YOUNG PATRIOT — Tyler Tuck, 2, of Greenville holds an American flag at a dedication ceremony Monday night at Homestead Memorial Park east of Greenville. The ceremony remembered American hostages held in Lebanon, with a flag raised for each hostage.

Members of two of their families and a co-worker were on hand to speak. Speakers also linked the ceremony to the Americans still listed as missing in action in Southeast Asia. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis)

Pitt Budget Proposal Falls Short Of Needs

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A proposed $35.45 million budget for 1988-1989, which would require a tax rate of about 60 cents per $100 valuation to fund, was presented to Pitt County Commissioners for the first time at a workshop meeting Monday.

But County Manager Kramer Jackson, when he submitted the proposed budget to the board, said, "It isn't a budget that offers very much." More than $8.51 million worth of requests made by the various county agencies and departments were not included in Jackson's recommendations, he said.

And board Chairman Charles Gaskins said the proposed budget offers "a rather bleak picture" to commissioners, who had hoped to see a sizeable increase in the county's tax base because of property revaluation and an accompanying reduction in the tax rate.

This year's budget proposal totals some $41.6 million.

Jackson told the board that the proposed budget includes two parts: a maintenance budget amounting to some $34.65 million (down $1.83 million from this year's $36.46 million) "to reflect the cost of operating county government next year at the same operating level of the current budget year," and an expansion budget including some $4.82 million (including such things as capital outlay items, expanded programs and salary increases).

Jackson said the $4.82 million he proposed in the expansion budget does not include such things as: money for across-the-board pay raises for county workers (it would take an additional $93,625 for a 5 percent pay increase); no money to fund 24 new positions requested by Sheriff Ralph Tyson; $159,312 requested by

Memorial Honors U.S. Hostages

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Pageantry planned by Greenville area residents Monday to honor the hostages in Lebanon attracted families of hostages and news media from distant places.

Declared "Remember the Hostages Day" in Greenville and nine other eastern North Carolina cities and towns, the day was climaxed with a 7 p.m. ceremony held at Homestead Memorial Gardens east of Greenville. Veterans groups, singers, Boy and Girl Scouts, dignitaries, and relatives and a co-worker of Americans kidnapped by terrorists in Lebanon participated.

Donald Mell, an Associated Press photographer who saw AP correspondent Terry Anderson kidnapped on March 16, 1985, described the kidnapping and the fear that he felt at the time. He suggested that those gathered in Greenville also pay tribute to the 250 Marines who died in Lebanon when terrorists drove a car filled with explosives into their compound.

"Terry and I covered that story," he said. "He was an ex-Marine and I saw how affected by it all he was."

Anthony Cicippio of Pennsylvania, accompanied by three other members of the family of Joe Cicippio, a hostage since Sept. 12, 1986, said hostage families often feel frustrated by their loved one's plight. "We are heartened by the love and caring and understanding we've been shown here," he said. "What has been done here today is a true example of the brotherhood of man."

Joe Cicippio was serving as acting comptroller of the American University in Beirut when he was kidnapped.

Maryland Hughes, accompanied by her husband, Robert, said she and the rest of the family of Frank H. Reed are "touched by the caring of the people of eastern North Carolina." Her father, the director of a private school in Lebanon, was captured Sept. 9, 1986. She said she is optimistic that the hostages will be freed soon.

Two Die As Trucks Hit Head-on

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Two women were killed on N.C. 43 four miles west of Greenville Monday afternoon when the pickup trucks in which each was a passenger collided head-on.

Martha Beasley Davis, 61, of Route 2, Beaufort, and Shari Kay Horton, 18, of Wellston, Mich., were reported dead at the scene.

Mrs. Davis was a passenger in a truck driven by her husband, Wilson White Davis, 57, also of Route 2, Beaufort. Ms. Horton was a passenger in a truck driven by Chad Lee Miller, 21, of Hastings, Mich.

Wilson Davis was listed in critical condition at Pitt County Memorial Hospital this morning.

Investigating officer Trooper A.G. Wright said the accident apparently occurred when Miller, traveling north, passed another vehicle in a no passing zone. He said Miller's truck and the Davis vehicle, which was towing an empty horse trailer, hit "headlight-to-headlight."

Traffic was diverted for about an hour following the 5:15 p.m. collision.

Pitt Says 'No' To Park

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners adopted a resolution Monday calling for a halt in efforts to create a waste park for low-level radioactive and hazardous waste disposal in eastern Edgecombe County until a fact-finding commission can gather information on how such a facility will affect other counties in the area.

The board's action, taken after discussing the proposed waste park with members of the county's legislative delegation, recommends the appointment of a fact-finding body in conjunction with other local governments.

In related action Monday, the Farmville and Bethel town boards adopted resolutions opposing the creation of the proposed waste disposal park near the Pitt County line.

Edgecombe County Commissioners, at a public meeting in Tarboro last week, proposed the creation of a 3,000-acre "North Carolina Waste Management Park." The park would include a low-level radioactive waste disposal site, a hazardous waste treatment facility and a regional solid waste management operation.

And Edgecombe officials implied that millions of dollars in state incentives would come to the county if a low-level radio active waste disposal site is located there.

City To Change Bankers

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville City Council unanimously voted at a workshop session Monday to have Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. provide the city's banking services for the next two years. Previously those services have been provided by Planters National Bank.

According to Ron Kimble, city finance director, the change comes as a result of the city seeking proposals from area banks to locate the bank which will offer the city the most cost-effective financial service and to foster a competitive spirit within the banking environment.

The four banks providing proposals to the city were Planters National Bank, Branch Banking and Trust Co., NCNB National Bank and Wachovia.

Kimble said, of those four proposals, Wachovia offered the city the best net relative gain.

"The net relative gain of choosing

Wachovia is $6,396 over the nearest competitor, which arises from the smaller amount of money which is required to be placed in a non-interest bearing account," he said.

"This non-interest bearing account is what we refer to as the minimum compensating balance, which substitutes for any and all service charges that would arise from the banking institutions to the city," he added.

Area Court To Get More Judges

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

In response to a lawsuit by the Republican Party, the Democratic-controlled N.C. General Assembly has made changes in the 3rd Judicial District that will mean more Superior Court judges for Pitt County and eastern North Carolina.

As economic development attracted more people to Pitt County over the last decade, the volume of court cases has outgrown the courthouse facilities and more judges are needed to handle the caseload.

Superior Court Judges David E.

This is the last article of a series focusing on the needs of a growing Pitt County court system.

Reid Jr. of Greenville and Herbert O. Phillips III of Morehead City currently serve as resident judges in the 3rd Judicial District, which consists of Pitt, Craven, Carteret and Pamlico counties. But their district will be split in 1989.

"The 3rd Judicial District will be divided into 3A and 3B beginning January 1," said Pitt County District Attorney Thomas Haigwood.

"Three-A will be Pitt County and Judge Reid. Three-B will be Craven, Carteret and Pamlico, and Judge Phillips will be the resident judge."

A federal lawsuit filed by the Republican Party — on the behalf of black Republicans — charged that the 3rd Judicial District did not comply with the Voting Rights Act of 1965, and the General Assembly redrew the district after several years of litigation, said Reid, the senior resident Superior Court judge for the district.

The suit was filed on behalf of black Republicans because a political party cannot be considered a minority, said Reid. State Sen. Thomas F. Taft, D-Pitt, said the suit was a clever political maneuver to increase chances of Republican Superior Court judges being elected.

A number of Republican Superior Court judges have been appointed in North Carolina, but none have been

Blacks Question School Procedures Developed To Choose Top Officials

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Black members of the Pitt County Board of Education were bothered by the wording, the lack of checks and balances and some procedures for selecting administrative and supervisory personnel as the board reviewed personnel guidelines in a workshop meeting Monday.

Leck Keeter, associate superintendent for personnel and administrative services, presented procedures in developing a pool of candidates for administrative positions. He was assisted in the presentation by Tina Drye, director of certificated personnel, and Norwood Randolph, principal of Falkland Elementary School.

After the presentation, Donovan Phillips said modifying screening requirements to comply with the board's affirmative action policy bothered him, because "it hints minority candidates are inferior... it throws a bad light on minorities coming in."

Superintendent Eddie West said not all candidates have the initial screening criteria when they apply. They may lack a couple of courses toward getting a necessary degree.

Ms. Drye said, "We wouldn't want to miss a minority candidate because they're one course away."

Phillips said no good candidate should be denied access into the candidate pool because of the lack of one course. The procedure needs "rewording that wouldn't carry a stigma," he said.

Walter Morehead was concerned that no weight was given to candidates with "experience in the multicultural arena," or candidates who have experiences with many cultures and ethnic groups.

West said that would fall into areas of criteria already established in the procedures.

"It should be spelled out," Morehead said. "That could be guessing to me."

Morehead also was concerned that a candidate "moving away from the norm" in ideas, appearance, etc., may not get the same consideration for being added to the pool of candidates.

Ms. Drye said those participating in the screening process — a superintendent, a central office coordinator, a personnel officer, a principal or assistant principal, one of which is a minority — have participated in in-service programs to learn interviewing skills and how to keep biases out of the process.

Mary Williams was concerned with the confidentiality of the information in a candidate's folder and whether the candidate information is screened by employees before Keeter or Mrs. Drye sees it.

"There is a reason for this low rate for blacks being hired. I'm saying at some point they are screened," Ms. Williams said.

Keeter said all candidates meeting the criteria are placed in an active pool of candidates, while those not meeting the criteria are placed into an inactive file until they meet the criteria.

Frank Grooms said the administration could not have anyone to check what each person does on the job, while Ms. Williams said, "somebody has got to do that for it to be a fair system."

West said the procedures to handle information coming into the office is "cut and dry. If it's close, I feel confident that (Keeter) looks at the candidate."

Keeter said 24 people within the school system recently have been screened for admission into the administrative candidate pool. Those outside of the school system are being interviewed this week, he said.

In addition to the necessary education and experience requirements, candidates must show leadership characteristics, success in problem solving, application of knowledge and understanding, supervisory skills, morale building ability, attention to detail and routine, community and parent relations and personal characteristics such as health and vitality, Ms. Drye said.

They are interviewed by administrators with predetermined questions and questions the administrators bring into the interview from personal experiences. The administrators then rate the candidates individually and collectively to determine whether they should be considered in the pool and where their skills could best serve the school system.

When a position is open, the pool of candidates is reviewed by West, with input from the screening team, and the "best" candidate for that particular position is hired.

Robertson Backers To Boycott Session

RALEIGH (AP) — Pat Robertson supporters will boycott next week's state Republican convention because party regulars are plotting to exclude them from meaningful participation, a spokeswoman said today.

"By not participating in a process designed to abuse our delegates, we believe we are today making a positive protest that we hope will help deter similar behavior in the future," said Sue Wyatt, the state chairman of Robertson's organization.

Ms. Wyatt accused state GOP Chairman Jack Hawke of stacking key committees and levying a "staggering" fee of up to $150 for convention delegates in an alleged effort to deter Robertson supporters from attending.

She also criticized Gov. Jim Martin for refusing to get involved in the dispute and said she was reserving judgment on whether to support his re-election.

The Robertson leadership's decision apparently will spare the GOP the bloody fight many had feared at the June 3-4 state convention.

At issue is the interpretation of party rules governing the election of delegates to the state and national GOP conventions.

Although Robertson got less than 10 percent of the vote in the March 8 presidential primary, his supporters packed many precinct and county conventions — often comprising a majority.

Two Questions From Readers, With Answers

(1) Q. I have a Burial Insurance policy with a Burial Association. I bought the policy through a Funeral Home. My question is: Is my policy good only at the Funeral Home from which I bought the policy?

A. The policy you have is good at any Funeral Home anywhere. The policy does not require that your services be at any particular Funeral Home. The policy will be honored by any reputable Funeral Director.

(2) Q. My family owns a burial plot in a cemetery that is owned by a Funeral Home. Does a member of my family, who is entitled to be buried in that plot, have to use the services of the Funeral Home that owns the cemetery?

A. No indeed. A cemetery lot is a private piece of property. The owner of the lot may elect to have the services of any Funeral Home he cares to choose.

We invite our readers to write us, or phone, for information about funeral services.

by the local American Legion chapter and the flanking of a memorial near the front of Homestead Memorial Gardens by Boy and Girl Scouts in uniform and members of several veterans groups, an American flag honoring each of the hostages was raised. Each was embroidered with the name of a hostage.

Framed by a setting sun, members of the local chapter of the Vietnam Veterans of American did the honors. The name of each hostage and the date he was captured was read.

The flags, which will continue to fly, are displayed inside two star-shaped brickwork foundations. They are on land donated by former Greenville Mayor Frank Wooten.

Flags of each of the other countries which also have citizens held hostage in Lebanon were also displayed during the ceremony — those of France, Italy, West Germany, India and Ireland. Each of these hostages' names and each date of capture was also read.

A portion of the ceremony was dedicated to Terry Waite, the Anglican Church official from Great Britain who was captured Jan. 20, 1987, as he worked for the release of the previously captured hostages. A British flag was raised in his honor flanking an American flag and a POW-MIA flag.

A reporter and cameramen from the British Broadcasting Company filmed the ceremony. They indicated they were present because Terry Waite was among those being honored.

Allan Hoffman, a local television newsman and member of the Vietnam Veterans of America, when the POW-MIA flag was raised, called attention to the 2,000 people missing in action since the Vietnam War. He called the hostages in Lebanon "MIAs of another war — a war of terrorism." He said the MIA flag emblazoned with the words, "You Are Not Forgotten" was being raised, "not in defeat and regret, but in determination."

Greenville Mayor Ed Carter and Vietnam Veterans member Ed Griffith welcomed the hostages' families to Greenville. Carter said President Reagan, Vice President Bush and other national dignitaries were invited. He pledged his office's continued support of efforts to have the hostages freed.

The 2nd Division U.S. Marine Corps Band performed for the service. Taps was played for the two hostages known to have died in captivity, William Buckley and Peter Kilburn.

A gospel group, A Change of Heart, sang "Let There Be Peace on Earth and Let It Begin with Me." Ministers Terry Hardison and Bobby Aycock led opening and closing prayers.

Also on the speakers' platform was Farmville Mayor Edna Earle Baker. She said that earlier in the day she drove some hostages' family members to Farmville to view a U.S. flag displayed on the Town Common there which also has hostages' names embroidered on it.

Wreck

The roadway was blocked by the overturned horse trailer and other debris and work was under way for some time to free the wreck victims. A Hurst power tool was reportedly used to extricate Ms. Horton's body.

Miller was reportedly in this area doing construction work in the Tarboro area and had come to Greenville to pick up Ms. Horton and take her to Tarboro where they were to meet his brother, also a construction worker, for a trip out of town.

Mrs. Davis was the former owner of the Eastern Weekly newspaper of Beaufort. She founded the newspaper in 1979 and sold it last July 15. She and her husband were the owners of a race horse stabled in West Virginia and were returning home from Maryland when the accident occurred.

Wright said investigation of the accident is continuing.

Fire Death

ASHEVILLE (AP) — A 7-year-old West Asheville girl who sustained first- and second-degree burns in a weekend house fire that killed her sister was discharged Monday from Memorial Mission Hospital.

Monique Lordman was injured when fire swept through her home early Sunday. The body of her 5-year-old sister, Christie Swepson, was found in the living room.

The children were alone when the fire was reported at 12:41 a.m. Firefighters attempted to rescue the five-year-old girl, but were driven back by heat and smoke.

The girls' mother, Tausha Swepson, arrived while firefighters were battling the blaze.

New York Finds Spotted Fever

BOSTON (AP) — Rocky Mountain spotted fever, largely a hazard of the suburbs and countryside, has turned up in New York City, where four cases were confirmed recently, including one that proved fatal, doctors said.

The cases occurred last summer, and all four New Yorkers apparently caught it near where they lived in the borough of the Bronx, according to Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

"There are many dangers of life in New York City, but until now they have not included Rocky Mountain spotted fever," Dr. David T. Durack of Duke University commented in an editorial in the journal.

A team headed by Dr. Miklos P. Salgo of Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York reported tracking down the probable culprits — ticks in the Bronx' Soundview park that carried bacteria responsible for the fever.

One of the victims, a 10-year-old boy, died of the infection.

The disease can be stopped if treated quickly with antibiotics. The doctors said physicians should consider Rocky Mountain spotted fever whenever trying to diagnose unexplained febrile illnesses, even if the patients haven't traveled to places where the disease is common.

The disease is most frequent in the south Atlantic and south central states. About 3 percent to 6 percent of recognized cases are fatal.

The North Carolina rural fire departments will receive $69,185 in federal grant funds from the program for fiscal year 1988-89. The money will be used to purchase various firefighting equipment ranging from "turn-out gear" (helmets, coats and boots) and hoses to pumps and pumper trucks.

Area fire departments receiving matching funds included: Pitt County — Grifton, $485; Farmville Rural Fire Association, $485; Greene County — Bullhead, $1,000; Castoria, $485; Jason, $485; Arba Rural Fire Association, $485.00; Scuffletown Rural Fire Association, $485, and Fort Run Rural Fire Association, $485.

Suspects

RALEIGH (AP) — Three men arrested by Wilson police last week are suspects in a series of armed robberies throughout eastern North Carolina, authorities said Monday.

The three Wilson men have been charged with robberies in Wilson, Raleigh, Pikesville, Goldsboro and Wake County, authorities said. They also were charged with kidnapping a bank teller in Beaufort County and are suspects in crimes in other cities.

Raleigh police Monday charged Frederick Bellamy, 31; Terry Lee Hamilton, 26; and Lamont Brewington, 31, with two counts of armed robbery and 15 counts of second-degree kidnapping.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Courting Disaster

Overcrowding Must Be Addressed

Juveniles waiting in halls and on sidewalks? District Court in Greenville's City Council chambers? Court convening wherever a vacant room is available?

These aren't scenes from "L.A. Law," they are real-life problems here in Pitt County. The courts are overcrowded; they are pressured by growth and the failure of public funding to keep pace. That is not the ideal way to administer justice for the public.

But the county's District Court criminal case load has doubled in the past five years — from 17,000 to 34,000 in 1987, and its legal system has been forced to adapt. The figures cited above and the space shortage they spurned are persuasive evidence that Pitt County needs a strong, long-term plan to provide sufficient space for public business. And in addition, it needs the financial commitment to implement such an approach.

These court needs should be strongly considered as the county plans its new government complex. A court complex housing district, superior and even federal courts and offices could be the most feasible solution.

The consequences of shirking this obligation are serious, for a criminal justice system is the foundation on which a county's integrity and protection rests. It is essential that this system have the room to properly provide its very important functions. Lawbreakers must be prosecuted; the innocent must be confidently defended. All have the right to a fair and speedy trial.

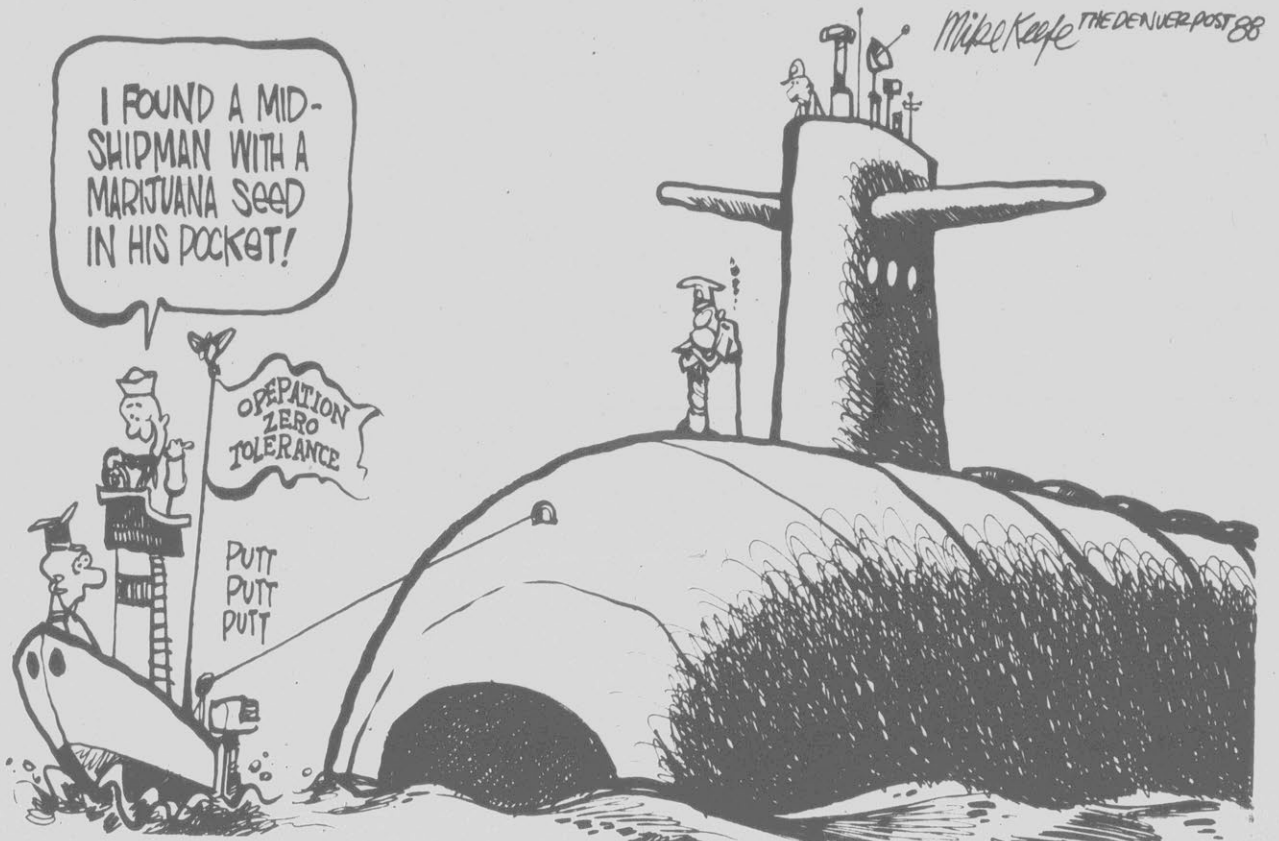

But this requirement simply cannot be realized with a court system so beleaguered by overcrowding that juvenile court is held in a magistrate's office and the spillover must wait in the halls and street. When the circumstances surrounding the administration of justice resemble a circus — court sessions "camping out" in vacant rooms, sessions being held in the county's law library, court being held in cities 10 and 15 miles away, sometimes locations with no telephone access — the proceedings suffer.

The district attorney's office and court officials have done a laudable job adapting to these adversities. District Attorney Tom Haigwood's planning initiatives — consolidating worthless check, traffic, assault, etc. cases into special courts and assigning police officers specific days in court — are efficiency moves and represent a good approach. A recently-completed fourth courtroom will also ease space problems.

But unless future needs are considered and adequate space is planned, these measures will only keep the court system from being overwhelmed. Population growth is a desirable goal, and not an unexpected phenomenon for Pitt County. As more people move to a community, the demand for services — legal included — increases. Why, then, has the explosion in court cases, which followed Pitt's population boom of the 1980s, not been accompanied by appropriate expansion in court space and staff?

Pitt's officials should be looking to the year 2000 when, based on its record of growth in the past decade, the county may handle 62,600 court cases. That time is 12 years away. That load cannot be handled by the staff and facilities of 1988.

Public officials must prepare for the future and plan an aggressive approach to avert what sounds like legal disaster. A sound criminal justice and court system is a county's foremost defense against criminal activities and corruption. It should be adequately provided for.

To the editor:

As a Pitt County resident who works in Edgecombe County, I am dismayed at the recent recommendation of Edgecombe County officials to consider placing a waste "park" in Edgecombe County. My, isn't it amazing that what used to be called a dump is now a "park."

Representative Mavretic says hosting the facility would be like taking "three lemons and making lemonade." But what does that lemonade taste like years from now?

What happens in 30 years when the dump is closed due to space limitations? What happens if the low-level radioactive waste or other hazardous chemicals leach into the water supply? Why are children and pregnant women not allowed to visit the current facility in Barnwell, S.C.?

The commissioners state that the dump will establish "progress" in Edgecombe County. Yet I do not believe that the Barnwell, S.C., area is listed among the top places to live and work.

The officials of Edgecombe County should redirect their energies into recruiting other industry into the county which will not jeopardize their fellow residents' health and environment.

This is in regard to Mr. Sturz's letter in the May 17 edition. Not all liberals, peaceniks, etc. are into America-bashing. The United States is very dear to me and many others (liberals, peaceniks, etc.).

Personally, I'm proud to be counted as an American citizen. But as an American, I must speak out when I see policies that are not in the best interest of this nation and the world, because our policies do affect the world.

You are right about the Soviet Union not keeping the treaties which they sign. But before we point fingers at them, we should take a look at our own nation. We have not kept one treaty which our government has signed with the Native Americans. So are we any better than the Soviets on keeping treaties? No, we are just like them in regard to honoring treaties.

The leaders in Moscow do not know if we will keep to the provisions in the INF treaty any more than we know if they will keep to the provisions of the treaty. That's why means of verification are included in the INF treaty. Verification allows us and the Soviets to work together. And this results in our getting to know each other and start to build trust. Trust does not happen overnight and we will never have complete trust between us due to our societal differences. But now is the time to build all the trust we can between us and unite our talents to solve the problems facing our planet (i.e., hunger, pollution, etc.).

To the editor:

With all the talk of beautification in Greenville, one of the city's loveliest landmarks is about to be destroyed. I speak of that fine wooded plot on the corner of 14th and Charles where the Arthur house stands. If all goes as planned, it will soon be a shopping center.

The house is one of the oldest in Greenville because every house built before 1840 has been torn down. It has been suggested that the house be preserved by relocation. I propose that a better idea would be to preserve it where it was built. The grounds are an essential part of the house's character. It is the setting that makes it so charming. If it is relocated, money will have to be found for moving it and a new lot must be obtained. I doubt the house will be as impressive if plunked down on a treeless lot somewhere outside Greenville. The present lot is at least as worthy of preservation as the house.

Greenville is rapidly expanding southward and, to my knowledge, no parks have been planned for the broad suburban sprawl that now composes the southern half of our town. Here is a suggestion: Create a vestpocket park on 14th Street with the Arthur house as its focal point. Perhaps it could be transformed into a museum of rural life in an eastern North Carolina farmhouse. Where would the money come from? An arts and humanities foundation might foot part of the bill.

Somehow the cities of New Bern, Bath, Washington, Edenton and Tarboro saw fit to preserve their old buildings and now they enjoy healthy tourism as a result, besides the benefit to the locals of a prettier place to live! And look at the success of "adaptive reuse" of the old plant by City Lake in Rocky Mount.

Elderly residents tell me they are disappointed to see ancient trees felled and replaced with "a bush in a bucket." Must every corner of an intersection be developed? Aren't there some niceties of urban life that can't be measured in financial terms — such as the refreshing sight of a shady grove on a hot Southern summer day?

Wheeling & Dealing With Noriega

"Hello, is this Elliot Abrams? This is the President. What have you worked out with Noriega?"

"We have it all wrapped up in a neat package, Mr. President."

"That's what you told me two months ago. Why hasn't he stepped down?"

"He says if he has to leave Panama he wants to be Attorney General of the United States."

"That's out of the question and you know it, Elliot. I'm sticking by Ed Meese. If I replace Ed with Noriega it will look as if Meese did something wrong. You tell him it's no deal."

"I will, but I know what he is going to say. He'll tell me that if he can't be Attorney General he wants to be chief of the Drug Enforcement Agency."

"No way, Elliot. The head of the DEA has to be an American citizen, hopefully with an unblemished record."

"I'm aware of that, but the trouble is Noriega thinks he is calling the shots because he knows we'll do practically anything to get him out of Panama. The last time I talked to him he told me that if he can't be director of the DEA he wants Lee Iacocca's job."

"Why does he want to do that?"

"He said he has a bad image in the United States and he thought he could improve it by doing television commercials for the Chrysler Corporation. He also wants a free pass to Space Mountain at Disney World."

"That's too much. As President of the United States I can't OK a free pass for Disney World. Congress will say I'm soft on cocaine smugglers. Tell Noriega if he doesn't step down in a week I will resort to stronger methods."

"That's what you said to tell him the last time we made our absolute final offer. Noriega told me to tell you that he is sitting tight unless we give him a Trident submarine."

"What does he want with a Trident submarine?"

"He said it is perfect transportation for cruising from Colombia to the Florida Keys. Mr. President, I think he's toying with us. I have a hunch he would accept a plain, everyday missile destroyer if we made a hard offer."

"Elliot, the Pentagon is not for sale. If we give Noriega a destroyer how do we know he won't come back the following week and demand 20 Stealth bombers?"

"We could always offer him Jimmy Swaggart's evangelical TV program. Noriega can raise more money on the show than he can selling dope."

"Try it out on him. If he turns us down what do we do then?"

"We have intelligence, Mr. President, that Noriega told several cronies that he would like to be a guest on 'Wheel of Fortune.'"

"What for?"

"He is very excited about the prizes someone can win if they get lucky. What I suggest is that we telecast a 'Wheel of Fortune' show from Panama and have Vanna White rig it so Noriega will win an electric organ, a camper and a ceramic bulldog. But he has to pick them up in Guatemala."

"All right, Elliot. But that's our last offer. Tell Noriega that if he won't listen to reason I'm going to send Don Regan down there and have him write a 'kiss and tell' book about him."

Reagan, Gorbachev Inch Forward On Numerous Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Business as usual" may be the motto of the Moscow summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, a meeting expected to produce no major agreements but many smiles.

The two leaders will be smiling not just for the television cameras, but in recognition that they are inching forward in serious negotiations on many issues, in contrast to the trans-Atlantic shouting matches that characterized the early years of the Reagan administration.

Reagan's visit to Moscow, the first by an American president in 14 years, is not so much a victory for the policies of either power as a "triumph of logic," as both sides realize they cannot afford to continue the current pace of military competition, said John Steinbruner of the Brookings Institution.

One of Gorbachev's advisers, Georgi Arbatov, agreed, telling a Washington news conference May 5, "We have synchronized phases of our development."

Reagan and Gorbachev have met three times, most recently in Washington last December when they signed a treaty to eliminate medium-range nuclear weapons. That treaty is being debated in the Senate, and it still is not clear whether it will be ratified before the May 29-June 2 summit in Moscow.

If Reagan and Gorbachev can part company in Moscow without arguing about the Strategic Defense Initiative, better known as Star Wars, or other contentious issues, it will mark something of a victory for what Helmut Sonnenfeldt calls Gorbachev's "high wire acts in international diplomacy."

One of those high wire acts was the argument over SDI that ended the second Reagan-Gorbachev summit in Reykjavik, Iceland, in October 1986.

Gorbachev is not looking for an argument at the Moscow summit, says Spurgeon M. Keeny Jr., president of the liberal Arms Control Association.

The Soviets, said Keeny, "have to be careful if they want the summit to be a success, and not throw a wet cat on the table."

Among the surprises that Gorbachev might have up his sleeve, say administration officials, is an announcement of a unilateral withdrawal of up to 100,000 troops from Eastern Europe.

It is more likely, according to government and academic experts, that the two leaders will use the Moscow summit to announce some progress on the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks to cut long-range nuclear arsenals by 30 percent to 50 percent. And they are likely to hail the withdrawal of the first Red Army soldiers from Afghanistan, praise the beginning of the first ever U.S.-Soviet joint business ventures, and perhaps sign protocols on fishing and culture.

And smile a lot. "There is a host of bilateral agreements currently having the finishing touches put to them," said Assistant Secretary of State Rozanne L. Ridgway. "Which will be ready for the summit is not clear."

All those together do not add up to the long hoped for treaty to slash nuclear arsenals.

But they are a whole lot better than the superpower growling that was going on during Reagan's first years, when 115,000 Red Army troops were newly arrived in Afghanistan, the Soviet army was threatening to invade Poland, and Reagan was accusing the Soviets of violating every arms deal they had signed.

A harmonious summit would strengthen Gorbachev's hand on the eve of an important Communist Party conference at the end of June by proving that he can manage relations with the United States.

For Reagan, "this visit, even if it is another quiet summit, is kind of a capstone to his policy ... be tough, be realistic, call a spade a spade, build your strength. But be ready to talk," said Sonnenfeldt, who worked in the White House at the height of detente under presidents Nixon and Ford.

"We are getting into issues more deeply than we have done before, and it is due in large part to the persistence of the Reagan administration," said Sonnenfeldt, who is now at Brookings. "The coincidence of Ronald Reagan appearing in Moscow as the Soviets leave Afghanistan demonstrates the success of his efforts to slow down the momentum of Soviet expansionism."

Bryan Brumley, a Washington-based national security reporter for The Associated Press, has reported on U.S.-Soviet affairs since 1981, when he was a correspondent in Moscow.

Near-Hurricane Winds Slap Central N.C.

By The Associated Press

A line of fierce thunderstorms with winds near hurricane force and some reported funnel clouds tore through North Carolina, knocking over trees and buildings, sparking fires and leaving thousands of customers without electricity.

"We've had trees down on power lines, trees down on houses, trailers, porches," a harried dispatcher with Guilford County Emergency Services said about 10 p.m. Monday.

Winds were clocked as high as 72 miles per hour at Piedmont Triad International Airport, just 2 mph below hurricane strength.

Duke Power Co. officials said as many as 23,000 customers may have lost their electric service Monday.

"We've got a number of circuits out," said Jerry Martin, a Duke supervisor.

The roofs were blown off of five buildings at a Burlington apartment complex as 49 people were evacuated, according to a spokesman for the Alamance County communications office. No one was injured.

At the height of the storm Monday night, 15,000 Alamance County homes were without power, but by today, only 2,800 were still without power, said Jim Murphy of Duke Power.

The Greensboro Fire Department received dozens of calls, including building and transformer fires and downed power lines.

Guilford County volunteer fire departments had responded to as many as 75 calls by 10 p.m. — mostly from downed power lines, County Fire Marshal Joseph Bryant said.

Clyde Farmer of Greensboro jumped off his living room couch when a pine tree fell on his trailer.

"I thought it was an earthquake the way it shook the trailer," Farmer, 69, said.

A funnel cloud coupled with severe thunderstorms raked across Union County, damaging poultry buildings, snapping power poles and knocking out telephone service near Monroe, but authorities say no injuries were reported.

Union County emergency management coordinator Geneva McAllister said a funnel cloud apparently touched down in the southern part of the county near the South Carolina border.

"At this point, we think it may have hit a turkey building, but we're aren't sure," Ms. McAllister said. She said she had received reports of damage to some chicken buildings and to a grocery store in the county. Winds and heavy rains also knocked down trees.

Assistant county manager Larry McGinnis said officials were having trouble determining how much damage had been done because of the telephone problems.

"The area we've had the most activity in is the one with the phones out, too," McGinnis said.

McGinnis said officials also received a report that heavy winds blew over a two-car shed and damaged two cars about 10 miles north of Monroe off N.C. 200.

Rick Neal of the National Weather Service office in Greensboro said he had received reports of damage from what may have been a tornado in eastern Alamance County. Four houses there were damaged and a person was reported pinned under a tree.

There were also unconfirmed reports of a tornado in Chatham County.

In Randolph County there were reports of golf ball-sized hail. Pellet-size hail was reported in parts of Greensboro, and an amateur radio operator reported 3/4-inch hail just south of Monroe.

In Wake County, the storms caused scattered power outages, and spawned wind gusts of up to 52 mph at the Raleigh-Durham Airport about 10:30 p.m. Trees were reported down in parts of Orange, Durham, Person and Wake counties late Monday.

In Roxboro, several fires were ignited by the storms, according to spokesmen with the Roxboro Police and Person County Sheriff's Department, but no injuries or serious damage had been reported by late Monday.

The National Weather Service issued a severe thunderstorm watch for large portions of central and eastern North Carolina until 4 a.m. today.

Preachers

MARION, N.C. (AP) — The minister of the street-preaching Strode family says controversy over the family has led to harassment of church members and is hurting the church's work.

"I believe it's a trick of the devil to discredit our ministry," the Rev. Danny Castle of New Maina Baptist Church said.

David and Robin Strode's three children, Duffy, Pepper and Matthew, have been suspended four times from Eastfield Elementary School for violating school rules when Duffy and Matthew preached on school grounds.

Castle said his differences with Strode are over the issue of obeying authority.

"We're law-abiding, God-fearing but law-abiding. We are to obey the law of man until it conflicts with the law of God, but this case is not like that," Castle said.

Arraignment

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — Attorneys for the man accused of killing judicial candidate Julian Pierce have asked that his trial be moved out of Robeson County and that they be given $1,000 for opinion polls to prove their client cannot get a fair trial in the county.

"Any prosecutor of this case in Robeson or any adjacent county (would) be highly controversial in light of the rumors and feelings regarding racial or political motives for the murder," Evander M. Britt III and Donald W. Bullard, attorneys for Sandy Jordan Chavis, wrote in a motion to move the trial.

Britt and Bullard, in a separate motion filed Monday, also asked the court for $1,000 to conduct opinion polls of Robeson area residents to prove that Chavis could not receive a fair trial because of pre-trial publicity.

Chavis was arraigned Monday and is scheduled to go on trial July 5.

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The Howard Hughes Medical Institute has awarded $800,000 to Wake Forest University to support an expansion of the university's undergraduate biological science research and curriculum, the institute announced Monday.

At Wake Forest, the award will be used for laboratory equipment for teaching and research, modification of the existing curriculum, financial stipends for undergraduate student research during summer months and a program that will make more courses available at times accessible for public high school teachers seeking advanced degrees.

Sheriff

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The Columbus County Commissioners postponed a decision Monday on hiring a sheriff, saying they needed more time to interview candidates.

The commissioners will discuss a replacement for Bill Rhodes at their next scheduled meeting, on June 6. Commissioner Buddy Byrd said it was "very possible" that a sheriff would be hired then.

Henry Rowan, the county coroner, will continue to serve as sheriff. Rowan took over April 28 after Rhodes was removed from office in Superior Court.

School Board, NCAE Make Pitch For Bigger Pay Hikes For Teachers

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Board of Education is seeking a 7 percent pay increase for teachers, while the state's biggest teacher organization wants 12 percent, but legislators say they doubt they can meet either request.

Gov. Jim Martin has requested a 4.5 percent pay raise for state employees.

"Four and a half is right strong. Possibly five," Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said Monday. He said he wasn't surprised by the pleas for more money but added, "Before you give that much you've got to start talking about which taxes you're going to raise."

Senate Appropriations Committee chairman Aaron Plyler, D-Union, agreed. "I don't know where the money's going to come from. Naturally, we want to do what we can. But with the revenue picture, I just don't see doing much more than the governor proposed."

Some lawmakers have accused Martin of requesting up to $100 million more than revenue estimates justify, which he denies. David Crofts, the Legislature's chief fiscal analyst, is scheduled to report on his latest revenue projections Wednesday.

Gladys Graves, president of the North Carolina Association of Educators, called Martin's proposed 4.5 percent raise inadequate.

"While we respect the governor's responsibility to present what he considers his best recommendations, we believe that he has fallen short of what is possible and needed in several areas," Ms. Graves said.

Ms. Graves said she did not consider the NCAE's 12 percent pay raise proposal unrealistic. "I have great expectations."

Ms. Graves also urged the Legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee to lift the freeze on step increases in the public school salary schedule and to spend $16.7 million for the final installment of a four-year experiment with a career ladder program. But she reiterated the NCAE's opposition to statewide implementation of the career ladder without further evaluation.

Ms. Graves presented the NCAE's budget request after Howard Haworth, chairman of the State Board of Education, outlined that group's supplemental budget proposals for fiscal 1988-89. The board's request totaled $193.4 million, compared with $131.7 million recommended by Martin for public schools.

Martin's blueprint for adding $558 million to the 1988-89 state budget is the focus of the Appropriations Committee's hearings in preparation for the short session that gets under way June 2.

Haworth, a Martin appointee, recommended a 7 percent pay increase for all public school employees. It would cost $169.5 million instead of the $110 million recommended by the governor for school personnel and other state employees. Under Martin's plan, some employees would receive less than a 4.5 percent raise if merit pay, frozen since 1982, is restored.

A 12 percent pay raise for teachers and administrators, as recommended by the NCAE, would cost $240 million.

Haworth noted that the board had set a goal two years ago of boosting teacher pay by 28 percent over the next four years. The Legislature provided 5 percent the first year, 1986, and 6.5 percent in 1987.

To get back on schedule would require a 9 percent raise in 1988-89 but the board considered that unrealistic "under the current economic circumstances and the revenue flow projections," Haworth said.

But he urged lawmakers to provide a 7 percent raise "if at all possible," saying it would accomplish another board goal of a $20,000 starting salary for teachers.

The public schools joined the Department of Community Colleges and the University of North Carolina system, which made their requests to the committee last week, in asking the Legislature to go beyond Martin's budget recommendations for education.

The board of education's package also included $24.2 million to boost pay and benefits for school bus drivers as the state recruits adult replacements for 17-year-old drivers; and $12.5 million for the first year of a five-year plan to increase the per-child amount for the academically gifted to the same rate as the handicapped ($1,536).

The board also requested $144,574 for two additional teacher certification specialists in the Department of Public Education, which state Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips acknowledged would still leave that office shorthanded.

Haworth also endorsed similar proposals by Martin and a legislative study committee for an experimental preschool program for at-risk 4-year-olds, calling it "the single biggest piece of missing education reform" in North Carolina.

Martin Asks New Export Aid Office

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina was one of the few states with a foreign trade surplus last quarter, but many companies need state help to get started overseas, Gov. Jim Martin says.

"Most North Carolina trade leaders agree that the problem of export financing assistance is now the most significant limitation to North Carolina trade development," Martin said Monday at a news conference plugging his request for state funds for a new Export Finance Assistance Office.

The North Carolina Export Finance Assistance Office, for which Martin is asking $106,000 in 1988-89 for a three-person staff, would provide "one-on-one assistance to ... companies seeking export finance credit and related credit insurance," he said.

Through contracts with the U.S. Foreign Credit Insurance Agency and the United States Export-Import Bank, the office would arrange foreign credit insurance for qualifying North Carolina exporters, he said.

It also would work with the state's financial institutions to "assure smooth processing of foreign credit applications," he said. The office would not be involved in the financing business itself, but would "act as a pipeline for foreign credit insurance," he said.

The most important function of the new office would be "to take the mystery out of export financing," Martin said.

"By working ... with individual firms, the office will help companies that are new to export find their way through the maze of foreign trade financing. For existing exporters, it will smooth what is sometimes a rocky path."

Aside from increasing financing insurance availability, the new office probably will help lower export credit financing rates, said Bill Dunn, deputy state commerce secretary.

When fully operational, the office will "round out a full complement" of export assistance services offered by the Commerce Department, Martin said. The department has five export specialists in Raleigh and has trade representatives in Europe and the Pacific Rim.

Two Environmental Groups Back Refuge

RALEIGH (AP) — Two national environmental groups told the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission Monday that they supported a proposed federal acquisition of thousands of marshland acres for a northern coastal refuge.

Michael Terry Pratt, a vice president of the N.C. Wildlife Federation, and David H. Howells, conservation chairman of the state chapter of the Sierra Club, urged commission members to approve the proposal in their final recommendations to the governor.

"To my knowledge this is the first time either group has publicly made known their position," said Harold W. Benson, assistant regional director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Their support for the federal waterfowl refuge puts them at odds with hunters, landowners and Martin County officials who are strongly opposed to the federal purchase of 30,000 acres along the Roanoke River touching the three-county area of Martin, Halifax and Bertie.

Almost 27,000 acres of hardwood trees in the acquisition area are owned by the Georgia Pacific Corp., which has headquarters in Atlanta.

Lynn B. Klein, public relations manager with Georgia Pacific, said the discussions were "still very much in the preliminary stages." But, Ms. Klein said, the decision will be based on financial reasons rather than public opinion.

The Martin County Board of Commissioners opposed the acquisition in February after two public meetings revealed strong public sentiment against the plan. Henry B. Winslow, board chairman, said the plan would have a negative effect on his county's tax revenues.

"This refuge has been ill-conceived," said Connell E. Purvis, spokesman for the Friends of the Roanoke River Bottomlands, who had spoken at previous meetings and at Monday's hearing. Purvis said groups and others who have tried to negotiate alternative plans with the Fish and Wildlife Service had been unsuccessful.

A revised environmental assessment report is due out within the next few weeks from the service, she said.

Passengers Escape Wreckage Seconds Before Jetliner Burns

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — A Miami-bound jetliner taxied down a runway, crashed through a fence and exploded into flames, but all 22 people aboard evacuated the plane moments before it caught fire.

The accident occurred as the Lacsca Boeing 727-100 tried to take off Monday carrying eight crew members and 14 passengers, including seven Americans.

"Miraculously, there were no deaths," said Juan Manuel Fernandez, financial vice president of Lacsca, the Costa Rican airliner.

Ten people were treated for minor injuries and released from Alajuela Hospital, airline officials said.

Lacsca Flight 628 was scheduled to stop in Managua, Nicaragua, before continuing to Miami.

Officials said the plane left the terminal of the Juan Santamaria International Airport at 4:55 p.m. (6:55 p.m. EDT), taxied down the runway and crashed through a fence surrounding the airport after failing to take off.

The plane came to a stop about 600 yards beyond the fence on a grassy area, where it burst into flames. The aircraft broke into three sections.

"During takeoff, for unknown reasons, the plane left the runway, stopping finally outside the airport boundary," said the Lacsca statement.

"After the successful evacuation of all the passengers and crew members, the plane was consumed by flames," it said.

The wreckage was still blazing 1½ hours after the explosion and wreckage was spread over a wide area.

"Thanks to the skill of the pilots, they were able to evacuate the passengers, just a few minutes before the plane burst into flames," Fernandez said.

Co-pilot Armando Rojas told reporters that the passengers remained calm.

"With nerves of steel we were able to evacuate all the passengers," Rojas said. "A few minutes later, maybe five minutes, the plane burst into flames."

In addition to the Americans, the passengers included a West German, two Cubans living in Miami, two Nicaraguans and two Costa Ricans, the airline said. The crew was Costa Rican.

Fernandez told reporters the cause of the explosion was under investigation by officials of Lacsca, Boeing and the Costa Rican civil aviation agency.

Witnesses said flames shot up more than 130 feet after the explosion.

The plane broke up into three parts, with the cockpit in one section and the passenger cabin split in two, witnesses said.

Fernandez said the plane was 16 years old and was leased a year ago from Avensa Leasing Corp., a subsidiary of the Venezuelan airline Viasa.

He said the plane was not originally scheduled to be used Monday. It was put into service after another flight to Miami, via New Orleans, was overbooked.

It was Lacsca's first accident in its 43-year history, he said.

Lacsca owns four Boeing 727s, two of them purchased from Boeing Co. in August 1978, said David Jimenez, a spokesman for the aircraft maker in Seattle.

The three-engine planes can hold approximately 160 passengers and require three crew members in the cockpit, Jimenez said.

Boeing produced 1,831 of the planes before discontinuing the model in September 1984.

A Lacsca recording at Miami International Airport said the flight was due in Miami at 10:50 p.m. EDT.

Michael Carter, 23, rushed to Miami International Airport after hearing on television that there had been a crash. He said his stepfather, David Jones, was flying to Miami from San Jose on Monday.

After learning there were no deaths reported in the crash, Carter said: "I'm going to see if I can find a drink. I need one."

TOP SECRET — Todd Patterson of North Haledon, N.J., reviews files he has gathered from various countries for a homemade encyclopedia that started as a class project. Patterson, 17, says in a lawsuit that the FBI has tampered with his mail and has maintained a secret file on him. (AP Laser-photo)

Teen Says FBI Kept File On Him

By DANIEL J. WAKIN
Associated Press Writer

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The FBI kept a top-secret file on a youngster who wrote 169 countries requesting information for a homemade encyclopedia and received at least 50 pieces of mail that had been tampered with, a federal lawsuit says.

Todd Patterson, now 17, said he wants to see his complete FBI file, and wants it expunged.

His lawsuit, filed Monday, also seeks a stop to mail tampering and surveillance, and unspecified damages for violation of his privacy.

"I feel that with a black spot on my record, it works against me getting a job," he says. "They invaded my privacy, but I can understand why if there's a potential threat."

FBI spokesman James Knights in Newark said he cannot comment on the suit. "same as in any investigation. We're not going to confirm or deny."

Most of the tampered mail came from the Soviet Union, according to the suit. In 1984, a year after he began the encyclopedia project as a sixth-grader, an FBI agent visited his North Haledon home and later questioned him on the telephone, the suit said.

The suit also charges that Patterson's First Amendment rights were violated on the grounds that he was being penalized for pursuing his education and expressing himself.

Eric Neisser, of the American Civil Liberties Union in New Jersey, says the case is the nation's first seeking the right to wipe out FBI files on First Amendment grounds.

Voters May Have Final Say On Guns

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Maryland has become the first state to ban the sale of inexpensive handguns, including "Saturday Night Specials," but voters probably will have the final say on whether the law actually goes into effect.

With 200 police officers from five states present, Gov. William Donald Schaefer on Monday signed the law forbidding manufacture and sale of the weapons.

"This is the first time a legislature has stood up and said, 'These guns are wrong,'" said Schaefer.

Well before the ceremony, opponents were gathering signatures to hold a referendum on the law in November's general election.

"I'm confident that we are going to have the numbers that we need for the ballot," said Fred Grisser, spokesman for the Maryland Committee Against the Gun Ban. The committee must have the signatures of 33,044 registered voters by June 30 to put the issue on the ballot.

Griiser was less confident about the outcome of a referendum, saying gun groups face "an uphill battle" in explaining the law's "true nature" to voters.

Ortega OKs Cease-Fire Extension

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Daniel Ortega extended for 30 days a cease-fire to give his leftist Sandinista government and the rebels more time to arrange a permanent truce.

However, the two sides remained deadlocked on Monday over the site of their next round of peace talks.

Ortega insisted that the three days of negotiations scheduled to begin on Wednesday be held in the Nicaraguan capital of Managua.

In a statement issued in Miami, the rebels said they were planning to meet in Sapoa, a small Nicaraguan village on the Costa Rican border.

Both sides had agreed in March to a 60-day truce that would have expired May 30. The extension means the temporary truce ends June 30.

Ortega said he decided to stretch the cease-fire "in the interest of allowing negotiations to continue on a definite truce."

Freight Ferry Burns In Channel

LONDON (AP) — Fire broke out on a freight ferry carrying 75 people in the English Channel, and one crewman was killed and another severely burned before firemen flown in by helicopter put out the blaze early today.

Emergency services on both sides of the channel, the world's busiest waterway, launched a rescue operation when the fire began in the ferry's engine room at 9:30 p.m. (4:30 p.m. EDT) Monday.

The fire was reported two hours after the Seafreight Freeway left the southeast English port of Dover for the Belgian port of Zeebrugge.

Sealink U.K. Ltd., owners of the 5,917-ton ferry, said in a statement that 15 firefighters and their equipment were flown by helicopter to the vessel.

It said the firefighters would remain aboard until the ferry arrived at the French port of Dunkirk, where a tugboat was towing it today.

A British Royal Air Force helicopter airlifted the injured crew member to the Kent and Canterbury Hospital in southeast England. The hospital said his burns were critical.

Pitt's District Court Caseloads Continue To Grow

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

When District Court convened in Farmville the third week of April there were 226 cases on the calendar — well above the goal of 165 cases a day set by Pitt County District Attorney Thomas Haigwood.

"We're having a lot of cases (in Farmville and Ayden) that are being continued," Haigwood said. "I have not been able to get another judge to handle more court in those towns. However, we hope in December, with the new judge, we'll be able to run three courts a month in each town, if not four."

District Court is held in Farmville the first and third Thursdays of each month and in Ayden the second and fourth Thursdays, but more court sessions are needed to handle the caseload, which has grown hand-in-hand with the population of Pitt County.

Wilton R. "Rusty" Duke of Greenville, who had no opposition in the Democratic primary and will have none in the Nov. 3 general election, will assume the bench in the 3rd Judicial District in December, and Haigwood said having an extra judge will allow him to schedule additional courts. The General Assembly created the seventh judgeship to accommodate the district's caseload.

There are currently six District Court judges serving the 3rd Judicial District, which is made up of Pitt, Carteret, Craven and Pamlico counties: E. Burt Aycock Jr. of Greenville; J. Randall Hunter of New Bern; James E. Martin of Grifton; H. Horton Rountree of Greenville; James E. Ragan III of Oriental and W. Lee Lumpkin III of Morehead City.

Hunter is stepping down from the bench at the end of his term in November, and David A. Leech of Greenville will take his seat. Leech won the Democratic primary May 3 and will not be opposed in the general election.

Aycock, the chief judge of the 3rd District since 1984, defeated former judge Robert D. Wheeler Sr. of Grifton in the Democratic primary and will also run unopposed in November.

The General Assembly has split the 3rd District for Superior Court judges, creating district 3A out of Pitt County and district 3B out of Craven, Carteret and Pamlico counties.

The U.S. Justice Department said the existing system of electing Superior Court judges does not comply with the Voting Rights Act of 1965 — which states judges within the same district must come up for election at the same time — and it puts blacks at a disadvantage.

The Justice Department did not cite a problem with electing minority District Court judges, and they did not ask the Legislature to divide the judicial district, but there may be political impetus to split the district in the future.

Aycock won Pitt County by more than 3,000 votes, but he lost Carteret, Craven and Pamlico to Wheeler, who previously served 16 years as a District Court judge.

When Leech and Duke take the bench in December, five of the seven District Court judges will be from Pitt County. Only Lumpkin, from Carteret, and Ragan, from Pamlico, will be from outside Pitt.

"I'm confident that the people that live in Carteret, Craven and Pamlico feel this is a disproportionate number," said David E. Reid Jr., the senior resident Superior Court judge for the 3rd District, who will become the senior resident in District 3A as of Jan. 1, 1989.

State Rep. Gerald L. Anderson, D-Craven, said there was no plan to introduce legislation to split the district, as far as he knew, but he had received calls from voters and "people in the legal profession" who expressed disappointment that Craven County would not be represented.

Some callers felt it was sort of an unwritten agreement that at least one District Court judge would come from Craven, Carteret and Pamlico counties, Anderson said, with the remaining judges coming from Pitt.

State Sen. Thomas F. Taft, D-Pitt, also said he is not aware of any forthcoming legislation to split the district, but Wheeler said he has heard people discuss it.

The Superior Court districts and prosecutorial districts — which outline the jurisdiction of the district attorneys — have already been divided, separating Pitt from Carteret, Craven and Pamlico, and Wheeler said "people in the legal profession" have said it would be logical to divide the District Court judges. Wheeler said he has not heard legislators discuss redistricting.

With Hunter leaving the bench, there will be no District Court judge from Craven County. "I think the people in Craven County have been quite concerned," Wheeler said. "I think the people of Craven County are upset about it ... but that factor may be rectified at a later time."

Rountree will reach the mandatory retirement age of 70 in two years, and Wheeler said there is a possibility the governor will appoint someone from Craven County to replace Rountree.

If there is a move to redistrict, Wheeler said it would not take effect until the newly elected judges complete their term. "Under the law, as I understand it, they can't do it until four years from now, because once a judge is elected they can't do anything with his authority and they can't lower his pay."

N.C. Sen. William H. Barker, D-Pamlico, said no legislators have approached him with the idea of splitting the district and he feels the public will be satisfied with the five Pitt County judges.

Legislative Changes Will Provide More Judges

elected since 1896, according to Franklin Freeman Jr., director of the N.C. Administrative Office of the Courts.

In addition to redistricting, the Legislature created eight new Superior Court judgeships in the state — including one in Wilson — in order to provide minorities with a greater chance at being elected.

"It will help because there will be more judges," Reid said. "There will be two more judges in the division. There will be 16 judges rotating in the eight judicial districts, instead of the original 14."

Judges other than Reid and Phillips try cases in Pitt County because all judges in the 1st Judicial Division — extending west from the coast to about Interstate 95 — rotate among the eight judicial districts.

There are 34 judicial districts in the state, and they are divided into four divisions.

Haigwood said he was not sure how the new judges would rotate, but the extra Superior Court judges are needed in Pitt County.

In 1977, there were about 1,250 criminal and civil Superior Court cases; in 1987 the number of cases rose to about 3,000, according to the Pitt County trial court administrator, William W. Nicholls Jr.

The state's chief justice allots 33 weeks of Superior Court each year for Pitt County, and Haigwood said Superior Court has the fastest growing caseload in the county system and he usually requests 10 to 12 weeks of special court a year to dispose of cases.

Based on average yearly increases from 1971 to 1986, Nicholls predicts there will be about 4,000 criminal and civil Superior Court cases by the turn of the century, and the number will be higher if the sharp increases seen in recent years continue.

Though the result of the redistricting will mean more judges for the 1st Judicial Division, Reid said the General Assembly made the change so that the state would meet federal regulations.

"It's really to accommodate the requirements of the Voting Rights Act that says if there are two judges in the same district, they must come up for election at the same time," said Reid, who has been on the bench since 1977.

Elected Superior Court judges serve eight-year terms. Reid's term will end in 1992 and Phillip's term ends in 1994.

The Justice Department agreed that the current system of electing Superior Court judges hurts the chances of blacks being elected, so the Legislature divided the 3rd District to comply with the Voting Rights Act.

If the state had lost the lawsuit, the U.S. Justice Department would have assumed control of the court system and fashioned the voting districts, Reid said.

The Justice Department did not cite the same problem with electing District Court judges, Reid said, and they did not order the General Assembly to split the District Court judges.

Special Superior Court judges, who are appointed by the governor and serve four-year terms, currently handle extra sessions of Superior Court needed to dispose of a district's caseload. But in creating new elected judgeships, the General Assembly eliminated the special judgeships.

The Legislature had previously extended all special judges' terms so they would expire at the end of this year when the new judges will take office.

During their short session in June, the General Assembly may decide to extend the terms of some special

Budget Omits Several Items

the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority for capital outlay projects; $286,580 for expansion of the health department building, or $2.98 million in expansion funds asked for by the county school system and Pitt Community College.

Jackson said it would require a 90-cent per $100 value tax rate to raise enough money to pay for the $34.65 million maintenance budget and the $13.34 million in expansion funds requested by the various departments and agencies.

In his budget message to the board, Jackson said the total proposed budget "reflects revenues at $39.45 million," with the largest single source of money for the county being ad valorem property tax.

The county manager said Pitt's tax base for the coming year is estimated at $2.92 billion, an increase of $257.64 million, "with revaluation," over the current year.

"Based on a tax rate of 59.7 cents per $100 valuation," Jackson said, "the county will realize an increase of 1 percent from the ... property tax, 4 percent less than last year's increase. The dollar amount of increase will be $179,688."

In all, Jackson said, property taxes account for $16.56 million of the revenue needed to fund the proposed budget.

This year, a 64-cent per $100 valuation tax rate is expected to generate $16.29 million in local revenue.

"The second largest source of revenue," Jackson said, is the 2 percent local sales tax, "which, it is estimated, will generate $7.72 million in 1988-1989 — an increase of $675,000 over the present fiscal year."

Rig Destroyed

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A fire that burned out of control for a month on Brazil's largest offshore oil platform destroyed everything above the waterline at the $330 million facility, the state oil company Petrobras said.

"Only the submersible part can be reused," Petrobras spokesman Palmeira Guimaraes said of the Enchova platform. "The rest was a total loss."

The fire began at the facility 120 miles east of Rio on April 23 when leaking gas exploded and started to burn.

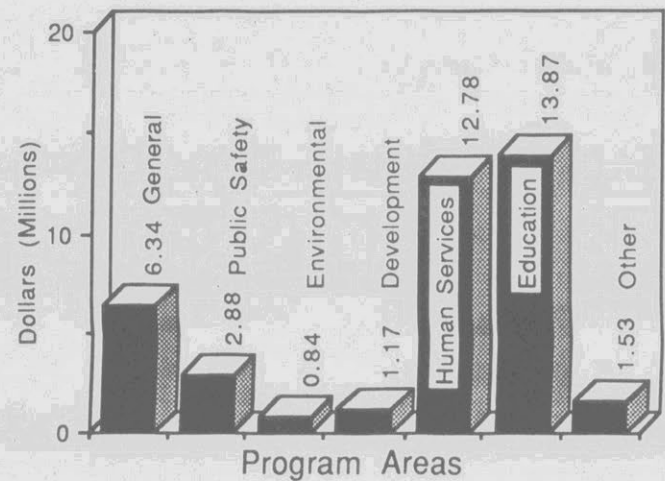

No one was injured, but Petrobras shut down production at Enchova and five nearby fields that together produce 77,000 barrels of oil and 2 million cubic meters of gas daily — about 11 percent of the nation's output.

On Saturday, Petrobras put out the main blaze at the oil platform by pumping water into the gas field through an auxiliary well, Guimaraes said.

Freeze Lifted

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — President Robert Mugabe's socialist government lifted a year-old freeze on prices in a bid to boost the ailing economy.

The announcement was made in a special edition of the government gazette.

Reflector Graphic by Stuart Savage

According to Jackson, "The present revaluation of property shows an increase of 8.8 percent of all taxable property in the county."

But he told commissioners, "Two actions taken by state government caused Pitt County to lose $483.15 million worth of taxable property."

"The formula prescribed by state government for farm use value caused a loss of more than $248.15 million for farm property," while, "the removal of inventories from property tax caused a loss in tax value of $235 million."

"These two reductions," Jackson said, "represent a tax dollar loss, based on the proposed 59.7 cents tax rate, of $2.78 million."

Had state action not eroded the tax base, Jackson said, "This value could have reduced the tax rate by 10 cents if everything had stayed constant."

And Jackson said the value of non-taxable real estate — such as church and government property — in the county amounts to some $524.47 million.

"The county must also exclude an additional $16.27 million worth of property under the state's old age exemption law," he said.

According to Jackson's budget message, the proposed budget, "follows the suggestion of the board to limit the ad valorem tax to a level close to the level of dollars generated prior to the revaluation."

"This budget has been prepared with the thought of trying to limit taxation on real property," Jackson said.

But he emphasized, "The budget as presented is not a good budget. The funds available are inadequate to operate county government next year at a level equal to the current year."

"Additional revenues will have to be made available to fund those items required to be purchased annually, such as replacement equipment for law enforcement."

As presented, Jackson said the proposed expansion budget, "will fund only those items already obligated by the board," including: $3 million for school capital outlay; $630,000 for water and sewer lines to serve the Weyerhaeuser plant between Ayden and Grifton; $520,575 for a new computer mainframe; $105,000 for a county facilities master plan; $208,031 for implementation of a 911 emergency telephone system, and a few other smaller items, such as $29,555 for three additional commissioners beginning in December.

Jackson suggested that "the most important message of this budget revolves around those requests for which funds are not readily available."

Some of the $8.5 million in requests not funded, according to Jackson, include: mandated public assistance increases; a 38 percent increase in hospital insurance for employees; salary increases for employees; additional money for public schools; new positions and new programs; $497,750 requested by the Board of Elections for 110 new voting machines; money for airport expansion; a reserve for jail construction and landfill sites purchases, and money for a shell building program.

In short, Jackson suggested, "The county will have to find ways to meet the demands being placed on the County Commissioners to fund programs which are necessary to move Pitt County forward at a steady pace."

"The county has made tremendous strides over the past four years without raising the tax rate. The one tax increase during the past seven years," Jackson said, "was to provide $15 million, on a pay-as-you-go basis, to the public schools for capital projects."

But, Jackson said, "With the loss in taxable property slowly eroding the county's tax base, the county will have to look to alternative sources to supplement the property tax."

Commissioners have scheduled a budget workshop meeting for 9 a.m. Wednesday.

Teens Can Earn Money By Offering Services

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — High school students looking for summer work aren't guaranteed to "get rich quick," but by offering needed services, they can get more than minimum wages and have fun while doing it, say the editors of Entrepreneur magazine, based in Irvine.

A summer job isn't always easy to find, and the ones available are often less than desirable, they point out, but there are other ways young people can earn extra money, they add.

"Look around, that lucrative summer job is probably right under your nose," advises Entrepreneur, which offers these suggestions for businesses that can be easily started by entrepreneurially minded teens:

— If you enjoy washing and polishing cars inside and out, you can make from $5 to $20 an hour from a steady clientele. Practice first on family and friends' cars to make sure that your job meets your price. Some basic cleaning materials and the use of door-to-door flyers should put you in business.

— If you have a home computer, you might consider a word processing service that prepares everything from legal briefs to real estate listings to church newsletters.

— Offices can always use a courier service. If you have access to a car, you could earn $5 an hour and up for picking up and delivering documents around town. You may want to invest in an answering machine or service so as not to miss a call.

— Look around your neighborhood for products or services your parents, teachers or schoolmates might be willing to pay for. Don't overlook even the simplest things like mowing lawns or cleaning windows. These can add up to hefty profits.

— Pool cleaning services can make a lot of money. If you don't already know how to clean a pool, it should be easy to find out at a local pool equipment store. Once proficient, you can expect to clean a pool in two to three hours at the rate of $10-$15 an hour.

— Consider a curb-painting business for residents who want their house numbers to show on the street. Canvass people whose curb numbers have worn down and offer your service for $4-$10. All you need to get going is paint, brushes, stencils and a good flyer promoting your business.

— Baby-sitting can be combined with light housework or other services such as tutoring, cooking lessons, art activities and outings. You can get a number of children together at regularly scheduled times and charge up to $5 per child for once-a-week classes or outings.

— A children's birthday party service can offer a different way to get involved with kids, and would be a welcome relief to parents. You can expect from $4-$6 an hour for handling everything from invitations to entertainment to food and favors. If the children have fun, you will receive the best word-of-mouth advertising from them and their parents.

— If you are handy with food preparation, you may want to offer a snack service for Little League games and school events. You'll want to offer simple foods and drinks that you can tote in a picnic hamper. But check with your local Department of Public Health about ordinances regulating home food preparation in your area.

Mills-Clark Vows Spoken

CHOCOWINITY — Trinity Episcopal Church was the scene of the Saturday wedding of Tassie Jean Clark and Eric Keith Mills. The Rev. Irwin Hulbert conducted the double-ring ceremony at 2 p.m.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Lee Clark Sr. of Route 2, Belhaven, the bride was given in marriage by her father. Sandra Squires of Washington, N.C., was maid of honor.

The bridegroom is the son of Sylvia W. Mills of Simpson and the late Rudolph Mills. Rick Mills of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Bridesmaids were Donna Cutler of Bath, LaJena Godley of Grimesland, Tammy Whitehurst of Simpson, sister of the bridegroom, and Clara Edwards of Greenville.

Ushers included Randy Bibbs and Billy Kittrell, both of Greenville, Lee Hardee of Washington, N.C., and Ron Clark of Belhaven, brother of the bride.

Organist Doug Cutler and Mary Dudley Flinchum presented wedding music. She sang "Looking Through the Eyes of Love" and "Wedding Prayer."

Carla Asby of Aurora presided at the guest register.

The bride chose a white formal cathedral-length gown of satin and Alencon lace. The neckline was open and v-shaped. The puffed sleeves extended into sheer illusion with re-embroidered Alencon lace overlay. The bodice was adorned with teardrop pearls and the waistline was V-basque extending into an A-line skirt.

The train was accented with lace motifs accented with beads and sequins and had a lace flounce. She wore a Juliet cap overlaid in pearls and sequins with a two-layered, fingertip illusion veil. She carried a cascade of pink sweetheart roses, pixies, stock and ivy.

The maid of honor wore a tea-length gown of pink taffeta styled with quarter length puff sleeves trimmed with lace and a full pleated skirt. She carried an elongated bouquet of pink pixies, shasta daisies, gypsophila, ivy and blue streamers. The bridesmaids' dresses and flowers were identical to hers.

The mother of the bride wore a royal blue matte taffeta gown with a sweetheart neckline. The mother of the bridegroom wore a street-length gown with a draped neckline of mauve crepe.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, the couple will live in Simpson.

The bride is a graduate of Chocowinity High School and has been employed by Pungo District Hospital. The bridegroom is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and is employed by Buck Supply in Greenville.

A reception and dance were held at Brentwood Club given by the parents of the bride. Mike Asby and Robert A. Smith poured champagne. Pouring punch were Mrs. Mike Asby and Mrs. Marty Martin. Mrs. Robert A. Smith and Jane Mills served cake.

The mother of the bridegroom entertained at an after-rehearsal party at the Chocowinity Community

MRS. MILLS

Building. Pre-nuptial parties honoring the couple included several bridal showers.

Candlelight Wedding Performed

AYDEN — The Ayden Christian Church was the scene of the wedding of Rita Annette Jackson of Grifton and Dwight Allen Benson of Grimesland. The double-ring, candlelight ceremony was conducted at 4 p.m. Sunday by the Rev. Jerry Angevine.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. David C. Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Benson, all of Grifton.

Wedding music was presented by Sue Branch, organist. Donna Kriegaum sang "The Wedding Song" and "Stand Before The Father As One." Lelia Jackson sang "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of stanza satin and silk organza. The fitted bodice was trimmed with Venise lace and beaded with bridal pearls. The leg-of-mutton sleeves were adorned with Venise lace, which were also accented with bridal pearls. The full skirt was appliqued and encircled with matching Venise lace and extended into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to a circle of pearls and silk flowers. The gown and veil were designed and fashioned by the bride's maternal grandmother. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of pink and white bridal roses, yellow freesia, white daisies and baby's breath, accented with ivy, satin ribbons and streamers.

The maid of honor was Ginger Haddock of Greenville. She wore a tea-length gown of Caribbean blue satin and carried an arm bouquet of yellow fugi mums, white daisies, pink mini-carnations and baby's breath tied with satin ribbons and streamers.

Bridesmaids were Marla Avery of Greenville, Shannon Hardee of Ayden, and Melissa Benson and Gayle Mitchell, sisters of the bridegroom, of Grifton. Their gowns and bouquets were identical to those of the honor attendant.

The flower girl was Shannon Moore, niece of the bridegroom, of Grifton. The ringbearer was Frankie Mitchell, nephew of the bridegroom, of Grifton.

The father of the bridegroom was the best man. Ushers were Mike Jackson, brother of the bride, of Grifton, Chuck Allen of Grimesland, Wesley Hardee and Roy Hart of Ayden.

The mother of the bride chose a street-length dress of silk brocade. The mother of the bridegroom wore a street-length dress of ocean blue silk. Both wore corsages of white roses.

Mrs. Robert Peele and Mrs. Larry Jackson, grandmothers of the bride, and Mrs. C.A. Benson, grandmother of the bridegroom, were remembered with corsages.

Dorothy Hudson of Greenville directed the wedding and Tammy Garris of Ayden presided at the register.

A reception was held at the church fellowship hall where guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Hart. Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Ray Hardee, Jr. said goodbyes.

The rehearsal dinner was given Saturday evening by friends and family of the couple.

The bride is a graduate of Ayden-

MRS. BENSON

Grifton High School and Pitt Community College. The groom is a graduate of North Lenoir High School and attended Pitt Community College. She is employed with Eastern Omni Constructors, Inc. and he is employed by Pitt Electric Co.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Grifton.

Man Mends Violent Ways

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old man in the middle of a divorce because of my own stupidity. I was guilty of cheating and beating.

When my beautiful, faithful wife found out that I was cheating on her, she confronted me, and I not only denied it, I beat her up! It got to be a habit with me. Every time we had an argument, I would hit her. I don't know how she took it for so long. This went on for four years. Then she left me for good.

I went to my girlfriend's house. We got into an argument and I hit her once, and she had me arrested. It was the best thing that ever happened to me. When I went to court, I was given a choice of facing the charges of assault and battery or taking a six-week course called "How to Control Your Anger." Well, I have been through the course, and let me tell you, Abby, if I had known there was a class like the one I took, I would have sought help sooner. It really works. I have learned how to control my anger, and I don't let myself get violent anymore.

It's too late for me because I lost the only person I ever really loved. Please let people know they can be helped — that beating women is not only a crime, it's usually learned behavior. (My father beat my mother.) If I could be cured, anyone can. — CURED IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR CURED: Good for you! I called Connecticut to find out more about this course. I was told it is offered to people who are charged with violence in domestic situations. There are comparable courses in other states. Any man or woman who settles an argument by hitting should call his or her county family or domestic relations counseling office and inquire. Don't wait until you

'MIKE CHARLES': Americans often give people instant nicknames. It is considered a gesture of affection and done only with people they like. There is no offense intended.

Sows: 1500 pounds up) Fayetteville 35.00; Wallace 36.00; Spivey's Corner 35.00; Rowland — unreported.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 11.11 to 1,941.48, its lowest close since it stood at 1,914.46 on Feb. 9.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by more than 5 to 2 on the NYSE, with 401 up, 1,079 down and 471 unchanged. Big Board volume came to 102.64 million shares, down from 120.60 million Friday and the smallest total since 86.36 million were traded in a post-Thanksgiving session last Nov. 27.

N.C. BROILER-FRYERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 54.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. The market is mostly steady to firm and the live supply is adequate for a moderate to mostly good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina on Tuesday was 2,082,000, compared to 2,084,000 last Tuesday.

HENS: Market steady. Supply heavy for a moderate demand. Prices paid per pound day of negotiation generally for slaughter the following week, heavy types, 7 pounds and up, 3 1/2 cents at farm with buyer loading.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn 5-6 cents lower at mostly 2.19-2.31 in the East and mostly 2.36-2.55 in the Piedmont. No. 1 yellow soybeans 20-22 cents lower at mostly 7.42-7.58 in the East and mostly 7.30-7.42 in the Piedmont. New crop wheat (June-July) 3.13-3.23; new crop corn 2.03-2.33; new crop soybeans 7.29-7.69. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were lower and ranged from 98 to 100 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks rose slightly today in early trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial edged up 5.30 points to 1,946.78 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 4 to 3 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 487 issues up, 374 down and 498 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 19.38 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

In economic news, the Commerce Department said orders to U.S. factories for "big ticket" durable goods rose 0.8 percent in April, boosted by a jump in orders for military communications equipment. The third consecutive monthly increase, which fell in line with expectations, followed gains of 0.9 percent in March and 0.1 percent in February. It confirmed most analysts' views that the economy is growing robustly.

Utilities dominated the list of most actively traded stocks as traders sought to capture their dividends. Northeast Utilities was unchanged at 19 1/2 and Kansas Power and Light was up 1/4 at 24 1/2.

Among blue-chip stocks, Boeing was up 1/2 at 52 1/2. Citicorp was up 1/4 at 22 and Chrysler was down 3/4 at 21. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was up 0.15 to 142.36. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 0.29 at 290.39.

Edgecombe Group Tours S.C. Site

BARNWELL, S.C. (AP) — About 200 Edgecombe County residents ended a tour of a radioactive waste-disposal site in South Carolina with mixed opinions on whether a similar facility should be built in their county.

The trip was organized by the Edgecombe County Board of Commissioners, which is considering establishing a 3,000-acre waste-management facility that would handle low-level radioactive waste, hazardous waste and household trash.

The state paid $400 for each of eight buses to take the group on the one-day excursion to the Chem-Nuclear Systems Inc. facility near Barnwell, County Manager Ellis Williford told the News and Observer of Raleigh.

"I like it," D.S. Wishall of Conetoe said after touring the disposal site.

where low-level radioactive waste is buried in underground trenches.

Wishall, who read a copy of "The Nuclear Waste Primer" on the trip down, said opponents of the proposal were not well-informed about the benefits and risks of a waste-treatment facility. He said Chem-Nuclear officials had convinced him that a disposal facility could be operated safely and that nearby residents would not have to move.

George Dudley of Tarboro also said he would not mind if a similar facility came to his county, provided it was adapted to special Edgecombe County conditions.

But others remained unconvinced. Lydia Edmondson of Conetoe said the sandy soil in Edgecombe County would not contain the material like the clay soil at the Barnwell site.

"I think it's a good idea for here, but I don't know about Edgecombe," said Doris Carlisle, another Conetoe resident.

Several Conetoe residents made the trip because county officials have indicated that a site about four miles northeast of the town might be suitable for the project.

The commissioners have scheduled two public meetings before deciding whether to ask the state to locate the facility in Edgecombe. The first public hearing will be held Thursday night in Tarboro at Edgecombe Community College.

Conetoe Mayor John Whitfield said the biggest problem in eastern Edgecombe would be that the water table is only a few feet below the surface, unlike the Barnwell site where the water level lies 35 to 40 feet below.

Chem-Nuclear spokesman Allan E.

Stalvey Jr. said the company would be interested in operating a facility in North Carolina because the Barnwell site, which opened in 1969, is scheduled to shut down in 1992. North Carolina has been chosen to dispose of low-level radioactive waste from eight Southeastern states for 20 years after the Barnwell operation closes.

Company officials said a specific proposal would have to be developed for Edgecombe County, but any future facility could be built above ground in concrete bunkers to keep materials away from the water.

The water table in the county is generally between seven and 12 feet below the surface, according to the N.C. Division of Environmental Management, but it may be as close as two feet in some places. State rules require a seven-foot separation between the water table and the bottom of the waste site.

Pitt Wants Park Plans Halted

said Monday that "what disturbs me is the effect the proposed waste sites might have on Pitt's water system, because the "Conetoe watershed drains all the way down into the Tar River and to Greenville and Beaufort County."

James suggested that the location of the waste park in eastern Edgecombe "would not affect the mass of people in Edgecombe."

State Rep. Walter Jones Jr. told the Pitt commissioners, "I think a lot of questions have to be answered. We should be concerned, and do what we can to protect the citizens and the environment."

State Sen. Bob Martin of Bethel said a fact-finding committee is "an excellent idea. Something needs to be done," he suggested. "The stigma of the thing alone will downgrade the area."

But, Martin said, "to oppose the thing just to be opposing something" is not the right approach to take. "We need to know what we're doing."

Another Pitt legislator, state Rep. Ed Warren, told commissioners: "What ever you do is where I stand."

He also told the board, "I'm concerned about the fact that this county commissioners group (Pitt's commissioners) was not brought in to start with."

"I think it would work better if (the site were) put in the middle of Edgecombe County," Warren said. "I think the decision has been too hasty. What are the negatives?"

Commissioner Kenneth Dews said "It seems unusual for something of this magnitude to take place without somebody knowing about it."

"I question the legality of what they were doing," Dews said. The meeting in Edgecombe County last week "was well prepared ... well orchestrated."

"We need a blue-ribbon panel ... people well-versed in the problems it would bring to our area" to gather facts, Dews said.

State Rep. Eugene Rogers of Williamston said the Martin County Board of Commissioners adopted a resolution last week opposing the location of the site.

"We don't know about the environmental or health impact" of the proposed location, Rogers said. "I think the idea of getting together with other county commissioners is good."

"It didn't start two weeks ago," Eugene James said, "it started months ago. Even though it might be safe, it puts a stigma in many people's minds."

Pitt Commissioner Tom Johnson said, "Make no mistake ... they secreted what has been done."

State Sen. Tom Taft suggested that Pitt officials first need to "take the emotion out of it," then "appoint a regional group (to) find out the facts."

Taft, saying the General Assembly has yet to act on a bill giving incentives to a host area, suggested that any incentives "would not be isolated to geo-political boundaries."

He suggested that, in this case, "adjacent counties would get most of the incentives."

Taft also suggested that any low-level nuclear waste disposal site should be located at "the best technical site" in the state, suggesting that other locations in North Carolina are technically superior to the proposed Edgecombe County location.

"Don't select a less-than-the-best technical site," he suggested.

Taft also said two-thirds of the low-level nuclear waste going to the site would be "waste from nuclear power plants."

Obituary

Tucker-Carter
Mrs. Myrtle Ruth Tucker-Carter, 90, died Wednesday morning, May 18, in Asheboro, N.C. while a resident of Clapp's Convalescent Nursing Home.

Graveside services and burial were conducted Saturday morning in Greenwood Cemetery, Greenville, with the immediate family in attendance.

Mrs. Carter was born February 23, 1898, at the Tucker Homeplace on Red Banks Road (the present site of E.B. Aycock Junior High School) to Elder Henry Bryant Tucker and Sallie Elizabeth Brooks. She was educated at the Red Banks School (1905-1913) and the Greenville Graded School on Evans Street (1913-1916). Upon graduation, she taught at grammar schools in Greene and Pitt County (1916-1926) and attended summer school at East Carolina Teachers College during these years. She met her husband, Harry Winfield Carter, Sr., while teaching at Walstonburg, and they were married in Greenville on September 11, 1926. They returned to Greenville in 1927 and operated Carter's Printery until 1950. Mr. Carter died February 20, 1951.

Mrs. Carter clerked at Efrid's Department Store on Evans Street from 1945-1950, and was employed in child care from 1951 until her retirement in 1984. She had been a resident of Clapp's Convalescent Nursing Home since April 25, 1986.

Surviving are two daughters, Elizabeth Tucker Carter Furr of Hopewell, Va., and Jane Woodley Carter Heath of Asheboro; a son, Eugene Tucker Carter of Greenville; son-in-law, Samuel Wardell Heath, Sr., of Asheboro; daughter-in-law, Jeraldine (Jeri) Linkous Carter of Vienna, Va.; grandsons, Dr. Eric Michael Furr of Richmond, Va., Samuel Wardell Heath, Jr. of Boone, William Carter Heath of Asheboro, Harry Winfield Carter, III of Riner, Va., and Arc Cosine Carter of Fort Huachuca, Ariz.; grand-daughters, Katherine Jane Heath of Asheboro, and Samantha Anne Carter Solander of Vienna, Va.; great grand-daughter Amanda Dawn Carter of Riner, Va.; and step-daughter Evelyn Alleine Carter Justice of Elizabethton, Tenn.

(Paid Announcement)

Her funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Bethel Pentecostal Holiness Church, Bethel, by the Rev. Steve Enloe. Burial will be in the Bethel City Cemetery.

She is survived by two daughters, G'nelle Sawyer of Suffolk and Mildred Whitesell of Chesapeake; a son, Jesse J. Riddick of Portsmouth; four sisters, Mary Rollins of Bethel, Ruth Bullock of Robersonville, N.C., Sally Fiege of Newport News, and Daisy Woznick of Beverly Hills, Fla.; a brother, Silas Rollins of Sanford, N.C.; 11 grandchildren, and 19 great-grandchildren.

The family will receive friends from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today at Ayres-Gray Funeral Home, Bethel.

City Changing Banks

Kimble said another advantage of Wachovia over Planters is it agreed to provide space for the city to store its magnetic tapes.

Kimble said the process of analyzing proposals also included checking references from which Wachovia is currently providing similar city banking services.

Kimble said the transition of accounts from Planters to Wachovia should begin in July and that all accounts with Planters should be closed by no later than Sept. 30.

In other matters Monday, the council unanimously directed the city staff to acquire additional financial information relating to the considered sale of a small parcel of city property adjacent to the entrance of East Carolina University.

Greenville Parking Authority representative John Shannonhouse told council members the authority has recommended the sale of a lot containing 25 parking spaces on the corner of Fifth Street and Reade Circle to ECU at a replacement value cost.

Shannonhouse described such a cost as the amount of money needed to purchase land elsewhere to provide the city with an additional 25 parking spaces in the central downtown business district.

The council requested additional information including an updated land appraisal of fair market value along with replacement value costs.

"I'm very much interested in those figures before I even consider a decision," said Council member Rufus Huggins.

Meanwhile, the council unanimously approved submitting a request to the Division of Health Services of the N.C. Department of Human Resources for a grant to aid in the control of mosquitoes.

Mosquito control activities eligible for state financial aid include surveillance, education to public and program workers, and chemical control of larval and adult mosquitos.

Public Works Director Mayo Allen said award notification regarding the grant application should be made within three to four weeks.

A scheduled council discussion of a proposed Municipal Agreement with the North Carolina Department of Transportation for the Evans Street widening project was postponed until today's council budget session at 5:30 at City Hall.

In addition, a proposal by Pitt County Manager Kramer Jackson regarding the establishment of an East Carolina Medical Park Commission and a slide presentation by representatives of the Environmental Advisory Commission relating to the development of a city greenways plan were both rescheduled until the June 6 workshop session.

Absent at Monday's workshop were council members Lorraine Shinn and Nancy Jenkins.

After 113-98 Win In Opener

Lakers Warned Of Game Two

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers have been virtually invincible in opening games of playoff series. But all of a sudden, they find second games a little scarier.

"Our objective is not to get full of our ourselves because we won Game 1 like we did against Utah," Lakers coach Pat Riley said Monday night after Los Angeles beat the Dallas Mavericks 113-98 in Game 1 of the NBA Western Conference final.

"Dallas will be better in Game 2," Riley said. "I want my players to get some rest and then to be disciplined and only think about Dallas. It's easy to get distracted."

"We can't assume it will be easy at home. We really have to take care of business on our own floor."

Game 2 is Wednesday night at the Forum. The series then shifts to Dallas for Games 3 and 4 Friday and Sunday.

The winner will meet the Boston-Detroit winner. Those teams open the Eastern Conference final series Wednesday night in Boston.

Monday night's victory marked the 10th consecutive time the Lakers have won the first game of a playoff series.

Riley implored his players not to follow the bad example they set in the conference semifinals, when they humbled Utah in the opener but then lost the second game.

"We won't take them too lightly," said Lakers guard Magic Johnson, who had 19 points and 12 assists against the Mavericks. "Only five minutes after the game, Riley already had reminded us of Game 2 in the Utah series."

James Worthy scored 28 points, Byron Scott 23, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar 17 and A.C. Green 14 for the Lakers, who are trying to become the first team to repeat as NBA champion since the 1969 Boston Celtics.

For the Mavericks, making their first appearance in the conference final, Roy Tarpley had 18 points and 20 rebounds, and Mark Aguirre and Rolando Blackman had 18 points apiece. Derek Harper added 17 points.

The Mavericks know what adjustments need to be made. The Lakers, who led 52-49 at halftime, got their fast break going in the third quarter.

Worthy, Scott and Green had three baskets each — and two of Scott's were 3-pointers — as they built a 76-63 lead. Los Angeles led 80-69 at the end of the quarter.

"We wanted to come out and make a statement to start the second half but instead we came out lax and allowed them to dictate the action," Blackman said.

"We hit our first shot (a hook by James Donaldson) to start the second half and thought we were in good shape," Tarpley said. "But then they took advantage of all our mistakes."

Abdul-Jabbar, who made five hook shots in the first half, including four skyhooks from the same spot on the baseline, hit the Lakers' first basket of the third quarter.

"We stayed on top of them until they couldn't get back in the game," Abdul-Jabbar said. "I don't think we surprised them with anything. They had time to prepare for us."

Dallas had three days off after beating Denver on Thursday night to clinch that semifinal series 4-2. The Lakers, though, were stretched to seven games by Utah and didn't wrap up the series until Saturday afternoon.

"It says something about the Lakers that they just finished a tough series against Utah and they were able to come back and play as well as they did in this game," Dallas coach John MacLeod said.

But, MacLeod added, "I just hope the Utah scenario repeats itself for the Lakers."

It could have repeated itself in the second quarter.

Greene Central has the answer to Reggie Jackson and the title of "Mr. October" in Anthony Jones, who is quickly earning the name "Mr. Twilight."

Jones, a senior pitching ace for the Rams' 20-1 baseball team, has picked up a pair of wins in night games over the past week to push his record to 5-0 for the year and to 22-2 for the past three seasons.

Much of Jones' success on the mound has come in the form of a deadly curve ball that, time after time, breaks right in front of batters' eyes and lands safely in the strike zone.

Monday against Wake Forest-Rolesville in the opening round of the state 2-A playoffs, Jones went the distance on the mound, giving up only three hits and striking out 14 as the defending state champion Rams advanced to the second round with a 3-0 shutout over the Cougars.

Just last week, in a game that allowed the Rams to sew up the title in the Eastern Plains Conference race, Jones pitched a complete game against Ayden-Grifton to secure a 10-3 win. In that contest, Jones set 13 Charger batters down on strikes, while allowing only five hits.

The similarities in the two performances for Jones are quite similar. Both games got under way at 7:30 p.m. and, in both contests, Jones struggled early, almost to the point of being taken out of the game, before coming on strong in the middle innings — after it began getting dark — to record strong performances.

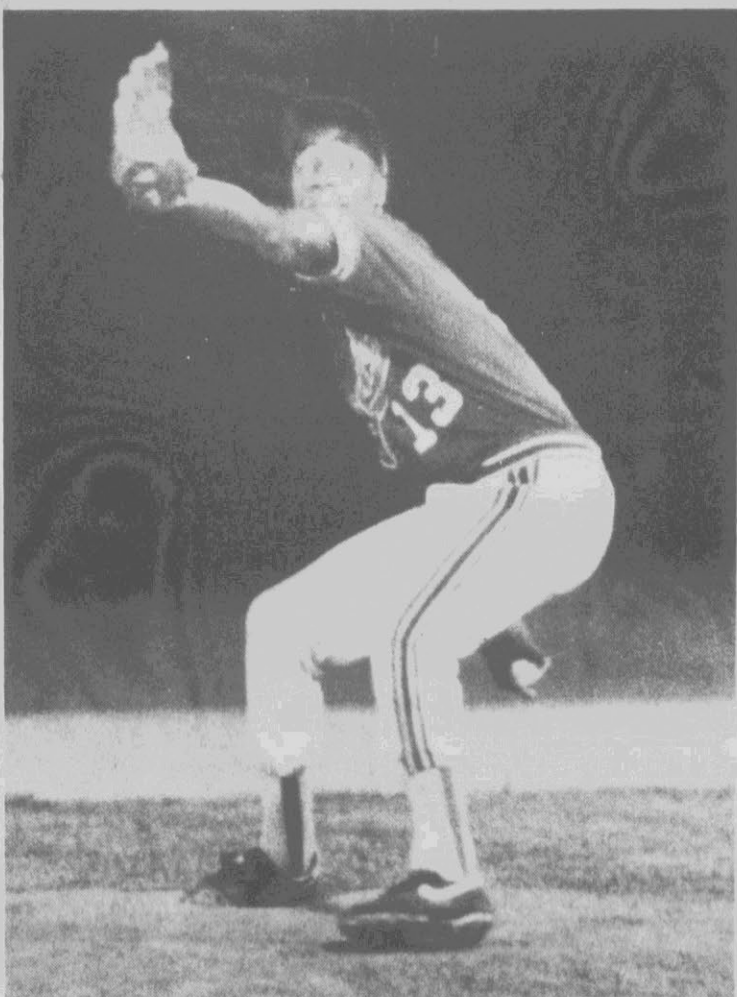

An argument in defense of Jones' slow starts could rest in the success of the Rams' basketball team. Greene Central advanced to the Eastern Regionals in basketball this year, delaying Jones, who played on the basketball team, from starting the baseball season until late.

"He had only pitched 27 innings before the Ayden-Grifton game," Greene Central head coach James Fulghum said.

"I just don't seem to be pitching well in the early innings right now," Jones said. "One thing is that through the first four innings it is so hot and humid that I just can't seem to find any control. Coach (Fulghum) said that I was still a little out of shape. But when it gets dark, I seem to find myself."

And then "Mr. Twilight" begins putting on his show.

Greene Takes 2A Opener

By TIM CHANDLER

Reflector Sports Writer

SNOW HILL — The sign of a good team is winning games when you don't play at your best.

Greene Central did just that Monday night by recording a 3-0 win over Wake Forest-Rolesville in the opening round of the state 2-A baseball playoffs.

The win pushed the defending state champion Rams to 20-1 for the season and into the second round to face the winner of today's Edenton-Clayton game either Thursday or Friday on the road.

The Rams, who are known for winning games with their strength at the plate (the team had amassed 36 home runs for the season heading into the game), had to rely on a strong pitching effort from senior Anthony Jones to pull out the win.

Jones picked up the victory, his fifth of the season against no losses, by striking out 14 and giving up only three hits.

"If you win and you don't perform well, you have to be happy," Greene Central head coach James Fulghum said. "Their pitcher (James Barrington) really did a good job on us. He changed speeds on us at the right times all night and we just couldn't get it going."

Fulghum also said that being the defending state champions probably made it hard for his team to get untracked in the first round.

"It (the pressure to repeat as champions) set in after the regular season," Fulghum said. "We've been playing teams that we were used to and tonight we had to go out there and face somebody new and I think we were just a little tight."

"But if we want to stay alive we have got to crank up the machine and get going," Fulghum said. "I think we're gonna play well. We're the defending state champions and the kids have had to think about that since Thursday, so they had to work the kinks out tonight."

The Rams sure didn't seem tight in the first inning as they jumped out with a big three-run inning in the opening frame to round out all the scoring for the game.

Four singles by Greene Central accounted for the runs.

Jones led off the hitting spree with a one-out single to center. Tommy Eason followed with an infield hit to put runners at first and second. Shay Beaman then loaded the bases up when he reached base after beating out an infield grounder.

Cornelius Hill drove in one run, which was followed by a two-run bloop single to center by Walt McKeel.

After the first inning damage was done, the Rams would only record three more hits the rest of the game as Barrington bore down on the mound for the Cougars and went the distance, giving up only seven hits and fanning three.

Wake Forest had several chances to score during the game and put pressure on the cold Ram bats, but came up empty as it left seven batters stranded.

"We couldn't get the big hit when we needed it," Cougar head coach Fitz Thompson said. "The kids that usually hit well for us didn't look good tonight. But you have to credit some of that to their pitcher (Jones). We haven't faced a good pitcher all year long and he is very tough."

The Cougars, who wind up the season with a 15-8 record, advanced runners into scoring position in the first, third and fourth innings. In the fourth, Wake Forest had its best chance to score when it had runners at first and second with only one out. Jones, however, worked his way out of the inning with a strikeout and a fly ball to left.

"I didn't expect to be back (in the playoffs) this year, so I'm not disappointed with what happened tonight," Thompson said. "We came up here last year with a strong veteran team and lost worse than tonight. At least we can go back and know that we played well and didn't get embarrassed by a top club."

The Cougars will return all but three players from this year's squad to the team next year.

"We'll be better next year," Thompson said. "And tonight's loss will be used as a learning experience to grow on."

Beaman was the only player for either team in the game to pick up more than one hit as he went 2-3 from his cleanup position for the Rams.

Mike Scott And Astros Blow To Win Over Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates were nearly blown off the field in the ninth inning by swirling 50-mph wind gusts that accompanied a sudden thunderstorm.

But even the storm couldn't compare to the way Houston pitcher Mike Scott blew through the Pirates' lineup. The unbeaten Scott, armed with a nearly unhittable split-finger fastball, registered his sixth consecutive victory with a four-hitter as the streaking Astros beat the Pirates 3-0 Monday night.

"He was awesome," the Pirates' Bobby Bonilla said. "The man was great. We didn't score any runs, we didn't have many hits. He pretty much blanked us."

In the only other National League game, Cincinnati beat St. Louis 8-3. The Atlanta-Chicago game was rained out.

The Pirates' big guns — Andy Van Slyke, Bonilla, Sid Bream and R.J. Reynolds — fired blanks all night long and were a combined 1-for-10. Scott didn't allow a hit until the fifth inning and his six-game winning streak is the longest of his career.

"The split-finger was the best I've had all year," said Scott, who beat the Pirates for the second time in a week. "I've been in a pretty good groove all season, really, from the end of spring training. I haven't had a bad day."

Scott was removed in the top of the ninth for a pinch hitter but received credit for a complete game when the rains came before the Pirates could bat in the ninth. Scott was dressed and ready to conduct interviews when he found out the game had been called after the umpires waited one hour, 15 minutes.

"It's the first time I've ever finished a game in my street clothes," he said.

Scott said the severe storm, accompanying winds and lightning bolts that pierced the sky above Three Rivers Stadium rivaled anything he has seen in San Francisco's windswept Candlestick Park. Newspapers and hot dog wrappers swirled out of the stands and into the players' faces and Jim Gott, Pittsburgh's 6-foot-4, 220-pound reliever, was nearly blown off the mound several times.

"There was a strange satanic glow over the stadium," Gott said.

"I thought we were going to blow to Kansas," Scott said.

Scott, who beat the Pirates 3-2 in Houston last Tuesday night, got the only run he needed in the fifth on Kevin Bass' leadoff double and Rafael Ramirez's RBI single off John Smiley 3-4.

The Astros, winning for the sixth time in seven games, scored a run in the seventh on Chuck Jackson's sacrifice fly. Gerald Young's single and reliever Barry Jones' throwing error in the eighth preceded Jim Pankovits' sacrifice fly.

Scott said he usually doesn't like to pitch consecutive games against the same team — "I'd rather see different faces," he said — but has had to do it three times already this season.

"If you're hitting, you don't mind seeing the same guy again," Pirates manager Jim Leyland said. "But when the pitcher's going good, it works the other way. It's a shame we lost because I thought John Smiley pitched great, probably his best game of the season. But we didn't have much of a chance against Scott."

Houston manager Hal Lanier said he felt comfortable after the Astros scored "because the way Mike was pitching I thought one run would do it."

The Astros lead the Los Angeles Dodgers by two games in the National League West. They are 4-0 against the Pirates, who must face Nolan Ryan, 4-2, tonight and Bob Knepper, 6-0, on Wednesday night.

"It's good for us to face the good pitching," Bonilla said. "To get better, you've got to face this good pitching and accept the challenge."

Reds 8, Cardinals 3

Lloyd McClendon, Paul O'Neill and Terry McGriff drove in two runs apiece to lead a 13-hit attack that helped Dennis Rasmussen snap a personal three-game losing streak. He allowed six hits and three runs in 5 1/3 innings in winning for the first time since April 19.

Loser Jose DeLeon gave up eight hits and six runs in 5 1/3 innings.

"We were bound to score some runs some time," Rasmussen said. "I've been throwing the ball pretty good, but I think I had four runs to work with my last four starts."

O'Neill drove in a run with a groundout as Cincinnati took a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning and he had an RBI single as the Reds batted around with five singles and a walk in a four-run sixth. McGriff had a two-run single that chased DeLeon and McClendon hit his first home run of the season, a two-run shot, in the seventh off Bob Forsch after the Cardinals scored three times in the bottom of the sixth.

By winning, the Reds moved into a third-place tie with San Francisco in the NL West.

"We feel we can start to play well if we can just get healthy," interim manager Tommy Helms said. "We have a lot of injuries. It seems like every night somebody's dropping." The Cardinals got 10 hits but couldn't do much with them.

"We're getting some hits, but not timely hits or something you can get an inning going with," Tom Brunan-sky said.

PUTT-PUTT WEEKLY TOURNAMENT RESULTS

In what is fast becoming the Bobby Ipock Show, this week's Pro Division winner claimed his sixth victory of the year. Bobby, who for the 21st consecutive round shot sub-par, posted scores of 28-30-30 for a 6 stroke advantage over runners-up Eric Nelson and Ray Taft. Eric defeated Ray in a play off for the 2nd spot. Prior to the tournament Clark White predicted he was going to win and advance to the Pro Division. This week's Amateur Division champ did just that, but first he had to withstand a late charge from runner-up Craig Smith. Clark's 92 total was good for a 3 stroke victory over Craig. In the Novice Division for only the 2nd time this season a player made the jump directly to the Pro Division. Marshall Merritt made the move after putting together rounds of 35-31-34 to claim victory in his list. tournament.

Bob Barbour.....9
Grifton Red & White....7

PACTOLUS — David Bell and Jamie Morris had three hits apiece as Bob Barbour defeated Grifton Red & White, 9-7, in a Southern Pitt Little League baseball game Monday.

Morris also drove in three runs for the Wildcats. Bell picked up the win for Bob Barbour with relief help from Jason Craft.

Robert Moore and Derrick Dawson had two hits apiece for Grifton.

Chicod Royals.....18
Chicod Hornets.....14

CHICOD — The Chicod Royals

slipped past the Chicod Hornets, 18-14, in a Southern Pitt Little League baseball game Monday night.

Brian Edwards got the victory on the mound, going the whole game.

In the fourth inning, the Royals took the lead with four runs and never trailed again. No one on either team had more than one hit although Jamie Vincent homered for the Hornets.

Little League

Lions.....13
Eveready.....9

Deke Herrin and Grainger Hill both recorded three hits as the Lions defeated Eveready, 13-9, Monday in a North State Little League baseball game.

Herrin drove in three runs while Hill drove in two of his own.

Hill and Byron Fagundas each had an RBI single that keyed a seven-run second inning for the Lions and moved them ahead, 7-4, early on.

Matt Dellesaga and Sean Burrough had two hits apiece for Eveready.

1st Federal.....6
Pepsi-Cola.....5

First Federal overcame a 5-3 deficit with three runs in the fourth and then held on for a 6-5 victory over Pepsi-Cola in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game Monday.

Jon Gavigan keyed a five-run first inning for Pepsi with an RBI triple that pushed Pepsi out to an early 5-3 lead.

First Federal, though, came through with a three-run rally in the fourth as Wilbert Levett and Kevin Corbett both doubled in a run to key the spurt.

Levett and Corbett led the way for First Federal with two hits apiece. Geoff Stallings, Jason Howard and Gavigan had two hits apiece for Pepsi.

Babe Ruth League

Everette's.....10
Wachovia Bank.....2

Everette's Pest Control got a no-hitter from William Gibbs as it defeated Wachovia Bank, 10-2, in the Greenville Babe Ruth League Monday night.

Gibbs went the distance in the game, recording 14 strikeouts while allowing 10 walks.

Everette's took the lead with a run in the first, then scored three times in the third to wrap it up. Chris Haddock walked and stole second, moving to third on an out. Randy Miller walked and also stole up and Josh Potter reached on an error, scoring Haddock. Billy Gorham also reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Miller. Milton Carawan grounded out, allowing Potter to score.

Everette's added one in the sixth and four more in the seventh. Wachovia's two runs scored in the fourth.

No one had more than one hit for Everette's.

Once Jones reached the fourth inning Wednesday night against the Cougars it was almost like trying to get a hit off a possessed man. Two of the three Wake Forest outs in the fourth frame came off strikeouts, followed by three straight KOs in the fifth. The sixth inning was not much better for the Cougars as Jones sandwiched three strikeouts around one base on balls.

In last week's game against Ayden-Grifton, Jones gave up a run in the first inning and walked the bases full in the third inning before the sun set in time for the beginning of the fourth.

Once the fourth rolled around, Jones recorded two of the three outs with strikeouts, while fanning three in the fifth and two each in both the sixth and seventh innings.

Another similarity between Jones' performances comes in timely trips to the pitcher's mound during the game by Fulghum. In both games when Jones seemed to be losing his poise, Fulghum took a stroll to the mound for a conference with his pitcher.

"Coach (Fulghum) came out and gave me a good fussing (in the third inning)," Jones said following the win over Wake Forest. "I think before he came out there that I was just tight."

"I'm a little tough on him sometimes," Fulghum said. "But it is only because I know what he is capable of doing."

Fulghum also made a trip to the mound in the third inning of the game against Ayden-Grifton and said later that he "went with his instincts" in leaving Jones in the game at that point.

The instincts definitely paid off for Fulghum, who Jones credits with 99 percent of his success.

"At the beginning of the season I couldn't find the strike zone with my curve ball," Jones said. "Coach Fulghum would make me go out everyday and throw curves in the bullpen and curves on the mound. I threw and threw until I started getting strikes."

Even with Jones' new-found nighttime success, Fulghum says there is still some improvements necessary by his ace if the Rams are going to repeat as state champs.

"He still isn't as sharp as he was the last two years," Fulghum said. "He has shown flashes, but there is still work for him to do."

More work could mean more visits by interested colleges for Jones also. Currently, according to Fulghum, Louisburg, Mount Olive, Atlantic Christian and North Carolina Wesleyan head the list of colleges hoping to recruit Jones.

The school that does acquire the services of Jones might have to make sure that there are plenty of night games on the slate so "Mr. Twilight" can put on his show.

Pack Gets NCAA Bid

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State, which finished the regular season in second place in the Atlantic Coast Conference, has received an at-large bid to the NCAA baseball tournament, the school announced Monday.

The Wolfpack, participating in postseason play for the third straight year, will meet Tulane in a first-round game Thursday in the Eastern Regional in Tallahassee, Fla.

The Wolfpack, 44-14, is the third seed in the six-team regional, behind Florida and host Florida State.

"Obviously we're very excited about receiving a bid," said first-year Wolfpack coach Ray Tanner. "Hopefully we'll be able to play well in Tallahassee. There are some outstanding teams in our regional, but I think we have the talent to compete on that level."

Lakers...

The Lakers took a 41-32 lead on Michael Cooper's 3-point shot with 9:45 to play before halftime, but Dallas went on a 15-1 run capped by Blackman's long jumper at 4:22 to take a 47-42 lead.

The Lakers had missed nine straight field goals before Abdul-Jabbar hit a sky hook at 3:53 to start an 8-0 run that gave the Lakers a 50-47 lead.

Rose High School and E.B. Aycock Junior High School will give physical examinations to all prospective athletes for the 1988-89 season on June 7. The physicals will be given in the Rose gymnasium, starting at 6:30 p.m. All students who plan to participate in any sports program at Rose or Aycock must have a physical prior to being declared eligible to play.

Rose All-Sports Banquet Scheduled

Rose High School will hold its annual All-Sports Banquet on June 2 at 6:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium. Athletes from the sports programs at Rose will be honored at the event. Tickets are now on sale at $5 each, and Rose officials said that only a limited number are available.

McEnroe Attracting Attention At Open

PARIS (AP) — While John McEnroe may be just the 16th seed in the French Open, he's attracting top-seed attention from the fans and his fellow players. Shouting at himself, glaring at an erring umpire and pushing his play to a higher level, the 29-year-old American won a standing ovation from the Paris crowd Monday after fighting to a 7-6, 6-1, 7-6 victory over Alexander Volkov of the Soviet Union.

"John is always dangerous," sixth-seeded Yannick Noah of France said when asked about McEnroe's prospects for winning the championship. "It just depends what state of mind he's in and what physical condition he's in." The defending men's champion, top seed Ivan Lendl, headed the list of players who were to play their first-round matches today, including No. 2 Stefan Edberg, No. 4 Pat Cash and No. 5 Boris Becker. Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert, seeded second and third in the women's singles, also were scheduled to play first-round matches today.

Steffi Graf started the defense of her women's singles title Monday by beating Nathalie Guerree of France 6-0, 6-4. The 18-year-old West German was dominant at first, then had to overcome a patch of inconsistent shotmaking before riding her forehead to victory. Graf's 49-minute outing started a successful day for seeded players. Fifteen advanced to the second round — most without any difficulty — while only No. 11 Katarina Maleeva of Bulgaria was upset, falling to Catherine Tanvier of France 6-4, 7-5.

In other matches, fourth-seeded Gabriela Sabatini defeated Mauder Laval of France 6-1, 7-5; No. 5 Manuela Maleeva beat Petra Huber of Austria 6-3, 6-1; No. 6 Helena Sukova defeated Isabel Cueto of West Germany 6-2, 6-0; and No. 7 Claudia Kohde-Kilsche rolled past Angeliki Kanellopoulou of Greece 6-2, 6-4.

Also, No. 8 Hana Mandlikova defeated Elizabeth Minter of Australia 6-2, 6-1; Zina Garrison, the 10th seed, struggled before overcoming fellow American Stephanie Rehe 6-2, 4-6, 6-1; and Italy's Raffaella Reggi, No. 12, defeated Sabrina Goles of Yugoslavia 6-4, 6-2.

Among the men, third-seeded Mats Wilander beat Josef Cihak of Czechoslovakia 7-5, 7-5, 6-1; Noah defeated Ricki Osterthun of West Germany 7-6, 6-1, 6-4; and No. 9 Andre Agassi easily handled Paolo Cane of Italy 6-4, 6-1, 6-2.

No. 12 Emilio Sanchez defeated Mansour Bahrami of Iran 6-1, 7-5, 6-3; Andres Gomez of Ecuador, the 13th seed, outlasted Sweden's Ulf Stenlund, 7-6, 6-0, 4-6, 6-4; and No. 15 Guillermo Perez-Roldan defeated fellow Argentine Alberto Mancini 6-3, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4.

Shinn One Step Closer To Baseball Stadium

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP) — The York County Council has officially stated its intention to build a $12 million baseball stadium and sports complex for Charlotte Knights owner George Shinn.

The council on Monday adopted a resolution supporting the stadium. And it directed County Manager Gene Klugh and his staff to study the idea to determine the best site, financing methods and impact such a stadium would have on the county.

At the same time, the council will study the county's financial health and how a $12 million debt would affect other projects officials have planned in the next two years.

Both studies are to be done as quickly as practical. Members said it would probably be several weeks before a final decision is made.

"Oh, that's great," Shinn said Monday night when told of the council's unanimous support. "I feel very excited. This is a positive step toward helping our area become a regional area. And I am very appreciative that the people in York County see that."

Shinn would lease the stadium from the county for his Charlotte Knights minor-league baseball team.

Meanwhile, Rep. J.H. Hoss Nesbitt, D-York, is asking the South Carolina General Assembly to pay for the project. Nesbitt filed an amendment to the state's $360 million bond bill, seeking $12 million for a baseball stadium in York County.

But other legislators, including Rep. Herb Kirsh, D-York, already are criticizing the idea and similar "pet projects" included in the bill. The state House is considering the bill today.

The council's move Monday verified a tentative agreement it reached with Shinn Thursday, when the group flew to Richmond, Va., and Birmingham, Ala., to view similar government-financed stadiums.

Shinn and the council want to build the 15,000-seat stadium at Heritage USA. But if bankruptcy officials reject Shinn's proposal to buy the 2,300-acre ministry, the county would probably build on I-77 at Carowinds Boulevard.

Shinn's plans include building a practice gym for his NBA basketball franchise. The stadium would be expandable to 45,000 seats and could be converted to handle major league baseball or football.

Council members last week said they would probably have to sell general obligation bonds — which are paid off through taxes — to raise some of the $12 million. They also would sell revenue bonds — paid off through money generated at the stadium. And they would use the county's share of the state accommodations tax.

Council members pointed out Monday that their action places the county under no financial obligation.

"What we're doing here will have to be plugged into the whole picture," said council member Peggy Upchurch, who proposed a study of the county's expected expenses and revenues over the next two years.

She said the council already has committed itself to several projects, including a $1 million revamp of trash collection and a 20-year plan, which could cost up to $100,000. Upchurch pointed out that the council barely escaped raising taxes for next year.

To cover a shortfall of more than $1 million in the 1988-89 budget, the council established a business license tax and dipped into its reserve, which had been set aside for indigent medical care.

Former UNC Player Traded To Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Seahawks have acquired cornerback Tim Morrison, a former North Carolina player, from the Washington Redskins in exchange for an undisclosed draft choice, the National Football League team said Monday.

Morrison, 6-foot-1 and 195 pounds, signed with Washington as a free agent following the 1986 draft. He played in all 16 games of the regular season that year, starting in three, and all the playoff games, starting one.

In 1987, he played in seven games and was on the inactive list for the last four games of the regular season. Morrison played in one playoff game, the NFC championship game against Minnesota.

Morrison, 25-year old Fayetteville native, lettered three years for the Tar Heels.

Orioles Beat Stewart Again

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Maybe if the Baltimore Orioles faced Dave Stewart more often they might have baseball's best record instead of its worst.

Mike Boddicker ended his team-record 13-game losing streak Monday night and the Orioles beat Stewart and the Oakland Athletics 7-3.

The Orioles, 9-34 overall, won their third straight game and defeated Oakland's ace for the second time in 11 days. Baltimore had not won more than two consecutive games until this current mini-streak.

Boddicker, 1-8, got his first victory since last Sept. 4. Stewart fell to 8-3 as the American League West-leading A's lost their third in a row.

"There were games I should have lost, but there were some games I should have won, too — maybe not should have won, but could have," said Boddicker, a former 20-game winner. "But there were games other guys could have won, too. I wasn't the only one having trouble winning."

Boddicker lost five times as the Orioles dropped their first 21 games this season. Baltimore won for the second time in 20 road games.

Stewart, a 20-game winner last season, had sought a tryout with the Orioles two years ago when his career appeared over. Baltimore rejected him, Oakland plucked him off the scrap heap and he's prospered since then.

"I thought I had good stuff. They scored four runs in that second inning but a lot of things went in their favor. I consider it just one of those nights," Stewart said.

In other AL games, New York beat California 5-2, Seattle ripped Boston 14-3, Milwaukee downed Toronto 9-7, Chicago defeated Cleveland 3-2 and Minnesota got past Kansas City 7-5.

Boddicker gave up one run on four hits in five innings. He left because of a tight right shoulder.

The Orioles had scored only five runs in Boddicker's previous five starts. This time, they scored six in the first three innings against Stewart.

Larry Sheets and Rick Schu doubled, Eddie Murray and Jim Dwyer singled and Billy Ripken had a squeeze bunt during a four-run second inning.

Cal Ripken hit a two-run homer, his eighth, for a 6-0 lead in the third. Fred Lynn homered in the eighth off Stewart, who pitched his fourth complete game.

Carney Lansford, leading the majors with a .392 average, hit an RBI single in the Oakland third. He singled and scored on Dave Parker's double in the sixth and Jose Canseco hit his 11th home run in the ninth.

Tom Niedenfuer got the final out with the bases loaded, retiring pinch hitter Ed Jurak on a grounder. Oakland is 5-7 since its 14-game winning streak.

White Sox 3, Indians 2

Ozzie Guillen's run-scoring double broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning and Chicago ended a seven-game losing streak by beating Cleveland.

Mark Salas singled and scored on Guillen's two-out double, his first RBI since April 30.

Melido Perez, 4-1, allowed two runs and six hits in 6 2-3 innings. Bobby Thigpen closed for his seventh save.

Tom Candiotti, 6-2, gave up nine hits in his seventh complete game, tied for the most in the majors.

The visiting Indians lost for just the third time in 13 games.

Mariners 14, Red Sox 3

Jim Presley hit a two-run homer and three-run double as Seattle erupted for a season-high 18 hits against Boston at the Kingdome.

Presley, Mickey Brantley and Henry Cotto homered in a six-run second inning against Dennis Boyd, 5-3.

Alvin Davis also homered, Harold Reynolds had four hits and Brantley added three in the Mariners' highest-scoring game this year.

Bill Swift, 4-1, gave up eight hits and recorded 20 groundball outs in the complete game.

Yankees 5, Angels 2

Don Mattingly hit a two-run single and Rafael Santana's RBI single snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning as New York won at California.

The Yankees got 10 hits, with every starter having at least one.

Cecilio Guante, 3-2, went 2 2-3 innings for the victory and Dave Righetti pitched two perfect innings for his eighth save.

Mike Witt, 1-6, is 2-12 in his last 19 starts since Aug. 22.

Brian Downing homered for the Angels. He has hit six homers this season, including four in as many games against New York.

Twins 7, Royals 5

Gary Gaetti doubled for his third hit and scored on Gene Larkin's single in the eighth inning for a 6-5 lead and Minnesota held off host Kansas City.

Twins center fielder Kirby Puckett threw out Bill Pecota at the plate, trying to score on a fly ball, in the bottom of the eighth and Tom Herr hit an RBI single in the Minnesota ninth.

Keith Atherton, 2-1, got the victory and Jeff Reardon earned his eighth save. Bret Saberhagen, 5-5, allowed seven runs on 11 hits in 8 1-3 innings.

Gaetti scored in the sixth when he bowled over Royals catcher Mike Macfarlane for a 5-4 lead. George Brett tripled home the tying run in the seventh.

Brewers 9, Blue Jays 7

Glenn Braggs homered and Milwaukee used a 14-hit attack to overcome Toronto's five home runs.

Tony Fernandez led off the game with a homer and George Bell, Fred McGriff, Pat Borders and Rance Mulliniks also homered for the visiting Blue Jays.

The Brewers scored five runs in the third inning after Todd Stottlemyre, 1-6, struck out the first two batters. Greg Brock and B.J. Surhoff hit RBI doubles, Robin Yount and Ernest Riles had run-scoring singles.

Odell Jones, 2-0, who relieved after Ted Higuera developed stiffness in his lower back in the second inning, gave up one run on two hits in five innings. Dan Plesac got his ninth save.

North Korea Will Not Take Part

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea will not take part in the 1988 Olympic Games in South Korea, President Joaquin Chissano of Mozambique said today, quoting North Korean leader Kim Il Sung.

Chissano, who arrived in Japan on Monday after visits to North Korea and China, told reporters that Kim Il Sung "indicated the (North Korean) position on the Olympics just by saying that North Korea was not going to participate in the Games because they did not want to condone the policy of two Koreas."

After South Korea refused to co-host the Olympics, North Korea said it would boycott the competition scheduled for Seoul in September. But North Korean efforts to lobby the support of communist-bloc nations faltered as a record 161 nations — including important North Korean allies such as Soviet Union and China — have said they will take part in the Games.

South Korea and the Olympic organizers have said they will leave the door open for North Korean participation until the eve of the Olympics, but Pyongyang has not responded positively.

Chissano, in Japan for a four-day visit, said that North Korean authorities had shown him plans for a World Youth Festival that would coincide with the Olympic Games in September.

"They are building a lot of installations that they hope to conclude in September, I think, for the festival," Chissano said.

Chissano, who last visited North Korea in 1984 as foreign minister accompanying the late President Samora Machel, also said he was impressed by the level of development in North Korea in the areas of agriculture, industry and housing.

"They have reclaimed from the sea 300,000 hectares (740,000 acres) of land ... for agriculture," Chissano said.

Chissano's claim came one day after newspapers in London and Toronto reported that U.S. intelligence has discovered a North Korean terrorist plot to force cancellation of the Games.

A front-page Washington dispatch by Charles Ashman in the Sunday Express gave no attribution for the reported plot, in which Japanese terrorists would attack British, French and American airlines in order to frighten people away from the Olympics.

It said the arrest earlier this year of Japanese terrorists trained in communist North Korea led to an investigation that revealed the plot. It did not say where the terrorists were arrested.

In Canada, a similar report Sunday in the Toronto Sun said the plan called for attacks on targets of Air Canada, TWA, British Airways and Air France. The dispatch from Washington quoted unidentified CIA and military sources.

According to the Sun, attacks were to be made over six weeks on aircraft and airline facilities in New York, Toronto, London, Paris, Tokyo and Hong Kong.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said the administration has no evidence to support the stories.

Other officials said privately the U.S. ambassador in charge of the office of combating terrorism, L. Paul Bremer, had no recollection of having talked with the Toronto Sun even though he was cited as a source for the story.

Bird's Quarter Was One To Remember

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird's performance in Game 7 against Atlanta was one for basketball aficionados to savor. He played brilliantly in a fourth quarter that could have been Boston's last quarter of the season.

With the Hawks refusing to die, Bird hit nine of 10 shots and scored 20 points in the period. The Celtics needed nearly every one to edge the Hawks 118-116 and move into the NBA's Eastern Conference finals against Detroit starting Wednesday night.

"It was the kind of game where you know you'll take the tape out and watch in the future because it was a great one," Boston's Danny Ainge said.

The star of the tape doesn't plan to be a frequent viewer. With plenty of outstanding games behind him and more to come, he said he won't save the tape of Sunday's seventh game of the conference semifinals.

"I got some (taped) games somewhere, but over the years you tend to tape over" them. Bird said with a laugh Monday afternoon, 24 hours after his season-saving performance.

His mind was on the Pistons, whose physical play hasn't endeared them to the Celtics. In last season's conference finals, won by Boston in seven games, Celtics' center Robert Parish, feeling Detroit's Bill Laimbeer was playing too rough, punched the center.

"What we have to do is just forget about the past and just try to worry about the present and hopefully we'll be playing in the future," Bird said.

"It's going to be a tough series. It's going to be a series where there's going to be a lot of rough stuff going on, but the last series (against Atlanta) was (like that), so I think that what we have to do is just keep it under control and play our game."

Like most teams, the Celtics do that much better at home than on the road. Since a 131-114 victory in Boston Garden on Dec. 19, 1982, the Pistons have lost 21 consecutive games there. But Atlanta had lost 13 in a row at the Garden before beating the Celtics there in Game 5 to take a 3-2 series lead. Then Boston bounced back with victories in Atlanta and Boston.

"We can't give them a second chance," Pistons' guard Joe Dumars said. "Atlanta gave them a second chance in Game 6. Once you get them down, you've got to keep them down."

Boston has lost its last eight games at the Pistons' home in Pontiac, Mich.

The Celtics have the home court for the first, second, fifth and seventh games against Detroit, which must win at least once on the road to have a chance of reaching the finals against the Los Angeles Lakers or Dallas Mavericks.

ABC Axes 'Dolly' But Revives Falk

By DIANE HAITMAN
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

HOLLYWOOD — ABC has canceled "Dolly," its $40 million attempt to revive the variety hour, but plans to resuscitate another genre by bringing back Peter Falk as "Columbo" in the fall, the network said Monday.

As it did when it ran on NBC from 1971 to 1977, "Columbo" will be seen in rotation with two other series under an umbrella title of "ABC Mystery Movie": one starring Burt Reynolds as a retired Florida cop-turned-private eye and another featuring Academy Award-winner Louis Gossett Jr. as a traveling anthropologist.

In announcing its fall prime-time season, ABC said that in addition to canceling Dolly Parton's first-year variety show, which continued to flounder in the ratings despite a major creative overhaul in January, the network has eliminated "Spenser: For Hire," a series starring Robert Urich as a sensitive Boston private eye; "The Slap" Maxwell Story, a drama starring Dabney Coleman as an insensitive sports writer; and "Ohara," featuring Pat Morita as a veteran police lieutenant.

"The Charmings," "I Married Dora," "Buck James," "Sledge Hammer!," "Supercarriers," "The Thornies," "Probe," "Once a Hero," "Just in Time," "Sable" and "Family Man" were other casualties this season.

NBC and Fox Broadcasting announced their fall schedules last week. CBS is expected to disclose its schedule Tuesday, although a network spokesman said that announcement could be delayed because CBS is involved in bidding for broadcast rights to the 1992 Winter Olympic Games this week.

CBS previously announced the renewal of "Frank's Place," and the spokesman said new episodes of "Coming of Age," a mid-season replacement that was pulled from the schedule in March after just a couple of airings, have been ordered, though not necessarily for fall. "Murder, She Wrote" and CBS' three prime-time soaps — "Dallas," "Knots Landing" and "Falcon Crest" — also are understood to have been renewed. An advertising executive in New York said that a pilot based on the hit movie "Dirty Dancing" is likely to be part of CBS' fall lineup.

ABC, which finished second in the official season standings this year but since has dropped back to the third-place spot it had occupied for the previous three TV seasons, gave no official start date for the 1988-89 season. A spokesman said the date would be determined by the resolution of the continuing Writers Guild of America strike.

When the season does get under way, ABC's new series will include "Roseanne," starring deadpan comedian Roseanne Barr as a housewife; "Murphy's Law," with George Segal as an insurance investigator; "Knightwatch," about a group of young crimefighters, starring Benjamin Bratt, Don Franklin and Ava Haddad; and "A Fine Romance," featuring Anthony Andrews as a TV personality who shares the screen with his ex-wife, portrayed by Maggie Han.

The network will replace its "Disney Sunday," which has moved to NBC as "The Magical World of Disney," with "Incredible Sunday," a reality-based series produced by the makers of ABC's 1980-84 series "That's Incredible."

The list of series that ABC renewed for fall includes four mid-season shows: "The Wonder Years," a half-hour comedy that views the late 1960s through the eyes of a suburban 12-year-old; "China Beach," another nostalgic effort about the women stationed in Vietnam; "HeartBeat," about a women's medical clinic; and "Just the Ten of Us," a comedy spin-off of "Growing Pains," featuring the character of the coach and his large Catholic family.

Shows that made their debut last fall and will be back include the baby-boomers' favorite "thirtysomething"; "Hooperman," starring John Ritter as a San Francisco cop, and "Full House," a comedy about three bachelors raising children.

"Dynasty," ABC's long-running nighttime soap, will also return, moving from its Wednesday night time period to Thursday nights.

Whoopi Goldberg Still In Hospital

CHICAGO (AP) — Comedian Whoopi Goldberg is expected to remain hospitalized for several days because of complications from a bacterial infection, a spokeswoman said.

Ms. Goldberg was forced to cancel appearances in Pittsburgh, Chicago and Boston after she was hospitalized last week with a high fever from a urinary-tract infection, but all dates will be rescheduled, said spokeswoman Nanette Leonard.

Ms. Goldberg likely will remain hospitalized a few more days, Ms. Leonard said Monday.

Ms. Goldberg, 37, is nearing the end of a six-week, 12-city tour of her one-woman show, "Living on the Edge of Chaos," a series of comedy monologues.

She was nominated for an Academy Award for her role in the Steven Spielberg film, "The Color Purple."

Rod Steiger Plays 'Heavy' In Television's 'Desperado'

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Academy Award-winner Rod Steiger says it was his character's "Lolita"-like relationship with a young girl that attracted him to the latest "Desperado" movie.

Steiger plays Silas Slaten, a mine owner who offers to free roving cowboy Duell McCall from jail and a trumped-up murder charge if McCall will lead the search party to find Slaten's abducted "daughter."

McCall, played by Alex McArthur, is the "Desperado" in this third movie in the series. Author Elmore Leonard wrote the first movie about a young cowboy who's a fugitive from a phony charge. The latest film, "Desperado: Avalanche at Devil's Ridge," airs tonight on NBC.

"My character has an obsession with this girl," said Steiger. "That's what interested me the most, this relationship with the girl. It made me think of 'Lolita.' Everybody thinks the girl's my daughter, but she's not."

Slaten is the heavy of the film, but Steiger said he doesn't play him that way.

"I just think of him as a character to play," he said. "Let the audience be the judge. I think the mistake a lot of actors make when they play a heavy is to go through the boards."

"Every human being has something he wants. If the something I want makes me a criminal, then I become the heavy. I wonder how many times I've been killed in films. I know it's at least 60 times. In early live television I was killed every week, it seems."

Steiger, who won an Oscar as best actor in 1967 for "In the Heat of the Night," has been in only a few Westerns, although he professes a love for the genre. He starred in "A Fistful of Dynamite," "Jubal" and "Cattle Annie and Little Britches." He also starred in the 1955 movie version of the musical "Oklahoma!" playing Jud Fry, the bad guy in conflict with cowhand Curly, played by Gordon MacRae.

Steiger came out of the Navy after World War II with no thought of acting. "I saw all the pretty girls going into the theater program," he said. "I had the GI Bill and could take acting lessons. I got $85 a month, lived in New York and had a good time."

"But I fell in love with acting and became a fanatic. I kept telling myself not to get a job. You're not an actor yet. So I spent two years learning my profession. Then 'Philo Playhouse' called and offered me a few lines as a mechanic."

For the next several years, he acted both on Broadway and in the "golden age" of live television drama. He was "Marty" on television, the drama that as a movie brought an Oscar to Ernest Borgnine.

"I thought I was going to do the movie," Steiger said, "but they wanted me to sign a seven-year contract. I said no. Two days later I got the part of Jud in 'Oklahoma!' I'd tested for the role of Curly with an unknown actor named Paul Newman. Then I tested in the afternoon with James Dean for Jud."

"In the Heat of the Night" has now become a series on NBC. Carroll O'Connor plays the role Steiger had in the film. Steiger was not offered the role, but he said, "I don't know if I would have taken it. I didn't want to be in a rut. I wish they had called me, however, because my ego demands that."

Steiger has had an illustrious career. He was Marlon Brando's corrupt brother in "On the Waterfront." He played the title role in "Al Capone." He was Napoleon in "Waterloo." He also starred in "Dr. Zhivago," "The Pawnbroker" and "Hands Upon the City." His recent television credits include Pontius Pilate in "Jesus of Nazareth" and Arctic explorer Robert E. Peary in "Cook and Peary: The Race to the Pole."

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY May 25

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Be conscientious and efficient in your work today. If a fellow worker is in a poor humor, avoid an argument and try to be understanding.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): It is important that you find a way to relieve some of the stress you have been under lately. Work on improving your appearance tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): This is not a good day to invite guests into your home, as they would only make matters worse. Avoid any arguments today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): If you hear that a good friend has been critical of you, don't believe it until you get the facts straight from the horse's mouth.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Instead of wringing your hands over a troubling financial or property matter, get some advice from an expert and solve the problem sensibly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Get your social life in better order so you can meet more charming people. Ask a friend for help in handling a difficult problem.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Take some time to handle small personal tasks today. Get plenty of rest tonight, as you have a very busy day ahead of you tomorrow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Stay away from group affairs that could tax your nerves and ruin your mood today. You would be wise to stay at home and relax tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Be very careful in the handling of business affairs, and safeguard your career and credit. Be sure to do what is expected of you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You are anxious for a change of scenery, but don't neglect to keep a promise you have made. Don't follow any long-shot hunches.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Many bad situations could arise if you criticize and argue today, so keep silent for best results. Your mate may be in a strange mood.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Wait a few days to have that talk with a partner, and avoid an unpleasant confrontation. Avoid an amoral acquaintance this evening.

 Trumping your partner's ace could make you the subject of ridicule. Nevertheless, there are times when it is the only right play. This hand is from the recent Spring North American Championships, held in Buffalo.

Since he was a passed hand, South could afford to bid his ratty suit at the two-level. North had a good deal in reserve for his raise to three hearts, but he knew that his partner was bidding competitively.

West made the normal lead of his singleton in partner's suit. East won the king and continued with the ace. Had West routinely discarded, the contract would have been safe. On the third spade, if West ruffed low, declarer would overruff in dummy; if he ruffed high, declarer would discard a diamond.

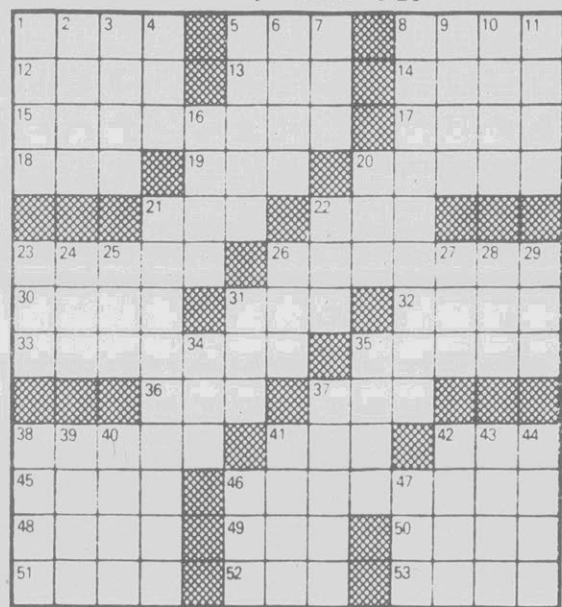

Either way, the defenders would never get more than four tricks.

However, several defenders rose to the occasion. They ruffed partner's ace of spades to shift to the queen of diamonds. If declarer covered, East would win the ace and return the suit, and a third diamond would ensure a trump trick en passant for the defenders. If declarer ducked in dummy, East would win the second diamond and shift back to spades. This time West would ruff the third spade with the queen of trumps, and when dummy overruffed East's jack of trumps would be promoted to the setting trick.

Accurate defense forced declarer into a position where his only choice was how he would get beaten!

Critical Study Cites Nuclear Buildup At Sea

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The five major navies of the world now have about 16,000 nuclear weapons assigned to them, including roughly 6,500 "non-strategic" warheads that are not covered by any type of arms control treaty, according to a new study.

"The nuclear arms race at sea is longstanding, and accelerating," the study concludes. "As of the end of 1987, 1,101 ships and submarines and over 3,250 aircraft (could) fire, transport or service one or more of these nuclear weapons.

"And all of the nuclear powers have ongoing nuclear research and development programs and are producing new naval nuclear weapons, as well as the ships, aircraft and missiles that carry or launch nuclear warheads."

The study, which focuses on the navies of the United States, Soviet Union, England, France and China, is titled

"Nuclear Warships and Naval Nuclear Weapons: A Complete Inventory" and was published today by the Institute for Policy Studies and the environmental group Greenpeace.

It was written by William M. Arkin, the director of the National Security Program at the institute, and a research associate, Joshua Handler. The institute is a non-profit, liberal think tank based in Washington that has frequently criticized the administration's military policies.

Arkin predicted the study could accelerate debate in countries around the world about allowing nuclear-armed ships to make port calls because it lists the individual ships in the five navies that have been certified to carry or fire nuclear weapons.

The 95-page report, by providing such specific information, also is attacking the official U.S. Navy policy of never confirming or denying the presence of nuclear weapons, Arkin said.

"The Navy argument that the policy bolsters deterrence is just baloney" because the ships certified to carry nuclear weapons can be identified, Arkin said.

"I don't think many people have any idea that there are 16,000 nuclear warheads at sea — one-quarter to one-third of the total in the world," he continued.

"But the naval proliferation (of nuclear weapons) is becoming a matter of concern to foreign governments. And I believe there is a growing interest and sense that controls are needed for naval nuclear weapons."

According to the report, the five navies currently deploy 14 types of long-range ballistic missiles on 17 types of submarines. That combined arsenal of strategic weaponry now totals 1,792 missiles with 9,487 warheads.

On the non-strategic, or short-range, side, the largest single category of nuclear weaponry is deployed for anti-submarine warfare. According to Arkin, there are now 3,300 such ASW weapons in the fleets of the United States, Soviet Union and England.

Short-range nuclear weapons also have been deployed for use against enemy aircraft, other ships and targets on land, the study adds. The United States and Soviet Union so far have deployed a combined 548 nuclear warheads on sea-launched cruise missiles and another 541 warheads on anti-aircraft missiles.

"The U.S. and Soviet navies are the most heavily 'nuclearized' of these nuclear weapons states," the study observes. "Seventy percent of the total U.S. fleet has a nuclear weapons capability, either in a combat or support role, while virtually all of the Soviet Union's principal warships are nuclear-capable.

"The other three fleets have a much smaller proportion ... Some 32 percent of the United Kingdom's; 12 percent of France's; and 2 percent of China's major warships and submarines are nuclear capable."

MISS UNIVERSE — Miss Thailand, Porntip Nakhirunkanek, 19, waves after she was crowned Miss Universe 1988 in Taipei Tuesday night. She now lives in Southern California, where she is a student. Miss Nakhirunkanek, winner in a race dominated by Asian women, will receive more than $250,000 in cash and prizes. Organizers estimated about 700 million people watched the event as it was beamed around the world from Linkou Stadium in suburban Taipei. (AP Laserphoto)

Zero Tolerance Policy Redefined

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard and Customs Service, intent on hanging onto yachts they seize under the new "zero-tolerance" anti-drug policy, have revised their procedures, officials say.

"This is not really a change in the policy on zero-tolerance," Coast Guard spokesman Capt. Randall Peterson said Monday night. "These are just some refinements in how we enforce the law."

Under the new guidelines, government officials no longer will seize vessels on the high seas — beyond the 12-mile U.S. territorial limit — simply because they carry small amounts of illegal drugs, said Peterson and Customs spokesman Dennis Murphy.

Now the boats will be seized only if there is evidence they are being used to transport drugs into the United States, they said.

The new guidelines were issued in the wake of highly publicized episodes in which expensive yachts were seized and then returned to their owners.

Among such vessels was the Atlantis II, owned by the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution of Massachusetts, which explored the wreck of the Titanic. Officials in San Diego seized the vessel when a crewman was found with a small amount of marijuana.

In Florida, the Coast Guard has boarded and confiscated the $2.5 million Ark Royal, as well as the Monkey Business — the Bahamas vacation yacht used by former presidential candidate Gary Hart, model Donna Rice and their friends. Both yachts carried only minute amounts of drugs.

"There were a couple of cases last week that raised some questions, so we sat down with the Coast Guard and Transportation so everybody was armed with as much information as possible," Murphy said. "In some of the cases we ran into, we didn't have enough evidence or a substantial enough case to take it to forfeiture."

Peterson said: "The way the law is written, possession of a controlled substance such as marijuana inside the 12-mile limit is against the law. However, if you're outside the 12-mile limit, there has to be evidence that there's intent to import or export."

The amount of the controlled substance doesn't matter, he said.

"What matters is where they've been, where they say they're going, what's written on the charts indicating where they're going ... a wide variety of things," Peterson said.

If Customs or Coast Guard officers see a small amount of illegal drugs in plain sight on a vessel on the high seas, that will be enough evidence to bring the boat in for further search, but "It isn't the same as seizure," Murphy said.

A spokeswoman for the American Civil Liberties Union, which said last week that it was conducting a review of the zero-tolerance policy, dismissed the changes as simply a reaction to criticism of the seizures.

The new guidelines were issued to Customs officers last Friday.

New York Finds Spotted Fever

BOSTON (AP) — Rocky Mountain spotted fever, largely a hazard of the suburbs and countryside, has turned up in New York City, where four cases were confirmed recently, including one that proved fatal, doctors said.

The cases occurred last summer, and all four New Yorkers apparently caught it near where they lived in the borough of the Bronx, according to Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

"There are many dangers of life in New York City, but until now they have not included Rocky Mountain spotted fever," Dr. David T. Durack of Duke University commented in an editorial in the journal.

A team headed by Dr. Miklos P. Salgo of Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York reported tracking down the probable culprits — ticks in the Bronx' Soundview park that carried bacteria responsible for the fever.

One of the victims, a 10-year-old boy, died of the infection.

Latin Tour

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Music Director Riccardo Muti and the Philadelphia Orchestra have begun a three-nation tour in South America.

"I don't know why so much time has passed since we've been here, and as for why now, I don't consult astrologers," Muti said at a news conference on Monday. The orchestra last toured South America 22 years ago, he said.

GREAT PRODUCTS & PRICES

10% Low Price Guarantee Policy:
 Lowe's guarantees our everyday low prices. If you find an identical advertised item at any retail competitor currently priced lower than ours, simply bring us written proof of that price. We'll match that price PLUS give you an additional 10% of the difference between the two prices when you buy from us. It must be an identical in-stock item. Closeout, discontinued and other clearance type sale items are excluded from this offer.

Satisfaction Guarantee Policy:
 Lowe's guarantees that you will be satisfied with your purchase. If you are not completely happy with your purchase, simply return it along with your original sales receipt to any Lowe's store. We'll repair it, replace it, or refund your money.

Lowe's Raincheck Policy:
 If an advertised item is temporarily out-of-stock, we will gladly issue a raincheck (except for items marked limited quantities, discontinued or closeout). When we restock you will be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price. Some stores may not stock all advertised items, however, every item shown can be ordered for you.

Lowe's Fair Purchase Policy:
 In order to provide fair purchase opportunity to all our customers, Lowe's reserves the right to limit quantities sold to individual customers. No dealers, please.
