Superpowers End Talks On Jovial Note

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent
MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev and President Reagan concluded four days of summit talks today with an impasse on a major nuclear arms agreement and differences on human rights. Nevertheless, the Soviet leader called their meetings "a blow to the foundations of the Cold War" and Reagan said "we must not stop here." Once they exchanged smiles and handshakes, the two leaders held separate news conferences, an unusual event for Reagan but an unprecedented episode for Gorbachev on his home soil.

The Soviet Communist Party General Secretary took pleasure that Reagan had disavowed his description of the Soviet Union as an "evil empire." He noted with satisfaction that Reagan did it "within the walls of the Kremlin." Gorbachev said that when Reagan tried to move him on human rights,

"I said, 'your explanations are not convincing.'" The Soviet leader said he also told Reagan his view of the Star Wars program as a strictly defensive system was "just not serious." Reagan, in turn, muted his criticism of the Soviet system; he hailed Gorbachev's moves to open up his country's society and suggested that Soviet refusal to permit thousands of dissidents to emigrate over a period of several decades might be due merely to an unresponsive bureaucracy. The president said he hopes for an arms control agreement by the end of his term in January to supplement the INF treaty that was formally ratified during his four days in Russia. "We can look with optimism on future negotiations," he said, even he continued to defend his proposal for Star Wars, which has been a key stumbling block in superpower arms-control negotiations.

Garrett Holds Two-Vote Lead After Pitt Runoff

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer
D.D. Garrett of Greenville squeaked by James H. Dupree of Bethel in Tuesday's runoff election for a spot on the Pitt County Board of Commissioners from Consolidated District A, but election officials say a recount is likely.

The final unofficial tally had Garrett ahead by two votes — 1,171 to 1,169. County Elections Supervisor Margaret Hardee said official results will be available Thursday about noon after canvassing is completed.

In the runoff for a seat on the N.C. Court of Appeals, John B. "Jack" Lewis of Farmville defeated William L. Davis III of Lumberton nearly 4 to 1 in Pitt County and garnered 59 percent of the vote statewide.

If Garrett's two-vote win stands, Dupree will be able to ask for a recount because election laws state that if the margin of victory is less than 1 percent of the total votes cast for an office, the losing candidate may request a recount by noon the day after the official results are announced.

Dupree said he is waiting for the official results before making any formal announcement, but he said he would definitely ask for a recount if he loses by two votes.

"Usually the unofficial returns are pretty accurate, once in a while there will be some human error," Mrs. Hardee said. There has not been a recount in the five years she has been supervisor, she said.

"It will involve having all of the ballots, voted and unvoted, brought back in and counted. It will cost more money. People who didn't turn out to vote to ensure there would be more of a margin than that will have to bear the cost," Mrs. Hardee said.

"The precinct officials will have to Waste Park Hearing Prompts Call For Facts

By JERRY RAYNOR

The collective message given the audience at a fact-finding discussion Tuesday night on a proposed hazardous waste site in Edgemore County was that of getting all the facts before making decisions pro or con.

An overflow audience was on hand in the Jaycee Park Auditorium to hear speakers from state agencies and a panel of elected officials and a representative of the Pamlico-Tar River Foundation touch on the public fears, the complexities involved in the time-consuming process of determining the location in North Carolina of a low-level radioactive waste site.

The forum, sponsored jointly by the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County and the Cypress Group of the North Carolina chapter of the Sierra Club, was emphasized as a means of presenting facts without emotionalism.

Bion Schulken, spokesman for the Sierra Club's Cypress Group, set the tone of the forum by noting "the reason behind this forum is to provide technical, legal and environmental information on the proposed Edgemore County facility." The Cypress Group has called on the Legislature not to take action or provide funding "until sufficient information is available to the public."

The president of the local LWV group, Mary Alsentzer, voiced the realization there are many pressing concerns, "concerns that are the same no matter what site is chosen. We need to know what criteria is developed for these sites, things such as the suitability of storage and disposal of materials. We need to review the idea of alternate sites, to follow developments of government at all levels to ensure proper performance with regard to water supply, fragile land areas, wildlife habitat, agricultural and forest areas and residential areas. All these need to be considered by all concerned in the selection process."

Dr. Michale Orbach of East Carolina University, moderator for the forum, said "it's not always ob-

Court Arbitration Pilot Extended

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer
The N.C. Supreme Court has ordered a 10-month extension for a pilot arbitration program that takes disputes over less than $15,000 out of regular civil court and brings them before an arbitrator within 60 days after the action is filed.

The 3rd Judicial District, made up of Pitt, Carteret, Craven and Pamlico counties, is one of the three districts that has been participating in the program since it was originated in January of 1987, and Arbitration Coordinator Betty Fuqua is pleased with the success.

"When you set a case for court you can continue it for two years. In arbitration you cannot," said Mrs. Fuqua, who is in charge of gathering all cases eligible for arbitration in the four-county district and assigning an arbitrator and a hearing date to each one.

"It's a cost-effective thing because it gives judges more time to hear other cases, the clerks are not involved that much ... and it frees up courtroom space," she said.

Frank C. Laney, dispute resolution coordinator for the N.C. Bar Association, said the program had been scheduled to end this December, but the state Supreme Court extended the program last week until October of 1989 to give lawmakers an opportunity to discuss the concept during the upcoming legislative session.

The pilot program — privately funded at no cost to the state — will continue in the 3rd Judicial District, the 14th District, which is Durham County, and the 29th District, which is made up of five mountain counties.

The General Assembly could authorize the program for every district in the state, and Mrs. Fuqua said she has not received any complaints and she sees no reason why the program should not continue.

"We're very pleased with the way the program has worked so far," Laney said.

Detailed rules of evidence and pretrial motions that can slow civil trials do not apply to arbitrations; anyone can say what they want and the arbitrator has the job of deciding what to believe and what not to believe.

Both sides simply present their case, and the arbitrator has three days from the end of the trial to make a decision, and it usually takes less time, Laney said.

"This is one thing people really like," he said. "The arbitrator makes a ruling and explains it. They may not like it, but they understand it."

Laney said the program can be compared to television's Peoples' Court because it is less structured than civil court and a verdict is handed down almost immediately.

Most people do not complain, even if they lose, Laney said. "Generally, they don't. They just want their day in court."

"If they can just get their say, they seem happy, even if they lose some times," Mrs. Fuqua said. "I have watched their faces. As soon as they can say what they wanted to say, they can relax."

"Attorneys like it very much," Laney said, because they know the court date will be within 60 days and they know the hearing will not be continued or delayed. "They don't waste time sitting in court."

"They don't have to spend an inordinate amount of time on what, for an

City Loses Out On 'All-American'

The bumper stickers say "Greenville has it all."

One thing that Greenville doesn't have, however, is a shot at the "All-American City Award" for 1988.

According to Allison Moore, award program director, Greenville has been eliminated from the running of this year's competition, while neighboring communities New Bern and Kinston have made the cut to be among 25 finalists.

Ms. Moore said approximately 100 cities from across the nation entered this year's contest, sponsored by the National Civic League.

She said representatives of those 25 cities will meet in Houston on the weekend of June 11 and deliver presentations relating to each city's respective attributes to a group of judges who will select up to 10 cities for the award.

Jim Godfrey, executive director of the Lenoir County Chamber of Commerce, said the entire Kinston community is extremely proud of being named a finalist.

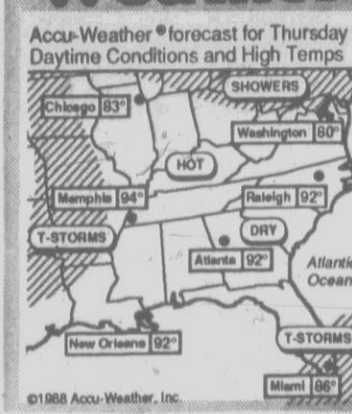

"Everyone is looking forward and hoping to bring the designation as an 'All-American City' home from Houston," Godfrey said.

He indicated an award committee is producing a video presentation covering all aspects of Kinston's quality of life and is also preparing a display booth to be taken to Texas.

Meanwhile, Greenville Mayor Ed Carter said he was disappointed that Greenville was knocked out of the competition, but indicated the city would try again next year.

Blast Traps German Coal Miners

BORKEN, West Germany (AP) — An explosion ripped through a coal mine today in central West Germany, trapping scores of miners hundreds of feet underground, authorities said.

An engineer for the power company that owns the lignite coal mine said 56 miners were believed trapped by the blast, but that the number could change. Police estimated 40 to 60 miners were trapped 300 feet below ground.

Police said they could not say if there were any survivors underground. Eight workers were seriously injured on the surface by flying debris and taken to a hospital, police said.

Dense smoke spread over the area after the blast in this town 70 miles northeast of Frankfurt. Hundreds of rescuers rushed to the scene, including several helicopters.

The explosion occurred shortly before 1 p.m. Two hours later, no contact had been established with the those underground, according to Gerhard Heinz, an engineer for mine owner Preussen Elektra.

Heinz, who was at the mine, said 56 miners were believed to have been trapped by the blast. He said the explosion occurred in a pit between 200 and 450 feet below ground.

The cause of the explosion was not immediately known.

Murder Charge

Lester German, 37, of Route 2, Box 447, Ayden, has been ordered held in the Pitt County Jail on $50,000 secured bond, charged with first-degree murder in connection with the shooting death Sunday of his brother.

German's probable cause hearing is set for June 17.

German was arrested Sunday and charged with killing Kenneth Ray German, 34, of Route 1, Box 76, Vanceboro, with a shotgun blast to the chest about 2:30 p.m. The shooting occurred on State Road 1931 near Gardnerville.

At German's first appearance Tuesday, Pitt County District Court Judge H. Horton Rountree initially appointed the county's public defender to represent German, but the public defender's office had a case pending with the victim and Rountree appointed Greenville attorney Robert Dillow.

Property Taken

Investigators said five thefts were reported to Greenville police Tuesday.

Officer T.A. Lee said an equalizer was taken from a car parked at Bill Askew Motors at 3010 S. Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 9:14 a.m., while Officer S.C. Locke said a hubcap was taken from a car parked in a lot at the intersection of Fourth and Reade streets in an incident reported at 10:28 a.m.

Officer J.E. Fleming said a bicycle was taken from 210 S. Pitt St. in an incident reported at 10:43 a.m., while Officer L.E. White said $15 in cash was taken from a vehicle parked at 1200 N. Greene St. in an incident reported at 11:43 a.m.

According to Officer J.W. Isehour, a stereo speaker was taken from a vehicle parked at the Carolina East Convenient Center on Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 11:12 p.m.

Vehicle Theft

Greenville police said a juvenile was turned over to the department's juvenile division after taking a car Tuesday from 1011 N. Memorial Drive.

Officer E.M. Haddock said the theft of the vehicle was reported at 10:55 a.m.

Pitt Schools Survey

Pitt County schools will conduct a telephone survey Monday through June 10 from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. each day. Parent volunteers will call local residents to find out how they rate the school system.

The public opinion survey is part of the system's plans next year to promote pride and confidence in public education in Pitt County.

"We are hopeful that those community members that are called will take a few minutes to answer the brief questionnaire," said Superintendent Eddie West. "The information provided by the responses will be invaluable to us as we plan for the upcoming school year."

The calls will be made to a random sampling of the county population and will take a few minutes to complete. The Community Schools Advisory Council will conduct the survey in cooperation with the office of public information.

For more information call the office of public information at 830-4258.

FOUR INJURED — Four people were injured in a near head-on collision on SR 1726 near Greenville Tuesday afternoon. The Highway Patrol said a car driven by Erica Watson Lilly of Smithfield was headed south on 1726 when it approached traffic and swerved left into the northbound lane. The Lilly car collided with a car driven by Maxine Jones Heath of Route 1, Vanceboro. A passenger in the Lilly auto listed as Michael Lilly and a passenger in the Heath car, listed as Buela Jones Haddock, received minor injuries, as did the drivers. Ms. Lilly was charged with driving left of center in the accident, the patrol said. (Reflector Photo by Thomas Forrest)

Social Services To Use 'Band-Aid' On Budget

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Social Services said it will use a "Band-Aid" on several departmental operations to cut its expansion budget request for county funding by $135,505.

The board approved an amended expansion budget request of $461,478 for the 1988-89 fiscal year that pairs the six new positions requested down to three and eliminates some additional supplies and equipment.

"Based on our presentation of the budget to the commissioners, it looks very bad for the possibility of additional positions and fund increases" in several programs, said department Director Ed Garrison. "I asked the board to take some time to talk to the County Commissioners and assure them of the necessity of the (amended) items we requested."

Garrison said the three positions requested are for two additional social workers and one additional eligibility specialist.

"The number of children abused and neglected in Pitt County increased 47 percent over last year," he said. The social workers are needed to conduct the investigations for the increasing cases.

"The AFDC (Aid to Families with Dependent Children) case load increased by 300 cases since December," Garrison said. The eligibility specialist is needed to handle the additional case load.

"Without them I really don't know if we can meet the federal and state requirements" for implementing the programs, he said.

Garrison also said he hoped County Commissioners would consider the salary increase and increases in the operational budget for programs such as AFDC, Medicaid and others.

In other matters, the board appointed Lillian Bradley of Farmville to a second term of three years on the board. Ms. Bradley will complete her first three-year term June 30.

The Chore Service policy was revised by the board to include the Community Alternative Program (CAP), designed to aid the elderly and disabled. CAP clients will be put on a waiting lists, which is monitored as funds become available and quarterly.

Educational leave for three employees was approved, and the board was briefed on the status of department resignations and maternity leave.

The department received excellent ratings during state auditing of two programs, according to Debbie Ryals, the eligibility director.

A field auditor with the state Agriculture Department reviewed the Commodities Distribution activities in May and had "glowing things to say about our program," Ms. Ryals said.

Positive aspects of the program the auditor commented on included the volunteers in the program and the fact that no money is owed to the state for losses.

A state review of the Food Stamps program also was commendable but did cite some procedural deficiencies, Ms. Ryals said. The reviewer also noted that the food stamps in the vault were worth more than the amount the county has insured.

Garrison said the insurance issue for the food stamps is periodically brought before County Commissioners for the insurable amount to be raised, but the insurance is expensive, and commissioners consider the food stamps relatively safe, he said.

Host Families Short For European Teens

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

The director of a cultural exchange program says there is a continuing decline in the number of North Carolina families willing to host European teenagers, and he doesn't understand why.

"At a time when we're doing more for foreign languages in North Carolina, and when the American public seems to be interested in foreign movies and items ... they don't seem to make the connection between this interest and the people," said Frederic Fladenmuller, an East Carolina University professor and director of NACEL Cultural Exchanges in North Carolina.

Fladenmuller said Tuesday he has been able to find host families for only 60 of 240 French and Spanish students hoping to spend the summer here.

"For the past two or three years there has been a decline in hosting," he said in a telephone interview. "Unfortunately, it seems to be a trend and a trend that seems to be increasing."

The problem has hit every state, forcing officials to find new ways of reaching parents willing to host a teen-ager, Fladenmuller said.

"I look on the other side at the fact that in Europe we have had a great number of host families, a number that is increasing every year," he said. "We have no trouble placing American students. It is a linguistic experience. It is a cultural experience also for the family."

In addition, host families often benefit because the parents of the teen they host may invite their children or the whole family to stay with them in Europe, Fladenmuller said.

"Now there are flights between Raleigh and Paris," he said. "We can benefit greatly from encouraging them (students) to learn languages."

Fladenmuller said host families need to provide little more than food and shelter while letting a foreign student share family activities.

"It is not demanding on the family," he said.

Postal Branch Opens

Greenville Postmaster Charles H. Caulk announced today the opening of a new contract post office branch in the Kroger Store at 600 E. Greenville Blvd.

Customers will be able to purchase postage stamps, envelopes and money orders, Caulk said. The branch will accept outgoing mail, including Express Mail Service.

Hours of service will be from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Saturday.

The Greenville Environmental Advisory Committee will meet Thursday at 5:30 p.m. in the third floor conference room of the Community Building located at the corner of Fourth and Greene Streets.

Dean's List Honor

Mickey Brian Wynne was named recently to the Dean's List at North Carolina State University.

A landscaping architecture student, Wynne is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Wynne of Pactolus.

Hayes Students Win

Several students at E.J. Hayes Elementary School in Williamston were winners recently in the Tarheel Junior Historian Association meeting competition at Peace College in Raleigh.

The winners in their categories were: Art Project, Group — Cory Knox and Brant Chesson, first place; Art Project, Individual — Anita Sadler, second place; Literary Project, Individual — Don Mills, first place; Media Project, Individual — John Barnes, second place, and Media Project, Group — David Council and Ray Ayers, first place.

The winning projects will be displayed for a year at the North Carolina Museum of History in Raleigh.

The students are members of the local club, Moratoc Marconians, an academically gifted history club composed of fifth- and sixth-graders from the school. They are advised by Minnie Hoggard.

Training Funds

Dr. Richard A. Burgoyne has received a $1,500 award from the American Academy of Family Physicians to help finance his graduate training in family practice.

Burgoyne, a family practice resident at the East Carolina University School of Medicine, received his medical degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He is the son of Florence Burgoyne of Kinston.

Tar Heel Girls State

Four Pitt County students have been chosen by the American Legion Auxiliary, Pitt County Unit No. 39, to attend the 49th session of Tar Heel Girls State June 12-18 on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

The participants are Suzanne Brewer and Anjal Kataria, both of Rose High School, Courtney Jones of Conley High School and Jennifer Alexander of Trinity Christian High School.

Girls State provides citizenship training and civics education for rising high school senior girls, said Margaret Register, auxiliary president. She said participants are selected on qualifications of leadership, character, scholarship and service.

The newly selected participants and delegates from last year's Girls State will attend an auxiliary meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Western Steer Restaurant, 3005 E. Tenth St. After the Dutch meeting, the next gathering of the unit will be in September. Families of members are invited to the meeting.

Department Heads Back Up Fund Pleas

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners continued work on the 1988-1989 budget at a workshop meeting Tuesday, hearing requests from several department heads for more money to expand programs and services.

The board took its first look at a proposed $39.45 million budget for the coming year on May 23.

In presenting the budget proposal — a $34.62 million continuation budget and $4.82 million in expansion funds, based on a tax rate of about 60 cents per $100 valuation — County Manager Kramer Jackson said "it isn't a budget that offers very much."

Jackson said more than $8.51 million worth of requests made by various county agencies and departments for expanded programs and services were not included in his recommendations in an effort to have a tax rate that would raise about the same amount of local money as this year's 64-cents per $100 tax rate.

Commissioners heard several of the department heads list their priorities for items not included in the proposed expansion budget at a workshop last week.

At Tuesday's meeting, Bobby Joyner, the county's emergency management coordinator, told the board that his "number one priority" among items not initially recommended in the expansion budget is increased "funding for fire departments and rescue squads."

Joyner proposed to the board that county contributions to fire departments in the county be increased from the present $5 per call to $10 per call, and suggested that contributions to rescue squads be upped from the present $5 per call to $7.50.

As part of the proposed change in contributions to rescue squads, Joyner recommended that Greenville be funded under the same formula as other rescue units.

For the past several years, the county has been allocating a flat amount to Greenville — $34,775 a year. Joyner said that by "putting them on an even formula," as other squads — based on the number of calls — Greenville would receive "about $2,000 to $3,000 less."

Greenville Fire-Rescue Department rescue units answer about half the rescue calls in the county, Joyner said — "about 300 to 350 a month." Combined, the eight other rescue squads also answer 300 to 350 calls a month, he said.

Joyner also asked for "an additional employee this year" to "help with training, do inspections" and work with a program that requires industries and businesses with hazardous materials to report them and to develop emergency plans to handle accidents.

Joyner also recommended placing $109,000 in the budget to purchase defibrillators — for use on heart patients — for county rescue squads once they receive training in their use.

County Planner Jeff Ulma told commissioners that his first priority for increased funding is $20,703 for an assistant planner.

Ulma also asked for an additional $2,115 for maintaining and replacing road name signs and for printing a road name atlas.

Dr. Tim Monroe, director of the health department, said his first request for additional funding would be $286,580 for building expansion to relieve overcrowding.

But Monroe said if that can't be funded, his priorities, in order, would include: $11,775 for the county's share of a new social worker position; $26,286 for a county employee wellness program (which he said would cost $48.59 per employee per year); $5,752 to help support a health promotion-disease prevention program; $7,689 for a half-time clerk-typist for the department's environmental health division.

Willie Nelms, who heads Sheppard Memorial Library, asked the board for $8,688 in expansion funds so the library can provide "the same level of services" in the coming year, with "no new people, no new programs," compared to this year's budget.

The money is needed, Nelms said, to meet increasing costs of utilities, magazine subscriptions and city-approved merit pay allocations.

Sheppard Memorial Library's local operating budget is funded one-third by the county and two-thirds by the city of Greenville. The county picks up the tab for the Bookmobile which serves rural areas of the county, while the city funds capital improvements to buildings and grounds.

John Chaffee, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, told commissioners "the single most important element we can put in place," in efforts to recruit new industry to the county is a request for $250,000 for a shell building.

Earlier this year commissioners agreed, in principle, to match dollar-for-dollar up to $500,000 in contributions to a shell building fund.

Chaffee said the development commission is asking for "half of the shell building program money this year (1988-1989)," with "the other half next year (1989-1990)."

Bill Clark, a member of the Development Commission, said, "We feel this is the right move to make. This is the only way we can continue to be aggressive in industrial recruitment."

Chaffee also asked the board to include $3,630 for an incoming toll-free telephone number and a facsimile machine; $6,835 for salary increases; $2,000 in additional travel money; $2,670 for rental of a copier, and an additional $2,000 for printing.

Knowles Supports Police Request For Extra Funds

By GREG LAUDICK

A proposed budget increase for the Greenville Police Department in the upcoming fiscal year totaling over $200,000 above this year was one of the 1988-89 budget items discussed by members of the City Council Tuesday at a five-hour budget session at City Hall.

Included in the proposal are allocations for three additional patrol officers, two special investigation officers, an animal control officer and two telecommunications officers.

As proposed, the department's budget would expand from this year's $3,185,197 to $3,385,577. Knowles said such expansion is necessary to accommodate the additional growth of the city, including the annexation of Brook Valley.

The expansion will also help police battle an ever-increasing crime problem, Knowles said. In 1983 the city reported 49 drug-related crime arrests. In 1987 that figure jumped to 600.

"I think it (the budget request) is a good step in the right direction to meeting those needs. I'm not going to sit here and tell you that it's going to meet them 100 percent, but I think it's a good step in the right direction," he said. "I think we have to take short steps and determine the impact of those steps before we come back for additional resources."

Also included in the proposed police budget is an additional capital outlay of $151,739. Included in those line items are a four-wheel drive vehicle, 13 bulletproof vests and six .12 gauge shotguns. The addition of two mid-size police vehicles and six full-size vehicles are also budgeted as replacements for existing older vehicles. Meanwhile, $2,500 has been budgeted for a dog trained in human tracking and narcotic detection.

Police Chief Jerry Tesmond said he is optimistic about what the proposed budget affords his department.

"The manager has done everything he humanly can with the resources he has available," he said. "Certainly there's a number of things we'd like to do. However, we have to live within our means, and the manager has done everything he possibly could to give us what he could, with the resources he had available to him."

"We've got a lot of programs, plans and ideas and so forth as time goes on," he added.

Other departments covered at Tuesday's budget meeting were Parks and Recreation and Planning and Development.

Knowles has recommended the budget for recreation be increased from this year's $616,610 to $708,608 in the upcoming fiscal year. Included in that increase is the proposed purchase of a van, two office chairs, a $1,500 alarm system, and a $1,400 set of soccer goals and nets.

Meanwhile, the budget for parks is proposed to increase from $608,268 this year to $642,778 next year, while the teen center's budget is proposed to increase from $20,397 to $24,793.

The Planning and Development

Department has a recommended 1988-89 budget proposal of $315,967 compared with this year's $288,020.

Included in that increase are allocations for an additional city planner and $1,900 in capital outlay.

Planning and Development projects slated for the upcoming year include completion of the zoning ordinance update, continued annexations and extensions of the city's extraterritorial jurisdiction, and additional airport land use projects.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Qualified?

A Justice Department Fable

The following pen-in-cheek letter of application might have been received by Edwin Meese, the attorney general of the United States ...

Dear Mr. Meese:

I would like to apply for a job as an assistant attorney general. My credentials are excellent; my principles unblemished. Following is a summary of my qualifications as an effective attorney and examples of same. I trust you will find them consistent with your standards.

•My specialty is loopholes. I find them; my clients jump through them. I get paid. They get indicted.

•I strongly believe in influence peddling. I have used every position I held to my fullest advantage.

•Ethics should not get in the way of justice. If they do, people suffer, especially those who obey their moral principles. A good deal is a terrible thing to waste.

•I am strongly versed in sleaze. I cheated in college, paid off the bar examiner and blackmailed the law firm that hired me to become a partner.

•I have a strong empathy for all segments of society — embezzlers, income tax evaders, thieves. I do not believe in discrimination; I've never turned down a potential client just because he was guilty.

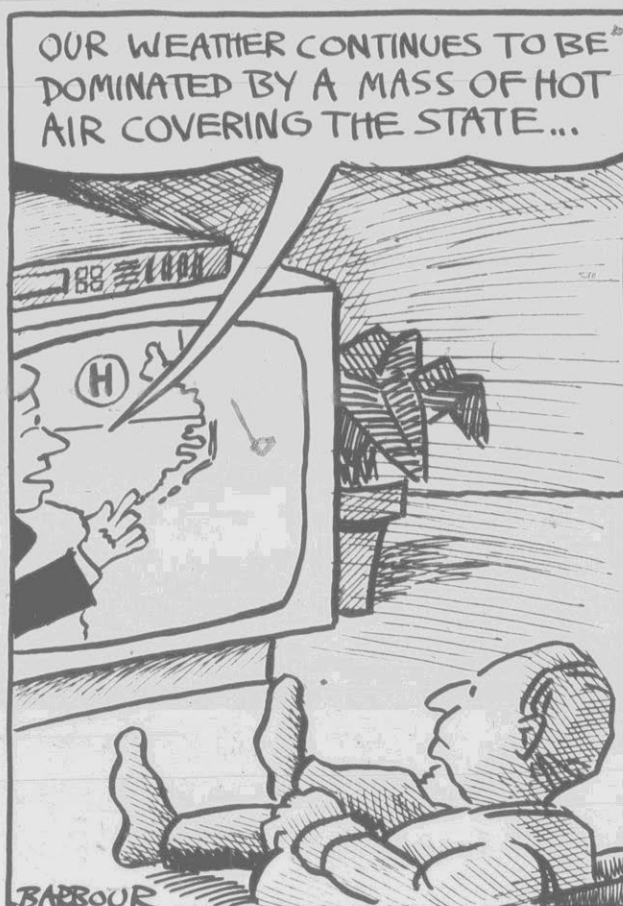

•I am loyal to my friends. I've made them accessible to every piece of privileged information I've been able to get my hands on. In addition I've recommended them to friends in high places, and that's been plenty profitable for us both. I never fail to return a favor. I would bring all these relationships to the justice department with me.

So you see, Mr. Meese, the baggage I carry is appropriate for employ by your Justice Department. I hope you will find my application acceptable and hire me. I'm available immediately and can be reached through the support group Lawyers Behind Bars.

Sincerely,
II Legal Eagle

To the editor:

Having moved from Kansas about a year ago to Greenville, I guess I would be more sensitive to weather information than most longtime residents of eastern North Carolina. We were quite aware of the destructive power of a tornado, spawned by a severe thunderstorm. However, I am totally amazed at the lack of severe weather information on the area radio and television stations, especially the local stations in Greenville.

A severe thunderstorm warning was issued for Pitt County in the early evening hours of May 24. Fortunately, the first notification I had was on my weather-alert radio. What I found disturbing was the fact that most radio stations in the area did not relay the information to their listeners in this area. Apparently it was not important enough to interrupt such programming as "playing the hits," and one station failed even to interrupt their NASCAR show. The TV station managed to show a graphic on the screen about the warning, but did not give much coverage until there were tornado warning well east of Pitt County. At least a Tarboro radio station made some mention of it on the air.

I cannot believe the apathy of the broadcast stations in regard to severe weather. It only takes a few moments for a tornado to be generated from a severe thunderstorm. These stations might be more concerned if they could witness the death and destruction, and unnecessary loss of life caused by the lack of relaying severe weather information immediately. Kansas' stations would normally interrupt regularly scheduled programming — both on TV and radio — and even broadcast EBS (Emergency Broadcast System) tones to alert the public of this potentially dangerous situation. (I know, I used to be the severe weather coordinator at a radio station in Kansas.) You would have thought station managers in this area would have learned a lesson from the tornado which struck several years ago. You might call me "Chicken Little," but to repeat an old cliché — "better safe than sorry." I guess, Toto, I'm not in Kansas any more. How about it, eastern North Carolina station managers? Are you concerned with the public's safety?

To the editor:

On May 14 I heard about the terrible school bus crash in Carrollton, Ky., in which 24 children and three adults were killed and at least eight more were critically burned.

It brought back the painful memory of the night my own son Jay was killed by a drunk driver. I remembered my shock and grief. I wanted to run to the airport, go to Kentucky and comfort each of these families.

What happened in Kentucky was not an accident. It was not fate. It was not God's will. It was not a school bus problem. It was the sudden, violent, senseless killing and maiming of over 40 precious and innocent lives and it was a drunk driver's fault.

My reopened wounds of despair have little by little turned to frustration and anger as I have seen more attention placed on school bus safety and less attention on drunk driving as the cause of this tragedy. I don't understand why our society can't be honest and straightforward about this. The drunk driver responsible for this crash is a repeat offender. Yet, because of our present laws regarding DWI offenders, this man was allowed to regain his driver's license, which in turn, became a license to kill.

We need to stop blaming the school bus, stop giving excuses and start giving answers to this epidemic.

A History Of Reform Rejection

Even in the midst of the summit, the Soviet political class is looking ahead to next month's Communist Party conference, which is likely to have a great effect on them and the future of the Soviet system.

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev called the special June conference to give a needed lift to perestroika, his ambitious program for internal change. He hopes for a broad mandate to overcome conservative opposition to his ideas by using "democratization" to give impetus to economic restructuring. The centerpiece of his latest effort to transform the Soviet system into a more efficient mechanism of governance will be a package of political and legal reforms.

Most notable is last week's proposal to partly democratize the party itself. This involves four changes: the possibility of nominating more than one candidate per party office, voting by secret ballot, limiting terms of office to five years and restricting officials to two successive terms. Two exceptions are an interim procedure for removing a sitting Central Committee member short of re-election time, and the possibility of running for a third term under special circumstances.

It is the last part of the proposed reform that has the greatest potential.

Experimentation with multiple candidacies and the secret ballot has been under way in selected local party organizations in the Soviet Union for the past year. Although early returns suggest mixed feelings on these electoral innovations, it was a foregone conclusion that Gorbachev would seek to extend them nationally.

Given the opposition to perestroika by entrenched party conservatives, many of whom have been in office for years, it was not unexpected that Gorbachev and the reformers would move to ensure greater political accountability through periodic elections and limited terms. The new proposed standard term of office is, in turn, obviously based on the prescribed five-year interval between party congresses in the post-Stalin period.

Finally, the most dramatic step toward intraparty democracy is the suggested Soviet-style 22nd Amendment, limiting tenure in office, which would presumably apply to Gorbachev as well.

This idea of institutionalizing the rotation of personnel in party (as well as governmental) office was no doubt prompted by the 18-year rule of Leonid I. Brezhnev that, it is now said, led to "stagnation" and complacency.

If the turnover rule is applied to Gorbachev, this would limit him to 10 years in office (hypothetically, 15 if he won an extraordinary third term).

Yet, however radical this may all appear to the Western eye, none of these ideas are really new to the Soviet-type system. There has been precedence for all or part of the latest reforms in the Soviet Union: the Nikita S. Khrushchev period, the "Prague Spring" in Czechoslovakia and the Solidarity period in Poland.

In 1961, Khrushchev pushed through the first turnover rule for the party. Rule 25 limited higher party officials to 15 years of consecutive service; lower and middle cadres were restricted to six or fewer years in office. Loopholes were provided for all. Comrades could serve "longer periods" if re-elected by 75 percent of their constituents in secret balloting, or, failing re-election at the end of a regular term, they could run again in subsequent elections.

But under Brezhnev the Khrushchev rule was eviscerated through amendment.

Gorbachev's party reforms raise a number of questions. Will they pass unamended at the conference opening June 28, given the strength of the conservative forces?

Clearly Gorbachev's intent is to use the reform to eliminate Brezhnevites and other opponents of perestroika from the party apparatus. But, ultimately, will political restructuring significantly alter the style of Soviet governance and lead eventually to a more open society? For now a provisional answer has to be: Probably not.

Democrats Want It Short, Republicans Want It Long

RALEIGH — Whenever I'd come home from college, the first question Uncle John would ask me was, "How long you home for, Paul?"

A similar question is foremost on the minds of legislators, lobbyists and reporters whenever the General Assembly reconvenes: When are they going back whence they came?

The 1988 session of the General Assembly opens tomorrow with legislative leaders vowing that they won't be around for long. Official estimates of session length range no longer than five weeks, a target that would have the session ending between July 2 and July 9.

For those of us who work at the Legislative Building, session length is as important a question. You can't plan your summer vacation without consideration of the probable adjournment date. For those who are running for political office this year, however, session length might be even more important. It could have bearing on their chances in November.

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, no doubt, would like the session to end very quickly. Although no one has proved this empirically, there is a strong feeling that Gov. Jim Martin, Jordan's Republican gubernatorial opponent this fall, only gets stronger politically when the legislature is in town. As Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, said last week, Martin is very astute at battling the legislature. One might add that the legislature is not very astute at battling him.

Martin will say publicly that he wants the legislature to come and go quickly. But in his heart he probably wants that as much as Washington Democrats want Ed Meese to resign as attorney general. The longer Meese stays the better a campaign issue he makes. The longer legislators stay in Raleigh, the more it helps Martin's campaign. Of course, if it goes too long and Martin gets forced into leaving town early again for a sailing vacation, then it could hurt the governor, too.

There's been at least a little finger-pointing already from Democrats charging that Martin will be responsible for dragging out the session. Sen. Ken Royall, D-Durham, charged last month that Martin's failure to submit his budget to the Advisory Budget Commission will slow down the budget writing process and mean a late adjournment.

That budget could very well give the legislature fits. Martin has proposed spending an extra $558 million next fiscal year on new programs, a pay raise and a business tax cut. The legislature's fiscal research division says that Martin has overestimated the amount of money available for new spending next year by as much as $100 million or more.

That means that legislators will have to go through Martin's budget and cut deeply for two reasons. First, they'll have to bring it into line with their own revenue forecasts. Second, they have to cut even deeper so they'll have money to spend on their own initiatives.

If it all starts to drag out, the most likely losers are Jordan and Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor. A long session will only play into the hands of Martin and his running mate, Jim Gardner, who charge that the Democrats can't adequately run the legislature, let alone the executive branch.

There's also pressure on the Democratic leaders to adjourn before the Democratic national convention opens in Atlanta in mid-July.

Finally, legislators themselves want to return home early enough to vacation, attend some out-of-town conferences in July and August, and then hit the campaign trail.

Teach And Publish Or Perish: Keeping Scholarship Alive

WASHINGTON — For colleges and universities, May is the month of graduations. But it is also the month when, in every faculty committee on rank and tenure, as well as in every departmental discussion that has to do with either of these things, the sharp and immemorial debate arises about teaching and scholarship — or rather, teaching versus scholarship.

On the one hand are faculty, of late reinforced by the redoubtable secretary of education, who stress that the principal obligation of the university is undergraduate instruction, and who thus want its rewards and its budgets to honor prowess in teaching. On the other side stand those who stress the scholarly call of university membership and want its best rewards and fullest funding to go for research and publication.

That debate may be a good thing, since it keeps alive talk about two things that matter in our individual lives and in our community as a university. On the other hand, there are elements of the debate that are not healthy, that do not serve the long-term good of the university or of its students. The debate is quite simply founded on a false premise. The two activities, teaching and scholarship, are not incompatible, even less opposed.

It is true that the first work of any university is the instruction of undergraduates. It is not true that this teaching bears no relation to research and scholarship. As a matter of fact, it seems to me that these two great works stand as cause and effect. All other goods of the university flow from its scholarship, and without it all of them are diminished, indeed suspect.

John Henry Newman remarked that we can get information from books, but real learning must come from exposure to "those in whom it lives." When a student sees that the professor is the live embodiment of a discipline, when he understands in class or lab the excitement as well as the stress of discovery, when in his later and graduate years he actually shares in problems that lie on the edge of knowledge, all this can turn his learning upside down, make it live and breathe. The world of ideas is very human indeed, so the familiar slides easily into rote, the already known quickly turns to boredom. But let waft across the enterprise even a whiff of a real frontier and attention stiffens and excitement grows.

That works both ways. Scholarship keeps the professor himself alive, gives him confidence in his own exposition and usually makes him blessedly unafraid to acknowledge ignorance or even error.

Universities are gatherings of faculty and students. The value of that gathering for students is obvious as they face the living reality of how complex, how varied, how plainly cantankerous human learning is. The value of the gathering for faculty is also of major importance. The farther we advance in one line of learning, the less common ground we have with our colleagues. On the other hand, the excitement of learning itself, the commitment that it draws forth from all of us, is a common anchor in our profession, a given of our talk, the basis of the respect we have each for each and, despite our different styles and works, the only solid ground on which civility can rest. Any criticism that plays that learning down or bewails its cost is wide of the mark.

All academics are reminded of that at graduation, when we greet 50 to 60 new Ph.Ds. As faculty mentors drape the new hood around the shoulders of a new colleague, they share a great common understanding. All of us know that our learning is not a lump but a process — no adornment but life itself. No one of us is guaranteed success, and all of us have known failure.

John Donne has a haunting sentence in one of his sermons, "Thou knowest this man's fall; thou knowest not his wrestling." As we hand the doctoral candidate his long-sought diploma, we welcome him to a fellowship whose very life is learning. We learn or we diminish; we learn or we sour; we learn or we die. John Donne has it right; stand or fall, this "wrestling" is what makes and keeps the university.

Timothy S. Healy, S.J., is president of Georgetown University.

Nadar, Commitment And American Society

WASHINGTON — Something unusual happened in this country last week. A major American corporation made a decision that will save thousands of lives. Indeed, that will be the major repercussion of the Chrysler corporation's decision to install airbags as standard equipment on several of its car lines this year and extend them to all domestically made cars by 1990. Lee Iacocca's reluctant endorsement of the airbag signaled the end of a 20-year battle over the use of the devices.

Within hours of the Chrysler declaration consumer activist Ralph Nader, who has been urging the use of airbags since the first Federal regulations were proposed in 1969, was on the phone to his young disciples with this pointed message: it's a long, vicious struggle to effect change in this country.

For the young Naderites, it was also time to take reflection. "My God," said one of Nader's 28-year-old aides, "if it takes 20 years of non-stop work to win one major battle, then my life is going to be over before I've enjoyed myself or accomplished very much."

Indeed, the Nader victory over Chrysler has triggered a period of deep reflection among younger members of the public interest community here. On the one hand, many of these idealistic, recent college graduates, idolize a figure like Nader and his accomplishments. But on a personal level, they are pained by Nader's strict lifestyle and the personal sacrifices that are required to "dig in" and bring about change in this country. Surely, no one in school ever told them what they were in for when it comes to making this country a better place in which to live.

There is reason for concern. If Nader is the role model one has to follow in order to bring about change in this country, who wants to sacrifice their life away?

Nader, of course, is single. He lives in his deceased brother's townhouse, not far from the White House. If he doesn't have a morning meeting, a speech, TV interview or congressional hearing to testify at, Nader begins his day by plowing through a half dozen newspapers — the Washington Post, New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Christian Science Monitor, and Journal of Commerce, among others. After this he begins to work the telephones, making calls to staff and contacts on a series of projects that he's involved in. By noon, he usually arrives at the office for a series of appointments that generally last well beyond midnight. If one suggests that it's time to eat dinner, Nader will look up and say "you can make it, fella."

What is so impressive about watching Nader work is his total focus on a subject. If he has to read a scientific report on lead in drinking water, he'll pull up a chair, request that his secretary hold all calls, and then devour the topic in five straight hours.

Of course, when time permits, Nader will eat in a restaurant or even see an occasional movie. But he has no time in his life for idle frivolity or hanging out after work at a neighborhood bar.

The fundamental question so many idealistic young people must face is how one goes about creating a morally coherent life that affords one time for a family and friends. How ought they live? What should their character be?

Indeed, the demand to "make something of yourself" through work is a concept all Americans hear about when growing up. The desire to do better than one's parents is another common message — which encompasses several different notions of work and how it bears on who we are. In terms of a job, work is a way of making money and a living. In the sense of a career, work traces one's progress through life by achievement and advancement in an occupation.

In the strongest sense of a "calling" — which is what Nader's life is all about — work constitutes a practical ideal of activity and character that makes a person's work morally inseparable from his or her life. This calling links one not only to co-workers but to a larger community, the common good.

In trying to find oneself and do good, it's often easy to forget that none of us are independent of other individuals or institutions. All of our activity goes on in relationships, groups and associations. And there is much in life that we do not control.

As much as Americans like to extol the virtues of autonomy and self-reliance of the individual, few of us accept that a good life can be lived alone. Which is one reason why the Nader model of commitment frightens so many young people. A strong degree of connectedness to others in work, love and community is essential to happiness, self-esteem and moral self-worth.

In recent weeks, there has been renewed interest among the young on how to go about balancing good works, while maintaining one's space. The controversy here surrounding the suicide of a congressman's aide, who required his all male staff to work and do unthinkable chores, has sparked similar interest in what is and is not appropriate on-the-job commitment.

One fact, however, is undeniable.

Effecting change and making a name for one's self require hard work. Given this requirement, how does one in the public interest or public sector mold a life that fulfills his or her private aspirations while not discouraging one so much that they withdraw from involvement altogether. It surely is no easy juggling act. The temptation to find meaning exclusively in the more lucrative private sphere is always there. Which is why Nader and individuals like him are such impressive as well as frightening examples of what true commitment means in American life.

A Learning Experience

MOSCOW — When Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev welcomed President Reagan to the Kremlin last Sunday, he greeted him by quoting a Russian proverb, "It is better to see once than to hear a hundred times."

The events of the past few days have demonstrated that this saying, which Reagan Tuesday called "a wonderful phrase," applies to the president with special force.

Moscow has been a learning experience for Reagan. Strolling among artists and vendors in the picturesque Arbat or walking with Gorbachev in the vastness of Red Square, Reagan has seen a different world from the one he imagined existed in the Soviet Union.

When a reporter asked him Tuesday in the Kremlin what had become of the "evil empire" he used to talk about, the president replied, "I was talking about another time, another era."

Reagan's positive response to his encounters with Soviet citizens and his growing relationship with Gorbachev come as no surprise to those who know the personality of the president.

Throughout his life, Reagan has been a man who reacts to the visual, learns by doing, disdains abstractions and values the concrete. He responds positively to people and indifferently to books. Aides who want him to remember an event create a dramatic scene in which he can play the leading role.

These days Reagan is co-starring on location with Gorbachev in the Kremlin in a world-class drama that might be called "Springtime in Moscow."

Reagan clearly values what could be a final major appearance on the world stage, although he is so absorbed with the potential of peacemaking that his aides already are holding out the possibility of a fall summit in a different setting where he and Gorbachev could sign a strategic nuclear-arms treaty.

If this is impossible, the man whom Gorbachev Tuesday called "Grandfather Reagan" has said repeatedly he wants to leave a legacy and an atmosphere in which his successor could sign such an accord. In private, Reagan has told his aides that Gorbachev is serious about changing the face and structure of Soviet society and that the Soviet people desire peace.

Reagan's learning experience could be the most important development at a summit considered unlikely to produce a major arms-control breakthrough. Asked what was significant to Reagan at the summit, his spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, replied: "Well, the president commented at some point in the course of the tour of Red Square that we're talking to each other and not about each other. ... Probably, the most dramatic impact that has occurred here has been the interaction with the people and the feeling that has developed between the delegations that we can do business." Tuesday night, toasting Gorbachev at a dinner at Spaso House, the president praised Moscow as "a city of beauties ... whose pinnacles and spires reminded one at virtually every turn of man's ancient capacity for aspiration, for reaching out toward the light."

His toast was a paean to peace, in which he quoted from a poem by the famous Russian poet Boris Pasternak on the arrest of Jesus, which ends, "You cannot decide a dispute with weapons; put your sword in its place, o man." Tuesday, at Moscow State University, Reagan expressed a yearning for nuclear-arms reduction in sweeping phrases that went beyond the official position of both sides that progress can be made toward a strategic agreement.

"My dream has always been that once we've started down this road, we can look forward to a day, you can look to a day, when there will be no more nuclear weapons in the world at all," Reagan said.

The president clearly enjoyed the questions from students, responding to them with ancient anecdotes, which one aide said "were new only in Moscow." His speech was a defense of democracy, studded with the cinematic allusions that have become his trademark.

On Monday night, he concluded his toast at a state dinner by giving the Gorbachev a videotape of the classic film, "Friendly Persuasion"; Tuesday, he told the students part of the plot of "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

One curious sidelight to Reagan's learning experience is that it has made him more accessible in Moscow than he is back home in Washington.

In the Arbat, despite the over-protectiveness of Soviet security guards, reporters were able to ask Reagan more questions in 20 minutes than they are usually able to put to him in a week in Washington. Tuesday in Red Square and in the Kremlin, the president answered a series of questions that he normally would have ducked at White House photo opportunities.

"I think there's a genuine desire on both sides to communicate," said Helen Thomas of United Press International, the dean of White House correspondents. "The president has things that he wants to say."

The president's accessibility has been welcomed by his aides and First Lady Nancy Reagan, according to administration sources. "Reagan takes strength from people, as he said to the human-rights activists," an aide said Tuesday. "He does better when he is out in the street talking to real live people, American or Soviet."

Reagan will hold a news conference Wednesday after the summit, a stark contrast to his performances after the Geneva summit in 1985 and the Reykjavik summit in 1986. After both of those meetings, Reagan left the news conferences to Gorbachev and Secretary of State George P. Shultz and flew home to address the nation on television.

Reagan's greater energy and activity has not come without cost. The president is 77, has never liked to travel abroad and tires more rapidly than he did a few years ago. During Gorbachev's toast at the state dinner and again at a writers and artists lunch Tuesday, he conspicuously fought off sleep.

NEW PROCESS — N.C. State University scientists Dr. Hersell R. Ball Jr., left, and Dr. Kenneth R. Swartzel demonstrate equipment for aseptic packaging of fluid eggs. The equipment is part of a new process developed at NCSU to give eggs a longer shelf life without freezing. (AP Laserphoto)

N.C. State Develops Long-Life Liquid Egg

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State University has received a $100,000 royalty check for developing a method that gives eggs a three-month shelf life and allows them to be packaged without freezing.

The check was paid to the university by Morning Glory Eggs Inc. of Richfield, a subsidiary of Michael Foods Inc., of Minneapolis, which was granted the patent license. Under an agreement with N.C. State the company will pay the university 2 percent of royalties from future sales.

Richard Olson, president and chief executive officer of Michael Foods, called the new ultra-pasteurization process, which also destroys bacteria in the eggs, a "major breakthrough in the handling of egg products."

Michael Foods is spending $4.3 million to expand a Minnesota plant to accommodate the new process and may spend another $2 million to $4 million for similar work at a Nebraska plant, Olson said.

The aseptic packaging process provides a cheap alternative to conventional eggs and the frozen variety, officials said Tuesday.

Douglas Ford, vice president for Morning Glory Eggs, said the new product should be available within 12 months. He said liquid eggs would be far superior to frozen products currently on the market.

Producing, shipping and storing liquid eggs is nine times more efficient than with frozen eggs, Ford said. "I don't know whether the entire savings will translate into lower costs, but it should certainly provide a significant savings," he said.

In order to extend a shelf life of seven to 10 days, N.C. State researchers developed a way to heat the eggs "on the run" through tubes, said Kenneth Swartzel, associate professor of food science. The heat kills disease-causing and spoilage bacteria without coagulating the egg.

The egg mixture is then packaged in sterile containers ranging from small, easy-pour cartons to huge bags for commercial bakeries and fast-food restaurants.

For restaurants now using eggs in the shell, "switching from using shell eggs would provide an added layer of protection from possible contamination from shells or packaging materials," said Hersell Ball Jr., professor of food science. For those using frozen eggs, the new product will be more convenient while consuming less energy.

Researchers estimated about 20 percent of the 61 billion eggs consumed each year in the United States are fluid eggs.

Swartzel said Michael Foods also is working with researchers to remove cholesterol from eggs either by changing the diets of hens or through a chemical process.

"When that technology becomes commercially available, we will be in a position to protect the integrity of that product all the way to the shelf," he said.

Olson said the technology could help an industry hurt by health concerns over cholesterol's influence on heart disease.

"We're turning what most people in the egg industry regarded as a problem into an opportunity," said Olson.

Harold Ford, president of the Georgia-based Southeastern Poultry and Egg Association, praised the process, saying, "It will benefit the middleman and provide labor savings for the food service industry. ... It's as close to being sterile as any egg product that's available."

Meanwhile, Morning Glory Eggs is expected to expand and add new employees to work with the new process, said Douglas Ford.

Appellate Court Overturns Statute Used To Send Minors To Institutions

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina law governing the commitment of minors to state institutions against their will is unconstitutional, arbitrary, and susceptible to different interpretations, a state appeals court panel has ruled.

The law defines a mentally ill minor as any under-age person who "fails to exercise 'age appropriate initiative' in his 'activities and social relationships' so as to make it 'advisable' for him to receive 'guidance,'" the three-judge North Carolina Court of Appeal panel said Tuesday.

"Under this standard, it appears that very few individuals escape mental illness during their teen-age years," Judge Gerald Arnold said in his opinion.

The three-judge panel unanimously upheld a Superior Court judge's finding that the law is unconstitutional and vague.

"The definition of mental illness in (state law) is clearly susceptible to different interpretations and arbitrary applications," Arnold wrote. "The statute fails to prescribe an ascertainable standard to enable judges to interpret it and administer it uniformly."

In a brief urging the appeals court to reverse the trial judge's decision to strike down the law, the state attorney general's office argued that medical experts could help ensure that the standards are understood and applied objectively.

The brief cited an earlier appeals court ruling that the state's definition of mental illness could be understood and applied with help of medical experts.

But the appeals court ruled that the definitions in the two cases differed in key respects.

The case involved a 16-year-old

Wake County girl whom court records identified only as "Lynette H." Over her protests, she briefly was committed to Holly Hill Hospital, a private institution in Raleigh, in January 1987.

Three days after she was sent to the hospital, a hearing was held in Superior Court.

Dr. Thomas Cornwall, the psychiatrist who examined the girl, testified that Lynette was suffering from a form of depression that constituted mental illness.

Cornwall said the girl was depressed at home and at school, had run away to live with an older male, had no friends at school, and used alcohol and marijuana.

She also flew into a rage when she learned that her boyfriend didn't want to marry her, had poor judgment and would not participate in out-patient treatment, the doctor said.

The girl's mother testified that Lynette "walked the streets," ran away from home several times and appeared suicidal.

Lynette testified that she could "handle" her depression "pretty well," that she planned to go to college and join a police force and that she was willing to return home and try to get along with her parents. She expressed willingness to attend out-patient therapy.

After striking down the statute on committing mentally ill minors, the trial judge considered whether Lynette should be required to remain at the hospital under the law governing involuntary commitment of adults.

Finding insufficient grounds, including a lack of evidence that the girl posed a danger to herself or others, the judge ordered her discharged.

Bakker Says He's The One To Save PTL

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — Former PTL leader Jim Bakker has repeated his assertion that he and his wife Tammy should have an opportunity to salvage the financially failing ministry before it is liquidated in bankruptcy court.

"I think everybody else has had a chance," Bakker told reporters Tuesday outside the ministry's headquarters. "It's gone through so many regimes; it's being sold off. What would be wrong with giving Jim and Tammy a chance?"

Bakker's earlier pleas to the PTL leaders who succeeded him were rebuffed.

PTL spokesman David West said PTL's opinion that Bakker could never return as the leader of the ministry has not changed.

"The judge (U.S. Bankruptcy Court Judge Rufus Reynolds) agrees with the legal opinion presented by our attorneys that Bakker cannot return," West said.

The PTL founder, who left the television ministry in March 1987 amid a sex-and-money scandal, returned to Heritage USA at the request of Roe Messner, the primary builder of the theme park and now PTL's second-largest creditor.

He said the meeting was to back up Messner's claims against PTL in the bankruptcy proceedings.

Study To Use Community Pressure Against Smoking

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — A four-year study will pit Greensboro against Raleigh in an experiment to see if community pressure can help smokers quit and keep adolescents from taking up the habit.

"I think most people want to quit," said Tyler Hartwell, director of Research Triangle Institute's Center for Medical, Environmental and Energy Statistics. "Eighty or 90 percent of them want to buy their just don't ever get to a clinic. Particularly the heavy smokers are addicted to it. They need help."

Rather than subjecting individual smokers to anti-smoking tactics, researchers in 11 cities in the United States and Canada will help develop community networks to encourage people to join effective anti-smoking programs, Hartwell said.

The community network will be used in Raleigh, but no intervention strategies will be attempted in Greensboro.

Hartwell said the proportion of smokers in Raleigh and Greensboro was close to the national average of 28 percent, despite the fact that North Carolina as a whole has more than the average number of smokers. In Greensboro, 30 percent smoke and 10 percent smoke heavily. In Raleigh, 28 percent of those between the ages of 25 and 64 smoke — 8 percent heavily.

Researchers also will evaluate whether the community intervention efforts result in a higher quit rate among light-to-moderate smokers and a lower rate of smoking onset among adolescents.

"The idea is to reach a large number of smokers," said Hartwell, the principal investigator for the North Carolina segment of the four-year study.

North Carolina will receive about $3 million of the $42.5 million appropriated for the research by the National Cancer Institute's Division of Cancer Prevention and Control. A local board will be formed by the fall to determine how the Raleigh program will operate, Hartwell said.

Heavy smokers will be the main focus of the study, particularly those between the ages of 25 and 64, Hartwell said. A sample of 500 heavy smokers in each community will be called once a year to see whether they have quit.

Hartwell said programs like the Quit Smoking Clinic at Duke University Medical Center, run by psychiatrist Robert Shipley, are very effective.

"If he can get them into his clinic, he's very successful," Hartwell said. The Community Intervention Trial for Smoking Cessation, or COMMIT, will help motivate them, he said.

Street Preachers Appearing On TV

MARION, N.C. (AP) — Street preacher David Strode and his wife, Robin, will appear with McDowell County school officials and concerned parents at a town meeting that will be televised on the Sally Jesse Raphael television show.

The show will be taped Friday at the Marion Community Center and aired June 7, according to Burt Dubrow, the show's executive producer.

Producers for the nationally syndicated talk show announced the scheduled one-hour taping Tuesday, the second for the family. They last appeared on the show May 19.

The family has been featured on national news shows since school officials began suspending the Strodes' children in April for preaching on school grounds. Strode traveled last week to Detroit and New York for interviews.

IN THE STATE

Court Ruling

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Court of Appeals has upheld the conviction of an accused smuggler, even though the man claimed he did not know he was hauling marijuana in a truck he had been hired to drive.

Marcelle Antonio Bogle was stopped for speeding on Interstate 95 in Northampton County on April 7, 1987. Bogle signed a form allowing a Highway Patrol trooper to search the truck he was driving. The trooper found boxes containing marijuana and charged Bogle with transporting and trafficking in marijuana.

Bogle testified that he was promised $1,000 for driving the truck from Florida to New York and said he was unaware the cargo included marijuana.

The appeals court, in a 2-1 decision Tuesday, ruled that the jury could infer if Bogle didn't know drugs were in the truck it was only because he had "consciously avoided" finding out to leave himself a legal defense and had reasonable grounds for suspecting the truth.

Mortgages

RALEIGH (AP) — The down payment for a federally insured home mortgage for an $80,000 home could be as low as 3 percent under a bill pending in Congress, a congressman says.

Rep. David Price, D-N.C., who introduced the Home Ownership Assistance Act of 1988 last week, said at a news conference Tuesday that the bill would enable the Federal Housing Administration to insure 97 percent of the value of the first-time home buyer's dwelling.

The 3 percent down payment on such loans would be a reduction of about 30 percent for a median-priced $80,000 home, he said.

Indictments

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C. (AP) — Twenty-five people, including a former Elizabethtown police officer, have been indicted by a Bladen County investigative grand jury on 291 drug trafficking charges.

Michael F. Easley, district attorney for the 13th Judicial District, said the indictments Tuesday resulted from an investigation by a special grand jury convened when officers became suspicious of drug deals arranged by an informant. The investigation uncovered "obvious entrapment" of 15 people who were not believed to be intentionally involved with narcotics, he said.

"Without it (the grand jury) we may not have found out about this, and those people would have been indicted," Easley said. "As a result of the investigation, not only were they not indicted, but they were cleared of any involvement in drugs."

Body Found

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — The search for a 2-year-old Lenoir girl ended Tuesday with the discovery of the child's body in a creek.

Miranda Kathleen McDaniel was pronounced dead on the scene by a medical examiner following a 30-minute recovery attempt.

The child disappeared Monday afternoon while fishing with her father, Oren David McDaniel. Her body was found Tuesday morning, trapped under the swift flowing water by rocks, a short distance downstream from where she disappeared.

Tobacco Facility

RALEIGH (AP) — A division of a Danville, Va., company has agreed to purchase the Fuquay-Varina processing facility owned by the flue-cured tobacco growers' cooperative, officials say.

Carolina Leaf, a division of Dibrell Brothers Inc., of Danville, Va., has agreed to purchase the facility, Fred Bond, general manager of Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp., said Tuesday.

The co-op received five proposals and Stabilization's board of directors agreed in May to negotiate with Carolina Leaf on its offer, Bond said. A final agreement should be reached this month.

Sanford Lease

DURHAM (AP) — Sen. Terry Sanford, D-N.C., canceled the lease on his Chapel Hill office, effective Tuesday, saying the lease on the condominium, which had been owned by a partnership controlled by Sanford and his top aide, "looked bad."

The partnership owned the office condominium until the day before Sanford's office began leasing it at a cost to taxpayers of $18,200 a year. Sanford's senior assistant, Bill Green, said Sanford would give the government $7,500 for the amount paid on the lease so far.

"... While the lease was not done for personal gain, the appearance was bad," Sanford said. "It was essential that I cancel the lease. It was not illegal and it was not in violation of Senate rules. It looked bad, however. Because it looked bad, it was bad."

Sanford said he had canceled the lease and bought back the property "at the fair price which was paid."

Waterfall Death

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — An 18-year-old Hickory woman who had graduated from high school Saturday died Tuesday in Caldwell County from injuries sustained in a 60-foot fall from a waterfall near U.S. 321.

Jennifer Wistehuff died Tuesday morning during surgery at Frye Regional Medical Center following the fall from the waterfall Monday. A spokesman for the hospital said Miss Wistehuff suffered head injuries in the accident.

The accident occurred at about 5 p.m. Monday when Wistehuff and a friend were at the waterfall taking pictures.

Report Backs Treatment For Early AIDS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Academy of Sciences said today the hundreds of thousands of Americans unknowingly infected with the AIDS virus should be considered as suffering from a disease even if they don't have full-scale AIDS.

"Viewing HIV infection as a disease is important because it may eventually be amenable to treatment and patients will need to be diagnosed and treated as early as possible," the academy said in a report.

The report based its recommendation on what is now "scientifically conclusive" evidence that the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, causes AIDS.

"From a public health perspective the important event is infection rather than full-blown disease because even asymptomatic infected persons are capable of infecting others," it said.

But the report also called for a federal law to prevent discrimination against people with the AIDS virus — a measure opposed by the Reagan administration.

And although it encouraged more voluntary testing to get better information on the magnitude of the epidemic, the report says mandatory testing "is currently appropriate only for blood, tissue and organ donations" and specifically says testing should not be a requirement for getting a marriage license.

The report also called for establishment of a new, semi-permanent federal commission to oversee the nation's response to the epidemic after the present White House commission goes out of business this month.

The report was prepared by a joint committee of the academy and one of its operating arms, the Institute of Medicine, and was presented as "an update of and a supplement" to the academy's initial 1986 report on AIDS.

Court OKs Congress' Pay Raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court ruling allows members of Congress to keep the $12,100 pay raise they received last year and continue using the law that gave them the increase.

In a 3-0 ruling Tuesday, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia agreed with a lower court ruling last year that the Federal Salary Act is constitutional.

Members of Congress earn $89,500, although leaders in each house earn slightly more.

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., and five House Republicans challenged the act's multistep procedure: establishment of a pay study commission; the commission's recommendation to the president; a presidential decision setting the increase; and the chance for lawmakers to change the presidential ruling.

The lawmakers said the Constitution's intent was that Congress set its pay scale by passing a law, a politically risky system used from the founding of the nation through enactment of the current law in 1967.

The challenge also contended the act violated the constitutional separation of powers among the branches by delegating decision-making authority to the president in setting the pay.

The salary act determines pay increases not only for Congress, but also for judges and high-ranking executive branch officials.

Sunken Treasure Reported

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — A sunken 16th century Portuguese ship discovered off in waters between Malaysia and Indonesia carries about $3 billion in gold and precious stones, a newspaper reported today.

The haul is "believed to be one of the biggest lost treasures of the world," the chief minister of Malacca state, Abdul Rahim Thamby Chik, was quoted as saying.

The official, quoted by the daily New Straits Times, reported the treasure was on board the remains of Flor De La Mar, once the flagship of the Portuguese navy in the area. It struck a reef and sank in the Straits of Malacca in January 1512, a few months after an 800-ship Portuguese armada captured the Malacca Sultanate.

The ship, with a cargo he estimated at $3 billion, also carried Malay weavers and women, he said.

Rahim said he had held talks with a salvage group this week, but would not identify the company or disclose further details about its location, the newspaper said.

The National News Agency Bernama, The Star and other dailies also reported that Rahim said the ship has been found and that Malaysian officials and those of an unidentified foreign country have been contacted in connection with salvaging the treasure.

Other officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the foreign government is believed to be Indonesia and the treasure is lying off the coast of the Indonesian island of Sumatra in the Straits of Malacca.

The state minister was quoted Tuesday in Malacca, about 90 miles south Kuala Lumpur.

Index Shows Gain As Recession Fades

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's chief forecasting gauge of economic activity rose a moderate 0.2 percent in April, sending a signal of steady economic growth with no danger of a recession this year.

The Commerce Department said its Index of Leading Indicators rose for the third consecutive month, following a revised 0.2 percent March increase and a 1.5 percent February surge, the biggest gain in more than two years.

Economists said the performance of the leading index was entirely consistent with their belief that the economy was headed for its best year since 1984 as smokestack America benefits from a boom in export sales.

All of this should be good news to Vice President George Bush, who hopes to benefit from a feeling among voters that the Reagan administration is managing the economy well.

The March increase had originally been reported as a much larger 0.8 percent rise. Analysts had expected both the big downward revision to the March figure and the small increase in April.

They said the gains reflected a return to more normal economic activity following a roller-coaster period after the October stock market crash.

At one point, the leading index actually fell for three consecutive months, the traditional signal of an impending recession. Later revisions, however, showed the index posted big declines in both November and January, but registered increases in other months.

Taft Says Edgecombe Board Acted Too Rapidly

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Opinions voiced by two elected officials and an environmental representative constituting the respondent panel at Tuesday night's forum on a proposed waste site in Edgecombe County, with one exception, reaffirmed a need-to-know the facts approach before reaching a decision.

The trio of respondents was Pitt County Commissioner Tom Johnson, state Sen. Tom Taft, D-Pitt, and Ernie Larkins, president of the Pamlico-Tar River Foundation. Taft spoke out unequivocally against choosing the Edgecombe site.

"A number of people, including myself, have the feeling the proposed site is a horrible location for Edgecombe County and all eastern North Carolina," Taft said.

"Edgecombe County Commissioners have committed themselves to do whatever is necessary to receive the site. They have reacted too fast. It has also been intolerable that the local press sat around quietly during the initial development of the site plan. The commissioners violated the spirit, if not the law, of open meetings.

"I don't think anybody else in North Carolina is going to volunteer their county for a hazardous waste site. Because they have done this, the pressure on Edgecombe County will be enormous."

Taft said he "fears political intrusion in the regulatory process, an intrusion that can be disastrous. There's not been much talk about selection procedures, about why not choosing a site closer to industries that produce the major waste."

Saying that most of the hazardous waste produced in North Carolina occurs within a 70-mile radius of Davidson County, he wondered,

"Why not that area as most appropriate as a site? It's the highest risk area.

"It's a terrible irony that those reaping the greatest benefits of research in North Carolina want to shove the waste disposal problem off on eastern North Carolina.

"But we can beat them," Taft said. "It's a long process, and the best way to stop them is supporting those in Edgecombe County who oppose their county as the site choice."

Johnson said "the position of Pitt County Commissioners can be summed up in a few words. We have approved a resolution asking the governor and all concerned to slow down. We want to collect all the facts affecting Pitt County and the region.

"To do this," Johnson said, "we have appointed a regional task force under the direction of the ECU Regional Development Institute. They will produce valid information needed for the development of a new waste facility.

"I feel sure," Johnson said, "that the question of a location will be put to a vote."

Larkins, president of the 1,500 member Pamlico-Tar River Foundation, noting he did not speak officially for the foundation, said "what we need is calm, rational discussions. This has not been the case so far. We must realistically face the fact that we use products that are responsible for the waste, that a disposal facility is needed in North Carolina. The question is where. The siting must depend ultimately on the least risk to the fewest number of people. The most important question is by whom the site decision will be made. The criteria for a decision is not now clear, and it must be made clear to the public."

Speakers Say More Facts On Park Needed

vious what the problems are in waste disposal solutions, but at this time we need to emphasize the questions to be asked" in order to have information in understanding the concerns, the problems.

Bill Holman of Raleigh, legislative lobbyist for the Sierra Club and the N.C. Conservation Club, outlined the various legislative enactments in North Carolina since 1979 that have resulted in "redirecting state policy in how best to reduce and to treat hazardous waste.

The various restrictive acts passed by the Legislature in recent years, Holman said, has led to the point "where it is virtually impossible in North Carolina to landfill hazardous waste," terming that condition a sign of the progress made in North Carolina in recent years.

"Pollution really is inefficiency," he said, adding that "compromises are being realized between environmentalists and industry in waste treatment measures and the choice of sites."

Holman stressed that the environmentalists he represents "advocates local control of (a site choice), not the selection of a site where the majority opposes the site choice."

A primary factor in the process of choosing a site, Holman pointed out, "is the question of whether the risks outweigh the benefits or whether the benefits outweigh the risks.

"We must look at the advantages and disadvantages of any site chosen for such a facility. There are conflicting roles in making such a choice, and we must take time to decide."

A similar premise of the necessity of evaluation risks and benefits and taking time to know the facts was voiced by Dr. Linda Little, executive director of the North Carolina Waste Management board.

Pre-Release Event

The 84th graduation of the Pre-Release and Aftercare Services was held recently at First Presbyterian Church where Jessie Harris, human relations director for the city of Greenville, was the speaker.

Harris challenged the 23 graduates of the N.C. Department of Correction's program to reflect only on the past to build a brighter future, according to Melvin McLawhorn, training coordinator. Harris also encouraged the inmates to remember what they have learned in the four-week training program and to use it to their benefit.

McLawhorn said that anyone interested in sponsoring a graduation or volunteering time to the program may call him or Elbert Buck, center director, at 756-8400 or visit them at 108 Dexter St., Greenville.

Leadership Institute

The Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce recently completed its second High School Leadership Institute, designed to develop and improve the leadership skills of high school sophomores and juniors through analyzing leadership styles and observing the styles of others.

The students become familiar with county operations, its needs and assets, and are led toward becoming effective and conscientious community leaders for the county.

Twenty students are selected for the program each year. Each of the five county high schools select potential participants on a competitive basis, and they are judged by a committee of school members selected by the principal of each school. A selection committee then reviews the applications and the participants are chosen.

School Open House

Ayden Middle School recently welcomed fourth-graders and their teachers from Ayden Elementary School for open house. The program began with a welcome from assistant principal Larry Simmons and guidance counselor Elaine King.

Students representing different extracurricular groups, open to fifth and eighth grades, spoke to the guests, and the fourth- and fifth-grade strings performed for the group.

After the program students were led on a tour of Ayden Middle by Student Involvement Committee guides. The tour ended with refreshments in the school cafeteria.

Club Meeting Set

The 20th Century Social Club will meet Sunday at 5:30 p.m. at the home of William Simpson, 902 Tyson St.

Orthodontic School

Dr. Dennis Paul Ross has been accepted for Orthodontic School at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Ross, who was chosen from more than 300 applicants to be one of the class of five for 1988; is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ledyard Ross of Greenville.

Services Planned

Minister Gregory Ellis will be in charge of a service Wednesday night at St. Paul Church of Christ, Ayden.

Elder Blake Phillips of Zion Hill Free Will Baptist Church will have a 7:30 p.m. service Thursday.

Unit On Folklore

Fifth-grade students and media specialist Millie Tardif of Wintergreen Elementary School culminated a unit on North Carolina folklore by telling stories to A.G. Cox fifth-graders. Wintergreen students participating were Ken Way, Whitney Bennett, Kees Amerson, Brandon Searcey and Aimee Weathersby.

Strings Concert

A.G. Cox strings students will present a concert Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the school's multipurpose room. They will be directed by Dee Braxton.

Dee Taylor, cheerleader sponsor, has announced the cheerleader squad for the 1988-89 school year. Team members are Catherine Minshew, Ashlei Smith, Jessie Strong, Rebecca McGhee, Tammie Waller, Kelly McLawhorn, Kemberly Lee, Emily Lambert, Tanya Jones, Tina Godley, Heather Garrett, Michelle Scarborough, Sarah Mohror and Christy Pollard.

Tea For Parents

Tea will be served Saturday from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. for parents of children who are being tutored at the Edwards home at 1009 Douglas Ave. in Greenville. For more information call 756-4358 after 9 p.m.

Birthday Luncheon

The family of Hayes Chapel Missionary Baptist Church will hold the annual birthday luncheon Sunday at 6 p.m.

Indicted

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A federal grand jury Tuesday indicted Greensboro chiropractor Russell A. Cobb Jr. on eight counts of making false statements to five Piedmont banks to obtain $1.77 million in loans.

The indictments allege that Cobb, who owns a chain of chiropractic clinics, told the banks he only had debts of $1.2 million to $1.4 million, when in fact he actually owed banks more than $6 million.

The indictments, handed down in U.S. Middle District Court, follow an FBI investigation that began in January when a Greensboro bank noticed irregularities in Cobb's check-writing practices and notified the FBI.

Expelled

GREENSBORO (AP) — A 17-year-old student at Page High School who was suspended for playing rock music over the school sound system during an awards ceremony will get his diploma but will not take part in graduation ceremonies, officials said.

Greensboro Superintendent John Eberhart said Tuesday that David Hwang, 17, had earned enough credits to graduate and would receive his diploma.

Hwang was expelled last week for rigging the school wiring so that the lyrics "we don't need no education" from Pink Floyd's "The Wall" album played over the public address system during an awards ceremony. Hwang is scheduled for a District Court appearance July 7 in connection with the incident on a misdemeanor charge of vandalism, which carries a maximum $500 fine or up to two years in jail.

Adjustment Panel To Meet Thursday

A decision on whether to allow gasoline sales and a car wash along Greenville Boulevard is one of the matters to be considered by the Greenville Board of Adjustment at its regular monthly meeting Thursday at 7 p.m. in Council Chambers of City Hall.

The petitioners, represented by Collice C. Moore, are seeking a special use permit to allow the sale of gas and a car wash operation on the northeast corner of Greenville Boulevard and Luci Drive. The property is zoned CS (shopping center).

The board will also consider a request by Mena Inc. to obtain a special use permit to operate a gift shop at 300 S.W. Greenville Blvd. The property is zoned CH (highway commercial).

In other matters Thursday, the board will listen to an appeal by Johnny E. Wilson regarding a decision by the building inspector not to issue a permit to use a residence at 1212 S. Charles St. as a duplex; consider a request by Cynthia D. Best to obtain a special use permit to place a mobile home on lot #77 of the Hillsdale Subdivision behind the Pitt-Greenville Airport, approximately 160 feet south of SR 1420; consider a request by Jun H. Lee and Greenville Buyers Marketplace Associates to obtain a special use permit to allow a martial arts studio in the Greenville Buyers Market on the southwest corner of Maxwell Street and Memorial Drive. The property is zoned CS.

The board also will consider a request W. Ray and Eunice Lassiter to obtain a special use permit to place a mobile home on property zoned RA-20 (residential-agricultural), and located on the north side of SR 1417, approximately .75 miles west of N.C. 11, and consider a request by James C. Pittman, Charles Dewey and Barbara Kablu to obtain a special use permit to allow a rooming house on property at 115 E. 13th St. The property is zoned CDF (commercial downtown fringe).

The board will also consider a request by the Venture of Faith Fellowship and Helen C. Kares to obtain a special use permit to allow a church at 429 S. Evans St., zoned DM (downtown mall), and also a request by Bobby Dixon to obtain a special use permit to construct two multifamily projects under land use intensity development standards (lot 1: 2.1 acres — 52 units; lot 2: 4.1 acres — 60 units). The properties are zoned R-6 (high-density residential) and are located on Shenandoah Circle between Tobacco Road and Rollingwood Cluster Homes.

Travelers Don't Travel

DEAR ABBY: We have a problem. Some close relatives sold their home, bought an expensive RV, and told everybody that they were going to travel.

In three months they have taken two short trips. The rest of the time — you guessed it — the "monster" sits on the street in front of our house, connected to our electricity!

These "travelers" also have pets that are a nuisance. Our neighbors do not appreciate all this and neither do we, although we do love these relatives.

There is a city ordinance that prohibits a vehicle from sitting for more than 72 hours in one place. We haven't been bothered yet, but we are getting nervous.

How does one handle a problem like this? I hope you put this in your column. Maybe they will see it and take the hint. — UNHAPPY AND BEWILDERED

DEAR UNHAPPY: Don't leave a message as important as this one to chance. Tell your relatives that there is a city ordinance prohibiting the parking of vehicles in one spot for more than 72 hours. Also inform them that their pets have become a neighborhood nuisance — and suggest that maybe it's time they moved down the road. Harsh? Perhaps, but consider the alternative: The meek stand to inherit some insensitive guests, and a long list of inconveniences.

DEAR ABBY: I am currently dating a good-looking, 33-year-old woman who has a medium frame and a shapely figure. She smokes and would like to quit, but she's afraid if she quits she will gain weight. I do not want her to lose her shapely figure, nor do I want her to smoke.

Can you list some possible solutions to win in both departments? — GENE IN JASPER, IND.

DEAR GENE: Your good-looking friend is not alone. There are many people who smoke to stay trim, but few will admit it.

If she really wants to quit, she should get in touch with her local branch of the American Cancer Society and latch onto the stop-smoking program. She'll be given tips on weight maintenance at the same time. The longer she smokes, the harder it will be to quit. Many have learned too late that it was a terrible price to pay for a shapely figure.

DEAR ABBY: My family tells me

I'm abnormal because I eat only one item at a time. I dish out three or four items on my plate and eat them separately. Just because I don't take a few bites of this and a few bites of that, they say I'm abnormal and peculiar. My family is always putting me down and degrading me for the way I eat.

So what's wrong with the way I eat? Please put your answer in the paper so they can see it. Then maybe they will get off my back. Thank you. — J.M.B., MARYLAND

DEAR J.M.B.: I wonder what's eating your family. Your manner of eating is neither abnormal nor peculiar. Many others prefer to eat one item at a time.

DEAR ABBY: I sincerely hope the Minnesota son takes your advice and asks his father how he can help him. He is young and has many years ahead of him. Happiness doesn't thrive on hatred and bitterness. Forgiveness is much more satisfying. I should know. — TRIED BOTH IN ARIZONA

CONFIDENTIAL TO 'WRONG SIDE OF THE TRACKS' IN SACRAMENTO: If after all these years her parents refuse to accept you, quit trying. It would be easier to move the tracks.

Thompson-Rhoades Vows Exchanged

FAIRHOPE, Ala. — Lauren Rene Rhoades and John Aaron Thompson were married May 20 at 6:30 p.m. on the garden terrace of the Rhoades Restaurant. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. R.D. Rhoades, stepfather of the bride.

Parents of the couple are the Rev. and Mrs. Rhoades of Fairhope; Dr. Durwood Facundus of Bacon Rouge, La., and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Holmes Thompson of Greenville, N.C.

A program of wedding music was presented by a band and Arnold Lynch, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

Kim Ledbetter of Auburn, Ala., sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Teresa Thompson-Lynch of Durham, sister of the bridegroom, was the bridesmaid. Flower girls were Kelsey, Courtney, and Kendall Cangelosi, cousins of the bride; Kira Ledbetter, niece of the bride; and Kristen Noelle Phelps, niece of the bridegroom. Escorting the flowergirls were Brent, Caleb, Corey, Ross, and Sean Cangelosi, cousins of the bride. The ring bearer was Trevor Cangelosi, cousin of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk peau de soie in blush pink. The bodice was overlaid in Venise lace and featured a dropped waist. The high collar neck of lace was accented with puffed sleeves of silk with a ruffled design. Venise lace banded the cuffs of the sleeves and the silk skirt flowed to cathedral length. Her headpiece was a halo of porcelain flowers and baby's breath with a cathedral-length veil. She carried a bouquet of pink and white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Roy Thompson, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Phil Johnson of Raleigh and Sean and Caleb Cangelosi, cousins of the bride.

A reception was given by the bride's parents on the restaurant terrace following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson entertained the wedding party, families, and out-of-town guests at a rehearsal dinner prior to the wedding.

The bride is a student at N.C. State University in Raleigh. After her graduation in December, she will continue a career in law. The bridegroom is a graduate of North Carolina State University and is an engineer associated with Brandt Instruments in Fuquay Varina.

The couple will reside in Raleigh.

MRS. THOMPSON

Couple Marries In Plymouth

PLYMOUTH — Beth Ann Rogers and David Patrick Franck were May 21 in a 4 p.m. wedding at the First Baptist Church. Dr. Dennis Burton conducted the ceremony.

MRS. FRANCK

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade G. Rogers of Plymouth. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Franck and the grandson of Mrs. Annette Franck of Limestone, Me., and Mr. and Mrs. Norval Gooding of Alexandria, Ind.

Isabelle Mallory, organist and pianist, presented a program of wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was escorted by her father. She wore a formal gown of white matte taffeta, fashioned with off-shoulder neckline and sweetheart bodice. Taffeta bows centered with silk roses trimmed the short puffed sleeves. The V waistline was accented with silk Venise lace and featured a large back bow. The gown was further fashioned with a full ruffled overskirt picked up with silk roses over the ruffled hemline of the skirt and chapel length train. A fingertip veil of illusion flowed from a tiara of lace encrusted with pearls, enhanced with a back pouf with scattered pearls. Her bouquet was a contemporary cascade of white lilies, pink and white rosebuds, rose fuchsia, highlighted with bridal stephanotis, and dark blue iris.

Nona Elliott of Roper served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Carol Franck, sister of the bridegroom, Cindy Reel of Raleigh, Jeannine Saunders of Plymouth, Tammie Harrison of Roper and Leanne Butrum. Jennifer Stallings of Edenton and Stephanie Sutton of Herford, cousins of the bride, were junior bridesmaids.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Groomsman were Wayland Rogers of Las Vegas, brother of the bride; Bruce Franck, brother of the bridegroom; Mark Kloekener of Valley Stream, N.Y., and Keith Russell and Chris Kopriva, both of Windham, N.H.

Amy Stallings of Edenton, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl.

A reception was given by the bride's parents in the church fellowship hall. A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents at Barrett's Family Restaurant in Plymouth.

Both the bride and bridegroom attended East Carolina University. The bride is employed by Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance and the bridegroom is employed as a marine manufacturer's representative by Franck and Associates, Inc.

After a wedding trip to Las Vegas the couple will reside in Greenville.

Class Has 50th Candlelight Wedding Vows Solemnized Anniversary

The Greenville High School Class of 1938 held its 50th anniversary celebration at the Greenville Country Club Saturday night.

The class of '38, then the largest in the history of GHS, 117 in number, was represented at the reunion with 57 members attending. This was 67 percent of the surviving class members. Thirty-two members of the class are deceased.

The event was chaired by Norman Wilkerson. Serving with him on the committee were Mabel Edwards Minges, Gertie Matthews Barbour, Doris Duval Flanagan, Walter Tucker, Kate Foley Grady, and Jimmy Wells, then principal of GHS.

Dr. Vester Mulholland, of Raleigh, addressed the class, their spouses, and special guests, reminding them of their camaraderie and achievements. Gertie Barbour presented humorous reflections and Charles Horne conducted introductions and interviews.

Two former faculty members were present — Mary Shaw Robeson Cunningham of Elon College and Evelyn Buchanan Moye of Greenville. Also present were two of the class officers — Jane Rowlette Gaskins of Greenville, vice president, and Mary Agnes Deal Merner of Hopewell, Va., secretary-treasurer. Though the president of the class, James Whitfield, was unable to attend, the president of the class during its sophomore and junior years, Joe Staton of Atlanta, was present.

Thorton Ryan, of Columbia, Tenn., editor with James Whitfield of "Green Lights," was present, as were athletic stars, Ford McGowan, Richard Gaylord, Harold Forbes, Jane Rowlette Gaskins, and Myra Blount Hodges, all of Greenville; Charlie Futrelle of Brevard; Claude Hardee of Kinston; Earl Hellen of Newport News, Va.; Frances Clark Giles of Fayetteville; Marjorie Sugg Nicholson of Chapel Hill; Alice Leigh Blou Hussey of Tarboro, and Emmy Lou Scale Doughty, of Johnson City, Tenn.

Fifty-three percent of the class has remained North Carolina residents and 29 percent has stayed in Greenville. Two couples of the class married and remained in Greenville: Howard Hodges Jr. and Myra Blount and Steve Walters and Nell Merritt. Both couples were represented at the reunion.

WILLIAMSTON — Danya Dee Stevens and James Herbert Bailey Jr. were united in marriage Saturday in a candlelight ceremony at Memorial Baptist Church in Williamston. The Rev. Robbie Parker performed the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Jean Mobley Stevens of Williamston and the late Berney Edward Stevens. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. James Herbert Bailey Sr. of Cary.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Berney Warren Stevens, wore an ivory gown of taffeta-satin. The bodice was designed with long sleeves, a pouf at the shoulder, shirred above the elbow with tiny bridal buttons at the wrist. The neckline and bodice were beaded with re-embroidered Alencon lace, seed pearls and iridescents. A full skirt fell from the fitted bodice and extended to a cathedral train. The front skirt was beaded with motifs of Alencon lace forming a pyramid. A deep hemline of Alencon lace completed the design of the gown on the front skirt and train. She wore a Priscilla headpiece wreath designed with Alencon lace motifs and seed pearls. The fingertip illusion was finished with a rolled edge. She carried a formal bridal cascade of champagne roses, gardenias, stephanotis, pink roses from her grandparents' garden, Queen Anne's lace, and cascades of pearls and sequins. Mixed ivy, ruscus, and Boston fern completed the old-fashioned bouquet.

Kristie Hope Perry attended the bride as maid of honor while Natalie Onenault of Havelock served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Kimberly Dawn Roberson of Williamston, Barbara Ann Smith of Greenville, Sarah Ellen Wheelless of Alexandria, Va., Juliana Stevens of Tabor City, cousin of the bride, Marion Bailey Clifton of Arlington, Va., sister of the bridegroom, Katherine Bailey Gray of Wilmington, sister of the bridegroom; Pamela Jean Vaughan of Zebulon; and Robin Rhea Rogers and Kelly Francis Zeko, both of Raleigh. The attendants wore floor-length gowns of rose taffeta with sweetheart necklines, elbow-length sleeves poufed at the shoulder and shirred above the elbow. The bodice crossed to a large bow at the left side of the waist. The attendants' flowers were informal bouquets of Queen Anne's lace, rubrum lilies, small yellow and lavender tulips, and mixed roses.

The bridegroom was attended by his father as best man. Ushers were George Vernon Bagley Jr., Roy Blair Bagley, and Jeffrey Lynn Bullock of Bear Grass, Walter Eriksen Gray of Wilmington, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; James Claude Clifton of Arlington, Va., brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Judson Scott Bailey of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom; Marty Paul Cook of Matthews; David Marshall Hill of Greenville, cousin of the bridegroom; Ben Elliot Norfleet of Newport News, Va.; and Christopher Mark Rowe of Charlotte, cousin of the bridegroom.

Christy Farrior, organist, Jeffrey Bullock, and Elizabeth Barber, soloists, provided the music program. Music selections were "The Lord's Prayer" and "Longer".

A rehearsal dinner at the Roanoke Country Club was hosted by the bridegroom's parents. A dance hosted by the bride's brother, Berney Warren Stevens, was held following the dinner. Following the wedding ceremony the bride's mother hosted a reception at the Roanoke Country Club.

The bride is a senior at East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Randolph Macon College, Asheland, Va. and attended Duke Divinity School. He is employed as a district executive of the Boy Scouts of America.

After a wedding cruise to the Caribbean, the couple will reside in Williamston.

MRS. BAILEY

Double-Ring Vows Performed

MOREHEAD CITY — Angela Carol Peele and Carlton Scott Thompson, both of Greenville, were married May 14 in the First Presbyterian Church. Rene Minshew conducted the double-ring ceremony.

The bride and bridegroom attended East Carolina University. The bride is employed by the Hilton Inn of Greenville. The bridegroom is employed by Directories America.

The couple is living in Greenville after a wedding trip to Montego Bay, Jamaica.

Parents of the couple are Sgt. Maj. W.G. Peele of Jacksonville, and the late Judithy Carol Peele and Mr. and Mrs. C.G. Thompson of Morehead City.

Lacy Stitch Makes Quick Summer Top

Lacy pattern stitchery, a cotton sport-weight yarn and up-to-the-minute styling add up to a versatile sweater that is as much fun to make as it is to wear. The boatneck and deep armholes guarantee comfort and a fast finish. With or without a shirt, this top is sure to become a year-round favorite.

It may be hard to believe, but one easy-to-learn lace pattern stitch is used for both body and yoke of this vest.

Easy-to-follow directions are given for small, medium and large sizes with finished bust measurements of 35, 38 and 41 inches respectively, with a gauge of four stitches to the inch.

To obtain directions for making the Breezy Top, send your request for

Pat's Pointers

Pat Trexler

Leaflet No. Z-052988 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-052988 by sending a check or money order for $19.95 for small and medium or $22.95 for large to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, instruction leaflet and cotton yarn in your choice of jade, dusty rose or off-white.

How can one basic pattern stitch be used to create effects as different as those in the body and yoke of today's featured sweater? I am sure you must be mystified.

Part of the answer is that the back and front body pieces are worked from side to side with ribbing and yoke worked vertically from stitches picked up on the body section. But there is more to the story. Let me take you step-by-step through the pattern stitch and you will see what I mean.

The basic two-row pattern as seen in the yoke is worked on any number of stitches evenly divisible by 4 (a multiple of 4 stitches). Row 1 (right side): Step 1: Knit 2; Step 2: Yarnover; Step 3: slip 1 stitch, knit 1 stitch, pass slipped stitch over the knit stitch. Repeat these three steps over and over across row.

Row 2 (wrong side): Step 1: Purl 2; Step 2: Yarnover; Step 3: Purl 2 together. Repeat these three steps over and over across row. Repeat these two rows for desired length.

For the body, four extra stitches are added to give you a selvage of two stitches at each end worked in garter stitch. This selvage edging is added so you will not have to start rows 9 through 16 with yarnovers, which would be a tricky maneuver.

For this variation, work as follows: Rows 1, 3, 5, 7: Begin row with knit 2. Then work the same as for row one of basic pattern until 2 stitches remain on needle. End row with knit 2.

Rows 2, 4, 6, 8: Begin row with knit 2. Then work the same as for row 2 of basic pattern until 2 stitches remain on needle. End row with knit 2.

Rows 9, 11, 13, 15: Knit 2; Step 1: Yarnover; Step 2: Slip 1 stitch, knit 1 stitch, pass slipped stitch over the knit stitch; Step 3: Knit 2. Repeat across row until 2 stitches remain; end row with knit 2.

Rows 10, 12, 14, 16: Knit 2; Step 1: Yarnover; Step 2: purl 2 together; Step 3: Purl 2. repeat across row until 2 stitches remain; end row with knit 2. Repeat these 16 rows in sequence for pattern. You will see that this "staggers" the lace pattern every eight rows and creates a totally different look — particularly when worked from side to side.

A final note: When working yarnovers before purl stitches, holding yarn in front of your work, take yarn over the needle and back to the front, thus wrapping it completely around the needle.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced broadly today, following through on Tuesday's strong rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 2.13 to 2,033.25 in the first hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 3 to 1 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 769 up, 223 down and 421 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 35.90 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Interest rates fell for the second straight day in the credit markets, reducing yields on long-term Treasury bonds to just above the 9.2 percent level.

Gainers among the blue chips this morning included International Business Machines, up 3/4 at 113 1/4; American Telephone & Telegraph, up 1/4 at 27 3/8; Ford Motor, up 1/2 at 48 3/8; American Express, up 3/8 at 25 5/8; and Sears Roebuck, up 3/8 at 35 3/8.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .43 to 148.46. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.53 at 295.72.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 74.68 to 2,031.12, its highest level since it closed at 2,036.31 on May 4 and its biggest one-day advance since a 76.42-point gain on Jan. 4.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by nearly 4 to 1 on the NYSE, with 1,211 up, 333 down and 401 unchanged. Big Board volume came to 247.61 million shares, up from 133.59 million in the previous session.

Council Again Delays Decision On Who Will Fund Promotions

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

The question of who should be responsible and who should pay to market and promote the city again came before the Greenville City Council Tuesday — at a time when neighboring and competing cities are enjoying the possibility of national recognition.

Representatives of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Pitt County Convention and Visitors Bureau spoke to members of the council at a budget session meeting about the high cost of marketing the community and whether the city, which benefits from community expansion from an enlarged tax base, has a responsibility to help foot the bill.

Representatives of the various groups had previously spoke to the council about marketing efforts at a budget session on May 24 which ended abruptly due to severe weather.

"I'm really afraid that we stand a great risk of losing out by falling within the shadows of some of (other) cities when we have a chance to be the star of eastern North Carolina," said Phillip R. Dixon, chairman of the board of the chamber of commerce.

The chamber is requesting $39,000 from the city's 1988-89 budget to help in a proposed $93,000 marketing strategy. A decision by the council on whether to grant the chamber's request was delayed to a later budget session.

Meanwhile, neighboring cities Kinston and New Bern are finalists in the "All-American City" award competition, while Greenville has been eliminated from the competition.

Dixon told the council that other area cities such as Farmville and Ayden each contribute $5,000 to their chamber's marketing efforts.

"We are going to find ourselves in spite of the fact that we have a university and a medical school and hospital, sitting in the backseat, maybe in the third or fourth seat back, from some of these other cities," Dixon warned.

But opposition to the $39,000 financial request was plenty.

Council member Nancy Jenkins said she believes that Greenville sells itself.

"We as council members can't do what we as individuals might want to do," she explained. "Our responsibility is to the taxpayers and we ought to be highly accountable, this year especially more than ever."

Council member Lorraine Shinn said she felt the council's primary goal is to ensure city funds are used to provide basic city services.

"The pot is not infinite," she said.

Mayor Ed Carter, who indicates support of the chamber's request, said that during his recent trip to New York City that residents there had heard of Rocky Mount but not of Greenville.

"We've got to highlight those things that are happening here in Greenville. We've got a lot more happening than New Bern and in Kinston," Carter said following the meeting.

"It's all in how we package our stuff. It's the same whether you're packaging it for 'All-American City' or whether you're packaging in hoping to attract industry or some major attractions. You've got to market your city and I really think we've got to get started in knowing how to do that," he said.

Bid

"I think there's no doubt we're going to be successful, I have never seen great success without some failures at some point and I think that we're going to come back strong and I think we're going to have a real good shot at it next time," Carter said.

"If New Bern and Kinston should be finalists, there's no doubt that we should be there, too," he added.

Recount Is Possible

come back in and do this recount, and of course they will have to be paid to do that, and we don't know how long it will take," Mrs. Hardee said.

State law requires the elections board to plan for a full turnout. Mrs. Hardee said, so people should not complain about the cost of the election if they do not vote.

Tuesday's elections will probably cost Pitt County $22,000 — about the same as the March 8 primary — though only 15.3 percent of the county's registered Democrats participated in the runoff election.

"They stayed home in droves," she said.

"We have to prepare for every eligible voter. If they do not show up, it's their decision," Mrs. Hardee said.

"I'm disappointed the turnout was as low as it was, and I think any candidate would say the same thing," Dupree said.

Garrett requested the runoff after Dupree won the May 3 primary but did not receive a majority of the vote.

"Garrett had that option and he exercised it. Now Dupree has that option and I feel sure he will exercise it. But nothing is official until after the canvass tomorrow, which will start at 11 a.m.," Mrs. Hardee said.

Budget Talks Set

The Greenville City Council will meet Thursday at 5 p.m. in the third floor conference room of City Hall to discuss departments and topics not yet addressed regarding the proposed 1988-89 city budget.

Included in the meeting will be a discussion of the budget proposed by the Greenville Utilities Commission and a review of miscellaneous budget areas such as Powell Bill funding.

The council at this session is expected to finalize all preliminary amendments to the budget before a public hearing on the package is held Monday.

City Manager Greg Knowles has proposed an expansion of the city operational budget by 7.8 percent — a rise from $19,656 to $21,693,443 — which would not affect taxes.

However, Knowles has indicated that if an additional capital improvement plan is accepted by the council as proposed, it would boost the tax rate four cents to 57 cents, thereby creating a tax increase.

The proposed date for budget adoption is June 20. A copy of the budget proposal is available for public examination in the office of the city clerk in City Hall.

Investor Plea

WILMINGTON (AP) — A Wilmington financial investor pleaded guilty Tuesday in New Hanover County Superior Court to 46 counts of obtaining property by false pretense in a scam which made thousands of dollars for some investors and left others with thousands of dollars in losses, officials said.

"It sounded too good to be true," said James Brown, one of several investors who testified Tuesday during the sentencing hearing of Leslie Elwood Hall, a 41-year-old man who told investors that he was a U.S. government agent who had an exclusive contract to bid on property seized in drug raids.

Hall faces a maximum 10-year sentence on each of the 46 felony charges.

Arbitration Tested

attorney, is something of a small, garden-variety type of case," Laney said.

People involved in disputes also benefit, he said, because they may hire attorneys they normally could not afford because of the high cost of a lengthy trial.

Out-of-court settlements always lighten the load of the court, and Laney said the arbitration program motivates people to settle more quickly because they know their hearing is set within 60 days of the time the accused party responds to the complaint.

In the 3rd District in 1987, just 218 cases — or 12 percent — of 1,750 that were eligible for arbitration went to hearing, Laney said.

That means 88 percent of the cases eligible for arbitration were out of the court system within 60 days. "Those 88 percent would usually just drift around and become a headache for the clerks until somebody did something about them," Laney said.

Moye, Moore Combine To Power Rampants Past Athens Drive By 10-6

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

RALEIGH — Patchwork pitching and a long ball attack were the catalysts for Rose High in a 10-6 win over Raleigh Athens Drive in an Eastern semifinal 4A baseball playoff game Tuesday.

Tom Moye, who got the nod after a sore shoulder bumped scheduled starter Jamie Brewington, combined with Dallas McPherson for the win. Moye also helped his own cause by driving in the go-ahead runs with a two-run homer in the fifth to complement an overall 12-hit, four home run offensive performance by the Rampants.

"Tom needs more than three days of rest," said Rose coach Ronald Vincent, who had used Moye in a Friday night game. "But you have to admire his heart. He didn't have his good stuff, but he fought them."

Tim Moore helped Rose get off to a good start with a solo homer to open the game. Dave Daniels later added a two-run shot in the first to stake Rose to an early 3-0 lead.

Moore added another homer, a two-run shot in the fourth, that erased a one-run deficit.

Rose needed the long ball attack to hold off the pesky Jaguars, who rely more on strategy than power to produce runs.

"We're just like Whitey Herzog, small ball," said Athens Drive coach

Dave Ebert. "Get a guy on and bunt him over. That's what got us here."

And that philosophy kept the Jaguars close all game.

Athens Drive pushed across single runs in the first and second innings. In the bottom of the first, Todd Snyder walked, went to second on a base hit by Chris Suggs and stole third before scoring on a fielder's choice.

Rose countered with a run of its own in the top of the second as Heath Clark singled and scored on David Leisten's base hit.

In the bottom of the inning, Athens Drive made it 4-2 when Matt Gibbons singled and was replaced by pinch runner John Taylor who scored on Al Nzuiki's single.

Athens Drive struck for three runs in the third as Joey DeAngelis nailed a three-run homer to go ahead, 5-4.

But what took the Jaguars three innings to create, Rose did in one inning. Moye's two-run homer in the fifth also drove in Dave Daniels and put Rose up, 6-5. Then Rose added single runs in the sixth and the seventh.

Moore opened the sixth with a walk and later scored on an error, while Chris Christopher closed out the scoring by coming home on a sacrifice fly by McPherson.

"We've just not been the type of team to hit home runs," Ebert said. "Every run we got, we scratched and worked for. We don't have anyone who can hit the ball 400 feet.

"Our pitchers threw a few bad pitches, but they just hit the ball. That second home run (by Moye) was a big dent."

McPherson came on for Moye briefly in the fifth and got two outs. But after McPherson walked two batters, Moye returned with two men on and a 3-1 count against D.J. Morgan. Two pitches later, the inning was over as Moye blew two strikes past Morgan for the final out of the frame. "Tom was just running out of gas," Vincent said. "But Dallas throws well. I was hoping not to have to bring him (Moye) back in, but it gave Tom a needed rest."

And Moye was fine from there on out. He gave up a single to Felt Hairr in the sixth but that was all because Hairr was thrown out trying to stretch the hit into a double. Moore also helped Moye out with a sliding catch of a short pop fly by Chris Suggs.

Then in the final inning, Richard Lemons drew a walk with one out, but Rose then turned a double play to end the game. John Taylor hit a grounder to third which Brewington relayed to second baseman Heath Clark for one out and Clark then got Taylor at first to end the game.

Moore Gets Respect Of Jaguars

RALEIGH — Rose High's Tim Moore made a lasting impression on the minds of the Raleigh Athens Drive High School baseball team with his first at-bat Tuesday.

The junior centerfielder led off the Rampants 10-6 win over the Jaguars by crushing a 3-2 pitch over the right centerfield fence. He went on to add a two-run homer in the fourth that erased a one-run deficit and he also turned in a number of key defensive plays just for good measure.

"We started off with a bang," Moore said. Prior to his first homer, Moore gave a sign of things to come when he nailed a pitch just to the right of the right field foul pole before straightening things out on his next chance.

"I was just out on front of it (on the first one)," Moore said. "I knew he was going to throw a fastball. I just waited and took it deep." Or perhaps, as ESPN's Chris Berman would say, he took it back, back, back, back, back, back, back.

As impressive as the first shot was, the second homer turned out to be much more consequential. Athens Drive had rallied from a 3-0 deficit to take a 5-4 lead after three innings of play.

Heath Clark, the No. 9 hitter, singled with two away in the fourth to send Moore to the plate and he responded with a shot that went even farther than his first round tripper.

"He had thrown me a breaking curve ball," he said. "Then he hung one up there and I just dealt with it."

Dealt with it? Crushed might be a better word. With one swing of the bat, Rose was back ahead, 6-5.

Athens Drive came back to tie the game with a run in the bottom of the inning, but Moore helped the Rampants out of a possible jam when he threw out Todd Snyder at home plate with a pinpoint shot from mid-center for the final out of the inning.

"It (the throw) kept them from going ahead (again)," Moore said. "When I caught it, I saw them waving him (Snyder) home so I just threw it."

Spartans Oust Vikings, 5-4

By TIM CHANDLER
Reflector Sports Writer

DURHAM — D.H. Conley's hopes of obtaining a state baseball championship came to a close Tuesday afternoon as Southern Durham rallied for a 5-4 victory in state 3A baseball playoff action.

The Vikings, who finish the year with an 18-6 record, led by two, 3-1, heading into the bottom of the fifth inning before the Spartans made their comeback.

"We have come from behind all year long and scored runs at key times to win games," Southern head coach Pete Shankle said following the win. "This is the eighth time this year that we have come from behind to win."

One of the keys to the Spartans success was their patience against Conley pitcher Bronswell Patrick.

"We had heard all about him," Shankle said. "We knew that he might be drafted (to play professionally) and we knew that he sometimes had trouble with his curveball, so we decided to swing only at fastballs. We weren't trying to overpower him — just make contact."

"The kids were really pumped up to beat him (Patrick)," Shankle said.

"Anytime you play teams and you have a player like Bronswell they are going to give their best effort," Conley head coach Allen Wilson said.

"You just have to be ready for that every game."

Conley took the early lead in the game with a pair of runs in the top of the third.

Travis Clemons led off the inning with a single, but was tossed out at second on a fielder's choice by Gray Mills. Mills later moved to second, when Scotty Barnhill reached on a base on balls.

A double to left by Brian Bullock pushed both runners across.

The Spartans, who improved to 19-4 for the year with the win, pulled to within 2-1 in the bottom half of the inning when Carl Husketh led off with a single and managed to score on a run-scoring single to center by Marshall Bryant.

The Vikings jumped back on top by two, 3-1, in the fifth inning with a single run. Bullock led off the inning with a walk. After designated hitter Jim Faulkner had also received a base on balls, Bullock tagged home when Sherwood Wilder's shot was mishandled by Southern shortstop Husketh.

In the bottom of the fifth, Conley set the first two batters down in order. A bad throw on a bunt by catcher Robby Nichols allowed Scott Phipps to reach base and keep the inning alive for the Spartans.

Worthy Paces Laker Win

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Lakers-Mavericks playoff series turned rough, and Los Angeles coach Pat Riley predicts more of the same.

The Lakers, trying to become the first team to win consecutive NBA titles since 1969, regained control of the Western Conference finals Tuesday with a 119-102 victory that gave them a 3-2 edge over the Mavericks.

The best-of-seven series shifts back to Dallas for Game 6 Thursday night and a seventh game, if necessary, will be in Inglewood on Saturday afternoon.

The series winner will play in the NBA title series against the winner of the Detroit-Boston Eastern Conference matchup.

Midway through the first quarter of the Lakers' one-sided victory in the fifth game, Dallas forward Sam Perkins clothed Byron Scott as the LA guard drove to the basket.

That was the roughest play of the game, although there were other incidents.

"We're going to see a lot more of that kind of thing from here on out because teams want to win so badly," Riley said of Perkins' foul.

Scott, momentarily stunned, got up and tried to go after Perkins, but the Laker guard was restrained by teammates.

"If he's going up for a layup and I'm around, it'll be the same thing," Scott said after the game, in which the Lakers took control early and cruised to the victory.

"I didn't like it and I let him know it. There's no place for a play like that in basketball."

Perkins said of the play: "I would apologize to Byron; I didn't mean any harm."

Earlier in the first quarter, forwards A.C. Green of Los Angeles and Mark Aguirre of Dallas engaged in a brief shoving match that resulted in a double technical foul call against each.

Then, with 31 seconds left in the first half, Michael Cooper of the Lakers virtually tackled Derek Harper as the Mavericks' guard drove for the basket.

Laker guard Magic Johnson said Perkins' foul on Scott fired the Lakers up.

"I think that was an emotional lift for us," said Johnson, who had 20 assists and 15 points in the win.

"We said, 'OK, this is how it's going to be. OK, let's go.' It was like getting a shot of energy, taking a vitamin; we took off from there, played crazier, played harder."

Perkins was whistled for the foul and Scott sank two free throws to put the Lakers ahead 17-10 during a 20-4 scoring streak that put them up 24-14 with four minutes left in the opening quarter.

They never looked back, building a 64-47 halftime lead and a 92-71 pad after three periods.

James Worthy had 28 points, 18 in the first half, and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 21 for the Lakers, who shot a scorching 60 percent from the field.

The Mavericks, who beat the Lakers twice in Dallas with accurate outside shooting, were off in Game 5, shooting just 42.3 percent from the floor.

And, for the first time in the series, the Lakers outrebounded the Mavericks, 47-40.

Aguirre led Dallas with 31 points, Harper added 19 and Roy Tarpley had 18.

But Harper, who had a playoff career high 35 points in the Mavericks' Game 4 win, made just seven of 17 shots in the fifth game, and Tarpley was held to only 11 rebounds.

Bowa Wary Of Managing Again

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Larry Bowa is wary of major-league managing after his stint with the San Diego Padres, but he's examining other possibilities with the Philadelphia Phillies.

"I don't know if I'd ever get another chance to manage," said Bowa, a former Phillies' shortstop fired Saturday after little more than a year with San Diego. "But if the opportunity was ever there, I'd really have to give it a lot of thought."

"I know I wouldn't consider managing again unless I had assurances that I'd have some input in personnel decisions and after I had taken a long look at the organization involved."

Bowa, succeeded as Padres manager by Jack McKeon, the club's vice president of baseball operations, said after his firing that he had not been given enough time to rebuild the club.

Under Bowa, who took over at the start of the 1987 season, San Diego was 81-127, including 16-30 this season.

The day after his firing, Bowa met with Phillies president Bill Giles about some job possibilities. Neither man would disclose what specific options were discussed.

"He'd like to be back with us in some capacity and I'd like to have him back," Giles said. "I think he adds something."

"I talked to him and gave him some options. He's going to think it over."

Bowa compiled a .260 batting average in 16 seasons in the major leagues, including 12 with Philadelphia. As a Phillie, Bowa was chosen for five All-Star games, three as a starter, and led National League shortstops in fielding percentage five times, winning Gold Gloves in 1972 and 1978.

Bowa also played for the Chicago Cubs and New York Mets before managing Las Vegas to the Pacific Coast League title in 1986, his only managerial experience prior to the Padres job.

Bowa said Giles gave him "three or four really interesting options to consider, and we agreed we'd talk in about a month from now."

"Let me say right off, though, that one job I don't want and one job not discussed was managing the Phillies. The Phils already have an excellent manager in Lee Elia."

"But the things Bill talked about are things that could be very interesting. They would be possibilities to which I could make a commitment. I gave a lot of myself to the Phillies' organization and it gave a lot to me. And if it worked out that I could make a contribution to the Phillies, that would be great."

"I'm going to sit back and think things through over the next few days. I'm going to cook out in the back yard, watch a lot of baseball games and root for the Phillies."

Hall Of Fame Benefit All-Star Game Set

The CIAA-MEAC Super Stars will take on the Greenville All-Stars in a benefit game for the World Home and Hall of Fame for Black Athletes Friday at Rose High School.

The game will feature performances by Cleo Hill Jr., Wayne Howell, Kelvin Thompson, Howard Spencer and John Spencer. Tickets for the game are $5 per person and tip off is set for 7:30 p.m.

Morgan Sheperd To Replace Gant

DENVER, N.C. (AP) — Morgan Sheperd will replace injured Harry Gant in Sunday's Budweiser 500 at Dover Downs International Speedway, officials for the Skoal Bandit Racing team said Tuesday.

Gant, who suffered a broken left leg during the running of the Coca-Cola 600 at the Charlotte Motor Speedway Sunday, has driven the team's Chevrolet since 1981. Gant, 48, underwent surgery Monday to repair the leg which was broken in two places.

Gant is expected to be released from Cabarrus Memorial Hospital in Concord, N.C., this week and will recuperate at his Taylorsville, N.C., home. The decision on when Gant will return to racing will be made on a race-to-race basis, team officials said.

Sheperd, of Conover, N.C., has been driving Buicks out of his own shop in a limited number of NASCAR races this season after splitting with Ohp car owner Tom Winkle early in the year. Sheperd, 46, has two Winston Cup victories in his 18-year career.

12 N.C. Boxers Set For Olympic Trials

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — One hundred and forty-three athletes representing 24 teams east of the Mississippi River — including a 12-man North Carolina contingent — are in the opening round of the eastern Olympic Boxing Trials here.

The trials started today at Cumberland County Memorial Arena and competition in 12 weight classes will run through Saturday's championship bouts. The amateur matches consist of three, 3-minute rounds.

The Western Olympic Boxing Trials are being held simultaneously in Houston.

Twelve bouts were scheduled this afternoon, with 12 more tonight. Friday's quarterfinals start at 1 p.m. and semifinals start Friday night. The championship bouts will begin Saturday at 7 p.m.

The 12 East region winners advance to Concord, Calif., and will be among eight competitors in each weight class vying in the U.S. Olympic Trials July 5-10. The Olympic Boxing team roster — to represent the United States in September at Seoul, South Korea — will then be determined at a July 16-17 Olympic Box-Off in Las Vegas, Nev.

Other North Carolina boxers include Fort Bragg's Nathaniel Greene (106 pounds, record not available), James Leak (139, with a 41-5 record) and Nathaniel Fitch (201-plus, 150-25 record), and Johnny McQueen (119) and James Mason (156) of the Scotland County Boxing Club in Laurinburg. Rounding out the squad are Jessie Thompson (112) and Johnny Johnson (178) of Wilmington, Derrick Little (125) of Greensboro, Ricky Bynum (147) and J.R. Lockhart of Charlotte, and Gregory Terry (165) of Camp Lejeune.

Other top-name boxers in the East Trials include 1987 U.S. Amateur and Olympic Festival, middleweight champion Darin Allen of Columbus, Ohio; heavyweight Michael Bent from Cambria Heights, N.Y.; and light welterweight Arthur Martinez of Trinidad, Col., a three-time U.S. Marines champion from 1985-87.

Earnhardt In NASCAR Points Lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt will take a 71-point lead in NASCAR points standings into Sunday's 500-mile stock car race at Dover Downs International Speedway in Delaware.

Earnhardt, two-time defending champion of the Winston Cup, maintained his slight lead over Rusty Wallace after Sunday's 600-miler at Charlotte Motor Speedway in North Carolina.

He has accumulated 1,506 points through the first 10 races of the 29-event season, while Wallace has 1,435. Sterling Marlin is third with 1,409, followed by Terry Labonte, 1,400; Bill Elliott, 1,386; Bobby Allison, 1,377; Ken Schrader, 1,328; Bobby Hillin, 1,275, and Geoff Bodine, 1,271.

Darrell Waltrip, Sunday's winner in Charlotte, is 10th in the Winston Cup standings with 1,264 points. His victory has his first of the season and made him the eighth different winner this year.

Labonte leads the circuit in money-winnings with $440,510, followed by Earnhardt ($401,845); Allison ($376,990); Davey Allison ($376,450); Waltrip ($298,810); Wallace ($272,605); Elliott ($259,525); Marlin ($253,275); Phil Parsons ($236,015); and Neil Bonnett ($235,235).

Ken Bouchard of Fitchburg, Mass., heads the rookie-of-the-year standings with 89 rookie points to the 69 of second-place Ernie Irvan of Modesto, Calif.

The NASCAR Winston Cup teams arrive at Dover Friday for Busch Pole qualifying sessions. The 40-car field will be set in final qualifying sessions Saturday for the Sunday run, scheduled to begin at 12:10 p.m. (EDT) Sunday. The race will be sponsored by Budweiser.

Rams Down Jackets, 5-3

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Tommy Eason and Walt McKeel each cracked home runs to help lift Greene Central past Roanoke Rapids in the third round of the State 2A Baseball Playoffs Tuesday night, 5-3.

The win sets up a meeting between the Rams and nationally ranked South Brunswick on Friday. The Cougars are 26-0 after a 7-2 win over East Bladen Tuesday night. Greene Central brings in a 22-1 record, having lost only to Eastern 4A finalist Greenville Rose.

That game will be played at South Brunswick, but the time has not been set as yet.

The Rams struck first in the opening inning, scoring a single run. T.J. Johnson singled and Anthony Jones walked. Eason's fly out moved Johnson to third and he scored on Shay Beaman's single.

Greene Central came back with one in the second. Jeff Tyson walked and moved to second on an error. Johnson followed with a run-scoring single.

Roanoke Rapids got into the action in the bottom of the second, scoring three times to take a 3-2 lead but the Rams erased that in the third, as Eason hit a solo homer, his 12th of the season.

It remained tied until the sixth when McKeel also hit a solo homer, giving the Rams the lead once more, 4-3.

The final Greene Central run crossed in the seventh. Johnson singled and was sacrificed up. Eason's ground ball was then errored, allowing Johnson to come around.

Richie Britt went the distance for the Rams, allowing only four hits while striking out 12. Johnson led the Ram hitting, going three for four.

Kemper Perfect For Kite's Game

POTOMAC, Md. (AP) — Tom Kite won't win many long-driving contests, but his brand of golf is perfect for the $800,000 Kemper Open, where strategy and guile are more valuable than brute strength.

The Kemper, which is to be played Thursday through Sunday, will be played at the par-71 Tournament Players Course at Avenel, where the premium is on accuracy rather than distance.

"This golf course has so much balance," said Kite, who last year shot a 14-under-par 270 to win by seven strokes. "Some holes you have to attack, others you have to be more cautious ... it's a bit like a chess match."

Kite finished last among 11 golfers Tuesday in a driving competition, 68 yards behind winner Dan Pohl. But the bespectacled veteran, who stands an unassuming 5-foot-8 and weighs 155 pounds, knows he has a good chance of having the last laugh after the 72nd hole on Sunday.

Lady Rams Win; Valkyries Bow

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's girls' softball team used a three-run homer by Audrey Thomas to vault into the Eastern finals of the 2A State Softball Playoffs Tuesday, defeating South Granville, 7-4.

South Granville jumped into a 1-0 lead in the first inning but Greene Central came back to take the lead with four runs in the second.

Thomas led off with second with a single and Angel Harrell also got a hit. Successive hits by Tomeka Blackman, Tomeka Grant and Shanana Dunn brought in a run each. Missy Poole then reached on an error, allowing Grant to score the fourth run.

The Lady Rams put it away in the third with three more, taking a 7-1 lead. Chanel Hooker reached on a fielder's choice and Kristina Warren singled. Thomas then cracked a three-run homer.

South Granville rallied for three in the sixth, but fell short.

Laticia Warren, Thomas, Harrell and Grant each had two hits to lead the Greene Central attack. Morgan and Gooch each had two for South Granville.

The Lady Rams advance to 21-5 on the year. Greene Central will now travel to Southern Alamance, an 18-8 victor over Southern Guilford, to decide the eastern championship.

The date and time of the game have yet to be decided.

HOLLYWOOD — Connie Small had two hits to lead Southern Durham past D.H. Conley, 6-2, in the Eastern 3A State Semifinals Tuesday.

Conley went ahead 1-0 after the first when Nikki Adams led off with a base hit and went to second on an error. With one out, Tabitha Daughton singled to put runners on the corners. Charlene Davenport then drove in Adams with a sacrifice fly.

But Southern Durham scored one run in the second, one run in the fourth and four more in the fifth to go ahead 6-1.

Conley narrowed the gap to 6-2 with a run in the fifth. With two outs, Lori Boyd reached off an error. Donna Jones, pinch running for Boyd, went to third on a single by Gayle Cash. Beth McGhee followed by hitting into a fielder's choice that scored Jones. Daughton and Cash had two hits to lead Conley.

Conley closes out the year at 16-7.

Patrick then walked Bryant and gave up a single to right by Gary Philpot. Philpot's shot was misjudged by Wilder in right, allowing both runners to score tying the game at 3-3.

The Vikings managed to forge ahead 4-3 in the top of the sixth. Mills led off the inning with a walk and later advanced off of a single to left by Barnhill. Patrick then delivered a two-out, run-scoring infield single to put Conley ahead.

The lead was short-lived, however, as in the bottom of the frame, Conley once again recorded the first two outs on the Spartans batters before giving up a pair of runs.

With two outs, Dale Byrd was walked to keep the inning going. Consecutive singles by Husketh, Ernie Jackson and Phipps brought in the two runs for Southern and helped secure the win.

From there, Southern pitcher Mark Chamberlain, 9-3 for the season, did the rest as he set the Vikings down in order in the seventh except for a single by Kervin Vines.

"We just made some key mistakes that proved to be the difference in the game," Wilson said. "They hit the ball and made the plays when it counted and we didn't."

"We've had a good year though and we accomplished a lot after we overcame a slow start at the beginning of the season," Wilson said. "A couple of pitches here and a break or two there and we are in the Eastern finals."

The Spartans will advance to the Eastern finals to meet the winner of the South Alamance-Northeast Guilford winner for the right to play in the state championship.

The Road Is Not Kind In Playoffs

By Scott Ostler
(c) 1988, Los Angeles Times
INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Many questions were asked in Tuesday night's Lakers-Mavericks playoff game, and some of them were even answered. Such as:
Why can't teams play on the road?
The Mavs look sensational in both games in Dallas. Tuesday night at the Forum they looked like a slow jackrabbit on the fast lane of the Interstate. What gives?
Who knows? This is the National Schitzo League, that's the only explanation. In Dallas, the Lakers are lucky to run off two points at a time. At home they run off 15 in the first quarter to blow the game open.
Both courts are made of hardwood.

It's not like this is golf, where you're not sure where the sand and doglegs are. Or baseball, where the home team can water down the baselines. Asked this question, Magic Johnson said, "You carry out your game plan a lot better at home than you do on the road."
Actually, what happened to the Mavericks was that when they flew into Los Angeles, the airline lost their game plan. A report was filed, a tracer put on it. The airline finally found a game plan and rushed it to the Forum at halftime, but it turned out to be the Philadelphia Phillies' game plan.
In the huddle, Mark Aguirre was overheard asking John MacLeod,

"Whattaya mean, 'Take two and hit to right?'"
Mychal Thompson explained the Lakers' attitude in this game.
"We just went out and played real forcefully," Thompson said. "We played like a wife's divorce lawyer — We went after everything."
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, commenting on the home-court advantage, said, "Both teams have played much better at home, at least it appears so in this series."
Kareem also noticed that the Laker Girls are female.

ericks were still out on the court, looking for those basketballs.
Magic was at his friskiest. He was the top dog, big cheese, main man, leader of the band, head honcho, top banana. You get the idea.
In some games lately, Magic barely gets over midcourt on the fast break before trying to unload a pass. Tuesday he was driving the ball to the key, and beyond, where he causes real hernia-type problems for the defense.
In the postgame press conference, someone actually asked Magic, "About the groin injury, Magic. Where is it?"
That reporter was given a free copy of Gray's Anatomy and a trophy for Question of the Night.
"It's there," Magic replied, not using a pointer.

Adam's apple. It looked like Pedro Guerrero going after a hanging curve.
Scott took a divot out of the floor with his cheek.
Perkins got off easy. He was given a personal foul and an ice hockey contract.
Magic said this little move woke the Lakers up. How do you thank a team for waking you up? Michael Cooper found a way in the second quarter when he body-slammed Derek Harper on a drive to the hoop with another neck hold you won't find illustrated in the Boy Scout Handbook.
Cooper jumped right up and grinned in Harper's face, just to show Derek there were no hard feelings. Uh huh.
As Mychal Thompson explained, "As they say in the Twilight Zone, you gotta expect the unexpected."
Such as that quote.

can't carry his team every night. He'd get a hernia.
This time A.C. Green outplayed the Tarp. Averaging 6.3 rebounds a game in this series, A.C. garnered 10 caroms and tallied 16 markers.
And, once again Green outglared the entire Dallas team. A.C.'s stare makes Jack Nicholson nervous.
What will happen Thursday night in the pivotal Game 6, back down there at Dallas?
Either the Lakers will get run off the court, as they were in Games 3 and 4, embarrassed to death in front of unfriendly and unsympathetic yahoos cowboy, or they'll play like a team trying to reach the NBA finals and defend their honor, their title and Michael Cooper's WWF heavyweight championship belt.

Celts Are Hoping To Break Pattern

BOSTON (AP) — Kevin McHale doesn't think Boston's recent play gives any indication of how it will play tonight against Detroit. For the Celtics' sake, he better be right.
Three of their last four NBA playoff victories weren't assured until the last play. The other was nailed down in the final 10 seconds.
The Celtics edged Atlanta by two points in both the sixth and seventh games of the Eastern Conference semifinals. Then they beat the Pistons by four points in double overtime and by one point in the first playoff game in 32 years in which the winner had fewer than 80 points.
"Most people say we eked them out," Boston guard Dennis Johnson said. "We earned the victories. Ours just happened to come by less points than theirs, but we still earned them."
Monday's 79-78 victory in Pontiac, Mich., tied the best-of-seven conference final at 2-2 and returned the homecourt advantage to the Celtics.
The fifth game is scheduled for tonight in Boston. Game 6 will be Friday night at the Pontiac Silverdome. The Celtics would be home again Sunday if a seventh game is needed.

"Every game is a game unto itself," McHale said Tuesday. "I don't think you can look back on the last game and say that has any bearing on the next game."
McHale, who led the NBA in field goal percentage, made five of 12 shots Monday while the Celtics, who also led the league in that category, hit only 40 percent of their shots. The Pistons were even worse. They made 33.3 percent of their field goal attempts and missed 20 straight in the first half.
Detroit scored just 10 points in the first and fourth quarters.
"It's been a long time since I played in a game where (a team) only scored 20 points in two quarters," McHale said. "But my philosophy, as always: Better than them."
Despite careless ballhandling and poor shooting throughout the series, Boston has managed to play well enough down the stretch to win.
"We have a knack for maybe scraping out some wins," McHale said. "We've won a few games that maybe we shouldn't win."
He wouldn't mind a little more breathing room.
"We don't have many blowouts," he added. "I wish we had more blowouts."
"We're pretty happy with being 2-2 right now," Boston forward Larry Bird said, "because we don't feel we've played a good game yet."
Like the Celtics, the Pistons also have made their own lives difficult. Detroit, which had won its previous nine games at home against the Celtics, could have been a victory away from the championship round if it extended that streak Monday.
Now it must go into Boston Garden, where it lost 21 consecutive games before winning the series opener.
"We have to do it the hard way," Detroit forward John Salley said. "We could have done it the easy way. Our main objective was to take care of the home territory and we messed up."

Worthy...

"We deviated from our game plan in Dallas and got beat," Johnson said. "But we stuck to our game plan this time."
"We got outside on their shooters, and that helped get our running game working."
"They just outran us," Dallas coach John MacLeod said. "Kareem acted like a 20-year-old, 6-foot guard. He ran the floor extremely well and was the catalyst for them."
"The Lakers were definitely more intense," Harper said. "They were clearly trying to set a more aggressive tempo. At Dallas we were more aggressive, in this game they were more aggressive."
"We'll just have to regroup and hope our homecourt can shift our game up a notch like theirs was lifted."

Allen's Relief Work Keys Win

Throttles Oakland

Veteran righthander Neil Allen, taking up after starter Al Leiter was hit and injured on his first pitch, shutdown Oakland with a 5-0, two-hitter Tuesday night at Oakland. The first hit was charged against Leiter who was taken to the hospital where X-rays proved negative. (AP Laserphoto)

AP Baseball Writer

A chance to relieve may have given Neil Allen a new start with the New York Yankees.

Allen, forced into the game because of an injury, held Oakland to three hits for nine innings Tuesday night as the Yankees won 5-0. New York ended the Athletics' six-game winning streak in a meeting of American League division leaders.

Al Leiter started for New York, but Carney Lansford led off with a liner back to the mound. The ball glanced off Leiter's left forearm in an infield hit and put him out of the game.

"They told me I was going to be the long relief man. They didn't tell me I'd have to start the game, too," Allen said.

Allen, a starter-turned-reliever, went the other direction and retired the next 19 batters. He finished and was credited with a shutout because of baseball rule 10.19 (f), which makes a provision for relievers who enter before any outs are recorded.

In the most famous example of the rule's application, reliever Ernie Shore of the Boston Red Sox was credited with a perfect game on June 23, 1917, against Washington. Starter Babe Ruth walked the leadoff hitter and was ejected; Shore came in, the runner was caught stealing and he got the last 26 batters.

Elsewhere, Toronto routed Milwaukee 9-0, Kansas City defeated Cleveland 6-3 in 10 innings, Chicago trounced Detroit 10-1, Minnesota rallied past Texas 8-6, Boston held off California 4-3 and Baltimore beat Seattle 12-5.

Allen, 2-0, had pitched 2-2-3 innings two days earlier in his fourth relief outing of the season. He began the year on the disabled list because of a rib cage injury.

The Yankees, whose 33-16 record is second-best in the league to Oakland's 35-15, have been hurt by injuries to their pitchers all season. Rick Rhoden and John Candelaria have missed time and Ron Guidry, who started the season on the disabled list, was put back there Tuesday.

Allen, though, provided excellent relief for one day.

"I knew that Allen, with his breaking ball, could do a good job against this club. I told Charles Hudson to go get his shoes on, because if Allen ran out of gas, I would have used him in relief and started Tommy John instead of Hudson on Wednesday," Yankees manager Billy Martin said.

Allen walked none and struck out five in his first shutout since July 20, 1986, while with the Chicago White Sox against the Yankees.

"I'm not surprised by what he did tonight. He won seven games for me at Chicago," said Oakland manager Tony La Russa, a former White Sox manager.

Dave Winfield, leading the majors with 48 RBI, hit a two-run double in the sixth off Steve Ontiveros, 3-2, and a run-scoring single in the eighth against Todd Burns. Mike Pagliarulo hit a solo homer, his eighth.

Lansford, the top batter in the majors, extended his hitting streak to 17 games with his single off Leiter. X-rays on Leiter were negative and he is not expected to miss his next start.

Blue Jays 9, Brewers 0
Dave Stieb pitched a one-hitter and completed the most brilliant month of his career as Toronto beat visiting Milwaukee.

Stieb allowed only runner — a fourth-inning single, by B.J. Surhoff. He struck out out five.

Stieb won his sixth straight decision. He was 6-0 with a 2.34 ERA in May.

The one-hitter was the first for Stieb and the fifth in the Blue Jays' history. No Toronto pitcher has ever thrown a no-hitter.

Stieb pitched his first shutout since last July 10 and his second complete game of the season. He beat the Brewers for the second time in 10 days after going 0-4 against them last season.

Tony Fernandez hit a two-run double during a six-run second-inning off Chris Bosio, 6-6.

Royals 6, Indians 3
Willie Wilson drove in three runs with three hits and scored the tiebreaking run in the 10th inning on Bill Buckner's sacrifice fly as Kansas City won in Cleveland.

Scotti Madison and Jamie Quirk followed Buckner with RBI singles.

Mark Gubicza, 6-5, gave up three runs in nine innings. Steve Farr got the final two outs for his third save. Dan Schatzeder, 0-2, took the loss.

Kurt Stillwell and Wilson opened the game with doubles. Wilson hit a two-run single in the seventh for a 3-3 tie.

Twins 8, Rangers 6
Dan Gladden went 4-for-5 with three doubles and scored the tiebreaking run on Steve Lombardozzi's single in the sixth inning as Minnesota defeated Texas at the Metrodome.

Greg Gagne hit a two-run homer in the sixth off Jose Cecena that made it 6-6. Gladden followed with a single against Dale Mohorcic, 2-2, stole second and Lombardozzi singled.

The Rangers were leading 6-1 in the fourth when pitcher Paul Kilgus was ejected for arguing a balk. Minnesota went on to score three times in the inning.

Juan Berenguer, 5-3, got the victory and Jeff Reardon earned his 13th save, seven in the last nine games.

White Sox 10, Tigers 1
Gary Redus hit a grand slam, Ron Karkovice had a three-run homer and Ivan Calderon connected for a two-run shot that led Chicago at Tiger Stadium.

Jerry Reuss, 3-2, shut out Detroit on six hits for seven innings. Pat Sheridan homered off Bill Long in the ninth.

Frank Tanana, 8-3, was shelved for seven runs in 12-3 innings. Calderon homered in the first and Redus' first career slam came in a five-run second.

Red Sox 4, Angels 3
Mike Smithson shut out California for seven innings and Boston held on to win in Anaheim.

Smithson, 1-1, gave up five hits and walked none. It was his first victory since last June 23 for Minnesota.

The Angels scored three times in the eighth against Lee Smith. Jack Howell's sacrifice fly made it 4-3, but George Hendrick popped up to end the inning with the tying run on third.

Willie Fraser, 4-4, took the loss. Marty Barrett and Todd Benzingher hit RBI doubles.

Orioles 12, Mariners 5
Cal Ripken, Fred Lynn and Rene Gonzalez homered in the seventh inning and Baltimore got a season-high 16 hits in routing Seattle.

CHICOD — The Chicod Hornets rolled up an 11-1 victory over the Pactolus Wildcats in the Southern Pitt Little League Tuesday night.

Todd Bess tossed the win for the Hornets, going the distance.

Chicod was paced by Scott Hardy with two doubles and three RBI, Jody Paramore and Jamie Vincent, each with two-run triples, John Carden and Brian Summerlin with a two-run homer and Bess with a two-run double.

The Wildcats got only one hit, that by Donte Willis, who drove in the only run.

Bethel Phillies..... 17

Grifton Red & White.... 6

BETHEL — The Bethel Phillies raced to a 17-6 victory over Grifton Red & White in the Southern Pitt Little League.

Bethel was led by William Stith with four hits, two of them homers and one of those a grand-slam. T.J. Howard added three hits, including two triples, while Terrell Wilkins and Earl Hines each had two hits. Grifton was led by D. Moore with two, one a triple.

Howard got the win, coming in on relief.

Little League

Optimists..... 9

Eveready..... 4

Kevin Kirkland and Lance Clark each picked up two hits as the Optimists defeated Eveready, 9-4, in the North State Little League Tuesday.

The Optimists pushed over four runs in the top of the first to take the lead. Eveready came back with two in its half of the frame, closing it to 4-2.

Then, in the third, the Optimists scored three times to put the game away. With one out, Sean Gordon singled and moved up on a wild pitch. He scored on Clark's single. Clark moved up on a passed ball and took third when Jearl Powell reached on an error. Powell stole second and a passed ball let Clark score and moved Powell to third. He then came home on an error on a pickoff try.

The Optimists added their final two in the sixth. Eveready scored its final two in the bottom of the third.

Chris Grover, Scott Burrows and Jeremy Gonzalez each had two hits to pace Eveready.

Wellcome..... 10

Pepsi-Cola..... 4

J.P. DeVoe got three hits, one of them a three-run homer to spark Wellcome to a 10-4 victory over Pepsi-Cola in the Tar Heel Little League Tuesday.

Wellcome scored four times in the first inning, including DeVoe's inside-the-park homer that accounted for three of those runs.

Two more in the third made it 6-0, a lead Pepsi could not overcome. DeVoe opened with a single and moved up on an error. He scored on Jason Tetterton's single. Greg Hilton singled, but Tetterton was thrown out going to third. Hilton moved up on a wild pitch and scored on Kevin Paramore's single.

Wellcome added four more in the fourth while Pepsi picked up one in the fourth and two in the fifth.

Tetterton added two hits for Wellcome while David Wilborne had two to lead Pepsi.

Braves Power Past Pittsburgh

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The power went off in Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium shortly after it came on for the Atlanta Braves.

Responding to a chewing-out by Manager Russ Nixon following Monday's 14-2 loss to Pittsburgh, the Braves rapped out 17 hits and walloped the Pirates 11-1 Tuesday night.

"These guys are capable of hitting," said Nixon, who replaced the fired Chuck Tanner 10 days ago. "There's no reason why they can't come out of it. One guy gets it started and the rest of them fall in there."

Other unexpected power came from Ozzie Smith, whose first homer since the 1985 National League playoffs led St. Louis over Houston 9-7; rookie Kevin Elster, whose 11th-inning homer gave New York a 5-4 triumph over Los Angeles, and Robby Thompson, whose first homer of the season helped San Francisco defeat Montreal 9-2.

In other NL games, Chicago blanked Cincinnati 4-0 and San Diego shut out Philadelphia 8-0.

There was no word on whether the Braves' unaccustomed offense was responsible for a power failure in the eighth inning that knocked out half the stadium lights for 15 minutes. But Ken Oberkfell said Nixon's eruption helped the Braves come out of their hitting doldrums.

"Everybody did a lot of soul searching," said Oberkfell, who had four hits. "He's not going to let us play like we did (Monday) and get away with it. No one wanted to come in and get yelled at, but we needed that."

Gerald Perry drove in three runs, Dion James and Bruce Benedict added

two-run singles, rookie Ron Gant hit his third home run of the season and Dale Murphy had three hits. Meanwhile, rookie Tom Glavine held Pittsburgh to four hits in eight innings and Atlanta tagged loser Mike Dunne for six runs and seven hits in 1-3 innings.

Mets 5, Dodgers 4

With two out in the 11th, Elster got exactly what he expected — a fastball from Alejandro Pena. He promptly hit it into the left-field bullpen, enabling the Mets to beat the Dodgers for the fifth time in as many meetings.

"As I walked up to the plate I was looking for a fastball on his very first pitch," said Elster, who entered the game as a defensive replacement in the eighth inning. "I told myself to swing for a home run and you saw what happened — I got it."

Los Angeles' Kirk Gibson tied the score 2-2 with a leadoff homer off Dwight Gooden in the ninth inning and the Dodgers took a 4-2 lead in the 10th. The Mets took Gooden off the hook by tying it against Jay Howell in their half of the 10th on RBI singles by Wally Backman and Keith Hernandez. Backman also had a two-run single off Don Sutton in the fifth.

Gooden gave up the four Los Angeles runs and seven hits in 9 1-3 innings. It marked the first time he pitched into extra innings in regular-season play.

Cardinals 9, Astros 7

Smith's last home run was his dramatic, three-run ninth-inning shot off the Dodgers' Tom Niedenfuer in Game 5 of the 1985 playoffs. This time, he hit a three-run shot off Bob Knepper to cap a five-run fourth inning after St. Louis had taken a 3-2 lead on a two-out throwing error by third baseman Chuck Jackson that allowed two runs to score.

The Cardinals' first six runs were unearned, the result of three errors, as they ended the previously unbeaten Knepper's career-high six-game winning streak.

Tom Pagnozzi had a pair of RBI singles for St. Louis and Tom Brunansky drove in two runs with a single and his seventh homer. For Houston, Alex Trevino had a two-run double and Billy Hatcher hit a two-run homer, both off winner Larry McWilliams.

"Tonight, when I came to the park, all I wanted to do was hit the ball hard," Smith said after the 13th regular-season homer of his 11-year career. "Even if I went 0-for-4 I'd have been satisfied because I haven't hit the ball hard in three months."

Cubs 4, Reds 0

Jeff Pico pitched a four-hit shutout in his major-league debut and Andre Dawson homered. Pico, a 22-year-old right-hander brought up from Iowa — where he had a 5-2 record and 2.24 ERA — to help Cubs' injury-riddled pitching staff, didn't walk a batter and struck out six.

Dawson hit his 11th homer in the first inning off Mario Soto. Rookie Mark Grace opened the second with a double and scored on a single by Vance Law. Law scored on a double by Shawon Dunston. The Cubs added an insurance run in the seventh on singles by Grace, Law and Dunston.

"I was nervous. This is happiness. I'm thrilled," Pico said. "Yes, I'm a little stunned. That's the best I've pitched all season. Being excited helped carry me through and getting those runs early helped."

"When we had a 3-0 lead I told myself this is not the time to get behind the hitters. I'm not a power pitcher. I need good control. I try to hit the spots. I mixed up my pitches well and tried to keep everything down."

The loss was the fourth straight and sixth in the last seven games for the Reds, who get back Manager Pete Rose — who completed his 30-day suspension for bumping umpire Dave Pallone on April 30 — tonight.

Giants 9, Expos 2

Thompson's three-run homer capped a four-run sixth inning and Rick Reuschel scattered eight hits over seven innings for his seventh victory as San Francisco ended a four-game losing streak.

The Giants took a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning off Bryn Smith. Thompson led off with a single and scored on Will Clark's double. Clark scored on a single by Jeffrey Leonard.

In the fifth, Chris Speier was safe on an error by third baseman Tom Foley and took second on a single by Bob Melvin, who ended an 0-for-16 slump. After Reuschel's sacrifice, Brett Butler singled Speier home and Thompson homered.

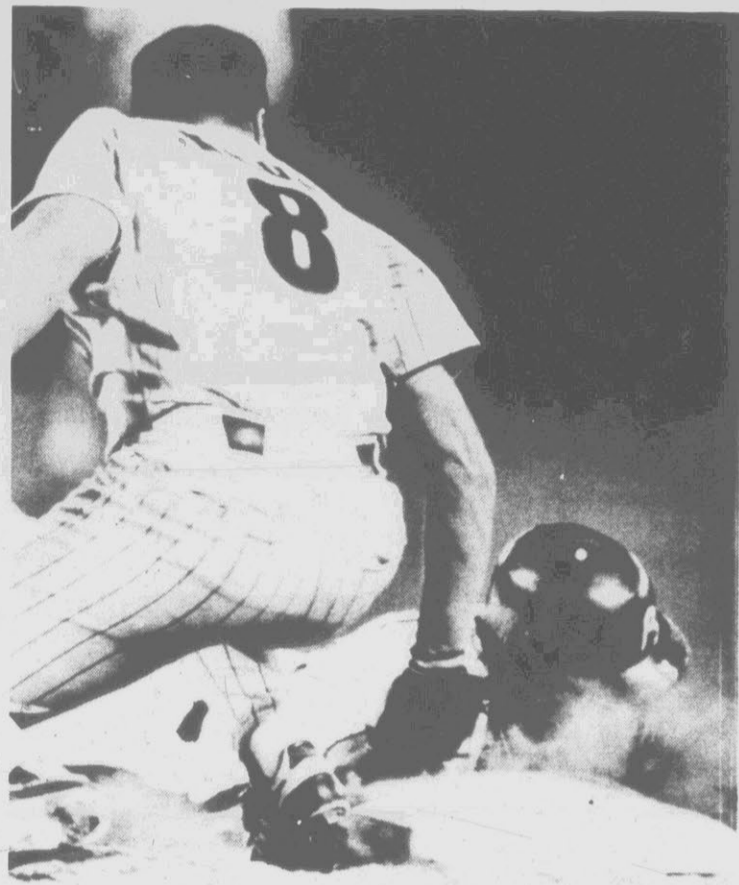

Leonard hit his second home run of the season off Bob McClure in the eighth and Candy Maldonado doubled home two runs in the ninth.

Padres 8, Phillies 0

Andy Hawkins pitched a four-hitter and Marvell Wynne had four hits, three of which started scoring innings, as San Diego snapped Philadelphia's four-game winning streak. Hawkins struck out two and walked two in pitching his second shutout of the season. Loser David Palmer gave up five runs and seven hits in five innings.

San Diego took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on a double by Wynne, Roberto Alomar's sacrifice and a sacrifice fly by Tony Gwynn, who drove in three runs. The Padres made it 3-0 in the third on singles by Wynne and Alomar, Gwynn's RBI double and Keith Moreland's single.

Wynne started a two-run fifth with another single and doubled a run home in the eighth.

Lendl's Precision Pays Off With Win Over McEnroe

PARIS (AP) — Ivan Lendl, matching cool precision against John McEnroe's display of fiery brilliance, won their rain-delayed fourth round match today at the French Open 6-7, 7-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Lendl, the defending champion and top seed, earned a berth in the quarterfinals, where he will meet Jonas B. Svensson of Sweden.

The 16th-seeded McEnroe served vigorously and rushed the net at every chance, but Lendl moved him back with pinpoint lobs, or whipped passing shots around the charging American, landing them within inches of the lines.

"I thought I played well," McEnroe said. "That's how I have to play against him if I'm going to have a chance to beat him, especially on a surface like this."

Lendl said McEnroe, who is trying a comeback, had returned to the top of his game, especially at the beginning of the match, but seemed to tire before the match was suspended for darkness Tuesday night.

"I don't think he can play much better than he did in the first two sets," Lendl said. "If we played four or five sets in a row, could he last? I don't know that."

In the crucial seventh game of the fourth set, with the score tied at 3-3 and McEnroe serving, Lendl won with two perfect lobs and a scorching passing return of serve on break point.

Both players held serve for the remainder of the match, with Lendl losing just one point when serving in the final set, and none when serving the final game.

"I was very lucky, I hit three good shots," Lendl said. "I was fortunate to play well at that stage."

McEnroe said he thought Lendl hit at least a dozen shots directly on the white lines in the final set.

"I've never seen a guy hit so many lines," McEnroe said. "It's better to be lucky and good. He's good and he got lucky."

McEnroe also criticized the officiating, saying the last two points in the second-set tiebreaker were taken from him by bad line calls. In the second case, he said chair umpire Richard Kaufmann should have come down to inspect the ball mark himself.

"At least he could have showed me his mark," McEnroe said.

Lendl agreed that the calls against McEnroe may have been wrong, but described it as the breaks of the game.

"That happens. Sometimes you get good calls on a big point, sometimes you get bad calls on a big point," Lendl said. "It's unfortunate, but it happens. I wish there were only accurate calls in tennis."

The center-court crowd at Roland Garros stadium was solidly behind McEnroe, chanting his name and cheering wildly at his best shots.

Even in defeat, McEnroe was applauded warmly, and he nodded to acknowledge the cheers. The fans whistled in derision as the unpopular Lendl walked off the court after his victory.

The match, which began Tuesday afternoon, was halted once by rain and then suspended for the night at 9:22 p.m. The stop in play came about when McEnroe, trailing 6-7, 7-6, 4-2, raved against the failing light.

"Maybe we can get balls that glow in the dark so we can see them better," he said to Kaufmann.

Play was evenly matched in the first sets, with McEnroe winning the first tiebreak 7-3 and Lendl taking the second by the same score.

Ranked just 18th in the world now but trying to regain the No. 1 spot he once held, the 29-year-old McEnroe sparked with blistering serves and agile dashes to the net. Lendl was just as sharp, whipping graceful and accurate passing shots around the oncoming American.

McEnroe was also in full voice, shouting at himself when he made mistakes and blasting Kaufmann over line calls and playing conditions.

"I'm not going to play on," he said early in the match, complaining that rain was making the clay surface too slippery. "Why should I continue to play in these conditions?"

At that point, play was suspended until the rain cleared.

Late Tuesday night, Andrei Chesnakov of the Soviet Union defeated Wimbledon champion Pat Cash, the fourth-seed, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3 in another match hampered by rain and darkness.

"We shouldn't have been playing, but they were desperate to get the matches in," Cash said.

Cash, a hard-hitter who prefers fast surfaces, said he played well enough to win under normal conditions, but not in bad light on a soggy, slow court.

"It's the slowest court I've ever played on, that's for sure," he said. "I think this is the only tournament in the world where you have to play in the rain."

His smashes and volleys "just sat there for him, and he passed remarkably well," said Cash, who was seeded fourth.

Cash was tied 3-3 in the fourth set and up 40-0 on his serve when everything came apart. He lost five straight points and didn't win another game in the match.

"It was starting to get so dark, I was mistiming the ball," he said.

In women's quarterfinal matches Tuesday, fourth-seeded Gabriela Sabatini defeated Helen Kelesi of Canada 4-6, 6-1, 6-3, Nicole Provis of Australia beat Arantxa Sanchez of Spain 7-5, 3-6, 6-4 and Natalia Zvereva of the Soviet Union beat No. 6 Helena Sukova 6-2, 6-3.

That makes defending champion Steffi Graf — who will be 19 on June 14 — the oldest player in the women's semifinals. Provis and Sabatini are both 18; Zvereva is 17.

The men's matches did not engage all the controversy. The Sabatini-Kelesi match ended in an uproar, with charges of cheating and bad umpiring.

On the second-to-last point, with Kelesi serving at deuce, one of her forehands hit near the endline. Sabatini thought it was out, but when there was no call she hit a weak shot back, slammed for a winner by Kelesi.

When the umpire declared the score "Advantage Kelesi," Sabatini demanded a recheck of the ball mark. The line judge saw evidence the shot was out, and the score was reversed, giving Sabatini match point.

Kelesi argued furiously, but lost.

She returned in tears to the service line and lost the match, hitting a backhand into the net.

"I definitely think I was cheated," she said later, arguing that once Sabatini continued to play the point should not have been overturned. "There's no way that should have happened."

The match had started Monday and been suspended in the third set because of rain and darkness. The Cash-Chesnokov and Lendl-McEnroe matches also were supposed to be played Monday, but were put off by rain.

Rose then added two more runs in the fifth, courtesy of a two-run homer by Tom Moye, to go ahead for good. "Tim Moore, you have to talk about his day. The first homer set the tone for Timmy," said Rose coach Ronald Vincent. "That throw at the plate was a big play."

The win moved Rose to 25-0 on the year, but this one was a struggle. A late pitching change forced Vincent to go with his ace Moye on only three days rest. Luckily for the Rampants, they produced 12 hits, including four home runs, to key the 10-6 win. And Moye battled through six-plus innings to earn the win. He struggled at times and was pulled briefly in the fifth in favor of Dallas McPherson. But Moye came back in two outs later to bail out a struggling McPherson. He struck out the final batter of the fifth and went on to keep runners out of scoring position in the sixth and seventh.

And as the playoffs go on, things figure to get progressively tougher, beginning with Friday's encounter with Richmond County for the Eastern Championship.

Going undefeated in the regular season is fine, but it is of little consequence now.

The memories of regular season romps are fading with each passing game. At this level, one bad inning can easily spell the end of the season.

"I think this game really set us up for what we're going to have to go through," Moore said. "We know we have to play our best for seven innings in order to win."

PUBLIC NOTICE STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT COMMISSION

POST OFFICE BOX 27487 RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA 27611-7487

NOTIFICATION OF INTENT TO ISSUE STATE NPDES PERMIT

Public notice of intent to issue to a State NPDES permit to the following:

1. NPDES No. NC0034151 Pitt County Schools, Ayden. Griffin County Schools, 1217 West Fifth Street, Greenville, N.C. 27834 has applied for a permit renewal. The facility discharges 21 of Chapter 143, General Statutes of North Carolina, Public Law 92-500 and other laws and standards and regulations. The North Carolina Environmental Management Commission proposes to issue a permit to discharge to the persons listed above effective July 16, 1988 and subject to special conditions.

Persons wishing to comment upon or object to the proposed determinations are invited to submit same in writing to the above address no later than July 15, 1988. All comments received prior to that date will be considered in the formulation of final action regarding the proposed permit. A public meeting may be held where the Director of the Division of Environmental Management finds a significant degree of public interest in the proposed permit. A copy of the draft permit is available by writing or calling the Division of Environmental Management, Archdale Building, Raleigh, NC 27611-7303, or by writing to the Director, 1424 Carolina Avenue, P.O. Box 1507, Washington, North Carolina 27815 (919) 946-6481.

The application and other information may be inspected at these locations during normal office hours. Copies of the information on file are available upon request and payment of the costs of reproduction. All such comments or requests regarding a proposed permit should make reference to the NPDES permit number listed above.

Fence Builder Loves The Job But Hates The Work

By DOUG WELLER

Hays Daily News
PARADISE, Kan. (AP) — Dan Hoisington loves the job he hates.

As a custom fence builder, Hoisington is his own boss, working outdoors at his own pace for some of the friendliest people he knows.

Problem is, he hates building fences.

"It's the most hated job on the farm," he says. "We don't like it any better, but we get paid to do it."

Hoisington flashes a wide grin and laughs at the irony.

His love-hate relationship is 10 years old and shows no signs of a breakup.

He works within a 70-mile radius from his home in Paradise, a tiny town near the Russell-Osborne county line, building new fences for ranchers or repairing fences stretched a hundred years ago.

It's steady work. Winter storms seldom keep him out of the field. If landowners had their way, he'd be working night and day to meet their schedules.

He admits most people are surprised he stays busy. "Jobs are around if people are willing to look under their noses and see what isn't being done," he said.

That's what Hoisington did when he decided working for someone else wasn't what he wanted out of life. He quit his job at a grain elevator and ventured out.

He once worked for a farmer who taught him fence building. "I hated every minute of it, but I knew I could do it," he said.

"The first day I was scared to death. I'd quit my job and I had one fencing job lined up and a wife and two kids at home to feed."

But his belief that most farmers and ranchers despise fence building proved true. One job led to another, and for most of the past decade, he and his crew of two men have had steady requests.

"We pick up a lot of jobs because people see what we build and like them," said Bill Peterson, who has worked with Hoisington for eight years.

Peterson said he doesn't like the work any better than Hoisington, and he should know better. He farms full time south of Alton in Osborne County. Rounding out the crew is rookie Gale Pruter of Natoma, who joined Hoisington last fall.

At least a third of their jobs involve rebuilding post rock fences, a chore they dislike even more than modern fence building. It's a job that's unavoidable, however, in the heart of post rock country.

One recent job, for example, was to rebuild 1½ miles of post rock fence southeast of Russell.

Most of the limestone fence posts are buried at least a foot deeper than they originally were set, a legacy of the Dust Bowl, and many slant sharply due to the force of gravity.

Hoisington uses a front-end loader to scrape away soil and then wraps a chain around the posts, raising the loader to pull the posts from the ground.

He uses the loader to move and lift the posts into new holes punched through layers of the same Greenhorn limestone from which settlers carved the posts.

Hoisington marvels at the skill and backbreaking labor it took to build the fences.

It took the Hoisington crew 2½ days to rebuild a half-mile section of post rock fence, and that, he said, was the easy part. The remaining half mile, which covered rugged terrain and crossed a small creek, took 4½ days.

"Normally I figure three days," Hoisington said, "but we had to jackhammer every hole." He estimated another half-mile stretch across the road would take as long.

Modern equipment makes the job considerably easier than in the late 1800s and early 1900s, when most of the post rock fences were constructed. A tractor-powered posthole driller and hydraulic jackhammer, tamping device and steel post driver eliminate much of the hand labor.

"But there's still a lot of labor involved," Hoisington said.

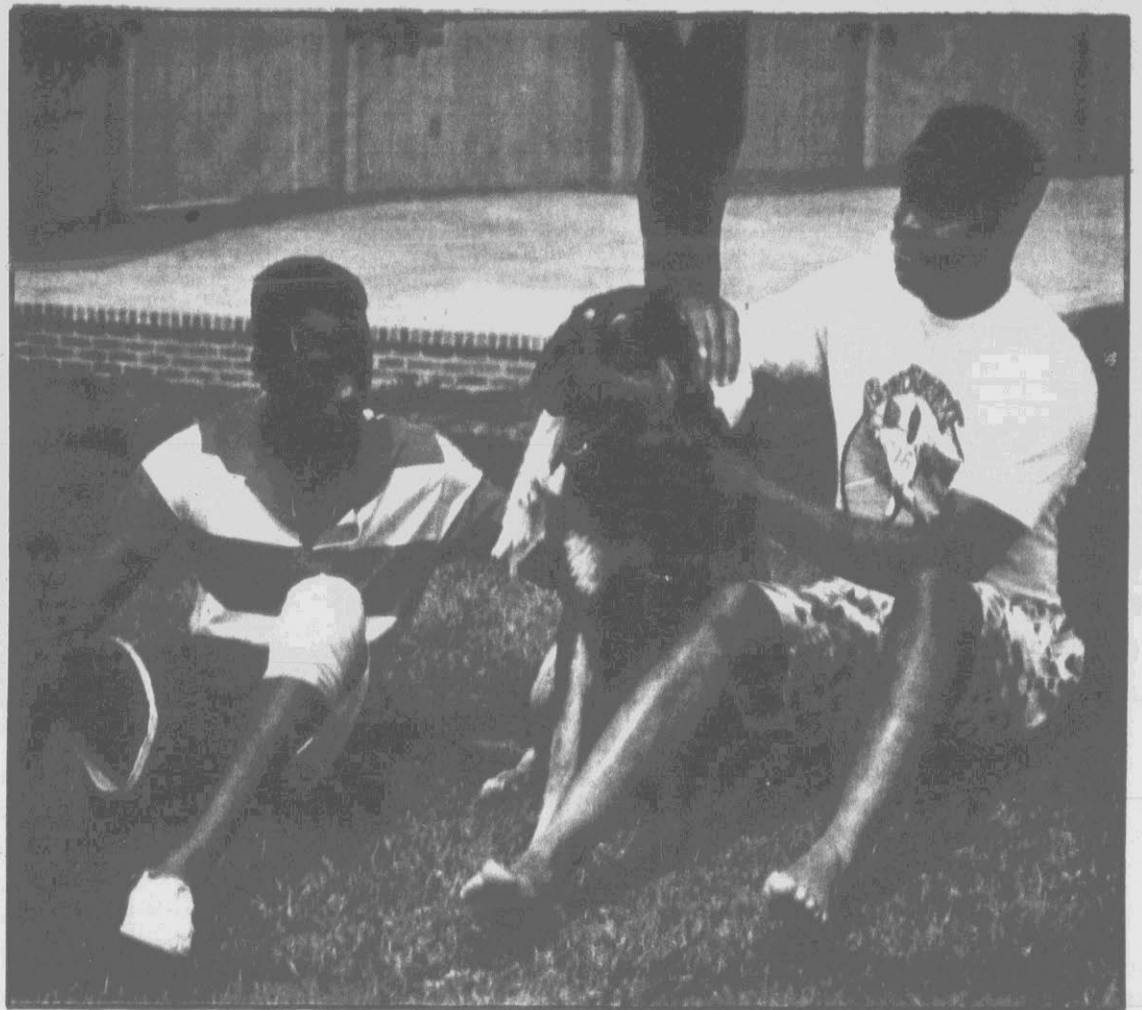

Hoisington figures the crew builds 25 miles of new fence a year.

"That doesn't sound like much," he admits, "but it's mainly in hilly terrain and rocky soil."

That's why Hoisington charges by the hour and not by the length of fence built. "Some fence builders charge by the rod or the foot, but you don't dare in Russell County ...," he said.

Despite the shortcomings of the job, Hoisington isn't interested in trading it for another.

"I work for some pretty good people," he said. "I like the freedom. I couldn't stand a job where someone was telling me what to do every minute."

Courthouse Statue Pays Tribute To One Of Man's 'Best Friends'

By CHARLES HILLINGER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WARRENSBURG, Mo. — To some, it was a relatively unimportant incident. To others, it was a heinous crime.

But for many pet lovers worldwide, a statue memorializing a dog named Old Drum has come to symbolize the special relationship between man and his dog.

The life-size statue of the black-and-tan hound sits on the courthouse lawn here, a tribute to faithful dogs everywhere.

Thirty years ago, thousands of people jammed the streets of Warrensburg for its dedication, and each year thousands more travel to this small college town to see the bronze statue.

Before he was killed Oct. 28, 1869, Old Drum had been the constant companion of farmer Charlie Burden, 45. It was Burden's brother-in-law and next-door neighbor, 40-year-old Leonidas Hornsby, who ordered a hired hand to shoot and kill Old Drum, claiming the dog was bothering his sheep.

Burden sued Hornsby for damages in four bitterly fought court trials. He first filed suit before a justice of the peace, but no decision was reached. At a second trial, Burden was awarded $25. Hornsby appealed and won, prompting Burden to sue again.

Old Drum was immortalized at the fourth trial held at the Old Johnson County Courthouse, located a mile from the modern-day courthouse. The historic courthouse, built in 1842, is now a shrine to Old Drum.

A dramatic production of the last Old Drum trial was first presented by the Central Missouri State College drama department. The story has since been dramatized on television and is included in books on Missouri's history.

The saga came to an end on Sept. 23, 1870, as a crowded courtroom listened intently to attorney George Graham Vest deliver his spontaneous final appeal. He said, in part: "The best friend a man has in this world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful.

"The one absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him and the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous is his dog.

"A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. When all other friends desert, he remains. He is as constant in his love as the sun in its journey through the heavens."

Within minutes, the jury returned a unanimous verdict in favor of Charlie Burden and awarded him $50 for the loss of his pet. Hornsby appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court, which upheld the verdict.

Vest went on to become a U.S. senator for 24 years. His law partner in the case, John F. Phillips, became a member of the House of Representatives and later a U.S. district judge.

Hornsby's attorneys also achieved fame. Thomas T. Crittendon became the governor of Missouri and his partner, Francis M. Cockrell, served as a U.S. senator for 30 years.

Young Actor Courting Success On 'L.A. Law'

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — After just one season on NBC's "L.A. Law," Blair Underwood has carved out a tidy niche for himself in the hit show's ensemble cast as brash, young attorney Jonathan Rollins. "I couldn't ask for anything better, and that's an understatement," said Underwood. "To be out of college three years and to have a job and working as an actor is part of it. And then working with scripts like the quality of 'L.A. Law.' I mean working with the cast.

"These actors, all of them, will give you something to play off of, and I think that shows on camera. And then the icing on the cake is that the public and critics alike enjoy the show."

Underwood, 23, was in town recently to pick up a belated fine arts degree from Carnegie Mellon University.

He joined the cast of the high-rated, Emmy-winning series last season as a sophisticated fresh out of Harvard Law whose mega-ambition occasionally pushes him across the lines of decorum and even ethics.

"He's been real well received," said Rick Wallace, the show's co-executive producer. "He seemed to fit in. There didn't seem to be any difficulty making him a part of the ensemble."

Underwood, looking very lawyerlike in a gold chain, striped shirt and pleated trousers, said that's one of the main differences between himself and the part he plays.

"The difference between someone like Jonathan Rollins and myself is Jonathan has a type of arrogance and extreme confidence in himself, and that's it. Period. I think it's a difference between that and having faith and confidence that you can accomplish what you believe in," he said.

His fast track to stardom is testimony to that kind of deep belief.

Inspired by his older brother's interest in acting, Underwood began performing at dinner theaters while in junior high school. He entered Carnegie Mellon's prestigious drama department in the fall of 1982 as a musical theater major, but dropped out midway through his junior year.

"At the time, money was kind of tight. Being independent like I am, I figured I might as well go out and try to make some money, just take the chance," he said.

Armed with publicity photos, Underwood went to New York in January 1985. His first Monday there, he called his former dance instructor in New Jersey, who set up a meeting that day with an agent.

The agent told Underwood she was looking for someone to play Denise's boyfriend on NBC's "The Cosby Show." Underwood auditioned and two days later got the part.

"Wednesday was my first full day living in New York and we're taping 'The Cosby Show' on Thursday," he said. "Friday was the big shock. Here I was, I had just done 'The Cosby Show.' Coming from that high, I said what do I do now? And that's when I started pounding the pavement, knocking on doors."

Underwood quickly landed roles in the rap film "Krush Groove" with Sheila E. and on the ABC soap opera "One Life to Live." In 1986, he was cast as a streetwise parolee in the CBS series "Downtown."

The show was canceled after 13 episodes and for the first time in his short career, Underwood was unemployed.

Underwood did a few guest shows, then auditioned last summer for "L.A. Law." The show's producers, including executive producer Stephen Bochco, a Carnegie Mellon alumnus, decided to add a black attorney to the cast at viewers' request.

"I don't feel as if he is window dressing because... they are creating a full, fleshed-out character (who) happens to be black," Underwood said. "As opposed to writing a black character who's going to say, 'Yo, Yo, Yo, we're gonna go to court now,' you know, stereotype."

With the role have come attention and fame, including being named by a popular magazine as one of America's sexiest bachelors.

His family strives through constant contact to keep him humble, however, said Underwood. Even though he lives in Los Angeles and his parents are in Petersburg, Va., they're on the phone almost daily.

Mary Hart Tries Showgirl Role

By ROBERT MACY
Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — When Mary Hart was growing up in Sioux Falls, S.D., her mother often worried about the future "Entertainment Tonight" host running away to become a showgirl.

Well, Mom, don't look now, but... The perky blonde, who taught high school English and piano while doing community theater and dreaming of a show business career, recently made her stage debut in Las Vegas.

With more bookings here and in Atlantic City, plus summer stock and music festivals this summer, Ms. Hart's ready to continue her dual professional role, although she'd just as soon skip those 18-hour days, juggling two careers in two cities.

Her grueling daily grind — shuttling between this city's Glitter Gulch for her long-awaited fling at singing and dancing, then back to a Hollywood "ET" set for more TV patter — gave new meaning to the concept of commuting to work.

Ms. Hart realized a lifelong dream when she spent two weeks appearing with comedian David Brenner at the Golden Nugget Hotel and Casino earlier this month.

But she admits she wouldn't care for a steady diet of the double duty.

"I performed at 8 and again at 11," she said. "Then I caught a 1 a.m. flight to Los Angeles, and hit the house about 2:45. I got up at 7:30 and was at Paramount (where "ET" is filmed) by 8 a.m. We did our promos and other spots, then began taping the show at 11:30 a.m. At 2:45 in the afternoon I was on a flight back to Vegas.

"Both worlds is not an ideal situation," she laughed as she relaxed between shows during her two-week engagement. "It's conceivable to do one show a night and commute for a short period of time."

In her show, Ms. Hart does several dance numbers and displays a surprisingly good singing voice. Her appearance and style are reminiscent of Ann-Margret when she was a Las Vegas headliner for years.

Ms. Hart's sexy legs — insured by Lloyd's of London for $2 million — are amply displayed in the Las Vegas show. The legs are a product of a lot of hard work, including a treadmill, rowing machine and Exercise at home, 25 miles of speed-walking a week, and aerobics and dance classes.

Ms. Hart admits to something of a Walter Mitty lifestyle since her days in South Dakota. She's been a finalist in the Miss America Pageant (1971), been a host of "ET" for five years, sparred with David Letterman, sung the National Anthem at Los Angeles Dodgers games, ridden with the Blue Angels flight team, danced on the Emmy awards show, injured one leg in a fall from the high wire on a "Circus of the Stars" performance and been co-host of the Tournament of Roses Parade coverage and the "Regis Philbin Show."

DENVER'S FIANCEE — Australian actress Cassandra Delaney, 25, and American country music star John Denver, 44, have announced plans to marry in June. The couple reportedly plans to wed at a secret location during Denver's scheduled tour of Australia. (AP Laserphoto)

Best-selling Writer Scores New Triumph

By JOAN FISCHER
Associated Press Writer

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Austrian best-selling writer Johannes Mario Simmel churns out the kind of pop novels West Germans love to read in secret.

His crime and romance tales have captivated the general public but horrified many highbrow critics and intellectuals. In the last 40 years they have called Simmel everything from a "cliche factory" to an "opium for the masses."

The popular author remains unruffled, however. His books have made him one of the world's best-selling German-language writers. More than 65 million copies of his novels have been sold around the world, appearing in 25 languages, including English.

His latest work, a thriller about gene technologists bent on world destruction, has been high on national best-seller lists since it hit the market last August.

The book is also selling well in France, Italy, Spain, the Netherlands, Yugoslavia and the Scandinavian countries, where Simmel has been popular for years.

"The only country where they have this terrible schoolteacher-type criticism of my work is West Germany," the 64-year-old Austrian said in an interview.

Notice from other countries include a Johannes Mario Simmel collection of the author's more than 20 works at the Boston University library.

Simmel's current best seller is "But With Clowns Came the Tears," which focuses on the AIDS epidemic and the dangers of gene technology. It was released by the Munich-based Droemer-Knaur Verlag publishing house and has not yet been scheduled for the United States.

In the book the superpowers are locked in a battle over genetic and viral manipulation techniques that could determine the fate of the world.

"Contemporary issues have always been the driving force of my work," Simmel said. "My novels are not really novels; they are a combination of fact and fiction."

"It would be a crime to just write fiction when there are so many horrible things happening in the world, important issues people should be made aware of."

In novels and screenplays Simmel has treated such themes as alcoholism (he is a recovered alcoholic), education of the psychologically disturbed and fascism and the Nazi period.

"I will write against Nazis and neo-Nazis as long as I live. To me they are the greatest criminals in history," Simmel said, adding that the Nazi period was one of the worst of his life. During most of the war he was a chemist in Vienna.

One work dealing with the Nazi era, "The Monte Cristo Cover-Up," made Simmel famous in the early 1960s. The often humorous account of a wartime cook and spy included numerous gourmet recipes.

Simmel partly attributes his focus on current events to his roots as a journalist. He spent years as a reporter for the Austrian daily newspaper Welt am Abend and the West German weekly newsmagazine Quick.

The writer said journalism has also influenced his painstaking research methods. Simmel spends up to a year gathering facts for a book.

"I traveled to several countries researching gene technology, for example, talking to experts," he said.

But contemporary relevance and authenticity alone are not what makes his books sell, he readily admits.

Gold Miner Lives In The Past, And Enjoys It

By CHARLES HILLINGER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

SWEETWATER RIDGE, Calif. — Sweetwater Clyde is 50 years behind the times.

He drives a faded white, rusted, beat-up 1937 half-ton Mack truck. He operates the Sweetwater Gold Mine his dad bought in 1933 with the same mining equipment that his father used.

"This old mine has been worked continuously since 1862. Never abandoned. A few got rich here. A lot went broke. I've done both, hit it a few times and other times it's been a long time between drinks," recalled Sweetwater Clyde, whose real name is Clyde Foster.

He's 77. His father was a lifelong California gold miner. So was his grandfather, and so is he. For 55 years he has worked the Sweetwater Mine, except for time out for a couple of wars. He was an Army sergeant in the South Pacific in World War II and later in Korea.

"Wouldn't swap this life for anything. If I struck it rich, I'd never leave. I'd just keep digging deeper and deeper and further into the mountain plowing all the money into the hole lookin' for more. It's the lure of gold that keeps me goin', and the thrill of findin' it," he explained, his sharp blue eyes brightening with excitement.

Sweetwater Clyde has a solid copper tombstone among the clutter in his 1896 gold miner's shack of weathered boards and corrugated tin roof. The inscribed tombstone, ready for the moment he gasps his last breath, reads:
"Clyde T. Foster. Sweetwater

Clyde. 1911-Not Yet! It wasn't the gold he wanted so much as just finding the gold. Future miners, as this place you pass, turn down an empty glass."

"My friends will chisel off the 'Not Yet' and bury me under the lilac bushes over yonder," said the 5-foot-6, 150-pound miner. "But I'm not leaving soon. I've got 20 years of planning already doped out for developin' the mine."

He noted that the Sweetwater's best years were in the 1880s and 1890s, when more than $500,000 in gold was recovered. His own best years, he recalled, were the early 1950s, when for four years straight he pulled out more than 1,000 ounces of $35-an-ounce gold.

"That was only $35,000 a year then, but it would be $450,000 at today's prices. I'd like to do that again," he mused with a mellow grin and dreamy eyes.

Sweetwater Clyde took a 15-ounce bar of gold (worth $6,750) from one of his pockets and told how it was a recent recovery from 30 tons of crude.

To get to his mine at the 4,000-foot level in a remote region of the High Sierra — about 10 miles from the tiny town of Midpines in Mariposa County — requires navigation of three miles over a bumpy, one-lane dirt road. At the entrance to his 10 claims on 200 acres is a sign proclaiming: "SWEETWATER MINE. SHOOTING WILL BE RECIPROCATED."

"Sign's been there 20 years. Nobody shot a hole in it yet. I haven't had to shoot back at anybody," he said.

His mine shaft is a horizontal hole half a mile into the mountain with 2,000-foot shafts branching in four directions. He enters and leaves the mine in his tiny ore train. Some of the track leads out of the mine and over a 40-foot-high, 125-foot-wide trestle he built out of trees to carry his waste material to a dumpsite.

Sweetwater Clyde has his own sawmill for cutting shoring timber. He processes what he digs from the mine through a 90-year-old machine called a Chilean jaw crusher. Its three stone wheels, each weighing 3,000 pounds, grind a ton of crude to fine sand. The crusher is driven by a 1926 Studebaker engine.

An American flag flies from the porch of his sturdy old shack, which is heated by an ancient pot-bellied wood stove. He cooks his beans and other grub on a 1925 gas range. His floor is covered with a layer of filth dragged in over the years and never swept away. The windows are so heavy with dirt that they can't be seen through. Spider webs dangle from the ceiling.

Rusty old mining equipment is all over his diggin's. "I don't throw anything away. Never know when I'm gonna need it," allowed Sweetwater Clyde, a throwback to the '30s, one of the last of the West's old-time, hard-rock gold miners.

GOOD OLE DAYS — Sweetwater Clyde, 77, lives in another era in Sweetwater Ridge, Calif., from his 1937 half-ton Mack truck to the 1925 gas range he uses for cooking. His lifestyle carries over to his profession:

single handedly working the little gold mine that his father bought in 1933, using the same equipment his father used. (L.A. Times-Washington Post)

Charlotte Author Has Been Chasing Ghosts For 30 Years

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Nancy Roberts has been chasing ghosts for 30 years, but she still flinches when asked about her personal experiences with the supernatural.

Roberts, a nationally known ghost hunter and the author of 10 books on the subject, said her first encounter occurred several years ago when she and her husband were eating lunch at the Skene Manor in Whitehall, N.Y.

"All of a sudden the mood changed from cheerfulness and anticipation of a good meal to pervasive evil," she said. "I knew there was something very, very wrong."

Roberts recalled seeing the figure of a woman near a rock fountain near her table. So she asked the owner if there was a ghost story connected to the restaurant.

"He said there was a very macabre story," she said.

It turned out that the fountain was situated on the spot where a young woman who died a mysterious death in the house had been laid to rest.

Roberts, a graduate of the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, began her career as a ghost hunter in 1958 while completing a freelance assignment for a newspaper.

Carl Sandburg, who was living in western North Carolina, read her articles and encouraged her to write a book. In 1959, "An Illustrated Guide to Ghosts and Mysterious Occurrences in the Old North State" was published.

"I'm one of the few normal people who do this sort of thing," Roberts said in an interview in her Charlotte home, which is decorated with antiques. "I'm not a nut."

Roberts says the investigative skills she learned as a newspaper reporter come in handy when she checks out the dozens of leads she gets in the mail every week.

During her research for her latest book, "Haunted Houses: Tales From 30 American Homes," Roberts traveled to more than 15 states, where she interviewed the owners of the homes and pored over press clippings and other materials in local libraries.

The 181-page book gives the reader a guided tour of some famous and little-known haunts, including White Oaks in Charlotte, which was built by James Buchanan Duke; the Reed House in Asheville; and the Mordecai House and the Andrew Johnson Home in Raleigh.

The people in her books do not meet up with violent creatures who kidnap, maul and maim. "I don't do the blood stains on the floor that won't disappear or the rattling chains," she said.

Instead, she said, most of the stories are about "highly ordinary" people who go through unexplained supernatural experiences.

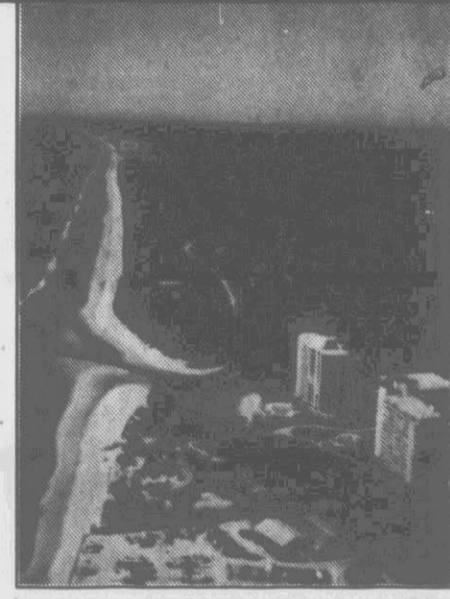

"It's usually the most unlikely people who experience it — the corporate executive, the accountant, the physician," she said. "It doesn't happen to the individual who's investigating the paranormal."

Most of the stories have a common thread.

"There's usually some strong emotion involved," she said. "But it doesn't have to be a place where somebody died."

 Today's Cryptquip clue: B equals O

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY June 2

- ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Get your priorities straight, and focus your attention on whatever is most important to you. Have more confidence in your fine abilities.
- TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You have many options for getting ahead more quickly, so be sure to give the matter plenty of consideration before making a choice.
- GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Stop daydreaming so much, and get down to practical work which will bring you greater success. Try to spend more time with your mate.
- MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Don't allow your emotions to interfere with a business decision. Be sure of all the details before signing an important contract.
- LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Your daily activities can be improved if you organize them more intelligently. You would be wise to stop talking so much and start acting.
- VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): If you want to get into a new recreation with friends, be sure you have the time and money first. Don't get involved in any risky schemes.

Once his suit was raised, South's hand was borderline for a jump to game. A trial bid in one of the pointed suits might have been a wiser approach, and the final contract would have hinged on whether South chose two spades or three diamonds as the game try.

Against four hearts, West led his fourth-best diamond. Declarer won in dummy and drew trumps in two rounds with the ace and queen, then led a club. West played low and East captured the jack with the king. He shifted to the queen of spades, ducked by declarer who won the spade continuation to lead a second club. West rose with the ace but, since he was out of spades, the contract could not be defeated. What's your verdict?

It's not easy to spot, but West could have beaten the hand. To do so, he had to fly in the face of the old adage: "Second hand low." On the first club lead, West must go up with the ace and shift to the king of spades. Declarer has no counter. No matter how he twists and turns, sooner or later East will gain the lead with either the king of clubs or a spade, and the defenders can collect a total of four tricks in the black suits for a one-trick set.

At Dusk

By Missy Whitford

Sitting on the steps at dusk peacefully, Thinking pleasant thoughts,
feeling the warm breeze,
Enjoying this soothing tranquility,
Stars twinkling brightly through stately trees.

The setting sun bids me a last farewell
As night's dark cloak blankets a quiet town.
One look about assures that all is well.
Soon it is dark and all have settled down.

These joys do come when all work is done
With nothing to hinder a sweet repose.
Of peace there is plenty, of worries, none.
A favorite time, a little smile shows.

Thoughts flash through my mind but are quickly gone
While gazing up at the man in the moon.
No ripple a rock makes on this tranquil pond
Though this peacefulness will disappear soon.

Looking at a star shining in the sky,
Thinking about wishes made on that star.
Many went unanswered, I wonder why.
Let me put these disturbing thoughts afar.

It is too late, reality intrudes.
Today's work is done but not tomorrow's.
Getting off the steps and out of this mood,
I go in and reality follows.

Oh, but it is not for me to get sad
For another dusk will come tomorrow,
And I'll sit for a while as if I had
Time for happiness and none for sorrow.

Favorite Place To Visit

By Lucas McLawhorn

My favorite place to visit is the beach.
It has seagulls that love to screech.
The sand is soft and sometimes wet.
I love to jog around the inlet.
I like to swim in the ocean.

When I want a tan, I put on lotion.
I get so excited when I get there,
But my brother gets to swim first and that's not fair.
I like to gaze at the sun.
It is always very fun.

I like to drink lemonade
Under the sun that's about to fade.
There is a time I have to go back.
I gather all my stuff and put them in my pack.
For this is the end of my little rhyme,

I hope you enjoyed it from the beginning to this time.

You're so full of bright ideas and comforting (cliched) thoughts.
Just be quiet.
Leave me be.
You don't know the first thing about Who I Am.
You don't know anything.
You don't want to know.
You never did.
You wanted a doll--

a doll to dress, and play house with,
that said "mama" when you pressed her stomach.
I won't play house anymore.
I'm growing--can't you tell?
I'm thinking--do you care?
I'm feeling--why won't you let me?
I played it
Your Way.
Now I'm playing it

My Way.
No one else's. I may be wrong.
Probably am.
I'll get hurt, but that's how you grow.
And learn.
Don't take away my right to learn.
Give me my chance--you had yours.
No one gets two.

Please--no more dolls.
And don't try to press my stomach because I won't say "mama" anymore.
I'm sorry.

Turkey Brings New Flavor To Cookout Menus

A delicious change-of-pace at this summer's backyard barbecue is possible with one of the super-market's most versatile products: breast of turkey.

Each breast of turkey is one-fourth of a boneless, real turkey breast. Since it's fully cooked, worries about overcooking and undercooking are eliminated. Just slice and heat on the grill!

For calories counters, breast of turkey offers another benefit. Four ounces contain only 160 calories — about half that of the typical steak or chop. Since it's 95 percent fat-free, it's ideal for America's "lite style" approach to eating.

Try "Turkey Steaks With Herb Butter" at your next cookout. Grill thick breast of turkey slices over hot coals about 10 minutes, brushing occasionally with a mixture of melted butter, thyme and rosemary. Foil-wrapped potatoes can finish baking in the coals while the turkey warms. Complete this nourishing meal with a colorful, marinated vegetable salad.

Prepare "Fruited Turkey Kabobs" for an easy, more elegant barbecue. Thread chunks of peaches, bananas and green peppers on a skewer with cubes of breast of turkey. Brush kabobs with a glaze of apricot preserves. Dijon mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Grill until lightly browned, and served on a bed of rice.

For variety, substitute fresh nectarines, plums or pears for the peaches when "Fruited Turkey Kabobs" next appear on your menu. Or try barbecued or hickory smoked breast of turkey instead of the traditional oven roasted turkey.

TURKEY STEAKS WITH HERB BUTTER

- 1 pound fully cooked breast of turkey
- 1/4 cup butter
- 1 small bay leaf
- 3/4 teaspoon dried thyme leaves, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon dried rosemary leaves, crushed
- 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- Dash garlic powder

Cut turkey into four "steaks," each about 1/2-inch thick. Combine remaining ingredients into saucepan; heat on medium until butter has melted. Grill turkey 6 inches from hot coals 10 minutes, brushing with

FRUITED TURKEY KABOBS — For an easy, elegant backyard barbecue that will be a welcome change of pace for family members and guests, place chunks of peaches, bananas and green peppers on a skewer with cubes of

Make Your Own New England-Style Clambake

By Joan Drake

L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Clambakes are delightful traditions to New Englanders. The most authentic ones are held on the beach, in pits dug and lined with smooth, round rocks. A fire is built on top of the rocks and kept burning two to three hours while seaweed is gathered and washed.

When the rocks are good and hot, embers are raked away and the pit is lined with several inches of seaweed. Then the traditional foods are added in layers — chicken, potatoes, corn, lobsters and clams. A tarp is placed over the top and held down with rocks while the food steams to perfection.

When there is no access to a beach, people dig the pits in back yards. If seaweed is unavailable, mixed greens are substituted.

New Englanders rent large steamers that cook the food over a wood or charcoal fire. The traditional ingredients are layered in an upper chamber with holes in the bottom, then it is placed over the lower unit containing steaming water. A spigot near the bottom allows the water to be siphoned off during cooking, so it can be poured over the food to drain back into the lower chamber and become clam broth.

If a large steamer is unavailable, any other type of large stockpot is ideal for cooking a clambake. These do not have a spigot, so omit the directions for siphoning the water and pouring it over the food. Instead, just add water as needed during the cooking period. A 19-quart vessel accommodates a clambake serving four to six people.

CLAMBAKE

- 2 to 3 pounds seaweed
- 4 chicken quarters
- Paprika
- 2 to 3 lemons, thickly sliced
- Tarragon sprigs
- 16 to 20 baby red potatoes
- 12 boiling onions
- 4 ears corn
- 3 dozen clams
- Thyme sprigs
- 2 live lobsters

- 2 cooked Dungeness crabs
- Melted butter
- Lemon wedges

Place seaweed in large container and rinse several times with fresh water. Drain, cover again with water and set aside. Pour about 2 quarts water in bottom chamber of steamer and place on grill about 4-inches above hot charcoal. Cover with lid and bring to boil.

Meanwhile, sprinkle chicken with paprika. Wrap each quarter in cheesecloth and tie with string. When bottom part of cooker begins to steam, replenish charcoal. Drain seaweed and place 2 to 3-inches in bottom of upper chamber. Add chicken, lemon slices and tarragon sprigs. Place over bottom chamber, cover with lid and steam 30 minutes. Scrub potatoes. Peel onions. Husk corn and cut ears into 2-inch pieces. Scrub clams and place 9 in each of 4 steamer bags.

Add potatoes, onions and thyme sprigs to steamer. Siphon water from bottom chamber and pour over food in steamer. Cook 20 minutes.

Rinse lobsters with fresh water. Add corn and lobsters to steamer. Check amount of water in bottom chamber and add more if necessary. Siphon water from bottom chamber and pour over food in steamer. Cook 10 minutes.

Add clams and crabs to steamer. Siphon water from bottom chamber and pour over food. Cook 10 minutes or until clams open.

Remove food from steamer and serve with melted butter and lemon wedges. Makes 4 servings.

Q. You've told me to drink more water. I don't like the taste of our water. Which bottled water should I buy? L.P.M., Greenville.

A. If you buy water, purchase the one you like, in the price range you are willing to pay. You probably have noticed more bottled water on the grocery shelf. But, not all bottled water is the same. "Drinking water" is disinfected to remove impurities. "Natural water" comes from wells or springs and might be filtered. "Spring water" flows to the earth's surface on its own. "Seltzer" is tap water that's been filtered and carbonated. Mineral salts are sometimes added for flavor. "Distilled and demineralized water" has had minerals removed, although this is not usually used for drinking. "Mineral water" is not regulated and can be almost any type of water. "Naturally carbonated or sparkling water" means the bubbly came from the water source. We encourage eastern North Carolinians to get lots of fluid daily — up to 10 cups. This helps relieve constipation and prevents dehydration. You don't have to buy bottled water, but if you do, I thought you would be interested in the differences.

Q. Is there a food dictionary that give information about food? M.F., Greenville.

A. I have several suggestions for you. If you want to know the nutritional value of food, you'd like a copy of "Nutritive Values of American Foods in Common Units," Agriculture Handbook No. 456. You can order from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402. The stock number is 0100-0318, $5.15. Or get "Food Values of Portions Commonly Used" by Pennington and Church. It is published by Harper and Row for $16.95. Most book stores can order it for you.

I have a book called "The World Encyclopedia of Food" by L. Patrick Coyle. It is a $40 book, published by Facts on File, Inc., 460 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y., 10016. Many lovers of food facts enjoy this book. It's like a dictionary with definitions and some pictures.

Q. Can this cookie really only have 21 calories? M.B., Greenville.

A. One of our patients brought me a large (almost 4 inches in diameter) cookie weighing 2 1/4 ounces. Although the cookie has no calorie label on it, she was told it only had 21 calories. A few years ago, there were similar large cookies pretending to have only 25 calories in them sold in our area. At that time, I asked Dr. Margi Gallagher in the East Carolina University Home Economics Department to analyze the cookie in her lab. It had 250 calories. We called the manufacturer who told us that we did not understand that the body did not absorb all those calories because there was an inhibitor in the cookie. I told him he would have to prove that to me, and he could not. Therefore, I told people it had 250 calories. There are new ingredients that replace fat and sugar in foods and do reduce calories, but I did not find any of those ingredients listed on the cookie my patient brought.

That cookie had whole wheat flour, soybean oil, honey, molasses, soy flour, carob chips, raisins, oats, cinnamon, bran fiber, yeast and natural flavorings. As I said, it did not have a nutritional label on it. But the ingredient label must be in order with most prevalent ingredient by weight first. If I were to assume that the cookie was made of only protein and carbohydrate, I could calculate the lowest number of calories possible in it. For example, there are about 122 calories in an ounce of protein or of carbohydrate. If I multiply 2.25 ounces of cookie times 112, that gives the lowest number of calories that the cookie could — 252 calories, but this cookie also has fat. Since fat gives calories, we'd have to add on to the 252. So by my calculations, there is no possibility that the cookie had only 21 calories. If the manufacturer could prove that some of those calories were not absorbed, I am sure he would put that claim on the wrapper for everyone to see. Food manufacturers must be able to provide proof for any health or nutrition information claim put directly on the label. I would love to believe that this good tasting cookie had only 21 calories, but I have no reason to think it is so.

Barbecue Sauce Debate Goes On

By Carole Sugarman

L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

We're again in the barbecue brag-gadocio season — the time of year when anyone who fires up a grill suddenly becomes a maestro, and everybody who bottles a boutique barbecue sauce thinks he makes the world's best.

Even major food companies claim to have each created the sauce with "the difference."

So they all think. A tasting by members of The Washington Post food section of 24 bottled barbecue sauces found few differences worth bragging about. The vast majority of commercial sauces are merely what you'd expect — agreeable enough for everyday eating, but not the gems that make for a memorable backyard bash.

Tasters found only a handful of sauces with character, and a few were so disappointing that we'd choose them only as a last resort.

Cost did not necessarily determine quality. Kraft's, averaging 5 cents per ounce, ranked as high as American Spoon Foods' Larry Forgione sauce, at 50 cents per ounce. Try Me — a pricey brand that comes in a small bottle — was unanimously disliked.

Cost and packaging did correlate, however. Unusual bottle shapes, Western-style illustrations and fancy lettering are all characteristic of upscale-price brands. Sara's Best, for example, averages 23 cents an ounce. "We have expensive packaging. It's an odd-shaped jar, a heavy-duty cap, a high-quality seal," said Patricia Davis, manager of the company.

To a certain extent, though, cost does determine ingredients. Pricier sweeteners such as molasses and honey are more likely to be found in

New Indulgences From Annual Food Marketing Session

By Carole Sugarman

L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Last year's new food products were either nugget-sized or Cajun-flavored. This year they're either microwavable or chocolate. Or both.

If the latest food products at the Food Marketing Institute's annual convention are any indication, it's clear that convenience and indulgence are edging out good nutrition.

"Self-indulgent customers are winning the battle all the way," said Martin Friedman, editor of New Product News, at the supermarket industry's convention in Chicago last week. "This year's crop of nutritious products is rather slim."

For those who say, "Life is short; let's start with the desserts," said Friedman, there are plenty of chocoholic choices. Kraft, for example, is rolling out a line of refrigerated chocolates called Marquessa. Nestle' is introducing Toll House Treasures (bigger chocolate chips). Betty Crocker is distributing Brownie Sundae.

For those who say, "Life is short; let's use the microwave," Campbell Soup is test marketing Souper Combos, eight varieties of microwave-only soup and sandwich combinations such as vegetable soup and a cheeseburger, New England clam chowder and a breaded fish sandwich.

Fast-food lookalikes will continue to infiltrate the supermarket. Microwavable breakfast sandwiches, with their high-fat, high-cholesterol combinations of sausages, ham, cheese and eggs, continue to be rolled out. So do lunch

Cheese Spread Is A Versatile Mixture

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

Our test kitchen director Sharon Stilwell is both an enthusiastic gardener and an innovative cook. These interests meet and flourish in her herb garden. One of Sharon's specialties is an herb-flavored cheese mixture. She varies the herb used and sometimes blends two or three. Here's Sharon's recipe and three favorite ways of using the mixture.

HERBED CHEESE SPREAD

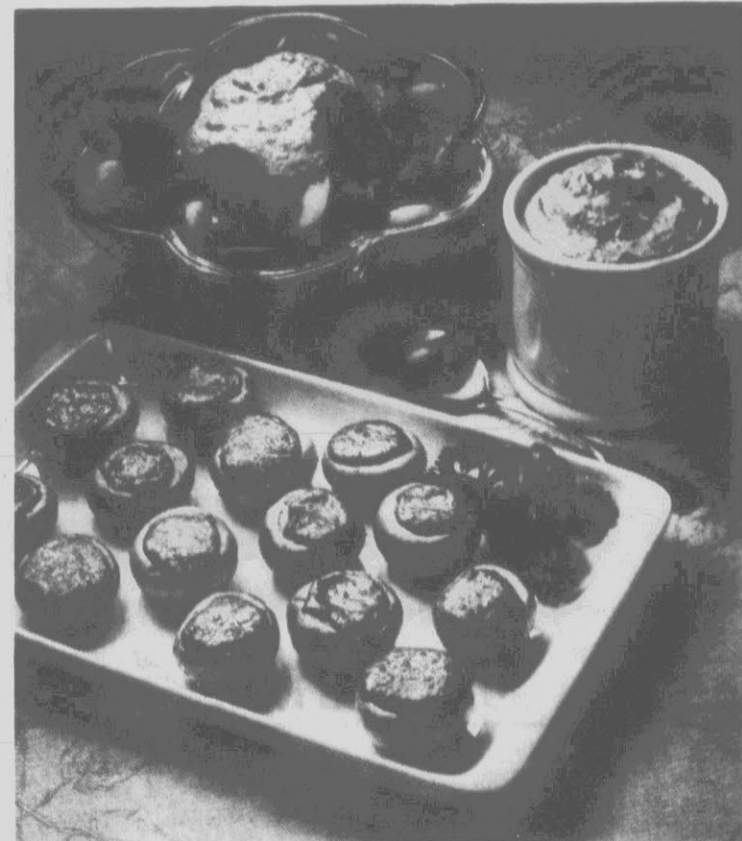

- 1 egg
- 1 green onion, sliced
- 1 clove garlic, quartered
- 1/2 cup loosely packed snipped

- fresh fennel, dill, chervil or basil
- 1/4 cup snipped parsley
- One 3-ounce package cream cheese, softened

1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

In a blender container or food processor bowl combine egg, onion, garlic, herb and parsley. Cover and blend or process until smooth, stopping to scrape down sides as necessary. Add cream cheese and Parmesan. Cover and blend or process until mixture is smooth. Transfer to a covered container. Store for up to 3 days in the refrigerator. (Mixture will stiffen as it chills. If necessary, let stand at room temperature

Baby Food Becoming Popular Recipe Ingredient

By Carole Sugarman
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Adriene Van Edwards' favorite baby foods are apples-plums, sweet potatoes and pears. Her four jars a week may not sound like true devotion — but then again, Van Edwards isn't a baby. She's 26.

Anna Pullin, the commissioner of revenue for Staunton, Va., baked a prune cake for a city Christmas function. She says she doesn't usually advertise the recipe — but its ingredients include two jars of baby food.

As regressive as it sounds, people besides babies eat baby food. "Adults are definitely a secondary market," said Arnold Koss, president of Earth's Best, a Middlebury, Vt., company that makes a line of organic baby foods.

Gerber Products Company's market research shows that from 6 to 8 percent of the company's users are "other than babies," according to company spokesman Jim Lovejoy.

Apparently eager to expand this market, Gerber published a cookbook in 1982 incorporating its baby-food products into "family" recipes, ranging from a lamb pate (calling for two jars of strained lamb) to miniature mincemeat tarts (with one jar of strained pears and pineapple).

Based partially on consumer requests for recipes, Beech-Nut Nutrition Corp., is currently working on an "infants to adults" cookbook itself, said a company spokesperson.

The types of grown-ups who eat

baby food are as varied as Barbie Doll's wardrobe.

Parents who snitch from their children are one type. While food shopping for 7-month-old son Robbie, 26-year-old Van Edwards of Northeast Washington "subconsciously" buys enough for herself, knowing that he "can't eat that much applesauce."

Van Edwards, who buys Earth's Best, says she'll grab a jar of baby-food fruit puree as a snack, figuring it's more healthful than the candy or cookies she might be eating instead. "The consistency is so nice," she added.

While some baby food fruits have added sugar and modified food starch, many varieties contain simply pureed fruit with water. And the majority of savory products no longer contain any added salt. No baby foods contain preservatives or artificial flavorings and colorings.

For these reasons — and because of the obvious portion-controlled serving sizes — dieters seem to be another market.

"Teen-age girls eat it. They use it for dieting," said Lovejoy. Gerber's market research did not identify the percentage of users who are dieters, but Lovejoy said that the company has received calls from mothers who mention that their "biggest problem is their teen-ager who keeps eating the baby's food."

Barbara Gimberling of Parents and Children Together (PACT), a parental support group in Crofton, Md., knows one mother who has five children ranging from a baby to a teen-ager and just that problem. It's unclear whether the teen-ager eats baby food for weight control, but she's "too embarrassed" to eat it in front of the family. Instead, she'll sneak tastes, leaving a refrigerator full of opened jars often spoiled before the baby gets to them.

Other grown-ups are attracted by convenience. Jeanne Goubeaux, spokesperson for Beech-Nut, said that through the company's hotline, which receives up to 400 calls a day, they have discovered that some working women bring baby food to the office. "It fits in your purse, it can be easily opened and it's low in calories," Goubeaux said.

It's obviously convenient for adults who work at baby food companies. "The president of the company (Richard Theuer) will quite often pick up a jar of Beech-Nut bananas or golden delicious applesauce because he can't get out to lunch," Goubeaux added.

Aside from the handiness of the jar, baby foods are perceived as time-saving substitutes in recipes that call for pureed fruit or vegetables.

Pullin said she used strained baby food in Christmas prune cake because mashing her own is "too much of a problem."

Gerber has heard of consumers using its strained carrots to flavor and color homemade pasta; Earth's Best knows that people have used its fruit purees for quick pancake toppings; and Beech-Nut reports that some "gourmet cook types" are using its product in tiny timbales.

Goubeaux of Beech-Nut said she has used baby food in recipes for entertaining company — among them a carrot and squash custard and a fruit whip made with strained apricots and beaten egg whites.

Beth Adams, spokesperson for Heinz, said that a number of hotline callers have mentioned purchasing the company's instant bananas, applesauce or carrots instead of mashing their own to make quick breads and cakes (you add water to dried flakes). Banana flakes have also been used to make milkshakes and pina colodas, Adams added.

Another adult market — at least according to Gerber — is athletes. Lovejoy said that the company has received letters and requests for bulk and wholesale shipments of baby foods from long distance runners, competitive swimmers and weight lifters.

Why would athletes eat baby food? Lovejoy contends that they eat it for "quick energy" because it "provides more nutrients per calorie than most adult table food."

For example, since strained baby food meats are lower in fat than marbled steaks or hamburgers, they have a higher ratio of nutrients per calorie, contends Guy Johnson, director of infant nutrition for Gerber. As for vegetables, Johnson said the company compared the nutrient density of its baby foods to U.S. Department of Agriculture data and "most of the time we won."

Johnson said that the company contracts with farmers to grow varieties of produce that are high in nutrients. Gerber's agricultural researchers have developed a peach that has more vitamin A than those traditionally grown, Johnson added.

In addition, since baby foods are processed with only small amounts of water, water-soluble nutrients are not leached into a packing liquid like they are in adult canned foods. And because baby foods come in small containers that are heated for a shorter period of time than cans of grown-up peas or green beans, heat-sensitive nutrients are not as readily destroyed.

As for the whole idea of feeding baby food to human adults, there's nothing wrong with it from a nutritional standpoint, AAP's Finberg believes. Nevertheless, "it makes no sense (for adults to eat it), from a cost point of view. There are lots of ways to get to the same point," he said. "Like a Cuisinart."

If you do have a food processor, pureed fruits and vegetables can obviously be substituted for baby food in the following recipes.

BEECH-NUT(TM) HARVEST LOAF
(Makes one 9-inch loaf)
Butter or margarine for greasing pan
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons whole-wheat flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons cinnamon
2 teaspoons ground mace
1 cup sugar
1/3 cup baby food pear juice
7 1/2-ounce jar baby food sweet potatoes
1/2 cup oil
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup raisins
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
Grease a 9-by-5-inch loaf pan. In a large bowl, stir together dry ingredients. Make a well in the center and pour in pear juice, sweet potatoes, oil and eggs. Mix with a wooden spoon. Stir in raisins and chopped walnuts. Spoon into prepared pan and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean.

GERBER PLUM SAUCE
(Makes 1 1/3 cups)
2 3/4-ounce jars baby food plums with tapioca
1/4 cup brown sugar, packed
1/4 cup catsup
1 1/2 tablespoons vinegar
Combine all ingredients in a medium saucepan. Stir over medium heat until bubbly. Serve with egg rolls or other Chinese food.

"The Gerber Sampler of Family Recipes"

BEECH-NUT CHILLED FRUIT SOUP
(4 servings)
4 1/2-ounce jar baby food apricots with pears and applesauce or other fruit mixture
1/2 cup sour cream or yogurt
1 cup baby food mixed fruit juice
1 cup diced apples
1 cup sliced strawberries or whole blueberries
Mint sprigs for garnish
In a bowl, mix together apricots and sour cream or yogurt until smooth. Add juice and whisk to blend. Add remaining ingredients, pour into glasses or soup bowls and garnish with a mint sprig.

GERBER WALNUT PRUNE SOUFFLE
(6 servings)
4 egg whites
1/8 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar
2 3/4-ounce jars baby food prunes with tapioca
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
2/3 cup walnuts, chopped
Beat egg whites until foamy, add cream of tartar and salt and continue beating to form soft peaks. Gradually add sugar, beating until stiff peaks form. Gently fold in prunes, vanilla, cinnamon and walnuts. Turn into a buttered 1 1/2-quart souffle dish. Set dish in pan of warm water and bake in a 325-degree oven for 40 to 50 minutes or until firm. Garnish with sweetened whipped cream. Serve immediately.

Food Marketing Event Bypassed Nutrition

and dinner sandwiches that you can cook faster than the time it takes to get to McDonald's.

Oscar Mayer, for example, is test-marketing Zappettes, a collection of microwaveable hot dogs, hamburgers and cheeseburgers. (Restaurants and fast-food companies are even starting to join forces with supermarkets: Wendy's has begun selling ground beef to the Kroger Co., and Chi Chi's has licensed Hormel to sell Chi Chi's salsa.)

The microwave trend is definitely aimed toward the office even as well. Aside from portable sandwiches, meal-size plastic tubs are being filled with Dinty Moore beef stew, Chef Boy-Ar-Dee's Italian dishes and a line of main-dish stews, soups and casseroles called Lunch Buckets. "Retailers love it (Lunch Buckets), because it brings customers back in to the market" during their lunch hour, said a representative from the Dial Corp., the company that owns the new line.

Combining the two trends — microwave and chocolate — results in MicroMagic, a microwaveable milkshake, Pillsbury's microwave frostings and refrigerated microwave brownies and Steve's microwaveable hot-fudge sundae, a product that will be available shortly. And for those who want dessert fast, but don't want it to be chocolate, there are Super Churros, microwaveable doughnut sticks.

Eight miles of aisles and 30,000 conventioners turned McCormick Place into an overnight metropolis where product samples were dispensed by the thousands. There, the nation's major food and food-equipment companies compete in luring munchers to their stands.

A basketball player on 10-foot stilts, his shirt marked "Kareem A Wheat," stalked the exhibit of a plastic bag company; twins dressed for a Las Vegas nightclub act sliced samples of chocolate-filled doughnut holes; and the Michigan Department of Agriculture ran a dice game (roll two matching vegetables and you win a potholder).

There were numerous non-food stalls as well, featuring products ranging from insecticides (Walco-Linck: "More Than 50 Years of Killing Power") to Crazy Glue (hawked by a woman in a skimpy red-and-white outfit), to ladders and doors ("It can take abuse," shouted the representative from RubAir Door, as he kicked and yanked on a door sample).

The ice-cream concessions were popular stamping grounds for conventioners checking on the status of this year's novelties.

Ben Cohen and Jerry Greenfield, of Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream, were playfully showing off their new flavor, "Chunky Monkey," their booth decorated in jungle motif, complete with a human banana. The flavor, banana ice cream studded with bits of chocolate and walnuts, was inspired in part by the availability of frozen banana products. "You can get them sliced, diced, chunked, pureed," Cohen said with a sing-song lilt.

In the company's latest endeavor, "The Moscow Project," Ben & Jerry's will soon be manufactured in the Soviet Union, in an agreement with a Russian farm collective. "They have great ice cream in the U.S.S.R.," said Cohen. "But only vanilla." The roll-out will give the Soviets their first taste of Heath Bar Crunch, the firm's most popular flavor in the U.S. and the favorite of those sampled by Moscovites.

Ice-cream-bar update: The DoveBar is downsized, from 6 ounces to 4 — and from 520 calories to 360. Haagen-Dazs bars are now available with crushed-almond coating. Eskimos Pies bars are made with NutraSweet. Tofutti Brands Inc. has a Fruities line (not to be confused with the company's Cuties).

Steve's Ice Cream bought Swensen's and will add sandwiches to Steve's shops. Shamitoff's was bought by Westin Foods. And Jamie Vollmer, executive vice president of the Great Midwest Ice Cream Co., predicts a shakeout of the major ice-cream companies by the end of this summer.

Cheesecake is making a comeback in the guise of Kraft's Philadelphia Cheesecake Mix, Tofutti Brands' cholesterol-free cheesecake, Edwards Cream Cheese Classics and WunderBar, a frozen, chocolate-covered cheesecake on a stick that doubles as an ice cream novelty.

WunderBar was begun by two 29-year-olds, both Northwestern University MBA's, who talk like it.

"As a marketer, I saw a product," said Howard Eiringer, one of the partners who had long admired the cheesecake made by Cissy Brotman, one of his parents' friends. Eiringer, Tom McGlade, his college friend, and Brotman collaborated on the product.

By talking to exhibitors throughout the show, one gets the distinct feeling that some of them might as well be selling aluminum siding or computer chips. They talk more about marketing strategies and profit margins than they do about food.

At the exhibit by Wescho, a custom store-interior company, a staffer was cooking a Chinese stir-fry dish in a 125-pound cast-iron skillet. The skillet is part of a "package" that comes with steamers, refrigeration and display units and is designed to be an alluring substitute for a traditional supermarket carryout section.

The pan is "the sense of theater, the action center, the sizzle, the smell," said Baker Taylor, director of marketing for the company.

Robert Bapes, a representative for Plochman's mustard, described why the company decided to package its product in a square plastic container. Twelve bottles of the new mustard fit in three-quarters of a square foot, Bapes explained. Twelve rounded bottles of a competitor's mustard take up 1.14 square feet. Plochman's can fit more mustard per square foot on the supermarket shelf.

Do consumers want their mustard in square plastic containers? The company didn't do any official market research, Bapes conceded, but "we did do a lot of mother-in-law research."

A few new computer technologies showed how marketers are trying to push advertising ever closer to consumers.

Take Video Cart, a small computer screen affixed to a shopping cart. The computer, programmed with various commercials, flashes one on the screen as shoppers wheel their carts near the product. "If you're right next to the Maxwell House Coffee, that ad might come up," explained Sean Judd, the programmer for Video Cart.

Judd said that the computer would also be capable of advertising in-store promotions, as well as providing maps of the market and other service information. Instead of waiting on a long line at the deli counter, a shopper could get a number and continue his shopping until the computer notified him that his order was ready, Judd added.

AdNet, a similar idea, would "key up national-brand ads" on video monitors suspended adjacent to the aisle directories, said a company spokesman. The concept also allows food companies to do niche advertising in stores that service Hispanic or black clientele, the spokesman added.

AdNet also has other functions. At the exhibit booth, a pound of bananas flashing on the screen went from 39 to 29 to 19 cents. As the screen changed prices, the picture of the bananas got riper and browner.

The exhibit floor was packed with companies that provide supermarkets with foods consumers may think are store-made. Bakery companies that sell mixes and frozen muffins, cakes and cookies to supermarkets were in abundance.

There are also companies that provide deli-counter products — potato salad, tuna-fish, herring salads — to stores.

Orval Kent, which sells its Salad Singles product in Washington, D.C., supermarkets, also provides the bulk of the area's deli-case products.

The company's product — whether it's sold by name brand in individual packs or unmarked in the deli counter — is the same, according to company vice president James Nazarowski.

Most consumers "would like to think that there's a kindly, gray-haired lady cooking in the back (of the deli)," said Nazarowski. Not anymore. "She's probably out playing golf."

The Absolute Best Deal In Town!

Barbecue Sauce Debate Continues With Arrival Of Grill Season

(Continues from D-1)

expensive sauces. Modified food starch, a thickener, appears more often in standard-priced sauces than upscale ones. And sodium benzoate, a preservative, is more apt to be included in lower-priced sauces that aren't trying to be "all-natural."

However, neither the inclusion or omission of any of these ingredients affected the rating of the sauces.

Not surprisingly, the predominant style of the sauces was sweet. That quality wasn't necessarily negative, however. Two of the five sauces that were ranked as impressive — Kraft and Reese — were also identified as sweet. Three of the five sauces found to be sweet were also disappointing — perhaps signifying that they were too sweet.

In this blind test, food-section staff tasted the 24 sauces on baked and broiled chicken wings and drumettes. Only regular or "original" flavored sauces were tasted; there were no mesquite, spicy or other flavored products.

Dishes of each sauce just as it comes from the jar were also available so that staffers could taste them straight. There were plenty of napkins and plenty of stains on the score sheets.

Sauces included in the tasting were those available at one or more of the Washington area's supermarket chains or at least two popular specialty shops.

The price range generally reflects where the sauce can be bought (e.g. chain supermarkets stock the lower-priced brands), but the specialty shops do charge more where there is overlap.

The selection in no way reflected the total barbecue-sauce universe, which is huge — and growing.

Yet despite the fact that there are literally hundreds of mom-and-pop barbecue sauces in every region of the country, there are only a few major players in the $320 million national barbecue-sauce business.

"The first eight brands are about 95 percent of the market," according to Frank Smith of Selling Areas Marketing, Inc. (SAMI), a New York-based market-research firm.

According to Smith, Kraft's original flavored sauce dominates the field with almost 40 percent of the market.

The other varieties — each with under 10 percent share — are Open Pit, Heinz, K.C. Masterpiece, Kraft Thick 'n' Spicy, Bull's-Eye, Hunt's and Chris & Pitts. Bull's-Eye is manufactured by Ridg's Finer Foods, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Kraft created to roll out a line of specialty foods; Open Pit is made by Vlastic Foods, and Kingsford, the charcoal company, recently bought K.C. Masterpiece.

The remaining tiny slice of the market is filled with the types of sauces that Kraft is trying to emulate — Big Daddy's, Messy Martha's, Shotgun Willie's, Little Pig, Pig Stand and others that sound as if they were christened around a backyard grill.

Perhaps the toughest part in choosing among all these sauces is determining which style you prefer, and then finding a sauce that fits most closely.

Two tasters, for example, didn't like the style of Larry Forgione's sauce, an oily, chunky sauce with a peppery bite. The remaining tasters found it to be average or above.

Findings from the tasting showed that ingredient lists may help in identifying the style of a sauce.

Those sauces that tasters identified as sweet frequently listed some type of sugar as the first ingredient, or listed more than two kinds of sugar in the product.

Giant Food and Chicken 'N' Ribs sauces, which both list corn syrup as the predominant ingredient, were both identified as sweet by tasters. Hormel's product, which lists molasses, brown sugar and sugar, was likewise found to be sweet.

Generally, tasters identified products as smoky when smoke flavor appeared in the ingredient label. Cattlebaron, Bull's-Eye and D.L. Jardine's are among those that contain smoke flavoring.

There were a few exceptions. Sara's Best, determined by two-thirds of the tasters to be smoky, contains no smoke flavoring. Nor does Reese's sauce, a dark, earthy product that tasters rated as impressive. Raisin paste was Reese's distinguishing ingredient.

Spokesmen at both companies could not identify why tasters found the products smoky. (Interestingly, Reese's sauce is being discontinued by Safeway in Washington because of poor sales. We think that revamping the packaging and color of the sauce might boost demand. One taster identified the sauce as the color of the La Brea tar pits.)

The major conclusion that emerged from the tasting was that to find a sauce with depth, you have to doctor up one of the bottles yourself — with spices, vinegar or condiments. If you want total control, of course, you can always start with a bottle of ketchup.

herb butter and turning occasionally. Four servings

Broiler: Prepare as above. Place on broiler pan. Broil 3 to 4 inches from heat about 8 minutes, turning once.

FRUITED TURKEY KABOBS

1 pound fully cooked breast of turkey

2 small bananas, each peeled and cut into four chunks

4 fresh or canned peach halves, each cut in half

1 large green pepper, cut into 8 pieces

Glaze

1/2 cut apricot preserves

1 tablespoon Dijon mustard

1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Cut turkey into 1-inch cubes. Alternate turkey, fruit and green pepper on eight (8 to 10-inch) skewers. Combine glaze ingredients in small bowl. Grill kabobs 3 to 4 inches from hot coals 10 to 15 minutes until lightly browned, basting occasionally with glaze. Brush with additional glaze and serve. Four servings.

(Note: 1 pound of turkey cut onto 1-inch cubes is about 3 cups) until soft enough to spoon or spread.) Makes about 3/4 cup.

Herb-Sauced Vegetables: To 2 cups lightly salted hot cooked vegetables, add 3 to 4 tablespoons Herbed Cheese Spread. Toss to coat.

Herb-Stuffed Mushrooms: Spoon 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon Herbed Cheese Spread into fresh small mushroom caps in a shallow baking pan. Bake, uncovered, in a 375-degree oven for 5 to 7 minutes. Serve immediately.

Easy Herbed Canapes: Spread 1 rounded teaspoon Herbed Cheese Spread on melba toast rounds. Broil 4 to 6 inches from heat for 1 to 2 minutes or until spread is bubbly.

 looks great, adds insulation

Each roof-over is custom-made to go over your present roof. It not only stops leaks but adds insulation to help cut energy costs, reduce roof rumble and rain drumming. Baked-on enamel finish on the interlocking aluminum panels eliminates the need for re-coating, sealing and painting. Resists cracking, peeling and sun fading. Insulating foam panel slow heat gain and loss for comfort and energy savings.

Manville Guardsman™ 25 FR

25-year fiberglass roofing shingles
 when purchased installed by Sears

Manville Guardsman™ 25 FR is a heavy, premium fiber glass shingle with a special fungus-resistant formula for high humidity areas. Each shingle has a sun-activated self-adhesive strip that seals it to the roof to resist blow-off. UL Class A fire-resistant, won't absorb moisture. Won't crack, peel or split. Ask for details of 25-year pro-rated limited warranty.

new credit programs

PAYMENT ON COMPLETION

don't have to put a single penny down! Keep your money working and earning interest or invested until the entire home improvement is completed. While we and our authorized contractors are working for you, your money is working for you, too, so you can have it both ways!

EQUITY PLANS

available from Sears Consumer Financial Corporation and subsidiaries.* And it's tax deductible in most cases!† Competitive interest rates with no closing costs, prepayment penalties or application fees on plans under $10,000.

SEARSCHARGE HOME IMPROVEMENTS

Get more buying power than any other plan on a SearsCharge Home Improvement Credit Plan. Now you can take up to 10 years to pay and make your monthly payments as small as possible.
The plan offers competitive interest rates. See below for examples of the small monthly payments!

Storage buildings custom-built of wood

Completely built on your site by Sears authorized installers.
Available in several sizes.
Rough-sawn wood in natural finish. Shingled roof.

Not available in WV, KY, VA, Charleston, SC, Myrtle Beach, Wilmington, Greenville, Rocky Mount, Jacksonville, Goldsboro.

Wood Fencing installed by Sears installers for privacy and protection

Here's an attractive way to enclose your yard or block an unattractive view. Versatile board or contemporary stockade fences provide privacy and security. And for rustic beauty, split rail fences fit the bill. Check your local Sears retail store for availability of specific styles.
