City Council Rejects Proposed Budget Package

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the Greenville City Council Monday voted 3-2 to shoot down a $22,323,021 budget proposal for the city in fiscal year 1988-89, and voted to conduct another budget session to iron out their concerns.

The proposed budget, had it passed last night, would have represented a 13.57 percent increase over this year's budget and required a tax increase of 2.2 cents per hundred dollars, after taking into account the recent tax revaluation.

That proposed increase would have reflected a tax rate of 55.36 cents per $100 property value. The current tax rate is 53.1 cents per $100 value.

Council members said the budget proposal was administratively top heavy, and that more time is required to examine complicated budgetary figures.

After voting down the proposal, a motion was subsequently followed by a majority vote to conduct another budget session June 29 at 6 p.m. in the third floor conference room of City Hall to come to a final consensus on the budget.

Mayor Ed Carter told the council what he expects from that upcoming budget session.

"Please come in prepared to give specific ideas of what you would like to see cut from the budget and let's make this short and sweet and to the point. OK? Just don't say 'I don't like it,'" he said.

According to City Attorney Mac McCarley, North Carolina state law says the city has a June 30 deadline to pass the budget but he indicated if agreement to the budget has still not come to pass by the budget deadline, an interim budget may be approved to meet state legal requirements.

Voting against the budget proposal Monday were council members Rufus Huggins, Mildred Council, and Mayor Pro-Tem Lorraine Shinn.

"There are some things in this budget that I still have some problems with...I see some things in here that still concern me and at this point in time, the way this budget stands, I can't vote for it," said Ms. Shinn.

"First of all, I think there are areas in this budget where we are administratively top heavy. I think we have some salaries that are out of line, and I think we're going to rue the day that we did some of this to be honest," she said.

Farm Issue Unresolved At Summit

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

TORONTO (AP) — Leaders of the world's economic powers put the finishing touches on a final summit communique today that offered the poorest countries of the world new debt relief but failed to resolve the contentious fight over agricultural subsidies.

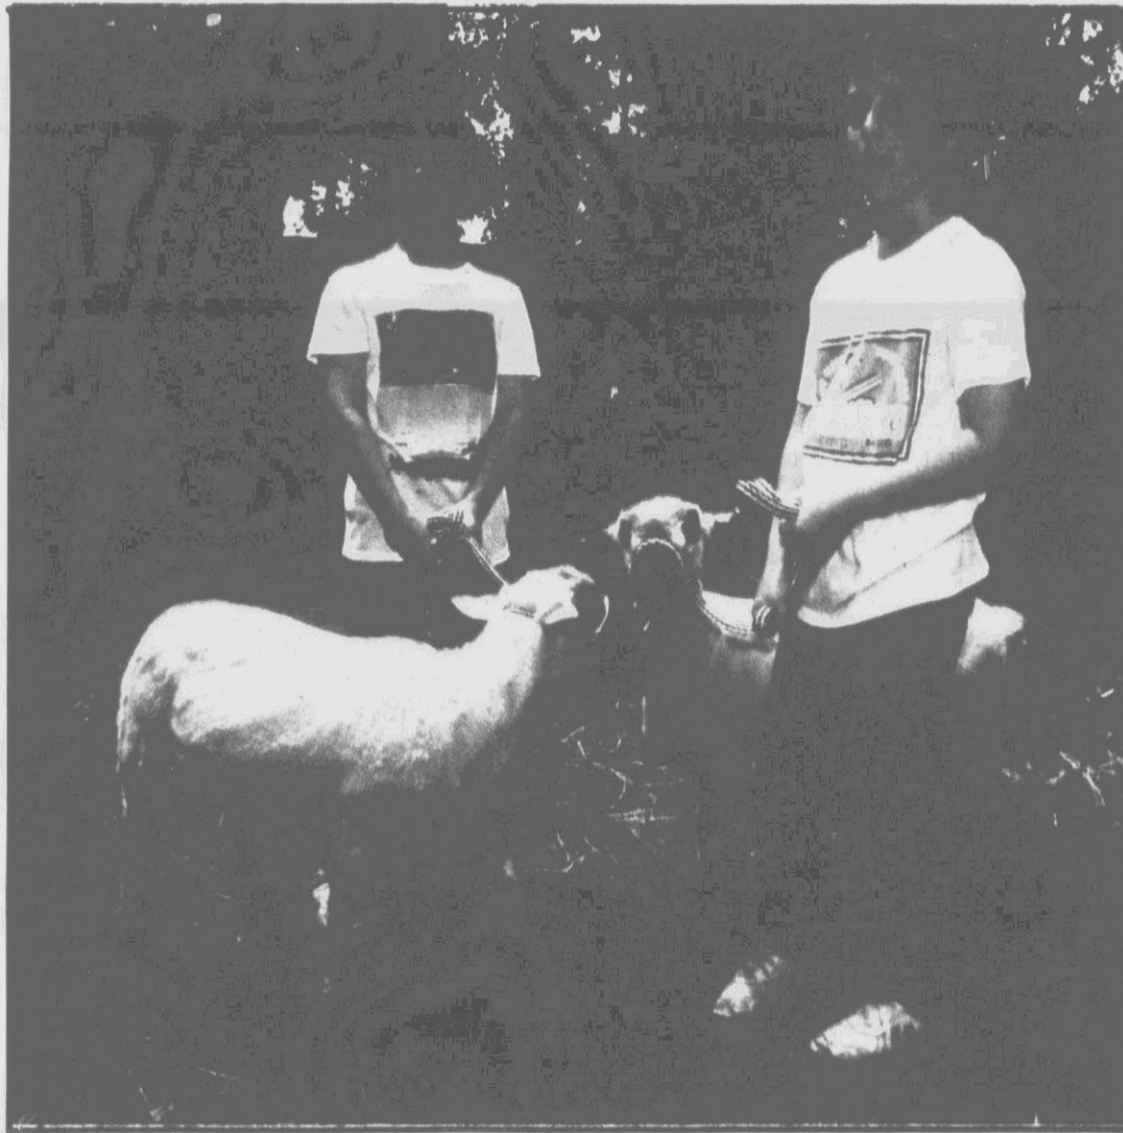

The draft communique, obtained from summit sources, said the leaders had agreed on a plan that will allow creditor countries to choose from a menu of options in granting debt relief to nations of sub-Saharan Africa.

But on the agricultural subsidies issue, the leaders essentially adopted vague language papering over West European and Japanese resistance to President Reagan's proposal to eliminate subsidies by the year 2000.

In a largely self-congratulatory draft statement at the end of the 14th summit, the leaders said the club of rich countries will launch a new seven-year cycle of summits starting in France on July 14-16 of next year.

"Summits have proven an effective forum to address the issues facing the world economy, promote new ideas and develop a common sense of purpose," the draft said.

Officials completed the 34-paragraph document at 5 a.m. and the leaders met through the morning putting the final touches on the communique.

Pentagon Chiefs Reassigned Target Of Probe May Cooperate

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government in the last few days has persuaded one of the targets in the Pentagon bribery probe to cooperate with investigators, a source familiar with the matter said today.

The target is someone whose voice turned up frequently on court-authorized wiretaps installed during the investigation, said the source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Sources familiar with the probe also said that one of the wiretaps is a conversation between former Navy Secretary John Lehman Jr. and his then-aide Melvyn Paisley.

The sources said the conversation, recorded late last year or early this year, can be interpreted as being a tip-off by Lehman that Paisley might be under investigation.

In addition, another target of the probe appears on the verge of cooperating with government investigators, said the source. It could not be determined

Superfund Sites

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency today proposed to add 229 sites to the "Superfund" priority list for toxic waste cleanups and to drop 30.

The action brings the priority list to 1,177 sites, of which 378 are still proposals and 799 have been formally designated for the list.

Eventually, the agency has said, the list could grow to about 2,500 sites. Fourteen of today's new sites are owned by other federal agencies, 12 of them either related to nuclear weapons manufacture or a military base. Last week, EPA announced agreement with the Defense Department on penalties to be imposed if the department fails to live up to cleanup agreements.

The 30 sites being proposed for deletion have not been cleaned up, but "do not satisfy any of the criteria" for listing, EPA said. They will be cleaned up under other programs, the agency said.

Three other sites were deleted from the list in April on the grounds that all work had been completed or that they posed no threat, EPA said.

Designation for the "National Priority List" means the site is eligible for 90 percent federal financing of the cleanup under EPA's supervision, unless a federal agency owns it. Federal agencies are responsible for cleaning up their sites using their own money.

May Prices Don't Reflect Drought

By MATT YANCEY
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices climbed a modest 0.3 percent in May, the government said today, easing fears of inflation and indicating that the drought plaguing the Farm Belt has yet to reach grocery store shelves.

The May increase, less than the gains of 0.5 percent in March and 0.4 percent in April, would amount to an annual inflation rate of 4.2 percent if prices climbed at the same pace for 12 months, the Labor Department said.

Food prices rose just 0.4 percent, compared with a 0.6 percent increase in April. Analysts said the only area where the effects of the drought showed up were in higher retail prices for vegetable oil and mayonnaise.

The biggest price increase was for gasoline, up 1.7 percent after a 1.1 percent increase in April. Gasoline prices, however, are still just 2.9 percent higher than they were a year ago.

Automobile prices rose 0.2 percent last month with the paring of many dealer incentives.

Stock prices opened higher today on the New York Stock Exchange an hour after the inflation report was issued. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell more than 20 points in slow trading Monday as analysts had anticipated a larger increase in the Consumer Price Index.

"It was pretty low compared to expectations," John Hagens, an analyst for the Wefa Group, an economic consulting firm in Bala Cynwyd, Pa., said of the price report. "The food picture hasn't really passed into the CPI yet."

For the first five months of 1988, overall retail prices have risen at an annual rate of 4.4 percent, the same pace they grew in 1987, the government said.

Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III said last week that the Reagan administration remains optimistic that its targeted inflation cap of 4.5 percent for 1988 will not be exceeded.

However, low unemployment-spurred wage gains that have been outpacing price increases over the last three months plus anticipated future food price hikes from the current drought in the Farm Belt have triggered fears of an inflationary wage-price spiral later this year or in early 1989.

HEAT RELIEF — Slipping and sliding down a watery sluice spells relief from record-breaking heat Monday in the Chicago suburbs. The National Weather Service reported 101-degree temperatures at O'Hare Airport at 1:45 p.m. The hottest day in Chicago history was July 24, 1934, when the temperature reached 105 degrees. Summer Arrives With More Heat

By BART ZIEGLER
Associated Press Writer

The first full day of summer today promised the same hot and dry weather that has buckled highways, sent people without air conditioners to public shelters and added to the woes of drought-plagued farmers.

High temperatures today will be in the 90s across most of the nation, the National Weather Service said.

Nearly 40 cities in the central and eastern United States set temperature records Monday as the early-season heat continued to intensify, according to the weather service.

Temperatures soared above 100 degrees across much of the northern and central Plains, the upper Mississippi Valley and the desert Southwest. Highs in the 90s were common elsewhere across the nation except for coastal and mountain areas.

Authorities in several areas opened up shelters Monday to residents without air conditioners. In Chicago, where it reached 104, city officials invited the public to use the city's libraries and other air-conditioned municipal buildings during daytime hours to escape the heat. The Chicago temperature reading tied the record for the month of June.

Customers of Chicago's Commonwealth Edison Co. set a single-day record for electricity usage, said spokesman John Hogan, while Consumers Power Co. in Michigan set a usage record for the month.

The heat caused discomfort for people with breathing difficulties and heart conditions and prompted authorities in the Chicago area and in Wisconsin to post ozone advisories, cautioning people with those conditions to remain in air-conditioned rooms.

The heat also proved dangerous to animals. Forecasters said the livestock weather safety index entered the emergency zone in several parts of Midwest and Plains. Farmers were advised to keep animals in shade and provide plenty of water. "Animals react to the heat in the same way humans do," said Michigan Department of Agriculture specialist Edwin Renkie. "It does affect the animals and in some cases can kill them."

Heat distorted railroad tracks in Moberge, S.D., last weekend, causing five cars of a Burlington Northern train loaded with corn to derail, said spokesman Al Wiegold in St. Paul, Minn.

During the weekend, the heat in the Sioux Falls, S.D., area also caused 25 roads to buckle, about the usual damage for the entire summer, said Delmer Van Ekern of the state Transportation Department.

In Des Moines, searing heat buckled pavement Sunday, slowing traffic on U.S. 6 and Interstate 235. On Monday, Des Moines' high reached 101, breaking the 98-degree reading set for the date in 1933.

Pitt Commissioners Schedule Session For Final Consideration Of New Budget

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County commissioners continued work on a budget for the 1988-1989 fiscal year Monday afternoon and scheduled a meeting for Monday to consider final approval for a $41.79 million package of expenditures for the coming year.

The board, until Monday, had given conditional approval to a $41.52 million package that included $34.62 million to continue operations at the present level for the coming year, as well as $6.89 million in expansion items.

But by the time commissioners ended Monday's session, another $281,802 in expansion items had been tentatively approved, to bring the proposed budget total to $41.79 million, a figure which County Manager Kramer Jackson said would require a 63 cent per $100 valuation tax rate to fund. The tax rate this year is 64 cents per $100 valuation.

Expansion budget additions given tentative approval Monday — all of them for public schools — included: $30,000 for landscaping school grounds (to be matched dollar-for-dollar by private donations); $120,000 to give extra pay to teachers performing extra duty; $110,000 to give each teaching classroom teacher an additional $100 supplement in the coming year.

Monday's action, if given final approval, would give the county school system $483,445 in expansion money in the coming year, compared with $119,000 in new money the public schools received this year.

But commissioners, after considering that the schools will receive some $2 million in construction money from the state in the coming year, tentatively agreed to cut $1 million from a planned $3 million appropriation from local funds for school capital projects.

Instead of giving it to the schools, the $1 million would be put in a reserve fund for construction of a new jail, and the schools would end up with some $4 million in construction money.

Among items given tentative approval for inclusion in the expansion budget prior to Monday's session: $250,000 for a Development Commission shell building fund; $630,000 for water and sewer lines to serve the new Weyerhaeuser plant between Ayden and Grifton; $520,575 for a new computer mainframe; $105,000 for a county facilities master plan; $208,000 to implement a 911 emergency telephone system; more than $476,000 to provide pay raises and increased retirement benefits for county employees; $26,286 to start a county employee wellness program in the health department; $159,312 for capital improvements — including expansion of the terminal building — at Pitt-Greenville Airport; $447,400 for solid waste and landfill program expansion; $206,445 for pay increases for county school employees.

When the county manager presented the proposed budget to commissioners for the first time in May, Jackson said it would take a tax rate of about 90 cents per $100 valuation to fund the continuation budget and the $13.34 million in expansion items that had been asked for by the various county departments and agencies.

The public schools alone had asked for more than $2.66 million in new money for the coming fiscal year, which begins July 1.

In other business Monday, commissioners approved a request by the Greenville Jaycees for a fireworks display on July 4.

The board also tentatively set a public hearing for July 19 on road names for secondary roads throughout the county.

County Planner Jeff Ulma suggested that the board should consider adopting an ordinance regulating the naming of roads in the county, including a provision for naming private roads.

Ulma said once final action on the road names is taken following the hearing, signs will be ordered and placed at all secondary road intersections throughout the county.

And the board agreed to ask engineering firms submitting proposals to do a county-wide water and sewer study to estimate the cost of the project before a selection is made.

Site Problems Snag Watermelon Festival

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

WINTERVILLE — What would have been the third annual Winterville Watermelon Festival won't be held this summer, sponsors say, because a suitable site for the event cannot be located.

The Winterville Jaycees, who sponsor the festival, say a disagreement between that group and the Winterville Board of Aldermen over holding the festival in downtown Winterville has forced the Jaycees to cancel the event.

Carlton Buck, president of the Winterville Jaycees, said the club met with negativity about the festival being held in downtown Winterville when its representatives approached the three-man town board last week.

John Weathington, an alderman, said the town board voted two-to-one last week to allow the festival, but not at the requested downtown site. Weathington voted against the downtown site. He said the town recreation park was offered as an alternate site.

Weathington said his reason for opposing locating the festival downtown is the lack of off-street parking. "We have a number of businesses which depend on the weekends for their major trade for the week," he said, "and it would be killed if customers couldn't find parking places near the businesses."

Buck said the alternate suggested is unacceptable to the club. He said the festivals, held on private property for the past two years, have been losing propositions financially and that if the festival cannot be held at a highly visible site like downtown, the Jaycees feel it's not worth the effort.

Susie Bowen, operator of Susie's Flowers on West Main Street said she agrees with the Jaycees. "The recreation site is too hard to find," she said. "You have to turn down a lot of little streets to get to it."

She said she personally has talked with every merchant in Winterville and that virtually all were in favor of having the festival downtown. "We don't think the parking would be that much of a problem," she said. "The Winterville Chamber of Commerce had voted a couple of months ago to support the Jaycees in holding the festival and we were shocked when the Aldermen turned it down. We had thought showing them the plans was just a formality."

Weatherington and Bobby Crawford were the Winterville Aldermen who voted Thursday against allowing the festival to be held downtown. Les Jones voted in favor of it. In an earlier vote the previous Monday, all three aldermen had voted against it.

According to Town Clerk Elwood Nobles, the aldermen felt they were offering a valuable site when suggesting the recreation area. He said the town has been wiring the site for the voltage needed for rides, concession stands and other features of festivals. It was the board's thought, Nobles said, that the recreation field would become a permanent site for the Watermelon Festival and other major public gatherings held in Winterville.

He said the Rescue Squad Day has already been scheduled to be held there in September.

The Williams Provision

RALEIGH (AP) — High school basketball standout Kenny Williams would be able to attend summer school this year to get his high school diploma instead of going to a community college under a provision that could be considered this week by the General Assembly.

But legislators, who joked about how the bill could help Williams, also said it wasn't written for the student at Northeastern High School in Elizabeth City.

When asked why the provision was included in the special provisions package, Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, jokingly said "he (Williams) called me."

The provision, requested by Watkins and Rep. Bobby Etheridge, D-Harnett, would allow students who do not pass 12th grade to attend summer school. Legislation passed last year allowed summer school for students in the first through 11th grades.

It was included in the special provisions package brought before the Joint Appropriations Committee Monday. The package must be brought before the committee again in bill form before it is introduced in the House and Senate.

"We want to help all people, particularly those who go to their left," Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, said jokingly.

Williams is scheduled to attend the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill this year. But he is two credits short of graduating and has not scored a 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test, which is required by the NCAA for freshmen at Division I schools to play college basketball.

Williams has said he has enrolled in an English class at the College of the Albemarle and also would take an elective.

Watkins said the legislation applied to Williams "same as it does for every other 12th-grade student who doesn't graduate." Having summer school for those who fail to graduate "is a heckuva lot cheaper to the state," than sending those students to community college to complete their degree, he said.

Resolution Asks Amtrak To Keep Eastern Service

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Amtrak should abide by its contract with CSX Transportation to keep the Silver Star on track through Raleigh and Rocky Mount rather than moving the passenger train's route to the Piedmont area of the state, some legislators say.

"We're just asking CSX to honor its contract and save the state some money," said Rep. Donald Dawkins, D-Richmond.

The resolution calling for Amtrak not to change its route is included in special provisions considered by the Joint Appropriations Committee Monday. The resolution caused a flurry of questions from legislators representing the Piedmont area, but legislators who sponsored the bill said the change could cost the state $1 million.

No vote was taken on the special provisions, which must be written in bill form and then voted on by the Joint Appropriations Committee before going to the House and Senate floors. Special provisions describe how money included in the budget will be spent.

CSX Transportation has asked Amtrak to move the Silver Star route, which now runs through Rocky Mount, Raleigh, Southern Pines and Hamlet, to a route that would include stops in Charlottesville, Va., Greensboro, Charlotte and Columbia, S.C., said Gerry Cohen, head of legislative bill drafting.

Amtrak, which has a contract with CSX to maintain the current route through 1996, has tentatively agreed to the new route, Cohen said. But Amtrak also has asked the state to pay part of the cost of providing connecting service from Selma through Raleigh to Charlotte at an estimated cost of $500,000 to $1 million, Cohen said.

Sen. Donald Kincaid, R-Lenoir, and Sen. Mary Seymour, D-Guilford, questioned the resolution, saying they had not seen anything similar to it in other budget bills.

"Isn't this a little bit of government feather bedding," Kincaid asked.

Sen. Wanda Hunt, D-Moore, said changing the Silver Star's route would mean the loss of 200 jobs. But Rep. David Diamond, D-Surry, asked how many jobs would be added in the Piedmont area of the state.

Although the resolution does not call for spending any money, it does not violate Senate rules for the short session, said Sen. Aaron Plyler, D-Union, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

House Minority Leader Betsy Cochrane, D-Davie, said that of all the provisions in the package, this was the "one that caught us the most by surprise."

Although Republicans raised some questions, there was little real dissent on the provisions. Mrs. Cochrane said the GOP legislators were "trying to absorb what it says."

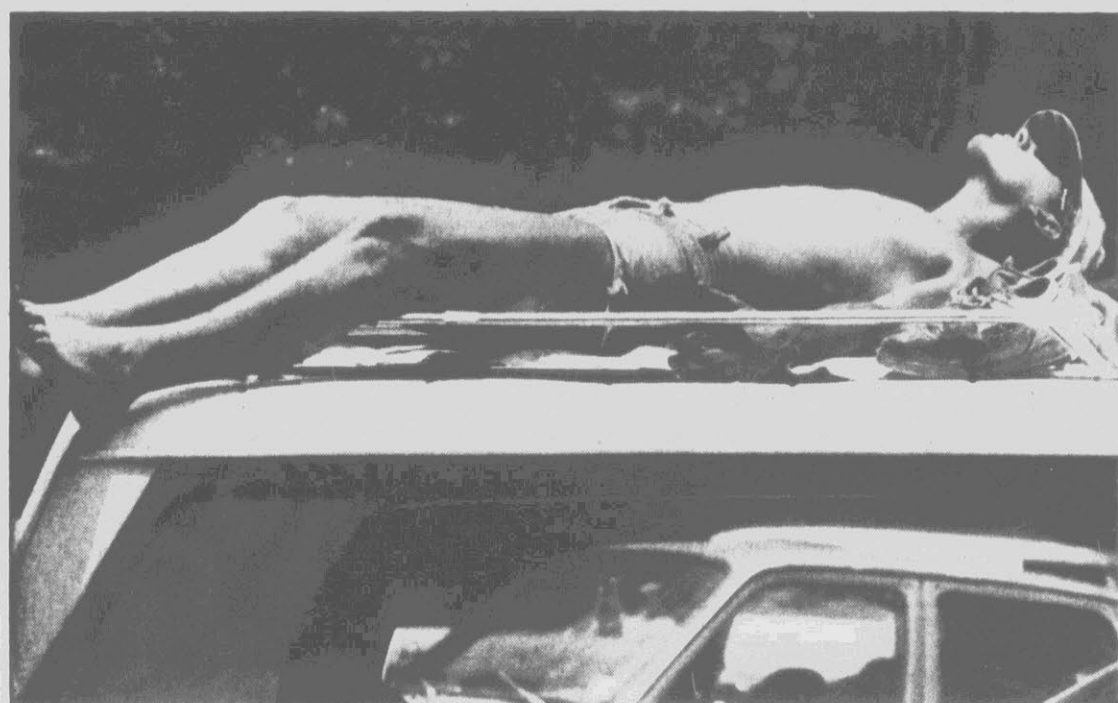

And although there were a "few oink-oink provisions," she said "those were minimal." She was referring to pet projects of legislators, known as "pork barrel" provisions, that usually benefit their district.

The special provisions also call for the General Assembly not to spend any money generated by the sales taxes on out-of-state mail orders before the 1989-90 fiscal year.

The bill would make out-of-state companies collect North Carolina's 5 percent sales tax. But the constitutionality is not clear, and legislators say the money should be saved until any challenges are settled.

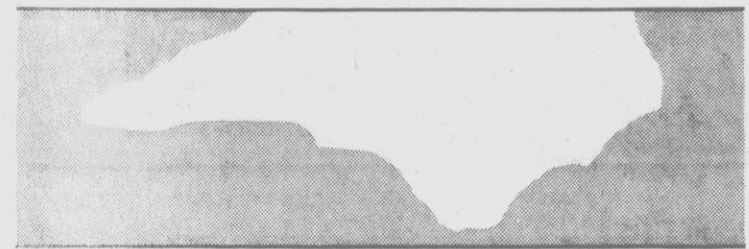

They also say it's not clear how much money the tax would raise, although one estimate put the figure at up to $59 million in 1989.

Consumers who order from mail-order companies already are supposed to pay a use tax, but officials in the Department of Revenue say the law is impossible to enforce.

Army Discharge

RALEIGH (AP) — A federal judge says he is bothered by an Army policy that allows a soldier to be discharged on the basis of a drug test without a hearing, but will issue a ruling by Wednesday on an injunction to prevent the discharge.

"You've got a guy's urine taken," U.S. District Court Judge Earl Britt told government attorney R.A. Renfer Jr. Monday. "Somebody analyzes that and says he's taken drugs. And on that basis he is being discharged and not given a hearing. And that bothers me."

Pfc. James Wesley May Jr. of Fort Bragg denies smoking marijuana. He filed a lawsuit June 10 against a regulation that allows the Army to discharge him without giving him a hearing on the test's accuracy and Monday asked Britt to issue a restraining order barring his discharge while the case is heard.

A temporary restraining order prohibiting the Army from discharging May expires at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

recommended it be moved to Washington.

Although assured the office will continue to operate in the park, Army officials said Monday budget cuts could force cutbacks in the office's staff or research.

Storm Injuries

RALEIGH (AP) — One man was injured when he was apparently struck by lightning at a Raleigh fast food restaurant during a storm that felled trees and set several fires in Wake County, authorities say.

Lighting apparently struck a cook at Bojangles as he handed a meal to a drive-through customer Monday. James Holiday, 24, was hit on the hand and left dazed by the strike.

"He got dizzy-like," said Angie McLean, a Bojangles employee who is also Holiday's sister. Holiday was treated and released at a local hospital.

The storms developed near Granville County about 3:30 p.m. and spread to Nash, Richmond, Durham and Wake counties by 9:30 p.m., the National Weather Service reported. One-half and one inch hail were sighted in eastern Wake County between Knightdale and Wendell. Isolated rains fell on scattered areas in drought-stricken mountain regions in western North Carolina.

The storm snarled traffic and brought gusting winds and driving rains. Flooding snarled traffic on U.S. 70 near Clayton.

The storms activated fire alarms across Raleigh, keeping dispatchers and firefighters busy. Small fires flared up and were quickly extinguished throughout Wake County.

Enough Is Enough

CHARLOTTE (AP) — On their first two trips to Charlotte Memorial Hospital, Shawn and Orlando Ager of Shelby came away with two sets of twins. The third time it was triplets — and an agreement to postpone any more visits.

"Now I'm looking for a larger house, with a basement I can section off," said Ager after his wife gave birth to the triplets on June 8. "That's the only way we can have enough room for the entire family."

Ashley, Austin and Atalie were born at 10:24, 10:25 and 10:26, capping a progression of plural pregnancies that appeared in both parents' families.

Orlando, 26, has a cousin with two sets of twins; Shawn, 24, has a cousin with three sets.

No Comparison

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Actor Efrem Zimbalist Jr. says there was little about his appearance before a federal grand jury that reminded him of his days on television's "The FBI."

"The only thing that reminded me of it was the reading of the rights," Zimbalist said Monday after testifying for about two hours before a grand jury investigating possible criminal wrongdoing by former PTL leader Jim Bakker and his top aides.

Zimbalist, who also starred in "77 Sunset Strip," was a well-known supporter of PTL and a frequent guest on the ministry's weekday talk show.

He refused to talk about his grand jury appearance.

"I have nothing to say about it," Zimbalist told reporters as he left the federal courthouse in downtown Charlotte. "I don't want to talk about it."

Zimbalist wouldn't even say when he had served as a PTL board member.

"I didn't come here to seek a story," he said. "I can't discuss PTL or anything about it. I'm not interested in publishing my statements."

Baby Kidnapped From Hospital In High Point

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A nursing assistant realized something was wrong when the mother of a two-day-old boy kidnapped from a High Point Hospital said a woman in a white dress had taken the child to be weighed, investigators say.

"She (the nursing assistant) knew immediately something was wrong because that's not our procedure," Page Redpath, a vice president at High Point Regional Hospital, said Monday. Ms. Redpath said hospital employees routinely use a bassinet to transport infants within the hospital, but the bassinet had not been taken from the room.

"She (the kidnapper) probably could have known that the baby was in the room," Ms. Redpath said. "When a baby is taken to the mother for a feeding, we put a sign up that says, 'Mother with baby, no visitors.'"

Chris Coble, public information director for the City of High Point, said the baby, identified as Jason Ray McClure, is the son of Richard and Renee McClure of Lexington.

"This is a case of someone posing as a nurse, someone who apparently knew what they were doing," Ms. Redpath said. "We feel like it was something difficult to prevent."

A police report said the baby, who was born on Father's Day, was taken from High Point Regional Hospital at 9:25 a.m. when he was scheduled to be with his mother for a feeding.

"The suspect walked into a hospital room and told the mother she needed to weigh the baby and took the child and left the room," the report said.

Ms. Redpath said the abduction was discovered 10 minutes later when the nursing assistant asked Mrs. McClure about her child.

Ms. Redpath said hospital staff sealed exits and conducted a search of the hospital building and grounds as soon as the kidnapping was reported.

Mrs. McClure and a nursing assistant who said she saw the suspect have given descriptions to police and composite drawings have been made. The unidentified nursing assistant noticed a woman sitting in the waiting area before the kidnapping was reported.

"She thought it was unusual that someone in a white uniform would be taking a break there," said Ms. Redpath, who added that the nursing assistant had never seen the woman before.

Ms. Redpath said the drawings differ from each other and that police have decided to release both of them.

The suspect was described as a white female, age 30 to 35, with brown hair worn in a pony tail and brown eyes, 160 to 200 pounds and 5-foot-7 or 8, the police report said.

The seven-pound baby was born Sunday at 12:22 a.m. to McClure, a pipe-fitter at High Point Sprinkler Co., and his wife, who works in the accounting department at Old Dominion Freight Lines. The child was the first Father's Day baby of the year at the hospital and had been featured by WGHP television in High Point the night before. The station is releasing videotapes of the child to other television stations.

Jazz Conservatory

DURHAM (AP) — The Thelonious Monk Institute of Jazz, the world's first music conservatory devoted exclusively to jazz, will be built in Durham's downtown arts center.

The institute, named for the Rocky Mount native and jazz pioneer, will offer a practical and theoretical music curriculum taught by leading jazz educators and musicians, officials said Monday.

According to Thomas Carter, executive director of the institute, the new facility will "create an educational, cultural and performance-based environment for young developing jazz musicians who will solidify and extend the philosophy and appreciation of jazz music into the next century."

Plans for the institute include a $12 million facility and dorm and $50 million endowment, officials said.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Spoiling Water

Leaking Tanks Are Health Hazard

North Carolina's lawmakers shouldn't blow a good opportunity.

In 1987, the House passed tough legislation addressing the problem of leaking underground petroleum storage tanks in the state. The bill required that the 300 actively-leaking tanks in North Carolina be cleaned up. It even provided a reasonable means of financing this clean-up — with minimal impact on the taxpayer.

Now, as it faces the Senate, the legislation looks more like a petroleum industry bill than an effort to remove a serious threat to the state's groundwater.

The problem is not a visible one. You can't see gasoline and oil leaking out of rusty tanks and seeping into water supplies. But leaky tanks are the nation's largest pollution problem. They are spilling petroleum into groundwater, spoiling an essential resource.

In North Carolina, where over half of the citizens depend on groundwater for drinking water, that fact translates to significant impact. And in eastern North Carolina, where wells provide the majority of the water supply, that impact magnifies.

So why did lawmakers decide to substitute a weak and ineffective bill for one that firmly addressed the problem?

The Senate version ignores the tanks that are already leaking and allows this pollution to continue unchecked. This "head-in-the-sand" posture does nothing to identify and removed defective tanks before they leak and pollute wells.

In addition, the substitute bill fails to provide enough money to protect against future leaks. State officials estimate that, in addition to the $15 million required to clean up existing leaks, another $12-$15 million a year is needed for leaks that arise in the future.

But the proposal — fees paid by owners of commercial tanks and supplemented with state funds for non-commercial tanks — would only yield $9.5 million a year.

The Senate bill is poor legislation that fails to provide satisfactory protection for the state's important groundwater resources. Although even this ineffectual program is preferable to no regulation, lawmakers should insist the original House bill be adopted.

Otherwise, they'll blow an opportunity on an important public health issue.

Dry Times

Higher Prices Likely Side Effect

Drought strikes fear to the heart of a farmer.

It can ruin him. If the rains don't come when the crops are in the field the crops soon wilt in the hot sun. With no product the farmer has no income for the year and thus nothing to live on or pay bills.

Nature has a way of making up for low rainfall in a given year but in many areas of the nation the situation is becoming desperate after several years of drought. Without income from crops for several years farmers can and do go broke. Many simply leave the land as they did in the dust bowl years of the 1930s.

While eastern North Carolina has not suffered from lack of rainfall this year, drought is serious in many farming sections of the nation. It is so serious that President Reagan has appointed a committee to consider the problems the drought has created. The chairman, Marlin Fitzwater, said on a recent trip to Kansas he saw stunted wheat and corn.

While droughts first hit the farmer eventually they affect us all. Already there are higher futures for grain and other farm commodities, which portends higher prices for the customers in the future.

There are reports of farmers dumping their cattle on the beef market now because the grain is not available to feed them. While that could cause temporary lower beef prices, the sure result is higher prices later when that beef doesn't come on market in its normal cycle.

A little rain fell in the Midwest Monday, but it was not enough to ease the crisis gripping that largely agricultural section of America. It will take many more showers and storms to adequately fill the gap left by not enough moisture from Mother Nature. If the rain does come, it will likely be too little, too late.

This year's drought is creating severe hardship for many farmers. They won't suffer alone however. Eventually the consumer will pay higher prices — and perhaps endure food shortages if the drought conditions continue long enough.

The End Of Invulnerability

When the U.S. surgeon general announced that other peoples' smoking causes cancer in non-smokers, the tobacco industry proclaimed it a "victory" because he didn't also claim that it caused non-smokers to suffer heart attacks. Now, after frightening away attorneys for years by boasting that its multimillion-dollar defenses couldn't be breached, the industry is again claiming "victory" when a jury found that smoking caused Rose Cipollone's lung cancer and agonizing death, and ordered it to pay $400,000 — more than the average wrongful death verdict.

But the myth of tobacco industry invulnerability was forever shattered when a young lawyer from a small New Jersey law firm beat their $20 million defense team — a victory all the more telling because it came in the face of judicial rulings absolving the tobacco industry for all of Mrs. Cipollone's smoking after health warnings appeared in 1965, taking away two of the plaintiff attorney's key arguments and requiring him to show that the company bore more than 50 percent of the responsibility.

Recognizing that lawsuits in many other jurisdictions will not have to face these obstacles, that the tide of public opinion concerning smoking has changed dramatically since most of the earlier cases were lost and that most of the expense of obtaining the key documents will not have to be repeated in future suits, many experienced litigators are already gearing up for more cases and more victories.

They don't really care on which legal counts the case was won because they know that plaintiffs are awarded the same amount if you win on one count or 10; that most verdicts are compromises, with all jurors often not agreeing on any one claim; that documents detailing a deliberate cover-up and conspiracy inevitably affect jurors even if they don't admit it and that verdicts in the initial breakthrough cases are often small.

Indeed, the breakthrough case in asbestos litigation was also based on documents demonstrating a cover-up, and that was only an $80,000 judgment. Also, in most cases of product liability, punitive damages were awarded only after earlier cases clearly established liability.

Injuries and deaths caused by consumer products, even where the risks are plain, often involve responsibility by both the victim and the manufacturer; the victim assumed certain risks, but the company failed to make the product safer or to issue more effective warnings. Thus in case after case — of power tools, electrical appliances and even step ladders — grieving families have long been allowed to recover a fair share of their losses.

Without such recoveries, manufacturers would have little incentive to reduce accidents by moderating advertising, providing more specific and effective warnings or making the product less dangerous. Similarly, many of the medical and other costs would be unfairly borne by taxpayers (under Social Security, Medicare and welfare) and other third parties (like health insurance) rather than by the company that profits from the sale.

Indeed, cigarette companies make such obscene profits largely because, unlike most other manufacturers, they have not been forced to pay their fair share of the cost of the deaths and disabilities that their products cause. These costs, estimated to be more than $100 billion each year, are now largely borne by non-smokers in the form of higher taxes and higher insurance premiums.

Thus the effect of these lawsuits is to shift some of the enormous costs of smoking from non-smokers to the industry, which in turn will be forced to charge smokers more. Such increased prices have been shown to reduce smoking primarily among two groups: children, who are the innocent victims and often find themselves hooked before they are old enough to understand and appreciate a health warning, and members of the lower classes, who are the most resistant to educational campaigns and social pressures to quit smoking.

If cigarette companies are not held liable — or, alternatively, if much higher taxes approximating the economic costs of smoking are not imposed — all of society is forced to bear these enormous costs. In addition, one out of every four smokers will be killed by smoking. Their families and society will suffer, and the tobacco companies will keep getting richer.

Requiring cigarette companies to pay their fair share for these deaths and disabilities will force smokers to bear the costs of their own addiction, help provide some compensation to their families when their smoking kills them and deter smoking among the two most vulnerable groups by using the forces of the marketplace rather than governmental intervention. Society will be better off, non-smokers will save, and smokers' families will receive some compensation when a wage earner dies. Only the cigarette companies will lose — which is why they are spending so much to persuade you that lawsuits against them are a bad idea and that they still haven't lost one.

Soviets Finally Pay Heed

It is easy to list the things that are not going well for Soviet reformers in the fourth year of Mikhail S. Gorbachev's party leadership.

Although many sensible economic reforms have already been introduced on paper and many more are being seriously considered, Soviet consumers are still no better off economically than they were under the late and unlamented Konstantin U. Chernenko.

And while nationality problems are being admitted, studied and dealt with much less crudely than in the past, Gorbachev's reward (in the lot of many a reformer of an authoritarian regime) has been serious unrest in Soviet Armenia and the neighboring republic of Azerbaijan.

There are no simple solutions to the problems of the economy and of national relations. The economic reform is meeting enormous resistance from within the industrial ministries and the middle and lower levels of the Communist Party apparatus; many of its departments (together with the careers of the officials who man them) will disappear if and when an economic reform with a serious market element is actually implemented.

As for the nationality problem, its intractability is illustrated by the present impasse between the Armenians and the Azeris (the titular nationality of Azerbaijan who make up 78 percent of its population). Mere concessions from Moscow in the form of greater decentralization of power by themselves can solve nothing.

Paradoxical though it may seem at a time when the Armenian capital of Yerevan has been gripped by large-scale strikes and demonstrations, the Armenians as a whole remain pro-Gorbachev, pro-perestroika and comparatively pro-Russian. They have long looked to Russians to protect them against their traditional enemies, the Turks and the Persians.

The predominantly Russian leadership in Moscow, while extremely hesitant about making boundary changes between one Soviet republic and another for fear of setting dangerous new precedents, is probably rather more sensitive to Armenian than to Azeri complaints. It has already authorized a substantially greater "Armenianization" of the disputed Nagorno-Karabakh territory within Azerbaijan than existed hitherto. This, however, has failed to satisfy the majority of Armenians who want to settle for nothing less than Nagorno-Karabakh's incorporation in the Soviet Armenian republic.

Only The Writer Knows

The real meaning of the thaw in Soviet-American relations is that the Russians can no longer be cast in spy novels and movies as the bad guys.

Arnold Schwarzenegger's latest film "Red Heat" is the first of many that portrays the evil empire in a good light.

This has required Hollywood producers to revise their scripts.

"Hold it, Richard. We're doing a complete rewrite of 'Ivan the Terrible.' First, we have to come up with a different title."

"What do you suggest?"

"How about 'Ivan the Good Ole Boy?'"

"Are you sure?"

"Richard, don't you understand? We can't make Soviet citizens the heavies any more. People won't accept it. The Russians are the salt of the earth, and it's our job to portray them that way. Now let's take it from the top of the script: Ivan works for the KGB, which is the agency in charge of dams and reclamation projects in his country."

"In the original version the KGB was the notorious Soviet secret service."

"How wrong can you be? Why would Ivan, one of our two heroes, have anything to do with the secret service?"

"He's not a hero in the draft I have here. He is a villain with plans to blow up the Williamsburg Bridge in New York City."

"Change it. Make Ivan the one who is going to save the bridge."

"So who's trying to blow it up?"

"What about Noriega and his crazy crew of Panamanians?"

"You'd like to portray Noriega's people as the loonies?"

"Why not? What could be better than the Soviets and the Americans working together against the little twirp's empire? Let's do it like this. Sam, our American hero, and Ivan meet at a Soviet-American softball game on Red Square. They take an instant dislike to each other."

"Why?"

"Because Ivan is short and Sam is tall. But they team up anyway to try to find the psychopathic bridge bomber in Manhattan. Although they are miles apart ideologically, the two men know that their lives depend on each other. They also feel that if Raisa Gorbachev and Nancy Reagan can hit it off, they can at least give it a try. For starters, the men learn each other's tongues. Ivan, who comes from Leningrad, teaches Sam fluent Russian, and Sam, who lives in Miami, teaches Ivan fluent Spanish."

"Do we still keep Hilda, the American civil engineer, in the script?"

"Yes, but let's make her a milkmaid from Kiev instead."

"You want a milkmaid to discover that the Williamsburg Bridge is going to fall down?"

"Of course, that's what makes glasnost for real."

"You bet it's my picture. The time is ripe to show the Soviet people as decent, warm, loving human beings who want peace and oil furnaces that work. When the milkmaid dies trying to save the bridge from falling into the river, there won't be a dry eye from Albuquerque to Smoienk. That is perestroika."

"The message I'd like to convey in this film is that it is possible for two men to work together in harmony in spite of the fact that one believes in God and the other doesn't."

"Which one believes in God?"

"I don't know. You're the writer."

Salary Gap: Why Graduates Shun Public Service Careers

Analysis

At this time of year all over America, graduating students are going forth from our colleges and universities to launch their careers. They do so at a time when the United States faces a host of challenges at home and abroad, challenges that call for the most enlightened national efforts — efforts to adjust to a new stage in the evolution of the Soviet Union, to revitalize our educational system, to halt the spread of poverty, drugs and crime, to improve the quality and efficiency of our manufacturing sector, to strengthen our ethical standards.

If we are truly to overcome America's problems, we should expect to see many talented young graduates involving themselves in the struggle by serving in government agencies, grappling with problems of foreign affairs, trade policy and chronic unemployment; teaching in our public schools to lift our sagging achievement levels; revitalizing our manufacturing companies to restore their competitive position; working in poor communities to combat crime, homelessness and drugs; or preaching in our churches and toiling in our urban parishes.

But what are the facts? Are these truly the careers our graduates are choosing?

At Harvard Law School, the percentage of graduates going into public interest and legal aid has dropped to less than 2 percent, while the percentage of graduates entering government service has drifted downward from 4 percent or more 10 years ago to slightly more than 2 percent today. In the business school, only 22 percent of last year's class went into manufacturing, while 57 percent went into consulting or investment banking — double the percentage of just 10 years ago. From the Kennedy School of Government, only a third of the graduates went where you might expect them to go — to a job in federal, state or local government. More than 40 percent found work in the private sector, more than a quarter in private business or consulting.

At Harvard College we know only the aspirations of seniors — not their final choice of career. For them, business has become the most popular vocation, closely followed by law and medicine. Only 7 percent say that they are interested in government and far fewer will actually make a career in public service. Less than 2 percent of the students plan to teach in public schools, and virtually none are interested in the ministry, for which the college was founded.

Nationwide the situation is not very different. In the last 20 years the share of graduating students interested in education has fallen by 60 percent. Along with that decline come disquieting reports that public school teaching draws from the least talented of college seniors across America. As for careers in government, the percentage of students interested in public service has dropped over the last 20 years from 12 percent to 6 percent, while the number of students interested in religion has fallen to less than 1 percent.

In short, the career plans of our students do not fit very closely with society's most pressing needs. Much of the explanation, I fear, has to do with compensation.

Fifteen years ago, corporations and consulting firms paid almost the same starting salaries as government agencies and not much more than public schools. Today, consulting firms and corporations pay 50 percent more than government agencies and public schools.

It is always tempting to explain those results by claiming that the market knows best. By the magic of an invisible hand, it is held, salary differences reflect the sentiments of the public as to what kinds of work matter most. With due regard for Adam Smith, however, it is a strange process that pays young consultants more to write reports than it pays to the young executives who must ultimately execute the decisions.

The explanation, I would assert, is not an invisible hand. If investment bankers and management consultants and corporate lawyers and chief executive officers had their salaries appropriated by Congress or determined by a city council or established by a congregation or a local school board, one would expect very different results from those we currently see.

Like public service, school teaching has also suffered a serious loss of prestige. From 1969 to 1983, the number of parents who would recommend a teaching career to their children fell from 75 percent to 45 percent. Since then, despite school reforms of the last five years, most teachers believe that their working conditions have not improved, and half of them believe that professional morale has slipped even further.

All those forces combine to drive students away from difficult jobs that urgently need talented people. Unfortunately, the problems promise to get worse before they get better. Surveys over the last 20 years show that entering freshmen have a growing interest in making money and a declining interest in helping communities or tackling civic problems. Now that educational loans have multiplied, even graduates who might be inclined to enter lower-paying careers often believe that they cannot afford to do so for fear that they will be unable to pay their debts.

Is there anything we can do to reverse those dismal trends? The choices students make about careers will ultimately be determined not by universities but by the outside world. If we are ever to match our talent with the nation's needs, therefore, we will have to look beyond the campus and change public attitudes toward the importance of government service, public education, social work, the ministry and all the other occupations that directly address the major problems of our society.

To begin with, we will have to recognize how much public opinion affects the morale of those who pursue those careers. People do not like to work where they are not appreciated. As a result, it does not help when two consecutive administrations run on an anti-government platform. Such a position might be tolerable if government could really be cut back or radically restructured. But Jimmy Carter's federal bureaucracy was larger than the one he inherited, while eight years after coming to Washington to "drain the swamp," Ronald Reagan will leave office with 5 percent more federal employees than he found when he entered the White House. If we are going to depend so heavily on government agencies and public education, we must learn to treat civil servants and school teachers with greater respect, or we will suffer the consequences.

Yet morale alone is not enough. If it is as important to have a gifted high school principal as it is to have a gifted young consultant — as important to have a talented head of a public agency employing 100,000 people as it is to have a talented chief executive officer of a company with 100,000 employees — then compensation levels for these positions must come much closer together. Here too, public attitudes affect the problem, for in the end, the public that decides what salaries will be given to our teachers, our public servants, our ministers, our legal aid attorneys, our community workers.

Unfortunately, many people still believe that government officials and school teachers are overpaid, despite the facts that argue so eloquently to the contrary. Those attitudes must change before we can succeed in attracting able people to jobs essential to society's needs. In saying that, I realize that we live in a time of financial stringency and huge budgetary deficits. But these fiscal problems are themselves the product of public choices about our national priorities. By virtue of the tax reforms of the 1980s, our total tax burden per capita is now virtually the lowest of all the industrialized nations. Yet the electorate will not tolerate any candidate who speaks of raising taxes or reducing Social Security or doing away with tax exemptions or mortgage payments deductions or other middle class entitlements.

These are the decisive public choices. So long as they remain in their present form, they will continue to limit the quality of public education, government service and other occupations in the front line of efforts to deal with our most pressing problems.

Perhaps the greatest hope for progress lies in the growing realization that our position in the world is no longer as secure as it was and that recapturing our influence economically, militarily and politically will require a vast revitalization of society. If that is so, the effectiveness of our government, the quality of our education, the conquest of poverty and illiteracy, even the moral and spiritual health of our society cannot be merely private concerns. They are ingredients essential to us all if we are to prosper together as a nation, investments we must make if we are to preserve leadership in the world.

Derek Bok, president of Harvard University, delivered the university's 1988 commencement address, from which this article is adapted.

A Pat On The Back

TORONTO (AP) — When Mikhail S. Gorbachev holds his Communist Party conference in Moscow next week he will have — for better or for worse — the support of President Reagan and his partners at the economic summit.

Gorbachev's effort to reconstruct the Soviet economy is encountering a lot of resistance, but he now can tell skeptics that he is winning friends — and the promise of more trade — from the West.

The promise is contained in the political declaration issued Monday by President Reagan and his six summit partners. They also urged Gorbachev to expand human rights.

"We confirmed our belief in constructive and realistic dialogue and cooperation," the declaration said. It was based on the individual observations of the seven leaders and a report Reagan gave at dinner Sunday night of his talks with Gorbachev in Moscow.

In his three years in power, Gorbachev has worked hard to convince the West that he is interested in conciliation. He has promoted arms control as one way to ease tensions, and released scores of political prisoners to establish his credentials as a Soviet leader determined to break with the past.

By easing tensions, Gorbachev gets a respite from the arms race and a chance to divert the money and energy he saves into the Soviet economy.

The three-page declaration cautioned Gorbachev and East European leaders that expanded trade would have to be economically sound and "consistent with the security interests" of the seven industrialized democracies.

More to the point, though, it lauded Gorbachev for "perestroika" and for improving human rights and said the West would respond to this "evolution" in a positive way.

"Greater freedom and openness will offer opportunities to reduce mistrust and build confidence," Reagan and his six partners declared. "Each of us will respond positively to any such developments."

The leaders welcomed the onset of a Soviet troop withdrawal from Afghanistan and the progress in reducing nuclear weapons since the last economic summit meeting in Venice, Italy, a year ago.

"In several important respects, changes have taken place in relations between Western countries and the Soviet Union since we last met," the statement said.

For a group of six capitalists and one Socialist, President Francois Mitterrand of France, the approval and encouragement to the communist leader reflected the growing accommodation between East and West.

At past summits, the seven leaders were inclined to sharply criticize the Soviets. The statement issued Monday, at Reagan's final economic conclave, found several items to criticize, including a military buildup in the Far East and the "massive presence" of Soviet ground troops in Eastern Europe.

"These threats must be reduced," the statement said.

But its overall thrust was positive. Mitterrand's spokesman, Hubert Vedrine, said the declaration reflected a major change from the statements issued at the 1985 and 1986 summits.

"The tone is not the same," he told reporters. "You can see how far we've come in a few years."

Reagan's summit meeting with Gorbachev in Moscow apparently was the clincher.

According to his spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, the president was pessimistic about "certain aspects of the defense posture and the overall adversarial nature of many Soviet policies."

And, the White House official said, "he did remind the group that the Soviet Union remains a controlled society."

But the bottom line is that Reagan, who built a political career running against communism and big government, approved of Gorbachev.

PRE-PLANNING AND CHOOSING YOUR CEMETERY LOT

We plan our futures with such care. Yet our futures must include a final resting place — and that frequently receives little or no planning. Sparing the bereaved this emotional detail and the anxieties with which it is associated, this is a wise thing you can do ahead of time.

Presented here, then, are several questions often asked about the early selection of a cemetery lot. You might well ask them of yourself:

- Which cemetery and location of plot?
- How many spaces and what's the cost?
- If we move away from here, will the cemetery buy the lots back?
- Can I sell my lots to someone else?
- Is the cemetery properly funded for Perpetual Care?

Some of these questions can't be answered without some action on your part. You should investigate and discuss them with representatives of cemeteries under consideration.

If you have specific questions, feel free to call on us. We'll try to help you find the answers.

SUSPECT KILLED — Montreal police officers examine the body of a robbery suspect who was shot during a robbery attempt Monday in Montreal. The suspect, who had taken a hostage after a bank robbery, died later from his wounds. The hostage, a woman, was also wounded. (AP Laserphoto)

Blast Kills Six Officer Trainees Near BC Base

CHILLIWACK, British Columbia (AP) — A blast Monday during a training session on plastic explosives at a Canadian Forces base killed six people and injured three others, military authorities said.

The dead were second-year officer training cadets in the third day of a four-day training session on explosives, said Lt. Col. Graham Meharg, administrator of Canadian Forces Base Chilliwack, about 60 miles east of Vancouver.

He refused to provide details about the victims but said he believed the dead included both men and women.

The injured, all men, were taken to Chilliwack General Hospital.

One suffered multiple fractures and was transferred to a Vancouver hospital, said Chilliwack hospital spokeswoman Etta Richmond.

The other two were listed in stable condition in Chilliwack General, one with stomach injuries and the other with possible neck injuries, Ms. Richmond said.

The unit, consisting of 29 students, seven instructors and five support staff members, was engaged in "cratering" when a premature explosion occurred Monday afternoon, Meharg said.

Cratering involves blowing a hole in the ground about 10 or 12 feet wide and deep, using about 60 pounds of plastic explosives, Meharg said.

He said there was no clue yet as to what went wrong but added an investigation was begun immediately.

The accident occurred at a demolition area about 20 miles southeast of the large base at Chilliwack, which is a training ground for an armed forces officer candidate school and school of military engineering.

Earlier this month, six soldiers were injured by exploding mortar shells during a live ammunition training session at Canadian Forces Base Geagetown in New Brunswick.

The soldiers, members of the second battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment, were practicing advancing on an enemy position that was protected by mortar fire.

The shells were supposed to land well in front of the advancing troops but landed in the middle of a group of soldiers, peppering them with shrapnel.

Last January, eight soldiers at Canadian Forces Base Valcartier in Quebec were injured when an old artillery shell buried underneath a campfire exploded.

Botswana Police Turn Back S. African Commando Raid

GABORONE, Botswana (AP) — Security forces arrested two white South Africans after a shootout in which South African commandos injured three Botswanan policemen, the president's office said today.

The statement said the shooting occurred late Monday when six unarmed police officers were fired at by five South African commandos who were planning a raid on a target in Gaborone, the capital.

South African commandos have staged numerous cross-border raids in the past on Botswana and other neighboring countries to attack suspected hideouts and bases of the African National Congress. The ANC is the main guerrilla movement fighting South Africa's government.

The commandos escaped, the statement said, but two other South Africans were later arrested at an army roadblock and were being questioned. Initial reports said the arrests came early today, but the announcement said only that the arrests followed the 10:30 p.m. shooting.

The announcement came hours after Gaborone police announced that a car bomb had exploded early today near the home of a building contractor in the capital.

The presidential statement said the bombing was "yet another South African attempt on the lives of innocent Botswana."

The South African military said Botswana's allegations were being investigated "to establish the facts" before any other public comment was made.

The statement issued by President Quett Masire's office said the shootout occurred at 10:30 p.m. Monday when the six-man police patrol was surprised by five South African commandos about four miles south of Gaborone.

These commandos — three whites and two blacks — fled in a stolen Botswana police vehicle which was found abandoned at the South African border, the statement said.

The bomb went off at 6 a.m. today under a car belonging to contractor Allison Seekeiso, parked outside his house, the statement said.

"Fortunately, neither Mr. Seekeiso, his wife nor any of his four children who were sleeping in the house were injured," it said.

It could not immediately be determined if Seekeiso is in any way affiliated with the ANC.

The statement said Botswana "reiterates its position that the problems of apartheid in South Africa will not be solved by cross-border raids, murder of innocent civilians and shooting of unarmed policemen in cold blood."

"We once more condemn those acts of state terrorism by the South African government."

South African commandos have conducted several raids in Gaborone against people they say are black nationalist guerrillas using the Botswana capital as a staging post for sabotage attacks in South Africa.

South African soldiers killed three women and one man in March when they raided a house and waged a gun battle on the edge of the city.

South Africans killed one person in a May 1986 attack against alleged hideouts of ANC guerrillas. Fifteen were killed in a June, 1985, South African raid.

Botswana officials have often denied the presence of ANC guerrillas, although the government is sympathetic to the ANC's aims.

The ANC seeks to end the apartheid system of race-segregation, to install a one-man, one-vote political system and to establish government controls over major economic sectors.

Dealer Sees Suzuki Recovery

By PETER COY
AP Business Writer

Suzuki Samurai dealers say sales of the popular sport vehicle are showing early signs of a comeback from the damage done by assertions that it rolls over too easily.

In an Associated Press survey, the nation's top 10 dealers predicted their June sales would be off by as little as a tenth to more than half because of the June 2 report by Consumers Union.

"For the first three or four days we had just literally no traffic," said John Alexander, general sales manager of McDavid Suzuki in Houston, the nation's No. 10 dealer. "But time is helping. Time is the big healer."

Separately, Consumers Union said Monday that it received a June 11 letter from American Suzuki Motor Corp. demanding a retraction of its report, but rejected it, writing back that its report was "wholly fair and accurate, and based upon properly conducted tests."

Dealers contend the people who still are buying Samurais are skeptical of the Consumers Union report and are confident the sport-utility vehicle is safe as long as it is driven sensibly.

"Believe it or not, it's beginning to turn around already," said Mickey Rhines, a salesman for the nation's No. 1 Suzuki dealership, Earnhardt Suzuki in Tempe, Ariz.

Consumers Union gave the Samurai its first "not acceptable" rating for a vehicle in 10 years after concluding the high center of gravity and light weight gave the vehicle a hazardous propensity to roll over if a driver swerved to avoid an accident.

American Suzuki claims Consumers Union, the Mount Vernon, N.Y.-based publisher of Consumer Reports magazine, used "biased and completely inaccurate" procedures in its tests, which were widely publicized.

Dealer estimates of the publicity's damage ranged widely, and it was not possible to verify their statements independently.

The top 10 accounted for 12 percent of all sales this year through May by the company's 206 U.S. dealers.

American Suzuki Motor says it would have no statement until July 6 about its June sales of the Samurai, its only car sold in the United States.

Attorney Says Client Guilty Of Torture-Murder But Insane

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A man accused of imprisoning six women as sex slaves in a basement torture chamber is guilty but insane, his attorney says, but the prosecutor in the torture-murder trial says the man knew what he was doing.

Gary Michael Heidnik, a self-styled minister and a financial whiz, sat unmoved during opening statements Monday. He faces two counts of homicide, six of kidnapping, six of rape and four of aggravated assault.

"The evidence will show that this defendant committed repeated sadistic and malicious acts causing the torture and death of two victims (and) he did it methodically and systematically and deliberately concealed it," Assistant District Attorney Charles Gallagher told the Common Pleas Court jurors.

"He knew what he was doing. He knew it was wrong and didn't want to be discovered," Gallagher said.

Heidnik, 44, an Army veteran on permanent disability, kept six women captive in the basement of his home here and raped them repeatedly, police said.

"My client is not innocent," defense attorney A. Charles Peruto Jr. said. "We are not relying on that presumption. He is very, very guilty. This is not a case of whodunit. This is a case of why it was done. He is relying on a defense of mental infirmity. His criminal acts will show him to be insane."

Peruto added, "Someone who puts human remains and dog food in a food processor as a gourmet meal for a celebration party has got to be out to lunch."

Peruto is trying to save Heidnik from the electric chair.

Heidnik is charged with murdering Sandra Lindsay, 24, who was strangled while chained to a pipe, and Debbi Johnson, 23, who was electrocuted while standing in a water-filled pit.

Among the first prosecution witnesses was Josefina Rivera, a 27-year-old prostitute, who said she was the first woman Heidnik lured to his basement, in November 1986, and the one who eventually escaped and brought police to free three others.

Iran Said Pondering Hostages' Release

LONDON (AP) — A British radio report said today that the Iranian government is drawing up a schedule for the release by Christmas of Britons held in Lebanon and Iran.

Independent Radio News, quoting an unidentified Iranian source, said two British prisoners in a Tehran jail would be released first, followed by three hostages in Lebanon.

The hostages to be freed include Anglican church envoy Terry Waite, who will be freed last, after the U.S. presidential election in November, the commercial British network said.

The Foreign Office and Iranian Embassy declined comment.

Four British parliamentarians arrived in Iran on Monday on a private mission arranged by Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie. The group, which says its goal is to improve relations with Iran, will return home Wednesday, said a church spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity.

"The source said Terry Waite will be the last to be released after the American presidential elections in November," the radio said.

Waite disappeared in January 1987 while visiting Beirut to negotiate the release of Western hostages. Eighteen foreigners now are missing in Lebanon. Terry Anderson, 40, the chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, is the longest-held hostage. He was kidnapped March 16, 1985.

Britain says it refuses to make deals to free the hostages in Lebanon. But Runcie told reporters today in London that he arranged the meetings in Iran because "I feel it is our Christian responsibility to keep talking."

The group consists of Cyril Townsend and Robert Hicks of the governing Conservative Party, Tom Clarke of the Labor Party and Lord Tordoff of the centrist Social and Liberal Democratic Party.

Wedding Vows Said Saturday

GOLD POINT — The Gold Point Church of Christ was the scene of the wedding of Amy Carol Matthews and Brien Lee Sweers Saturday at 3 p.m. The Revs. Steve Kirkland and Melvin Rawls conducted the double-ring ceremony.

Linda Davis was pianist and Brent Bennett sang "You Light up my Life," "The Wedding Song" and "We've Only Just Begun."

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Clifton M. Matthews of Williamston. Maj. Anthony L. Sweers of Hampton, Va., and Pamela K. Sweers of Grand Rapids, Mich., are parents of the bridegroom.

Kathy C. Roberson of Robersonville, sister of the bride, was the honor attendant. Christi Horton of Greenville, Charlene Harrison of Hamilton, and Sharon Petty of Sanford were bridesmaids.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Warren Matthews of Williamston, brother of the bride, Rodney Pritchard, Alan Horton, and James Robinson, all of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of white satin designed with a high collar, sweetheart neckline and cathedral train. Floral embroidered lace motifs etched with pearls and sequins enhanced the collar and sheer yoke of illusion. Matching beaded lace trimmed the bodice and leg o' mutton sleeves. The full skirt and train were encircled with scalloped floral embroidery and cut-out appliques of beaded lace motifs. Her veil of illusion flowed from a tiara of lace beaded with pearls and sequins. She carried a semi-cascade of white roses, stephanotis, gypsophila, pink jasmine, blue lilies and greenery.

The honor attendant wore a gown of royal blue satin fashioned with shirred sleeves, dropped waistline bodice and full tea-length skirt. She carried a white lace fan with swags of white roses, blue lilies, and pink jasmine tied with blue and white satin ribbon streamers. The bridesmaids' dresses and flowers were identical.

The bride's parents gave a reception in the church fellowship hall. After a wedding trip to Atlantic Beach, the couple will live in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Roanoke High School and Hardbarger Junior College of Business. The bridegroom is a graduate of Jacksonville Senior High School and Pitt Community College. The bride is employed by Horne and Smith, P.A. and the bridegroom is employed by Eastern Construction Co.

Couple Marries In Bethel Church

BETHEL — On June 4 at 8 p.m. in the Bethel Baptist Church, Dorothy Denny Allen and Joseph Paul Cullifer, both of Bethel, were united in marriage. The Rev. Kevin Morgan conducted the double-ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her daughter and son, who also escorted his mother. Lynette Bowers of Bethel was matron of honor and junior bridesmaids were Anna Henson and Kelly Allen, granddaughters of the bride. The best man was Carl Cullifer of Greensboro, son of the bridegroom. Ushers were J. Allen Henson of Minneapolis, Minn., Michael Henson of Huntsville, Ala., grandsons of the bride, J. Denny Allen of Rocky Mount, and Michael Colombo of Greenville, nephews of the bride.

The couple is living in Bethel after a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee. The bridegroom is a retired businessman but serves as magistrate of Bethel.

Visitors Have To Tour

Forget Nancy Reagan's and Raisa Gorbachev's differences at the summit in Moscow.

My heart goes out to Lidiya Gromyko, the wife of Soviet President Andrei Gromyko. She embodies every woman in the world who lives near a major tourist attraction and in the summer must play hostess to every visitor who drops in. I found myself nodding sympathetically as I read where she accompanied the first lady on a tour of the Hermitage in Leningrad.

We don't exactly live in the shadows of the Grand Canyon, one of the World's Greatest Wonders. In fact, we're four hours away, but summer visitors will invariably ask, "Do you suppose we could pop up and see the Grand Canyon?"

I pack the traditional Grand Canyon picnic lunch, fill up the traditional Grand Canyon tour car with gas and ride the traditional 220 miles to the site, only to have a guest stand on the rim and observe, "Back in

At Wits End Erma Bombeck

Ohio, we call that a big ditch!"

How many times do you think Lidiya, who is the first lady of the Soviet Union, has been to the Hermitage? I can imagine her reaction to going again sounded something like this:

Moscow: "Lidiya, how would you like to take a guest to the Hermitage tomorrow?"

Lidiya: "You want another revolution? I told you the last time, you put a moving sidewalk in the czar's palace and I'll take another visitor through."

Moscow: "You don't understand. This is the first lady of the United States."

Lidiya: "Why doesn't Raisa take her?"

Moscow: "She's been holding hands with her for two days now. It's your turn."

Lidiya: "If I see that diamond-encrusted blanket for royal horses one more time I'll..."

Moscow: "Lidiya, darling. She won't be there for more than an hour. Surely..."

Lidiya: "ONE HOUR! She's going to see 3 million art treasures in an hour? Why don't you just let her hang out of the car with an Instamatic as we go by? I've got a better suggestion. Why don't we tour a day nursery and have 35 children sing, 'The Farmer in the Jail?'"

Moscow: "That's 'dell'."

Lidiya: "Whatever. OK, I'll go. But remember, I'm 77 years old. What does she look like?"

Moscow: "She's 64 and weighs about 90 pounds."

Lidiya: "Oh God!"

And while Lidiya was touring the Hermitage one more time, I was saying to my guests, "You are standing on the south rim of the Grand Canyon, which was discovered by Don Lopez de Cardenas in 1540. It has an area of 1,900 square miles, is about 190 miles long and contains 277 miles of the Colorado River ... please hold your questions until lunch."

Feeling Confused Is Normal

DEAR ABBY: Our Middle Level Education Week events are behind us, but I want to thank you for taking the time and effort to send our students a personal bit of advice on how to renew positive attitudes toward themselves and their school.

Our principal read it over the public address system, and as I walked through the building, I was very much impressed with how attentive the students were.

Would you please consider publishing that message in your widely syndicated column? It deserves a national audience. — BARBARA ZELLEY, CHESAPEAKE BAY MIDDLE SCHOOL, PASADENA, MD.

DEAR MS. ZELLEY: With pleasure:

The years between 10 and 15 are indeed filled with self-doubts, confusion, excitement and energy.

If you want to help students renew a positive attitude toward themselves and their school, let them know that...

THEY ARE NORMAL!

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

ALL kids are filled with self-doubts, insecurities — and not a little envy because there will always be someone in the class who is brighter, more popular, taller, shorter, thinner, fatter, richer, smarter and more likely to succeed.

I say, Don't sweat it. Just do the best you can. Thank the good Lord that you have as many good qualities as you do have, and don't worry about what you don't have. Go for improvement, but always accentuate the positive.

Good luck! — ABBY

DEAR ABBY: You told "Flat in the Back in Florida" that Frederick's of Hollywood had "rear-filler-outers" that might help to solve her problem.

Sorry, Abby, those false fannies are very shifty, and should be used for standing-room-only occasions.

I know. I was "unfulfilled" when I got up from my chair the first time I wore my new posterior. I looked as though my bust migrated around to my back and went south.

I hope this reaches "Flat" before the "sit"uation backs up on her. — FANNY-LESS IN COLUMBUS

DEAR FANNY-LESS: Sorry my advice didn't work for you. My apologies — no ifs, ands or butts.

Straight dish soap and a soft brush should remove all the grit in the tiny cracks in vinyl car upholstery. Finish up with a rub of a silicone-based cleaner to keep the seats soft and to prevent cracking.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 59.25 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. A final weighted average of 58.32 cents. The market is steady and the live supply is adequate for a moderate occasional good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Tuesday was 2,142,000, compared to 1,981,000 last Tuesday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn 15 cents higher at mostly 3.20-3.36 in East and mostly 3.55-3.70 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 30 cents higher at mostly 9.55-9.77 in East and mostly 9.72-9.91 in the Piedmont; wheat 3.57-3.69; new crop corn 3.12-3.31; new crop soybeans 9.14-9.64. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady and ranged from 95 to 99 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices opened higher this morning, partly recovering from losses of the previous session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 8.89 points to 2,092.82 as of 10 a.m. EDT on Wall Street.

Among broader market indicators, the New York Stock Exchange composite index of all listed issues rose 0.47 to 152.43. The American Stock Exchange market value index rose 0.28 to 305.40.

Gaining issues outnumbered losers by about 2-to-1 on the NYSE, with 624 up, 310 down and 463 unchanged. Volume totaled 20.78 million shares after the first half hour.

Budget Proposal Snubbed By City Council

Ms. Shinn also indicated reservations concerning the amount of money budgeted to Pitt-Greenville Airport and the lack of funding in the upcoming year for the Public Works Department.

Council member Huggins said he voted the budget down to allow more time to digest the two-binder report.

"As a new council member, everything is still in the learning process for me. The other council members have years of experience and they are more able to look at the budget and understand things more in depth than I do," he said.

"I need a little bit more time. I feel that in some things I have sort of been rushed through, that I didn't really have time to address, and this is going to give me a little more time to address those things and concerns that I have," he added.

Council member Council, another first-time member of the city's governing body, said she also would like a final chance to examine the budget again before adoption.

"I just feel that if all the council members weren't quite ready and if they have some real concerns, that I felt as a council member and being supportive of them, that I should allow that time," she said.

Voting in favor of the proposal were council members Inez Fridley and Nancy Jenkins. Bill Hadden was absent from the meeting.

Following the workshop, Mayor Carter said he had hoped the council would have met their previously set objective of budget passage on Monday, but said he feels every council person should be given adequate time to deliberate on the matter.

Target May Help

whether the target who is cooperating is a Pentagon employee, a consultant or a defense contractor.

Attorney General Edwin Meese III refused to say Monday whether Lehman is among those under scrutiny. Paisley and another former Lehman aide, retired Adm. James A. "Ace" Lyons, have been implicated.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, refused to describe the possible warning, which investigators are examining as a potential obstruction of justice and which occurred after both Lehman and Paisley had left the government.

Meanwhile, Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci is reassigning five Pentagon officials under scrutiny in the Pentagon bribery probe, other sources said.

Those sources, who spoke only on condition they not be identified, said Carlucci had signed an order directing the reassignments. The sources said the affected employees were being notified of the decision by their respective services today.

The five are:
 —James Gaines, the deputy assistant Navy secretary for acquisition management.

—Dr. Victor Cohen, the deputy assistant Air Force secretary in charge of buying tactical command, control, communications and computer systems. His office was searched last week.

—George Stone, a Navy official in the Space and Naval Warfare Systems Command.

—Stuart Berlin, an executive with the Naval Air Systems Command.
 —Marine Corps official Jack Sherman, who works in the equipment and service acquisition section of the contracts division, installation and logistics department.

One source called the reassignments "a dicey thing."
 "They haven't been charged or indicted and most of them are civil service." Another source said, "They are being given other jobs; it's happening this morning."

The action followed a high-level meeting on Monday at which Pentagon officials reportedly studied what actions they could take in the case.

Carlucci may also consider whether to suspend contracts with the companies involved in the probe, including some of the biggest military suppliers in the country. The companies' offices were searched last week in pursuit of illicitly obtained inside contracting information.

Suspension of contracts could be disruptive to the military, ruinous for contractors who live or die on government business, and damaging to their employees.

One source said he doubted so dramatic a step would be taken at this point because the Defense Department itself lacks information about the dimensions of the affair.

"I don't think the FBI is sharing much with us yet," he said.

The New York Times reported today that three additional defense contractors — Hercules Inc., Gould Inc. and Electronic Data Systems Corp., a General Motors Corp. subsidiary — acknowledged that they had been subpoenaed in the probe.

The U.S. attorney for the eastern district of Virginia, Henry Hudson, who is coordinating the investigation, held out the possibility that more information about the scope of the affair may come this week when more of the 38 search warrants issued a week ago are unsealed and made public.

One search warrant that has already been made public said the investigation centers on leaks of confidential information — "provided by government employees receiving bribes or gratuities" — about contracting details which could enable one company to outbid another.

Hudson said 270 subpoenas have been issued so far and more search warrants may be served.

The affair came to light June 14 when federal investigators seized materials from defense contractors, military consultants and Defense Department officials.

"It's a very difficult decision coming up with a budget," he said.
 "If it takes whatever number of times it takes for us to deliberate, let's do it...we have to live with this thing for a year, so it's wise to take whatever time is necessary and to take as many looks at it as they feel necessary," he added.

Meanwhile, the council Monday unanimously approved a budget ordinance amendment for the purchase of a fire/rescue emergency vehicle for $45,000; approved a budget ordinance amendment providing $28,140 for the purchase of computer disc drives; approved a bid of $11,200 for installation of an air conditioning unit in the city's computer room, and granted authorization to the Jaycees to conduct a July 4th fireworks display at the Town Commons.

An executive session of the council regarding personnel matters was also conducted at Monday's workshop.

Summer Has Started

Also Monday, Concordia, Kan., reached 106, breaking the 103-degree record of 1952; Sheridan, Wyo., went to 102 degrees, topping the 100-degree mark of 1940; Madison, Wis., recorded 101 degrees, topping the record for the date of 97 also set during the 1933 Dust Bowl drought.

Temperature records also were broken in Michigan, Montana, Vermont, Ohio, Missouri, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota and Illinois, the weather service said.

Agricultural experts said the heat is adding to the problems of the drought in the Midwest and the Plains by evaporating what little moisture remains in the soil.

"These real hot days — 95 to 100 degrees — are using more moisture than we can stand to lose," said Harold Hunzicker, agricultural adviser in Marion County in southern Illinois. "We're still hanging in there, but that is not to say we couldn't have a disaster."

Tom Vigil, a heavy equipment operator in Denver who spends eight to 12 hours a day laying drainage pipe, had this advice for staying cool: "Think about Santa Claus."

Strange Wins Open In Playoff

How Sweet It Is

Curtis Strange raises his arms signifying victory as he walks up the 18th hole at The Country Club in Brookline, Mass. Strange defeated Nick Faldo in a 18-hole playoff Monday. (AP Laserphoto)

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — The waiting is over for Curtis Strange.

On Monday, he settled two old scores by winning his first major golf championship, the U.S. Open.

Now, he can put to rest the whispers that said he wins money but not titles. And he can properly honor the memory of his father, who died when he was 14. "This is for my dad," Strange said. "That's all I can say. I waited a long time to do this."

"I screwed up the 1985 Masters, and I was as disappointed as anyone. We don't have to bring that up, though. We're supposed to be having fun here. But I have been waiting a long time."

The 33-year-old Strange shot an even-par 71 over the 7,010-yard course at The Country Club, beating Nick Faldo of Britain by four strokes in an 18-hole playoff. The end came when Faldo had two bogeys on the four long, par-4 holes that start the back nine.

Although Strange managed to find only seven fairways while Faldo hit 12, Strange used just 26 putts, including a 29-footer for birdie on No. 13 while Faldo was bogeying the hole for a two-stroke swing.

"That was the turning point right there," Strange said.

Strange was the PGA Tour's leading money winner in two of the past three years, setting records both times. He had won two Tour events already this season, and Hale Irwin called him the greatest player in the game today.

Many other golfers agreed, but Jack Nicklaus, winner of 20 major tournaments himself, said Strange would have to prove it in one of the Grand Slam events.

Strange almost did that in 1985, leading the Masters going into the final nine holes. But he hit into the water on both par-5s for bogeys, and Bernhard Langer won. That may have been the low point of Strange's career.

"This certainly was the highest. You wait for a moment like this in your life, to be able to thank the people who helped you through your career," Strange said, tears glistening in his eyes and his chin quivering with emotion.

Strange's father was a golf professional and owned the White Sands Country Club in Virginia Beach, Va. He had Curtis golfing when he was 7.

"When I was 9 years old, I went to work with my father every day and came home with him at night. I spent every day on the golf course. That went on for four or five years," Strange said, his voice cracking. "I learned a lot of things from him — many things I can't even think of that I probably do subconsciously, and many other things that I think about almost every day. I just wish he could have been here."

After his father died, Strange said golfing Hall of Famer Chandler Harper "took me under his wing and looked after me as a golfer and as a person."

"There are so many more to thank. I couldn't name them all because you're sure to miss someone. But there's my mother, my wife Sarah and my two kids, who really don't know what this means to me," he said.

"You have to thank the people sometimes when you have the opportunity, and this is the greatest thing I've ever done," Strange said. "It's the greatest feeling I've ever had."

Strange and Faldo wound up tied at 6-under-par 278 after 72 holes on Sunday, forcing an 18-hole playoff, the format used by the U.S. Golf Association for its Open championship. Strange saved par from a trap at 18 on Sunday after bogeying the 17th hole by three-putting from eight feet.

Strange was 1 under par on the front side and led Faldo by one stroke going to the back nine, which starts with four par-4s, all over 430 yards.

The two matched par on No. 10, and Faldo bogeyed the 11th hole when he two-putted from eight feet. Strange gave the stroke back on 12 when he bogeyed from a greenside bunker.

The big swing came on 13, a 433-yarder. Faldo three-putted from 40 feet after driving into the right rough. Strange was on in two and birdied from 29 feet.

How much did that 29-footer mean?

"It meant a lot," Faldo said, "because he made it."

Strange said he had to guard against overconfidence at that point. "It's damn hard, but I know what happens when you think like that," he said. "If you get ahead of yourself and start writing your acceptance speech, you're in trouble."

Faldo birdied the 14th hole, a par-5, when he put his second shot 35 feet past the pin and two-putted, pulling within one stroke.

Faldo said what happened on No. 13 hit him emotionally, and "I was lucky I hit a good drive on the next hole. I would have been out of there if I hadn't. That's been the story of my week."

Faldo gave back the stroke on 15 when he chipped his third shot from one side of the green to the other for a bogey. He missed a 15-foot birdie putt on the par-3 16th and lost his final opportunity when he bogeyed 17 after his second shot went past the green into the short rough, putting Strange three strokes ahead.

Faldo also bogeyed the 18th after the outcome was already decided.

"When I birdied 14, I was only two back, so I was back in it," Faldo said. "I needed to play the last four holes better. If I'd holed that putt on 16, who knows what might have happened."

Strolling up the 18th fairway, raised fist in the air and a par in the bag after he put his second shot in the center of the green, Strange had settled two scores. The only question that remained was: Is Curtis Strange now the best golfer in the world?

"That's a tough one," Faldo said. "Sandy Lyle won three events this year. He's the Masters champion. To be honest with you, in golf today there is not a No. 1...."

"All I know is it felt like a hell of a long day."

Rusty Nettles Helps Montreal Top Cards

As a part-time player at age 43, Montreal's Graig Nettles can't be blamed for feeling a little rusty. But he felt loose enough to help the Expos defeat the St. Louis Cardinals.

St. Louis starter Jose DeLeon had held the Expos to two hits through seven innings Monday night and Montreal trailed 2-1. In the bottom of the eighth, pinch-hitter Wallace Johnson doubled with one out and lefty Ken Dayley was brought in to face the left-handed Nettles, also a pinch hitter.

"I haven't had a chance to swing against too many lefties this year," said Nettles, whose double tied the game. "But I've had a long career and I've hit lefties pretty well throughout it."

"He threw me a fastball which I was looking for."

Tim Raines was walked intentionally and, one out later, Andres Galarraga's double off relief ace Todd Worrell scored pinch-runner Tom Foley to give the Expos a 3-2 victory and snap a five-game losing streak.

"The pine boys really did the job for us tonight," Expos manager Buck Rodgers said, praising the efforts of Johnson and Nettles.

Elsewhere, it was Chicago 7, Philadelphia 2; Pittsburgh 8, New York 5; Cincinnati 2, Houston 1; Los Angeles 7, Atlanta 3, and San Diego 2, San Francisco 1.

Until the Expos' rally, it seemed like another hard-luck night for starter Floyd Youmans, who had allowed only two runs on five hits. Youmans, 3-6, had lost three of his last five decisions despite giving up less than two runs per game.

"Maybe this will turn things around for me," Youmans said. "I know I could have five or six wins if I got some more support, but I can't doing anything about that."

Jeff Parrett worked the ninth for his fifth save.

The Cardinals had taken a 2-1 lead in the seventh when Tom Brunansky led off with a triple and scored on a single by Tony Pena.

"This is just another tough loss for us," said Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog. "But we've had a lot of them this year, so it's no big deal."

Cubs 7, Phillies 2
Jamie Moyer and Les Lancaster combined on a four-hitter, allowing only two base runners after the first inning, as Chicago won its fifth straight game.

Moyer, 4-7, gave up three hits in the first inning, hit Mike Schmidt with two outs in the bottom of the third and gave up a one-out single to pinch-hitter Keith Miller in the eighth. Lancaster retired the side in order in the ninth.

Bruce Ruffin, 4-6, was the loser. The Phillies took a 2-0 lead in the first on a single by Schmidt and Lance Parrish's 11th homer. The Cubs made it 2-1 in the fourth on Manny Trillo's RBI single and scored four times in the sixth. Shawn Dunston had a two-run homer in the eighth.

Pirates 8, Mets 5
John Smiley won his fourth straight decision and Pittsburgh scored six runs on eight singles in the

Tigers Top Yanks; Take Over First

By The Associated Press
The Yankees lose people and lose games. The Tigers lose people, and win divisions.

New York, playing without starters Rickey Henderson, Willie Randolph and Don Slaught, fell out of first place in the AL East for the first time since May 3 as Detroit, which won the division last year, vaulted past the Yankees with a 2-1 victory on Tom Brookens' 10th-inning homer.

Is Yankees manager Billy Martin worried?

"No," he said. "If we win the next two, we're back 1½ games up. I don't lose my cool over things like that. These guys are playing hard and they are playing hurt. Anybody who runs scared now is crazy."

"I'm playing without my regular catcher (Slaught), second baseman (Randolph) and center fielder (Henderson) and we're still there. I've got no complaints."

Neither does Tigers manager Sparky Anderson, who has seen All-Star catcher Lance Parrish leave for Philadelphia as a free agent in 1987 and lost Kirk Gibson the same way, to Los Angeles, this year.

"We're scrappers, guys like Tom Brookens," Anderson said. "We'll come and play you. There ain't no way to keep us from playing."

"Everybody laughed at us. We lost (Lance) Parrish and we lost (Kirk) Gibson. We lost almost 400 home runs right there. How would they like to lose (Don) Mattingly and (Dave) Winfield? That'd kill you."

The Tigers have been killing the opposition lately, winning 10 of their last 13 games.

"This is not a spectacular team," Brookens said. "We're kind of blue-collar. We have some good days and we have some bad days. We punch the clock on the way in and we punch it again on the way out."

West Division leader Oakland blew a 4-0 lead, then came back to beat Milwaukee 5-4.

Also on Monday, it was Boston 14, Cleveland 7; California 6, Minnesota 5; Toronto 5, Baltimore 2; Texas 4, Seattle 3; and Chicago 5, Kansas City 3.

Tigers 2, Yankees 1
Detroit got a second-inning run on second-inning doubles by Ray Knight and Darrell Evans and made it stand up until the ninth, when Dave Winfield spoiled Jeff Robinson's bid for a second straight shutout with a two-out RBI double.

Brookens then won it off reliever Cecilio Guante.

"I can't say I ever hit a home run to win a game in the last inning before," Brookens said.

Athletics 5, Brewers 4
Oakland built a 4-0 lead on Dave Henderson's solo homer, an RBI triple by Mark McGwire and Dave Parker's two-run homer. After Parker's shot in the sixth, Teddy Higuera was ejected by home plate umpire Derryl Cousins when he hit Henderson with the next pitch.

"Teddy said he wasn't trying to hit him," Brewers manager Tom Trebelhorn said. "I don't think Teddy has thrown at anybody in his whole life."

Athletics manager Tony LaRussa wasn't so convinced.

Lakers Playing For History

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The NBA's team of the '80s is playing for more than just a title. The Los Angeles Lakers are seeking a special place in history and the right to be called "great."

They say they will have neither if they lose the decisive seventh game of the NBA Finals tonight against the Detroit Pistons — whose star player, Isiah Thomas, probably will miss the game with a sprained ankle.

Tall Story

The Lakers can enhance their decade of dominance and fulfill their coach's guarantee of consecutive championships by denying Detroit its first crown.

"If we win it, we will have earned our spot in the recent history of basketball," Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said Monday. "We have been the dominant team of the '80s and if we win, we will have earned that appreciation."

The Lakers won three of the first seven titles this decade. But no team has repeated as champions since the 1969 Boston Celtics. After the Lakers won their fourth crown of the 1980s last year, Coach Pat Riley found an unusual way to try and break the streak.

He guaranteed the Lakers would do it.

"I'm going to guarantee everyone we're going to repeat," he said soon after the Lakers beat Boston for the title last year.

On Monday, with his players perhaps one day from accomplishing that, Riley said he made the statement to motivate them.

"If they ever really wanted to accomplish something, it had to come from back-to-back titles," he said. "If that was the criteria for greatness, then... I think the players understand that."

He said his team's objective now is to win tonight's game at home, its goal is to win a world championship and its mission is intangible.

"What that is," he said, "is what we're playing for. Greatness."

The Lakers have won 16 titles, five of them since moving from Minneapolis in 1960.

The Pistons would be happy with one.

They are in their first final since they moved to Detroit in 1957 and haven't won a championship since they joined the NBA as the Ft. Wayne Pistons in 1948.

"I don't care about our fifth or sixth (title). All I want to win is one," Detroit center Bill Laimbeer said.

While the Lakers seek greater glory, the Pistons feel they finally are getting the recognition they deserve for a season in which they became surprise finalists by knocking off the Celtics in the Eastern Conference finals.

Edenton Takes 6-3 Win Over Snow Hill

EDENTON — Erie Downing scattered eight hits over nine innings and helped his own cause with a two-run homer in the sixth as Edenton defeated Snow Hill, 6-3, in American Legion baseball action Monday night.

Snow Hill took an early 3-1 lead by pushing three runs across in the fourth. Shay Beaman started it off with a solo homer with two outs. Anthony Jones followed with a double and Walt McKeel capped things off with a two-run homer to make it 3-1.

Edenton came back to tie things up with two runs in the sixth and went ahead with one run in the seventh and two more in the eighth.

Nash Long went 3-4 to lead Edenton while Todd Hunter and Downing added two hits.

Jones went 3-4 for Snow Hill while McKeel added hits.

Snow Hill falls to 2-5 overall and returns to action at Wilson tonight.

Tides' Ray Set To Transfer To Duke

DURHAM (AP) — Billy Ray, one of the top high school quarterbacks in the country in 1985, is expected to transfer to Duke from Alabama, Blue Devil football coach Steve Spurrier said Monday.

Spurrier said Ray, who spent two years at Alabama, is expected to come to Durham Tuesday or Wednesday and apply for admission. Spurrier said Ray probably would be admitted and an official announcement that he would transfer could come later this week.

Ray, who had also expressed an interest in North Carolina State and North Carolina, would have to sit out the 1988 season but will be eligible in 1989 and 1990.

The 6-foot-4 Ray was one of the nation's hottest prospects after his senior season at Dunwoody High School in Dunwoody, Ga., a suburb of Atlanta. He threw for 4,345 yards in his three-year high school career and was considered by many to be the country's top prep quarterback. Ray passed for 1,308 yards as a prep senior, completing 109 of 188 passes. He threw for six touchdowns and five interceptions.

Alabama signed Ray and quarterback Jeff Dunn, a fellow Parade All-America from Greensboro. Both were redshirted as freshmen in 1986 as the Crimson Tide played senior Mike Shula.

Ray played only sparingly in a reserve role in 1987, throwing 13 passes, completing seven for 40 yards.

Panel Discussion Set On Athletic Admissions

A panel discussion on college athletic admissions and how they impact for the Pitt County high school athlete will be held Thursday at the Pitt County School Offices in Room 201.

The discussion, which will begin at 10:30 in Room 201, will be moderated by Pitt County School System Athletic Director Bob Dailey. Guests include Gene Owens, Associate Director of Admissions at East Carolina; Chuck Driesback, assistant football coach at ECU; Dixon Sauls, head football coach and athletic director at Farmville Central; Pam Penland, assistant athletic director for Academic Counseling at ECU and Tom Morris, sports writer for the Daily Reflector.

The public is encouraged to attend and participate in the discussion.

Allison Remains In Critical Condition

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Hundreds of messages have been pouring in to Lehigh Valley Hospital Center, where veteran driver Bobby Allison is being treated for injuries received in Sunday's NASCAR Miller 500 auto race.

Maria Pillsbury, media relations director for HealthEast, the hospital's parent company, said 300 inquiries about his condition had come in by late Monday afternoon.

Allison, 50, of Hueytown, Ala., remained in critical condition today in the hospital's central nervous system unit, according to a hospital statement.

Donnie Johnson, Allison's brother-in-law, said Allison recognized his brother, Donnie Allison, when the latter visited him Monday.

"He squeezed his finger," Johnson said. "He's wiggling his toes. He recognized the doctor friend of ours. ... The doctor said he's responding to treatment, so we've got a little brighter outlook than we had earlier yesterday."

A blown tire shortly after the start of the race Sunday at Pocono International Raceway in Long Pond sent Allison's Buick into a wall. It bounced into the path of another car that rammed Allison's vehicle on the driver's side. Allison had to be pried out of his car.

Allison was treated for a concussion, possible internal bleeding and other injuries.

Davey Allison said Monday his father had a broken lower left leg, which was in traction, and fractured ribs. He said doctors drained fluid from his father's chest and relieved pressure in his skull, but said there was no further build-up of fluids or internal bleeding.

"The doctors tell us that everything is normal as far as his vital signs and internally (are concerned). Everything is stabilized," said Davey Allison, 27, who finished fifth in the race.

"Dad has control of his body. He moves his fingers, and that seems to be normal," the younger Allison said at the hospital after the family met with doctors. "He took a pretty good shot and he's busted up pretty bad. It's going to be a long haul."

"The people here were impressed with how much progress he made last night."

Davey Allison decided to go ahead with plans to race this weekend in the Miller 400 at Brooklynn, Mich. He said he plans to stay with his mother, Judy, until Friday, when practice starts in Michigan.

"I'm sure he would want me to go on with what I'm doing," Allison said. "I will be able to concentrate, especially after the progress he's made today."

UNCC Signs Mullins To New 5-Year Deal

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina-Charlotte head basketball coach Jeff Mullins has signed a new five-year contract with the 49ers, school officials said Monday.

Mullins signed a five-year pact with the university in 1985. The new contract will encompass the two years remaining on his original contract and an additional three years. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

"We are delighted to announce this extension of Jeff Mullins' contract," said Douglas Orr Jr., N.C.-Charlotte vice chancellor for development and public service. "The 49ers success on the basketball court under Jeff's leadership speaks for itself. Just as important is that Jeff has been a superb ambassador for the university and for Charlotte."

Mullins led the 49ers to a 22-9 season in 1988, and a berth in the NCAA Southeast Regional. N.C.-Charlotte won both the regular season and tournament championships in the Sun Belt Conference. Mullins holds a 48-43 record at the school.

"The extension of the contract just simply allows us as a staff to continue to attack the task at hand, which is to build a quality basketball program for our university, the city of Charlotte, and our many fans," Mullins said. "I personally believe that we have an outstanding group of young men with which to work with and, hopefully, last year's success will be a base from which our program will continue to grow."

Businessman Still Courting NFL Franchise

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Spartanburg, S.C., businessman Jerry Richardson, who heads one of three groups interested in bringing an NFL expansion team to Charlotte, said his $160 million financial plan to buy a franchise is almost complete.

"Hugh McColl (NCNB Corp. chairman) and NCNB are dealing with two New York banks to work out the details of that financing," said Richardson, who is in California until late July completing the purchase of 1,200 Denny's restaurants.

"If the NFL asked us to make a commitment today, I think we could do that within 24 to 48 hours."

Richardson's package includes a $90 million, 65,000-seat stadium to be built at one of four undisclosed locations.

Richardson's group is looking at two stadium sites in North Carolina and two in York County, S.C., all within a 25-mile radius of Charlotte.

HOK Sports Facilities Group of Kansas City, Mo., is designing the stadium and will assist in the choice of the site.

NFL owners and officials have indicated the league could have two expansion teams ready for competition as early as two years after the league's collective bargaining agreement is settled with the players' union.

Cash Hopes All Remains The Same

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The headband was the same — and Pat Cash wanted to make sure nothing else changed as he opened defense of his men's singles title at the All England Club.

"To me, it's just another Wimbledon," Cash said after eliminating 17-year-old Todd Woodbridge 6-1, 6-1, 6-2 in a Centre Court battle of Australians Monday.

The last time he stood on the famed swath of grass in southwest London, most of the green had turned to brown dust after two weeks of serve-and-volley pounding. That was a year ago, when Cash demolished Ivan Lendl in straight sets behind a blistering serve, then clambored into the stands to embrace his family and friends in celebration of a Wimbledon title.

This time, with the grass untouched — a lush green that would do the most finicky English gardener proud — Cash said he felt very comfortable.

"I came here (Sunday) to have a look at the court just to see how green it was," he said. "It was very familiar to me. ... I just knew the court well, so I didn't feel any different than a year ago."

On Monday, the serve was not quite as big as it was against Lendl. Cash had just one ace, but he handled everything Woodbridge had and threw it back.

"I just returned so well today," Cash said. "I suppose that set it up for me. It was a pretty slow court out there, but I made a lot of good returns. It worked out well."

His own service game was not bad. Cash lost just nine points on his serve, including only two in the final set. He won his last two service games at love and Woodbridge never got near break point.

"I think overall I am a better player," said the sixth-seeded Cash. Woodbridge is not among the world's top 200 players.

The only disquieting moment for Cash came in the third set, with Woodbridge serving and down 0-2.

With the scoreboard showing the third game of the third set at 30-30, Woodbridge hit a winner. But instead of calling the score 40-30, umpire Richard Lumb gave the game to Woodbridge.

"The umpire definitely made a mistake and I was very surprised and disappointed," Cash said. "It was 30-30 and Todd won a point to go 40-30 ahead but the umpire called game."

"I asked him what was going on and he didn't really say anything. Just 'Bad luck, I've already called the score.' It totally shocked me. He said, 'I called the score and you came and sat down."

Later Roger Smith, the chief umpire, said that neither Lumb or supervisor Ken Farrar was aware of any mistake. Lumb's scoresheet showed the score of the game as 40-15 when the point came.

Cash lost just two more points as he gained a second-round spot against Javier Frana of Argentina.

After the victory was finished in 1 hour, 44 minutes, Cash took a fistful of checkered-flag headbands and tossed them into the crowd, continuing a habit he began as an unseeded longshot two years ago.

"I had a couple of hundred altogether, but I've probably given out about 100 already," he said. "I do it in Australia and I do it here. Usually, if kids ask me anywhere else in the world, I do it if I've got one spare. But here, I kind of enjoy doing it. "It is a bit different here."

Dantley, Worthy On The Hot Seat

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — It doesn't take a rocket scientist to realize the importance of Adrian Dantley and James Worthy in the NBA Finals.

If Dantley explodes, the Detroit Pistons win. If Worthy goes off, it's the Los Angeles Lakers who prevail.

"I just feel I have to be into the game as far as the intensity is concerned," Worthy said Monday of tonight's seventh and deciding game of the Finals. "Quite naturally, I have to make my contribution to this ballclub. But I don't feel any added pressure."

"I'm sure he (Dantley) feels he has to make his contribution just like I do. We're going to try and contain him just like we did Sunday, keep him from getting as many shots as he might like."

Worthy scored 26, 24 and 28 points in his team's three victories in the championship series, and 19, 7 and 14 in the losses. Dantley scored 34, 27 and 25 points in the Pistons' victories and 19, 14 and 14 in their losses.

In Sunday's sixth game, which the Lakers won 103-102 to force tonight's game, Dantley made only three of 10 field goal attempts.

"It seemed like they were playing a little bit of a zone," Dantley said of the Lakers' defense in Game 6. "We just have to spread out a little more and go to the hole."

"My points are different. I think my 20 or more points might be more effective than 20 points by somebody else because I go to the (free throw) line, get them in foul trouble."

That's what happened to Worthy in Game 4. He picked up three fouls in the first quarter and was limited to 26 minutes during Detroit's 111-86 victory.

"I'm aware if I'm scoring, it makes it tough on other teams," Dantley said. "But our team's different than their team. Our team's not geared around any one guy. We've got eight or nine guys to go to. The ball just might go different ways, to different people. That's the make-up of our team."

 seventh inning as the Pirates won in New York.

With one out in the seventh, pinch-hitter R.J. Reynolds singled and took second on a single by Barry Bonds. Jose Lind then bunted to the third base side of the mound and Bob Ojeda, 5-6, threw the ball wildly to first, allowing Reynolds and Bonds to score. The Pirates then added five RBI singles.

Smiley, 7-4, allowed six hits in six innings, striking out seven and walking one. Jeff Robinson, the Pirates' third pitcher, earned his eighth save by allowing one hit in 1 2-3 innings.

The Mets took a 3-2 lead in the fourth on Darryl Strawberry's three-run homer, his 17th of the season and fifth in the last seven games.

Reds 2, Astros 1
 Tom Browning allowed five hits in 7 2-3 innings to win his fourth straight game and Nick Esasky's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning scored the go-ahead run for Cincinnati.

Browning, 6-3, defeated Houston starter Jim Deshaies, his former teammate at LeMoyne College, for the second time in a week.

Browning struck out six, walked three and gave up Kevin Bass' sixth homer in the fourth inning for Houston's only run. John Franco relieved with runners on first and second and two outs in the bottom of the eighth. He struck out Billy Hatcher and then retired the side in order in the ninth to earn his ninth save.

Deshaies, 4-5, allowed eight hits in eight innings, walking four and striking out five. Barry Larkin, who had three hits, tied the game with his sixth homer in the sixth.

Dodgers 7, Braves 3
 Shawn Hillegas scattered 10 hits in 8 2-3 innings and Dave Anderson had three singles to lead a 14-hit attack. Hillegas, who was called up Saturday from the Dodgers' Triple-A farm club in Albuquerque, struck out six and walked two in his 11th major-league start. Alejandro Pena got the final out to earn his fifth save.

Los Angeles scored five runs in 10 hits in the first four innings against Tom Glavine, 3-8, who is winless lifetime against the Dodgers in four decisions.

Dion James spoiled Hillegas' shutout bid with an RBI single in the top of the eighth. In the ninth, James had another RBI single and Ron Gant hit his seventh homer.

Padres 2, Giants 1

Andy Hawkins and Mark Davis combined on an eight-hitter and San Diego Padres made the most of three hits off San Francisco's Mike LaCoss.

Hawkins, 6-6, allowed six hits, struck out four and walked two before being relieved by Davis with one out and runners on second and third in the bottom of the eighth. Davis struck out Will Clark and Candy Maldonado.

In the ninth, Davis gave up an RBI single to Jose Uribe but struck out Ernest Riles with two outs and the bases loaded to earn his 12th save.

Singes by Benito Santiago, Garry Templeton and Marvell Wynne in the third inning led to both San Diego runs. LaCoss, 5-5, allowed no other men to reach base and had six strikeouts in the eight innings he pitched.

Craig Leferts pitched a perfect ninth inning as the last 20 San Diego batters were retired in order.

Winterville Machine... 10
Bethel 5

BETHEL — Jim Faulkner, Scott Claybrook and Travis Clemons each picked up a pair of RBI to lead Winterville Machine to a 10-5 victory over Bethel in a Senior Babe Ruth League game Monday night.

Faulkner also had a triple in the game for the Machine. Jay Sherrod led Bethel at the plate with a pair of hits, while Randy Hines added a home run.

Winterville improved to 3-1 with the victory, which was earned by pitcher Paul Jackson.

Little League

Coca-Cola 14
Kiwanis 9

Coca-Cola used a strong sixth inning to come from behind and take a 14-9 win over Kiwanis in a North State Little League baseball game Monday.

Coke banged out six hits in the seven-run sixth inning as Joshua Boyles, Robert Barnes, James Ebron, Adrian Jones and Jacob Zonn each singled.

Kiwanis had taken a 9-7 lead by scoring four runs in the fifth, keyed by doubles by Bryan Operario and Mike Rouse.

Steve Salargo went 4-5 to lead Coke while Boyles and Barnes added two hits apiece.

Tutu Moye had two hits to lead Kiwanis.

MacKenzie 7
Exchange 2

Alan Columbo went 3-3 and scored three runs as MacKenzie Security defeated Exchange, 7-2, in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game Monday.

MacKenzie scored all the runs it would need in the top of the second inning by pushing across three runs to expand its lead to 4-0 as Columbo singled and Craig Rouse doubled to key the sprint.

Exchange rallied for two runs of its own in the bottom of the inning but that was as close as it would get.

Monte Roundtree scattered five hits to pick up the win.

Ben Hahn had two hits to lead Exchange.

Babe Ruth League

Everettes 10
Coca-Cola 8

Everette's held off a late rally by Coca-Cola to take a 10-8 win in Babe Ruth League baseball action Monday.

Everette's pushed across three runs in the fifth to push its advantage to 9-5.

Coke rallied with three runs in the seventh to make it 9-8 but Everette's pushed across an insurance run in the seventh.

Computerland defeated Home Builders for forfeit due to a lack of available players.

Three Ex-Lakers Look At Finals

By Scott Ostler
(c) 1988, Los Angeles Times

Once upon a time they were Lakers. They got into the dynasty on the ground floor, helped build it, strutted their hour upon the stage, then were gone.

They were Silk, Savoir Faire and Patsy, known more formally as Jamaal Wilkes, Norman Nixon and Brad Holland. They were Lakers the year Jerry Buss bought the team and Magic Johnson came to town.

They're still here, in Los Angeles, but they watch from a distance as the Lakers, with a few of their old pals still leading the way, march into Tuesday night's date with destiny.

Few athletes have traveled the fast lane, on and off the court, with as much savoir-faire as Norm Nixon. Thus the nickname, shortened to Sav. AKA: Stormin' Norman.

Nixon was traded to the Clippers after the '83 playoffs, and after a comedy adventure in which the Lakers hired private detectives to follow Nixon through Hollywood. One detective, sensing a frame job by his partner, alerted Nixon to the tail. If the movie is ever made, Eddie Murphy and John Candy will play the dicks.

With the Clippers, Nixon settled into a professional obscurity brought on by a bad team and his own big injuries.

"I tell you, Detroit, the way they win is real ugly," Nixon says from his home in Santa Monica. "They don't win like they're in control, but they beat Boston that way. It's ugly."

"They walk the ball up, not that many fast breaks. They lure the Lakers right into that type of game, the Lakers get into standing around and pounding, when they should pound 'em as they run by 'em, bang 'em as they fly by 'em. You have to force the tempo..."

Nixon didn't enjoy the way the Lakers sent him packing. He was bitter then, probably still is. When he got the news of the trade, he and Magic Johnson and Michael Cooper, closest of pals, huddled together in the men's room of a fancy restaurant and cried.

"Where is Nixon's heart now?" "My heart is into watching a good game," he says. "I came into the league with (former Lakers) James Edwards and Adrian Dantley. It would be good to see them get a championship. It's great to see new teams come up and challenge. But I wouldn't mind seeing the Lakers go on and make history."

Is it tough to watch the Lakers winning without him?

"I would love to be winning, but the time I left the Lakers, it was time for me to go. I would love to be playing.... I want to be out there playing. But I have no regrets. It was a great experience."

"I'll plop down (Tuesday night) and check it out, strictly as a fan. Have a bowl of popcorn, some Coronas, kick back and watch it. I just want it to be a great game."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar noticed the uncanny resemblance between Brad Holland and Patsy Weber of the old "Happy Days" TV show. So Brad, a rookie in 1979-80, became the Lakers' Patsy.

Holland had his big moment in the deciding game of the 1984 finals, at Philadelphia. With Abdul-Jabbar absent because of a sprained ankle, and Nixon injured, too, Patsy came out of cold storage and scored six clutch points in a Laker first-half comeback.

He and Kareem became close friends that season, the supposedly aloof veteran superstar reaching out in friendship to the awe-struck, bench-riding rookie. Kareem would save Holland a seat on bus rides, and they'd talk politics, literature, even religion, from their respective Muslim and born-again-Christian viewpoints.

"With Kareem at the free-throw line (Sunday), I was rooting so hard I can't even tell you," Holland says. "I've been out of the league six years and I'm like a little kid. I'm on the floor, on the couch, all over the room. I told (his wife) Leslie, 'Kareem hasn't had a good game today, but I like him at the line. He has the ability to concentrate.'"

"I find that I feel so involved right now. I have no money on the games; I think my involvement is because of my affection and respect for Magic and Kareem and (Michael) Cooper, the guys who were on the team when I played. I feel an emotional tie to the Lakers, definitely. I feel very appreciative that I was able to contribute a couple good years."

"I spent some emotions (Sunday). I felt very happy, and relieved. I felt like in the old days, when I was on the bench, only this time I knew I wasn't going to get in."

Holland is executive director of the National Athletic Health Institute, so his respect for Abdul-Jabbar, 41, is professional and emotional.

"I'm thirty-one, and when I play basketball, I hurt," he says.

Every two or three years, Holland slips a cassette of that 1980 title-clinching game into his VCR. He watches Magic score 42 points ... and Patsy keeps hitting those big baskets.

"My girls (twin daughters) are 6½. They know daddy played once. Someday soon, I'm going to show them that game. 'See, daddy did play for the Lakers.'"

Every trapeze team needs a flyer, the daring guy who finishes each routine with a flourish. Jamaal "Silk" Wilkes was the Lakers' flyer, the fast-break finisher, the corner jump-shooter extraordinaire.

Remember Magic's 42-point colossus of a game against Philly in 1980? Silk scored 37 that night, the biggest game of his life.

Like Nixon, Wilkes wound up being exiled to the Siberia Clippers, after the '84-85 season, only Wilkes opted for retirement.

He lives just down the street from the Forum, but it was a two years before he came back to watch his former teammates. Jamaal's wife, Valerie, goes to many games, but Jamaal has been to only one this season, the opener of this series. He says he'll be in the stands Tuesday night, though.

"I still watch a lot of the games, on the tube. By nightfall, the business (involving real estate) I'm in now, I'm just wore out. I kick off my shoes and lounge in front of the tube. Partly it's that I'm in a different groove now..."

Wilkes always brought an unruffled calm to the court. He refused to waste energy dunking the ball or crying about fouls. He didn't play above the rim, he played above the fray. But now ...

"I got nervous yesterday (watching Sunday's game). I really was surprised. I got a little tense, yeah. I got a little tense. You sit back and enjoy it, and every now and then you let out a scream."

Jamaal Wilkes, screaming? When he played, a big reaction by Silk was a raising of his eyebrow.

Jamaal sees his old teammates now and then, but it's awkward. They're still friends, but now in different worlds. On rare trips back to the Forum, sitting among the fans, well, that's awkward, too. He has never stopped by the locker room as a civilian.

"We're living together (as a team), then we're not living together. Your interests change, you don't call up and chat anymore. The reality is, it's a different relationship and I'm moving in a different direction. We just don't have that much in common anymore."

But Tuesday night ... "I'll get there early, get myself a beer or a Coke, a hot dog, settle down and watch 'em roll."

Wake's Masse Is All-American

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Wake Forest baseball player Billy Masse has been named a first team All America by The Sporting News, the school announced Monday.

Masse, a 6-foot-1, 190-pound senior from Manchester, Conn., led the Atlantic Coast Conference in batting with a .422 average.

Masse has now been named to first team All America squads by Baseball America and the United States Baseball Coaches Association. He also was named to the first team Academic All America team which is selected by the College Sports Information Directors of America.

Masse was drafted in the seventh round in the recent major league draft by the New York Yankees, but he has delayed signing in order to try out for the U.S. Olympic team. He is one of 41 players selected to try for the Olympic team.

Teams Set For Game 7

"I don't think anybody's saying we're a fluke now," Pistons' forward Adrian Dantley said.

Not after they took a 3-2 lead in the series and not even after the Lakers struggled to tie it with a 103-102 victory Sunday at the Forum. The Pistons "thought we had it" after they took a 102-99 lead with one minute left, Dantley said.

But they let it slip away, a lapse that gained meaning Monday when Thomas, their star guard, said he was hoping for a miracle so he could play tonight.

He severely sprained his right ankle with 4:35 left in the third quarter Sunday and was on crutches Monday. Trainer Mike Abdenour said "his chances of playing are one in 99."

Thomas carried the Pistons Sunday with 43 points, including 17 after he was hurt, but said Monday that "I have a lot of faith in my teammates."

"I like our basketball team's chances. We're a strong defensive team and I've said all along the best defensive team can win the series," he added. "Even without me, we'll still be able to stop people."

Vinnie Johnson was expected to start in his place alongside Joe Dumars. Forward Dennis Rodman probably would see increased time in the backcourt. Detroit's other guards are Walker D. Russell and Ralph Lewis, who have played a total of nine minutes in the series.

Thomas "is our emotional and spiritual leader as well as our point guard," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said. "We'd definitely be in a hole without him."

They'll be in a deeper hole if Dantley can't recover from Game 6, in which he made just 3 of 10 shots and scored 14 points. In each of Detroit's three victories, he has outscored Los Angeles forward James Worthy. In each of the Lakers' wins, Worthy has scored more.

The Pistons also need to regain rebounding superiority. For the first time since the opener, Los Angeles controlled the boards, 41-33.

The Lakers have the homecourt advantage and experience in big games, having been in seven of the nine finals in the 1980s. Of the 13 seventh games played in the finals, the home team has won 10.

Los Angeles has lost all five of its seventh games in championship series, but only one since 1970. The last time a finalist overcame a 3-2 deficit was in 1978 when Washington beat Seattle. The Celtics did it in 1969, when they won the seventh game in Los Angeles to repeat as champions.

Now the Lakers must do it to achieve the same distinction.

Riley's guarantee "was added weight," Abdul-Jabbar said. "It also made us deal with what our goal should have been and we stuck with it."

"All of the rhetoric and all of the challenges that have been put out there are there," Riley said. "Now it just comes down to one game."

Players from both teams said they're thinking more about that game and how to win it than its greater meaning.

"All those (championship) banners

American League

"I have as much respect for him as anyone in the league but he lost a couple of points tonight," LaRussa said. "That was just a cheap shot. The guy has pinpoint control."

Higuera's ejection seemed to spark Milwaukee, which tied it on Jeffrey Leonard's three-run homer in the sixth and Paul Molitor's two-out RBI single in the seventh.

But pinch hitter Terry Steinbach doubled in the winning run in the ninth and Oakland's Dennis Eckersley pitched a scoreless ninth for his major league-leading 21st save.

Oakland starter Bob Welch also lasted only five innings after suffering a bruised hand when he reached out and deflected Dale Sveum's hard grounder in the fifth.

Red Sox 14, Indians 7

Boston continued its power surge. After collecting 23 hits against Baltimore on Sunday, the Red Sox went to Cleveland and belted Indians ace Greg Swindell, 10-5, who lost his fourth straight, allowing five runs on nine hits in 2-3 innings.

Mike Greenwell hit two homers and Jim Rice and Ellis Burks had one each. Rice, Greenwell, Rick Cerone, Spike Owen and Dwight Evans each had three hits.

Greenwell, on a 12-game hitting streak that has lifted his batting average to .330, enjoyed the 88-degree heat.

"I grew up in Florida and I like to work up a sweat," Greenwell said. "I thought I was hitting the ball just as well in April, but I got no results because it was cold and balls were caught up in the wind."

Bruce Hurst, 9-3, became only the third left-handed starter to beat the Indians in 17 games this season.

Angels 6, Twins 5

Wally Joyner was the difference at Minneapolis with a three-run homer and a run-scoring single. California, which has won five straight, also was aided by Joyner's sensational running catch in the ninth inning.

Minnesota, helped by three Angels errors, had rallied for three runs when Kirby Puckett lifted a high fly toward the stands along the right-field foul line. Joyner, running at top speed from his position at first base, gloved the ball over his right shoulder.

Kent Hrbek then struck out, ending the game.

"Wally's play was as good as any you'll ever see as a first baseman make — anyplace," California catcher Bob Boone said. "Add the dome to it and the bullpen mound and it was fantastic. It had the highest degree of difficulty."

Blue Jays 5, Orioles 2

Dave Stieb, 10-3, won his ninth straight decision and Fred McGriff keyed the offense with a two-run homer. Stieb allowed four hits in six innings.

Toronto took a 3-0 lead in the first off Mike Boddicker, 3-10 on Rance Mulliniks' run-scoring double, George Bell's RBI and Kelly Gruber's run-scoring groundout.

The Orioles never caught up, although Cal Ripken had a solo homer and RBI double.

Rangers 4, Mariners 3

Jeff Russell improved his record to 7-0, six of the wins since he became a starter on May 14. Russell tied Jim Kern's team record for quickest start by a pitcher. He gave up only four hits.

Jeff Kunkel, who hit a homer in the eighth, won it with an RBI double in the bottom of the ninth in his first start this year.

"I woke up this morning, picked up the paper, saw that a left-hander was starting and I was real happy," said Kunkel.

White Sox 5, Royals 3

At Chicago, Steve Lyons hit Jerry Don Gleaton's first pitch for a two-run homer in the ninth inning.

With one out in the ninth, Gary Redus walked. Gleaton relieved Jeff Montgomery and threw to first a half-dozen times before finally throwing a pitch to the plate. Lyons hit it into the upper deck in right field for his third homer of the season.

The drive made a winner of Bobby Thigpen, 3-5, as the Royals suffered their fourth straight defeat.

Businesses See Unlimited Potential In Private TV

By FELIX GUTIERREZ
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Arco, JCPenney and Merrill Lynch employees turn on their TVs, it's not always to catch the latest "Cosby" or "Moonlighting." They may be watching their company's own TV network to learn the latest from the boss.

"There are now around 45 private television networks" run by individual companies, said Marc Porat, head of the New York-based Private Satellite Network. "On top of that there are about 21 industry-wide networks" linking members of a profession, such as lawyers, educators and hospital staffers.

Private TV networks are tailored to each user's need. ARCO executives in different cities communicate through video conference calls. Buyers for Penney's view new clothing they can stock. Merrill Lynch brokers watch "ActionLine," a weekly program on sales techniques and new products.

"We've got rooms in Anchorage, Los Angeles, Dallas, Philadelphia, Houston and Washington, D.C.," said Arcovision's Don Walton. The Los Angeles-based system airs 80 hours a month, mainly teleconferences. Arco Chairman and CEO Lod Cook also conducts dialogues with 14 employees monthly on "Primetime."

Private television is rapidly moving past conferences and meetings. Some companies air regular shows for employees. Trade groups, churches and health organizations use networks to pass along industry updates, train employees or spread the gospel.

"This is the way corporate television is going, by satellite and live," said Judy Noble of Merrill Lynch's Video Network. The investment firm produces two to five shows a week in its Manhattan studio, beaming them live to 482 offices for viewing by brokers and, sometimes, investors.

"I've been amazed at how many churches have used memorial funds to purchase a satellite dish," said Pat Correll of the United Methodist Church's network in Nashville. She said 25,000 Sunday school leaders recently viewed a three-session workshop aired at 350 sites nationwide.

There are 12,000 receiving sites with satellite dishes around the country, up from several hundred a few years ago, said Elliott Gold, publisher of BusinessTV magazine in Altadena, Calif. He predicts 42,000 locations by 1992.

"We're running at about $20 million (in annual revenues). We have about 16 networks and we're building others," said Porat, whose company started in 1983. "We went from $300,000 the first year. We're growing at about 30 percent."

Porat's firm has served IBM, Ford Motor Co. and other organizations looking to pinpoint specific audiences. Private network programs are as varied as the groups airing and viewing them.

"FedEx Overnight" updates Federal Express employees on delivery conditions. The Hospital Satellite Network airs programs on topics ranging from sexually abused children to fund raising. Merrill Lynch's network briefed local brokers during last year's stock market tumble, and a two-way communications feature allowed some audience members to phone in questions.

JCPenney uses two-way communication on its Dallas-based network to plan advertising and promotional campaigns. The merchandising chain hopes to finish equipping 650 of its largest stores with satellite dishes by October.

Private television viewers gather in conference rooms, classrooms or living rooms, wherever there is a link to a satellite dish. To thwart video pirates, most shows are sent with a scrambled signal for decoding at approved receiving sites.

Receiving sites cost about $5,000 apiece to build; sending sites to beam the signal to a satellite run $200,000 to $300,000, said Louis Bransford of the Public Service Satellite Consortium, comprised of churches, trade groups, educators and health organizations using television.

BusinessTV publishes a monthly guide to upcoming programs on industry-wide services, such as the Satellite Conference Network and American Law Network, so readers can schedule viewings.

"You decide your people need to see the program and tell them to block out the day on the schedule," said Gold. "Then you contact the programmer, who sets the price and sends the (reading) materials. On the day of the program you watch it. When you have a question you pick up the phone and ask."

Ad Agency Tops Clio Awards

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Michael J. Fox's mad dash out his window and through the rain to get a soft drink for an attractive woman helped the advertising agency BBDO win two Clio awards for television commercials.

BBDO, with offices in New York and Los Angeles, won six Clio awards on Monday for TV commercials. It won two for Apple Computer products and one each for a corporate ad for DuPont and a retail services ad for PIP Printing.

Chiat-Day Advertising, also with offices in New York and Los Angeles, won five, including two each for ads for Arrow shirts and the regional telephone company Nynex. The fifth was an ad for Foster Farms Chicken.

The television Clio for the best national advertising campaign went to the New York-based Cliff Freeman & Partners for a series of ads for Philips Light Bulbs that show what can go wrong when a bulb burns out.

One ad showed a matronly woman wondering where the magic has gone in her marriage as her husband slurps his soup at the dinner table. After the light goes out, a snore, then a splash and finally a gurgle can be heard as the old man apparently dozes off into his soup.

Production houses Pytka of Venice, Calif., and Rick Levine Productions of New York each won four Clios on Monday.

Archives Donated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Academy of Television Arts & Sciences is looking for the donation of archives from producers, directors, writers, actors and others for a new library.

Doug Duitsman, president of the academy and an executive at Warner Bros. Television, said he is turning his personal collection over to the library. Jane Wyman said she would donate 165 annotated scripts of "Falcon Crest," and Syd Cassyd, founder of the academy, is donating his extensive files.

Pytka won for its work with BBDO on the Apple computer ads in the home entertainment and office equipment categories, for a commercial for Bartles & Jaymes wine cooler and for an ad for Perrier water.

Levine won three Clios for its work with BBDO on a Diet Pepsi ad called "Apartment 10G" that showed Fox scrambling out his apartment window and across traffic to get the soft drink for a pretty neighbor.

Levine's fourth Clio was for its work with BBDO on the DuPont ad called "Bill Demby" that showed a man who had lost his legs in Vietnam playing basketball with his friends with the aid of artificial legs.

Clio Awards, a private concern based in New York, had been administering the presentations for 29 years.

'Red Heat' Led Weekend Ticket Sales At Box Office

By RICHARD DE ATLEY
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Red Heat," "Big" and "The Great Outdoors" were the top box office attractions last weekend.

Receipts for "Red Heat," a law-and-order movie teaming Arnold Schwarzenegger's Moscow policeman with Jim Belushi's Chicago cop, totaled $8.1 million.

Tom Hanks' movie "Big" remained in second place with $6.6 million in ticket sales.

"The Great Outdoors," starring Dan Aykroyd and John Candy, earning $6.12 million for its first week. The John Hughes movie is about a slob whose family vacation in Wisconsin is disrupted by his uppity brother-in-law.

The success of "Red Heat" and "The Great Outdoors" came at the expense of "Crocodile Dundee II," which slipped from first to fourth, earning $6.11 million.

"Big Business," starring Lily Tomlin and Bette Midler in dual roles as two sets of mismatched twins, earned more than $5 million for fifth place.

"Bull Durham," the baseball-and-romance story starring Kevin Costner and Susan Sarandon, stayed out of the minor leagues by selling about $5 million in tickets.

Rounding out the top 10 list of earners for last weekend were "Willow" in seventh place with $2.9 million, "Funny Farm" with $2.77 million, "Rambo III" with $2.745 million and "The Presidio" with $2.742 million.

Making its debut this week is the Steven Spielberg-Walt Disney "Who Framed Roger Rabbit," which stars Bob Hoskins as a down-and-out private eye trying to save the marriage of a cartoon character. The movie mixes animation with live sequences.

Here are the top films for the weekend as compiled by Exhibitor Relations, with distributor, weekend gross, number of theater screens, average per screen, total gross, number of weeks in release and estimated production costs when available.

1. "Red Heat," Tri-Star, $8.1 million, 1,885 screens, $4,315 per screen, $8.1 million, one week, $18 million.
2. "Big," 20th Century Fox, $6.6 million, 1,174 screens, $5,634 per screen, $31.2 million, three weeks, $15 million.
3. "The Great Outdoors," Universal, $6.12 million, 1,223 screens, $5,005 per screen, $6.1 million, on week, n-a.
4. "Crocodile, Dundee II," Paramount, $6.11 million, 2,394 screens, $2,553 per screen, $71.2 million, four weeks, $14 million.
5. "Big Business," Disney, $5.04 million, 1,167 screens, $4,325 per screen, $14.1 million, two weeks, $15 million.
6. "Bull Durham," Orion, $5 million, 1,238 screens, $4,046 per screen, $5 million, one week, n-a.
7. "Willow," MGM-UA, $2.9 million, 1,029 screens, $2,834 per screen, $35.3 million, five weeks, $35 million.

8. "Funny Farm," Warner Bros., $2.771 million, 1,477 screens, $1,877 per screen, $16.8 million, three weeks, $16 million.

9. "Rambo III," Tri-Star, $2.745 million, 1,921 screens, $1,429 per screen, $44 million, four weeks, $60 million.

10. "The Presidio," Paramount, $2 million, 1,168 screens, $2,438 per screen, $10 million, two weeks, $20 million.

Shandling's Too Busy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Garry Shandling says he had to turn down a stint as guest host of "The Tonight Show," which helped him get his start, because he has too many other projects in the works.

The production schedule of "It's Garry Shandling's Show" and the immediate start of production on "It's Garry Shandling's Movie" kept him from accepting NBC's offer, his manager Brad Grey said Monday.

"Johnny Carson has been one of the biggest supporters of my career from the beginning," said Shandling, whose series appears on cable TV's Showtime and Fox Broadcasting Co.

"It's ironic that 'The Tonight Show,' which has been such a catalyst in my career, has helped put me in a position where I simply don't have time to host it right now."

Murphy Signs Pact

NEW YORK (AP) — Eddie Murphy, who starred in "Trading Places," "48 Hours" and "Beverly Hills Cop," is returning to the small screen after signing a three-year, exclusive television deal with CBS, the network said.

CBS said Monday that Eddie Murphy Television Entertainment Inc. will produce a half-hour series, pilots and three annual specials for the network. CBS said the actor-comedian would produce and appear in broadcasts, but it didn't elaborate.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY June 22

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Friends who are ordinarily quite cooperative are too busy with their own affairs to help you now. Be careful not to abuse loved ones today.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Lapsed energies may make it hard to get started today, but apply yourself seriously anyway. New information brightens the evening.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A creative idea could prove prohibitively time-consuming, but persevere. Be understanding of moodiness in a close friend.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Lack of co-operation among kin might put plans on hold. This is not the time to deal with casual associates. Finish old business.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Check yourself so as not to hurt another's feelings. Be sure travel plans are accurate. Rest, renew energies.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Be wary of financial advice that may be well-intended but faulty. Don't take on a new expense. Now is the time to pursue a new love.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Recent thoughts about radical change may warrant second thoughts. Your present unhappiness may emanate from unexplored sources.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Postpone discussion of private plans. Break a rut by cultivating a new friendship. Keep temperament smooth.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Inner resources and independent goals should be prioritized. Not a good time to take social risk. Practice restraint with money.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Emphasis on following rules and being conscientious. Others have critical eyes on you. Settle credit matters in amicable manner.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Put off a pie-in-the-sky dream so that you can devote energy to urgent matter. It's an ideal time to make phone calls, write important personal letters.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Mutual benefits will be realized if you defer to your mate on an important issue. Good time to settle practical accounts. Indulge others.

Opening lead: Jack of ♣ Even double dummy, it is not easy to spot the winning line to the grand slam after a club lead. We are told that it was actually found at the table. Although we accept this statement at face value, the declarer who made this hand so brilliantly remains anonymous.

After South's reverse, North cuebid his club ace at the three-level as a temporizing measure. Once South could look for a grand slam with five no trump, despite the fact that he had poor trumps, North realized that South had to have enough controls to make the grand slam a viable contract.

Declarer won the opening club lead in hand, cashed the king of diamonds, then crossed to dummy by leading a low trump to the ten. Next came the ace of clubs, on which declarer discarded the ace of diamonds!

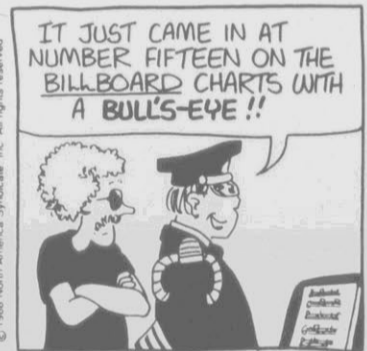

The rest was relatively easy. Declarer ruffed a diamond high, to draw trumps ending on the table, then run diamonds. As the cards lie, all he had to do to land his contract was to execute a dummy reversal combined with a jettison play, and declarer is too modest to claim his work of art!

If We Make A Mistake On Your Account, We'll Send You This Note Of Apology.

Error-Free Checking From NCNB.

If NCNB makes as much as a one-cent error on your monthly checking account statement, we'll do more than correct the mistake and say we're sorry. We'll make it right by giving you ten dollars.

Why give away money for a mistake? After all, we process more than a million checks a day. It's simple. NCNB believes that just one mistake is one mistake too many. Especially if it's your account.

Error-free checking or else (or else ten dollars) from NCNB.
