Storm Takes Aim For Jamaica

By LLOYD WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Hurricane Gilbert, packing 110 mph winds and torrential rain, churned westward toward Jamaica's underbelly today after skirting the southern coasts of Puerto Rico, Haiti and the Dominican Republic.
High winds and heavy rain preceding the storm drenched the capital of Kingston overnight, toppling trees, causing local flooding and littering streets with branches. Authorities said there were no immediate reports of injuries.

Most Jamaicans stayed home, boarding up windows in preparation for the hurricane's expected arrival just south of Kingston later in the day. Some companies broadcast appeals for technicians and electricians to report to work.
The weather bureau predicted Gilbert's center, 140 miles southeast of Kingston before dawn, would pass south of Kingston and hit the southern parish of Clarendon.

Flash flood warnings were issued for the parishes of Portland on the northeast and St. Mary on the north. The north coast tourist region from Montego Bay on the west and Ocho Rios on the east, far from the southern impact zone and separated by mountains, was expected only to receive heavy rain.
Officials urged residents in the higher risk areas along the south coast to seek higher ground.

"It's certainly one of the larger systems we've seen in the Caribbean for a long time," said Hal Gerrish, forecaster at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.
Forecasters at the center said the eye of Gilbert was 140 miles southeast of Kingston at dawn today. Maximum sustained winds were near 110 mph, with tropical-storm

Firefighters Shiver As Snow Brings Joy To Charred Forests

By KURT J. REPANSHEK
Associated Press Writer
YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — Shivering firefighters rejoiced as snow eased their battle against blazes that have blackened the oldest national park, but a forecast for warm, dry weather kept them on guard.
"I just love it. It means we might get to go home earlier," firefighter John Massey said Sunday as snow dusted much of Yellowstone National Park.
Three to 4 inches fell in areas south of Mammoth Hot Springs. Humidity was as high as 90 percent, and temperatures in the mid-30s combined with winds of up to 30 mph for a wind chill index of 19 degrees.
"Things for the short term are better here," park spokeswoman Amy Vanderbilt said.
In the Sierra Nevada foothills of California, a wind-whipped fire that began Sunday charred 10,000 acres of brush and timber, destroyed 13 homes and 7 to 17 other structures, and burned boats in the water at affluent Lake Wildwood, officials said.
About 1,200 firefighters fought the blaze today, according to California Department of Forestry spokesman Charlie Jakobs. A firefighter suffered minor hand burns when flames engulfed his bulldozer, forcing him to wrap himself in an asbestos blanket and take refuge under his vehicle.

Light snow and low temperatures also helped firefighters in Idaho, and rain and cooler weather slowed fires in Colorado.
In northwest Oregon, officials closed millions of acres of state-protected forests in an effort to curb the number of fires caused by human carelessness.
In Montana, crews took advantage of the cool weather to carve lines around a forest fire north of Yellowstone and another that has scorched more than 30,000 acres in and around Glacier National Park near the Canadian border.
At Glacier, two firefighters were injured when a tree fell across the back of an open truck carrying crews to a 30,400-acre fire, officials said.
At Yellowstone, the light snow had firefighters shivering around propane heaters Sunday night. Fire managers joked that fears before the weekend of another "Black Saturday" — when fires on Saturday, Aug. 20, sent blazes roaring across 150,000 acres — melted when "White Sunday" arrived.

Pilot Says Hamadi Killed Sailor

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — The pilot of a TWA jetliner hijacked to Beirut in 1985 testified today that Mohammed Ali Hamadi fired the shot that killed U.S. Navy diver Robert Sethem.
But under questioning by defense lawyers, Capt. John Testrake said he did not actually see Hamadi pull the trigger. And he said either of the two hijackers could have led Sthethem to a cabin door where he was shot.
"It was my recollection that the most violent of the two men was in the companion way. I was in extreme stress and not taking notes of these details, it's only recollection," Testrake said.
Testrake testified he believed Hamadi, a Lebanese Shiite Moslem who is on trial on charges of air piracy and murder, was the most violent of the two hijackers.
The pilot said he had a chance to get a closer look at defendant during a court recess. After the break, he told the court:
"I want to make an important statement. ... I did say before that one of the two (hijackers) appeared to do more of the communicating and the other more of the violence."
"And looking at this man now, I was struck that this man fit the second of the two descriptions... that this is the man who I recall had stood in the forward entryway and shot Sthethem."

Under questioning, however, Testrake said he could not recall if Hamadi or the other hijacker was with Sthethem at the time of the shooting.
Hamadi has acknowledged being one of the hijackers, but denied killing Sthethem, of Waldorf, Md. If convicted, Hamadi faces life imprisonment.

Testrake, of Richmond, Mo., was at the controls of Flight 847 when it was hijacked June 14, 1985. The flight from Athens to Rome was diverted to Beirut and 39 Americans were held hostage for 17 days.
Hamadi was arrested at Frankfurt Airport in 1987 after explosives were found in his luggage.

His brother, Abdul-Hadi Hamadi, is believed to head the Holy Warriors for Freedom, which claimed responsibility for the Jan. 17, 1987 kidnapping of Rudolf Cordes, 55, Beirut manager for the Hoechst AG chemical company.
In Beirut today, a letter attributed to Cordes said the hostage expected

Four People Hurt As Man Fires Shotgun Into Teen-Age Crowd

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP) — Four people were injured early today, including a Roxboro teen-ager who was struck in the eye, when a man fired a shotgun into a crowd gathered at a teen-age hangout, police say.
Three Roxboro teen-agers were charged in the 12:30 a.m. shooting at Westfield Shopping Center, police Detective Sgt. David Ramsey said today.
David Whitfield, 18, was being held in the Person County Jail under $70,000 bond, charged with four counts of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, Ramsey said.

Also charged with four counts of assault were David Wesley, 18, and Ronnie Leonard, 17, who also was charged with aiding and abetting, Ramsey said. Wesley was the driver of the car and the owner of the shotgun, Ramsey said.
Police said when Whitfield drove past the shopping center Sunday night, someone threw a bottle at his car, smashing the side window. He returned a few hours later, armed with a shotgun and joined by friends, officers said.

Police said Lisa MacGregor, 17, of Roxboro was hit in the eye with shotgun pellet when a gunman fired into the crowd and was flown to Duke University Medical Center for treatment. Police said she may lose her eye, but a hospital spokesman said she was in good condition.
Three others were treated and released at Person Memorial Hospital in Roxboro.

Botha Traveling Into Black Africa

SONGO, Mozambique (AP) — President P.W. Botha of South Africa today embarked on his first summit-level mission into black Africa, flying to Marxist-ruled Mozambique for talks with a government that has blamed its woes on his country.
President Joaquim Chissano shook hands with Botha at an airfield welcoming ceremony near this northwestern town. The two then took a jeep to the nearby Cahora Bassa hydroelectric project, which is South African-assisted.
After an hour-long tour of the dam, the two leaders and their delegations held talks in the offices of the company that operates the project.
Botha was to go to Malawi later for talks Tuesday with President Hastings Kamuzu Banda. Malawi is the only African state that maintains full diplomatic ties with South Africa, where whites have established a racially segregated society in which blacks have no vote in national affairs.
Botha and Chissano were expected to discuss a mutual non-aggression treaty signed by their countries in 1984.
The treaty lapsed in 1985 when Mozambique produced evidence that South Africa violated the agreement by continuing to assist the Mozambique National Resistance rebel movement. The guerrillas began an insurgency two years after Mozambique won its independence from Portugal in 1975.

The war, combined with drought, has left millions of Mozambicans homeless and hungry.
Many Western governments, including the United States, have increased aid to Mozambique and support its claim that the rebels receive covert logistical and communications aid from South Africa.
South Africa insists it no longer aids the rebels, and Botha was expected to try to convince Chissano to mute the allegations.
Botha, whose plane departed from an air force base in Pretoria, South Africa, was accompanied by his defense minister, Gen. Magnus Malan, and Foreign Minister Pik Botha. Chissano's delegation, which left the capital of Maputo for Songo early today, included three Cabinet ministers and two military commanders, according to the Mozambican news agency AIM.

PCMH To Open Admissions Unit

The new admissions department of Pitt County Memorial Hospital was dedicated Sunday afternoon and will open at 5 a.m. Thursday.
Speaking during a dedication ceremony held in front of the entrance to the department were Charles Gaskins, Pitt County commissioner and liaison member of the PCHM board of trustees; Henry Leslie, former trustee board chairman and lifetime non-voting member of the board; Jack Richardson, PCMH president; Dr. Mary Raab, hospital chief of staff-elect, and William Flowers, a PCMH trustee board member from Plymouth. Those attending the ceremony were invited to tour the new area.

The new entrance is west of the former main entrance, which becomes the visitors' entrance Thursday. Visitors will continue to use the same parking area, entering from Stantonsburg Road, while patients will use a parking lot entered from Moye Boulevard.
The new area will be used for admitting and discharging inpatients and outpatients and for receiving those who come to the hospital for tests.
The emergency department will be used only for emergency patients, obstetrical admissions and those with appointments at the Magnetic Resonance Imaging Center. The entrance to its parking lot is on Emergency Drive off Stantonsburg Road and N.C. 43.

The admissions entrance is adjacent to the hospital laboratory, radiology and special services departments. It will be convenient for patients going in for tests.
Hours for the admissions department will be 5 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. Patients who need to enter at other times may do so through the emergency department.

According to Linda Roberson, admissions administrator, the existing admissions office was built when the hospital had 370 beds and has been severely stressed for some time. The hospital now has 560 beds and admits about 23,000 patients per year.
The new admissions department is a portion of a construction project now completed which includes new laboratory medicine and medical records departments. The total project includes 80,000 square feet of new construction and 16,000 of renovation. It cost about $9.5 million.

Woman Arrested

Deborah Susan Douglas, 29, of 20 Jackson Trailer Park was arrested on shoplifting charges by Greenville police Saturday.

Officer J.K. McCarthy said the charges stemmed from a price-switching incident at the Farm Fresh store on Greenville Boulevard about 5:36 p.m.

Drug Charges Filed

Greenville police arrested two people on drug charges Sunday.

Officer E.L. Butts said Ryan Richard Oday, 19, of 212 Green Mill Run Apartments was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia in connection with a 1:31 a.m. incident at the intersection of Second and Elm Streets.

Officer E.M. Haddock said Joe Harris, 20, of 608 Vanderbilt St. was charged with possession of cocaine after 25 vials of cocaine-based crack were said to be found in his possession in a parking lot at the intersection of Sixth and Evans Streets about 1:50 a.m.

Two Arrested

Greenville police arrested two people Sunday, charging them with possession of stolen property in connection with the theft of clothes from Tom Togs in Farmville.

Officer S.C. Locke said Charles Felton Sheppard, 27, of Tarboro, and Tasha Lynn Brown, 27, of Trenton, N.J., were arrested about 3:15 p.m. on Deck Street. Locke said nine sweaters, with a combined value of about $130 were confiscated.

Dansey Calls For Debate

State Senate candidate Bill Dansey today issued a challenge to Democrat Tom Taft, his incumbent opponent in the upcoming November elections, to debate the issues.

At a morning press conference at Courtney Square Apartments, Dansey told reporters he is mailing an invitation to Taft today to debate publicly a variety of campaign issues including education, drug abuse and the environment.

Dansey, a Republican, also said he would make arrangements to have television time donated, or he would pay for television time in order to air the forum.

"If I have to spend the funds in order to get Tom Taft to debate the issues, I think it would be money well spent," Dansey said.

Dansey's invitation follows what he says is Taft's decision not to participate in a "one-on-one" debate on Oct. 28, sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

Taft was unavailable this morning for comment.

Police Investigate Theft At Business

Investigators said nine thefts, including $3,000 from Contech Construction Products, were reported to Greenville police over the weekend.

Officer M.E. Hayes said the cash was taken from the 1801 Charles Blvd. business in a break-in reported at 3:36 p.m. Sunday and said $60 was taken from a business at 1803 Charles Blvd. in another break-in reported about the same time.

Officer J.A. Felton said a purse was taken from a car parked at the Pizza Hut on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 3:40 a.m. Sunday, while Officer M.T. Scheid said a .44 caliber pistol and a .25 caliber handgun, with a combined value of $450, were taken from 2603 S. Evans St. in a break-in reported at 2:09 p.m.

Officer M.J. Nobles said two towels, a black bodice and several

The location of Bentsen's appearance had not been set this morning.

Cox Earns Eagle

Jerry Randell Cox Jr., 15, of Greenville has earned his Eagle Award, the highest award of the Boy Scouts of America. Cox was recognized Sunday in a 3 p.m. ceremony at the First Presbyterian Church.

A member of Troop 452, which is sponsored by the First Presbyterian Church, Cox is one of less than two percent of all scouts who attain the Eagle award.

Eagle award candidates must earn 21 merit badges and successfully complete a community, church or synagogue-related service project; Cox planted pine trees as a site barrier at River Park North.

Cox is a member of the First Presbyterian Church and a sophomore at J.H. Rose High School. He is the son of Jerry R. and Betty W. Cox of Greenville and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Tripp of Greenville.

Greenville police issued a solicitation permit to the Greenville Band Boosters to sell fruit throughout the city from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Oct. 3-Nov. 4.

Board To Meet

The Greenville Utilities Commission board will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the utilities building at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Streets. Items on the agenda include considering alternatives for hydraulic gradient improvements and implementing a heat strip load-management program.

Photographs were taken from 115 E. Ninth St. in a break-in reported at 2:22 p.m. Sunday, while Officer A.J. Dennison said a purse was taken from a car parked at Carolina East Center on Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 8:28 p.m. Saturday.

Investigators said $8 was taken from a car parked at the Sheraton hotel on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 9:30 p.m., while Officer R.L. Smith said a bicycle cover, a rear-view mirror and a number of tools were taken from a bicycle parked at the Sheraton in an incident reported at 9:50 p.m.

According to Officer C.S. Candler, three packages of steak and two bottles of perfume were taken from Kroger Sav-On on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 11:24 p.m. Saturday.

Telethon Planned

The Pitt-Greenville Crime Stoppers Committee will hold its second telethon Sept. 17-18 on cable channels 7 and 9. The telethon will feature live local entertainment and pre-taped music videos featuring local Pitt County community leaders and citizens lip-syncing to popular music.

Viewers may pledge $25 to have their favorite music videos reshown. For $50, contributors can receive a video cassette containing all of the music videos.

The telethon was initiated by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce in 1986. Last year more than $52,000 was raised.

The chamber founded Pitt-Greenville Crime Stoppers in September 1983.

In the last 3½ years, more than 1,300 callers have given information, resulting in 525 arrests and the recovery of more than $1 million in narcotics and stolen property.

The telethon is sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Crimes Stoppers Committee and the Safety Committee of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce. John Minges III of the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. is chairman.

For more information, call Minges at 758-2113; Doug Jackson, Crime Stoppers coordinator, at 830-4366; or Frances Faust, chamber staff manager, at 752-4101.

Male Assault

DURHAM (AP) — A Durham man told police he was kidnapped by four women at gunpoint and taken to a Raleigh house where he was sexually assaulted by the women.

The man told officers he was walking down a Durham street when four women in a car pulled up beside him. A woman in the back seat pointed a gun at him and forced him in the car, the man said.

He said the women took him to a house somewhere in Raleigh and handcuffed him to a bed, forcing him to perform sexual acts. Several hours later the women gave the man some change and told him to walk back to Durham.

MASONIC NOTICE
Bright Star Lodge No. 385 will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Phillipi Baptist Church Educational Building in Simpson.

State Candidates Take New Potshots In Weekend Touring

By The Associated Press
While Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan attacked Gov. Jim Martin on the issue of leadership, the Republican governor got political mileage out of Jordan's stand on transportation.

Both candidates for governor were on the campaign trail this weekend. Jordan appeared at a Democratic gathering in Emerald Isle and Martin capped a tour of Granville and Northampton counties with a speech in Kinston, where he blamed Jordan for the state's declining share of federal highway funds.

Martin said Jordan helped convince Sen. Terry Sanford to switch his vote in 1987 on the federal highway bill to override President Reagan's veto.

"Lieutenant Governor Bob Jordan got on the phone, at the request of Senator Bob Byrd of West Virginia, and urged Senator Sanford to forget his principles, forget what he knew was wrong about that bill and vote for the bill with the Democrats in Washington and against the Democrats, Republicans and independents in North Carolina," Martin said.

Martin also emphasized his economic development achievements and ridiculed Democratic attacks on him, particularly the label of a "sitting governor."

Those attacks continued in Emerald Isle.

"We have not had leadership that understands, nor is willing to do the things that have to be done," Jordan told about 1,500 people Saturday.

Standing above a banner reading, "The Democrats are back," Jordan said Martin has done little the past three years and has shown he doesn't understand the state or its needs.

Indiana Sen. Dan Quale, the GOP nominee for vice president, was another target of the Democrats meeting on the coast.

Sanford said North Carolina voters will reject Republican presidential nominee George Bush because they don't want to risk Quale becoming president if something happens to Bush.

"The worst mistake he has made was picking that odd bird to be his running mate," said Sanford, a former World War II paratrooper. "That odd bird that's got the beak of a hawk and the heart of a chicken and the brain of a — I don't know what."

U.S. Rep. Martin Lancaster also made light of Quale and his National Guard service.

"You know what you get when you cross a hawk and a chicken, don't you?" Lancaster asked. "A Quale."

But Martin said later that questions about Quale's military service won't harm the GOP ticket in November. Instead, he said, it is drawing attention to the fact that Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis is one of three "liberal Democratic governors" who won't let his National Guard train in dangerous areas.

Democrat Issues Security Plan

Bush, Dukakis Trade Blows On Foreign Policy, Military

By ROBERT GREENE
Associated Press Writer

Democrat Michael Dukakis declared today that "George Bush has failed" in three critical foreign policy tests, while Republican Bush took a new shot at Dukakis on military policy.

Bush also defended Frederic V. Malek, his adviser who abruptly left a top Republican Party post Sunday after a news story saying he counted the number of Jews in a federal agency for then-President Nixon in 1971.

Dukakis, in Philadelphia, said the three key points of his national security policy would be a solid domestic economy making the United States strong in international trade, unwavering opposition to terrorism and a stepped-up effort to halt international drug trafficking.

"In each of these three areas, George Bush has failed," Dukakis said in remarks prepared for delivery today. "I want to beat our foreign competitors; he's willing to settle for second best. I want to crack down on terrorism; he knuckled under to the ayatollah. I want a real war on drugs; his answer to drug kingpins like Noriega is J. Danforth Quayle."

General Antonio Noriega is the Panamanian leader charged in U.S. federal court with drug violations. Quayle is Bush's vice presidential running mate.

Bush, meanwhile, said in Washington that Dukakis would lean on international organizations too much rather than take action as the Reagan administration did in Grenada, in attacking Libya and in escorting ships through the Persian Gulf.

"We cannot abdicate our responsibility for leadership," Bush said in Washington before leaving on a campaign trip to New Jersey, the Midwest and California.

He also named a 13-member national security panel, including former secretaries of state Henry A. Kissinger and Alexander Haig as well as Zbigniew Brzezinski, who was former President Carter's national security adviser.

Brzezinski said he was proud to have served Carter, a Democrat, but of the two current presidential candidates Republican Bush "is the one who can best fashion an effective bipartisan foreign policy."

Bush was asked by reporters about Malek, who resigned as deputy chairman of the Republican National Committee after a report Sunday in The Washington Post that he compiled figures on the number of Jews in high-ranking positions in the Bureau of Labor Statistics during the Nixon administration.

"I know this man and I know him to be without one ounce of bigotry or prejudice in his makeup," Bush said.

Notes that are part of the presidential archives refer to Nixon's search for a "Jewish cabal" that he thought was using unemployment data to put him in an unfavorable light. Malek acknowledged compiling the figures, but said he thought Nixon's notions were "nonsense," and that he had nothing to do with subsequent demotion of two Jewish officials in the bureau.

The report was the second in a week suggesting that people connected with the Bush campaign engaged in activities that were either overtly anti-Semitic or could be construed that way.

Malek, who was Nixon's personnel chief at the time, issued a statement with the announcement of his resignation Sunday saying he didn't want publicity about his actions for Nixon to jeopardize the Bush campaign.

The resignation deprives Bush, at least temporarily, of direct control over the national party during the fall campaign.

Malek's resignation followed the departure last week of Jerome Brentar as co-chairman of Bush's campaign organization for ethnic groups. Brentar, a Cleveland travel agent, had been an active defender of Ohio autoworker John Demjanjuk, who was extradited and convicted in Israel of being a Nazi war criminal.

Last week, the Washington Jewish Week newspaper reported that Brentar was active in groups that denied the existence of the Holocaust and that he had made anti-Semitic statements. The report named several members of Bush's ethnic coalition who had ties to fascist and anti-Semitic groups.

"What at first seemed to be a few unsettling errors in judgment in the Bush campaign now seems to be growing into a pattern of astonishing insensitivity that is totally inappropriate for an American presidential campaign," Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., said Sunday in a statement.

Dukakis, who has taken a more aggressive stance in recent days, spoke Sunday with congressional leaders in Boston about his image on national security and foreign policy issues and promised to "restate my positions forcefully" this week.

Among the nearly dozen members of Congress who attended the meeting were Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee; Rep. Les Aspin of Wisconsin, Nunn's counterpart in the House, and former presidential candidate Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee.

Dukakis acknowledged after the meeting that he had some differences with leading defense spokesmen of his party, most of whom are more hard-line, but promised a consensus-oriented approach to setting Pentagon priorities.

"What you see here is an example of the way we're going to make national security policy beginning in January 1989," Dukakis said. "With a president and a Congress that work together."

Florida Youth Becomes Youngest Cross-U.S. Pilot

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Thad Mitchell, the youngest pilot to fly coast to coast solo, says he's ready for another challenge.

"We were thinking about maybe crossing the Atlantic on my 17th birthday," Mitchell said Sunday afternoon shortly after completing his flight from San Diego to Jacksonville.

"We were just kidding around," Mitchell, who turned 16 on Saturday, added quickly.

The Pensacola teen-ager landed his single-engine Mooney 201 at Jacksonville International Airport less than 24 hours after leaving San Diego.

"I wasn't nervous at all. If I got in to trouble, I could have just landed," said Mitchell, who made refueling stops in El Paso, Texas, and Lafayette, La.

The trip made him the first pilot of any age to make his first solo flight a transcontinental trip, according to the National Aeronautics Association, which sanctioned the undertaking.

Mitchell is two years away from being licensed to fly with instruments, and must rely on visual flight rules. Because of that, he said, he cannot fly through clouds.

"We flew through some pretty heavy rain in some parts and then flew around a lot of clouds," he said. "I had to dodge them. That was really fun."

Flying ahead of Mitchell in a twin-engine Piper were his father, Mark; Billy Hattaway, his flight instructor for nearly four years; and Dick Bennett of Pensacola Aviation.

Thad said he stayed alert by carefully following his progress on maps.

"I used to think from here to Jacksonville was a pretty long flight," he said. "But the trip seemed very short."

Younger pilots have flown across the country with instructors, but federal regulations prohibit solo flights until the age of 16.

Mitchell has logged 100 hours of flying time and flew across country with another pilot when he was 13.

Students Say Oral Roberts Canceled Full Scholarships

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oral Roberts University medical students say they feel betrayed by the cancellation of a scholarship program funded after evangelist Oral Roberts said God would end his life unless he raised $8 million.

Although the television preacher-faith healer said the donations would fund full scholarships for medical students at Oral Roberts University, those scholarships turned out to be loans.

New students at the Tulsa, Okla., school have been told the university has canceled the scholarship program for them.

Students also complained Roberts has pressured them to keep quiet about their dissatisfaction, the Los Angeles Times reported in today's editions.

Several students said that at the semester's opening chapel service, Roberts told them not to grumble, warning: "Keep your cotton-pickin' mouth shut!"

Roberts, on his TV programs and in letters to donors this year, has insisted he never promised the medical students anything beyond one year's help. Officials in Roberts' ministry and the medical school declined requests for comment.

During last year's $8 million fund-raising drive, Roberts repeatedly said the donations would fund full scholarships for medical students.

But the four-year scholarships turned out to require students to work as medical missionaries for four years after graduation to repay the $93,500 in scholarship funds.

The contract also said: "ORU makes no promise or warranty whatsoever that additional medical school scholarship loans will be made in future years." "Future years" is not defined.

In a memo Feb. 1, however, the medical school students were informed by Assistant Dean Milton C. Olsen that the Healing Team Scholarship Loan program would be canceled at the end of the 1987-88 academic year.

Students who stayed in the medical school for the next three years would have to pay as much as $71,000. Those who transferred were told they would have to pay back the money they had already received at 18 percent interest.

The "restated loan agreement" also prohibits students from borrowing from "any source other than ORU ... except with written approval of President Oral Roberts and the Board of Regents."

At least 25 returning students have sought legal advice regarding the new document. Twelve have transferred and about half of the 85 who received scholarships in past years have refused to sign the new contract.

The more than $8 million raised in last year's drive was not just for the students, but for the cost of operating the medical school for one year, Oral Roberts and his son Richard said on the "Richard Roberts Live" television program in March.

Jack Hayford, pastor of the Church on the Way in the Los Angeles and a member of the school's Board of Regents, said he thought the students should be grateful for any attempt to continue the scholarships.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Build It Right

U.S. 264 Should Be Freeway Quality

Wilson supporters of a U.S. 264 bypass of the city, as well as other eastern North Carolina communities served by the highway, should be staunch and unified supporters of a freeway-quality roadway to Raleigh.

Spokesmen for the Wilson Chamber of Commerce and the Wilson County Economic Council appeared before local officials last week to seek support for a newer route — a route which is closer to Wilson than that which was originally planned. The spokesmen say the route should be moved to bring traffic closer to the city. They point to the lack of development along Interstate 95, which is well west of Wilson.

The highway would be built as a fully controlled access freeway with interchanges. However, the group is proposing it be built in two phases with the first being from the present U.S. 264 and U.S. 58 intersection east of Wilson to Airport Road west of Wilson. The final segment, crossing I-95, would be built when traffic warrants.

It is imperative to the development of the central eastern North Carolina section that U.S. 264 as a freeway be completed. Obviously all groups in Wilson County should be in agreement on the planned route if its construction is to be done in a reasonable time.

Next year in the N.C. Legislature there is certain to be a move to provide new financing for highway construction. Eastern representatives should not meekly vote for whatever financing plan is developed without assurance that U.S. 264 will be completed in its entirety.

And that means the counties and municipalities affected by U.S. 264 must all work together to support its development. They did once and some progress has been made. The job is not complete, however. The Wilson bypass is still years away and several key interchanges have been left out.

Counties to the west should know that the extending U.S. 64 freeway through Rocky Mount and Tarboro — and soon to be extended to Williamston — can siphon off much traffic in the future. Travelers from east of Greenville will be able to take N.C. 30 at Pictolus and pick up U.S. 64 at Bethel. Soon travelers from Greenville will be able to take N.C. 33 to Tarboro and follow U.S. 64 to Raleigh.

Thus there will be competition for traffic. All counties and municipalities along U.S. 264 need to join together in a concerted effort to get this highway completed as a freeway. If the East wants it, the East will have to work for it.

Optimism

Prices Down, But Sales Strong

With 55 percent of the tobacco already sold in Pitt County, the indications are that 1988 will be a profitable year for the growers.

Concerns have been expressed that early prices were not as high as expected. The Greenville market, however, is averaging about 4.5 cents a pound more than at this time last year.

The best grades of tobacco are now moving to market and this tobacco will bring the highest prices of the season.

A still favorable sign is that only a fraction of this year's crop has gone to Flue Cured Stabilization Corporation.

Upper stalk tobacco, the highest quality leaf, could bring higher prices — high enough to bring the average to the level expected at the start of the year. Hopefully averages will increase and the year will be as profitable as farmers envisioned.

The outlook is good, with assessments reduced, Stabilization stocks down and a generally good quality tobacco crop on hand this year.

Shifting Fortune On The TV News

WASHINGTON — One clue to George Bush's sudden rise in the polls since the Republican National Convention, and Michael S. Dukakis' decline, might be found in their relative performances in the battle of the network news. It's the medium through which more than 40 million people a night learn about the presidential campaign.

Consider this snapshot from ABC's "World News Tonight" on Tuesday, a day when both the Republican and Democratic presidential nominees were heckled during campaign appearances.

First Sam Donaldson showed Dukakis, the governor of Massachusetts, being shouted down by a handful of anti-abortion activists as he tried to address a crowd in Niles, Ill. Dukakis frowned and raised his hands as his pleas for quiet were met by a storm of epithets. Finally his enraged supporters ejected the protesters in a fist-swinging melee. "It was a scene that totally disrupted and upstaged Dukakis' message," Donaldson reported.

Then Britt Hume showed Bush mixing it up with a hostile union audience at a shipyard in Portland, Ore., which bayed boos at the vice president. Bush smiled winningly as he gave as good as he got. "I thought he stuck up pretty good for himself," one of the hard-hats told the camera. "It was the kind of reception the vice president's schedulers must have expected, and may even have wanted, to show their man can take it," Hume reported.

So it has gone since Bush became his own man in New Orleans, jumping out of President Reagan's shadow with a universally lauded acceptance speech that redefined his candidacy and seemed to give him new life, even new body language. "He must have looked at the tape of the speech and said, 'Is that really me?'" said Democratic media consultant Robert Squier. "And (Bush senior media adviser Roger) Ailes said, 'Yes,' put his Superman cape on him and sent him out on the road."

"George Bush is almost always outdoors, coatless, sometimes with his sleeves rolled up, and looks ebullient and Happy Warrior-ish," said ABC News political reporter Jeff Greenfield, a former Democratic speechwriter. "Mike Dukakis is almost always indoors, with his jacket on, and almost always behind a lectern. It's the College Professor versus the Conquering Hero."

"You'd think the cool, close-in look of Dukakis would wear well," said Republican media consultant Robert Goodman. "But it's in a different context now. There doesn't seem to be any electricity to it. It's a lightbulb that seems to have gone out."

"When the Republicans talk about 'gloom and doom,' they're talking about the way Dukakis looks on television," said a Democratic media consultant who asked for anonymity.

But Friday night marked a major role reversal, and a reminder of the inconstancy of television. All the networks showed Dukakis delivering a "red-meat" speech, as NBC's Chris Wallace described it, and even playing the trumpet, before a crowd of cheering Texans. Bush was shown fending off questions about alleged anti-Semites working in his campaign, while his running mate, Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., answered questions about how he got into law school. Bush, wearing a jacket, was mostly indoors. Dukakis, in shirt-sleeves, basked in the sun.

Pollster Clifford Zukin, of Rutgers University's Eagleton Institute of Politics, cautioned that it is still too early to say what perceptions voters are forming of the candidates.

"People digest all these messages very amorously," he said. "It's what psychologists call 'passive learning,' the input and storage of information without really being consciously attentive. The images that come in are soft and small, and they have to be reinforced for maybe a week's period on the nightly news before they begin to take hold."

The Bush campaign has tried to reassert the images it likes to project by sticking to a daily script and avoiding news conferences. Bush has waged a Reaganesque campaign of beautifully staged events, while keeping reporters at a distance. Dukakis, on the other hand, has been constantly available, often to his detriment on the network news.

A case in point was Thursday night's coverage of Dukakis' speech to the American Legion conclave that Bush addressed the day before. While network correspondents reported that Dukakis' strong-on-defense message was well received, they chose to focus their brief reports on his post-speech news conference, at which he seemed to be waffling on his opposition to the Strategic Defense Initiative.

Bruce Morton of CBS filed the toughest report, using deft sound bites to skewer the Democratic nominee:

Dukakis: "I have said repeatedly and consistently that I am for continued research."

Morton on voice-over: "True, but spending $1 billion a year, against about $4 billion now."

Dukakis: "But I don't believe we ought to commit ourselves to billions for this system, and to testing and deployment of the system, which would be illegal under the ABM Treaty in any event."

Morton: "No deployment, right?"

Dukakis: "If I made the judgment, and if the Congress made the judgment, that it was essential to our national security, then obviously we'd proceed with it."

And so on.

"The problem with the press conference," said Democratic media consultant Squier, "is that you become your own Greek chorus. Your message gets confused. Limiting your press availabilities seems undemocratic ... but if your opponent is getting away with a campaign devoid of press inquiry, you figure out that those are the rules and you play the same game."

The same night that Dukakis was pictured dancing around the SDI issue, Bush was shown looking very presidential as he presided over the destruction of an American nuclear missile, shook hands with Soviet observers and proclaimed a reversal of the arms race. ABC's Hume duly noted that Bush was using the "power of incumbency," and that the Army had "bulldozed acres of trees" to facilitate his photo opportunity, but that didn't detract from spectacular television that dramatically reinforced Bush's claims to leadership and experience.

The quadrennial question confronting network news executives is whether they are rewarding a campaign that limits the candidate's exposure to reporters in favor of tightly choreographed set-pieces, and punishing the campaign that makes its candidate accessible.

"The more cosmic question," said William Wheatley, executive producer of the NBC "Nightly News," "is, is that our fault, or is it the Dukakis campaign's fault?"

"What do you want me to do, give the Dukakis campaign better backgrounds?" asked Paul Friedman, executive producer of ABC's "World News Tonight."

Patriotism & The Low Road

'If the many polls are correct, voters are buying all of the lowest-common-denominator simplicities dished out by the political consultants and mouthed by the candidates.'

Adlai Stevenson pledged to "talk sense" to the American people. He did so, memorably, but he lost overwhelmingly.

A two-time loser as the Democratic Party's nominee, Stevenson wasn't the first presidential candidate to misjudge the wisdom of the electorate. The all-time champ was William Jennings Bryan, who held similarly misguided notions about the good sense of the voters.

"I assert that the people of the United States ... have sufficient patriotism and sufficient intelligence to sit in judgment on every question which has arisen, no matter how long our government will endure," the great orator proclaimed. Three times, Bryan counted on voters applying their "sufficient intelligence" to his cause as Democratic presidential candidate. Three times, they listened to his message, then defeated him resoundingly.

Notwithstanding that record, a case can be made that, in those elections, voters were demonstrating excellent judgment. Dwight D. Eisenhower became one of the nation's best presidents; it's doubtful, with the advantage of hindsight, that Stevenson would have been so had he won. While William McKinley was hardly a model of presidential success after defeating Bryan twice, William Howard Taft bested Bryan and was a superior president.

No such case can be made this time. In 1988, no one can predict with certainty history's verdict on a George Bush or Michael Dukakis presidency. Still, there can be no doubt about one critical element of this presidential campaign. The voters seem to be failing abysmally their collective political-intelligence test.

If the many polls are correct, voters are buying all of the lowest-common-denominator simplicities dished out by the political consultants and mouthed by the candidates. The boob-tube negative-campaign strategies are working. The campaign has degenerated into a battle of political attacks in "sound-bite scenarios," the cheaper and dirtier the better, with everything aimed at gaining the 15-second lead spot on the evening network newscasts.

Nonsense isn't even the word to describe what has emerged as the central nonissue issue: the false one of patriotism. Bush and running-mate Dan Quayle are asking the American people to believe that they represent true patriotism while Dukakis and the Democrats represent unpatriotic, un-American values.

Bush and Quayle demonstrate their perception of superior patriotism by waving the flag most vigorously and reciting the Pledge of Allegiance most loudly. They have made the pledge the symbolic centerpiece of their campaign.

On this, I share the feeling of disgust and outrage brilliantly expressed by Michael Kinsley this week in Time magazine. He commented:

"Nothing since I came of political age has depressed me so much about American democracy as the apparent success of Bush's pledge offensive. What, after all, is American patriotism about? It's not about purple mountain majesties — they have those in Switzerland. There was endless babble about 'freedom' at the Republican convention. But freedom doesn't mean reciting a loyalty oath on command. They have that kind of freedom in the U.S.S.R."

"American freedom means the right not to recite a loyalty oath if — for reasons of religion, politics or simple perversity — you don't want to. Bush may reject this vision of American freedom, although it is shared by the Supreme Court. That is his privilege: It's a free country. It is not his privilege to imply that anyone who disagrees with him is unpatriotic."

Bravo. Perhaps I am naive and hopelessly optimistic, but I cling to the belief that, in the end, the American people will show that they understand that true patriotism has nothing to do with flag-waving and assaults on character. True patriotism means respect for diversity, tolerance for differing views, upholding the right to be wrong and to dissent. Most of all, it means a conviction that out of the clash of opposing ideas and beliefs will emerge a common national purpose that inspires citizens to work toward improving their society and leaving it better than they found it.

There's a simple way for voters to pass this test in democracy. Show those who make demagogic appeals to patriotism that such political tactics are resented and view them as an insult to voters' intelligence and a slur on the country.

Gubernatorial Campaigns Jockey For Quality 'Free Media'

RALEIGH (AP) — With the gubernatorial race in the home stretch and Gov. Jim Martin and Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan running neck and neck, the campaigns are maneuvering for every opportunity to gain an advantage — however slight.

Take, for example, their approach to "free media" — an insider's term for campaign coverage by newspapers, television and radio. Strategists view a favorable news story, especially on television, as a sort of freebie, in contrast to advertising that must be purchased at steep rates.

In pursuit of such freebies, they work to make their candidate look good in the news and get the media to report on the issues they want to discuss.

"You want all the media attention that you can get focused on what you feel is important," said Sam Poole, a Southern Pines attorney who engineered Democratic Sen. Terry Sanford's come-from-behind defeat of Republican Jim Broyhill in 1986.

It's a political axiom that an incumbent has a natural advantage where free media is concerned. A governor has the "bully pulpit" — virtually unlimited access to the media simply by calling a news conference. He also, as Jordan frequently notes, has a communications staff and presides over an administration dotted with press offices.

Martin and his strategists skillfully exploit the bully pulpit. Throughout his term, he has used his regular Raleigh news conferences to go over the heads of Democratic legislators, portraying himself to their constituents as the victim of petty partisanship.

Since the campaign has begun, Martin has opened nearly every news conference with announcements of new initiatives or policy statements, often talking for 20 minutes or longer before the floor is opened for questions.

Analysis

The tactic usually ensures that at least some stations and newspapers will carry stories Martin wants covered.

Tim Pittman, Martin's campaign press secretary, denies the news conference format was designed solely for political benefit. But he acknowledged the campaign's goal is for the governor to emerge from every encounter with the media "looking like a leader, an activist governor whose policies have moved the state forward."

Another goal is for news conferences to establish differences between Martin and Jordan with a favorable slant for the governor, Pittman said.

The lieutenant governor has a much lower profile. Although Jordan meets with reporters daily when the General Assembly is in session, television coverage of the Legislature has fallen off in recent years. His visibility has picked up, but equalling Martin's is nearly impossible.

To partially offset Martin's advantage, Jordan and the state Democratic Party have begun holding news conferences Thursday mornings in Raleigh — usually an hour or so before Martin's get under way at 10 a.m.

The Democrats generally focus on an issue such as education or the environment, touting Jordan's record and proposals and criticizing Martin's performance. This assures that Martin will be put on the defensive at some point during his own news conference as reporters seek a response. And it enables Jordan to exert some control over the ongoing campaign debate.

Jordan's campaign press secretary, Phil Wells, usually attends Martin's news conferences and often buttholes reporters afterward to rebut some of the governor's remarks.

Pittman calls the Jordan camp's tactics "annoying" but acknowledges a Martin staffer occasionally attends Jordan news conferences. In 1984, the Martin campaign recorded news conferences of Democratic nominee Rufus Edmisten.

"The bothersome thing is that reporters walk into our press conferences with questions about whatever Jordan said," Pittman said. "The governor is very good at handling questions on his feet. But there's no doubt they have negated the one-man show on Thursdays."

Poole says neither side has clearly outdone the other in the free-media battle. The important thing, he said, is to stay on the offensive and control the agenda — stratagems Sanford worked to near perfection.

By mixing paid commercials with news conferences focusing on specific topics, Sanford effectively conveyed his message in the crucial final weeks of the 1986 campaign when support surged his way.

"You'd wind up talking about other things too, but the television bite or the newspaper lead you'd try to get would relate to the subject you were covering in that particular phase," Poole said. "The idea is you're leading the subject rather than responding to the other campaign."

No Linger For Pinochet

As expected, President Augusto Pinochet is the choice of Chile's military chiefs to be the sole candidate in next month's yes-or-no presidential plebiscite. And, as expected, hundreds of thousands of Chileans have demonstrated in the capital to urge a no vote. That might lead outsiders to expect Pinochet to be rejected in the Oct. 5 balloting. In fact, his stature has risen sharply in the past year, and his prospects for an honest victory look excellent.

press now functions quite freely, and security of the non-activist person is respected.

Political graffiti, placards and demonstrations are also relatively rare in Chile outside the Santiago political hothouse, but not because they are prohibited. Chileans appear to be generally content with their lot and apathetic toward politics. A survey conducted last summer by Flasco, a respected leftist think tank in Santiago, showed "the dictatorship" and ments by trying to hold power for the full eight-year term that a yes vote would grant him. By prolonging his stay in power unduly, he risks identifying the established "protected democracy" too closely with himself and turning the 1980 constitution into a perceived tool for personalist rule.

If Francisco Franco, longtime "caudillo" of Spain, had ceded power in 1967 or 1968, his constitutional regime might have survived. Instead, it died with him in 1975. The French Fifth Republic would not likely have survived if Charles de Gaulle had died in office; his voluntary retirement allowed the system that he created to acquire an institutional life of its own. If Pinochet claims a full eight years, the democratic system now emerging will probably not survive his death or forced retirement.

Like De Gaulle, Pinochet should remove himself voluntarily after laying the foundation for a return to full democracy to ensure that the old evils — polarization, socialization, party rule — do not return. Unfortunately, his is the only name on the ballot, and he doesn't seem eager to give anyone else a chance.

L. Francis Bouchey is the president of the Council for Inter-American Security, an independent research institute in Washington.

Changing Soviet Strategy

Beyond last week's cliché-ridden statements on the Middle East by the two presidential candidates — in which they pledged support for Israel but said little new about the problems of the region — lies an important development that the next president will have to address: Since Mikhail Gorbachev came to power — some say even before — the Soviets have changed their strategy for dealing with the Mideast. No longer tied exclusively to a handful of radical client states, the Soviets have been able to move beyond obstructionist tactics to become an active participant in regional affairs.

The new Soviet policy line — the "new thinking" as Soviets call it — could cause serious problems for the United States. The new approach includes:

- A more flexible attitude in dealing with Israel, with which the Soviets severed diplomatic relations in 1967;

- A more guarded attitude to Moscow's clients in the area, including a partial cutback in arms to Syria;

- An effort to broaden the Soviet camp to include moderate as well as radical Arab states, including establishing relations with the United Arab Emirates and Oman in 1985 and with Qatar this year.

The Soviets have been demonstrating their new flexibility wherever they see targets of opportunity. In February 1988, for example, V.P. Polyakov, the top Mideast specialist at the Soviet Foreign Ministry, became the first Soviet official to visit Saudi Arabia since Stalin recalled the last Soviet minister in the 1930s. This year, Egypt's foreign minister became the first Egyptian official to visit Moscow in 15 years. Jordan's King Hussein also paid a visit to Moscow last year and was promised Soviet arms.

These tactics, combined with the recent deterioration of the U.S. position in the Middle East, have given the Soviets a new and more powerful status in the area. Gone is the era of U.S. dominance, says former State Department official Harold Saunders. The Reagan administration, Saunders charges, has squandered its influence during the last seven years.

The Soviets' modified strategy did not spring up overnight with the ascension of Gorbachev. By the early '80s, certain Soviet strategists — notably Yevgeniy M. Primakov, head of a Moscow think tank, and Karen N. Brutents, deputy chief of the International Department of the Central Committee — advocated a new policy line for the Middle East. In 1982, Brutents wrote that the Soviets should concentrate not only on countries they found ideologically attractive, but be open to relations with Kenya and Saudi Arabia and other governments (including Israel).

Many Soviet, U.S. and Israeli officials point to the minimal Soviet participation in the Lebanon war of 1982 as one of the first signs of a change in Soviet policy. Although the Syrians asked for help when the Israelis, using U.S. equipment, destroyed Soviet missiles and tanks in the Bekaa Valley — a humiliating blow to Moscow — the Soviets did little. (A year later, however, the Soviets gave the Syrians the SAM 5 missile.)

When Gorbachev came to power, he adopted the new policy line advocated by Primakov and Brutents and elevated the two, along with Brutents' assistant, Alexander Zotov and Polyakov to key positions. "For the first time, we've got some Soviets who are free to float alternative lines," said a U.S. official.

The most visible change in Soviet policy is the warming of Soviet-Israeli relations. A hard-line anti-Soviet position has become synonymous with Israeli policy in recent years, but it wasn't always thus. Indeed, the arms Israel used to fight its war of independence in 1948 were provided by Czechoslovakia, with Moscow's blessing. Moreover, it was the Soviet Union, not the United States, that first recognized Israel after it was created in 1948.

The Soviets severed full diplomatic relations after the 1967 war, when Israel seized the Sinai, Gaza and the West Bank. Nevertheless, the Soviets continued to recognize Israel's right to exist within the 1967 borders even as they became the champions of the Arab cause against the West and Israel.

In the last few years, the Soviets have begun to rebuild bridges with Israel. For example, the so-called Prisoners of Zion (Jewish activists who were sentenced on trumped-up charges, usually to forced labor camps) have been released.

Moreover, about 4,000 refuseniks — roughly one-fourth of the total but including the most famous — have been allowed to leave the Soviet Union. So far this year, Jewish emigration is running at an annual rate of more than 12,000 people, up sharply from the 914 who left in 1986.

Under Gorbachev, Soviet Jews have also been allowed to visit relatives in Israel, and their positive impressions have been recorded in the Soviet press. The Soviet culture boycott of Israel has also ended, and today Soviet dance and music groups visit Israel. The Soviet press, says Israeli Sovietologist Galia Golan, has changed its reporting on Israel from always negative to occasionally positive. "They called us Nazis," she says. "That has stopped since Gorbachev."

The Soviets appear to want to settle regional conflicts — of which the Middle East is one — to give them time to rebuild the Soviet economy. And, under Gorbachev, the Soviets definitely have improved their position of influence in the region. Thanks to warmer relations with Israel and the moderate Arab states, the Soviets now can be an active partner in the peace process, playing both sides of the conflict to their advantage.

Will Moscow now go all the way — and pressure its key allies Syria and the PLO to modify their positions toward Israel? So far, it appears unlikely.

The Soviets have been spending their time brokering a reconciliation between Arafat's Fatah and the more radical factions of the PLO, not in pushing the PLO as a whole toward peace. The Soviets haven't yet decided whether helping the United States to make peace in the Middle East is more important than expanding their own sphere of influence in the region.

IN THE STATE

Education

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Supreme Court is considering requiring that North Carolina's 257 district, superior and appellate judges take continuing education courses to ensure the quality of justice.

"Judges are human beings," said Supreme Court Justice Louis Meyer, who was chairman of a committee that submitted the proposal Sept. 2 to Chief Justice James Exum.

While most judges have voluntarily kept up with their field, Meyer said the proposed 30 hours of education every two years would take care of those who have not.

"We wanted to make sure that everybody is treated alike, and we feel very strongly that a continuing judicial education program is necessary to keep abreast of the law and procedures," he said. "Therefore, it's mandatory to catch those who just simply would not do it voluntarily."

Surrender

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Winston-Salem teen-ager and his girlfriend surrendered to Ohio police and were charged with murder in the stabbing death of the man's stepmother last week in her Greensboro apartment.

The two also were charged with felony larceny of the woman's car, which was recovered Sunday by the Ohio State Patrol.

Arthur Martin "Marty" Vause Jr., of Winston-Salem, and Lorrie Michelle Lewis, also of Winston-Salem, surrendered Sunday afternoon to police in Maumee, Ohio, just southwest of Toledo, after the car reportedly ran out of gas, said Greensboro police Sgt. Joe Deich.

They are charged in the death of Nancy Fogleman Cook, 40, who was found dead Thursday in her locked apartment. She had been stabbed repeatedly in the chest.

Jackson Voters

DURHAM (AP) — The Durham County Board of Election has declared invalid all voter registration applications that were completed immediately after Jesse Jackson's speech at Duke University last month.

The board said too many unanswered questions surround the impromptu registration.

All of the Duke University students who filled out applications will be asked to re-register. Later this month, the board will give them a chance to re-register at voter registration stations on campus.

So far the board has only received

32 of the applications, and those voters have been told they will have to register again.

Chase

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two teen-age girls were arrested after a 105-mph chase that ended after they collided with a North Carolina Highway Patrol car in Iredell County, authorities say.

Christina Leigh Thomas, 17, of Lenoir was charged with driving 105-mph in a 65-mph zone and possession of a stolen vehicle. Margaret R. Doub, 16, was charged with possession of a stolen vehicle. Both also were charged with robbery with a dangerous weapon in an incident at a Food Lion in Lewisville Wednesday night.

Fee Complaint

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — A complaint filed with the U.S. Department of Education's Civil Rights Office charges that Mount Airy city school officials are discriminating against parents of handicapped children by charging them higher fees for the after-school day-care program.

Kathy Hill filed the complaint in the regional office in Atlanta after she learned that she would be charged more than parents with non-handicapped children.

Women Burned

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Greensboro man poured rubbing alcohol on his girlfriend and set her on fire on Friday, authorities said Sunday.

Police say Roger Dale Hunt, 45, ignited Linda Kay Costa, 33, with his cigarette lighter during an argument in their second-floor room at the Cavalier Inn. Ms. Costa suffered second and third-degree burns to her upper arms and the upper left side of her chest. She was listed in fair condition at Moses Cone Hospital.

Hunt was charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, inflicting serious injury.

Service Awards

RALEIGH (AP) — Three North Carolina companies were honored Saturday with distinguished service awards given at the N.C. Agribusiness Council's annual meeting.

Gov. Jim Martin presented Governor's Awards to Goldsboro Milling Co. in agricultural production, Cuddy Farms Inc. in processing and marketing and Gregory Manufacturing Co. in service and supply.

Faithful Prepare For 'Rapture'

By MEG REYNOLDS
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Some religious fundamentalists, heeding an author's predictions that a prelude to Christ's second coming is near, are selling their worldly goods and taking leaves of absence from jobs to prepare for the event.

The "Rapture" is expected to strike before sunset Tuesday, according to the book "88 Reasons Why The Rapture Will Be In 1988," authored by former NASA rocket engineer Edgar C. Wisenant. He used mathematical calculations and biblical interpretations to pinpoint the event to the 48 hours of this year's Jewish New Year — 40 years and 120 days after Israel became a nation on May 14, 1948.

"Will it happen? I'm not a date-setter ... but I'm not a fool, either," said the Rev. Max Allman of Peoples Memorial Christian Church in Burlington, who urged worshippers in a sermon Sunday to "check out their priorities."

Allman, pastor of Peoples Memorial, said the event had created a revival at his church, with attendance doubling in recent weeks to more than 700 at Sunday and 350 at weeknight services.

"This has made them (people) understand that in a flash this could all be over," he said.

"The Lord is coming back. I'm looking at it about any time now," said Jerry McLamb, 37, of Coats. He said he and workers at his automobile engine shop had rushed to complete customers' orders last week, possibly their last.

Durham television station WTVD last week reported that several residents of Harnett County put their cars and a boat up for sale in anticipation of the event.

Geneva Whitley, 66, of Bentley said the Rapture will be a time of fires and famines and "plagues and sickness like AIDS." Wisenant says the plagues will end in November 1995.

Lately, many Christian bookstores have reported being unable to keep Wisenant's book in stock.

"We've sold well over 1,000 since the second week in July," said Joanna Hicks, co-owner of the Sign Of The Fish bookstores in the Raleigh area.

Some stores received free shipments of the $2 paperback this week from its publisher, the World Bible Society of Nashville, Tenn., and were giving them away.

"I've spent over $200,000 personally in trying to get the word out to the faithful," World Bible publisher Norville Olive said.

Barry Blinson of Wendell, said he paid more than $1,000 for books and for advertising time on WPJL-AM, a Christian radio station in Raleigh, to warn people.

Not all who believe in the return of Jesus Christ say his visit is at hand, however.

"It's crap," said Wilmington evangelist Lucille Moore, who hosts a Christian radio talk show with her husband in eastern North Carolina. "Not even Jesus knows when the Second Coming is."

"I just don't feel that the Lord is ready to destroy the earth," said Chris Avery, whose husband is pastor of the Hill Street Baptist Church in Asheville in western North Carolina. She said Missionary Baptist churches, like many mainstream denominations, teach that Christ will return and Christians will go to heaven, but "we aren't looking for it like that."

Setting dates for the second coming of Christ began as early as the 14th century, said Jim Megivern, chairman of the Department of Religion at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

He called it "calendarizing," or taking the Bible to its most literal extremes, a practice of evangelical or Pentecostal interpreters of Biblical prophecy.

James Efird, professor of biblical interpretation at Duke University's Divinity School, said history has recorded numerous instances where people believed in and awaited Christ's coming.

In the early 1900s, he said, a group of Jehovah's Witnesses dressed in white and stood on the Mount of Olives to greet him.

And around 1844, New York preacher William Miller gathered a group of Adventists in white robes twice to await the end of the world, Efird said.

Charlotte Museum Goes All Out With Costly 'Ramesses' Exhibit

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The four-month "Ramesses the Great" exhibit of ancient Egyptian artifacts has arrived in Charlotte, expected to bring enough new visitors to the city's Mint Museum to compensate for a big price tag, officials say.

Organizers anticipate that 85 to 90 percent of the visitors drawn to the exhibit will be seeing the museum for the first time.

"We hope to expose the museum to at least 400,000 people who have never walked through these doors before," said Robert Bush Jr., project coordinator for the show that will feature some 70 objects from the time of Ramesses II, who ruled Egypt 3,000 years ago. "This could help us become one of the leading visual arts facilities in the South."

The cost to put on the exhibit will be $4.2 million — more than the museum's combined budgets over the past half-century. The museum also is spending $800,000 to get the word out on the collection which began its tour in June 1985 in Montreal. But out-of-town visitors are expected to pump millions of dollars into the area's economy during the exhibit's four-month run, officials said.

At 7:14 p.m. Sunday, about 23 hours after he left Boston by truck, Ramesses the Great arrived at the museum — feet first.

Harvey Walden, 50, swung his 65-foot rig into the museum's driveway as two other trucks followed with the head and middle portion of the 3,000-year-old statue of the great pharaoh.

On Monday, the other 72 artifacts in the exhibition, including items of gold and Ramesses' coffin lid, were expected to arrive by plane from Boston, where the exhibition recently concluded a four-month stay.

On Tuesday, workers for Acuff Crane & Rigging Co. of Memphis will begin reassembling the 47-ton, three-story statue in the temporary wing.

The two-day, 1,000-mile trip took weeks of planning and the cooperation of seven states to allow the overweight load to pass.

Keeping the route secret to maintain security, the convoy of three trucks and three cars swung west to avoid the New York Metropolitan area. It included two Charlotte police officers, two Mint officials and a restorer from Cairo's Egyptian Museum.

The buildup has been going on for nearly a year for the show, which is expected to draw as many as 600,000 visitors when it makes its next-to-last U.S. stop in North Carolina beginning Oct. 1 before heading to Dallas.

"You usually get only one opportunity like this in a lifetime," said Mint Museum Director Milton Bloch. "We're telling everyone to stop thinking about it and go out and buy your tickets."

Landing the show was a major coup for the museum and quickly became a logistical nightmare. In May, the museum closed its doors and gutted the entire inside of the building. Another 15,000-square-foot structure was built for the exhibit and parking was added.

The new $600,000 wing will come down when the show closes.

So far, about 200,000 tickets have been sold and organizers hope to sell another 50,000 before the start of the show. To break even, they have to sell about 500,000 tickets priced at $7.50 apiece.

In Memphis, the show drew about 760,000 people and about 825,000 people went to see it in Denver.

"The old adage that art follows commerce is true," said museum spokesman Phil Busher. "Four of the seven cities that hosted the exhibit are in the South."

The contract calls for the Egyptian government to collect any profits from the show, Busher said. In the event it loses money, more than 40 area corporations have agreed to make up the deficit.

Increase

RALEIGH (AP) — An increase in syphilis is occurring in North Carolina cities, hitting mostly young blacks and possibly leaving them vulnerable to exposure to AIDS, health officials say.

The statewide increase began last year, when the number of syphilis cases soared 38 percent over the previous year, increasing to 770 from 558. During the first six months of 1988, the increase has been less steep, about 18 percent over 1987.

"Most of it is heterosexual," James W. Prugh of the state's Sexually Transmitted Disease branch said in an interview.

Last year, 41 percent of the state's reported cases occurred in three urban areas: Mecklenburg, Guilford and Wake counties.

Accidents Kill 10 On Tar Heel Roads

By The Associated Press

Ten people were killed on North Carolina roads this weekend, including two whose cars struck utility poles, the state Highway Patrol reported today.

Michael Fitzgerald Raper, 24, of High Point died Saturday afternoon when the car he was driving hit a utility pole in Guilford County and overturned, troopers said.

At 8:30 a.m. Sunday, Ronald Emmett Capps, 55, of Rocky Mount died when the car he was driving hit a utility pole in Nash County.

Sheila Gail Sloan, 36, of Salisbury, died about 9 a.m. Sunday when the car she was driving in Alexander County struck a tree.

At 3:20 p.m. Saturday in Granville County, Clarence Charles Rush, 74, of Trinity was killed when the car he was driving hit a parked car south of Archdale.

Much earlier Saturday, about 3:30 a.m., Daphne Knotts, 20, and Derrick Worthy, 17, died when the car they were riding in hit two trees near Lilesville, troopers said.

Delmar Lloyd Lassiter Jr., 23, of Rockingham, died at 2:20 a.m. Saturday when he was hit while walking on a rural road south of Hamlet.

Pearl Coombs, 62, of Kinston, died at 2:20 a.m. Saturday in Jones County when the car in which she was riding hit a tree south of Trenton.

Kenny Thorne, 28, of Macclesfield, died at 3:15 a.m. Saturday when he was hit by a car while walking on N.C. 124 in Edgecombe County.

On Friday, Genevieve Malshuk, 64, of Bradenton, Fla., died at 11:50 p.m. when three cars collided on Interstate 95 in Robeson County near the South Carolina line.

The deaths brought the 1988 highway death toll to 1,015, compared with 1,073 during the same period of 1987.

Colleges Downplay Humanities, But Public's Interest Grows

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Colleges and universities are losing interest in literature, language and history but Americans are showing a "remarkable blossoming" of interest in cultural events, spending more money on them than on sports events, a government report says.

The report by Lynne V. Cheney, chairwoman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, says the high cost of education may be causing more students to avoid liberal arts subjects in favor of courses that will give them a money-making career.

While the number of bachelor's degrees awarded increased 88 percent in the past two decades, degrees in the humanities dropped 33 percent, said her report released Sunday. Foreign language majors were down 29 percent, English majors, 33 percent, philosophy majors, 35 percent and history majors, 43 percent, it said.

The 73-page report ordered by Congress says too many colleges are neglecting the achievements of Western culture while requiring ethnic courses, treating literary masterpieces as political documents, stressing publishing rather than teaching, and dealing in topics so specialized that they have little meaning outside the academic world. The report says museums, libraries, educational TV stations, state humanities councils and private historical societies provide so much education that they have become "a kind of parallel school," reaching millions of people outside college campuses.

"The remarkable blossoming of the humanities in the public sphere is one of the least noted, though most important, cultural developments of the last few decades," writes Mrs. Cheney.

The $140 million endowment she has headed since May 1986 provides grants to scholars, colleges, museums, libraries and other institutions to promote the humanities.

Citing a variety of sources, the report gives several examples of increased public interest in the humanities, including record high book sales, a doubling of the number of historical organizations in 20 years to nearly 10,000, and a 660 percent increase in visitors to the National Gallery of Art in Washington since 1957.

Americans who spent twice as much on sports events as on cultural endeavors 20 years ago are now spending more on culture — $3.4 billion compared with $3.1 billion for sports in 1966, said a news release accompanying the report. It gave no details on how the figures were obtained or what cultural events were included.

The report says that while some have argued that television is the enemy of books, people are actually both watching television and reading, with book sales up 400 percent since television was rare 40 years ago.

Mrs. Cheney credits television with increasing the sale of some books which have been the basis for popular dramas or subjects of discussion on educational television shows.

In assessing the academic approach to the humanities, the report says: "Viewing humanities texts as though they were primarily political documents is the most noticeable trend in academic study of the humanities today. Truth and beauty and excellence are regarded as irrelevant; questions of intellectual aesthetic quality, dismissed."

The report says Western tradition is rich and creative, but many colleges are abandoning courses that teach it.

The report says a course in great Western literature is under attack at Columbia University in New York, while Mount Holyoke College in Massachusetts and the University of Wisconsin at Madison require ethnic or Third World courses but have no Western civilization requirements.

"The humanities are about more than politics, about more than social power," the report says. "What gives them their abiding worth are truths that pass beyond time and circumstance; truths that, transcending accidents of class, race, and gender, speak to us all."

The report, "Humanities in America," resulted from several meetings of advisory panels and regional groups formed by the endowment. It follows a 1986 report, "American Memory," which detailed how little high school students know about Western history, literature and culture.

Teachers Left Out On Planning

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A majority of public school teachers feel uninvolved in nearly all school matters except choosing texts and shaping curricula, a survey has found.

Seventy-nine percent of those questioned said they feel involved in choosing textbooks and instructional materials, and 63 percent said they have a say in shaping the curriculum.

But 10 percent or less of the 21,698 teachers surveyed by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching felt they have any say in issues like teacher evaluation or selection of new teachers and administrators. And only 20 percent believe they are influential in tailoring school budgets.

"Whatever is wrong with America's public schools cannot be fixed without the help of those inside the classroom. Yet in most states, teachers have been front-row spectators in a reform movement in which the signals are being called by governors, legislators, state education officials — those who are far removed from the field of action," foundation President Ernest L. Boyer said in a forward to the 14-page report titled, "Teacher Involvement in Decisionmaking: A State-by-State Profile."

The report revealed sharp disparities in the degree of involvement teachers felt in different states.

In Vermont, for example, 93 percent of teachers reported a high level of involvement in choosing textbooks, 85 percent said they helped shape the curriculum, and 50 percent said they were involved in setting student promotion and retention policies.

But only 63 percent of Louisiana teachers said they helped choose texts, 40 percent said they were involved in shaping the curriculum, 36 percent had a say in tracking students into special classes, and 1 percent felt they had influence in selecting new teachers.

"The report endorses what I have often said — that teachers are treated like very tall children instead of professionals," said Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of the National Education Association, the nation's largest teacher union with 1.9

Wealthiest Man In World Spreads His Joy Around

By HARI S. MANIAM
Associated Press Writer
BANDAR SERI BEGAWAN, Brunei (AP) — A man ranked the wealthiest in the world runs this tiny oil-rich Moslem kingdom, and diplomats report little dissent from people unencumbered by income taxes, medical payments or tuition fees.

King Sultan Hassanal Bolkiah rules the enclave on the northeastern tip of Borneo from his 1,788-room palace. Earlier this month, Fortune magazine called him the richest man in the world, worth $25 billion.

Citizens of this southeast Asian nation do not appear to object to the king's rule because he spreads some of the money around.

"They (the people) are well looked after, with free education, medical treatment, cheap housing, good pensions and any one doing well in his studies can easily get a university education abroad at the government's expense," said one diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity.

He said there are no beggars, and about half the workforce is employed by the government. The per capita income is estimated at about $18,000, one of the highest in the world, according to bankers and diplomats.

All the money comes from oil and gas, which Brunei exports mainly to Japan.

A Brunei government official said recently that 1986 exports amounted to $2.03 billion — 99 percent of it oil and gas. Imports for the same year totaled $785 million in cars, foodstuffs and other goods.

The nation, about the size of Delaware, covers just 2,226 square miles, much of which is not suitable for cultivation, an agricultural officer said.

Without daily newspapers, the nation's 227,000 people get their news mainly through state-run radio, Television Brunei and some government publications.

An official in the Planning Unit said Malays form the majority of Brunei's population, but there are also about 60,000 Chinese and other non-Malays.

About 87,000 people are employed and of these 28,000 are foreign workers, including foreign maids, doctors, lawyers, engineers, accountants and others.

Brunei has no elected Parliament and Sultan Bolkiah rules the nation with the help of a Cabinet comprising two of his brothers and about seven other people.

The 41-year-old monarch, who studied in neighboring Malaysia before a stint at the British Military Academy in Sandhurst, England, in 1966, was crowned the 29th King of Brunei in 1967 by his father Sir Omar Ali Saifuddin, who abdicated in favor of his son.

The king loves polo and has about 200 Argentine polo ponies, some of which are kept in air-conditioned stables. He has two wives and six children.

In the 14th and 15th century, Brunei was a large empire stretching from the northern Philippines to most parts of Borneo, but when the colonialists came Brunei shrank. Brunei became a British protectorate in 1906 and won its independence on Dec. 31, 1983.

The country has no income tax, gasoline is cheap and there are no major taxes on cars, which are imported from Japan and elsewhere. Diplomats estimate foreign reserves at $20 billion.

The King has powers to detain and hold without trial anyone deemed to be a threat to the security of the nation. On July 14, the government released 34 such detainees, leaving just six still in custody.

Diplomats say there appears to be no long-term threat to Brunei's economy as the 120,000 barrels of oil being pumped daily is expected to last "well into the next century".

Brunei is officially known as Brunei Darussalam.

Darussalam means abode of peace "and there is indeed peace here" said a diplomat, who added "they could have added prosperity to it."

IRA Bomb

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Two IRA bombs today badly damaged the home of Sir Kenneth Bloomfield, head of Northern Ireland's civil service, but Bloomfield and his family escaped serious injury.

The Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility for the attack in a statement issued through its Republican Press Center in Belfast. The IRA said other civil servants in the British province should resign their posts.

Police said two bombs exploded at about 6:15 a.m. outside the house in Helen's Bay, County Down, on the eastern outskirts of Belfast. They said the blasts ripped gaping holes in the brickwork and shattered windows in nearby homes.

Bloomfield, his wife Mary and their son were asleep in the back of the house when the bombs went off, police said. They said the family was taken to a hospital. They were released after being treated for shock.

"There was a clear intention to kill Sir Kenneth and anybody else in the house at the time," said a spokesman for the Royal Ulster Constabulary, who requested anonymity. "They intended to completely blow up the house."

A third bomb was defused by British army experts, police said.

British news reports said Bloomfield had no police or army guard at his home, which is 150 feet from the road 10 miles east of Belfast.

In its statement today, the IRA warned other civil servants involved in "formulating British military strategy or advising the administration in this field to resign the posts or face the consequences."

The outlawed IRA is fighting to end British rule in the predominantly Protestant province and unite it with the mainly Roman Catholic Irish Republic.

Haitian Thugs Kill 3 In Raid On Mass

By MICHAEL NORTON
Associated Press Writer

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Police and soldiers made no attempt to intercede as thugs with guns, knives and machetes attacked parishioners at a Mass said by an outspoken opponent of Haiti's military rulers.

At least three people were killed in Sunday's massacre, said a foreign journalist who escaped, and radio reports said 60 were wounded. Some witnesses said as many as a dozen people were killed.

Shielded by supporters, the Rev. Jean-Bertrand Aristide escaped uninjured.

After the attack, gangs of armed men roamed the capital's deserted streets, stoning two radio stations and the headquarters of two political parties opposed to the government of Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy.

Men fired shots about outside one of the stations, Roman Catholic-run Radio Soleil, which went off the air after being pelted by rocks.

A Catholic priest and a former Senate candidate blamed the government for the attack, which preceded a planned Sunday protest against Namphy's voiding of Haiti's popularly approved Constitution.

Attacks on civilians by armed thugs accused of support from the military are not uncommon in the 2 1/2 years since the Duvalier family dictatorship ended. On Nov. 29, 1987, armed thugs and soldiers killed at least 34 voters in thwarting independently run nationwide elections.

On Sunday, Aristide had just begun 9 a.m. Mass when a group of men started stoning the church, said the foreign journalist, who was attending.

Then men shouting "Communists, Communists!" burst into the church, slashing and hacking mercilessly at men, women and children as they fled the church in panic, the journalist said.

"They started shooting people, beating them, and stabbing and slashing them," she told The Associated Press in a telephone call to New York. "They stabbed a woman who was pregnant. They stabbed another man who ran outside the church. He died, some people were shot." Another witness saw a pregnant woman shot in the abdomen.

Soldiers at a compound across the street watched the violent attack but did not intervene.

Asked for official government reaction, Frantz Lubin, director of information for the military government, responded, "No comment before all the facts have been gathered."

Some witnesses said about a dozen people were killed, but the bodies could not be removed before the attackers set the building on fire and torched cars parked out front. Some said they saw the assailants remove bodies from the churchyard.

Radio stations reported 60 were treated for wounds.

Estimates of the number of people in the church ranged from 600 to 1,600.

A witness in the church's nearby health center said he watched as about 300 men fell into formation and marched to the entrance of the church compound, and stoned the courtyard and the church before a gang of them rushed inside.

The witnesses spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Crusade for the Constitution Committee, headed by the political opposition, had urged Haitians to dress in white Sunday to protest Namphy's voiding of the constitution in July.

"The relationship between the crusade and the massacre is obvious," said the Rev. Antoine Adrien, a Catholic priest. "There is a campaign to bring the country back to the Duvalier days, to re-establish a reign of terror, to prevent the people from organizing for their welfare."

Paul Latortue, a former Senate candidate, said he was sure the church attack was the work of the government and its supporters.

"They have wanted to kill Aristide for a long time," he said in San Juan, where he teaches economics at the University of Puerto Rico. "It is significant that the government tried to do this today, a day of protest."

Protesters Stone Pinochet Motorcade During Tour On Coup's Anniversary

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Augusto Pinochet's motorcade was stoned during a campaign tour on the 15th anniversary of the bloody military coup he led that ousted the elected government of President Salvador Allende.

In the coastal resort of Vina del Mar on Sunday, nearly 5,000 protesters battled riot police following the largest ever memorial service at the grave of Allende, who perished in the coup.

Reporters said Gen. Pinochet's bodyguards opened fire after his motorcade was stoned in Cerro Navia, a working-class suburb north of Santiago. They said at least four protesters suffered bullet wounds.

Police did not report any injuries or arrests in Cerro Navia, but said 142 people were arrested in Vina del Mar when people tried to march from the cemetery into the resort's center.

Pinochet, the only candidate in next month's presidential referendum, was booed by hundreds of people when he arrived in Cerro Navia.

Many hurled rocks at his motorcade, and Pinochet's bodyguards fired shots into the air as vehicles maneuvered around barricades of burning tires.

Reporters at the scene said at least four people were struck by bullets and two were hospitalized in serious condition with stomach wounds.

On Sunday night, demonstrations against the military government

Pinochet has led since the coup spread to the northern Santiago suburbs of Lo Prado, Pudahuel, Quinta Normal, Renca and Conchalí, where protesters raised barricades of burning tires. No injuries were reported.

Earlier in the day, in a nationally televised speech marking the Sept. 11, 1973, overthrow of Allende, Pinochet addressed an audience of 3,000 people in a government office building.

"I am ready to give my last breath to my country," he said.

Pinochet said Chileans were morally bound to support his sole candidacy in an Oct. 5 presidential referendum that, if approved, would give him eight more years of rule.

The 72-year-old army commander said citizens face a choice in the yes-or-no ballot between "consolidating the democratic society contemplated in the country's constitution or destroying 15 years of patriotic labor for Chile."

If a majority vote against his continued rule, an open election will be held next year and he will hand power over to the winner in 1990.

Whether Pinochet wins or loses the vote, elections for a Congress are planned for 1990. But the legislature will be virtually powerless to amend an 8-year-old constitution that gives the armed forces freedom from civilian control and a role in national policy-making.

Pinochet said his new government would be fully democratic. "All sectors will be present," he said.

But he attacked those who "do not recognize the political system in effect, aligning themselves with totalitarian groups." A coalition of 16 parties, from the political center-right to the Socialist left, are campaigning actively for his defeat in the referendum.

A leader of the opposition coalition, Genaro Arriagada, called Pinochet's speech "mediocre."

"Pinochet must be judged by his merciless exercise of power, and not by his words," he said.

Pope Issues Appeal

BULAWAYO, Zimbabwe (AP) — Pope John Paul II traveled today to the violence-wracked provincial capital of Matabeleland and preached reconciliation and peace.

"It is only eight years since your struggle for national independence

(in Zimbabwe) was brought to an end," the Roman Catholic pontiff said. "Even after that, many people in Matabeleland did not find true peace. ... The civilian population continued to suffer from guerrilla warfare and other forms of violence."

Adoption Law Expected To Cut Back On Homes

By TERESA ALBOR
Associated Press Writer
MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Changes in adoption laws designed to curb illegal "baby trade" have restricted the ability of foreigners to adopt Filipino youngsters and may mean that many will spend their childhood in orphanages.

New regulations, which took effect Aug. 3, ban adoptions of Filipino children by foreigners residing in the country unless at least one prospective parent is related to the child.

Foreigners living abroad can still adopt Filipino children through international agencies. But prospective parents living here will have to return to their own country and file papers there through an international agency.

The procedure can take years, depending on the adoption laws in the country where the papers are filed.

Government figures indicate that in recent years about 17 percent of the 2,500 children adopted here annually have been taken by foreigners residing in the Philippines and who were not related to the child.

More than a third of all adoptions of Filipino children are by foreigners, including those who file papers abroad and would not be affected by the changes.

"The new code is not anti-foreigner," said Lourdes Balanon, assistant director of the government's Bureau of Child and Youth Welfare. "It is an effort by the government to protect our children."

Ms. Balanon said that in the past foreigners could adopt Filipino children in a few weeks. Previous regulations allowed single foreigners to adopt with much less red tape than in the United States or other countries.

Ms. Balanon added that although many of the adoptive foreign parents were of good character, others may have been fronts for "baby trading" — selling youngsters to couples abroad who were unable to have children.

"Mothers were convinced to give up their children, and even kidnapping may have been encouraged," she said.

Because local adoptions usually were arranged without the services of an international agency, the government here had no way of ensuring the child's welfare once the parents left the country.

But some welfare workers fear the new regulations will discourage legitimate adoptions by qualified foreign families, living in a country without a tradition of taking in children who are not related to those who adopt them.

In Filipino society, adoption of children with no blood ties is rare. Government figures show that in the past two years, only 5 percent of the children adopted here were taken by Filipino couples who were not related by blood.

Traditionally, orphans and children of impoverished parents unable to care for them become the responsibility of the "extended family" — uncles, aunts, cousins and grand-parents.

But children born out of wedlock are often kept secret from their families.

Abortion is technically illegal and birth control is frequently shunned in this predominantly Roman Catholic country. Unwed mothers find themselves under tremendous social pressure to turn their infants over to religious or government orphanages.

In other cases, extended families sometimes are too poor to take in another child.

"Older children will be especially affected," said Lisa Hechenova of the Asilio de San Vicente de Paul Orphanage in Manila. "Because if Filipinos adopt at all, they want infants. Foreigners are more inclined to accept toddlers and even 6-to-10-year olds."

Jose, a 3-year-old toddler at Manila's Hospicio de San Jose Orphanage, is one of those children who, because of new regulations, may never have a home. He has been at the orphanage for more than eight months because officials have had difficulty finding him a home and the new changes in the law will make it even more difficult.

Seven-year-old Maria was among the last children adopted by a resident foreign couple. She was given in July to a European couple.

Maria said she never knew her natural parents.

"But I used to dream about them every night. Only they didn't have faces."

Elks-Griffin Vows Spoken

ROBERSONVILLE — Jennifer Kay Griffin and Cecil Leroy Elks were united in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. in a double-ring ceremony in the Christian Chapel Church of Christ. The Rev. Michael Waters conducted the ceremony. Pianist Penny Cowan and vocalists Elaine Bowen and Melissa Mullins presented wedding music.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Griffin of Robersonville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Elks of Williamston.

Sara Anne Harris of Greenville was the honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Wanda Elks of Wilson, sister of the bridegroom, Charlotte Elks, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Lou Wilson, both of Williamston, and Edie Branch of Chocowinity. Shelly Elks of Williamston, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Jimmy Elks of Williamston, brother of the bridegroom, Gray Thomas and Freddie Martin, both of Greenville, and David J. Mullins of West Virginia.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin styled with a Queen Anne neckline accented with pearl strands, schiffli lace and iridescents. The Elizabethan sleeves were highlighted with matching lace and pearls. The bodice featured lace medallions, pearls and iridescents. The flowing skirt had a cathedral-length train accented with medallions. Her ivory fingertip veil featured pearls and an asymmetrical pouf. The bride carried a cascade of sonya roses, stephanotis and pearls.

The maid of honor wore a tea-length dress of peach chantilly lace over satin with an asymmetrical satin waistline accented with a satin bow. She carried an arm bouquet of sonya roses with greenery. Bridesmaids were dressed identically. The flower girl wore a dress of similar design and carried a basket of peach flower petals.

A reception was given by the parents of the bride in the church fellowship hall. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peel, aunt and uncle of the bride. Punch was poured by Lorraine Harrison and Christine Elks. Velma Boone, Louise Perry and Ellen Hughes served cake.

The after-rehearsal party was given by the parents of the bridegroom in the church fellowship hall. A bridesmaids luncheon, several showers, parties and dinner parties were given for the couple prior to their marriage.

Mistresses of ceremony were Christine Wynne and Doris Beacham.

After a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the couple will live in Greenville.

The bride attended Hobgood Academy and Pitt Community College. She is employed by Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom attended Williamston High School and Electronic Computer Programming Institute in Norfolk, Va. He is employed by Century Data Systems in Greenville.

Outdoor Wedding Performed

FOUNTAIN — Darlene Gray Dunn and Christopher Curtis Roebuck were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in a ceremony performed on the lawn at the home of of satin, lace and sequins. It featured a sweetheart neckline with puffed short sleeves trimmed in lace. The gown had a fitted bodice and chapel-length train. Her headpiece was a western style hat covered with satin with a fingertip veil. She carried a fan covered with peach and white silk flowers.

The honor attendant wore a floor-length gown of lace over satin in a peach color. It was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and one shoulder was covered by a bow. She wore a headpiece of silk flowers and baby's breath. She also carried a fan covered with silk flowers.

The flower girl wore a peach-colored floor-length gown of swirlaway polyester covered with a sheer fabric. The satin belt had a back bow. She wore a western-styled hat and carried a basket of silk petals.

Darlene Hite of Greenville presided at the register. Parents, family and friends gave a reception after the ceremony. Amy Roebuck and Michelle Wooten gave out birdseed bags and roses.

Sue Tugwell directed the wedding.

After a wedding trip, the couple will live near Fountain.

The bride attended Farmville Central High School and the bridegroom attended North Pitt High School. She is employed by Agri-Supply Co. and he is employed by Pugh's Tire Center.

Pre-nuptial parties included a pantry shower, miscellaneous shower and an after-rehearsal pig-picking given by the bridegroom parents.

MRS. ROEBUCK

Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Tugwell. Conducting the double-ring ceremony was the Rev. James Roebuck. Organist Tiffany Roebuck and vocalists Ricky Tugwell and Mitchell Pollard presented wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ervin Dunn of Route 1, Fountain. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Roebuck of Route 6, Greenville.

Kelly Dunn of Route 1, Fountain, was honor attendant for her cousin, Crystal Dunn, niece of the bride, also of Route 1, Fountain, was flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Keith Roebuck of Route 6, Greenville, brother of the bridegroom, and Lee Warren of Greenville. The ring bearer was Jonathan Price of Route 1, Fountain, cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a floor-length gown

Procrastination Causes Storms

DEAR ABBY: Earlier this year — just before Mother's Day — I phoned my sister to ask if she would please buy a Mother's Day gift for me and drop it by our mother's. I am an airline pilot and sometimes get in tight jams with gifts. Also, I live in Portland, Ore., and my sister lives five minutes away from my mother in Carmel, Calif.

My sister agreed to help me out. No sooner had I written the check for the gift, when my phone rang. It was my sister, informing me that she had reconsidered and decided not to buy the Mother's Day gift, as it would "mean more" if it came from me. Abby, here it was 24 hours before Mother's Day and she flatly refused to help me out. Needless to say, my mother received a belated gift.

Soon after, my sister's birthday rolled around, so I called my mother and asked if she would kindly get my sister a birthday gift. She graciously agreed to. Later she told me she bought a rather expensive bottle of wine for my sister and I immediately sent Mom a check. My sister never acknowledged the gift.

Abby, am I unreasonable to feel annoyed? And shouldn't my sister be sent to "charm school"? — THE CAPTAIN

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR CAPTAIN: There is no excuse for failing to acknowledge a gift, but if you're considering sending your sister to "charm school," go with her and learn something about gracious gift giving.

Don't wait until the last minute and then ask someone to buy the gift and deliver it for you. Your penchant for getting into "tight jams" with gifts reflects poor organization, chronic procrastination and an obvious lack of caring.

DEAR ABBY: A 47-year-old man wrote to say that he resented being asked if he was entitled to a senior citizen's discount. I'll be 69 on Sept. 12 and I'm glad to be alive.

I survived 47 anti-submarine patrols in the Royal Canadian Air Force as well as a very serious brain operation. Maybe because I've been in the life insurance business for nearly 40 years and have had my share of death claims — most of them younger than me — I value life so much.

In everyone's life there is usually an inspiration — a mentor. It could be a priest, a rabbi, a swimming coach, a teacher. Such a man was Dick Campbell of Altoona, Pa. He recited a poem in 1950 that truly inspired me. Perhaps you'll want to share it with your readers. The author is unknown.

The clock of life is wound but once
And no man has the power
To tell just when the hands will stop
On what day — or what hour.
Now is the only time you have
So live it with a will
Don't wait until tomorrow
The hands may then be still.
— HERMAN ENDLER, ENCINO, CALIF.

DEAR HERMAN: Thank you for an inspirational message. Happy birthday!

Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 32.00; Wallace 32.00; Spivey's Corner 32.00; Rowland unreported.

BROILERS: The North Carolina job dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 61.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 96 percent of the loads offered here was confirmed with a final weighted average of 59.41 cents. The market is about steady and the live supply is mostly adequate for a light to mostly moderate demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,854,000, compared to 476,000 last Monday, Labor Day.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn 3 to 4 cents lower at mostly 2.86-2.99 in East and mostly 3.08-3.19 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 14 cents lower at mostly 8.62-8.86 in East and mostly 8.53-8.62 in the Piedmont; wheat 3.51-3.66; new crop soybeans 8.21-8.82. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady to 1 percent lower and ranged from 97 to 100 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed in listless trading today, unable to break its recent stalemate.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks inched ahead 4.45 to 2,073.26 by noontime on Wall Street.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 7 to 6 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 552 up, 645 down and 520 unchanged.

Activity, which has been sluggish for some time now, was further restrained by the observance of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year.

Analysts said there was little in the news to stir up much enthusiasm for stocks.

The Commerce Department is due to report Wednesday on the merchandise trade balance for July. Many observers believe, however, that the figures are unlikely to stir the market out of its recent torpor unless they contain some big surprise.

Monsanto tumbled 7 1/2 to 78 1/4 as the most active Big Board issue. The company's G.D. Searle subsidiary was ordered to pay $8.75 million in damages in a major case involving its Copper-7 intrauterine device.

Gainers among the blue chips included General Electric, up 1/2 at 42 1/2; International Business Machines, up 1/4 at 115, and Sears Roebuck, up 1/4 at 37.

Wilson Foods rose 1 1/2 to 13 1/4 in the over-the-counter market. The company, which has been fighting a takeover bid by Doskocil Cos., agreed to be acquired by International Fish & Meat USA Inc. for $13.50 a share.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .01 to 150.83.

Snow

Firefighters were pulled off the lines Sunday when the chill set in. "Our hoses were freezing up as fast as we put them out," said Wayne Jones, a fire crew chief from Bushnell, Fla.

Today's forecast was almost as good as Sunday's weather: a chance of rain or snow, temperatures no higher than the 50s and light winds. But by Tuesday, a drying trend is expected, with temperatures climbing back into the 60s and 70s.

"In five or six days we could be back in a more severe weather situation," Bill Baden, Forest Service director at the Interagency Fire Center in Boise, Idaho, said today on the CBS "This Morning" program.

Firefighters took advantage of Sunday's good weather to shore up their defenses against the wildfires, which have blackened about 900,000 of Yellowstone's 2.2 million acres since June in what firefighters call the worst fire season in the West in 30 years.

The weather allowed park officials to reopen the west entrance and the road from there to Old Faithful and Madison Junction north of the famed geyser. The rest of the park remained closed to visitors.

Residents of park headquarters at Mammoth were allowed to return home, but were told to be ready for another evacuation if flames from a 263,400-acre fire threatens the area again.

A 328,100-acre fire in the park's northeast quadrant expanded significantly, combining with an 87,500-acre fire. But weather conditions helped firefighting crews, enabling them to attack the blaze directly.

Lower temperatures raise humidity, and the moisture is soaked up by tinder-dry trees, said Joe Halliday, chief naturalist for Yellowstone's west district.

The wood will "be less likely to burn, although the fire shouldn't have much trouble," Halliday said.

"Basically with this cold front that's moved in, it's going to put us kind of in a holding pattern," said park spokeswoman Marty Tobias.

Cabinet officials, who toured Yellowstone National Park over the weekend on President Reagan's orders, said the fires must be extinguished, and said the policy of letting naturally ignited wildfires in national parks and wilderness areas burn unless they threaten property or people hasn't worked.

"The most important thing is to concentrate our efforts on getting these fires under control and then out," Interior Secretary Donald Hodel said Sunday at the Boise Interagency Fire Center in Idaho, which coordinates Western firefighting efforts.

"The old policy has to be reviewed and altered," Hodel said. "Nobody who has seen it operate this year could say it was a success."

Hodel was accompanied by Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng and Deputy Defense Secretary William H. Taft IV.

Friend In Need

NEW YORK (AP) — A burglary suspect tried a rooftop escape, but fell into a chimney and was stuck there for three hours before being rescued by police.

Wayne Mitchell, 20, was not seriously hurt in his 30-foot fall down the narrow shaft, police said.

He and five other people allegedly broke into a leather goods store in the Bronx on Sunday morning, but while the other five were caught near the store, Mitchell took off across a roof, followed by two police officers.

He fell down the chimney of a three-story building adjoining a one-story doughnut shop on the corner.

Officers from the Emergency Service Unit first tried to pull him up with a rope. Then they knocked a hole in the rear wall of the doughnut shop, but couldn't reach him.

Finally, they went to an adjacent grocery store, where the chimney shaft ended above a water heater.

Emergency Service Officer John Dallara used a jackhammer to chop a hole in a concrete wall. Mitchell was then pulled through the hole.

"Thank you, thank you," he said as police extricated him.

"You're welcome," Dallara replied, "and you're under arrest."

Gulf Coast Mopping Up After Florence Hits Shore

By MARY FOSTER

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Some Gulf Coast residents needed little more than brooms and rakes to clean up after Hurricane Florence came ashore and fizzled into a tropical storm, but forecasters kept a wary eye on Hurricane Gilbert in the Caribbean.

"We got off very easy on this one," Gov. Buddy Roemer's spokesman, Jeff Cowart, said Sunday night. "It just happened to be a very weak storm and all the parishes involved were very well prepared."

A preliminary report from the Office of Emergency Preparedness indicated no areas would qualify for federal assistance, Cowart said.

Residents, many of whom have returned home after other hurricanes to find major damage, for the most part had only to clean down tree limbs and blown debris after Florence came ashore Saturday.

No lives were lost to the storm, officials said. "We were very lucky on this one, and well prepared. We're just hoping Gilbert doesn't head this way now," Cowart said.

Gilbert churned westward toward Jamaica today after skirting the southern coasts of Puerto Rico, Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

Heavy rain and stiff winds downed power lines and caused flooding in the Dominican Republic on Sunday night. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

"We should know within about 72 hours whether it's going to be a major threat to the United States or not," said National Hurricane Center meteorologist Martin Nelson. "We're trying not to think about it hitting the United States yet — that's a long way down the road."

In Delacroix, La., a levee broke during Florence, Cowart said, but was repaired by Saturday afternoon and water was being pumped out of the area.

The list of storm damage for the most part included downed trees and power lines. Utility companies estimated 100,000 people lost power because of the storm. Service was restored by Saturday night.

Flooding as a result of the hurricane was limited to "flood-prone areas," Cowart said. "It wasn't bad anywhere, at the worst, I'd say maybe 2 feet of water was in some places," he said.

Roemer, who cut short a trip to Japan because of the hurricane, was briefed on storm damage Sunday, Cowart said.

Cowart said 27,500 people were evacuated from low-lying homes, but had all returned by Saturday night.

"The evacuation went very smoothly; we were very ready for this storm. It turned out to be a small one, which was fine with us, but we were ready for it either way," he said.

Florence hit on the anniversary of Hurricane Betsy, a killer storm that devastated southern Louisiana 23 years ago. Since then, officials say, the state has beefed up the levee systems that protect low areas from flooding and instituted sound evacuation and storm procedures.

Hurricane Heading For Jamaica

force winds extending up to 250 miles to the north and 100 miles to the south.

Prime Minister Edward Seaga of Jamaica alerted all government agencies, saying Sunday night: "Hurricane Gilbert appears to be a real threat and everyone should follow the instructions and hurricane precautions issued by the Office of Disaster Preparedness in order to minimize the danger."

Forecasters said the hurricane had been gaining strength as it passed over the ocean after it dumped 5 to 10 inches of rain on the Dominican Republic and Haiti, which share the island of Hispaniola.

"We should know within about 72 hours whether it's going to be a ma-major threat to the United States," said Martin Nelson, another meteorologist at the center. "It's moving at about 17 mph to the west and normally hurricanes take a northward turn after they pass central Cuba."

Storm warnings were posted today for all of Jamaica, Cuba's southern coast and the Cayman Islands.

Cuba's official Prensa Latina news agency said a state of alert was declared at midday in the Cuban provinces of Guantanamo, Holguin, Santiago de Cuba and Granma.

In the report from Havana received in Mexico City, Prensa Latina said civil defense officials were broadcasting bulletins on national radio and television recommending emergency measures and providing information on the storm.

Heavy rain and stiff winds downed power lines and caused flooding in the Dominican Republic on Sunday night as the hurricane's center passed just south of the Barahona peninsula, less than 100 miles from neighboring Haiti.

The storm ripped the roofs off houses and flooded coastal areas of southwestern Puerto Rico after reaching hurricane strength off the island's southeast Saturday night.

There were no immediate reports of casualties.

Flights were canceled Sunday in the Dominican Republic, where civil defense director Eugenio Cabral reported some flooding in parts of the capital of Santo Domingo and power outages there and in other southern areas.

to be freed today and linked his fate with Mohammed Hamadi. The German-language letter, which could not be authenticated, said, "Please inform my family, but please do everything regarding Mohammed. Please help. The hostage-takers expect something, especially now that I am freed."

However, a statement accompanying the letter and signed by the Holy Warriors for Freedom spoke of a 48-hour release period. The discrepancy could not be explained.

A third Hamadi brother, Abbas, was convicted by a West German court in April of complicity in the kidnappings of Cordes and West German engineer Alfred Schmidt in a bid to free Mohammed.

Abbas was sentenced to 13 years in prison. Schmidt was released a year ago in what the Holy Warriors for Freedom called a goodwill gesture.

Also today, Testrake described the moments after takeoff from Athens Airport.

"About five minutes after takeoff I turned off the seatbelt light. Almost immediately after that we began to hear strange noises that came from behind the cockpit bulkhead. I asked the co-pilot to check."</

Wilander Vindicated With Win

L.A. Times-Washington Post

NEW YORK — Mats Wilander didn't play for the Grand Slam of men's tennis at the U.S. Open Sunday. But he did play for the No. 1 ranking in the world and the satisfaction of winning an event that had become the personal property of his Greenwich, Conn., neighbor, Ivan Lendl. He also had the element of revenge on his side.

Judging by Wilander's reaction after a 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4 victory of endurance against Lendl, all of that mattered more to him than did winning the Grand Slam Saturday to the stoic Steffi Graf. Wilander lifted his arms in jubilation Sunday night, then leaned back and knocked a tennis ball high into the stadium seats. He even smiled. And after 4 hours, 54 minutes of pressure tennis, that must have taken a little something.

"For sure, this is the best victory I've ever had," said Wilander, who now will occupy the No. 1 spot in the computer rankings, a spot Lendl held for 156 consecutive weeks. "This match, for me, meant so much. Ivan has won this so much. I was close last year. I had never won this tournament. A Swede had never won this tournament. And I'm going to be No. 1 in the ranking."

Wilander got the revenge he had been awaiting since last year's U.S. Open title match, when Lendl beat Wilander, 6-7, 6-0, 7-6, 6-4. That match lasted 4:47 and had been the longest Open final ever. Until Sunday. That mark fell as Wilander was serving, up 5-4 in the fifth set.

Wilander, who said that he may not go to the Olympics with the Swedish team because of shin splints, could sense the victory when he hit a forehand passing shot up the line to break Lendl's serve and go up, 4-3. It became reality on Wilander's second match point, when Lendl hit a backhand service return into the net.

"I feel my passing shot let me down," Lendl said after his 27-match winning streak at the National Tennis Center ended. "It's easy for Wilander to be aggressive when you see the other guy missing them. He saw I wasn't making my passing shots and he was coming in."

"The key was the beginning of each set. I had so many chances. I'm disappointed in not taking advantage of the chances and opportunities I had."

Lendl seemed to be on his back looking up at Wilander the entire match. He lost the first set and was down 0-3 in the second before enjoying any success. Lendl's first-serve percentage for the match was 43 percent (compared to Wilander's 86). Lendl had 83 unforced errors to 36 for Wilander. But Lendl, who had beaten Wilander six straight times, didn't roll over, not until forcing Wilander to five sets.

"I felt like I was controlling the thing for a while, then suddenly he came back and played some great points," Wilander said. "It felt a little hopeless."

By putting an end to Lendl's three-year reign at Flushing Meadow, Wilander also won his third Grand Slam event of the year. He won the Australian Open and the French Open. He was asked if he is now even more upset about losing in the quarterfinals at Wimbledon.

"I'm really ticked off now," Wilander said. "A Grand Slam is really hard to do, if it's possible at all. This is by far the best year I've ever had. To win three in the same year beats most of my dreams."

It was the first five-set men's singles final at the U.S. Open since John McEnroe defeated Bjorn Borg in 1980, 7-6, 6-1, 6-7, 5-7, 6-4.

Lendl forced the fifth set by breaking Wilander twice in the fourth. Lendl rallied from 30-love in the eighth game to break Wilander, knotting the set at 4-4 after the Swede had broken for the 4-3 lead. Lendl broke again in the 12th game at 30, hitting a volley for the set winner.

By the time the match passed the three-hour mark early in the fourth set, about one-third of the fans who were in the stands at the start of the match had departed.

The third set was the shortest of the match, with Wilander needing just 46 minutes and one service break to take the 2-1 lead. Wilander broke Lendl in the second game, went up 3-0 and then held on, taking the set when Lendl hit a forehand long.

Lendl won the second set even though he failed to convert a break point in the first game (his first break opportunity of the match), was broken by Wilander in the second game, and lost the third game after having three break points.

"It was a lousy feeling," Lendl said of not receiving the Open trophy for the first time in four years. "It was a tough year for me. I just have to accept it and go on to the next one. If you cry over spilled milk, you'll never achieve anything."

1st Test Tough On The Pirates

Saturday afternoon at Blacksburg, Va., East Carolina's Pirates met their test, and, sad to say for Pirate fans, they failed in the effort.

Virginia Tech overwhelmed them on offense and were able to bend but not break on defense in coming away with a 27-16 victory over the Pirates.

Tech, smarting from a 40-7 licking handed it by Clemson in its season opener the week before, made sure of no repeat performance. The Hokies also remembered last year's come-from-behind 32-23 victory by the Pirates over them — something else they vowed to avenge.

Tech won the toss in the game and elected to receive. With their hands on the ball, the Hokies drove right down the field to take the lead, then held off the Pirates twice before finally suffering a fumble near the 20 yard line that led to the first of ECU's two touchdowns on the day.

Early on, the Pirate passing attack seemed to be working well. Pirate quarterback Travis Hunter hit Al Whiting for 30 yards on the first play from scrimmage.

But for the most part after that, Tech controlled the line of scrimmage, putting pressure on the ECU quarterbacks when they went to the pocket. And when the Pirates elected to try the option, Tech always had someone out there to take the pitch man, thus eliminating that phase of the game. As it was, when the pitch was made, it usually resulted in a loss or very little gain.

About the only thing that worked well was the fullback play up the middle, but even then, it met with minimal success.

All in all, it was a far cry from last year's record-breaking performance by Hunter and Co.

Money Won't Go To Allison's Head

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Winston Cup driver who reached $1 million in career winnings faster than anyone else says financial success won't ruin him.

"It's not going to be hard to stay humble," Davey Allison said after he took advantage of a blown engine by Ricky Rudd and won Sunday's Miller 400, the inaugural Winston Cup event at the new Richmond International Raceway.

Allison, who started on the pole in his Ford Thunderbird, averaged 95.770 mph on the D-shaped track, the only three-quarter-mile layout on the Winston Cup trail.

"This is a tough race track," said Allison, who crashed early in February's final race at the old half-mile oval here. "This is not a race track

Drugs Are Drawing IOC's Attention

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Drugs are the deadly weapons of "the thieves of sports performance" and must be battled on an organized basis worldwide, the head of the International Olympic Committee said today.

"Doping equals death," IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch said in his harshest language yet on a subject that increasingly has become the focus of his attention.

In a speech prepared for the opening of the committee's 94th session, Samaranch said the IOC had been the first sports body to take a formal stand against drug use and led the way in improving methods of education and detection.

"Alas, the thieves of sports performance, like their criminal counterparts in society, are forever striving to find methods, often assisted by specialists who attach little importance to their oath or the code of ethics they are supposed to respect," he said.

He said a conference of the world's sports ministers in Moscow next November would be given an IOC-sponsored anti-doping charter.

"We sincerely hope that the whole of the international community will join us so that this necessary fight may at last be conducted on the required scale," Samaranch said.

The session, the IOC's annual meeting, begins its work Tuesday with reports from various committees. Its main work comes Wednesday and Thursday, when it hears from the four cities bidding to host the 1994 Winter Olympics and votes on the site for the Games.

One subject that won't come up will be automatic entry for defending Olympic champions.

The issue, sparked by the recent case in which two-time 1,500-meter gold medalist Sebastian Coe was left off the British team for these Games, was discussed by the IOC's executive board Monday. But Kevan Gosper, board member from Australia who submitted the proposal, said it was decided to hold it until the next board session in December.

"It was considered not to be the right time," Gosper said.

Also Monday night, five new IOC members were sworn in including Princess Anne of Britain. The other four were Fidel Carrasquilla of Colombia, Wu Ching-kuo of Taiwan, Ram Ruhee of Mauritias and Tay Wilson of New Zealand.

The opening ceremonies for the session were staged in South Korea's National Theater, about five miles across the Han River from the stadium where the Games are due to begin Saturday.

Samaranch praised South Korean officials for their preparations.

"I hope to be able to affirm when the flame ... is extinguished: 'These were the Games of understanding and friendship, Games of reconciliation, Games of excellence and peace,'" Samaranch said.

With a record 160 nations sending teams and athletes from East and West competing against each other for the first time in 12 years, Samaranch said he was sorry North Korea and five other countries decided to stay away.

Cards-Dallas A Key Game

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Phoenix coach Gene Stallings and Dallas coach Tom Landry both say tonight's NFL game is vital to their team's playoff chances, even though it's only the second week of the season.

"It's a long season and you take them one at a time. But if you want to get in the playoffs, you have to win in the division," Landry said. "Those are the tiebreakers you have to deal with."

The Cardinals, who moved to Phoenix from St. Louis this spring, missed making the playoffs last year on a 21-16 loss at Dallas in the regular-season finale.

"In order to make the playoffs, which is our main goal this year, we've got to at least split with the teams in the (NFC) East. This is one of those games," Stallings said. "There's 16 games left and they're all important. But after you lose one, it makes the next one doubly important."

Phoenix is coming off a 21-14 loss at Cincinnati in the season-opener.

The Cardinals failed to score twice on first-and-goal situations at the beginning and end of the game. They have revamped their goal-line offense and also shuffled their secondary.

The QB Can Really Make The Difference In The NFL

By The Associated Press

Just how important is one-eleventh of a football team?

The Cincinnati Bengals, with Boomer Esiason at the controls, demonstrated that a healthy quarterback can make all the difference.

The Cleveland Browns proved the point when their second starter in as many weeks went to the hospital.

The end result in the National Football League is measured on the scoreboard, and the relative health of quarterbacks played a major role. With Esiason throwing four touchdown passes, the Bengals remained unbeaten by beating the Philadelphia Eagles 28-24.

The Browns, with Bernie Kosar out with an elbow sprain, lost backup Gary Danielson to a broken ankle on Sunday. That left the Browns with former Indianapolis Colt Mike Pagan running a strange offense, and it showed. The Browns lost 23-3 to the New York Jets and after eight quarters of football are still looking for their first touchdown of the season.

"A lot of people didn't think we'd come in here and play well," Esiason said after winning an offensive duel with the Eagles' Randall Cunningham. "That was motivation for us. We have a lot of weapons."

As for the Browns, who also lost two defensive starters to injury during the game. "We didn't handle adversity today," tight end Ozzie Newsome said. "Football's a team game, and you have to execute regardless of who's playing next to you or at any particular position. You have to have confidence that anybody who goes in can do the job."

In other games Sunday, it was San Francisco 20, the New York Giants 17; Chicago 17, Indianapolis 13; Buffalo 9, Miami 6; New Orleans 29, Atlanta 21; Washington 30, Pittsburgh 29; Tampa Bay 13, Green Bay 10; Denver 34, San Diego 3; Minnesota 36, New England 6; Houston 38, the Los Angeles Raiders 35; the Los Angeles Rams 17, Detroit 10, and Seattle 31, Kansas City 10.

Dallas visits Phoenix tonight.

"I feel I let down a lot of people who were counting on me after Bernie got hurt," Danielson said after joining Kosar on the sidelines. "I had been waiting a long time to be there when I would be needed."

Before his injury, Daniels completed 13 of 23 passes for 154 yards, but he was sacked three times.

With the quarterback situation a shambles, the Browns' offense sputtered. Matt Bahr, whose two field goals provided the difference in a 6-3 victory at Kansas City last week, added the only points against the Jets.

Jets 23, Browns 3

The Jets, 28-3 losers in a miserable performance at New England last week, preferred to think they had earned Sunday's victory on performance and not because of Cleveland injuries.

"We still had to come out and make our plays," quarterback Ken O'Brien said after a 256-yard performance. "That's just a part of football. The Browns are a good football team. One or two guys don't make their team."

Roger Vick had two short scoring runs in the

ECU Volleyball Teams Drops Pair

CHAPEL HILL — East Carolina's Lady Pirate volleyball team dropped a pair of matches Saturday in the All-Carolina Classic, held at Chapel Hill. ECU, which had beaten Davidson on Friday night, fell to Appalachian State in its first match on Saturday, 15-7, 9-15, 15-5, 15-4. Following that match, the Lady Pirates fell to North Carolina, 15-2, 15-2, 15-7. North Carolina finished the tournament with a 3-0 record while UNC-Wilmington was 2-1. ECU and Appalachian were 1-2 while Davidson failed to win in three matches.

Jemma Holley of East Carolina was named to the all-tournament team.

Abrams, Perry Named East-West Coaches

GREENSBORO (AP) — Rudy Abrams of East Mecklenburg and Ted Perry of New Bern have been selected as head coaches in next year's East-West All-Star football game.

The annual game, which pits the state's top 60 high school senior football players, will be held July 27, 1989, at Jamieson Stadium in Greensboro. Abrams will coach the West. Perry will direct the East.

Abrams, 46, is the first black to serve as head coach since the football game was inaugurated in 1948. The Spartanburg, S.C., native has an 86-54-1 career record in eight seasons at West Charlotte, one at Charlotte Garinger and the last six at East Mecklenburg.

"I was very surprised when they told me about it," said Abrams. "I never thought I'd coach long enough to be picked."

Perry, 49, compiled a 37-31-3 record during the last eight years as head coach at New Bern. He was head coach at Pinecrest for five years and Southeast Guilford for one year before taking over at New Bern in 1980.

"This is a very big honor for me," said Perry. "I've been around for a long time and I don't admit that to too many people. I feel like I'm in good company with people I admire and respect. This probably means more to me than somebody younger."

D.H. Conley coach Steve Craft and Williamston coach Harold Robinson will serve as assistants to Perry, along with Bill Hodgins of Chapel Hill.

Abrams' staff will consist of assistant coaches Mike Carter of Davie County, Scott Connor of Asheville Reynolds and Dave Gutshall of Burlington Cummings.

Upshaw Says Report Is Off Base

WASHINGTON (AP) — Executive director Gene Upshaw of the NFL Players Association says a published report is way off base with a story about union wrongdoing.

"I'm being tried by the media," Upshaw said Sunday night in response to an article in the Boston Globe that claims he illegally misused union funds and tried to conceal his actions.

The Globe, in an article by columnist Will McDonough, quoted "unidentified Washington sources" as the basis for the story.

The sources also alleged that Upshaw received a salary increase with the knowledge of union board members, but never revealed it and reportedly did not pay taxes on it.

"What he (McDonough) is saying is totally ridiculous," Upshaw said.

Upshaw admitted that the Labor Department was conducting an audit on the union, but that it was strictly routine, "something they do with all international unions."

Upshaw added, "They're not auditing Gene Upshaw, they're auditing the whole Players Association."

Upshaw also vehemently denied the accusation that he did not report the salary increase on his tax form.

"It's ridiculous. He's treating it as if I got a raise I wasn't supposed to get," Upshaw said, adding that his taxes were filed by a law firm in San Jose, Calif., and that he has yet to file his 1987 tax return.

Upshaw said he originally signed an $85,000 contract with the NFLPA in 1983, and that a year later, he signed a five-year agreement with a base salary of $125,000 plus a 10 percent yearly increase. He said he has some of his salary deferred.

"We have some people who are upset because we've let them go," Upshaw said when asked about McDonough's sources.

According to the Globe article, the Labor Department is completing its investigation and will decide whether to pass the matter to the Justice Department or the Internal Revenue Service. Upshaw was elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1987.

Duke Wins Metropolitan Life Classic

DURHAM (AP) — Brian Benedict assisted on both goals as fifth-ranked Duke defeated Southern Connecticut 2-0 in the first day of the fifth annual Metropolitan Life Classic soccer tournament at Duke.

In the second game, No. 7 Seton Hall rallied twice to force overtime and defeated North Carolina State 5-3.

Benedict assisted Clint Carnell's first-half goal and Brian Donnelly's second-half goal as the Blue Devils improved to 4-0. Southern Connecticut, the defending NCAA Division II champs, fell to 1-2.

Tom Tanner scored N.C. State's first goal four minutes into the contest when he rebounded a missed shot by Wade Whitney. The Wolfpack took a 2-0 lead at halftime on a goal by Henry Gutierrez.

Olympic Team Has A California Flavor

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Lean, mean and California dreamin', the U.S. Olympic team is prospecting for gold with 168 athletes from the Golden State.

California has more athletes at the Olympics than most countries, more than a quarter of the 611-member U.S. team and more than four times any other state.

If California were a country, it could be among the leaders in the final medal count, paced by swimmers Matt Biondi and Janet Evans, diver Greg Louganis, the entire men's volleyball and water polo teams, and track stars Florence Griffith Joyner and Jackie Joyner-Kersey.

Pirates' Test

When Tech had the ball, red-shirt quarterback Will Furrer seemed to be able to find receivers time after time who were uncovered. Tech would find the seam between the linebackers and the secondary, then come back with the draw, catching the Pirates dropping back to cover, only to be caught flat-footed once more.

Afterwards, ECU coach Art Baker praised the play selection by the Hokies and admitted that he and his own staff didn't do as good a job.

Baker questioned after East Carolina's opening game whether the Pirates were that good or Tennessee Tech, a 52-13 victim, was that bad.

It would appear the answer is somewhat in the middle — at least for now. Obviously the Pirates are not that good. But the season is not over by any means. True, the Virginia Tech game was a crucial one in the Pirate plans for a winning season. Now, ECU must upset someone down the road to put a winning mark into the record book.

However, the Pirates will probably face stiffer competition most of the rest of the way. Next week, certainly at South Carolina, they must be improved, otherwise it could turn into a rout.

Even so, finishing with a winning record now may be only a dream. Certainly further play like that of Saturday will make it impossible.

The area's Duke fans certainly are glowing at this point of the season. The Blue Devils disposed of Northwestern a week ago, then upset nationally-ranked Tennessee this past weekend.

Could it be that the Blue Devils, usually one of the area's doormats, are the best team in the state this year? It certainly looks like it's a definite possibility.

Rain on Friday is poison to high school football across the state. Nowadays, it's nothing for a Thursday or Friday rain to force the postponement of high school games. Most of them go to Monday to avoid any loss of gate to the college scene.

It hasn't been many years that a little rain would not have changed a thing. Sure, the stands might not have held as many fans as they would on a dry, clear night, but the game went on as scheduled. A little rain never hurt anybody.

But no more. The cost of doing business is too high now. Each drop of rain is a dollar down the drain instead of into the school's till, which, of course, helps to pay for much of the remainder of the athletic program at most schools.

Unfortunately, further rain on Monday kills any hopes of a gate, which is going to be reduced to start with.

Snappy Winner

Ken Green snaps his fingers after dropping the last putt on the 18th hole of the final round of the Greater Milwaukee Open Sunday. Green finished with a four-under par 68 to win the event. (AP Laserphoto)

Green Overcomes For 2nd Straight Win

FRANKLIN, Wis. (AP) — With the $126,000 first prize and a chance at back-to-back victories on the line, Ken Green wasn't about to let a little thing like chest pains and dizziness knock him out of the Greater Milwaukee Open.

"When I walked up the first fairway, I started getting these little chest pains in my right side," Green said. "I was having a hard time catching my breath. And when I bent over, I kept getting shots of pain."

When the pain subsided, "I started getting the dizziness," he added.

"I wasn't worried about the pain. I knew I could cut through that — but if you pass out, I don't think they're going to wait for you."

At the seventh tee, he sat down to rest for a few moments and had a hot dog and soda.

"It might have helped," he said. "I know when I hit the putt on No. 7, I really was having a hard time focusing on the ball. I really didn't care whether the ball went in or not."

By the time he started feeling better, Green had finished the front nine of the 7,030-yard Tuckaway Country Club course in 3-under par 33 and held a four-stroke lead.

He wound up with a 68 and a six-stroke victory in the GMO — less than a week after taking the $135,000 first prize in the Canadian Open. His total score of 20-under 268 was only two strokes short of the tournament record.

Tied for second at 274 were Mark Calcavecchia and Dan Pohl, who shot 66s, Jim Gallagher Jr., who had 68, and Donnie Hammond, with a 69.

The second-place earnings of $46,200 were especially crucial to Gallagher, who lost his PGA Tour card after a poor showing last year and needed the added winnings to get back on the tour.

"I was patient all year," Gallagher said. "I knew something good had to happen and hopefully this is the start of a lot of good things for me."

Green, 30, a seven-year veteran from Danbury, Conn., said he had no idea what caused his illness, although the humid, hazy weather might have been a factor.

He said he is used to aches and pains from his "really bad body," and underwent tests in the hospital the day before July's Buick Open because of back and chest pain. He already had planned to see a cardiologist next Thursday.

UCLA Moves To 2nd In Poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

UCLA's impressive 41-28 victory over Nebraska vaulted the Bruins from fifth place to second in the Associated Press college football poll today while idle Miami held onto the top spot.

Nebraska fell from second to 11th, Notre Dame climbed into the Top Ten and Michigan State and Texas dropped out of the rankings.

Miami's defending national champions, who took over the No. 1 spot a week ago by trouncing Florida State 31-0, received 46 of 55 first-place votes and 1,082 of a possible 1,100 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Three first-place votes and 1,019 points went to UCLA, whose ranking this week is the highest since the Bruins were No. 2 behind Alabama on Oct. 27, 1980.

Clemson, a 23-3 winner over Furman, remained third with four first-place votes and 940 points.

Oklahoma opened its season with a 28-0 victory over North Carolina and held on to fourth place with one first-place vote and 918 points. The other first-place ballot went to Southern California, which rallied to defeat Stanford 24-20. The Trojans received 795 points in jumping from sixth place to fifth.

Nebraska's crushing loss also enabled Auburn and Georgia to move up one position. Auburn, which defeated Kentucky 20-10, is sixth with 758 points and Georgia went from eighth to seventh with 753 points by trouncing Texas Christian 38-10.

Notre Dame leaped from 13th to eighth with 643 points after a 19-17 triumph over Michigan, which slipped from ninth to 15th. LSU, which was idle, rose from 11th to ninth with 608 points and Florida State remained No. 10 after rebounding from its loss to Miami by whipping Southern Mississippi 49-13.

The Top Twenty teams in the Associated Press college football poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, 1988 record, total points based on 20-19-18-17-16-15-14-13-12-11-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 and previous ranking:

	Record	Pts	Pvs
1. Miami, FL (46)	1-0-0	1,082	1
2. UCLA (3)	2-0-0	1,019	5
3. Clemson (4)	2-0-0	940	3
4. Oklahoma (1)	1-0-0	918	4
5. Southern Cal (1)	2-0-0	795	6
6. Auburn	1-0-0	758	7
7. Georgia	2-0-0	753	8
8. Notre Dame	1-0-0	643	13
9. LSU	1-0-0	608	11
10. Florida State	1-1-0	599	10
11. Nebraska	2-1-0	581	2
12. West Virginia	2-0-0	495	12
13. Alabama	1-0-0	448	14
14. South Carolina	2-0-0	370	16
15. Michigan	0-1-0	329	9
16. Penn State	1-0-0	321	18
17. Washington	1-0-0	165½	20
18. Ohio State	1-0-0	141	—
19. Iowa	1-1-0	130	17
20. Oklahoma State	1-0-0	111	—

Other receiving votes: Wyoming 52, Florida 50, Pitt 39, Brigham Young 27, Arkansas 25, Indiana 25, Washington State 24, Hawaii 20, Duke 15, Oregon 14, Michigan State 10½, Arizona State 9, North Carolina State 7, Rutgers 6, Arizona 4, Syracuse 4, Texas A&M 3, Texas-El Paso 3, Colorado 2, Tennessee 2, Texas 1, Western Michigan 1.

The Second Ten consists of Nebraska, West Virginia, Alabama, South Carolina, Michigan, Penn State, Washington, Ohio State, Iowa and Oklahoma State.

Last week's Second Ten was LSU, West Virginia, Notre Dame, Alabama, Michigan State, South Carolina, Iowa, Penn State, Texas and Washington.

However, Michigan State was upset by Rutgers 17-13 and Texas lost to Brigham Young 47-6.

Ohio State and Oklahoma State made the Top Twenty for the first time this season. Ohio State debuted under new coach John Cooper by beating Syracuse 26-9 and Oklahoma State got under way with a 52-20 rout of Miami of Ohio.

King's Patience Pays Off In End

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Patience was a virtue at the Cellular One-Ping Golf Championship, and Betsy King had just enough patience to win.

King shot an even-par 72 Sunday over the 6,285-yard Riverside Golf and Country Club course for a three-day total of 3-under-par 213, one stroke better than Colleen Walker.

The course, with narrow fairways and greens that some players said were the firmest on this year's tour, frustrated players all weekend.

King, the leader heading into Sunday's final round, took three bogeys on the front nine to surrender her lead to Walker. But King said she was determined not to lose her cool down the stretch.

"I just wanted to make a few birdies coming in and see what happened," she said.

The birdies came — on the 14th, 15th and 16th holes.

The title, her second in as many weeks and third this year, was worth $37,500. She won the Rail Charity Classic last week and the Women's Kemper Open in March.

where anybody can just come here and go fast."

Allison's margin of victory was 3.25 seconds over Dale Earnhardt.

"Our car ran pretty good," said Earnhardt, the two-time defending Winston Cup champion, "but the last set of tires we put on were loose and we couldn't run with Davey. He just kept trucking on."

Terry Labonte was third, followed by Mark Martin and Alan Kulwicki.

Allison led five times for 262 of the race's 400 laps. After the racers went back to green on lap 332 following the fifth and final caution of the afternoon, Rudd surged ahead of him.

Rudd maintained a slim advantage until his Buick began smoking and slowed off the pace on lap 347, giving the lead back to Allison for good. Rudd parked his car and wound up 26th.

"Oh, well," Rudd said. "I knew it was too easy. I knew something was going to happen."

Allison, who won $57,800, had entered his 52nd race needing only $5,015 to break the $1 million mark. The old record was 76 races, which Earnhardt reached in 1981.

"I don't even think about that stuff," Allison said. "I just want to go racing. I'm having a blast."

It was the second victory of the year for Allison, 27, of Hueytown, Ala., who won two races last season en route to being named rookie of the year.

Yankees' Fortunes Spelling More Misery For The Tigers

By The Associated Press
The better it gets for the New York Yankees, the worse it becomes for the Detroit Tigers.

Claudell Washington's two-run homer in the bottom of the 18th inning Sunday rallied the Yankees over Detroit 5-4 as both teams tried to stay close in the American League East race.

Both clubs are 3½ games behind division-leading Boston. Although they share the same space, the Yankees and Tigers are heading in opposite directions.

New York completed a four-game sweep at Yankee Stadium. Detroit, which led the AL East by four games on Aug. 21, lost for the 17th time in 20 games.

The Yankees begin a four-game series in Boston on Thursday night.

"We had a sense of having only a few games left to do something," Yankees manager Lou Piniella said. "We knew it was now or never. I think that's what brought out the best in us."

The game lasted 6 hours, 1 minutes. It was the longest game by time and innings in the AL this season. Atlanta and St. Louis played 19 innings on May 14.

In other games in the American League, it was Cleveland 4, Boston 2; Baltimore 4, Toronto 2; Chicago 3, Minnesota 2; Oakland 8, Kansas City 7, in 11 innings; Milwaukee 5, Seattle 3, and Texas 8, California 3.

Detroit's Alan Trammell hit a solo home run in the seventh inning that made it 3-3 and the game stayed tied until the 18th when the Tigers took the lead.

An error by first baseman Don Mattingly set up an RBI single by rookie Tory Lovullo against Steve Shields, 4-4, the eventual winner.

Mike Henneman had pitched seven scoreless innings before Guillermo Hernandez, 5-5, took over the start the bottom of the 18th.

Rickey Henderson drew a leadoff walk and Washington followed with his ninth home run. Washington won Friday night's game with a leadoff homer in the ninth inning.

"I saw that they were rushing in from the corners of the infield, so we took the punt off," Piniella said. "We let him hit and hit he did."

Washington avoided the rush of postgame interviews and went to the players' lounge, which is off-limits to reporters. He emerged about an hour later.

"I was a little angry by what's been said about the team by the press," Washington said. "Some of the negative things were justified, but I think it went on too long. When we needed a boost, the stories were still negative."

"But I guess it doesn't really matter what you say or what anybody says, it's what you do. We have to start playing."

That's how the Tigers see it.

"This is a real test for us right now," Henneman said. "If we come out of this bad streak, I think we'll give this race a fight. It's been such a crazy race, you can't say we're out of it. Anything can happen. I still think there are a lot of people in this room who think we can win this."

Indians 4, Red Sox 2

Willie Upshaw's RBI single broke a tie in the eighth inning and Tom Candiotti allowed five hits in seven innings as the Cleveland salvaged the finale of a three-game series at Boston.

The Indians handed the Red Sox, leaders in the American League East, just their second loss in the last seven games.

Upshaw's hit came off reliever Bob Stanley, 6-4. The Indians added an insurance run in the ninth when Carter tripled and Mel Hall singled.

Candiotti struck out one and walked one in improving his record to 12-8. Doug Jones worked two innings to earn his 32nd save in 38 opportunities.

Orioles 4, Blue Jays 2

Dave Schmidt survived a shaky first inning to win for the fifth time in six decisions as a starter.

Schmidt, 8-4, gave up hits to four of the first five batters he faced but settled down to allow just two runners in scoring position over the next six innings. Thurmond worked two innings to earn his third save.

White Sox 3, Twins 2
Shawn Hillegas allowed four hits in eight innings and Dave Gallagher hit a tie-breaking double with two outs in the eighth as Chicago beat Minnesota.

Ozzie Guillen tripled with one out in the eighth off Bert Blyleven, 9-15, who has lost four straight. Donnie Hill struck out but Gallagher lined Blyleven's first pitch down the right-field line to help Hillegas earn his first AL victory since being acquired from Los Angeles on Sept. 2.

Hillegas, 1-1, walked four and struck out three. Ken Patterson pitched the top of the ninth for his first major-league save.

Athletics 8, Royals 7
Luis Polonia was awarded third on an interference call in the top of the 11th inning and scored on a sacrifice fly as the Oakland rallied to beat Kansas City.

The A's, trailing 5-1 after three innings, opened up a 10½-game lead in the AL West. A combination of nine Oakland victories or Minnesota losses are needed for the A's to clinch the division.

Polonia lined a double to the right of first baseman Pat Tabler, sprawled on the ground after diving for the ball. Tabler was called for interfering with Polonia as he rounded first base.

Brewers 5, Mariners 3

Don August allowed seven hits in eight-plus innings and Robin Yount's two-run double keyed a four-run fifth as the Brewers moved to within 4½ games of the first-place Boston Red Sox in the AL East.

August, 10-6, walked none and struck out none but needed relief from Dan Plesac after allowing a single to Alvin Davis and a double to Steve Balboni to lead off the top of the ninth.

Plesac earned his 30th save in 34 opportunities despite allowing Edgar Martinez's two-run double.

Rangers 8, Angels 3

Charlie Hough and Ed Vande Berg combined on a seven-hitter and Ruben Sierra drove in four runs to lead Texas.

Hough, 13-15, allowed four hits before leaving with two out in the sixth when he aggravated a muscle pull in his left hip.

fourth period and Pat Leahy kicked three field goals.

Bengals 28, Eagles 24

Esiason completed 20 of 32 passes for 363 yards, throwing two scoring passes apiece to Tim McGee and James Brooks. Cunningham hit 25 of 36 for 261 yards and added another 85 on the ground.

Esiason fired the final volley, a 3-yard touchdown pass to McGee with 5:02 left to overcome a 24-21 Eagles lead. Esiason and McGee also hooked up on a 78-yard play and Brooks grabbed scoring throws of 28 and 15 yards.

49ers 20, Giants 17

Joe Montana, on the sidelines in favor of Steve Young at the start of the game, hooked up with Jerry Rice on a 78-yard scoring pass play with 42 seconds to play as the 49ers shocked the Giants.

The Montana-Rice score came just 39 seconds after Phil Simms hit Lionel Manuel with a 15-yard touchdown pass that gave New York a 17-13 lead. What appeared to be a game-winning score for New York, 1-1, was set up by a 32-yard punt return by Phil McConkey.

But the 49ers, 2-0, took the ensuing kickoff and, after losing two yards on the next two plays, Montana hooked up with Rice. Montana, who started the second half, hit 10 of 18 passes for 148 yards.

Bears 17, Colts 13

Indianapolis, 0-2, had two chances to come back after Chicago took a four-point lead on Matt Suhey's 2-yard run. But Eric Dickerson, whose 12-yard run had given the Colts a 13-10 lead, fumbled at the Chicago 37 and Steve McMichael recovered. One play after forcing a punt, Jack Trudeau's pass was intercepted by Vestee Jackson. Chicago is 2-0.

Bills 9, Dolphins 6

Scott Norwood kicked three field goals, two in the fourth quarter, to give the mistake-prone Bills a narrow margin over the Dolphins.

Norwood gave Buffalo, which had four turnovers, its second win of the year with a 28-yard field goal with 3:12 left. Miami, winless in its two games, drove 37 yards to the Buffalo 35 before Dan Marino's fourth-down pass to Jim Jensen fell incomplete with 37 seconds left.

Saints 29, Falcons 21

Dalton Hilliard made up for two lost fumbles by running for 97 yards and scoring the clinching touchdown on a 4-yard run with 8:52 remaining. New Orleans, 1-1, completed the comeback from a 14-3 deficit when Hilliard climaxed a 70-yard drive.

Redskins 30, Steelers 29

Washington, 27-20 losers to the Giants in the opener, had to rally late to keep from starting defense of its Super Bowl title with consecutive losses. Chip Lohmiller kicked a 19-yard field goal with 12 seconds left to overcome the Steelers, who got two long touchdown passes from Bubby Brister on the way to a 29-20 lead with 9½ minutes to play.

Doug Williams' 7-yard pass to Kelvin Bryant cut the margin to 29-27 with 4:48 left, and the Skins then went 55 yards in the final three minutes to set up Lohmiller.

Bucs 13, Packers 10

Tampa Bay, 1-1, broke a nine-game losing streak when Donald Igwebuikie kicked a 28-yard field goal on the final play of the game. Tampa Bay's last victory was also over the Packers, now 0-2.

Igwebuikie kicked his second field goal of the game after Vinny Testaverde drove the Bucs 56 yards in the final four minutes.

Broncos 34, Chargers 3

Tony Dorsett, obtained to bolster a weak rushing attack, ran for 113 yards and a touchdown. Dorsett passed Franco Harris for third place on the NFL career rushing list with 12,181 yards, 61 more than the former Steelers great. Jim Brown of the Cleveland Browns is the next Dorsett target, 131 yards away.

Vikings 36, Patriots 6

Tommy Kramer, returned to the starting lineup after Wade Wilson presided over a season-opening 13-10 loss to Buffalo, completed 12 of 27 passes. His first two passes, a 24-yarder to Anthony Carter on the opening play and a 38-yarder to Hassan Jones, set up Darrin Nelson's 8-yard touchdown run for a 7-0 Minnesota lead. Kramer left with six minutes remaining in the third quarter with a leg cramp, and Wilson went the rest of the way. Each team is 1-1.

Oilers 38, Raiders 35

Allen Pinkett, starting for injured Mike Rozier, scored three touchdowns for Houston, 2-0. The last of the three was a 6-yard run with 31 seconds to play. Los Angeles, 1-1, led 35-31 after a 1-yard run by Marcus Allen with 2:59 left.

Cody Carlson, who threw for two touchdowns, led the Oilers on a 12-play, 79-yard drive. He capped the drive with a pitchout to Pinkett, who dove into the end zone. Pinkett also scored on first-half runs of 3 and 1 yard.

Steve Beuerlein, figured to be expendable after the Raiders traded for Jay Schroeder, threw touchdown passes of 42 yards to Willie Gault, four yards to Tim Brown and nine yards to Steve Smith.

Rams 17, Lions 10

Greg Bell, elevated to the starting lineup when Charles White was suspended for substance-abuse violations, ran for 139 yards and a touchdown to pace Los Angeles, 2-0. Bell, a fifth-year pro obtained from Buffalo in the three-team trade that sent disgruntled Eric Dickerson to Indianapolis, carried 27 times and scored on a 1-yard dive.

Seahawks 31, Chiefs 10

Curt Warner had two short scoring runs and Jacob Green recovered a fumble in the end zone for another score as Seattle put the game away with a 28-point second quarter.

Warner scored on runs of 1 and 3 yards for a 17-3 lead. After Dave Krieg's 17-yard pass to rookie Brian Blades pushed the lead to 24-3, Green sacked Kansas City quarterback Bill Kenney on the next play and caused a fumble. The ball went into the end zone, where Green covered it.

Reds' Own Miscues Hurt Rally Hopes

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Cincinnati Reds may have thrown away anyone's chances of catching the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West.

A pair of throwing errors with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning enabled Los Angeles to score the tying run and Jeff Hamilton followed with a home run as the Dodgers rallied past the visiting Reds 5-3 Sunday.

The Dodgers, in danger of seeing their two closest challengers each gain ground, instead maintained a five-game lead over Houston and pushed Cincinnati 7½ behind.

"These are the type of games you've got to win if you want to go on to be world champs," said Kirk Gibson, who scored the tying run when he dashed home from first base on the Reds' double error. "Things aren't going to be easy sometimes, but if you do lose, you want to go down fighting."

Tom Browning checked the Dodgers on four hits through eight innings and left with a 3-2 lead.

John Franco, leading the league in saves, took over to start the ninth. He had an 0.25 earned run average in his last 31 outings over 35 2-3 innings.

Gibson, who homered earlier, singled with one out for his third hit. With two outs, John Shelby sent a hard grounder that third baseman Chris Sabo stopped for an infield hit. But Sabo threw wildly on the play and Gibson kept running, scoring when first baseman Dave Concepcion threw poorly to the plate.

Hamilton then sent a full-count pitch over the left-field fence for his fifth home run.

Gibson hit his 25th homer and pitcher Tim Lincecum hit his first homer — the first by a Dodger pitcher since Fernando Valenzuela connected on Sept. 5, 1987 — for a 2-0 lead.

The Reds tied it in the sixth and Barry Larkin hit an RBI single that put Cincinnati ahead 3-2.

Mets 3, Expos 0

Bob Ojeda pitched a five-hitter for New York's 22nd shutout this season as the Mets won in Montreal.

The Mets swept the three-game series and held the Expos scoreless for the last 22 2-3 innings.

New York reduced its magic number for winning the NL East to 12. The Mets lead the division by 10 games over Pittsburgh.

Ojeda, 10-13, did not walk a batter and struck out eight in his fifth shutout.

Cardinals 3, Cubs 2

Jose DeLeon teamed with two relievers on a three-hitter and Ozzie Smith squeezed home the tiebreaking run in the seventh inning as St. Louis beat Chicago for its seventh straight victory.

DeLeon, 11-8, won his fifth consecutive decision and tied a career high for victories. He gave up three runs and struck out eight in seven innings. Rookie Kevin Costello worked the eighth and Ken Dayley finished for his fifth save.

Pinch-hitter Curt Ford hit a leadoff double in the Cardinals' seventh and Vince Coleman sacrificed. Smith followed with a bunt down the first base line.

Astros 4, Giants 1

Jim Deshaies pitched a four-hitter and Billy Hatcher, Craig Biggio and Buddy Bell each homered as Houston won in San Francisco.

Deshaies, 10-12, struck out six and walked two in his third complete game. The Giants have lost 14 of their last 18.

Biggio, who hit his second homer, also had an RBI double, a single and stole a base.

Atlee Hammaker, 7-8, took the loss.

Padres 8, Braves 2

Dennis Rasmussen shut out Atlanta on one hit for seven innings and Marvell Wynne's grand slam capped a seven-run outburst in the San Diego second.

Rasmussen, 14-8, is 12-2 since being traded by Cincinnati on June 8. He allowed just Lonnie Smith's two-out single in the fifth and left the game one inning after being hit by a pitch from Chuck Cary.

The Padres batted around against Charlie Puleo, 3-5, who was a last-minute start when Pete Smith got a swollen eyelid as a suspected result of a spider bite.

Puleo's throwing error set up a two-run double by Garry Templeton. Wynne, starting in place of injured Tony Gwynn, hit his first career grand slam and 11th home run this season.

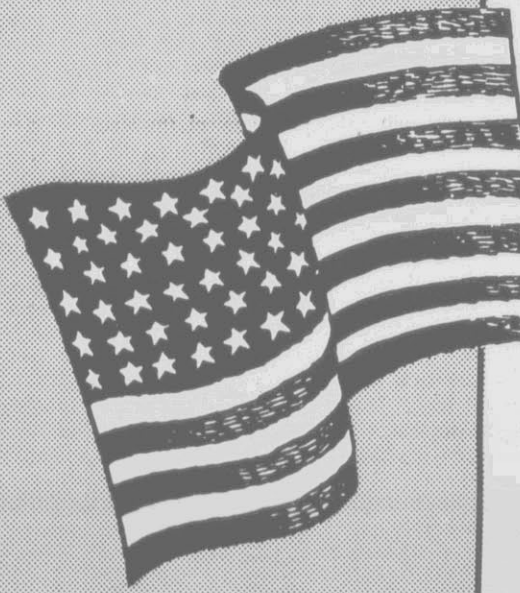

Mark Parent homered later for host San Diego. Ron Gant hit a two-run single in the Braves' eighth against Greg Booker. Atlanta finished with five hits.

Phillies 7, Pirates 4

Juan Samuel hit a two-run homer and Ricky Jordan and John Russell each had two hits and drove in a run as Philadelphia ended a four-game losing streak with a victory in Pittsburgh.

Marvin Freeman, 2-2, allowed two runs in 6 1-3 innings and won his second straight start. John Smiley, 11-10, is only 2-6 since the All-Star break.

An error by Pirates third baseman Bobby Bonilla set up three runs in the fifth. Samuel hit his 11th homer in the eighth.

'USA Today' TV Show Will Emphasize Spirit Of 'Hope'

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Tonight "USA Today: The Television Show" meets USA: The Television Audience.
According to its producers, the show intends to avoid the icky, ugly side of the news and concentrate on "journalism of hope," often presented in the form of a video version of the polls that are a staple of the newspaper of the same name.
The premise sounds like "happy news," a red flag to TV critics, and has elicited concerned comments that the show, if successful, might have the same kind of impact on television news that USA Today has had on some newspapers, which, it seems, have been forced to become more colorful and entertaining.
So far broadcast journalism has survived Fox's "A Current Affair" and the more recent, hootable "The Reporters." Geraldo Rivera became a talk-show host and the walls of government are still standing.

There's no reason journalism won't also survive "USA Today: The Television Show," which doesn't really threaten to be anymore than yet another TV newsmagazine, albeit a nightly half-hour one, jazzed up with expensive graphics and network-level talent.
The show comes from some responsible folks: Grant Tinker, the former head of MTM Productions and NBC, and Gannett, the publisher of USA Today, the newspaper. The show's studios are at the newspaper headquarters in Rosslyn, Va. The executive producer is Steve Friedman, former executive producer of NBC's "Today" show.

The show was quickly sold to about 160 stations, an indication the stations expect a hit.
"I think we will have a success," said Tinker at a news conference in July. "I think we may get a few people expressing disappointment in that first week, because they were looking for magic, and all we're giving them is a very presentable show."
"USA Today" is indeed presentable. The graphics will knock your socks off. The anchors are telegenic beyond belief; it's as if everybody who was popular in junior high school when you weren't ended up on the same television show.
USA Today, the newspaper, serves as something of a generic libretto for the TV version, which is partitioned into four sections, like the paper. There is the USA front-page section, reported by Edie Magnus; the Money section, reported by anchorman Kenneth Walker; Sports, reported by Bill Macatee, and the Life section, reported by Robin Young.
The Cover Story will come from whatever section looms largest that night. This week, the Cover Story is a series called "Living in America," an examination of a poll of American attitudes about romance, physical appearance, kids, finances and the future.
Other feature reports are on the Olympics, a school where ambassadors learn to fend off terrorist attacks and tough New Jersey school Principal Joe Clark.
These are all typical stories for any TV newsmagazine. A slick, watchable, more immediate style is what the producers of "USA Today: The Television Show" hope will make it different.
There will be no sadness or desolation.
The first show was not available in time for reviewing, but Friedman and Tinker showed a prototype to TV critics in July that included a report on the drought in the Midwest. The story was not about the devastation, but rather about Nebraska, which is doing just fine, thank you, thanks to its vast, natural underground water supply.

FRESH START — Gretchen Carlson, 22, of Anoka, Minn., who was named Miss America Saturday night, poses for photographers early Sunday at the beach at Atlantic City, N.J. (AP Laserphoto)

New Miss America Loves Sushi, Wants To Be An Attorney

By JOYCE A. VENEZIA
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Newly crowned Miss America Gretchen Elizabeth Carlson, a Minnesota car dealer's daughter whose brothers once called her "blimpo," is a sushi-loving Swedish-American who hopes to be a corporate attorney.
The confident new Miss America 1989 says chance didn't figure into her win. "This wasn't luck," she said just hours after her crowning in this seaside resort's Convention Center early Sunday, adding that she didn't bring any good-luck charms to the 62nd Miss America Pageant.
The 22-year-old woman from the Minneapolis suburb of Anoka said her own skills brought her the crown. After winning a preliminary talent competition earlier in the week, Miss Minnesota said parts of her performance were "exquisite."
Miss Carlson performed a spirited violin solo titled "Gypsy Airs." She has studied violin for 17 years, winning national and state violin competitions and performing a solo with the Minnesota Orchestra.
"I'm definitely an overachiever," she said.
This year, pageant officials took special pains to emphasize that the judges were looking for an "articulate, educated, dynamic role model" and not just a beauty queen.
Miss Carlson is several credits away from graduating from Stanford University with a degree in organizational behavior. She says she wants to attend Harvard Law School "and become a successful corporate executive."
But for the next year, Miss Carlson will tour the country promoting the Miss America scholarship program. She also will push the products of the pageant's corporate sponsors, including underwear, orange juice, pantyhose and hair coloring.
Last year's Miss America, Kaye Lani Rae Rafko, also used her reign to promote nursing.
Miss Carlson said she wants to focus on "education for the children of tomorrow." Specifically, she wants to see children receive more education on values, "teaching children to be less narcissistic."
"Today children tend to be more in love with themselves instead of being in love with other people," said Miss Carlson.
The new queen traveled later Sunday to New York City with Miss Rafko, who will stay on for several days to orient the new titleholder. Miss Carlson planned to pick out a personal wardrobe for the year and prepare for television appearances.
When asked what kind of Miss America she would make, Miss Carlson laughed and replied, "A short one."
The 5-foot-3 Miss Carlson didn't have to bend when Miss Rafko placed the crown on her head. At 108 pounds, she is 20 pounds lighter than the hefty 128 she weighed when she was 16.
"When I used to be fat, my brothers used to call me 'blimpo,'" she said, adding that she "went on this major diet and lost all this weight."
Today the green-eyed blonde of Swedish descent likes to dine on sushi.
Sunday's crowning was supposed to be just before midnight Saturday, but was delayed almost 12 minutes after judges had to cast new ballots to break a tie for second runner-up.
Miss Colorado Maya Walker was named first runner-up, Miss Oklahoma Lori Lee Kelley won second runner-up, Miss California Marlies Sharleen Ricardos was third runner-up and Miss Alabama Jenny Lee Jackson was fourth runner-up.

Yoko Ono Says Book Incorrect

NEW YORK (AP) — Yoko Ono says a new biography's portrayal of her late husband, John Lennon, as a violent, schizophrenic drug addict is akin to a second murder.
"It's like John has been assassinated twice," she said in today's New York Post. "I thought of Picasso's wife who committed suicide, but I'd never do that because of Sean," she added, referring to her and Lennon's son.
But the author of "The Lives of John Lennon," Arthur Goldman, said in an interview in today's New York Times that he was sticking by the claims he made in the best seller.
"If you were to encounter the real John Lennon and live with him for six months, I think you would be very disgusted," Goldman said.
The former Beatle, who was killed in front of his Manhattan apartment building on Dec. 8, 1980, did not have anorexia or dyslexia, as the book claims, Ono said.
"These are very serious diseases and, fortunately, John did not have any of them," she said. "But it's not fair to laugh at all the people in the world who suffer from these diseases."
She also took issue with Goldman's claim that Lennon had an affair with Beatle's manager Brian Epstein.
"I was his wife and I just know he wasn't homosexual," she told the Post. "I can say that for certain, but if he was bisexual there was no reason he couldn't have told me because we didn't think there was anything wrong about that."
She acknowledged that both she and Lennon used drugs at one time, but said they both had "conquered it."
Sean Lennon, 12, called the book "outlandish."
"At first, I thought (it) was very serious, but then I realized it was just a big joke," he told the Post.
In the Times interview, Goldman admitted making some factual errors in the book, but maintained there were no errors "on which a great deal turns, like the interpretation of an episode, or a major point."
Ono told the Times: "I think the book is trash. It's not even good reading."

Baltimore Symphony Faces Contract Talks

By STEPHEN WIGLER
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service
BALTIMORE — In the past two years the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra has called attention to itself as the Cinderella of the American symphonic world. Highly publicized foreign and domestic tours, successful concerts in New York's Carnegie Hall and an artfully managed public relations campaign have informed concertgoers from New York to San Francisco that Baltimore's is the orchestra that — in an era in which others have had to cut back or close down — raised more than $30 million in cash and pledges in an unprecedented 24 months.
But now it's time to pay the pipers — as well the violinists, the trombonists, the cellists and, indeed, every musician in the 90-odd member orchestra. On Saturday, the orchestra's 1985-88 contract expires. In final negotiations this week for a new contract, the orchestra's management team will have to come to terms with players who are determined to achieve financial parity with better-paid players in orchestras to which the symphony is often compared.
Though few expect a repeat of the situation that existed in 1981, when a breakdown in talks resulted in a 16-week lockout of the players by management, this week's bargaining is expected to go down to the wire. Management has asked for concessions in working conditions that it feels will enable the symphony to earn more at the box office. What can be expected this week are hard-nosed negotiations in which those concessions will be traded for better salaries and more comprehensive benefits.
The musicians must appreciate that management's efforts to maximize earned income will insure the continuation of projects such as recording and touring that, in the end, redound to everyone's benefit, bringing attention to Baltimore and enabling the orchestra to play even better.
In the past eight years, the Baltimore symphony has lost players to orchestras in Boston, Philadelphia and Los Angeles. The detrition has diminished as the pay scale has increased — from $17,000 to more than $36,000 in those eight years.

The $36,725 base salary that the Baltimore players were paid this year compares unfavorably almost across the board with their peers — the only exception being the Houston Symphony. Among the salaries that players in other orchestras received for the 1987-88 season are: $48,030 (San Francisco), $47,580 (Pittsburgh), $47,990 (Minnesota), $45,760 (Washington), $44,460 (St. Louis) and $41,340 (Cincinnati).
The players' desire to achieve equity with other orchestras goes back at least to early 1972, when a city panel, convened in the wake of a players' strike by then-mayor William Donald Schaefer, determined that the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra should strive to equal salaries at what were called this city's "peer orchestras" — the San Francisco Symphony, the Pittsburgh Symphony, the Minnesota Orchestra, the Detroit Symphony, the National Symphony, the St. Louis Symphony and the Houston Symphony. Sixteen years later, the Baltimore players earn 81 percent of the average paid at those other orchestras, which is almost 3 percent behind what they earned three years ago at this time.

Spectators Crushed At Jackson Concert

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Rock superstar Michael Jackson ended his European tour with an outdoor concert organizers said drew 125,000 people, and officials said more than 1,500 of the fans were hurt in a crush near the stage.
Organizers said the crowd at Sunday's open-air show at Aintree horse racing course at Liverpool was the largest ever at a rock concert in Europe.
In all, the volunteer first-aid workers of the St. John Ambulance Brigade said they treated an estimated 3,400 fans for minor injuries, mostly hysteria, headaches and minor cuts.
Brigade assistant commissioner Arthur Crook said 1,550 of the casualties were treated after being crushed at the front of the crowd near the makeshift stage because of the pressure behind them.
Police said four of 40 people taken to Liverpool's Walton Hospital were admitted but none was in serious condition.
One of the injured was a 6-year-old girl who suffered bruising. Television cameras showed an unconscious young girl being passed over the heads of the crowd to ushers.
Reporters said part of the crowd panicked after youths without tickets tore down fences to see the show. They said mounted police and officers in riot gear battled with the youths, who threw rocks at ushers.
There was also fighting when youths tried to invade a stand reserved for holders of tickets costing $195.
Aintree is only used once a year for the Grand National steeplechase and had never held so many people before, organizers said.

"But, it's YOURS, Mommy, and I might lose it!"

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY Sept. 13
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Open the door for renewed contact with an older acquaintance who has indicated a desire to become part of your life again.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Some of your recent financial planning needs to be more finely tuned and clearly defined, especially where interest rates are concerned.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Go along with another person's plans for now. You will have opportunities to get your points across at a later date.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Your usual routine is going to vary today. For the most part, things are not going to work out as you have planned them.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Your talents are under review by your superiors, so carefully follow all the rules and regulations that apply to you, and everything will be fine.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You have been containing your irritation and frustrations very well so far this week. Continue to do so, and your situation will improve.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Tonight isn't the best night to repay a social debt. You should plan to be alone or to at least spend a quiet evening alone at home.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Taking another look at all the behind-the-scenes activity going on around you will be time well spent today. You can learn a lot.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You may have an opportunity to improve your environment today, both at work and at home. Decide what your priorities are.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Be sure to remain on schedule and to the plan today. Do not allow yourself to get off the dime or be otherwise distracted.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Be certain to keep the promises you have outlined for today. Others are really counting on you to perform, so do not disappoint them.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): A rapprochement with a fellow worker will occur through the influence of a third party, most likely a Moon Child or a Scorpio.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AK4 ♥AQ76 ♦93 ♣AQJ8
The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
 4 ♣ Pass 5 ♣ Pass
**?
What action do you take?
A.—Since North did not cue-bid diamonds, we presume he doesn't have that ace. Even though we are not sure what partner is looking for, we cannot construct a hand for him that won't, at worst, be on a finesse for slam. Bid six hearts.
Q. 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AK8542 ♥7 ♦J965 ♣8
What is your opening bid?
A.—Your defensive potential could be anywhere from none to two tricks, so we wouldn't open the bidding with one spade. With spades as trumps, you can reasonably expect to make eight tricks—you should

2 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—You have a minimum response, and nothing has happened that has improved your holding. However, that does not relieve you of the obligation to find your side's best spot. With equal length, go back to partner's first-bid suit, regardless of the quality of your holdings in the suits.
Q. 3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠QJ9 ♥Q1095 ♦KQJ63 ♣8
The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
 2 ♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—There are two reasons for not bidding two hearts—a reverse bid by you would be a game force and partner has denied holding four hearts. Still, your hand is worth a game try, and two no trump is the obvious choice.
Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠754 ♥863 ♦AK2 ♣9762
The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♣ Pass 1 NT Pass
**?
Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠754 ♥AJ9 ♦KQ85 ♣K85
The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
 1 ♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—With an opening bid facing an opening bid, you want to be in game. There is no reason, with your perfectly balanced hand, to suppose that a suit contract will be better than no trump. Jump to three no trump—two no trump shows only 11-12 points and can be passed.
Q. 6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AQJ3 ♥KQ105 ♦Void ♣AKJ53
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you bid now?
A.—You don't need much from partner to make a game—as little as five cards in one of the majors would do. You can get this message across with an immediate old-fashioned cue-bid of two diamonds.

STRAIGHT TALK ABOUT THE SAFETY OF YOUR SAVINGS

The plain fact is that the great majority of America's savings institutions, including First Federal, are soundly, prudently, and profitably managed. What's more, they maintain adequate reserves to protect against losses.

First Federal has been built on sound management and conservative policies. They have helped serve our community since 1937.

Not a penny has ever been lost!

You always have the peace of mind of knowing that the sound management of your savings here is reinforced by FSLIC insured safety. No saver anywhere has ever lost a penny in an insured account—a perfect safety record dating back to the start of the FSLIC over a half century ago.

It is true that the FSLIC does have problems caused primarily by the depressed real estate markets in the southwest. In an effort to solve those problems, Congress has approved a program to strengthen the FSLIC—one that does not involve any taxpayer money. Congress will take further action if necessary.

Most savings institutions are healthy.

You may have also read that a small number of institutions are experiencing problems. But the institutions that hold 90% of total industry assets are financially sound and this includes First Federal.

The important thing to bear in mind is this: the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government—and indeed, of the United States itself—will continue to stand behind insured deposits here at First Federal and at thousands of financial institutions from coast to coast.

You can also count on First Federal to make sure that the deposits you entrust to our care are as safe as money can be. Your financial security will always be our most important concern.
