Chamber Study Ranks Greenville Second In State In Cost Of Living

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville officials say the city's cost of living is reflective of a growing economy but it is not the second highest in the state.

In telephone interviews this morning, they commented on an American Chamber of Commerce Researchers Association index that listed Greenville second only to Chapel Hill as the city with the highest cost of living in the state for the first quarter of this year.

"From all the statistics I've seen, that would be an exaggeration," Greenville City Councilman Bill Hadden said. "I really think, in my mind, that would be a heavy exaggeration. It ranks among higher places to live, but not second... some distance from second."

"The relatively high cost of living is because we're a pretty heavily professional city," Hadden said, referring to East Carolina University, the ECU School of Medicine and the city's major industries.

"They bring in a higher income of people but we still have a good balance of industrial employment and commercial employment," he said. "There are not quite as many of the lower paid jobs, because of the kind of industries we have.

"Low-paying industries may have a problem thinking about Greenville, but Greenville is an open market for modern and higher paying industries," Hadden said. Plus, "Greenville is such a good place to live. It has a higher quality of living."

Iranian Jet Was In Proper Lane

By MERRILL HARTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says the Iranian airliner shot down by a Navy ship in the Persian Gulf was broadcasting on a military channel, although officials privately acknowledge the jet was in commercial airspace at the time of the incident.

The Reagan administration said Tuesday that Capt. Will C. Rogers III of the cruiser USS Vincennes thought his ship was under attack in part because of conflicting identification signals sent from the Iran Air A-300 Airbus.

Pentagon spokesman Daniel Howard said some of the signals were on a military frequency identified with F-14 fighter jets.

But while the administration was defending the decision to fire on the airliner, sentiment grew for U.S. reparations to relatives of the disaster's victims and officials were being buffeted by calls for a speedy gesture of conciliation on the world stage.

On the record, administration officials said there had been no discussion of awarding reparations. But sources who spoke only on condition of anonymity said the idea was under active consideration at the State Department, the Pentagon and the White House.

Reagan did not rule out reparations, saying it "is a matter that has to be discussed" once a U.S. investigative team dispatched to the gulf completes its work.

But Airbus spokesman David Velupillai said from the southern French town of Toulouse that the jet involved in the incident was delivered to Iran Air six years ago with two transponders aboard that should have responded to identification requests from the Vincennes.

Iranian airliner pilots, however, denied that Flight 655 would have been sending on a military channel.

In London on Tuesday, Capt. Massoud Razavi, a senior Iran Air pilot, denied U.S. claims that the downed A-300 was transmitting on two transponders, including a frequency used previously for military information.

He told a news conference at the Iranian Embassy: "The transponder we are using is the standard transponder and we use 'mode A' which is the civilian code. The code is given by Dubai (where the jet was headed) and it is preset into the transponder before takeoff."

Capt. Mehroujan Gharib, an Iran Air Boeing 747 supervisory pilot and safety officer, replied "No" at the same conference when asked if Iran Air civilian planes sometimes used a military frequency.

Iran has accused the United States of intentionally shooting down the wide-bodied jet which was flying over the Persian Gulf with 290 people aboard. President Reagan and other U.S. officials have described it as a tragic accident.

One congressional source said administration officials are recommending that Reagan quickly make an offer of compensation on a humanitarian basis, in part to differentiate

Indian Hostage-Takers Freed

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — While some searched for apologies from the government, accused hostage-takers Eddie Hatcher and Timothy Jacobs said they were glad to be freed from jail as both headed in different directions.

The two American Indians, accused of taking hostages at a Lumberton newspaper on Feb. 1, were freed from jail under $100,000 unsecured bonds Tuesday and ordered not to set foot in Robeson County while awaiting trial.

"I've seen murderers and rapists let out on bond right away, but they put us through hell for the last five months," Jacobs, 19, said as he left the courthouse.

"I'm glad to be out," Hatcher, 30, told a friend on the steps of the federal courthouse after he and Jacobs completed the necessary paperwork and walked outside. "It feels good."

U.S. Magistrate Charles McCotter set the conditions for their release after a 90-minute hearing. But he indicated that he was reluctant to free the two men, who are accused of taking up to 20 people hostage at The Robesonian newspaper.

But McCotter said a ruling by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last week, which held that Hatcher and Jacobs had been denied a timely detention hearing after their arrest, gave him no choice.

The conditions require Hatcher and Jacobs to stay out of Robeson County, avoid all contact with government witnesses, report daily by telephone to federal probation officers and to return to the residences of court-approved "custodians" by 9 p.m. daily.

Hatcher will stay with an uncle, Jim Hatcher of Winston-Salem, while awaiting trial. Jim Hatcher, a mechanic, said he would give his nephew a job as a helper.

Jacobs will live in Halifax County with a family friend, Patricia Richardson, and her family. Mrs. Richardson, whose husband is an artist in residence with the North Carolina community college system,

Court Ruling Will Allow Lawyers To Make Direct Sales Pitch By Mail

By JOHN BARE
Reflector Staff Writer

William Shakespeare — who nearly 400 years ago wrote, "The first thing we do, let's kill all the lawyers," — might want to lop off the heads of the U.S. Supreme Court justices responsible for the recent ruling concerning lawyers and advertising.

A high court decision last month overturned a Kentucky rule barring lawyers from soliciting potential clients by mail, and it also struck down a similar regulation in North Carolina.

"Apparently, it's going to be OK to send mail to families of victims of plane crashes," said Root Edmonson, council for the state Bar Association in Raleigh.

Since the late 1970s when the U.S. Supreme Court lifted the ban on attorney advertising, the number of lawyers advertising in newspapers and on radio and television has grown steadily.

The ads often encourage accident victims to call for legal advice and a consultation, and lawyers sometimes promise that there will be no charge for the services unless a client wins money in the lawsuit.

The significance of the new ruling is that it allows lawyers to write letters to individuals, such as accident victims or property-owners facing foreclosure, in an effort to land their business.

"I think it's unfortunate for someone in that circumstance to get a letter from someone they never heard of," said Wilson attorney Henry C. Babb Jr., the newly elected president of the N.C. Academy of Trial Lawyers.

"I see very little difference between that and any seller of merchandise," Babb said. "In my opinion, it is improper conduct. The Supreme Court has said it is not unethical conduct."

The state bar allows lawyers to advertise through general mail campaigns, but the bar has always prohibited them from specifically targeting people in need of services — except from 1982 to 1985.

Few attorneys in the state used the provision while it was allowed over the three-year period, Edmonson said, but direct mail will probably become more popular after the Supreme Court decision.

"I'm sure it will," Edmonson said.

"I think as it becomes more common in other places, people are going to start picking it up. If lawyers start finding it's effective, they'll use it."

"I think the danger is that those professionals most likely to engage in this practice, by and large, will be less competent than the others who are not engaging it," Babb said. "So the public, instead of being served by fair market competition, in my judgment, will be ill-served by solicitation from a small segment (of attorneys)."

Babb emphasized that his argument is a generalization, and competent attorneys may choose to use direct solicitation, but he said that is not the danger.

"The folks who don't need the business are not likely to solicit," Babb said. "The folks who do need the business are less likely to be as competent as the others."

Abortion Foes Blockade Clinic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hundreds of anti-abortion protesters gathered outside an abortion clinic this morning, the day after a previous "Mission Rescue" resulted in 591 arrests.

About 200 people arrived at the Northeast Women's Center shortly after 7 a.m. and started blocking doors in violation of a federal court order.

"We're going to prevent them from doing any abortions," said Juli Loesch, a spokeswoman for Operation Rescue, a coalition based in Binghamton, N.Y., that organized the protest. "We think that saving

Meese Prepares To Move Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Resigning Attorney General Edwin Meese III said today that any questions raised about his ethics in a court-appointed investigator's 830-page probe of his conduct would be just excess verbiage.

Nonetheless, Meese said he would respond.

Asked about reports that independent counsel James McKay's report — delivered in secret to a federal judge hours before Meese resigned Tuesday — paints an unflattering portrait of the attorney general but does not suggest any illegal activities were committed, Meese said: "That's really immaterial because whatever may be in the report along that line would only be commentary in his opinion. It would have no legal force."

Meese, making the rounds of network television's three major morning news programs, said McKay's only charter had been to determine if the attorney general violated any laws.

"He has now found that there was no criminal conduct of any sort on my part," Meese said. "So anything else that might be said is merely surplusage."

Asked if presenting material that suggests unethical behavior was, in his opinion, excess verbiage, Meese replied:

"Certainly it is. It's not his job to go into ethical questions or ethical issues at all."

Noting that McKay is expected to turn the results of his probe over to the Justice Department for an ethics review, Meese said he doubted that

Farmville Board Accepts Tax Cut

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville commissioners have given townspeople a gift that keeps on giving — they've lowered the town's tax rate from 44 cents to 40 cents.

The revaluation of real property conducted by the county brought the value of property in Farmville up 32 percent. That enabled the board to lower the tax rate, Town Administrator Frank Bradham said.

The only additional position to the town employee list in a budget adopted June 21 is a full-time drug officer for the police department, which has 16 full-time employees.

Several projects proposed and budgeted for last year and never begun were brought forward to this year's to-do list by a budget amendment approved by the board. These include the relighting of Bundy Field and the town swimming pool at a combined cost of $1,000; the installation of a waste oil drain system in the town garage at a $1,000 cost; the installation of a water line to Toddy between Farmville and Fountain to cost $131,697; the installation of a six-inch hole hog for water distribution to cost $6,000; the installation of a six-inch hole hog for waste water collection to cost $6,000; the addition

Housing Authority Adopts Budget $18,000 Below '88 Spending Level

By GREG LAUDICK
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville Housing Authority commissioners have unanimously approved a $1.79 million operating budget for fiscal year 1989.

The $1,798,000 budget, which was accepted by commissioners at their monthly meeting Tuesday night, is a decrease of $18,000 from the $1,816,000 spent this year.

According to Kenneth Noland, executive director of the GHA, several items contributed to the decrease in the 1989 budget figure over this year's spending level, including an anticipated increase in GHA operating receipts, and an expected decrease in insurance premiums in 1989 because of the GHA's entrance into the N.C. Housing Authority Risk Retention Pool.

Commissioners agreed earlier this year to become a part of the inurance pool, which offers insurance policies to housing authorities across the state at a reduced cost.

Noland said the expected decrease in future operating costs can also be attributed to higher than anticipated costs accrued this year due to various unexpected expenses.

"Some fires this year drove up the cost of expenditures and hopefully we won't have those next year," he said.

A five-bedroom unit at 407 Roundtree St., for example, was damaged severely by fire on Dec. 9. After the insurance settlement, the authority was left to pay $17,000 for needed repairs of the unit from operating funds.

Noland also said contributing to the decrease in operating costs is the expectation that operating receipts are expected to rise in 1989 approximately $27,000 over the amount this year.

"We're betting that if the economy maintains the same rate or gets better, we'll be seeing an increase in the average rent reported," Noland said.

That expected increase in rent reported, plus additional income from investments, will place operating receipts expected in 1989 at $1,155,130.

Noland said the GHA reserve is currently at $616,000 and he said, hopefully, the authority will be able to add slightly to that during the next fiscal year.

"The housing authority is in excellent financial condition," Noland commented.

Included in the 1989 budget are appropriations for three additional employees. Those new positions would be added to administration, maintenance and to the office of resident affairs.

Noland said the as yet untitled position to be added to the resident affairs office will act as "a social coordinator-motivator in the community." "We're getting more involved with the police department as far as crime and drugs goes, and I believe it would be money well spent if we put an effort together and get out there and dedicate a person to get into these communities and work with the people and find out what is going on and show them where they can go and what they can do to get out of this, or prevent this kind of stuff," Noland said.

In other action, the board unanimously approved an operating expense budget in 1989 for the University Towers project of $138,490, compared to $141,300 spent this fiscal year.

Noland said the decrease could again be contributed to a decrease in insurance costs since joining the insurance pool and because no major maintenance programs will be undertaken at the project during the next fiscal year.

In other matters Tuesday, the commissioners unanimously approved a resolution adopting as policy the use of established preferences in determining priorities for federal housing distribution.

County Board Establishes 'Users' Unit For 911 Plan

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

An 11-member "users' board" was named by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners Tuesday to oversee operations of the county's communications center once the 911 emergency telephone system is placed in service in October.

Bobby Joyner, the county's emergency services coordinator, told commissioners that 84 percent of the telephones in the county — those served by the Greenville and Ayden exchanges — will be able to call for emergency police, fire and rescue squad assistance by dialing the three-digit number 911 after Oct. 1. And Joyner said 911 service to telephones served by other exchanges in the county will be available by October 1989.

The plan adopted by commissioners to implement 911 service countywide would create an independent communications department and hire a supervisor to oversee its operations.

But Sheriff Ralph Tyson, who now oversees the county communications center, complained Tuesday that "we haven't had any input in any decisions that have been made," and suggested he should maintain control of the communications center's operations. "Let it stay where it is now and it would save the tax taxpayers a lot of money," he said.

"I want to supervise law enforcement," Tyson told commissioners. "I think it's fine to have a supervisor for fire and rescue."

During the early stages of developing a plan to implement a 911 system, representatives of several municipalities suggested that a separate department be created to handle the communications center and that a user's board be created to oversee its operation.

After hearing comments from several police departments Tuesday, commissioners appointed an 11-member user board, and asked the board to recommend a method of operating the center.

Membership on the user board consists of: the sheriff; the Greenville police and fire chiefs; one chief representing other municipal police departments in the county, the chief of the East Carolina University Police Department, the presidents of the county fire and rescue associations, the county emergency services coordinator, the county manager, a representative of the emergency department at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and one citizen at-large.

In other action Tuesday, commissioners named 11 people to the Solid Waste Task Force, including: Jimmy Dunn, Ruth Moskop, Bucky Moore, Charles Saunders, Don Russell, Inez Fridley, Gaston Monk, Charles Hardee, Bob Jones, Mike Essary, Tom Patterson and Cynthia Wooten.

Other appointments made by the board Tuesday include: Tom Eppes to the Greenville Board of Adjustment; Catherine Bullock to a regular seat on the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission to fill a vacancy, and Rudolph Alexander to a new three-year term on the Pitt-Greenville Convention & Visitors Authority.

The board also agreed to negotiate with the engineering firm of Rivers and Associates for a countywide water and sewer study. Commissioners have interviewed representatives of four firms which submitted proposals to do the study.

Estimates for the cost of the study range from $15,000 to more than $45,500.

Commissioners took no action on a request by Sam McLawhorn of Grifton to designate Sept. 6 as "Jim Graham Appreciation Day" in Pitt County. McLawhorn said Graham would be honored at an "appreciation dinner" in Winterville on that day. "It's a non-partisan operation," McLawhorn said.

Shots Fired

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — A veteran North Carolina Highway Patrol officer said he is not intimidated by the shots fired into his house early Monday morning.

Trooper J.R. Miles said that an estimated 25 rounds fired from what is believed to have been an automatic weapon tore apart the bed in his 17-year-old daughter's room. He said that his daughter was on vacation at the beach.

Miles, his wife and their 20-year-old son were at home during the shooting, which occurred about 3 a.m., but no one was hurt. Sheriff Fred Myers of Wilkes County said that no new information about who might have fired the shots had turned up Tuesday.

Arab Hijackers Sentenced To Death

ADIYALA, Pakistan (AP) — Five Palestinians were convicted today and sentenced to hang for the bloody 1986 hijacking of a New York-bound Pan Am jumbo jet in which 21 people were killed.

The trial before a special one-judge tribunal began in September and was held in a makeshift courtroom in a prison in this town 30 miles west of Islamabad.

The plane, which took off from Bombay, India, was seized on the ground Sept. 5, 1986, in Pakistan's southern port of Karachi. It sat on the tarmac for 17 hours before Pakistani troops stormed it.

In addition to those killed, nearly 200 of the 400 passengers were wounded.

"We don't care about the sentence," said Mohammad Hafiz al-Turk, the suspected mastermind. "We care only about the millions of Arabs and Islamic countries."

Al-Turk, a Libyan arrested in Islamabad less than a week after the hijacking, was convicted of conspiracy. He was the only one of the five not to board the Pan Am jet.

The other four — Mohammad Ahmed al Munawar, Khalil Hussain Rahayyal and Saeed Abdul Rahim, all of Lebanon, and Abdul Latif Sair-fani, of Syria — were convicted of hijacking and murder.

They were sentenced to hang for their roles in the hijacking and to 10 consecutive life sentences for the deaths of 10 people. Three of the four received an additional life sentence in the killing of an 11th person.

The four also were each fined the equivalent of $2,777 for each conviction. Half the money is to go to the families of the hijackers' victims.

All five plan to appeal their sentences and have 30 days to do so. No date was set for the hangings.

In an interview after the sentencing, al-Turk, the self-appointed spokesman for the group, said if free he and his comrades "would hijack another plane."

In a statement issued in January, the five said their aim "was to fly the plane towards some sensitive, strategic center of the Zionist enemy and to blow it up there, with us inside."

Witnesses told the court that four gunmen dressed as airport security guards drove a small van to the Pan Am jet.

They said the four charged the plane and demanded it fly to Cyprus to pick up Palestinian comrades. Early in the hijacking, the three-man cockpit crew escaped through an emergency hatch.

After shooting an Indian-American passenger, the tension reached a climax around 9:30 p.m. when an onboard generator ran out of fuel, plunging the cabin into darkness.

Fearing an attack, the gunmen began spraying the inside with bullets as Pakistani security forces stormed the plane.

Throughout their trial, the five blamed the Pakistani commandos for the killings.

Judge Syed Zafar Babar discounted that argument but found the defendants guilty of just 11 deaths, saying there was insufficient evidence to convict them of more.

Pan Am was targeted because of its American origins.

Meese To Leave

any department probe would be conducted.

"I know of nothing of that sort," he said.

The department's Office of Professional Responsibility had been prepared to examine possible improper conduct by the attorney general in a review that could have resulted in a recommendation to President Reagan that Meese be fired.

But Meese, who said on Tuesday he would leave office by early August, said he would respond personally to any suggestions of unethical conduct raised by McKay's 14-month investigation.

McKay began his investigation after four executives of Wedtech Corp. pleaded guilty in connection with alleged bribes paid to public officials and began cooperating with authorities.

Detailing his decision to leave office, Meese said he spoke to Reagan before the president left for last month's economic summit meeting in Canada, telling Reagan that he thought it would be in "my best interests" to leave the government before the president's term expires next January.

"He said if it was in my best interests — and I felt it was — then he could understand that and he would go along with it," Meese said.

Then, on Tuesday, Meese called the White House and spoke with Reagan as he was on his way out the door. "Again, he said that if that was my wish, he would be agreeable."

Within 30 minutes or so, Meese announced his resignation at a news conference in Sacramento, Calif.

Asked today if he was leaving under a cloud, Meese said, "I don't believe there is any cloud at all."

Asked if he was leaving the department in the lurch, given that a number of top-level posts are filled by recent appointees yet to face Senate confirmation hearings, Meese said, "Not at all."

He said the people in those slots, including his top deputies, have extensive legal experience.

The new deputy attorney general, Harold Christensen, and criminal division chief, Edward Dennis, have been on the job for little more than a month, while the department's No. 3 official, Associate Attorney General Francis Keating, has been at work just two months.

Reagan, asked Tuesday whom he would name to succeed Meese, told reporters, "I have nobody in mind."

Meese, asked if he had been pushed out, said, "Nobody tried to shove me and nobody could shove me, as a matter of fact."

Reagan, who has stood by Meese during the criminal investigation and persistent calls from critics for his resignation, issued a statement saying "Ed Meese has served the American people loyally and well."

The attorney general declined to answer when asked if his longtime friend, E. Robert Wallach, had manipulated him. He said he would not answer because Wallach is under indictment for alleged racketeering in the Wedtech scandal.

Tar Heel Farmers Sending Hay To Ohio Drought Area

By PAUL NOWELL

Associated Press Writer
DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Some 1,000 bales of hay were loaded today onto trucks bound for drought-stricken farmers in Ohio as North Carolina farmers returned the good deed done them during a drought two years ago.

"This is a good cause, folks," said 67-year-old Jim Graham, North Carolina commissioner of agriculture, as he threw a bale of hay onto the tractor trailer. "This is a good will effort on our part to reciprocate for what they did for us two years ago."

The hay was donated by Mecklenburg County farmer Joe Poteat and were transported on trucks donated by Burlington Industries.

Later today, a livestock truck will be loaded with about 450 bales of mixed hay at the Piedmont Livestock Co. in Burlington and sent to Kentucky farmers.

Graham said the haylift would not mean farmers in North Carolina — especially those in the drought-ravaged southwestern part of the state — would not get enough hay to feed their animals.

"We don't know of anyone who's in desperate shape right now," he said. "I visited with some farmers in Clay County and other parts and they promised to let me know if they need some help."

State agriculture officials learned about the free hay when an associate of Poteat, Joe Vale, called the state Hay Hotline.

"Every little bit helps and this is what we have to offer," Vale said. "We want to contribute to the areas that helped our farmers two years ago."

Ohio was one of several midwestern states that came to the aid of drought stricken farmers in North Carolina and other southeastern states in 1986.

The hay will be transported to Gallia County Fairgrounds in Gallipolis, Ohio, where it will be distributed to farmers in the most need, said June Brotherton of the agriculture department, the hay is expected to arrive early Thursday.

one life makes thousands and thousands of sacrifices worthwhile."

The demonstrators, gathering here for three days, blockaded the Women's Suburban Clinic in Paoli on Tuesday in violation of two court orders. Demonstrators who refused to leave surrendered quietly to deputies who carried them away on stretchers.

Ms. Loesch declared the demonstration "mission accomplished" Tuesday evening.

"When the government has to choose between jailing tens of thousands of good, decent citizens or making child killing illegal, they'll make child killing illegal," said Randall A. Terry, Operation Rescue's national director.

Clinic administrator Shelley Miller said the protest would not stop abortions.

"We know abortions will always exist," she said. "I don't think this protest will change that."

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Innocent Deaths Wartime Specter

The nightmare of the United States Navy patrolling the Persian Gulf took the worst possible turn over the weekend as one of its warships unleashed a missile which destroyed an Iranian civilian airliner killing the 290 people aboard.

It was an unprecedented military mistake and prompted the ship captain to say it is a burden he will carry the rest of his life.

The tragedy brought careful comments from the United States' friends and strong condemnation from its enemies. Iran spokesmen called it barbaric. U.S. spokesmen replied that, while the downing of the plane was tragic, the ship was acting properly in defending itself while engaged in an affray with Iranian naval gunboats.

U.S. Navy warship captains are haunted by the virtually impossible situation of carrying out their orders in the Persian Gulf while avoiding firing on noncombatants. They are in a situation which no one can envy.

How could such a thing as the weekend's disaster occur? The brutal truth is that it has been occurring since explosives brought modern warfare its present state. Civilians have been regularly killed and maimed in air raids starting in World War II. Land mines still kill youngsters who wander into undetected mine fields. No doubt many civilians have died in the war between Iran and Iraq which is the root cause of the current hostilities in the Persian Gulf.

The shooting down of the Iranian airliner with its terrible loss of life is a dark day for the U.S. military and the country as a whole. The nation should do what it can to atone including payment to the families of the innocent victims. At the same time the United States cannot withdraw from the Persian Gulf. To do so would leave friendly nations friendly vulnerable to Iranian expansionism.

The specter of innocent people being killed will not end until the nations of Iran and Iraq come to their senses and determine to halt the hostilities. The chance of tragic errors will be there until it is universally recognized that the high seas are open to all.

The speculation now is of Iranian retaliation. The miracle would be if this horrible event were to bring all parties to the negotiating table and the senseless bloodshed ended. If that were to happen at least the useless deaths of these 290 people would have some meaning.

A Better Way

Rockets, Tempers Flare Downtown

It was a fun day on the Town Common July 4.

Sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees the holiday events drew thousands to downtown Greenville for parachuting, rubber duckie races, a competitive run and many other activities.

As darkness set in the major event of the day ensued. That was the fireworks display along the banks of the Tar River designed for the enjoyment of some 10,000 people who settled down to watch throughout the downtown area.

Some say the July 4 fireworks drew the largest crowd ever ... and they were not disappointed by the magnificent display set against the darkened sky.

The most criticism came with the traffic jam — a virtual gridlock which set in as the thousands of autos attempted to leave downtown almost simultaneously following the fireworks finale.

Even though policemen at intersections did all they could to keep traffic moving the streams of vehicles through the various intersections eventually so conflicted that there was little movement in any direction.

Is there a better way? Certainly there must be. Traffic is moved out rapidly following football games at Ficklen stadium. With advanced planning it could be kept moving following the July 4 fireworks.

Temporarily halting incoming traffic to the downtown area as the parked cars begin to move out could help. Running two outbound lanes of traffic away from the downtown parking lots might clear the area rapidly and allow the streets to reopen for normal traffic in short order. Once vehicles are effectively routed to the four-lane arteries near downtown, Memorial Drive and Charles Boulevard, the congestion would ease.

Tempers sometime flare when gridlock sets in and some people even vow never to come back. Authorities should recognize the problem, begin now to study the traffic movement following this year's fireworks display and attempt to devise better patterns for moving out traffic next year. It would save a lot of stress for everyone.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I would like to commend Clint Parker for a very fine poem, "Hidden", the winner of your weekly Expressions page writing contest, Wednesday, June 15. His poem makes me think of the old story, "The Emperor's New Clothes," in which the people are admiring and praising the emperor's "new clothes," only one boy speaks up and states the truth, "He has no clothes on."

Clint Parker spoke up very eloquently, he has seen what we all have seen, but were afraid to acknowledge. Where is the evidence that TV evangelists even believe in Jesus? They do not seem to be humble. They appear far more willing to take than to give. They seem to be excessively interested in money. They beg for our money waving jewelry-bedecked hands.

Turn to almost any evangelist station and you will see a man begging for money, telling us that the more money we give to him the better off we will be. Don't they really mean the better of they will be? They beg for money in Jesus's name. That's blasphemy. Jesus never begged and he never instructed his followers to beg.

For the spiritual and moral health of our children, we cannot continue to allow these people to equate Jesus's name with money. They are sending the wrong message to our children. Many of them seem to have lost sight of their mission of praising the Lord and teaching his work.

Spreading the word of God by TV was and still could be a wonderful idea, so many people could be touched. But TV preaching seems to have turned into many TV evangelists path to material gain.

To the editor:

It saddens me to acknowledge my country's actions in the Persian Gulf this past week. As a nation built on freedom, peace and justice, the killing of innocent women and children seems inconceivable. It seems that all of our sophisticated technology failed to distinguish between a military aircraft and a passenger plane. Should the American people question the personnel and use of such equipment? For the President not to suspend those responsible for this action until a full investigation is conducted seems unbelievable.

It is time for Americans to continue our forefathers' dream of justice. Perhaps the Congress needs to reassess our interests in the Gulf and determine if this area is not just a powderkeg ready to explode. Our allies in Europe need to view America as a nation of strength and peace. Most importantly, our children need to grow in a spirit of freedom, responsibility and compassion.

A Glimpse Of The Future

RALEIGH — North Carolina got a glimpse of the future during June when a bill expanding unemployment insurance rights was passed by the state Senate. The state saw what its Senate is apt to look like for the next two to four years.

The bill extended unemployment benefits to workers laid off because of someone else's strike. The particulars of the bill are not as important to the point of this column as are the facts that the AFL-CIO wanted the bill and the state's business lobbyists opposed it.

The Senate has long been a bastion of conservative business power in North Carolina, but that strength began to weaken four years ago when Jimmy Green's term as lieutenant governor expired. Businessman Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan may have been just as strong a business expired. Businessman Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan may have been just as strong a business supporter as was Green, but some of Jordan's supporters, and thus the people he often had to put in important committee spots, are not.

In the 1987 session, business power was significantly reduced. That was due, in part, to the rise in the number of lawyer-senators. For the first time, business was defeated in the Senate on the issue of comparative fault insurance. (Oddly, comparative fault failed in the House where it had been supported on several occasions.)

Three senators — of various different political persuasions — mentioned to this reporter after the unemployment bill passed that the vote marked a change in the direction of the Senate.

"Things seem to be moving in our direction," said Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gaston, a liberal. "Those senators who have been making all the decisions don't seem to be prevailing."

Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, a businessman and fiscal conservative, said, "Without a doubt, the Senate is more liberal than it was." But he added, "One battle a war does not win."

Sen. Tom Taft, D-Pitt, a lawyer who is a little bit of everything ideologically, said the vote was an important indication that Green's old supporters — namely, Rauch, Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Lincoln, Sen. Monk Harrington, D-Bertie, and Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir — were not getting everything they wanted any longer.

None of this is to say that the Senate is about to become a bastion of liberalism. That is highly unlikely. What is more likely, however, is that the Senate will no longer be the rubber stamp for big business, insurance and utility bills.

Another four months must pass before voters decide who will run the 1989 Senate as lieutenant governor, either Republican Jim Gardner or Democrat Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland.

Rand is clearly one of the leaders of the ascendant senators. But the shift in direction will continue even if Gardner defeats Rand in November. That's because Democrats are virtually assured of maintaining a big majority in the Senate and they have already lined up behind Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, as their candidate for president pro tem in 1989.

If Gardner wins, he may be stripped of his non-constitution powers. But even if he isn't, it is unlikely that Democrats will give him everything Jordan currently has in terms of power. The Senate of 1989 will be very unlike senates of the past.

Ascent From Poverty In The Delta

WASHINGTON — One hundred and thirty eight years ago, Daniel Webster predicted that "ere long the strength of America will be in the valley of the Mississippi." While Webster was correct about the fiber of the Mississippi River Valley's residents — strength in families, in character, and in hope — he was not prophetic about the region's economic future.

The lower Mississippi River Valley region, that stretches from southern Illinois to the mouth of the Mississippi in Louisiana, retains the highest percentage of families, households and individuals in poverty than any other area of the nation. But now there is a move underway in Congress to promote the region as a long overdue target for a major national development effort. As drafted by Sen. Dale Bumpers (D. Ark.), the Lower Mississippi River Development Act would create a nine-member commission to study the problems and the needs of lowland counties fanning out from the river in Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri and southern Illinois. The commission, whose members would be appointed by governors of participating states, would report its findings to Congress within a year of its creation.

The Bumpers campaign mirrors earlier changes that have swept the American political landscape. The last such big regional uplift was undertaken in the early 1960's in Appalachia at the request of President John F. Kennedy, who was so touched by the poverty he saw while campaigning during the West Virginia primary in 1960. And before that, a half century ago, the Tennessee Valley Authority was created to bring electricity, jobs and hope to a large area of the south that technology had forgotten. But congressional efforts to draw national attention and resources to one of America's premiere eyesores won't assure success. Twenty-one years ago, Sens. Joseph S. Clark (a personal hero of Gov. Michael Dukakis) of Pennsylvania and Robert F. Kennedy of New York, both Democrats, witnessed evidence of extreme malnutrition and starvation while touring the Mississippi River delta as part of their work on the Senate Labor and Public Works Committee. According to aides of the two senators, the trip left a scarring mark on each of the gentlemen.

At one of their stops, Kennedy and Clark saw 13 families of displaced plantation workers living in a collection of shacks. The families told the senators that they barely survived by living on grits, rice and soybeans.

"I don't want to indicate a smug attitude," explained Sen. Clark, who is now retired and in poor health in Philadelphia. "There is plenty of poverty in both Pennsylvania and New York, but conditions here are deplorable."

Clark and Kennedy's observations could not have been more accurate. While they struggled against such senators as John Stennis (D. Miss.) for more funds for anti-poverty projects in the region, the escalating war in Vietnam snuffed out their work. (Stennis, who is retiring from the Senate this year, said last week at a retirement party that his single greatest regret in public life was not having brought relief to his fellow citizens in the Delta.)

Today there is more economic misery in the Mississippi Delta than any other region of the country. Tunica County, Miss., for example, the heart of the crisis area, is located on the banks of the Mississippi, just south of Memphis, Tenn. It is the poorest county in the United States, with 52.9 percent of its population living in poverty. The per capita income is a mere $6,643 — 48 percent below the national average. Lee County, Ark., directly across the Mississippi River from Tunica county, has a lower per capita income at only $6,452 with 44.3 percent of the population living in poverty.

The poorest state in the country has consistently been Mississippi, with Louisiana ranking second. Despite recent efforts of state and local officials, the region ranks lowest in almost every education statistic. Since 1900, Louisiana and Mississippi have ranked first and second in illiteracy in the country. With respect to health, Mississippi and Arkansas ranked one and two in teen pregnancy last year. Moreover, in the 2nd district of Mississippi, one in every 59 black babies still die before their first birthday. On and on go the statistics of misery in the Delta.

With our 212th national birthday behind us, it's remarkable that there are still regions of our country where over 40 percent of the people live in poverty. For these people, the American dream has been a fraud. It's been a nightmare of going to sleep at night hungry. It's been a trauma of being sick without treatment. It's been a scandal of receiving inferior education.

The future of the Delta may not be all bad. For starters, the region is still located on the banks of one of the world's greatest rivers, complete with some of the richest farmland and blessed with tremendous natural resources. And, at last, the senators and governors from these bordering states have come together in support of a piece of legislation designed to begin the economic development of the region.

Senate OKs Symbolic Plan To Study Veto Proposition

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Buoyed by an unusual bipartisan coalition, a resolution that would let the Legislature consider giving the governor veto authority has cleared the Senate and faces uncertain prospects in the House.

The largely symbolic but politically charged resolution sailed through the Senate with little debate Tuesday, gaining tentative approval 38-6 and winning final passage on a voice vote.

"I would say it has a hard row to hoe" in the House, said Rep. Bob Hunter, D-McDowell. After the vote was announced, Sen. Jim Johnson, R-Cabarrus, wisecracked: "And may it rest in peace."

Even if the House did pass the resolution, gubernatorial veto power still would be a long way off. The resolution merely would allow the Legislature to take up the issue this year — and lawmakers hope to ad-journal the summer session this week. Amending the state Constitution to permit the veto would require three-fifths approval in both chambers, as well as majority approval in a statewide referendum.

The resolution's sponsor, Sen. Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, conceded prospects for enactment of a veto amendment were remote this year.

"We've identified people who are now on record as supporting the veto and that's a base to start with next time if we don't get it passed this time," Cobb told reporters.

Cobb, the Senate minority leader, and Democratic leader Tony Rand worked together to line up votes for the veto resolution.

Rand, D-Cumberland, is his party's nominee for lieutenant governor. His Republican opponent, Jim Gardner, has made the veto a major issue. Rand said during the primary campaign he favored establishing a commission to study the matter.

Rand stopped short of saying he had worked for approval of the veto resolution to deprive Gardner of political fodder. But he acknowledged Democrats were becoming aware that opposition to the veto could be a liability at the polls.

For Democrats to support Cobb's resolution "changes the issue somewhat," Rand said. "They certainly can't say that some of us are against it."

Rand's involvement drew praise from Cobb.

"He had more people to deliver than I had to deliver," Cobb said. "I credit Tony from the very beginning. He agreed to help and he has helped and I appreciate that. I'm always glad when we can get together and work on a bipartisan basis."

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan repeated his contention that Cobb and Republican Gov. Jim Martin were raising the issue for political reasons, knowing that approval of a veto amendment this year was virtually impossible.

Helms Says Ship Was Justified

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jesse A. Helms, R-N.C., said on Tuesday that he had "no criticism whatsoever" of the U.S. Navy captain who mistakenly shot down an Iranian airliner, and said the United States should keep its warships in the Persian Gulf.

"I grieve for the 290 people who died," Helms said, "but it was brought upon them by their government, the Iranian government."

Helms said that Capt. Will C. Rogers III, commander of the U.S. warship that mistook the airliner for an Iranian fighter jet, was justified in firing missiles.

"He did exactly what he was supposed to do" when radar showed the unidentified Iranian plane approaching the ship, Helms said. He recalled "all the American boys, who also were innocent, who were killed on the Stark."

"There are a lot of questions that need to be answered," Helms said, including the "possibility" that the Iranian airliner was sent on a suicide mission.

Indictments

HICKORY (AP) — A day-care center owner has been indicted by a Catawba County Grand Jury on sexual abuse charges involving two children at one of his centers.

Victor Messick was indicted Tuesday in two cases — one involving a 5-year-old girl at the center, and a second involving a 2-year-old girl.

The same charges against Messick were dropped June 29, after prosecutors presented no evidence at a Catawba County District Court probable cause hearing, saying they didn't want to put the children on the witness stand.

Messick had not been arrested on the indictments late Tuesday.

Businessman Dies

DURHAM (AP) — Wade Hampton Penny Sr., founder of Penny Furniture Stores in four North Carolina cities, died Monday afternoon at Duke Hospital after an extended illness. He was 78.

A native of Apex, Penny grew up on a 33-acre farm near Fuquay Springs. He graduated from Duke University in 1932, and returned to Durham in 1933 with only $90. But less than three years later, he opened Penny Furniture Co. in Durham.

Penny also was the founder and president of Center Furniture Co. and Bargain Furniture Co. in Durham. He also founded two real estate investment corporations — D and W Investment Corp. and Wadon, Inc. In recent years, he was a principal shareholder in and president of Stone Bros. & Byrd Inc.

Other Penny Furniture Stores were located in Oxford, Henderson and Roxboro.

Penny is survived by his wife, Pauline Brown Penny, and two sons, Wade H. Penny Jr., and Donald M. Penny. Wade Penny Jr. is a former member of the state House of Representatives.

Kidnap Plea

RALEIGH (AP) — A North Carolina State University student pleaded no contest Tuesday in Wake County Superior Court to kidnapping an infant in the Raleigh area.

Heather Elizabeth Moore, 20, was given four years of supervised probation for abducting 6-month-old Derrick Lamont Haywood from his parents' Raleigh apartment April 15. Judge Coy E. Brewer Jr. also imposed a six-year suspended sentence and ordered Ms. Moore to perform 100 hours of community service and submit to psychiatric care if her parole officer recommends it.

Derrick was found unharmed in Ms. Moore's dormitory room within 24 hours of the abduction and returned to his parents by Raleigh police.

Defense attorney Arthur Vann II of Durham said Ms. Moore, a junior at N.C. State University, had taken the child "on impulse" because she falsely believed Derrick was a baby she had delivered 15 months earlier in Durham.

Murder Fight

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Greensboro teen-ager has been charged with murder following what authorities describe as a fight that turned deadly in the parking lot of an abandoned pizza parlor.

The victim, a male about 33, was found dead Tuesday morning. No positive identification has been made, but police described the man as a drifter who might be a native of Frankfort, Ky.

The left side of the man's skull had been crushed with a blunt object, possibly a 4-foot iron pipe, said Lt. Jim Hightower of the Greensboro Police Department.

Curtis Ray Hunt, 19, was charged with first-degree murder Tuesday afternoon. Hightower said Hunt was picked up following a tip from an unidentified witness who claims to have seen an argument involving the two men and about 10 others.

Special Requests Violate UNC Rules

By The Associated Press

A system formed in the 1960s to curb political infighting has worked for the most part, but lawmakers have recently carried millions of dollars in special requests to the legislature without the University of North Carolina Board of Governor's blessing.

Although the special requests violate the board's budget process, officials say they can't work against someone trying to provide a program at a UNC system school.

Former Gov. Jim Holshouser, a board member, said the trend has been increasing lately because of the growing number of legislators who don't remember the days before the board.

"I don't want to overplay the crisis," he said in an interview. "But because they don't know how the system was before, they don't see how this pattern will lead back to that situation."

Legislators created the 32-member board to curb political infighting that disrupted the General Assembly in the 1960s.

Sen. Aaron Plyler, D-Union, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said it's important to yield to the board. "We've got to put our trust in the board, because they are more familiar with needs than we are."

"It's not that we are opposed to those projects," said Jay Robinson, UNC's chief lobbyist and vice president for public affairs. "It's hard for us to fight against anything that will benefit a university. But we can't be for them either."

Robinson said the special projects also complicate his efforts to get the board's budget requests passed.

"It could jeopardize the more orderly process that the board uses for submitting projects up for funding, and that's one of the main reasons the board was established," he said.

"It's difficult for us to be critical of our friends in the legislature. They treat us well, but the process does not work as well when this goes on."

Philip Carson, chairman of the Board of Governors, stressed the importance of a single budget request for campuses.

"I think that the General Assembly would recognize, with the Board of Governors, that confidence in the budget process would be lost if it loses its integrity," he said.

Carson said he doubts officials of the 16 individual institutions bypass the Board of Governors and go directly to the legislature.

"Rather, friends (of the institution) go and encourage the support," he said.

Key members of the legislature differ on the issue.

Sen. Marvin Ward, D-Forsyth, chairman of the Appropriations Committee on Education, said budgetary sidestepping is harmful.

"It weakens the authority of the board," he said.

Sen. Monk Harrington, D-Bertie, president pro tem of the Senate, defends special building requests but warns that legislators should use discretion.

"I think we can help a university out, but we've got to be careful how we do it," he said. "The board will run 95 percent of the university, but there are little things that fall through the cracks that we can help out on."

Here are some examples of current appropriations requests the Board of Governors has not sought in its budget proposals.

— N.C. State University: $2 million for a sports arena.

— UNC-Asheville: $2.4 million for design and site development for a conference center.

— UNC-Chapel Hill: $137,000 for design and planning for a performing arts center.

— UNC-Greensboro: $2 million for land purchase.

— Western Carolina University: $500,000 for land purchase and $50,000 for WCU's centennial celebration.

Pet Goat May Stay

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — A 10-year-old Hickory girl may not have to give up her pet goat Gretchen.

The Hickory City Council agreed Tuesday night to amend the city code banning hogs and goats. If the plan passes an Aug. 2 public hearing, Gretchen will be deemed a pet and 10-year-old Melissa Gregory — the goat's owner — will have to promise not to breed any more goats.

"From personal knowledge I think goats have a bad reputation they don't deserve," City Attorney E. Murray Tate said.

Three Gregory family members — Melissa, her mother, Kathy, and 12-year-old sister, Jennifer — came before the council to protest the city ordinance declaring hogs and goats a nuisance to residents.

"We thought about bringing the goat, but I don't think they'd appreciate our bringing her into the meeting," Kathy Gregory said.

Court Orders Trial For Driver

RALEIGH (AP) — A state appeals court has ordered a new trial for a man convicted of involuntary manslaughter and drunken driving after a head-on automobile collision that killed two people in Vance County.

The judge in the trial of Alfonza Williams erred by telling the jury it could convict him on the less serious charge of misdemeanor death by vehicle, the three-judge panel of the North Carolina Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday.

"It is within the province of the jury to believe all of the evidence presented or to disbelieve all of the evidence presented or to believe some and to disbelieve the other,"

said the court's opinion, written by Judge Clifton Johnson.

Enough evidence was presented at the trial for the jury to convict Williams of involuntary manslaughter, the panel said in its ruling. However, it said, the jury might have concluded that his only act that led directly to the accident was a violation other than drunken driving — such as failure to keep his car under control or driving on the wrong side of the road.

Williams was charged with driving the car that collided head-on with another vehicle on U.S. 158 in rural Vance County on July 11, 1986. Rosa and Franklin Reavis, passengers in the second car, were killed.

Passengers in Williams' car testified he had been the driver and that he had been drinking. Williams denied driving the car at the time of the accident.

Under North Carolina law, when judges instruct juries before they start their deliberations, the judges must tell jurors about all the verdicts they legally could return.

Misdemeanor death by vehicle is a "lesser included offense" of involuntary manslaughter, but the jury in the Williams case was not told it could find him guilty of the misdemeanor crime.

Teachers Let Beach Balls Fly

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It all happened in an hour — an hour among many at a teacher convention filled with the usual quota of debates on matters ranging from the political to the educational to the mundane.

But that hour at Tuesday's session of the National Education Association's annual convention will go down as one of the weirdest in the 1.9-million member union's 131-year history — an hour during which beach balls flew, and a union chief turned cheerleader.

The kind of shenanigans, in short, that might well have earned one of their students a trip to the principal's office.

Delegates were considering a resolution supporting the cause of a convicted murderer named

Elmer "Geronimo" Pratt, a former Black Panther who has been serving a life sentence at San Quentin prison in California since 1972. His supporters insist he did not get a fair trial because of FBI interference. His story has been told by CBS's "60 Minutes" and ABC's "20-20."

His sister, Virginia Pratt, is an NEA member and special education teacher at Markham Intermediate School, in the Watts section of Los Angeles.

After a brief debate, the usual voice votes and standing votes were judged too close to call. NEA president Mary Hatwood Futrell declared a roll-call vote of the 8,227 delegates — exceedingly rare because it is so time-consuming.

The Superdome where the teachers are meeting this week erupted in repeated human waves during the hourlong wait while votes were tallied. Beach balls appeared out of nowhere, some flying up to the podium where Ms. Futrell playfully hit them back.

When Ms. Futrell announced that U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III had decided to resign, the teachers cheered wildly.

At one point, delegates demanded that Ms. Futrell dance or sing to pass the time. She demurred.

"Why don't you do the wave again?" she suggested. They gladly obliged, then broke into a loud chorus of "When the Saints Go Marching In."

Ms. Futrell then shared a secret: "This doesn't appear on my resume," she said, "but I used to be a cheerleader." This brought loud demands for a demonstration.

"I accept the challenge!" she said, and led the group in an impromptu chant: "We want a pay raise! How 'bout you?"

Shortly after 5 p.m., an hour after the resolution came up, the vote was in: 3,415 against, 3,219 in favor, 293 abstentions.

Many who voted against it explained they simply lacked the facts to make a judgment.

"The man may be innocent, but we just don't know that," said teacher Karla Steer of Provo, Utah.

Asked whether Tuesday's convention session would be remembered as unusually weird, NEA spokesman and 24-year veteran Howard Carroll said, "I don't know. They're always pretty weird. But yeah, it was bizarre, the more I think about it."

Japan Signs Beef, Citrus Agreement

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An agreement signed by Japan and the United States will soothe some of the aches and pains that have plagued the world's biggest agricultural trading partnership, officials say.

The pact, signed Tuesday, opens Japan to more American beef and citrus, perhaps doubling the total value of those sales by the early 1990s.

U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter called it "a great day for American agriculture, a great day for Japanese consumers."

Nobuo Matsunaga, Japan's ambassador to the United States, said the pact marked "an end to the decade-long trade issue between the two governments."

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., also called the agreement "a big win for beef producers and Japanese consumers" but cautioned that the United States "must ensure the agreement is carried out" properly.

"This is but the first step in what must be a sustained effort to increase beef exports," Baucus said in a statement. "Constant pressure on Japan by Congress, the administration and private groups finally paid off."

The agreement, which was reached last month during negotiations in Tokyo, will open the door gradually over the next few years to more U.S. beef and citrus and move away from the restrictive quota system that has been in effect.

Earlier demands that Japan allow sales of U.S. rice were dropped in reaching the settlement on beef and citrus.

Yeutter said he hoped Japan would relent on allowing rice imports but that such discussions would be more appropriate in the current Uruguay round of multilateral trade talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, or GATT.

Matsunaga said Japan has made it clear that "we will not refuse to discuss the matter of rice" in GATT negotiations on condition that other participating countries are prepared to discuss their own agricultural policies.

The Commerce Department has estimated that annual U.S. beef exports to Japan could grow to around $1 billion a year from about $550 million now. Sales of oranges and juice, now less than $100 million, could rise to more than $150 million, it says.

Yeutter said in a statement that the signing was a "historic development" for both countries.

"It settles one of our most controversial bilateral disputes," he said. "Just as important, it demonstrates that Japan is accepting even more responsibility as a major trading nation."

Yeutter noted that the agreement not only commits Japan to increase access and eliminate non-tariff barriers to trade in beef, oranges and orange juice but reduces tariffs on a variety of other products, including lemons, grapefruit and nuts.

In a formal exchange of letters dated July 5, Matsunaga said the government of Japan "intends to implement market-opening measures" as indicated by the agreement and will be prepared to hold consultations annually with the United States to discuss how the arrangement is faring.

Episcopalians Near Election Of Woman

DETROIT (AP) — Delegates to the Episcopal Church's 69th General Convention are moving to pave the way for a woman bishop, yet avoid a schism with those who object.

The 200-member House of Bishops on Tuesday voted 135-18 to approve two resolutions that would soften the impact of the elevation of a woman.

The church has no women bishops, even though about 900 women have been ordained as priests since 1976. Some church leaders say one could be elected within six months. Conservative members have said the consecration of a woman bishop could cause a split in the church.

Tuesday's vote came while fellow Anglican leaders in the Church of England in London voted in favor of proposals to admit women to the priesthood, despite opposition from those who warned of a schism.

One resolution approved by the American bishops calls for respect of the position of those disagreeing with the ordination of women bishops and the other provides for male clergy to attend the needs of dissenting parishioners.

"I am of two minds. I'm pleased that it represents a larger number of different groups within the church made a commitment for women, but it concerns me that such an exception has to be made for women bishops in the Episcopal Church," said the Rev. Annette Braunlee of Cleveland.

"It says that there is something about us that is threatening," she said.

The proposal now goes to the 900-member House of Deputies.

AIDS-related issues also were on Tuesday's agenda.

The House of Deputies unanimously approved an AIDS anti-discrimination resolution and debated other proposals, including teaching and paying for AIDS education.

The anti-discrimination measure "prohibiting discrimination in the church on the basis of AIDS, AIDS related complex or HIV infection," was scheduled for debate in the House of Bishops.

"We have to give the healing gifts to all," said John Fryer, a psychiatrist from Philadelphia who founded the Philadelphia AIDS program. "Jesus healed without moral judgment."

The 3,000 delegates to the General Convention meet every three years to set policy for the 2.6 million-member church. The convention runs through Monday.

BODY RETURNS — A coffin containing the body of U.S. Navy Capt. William E. Nordeen is escorted to a waiting hearse after arriving at Dover Air Force Base in Delaware on Tuesday. Nordeen was the military attache in Greece who was killed in a terrorist attack June 28. He will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery. (AP Laserphoto)

Heat Wave, Barge Backlogs Return

By JONATHAN OATIS
Associated Press Writer
About 2,000 barges were backed up along the drought-shrunken Mississippi River today, as a new heat wave shoved temperatures into the 100s in the parched Midwest with no immediate relief in sight.

"It looks like it's going to keep baking for a while," John Miller, a National Weather Service meteorologist in Minneapolis, said Tuesday as high temperature records for the date, some that stood as long as 77 years, were broken in 13 cities and tied in eight.

Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad said he was considering a state drought emergency declaration; Wisconsin and Indiana officials said falling river levels could force factory shut-downs; and the dry spell spread to the Northeast.

The news wasn't all bad. Heavy rain — as much as 5 inches — fell in southwest Alabama; powerful thunderstorms boomed through sections of Montana and North Dakota. Rain also fell in Louisiana, Arkansas, Nebraska, Mississippi and Texas.

The weather service's six- to 10-day forecast predicted above-normal rainfall from the mid-Mississippi Valley to the western lower Ohio Valley and for much of New York and New England.

However, the forecast also called for below-normal rain in the northern Plains, the upper Mississippi Valley and the central and eastern Gulf Coast — and no rain from the Rio Grande Valley to central Oklahoma.

Temperatures Tuesday exceeded 100 degrees from southeast Montana to western Minnesota, and were between 95 and 99 degrees from eastern Minnesota to Ohio.

In Minneapolis, where it was 97 degrees, high demand for electricity caused scattered power outages and forced Northern States Power Co. to buy more expensive power from utilities across the Midwest.

Dredging at Greenville was expected to end this afternoon, but was to resume about 25 miles south, Logue said. Dredging at Natchez will take up to five days, and the number of backed-up barges is expected to grow.

Up the river, towboats picking up southbound barges at Cairo, Ill., have begun working in convoys, Coast Guard Cmdr. Michael Donohoe said in Memphis, Tenn. A group of four towboats with 12 barges each set out Monday, and a second convoy with three to five towboats was to leave today.

"If one boat has a problem, the others will help out," Donohoe said.

A wedge of salt water moving up from the Gulf of Mexico was expected to hit New Orleans water intakes today. While not expected to threaten public health, the salt water could harm machinery at refineries and other plants.

Pentagon Confused Over Contracts

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Confusion surrounds Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci's hurried announcement of contract suspensions in response to the widening Pentagon bribery probe, with officials unable to say which projects are covered.

Pentagon spokesman Dan Howard said Tuesday that the Defense Department is still trying to implement Carlucci's order.

Howard suggested that Carlucci's announcement was a response to clamoring in Congress and elsewhere for the Pentagon to do something to restore its credibility in the midst of the criminal investigation.

"We had people here and people on the (Capitol) Hill demanding immediate action to suspend people, to suspend contracts," Howard said when asked to explain the timing of Friday's announcement.

Defense contractors say they are still waiting for formal notification of the contract suspensions.

"We're in the dark," said Cohann Whitney, a TRW Inc. spokeswoman.

"We've received no official notification and until we do, we're going ahead with production. The work will continue," said Robert Knapp, a spokesman for Litton Industries.

TRW is taking the same position. "We're working with the Navy to try to get some clarification on the announcement," Ms. Whitney said.

Carlucci announced last Friday he was ordering an immediate suspension of what Pentagon officials said were $1 billion worth of contracts. He said he was acting because the pacts may be tainted by the bribery allegations.

The investigation centers on allegations that defense contractors and consultants, many of them former defense officials, bribed Pentagon officials for contracting details that could be vital in winning contracts worth billions of dollars.

Asked for details of the contract suspensions, Howard said: "We worked that one very quickly and we gave you the best information we had."

But he admitted, "I don't know the answer" when asked which contracts are involved, or whether the freeze affects contractors and subcontractors alike.

Navy officials were trying Tuesday to figure out how to implement Carlucci's order.

"We're working on it; we're still trying to figure out the details," Lt. Barbara Kent, a spokeswoman for the Navy, said late Tuesday.

At a hastily called news conference late Friday afternoon, Carlucci said he was acting on the basis of information in affidavits that had been unsealed a day earlier by a federal magistrate in Dallas. The FBI said in the affidavits that its wiretaps had recorded a Navy procurement officer passing along inside information to consultants about contracts.

Pentagon officials have said one of the affected contracts is between the Navy and Litton, to build hand-held computers for the Marines for use in transmitting targeting information.

But Knapp said work on the contract will go ahead until Litton receives official word.

Town Gets Benefactor's First Checks

BOLIVAR, Mo. (AP) — A man's $3 million trust fund set up for his hometown as an early Christmas present in 1986 is finally bringing dollars and cents to this financially troubled southwest Missouri community.

Recipients, though grateful, say the first checks from the trust set up by David Delarue are smaller than they anticipated when the fund was announced in 1986.

Payments made July 1 totaled about $150,000, said Donald Place, who handles the trust at the Hibernia Bank of San Francisco. When he established the fund with stocks in December 1986, Delarue, a San Francisco stock analyst and former Bolivar resident, estimated it would pay about $240,000 each year.

Elizabeth Simmons, whose handicapped workshop Enterprises Unlimited received a $1,500 check, said she would use the money to buy materials.

"We sure can use it on our day-to-day expenses," Mrs. Simmons said. "We really are appreciative of it."

Mrs. Simmons had anticipated an initial payment of about $2,400, to help make a down payment on the building she rents for the workshop. She employs handicapped adults to do low-skill, labor-intensive projects such as cutting lumber and stuffing envelopes.

Proceeds of the trust are shared by Bolivar; Polk County, of which Bolivar is the seat, and Polk County schools.

Bolivar also distributes some of the funds to the local hospital; police and fire departments; the sports and recreation department, which was created after the gift was announced, and Mrs. Simmons' handicapped workshop.

Delarue made the gift as a gesture of thanks to the community where he grew up, which has been plagued with financial difficulties.

The city's share of the first payment, about $18,000, was less than half what officials had expected, Bolivar Mayor Joe Lemmon said. The trustee "had some bad luck" due in part to the October stock market crash.

"But we're thankful for every penny of it," Lemmon said, adding that the money will be used for an as yet undetermined community project.

Place would not comment on the reason for the reduced amount of the checks.

Polk County had budgeted $36,000 from the Delarue trust, but received about $31,000, said county Presiding Commissioner Howard Hayter.

"We had just put it in the general revenue to take care of our bills," Hayter said. "A budget's an estimate. Maybe something else will go over to offset the deficit. If not, we're just going to be short."

The trust will make income payments each July until 2100, when the principal will be given to the city.

There were no payments in the first year because administrative costs swallowed the small amount of income the fund generated.

Fire Ruins 150 Boats At Marina

LORAIN, Ohio (AP) — Thick, eye-burning smoke hung over a Lake Erie marina early today from smoldering Fiberglas after a fire destroyed an estimated 150 boats and injured a father and son.

The fire started Tuesday evening after a boat apparently exploded in an aluminum storage building, said Lorain Safety Director Richard Yopko. The exact cause of the fire was unknown, he said, estimating damage at $3 million to $5 million.

About 100 firefighters from Lorain and five nearby communities fought the blaze for about two hours before bringing it under control, said Fire Chief Joseph Pribanic. But the heavy smoke continued to emanate from the ruins this morning.

David Dorner, 30, was taken to the Cleveland Metropolitan General Hospital burn unit where he was in serious condition with multiple burns. His father, Ken Dorner, 51, was in fair condition in a hospital with burns on his arm and face. The two apparently were in the building working on their boat when the fire broke out, said Lorain Community Hospital spokeswoman Thelma Price.

Norm Olsen, a boat owner who had his craft away from the marina at the time of the fire, said the boats kept at the facility were 18- to 30-foot pleasure crafts, stacked in three-layered tiers.

Discipline Pig-Style

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — A woman who dressed her 7-year-old son as a pig and tied him to a bench in the front yard where neighbors could view the crying child said she was practicing the kind of discipline her mother used.

According to police, Mary Francis Bergamasco said she wanted her son to understand "for if only 30 minutes that lying and stealing make you ugly like Pinocchio."

It may have been wrong, she said, but "Mom said it worked on us kids."

However, police said her actions constituted child abuse.

"This is a first for me," said Sgt. Craig Hoyer, a child abuse investigator for the Hayward Police Department. "This was public humiliation. I mean, when your peers see you like that, in my mind, it could almost destroy a kid's psyche."

The boy's hands were tied behind his back, his face was painted blue and a cardboard pig nose made from an egg carton was taped to his head.

About 15 neighbors gathered as the boy sat for 30 minutes with a sign on his chest reading, "I'm a dumb pig."

Ms. Bergamasco, 29, was to be arraigned today on a misdemeanor charge of child abuse, police said. She is free on her own recognizance.

The punishment was intended to teach the boy a lesson after two weeks of thievery during which he stole $25 worth of baseball cards, $6 cash, an earring, a belt buckle and another child's toy, police quoted Bergamasco as saying.

Nurse Recruiting Remains Heavy

By LEANNE WAXMAN
Associated Press Writer
JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. (AP) — The luncheons are getting more lavish, the gifts more abundant and the practical perks more widespread for Tennessee nursing students as hospitals recruit more heavily than ever before.

Overall enrollment in the state's 64 registered nursing schools has fallen about 17 percent in the past six years and vacancies for RNs in hospitals are running between 10 percent and 13 percent, said Margaret Heins, president of the Tennessee Nurses Association.

"The ones graduating in August are taking jobs now before Christmas," said Amy Harshman, director of marketing for Vanderbilt University's nursing school.

As a result, said Ms. Heins, "Hospitals are recruiting harder. We've seen more this year than we've had before because the shortage perhaps is a little more acute."

Some hospitals are offering cash bonuses of up to $2,000, while others are throwing fancy luncheons and dinners for graduating nursing students. The traditional small gifts also are flowing more heavily on some nursing campuses around graduation time, including such things as tote bags, bandage scissors, calendars, pens and pencils.

Other hospitals, some critical of flashy recruitment tactics, are sticking to tuition reimbursement programs for employees in related fields who would like to continue their educations. Several nursing school directors also reported more hospitals promising graduating students such things as attractive work schedules.

"Offering people trips to sign on and big dollars to cash in are not, I'm sure, going to keep those people with you for the long haul," said Jerry Maier, chief executive officer of

Johnson City Medical Center Hospital. "Somebody else will come along with a bigger quickie."

Maier's hospital is starting a program this month that offers employees in related positions full salary for working part time and going to school full time to become registered nurses.

"In certain competitive markets you almost have to follow the leader. Here, it's sort of a home-grown thing. We don't get a lot of people coming to upper East Tennessee for the cultural activities and the night life," he said.

Ms. Heins said the heavy demand for registered nurses is prompted by a multi-pronged problem faced by hospitals. Hospitals are admitting only the sickest patients nowadays, which means nurses must be more skilled to care for them, she said. Also, more nurses are turning their backs on stressful hospital work in favor of home care agencies and other health-related fields, Ms. Heins said.

More women are embarking on other careers that were not accessible to them in the past, and salaries in nursing remain low compared to other fields now open to women, she said.

"I think we need to stick to long-term solutions, which include increasing salaries for nurses," Ms. Heins said. "I don't believe in these short-term things."

Norma Long, dean of Memphis State's nursing school, said some hospitals in West Tennessee also are doing "everything they can think of" to recruit nurses, but more are recognizing the recruitment importance of better working conditions, higher salaries and flexible hours.

"Some of them do have full-time recruiters, but retention is as important as getting them there," she said.

Wedding Vows Said In College Chapel

RALEIGH — Peace College Chapel was the setting of the wedding ceremony of Katharine Annette Carlisle and Joseph Craig Smith, both of Raleigh. Dr. George Thomas conducted the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jenkins Carlisle of Raleigh and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lee Smith of Nashville.

Maids of honor for their sister were Lisa Carlisle and Michelle Carlisle of Garner. Patty Moore-Hendron, Kathy Meece and Vicky Young of Raleigh, Kristi Henderson, cousin of the bride, and Wendy Sanders, sister of the bridegroom, of Chapel Hill were bridesmaids. Elizabeth Thompson of Ft. Meade, Md., was the flower girl.

Greg Carlisle of Raleigh, brother of the bride, Doyle Thigpen of Kinston, Mitch Barnes and Butch Talbot, both of Greenville, Larry Smith of Knightdale, cousin of the bridegroom, Russell Smith of Raeford and Alan Johnson of Greensboro served as ushers. The father of the bridegroom served as best man.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin. The bodice was accented with beads and sequins with a bateau neckline, long sleeves and chapel-length train. The train was trimmed with European cut-outs of lace overlays. She carried a cascade bouquet of roses and ivy. She wore a crown headpiece trimmed with beads and pearls attached to a waist-length blusher and chapel-length veil.

A reception was held at the Marriott Hotel Grand Ballroom. Elizabeth Carlisle Naughton and Beth Neville Henderson, aunts of the bride, served cake.

After a wedding trip to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, the couple will live in Raleigh.

The parents of the bridegroom held a rehearsal dinner party in the hotel ballroom.

Pre-nuptial parties given for the couple included a bridesmaids luncheon, a bachelor golf tournament, a bachelorette and lingerie shower, a bachelor party, a miscellaneous shower, a cook-out, a cocktail party and a dinner party.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She is employed by Physro Control; he, by Planters Bank.

Summer Vest Has Cable Design

Pat's Pointers
Pat Trexler

Priced to please any budget, this lighthearted vest is a true July special. A charming staggered cable pattern and rolled rib neckline highlight the clean lines of this cool, cotton sleeveless vest.

Easy-to-follow directions are given for small, medium and large with finished bust measurements of 36, 39 and 41 inches respectively. The gauge in the cable pattern is seven stitches to the inch. You'll need only a few skeins of sport-weight yarn to complete this fabulous design.

To obtain directions for making the Splash of Fashion, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-070388 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-070388 by sending a check or money order for $15.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, instruction leaflet and cotton yarn in your choice of lavender or white.

Dear Pat: Do you have any ideas on "signing" a knitted item? When I needlepoint, I stitch my initials and the date in a corner — no problem. I am presently finishing an afghan for my 8-year-old granddaughter, hoping she will cherish it for a long time. She would like me to knit our names into it with a couple of hearts. (Obviously she is not a knitter!) Perhaps you might have an idea to somehow get both our initials — possibly on a heart — on the afghan. I imagine other grandmas might want to try this, too. — Bea G., Pittsburgh.

Dear Bea: I can think of a couple of solutions for you, but I'm betting that one or more of my imaginative readers may have even better ideas. If I receive any suggestions in the mail, I will use them in future columns.

Here are my ideas for starters. Use a sheet of graph paper to chart the heart and small initials. As a needlepointer, you probably have a number of alphabet charts. If not, I suggest a visit to a cross-stitch shop or department where you will find many design and alphabet charts available.

You might plan in advance to knit a corner in stockinette stitch if your afghan is done in a pattern stitch. You could either knit right in or you could embroider it on after completion of the afghan, using the knit duplicate stitch or cross-stitch.

There is one adjustment you should make when using a design charted on graph paper. Graph paper has equal numbers of square horizontally and vertically. But in stockinette stitch, you will have more rows to the inch than you will have stitches to the inch. If you don't make an adjustment, your knitted design will be shorter and wider than it will appear on the chart, with somewhat of "squat" look.

Let's say your knit gauge has 7 rows and 5 stitches per inch. In order to create the same effect as shown on the chart, you would have to add 2 extra knit rows to every 5 horizontal chart rows. You might do it this way: Work Row 1 and 2 of the chart, repeat Row 2 once more, work Rows 3 and 4 of the chart, repeat Row 4 once more, work Row 5 of the chart.

Another alternative — for which no chart adjustments would be needed — involves the use of waste canvas basted over the knit piece. It should extend at least an inch in each direction beyond the planned finished measurement of your design.

Work your chosen design in cross-stitch over the waste canvas working through the canvas and the knit piece. Waste canvas has loosely woven threads that can easily be pulled out with tweezers upon completion of the design.

Navajo Baby In Custody Dispute Straddles Cultures

By STEVE WILSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Silver and turquoise jewelry adorn Allyssa's tiny hands, and Indian images hang in the small house across from a shopping mall far from the red stone and open sky of her Arizona reservation.

"One of the rings is a gift from a Navajo elder at a recent powwow that 11-month-old Allyssa visited with Rick and Cheryl Pitts, who have been trying to adopt her since her birth.

The custody case has split the Navajo Nation. Many in the tribe sympathized, but others vilified the Pittses and Allyssa's Navajo mother, Patricia Keetso, who moved in with the couple when she was pregnant and still lives with them.

A tribal court granted the Pittses temporary custody of Allyssa in April and is considering whether to grant permanent guardianship. A 1978 federal law gives tribal courts jurisdiction in adoption cases of Indian children as a way of preserving the heritage of the tribes.

"I believe in the old traditional ways," the elder told the Pittses. "But seeing you, knowing how much you love that baby, you deserve her."

Oblivious of the legal tangle, Allyssa plays happily, a child with two mothers and two cultures.

She has been blessed by a Navajo medicine man and a pastor of the Evangelical Free Church. Rather than the earthen-walled hogans and trailer homes that dot the hot, dry reservation, wood frame and stucco houses line the streets in the Pittses' busy San Jose neighborhood.

"I think she'll have a better understanding of both worlds," said

Pitts, who with his wife agreed to take Allyssa back to the reservation frequently as she grows up and to have her learn Navajo ways.

Keetso, 21 and unmarried, is working as a supermarket cashier but has applied to join the Air Force and says she's eager to start a new life. The custody fight with her tribe, she says, has been "like an explosion in my face."

Keetso, who has lived away from the reservation most of her life under a Mormon Church education program, says tribal officials have criticized her but many Navajos have been supportive.

She plans to see her daughter regularly, and Mrs. Pitts says it's all right with her if Allyssa calls them both "Mom."

Keetso met the Pittses through an ad placed by adoption attorneys in a Navajo newspaper. The ad read, "Pregnant? We're willing to help you." Keetso wrote to the attorneys, saying she wanted to give her baby to a family that would provide a good home and education off the reservation.

About a week later, the Pittses contacted the same attorneys about their desire to adopt a baby after Mrs. Pitts had three miscarriages trying to have a second child and then had a hysterectomy.

The birth and Keetso's immediate release of Allyssa to the Pittses went smoothly, until the tribe intervened.

Following terms of the 1978 Indian Child Welfare Act, they notified the tribe that the adoption was pending in a non-Indian California court. In February, the tribe sought custody.

The Pittses feared they might have lost Allyssa forever when tribal officials took her away to Arizona in April. The couple had given her up at the airport in San Jose on orders from a Superior Court judge who ruled Indian courts had jurisdiction.

Allyssa cried as the officials walked away with her and kept her separated from Mrs. Pitts and Keetso as they flew to Phoenix on the same plane. From there, they expected to fly with Allyssa and the officials to Flagstaff. Instead, the Navajos drove off to the stark, 14-million-acre reservation in northeastern Arizona, leaving Mrs. Pitts and Keetso frantic about Allyssa's welfare.

"I thought giving up the baby was hard, but when the tribe intervened that was the hardest, especially when they ran off with Allyssa," Keetso says. "They said I brought shame on the Navajo nation. But I am ashamed at how they mistreated her."

When the Pittses and Keetso next saw Allyssa three days later, they say she was filthy and running a fever. Child-psychologist Barry Goodfield said she also was reacting in a way that reflected stress and fear.

"She'd always been a happy-go-lucky baby, and anybody could hold her," Mrs. Pitts said. "After they took her, she would only allow me to hold her for quite some time."

She added, "She's pretty much back to normal now," and Goodfield agreed.

Roansem Roanhorse, director of the Navajo Division of Social Welfare, denied Allyssa was neglected or mistreated in her stay with Indian officials.

He said the baby was taken first to a hospital for an evaluation and to obtain medication for asthma, then was put in the care of an experienced foster parent.

"We know for a fact that she was not neglected," Roanhorse said.

The Pittses owe $13,000 in lawyers' fees. Pitts, an independent building contractor, lost more than $10,000 in income while fighting to keep Allyssa. Several Hollywood studios have shown interest in the story, but no deals have been signed.

In another month or so, perhaps by Allyssa's first birthday on July 20, the Pittses hope the tribal court will approve their permanent guardianship petition.

Even then, Pitts said, "I don't think the experience we went through, the emotions it stirred up, will ever be over."

"We'll always be reminded of it because we're always going to campaign against this law, as long as it's being enforced the way it is, to help anyone else who falls into this unfortunate situation."

The Indian Child Welfare Act was part of an effort to stop the exodus of thousands of Indian children — as many as 35 percent of some tribes' youngsters — to non-Indian homes after their parents' rights were terminated by non-Indian courts.

Welfare agencies, using a non-Indian set of cultural values, often found fault with Indian child-rearing practices or assumed life off the reservation would be better.

Roanhorse compared Indians to endangered species, saying their future was threatened by the loss of children.

The Pittses and Keetso don't disagree with the reasons behind the Indian Child Welfare Act. But they criticize the way Indian officials handled their case.

"I believe they were sincere in their concerns about their heritage and culture, and we share their concerns," Pitts said.

"It was our original arrangement with Patricia that she'd be able to see Allyssa all she wants and we'd take Allyssa out to visit Patricia's family on the reservation," he said. "That's the same thing the tribal court said it wanted. If the Indian welfare people had bothered to ask before they went to court, they'd have spared all of us a lot of pain."

Wife Should Get Professional Help

DEAR ABBY: Twenty years ago, my husband had an affair. They were caught by the lady's husband, and that ended it. I offered my husband a divorce, but he said he didn't want one. We had children in school, so I stayed in the marriage for their sakes.

This has been on my mind every day since it happened, and it has changed the way I feel about my husband. At times I actually have feelings of hatred for him.

We are best friends and very compatible, but I can't seem to get over the hurt. Can this wound ever heal? I know I can't forget it. Please publish an answer, as there may be others in this situation. — UNHAPPY

DEAR UNHAPPY: A wound will never heal if you continually pick at it. Concentrate on the present, and put away those painful memories. God made no perfect people. Believe this, and don't permit heartaches of the past to sour your future. Get professional help to guide you out of this unforgiving bitterness. You deserve better.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I visited my ex-daughter-in-law and my granddaughter in another state, and this is how I was treated by my granddaughter (she treats her mother the same way):

She kicked me, spat at me, knocked books and other items out of my hands, poked me in the abdomen and breasts with her bony elbows, stamped on my feet and screamed at me until she got her way.

When she noticed that I was about to be seated, she jumped into my chair. Once while I was napping, she poured water on my pillow and my head. If I try to tell her something she doesn't want to hear, she covers her ears and yells until I stop speaking.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

When sent to her room, she throws terrible tantrums, swears at her mother and threatens to kill herself.

Her parents divorced about a year ago after a strife-filled marriage.

Do you think this child behaves this way to get attention, or is she just hostile? I am supposed to baby-sit with her for several months next fall. Please advise me. — TERRIFIED GRANDMOTHER

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: You don't mention the child's age, but if she threatens to kill herself, she is not a 3- or 4-year-old spoiled child acting out to get attention. Your granddaughter desperately needs to be evaluated by a pediatrician and psychiatrist. Her behavior is not normal. I urge you to tell the child's mother that her daughter is crying for help. Her obvious anti-social behavior is symptomatic of some kind of mental or physical disorder.

DEAR ABBY: I am an avid reader of your column, but this is the first time I have ever written to you, because a new situation has occurred in my life and I need your advice.

My grandson, 25, has become more than friendly with a woman who is actually very nice, but she is 37 and has a 10-year-old daughter. I have no objections to the woman, but I have strong misgivings about the relationship, as they are planning to live together. Of course, her age is a factor, but I hate to see this fine young man waste good years in a relationship that will have numerous problems. Incidentally, his parents agree with me, but are saying nothing because they also don't want to lose their son.

My question: Just how much does our family owe this woman regarding inclusion in family get-togethers? Must she be included in all parties limited to family members? I feel that she and her daughter are not members of our family, but I realize there is a bond between her and my grandson. This has me baffled and upset because I want to keep my grandson's love and respect as it now exists, but I do not wish to recognize her as a member of the family.

I am 82, and accustomed to a different moral code. — BAFFLED IN NORRISTOWN, PA.

DEAR BAFFLED: I too am accustomed to a different moral code, and I understand your feelings, but if this woman is living with your grandson, even though you do not wish to recognize her as a member of your family, I advise you to do so because your grandson will. And if you want your grandson at family get-togethers, his live-in lady must be included. Trust me.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for telling "J.M.B." that there was nothing weird or abnormal about eating only one thing at a time. I've always eaten that way and I'm 59 years old. I like to savor the flavor of everything I eat. If I wanted to combine all the flavors of baked ham, sweet corn, potato salad and stewed tomatoes, I'd put them all in a blender, liquify the whole mess, and drink it! — ME TOO IN HORNELLS, N.Y.

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market hovered in a narrow range today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks slipped 2.14 to 2,156.47 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers held a narrow edge on losers in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 451 up, 442 down and 554 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 25.18 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Among actively traded blue chips, International Business Machines dropped 1/8 to 129 1/2; American Telephone & Telegraph slipped 1/4 to 267 1/2, and General Electric was unchanged at 44 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost .07 to 155.50. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .57 at 310.16.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 27.03 to 2,158.61.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 9 to 5 on the NYSE, with 939 up, 520 down, and 447 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 171.79 million shares, against 238.33 million in the previous session.

Officer Charged

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — An off-duty Clinton police officer was charged Tuesday with felony death by vehicle, involuntary manslaughter, and driving while impaired following a three-car accident in which a Roseboro teen-ager was killed, authorities said.

Samuel Aaron Batts, 36, of Clinton was charged shortly after the accident in which 18-year-old Anthony Lee Monroe was killed, according to North Carolina Highway Patrol Trooper C.W. Brown.

Monroe was pinned in his vehicle, which burst into flames, Brown said. Three others were injured in the 12:15 a.m. Tuesday accident, including the police officer, Brown said. Batts suffered a broken leg and several broken ribs and was in guarded condition in the intensive care unit at Sampson Memorial Hospital in Clinton.

Jacobs' mother, "The government has tortured my family, I've been visiting him, but it will be a lot different without the shackles and handcuffs."

"There are a lot of people going to be rejoicing (in Robeson County)," Ms. Jacobs said. "Some people are going to be bitter, but I know there will be a lot of joy."

Hatcher's mother also was pleased.

"It will be a little inconvenient, but at least I'll get to see him," said Thelma Clark, Hatcher's mother.

Hatcher and Jacobs, along with their attorneys, were trapped in an impromptu news conference on a stairwell while their supporters waited in the courthouse lobby for them to appear after the decision was handed down.

As reporters peppered Hatcher and Jacobs with questions, one of their supporters shouted, "Hey, we've waited five months and three days to put our hands on them. Let them go."

Hatcher and Jacobs previously had been denied bond three times — twice by U.S. Magistrate Wallace Dixon in Fayetteville, and most recently by U.S. District Court Judge Terence Boyle, in April.

The appeals court ruled that Hatcher and Jacobs were not given a detention hearing within five days of their arrest, as required by federal law.

Hatcher and Jacobs are scheduled to be tried on the hostage-taking and federal firearms violations on Monday in federal court in Raleigh. But Bruce on Tuesday asked that Hatcher and Jacobs formally waive their right to a speedy trial because a delay is expected.

Indians Released

said Jacobs could make and sell Indian crafts while staying with her family.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John S. Bruce had asked McCotter to keep Hatcher and Jacobs in jail, but if that was not possible, to put them under virtual house arrest. Bruce argued that the appeals court ruling had only ordered a new hearing, and that the judges had not considered evidence relating to the seriousness of the crime.

Ron L. Kuby of New York's Center for Constitutional Rights, representing Hatcher, argued that both men had been held illegally for five months and that they deserved an apology from the government. Also, he said, the government's request for house arrest amounted to an attempt to keep the defendants from voicing complaints about conditions in Robeson County.

Hatcher and Jacobs have said they took over the newspaper office in an attempt to bring attention to drug trafficking and racial injustices in Robeson County law enforcement.

"I think that what the prosecution is trying to do is stifle these men," Kuby said. "I guess I'm still expecting an apology from the government for the five months these men have already suffered."

Asked if Hatcher and Jacobs would cooperate with a state task force investigating their charges of drug trafficking by law enforcement officers in Robeson County, defense attorney Bob Warren said, "We've been cooperating with the task force, and will continue to."

"It's been a long five months, with a lot of torture," said Eiveyn Jacobs,

Officials Debate Cost Of Living Study

Indices are relative, Janice Faulkner, director of the ECU Regional Development Institute, said.

"I have no hard data to deny or affirm what the finding is. Frequently things we know are what we read in the paper. But, I suspect the cost here is slightly higher because of current and recent growth."

She said the higher costs are reflected in housing and goods and services. The chamber of commerce survey collected prices on about 60 items in six categories — groceries, housing, utilities, transportation, health care and a miscellaneous category that included spending for leisure activities.

Greenville's higher cost of living is not necessarily a negative, Ms. Faulkner said.

"The fact that the cost of living is high means merely that the economy is very healthy and that the flow of dollars in the economy will sustain that market."

The cost of living should not be a deterrent for potential industry, she said. "If you're going to make higher profits here, you're going to have to spend more. It's a temporary condition. Greenville is at the crest, and it will eventually level and stabilize."

Greenville Mayor Ed Carter said he, too, thought the index was incorrect, but added, "There are a few categories that I could see they could base that on."

"I wouldn't doubt that the health care is generally higher because we have a regional center," Carter said.

"I think we're really an attractive area for industry," he said. "I think we could do a better job of telling people of how good we are."

Phil Dickerson, chairman of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, said he believes the index is incorrect. "It may reflect simply that we have a very white-collar population that seems to be developing. We obviously do find ourselves as the capital city of eastern North Carolina and that may have an impact. This seems to be the hub for a lot of business activity."

A similar report from Runzheimer International of Rochester, Wis., said living costs in Greensboro were the highest in the state. That index used figures from the second quarter of this year and calculated how far a dollar would go for an average family of four making $50,000 a year, driving two cars and living in a new home. Greenville was not listed in the Runzheimer index.

Cabarrus

JAMESVILLE — A funeral for Mr. John Henry Cabarrus, 77, of Jamesville will be conducted at 3 p.m. Friday at Jamesville High School by the Rev. Morris Mitchell. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Mr. Cabarrus was a Jamesville town commissioner. For many years he was a bartender at Roanoke Country Club in Williamston. He later worked at Dixie Motor Co. in Plymouth, as a carrier for the Williamston Enterprise in the Jamesville area and as a Jamesville associate of Flanagan Funeral Home of Greenville. He was a member of Hood Temple AME Zion Church, where he served as chairman of the trustee board, and of Carnation Masonic Lodge No. 151.

Surviving are his wife, Annie Moore Cabarrus of the home; a sister, Odessa Harris of Creswell, and a brother, Harry Cabarrus of Franklin, Va.

The family will receive friends from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday at Hood Temple Church and at other times will be at the home in Jamesville.

Arrangements are being handled by Flanagan Funeral Home of Greenville.

Elks

Mr. Jake C. Elks Jr., 68, died Tuesday at his home on Route 8, Greenville.

His funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Wilkerson

Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Bobby Parker. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

A native of Pitt County and a Greenville resident for many years, Mr. Elks was reared near Pinetops. He was a retired service station operator and a former employee of the Pepsi Cola Bottling Co.

Surviving are his wife, Rosa Lee Andrews Elks of the home; two sons, Jake C. Elks III and Bobby K. Elks Sr., both of Greenville; two daughters, Ann Moore and Tammy G. Elks, both of Greenville; four sisters, Mae Belle Hardee of Greenville, Mary Elizabeth Harrell of Pinetops, and Betty Ruth Whitley and Faye Harrell, both of Tarboro; six grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today.

Greene

GRIMESLAND — A funeral for Mr. Joe Greene Jr. of Route 1, Grimesland, will be conducted Friday at 11 a.m. in the Norcott Chapel of Loving Memories by Bishop Mott Ebron. Burial will be in the White Oak Missionary Church Cemetery in Grimesland.

Mr. Greene was born and reared in Pitt County where he lived most of his life.

Surviving are three sons, Chester Greene Jr., Willie Ray Greene and Joe Greene III, all of New Haven, Conn.; a daughter, Shirley Greene Langley of Washington, D.C.; a step-daughter, Dorothy Speller of Greenville; three brothers, Willie Greene of Greenville, Jessie Greene of Kinston and Melvin Greene of Chocowinity; a sister, Betty Carman of Greenville; 15 grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Viewing will be at the funeral home in Greenville from 6 p.m. Thursday until the hour of the funeral. The family will receive friends at the chapel Thursday from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. and at other times will be at the home of Dorothy Speller, Route 1, Greenville, near Galloway Crossroads.

Probe Under Way

the United States from the Soviet Union, which rebuffed all requests for reparations following its 1983 destruction of a Korean Air Lines jetliner with 269 people aboard.

Some U.S. officials, however, noted that the Iranian government has used the incident as an anti-American rallying point and said it might be reluctant to cooperate with any U.S. humanitarian effort.

Iran's military commander-in-chief, Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, continued the drumbeat of hostile rhetoric Tuesday, declaring on Tehran Radio: "We cannot allow ourselves to refrain from taking revenge. The choice of timing is up to us, and not to America."

In other developments:

—A man purporting to speak for Islamic Jihad claimed the pro-Iranian faction would kill one of two American hostages it was holding in Lebanon, but police in Beirut said the deadline passed without incident. It was not possible to authenticate the call.

—Peggy Say, sister of hostage Terry Anderson, said she had been told that he might be released over the July 4th weekend, but those hopes were dashed by Sunday's attack in the Persian Gulf. Anderson, 40, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, has been held the longest of 18 foreign captives in Lebanon.

—Secretary of State George P. Shultz disclosed Tuesday that before the Airbus was shot down, Iranian officials had sent messages through third parties indicating a desire to open a direct dialogue with the United States and that the United States had responded positively, the New York Times reported in today's editions.

"We've had a number of these probes ... from Iran through various third parties saying that they'd like to talk with us, and we've responded to those," Shultz said as he began a 2 1/2-week trip to nine Pacific and East Asian nations. "Since there have been several, we have said we're ready for one, and we're prepared for an authoritative discussion."

Howard, the Pentagon's top spokesman, said the Iranian aircraft was broadcasting "in two modes" and that one of those had been "previously identified or associated with an F-14" jet fighter, the most potent attack plane in Iran's arsenal.

But other information that surfaced Tuesday cast doubt on initial Pentagon reports that the plane was outside commercial airspace and was descending toward the Vincennes, as an attacking warplane would do.

House Armed Services Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., said military officials told his panel during a closed-door briefing that the airliner never left a commercial air corridor. Officials also disclosed that another American ship in the area concluded the Iranian A-300 Airbus maintained a steady altitude of 12,600 feet, rather than descending toward the Vincennes.

Senior members of Congress called on Reagan to make a humanitarian gesture by offering compensation to families that lost relatives aboard the jetliner.

House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, said that if reparations "would assuage the grief of the other aggrieved party, surely we could do that. Congress would support that if it were requested."

"I think it would be a wise idea," said Sen. John Warner, R-Va., the top Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee. "There's a clear admission by our president that this was an unfortunate accident," and Congress likely would provide the money for such payments, he said.

Apparently the most relevant law is one that provides for compensation in "combat-related" situations. It empowers the Pentagon to settle claims for such losses. The Iranian jetliner was shot down over waters patrolled by U.S. warships protecting tankers carrying oil to Europe and Japan.

While the commanders have orders to fire if attacked — and have done so — the United States is not at war with Iran.

Radio Moscow condemned the U.S. attack as "deliberate mass murder in cold blood."

Lawyer By Mail?

Ken Haigler, a personal injury attorney who practices in Greenville and Wilmington, said advertising has become more common over the years, but the Supreme Court ruling will not have a strong impact on the legal profession.

"During my years of practice, the legal profession — in terms of advertising — has certainly changed quite a bit," said Haigler, who has practiced in Pitt County since 1981 and aired television commercials for about two years. "I certainly think ... you have more advertising now than you had seven years ago."

Though advertising in the mass media is now within ethical rules, many attorneys still chose not to advertise, and Haigler said the new ruling is not likely to cause any attorneys to change their philosophy.

The ruling also is not one that will affect the day-to-day courtroom work of every criminal lawyer, Haigler said, one of only a few who advertise. "I don't think it will affect the average lawyer in Pitt County, or any other county for that matter," Haigler said. "I don't think you'll see enough of a change for people to notice, at least not locally. I really don't see this being that major a change."

The state bar will continue to prohibit attorneys from contacting potential clients in person, but telephone contact is a cloudier issue the Supreme Court did not address in the Kentucky case. Still, Edmonson said he feels the state bar will prohibit telephone calls to potential clients.

"If (potential clients) receive something in the mail ... they don't feel coerced and pressured to respond to it," Edmonson said. "But on the phone, there is the potential for coercion on the part of the lawyer."

Agassi Finishes Strong In Win

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Second-seeded Andre Agassi spotted West Germany's Alexander Mronz the first eight games and stormed back for an 0-6, 6-4, 6-2 victory Tuesday night in the $475,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

Agassi, an 18-year-old sensation from Las Vegas, survived his initial test in the week-long tournament a few hours after top-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden's Mats Wilander breezed to an easy victory in his debut.

Wilander, bidding for his third U.S. Pro title in four years, and Agassi took opposite routes to advance after first-round byes.

Wilander, the Australian and French Open champ who had his Grand Slam hopes dashed in a quarter-final loss at Wimbledon, needed just 62 minutes for a 6-1, 6-2 victory over unseeded Andrew Burrow, the 1987 NCAA champion for the University of Miami on Longwood's covered courts.

Agassi, who has won more than $344,000 in just his second full year on the pro tour, was shocked as he lost his service three times in being blanked by Mronz in a 36-minute first set.

Mronz, ranked 236th with less than $14,000 in winnings this year, threatened to rout Agassi as he held service at the outset of the second set and then broke serve again in the second game.

However, Agassi bore down and began to force errors, finally winning his first game on a service break. He broke again in the fifth game and went on to win the set in 44 minutes.

The two players exchanged service breaks in the first two games of the deciding set, but Agassi took charge with a break in the third game and another in the fifth to wrap up the match in just under two hours.

"I've been down 6-0 in games before and come back to win," Agassi said. "I had never seen him play and he came out hitting real good."

"I had to get my head together. As soon as I won the first game, I knew I'd be okay."

The post-Wimbledon rankings put Wilander, 22, third behind Ivan Lendl and Stefan Edberg. Burrow, a native of South Africa, was ranked 493rd.

On the basis of the rankings, Wilander figured to do just about what he pleased on the sun-baked clay courts — and he did.

Given a first-round bye, while Burrow had little trouble in an opening match, Wilander won his first set in 26 minutes.

Wilander, the 1985 and '87 winner, broke his inexperienced rival's service at love in the second and fifth games while holding his own serve at love three times.

Wilander then broke Burrow in the opening game of the second set, broke again in the seventh game and, as he did in the first set, followed by winning his service game at love.

"It's good to get back on clay, especially after Wimbledon," Wilander said after launching a quest for top prize money of $50,575. "It's good to get back into shape, get the ground stroke back."

Wilander said he was disappointed in losing in the Wimbledon quarterfinals, but not because it prevented him from becoming the first player in 19 years to win tennis' Grand Slam. The U.S. Open is the fourth stop among the Big Four.

"I wasn't disappointed because I never really thought of winning the Grand Slam," he said.

In other matches, Spain's Juan Aguilera, unseeded and ranked 166th in the world, upset sixth-seeded Jay Berger of Plantation, Fla., ranked 36th, 6-3, 6-1.

Unseeded Jim Courier of Dade City, Fla., ousted ninth-seeded Jaime Yzaga of Peru 6-1, 7-5.

In the longest match on the second day of the week-long tournament, unseeded John Ross, a former Southern Methodist All-American, ousted 14th-seeded Pablo Arraya of Peru 4-6, 7-6 (7-3), 6-1 in nearly three hours.

Richey Reneberg, seeded 12th, easily passed his first test, whipping Craig Boynton of Tampa 6-3, 6-1.

Picking The All-Stars Is One Tough Chore

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

There just aren't enough places on the starting All-Star team to do justice to all the players who belong there. What they need for Tuesday night's game are new rules with three or four designated hitters to accommodate the overflow.

Hey, the American League changed the rules from nine players to 10. So can we.

There is, for example, the traditional limitation of three outfielders in the starting lineup. Both leagues are supplied with more suitable candidates than that, and there is evidence that the excess has left voters befuddled.

If you can vote for just three American League outfielders, then maybe your three are Dave Winfield, Jose Canseco and Kirby Puckett, all worthwhile choices. What do you do then with people like Boston teammates Mike Greenwell and Ellis Burks?

Nothing, apparently.

The last report of voting results before tonight's announcement of the starting teams show Greenwell and Burks, fourth and eighth among the AL's hitters at .344 and .325, missing in action. This is not easy to do, considering that the All-Star vote tally goes 16 deep.

Greenwell's credentials, through Monday night's games, included 64 runs batted in, tied for first in the majors with AL outfield vote leader Canseco, and a .584 slugging percentage and .440 on-base percentage, both second best in the league. Burks' .527 slugging percentage was eighth best in the league.

And for that neither player could make it to the top 16?

The best young outfielder in the National League may be Chicago's Rafael Palmeiro. He is fourth in the league in hitting at .315 through Monday night, third

Collusion Hits Second Round

By RONALD BLUM
Associated Press Writer

Tim Raines couldn't change clubs between the 1986 and 1987 seasons. If given the opportunity, he'll try again.

"I can't say I'm pleased. I wish it would never have happened," the Montreal Expos outfielder said Tuesday night of the alleged collusion of baseball owners. "A lot of guys really only get one opportunity at free agency. I didn't want to go free agent but I was forced. But that's behind me now. I've got another opportunity. I'll look at my options again."

Raines is among the 79 free agents of 1988 who are subjects of the Collusion II case, expected to be decided by arbitrator George Nicolau this month.

Raines and the other premier players referred to as the "January 8 Eight" are awaiting Nicolau's decision. Andre Dawson of the Chicago Cubs could gain money, but he's agreed not to become a free agent again. He waived that right when he signed a two-year contract with Chicago for a guaranteed $4.15 million.

"I'm where I want to be. That's behind me now," Dawson said. "I took a gamble. I realized where the game was headed and what the owners were trying to do. I put myself out on a limb and I had a good season. This year, I'm taken care of."

Dawson's name appeared on notes taken by Philadelphia Phillies owner Bill Giles, who on Jan. 28, 1987 wrote down numbers next to Dawson's name which matched the contract offered to Dawson by the Chicago Cubs five weeks later. The notation was "5-700 Dawson." Dawson was paid $500,000 by the Cubs for 1987 with bonuses that raised him to $700,000.

"I don't think that's a coincidence," Dawson said. "That's probably one of the reasons they (the Phillies) never made an offer. They were probably too embarrassed to make an offer like that."

Lance Parrish, who left the Tigers and signed with the Phillies at a cut in salary, could become a free agent again if Nicolau rules against the owners.

"We're just waiting for whatever decision he comes up with and (will) abide by it, Parrish said. "But I don't know what that will be. Like everybody else, I'm waiting to see what the decision is."

The other premier players in the case declined comment Tuesday. Meanwhile baseball officials reacted to the disclosure of the union's 182-page brief by The Associated Press:

— Player Relations Committee executive director Barry Rona said that information trading by teams was allowed under the collective bargaining agreement.

— Union boss Don Fehr accused the owners of using legalities to distort the issue of the alleged conspiracy.

— Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth denied collusion charges in an interview published in Wednesday's editions of The Washington Post.

— George Nicolau, the arbitrator who will decide the 1988 collusion grievance, gave no indication Tuesday on when he would issue a ruling.

"If there's any collusion, boy, you've got me," Ueberroth said. "I've never been able to get those twenty-six (owners) to agree on anything. Dealing with them, it's organized mayhem ... But I did tell them to be honest with each other. I told them, 'Don't saddle me with the (game's) economic problem.' But at a meeting where I spoke, we had a battery of lawyers. At least fifty people in the room. ... You know, players' agents have compared notes for years (on salary offers). All I told them was, 'If you wonder about something, pick up the phone and ask. You have the right to ask.'"

Ueberroth and the owners contend that the collective bargaining agreement permits the discussions that took place among owners and general managers. The union claims the information exchange was conspiratorial.

"Our past practices with respect to the dissemination and exchange of information had not been any different for the last 10 years," Rona said. "The difference in 1986 is that it apparently had an impact and when it had impact, the players' association said that it was violative of the agreement. As long as it did not have impact, they were perfectly willing to at least acquiesce to our interpretation of the practice."

"You can have an information exchange and a free market. Then you would have a well-efficient, informed market and that would be the best of things," Fehr said. "What happens, though, when people exchange information and the purpose is to say 'Bid under, don't compete with me.'? Then you have price-fixing, collusion, conspiracies, monopoly."

Chambers Makes 1st Free Agent Move

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Phoenix Suns are desperate to become an NBA contender again and free agent forward Tom Chambers said they made him a contract offer he couldn't refuse.

On Tuesday, Chambers became the first unrestricted free agent to go to another NBA team by signing a five-year, multimillion-dollar contract with the Suns, who are trying to rebound from four straight losing seasons and three consecutive years out of the playoffs.

The 29-year-old Chambers, a seven-year pro who played out his option last season after five years with the Seattle SuperSonics, was allowed to sign with any NBA team without his former club receiving any compensation or having the right of first refusal under terms of the league's new collective bargaining agreement.

Details of Chambers' contract were not announced, in keeping with club policy, but sources said the pact is worth up to $1.8 million per season including several bonus clauses and totals $9 million over the five years.

The 6-foot-10, 230-pound Chambers earned $956,000 last season with Seattle and reportedly had a four-year, $5 million offer from the SuperSonics.

Suns president Jerry Colangelo said "it is safe to say" Chambers is now Phoenix's highest-paid player and one of the top salaried forwards in the league.

Last Friday was the first day for teams to sign unrestricted free agents. Chambers said his agent, Howard Slusher, received a telephone call from Suns assistant coach Paul Westphal at 12:01 a.m. Friday, asking to set up contract talks.

"On Saturday, (Suns head coach) Cotton (Fitzsimmons), Paul Westphal and myself met with Howard and Tom Chambers at Howard's home (in Rolling Hills, Calif.)," Colangelo said. "We started at nine in the morning and ended about five o'clock at night. By the end of the day, we had agreed to agree."

"They came in the door and offered me a deal. I couldn't refuse it," Chambers said. "It caught me off-guard."

Chambers originally was signed by the San Diego Clippers in 1981 out of the University of Utah and was traded to Seattle on Aug. 18, 1983, in a multi-player deal.

Van Slyke Helps Bucs Top Padres

By BILL BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Andy Van Slyke, who enjoys making a great defensive play as much as hitting a homer, is even happier when he can have it both ways.

The Pittsburgh center fielder hit a tie-breaking homer in the seventh inning, then preserved the lead with a perfect throw in the ninth, lifting the Pirates to a 3-2 victory over San Diego Tuesday night.

"I enjoy every aspect of the game," Van Slyke said. "I like to do things offensively and defensively. To tell you the truth, I get a better kick out of throwing the guy out at the plate in that situation than hitting a home run."

"He's the best center fielder in the National League," Pirates manager Jim Leyland said. "What he does day-in and day-out, there's no question about it. There's some with more power and some with more speed. Some do other things, but day-in and day-out, he is the best."

"As far as I'm concerned, he's the Gold Glove center fielder in the National League," winning pitcher Bob Walk said.

In other NL games, it was Cincinnati 3, New York 1; Atlanta 10, Philadelphia 5; Montreal 4, Houston

3 in 11 innings; Los Angeles 6, St. Louis 3; and San Francisco 9, Chicago 0.

After Van Slyke's two-out homer off Padres starter Jimmy Jones, 5-8, in the seventh, he clinched the game when he threw out John Kruk at home plate in the ninth after a one-out single by Benito Santiago. Kruk, trying to score from second, bowled over catcher Junior Ortiz, who held the ball.

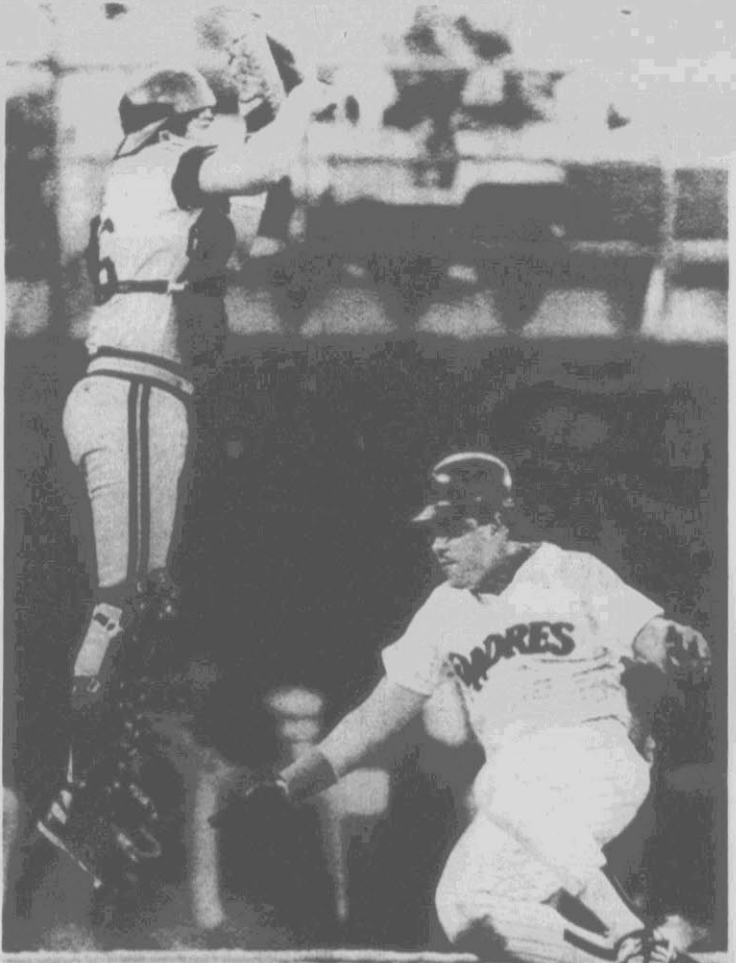

Walk, 9-4, who had allowed only one run in 14 innings in his first two starts against San Diego, gave up two runs in the first, but then blanked the Padres until he was relieved with one out and two on base in the ninth.

Barry Jones got the last two outs for his second save, with the help of Van Slyke's throw home.

The Padres scored twice in the first on Chris Brown's two-run single, but the Pirates made it 2-1 in the third when Tommy Gregg, playing his first major-league game this season, hit his first major-league homer.

The Pirates tied the score with an unearned run in the fifth. Jose Lind reached base on a fielding error by shortstop Garry Templeton and later scored on a two-out single by Darnell Coles.

Mariners, Tribe Gain Revenge

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Revenge is sweet. Just ask Seattle reliever Mike Schooler and all the Cleveland Indians.

The Indians remembered Monday's 4-2 loss to Oakland in 16 innings, a game that ended in a shouting match between Athletics reliever Dennis Eckersley and Cleveland shortstop Ron Washington, who struck out, and a brief bench clearing.

"The way Eckersley showed us up got a lot of us fired up," Cleveland pitcher Scott Bailes said. "These guys didn't care that they had played 16 innings. Everybody just wanted to go. It was a good day to go out there and pitch."

Bailes pitched a five-hit shutout and Rick Rodriguez posted his first victory of the season by yielding one run and six hits in 6 2-3 innings as the Indians swept Tuesday's two-nighter from the A's 3-0 and 4-2.

Meanwhile, Schooler was in trouble after Detroit scored in the ninth on three singles to pull within a run of Seattle. The batter was Luis Salazar, who homered in the first inning.

"Salazar burned me twice in winter ball," Schooler said. "People said I should throw him sliders. I did, and twice he got hits to beat me (Schooler's only defeats in the Venezuelan League). Tonight, I decided to throw three fastballs at the knees and let him see what he could do."

What Salazar did was ground into a game-ending double play as the Mariners nipped the Tigers 5-4.

In other American League action, it was Minnesota 6, Boston 4; New York 5, Texas 3; Milwaukee 3, Kansas City 1; Toronto 4, California 1; Baltimore 5, Chicago 1.

While most of the Indians simply wanted to avenge Monday's loss to the A's — "What happened got a few people fired up, and we wanted to go out and beat them," Bailes said — Rodriguez had even more motivation, having spent seven years in the Oakland organization before Cleveland signed him in January.

"Oakland's been my team my whole life, so it feels good," said Rodriguez, who was called up from the minors on June 18.

Cory Snyder hit a two-run homer in the first game and had two RBI singles in the nightcap. Cleveland relief ace Doug Jones extended his record string of successful saves to 16 in a row in the second game.

1st Inning Keys Snow Hill To Win

ROCKY MOUNT — Snow Hill used a big first inning to take a 8-1 win over Rocky Mount in the first game of a best of three American Legion baseball playoffs Tuesday.

Post 13 struck for five runs in the opening inning and never looked back. George Burnette got Snow Hill started with a single and moved up on a sacrifice by T.J. Johnson. With two outs, Shay Beaman walked to put men at first and second.

Chris West doubled in Burnette, followed by another walk to Anthony Jones. Walt McKeel then cleared the bases with a three-run double before coming home himself on a single by Cedrick Collins.

Rocky Mount countered with a solo homer by Joseph Hill in the bottom of the inning, but that was as close as it would get. Snow Hill expanded its lead in the sixth when Tommy Eason hit a three-run double to provide the final margin.

Hill and Strickland had two hits for Rocky Mount while Burnette, Eason and Hill had two hits each for Snow Hill.

Snow Hill hosts Rocky Mount tonight in the second game of their best-of-three series.

Tar Heel, North State Pick Teams

The North State and Tar Heel Little Leagues have announced their All-Star team selections, officials announced Tuesday.

Optimist leads the North State team with four selections in Sean Gordon, Kevin Kirland, Dyron Langley and Daryl Powell. Sportsworld had three choices in Dante Daniels, Matt Davis and Shep Skinner. Robert Barnes and Jacob Zonn were Coca-Cola's choices while Scott Briley, Deke Herrin and Daryl Cherry represent the Lions. Chris Grover represents Eveready while Brandon Moore is the choice from Bill Clark Construction.

Michael Rouse of Kiwanis, Grainger Hill of the Lions, Scott Selby of Clark and Aaron Dixon of Optimist are the alternates.

Exchange and Jarman's Auto, which won the city championship, lead the Tar Heel choices with three selections each.

Nicky Phillips, Russell Williamson and Adam Vincent are Jarman's choices while Derrick Hopkins, Greg Pearsall and Neil Boardman were chosen from Exchange.

Jon Gavigan and Geoff Stallings represent Pepsi-Cola. Jon Paul Deove represent Wellcome while Craig Brannon and Alan Colombo are the choices from MacKenzie Security.

William Levett of First Federal and Curtis McCray of Moose also were selected.

Hand Injury Forces Norman Out Of Open

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Australian star Greg Norman reinjured his left wrist during a practice round this week and has decided to pull out of the British Open later this month, a newspaper reported today.

Norman aggravated the wrist sprain Monday at the Big Cypress Resort where he was playing his first full practice round since the injury forced him to withdraw from the U.S. Open June 17, The Orlando Sentinel reported.

On the advice of his orthopedic surgeon, Norton Baker, Norman decided to withdraw from the British Open and stay out of action for at least a month, the newspaper reported.

"I'm not going," he told The Sentinel Tuesday evening. "I've decided to get the thing right and give it three weeks. Norton feels after three weeks I'll be back to the same old wrist. Medically, I'll be all right. I can play right now, but if I go (to Royal Lytham), I might be flying right back after two holes of a practice round."

The blond-haired veteran was one of the U.S. Open favorites when he injured the wrist on June 17. A PGA doctor said Norman tore cartilage in the wrist when he struck a rock while hitting from the rough at The Country Club in Brookline, Mass.

Phillies Extend Elia's Contract

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The last-place Philadelphia Phillies extended manager Lee Elia's contract through the 1989 season Tuesday.

Elia, who will be 51 next week, took over as manager June 18, 1987, after John Felske was fired and led the Phillies to a 51-50 record over the last 3½ months of the season.

But the Phillies are 35-44 this year, 15½ games behind the first-place leading New York Mets in the NL East and two games behind fifth-place St. Louis.

The contract extension was announced by new personnel director Lee Thomas in Atlanta, where the Phillies met the Braves Tuesday night.

"I think he's (Elia's) the guy to get this club going again," Thomas said. "I felt it was very important to get this wrapped up as soon as possible."

Thomas joined the Phillies last month, succeeding Woody Woodward, who was fired.

"I knew he (Elia) was a good baseball man when I came here, but I wanted to spend some time with him first," Thomas said.

Russell Williamson scattered six hits over six innings and also picked up a pair of singles to help Jarman's Auto Sales defeat Coca-Cola, 8-7, to claim the Greenville Little League Baseball Championship Tuesday.

Coke took a 7-6 lead by scoring three runs in the top of the sixth as Steven Salargo singled and Robert Barnes doubled, but Jarman's came right back, pushing across two runs in the bottom of the inning to take the win.

Abdul Jordan started things off with a walk and went to second on a passed ball. After one out, Williamson singled in Jordan. Adam Vincent reached off a balk and Williamson later came home off an error to score the winning run.

Williamson's two hits led the way for Jarman's while James Ebron had two hits for Coke.

First Citizen's held off a late rally by Legal Eagles to take a 16-13 win in Prep League baseball tournament action Tuesday.

Reggie Boyd, Arron Givens and Sam Jennings had two hits each for First Citizens, which took control of the game in the fourth by scoring eight runs to open up a 14-5 lead. Shea Harper had two hits to key the fourth.

Legal Eagles rallied to within one run at 16-13 by scoring four runs in the bottom of the fifth, keyed by base hits by Adam Charlton, Jay Moyer, Richie Grimsley, Jason Krause and Albert Alston, but it wasn't enough as First Citizens held on for the win.

Moye went 3-3 to lead Legal Eagles.

First Citizens returns to action at 8 p.m. tonight against the winner of the Shop Eze-Legal Eagle game which will be played at 5:30. A win in the late game will clinch the tournament for First Citizens.

Shop Eze added four runs in the second, keyed by a home run by Matt Roberts, one in the third, four more

Fenner Is In Trouble Again

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Derrick Fenner, the former University of North Carolina running back who had recently faced murder and drug charges, now has been accused of making threats at a Chapel Hill motel, authorities said.

Fenner, 21, was charged Sunday after an employee at the Holiday Inn said Fenner had threatened him while at the motel bar on Saturday, police said. The exchange with employee Christopher Clark apparently occurred after Clark had asked Fenner to leave the bar, police said.

Fenner, who is enrolled in summer school at UNC-Chapel Hill, was charged last June in what police described as the drug-related slaying of a 19-year-old man in a Hyattsville, Md. housing project. The murder charge was dropped but he pleaded guilty to one count of cocaine possession in a plea agreement and was placed on three years probation.

in the fourth and one in the fifth.

Brian Hill, Coward, Yarborough and Roberts had two hits each for Shop Eze.

Shop Eze takes on Legal Eagle tonight at 5:30 p.m. for the right to advance to the finals to play First Citizens at 8 p.m.

On the third row are Grant Jarman, Scott Whitley, Brandon Pierce, Luke Wendling, Nicky Phillips and Bill Williamson. (Reflector Photo)

McCumber Hopeful Of A Repeat Win

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Mark McCumber is finding it difficult to temper his optimism as he prepares to defend his title at the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

"Since last May, I've been on a hot streak I hope will continue the next five or six years," McCumber said.

At last year's Anheuser-Busch, McCumber toured Kingsmill Golf Club's 6,776-yard, par-71 layout with rounds of 65, 69, 67 and 66.

The victory was the fourth of his professional career, and came in the middle of a string of 19 consecutive rounds in which McCumber shot par or better. It was the longest such streak on the PGA Tour in 1987.

He finished the year with winnings of $390,885, a figure he already has surpassed this season.

Victory No. 5 came when McCumber won The Players Championship in March with a tournament-record score 273.

He enters the Anheuser-Busch, which begins Thursday, in sixth place on this year's money list with winnings of more than $427,000.

"I feel like I'm at the top of the pecking order," McCumber said. "I feel that, without a doubt, I've played as well as anybody has the last year or two."

McCumber feels his victory in March "was a major step in people changing the attitude toward me from, 'Well, he's a pretty good player,' to, 'Well, he's one of the best.'"

Dodgers 6, Cardinals 3
Los Angeles won for the 13th time in 17 games and handed St. Louis its eighth loss in 11 outings as Orel Hershiser won his sixth consecutive start and John Shelby and Mike Marshall drove in two runs apiece.

Hershiser, 13-3, allowed seven hits and all three St. Louis runs in seven innings. Tim Belcher earned his fourth save by pitching the final two innings.

Tom Brunansky and Terry Pendleton hit consecutive homers with two outs in the fourth to make it 3-2, but the Dodgers made it 5-2 in the fifth on a two-out single by Gibson and a homer by Marshall.

Giants 9, Cubs 0
San Francisco crushed Chicago as Terry Mulholland pitched a six-hitter in his first major-league start since 1986.

Mulholland, 1-0, recalled from the Giants' AAA team in Phoenix when Mike Krukow was placed on the disabled list Sunday, also scored two runs en route to his first career complete game. He coasted after the Giants took a 4-0 first-inning lead off Cubs starter Calvin Schiraldi, 4-7.

Will Clark drove in two runs with a first-inning double as the Giants scored three times before Schiraldi could get an out.

Reds 3, Mets 1
Cincinnati held New York to one run for the second consecutive night as Tom Browning pitched a three-hitter through eight innings for his sixth consecutive victory.

Browning, 8-3, struck out five, walked one and hit a batter before being replaced at the start of the ninth by John Franco, who allowed one hit before picking up his 11th save.

"Good pitching beats anybody, and we've had it these two games," manager Pete Rose said of the 5-1 and 3-1 victories over the Mets. "Good pitching would have beaten the great Yankee team of 1927."

The Reds took a 2-0 lead in the first off Bob Ojeda, 6-7, when Kal Daniels singled, stole second, advanced to third on a balk and scored on Chris Sabo's double. Nick Esasky drove in Sabo with a single.

The Mets, held to one hit through 6 2-3 innings, spoiled Browning's shutout when Darryl Strawberry doubled and scored on Kevin McReynolds' single in the seventh.

and Rich Bordi were the losers — trimmed Oakland's lead over Minnesota in the AL West to 4½ games.

Mariners 5, Tigers 4
Dave Valle's two-run double keyed a three-run fourth inning as Seattle handed Walt Terrell a rare defeat at Tiger Stadium, where he is 33-9. Winner Steve Trout yielded three runs and seven hits in 5 2-3 innings.

Twins 6, Red Sox 4
Lee Smith, hailed as Boston's bullpen savior after an off-season trade with the Chicago Cubs, has blown five saves in 16 opportunities, including two in the last three days.

Yankees 5, Rangers 3
New York scored all its runs in the first inning and reliever Tim Stoddard retired Scott Fletcher, the only batter he faced, on a fly ball with the bases loaded to end the game.

Brewers 3, Royals 1
Mike Birkbeck, just recalled from the minors, blanked Kansas City until the ninth inning and Jeffrey Leonard homered. Birkbeck allowed five hits in 8 1-3 innings.

Blue Jays 4, Angels 1
Jimmy Key scattered six hits in 8 1-3 innings and Rick Leach took advantage of a rare start by getting two hits and scoring twice. Key lost his shutout when Dick Schofield hit his fourth home run in the eighth.

In two appearances since he had bone chips removed from his elbow on May 4, Key has allowed two runs and 10 hits in 15 innings. Loser Mike Witt went the route, yielding nine hits.

Orioles 5, White Sox 1
Rookie Jose Bautista pitched a five-hitter for his first complete game in the majors and Cal Ripken drove in three runs with a homer and a bases-loaded walk. Bautista, making his 11th start, struck out six and didn't walk a batter.

Ripken also had two singles and scored in the first inning while his brother, Billy, had a pair of singles and drove in a run.

Cal Ripken's homer was his 13th of the season and capped a three-run sixth inning in which Ken Gerhart singled, stole second and scored on a single by Billy Ripken off Dave LaPoint. Cal Ripken followed with his homer off Steve Rosenberg. It was his 22nd career homer against the White Sox.

Upset In Light Heavyweight Bout

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — Alfred Cole may have been the only person not surprised by his upset win over light heavyweight favorite Andrew Maynard in the U.S. Olympic boxing trials.

"The people would consider it an upset, but I wouldn't," Cole said after taking a 4-1 decision Tuesday night over Maynard. "It was only the people who didn't know me who thought I couldn't win."

Cole scored well on the outside and fought the powerful Maynard on even terms inside to win as the boxing trials opened at Diablo Valley College.

"It's the biggest win I've had in boxing," said Cole, of Spring Valley, N.Y. "He's a slugger and I'm a boxer. I planned on boxing and it worked just the way I thought."

The victory moves Cole into the semifinals of the light heavyweight division and knocks Maynard out of the tournament, but not necessarily out of a chance to make the Olympic team.

Maynard, a member of the 1987 Pan Am team and considered one of the favorites to win a gold medal for the United States in Seoul, is expected to be named the division's "most worthy opponent," giving him a second chance to make the team when the Olympic box-offs are held in Las Vegas on July 16-17.

"We'll meet again in Las Vegas," predicted Cole. "He's good. Me and him are the top in our division."

Cole's win topped a day that saw all three reigning U.S. world champions advance to the semifinals of their respective divisions. The fights were part of a marathon day of action that featured 48 bouts in 12 weight classes, with two rings being used simultaneously.

World amateur middleweight champion Darin Allen, who fell from the rankings after a series of defeats, rebounded to beat U.S. Amateur champion Jerome James, while welterweight champion Kenneth Gould and 125-pound champion Kelcie Banks also won.

Allen, who failed to qualify for the trials and earned a berth only by special invitation, took the fight to James in the third round to score a unanimous 5-0 decision and gain the semifinals of the 165-pound weight division.

"A lot of people wrote me off of the Olympic team," said Allen, who had considered quitting earlier this year after losing in a qualifying tournament. "That hurt me, but it also motivated me for this."

Allen, the 1986 world champion, had been on a downhill slide since being knocked out twice by Cuba's Angel Espinosa. Allen didn't even last a round before Espinosa knocked him out in the Pan Am Games last August.

But against James, a 31-year-old police officer from Sioux Falls, S.D., Allen showed flashes of his old self and was confident enough of the win that he raised his hands over his head midway through the final round.

"This is for the Olympics and I'm striking back," said Allen, of Columbus, Ohio. "It wasn't my ability before, it was my mind. It was hard for me to put the losses away. But now I refuse to be denied."

Gould, who also won a world title in 1986, had little trouble advancing in the 147-pound weight class with a 5-0 decision over Paul Vaden of Puyallup, Wash.

"Everyone wants to take your spot and everyone is looking to beating me," said Gould, of Rockford, Ill. "I want to stay on top, I want to be the man."

Banks, the only U.S. fighter to win a gold medal in the 1987 Pan Am Games, also won by decision, beating James Leija of San Antonio, Texas, 5-0 in his opening bout.

In another opening bout upset, Gerry Payne of Washington, D.C., stopped U.S. Amateur champion Alton Rice of Fort Hood, Texas in the first round of their welterweight fight.

Payne connected with a left hook to put Rice down and the referee moved in to stop the contest at 1:06.

Michael Collins of La Porte, Texas, a favorite to make the Olympic team at 119 pounds, easily won his opening match, taking a 5-0 decision over Max Gomez of Denver. The 23-year-old Collins, a silver medalist in the 1987 Pan Am Games, is making his second attempt to gain an Olympic berth. In 1984, he lost to eventual gold medalist Steve McCrory in the 112-pound finals.

A brother-against-brother matchup at 106 pounds was averted when Mark Johnson of Washington, D.C., lost a 3-2 decision to Eric Griffin of Houston.

All-Star Game

have been voting casually. There is nothing terribly wrong with a starting outfield of Darryl Strawberry, Andre Dawson and Vince Coleman.

Montreal first baseman Andres Galarraga is tearing up the league, batting .345 with 19 home runs and 52 RBI. He is, however, only third in the voting behind San Francisco's Will Clark, who also has 19 homers and leads the league with 62 RBI, and perennial Keith Hernandez of New York, the beneficiary of force of habit votes at a time when he has spent almost a month on the disabled list.

If Hernandez and Atlanta's Gerald Perry (second in the league at .332 but also disabled) were healthy, you could add them to Clark, Galarraga and Houston's Glenn Davis (18 homers, 59 RBI) and have an NL team with five very good first basemen. This, though, would be a problem since baseball, shackled by tradition, insists on continuing to use only one first base in the game.

Then there is the matter of third base in the National League.

For many years, that was an automatic vote, and deservedly so, for Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt. Now the ravages of age have limited Schmidt to a .236 summer and second place in the balloting behind Pittsburgh's Bobby Bonilla. There is nothing terribly wrong with that because Bonilla is a legitimate star. But absent from the eight-deep vote tally at the position are Cincinnati rookie Chris Sabo and veteran Vance Law of Chicago, both enjoying banner seasons.

Sabo (.308) and Law (.307) are running 5-6 among NL hitters. Through Monday's games, Sabo also led the league with 30 doubles and was fifth in slugging percentage at .529. The voters, however, found eight third basemen more deserving of All-Star votes.

Voting for Sabo required determination since he is not on the ballot because of his rookie status. But if you wrote in Sabo, what did you do with Bonilla? Or Law? Or, for that matter, Schmidt?

The All-Star extravaganza is a welcome mid-season pause, a time to contemplate the season's first half and anticipate the rest of the race. The game belongs to the fans but making them pick and choose between so many worthy players invariably leaves them frustrated. And it's not wonderful either for the players they're forced to leave out when they vote.

in hits with 102, and tied for fifth in doubles with 24.

Centenarians Change From Priorities To Common Folk

By DAVID LARSEN
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

LOS ANGELES — They used to be curiosities.

The Social Security Administration would send field agents to interview them on their magic birthday. And anyone who reached age 100 was pretty much guaranteed a story in the local newspaper.

Guess what? It isn't news anymore. What is occurring instead is an emerging trend — the oldest portion of the population is now the fastest growing.

Consider this, from the U.S. Bureau of the Census:

—In 1980, the number of centenarians in the United States was about 15,000.

—By 1985, they numbered 25,000.

—By the turn of the century, fewer than a dozen years away, they are expected to number about 100,000.

One of them, 103-year-old Percy Washington of Los Angeles, has it all figured out: "The only way to live is long!"

And, according to a special census report, the main place to do it in is California.

Bureau of the Census figures from the 1980 count show that is where no fewer than 2,155 centenarians live. Other states with large numbers of centenarians include New York, 1,539; Texas, 1,324; Pennsylvania, 1,082 and Ohio, 953. The state with the second lowest total of centenarians was Nevada, 19. The fewest number of them — 9 — live in Alaska.

"For those born in 1879, the odds against living 100 years were 400-to-1," the census report added. "The odds of people born in 1980 ... are 87-to-1."

"Such large improvements suggest that the elderly population is itself aging."

So the age-old question — what's the common thread? — now takes on new meaning.

One thing is clear: Until this decade, there weren't that many centenarians, so there has been little formal study of them as a group.

More clues can be gleaned from the Social Security Administration practice from 1963 to 1972 of visiting every person who turned 100. Over the years, those 1,127 Social Security interviewees became dusty bureaucratic esoterica, until an enterprising author, Osborn Segerberg Jr., went to great lengths to track down the by-then elusive volumes, added obituaries and interviews of his own, until he had 1,200 centenarians on which to base some conclusions.

"Living to Be 100" (Charles Scribner's Sons, 1982) sheds as much light as anything on these remarkable people.

"Each one is a pioneer, an experimenter, in an area that science does not fully comprehend," Segerberg wrote. "There is no scientific formula for living 100 years. Instead, each centenarian had to make individual decisions and find personal solutions while advancing through the maze of living."

Dr. Richard Suzman is a health science administrator with the National Institute on Aging in Bethesda, Md., whose group contracted for the Bureau of the Census special report.

"In the past, a likely limit for human life expectancy was 85," he said. "But I was recently at a University of California, Berkeley, conference on aging, and most of the people there felt that the limit will be exceeded in the intermediate future."

"Some of the delegates felt that right now people could theoretically be living much longer than they do."

In all too many cases, however, those who do live on "not only outlive their spouses, they outlive their assets," Suzman pointed out.

"Poverty rates are much higher in the oldest old, not only because of outliving their assets, but because they started retirement with lower levels of assets and pensions. In fact, very few have private pensions."

"The trouble is that our society simply doesn't know what to do about the very old," Vern L. Bengtson, director of the University of Southern California Gerontology Research Center, said. "They are still regarded as an aberration."

Outdoor Movie Theaters Dropping By The Wayside

By STEVE ROBRAHN
Associated Press Writer
STANTON, Ky. (AP) — Projectionist Willie Brewer flipped a switch at the Mountain View Drive-In, sending a stream of film into some humming equipment that quickly shot a powerful beam of light over car roofs to a huge screen.

The Warner Bros. logo that appeared was visible to motorists driving up the Mountain Parkway into eastern Kentucky where, as in other parts of the country, only a handful of drive-in theaters survive in an era of video rentals and high land values.

"I don't know why people aren't coming now like they did two years ago," said David Baker, who has owned the theater since 1957. "Business is down. VCRs have hurt us more than anything else that has come down the pike."

Baker frowned. About one-third of his grassy parking spaces were filled — a disappointing turnout for a Saturday night, especially considering that the Mountain View was showing family-oriented first-run films.

Baker's frustrations are shared by the owners of other drive-in theaters across the country. The New York-based National Association of Theater Owners reports 2,074 drive-in movie screens were in operation last year.

That compares to 3,670 drive-in theaters operating 20 years ago, including hundreds that had two or more screens, and the peak of 4,063 drive-in theaters in 1958, according to the association.

Malcom Green, president of the theater owners group, said several factors have prompted the decline in drive-ins, including suburban real estate development, the faded novelty of automobiles, smaller numbers of traditional families and competition from multiscreen theaters in shopping malls.

"I can't see where there's much hope for a turnaround, especially with the high land values," said Green, who is senior vice president of Hoyts Cinemas Corp., a large East Coast theater chain based in Boston.

Drive-in theaters were highly popular immediately after World War II, Green said, adding that their "golden age" lasted from around 1950 to about 1970, when the industry entered slow but steady decline.

Most of the outdoor theaters were built before 1960 on plots larger than 12 acres, usually far outside of a city on well-traveled highways, Green said. In the 1960s and 1970s, cities expanded and land values increased, but the outdoor theaters only generated money after dark and in good weather.

"Drive-ins became suburban," Green said. "The land became valuable. It became too valuable to devote to a seasonal operation."

Loading the kids into the family car for an outing to the drive-in — or just for an aimless drive — were common evening activities in the 1950s and early 1960s, Green said.

"People now are less devoted to driving around in a car," Green said. "The idea of just sitting in a car has dwindled."

Drive-ins, which often show the same films for one to three weeks, also have a tough time competing with indoor theaters with multiple screens that offer several films at the same time, Green said.

Many drive-ins lost their qualifications to show first-run movies in the 1970s and switched to "action-oriented" films, frequently with sexual themes, Green said. As a result, parents stopped taking children to drive-ins and a generation has missed the outdoor movie experience, he said.

Jack Absher, who owns indoor theaters with 15 screens in eastern Kentucky, closed the Prestonsburg Drive-In, the last of three drive-ins he once owned, two years ago. Unlike Green, he sees only one reason for the decline of drive-ins.

"I blame it solely on daylight-saving time," Absher said.

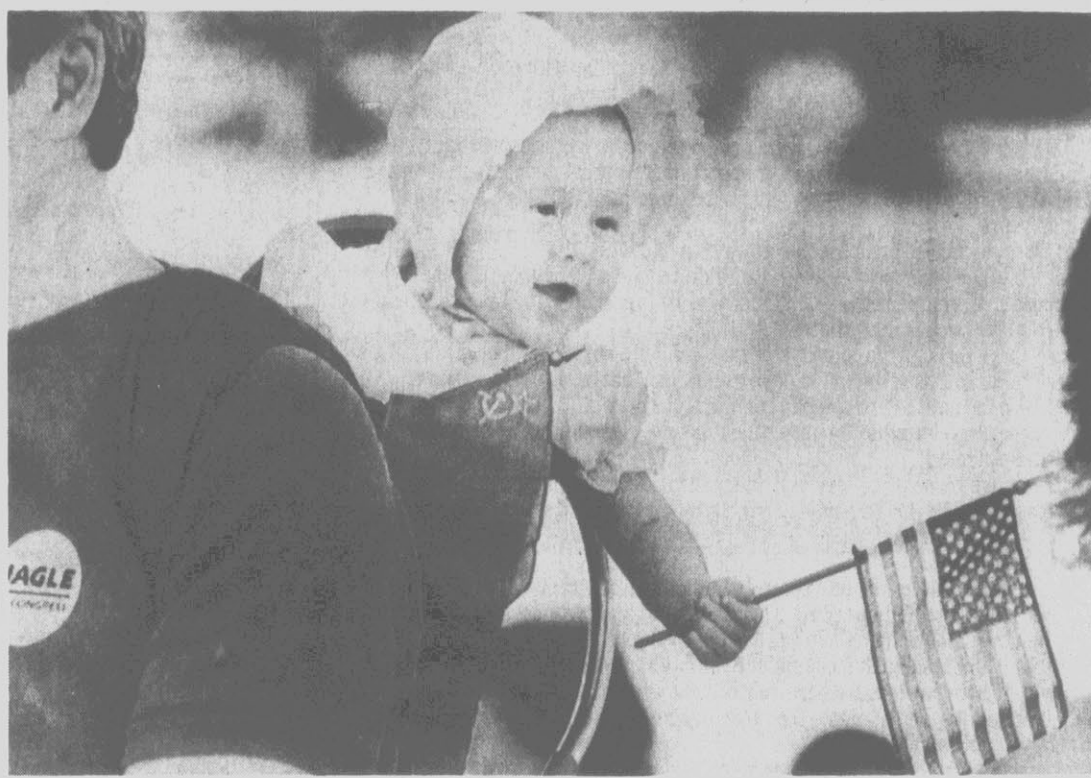

When daylight-saving time was introduced permanently in the late 1960s, the starting time for summer drive-in movies went from about 8 p.m. to around 9 p.m. Many people, Absher said, found they could no longer attend and then get up in time to go to work in the morning.

But in Stanton, children can still watch the movies on blankets next to their parents' car. The smell of popcorn continues to fill the night air as shadowy figures make their way to the concession stand amid the soundtrack echos from hundreds of window speakers.

And Baker says he plans to hold out until the drive-in movie business booms again or outdoor theaters become so scarce that people will drive long distances to view his big screen.

"People will come back," he predicted. "I think one of these days people will go out looking for a drive-in movie."

Stone Age Vs. Today: Who Wins?

By ROBERT LEE HOTZ
Atlanta Journal-Constitution
ATLANTA (AP) — In a modern world of couch potatoes, fitness freaks and supermoms, there may seem little to learn from the lifestyle of prehistoric man.

But from mankind's ancient ancestors, three Emory University researchers have resurrected a Stone Age design for living that they say could prevent many of the chronic diseases that plague more civilized lifestyles.

Blending science and educated surmise, the researchers have analyzed dozens of primitive tribes around the world to deduce the diet, exercise habits and child-rearing customs of the Stone Age tribes of 40,000 years ago — a time before agriculture and domestic animals, when the only way to satisfy a Big Mac attack was to sprint after wild game, and the house salad was prepared by foraging among weeds and shrubs.

Because these people were prey to a host of infectious diseases, their lives were often short. But by virtue of nutrition and exercise, they appear to have escaped most of the chronic degenerative diseases — heart disease, diabetes, strokes and cancer — that today cause about three-quarters of the deaths in the United States. With a diet almost devoid of sugar, even cavities were rare.

The Emory researchers say the difference is largely a matter of biology.

Hunters and foragers of the paleolithic period followed a diet and lifestyle that developed in harmony with 3 million years of human evolution. But the agricultural and industrial revolutions changed man's diet and living conditions faster than his genetic makeup could adapt.

As a result, people today live longer, but they die of diseases their ancestors naturally avoided. For example, diabetes, closely linked to diet and exercise, is almost 10 times as common among people in industrial nations than in primitive tribes.

"Our bodies and our lives are out of step with each other," said Dr. Boyd Eaton, an associate professor of radiology at Emory. "We have genes that quite literally belong to the Stone Age. We have changed the circumstances in which we live, but our biology hasn't had the chance to change."

Living High On The Hog

Viet Pigs Find Warm Spot In Home

By ELLIOTT MINOR
Associated Press Writer
CORDELE, Ga. (AP) — Three years ago, Lummie Williams and his father paid $2,600 for two of the first 28 miniature pigs from Vietnam to be imported into the United States.

They're hoping to reap financial rewards from their investment, and in the meantime they're high on the hogs.

Pigs make good house pets because they're clean and smart, although standard American varieties will eventually eat themselves out of the job, the farmer says.

The potbellied Vietnamese pigs have "got a good nature. They stay small. And they're more intelligent than dogs," noted Williams.

"They have no odor, they don't shed and they have no claws to mess up the furniture."

Williams, 42, and his father, L.L. Williams, 75, tend many exotic animals in a pecan orchard on the outskirts of Cordele, an agricultural community of 11,000 about 80 miles south of Macon. Their family has owned unusual pets for more than 40 years.

In the shade of the trees are gentle emus, a pair of ostriches, mandarin ducks, pheasants, Magellan geese, black Australian swans and many other creatures. The family also has longhorns from Texas and Watusi cattle, a breed that has existed in Africa for more than 7,000 years, said the son.

"A person is going to have something to take up his mind besides making a living," observed the father, who began raising Shetland ponies 45 years ago. "Some people fish. Some people drink. These animals appeal to us."

The Williamses bought the Vietnamese pigs at an exotic animal sale in Cape Girardeau, Mo., from a Canadian who worked for 10 years to comply with U.S. import requirements. After leaving Vietnam, the animals or their offspring had to live in Europe and Canada before being introduced to the United States.

"A hog is almost impossible to import because of diseases," said Lummie Williams. "It's hard to get a new breed in."

When the Williamses advertised the pigs in an Atlanta newspaper recently, they got an enthusiastic response. They have already sold one litter and have about 13 more baby pigs in pens on the farm.

"You've got two types of people buying them," said the son. "You've got people buying them for pets and you've got those who want to raise and sell them."

The knee-high Asian pigs are smaller than many dogs and one-tenth the size of a domestic hog. Females weigh no more than 100 pounds and males 60 to 70 pounds, compared to 600 to 700 pounds for domestic hogs.

The Vietnamese pigs are known for their gentleness and their prominent potbellies.

The female's stomach drags the ground when she is pregnant, or nursing, but the male's is less pronounced.

Male pigs have tusks jutting from upper and lower jaws. They sharpen their tusks by closing their mouths, causing their teeth to rub together.

"When you get ugly enough, you get cute," Lummie Williams observed as a male and two females came out of their shed to greet a visitor. "These are cute."

The Williamses believe the porkers will make ideal pets for urban dwellers.

Because of their small size, feed costs are minimal. In addition, the pigs are small enough to sit comfortably on the back seat of a BMW and they can stroll through shopping malls without hogging the sidewalks.

"It's something a little bit out of the ordinary," the younger Williams said. "A hog is a pretty good animal to have for a pet. It's just that they grow too big."

"These stay small. They've got quite a bit of intelligence. You can teach them tricks."

Joining A Tour Can Ease Travel

NEW YORK (AP) — Tours are becoming more popular with people who do not have the time to plan vacations or who prefer to travel in a group, says a travel expert.

"For people who choose them, tours provide freedom from responsibility, a high degree of security and a greater opportunity to meet people than if you travel alone," says John Martinen, managing director of Globus-Gateway and Cosmos Tours.

Martinen says there are a number of ways to tour a country. "For instance," he says, "several million people a year tour Europe by motorcoach, accompanied by a guide who is familiar with the countries visited and the people along the way."

"They drive through the countryside that is unique and atmospheric, stay in the great old capitals of the world, take excursions that bring out local flavors, mingle with the natives and sleep in comfortable hotels."

For those considering a tour, Martinen has developed a list of points they should keep in mind:

— There are three price levels in every form of organized travel: budget, first class and deluxe. The hotels in each group influence the total tour price, and a good way to economize is to look for a package that combines air and land arrangements.

— All tour operators include some excursions and attractions in the price and offer others at additional cost. Tourists should list the optional excursions they think they may want to take and ask their travel agent to price them.

— Buying lunches and dinners adds significantly to the cost of a trip. On the other hand, freedom to eat where you like may be important to you. Either way, estimate the cost of meals that aren't covered by the tour price and add that figure to the tour costs, too.

— Tourists should check out where hotels are located, and if they are on the outskirts, are they near public transportation?

— Find out if they are well known or recommended in standard guidebooks. Do they offer modern comforts and amenities? Or are they simple but charming? Do all rooms have private baths?

— Tourists should carefully read the brochure descriptions of what is and what is not included in the tour price. Most good brochures include a specific list of what the price covers.

"However," says Martinen, "keep in mind that even the best brochures sometimes have space limitations and omit important information."

He advises people to feel free to ask their travel agent any question that has not been properly answered in the brochure.

Travelers Should Plan Well Ahead

MEMPHIS (AP) — There are insurance plans, income tax plans, architectural plans and even game plans, but what the vacationer needs is a trip plan, says an expert on vacation travel.

"Without a solid plan of action, you could be cutting your long-awaited getaway short or, worse, you could end up with no vacation at all," says Steve Pike, Director of Leisure Marketing for Holiday Inns Inc., based in Memphis.

Pike offers these tips for people gearing up to wind down:

— Pick up small, easy-to-pack bottles of your favorite toiletries to take along. If you're flying, carry medications, toiletries and cosmetics in a carry-on bag. If your luggage is lost, you'll have the necessities on hand.

— When booking hotel reservations, either directly or through a travel agent, be sure to ask about special rates and amenities available to guests, such as recreational and fitness centers.

— If you have an answering machine, do not leave an announcement that you are going to be out of town. Rather, let callers know that you will be checking your messages and will return calls as quickly as possible.

— If you have a sophisticated fire or burglar alarm, take the time to show a friend or neighbor how to disengage the system.

— When packing for a car trip, don't forget an emergency kit for a possible breakdown on the road. Such kits should include jumper cables, flares, fresh water, a bright handkerchief and first aid equipment.

— Even if your car is apparently in perfect condition, have the battery, tires, oil, radiator and thermostat checked.

According to the American Automobile Association, in 1987, 19.5 million emergency road service calls came in from members complaining of battery and electrical problems, 40 percent; mechanical failures serious enough for towing, 38 percent; and flat tires, 10 percent.

Of the calls, 6 percent came from members who had either lost their car keys, locked themselves out or run out of gas. The remaining 6 percent involved a variety of problems, including overheating, transmission trouble and accidents.

— On travel days, remember to dress in loose and comfortable clothing. A journey in confining outerwear can turn a pleasant adventure into an irritating experience.

— If you have a citizens band radio, it can literally be a lifesaver, whether you are lost, experiencing car trouble or spot someone else in trouble.

— Before leaving for vacation get in touch with the Department of Tourism in each state you plan to visit and request brochures and information on points of interest. These can provide on-the-road reading and can also suggest stops along the way.

New Magazines

newest diets, the hottest ideas and the most promising cures for whatever ails us.

Doctors have always had their own journals — weighty, technical publications all but indecipherable by the lay person. But it's been only recently that consumers have had their pick of so many different health magazines and newsletters, written in their language and for their use.

One consumer-magazine directory lists 35 magazines in its health category. Besides the more well-known ones like Health and Prevention, the list includes special-interest publications like Arthritis Today, Coping (for people with cancer), Generations (about Alzheimer's disease and aging), Paraplegic News and Yoga Journal.

Many of these magazines emerged in the early '80s, following on the heels of the overall health-and-fitness boom, said Marian Confer, research director for the Magazine Publishers Association.

And the magazines tend to be healthy from a business standpoint as well, say industry watchers.

The top seller, for example, is Prevention, a Reader's Digest-sized magazine with a circulation of nearly 3 million. Hippocrates, an intelligent, issues-oriented publication, has built up a 359,000 circulation in just one year.

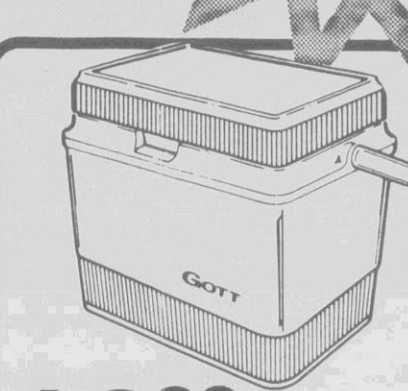

But along with quantity comes the question of quality. That is vital because when it comes to health care, what's presented to consumers has to be accurate and safe.

We decided to survey the field, looking at a sampling of both health-oriented magazines readily found on newsstands, and newsletters from medical schools and institutions usually available only by mail.

Fitness

"It is a mismatch that has very fundamental consequences for our health," he said. "What may be good for Americans may not be good for human beings."

In a new book, "The Paleolithic Prescription," Eaton and Emory anthropologists Dr. Melvin Konner and Marjorie Shostak present these insights culled from their reconstruction of the paleolithic lifestyle:

— Diet: Stone Age tribes ate twice as much calcium, four times as much vitamin C, one-fourth the salt, and almost no sugar. Overall, the primitive diet averaged almost three times the protein, 10 times the dietary fiber and half the fat in the typical modern American diet. Two of the four modern food groups — grains and dairy products — were almost completely absent from ancient diets. Their serum cholesterol levels were lower than those recommended by the strictest medical guidelines today.

— Physical fitness: Paleolithic foragers, whose bones show them to have been far stronger than the average American, resembled modern decathlon athletes more than power lifters or long-distance runners. Limited data on paleolithic man's closest modern counterparts — hunter-gatherer societies such as the Ache of Paraguay — show an aerobic fitness nearly 50 percent greater than that of the average American. Maximum oxygen intake from a single breath of air is about a third higher among young men in primitive societies.

— Child rearing: For paleolithic mothers, "prolonged and intensive" breast-feeding may have been the rule. Contrary to contemporary child care advice, infant needs were often indulged. A crying child was never left alone. Play, rather than chores or formalized instruction, was the main activity until puberty, emphasizing independence and self-reliance, rather than obedience or responsibility. Sexual experimentation began well before puberty.

— Women's roles: In sharp contrast to the Stone Age stereotype, women in paleolithic tribes were independent, autonomous and in positions of influence quite comparable to those of men. Early marriage may have been almost universal and women may have commonly had up to five children. But childbirth was well-spaced, with children about four years apart. Relying on a network of female relatives and other women for help, paleolithic women faced few of the conflicts between life in the workplace and life at home that trouble working mothers today.

"The paleolithic woman had the support system that today's 'supermom' does not," said Ms. Shostak. "She was not isolated."

"Our idea is not that women should imitate all of these things, but that it expands our options in thinking about what is normal."

The team's new book is the most comprehensive presentation of its research to date. Earlier studies were published in the New England Journal of Medicine and presented to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

A number of heart specialists, nutritionists and experts on preventive medicine have praised the team's work on nutrition.

"Their approach explains things we didn't understand before," said Dr. Alexander Leaf, a leading authority on preventive medicine and director of the Cardiovascular Health Center at Massachusetts General Hospital and the Harvard Medical School. "This work strengthens the view as to what the desirable diet is. There is much in the lesson from paleolithic man which is helpful."

Jean Mayer, an internationally recognized authority on nutrition who now is president of Tufts University in Medford, Mass., said, "They have enough data to make it very plausible that we are struggling with bodies that developed to live under completely different conditions."

"The ability to sit at a desk nine hours a day and not gain weight, for instance, was of no survival value whatsoever during the cave age. And that was not bred into the species," he said.

Designed to survive drought and famine, humanity's genetic inheritance may often work against good health in the 20th century.

In an age of supermarkets and fast-food chains, the inherited instinct to overeat, which probably evolved to create stores of fat for times of privation, may be an underlying cause of obesity.

An ancestral sweet tooth, evolved at a time when processed sugar was non-existent and even natural honey was scarce, may explain modern man's craving for sugar, the researchers said. Per capita sugar consumption today is about one-third of a pound a day.

Plants and animals themselves have, under the hand of human farmers, altered their fat content and nutritional value.

Compared with wild venison, for example, today's beefsteak has twice as many calories, five times as much fat, and considerably less protein. About 82 percent of the steak's calories are from fat. In venison, only 16 percent of the calories come from fat.

Even the fat itself is different. Wild game has five times more polyunsaturated fat.

Salvager Gives New Twist To Nautical Items

By JOYCE A. VENEZIA
Associated Press Writer

DOVER TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Robert Layton looks at weathered planking taken from an old World War II ship and envisions a new table. He eyes a rusting porthole and sees a gleaming vanity mirror.

The 42-year-old former school-teacher has developed a business around salvaging nautical items.

Although the vintage ships are no longer around, Layton has accumulated a warehouse full of stock; much of the rest he acquires through auctions and estate sales. Divers provide him with old coins, and trips to Europe have yielded a cache of old foreign naval caps, a German periscope and other memorabilia.

Layton has a keen eye for the unusual. But his vivid imagination and talent for handiwork are perhaps his strongest selling points. He can transform a wooden ship's wheel into a clock, stencil a family name onto a life preserver, carve a boat name into wood or create a lawn ornament out of driftwood and lobster traps.

"Look at this sextant," he said, holding up the odd-shaped contraption used to measure a ship's position. "Someone might want me to make a lamp out of this."

A walk through Layton's crowded Pelican Island shop reveals many items in their original condition, awaiting a customer's order. Interior decorators searching for an authentic nautical theme are regular customers.

"For many people, the whole key with this stuff is not necessarily what it is, but what you can do with it," he said.

A Bayhead clothing store, for instance, recently ordered portholes to be polished and fitted with mirrors. A diver who recovered a teakwood sign from the sunken Andria Doria luxury liner is having Layton convert it into a coffee table.

Even though such a weathered board looks irreparable, "it really is perfect because it's so old and seasoned properly," Layton said.

Layton makes sure to include a little something for everyone who wanders through his shop. Children might be fascinated by the boxes of shells. Adults might be lured to the more expensive items, such as the antique diver's helmet that sells for more than $1,000.

Even the atmosphere is authentic. Layton has laid down a floor made of old planks from Ocean City's boardwalk. Weathered barn beams support the ceiling. A doormat at the front entrance is a section of wood grating from a ship's deck. Geese wander around the cluttered property. Many of the items hanging from the rafters are not routinely found in stores. The value of such items is determined by supply and demand, Layton said. Old spy glasses, for instance, are easier to find than a ship's telegraph, which would sell for about $1,200 as is.

"Today, all modern ships are run by tiny computerized mechanisms," Layton said.

Many of the items in Layton's shop are made of outdated shipbuilding materials, and most were purchased in the 1960s from salvage operators who would literally burn old ship wheels and melt portholes to get to the valuable brass.

"Nowadays, all modern ships are made of plastic and metal," he said.

IN DURHAM PROGRAM — Dancers Rick Michalek, top, and Sylvain Lafortune perform in Lar Lubovitch Dance Company's "Concerto Six Twenty-Two." This is one of several dances to be seen Thursday through Saturday at the American Dance Festival on the West Campus, Duke University. The program is part of the ongoing American Dance Festival in Durham through July 23.

State Clerk Is Still On The Job, At Age Of 91

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — When Eugene McAndrew took his first job, the Titanic hadn't been built, World War I was years away and coal still ruled this northeastern Pennsylvania city.

Seven decades after McAndrew helped deliver beer on a horse-drawn wagon, the 91-year-old is a receptionist and clerk for the state Welfare Department. He has advice for other elderly workers:

"I don't think they should retire. They don't last. I know two or three friends retired. They died within a year," said McAndrew, a ruddy, soft-spoken man with white hair and glasses.

McAndrew is one of 63,000 workers 55-and-over taking part nationally in the federally funded Older Worker Employment Program and probably the oldest, said Ron Ludin, acting chief of the Division of Older Workers Programs in the U.S. Labor Department.

McAndrew said he believes he is also the oldest state employee, attributing his longevity to a mixture of lifestyle and good fortune.

"I never smoked. I never drank. I was very lucky. I always had good health," said McAndrew, who boxed in the Army in World War I and was an all-scholastic basketball player in high school.

Pennsylvania, which has no mandatory retirement age, keeps no records on the oldest employee on the payroll, said Rod Snyder, a spokesman for Gov. Robert P. Casey.

employees over 70 years of age, with 76 aged 75 and above, Snyder said.

McAndrew works 25 hours a week for minimum wage for an energy assistance program, filing paperwork and screening applicants.

Leo Walsh, McAndrew's boss, said his receptionist has a calming effect on people seeking emergency assistance for home heating.

"A lot of them come in and they're in a crisis situation," said Walsh, coordinator of Lackawanna County's Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program. "That's why I have him there. He can calm people down when they come in. A lot of people get pretty excited."

Walsh said McAndrew enjoys work so much he offered to volunteer his services several years ago when he thought budget cuts would cancel the program.

Gershwin Song Set To Dance

DURHAM — George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," set to dance by Lar Lubovitch, is one of the dances to be performed at the American Dance Festival in Durham Thursday through Saturday.

Performances will take place at 8 p.m. in Page Auditorium on Duke University's West Campus. Tickets are priced at $10, $14 and $17 and may be charged by calling the box office at 694-4444.

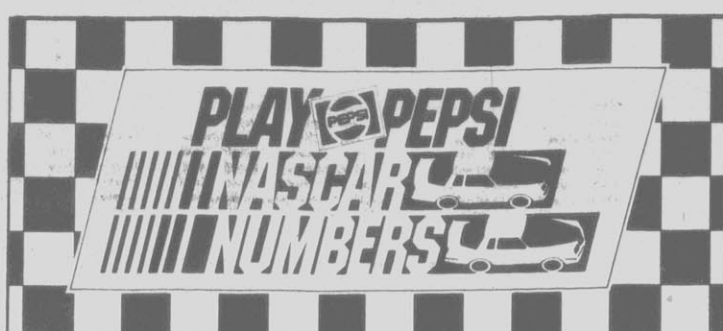

Lubovitch, a modern dance choreographer, created the "Rhapsody in Blue" dance on commission from the New York City Ballet. That company gave the dance its world premiere in April.

All 13 members of Lubovitch's company will perform the work both Thursday and Friday nights.

"Musette," another new Lubovitch work, will open the company's program Saturday. Choreographed to Francis Poulenc's "Concerto for Two Pianos," this dance has six pairs of whirling dancers. It was premiered in March at New York's City Center.

"Concerto Six Twenty-Two," which premiered in 1986, will be danced at Duke all three nights. With this dance, Lubovitch established himself as having come into his own. This work is set to Mozart's "Concert for Clarinet and Orchestra."

"North Star," a dance Lubovitch made 10 years ago using music by Philip Glass, is also on the ADF program on Thursday and Friday. "A Brahms Symphony," a 1985 dance set to Brahms' "Third Symphony," completes the program on Saturday.

Drake, Camille Saviola and Kirsten Childs. The musical is being presented tonight through Saturday at 8:15 p.m. with a matinee at 2:15 p.m. Saturday. For ticket information, call 757-6390.

A Reflector Review

'Jerry's Girls' Launches New Season With A Bang

In retrospect, the Fourth of July opening of the 25th anniversary celebration of the East Carolina Summer Theater seems most appropriate — perhaps even prophetic. If there were any fears that trips to the beaches, Town Common festivities or other distractions might have resulted in a small Monday night opening audience at the theater, such fears were quickly dispelled.

A packed audience welcomed the nine lovely ladies in the Jerry Herman and Larry Alford revue musical, "Jerry's Girls." The girls made it undeniably clear that they loved giving their audience this wrap-up of familiar Broadway musicals. In turn, the audience gave its heart to the performers. So, the 25th anniversary opening night evolved into a two-way celebration of enthusiastically shared give and take.

From this member of the audience, a double-header question to Edgar Loessin: Why didn't you long before entice Camille Saviola to come to Greenville, and when will she return?

When the final curtain fell, I'm sure there were many who were thinking, as I did, "did she really do all that she actually did?" Quite frankly, I lost my heart to this wonderfully talented woman in a way not experienced since I first capitulated to Carmen Miranda in the late 1930s.

In numbers as diverse as an awkward, pudgy Shirley Temple-like youngster in "Tap Your Troubles Away" on through a poignant "Time Heals Everything" (in which I am strongly reminded of Simone Signoret at her most beautiful), Ms. Saviola embraced her audience as only a true performer can. Who will not long remember her superb rendition of "Hello Dolly" a la Louis Armstrong — all the while keeping a lit cigarette clenched in her teeth; or her hilarious yet touching efforts as the aging stripper surrounded by leggy lovelies in "Take It All Off."

And Ms. Saviola was not the only star in the crown of talent gracing "Jerry's Girls." Donna Drake has a gift of singing that clutches at the heart. This is especially true in the two fine songs of regret-nostalgia, "I Won't Send Roses" and "If He Walked Into My Life."

Like Ms. Saviola, Ms. Drake has the ability to send a whisper soft as in a morning sunrise floating over the audience, or belting out the big sounds that can be heard in a Carolina tornado with every note true and pure.

Which brings up the one minor irritation in this otherwise excellent production — the 24-piece orchestra directed by Barry Shank on occasion played with a degree of gusto that tended to drown out the efforts of Kirsten Childs and one or two others. Not often, just now and then. At other times, Ms. Childs gave a good account of her vocal talent in numbers such as "Wherever He Ain't" and "I Don't Want To Know."

This is not to imply that Shank and his musicians merely deliver volume. Their support is of the crisp, polished kind that gives performers on stage the right framework for their efforts.

Rounding out the cast of song and dance talents is an admirable sextet of young ladies — Brenna Alonso, Janice Booth, Paula Frasz, Jami Ross, Gina L. Weatherman and Babs Winn. It's good to have Ms. Winn, who has performed in several earlier Summer Theater productions, back home in Greenville for this anniversary opener.

A big bouquet of thanks is due Mavis Ray, who directed and provided the choreography for "Jerry's Girls." Her special touch in creating an evening of zesty, fast-moving entertainment is evident from the moment the curtain raises. And in keeping with what has become a traditional hallmark of excellence in all East Carolina University productions, set designer Robert Alpers, lighting designer Susan Van Dyke and costumer Maria Costa makes this an evening of superb visual beauty, a fascinating, welcome bonus of colorful staging.

It may not be quite true that Greenville has it all. However, if the standard of perfection in "Jerry's Girls" extends to the forthcoming three East Carolina Summer Theater 1988 offerings, it will be safe to say that Greenville has the best anywhere around in top summer fare. What better way to celebrate this 25th anniversary summer?

JERRY RAYNOR

Hollywood Chief Is Texas Success Story

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Jack Valenti used to recite Shakespeare while driving along Texas highways with his boss, as they visited the Humble Oil Co. gas stations dotting the road.

Valenti, now president and chief executive officer of the Motion Picture Association of America, and Humble's Garvin Allen "Pop" Mabry would attend the opening ceremonies of new filling stations, and Valenti would gather stories about station operators for company publications.

"I've seen Texas and it's fantastic, and I've never forgotten that," said Valenti, who took the job at Humble to put himself through night school at the University of Houston.

Since then Valenti has circled the world and met the stars, but Humble — now Exxon Co. U.S.A. — is still the best business he's ever known, and the Texas landscape remains imprinted in his memory.

Valenti is another Texas success story: The son of a county courthouse clerk and grandson of Italian immigrants, he became adviser to President Lyndon B. Johnson, and the third man to reign over the MPAA since its founding in 1922.

The MPAA preserves and protects the rights of copyright owners; serves as advocate for major producers and distributors of motion pictures, TV programs and home video before the public, the U.S. Congress, various departments of the federal government, and state and local legislative bodies. The MPAA fights censorship and restrictive attacks on the First Amendment, and directs an anti-piracy program to protect American films in over 50 countries.

It also provides guidance to parents of young children on the suitability of movies through a rating system.

Valenti does a lot of lobbying on Capitol Hill and is referred to as the leading spokesman for the industry. He was named president in April 1966.

A plaque on his desk reads "It CAN be done." Valenti has done it, with the help, he says, of "serendipity in a macabre way."

He has gone from from usher, clean-up man and popcorn concession operator in a second-rate movie house to the voice of the movie industry. He went from stumping for local candidates as a child to an office in the White House.

In between, he flew 51 combat missions as a World War II bomber pilot, was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, six air medals and three battle stars and earned a master's degree in business administration from Harvard University.

He's 66 now — trim and fit, his hair white and his eyebrows bushy, his eyes sparkling as he talks of the movie industry and how it found him.

"You're sitting in the White House and the movie moguls offer you a job you never expected to have, and then your life takes another turn," he says.

That was in 1966. Three years before, life took another sharp turn for the Houston ad man who had done the Democratic Party's 1960 advertising campaign for Texas and had come to know Johnson three years earlier. Valenti was sitting six or seven cars back from President John F. Kennedy's limousine when Kennedy was assassinated as the motorcade snaked through Dallas.

At Parkland Memorial Hospital, Johnson ordered Valenti to accompany him to Washington aboard Air Force One. Johnson was sworn in as president on that flight. Valenti became his chief spokesman, and has been in Washington since.

He was Johnson's closest personal friend in the White House, and Valenti once said that he slept better at night knowing Johnson was president.

Although his home is in Washington, Valenti is frequently on the road, making sure American films "move freely and unhobbled around the world."

But unlike his Humble Oil travels to such places as Valley Mills and Van Horn, Valenti now calls on Rome, London and Paris, Rio de Janeiro, Singapore, New Delhi and Dakar. He's in California three times a month, New York a little less.

"The back yard of the movie business is the world," he says.

"Movies are fascinating. ... The movie business is unlike any other enterprise I know, with the possible exception of politics. It's tedious sometimes, even pedestrian sometimes.

"But for the most part, it's been great fun," he said in a recent interview. "There's a continuing roll of problems — that sort of avalanche on you. But all are different and you're constantly meeting new and interesting people."

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY July 7

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Make a firm decision about what will make you happiest and healthiest early, and then follow through. You can make a great new friend today.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): See an expert in the morning and get excellent advice for whatever your needs may be. Good friends can help you advance your career.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Contact a very clever pal and gain cooperation for a new project. Study your plans very carefully, and then work on them quickly.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You can make a fine impression on those of influence early in the day, and later you can simply have fun with friends. Handle business first.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Get an early start on a new project that you have in mind, and make it work successfully for you. Talk over the future with one who has original ideas.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Handle money matters in the morning, and later study a new interest that intrigues you. Relieve the usual monotony.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Morning is excellent for becoming better acquainted with a prominent individual. Then show how this can become a beneficial relationship.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Today is a good time to convince stubborn associates to go along with your ideas. A fellow worker has a good plan that you should back.

 There are times when you just can't afford to cash all your winners in a suit. You may not know what you want to discard on your long cards.

 This hand is from the Reisinger Team Championship at the recent Eastern States Regional in New York. North-South were employing 15-17 point no trump opening bids. When East made a lead-directing double of the Stayman inquiry, South was able to pass to indicate no four-card major and at least one stopper in clubs.

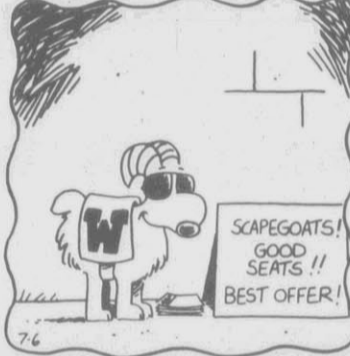

Against three no trump West dutifully led a club. East inserted the nine and declarer, Chuck Lamprey of White Plains, N.Y., won. He crossed to dummy with the queen of hearts and finessed the ten of spades, losing to West's jack. East rose with the ace on the club return and cleared the suit. Declarer cashed the ace of hearts and continued with a heart to the king. That established the 13th heart, but declarer could not afford to cash it yet. We'll soon see why.

 Another spade finesse lost to the king, and West shifted to a diamond. Declarer could not afford to duck, since it would be fatal to allow East to gain the lead. So he went up with the ace, in so doing apparently cutting himself off from the long spade in dummy. But now declarer's thoughtful play in not cashing the long heart bore fruit. He was able to take his winner, on which he jetisoned the ace of spades! As a result, declarer freed the table's two spades, bringing his trick total to nine—two spades, four hearts, one diamond and two clubs.

 It's oh, so easy if only you foresee the problems!

Youngsters Learn First-Hand How To Cook, To Bake

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Lifestyle Editor

With food experience this summer has been one of the special interest workshops sponsored by the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service.

Addie Gore, home economics extension agent, has been teaching the boys and girls, ages 9 through 14, in techniques used in making bread, food decorating and microwave cooking.

Learning the nutritive value of breads and cereal to the diet and the hows and whys of making yeast bread was highlighted in the bread class.

"The bread workshop covered ingredients and temperatures. Students experienced beating or mixing, kneading, rising, testing for double in size, punching down, shaping and baking," said Ms. Gore.

"Learning how to use a decorating or pastry bag with tips or tubes was a focus in decorating. This technique can be used with mashed potatoes, deviled eggs, party sandwiches and cakes," said Ms. Gore.

"The students were shown how to assemble a pastry bag and tips and prepare the food to be used in the bag in order that it flows through. Filling the bag in order that the food flows through the tip and not come out on the top was demonstrated," she said.

"The workshop used cake decorating as the media to teach the correct methods and techniques," said Ms. Gore.

Stir vigorously until well blended.

Stir in:
1 1/2 cups all purpose flour

Sprinkle over top of dough:
1/2 cup all purpose flour

Let dough rest 5 minutes. Scrape sides of bowl. Tilt bowl and scrape bottom of bowl to cover dough with flour. Turn out dough onto lightly floured surface.

Kneading: Knead dough (turn, fold, push) 8 to 10 minutes until it is smooth and elastic. Shape dough into two balls. Cover loosely. Rest dough for 20 minutes.

Shaping: Punch dough down. Pat or roll dough into a rectangle about 7 x 11 inches. Beginning with the short end, roll dough up tightly. Pinch seam closed; seal ends.

Cooking For Two Isn't Always Bad

By BRENDA HARTMAN
The (Bloomsburg) Press Enterprise
BLOOMSBURG, Pa. (AP) — After her children leave the nest, a woman might be tempted to hang up her apron and head for the microwave foods section of the supermarket rather than cook a meal from scratch. Cooking for two might seem like too much trouble.

Violet Hofnagle, 60, could take the easy way out, but she doesn't. The Mainville, Pa., homemaker and mother of two grown children is a take-charge person who would rather pull packages from the home freezer than dip into the ready-made dinners at the grocery store.

Mrs. Hofnagle, you see, is a staunch believer in the benefits of eating wholesome foods. She is also the author "101 Uses for Vinegar," a booklet she self-published in 1976.

The booklet earned her a brief moment in the national spotlight when Jane Pauley mentioned it on the "Today" show. Twelve years later, Mrs. Hofnagle continues to get requests for copies.

"There are so many uses for vinegar," she said. "Every time I saw a recipe for vinegar I'd keep it. I collected recipes for five years. It was only about a month from when I started until it was finished."

Actually, there are 102 vinegar uses in the book, which includes recipes and tips on unclogging sink drains and easing insect stings. Mrs. Hofnagle tossed in the extra tip as the book went to press because she didn't want to leave part of a page empty.

"I learned from an early age not to throw anything away," she said.

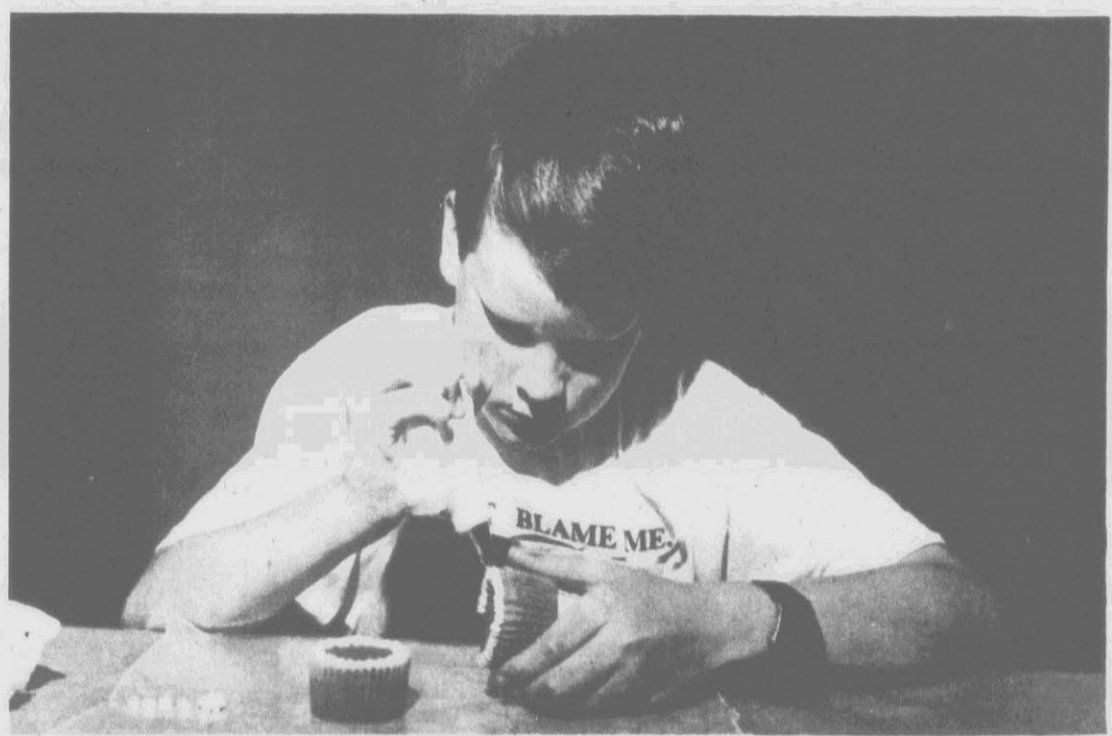

Mrs. Hofnagle hates to waste anything. That's why she freezes bread crumbs to sprinkle on baked macaroni. It's also why she says adjusting to cooking for two wasn't much of a shock, even though she was used to cooking in quantity.

(See FOR, D-7)

GOLDEN GRAIN BREAD
In a large bowl, thoroughly mix dry ingredients:
1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup old-fashioned or quick rolled oats
1 package active dry yeast
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt

Add:
2 tablespoons margarine (room temperature)
1 1/2 cups hot tap water (120 degrees to 130 degrees F.)

Once The Rage, Generic Foods Are Disappearing From Shelves

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — No-name, plain-label generic products that attracted cost-conscious consumers a decade ago when inflation was surging are all but disappearing from most supermarkets.

With inflation held to moderate levels, today's shoppers are opting in many instances for store brands, which cost a little more than generics but are touted as being a step up in quality.

Generics "definitely have declined very rapidly in popularity over the last several years. They came on strong in the late 1970s when inflation was very high," said Mike Rourke, a spokesman for The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. of Montvale, N.J. "People were trading down, trying to get their food dollar to go farther."

Paul Bernish of the Cincinnati-based Kroger Co. agreed that generics peaked in the years "corresponding to high inflation and unemployment. As the economy has improved ... their appeal has waned."

Yet at some markets, where generics are still given special emphasis, they continue to sell well.

Mona Doyle, a Philadelphia-based market analyst, identified the Pathmark chain in the Northeast as one at which generics continue to sell well. "If the store is willing to stand behind it in a big way, the consumer is still willing to give it a shot," she said.

Would generics return to popularity if inflation began taking a bigger bite out of the American pocketbook?

Oscar Katov of the Food Marketing Institute doubts it. Consumers who have gone back to name brands have done so because they prefer those products, he said. Where the difference is only a few pennies, they're unlikely to return to the generics.

Consumers still complain about prices and seek value, Doyle said. But with many stores offering double-coupon values, shoppers often can buy national brands for competitive prices.

In addition, Doyle reported in her "Shopper Report" newsletter for the supermarket industry that the image of store-brand products is improving among consumers.

"Retailers have gotten the message that store brands don't have to be an also-ran," she said.

Pathmark's Robert Wunderle explains the downfall of generics at other stores this way:

Typically, he said, one chain initiated generics and remained serious about them, while others offered the products on a "me too" basis and haven't stuck with them.

Like Pathmark, Lucky Stores, based in Dublin, Calif., continues to report strong generic sales.

"We maintain a low price image, so we try to offer consumers a selection to choose from. We carry generics, private labels and name brand products," said spokeswoman Judy Decker.

She said Lucky Stores still have as many as 200 generic items, although that is down slightly from past years.

Pathmark still carries about 350 items under its No Frills label, Wunderle said, and 53 generics are the No. 1 selling items in their product categories, he said.

For example, Pathmark sells more 2-liter bottles of No Frills cola than any other cola. The same is true for spaghetti, grape jelly and peanut butter, Wunderle said.

Elsewhere, the generics that have remained most popular appear to be non-food items. Kroger's Bernish agreed that sales of that company's generic-priced Cost Cutter line remain strongest in non-food items such as paper products.

Doyle also noted a change in the overall supermarket product lineup in recent years.

In the past, national brands have been the top of the line, followed by store brands and then generics.

Q: I enjoyed your oat bran column. Thanks!

A: I appreciate all the kind comments I receive about the column and the help that so many folks give me in its weekly preparation. Sometimes to answer your questions Jo or I need to go the library. Sometimes we walk over to the excellent Health Sciences Library and study the literature. Often, we visit our other "libraries" — the grocery stores of Greenville. As you know, food labels can be the best textbook on nutrition.

As I roamed the "library" last week, Ray Lee stopped me in Kroger and pointed out they had oat bran in bulk bins. I had not thought to look there.

I also found a newly reformulated non-dairy coffee creamer for folks watching their saturated fat intake. In the freezer case you can find Rich's Coffee Rich (at Farm Fresh) and on the grocery shelf, you can find Pream (at Kroger) dry powder whitener. Neither of these have coconut or palm oil in them. They both still are partially hydrogenated oils so skim milk would still be a better choice. But, if you need a non-dairy or a dry coffee whitener, right now, I would buy one of these two brands.

I also saw a new product, Second Nature Imitation Eggs, in the dairy case. Save your money. You can substitute two egg whites for 1 whole egg in most recipes and get an acceptable product. This new product is little more than egg whites, non-fat dry milk and stabilizers at a high price per egg.

Oh yes, the serving sizes for all those other soluble fiber containing foods I gave in the oat bran column should have been 3 and 1/2 ounces not 3/12. Sorry for the confusion.

Q: Are there ready to eat oat cereals that don't have coconut, coconut oil or palm oil in them? R.J. Wrightsville Beach

A: Congratulations, sounds like you are trying to avoid those hidden saturated fats like coconut or palm oil that are put in many cereals to improve their flavor. They not only flavor but also raise our blood cholesterol. We went label reading again in Greenville and found the following oat-containing cereals to fit your bill. There may be others, but these were our finds last week: Team Flakes, Product 19, Pro Grain, Life, Kellogg Nutrifit Oatmeal Flakes, Mueslix 5 Grain, Oatios, Oat Bran Flakes by Health Valley and Quaker Oat Squares Cereal as well as traditional Cheerios.

Read the ingredient label. Avoid or use only in moderation those foods that have coconut or palm oil or hydrogenated oils.

Q: I heard a restaurant advertise their fish was fried in peanut oil. Is that OK for heart health? P.K. Greenville, N.C.

A: We suggest that people at risk to heart disease eat two fish meals per week. It would be best if that fish were boiled, broiled, grilled, steamed or poached. If you are going to eat fried fish, however, it is better to choose fish fried in Puritan safflower, sunflower, corn, olive, soybean or peanut oil or Nutra Fry (a food service product).

Curry Spices Salad

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Magazine Food Editor

In India, where curries originated, every cook blends her own combination of seasonings. Likewise, in the United States, the packaged curry powders you find in your supermarket vary slightly in taste and hotness by manufacturer. If the first one you try doesn't suit your taste buds, try another. Some of the spices most commonly used in blended curry powder are cumin, coriander, turmeric and red pepper.

Curry powder gives a hint of hotness to this salad's unusual peanut butter dressing. It's sure to wake up hot-weather wilted appetites.

CURRIED CHICKEN AND PEANUT SALAD
1/2 cup plain yogurt
1-3rd cup peanut butter

1-3rd cup milk
3 tablespoons white wine vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon salad oil
2 teaspoons curry powder
6 cups torn mixed greens
2 cups diced cooked chicken
2 cups shredded cabbage
One 11-ounce can mandarin orange sections, chilled and drained
1/2 cup peanuts
1 tablespoon sliced green onion

For dressing, in a screw-top jar combine yogurt, peanut butter, milk, vinegar, sugar, oil and curry; cover and shake well.

In a large salad bowl arrange the greens, chicken, cabbage, orange sections, peanuts and green onion. Drizzle dressing over salad; toss well. Makes 6 main-dish servings.

Charleston Cookbook Features Spicy Southern Specialities

By CARLETON JONES
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

The fat, attractive little ring-bound cookbook first rolled off the press back in 1950.

Along the spine of the book in Civil War-era lettering was the name "Charleston Receipts." Inside was a heady sample of black and white Southern cooking, spiced with comments in local dialect and fairly dripping with the moonlight and magnolia appeal of the Dixie stronghold.

The word spread fast. Hostesses fought for copies of "Charleston Receipts" in between bridge games. They learned feverishly all about the Carolina low-country specialties, how to make benne (sesame) crackers and spoon bread, "she crab" soup, Carolina gumbo and hominy cooked in milk. Editions reached 10,000, then 20,000 and then 30,000 copies.

If ever a women's club was surprised, it was the book's sponsor, the Junior League of Charleston, S.C., hoping only to earn a few thousand dollars for its work in speech therapy.

The trend caught on. Dozens of cities north and south cornered their own best local cooks and recorded their formulas and published their own charity volumes. Charleston's Junior Leaguers, meanwhile, could sit back and congratulate themselves for publishing what was certainly one of the most successful regional recipe books of the century.

Now the league has added a sequel, "Charleston Receipts Repeats," and more than 50,000 copies have been sold in a little more than a year.

Most of the recipes in the sequel are new. A few of the early hits have been repeated, such as the shrimp pilau as served at Hampton Plantation. Also picked for immortality is a simple brownie recipe that "cannot be improved" since its original revelation in the first edition of "Charleston Receipts."

"We're happy with it," says Louisa Hawkins, Charleston league chairwoman. "The more sales we get, the more we can do for the community."

A variety of social and cultural programs, speech and hearing clinics, children's concerts, teen-age pregnancy programs and a school for delinquents have been among league charities supported in part by book sales.

A new generation of cooks with a broader sense of cuisine is on record in this second Carolina cooking guide, housewives drawing on traditions more sophisticated than those of their mothers and grandmothers.

You do get the feeling of regional cuisine, however, once you plunge into the hot food department. Charleston's Junior Leaguers devote 30 pages of this book to shrimp recipes, lauding a local specialty that is literally a breakfast, lunch and dinner item.

The really revealing part of the book, is the influence of Italian, Greek, Spanish and French culinary specialties, a dim echo, if that, in the 1950 dining guide or on standard American family dinner tables for that matter.

In the 1950 edition, readers were treated to a series of quotes from a nameless cook who spoke the Carolina tidewater dialect, Gullah, similar to West Indian English. "Crab got tuh walk een duh pot demself or dey ain' wut," said this sensible if fictional cook. Another sample: "Young married 'ooman een dis day she nebbuh sattify wid ole time dish; dey always want fuh mek some kin ob new mixture." Too true.

Recipes

Here is a classic recipe for benne seed biscuits, a pervasive and habit-forming cocktail snack, from the original "Charleston Receipts" of 1950.

MIDDLETON GARDENS' BENNE SEED BISCUITS

(By Mrs. J.J. Pringle Smith)
2 cups flour
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup roasted benne (sesame) seed

1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup cold milk
Cream shortening and flour, baking powder and salt. Add milk. Mix in benne seed. Then cream again thoroughly. Roll out on floured bread very thin. Cut out with small biscuit cutter. Bake in 350 degree oven 7 to 9 minutes. Sprinkle with salt while hot. Makes a dozen biscuits.

And here is an updated quickie version with cheese, from the new volume:

BENNE CHEESE BISCUITS

(By Margaret Maynadier)
1 package refrigerator baking powder biscuits
1/4 cup melted butter
3/4 cup grated Cheddar cheese
3 tablespoons benne (sesame) seeds

Dip biscuits in melted butter. Mix cheese and benne seeds in shallow dish. Roll each biscuit in mixture, coating both sides well. Place on well-greased cookie sheet and bake for 8 minutes at 500 degrees. Serve immediately. Makes 8 biscuits.

This shrimp dish is a regional favorite, published in the original 1950 recipe book:

HAMPTON PLANTATION SHRIMP PILAU

(By Mrs. Paul Seabrook)

4 strips bacon
1 cup raw rice
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup celery, chopped fine
2 tablespoons chopped bell pepper
2 cups raw shrimp, peeled
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon flour
Salt and pepper to taste.

Fry bacon until crisp and drain. Add bacon grease and salt to water to cook rice. In large frying pan, melt butter and saute onions and peppers. Sprinkle shrimp with Worcestershire and dredge in flour. Add shrimp to pan and simmer until flour is cooked. Season with salt and pepper. Add cooked rice and mix well. Stir in crumbled bacon. You may add more butter to this recipe if desired. Serves six.

Copies of "Charleston Receipts Repeats" are available through the mail from the Junior League of Charleston Publications, P.O. Box 177, Charleston, S.C. 29401. The price is $12.95 plus $2 for postage and handling.

Carefully Planned, Outdoor Feast Gives Good Food With Good Times

By BETSY BALSLEY
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

When it comes to organizing a summer picnic, it is easy to stop at a deli or take-out and pick up some sandwiches or other goodies, but that really does not provide the spark that an obviously carefully planned open air feast does.

It matters not whether one plans a picnic for the family, a neighborhood outing or a romantic interlude for two. The fine art of dining around the pool, under a shady tree in the park or on the sand at your favorite beach all have the same requirement — good company and good food. Fresh air tends to build healthy appetites, so a picnic is no place for a make-do meal.

For a pool-side celebration, why not opt for a feast of unusual sausages? Grill five or six different types of sausages — Polish kielbasa, bratwurst, knackwurst, Italian sweet and hot sausages, garlic sausages and the like — over hot coals and then cut them into chunks to be served on warmed buns or rolls. Top the sausage sandwiches with apple-sweetened sauerkraut or serve it on the side if you prefer. For flavor contrast and color, add a multilayer hot bean casserole and you will have a menu that is easy, yet different.

Then, of course, there is the out-and-out cold picnic classic, the cold-bird-and-bottle menu that is the epitome of the romantic pique-nique a deux, whether it is planned for two or more. But even a classic such as this can take on more glamorous overtones when the fowl is Cornish hen and the accompaniments include a stunning papaya and asparagus appetizer and a chilled apricot-laced rice salad.

Those perennial picnic favorites hot dogs and hamburgers can be made more lively. So why not add a surprise hidden in the center of the ground beef patty in the form of a sneaky horseradish-flavored sauce. Or adapt the old Joe's Special recipe that combines ground beef with egg and spinach in a patty that will taste delicious.

Hot dogs can be prepared in the form of kebabs or cut in chunks and mixed with a spicy tomato relish. Serve these in pita bread halves for something different.

Splurge on special breads or buns to go with these untraditional versions of traditional picnic foods and serve them with spicy deviled eggs, a vinegary cole slaw and a rich, well-chilled potato salad.

Not one of these picnic menus is based on exotic foods, but all have a few touches that take them out of the realm of the ordinary. Here are the recipes.

CASUAL PICNIC

Mixed Sausage Grill
Layered Beer Bean Pot
Apple Sauerkraut
Fresh Fruit
Beer

MIXED SAUSAGE GRILL

3 to 4 pounds assorted sausages (kielbasa, knackwurst, Italian sweet and/or hot links, bratwurst, etc.)

While coals are heating to ashy state, place sausages in heavy skillet or skillets and add hot water to depth of about 1/2 inch. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, until water evaporates. Dry sausages on paper towels and arrange on open grill about 5 inches from coals. Grill, turning as needed, until sausages are browned and cooked through.

Slice in chunks or halves and serve assortment to each diner. Makes about 6 servings.

LAYERED BEER BEAN POT

1 cup minced onion

1 clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon dry mustard
1/4 cup brown sugar, packed
2 cups beer
Salt, pepper
1 (15-ounce) can butter beans
1 (15 1/4-ounce) can red kidney beans

1 (15-ounce) can pinto beans
1 (1-pound 1-ounce) can green lima beans
1 (15-ounce) can great northern beans

Combine onion, garlic, dry mustard, brown sugar and beer in bowl or measuring cup. Mix well and season to taste with salt and pepper. Layer butter beans, red kidney beans, pinto beans, green lima beans and great northern beans in casserole or bean pot, adding some of beer mixture between each layer. Pour any remaining beer mixture over beans. Cover and bake at 325 degrees 1 hour or place over low heat and simmer 40 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

APPLE SAUERKRAUT

1 clove garlic, minced
1 cup chopped celery
2 green onions, chopped
1 (2-pound) jar sauerkraut, well rinsed and drained
1 cup apple juice
Zest of 1 lemon, cut in fine strips
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon caraway seeds, optional
Salt, pepper
1 red apple, cut in thin wedges unpeeled

1 to 2 tablespoons Calvados
Fry bacon in large saucerpan until golden and crisp. Add garlic, celery, green onions, sauerkraut, apple juice, lemon zest, sugar and caraway seeds if desired. Simmer, covered, 20 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Stir in apple slices and Calvados. Simmer 5 minutes. Serve hot with sausages. Makes 8 servings.

ELEGANT PICNIC

Papaya and Asparagus With Shrimp Dip
Cold Game Hens With Rosemary Minted Apricot Double Rice Salad
Chilled Brie and Crackers
Cookies
White Wine

PAPAYA AND ASPARAGUS WITH SHRIMP DIP

1 pound slender asparagus, trimmed and cut in halves
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 teaspoon minced garlic
1 pound large shrimp, peeled and deveined

1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese, softened
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 red serrano chile, minced
1 tablespoon chopped cilantro
1 tablespoon lime juice
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
Salt
3 small papayas, cut in halves crosswise and seeded

Blanch asparagus in boiling salted water, drain and refresh in ice water. Reserve. Melt butter in skillet and saute garlic until lightly golden. Add shrimp and cook until done, about 5 minutes.

Place about 5 shrimp in food processor and reserve remaining. Process until ground. Add garlic butter drippings, cream cheese, mayonnaise, serrano chile, cilantro, lime juice and mustard. Season to taste with salt. Chill dip until ready to serve.

To serve spoon shrimp dip into papaya shells and serve with reserved drained asparagus and shrimp. Makes about 6 servings.

COLD GAME HENS WITH ROSEMARY

3 game hens, cut in halves

Salt, pepper
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup white wine
1 tablespoon chopped fresh rosemary

Dash white pepper
2 cloves garlic, minced
Rosemary sprigs for garnish

Rub game hens with salt and pepper and place in single layer in glass dish or in sealable plastic bag. Melt butter in saucerpan. Add garlic, wine, 1 tablespoon rosemary and white pepper. Pour mixture over game hens, coating well, and marinate at least 1/2 hour.

Drain hens, reserving marinade, and cook on grill over medium coals or broil until golden brown and cooked through. Baste often with marinade. Remove from heat and chill thoroughly. Serve cold, garnished with rosemary sprigs. Makes 3 to 6 servings.

MINTED APRICOT DOUBLE RICE SALAD

1 cup finely chopped dried apricots
2 tablespoons Triple Sec liqueur
Grated peel and juice of 1 orange
1 cup pecan halves
1 1/2 cups cooked and chilled wild rice

1 1/2 cups cooked and chilled white rice (preferably cooked in chicken broth)

3/4 cup chopped mint leaves
2 tablespoons light olive oil
Salt, pepper
Combine apricots, Triple Sec, orange peel and juice in small saucerpan. Bring to boil. Remove from heat, set aside and let cool completely. Place pecans on baking sheet and roast at 350 degrees until lightly browned. Cool completely.

Drain apricots, reserving liquid. Combine apricots and any liquid left, wild and white rice, pecans and mint leaves, tossing lightly. Chill thoroughly.

At serving time, combine mixture with olive oil. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

TRADITIONAL PICNIC WITH TWIST

Joe's Special Beef Burgers or Surprise Hamburgers
Fun-Time Frankfurters or Frankfurter Pockets With Tomato Relish

24-Hour Cole Slaw
Confetti Potato Salad
Homemade Ice Cream and Cookies
Iced Tea — Beer — Wine

JOE'S SPECIAL BEEF BURGERS

3/4 cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon oil
1/2 cup thawed and drained frozen chopped spinach

1 egg
1 1/2 teaspoons chopped fresh oregano leaves
Salt, pepper

1 1/2 pounds ground beef chuck
6 buttered, toasted rolls
Cook onion slowly in oil until transparent but not browned. Add drained spinach and heat until liquid cooks away. Cool. Beat egg with oregano and season to taste with salt and pepper. Add beef and spinach mixture, mixing well with fork. Shape into 6 patties about 4 1/2 inches in diameter. Grill over hot coals to desired degree of doneness, turning once. Serve on toasted rolls. Makes 6 servings.

SURPRISE HAMBURGERS

Salt, pepper
1/2 cup sour cream
2 teaspoons horseradish
1 tablespoon catsup
2 tablespoons minced onion
6 hamburger buns, toasted
Season beef lightly with salt and pepper to taste. Shape mixture into 12 thin patties. Combine sour cream, horseradish, catsup and onion. Spoon mixture onto 6 patties and top with remaining patties. Seal edges well and broil 3 inches from source of heat 5 minutes on each side. Serve on toasted buns. Makes 6 servings.

FUN-TIME FRANKFURTERS

1 pound frankfurters, cut in 1-inch chunks
2 to 3 green peppers, cut in squares
10 slices bacon, partially cooked
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish, drained

8 to 10 frankfurter buns
Alternate frankfurter chunks and green pepper squares on 10 skewers, weaving bacon strips around them. Combine mayonnaise, mustard, horseradish and honey. Brush over kebabs. Grill over low coals, 10 to 15 minutes, turning frequently and brushing with glaze. Place hot kebabs on open frankfurter buns and remove skewers. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

FRANKFURTER POCKETS WITH TOMATO RELISH

12 frankfurters
1 1/2 cups chopped tomatoes, drained

1 cup chopped peeled cucumber
3/4 cup sliced green onions
3 tablespoons wine or cider vinegar
1 teaspoon oregano
12 to 18 Boston lettuce leaves
6 slices mozzarella cheese
3 large pita breads, cut in halves crosswise

Mayonnaise, optional
Grill frankfurters over coals to desired degree of doneness. Cut each into thirds crosswise. Combine tomatoes, cucumber, green onions, vinegar and oregano and mix well. Arrange 2 or 3 lettuce leaves and 1 slice of cheese in each pita bread pocket. Add small amount of tomato relish and fill with frankfurter chunks. Spoon more relish over frankfurters and add dollop of mayonnaise, if desired. Makes 6 servings.
