stator of Bethel, Jimmy L. Wilkins of Brooklyn, N.Y. and Spec. 5 James C. Stator of Frankfurt, West Germany, 25 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

The family will receive friends from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. today at Mt. Zion Church in Bethel, and at other times at the home of her mother at Apt. 2-B, Quail Ridge in Bethel.

Tucker

Mrs. Mable K. Tyson Tucker, 95, of Route 8, Box 666, Greenville, died today.

Her funeral will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Mike Tart. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

A native and lifelong resident of the Red Oak community near Greenville, Mrs. Tucker was a member of the Pine Grove Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are a sister, Charlotte Tyson Crawford of Greenville. The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today and at other times will be at the home of Charlotte Crawford on U.S. 264 West.

The family suggests that those desiring to make memorial contributions consider Pine Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Route 8, Box 530, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

It calls for expanded Medicaid coverage, a simpler Medicaid eligibility process, equal treatment under the program of people in institutions and those who live at home, and steps to ensure that doctors will treat Medicaid and Medicare patients.

Mental health programs for the elderly should be improved, the report says. State mental hospitals should draft special discharge plans for aging patients and staff should have special training in geriatrics.

concern over the faltering pace of minority advancement."

The panel included business executives, college presidents, three former secretaries of state (Edmund Muskie, William Rogers and Cyrus Vance), Coretta Scott King, former Secretary of Education T.H. Bell, baseball commissioner Peter V. Ueberroth, Ted Koppel of ABC television, and the governors of Missouri, Arkansas, Minnesota and New Jersey.

However, Missouri Gov. John Ashcroft declined to sign the final report. A spokesman for the governor, Randy Sissel, said late Sunday in Jefferson City that Ashcroft would have no comment until today.

A spokesman for the American Council on Education, David Merkowitz, said he didn't know why Ashcroft refused to sign.

The commission said the entire nation will face a grim future unless it finds ways to overcome disparities between minorities and whites in education, employment, income, health, longevity and other basic measures of well-being.

"The goal we suggest is simple but essential: that in 20 years, a similar examination will reveal that America's minority population has attained a quality of life as high as that of the white majority. No less a goal is acceptable," it said.

It took the title of its report from President Franklin D. Roosevelt's famous lament during the Depression in 1933 that, "I see one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished."

"In 1988 we are seeing the emergence of another 'one-third of a nation' — the blacks, Hispanics, American Indians and Asian Americans who constitute our minority population — many of whom are afflicted by the ills of poverty and deprivation," the commission said.

Bird's Clutch Play Ends Hawks' Dreams

Double Teamed

Larry Bird of the Boston Celtics passes off around the double-team defense of Antoine Carr (35) and Dominique Wilkins (21) of the Atlanta Hawks during the seventh game of their best-of-seven series of the Eastern Conference Finals Sunday at Boston Garden. Bird helped hand the Hawks a 118-116 defeat in the contest. (AP Laserphoto)

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird wasn't going to miss. Not with the season on the line. Not with Boston's hopes on his shoulders. Not even with Dominique Wilkins and a host of Hawks on his back.

Bird, one of the NBA's best players at any time, was driven and deadly at the most important time. Bird simply wasn't going to miss a shot or a chance at another NBA title.

In a game exceptionally well-played by both teams, Bird scored 20 of his 34 points in the fourth quarter, made his last six shots and carried the Celtics into the Eastern Conference finals with a thrilling 118-116, seventh-game victory over Atlanta on Sunday.

"I really felt good going into the fourth quarter," Bird said. "Both teams played as well as they possibly could. Things were just going my way."

The Celtics completed the climb out of a 3-2 hole with their second straight victory, one that wasn't assured until the final buzzer.

Starting Wednesday night, Boston will play host to Detroit in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference finals. The Pistons have lost their last 21 games at Boston Garden, where Game 2 will be played Thursday night.

If not for Bird, the Hawks probably would have been the Pistons' opponent and the Celtics' quest for a 17th NBA title would have had to wait until next season.

"Larry was incredible," Atlanta guard Glenn Rivers said. "We played great defense and tried everything. Unfortunately, everything wasn't enough."

"When he gets on a roll like that, there's not much you can do," said Wilkins, who hit six of eight shots and scored 16 of his 47 points during a fourth-quarter shootout with Bird. "He made some spectacular shots," Bird said. "We played Dominique the best we possibly can."

Bird made just four of nine shots in the first half and had only 14 points after three quarters. Since scoring a club playoff-record 24 points in the first quarter of the series opener, he rarely had dominated play while being smothered by Wilkins' aggressive defense.

But in the fourth quarter Sunday, he decided to take over the game before Atlanta took it away.

"The only way they could have stopped Larry down the stretch was to kill him," said Boston's Kevin McHale, who had 33 points, 13 rebounds and four blocked shots. He made 10 of 14 shots and all 13 of his free throws.

A long jumper by Atlanta's Randy Wittman, who had 22 points, tied the game for the 20th and final time, 105-105, before Bird gave Boston the lead for good on a jumper with 3:34 to play. McHale then hit two free throws and Bird buried a 3-pointer from the left corner to open a 112-105 lead with 1:43 remaining.

"Larry's 3-pointer was the backbreaker," Wilkins said. "I had a hand in his face."

"Most players wouldn't take that shot," Rivers said. "Larry had it and took it ... and you kind of thought it would go in."

Still, Atlanta wouldn't concede a thing on a court where it had lost 13 consecutive games before winning the fifth game of the series, 112-104, last Wednesday.

"I thought we had a great advantage. I didn't think the Hawks were going to play as well as they did," Bird said.

"I've never been involved where two teams made as many important shots back and forth," Hawks Coach Mike Fratello said.

Wilkins hit a 14-foot turnaround and two free throws to close the gap to 112-109 with 47 seconds to play. Then Bird plowed through several defenders to sink a lefthanded scoop shot in the lane, but Wilkins came right back by rebounding his own missed shot and putting the ball in with 20 seconds remaining. The Celtics led 114-111.

With Boston ahead 118-115, Danny Ainge fouled Wilkins just past mid-court with a second to go. Wilkins made the first shot and deliberately missed the second, but Atlanta couldn't get the ball back before the buzzer.

In Boston's 102-100 victory at Atlanta Friday night, Cliff Levingston missed an off-balance driving shot with a second left and Boston got the rebound.

"We pushed them to the limit. They were beaten. They came back," Rivers said. "It's almost like fate for them."

In a game destined to be the last of the season for one team, both teams responded to the pressure with stretches of near perfection.

In the fourth quarter, Boston made 12 of 15 shots, Atlanta 14 of 21. The teams' combined shooting percentage of 58.8 for the game was the second-best in NBA playoff history. Boston had nine turnovers, Atlanta just six. Only four of the game's 40 foul shots were missed.

"When you play your best, you shouldn't feel bad," Wilkins said. "We played as hard as we could. We didn't leave anything out there. We didn't save anything."

"That was some of the best basketball I've ever seen in my lifetime," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said. "The last three minutes were the best I've ever seen."

The Celtics trailed 30-28 after one quarter, led 59-58 at halftime and 84-82 after the third quarter. The biggest lead of the game was seven. Atlanta's last lead was 77-76 with 3:52 left in the third period.

Then Bird hit a 16-foot fallaway shot. The Hawks would tie the game 11 times after that but could never go ahead.

The Celtics won for the 17th time in 20 seventh-game situations and avoided becoming just the fifth team in NBA history to lose a seven-game series after winning the first two games.

"It's a game that neither team should have lost," Jones said. "That's how great it was."

And the greatest player was Bird.

"You never know when you're going to see Larry have his best game or quarter," Boston assistant coach Jimmy Rodgers said. "Just when you watch him have his greatest, he comes back with something better."

Braves Relieve Tanner Of Duties

ATLANTA (AP) — Chuck Tanner apparently believed that his job as manager of the floundering Atlanta Braves was safe.

It wasn't. After Sunday's 6-4 victory over the Pirates in Pittsburgh, where he managed for nine years before coming to Atlanta, Tanner and a reporter were discussing rumors that he might be fired.

"That doesn't bother me at all," Tanner said. "I can have this job as long as I want it."

But when the Braves arrived in Chicago Sunday night to open a three-game series with the Cubs today, Tanner learned that he had been fired by General Manager Bobby Cox.

Coaches Willie Stargell, Bob Skinner, Al Monchak and Tony Bartiromo, all of whom came from Pittsburgh to Atlanta with Tanner in 1986, also were fired. Russ Nixon, manager of the Braves' Greenville, S.C., Class AA team and former manager of the Cincinnati Reds, was named to replace Tanner. The Braves retained pitching coach Bruce Dal Canton and bullpen coach Brian Snitker, and named Bobby Wine, Roy Majtyka and Clarence Jones as new coaches.

"The organization just wanted to make a change," Cox said Sunday night from his hotel room in Chicago. "We wanted to see if we could get the ball club going a little bit better and we thought maybe Russ could add a little bit, maybe spark our club and get us going."

Efforts to reach Tanner at his hotel room were met with word that he was not accepting calls. Nixon was apparently en route to Chicago and also could not be reached.

"We liked Chuck Tanner an awful lot," Cox said. "I don't think he's failed, actually. When a team's not doing well, the players go, the manager goes or the general manager goes. That's what happened here."

The Braves are 12-27, the worst record in the National League. Atlanta, which lost its first 10 games this year, is in last place in the NL West, 11½ games behind Houston.

The Braves finished last under Tanner in 1986 and were fifth in 1987 with a 66-96 record. His record as Atlanta manager was 153-208, and his major league record is 1,352-1,381. He is third in victories among active managers and 20th on the all-time list.

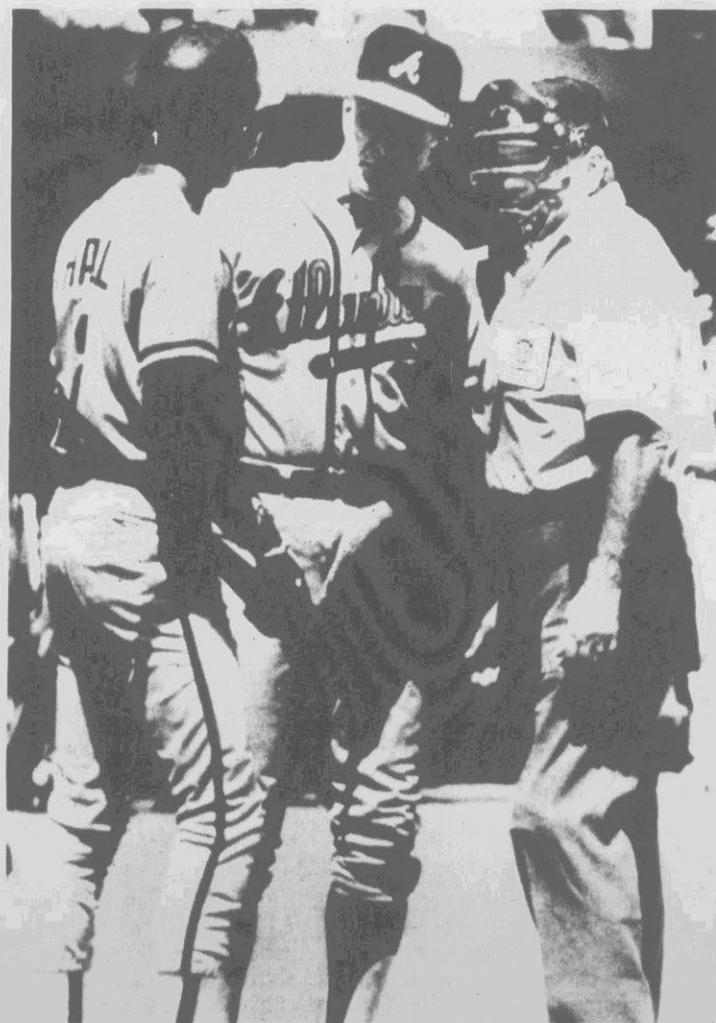

Tanner has managed for 17 consecutive years, most among current managers in the majors. He had previously managed the Chicago White Sox and Oakland.

Tanner, 58, was in the third year of a five-year contract. He is the second manager in the majors to be fired this season. Cal Ripken Sr. was replaced as Baltimore manager by Frank Robinson after the Orioles lost their first six games.

Pittsburgh won the World Series championship under Tanner in 1979, the only time in his 19-year managing career in the majors that his teams reached the postseason.

He managed the Pirates from 1977-85, leaving the club after consecutive last-place finishes and an impending cocaine scandal that was centered in Pittsburgh.

Stargell, who played for Tanner in Pittsburgh and had been on his coaching staff with the Pirates, is to be inducted into the Hall of Fame this summer.

Simple Strategy Keys Labonte

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Terry Labonte's equation for winning The Winston was simple — go from fifth place to first place in a hurry and hold on for 10 laps.

Labonte started seventh in the last segment of The Winston, a three-phase race at the Charlotte Motor Speedway on Sunday that offered $600,000 to the winner. It took him only two laps to move to the head of a 19-car field composed entirely of NASCAR race winners.

"I knew I had to get there as fast as I can, with only 10 laps, and you don't want to use your tires up messing around there and wait to pass everybody one at a time," Labonte said. "You'll never get there. I was going as fast as I could."

Labonte got what he wanted from The Winston — a good, clean race and a $200,000 first-place check, the biggest payday of his career.

"They can run the race any way they want to," the 31-year-old Labonte said. "If they want to run around here backwards, it would be fine with me if they want to pay that much money."

Labonte moved quickly to the front of the pack in the 10-lap sprint and became the fourth different winner in the four-year history of the event.

"I really figured it would be a good, clean race," he said. "The cars are better today than they were a year ago."

Last year, Dale Earnhardt pushed, bumped and shoved his way to victory past Geoff Bodine and Bill Elliott, even cutting through the infield grass at one point. After the race, several pit crews almost came to blows.

Sunday's race was much calmer, with no major incidents.

Labonte finished fifth in the first 75-lap segment of the race on the 1.5-mile track, then was seventh in the second 50-lap segment.

But after the Corpus Christi, Texas, native overtook Elliott near the end of the second lap of the 10-lap finale, it was his race.

Labonte, who finished second in The Winston last year, opened up a five-car-length lead before defeating Sterling Marlin by .967 seconds.

Labonte, who won the First Union 400 earlier this year, has a victory and two other top-four finishes in his last four races, and now leads the circuit with $417,910.

Davey Allison took third place overall, Elliott fourth and Bobby Allison fifth. Kyle Petty and defending champion Dale Earnhardt were the only other drivers to finish on the lead lap.

Qualifying leader Darrell Waltrip started the final segment two laps down and wasn't a factor.

Davey Allison won $20,000 for winning the race's first segment. The 27-year-old driver passed Earnhardt on the 74th lap to win by 1.62 seconds. Earnhardt crossed the finish line in good fashion, but his right front tire blew later in the stretch and his car slammed into the first-turn wall.

It appeared Earnhardt wouldn't be able to continue after he slid into the pits unable to brake. But the 10-minute stop between segments allowed his crew to get the two-time defending Winston Cup driving champion's car back in racing shape.

"Yeah, we blistered it, the right front tire, and it knocked us out of the race right there," Earnhardt said. "We tried to hang on."

Waltrip finished third in the first segment, followed by Morgan Shepherd and Labonte.

Elliott held off underdog Lake Speed in the 50-lap second segment to win by 1.91 seconds and take the $20,000 prize. Speed, who started the final segment in the second spot, crashed into the wall on the third lap and didn't finish the race.

Marlin ran a strong third, Davey Allison was fourth and Geoff Bodine fifth.

Greg Sacks went out early with burned pistons and Cale Yarborough blew an engine on lap 50. Phil Parsons, the winner three weeks ago of the Winston 500 at Talladega, Ala., also blew an engine, while Harry Gant broke an oil line.

Ricky Rudd's car was lost in the second segment, blowing a tire in turn two and slamming into the wall. Rudd was taken to a local hospital and later released with torn ligaments in his left knee.

The average speed for the three segments was 139.228 mph.

In the $200,000 Winston Open, a 100-lap race that preceded The Winston, Marlin used a late caution flag to hold off Alan Kulwicki. The victory earned Marlin $30,000 and the 19th starting spot in The Winston.

Marlin's one-car-length victory over Kulwicki was overshadowed by a race-ending crash in which Brad Noffsinger hit the wall as he crossed the finish line. His car ran into the infield, through an opening in the guard rail, slamming into a pace car and injuring a security guard standing in front of the car.

Sports Notes

Morrison To Be Inducted Into Shrine

East Carolina golf coach Hal Morrison, who began his college coaching career 30 years ago, will be inducted into the Golf Coaches Association of American Hall of Fame in a ceremony Sunday.

Morrison is one of three coaches being honored by the GCAA this year, whose shrine is located in the World Golf Hall of Fame in Pinehurst.

The enshrinement coincides with the NCAA Division I golf championships. The other two coaches being inducted along with Morrison are Bill Mann, of Arizona State, and Bob Nye, of Wooster College. The three inductees for 1988 bring the total number of coaches honored to 37.

Morrison came to ECU in 1986 and has led ECU to consecutive Colonial Athletic Association Golf Championships. Morrison began his coaching career in 1958 at East Tennessee State where he coached such golfing greats as J.C. Sneed, Bobby Wadkins and Mike Hulbert.

ECU Signs 11 Swimming Recruits

East Carolina swimming coach Rick Kobe has completed his recruiting for the 1988-89 season with the signing of 11 prospects to letters of intent.

"We signed six outstanding swimmers on the men's side that have produced times already that would qualify them for the conference championships," Kobe said. "This class has the potential to equal or surpass our group from last year, which may have been the finest group in the conference. The five young women are outstanding student-athletes and they give us the depth we need this year to challenge for the conference title."

Heading the list of men recruits is Eric Hoyos, a two-time junior college All-American at Broward Community College in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The other signees include Todd Stebbins of Cocoa Beach, Fla.; Tim Boyd of Alexandria, Va.; Marc Cook of North Palm Beach, Fla.; Billy Haughton of Roswell, Ga. and John Springer of Titusville, Fla.

The women signees include Paige Holt, of Wilmington, Del.; Shelly Micka of Sarasota, Fla.; Chantal Morris of Durham; Jenny Muench of Sanibel, Fla. and Erin Reilly of Wilmington, Del.

Charles Unimpressed With His Win

SCARBOROUGH, N.Y. (AP) — Bob Charles wasn't ungrateful after winning the $300,000 Commemorative Seniors golf tournament. He just wasn't all that impressed.

Charles set a tournament record with a 54-hole score of 196, 14 under par, after shooting a 66 on Sunday in the final round at the Sleepy Hollow Country Club. Despite a four-stroke margin over runnersup Don Massengale and Harold Henning, the 52-year-old New Zealander still found fault with his play.

"My putting was far from satisfactory," said Charles, who erased the mark of 199 set by Lee Elder two years ago over the par-70, 6,545-yard course.

"It's tough to play in front. I felt a certain amount of tension at the start, but I still drove well going out," Charles said. "My putting was erratic. I had 34 putts for the day — only 12 on the front nine — even though I hit all 18 greens."

Charles, the 1963 British Open champion, may not have putted to his satisfaction, but he "owned" the 12th hole with birdies in all three rounds.

"That hole proved to be the turning point today," he said after earning $45,000 for his first victory in 10 tournaments this year. "I couldn't count on a win then, but I was able to put some room between Don (Massengale) and myself."

Massengale, who was three strokes behind the left-handed Charles at the start of play, closed within one after 11 holes.

Charles, who also set a tournament record with a 63 on Friday, hit his approach shot within four feet on the par-4, 437-yard 12th and birdied. Massengale got within 10 feet of the cup but missed his birdie try and trailed by two strokes.

The 51-year-old Massengale, who joined the Seniors tour last year, finished with a 67 to fall back into a tie with Henning, who fashioned a final 66.

"My tee shot on the 12th went to the right side of the fairway," said Charles, who recorded his fifth victory since joining the Seniors tour in 1986. "I had to draw my second shot quite a bit to get around some trees."

"I have to say that I feel as good playing golf at 52 as I did at 22. I never stopped playing competitively when I came off the regular tour."

"I had my chances early," Massengale said. "Not getting the birdie on the 12th hurt and my bogey two holes later sent me to the clubhouse."

Henning, who has won once in five years on the tour, said, "I got within two but wasn't playing well enough to put any pressure on Bob. He seemed to gain more confidence on the back nine. I can't be unhappy with my finish."

Bruce Crampton, last week's winner at Malvern, Pa., had a 66 to finish at 201, and Larry Mowry shot a 67 for 202. Charles Coody also had a 67 for 203. Don Bies shot a 66, Dale Douglass a 65 and Dave Hill a 69 to tie at 205 and Lou Graham had a 68 for a 206.

Turner Makes Most Of Her Opportunities

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Sherri Turner was just looking forward to cashing a paycheck when she realized that she might also have a chance at a trophy. And what a trophy — the LPGA Championship.

Once she figured that one of the Big Four titles of the women's tour was within her grasp, Turner belied her status as a tournament non-winner by hitting what she described as her two best shots of the day. Those helped her complete a 67, the best score of Sunday's final round, and scuttle by one stroke the title hopes of Amy Alcott. Turner completed four rounds of the 6,389-yard, par-72 Grizzly course at the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center in 281.

"I guess it wasn't until the 10th hole, which I birdied to go to 4-under, when I thought, 'Hey, you're not out of this yet,'" said the 31-year-old, five-year pro from Greenville, S.C. "After I saved par on 16, my caddie turned to me and said, 'Turner, you can still win this tournament.' Deep down, I was saying, 'Yeah, right.'"

Turner figured her title chances were over after a round of 73 on Saturday that left her six strokes behind the leader — and the leader was Alcott, winner of the season's first major, the Dinah Shore.

Turner, playing four groups ahead of Alcott, made the turn at 1-under, but still had a stack of stars in front of her. Birdies at the 10th and 14th holes put her solidly in contention, although she still trailed by two shots.

"I knew I was going to have to birdie the last two holes," Turner said. "To tell you the truth, I didn't expect to."

But Turner hit a pitching wedge to within six feet on the 17th hole and sank the putt, then hit a 133-yard 9-iron to within six feet on the 18th and again made the putt.

"My drive on 18 was absolutely my best of the day," Turner said. "I was amazed I could do it because I'd just birdied 17 and my heart was starting to pump."

Orioles Have 1-2 Punch, Finally

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles finally have a 1-2 punch.

The lowly Orioles own a two-game winning streak for the first time this season after defeating the Seattle Mariners 7-2 Sunday. Jose Bautista and Mike Morgan combined on a five-hitter and Larry Sheets and Cal Ripken homered as the Orioles won for only the eighth time in 42 games.

Seattle's Mike Moore walked four of the first nine Baltimore batters but held the Orioles hitless until the fourth, when he issued a leadoff walk to Eddie Murray and Sheets hit a two-run homer, his third. Ripken made it 4-0 in the fifth with his seventh homer after Keith Hughes singled.

Bautista, who allowed four hits in 6 2-3 innings, had retired 14 batters in a row when Ken Phelps singled with two out in the Seattle seventh. Mickey Brantley followed with his seventh homer to cut the Orioles' lead in half.

But Baltimore put the game away with three runs in the eighth on one hit — Sheets' leadoff single. The inning included a hit batsman and a balk, both with the bases loaded.

Yankees 2, Athletics 0

John Candelaria pitched a two-hitter, striking out 13, and Jack Clark hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning as the Yankees took two of three games in the weekend duel of division leaders.

Candelaria, 6-2 with a 2.20 ERA, retired the first 14 batters before Dave Henderson doubled with two out in the fifth. Oakland's only other baserunner was Carney Lansford, who singled with two out in the sixth.

Indians 8, Royals 7

Julio Franco's three-run homer with two out in the ninth inning tied the score and Ron Washington singled home the winner in the 10th.

Washington's single followed Mel Hall's two-out double and an intentional walk to Brook Jacoby.

The Indians, who have won 10 of their last 12 games, trailed 7-4 entering the ninth when Jacoby led off with a single against Kansas City reliever Gene Garber. Pat Tabler drew a two-out walk before Franco hit his third home run of the season.

Red Sox 12, Angels 4

Boston's Mike Greenwell capped a five-run third inning with a three-run homer and Bob Stanley, activated 10 days earlier after recovering from severe cuts on his pitching hand, allowed two hits in 5 2-3 innings of scoreless relief for his first victory since last Aug. 16.

The Angels took a 3-0 lead against Jeff Sellers in the third inning, including Brian Downing's fifth home run of the season and 200th of his career. But the Red Sox went ahead 5-3 against Willie Fraser in the bottom of the inning on Dwight Evans' two-out, two-run pop fly single and Greenwell's sixth homer.

Tigers 3, White Sox 1

Walt Terrell pitched a five-hitter as Detroit won its fifth game in a row and handed Chicago its seventh straight loss.

Terrell, 2-1, has won 10 of his last 11 decisions dating back to last season.

Detroit went ahead 2-0 in the second inning off Jack McDowell on Pat Sheridan's RBI single and a bases-loaded walk to Lou Whitaker.

Brewers 7, Blue Jays 1

Glenn Braggs and Robin Yount homered as Milwaukee broke out of a hitting slump and snapped a four-game losing streak.

Big Bats Of N.Y. Mets Sweep Trio From L.A.

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The New York Mets swung their bats and won while Pedro Guerrero threw his bat on a lost weekend for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Unbeaten David Cone dodged Guerrero's bat and survived a bench-clearing incident, Darryl Strawberry homered again and the Mets extended their winning streak to seven by beating the Dodgers 5-2 Sunday, wrapping up a three-game sweep.

Both teams led their divisions when the three-game series began. The Mets, whose 30-11 record is the best in baseball, returned to New York to start their longest homestand of the season with a 5½-game lead over Pittsburgh in the East. Los Angeles fell 1½ games behind Houston in the West.

The Dodgers might be in for more trouble. They lost shortstop Alfredo Griffin with a fractured right hand in a brushback battle Saturday night and saw Fernando Valenzuela make the shortest start of his career Sunday.

The biggest problem, however, could be Guerrero, who faces a possible suspension for flinging his bat at Cone after being hit by a pitch in the sixth inning.

With a 5-0 lead, Cone struck out Kirk Gibson to start the sixth and then threw two pitches high and inside to Guerrero, who glared back. Cone followed with a curveball that hit Guerrero in the shoulder, and Guerrero instantly threw his bat with both hands toward the mound.

The bat sailed wide and wound up near shortstop Kevin Elster. Guerrero began walking toward Cone but was held back by catcher Barry Lyons as both benches emptied. There were no punches or fights.

Guerrero was ejected and left the clubhouse without comment. The bat throwing could result in a suspension by league president Bart Giamatti.

Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda did not want to speculate on the possibility of a suspension. He was still too upset about Saturday night's incidents.

Leading 4-0, Dwight Gooden hit Griffin with a pitch, putting him on the disabled list. Brian Holton of the Dodgers then hit Howard Johnson with a pitch and was warned by home plate umpire Dave Pallone.

Johnson brushed off talk that Cone and the rest of the New York pitchers were trying hit Guerrero.

Braves 6, Pirates 4

Atlanta fired Tanner and replaced him with Russ Nixon, who was managing the Braves' Class AA team in Greenville, S.C. The Braves are 12-27, the worst record in the league. Nixon managed Cincinnati for part of the 1982 season and all of 1983.

The Braves won their final game under Tanner, whose 19-year record is 1,352-1,381. He is 20th on the all-time victory list.

Dale Murphy tripled and Dion James, Gerald Perry and Bruce Benedict doubled during a five-run first inning as Atlanta beat Pittsburgh.

Astros 2, Cardinals 1

Chuck Jackson's RBI double in the ninth inning gave Houston a win in St. Louis.

Alex Trevino singled with one out for his fourth hit and Jackson followed with a double off Ken Dayley, 0-1. Dayley had not allowed a run this season in six previous outings, covering 52-3 innings.

Cubs 5, Reds 1

Rookie Mark Grace hit a two-run homer and two-run double, leading Chicago over Cincinnati.

Greg Maddux, 7-3, gave up one run on six hits in six innings.

Braggs tied the game 1-1 when he led off the bottom of the second against Mike Flanagan with his fifth homer. Rob Deer walked and scored on Greg Brock's double. Two outs later, Dale Sveum tripled and scored on Paul Molitor's double.

Twins 15, Rangers 2

Gary Gaetti hit a grand slam off Texas relief ace Mitch Williams with two out in the ninth inning of the nightcap, breaking up a scoreless duel.

The Twins had 16 hits in the opener, including three by Tim Lardner, who drove in four runs, and Kirby Puckett.

Gaetti hit the first pitch from Williams 423 feet into the center-field stands. Loser Jose Guzman walked Randy Bush with two out and Puckett singled. Williams relieved and walked Kent Hrbek, loading the bases for Gaetti's eighth home run of the season and fifth career grand slam.

Winner Frank Viola allowed seven hits in 8 1-3 innings. Jeff Reardon took over after Scott Fletcher and Ruben Sierra singled with one out in the bottom of the ninth. He yielded a two-run double to Pete Incaviglia before recording his seventh save of the season and 200th of his career.

Wadkins Gets Colonial Win

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—For longer than he'd like to admit, Lanny Wadkins' romance with one of golf's grand old dames was a stormy affair, one-sided and a little embarrassing.

That ended Sunday with a Hollywood flourish.

Five shots off the pace entering the final round, Wadkins lashed an 8-iron to within three feet of the pin on the final hole, dropped the putt and escaped with a dramatic one-stroke victory in the $750,000 Colonial National Invitation championship.

"It wasn't pretty," he said of the winning putt, "but fortunately they don't have to be pretty to be effective."

The bold, brash Wadkins, 38, fired a 5-under-par 65 in Sunday's wind-swept finale to beat Ben Crenshaw, Mark Calcavecchia and Joey Sindelar by a shot and earn his second title of the year and his 18th since joining the Tour in 1971.

His 67-68-70-65—270 was 10 under par and worth $135,000.

The top prize hiked his 1988 winnings to $447,465 and his career earnings to $3,538,546, fourth behind Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson and Tom Kite.

"It's special to win here, and winning in your backyard is exciting," said Wadkins, who lives in nearby Dallas and spent Friday and Saturday nights at home after checking out of his hotel on Friday.

"Force of habit," he quipped, implying that he was so accustomed to missing the cut here that he routinely headed home after two rounds.

In 11 previous encounters with the challenging Colonial Country Club course, Wadkins merely flirted with a sub-par score, never embraced one. He played 35 competitive rounds without breaking par and finished no higher than 24th.

Alabama Now Fighting To Maintain Top Standing

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Alabama, whose rousing instrumentals and moving ballads have set the standard for country music in the 1980s, is fighting to maintain its eminence.

The group with foot-stomping fiddle tunes and mesmerizing melodies has drastically reduced its concert appearances, is winning fewer awards and learning that No. 1 records are no longer automatic.

Nevertheless, Alabama guitarist Teddy Gentry says: "We've been written off several times, but my feeling is we're together and making the best music we've ever made and things are better in more ways than ever. We've worked out any problems we had. We're contented."

The four-member band has sold about 30 million records in the past eight years since the group, which hails from Fort Payne, Ala., left a beach bar in Myrtle Beach, S.C., where they played for tips.

They won back-to-back Grammy awards in 1983 and 1984 for "Mountain Music" and "The Closer You Get." The group starred in a network TV special and performed up to 300 days on the road each year.

But as new acts came along and country fans formed new allegiances, Alabama now finds its once-torrid pace a bit tempered.

Gentry said the group will perform 80 to 90 concerts this year, down from 130 in 1987, and one-third of their frantic schedule five years ago.

"You have to cut back in markets for a year or two," he said.

The group won dozens of awards this decade, but their bulging trophy case has not inherited as much hardware in the past couple of years.

The Judds, Highway 101 and the Forester Sisters have won some of the awards that Alabama had a lock on a few years ago.

"We can grow as artists and writers," Gentry said in an interview. "We've got a lot of good years left. It would be a detriment to win more awards."

In November, their personal and autobiographical song, "Tar Top," was the first Alabama single to fail to reach No. 1 on the country music charts after 21 in a row spanning a remarkable eight years.

"We felt it was different and we agreed to put it out even if it might not make No. 1," Gentry said. "We wanted it out for the band and for the fans."

"Another No. 1 would not have done us any good at that point," he said. "It was a controversial song and it got people to talk about the group again. It accomplished what we set out for it to do."

"It got the other record companies off our backs. They had parties and celebrated."

The group — three of the four are cousins — bounced back with a No. 1 record in January, "Face to Face."

Though their career has evened off, the band can boast of stirring hit records such as "Dixieland Delight" and "Old Flame," and sensuous, softer songs such as "Touch Me When We're Dancing" and "Feels So Right."

"They've had so many hits that at concerts they are forced to perform three medleys and trim the length of several other songs.

"We have to leave out a bunch," said Gentry, who once laid carpet for a living.

They pioneered the sound of country bands and their success led Nashville record companies to sign other groups such as Exile and Restless Heart.

Says Joe Bonsall, lead singer for the rival Oak Ridge Boys, "They are the greatest act that's ever been in our business."

Gentry, analyzing the band's success, points to versatility, organization, energy and other factors.

"We've been able to write our own songs," he said. "Early in your career, you don't get pitched the good songs that others do. We've put together the best organization I know of, from management to the road crew. They've been with us for years."

"We've tried to act as good businessmen. We go to the functions and meet the people and do those things."

"We've had a range of material," he continued. "Kids identify with some of it, and the good ol' boys with gun racks in their pickup trucks like others, and there are the gentle love songs that women like. We like our range of music and we're capable of doing a lot of songs."

Kingsmen Join 'Louie Louie' Parade

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Members of the Kingsmen joined 100,000 revelers who danced, strolled and staggered along an eight-block route in the fourth annual Louie Louie Parade, all for the sake of a song, a good time and charity.

The Kingsmen, best remembered for their popular version of the 1960's classic "Louie Louie," rode on one of 50-odd floats Sunday and led the boisterous crowd in several choruses of the song at the parade route's end near the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

"I love it," said Karen Kellogg, 24, who also witnessed the original parade. "This one's better, and it's for a good cause."

The parade began in 1985 as a publicity stunt created by disc jockey

'St. Elsewhere' To Depart In Style Wednesday Night

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Wayne Fiscus, soon to depart for humanitarian work in Nicaragua, reminisces about his three years at St. Eligius: "Grueling hours, bad food, egomania, death and moral confusion. It'll be hard to leave."

For its loyal viewers, too, it'll be hard to leave "St. Elsewhere," the NBC series that after six seasons becomes television history with Wednesday's final episode, "The Last One." In terms of unbridled creativity, it was arguably the best series ever on network television.

The conclusion is suitably daft and won't be revealed here. Suffice it to say that the impact of the final seconds will take a minute to sink in, but the ending is perfect. Think Kafka.

When "St. Elsewhere" premiered, it was compared to the still-new "Hill Street Blues," also from MTM Productions, that broke ground with a similar messy style: characters talking over each other and shaky, hand-held camera shots. "Hill Street" bowed out at the end of last season.

Writing set "St. Elsewhere" apart. Hip, weird, heartfelt and very funny, no subject was too taboo, no character safe from bizarre plot twists.

Dr. Caldwell (Mark Harmon) turned from playboy to victim of AIDS. Dr. Peter White (Terence Knox) was a rapist. Dr. Morrison (David Morse) got raped. Fiscus (Howie Mandel) had a near-death experience and took a tour of the afterlife. Dr. Axelrod (Stephen Furst) died of a heart attack. Nurse Helen Rosenthal (Christina Pickles) got breast cancer and addicted to drugs. A patient was killed by a folding hospital bed. Doctors performed surgery in the nude. A coroner only got turned on in the morgue. And Dr. Westphall (Ed Flanders), the saint of St. Eligius, told off his new corporate boss (Ronny Cox) by baring his behind in prime time.

The show figuratively mooned NBC after the network made the producers change the name "Ecumena," the corporation that bought St. Eligius at the start of the season, because the real-life hospital chain, Humana Inc., sued for copyright infringement. The writers put a lawsuit plotline in the show, and characters complained about corporate bosses folding under pressure.

The writers poked fun at television, especially MTM. In one episode, a male patient fervently believed he was Mary Richards from "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and was ecstatic when guest star Betty White showed up — "Sue Ann!" There were jokes on MTM shows "The White Shadow" and "Newhart," and on TV in general. When a patient played by an actor from "The Andy Griffith Show" needed a haircut, the barber's name was Floyd. In the final episode, Fiscus treats a man suffering eye-strain from watching too much tube.

"St. Elsewhere" writers perfected the unlikely art of the hip pun and managed to tuck a rock lyric into the dialogue of virtually every show. Samples from Bruce Paltrow and Mark Tinker's final script — "Jumpin' Jack! What was that flash?" And "Move that gurney, Hal!" a reference to Hal Gurnee, director of

"Late Night with David Letterman."

What can be revealed of the final plot without disservice to fans is that snooty Dr. Craig (William Daniels) is banished to Cleveland. Reminded that the city is home of the Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame, he sniffs, "Yeah, yeah, yeah." The move sheds his sycophant, Dr. Victor Enrich (Ed Begley Jr.), who declares after another fawning surgery session, "I'd follow you to the ends of the earth. But not to Cleveland!"

Early in the episode, an airplane crashes through a wall, but it is never mentioned by anyone except Westphall's autistic son, who mutters with mild interest, "Plane."

Despite unfounded rumors that the producers intended to kill off every character in the final episode, the only one to succumb is Dr. Auschlander (Norman Lloyd), the liver cancer specialist who got liver cancer. But he does manage to arrange the return of the hospital to the Catholic Diocese and the return of Westphall to run it.

Paltrow, Tinker and Tom Fontana have a promising new series, "Tattinger's," on NBC's fall schedule. But the real reason "St. Elsewhere" won't be back is financial. Hour shows are not selling well in syndication, and MTM has been producing the show at a loss.

There could have been many more years in "St. Elsewhere," but it might not be so bad for a fine show to leave at the top of its form.

Actress Says 'Baby M' Role Altered Her Views

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — JoBeth Williams says that playing the role of surrogate mother Mary Beth Whitehead in a new TV miniseries altered her views about the controversial "Baby M" case.

The miniseries "Baby M," which ABC will conclude tonight, tells the story of what turned into a historic custody battle between Ms. Whitehead and William and Elizabeth Stern.

Ms. Whitehead, a New Jersey homemaker, signed a contract three years ago to bear a child for the Sterns. When the baby was born she could not give the child away, and fought to keep her daughter. The Sterns were awarded custody, but a New Jersey Superior Court recently granted broad visitation rights to Mary Beth, who in the meantime was divorced and remarried and uses the name Mary Beth Whitehead Gould. She is also pregnant again.

The four-hour miniseries is an unauthorized show done without any input from Ms. Whitehead or the Sterns.

"You would have to get all the rights or you'd have to tell it from one viewpoint," Ms. Williams says.

She said Ms. Whitehead declined to cooperate if the Sterns participated.

"Before I became involved my sympathy more or less was with the Sterns," Ms. Williams says. "But as I played Mary Beth I began to see her point of view. I found myself more torn. When I began to see the kind of pain both sides went through it became less easy for me to make a judgment."

"In the beginning, from what I had seen in the media, Mary Beth had done some very extreme things. I couldn't understand some of her behavior. The more I got into it the more I began to see the kind of stress she was under and how she could do these things."

Eight months of preparation and research went into the making of the series.

"There is an enormous amount of material available on the case," Ms. Williams says. "I had followed the story in the papers and on TV, but I didn't know any details. But like everyone else in the country, I was fascinated by it."

"Baby M" also stars Bruce Weitz as Rick Whitehead, Mary Beth's husband; John Shea and Robin Strasser as the Sterns; Anne Jackson as Lorraine Abraham, the legal guardian appointed to protect the baby's interests; Dabney Coleman as Gary Skoloff, Stern's attorney; Bruce McGill as Harold Cassidy, Ms. Whitehead's attorney, and Dakin Matthews as the trial judge, Harvey R. Sorkow. James Sadwith wrote and directed.

"I think people are not aware of the number of people in this country with fertility problems," Ms. Williams says. "I was sympathetic to the Sterns because of that."

Later, she says, "I'm a woman who very much wants a child. I think Mary Beth subconsciously really wanted the baby...Running away with the baby is something I can relate to. Her maternal feelings were very strong."

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY May 24

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): If you have a long talk with a partner, you can finally get this person to go along with your views. Enjoy the company of your family tonight.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Any work you have to do can be handled wonderfully, so get at it early. If you want to criticize someone, be tactful and kind.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): If trouble comes up where your accounts are concerned, find out where the mistakes are and quickly rectify the situation.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): If you have an unnecessary and expensive habit, get rid of it and feel happier. Try to work on building up your savings account.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You can start in on a new project with considerable enthusiasm today. Be sure to control your temper in all situations today and tonight.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Start the day by making a list of all the things you want to get accomplished, then follow through with it and feel satisfied.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You can accomplish a great deal today by dropping that pessimistic attitude and being enthusiastic. Have more confidence in yourself.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You will feel bright and energetic this morning, so get plenty accomplished and you will have a good feeling of satisfaction tonight.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Your cheerful and friendly mood can be quite contagious today, so get together with friends and family and have a wonderful time.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Get rid of that chip on your shoulder, and start living more happily. Remember that the past is the past, but the future is yet to be.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Stop being so self-sacrificing, and place the blame where it rightfully belongs instead of on yourself. Be happy and optimistic all day.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Avoid an individual who is jealous of you and could do you serious harm. Don't let yourself become involved in a get-rich-quick scheme.

Bridge By CHARLES GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AQ ♥83 ♦Q10763 ♣KJ98
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 1 ♣ 2 ♥ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
A.—To make a vulnerable overall at the two-level, partner must have a reasonable hand and a good suit. Since you have opening bid values, don't beat around the bush. Jump to three no trump to protect your tenaces from a lead through.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠95 ♥Q2 ♦KQ653 ♣AQ54
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 1 ♣ 2 ♥ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
A.—As stated above, partner must have a fair hand and good suit for his two-level overall. Despite the fact your spade holding is the worst, you have adequate trump support and the values to jump to game. Bid four hearts.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠K76 ♥AJ104 ♦852 ♣KJ6
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
 1 ♣ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
A.—A good hand for fourth-suit forcing, and if that weapon is in your armory, bid two diamonds. If not, there is no good bid available. Probably the least of evils is to jump to three clubs—and hope that partner can convert to no trump.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠83 ♥AKJ85 ♦AJ6 ♣1054
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♣ 1 NT ?
 What action do you take?
A.—You are in slam territory, but can take no precipitate action because of your two fast losers in hearts. However, it is incumbent on you to tell partner about your strong hand and excellent support—jump to four clubs.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠K ♥72 ♦AKQ1063 ♣AQJ5
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♣ ? Pass 2 ♣ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
A.—Usually, when partner makes a demand bid you want to set the trump suit as soon as possible. Here, however, you have an excellent source of tricks in the spade suit. If you raise hearts immediately, you might not be able to get that message across to partner. Respond two spades, then jump in hearts at your next turn.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AQ872 ♥AJ7 ♦832 ♣76
 Your partner opens the bidding with a demand bid of two hearts. What do you respond?
A.—You are in slam territory, but can take no precipitate action because of your two fast losers in hearts. However, it is incumbent on you to tell partner about your strong hand and excellent support—jump to four clubs.

Dukakis Finishing We could be

By DAVID S. BRODER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

ATLANTA — Dixie Democrats are putting out the welcome mat for prospective presidential nominee Michael S. Dukakis.

After hiding from their national ticket four years ago, southern Democratic officials are telling the Massachusetts governor's aides that Vice President Bush does not have their region's electoral votes locked up unless Dukakis decides to default.

If he shores up his national security image, talks jobs for rural as well as urban areas, and especially — as Alabama Democratic executive director Al LaPierre puts it — he picks as his running mate "someone who can say 'y'all,' we're in business" to compete for the South's 138 electoral votes in 11 states, all of which went to President Reagan in 1984.

The consensus of state party chairmen and executive directors interviewed during a weekend meeting here was summed up by Texas chairman Robert Slagle, who called a Dukakis victory in Bush's adopted home state "a do-able deal."

Several of the freshman Democratic senators from the South, interviewed separately in Washington, expressed more caution. Sen. Richard C. Shelby, D-Ala., in a typical comment, said, "It's going to be difficult for a Dukakis-headed ticket to carry states between Virginia and Texas. But it's not impossible."

Senators or party officials from such key states as Texas, Florida, Georgia and Virginia said Dukakis would probably start from behind against the vice president, in part because he is much less known. In one way or another, most of the southerners expressed fears that Republicans will move quickly to label Dukakis a typical northeastern liberal, whose values are alien and perhaps hostile to the "God, flag and country" psychology of the South.

Sen. Wyche Fowler Jr., D-Ga., perhaps the most liberal of the five Dixie Democrats who took over Republican-held seats in 1986, said, "Dukakis will be a good candidate in Georgia, except for the fact that I've had to deal with, of Republicans trying to make you an alter ego for Ted Kennedy."

The campaign has barely begun, but already Republicans have focused on Dukakis' opposition to the death penalty, his denunciation of administration policy in Nicaragua and his veto of a state law to require teachers to lead their classes in the pledge of allegiance.

"He needs to get out in the field with the troops at Fort Benning, stop by the space center in Huntsville and start his rallies with the Star-Spangled Banner," said the campaign manager for one of the newly elected southern Democratic senators. "Symbolism is important in the South. People will tolerate a good deal of difference on policy, but if they don't think you share their values, they write you off."

So far, said the southern Democratic officials, Dukakis has escaped that fate by avoiding some of the perceptions that crippled former vice president Walter F. Mondale in 1984. Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla. said the organizational groundwork Dukakis laid in winning both Florida and Texas in March's "Super Tuesday" primary voting "will stand him in good stead" in the Nov. 8 general election. But he said it is plausible to him that Bush has a 10-percentage point lead in Florida, as a recent public poll estimated.

Sen. John Breaux, D-La., said, "Our (national) candidates have been plagued by three things: the tax-and-spend label, the special-interest tag and the perception that they're weak on defense. Dukakis has done an outstanding job on the first two. He's reminded everyone he's balanced 10 budgets and is not asking for a tax increase. He has not subscribed to demands from Jesse Jackson for doubling the education budget, and he's stood up to pressure from the gays on some of their issues."

But Breaux, like others, said

Dukakis "needs to shore up his national defense and foreign policy image, and (Sen.) Sam Nunn, D-Ga., could really help him there."

Nunn, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee who disappointed many southerners when he declined to run for president, remains the Dixie party leaders' overwhelming choice for vice president. By comparison, Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, is often described as being "acceptable but of marginal value" in the South, and other southerners, such as Graham, Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., and Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., are viewed as plausible only if Dukakis adopts a "single-state strategy," hoping they could deliver their own electoral votes.

"YOUR HOME IS WHERE OUR HEART IS"

Why? Because making home loans is the heart of our business. In this area more people come to us for home loans than to any other bank, mortgage company or savings institution.

We offer competitive rates. Fast answers. And we want to lend you the money you need.

When you're looking for a home loan, what counts is performance. And PERFORMANCE is The First Federal Commitment.
