Auctioneer's Chant Rings Out As Leaf 'Smells Of Money'

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

When Winterville resident Anna Carson Gaylor would visit a tobacco warehouse on the opening day of sales as a child and comment on the pungent odor of the piles of cured leaf, her father, tobacco buyer Walter Carson, would say, "Honey, that's the smell of money."

The smell of money blended with the auctioneer's chant to make today's opening of the 99th sales season on the Greenville Tobacco Market a time of optimism greater than it's been in many years.

Last year's tobacco crop in eastern North Carolina was good — after several far-from-easy years — but this year's growing season has brought rains to the area in virtually ideal sequence to cause the leaves to develop with just the right color, texture and sugar content to bring top prices, officials said.

Tobacco sold on the opening sale at Farmers Warehouse on North Greene Street appeared to bring top prices for lugs. Virtually all the leaf on the floor was marked P for primers, another word for the lower leaves more commonly called lugs. Prices ranged from $1.05 to $1.50 per pound, mostly in the $1.35 to $1.50 range. Upstalk tobacco promises to bring better prices, observers said.

Little of the tobacco sold this morning was bought by the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp., which administers the price support program and often takes in large quantities of leaf when it is turned down by tobacco company buyers. Some leaf this morning also was bought by the warehouse.

The Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce staged an opening cere-

Police Find Gun In Student's Bag

Greenville police say a teen-ager found with a loaded sawed off shotgun at Rose High School has been charged with possessing a weapon of mass destruction and possessing a weapon on school grounds.

Police Capt. Nelson Staton said Ehyin Mohamad Youssef, 16, of 2106 Charles St. told officers he took the weapon to school Tuesday — the last day of a countywide summer school — to protect himself.

Staton said the student was scheduled to appear in District Court today for a determination on whether he would be held for trial. Youssef was released under $500 bond after his arrest.

According to police, school authorities were told by other students that Youssef had been seen with the shotgun in a Rose High corridor. School officials called police.

Responding officers searched Youssef's gym bag and found the loaded weapon along with five Winchester hollow-point rifle slugs, Staton said.

According to Staton, a shotgun with most of the barrel sawed off creates a wide distribution of the pellets when the weapon is fired. He said a blast from such a weapon could result in several people being injured.

Barry Gaskins, public information director for the Pitt County schools, said today that Tuesday classes continued on schedule following the incident and the summer school session ended as was planned.

Gaskins said the school system has a strict policy that students bringing weapons to school will not be tolerated.

Second Election Hearing Planned

Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County's attorney and members of the Pitt County Board of Elections are planning to meet sometime next week with lawyers representing D.D. Garrett and James H. Dupree to set a date for a second hearing concerning the unsettled county commissioner race in Consolidated District A.

Greenville attorney W.H. Watson, counsel for Pitt County, said he is working to schedule a meeting with Garrett's attorney, David F. Kirby of Raleigh, and Dupree's attorney, James A. Nelson Jr. of Greenville, to set the ground rules for the hearing.

The county board will consider evidence that ineligible voters participated in the May 31 Democratic primary runoff, which Garrett led by two votes. The group held a June 21 hearing after both candidates filed complaints of election and vote-counting irregularities.

Watson said he has not discussed the upcoming hearing with county election board Chairwoman Nelson B. Crisp of Greenville, who is in Washington, D.C., this week.

County board member Myra H. Cain of Greenville said the group plans to conduct the hearing sometime before the five-member state board meets Aug. 26 in Greensboro to address the issue, and its task is to provide the state board with formal evidence that ineligible voters participated in the election.

But the board will not attempt to find out how anyone voted, she said, and the board does not have the authority to order a new election.

"We'll be meeting with the lawyers for both candidates next week when Nelson (Crisp) is back in town," Mrs. Cain said. "I can't imagine not get-

Moscow Releases Red Square Flier

MOSCOW (AP) — Mathias Rust, the West German pilot whose dramatic landing in Red Square triggered a Soviet military shake-up, was ordered freed from prison, the West German government and an employee of the Tass news agency said today.

The Tass employee, who did not want to be named, said the news agency was told by telephone that the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet released Rust, who was serving a 4-year sentence at the Lefortovo Prison.

In Bonn, West Germany, the Foreign Ministry also said Rust was freed and was expected to leave the Soviet Union later today.

No Tass report was seen in Moscow either in Russian or English.

Reporters gathered outside the prison in eastern Moscow. West German reporters said they were told by government officials that the release would be at 4 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT), but the appointed time passed with no developments.

Reporters at Sheremetyevo airport in Moscow said they were told that Rust was being put on a Lufthansa plane for Frankfurt in the evening.

'Kidding' Reagan Calls Dukakis Invalid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today referred to Michael Dukakis as "an invalid" in a barbed comment prompted by a question on the health of the Democratic presidential nominee.

"I'm not going to pick on an invalid," a smiling Reagan told a news conference.

His remark was in response to a question from a reporter who said Dukakis had declined to disclose his medical records, particularly whether he ever has undergone psychiatric treatment.

Reagan's comment today came near the conclusion of the news briefing and the president refused to explain what he meant by his "invalid" reference.

But a few minutes later, before making a statement on Nicaragua to a group of news executives, Reagan, without prompting, told reporters that he believed his choice of words had been unfortunate.

"A short time ago, I attempted a joke. I was kidding," Reagan said.

Asked if he based his comments on any information he had, he said: "I was just trying to be funny and it didn't work."

Teachers Take Look At Business

By AMY GAVIGAN
Reflector Staff Writer

Area teachers are getting a first-hand look at business and industry hoping to give students a better foundation in economics and guidelines for setting goals.

Thirteen Pitt County educators are participating in the Teacher Work-Learn Program, which targets fourth, fifth and sixth grade teachers. The program is sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

"The knowledge of industry and experiences I have gained through this program will give me more credibility in talking to the students," said Gaynell Deans, vocational guidance counselor at D.H. Conley High School. "I can say to them that I have talked to people in industry and tell students what classes are needed for getting into college or applying for a job.

The program is designed to encourage area businesses and teachers to interrelate. Businesses host teachers, providing them with a look at all aspects of their operations, and sometimes make contributions.

Patricia Mair, a fourth grade teacher at South Greenville School, hopes to "establish a better relationship between the community and businesses and to make people aware of not only that area businesses are willing, but need to work with the community."

"Teachers must be aware of how the community and-businesses interrelate," Mrs. Mair said.

Mrs. Deans plans to use the contacts she made in the Teacher Work-Learn Program and at Burroughs Wellcome.

"My job title at D.H. Conley is industry education coordinator, so I've had great on-the-job training," she said. "I can act as a liaison between industry and schools and I will call on people I've met (at Burroughs Wellcome) to participate in school activities such as Career Day."

"I have found the people here very willing to get involved."

The teachers began the classroom portion of the Teacher Work-Learn Program five weeks ago, getting an overview of economic concepts and knowledge of interstate and international trade and the U.S. economic system. Teachers have since been working and touring at the business where they were assigned.

Burroughs Wellcome Co., Procter and Gamble, Pitt County-Memorial Hospital and The Daily Reflector, among others, are participating in the program.

Burroughs Wellcome, which is hosting both Mrs. Deans and Mrs. Mair, has been involved with the program for several years. Larry Seigler, general manager of the Greenville plant, has been involved previously in the program as a host in the management facility and is this year's activity coordinator for the two teachers who will spend a week at Burroughs Wellcome.

Seigler said that the purpose of the program is "for the teacher to come out of the program and say 'I've seen jobs that require all levels of skills from Ph.D.s to low level education, with the point being there are many jobs available.'"

"The teachers should also come out with a better understanding of the complexity of the business."

Through past years' experience and suggestions from participants,

Bike Rider 'Serious'

A 15-year-old Pitt County boy was listed in serious condition today at Pitt County Memorial Hospital after being struck by a county sheriff deputy's vehicle while riding a bicycle Tuesday afternoon.

Chief Deputy Brooks Oakley said Greg Phelps of 3 Gold Leaf Estates near Worthington's Crossroads was hit by Deputy Billy Tripp's car Tuesday about 1:20 p.m.

Oakley said Tripp and Phelps were both heading east on State Road 1725 near Cherry Oaks subdivision, and the right fender of Tripp's car struck Phelps' left leg when Phelps swerved from the grassy shoulder onto the road. Tripp was not able to turn the car left in time to avoid Phelps, Oakley said.

Phelps, who sustained injuries to the head and left leg, was taken to PCMH by the Pitt County rescue squad, Oakley said. No charges will be filed.

Break-Ins Reported

Two attempted break-ins were among the incidents reported to Greenville police on Tuesday.

Officer K.L. Jones said an estimated $500 in damage was caused in an attempted break-in at Bailey's Convenient Mart on Watauga Avenue in an incident reported at 3:17 a.m. The store's front plate glass window was broken with a tire.

Officer N.L. Garrish said someone attempted to break into an apartment at Lexington Square Apartments in an incident reported at 3 a.m.

Officer K.L. Jones said someone struck the trunk of a car parked in a Pitt County Memorial Hospital lot with a blunt object causing an estimated $1,000 damage in an incident reported at 12:35 a.m., while Officer T.E. Nevelle said a food cart was kicked into an automobile causing an estimated $150 damage in an incident reported at 1:45 p.m. at Kroger on Greenville Boulevard.

Officer P.W. Worthington said a bicycle valued at $200 was taken from a residence at 1706 Catebury Road in an incident reported at 7:30 p.m., while Officer R.S. Sawyer said a resident of Upton Court reported receiving harassing phone calls in an incident at 3:50 p.m.

Officer W.T. McCarter said a rock was thrown at a car near Fifth Street and Memorial Boulevard, breaking a rear window and causing an estimated $150 damage in an incident reported at 9 p.m.

"From time to time we have had students who bring weapons on campus," Gaskins said. "It's standard operating procedure in such an event to immediately call the police."

Gaskins described this year's summer school class as unusually large, with approximately 400 students from the county's high schools in attendance.

"When you bring students from all the high schools together, you would expect them to bring high school rivalries with them," he said. "I'm not clear on the motive, but that could have been the case here."

Alzheimer's Grant

DURHAM (AP) — A Duke University Medical Center researcher has become one of two scientists nationwide to receive a multimillion dollar grant from the National Institute on Aging for research on Alzheimer's disease.

Dr. Allen D. Roses, Duke professor of medicine and director of the Joseph and Kathleen Bryan Alzheimer's Disease Research Center, could receive as much as $7 million over the next seven years to test a theory that late onset Alzheimer's disease is genetic or inherited.

Roses said the grant will support a wide range of research activities, from the clinical evaluation of patients and their relatives to molecular genetic techniques on the gene or genes responsible for Alzheimer's disease.

The grant is called the Leadership and Excellence in Alzheimer's Disease award and is one of the largest Public Health Service awards offered to individual scientists, an NIA spokesman said.

School Administrators Told 'People' Make Difference

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

"It's the people who make the difference," a representative of the National School Public Relations Association told a group of about 120 Pitt County school administrators Tuesday.

The administrators are participating in a summer management conference on "Putting Public Relations to Work for You" at E.B. Aycock Junior High School.

"We must realize how important people are when we talk about public relations," he said. "This building is not Aycock Junior High, the school is the people."

According to surveys conducted in communities surrounding schools, "the No. 1 most important person in the school is very often the school secretary because they answer the phone," Wherry said.

Wherry said pollsters went to every fifth door in the neighborhoods and asked, "Do you happen to know the names of any people who work at school?"

The second most important person is the custodian, he said. "The first reason is as you go into the building, there's the custodian out in the hall pushing the broom. They're the unofficial greeters of the school."

Another reason the secretary and the custodian are the most recognized is because they often live near the school and are known by the community, Wherry said.

Food service personnel and bus drivers tie for the next spot, while teachers follow them.

"Last on the list is typically the principal," Wherry said. "You can't greet every person, you can't answer every phone call and you can't live in every attendance area. We switch around," he said.

So, "the whole family must be involved" in the public relations plan, Wherry said. "The job is so big that no one person can do it by himself. We must involve those people," such as the secretary, the janitor, the food service person and the bus driver in the plan.

"Most people don't even know your name, and they don't care. We're dealing in a real world here," he said.

"Public relations is not putting your best foot forward, it's not just the good news, it's not telling people something that ain't true," Wherry said. "The heart of public relations is the practice of social responsibility. It's about doing the best possible job."

"The No. 1 most powerful force, the most powerful factor in attitudinal development is personal experience, your personal experience," he said.

As an example Wherry asked administrators what kind of car they prefer and why. Most discussed the car's gas mileage, dependability and comfort.

"Factor No. 2 is the personal experience of other people you trust," such as a spouse, parents and friends.

Advertising, followed by studies and reports are other factors that develop a person's attitudes, Wherry said.

The conference will continue through Thursday and include topics such as "PR Action Clinics: Strategies That Work for Dealing with Our Top Issues," "Marketing Our Schools: New Techniques to Build School Support," and "Standards for a Good Building Level PR Program."

Farmville Absorbs Electric Rate Hike

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville electric customers are getting a break on their utilities bills until fall, with the town absorbing a Carolina Power and Light 4 percent rate increase which began June 1.

The town's electric bill was $9,452 higher for June than it would have been without the rate increase, but commissioners meeting Tuesday night opted to continue to let the town absorb the increase until new local rates can be set in September following the completion of a CP&L rate case now before the North Carolina Utilities Commission. The board wants the town's Utilities Department to conduct a local rate study after the state Utilities Commission makes its decision.

It is expected that the increase through August will cost the town approximately $22,000. A rate analysis will be presented at the September meeting, Utilities Director Bill Modlin said.

The board gave unanimous approval to a request from the Farmville Foundation for $10,000 of town funding for the second annual Farmville Dogwood and the Arts Festival to be held next spring. Dr. Dan Heizer made the request for the funding and received enthusiastic verbal support from various board members.

The buying of new furniture for the municipal building expected to be finished by the end of September was approved. The cost of the furniture, to be purchased from the lowest of eight bidders, Carolina Office Products Company of Wilson, will be $25,164 with a sales tax of $1,198 expected to be returned to the town after it is paid. Much of the office furniture now owned by the town is also being used in the building.

Approval was given for water line extensions to both Kittrell Hill Subdivision on Mark Mzingo's property on State Road 1220 and to the Britt Subdivision owned by Tom Britt on S.R. 1221 and to two nearby houses, also on S.R. 1221, owned by Charlie Rasberry. The town will contract for the work with Eagle Eye Construction. Cost of both projects is expected to be $17,686.05.

All the requesters of the extension have paid their footage fees. Britt has elected not to pay tap-on fees, but to let those who buy his lots do that.

The board proposed a review of the town's policy on requiring tap-on fees to determine if the fees can be required sooner in the water extension process.

The spending of $28,231 for electrical transformers and related electrical equipment was approved. The expenditures include $2,566 to Eastern Electric Co.; $22,208 to WESCO, and $3m457.63 to Rigby Electric. All were low bidders for equipment.

The purchase of aluminum pipe from Armo Steel of Raleigh for the public works department was approved. The cost will be $9,200. This pipe will be used to complete two drainage projects — a ditch along Grimmersburg Street and one bounding the old East Carolina Railway. The board also asked the administrator to go forward with the purchase of tile and bands, expected to cost about $7,177, for the improvement of the Marlboro ditch.

Changes In Primary Rules Could Avoid Voting Errors

Reflector Staff Writer

While the Pitt County Board of Elections prepares to conduct a hearing concerning the 22 ineligible voters that reportedly participated in the May 31 Democratic primary runoff, the elections supervisor says new primary procedures could prevent similar errors in the future.

Elections board Supervisor Margaret Hardee said she would like to divide Democratic voters and Republican voters. When voters enter a polling site for a primary, Democrats would go one direction and Republicans another.

There would be two sets of poll workers, two sets of ballots and two poll books — one listing registered Democrats and one listing registered Republicans. This process would make it tougher for ineligible voters to slip by precinct workers in primaries, Mrs. Hardee said.

"We know how to do it," she said, "but getting the money to do it is another thing." More poll workers, poll books and ballots would be needed to operate under such a system.

The county elections board is planning to conduct a hearing later this month concerning the ineligible votes cast in the county commissioner race for a seat from Consolidated District A, in which D.D. Garrett of Greenville defeated James H. Dupree of Bethel by two votes.

Neither candidate has been certified the winner, and after a June 21 hearing the county board said election irregularities cited by Dupree put the outcome in doubt. The findings were sent to the state Board of Elections.

But before the state panel could meet and take action on the issue, county election officials discovered that 18 Republicans and four unaffiliated voters cast votes in the election. More Pitt County Republicans also voted in a statewide race for a seat on the N.C. Court of Appeals, but the winning margin was large enough that the outcome was not affected.

Only registered Democrats were qualified to vote in both races.

County election board member Myra H. Cain of Greenville said there are currently two checks designed to prevent ineligible voters from participating in a primary: a sign is posted at the polling site directing voters to state their name, address and party, and poll workers are supposed to check the voters' names and parties in registration books.

"Apparently, in these cases, both of those checks failed," Mrs. Cain said.

"I think sometimes, when voters know poll workers so well ... they may not say, 'Tell me your name, address and party.' It's their next door neighbor.

"I'm sure it was inadvertent," Mrs. Cain said. "It's a shame. I'm really sorry that it happened, but I do feel it was inadvertent."

Mrs. Cain said precinct officials she has spoken with were astonished to hear ineligible voters participated.

Mrs. Hardee said Democratic and Republican county chairmen nominate the precinct officials. Each precinct is now staffed by a registrar and two judges, and the registrar selects a few assistants.

"These things happen because you have a lot of human factors involved," Mrs. Hardee said. "It is definitely hard to get good, qualified people to work the polls. You can't be partisan out there. A lot of people think it's big fun ... but it's not. It's hard work."

"The poll workers are all nominated by the party chairmen. It's all political. We can't be in all 25 precincts at once," she said.

The ineligible votes in the Garrett-Dupree race occurred in the Bethel, Belvoir and Carolina precincts and Greenville precincts No. 1, 3 and 5.

The 11 ineligible votes cast by Republicans in the Court of Appeals race occurred in Farmville, Pacolet, and Winterville and Greenville precincts No. 4, 9 and 10.

Teachers Learn By Doing

Burroughs Wellcome has developed a system that provides the teachers a variety of experiences. Teachers are exposed to financing, marketing, laboratory work, production and other aspects of the business. They get an in-depth view of how a major corporation operates and the facets of the business.

Gaynell Deans, formerly a high school English teacher, joined the Teacher Work-Learn Program to gain experience for her job and to earn credibility with her students.

"My goal is to incorporate my new-found knowledge of available resources in local industry into answering the question I am asked most by students, 'What kind of background do I need?'" she said.

Mrs. Mair, who teaches mathematics and reading, said that her interest in robotics caused her to join the program. She specifically wanted to work with Burroughs Wellcome.

"Several faculty members (at South Greenville) had mentioned that robotics was used here (Burroughs Wellcome), which I am very interested in," Mrs. Mair said.

Curiosity also spurred her to join the program. "I've lived in the area for years and have never known what an industry was like," she said. "I've never even toured one, and I was curious."

Ms. Deans and Mrs. Mair believe that because many of the students' fathers are employed by local industries, being a part of the program will enhance their relationship with the children.

"It's like seeing another half of the world," Ms. Deans said. "In teaching, we are in our own little world. This helps us to be able to relate to the kids."

While the teachers' reaction to the program was positive, Mrs. Mair said the classroom phase of the program is mostly lectures, not a "hands-on" experience, which can be taxing.

"I couldn't lecture to fourth, fifth and sixth graders. I would have to have some way to relate economics to their age group," Mrs. Mair said. "When I return to the classroom, I may show a film or two. I was given a booklet with games for lower levels on understanding economics which I will go through."

Beth Eckstein, director of the Center for Economic Education at East Carolina University, is participating in her fifth year with the Economic Education Committee. Ms. Eckstein said the program was begun because of a void in the teachers' background concerning economic and business concepts. These concepts are now required by the state to be taught in grades K-12.

"The program is designed to meet the needs of the teachers and to enhance their economic knowledge," Ms. Eckstein said. "We also give them ideas for how to teach the (business and economic) concepts."

An additional objective of the work-learn program is to ensure that classroom time spent on economics specifically targets the economic competency goals of North Carolina's Basic Education Program.

Miss Eckstein said this year's agenda, which includes such speakers as Tom Parrish of A.C. Monk and Co. Inc. of Farmville, Mayor Ed Carter and Kemper Baker, vice president of the Richmond Federal Reserve Bank, met the objectives for the program.

Teachers, students and businesses profit from the program, says Seigler.

"First of all, it is an opportunity to influence, through teachers, career opportunities that students may not normally think about, which may or may not be science related," Seigler said. "Or, to be an influence on students to study — say science — and even in a way to say 'pick out what you can do and be good at it.'"

Hearing Planned

ting it done (before Aug. 26). What I gather the state wants us to do, is verify this."

At last week's state Board of Elections meeting in Raleigh, Chairman Robert Hunter of Greensboro made a motion to order a new election, but four votes were needed and two members wanted the county board to investigate further. The state board has already ordered new elections in Hyde County and Surry County this year because ineligible voters participated in Democratic primaries.

William A. Marsh of Durham, who opposed the new election, said if most of the ineligible voters cast votes for Dupree — as Kirby claims — then Garrett's actual margin of victory would be larger than two votes, thus removing doubt from the result and making Dupree's complaints a moot issue.

Sixteen of the votes came in the Carolina, Bethel and Belvoir precincts, which Dupree, who lives in Bethel, won handily.

While election officials have no records to indicate which candidate anyone voted for, Marsh said it would be possible for voters to voluntarily sign affidavits stating whether they voted for Garrett or Dupree.

But Mrs. Cain said the county board has no intention of inquiring into voting preferences. "There's absolutely no way. I'm sorry that member raised the possibility."

"We are not about to quiz anybody on who they voted for. That would be against the law," she said. "I can't imagine any circumstances under which we'd do that."

When the county board found out that ineligible voters participated in the primary runoff, it contacted state officials immediately. "Those Republican numbers just jumped out at us," Mrs. Cain said.

The county board reported the evidence to the state board in a letter, but it did not hold a formal hearing and issue findings of fact and conclusions as it did with complaints filed by Garrett and Dupree. Members of the state board said last week they would like to see formal evidence of the irregularity.

Mrs. Cain said state officials initially felt the letter was sufficient, but the county board would have conducted a hearing if the state board had asked. "Now they want more, and we intend to get more," she said. "They waited three weeks; we could have had it done by now."

Kirby asked the state board to certify Garrett, who is black, the winner. Kirby and Garrett contend that voters were divided along racial lines and, because 17 of the ineligible voters are white, they claim Dupree, who is white, benefitted from the irregularity.

Kirby argued to the state board that Dupree, as the losing candidate, not only has the burden of proving there was an irregularity, but also proving the irregularity prevented him from winning. Kirby said the 22 ineligible voters is obviously an irregularity, but not one that prevented a Dupree victory.

Mrs. Cain said the law states that if an irregularity casts sufficient doubt on the election, the state board may order a new election.

but that could not immediately be confirmed.

On May 28, 1987, Rust, then 19, flew a Cessna aircraft to Moscow from Helsinki, Finland, landing on Red Square. Rust was sentenced Sept. 4 to four years in prison on charges of malicious mischief, but West German government officials have worked for his release.

Officials in West Germany said that West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher discussed the case of Rust with Soviet officials during Genscher's visit to Moscow last week.

Genscher was in Moscow to prepare for the scheduled October summit between West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Michael Gerds, Genscher's spokesman, told reporters that "Mathias Rust was a topic in talks between the foreign minister and (Soviet) Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze" in Moscow.

Rust, 20, comes from the town of Wedel, six miles west of the northern port city of Hamburg.

Fight AIDS With Facts In Classroom

AIDS is a disease that should be fought with information, not emotion.

And that battle should include thorough and realistic education in the county's schools on how to prevent the disease. And other approach is a head-in-the-sand approach. That can only exacerbate the effects and misunderstanding of the disease and its victims.

The Pitt County Board of Education was correct to implement, despite intense controversy, such a curriculum for youngsters in grades seven through 12. That action is a heads-up move. It indicates the board doesn't intend to blink in the face of an uncomfortable issue and that it won't bow to profuse emotionalism. The public should note the school officials it elected are capable of properly and calmly handling a touchy subject.

Fired-up parents have asked to monitor AIDS instruction, however, and board members should be cautious about granting this request. While parental involvement in the schools should be applauded and encouraged, monitoring could be extremely disruptive in the classroom. Teachers find it difficult enough to get the message across to youngsters without additional upsets.

Allowing parental monitoring of one issue — AIDS — sets a precedent for monitoring other touchy subjects. Educators could find themselves with supervision in religion, history and science classes, and observation could turn into screening. That is not a conducive learning environment.

Besides, the board has devised and approved a sound reasonable AIDS curriculum. Parents should familiarize themselves with the facts that will be presented to their children and plan to discuss at home what's learned at school. This type of involvement will allow the school system to proceed confidently with the curriculum without impediments.

The only weapon available to fight AIDS is knowledge, and the classroom is one of the key battlegrounds. Students should be educated about risks, and the message must be direct, factual and non-judgmental. It is not the school system's place to promote promiscuity but neither should it be less than honest where health dangers are involved.

AIDS does not call for hysteria. It calls for rationality. Youngsters have the right to facts and a school system has the obligation to inform its charges about serious issues.

The schools should proceed with AIDS instruction in a cool-headed manner — with parental involvement, but without parents in the classroom.

Nature abhors a vacuum, and so does the volatile Middle East.

A diplomatic vacuum of sorts has been created by Jordan's King Hussein's decision to end claim to the West Bank and also to abandon responsibility for any government services in the territory which Israel occupies.

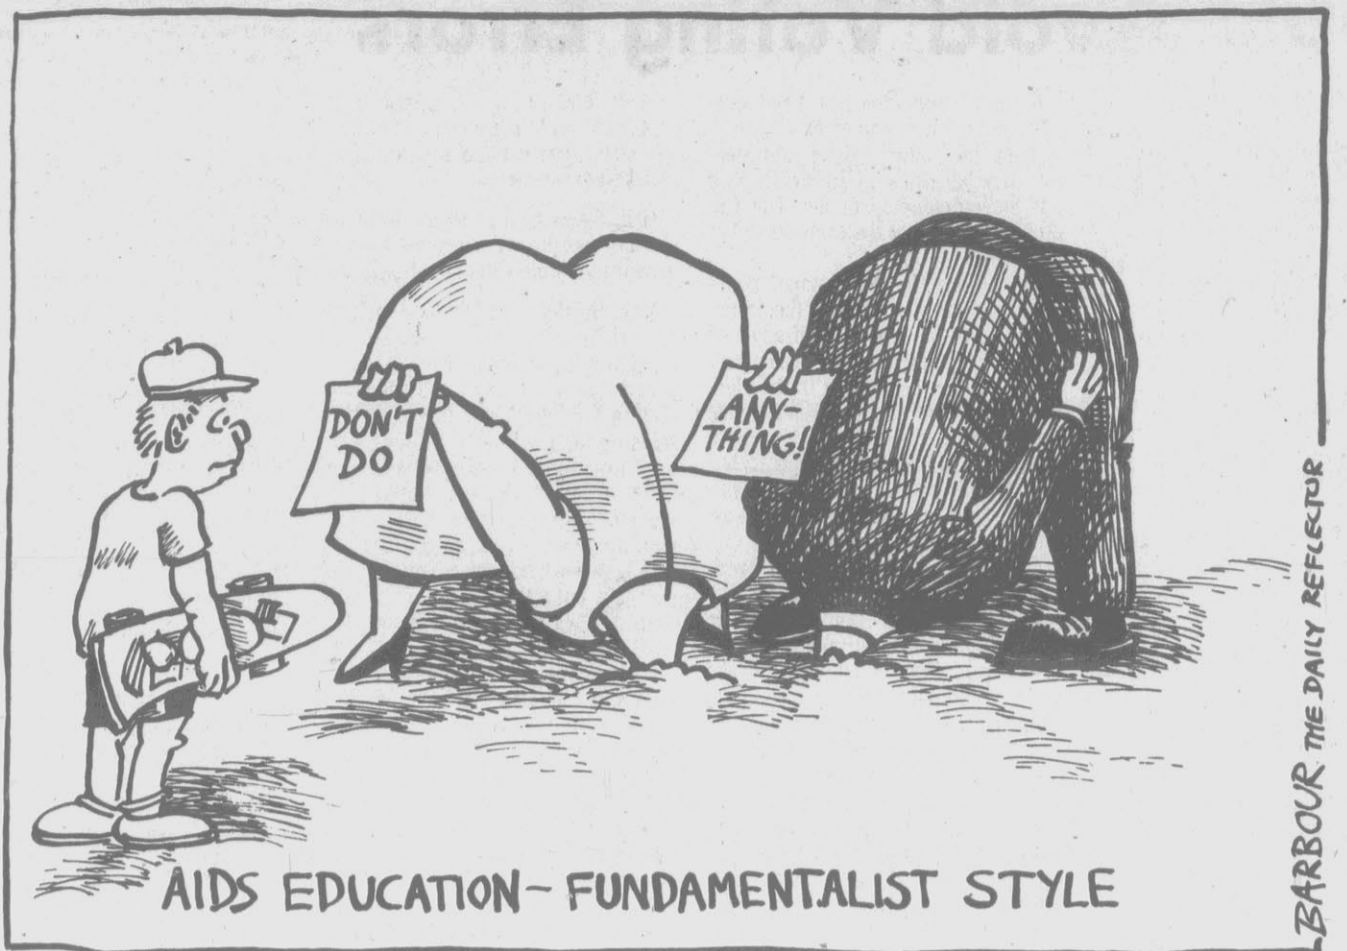

It was a bad omen for stability in the West Bank territory. First it was an admission by Jordan that the PLO has gained influence in the area. Second, the void it creates invites the PLO to fill it — and from the standpoint of preserving peace the more moderate Jordanian influence is preferable to the PLO.

In the peculiar ways of the Middle East, Jordan has been paying teachers, attorneys and other employees of Arab institutions in the areas Israel now occupies. It had planned a $1.3 billion development which has been canceled.

In discussing the situation King Hussein expressed the hope that the territory will be liberated and an independent Palestinian state established. The United States had hoped that Jordan would represent Arab West Bank interests in any negotiations. Now it appears in this troubled area that the PLO will be the influential party — and this at a time of increasing violence in the occupied area that can spell trouble.

Nothing is for certain in the Middle East, particularly insofar as it affects Israel. That nation learned from its beginnings that it must maintain strong military strike forces if it were to survive. The problems of the West Bank are not so easily solved, however, and now it may be that Israel will be facing its arch enemy, the PLO, within the territory Israel occupies.

And for the United States, whose interest has traditionally sided with Israel, the vacuum left by Hussein's withdrawal could have equally troubling implications.

To the editor:

I ask a question of everyone who reads this letter to the editor: What difference is there between Tokyo Rose, who demoralized American soldiers during World War II, and Jane Fonda (Hanoi Jane), who undermined the morale of American soldiers during the Vietnam War?

The answer is none whatsoever. Jane Fonda is another Tokyo Rose, only in a different time frame.

Now "Aerobic Jane leap on the enemy anti-aircraft gun Fonda" wants to make amends to the Vietnam veterans. I say "baloney." She used the North Vietnam weapon to blow herself into the limelight 20-some years ago. Now she uses another publicity stunt — an apology on national TV to supposedly make things right.

"I'm sorry" doesn't erase 55,000 names written on the Memorial Wall. If she really wants to show her sincerity, let her do 500 hours of volunteer work at the VA hospitals or spend time with the children of lost American fighting men (MIA's) Maybe she could help educate some of these children with the millions she has made by way of exercise tapes and movies.

In summation, it's a scam: another publicity stunt to once again enhance her career. In my opinion, Hanoi Jane Fonda should go back to North Vietnam to make her movies. She got along real well with those people 20 years ago. So, Jane, what are you waiting for? Maybe the North Vietnamese need a little exercise ... 1, 2 Jump on the Gun — 3, 4 Dupe the U.S. some more.

To the editor:

I am writing about the article that appeared in the Reflector July 28 titled "Americans Do Poorly On Geography Tests." The story and accompanying map, both by the Associated Press, informed us that the majority of Americans could not locate Great Britain on the map.

The map incorrectly shows the Republic of Ireland to be part of Great Brittain. At one time, Ireland, like North Carolina, was part of Great Britain. The Irish are proud to have beaten the English and gained their independence.

England still claims six of Ireland's 32 counties, a portion of the old Irish kingdom of Ulster. If the Associated Press map had included that small part of the island as part of Britain, their error would not have been so great.

I wholeheartedly agree with the basic premise of the article. Americans could do better on geography tests.

To the editor:

I curse you, thieves who stole eight ripe large cantaloupes on the lot between 111 and 115 Kimberly Drive last Saturday night. I watered the cantaloupes late Saturday evening and I was looking forward to having them in a day or two at our family meals. You got ahead of me and surely have been enjoying eating them, without having moved a finger to produce them nor to pay for them.

Moreover, you did this to an old man — an octogenarian at that — who toiled with spade in hands to produce them. You and anyone else who has a few yards of terrain and is not shy to work can produce vegetables enough for your own consumption. But you chose the easy thieves' way to obtain them, you parasites, not worthy to breathe the air of this blessed planet. My curse shall lie on you until you atone before your God for your crime and learn to earn your daily bread by honest work.

Who Fixed Hamlet's Shoes?

WASHINGTON — The mind of a columnist is a mean machine, a churning mass of neurons and ganglions that, like a shark, never sleeps. At night, in sleep, the mind still runs, on the lookout for an idea. Only this can explain how, the other night, I awoke convinced I had written a reggae song in a dream. It was called "Jesus 19."

I amazed myself. I had written not only the lyrics for this song, but the melody as well. Since I know nothing about reggae music, this seemed even more amazing. I thought I must have heard the song before. So I asked someone if there is a reggae song called "Jesus 19." No, I was told.

"How about rock?" I asked. Not that, either, I was told — and I was asked to sing my song. I could not. I had forgotten it. In this way, the world lost a wonderful piece of music. Look, it happens.

In fact, it happens to me all the time. The creativity of my dreams is lost to me when I awake. For most of my life, this did not bother me since I was convinced that I, alone among human beings, did not dream. Then in college I participated in a dream experiment. For $6 a night, I slept in a room with an observation window. Electrodes were placed on my eyelids and, from time to time, I was awakened by a ringing telephone next to my bed: "You're dreaming. Tell us about it." I would. But in the morning, I'd remember nothing.

Now, though, I remember my dreams. I had one the other night about shoemakers. In my hometown, all the shoemakers were Italian. I had always taken this for granted, but the other night I awoke with a question: Who repaired shoes before there were any Italians?

I wondered about places that did not have Italians — Poland, for example. I imagined that years ago there were no shoe-repair shops in all of Poland, and all the Poles walked around barefoot. They did this in the summer when you could get tapeworm this way, and all the other diseases that exist only in schoolbooks, and they did this in the winter, too.

In that state between being asleep and being awake, my churning mind asked how this could be. It could not, I decided. So, still in bed, I recalled all the short stories of Isaac Bashevis Singer, and I could remember no mention of shoemakers. I then did a mental computer search: shoemaker and Poland, and then shoemaker and Gimpel. I found Gimpel the fool and Gimpel the adulterer (same person) and Gimpel the accountant and Gimpel the orthodontist. But I could not find Gimpel the shoemaker.

And then my restless, churning mind hit upon something. I remembered all those pictures I'd seen of colonial shoemakers. Wasn't Benjamin Franklin a shoemaker? And George Washington and Johnny Tremain and everyone named Uriah? They sat at a bench with hammers in their hands, driving nails into boots. But they were called cobblers. This is the Protestant name for shoemaker, but when Italians came along, they were forbidden to call themselves cobblers, and the name was assigned (by the Masons) to a kind of pie. This was done to confuse immigrants who, from 1832 to 1854, would take their shoes to a pie shop, much to the amusement of Protestants.

It's the same, I realized, with drugstores. In my town there was a drugstore on every corner. They were all owned by a Jewish guy named Doc. There were Doc Gellis and Doc Schwartz and many other Docs, and they were all Jewish. This made me wonder if there were any drugstores in my area before there were any Jews, and then I remembered something. I remembered they were called apothecaries, which is the Protestant name. When Jews started apothecaring, Protestants took the name and made the Jews call themselves druggists. This is yet more evidence of anti-Semitism.

My dreams are extremely detailed and realistic. I think they should end with credits: wardrobe by Cohen, makeup by Cohen, hair styling by Cohen. I can do things in dreams that I cannot do awake. In dreams, I am a terrific interior decorator. All my homes have wonderful furniture and swell rugs and the walls are done in colors whose names I do not even know. All this is done by me in my sleep. Awake, I can do none of it. Awake, I can afford none of it.

I yearn to unleash my nighttime creativity and apply it to what I do during the day. Asleep and therefore uninhibited, I ponder the Great Questions of our time. I go to bed full of anticipation: What's playing tonight? Will it be a flick about shoemakers or maybe a reggae concert with a song of my own composition. "To sleep: perchance to dream," Hamlet said. Yes, but where did he get his shoes repaired?

To Elect, Or To Appoint?

RALEIGH — Which is the more democratic approach? To elect the person who will run a department that employs 300 people and which sets labor policy for the state, or to have the governor appoint that person?

When the question is put that way, it is fairly easy to answer. Most would say the people should directly elect the state commissioner of labor. The people currently have that power, and it doesn't appear that it will be denied them in the near future.

But the next questions may not be so easy. Who is the state commissioner of labor? Did you vote for him in the last election? When was he last elected? Which of his policies do you favor, and which do you oppose?

The Council of State is one of the oddities of state government that makes North Carolina different from most other states. Ten officers of state government are elected statewide and independent of each other in North Carolina. State voters choose the governor and lieutenant governor, the commissioners of labor, agriculture and insurance, state auditor, state treasurer, attorney general, superintendent of public instruction and secretary of state. Whether they know anything about most of the people they vote for is another question.

And that is the main problem with what is known as the long ballot in North Carolina. The people have the power to elect state officers, but unless the voters make an exceptional effort, they are unlikely to know enough about those officers to determine whether or not they have done a good job, whether or not they are pursuing policies with which the individual agrees.

The question of the long ballot has just been decided in North Carolina in the case of the superintendent of public instruction. Craig Phillips is retiring at the end of this year and both Gov. Jim Martin and Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan saw that retirement as a chance to implement a reform. School governance in North Carolina is extremely confused and both felt that some of that confusion could be eliminated if the superintendency was made an appointive position.

The argument goes this way. The governor is the most closely watched and easily recognized officer of state government. The voters get a steady diet of news about the governor and they show enough interest in the office and the candidates for it to make an educated decision. If any of these Council of State positions is made appointive, the voters are much more likely to make an informed decision about the direction of those departments when they vote for their candidate for governor.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey and other House leaders didn't buy that argument. They argued instead that there is no purer form of democracy than the direct election of an independent officer. Hence, they resisted the move to have appointed superintendents.

Jackson Is The Pathfinder, Not A Nominee

Analysis

Readers of the weekly humor and opinion magazines of the 19th century encountered a familiar figure in editorial cartoons that poked fun at the Democrats. He was a squat little fellow with a pug nose, a derby hat perched jauntily on his head and a clay pipe sticking out of his mouth at a rakish angle. He was the Irish-American immigrant and to Americans of the Victorian era came very near to symbolizing the Democratic Party.

While broad ethnic stereotypes are no longer a staple of cartoonists, someone wanting to portray the modal Democratic supporter could accurately use the black voter. Stalwart and cohesive, blacks in the electorate now occupy dominant positions in the Democratic ranks once enjoyed by the Irish immigrants. But what makes their role even more decisive is the presence of a single figure around which they can rally: Jesse Jackson.

The conventional wisdom that emerged from the Democratic gathering in Atlanta was that Michael Dukakis had turned back firmly the Jackson challenge for party leadership and emerged triumphant. He was seen to have been steadfast in his opposition to the minority planks on taxation, nuclear weapons and a Palestinian state. His concessions to the Jackson forces have been interpreted as being of largely symbolic value.

But no one who watched or attended the convention could doubt the importance of those very symbolic acts of deference to Jackson and the hard political realities that lay behind them. Black voters, long an important element in the Democratic electorate, have gained with Jackson an influence in the party that would be the envy of the crustiest New York Irish politician of the 19th century. But if history is any guide, it may be a long time before someone emerges from the black community to capture the party's presidential nomination.

Arriving in this country in large numbers in the mid-19th century after the disastrous potato famine at home, most Irish immigrants found themselves in the large cities of the Eastern seaboard, which were then dominated by the Democrats of old native stock.

By the 1870s the immigrants and their children had assumed the leadership of the local party organizations. On a national level, their votes were sought eagerly by presidential candidates of both parties. But it was not until 1928 that one of their number captured a presidential nomination.

New York Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee that year, was beloved of his own kinsmen but made many others uncomfortable. Like Jackson 60 years later, Smith had a distinctive personal idiom. Sporting a brown derby, spats and a flower in his lapel, Smith spoke in a rich West Side dialect that seemed uncultivated to many people west of the Hudson River. But Irish Catholics everywhere flocked to vote for him.

Like Jackson, moreover, he activated many citizens who had never cast a ballot. Smith's problem was one that Jackson would later encounter: high negatives. More people deserted the Smith ticket than were attracted by it, most notably the white Southern Protestants who were the Democrats' other mainstay. Smith went down to defeat in 1928 and with him went the hope that a Catholic could ever again be the presidential nominee of a major party.

There was, however, a payoff for the Irish Catholic voters for their fidelity: a lock on the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee. A succession of party heads with names such as Farley, Hannegan, Butler and O'Brien was the consolation prize for the party's most loyal bloc of voters for whom the real prize was deemed out of reach.

It is one of the great ironies of American politics that at the very time that demographic changes were eroding the loyalty of Irish Catholic voters to the Democrats, one of their own — John F. Kennedy — won the party nomination and the presidency. All the available evidence suggests that the smooth and urbane Kennedy halted temporarily the exodus of this crucial group of voters and that in 1960, at least, more voters were gained than lost by a Catholic on the ticket.

Jesse Jackson's role in Democratic politics is more comparable to Al Smith's than to Jack Kennedy's. He represents to blacks what Smith did to Roman Catholics; to voters outside the ethnic group, however, he encounters the same kind of opposition.

In some ways, however, Jackson's impact on the party has been even greater than Smith's. He has staked a claim on influence that is without parallel for any figure who was not a president or presidential nominee.

Increasingly, the black agenda as defined by Jackson will figure prominently in the platforms of future Democratic presidents and hopefuls. The alternative budget resolutions of the black congressional caucus, which hitherto received little attention, may now be more seriously heeded by party leaders in the House, and the fortunes of Rep. Bill Gray of Pennsylvania in his campaign for the chairmanship of the Democratic caucus have been boosted.

Does all of this point to a presidential nomination in the near future for a black candidate? It does, but that person will not be Jesse Jackson. Like Al Smith, it falls to Jesse Jackson to be a pathfinder, not the claimant. The black Jack Kennedy has yet to emerge and when he does, he is apt to be as much like Jesse Jackson as J.F.K. was like Al Smith.

Much Ado ...

The conclusion of the Democratic National Convention marks the beginning of a season of electioneering that hasn't changed much since 1832 when Alexis de Tocqueville observed his first presidential race:

"For a long while before the appointed time has come," wrote Tocqueville, "the election becomes the important and, so to speak, the all-engrossing topic of discussion. Factional ardor is redoubled, and all the artificial passions which the imagination can create in a happy and peaceful land are agitated and brought to light. ... As the election draws near, the activity of intrigue and the agitation of the populace increase; the citizens are divided into hostile camps, each of which assumes the name of its favorite candidate; the whole nation glows with feverish excitement; the election is the daily theme of the press, the subject of every private conversation ..."

"It is true that as soon as the choice is determined, this ardor is dispelled, calm returns, and the river, which had nearly broken its banks, sinks to its usual level; but who can refrain from astonishment that such a storm should have arisen?"

Of course, in the old days, the nation's political parties were ideologically different, and presidential platforms could be as different as night and day. The administration of Andrew Jackson would accentuate party strife, leading to formation of the Republican Party in 1854. Party strife was often vociferous for the next three decades, in part responsible for the controversial Civil War and even more controversial Reconstruction of the South. No political scandal was greater than that of 1876 when Republicans stole the election from the Democrats by using the electoral votes from three Southern states still under Reconstruction governments.

At the same time, the 1876 election signaled the beginning of the end of party in the United States. Democrat Samuel J. Tilden and the successful GOP candidate, Rutherford B. Hayes, were virtually indistinguishable on major issues.

The tendency of American politics to be typified by fine points is not unique. In business, both manufacturers and consumers make mountains out of molehills: Procter & Gamble holds a big news conference a couple years ago to announce the transformation of an old product, Tide, into a liquid form; a company puts a tiny alligator on a traditional polo shirt, and voila, runs ahead of the short-sleeve market.

So the next four months is sort of the Christmas shopping season of American politics, with much of the hullabaloo that Tocqueville talked about still around. Candidates will be scrutinized with a fine-tooth comb, and the winning duo will be perceived as the best product. But don't be surprised if some pundit doesn't suggest after the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November that the winning presidential candidate is sort of like Diet Coke and the loser Diet Pepsi — or vice versa.

Thomas V. DiBacco is a historian at the American University and author of "Made in the U.S.A.: The History of American Business" (Harper & Row, 1987).

JET TRAIL — An F-16 fighter jet from Shaw Air Force Base left this cleared trail Tuesday after hitting a radio tower in Robeson County and crashing. The pilot ejected, apparently escaping serious injury. (AP Laserphoto)

Pilot Escapes As Fighter Hits Robeson Radio Tower

FAIRMONT, N.C. (AP) — After hitting the broadcast tower of a Robeson County radio station, an F-16C fighter jet crashed into a clearing, leaving a hole 10 feet deep and 30 feet wide and then virtually disintegrating, officials say.

"The only parts that I saw were small parts of the plane that were scattered over approximately a half-mile area," said Highway Patrol Lt. Steve Goodson.

The pilot, Capt. Robert F. Weiland,

28, ejected near Fairmont and did not appear seriously injured, officials said.

The crash occurred at about 3:45 p.m. Tuesday, about 5 miles west of Fairmont, when the $12.5 million aircraft from Shaw Air Force Base in South Carolina toppled a 1,000-foot radio tower, knocking WSTS-FM of Laurinburg off the air.

"Right now, the only thing we know, it was flying visual flights rules, no flight plan or anything, and the aircraft hit a ... tower," said Danny Rhodes, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration in Atlanta.

Airman First Class Edward Wehrenberg, a base spokesman, said the pilot was picked up about 5 p.m. and was taken to the 363rd Tactical Fighter Wing hospital at Shaw.

T.J. St. James, director of WEWO-AM, the gospel station's sister station, said she expected the stations to be off the air for at least three days because the tower "was knocked completely down."

Bob Butler, executive vice president of Durham Life Broadcasting, which owns WSTS, said damage to the radio tower and its foundation could approach $500,000.

Wehrenberg said the jet was assigned to the 19th Tactical Fighter Squadron at the Sumter, S.C., base and was on a training mission. A board of officers will be convened to investigate the cause of the accident, he said.

Wehrenberg said the crash is the seventh connected with the base since 1985. Another F-16, valued at $11 million, crashed during a training mission on June 22 over the ocean off South Carolina.

Donnie Scott of the Fairmont area said he saw the plane before it hit the radio tower. He said he was in the yard when "the plane comes across. It was making a turn at an angle and a ball of fire come from it. It was the engine, smoke too."

"All I seen was the smoke and the racket from the jet. And fire. I saw the fire," he said. "It was a blaze. It was a flashing blaze and smoke and it was spitting the whole time. It was making a spitting sound like a skip in the motor."

Republicans Want Judge To Halt Judicial Races

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Republican Party and other plaintiffs in a lawsuit challenging the statewide election of Superior Court judges have asked a federal judge to stop the November election of Superior Court judges in seven districts.

Instead, new primaries should be held in those districts Nov. 8, and special district elections should be held Dec. 5, the plaintiffs contended in a motion seeking a preliminary injunction. The motion was filed Monday in U.S. District Court in Raleigh.

The seven districts are those in which Republican voters are "sufficiently identifiable and cohesive that a Republican candidate for Superior Court judge would be likely to win in a district-based election," lawyers for the plaintiffs said in a memorandum accompanying the motion.

The judicial districts are in parts of Wake, Guilford, Forsyth, Alexander, Davidson, Davie and Iredell counties. Democrats are running unopposed in five of the seven districts.

"Our contention is that the reason they are uncontested is that Republicans are effectively discouraged from running, that there is no hope for Republicans ever being elected and that Republicans were bypassed in the way the system was set up," said Marshall Hurley of Greensboro, a lawyer for the plaintiffs.

U.S. District Judge James C. Fox has not set a date for a hearing on the motion.

The attorney general's office is defending the statewide system in court, contending that statewide elections are justified because judges have statewide jurisdiction and rotate outside their districts.

The suit, filed last year, claims that statewide election of judges, after district nomination, was devised intentionally to discriminate against Republicans.

The system restricts free speech and association by penalizing Republicans because of their party affiliation and beliefs, and chills public debate on important issues, the plaintiffs contend. Also, they complain that it degrades the influence of Republican voters on the political process.

The system has nothing to do with the state constitution or the administration of justice but was meant to "eliminate Republican chances of electing Superior Court judges," the plaintiffs say.

Among the plaintiffs are three lawyers who lost Superior Court judgeship elections despite carrying their own districts. No Republican has been elected a Superior Court judge in this century, although Republicans have been elected to District Court judgeships, which are chosen in district elections.

Democratic legislators who control the General Assembly have rejected Republican efforts to move from statewide to district election of Superior Court judges, the memorandum said.

"The facts demonstrate that the Democrats have used their majority status not only for the purpose of perpetuating their own power but also to bludgeon the rights and opportunities of minorities (including Republicans) in North Carolina," the memo said.

Jordan Backs Closing Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan says he supports a bill that would require companies to notify workers before plant closings, but Gov. Jim Martin says the bill is a bad idea — and that Jordan's support of it is a "showboat move."

"I'm an employer," said Jordan, owner of a Montgomery County lumber mill. "I have more than 100 employees. This bill will affect me, and I welcome it because I think it's reasonable and it's prudent. And I think it's reasonable and prudent to ask where's Jim ... on this issue."

Martin said through a spokesman he opposed the bill because it would harm businesses already in dire straits.

Jordan, the Democratic nominee for governor, endorsed pending federal legislation Tuesday that would require companies with more than 100 full-time employees to notify them 60 days in advance of a plant closing or major layoff.

Picking up on a theme emphasized by Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis, Jordan challenged Martin, a Republican, to take a stand on the issue.

President Reagan, who also dislikes the measure, said Tuesday he would allow it to become law without signing it.

Driver Shot As Car Aims For Troopers

BUTNER, N.C. (AP) — A reckless-driving suspect led police and state troopers on a chase through several towns before being cornered by officers and shot, authorities said.

The suspect, who was not seriously wounded, slightly injured a trooper when he tried to escape a roadblock early Tuesday by shifting into reverse, said spokesman Al Warlick of the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

The chase began about 1 a.m. in Hillsborough when police approached a motorist who was weaving on the road, Warlick said.

Instead of stopping when the officers asked him to, the motorist drove off at high speed, entering northbound Interstate 85, Warlick said. The officers gave chase and were joined by Durham police and then state troopers as the suspect roared through that city, he said.

A roadblock formed by two cruisers on the Falls Lake Bridge finally forced the suspect to stop, but then the man slammed his car into reverse, slightly injuring a trooper who had stepped out of his car, Warlick said. The driver then drove in the direction of two other state troopers, one of whom fired at the man, wounding him, he said.

Randy Lee Evans, 28, of Hillsborough was taken to Durham County Hospital, where he was listed in fair condition, a spokeswoman there said. The highway patrol obtained warrants charging him with two counts of assaulting law enforcement officers with a deadly weapon — his car, authorities said.

Teens Charged

DURHAM (AP) — Two teen-agers accused of kidnapping and holding a pair of youths captive in a Philadelphia crack house before they were killed have been transferred to a maximum-security detention center in Morganton after being arrested in Durham on armed-robbery charges.

Miguel "Mike" Martinez and Kelly "Raheem" Robinson were arrested July 26 in a Durham apartment, more than four months after the slayings, Durham police Sgt. Tony Roop said. They were transferred to a juvenile facility in Morganton on Tuesday, he added.

Authorities were unable to verify the suspects' identities until Monday because they gave police several different names and ages, Roop said.

Martinez and Robinson, both from Philadelphia, had been sought since March in the murders of Cornell Williams, 15, and Anthony Williams, 13.

Mayor Convicted

WAKE FOREST (AP) — Wake Forest Mayor Jimmy Ray has been convicted of driving while impaired and ordered to surrender his driver's license, authorities said.

Wake County District Court Judge Fred Morelock gave Ray a two-month suspended sentence on Tuesday, placed him on unsupervised probation for one year and ordered him to perform 24 hours of community service for the June 28 incident.

Ray will be granted limited driving privileges to permit him to attend to his duties as mayor and owner of a Wake Forest restaurant.

Trooper M.R. Brooks testified that he stopped Ray about 1 a.m. on June 28 when he noticed the mayor's pickup truck weaving and speeding. Brooks said Ray became belligerent when arrested and handcuffed. A breath test showed the mayor's blood-alcohol level at 0.11 — higher than the 0.10 level considered legally intoxicated in North Carolina, he said.

Rights Plan

GREENSBORO (AP) — Although officials of Jefferson-Pilot Corp. say they are unaware of any takeover attempt, the company's board of directors has voted to initiate a shareholder's rights plan in a protective measure to ward off unwanted takeovers.

The plan, which goes into effect Aug. 12 for 10 years, is needed because the stock of the insurance and communications firm has been undervalued and insiders own less than 5 percent of the company, officials said.

The plan provides for a dividend distribution of one common share purchase right on each share of the company's common stock.

Jefferson-Pilot already had a plan requiring 80 percent stockholder approval for any kind of buyout. The complex new plan takes effect when a person or group acquires or announces a tender offer for 20 percent or more of the stock. Each right will entitle the holder to buy one share of the company's common stock at an exercise price of $85.

House Shooting

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — A 44-year-old welder and a 17-year-old high school student have been arrested on four charges each in connection with a shooting that riddled a state trooper's house in Traphill last month.

Grady Walsh and Johnny Holbrook, both of the Benham community in eastern Wilkes County, were taken before Judge W. Douglas Albright in Wilkes Superior Court Tuesday for first-appearance hearings.

Walsh was arrested late Monday night after sealed indictments were handed down by a Wilkes County grand jury. Sheriff's officers said Holbrook turned himself in Tuesday morning after an all-night search by authorities.

The two are charged with firing at least 22 rounds from an AK-47 machine gun into the home of J.R. Miles, a trooper with the N.C. Highway Patrol, on July 4.

Ruling Upheld

RALEIGH (AP) — Officials of the town of Beech Mountain say they were forced to raise taxes and reduce services because of a change in Watauga County's distribution of tax revenues, but the state Court of Appeals says the switch was constitutional.

The appeals court affirmed Tuesday a Watauga County Superior Court decision dismissing a suit filed by Beech Mountain and 13 full- and part-time residents against the county and some state officials.

Prior to fiscal 1986-87, the county distributed tax revenues to its towns on an ad-valorem basis, which is based on a percentage of the county's taxable property in each town. Since then, the county changed to a per-capita method based on the number of residents living in a town more than six months.

Rose Center

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Cumberland County commissioners have approved a request to name the county's new Agri-Expo Center for Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C.

Gordon M. Williams, president of the Cumberland County Farm Bureau Inc., presented the idea, and all commissioners in attendance approved the motion Monday as about 25 supporters looked on.

Plants Seized

SNOW CAMP, N.C. (AP) — A field of marijuana, worth $100,000 in estimated street value, has been seized, said Capt. Dan Qualls, supervisor of the Detective Division and Alamance City-County Vice Unit.

Authorities found 96 marijuana plants with an average height of 5 to 6 feet. The value of the plants, when matured, would reach $100,000 on the street or about $1,000 a plant, Qualls said.

Indicted

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — A former employee of the Boomer Volunteer Fire Department has been indicted by a Wilkes County grand jury on 20 counts of embezzling.

Lawrence S. Ferguson, a treasurer with the department from 1981 until last December, was charged with taking more than $9,000 in tax money for his own use from August 1986 through July 1987.

New Law Requiring Some Drivers To Display Insurance Drawing Fire

By ROBIN P. TEATER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The state motor vehicles commissioner says a law requiring some applicants to prove they have liability insurance before getting a driver's license has provoked thousands of complaints, but Democrats accused the commissioner of playing politics.

"The financial responsibility act... is a bad law," said commissioner William Hiatt, a Republican. "I resent the fact that our driver's license examiners are being blamed for something over which they have no control."

But the law's chief sponsor, Rep. Gerald Anderson, D-Craven, defended the measure and charged that Hiatt was making political remarks in a year when Republican Gov. Jim Martin is seeking re-election.

"I think it was as strictly politically motivated as any speech I've ever heard," Anderson said Monday. "If I weren't convinced that this bill... is going to lower insurance premiums for the good, safe drivers of North Carolina, then I'll be the first to repeal it."

"The complaints are coming from the ones with the bad driving records," he said.

Under the law, some people seeking a driver's license must obtain a proof of insurance certificate, which must be signed and dated by their insurer on the day the license is sought.

"I predict that this law, which affects almost three-quarters of a million North Carolina drivers each year, will become a national example of one of the most ill-conceived and hastily enacted legislative bills ever ratified by any state legislature," Hiatt told the joint study panel on auto insurance Monday.

Since the law took effect in January, the Division of Motor Vehicles has received more than 66,000 complaints about long lines at driver's license offices and public ignorance of the measure, Hiatt said.

He blamed the General Assembly for the problems and urged repeal of the portion of the law imposing the proof-of-insurance requirement.

Rep. Vernon James, D-Pasquotank, said Hiatt's "remarks were uncalled for and I do think they were political... For you to come in and condemn 170 people in the Legislature I think is a bad attitude."

People covered by the law include:
— Those seeking licenses for the first time.

— New residents with out-of-state licenses.

— People with points on their licenses for driving violations.

— People whose licenses were suspended because they failed to appear in court for driving violations.

Hiatt also complained that the Legislature provided no money to hire additional DMV personnel to handle problems raised by the law or to educate the public about it.

DMV offices served 165,000 more people last year than in 1986, but the division has received no money to hire extra personnel since 1984, he said.

"Two years I have made the appeal to this group and it's fallen on deaf ears," said Hiatt, who requested $2.3 million this year.

Anderson said the administration's requests for more employees was based on guesswork rather than hard evidence.

Rep. Harry Payne, D-New Hanover, asked Hiatt if he would support the law if the Legislature raised taxes or fees to offset administration costs.

"Certainly it would make this more palatable," Hiatt responded. But "this is an extremely unpopular bill with the public in North Carolina," he said.

Keith Clark, director of DMV's driver's license section, estimated that up to 40 percent of driver's license applicants arrive without the proof of insurance certificate and must make at least one more trip. He said the new law may affect up to 700,000 people a year.

Anderson questioned that figures, saying, "It's easy to be critical when you don't want to do the work."

Hiatt also said the law was unenforceable because a motorist could get a proof-of-insurance certificate, obtain his license and stop payment on a check to his insurer in the same day.

"That's one of the failures of the bill," he said. "It's not only an annoyance, but it's also a joke."

Anderson acknowledged lawmakers need to develop a follow-up provision to close the cancellation loophole.

"I think this system that we have has problems, but I think it's worth salvaging," said Rep. Pete Hasty, D-Robeson.

Congressmen Take Critical Stance On NCNB Takeover

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Some congressmen on a banking committee say they have reservations about a bailout deal between the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., NCNB and an insolvent Texas bank holding company.

"They're gambling with the FDIC's money is what it amounts to," Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn., told The Charlotte Observer. "A regional bank might not be able to swing this in the end, and you end up with both in trouble."

Chairman William Seidman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was scheduled to appear today before the U.S. House Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee.

Under the terms of the $4 billion bailout deal, the Charlotte-based NCNB will make a 20 percent equity investment — about $210 million — in the new Texas bank, formerly First RepublicBank of Dallas, and obtain an exclusive five-year option to purchase the rest from the FDIC.

The FDIC, which will buy the other 80 percent, will not have any voting rights under the terms of the agreement.

"Anyone owning 80 percent should have substantial say in the operations of a corporation," said Fernand St. German, D-R.I., chairman of the banking committee.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, has requested a hearing on the matter, too — tentatively scheduled for Aug. 11, said Beth Climo, the FDIC's legislative liaison.

The FDIC selected NCNB Friday from among several competing banks to head the bailout of the insolvent company, Texas' biggest bank with 41 subsidiary banks and more than 170 branches. But Vento said the FDIC should have considered closing many of First RepublicBank's 41 subsidiary banks, rather than let NCNB try to rescue all of them.

U.S. Carrier Fire Injures 20 Sailors

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The USS Constellation was able to remain at sea today after 20 sailors suffered minor injuries while dousing fires in an engine room on the aircraft carrier, Navy officials said.

The injured sailors were taken to Balboa Navy Hospital here for treatment, said Lt. Cmdr. Bob Pritchard, a Navy spokesman. Most of the injuries resulted from smoke or burns and all were minor, he said.

"The ship remains at sea and intends to remain there to make sure there are no reflashes and to assess damage, at which point a decision will be made as to when she will return to port to effect repairs," he said.

The entire crew of about 2,500 was battled the fires, which began shortly after noon Tuesday, Pritchard said.

The ship had just left San Diego and was less than five miles off the coast when the first fire started in one of the ship's four engine rooms.

That fire was contained but flames flared later in the afternoon, Pritchard said.

"Actually we had many small fires," he said.

SENTENCED — Margaret Kelly Michaels, a former day care teacher, is escorted to a waiting car by deputies in Newark, N.J., on Tuesday. She was sentenced to 47 years in prison after being convicted of sexual assault against 19 preschool children. (AP Laserphoto)

Former Teacher Gets Prison Term For Child Sex Abuse

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A former day-care teacher who sexually abused 19 preschoolers has been sentenced to 47 years in prison, after a mother of one of the victims told the judge, "Our lives will never be the same."

Margaret Kelly Michaels, who must serve 14 years before she is eligible for parole, said before her sentencing Tuesday that prayer and faith in God would help clear her name in an appeal.

"I have confidence in the appeals court to vindicate me," said Ms. Michaels, who sat impassively during her sentencing. "I have spent a lot of time in prayer, and especially spent time praying for those bearing false witness against me."

"I declare today as I declared over three years ago ... I declare my innocence."

Ms. Michaels' attorneys were preparing to file her appeal today.

Superior Court Judge William F. Harth imposed the sentence after a three-hour hearing that included a call by a spokeswoman for parents of the victims to have the 26-year-old former drama teacher imprisoned for life.

"Our lives have changed drastically and dramatically in the last three years," the mother of one of the victims said tearfully on behalf of the other parents. "Our lives will never be the same."

Harth ordered the news media not to use the mother's name.

His sentence, especially the minimum parole term, clearly upset parents, who declined comment.

Ms. Michaels of Pittsburgh was convicted April 16 on 115 counts of sexually abusing 19 children, ages 3 to 5, while they were in her care at the now-defunct Wee Care Day Nursery in suburban Maplewood from October 1984 to April 1985. She also was convicted of endangering the welfare of a 20th child.

Prosecutors said during the trial that Ms. Michaels performed sexual acts on the children with kitchen utensils, forced them to perform sexual acts on her and engaged in sex play, such as having the children pile atop one another while nude. Prosecutors also alleged she played "Jingle Bells" for the children on the piano while nude.

"The facts in this case are sordid, bizarre and demeaning to these children," Harth said before he imposed the sentence that included fines of $2,875 against Ms. Michaels.

Defense attorney Harvey Meltzer said the appeal of the conviction would be on the basis that children testified against Ms. Michaels on videotape. In June, the U.S. Supreme Court overturned the sex conviction of an Iowa man who was behind a shield when two teen-age girls testified against him. The high court held that victims and defendants must confront each other in court.

Meltzer said his client was prepared for a harsher sentence.

Parents mulling about after the sentence declined to be interviewed, but complained to one another about what they considered to be a short parole eligibility term.

Ms. Michaels was convicted of 34 counts of first-degree aggravated sexual assault, 39 counts of second-degree sexual assault, one count of second-degree attempted aggravated assault, 39 counts of third-degree endangering the welfare of a child and two counts of third-degree terroristic threats.

The first-degree convictions each carried a maximum sentence of 20 years, the second-degree convictions 10 years apiece and the third-degree convictions five years.

Specifically, Ms. Michaels received two 20-year terms and one seven-year term to run consecutively. She was scheduled to remain in the Essex County Jail Annex at least until today's bail hearing.

NASA Will Test Shuttle Despite Pesky Fuel Leak

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle managers today ordered the countdown to continue toward a test firing of Discovery's engines on Thursday even though technicians couldn't find the source of a launch pad hydrogen leak.

"They did everything they could do, but they couldn't locate the leak," NASA spokesman George Diller said. The engine firing is vital to certify mission since Challenger exploded on Jan. 28, 1986, killing the crew of seven.

Diller said troubleshooting will continue as the countdown moves toward the planned firing at 7:30 a.m. Thursday. To eliminate the chance of a fire in the leak area, the fuel line will be neutralized with an inert gas, nitrogen.

The leak is in a launch pad service mast and not on the shuttle itself.

Officials said they hoped the leak would not reappear when they start pumping 385,000 gallons of liquid hydrogen into Discovery's external fuel tank tonight.

If the leak reappears and is too big, the firing exercise will have to be postponed for a fifth time, they said.

The leak was discovered Monday during a practice countdown after the tank was 67 percent full. The 20-second ignition will check modifications made to the main engines. It also will be an overall test of shuttle systems, as computer software, ground support equipment, communications links and the launch team will get a thorough workout.

The firing will occur with the shuttle bolted to the launch pad.

Instruments have been placed on joints in the redesigned solid fuel booster rockets to measure stresses when the three main engines generate total thrust of 1.1 million pounds.

The booster rockets will not be fired during the test but will be subjected to the same bending moments that led to a leak in one of the joints during Challenger's liftoff.

That leak allowed flame to escape and led to the destruction of the shuttle 73 seconds after launch.

Officials believe the engine test delays, combined with an unresolved leak in the spaceship's steering-thruster system, could slip Discovery's launch date from mid-September into October.

NASA has deferred action on the thruster leak until after the main engine test, when engineers will enter Discovery's cargo bay and cut a hole through the rear bulkhead in an effort to reach and repair the problem.

Odometer Rules Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators hope tough new rules will help curtail the con artists who roll back odometers, costing consumers more than $3 billion a year.

The regulations, issued Tuesday by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, will impose stricter paperwork standards on states and auto dealers across the nation. The rules take effect next April.

NHTSA's regulations, required by the Truth in Mileage Act passed by Congress in 1986, will require all motor-vehicle titles issued after April 29, 1989, be printed so that counterfeiting and alteration can be detected easily. Titles also must include mileage readings and a place for buyers to disclose the mileage when a car is sold.

NHTSA estimated the requirements will cost $6.5 million annually, although removal of other record-keeping requirements will reduce the net cost.

Douglas Greenhaus, an attorney for the National Automobile Dealers Association, said NHTSA's rules would be good for the auto retailing industry.

"It should result in a net benefit to dealers, who are oftentimes victims of odometer fraud, to the extent that they are purchasers of vehicles that have been spun back," Greenhaus said.

'Nice WASP' Bush Lays Claim To Ethnic Vote

By ROBERT GREENE
Associated Press Writer

Vice President George Bush began vying with Michael Dukakis for the votes of first- and second-generation Americans as the Massachusetts governor contended that a host of legislative victories in Congress proved Democrats already have taken hold of the national agenda.

Bush, the certain Republican nominee, also continued his efforts on the defense and foreign policy fronts, touring a defense plant today in Annapolis, Md. He delivered a speech Tuesday in Chicago highlighting a strong defense and wariness of the Soviets.

Dukakis, in Boston to carry out state business, was focusing on education and the war on drugs, meeting with out-of-state school commissioners and naming a new director of his model Governor's Alliance Against Drugs.

Dukakis, the son of highly successful Greek immigrants, also was receiving President George Vassiliou of Cyprus late this afternoon. The visit comes two days after the Cypriot chief of state met with President Reagan to discuss the 14-year conflict between the island's Turks and majority Greeks.

But despite Dukakis' facility with languages and inspiring story as the son of immigrants who achieved the American dream, it was Bush who most recently made an overture to hyphenated Americans.

Describing himself as a "nice WASP," or White Anglo-Saxon Protestant, Bush told a group of followers from ethnic backgrounds, "He can speak Spanish, but I can speak our language of ethnic values and pride, everlasting pride in the United States of America."

In his remarks to the Bush '88 Coalition of American Nationalities, Bush focused on the intense patriotism and support of such conservative social issues like voluntary school prayer and the death penalty as popular among recently new Americans.

But if Bush was claiming the ethnic constituency, Dukakis was claiming anew that the Reagan era is over, at least in Congress.

Dukakis says Congress forced Reagan to allow plant-closing legislation to become law, and he said the action proved that Democrats were controlling the nation's agenda. He said that victory and progress on a related trade measure, catastrophic illness legislation and raising the minimum wage has "a great deal to do with the attitude of the American people that they want something different."

"Even though Ronald Reagan still occupies the White House, we can safely say Michael Dukakis has just signed into law his first bill as president," added Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., the House Majority Whip, saying the pendulum has swung away from the conservative agenda.

Bush said of the measure: "I think the president made a good decision, and that matter is now resolved and now we can get the focus where it belongs, on plant openings."

In Chicago, Bush suggested that development of the administration's Strategic Defense Initiative might be critical to Israel's security. In a remark directly challenging Dukakis, he said, "It is one thing to say you are committed to Israel's security, but in an age of ballistic missiles, if you are against defensive systems such as SDI, that slogan has little meaning."

In Boston, the national issues director for the Dukakis campaign disputed Bush's logic and called the Star Wars program a "space boondoggle."

"The point makes no sense whatsoever," said Christopher Edley, Jr. "Israel's security is no more an important argument for SDI than water quality or auto safety is an argument for SDI."

Dukakis on Tuesday was facing questions about $200 million in borrowing to pay state bills and word that state revenues were down in July.

The governor said he remained optimistic about the state meeting the 8.3 percent annual revenue growth called for in the state budget and said a temporary cash flow problem had made it necessary to issue the short-term notes.

Dukakis, who has attacked the federal deficit under Reagan, said the notes would be paid off quickly and that the state would end the fiscal year with a surplus.

He also was to file legislation today requiring judges to justify freeing defendants on bail after their convictions. The action follows the arrest of a man in a Rhode Island kidnaping who had been released on bail after pleading guilty to sexually assaulting a child.

Dukakis said the move had nothing to do with criticism he faced from Bush over a Massachusetts furlough program that allowed the release of a murderer who then escaped and raped a Maryland woman.

But Bush campaign spokesman Mark Goodin said Dukakis was a "Johnny-come-lately and in some cases a Johnny-come-never in the war on crime."

Gambling Bid Dies In Detroit

By The Associated Press

Detroit voters dealt Mayor Coleman Young a losing hand by rejecting his dream of casino gambling, while Missourians bailed out their struggling lottery by raising the jackpot limit.

In other results of primaries in three states Tuesday, Missouri Democrats gave state Rep. Betty Hearnese, who once lived in the governor's mansion as first lady, a shot at returning there as chief executive. They also endorsed Rep. Richard Gephardt's last-minute bid for a seventh term and sent farm activist Wayne Cryts into a rematch with Republican Rep. Bill Emerson.

Michigan Republicans, choosing between two millionaire ex-congressmen, picked Jim Dunn to challenge liberal Democratic Sen. Donald Riegle.

Kansas had one congressional incumbent facing a challenge — GOP Rep. Jan Meyers, who tallied 85 percent of the 3rd District vote against Charles B. "Bat" Masterson, a retired school administrator.

The Detroit vote marked the third time in 12 years that Young, who is expected to seek re-election next year, has seen his plan to boost the local economy by building hotel-casinos set back at the polls.

With 73 percent of precincts reporting, a gambling ban placed on the ballot by his opponents was winning by 45,632 votes or 62 percent to 28,421 votes or 39 percent.

"This is sending a message to the administration that we are the ones in charge here, not he," said the Rev. Keith Butler, of the Alliance Against Casino Gambling.

But Frank Stella, a member of the mayoral study commission that recommended casinos, blamed the defeat on poor organization and said: "Casino gaming is going to come to Detroit sooner or later."

The measure puts an ordinance on the books that would ban casinos from Detroit even should the Legislature someday legalize gambling in the state. However, it is not clear whether that ordinance could withstand a court challenge as an unconstitutional attempt by a city to supersede state law.

Supporters of the Missouri amendment called it crucial to the future of the 2½-year-old lottery, which had been suffering because of competition from surrounding states.

Previously, exactly 45 percent of sales money had to go to prizes, 45 percent to the state and 10 percent to administrative costs. Now a minimum of 45 percent must go for prizes, and officials say they want give away about 50 percent and also spend more on advertising.

With 92 percent of precincts reporting, the measure won by 433,152 votes or 58 percent to 319,387 or 42 percent.

Mrs. Hearnese, 61, whose husband, Warren, was governor from 1965-73, will attempt to become Missouri's first woman governor by unseating Republican Gov. John Ashcroft, who did not face a primary.

"You'll see it start to heat up between now and November," Mrs. Hearnese said in claiming victory.

BACK AT HOME — Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, the Democratic presidential nominee, was back home in Boston Tuesday to carry on state business, including a press conference. His public statements Tuesday focused on the war on drugs and education. (AP Laserphoto)

Judge Overturns Medicare Standard

WASHINGTON (AP) — A court decision ordering the Reagan administration to relax eligibility standards for elderly people to get health care at home could help thousands of Medicare recipients, according to a lawyer in the case.

U.S. District Judge Stanley Sporkin's decision overturning a Medicare regulation may encourage thousands of recipients to apply for benefits they thought they never had, said William Dombi, legal director of the National Association for Home Care, which brought the lawsuit.

Sporkin overturned a 1986 regulation defining "part-time or intermittent" care as limiting eligibility to patients who received four or fewer home visits a week.

Sporkin said the four-day limit "produces absurd results."

"A beneficiary needing a total of five hours of care per week is denied coverage if the care is needed over the course of five or more days, while the person needing as many as 27 hours of care spread over only four days may qualify for coverage," the judge said in a 69-page opinion released Tuesday.

"Home health care beneficiaries must survive seven days a week — their medical needs do not take weekends off," he said.

Dombi said the decision probably affects several thousand Medicare beneficiaries who were denied reimbursement for visits by nurses or health aides.

"People who sought nursing-home care as the alternative may now have a chance to come into the home setting," he said.

It also will encourage people who are receiving less care than they need to get Medicare reimbursement for more frequent visits. "We presented evidence that indicated people were receiving less care than they needed solely to qualify for some benefit payment," Dombi said.

"People who have deprived themselves of care may come back into the system," Dombi said.

New Leader Calls For Martial Law In Burmese Capital

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Burma's official Radio Rangoon announced that martial law was declared today in the Burmese capital of Rangoon.

The radio interrupted its regular evening program to make the announcement and promised a full text of the martial law decree later.

The Burmese language broadcast, monitored in Bangkok, gave no further details.

The declaration came one week after Sein Lwin, known for his ruthless suppression of dissidents, assumed power. Lwin said moral decay and political corruption have caused citizens to lose faith in the government.

In remarks to Burma's leadership Tuesday, Sein Lwin also urged the government to adopt economic reforms that would dismantle some of Burma's rigid socialist system.

Sein Lwin was elected president and chairman of the ruling Burma Socialist Program Party on July 26. Pamphlets circulating in Rangoon have branded him a ruthless oppressor and called for his overthrow.

A transcript of his broadcast remarks were made available today.

"It has been widely known among the people that in some offices and departments, there are various forms of moral decadence, bribery, work-delaying tactics, growing losses and wastage and corruption," Sein Lwin said.

"And it is at the stage where people have lost faith because of it.

"We have been hearing reports that the people are terrified of dealing with (government) offices and departments," he said in an opening speech to officials of the country's leading government bodies.

In a closing address, Sein Lwin also urged party members to "be active and to work hard, as we have found, in many instances, cases of almost deathlike immobility among them."

Sein Lwin also called for the adoption of economic reforms. A recent congress of the ruling party unveiled reforms that include turning over to the private sector areas that had been in government hands for the past 26 years as well as allowing foreign investment in the country.

Meanwhile, the official News Agency Burma acknowledged Tuesday that since July 28 young people have been rallying at Rangoon's sacred hilltop shrine, Shwedagon Pagoda, to protest government leaders.

The agency, in a report made available today, said 100 to 200 teen-agers hoisted the peacock flag — a symbol of Burma's struggle against British colonialism — on the platform surrounding the base of Shwedagon's central spire.

The agency urged parents to control their children.

In October, hundreds rioted when the government took out of circulation several currency notes without compensation. In recent years Burma has been plagued by severe inflation, widespread shortages of goods and even spot food shortages in a country once regarded as Southeast Asia's most bountiful rice bowl.

Western diplomats and Burmese sources say Sein Lwin played a key role in the bloody suppression of student demonstrations in March. Reliable sources say more than 100 people died, but the official casualties are given as only 43.

On Friday, the government rounded up the most outspoken critic of the system, Aung Gyi, and nine others described as his associates for "attacking the state." The group included Associated Press correspondent Sein Win.

In a letter to Sein Lwin, Associated Press president and general manager Louis D. Boccardi said the AP was "deeply concerned" over Sein Win's arrest and detention and "would appreciate further information and clarification of the charges" against him.

Boccardi asked that an AP representative be allowed to visit Sein Win and expressed hope the family already had that privilege.

Boccardi said in the letter, dated Tuesday, that the reported charge of "attacking the state" against the correspondent "does not comport with our long knowledge of" Sein Win.

The 66-year-old former publisher of Rangoon's English-language daily The Guardian won an international prize in 1963 for fostering freedom of press in his country. He was jailed for three years in the 1960s for his journalistic activities.

He joined the AP shortly after his release from his second prison term in 1968.

Cubans Reject Plan For Angolan Peace

GENEVA (AP) — Cuba today rejected as "preposterous and unrealistic" a South African proposal for ending the 13-year-old Angolan War that envisaged a cease-fire in a week and the withdrawal of foreign troops in 10 months.

Cuba faulted the plan for linking a cease-fire in Angola with independence for neighboring South-West Africa, also known as Namibia. South Africa rules the territory in defiance of several U.N. resolutions.

In a statement, Cuba said the plan forwarded by South Africa on Tuesday was an "outdated attempt to revise the linkage between the independence of (South-West Africa) and the Cuban presence in Angola."

The "preposterous and unrealistic proposal of setting compulsory dates for the withdrawal of Cuban troops from the territory of Angola is not in keeping with the actions that have recently taken place on the terrain," it said.

That was a reference to the reported standoff in fighting that pits Cuban and Angolan forces against anti-communist rebels and South African troops.

However, the statement said Cuba and Angola will continue talks with South Africa on a peace settlement, the latest round of which began in Geneva on Tuesday.

The South African proposal, unveiled by Foreign Minister Pik Botha in Pretoria, broke a news embargo requested by Assistant Secretary of State Chester Crocker, who is chairing the negotiations.

The Cuban statement said Botha's public announcement of the proposals "violates the principles that have governed the previous rounds" of "always preserving the complex details of this negotiation process."

But it said that "Angola and Cuba will maintain a serious and responsible conduct of the talks. The joint Cuban-Angolan delegation will not be the one to cause their disruption."

South Africa's proposal marked the first time it has offered a specific date for granting independence to South-West Africa and was seen as a major development in efforts to resolve the war in Angola.

It calls for an Aug. 10 cease-fire in Angola. Botha said that if the truce is accepted, South Africa would withdraw its estimated 3,000 troops from southern Angola by Sept. 1.

On Nov. 1, South Africa would begin withdrawing from Namibia under a U.N. resolution that calls for the territory's independence.

Botha said elections would be held in Namibia on June 1, provided Cuba has withdrawn its estimated 50,000 troops from Angola by the same date.

Cuban troops are in Angola supporting the country's Marxist government. South Africa and the United States support the rebels of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, or UNITA.

The South African proposal calls for the cease-fire to be monitored by committees established at the current Geneva talks. Botha did not specify who would do the monitoring. In the past, he has proposed a U.N. presence.

Botha said if a cease-fire begins Aug. 10, it would give U.N. officials almost three months to prepare for South Africa's withdrawal from Namibia.

Cuba and Angola have suggested a four-year timetable for the Cuban withdrawal. South Africa and the United States are seeking a much shorter time period.

South Africa's mandate over Namibia was terminated by the United Nations in 1966, but it has retained control of the country, which possesses considerable mineral wealth.

Bulgarian Crash Kills 23 People

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A Bulgarian airliner failed to take off from the runway and crashed into a river, killing at least 23 people on board, Bulgarian news media said today.

The YAK-40 propeller-driven plane of the state Balkan Airlines crashed Tuesday as it tried to leave the airport at Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, for a regularly scheduled flight to Varna on the Black Sea coast, the official Bulgarian news agency BTA said.

Diplomatic sources, reached by telephone from Vienna, said airport officials reported no foreigners were aboard the plane. But they said they were still waiting for official confirmation from the Bulgarian Foreign Ministry.

The sources said the official Communist Party daily Rabotnichesko Delo described the crash in today's editions.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the newspaper reported that the plane failed to take off, rolled off the runway and crashed into the Iskar River about a mile east of the airport. It was not known why the plane was unable to take off.

The newspaper said 12 people were hospitalized.

On Tuesday evening, BTA said 14 people were hospitalized and the rest of the 37 people on board were killed.

The newspaper report indicated two more people may have died later, which would raise the total killed to 25.

The newspaper said four of the 33 passengers were children, but did not say whether they were among the dead. Four crew members were on board.

It was believed to be the worst Bulgarian air disaster since the crash of a TU-134 aircraft of the Bulgarian airline in January 1984. All 50 people on board were killed when it crashed on landing at Sofia airport after a three-hour flight from East Berlin.

In March 1978, a Balkan aircraft en route from Sofia to Warsaw crashed and killed 73 people.

Israel Raids Arab Homes In Drive On Firebombers

ALLENBY BRIDGE, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israeli soldiers today demolished or sealed the homes of 12 Palestinians suspected of firebomb attacks. Hospital officials said five Palestinians were wounded in protests in the occupied lands.

Right-wing legislators rallied under heavy military guard and a blazing sun at Jordan's border with the West Bank, demanding that Israel annex the West Bank in response to King Hussein's decision to sever ties with the territory.

During a private government meeting, Industry Minister Ariel Sharon called for Israel to apply its law to those parts of the West Bank populated by Jewish settlers, Israel radio said. Military law now is in force in the West Bank, which Israel seized from Jordan in 1967.

Ten homes were destroyed before dawn and two others were sealed in Beit Ummar near Hebron and towns near Ramallah. The army said the homes belonged to Palestinians suspected of hurling at least half a dozen firebombs at troops or at other Palestinians accused of collaborating with Israel.

One family in Beit Ummar was given an hour to pack their clothes before their home was dynamited at 2 a.m., a resident said.

"They forbade us from taking furniture," said Kamleh Ismail Rabai, whose son, Wahid, was jailed 17 days ago.

As the home exploded, women shouted "this is for the redemption of Palestine," another witness said.

Israel has a policy of destroying the homes of suspected guerrillas to deter attacks. The punishment often is meted out before the guerrillas have been tried, as was the case early today.

The army said the suspected guerrillas belonged to a team that targeted Israeli civilian vehicles, army jeeps and Arabs suspected of collaborating with Israel.

The army said some of the suspected firebombers were arrested, but it did not say how many.

At the rally, Yuval Neeman of the militant Tehiya Party said: "Thank you for abandoning your claim here, King Hussein. This is now the historic moment for Israel to declare sovereignty in this area."

Legislator Geula Cohen also warned that Israelis might seek to annex portions of Jordan if Hussein ever went to war again with Israel.

The legislators said they would meet Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir on Thursday to press their demand. Tehiya and Shamir's right-wing Likud bloc both believe the West Bank to be inextricable parts of the historic land of Israel.

Hussein announced Sunday his decision to break Jordan's ties with the West Bank. The West Bank and Gaza Strip have been the scene of a 8-month-old rebellion by Palestinians against Israel occupation in which 236 Palestinians and four Israelis have been killed.

The protest at the main crossing point to Jordan delayed more than 100 Palestinian travelers for more than 30 minutes.

In Nablus, the West Bank's largest city, soldiers wounded four Palestinian youths during a stone-throwing protest, an official at Al Ittihad Hospital said.

Viets Call Off Hunt For MIAs

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam said today it has suspended its cooperation in the search for missing American servicemen and in resettling former political prisoners. It cited a hostile policy by the United States.

The official Voice of Vietnam radio said Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach made the decision known in a letter Sunday to retired Gen. John W. Vessey, President Reagan's special emissary on these issues.

The broadcast, monitored in Bangkok, said that Thach's letter criticized Assistant Secretary of State Gaston Sigur. Thach said Sigur was opposed to setting up a low-level diplomatic bureau in Hanoi "as it would not improve U.S.-Vietnamese relations in humanitarian issues."

Because of this "hostile policy," the broadcast said, Vietnam "is compelled to suspend temporarily" joint efforts "in the search and exhumation of remains of missing in actions (sic) as well as the resettlement of camp inmates in the United States."

The United States has withheld diplomatic recognition from Vietnam and isolates the communist nation to protest its nearly 10-year-old military occupation of Cambodia. It has resisted previous Vietnamese attempts to establish official contact through working groups, "interest sections" and the like.

Sigur, who is in charge of Asian affairs, made the remarks before the House Foreign Relations Committee on July 28.

The broadcast quoted Thach as saying Sigur's statement "shows the U.S. State Department is continuing to pursue a hostile policy against Vietnam." He said it "has touched off indignance among Vietnamese and hampered implementation of the agreement between Mr. John Vessey and he himself."

"The U.S. has responded to Vietnam's good will with a hostile statement," Thach was quoted as saying. Thach and Vessey reached an agreement in Hanoi last August under which Vietnam pledged to accelerate its accounting of nearly 1,800 Americans listing as missing in action in the Vietnam war. The United States in turn pledged to help Vietnam with its humanitarian problems, such as those of people disabled in the war.

In letters to Vessey last month, Thach pledged to try to resolve by the end of the year 70 MIA cases which the United States considers top priority, and it welcomed joint excavations for remains.

Minister Killed

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — A 64-year-old Presbyterian minister, the subject of a two-day countywide search after his disappearance, was found dead Tuesday evening in a car that apparently had crashed into a creek west of Asheboro.

The Rev. Dean Adams Bailey, associate pastor of First Presbyterian Church, may have been the victim of a traffic accident, but state troopers late Tuesday said the cause of death could not be determined until an autopsy was completed.

Bailey disappeared Thursday after he told church officials he was going to deliver a church bulletin to a hospital patient.

Firms Owned By Women Knit Top Is Summer Favorite Show Rapid Growth Rate

By EDWARD STILES
The Tucson Citizen
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Women own a third of the small businesses in this country and account for the fastest-growing segment of the small business population.

Popular myth has it that this marks the emergence of the new American woman — well educated, gutsy, independent and no longer content to work for a man.

University of Arizona researcher Vera K. Pavlakovic disputes this. Her work — still in its preliminary stages — indicates that feminism may not be the motivating force behind the growth in entrepreneurship among women, despite some well-publicized success stories of aggressive women executives.

Ms. Pavlakovic, of the UA Division of Economic and Business Research, said she believes the trend is tied more to economics in specific regions of the country than to a new kind of striving, aggressive woman. And she has found that the trend has its dark side as well.

First, despite the overall high rate of growth in businesses owned by women, 20 percent of the states showed a decline in businesses owned by women between 1980 and 1983, she said.

There is no regional pattern to the growth rates, although the New England and Atlantic region has the largest number of states with growth rates of 50 percent or greater, she said. It appears that economic conditions and the availability of venture capital for women help determine the roles of women in business on a state-by-state basis, she said.

Ms. Pavlakovic also found that 90 percent of the businesses owned by women have only one employee, the woman herself, making them fragile enterprises that can easily fail.

Women most often own establishments that offer business and personal services, she said. These include traditional services such as beauty shops and dry cleaners, but also some new services such as computer and data processing, advertising and consulting.

As a result, the women fall into two categories, those who are highly skilled professionals and those with few skills, Ms. Pavlakovic said.

No data exists, however, about many important aspects of the trend by women to become self-employed, she said.

"There is no breakdown of how many are in white-collar professional jobs and those who are less skilled," she said. "Would you believe that even information like wage differences between women and men on a state level does not exist?"

Ms. Pavlakovic has talked with representatives from several agencies and subagencies in Washington that deal with labor issues pertinent to women and has found they don't have much statistical information.

"One finding of my study right away is that this kind of data should be gathered," she said. "It's almost like a joke. There is a feminist movement, but we don't have the data to back it up."

Despite a thin data base, Ms. Pavlakovic still is working to develop a model to predict the growth in businesses owned by women.

"The initial results are discouraging because the model tells me that some of my variables may not be good," she said. "The time span is too short to measure anything. So I just have to dig for some more data and try to find some better indicators to plug in."

Ms. Pavlakovic hopes eventually to come up with a model to determine which factors are most important in increasing the numbers of small businesses owned by women.

With this model, it may be possible to predict how many women will start small businesses in a given year. Organizations such as the Small Business Administration could use such predictions for planning funding and other programs, she said.

The information also could be used for counseling, Ms. Pavlakovic said. If 50 percent of the women would like to get into data processing, for instance, the Small Business Administration could advise clients that a glut in this service is likely.

But, Ms. Pavlakovic noted, many more questions remain. What happens when new jobs are opened in a post-recessionary period? To what extent do self-employed women continue their businesses, and to what extent does female entrepreneurship have only a temporary character?

Are there certain sectors that are especially sensitive to changes in the general job market? To what extent does female entrepreneurship support use of temporary workers and keep wages and salaries low?

And being predominantly small, single-person establishments, how do these businesses handle competition, advertising and other factors that affect the stability of a business?

With women now running so many small businesses, these are important issues that cannot be explained by a few stories about the hard-driving new American woman, she said.

An inspired combination of three different yarns — one of them highly textured — is used for the yoke of this quick-knit sleeveless top. Garter stitch and a charming "bramble" stitch alternate on the yoke to create a fabulous nubby look, which is emphasized by the simple stockinette stitch in the body of the sweater.

Another plus is the bare minimum of shaping required. The body gauge works to less than four stitches per inch while the yoke is approximately five stitches to the inch. You'll be finished before you know it.

Easy-to-follow directions are given for small, medium and large sizes with finished bust measurements of 34, 38 and 42 inches respectively. To obtain directions for making the Summer Medley, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-073188 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-073188 by sending a check or money order for $12.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, instruction leaflet and acrylic yarn in earth tones.

Intricate-looking pattern stitches that add special interest to knitted designs are not necessarily difficult — even for a beginning knitter. Multicolor slip stitch patterns are a good example.

Slip stitches tend to compress the knitted fabric somewhat, so I usually work them on needles at least two sizes larger than usual for the selected yarn.

In working the patterns given here, always slip the stitches purlwise, inserting the tip of your right-hand needle into the first stitch on the left needle as if you were going to purl it, and then slipping it from the left to the right needle without working it.

Here's a two-color pattern stitch for you to try that creates a thick, reversible fabric because it combines garter and slipped stitches. You can achieve a looser weave — and an entirely different look — by working purl instead of knit stitches on all even-numbered rows. Try it both ways and see which you prefer.

Cast on any even number of stitches with color A.

Row 2: (with color B) Step 1, knit one; Step 2, with yarn held in front of work, slip one and return the yarn to the back of your work. Repeat these 2 steps across the row.

For Rows 3 and 4, change to color A and work the same as you did Rows 1 and 2. Repeat these 4 rows over and over for desired length.

Pat's Pointers Pat Trexler

Here's a great pattern for using up odds and ends of yarn. Try it with four colors.

With color A, cast on any number of stitches evenly divisible by 4 and then cast on 3 more (a multiple of 4 plus 3).

Row 1: purl across.
Row 2: (color B) Knit the first stitch, then work as follows: Step 1, with yarn in back of work, slip 1; Step 2, knit 3. Repeat Steps 1 and 2 across, ending row with slip 1, knit 1.

Row 3: With color C, purl the first 3 stitches. Step 1, with yarn in front of work, slip 1; Step 2, purl 3. Repeat Steps 1 and 2 across row.

Repeat Rows 2 through 9 for desired length. Try it — you'll love it!

Miss USA To Visit Greenville

COURTNEY GIBBS

Miss USA 1988 Courtney Gibbs will be visiting in Greenville Friday. She will sign autographs at J.C. Penney mall entrance from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. and again from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

A native of Fort Worth, Texas, she was crowned Miss USA on March 1. She is a former honor student at Texas Christian University where she studied fashion design. She enjoys sailing, scuba diving, horseback riding and cross stitching.

Miss Gibbs has modeled professionally for seven years, including two years of European assignments. She was in the Miss Texas-USA Pageant, preliminary to Miss USA. During her reign, she will travel throughout the United States and internationally for interviews and television appearances.

Following her reign, she is interested in pursuing a career in broadcasting. "When I first became Miss Texas, and did my first one-on-one interview, I thought I would faint. Now I enjoy it, feel comfortable speaking publicly and have become intrigued with the process of reporting."

Home Attracts Birds And Bird Lovers

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Elizabeth and Eddie Clarkson's fairy tale life together began on a rather inauspicious note.

"We had just pulled up in front of the house from our honeymoon," Elizabeth recalled. "Eddie couldn't find the key, so he had to jimmy that window over there and push me through."

Once inside, she realized the two-story white house her newlywed husband had built for her was just like she planned it — except for one thing. It stuck out like a sore thumb in the middle of red clay fields.

"I started grubbing in the dirt the next morning," she said.

That was April 1927, two years before the Great Depression. By the time she was finished with her gardening, three acres of barren North Carolina clay fields had been transformed into lush gardens and a bird sanctuary the Clarksons decided to name Wing Haven.

Today, Mrs. Clarkson is a striking woman of 84, four years younger than her husband. They still live in the same house and they host bird lovers from all over the world, although they have turned over Wing Haven's day-to-day operation to a non-profit foundation to ensure its preservation.

Perhaps the most remarkable thing about Wing Haven is its location, smack in the middle of residential Charlotte, which has been growing rapidly in recent years.

Situated in a neighborhood of large homes with expansive yards of their own, Wing Haven does not stand out. But when visitors reach the lush gardens behind the house, the senses are bombarded by roses, azaleas, dogwood, crinum, crape myrtle and hundreds of other plants and trees.

Then there are the birds.

The Clarksons have attracted nearly 150 different species to their urban sanctuary. They go through more than 3,500 pounds of birdseed a year.

When Mrs. Clarkson takes her daily walks, she always carries a pink container of mealworms to feed the cardinals, towhees and other wild birds by hand.

Not unexpectedly, there has been more than one winged house guest. The most famous was a bluebird named Tommy, who never slept outside and took his baths in a bowl in the Clarksons' bathroom.

The little bluebird liked to entertain the Clarksons and their friends by grabbing a flower or a piece of tissue paper and flying back and forth across the living room. Mrs. Clarkson remembers him preening himself in front of a mirror for hours.

At Wing Haven, in the middle of a city of more than 300,000 people, birds seem to feel at home. Wood ducks, catbirds, herons and other wild birds have returned year after year.

It has a similar effect on people.

"There's a feel about Wing Haven that if you become attracted to it you can't get away from it," said curator Wann Hogewood. "It's such a fragile situation to have such lovely gardens and a bird sanctuary together. That's why we can't do a lot of things here that you'd see in a public garden. The birds need cover for their nests."

In many ways, Wing Haven is a testimony to the human spirit. As young newlyweds back in the late 1920s, the Clarksons began giving each other gifts of bird baths, garden plaques, bench swings — and bricks.

"We've got 347,000 bricks at Wing Haven — enough to build 10 houses," Clarkson said proudly. "We'd give each other 1,000 bricks on our birthdays, or Christmas ... enough to build another path or another 30 feet of a wall."

Mrs. Clarkson designed the gardens, starting with a sprig of honeysuckle and a cutting from her mother's pink rosebush back in her native Texas. The bush is now enormous as it spreads across the front entrance to the gardens.

The Clarksons still wear matching roses from the bush on their lapels every day. "My mother planted that bush back in 1888," she said.

As his wife labored in her beloved gardens, Clarkson's self-appointed task was to see to it that Wing Haven

Talk To School Counselor

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Come on! You must have been joking when you wrote: "Confidential to anyone who is lucky enough to have a father: For Father's Day, sit down and write your dad a letter, telling him how much you appreciate him, and why."

Abby, if I sat down and wrote a letter to my dad telling him how much I appreciate him and why, I would be giving him a blank piece of paper.

My father is rude and disgusting, and I could tell you more. The only thing I appreciate about him is that he doesn't come to my school functions.

And if you think he's bad, you should meet my mother. — RATHER BE PARENTLESS IN INDIANA

DEAR RATHER: I'm sure you have your reasons for feeling as you do, but your miserable situation isn't going to improve unless you do something about it.

You are obviously feeling a great deal of pain and anger. Just talking about it (even to me) gives you an opportunity to air your feelings, but you need more help than I can give you in a letter.

Please talk to an understanding professional person about the anger and bitterness you feel toward your parents. Your school counselor would be a good place to start. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: This letter concerns "Seeing Red in Jackson, Miss." who was angry that her eye doctor discontinued his care for her because she bought extended-wear contact lenses from an optician. "Seeing" chose to seek treatment for her vision needs from someone other than her original doctor; therefore, he was certainly within his legal and ethical rights to remove himself from the situation. This is not a matter of rudeness. The original doctor is in no way obligated to provide continuing care for treatment that he did not prescribe.

Abby, there is still a great deal of confusion about the "3 O's": optometrists, ophthalmologists and opticians. An OPTOMETRIST is a doctor of optometry (O.D.) with four years of post-graduate doctoral study in measuring vision and eye health. Optometrists prescribe lenses of all kinds, vision therapy, and in more than half the states in our country, medications. The 25,000 optometrists are represented by the American Optometric Association.

An OPTHALMOLOGIST is a medical doctor (M.D.) who has specialized, after medical school, in surgical and medical treatment of eye disease. Ophthalmologists are represented by the American Medical Association.

An OPTICIAN manufactures and sells eyeglasses and contact lenses, requiring a prescription written by an O.D. or an M.D. Only optometrists and ophthalmologists are referred to as "eye doctors."

Complaints about the conduct of an eye doctor should be directed either to the State Board of Optometry or the State Medical Board, depending on the doctor in question. — BEATRICE HALPERIN MICHEL, O.D., ERIC HALPERIN, O.D., FOREST GROVE, ORE.

DEAR DRS. HALPERIN: Thank you for clarifying a somewhat clouded issue.

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage and handling included).

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices retreated today as interest rates rose in the bond market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 7.82 to 2,123.40 in the first half hour of trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 5 to 3 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 311 up, 544 down and 480 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 42.06 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

More than half of that activity was concentrated in a single issue — American Electric Power, unchanged at 28 3/4. Analysts said the heavy trading in the stock stemmed from trading strategies focused on the company's impending dividend.

In the credit markets, prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, fell nearly $5 for each $1,000 in face value.

Texaco, trading ex-dividend, rose 5/8 to 47 1/2, and Texaco Canada added 1/4 to 31 on the American Stock Exchange. On Tuesday Texaco said its 78 percent stake in Texaco Canada was for sale.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost .36 to 153.18. At the Amex, the market value index was down .68 at 305.82.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average edged up 0.71 to 2,131.22.

Advancing issues slightly outnumbered declines on the NYSE, with 726 up, 711 down and 516 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 166.66 million shares, against 138.17 million shares in the previous session.

Anderson
NORFOLK, Va. — A funeral for Mr. Lawrence Anderson Jr. of 2849 Vincent Ave. will be conducted Saturday at 1 p.m. in Trinity Baptist Church in Norfolk by the Rev. Johnny Brown. Burial will be in Woodlawn Memorial Gardens.

Mr. Anderson was a native of the Winterville, N.C., and Ayden, N.C., communities.

Surviving are his wife, Virginia Edwards Anderson of the home; four sons, Brentley Anderson and Lawrence E. Anderson, both of Norfolk, Calvin Anderson of New Haven, Conn., and Melvin Earl Anderson of Bronx, N.Y.; four daughters, Calpurnia A. Croom of Raleigh, N.C., Ansonia A. Harris of Washington, D.C., Brenda McCulloch of West Haven, Conn., and Wanda K. Harris of Bridgeport, Conn.; four sisters, Alice McLawhorn and Elizabeth Walls, both of Winterville, N.C., Mamie Ruth Wells of Greenville, N.C., and Helen Washington of Brooklyn, N.Y.; a brother, Arthur Anderson of Brooklyn, N.Y.; 24 grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Viewing will be at Hale's Funeral Home, 2100 Ballentine Blvd., Norfolk. The family will receive friends at the funeral home Friday at 7 p.m. Messages of sympathy may be sent to 2849 Vincent Ave., Norfolk, Va., 23509.

Brown
LA GRANGE — A funeral for Mrs. Geneva Brown, 78, of 108 E. King St.,

La Grange, will be conducted at 2 p.m. Thursday at St. Luke Free Will Baptist Church by the Rev. Jerry O. Wilson. Burial will be in St. Matthew Cemetery, La Grange.

She is survived by a daughter, Arletha Boyd of Greensboro; two sisters, Sadie Watts of New Haven, Conn., and Peggy Dawson of Hookerton; seven grandchildren, 23 great-grandchildren, and 15 great-great-grandchildren.

Family visitation will be at St. Luke Church from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. today. Arrangements are being handled by Mitchell's Funeral Home, Winterville.

Fulford
WILLIAMSTON — A funeral for Mrs. Peggy Roberson Fulford, 50, will be conducted at 3 p.m. Thursday in the Crossroads Christian Chapel Church by the Revs. Mike Waters and Melvin Rawls. Burial will be in the Robersonville Cemetery.

Mrs. Fulford was a native of Robersonville and a graduate of Robersonville High School. She spent all her married life in the Crossroads community of Martin County and was employed at June Day Manufacturing in Williamston. She was a member of the Crossroads Christian Chapel Church.

She is survived by two sons, Jay Fulford and Billy Ray Fulford, both of the home; her mother, Eunice Roberson of Robersonville, and a brother, C.B. Roberson of Plymouth.

The family will receive friends at the church from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today.

Arrangements are being handled by Wilkerson Funeral Home, Greenville.

Herring
MOUNT OLIVE — Mr. Mack U. Herring, 79, of Mount Olive died Tuesday in Wayne Memorial Hospital in Goldsboro.

His funeral will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the chapel of Tyndall's Funeral Home in Mount Olive by the Rev. A.Z. Gurganus. Burial will be in Maplewood Cemetery in Mount Olive.

Mr. Herring was a retired farmer and a member of the First Baptist Church of Mount Olive.

Obituary

Collins
Mrs. Annie Spear Collins, 83, died Monday at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. She resided at 1008 East Wright Road.

The funeral service will be conducted at 2 P.M. Thursday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by Rev. Glenn Evans. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Collins, a native of Creswell in Washington County, was a graduate of East Carolina University. She taught school at Creswell and Grifton for a number of years before her marriage. After her marriage, she made her home in Greenville. She was a member of the First Christian Church, had served as superintendent of the Juniors Department for many years, and was a member of the Women of the Moose.

Surviving are a son, James E. Collins, Jr. of Greenville; one daughter, Mrs. Alef C. True of Boise, Idaho; one sister, Mrs. Roxie Spear Lay of Norfolk, Virginia; and three nieces and one nephew.

She was preceded in death by her husband, James E. Collins; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Spear, and brothers, Ernest Spear and Ronald L. Spear.

The family suggests that anyone desiring to make a memorial contribution to consider the First Christian Church, 520 E. Greenville Blvd., SE, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 P.M. Wednesday.

IN GOOD ORDER — Chris McCoy, left, president-elect of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, state Rep. Ed Warren, center, and Pitt County farm agent Mich Smith handle some tobacco offered during the opening sale of the Greenville Tobacco Market held at Farmers Warehouse this morning. mony prior to the beginning 8:30 a.m. sale at Farmers.

Whitford Gaskins, a Craven County man whose family switched its farming to grain crops but kept its tobacco allotment during the past several years, has attended tobacco auctions in Greenville for most of the past 60 years, he said. Gaskins seemed pleased that tobacco is selling well again and said he would like nothing better than for his son to be able to get back into growing it.

Gaskins recalled times when he was a boy and would leave home with his father two days ahead of time to make opening day in Greenville. He said they would sleep in bunks provided by the warehouse and stable their mules in excavated areas under some of the warehouses.

He said he's seen prices go to all extremes — from $1 a pound in 1919 to less than 10 cents a pound during the Depression years. "Today more people are living better and making more money than at any time I've ever seen," he said. "And I think many of them appreciate it less than ever."

Anna Gaylor attended opening day this morning to show her sons, Walt, Matt and Russ, what it's like. She never missed an opening day when she was a child, she said, on the Eastern Belt market or on others that her father worked.

She remembers that she and her sister, Margaret Greer, also of Greenville, would stand on piles of tobacco and make it clear to the owners of those piles that their leaf could be sold only if the owner would buy each of them a soft drink. The owners good-naturedly agreed, using soft drink tokens given them by the warehouse, local banks and others having an interest in the tobacco economy of the area.

Mitch Smith, Pitt County extension director, said he expects the Eastern Belt which opened today to be the focal point for flue-cured tobacco buying this season. He said he saw the quality of the primings sold this morning as excellent — well-grown and well-cured.

Dignitaries from the state level were expected at various warehouses throughout Greenville during the day.

Reagan

Reagan said that he believes the American people are entitled to know about a candidate's medical history.

Republican Vice President George Bush, like Dukakis, has not released full medical records during the presidential campaign.

Rumors that a news organization was about to publish a story on the subject of possible treatment of Dukakis circulated last week as he campaigned through several states.

When asked by reporters at that time, campaign press secretary Dayton Duncan denied that Dukakis had ever undergone psychiatric treatment.

"He hasn't been treated for any mental illness or mental depression of any kind," Duncan said. Asked if that meant Dukakis had never seen a psychiatrist for treatment, Duncan said, "Yes." Asked if that also precluded any form of psychological therapy or counseling, Duncan said, "Yes."

Talk of such treatment first circulated at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta two weeks ago after handbills were slipped under reporters' hotel room doors. They were signed, "National Democratic Policy Committee," a political arm of extremist Lyndon LaRouche.

In Boston, Dukakis' deputy Statehouse press secretary, Stephen Crawford, said, "We have no comment."

Bed-Wetting Breakthrough

Worried about when your child will stop bed-wetting? We believe bedwetters are deep sleepers and find the following remedies usually do not work: restricting fluids, using drugs, offering rewards, getting them up or using punishment. Bedwetting causes loss of self esteem and embarrassment about spending the night with friends for fear of wetting the bed. Nightly, 10-15 million children and adults suffer from enuresis (bed-wetting). 2% of all bedwetters have a physical disorder. So, if you have not already done so, consult your doctor. It is hereditary, psychologically damaging, and can be treated after age four. Most often parents are told, "Don't worry, your child will outgrow it." Now this problem can be cured in a few weeks, so don't delay help for many harmful years. Bedwetting is costly to maintain. Wet-NO-More® can save families $5-$10 a week on diapers, soap, and hot water for laundry and baths. Wet-NO-More® is FDA registered and your family's success is money-back guaranteed. States Join Forces In NFL Quest

By RICK SCOPPE
AP Sports Writer

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — The governors of South Carolina and North Carolina teamed up Tuesday to announce the formation of a committee designed to make sure the NFL has Carolina on its mind come expansion time.

South Carolina Gov. Carroll Campbell and North Carolina Gov. Jim Martin said the 33-member committee will carry the facts and figures of "the state of Carolina" to the NFL in the Carolinas' bid for a professional football franchise.

"We need to understand the significance of this undertaking," Martin said. "First of all, it's NFL football, the big league, our own team."

"Yet, the importance of what we are doing goes far beyond the great game of football — it is one of the most important economic development challenges ever pursued in the Carolinas." Martin, Campbell and a host of other dignitaries from across the two states attended the afternoon news conference at Carowinds Theme Park, which is bisected by the South Carolina-North Carolina state line.

Campbell told an overflow crowd of reporters and others the committee would spearhead a "low-keyed, business-like" attempt to persuade the NFL to place a franchise in the Carolinas.

But neither Campbell nor Martin would speculate where a franchise would be placed. But the most talked about and most logical place for it would be in the Charlotte, N.C., area. Charlotte is by far the largest city in the two states and was recently granted an NBA franchise.

Jerry Richardson, a Spartanburg businessman and a former NFL player with the Baltimore Colts, and George Shinn, owner of the expansion Charlotte Hornets of the NBA, have expressed interest in bringing pro football to Charlotte.

But Campbell said the committee is not seeking "a specific location ... a specific franchise. It is to get the NFL commitment to come to Carolina. That is the end of our involvement."

Campbell, Martin and committee co-chairman Henry Faison, president of Faison Associates of Charlotte, said questions about where an NFL team would play would be left up to whomever was given the franchise.

"We'll have a stadium in place by the time the team is ready to play, or shortly thereafter," Faison said. "We don't consider that a factor."

What is a factor, Campbell said, is the two states believe together they have a better chance of landing an NFL team.

"The key point I want to emphasize here is that this is a team effort — we will speak as one and act as one," Campbell said. "Jim and I have appointed a cream of the crop committee ... to take our story to the National Football League and lay the facts on the table. We are convinced the facts make a compelling case for Carolina."

The facts cited by Campbell and Martin showed the Carolinas are the fourth largest television market in the country and that nearly 2.4 million fans attended college football games each year.

But the figures cited by the governors compared South Carolina and North Carolina with, for the most part, single, large metropolitan cities. But Campbell said that the market, not a single large city, is what can attract the NFL to the Carolinas.

"We aren't an area where we have a dominant city," Campbell said. "We are a drawing together of communities of middle-size cities where the entertainment value of something like this is far greater than it would be in a big city because the competition for entertainment is less."

"The opportunity for participation from afar is greater. The commuting time here in our area, in this market, is far less than it is internally inside some big cities," he said. "People have to look at this to understand what we really have to sell."

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle has said the league expects to add two teams two years after a collective bargaining agreement is reached with the players; league spokesman Joe Browne said.

The NFL now has 28 teams. The league has not reached a collective bargaining agreement with the players, and no negotiations are under way now, Browne said Tuesday during a telephone interview.

Among other cities expected to seek an NFL franchise are Baltimore, St. Louis, Oakland, Calif., Memphis, Tenn., Jacksonville, Fla., Birmingham, Ala., and San Antonio, Texas.

Those on the Carolina committee NFL include:

— Leroy Walker, ex-chancellor at North Carolina Central University, the 1976 Olympic track coach and a member of the U.S. Olympic Hall of Fame.

— Winston-Salem State football coach Clarence "Big House" Gaines.

— Former U.S. Sen. James T. Broyhill, R-N.C.

— Walker Y. Elisha, chairman of Springs Industries, Inc. in Fort Mill.

— Sherwood Smith, chairman and president of Carolina Power & Light Co.

— Tom E. Smith, president of Food Lion.

— Richard E. Greer, chairman of the South Carolina State Development Board.

"We are extremely pleased that the governors of the Carolinas, and some of the two states' most prominent businessmen and women and civic leaders, are taking an active role in attracting the NFL to this region," Richardson said later in a statement.

King Is Cut By Hornets

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The Charlotte Hornets' director of player personnel has cut Duke's Billy King, Georgetown's Billy Martin, Loyola-Chicago's Andre Moore and Oklahoma State's Leroy Combs, but he says he's intrigued by North Carolina's Ranzino Smith.

Gene Littles says Smith, a guard who lost his starting spot with the Tar Heels to Kevin Madden last season, could make an NBA roster as a backup guard. But the Hornets' abundance of guards means that Charlotte might not be the best place for Smith look for a job.

Littles said more likely Hornets prospects could be Tim Kempton and Scott Wilke, both inside players.

By cutting four more players Tuesday, Littles pared the Hornets' free-agent camp to 15 unsigned players plus several expansion and collegiate draftees.

"We have what, about 23 guys here?" Littles asked. "Probably 18 aren't NBA players."

Kempton, who played for Notre Dame, lasted 66 games with the Los Angeles Clippers two seasons ago. So far, he's been able to apply the kind of muscle the Hornets need inside, Littles said. Littles (See Hornets, B-2)

Ex-ECU Gridder Uses Second Opportunity

2nd Time Success Story

Nate Talbert, who starred at football at ECU as Nate Wigfall, flunked out in 1981. Now 31, he has re-entered ECU and is an A student.

ECU News Bureau

Eight years ago, Nate Wigfall was a bitterly disappointed 285-pound college football player at East Carolina whose dream of a pro career crashed in the classroom.

Wigfall, whose legal last name is now Talbert because of an adoption action, had only one goal back then — to play for the pros.

But after Pirate coach Pat Dye moved on to Wyoming in 1980, a new coach followed to rebuild the football fortunes at ECU. Because of academic difficulties, Talbert was not a part of it. He sat on the bench during a losing season in which he struggled with his classes and his collegiate career began to wash away in a sea of F's.

Talbert's main downfall was a reading impairment called dyslexia, which was diagnosed that same year, 1980. He took a remedial reading course but it was too late. There was no additional program in place — a program that now includes counseling, tutoring, having note-takers and special permission to take oral instead of written examinations.

There is such a program now, but not then.

Talbert had four years of college to make the pros. No matter what courses he took, how many or how non-academic they were — he had to maintain scholastic eligibility and stay in school. It didn't matter (to the pros) if you didn't graduate, if you didn't earn a degree. And Talbert didn't. He was declared academically ineligible in 1981 and dropped out of school. The dream of making the pros, as several teammates did, ended.

"I was very bitter about it," said Talbert, now 31, married and the father of two robust sons — and wiser.

He still carries some bitterness and the disappointment still hurts. But Nate Talbert is back in school at ECU and achieving academic honors. In fact, until he made his first B last spring he had a string of straight A's in 12 tough academic courses and added two more A's in sociology and business writing in summer school.

The F that ended his eligibility eight years ago was in physics. "If I could take it now, I'd ace that course," he says confidently.

"You can say that my attitude has definitely changed," Talbert said. "It used not to matter. I thought I could get by, but now I know that academics is important."

"My sons will know that academics is important. I hope that they will be athletes but know that academics is a part of it. You've got to have academics."

Talbert's dyslexia was a major stumbling block during his first stay at ECU.

"I knew that I had a deficiency," he said. "And I don't think that ECU used me. If anybody used me, it was the system."

"Some people got the breaks. I just didn't get the same breaks."

ASU, Marshall Must Regroup To Retain Control Of League

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Appalachian State, the defending regular-season champion in the Southern Conference, will have to rebound from losing 15 starters and 21 seniors from last season's 11-3 team, coach Sparky Woods says.

"We have a talented team returning, but it's a young team," coach Sparky Woods said Tuesday at the annual Southern Conference Rouser.

"We hope our program is now at the point where we'll always be in the middle of the pack or higher," Woods said.

Marshall's George Chaump was among the most optimistic coaches, with 14 starters from a team that made it to the Division I-AA championship game last season.

Chaump noted that standout receivers Sean Doctor and Mike Barber were among those returning. But he said the Thundering Herd wasn't quite at the strength of the team that lost to Northeast Louisiana 43-42.

"We have 23 seniors and 16 or 17 of them will be starting," Chaump said. "But I'd rather we lost 10 starters on offense and have Tony Petersen back."

Petersen was a record-setting quarterback for the Herd last season and the South Carolina athlete of the year. Marshall will have a capable replacement, however, if John Gregory is healthy. He actually started ahead of Petersen in 1986 before injuring a knee.

Like all of the other coaches, Tennessee-Chattanooga's Buddy Nix said injuries would be a key to the Mocs' fortunes.

"If we make it through the first two or three games without a lot of injuries, I think we can be competitive in the conference," he said. "We don't have to go to East Tennessee this year (to play on the hard artificial turf), so maybe we won't get as many hurt."

Nix said his son, Stan, the quarterback, has been going through daily exercises since spring to try to strengthen his throwing shoulder, which was showing signs of "wear and tear from throwing too much."

Furman coach Jimmy Satterfield said the Paladins are facing "the biggest challenge since I've been at Furman (15 years)."

"We lost our most seniors ever, which was about half the players on the varsity," he said. "We usually don't use freshmen at Furman, but that might be different this year."

Quarterbacking could also be the key at Western Carolina.

After losing at Clemson and South Carolina, junior Todd Cottrell, the son of former Western Carolina basketball coach Steve Cottrell, led the Catamounts to three impressive victories before being lost for the season with a fractured ankle. WCU won only four games last season.

"I feel good about our quarterbacks," said WCU coach Bob Waters.

VMI coach Eddie Williamson sounded optimistic about his squad.

"Mark Stock (who set a Division I-AA record by averaging 24.96 yards a reception) is one of the finest total players I've ever seen anywhere," he said. "He's a receiver, he returns kicks, he punts and if (quarterback) Dave Brown fell of a cliff, we'd probably put Stock at quarterback."

Citadel coach Charlie Taaffe was also optimistic after returning 17 starters.

Quarterback Tommy Burriss should also be more comfortable running Taaffe's wishbone offense after a year's experience.

East Tennessee's Don Riley, the league's only new coach, said the Bucs are lacking a proven punter and place-kicker, they're short in numbers on the offensive and defensive line, and the most experienced quarterback has a total of six varsity snaps under his belt.

"We have some key players, but not a lot of them," Riley said. "We'll have a new offense, new defense and new opponents."

Among the bright spots for ETSU are the linebackers, the defensive backfield and the running backs, Riley said.

UNC's Brown Is Looking For A Smooth Transition

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

When Mack Brown took over the University of North Carolina head football coaching post in December, he knew the transition period between coaching staffs would have a lot to do with the Tar Heels' 1988 fortunes.

"That's something that is very very difficult," Brown said as he addressed the media at the ACC Summer Football Kickoff Monday in Foxfire Village. "Anytime you have a change and you've got guys who were recruited and coached by coach (Dick) Crum for four or five years and they have a new staff come in, it breaks down the security spot that guys have. (The players want to know) what offense and defense are you going to run in."

Brown replaced a coach who had put together a successful 10-year tenure in Chapel Hill that had faltered in recent years. Crum's departure was a highly-sensationalized event for a program that had not endured much controversy before.

"We felt like the transition period was the best I've ever been around and most of our assistant coaches felt that (too), as far as the communication lines being open between a football team and the assistant coaches," Brown said.

"It's obviously very difficult to build up a trust factor immediately because when you come in you have to recruit first. Second thing you've got to do is get a plan for spring practice, so it's a month or so before you get to know your football players. Then you get to know them a little bit in the spring and then you go back out recruiting."

Brown has experience in making moves. He began his head coaching career in 1983 at Appalachian State where he posted a 6-5 mark. But Brown stayed only one year. He joined the Oklahoma program as offensive coordinator the following season. From there he went on to the head coaching position at Tulane University in 1984.

Brown faces a number of challenges in his initial season in Chapel Hill. Two of his biggest concerns are an unsettled quarterback situation and a tough early-season schedule that includes South Carolina, Oklahoma and Auburn.

"The concerns we've got are obvious," Brown said. "When you are in a program three or four years, you know who your starting quarterback is going to be. You understand what he can do best because you've had him in games before 75,000 people. You understand how your coaches are going to respond."

"Until you can know what your quarterback can do, whether it's Jonathan Hall or Deems May, obviously you don't know what you can do offensively. We go to South Carolina Sept. 3 and there will be 75,000 people there. People are screaming and we're going to have a quarterback on the field that didn't dress out last year. That's going to be scary for me but it's going to be scarier for him."

Becker Struggles To Three-Set Win

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A four-week layoff, a post-Wimbledon let-down and a new surface spelled trouble for top seed Boris Becker at the U.S. Hardcourt championships.

Becker's groundstrokes were unsteady and he lacked concentration in Tuesday night's 6-3, 6-7 (7-4), 6-2 victory over Todd Nelson. It was the West German's first tournament match since losing in the Wimbledon finals July 4 and his first on a hard surface in six months.

"The ball is bouncing much higher than on anything else," Becker said of the newly laid Deco Turf II at the Indianapolis Sports Center. "It's not so easy playing six months on clay and on grass and then you come to a hardcourt (tournament). It's hard to get a rhythm."

The world's No. 5 player broke Nelson, ranked 84th, three times — the last on a forehand passing shot at match point. The first was in the opening set and the second in the sixth game of the final set when Nelson's backhand volley landed 5 feet beyond the baseline.

Nelson had just one break point against the two-time Wimbledon champion.

"I thought it was just a matter of time when I'm going to break him," Becker said. "I won my service games easy and he had to struggle."

Three of the tournament's top seeds were upset Tuesday. Mark Dickson beat No. 4 Tim Mayotte, 7-6 (7-2), 6-3; John Ross defeated No. 7 John Fitzgerald of Australia, 6-3, 7-5; and Australia's Simon Youl beat 12th seed Jim Grabb, 4-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Tonight, No. 2 seed Jimmy Connors will play Pieter Aldrich and No. 5 John McEnroe plays Dan Cassidy.

Since losing to Stefan Edberg at Wimbledon, Becker had only played for West Germany in the Davis Cup semifinals.

Becker broke Nelson in the fourth game when the San Diego right-hander hit three straight backhand volleys into the net.

In the second set, Becker had three break points in the ninth game, but couldn't convert any of them. He fell behind 5-0 in the tiebreaker and double-faulted on Nelson's second set point.

"It seemed like I didn't want to finish it in the second set when I had the chance to do so," Becker said.

"I never got him down," Nelson said. "When you play a good player you have to get them down or they keep walking around thinking they can win."

said Kempton has a good chance of making the Hornets' roster in the fall.

Wilke, a 6-10 player from Colorado, averaged 5.4 rebounds and 12.4 points for the Buffaloes last season but was not drafted.

"I know he's a little slow," Little said of Wilke. "But he shoots great. He really hits that shot."

Wilke demonstrated that shooting touch Tuesday morning, hitting two outside jumpers to win a scrimmage game.

Meanwhile, Hornets coach Dick Harter said these practices don't make many strong impressions on his appraisals, and that the games Thursday through Saturday in Charlotte and Monday through Wednesday in Miami will bear more weight in his mind.

Harter wants no more than 17 or 18 players remaining when the rookie-league games start Thursday night.

He says any more than that would be counterproductive to giving the survivors a good look.

"You can be a heck of a basketball player," Harter said, "and still not play in this league."

Ralph Lewis, one of the players acquired through the expansion draft, has signed a contract with the Hornets believed to be for one season.

Earlier reports indicated he agreed to the one-year pact for $175,000. The Charlotte Observer reported, Lewis, a guard, played last season with the Detroit Pistons, averaging 1.7 points in 50 games. He was one of three players the Hornets drafted whose contracts had expired and were free to sign with any team if the Hornets did not exercise their option.

"Ralph Lewis could very well be one of the better-kept secrets of players available in the expansion draft," said Hornets vice president Carl Scheer.

Lewis, 6-6 and 200, practiced with the free agents Tuesday at the Hornets tryout camp.

Dell Curry, the Hornets' top selection in the expansion draft, shot zero for seven in a Monday night scrimmage. But Curry came back strong Tuesday morning, hitting two long jump shots against former Duke defensive specialist Billy King.

Curry said he is participating in the camp to get a feel for what the Hornets coaches want and to work on conditioning.

Curry said his initial concern over the Hornets drafting Rex Chapman, another scoring guard, has abated.

"They think we can play together," with Chapman at the point, Curry said. "I do, too."

Scheer said the Hornets were "absolutely not" shopping Curry around the league to make a trade. However, Scheer said if a team called looking to acquire Curry, he would listen.

Diver Charged
Olympic silver medal winner Bruce Kimball leaves Hillsborough County Jail after posting bail Tuesday. Kimball was charged with two counts of vehicular homicide. (AP Laserphoto)

Kimball Will Be Allowed To Compete

BRANDON, Fla. (AP) — Diver Bruce Kimball, an Olympic silver medalist charged with two counts of vehicular homicide, won't be barred from this month's Olympic Trials, the head of the sport's governing body says.

Kimball, 25, was released on $10,000 bond Tuesday about 12 hours after a car he was driving hit three other vehicles and then plowed into a group of teen-agers standing on a dead-end road in eastern Hillsborough County. Two were killed and six injured.

Kimball returned to the home where his family is spending the summer, and both he and his father declined to comment.

"I really don't want to talk about it," said Kimball's father, long-time University of Michigan diving coach Dick Kimball, a former U.S. Olympic coach who operates a diving camp in Brandon each summer.

While it isn't known if the former University of Michigan diver still plans to compete in the Olympic Trials Aug. 17-21 in Indianapolis, a statement released by U.S. Diving said there is nothing in the organization's rules to forbid Kimball from trying to earn a spot on the team.

Kimball, who finished second in platform diving at the 1984 Los Angeles Games, recovered from injuries sustained in an automobile crash in 1981 to develop into one of the nation's top performers in his event.

Hudson Defeats Tar Heel All-Stars, 4-0

FORT BRAGG — Hudson, behind a strong pitching performance from Kelly Cooke, defeated the Tar Heel All-Stars 4-0 in the North Carolina Little League Baseball Tournament Tuesday.

Cooke gave up only three hits and struck out 12 for Hudson. Greenville also got a strong pitching performance from its starter as Craig Brannon went the distance on the mound, giving up only three hits and no earned runs while striking out eight batters.

Hudson scored its first run of the game in the second inning after a hit and a pair of Greenville errors. Hudson went on to add two more unearned runs in the fifth and another in the sixth to cap off the scoring in the game.

The Tar Heel squad will return to action today in the double-elimination tournament with a losers' bracket matchup against the King All-Stars set for 4 p.m.

Montana, Young To Battle For Position

ROCKLIN, Calif. (AP) — Put Joe Montana and Steve Young together and what do you get?
No, it isn't Mighty Joe Young, though they both can make monkeys out of the defense with their quick moves and strong arms.
What you get is a first-rate battle, set in lung-scalding desert heat, between two of the NFL's most exciting quarterbacks for the starting job with the San Francisco 49ers.
And on the sidelines, spurring both combatants on with the grim delight of a Roman noble trying to pick his best gladiator, is Coach Bill Walsh.
So far the job still appears to belong to Montana, who has started for the 49ers since 1981 and has won two Super Bowls. But Walsh is leaving enough doubt to keep the competition lively.

"Most likely Joe will start," the regular season opener Sept. 4 at New Orleans, Walsh said Tuesday. "But it's open competition."
That is not exactly the kind of ringing endorsement that all-Pro Montana would like or perhaps should expect after winning his first NFL passing title last year and leading the 49ers to the league's best record in the regular season, 13-2.
Montana shrugs off the competition, trade rumors and Walsh's modest support, saying he's always had to fight for a job. He's just never had to fight this hard.

Young, who led the 49ers to three touchdowns in last Sunday's loss to Miami in London's Wembley Stadium, also plays down the duel with Montana. But there is no doubt, as he works out vigorously in practice and talks about his progress, that he expects to move into the top spot one day soon.
"There will be a controversy related to the quarterbacks this year," Walsh acknowledged. "There was last season and going into this year, and it will continue."
Walsh says he looks on it as a personal challenge in which he has to "orchestrate" competition between two excellent quarterbacks for the first time in his 10 years with the 49ers.

"We've avoided this in the past as well as we could and very effectively developed a single quarterback that became a premier quarterback," he said. "This is the first year where there's something very evident and direct and highly competitive."
Walsh says he would have to be "awfully dogmatic and bullheaded" if he were to consider only Montana as the starting quarterback.
"That would make my life easier and simpler," he says. "It wouldn't necessarily be the best 11 men."

This is the way he sizes up is two scrambling quarterbacks, the right-handed, 32-year-old Montana and the left-handed, 26-year-old Young.
"It would be very difficult to dislodge Joe. He's just completed his greatest season, he's right at the top of his game and he has total command of our system."
"Steve, in turn, is a brilliant athlete who has a dimension that really is unique to him in this game. He's an explosive runner, very active, very spontaneous. He's a very good passer. He has shown great instincts and the ability to rally a team and move the ball."
On the downside for Montana are age, questions about the extended effects of back surgery in 1986 and failure to carry the team through the playoffs the last three years.

For Young, the problems are related more to lack of experience, something he may get only if he becomes No. 1.
"With Steve, we have to reduce the amount of instinctive play to mold that into his overall play," Walsh said, adding that Young needs more consistency and discipline.
"As brilliant as Steve is, we still have some progress to make before he will rival Joe as a starter," Walsh continued. "Now, will he be able to make that progress? Most likely he will. He just needs a lot of repetitions in practice to develop the sequence of reading receivers and the knowledge of exactly where they'll be when he turns his head."
So it would seem Joe is still No. 1 on the 49ers, and Young is still waiting. How long that will last, no one knows.
"Steve knows that at some point, he will inherit that job or take that job competitively," Walsh said. "I wouldn't want to go year after year with a great potential quarterback not having the opportunity to play."

Steinbrenner Hopes To Preserve Raceway

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, calling Roosevelt Raceway "a jewel in the crown of harness racing," said he hopes he can preserve the landmark track.
"I have a serious interest in buying the track to operate as a track," Steinbrenner said after a two-hour walking tour of the facility on Tuesday. "It's certainly a viable plant. I would hate to see it not used for racing."
He declined to comment specifically on his perception of the condition of the barns, tracks, paddock and grandstand. But it is believed that a considerable amount of money, probably millions of dollars, would be needed to put Roosevelt, once the nation's premiere harness track, back into shape.
Steinbrenner said he plans to discuss his impressions of the track with his associates to determine what, if anything, he will do.

"It is all very preliminary at this point," Steinbrenner said.
Steinbrenner said he was approached by some people in the standardbred industry who asked him to help save the 48-year-old track, which closed last month after years of financial troubles.
"It's considered a little bit of Americana," Steinbrenner said during a news conference after meeting briefly with Hempstead Town Presiding Supervisor Joseph Mondello, who is trying to save the track.
Mondello said they welcome discussions with Steinbrenner's group and "we are grateful for his interest."
Steinbrenner denied that he is using the publicity surrounding his possible purchase of the track to tweak the nose of the City of New York during Yankee Stadium lease negotiations.

"The only problem with the Bronx is the parking problem," Steinbrenner said.
Steinbrenner didn't name his business associates, saying only they were experienced at operating race tracks.
Steinbrenner is responsible for building Tampa Bay Downs in Florida into a successful thoroughbred racetrack in less than five years. He sold the track in 1986.

His family now heads the consortium which owns and operates Balmoral, a harness and thoroughbred track outside of Chicago.
They purchased the track in 1987 and immediately began renovations, including remodeling the clubhouse and paddocks and upgrading the track.
"You have to have a good backstretch, barns etc., to attract good horses and good horsemen; then you attract more people and good bettors," he said.

Steinbrenner said he and his partners have introduced some baseball philosophy in making the tracks profitable and would probably use some of the same techniques at Roosevelt.
"Putting fannies in the seats is what the game is all about," he said.
Steinbrenner put Tampa Downs into the black in part by attracting corporations to sponsor stakes events.
Steinbrenner is an amateur harness driver.

Karolyi Is Critical Of USA Gymnastics

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — International gymnastics guru Bela Karolyi says America's gymnastics community is self-destructing on the eve of the 1988 Summer Olympics.
Karolyi, who coaches some of America's top women gymnasts, said the controversy and in-house fighting that have plagued the United States Gymnastics Federation in recent months will take their toll when the Americans arrive in Seoul next month.
"We are looking like dirty idiots," Karolyi told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from his home in Houston. "Personally I just can't understand it. I have never seen such miserable procedures."
Karolyi, who coached Mary Lou Retton to the all-around gold medal in the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, has another strong group of Olympic contenders with 15-year-old national champion Phoebe Mills, 14-year-old Chelle Stack and 16-year-old Kristie Phillips, who is trying to regain the form that two years ago prompted comparisons with Retton.
Five of the top 10 finishers at last month's U.S. Championships in Houston are Karolyi-trained gymnasts and most of the six women to be chosen this week for the American team likely will come from Karolyi's camp.
While the rest of the Olympic hopefuls arrived in Salt Lake City well in advance of the start of the women's competition Thursday night, Karolyi and his girls remained in Houston. The decision, said Karolyi, was strictly technical.
"Because of the altitude, getting the girls there three or four days is worse than just going straight into competition," said Karolyi. "It was a technical decision."
But the never shy Karolyi didn't hesitate to express his views on the cloud of controversy hanging over the trials this week.
Embroided in a dispute with the USGF, Karolyi resigned as the American delegation leader to Korea, and has vowed not to attend the Summer Games, even if the U.S. team is dominated by his proteges.
"The people in charge right now are ego-oriented," Karolyi said, "and they would be capable of hurting my athletes if I was to press my hand."
But Karolyi considers his dispute with the federation the least of his troubles right now. He said allegations of illegal and unethical financial transactions by the federation, as well as former women's team coach Greg Marsden's admission that he had conspired with a Romanian coach to fix scores at the World Championships last year at Rotterdam, would end up hurting the American team in Seoul.
"The kids have sacrificed everything for one goal — to someday be an Olympian. And now they have to go and represent a country accused of lying, cheating and being crooked," Karolyi said.

Still, for the first time since his announcement that he would not go to Korea, Karolyi appears to be softening his stand. Asked what might influence him to change his mind, Karolyi answered, "If I realized the people needed me and wanted me. I know my personal athletes would need me."
Competition to determine the six-man American team opens tonight with compulsories in the six events.
Veteran Dan Hayden, the national champion at Houston, is the only clear-cut favorite for the team that is rebuilding from its 1984 gold medal effort in Los Angeles.

At Jacksonville, N.C., Senior High School, Talbert won a record two state championships in wrestling and shot put and discus in 1977. He was a four-sport athlete and in 1979 and 1982 was the open runner-up in the state's boxing championships.
With a four-year football scholarship at East Carolina, he figured that his athletic ability would overcome any academic deficiency.
Academics weren't all that important, he said. "I knew I had a deficiency but I didn't know what it was, nor what to do about it." He had a C average in high school and was heavily recruited for the colleges.
"I knew that I was capable of playing professional football. I came to East Carolina to stay eligible and have a pro career. That's all, and getting a degree didn't matter."
After leaving school, Talbert met and married the former Lucy Barreiro, a registered nurse. For a couple of years he operated a carpet cleaning business and also dropped by Memorial Gymnasium at ECU to play racquet ball and pickup basketball.
Math professor John Daniels, biology professor Bob Christian and other friends talked to Talbert about his problem and suggested that, with help, he might resume his studies. They sent him to C.C. Rowe, the university's director of handicapped student programs. Rowe gave him counseling and advice and helped obtain a vocational rehabilitation scholarship. His wife, Lucy, encouraged him.

Talbert re-enrolled. He started by taking three reading courses simultaneously and did well.
Having met the challenge of the reading courses, Talbert tackled other serious academic subjects — special education, adolescent psychology and sociology.
"I sit on the front row and I make eye contact with the instructors," he said. "I stay alert and know what's going on. I pay attention."
"The difference now is, I want to be here."
Christian says Talbert's academic accomplishments are all the more remarkable because of his dyslexia which means that he must memorize much of the lecture information instead of taking notes.
In two more years, Talbert will have earned a BS degree in therapeutic recreation through the leisure systems studies program in the Department of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Safety (HPERS).

Downeast Tennis League Closes Out Season

The Downeast Junior Summer Tennis League completed its season Monday with a tournament held at the River Birch Tennis Center. The tournament completed the four-team league's six-week schedule. Goldsboro won the tournament this year with a total of 26 points. Greenville, the defending champion, and Kinston, the regular season champion, tied for the second position with 23 points. Washington finished fourth with nine points. Each team fielded 12 players in three different age groups. The league, for both boys and girls, is sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department.

High School Coaches Granted Free Tickets

East Carolina University has implemented a new policy which will allow high school football coaches to attend all ECU home football games this year free of charge. Any coach with a valid pass can reserve a ticket by calling the ECU Ticket Office no later than Thursday of game week. There will be 200 complimentary tickets available to each of the six ECU games in Ficklen Stadium this season. This year's policy was revised from past years when coaches were granted complimentary passes only to selected Pirate home games.

Rollins Signs 2-Year Deal With Cavs

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers on Tuesday signed former Atlanta Hawks center Tree Rollins to a two-year contract estimated to be worth at least $1.6 million. The 7-foot-1 Rollins averaged seven points and 7.4 rebounds per game in 11 seasons with the Hawks, and his 2,283 career blocked shots rank him second in NBA history behind Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 3,104. Rollins, 33, was an unrestricted free agent this year because he had more than seven years' NBA experience, so the Cavaliers will not have to compensate the Hawks.

In Cleveland, Rollins and second-year pro Chris Dudley will back up third-year starting center Brad Daugherty. "We all know Tree is not known for his offensive prowess, which says a lot," said Wayne Embry, Cavaliers' general manager. "He's willing to sacrifice himself to help the team with his defense and his rebounding." Rollins' averages of 4.4 points and six rebounds per game last season both marked career lows for him, but he still averaged 1.7 blocked shots per game.

Reds Sign Griffey As A Free Agent

CINCINNATI (AP) — Outfielder Ken Griffey, 38, a former member of Cincinnati's "Big Red Machine" of the 1970s, has been signed by the Reds as a free agent, the club announced Tuesday. Griffey, who was released by the Atlanta Braves, was to report to the Reds at Los Angeles on Tuesday. Griffey, in his 16th major league season, has a lifetime batting average of .298, and was expected to be used in pinch-hitting roles. The Reds, meanwhile, have released outfielder Eddie Milner outright. They sent rookie pitcher Jack Armstrong down to Nashville until Aug. 12 when he was scheduled to return to Cincinnati. The Reds said Armstrong was sent to Nashville to keep busy because of a series of off-days for Cincinnati. He had not been scheduled to pitch for the Reds until Aug. 12. Griffey began his career with the Reds and played here from 1973 until 1981, hitting .307. He was traded to the New York Yankees in December 1981 where he played through the 1986 season, when he was traded to Atlanta. Griffey was hitting .249 with two homers and 19 RBI this season for the Braves. He also was 2-for-16 as a pinch hitter with no runs batted in. He has a lifetime pinch-hit record of .323, 50-for-155. In 1987, Griffey led National League with a .611 average for pinch hits, 11-for-18 with 8 RBI. The Reds said Griffey, who wore number 30 in Cincinnati, will now wear 25. Lloyd McClendon wears 30 now.

High Point Gearing Up For Tourney

HIGH POINT (AP) — As LPGA players trickle into High Point, workers for the Planters Pat Bradley International tournament are making last-minute adjustments on the Willow Creek Golf Course. This year's $400,000 event, set to begin with Thursday, will bring a new era of women's professional golf to the Willow Creek course. Held as the Henredon Classic since 1981, the inaugural Planters Pat Bradley tournament will cut the field by half each day and could award the eventual winner up to $85,500 — a record sum on the LPGA Tour. "I think the players are so excited about the tournament they can't see straight," said John Hamrick, a past tournament chairman. "The response to this event has been absolutely mind-boggling." This year's tournament had response from 165 players who wanted to compete. Only 142 slots were available for pros, with two positions open to qualifying amateurs. Along with the new sponsor change came other transitions, Hamrick said. ESPN will televise the event for all four rounds. That brought about a need to switch the front nine holes with the back nine holes. "The final five holes are now pretty compact, instead of stretching across Abbott's Creek Road," Hamrick said. "Now our finishing hole, which used to be No. 9, will be a lot quieter. I think it's also a greater spectators' hole." The new No. 18 has been installed with bleachers around the hole. Skyboxes also will be in place by the first round for corporate sponsors. Beer will be sold on the course this year. Scrip tickets will be used for all concessions. As with past LPGA tournaments here, Big Brothers-Big Sisters of High Point, Hospice of the Piedmont and Boy Scouts will be the major benefactors of the charity event.

Leonard On Verge Of Another Comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boxing great Sugar Ray Leonard appears on the verge of another comeback, having scheduled a press appearance with light heavyweight champion Don Lalonde. Though a publicist for the former World Boxing Council middleweight champion refused Tuesday to confirm that Leonard wants to fight again, the 32-year-old boxer has scheduled a news conference Thursday with Don Lalonde, a Canadian who boasts a 31-2 career record. "Basically, this is the time Sugar Ray is going to take all questions on the retirement issue," said Fred Sternburg, a spokesman for Charles Brotman and Associates, a public relations firm that handles promotional work for Leonard. "Sugar Ray just wants to take questions, each and every one." Sternburg refused to elaborate, and did not comment on why Lalonde also will appear at the press conference. Efforts to reach Leonard were unsuccessful. Leonard, who has a 34-1 professional record, has retired four times. His first exit from the ring came after winning a gold medal at the 1976 Olympics, his second after successful eye surgery in 1982, and his third after defeating Kevin Howard in a highly publicized "comeback" fight in 1984. Leonard's last departure came in 1987, just after his stunning upset of Marvelous Marvin Hagler to claim the WBC middleweight title. Leonard has also held world titles in the welterweight, super welterweight, and junior middleweight classes. No one has ever won five different titles. Lalonde and Leonard would likely square off in the newly created 168-pound super middleweight division. Lalonde currently holds the WBC light heavyweight title.

Top U.S. Track Stars Look To Stay In Shape

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — American track stars, fresh from the Olympic trials now face the task of staying in form before peaking again in September at Seoul. Many of the U.S. Olympic qualifiers are tuning up in a number of European cities in the second half of the track and field season on the continent. Tuesday's stop in Monaco was the first, with meets set for places like Budapest, Hungary; Zurich, Switzerland; and Cologne, West Germany. The Americans showed they were ready for the circuit, taking 10 of 18 events in the second edition of the Herculis track meet. Other Olympians who won were Larry Myricks in the long jump at 27 feet, 10 3/4 inches; Sydney Maree in the 3,000 meters in 7 minutes 42.94 seconds; Kory Tarpenning in the pole vault, 18-4 1/2; Hollis Conway in the high jump, 7-5; and Arthur Blake in the 110 hurdles, 13.51. A non-Olympian, Danny Harris, won the 400-meter hurdles in 48.57. He didn't make the U.S. team for Seoul when he came in fifth in the Olympic Trials two weeks ago in Indianapolis.

NFL Coaches Playing It Safe

By The Associated Press
Playing it safe is the order of the day at NFL training camps. With 24 of the 28 teams preparing for their preseason openers, several veterans are being held out of practice with injuries that wouldn't normally sideline them in games. Defensive end Howie Long was held out of the Raiders' practice Tuesday with a slight neck injury and will not play against San Francisco on Saturday. Coach Mike Shanahan said Long, a former All-Pro in his eighth season, suffered a "tingling sensation" after getting his neck jammed in a drill at the Dallas Cowboys' training camp on Monday. "He's pretty sore right now and receiving treatment," Shanahan said. Long will wear a cervical collar while in rehabilitation. Off-injured quarterback Gary Hogeboom of Indianapolis left practice complaining of a sore elbow. Coach Ron Meyer said the Hogeboom suffered a strained tendon in his right elbow and that the Colts will take a "cautious, conservative approach." Meyer said Hogeboom definitely won't play in the preseason opener Saturday night at Tampa Bay. Two-year veteran Jack Trudeau will start and rookie Chris Chandler will play the second half. Hogeboom has missed 20 regular-season games over the past two seasons. His injuries have included a shoulder separation, a detached hand ligament, a punctured lung and a shoulder dislocation. "There is concern, but no reason to panic," Meyer said of the injury. "It certainly isn't an injury that I would describe as career-ending or career-threatening or of the severity that would alter our plans." Hogeboom recently signed a new three-year contract worth $1.8 million plus incentives. The Colts hope Hogeboom will be healthy for the Aug. 13 game against Green Bay. "All I know is, when I straighten it (the elbow) out, there's lots of pain," Hogeboom said. "It's really tough. You prepare all offseason and the last three years have not gone well." Also hurt are Dallas starting linebackers Eugene Lockhart and Mike Hegman. Hegman, the left linebacker, will be out for at least four weeks with torn cartilage in his right knee. Lockhart, the middle linebacker, broke a bone in his left hand during a scrimmage and must avoid contact work for two weeks. They joined fellow LBs Jesse Penn and Jeff Rohrer, with back problems, and Jeff Hurd, who has a knee injury, on the sidelines. "It's inconceivable," linebackers coach Jerry Tubbs said. "You just stop and think about it. You've got Penn, Hurd, Rohrer and now Hegman and Lockhart all hurt? How many more can you get?" Rams linebacker Jim Collins underwent successful surgery to remove a bone spur in his right knee. He is expected to be out for four weeks. The Chicago Bears' problems at tackle worsened. Reserve Paul Blair undergoes arthroscopic surgery on his right knee today, while All-Pro tackle Jim Covert has back surgery that is expected to sideline him at least six weeks. Keith Van Horne, the other starter at tackle, has stayed out of contact drills with a tender shoulder after off-season surgery. "We're looking for tackles. I'll be honest with you," Coach Mike Ditka said. Another tackle, Mike Kenn of the Falcons, is expected to miss up to two weeks with a broken sinus bone near his left eye. SIGNINGS Gaston Green of UCLA, the Rams' top pick and the first running back taken in the NFL draft, converted his interim one-year contract to a permanent, multi-year deal. Details were not disclosed, but sources indicated it was worth slightly more than $1.8 million over four years and none of the money was deferred. Green signed the interim contract to end a brief holdout and report before the veterans came to camp. "We're very pleased," said Leigh Steinberg, Green's agent. "We think that they were fair. We had gotten close when he signed the interim deal. We spent the last couple of weeks bridging the last gap." The Rams also released unsigned tight end Greg Baty. The Eagles reached agreement with five-year veteran free safety Terry Hoage, who will compete against Wes Hopkins.

Red Sox Continue Winning Ways

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The "Green Monster" has become a house of horrors for visiting American League teams.

"If I were on another ballclub, I wouldn't want to be coming into this ballpark," Boston outfielder Mike Greenwell said of Fenway Park. "We're just playing great baseball here now."

The Red Sox, hottest team in baseball — and hotter than August at home — made it 21 in a row at friendly Fenway on Tuesday night with a 7-2 decision over the Texas Rangers.

Greenwell led the way with a first-inning grand slam as the Red Sox equaled their club record home winning streak set in 1949. With the victory, Boston moved within one of the American League mark held by the 1931 Philadelphia Athletics.

The major league record for the most consecutive home and overall victories is 26 by the New York Giants in 1916.

In other AL games, it was Detroit 1, Kansas City 0; Milwaukee 11, New York 5; Toronto 11, Minnesota 1; Baltimore 5, Cleveland 2; Chicago 7, Oakland 5, and California 10, Seattle 2.

The slam, the first of Greenwell's career, got the Red Sox off to a quick 4-0 lead and they never looked back.

Wes Gardner, normally a reliever, was making his seventh start because of staff injuries. Gardner, 4-0 at home and 5-1 overall, allowed only three hits in seven innings with relief help from Dennis Lamp in the last two innings.

"Greenwell really got us off on the right track in this one," said Boston Manager Joe Morgan, who has guided the Red Sox to a fabulous 18-1 record since taking over for the fired John McNamara after the All-Star break.

Asked about the 21-game winning streak at home, Morgan said:

"Well, tomorrow is the time to break it. That's all I know about it. I'm just out there trying to win a game every night. But it is nice to have, I guess. If you have a shot at it (record), you might as well try to get it."

With their current hot streak, the Red Sox have moved into second place behind Detroit in the AL East and currently trail the Tigers by only one game.

first game since beating Baltimore 5-2 on June 23.

Clancy, who spent most of last month in the bullpen, had two losses since his victory over Baltimore. His last complete-game victory was a 6-1 decision over Baltimore on Sept. 23, 1987.

Orioles 5, Indians 2

Ken Gerhart, a last-minute starter when Cleveland changed pitchers just before game time, doubled to spark a four-run third inning as Baltimore snapped a three-game losing streak.

Oswaldo Peraza, 4-4, scattered eight hits for the victory, only Baltimore's fifth since the All-Star break. Three of wins have been games started by Peraza.

Gerhart, who had a pair of doubles in four at-bats, was inserted into the lineup in place of Joe Orsulak after the Indians announced that scheduled starter Tom Candiotti, a right-hander, would be unable to pitch because of tightness in his shoulder. Candiotti was scratched in favor of left-hander Scott Bailes, 7-11, who had been scheduled to work tonight.

Gerhart doubled and eventually scored the first run of the third inning on an error. The Orioles then scored runs on an infield single by Brady Anderson, a sacrifice fly by Cal Ripken and Mickey Tettleton's RBI single.

Balboni Reborn With Mariners

SEATTLE (AP) — Steve Balboni thought his major league career might be over when the Kansas City Royals released him at the end of May.

"There didn't seem to be much interest in me," the 31-year-old first baseman-designated hitter said. "I still had confidence in my ability, but it seems like nobody else did. I was concerned."

On June 1, the Seattle Mariners signed Balboni and put him in their lineup as a designated hitter.

"Nobody else wanted me," he said.

For the last-place Mariners, a team suffering through its 12th consecutive losing season, Balboni has been one of the few positives. In his first 45 games, he homered a dozen times, including 10 in July.

"I'm just happy to be playing," Balboni said. "We're not playing very well right now, but..."

In the short time he has been in Seattle, Balboni has seen owner George Argyros fire Manager Dick Williams and General Manager Dick Balderson.

The turmoil that has surrounded the American League franchise since its birth has never seemed worse.

The Mariners truly expected to finally be winners this season after going 78-84 under Williams last season. Instead, there has been disappointment and embarrassment.

"A lot of guys have left since I've been here," Balboni said.

Jim Snyder, Seattle's interim manager, is using Balboni at first base because his regular first baseman, Alvin Davis, has been hampered by a sore hamstring.

"Steve Balboni has done an outstanding job for us both offensively and defensively," said Snyder. "He's been a real blessing for this club."

Balboni hit only .143 with just two home runs and five RBI for the Royals this season. But he played in only 21 games. After Kansas City acquired veteran Bill Buckner in May, Balboni was cut loose.

But from 1984 through 1987, the 6-foot-3, 225-pounder averaged 29 homers and 76 RBI for Kansas City, with his best season coming in 1985 when he had 36 homers, 88 RBI and a .243 average.

The Mariners, who had been looking for a right-handed power hitter since spring training, immediately signed him.

"Things have started out well here," Balboni said. "But I don't care about proving something. I don't care what other people think. That doesn't matter to me. I'm just happy to have a job."

In July, the Mariners traded designated hitter Ken Phelps to the New York Yankees. That gave Snyder the opportunity to give Balboni more playing time.

"His past performances have always been if he gets enough at bats, he has a chance to make better contact," said Snyder.

"If you don't get to play, you're not going to prove what you can do," Balboni said. "That's pretty simple."

New General Manager Woody Woodward will size up the Mariners the final two months of the season. He is the club's sixth general manager, while Snyder is its eighth manager.

Tigers 1, Royals 0

Ray Knight's two-out single in the ninth inning scored Pat Sheridan from second base as Detroit edged Kansas City.

Jeff Robinson, who one-hit the Royals last week in Detroit, improved his record to 13-4 with last-out relief help from Mike Henneman, who recorded his 16th save. Robinson gave up seven hits in 8 2-3 innings.

Floyd Bannister, 8-9, departed in the ninth after Sheridan's single. Chet Lemon sent Sheridan to second with a single off Jeff Montgomery. Then Jerry Don Gleaton gave up the game-winner to Knight.

White Sox 7, Athletics 5

Dan Pasqua homered and Steve Lyons had three hits and drove in two runs as Chicago snapped a five-game losing streak.

Dave LaPoint, 8-11, yielded five hits before getting seventh-inning relief help from Donn Pall and Bobby Thigpen, who picked up his 22nd save.

The loss halted Oakland's three-game winning streak, but the Athletics maintained a 6½-game lead in the AL West.

Athletics starter Steve Ontiveros, 3-4, went 3 1-3 innings in his first appearance since June 11. He had been on the disabled list with tendinitis in the right elbow.

Angels 10, Mariners 2

Chili Davis highlighted a four-run first inning with a two-run triple as the Angels defeat the Mariners for their 11th straight road victory.

The Angels scored four runs before Seattle left-hander Steve Trout retired a batter en route to their seventh straight victory overall. Singles by Devon White, Johnny Ray and Brian Downing produced one run. Davis hit a 375-foot triple and Bob Boone followed with an RBI single.

Chuck Finley, 6-9, scattered seven hits, struck out four and walked three, as the Angels extended a club record for road wins.

The Mariners have lost four straight games and nine of their last 10.

Palmer Repeats Part Of History

By The Associated Press

David Palmer has a perfect memory. Four years ago in the same ballpark he was doing the same thing and had the most memorable night of his career.

"Yeah, I remembered. After the fifth inning, I looked up and said, 'Well, it can rain anytime now,'" Palmer said.

Palmer, who pitched a five-inning, rain-shortened perfect game for Montreal against St. Louis on April 21, 1984, threw no-hit ball for five innings Tuesday night and finished with a one-hitter as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0 at Busch Stadium.

"I don't know about having my best stuff. I was throwing strikes and they were hitting ground balls right at people," Palmer said. "I threw really all fastballs, moving in and out. I think (with) a couple, I caught them looking back inside."

Palmer, 6-8, struck out six and walked three in his third shutout, his first since that shortened perfect game. It was Palmer's first complete game since he beat Los Angeles on June 29, 1986, and gave him a 10-4 career record against the Cardinals.

"He pitched fairly well against us over the years when he's been healthy," St. Louis manager Whitey Herzog said. "He had good control tonight with his breaking ball."

Palmer did not allow a hit until rookie Tim Lincecum grounded a single to right to open the sixth.

"He was making a lot of good pitches," Phillies pitching coach Claude Osteen said. "Of course, when you're going against a team that isn't hitting, it's hard to tell. The first three, four games of the year, he was three-two on everybody. That's the main thing. He got an awful lot of hitters out early in the count."

In other games, New York beat Chicago 3-1, Pittsburgh beat Montreal 3-2 in 10 innings, Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 2-0, Houston beat San Francisco 13-10 and San Diego beat Atlanta 4-1.

St. Louis, which has lost six of its last seven games, has not been in last place this late in the season since since Aug. 2, 1978. The Phillies had not been out of last since April 30.

Joe Magrane, 1-5, allowed five hits and struck out a career-high seven in eight innings.

Mike Schmidt gave Philadelphia

the lead with a first-inning RBI single. Juan Samuel made it 2-0 in the fourth when he walked, stole second and scored when Magrane threw away a pickoff attempt.

Mets 3, Cubs 1

Barry Lyons hit a two-run triple, the Mets' first triple since July 10, and Darryl Strawberry homered for the third consecutive game, hitting his league-leading 29th.

David Cone, 11-2, allowed eight hits and struck out nine as the Mets won for the sixth time in seven games. Jamie Moyer, 5-10, pitched six innings and allowed all three runs. He had shut out New York with a three-hitter on June 3.

Pirates 3, Expos 2

Jose Lind singled in the winning run as Pittsburgh rallied for two runs in the 10th inning.

Pinch-hitter Denny Gonzalez singled with one out in the 10th off Neal Heaton, 3-7, and Glenn Wilson doubled. Barry Bonds tied it with a single and Lind greeted Andy McGaffigan with a single over Dave Martinez's head in right, sending the Expos to their second loss in nine games.

Retz Hudler hit his first major-league home run in the top of the inning to give Montreal a 2-1 lead. Hudler, in his 141st major-league at-bat, hit a one-out pitch from Jim Gott, 5-3.

Dodgers 2, Reds 0

Tim Lincecum pitched a six-hitter for his National League-leading fifth shutout. Leary, 11-7, has allowed four runs in his last 43 innings, winning four of five starts and lowering his earned run average to 2.24.

Kirk Gibson had three hits, including a run-scoring double, and Pedro Guerrero hit a run-scoring single off Jose Rijo, 11-6, who struck out nine in seven innings.

Astros 13, Giants 10

Buddy Bell hit a three-run homer after Terry Puhl's run-scoring single broke an eighth-inning tie as Houston ended San Francisco's six-game winning streak.

Bill Doran had four hits, including his first career grand slam, as Houston tied the Giants for second place in the National League West, 4½ games behind Los Angeles.

Danny Darwin, 5-9, allowed two runs and four hits in 5 2-3 innings. Dave Smith pitched the ninth for his 18th save. Ron Davis, 0-1, lost in his Giants debut.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending July 29.

HOUSE

MILK PRICE SUPPORTS — By a vote of 217 for and 181 against, the House scaled back an increase in dairy price supports contained in a multibillion dollar drought relief bill for farmers and ranchers.

The vote substituted a temporary increase in milk supports for a long-term hike that had been proposed by the House Agriculture Committee over complaints it was a giveaway unrelated to the drought.

By a lopsided vote, the House sent its drought bill (HR 5015) to conference with a Senate measure.

NORTH CAROLINA voting yes: Tim Valentine, D-2, Howard Coble, R-6, Alex McMillan, R-9, Cass Ballenger, R-10, James Clarke, D-11.

Voting no: Walter Jones, D-1, Martin Lancaster, D-3, David Price, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8.

Not voting: None.

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE — By a vote of 248 for and 130 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 3964) to make the National Park Service more autonomous within the executive branch and more answerable to Congress.

Members voting yes supported the bill.

NORTH CAROLINA voting yes: Walter Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, Price, Neal, Coble, Rose, Hefner, McMillan, Clarke.

Voting no: Ballenger

Not voting: None.

LAND SWAP — By a vote of 281 for and 125 against, the House sent to the Senate a bill (HR 4519) authorizing a land exchange between the federal government and the Barron Collier Co. of Naples, Fla.

NORTH CAROLINA voting yes:

Walter Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, Price, Rose, Ballenger, Clarke.

Voting no: Neal, Coble, Hefner, McMillan.

SENATE

ABORTION — By a vote of 73 for and 19 against, the Senate adopted an amendment to broaden Medicaid funding of abortions.

This would reverse a Capitol Hill trend in recent years to restrict federal support of abortions. It permits Medicaid funding when pregnancy results from promptly-reported rape or incest. Federal law now funds abortions only when the mother's life is endangered.

Senators voting yes wanted less restrictive federal funding of abortions.

NC — Terry Sanford, D, voted yes. Jesse Helms, R, voted no.

TEEN PREGNANCY — By a vote of 48 for and 45 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment prohibiting federal funding of certain elementary and secondary classroom programs to prevent teen-age pregnancies.

The amendment, offered to HR 4783 (see preceding vote), targeted programs such as those providing students with contraceptives and advice on abortions.

Sponsor Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said his amendment would stop "the so-called family planning movement's assault on the American classroom."

Senators voting yes wanted to kill the amendment.

NC — Sanford did not vote. Helms voted no.

LEGAL SERVICES CUT — The Senate rejected, 28 for and 66 against, an amendment to lower the fiscal 1989 Legal Services Corp. budget from $308 million to $250 million and transfer the saved $58 million from the Legal Services Corp. to the Drug Enforcement Administration.

NC — Sanford voted no. Helms voted yes.

ON THE LINE — Famous Louise's Rockhouse Restaurant in western North Carolina sits on the county line of Avery, Burke and McDowell counties, making dining a unique experience. You may sit in one county, watch food cooked in another and pay the bill in still another. The restaurant is on U.S. 221 at the intersection with N.C. 183 near Linville Caverns. (Reflector Photo by Thomas Forrest)

Restaurant Reaches Into Three Counties

Not many restaurants can boast being in three counties at the same time, but Famous Louise's Rockhouse Restaurant in Linville Falls can make that claim.

The western North Carolina restaurant is located at the junction of three counties — Avery, Burke and McDowell, which come together near the building's fireplace.

According to Louise Henson, the owner of the restaurant, "The building was built in about 1936 and was used as an inn and I took it over about a year and a half ago."

When you place your order you may be seated in Burke County. The food is cooked in Avery County, and the waitress picks it up in McDowell County. A customer can visit all three counties just by walking across the dining area.

Friends of Ms. Henson, Peggy and Frank Hamlin, painted signs that hang from the ceiling letting you know "you are now entering and leaving" each of the three counties.

And don't forget to pay for your meal on the way out. The cash register is in Avery County.

Mountain travelers may find the restaurant at the intersection of U.S. 221 and N.C. 183 near Linville Caverns.

It's A Special Year For The Home Folks In Eighty-Eight, Ky.

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer
EIGHTY-EIGHT, Ky. (AP) — It's '88 in Eighty-Eight, and people are getting ready to celebrate the odd convergence of a point in time and a pinpoint on the map.

The last time Eighty-Eight entered the spotlight was when voters here cast 88 votes for President Harry Truman and 88 votes for Thomas Dewey. That earned the town a feature in "Ripley's Believe It or Not."

Four decades later, this is the year for Eighty-Eight to call attention to itself again.

"The townspeople have really got excited about it," said Rosemary McPherson, owner of the 88 Market and the driving force behind The Eighty-Eight Celebration set for Sunday.

"That's on the eve of the big day," said Ms. McPherson, referring to Aug. 8 — or 8-8-88.

There will be a parade, an antique car show, gospel singing, and arts and crafts offerings.

The celebration includes a reunion for all who attended the now-defunct Eighty-Eight School, and a special invitation is going out to anyone 88 years old.

It's doubtful there's ever been anything like it in Eighty-Eight, a picture-postcard village with the market, a tire company, neat little houses lining a two-lane road and a red brick church anchoring the town at each end.

The first hint that Eighty-Eight's time had come was back in January when collectors sent their New Year's cards to receive the town's postmark.

One collector enclosed a note: "This is your year."

Until then, "I hadn't even thought about it," said postmistress Donnie Sue Bacon.

Soon, all manner of mail, including about 200 graduation announcements from students at the University of Southern California, began arriving for cancellation at Mrs. Bacon's cubbyhole post office inside Ms. McPherson's store.

"I'm happy that they're recognizing us," said Mrs. Bacon, 57, who had to make a concession to the town's sudden vogue. After 31 years of hand-canceling mail, she was trading her ink pad and rubber stamp for a self-inking postmarker.

The town attracted other attention as well.

Daniel T. Gray and Karen Ann Davis of Bowling Green decided to get married here, and the Rev. Michael Thomason, who performed the ceremony, recalled the couple was quite specific about the time: 4:28 p.m. on 4-28-88 in Eighty-Eight.

"It was just sentimental," said the new Mrs. Gray. When the marriage license was filed, she added, "the clerk's office thought the minister put the date where you put the place."

Employed, But Homeless

Washington's Job Rush Spawns New 'Migrants'

By PATRICIA DAVIS
L.A. Times-Washington Post
New Service

David Burgess usually leaves his construction job in Manassas, Va., about 5:30 p.m., eats dinner alone at Bob's Big Boy, then drives straight to his home: a pup tent in Fairfax County.

"It's a little cramped," said Burgess, 32, peering down at his green plastic roof. "I really don't like staying in the tent, but housing around here is so expensive."

Across Ox Road, residents of The Ridings at Canterbury pay as much as $474,500 for their elegant single-family houses. Burgess has found more affordable accommodations in the neighborhood: $8.50 a night for a campsite, a hot shower and use of the laundry facilities at Burke Lake Park.

The severe labor shortage in the Washington, D.C. area, which recorded a 2.7 percent jobless rate in April, has spawned a kind of "gold rush" for jobs from states with high unemployment rates. But the cost of living in the D.C. suburbs has forced hundreds of workers such as Burgess to seek shelter in campgrounds, places next to highways and at construction sites.

"You used to have Hoovervilles because they didn't have jobs," said Fairfax County Supervisor Thomas M. Davis III, referring to the shantytowns during the Depression. "Now they're camping out because they have them."

Some have come here year after year — usually in the summer — to live in invisible communities, hidden by the tents, cars and unfinished town houses where they sleep. They generally are single, white men in their 20s and 30s who are lured by construction jobs, said park officials and advocates for the homeless. Because the workers move so frequently, nobody has an accurate accounting of their numbers.

Unlike the usual homeless people, most have strong ties to land or people somewhere — in West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and, increasingly, Texas.

"These are our migrant workers," said Eric Goplerud, an assistant professor at George Mason University who has studied the homeless in Fairfax. He described the urban migrant workers as the "virtual homeless" because they could not find work where they lived and now cannot find affordable housing where they work.

The jobs they seek involve building houses or constructing highways in Washington's booming economy — the suburban equivalent of their agricultural counterparts toiling in the vineyards or picking vegetables in California.

Like their agricultural cousins, they are in perpetual motion. At Fairfax County parks, for example, entire neighborhoods pack up and move every seven days. After a required four-day absence, designed to

BY CANDLELIGHT — After work in Washington during the day, David Burgess, 32, returns to his tent home in suburban Virginia to pass the time away by reading before bedtime. Burgess and other workers lured to discourage permanent camping, entire neighborhoods return.

Washington for jobs have found the cost of living too much for conventional housing, so they've turned to tents on campers. (L.A. Times-Washington Post Photo)

Some migrants visit their families on their days off; others increasingly are bringing them along. Although most obey park rules, some stretch their welcomes by reregistering under names of others in their groups, posing as recreational campers or, like most, park-hopping.

"The fact of the matter is, park-hopping is going on," said J. Hamilton Lambert, Fairfax Coun executive. "We're caught in a dilemma — they're not mobile home parks." Lambert said that no one could have predicted there would be so many job opportunities in Fairfax, which registered a 1.5 percent unemployment rate in April, the lowest in Virginia. He said the county is trying to accommodate the surge

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY Aug. 4
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Get busy making collections, paying bills, straightening accounts, etc. If your home needs repairs, get more than one estimate.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Study your appearance, and make any improvements you feel are necessary. Later your stubbornness could lose you a friend.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): It's a good day to complete many practical affairs you have ignored. Do not bring up any moot points with your mate, and maintain the peace.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Start setting up that work you have in mind so you can accomplish something important. Pay your share if you're out tonight.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Get busy at worldly affairs that can bring you a greater income soon. Follow the orders of those in charge. Don't take risks with civic obligations.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Do more research work on that new enterprise you are eager to start. An expert can give you the most important information.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Prioritize and schedule your responsibilities wisely. Listen carefully to a business person who can give you very good suggestions.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Try to cooperate more with a partner who is as stubborn as you, and avoid an altercation today. Don't let an outsider get you into debt.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Handle activities that are important to you in a new way. Be more direct with a co-worker, and don't try any tricks with this person.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): The details of a creative idea you are trying to manifest need more careful handling for you to succeed. Take your mate's suggestions.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Be patient at home to make everything harmonious there. Await a more favorable day to invite friends into your home.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Be very precise in handling important correspondence and telephone calls. Any spare time should be spent only with those closest to you.

 Our namesake, The Tentmaker, wrote that the Bird of Time is on the wing. South, declarer at three no trump, found that a slip in technique resulted in this mythical feathered friend escaping his grasp.

The only interesting point about the auction is that North did not feel it necessary to rebid his spade suit. In this sequence a bid of three spades should show at least a six-card suit and a relatively balanced hand, since it offers a choice of contracts—three no trump or four spades. (With an unbalanced hand and six spades, North would go directly to four spades.)

Declarer won the opening lead in hand and played a spade to the king. East help up the ace, and again played low when declarer continued with a spade to the queen. When West showed out on this trick, declarer realized that his time was up—he was an entry short to set up and cash the long spade. Declarer ended up with exactly two tricks in each suit.

Since declarer would have had no problem if spades broke 3-2, his efforts should have been devoted to ensuring his contract in the event of a 4-1 split. At trick two, proper technique is to lead the queen of spades from hand. Assuming that wins the trick, declarer continues with a low spade. If West follows, declarer can play the jack. If East follows, all is well; if East shows out, declarer can return to hand with a diamond and finesse the nine of spades.

As the cards lie, West shows out on the second spade. Now declarer can foil East's holdup plan by finessing the nine! No matter what the defenders do, declarer will have time to establish and harvest three tricks in spades. Try it.

Life Changes, But Goes On, For Former Symphony Members

By JOHN BRIDGES

The Tennessean
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Five months ago, they were playing Mahler.

Today, they're cooking doughnuts, selling computers and, when necessity demands, drawing unemployment. The former members of the Nashville Symphony — out of work since the orchestra closed shop Feb. 3 — are making ends meet, keeping busy, learning to survive.

Trained to play the French horn, the bassoon and the double bass, they are now learning to think of themselves as sales clerks, gardeners and secretaries. What they are facing is more than a change of job; what they are facing is an identity crisis.

"They used to call me the symphony's baker," says Sarah Fogel, a violinist who once whipped up cookies by the dozen to mark every celebration in the lives of other orchestra colleagues.

"Now I'll be baking cookies for a living. I'm excited and nervous, but I'm resentful, too — all at the same time," Fogel said.

Beginning this fall, Fogel, who played with the symphony for five years, will be opening her own bakery shop in Dickson.

"I'm thankful I can do this," she says. "But I am a musician. This isn't what was supposed to happen."

For some, the trauma of the symphony's collapse — not to mention the prolonged, soul-wearying negotiations which preceded its arrival in federal bankruptcy court on June 16 — has been an embittering experience.

Rick Mays, who formerly filled the solitary spot as the symphony's lone bass trombonist, says, "A lot of people are going to carry emotional baggage from this experience for a long time."

"Of course, that's their own decision," adds Mays, who dubs himself "a survivor."

Even before he moved to Nashville from Atlanta two years ago, he says, he had worked as a free-lance photographer. Before, his work for annual reports and other publications was merely "a hobby that got out of hand." Now, in combination with Music Row recording session jobs, Mays' camera work is paying his bills.

"Really, I'm getting more session work than I'd expected," he admits. "But the way it looks now, though, it comes to a choice and I have to think about the money, I'm afraid photography wins out."

"Sure, photography is a sort of art. But there's still this conflict I feel inside; I do photography, but I am a player."

While many orchestra members retained hopes for the symphony's salvation, at least 15 of the symphony's 70 former full-time players have already left Nashville.

Some have been fortunate enough to locate positions in other orchestras. John Rommel, former assistant principal trumpet, will move into a principal's chair in the Louisville Orchestra this fall.

"I suppose I would not have looked as seriously if the symphony had been in good condition," says Rommel, who also taught at Vanderbilt University's Blair School of Music and served as a member of the Nashville Brass Quintet. "But all of this made me recognize the seriousness of my own thoughts — that playing in a symphony orchestra is what I want to do."

"In a way, this couldn't have come at a better time. The timing has sort of come by itself."

For others, such as Bobby Taylor, Nashville Symphony principal oboist for two decades, the thought of re-entering the job market is hardly so appealing. "It's tough to stay current when you've been isolated in a place like Nashville for 20 years," says Taylor, another Blair Faculty member.

"It takes a major effort to knock heads with all the young kids out there, but I guess I'll have to start hitting the road. There's a job coming up at the Boston Symphony. I'll be there applying for it — me and 200 others."

Opportunities may look less than encouraging for musicians such as Taylor and Mays, whose chosen instruments appear in single — or, at best, double — quantities on even the best-stocked orchestra rosters. But the fact that composers traditionally call for dozens of string instruments doesn't make prospects much brighter for husband-and-wife violinists Brian Groner and Teresa Fream.

"I've had a couple of concrete offers," confesses Groner. "But they were not necessarily in places where I want to be."

Meanwhile, Groner administers pulmonary function tests for a mobile medical unit. "People breathe into this tube, and I scream at them until they pass out," he explains.

Groner said morale is low among former symphony players. "I'm generally an optimistic person, but I'm afraid to feel anything anymore," he says.

However, Charles Wyatt, a symphony veteran who served as principal flutist of the Nashville orchestra for 15 seasons, explains that the orchestra's folding coincided conveniently with his own plans to pursue a career in free-lance writing. He recently had an article published in Golf Illustrated.

Despite the fact that the Nashville

Symphony Association's attorneys have filed all the documents necessary to institute Chapter 11 bankruptcy reorganization proceedings, a faithful few form the orchestra's ranks refuse to accept the inevitability of its fate.

"I'm collecting unemployment, but basically I'm waiting to see what's going to happen," says bassoonist Chad Cognata. "I can't see myself taking a full-time job when there's a chance the orchestra could get started up again...."

"At some point, I believe there's going to be an orchestra here again. I'm just assuming that I'll be a part of it."

Dropout Boosting Attendance

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — David Hand never finished the second grade, but he started a program that has kept Guntersville students in school and helped them achieve success.

On the last day of school for the past seven years, Hand has thrown a party at McDonald's for all students at Guntersville Elementary School who have perfect attendance. In seven years, the size of the party has grown from 39 to 80, while the school's enrollment has remained stable.

Perfect attendance has become "the thing to do so you can have a party at McDonald's," said retiring school Superintendent Brandon Sparkman.

He underlines the value of perfect attendance for both pupil and school.

"It helps kids get a better education and it brings in more money to the school system because our (state) funding is based on average daily attendance," he said.

Hand, who was honored by the state Board of Education at a ceremony last month in Montgomery, said the annual party happened by accident.

"My son made perfect attendance in the second grade. He just got a little piece of paper. I didn't think that was very much, so I gave him a party. My daughter, who's 15, when she got in the second grade, she asked me if she could have a party if she had perfect attendance. I told her she could. She went to school and told her friends and said, 'My daddy will take you, too, if you have perfect attendance.'"

"She got to be the most popular girl in school. She had perfect attendance the next four years."

After the first party, Hand, a craftsman of modest means, had no intention of having another. "But the kids really enjoyed themselves. At the start of the next school year, parents called me and asked me if I was doing it again because the kids were really talking about it. I said why not."

Pickpockets Count On Carelessness To Prey On Tourists

By MARJORIE ANDERS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With the advent of the tourist season, police have issued their perennial warning against pickpockets — especially to naive, preoccupied tourists.
But beware of the warning.
"If you're at an airport and you see a sign that says 'Beware of Pickpockets,' the first thing John Q. Public will do is pat his pocket," says Detective James McHugh of the New York Transit Authority Police Department.
"So the pickpocket who is watching from a telephone booth or pretending to read a newspaper knows exactly where the wallet is."

Pickpockets still count on carelessness, on women who swing their purses over their shoulders and men who keep their wallets in the "sucker pocket," as the rear pants pocket is called.
Sometimes they work alone, relying on stealth, and sometimes in teams, one to distract, the other to lift the goods.
Virtually the same techniques have been used since Roman times when pickpockets were called cutpurses. As togas did not have pockets, coins were kept in pouches hung from the waist. Skilled thieves were able to cut the purses without detection.
Evading notice continues to be the aim of all pickpockets and the extent to which they are successful is difficult to determine, police say.

Victims who don't "wake up" at the moment they are being "stung" may not realize for hours that their wallet is missing.
"A lot of times, the crime will go down as lost property," said Sgt. Chris Moran of the Police Department's Special Frauds Squad.
Even if an officer foils a pickpocket, the intended victim can disappear during the commotion of arrest, unaware of what happened.
And on the relatively rare occasion when an officer catches someone, gets the wallet, and the victim remains on the scene, often the victim just wants his property back. But the officer has to hold it as evidence.

Pickpockets are not generally considered dangerous criminals because few carry weapons, but they have a lot of nerve.
"That's what it takes," said Detective Frank Cayea, a TA cop and recognized expert on pickpockets. "They make a living at it and they are good."
Practitioners are no longer the street urchins portrayed in "Oliver Twist." Modern pickpockets are practiced, patient professionals, usually well-dressed men, although some women also ply the trade.
To police, pickpockets appear preoccupied, which they are.
"He senses what he wants; picks out something. He may wait by a banking window to see who makes a withdrawal. He knows exactly where you place the money. He watches where you go.

"At first when you get the money you are cautious and look around. But then as you walk away, you may go a block or two, you relax. He has patience. He is so psyched up that he feels that the money that you are carrying is his, and you are just holding it for him," Detective Cayea says.
The elite among pickpockets is the "cannon," who actually goes into men's pants or jacket pockets. The most common is the bag opener, who reaches into women's handbags. The most vulgar are the "lushworkers," who prey, without finesse, on drunkards.

Although men are the victims almost half the time, females are easier "marks."
"It's very simple with a woman. Usually the shoulder bag is behind her and she's got a child on one hand and a shopping bag in the other," Cayea says.
To lift a man's wallet a pickpocket doesn't even have to make body contact. Instead they use newspapers, briefcases and shopping bags as "stiffs" to feel where the wallet is and then to push it up. Some cut out the pockets of their coats so it looks like their hand is buried in their pocket, when the coat actually shields their agile hands.
Some use disguises.
Cayea cited an example of a 70-year-old man who poses as a minister complete with a clerical collar. He carries a raincoat over his left arm. The coat is slipped over the woman's bag to obscure the work of his right hand buried in her purse.
"He's able to remove the contents, smile and walk away. And who would think that a minister would be working a handbag?" Cayea says.
Cannons prefer men wearing suits because the pockets are baggy. They'll never attempt tight jeans.
But a thief doesn't have to sink his hand in a pocket if its lining is loose. He can pull the lining out of the pocket, a technique called "riffing."
Pickpockets lurk wherever there is movement of both people and money. Airports, bus terminals and train stations are favorites because once a victim is on a plane, bus or train, he can't report it. And the thief has two to three hours to run up a bill on a credit card or get a cash advance or two.
Up escalators are popular because they put the pickpocket at eye level with his objective. And public phones also attract pickpockets who will pretend to be making a call and wait for someone to approach.
With 4.5 million riders a day, the New York City transit system also is a haven for pickpockets, especially during rush hour when buses and subways are jammed with standees. TA police report 984 pickpocketing complaints last year and 148 arrests. They won't speculate about how many similar crimes went unreported.

Eighty-Eight's 200 or so residents were at first loath to make a fuss but finally yielded to the times.
Serious planning for a commemoration got under way in a town meeting in June at the 88 Market, which is something of an unofficial community center.
And Ms. McPherson, whose store already sold everything from baby food to country hams, has added a special line of merchandise for the occasion: Eighty-Eight caps and T-shirts.
"They've been going like hotcakes," she said.
The first T-shirt was ceremonially presented to local resident Elsie Billingsley, age 88.
How did the town get its numerical name?
The explanation given by some is that it lies 8.8 miles east of Glasgow, the Barren County seat.
That's not it, says Bobby Richardson, an Eighty-Eight native and Glasgow attorney who says he has the authoritative account.
It begins with Dabnie L. Nunnally, who opened a general store and stagecoach stop here around 1850 and became the first postmaster sometime in the late 1860s.
Needing a name for the place, Nunnally opted for a number because "his figures were more legible" than his handwriting, said Richardson, who is Nunnally's great-great-grandson.
To pick the number, Nunnally counted the money in his pocket — 88 cents.
"That's the correct version, according to all the older people in the family who told me," said Richardson.
At some point — just when isn't clear — the town's name was officially spelled out.
But mail still arrives here sometimes addressed to "88, Ky."

Ethnic Roles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "La Bamba" star Lou Diamond Phillips says he's a show-in for most ethnic roles, thanks to his multiracial heritage — mostly Filipino with a little Chinese, Hawaiian and Spanish mixed in.
"There are a lot of blond-haired, blue-eyed actors out there, and good ones at that," Phillips said recently. "But in my category there aren't that many actors in the running."
Phillips made his film debut portraying Ritchie Valens in last summer's hit "La Bamba." Now he's joining other young Hollywood actors in "Young Guns."
The Billy the Kid movie starring Emilio Estevez, Charlie Sheen, Kiefer Sutherland and Phillips will be released Aug. 12.

Shifting Sands Changing Face Of Gulf Islands

By CHARLES HILLINGER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

GULF ISLANDS NATIONAL SEASHORE, Miss. — "A calm day at last," said Billy Long, skipper of Miss Teak, a 42-foot National Park Service boat that cruises the placid waters of the Mississippi Sound.

Visibility was poor, but at least the rain had stopped and the seas had quieted after more than a week of stormy weather.

This foggy day, Long was taking Ranger Jill Kinney, 29, from Biloxi to West Ship Island, 10 miles away. Later, Long would return Ranger Mike Sharp, 38, and the four-person maintenance crew back to the mainland for the weekend.

Kinney would be alone every night on the 3.7-mile-long island until Monday morning. Her only company on the flat, treeless island dotted with dunes and lagoons would be the alligators, water moccasins, raccoons, rabbits, mice, rats and thousands of songbirds, pelicans, osprey and gulls.

West Ship Island, about one-half mile wide, is one of six small sand islands and a few mainland estuaries that make up Gulf Islands National Seashore off Florida and Mississippi. Geographically, the National Seashore is an anomaly, stretching 150 miles east to west from Santa Rosa Island south of Pensacola, Fla., to West Ship Island with a lot of water and Alabama in between. The geography here is subject to change. Mississippi's four National Seashore islands between Mississippi Sound and the Gulf of Mexico — West Ship, East Ship, Horn and Petit Bois — are constantly being reshaped by the waves, currents and storms.

On Aug. 17, 1969, for instance, Hurricane Camille cut Ship Island in two, leaving in its wake a mile-wide channel between what are now West and East Ship.

Two hundred years ago, Horn Island was in Alabama. But it has moved 8 miles west and is now in Mississippi.

The Isle of Caprice between Horn and Ship islands no longer exists. It boasted a resort and gambling casino in the 1920s, but was washed away by hurricanes and storms. Now it is a submerged sand bar.

"We like winter best out here on West Ship," said Paul Hicks, 53, one of the year-round Park Service maintenance men.

Keith Husley, 48, and Hicks have worked here 14 years, living on the island five days, returning home for weekends. Dan Thomas, 35, and Ted Butts, 33, have worked here a year.

"In summer at least 1,500 people get off the four boats each day," said Hicks. (Only National Park personnel are allowed to stay overnight on West Ship.)

Visitors come to swim, stroll the white sand beaches, gather sea shells, bird watch, fish and see Fort Massachusetts, a Civil War fortification. Water temperatures of the sound and the Gulf in summer average 85 degrees; air temperatures are almost always in the 90s.

Except for the beaches and sand dunes, the island is mostly marsh lands where snakes, alligators, mosquitoes and gnats thrive. The nine structures on West Ship — the visitors center, bath house, restrooms, snack bar, Park Service residence and workshops — are all built on stilts. An 8-foot-wide, quarter-mile-long boardwalk leads from the pier on the sound side to the beaches on the Gulf.

Petit Bois (7½ miles long and one-half mile wide) and Horn (14 1/3 miles long and three-quarters of a mile wide) have been designated by Congress as wilderness islands. Camping on Petit Bois, Horn and East Ship islands is permitted. Access is by private boat.

Two rangers are assigned to West Ship; two others to Horn Island. The rangers also patrol the other two islands using Boston whalers. During summer four Park Service lifeguards and five ranger-naturalists are also stationed on West Ship Island.

West Ship was discovered by the French in 1699 and named Isle aux Vaisseaux — ship island. French, British, Spanish, the Confederate and U.S. flags have flown over it.

In December 1814, a fleet of 60 British ships rendezvoused off Ship Island before an unsuccessful attack on New Orleans. Confederate forces held the island from January to September 1861. Later, 18,000 Union troops were stationed here.

of workers and ensure that they are treated fairly.

Most park managers report few problems with the migrant workers who inhabit their campgrounds. Although there were some drinking and vandalism problems at Burke Lake Park in Fairfax County several years ago, Grove said they have been solved.

"We understand each other now. Most of them behave themselves," Grove said. "We don't discriminate against them. We treat them like we do anyone else."

Some say better. Ruffled curtains soften the windows at the camp store, where a makeshift mailbox has been erected. Assistant park supervisor Rebecca Williamson, who sells Hungry Jack pancake mix and rents campsites, drops the mail off at a post office on her way home. When wives and girlfriends call long-distance on the pay phones outside, she takes messages and attaches them to picnic tables.

Williamson said she has welcomed workers from places such as Beverly, W.Va., Racine, Ohio, and Patton, Pa. She has heard about their jobs building town houses, removing asbestos, delivering lost luggage. She has watched them adjust and progress during their lives in the woods — from a tent, to a pop-up camper (a cross between a tent and a small trailer), to a trailer.

Occasionally, she chats with Burgess when he stays at the campground in his pup tent instead of sleeping in some of the houses he builds for $10 an hour. Burgess, 32, spends rainy days doing his laundry and evenings reading — while there is still light out. He has a 17-year-old wife, a trailer and 45 acres in Madison, W.Va., and he visits there every other weekend, driving his Chevrolet Chevette seven hours each way.

Living in a pup tent or an unfinished house is the price he must pay for the luxury of having a job, said Burgess, who said he was forced out of his home state by high unemployment, which reached 13.2 percent in February. And with average monthly rents of $615 in Fairfax last year, it is not likely that his job and family will become any closer, he said.

As the number of migrant workers rises with the temperature, park manager Grove said he is noticing more families. Many are arriving from oil-depressed areas in Texas, where Virginia officials have been actively recruiting to fill suburban jobs. Desperate local employers are giving away sets of pots and pans and offering increased salaries to lure workers to this area.

When George Lorenze is working as a mechanic in Manassas for $7.50 an hour, several dollars an hour more than he was paid in Texas. His wife, Joyce, and granddaughter, Yolanda Gibson, wait for him in the woods. During the day, Yolanda plays with her doll or with her grandmother, who strings the family's quilts between trees to air them out. They keep one another company, walking in the woods and looking at ducks.

The Lorenzes cook chili, beef stew and oatmeal on their Coleman propane stove, sleep on an air mattress in their pop-up camper, and store their clothes in plastic garbage bags.

Some children of migrant workers go to school in the suburbs. This year in Fairfax County, for example, school officials said they had 46 children enrolled who lived in tents and motels.

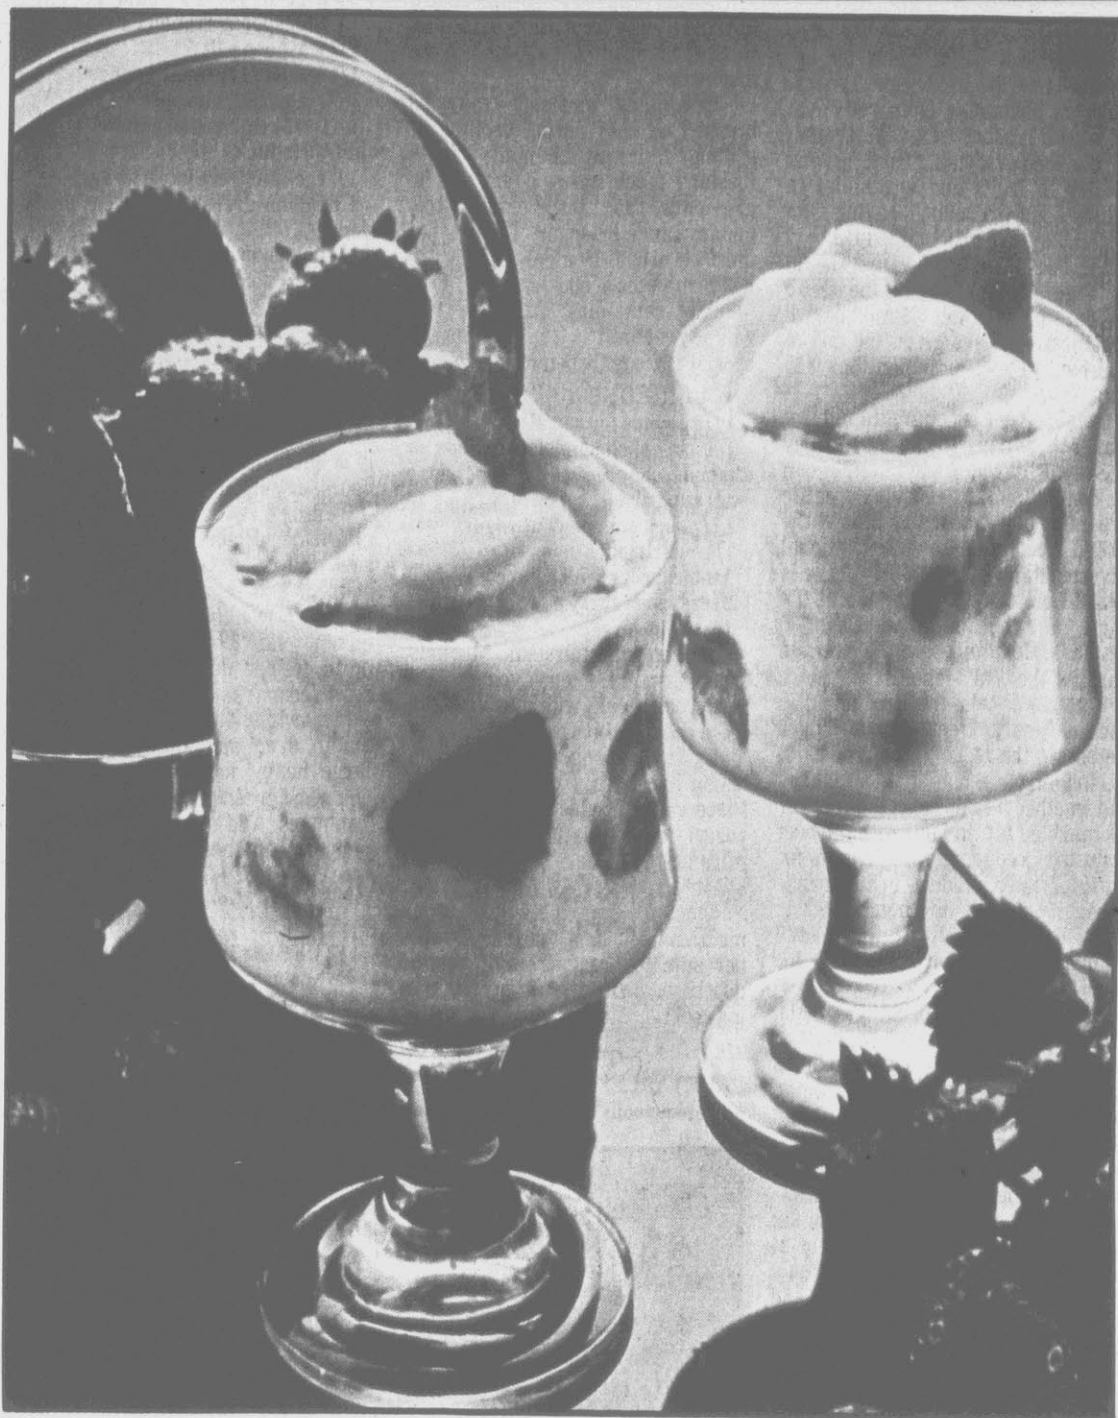

Next fall, the Lorenzes plan to send Yolanda to Canada to live with her mother and attend school. They say their granddaughter, whom they have reared, will miss living in the woods, except when the weather is bad.

Versatility Puts Rice High On The Popularity Chart

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer
 Rice is used in soups, salads, appetizers, entrees, side dishes and desserts, and it can be served hot or cold, plain or fancy.
 Rice is versatile.
 "People are more conscious about what they eat," Joanne Leathe, home economist with the Rice Council of America, said. "People are tending to go to rice more because it's light, easily digested and nutritious."
 The history of rice, a cereal grain, dates back as far as 2800 B.C. from China to ancient Green and from Persia to the Nile Delta.
 But, in North America, "the history of growing rice starts here in the Carolinas," Ms. Leathe said.
 When America gained its independence in 1776, rice was one of the country's major agricultural businesses. But, the Civil War, hurricanes and competition from other crops such as tobacco and cotton, drove rice production westward, she said.

 Arkansas is the largest rice-producing state in the United States, she said. It is followed by California, which began rice production after attracting thousands of Chinese to the U.S. territory. Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi and Missouri are other major rice-producing states, Ms. Leathe said.
 "The United States is the No. 1 exporter of rice in the world," she said. The nation's $2 billion industry replaced Thailand at the top spot and is the sixth largest grain crop in the country.

 About 50 percent of the rice grown in the United States is exported to 100 different countries, Ms. Leathe said. "We grow about nine and a half billion pounds of rice per year."
 "Iraq is our No. 1 user," followed by Saudi Arabia, she said. The nation also supplies the crop to Canada, Brazil, Peru and European countries.
 The United States ordinarily does not provide rice to the Orient or Asian countries, but "there have been times when Asian countries, like China, have had a bad crop," and they needed to supplement harvest.
 With 1,100 farmers producing two and a half million acres of rice in the country, it is fortunate the crop has yet to be affected by the drought, Ms. Leathe said.
 "Rice is an irrigation product. They flood the fields to prevent weed and grass growth, she said. "Short-term drought doesn't hurt," but if drought lingers, there could be a reduction in yield and some increase in production.
 "The Pacific Northwest eats the most rice," Ms. Leathe said. "They're health conscious people."
 Louisiana and Texas are the second largest consumers of rice, while the Northeast, except New York City, pulls up the rear in rice consumption.
 Enriched rice provides about 5 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances of thiamin and niacin and about 3.75 percent of the USDA of iron.
 The low fiber content of white rice makes it about 98 percent digestible, and rice contains only traces of fat. It is cholesterol free and low in sodium.

BURNT STRAWBERRY CREAM — There's hardly a country in the world that doesn't have its own recipe for a sweet rice dessert. Some are plain, others fancy. They can be creamy or firm enough to cut into squares. Try the accompanying creamy recipe that combines rice with strawberries.

Supper-For-One Salad Is A Snap

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens Magazine Food Editor
 This cool supper-for-one salad is a great way to enjoy last night's roast beef or to use sliced beef from the deli. You'll have enough of the tangy apple dressing for 3 or 4 servings, so if your family sometimes eats in shifts, you can assemble salads one at a time and pass the dressing. Or, store the extra dressing in a covered container in the refrigerator for another use. It's great with spinach or fruit combinations.

Lettuce leaves
1 tablespoon raisins
1/4 cup apple juice
1/4 cup salad oil
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
 Arrange beef, apple, jicama and carrot on a lettuce-lined plate. Sprinkle with raisins. Cover with clear plastic wrap and chill until serving time or serve immediately.
 For dressing, in a screw-top jar combine apple juice, oil and vinegar. Cover and shake well. Pour desired amount of dressing over salad. Store remaining dressing, covered, in refrigerator. Makes 1 serving.

BEEF AND APPLE SALAD
3 ounces thinly sliced cooked beef
1/2 of a medium apple, cored and cut into thin wedges
3 ounces jicama, peeled and cut into thin sticks, or 1/2 of an 8-ounce can sliced water chestnuts, drained
1/2 of medium carrot, cut into thin strips

Nutrition information per serving:
 429 cal., 27 g pro., 33 g carbo., 22 g fat, 77 mg chol., 77 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 204 percent vit. A, 44 percent vit. C, 11 percent thiamine, 15 percent riboflavin, 25 percent niacin, 25 percent iron.

SUPPER FOR ONE — Supper can be ready in minutes when you combine sliced cooked beef with apple, jicama and carrot. Top with raisins and dressing.

Kathy Kolasa

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

Q: What is your opinion of the "Eight Weeks to a Cholesterol Cure" book? S.J., Greenville.

A: I am a great supporter of people taking a greater responsibility for their own health maintenance and disease prevention. It's in part because of that belief that I write these columns on behalf of the Department of Family Medicine. Nutrition plays an important role in health and you can control your food selection. I have great trouble, however, with books like "Eight Weeks to a Cholesterol Cure." Any writer that encourages an individual to take drug dosages of vitamins or minerals without insisting that they be monitored by their family doctor, is in my judgement doing no one a favor. It is so easy to harm ourselves by taking huge doses of vitamins and minerals. They are readily available and generally affordable. But, people don't always have all the information needed to make a good decision about taking huge doses of vitamins and minerals. So, I don't approve of the advice to take large doses of niacin. It's been a year since I reviewed the dietary parts of the book. If I remember, the nutrition advice was generally OK, although it might vary from some things I have written about in this column. Before you take large doses of niacin, discuss it with your doctor. The use of nicotinic acid is a viable medical treatment for some people with high blood cholesterol.

Dear Readers: Several of you have made suggestions for preparing oat bran muffins. Dr. Bill Fore and Sue Daughtry, R.D., Department of Medicine, recommend using the recipe on the back of the Quaker Oat bran box and substituting two teaspoons of brown sugar substitute for all the brown sugar and honey. There are two substitute brown sugars readily available in Greenville. The one that is better for baking and cooking is Sugar Twin Brown Sugar Replacement. It is made from dextrin, sodium, saccharin, calcium chloride, coloring, and flavoring. One teaspoon gives 1 1/2 calories. The other brand of brown sugar replacement is made from dextrose, saccharin, calcium silicate, and flavoring and is called Sweet-N-Low Brown. The label instructions do tell you how to substitute it for regular brown sugar sweetness. Oat bran has been shown to lower blood cholesterol and also blood glucose.

Tasty Homemade Ice Cream And Other Summertime Treats

By CAROL DEEGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — What's summer without ice cream? It's also the perfect time for gelato, sherbet and frozen ices.
 The Food Marketing Institute says Americans bought 923 million gallons of ice cream in 1986. And it should hardly come as a surprise that a survey by MRCA Information Services shows that summer continues to be the most popular time for purchasing ice cream.
 Ice cream is most likely to be served on Sunday, the MRCA survey says, and ice cream eating is especially popular among adults aged 55 and above.
 Ice cream can be served with sliced fruit, sprinkled with espresso powder, topped with chocolate sauce, or made into a dessert pie.

There is a wide variety of brands and flavors from which to choose at the supermarket — or, you can make your own.
 The traditional hand-cranked ice-cream churn has been replaced by a new generation of home freezers — smaller, easier to use and more efficient.
 "Ice Cream & Frozen Desserts" by Lonnie Gandara and edited by Elaine Ratner (Ortho Information Services), new from the California Culinary Academy, should come in handy when you're cranking up the ice-cream maker.
 Included in the 128-page book are recipes for Kentucky Derby Slush, Dome Perignon and Bananas Foster. Children will enjoy Frozen Chocolate Bananas, Ice Cream Clowns and Ice Cream Spaghetti.

 The following recipe is a sample from the book:
STRAWBERRY STRATA
1 pound cake
1/2 cup kirsch or any other liqueur
1 quart strawberry ice cream, soft-ened
1 pint fresh strawberries, sliced or chopped
1/2 cup whipping cream
1/3 cup sliced almonds, toasted
1 recipe Raspberry Puree (recipe follows)
 Slice pound cake into 1/2-inch thick pieces. Cut each piece diagonally to make two triangles. Brush both sides of each triangle with kirsch.
 In a 3-quart or larger freezer-proof clear glass dish, lay down a layer of moistened cake slices. Top with enough strawberry ice cream to cover cake completely. Be sure ice cream reaches to the edges of the dish. Scatter some berries over ice cream, especially at edges. Continue

 In a small bowl, whip the cream. Before serving cake, garnish with whipped cream rosettes and toasted almonds. Serve with Raspberry Puree.
 Serves 10 to 12.
 Note: To toast nuts: Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Spread nuts in a single layer in a baking pan. Toast 5 to 10 minutes or until nuts are lightly browned and fragrant. Watch them carefully; they burn easily.
Raspberry Puree
 One 12-ounce package frozen raspberries in syrup, thawed
 Superfine sugar, to taste
 Lemon juice or framboise, to taste
 Strain berries and syrup through a sieve to remove the seeds. Push through as much of the fruit as possible.
 Add sugar and lemon juice to taste.
 Makes about 1 cup.

Frozen Fruit Creams Are Low-Fat Desserts

NEW YORK (AP) — For those concerned about fat and cholesterol in their diets, the Canned Food Information Council has created refreshing frozen fruit creams.
 The Council says a frozen fruit cream has one-tenth the fat content of gourmet ice cream, one-fifth the fat content of regular ice cream and half the fat content of sherbet.
 The secret is canned sweetened condensed milk, which gives frozen fruit creams the same wonderful richness and smoothness as cream, but without the fat content. According to the Council, one 1/2-cup serving of a frozen fruit cream contains only 1.2 grams of fat.
 "For those who are concerned about cholesterol, frozen fruit creams offer the opportunity to eat and enjoy, with no guilt at all," a spokesman says.
 Frozen fruit creams are easy to make, yet elegant; they don't require the use of an ice-cream maker. Fruit creams can be drizzled with wildflower honey, chocolate syrup, or sprinkled with freshly grated nutmeg.
 To create these low-fat desserts, try the following recipes, provided by the Canned Food Information Council:

One 14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
1 cup canned pear nectar
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons lemon juice
4 egg whites, beaten to stiff peaks
 Process pears in blender until smooth. Add condensed milk, pear nectar, milk and lemon juice; process until blended, about 5 seconds. Pour mixture into a medium bowl and fold in egg whites. Pour mixture into 9- by 5- by 3-inch loaf pan and cover with aluminum foil. Freeze for 3-4 hours until slushy; beat mixture with electric mixer until fluffy.
 Freeze, covered, until firm, 8 hours or overnight. Makes 1 3/4 quarts.
 Variation: Add 1/4 to 1-3rd cup pear liqueur to the mixture in the blender.
FROZEN PEACH CREAM
Two 16-ounce cans yellow cling peaches in extra light syrup, drained
One 14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
1 cup peach nectar
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons lemon juice
4 egg whites, beaten to stiff peaks
 Process peaches in blender until smooth. Add condensed milk, peach nectar, milk and lemon juice; pro-

Marinate Meat To Make Up For Leaner Cuts

By Toni Tipton

L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Nearly everyone loves a summer barbecue. But in the quest for optimum health in recent years, dieters abstaining from red meat for health reasons (not vegetarians) have seared everything from fish and poultry to fruits and vegetables to satisfy a gut-wrenching craving for a thick, juicy steak hot off the grill.

The beef industry says we should no longer feel guilty about the desire to eat meat. And some health organizations have given the nod of approval to beef, provided that it is lean.

Because beef is coming to market leaner these days, the desire to enjoy beef and still watch one's weight can be compatible goals. Today's cattle are much more muscular than in the 1950s, according to the National Livestock and Meat Board. There is less fat on today's cattle, and at the same time there is an additional 75 pounds of lean meat on the average carcass, the board reports.

Because of this, the beef found in the supermarket meat case no longer possesses the large amount of natural tenderizer — namely fat — it once did whether it is there as trimmable or as marbled fat. In fact, with the beef industry reducing the lean-to-fat ratio of their product even further through breeding and nutrition, it is likely that cooks will be hard-pressed to find tasty and convenient uses for such svelte cuts.

Marinating is one solution to the dilemma of preparing this lean meat. The process is two-fold: meat is soaked in a seasoned liquid, made with a wide variety of herbs and spices, vinegars, juices and wines, which not only impart a desired flavor but tenderize the meat. By allowing the cut to rest a minimum of six to eight hours or a maximum of 24 hours in the marinade, the liquid soaks into the muscle fibers and breaks down the protein. Enzymes from tropical plants and other acidic ingredients, such as soured milk products (yogurt and buttermilk) are particularly effective. Bottled marinades are also an option.

Marinating eliminates the need for rich sauces and gravies once associated with beef dinners, a boon to calorie-counters. To reduce fat further, employ light cooking methods — such as grilling and broiling — that limit the use or addition of extra fat and be sure to keep portion size as close to 3 ounces as possible. This is easy to do by offering a wide selection of vegetables on the menu.

—A marinade can contain combinations and varying amounts of seasonings, oil and acidic liquids.

—Allow about 1-3 to 1/2 cup marinade per pound of beef.

—Marinades may be cooked or uncooked.

—Cooked marinades add the most flavor to meat. They are preferred for marinating that exceeds 12 hours. Cook the marinade in advance, chill, then combine with the meat. Reduce the acidic ingredient slightly in the marinade if the beef cut will be marinated longer than 24 hours.

—Marinate in a securely closed plastic bag or covered utility dish in the refrigerator.

—The penetration of the tenderizing effect of marinades is usually about 1/4-inch deep from the cut surface of the meat.

—During long marinating times, turn the beef several times so that all sides of the meat are exposed to the marinade.

—Remaining marinade may be brushed on beef during broiling or grilling and may be made into a finishing sauce, unless it contains ingredients that burn easily like tomato sauce or sugar. These types must be brushed on only during the last 20 minutes of cooking.

—Any remaining marinade that will be prepared as a sauce, must be cooked thoroughly before serving.

CURRIED STUFFED STEAK
1 1/2 pounds top round steak
1/4 cup shelled pistachio nuts or almonds, chopped
1/4 cup raisins, chopped
1 1/2 cups plain low-fat yogurt
1/4 cup chopped onion
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons curry powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
Cut deep pocket in steak. Mix nuts, raisins and 1/4 cup yogurt. Fill pocket of steak with nut mixture. Close pocket with wood picks.
Mix remaining yogurt, onion, lemon juice, curry powder and salt. Place steak in glass bowl and pour yogurt over mixture. Cover and refrigerate at least 4 hours, no longer 24 hours.

Place steak on grill 4 inches from medium-hot coals. Cook 15 minutes per side for rare or until desired doneness. Baste with marinade during cooking. Makes 6 servings.

MEXICAN STEAK AND VEGETABLES
2 tablespoons olive oil

1 tablespoon lime juice
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
2 teaspoons ground cumin
1 1/2 teaspoons ground chili powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 clove garlic, minced
1 (1 1/2- to 2-pound) round steak, cut 1-inch thick
1 large onion, cut into 8 wedges
1 medium green pepper, cut into 8 wedges
1/2 teaspoon dried oregano leaves
1/4 teaspoon black pepper

Combine 1 tablespoon oil, lime juice, vinegar, 1 teaspoon cumin, chili powder, salt, cayenne pepper and garlic. Place steak and marinade in plastic bag or utility dish, turning to coat. Tie bag securely or cover dish and refrigerate 6 to 8 hours, turning at least once.

Remove steak and reserve marinade. Place steak on broiler rack or over hot coals so that surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from heat. Cook 8 to 10 minutes, turn and cook on other side 8 to 10 minutes longer, or to desired doneness. Brush with reserved marinade occasionally.

Meanwhile, heat remaining oil and cumin over medium high heat in large heavy non-stick skillet. Add onion and green pepper and saute 5 to 7 minutes. Add tomato, oregano and pepper and heat through. Carve steak into thin slices and serve with vegetables. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

STUFFED TERIYAKI STEAKS
2 (1-pound) boneless beef sirloin steaks, cut 1/2-inch thick
1/2 cup bottled teriyaki barbecue marinade and sauce
6 green onions
Pound each steak evenly to 1/4-inch thickness. Spread steaks out in large pan and pour in teriyaki sauce. Turn to coat each piece. Marinate 15 minutes, turning steaks occasionally.

Meanwhile, place onions in shallow pan. Pour enough boiling water over onions to cover, then drain immediately and cool. Remove steaks from marinade and spread out flat. Place 3 onions lengthwise in center of each steak.

Roll steaks, lengthwise, jellyroll fashion around onions. Secure with string or wood picks. Place rolls on grill 4 to 6 inches from hot coals. Cook 10 to 12 minutes per side for rare or to desired doneness, turning rolls over frequently. To serve, cut rolls crosswise into 3-inch pieces, removing string or picks. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

SALSA MARINADE
1/2 cup medium-hot salsa
1/3 cup lime juice
2 tablespoons hoisin sauce
1 tablespoon oil
2 teaspoons grated ginger root
Combine salsa, lime juice, hoisin sauce, oil and ginger. Use as marinade for beef chuck steak, flank steak, beef cube kebabs or boneless chuck roast. Makes about 1 cup.

LEMON-PEPPER MARINADE
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/4 cup water
1 tablespoon oil
1/2 teaspoon fresh dill weed
1/2 teaspoon cracked black pepper
1/2 teaspoon salt
Combine lemon juice, water, oil, dill, pepper and salt. Use as marinade for smaller cuts such as flank steak, shoulder steaks or eye round steaks. Makes 1/2 cup.

RED WINE MARINADE
1 cup dry red wine
3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
2 tablespoons coarse grain mustard
2 tablespoons oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon cracked black pepper
Combine wine, vinegar, mustard, oil, garlic, sugar and pepper in 2-cup microwave-safe glass measure. Cover with plastic, venting 1 corner. Microwave on HIGH (100 percent) 3 to 4 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool thoroughly before using. Use as marinade on larger cuts of beef such as eye round roast, 1 1/2-inch thick top round or chuck steaks or larger cube kebabs. Makes about 1 1/4 cups.

Rice Is Becoming Choice Of People Who Watch What They Eat

Brown rice retains a natural coating of bran, which provides slightly more fiber.

There are 20 different varieties of rice in the United States, but "we seem to prefer a separate grain," which is provided through long grain rice and useful in making a pilaf, Ms. Heathe said.

Asians seem to prefer the medium to shorter grains because it clings together and is easier to use with chopsticks. The shorter grain varieties may be more useful in making puddings.

Try some of the accompanying rice recipes provided by the Rice Council.

BURNT STRAWBERRY CREAM
3 cups cooked rice
3 cups milk
1/3 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese, room temperature
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 package (16 ounces) frozen sweetened whole strawberries (thaw, drain and slice in half)
1/3 cup brown sugar

Combine rice, milk, sugar and salt in saucepan. Cook over medium heat until thick and creamy, about 30 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from heat. Add cream cheese, broken in small pieces, and vanilla. Stir until cheese is dissolved. Chill. Fold in whipped cream. Chill thoroughly. Arrange strawberries over the bottom of a 12x8x2-inch baking dish. Spoon pudding over berries. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Place under broiler for 1 to 2 minutes or just until sugar melts. Or use 8 individual oven-proof dishes. Serve immediately. Makes 8 servings.

MARINATED VEGETABLE SALAD
1/4 cup olive oil
1/4 cup dry white wine
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
1 tablespoon snipped fresh parsley
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon each salt and crushed dried basil leaves
1 cup avocado chunks
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
3/4 cup halved cherry tomatoes
1/2 cup sliced ripe olives
1/3 cup chopped red onion
3 cups cooked rice, cooled
Red onion rings for garnish
To make dressing, combine oil, wine, vinegar, parsley, sugar, salt and basil in screw top jar. Pour dressing over avocado, mushrooms, cherry tomatoes, olives and onion in a shallow dish. Cover and chill 2 to 3 hours. Add rice; toss lightly. Garnish with red onion rings.

CREAM DE RIZ TORTE
1/4 cup seedless raisins
3 tablespoons almond-flavored liqueur
2 cups cooked rice
1/4 cup sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 cup each milk and heavy cream
2 egg yolks, beaten
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
19-inch tart or pastry shell, baked
2 egg whites

Soak raisins in liqueur one hour. Combine rice, sugar, salt, milk, cream, raisins, and liqueur in 2 to 3-quart saucepan. Cook over medium heat until thick and creamy, stirring frequently. Remove from heat; whisk in egg yolks, butter and vanilla. Turn into tart shell; set aside. Beat egg whites and cream of tartar in small bowl until frothy. Gradually add sugar, beating continuously, until stiff peaks form. Using pastry bag, decorate top of hot pudding with meringue; sprinkle meringue with almonds. Bake at 400 degrees 3 to 5 minutes or until meringue is lightly browned. Makes 8 servings.

RICE-STUFFED FISH FILLETS WITH MUSHROOM SAUCE
Rice-Stuffed Fish Fillets:
2 cups cooked rice
1/4 cup diced pimientos
2 tablespoons snipped fresh parsley
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1/4 teaspoon each salt and ground white pepper
1 1/2 pounds whitefish fillets
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1/4 teaspoon paprika
Lemon slices for garnish
Mushroom sauce:
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
1/2 cup sliced green onions, including tops
1/2 cup white wine Worcestershire sauce
1/2 cup light cream
To prepare fillets, combine rice, pimientos, parsley, lemon peel, salt and pepper in large mixing bowl.

Place fillets in buttered shallow baking dish. Spoon rice mixture on lower portion of each fillet. Fold over to enclose rice mixture; fasten with wooden picks. Brush fillets with butter; sprinkle with seasoned salt and paprika. Bake at 350 degrees 25 to 30 minutes or until fish flakes easily with fork. Make mushroom sauce while fillets are baking. Transfer fillets to serving platter; garnish platter with lemon slices. Serve fillets with mushroom sauce.

To prepare mushroom sauce, cook mushrooms and onions in butter in a large skillet until tender. Add Worcestershire and 1/2 cup water and bring to a boil. Reduce sauce slightly. Stir in cream; keep warm. Makes 4 servings.

WESTERN BEANS AND RICE
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 cup chopped onions
1 cup sliced celery
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1/2 cup water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 to 1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
3 cups drained cooked or canned pinto beans (or any type of bean)
3 cups hot cooked brown rice
In large skillet, cook onions and celery in oil until tender. Stir in tomato sauce, water, seasonings and beans. Heat thoroughly. Serve over fluffy rice. Makes 6 servings.

PORK FRIED RICE
3 tablespoons vegetable oil, divided
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup diced fully cooked ham or raw boneless pork
1 cup finely chopped fresh mushrooms
1/2 cup thinly sliced green onions, including tops
3 cups cooked brown rice, cooled
1 tablespoon soy sauce
In large skillet or wok, heat 1 tablespoon oil over medium heat. Add eggs and cook without stirring until set. Invert skillet over baking sheet to remove cooked eggs; cut into 1 1/2x1 1/2-inch strips. In same skillet, heat remaining oil over medium-high heat. Stir-fry ham, mushrooms and green onions in oil for three minutes, or until mushrooms and onions are tender. Stir in cooked rice and egg strips; sprinkle with soy sauce. Toss lightly. Heat thoroughly. Makes 4 servings.

ITALIAN-STYLE ZUCCHINI BAKE
1/2 pound lean ground beef

1 cup chopped onions
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 pound zucchini, sliced
3 cups cooked rice
1 cup grated Monterey Jack (4 ounces)
4 eggs, beaten
3/4 cup milk
1 tablespoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 cup (15 ounces) tomato sauce
1/2 teaspoon each basil, oregano and seasoned pepper
1 teaspoon garlic salt
Cook beef, onions and garlic until met loses its red color. Add zucchini, cover, and cook 3 or 4 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in rice and Monterey Jack cheese; mix well. Combine eggs, milk, salt and pepper. Stir into rice mixture. Turn into a greased shallow 2-quart casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until set. Meanwhile, blend tomato sauce and seasonings. Simmer about 5 minutes. Cut zucchini mixture into squares and serve with tomato sauce. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

POLYNESIAN CHICKEN AND RICE
1 1/2 pounds skinned and boned

chicken breasts, cut in 1 1/2-inch pieces
Salt (optional)
Ground black pepper
2 tablespoons cornstarch, divided
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 can (16 ounces) sliced peaches in juice (drain; reserve juice)
1 can (8 ounces) no-salt-added tomato sauce
2 tablespoons low-sodium soy sauce
1 medium green pepper, coarsely chopped
3 cups hot cooked rice
Sprinkle chicken with salt, pepper and 1 tablespoon cornstarch. In large non-stick skillet cook chicken and onion in oil until chicken is slightly browned. Blend reserved juice, tomato sauce, soy sauce and remaining cornstarch; add to chicken. Cook, stirring, until thickened and bubbly. Add peaches and green pepper. Simmer 5 minutes or until pepper is tender crisp. Serve over beds of fluffy rice. Makes 6 servings.

RICE TACO SALAD
1 pound ground beef
1/2 onion, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
2 cups cooked rice
1/2 head lettuce, shredded
2 tomatoes, coarsely chopped
1/2 cup grated Cheddar cheese
1 large avocado, peeled, seeded and diced
1/4 cup sour cream
In large skillet cook over medium-high heat until browned, stirring to crumble. Add onion and garlic and cook until soft but not brown. Discard excess fat, if any. Add salt, pepper, cumin and rice. Remove from heat; cool. Combine lettuce, tomatoes, cheese, avocado and meat mixture. Add sour cream and toss lightly. Serve immediately with piquante sauce and corn chips, if desired.

QUICK SKILLET SAUSAGE
1 pound bulk pork sausage
1 medium onion, chopped
3 cups cooked rice
1 can (15 ounces) pinto beans
1 to 3 tablespoons chopped jalapenos
In 10-inch skillet cook sausage until brown, stirring to crumble. Pour off fat and return 2 tablespoons to skillet. Add onion and cook until soft but not brown. Stir in rice, beans and jalapenos; heat thoroughly. Makes 6 servings.

Ice Cream Hits Spot

In the heat of the summer, there's no better way to cool off than an ice cold drink, a big scoop of ice cream, or a combination of the two.

CREAMY MELON BALL
2 ounces Midori
1 ounce Suntory Vodka (optional)
4 ounces orange, pineapple or grapefruit juice
1 scoop vanilla ice cream
Pour Midori, vodka and juice in a tall glass and drop in a scoop of vanilla ice cream.

MARGARITA SLUSH
2 ounces Midori

1 1/2 ounces tequila
1 1/2 ounces sweet and sour mix
1 scoop of lemon or lime sherbert
Blend all ingredients together with crushed ice.

GREEN FREEZE
2 ounces Midori
4 ounces pineapple juice
1 heaping scoop of vanilla ice cream
Blend all ingredients together with crushed ice.

MELON POPS
Using an ice pop mold, fill each individual mold with one part Midori and three parts of your favorite juice. Freeze.

No-Bake Cookies Are Just Right For Summer

By Mary Maushard
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

"No-bake" is almost a magic word in summer. And here is double magic: something sweet that you do not have to bake. This may just be the perfect July recipe: No-bake cookies. It comes in answer to a request from Susan Helt of Baltimore for something she called Peanut Butter Delights.

For Lucille Burch of Baltimore, the name is different, but the ingredients the same. Here it is.

NO-BAKE PEANUT BUTTER AND OATMEAL COOKIES

In a pan, mix:
2 cups white sugar
1/4 cup cocoa
1/2 cup milk
1/4 pound margarine
Heat mixture and cook until it boils. Remove from heat and cool one minute. Then add:
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon salt, optional
1/2 cup peanut butter
3 cups quick-cooking meal
Drop mixture by teaspoonfuls onto wax paper. Let cool until set.

This is not exactly a warm-weather recipe, but it sounds inviting just the same. Old-Fashioned Tapioca Cream, as requested by Sally Hunter of Baltimore. The following recipe comes from Sandra Forsberg of Pikesville, Md., who is also looking for help in finding the key ingredient. Can anybody help?

The recipe is from the "New York Times Natural Foods Cookbook." "It is one of my husband's favorite desserts and is really delicious," Forsberg writes.

"Now if Ms. Hunter or one of your other readers can help me find pearl tapioca, I would be most appreciative. Quick-cooking tapioca seems to be the only product carried by local stores. Help! My husband misses this dessert."

OLD-FASHIONED TAPIOCA CREAM

Water
4 cups milk
4 eggs, lightly beaten
3/4 cup raw sugar (I use regular sugar)
1/4 teaspoon sea salt (I omit this or you could use regular salt)
1 teaspoon vanilla
Place tapioca in the top of a double boiler. Add water to cover and let stand for two hours.

Drain excess water. Add the milk and cook, covered, over boiling water until tapioca is transparent, about one hour.

Beat together the eggs, sugar, and salt. Gradually beat in the tapioca. Return to the double boiler and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Do not allow to boil or it will curdle. Stir in vanilla and serve warm. Makes six servings.

Here is a recipe for crab-stuffed shrimp from Cassandra Bias of Baltimore. This answers a long-ago request from Mrs. James Bartucca of Baltimore.

SAVORY STUFFED SHRIMP

1 1/2 cups crab meat
3/4 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
3/4 cup evaporated milk
1 1/2 sticks margarine
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons Heinz 57 sauce
1/4 cup chopped green onion
2 large cloves garlic, minced
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon Cayenne pepper
12 jumbo or 24 large fresh raw shrimp
Heat oven to 350 degrees.

Combine stuffing ingredients, except shrimp and 1/4 cup margarine. Reserve margarine. Refrigerate mixture.

Peel, devein and rinse shrimp. Make a shallow lengthwise cut along inner curve of each shrimp. Place shrimp cut-side up in greased baking dish. Fill with stuffing. Brush shrimp with reserved margarine. Bake 12 to 20 minutes, depending on shrimp size.

Crab Sauce
3 tablespoons margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup evaporated milk
1/2 cup shredded cheese

1 tablespoon Heinz 57 sauce
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup crab meat
Lemon slices for garnish
In a 2-quart saucepan over medium heat, melt margarine; stir in flour. Slowly add milk. Stir constantly; mixture will thicken. Add cheese, Heinz 57 sauce and salt. Remove from heat. Stir in crabmeat. Spoon sauce over shrimp. Garnish with lemon slices. Makes six servings.

Here is another one from way back, for Morris Greenberg of Baltimore. This recipe comes from Elizabeth Valenti of Riderwood, Md.

STUFFED TURKEY LOAF
2 pounds ground turkey (2 rolls)

1/2 cup chopped onion
3/4 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup butter
3 cups prepared stuffing mix
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup tomato juice
Brown onion and celery in butter in medium-hot skillet. Combine with stuffing mix, eggs, and water to make stuffing. Add half of stuffing to ground turkey, mix well. Pat out half of meat mixture in a 2-quart loaf pan.

Spread with stuffing, then top with remaining meat mixture. Pour tomato juice over loaf, and bake 350 degrees for 1 1/2 hours. Makes 8-10 servings.

Brown Rice Salad

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens Magazine Food Editor

Here's the ideal salad to accompany grilled chicken or beef. Because it's made ahead and needs no last-minute preparation, you can bring it to the table as the meat comes off the grill.

SUMMER BROWN RICE SALAD

1 cup regular or quick-cooking brown rice
2 large tomatoes, seeded and coarsely chopped
1/2 cup thinly sliced green onion
3 tablespoons olive oil or salad oil
3 tablespoons balsamic vinegar or cider vinegar
1 tablespoon capers
Lettuce leaves
Cook rice according to package directions; cool to room temperature. In a 1 1/2-quart bowl combine tomato, green onion, oil, vinegar and capers. Add rice; toss to coat. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Cover and chill in the refrigerator for several hours. To serve, stir salad; spoon into lettuce-lined bowl. Makes 8 servings.

Double Coupon Gimmick Means

CEREALS COST $14.95 MORE AT KROGER

Kroger has recently been advertising Double Coupons. However, the problem with Double Coupons is that they end up costing you more money for groceries. In order to give you 50¢ for a 25¢ coupon, for example, Kroger has to make up the extra 25¢ by charging you more for the other groceries you buy. For example, a recent comparison of cereal prices shows Kroger charged $14.95 more for the same cereal items than Food Lion. At Food Lion we don't believe in gimmicks like Double Coupons. But we do believe in Extra Low Prices on all the groceries you buy. And when you shop at Food Lion you'll discover a lower total food bill - without gimmicks like double coupons.
