Iran, Iraq Move Closer To Ending War

Cease-Fire Could Be Called In Two Weeks

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar says he expects a truce in the Iran-Iraq war in two weeks, now that Iran has agreed to Iraq's compromise proposal that direct peace talks quickly follow a cease-fire.

Perez de Cuellar's announcement that he would today set a cease-fire date capped a weekend flurry of diplomatic activity that ended a deadlock in nearly two weeks of U.N.-mediated truce talks.

"I have informed the Security Council that the two sides agreed with a cease-fire followed by direct talks under my auspices," he told reporters Sunday after a full day of talks with Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati of Iran and Ambassador Ismat Kittani of Iraq.

"In principle, I will announce the cease-fire tomorrow."

The U.N. chief said it would take about two weeks to deploy the 250 United Nations peacekeeping troops from 24 countries who will monitor the truce along the 730-mile front.

In Tehran today, President Ali Khamenei declared the war is "apparently coming to a close" and said international public opinion had forced Iraq to drop its demand for direct talks before a cease-fire.

But he said in a speech to a gathering of Islamic scholars and specialists in Third World issues that he doubts Iraq is genuinely interested in peace.

Perez de Cuellar's cease-fire announcement was expected this afternoon, when the Security Council convenes to consider the logistics of setting up a $40 million peacekeeping force.

He has said he also expects to announce dates for other provisions of Resolution 598, the cease-fire and peace plan passed by the Security Council a year ago.

The plan's provisions include troop withdrawal to international boundaries and repatriation of prisoners taken in the 8-year-old war, which has claimed an estimated 1 million dead and wounded.

The U.N. chief said the date and place for direct talks had not yet been decided.

His announcement came after Velayati delivered what amounted to Iran's formal acceptance of the compromise proposal Saturday by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein that a cease-fire be followed rapidly by direct talks on a lasting peace. The U.N. peace talks, which began after Iran reversed itself and announced July 18 that it would accept Resolution 598, had faltered over Iraq's demand for face-to-face talks before a cease-fire.

tani declared Sunday as he entered a meeting with Perez de Cuellar: "It's a very good day. I think we are on the road to peace."

As he left, he said he had a good meeting, but when asked if he was satisfied, he said, "That's something else."

Leader Says War Nears End, But Questions Iraq's Sincerity

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — President Ali Khamenei said today his country's 8-year-old war with Iraq appears to be coming to a close and claimed world opinion prompted Baghdad to drop its demand for direct talks before a cease-fire.

But Khamenei questioned Iraq's sincerity in wanting peace.

His first public reference to the expected end of the fighting, Khamenei's comments came at the opening of an international conference of Islamic scholars and specialists in Third World issues.

He said the "gathering fortunately is taking place in days when the war that lasted eight years is apparently coming to a close."

"There is no doubt that the international public opinion put pressure on Iraq," Khamenei said in his 40-minute speech. "It is under that pressure that Iraq was finally forced to accept a cease-fire."

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar announced Sunday that both sides had agreed to a truce that is to take hold in about two weeks.

Iran had accepted Iraq's compromise offer that direct talks on a lasting peace immediately follow a cease-fire. Before making the offer Saturday, Iraq had insisted that direct talks precede a cease-fire.

Speaking without a prepared text, Khamenei said Iraq hesitated to accept the cease-fire because it wanted to dictate conditions for peace. Since the spring, Iran has suffered a string of battlefield defeats.

"It would be good for the international community to question their kind of approach," he said. "It is this regime that should be doubted. And its true devotion to peace should be looked upon with great doubt."

Iraq launched a major offensive against Iran shortly after Tehran reversed itself and accepted a year-old U.N. cease-fire resolution last month.

Meanwhile, the official Islamic Republic News Agency said today that three people were wounded on Sunday in three hours of Iraqi shelling across the northern border.

The Iranian capital is still dressed for war, but headlines point to progress toward a cease-fire and the country's battered economy has

Bush, Dukakis Fire Criticisms

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — George Bush began a second week of attacking rival Michael Dukakis as dangerously "unexperienced" in defense and foreign policy matters, and promised a Republican platform that draws sharp distinctions with the Democrats.

Dukakis, whose campaign countered Sunday that Bush's "resume didn't help him when it mattered," planned to spend the day working at the Statehouse in Boston as President Reagan appeared before the rest of the nation's governors at their annual meeting in Cincinnati.

The vice president was set for an unusual personal appearance by a presidential candidate before the Republican National Convention's platform committee. In remarks Sunday, he promised to continue his barrage of attacks on the Democratic presidential nominee.

Bush, who is trailing Dukakis in national polls by up to 17 points, said: "It has to be done. And once it's done, the polls will take care of themselves."

The GOP platform, free of controversy within the party, will highlight differences with the Democrats.

"I think the country is entitled to know the specifics," Bush said after going to church near his home in Kennebunkport, Maine. "The governor of Massachusetts says he is a liberal, says he is a card-carrying member of the ACLU (the American Civil Liberties Union), and that didn't come out of the convention."

Bush even added new heat to his attacks on Dukakis' foreign policy experience.

"We can't risk the peace and national security of this country on someone as unexperienced as the governor of Massachusetts," the GOP nominee-to-be said.

Dukakis campaign manager Susan Estrich responded by saying Bush

Shultz Escapes Bomb Blast

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz narrowly escaped an assassination attempt today when a bomb exploded near his motorcade. A window of his wife's car was shattered, but she was not injured.

The bomb, which went off on the outskirts of the Bolivian capital as Shultz and his party were driving in from the airport, blew a hole in the road and scattered chunks of pavement over a wide area.

President Reagan's spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, said in Ohio that three cars in the motorcade were damaged.

The explosion occurred seconds after Shultz's car passed over the road but before all 15 cars in the motorcade had gone by. Shultz and his wife, Helena, were traveling in separate cars.

No injuries were reported in the explosion, which was seen by this reporter from a vantage point four or five cars behind Shultz.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the bombing. Bolivia has no major organized anti-government guerrilla movement. However, U.S. efforts to stem Bolivia's thriving cocaine trade have fueled anti-American sentiment.

After the blast, police immediately closed off the highway and climbed a nearby hill to search for the bombers. They found a wire which they said had denoted the bomb by remote control.

Shultz was riding in one of the first few cars of the motorcade. Riding in

Big Cars Shine In Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The owners of 1988 passenger vans and large sedans are likely to have fewer damage claims and lower repair bills, while those who own sports cars and some compact cars may not be as lucky, according to an insurance industry report.

The study by the Highway Loss Data Institute, an insurance research group, examined both the frequency of insurance collision claims and the average amount of the claim for 60 new cars that had repairs paid through insurance policies during the first nine months of the 1988 model year.

"Even among cars of the same size class and body style there were large variations in results," the insurance group said. But it said that in general, larger cars had a better collision loss record than smaller vehicles.

The average claim payment ranged from $800 to $3,500, depending on the type of vehicle. The frequency of claims ranged from six to nearly 17 per 100 vehicles, the study said.

The study did not provide dollar amounts for all vehicle claims, but said the average repair bill for the 60 cars was $1,921. The average number of claims filed was 11.1 per 100 insured vehicles.

It singled out the Chevrolet Astro van as having the lowest average loss payment per claim, 60 percent lower than average for all passenger vehicles examined. The Jaguar XJ6 had the highest, 83 percent higher than average for all cars, while the Mazda MX-6 and the Ford Mustang also had average repair costs per claim that were at least 50 percent higher than average.

The study said the passenger vehicles with "substantially better than average" results in both frequency of claims and average cost of repairs also were vans — the Plymouth Grand Voyager and Dodge Caravan — and two large, 4-door sedans — the

Prince Andrew, 'Fergie' May Greet Firstborn Today

LONDON (AP) — The Duchess of York, wife of Prince Andrew, was admitted to Portland Hospital in London this morning for the birth of their first child.

Andrew drove the 28-year-old duchess to the rear entrance of the private hospital from Castlewood House at Egham in Surrey, 21 miles west of London, which the couple are renting.

The 28-year-old prince, a Royal Navy lieutenant, returned to London on Sunday from Singapore, where he has been on duty with the ship HMS Edinburgh, to be on hand for the birth.

The duchess was admitted to the hospital shortly after 10 a.m. (5 a.m. EDT).

Most photographers who have been camped in front of the hospital for weeks missed the arrival. Even the few who were outside the rear entrance said they caught only a glimpse of the duchess as the car sped inside.

Poll: Equality Closer, Not Close Enough

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans believe the United States has moved toward racial equality during the past quarter century, but a majority say society remains racist overall, a Media General-Associated Press poll has found.

Twenty-five years after the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. declared his dream of equal opportunity, more than eight in 10 respondents in the poll said the goal is closer and seven in 10 said it is attainable.

But while 54 percent said blacks and other minorities have the same opportunities as whites in the United States, a sizable 42 percent of all respondents, including 69 percent of blacks, disagreed.

There were other measures of concern over inequality found by the national survey of 1,223 adults. Among them:

— Respondents were evenly divided on whether minorities receive equal treatment in the nation's criminal justice system, and three in 10 said minorities are denied justice because of their race.

— Of those who said racial equality can be achieved, four in 10 said it would not occur within their lifetimes.

— Majorities in all education, income and ideological groups, and all but the oldest age group, said American society is racist overall. Fifty-three percent of whites agreed, as did 68 percent of blacks. In all, 55 percent said society is racist, 37 percent said not and the rest had no opinion.

It was a quarter century ago, in August 1963, that King delivered his celebrated "I have a dream" speech to 200,000 demonstrators in Washington, establishing civil rights at the forefront of the nation's social agenda.

"I have a dream that one day on the red hills of Georgia sons of former slaves and sons of former slave owners will be able to sit down together at the table of brotherhood,"

King said. "I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character."

The Civil Rights Act became law a year later, prompting sweeping changes in the then-segregated South. But many Americans in the poll, particularly the better-educated, indicated that the advances are not complete.

The Media General-AP poll consisted of telephone interviews June 22-July 2 with a randomly selected sample of adults across the nation, and had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Asbestos Survey To Cost Schools $8.4 Million

GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina school systems will spend about $8.4 million in the next nine months to map out asbestos in schools and present the state with detailed plans of what they will do with the hazardous material.

They will be joined by schools across the nation that are spending a total of about $5 billion to comply by May 1989 with the Environmental Protection Agency's latest asbestos ruling, the Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act.

The EPA issued the law in October 1987, tightening its requirements on asbestos, a fibrous mineral frequently used by builders for insulation, fire prevention, decoration and noise control.

Studies show that asbestos, when disturbed, can release invisible fibers into the air. People inhaling strands may develop lung diseases 15 to 40 years after exposure, said Jim Littell, regional asbestos coordinator with the EPA in Atlanta.

The EPA focused on classrooms for asbestos reforms because "schools are where the youngest lungs go to hang out," Littell said.

Since 1983, laws have required schools to survey and keep files on the location of friable asbestos — a soft material sprayed on ceilings and pipes like cotton candy — and inform parents of its presence.

"That regulation failed pretty miserably," Littell said. "We went into schools and found they weren't in compliance; they weren't making the reviews."

Littell conceded that one reason was because the EPA, which can fine schools up to $5,000 a day for non-compliance, often reduced penalties to $100 or $200 if school officials agreed to make changes.

The new law, called AHERA, demands that each school system send its state a listing of all asbestos — friable and non-friable (hard) — contained in its buildings by Oct. 12, 1988, or by May 9, 1989, if officials apply for a recently approved extension.

The law says schools must hire professionals to survey and make samples of asbestos. The schools must submit plans detailing how they will monitor the material, making sure it doesn't become exposed or damaged, which can happen through general use of a building, Littell said.

Educators must also describe how they will remove asbestos — again, using trained personnel — when a disturbance causes the threat of floating fibers.

Schools must implement the plans by July 9, 1989. Littell says the EPA will begin a new round of inspections in June. This time, it will stand firm on $5,000 penalties — and may give some $25,000 fines if school systems purposely submit false inspection records, Littell said.

North Carolina schools will submit their plans to Howard Bridges, manager of the Asbestos in Buildings Program with the N.C. Division of Health Services in Raleigh. Bridges supports the program but agrees it will be costly.

He predicts schools will pay millions more to remove damaged or exposed asbestos in the future, at an average price of $10 per square foot.

For now, school systems are shouldering the expense — sometimes unbudgeted — of compiling surveys, samples and management plans. Firms charge anywhere from 3 cents to 11 cents per square foot for the work, Bridges said, and North Carolina schools take up about 140 million square feet of space.

In Guilford County, schools will spend $143,000 for asbestos surveys, samples and management plans. Greensboro public schools will spend up to $87,500, said Sidney Woody, director of maintenance and facilities.

The costs of the program worry Ralph Self, a consulting engineer with the N.C. Division of School Planning in Raleigh.

"The immediate impact will be the cost of the plans," Self said. "The long-term impact I don't think anyone can forecast at this time. It will be extensive."

Retirement Bill

Rep. Ed N. Warren sponsored legislation in the 1988 short session of the General Assembly which increases the retirement benefit formula from 1.58 percent to 1.60 percent of an employee's salary at retirement for each year of service.

The change provides a 1.2 percent increase in an employee's future retirement benefit.

The bill provides a 1.2 percent increase in the benefits for currently retired employees who retired with a benefit formula of less than 1.60 percent. It also allows unused sick leave at retirement to meet service requirements for an early reduced benefit.

In addition to the retirement formula increase, retirees received a 3.6 percent across the board increase.

Fatigue Of Overworked Technicians May Explain Pap Test Inaccuracies

GREENSBORO (AP) — The field of cytotechnology until recently had almost no visibility. It's getting more attention now, but not for the best of reasons.

Cytotechnologists spend most of each day at a microscope, sorting through thousands of cells on glass slides. They make many subjective judgements, trying to figure out which slides, taken from Pap Smears, may carry signs of cervical cancer.

The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists suggests that Pap test failure rates may be as high as 40 percent because of fatigued cytotechnicians who miss atypical cells and careless doctors who take inadequate samples from the woman's genital tract.

In the past, the test has had a remarkable record for saving thousands of women from cervical cancer.

Cytotechs spend an average of four minutes per slide looking for subtleties that might represent cancer or a precursor to cancer.

Commercial laboratories gobbling up much of the lucrative Pap test market have cast a cloud over Pap test accuracy and have drawn increased attention from doctors, lawyers and lawmakers. Some labs promise overnight results, and they profit on charges as low as $3 a test.

Some labs produce the tests quickly and cheaply by pressuring cytotechs to screen 100 to 200 Pap slides a day, the newspaper reported.

Most medical experts agree cytotechs should be limited to 80 to 100 Pap slides a day. Because screening more increases the chance of fatigue and lost concentration, the cytotechs may miss a crucial clue that might signal a precancerous condition, they say.

At Duke Medical Center in Durham, North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill and Moses Cone Memorial Hospital in Greensboro, cytotechs average 60 to 80 Pap slides a day.

And yet 100 Pap slides a day is the "gold standard" at many large commercial labs — the minimum that supervisors expect, according to several cytotechs who work in Piedmont labs.

Rep. David Price, D-N.C., serves on a congressional subcommittee that has studied instances in which Pap tests fail to detect cancer or precancerous lesions 25 percent of the time.

"That's just unacceptable," Price said. "An inaccuracy rate that high on a test that serious is creating a great deal of anxiety."

Some 125 cytotechs work in North Carolina hospitals, physicians' offices, health departments and private commercial labs. About one-fourth are employed at Roche and National Health Laboratories Inc. in Winston-Salem.

Those two labs draw customers throughout the Southeast. Roche screens 300,000 Pap Smears a year; National Health screens 250,000 a year. The labs are fiercely competitive. They have discounted Pap prices to as low as $3 each in their battle for clients.

Robbery Reported Sunday

Several incidents were investigated by Greenville police on Sunday, including a robbery and trespassing swimmers.

Officer J.K. McCarthy said a man was robbed in an incident that occurred behind the Fast Fare at Second and Cotanche streets reported at 4:46 a.m. Officer McCarthy said the victim was hit on the head by two men who took his watch, $20 in cash, and a gold chain. Total value of the items taken was estimated at $430.

Officer K.L. Jones said Jeffrey Todd Vaughan, 20, of 202 S. David Drive in Farmville and Mark Wayne Wooten, 19, of Route 8, Box 255 in Greenville were both arrested and charged with second degree trespassing after being found swimming at the Brookhill Townhouse pool in an incident reported at 10:36 p.m.

Officer Alexander Batts said James Byron Baugh, 19, of 813 College View Apartments was arrested for breaking and entering in connection with an incident on Fifth Street reported at 3:25 a.m.

Officer C.G. Alphin said Roderick Glenn Joyner, 22, of 2123 S. Village Drive was arrested for injury to property at 9:58 a.m. in regard to an estimated $600 damage caused to an automobile along 10th Street at 4:31 a.m.

Officer E.M. Haddock said Charles Daniels, 30, of 127 Avery St. apartment 4, was arrested for assault on a female at 7:55 a.m.

In other incidents Sunday, Officer C.S. Candler said a personalized license plate was taken from a car parked at Eastbrook Apartments in an incident reported at 10:36 a.m., while Officer T.A. Lee said $327 worth of fishing equipment was taken from a storage shed at 206 Woodhaven Road in an incident at 9:15 p.m.

Officer K.M. Smeltzer said a steak and a pot roast were reportedly taken from the Food Lion on Red Banks Road in an incident at 4:20 p.m., while Officer M.J. Nobles said a window pane on the front door of a residence at 1203 E. Fifth St. was broken in an incident at 6:07 p.m.

PTL Sale Would Take Weeks To Complete

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — Even after officials of the troubled PTL ministry decide which of several purchase offers to accept, the sale of PTL couldn't be completed before late September at the earliest, participants in the process say.

Samoth Capital Corp. of Canada agreed Friday to buy the PTL assets for $113 million by Sept. 16, if, after looking them over, its officers like what they see.

Samoth Capital Corp.'s chief officers are Peter Thomas of Vancouver, British Columbia, and Karsten von Wersebe of Toronto.

Meanwhile, PTL is free to entertain other offers, and Charlotte, N.C., sports entrepreneur George Shinn says he's ready to compete with an offer by a Canadian group to buy PTL for $113 million.

Shinn said Saturday legal delays, including possible appeals, could stall the process so long that he is having serious second thoughts about building his proposed new baseball park on PTL property.

However, he said whether the ballpark is built there or not, he still wants to buy Heritage USA as a commercial development.

Shinn says the agreement just means there's an offer on the table that has to be beaten.

"I think it's probably getting to the point where a little bidding is going to be going on now," said Shinn, who made an unofficial offer of $75 million for PTL last month.

"This thing is sort of like you're in the World Series and you've lost the first two games," said Shinn, who owns the minor-league Charlotte Knights baseball team and the NBA Charlotte Hornets. "Most people don't come back and win, but I've been counted out before."

PTL has been in bankruptcy proceedings since June 1987, three months after its president, Jim Bakker, resigned in a sex and money scandal.

Bakker has also talked about buying Heritage USA. Friday night, he spoke in terms of a $125 million offer. But The Charlotte (N.C.) Observer quoted unidentified sources close to the bankruptcy process as saying Bakker's bid won't be accepted unless he can deposit the entire amount in cash, in advance, with the court.

"He's got a problem of proving to everybody's satisfaction that he can do what he says he can do," one source said. "And there's hardly anything short of putting his money on the table that will do that."

Shinn said much of the undeveloped land is perfect for retail and other businesses. As for Heritage USA, he said, he thinks he can turn what is now a totally religious-oriented retreat into a successful secular resort.

Shinn said he's counting on marketing it through the satellite TV network and would depend on the newly independent Heritage Ministries to draw people as well.

Thomas has spoken of a "major resort and conference center ... which would stress traditional family values."

Meanwhile, about $75,000 was raised this weekend from three auctions at Heritage USA.

More than half of the sum came from sales of the ministry's extra cars and boats.

Bakker and his wife Tammy showed up at the auction Saturday with their Yorkshire terrier but did not buy anything.

Farmville Farm Co-op Open House To Include Tour Of New Seed Plant

A tour of a new state-of-the-art seed plant, with the capacity of processing 600 bushels of seed per hour, will be part of an open house to be held Tuesday at a Farmville farm cooperative.

George V. Tyler, manager of Southern States Cooperative, said the new equipment will be displayed at the organization's new regional warehouse, located on the 264 bypass across from the Southern Sportsman Restaurant.

The open house is scheduled at noon with retail store associates, farmers, and government representatives planning to attend.

"All of the latest technology has been built into this plant," Tyler said. "It's about as modern a plant as you'll find in this part of the country right now."

Southern States is a farmer-owned cooperative that deals in a wide variety of farming-related products distributed to various retail outlets.

Tyler said Southern States purchased the warehouse from Worthington Farms in November 1987 and opened for business March 1, 1988.

He said the warehouse was built in 1977 and has 119,000 square feet of storage space, an insulated roof, and offices.

"The construction of the seed processing plant has all the latest technology and equipment available for processing soybeans, wheat, barley, and oats," he said.

"In the back of the processing plant we have a 10 by 70 feet truck scale and 11 5,200-bushel grain bins with a total capacity of 57,000 bushels," he added.

AIDS Tests Given

WILMINGTON (AP) — The New Hanover County Health Department has done 444 anonymous AIDS tests over the past year, with 15 positive results.

The number of people seeking testing "reflects a lot of concern on the part of the public," said Dr. Peter Pappas, an internal medicine and infectious disease expert.

Many people see a doctor for advice about AIDS before taking the test, he said, and most doctors will advise a person not to take an AIDS test if the person is not an intravenous drug user, a homosexual man or a heterosexual with many partners.

Because the Health Department's AIDS test is free and anonymous, doctors refer high-risk people there.

Man's Body Found

SNEADS FERRY (AP) — The body of a Sneads Ferry man, who apparently drowned while clamming with two friends, was found Sunday near the N.C. 172 bridge over the New River, near the spot where he had disappeared the day before.

The victim was identified as Eddie Adams, 18, of Sneads Ferry, according to Rodney Ballance, also of Sneads Ferry, who was clamming with Adams.

The incident was reported to dispatchers at the Onslow County Sheriff's Department at about 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Ballance said that he, Adams and Jamie Ramsey of Sneads Ferry were wading and finding clams with their feet when Adams stepped into a hole. Ballance said both he and Ramsey were able to grab Adams briefly after he stepped into the hole, but Adams panicked and pushed them under before disappearing in the river.

Dragging operations began about 8:15 p.m. Saturday, according to the Onslow County Sheriff's Department.

The Coast Guard's Swansboro Lifeboat Station on Emerald Isle dispatched a 22-foot rescue boat and crew at 4:42 p.m.

There was no sign of the missing man by 10:30 p.m. Saturday when the search until Sunday. Adams' body was found about 8:15 a.m.

Participants Sought

RALEIGH (AP) — Habitat for Humanity, an international effort to build low-cost housing for the poor, is seeking participants for fund-raising walks being held for a week beginning Friday in several Triangle cities.

Walkers obtain pledges from others who promise to contribute a certain amount for each mile walked. Triangle walks will be held in Wake Forest, Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill and Hillsborough as part of a national 1,200-mile House-Raising Walk '88 under way between Portland, Maine, and Atlanta this summer.

Money raised by the walks will be used to finance construction of homes in the towns. The homes are sold through interest-free loans to needy families that take part in building the houses, said L.C. Bruce of Raleigh, publicity coordinator for Heart of Carolina Habitat for Humanity, the Wake County affiliate.

Lawmen Raid Home

FRANKLIN (AP) — Lawmen raided a home in Macon County over the weekend, seizing an assortment of drugs, nearly $39,000 in cash and several weapons, officials said.

Randall W. Buchanan, 41, and Patsy Stanley Roper, 28, both of Franklin, were charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver, according to deputy Ricky Swafford of the Macon County Sheriff's Department.

An assortment of drugs, including marijuana and cocaine, were seized in the raid, along with a submachine gun and other weapons.

Lawmen also seized $38,950 in cash from the home. The State Bureau of Investigation assisted in the raid.

Martin Joins Race

MOCKSVILLE (AP) — Lester P. Martin Jr., the chief district judge for the 22nd Judicial District, will run this fall for the Superior Court seat made available by Judge Robert A. Collier Jr.'s retirement.

Martin, of Mocksville, was picked this week by the district Democratic nominating committee. Collier, who was the senior resident judge in the 22nd District, retired Monday after 20 years on the bench.

Martin, 64, said Friday that he and Collier have worked closely through the years. "I have got some mighty big shoes to fill," he said. "Judge Collier has certainly been a great Superior Court judge."

The district comprises Alexander, Davie, Davidson and Iredell counties.

Garry W. Frank, a Lexington lawyer who is on the Republican Party's executive committee in Davidson County, said Republicans in the district are discussing possible nominees but have not yet decided if there will be one.

Hostage Call A Hoax

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A telephone call to the Winston-Salem Police Department claiming that a man was holding four children hostage at gunpoint mobilized more than 30 law-enforcement officers Friday before they found out that the call was a hoax.

The caller said at 11:03 a.m. that a man with a shotgun had barricaded himself and the four children in a house at 2101 E. 25th St. An hour and a half later, a young child emerged from the house and told officers that only he and his mother were home.

Police have been unable to determine who placed the call.

Lt. J.K. Raker said that 20 to 25 officers went to the house, including the department's Special Enforcement Team. When fire and EMS workers arrived, the total number of law-enforcement officers at the house was 30 to 32, he said.

Sgt. P.D. Norris of the department's crime prevention and victim assistance program said that the strong show of force was a normal response to a possible hostage situation.

"You have to realize that when we get a call like this we have to treat it as though it were a real situation," Norris said. "We would've handled it this way regardless. We had to check it out."

Data Shows GOP-Led Agencies Buy Most From Minority Firms

RALEIGH (AP) — Figures show that Republican-led state agencies are outdoing Democrat-controlled state agencies in efforts to boost purchases from minority firms, but some Democrats dispute the figures.

"I just think that shows we've got a long way to go," said Rep. Thomas C. Hardaway, D-Halifax. "There is clearly a need to do more to expand the number of businesses that are doing business with the state."

Seven of nine departments under the administration of Gov. Jim Martin make at least 4 percent of their purchases from businesses controlled by minorities, women or disabled people, says a report by the Division of Purchase and Contract.

In contrast, just one of nine state agencies controlled by Democrats — the Office of State Auditor — exceeds the 4 percent goal set by Martin and later by the General Assembly in 1987, according to the report published Sunday by the News and Observer of Raleigh.

Some Democrats said the size of their agencies made it difficult to attract some minority contracts, while others noted that the Legislature's resolution urging a 4 percent minority-buying goal was passed only a little over a year ago, in July 1987 — five months after Martin issued an executive order to that effect.

The survey of state purchasing covered the period from July 1987 to March 1988. In it, the purchasing office found Martin administration agencies doing the following percentage of business with firms operated by minorities, women or the handicapped:

Administration, 2.5; Commerce, 4.3; Correction, 8.6; Crime Control and Public Safety, 4.8; Cultural Resources, 7.9; Human Resources, 9.0; Natural Resources and Community Development, 4.5; Revenue, 1.6; Transportation, 4.5.

Figures were reported for Democrat-controlled agencies were as follows:

Agriculture, 0.3; Department of Community Colleges, 1.1; Public Instruction, 0.1; Insurance, 1.3; Justice, 2.6; Labor, 1.11; Secretary of State, 1.2; State Auditor, 26.0; State Treasurer, 0.4.

The figures troubled some Democrats.

"I certainly think we should be doing better than that," Attorney General Lacy Thornburg said. "We are doing considerably better than that in hiring practices."

North Carolina has chosen to set goals rather than set a mandatory percentage of sales to minority businesses, as some states have done. Under the North Carolina program, there is no penalty for failing to reach the 4 percent goal.

Instead, the emphasis has been on making sure state agencies are aware of businesses operated by minorities, women and the handicapped that could have something to sell to state government.

There also has been an effort to educate those same businesses on the methods of doing business with the state.

For purposes of the 4 percent goal, a minority business is defined as one in which 51 percent is owned by a minority, woman or disabled person, and such people are active in day-to-day management.

Nathan T. Garrett, former president of the N.C. Association of Minority Businesses, said he'd like to see more minority businesses move into the economic mainstream.

"We have seen a good faith effort, but it has not been uniform," he said.

The effort may be crimped somewhat this year after legislators cut $50,000 from the budget that would have been spent on educational seminars to teach minority businessmen and businesswomen about state purchasing practices.

Some officials, however, argued that finding minority suppliers was difficult.

Insurance Commissioner Jim Long noted that the Democrat-controlled agencies are generally smaller than those in the Martin administration. That makes it more difficult to find minority businesses that can supply what is needed, he said.

"It's been a tough challenge," Long said, noting that his agency only spends about $3 million a year in non-personnel costs. Much of that during the last year — $1 million — was for computer equipment, which was purchased from large suppliers.

"We have to fight to find minority-owned suppliers," he said.

White Supremacist Appealing Conviction

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A white supremacist serving a 20-year sentence on weapons charges is appealing his conviction on grounds he was a member of a "lawful unorganized militia" in North Carolina and was allowed to carry arms.

The militia was to "be a final bulwark against tyranny in government," Robert Eugene Jackson said in a telephone interview from the federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

"...It would be totally impossible for this check and balance to remain in effect if the unorganized militia were subject to taxes and registration of weapons and ordinance belonging to the militia," Jackson said. federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Jackson was convicted with Doug Sheets in June on charges of illegal weapons possession. The charges stem from the discovery by federal authorities of an arsenal of weapons and explosives at an Ozark, Mo., motel in April 1987. Jackson and Sheets claim the arsenal was to be used for a militia he and others were organizing among members of the White Patriot Party.

The two also are accused in the shooting deaths of three men at a Shelby bookstore in 1987.

During the June trial, Sheets and Jackson sat without speaking, refusing to allow the court to appoint an attorney for them or to participate in the proceedings.

Jackson said he and Sheets have issued handwritten appeals of their convictions to federal authorities.

Jackson also told the newspaper he would request a speedy trial "to prove our innocence" on charges he and Sheets shot and killed three men at an adult bookstore in Shelby last year.

In that incident, three masked men armed with a variety of weapons entered the store and shot five men, authorities said. The gunmen then set fire to the store, using cans of flammable liquid. Two of the victims survived.

Two other White Patriot members, Glenn Miller and Bob Stoner, have been named in court documents as prosecution witnesses for the upcoming trial, expected to take place this fall.

The two have told authorities they overheard Jackson and Sheets discuss the shootings in 1987. But Jackson told The Observer that Miller and Stoner were lying about his and Sheets' involvement in the shootings.

"The whole thing about our involvement in Shelby is being manufactured by state and federal officers," Jackson said. "There is not a shred of evidence that I had anything to do with the Shelby thing."

Miller, also convicted on federal weapons charges, is now in federal prison, while Stoner is under federal witness protection, authorities have said.

Besides Sheets and Jackson, a third suspect in the Shelby killings is being held in the Mecklenburg County Jail for contempt of court for refusing to testify before a grand jury. A fourth suspect, who has not been identified, has disappeared and is being sought by investigators.

Not Bad

Hopes High For '88 Leaf Crop

Not every grower was entirely pleased with opening day prices on the Eastern Belt, but there was little disagreement that there is a good quality crop coming to market.

Greenville's tobacco market, beginning its 99th year of sales, averaged slightly below the belt average, even though it was up from the previous year's average.

Hopes still are high, however, for an outstanding sales year to match the outstanding crop that farmers feel they have produced.

The belief is there will be strong demand for quality leaf for both the domestic and foreign markets. In addition Stabilization Holdings have been significantly reduced and a huge backlog of tobacco won't be available for future purchase by the companies.

The positive signs were the low take of first day sales by Stabilization. Most tobacco sold went above the federal support price.

Early sales day averages are never the high mark of the tobacco selling season. That is because farmers traditionally bring lower stalk leaf to market first. The more desirable middle stalk tobacco comes later. It is most in demand, brings higher prices and pushes up the averages as the season moves along.

Everything still points to a good year for tobacco growers. Quality is good. Demand seems strong. Assessments are low this year. And, while cigarettes are under attack, the tobacco farmer is being left alone, at least for the time being.

Recent seasons have been frustrating and stressful. A profitable year will be timely for area farmers.

Lucky Feat

Daredevil Pilot Got Off Easy

From time to time daredevils perform feats which astound the world — and sometimes they get them into trouble. Thus did Mathias Rust, a young pilot from West Germany, who flew a light plane under Soviet radar and landed it in Red Square.

Soviet military authorities were not amused. In fact there was a shake up of the military command because the plane had breached air security.

Far from being greeted as a hero Rust was treated as a criminal. He received a four-year sentence in Lwefortovo Prison. There he has stayed virtually out of the limelight until this week. The Soviet government announced that Rust was being released and he was promptly sent out of Russia. Exactly why the young man, 19 at the time of the flight, decided to take such a risk may be told by him in his native country. Four years in jail was the easiest penalty. If the sophisticated surveillance system had homed in on his small and unidentified aircraft he and plane could have been obliterated.

Chalk it up to being young and fired up with the zeal for world peace ... whatever it was, Mathias Rust took an unwarranted risk in his flight to Russia. With the changes currently taking place there he didn't have to continue serving is four year sentence. No doubt there will be offers of story rights and perhaps even a hero's welcome for him in his homeland. It shouldn't be forgotten, however, that he took great risks to his life and perhaps even risked the safety of the world, assuming his plane might have been mistaken for an incoming missile.

It is not something the world would want to see repeated.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I am not and never have been employed by Texasgulf Chemical Company. But I do not think it is fair or proper to blame the company for the years of the environmental protection people's carelessly easy manner and violations of their own rules.

The company kept good records and a great share of the charges brought against them were based on their own records. If they didn't want these records to be seen, they could have conveniently misplaced or, as with our government people, shredded them. If the fine of $5.7 million is reduced, perhaps the EPA and others will follow their own rules and notify a company of an infraction, giving them time to correct it as they did not do with Texasgulf. Where were the Environmental Protection people for three years? I think they did "tear the guts out" of their own bureaus. No one seems to think their acts illegal in not doing their jobs for years.

I agree with Alice Banks in her Wednesday letter to the editor. "The Last Temptation of Christ" is trash. After reading the "Excerpts," I'd even say the whole thing is despicable!

Universal Studios made this film for the sole purpose of making money. In my opinion, the best way to destroy the movie is to refuse to see it.

I believe when we the people become concerned enough to take action, we will be heard!

Not Safe For Sharks

CAPE COD — How bad was the ocean pollution along the East Coast recently? I'll tell you how bad it was. The sharks no longer consider it safe to go into the water.

Perhaps that's an exaggeration. The truth is that the sharks were swimming around, but nowhere near the shore. A submarine picked up on sonar the conversation of a school of sharks about 200 miles off Cape Cod the other day. The sonar operator identified the sharks as Jaws I, Jaws II, Jaws III and Jaws IV.

The transcript that follows has only just been released:

Jaws I: Don't go near Long Island. All the beaches have been turned into cesspools.

Jaws II: Ditto for New Jersey. Every bit of medical garbage known to man has been dumped into the water there, including blood contaminated with AIDS.

Jaws III: How can anyone live like that? Even squid don't poison their own water.

Jaws IV: I don't mind eating garbage but I'm not going to swim through the other stuff they're pumping into the sea.

Jaws I: I hear that it is so bad off Far Rockaway that you can get violently sick just by nuzzling your head against a swimmer's leg.

Jaws II: The people are not only releasing raw sewage from the land, but they are pumping it from their boats as well. There is no way we can go near the beach without getting herpes.

Jaws IV: Maybe we shouldn't stay here. The ocean currents could bring the stuff out to where we are now.

Jaws I: I would like to bite the arm off the person responsible for dumping all the medical swill into the sea.

Jaws II: I would, too, but only if I could hear him scream a lot.

Jaws III: And thrash around in helpless agony....

Jaws IV: That's all well and good, but what do we do about food? All the marine life in the area is now contaminated. Even the people on the beach are unsafe to eat.

Jaws I: That's outrageous. No one should be permitted to contaminate human beings. They're our meal ticket.

Jaws II: I can't believe that people who would dump all their waste into the sea would make sharks the heavies in the movies. For old times' sake, why don't we take one fast swim into shore and scare them to death?

Jaws III: We can't scare them if they are not allowed to go into the water.

Jaws IV: I hate to swim in red algae.

Jaws I: Just when we thought it was safe to go into the water we got sucked in by chemical waste. I guess we have to scratch Long Island as a good place for lunch.

Jaws II: It's not just Long Island. The whole ocean tastes funny. I say that all sea creatures pronounce the entire East Coast off limits until people can get their anti-pollution act together.

Jaws III: I hear it's not even safe around Martha's Vineyard or Nantucket either.

Jaws IV: Could we be declared an endangered species?

Jaws I: But we are not an endangered species, and these people are throwing all their bilge into the sea just to save money.

Jaws II: And to think people call us sharks.

Bailouts Risky Business For Banks

The challenge facing bankers, Congress and the deposit insurance agencies today is to maintain the integrity of this system under distinctly adverse conditions.

From 1943 to 1981, fewer than 10 banks per year failed in the United States. In 1986, 138 banks failed; in 1987, 184, and we are headed for a similar number in 1988.

The last was the most expensive. First Republic Bank of Texas, with $26.9 billion of assets, was declared insolvent two weeks ago and, in a daring gamble, North Carolina's NCNB, with help from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., will try to build a healthy bank out of the remains.

In one sense, the news from Texas is good. The system is working. Federal bank regulators saw the problem coming and arranged an orderly transfer of the failed bank's assets. The change was almost invisible to depositors, who were able to carry on business as usual. There were no long lines of frantic customers; no one lost life savings; a wave of panic did not spread through the Texas financial system. So much for the good news.

There is much more bad news. First, the cost of the bailout: ultimately, $4 billion or more out of an FDIC reserve fund of about $20 billion. A few more rescue operations like this, and the FDIC will be as broke as its cousin, the Federal Saving and Loan Insurance Corp., the insolvent agency responsible for insuring deposits at the nation's troubled savings and loans. In a week of wild talk in Washington, consultants, congressmen, industry representatives and Treasury officials have estimated the deficit facing federal deposit insurance agencies at anywhere from $30 billion to $100 billion. Only the most optimistic believe that these losses can be covered without help from the government — read taxpayers. This overhang of debt makes a mockery of any plans to balance the federal budget any time soon.

Second, the timing. The United States has enjoyed almost seven years of economic expansion since the end of the last recession. It is not a good sign when U.S. banks fail so frequently at this stage in the business cycle. Admittedly, the current banking crisis is largely limited to a handful of states with economies based on energy and agriculture, but this is no reason for the rest of us to be complacent. A national recession won't strengthen the economies of Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma, but it will undermine banks in the rest of the country.

Third, the moral: The financial system has still not come to grips with the effects of deregulation. When the New Deal system of deposit insurance was established, banks and thrifts were kept on a tight leash. Since government was ultimately responsible for insuring their funds, government expected to exert some control on the interest rates paid and the types of risks taken.

These controls were lifted in the 1970s and early 1980s, for reasons that looked good at the time: volatile interest and inflation rates made controls both unwieldy and unpopular, while competition from unregulated financial institutions — including stock brokers and money market funds — was eating into the banks' business.

Unfortunately, many bankers and savings-and-loan executives abused their new freedom, to make loans that ranged from the imprudent to the illegal. This, combined with the increasing and unpredictable price swings in the value of goods, from oil and farm commodities to stocks and precious metals, stuck the domestic banking business on the horns of a nasty dilemma. Will the prudent, responsible lenders who were cautious (or lucky) in recent years have to pay significantly higher premiums for deposit insurance to cover the costs of bailing out their errant brethren? The sums involved are so large that the higher premiums would undermine the condition of some currently healthy institutions and cut into profits for years to come. This hardly seems fair to the "good" banks and thrifts, but the principal alternative — a taxpayer bailout — is also not so attractive.

Meanwhile, regulators limp along, short of money and short of options. The FSLIC in particular has been struggling with a nasty problem. It currently does not have enough money to pay off the depositors in all of the insolvent savings and loans in the country, and so it permits these "brain dead" institutions to go on accepting deposits and making loans — and losing more money which makes final resolution harder. The $10 billion federally assisted bailout is not enough to close the gap; $5 billion to $10 billion more will be needed simply to permit closing down insolvent institutions.

U.S. banks have not had a good decade. Ten years ago, Bank of America was the largest in the world, with Citicorp second. Now both banks have been overtaken by the Japanese and Europeans.

For 55 years, the FDIC and FSLIC have insured the nation's deposits in banks and thrifts; in all that time, no American depositor has ever lost one nickel of an insured bank deposit. Few government programs have ever benefited so many at so little cost. The challenge facing bankers, Congress and the deposit insurance agencies today is to maintain the integrity of this system under distinctly adverse conditions.

"No easy answers, no pain-free solutions." This is the message from Texas, a message Americans are likely to hear repeated as more and more festering problems within the financial service industry come to light.

Murdoch Adding TV Guide To Publishing Empire

NEW YORK (AP) — Rupert Murdoch has agreed to buy Triangle Publications Inc. for $3 billion in one of the most expensive media deals ever and one that would add TV Guide, the nation's largest-selling weekly magazine, to his empire.

The purchase of the privately-held company from Walter Annenberg includes two other publications: the Daily Racing Form and Seventeen magazine, Murdoch said Sunday.

"These publications are the most valuable and prized publishing properties in the world," Murdoch said in a statement announcing the purchase by his News Corp.

The purchase of TV Guide raises anti-trust questions because of Mur-doch's ownership of the Fox Television Network, said Andrew J. Schwartzman, executive director of the Media Access Project, a Washington, D.C.-based public interest telecommunications firm.

But a spokesman for Murdoch said TV Guide would be run separately from Murdoch's other holdings, which include newspapers and magazines on four continents.

Murdoch began negotiating with the 80-year-old Annenberg for Triangle a month ago.

"They (the Triangle publications) have been developed brilliantly by Ambassador Annenberg and we plan to make them the cornerstone of a great American publishing company," Murdoch said. Annenberg, chairman of Triangle, said in a statement: "I am very happy that my publications are passing to Mr. Murdoch's company. I now plan to devote the rest of my life to education and philanthropy."

His past philanthropies include the establishment of the Annenberg School of Communications at the University of Pennsylvania, to which he has given one-third of Triangle's stock over the years.

Murdoch and Annenberg were in Los Angeles and would have no further comment, said Murdoch spokesman Howard Rubenstein. The spokesman declined to say who initiated the talks for the sale, which is contingent upon signing of a final contract.

The largest media takeover was Capital Cities Inc.'s $3.5 billion purchase of ABC in 1986.

Annenberg, who was U.S. ambassador to the Court of St. James in London during the Nixon administration, took over Triangle from his father in the 1930s. He founded TV Guide in 1952 and it quickly became Triangle's flagship, earning an estimated $75 million per year.

TV Guide has an audited circulation of more than 17 million copies.

Triangle was valued at about $1 billion last year by Wall Street analysts.

"The three best businesses in America are the Daily Racing Form, TV Guide and the Wall Street Journal," Annenberg said in a 1987 interview, when he indicated that the three publications would be sold before 1990.

Schwartzman said joint ownership of TV Guide and the Fox network could allow Murdoch to use the publication to favor Fox programs and stations. Such treatment could hurt small independent TV stations, for which TV Guide is an essential advertising medium, said Schwartzman.

"Any media conglomeration of this scope ought to set off warning signals at the Federal Trade Commission and the Justice Department,"

Schwartzman said.

But Rubenstein said, "The TV Guide will be run totally independent of all Mr. Murdoch's other interests."

Murdoch, 58, is perhaps best known in America for his work at the New York Post, which he purchased in 1976 and converted from one of the country's most liberal dailies to a conservative paper with screaming headlines.

He sold the Post earlier this year to conform with federal regulations barring dual ownership of a television station and a newspaper in the same city. His holdings have an estimated value of $2.2 billion.

RACE CRASH — Emergency workers take care of injured spectators at the Formula 1 boat race in Pittsburgh on Sunday after a 15-foot boat sailed into the crowd, injuring 24. Race officials speculate that the boat hit some debris in the water which sheared its propeller and sent it sailing out of control into the crowd.

24 Injured As Boat Plunges Into Crowd

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A racing boat apparently snagged debris during a race before it flew out of control into a crowd of spectators along the Allegheny River, injuring 24, including four critically, authorities said.

The 1,100-pound, 16-foot boat driven by Robert Wood suddenly became airborne, veered sharply to the right, and slammed into the crowd near Three Rivers Stadium during Sunday's 11th annual Three Rivers Regatta, which drew 100,000 people.

Eleven of the injured were children.

By early today, hospitals treating the injured reported four people in critical condition, three in serious condition, three in fair condition and five in good condition. Eight were treated and released. The condition of a 24th victim was unknown, said Karen Long, spokeswoman at Allegheny General.

Wood, 23, of North Peterborough, Ontario, suffered minor injuries and shock, said the race medical director, Barry Carras.

The accident occurred in choppy water during the seventh lap of the 50-lap Champion Spark Plug Grand Prix race.

Governor Says The Next President Will Turn More Power To The States

CINCINNATI (AP) — The chairman of the National Governors Association, preparing for the farewell speech to the group by President Reagan, said today the next president, Democrat or Republican, will turn more federal power over to the states.

"I think both candidates understand there is a return of authority and responsibility necessary to go back to the states," John Sununu, the Republican governor of New Hampshire, said on the NBC-TV "Today" program.

"If we're going to be effective and efficient in health care and education, some of the handcuffing of federal legislation has to be removed," said Sununu, who appeared in the interview with incoming association chairman Gerald Baliles of Virginia.

"The drift has been towards Washington, towards big government, at the expense of state and local government. And I think that that is one of the fundamental changes that will be a commitment on the part of both parties," said Sununu.

"I think both the candidates understand that historic change has to take place," he said.

The governors stuck to an agreement to refrain from presidential politicking during the 1988 meeting of the nation's governors, but it was uncertain whether Reagan planned to ignore the unwritten rule before a group he has often disagreed with.

In his effort to help Vice President George Bush, Reagan rarely has passed up opportunities to take a rhetorical swipe at Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis.

By the time the governors hold their winter meeting in Washington in 1989, a new president will be in the White House.

Dukakis, governor of Massachusetts, was not on hand for Reagan's appearance. He planned to arrive on Tuesday for the closing session of the four-day conference.

Frank J. Donatelli, White House liaison to the governors, told the conference on Sunday that Reagan's goal has been "diminishing federal intrusion into state affairs."

Donatelli said that as a result of Reagan's policies "state governments are now the center of activism. They make things happen."

Before the meeting began, Sununu, a strong Bush supporter, and Baliles, agreed privately to lobby their colleagues to steer clear of presidential politics during the conference.

For the most part their effort succeeded.

But Gov. Jim Thompson of Illinois, sporting a Bush button in his lapel, said the vice president's experience in defense and foreign policy issues "ought to stand in stark contrast to some of the views of Governor Dukakis that I would characterize as naive at best."

Thompson said the nation has undergone an "economic renewal" during Reagan's two terms and it was the goal of next week's GOP convention in New Orleans to make certain that Bush was identified with economic good times.

"It's a selling job," said the Illinois governor. "Bush has got to sell himself in his (acceptance) speech, which Dukakis did, and the party has got to help him sell the accomplishments of the Reagan-Bush administration."

Throughout Reagan's first term and well into his second, the governors were often at odds with the president over budget priorities, with Reagan resisting their demands that he cut his plans for increases in defense spending and that he consider a tax increase as a means of reducing the budget deficit.

They also clashed over the president's effort to transfer responsibility for many domestic programs to the states.

Even Democratic governors admitted that Reagan won that battle.

"Here we are, seven and one-half years later, not too far from perhaps where the president first thought we ought to be," said Democratic Gov. Richard Celeste of Ohio.

Baliles, slated to succeed Sununu as NGA chairman, predicted the debate over budget priorities would intensify when the next president takes office.

He said federal aid to the states "can't decline much more" and that further cuts "will not resolve the federal deficit problem."

Caterpillar Rolls Out Its Equipment To Show Off Some Gentle Might

EDWARDS, Ill. (AP) — When Caterpillar Inc. struts its stuff, it does it in a big way.

The company staged a "power parade" Sunday, displaying $15 million worth of its finest earth-moving equipment in a showcase of sophisticated engineering and raw power for 10,000 customers and employees.

Scrapers used in highway construction pulled up dirt and dumped it back. Excavators dug holes, filled their buckets with dirt and then loaded empty dump trucks used in mining and construction. Graders leveled the rumpled ground and compactors rumbled along, packing the dirt down again.

There were tests of strength for hydraulic-powered swing arms. Other machines did push-ups, intricate driving and even waded to the crowd in unison.

But the crowd's favorite was a wheel loader that used one tooth on its massive front bucket to gently crack an egg.

BANKRUPTCY — A Ten Year Mistake

Bankruptcy does NOT wipe your Credit Slate clean and give you a "Fresh Start".

Bankruptcy stays on your credit report for 10 Years.

You'll have trouble getting credit. Creditors seldom grant credit to someone who has filed a Wage Earner Plan Chapter 13 or Chapter 7.

You'll have problems getting ANY type of consumer loan — car, home, credit cards, education, personal needs, etc. If you doubt this — contact a creditor.

Ten years of bad news, if you don't think so, ask those who have filed bankruptcy. Don't rely only on the advice of those who will make money off your bankruptcy and encourage you to go bankrupt.

There are options to bankruptcy: If you are having financial problems, contact your creditors first — remember, they want to see you solve your financial problems just as much as you do.

So before you make a Bankruptcy decision, THINK, consider the options and don't lock yourself into BANKRUPTCY — A Ten Year Mistake.

Overcrowding, Safety Violations Blamed For India's Ferry Mishap

KATIHAR, India (AP) — Overcrowding and safety violations caused an aging ferry to capsize in the Ganges River, killing as many as 400 people, a government report said. The ferry accident was said to be India's worst ever.

Strong currents hampered efforts today to pull the two-decker from the rising monsoon-swollen river. Hundreds of relatives stood by watching.

A senior government official, discussing the confidential report on condition of anonymity, said authorities believed at least 300 people on the lower deck died when the ferry overturned Saturday morning.

About 200 people were on the upper deck, he said. Authorities believe about 100 people swam to safety or were rescued by villagers.

Only about a dozen bodies have been found, and most of the missing were believed trapped inside the 35-year-old ferry.

"It was badly overcrowded. The situation was made more dangerous by wheat bags loaded on the ferry. Many lives could have been saved if the ferry had carried water safety equipment such as life jackets," said the senior official.

Survivors said they protested when 150 bags of wheat were loaded onto the ferry. The steam-powered vessel started wavered soon after it left the banks and capsized about 100 yards from the shore.

Navy divers attempted to reach the submerged boat today, but the river was too muddy and its current too swift, said H.S. Pathak, head of the eight-member diving team.

"We are trying our best, but because of the current, we are not able to go near the launch," Pathak said. "The water is too muddy. We can't see anything, so we just have to feel by our hands."

Authorities said the water was still rising and the submerged boat was sinking in the river bed. The water depth was estimated at 12 to 30 feet.

Katihar Commissioner Madan Mohan Singh estimated the boat was resting in about six feet of sand.

"We are planning to break the ferry. Only then will we be able to get the bodies out," Singh said.

Katihar District Police Chief P.S. Natarajah said chances of finding any survivors were "very, very dim."

He said the death toll may never be known because some bodies probably were carried downstream 30 to 60 miles by the surging water.

The ferry was designed to carry about 160 people, but was always overcrowded, he said. Jetty workers, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said 535 tickets were sold for the trip.

Katihar Police Inspector N. Kumar said about 2,000 relatives and residents were waiting along the rain-swollen river for the bodies to be recovered.

"Police are trying to control the crowds and console them," he said.

Hussein Will Recognize Palestinian Government

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — A week after abandoning any claim to the Israeli-occupied West Bank, King Hussein says he would recognize the establishment of a Palestinian government-in-exile and welcome a PLO embassy in Amman.

The Jordanian monarch made the comments to reporters Sunday as draft documents calling for an independent Palestinian state circulated in Israel's occupied lands, where the uprising entered its ninth month today.

By severing administrative ties with the West Bank, Hussein has challenged the PLO to make good on its claims to leadership in the territory that Israel seized from his family's control 21 years ago.

Without hesitation, Hussein told foreign reporters on Sunday that he would "immediately" recognize a Palestinian government-in-exile.

In Israel on Sunday, U.S. envoy Richard Murphy indicated the United States had not abandoned hope Hussein will play an important role in the peace process.

"Jordan has been and will remain a strategic anchor for peace in the region," the assistant secretary of state told reporters. "Hussein's interest is in peace, and I assume his actions were taken toward that goal."

U.S. policy under the Reagan administration has relied heavily on Jordan as a stand-in for the PLO, which Israel refuses to recognize.

Murphy was scheduled to travel to Jordan today for talks.

He said dialogue with the Palestine Liberation Organization is possible, but Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir told Murphy that U.S. contacts with the PLO would only lead to further violence in the occupied lands.

Despite the Israeli occupation, Jordan has maintained heavy economic and political ties with the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Its dinar is the dominant currency and many Palestinians carry Jordanian passports.

In the past two weeks, the king has scrapped a $1.3-billion development plan for the territories, laid off or retired 21,200 Jordanian employees there and shut the separate ministry for territorial affairs in his government.

He said Sunday the option of reversing these measures "does not exist."

"We are in a new reality of position," the king said in a somber tone, adding: "Jordan has no sovereignty over the West Bank and Gaza ... both belong to the Palestinian people." It is not clear how Hussein's moves may affect the Palestinian uprising in the occupied lands, which has claimed the lives of at least 237 Arabs and four Israelis.

But Palestinians and others have suggested Hussein is trying to pressure the PLO to make good on its claims of Palestinian leadership. If the PLO fails, the argument goes, Jordan might be ready to step back in.

Commenting on measures to be taken regarding citizenship, the king said that "passports will all remain (with Jordanian citizens of Palestinian origin) until a Palestinian state is created and they can choose their own citizenship."

Hussein also denied media reports that both bridges linking Jordan with the West Bank are to be closed down. "Bridges are the lifeline," he said. "We have no intention to close them ... nor has it (the idea) crossed our minds."

The king said he hoped to see the PLO's mission in Amman "enjoy the diplomatic status like other missions ... like an embassy."

He said, however, that "we have nothing to say to the PLO delegation" that is due to visit Jordan later in the week, though adding "we shall keep in touch in the future ... there are no differences between us."

Palestinian sources in the occupied territories, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Sunday that a draft of a declaration of independence had been forwarded to the PLO for approval.

The Israeli daily Yediot Ahronot on Sunday published what it said was a draft declaration of independence signed by 152 Palestinians.

The declaration called for a state based on a 1947 U.N. partition plan, which would encompass much of Israel's northern Galilee and Arab east Jerusalem as well as the West Bank and Gaza.

Jackson Meets With Arad

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jesse Jackson says blacks and Jews should form a council to air their disagreements, a step he advocated in a meeting with Israeli Ambassador Moshe Arad.

Jackson met Sunday with Arad in a session that both men described as cordial but which also included disagreements over the Middle East, most notably Jackson's call for Palestinian self-rule.

Jackson said that during the 2½-hour meeting at Arad's home, he proposed creating "some kind of council" or "conduit for communication" so that the two groups, historical allies in civil rights, can talk with each other when they disagree.

Arad, in an interview today with Israeli state radio, said he tried to make clear to Jackson that private citizens should not try to mediate the Middle East conflict.

"One cannot expect people, no matter how talented or well-known, to mediate between us and our neighbors. It is more appropriate to leave these kinds of jobs to governments concerned," Arad said he told Jackson.

"I also noted the very disconcerting anti-Semitic phenomena that have been reported recently, especially in his city, Chicago, and I noted that ... his voice was not heard in condemnation," Arad said.

The former Democratic presidential candidate, who has a history of poor relations with Jewish groups, initiated the meeting with Arad. After the session, Jackson told reporters he had invited Arad to visit him in Chicago, his home town.

Jackson is supporting Democratic candidate Michael Dukakis' campaign, but said he acted independently in setting up the meeting with the ambassador.

Although Jackson said he and Arad did not shy away from controversial subjects, he refused to detail many of the points of contention. "I did share my points of view," he said, adding he would "keep them private."

Rather, Jackson stressed that the meeting allowed the men to get to know each other personally.

Jackson said he did advocate self-determination for the Palestinians along with security for Israel, an issue the men delved into in "depth and detail."

"Israelis and Palestinians are trapped in a death grip" which must be broken, Jackson said. He said he would ultimately like to see an international peace conference on the Middle East.

Arad issued a statement in which he said the session "provided a useful opportunity to review the situation in the Middle East, especially the Arab-Israeli conflict, to discuss issues of mutual concern and to clarify points of difference."

Atlanta businessman Ed Elson, chairman of the American Jewish Committee, described the mood at the meeting which he helped to organize as "gracious, generous." New York businessman Peter Strauss and Rep. Mervyn Dymally, D-Calif., also took part in the meeting.

Jackson's relations with the organized Jewish community have long been strained by a number of factors, including his strong support for Palestinian rights and a derogatory remark about Jews in the 1984 campaign.

French Rail President Quits After Second Wreck

PARIS (AP) — The state-run railroad's chief resigned after a second fatal train crash in six weeks and union leaders claimed the accidents stemmed from the government cutting corners at the expense of safety.

Transport Minister Michel Delebarre said he accepted the resignation offered Sunday by 53-year-old Philippe Rouvillois, who had been president of the railroad for just six months.

Union leaders said the Rouvillois' resignation would only gloss over a fundamental problem — the government's scrimping on safety to save money.

A 29-year-old man was killed and 57 people were injured Saturday when a four-car passenger train crashed into a barrier at the end of the line in Paris' Gare de L'Est station.

On June 27, a train crash at another Paris station, the Gare de Lyon, killed 56 people and injured 32. That accident was blamed on brake failure.

Seven of Saturday's injured remained hospitalized Sunday, none of them in a life-threatening condition, hospital officials said.

An initial investigation indicated the cause of Saturday's crash was mechanical failure — not human error.

The railroad, known by its French initials as SNCF, said the conductor applied the brakes, which appeared to work normally, but the engine drove the train into the barrier anyway.

The two major accidents and several minor incidents have heightened concern about safety on the railroads.

On Saturday night, Delebarre said instructions given by the government after the June 27 crash had not been adequately followed.

"I don't believe in fate," he said. "The safety instructions given on July 20 to the (railroad) board of directors ... remain still insufficiently followed up."

Those measures included stricter checks on braking equipment, more training of mechanics on brake equipment, and installation of telephone links between passenger cars and the driver.

In 1985, during a series of three accidents in which 75 died and nearly 200 were injured, SNCF President Andre Chadeau also resigned.

"You can change a man once again, but you will only solve the problems by answering their causes," said the Socialist-run French Democratic Confederation of Labor. The Communist-led General Confederation of Labor, France's largest union, said, "The government is trying to camouflage its own responsibility."

Both unions blamed the accidents on the government's railroad policy, which they say is based mainly on saving money. The current plan is to reduce the SNCF's work force by 10,000 a year over the next four years.

Soviet Subs Resume Patrols Off East Coast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union, after refraining for months from sending nuclear submarines to stations off the East Coast, resumed the patrols early this summer and appears to be continuing them, defense officials say.

The officials, who agreed to discuss the matter only if not identified, disclosed last week that a lone Soviet "Yankee" sub reappeared during the first week of June inside an Atlantic patrol zone long favored by the Russians.

The submarine apparently completed its deployment and departed the area within the last couple of weeks, the sources said. It was immediately replaced by another Yankee, however, suggesting the Soviets intend to maintain the patrols at least for the time being, they said.

The U.S. Navy operates a sophisticated underwater sonar network off the nation's coasts and makes a special point of tracking all submarine movements within the Atlantic patrol zone used by Yankee subs.

Rear Adm. William O. Studeman, the director of naval intelligence, informed the House Armed Services Committee last March that the Russians had not sent a Yankee submarine on a U.S.-coast patrol "since late 1987."

Other officials later said privately the last Yankee was seen in the Atlantic zone in November 1987.

Studeman said the Russians instead were patrolling in waters closer to Europe. He testified the move appeared to be aimed at compensating for the loss of land-based SS-20 medium-range nuclear missiles targeted against Europe.

Those land-based missiles are being destroyed under the terms of the new arms control agreement negotiated last year by the United States and Soviet Union.

Studeman, through a Navy spokesman, acknowledged Friday that the Soviets had resumed U.S.-coast patrols with the Yankee subs, but he declined to speculate on why.

Wedding Vows Spoken Thursday

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Rhonda Marie Hodges of Chocowinity and Stephen Thain Ellis of Greenville were united in marriage Thursday evening at 7 p.m. in the 15th Street Church of God. The Rev. James J. Ellis, father of the bridegroom, conducted the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy R. Hodges of Chocowinity. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. James J. Ellis of Stantonsburg.

Kimberly Hodges, sister of the bride, of Chocowinity was the maid of honor. Stephanie Buck, also of Chocowinity, was a bridesmaid.

Jimmy Ellis, brother of the bridegroom, of Stantonsburg, served as best man. Christopher Waters of Washington ushered.

Organist Ethel Jones and soloist Merlon Jones presented music for the ceremony.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white satin over layers of chantilly lace. The dress was styled with puffed sleeves and a scooped neckline. The fitted bodice was accented with lace. The satin overlay ruffled open from a large bow at the waistline to reveal cascading layers of Chantilly lace. She wore white elbow-length lace gloves and a lace-trimmed Juliet cap adorned with pearls and a floor-length veil. She also wore her grandmother's diamond princess necklace and matching earrings. She carried an arm-bouquet of white roses, light blue and white carnations, baby's breath and greenery.

The maid of honor wore a floor-length gown of blue satin. The dress featured a fitted bodice and puffed sleeves accented with bows and was styled with a colonial neckline and ruffled border. She carried a hand bouquet of white and light blue mums and roses, baby's breath, and greenery.

The bridesmaid wore a dress and carried flowers similar to those of the maid of honor.

Susan Beardon of Stantonsburg directed the wedding and Kathy Godley of Chocowinity presided at the bridal registry.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Ruth Godley of Chocowinity served cake. Susie Thigpin of Stantonsburg poured punch.

MRS. ELLIS

Prior to the wedding, the couple was honored with several miscellaneous showers, luncheons, and dinners, including an after-rehearsal dinner given by the bridegroom's parents.

After a wedding trip to the Blue Ridge Mountains, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University. The bridegroom is employed by the Burroughs Wellcome Company of Greenville and attends East Carolina University.

Miss Butler, Mr. Smith Marry

Kelly Lenora Butler and Peter Graham Smith, both of Raleigh, were united in marriage Saturday at 2 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dan Earmhardt conducted the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Rita Cobb Rodabaugh of Greenville and Kenneth Lee Butler of Wilmington. The bridegroom is the son of Corinne DeVries Smith of Jupiter, Fla., and Donald Graham Smith of Palm Beach, Fla.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of antique lace over satin trimmed with sequins and pearls and a scalloped hemline with a modified train. Her fingertip-length veil was attached to a headband of sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of daisies and miniature carnations.

Kelly Gordon of Greenville assisted the bride as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Laura Smith of West Palm Beach, Fla., sister of the bridegroom; Jennifer Jones of Greensboro, cousin of the bride; Margaret Cox of Los Angeles, and Kim Smith of Raleigh. Ashley Whitaker of Greenville was the flower girl. The attendants wore teal-length dresses of pink lace over satin with scalloped hemlines. They carried bouquets of daisies and miniature pink carnations. The flower girl wore a tea-length dress of white lace over satin and carried a basket of daisy petals.

Tom Smith of Lake Park, Fla., brother of the bridegroom, attended as best man. Ushers were Ken Butler Jr. of Greenville, brother of the bride; Allan Paulin; Kris Hoffman of West Palm Beach, Fla., and Brian Smith of Gainesville, Fla. The ring bearer was Trenton Welch of Greensboro, cousin of the bride.

Dr. Karl L. Rodabaugh, stepfather of the bride, was the trumpeter for the ceremony. Music selections included "Ode To Joy" by Beethoven, "Trumpet Voluntary" by Purcell, and pieces by Bach, Tschaiakowsky, Lemare and Schubert.

A reception was held in the Arbor Room of the Comfort Inn and a rehearsal dinner was held at the Sheraton in Greenville.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Florida and is employed by Barrett Kays and Associates of Raleigh. The bride is an engineering student at North Carolina State University. She works with the Bio-Ag Engineering Department of the University.

After a wedding trip to St. Thomas, the couple will reside in Raleigh.

Couple Marries In Atlanta

MRS. LOVE

ATLANTA — Helen Elizabeth Brumley and William Jenkins Love were united in marriage Saturday in Trinity Presbyterian Church. Allison F. Williams was the officiating minister.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George William Brumley of Northside Atlanta. Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. James Erskine Love of Northside Atlanta, and the late Mr. Love Jr.

The bride was presented in marriage by her father.

The maid of honor was Lois Brumley, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Marcy Bolster, Marie Brumley, Julia Brumley, Nancy Brumley, Susan Feig, Carol Anne Love Jenkinson, Betts Love, Sarah Ellen Love, Jennifer Miller, Kristen Morrell, and Kathy Tenney.

The flower girl was Catherine Love.

The best man was James E. Love, III, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Eric Boster, George Brumley, II, Ken Celecia, John Cleghorn, Eric Bolster, George Jenkinson, Keith Love, David Love, Dennis Love, Marc Magod, Roy Reardon Jr., Timothy Warmath, and Doug Winters.

Following a wedding trip to Europe, the couple will reside in Atlanta.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Duke University.

The bride is a Ph.D. candidate in clinical psychology, at Emory University. The bridegroom is employed by the marketing department of Printpack Inc. in Atlanta.

Old 'Hogg' Story Remains

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm afraid that you, too, were taken in by that old, durable hoax about the Hogg sisters, Ima and Ura Hogg.

James S. Hogg was a wealthy leading citizen of Houston who served two terms as governor of Texas in the '90s. He had one daughter whom he named "Ima"; "Ura" is a pure invention, but it makes a cuter story. Ima Hogg, who never married, died recently. She was one of Houston's best-loved citizens, a generous philanthropist and a patron of the arts.

My name is Robert Hogg, but as far as I know I am not related to the Hogs of Texas. I've been told by various people that they had a friend who knew the Hogg sisters personally, but no one could remember the name of the friend who made that claim.

I'm sure you meant no offense when you responded to the letter signed "Ima Flopp" with: "Personally, I'd rather be a Flopp than a Hogg," but there are many Hogs in the United States, Canada, Scotland and England who are proud of their heritage. As for me, I would rather have that name than any other. — ROBERT HOGG, ISSAQUAH, WASH.

DEAR MR. HOGG: I am inundated with letters from readers who hasten to set me straight on the Hogg family. For example:

DEAR ABBY: Don't feel too bad about the Hogg "sisters" mistake. I imagine that half of Texas believes there was a "Ura" Hogg. Another third probably heard that there was a third sister named "Sheza." Actually, Ima had three brothers — William, Mike and Thomas, but no sister. Ima died in 1975 at the age of 93.

Thanks for letting me separate the facts from fiction. — LAURA GUTSCHKE, LUBBOCK

DEAR ABBY: I, too, am glad that your name is not Hogg. You would have done no credit to the name. Also, you need to research the Hogg family of Houston; then perhaps you could make some authentic statements. In my estimation, Ura No. 1 Flopp. — ARKANSAS HOGG FOR 65 YEARS, ELDORADO, ARK.

DEAR ABBY: With regard to the Hogs of Texas: There was an Ima, but no Ura. The name Ima Hogg is well-known throughout Texas. She was a very fine and generous woman who was cherished for her good deeds. Each spring when the azaleas were in bloom, thousands of tourists would go through her stately old mansion and view her beautiful gardens in Houston.

I am sure the Hogg family was very proud of its name or they would have changed it. How would you like to be referred to as "Van Burro" since you have made an ass of yourself on this issue?

Frankly, I think most of your supposedly cute quips are out of line for a woman of your age. You can call me... 'MR. ED' OF ALVIN, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: According to Stephen Birmingham's book, "The Grandes Dames" (Simon & Schuster, 1982), James and Sallie Hogg named their daughter "Ima" in all innocence, seeing nothing odd about the combination of names. A few years before Ima's birth, James Hogg's brother, Thomas Elisha Hogg, had published a beautiful poem about the Civil War titled, "The Fate of Marvin." The heroine of that poem was "Ima," so the child was named "Ima" to honor her uncle's memory.

Rumor had it that Sallie Stinson Hogg's father, on learning that his granddaughter was to be named "Ima," was furious, saddled up his horse and rode as fast as he could to protest that name. But he was too late. The christening had already taken place. — JEANNETTE CASEY, EXETER, N.H.

Baby

Buckingham Palace said no further announcement would be made until after the baby's birth. Andrew, the queen's second son, married the former Sarah Ferguson on July 23, 1986 at Westminster Abbey. The baby, the fifth grandchild of Queen Elizabeth II, will be fifth in line to the throne behind the queen's eldest son, Prince Charles, his children, Prince William and Prince Harry, and Prince Andrew. Buckingham Palace had said the baby was due sometime in August.

Report Boosts Big Cars

Chevrolet Caprice and the Mercury Grand Marquis. All four of these vehicles had claim frequencies and loss payments at least 30 percent below the average for all cars. The least number of claims per vehicles on the road involved the 4-door Cadillac DeVille which had 46 percent fewer claims than average for all cars. At the other extreme, the cars with the poorest showing in both claim frequencies and repair costs were the Ford Mustang and Chevrolet Camaro, both in the "sports-specialty" category, and the 2-door Mazda MX-6 in the small car category. All three had claim frequencies and loss payments more than 20 percent above average. The Mustang had more than twice the average repair cost than reported for all cars — the highest among the 60 cars — and 32 percent more claims. The 2-door Toyota Celica had the most number of claims, 53 percent more than the average for all cars. While both the number of claims and the average cost of repairs ranged widely among vehicles of different size and design, the insurance group said they also varied significantly within groups of basically similar cars. For example, the frequency of claims among the "small" cars ranged from 12 percent below average for the Mercury Tracer to 53 percent above average for the Toyota Celica and 46 percent above average for the Pontiac LeMans. In the mid-size category, the frequency of claims ranged from 32 percent below average for the Chevrolet Celebrity to 29 percent above average for the Renault Medallion. Repair costs ranged from 21 percent below average per claim for the Celebrity to 25 percent above average for the Chevrolet Cavalier. The study examined 60 model 1988 passenger vehicles that had collision claims filed from June 1987 through February 1988. While there are about 400 various 1988 car types, only 60 had sufficient highway exposure during the period to be included in the study, the institute said.

Your Social Security Disability Benefits

BENEFITS DENIED?

Have you been denied benefits under Social Security's disability benefits programs? Do not be discouraged. That happens to most people who apply the first time.

Have you asked for reconsideration of your disability claim and been turned down a second time? Again, don't be discouraged or give up. That's the way the disability system works today.

Appeal your case further to the Office of Hearings and Appeals for a hearing before an Administrative Law Judge and a review by a Member of the Appeals Council. The Judge will see you and hear your personal description of your physical or mental illness, and we will present your case as it applies to the complex rules of the Social Security Act.

Our win rate average is over 80%.

If you have been denied benefits, call now for an immediate conference. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for disability.

Truce Nears In Iran-Iraq War

Before offering the compromise, Iraq said direct talks were needed to test Iran's intentions. It accepted Resolution 598 last year and said it would not now be stamped into a cease-fire. Badly battered by a string of battlefield defeats, Iran had been pressing for an immediate truce. In the past few weeks, Baghdad has launched repeated attacks in which Iran says at least 1,700 of its people were injured by chemical weapons. Iraq had been urged by many nations to compromise and agree to an early cease-fire and peace settlement. But a major factor, U.N. diplomats said, was the Security Council's assurance to Iraq last week that its five permanent members would guarantee a peace settlement. The five — the United States, Britain, China, France and the Soviet Union — promised Iraq that they would insist that Iran not exploit a truce. "We've made another step on the road to peace," U.S. Ambassador Vernon A. Walters said after the Se-

Reid
Mrs. Florine Wade Reid, Route 11, Greenville, died Sunday at her home. Funeral arrangements are to be announced later by Flanagan's Funeral Home in Greenville.

Peace

swiftly reacted to prospects for peace. Building entrances are still sand-bagged, windows are taped to prevent them from shattering in a missile explosion and yellow signs show the way to the nearest air-raid shelter. Bad residents in Tehran, a city of 8 million, seem convinced these remnants from the last Iraqi missile attacks in April will disappear before long. There were no sensational headlines Sunday in Iran's afternoon newspapers, which came out before the developments in New York but after Tehran radio announced Iraq's compromise offer. "New Developments in U.N. Talks for Cease-Fire" said the small headline in the Ettela'at newspaper. Iranians in the street did not seem surprised by news of the developments, which broke an impasse in two weeks of U.N.-mediated negotiations. There were few signs of exuberance.

curity Council met with Perez de Cuellar on Sunday. "There are hurdles of tremendous resentment and bitterness of eight years of war, but in physical steps to end the war, we are moving rapidly." The British ambassador, Sir Grispin Tickell, said: "We are focusing now on logistical arrangements that should follow a cease-fire." Asked if there were major problems, he replied: "It's much more a question of logistics, sorting out the many problems attendant on setting up this (peacekeeping) force."

Candidates Aim At Each Other

supported arms sales to the Iranians in the Iran-Contra affair. "The vice president's resume didn't help him when it mattered," she said. "He sat silently while the administration peddled arms to the Ayatollah."

Presidential politics was the topic in private discussions at the National Governors' Association meeting, where Dukakis was to speak on Tuesday. But the chief executives agreed to avoid public partisanship.

Republican Gov. John Sununu of New Hampshire, a vigorous Dukakis critic, promised Sunday to keep the campaign out of the meeting. Dukakis, just returned from a three-day campaign swing, needled Bush for not accepting a debate plan put forth by the two political parties. The GOP nominee-to-be said the question was not whether to debate, but when and who will sponsor the confrontations that have become a staple of presidential campaigns. "There'll be more than one debate, but how many... has not been sorted out yet," Bush said. "Not only do I want debates, but I have to because I've got to get him to stand by his record."

The Democratic campaign is ready to talk debate specifics, but Bush has said those conversations cannot begin until he formally becomes the Republican nominee at next week's convention.

Bush "is talking tough to the cameras but is refusing to meet Mike Dukakis in a face-to-face debate," Estrich said. "If George Bush wants to debate foreign policy, Mike Dukakis is ready."

Bush, with a unified party behind him but trailing badly in the polls, moved today to take the spotlight for the next two weeks, coming to the Republicans' convention city seven days before the opening gavel to talk to the platform committee.

The Democrats have "had their day in sun," he said. "Now we will have our day."

Bush vowed to draw distinctions with the Democrats and their short platform that spoke of themes and goals and mentioned few specific programs.

"They masked it. They cramped down any discussion of individual initiatives," Bush said. "Mine will be somewhat more specific."

From the Democratic side came the warning that the Republican platform will be full of phrases that sound acceptable to moderate voters, but which promise nothing.

"They'll say 'We're for human rights in South Africa, but we're not going to oppose apartheid,'" said Rep. William Gray III of Pennsylvania, who chaired the Democratic platform drafting committee.

Bush campaign chairman-to-be

James Baker said the next two weeks will mark a watershed for Bush.

"He will be seen in an entirely different light once he is his party's nominee, a bit more free to speak out, speak his own mind, and speak out on issues distinct and different from the administration," said Baker, who will step down as Reagan's Treasury secretary at the end of the GOP convention.

Lights Go On At Wrigley For Historic First Night Game On Chicago Field

By JOE MOOSHL
AP Sports Writer

It's going to be a different ball game for the Philadelphia Phillies and the Chicago Cubs when they play the first night game in Wrigley Field tonight.

Everyone's changing their routine. "I am going to get up, eat breakfast and go to the lake and lay on a blanket," said Philadelphia manager Lee Elia, who also managed the Cubs and played for both the Cubs and the Chicago White Sox.

"In all my years as a player and a manager in Chicago, I've never gone down to the lake," Elia said. "I'm going to take a dip and eat a hot dog."

Under the sunshine on Sunday, Lance Parrish hit a three-run homer and Chris James drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a double as the Phillies beat the Cubs 7-4.

James hit his 15th homer in the second inning after the first of three singles by Mike Schmidt, who also scored three times. Parrish hit his 13th homer in the fifth following singles by Juan Samuel and Schmidt.

Elsewhere in the National League it was, New York 6, Pittsburgh 2; San Francisco 14, Atlanta 4; Cincinnati 4, San Diego 3; Montreal 11, St. Louis 5; and Houston 4, Los Angeles 2.

Schmidt, who has a total of 541 career home runs, including 76 against the Cubs and 48 in Wrigley Field, welcomed the switch to night baseball for the Cubs.

"Everyone has been talking about who is going to get the first home run and the first this and the first that," Schmidt said.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," Schmidt said. "I guess I'll have to find a good place to eat lunch. I know a lot of good places to eat dinner in Chicago but I don't know of a good place to eat lunch. I'll find one."

Schmidt is happy to get away from the late 3:05 p.m. starts.

"I'd rather play at night than those late afternoon games," Schmidt said. "It's easier to prepare for a night game both mentally and physically. As you get older, it's hard to get the mind and body going at 10 in the morning."

Philadelphia reliever Kent Tekulve said he, too, plans to sleep in and then do a little shopping in Chicago.

The Cubs had some different ideas of how to spend the day.

"It will be just like a night game as if we were on the road," Mitch Webster said. "I don't plan on doing anything in particular."

Rick Sutcliffe, the scheduled starting pitcher, will put the extra hours to good use. Sutcliffe suffered a back twinge Saturday during batting practice and there was some question about whether he would be able to pitch.

"I'll pitch," Sutcliffe said. "But the extra time will give me a chance for more treatment and exercise."

Cubs Manager Don Zimmer looked at it pragmatically. "Instead of having to come to the park at 7:30, I'll get here about 1:30. That's about all there is to it," he said.

Pitcher Goose Gossage, who notched his 300th save Saturday, took a matter-of-fact view: "There's nothing special about it. It's just another night game and I all I want is to get it over with."

Mets 6, Pirates 2
New York made it three straight over Pittsburgh at Three Rivers Stadium as Kevin McReynolds' one-out, pinch single in the ninth inning broke a 2-2 tie.

Pittsburgh has lost five in a row and 12 of 16 to fall into third place in the NL East, a half-game behind Montreal and seven games behind the first-place Mets.

With the score 2-2 and one out, reliever Bob Kipper, 2-3, walked Dave Magadan. Mookie Wilson, who homered in the seventh, singled and pinch-runner Kevin Elster went to third when Andy Van Slyke misplayed the ball. McReynolds then greeted reliever Jeff Robinson with a ground single — the first of three consecutive run-scoring pinch-hits — to score Elster.

Expos 11, Cardinals 5
Tim Raines and Tim Wallach each hit three-run homers to power visiting Montreal past St. Louis. The Expos have won five straight and 13 of their last 16.

Nelson Santovenia and Luis Rivera combined for five hits and scored three runs each, and starter Bryn Smith, 8-6, contributed two run-scoring singles.

Smith gave up seven hits and allowed two runs in sixth innings and Tim Barrett pitched three innings for his first save.

Astros 4, Dodgers 2
Houston scored two runs on balks and Bob Knepper allowed five hits in 7 1-3 innings as the Astros beat visiting Los Angeles and moved within 2½ games of the first-place Dodgers in the NL West.

Knepper, 12-3, beat the Dodgers for only the second time since Sept. 19, 1985. He had ended a five-game losing streak against the Dodgers on June 6. Danny Darwin pitched 1 1-3 innings and Juan Agosto got the last out for his third save.

Robinson Works Hard To Fit In After Year Away

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — David Robinson has less than six weeks to prove his long layoff from competitive basketball won't affect the gold medal chances of the U.S. men's Olympic team.

The 7-foot-1 Robinson has been serving his military obligation since graduating from the Naval Academy after the 1987 college basketball season, when he was named player of the year.

Despite signing an eight-year, $26 million contract with the San Antonio Spurs after being the first player selected in the NBA draft, Robinson was able to keep his amateur standing and many thought the U.S. team would be able to ride his broad shoulders to the gold medal at Seoul next month.

Robinson didn't shine but he was effective Sunday as he scored 12 points and grabbed eight rebounds in the opener of an eight-game tour for the Olympic team against teams of NBA players.

"It has been an adjustment to fit into his style of defense," Robinson said of Olympic coach John Thompson.

Robinson picked up three fouls in the first half and had four personals in 18 minutes in a 90-82 victory over an NBA select team.

"The three fouls weren't a matter of adjustment or style," Robinson said. "Those fouls were just lazy and sloppy play. On all three I didn't move my feet real well."

Robinson's foul problems in international basketball came to light in the Pan Am Games last summer when he fouled out in the gold medal game which the United States eventually lost to Brazil.

He doesn't want to use rustiness as an excuse for poor play with this team.

"I feel I'm in good shape and I'm strong," he said. "I felt I was in good shape before the camp, too."

Patrick Ewing of the New York Knicks was one of the centers Robinson went against on Sunday. Ewing, who led the NBA team with 16 points, played for Thompson at Georgetown. Ewing made three trips to the Final Four with one national championship, and he was a member of the 1984 U.S. men's team that enjoyed a cakewalk to the gold medal.

"He's very quick, very explosive and I felt he matched up real well in the banging underneath," Ewing said. "I think he'll do real well."

Dan Majerle and Danny Manning led the 17-man Olympic team with 13 points each, one more than Robinson and Charles Smith of Pittsburgh.

Thompson has to cut five players before Sept. 2. He has seven more games against NBA competition in which to evaluate the players, including two at Charlotte, N.C. next weekend.

"No cut will be easy now. I've grown attached to them," Thompson said. "After Charlotte we'll take some very hard looks. You have to let them get to their comfort level."

Majerle, a virtual unknown at Central Michigan but a first-round draft choice of the Phoenix Suns, seemed pretty comfortable on Sunday as he made six of 10 shots from the field, including a 3-pointer with 12:20 left in the first half that capped an 11-0 run and gave the Olympians a 24-11 lead.

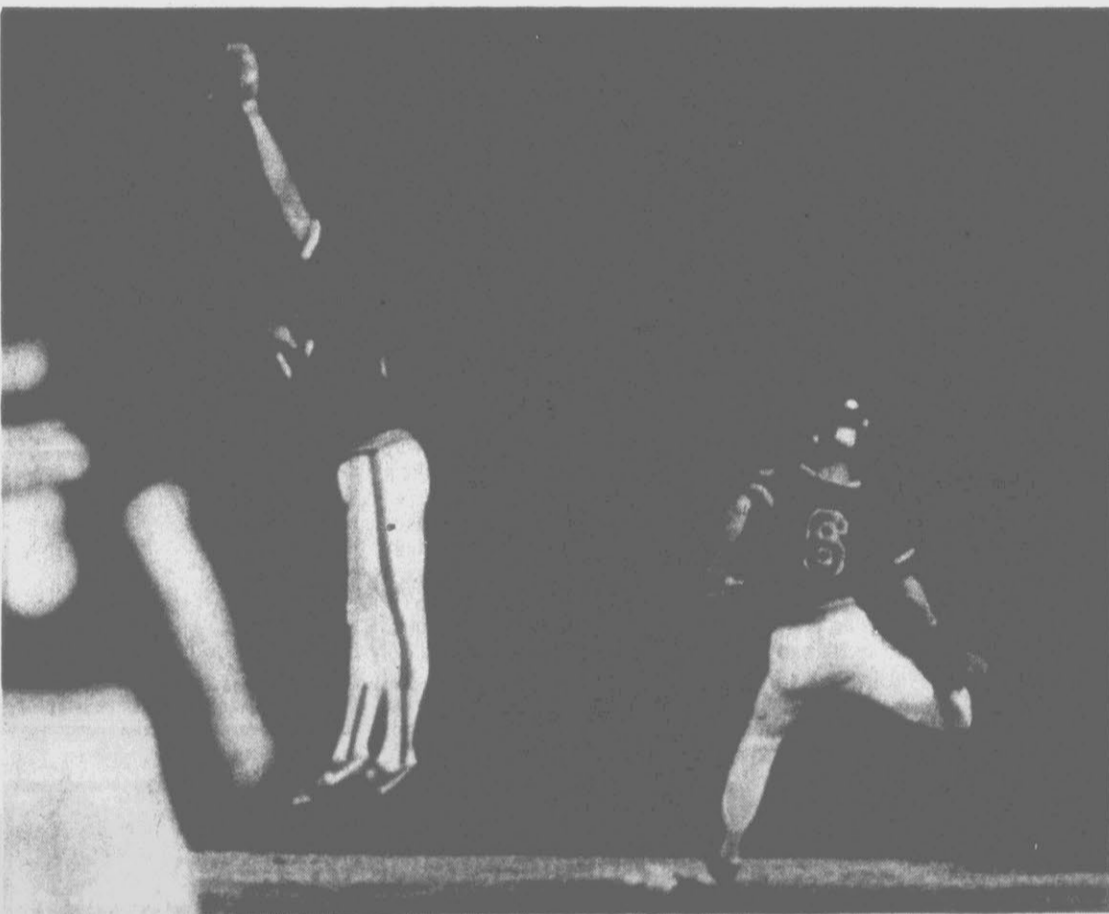

"I wasn't looking to shoot specifically, I just wanted to play hard and play defense and go from there," Majerle said.

And being among players of the stature of Robinson and Manning, the 1988 college player of the year, hasn't affected Majerle.

"I'm a big college basketball fan so seeing these guys first-hand wasn't terrifying because of TV," he said. "I'm taking the cuts one at a time and if I play hard, Coach Thompson will see what I can do."

Thompson already has and he likes it a lot.

"He said as many words to you today as he said to me," Thompson said. "I love that boy, the way he works so hard, goes after loose balls — and he does it every single day."

Getting Things Started

Snow Hill Takes 8-3 Win; One Win Away From Title

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

SNOW HILL — Snow Hill and Kornersville both had their opportunities Sunday night, but only Post 94 seemed to take advantage of its chances.

Snow Hill used timely hitting and some key errors by Kornersville to take an 8-3 win and a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven American Legion State Championship baseball series.

"Early on, we got a chance to cut the margin and that was a big help," said Snow Hill coach Jim Fulghum.

Snow Hill fell behind early, just as it did in a 5-4 win Saturday night. Kornersville scored three runs in the top of the third.

Jeff Balleiser had reached off a walk and Matt Swaim followed with a single to put men at first and second. Cameron Browder then nailed a home run over the centerfield fence to make it 3-0.

Snow Hill was unfazed by the early deficit though. With one out in the bottom of the third, T.J. Johnson had an infield single. Tommy Eason reached off an error which put runners on the corners. Shay Beaman then drove in Johnson and Eason with a single up the middle. Chris West followed with a single and later scored along with Eason on a base hit by Walt McKeel.

"It's the sign of a good team," said Kornersville coach Dale Ijmes of the quick rally by Snow Hill. "We've had the lead on them in every game. They've come back each time."

"The sign of a good team is to respond to it. We have to shut the door on them. We were looking to win one game down here. Now we have to do it tomorrow night (in game five set for 8 p.m. in Snow Hill)."

Snow Hill, which had left three men on in the first, took control of the game in the fourth, scoring three more runs.

With two outs, Johnson doubled. Eason was intentionally walked, but Beaman foiled the strategy with an RBI single. Chris West followed with an RBI single to score Eason and make it 6-3. Beaman then stole third and a bad throw from the catcher allowed him to score to make it 7-3.

"That's part of the game," Fulghum said of Kornersville's decision to walk Eason. "Sometimes it works. Sometimes it doesn't."

Ijmes agreed. "Those are just the breaks," he said. "The big kid gets a hit up the middle after we walked Eason."

Snow Hill scored its final run in the fifth when George Burnette singled, went to third on an error and scored on a single by Johnson.

Meanwhile, Kornersville was having a little trouble doing anything right.

With two men on in the top of the sixth, Swaim singled. Eric Gunznhauer tried to score from second, but was tagged out at the plate by Eason. Ijmes objected to the call enough to get thrown out of the game.

"He didn't come close to tagging him," the coach said. "That was just a bush league call."

Regardless, the out ended the inning and the threat by Kornersville.

Mike Vandiford started for Snow Hill and got the win. He got help from Richie Britt for the win. Vandiford gave up five hits over six innings with three earned runs.

Johnson went 3-4 with a double and an RBI. Beaman went 2-4 with four RBIs.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — For the first time in his seven-year PGA career, Jodie Mudd is a winner. He says it won't be the last.

"I think things will be different now that I have the big one under my belt," said Mudd, who earned his first Tour victory Sunday, edging Peter Jacobsen and Nick Price by one shot to win the St. Jude Classic.

"After I got beat in a couple of playoffs and after I struggled some, I had some doubts if I could win out here," he added. "But I made only two bogeys in four rounds. When you do that and make your putts, you can win a tournament."

"This is a new experience for me. I was just fortunate it all came around for me today," Mudd said after shooting a 70 for a 72-hole score of 15-under-par 273.

"Things just seemed to go my way all week long," said Mudd, who survived a bogey 5 on the 433-yard 17th hole to become the seventh first-time winner on the PGA Tour this year.

"I've been waiting for one of these weeks and I was just lucky to finish one shot ahead of everybody else," Mudd said.

A pair of long birdie putts on No. 10 and No. 11 keyed Mudd's round, but he needed a cautious par-5 at the 548-yard 18th to walk away a winner.

With Jacobsen and Price in the clubhouse at 274, Mudd carried a two-stroke lead to the 17th tee.

But the 1980 and 1981 Public Links champion ran into trouble when he put his second shot into a sand trap to the left of the green, pitched onto the fringe and then two-putted for bogey.

Mudd was wary at the 18th, laying up short on his second shot and then pitching to the open area of the green about 35 feet away from the pin.

"I was about 215 yards from the green and I knew that with a bad shot I could easily make (bogey) 6. I knew the chances of a bad shot if I played up to within 100 yards were slim," Mudd said of his decision to play short.

Mudd's first putt rolled about three feet past the hole and the three-time Georgia Southern All-American firmly rolled the ball in the cup for a par and the victory.

"On my first putt, I didn't realize it was that fast. It had a chance to go in. It just had too much speed," Mudd said.

Bud Phillips Has Heart Attack

Rose High School athletic director and track coach Bud Phillips has been moved out of critical care, but remains in Pitt County Memorial Hospital following a heart attack he suffered last week.

Phillips suffered the attack while canoeing and hiking in the Boone area with his family on Wednesday. He was hospitalized there and flown to Greenville on Saturday, entering the critical care unit at Pitt Memorial, according to Rose High School principal Pat Austin.

He was moved out of the CCU into regular patient care over the weekend, but will undergo further tests.

"He's in good spirits and looks good," Austin said. "We are all certainly hopeful that he will have a complete and lasting recovery. When you think of Rose High School athletics, you think of Bud Phillips. He is a world-class gentleman and we wish him a speedy recovery."

Austin said that Phillips had had a busy summer, teaching driver education, then attending the National Association of Athletic Directors convention in Kansas City. Following that, he had attended the North Carolina Coaches' Clinic in Greensboro, then met his family in the Boone area for a vacation.

The Rose principal said that in the interim, he would coordinate the activities of the athletic department with the help of the coaching staff.

Austin said that no date had been set up for Phillips' return to duty at this time.

Harvey Named Rose Soccer Coach

Charlie Harvey, who was the head soccer coach at East Carolina University, has been named as the new soccer coach at Rose High School, principal Pat Austin announced today.

Harvey, who has been involved in soccer most of his life, will head both the boys' and girls' soccer program at Rose, replacing boys' coach Will Wiberg and girls' coach Walt McCauley, both of whom resigned at the end of the last school term after leading the school to successful programs.

A native of Fairfax County, Va., Harvey is a United States Soccer Federation-licensed coach in Virginia. From 1981-84, he was the head coach of the McLean, Va., men's traveling team which completed in England and Scotland, heading the women's team also in 1983. From 1982-84, he served as head coach at McLean High School, compiling a 25-8 record. From 1985-86, he served as assistant coach at East Carolina, serving as the 1987 North Carolina Senior Women's Olympic Development coach on a team that went 4-1. This past year, he was elevated to head coach at East Carolina, but left the program at the end of the season. His only team at ECU was 3-13.

"I'm very impressed with Charlie Harvey and he comes highly recommended by the East Carolina people," Austin said.

Austin said that the school is also looking for an assistant to serve under Harvey. Rose is also still looking for a new wrestling coach, a position McCauley also held.

Freshmen Practicing At East Carolina

East Carolina University's newcomers began practice this morning for the 1988 football season.

Twenty-two freshmen and one junior college transfer began the workouts this morning and will practice again this afternoon and on Tuesday.

The veteran players will assemble on Tuesday, with practice sessions starting on Wednesday. The Pirates will work out in light gear Tuesday through Saturday, putting on pads for the first time on Sunday.

East Carolina opens the 1988 season on Sept. 3, hosting Tennessee Tech.

Hornets In Midst Of Rookie Exhibitions

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Talented players such as Duane Ferrell and Ray Hall had their moments at the Charlotte Hornets' rookie camp, but when it came to getting the job done, it was the NBA veterans who did it.

"When you're out on the court playing you can pick out the league guys," said Sedic Toney, an expansion pickup who is also a free agent. "They handle themselves better. They stay calm."

Ralph Lewis, who sat the bench last year for the Eastern Conference champs, the Detroit Pistons, said professionals have something extra.

"Anyone who makes it to the NBA, whether they play or not, is a pro," said Lewis. "There are different levels of professionalism, but you don't take for granted anybody who's made it that far because it takes a lot just to make a roster."

The Hornets' expansion-draft acquisitions, plus some free-agents with NBA experience, dominated the camp play last week. With the camp team in Miami for three more days of rookie exhibition games, its best players all have done some work toward an NBA pension.

"It's so easy to tell the guys with league experience," coach Dick Harter said. "They've got a big jump. They know what to do, how to play the pro game. It's hard not to like them."

Lewis, 25, spent two years in the CBA before becoming the Pistons' 11th man last season. And before he made the Pistons, he was released from five other NBA camps.

"All you can do is work hard and hope it works out for you somewhere," Lewis said. "But once you're in you're way ahead of the game. Just practicing with guys like Isiah Thomas and Vinnie Johnson is better than playing anywhere else."

Lewis, a 6-6 guard, is a good bet to make the Hornets, even though the club's roster is already stuffed with backcourt players. The team showed unusual confidence in him by signing him to a guaranteed contract for a reported $175,000 last week.

Toney, who is still unsigned, has his work cut out for him. He's a point guard, and, although he spent part of three seasons in the NBA, he doesn't figure to make the final roster.

Ricky Green, a former all-star who dominated the only practice he attended this week, stands ahead of him along with Tyrone Bogues, Michael Holton and possibly top draft choice Rex Chapman.

Louis Orr, an eight-year NBA veteran, who came to the Hornets' camp as a free agent, has a chance to make the team as a backup small forward.

Center Tim Kempton, who played for the LA Clippers in 1986-87, has been impressive this week, too. He's pushing expansion acquisition Dave Hoppen at center.

A third big man, thin Mike Gibson of USC-Spartanburg, played well, too. And, like the other camp leaders, he has NBA experience.

Lenoir-Rhyme Seeks NCAA Division II Status

HICKORY (AP) — Lenoir-Rhyme, once a football power in the NAIA, has petitioned to join the NCAA as a Division II school.

Lenoir-Rhyme officials said they want dual membership in the NCAA and NAIA for several years.

"Our plan right now is to hold onto dual affiliation," athletic director Keith Ochs told The Charlotte Observer. "If the NCAA doesn't work out, we'll still have the NAIA."

The move would enhance Lenoir-Rhyme's athletic reputation, school officials said.

"In other parts of the country, the NAIA is not as well known," said sports information director Joe Smith. "A kid you're recruiting has heard of the NCAA."

Lenoir-Rhyme wrote the NCAA about two weeks ago requesting membership.

"We have applications for NCAA membership all the time. Many are NAIA members," said Shirley Whitacre, the NCAA's membership coordinator in Mission, Kan.

About 70 colleges and universities have dual membership in the NCAA and NAIA, Whitacre said.

The move came as Lenoir-Rhyme and other members of the NAIA's South Atlantic Conference (SAC-8) prepare to vote Monday on becoming an all-sports conference. The SAC-8 is currently only a football conference.

"The discussions in the SAC-8 about becoming an all-sports conference could influence the decision (to join the NCAA), if the NAIA does not recognize that conference," Lenoir-Rhyme President John Trainer said in a prepared statement.

In other sports, Lenoir-Rhyme competes in the NAIA's Carolinas Conference.

Peebles Had Hard Time Watching Trials

RALEIGH (AP) — The spring was a time of decision for Danny Peebles — a time to decide whether his speed could carry him to a medal in the Olympics or whether he would play his senior football season at North Carolina State.

If he put in the time, Peebles thinks he would have made the U.S. Olympic team in the 200 meters. But time was at a premium. Peebles has been a 9-10-5 man at BB&T since April, and has a wife and two children — a 2-year-old daughter and a 2-month-old son.

"I had a hard time watching the Olympic Trials," Peebles said, "because I had run against Joe DeLoach and Roy Martin in NCAA races and beaten them both."

DeLoach won the 200. Carl Lewis, the favorite, was second and Martin finished third.

"I made a decision midway through the track season that for me to forgo my senior season in football I would have to win the NCAA or either run a phenomenal time," Peebles said. "I ran my personal best, 20.27, but I didn't win. If I had won, I would have tried to make the Olympic team."

Boston Breaks Four-Game Slump

By The Associated Press.

Forget the oracle at Delphi. Boston has Joe Morgan, the oracle of Fenway.

Boston's manager predicted Saturday the Red Sox would salvage the finale of the five-game series with Detroit. His prediction appeared in Sunday's Detroit newspapers.

Bruce Hurst then made Morgan look like a genius, as he pitched a 10-inning six-hitter and the Red Sox scored three runs in the 10th inning to beat the Tigers 3-0.

"Can't I predict?" Morgan said. "Aristotle predicted didn't he? All I know is if you predict often enough you'll eventually look like a genius."

Hurst, 12-4, struck out five and walked none in his third consecutive victory since coming off the disabled list July 24. Hurst, who matched a career high by pitching 10 innings, is 6-1 in starts after a Boston loss this season.

"I knew I had to pitch a great game," said Hurst, who is 4-10 lifetime against Detroit. "Jeff Robinson is a great pitcher and they've been playing great."

Robinson, 13-5, allowed five hits in nine-plus innings. He had won eight consecutive decisions in Tiger Stadium since losing to Boston 12-3 on April 21.

"I thought Robby had gone far enough," Detroit manager Sparky Anderson said. "Our bullpen has been great all year."

"I pitched the best I could, that's it," Robinson said. "I would have like to keep going, but that's Sparky's decision. It was my game. I'll never ask to come out."

Detroit leads the New York Yankees and the Red Sox by three games in the AL East.

In other games, New York beat Minnesota 5-1, Seattle beat Oakland 12-7, Chicago beat California 7-3, Milwaukee beat Baltimore 7-2, Kansas City beat Toronto 5-1 and Texas beat Cleveland 2-0.

Mike Greenwell doubled to lead off the 10th, Boston's first extra-base hit. Ellis Burks singled, Guillermo Hernandez relieved and Todd Benzing singled through a drawn-in infield to the first run. Jody Reed's squeeze bunt scored Burks and Rich Gedman followed with an RBI double.

"I thought the only way we would beat the Tigers today was exactly the way we did," Morgan said. "I thought we were going to have to shut them down. Even then, Hurst might have lost 1-0 the way Robinson was pitching. The bleeding has stopped. It ain't that easy. The Red Sox needed a win, that's all I know."

Yankees 5, Twins 1
Rich Dotson allowed four hits in 8

2-3 innings and Ken Phelps and Claudell Washington homered at Yankee Stadium.

Dotson, 9-4, struck out four and walked three before Steve Shields got the final out after allowing the Twins' fifth hit.

Kent Hrbek ended the shutout with a one-out homer in the ninth, his 20th and second in two games. All have been against American League East clubs.

Charlie Lea, 6-6, gave up seven hits and four runs in six innings.

Mariners 12, Athletics 7

Jim Presley's two-run homer broke an eighth-inning tie and the visiting Mariners, who blew a 6-0 fourth-inning lead, hit a major-league record five sacrifice flies.

Presley's 13th home run of the season came off Eric Plunk, 5-2, and followed Rey Quinones' fourth hit.

Mike Schooler, 4-4, allowed one hit in 2 1-3 innings, stopping Oakland's four-game winning streak. The Athletics lead Minnesota by seven games in the AL West.

White Sox 6, Angels 3

Carlton Fisk and Kelly Paris hit consecutive home runs in the sixth inning to lead the visiting White Sox.

Fisk's homer was the 314th of his career, tying Reggie Smith for 53rd place. Paris' homer was his first in 174 major-league at-bats.

Dave LaPoint, 9-11, gave up six hits in six innings and Bobby Thigpen pitched two innings for his 24th save. Chuck Finley, 6-10, allowed six hits and five runs in seven innings.

Brewers 7, Orioles 2

Rob Deer homered, doubled and singled twice to drive in four runs in the second four-hit game of his career and Baltimore made three errors, leading to four unearned runs for the visiting Brewers.

Mike Birkbeck, 7-5, gave up four hits in seven innings before leaving with a blister. He is 5-0 since his recall from the minors on July 2. Jeff Ballard, 5-10, allowed seven hits and six runs — only two earned — in five innings.

Royals 5, Blue Jays 1

Kurt Stillwell snapped a tie with a sixth-inning single and Floyd Banister, 9-9, struck out a season-high eight, giving up four hits in six innings, for the visiting Royals.

Jim Clancy, 5-12, allowed four runs and five hits in 5-2-3 innings, allowing three runs in the sixth after retiring 16 of the first 17 batters.

Rangers 2, Indians 0

Jose Guzman pitched a five-hitter at Arlington Stadium as Texas won its first series since June 27-29. Cleveland has lost seven of its last eight games.

Guzman, 10-8, became the Rangers' first 10-game winner, striking out six and walking one. Rich Yett, 5-4, allowed two runs and four hits in six innings before he was bothered by a blister on his right thumb while warming up in the seventh.

Steve Buechele hit a run-scoring groundout in the second and Pete O'Brien added an RBI single in the sixth.

Tar Heels Lose 5-3 In Finals

FAYETTEVILLE — The Greenville Tar Heel Little League All Stars' bid to win the state championship came up short Sunday at Fort Bragg as Cherryville recorded a 5-3 win in the title game.

Greenville, which had battled its way out of the losers' bracket in to the championship game, took the early lead in the game with a run in the bottom of the second inning. The lead was shortlived, however, as Cherryville fought back in the top of the third frame to take a 2-1.

The Tar Heel squad added two more runs in the bottom of the third to move back in front 3-2. Russell Williamson got things started in the inning for Greenville by reaching base on a fielder's choice. Nicky Phillips then doubled to put runners at second and third. A double down the rightfield line by Jon Gavigan pushed the two runs across for Greenville.

Cherryville bounced right back with a trio of runs in the top of the fourth to take the lead for good and wind up the scoring in the game.

J.P. Devoe led the Tar Heel squad, which managed only six hits, with a pair of hits. Craig Brannon, Phillips and Williamson combined for Greenville on the mound to give up only seven hits to Cherryville.

Nause Ends Cinderella Story By Taking Bradley Tournament

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

HIGH POINT (AP) — Martha Nause told her caddy at the start of the Pat Bradley International that she would make it her own version of Cinderella, and when midnight struck, she indeed had taken the glass slipper for her own.

"I was kind of kidding," she said. "But here it is."

Having survived a first-day playoff and being in the middle of the pack throughout the tournament, Nause ended a 10-year drought by winning the $400,000 tournament — played under a modified Stableford scoring system — by scoring 14 points and surviving the threats of veterans Judy Dickinson and Debbie Massey, who were one point back.

"I knew that I had the ability. I've beaten everybody at least once, so I knew that I could do it again, put it all together," she said, adding that one of the last victories she could recall was the Wisconsin Junior championship at age 17.

"I was hoping to get past the first round because I haven't been making many birdies until now," Nause said. "I told my caddy I was going to make this a Cinderella story, I guess, get in on the playoffs and win the whole thing."

Nause's professional career includes one second-place finish and a tie for second. Her earnings in 1987 were more than $69,000, and for winning the Bradley, she took home $62,500 and a watch for being a first-time winner, the eighth such victor on the LPGA tour in 1988.

The 33-year-old Nause posted birdies at the second and sixth holes. Until she made the turn, she was in a tie for first with Ayako Okamoto and Mary Beth Zimmerman, who also carded two birdies apiece on the front nine. But Zimmerman faded with a bogey and two double bogeyson her last five holes. Okamoto simply couldn't come up with the fifth birdie.

Nause birdied two of the first three holes on the back nine and added another birdie at 15 to take control. At 18, after her tee shot skipped through a fairway bunker, she two-putted from three feet for bogey, despite having stepped away from the ball when a leaf was blown through her putting line.

"I was kind of happy when that leaf came floating across the line so I could step back and calm myself down a little bit more," she said. "I was a little excited."

The reason Nause took the lead could be attributed in part to a slow start by the 18-player field, which under the new format had started with 144 players and was cut in half at the end of each day. Nause made the turn in a tie with Ayako Okamoto and Mary Beth Zimmerman, but Okamoto couldn't find one more birdie on the back side and Zimmerman faded from contention.

"I didn't want to get ahead of myself, thinking I was going to do it because people could make birdies coming in," Nause said. "I just wanted to play the best I could, and fortunately I beat everybody else."

Dickinson, in the same threesome with Nause, hit her approach to the green at 18 to within six feet and birdied to close at 13 points. Bogeys at the second and 11th holes proved to be costly, although she birdied three of the last four holes.

"I just didn't think my putter was going to do it today," Dickinson said. "I'm a streaky putter. If I suddenly get a feel going, then I could make a lot of birdies."

With Okamoto and Dickinson finished and out of contention, only Dot Germain and Debbie Massey could catch Nause.

Massey's eight-iron punch shot to the 18th green was within 12 feet of the cup. Her putt to win slid just above the hole, and Nause thrust her fist into the air in triumph. Her caddy hugged her, and she was doused with a bucket of water.

Germain approached the 18th hole with 11 points and her tee shot was within 100 yards of the green. Her second shot flew the green to the back fringe, and her chip barely went three feet, leading to the bogey that left her with 10 points.

Nancy Lopez was alone in fifth place with 11 points, with Jerilyn Britz and Germain at 10. Janet Anderson, Amy Alcott and Jody Rosenthal each had nine points.

The tournament was the first on the LPGA tour to be played under a modified Stableford scoring system. In the system, a birdie is worth three points, an eagle is worth five and a double eagle worth eight. Par scores no points, a bogey loses one point and a double bogey costs a golfer three points.

Tragedy Continues To Pose Dilemma

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Six years after Hollywood's deadliest movie accident and a year after a celebrated trial, the "Twilight Zone" remains a nagging dilemma for the movie industry.

Scrutiny of the helicopter crash that killed veteran actor Vic Morrow and two child actors has resumed with the publication of a book about the trial of the director, John Landis, and four co-defendants. Another book on the subject is due next month.

Participants still debate details of the crash that occurred July 23, 1982, during filming of a Vietnam War scene for "Twilight Zone: The Movie." The helicopter crashed during special effects explosions, also killing 6-year-old Renee Chen and Myca Dinh Le, 7.

Attorney James Neal, who successfully defended Landis against manslaughter charges in Los Angeles County Superior Court, says the case should be "over and done with."

"The reason it won't go away," says attorney Harland Braun, "is because the system never assessed moral responsibility and no one accepted moral responsibility."

"Landis has never said, 'I did the wrong thing,'" said Braun, who represented associate producer George Folsey Jr. at the trial.

Despite a jury's acquittal of Landis, Folsey and the co-defendants of involuntary manslaughter, Braun and two other defense attorneys — Arnold Klein, representing special effects coordinator Paul Stewart, and Eugene Trope, representing pilot Dorcey Wingo — believe an acknowledgment of responsibility was called for.

"I don't think much of Landis," said Klein. "He had a cowardly defense where he blamed everyone else. He never came out and said he was deeply sorry for that which he was responsible for."

Author Ronald Labrecque, whose book "Special Effects" is due next month, said Landis fuels controversy with his own actions. For example:

—In early summer, Landis gave a dinner party at a trendy Beverly Hills restaurant on the first anniversary of his acquittal. Attorney Leonard Levine, a guest, said it was a "nice" gesture by Landis to thank those who stood by him.

—In June, Landis invited the trial jurors to a private screening of "Coming to America," the Eddie Murphy film he directed. The jurors accepted, and Landis' action drew more criticism.

In their newly published book, "Outrageous Conduct: Art, Ego and the Twilight Zone Case," authors Stephen Farber and Marc Green sharply criticize Landis, the prosecutor who lost the case and the movie industry that failed to penalize Landis for the deaths.

"There are elements of Hollywood that are morally bankrupt," said Green. "They believe only in the bottom line, and as long as John Landis' name is above the title of a movie that is the highest grossing non-sequel in history ("Coming to America"), John Landis will be welcome in those quarters."

"No one asks questions," said Farber.

Landis refused to be comment on the matter. His Los Angeles lawyer, Joel Behr, said the director was in Europe and would not comment even if he were here.

Neal said Landis acknowledged his role in the accident when he testified at the trial and should be allowed to "get on with his life."

"They did wrong, and certainly it can be argued they were guilty of violating child labor laws. But it should be over and it should be done with," he said.

in New York, and he lives here on the coast, and we run into each other occasionally at functions, but neither of us is a party animal so, you know, our paths haven't crossed that much.

"But there is a true affection and fondness and respect. On my part," Moore said, getting a laugh. "He never really liked me, but..."

Van Dyke said, "We saw each other at — what was it? The affiliates meeting was the last time I saw Mary, and I said my biggest fear is that I won't deliver a lead-in to Mary. I'll have to answer to Mary."

His show is being produced by GTG Entertainment, run by Grant Tinker, Moore's ex-husband whom she met during "The Dick Van Dyke Show."

"I introduced him to Mary Tyler Moore," said Van Dyke, adding, for a laugh, "I had nothing to do with the divorce, but..."

Moore went on to huge success in

TV Writers Return To Work

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Writers are back to work trying to salvage the fall TV season after ratifying a contract that ends one of Hollywood's longest strikes, but it could be weeks before scripts reach producers.

Some scriptwriters sat down in front of word processors and typewriters after the Writers Guild of America overwhelming ratified the four-year contract Sunday.

"A lot of them are already going to work and they will be working night and day now. Business is going to be booming," said Cheryl Rhoden, spokeswoman for the Writers Guild of America.

"Most people expect to see the first finished scripts for episodes in about four weeks."

The guild approved the pact with the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers by 2,111 to 412, or 83.7 percent, said guild President George Kirgo.

The 22-week walkout by the 9,000 members crippled Hollywood and will delay the start of the fall TV season, perhaps until November.

Writer Dave Fuller was anxious to return to work on a new HBO series and feature film he is co-writing with partner Rick Natatin.

"I'm going to try to pick up all the momentum we lost during the 22-week layoff," Fuller said.

Ratification came in the 154th day of the longest strike ever to cause a major disruption of film and television production. Hollywood has endured a more protracted strike, involving musicians, but the Writers Guild's longest previous walkout, in 1960, lasted 153 days.

The impact of the strike, which began March 7, reached beyond writers, producers and behind-the-scenes personnel, affecting businesses including equipment rentals and caterers and has cost the television networks tens of millions of dollars.

Producers are "pleased that the WGA membership has ratified the new agreement and we are able once again to get this industry back to work," said Nicholas Counter III, president of the 217-member alliance.

Divisiveness, however, was expected to linger, Ms. Rhoden said.

"It was a very difficult time. Over a period of time, some of the rancor and anger will be forgotten. I don't think the spirit will be forgotten, though. They (the writers) will remember this for a long time," she said.

The financial loss to union members was estimated at $500,000 each week, and the guild paid out more than $2 million in hardship loans to members.

The median income for working union members is $43,000, although the guild does have some millionaires.

In arguing for acceptance of the proposal, guild negotiators said the pact would provide writers more creative control over scripts and over the re-acquisition of original screenplays. But the union acknowledged it was not very successful in winning larger payments for reruns of television programs sold to foreign markets, a major strike issue.

"We went in looking for modest improvements and we made achievements in all those areas," Ms. Rhoden said.

Writers will choose between the existing formula, which pays a maximum of about $4,400 for a one-hour show rerun abroad, or a plan that pays 1.2 percent of the producer's foreign sales, within a range of 85 percent to 130 percent of the current payment.

Lawyer Says Movie Danger Has Increased

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A lawyer seeking legislation to promote safety on movie sets says filmmaking is more dangerous now than when three people were killed on the set of "Twilight Zone: The Movie."

With pressure for bigger and more spectacular special effects in movies, attorney Jerry Kroll says stuntmen and women are risking injury and death daily.

"First they were jumping out of cars. Then it was jumping off buildings, then out of airplanes. Next it will be the Concorde," said Kroll.

"I think Hollywood is more dangerous today than ever."

Kroll, who is handling six lawsuits resulting from movie and TV set accidents, says the situation is unlikely to change without legislation.

"The 'Twilight Zone' focused public attention on safety," Kroll said of the 1987 trial that ended with the acquittal of director John Landis and four co-defendants on involuntary manslaughter charges.

"But the public got to watch John Landis being acquitted, and the question is was that an acquittal of the industry? I say he was on trial and not the industry."

"If we learned anything from 'Twilight Zone,' it's that the criminal justice system isn't going to make the industry safer," said Kroll. "We have to do it some other way."

He is pushing for passage of a bill that would require licensing of stunt coordinators and special effects coordinators and would forbid moviemakers to use film footage of any stunt that resulted in injury or death.

One of Kroll's clients, stuntman Max Maxwell, was injured in a special effects explosion during filming of a 1985 action movie.

"The film contains footage of my client getting blown up," said Kroll. "It's just not right."

"If filmmakers know they can't use that kind of footage," said Kroll, "they will have a financial motivation to make sure the scene is safe when they shoot it."

Dick Van Dyke, Mary Tyler Moore Return To CBS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There it is on the CBS schedule — an hour of Dick Van Dyke and Mary Tyler Moore.

But even though they'll share the hour the two co-stars on the popular "The Dick Van Dyke Show" of the 1960s won't be sharing the same premise.

"The Van Dyke Show" will lead off. He plays a former hooper whose son is running a regional theater in Pennsylvania. The son is played by real-life son, Barry Van Dyke.

In Moore's show, as yet untitled, she's a sophisticated divorced mom living in Manhattan who marries a meat-and-potatoes widowed dad who lives in New Jersey.

CBS held separate news conferences for the two shows — and stars — during last week's TV critics convention.

Both stars were asked about their relationship in the 20 years since "The Dick Van Dyke Show."

"I've spent the last almost 10 years

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠72 ♥AKJ6 ♦9872 ♣Q105
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Dbl ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—It is a close decision between a redouble and one no trump. The trouble with the former is, should the opponents land in two clubs and that gets back to you, you have no clear-cut action. Therefore, we prefer one no trump, the most descriptive bid.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠Q1092 ♥73 ♦AQJ103 ♣A8
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♦ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
 What do you bid now?
 A.—One of the chief features of your hand is its distributional assets. You can highlight that by showing your second suit now. Bid two spades.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠Q1092 ♥73 ♦AQJ103 ♣A8
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♦ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
 2 ♣ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Partner must have at least six good hearts on this auction, so he probably has an unbalanced hand. There is no hurry to bid no trump. With your doubleton trump, prime values and potential ruffing value in clubs, raise to four hearts. That is the most encouraging bid you can make at this point.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AK83 ♥J952 ♦A98 ♣J4
 Partner opens the bidding with one club. What do you respond?

A.—In response to partner's minor-suit opening bid, you should bid four-card suits up-the-line. Here, that would mean responding one heart, despite the vast difference in quality between your two major suits. That virtually guarantees that you won't miss a 4-4 fit in either major.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AJ1063 ♥952 ♦72 ♣AJ8
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
 2 ♥ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—If you raised to only three hearts, you are passing the buck. Forget about points. Partner has promised six hearts; you have three-card support, two aces, an establishable suit and a ruffing value. You have enough to jump to four hearts.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠Q1052 ♥763 ♦9842 ♣83
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 2 ♣ 2 ♣ ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—When partner makes a demand bid and the opponents intervene, there is a conventional way to show some cards in the overcaller's suit and nothing more. You must double. That way partner knows he cannot expect any working cards in the other suits.
