Gorbachev Calls For Speed-Up On Approval Of Arms Treaty

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent
MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev told President Reagan today it may be "time to bang our fists on the table" to prod negotiators to conclude work on a treaty cutting strategic nuclear arms stockpiles by 50 percent.

"I'll do anything that works," the president told Gorbachev.

The Soviet leader expressed new hopes for completing a major arms treaty, but it was not clear whether he was talking about getting it done by summit's end — or merely before Reagan's term concludes next January. Soviet and American officials have said repeatedly they do not expect a strategic arms pact (START) to be concluded here.

On their third day of talks, Reagan and Gorbachev met in the Soviet leader's Kremlin office, sitting beneath a portrait of Karl Marx. After their discussions, they took an unscheduled stroll on Red Square past the tomb of Lenin and shook hands with surprised tourists.

During an encounter with reporters, Reagan was asked if he still believed the Soviet Union was an "evil empire," as he has called it in the past.

Standing next to his host, Reagan said he no longer thought that way. "I was talking about another time, another era," the president said.

The leaders also watched and joined in the applause as Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze signed several secondary agreements, including a pair of arms accords. Under one such pact agreed to in Moscow, the superpowers will notify each other of the time, place and intended target of intercontinental-range missiles tests.

Reagan, continuing his public relations offensive to promote freedom and human rights in the Soviet Union, met over lunch at the House of Writers with artists, filmmakers and writers.

Talking to some of the Soviet Union's leading intellectuals, he discussed how an actor could become president — explaining that both artists and political leaders had to be able to grasp a vision and to put it into life.

"By the way, I've found that Mr. Gorbachev has the ability to grasp and hold a vision and I respect him for that," Reagan said.

Later, in an address prepared for delivery to students at Moscow State University, Reagan said the young people were living "in one of the most exciting, hopeful times in Soviet history" when "the first breath of freedom stirs the air."

He said "we are hopeful that the promise of reform will be fulfilled."

The president cautioned that "progress is not fore-ordained. The key is freedom — freedom of thought, freedom of information, freedom of communication." He cited steps in

Dismal Day At Polls

Voter turnout in today's second Democratic primary election was extremely light this morning, according to an election official.

Margaret Hardee, supervisor at the Pitt County Board of Elections, said as of 10 a.m. today, only 1,148 of the 36,000 registered Democratic voters in Pitt County had voted.

"It's dismal at the polls," she said. "I can't imagine why the voters would let someone else make a decision for them when it affects their future."

"It will cost just as much to hold an election when 10 people vote as it will for 10,000. Poll workers are so lonely at the polls, they are figuring how much it will cost the taxpayers per voter and the elections office finds the voters are just staying away in droves."

Two races were involved in today's Pitt County election. Democratic voters in County Commissioner Districts 1 and 2, which constitute Consolidated District A, were eligible to vote for either James H. Dupree of Bethel, or D.D. Garrett of Greenville.

Meanwhile, Democratic voters countywide were eligible to vote in the Court of Appeals contest involving John B. (Jack) Lewis Jr. of Farmville, and William L. Davis III of Lumberton.

Polls were to remain open today at all 25 Pitt County voting precincts until 7:30 p.m.

Farm Mart Is 'Sit And Talk' Store

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer
Vendors at the Pitt County Farmers Market say they offer customers fresh produce, low prices and a chance to get out and socialize.

"I've farmed all my life," said Cletus Hart of Grifton, who has been selling at the market for two years. "I enjoy coming out here. I haven't missed but one day since they have been open, this year and last year, too."

"I tell people, 'We enjoy having you come out, even if you don't buy nothing,'" Hart said. "A lot of people come out just to sit and talk."

That's the kind of atmosphere first-year market director Provert Lassiter wants to create, and he plans to set up some picnic tables in the grass beside the market, which is located near Bells Fork.

Regular customers would enjoy the picnic tables, he said, but the tables would also help create more of a relaxed, social atmosphere and draw new people to the market. And after they know about the market, there's a good chance they will come back, he said.

Lassiter said he is also hoping to get a little more money from the county commissioners for advertising, because additional vendors will be selling at the market once corn, butterbeans, tomatoes and other vegetables come in.

"I've signed up eight new vendors to sell, but they won't be coming in until late June," Lassiter said. "Then we'll have about 15 sellers."

Lassiter said the cold spring prevented some vegetables from maturing on schedule, but locally grown garden peas, green beans, onions, potatoes, beets, broccoli and cabbage are available now.

The market is open Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays from 8 a.m. until noon and Fridays from 1 p.m. until 6 p.m.

"Saturday is the big day. That's the day they bring everything in the garden," Lassiter said, and two ladies also bring muffins, cakes and other baked goods.

Customers need to come early on Saturdays because vendors often sell out by 11 a.m. "That's expected and that's good. You want them to sell what they raise," Lassiter said.

"We've been selling most of the stuff out on Saturdays," Hart said. "(Customers) get it fresher, and it's a little bit cheaper than in the store."

Hart said garden peas go for about 90 cents a pound at supermarkets, so he set his price at 80 cents.

Norman Worthington of Winterville has fresh cucumbers, zucchini, peas and two kinds of cabbage, all grown in his 2.5-acre garden.

There is gourmet cabbage, which has purple leaves. "That's the highfalutin cabbage," Worthington said. "It'll last longer."

And there is early Jersey cabbage, which is green. "That's the best kind to eat," he said. "That's the best selling cabbage."

Worthington, who used to sell tractors and farm equipment, said this is his second year selling at the market. "I need something to do to stay out of meanness," he said, laughing.

State Grant Subsidizes Emergency Shelter Program

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer
A recently approved state grant will significantly assist efforts within the community to ease the plight of the homeless, said an official of the Greenville Community Shelter.

The Rev. Samuel W. Loy, shelter president, said today that a recently announced award of $6,948 from the state's Emergency Shelter Grants Program will substantially aid the shelter's goal of providing safe and comfortable accommodations for those without a place to otherwise stay.

"It's a very important part of our budget," Loy said of the grant. "This should help us get through the rest of this year in terms of operating costs."

Loy said grant assistance is vital to the shelter, providing approximately half of its operating budget. He said local contributions make up the majority of the remaining operating costs.

The shelter, which opened its doors to the homeless in January, is located at the old Agnes Fullilove School site on Chestnut Street and Manhattan Avenue.

As the shelter approaches its six-month anniversary, Rev. Loy said the shelter program continues to grow.

"Recently we hired a half-time manager for the program and currently we're in the process of hiring a half-time program director," he said.

He indicated such an employee would keep up with shelter financial accounting, manage grant funds, work with area church organizations and service agencies and to provide assistance in coordinating various publicity efforts.

Although the frigid climate existing at the time the shelter opened has turned into sultry, summer heat, Loy said the shelter continues to provide assistance to an average of 18 people each night.

In addition, Loy said the shelter continues to draw volunteer support from local churches and other organizations.

"About 350 volunteers have spent the night so far helping these people," he said. "I think it's been very successful because of public concern about the homeless. It gives people a chance to act and do something about that concern. Everybody has been responding beautifully," he commented.

Greenville was one of 20 North Carolina cities receiving an ESGP grant award. A total of $208,460 was awarded statewide.

According to Andy Harris, assistant director of city planning and development, the local grant will be administered to the city by the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development and through the Division of Community Assistance.

Harris said the nearly $7,000 award was the second state grant the city has received on behalf of the shelter. A $24,567 grant was received late last year.

Eligible activities for grant use include operation of emergency shelters for the homeless including payment of rent, maintenance costs, utilities, insurance, and for the purchase of furnishings and appliances.

As a condition of award, each local government is required to spend the ESGP funds within 180 days, and must demonstrate local matching resources.

Harris said those matching resources could consist of donations and volunteer work put forth from local civic and church organizations.

The ESGP was initiated as a result of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Act of 1987.

Applications were reviewed and ranked on a minimum eligibility basis. Thirty eligible applications submitted statewide received maximum funding on a pro-rata formula based on the amount originally requested.

Three Americans May Be Freed

LONDON (AP) — The Times of London said today that four hostages in Lebanon, three Americans and an Indian, may soon be freed following the Syrian army's takeover of the Beirut district where they are believed held.

The paper identified the four as Americans Robert Polhill, Jesse Turner and Alann Steen, and Indian Mithileshwar Singh, all educators at Beirut University. They were abducted Jan. 24, 1987.

"The Syrians appear set to produce four Western hostages from the suburbs of Beirut within a week of their military deployment there," the Times reported from Beirut.

It said the four "are now believed to be in the hands of the Shiite Amal movement, Syria's proxy militia in west Beirut, and to be in the Bourj el-Barajneh district of the suburbs which is now under Syrian military control."

The Times said Amal leader Nabih Berri, Lebanon's justice minister, has scheduled a news conference this week, "and there is understandable speculation that this may be to announce the hostages' release."

The Beirut newspaper As-Safir reported Monday that the four educators might be freed soon. The newspaper, which cited unidentified sources close to President Amin Gemayel, linked the possible release to the deployment of Syrian troops in Beirut's southern slums.

Eighteen foreigners — including nine Americans — are believed held in Lebanon. The longest held is Terry A. Anderson, 40, chief Middle East Correspondent of The Associated Press, who was kidnapped March 16, 1985.

In The Area

Pitt Job Placements

James E. Hannan, manager of the Greenville office of the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina, announced results of the office's operation for the program year — July 1987 to March 31, 1988.

Hannan said the office placed 2,328 applicants in jobs during the period. Of that number, 604 were young workers under 22 years of age, 364 were veterans, and 1,417 had high school or higher levels of education.

Hannan said the office served 11,063 job seekers during the program year. The largest group served was for clerical and sales persons at 2,049, with 1,149 helped with jobs dealing with services. Other areas included: professional, technical and managerial, 781; processing and benchwork, 840; structural work, 835; machine trades, 723, and miscellaneous occupations, 1,254.

A resume of the civilian labor force totals in Pitt County for March showed a force of 53,520 workers, with 52,620 employed and 1,900 unemployed, for an unemployment rate of 3.6 percent. The rate compares with North Carolina's 4 percent and the United States unadjusted unemployment rate of 5.9 percent.

MGH Seeks Doctor

The board of Martin General Hospital in Williamston, meeting recently, agreed to take an active role in finding an obstetrician-gynecologist which it says is needed for the hospital staff.

Currently, only one physician serves in that capacity at the hospital and finding a second OB/GYN has been termed a priority item on its physician recruitment agenda.

A report presented to the board noted that Lindell Gobbel has been hired as the hospital's new director of nursing. She joins the Martin General Hospital staff from Onslow Memorial Hospital.

In other business, the board authorized hospital administrator George Brandt to sign contracts with four companies for construction of an intensive care unit and renovation of the emergency room, and approved purchase materials management software at a cost of $7,500.

Committee To Meet

The Historic Properties Selection Committee will meet Wednesday at 5 p.m. in the third floor conference room of the Community Building, located on the corner of Fourth and Greene streets.

Symposium On Pain

Dr. Steven I. Cohen, chiropractic physician, attended an inter-disciplinary symposium on the chronic pain patient presented by Dr. Stephen Levitt of the Pain Resource Center in Durham.

The chronic pain battery exam for rating and evaluating the chronic pain patient includes pain scales, drug abuse characteristics, psychiatric factors, pain history, stress factors, and therapeutic approaches. These are evaluated by computer at the Pain Resource Center.

Schools Will Use Recommendations

The Pitt County Board of Education agreed Monday to have recommendations from the Futures Task Force implemented in the school system.

After about an hour of discussing the recommendations, Superintendent Eddie West told the board his next step would be to combine the recommendations of the Futures and Minority task forces and integrate ing on a new directory for Greenville, Ayden, Bethel, Farmville, Fountain and Snow Hill exchanges.

Grady Strickland, district commercial manager, said that the directory team will remain in the area through July 6.

Students Chosen

Nine Pitt County high school students have been invited to attend the N.C. School of Science and Mathematics next fall, school officials have announced.

Selected were Angela Capillary and Kathryn M. Mohr of D.H. Conley, Samuel J. Kirland and Libria R. Stephens of Farmville Central, and Lydia R. Coulter, Derrick S. Hines, Alisa D. Ingram, John H. Rose and Haila K. Rusch, all of J.H. Rose.

The area students are among 232 in the state selected for the incoming junior class. They were chosen from nearly 700 high school sophomores who were nominated statewide.

An affiliate school of the University of North Carolina, the School of Science and Mathematics opened in 1980 as the nation's first statewide, residential, public high school for students with special ability and interest in the sciences and mathematics. Students attend the school their junior and senior years.

them into the schools curricula over a next few years.

The 1988-89 year will be used for planning, West said, with formal recommendations being brought to the board for approval beginning in the 1989-90 year.

The 21 consolidated recommendations include expanding writing skills in grades first through 12th; continuing a course at the middle school level in thinking and studying skills; incorporating higher level thinking skills into teacher training; providing more incentives to attract the best teachers (not necessarily more money), and providing schools and central management with current computer and telecommunication systems to maximize efficiency and service.

Board members not attending the workshop were Nicholas Patrone, Elbert Buck and Mark Owens.

School Visitors

Pitt County Commissioner Eugene James recently visited fourth-grade classes of Lois Reddick and Jasa Allen at Belvoir Elementary School. He explained his job as county commissioner and the work of county government.

Meteorologist Skip Waters of WCTI television discussed weather instruments with fourth-graders at the school, including safety tips during storms. He presented students handouts, pencils and computer printouts of weather information used at the television station.

State Rep. Walter Jones Jr. of Farmville visited Jasa Allen's fourth-graders recently and discussed state government and how a bill becomes a law.

Contest Winners

Students at Greenville Middle School recently competed in the Pitt County Middle School Math Contest.

In the seventh grade division, three students won trophies — Richard Ray, first place; Bonnie Seigler, second, and Alex Darden, fourth.

Greenville Mayor Ed Carter recently visited Patti Smith's social studies class at the school and shared his experiences in Vietnam to complete a unit the class was studying. He also discussed the duties of mayor and the city government.

UNC-G Graduates

Brenda G. Stanton and Lara L. Hamblen, both of Greenville, were among 2,000 students receiving degrees from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro during the school's 96th commencement recently.

Ms. Stanton graduated magna cum laude with a bachelor's degree in psychology, while Ms. Hamblen received a bachelor's degree in dance education.

Gas Leak

BOSTON (AP) — Noxious gas that filled the cabin of a United Airlines jetliner bound for Boston came from luggage on board, not the plane, according to the Federal Aviation Administration.

An investigation of Saturday night's incident determined the plane to be airworthy, said Claudio Gualco, FAA duty officer at Logan International Airport.

The gas, suspected to be butane, leaked from luggage stored in the cabin of the plane en route from Chicago. Some of the 101 people aboard developed headaches and eye irritations from the gas, but no one was hospitalized, Gualco said Sunday.

Dansey Speaks Out Against Waste Site

By JOHN BARE

Reflector Staff Writer

Bill Dansey, a Republican running for the state Senate in the 9th District, today spoke out against placing a radioactive waste dump in Edgecombe County and said Sen. Thomas F. Taft, D-Pitt, has not done an adequate job in fighting the dump.

Taft — the Democratic incumbent Dansey will face in the November election — has suggested a referendum to allow people in the region to vote on whether or not they support the waste dump site, but Dansey said a referendum would not eliminate the problem.

"I think Senator Taft's proposal is Band-Aid surgery. I don't think it really treats the source of the problem," Dansey said at a press conference in Greenville. "There isn't a single county or region which would vote to locate such a facility in their midst."

In response to Dansey's statements, Taft said he has worked hard to see that the dump is not located on the Pitt County border and Dansey's charge is inaccurate.

"I think that that's preposterous and purely political. In fact, I've led

Four Names Are Added To Plaque

Inscriptions honoring four men were added to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Plaque at the base of the War Memorial on the Pitt County Courthouse grounds Monday.

Memorial Day ceremonies were conducted by the Vietnam Veterans of America and the Greenville Jaycees.

The names added are Bobby Ray Wilkins of Bethel, killed on June 29, 1969; Obadiah Grimsley of Ayden, killed on Dec. 26, 1967; William R. Stocks of Ayden, killed on Feb. 24, 1969, and James Arthur Worthington of Greenville, killed on April 23, 1969. This brings to 26 the number of names of people from Pitt County who died in Vietnam.

The dedication of the additionally inscribed plaque was carried out after a talk by Allan Hoffman, vice president of the VVA. Earlier talks were given by Paul Waldrop, president of the Pitt County Veterans Council and commander of American Legion Post 39; Hugh Cox, president of the VVA, and Michie Faulconer of the Greenville Jaycees.

Rich Morrison was recognized as the Jaycees project chairman; Mike Messick, as the chairman of the original Vietnam War dead plaque project. The Jaycees and Wachovia Bank paid for the additional inscription.

The VVA supplied a color guard for the ceremony and a bugler played taps to honor the dead. The National Anthem was sung by Jeff Atkins and the invocation was led by the Rev. Dan Rivers. Wreaths were left at the monument and American flags were placed on the lawn of the courthouse.

the fight and am proud of the leadership I'm giving the issue, and I look forward to having his help in the fight," Taft said.

The Edgecombe County Commissioners and state Rep. Joe L. Maveric, D-Edgecombe, are the source of the problem, Dansey said, and Pitt County residents should campaign against the two Edgecombe County Commissioners running for re-election in November.

"I'd like to see Mavretic gone in November with a write-in candidate," Dansey said.

In an effort to centralize support against Mavretic, the commissioners and the waste site, Dansey said he is creating a "Dump the Dump" campaign and is donating the first $100.

He said he would not lead the fund-raising efforts, but he would like to see the idea grow because it will take money and support for Pitt County residents to campaign against the waste site.

"We don't need to dilly-dally around with it," Dansey said. "If this thing ever picks up steam, there's no way we can stop it."

Taft said the Regional Development Group at East Carolina University is "putting together a format for a blue-ribbon panel that will coordinate scientific and technical analysis of the proposed site. They will also be a clearing house for public concern and public participation in the efforts to study and counter the proposed waste site."

The Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission — made up of members appointed by the governor, lieutenant governor and speaker of the House — is not qualified to determine where the waste site should be located, Dansey said, because the commission is political, not technical.

Dansey suggested that Gov. Jim Martin appoint a panel of five to seven experts with a minimum of 15 years of experience in their particular field, and the panel would have the final approval of where to locate the waste site.

As a member of the Southeast Compact Commission, North Carolina is committed to hosting a radioactive waste dump for eight states.

Jewelry Reported Taken From Home

Greenville police said six thefts, including more than $7,505 worth of jewelry and other items from a Quail Ridge condominium, were reported to the department Monday.

Officer M.E. Hayes said the jewelry — diamonds, bracelets and necklaces — a pair of sunglasses, a purse containing $30 in cash, and other items were taken from 78 Quail Ridge in an incident reported at 4:15 p.m., while Officer W.S. Heath said two glasses, salt and pepper shakers and an ashtray were taken from the Holiday Inn on Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 12:12 a.m.

Officer F.G. Pruitt said a number of items were taken from E.B. Aycock Junior High School and several thousand dollars in malicious damage was done in a break-in reported at 6:32 a.m. But police said a number of items taken from the school — $25 in cash, a camera and flash unit, a football, and a radio-cassette player — were recovered about 9 a.m. near the Beik Building on Charles Boulevard.

Officer T.A. Lee said eight shirts valued at $120 were taken from a vehicle parked at the Hardee Building on West Sixth Street in an incident reported at 2:03 p.m., while Officer B.M. Highland said a clarinet valued at $400 was taken from a locker at E.B. Aycock Junior High School in an incident reported at 2:40 p.m.

According to Officer R.L. Smith, a coin operated newspaper rack was taken from the Fresh Way Food Store on Dickinson Avenue in an incident reported at 4:10 p.m.

Court Says Most 'Gray Market' Import Sales Legal

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that the bulk of so-called "gray market" goods are legal, giving a green light to a big part of a multibillion-dollar business that allows consumers to buy costly, brand-name imports at steep discounts.

upheld parts of U.S. Customs Service regulations that permit gray market products into the country without approval from trademark owners.

The court also struck down part of the Customs Service rules, thereby limiting somewhat the availability of the discount goods. But some justices said those rules only apply to a small part of the dispute decided today. The exact size of the gray market is unclear. Estimates have ranged from $5 billion to $10 billion a year.

The declining value of the dollar, reducing its purchasing power abroad, may have dampened the market. But the business still appears to be thriving.

Justice Anthony M. Kennedy, writing for the court, said a key Customs Service regulation authorizing gray market imports does not violate federal law.

By a 9-0 vote, the court upheld Customs Service rules that limit the ability of foreign companies to control distribution of their products in this country by incorporating a subsidiary in the United States.

Federal law is "sufficiently ambiguous" to give the Customs Service such leeway, Kennedy said.

Justice William J. Brennan, in a separate opinion, said, "The dispute in this litigation centers almost exclusively around" that aspect of Customs Service rules.

By a separate 5-4 vote, the justices struck down a Customs Service regulation that expands the availability of gray market goods.

The Customs Service and two leading discount distributors, K mart Corp. and 47th Street Photo Inc. of

New York City, said gray market goods should be allowed.

Typically, the discount companies buy trademarked products in the United States more cheaply than do the owners of the U.S. trademarks.

The list of famous-name goods made abroad includes everything from German sedans and French champagne to Japanese cameras and watches.

Justices Rule Executions Valid Despite Violation

WASHINGTON (AP) — States sometimes may execute convicted murderers even if their constitutional right to a lawyer's help was violated, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By a 5-3 vote, the justices said for the first time that such errors may be deemed "harmless."

But the justices voted 8-0 in stating that such an error in the prosecution of convicted Texas murderer John Satterwhite was not harmless. The decision overturned his death sentence.

The high court in 1981 ruled that a defendant facing a possible death sentence if convicted has the right to consult with a lawyer before submitting to a psychiatric examination designed to determine his future dangerousness.

Writing for the court today, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor said violations of that right do not necessarily mean that an ensuing death sentence, in part based on a finding of future dangerousness, must be thrown out.

The court refused to adopt an automatic rule that would call for reversing the death sentence in any case in which such a violation occurs.

"We believe that a reviewing court can make an intelligent judgment about whether the erroneous admission of psychiatric testimony might have affected a capital sentencing jury," O'Connor said.

The ruling thus leaves to a case-by-case review the fates of other death row inmates whose right to consult with a lawyer before taking such tests were violated.

O'Connor was joined by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Justices Byron R. White, John Paul Stevens and Antonin Scalia.

Justices Thurgood Marshall, William J. Brennan and Harry A. Blackmun favored imposing an automatic rule to strike down any death sentence in a case in which such a constitutional violation occurred.

"The unique nature of a capital sentencing determination should cause this court to be especially hesitant ever to sanction harmless-error review of constitutional errors that taint capital sentencing proceedings," Marshall wrote for himself and Brennan.

He said an error such as the one in Satterwhite's case should not be subject to a harmless-error review.

Satterwhite was convicted of the March 12, 1979, murder of Mary Frances Davis, a convenience store clerk in San Antonio.

The case is Satterwhite vs. Texas, 86-6284.

W.R. Grace Enters Plea Of Guilty

BOSTON (AP) — W.R. Grace Co. pleaded guilty today to charges it lied about the amount of a hazardous chemical it used at its plant in Woburn, where residents have blamed pollution of drinking water for six cancer deaths.

U.S. District Judge Joseph L. Tauro fined the New York-based chemical company the maximum $10,000 for understating the amount of acetone bought by its Cryovac division in Woburn.

The judge, as part of an agreement between W.R. Grace and federal prosecutors, dismissed a second charge against the company that it had concealed the fact that waste materials had on numerous occasions been dumped behind the plant.

In a separate civil suit filed by eight Woburn families, Grace was found liable for polluting town wells. The case was settled in 1986 for a reported $8 million.

In February 1982, the company asserted in a letter to the federal Environmental Protection Administration that it had bought only one five-gallon pail of acetone in 1978 for the Woburn plant.

The company said that acetone purchase was the only one it made for the Woburn plant in 22 years covered by the EPA inquiry.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Tobin Harvey told Tauro that from 1973 to 1976, Grace had bought 65 gallons of acetone and had used the solvent repeatedly in the 1960s and 1970s to clean paint spray guns and circuit boards at Cryovac, a food packaging machine shop.

W.R. Grace attorney Robert Popeo told the judge that no company officials were aware of the reports to the EPA were inaccurate at the time they were filed.

"No one suspected ... they committed any act that would have been hazardous," Popeo said.

W.R. Grace was charged by a federal grand jury in January 1987 with lying to the government about chemicals it used at the Cryovac plant located near two contaminated Woburn wells.

The two-count indictment charged that in 1982 Grace knowingly and falsely reported to the EPA amounts of toxic chemicals bought and used at Cryovac.

The indictment also charged that Grace concealed the dumping outside the plant from the EPA.

Colorado Site Tested For Missile Demolition

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — A Pershing II rocket motor was fired successfully at dawn today, sending a plume of exhaust across the plains in a pollution test designed to help determine whether the site can be used to demolish the missiles as required by a new U.S.-Soviet treaty.

Originally scheduled for May 20, the test burn had been delayed again and again because of bad weather. Today was the last day open for the test under the U.S.-Soviet Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces treaty.

The 56-second test started at 6:35 a.m. at Pueblo Army Depot Activity 15 miles east of here, officials said.

"There was a steady, bright white light from the end of the rocket nozzle extending approximately 75-80 feet," said depot spokeswoman Mary Wilson.

A brownish plume stretched out horizontally before the wind swept it across sagebrush-covered plains and about 50 monitors set out by the Colorado Department of Health, which will analyze the exhaust to see if such firings would pose any threat to the environment.

"The firing was conducted successfully. We expect the test itself will be a success from our initial indications," Wilson said.

The intermediate nuclear weapons treaty was ratified last week by the Senate, and copies are scheduled to be exchanged Wednesday at the summit meeting in Moscow between Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev and President Reagan.

The treaty requires that the Army's 420 Pershing missiles be destroyed, and the United States plans to destroy the missiles by firing their rocket motors, which cannot be reused.

If the test had not been done today, it would have had to be delayed by at least 30 days because it would have been governed by the treaty.

"If we were to test fire it, it is then treated as an elimination (of a weapon) under the treaty and subject to inspection by the Soviet inspectors," said Wilson. "They'd have to witness it. ... We have to give them 30 days' notice for an elimination inspection."

Brad Beckham, director of the Health Department's Air Pollution Control Division, said it would be several weeks before a complete assessment of the test firing data will be complete.

The Health Department is requiring the test before the Army can designate the depot for the $9 million program.

Holiday Weekend Is 'Unusually Safe'

Capt. W.A. Ballard of the North Carolina Highway Patrol said he considers the Memorial Day weekend in eastern North Carolina "an unusually safe one."

There was one fatality in the 22-county region, he said, and about the same number of collisions as usual. The fatality was a one-car accident in Hertford County, he said. The wrecks in the region for the week numbered 144, he said. The usual count Monday-Sunday is 130-150.

He said the Highway Patrol sought to make itself as visible as possible and had 119 of its 121 troopers working, plus most of its supervisors. In Pitt County, all 14 troopers were working.

Roadblocks checking for up-to-date driver's licenses, seat belt and child restraint usage, and driving under the influence were held throughout the region and resulted in increased arrests in all these areas, including about 300 seat belt and child restraint non-use arrests, he said. Speeding arrests and DWIs were up, too, Ballard said, especially in the coastal resort areas. He said 27 DWI arrests were made in Carteret County, 30 in Dare County. This is about double the number made in each those counties in a normal weekend, he said.

In Pitt County, Pearce said, arrests were not significantly high and traffic after Friday was much lighter than usual.

No Increase

Back-Door Tax Hike Bad Business

No back-door tax hike for Greenville residents, please.

Tax revaluation time makes public officials squirm with anticipation at the thought of being able to technically lower the tax rate while gathering more revenue at the same time. The temptation is strong to readjust the rate just enough to cover that special project or that urgent request or to give the city government some breathing room — without really raising taxes.

But that's not fair. And it's not sound business. What it amounts to is a tax hike, disguised as revaluation. Even if the tax rate goes down, taxpayers are forking out more money.

A back-door tax hike hides the fact that public officials don't have sharp pencils. It allows them to play catch-up for management mistakes and to pad requests. Greenville's City Council should avoid it.

For example, if the city's tax rate was to remain consistent with the 63 cents it was before revaluation, it would have to be dropped to 53 cents. But City Manager Greg Knowles has proposed a budget that would require a 57 cent tax rate — equivalent to a 4 cent tax hike.

Granted, Greenville has lost some revenue in 1988 from the repeal of the inventory tax and other changes mandated by the 1987 General Assembly, and the city is a rapidly-growing municipality faced with meeting demands of this growth. But the city's tax base shrunk a lot less than Pitt County's, and the crunch from tax shifts has had a lesser effect.

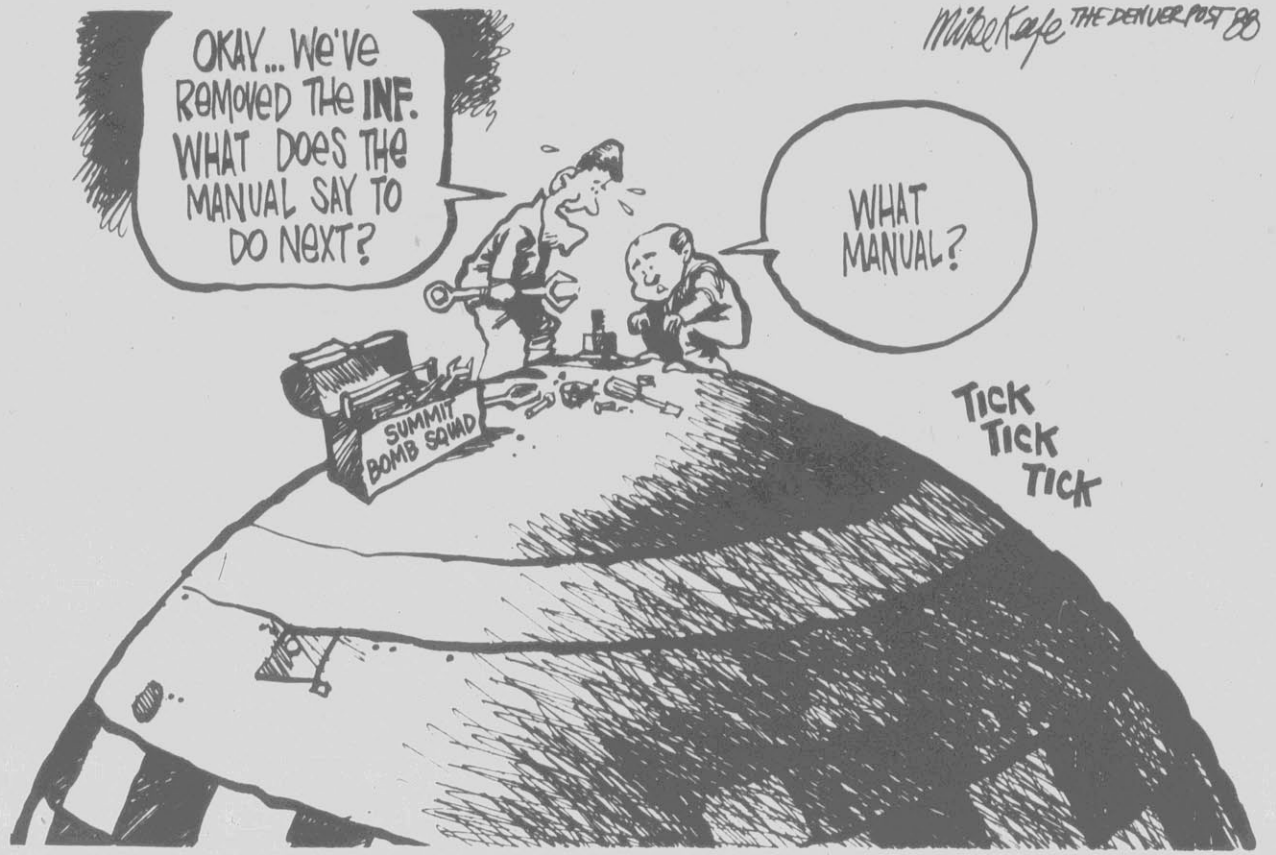

But is the 4-cent tax hike really necessary? Are all the items included in even a 53-cent tax rate essential? Can't some waste be cut out, some fat removed?

The City Council must ask itself if a 4-cent increase is really responsible. It's bad business to implement a back-door tax hike — officials should be able to manage public finances more efficiently.

Taxpayers deserve fair treatment. Their money pays public salaries and their votes put officials in office.

So no back-door tax hike in 1988, OK?

The Power Of Affectionate Inattention

WASHINGTON — Here is the scenario:

In the 1950s, the liberal academy and its acolytes in the American press concluded that the American system of government had two flaws. One was the do-nothing occupant of the White House, Dwight Eisenhower, who was allowing the presidency to wither away. The other was Congress, a backward, obstructionist mob of Dixiecrats and isolationists, whose expertise was limited to filibusters and witch hunts.

The solution was simple enough: a vigorous young president who would restore the office to its rightful place as the center of federal action, power and authority. He would smite the legislative reactionaries and relegate Congress to its proper role as a compliant junior partner of the White House. John F. Kennedy seemed to fill the bill and throughout his brief tenure enthralled the Fourth Estate.

His grave was still fresh when a new wisdom took hold in the press. The nation was threatened by an "Imperial Presidency." It launched us into Vietnam and corrupted the CIA and the FBI. It concocted and carried out the Watergate conspiracy. It rode the wrong horses in El Salvador, Nicaragua, South Africa and the rest of the Third World. It perpetrated the Iran-Contra affair, turned its back on the poor and the damned and ran the country deep in debt.

Congress, in all these events, was an innocent bystander, run over by the executive juggernaut. In the process it underwent a mysterious reincarnation, became the conscience of our better selves and made common cause with the press to oppose and expose the evils hatched at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. It was perhaps not a total coincidence that the White House was in the hands of Republicans during most of this period of revisionism, while Democrats reigned in Congress.

Purple prose aside, that scenario is not far off the mark. The "Imperial Presidency" has preoccupied The Washington Post and other elements of the national media for nearly a quarter of a century. Congress, our old punching bag, has taken on a more admirable cast, its unchanging sinfulness treated, very frequently, with an easy tolerance and a wink while its claims on the Treasury are largely ignored.

Much is written about "sleaze" in the administration. But House Speaker Jim Wright's odd and profitable financial affairs aroused little interest in Washington until very recently; his colleagues still give him standing ovations in witness to his character and abilities as a fixer for constituents, the kind of abilities that got Michael Deaver a jail term. The Philadelphia Inquirer published last month a series of stunning articles on tax loopholes approved last year by Congress under which a few thousand people got benefits worth $10 billion to $30 billion. An interesting aspect of the articles was their focus on the beneficiaries of the loopholes; their benefactors in Congress were virtually ignored.

The press galleries of the Senate and the House are seldom filled these days, and the legislative product rarely merits page-one attention. You won't see Dan Rather lurking outside a committee room for an "ambush interview." The Post is so dismissive of the whole business that it is unable to find room to print roll-call votes except on the rarest of occasions.

Who cares? Not the editors or the media stars, who are usually found on the White House lawn or somewhere Out There chasing would-be presidents from pig farm to pig farm. The Iowa caucuses, events of no significance, attracted 3,000 journalists this year, five times the number who covered World War II. The Moscow summit has drawn 1,200. The political conventions for which scripts already are being written will attract several thousand more media hangers-on than delegates this summer. The largest pack of newspeople to show up in the House or Senate this year was for one of the Contra aid votes: about 125.

It may be that the greatest deliberative bodies on earth deserve the affectionate inattention we bestow on them and their works. The media, in any case, have great difficulty handling more than one or two stories at a time. The stories of 1988 are elections and summits. That's where the journalists are, and that's where the space, time and money will go. Michael Dukakis or George Bush will be 1989's big story. Congress in 1990? Four to one against.

Richard Harwood is ombudsman of The Washington Post.

Five Factors Influence Business Climate

RALEIGH — When the 1988 session of the General Assembly opens, several economic development issues, namely a pair of business tax cuts and rural economic assistance, will be on the agenda.

Certain to be discussed in the debates surrounding these issues are the many polls of state business climates that are published every year. North Carolina frequently does well in these polls.

A report from the National Conference of State Legislatures suggests, however, that legislators resist the temptation to put too much stock in those polls. A pair of analysts from Southern Methodist University in Dallas question if the polls have any value.

Bernard Weinstein and Harold Gross say the polls have a tendency to over-emphasize the value of the "least cost" factor. That is, they say that some polls put too much importance on low taxes, low wages, low government spending and lower insurance costs. For example, they note one survey which listed North Dakota, Nebraska and South Dakota as the state with the three business climates in the nation. The authors note that none of those states score in the top half of the states for employment or income growth.

The two say there are five factors which, if viewed together, give a much better picture of the health of a state's business climate. Unfortunately, the rating services rarely conduct studies broad enough to include all of these factors.

•Fiscal structure. Yes, low taxes are important. But, they aren't the only tax element which businesses consider. Are taxes fair for all industries? Do tax laws coincide with federal laws to eliminate the need for keeping two sets of books?

•Human resources development. Are there good elementary and secondary schools? The authors are critical of southern states, most likely including North Carolina although they don't single out the state, for overspending on higher education while denying necessary resources for public schools. "A strong argument can be made that New England's economic renaissance is less a result of first-rate institutions of higher learning than a legacy of decades of above average spending on public schools," the two write.

•Physical infrastructure. No one will locate an industry in a state that can't be reached by good roads, or in a state that does not have adequate water and sewer facilities. A community's ability to provide good police and fire protection is also essential, they say.

•Regulatory climate. The federal government has done much to deregulate interstate commerce in recent years. States will have to follow that lead for commerce taking place within their borders, the authors say. They cite Texas which so heavily regulates intrastate trucking that the costs of transportation for in-state runs are very heavy.

•Civil justice environment. The prospective costs of being sued in a state, and of having to insure oneself against being sued, are a growing factor in industrial locations, they say. Businesses want an even-handed system of justice, where punitive damages are held low or prohibited and where judges are selected on merit rather than a political basis.

The authors say that these five factors comprise what they call the "legislative environment that determines business climate." They say that legislators and governors should focus more on improvement in these areas than on the latest polls out in a business magazine.

The Shrapnel Hits The Fan

People Don't Kill Gun Control Laws, Congressmen Do

When it was announced over the television that a very troubled lady in Winnetka used three handguns to shoot several schoolchildren, Esterhazy grabbed his coat and hat and headed for the door.

"What are you doing?" I asked him.

He said, "I'm a volunteer gun lobbyist and I have to get down to the office because the shrapnel is going to hit the fan."

"The Winnetka story has nothing to do with guns," I told him.

"Don't you believe it. Every nut who wants us to register firearms is going to be out tonight demanding legislation to stop the sale of handguns in the United States. The shooting in Illinois couldn't have come at a worse time. We just started a big TV advertising campaign telling everyone how great guns are."

"They can't blame the American gun lobby for what a deranged woman did."

"Yes, they can. They'll do anything to disarm this country. Something like this happens and people start asking all sorts of questions about how guns are obtained."

"It seems to me I heard that the lady who did all the shooting had a gun permit. How did she get one if she had a history of mental illness?"

"I don't know, but you can't keep an eye on every gun sold in the United States. That's why I'm going down to the office. This is the kind of news story that has people calling their congressmen."

"What do you intend to do?"

"We have to get out wires to all our members notifying them that war has been declared against handgun owners, and everyone must be on the alert to stop the bad guys from hurting the good guys who own weapons. We're going to need money and political pressure, and we're also going to have to call in a lot of chits."

"You mean from legislators who took your money?"

"That's right. When they accepted our donations, they knew we would call on them when we needed them. I can't tell you how many fund-raising dinners I have attended to make this moment pay off."

"You're a good man, Esterhazy. You have a cause that you believe in, no matter how many people are shot."

"If we don't speak out against handgun control now, when do we?"

"How is the gun lobby going to explain the shooting in Winnetka?"

"We intend to counter the bad publicity by showing celebrities who shoot their handguns just for pleasure. We plan to hand out press releases that say for every person who shoots someone with a handgun, there are 10 who would rather hit a tin can."

"You've certainly got your work cut out for you," I said.

"We haven't lost a battle yet. You really scare the hell out of a shooter when you threaten to take away his guns. Once we get the word out that the big bad wolf is at the door, every member will send us 20 bucks. Then it's up to the lobbyists to defeat those congressmen who are tilting toward an anti-handgun law."

"I'd hate to be a congressman on the wrong side of you guys," I said.

"Of course, you would — people don't kill gun control laws, congressmen do."

Change Essential

Consistency Can Improve Service

The grade organization changes under way in Greenville's schools are necessary inconveniences that can improve the quality of instruction to students.

A consistent grade pattern is a benefit to planning and teaching. Having, for example, a K-3, 4-8 and 9-12 structure, makes it easier to provide services to students. It improves utilization of facilities. It makes problems easier to recognize and respond to.

In addition, it keeps the school environments appropriate for primary, elementary and high school aged students. Parents and administrators have justifiable worries over a wide range of ages attending school on the same campus. This approach can ameliorate these fears, as well as improve the school system's ability to meet the needs of special age groups. First graders can be better taught in an atmosphere with other first-graders. Special needs of high school students can be more effectively targeted when that age group is together.

And, although switching school grade levels can be disruptive, these types of adjustments are essential for a school system to operate effectively. They can be seen as fine-tuning and are needed in a school system where inconsistencies have hampered smooth operation.

The impact of these changes must be minimized, however. Moving kids is upsetting to them, regardless of the urgency. The effect on the child should be foremost in the minds of educators when such moves are implemented.

In addition, switching grades means moving teachers, which can be disruptive and unpopular with educators. Again, sensitivity to the problems faced by teachers being transferred should be considered.

A growing school system like Pitt needs the flexibility to respond to problems and pressures. It needs pliancy to react effectively to the increasing diversity among its ranks.

That versatility was one of the goals of consolidation, and it is one which should be carried out. The result will be a better education product — a school system that is more efficiently meeting the needs of students.

Parents and teachers should view these adjustments as a means of improving the quality of an expanding school system. With support, the changes can do what they were intended to accomplish — foster a better learning environment for the students of Pitt County.

Higher Education: The Ivory Tower Isn't Immune To Social Ills

WASHINGTON — American higher education is beset with grave problems these days — a decline of confidence among parents and applicants about the fairness of the admissions process at "selective" colleges and universities; a prevailing sense that big-time athletics is beyond the control of academic administrators; the capture of many liberal arts departments by a bizarre alliance of radical feminists and drawing-room Marxists — but none of these is so grave as the wave of racial and ethnic prejudice that is rolling through the undergraduate community. Not merely is this repugnant in and of itself; it also belies the view, cherished by many within and without the groves of academe, that the universities are somehow immune to the bigotry and intolerance with which the larger society is cursed.

Evidence of this contagion is everywhere, and by no means is it limited to tensions between blacks and whites. Masquerading as humor, anti-Semitism has become so common on the campuses, where derogatory references to "JAPs" — "Jewish American Princesses" — have acquired such vogue that they now appear on T-shirts: "Slap a JAP" shirts were on sale at Syracuse University not long ago, and "JAPs Do Not Enter" banners were displayed in dormitories. Ditto at the University of Michigan, according to a student interviewed by The New York Times; around the campus she had seen "anti-Semitic, anti-black and homophobic" graffiti, as well as "a lot of swastikas, a lot of pro-Hitler signs."

There has always been prejudice on the campuses, even those that pride themselves on openness and tolerance, but the prevalence and virulence of the current epidemic are something new. It has been monitored by the National Institute

Analysis

Against Prejudice and Violence in Baltimore, the executive director of which told The Times: "We have seen the proliferation over the last year or two of incidents motivated by prejudice based on race, religion, ethnic background or sexual orientation. We have documented incidents at approximately 100 different institutions. This is not solely a campus phenomenon. It reflects what is occurring in the larger community."

That needless to say is true, but it begs the question. The college campus simply is not a place where we expect to find students ganging up on solitary blacks, or slashing the banner of a Jewish student association, or stealing a black freshman's bicycle and hanging it from the shower in her dormitory — yet precisely such incidents have been reported in recent weeks, and they are only three among many. The situation has become so urgent that representatives of 40 campuses met last month at Goucher College outside Baltimore to discuss how campus police can most effectively contain and defuse "cultural" — i.e., racial, religious and ethnic — conflicts among students. "These things happen every day," the University of Georgia's police chief told the conference, "and they go unnoticed, except by those affected. In all the cases, there is a lack of understanding of the culture and background of the people affected."

A similar conclusion had been reached a week earlier at another conference on racial tensions on campus, this one held at Rutgers University. Its chancellor, T. Edward Hollander, said: "The Hispanic and black students come from inner-city neighborhoods, and white students come from suburban high schools, and then they're thrown together on campus and they replicate the segregation they've experienced at home. Some colleges have done little to deal with the environment these students find themselves in."

He's right. Too often predominantly white institutions of higher education have been content to open their doors to minority students, blacks in particular, and then to assume that they have met their obligations. What it has taken them a long time to understand — indeed the message has yet to sink in everywhere — is that opening the doors also entails introducing a whole new set of problems to the campus, ones that cannot simply be winked away or swept under the rug.

These problems take many forms, but what all of them boil down to is a combination of the aforementioned differences in culture and background, the rise of racial tensions in the larger society, and the sense black students have that on these predominantly white campuses they are strangers, and unwelcome ones at that. Thus it is that black students tend to congregate together in "black" organizations from which other students usually are excluded — a form of voluntary separatism that often has the unintentional effect of bolstering white prejudices and thus intensifying campus unease.

Precisely how these difficulties can be effectively attacked has yet to be determined, though any number of good-faith efforts have been undertaken. Perhaps the most radical of these has been made at Duke University, where last month the faculty's academic council recommended that every department or program hire at least one black faculty member by 1993; those unable or unwilling to do so would be forbidden to hire any new faculty until the university was satisfied that a serious affirmative-action program had been followed.

No doubt about it, this is a mixed bag. Duke's new policy establishes race as a primary criterion for employment, and it subordinates academic to racial considerations in the selection of faculty; surely more than a few at Duke must be troubled by this, as was made clear when a third of the academic council voted against the recommendation. Yet, however considerable its faults, the Duke action does have the virtue of recognizing, and demanding a response to, a central difficulty faced by black students: their sense of being out of place on these predominantly white campuses is powerfully reinforced by the absence of black teachers, administrators and authority figures.

What Duke seems to be saying is that, for the immediate future at least, the goal of a genuinely integrated campus must take precedence over the most hallowed traditions of university life: affirmative action over academic standards. That is a tough call indeed, and those who criticize the path Duke has chosen have, to put it mildly, a good case. Yet at least Duke has been bold enough to face the racial question more or less head-on, and to insist that something more than mere noble rhetoric be done about it.

The inescapable, unhappy fact is that the desegregation of the universities has not brought about the millennium. Black and white students are now on the same campuses, which is a tremendous improvement over conditions a quarter-century ago, but they are not getting along terribly well together at best, and at worst they are at swords' points. For those of us who have long believed in the ameliorative powers of the scholarly community, this is a hard reality to swallow; it is also a useful corrective, a reminder that the academic world may be sheltered, but it is scarcely immune to the ills from which the rest of society suffers.

The Bering Peace Bridge

Shortly after President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev meet in Moscow, an event of profound symbolic significance will take place at the opposite end of the vast Soviet landscape. An Alaska Airlines 737 jetliner will sojourn from Nome to the Soviet city of Provideniya on the Bering Sea.

This "friendship flight" will be carrying the governor of Alaska, the state's congressional delegation and about 100 Americans of Siberian Yupik Eskimo heritage from St. Lawrence Island and the Alaska mainland. The American Eskimos will enter this closed-to-Westerners region to visit Soviet cousins from whom they have been separated by the chill of Soviet-American relations for more than 40 years.

We hope that during the summit Reagan and Gorbachev can muster the wisdom and courage to make substantial progress toward a reduction in strategic nuclear forces and continue the nascent process of nurturing civil society.

There is no event or process taking place in the world, though, that better symbolizes the potential for the ascent of civilization than the Eskimo reunion in June and the broader concept of a Bering Strait International Peace Park.

Though the date of the flight is not yet set, the reunion of American and Soviet Siberian Yupik Eskimos will be the first step in the creation of the jointly administered park that will span the international date line and symbolically link, in mutual respect, friendship and peace, the peoples of the United States and the Soviet Union.

The Bering Strait region is a unique and wondrous corner of the globe. The physical and cultural beauty of the area could merit national park status even without regard to its very special location and history. From Vitus Bering and the early explorers to the Gold Rush at Nome to the present Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race, the region has produced colorful characters and high adventure.

Today's inhabitants of the area are a curious mix of tradition and technology where Eskimo computer operators still hunt walrus from "anumiak" (skin boats). The Eskimos' courage and resourcefulness on the Arctic ice are legendary. In the ways of their fathers, they still test their skills against the bowhead, the walrus and the great polar bear, monarch of the North. The Alaska native people maintain their ancient heritage through art, dance and song.

The area is breathtaking in its stark beauty and in the rich diversity of plant and animal life. It is a naturalist's paradise with plentiful stocks of grizzly bear, wolf, fox, lynx, moose and reindeer. Waterfowl of all descriptions are abundant and the great bald eagle can be seen, majestically soaring and surveying its domain.

The Soviet mainland and the American coast are only about 60 miles apart at the Bering Strait, and the islands that straddle the date line (Big Diomedede on the Soviet side and Little Diomedede on the U.S. side) are a mere 2½ miles from each other. One can stand on Little Diomedede and look west into tomorrow.

The Bering Land Bridge National Preserve already exists on the American side. It is being considered as a "world heritage site" ranking in importance with the Grand Canyon, the Great Pyramids and other areas of global significance.

The most significant aspect of the broadly supported movement for the creation of the Bering Strait International Peace Park is that it is a step in the right direction, of civilization animated by virtue.

In the cold twilight of the Arctic winter the Bering Strait is a frozen plain of white. It is like the artist's untouched canvas, and we can paint the portrait we desire as our legacy. We are limited only by the bounds of our imagination in our quest for a more benevolent existence. The creativity and symbolism of the peace park is an expression of the higher goals of mankind. On the same day we can move from nuclear weapons to international peace parks, from superpower summits to Eskimo reunions. Let us again make the Bering Strait a bridge where people can reach out their hands in friendship and peace.

Food Poison

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Catawba County schools will serve a limited breakfast and lunch menu to students for the rest of the school year because of an outbreak of suspected food poisoning among cafeteria workers last week, officials say.

The Catawba County Board of Education approved a limited-menu plan at an emergency meeting Monday. Meal service, which had been halted Friday, will resume Wednesday. The school year ends June 7.

Catawba County Schools Superintendent Emmett Floyd recommended the plan after consulting with county health officials.

School board members "were 100 supportive of what we have done," Floyd said after the meeting.

Last week, more than 50 cafeteria workers and administrators became ill after attending a May 24 banquet honoring the school system's food-service employees. Cafeteria workers prepared most of the food for the banquet in school kitchens.

Mill Fire

SPINDALE, N.C. (AP) — A flash fire caused about $10,000 damage to a Spindale mill before sprinklers and two local fire departments extinguished the blaze, authorities say.

Spindale Fire Chief John Horne said fire started at Spindale Mills about 3:27 p.m. Sunday when a spark from a knitting machine apparently ignited lint on the mill's spinning room floor.

"That's all it takes to set lint on fire," Horne said.

Workers evacuated the building and called firefighters. Crews from the Spindale and Rutherfordton fire departments responded with one pumper truck each about 3:40 p.m.

Horne said sprinklers did most of the work, and firefighters declared the scene secure about two hours later. The loss estimate includes water and fire damage.

Fugitive Caught

BREVARD, N.C. (AP) — A Florida fugitive wanted on auto theft charges was arrested in Brevard Sunday after police stopped a vehicle in which he was a passenger for exceeding the speed limit by almost 70 mph, officials said.

Brevard Police Chief L.B. Vaughan said two of his officers arrested fugitive Garcia Nelson Hernandez, 33, of Key West, and Gregory Vences, 19. Hernandez was a passenger in a 1976 Cadillac driven by Vences, whose address is not known, Vaughan said.

Officers Randy Owens and Tim Waldrop made the arrests about 6:45 a.m. in a parking lot. They had clocked the Cadillac traveling 100 mph in a 35-mph zone, Vaughan said.

Superintendent

DURHAM (AP) — Durham city school Superintendent Cleveland Hammonds Jr. says he has agreed to become superintendent of the 43,000-student city school system in Birmingham, Ala.

"The president and vice president (of the Birmingham school board) did negotiate an agreement and it should be formally approved by the full board on June 14," Hammonds said.

Hammonds, 52, is paid $81,000 a year as superintendent of the 8,500-student city school system in Durham. In early May, the range for the Birmingham superintendent's job was reported to be between $65,000 and $75,000.

Murder Charge

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A Winston-Salem man was charged with murder Monday in the death of an acquaintance who was found stabbed on a street five blocks from Old Salem, authorities say.

David Guy Reifsnider, 38, was being held without bond in the Forsyth County Jail. He is charged in the death of Larry Lee Godfrey, 26, of Winston-Salem.

Godfrey was found about 9:30 p.m. Sunday by an officer answering a call a block away. Godfrey had two knife wounds in the chest.

"He was still breathing and coughing when when he arrived," said Lt. B.R. Johnson of the Winston-Salem Police Department, "but he died before the ambulance arrived."

Reifsnider was found Monday after police searched for him at his home and in the Washington Park area where both men lived, Moreau said.

Student Expelled

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Greensboro high school student has been expelled, five days before his scheduled graduation, for rigging wires in the school auditorium so the lyrics of a rock song could be heard over the public address system.

David Hwang, 17, was expelled from Page High School Friday. His parents have appealed the decision and school officials are expected to decide today whether he can return to school and graduate on Wednesday.

The escapade sent the lyrics "We don't need no education," from rock group Pink Floyd's "The Wall" record album over the public address system during an awards assembly.

Bus Accident

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools bus slammed into the rear of another bus Monday afternoon, sending six children to the hospital, authorities say.

The children, apparently returning home from Eastway Junior High School, complained of neck pain, said Charlotte Police Officer M.C. Townsend. They were treated and released at Charlotte Memorial Hospital.

Townsend said the accident happened about 3:30 p.m. when the first bus, driven by Marie Jackson, 26, stopped quickly to avoid hitting a car leaving an apartment parking lot.

The driver of the second bus, Yvonne Brown, 25, was unable to stop, Townsend said, and her bus slammed into the back of the first bus.

Neither driver was injured.

Townsend estimated damages at $500. No citations were issued.

Motorboat Death

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Statesville man was charged with negligent operation of a motorboat after a passenger fell from the boat and drowned in Lake Norman early Monday morning.

Mark Hubbard, 21, also was charged with operating a motorboat while impaired, authorities said. He was released on $5,000 bond from the Iredell County Jail on Monday afternoon.

Dain Curtis Prichard, 21, of Statesville, fell from the boat's bow about midnight in waters between Mooresville and Troutman.

Resorts Want Tax Formula Changed

MAGGIE VALLEY, N.C. (AP) — Cash registers are ringing again in hotels, restaurants and campgrounds, but Town Manager Al Matthews says this town's tourist dollars reach far beyond its city limits — too far, in fact.

Matthews and other members of the N.C. Resort Towns Association will present their case to the Legislature next month for changes in the state's sales tax distribution system. The problem, says Matthews, is that towns such as Maggie Valley put more into the kitty than they ever receive from the state.

Maggie Valley's share of state sales tax receipts was less than $15,000 last year — a small fraction of the tax dollars sent to Raleigh from businesses here. Matthews said he has no way of knowing the exact amount generated because businesses deal directly with the state concerning sales tax due.

But he says one grocery store in this tourist town collected more sales tax last year than the entire town re-

Some Retailers Using New Law To Recover Shoplifting Losses

By The Associated Press

Some of North Carolina's retail stores are using a new state law to make shoplifters pay for some of the costs they cause.

Under the law, which took effect in October, store managers can apprehend shoplifters, verify their names and addresses and demand that they pay a sum of money, including the cost of any merchandise that has been lost or destroyed and damages beyond that.

If the offender refuses to pay, the store files suit in small claims court.

About 40 percent of the shoplifters pegged for civil damages have been paying without court action, said Morris McKnight of Charlotte, president of the N.C. Retail Loss Prevention Association, which lobbied for the statute.

So far, only about few of the state's major retailers — including Eckerd Drugs, Lowe's Foods and Harris Teeter — are using the restitution approach at all, McKnight said.

"Generally, I don't think the retailers across the state are that familiar with the law," McKnight said.

The new law allows a merchant to collect up to $1,000 in each instance. The average retailer demands between $150 and $300, McKnight said.

"It stemmed basically from the fact that North Carolina retailers last year lost $500 million," McKnight said. "The merchants and the consumers have been the ones to pay the cost of this."

The money collected is still only a fraction of the total amount lost.

McKnight estimated that if a company loses $1 million from shoplifting in a year, it could expect to recover about $4,000 to $5,000 — depending, for example, on how much is collected from each offender and how many offenders are caught.

Some stores are using restitution as an alternative to criminal action; more are taking criminal and civil action simultaneously.

"It's a very reasonable approach to a very serious problem," Mike Zagorac, vice president for public affairs for Eckerd Drugs, said in an interview.

Eckerd managers, for example, try to discern which shoplifters are professional criminals and which have stolen on impulse for the first time, Zagorac said. The store uses the civil route for first-time shoplifters in lieu of criminal prosecution.

Because the financial returns are so small, retailers who use restitution say one of its biggest benefits may be reducing the load on the criminal-justice system.

"This has a tendency not to clog up the criminal system so much," Zagorac said. "Overall, it's been pretty well received by law enforcement officials and the local district attorneys."

Lt. Jim Hightower of the Greensboro Police Department had never heard of the practice, but he expressed reservations about widespread use as a substitute for criminal proceedings.

"We really don't want that to happen," Hightower said. "We want people prosecuted for criminal activities."

Sergeant's Remains Finally Coming Home

GREENSBORO (AP) — Nancy Kenny says her family kept hoping that her brother would return home alive after he was shot down over North Vietnam in 1966.

"Every year at Thanksgiving I would make a big dinner, and I would choke on my food wondering where he was, whether he had any thing to eat, whether he was alive," she said.

Her family's hopes began to fade when the war ended in January 1973, and American prisoners of war began coming home.

"You know all the pictures they showed on television of the prisoners coming off the planes," she said. "I could picture him coming off that plane. I wanted him to be on that plane so bad."

But it wasn't to be. On May 30, 1974, the Air Force declared her brother, James Hall, dead. Five days later, a memorial service was held for him in Greensboro.

Now, Ms. Kenny has been told that her brother's remains are finally coming home.

She says an Air Force officer notified her 10 days ago that her brother's remains were among 17 sets of remains returned to the United States in March by the Vietnamese government.

The bodies have been in Hawaii since their return while Air Force investigators tried to make positive identifications.

"I broke down and cried," Ms. Kenny said. "I told him, 'I'm sorry, but even after 22 years, it hurts so bad.'"

Hall, a Guilford County native, was an Air Force staff sergeant when his RC-47 cargo plane was shot down on July 29, 1966. The Air Force declared him and the seven other men aboard missing in action.

In the ensuing years, Hall was promoted to technical sergeant, master sergeant and senior master sergeant. He held the rank of chief master sergeant when the Air Force declared him dead on May 30, 1974.

Hall left a wife, Priscilla, and five children. After he was declared dead, Priscilla Hall remarried.

Barry Cohen, a Greensboro bail bondsman and Vietnam War veteran, said Sunday that he and other Vietnam War veterans have offered to fly to California to escort Hall's remains on the last leg of his trip home.

"I don't want him to have any thing elaborate" for a funeral service, Ms. Kenny said. "I want him to have a military funeral, which he deserves, but we already had a memorial service after he was declared dead."

N.C. Artisan's Quilt Is Taken By Reagans To Moscow As Gift

By MEG REYNOLDS
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Julia Spidell, a 67-year-old quilter from the mountains of northwestern North Carolina, doesn't usually work 18-hour days. But for President and Nancy Reagan, she made an exception.

"I worked without stopping for three weeks straight — from 6:30 in the morning to 11 o'clock at night," said Mrs. Spidell, who was chosen to make a quilt that Mrs. Reagan is expected to give to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev during Moscow's superpower summit this week.

"I was so excited my hands trembled," Mrs. Spidell said. "It has to be one of the greatest compliments a craftsman can receive."

Mrs. Spidell, who lives in the Alleghany County community of Glade Valley, said she was commissioned to stitch the quilt in April by a local antique dealer who is a friend of a gift officer of the U.S. State Department's office of protocol.

Mrs. Reagan selected the 19th-century American-style pattern this spring from photographs of Mrs. Spidell's work, Mrs. Spidell said.

"She (the antique dealer) asked me would I make this quilt she wanted to donate for the summit," Mrs. Spidell said. "I was kind of flabbergasted."

A friend helped her cut fabric for the project, which normally would have taken a full six weeks to complete, she said.

The quilt, measuring 8 feet on each side and featuring light brown patchwork baskets alternated with appliqued red flowers on a cream-colored muslin background, was completed and sent to Washington May 11, Mrs. Spidell said.

"A quilt is so down-home — it's like a nice warm, friendly thing from the grassroots people of the United States," Mrs. Spidell said in a telephone interview last week from her home.

The Reagans arrived Sunday in Moscow from Helsinki, Finland, on their first trip to the Soviet Union. While the two leaders meet this week, Mrs. Reagan and Raisa Gorbachev were scheduled to tour the Kremlin together Sunday afternoon and visit a Russian early-art gallery on Wednesday.

Christine Hathaway, gift officer for the State Department, declined to discuss the quilt when reached by telephone last week, saying official U.S. gifts made to leaders of other countries are not disclosed until after they are given.

Elaine Crispin, Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, also refused to confirm or deny that Mrs. Reagan had selected the quilt and would offer it at the Summit.

Mrs. Spidell did not know whether the quilt was meant for Gorbachev or his wife.

Gift exchanges are common at meetings between leaders of different countries, Ms. Crispin said.

Allens Said Vows Sunday

WINTERVILLE — Karla Lynn McLawhorn and Gregory Wayne Allen were united in marriage at 5 p.m. Sunday in Winterville Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. J.D. Vernelson, grandfather of the bride, performed the double-ring ceremony.

Organist Gladys Corbett and pianist Debbie Gray provided music for the ceremony. Music selections were "We've Only Just Begun," "Nobody Loves Me Like You Do," the Wedding Prayer, and "You Decorated My Life," the last sung by Karl Wesley McLawhorn, brother of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Wesley McLawhorn of Winterville. The bridegroom is the son of Helen Wooten of Route 4, Greenville, and Charles Allen of Winterville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory cathedral-length gown of satin and schiffli lace. The gown featured a sweetheart neckline and bodice overlaid with sequins and pearls. The gathered basque design waistline flowed into a cathedral-length train with a lace medallion in the center adorned with sequins and flowered appliques surrounding the medallion. She carried a cascading bouquet of rubrum lilies, pink and white bridal roses, freesia, and snapdragons tied with ivory picat satin ribbon.

Dawn Faulkner of Ayden was the maid of honor. The matron of honor was Lynn Sutton of Greenville. Each wore an ivory lace gown. Each gown was designed with a bateau neckline with a V-illusion back, puffed shirred sleeves and a basque waistline accentuated by a candy box bow extending to a flowing tea-length skirt. Each carried a cascading bouquet of mixed spring flowers.

Bridesmaids were Karen Chambers, Michelle Waters, and Elaine Smith, all of Winterville, Christy Shivers of Winterville, niece of the bridegroom, Penny Carraway of Winterville, cousin of the bride, and Christy Riggs. Flower girls were Laura Manning of Bethel, niece of the bridegroom, and Ashley Dunn of Ayden, niece of the bride.

The miniature bride was Ashleigh Vernelson. She wore an ivory satin wedding gown with lace and pearls and a flowing train with appliques fashioned like that of the bride. The miniature groom was Brandon Vernelson, dressed like the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride chose a mauve organza tea-length gown. A lavender organza tea-length gown was worn by the mother of the groom.

The father of the bridegroom was the best man. Ushers were Emerson McLawhorn of Greenville, cousin of the bridegroom; Charles Allen Jr. of Raleigh, brother of the bridegroom; Robert Sutton Jr. of Greenville; Karl Wesley McLawhorn Jr. of Winterville, brother of the bride; Chris Townsend of Greenville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; and John Joyner of Nashville, N.C., cousin of the bridegroom.

A reception given by the parents of the bride was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the Three Steers Restaurant. Additional showers and parties were given by family and friends.

The bride attends Pitt Community College and is employed at Sears. The bridegroom attended D. H. Conley High School and works with the Greenville Fire Department and is a farmer.

After a wedding trip to Disney World, the couple will live at Falkland.

Stripes Shown To Quilters

Martha Williams demonstrated the use of stripes at a recent meeting of the Greenville Quilters' Guild.

Ms. Williams showed how to use stripes to highlight patterns and borders and to create new designs. She displayed some patterns she had created using stripes.

Nineteen cuddle quilts were collected from the members for presentation to children whose families are staying at the Ronald McDonald House. This brings to 130 the number of cuddle quilts made and presented to Ronald McDonald families during the past year. The guild voted to continue this project through the coming year.

The group will meet with Mozelle Exum June 9 and discuss making house blocks.

Officers for the new year are Kay Clemens, president; Sylvia Wheless, vice president; Mozelle Exum, treasurer; Carol Volkman, secretary, and Mary Quiggins, newsletter editor.

Members were reminded of the quilt exhibit at the Greenville Museum of Art underway through June 17.

Assembling Is A Devilish Task

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

When I think of hell, I visualize a large box containing a lawn chair with "EASY TO FOLLOW INSTRUCTIONS INSIDE" stamped on it.

I know that for the next three years, I will writhen in pain and make inhuman sounds as wing nuts roll under the refrigerator and an envelope marked "Important Instructional Material" reveals a single sheet marked Page 2.

What happened to all those little people who used to put things together before they were sent out? Everything you buy anymore has been compressed into a small box with instructions written in Japanese.

I bought a wall plaque to hang on the wall and had no keys. It came in an envelope with 10 small parts and two pages of instructions. I'm not into crafts. I just wanted to drive a nail in the wall and hang it up.

Last Christmas, I bought a cute little gift box in the Radio Shack catalog shaped like a purple rhino. The one I got looked as if it had been run over by a herd of Cape buffalo. It took me two hours to insert all the little slot A's into all the little slot B's, invert the bottom, fold along dotted lines and thread his little hoofs through slits D and E. I couldn't think of anyone who deserved it, so I kept it.

Manufacturers assume that everyone is Mr. Goodwrench. They assume we all have our own Phillips screwdrivers and our own levels. Well, I'm here to tell you that there's a whole community of us who decorate our ironing boards for Christmas because we don't know how to get them down. We are not, as they say, "handy with our hands." We are intimidated by anything with movable parts. When a screw falls out of the hair dryer, we get rid of it. When the toaster catches fire from crumb buildup, we contribute it to Goodwill. When a clock needs batteries, we give it to our kids.

The truth is, the number of items that come unassembled grows each day. A man in my state thought it would be great to buy the London Bridge and relocate it in the middle of the Arizona desert. It was sent to him in numbered parts with a book on how to put it together again. He didn't know anything about putting together a bridge. If he did, he'd have built his own.

I'd have told them that if it isn't assembled, keep it! Today, it's just a bridge. Tomorrow, you could be getting your car in a large box that rattles when the postman delivers it.

What brought all this on is a box before me containing a nest of patio tables. It is a very small box. If you stand on your head, you can read, "THIS SIDE UP." The label says,

"INSTRUCTIONS INSIDE." Hell hath no fury like a woman who doesn't even have the tools to open the box!

To spice up vegetables, try lima beans cooked with marjoram or sage, snap beans with basil or dill, broccoli with tarragon or cabbage with caraway seed.

Miss Payton Said Vows In Robersonville

ROBERSONVILLE — The wedding ceremony of Nina B. Payton and Edward Hooks took place Saturday at 4 p.m. in Lloyds Chapel Church in Robersonville. Elder J. Lloyds presided over the double-ring ceremony.

The parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Farrow Best of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Holmes of Portsmouth, Va.

The bride, given in marriage by Christopher A. Clemons, chose a white formal gown of sheerganza Venice chantilly lace, sequins and pearls. The dress featured a sweetheart neckline, a bodice accented with motifs of Venice lace sequins and pearls, leg o'mutton lace sleeves trimmed with an applique of Venice lace and pearls, and a basque waistline. The ruffled flounce skirt trimmed with lace flowed to a semi-cathedral train. The bride's headpiece was a picture hat of chantilly lace accented with pearls and flowers. A pouf fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached.

Margie H. Barr of Newark, N.J., sister of the bride, attended the bride as maid of honor. The matron of honor was Mary S. Neal of Newark, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Debra Clemons, daughter-in-law of the bride; Teresa Carr; Jackie Carr of Hassel; Bernice Cosard; Brenda Hooks of Wilson, sister of the bridegroom; Sallie Harmons; Dorothy Lloyds of Saratoga; Gertrude Battle of Washington; Juanita Purvis of Robersonville; and Virginia Wallace of Everett. The bridesmaids wore formal-length dresses of dusty rose crepe back satin with a fitted bodice and skirt, and puffed sleeves. A detachable train and bow accentuated the back of each dress. The maid of honor wore a light pink crepe back satin dress of the same design, while the matron of honor wore a dusty rose crepe back satin dress with puffed sleeves, a fitted bodice, and a skirt that had a flounce from the knee to the floor.

The flower girls were Alexis Carr of Greenville and Cheayhe Gray of Robersonville. Jimohn Rogers of Robersonville was the ring bearer.

Jimmy Thompson of Stantonsburg served as best man for the bridegroom. Ushers were Jimmy L. Clemons, son of the bride; Otis Davis; Sammy Wallace of Everetts; Charles Gorss of Hamilton Alexander Purvis of Robersonville; Nelson R. Worsley of Bethel, Kendall DeMar Carr of Hassel; Rick Edwards; and Rickie Battle of Washington.

A reception, given immediately following the wedding ceremony, was held in Lloyds Chapel Church Dining Room.

Mr. Clemons Marries In Raleigh Service

MRS. CLEMONS

RALEIGH — Jill Rutherford and Roger Eugene Clemons were united in marriage at 8 p.m. Sunday at Hayes Barton United Methodist Church. The Rev. J. Thomas Smith performed the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple and Mr. and Mrs. Robert James Rutherford Jr. of Raleigh and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eugene Clemons of Greenville.

Organist Leonard Smith, soloist May Johnston, and trumpeter Fred Ferguson provided the music program. Music selections included "Ave Maria" and "The Wedding Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown, a formal design in white satin and imported chantilly lace. It had a Queen Anne illusion-filled neckline and designs of Alencon lace encrusted with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Its fitted lace bodice had self-covered buttons to the waistline in back. Long fitted sleeves ended in points over the hands and a full skirt was accented by panels extending into a court train. She chose a veil of all silk illusion which fell from a band of seed pearls to encircle her face with a cascade of pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of pink and white roses, baby's breath, and gardenias.

The maid of honor was May Johnston of Charlotte. Bridesmaids were Jan Rutherford Earfield of Norcross, Ga., sister of the bride; Judy Rutherford Barnhill of Raleigh, sister of the bride; Lauri Webb of Raleigh, and Pam Green of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom. The attendants wore floor-length gray taffeta moire gowns with elbow-length French gathered pouff sleeves. The low V backs tapered to a bow. The gathered skirts were accented with silver flower outlines. They carried bouquets of pink roses and baby's breath with silver ribbons.

The father of the bridegroom was the best man. Ushers were Jim Clemons of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom, Bobby Cook of Greenville, Texas, and Kevin Richards, Dominic Dirisio and Thad O'Briant, all of Raleigh.

A reception given by the bride's parents was held at the Angus Barn Restaurant. The rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the Velvet Cloak Inn. A dance was given following the dinner by friends of the bride's family and friends.

The bride is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and is office manager of the Angus Barn in Raleigh. The bridegroom attends North Carolina Wesleyan College and is employed by Tru Green Inc. as a customer service manager.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Raleigh.

Once Family Found, Overwhelm Set In

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him George) is 52. He learned four years ago after his "father" died that he had been adopted when he was 3 years old. It was a shock to us, and it took us several years to decide whether we wanted to find his biological parents. Curiosity about his "roots" won out, and we finally found his family in Illinois. George was the youngest of 11 siblings who had been placed in an orphanage, but he was the only one who was legally adopted. The other 10 grew up in the orphanage. They all said they had been looking for George all these years, as he was the "baby" of the family.

None of his siblings have had any education or opportunities. My husband's adoptive parents were upper-middle-class people who gave George a wonderful life, college education, etc.

Our problem: After a huge family reunion, his relatives have inundated us with love letters, and there are so many of them we don't know what to do.

We are satisfied to know my husband's roots now, but our lives have taken different paths; we don't want an intimate involvement with them. We attended a reunion with hundreds of shirttail relatives. We were overwhelmed, and are now sorry we pursued this.

I have subtly indicated in our thank-you letters to all nine of his living siblings that we have our own family -- children, grandchildren, etc., but the letters keep coming, inviting us to weddings, graduations, christenings, birthdays, anniversaries, etc.

What should we do? How obligated are we? They all want to come to visit us. We do not have guest accommodations, as my elderly mother lives with us.

Please help us handle this "relatively" large problem. — OVERWHELMED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR OVERWHELMED: You are as "obligated" as your conscience allows you to be. Obviously you're not able to send gifts to hundreds of relatives, but congratulatory cards for weddings, engagements, graduations, christenings and anniversaries are definitely in order if you receive invitations or announcements.

Also let them know why you are unable to accommodate guests, and hope they'll understand.

DAR Honors Students, Grads

Students and graduates from four Pitt County high schools were honored by the Susanna Coutanch Evans Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at a recent meeting.

Three Junior Army ROTC cadets, Robert Staton of Conley High School, Vickie Hopkins of Rose High School, and Thomas O'Neal of North Pitt High School, were presented certificates and bronze medals by chapter regent Anne Briley. Each cadet was accompanied by a staff instructor from his or her high school JROTC detachment. JROTC cadets are selected for the DAR awards on the basis of academic excellence and leadership qualities.

Also attending were three recent graduates of local high schools who were the chapter's 1988 nominees for the national DAR Good Citizen Scholarship Award. They were Shannon Howard of Rose High School, Edwin West of D. H. Conley, and Rob Rodebaugh of Ayden-Grifton. Rodebaugh received an honorable mention in the district DAR

Good Citizen competition. Anne Cutler, a D. H. Conley High School graduate and rising sophomore at Meredith College, and DAR Scholarship recipient sponsored by the chapter, was a special guest.

Reports on the DAR Continental Congress in Washington, D. C. were given by three members who attended the national gathering. It was announced that the chapter received a first place national award for conservation of printing funds.

Meeting hostesses were Christine Waters, Charlotte Bauer, and Lindle Bybee.

Farmers Market

Elizabeth Hardee of Pactolus has fresh sugar snap beans, an especially popular item because they do not have to be shelled. "You can stir fry them," she said. "You can either shell them and cook them, or leave them in the shell and cook them."

Mrs. Hardee also sells homemade jams, jellies and preserves, and though the label on the jars state that her mailing address is Washington, N.C., she swears the U.S. Postal Service gave her the wrong address.

"I'm at the end of the county nobody wants to claim. I'm a Pitt County person," she said.

Her husband, Lewis, who is retired, also helps with their garden. "He helps me, but it's my growing. It's more or less a hobby with him," she said.

Though Saturdays are busy, Bessie Lee of Pactolus said business could improve on weekdays. Since she first began selling at the market in 1979, vendors have moved from several locations around the county. "I've been through the thick and the thin. A lot of thin," she said.

Plywood vegetable stands line both sides of the rectangular metal building at the current site, and pick-up trucks are able to back up to the market floor to allow vendors to unload their produce directly on to the stands.

Mrs. Lee said the building is nice, but they would have many more customers if the market were located inside the city limits, and she hopes the number of customers grows as more vegetables become available.

Baron
Mrs. Mary Stocks Barron, formerly of Pitt County, died Sunday in Misericordia Hospital in Philadelphia. Arrangements will be announced by Flanagan Funeral Home of Greenville.

Corbett
FARMVILLE — A funeral for Mrs. Blondell Corbett, 44, will be conducted Wednesday at 3 p.m. at Joyner Memorial Chapel by Bishop Ralph Love. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park.

Mrs. Corbett was born in Pitt County and spent most of her life in Farmville. She received her education at H.B. Suggs School. She moved to Greenville and joined Holy Trinity Church but returned to Farmville in 1986 and joined the Farmville Helping Hands Club.

Surviving are her sister, Hattie May Parker, and two brothers, William Earl Daniels of Greenville and Billy Tyson of Connecticut.

Visitation will be from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. today at Joyner Memorial Chapel and at other times the family will be at 309 W. Perry St., where members will assemble at 2 p.m. Wednesday for the funeral.

Guyette
ELIZABETH CITY — Mr. Henri Joseph Guyette, 72, died Monday at his home, 213 N. Road St.

His memorial service will be conducted this week in the Brady and Levesque Funeral Home, 86 S. Main St., St. Albans, Vt.

Mr. Guyette was a retired physical therapist for the Home Health Program and was a member of the Cosmopolitan Club of Elizabeth City. He was veteran of World War II, serving in the U.S. Army. He resided in Greenville for several years.

Surviving are a sister, Madeline Roy of Elizabeth City, and a brother, Leon Guyette of Long Wood, Fla.

Hardee
Mr. William B. (Bill) Hardee, 50, died this morning at his home.

His funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Revs. C.B. Owens and James G. Lupton. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

A Pitt County native, Mr. Hardee spent most of his life in the Eastern Pines community. He had been employed in construction prior to his retirement in 1975. Previously he had served three years in the U.S. Navy and had been employed in the Newport News Shipyard, Newport News, Va. He was a member of Salem United Methodist Church, American Legion Post No. 39, the Charles Gray Morgan Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Disabled American Veterans.

Surviving are his wife, Anna Aldridge Hardee; his mother, Gladys M. Porter of Portertown, and three brothers, Lyman E. Hardee and B.J. Porter, both of Greenville, and Gerald W. Hardee of Tarboro.

The family suggests that those desiring to make memorial contributions consider the Eastern Pines Rescue Squad, 101 Bryant Circle, Greenville, N.C., 27858, or the Eastern Pines Fire Department, Route 9, Box 389, Greenville, N.C., 27858.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today.

Morris
KINSTON — A funeral for Mr. Anthony J. Morris, 36, of Route 2, Kinston, will be conducted Wednesday at 2 p.m. in St. James Disciples Church of Christ in La Grange by Bishop E.L. Uzzell. Burial will be in Liberty Grove Cemetery.

Surviving are his mother, Mary Morgan Morris of the home; a sister, Annie Mae Hines of Kinston, and his maternal grandmother, Annie Lee Morgan of La Grange.

Viewing will be from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. today in Mitchell's Funeral Home in Winterville. The body will be crried to the church one hour before the funeral.

Mozingo
Mrs. Annie Belle Griffin Mozingo, 78, died Monday in Heritage Hospital in Tarboro.

Her funeral will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Wilkerson Funeral Home chapel in Greenville by the Rev. H.L. Presley. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery, Greenville.

A native of Stokes, Mrs. Mozingo lived her early life in Bethel. For the past 20 years she had made her home in Tarboro and was a member of the Tarboro Church of God.

Surviving are four daughters, Edna Mobley of Williamston, Gladys Bowers of Bethel, Gaynell Sasser of Robersonville and Sue Byrd of the home; nine grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren.

The family will receive friends from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today in the Wilkerson Funeral Home and at other times will be at the home of Sue Byrd, 1207 Howard Ave., Tarboro.

Tilley
Mr. Aubrey Tilley, 86, of Christian Care Center, River Bend, died Monday in Craven County Hospital.

His memorial service will be conducted at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in the chapel of Centenary United Methodist Church, Middle and New streets, New Bern, by Dr. Roger Elliott.

Mr. Tilley resided in Greenville from 1938 to 1986. He was a graduate of Newberry College in Newberry, S.C., and attended graduate school at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, North Carolina State University and Wake Forest University. In his earlier years, he taught in Lumberton and Zebulon and served at Scotland Neck High School as teacher, principal and football coach. While residing in Greenville, he was part-owner of the P&T Grocery and was employed by Carolina Dairies. He was a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church and had served in its choir. He had been a member of the Greenville Kiwanis Club and the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Surviving are two daughters, Barbara Griffin of Bel Air, Md., and Emma Lucas "Lu" Hoff of New Bern; 10 grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

By his request, the body has been donated to the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

The family will receive friends at the Hoff residence, 4113 Holly Ridge Road, New Bern.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that contributions be made to the American Cancer Society.

Gorbachev, Reagan Go For Stroll

Singapore, South Korea and Taiwan, adding that the most exciting changes were in China "where one quarter of the world's population is now getting its first taste of economic freedom."

At the Kremlin meeting, Reagan appeared to dig in his heels on his Strategic Defense Initiative missile defense plan, one of the key obstacles to agreement on a strategic arms treaty. "It's never been a part of the negotiations," he said in response to a question.

Without addressing Star Wars, Gorbachev said he was confident there would be progress on arms issues.

"And I'm sure that if the president makes good use of his time that we have remaining, I'm sure that we will be able to prepare the treaty," Gorbachev said.

At that point, a reporter asked Reagan if he, too, thought a treaty could be concluded. "Yes, I'm very pleased to hear what they're saying." Asked again if a treaty was possible, Gorbachev stepped in to answer, saying, "If that question is to me, yes I think a START treaty is possible."

The Soviet leader recalled that he and Reagan, at their first summit in Geneva in 1985, had reached an impasse at one point. He said that at that point, "the president said, 'Well, let's stamp our fists on the table.' I said all right," and by morning everything was agreed, the Geneva negotiations were successfully completed.

"Maybe now it is again a time to bang our fists on the table once again," Gorbachev said.

Asked by a reporter if he agreed, Reagan said, "I'll do anything that works."

During a question-and-answer session with students at Moscow State University, Reagan said "there are many things still to be settled."

"We are hopeful that it can be finished before I leave office," he said, "but I assure you, if it isn't, I will have impressed upon my successor that we must carry on until it is signed."

In addition to their walk through Red Square, the leaders also strolled through the Kremlin's Cathedral Square, winning applause from several dozen onlookers. Like any politician, they waved to the crowds. Moving along with the leaders was a remarkable swarm of security agents.

The square had been cleared of people except for hundreds standing in a single file to view Lenin's tomb and eight groups of about 25 each stationed in the area of St. Basil's Cathedral.

The surprise visit to Red Square threw the official summit schedule out of whack. Reagan told one cluster of people that, "What we have decided to do is talk to each other rather than about each other and it's working just fine."

Playing the part of tour guide, Gorbachev pointed out landmarks in the historic square and joked, "There be no perestroika... no rebuilding here."

Reagan and Gorbachev approached each of the groups, and Gorbachev introduced the president at each stop. The crowds applauded warmly.

Gorbachev told one group, "When we meet, the president and I talk and he sometimes has criticisms about the Soviet Union. I do the same about America. But I see that some of this is a misconception about each other."

Shultz and Shevardnadze also signed an agreement providing for joint tests this summer in Nevada and at Semipalatinsk of U.S. and Soviet devices to measure the force of blasts.

Another agreement, extending for three years and expanding U.S.-Soviet cultural exchanges, was signed by Charles Z. Wick, the director of the U.S. Information Agency, and by Soviet Culture Minister Vasuky Zamharov.

Gorbachev told reporters at a Kremlin signing ceremony that his morning one-on-one meeting with

Plane Crash

BEIJING (AP) — All eight people aboard were killed when a small plane crashed in southern China's Hunan province after spraying pesticides, the official Xinhua News Agency said today.

The report said the Yun-5 utility biplane crashed Monday in a mountainous area of Wangcheng county during a return flight to the provincial capital of Changsha. The four crew members and four workers aboard were reported killed.

Reagan dwelled on economic suggestions.

"I criticized the position of the president and the Congress which has put very many roadblocks on the path of development of healthy economic cooperation," the Soviet leader said. "The president considers that we need to move more actively to improve this."

Nancy Reagan, meanwhile, broke away from the presidential party and flew to Leningrad, where she viewed the treasures of the Hermitage Museum, housing 65,000 pieces of art, and was visiting the summer palace of Peter the Great, scene of revolutionary Soviet history.

Celtics Slip Past Pistons

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Boston Celtics and Detroit Pistons played like the holiday was meant for them.

Most working Americans were off on Memorial Day and so were the Celtics and Pistons who turned in the lowest-scoring first quarter in NBA playoff history.

But Boston's Dennis Johnson, making one of two free throws with eight seconds remaining, gave the Celtics a 79-78 lead that held up as Detroit's

Joe Dumars' 12-foot jumper was short at the buzzer.

The victory evened the Eastern Conference finals at 2-2 and returned the home-court advantage to the Celtics who have won 16 titles and gone to the NBA finals each of the past four seasons.

"They have survived another scare just like they did against Atlanta (in the semifinals)," Detroit coach Chuck Daly said. "They are in position to hold home-court advantage.

We've got a chance, but they've got the home court. This is what it comes down to."

Game 5 will be played Wednesday night at Boston Garden and Game 6 will be Friday night back in the Silverdome. Game 7, if needed, will be played Sunday in Boston.

"We'll come to battle them," Daly said. "We're going to fight and scrap. At least I am. I'm going to drive these players right into the ground and see if we can respond. You can only worry about the next game."

Larry Bird, who led Boston with 20 points on Monday despite missing most of the third quarter with foul trouble, said the Celtics were confident of winning the series.

"Now we've got the opportunity to go home, win and come back here and close it out," Bird said. "We've got the home-court advantage back now and that means a lot."

"They've had chances. They beat us in Boston and they beat us here."

Both teams seemed tight in the first half, although Daly and Boston coach K.C. Jones preferred to credit the low-scoring affair to tight defensive pressure at both ends.

Boston led 16-10 after the first quarter, making it the lowest-scoring start in NBA playoff history. The previous low first quarter, 30 points, also involved the Pistons who led Chicago 17-13 in 1974.

"In this league, you're liable to see anything," Bird said. "Before I'm gone, I'm sure I'll see something more unbelievable than this."

The Pistons missed 20 consecutive shots in a 10:11 span of the first half, but the Celtics couldn't cash in, leading only 46-36 at halftime.

"They didn't handle the ball very well in the first half," Jones said. "The second half, we didn't handle it at all."

"It was one of the wierdest games, wierdest turnarounds, I've ever been in."

The Celtics shot only 40 percent, but that was better than the Pistons' woeful 33 percent.

"It was a hard game," said Boston's Danny Ainge, whose 12 points included 3-of-6 shooting from 3-point range. "Either team could have won today. A lot of energy was spent on both sides."

"Ah, boy, it seems a long way from over. It's good to have the home-court advantage back, but they proved they can win in Boston. Game 5 is crucial for us. I'm glad we're playing on our own floor."

Laimbeer, who scored half of Detroit's first-half points, scored seven more as Detroit opened the second half with a 17-6 run. Isiah Thomas, with six points during the spurt, finished it with a steal and layup, giving the Pistons a 53-52 lead with 6:13 left in the period.

Laimbeer finished with 29 points, while Thomas had 12 and Adrian Dantley 13 for the Pistons.

Detroit scored the last eight points of the third quarter, the first six on free throws, to lead 68-60 going into the final 12 minutes.

"It's hard to say why you come out and play that badly for the first half," Laimbeer said. "The mental intensity just wasn't there. We just don't make things easy. Everything for the Detroit Pistons is hard."

Bird, refreshed from his long rest in the third quarter, scored the first seven points of the fourth period, narrowing the deficit to 68-67. But Dennis Rodman scored on a fast-break layup, drew Bird's fifth foul and converted the free throw for a four-point lead.

Boston responded with six consecutive points for a 73-71 edge before both teams went into another scoring drought. Neither team scored for three minutes until a dunk by John Salley tied the score 73-73 with 4:25 left.

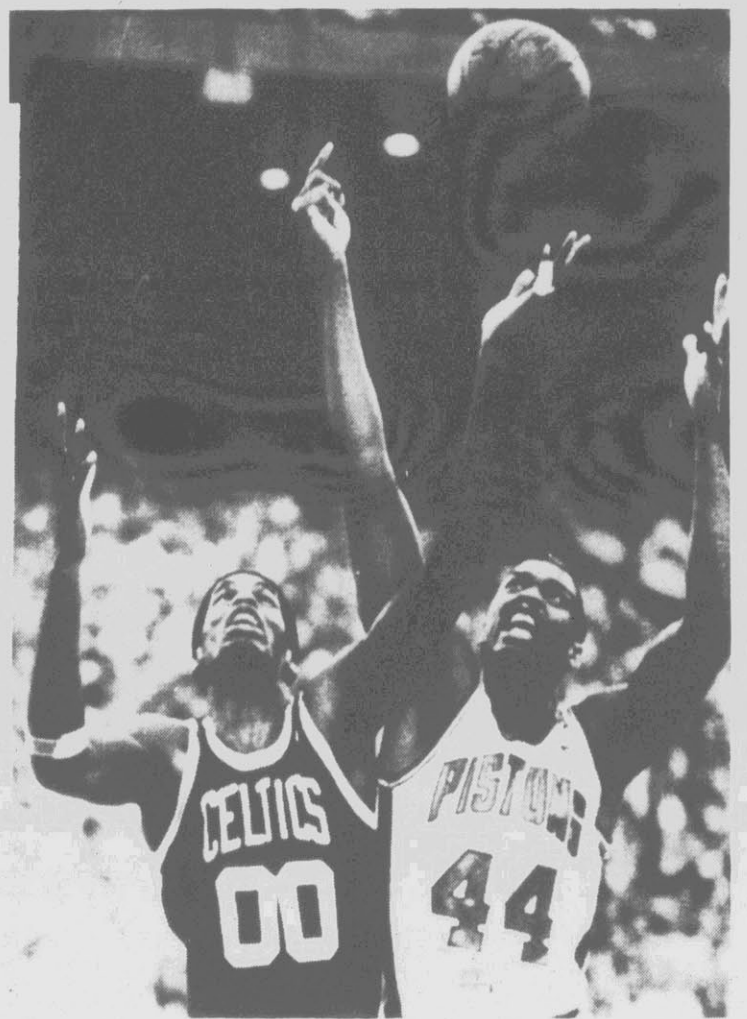

Johnson, who finished with 18 points, tied it for the last time, 78-78, on a jumper with 1:13 remaining, setting up another frantic finish.

"I don't even remember the last two minutes out there," Ainge said. "It was just crazy. I was just glad to see it over and us ahead."

Dantley, trying to loop a high in-bounds pass to Salley under the basket, flipped the ball instead through the hoop with 50 seconds remaining. The "basket," of course, didn't count and Boston took over.

Johnson missed his first free throw with eight seconds remaining, but made the second.

"I really thought we could come in here and win," Johnson said. "I was always confident."

State Playoff Action Resumes

Three area baseball teams and two softball teams will enter third round state playoff action today, seeking to advance to the Eastern finals.

Greenville Rose, D.H. Conley and Greene Central will be facing opponents in baseball, while Conley and Greene Central are in action in the softball ranks.

Greenville Rose, in the 4A baseball playoffs, travels to Raleigh's Athens Drive today for a 4:30 p.m. contest. Athens Drive advanced Monday into the third round, upsetting Wilmington New Hanover, 6-5, in nine innings.

Athens and New Hanover began play on Friday and had completed three innings before the contest was suspended by rain. Saturday, it was again postponed because of wet grounds. When it was resumed on Monday, Athens rallied, then won the game in the ninth to advance.

Rose advanced to the third round with a 7-0 victory over Big East arch-rival Rocky Mount.

In the other 4A Eastern game, Garner travels to Richmond County.

Conley's Vikings visit Southern Durham for a 4 p.m. game this afternoon. Conley moved up with an 8-0 win over Bertie last week, while Southern Durham downed Havelock, 4-2.

Northeastern Guilford visits Southern Alamance in the other 3A Eastern semifinal.

Greene Central, which defeated Edenton, 6-1, will travel to Roanoke Rapids tonight at 8 p.m. Roanoke Rapids advanced with a 6-1 victory over fellow Northeastern Conference rival Williamston.

South Brunswick, ranked as one of the top teams in the country, travels to East Bladen in the other 2A Eastern semifinal game.

Greene Central's girls' meanwhile, play host to South Granville at 4 p.m. today. Greene Central beat fellow Eastern Plains Conference member Charles B. Aycock, 9-4, to advance to the third round. South Granville downed regular season EPC champ South Lenoir to advance.

Clayton travels to Pender for the other Eastern 2A game.

Conley's girls play host to Southern Durham in a 5 p.m. contest today. The Valkyries beat Southern Nash to move into the third round while Southern Durham beat Coastal champ Havelock.

Southern Guilford is at Southern Alamance in the other Eastern 3A game.

Clemons Wins In A Hurry

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Roger Clemens is unbeaten on the road but he couldn't wait to get home.

While getting periodic reports by telephone on his wife, Debbie, who went into labor in a Texas hospital, Clemens pitched a six-hitter Monday night for his ninth consecutive road victory as the Boston Red Sox defeated the California Angels 5-2.

"It's the first time I've had to deal with this during the season," Clemens said before heading to the airport to catch a plane home to Houston. "It's something I had to adjust to. I couldn't care about baseball when it comes to something like that."

In other American League games, it was Oakland 3, New York 2 in 14 innings; Cleveland 4, Kansas City 1;

Texas 6, Minnesota 1; Milwaukee 4, Toronto 1; Seattle 4, Baltimore 1. Chicago and Detroit were not scheduled.

Clemons is 8-2 overall but 6-0 away from home this season, although the Angels snapped his string of three consecutive road shutouts when Brian Downing homered in the third inning, his eighth home run of the season and the first run off Clemens in 31 road innings. Chili Davis hit his sixth homer in the fourth for California's other run.

"I was happy the game was so close near the end," said Clemens, who struck out nine — he leads the majors with 116 — in throwing his seventh complete game. "It made me concentrate more. I wanted to get the game over with as quick as possible."

"Everyone back home told me to just concentrate on pitching. The doctor thought I gave up those homers because I was distracted. Heck, I can't pitch a shutout every time."

By the time Clemens lost his shutout, the Red Sox had a 3-0 lead. Marty Barrett and Wade Boggs singled off Dan Petry, 2-4, in the first and Dwight Evans hit a sacrifice fly. Boggs walked with two out in the third and Evans' third homer made it 3-0.

The Red Sox scored twice in the eighth on Barrett's RBI single and Ellis Burks' sacrifice fly.

Indians 4, Royals 1

Another pitcher from Texas, Cleveland's Greg Swindell, held Kansas City hitless for 6 2-3 innings and became the major leagues' first 10-game winner. Swindell, 10-1, walked the game's first batter, Kurt Stillwell, and then retired the next 20 batters before Danny Tartabull, singled with two outs in the seventh and scored on singles by Kevin Seitzer and Bo Jackson.

Swindell allowed three hits but came out after the seventh with a stiff left shoulder. Doug Jones allowed one hit in the final two innings for his 11th save.

Julio Franco led off the Cleveland first against Charlie Leibrandt, 2-8, with a double to extend his hitting streak to 18 games, longest in the majors this season. He took third on a flyout and scored on Joe Carter's single.

Cleveland added single runs in the second on Andy Allanson's sacrifice fly, in the third on Franco's fourth homer and the seventh on Allanson's RBI double.

Swindell said his shoulder problems were not related to last year, when he missed the second half of the season with a sore elbow.

"I only threw 68 pitches and I've got six days now until my next start, so I should be fine," he said.

Athletics 3, Yankees 2

Dave Henderson led off the bottom of the 14th with his sixth home run of the season, giving Oakland its sixth consecutive victory. Henderson connected off Steve Shields, 0-2, after the fourth New York pitcher had worked three perfect innings. Dennis Eckersley, 1-1, Oakland's fifth pitcher, went two innings for the victory.

The Athletics tied the game in the eighth when Jose Canseco singled with one out off reliever Dave Righetti and scored when Dave Parker's hit-and-run single to left-center bounced off left fielder Rickey Henderson's glove for an error.

Dave Winfield gave the Yankees a 1-0 lead with a leadoff homer in the fifth off Bob Welch. It was Winfield's 12th of the season, tying him with Canseco, Minnesota's Kent Hrbek and Texas' Pete Incaviglia for the AL lead.

Canseco and Parker singled with one out in the Oakland sixth and Cecilio Guante relieved starter Richard Dotson. He struck out Mark McGwire before allowing an RBI single to Ron Hassey on an 0-2 pitch. The Yankees took a 2-1 lead in the seventh on Henderson's bases-loaded grounder.

Rangers 6, Twins 1

Jeff Russell, 4-0, allowed six hits in eight innings and Larry Parrish hit a two-run double as Texas ended Minnesota's eight-game winning streak. Bert Blyleven, 3-5, lasted 4 1-3 innings but struck out five to move past Phil Niekro into seventh place on the all-time list with 3,343.

The Texas took a 3-0 lead in the first on singles by Scott Fletcher, Incaviglia, and Pete O'Brien plus the double by Parrish, who entered the game in a 2-for-21 slump. In the fifth, Oddibe McDowell walked, stole second and scored on Fletcher's single. Ruben Sierra doubled to score Fletcher and Incaviglia led off the eighth with his 12th home run. Greg Gagne homered for Minnesota.

Gant Undergoes Surgery For Broken Leg

CONCORD (AP) — Stock car driver Harry Gant, who suffered a broken leg in a crash at the Coca-Cola 600 NASCAR race in Charlotte, underwent surgery Monday.

Gant, 48, broke both the tibia and fibula in his lower left leg in the crash Sunday. Dr. Clay Gibson, who performed the surgery at Cabarrus Memorial Hospital in Concord, inserted three screws in Gant's tibia which was broken above the ankle. The fibula, which was broken below the knee, will heal without surgery, Gibson said.

Gant, who is expected to be in the hospital for three days, will continue his recuperation at his Taylorsville, N.C., home.

Gant will miss both the Budweiser 200 and Budweiser 500 scheduled for Saturday and Sunday at Dover Downs International Speedway. Doctors did not say when Gant would be able to return to racing.

Gant is the driver of the Skoal Bandit Racing Chevrolet. The team had not made a decision Monday on a substitute driver for the Dover races.

Reaction To Stadium Proposal Is Mixed

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — Reaction is mixed in the community where George Shinn would like to build a $12 million baseball stadium for the Charlotte Knights.

Ask a real estate agent what he thinks about York County Council's endorsement of the project and he'll likely say it's the best thing since Carowinds Amusement Park.

But others whose livelihood doesn't depend on selling houses or land, might respond: "How much is it going to cost me?"

Knights owner George Shinn wants the county council to build a 15,000-seat stadium, which he would lease for his Class AA minor-league baseball team.

If the U.S. Bankruptcy Court approves Shinn's proposal to buy the 2,300-acre Heritage USA, the stadium would be built there. If not, the county would build it on a site at Interstate 77 at Carowinds Boulevard or at a site about three miles from Fort Mill.

County officials and Shinn's representatives will meet today to negotiate the proposal.

Judy Hawkins, who owns a real estate company in Fort Mill and is the vice chairwoman of the Fort Mill Chamber of Commerce, is happy about the proposal.

Ms. Hawkins said most Fort Mill-area businesses have taken a beating along with PTL, which has founded since last year.

She said something needs to be done to offset the loss of revenue once generated by PTL and Heritage USA.

"We did have such a strong family oriented tourist attraction here," she said. "We're really going to have to regroup and rethink. We can't wait on business."

But former Fort Mill magistrate and newspaper publisher William R. Bradford said he doesn't think the stadium complex will solve the problems of an area "that is already being overrun by Charlotte."

He said if the county builds the facility, it will mean a significant tax increase.

"I am opposed to every taxpayer of York County being taxed for something here in Fort Mill Township that would benefit Charlotte more than anybody," Bradford said.

"They're (county council) not even going to submit it to the people for a vote. I certainly think the whole county ought to have a chance to vote on it because it is going to tax the whole county."

Gene Klugh, county manager, said the council has only passed a resolution to study the idea of building the stadium, and no decision has been made on how it would be financed.

And council members have said their action places the county under no financial obligation.

The council would probably have to sell general obligation bonds — which are paid through taxes — to raise some of the $12 million.

It also would likely sell revenue bonds — paid through money generated at the stadium — and use the county's share of the state accommodations tax to help pay for the stadium, council members said.

Klugh said the resolution "endorses the concept" and directs that studies be undertaken by him and his staff to determine the feasibility.

Young Vukovich Earns Indy Rookie Award

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — When Bill Vukovich Jr. was Indianapolis 500 Rookie of the Year 20 years ago, he got a ring, a handshake and $18,520 for a seventh-place finish.

When his son, Bill Vukovich III, was named Rookie of the Year Monday night, the handshake had a $10,000 check in it and his winnings for 14th place in Sunday's race totaled $125,603.

The younger Vukovich, whose grandfather won at Indianapolis in 1953 and 1954 and whose father raced here 12 times, is the first third-generation driver in Indy history.

Mets Top L.A. In Clean Rematch

By The Associated Press
After a string of near fights in their first series, umpire Doug Harvey didn't want a rematch between the Dodgers and Mets.

Harvey, the crew chief for Monday night's game between the National League division leaders, instructed Los Angeles manager Tom Lasorda and New York manager Davey Johnson that any suspicious inside pitches would bring immediate ejections.

Although there were several glares at the mound, calm prevailed as the Mets beat the Dodgers 3-2.

"Up is fine. Inside is fine," Harvey said. "The body, I don't go for that. That's as tight as we're going to get, guys."

The Mets' tense three-game series in Los Angeles (May 27-29) culminated with Pedro Guerrero throwing his bat at pitcher David Cone after Guerrero was hit by a pitch. The National League suspended Guerrero for four days and fined him $1,000.

This time, Guerrero and Darryl Strawberry of the Mets stared at the mound after inside pitches, but neither charged. Strawberry hit an RBI double in the third after Tim Leary came inside.

"If he gets any closer than that, he's gone and so is Lasorda," Harvey said. "The game is not intimidation, it's baseball. I was looking for Strawberry to get up another time just to see what would happen."

Johnson didn't tell his pitcher, Ron Darling, about Harvey's warning. "I don't want him thinking he can't pitch inside," Johnson said.

Leary denied he was throwing at Strawberry. Darling said Leary had improved by backing hitters off.

"You can see why he's winning now," Darling said. "He's coming inside a lot and it's making him a much more effective pitcher."

In other games, Montreal beat San Francisco 3-2, Houston defeated St. Louis 5-4, Pittsburgh routed Atlanta 14-2, Chicago beat Cincinnati 12-3 and Philadelphia defeated San Diego 7-3.

Darling, 6-3, allowed six hits in 8 2/3 innings, struck out nine and walked two. Randy Myers got the final out for his eighth save.

Leary, 4-4, had a streak of 21 shutout innings until Dave Magadan hit an RBI single in the third.

Magadan scored on Strawberry's double. Kevin Elster hit an RBI single in the fourth.

John Shelby hit an RBI double in the fourth and homered in the ninth to extend his hitting streak to 15 games.

Expos 3, Giants 2

Tim Lincecum hit a two-run, two-out single off Atlee Hammaker in the ninth to send San Francisco to its fourth straight loss.

Andres Galarraga opened the ninth with a single off Scott Garrelts, 1-3. Nelson Santovenia doubled an out later and pinch-hitter Griag Nettles was intentionally walked. Hammaker relieved and struck out pinch-hitter Wallace Johnson before Raines singled.

Andy McGaffigan, 3-0, pitched an inning of perfect relief for the victory.

Astros 5, Cardinals 4
Houston's Glenn Davis broke a tie with an eighth-inning homer and Jim Deshaies allowed five hits in eight innings.

Davis hit his 11th homer of the season on the first pitch of the eighth inning from reliever Scott Terry, 2-3.

Deshaies, 4-2, won his third straight. Dave Smith pitched a perfect ninth for his 10th save.

Pirates 14, Braves 2
Doug Drabek tripled home a pair of runs in a six-run fifth inning and allowed eight hits over eight innings for Pittsburgh.

Drabek, 5-3, walked none and struck out two before Barry Jones pitched the ninth. Pete Smith, 1-5, lost his fourth straight.

Bobby Bonilla drove in three runs with RBI singles in the first and fifth and a solo homer in the second. Bonilla leads the NL with 13 homers and 42 runs batted in.

Cubs 12, Reds 3
Emergency starter Les Lancaster pitched his first major league complete game and Ryne Sandberg's three-run homer highlighted a six-run Chicago second inning.

Lancaster, 3-4, started because of injuries to Rick Sutcliffe, Al Nipper, Bob Tewksbury and Scott Sanderson. Lancaster allowed 11 hits, walked one and struck out four in his seventh major-league start.

Chicago had 15 hits, three each by Shawon Dunston and Mark Grace. Sandberg's homer, his sixth, came off Ron Robinson, 2-4.

Southern Pitt

Chicod Royals.....15
Greenville Marine.....5

CHICOD — The Chicod Royals rolled up a 15-5 victory over Greenville Marine's Cardinals Monday night in the Southern Pitt Little League.

Vondarick Roach tossed the win, with help from Brian Edwards and Troy Brown.

Chicod was led by Brown, who had three hits, one a two-out triple to spark an 8-run first inning. The Cardinals were paced by R. Harris, who had a home run.

Bethel Mets.....7
Grifton Home Care.....2

GRIFTON — Bethel's William Perkins raised his record to 6-0 by limiting Grifton to a three hits in a 7-2 Southern Pitt Little League baseball game Monday.

Perkins also went 2-2 with two doubles and two RBI to lead the Bethel hitting. Eric Smith added a two-run single. The Mets move to 10-1 on the year.

David Taylor had a double to lead Grifton 10-1

Little League

Sportsworld.....10
Kiwanis.....6

Clyde Little and Dante Daniels each picked up two hits to help lead Sportsworld to a 10-6 victory over the Kiwanis in the North State Little League Monday.

The Kiwanis struck first, getting two runs in the second and adding a third in the third. Sportsworld came up with two in the third, then saw the Kiwanis score three more in the fourth for a 6-2 lead.

But Sportsworld came back with six in the bottom of the inning to pull out the win. Shep Skinner walked and Mike Worthington reached on an error. Both scored on a triple by Richard Ray, who scored on an error on the relay. Garry Haddock walked and Little singled. Daniels walked and Matt Davis walked to force in Haddock. Skinner doubled to drive in Little and Daniels.

Sportsworld added two final runs in the fifth.

Andre Richardson and Peter Muller each had three hits while

Babe Ruth League

Home Builders.....28
Wachovia Bank.....10

Home Builders crushed Wachovia Bank, 28-10, in Babe Ruth League action Monday night.

The Builders took the lead with six runs in the first but Wachovia came back to score four in the bottom of the inning. Home Builders pushed over another run in the second to make it 7-4, but Wachovia rallied for three in its half of the frame to tie it at 7-7.

Then, in the third, Home Builders scored seven times to put the game away. Jason Wing singled and scored on a hit by Aaron Tschetter. Robin Joyner singled and Grant Harmon reached on an error to load them up.

Al DeBiase doubled in all three runners and Rodney Williams reached on an error, scoring DeBiase. Thomas Adams reached on another error, and a pair of passed balls allowed both runners to score.

The Builders added two in the fourth, three in the fifth and nine in the sixth, including an inside-the-park homer by Harmon. Wachovia added three more in the fifth.

Joyner and Harmon each had three hits while Wing, Tschetter and DeBiase each had two for the Builders. Ledowick Johnson had three hits to pace Wachovia.

Pepsi-Cola

Everette's.....3

Pepsi-Cola's Micron Foreman hit a three-run homer in the third to spark his team to a 13-3 win over Everette's Pest Control in the Babe Ruth League Monday night.

Pepsi scored first, with a run in the bottom of the first but Everette's tied it up in the second then took the lead with a run in the third.

But in the bottom of the third, Pepsi scored 10 times to put the game on ice. Troy Clemons led off with a double and Matthew Cagle singled. Both scored on a double by Kevin Hardee and Jay Kuykendall reached on an error. Foreman then followed with his homer to clear the bases.

Pepsi added five more runs before the inning ended. Two more crossed in the fourth. Everette's got its other run in the fifth.

Cagle, Hardee and Foreman each had two hits to lead Pepsi while Billy Gorham had two for Everette's.

Newman Receives Doctorate

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Paul Newman, awarded an honorary doctorate by Yale University, had some advice for graduates about the importance of uncertainty.

"Just try to keep yourself off balance. Never know what you're doing the next day and you'll be all right," Newman said Monday after Yale's 287th commencement.

Newman, an actor, director and philanthropist, attended the Yale School of Drama in 1951.

"In the midst of a demanding career you dedicate a large portion of your great gifts to the service of others," Yale President Benno C. Schmidt Jr. told Newman is bestowing doctorate of humane letters on the actor.

Newman said after the ceremony that he was "honored, very honored" with the award.

Newman will soon dedicate a summer camp for seriously ill children that is being funded in large part by proceeds from his food company, Newman's Own Inc. The Connecticut company gives all its profits to charity. Yale is helping to support the camp by providing medical services and advice.

Richard Will Host TV Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Little Richard will host of a weekly music and comedy TV series, co-starring "Love Boat" bartender Ted Lange and Chip Fields, who played Richard Pryor's wife in the film "Blue Collar."

The longtime rock 'n' roller's new syndicated program, "The Colors of Success," is scheduled to make its debut Sept. 12.

Executive producers Reuben Cannon and Barry Hankerson announced Monday that the show combines musical performance in a live setting with situation comedy.

Little Richard will act as the host and master of ceremonies at a nightclub owned by a divorced couple (Lange and Miss Fields).

The show is based on an off-Broadway play called "The Rhythm and The Blues," staged in 1982 and created by Hankerson.

Little Richard, who sold more than 32 million records before 1968, was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame last year. He appeared in the film "Down and Out in Beverly Hills" and will soon co-star with Vanna White in the NBC television movie "The Goddess of Love."

Filming Starts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Murderers Among Us: The Simon Wiesenthal Story," a movie for HBO, has gone into production in Budapest, Hungary, with Academy Award-winner Ben Kingsley ("Gandhi") playing the famous Nazi hunter.

The movie also stars Renee Soutendijk as Wiesenthal's wife, Cyla, and Craig T. Nelson as an American military officer who helped Wiesenthal.

'Paranoia'

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Sylvester Stallone says he's had his share of trouble with the women in his life, including his mother, which has led him to acquire a "protective paranoia."

"Let's say I've developed suspicion to an art form," the twice-divorced actor says in the June 13 issue of US magazine, discussing his split with actress Brigitte Nielsen.

"You develop a sense of, like, protective paranoia," said the star of the "Rocky" and "Rambo" movies.

Brigitte Nielsen Suffers Miscarriage

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Brigitte Nielsen has suffered a miscarriage while filming a movie in Rome, according to a spokesman for her fiancé, New York Jets' defensive lineman Mark Gastineau.

Ms. Nielsen, 25, who is divorced from her second husband, Sylvester Stallone, was hospitalized and Gastineau flew to Italy last weekend to be with her, the Daily News reported today.

The couple announced their engagement last February and said earlier this month that they were expecting a baby this fall. A divorce between the 31-year-old Gastineau, and his wife, Lisa, is pending.

In a statement issued through publicist Joel Brokaw, Gastineau said that he and Ms. Nielsen "love each other more than anything else in the world" and that the miscarriage would not prevent them from "starting over again and having another baby."

Ms. Nielsen had been working "12-to-15-hour days" on the movie

"Domino" when she began feeling weak last week, said Brokaw. She miscarried in her hotel and was taken to a hospital "where she is being treated for additional complications," he said.

She has a son in Denmark from her first marriage. Gastineau, once the beefy star of the Jets' "sack exchange," but whose performance has slumped the last two seasons, has a 5-year-old daughter, Brittny.

He and Ms. Nielsen met while working out at a San Diego health club during Super Bowl week.

Networks Aiming TV Fare At Baby Boom Viewers

L.A. Times-Washington Post

HOLLYWOOD — Baby boomers may represent the largest segment of the population, but, somehow, when it comes to television, there just aren't enough boomers to go around.

A look at the Big Three networks' and Fox Broadcasting Co.'s fall schedules shows that everybody's romancing the baby boomer. You heard it through the grapevine last fall when ABC's "thirtysomething" became a minor hit. The rumblings got louder when that network added "The Wonder Years" and the Vietnam story "China Beach" at mid-season, complete with sound tracks laced with Top-40 hits from the '60s.

And the yuppification of the networks continues in the 1988-89 season, as programmers seek out that same golden demographic group.

Although many new shows on the slate could fall into limbo if the Writers Guild of America strike, now in its 13th week, continues, the new fall slates indicate that ABC and CBS are scrambling to follow the leader, top-rated NBC, in attracting the young, urban and affluent viewer.

Until the fall season begins and ratings numbers validate who's playing best at this not-so-trivial pursuit, network spokesmen and other industry analysts have been having a field day explaining just exactly what the other guy is doing wrong.

Nowhere is the striving to join the upper class more apparent than at CBS. The network ended last season in third place for the first time in its history. It has since struggled back to second in the weekly ratings. CBS leads the pack with eight new shows, dominated by five sophisticated new comedies. Yuppies like sophisticated comedies (see "Cheers" in your Young Urban Professional TV Dictionary).

CBS entertainment chief Kim LeMasters cited the network's new "Murphy Brown," which stars Candice Bergen as a Washington television reporter, as a prime-time example.

Apparently, most yups like a few yuks with their TV fare.

"I think there is a big accent on comedy, a big accent," said John Sisk, senior vice president of J. Walter Thompson advertising agency.

ABC has also preserved its most yup-pealing shows. "thirtysomething," "China Beach," "Hooperman" and "The Wonder Years" all reappear on the schedule. "I think that there is an upscale going on," LeMasters told the Los Angeles Times. "If there is any trend in television, I think it's that. All three networks have put some more upscale shows on."

"I suppose we (CBS) lead (this season) with the 'Murphy Browns' of the world," LeMasters continued. "On NBC, 'Tattinger's' (about a New York restaurateur and from the creators of "St. Elsewhere"), I'm led to believe, is very upscale. ABC's 'Wonder Years' I would consider upscale, even though it's a period piece, and (ABC's) 'China Beach' is upscale."

Industry observers split over which network will attract the most yuppies next fall.

NBC entertainment chief Brandon Tartikoff in a press conference last week said that while ABC's schedule appeals to the young viewer, its focus is too narrow. "Whether those shows ('thirtysomething,' 'China Beach,' etc.) turn out to be broad-based hits, I just think it's a little early to tell. So far, not a one of them has become a bona-fide hit, and I think for a network to get out of a rut ... what you need are hits."

LeMasters agreed with Tartikoff — which is one reason the CBS schedule still includes shows like "Paradise," a drama about an 1890s gunslinger, on its new fall schedule; period dramas, particularly Westerns, are guaranteed to attract some older viewers. Even the yuppie comedy "Murphy Brown," LeMasters said, is stylish enough to appeal to older watchers.

"I think the danger is that they (ABC) hit their target so perfectly they avoid the others — you have to be careful about a wide enough spread on it," LeMasters explained.

The CBS programmer thinks that while ABC might be peddling too much yuppie fare, NBC might be making the opposite mistake. "At first bounce it seems like they're becoming older — they're not trying to grow younger," he said.

"They have taken a show like 'Dear John' (starring Judd Hirsch as a newly single bachelor), which at first blush looks like it's going to have an older appeal to it, and moved it into their Thursday-night lineup," he said. "But they have so much strength in their 18-to-49 demographic, it may not matter."

Alan Wurtzel, senior vice president of the ABC Television Network Group, said that CBS' decision to lead into Wednesday nights with comedies featuring older stars — "The Van Dyke Show" and the as-yet-untitled Mary Tyler Moore comedy — might prove unwise, particularly against ABC's strong youth-appeal shows "Growing Pains" and "Head of the Class."

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY June 1
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You may have a difficult time getting your ideas across to others, but profit from any constructive criticism. Be wary of strangers.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): This is a good time to make any changes in your budget which will help you to save money. Stick to your first impulses today.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Try to balance your time more equitably between business and pleasure. Eliminate any problems which have been causing you stress.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Don't become involved in an argument with co-workers over how best to handle a new project. Be ethical in all activities today.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You can improve your relationships with others by trying to understand their motivations. Avoid any self-serving acquaintances tonight.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): A difficult situation at work could put you in a bad mood, but don't bring the trouble home with you. Be very cautious while driving tonight.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): When working out a problem with a family member today, remember that honesty is still the best policy. Set aside some time for relaxation.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Take care of payments and collections, and get your finances in better order. Settle that long-standing argument with your mate tonight.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): If you want others to go along with your ideas, you would be wise to use more tact. Be sure of the facts before signing any contracts.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Don't let a personal worry interfere with your efficiency at work. A usually-reliable adviser may be in the wrong, so be cautious.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): If a good friend gives you some constructive criticism, remember that it is well-intended. Discuss upcoming social activities with your mate.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): If a family friend does not approve of your work and makes a critical remark, just remain silent. Don't let anyone ruin your mood today.

Life imitates art, wrote Oscar Wilde. A few weeks ago we remarked that pessimists do well at the bridge table. This philosophy was highlighted by the following hand from the recent Spring North American Championships in Buffalo.
 Because of the vagaries of duplicate scoring, most North-South pairs played in some number of hearts. Almost all were too high because of the terrible trump break. At some tables, however, North-South reached five diamonds, and the result depended on the degree of care exercised by declarer.
 At the table we watched, Arlene Thompson, of Ft. Worth, Texas, became declarer on the auction shown. West got her side off to its best start with a club lead. Declarer ruffed the third round, and drew one round of trumps, noting the fall of West's queen. Those who foresaw no problem drew another trump and then started on hearts. Now they could ruff only two hearts and, because of the 5-1 split still had to concede a heart for down one.

Thompson took the trump queen at face value. To protect against the possibility that West was short in both red suits, she abandoned trumps and cashed the ace-king of hearts. When West discarded a spade on the second heart, declarer was able to ruff all three of her heart losers, using spade ruffs as heart losers, to make her contract.
 Incidentally, if you think West's hand is far too strong for a weak jump overall, so do we! Note that East-West can take 10 tricks at a spade contract as the cards lie.

Congressman Seeks Funds To Run For House Position

By DAVID GOELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The big money from special interest groups that has caused Congress to flirt with campaign finance reform is openly making its appearance in the three-way race for a House Democratic leadership position.

Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., is soliciting money to bankroll his candidacy for the chairmanship of the Democratic caucus — an unpaid insider's job with a principal duty of conducting closed-door meetings on party strategy and policy.

Gray, chairman of the Budget Committee, is the first person to openly bring active fund-raising and spending into a race for a leadership post, according to House members and veteran Capitol Hill staffers.

The money provided by political action committees, Washington lobbyists and other contributors will be given to Democrats to help their campaigns for election to the House, according to Gray.

In contrast, his caucus chair rivals — Reps. Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, and Mike Synar, D-Okl. — say they are running low-key and low-budget campaigns for the job, which ranks just behind speaker and majority leader in the Democratic hierarchy and is now filled by Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo.

"I'm not raising money for my caucus chair race," says Oakar. "I've been going to (House) members, just like I go door to door at home. ... I don't think winning the job or any office in the House is dependent on how much money we pass out."

"We are running on our own merits," Synar says. "The major expense for us will be coffee and donuts."

It is not unusual for representatives and senators seeking leadership jobs to make contributions to the political campaigns of colleagues, either from their own campaign funds or from their own "leadership" PACs.

But until now, all of them, including Gray, have insisted that their giving had nothing to do with their leadership candidacies. Critics say the tactic amounts to attempted vote-buying.

In February, Gray hosted a dinner for House Democrats from Pennsylvania, who each got a $1,000 campaign contribution just for showing up. Gray said he wanted to share his money because he was facing no serious challenge to his re-election to the House this year. Jon Plebani, his administrative assistant, said the dinner was unrelated to the caucus chair race.

Since 1983, Gray has given out at least $72,400 to Democratic incumbents and challengers, according to the Washington newsletter, Campaign Industry News.

Despite his staff's denial, Gray cited the caucus chair campaign in at least two recent mailings sent out under the letterhead of the Committee for Democratic Opportunity, the political action committee he formed last December.

"I need your active help," he said in a May 3 letter. "I need to raise funds to pursue this new challenge. I would appreciate your sending me a check for $500 to $1,000 so that I can begin to build the active support within the Democratic members of Congress to win this key leadership position."

Former Rep. Bob Edgar, D-Pa., now a special assistant to Gray, said the letters were sent to about 25 to 30 Pennsylvanians who had given to Edgar's election campaign.

Asked how much money he needed for the caucus race and how he planned to spend it, Gray replied: "The PAC is designed to help support good Democratic candidates running for Congress. Support of those candidates is not dependent on whether they support me for caucus chair."

In another mailing in May, Gray cited the caucus contest to people he invited to a breakfast at a restaurant near the Capitol. The letter made no specific appeal for money, but it said anyone wanting to help Gray could contact Plebani.

Plebani and Gray spokesman Neil Strawser did not return phone calls seeking to identify the recipients of this letter.

The open solicitation of money for an in-House election comes as some lawmakers are trying to put brakes on the escalating cost of getting elected to Congress itself.

Senate Democrats trying to enact spending limits have been balked by Republican filibusters. In the House, a group headed by Rep. Al Swift, D-Wash., is ready to start moving a bill once the Senate passes one.

Swift's legislation would ban the type of "leadership" PACs established by Gray and others.

Bush Says Meese Will Offer Low Profile

By LAURA KING
Associated Press Writer

Attorney General Edwin Meese III, whose legal troubles have provided the Democrats with ready ammunition against George Bush, says he believes his Justice Department record will be an asset to the Republicans this fall. Bush, meanwhile, says Meese has promised not to do anything to jeopardize his campaign.

Democrats Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson, for their part, agreed that Jackson would play a major part in Dukakis' expected fall campaign against Bush. But both said the nature of that role hadn't yet been worked out.

The three candidates were bracing for the last big test of the long primary season — the round of contests one week from today in California, New Jersey, Montana and New Mexico.

The two Democrats both campaigned over Memorial Day weekend in New Jersey, and both prepared to head for California later in the week. Bush was at his summer home in Kennebunkport, Maine, where he has been holding meetings with advisers and mulling over strategy for the fall campaign.

Bush has been taking a beating in recent public opinion surveys matching him against Dukakis. He has said Reagan administration controversies were probably partly to blame for his showing.

Bush hasn't singled out Meese as one of those sore points, but both Jackson and Dukakis have harshly criticized the attorney general, who is under criminal investigation, and urged him to quit.

The vice president, who has refused to call for Meese's resignation, confirmed Monday that the two recently met privately.

Bush declined to detail what was discussed, but when asked if Meese had promised to keep from hurting his campaign, he told reporters: "Yes, yes, I think it's fair to say that."

Meese, in an interview on CNN on Monday night, said he and Bush had "talked frankly about the campaign," and said he believed it would harm Bush if he were to step down at this time.

"If I were to quit now, for example, it would be a real liability because people would say there was something wrong," said the attorney general. "I think it's important to George Bush ... as well as myself that the record be set straight."

However, in the interview on the "Larry King Live" show, Meese left open the possibility that he might leave office by the end of the summer. Pressed by guest host Pat Buchanan, a former White House aide, as to whether he might step down by Labor Day, Meese responded: "I don't think I'd rule anything in or anything out."

Bush says he doesn't want to comment on the Meese matter until an independent counsel's report is issued. The vice president says he expects that will be soon.

In any event, Meese said, the Justice Department has a "remarkable record that will be an asset to any Republican running for office this fall."

Bush was turning his attention today to economic affairs. He had meetings scheduled with advisers including Martin Feldstein, former chairman of the White House Council of Economic Advisers.

Dukakis was spending today at the Statehouse in Boston. On Monday, he met with black supporters from around the country and told them that Jackson would play a part in the campaign leading up to his expected November face-off with Bush.

"I think we can put together a strong coalition that has ever been put together for any presidential campaign," the governor told reporters after the closed session.

Jackson, who was campaigning in New Jersey, said he expected to have "a big role" at the convention and in the fall, but said it hadn't been worked out yet.

"I will exercise my own options," he said.

There are 466 Democratic delegates at stake in next Tuesday's primaries — enough to put Dukakis over the 2,081 needed to nominate. The Massachusetts governor can lay claim to more than 1,700 delegates now, compared with fewer than 1,000 for Jackson.

Jackson, however, has his own agenda. He has been using the final primary campaigns to push forward the ideas he wants incorporated into the party platform, and to underline the historic nature of his presidential effort. Jackson is Dukakis' sole remaining rival for the nomination.

Cemetery Workers On Strike

COLMA, Calif. (AP) — Burials were postponed today after union workers struck 17 San Francisco Bay area cemeteries in a dispute over non-union subcontractors and health benefits.

"During this strike there won't be any interment. Mortuaries will have to hold the bodies," said Bruce Green, weekend manager of Woodlawn Memorial Park in Colma. The strikers, however, did not interfere with Memorial Day visitors.

In 1985, more than 800 bodies went unburied until a long strike was settled.

The main issue in the strike, which began Monday and is the area's fifth cemetery walkout since 1971, was the use of non-union subcontractors, said Carolyn Del Gaudio, business agent for the Cemetery Workers and Greens Attendants Union Local 265.

"That involves a real threat ... to the future of their jobs, to the union itself," said Del Gaudio, whose union represents 150 workers who are groundskeepers, custodians and handle burials and cremations.

But John Cantwell, who represents two associations of cemetery owners, called subcontracting a "sham issue." Cemeteries always have used subcontractors, and the owners associations' proposal says no workers will be laid off because of subcontracting, he said.

The union's three-year contract with Associated Cemeteries and the East Bay Interment Properties Association expired March 1. It covered employees at eight cemeteries east of San Francisco and nine south on the Peninsula. The only cemetery in San Francisco, at the Army Presidio, was unaffected by the strike.

Contract negotiations broke off Saturday, and no new talks are scheduled, Cantwell said.

At least one cemetery, in Hayward, canceled burials scheduled for today.

"The burials will simply have to be postponed," Cantwell said.

Cemetery workers receive $14.35 an hour after 18 months, Cantwell said. Under the employers' proposal, employees would receive raises of 30 cents an hour for each year of the contract, he said.

Analyst Calls For Environmental Bureau

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's environmental statistics are a disgrace, with billion-dollar decisions turning on the readings of a handful of monitoring instruments, says a veteran Washington environmental analyst calling for a Bureau of Environmental Statistics.

Such a bureau could direct attention and spending to needed areas, avoid costly unnecessary programs and keep bureaucrats honest, writes Paul Portney, vice president of Resources for the Future and director of the organization's Center for Risk Management. The group studies environmental policy but does not engage in lobbying.

"We currently do a disgraceful job of collecting, analyzing and disseminating information about environmental conditions and trends," Portney said in a paper written for his organization and distributed last week.

Linda Fisher, assistant administrator for policy and planning at the Environmental Protection Agency, said Portney had a good idea. EPA, she said, collects "tons of statistics" under its regulations, but "we are only beginning to think about" how data-gathering should be organized and who should do it.

Environmental statistics are gathered by EPA, the U.S. Geological Survey, the Forest Service, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, the Food and Drug Administration and several other parts of the government.

Government simply could not work without the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the Bureau of Economic Analysis, the Census Bureau, the Energy Information Administration and other respected, professional statistics agencies, Portney said.

An annual report of the president pulls together 100 different economic data series dating back to 1929. For the environment, no one puts it all together, even though the Council on Environmental Quality, a White House agency severely downgraded by the Reagan Administration, is charged by statute with collecting and publishing environmental statistics.

"Even in its halcyon days, however, the CEQ was never able to muster the resources to present truly comprehensive and consistent environmental data on an annual basis," Portney said.

Portney guessed that $200 million a year is spent on economic statistics, "very small in comparison to the $75 billion or more that we spend to comply with EPA regulations alone."

He said he did not know what his proposed bureau should spend or where it should be placed, but it should have statutory independence like the Energy Information Administration in the Energy Department.

"If the Bureau of Environmental Statistics were a separate line in EPA's annual budget, appropriations for data collection and analysis could not easily be siphoned off. This now happens regularly when the program offices in whose budgets monitoring funds are now included are given additional regulatory responsibilities for which no funds are available," Portney wrote.

EPA judges compliance with some clean air standards by peak one-hour readings from its highest-reading monitor in an area. Sanctions, rare so far, could cost an area hundreds of millions of dollars.

The Lowe's Commitment

GREAT PRODUCTS & PRICES

10% Low Price Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees our everyday low prices. If you find an identical advertised item at any retail competitor currently priced lower than ours, simply bring us written proof of that price. We'll match that price PLUS give you an additional 10% of the difference between the two prices when you buy from us. It must be an identical in-stock item. Closeout, discontinued and other clearance type sale items are excluded from this offer.

Satisfaction Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees that you will be satisfied with your purchase. If you are not completely happy with your purchase, simply return it along with your original sales receipt to any Lowe's store. We'll repair it, replace it, or refund your money.

Lowe's Raincheck Policy:

If an advertised item is temporarily out-of-stock, we will gladly issue a raincheck (except for items marked limited quantities, discontinued or closeout). When we restock you will be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price. Some stores may not stock all advertised items; however, every item shown can be ordered for you.

Lowe's Fair Purchase Policy:

In order to provide fair purchase opportunity to all our customers, Lowe's reserves the right to limit quantities sold to individual customers. No dealers, please.

UP TO $1,000 INSTANT CREDIT

Apply For Your Handy Lowe's Credit Card!

Over one million satisfied customers use Lowe's Credit Card. Shouldn't you? Just present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard or Sears card and you may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit on a new Lowe's card. (Even without these cards, your application will be processed with minimum delay.) Stop by Lowe's today for complete details and an application.

Finance Major Purchases Of Up To $5,000 On Our Low Monthly Payment Credit Plan:

Our Low Payment Plan offers you an easier way to make those major home improvements and larger purchases, by letting you finance purchases of $250 to $5,000 for up to five years. So apply today. You may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit when you present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard, Sears or Lowe's Card. Complete details are at Lowe's.

Warranty And Financing Details:

Details on product warranties & Lowe's financing policy available in store.

Lowe's Low Payment Plan — Terms Of Repayment:

Your credit must be satisfactory. No down payment required. The monthly payment includes sales tax of 5% and finance charges. If sales tax differs in your area, the monthly payment may vary slightly. The monthly payment has been estimated and may vary depending upon state laws and charges. Insurance is available upon request. The APR is as follows:
