VP Candidates Ready For Debate

By Donna Cassata
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OMAHA — Vice presidential candidates Dan Quayle and Lloyd Bentsen applied the final touches to their strategy for tonight's nationally broadcast debate as the two presidential contenders vowed to help America's forgotten class.

Republican Quayle promised to focus his attack on Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis, not his debate opponent Bentsen, when the two running mates clash at the Civic Auditorium in Omaha, Neb.

"Dukakis is running for president, and he's the one I'm very concerned about becoming president. It would be a very troubling notion for many Americans," Quayle told reporters Tuesday on his campaign plane from Washington, D.C.

Bentsen is hoping to counter what he believes are distortions of Dukakis' record, especially the Democratic presidential nominee's stand on defense and crime.

"Tomorrow night we're going to have 90 minutes to present Mike Dukakis' vision of America — an America on the move, an America that believes in excellence in education for all of our children," the Texas senator told a flag-waving group of more than 500 people at the Omaha airport.

Bentsen's running mate — the Massachusetts governor — was limiting his campaign appearances today, tending to gubernatorial duties in Boston and later attending a debate-watching party.

George Bush was speaking to high school students in Littleton, Colo., before addressing rallies in Denver and Oklahoma City.

The vice presidential candidates were planning walk-throughs at the refurbished Civic Auditorium around midday before their own last minute preparations for the debate.

Organizers said Tuesday that the 10,000-seat hall was ready for the debate after workers put the finishing touches on network anchor booths, patriotic bunting and even a red-carpeted "spin valley" where Democrats and Republicans will expound on their views of the debate for any reporter who wants to listen.

"We think we've got this hall turned into what we want, and that is a debate hall," said Ed Fouhy, producer of the event.

ILS Site Work Contract Is Awarded To Bethel Firm

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority has awarded a Bethel company a contract for site preparation work that must be completed before a new instrument landing system can be fully installed.

At a special meeting Tuesday, the authority awarded the project to E.R. Lewis Construction Co. of Bethel. E.R. Lewis bid $30,512, winning the contract over three other local companies. "It looks like we got a pretty good price," airport Director Jim Turcotte said to the authority.

The special meeting was called so that the authority could formally approve the contract and allow E.R. Lewis to begin the work as soon as possible, Turcotte said. The work is set to begin next week and could take 45 days, but Turcotte said he thought it would be completed much sooner.

The authority is still scheduled to hold its regular monthly meeting Oct. 20.

The site work will include clearing about eight acres of land, removing stumps and roots, building a temporary silt fence to control runoff, grading and fencing the land, Turcotte said.

The site work will allow the authority to install the glide slope, one of two main components of the instrument landing system (ILS), which uses radio signals to communicate with pilots so they may land safely in inclement weather.

U.S. Population Tops 245 Million Natural Growth Higher

By Randolph E. Schmid
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — America now has more than 245 million residents thanks to strong immigration and an increase in the natural growth of the U.S. population, the Census Bureau says.

As of Jan. 1 the national population was 245,110,000, the bureau said, up from 242,825,000 a year earlier.

The largest part of the increase was from natural growth — 1.7 million people. That resulted from 3.8 million births minus 2.1 million deaths.

In addition there were an estimated 600,000 immigrant arrivals, the bureau said.

At 0.9 percent for the year, the overall increase is consistent with long-term trends, the agency reported. The nation's population has been growing at about 1 percent annually since about 1960.

Births last year averaged 15.6 per 1,000 people, up from 15.4 in 1986 but below the 15.7 rate of 1985.

While this is well above the all-time low of 14.5 recorded in 1976, there has been no consistent trend in recent years.

Population experts note that the giant post World War II Baby Boom generation currently has produced many women in their prime childbearing ages, thus producing more potential mothers to raise the birth rate.

Even so, the birth rate is nowhere near the high rate set in the wake of the World War II, when births climbed to a record 26.5 per 1,000 in 1947.

Deaths occurred at a rate of 8.7 per 1,000 people, and have been fluctuating in the 8.5 to 8.7 range since 1977 after declining from 9.4 in 1972.

There were 2.5 net immigrants per 1,000 people, including an allowance for illegal arrivals, the bureau said. That's down from 2.7 in 1986 and well below the 3.7 mark of 1980, highest since World War II.

The overall growth rate was 0.7 percent last year for whites and 1.5 percent for blacks, both down substantially since 1960.

PTL Trustee Approves Canadian's Bid

By Paul Nowell
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — PTL's trustee has accepted a $115 million bid from a Canadian businessman for the Christian ministry's assets, but the buyer, who is Jewish, hasn't said what he will do with the remnants of Jim Bakker's empire.

The decision Tuesday came down to who offered "the most money and the best terms," said bankruptcy trustee M.C. "Red" Benton.

"I'd hoped we could get a bit more for it. But this is not a bad price," said Benton, who spent nearly six months talking with bidders.

One of them was Bakker, who nearly a month ago failed to secure the financing for his $172 million offer.

Bakker gave a conditional blessing to the winning bid by Stephen R. Mernick of Toronto.

"Tammy and I remain committed to the restoration of the ministry of PTL," Bakker said in a statement.

"If the present offer is agreeable to the creditors, the partners (PTL's major donors) and the court, and God's will is satisfied with respect to the ministry of PTL, we will be happy with that outcome."

Mernick, 34, will pay $50 million at closing, which the contract set at no later than Dec. 31, and the balance over five years, said his attorney, Joseph Kluttz.

An Atlanta policeman arrests an anti-abortion demonstrator.

Abortion Protesters Arrested In Atlanta

By Jonn A. Bolt
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — Abortion protesters prepared for more demonstrations today after police arrested more than 350 of them using get-tough tactics that organizers blamed for an injury and caused civil libertarians to register a complaint.

"I could not believe the level of brutality that was going on here," protest leader Randall Terry said Tuesday as police dragged or carried protesters who resisted arrest by crawling on hands and knees.

Police placed heavy security around seven Atlanta clinics that perform abortions today, because they did not know which one would be the target of demonstrations in the second day of what protest organizers dubbed the "siege of Atlanta."

Backers of Operation Rescue, a New York-based anti-abortion organization, tried but failed to close three clinics with sit-ins Tuesday. They said they would hit one today but did not identify it in advance.

Police spokeswoman Myrna May said most of those arrested Tuesday were charged with criminal trespass and that none had posted bail. Operation Rescue spokesman Bob Nolte complained Tuesday evening that the protesters were not being processed properly or read their rights.

Court appearances for those arrested Tuesday were scheduled to begin late this afternoon in Atlanta Municipal Court.

Over the summer, the New York-based group led demonstrations at Atlanta clinics over several weeks during and after the Democratic National Convention, resulting in 700 arrests. Three of the 700 remain in jail.

Most clinics followed their usual schedule Tuesday, said Lynne Randall, executive director of one of the clinics.

Most of those arrested were charged with criminal trespass and identified themselves as Baby Jane Doe or Baby John Doe. Ms. May said.

That identification tactic was used in earlier protests, with protesters saying they were expressing solidarity with what they called the anonymous victims of abortion. Authorities have refused to release protesters who wouldn't give their real names.

At a rally Tuesday night at St. Jude the Apostle Roman Catholic Church in suburbs north of Atlanta, Terry urged about 600 people to join today's protests.

Formal Denial

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright today issued a formal denial to charges he violated the chamber's rules by disclosing a CIA covert operation in Nicaragua aimed at undermining the Sandinista government.

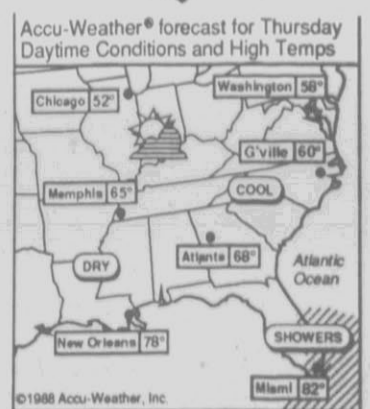

In a letter to Rep. Julian Dixon, chairman of the ethics committee, Wright said his Sept. 20 reference to the CIA's secret efforts to provoke civil disturbances in Nicaragua was based on publicly available information.

But the letter left several unanswered questions for the panel, formally known as the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, to examine in its informal probe of the allegations against Wright.

On Tuesday, the House Intelligence Committee agreed on a unanimous vote to grant limited access to its files and personnel for the ethics probe, access that could enable investigators to determine whether Wright could have based his comments on material disclosed in classified intelligence briefings.

Disclosing classified data given to the Intelligence Committee is a violation of House rules.

Thefts Reported

Investigators said five thefts, including a 1983 model car, were reported to Greenville police Tuesday.

Officer K.M. Smeltzer said the car, a Chevrolet Celebrity, was taken from 607B Pamlico Ave. in an incident reported at 9:54 a.m., while Officer H.D. Hines said two saws, with a total value of $270, were taken from an office under construction at The Evans Street Center in an incident reported at 9:13 a.m. and a scanner valued at $225 was taken from a vehicle parked at Home Builders Supply Co. on Dickinson Avenue in an incident reported at 9:39 a.m.

Officer K.L. Jones said $390 in property was taken from 2709 Jefferson Drive in an incident reported at 2:49 p.m., while Officer B.W. Lewis said a pizza valued at $7 was taken from a Famous Pizza delivery man at the intersection of Beech and Third Streets in a strong arm robbery incident reported at 10:09 p.m.

Property Charge

Ricky Nelson Suggs, 18, of Route 1, Bethel, was arrested on charges of concealing property by Greenville police Tuesday.

Officer K.M. Smeltzer said the charge stemmed from an incident at the Family Dollar Store at 1202 N. Memorial Drive about 3:20 p.m.

Shoot Out

Julie Cunneen concentrates as she tries to spray water in the clown's mouth to win a prize at the Pitt County Fair Tuesday night. The fair will run through Saturday.

Farm Scene

By Phillip Rowan
Agricultural Extension Agent

Time is fast approaching for small-grain planting season. Certain management decisions can put Pitt County farmers in the best position to make profits from these crops.

Fertility: Don't guess about fertility; soil test. A shortage or imbalance of nutrients can reduce yields. Soil tests can determine specific fertility and lime yields. In the absence of a soil test, generally 20 to 30 lbs. of nitrogen per acre, along with 40 lbs. of phosphorous and 80 lbs. of potassium in the Coastal Plain is sufficient. Micronutrients such as copper or manganese may be needed. Sandy soils sometimes need sulfur.

Varieties: Variety selection may be the most important decision you make. Several good varieties are available. Choose varieties with different maturities and other agronomic factors such as disease resistance, lodging, winter hardiness, etc. Diversity will help reduce the risk of heavy losses due to unfavorable weather. Use certified seed for good quality and high germination.

Planting Dates: Planting dates should be avoided to prevent problems with slow root development, reduced tillers and winter hardiness. Planting too early can also cause problems such as greater susceptibility to diseases and insects.

Wheat, rye and triticale should be planted in late October to mid-November and oats and barley in late October. Small grains for grazing produce more fall grazing when planted in September.

Seeding Rates: The number of seeds per pound and seed size will vary with variety and type of small grain. Suggested number of seed per foot of row (7-inch rows) are: wheat, 20-22; barley, 18; oats, 17; rye, 21; and triticale, 23. (Rates for 4-inch rows are 57.5 percent of the rates for 7-inch rows). In the absence of calibration, plant 2 bushels per acre for all small grains except rye (1.25 - 1.75 bu/a.).

Tillage: Previous work in North Carolina and recent work in several other southeastern states was shown that deep tillage can increase yields. Generally, using a chisel plow, moldboard or bottom plow will increase yields five to seven bushels over just disking.

Other Practices: Practices such as weed and insect control and topdressing can be attended to later in the season. For further details, contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office at 830-6361.

Pactolus Dinner

Reward Offered

The state is offering a reward of up to $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the murder of Wilbur Lee Stocks Sr. of Route 1, Winterville.

Stocks, 72, a nightwatchman at Keel's Warehouse on Dickinson Avenue, was found dead in the warehouse on Aug. 28. He had been beaten and shot.

Gov. Jim Martin, in announcing the reward, said anyone having information concerning the murder should contact the Greenville Police Department or the State Bureau of Investigation.

Last week Greenville police said a warrant charging John Fitzgerald Ward, 24, of the Winterville area with the murder has been issued and asked for assistance in locating Ward.

Chief Jerry Tesmond said "I consider Mr. Ward armed and dangerous. I would hope citizens would reach out and help us. This individual needs to be in custody."

"A substantial reward is being offered for the location and arrest of this subject," Tesmond said.

Anyone with information about Ward should call Crime Stoppers at 758-7777 or contact the Greenville Police Department directly by calling 830-4300.

Ward, police said, is a black male 5 feet, 3 inches tall, weighing 140 pounds. Employed at Keel's Warehouse at the time of the murder, Ward is known by the nickname "Fish."

Safety Workshop

A one-day workshop, "Practical Safety for Managers and Supervisors," will be presented Nov. 10 at the Hilton Inn.

The workshop, sponsored by the Eastern Carolina Safety Council and the N.C. Industrial Commission, will be from 8 a.m. to 3:45 p.m.

About 150 to 175 safety directors, supervisors, engineers, occupational health nurses and others with safety and health responsibilities are expected to attend from 26 eastern counties.

For more information contact Edward C. Askew, director of support services, Greenville Utilities Commission, P.O. Box 1847, Greenville, N.C. 27835, or call 752-7166, extension 265.

Writing Class

Pitt Community College has opened an additional creative writing class this quarter, with classes taught by Patsy Baker Burkett meeting on Monday and Thursday evenings.

Enrollment for the Thursday session is closed. Registration for additional members of a new Monday class will be held Oct. 10 at 7 p.m. in the Vernon White Building, Room 42, on the PCC campus.

TIP Students

Five students at Ayden Middle School have been identified as eligible to participate in the Duke University Talent Identification Program. They are James Ormond, Vickie Gauthier, Kathy Wiggins, Robbie McLawhorn and Denny Donaldson.

The students selected are seventh graders who have scored at the 97th percentile or above on national norms of standardized achievement, aptitude or mental ability test battery. They have the opportunity to take the standardized tests with high school students, and high-scoring students are recognized by Duke and are given information about opportunities open to them.

Classroom Visits

Barry Bullock and other firefighters will visit students at Stokes Elementary School for Fire Prevention Week Monday through Oct. 15.

In addition, the Carolina Township Volunteer Fire Department will visit the students with fire and rescue trucks. Terry Payne, assistant fire marshal, will conduct a fire drill and inspection.

In observance of National School Lunch Week, parents will be invited to eat lunch with their children Oct. 12.

On Oct. 24, the Partners in Excellence book program will begin. Winners will receive certificates and gold and silver medals.

The school will operate the game, "Pick-A-Duck," during the Sportsworld Halloween Carnival Oct. 31 from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Director Named

Becky Young has been named interim director of the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council while a search is under way for a permanent director, according to board president Su-Su Corbett.

Mrs. Young served in a similar capacity at the Greenville Museum of Art last year.

Pitt-Greenville Arts Council has a new location in the Flowers Complex at 101 West 14th Street. It has a small gallery space which will be used either for visual arts exhibition or workshop activities by the council or member groups.

Special Olympics

Special Olympics will offer weekly gymnastics classes beginning Saturday at the Elm Street Center (across from Elm Street Gym). Certified Special Olympics gymnastics coaches will program basic tumbling routines.

Registration is limited, but there is no fee. For more information or to register, call the Special Olympics Office at 830-4551.

Job Project

The Employment Security Commission will place special emphasis on finding employment for qualified job applicants with disabilities in October as part of Handicapped Employee Month, according to Bill Pate, assistant manager of the Greenville office.

Pate said many people who do not have employable skills can be trained through the Job Training Partnership Act and Targeted Job Tax Credits.

Employers wanting more information on considering this group for employment should contact the ESC at 3101 Bismarck St.

Special Mass

A special Mass was celebrated Tuesday at St. Peter's School to commemorate the feast day of St. Francis of Assisi, the patron saint of the Franciscan Brothers.

There are presently three Brothers of the Order of St. Francis associated with St. Peter's School. Brother Robert Lafave is the principal. Brother Patrick Ohmann and Brother Simon Jaworski teach computer, physical and natural sciences. A fourth Franciscan Brother, Gerard O'Brian, is pastoral associate at St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church in Farmville.

Recycling Month

October has been proclaimed by Gov. James G. Martin as "Recycling Month."

The governor declared the observance at the request of Keep North Carolina Clean and Beautiful Inc. to "place a special emphasis on the importance and necessity of recycling aluminum, glass and paper."

He pointed out in the proclamation that "recycling reduces the accumulation of litter and trash along state highways and in North Carolina's communities. It saves landfill space by reducing solid waste and curtails disposal costs as a result."

Auxiliary Meets

The American Legion Auxiliary, Pitt County Unit 39, will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the American Legion Post on St. Andrews Drive in Greenville.

Inducted

Jones Will Address Mid-Year Graduation

ECU News Bureau

Dr. James G. Jones, professor and founding chairman of the Department of Family Medicine at the East Carolina University School of Medicine, will deliver the university's commencement address at ECU's second annual mid-year graduation Dec. 3.

Jones, chairman of the medical school's second largest clinical department since 1975, is the newly elected president of the American Academy of Family Physicians, the nation's largest medical specialty organization, representing 57,000 family physicians.

Prior to his election, Jones was chairman of the academy's board of directors. He has also chaired the group's committees for public relations, marketing and resident student affairs.

His medical career, which spans the last 20 years, has been embellished by awards for distinguished leadership and achievement. Among his most recent citations is selection as American Indian Physician of the Year by the Association of American Indian Physicians Inc., based in Oklahoma City.

Jones, a Pembroke native and a member of the Lumbee Indian tribe, was recognized by the association for his contributions in addressing health care needs of American Indians, particularly in the area of drug and substance abuse.

Jones is the first American Indian to head a clinical department at a U.S. medical school and the first American Indian graduate of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem. He received his undergraduate education at Mars Hill College and Wake Forest University.

After medical school, he completed a residency in general medicine at Grady Memorial Hospital in Atlanta and U.S. Naval Hospital at Camp Lejeune. Preceding his faculty appointment at ECU 13 years ago, Jones was a private practice physician in Jacksonville.

He is married to the former Diane Wade, and they are the parents of two sons, James Jr. and Robert Glenn.

Last year's fall commencement speaker was Dr. Tinsley E. Yarbrough, professor of political science. More than 1,000 students who complete requirements in the summer and fall semester are awarded degrees.

Forum

The first of a series of four public forums related to the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Jenkins Auditorium on the East Carolina University campus.

Dr. Hugh Wease of the ECU History Department said the series is being sponsored by the ECU Committee to Commemorate the Bicentennial of the Constitution, supported by a grant from the N.C. Humanities Council.

The Thursday night topic is "Judges: Lawmakers or Interpreters," and will be presented in the form of a debate with Gary L. McDowell and Walter Dellinger as speakers. Dr. Tinsley Yarbrough, a professor of political science at ECU, will be the moderator.

McDowell, vice president of Legal Affairs, National Legal Center for Public Affairs in Washington, D.C. was formerly an assistant to Attorney General Edwin Meese III. In that position, he was associate director of the Office of Public Affairs of the U.S. Justice Department and was a chief speechwriter.

Dellinger, a professor of the school of law, Duke University, is an expert on the constitutional process. His articles on law have been published in the Harvard and the Yale Law Review, in the Washington Post and in Newsweek.

McDowell will represent the issue of judges as interpreters, and Dellinger will represent the issue of judges as lawmakers. The forum is free and open to the public.

Following the forum, a reception will be held at the home of Chancellor and Mrs. Richard Eakin.

Can Bentsen Muss Quayle's Feathers?

Will tonight be the night the chink in the Republican armor gives way?

The debate between vice presidential candidates Republican Dan Quayle and Democrat Lloyd Bentsen could have even more significance than the meeting of presidential candidates George Bush and Michael Dukakis 10 days ago. The rhetoric tonight could make up some minds, because there are sharp disparities between the two vice presidential candidates, both in experience and ideology.

While there are clear differences between Republican Bush and Democrat Dukakis, the two candidates have not delineated these plainly to the public. In the absence of this distinction, voters may make a decision on a presidential candidate based on the performance of his running mate.

Bentsen, with his distinguished debate experience on the Senate floor, is in a perfect position to go Quayle hunting and blow the feathers off the fledgling Republican candidate.

Quayle simply has more to prove than Bentsen. He is vulnerable behind the debate lectern because his shaky qualifications and questionable ability, until now, have been well-insulated from public scrutiny on the campaign trail. His efforts at extemporaneous speech have been bumbling — and troubling. When he goes off script, he quotes a chair-throwing basketball coach and confuses his American history. Debate — and leadership — requires a keen ability to think and speak independently. Quayle has not demonstrated this ability.

And although his party has set expectations for the debate about as low as they can go — if he shows up and speaks he wins — Quayle will have to do more than survive this debate to claim victory. He must sufficiently answer the serious questions about his qualifications for the second-highest office in the nation.

Bentsen, however, does not have that yoke of doubt on his shoulders. His expertise and qualifications are well-established and have not been questioned. The Democrats' challenge is to debate the issues effectively; to capitalize on this Republican Achilles heel called Dan Quayle. If Bentsen fails to accomplish this, he may have missed a clear chance to swing the election in a Democratic direction.

Seldom do voters cast ballots in presidential elections on the basis of the vice-presidential nominee. In most elections, there is little reason to do so. But most candidates for president select running mates of sufficient stature and expertise that no question of their ability is needed. Bentsen is an example.

Quayle however, deserves scrutiny. His selection raises discomfiting questions about Bush's decision-making ability. Tonight, he can either erase that doubt or fall victim to it.

From Gromyko To Gorbachev

A grizzled old war horse of Soviet Union bureaucracy has left the scene. He won't be returning.

President Andrei A. Gromyko retired last week from the all-powerful Politburo. The action came at a Central Committee meeting which everyone expected would produce dramatic events. Gromyko was still president but his resignation meant he would soon leave that office. Now, Mikhail S. Gorbachev has won election to that office and it will become a powerful one in Soviet government.

It is not surprising that Gromyko is out at the age of 79. What is remarkable is the staying power he has exhibited in serving through a number of Soviet regimes. Some of them are now being criticized by the new leadership of the Soviet Union under Gorbachev. Gromyko had been foreign minister of the nation for 30 years prior to becoming president. The current foreign minister is Eduard V. Shevardnadze.

Gromyko had also served as ambassador to the United States. As first permanent representative to the United Nations he was famed for his "nyet" votes.

Soviet power brokers came and departed during Gromyko's time, but he was a survivor. Even as he retires and the era of Soviet foreign relations he most characterized is in low favor, he is still being cast in a positive light.

Nevertheless an era which Gromyko represented has already ended. No doubt, except for his blind loyalty, he would tell a story of disgruntlement at the changes taking place in his homeland today. Such words will never be uttered, however. Gromyko is a loyalist and obedient to his government. The elderly man will retire with a pension and fortunately won't face the banishment that others have suffered in sterner Soviet regimes.

I'D JUST LIKE TO RESPOND BY SAYING MIKE DUKAKIS IS A FAR-LEFT, ACLU, TED KENNEDY LIBERAL—WHILE GEORGE BUSH AND DAN QUAYLE ARE FLAG-WAVING, PLEDGE-SAYING, RONALD REAGAN TRUE AMERICANS!!

BUT I HAVEN'T ASKED YOU THE QUESTION YET!

IT DOESN'T MATTER!

To the editor:

Ellen Goodman, in your Oct. 3 issue, made a rather indirect defense of abortion. She implied throughout her column that there is nothing wrong with abortion. She dismisses anti-abortion forces as merely radical and accepted as fact that a fetus is not a human being.

A fetus is a stage of growth in the life of a human being, nothing more or less. Each new human being receives a genetic uniqueness at the moment of conception. These genes remain unchanged through continuous growth and development until death. To say or imply that a fetus is not a human being is an absurdity.

Ellen also implies that there is nothing wrong with abortion and then mocks criminalization. Right now, it is legal for a woman to have an abortion at any time during the term of pregnancy. Since every abortion includes the killing of the human being in the womb, everyone should know that a woman now has the unlimited right to kill the late-term fully viable child in her womb.

This is the law of our land that Ellen does not express very clearly. One must wonder why she does not express it clearly.

I believe when this law is expressed clearly, even more people will "mobilize and radicalize" in order to criminalize abortion.

Economically speaking, an important choice:

You can borrow money today for 30 days or 30 years at the same rate — 10½ percent prime plus one-half or 10½ fixed, respectively.

Considering the variables and reasons interest rates are quoted the way they are, it causes one to consider, "Are the banks overcharging on short-term rates or is the economy so stable and consistent that investors have complete confidence in a growing economy and stable inflation that they would accept a note that probably will last 12 years (average life of a 30-year loan)? The real answer lies somewhere in between, and today's rate is 6½ basis points above the inflation rate and too high in relative terms compared to money costs in the 50's and 60's. Both presidential candidates have had little to say on improving conditions for the borrower, but they do both plan to continue deficit spending. The question is how will they overcome higher rates in the near future with the economic controls available to them? This is an important issue that I hope the candidates aren't able to dodge. Think about it! People need rewards and reasons to save for the future other than that they can no longer deduct consumer interest charges.

Last Saturday at the East Carolina University-Southwestern Louisiana football game, a colorful arch of purple and gold balloons assisted in ushering the football team onto the field. The balloons had been inflated by young people from fraternities and sororities on campus and men from the Greenville Moose Lodge. Many of my friends in the stands said it was a beautiful sight.

The purpose was to call attention to the Arthritis Foundation and its work to support research and education about this very crippling disease. I was personally delighted to participate in the project because of the Moose involvement in the work of the Arthritis Foundation on a national level.

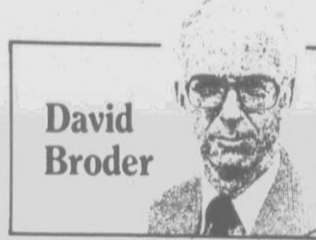

It was a great day for me to meet and enjoy association with the young people involved. It was also great to be part of a project that properly disposed of the balloons in a way that protected the environment.

Candidates, Take A Goldwater Lesson

WASHINGTON — With a sense of timing far better than he could possibly have calculated, Barry Goldwater this month is publishing his autobiography. In "Goldwater," the 1964 Republican presidential nominee and hero of the modern American conservative movement reflects on an unusually rich life of almost eight decades and on the current political and governmental scene.

His collaborator, veteran journalist Jack Casserly, has not censored Goldwater's uninhibited vocabulary, so the book bristles with characteristically pointed Goldwater judgments on people in politics, business and the press who have crossed his path.

David Broder

What makes it pertinent, beyond the pleasure of hearing the authentic Goldwater voice one more time, is the light it sheds on today's Republican Party. It is a party to which Goldwater, probably more than any other single individual, gave its stamp.

Today, we are accustomed to thinking of the GOP as the party of conservatism. Before 1964, that was hardly the case. All through the 1930s, 1940s and 1950s, moderate-progressives controlled its nominations. In 1960, political chameleon Richard Nixon signed the deal that cinched his nomination with Nelson Rockefeller. He chose as his running mate a liberal Republican from Massachusetts, Henry Cabot Lodge. Eight years later, the deal that nominated Nixon was signed with Strom Thurmond of South Carolina. And when it came time to choose a running mate, Nixon passed up the governor of Massachusetts, John Volpe, and chose a more right-wing new face, Spiro Agnew of Maryland.

What had happened in between was the Goldwaterization of the Republican Party — the most significant losing presidential campaign since Al Smith's in 1928. Just as Smith forecast the shape of the New Deal coalition, Goldwater's race reshaped the Republican Party in ways that has let it win four of the next five presidential elections.

He moved the Republican Party south and west, out of the Atlantic seaboard and the Middle West and into the Sunbelt. He moved it from advocacy of federal civil-rights action to a position of hostility or indifference. He moved it rightward on a whole variety of other issues, and it has never gone back.

Everyone knows that Ronald Reagan got his start in that campaign, with a memorable national television address. What's forgotten is that George Bush also has his roots in the same experience. He first ran for office (a Texas Senate seat) in 1964 and called himself "a Goldwater Republican." The link between the two men is provided by Dean Burch, the young lawyer on Goldwater's staff who became the Republican national chairman in 1964, and who is, today, one of Bush's closest friends and advisers.

Why was Goldwater's campaign so influential? Because he took the issues seriously but was wonderfully irreverent about himself. It is a lesson both George Bush and Michael Dukakis could profitably ponder.

Reading this book, you are left in no doubt why Goldwater told a startled Dan Quayle recently to "tell George (Bush) to start talking about the issues." That is what politics is about to him — not the pursuit of power but the clash of ideas.

He dreaded running against Lyndon Johnson, and not just because his political judgment told him (correctly) that the American public would not vote to change Presidents again just a year after the trauma of the Kennedy assassination. Goldwater also guessed (correctly) that Johnson would not tolerate a principled debate on the issues. But he went out and talked about his beliefs in what he knew was a foredoomed campaign.

That stick-to-his-guns quality was half of Goldwater's appeal. In contrast, Bush is campaigning like a man who can't stand the thought of losing. That fear has led him to use tactics that Goldwater — who gave him a critically important endorsement last winter in New Hampshire — plainly can barely stomach. It's led Bush to hedge on his basic beliefs, something Mr. Conservative never did.

The other half of Goldwater's appeal was his indelible sense that there is more to life than politics, that friendships and fun are not dependent on the vote count. Every aspiring candidate should be required to read the chapter called "A Double Life," in which Goldwater contrasts "the straight life" of his political career with "the sweet life — athlete, ham-radio operator, pilot, car buff, photographer, gadgeteer, and all-around tinkerer..." Michael Dukakis should read it twice and see what he's missing.

Goldwater knows that victory can have too high a price; just read his scathing words on Nixon. And he is living proof that defeat can be the source of future vindication, if you are true to your convictions and keep a sense of humor about yourself.

He and Jack Casserly have done a service to jaded Americans of all political stripes in publishing this reminder that politics can be both principled and pleasurable.

If He Walks, Talks, & Doesn't Twirl A Yo-Yo, He Wins

Ernest Furgurson

WASHINGTON — In this atmosphere, if Dan Quayle shows up and answers roll call, he will be declared the winner of tonight's vice presidential campaign debate.

That is about how low the Republicans, aided by the press, have driven expectations for their flyweight No. 2 man as he faces the veteran Lloyd Bentsen. See? Flyweight — I do it without even trying; we have all been doing it since the day George Bush picked Quayle.

Perhaps, starting Thursday, we will be able to break the habit. Bush, with the counsel of his media guru Roger Ailes, chose Dan Quayle for something other than the fact that they are fraternity brothers, or his distinguished military record, or his remarkable blue-eyed resemblance to "Wheel of Fortune" host Pat Sajak.

As Bush says, Quayle symbolizes a new generation. The vice president solicits "Baby Boomer" votes as thanks for apparently believing someone Quayle's age is mature enough to become president in an emergency. It is not a convincing line, but there is something politically useful about Dan Quayle's youth.

It is not that he is so young, in the abstract. Though he looks younger, he is fully 41. It is that he is relatively young compared to the Democratic nominee, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas. Bentsen is 67, and looks older than Ronald Reagan.

Approaching this debate, it is fashionable to say Quayle is challenging himself Wednesday night — himself, or the image of him created since mid-

Analysis

August. That is just the way the Bush-Quayle campaign would like the nation to judge it.

By that standard, if Quayle does not come on stage wearing deelyboppers and twirling a yo-yo, if he has gotten straight on which century this is and where the Holocaust took place, he is successful. He does not have to win to win; he doesn't even have to tie. He merely has to look and speak like he is old enough to vote and smart enough to spell his own name.

On witnessing this, the electorate is supposed to say, my gosh, what was all the fuss about, and proceed to elect George Bush and his amazingly unalarming running mate.

By that standard, Quayle is virtually sure to win Wednesday night. He may not be an intellectual, but he is coachable. Sensibly or not, he likes to debate. And in fact, he is competing not merely against himself, but against Lloyd Bentsen.

Last weekend, one national poll found that 47 percent of voters expected Bentsen to prevail Wednesday night, and only 21 percent picked Quayle. Even Bush supporters, by a single percentage point, thought the older senator would win. Importantly, undecided voters picked Bentsen by a 2 to 1 margin.

Those figures prove the success of the GOP effort to lower expectations for Quayle. Example: the top Bush adviser quoted (but not by name) as saying, "I don't think there is much question about it. We have a stature gap." Example: another Bush adviser who told me last week, "We've got both our fingers crossed."

Richard Wirthlin, chief Republican pollster, says that so far Quayle has helped firm up "institutional conservative" voters by "assuaging jitters that Bush might go for a centrist candidate." That is where he has been assigned, to the low-risk parts of the country that are sure shots for the GOP ticket.

Interestingly, Wirthlin says the young senator is seen more positively by senior voters than by the 30-to-40 bracket Bush was targeting. But at this point, the group that matters most is that undecided 10 percent or more.

Because of all the controversy over Quayle, the great mass of TV watchers is more familiar with him by now than with Bentsen. That polls show Mr. Bush slightly ahead despite Quayle suggests that most voters have considered the shortcomings of the No. 2 Republican and concluded that however bad, he is not reason enough to switch sides.

Wednesday potential voters will see Quayle in a different setting — not a flag-draped campaign stage, not a hometown setup where the aggressive press is cast as villain.

Wednesday night Quayle will be exposed to sharp questioning, which his handlers hope he can blunt by sticking to carefully rehearsed answers. That is to his disadvantage. But he will be side-by-side with Bentsen, who is solid, serious and experienced, but slow, gray and admittedly not a video star. That is to Quayle's advantage.

Historically, the decisive edge in these campaign debates has gone not to the contender who showed best judgment, who spoke most logically, but to the best TV performer. If Dan Quayle can be prevented from speaking a single spontaneous sentence Wednesday night, he may not only exceed his low expectations, but give the GOP ticket a boost that makes it uncatchable.

U.S.-Soviet Ties Trouble Third World

Stephen Rosenfeld

UNITED NATIONS — In the great thermometer that is the United Nations, the United States and the Soviet Union are enjoying an unprecedented warmth even as the Third World feels a bit of a chill.

The two great powers are inviting and receiving plaudits for starting to cooperate with each other in arms control and regional disputes. The broader membership of the United Nations is pleased to find them competing to cultivate the world body and, especially, to use the U.N. resources that their cooperation unlocks.

The Third World profits directly from the easing of what are for it not

A greater part of it was expressed by the General Assembly's new president, Argentine Foreign Minister Dante Caputo, when he contrasted the "remarkable" political progress to the "little or no" advance against "economic injustice."

Bolstering this sort of widely felt alarm is the fact that in the Soviet foreign minister's major policy review at the United Nations this week, as in Ronald Reagan's, there was not a word about the development problems of the world's poor.

There is a broad appreciation of the domestic priorities that pull the Soviet Union to "come home." This has been crucial in defining the Kremlin's new approach to some regional conflicts. But it also may keep the Soviet Union from expanding its already slight-enough role as role in the international economy ensures it a measure of engagement in the Third World utterly beyond Soviet reach. The same role also exposes it to the full brunt of the Third World's frustrations and appeals. This may be even more the case now that the expanding de'tente has diminished, as it has, the poor countries' chances of at least going through the motions of playing off one great power against the other.

This leaves the Third World struggling in its disjointed and dispirited fashion to get into the game — for them, almost literally the game of life.

In their dealings with the great public and private banks through which the United States mediates the flow of capital to the rest of the world, the poor countries are bit by bit abandoning the old state-centered development style for the words and ways of the free market. Others are better equipped than I to say how they are doing. I observe, however, one of those clouds no bigger than a man's hand: the Third World may take the free-market path and still end up terribly short. The pressure on the United States to intervene, first of all by debt relief, mounts inexorably.

Caputo, the General Assembly president, reports that the nonaligned countries are now "seriously reflecting" on the changing scene. One sign is their choice of Yugoslavia over Nicaragua as the new nonaligned movement leader. Another is the decline in baiting the United States and Israel at the United Nations; Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar sees improvements in controlling "rhetorical inflation" and promoting "civility." Class war is out: there is an increasing effort to underscore the self-interest of the world's rich in cooperating with the world's poor.

This is the setting in which the countries of the Third World warily size up the new tendency of the great powers to soften some part of their global rivalry. They had suffered from that rivalry but exploited it, too — learned to live with it. Now they want to make sure that the Big Two's incipient mellowing and turning inward does not leave them out in the cold.

distant "regional" disputes but its own life-or-death home disputes, and indirectly from nuclear arms control. It hails these developments, but not far beneath its cheers runs a current of anxiety.

Part of it is the fear that the great powers will in effect quit while they are ahead — turn to their own internal cares and bilateral ties while the hard cases of the Middle East, South Africa and Central America remain largely unresolved.

In a telling exchange this week, an African correspondent, miffed that the Soviet foreign minister was not meeting with Zimbabwe's president, who is currently the head of the nonaligned movement, demanded of a Soviet spokesman to say whether Moscow was "ignoring the Third World." The spokesman replied, "I disagree completely," and moved on.

As for the United States, its huge

Three Promoted To Shift Lieutenant At Fire-Rescue

Linwood R. Hines, Charles "Chuck" Owens Jr. and Charles "Jeff" Walker have been promoted to shift lieutenant in the city Fire-Rescue Department, Chief Jenness S. Allen announced.

Hines, a charter member of the hazardous materials response team, has been with the department since May 1980. He became a certified EMT-paramedic last year and will serve as a shift lieutenant.

Hines has a degree in fire protection technology which he received from Wilson County Technical College. He is a certified instructor with the N.C. Department of Community Colleges and is a graduate of the N.C. Rescue College. Hines and his wife, Lori, live in Winterville.

Owens will serve as training officer. Originally from Stantonsburg where he was co-founder of the Stantonsburg Rescue Squad, Owens joined the Fire-Rescue Department in March of 1980 and is a certified EMT-AI.

Owens has attended the National Fire Academy, is a graduate of the N.C. Rescue College, and has attended East Carolina University majoring in medical and psychological sciences. Owens was also chosen to be the first instructor in N.C. to teach the Radiation Emergency Preparedness Course, which he also helped to develop. Owens and his wife, Lisa, have a son, Ryan.

Walker is also a shift lieutenant. He has been with the department since December 1976. He is a graduate of the N.C. Fire College, and has attended the National Fire Academy. Walker also has attended ECU with a major in history and a minor in aerospace technology.

Walker is a former EMT instructor and examiner. He and his wife, Jamie, live in Greenville and have three children.

'Poor Pay' For Members Of PCC Advisory Panel

By Cherie Evans
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Pitt Community College gave members of its 35 advisory committees "poor pay" Tuesday evening for working to guide the college into the 21st century — a simple "thank you."

Assembled for the first annual Pitt Community College Advisory Committee meeting in the American Legion Building, more than 300 people, representing business, industry and education, were on hand to accept their pay.

"Even though it's poor pay, I thank you," Dr. Charles Russell, president of the college, said.

Picking up the theme of thanks, Bob Scott said, "My role here is very simple and that is to say thank you."

Scott, a former governor of North Carolina and the current president of the state Department of Community Colleges, was the guest speaker for the event.

"It's quite an aspiring thing to see you here together," Scott said. "We've got to have that linkage with the community to serve the needs of this county."

Scott used the nursing shortage to show how the community college meets the needs of society. "Every nursing class in the college system is filled and there's a waiting list."

"We need to do the same thing with the vocational trade," he said. "We have a decline in our vocational programs."

Students today are not interested in working with their hands, Scott said. But, "we've got to have somebody that can wire a house" in addition to having people behind a desk on a computer.

"There are tremendous opportunities out there and we've got to convey that message," he said.

Scott also discussed the importance of preparing for the 21st century.

"As we know we've got to retool for the next century, and it's only 11 years off," he said.

"I'm tired of North Carolina being low on the totem pole on so many things — poverty rates, illiteracy rates. All those things impact on economic growth and economy growth goes right back to an educated workforce and a literate workforce.

"There's something wrong when the private industries spend more money on education than schools," Scott said. Private industries spend about $50 million a year in educating and training employees.

But, with the "skills of the hand and the knowledge of the mind working together" along with the expertise of advisory committees, "you can shape this community, this county and direct their future. You have the power," he said.

CROP Walk Preparations

It's time to "Crush Hunger" as the greater Greenville area prepares for its 7th annual CROP Walk and for a walk recruitment rally Sunday, the Rev. Sam Loy says.

Loy said this year's 10-kilometer Sunday CROP Walk will begin at 2 p.m. Nov. 6 at the Greenville Town Commons on First Street.

This year's goal is to raise $15,000 and have 400 walkers participate. Some 25 percent of the money raised will go to the Greenville Meals on Wheels Program, the Greenville Soup Kitchen and the Greenville Shelter for the Homeless. The remainder will go to overseas development projects that enable people to raise their own food.

The recruitment rally will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at St. James United Methodist Church. It will provide walk recruiters with information and materials needed to prepare the hundreds of walkers expected for the event.

Organized in 1947 by a group called the Midwest Farmers, CROP has expanded and is now a major fundraising source of Church World Services made up of 30 Protestant and Orthodox denominations in the United States.

Loy, associate minister of St. James United Methodist Church, is the local coordinator of this year's walk. He said that the 1987 walk raised about $10,000, $2,500 of which went to the Greenville Meals on Wheels and Greenville Soup Kitchen programs.

Anyone wishing information may call St. James Church, 752-6154.

Court Says Fat Man Still Has His Rights

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Court of Appeals has ordered a state commission to reconsider unemployment benefits for a 285-pound man, after ruling that he was not too fat for his job with a Wayne County construction company.

But the court said Tuesday that there may be other reasons to deny benefits to John W. Seaberry. "As the record indicates there may be alternate bases upon which a judgment favorable to the employer may be supported," the three-judge panel said.

In other decisions, the appeals court ordered a third trial for a Lincoln County man charged with kidnapping and raping a woman who was trying to call off their relationship.

Seaberry was employed by W.T. Bridgers Contract Labor from January 1985 to July 6, 1986. On July 6, 1986, he was told he could work the rest of that week and the next week, but Seaberry left that day.

His request for unemployment benefits was denied by the Employment Security Commission and Wayne County Superior Court. The issue, the appeals court said, was whether Seaberry was ineligible for unemployment benefits because he "voluntarily quit his employment without good cause attributable to his employer."

Seaberry's job included "cleaning up job sites, hauling trash, digging ditches and carpentry." But his employer said his weight "limited claimant's ability to perform construction work." For example, he could not stand on ladders or work under houses, the company said.

"While there is some evidence in the record that claimant's weight interfered with some of his employment duties, the employer offered no evidence that the weight of the claimant interfered with all of the claimant's duties to the extent that there was 'no available work' for claimant," the appeals court said.

The court upheld the ESC decision that Seaberry was not entitled to unemployment benefits for the time between when he left and when his job would have ended.

But the time the termination date "was beyond the control of the claimant and was at the request of the employer," the court said. "Therefore, the quit was not voluntary."

The appeals court sent the case back to the Superior Court to be sent to the ESC for reconsideration of benefits after the separation date.

The appeals court ordered a new trial for Paul Michael Tucker, a Lincoln County man who had been convicted of second-degree rape, second-degree kidnapping and second-degree sexual offense in a Dec. 6, 1986, trial. He was sentenced to 30 years on the rape charge, 20 years consecutive on the sexual offense charge and nine years concurrent on the kidnapping charge.

In his first trial, Tucker was convicted of first-degree rape, first-degree sexual offense and first-degree kidnapping. He was sentenced to two concurrent life sentences and a 12-year-concurrent sentence on the kidnapping charge. The N.C. Supreme Court ordered a new trial.

In his second trial, the appeals court said the jury foreman asked questions of the judge concerning and first- and second-degree offenses, but the jury was not present.

"A new trial is necessary because 'the question presented and the trial court's response may be inaccurately relayed by the foreman to the remaining jurors.'"

Although Tucker's attorney did not voice objections at the time the question was asked, that did not waive the defendant's right to a new trial, the court said.

Computer Project Is Public Record

RALEIGH (AP) — State Attorney General Lacy Thornburg says the state's public-records law requires the Microelectronics Center of North Carolina to open its records to the public, including how it spends $18 million in state funds to buy a supercomputer.

"It is my opinion that the Microelectronics Center of North Carolina is so connected to public institutions, officials, and functions, and so dependent upon public funding that its records should fall within the purview of the Public Records Act," Thornburg said in the non-binding opinion Tuesday.

The attorney general's opinion came hours after the Council of State formally asked whether the Microelectronics Center, which is administering the supercomputer project for the state, can keep secret the costs of the machine and details of its purchase contract with Cray Research Inc. of Minneapolis.

Gov. Jim Martin, a Republican, had said Sept. 23 that he favored releasing the supercomputer information and was considering seeking an attorney general's opinion on the issue.

But after more than a week of delay, the Democratic-dominated Council of State beat the governor to the punch, making the formal request for an opinion at the behest of Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham, a Democrat.

"I don't like to ever be accused of trying to hide something in state government," Graham said. Martin, as governor, chairs the Council of State, but was out of Raleigh campaigning for re-election when the group met Tuesday.

The Microelectronics Center contends it is a non-profit, private corporation and has refused to release details about the purchase of the supercomputer, citing a confidentiality agreement with Cray.

Congressional Hopeful Ted Blanton (Right) Listens to Gerald Ford

Dukakis, Quayle Schedule Tar Heel Campaign Stops Ford Stumps For Blanton

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A scheduled visit to Asheville on Friday by Michael Dukakis reflects the Democratic campaign's belief that the presidential race is a toss-up in North Carolina, Dukakis aides say.

"Right now, everything we read says (the race) is within a point or two," said Amy DeHart, Dukakis' spokeswoman in North Carolina. "Clearly a Democrat has not won the state in a long time, so I guess we're a little bit of an underdog, but we feel pretty good."

Sen. Dan Quayle, the Republican vice presidential nominee, is also scheduled to campaign in North Carolina on Friday.

Quayle, who will be making his first campaign stop in North Carolina as a national candidate, will speak about 5 p.m. at a public rally on the N.C. State University campus in Raleigh, according to the state headquarters of the Bush campaign.

In addition, the Indiana senator is expected to attend a closed event to raise money for the Victory '88 organization, the general-election coordinating arm of the Republican Party.

Dukakis is scheduled to give the kickoff address for the Democrats' Vance-Aycock Weekend. The Democratic campaign said Dukakis would arrive in Asheville in mid-afternoon and make a late afternoon appearance in the city before addressing the party gathering.

Dukakis was not the favorite of most of North Carolina's Democratic elite — who will make up much of the group he will address in connection with Vance-Aycock.

But that group has played a major role in building Dukakis' present standing in polls in the state. DeHart said, making the address particularly appropriate.

"The Dukakis campaign has had this success because we've had more unity among Democrats than ever before," DeHart said.

Dukakis' officials have intensified their efforts in the state this week by buying a weeklong series of television commercials aimed specifically at the Tar Heel state.

Some reports have indicated that Dukakis is de-emphasizing efforts in all but five southern states — North Carolina among them — because of Republican nominee George Bush's strength in the South.

In other political news, former President Gerald Ford defended Republican vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle on Tuesday, saying that Quayle has nearly as much governmental experience as John F. Kennedy and Richard Nixon when they ran for president.

"First of all, I don't speculate on another person's choice," Ford said during a campaign stop in Monroe for 8th Congressional District Republican candidate Ted Blanton.

"I do think there were other people with excellent potential," he said. "But I've known Dan Quayle through his four years in the House and six years in the Senate. He has an excellent record."

Ford rejected criticism that the presidential campaign has been reduced to symbols and accusations, especially in Vice President George Bush's charge that Democratic opponent Dukakis vetoed a law requiring the Pledge of Allegiance to be said in Massachusetts schools.

"I think it's always admirable to look at someone's stand on things like patriotism," Ford said. "And I think the campaign has provided plenty of opportunity for a proper discussion of the issues."

In state races, Gov. Jim Martin called for more partnerships between state and local governments to create jobs and solve problems in education, the environment and transportation.

Martin made the remarks to about 1,200 municipal leaders from across the state at the annual conference of the North Carolina League of Municipalities.

Martin also spoke of the state's career-development plan, which is being developed to reward teachers for higher teaching performance. The program, which has been tested in pilot programs in 16 school systems, has proven successful, he said.

"Much is said about quality education these days. What we are doing is attacking the problem at the most fundamental level — the quality of teaching," he said. The program will raise the state's teacher pay levels to the national average by 1992, he said.

Martin's opponent in the gubernatorial race, Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, has said the program needs more refinement before it is fully implemented.

Campaigning in Roxboro Tuesday, Jordan said adults who possess any amount of cocaine should be charged with a felony and receive a jail sentence.

When there is no intent to sell, possessing less than a gram of cocaine is a misdemeanor in North Carolina punishable by not more than two years in prison or a $2,000 fine.

"If you could make that a felony, you might slow down some of the users," he said in an interview.

Jordan called for "some sort of incarceration" for adults who possess cocaine or crack — an especially potent form of cocaine.

Girl Drowns

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A 19-month-old Charlotte girl drowned Tuesday night after wandering into a backyard swimming pool, authorities said.

Maeghan Doolittle was pulled from the pool shortly after 6 p.m. Moments earlier she had been playing with other family members in the yard.

"They had all been playing outside — the father, mother, two brothers, a sister and a step-sister," said Officer S.A. Griffin. "She apparently wandered off. When they went looking for her, they found her in the pool."

Efforts to revive the toddler were unsuccessful, Griffin said.

Thornburg Asks Navy To Halt Dumping Of Medical Wastes

RALEIGH (AP) — State Attorney General Lacy Thornburg has asked Navy officials to take "whatever steps are necessary" to stop the dumping of medical waste from ships, after more waste was traced to the Navy.

Waste, including intravenous needles, was found in Dare County on Sept. 28, indicating that new naval regulations against ocean dumping are not being followed, Thornburg said Tuesday.

Admiral Frank Kelso issued regulations against ocean dumping of medical wastes after medical wastes from Navy ships washed up on Carteret County beaches in August. Those regulations, which allow ocean dumping only in emergency situations, took effect Sept. 15.

"One would think that would solve the problem," Thornburg said. "However, on the 28th, we picked up some waste — needles, intravenous bags and so on — in Dare County with some identifying data as to the date and source of the wastes."

It was dated the 26th and identified the USS Coral Sea, which had incineration facilities on board, as the source of the waste," Thornburg said.

Thornburg, in a letter to Kelso dated Monday, said the waste found last week makes it appear "that naval ships have either not been advised to stop this type of overboard dumping, or the advice has been ignored. In either case, I appeal to you to take whatever steps are necessary to have this practice stopped."

Al Warlick, a spokesman for the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, said Tuesday night that Gov. Jim Martin was going to "look at what he can do from his position to apply more pressure on the Navy."

"We're getting real thin when it comes to patience," he said.

Thornburg said the total amount of naval wastes that has washed ashore is small, "but you can't ignore it or you're extending an open invitation to some kind of major problem."

Thornburg's office already has analyzed the state's ocean dumping laws for Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, who has endorsed tightening state statutes. But Thornburg said the federal government also must take action to solve the problem.

"As I said when this matter first came up, it has to be addressed by the federal government," he said. "For one thing, you have sister states getting involved because of the currents ... and there are commercial and pleasure boats as well as military vessels out there involved in this."

"These are problems that we have not been aware of, but they are very quickly going to be thrust upon us," he said. "People are becoming more conscious of the environment."

League Backs Road Bonds, Tax

ASHEVILLE (AP) — The leaders of North Carolina's cities and towns have urged the state to undertake a major highway building effort and endorsed a bond issue and a gasoline tax increase to help pay for it.

Saying the state's road system was in "a crisis," the N.C. League of Municipalities at its annual convention Tuesday unanimously approved a resolution endorsing "significant bond issues, supported by necessary tax and user fee increases."

The resolution did not specify the size of the bond issue or tax hike. Raleigh Mayor Avery Upchurch, the league's outgoing president, said he hoped the action would "pump prime" the 1989 General Assembly into seeking a long-term solution to the problems of highway funding.

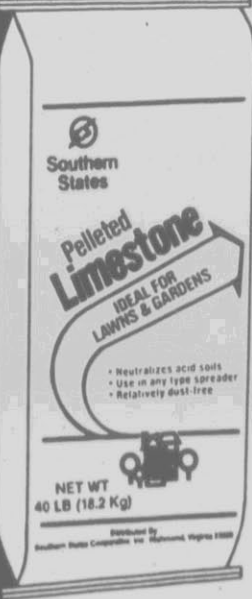

"This statement is to get the issue off dead center," Upchurch said. The action by the local officials is part of a growing consensus that seems to be developing among state and local politicians that the 1989 General Assembly should develop a major road building program.

Trail Of Tears Recalled East, West Cherokees Meet Again

CHEROKEE, N.C. (AP) — The leaves on the Qualla Boundary reservation have changed color 150 times since most of the Cherokee nation was forced to leave here in a wintry march that became known as "the Trail of Tears" because 4,000 Indians died during it.

This week, representatives of Cherokee Nation of Oklahoma came here to join the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians, those who stayed behind, in marking the 150th anniversary of the forced march. At the gathering, it was evident that the leaves are not the only things that have changed.

Instead of skins and feathers, the Indians wore dark business suits. Rather than discussing the threat of the white settler, they talked about economic development. And the western Cherokees have a woman chief.

"The Cherokee people have grown since the removal," said Jonathan Taylor, chief of the Eastern Band, which inhabits the 56,000-acre Qualla Boundary.

"Throughout history, the Cherokees have always tried to do something better," he said. The News & Record of Greensboro reported, "And now our people have the ability to go themselves and get things done."

The 9,000-member Eastern Band evolved from about 1,400 Cherokees who refused the government's order to relocate in 1838. Instead, they hid in North Carolina's mountains.

The Western band of Cherokees has 92,000 members, second only to the Navahos. It is led by Wilma Mankiller, the tribe's first woman chief.

Gov. Jim Martin told about 750 Indians at Cherokee High School that the gathering should be a reminder "so that none of us should ever forget what happened here."

The tribes used the gathering Monday and Tuesday to "inspire both remembrance and reflection on determination and achievements," said Ross Swimmer, once the Western Band's chief and now assistant secretary for Indian affairs in the U.S. Department of the Interior.

"It shows we can overcome difficulties to come back together," Swimmer said.

In two days of joint councils of the Eastern and Western bands, the Cherokees passed resolutions to support an alternate to the wilderness bill introduced by Sen. Terry Sanford; to support legislation that would encourage economic development by Indians; to ask for a new formula for road-funding apportionment; to support amendments to the federal defense appropriations bill; and to ask for funding of more teachers' aides positions.

For many, the reunion held deep meaning.

"I feel good when anybody's around that speaks my own language," said Annie J. Jessan, 78, who has lived near the Qualla Boundary all her life. Until recently, there was no encouragement for young people to learn to speak Cherokee.

"It feels like I'm meeting kin I've never known," Jessan said.

Sam Ed Bush of Marble City, Okla., said North Carolinians tell him his Cherokee dialect sounds like that of the Snowbird community near the reservation.

"I don't know whether my ancestors came from here or Georgia," Bush said. "But I know when I look at these hills, we all originated here."

The gathering gave 70-year-old Walker Calhoun of Cherokee a chance to revive the Green Corn Dance on the reservation for the first time in 50 years. Calhoun said he learned the celebration of harvest from an uncle. He has taught it to his four grandsons, who performed it to his chant Tuesday.

"I enjoyed seeing them do this when I was young," Calhoun said. "I just feel like it's something we should keep."

One of the grandsons, 15-year-old Bob Raines, said he believes a sense of heritage is returning among young Indians on the reservation.

"It makes you proud to be able to share in something so old," Raines said.

While the focus of the gathering was hope, there remains a dark side. In addition to the historical tragedy, the groups — though separated by 1,200 miles and several states — also share modern problems.

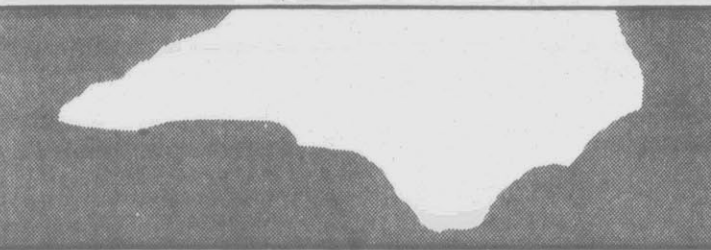

As on most reservations, unemployment, education and inadequate housing continue to be problems for both the Western Cherokees and the Eastern Band.

About 75 percent of the Qualla Boundary's 2,400 homes are government subsidized, and about 50 percent of its students drop out of school after the sixth grade.

Even the annual fall festival that opened during the celebration is a telling sign — a last grasp at summer's tourists, who fuel 90 percent of the reservation's economy. During winter months, unemployment climbs to nearly 50 percent.

Mankiller said she is optimistic about the tribes' future.

IN THE STATE

Liquor Store

GREENSBORO (AP) — Gibsonville residents gave narrow consent Tuesday to opening a liquor store in town, passing a referendum on the measure by a 23-vote margin.

The final outcome was 207 votes in favor of having an ABC store in town and 184 votes against.

"I knew it was going to be close, but I was surprised at the turnout. I thought it would be lower," said Mayor Bill Moricle, a proponent of the store.

The 391 people who cast ballots represent about 38 percent of the town's 1,514 registered voters.

of complaints about the firm's closing or relocating of facilities without notifying its members. And, we were getting too many complaints about delays in refunds to the members affected by the closings."

When a health spa closes or relocates a facility, state law requires the spa to issue a 90 percent refund for unused services within 30 days after a member requests it.

LivingWell, which has denied any wrongdoing, is now under court order to pay the state of North Carolina $25,000 in attorneys' fees and administrative costs, and $15,000 in civil penalties.

Drug Plane

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Wilson County Commissioners have agreed to pay the insurance costs for an airplane to be purchased by the sheriff's department.

Sheriff Wayne Gay solicited money from private companies toward the purchase of a four-seat airplane costing about $15,000.

Gay said he did not consider an airplane to be essential to Sheriff's Department operations. "But it has, in the past, proven invaluable," he said, citing, for example, the use of a rented airplane in the recent recovery of $10,000 exchanged with Jamaican drug traffickers.

Consent Judgment

RALEIGH (AP) — State Attorney General Lacy Thornburg obtained a consent judgment Tuesday against LivingWell, Inc., a health spa chain accused of violating consumer protection laws.

"We took this action through the court because the firm failed to honor its earlier agreement with my office," Thornburg said. "We also were getting an increasing number

Endowment Grants

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The Duke Endowment will make grants totaling $2.27 million to two scholarship programs at Duke University, officials of the endowment and the university announced Tuesday.

The Angier B. Duke Memorial Scholarship program will receive a gift of $1.5 million. This grant will be combined with a 1987 gift of $1.5 million from the Duke Endowment to create a $3 million endowment within the university for the program.

The Benjamin W. Duke scholarship program for North Carolina and South Carolina students will receive $750,000 for endowment and $20,000 for program activities. In addition to supporting at least 10 leadership awards a year, the program, by eliminating loans, provides improved aid packages for North Carolina and South Carolina students who qualify for financial aid.

Congress authorized the establishment of the U.S. Mint in 1792.

Climatologist Doubts Greenhouse Effect Active

RALEIGH (AP) — Are summers getting even harder to bear because of the "greenhouse effect," the theory that the earth's temperature is warming up because of gases in the atmosphere? It depends on who you believe.

Despite "the hysteria we had this last summer," there is no reason to believe recent changes in the climate are the result of the greenhouse effect, although they could be, said Peter J. Robinson, a climatologist at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

"How does a drought start?" he asked Tuesday at a conference on the potential impact of climatic change on North Carolina agribusiness. "It starts with a day without rain."

But Andrew Lacis, a global climate coder in New York, said at the conference that there is an "overall general upward trend, and we are identifying that trend with an increase in carbon dioxide."

Lacis, who's with the Goddard Institute of Space Studies, and Robinson, who's in the UNC-CH Department of Geography, spoke at a meeting sponsored by the North Carolina Agribusiness Council.

Robinson said authorities currently cannot conclude that the earth's changing climate is the result of the greenhouse effect.

"The climate has been changing for the whole of the history of the earth," and there's no reason to believe it would stop now, he said.

In what he called "A Tentative Possible Scenario," Robinson said temperatures would be warmer throughout the year; there would be fewer winter cold spells; and there will be little change in the summer highs.

Robinson also suggested there would be more inter-annual variability in precipitation; fewer summer depressions that bring days of rain; and more summer thunderstorms.

It might "get very wet and very dry," but there would no real change in precipitation in North Carolina, he said.

Lacis described the atmosphere as a thermal blanket that keeps the earth 60 degrees warmer than it would be without the covering.

The addition of carbon dioxide to the atmosphere has added 1 degree to the atmosphere — from 60 degrees to 61 degrees, he said. The question, he said, is "how do we perceive the effects of this 1 degree?"

And there is another increase of 2 degrees "in the pipeline," he said.

Firefighters battle the blaze that gutted the new home of Merv Griffin in La Quinta, Calif.

Griffin's New House Guttled

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LA QUINTA, Calif. — A desert mansion under construction for TV producer-turned-businessman Merv Griffin was heavily damaged by fire, authorities said.

Tuesday's blaze caused about $1 million in damage to the $1.75 million home, fire officials said. Its cause was not determined.

The house, more than 100 miles east of Los Angeles near Palm Springs, was 80 percent complete, "and a little more than half of it was destroyed," said Riverside County Fire Capt. Brenda Seabert.

Griffin, who has numerous homes, is in the process of building another one atop a mountain in Beverly Hills. In between house building, he is attempting to buy the Resorts International hotel-casino in Atlantic City, N.J., from New York developer Donald Trump.

Griffin, 63, taped his last "Merv Griffin Show" in September 1986, ending 24 years as a television talk show host. Later, he created such TV shows as "Wheel of Fortune" before selling his TV production company to the Coca-Cola Co. Fortune magazine has estimated his worth at $300 million.

Food Companies Deny They Violated Baby Formula Rules

By Jerry Estill
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Two of the world's largest food distribution companies have denied charges they failed to follow international guidelines for marketing infant formula in Third World countries.

Both the Swiss-based Nestle SA and American Home Products Corp. responded quickly Tuesday when Action for Corporate Accountability announced it was renewing a boycott against Nestle products and extending it to American Home Products.

Leaders of the Minnesota-based group engineered a seven-year boycott against Nestle that ended in 1984 when the company agreed to an infant formula marketing code worked out with the World Health Organization and UNICEF, an arm of the United Nations.

Boycott leaders said they were renewing their call for the marketplace action because Nestle and American Home Products were not abiding by the agreement.

"Nestle has worked diligently to ensure its marketing policies follow WHO recommendations," company spokesman Thad M. Jackson said in Washington. He said the guidelines allow companies to provide free or reduced-price formula to hospitals in Third World nations for babies who "have to be fed breast-milk substitutes."

Carol Emerling, a spokeswoman for American Home Products, said, "This whole activity is based on allegations that we violate the WHO code — and we flat out deny it."

"The real issue is infant health," she said. "Breast-feeding is best for infants; we've always said that. But every infant who is not receiving breast milk has the right to the best alternative available. That alternative is a scientifically formulated infant formula that is as close to breast milk as man can make it. And that is what our infant formula products are."

Boycott leader Douglas A. Johnson, chairman of Action for Corporate Accountability, contended at a news conference that Nestle and American Home Products and — to a lesser degree — other formula distributors are interpreting the guidelines in a way that allows them to skirt the intent and encourage mothers who could breast feed their babies to use formula instead.

Although Johnson does not have a blanket objection to using infant formula, he maintains it is wrong for manufacturers to encourage its use in powdered form in Third World countries where most mothers typically don't have the money, education and sanitary facilities to mix it properly.

The result, he argues, is that thousands of Third World babies develop often fatal diseases because they drink from bottles with understrength formula that either does not give them the nutrients they need or infects them with various germs, or both.

The fundamental issue is whether formula distributors effectively get babies and their mothers hooked on formula within days of birth by making their product available for free distribution at hospitals and other birthing facilities.

"In the hands of the poor, the feeding-bottle often becomes a passport to death for the young child," said Dr. R.K. Anand, a pediatrician from Bombay, India, present at the news conference.

The physician said his practice has convinced him of three things: "Bottle feeding continues to kill a large number of babies in India and other developing countries. Even poor mothers can produce enough breastmilk for their babies for at least the first four months of life. Restraint on the aggressive marketing of infant formula is essential.

Myerson Testimony Starts

By John M. Doyle
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The divorce-fixing trial of former Miss America Bess Myerson, her lover and a judge is "about money and greed and the abuse of power," a federal prosecutor said.

But defense lawyers countered in opening statements Tuesday that the case was unjustified, "contrived" and "ridiculous." Testimony was expected to begin today at federal court.

Miss Myerson, 64, the city's former cultural affairs commissioner, is on trial with Carl "Andy" Capasso, 43, and former state Supreme Court Justice Hortense Gabel, 75, who presided over part of Capasso's bitter divorce.

The three face five counts each of conspiracy, mail fraud and bribe-related charges for an alleged scheme to slash Capasso's weekly child support and alimony payments.

Miss Myerson is accused of giving a $19,000-a-year city job to Mrs. Gabel's daughter, Sukhreet, who was then 34, to get the judge to reduce Capasso's temporary support payments to his wife.

Miss Myerson was named a co-respondent in the Capasso divorce.

She is also charged with obstructing justice for allegedly trying to keep Sukhreet Gabel from testifying truthfully before a federal grand jury.

"This is a case about money and greed and the abuse of power,"

Assistant U.S. Attorney David Lawrence told the jury Tuesday. "It is about the use of secrets, deceptions and lies to keep the truth from the public."

Miss Myerson, who was Miss America 1945, was forced by the scandal — known locally as the "Bess Mess" — to resign her city post last year.

Describing her as "one of the celebrities of New York," Lawrence said, "This case is about whether such privileged people are above the law."

But Capasso's attorney insisted it was the result of a scorned wife's accusations.

"There was no fury as intense and mean-spirited as that of Nancy Capasso," defense lawyer Jay Goldberg said in a loud voice.

Vehicle Sales At 15.6 Million As Third-Best Year Recorded

By Frederick Standish
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT — America's growing love affair with light trucks towed the auto industry to its third-best year ever, as car makers reported selling 15.6 million vehicles in the 1988 model year.

The 0.7 percent increase over the 15.5 million sold during the 1987 model year was fattened by strong sales of U.S.-made light trucks, including pickups, minivans and sports utility vehicles.

The overall increase came despite a slight dip in car sales, the automakers said Tuesday. It also occurred despite the stock-market crash a year ago.

Foreign and domestic car makers reported car sales slipped 1.4 percent to about 10.4 million cars in the model year that ended Friday from about 10.5 million cars sold during the year before.

But sales of light trucks rose 4.2 percent to 5.1 million in 1988, from 4.9 million in the previous year.

Leading the way were U.S.-made trucks, rising to 4.4 million vehicles this year, compared with just less than 4 million last year, an 11.2 percent increase. Sales of foreign-made light trucks tumbled 24.9 percent to 724,584 vehicles in the 1988 model year from 961,465 in the year before.

"There has been a lot of competition for trucks on the domestic and foreign side," said Jeannette Garretty of the Bank of America in San Francisco. "That has ... given the appearance and the actuality that you can swing a good deal in that market."

But overall car sales have drooped. Industry leader General Motors Corp. was the only loser among the Big Three in the 1988 model year, with sales of about 3.6 million U.S.-made cars between Oct. 1, 1987, and Sept. 30, 1988, down 4.9 percent from the 3,719,267 domestically made cars sold the year before.

Ford Motor Co.'s sales rose 2.9 percent to 2.14 million cars in 1988 from 2.07 million in 1987. Chrysler Corp. sales rose 3 percent to about 1.05 million cars in 1988 from 1.01 million during the year before.

Overall sales made it a stronger-than-expected model year, which analysts had anticipated would see sales of about 15 million vehicles or fewer.

Bush Aide Worked Hostage Deal, Bani-Sadr Says

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS — A former president of Iran said an aide to Vice President George Bush negotiated this week's release of a hostage held in Lebanon and that Iran received arms — possibly in a deal to free the captive.

A campaign spokeswoman for Bush, the Republican presidential nominee, termed the remarks by Abolhassan Bani-Sadr "absolutely false."

Bani-Sadr said Tuesday he did not know if the shipment of weapons was related to the release Monday of Mithileshwar Singh, a 60-year-old Indian professor and legal U.S. resident.

"There has been a delivery of arms to Iran," he said. "Does that have something to do with the release? I don't know." He gave no details of the purported arms transfer.

The disclosure of clandestine arms sales to Iran, aimed at securing the release of the hostages during 1985 and 1986, led to the Iran-Contra affair. It was the Reagan's administration's worst foreign policy controversy.

Bani-Sadr said that according to his information, a man named

Richard Lawless negotiated Singh's release.

"It seems he (Lawless) has denied it," Bani-Sadr said in Paris, where he lives in exile. "I am trying to verify it."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said in Washington: "There is a fellow named Lawless. He is over there. What he's up to, nobody knows. But he doesn't represent the United States ... He does not represent the vice president or the president or anybody else."

Bani-Sadr said the prior channel for contacts between the United States and Iran no longer works and a new one has just been created. He did not elaborate but said a new intermediary had just left for the United States.

He would not identify the intermediary either by name or nationality, saying he did not want to ruin the chances of more hostage releases.

Sixteen hostages, including nine Americans, are believed held by Moslem extremists loyal to Iran.

Bani-Sadr said Bush has been dealing since last February with Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaker of the Iranian Parliament. He said representatives of both Bush and Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis have been in Iran for talks.

Dukakis spokesman Dayton Duncan said in Washington, "That's not true. It's preposterous."

Bani-Sadr, who fled Iran in 1981, said intense efforts to free hostages were under way and that he has been told Bush was trying very hard to work out the release of American hostages in early October.

Bush campaign spokeswoman Alix Glen said in Washington: "Those assertions are absolutely false. Absolutely no one is representing the vice president, the office of the vice president or the campaign in any dealings with the hostages, or any other dealings with Iran."

The Reagan administration has steadfastly denied that it has undertaken any talks directly with Iranian officials to get the hostages released.

Bani-Sadr said Iran wants the release of Iranian assets frozen in the United States.

Iran has filed claims before a joint U.S.-Iranian claims tribunal for $12 billion in military equipment frozen as a result of the 1979 Iranian revolution. Tehran also seeks release of billions of Iranian funds frozen in U.S. banks after seizure of 52 hostages at the U.S. embassy in 1979.

U.S. officials say $9 billion in financial assets have either been returned to Iran or paid to its creditors.

Lawmakers Say Drought-Related Food Price Jumps Unwarranted

By Mike Robinson
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Two farm-state lawmakers are advising consumers to watch closely for food price increases that may not be justified by the summer drought.

"Consumers should be aware of this situation and should use their clout through comparison shopping to fight unwarranted price jumps," said a joint statement issued Tuesday by Sens. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., and Rep. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D.

The lawmakers pointed to increases in the prices of bread, pasta, beef and poultry found in a study by the General Accounting Office, an investigative arm of Congress.

The GAO study was to be discussed today at a hearing of the Senate Agriculture Committee, which Leahy chairs.

The GAO study said pasta prices have jumped more than 8 percent since April. Retail increases of only 4 percent to 5 percent were warranted, Leahy and Dorgan said.

"Food processors and retailers need to know that we are all watching and they must be held accountable for any food price increases not directly attributable to higher costs," the lawmakers said.

The study showed that the price of ground beef has increased 3 percent, while the price that livestock producers get for cattle actually has dropped 11 percent since April.

Rising feed prices have accelerated the sale of cattle and thus created a buyers' market.

Fruit prices rose an average of 12 percent, while bread prices increased 4 percent, according to the GAO.

The lawmakers stressed that the GAO figures represented national averages and that there could be differences from one region to another.

Two consumer organizations issued a report on Monday saying there had been no "price gouging" in July and August but "substantial" increases in beef and some other agricultural goods in June.

The report was issued jointly by the Consumer Federation of America and Washington-based advocacy group, Public Voice on Food, Health and Policy.

Antibiotic Might Help Some Women Who Have PMS

By Paul Raeburn
AP SCIENCE EDITOR

NEW YORK — Women suffering from premenstrual syndrome should react cautiously to a new report suggesting that a common antibiotic may help ease symptoms in some, says a National Institute of Mental Health researcher.

Dr. David Rubinow, a psychiatrist and clinical director at the institute, said many treatments have been proposed for premenstrual syndrome but none have been proven to work.

"I think the whole area of premenstrual syndrome has been characterized by a new story and a new treatment every year for the last 50 years," he said.

He made the comment following an announcement Tuesday that the antibiotic doxycycline could ease symptoms in women who had an unrecognized underlying infection. The report by Dr. Atilla Toth, a gynecologist at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center in New York, was published in The Journal of International Medical Research.

Rubinow said he was not familiar with Toth's study, but he had some general comments about premenstrual syndrome, which is one of his research interests.

"While I can't reject the results of this study out of hand without having an opportunity to review the work, I would simply urge considerable caution in the interpretation of this data, lest people run out and demand the latest of a long series of treatments that may not be effective, at best, and may be associated with complications, at worst."

At a press conference, Toth said that 15 women who were given the antibiotic and asked to rate their symptoms showed a "highly significant improvement in the symptom score at the end of the month." Fifteen others given a placebo showed little change in symptoms.

Toth said an estimated 90 percent of women suffer from premenstrual syndrome during their reproductive years, and about one-fourth of those have symptoms severe enough to disrupt their professional or personal lives. The symptoms can include weight gain, breast tenderness, extreme irritability, fatigue and sometimes suicidal tendencies, he said.

He said he does not know how many of the women may have infections and could therefore be helped by the antibiotic. "I don't think there's going to be one approach that's going to answer the universe of patients that have this difficulty," he said.

Airmen Feared Dead

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Four Navy airmen were missing at sea and presumed dead after a search off the coast failed to turn up survivors of a nighttime crash of a Navy helicopter, authorities said.

The SH-3H Sea King helicopter crashed early Tuesday about 80 miles off San Diego while involved in maneuvers with the aircraft carrier USS Ranger, a Navy spokesman said.

An 18-hour search for the crew was called off at dusk Tuesday.

The craft's four crew members were assigned to Antisubmarine Helicopter Squadron 14 based at North Island Naval Air Station, said Navy spokesman Fred Wilson.

The co-pilot was identified as Lt. j.g. Dean A. Patrick, 26, of Hesperia, Mich. Two crewmen were identified as John J. Taylor, 22, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., and John Palmquist, 22, of Columbus, Ohio, both aviation anti-submarine warfare operators, 2nd class.

The name of the pilot was withheld pending notification of relatives.

SANTIAGO, Chile — Thousands of troops guarded polling stations and businesses closed their doors as Chileans voted today on whether Gen. Augusto Pinochet should remain as president.

Power outages plunged the capital and other cities into darkness late Tuesday, but the country was reported calm after polls opened this morning. Lines quickly formed outside voting stations.

At least eight explosions were heard in Santiago moments after the power outage that affected a 1,300-mile stretch of the country.

Police blamed the blackout on a terrorist bombing of at least three electrical towers, but said they had no reports of damage or injuries from the subsequent explosions, indicating they may have been noise bombs intended to frighten but not harm.

The blackout interrupted an election eve marked by relative calm, with many residents filling theaters and restaurants late Tuesday in anticipation of a day off on election day, declared a national holiday.

The nation's long-idled election machinery has been put back in place for today's referendum on Pinochet, who lifted emergency rule and loosened his tight grip on the opposition in the months preceding the balloting.

Voting was scheduled from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., with the first unofficial returns to be released about an hour after polls closed.

A coalition of 16 opposition parties, distrustful of the Interior Ministry's tabulations, planned a separate vote count. The group says it will accept as official the results of the National Electoral Service, which are to be disclosed on Friday.

Patricio Aylwin, president of the centrist Christian Democratic Party and spokesman for an opposition coalition, predicted Pinochet's downfall.

"We are going to vote and we are going to win," he told reporters.

Gen. Jorge Zincke, military commander of Santiago, said instructions had been given to provide access at polling places to the estimated 500 foreign observers.

"We have nothing to hide," he said. About 150,000 members of the armed forces and national police have been on barracks alert since Sunday.

Paper ballots at voting booths were marked only with a "yes" and a "no."

If most vote "yes," Pinochet will begin an eight-year term in March. The military junta he leads, which theoretically served as the legislative branch of Pinochet's government, will be disbanded. A new Congress would be seated in 1990, two-thirds elected and the remaining third appointed by Pinochet.

If most cast "no" ballots, open elections are to be held next year and Pinochet is to relinquish power in March 1990.

No matter what the outcome of the referendum, congressional elections will be held in 1990, but the legislature will have limited authority. It will be virtually powerless to amend a 1980 constitution, which gives the military autonomy and a supervisory role in national policymaking.

Pinochet has pointed to an improved economy in recent years and the promise of growth and stability if he is retained as president. His critics say the rich have benefited the most, and say human rights abuses continue under his rule.

About 3 million of the country's 7.4 million registered voters were too young to vote in 1973, when Pinochet led a bloody coup that toppled the elected government of President Salvador Allende, a Marxist.

In 1978, Pinochet's military government won a vote of confidence and in 1980, it won passage of a new constitution.

But both ballots were loosely organized, with no formal voter registration and few if any protections against fraud, which opposition groups say was widespread. This time, the opposition has expressed satisfaction with the safeguards.

Chinese Boat Held After Guns Found

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A Chinese research vessel was detained off eastern Luzon after inspectors found weapons and ammunition aboard, the Philippine Constabulary reported today.

But a spokesman for the Chinese embassy said the weapons were for self defense and that Filipino authorities told them the vessel would be allowed to leave Thursday.

Capt. Edgardo Ingusan of the 119th Philippine Constabulary Company said "Science Research Vessel No. 1" was detained Monday off Casiguran after three machine guns, eight assault rifles, two semi-automatic rifles and 4,850 rounds of machine gun ammunition were found aboard.

Intelligence officers flew today to Casiguran, 135 miles northeast of Manila, to inspect the vessel and question the skipper, Capt. Chun Yu-xi.

A constabulary report said the vessel's papers indicated it was engaged in underwater research. Communist rebels operate in the remote area, which has few harbors and inadequate roads.

China maintains diplomatic relations with the Philippines. Last April, Mrs. Aquino visited China and was assured by Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping of his government's support for her.

Liu Xingshen, a Chinese embassy spokesman, said the ship dropped anchor off Casiguran to avoid a tropical storm in the area. Liu said the Philippine Department of Foreign Affairs said the ship would be allowed to leave Thursday.

"I think if there are arms on this research ship, they are used for self-defense to prevent attacks by pirates," Liu said.

Educators: Lawmakers Hid Japan's World War II History

By Mari Yamaguchi
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOKYO — A story that refers to cruel conduct by a Japanese soldier during World War II was pulled from a high school textbook and replaced with an excerpt from "My Fair Lady" after politicians protested to the publisher.

Sansiedo Co., the publisher of the English textbook, decided to replace the story after members of the governing Liberal Democratic Party complained that it was inappropriate.

But the change has led to renewed charges that political and government influence is being used to gloss over textbook accounts of Japanese atrocities during World War II.

The five-page lesson titled "War" in Sansiedo's "First English Series II" begins with a conversation among Southeast Asians.

"Which nation is the most cruel?" "The Germans." "No. No. The Japanese." "The lesson says.

The lesson then tells a story about a Japanese soldier in Malaysia who grabbed a baby from its mother and "threw the baby up into the air and ran his sword through it. The baby died on the spot."

The lesson goes on to say, "War makes people cruel. So we cannot say one nation is more cruel than another."

It also mentions the case of Siamese twins from Vietnam, Duc and Viet, whose deformity may have been caused by the defoliant Agent Orange used by the U.S. military in Vietnam.

"These stories are sad, but sometimes we have to face uncomfortable things to make our life better," the lesson said.

Fukuo Ishinabe, director of Sansiedo's school textbook department, said the story was aimed at promoting understanding for international peace.

But he said the company agreed to replace the story with an excerpt from "My Fair Lady," the popular musical, because "any material that causes misunderstanding is not good."

Liberal Democratic Party politicians claimed the story exaggerated Japanese soldiers' cruelty during World War II and lacked historic and scientific background.

"We thought no teacher should use such a textbook as this," said Iwao Kudo of the Education Division of the party's Policy Research Council.

The 120-page textbook was approved by Education Ministry examiners in July. All textbooks used in Japanese schools must be approved by the ministry, which often demands changes.

U.S. Embassy Gets No Word On Captured Americans

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BANGKOK, Thailand — The U.S. Embassy in Laos said today it is trying to determine the fate of two Americans arrested after they tried to advertise a $2.4 million reward for the return of U.S. soldiers in Indochina.

An embassy spokesman, contacted by telephone in Vientiane, said the embassy received no response to a note sent to the Laotian Foreign Ministry asking about the status of the Americans, who were seized by authorities Sunday.

Donna Long, 45, and James Copp, 43, had planned to float thousands of dollars down the Mekong River offering the reward to any Laotian, Cambodian or Vietnamese who brought an American prisoner of war to the International Red Cross.

The two had also planned to cross to the Laotian bank of the boundary-marking river and advertise the award to local villagers.

Ross Petzing, the U.S. Embassy spokesman in Bangkok, said Tuesday the two were being held at Ban Sing Samphan in the southern Laotian province of Champasak. He could not confirm whether they were still in the village today or had been moved.

Long, of Jacksonville, N.C., has described herself as an MIA-POW activist and revealed her plan Sunday to The Associated Press before making the trip to the river. She was traveling with Copp, a schoolteacher and Vietnam war veteran from Hampstead, N.C.

Pornthipa Vajjarabukka, a Thai hotel manager who visited the Americans in Laos Tuesday, said she saw them but was not allowed to speak to them.

She said they were being held in a small house in the village. She said authorities had told her Monday that the two would be released within three days, but Tuesday refused to say when they would be freed.

Pornthipa said the hotel management felt responsible for the two because they had made contact with the hotel before making the trip on the river in a rented boat. The Americans speak neither Thai or Lao and have limited knowledge of the area.

The two carried $3,000 in single bills as well as some Russian and Indonesian currency. Bills were stamped in red with the reward offer and placed in plastic packets.

The Mekong River forms a boundary with Thailand and then flows on both Cambodia and Vietnam.

The reward money is being offered through the National Steering Committee for American War Veterans, a private MIA-POW group. The group says the money has been pledged by 21 Congressmen and the American Defense Institute, another group concerned with the MIA issue.

Soviets View Maneuvers

LONDON (AP) — Four Soviet military observers arrived today to inspect army maneuvers on British territory for the first time.

The Soviets are visiting Britain under terms of the 1986 Stockholm Agreement on East-West confidence building measures. Under the accord, all 35 participating nations must be notified of each other's large-scale maneuvers.

The Soviets, who arrived in London with 36 hours advance notice, flew aboard a military helicopter to the army's Bulford Camp near Salisbury, 80 miles west of London.

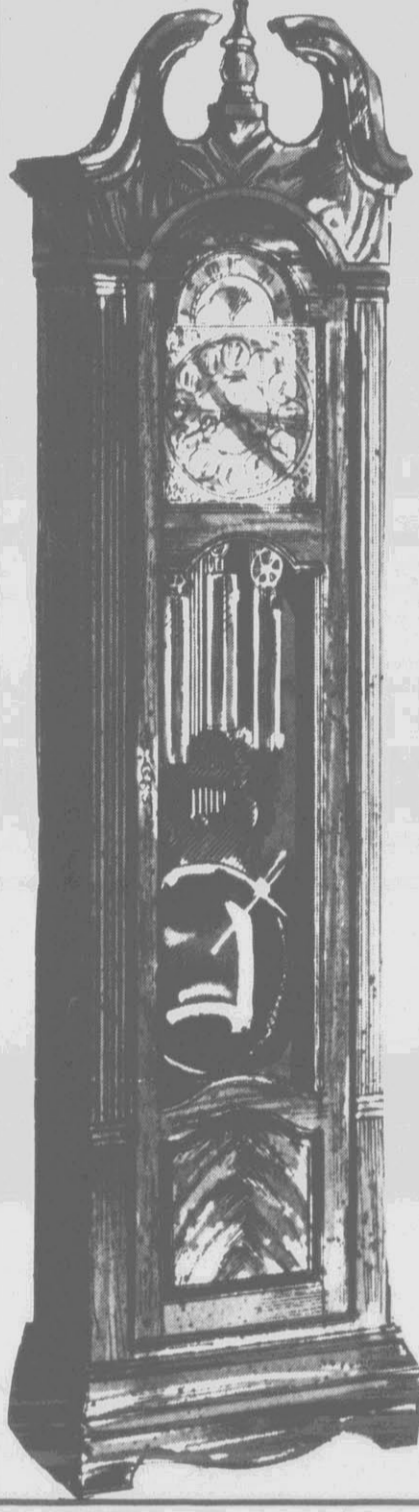

The Defense Ministry said the exercise, with the codename Drake's Drum, began Saturday and ends Sunday. It extends over 5,500 square miles of southern England and includes several south coast ports.

The ministry said the four Soviets will have two days to observe the exercise.

Videodisk Isn't A Threat To Books

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The videodisk, with its ability to store vast amounts of visual information, is just another teaching tool and doesn't threaten to replace textbooks in the classroom, educators say.

They contend that textbooks are an institution that help structure what happens in the classroom. But text books are not the only way for a teacher to structure lessons.

"There's no imminent danger for the textbook. It certainly is possible today — not just with a videodisk, but with computers and software — to organize teaching and learning around something other than textbooks if you want to," said James Mecklenburger, director of the Institute for the Transfer of Technology to Education, a part of the National School Boards Association in Alexandria, Va.

"The question is, is having a lot of pictures and sound and data and text a good way to teach? If it is, we'll have many more ways to do that in the future," he said in an interview.

There's no indication of a revolt against text books. Few colleges of education teach prospective teachers how to use the new technology, he said.

And, of 2.5 million American teachers, he estimates fewer than 5 percent ever have seen a videodisk. He also estimates there probably are not more than 20,000 videodisk players in the nation's 100,000 schools, compared with an estimated 2 million microcomputers.

But videodisk use has increased significantly in the past two years. Mecklenburger said he has heard teachers say that the textbook is becoming less of a backbone and more of a supplement.

One firm in New Jersey has produced more than 20 educational videodisks since 1981. Its first was a compilation of photos sent back to Earth by Voyager II, now heading for Neptune.

The firm has more than 3,000 customers, mostly schools, colleges, and universities, said Jim Donatelli, vice president for marketing and sales.

After teachers use videodisks for two or three years, they find they depend less on the book, he said.

But after a year of using a videodisk in his biology class, teacher Frank Blatnik says he's ready to throw out the textbooks. He calls them antiquated.

Blatnik, who's starting his 18th year at Swanton High School, says use of new technology has revolutionized his teaching style.

It takes him less time to prepare lessons now and his students learn faster, he says. And, he's especially proud of the way students who normally do average and below-average work seem to be grasping the material.

Videodisk technology has mushroomed in the last two years but it's hardly widespread in schools. The Ohio education department recommends its use.

"We believe the videodisk technology offers tremendous educational potential," said G. Robert Bowers, assistant superintendent for public instruction. Swanton is one of eight sites the department is observing for its "Classroom of the Future" project.

In the Springfield local school district, officials plan to spend $10,000 for a 38-disk Video Encyclopedia of the 20th century, which includes thousands of news and movie clips of major world events since 1900.

"It's a visual age," said George

Hotel Reservations Give Unmarried Couple Pause

DEAR ABBY: Would you please tell me how to make reservations at a cruise or resort hotel for an unmarried couple who are traveling together here and possibly abroad? I am a widower, 60 years old. Since I was married during the so-called sexual revolution, I am not familiar with this sort of thing.

My traveling companion and I do not want to pass ourselves off as a married couple. When I call or write for reservations, should I say it is for "John Smith and Mary Jones," or "John Smith and friend," or what? I doubt if the hotel management cares whether a couple is married or not, yet I want to avoid possible embarrassment.

Your help will be greatly appreciated. I trust you will not use my name in your column if you think this is printable. Sign me... UNSOPHISTICATED IN ST. PAUL

DEAR UNSOPHISTICATED: Ask for reservations for John Jones and Mary Smith. You must use your correct names if you plan to travel abroad since your passports will bear your correct names. Specify whether you want twin beds, a double or adjoining rooms. Consult with your traveling companion so there will be no embarrassing surprises. And you're right — most hotel managers don't care whether you are married or not as long as you're quiet, mannerly and pay your bill.

DEAR ABBY: A month ago, my younger sister and her boyfriend announced their engagement. She is 22 and he is 26. They are planning to be married in 16 months.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Since then, my boyfriend and I have decided to take the same step — probably much sooner than my sister. I am 26 and he is 34. Abby, we don't want any hurt feelings; neither do we want to steal my sister's thunder or, worse yet, commit a breach of etiquette. Would it be all right for us to get married prior to my sister's wedding? Or must we wait until after she's married? — TWO LOVEBIRDS IN EL CENTRO

DEAR LOVEBIRDS: You'd have to be cuckoo to wait for 16 months! Discuss this with your sister. I can't imagine her having any objections. After all, you're the older one, and traditionally you should marry first. You are most considerate to be concerned about stealing your sister's thunder, but she didn't invent marriage. Love knows no timetable, so if you're ready now, I say, let the wedding bells toll for thee, and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Let us say that I am the hostess, and I am inviting a couple of new arrivals to the community to my home for a small dinner party. Would it be proper for me to ask, "Is there anything that you are allergic to, or that you dislike intensely?" All right, now let us say that we are the newcomers who are invited to someone's home for dinner:

Would it be proper for me to tell the hostess in advance that my husband is allergic to chocolate and dairy products, and that he reacts violently to alcohol — even the most minimal, such as a few drops of brandy or liqueur in the dessert? Please answer this in your column. If I am right, I am going to buy six newspapers and clip your column to send it to some friends. — ARGUING IN AUSTIN

DEAR ARGUING: There are no winners or losers in this case: It is both proper, indeed considerate, for the hostess to inquire into the tastes and possible allergies of the newcomers. And if the newcomers have any allergies or strong aversions to any food or drink, the hostess would appreciate being told in advance.

"How to Be Popular" is for everyone who feels left out and wants an improved social life. It's an excellent guide to becoming a better conversationalist and a more attractive person. To order, send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Boyette-McDaniel Vows Spoken

KINSTON — The wedding ceremony of Donna Marie McDaniel and William Henry Boyette took place Sept. 24 in Faith Lutheran Church. The Rev. Ronald Fletcher conducted the double-ring ceremony.

Organist Frank Schlier and vocalists Monica King and Penny Gray presented music.

Vickie L. Davenport of Greenville was maid of honor and the best man was brother of the bridegroom, Joseph L. Boyette Jr. of Kinston.

Lisa M. Poole of Greenville, cousin of the bridegroom, was the bridesmaid. Ushers were John Henry Poole of La Grange, cousin of the bridegroom, Milton Lee McDaniel of Port St. Lucie, Fla., brother of the bride, and James Grayling Hobbs of La Grange, cousin of the bride.

Parents of the bride are Milton Edward and Ruth Hobbs Boyette of Pine Knoll Shores. Ellen Poole Boyette of Route 7, Kinston, is the mother of the bridegroom. His father was the late Joseph L. Boyette.

Given in marriage by her family, the bride wore a formal gown of white satin and satin embroidered schiffli lace. The gown was fashioned with a fitted basque bodice with a sheer English net yoke with a beaded collar and Elizabethan sleeves trimmed with satin embroidered schiffli lace. Hanging pearls accented the bodice which was also trimmed with pearl designs. The A-line skirt was styled with gathers and flowed into a cathedral train highlighted with satin schiffli lace cut-outs. Satin embroidered schiffli lace bordered the hemline and train of the gown. She carried a cascade bouquet of white gardenias, roses and baby's breath with bridal ribbons.

A reception was given in the church fellowship hall by the bride's parents.

Having had a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple lives in Kinston.

The bride is a registered nurse at Tarheel Health Services in Kinston. The bridegroom is employed by Roberts Construction Co. near Winterville.

Inquiry Ordered

MBIA, S.C. (AP) — The mental health commissioner has ordered an inquiry into his department's handling of the case of James William Wilson, the man accused in the Greenwood school shooting spree last week that killed two children.

Joseph Bevilacqua said Tuesday he could not yet assess whether the mental health department made errors in not committing Wilson, 19, for treatment before his deadly visit to Oakland Elementary School on Sept. 26.

Two children died, and nine people, including two teachers, were wounded.

"I, of course, have concerns where you have a situation of the magnitude of this case in regard to the disruption of the community and the lives that have been involved," Bevilacqua said.

He said a panel of outside experts and people from within the department will review Wilson's files and interview people involved in the case.

"We're not blaming anyone," Bevilacqua said. "We're trying to get an assessment of what happened in a very difficult situation. And if we should make corrective actions, we will, in fact, make the corrective action."

The department twice since 1986 had rejected attempts by Wilson's relatives to have him involuntarily committed to a state facility, according to a retired probate judge who had been involved in the attempts.

The former judge, Rosemary M. Trakas, told The Greenville News that Wilson's family twice filed affidavits seeking his commitment since 1986. She said he was evaluated on both occasions by the department's Beckman Mental Health Center in Greenwood, and that the petitions were rejected.

Bentsen, Quayle Outline Plans For Debate

In the CBS News-New York Times poll, the Bush-Quayle ticket drew the support of 48 percent of the 1,034 probable voters surveyed while Dukakis-Bentsen got 46 percent.

When the respondents were asked about the presidential nominees, without their running mates, the support for Dukakis declined to 43 percent while Bush remained at 48 percent. The poll, conducted Saturday through Monday, had a margin of error of plus or minus three percentage points.

On Tuesday, the Bentsen campaign was setting low expectations for its vice presidential candidate in the debate, with aides to the candidate suggesting that he was not adept at boiling down his positions to one-minute sound bites. The campaign is trying to dispel the belief that the more experienced Bentsen would manhandle the junior senator from Indiana.

Bentsen, however, was buoyed by his chances. "Are you going to be standing behind me as we open the Quayle season early tomorrow night?" he asked the airport crowd.

Quayle was providing few details of his debate strategy, but promised to "just be myself" as he "communicates with the American public in an unedited version."

"They'll be able to see Dan Quayle as I really am," he said. "The American people don't know me. They have a lot of questions ... They don't have any details of who Dan Quayle is."

Quayle's running mate Bush used a speech in Sacramento, Calif., to propose a $100 million program to encourage community volunteer service by young people.

"I want our affluent to help our poor," the vice president said of his Youth Engaged in Service to America plan. "I want the young men and women of our tree-lined suburbs to get on a bus, or the subway, or the metro, and go into the cities where the want is."

Dukakis, meanwhile, told a rally in Toledo, Ohio, that his White House would care about the plight of struggling families.

"I care about working people and working families and that's the difference between Mike Dukakis and George Bush, and Democrats and Republicans," he said. "We care."

The Democratic nominee also compared Bush's attempts to portray the Democrats as a party only interested in the nation's negatives as the same tactic used by Richard M. Nixon 28 years ago.

"They said the same thing about Jack Kennedy in 1960 — all that gloom and doom," Dukakis said. "And what was he saying? 'We can do better.'"

In his campaign stops in the Midwest, Dukakis underscored the theme of his latest ads, titled "The Packaging of George Bush," which depict the GOP nominee as a product of media experts and a candidate with no solution to the nation's problems.

"He offers slogans and symbols; we offer solutions," Dukakis said. Aides say the ad series is expected to cost the campaign more than $1 million.

The Bush campaign, meanwhile, released an attack ad aimed at Dukakis' handling of the Massachusetts prison furlough system, said Bush spokeswoman Sheila Tate.

The ad shows inmates walking through a revolving door while an announcer says the state's system gave weekend passes to first-degree murderers and crime statistics appear on the screen.

The Bush campaign has repeatedly criticized Dukakis in the case of Willie Horton, who raped a Maryland woman and stabbed her fiance while on a weekend furlough.

PTL Trustees Approve Bid For Property

If approved by a U.S. Bankruptcy Court judge in Columbia, S.C., Mernick will own the 500-acre Heritage USA, a Christian retreat and theme park south of Charlotte in York County, S.C.; the PTL satellite TV network; and 1,700 undeveloped acres in York County.

PTL's religious functions have been separated from its other operations, and the Heritage USA Church is leasing back its facilities from PTL to continue on-site worship and Christian broadcasting.

Mernick, an Orthodox Jew who was celebrating the holiday Simchat Torah, did not travel to Charlotte to attend Tuesday's new conference announcing the winning bid.

Kluttz said Mernick has interests in real estate, clothing, garbage collection and landfills.

"His primary interest as a businessman is to get a maximum return on his investment," Kluttz said.

In a Sept. 15 letter to Benton, Mernick said he "would welcome the opportunity to meet with representatives of any group or groups that are seriously interested in exploring ways of preserving or enhancing the Christian orientation of parts or all of the existing developed assets."

Aaron Grubner, Mernick's attorney in Toronto, told The Charlotte Observer last month that Mernick wanted PTL because "it's a large tract of land, and I'm not sure those types of parcels are readily available."

Mernick, who entered the negotiations a month ago, outbid fellow Canadian Peter Thomas of Vancouver. Thomas offered $113 million, $46 million of it in cash, but not all would have been payable until September 1989.

signals from the ground to the aircraft, and the pilot can read instruments on the plane to determine if the plane is approaching the runway at the proper angle.

The glide slope is to be located on the west side of runway 19, the airport's main runway which stretches north toward N.C. 33, Turcotte said, and the eight-acre area set for clearing is about 1,200 feet long and parallel to the runway. All of the land included in the project is owned by the airport, he said.

The land must be level with the runway and free of barriers so that the radio signals bounced off of the ground give the pilot a true reading of his approach angle.

The airport already has a localizer — the second part of the ILS — which tells pilots if their approach path is on line with the center of the runway. But the authority approved a plan in August to purchase a new localizer along with the glide slope because bids on the equipment came in much lower than expected.

The authority has agreed to purchase the ILS from Wilcox Electronics for $165,900, which is about one-half of what Turcotte said he expected the system to cost.

The Pitt-Greenville airport is the only commercial airport in the state with regularly scheduled flights that does not have a full ILS, and Turcotte said the equipment should arrive and be installed by December.

Other companies that entered bids on the site preparation were: W.A. Gaskins Inc. of Grifton; Barrus Construction Co. of Greenville and Greenville Paving and Contracting Inc. The high bid for the site work was more than $45,700.

Police

But only about 75 people said they would participate, and remained for coaching on tactics.

Protesters complained that police treated them with unnecessary harshness, twisting arms and fingers and using pressure-point holds just under the ears to force them off the street and into buses. Some screamed or cried as they were taken away.

Police asked the protesters if they would walk to the buses before hauling them off when they refused.

Gene Guerrero, executive director of the Georgia chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said he asked the city to abandon pressure-point holds.

However, he said, "I've been to a lot of demonstrations and I've seen a lot of police brutality. I haven't seen that today."

Mets Rally By L.A., 3-2

Dodgers Find Way To Lose After Leading 8 Innings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There seemed to be no way Los Angeles could be beaten after eight innings of the opener of the National League playoffs. But when it comes to playing the New York Mets, the Dodgers always seem to find a way to lose.

A three-run rally in the ninth against a pair of pitchers who had been virtually unhittable since August gave the Mets an improbable 3-2 victory Tuesday night.

The underdog Dodgers know they'd better win tonight's game or they're in big, big trouble.

"If we don't bounce back, it's going to over quick," Dodgers outfielder Mike Marshall said. "We played a good ballgame, things just slipped away in the ninth inning."

Run-scoring singles by Marshall in the first inning and Alfredo Griffin in the seventh gave Dodgers' ace Orel Hershiser what appeared to be an insurmountable lead entering the ninth.

The lead appeared safe because Hershiser finished the season with an all-time record 59 consecutive scoreless innings, not allowing any scoring since Aug. 30, and had continued his incredible pitching into the postseason.

Hershiser scattered five hits over the first eight innings, but he finally gave up a run in the ninth on a leadoff single by rookie Gregg Jefferies, an infield out and Darryl Strawberry's RBI double to right-center.

"That at-bat was the most important of the year for me and could turn the series around," Strawberry said. "Even when I had two strikes in the ninth, I just kept hanging in there. I knew I wouldn't get anything to pull, so I just went up the middle with it."

Hershiser was removed — a decision he supported after the game — in favor of Jay Howell, who hadn't allowed a hit in his final 7 1-3 innings of work — since Aug. 29 — and hadn't given up a run in 18 straight innings.

Howell walked Kevin McReynolds, but struck out Howard Johnson for the second out of the inning. Up came Gary Carter, a veteran who has delivered many clutch hits in his career but suffered through a season of frustration.

The first two pitches to Carter were strikes, and the Mets catcher appeared overmatch and swing defensively. The third was a breaking ball, down and away, and the lunging Carter blooped it to center.

Playing deep, Dodgers center fielder John Shelby didn't appear to get a good jump on the ball. He made a dive, the ball glanced off his glove and dribbled a short way away from him.

Strawberry scored easily from second and McReynolds raced around from first, barely beating Shelby's throw home as Carter chugged into second with a double.

Winning pitcher Randy Myers retired the Dodgers in order in the bottom of the ninth to complete the comeback as the Mets broke a five-game losing streak in playoff series openers.

It marked the 20th time this year the Mets had won a game in their final at-bat and gave them a leg up in the best-of-seven series.

"That's the kind of year we have had; I was just waiting for us to

Psychiatrist Says Tyson Is Not Manic-Depressive

NEW YORK (AP) — Opposing boxers and his wife may think he's scary, but a psychiatrist says heavyweight champion Mike Tyson is definitely not a manic-depressive.

Dr. Abraham Halpern, the chairman of the psychiatry department of United Hospital at Port Chester, N.Y., examined Tyson at noon Tuesday and concluded the troubled fighter "showed no sign of abnormality. He had no delusory ideas."

Hundreds of curious fans who have followed the soap opera-like events of Tyson's personal life in recent months gathered outside Tyson manager Bill Cayton's office, where the examination took place, to await the psychiatrist's diagnosis and greet the champ.

"I've seen a lot of people suffering from manic depression," Halpern said afterward, "and I would say Mike Tyson is in no way, no way, exhibiting that type of behavior."

"He expressed a lot of affection for his wife. He said he wanted desperately to get back into training, back into the ring. He expressed absolutely no suicidal tendencies," the psychiatrist said. "He wants to talk to his wife and patch things up and get back to fighting."

Tyson, 22, has been beset by personal problems since knocking out Michael Spinks in his last title defense in June.

After an auto accident last month at Catskill, N.Y., Tyson was evaluated by Dr. Henry McCurtis at the urging of the fighter's wife, actress Robin Givens, and mother-in-law, Ruth Roper. McCurtis, a psychiatrist, diagnosed Tyson as a manic depressive and prescribed lithium carbonate for him.

Halpern said he had spoken to McCurtis, who denied making that diagnosis.

"Dr. McCurtis used the expression 'mood regulatory problems.' There's something in that," Halpern said, describing the fighter's frame of mind as "most of the time within the range of normal. He's under more pressure than most of us."

Halpern said McCurtis told him that he had prescribed lithium "as a trial to stabilize Tyson's moods."

"Getting his information from Mrs. Tyson and her mother, it led him to believe Mike Tyson was kind of volatile," Halpern, also a professor at New York Medical College, said after the examination.

"He seemed a little under tension. He was uncomfortable talking to a psychiatrist he had never seen before," Halpern said.

Halpern's examination came at the urging of Bill Cayton, Tyson's estranged manager, and cleared the way for Tyson to defend his title against Frank Bruno in London on Dec. 17.

Cayton said he relayed Halpern's diagnosis to Jose Sulaiman, president of the World Boxing Council, which has sanctioning power over the twice-postponed fight.

"Jose agreed that the fight would be sanctioned," Cayton said. "More important, Mike is eager for the fight."

Cayton said Tyson would begin training Monday in upstate New York for the fight.

Tyson and Cayton met at the manager's midtown office on Monday, and apparently settled differences from their recent dispute over the percentage of Tyson's earnings to which Cayton was entitled.

Tyson seemed to have everything going for him after his first-round knockout of Spinks, but has had little to cheer about since.

The latest incident was a heated argument Sunday morning with Givens in the couple's mansion at Bernardsville, N.J.

Tyson reportedly hurled a sugar bowl and chairs through windows during a fit of anger apparently sparked by interviews given to Barbara Walters by Givens and Roper on ABC's "20/20."

Since the incident, Tyson has been staying with Mark Breland and was expected to accompany Breland to Detroit for his fight Friday night.

Shelby's Decision Wrong One As Carter's Ball Gets By Him

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There wasn't much time for John Shelby to decide what to do with Gary Carter's shallow fly ball falling in front of him. Letting his instincts take over, he left his feet, stuck out his glove and hoped for the best.

Now, the best the Los Angeles Dodgers can hope for before the National League playoffs move to New York on Friday night for Game 3 is a split with the New York Mets. Tonight's game became even more critical for Los Angeles after the Mets pulled out a 3-2 victory Tuesday night in the series opener.

With two outs in the ninth inning and a two-strike count, Carter got the end of his bat on a Jay Howell breaking ball and drove in Darryl Strawberry and Kevin McReynolds with a bloop double that erased a 2-1 deficit.

"If he made the catch, it would have been unbelievable," New York manager Davey Johnson said of Shelby. "I thought we had a chance with McReynolds on first for him to score."

So did third base coach Sam Perlozzo, who had held Carter up at third in the third inning on Mookie Wilson's two-out single to right fielder Mike Marshall with New York trailing 1-0.

"I was watching Shelby the whole time," Perlozzo said of the decisive hit. "When Mac was going to third, I really didn't have any intentions. To me, it looked like he thought the play was dead and figured nothing else was going to happen. At that point, I thought I'd go ahead and send him; I don't think he expected anyone to be going."

Dodgers starter Orel Hershiser, who carried a major league-record 59 consecutive scoreless innings into the game, had blanked the Mets for eight innings before rookie Gregg

Jefferies singled for his third hit of the game and scored on Darryl Strawberry's one-out double.

Howell then walked McReynolds and struck out Howard Johnson before Carter's climactic hit fell tantalizingly in front of Shelby, who gave it a valiant bid after a long run.

"Shelby made a great effort on the ball," Carter said. "I kind of thought he would make the catch. It's been that kind of year for me."

Shelby knew he was taking a gamble diving for the ball with McReynolds, the go-ahead run, breaking on the crack of the bat behind Strawberry with two out. But he patiently explained to a swarm of reporters at his locker that the importance of the game had nothing to do with the way he went after the ball.

Panthers Hope To Learn Lessons

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Don't get North Pitt coach Stuart Ennis wrong. There is nothing great about losing a high school football game.

"You hate to say a loss is good," Ennis said of the Panthers' 14-12 defeat at the hands of Ayden-Grifton last Friday. "(But) it can really make you take a good look at yourself, where you are going and where you want to get to. The loss made our kids realize where they want to get to."

And that is the playoffs, where the Panthers have been the last three seasons.

"Our big thing Friday night was the breakdown in the defensive secondary with a minute to go in the half," Ennis said. "We had two people back there who had never been there before."

The breakdown helped the Chargers score in the latter minutes of the second quarter to take a 14-6 lead into the locker room at halftime.

"It was just a miscommunication on our part," Ennis said. "Even on the touchdown, it was just a poor job. We didn't cover the tight end either. With the exception of those plays I couldn't ask anymore of our team."

North Pitt stands at 2-3 on the season and 0-1 in the Eastern Plains Conference. But with just the conference schedule remaining, the Panthers control their own destiny as far as their post-season plans are concerned.

"We can take a lot of positive things away from it (the loss)," Ennis said. "Our kids know where they want to go. They want another shot at them (the Chargers)."

"They were the number-seven ranked team in the state. They had been beaten by only a few points by the (formerly) number-one team (Wallace-Rose Hill) in the state."

Next up for the Panthers are the Rams of Greene Central, who are 2-0 in the EPC and 3-2 overall. They boast one of the top quarterbacks in the conference in Kris Radford along with a running attack led by Anthony Dupree and Cornelius Hill.

"It's going to be a real challenge stopping Kris Radford," Ennis said. "He passed for over 1,000 yards last year. They put a good spanking on us last year, beat us 17-12 over at Greene Central. They did an excellent job defending us."

"We're going to have to put a whole lot of heat on Kris Radford and make him throw the football fast. We're going to have to stop the option game with Anthony Dupree."

A key for North Pitt could be its own option attack, which the Rams shut down last year.

Quarterback Billy Hardison had 137 yards rushing against the Chargers last week. If running backs Michael Daniels and Michael Blow have running room, the Panthers could roll.

"There's no doubt, we knew in the Ayden game how they were going to defend the option," Ennis said. "It makes it very tough when you read the option, if we're doing a good job reading it there is always that triple threat."

"Offensively, we have to continue (moving) between the 20's exactly like we're doing and suck it up when we get down (in scoring position)."

Farmville Central

After enduring a number of injuries to key starters early in the year, Farmville Central found enough healthy bodies to hand C.B. Aycock a 20-6 loss last Friday.

"It'll give our player some confidence," said Farmville coach Dixon Sauls. "It was certainly a victory our players needed. The win was very important to our season, particularly at the time it came."

Running backs Mack Davis and Darryl Wilkes, along with offensive guard-linebacker Scott Gardner returned to action last week to help out the Jaguars' offensive effort. Quarterback Morris Foreman played his second straight game and only third of the season. The Jaguars, 3-3 overall and 1-1 in the Eastern Plains 2-A Conference, hope to get guard-linebacker Michael Moore and linebacker-fulbacker Bernard Newsome back this week.

Next up for the Jaguars is a road game at EPC foe Pamlico County.

"We're trying to regroup," Sauls said. "We have an opportunity now to do something positive. We have a difficult assignment going to Pamlico County. It's a long bus ride and with a team that lacks maturity, it's a big challenge for the coaching staff."

The Hurricanes have had a disappointing year so far, starting out 1-4, but they boast one of the top running backs in the Northeast in Terance Tatum, who has over 500 yards rushing this season and rambled for 1,110 last year.

"Pamlico is a better team than their record," Sauls said. "They play a very difficult schedule. They are a quicker team (than ours) which causes us concern."

For Farmville, which was considered a preseason contender for a playoff spot, the return to health of some key players has been as big a help as anything.

"Certainly having Scott (Gardner) back is a big boost," the coach said. "His leadership on the field is quite evident. He had 13 tackles and six assists. His leadership means so much to our team. He (also) played guard for the first time this week."

"We're still in the regrouping stage. I think we've made some strides. Defensively, we made some plays to stop the opposition in scoring position. We've had problems defensively. We've had trouble in all areas. We are having to learn through experience and we feel our players are now profiting from that experience."

Ayden-Grifton

The Chargers are 5-1 after their 14-12 win over North Pitt last Friday and they have an open date this Friday before taking on Greene Central the following week.

Ayden-Grifton coach B.T. Chappell is hopeful his team will get something positive out of the week off.

"You worry if your going to get flat," he said. "You sit around and don't play, you break your routine and you worry about whether it will help or hurt you."

The win over the Panthers puts the Chargers in the driver's seat for the conference title. For the last two years, North Pitt and Ayden-Grifton have shared the honor.

While Chappell was happy to get the win over North Pitt, he hopes his team can learn from its mistakes in the game.

"I think one of the biggest problems after watching the film was we did not execute in the offensive line," he said. "We've got to improve ourselves if we expect to have a good year."

"We missed too many blocks but that's a credit to North Pitt's defense. They made us aware of a number of weaknesses. Defensively in that ball game, we were looking hard for some linebackers. James Woodard hasn't practiced all week and he did a good job out there. We came out of the game learning a lot."

The biggest enemy to Ayden-Grifton now is complacency, according to their coach.

"The thing was last year, we lost to them and our players got intense in what they were doing," Chappell said. "The problem I see (now) is you tend to say we beat the team we wanted to and next week I know Greene Central is a good team."

Farmville-Pamlico County

□The Site: Bayboro.
□The Time: 8 p.m.
□Records: FC 3-3 (1-1); PC 1-5 (0-2).
□Significance: The Jaguars are beginning to round back into health after a number of injuries to key players early in the year. Last week's 20-6 win over C.B. Aycock took away some of the disappointment to South Lenoir the week before. A stumble here would be a major stumbling block to Farmville's hopes, while it could provide some confidence for a Hurricane team that has had its problems thus far.
□Players To Watch: RB Terance Tatum, QB Chris Warren, E Maurice Smith; FC — QB Morris Foreman, RB Darryl Wilkes, LB-G Scott Gardner

Greene Central-North Pitt

□The Site: Bethel.
□The Time: 8 p.m.
□Records: GC 3-2 (2-0); NP 2-3 (0-1).
□Significance: Both teams need to win to keep pace in the Eastern Plains Conference race. North Pitt would like to rebound from a 14-12 loss to cross-county rival Ayden-Grifton, while Greene Central rolled over Pamlico, 41-22. A key here will be the Panthers' defense against the passing attack of Ram quarterback Kris Radford.
□Players To Watch: GC — QB Kris Radford, FB-LB Anthony Dupree, E-OLB Wes Sugg; NP — QB-DB Billy Hardison, E-LB Reggie Daniels, T-DT Tony Hopkins

Greenville Christian Tops Wayne

GOLDSBORO — Greenville Christian scored the only goal in the second half Tuesday and pulled out a 5-4 soccer victory over Wayne Christian. The two schools each scored four times in the first half of the match. Kevin Joyner and Jeff Allen each scored twice for GCA while Bill Minchew scored three goals for Wayne. Bobby Miller added the other goal. In the second half, Joyner turned in a hat trick, scoring his third goal for GCA and it stood up for the winning goal. GCA took 35 shots on goal in the match while Wayne goalie Dave Hill recorded six saves. Wayne had only 15 shots on goal with GCA goalie Chris Langley having 10 saves. The win boosts the Knights to 5-1 in conference play. They play at home against Friendship on Friday.

Pirates Fall To Seventh In Tourney

BUIES CREEK — East Carolina's golf team slipped to a seventh place finish in the Hargrove B. Davis Memorial Tournament, which wound up play Tuesday at the Keith Hills Golf Club.

The Pirates, who led on the first day, fell to seventh in the 26-team field as Guilford College took the team title with a 590. Virginia Commonwealth took second at 591 while the Pirates finished with a 607 total.

Francis Vaughn, who had led the individual field with a two-under par 70 the first day of the 36-hole event, shot a 78 the second day to finish with a 148, tied for sixth place.

Other ECU scorers included John Chapman 153; Simon Moye 155, Chris Powell 156, and Tom Cooper 160. Mickey Moore of VCU won the individual title with a 74-70-144.

The Pirates return to action in the Wachesev-Spivey Collegiate Invitational Tournament at Murrel's Inlet, S.C., on Saturday.

Tate, MacIntosh Top Volleyballers

Debbie Tate and Michelle MacIntosh have been named ECU volleyball players of the week by Lady Pirate coach Judy Kirkpatrick.

Tate, a junior outside hitter from Arcadia, Fla., was named the offensive player. She had a 22-percent hitting performance in last week's play, including seven service aces, 56 digs, three solo blocks and four block assists.

MacIntosh, also a junior outside hitter from Morehead City, was named the defensive player of the week with 19 kills, one service ace, 52 digs and one block assist.

Former Conley Player Stars At UNCW

WILMINGTON — Lisa Mills, a 5-10 middle hitter for the UNC-Wilmington Lady Seahawk volleyball team, was recently named to the all-tournament team at the Winthrop College Invitational Tournament.

A senior co-captain, Mills, has helped the Lady Seahawks to a 15-1 season. Liberty University snapped the UNCW victory string at 15 in the finals of the Winthrop Tournament.

Longtime Beaufort Coach Dies

BEAUFORT (AP) — Thomas Harold McQuaid, a longtime high school basketball coach in Carteret County who led his team to four state championships, died Monday of a heart attack. He was 76.

McQuaid was well known for coaching the Beaufort Seadogs of Beaufort High School to a 91-game winning streak. The team won Class A state championships in 1955, 1959, 1960 and 1961.

McQuaid taught math, physical education and driver's education at various high schools until his retirement in 1977. He also served as a captain in the Army during World War II, said his daughter, Kathy McQuaid of Jacksonville.

Friends and family described McQuaid as a strict disciplinarian who earned the respect of those around him.

"The boys were dedicated to his program and to his expectations," said Curtis Lancaster, a football coach at Beaufort High School when McQuaid coached basketball. "They understood that they could not play for him unless they abided by his expectations."

Services will be at 11 a.m. Thursday at the First Baptist Church in Beaufort.

Earnhardt Says Rainout Will Help Him

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Dale Earnhardt says the rainout of the Holly Farms 400 at North Wilkesboro may help him in his bid to catch Bill Elliott, the Winston Cup points leader.

"This may break Bill's stride," said Earnhardt, who trails Elliott by 140 points with five races left. "I think this rainout will be crucial in the points race. It's certainly going to bunch things up for everyone. And I think that will change some attitudes."

"Plus, I'm looking for Bill to have some problems before the year is out," Earnhardt, the two-time defending champion said. "He's been Mr. Perfect for too long."

When pole runs begin today for the Oakwood Homes 500 at Charlotte Motor Speedway, a lot of eyes will be on Earnhardt, who has yet to win a pole this season. Twelve other drivers have won poles, and have earned spots in February's Busch Clash dash for $50,000 at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Sunday's race, scheduled to begin at 12:30 p.m., has a purse of $660,825. The race is now the Winston Cup season's 25th event, with the Holly Farms 400 rescheduled for Oct. 16, the circuit's 26th event of 29.

At stake today will be about $40,000 in time-trial bonuses, including $24,500 for the pole winner.

Race week promises to be especially busy, both on the off the speedway. Several drivers, team owners and sponsors have scheduled news conferences over the next several days to announce plans for the 1989 season.

The second day of Oakwood Homes 500 qualifying is set for Thursday.

Campbell Named Rookie Of Week

GREENSBORO (AP) — Jesse Campbell of North Carolina State was named the Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the week Tuesday by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

Campbell, a 6-0, 196-pound redshirt freshman from Vanceboro, N.C., returned an interception 64 yards for a touchdown in the Wolfpack's 14-6 victory over Georgia Tech. Campbell also recorded nine tackles and broke up one pass.

Earlier, a pair of Campbell's teammates, Ray Agnew and Scott Auer, were chosen as defensive players of the week.

Agnew, a 6-4, 270-pound junior, led a defensive line effort that limited the Yellow Jackets to only 53 yards rushing on 34 carries. In addition to being in on eight tackles, the Winston-Salem native twice seaked Georgia Tech quarterbacks for 10 yards in losses and tipped one pass as the Wolfpack improved to 3-1.

Yarborough To Be An Owner

CONCORD (AP) — Cale Yarborough, the only stock car driver to win three consecutive Winston Cup titles, is retiring as a stock car racer, but he will continue to field a Winston Cup entry as a car owner.

"It certain would be a lot tougher to walk away from the sport if I didn't have my own race team," Yarborough said Tuesday at a news conference at the Charlotte Motor Speedway. "But knowing that I can stay around and contribute leaves me excited."

Yarborough, 48, of Sardis, S.C., said he would retire at the end of the season.

"I just feel that it is time to do something else," he said. "I have been working toward this end for the last couple of years, and now seemed the right time to do it."

Yarborough, a 31-year veteran of stock car racing, has 83 Winston Cup victories, placing him fourth on the all-time list. He has won 50 superspeedway victories, also fourth on the all-time list.

He won Winston Cup titles in 1976, 1977 and 1978, and is the only Winston Cup champion to start and finish all races in a single season, which he did in 1977.

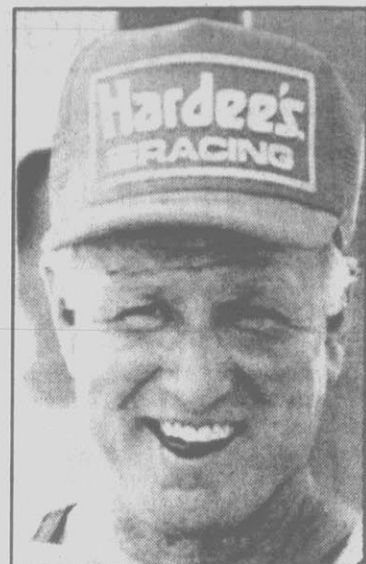

He has 48 superspeedway poles, second on the all-time list, and he won 14 Winston Cup poles in 1980, a modern day record for the most poles in one season. He is a five-time winner of the Southern 500.

In 557 Winston Cup races, Yarborough has won $4,991,066, placing him sixth on the all-time Winston Cup winnings list. He became the first Winston Cup driver to exceed $500,000 in a season's winnings twice, accomplishing that in 1978 and 1980.

Yarborough, 48, will race in Sunday's Oakwood Homes 500 at the Charlotte Motor Speedway, and in the Atlanta Journal 500 on Nov. 20 at the Atlanta International Speedway.

In 1986, Yarborough bought the former Race Hill Farm operation and formed Cale Yarborough Motorsports.

Hertford County Moves To No. 1

By David Droschak
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Undefeated Hertford County, a school formed earlier this year by the combination of rivals Ahsokie and Murfreesboro, has risen to the top of The Associated Press' 2-A high school football poll in North Carolina.

The Bears, 5-0, received eight first-place votes and 114 points from a statewide panel of 13 sportswriters to outdistance No. 2 Thomasville.

Wallace-Rose Hill had held the top 2-A spot the first half of the season, but fell to third after its 21-14 loss to East Carteret last Friday.

Meanwhile, Garner in 4-A, Burlington Cummings in 3-A and Murphy in 1-A continued to lead their respective classifications.

Defending 4-A champion Garner, 6-0 and winners of 21 straight, received eight first-place votes for 123 points. Richmond County, 5-0, is closing in on the Trojans, having received three first-place votes and 112 points.

Seven undefeated teams and newcomer Northern Nash, 4-1, make up the remainder of the 4-A poll. Fayetteville Smith is up one spot to No. 3, followed by Greensboro Page, Greenville Rose, Asheville Reynolds, McDowell County, Gastonia Ashbrook, West Mecklenburg and Northern Nash.

Kannapolis Brown was upset by Winston-Salem Reynolds and dropped out of the 4-A rankings.

Cummings, 5-0, was a solid choice for the top-ranked 3-A school, garnering 12 of 13 first-place votes for 129 points. Third-ranked Havelock, 5-0-1, received the remaining first-place vote.

Forest Hills pulled in at No. 2, followed by High Point Andrews, East Rutherford, East Lincoln, East Wake, Rockingham County, defending state champion Shelby and newcomer South Iredell.

Upstart Mount Airy, 5-0, was the only newcomer to crack the 2-A poll after a weekend of upsets.

East Duplin moved up four spots to No. 4, followed by Newton-Conover, Ayden-Grifton, Monroe, Clayton, Mount Airy and defending state champion Whiteville.

West Montgomery, 5-0 and having outscored its opponents 185-0, received one first-place vote, but was unranked with 15 points.

Two-time defending state champ Murphy was again voted the top 1-A school with 11 first-place votes.

St. Pauls and North Edgecombe, who received one first-place vote, cracked the top 10.

The rest of the 1-A poll consisted of Bath, Midway, Swain County, East Montgomery, Beaver Creek, Cherokee and North Moore.

Havelock Moves Up

Three teams held onto first place in their respective classifications in the Daily Reflector High School Football Rankings last week, but one only has a share of the lead.

Clayton and East Montgomery retained their lead in the 2-A and 1-A rankings, respectively. Richmond County has drawn even with Garner in the 4-A ranks, while Havelock has moved to the top in 3-A.

The Daily Reflector rankings rate teams on their success against the strength of their schedule. Points are awarded for each game a team wins, and for each game a team it defeats wins. Teams are rewarded for playing "up" against higher classification and winning, but are penalized for playing "down" and winning.

Teams playing and winning against the stronger schedule will be ranked higher than those playing a softer schedule and winning. As the season progresses, the rankings tend to be more accurate, too.

Richmond County, 5-0, has drawn even with last week's solo leader, Garner. Garner, 6-0, and Richmond both have 36 points after the sixth week of the season. Greenville Rose and Raleigh Millbrook are tied for third with 34 points.

Havelock, 5-0-1, finished the week with 31½ points to inch past Burlington Cummings for first place in the 3-A. Cummings, 5-0, is second with 30 points. Last week's leader, High Point Andrews, 4-1, fell to a tie for fourth with 24.

Clayton, 5-1, held onto first in the 2-A ranks with 28 points. Hertford County, 5-0, moved up from third to second and has a total of 25½ points. Ayden-Grifton remains fourth with 24 points.

In the 1-A ranks, East Montgomery, 5-1, remains first with 25 points. Murphy, tied for eighth a week ago, is now second with 19 points.

The top 10 in each classification:

4-A	Points
1. Richmond Co. (5-0)	36
2. Garner (6-0)	36
3. Rose (5-0)	34
3. Millbrook (5-1)	34

Oregon Also Proving To Be Force In West

By Herschel Nissenson
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

No, that's not a misprint in the Pac-10 standings.
 Yes, UCLA is 4-0 overall and ranked No. 2 in the nation.
 Yes, Southern Cal is 4-0 and ranked No. 3 in the nation.

Yes, the West Coast is drooling over the prospect of their Nov. 19 showdown.
 But wait, Oregon is 4-0, too, and ranked No. 18.
 This is not uncharted territory for the Ducks. They are in the Top Twenty for the second week in a row and they also made it once last year was 1965.

(No. 16) when a 34-27 victory over eventual Pac-10 champion Southern Cal gave them a 4-1 record before a four-game losing streak did them in en route to a 6-5 finish.
 But before that, you have to go back all the way to 1970 to find Oregon in The Associated Press rankings. And the last time the Ducks appeared in a final AP poll was 1965.

"Our followers and fans and students have kind of accepted that last year was not a fluke thing," says Coach Rick Brooks, who inherited a string of six straight losing seasons when he took over in 1977. "We established that we were a good football team a year ago. This team is for real and won't fade away."

Oregon's six-game winning streak is the longest in the Pac-10 and the school's longest since the 1964 team won its first six games after the 1963 club finished with four straight victories.

Not many people think the Ducks can make it 5-0. Saturday finds them a 15-point underdog at Southern Cal. Oregon isn't a household word when it comes to the Top Twenty and the Ducks probably will be without quarterback Bill Musgrave.

To The Sports Editor:

Are we, the football fans of ECU, so desperate in winning that we stoop so low and "boo" another human being?
 True, I love watching a winning team as much as the next person, but I also love watching a team that works hard both on and off the field. It was extremely disappointing at Saturday's game that some of our loyal fans "booed" Travis Hunter. Maybe you were "booing" the decision and maybe some of you were "booing" Travis. Either way, don't you think a junior in college may take that to heart. The same young man who led the Pirates to a victory over Tennessee Tech, was the total offensive leading 1987 with 1,478 total yard which is eighth in ECU history, broke the single game total offense record in 1987 with 313 yards against Virginia Tech, is 5th in career passing, third in career pass completions and only one of seven ECU quarterbacks to throw over 1,000 yards in a season.
 Have you stopped to think that maybe Charlie Libretto was tired and needed to take a breather? Have you ever tried to play two quarters of hard-hitting football and not need to take a break?
 I wonder how you would feel if your son were in Travis' shoes. I wonder how your son or daughter feels now — seeing their parent(s) "boo" another individual? How can you explain to a child that it was appropriate behavior? Is it? And I wonder how Travis will feel the next time he steps onto the football field.

Marybeth Althoff
 Greenville

To The Sports Editor:

Your "Hunter Hears Boos" report in Sunday's paper has to be the worst case of reporting I've ever seen.
 Sure, there were boos throughout the stadium as Travis entered the game. They weren't, however, directed at Hunter, but at what the fans consider an inept coaching staff.
 In retrospect the episode no doubt was counter-productive. Your report only made a bad situation worse.

Dennis W. Jones

To The Sports Editor:

We would like to express our feelings about the booing incident at the ECU-Southwestern Louisiana game last Saturday.
 We were thoroughly disgusted with those people who booed when Travis Hunter was sent into the game. We will not call them Pirate fans; they do not qualify. To be a true Pirate fan, you have to stick with the Pirates, all of them, through thick and thin. Just because the going is a little thin right now, you do not have the right to condemn the team in such a manner. In doing so, you lose your dignity, and we, the true Pirate fans, lose our respect for you. If you need to express your feelings to the coaches or players, there are other, more appropriate ways.
 The Pirates are human, and they all have the desire to succeed. We are behind you all the way, Pirates. Go, Team!

Tom and Jean Michel
 Greenville

Brooks pretty much summed it up last winter at the NCAA's annual College Football Preview in Kansas City when he spoke right after Coach of the Year Dick MacPherson of Syracuse got through entertaining the troops and quipped, "This is kind of like Twiggy following Dolly Parton."

Oregon hasn't exactly played cream-puffs to get to 4-0. The Ducks handed Washington State — a team that has trounced Illinois, Minnesota and Tennessee on the road — its only setback, 43-28, and beat Stanford by four points, just like Southern Cal did.

Brooks says Oregon's program has come "light years" from when he arrived.

Thrift Still Unsure Why He Was Fired

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Syd Thrift spent three years attempting to trade for a power hitter, but the Pittsburgh Pirates' owners felt he spent too much time trying to increase his own power base.

Thrift, the general manager who rebuilt one of baseball's sorriest franchises into a money-making pennant contender, is looking for a new job today after being fired by the team's board of directors.

Thrift's ouster wasn't unexpected — it was rumored as early as a month ago — but it went unexplained Tuesday during a series of Three Rivers Stadium news conferences.

The Pirates' owners wouldn't specify the reasons for the firing, and Thrift himself said he wasn't sure.

"If I were the owner of a ballclub and I was looking for a general manager, I'd recognize that I am a winner and know how to win — and not at all costs," Thrift said. "I know how to make it work ... I think I'd call me within 24 hours."

"I'd like to stay in baseball and I think I have a good track record here ... especially when you look at where we are and where we came from."

Baseball front office firings are frequent, but Thrift's was unusual because it was made by a team on the rise, not the decline. The Pirates' 85 victories this season were the most by the team this decade.

Thrift, 59, pulled off a successful power play last October that led to the resignation of former team president Malcolm "Mac" Prine. But despite landing a pay hike and a new contract, he wound up alienating the board members — including team president Carl Barger and chairman Douglas Danforth — who had supported him.

"I supported Syd a year ago and felt he should stay and be given a year so we could work out our differences and define his role," Danforth said. "We made some progress, but not enough. We spent the last two or three months deliberating over this and felt this was the best time to do it."

"He wasn't asking for a larger salary, but he did want more authority.

He wanted to be able to do what he thought was right," Danforth said.

"Syd had one way of doing things, and his way wasn't in the best interest of the Pirates' owners," Prine said.

"The chain of command starts at the top, not the middle," said former Pirates General Manager Joe L. Brown, a board member who recommended Thrift's November 1985 hiring.

Thrift's shrewd trades for Andy Van Slyke, Bobby Bonilla, Jim Gott, Jeff Robinson and Mike LaValliere and his emphasis on a strong farm system led to one of baseball's biggest comeback stories of the 1980s.

The Pirates, who lost 104 games and nearly $10 million while drawing 735,900 fans in 1985, finished second in the National League East this season and set a franchise attendance record of 1.8 million.

But Barger and Danforth apparently thought Thrift wasn't thrifty enough, even though he slashed player salaries from $10 million in 1985 to less than half that in 1987.

The Pirates' 1988 payroll of $6.5 million was the lowest in the NL, but Thrift apparently sent the wrong signal to the owners with his late-season acquisitions of high-salaried veterans Glenn Wilson, Dave LaPoint, Gary Redus and Ken Oberkell.

"Syd had one perception of what his job should be and we had another perception," Danforth said. "We can't be and don't want to be involved in the day-to-day decisions, but we do have the responsibility of oversight for the fiscal responsibility and long-range viability of the ballclub."

The Pirates' ownership consortium is unique in baseball. Most teams are owned by a wealthy individual, such as the New York Yankees' George Steinbrenner, or a corporation, such as the Anheuser-Busch-owned St. Louis Cardinals, but the Pirates are owned by a consortium of individuals and Pittsburgh-based businesses.

Thrift reportedly complained to other general managers last month that the owners were being too restrictive. And he hinted Tuesday that the Pirates may backslide if his successor is handcuffed by an unreasonable player procurement budget.

"I think this team can win ... a division championship, but you have to keep improving," he said. "You just can't stay where you are. If you think that you can stay complacent and boast about finishing second, next year you're going to get wiped out because every other team in this division is getting better."

"Our payroll was $6.4 or $6.5 million and everybody else's was about $12 million and that's a big difference ... It's frightening."

The firing of Pittsburgh's 1987 sports man of the year was not a popular one. Fans jammed radio talk show lines to complain, and some threatened to boycott the team or cancel their season tickets.

"I expect some negative reaction, sure, but I hope the fans will see that our ship must go on," Barger said. "Syd did some wonderful things for us, we're not denying that, we just hope that in the final analysis the fans see our side."

"The last thing in the world we want to do is alienate one fan ... If there was any way we could wave a magic wand and not have one fan upset with us, we would," he said.

The Pirates will honor the final year of Thrift's $200,000-a-year contract, which has an attendance bonus clause that netted him an additional $125,000 this year.

Larry Doughty, Thrift's top assistant, will serve as interim general manager until a successor is hired.

Conley Sweeps Pair In Volleyball Action

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley swept a pair of volleyball games from West Craven Tuesday.

Conley won the opening match 15-6, 15-8, then added a 15-2, 15-4 win in the second game.

Renee Tuten had seven consecutive points in the matches while Nikki Adams had four. Tracy Sumrell led the Valkyries in hits with 13 while Dee Barbee added seven.

Conley will entertain West Carteret and Havelock on Thursday, and a sweep of the matches by the Valkyries would clinch at least a tie for the Coastal Conference championship. Conley is now 7-1 in league play and 18-6 overall.

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton High School split a pair of Eastern Plains Conference volleyball matches it hosted Tuesday.

The Lady Chargers defeated Greene Central, 15-1, 15-2. Ayden-Grifton was led by Mary Simmons with 11 service points while Cheri Groet added six. Greene Central was led by Tameka Blackman with two.

South Lenoir, unbeaten in EPC play, downed the Chargers, 15-4, 15-12, in their match. Keisha Jones and Janine White each had four service points to lead Ayden-Grifton. South Lenoir was led by Kelly Thompson with 15 and Susan Rigby with six.

Ayden-Grifton returns to action on Thursday, hosting Pamlico.

NP-FC-PC

BETHEL — North Pitt swept a pair of volleyball games from Farmville Central and Pamlico County Tuesday in Eastern Plains Conference action.

North Pitt won its opening match with Farmville, 15-6, 15-4. Angie House led North Pitt's service with eight while Donna Leggett had seven and Melissa Harrington and Lori Howard each had six. Sharon Ross had five hits and Leggett had four. Tamrita Johnson led in assists with 12.

Against Pamlico, North Pitt took 15-5 and 15-6 wins. Leggett led service with 14 while Ross had 12 hits and Amy Heath had eight. Tracy Nichols led assists with 19.

Pamlico then downed Farmville, 16-14, 15-10. F. Barrett led Farmville's service with 12 while Lisa Armstrong had seven to pace Pamlico.

North Pitt is now 8-8 overall and 8-0 in league play and travels to unbeaten South Lenoir on Thursday to decide the league championship.

Mets Were Expecting Comeback

The Associated Press

Strawberry, McReynolds celebrate start of Met comeback.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The New York Mets got the feeling in the top of the ninth inning. It was going to be another comeback.

Mets rookie Gregg Jefferies got his third single of the night against the hottest pitcher in baseball, Orel Hershiser, to open the inning. After an infield out moved Jefferies to second, Darryl Strawberry doubled and Jefferies scored the first run allowed by Hershiser since Aug. 30.

The Mets still trailed 2-1 in the opener of the National League playoffs Tuesday night, but Hershiser was gone.

New York went on to beat his replacement, Jay Howell, 3-2 on Gary Carter's bloop two-out double.

Strawberry said Jefferies' ninth-inning hit lifted the Mets' spirits.

"The feeling was that we were going to score, that we were going to win the ballgame," Strawberry said. "That's exactly what we did. We got something going and got a couple of key hits."

Hershiser had given up only six hits when he faced Strawberry for the fourth time. Strawberry, 0-for-3 at that point, fouled off several pitches before sending a 2-2 pitch to the alley in right-center.

The hits by Jefferies and Strawberry ignited another post-season comeback by New York. The Mets came back from a three-run, ninth-inning deficit in Game 6 of the 1986 playoffs against Houston and rallied from a two-run deficit in the 10th inning of World Series Game 6 against Boston.

"The ninth inning for us was a little bit of a confidence builder," Strawberry said. "If we continue to battle we will make things happen. What we did tonight reminds me of how the Mets played all year. It shows you what type of ballclub we have."

"Nineteen eighty-eight has been that kind of a year," Mets manager Davey Johnson said. "We've been coming from behind so many times that you just keep waiting for that kind of thing to happen."

"When Darryl hit the double, I felt really good about that. It's what we've done all year long."

Jefferies, in the major leagues for a little more than a month, had three solid hits in four at-bats against Hershiser. Jefferies was so excited that he screamed himself hoarse in the ninth.

"This team never quits," said Jefferies, who batted .321 in the final five weeks. "With all these comeback wins, these guys have never quit. It was a good feeling that we came back in that last inning. It was a great game and both teams played well. I lost my voice in the ninth inning. It was fun."

Strawberry, a Southern California native, was quoted in Tuesday's editions of the Los Angeles Times as saying he wanted to play in Los Angeles someday. Many of the 55,582 fans in Dodger Stadium taunted Strawberry with a chant he first heard in Boston's Fenway Park during the 1986 World Series — "Daaarrry, Daaarrry."

To Strawberry, that was fun. "It was great. You've got to love it," he said. "That's the name of the game."

Carter admitted he thought his effort might come up short. Dodgers center fielder John Shelby made a dive for the game-winning hit, but failed to come up with it, and the ball dribbled short way away.

"I kind of thought he would make the catch, as it's been that kind of year for me," Carter said. "It's nice to get off to a great start."

The Mets won 10 of 11 games from the Dodgers during the regular season, but Carter wasn't ready to predict a playoff sweep.

"By no means," he said. "We have a long way to go. Tonight we had two outs and two strikes in the ninth. Anything can happen. I'm just thankful we won Game One."

Carter's broken-bat hit came on a 0-2 pitch and scored Strawberry from second base and Kevin McReynolds from first.

Randy Myers retired the Dodgers in order in the bottom of the ninth to complete the comeback.

Nobody second-guessed Shelby's play.

"I felt it hit my glove and I missed it," Shelby said. "I knew he didn't hit it hard. If I think I can catch the ball I'm going to dive for it. When he hit it I thought I had a good chance, so I dove."

By the time Shelby recovered and threw home, McReynolds was just strides from the plate. He banged into catcher Mike Scioscia a second before the ball arrived.

Shelby's throw home "kind of died a little bit," Scioscia said. "I thought it had more on it at first. It was a little off-line. I had already committed myself when McReynolds hit me."

Hershiser completed the regular season with a record 59 consecutive scoreless innings, then tacked on eight more Tuesday night.

"You couldn't pitch a much better ballgame than Orel pitched tonight," Scioscia said. "I think he got a little tired at the end."

And Hershiser, 23-8 during the regular season with a 2.26 earned-run average, didn't second-guess Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda for taking him out. "It was the right move for sure. You go to the bullpen," Hershiser said. "I wasn't the right guy for the situation."

"We just were unfortunate there in the ninth that Gary didn't hit the ball better. We were one strike away. Gary hit a low curveball and broke his bat. John (Shelby) gave a great effort."

Mets co-captain Keith Hernandez said he was amazed Hershiser threw eight shutout innings. He didn't think Hershiser was throwing his best.

"I've seen Orel with better stuff," Hernandez said. "That's the sign of an outstanding pitcher. He did not have his 'A' stuff but he threw eight innings of goose eggs."

Jefferies Learn What Pressure Is

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New York Mets rookie third baseman Gregg Jefferies says he didn't know what major league pressure was until Game 1 of the National League playoffs.

The Mets called Jefferies up from Class AAA Tidewater on Aug. 27, and he moved right into the lineup and hit .321 with six homers and 17 runs batted in.

By the time Jefferies got to the Mets, they already had a comfortable lead over Pittsburgh in the NL East and his hitting was just icing to the Mets' playoff cake.

On Tuesday, Jefferies showed why Mets manager Davey Johnson made him the club's third baseman in the playoffs.

He went 3-for-4 against Orel Hershiser and sparked a three-run rally in the ninth inning as the Mets beat the Dodgers 3-2 to take the early advantage in the best-of-seven series.

"This team hasn't allowed me to feel a lot of pressure," the 21-year-old Jefferies said. "So many people contribute and I believed that if I got on in the ninth, I would come around.

If it took me to start something, that's great because in my mind, that's my role. I was nervous, but I don't feel a lot of pressure."

After Jefferies singled, he moved to second on a groundout and scored the first run of the inning on Darryl Strawberry's double. Jay Howell replaced Hershiser and walked Kevin McReynolds before striking out Howard Johnson. Gary Carter put the Mets ahead with a two-run, bloop double.

"I was glad I was in that situation," Jefferies said. "I can't say I expected to get a hit, but I had been one of our guys hitting the ball pretty well tonight. I had to make sure I didn't try and pull anything."

Mets Top Dodgers...

come back," Mets manager Davey Johnson said. "I've always felt that for Los Angeles to change the momentum which they needed, they had to win Game One. Now, there's more pressure on LA to win."

The Mets finished the season by winning 14 of their last 17 games and 29 of their final 37. They also owned the Dodgers, beating them 10 times against just one loss.

"As far as I'm concerned, we're 0-1," Marshall said. "We're not concerned about the other 11 games."

Howell felt the pitch to Carter was a good one.

"I made the pitch I thought would win it for us and I came up empty," Howell said. "I've got to give the guy (Carter) credit. It was a pitch down and away. I did what I wanted to do with it."

Carter said he didn't believe the ball would fall in.

"He (Shelby) was playing pretty deep, and when he came in and got his glove on it, I thought he made a spectacular play on it," Carter said. "It's been that kind of a year for me."

Carter entered the season with a .269 lifetime batting average, but hit only .242 with 11 homers and 46 runs batted in. Both the homer and RBI totals were his lowest since 1976. He went two months in search of his 300th career homer, finally getting it on Aug. 11 in Chicago's Wrigley Field.

Shelby didn't second-guess himself on the decisive play.

"I felt it hit my glove and I missed it," he said. "I knew he didn't hit it hard. If I think I can catch the ball I'm going to dive for it. When he hit it I thought I had a good chance, so I dove. I made the best play that I could. I tried to catch it. I can live with it."

"It was a great try," said Jefferies, who had three hits in his first major league postseason game. "If you make the catch, then it's a great catch. If not, you'll get second-guessed. It was a great try, that's all you can do."

Dwight Gooden pitched the first seven innings for the Mets, allowing only four hits and one walk while striking out 10.

"That's probably the hardest I've ever seen him throw," said Dodgers second baseman Steve Sax, who scored the first Los Angeles run when he singled, stole second, went to third on an infield out and scored on Marshall's hit.

It remained 1-0 until Mike Scioscia led off the seventh with a double down the right field line, went to third on an infield out and scored on Griffin's line drive into right over a drawn-in infield.

Griffin, a 199 hitter, ironically had suffered a broken wrist when he was hit by a Gooden fastball on May 21.

Hershiser said he can make as many as three starts in the series. Right now, he can only hope it goes that far.

Shelby Catch...

"I go out and try to play the same game that I play during the season," he said. "I didn't do anything differently. If I think I can catch the ball, I'm going to dive for it. If I don't, I just have to play it safe and let it drop in."

"It felt like it hit off my glove when I was on my way to the ground," Shelby said. "When he hit it, I thought I had a good chance for it. That's why I dove. He didn't hit it hard, but I wasn't fooled by it. If I was fooled, I would have run back on it."

Marshall defended his teammate's actions on the do-or-die attempt.

"You have to be aggressive from the get-go," Marshall said. "I would have done the same thing. In fact, I didn't think he was going to get that close to it. He made a great try. I've seen John make that play before. You don't think about it. You just react. And he came very close to making a great catch."

"I think it's pretty obvious he had a chance to catch it, because it touched his glove," Gibson said. "In that situation, when you have a guy at first who's the go-ahead run, you're trying not to let him score, so you try to play a little deeper and try to cut the ball off. But you've got to give Carter credit. He went out and got it, broke his bat. It was nicely placed."

It was Carter who had kept the Mets alive in the 1986 World Series with a two-out, ninth-inning single in Game 6. Down to their last strike, the Mets rallied to take the final two games of the Series. This year's postseason has them picking up right where they left off two years ago.

"It has been that kind of year," Davey Johnson said. "We've been coming from behind so many times that you just keep waiting for that kind of thing to happen."

Colts Trade Solt To Eagles

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis Colts traded guard Ron Solt to the Philadelphia Eagles Tuesday for future draft picks, including a No. 1 choice next year.

Solt last week signed a new five-year, $2.6-million contract with the Colts after a lengthy holdout. He was critical of Colts owner Robert Irsay when he signed.

Kentucky Board Set To Meet

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky Board of Trustees has called a special meeting for Sunday to discuss the ongoing investigation of the school's basketball program by the NCAA, and possibly the eligibility of a current player, according to reports.

Roselle, who was in Washington on Tuesday, said through university spokesman Bernie Vonderheide that he asked McCowan to call the meeting so he could update the board on the investigation.

Board member Cap Hershey told WLEX-TV in Lexington that Kentucky President David Roselle had kept the board in the dark about developments in the investigation. Hershey said the board wants to examine Roselle's actions up to this point in the year-long investigation.

WKYT-TV in Lexington reported Tuesday night that the eligibility of one of Kentucky's players would be discussed at the meeting.

Board chairman Robert McCowan said he called the 2 p.m. EDT meeting after consulting with Roselle.

The television station, quoting unnamed sources, did not identify the current player.

McCowan told The Courier-Journal there had been numerous rumors recently, including ones concerning actions UK may take on the eligibility of standout guard Eric Manuel, after allegations that he allegedly cheated on his college entrance exam in June 1987.

The NCAA began investigating the program in April after a Los Angeles newspaper revealed that an Emery Worldwide Air Freight package from assistant basketball coach Dwane Casey to a recruit's father came open in transit, revealing $1,000.

That is the only infraction the NCAA has charged the school with thus far, but officials were told in July that about 10 other allegations were forthcoming.

Published reports have since focused on the ACT exam Manuel took on June 13, 1987, at Lafayette High School. He easily passed it, after having failed twice previously to pass another college entrance exam, the SAT, in his home state of Georgia.

am, the SAT, in his home state of Georgia.

Robert Stolz Jr., Manuel's lawyer, said Tuesday night that he was not aware that any hearing had been scheduled on the test issue. But Stolz added that he has had "various discussions" with UK investigators "about various procedures that might take place."

UK Athletics Director Cliff Hagan acknowledged that the Manuel issue must be resolved soon because the university must certify Manuel's eligibility before the 1988-89 season begins on Nov. 19.

McCowan said he assumed that Sunday's meeting would be closed to the public and press.

Stawberry Comes Through In End

Provides A Key Hit In Mets' 3-2 Win Over L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Darryl Strawberry lived up to his word and did his best to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League playoffs.

trying my best to beat the Dodgers," Strawberry said before the game.

Strawberry was quoted Tuesday as saying he wanted to return home and play for the Los Angeles Dodgers in a couple of years.

"I grew up here and if things worked out I would like to play here someday. But right now I'm a New York Met and I'll be doing everything to help them win the pen-

Strawberry will become a free agent after the 1990 season, the same year close friend Eric Davis of Cincinnati is eligible.

nant and World Series."

"Eric in center, me in right and Kirk Gibson in left. The Dodgers would have a dynasty for years to come," Strawberry told the Los Angeles Times.

"It's a fantasy," Carter said. "I had that fantasy when I first started to play."

The Mets trailed 2-0 in Game 1 heading into the ninth inning against Orel Hershiser, who finished the regular season with 59 consecutive scoreless innings.

"I thought about it because I watched the Dodgers as a kid and grew up thinking I'd be here. And I think every kid who grows up here following and watching the Dodgers has, at one time or another, dreamed of playing for them."

Rookie Gregg Jefferies led off the ninth with a single, moved to second on a grounder and scored on Strawberry's double, the first run against Hershiser in 68 innings.

Jay Howell replaced Hershiser and yielded a walk to Kevin McReynolds and Gary Carter's two-strike, two-out bloop double to score two runs and give the Mets a 3-2 victory Tuesday.

"I trained for 13 years for the Olympics to watch my hard work disappear in a second," he said Tuesday, reading from a prepared statement. "I have never ever knowingly taken illegal drugs, and I would never embarrass my family, my friends, my country and the kids who love me."

Strawberry, 26, was a standout at Los Angeles' Crenshaw High School and was the Mets' No. 1 pick in the 1980 June free agent draft.

Although the 26-year-old, Jamaican-born sprinter said he plans to come back "still a champion and a winner at the next Olympics," Canadian sports officials say it is unlikely he would be allowed back on a national team. A full government investigation of the events is expected.

Since he came up to the majors in 1983, Strawberry has had periods of ups and downs and has often expressed a hope to someday play in Los Angeles.

A small group of demonstrators stood outside the Sutton Place Hotel where Johnson scheduled his appearance, some carrying placards in his support and others urging him to admit guilt and speak out against drugs.

"Everybody wants to play in their hometown," Strawberry said. "I have two years remaining on my contract and I will continue to play my heart out for New York."

Johnson declined to answer reporters' questions, but his lawyer, Ed Futerman, said the athlete "feels confused, very confused. He's trying to put the pieces together."

Mets manager Davey Johnson said he has heard the talk before.

The only previous comments from Johnson since he was stripped of the medal in Seoul, South Korea, were in an interview published by the Toronto Sun on Saturday and another allegedly with West Germany's Stern magazine that Futerman denied took place.

"Players say a lot of things and it's only natural to want to play close to home," Johnson said. "The only thing I wonder about is why he said it now."

The lawyer, serving as Johnson's spokesman, also denied rumors that the athlete would play football professionally in Canada or the United States if banned from track.

Strawberry, however, said he made the comments three weeks ago in New York and they just popped up again.

"His intention is to continue training," Futerman said.

Strawberry, who hit 39 homers and drove in 101 runs this season, said he doesn't think he's always appreciated in New York.

Johnson's every move has been watched intensely since his return from Seoul, and he asked the news media for "a favor ... My family and I need some time and space. Please, please, grant us that."

"I just want to go where 35 homers are appreciated, where I don't have the pressure of always living up to someone else's expectations, where if I hit 30 homers, the fans and media aren't asking why I didn't hit 40," Strawberry said.

Meanwhile, his coach, Charlie Francis, also separately issued his first statement Tuesday and said the drug test results at the Olympics could have come from sabotage.

David Cone, who will start Game 2 tonight for the Mets, said he was surprised Strawberry repeated his desire just before the playoffs started.

"Such a test result defies all logic and, in my opinion, can only be explained by a deliberate manipulation of the testing process," Francis said. The four-paragraph statement was released by his lawyer.

"He has the right to say whatever he wants, but I question the timing of the statement," Cone said. "It won't mean anything in the playoffs though and if it did happen it won't be for a while yet anyway."

"I won a gold medal and then had to give it back because they said I tested positive," Johnson said in his statement. "When I was a kid I never took drugs. People who knew me in Jamaica and people who know me here — know I wouldn't take drugs."

Strawberry will earn $1.4 million next season, and $1.8 million if the Mets pick up his option in 1990.

"For now, there's nothing more

"We must play with emotion and execute. We had scoring opportunities against Michigan and N.C. State and couldn't capitalize. Saturday, we must cash in on those opportunities," he said.

"The offensive line has good, experienced talent," Dooley said. "In fact, they have the most experienced line in the conference. Pat Crowley is one of the nation's best and Creighton Incorminias has been around for 100 years."

"No matter what, I'll go forward from here," Hershiser said. "I threw the ball better in the later innings. We're going to come back and do our best."

For six weeks, Hershiser has given the Dodgers his best and more.

Shutout Eludes Ace

No 9th Inning Shutout For Hershiser

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Orel Hershiser didn't get the shutout inning he needed most.

"I was fortunate early in the game, and they were fortunate later in the game. I'm proud of what I did. I felt like I did a good job."

Hershiser entered Game 1 of the National League playoffs against the New York Mets on Tuesday with a record 59 consecutive scoreless innings.

After Strawberry's double, Jay Howell relieved and walked Kevin McReynolds. Howard Johnson struck out, but Gary Carter blooped a two-run double to center field on a two-strike pitch to give the Mets the victory.

He had not allowed a run since Aug. 30, when the Montreal Expos scored in the fifth inning.

Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda said he thought Hershiser was tiring.

After that, he threw five straight shutouts and 10 scoreless innings against San Diego on Sept. 28 to surpass Don Drysdale's 20-year record of 58.

"He hung a couple of curves to Strawberry and Jefferies and Hernandez hit the ball hard, too," Lasorda said.

When the players were introduced before the start of the game, Hershiser was given an ovation the likes of a Drysdale or Sandy Koufax.

Hershiser didn't argue with Lasorda's move but didn't admit to being tired, either.

Before the game, Hershiser said he was going to pitch against the Mets like it was just another game and he looked like he was going to pitch another shutout.

"You don't throw 59 zeroes if you're tired," Hershiser said. "If I felt tired I would have been giving up runs."

The Dodgers scratched out a run in the first inning against Dwight Gooden and then it became the pitcher's duel everyone expected.

"Nineteen eighty-eight has been that kind of year," Mets manager Davey Johnson said. "We've been coming from behind so many times that you just keep waiting for that kind of thing to happen."

In the third inning, Gary Carter was on second with two outs but held at third on Mookie Wilson's hard-hit single to right. But Gregg Jefferies grounded back to the mound to end the inning.

For 67 innings, nothing happened with Hershiser on the mound. He just couldn't get the one he needed most.

Hershiser then proceeded to throw more zeroes until the ninth.

Strawberry, 26, was a standout at Los Angeles' Crenshaw High School and was the Mets' No. 1 pick in the 1980 June free agent draft.

He had a 2-0 lead when Jefferies led off with a single, moved to third on a grounder and scored on Darryl Strawberry's double.

Since he came up to the majors in 1983, Strawberry has had periods of ups and downs and has often expressed a hope to someday play in Los Angeles.

"No matter what, I'll go forward from here," Hershiser said. "I threw the ball better in the later innings. We're going to come back and do our best."

"Everybody wants to play in their hometown," Strawberry said. "I have two years remaining on my contract and I will continue to play my heart out for New York."

For six weeks, Hershiser has given the Dodgers his best and more.

Mets manager Davey Johnson said he has heard the talk before.

Dooley Wary Of Heels

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Wake Forest coach Bill Dooley says North Carolina's poor start is more a result of the Tar Heels' schedule than talent.

Dooley says the Heels strengths are in their offensive line and defensive secondary.

"North Carolina is 0-4 but look at who they've played," Dooley said Tuesday at his weekly news conference. "Three of their opponents have been three of the nation's best teams. South Carolina and Auburn are undefeated and Oklahoma has just one loss."

"The offensive line has good, experienced talent," Dooley said. "In fact, they have the most experienced line in the conference. Pat Crowley is one of the nation's best and Creighton Incorminias has been around for 100 years."

"I know North Carolina is disappointed in going 0-4, but after looking at these opponents you can understand their record. North Carolina is capable. They have good material."

"Perhaps the greatest compliment that I can give Willie is that when my boys grow up to be men ... they will be like Willie Stargell." — Former teammate Phil Garner, on Willie Stargell who became the 200th player enshrined in baseball's Hall of Fame.

The Demon Deacons, 2-2 and 0-1 in the Atlantic Coast Conference, host North Carolina on Saturday at 7 p.m. The game is the conference opener for the Tar Heels.

Dooley says the Heels strengths are in their offensive line and defensive secondary.

For Wake Forest to snap its two-game losing streak, Dooley said his

Johnson Denies Using Steroids

TORONTO (AP) — Ben Johnson, speaking publicly for the first time since losing his Olympic gold medal in the 100-meter dash after testing positive for steroids, denied he used drugs and pledged to be back for the 1992 games.

that I can tell you — because I just don't know," the sprinter said.

"I trained for 13 years for the Olympics to watch my hard work disappear in a second," he said Tuesday, reading from a prepared statement. "I have never ever knowingly taken illegal drugs, and I would never embarrass my family, my friends, my country and the kids who love me."

Futerman said he and his client endorse an investigation to determine exactly what happened. "We're not denying the presence of steroids," he said. "We're not sure; we want to find out."

Although the 26-year-old, Jamaican-born sprinter said he plans to come back "still a champion and a winner at the next Olympics," Canadian sports officials say it is unlikely he would be allowed back on a national team. A full government investigation of the events is expected.

He said the investigation should focus on whether the athlete ever knowingly took drugs.

Johnson declined to answer reporters' questions, but his lawyer, Ed Futerman, said the athlete "feels confused, very confused. He's trying to put the pieces together."

Stern's interview quoted the athlete as screaming, "I'll pay back whoever did this to me." Futerman said, however, "I can only tell you that Ben has assured me that he never gave that interview last week."

The only previous comments from Johnson since he was stripped of the medal in Seoul, South Korea, were in an interview published by the Toronto Sun on Saturday and another allegedly with West Germany's Stern magazine that Futerman denied took place.

"The Doping Game," the magazine headlined its front cover in the issue, published three days ahead of its normal Thursday distribution date.

Johnson's every move has been watched intensely since his return from Seoul, and he asked the news media for "a favor ... My family and I need some time and space. Please, please, grant us that."

Johnson also was quoted as saying, "I'm finished. I'll probably never run the 100-meter again."

His positive result for steroids caused him to lose the gold medal and the world record of 9.79 seconds he set at the Olympics. The International Amateur Athletic Federation also suspended him for two years.

Johnson told the Toronto Sun in the interview published last weekend that Stern offered him $500,000 for an exclusive interview, but he turned it down to inform the Canadian public through domestic news outlets.

Some of Canada's shock over the event was alleviated by other medal winner in the games' closing days, allowing victorious athletes like boxing gold-winner Lennox Lewis to return with at least part of the spotlight.

Jim Proudfoot, a columnist writing an "Olympic post-mortem" for the Toronto Star on Monday, said: "The Ben Johnson Games were consigned to history yesterday, and for Canadians, the end couldn't come quickly enough. All in all, this had been a sorry experience."

Hornets Begin Training Camp

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Fifteen players showed up for the Charlotte Hornets' training camp Tuesday, with two more expected to join the turnout today as preparations for the team's first NBA season get under way.

Among those absent was Jeff Moore, Charlotte's third-round draft pick. Moore, whose weight ballooned to 270 pounds during the summer, apparently has signed with a European team, according to assistant coach Gene Little.

Free agent Kenny Fields missed the beginning of camp to be with his son, who underwent surgery.

Also failing to show was 6-foot-10 Brian Rowsom of North Carolina-Wilmington.

Congress Again Allows Clean Air Bill To Die

By David Goeller
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A Congress split by economic and regional differences has proven again that cleaning up air pollution from vehicle tailpipes and industrial smokestacks remains the nation's toughest environmental problem.

Only once since the Clean Air Act was enacted in 1970 has Congress been able to agree on major amendments to strengthen the basic law, and that occurred 11 years ago.

Two years ago, environmentalists in the House and Senate renewed the campaign to escalate the battle against urban smog, acid rain caused by coal-burning factories and power plants and toxic fumes from chemicals.

On Tuesday, they tossed in the towel, vowing to try again next year.

"There has not been sufficient willingness to compromise," said Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, who spent much of 1988 trying to put together a consensus on a clean air bill. "As a result, we will do nothing."

Mitchell, citing this summer's smog alerts around the country, said the technology exists to control air pollution. "All we lack is the political will to do so."

Among those he cited as resisting compromise were the environmental lobby and the two behemoths that would be most affected by such legislation: electric utilities and the auto industry, domestic and foreign.

Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., a veteran of clean air wars, pointed his finger at Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., who held the Environment Committee's bill off the floor for 11 months while he pushed for concessions for West Virginia's coal.

The bill's death left the nation with no new tools to combat the ozone and carbon monoxide — chiefly from vehicle emissions — that has grown to the point that upwards of 100 urban areas are violating air quality standards designed to protect human health.

Also left in the dust was any new plan to deal with toxic fumes from chemical plants and the acid-rain chemicals produced by coal-burning power plants and factories.

Last month, Mitchell and Richard Trumka, president of the United Mine Workers union, worked out an acid rain plan that favored West Virginia's high sulfur coal industry and mandated the use of expensive stack gas scrubbers by about two dozen large utilities.

The proposal infuriated senators from Western states with cleaner burning, low sulphur coal. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., threatened to fil-buster. The environmental lobby's Clean Air Coalition also criticized the plan, saying that no bill was better than a weak one.

Southern lawmakers were unhappy because the proposal would have forced some of their power plants to install scrubbers to solve what is generally seen in the Capitol as a problem of Midwest utilities, polluting the Northeast.

For its part, the utilities' lobby, the Edison Electric Institute, consistently said "no" to acid rain controls. It cited scientific disagreements over the problem and said controls should await development of clean-coal technology, which is expected to be cheaper than scrubbers.

Byrd issued a statement saying he was "disappointed that a compromise on acid rain could not be reached this year that would both enhance the environment and protect the economies of coal-producing states like West Virginia. ... I will continue to work to resolve this issue."

The fight over acid rain was just part of the complicated closed-door negotiations over the clean air bill.

Another major factor in its demise was a proposal to help combat urban pollution by forcing reluctant automakers to produce vehicles with cleaner exhaust emissions.

A key player in this area was Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., who represents an automaking district and who chairs the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

Dingell and clean-exhaust advocate Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., were unable to agree on new tailpipe standards, thus paralyzing the committee and keeping a clean air bill off the House floor.

Dingell and Waxman held no serious negotiations after August, taking the position that the Senate should solve its acid rain problems, and send a clean air plan to the House.

Mitchell and Dingell had even discussed a scenario under which the Senate would pass the basic acid rain language, the House would handle the urban pollution provisions and, the two bodies would accept each other's product.

Matters never got to this point. Stafford said he and some other pro-environment senators could have taken the Mitchell-Trumka plan had Byrd agreed to support the anti-smog and toxic chemicals sections.

Byrd, however, declined to make this commitment, leaving supporters of a strong bill unwilling to leave the question of stricter tailpipe emissions to chance and eventual negotiations with Dingell.

Richard Ayres, chairman of the Clean Air Coalition, said the environmental lobby was unwilling to support the Mitchell-Trumka plan because "we can't recommend an acid rain program unless it is good."

Chelsea Weighs BU Offer To Run Schools Teachers Don't Like The Idea

By Lee Mitgang
AP EDUCATION WRITER

CHELSEA, Mass. — Like the four other schools in this most troubled district in Massachusetts, Burke Elementary is awaiting its messiah. If the savior arrives this fall, it won't be a moment too soon.

Children in this overcrowded, 107-year-old, red brick and wood school eat at their desks. There is no cafeteria. The playground is unsafe because slate slides off the roof. The wooden stairs are a blatant fire hazard. What passes for an auditorium contains what passes for a library and what passes for a speech therapy room.

Test scores, graduation rates and teacher salaries all rank among the worst in the state. This impoverished district on Boston Harbor that mixes Hispanic and Southeast Asian immigrants with working-class whites spends just $2,600 per pupil. That's about $1,600 less than the national average and only $200 more than Arkansas, the lowest spending state.

Fifty-nine percent of the district's 3,300 schoolchildren come from families where English is a second language, if spoken at all, says Superintendent Frank Herlihy.

Chelsea hasn't built a new school since 1923, and buildings like Burke are completely inadequate in 1988.

Five miles away, John Silber, sharp-tongued president of Boston University, says he can change all that — and gain prestige for his school in the bargain. He has offered to manage the Chelsea school district for 10 years and transform it into a model for urban school renewal.

If Silber has his way, his university would administer and finance a sort of Marshall Plan for Chelsea schools. Mothers and pregnant teens would be counseled on nutrition and child rearing. Curricula would be revamped. New schools would be built, old ones renovated. Learning plans would be tailored to individual students. There would be after-school programs for all ages.

If Silber achieves even a fraction of this, it would be a national first: a private university governing a public school system, a full-scale social experiment aimed at transforming the fortunes of an entire downtrodden community from birth to old age.

"I don't think it's extraneous to the life of a university to be caught serving the community," Silber said in an interview. "We'll be making good on a lot of palaver, a lot of talk that comes out of Washington. Actions continue to speak louder than words."

Many in Chelsea are thrilled at the prospect of a helping hand. But others, especially teachers, are bitter and mistrustful because, they say, university officials only recently saw fit to include them in discussions.

Still others question whether it's right for a city to grant control of its schools to a private body, no matter how well-intentioned.

"I don't think the school committee should turn over its authority to any private institution. Isn't that what democracy is about?" said Elizabeth McBride, a member of the Chelsea school committee.

In other words, big questions remain before the BU-Chelsea contract is a done deal. Where is the money coming from for BU's grandiose reform plan? Who would ultimately be in charge?

"Concretely and specifically, nothing has been settled. There is no contract between Chelsea and BU," said Paul Devlin, head of the

EDITOR'S NOTE — Can a private university save a failing urban school district? Boston University has offered to try to do just that for Chelsea, Mass., perhaps that state's worst school system, within a decade. The proposal has raised hopes in this immigrant-rich city, but some question the wisdom of surrendering control of public schools to a private institution.

Massachusetts Federation of Teachers.

It began three years ago when 30-year veteran school committeeman Andrew P. Quigley independently approached Silber with the idea of managing Chelsea's schools. The university agreed to produce a comprehensive audit of the schools and develop a plan to revive the system.

The district's biggest problem has always been money, but 1980's statewide tax-limiting Proposition 2½ hit Chelsea hard. Funds for supplies were cut in half, and music, art, physical education and counseling staff were laid off.

Said Ed Greenberg, a 73-year-old retiree and civic leader who recently attended his 55th Chelsea High School reunion: "The community just doesn't have the money or the expertise to turn the schools around. This has been going on for 30 years now. Things are bad. Things are bad."

In a 231-page proposal issued last summer, BU offered a messianic vision of Chelsea schools 10 years from now, with BU at the helm:

— Chelsea schools would boast "Family Learning Centers" addressing the education, health and nutrition needs of parents and children alike, from birth to adulthood.

— Curricula from kindergarten through 12th grade would be overhauled the first year, and teachers would design individual learning plans for students.

— Community service would be a graduation requirement. Working with the city health department, students, parents and city leaders would end Chelsea's drug problems.

— Teacher pay, currently lowest in the state at $18,000-to-$30,000, would be made competitive, with incentive pay and added responsibilities for the best teachers.

By the fifth year, BU projects a 20 percent improvement in third-grade reading, writing and math test scores. The dropout rate will be down to 10 percent from the current 15 percent. The elementary schools will be freshly renovated, a new high school ready for students.

Currently, the BU-Chelsea relationship is defined by a set of resolutions adopted by the school committee July 26, in essence an agreement committing both sides to work in good faith toward a final contract.

The key difference between the town and the university lies in who would run the schools. The plan the university submitted in June proposed setting up a five-member management committee with BU holding a 3-2 majority. The Chelsea school committee countered with a proposal that the management team consist of the existing seven-member school committee and three BU representatives.

Peter R. Greer, who this summer became dean of BU's school of education, proposed a compromise Sept. 21, giving the Chelsea school committee power to override BU's management decisions with a two-thirds vote. He also suggested an advisory council be set up with parents, teachers and townspeople passing along concerns to the university managers.

If Chelsea endorses that plan, the Legislature must still approve a transfer of power from the community to the university; chances are considered good.

Beyond those uncertainties is a residue of resentment among some school committeemen and classroom teachers who contend that, until very recently, the university had dealt with them high-handedly.

"When the BU people first came in here, it felt like a grand jury, with rapid-fire questions," said Richard Denning, principal of Prattville School, another of Chelsea's antiquated elementary schools. "BU is going to find that it's more difficult than it appears. From my point of view, we need help, but not a takeover."

"The only time I've seen BU people was a 15-second walk through my classroom," said Christine Siewko, a veteran first-grade teacher at Burke.

"I feel if they're going to do a decent job there, they are going to need teacher input."

"BU is biting off more than it realizes," said Phyllis Nazaro, the lead teacher of special education at Chelsea High School. "We have PTA meetings and only four or five parents show up. We know the problems."

Even Greer, who won high marks as school superintendent in Portland, Maine, in 1979-86 and served as a federal undersecretary of education for two years before joining BU, acknowledges the university could have better explained its plans.

Greer has promised to involve teachers and parents more in discussions, and both sides say he's already soothed some of the hurt feelings.

Still, these questions remain: — Where is the money coming from?

Silber says he's confident he can get the Legislature and private foundations to donate the $50 million he estimates is needed to build new schools and renovate existing ones, and an additional $2 million or so a

Reagan's Textile Veto Sustained Bill Sponsors Eye Another Fight Next Year

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Supporters of a bill to impose tougher restrictions on textile imports, after failing to override President Reagan's veto, promise to renew their efforts when Congress returns next year.

"We'll be back," Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., said Tuesday after the House voted 272-152 to override Reagan's veto but fell 11 votes short of the two-thirds needed to enact the measure over his objections.

The action appeared to close the book on the battle for textile legislation this year, with two weeks at most remaining before lawmakers adjourn to campaign full time.

The bill, designed to protect American industry from foreign competition, would freeze current textile and apparel imports at 1987 levels and limit future increases to 1 percent annually. The same would apply to non-rubber footwear except that no future growth would be allowed.

Countries that increase their purchases of U.S. farm goods would get larger shares of the U.S. textiles market. A pilot program would be established, allowing the government to auction off import licenses. A special quota would be created for imported silk neckties.

Reagan vetoed the measure Sept. 28, saying it represented "protectionism at its worst" and would not only narrow consumer choices but inhibit trade and cost America overseas sales. Sponsors said it would save American jobs now in jeopardy because of a wave of Asian textiles and apparel crowding U.S. merchandise out of stores.

House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, lobbied furiously for the override and sponsors said they were close to two-thirds at one point. "But we had some guys we just couldn't pull across," said Rep. W.G. Hefner, D-N.C.

"Obviously, I'm disappointed," Hollings said in a statement. He claimed the bill was similar to provisions endorsed by Reagan several years ago before the president became critical of "this protectionist nonsense."

"The failure to override the veto means that the next Congress or the next administration must act to restructure our current inefficient textile policy," Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said after the vote.

Textile and apparel workers bused in for the occasion from various East Coast cities held a flag-waving rally on the steps of the Capitol at noon, chanting, "Save our jobs, save our jobs." Some then watched glumly from the House galleries as the legislation met its doom.

Critics portrayed the measure as guaranteed to spur price increases that would amount to a fresh tax on consumers.

"Stand up for consumers, stand up for America, support your president's veto," urged Rep. William Frenzel, R-Minn.

Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., another of the bill's fiercest critics, said "it imposes a tax on consumers of about $20 billion a year."

Rep. Ed Jenkins, D-Ga., sometimes said to occupy "the textile seat" on the House Ways and Means Committee, scoffed at the notion of new price hikes under the bill and added that import curbs are common in Asian countries.

"They have quotas all over Asia," Jenkins said.

Rep. Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, whose home-state shoe factories have been hammered by imports, urged lawmakers to ignore "the ideological rot of an obsolete free-trade policy" and approve "this sensible trade bill."

A number of lawmakers alluded to upcoming elections and political pressures arising from the bill.

If the House "were to do this by secret ballot, there would be no doubt about the outcome," said Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y. "To override the president's veto makes no sense. ... Open markets make us all richer."

"Don't be dissuaded by those who tell you that this is a great political issue," said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. "Bad economics doesn't make for good politics."

Imports surged into the U.S. market in the early 1980s, and Congress responded with a textile bill that Reagan vetoed on similar grounds in December 1985. An override attempt failed in the House in August 1986.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll-call votes between Sept. 23 and 30.

House

TEXTILE IMPORTS — By a vote of 248 for and 150 against, the House passed and sent to the White House a bill (HR 1154) limiting the growth of textile and clothing imports to 1 percent annually and freezing imports of non-rubber footwear at current levels. President Reagan vetoed the bill as overly protectionist.

Supporter James Quillen, R-Tenn., said, "All we are asking for is fair trade. We must keep American jobs..."

Opponent Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., said, "The price we are paying to protect the jobs in textiles and apparels is appalling."

Members voting yes wanted to further limit textile, apparel and non-rubber footwear imports.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, D-1; Tim Valentine, D-2; Martin Lancaster, D-3; David Price, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; Howard Coble, R-6; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8; Alex McMillan, R-9; Cass Ballenger, R-10, and James Clarke, D-11.

ABORTION POLICY — The House voted 228 for and 188 against restricting the District of Columbia's use of public funds to pay for abortions for the poor.

The vote gave instructions to a House-Senate conference on the fiscal 1989 D.C. appropriations bill (HR 4776), urging a tougher stand on when D.C. can use its own revenue — as opposed to its federal payment — to provide abortions for the poor.

Under the present law, D.C. cannot use federal funds for Medicaid abortions except in cases of rape or incest or when the mother's life is at stake. This vote sought to add the same, or stricter qualifications on the use of locally raised money for abortions.

Members voting yes wanted to further restrict the availability of public money for abortions in D.C.

Voting yes were Coble, Hefner, McMillan, Ballenger and Clarke.

Voting no were Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, Price, Neal and Rose.

DEFENSE BUDGET — By a vote of 369 for and 48 against, the House approved the conference report on the $299.5 billion defense authorization bill (HR 4481) for fiscal 1989, which began Oct. 1.

The bill was slightly different than a version that drew President Reagan's veto in August. The main changes lifted a proposed congressional ban on testing low-flying "depressed trajectory" missiles and shifted funding priorities for the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) anti-missile system and the MX and Midgetman missiles.

Members voting yes supported the fiscal 1989 defense authorization bill.

Voting yes were Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, Price, Neal, Coble, Rose, Hefner, Ballenger and Clarke. McMillan did not vote.

Senate

THE PENTAGON BUDGET — By a vote of 91 for and 4 against, the Senate approved the fiscal 1989 defense authorization bill (see preceding House vote) and sent the $299.5-billion Pentagon budget to President Reagan for his signature.

Supporter Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., said the bill focuses "on strategy and policy issues rather than on micromanagement of the Pentagon's programs."

Opponent Kent Conrad, D-N.D., said the bill "authorizes more spending for defense than this country can afford."

Senators voting yes supported the 1989 defense bill.

Terry Sanford, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted yes.

COLLECTING FEDERAL DEBTS — By a vote of 54 for and 33 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment creating a private sector panel to advise the government on how to collect the estimated $83 billion it is owed in overdue payments from individuals, businesses and other domestic debtors.

The amendment was proposed to a bill designed to make the government pay its bills on time, a measure (S 328) later cleared for the White House.

Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., who voted to kill the amendment, said it was opposed by the Office of Management and Budget as duplicative and would keep S 328 from becoming law this year.

Amendment sponsor Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, said, "That hole you call unpaid debt owed to the federal government is becoming bigger and blacker."

Senators voting yes wanted to kill the amendment.

Celebrated Pediatrician Remembers Beginning

REDBOOK MAGAZINE

Dr. Benjamin Spock began practicing pediatrics more than a half-century ago when there were no antibiotics, polio was a dread disease and few mothers wanted to breast-feed.

The world-famous baby doctor wrote in an article in the current issue of Redbook that he began his practice at the depths of the depression in 1933 in New York City.

"There were no wonder drugs at all," he wrote. "When a child developed an ear infection or pneumonia, there was nothing a doctor or parent could do but 'force fluids' and pray."

"The most dreaded disease was polio — there was no polio vaccine then. A small epidemic in California was enough to terrify parents on the East Coast, and vice versa."

Tonsils and adenoids were commonly removed in the 1930s and '40s for reasons that ranged from colds to mouth breathing.

Hospitalized children could be treated with insensitivity.

"In the pediatric hospital in which I trained, for instance, parents of a sick child were only allowed to visit one hour per week," Spock wrote.

"The parents had to wear masks and gowns during the visit, theoretically to avoid introducing infections to the child. On seeing his parents the child would reach out for them crying and screaming, but the parents were not allowed to touch him."

Spock described the very different well-baby practices of the times.

Few mothers were interested in breast-feeding, and their physicians did not encourage them to do so.

Infants were to be fed exact amounts of formula on rigid four-hour schedules. Solids were most often started at 5 months and toilet training at 6 months — sometimes as early as 3 months.

"Pacifiers were thought to be filthy and disgusting by proper parents," Spock wrote. "Thumb sucking was considered a bad habit to be promptly squelched."

"This was done by painting a bitter-tasting substance on the thumb, by covering the hands with aluminum mittens or by spread-eagling the poor baby in his crib and tying his wrists to the sides."

Would-be pediatricians were not taught child psychology. Spock, who wanted to understand everyday psychological problems such as thumb sucking, resistance to weaning and toilet training, added a year of psychiatric residency to his pediatric training and studied for five more years while in pediatric practice.

He gave mothers the best advice he could and eagerly sought to know how well it worked.

He was first asked to write a book on baby care after five years of pediatric practice but refused because he didn't know enough yet. Five years later, in 1943, he agreed to write "Baby and Child Care."

Spock said baby and child care had begun to loosen up in the 1950s and '60s and today is very different.

Breast feeding and natural childbirth have become more popular, solids aren't started until 4-6 months, toilet training generally waits until the child passes his second birthday. Fathers are allowed in the delivery room and the use of midwives and rooming-in are common.

"Probably the most significant change we have seen in the past 20 years is the high percentage of mothers of preschoolers (approximately 51 percent) who work," Spock wrote.

He not only advocates subsidies for quality day care for children of working parents, he also supports subsidies for parents who prefer to stay home during the preschool years.

As for today's problems, from skyrocketing crime rates to teenage pregnancy, Spock wrote in Redbook:

"I still think that one principal answer to such problems is for parents to emphasize spiritual values much more than they now do, including the spiritual aspects of sex and marriage."

"I also believe that parents must teach their children that it's most important — and satisfying — to help solve the world's many problems and to be kind and cooperative, rather than to just get ahead."

Pet Ambulance Runs To Rescue Of Fido Or Fritz

By Carol McGraw
LAT/WP NEWS SERVICE

LOS ANGELES — The patient's yowls turned to whimpers as the paramedics administered a sedative and began the delicate work of extracting his leg from the dishwasher. Two hours later, Mary Lipis' mangled dishwasher door lay on the floor, and her somewhat less-mangled cat Chu Chu lay on a stretcher in an ambulance headed for the veterinary hospital. The cat, who had reached its paw into a crack in the dishwasher, was treated for his bruises and came back home the next day.

"I don't know what we would have done without him," Lipis said, praising Dirk Van Voris, the animal health technician who had rescued the curious feline.

Van Voris owns D.J.'s Pet Taxi in Los Angeles, one of the few pet ambulance services in the country manned by trained paramedics. In 18 months of operation, he has offered medical assistance and tender care to dogs and cats overcome by flea spray, crazed by drugs, hit by cars, bitten by coyotes, poisoned by irate neighbors and debilitated by disease. The ambulance also picks up dead animals for burial.

The service is run much like the human variety, with 24-hour emergency calls as well as routine transportation to animal hospitals. The ambulance, which Van Voris designed for animals, is equipped with lifesaving equipment, and even has room for frantic owners who want to ride with their sick pets. The pet paramedics, like emergency workers who treat humans, use portable phones to get detailed instructions from their patients' doctors on how to proceed with emergency treatment.

Van Voris, 24, who received an animal health technician degree from Mount San Antonio College in Walnut, Calif., said he had always been interested in the emergency side of his profession. Several of his veterinarian friends told him there was a real need for such a service and encouraged him to go ahead with the project.

He designed the ambulance because he could find no prototypes, and once equipped, he touted his service at animal clinics citywide. Now, most of his business comes from veterinarian referrals.

Only recently, with some of the expensive equipment outlays taken care of, has the business started to be self-supporting, Van Voris said. He charges $25 round-trip for non-emergency transportation. The base fee for a night emergency run is $45. Even with emergency medical care added, the bill rarely runs more than $65, he said.

And while he has only one ambulance and two assistants right now, he hopes to expand.

Gladys Cartwright, 76, no longer drives and said the service has been invaluable. Noel, her Yorkshire terrier, has a chronic medical problem

Los Angeles Times/Thomas Kelsey

Pet ambulances perform many of the same services offered to human patients and requires frequent clinic visits.

"Dirk has such a nice way about him. The first time he came out to get Noel, he arrived early so he could become acquainted with her," she said. "Noel doesn't usually take to strangers, but she even gave him her green toy."

One of the most memorable cases, Van Voris recalls, was a cat that was running amok in a West Hollywood apartment.

"The owners called in a panic. The cat was breaking out, running all through the house. He had already scratched one of them. But we couldn't catch him. We tried a snare pole, a blanket," Van Voris said. "Finally, he was worn out and basically hanging on the wall in the kitchen when we netted him."

Apparently, the cat had nosed its way into somebody's stash of drugs. It was treated at a hospital, and the owners kept it in a carrier for several days just to make sure it didn't have a flashback.

Van Voris says that his work is "a new adventure every day." But he adds that there is anguish when he finds an animal too hurt to be helped, or one that dies during the emergency run. "But my thinking is that when that stops bothering you, it's time to get out of the profession."

Pill-Taking Prescription

It's All In Your Vallecule (Gulp!)

By Victor Cohn
LAT/WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — People who have trouble swallowing pills may appreciate the advice of two doctors in The New England Journal of Medicine.

The trouble, they say, is usually caused by the tendency of pills, tablets or capsules, especially big ones, to lodge in the vallecule. If you didn't know you had one, that's a depression between the base of the tongue and the glottis (an opening between the vocal cords and the larynx) on the way down to the gullet or esophagus.

If all that's too technical, just follow the advice of University of Washington Drs. B. Raymond Fink and Charles Rohrmann: "Put the pill on the tongue and take two successive gulps of liquid without pause. With the first gulp, swallow some liquid but not the pill. With the second, swallow the pill with some more liquid."

"The first gulp," the doctors explain, "causes the epiglottis (a plate of cartilage behind the tongue that covers and protects the glottis during swallowing) to fold down, and the second washes the pill past the downturned epiglottis."

If that's also too technical, just swallow twice per these directions. But it's important not to pause between gulps, or that touchy epiglottis will jump back up.

Kenny Rogers Asks Millions For His Farm

By Tom Saladino
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLBERT, Ga. — Need a farm? How about Beaver Dam Farms, 332 rolling, lush acres, a 15,000-square foot furnished main house, a guest house, a couple of picturesque lakes, stables for your horses, and a championship golf course in your front yard.

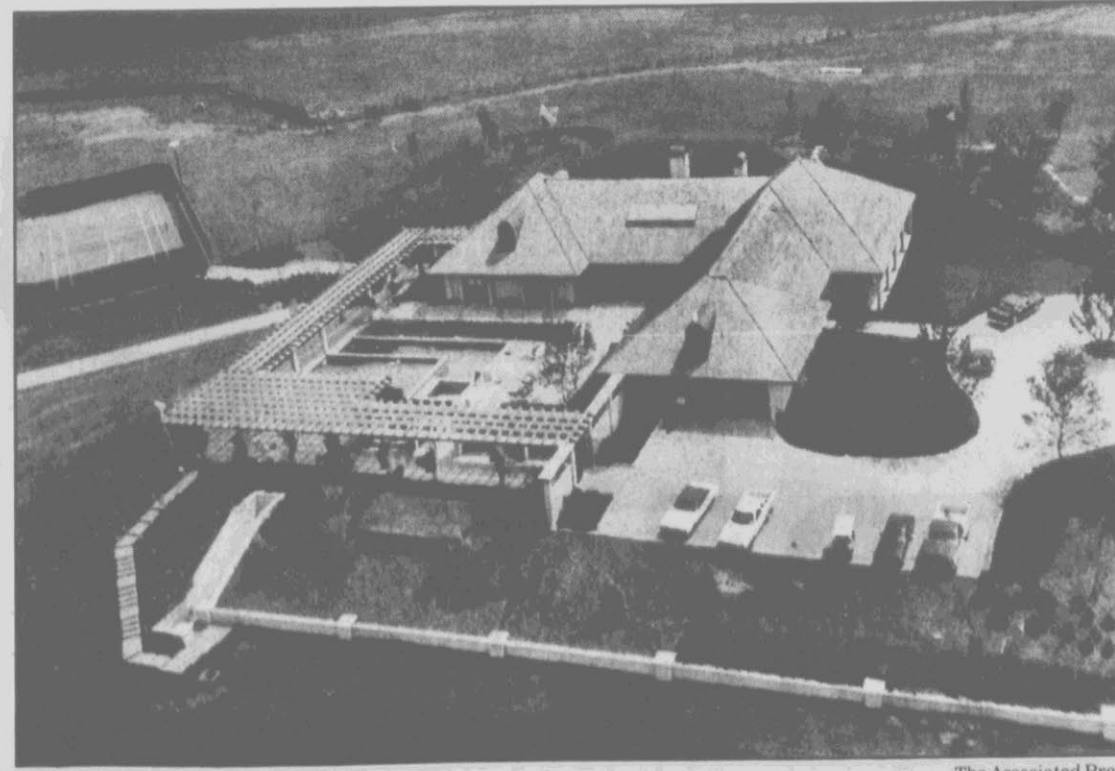

Entertainer Kenny Rogers' ranch in east Georgia, about 75 miles outside Atlanta, is for sale, and it can be purchased for a mere $12.5 million.

Rogers, who bought about 1,200 acres of pasture and woods in Colbert seven years ago and turned it into a well-manicured showplace, originally put the property up sale about three years ago. At that time the price tag was $11 million, but that was before the par 72, 6,200-yard golf course was built. It was completed in July 1987 and designed, like all the structures, by Rogers himself.

Rogers has sold off about 300 acres on the outskirts of the property and has only the 332-acre estate on the market. He intends to keep the rest of the land.

The main house includes 10 bedrooms and 11 bathrooms and has a complete photography laboratory. Behind the house is a small 12-stall barn with a two-bedroom apartment. Further down the road is an equipment barn and the 4,000-square foot, six-bedroom, four-bath guest house.

The farm recently was the site of the inaugural Kenny Rogers Classic Weekend, a sporting competition involving show business and sports celebrities which will be nationally televised by ABC in November.

The Associated Press

Rogers' Georgia farm features stables, golf course, lakes and a 15,000-square-foot home

The entertainer originally purchased the land to raise Arabian horses. Rogers has since changed his mind and is now looking for property a bit closer to Athens, about 15 miles east of the farm.

"This is where I live," said Rogers, who is on the road much of the time, spending considerable time in Los Angeles, "but I don't have any more use for the barns anymore. If I sell this, I'll still stay in Georgia, just move a little closer to Athens."

At one time Rogers had about 60 Arabians on the farm, housing them in the main barn, which contains about 73,000 square feet for the arena and 46 horse stalls, said Rogers' friend and business associate Kelly Junkerman. The barn also includes luxury apartments and office space, increasing the total to about 83,000 square feet.

"To use the word barn is stretching the meaning," said Morris Bullock, an Athens real estate agent who is handling the sale of the property, adding that the barn also has an automatic car wash and a laboratory for the care of the horses. There are also four other barns in the outer pastures.

Junkerman said Rogers "just loves to build things."

Asked why it has not sold to date, Bullock explained:

"It's unique. We just haven't found the right person who needs these type of amenities. It's like selling a resort. It's really plush. It's a very unique place, not the sort of place you would sell, say, like a car. I mean, where else can you find your own golf course in your yard?"

"There has been interest from time to time," said Bullock. "In the past year I've showed it to about a dozen clients."

He said the main house will be sold furnished. The house has an adjacent pool with the floors done in blue tiles. All the buildings are done in a matching beige stucco with dark brown wood stucco roofs.

"The house was designed, in my opinion, to entertain or for leisure living," said Bullock.

The two ponds, one 16 acres and the other three acres, are near the front of the property and include a man-made waterfall and an entertainment house with deck.

Fountain's Soda Jerks Sell Ice Cream, Drinks And Lots Of Nostalgia

BROKEN ARROW, Okla. (AP) — Glenn Miller's "In the Mood" pours from the old jukebox while chocolate syrup is poured over a heap of vanilla ice cream.

On wire-backed chairs next to spindly legged tables, children and their parents pull thick malteds and root beer floats made with real ice cream — not ice milk — through thin plastic straws.

Two kids drop a dime on the marble counter and order nickel Cokes.

Someone slips another quarter in the jukebox and makes three more selections.

If Ozzie and Harriet walked in, they wouldn't rate a second glance.

Clara Evans, one of the soda jerks, says she feels like she's back at the Muskogee Drugstore soda fountain where she worked in the 1950s.

Tony Petrik, the man behind this bit of Eisenhower-era nostalgia, smiles. That's the reaction he was hoping for when he opened this soda fountain in early 1984 at the front of Petrik's Drug Store on a downtown corner of Main Street.

"For 10 or 11 years, I was looking for some way to put a soda fountain in," he says.

The idea has its roots in Weatherford, where the 39-year-old Petrik studied pharmacology. To pay for his education, he became a soda jerk at a Weatherford drugstore.

Because ambience would be the key to his soda fountain, Petrik was careful to buy the proper equipment.

"I hate having anything new if we don't have to," he says.

The jukebox is a 1960 model. Much of the ice cream equipment is from a Broken Arrow restaurant that folded a few years ago.

He browsed through flea markets for other equipment, finding several Hamilton Beach malted milk machines.

"They built these machines so well, they never broke, so they quit making parts," he says. Petrik has bought several to have spares in case of a rare breakdown.

Near the fountain is a refrigerated candy box from 1950. Behind its glass doors are boxes of chocolates.

A key to atmosphere is an antique wood back counter with a full-length mirror. Petrik found it in an abandoned drugstore.

"Any soda fountain worth its salt, the plates and cups and saucers don't match," he says, so he bought his here and there at flea markets, garage sales and the like.

Petrik likes to have people around. He likes to see them comfortable.

"Don't believe a word this guy tells you," one man says.

Petrik laughs, pleased. He enjoys a give-and-take with his regulars.

"We opened up and fully expected that if we did $25 a day, we'd be lucky," he says. "We have been snowed since day one. I have come to the conclusion we're the only tourist trap in town."

While he talks, Ron Wayland is scurrying about behind the counter. The 17-year-old soda jerk adds marshmallow syrup to a Dr. Pepper, mixes a chocolate malt, pours chili over a hot dog and slaps together an egg salad sandwich, all without a second's break.

"Never a dull moment," he says.

Olympics Cost NBC Millions

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's coverage of the Summer Olympics dominated two weeks of prime time but concluded Sunday with an average rating below the guarantee NBC gave advertisers, and that will cost the network millions.

NBC, which paid more than $300 million for the rights to the Olympics, won't comment on the loss, but the Wall Street Journal reported the network will have to give as much as $70 million in commercial time to advertisers who didn't get as high a rating as they were promised.

The 15 nights of Olympics coverage from Seoul — not counting the opening and closing ceremonies — averaged a 17.9 rating. NBC had promised advertisers 21.2. The 1984 summer games on ABC had averaged 23.2.

Each rating point represents 904,000 households with televisions. NBC began giving advertisers free spots during the second week of the Olympics. A 30-second spot during prime-time coverage cost $330,000.

Nevertheless, six nights of Olympics coverage took up six places in the top 10 in the A.C. Nielsen ratings for the week ending Oct. 2 and gave NBC a decisive win for the week with a 17.5 rating to ABC's 12.3 and CBS' 11.2.

"The actual performance by the Olympics in key groups (of viewers) was a really dominant performance. Whether it was as dominant as anticipated, that's something else," said Gerald Jaffe, NBC vice president for research projects.

He said NBC intended to research the reason for the low-rated performance, but would not likely make the results public. The time difference between the United States and Korea, the late September timing of the event and a general decline in network ratings are likely contributors.

CBS and ABC rebounded against the Olympics on Sunday when the closing ceremonies had a lowly 12.3 rating. NBC had expected closer to 20.0. CBS' "60 Minutes," "Murder, She Wrote" and the theatrical movie "Cocoon" out-rated the Olympics on Sunday, as did ABC's made-for-TV movie "Liberace." Those four shows made up the rest of the top 10.

Tuesday's coverage was second, followed by Thursday's coverage, "60 Minutes," Wednesday Olympics, "Cocoon," "Liberace," "Murder, She Wrote," Friday Olympics and Saturday Olympics.

The Sunday closing ceremonies ranked 22nd out of 55 shows. ABC's "World News Tonight" won in the news Niensens with a rating of 10.0 and a 20 share. The "CBS Evening News" was second with a 9.8 and 20. "NBC Nightly News," pre-empted on the West Coast by Olympics coverage, had a 9.6 and 21.

Maxine Andrews Hosts Special 'All Night Strut!' Airs Friday Night On PBS

By Mary Campbell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The young quartet singing songs from the 1930s and '40s on the PBS' special "The All Night Strut!" could not have been praised by a more authentic source.

"I got quite carried away. It had been a long time since I'd seen a revue like that," said Maxene Andrews, one-time member of the singing Andrews Sisters and host of the 90-minute special, airing Friday.

The quartet didn't do the 28 songs just like they were done in those decades, though, said Miss Andrews, who does not sing on the special.

"I think interpretations weren't as theatrical then. They do a couple of very exciting, theatrical things in this show. Our interpretations were more musical," she said.

"There was so much wonderful energy that they gave the show. I sat there and thoroughly enjoyed it."

The singer, who now tours the country more than half the year with her one-woman show, said even though the '30s had the Depression, and the '40s had World War II, the songs were mainly cheerful. She tells the audience, "We were a nation of optimists, full of confidence, sure that the future was bright, and the songs of the time reflected those feelings."

In the years before World War II, Miss Andrews said, "Benny Goodman came in, and he started the Swing Era. It seemed like the Depression was coming to an end, and jobs were more plentiful. Everybody wanted to tap their toes. It got to be a bit of a frenzy. Nightclubs were busy. There was lots of talent around, and lots of places to go to see the talent."

Fran Charnas, on the faculty of Boston Conservatory, created the review, "The All Night Strut!" which had its premiere in 1975 in Cleveland. Since then, various singers have toured with it. The present quartet, Katharine Buffaloe, Janet Hubert, Lance Roberts and Jim Walton, played for two weeks at Penn State University, and one of those concerts was taped for PBS.

Three of the songs were Andrews Sisters records, the boogie-woogie hit "Beat Me, Daddy, Eight to the Bar," "Shoo Shoo Baby" and "You're a Lucky Fellow, Mr. Smith."

The Andrews Sisters sang some of the others, too, Miss Andrews said, but after other singers or bands had made them popular — "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?" "Coming In on a Wing and a Prayer," "I'll Be Seeing You" and "In the Mood."

The Andrews Sisters had 19 hit records, starting with "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen" in 1937. "It was important to have a hit record," Miss Andrews said. "After that, did you have a good act? After that, it was, 'I hope they pick me up for motion pictures.' There wasn't much chance for groups in pictures. We were one of the lucky ones: I think we did 21 movies."

For the last nine years, Miss An-draws has sung alone. The oldest sister, LaVerne, died of cancer in 1967. Maxene and Patty were on Broadway in "Over Here!" in 1974. "After the show, my brother-in-law kicked me out of the nest," Maxene said. "He said, 'Your sister is not going to sing with you any more. She is going to go out on her own.'"

"We have no contact. I'm sorry to say it's impossible. I miss Patty very much. You learn there are some things you can do something about and some things you can't do anything about."

"Patty always sang lead. I never sang lead before. It was very frightening, but it was the best thing for me. I met a young pianist, Phil Campanella, who understood what I wanted to do, and we've worked together all these years."

"We've just finished 80 one-nighters. Now I've taken off some time, because I am exploring with a country-western album. That's a lot of fun. I still retain that tremendous joy in singing. The Lord has been good to me and allowed me to retain my voice."

"Age doesn't bother me. Sometimes I'm prone to let my mind wander when I'm performing an old song I know well. I'll forget the lyrics. I'll stop. They know I forgot. The audience knows the lyrics to Andrews Sisters hits. I say, 'I earned that mistake. What do you do when you're 72 years old?'"

Court Orders Case Heard

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Tom Selleck's father, who said he never discussed his son's love life with a weekly tabloid, has a right to bring his libel suit against the newspaper to trial, an appellate court ruled.

The case involves a Dec. 14, 1982, story in The Globe headlined, "Tom Selleck's love secrets — By His Father." Other headlines promised, "His father reveals all" about "Why Tom Selleck Can Never Be a Happy Lover."

Robert Selleck acknowledged that he agreed to be interviewed, but denied making statements about his son's love life.

"Tom Selleck may be TV's sexiest leading man," the article said, "but his dad says he's really a shy guy who is so ill at ease with women that he finds it difficult to sustain a lasting relationship."

The article quoted Robert Selleck as saying his son's "relationships with the women in his life are always disappointing because he's just not the person they think he should be. He's shy and sensitive, not rough and rugged."

'Gas Guzzlers' Flood American Auto Market

By Guy Darst
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — European automakers must think this is the year for you to take the plunge on that sports car with enough horsepower to achieve Earth orbit or on the luxury barge with faucets for red and white wine in the back seat.

They're offering more models than ever before, 40, that get caught by the U.S. "gas-guzzler" excise tax, according to the annual fuel economy ratings released by the Environmental Protection Agency on Thursday for 1989 models.

Five cars bearing U.S. names are also taxed. Two of them are largely made in Europe and are aimed at the same hang-the-expense market segment that the Europeans are going after. The other three are the only entirely U.S. models ever to pay the tax, which they also paid in 1987 but escaped last year.

As usual, the Japanese are the mileage champs. For the fourth straight year the fuel-slinging cars are the Japanese-made Geo Metro, formerly the Chevrolet Sprint, and the two-seater Honda Civic CRX HF.

The Metro's mileage was 53 miles per gallon in the city, 1 mpg below last year's figure for the same car, and 58 on the highway test, the same as last year. Geo is the new nameplate General Motors Corp. is putting on the imports of its Chevrolet division.

The Civic's figures are identical to last year's: 50 mpg city, 56 mpg highway.

The gas-guzzler tax, unique to the United States, assesses a penalty in the form of an excise that rises with declining fuel economy. It starts at $500 and goes up to $3,850. It was enacted in 1975, when fears of fuel shortages were rampant, and aimed at discouraging the unthrifty.

In all, 45 models — some of them identical except for trim — are official gas-guzzlers. Last year's list included only 24, and the year before that the count was only 18.

This year's includes five Rolls-Royces that escaped in previous years through a now-closed loophole that exempted cars of more than 6,000 pounds gross vehicle weight.

European models that will pay the tax come from Rolls and its Bentley badge, plus Maserati, Ferrari, Mercedes-Benz, Porsche, Aston-Martin, Jaguar, Volvo and BMW.

The proliferation of guzzlers reflects a growing desire for performance and status, analysts say.

"Around here it's almost a status symbol to have paid a $3,000 penalty tax," commented Garrett Stasse, auto editor of The Register in Shrewsbury, N.J., in affluent Monmouth County.

"If you have a car in your lineup that does not live up to its performance image, you're in more trouble today than if you had an official gas-guzzler," said Ed Miller, a senior editor at Ward's Automotive Publications in Detroit.

Clarence Ditlow, director of the Center for Auto Safety in Washington, an advocacy group that frequently has opposed relaxation of government fuel standards, said: "We are going in the wrong direction. We ought to be headed the other way and making gas-sippers."

But manufacturers, he said, "think they'll make more in profits than they pay in penalties."

"The tax really isn't objected to by the buyer" of luxury cars, said Kyle Johnson of GM's Cadillac division. "It does not alter GM's commitment to stay away from the gas-guzzler tax on U.S.-built cars."

Johnson was commenting on the Cadillac Allante, a $50,000-plus two-seater introduced last year to compete against the upscale Europeans. A larger engine this year brought it under the tax with a rating of 15 mpg in the city and 23 mpg on the highway, adding $650 to the sticker price.

The other taxed U.S. entry is one model of the Chrysler TC by Maserati, which had readings of 17 and 21. Other TC models escape the tax, but not the one with the turbocharged 2.5-liter engine (152 cubic inches) without the top-gear lockup feature on the three-speed automatic.

This car is built in Italy using many U.S.-supplied components. The Cadillac Allante is built in the United States using an Italian body.

The other U.S. gas-guzzlers are the Chrysler Fifth Avenue and its identical twins, the Dodge Diplomat and the Plymouth Grand Fury. They get 16 mpg in the city and 23 mpg out of town, according to EPA, compared with 17-23 last year and 16-21 in 1987.

Repeat tests of the same car can yield slightly differing results. "The car has not changed," said Tony Cervone, a Chrysler spokesman.

The Fifth Avenue family is in its last year. Successors were introduced last year: the Chrysler New Yorker and Dodge Dynasty, rated at 18 mpg city and 26 mpg highway for 1989.

In all, Japanese and Korean manufacturers captured the top 10 spots, as they did last year. Because Japanese-owned plants in the United States and in Japan have in the past supplied the same cars to the U.S. market simultaneously, EPA no longer lists the top domestic models. But the top U.S.-manufactured car from a Big Three company appears to be a Ford Escort recorded at 32-42.

The biggest guzzlers this year are four Aston-Martin sports cars new to the United States, all 8-11 and carrying the top penalty of $3,850.

Rusted Junk Is Treasure To Him

Farm Equipment Collector Prizes Tractors

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RUSSELL, Kan. — Don't expect to offend Laverne Steinert by calling his collection of rusting farm equipment junk. He agrees.

But this man's junk also is his treasure and he stubbornly defends his right to keep it in his yard in Russell.

"I've just got junk all over," he said, laughing, as he surveyed his home of 42 years.

Steinert, 63, said he has been fascinated by tractors since his father first let him ride one on their farm near Milberger.

He still has the 1929 McCormick-Deering tractor and he hopes to get it in running order some day.

That's his goal for most of the aging tractors parked in his front yard. Some run, some don't, but Steinert prizes them just the same.

Steinert was 8 years old when his father relented and let him drive his tractor.

"He told me I couldn't do it, but I showed him," he said, admitting his father had to shift the gears for him because his legs were too short to reach the clutch.

He began collecting old tractors about 12 years ago, when he gave up farming his land 10 miles northwest of Russell to care for his aging father. He said his father never could understand why he had liked them so much, and Steinert admits he isn't sure, either.

"I don't know what fascinates me about 'em," he said. "I like to drive the damn things."

Maybe it relates to his disdain for horses, he explained.

Tractors began to replace horses when he was growing up, although his father preferred animals over machines.

"I hated 'em," he said of his father's horses. "I had my fill."

"Dad wanted to stay with horses. He thought using tractors was getting awful lazy."

It isn't just any tractor that captures Steinert's attention. It's one with steel wheels.

A tractor not worthy of restoration is worth buying if it has steel wheels, he said. He owns several and one day the wheels will replace the rubber tires found on his prized tractors.

He estimates he has about 40 tractors altogether. About half are found in his yard in Russell.

That's drawn the ire of neighbors and the city for several years, he admitted, but he refuses to give in.

He said his lawyer has fought successfully to keep the city from removing the display.

He conceded on a few occasions. He moved the tractors clear of the intersection's sight triangle and he keeps them two feet from the sidewalks — or at least where sidewalks ought to be. The brick paths have crumbled and are overgrown with grass.

But as long as Steinert doesn't call his collection a museum, he contends he can keep his tractors. His lawyer maintains they are "yard ornaments" and therefore fall within the guidelines of the neighborhood's zoning.

The neighbors, either out of acceptance or exasperation, "have quit complaining," Steinert said.

And as long as Steinert complies with traffic regulations, the city seems reluctant to press the issue. City officials said no action was planned to force Steinert to clean up his yard.

Steinert keeps his tractors in his yard, he said, because that's where he works on them. He ventures to his land north of town only when he wants to work on the tractors stored there or when his tenant needs help farming.

About a dozen of the tractors run; the rest are in varying stages of decay.

"It's an interesting hobby, but expensive," he said. "You have to work every once in a while."

Parts aren't hard to find, he said, because many of the old tractors still sit where farmers abandoned them a half-century ago.

Most of Steinert's tractors were made by McCormick-Deering, which later became International, but he also owns a few John Deere and Case models.

The same models were made for several years, so the radiator from a 1930 model will fit a 1933, he explained.

Spare parts won't help the biggest problem of locked-up engines. Because the tractors were left outdoors, most won't run because the pistons are rusted tight.

"If you're lucky enough, you can get them loose," Steinert said.

He succeeded with a 1931 McCormick-Deering F-30.

He also has accumulated enough spare parts to restore that model and some day he'll get it done, he said.

The repairs get delayed, he said, because he's too busy haggling over the price of another tractor he wants to acquire or doing an odd-job to earn the money.

Plastic Lenses Are Best For Most

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Most of the 100 million Americans who wear eyeglasses don't know whether they should have glass or plastic lenses, according to a New York broadcast science specialist.

"Glass is the hardest lens material available," writes Dr. Frank Field, health and science editor of WCBS-TV, in a public service column for Seiko Optical Products. "However, one disadvantage of a glass lens is that it shatters when broken and weighs about twice as much as a plastic lens.

"Although plastic lenses do not provide adequate security against scratches, they are lighter and easier to tint."

Field, an optometrist serving on the Optometric Advisory Board of the State University of New York, recommends plastic lenses with a scratch-resistant coating added for abrasive protection.

Because of its many advantages, lenses made of plastic account for some 65 percent of all lenses worn in the U.S., according to Field, who also notes there are several choices between single and multifocal prescriptions.

For those who need glasses for reading, he says, in addition to a choice of either a full reading glass or half-eye, there are two multifocal options available.

Progressive lenses, the newest entries in the multifocal market, he adds, have no telltale line to show a multiple prescription.

"By providing a gradual transition between correction areas," Field explains, "progressives allow the wearer more natural eye movement. Flattop bifocals, on the other hand, create a jump in natural eye movement."

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY Oct. 6

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Prestige can be gained by doing some volunteer community work. Great business contacts can be made in this way as well.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Plan your activities more wisely and get better results. Be more cooperative with a co-worker and speed up production.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Try to be more modern in your thinking and your appearance. Get in touch with some friends and plan a new amusement for the weekend.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Get your home in shape and add more color and art to it. Entertain at home tonight and dress nicely, but not elaborately.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): A few compliments can get a group project flowing much more smoothly. Spend the evening with someone you have much respect for.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Set up a budget which will allow you a little more entertainment, but don't neglect any important bills. Drive carefully this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Keep a healthy perspective about going after your goals—don't rob Peter to pay Paul. Keep a reign on your emotions and your temper.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Privately work out a plan which can bring you rapid advancement, with some hard work. Show more affection for your loved ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Enlist the aid of close friends to work out a difficult problem. Be more understanding of others and things will go smoothly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): If you display your abilities, you'll have more opportunities to capitalize on them. Have more confidence in yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): If you want a new friend to go along with your ideas, it is important to explain them in detail. A short trip can bring you many benefits.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): If you show a little energy and enthusiasm about life, your mate will appreciate it. A short talk with an important person would be good.

 Card combinations are peculiar animals. How you play them often depends on how many tricks you need in the suit.

The auction was routine. After South's 21-22-point two no trump opening, North used the Stayman Convention to check on the possibility of a 4-4 spade fit. When that did not materialize, three no trump became the obvious contract.

West led the top of his broken club sequence, and declarer won the ace as East made the fine play of the ten. Declarer crossed to the king of hearts to take the diamond finesse. West scooped in the king and persevered with clubs. Declarer cashed the ace of diamonds. When West failed to follow, declarer could score only three diamond tricks and eight tricks in all.

Declarer's play in the diamond suit was correct if he needed five tricks in the suit. Then his only chance would be to find East with a doubleton king of diamonds. But declarer needed just four diamond tricks. If the suit split 4-2 or 3-3, no matter what he did would be right. The one troublesome distribution is 5-1 In that event, declarer could collect four tricks only if the king of diamonds was singleton in one hand or the other.

Correct play, therefore, was to ignore the diamond finesse and simply cash the ace. If the king does not drop, declarer must hope that the suit breaks no worse than 4-2. The odds of finding West with a singleton king are slightly more than 1 percent, but even such a miniscule extra chance sometimes yields huge dividends. That was certainly the case here.

Description Of My House

By Lora Ankrom

I am going to describe my house to you. The front of my house is made of bricks of red with touches of brown. The trim is light blue. The seven rectangular windows have twelve panels of glass. The one square window has the same number. One of these windows has an air conditioner in it. The square-shaped porch has light blue rails with brick steps. The sides of the porch are brick, too. The roof shingles are brown and black mixed. A green garden hose is hidden in the shrubs. The style is Williamsburg. The door has six panels of glass as a storm door. Two top panels are square and the four bottom ones are rectangular.

The right side (from the front) is our carport. It has one window, (same as front window), a glass door (same as front) and a blue door. It has only two panels but they aren't glass. My father's tool box is out there with a Cutlass Supreme car, sometimes parked there. There is also a white shelf with a light bulb box and a bag full of pine cones, a black bar chair with a purple and cream colored sleeping bag. A lawn mower is there, too. My steps have a big hunk of brick off of them.

The back has four rectangular windows and two square ones. One of each kind of window has an air conditioner in it. Two holly bushes grow along the side with a few small vines. A faucet to put a hose on stands naked. A little blue cupboard-like door goes to the foundation.

Last, and not least, the left side has a meter hanging to measure our electricity. Two long windows face our next door neighbors house. Vines grow up the side of the roof, a large metal gate, rotted with time, leads to the back again.

Even though you can hardly see it, we have a brick chimney. I have just described a beautiful house which I call home.

Lora Ankrom, 11, a student at Greenville Middle School receives special mention.

Please Go Away

By Monica Castillo

I was resting on a summer day when I heard a knock. I said come in, so a person came in and said, "Hi, my name is Fred."

I said, "Please, go away. I am resting."

The man said, "But I am going to show you a trick."

"I don't want to see a trick. I want to rest!" Again I said

I don't want to see you so Fred went away. On the next day Fred came again and said, "Can I stay for lunch?"

I said, "Yes." Fred and I became good friends.

Federal Facts

U.S. Supreme Court

The Constitution mentions only one court system. The U.S. Supreme Court is the highest court in the nation. Its job is to decide if federal, state or local laws and governments are violating the Constitution. The Supreme Court is a part of the Judicial Branch of the government.

There are no specific qualifications to serve on the Supreme Court. Usually members have been lawyers, judges, law teachers or perhaps government officials. They are appointed by the president and must be approved by the Senate. Their term of office is for life or "during good behavior". The Chief Justice receives $108,400 a year and the 8 associate justices receive $104,100 yearly. Their salary cannot be lowered while they serve on the bench. This allows them to make decisions without fear of interference from the president or from Congress.

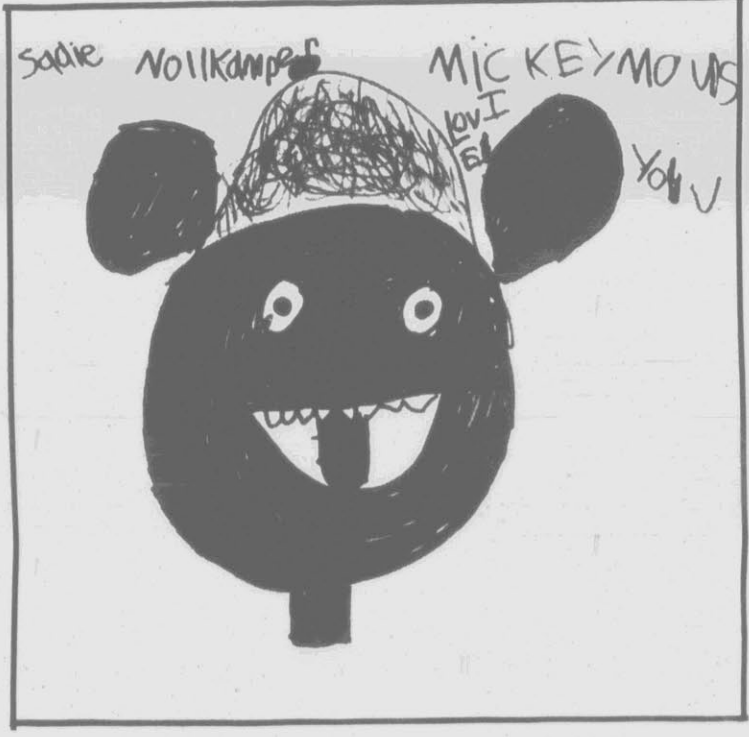

The Supreme Court does not hear every case brought before the 9 judges. They accept cases which they feel will be of interest or importance to the entire nation.

This is called appellate jurisdiction because they are reviewing the findings in cases appealed or bought from lower federal or state courts.

The Supreme Court has original jurisdiction in cases with ambassadors or other representatives of foreign nations. Their original jurisdiction extends to cases when a state is a part of the action.

With judicial review, the Supreme Court reviews or decides if federal, state or local actions or laws follow the Constitution.

After the Supreme Court makes a decision, all lower federal and state courts must follow the ruling. It is possible for the Supreme Court to change decisions over the years. With new members the thinking of the court may change. This is one reason why presidents like to be able to appoint members of the court. There is no set number to sit on the bench. The first Supreme Court had 6 justices and years later President Franklin D. Roosevelt threatened to raise the number higher than the usual 9 judges.

PUZZLE CORNER

October is Adopt-A-Dog Month. This is a good time to visit the Animal Shelter to adopt a puppy or dog. Dogs make wonderful companions and can even protect your home or business. Dogs also help to track criminals and locate missing people.

Send In Your Entries To Expressions

The Daily Reflector is looking for elementary, middle, and high school students to draw pictures, write stories, essays and poems. Each week we will publish the best writing and drawing. The winner of each will receive $2. We will publish stories and art work we feel should receive special mention.

Entries must be original. Drawings must be in ink, crayon, markers or paint on thick colored paper. Use no pencil. Entries will be held for a period of ninety days and will be considered for that period of time. Entries will be returned if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is included.

Parents or teachers who sign the entry form should monitor for good taste and plagiarism.

Frozen Bread Dough Can Yield Quick, Easy Snacks

Trying to scratch that urge for snacks is always a problem. Here are two suggestions for "different" snacks that are both quick and easy to prepare with frozen bread dough from your supermarket.

Pizza rolls are fun and different finger foods. While great for snacks, they can also make a lunch box or picnic basket surprise. Pizza rolls have all the great makings of pizza rolled up into a neat handful.

The "crust" is made from frozen bread dough, topped with layers of sauce, cheeses, olives and pepperoni. Rolled up and sliced, it makes individual pizza rolls. They are delicious hot or cold.

crust that can be used in a variety of ways. Enjoy the savory flavor of Boboli all by itself as a snack or with a meal. Or turn Boboli into a main course by topping with sauteed vegetables and seafood.

Boboli is delicious topped with sauce, cheese and the works to create a pizza. Also try making Boboli into a tostada or open-faced sandwich. For brunch, try Boboli topped with scrambled eggs or a base for eggs benedict.

You can make the light and flavorful Boboli with very little work using frozen bread dough. Each loaf makes 4 large crusts. Just add grated Monzzarella, Parmesan and seasonings and ... Voila! fresh baked Boboli!

Microwaving Makes One-Dish Meal Easy

If you prepare your meals in advance, you ought to consider making and freezing a nutritional soup or stew for later microwaving a quick one-dish meal. A good way to save preparation time for your soup is to use frozen ingredients.

Soups have been getting more popular in recent years, and microwave ovens make reheating your favorite soups easy and fast. A big bowl of hearty frozen soup filled with vegetables and meat can take just minutes from freezer to table.

When shopping for frozen food products to use in the microwave, look for the frozen food industry's "Microwavable" logo.

To make soup with a microwave, precook vegetables and meats before they are used. This assures an even doneness of all ingredients in the finished product. While precooking meat and vegetables in the microwave, you might want to heat your broth or water at rangetop to reduce preparation time further.

MICROWAVE ADVANTAGES
Many cooks believe that microwave ovens are not as efficient as range tops for preparing soups. While the time to heat water is about the same, microwaving has its own advantages.

Stovetop soups are simmered to tenderize the raw meats and vegetables. This increases cooking time. Frozen meats and vegetables can be quickly thawed and cooked separately in the microwave much faster than at range top. Then, ingredients can be microwaved together in soup without fat for fewer calories. Ingredients also won't stick in the microwave as it will at range top.

In cooking soups, remember that times vary with the ovens. So, start with a time you think is about right, then subtract five minutes. At the end of the cooking period, check ingredients, and add some additional

Sweet Corn: It's A Natural

Sweet corn is a nutritious natural food. It's also a distinctively American dish. The first Pilgrims to land in New England were introduced to sweet corn (maize) by friendly Indians who taught them to preserve the golden kernels in the sun. Dried sweet corn was an important part of the Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving and Christmas feasts in the New World.

While more than 350 years have passed since the Pilgrims' first feast in the New World, sweet corn is still an important part of the American diet. Through the "new" technology of deep-freezing, all the goodness of this tasty vegetable is available year-round in your supermarket frozen food departments.

Frozen sweet corn adds a particular zest to casseroles. Many people use frozen whole kernel sweet corn in their recipes. Others find frozen double-cut products give extra flavor because kernels are split to expose complete richness.

Here are some sweet corn casserole recipes to try for your family's Thanksgiving or Christmas feast, or almost any occasion.

CHICKEN AND CORN

2 tablespoons butter

2 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 cup milk
1 cup light cream
3 eggs, beaten
3 cups frozen whole kernel corn
2 cups frozen chicken, thawed, cooked and diced
1 green pepper
1/2 cup bread crumbs

Make white sauce by melting butter in heavy saucepan, then add flour and salt and stir until blended. Slowly add milk, stirring constantly to make a smooth paste. Add the cream and beaten eggs to the thickened white sauce. Remove from heat. Arrange chicken and corn in alternate layers in greased casserole. Pour egg and white sauce over the mixture. Sprinkle lightly with crumbs and lay green pepper rings on top. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 1 hour. Serves 6.

PLANTATION CASSELSOLE

2 cups cooked ham, chicken or beef
1 1/2 cups frozen peas, cooked and drained
1 10 oz. pkg. frozen double-cut corn (thawed)
1/4 lb. process American chesse, cubed
1 cup evaporated milk

1/4 cup onion, diced
1 tablespoon Worstershire sauce
1 cup bisquit mix

Non-Dairy Creamers Fulfill Consumers' Health Demands

Today, more than ever, America's consumers are nutrition aware and health conscious concerning the roles foods play in their overall personal well being. Specifically, concern over the effects of foods containing cholesterol, sodium and saturated fats has become foremost in consumers' minds.

That's why many have turned to frozen non-dairy creamer not only as an addition to the mornigh coffee, but as an alternative to milk in a host of delicious desserts and meals.

Now, you don't have to deprive children of cake and ice cream at birthday parties just because they suffer from lactose intolerance ... Instead, serve this delicious Cherry Almond Cake with vanilla ice cream, both made with a non-dairy creamer!

CHERRY ALMOND CAKE

1 16 oz. can dark sweet pitted cherries, drained and coarsely chopped
2 eggs
1/2 cup frozen non-dairy creamer, thawed
1/4 cup vegetable oil
1/2 cup sugar
1 3/4 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup ground almonds
Beat eggs until thick. Add sugar, non-dairy creamer and oil. Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and cinnamon. Add to egg mixture, blending well. Fold in almonds and cherries. Pour into a greased 9-inch round or square cake pan. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 35-40 minutes. Recipe can be doubled to make a two-layer cake. Ice with non-dairy whipped topping.

VANILLA ICE CREAM

1 quart frozen non-dairy creamer, thawed
1 cup sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
1/8 teaspoon salt
Pour non-dairy creamer directly into ice cream can. Add sugar, vanilla and salt. Stir with wooden spoon or plastic spatula until sugar is dissolved. Process according to directions with ice cream freezer.

PASTA PRIMAVERA

6 oz. pasta
3 tablespoons margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup frozen non-dairy creamer, thawed
1 cup water
1 pkg. (envelope) French onion soup mix

1 1/2 cups broccoli flowerettes
1 medium summer squash, julienned
1 1/2 cups mushrooms
1 1/2 tablespoons margarine
1 1/2 tablespoons olive oil
2 clove garlic, minced

Salt and pepper to taste
Parmesan chesse
Fresh parsley

Cook pasta according to package directions, set aside. Melt margarine in saucepan, stir in flour and cook for 1 minute. Gradually stir in frozen non-dairy creamer and water. Add onion soup mix and stir to blend, simmer for 10 minutes. Steam broccoli and garlic until just tender, set aside. Saute summer squash.

Q. My son wants to buy amino acids. He says that other guys on his team take them for muscles. They seem to be real expensive. Will they really help him perform? Mr. J.B., Greenville.

A. It seems that high school athletes always are fascinated by protein. You know that protein is made up of amino acids. When my brother and I were teens, George daily took a high protein drink to improve his cross country running. I don't know if mom and dad made him pay for it out of his allowance or not, but I hope they did. Then as now, the protein powders, amino acid tablets and even steak breakfasts, lunches or dinners for athletes make no difference in their physical performance. There is no scientific evidence that amino acids will help add muscle or weight. I had the pleasure of spending a day at the U.S. Olympic Training camp in Colorado Springs recently. My friend, Dr. Ann Grandjean, is the nutritionist for Olympic committee. She agrees with me that the high school athlete does best by eating a well balanced diet. Eat foods everyday from the breads and cereals group, the fruits and vegetables group, the low fat dairy group and the meat, fish, poultry and dry beans group. The best diet keeps the athlete hydrated too. Water is very necessary for performance and health. She has yet to see an athlete, Olympic caliber or high school football player or wrestler, who did not get enough protein or amino acids from the food they need. Dr. Grandjean warns that problems can result from taking too many amino acids. Dehydration and calcium losses can occur. Also, too much of one amino acid could hinder the absorption of another and perhaps delay muscle building. If your son insists, you may want to consider challenging him to use his spending money on them.

Dear Readers: Every now and then I have to tell you how much I appreciate your kind response to this column. Thank you very much. It makes it easier to face the weekly deadline. Today I would also like to recognize the good work of some Heart Association volunteers who recently answered questions in two grocery stores and led tours of the stores pointing out heart healthy foods. Catherine Schmidt, who is the new director of Women, Infant, Children Nutrition Program (WIC) for Pitt County, was the volunteer chairman. In her everyday job, she and her staff work to improve the nutrition of pregnant women and small children in the county. Thanks to Drew Jones and Lori Hoffman, nutritionists who work with Catherine at the Health Department who helped out. Jo Bartlett and Linda Walker who work with me in Family Medicine led store tours as did Nancy Gray in pediatrics. Folks who helped man the information table and answer questions were Pam Hardy, family nurse practitioner from Pediatrics, Sue Daugherty, nutritionist in Medicine, and Renae Rogerson, dietitian at Cherry Hospital. A few East Carolina University dietetic students came out too.

We also thank you who supported us and came out to learn about food choices you can make.

Cook Smart With Convenient, Quality Frozen Pies

Just as frozen entrees are no longer considered TV dinners, frozen pies now offer even the fussiest shopper the best quality and convenience, and at a reasonable price.

When shopping for frozen pies, remember that there are different types of pies and different levels of quality. "Bake and serve" frozen pies are unbaked. Look for those that can be defrosted in the microwave to reduce baking time, then finished in a conventional oven for a crisp crust. (Microwave defrosting can reduce overall preparation time to under 30 minutes.) Another type of pie, "oven fresh in minutes" is already baked. All you need to do is to warm in the microwave for about 10 minutes to enjoy full flavor.

If you intend to microwave the pie - whether for defrosting or heating - check the package to make sure the pie pan is microwave safe. The best packaging will allow microwaves to penetrate the bottom of the pan for even heating.

Available in many varieties - whether apple, cherry, blueberry, lemon meringue, pecan, pumpkin or mince - quality frozen pies are a no-fail alternative to home-prepared. Use your kitchen talent to create special toppings, sauces and other creative garnishes to compliment the pie's distinctive flavor. Many of these additions take little time to prepare, especially using the microwave. Whether you are an experienced cook or a novice, experiment with homemade expressions to give a personal touch to any pie.

Remember, you have a good base to start from. Frozen pies, whether "bake and serve" or "oven fresh in minutes," offers contemporary convenience with traditional taste.

MINTED WHIPPED CREAM
1 frozen pie (or baked apple)

3 tbs. mint-flavored apple jelly
1/2 pint whipping cream
Mint sprig (optional)
Heat pie in preheated 350 degree oven on baking sheet 45 minutes. Meanwhile, beat jelly in small bowl of electric mixer until smooth; slowly add cream, continue beating until fluffy. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Serve on warm apple pie; garnish with mint; if desired. Serves six to eight.

Variation: Grand Marnier Whip-Cream
Substitute 1/4 cup orange marmalade and 2 tbs. Grand Marnier for apple jelly. Serve on warmed blueberry pie.

CUSTARD SAUCE
1 frozen apple, Dutch apple, cherry or blueberry pie
1 package (3-1/2 ozs) instant vanilla pudding

2 cups milk
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
Heat pie in preheated 350 degree Fahrenheit oven on baking sheet 45 minutes. Meanwhile, prepare pudding according to package directions. Fold in sour cream. Serve immediately or refrigerate until ready to serve. Serve on warm pie. Serves six to eight.
Variations:
Prepare pudding as above, stir in one of the following:

• 1/4 - 1/2 tsp. brandy or rum extract; serve with apple or Dutch apple pie.
• 1/4 cup chopped nuts; serve with apple or Dutch apple pie
• 2 tsp. grated lemon peel; serve with blueberry pie
• 1/4 - 1/2 tsp. almond extract; serve with cherry pie
• 1/4 cup flaked coconut, toasted; serve with cherry pie.

Creamers

mushrooms and garlic in margarine and olive oil. Toss pasta and vegetables in onion cream sauce. Add salt and pepper to taste, sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Garnish with parsley. Yield: 4 servings.

CHICKEN TARRAGON CREAM

2 whole chicken breasts (boneless, skinned, halved. About 8 oz. each breast)

1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 1/2 tablespoons milk-free margarine

2 shallots, sliced
1 carrot, pared, sliced
1/2 cup dry white wine
1 teaspoon dried tarragon
1/4 teaspoon dried chervil
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup chicken broth
1 egg yolk
2 teaspoons flour

1/4 cup frozen non-dairy creamer
Heat oil and margarine and saute chicken breasts until browned. Remove chicken, add shallots and carrot slices and saute until golden. Return chicken to pan and heat. Add white wine, tarragon, chervil, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 30 minutes. Remove chicken to heated serving platter and cover to keep warm.

In a small bowl, combine non-dairy creamer, chicken broth, egg yolk and flour; mix well with wire whisk. Add to strained drippings and bring to boil. Spoon sauce over chicken. Garnish with fresh tarragon, if desired.

Dough

BOBOLI CHEESE CRUSTS

1 one-pound loaf frozen white or honey wheat bread dough
2 teaspoons oil
4 teaspoons Parmesan cheese
1/4 teaspoon Italian seasonings
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
3/4 cup grated Monzzarella cheese
Let frozen dough thaw until pliable. Cut loaf cross-wise into 4 pieces. Using a little flour on dough and board, roll each piece out to a 6-inch diameter circle. Spread dough circles with oil and sprinkle with seasonings. Let rise until very light, 2 to 3 hours. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 12-15 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 4.

Coupon Growth

NEW YORK (AP) - America's use of coupon-redemptions in retail stores continues its explosive growth, according to a report from a New York-based marketing communications company.

In the 1960s, coupon redemptions were very low compared with today's rates, notes the Howard Mariboro Group. In 1970, 16.4 million coupons were redeemed, and by 1980 the number had jumped to 90.6 million.

In the 1990s-it is anticipated the number will zoom past the 400-million level, according to the report, which notes that as recently as 1984 there may have been 500 products in a store offering coupons, rebates and other special inducements.

Frozen Foods Offer Variety Of Selections

Your supermarket frozen food department isn't what it used to be. When commercial frozen foods were introduced in 1930, only 26 items were represented—18 cuts of meat, some fish filets, and a variety of fruits and vegetables.

Today's supermarket frozen food department has more than 1,500 items. However, the increased number of items is only part of the story. Shopping in the department can satisfy almost every mealtime need—from low-sodium, low-fat meals to ethnic foods, combination vegetables, complete breakfasts and gourmet ice cream novelties.

MICROWAVABILITY

Of particular interest is the increasing number of microwavable frozen food products. When shopping for frozen products to use in your microwave oven, look for the frozen food industry's "Microwavable" logo. Many innovations are now being developed that will make almost every frozen product microwavable. For example, some pizzas and French fries are already being packaged on a special tray with a silvery film that browns the product. The tray has a layer of powdered aluminum laminated under a plastic so it absorbs microwaves and heats to a high temperature without causing the microwave to arc.

Frozen waffles now come in an aluminum sleeve that heats the waffle until it is crisp and brown.

Manufacturers are now working hard to find a similar packaging that can be used to fry chicken, fish and other products in the microwave.

NEW PRODUCTS UNDERWAY

Among packaging products under consideration are plastic films that absorb microwaves selectively so different foods will cook at different rates. Presently, manufacturers precook foods for frozen dinners separately to different levels so that when microwaved for a short period of time, all items reach doneness at the same time.

Manufacturers are also preparing more light, good tasting and nutritious products. More items fortified with vitamins and minerals are also seen. Ethnic foods—Mexican, Oriental, Cajun and India—are becoming more available, and sales of complete breakfast combinations are increasing. Most of these products are microwavable.

One-Dish

time in increments of two to three minutes until the meat and vegetables reach the level of doneness you're looking for.

Cover the soup with a tight-fitting lid for faster cooking. The container should have ample room at the top to prevent bubbling over and allow space for stirring.

SERVING FROZEN SOUPS

Soup made ahead can be frozen in individual bowls or in serving-size containers. This will allow you to select out the amount you want to use without defrosting all you have made.

Soup can be frozen, thawed and served in the same bowl. Put the soup in a covered casserole, for example, and microwave on HIGH. Use a fork to separate partially thawed areas for faster defrosting. Individual servings in their own dishes saves even more time. To avoid tying up containers, you can freeze small amounts of soup in ice cube trays or other small containers, then transfer to a freezer bag.

If your microwave oven has a temperature probe, use it to bring your ingredients to the proper temperature. Soup broth should be heated to 160 degrees. Milk-based soups should be served at 150 degree.

Glazed Squash

By NANCY BYAL

Better Homes and Gardens Magazine Food Editor

I've always liked the flavor of acorn squash, but not the time it takes to cook. Now I cook it in my microwave oven, glazed the way my family prefers it, in less than 10 minutes.

CINNAMON-GLAZED SQUASH
1 medium acorn squash (about 1 pound)

2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons dark corn syrup
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
1/8 teaspoon ground cinnamon
Salt and pepper to taste

Quarter squash lengthwise. Scoop out seeds and discard. Arrange squash pieces in an 8- by 8- by 2-inch microwave-safe baking dish. Cover with clear plastic wrap, turning back a corner to let steam escape. Cook on 100 percent power (high) 6 to 9 minutes or until done, giving the dish a half-turn once.

In a 1-cup measure combine sugar, corn syrup, margarine and cinnamon. Cook, uncovered, on high 1 to 2 minutes or until margarine is melted. Stir to blend. Sprinkle squash with salt and pepper. Spoon sugar mixture over top. Cook, covered, for 30 seconds more. Makes 4 servings.

Food Buyers Want It Easy, Fancy, Good, Right Now

Studies of supermarket shopping indicate that Americans are trending toward foods that are ready to eat, quick, fancy, and good tasting — in that order.

Supermarkets are responding to perceived consumer demands by offering in-store delicatessens, bakeries, and enlarged frozen food departments. Growth in these areas is expected to continue well into the 1990s.

Food industry watchers say that while homemakers today spend from two to four hours a day preparing food, in the 1990s they will be willing to spend no more than 10 to 90 minutes a day at the task. Among current growing preferences are:

- Orange juice instead of oranges.
- Frozen vegetables instead of fresh vegetables that need paring and chopping.
- Prepared salads with dressings instead of do-it-yourself salads and dressings.
- Frozen prepared dinners, entrees, breakfasts, and desserts instead of "scratch" meals.
- Microwaveable frozen products instead of almost anything else.

MICROWAVEABILITY
Microwaveable fast foods are becoming increasingly popular. In 1986, more than half of all American homes had a microwave oven, and the number is increasing rapidly. Purchase of a microwave oven has caused many families to increase their visits to their grocer's frozen food aisles, which have more microwaveable products than any other supermarket department.

When shopping for frozen products to use in your microwave oven, look for the frozen food industry's "Microwaveable" logo.

While the frozen food department is the chief source of foods planned for long-term storage, other products are becoming popular for instant use and short-term storage. Many of these are now popping up in supermarket delicatessens and in-store bakeries, and in dairy, refrigerated and even dry grocery departments.

With increasing interest in fresh produce, attempts are being made to insure better quality in fresh food departments. Government banning of many chemicals and preservatives used to keep produce fresh-looking has forced the industry to adopt new sales techniques. Produce is now appearing in shrink-wrap for protection. Brand names and labeling are being seen.

Even the canned food department is beginning to show signs of change. Metal containers that can't be used directly in a microwave oven are now being replaced by cans made of heat-resistant plastic.

The demand for fancy and good tasting meals initiated by frozen upscale dinners several years ago will continue. The trend is already being seen by the increasing interest in frozen ethnic foods, desserts, and even frozen down-home country breakfasts.

To make things easier for their trendy consumers, supermarkets are installing computerized scanners that make checkouts much faster.

Corn

1/2 cup corn meal
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg
Mix ham, peas, corn, cheese, 1/3 cup evaporated milk, onion and Worstershire sauce. Pour into greased 12 x 8 inch baking dish. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 10 minutes or until bubbly at edges; mix well the bisquit mix, corn meal, sugar, salt, egg and remaining evaporated milk. Pour around edge of hot mixture, leaving center uncovered. Bake 20 minutes longer. Serves 6.

BACONIZED CORN
4 cups frozen whole kernel corn
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
1 cup finely diced bacon
Place corn in greased baking dish. Season with salt, sugar and pepper. Cover entire top of dish with finely chopped bacon. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 35 minutes or until bacon is crisp. Serves 6.

CONFETTI BEEF AND MACARONI
1 lb. ground beef
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup diced celery
1 10 oz. pkg. frozen whole kernel corn
2 8 oz. cans tomato sauce
1/2 cup water
1 teaspoon Worstershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 cups cooked macaroni
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese
Brown beef in skillet; add onion, celery and corn. Cook until onion and celery are tender. Remove fat. Add tomato sauce, water, Worstershire sauce, salt and pepper. Stir in macaroni. Place in greased casserole. Sprinkle with cheese and bake at 325 degrees F. for 20 minutes. Serves 6.

U.S. Seaport Cities Inspire Seafood Dishes

Hey, Mom, the fishing's great — in the freezer, that is.

Frozen at sea on modern trawlers, or practically at the water's edge, the fish are fresher than so-called fresh-caught. And the variety available makes your grocer's freezer a veritable Davey Jones treasure-trove.

Cleaned, boned, and ready to cook, today's seafoods come whole, in parts, or in forms. You can buy breaded or unbreaded for almost any recipe. Whole fillets make entrees or casseroles for main meals, while fish sticks and other formed products are also excellent as finger foods.

The following recipes are inspired by the special taste of seafoods in America's great seaport cities. They make exceptional meals that are quick and easy to prepare. Best of all, they provide just-caught flavor because they're made with fresh-frozen fish.

SAN FRANCISCO SWEET-AND-SOUR FISH FILETS

- 1 pkg. (14 oz.) frozen breaded fish fillets
- 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 can (8 oz.) pineapple chunks in juice, drained (reserve juice)
- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar

- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
  - 1 tablespoon catsup
  - 1 pkg. (6 oz) frozen Chinese pea pods, thawed
  - 1 medium carrot, shredded (about 1 cup)
  - 5 cherry tomatoes, cut into halves
- Bake fish fillets as directed on package. Mix brown sugar and cornstarch in 2-quart saucepan. Add enough water to reserved pineapple juice to measure 1/3 cup; stir into brown sugar mixture. Stir in vinegar, soy sauce and catsup. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Stir in pea pods and carrot. Heat to boiling, stirring occasionally; reduce heat. Simmer uncovered 3 minutes. Stir in pineapple and tomatoes; heat until hot. Serve over fish fillets. 4 servings.

NEW ORLEANS FISH AND CREOLE RICE

- 1 pkg. (12 oz.) frozen fish fillets
  - 2/3 cup uncooked regular rice
  - 1/2 cup water
  - 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1/8 teaspoon ground red pepper
  - 2 green onions (with tops), sliced
  - 1 can (16 oz.) stewed tomatoes, undrained
  - 2 tablespoons snipped parsley
- Bake fish fillets as directed on package. Heat remaining ingredients except parsley to boiling in 2-quart saucepan, stirring once or twice; reduce heat. Cover and simmer 14 minutes. (Do not lift cover or stir.) Remove from heat. Stir in parsley; cover and let stand 5 to 10 minutes. Spoon rice mixture onto serving platter; top with fish fillets. 4 servings.

BOSTON CHOWDER CASSEROLE

- 1 cup milk
  - 1 can (10-3/4 oz.) condensed cream of celery soup
  - 4 cups frozen cubed (southern style) hash brown potatoes
  - 3/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
  - 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- Heat over to 400 degrees F. Mix milk and soup in 2-1/2 quart bowl. Stir in remaining ingredients except paprika and fish sticks. Pour into ungreased rectangular baking dish, 13x9x2 inches; sprinkle with paprika. Bake uncovered 20 minutes. Arrange fish sticks on potato mixture. Bake uncovered until fish sticks are crisp and brown, about 20 minutes longer. Sprinkle with snipped parsley if desired. 6 servings.

Frozen Juices Add Zing To Recipes

Frozen concentrated juices and drinks have been valued for their quality, economy and convenience since the first frozen concentrated orange juice was introduced more than 40 years ago. An added benefit is that these handy products can be used "as is" to add the zip of fruit flavor to beverages, entrees and desserts.

Frozen concentrates are ideal for use in recipes. They impart an intense concentrated flavor, which can be used in small amounts to add a fruity note that permeates the dish, or in larger quantities as the main flavoring element. For entrees and baked goods, concentrates add flavor without a large quantity of liquid.

Experiment on your own with adding frozen concentrated orange juice, lemonade, apple juice or other concentrates to your favorite recipes, or try these delicious recipes. Some use concentrates only; others use a combination of concentrates and full-strength juices or beverages.

APPLE PECAN MUFFINS

- 2 cups buttermilk baking mix

- 1 egg, slightly beaten
  - 1/2 cup chopped pecans
  - 1/4 cup sugar
  - 1/4 cup frozen concentrated apple juice, thawed and undiluted
  - 1/2 cup water
  - 2 tbsp. butter or margarine, softened
  - 1/4 tsp. ground cinnamon
- Grease 12 medium muffin cups. Combine all ingredients in mixing bowl and mix just until dry ingredients are moistened. Do not over-mix. Spoon batter into prepared muffin cups. Bake 12 to 15 minutes at 400 degrees fahrenheit.

LOW-CALORIE TANGERINE SOUFFLE DESSERT

- 1 envelope (1 tbsp.) unflavored gelatin
- 1/2 cup sugar, divided
- 1 cup water
- 1 can (6 oz.) frozen concentrated tangerine juice, thawed and undiluted
- 1/2 cup ice water
- 1/2 cup instant non-fat dry milk
- 2 tbsp. lemon juice from concentrate

Combine gelatin and 1/4 cup of sugar in saucepan. Stir in water. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat; stir in tangerine juice concentrate. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture is consistency of unbeaten egg white. While mixture is chilling, pour ice water into mixing bowl; add milk. Beat until soft peaks form (about three to four minutes). Add lemon juice. Continue beating three or four minutes more until firm peaks form. Gradually add remaining 1/4 cup sugar. Fold in gelatin mixture. Turn into serving bowl; chill until firm. Garnish with whipped topping and fresh fruit (cantaloupe, grapes, strawberries, blueberries, etc.).

ORANGE COOKIES

- 3 cups flour
  - 3 tbsp. baking powder
  - 1/2 tsp. salt
  - 1/2 tsp. baking soda
  - 3/4 cup shortening
  - 1-1/4 cups sugar
  - 2 eggs
  - 1 can (6 oz.) frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed and undiluted
  - 1 cup chopped pecans
- Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and baking soda. Set aside. Cream shortening and add sugar gradually, beating until mixture is light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add dry ingredients alternately with orange juice concentrate. Blend well. Fold in pecans. Chill in refrigerator at least three hours. Drop by teaspoonsful onto greased cookie sheet 2-3 inches apart. Bake in 375 degree fahrenheit oven 10-12 minutes. Remove immediately and place on cooling rack. Makes approximately five dozen cookies.

LIVELY ANGEL FOOD CAKE

- 1 box (16 oz.) white angel food cake mix
- 1-1/3 cups reconstituted frozen concentrated citrus beverage

Prepare cake mix according to package directions, substituting concentrated citrus beverage for the water. Bake and cool as directed. Remove from pan and drizzle with glaze.

Glaze: Melt butter or margarine in small saucepan. Remove from heat and stir in confectioners' sugar. Add frozen thawed concentrate, one tablespoon at a time, until glaze is of desired consistency.

A World of Freshness At Your Fingertips

Festival

Your favorite food stores/ supermarkets are featuring frozen foods during the month of October. Frozen foods offer incomparable value for your food dollar. Freshness, nutrition, labeling, quality, taste, convenience, no waste, availability, economy... you get them all! Edible ounce for edible ounce, frozen food costs are usually less than their fresh counterparts.

Coupled with a microwave, virtually anyone can have a piping hot, nutritious ready-to-eat meal in minutes. Check out the frozen foods section of your market today! There's always something new!

WIN AMERICAN'S CARIBBEAN VACATION FOR TWO (4 days, 3 nights)

Advertising Supplement to The Daily Reflector, October 5, 1988.

- ★ Includes round trip coach transportation from RDU, or nearest city served by American Airlines or American Eagle.
- ★ 4 days, 3 nights stay at the Royal Antiguan Resort & Casino—Antigua, W. I. (a SAVOY Resort).

A virtual paradise in an idyllic Caribbean setting. Enjoy all the activities The Royal Antiguan has to offer: sailing, windsurfing, water skiing, scuba diving, paddle boats, snorkeling, tennis and golf! Antigua has a temperature of 80 degrees with 365 Atlantic and Caribbean beaches to explore... even a rain forest! You could win this perfect vacation, sponsored by American Airlines, The Royal Antigua Resort & Casino, and the Eastern North Carolina Frozen Food Association.

VOL. 6 THE FRONTIER

AMERICAN HERITAGE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

VOLUME 6 • THE FRONTIER. Pushing west, men like John C. Fremont and Jedediah Smith opened up a breathtaking expanse of new country. As pioneer families followed the trailblazers through the forests and across the deserts, tension with Mexico flared into bloodshed at the siege of the Alamo, while hundreds of miles away, war was looming with Britain over our northern boundary.

THE 50,000-MILE TEST

We ran a set of these tires for 50,000 miles over all types of driving terrain. Then they went through the same tests NEW tires have to pass under federal regulations. They exceeded every requirement of the standards!

Plunger test: Federal standards specify 2600 lb. pressure. But the Sears RoadHandler Response withstood 6800 lb. — over 2½ times the force.

Endurance test: 1700 non-stop miles at 50 mph. RoadHandler passed the test and kept on going.
