John Paul Speech Shattered By Irish Protestant Leader

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — Pope John Paul II today urged a common political structure for Europe during a speech that was interrupted when the Rev. Ian Paisley, a militant Protestant leader, shouted "I renounce you!"

The address to the European Parliament — an advisory body to the 12-member European Economic Community — was the pontiff's main speech during his four-day trip to northeastern France.

After a welcome by Lord Plumb, president of the Parliament, the pope began speaking but was immediately interrupted by Paisley, standing at the back of the room. "I renounce you! I renounce you as the anti-Christ!" shouted Paisley, a parliamentarian and the leader of the Irish Protestant Democratic Unionist Party, the more militant of the two main Protestant parties in Northern Ireland.

Other parliamentarians surrounded Paisley, threw papers at him and tore from his hands a crude orange banner reading, "John Paul II, anti-Christ."

Plumb called for Paisley to be evicted from the chamber, and parliamentarians applauded as he was led away. Paisley later told journalists: "I was hammered. I was beaten about the ears and the body."

It was the second incident in Parliament this week in which Paisley denounced the pope.

Paisley has spearheaded opposition to the 1985 Anglo-Irish Agreement, which granted the government of Catholic-dominated Ireland a say in the running of Northern Ireland, a British province where 60 percent of the population is Protestant.

The pope has called for peace and reconciliation between Catholics and Protestants in Northern Ireland without taking a stand on whether the province should be united with the Irish Republic.

John Paul remained impassive throughout the interruption and quietly resumed his speech. He was again interrupted, this time by applause.

As he has throughout the trip, the pontiff endorsed a common political structure for Europe and called on Europe to "resume her role as a beacon in the civilization of the world" by fighting pollution, prejudice and secularization.

"A common political structure, emanation of the free will of the European citizens, far from en-

Taiwanese Tour Farmville Plant

FARMVILLE — Twenty-six businessmen from the Republic of China (Taiwan) visited Farmville Monday and are in Raleigh today to sign a contract to buy $63 million worth of North Carolina tobacco.

The delegation toured A.C. Monk Tobacco Company's tobacco processing plant as part of a two-week mission to the United States. The group is planning to buy about 36 million pounds of flue-cured leaf this marketing year, according to a spokesman.

"We're here to promote more imports (into Taiwan) from your country," said Augustine C.T. Wu, delegation leader and an official with Taiwan's Ministry of Economic Affairs.

The tour and contract are part of Taiwan's 1988 Buy American Promotion Mission, an effort to import more American products.

"We need good quality and good price," Wu said after touring the Monk company. "Since you have these two conditions that meet our requirements, we are here."

State and private tobacco experts said the Taiwanese have been consistent customers of North Carolina farmers, buying soybeans, corn and tobacco for years.

"It is important to our farmers because there has been decline in consumption on the domestic (leaf) market," said James R. Oliver, agriculture adviser to Gov. Jim Martin.

After the tour, company executives treated the group to barbecue at the Farmville Country Club.

"We're just giving them a look around," said Hal G. Abbott, a state Department of Commerce trade specialist, who accompanied the group to Farmville and later to an agricultural research station near Clayton.

North Carolina was one of seven states on the delegation's itinerary, said Alvin Pan, a representative of a Taiwanese paper company. He said the group was looking for products which might interest firms in Taiwan.

Tom Parrish, Monk's administrative coordinator for sales, said the group appeared to be open to "fanfare" to let the world know they were conducting the mission, which is part of their country's effort to point out the imbalance of trade between Taiwan and the United States.

He said two Monk Co. officials, James Bennett and Keith Oakley, are in Raleigh today for the contract signing at the state capitol.

District A Voters Go To Polls

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Voters in Consolidated District A are returning to the polls today to vote for a third time in the Pitt County commissioner race between D.D. Garrett of Greenville and James H. Dupree of Bethel.

Polling sites in 10 precincts in District A opened today at 6:30 a.m. and are scheduled to remain open until 7:30 p.m.

Dupree won the May 3 Democratic primary with less than 50 percent of the vote, then Garrett won the May 31 runoff by two votes. But after hearing evidence that ineligible voters participated in the all-Democratic runoff, the state Board of Elections ordered a new primary.

Pitt elections supervisor Margaret Hardee said today there have been no reports of problems at the precincts. "They're probably getting off to a slow start. But we're thinking the turnout is going to be pretty good, with all the interest that has been shown," she said.

The Garrett-Dupree contest is the only race on today's ballot, but Mrs. Hardee said the polls are fully staffed with precinct workers and the Pitt Board of Elections is conducting the election just as it would any other.

"Although there is only one ballot, we are using qualified-to-vote forms so (precinct workers) will be accustomed to it," Mrs. Hardee said.

AIDS Rally Arrests

Police in Rockville, Md., arrested demonstrators today at a mass protest outside the Food and Drug Administration's headquarters. The protest was designed to show dissatisfaction with government efforts to combat AIDS.

Israelis Break Up Funeral

BETHLEHEM, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israeli soldiers today broke up a funeral procession for a Palestinian teen-ager by jumping aboard a van carrying the body and forcing it to drive to away.

About 100 Palestinian mourners responded by throwing rocks and firebombs at the soldiers, who fired rubber and metal bullets to disperse the crowd.

Four Israeli soldiers jumped aboard a red van carrying the body of Nazem Abu Juda after the Palestinians in the procession began throwing stones.

Two army jeeps forced the van, driven by a Palestinian, to accompany the soldiers to a location the army refused to disclose.

An army spokesman, who is not identified under regulations, said the body was taken to halt a large demonstration. He said it would be returned "at a time when we know it would not cause disturbances in Bethlehem."

During the disturbance, soldiers shot a 19-year-old man in the side with a plastic bullet, Arab witnesses said. The army confirmed one man

Lost Hikers Burn Dollar Bills For Heat

MOUNT WASHINGTON, N.H. (AP) — Three lost hikers survived snow, fog and sub-zero wind chills on Mount Washington by burning dollar bills to keep their fire going, they said after making it off the treacherous peak.

The three, fraternity brothers at Northeastern University in Boston, spent about 25 hours Sunday and Monday on the mountain, where a storm created four-foot snowdrifts and strong winds dropped the wind-chill factor to 17 below zero.

"We burned dollar bills to stay dry," Andy Stewart, 23, of Syosset, N.Y., said Monday after he and his companions reached safety by following a dry riverbed down the mountain. None of the three was harmed by the ordeal.

Forty rescuers searched mountain trails most of Monday, looking for Stewart, Matt Dube, 21, of Bethany, Conn., and Steve Sardella, 20, of Marlboro, Mass. A fourth member of the group, Noel Bouvier of Boston, left the others late Sunday afternoon.

The four came to New Hampshire to spend the Columbus Day weekend at a friend's cottage and decided to climb the mountain for fun, Bouvier said.

They left the base camp at Pinkham's Notch on the east side of the mountain at 1 p.m. Sunday, planning to make the four-mile climb to the summit and return the same night, Bouvier said. The climb normally takes about four hours.

They were wearing three layers of clothing and carried extra sweaters, Bouvier said. The others had hiking boots on, but Bouvier turned back because his boots had little traction.

Before reaching the summit, a storm blew in and the three hikers lost their way. "I couldn't see my hand in front of my face," Stewart said. They turned back, hiking until dark, trying to make their way below the tree line in the hope trees would shelter them from the wind.

After dark, they started a fire and ate sandwiches, apples, nuts and crackers they had carried on the hike.

"We burned whatever we could, bank cards, money, phone numbers," Sardella said, without specifying how much cash went up in smoke. They kept moving around the fire throughout the night to keep hypothermia from setting in.

"There was a point where we really didn't think we were going to make it," said Stewart. But they never verbalized the fear that they might die, Dube added. "We all thought it, but never said it."

Records compiled by the U.S. Forest Service and others indicate that 103 people have died on Washington since 1849.

GUC Customers Getting New Bills

The Greenville Utilities Commission approved the purchase of a new computer system in October of last year — a system which would mean change for almost every level of the GUC organization.

This week GUC customers, whose bills were printed and mailed on Monday, will see evidence of one of those changes when they discover a new GUC bill in their mailboxes.

The new bill is a first for Greenville Utilities and the community. It marks the first time Greenville Utilities has produced its own bills in-house by computer.

"It is a giant step from the early days when all bills were written by hand," Curtis Howell, GUC's director of finance said. "We're excited to be able to generate our bills locally with our own computer and our own staff."

The handwritten bills were the rule until April 1974 when GUC contracted with Network Billing System in Charlotte to generate bills by computer.

"But we have grown to the point — 35,000 bills a month — where it is more cost-effective and efficient to produce our bills in-house," Howell said. "We hope our customers find the new bills easier to read and more informative than the old bills."

Howell said "The new bill is the same blue, postcard-style as the old bill, but the new one contains additional information to assist customers in efficient energy management."

"It lists degree days for heating and cooling, as well as information which, in the future, will compare a customer's electric, gas and water usage with the same month last year."

Malcolm Green, GUC's general manager, said "The new bill is just one example of changes we are making to keep pace with Greenville's rapid growth and GUC's steadily increasing number of customers."

Doub Refutes Taft Statement

By Stuart Savage
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Randy Doub, a member of the state Board of Transportation, said this morning that he never issued a "clean bill of health" in connection with Sen. Tom Taft's involvement in the selection of the route for four-laned U.S. 264.

Doub's comments concerned a story published Monday in The Daily Reflector which quoted Taft as saying Doub "gave my role a clean bill of health ... when he said in a letter to me dated Sept. 24, 1986, 'It is unfortunate the matter became a public issue. I do not consider it newsworthy. I still consider the issue closed, with no implication of impropriety on anyone's part.'"

Taft's statement was made after Bill Dansey, a Republican trying to upset Taft's bid for re-election to the 9th Senatorial District seat, Monday renewed charges made during Taft's 1986 re-election campaign that Taft used his political influence to have the new U.S. 264 run through three tracts of his property west of Greenville.

Taft was not a member of the General Assembly at the time, but was chairman of the state Ports Authority.

Doub, a Republican, said this morning, "If Tom Taft considers my letter of Sept. 24, 1986, to be a 'clean bill of health, then Mr. Taft's memory has had bypass surgery and Taft's ethical judgment needs treatment in intensive care."

Doub, who said Taft took his letter totally out of context, said early in 1986 a number of Pitt County residents suggested the issue of political influence on the U.S. 264 corridor should be explored. "As a result, items of public record such as deeds, right-of-way maps, court records and correspondence were reviewed by the U.S. Attorney's office.

"When the review by the U.S. Attorney's office became public, I let Tom know by this letter that the review ... should not have become a public issue, especially when they said there was no basis for taking any legal action," Doub said.

"The question of illegalities as reviewed by the U.S. Attorney's office or unethical judgment as alleged by Bill Dansey's campaign are different questions," according to Doub. "If in Mr. Taft's conscience, he can feel good about his role in lobbying for the route of U.S. 264 ... while owning property along his preferred route, then that's his business. But I can not allow him to use my name or a letter taken out of context to defend his actions."

In Monday's edition of The Reflector, Taft was quoted as saying Dansey endorsed the present route of the four-laned U.S. 264 at a public hearing on Nov. 29, 1987. The correct date of the Department of Transportation hearing should have been Nov. 28, 1978.

An official transcript of that hearing quotes Dansey as saying, in part, "I am a developer who has developments located all along this proposed freeway in Greenville and Wilson and Raleigh ... I think Corridor D (the present route) is the one that it should be ..."

Dansey has charged that Taft used political influence to have the road run through three tracts of his property west of Greenville.

But Taft has denied any wrongdoing and said the "mudslinging and charges" by Dansey "are ... nothing but a grudge because I bought the most valuable tract from him in 1975 ... at a very low price."

ECU Study Focuses On Cocaine Effects

ECU NEWS BUREAU

Long-term behavioral effects of cocaine and its highly potent derivative, crack, on infants born to drug-abusive mothers will be investigated in an East Carolina University School of Medicine study supported by an $80,000 grant from the Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration.

Dr. Brian A. McMillen, associate professor of pharmacology at ECU, will spend the next three years determining behavioral effects of the drugs at all stages of gestation. He also hopes to discover the link between these effects and the biochemical changes which cause them.

Physicians believe that prenatal exposure to these drugs is responsible for hyperactivity and learning and memory impairments in children born to cocaine-addicted mothers.

"Our research is novel because unlike other studies of late, we are concentrating on the consequences of cocaine exposure in each stage of postnatal development," said McMillen.

He said previous studies have emphasized the drug's immediate effects on infants at birth, which include uncontrollable crying spells, severe birth defects and seizures.

"If we can determine biochemical changes in the brain leading to behavioral dysfunctions, perhaps we will be able to develop drug therapy and other forms of treatment for these children," he said.

McMillen, a member of the medical school faculty since 1982, has special research interests in drugs such as cocaine and amphetamines which affect the central nervous system. He has also conducted extensive research on anti-psychotic drugs and tranquilizers.

Teachers: Irma H. Blann, Michell Hamm, Lee B. Hamm

Teaching Is A Family Tradition

By William A. Shires
ECU NEWS BUREAU

Irma Hill Blann of Goldsboro, who received a normal school diploma at East Carolina Teachers College signed by President Robert H. Wright 57 years ago and is a veteran of 42 years of teaching, rode on the school of education float in East Carolina University's homecoming parade Saturday.

"I feel that I am a part of this school," said the 84 year-old Mrs. Blann.

"I cried, of course, when Daddy let me off at Cotten Dormitory in 1927," she recalled. "He said, 'I'll take you home if you don't want to stay.' But I said, 'I'll stick it out' and I did."

"And I have," she said, proudly. She received her first certificate in 1931 and carried it with her Saturday.

Her daughter, Lee, came to East Carolina College in 1960 and earned a bachelor's degree in 1963. Now Mrs. Lee Hamm of Goldsboro, she has taught for 25 years at Meadow Lane School in Wayne County and in the interim earned a master's degree in education, also at ECU.

Then when Mrs. Hamm's daughter, Michelle, was 6 years old she began visiting her mother's first grade classroom at Meadow Lane, exploring the desks and using chalk at the blackboard.

"She was pretending to be a teacher," her mother said. "She loved to do it and would come to school and wait for me all of the years when she was growing up."

"Well," Mrs. Blann said to Mrs. Hamm, "You did the same thing when you were growing up. You'd come to my classroom and pretend."

When Michelle Hamm's adviser asked why she chose education for a career, Michelle replied, "I've always known that I would be a teacher. I've had that feeling."

Majoring in early childhood education, Michelle Hamm is an ECU junior and when she is graduated in 1990, it will mark the third generation of teachers in the same

Ayden Board OKs New Police Radio

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Ayden Board of Commissioners has authorized a budget amendment to allow the police department to purchase a new radio console for its communication center.

At the board's monthly meeting Monday, Ayden Police Chief Tim Phillips asked the commissioners to appropriate $9,117.95 to purchase a new console, antenna and other equipment needed to replace the department's 17-year-old communication network.

The board unanimously approved the measure to amend the budget, agreeing to move the money from the town's fund balance to the capital equipment fund.

Phillips said a relay switch in the existing system has failed, and repairs have told him the part is obsolete and advised him to purchase a new system. The malfunction disrupted incoming messages to the police network, according to Phillips, who said the entire system could fail at any time.

"The problem we have with the system now, is it's liable to go out any day," Phillips said to the board. "It's just a matter of time." He said the network has been "patched up" and is currently operational.

The new system will have eight available channels and allow police officers to use two channels at once, Phillips said. The system will allow officers to patch directly into a telephone line from a radio line and it will be linked to the town's utility and fire networks.

The system will also be compatible with the county's new "911" emergency service. It could take 30 to 45 days before the equipment is installed, Phillips said.

In other business, the board awarded a contract to Weeks Construction Co. of Asheboro to install an electrical transmission line to the Weyerhaeuser plant set to begin operations in Ayden next year. Weeks submitted a bid of $112,407, which is about $8,000 less than the engineer's estimates for the project, town manager Don Russell said.

The board approved a contract with Dale Holland to make homes in the Community Development Block Grant program more energy-efficient. The town will pay Holland $5,909 for the work, Russell said, and the low cost of the project may allow the town to provide aid to homes outside the grant program area at a later time.

The board also approved the reappointment of Sherry Denny, Jim Mitchell and Robert Smith, all of Ayden, to serve three-year terms on the Ayden Planning Board.

Evangelists Plead Guilty In Sex Case

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Three Georgia evangelists entered guilty pleas today to charges they ran a boy sex ring and a federal judge began hearing evidence to decide whether he will accept the pleas.

Mario "Tony" Leyva, Rias Edward Morris and Freddie M. Herring had previously said they were innocent but they changed their pleas today under a deal that will let them serve their prison time in a special unit for child molesters at the federal prison in Butner, N.C.

Leyva entered guilty pleas to one count of conspiracy and three counts of transporting minors across state lines for prostitution. Morris entered guilty pleas to one count of conspiracy and three counts of aiding and abetting the transportation of minors across state lines for prostitution. Herring entered guilty pleas to one count of transporting a minor across state lines for prostitution and one count of aiding and abetting.

The three men told U.S. District Judge James Turk they had been involved in the boy sex scheme along the revival circuit, and Turk accepted their pleas. Leyva said he wanted to "ask forgiveness" of the victims and their families.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Bad Cinema

No Celluloid Con Job For N.C.

Bonzo may be in Washington, but it looks like his cousins have invaded North Carolina.

Bob Jordan and Jim Martin seem hell-bent on making monkey business out of North Carolina's 1988 gubernatorial race.

It's not bad enough neither one of them will clearly discuss issues. Now they have to square off on television with political advertisements that look more like spots for bad sitcoms.

While Boss Hawg takes aim at Democrat Jordan, chimpanzees flip flop on desk tops in an effort to make Republican Martin look like an ape.

Well this isn't Hazzard County, boys, and the governor's race is no Tarzan film. What you're doing is not funny and that's the best of it. It's in poor taste, insulting to the voters and demeaning to the political process.

Didn't politicians learn anything from the 1984 blood battle for the U.S. Senate between Jim Hunt and Jesse Helms? The public certainly should have. Never before have so many been so disgusted at so much tv bull saying nothing and slinging large quantities of North Carolina mud and red clay.

Now, four years later, it's worse. The campaign for governor seems to have degenerated to a contest for cutsey. Is this the fate that befalls meaningful political debate in a progressive state in the late 20th century? Is the aim of campaigning to amuse? Just whose brainchild was this inane effort at jocularity? If it was the candidates' idea, send 'em back to scriptwriting school. Then send 'em to Hollywood.

Both candidates are saying something worth note. The legislative process has been too closed during Jordan's tenure as lieutenant governor. And Jim Martin's 1988-89 budget proposal was hopelessly out of balance. Somewhere, these two candidates have some substance. Their records as senator, lieutenant governor, Congressman and governor prove it. They are both qualified for the office they seek. But instead of openly discussing differences and the crises of education, environment and economics the state faces, Jordan and Martin would rather be cute on video.

North Carolina wants better, and North Carolina deserves better. Jordan, Martin, your constituents are not stupid. While North Carolina has its share of fools and suckers, when it comes to leaders, this rural-urban, rich-poor, land of diversity just won't stand for a Celluloid con job.

So save the urge to entertain voters for your swearing-in festivities, fellows. Keep Boss Hawg out of politics in North Carolina. Take the monkeys off the table in the governor's office, and for heaven's sake, turn this race for office into a debate about issues, not a stupidity contest.

The intelligent state of North Carolina will thank the one of you who does the job best by electing you governor.

More Go To Prison Than College

WASHINGTON — The number of blacks graduating from Maryland colleges has remained fairly steady for at least a decade. That, given the fears about Reagan administration cuts in education loans, is surprisingly good news.

But the percentage of men among those graduates is declining to the point that less than a third of black graduates in the state are men. That isn't just bad news; it is potential disaster.

And it gets worse. There are more college-age black men in prison than in college.

Roscoe Nix, president of the Montgomery County NAACP, made the point the other day at a news conference called to announce the creation of a task force to investigate the problem.

Nix said he was struck by a recent study by the Maryland State Board for Higher Education revealing a drop of 10 percentage points in 10 years in the ratio of black men earning bachelor's degrees. And while his focus is on Maryland, the trend is national.

I visit upwards of a dozen colleges and universities each year, and I am constantly struck by the dearth of black men on campus. Indeed, if it weren't for the recruitment of black athletes, the numbers would be even worse.

Nix calls it a crisis, and I wouldn't argue the point. The growing gap between male and female educational attainment among blacks exacerbates — and is exacerbated by — virtually all the social problems that have captured our attention: the disproportionate joblessness among black men; the growing income gap between black and white families; the growth of the dispirited black underclass; the spiraling crime rate; out-of-control children, even the increases in out-of-wedlock births and single-parent households in the black community.

It's hard to separate cause and effect. I look at the campuses where black women outnumber black men by ratios of three or four or five to one and wonder where these soon-to-be-professional women are going to find husbands. Many of them won't, and the impact on black family structure is obvious.

But the deteriorating family structure in America's inner cities is also a cause of the relative absence of black men in college. Single mothers find it harder to persuade their sons that academic exertion is manly when their peers in the street are teaching them that manhood consists of defying the law, acting tough and "getting over" — perhaps by dealing drugs.

What has caused the disastrous downward spiral? "My own bias," says Nix, "is that America has never projected a positive image of black men. A visitor from Mars looking at American television (except for 'The Cosby Show') would conclude that black men are all pimps, athletes or entertainers. He wouldn't know about the black men who work two jobs to send their children to school, who run small businesses and pay their taxes."

But he acknowledges that the negative image of black men isn't the whole answer. "I've been re-reading W.E.B. Dubois' 'Black Reconstruction,' and he talks about how black men had this great love of education because they saw it as liberating. What has happened since then? Maybe we felt we had more control over our destiny in those days than we do now."

But that's all speculation. Nix wants solid facts, which is why he has asked 15 black professionals — men and women, many of them from backgrounds of poverty — to undertake a study of the decline in black male college enrollment.

"Black men have never been even with black women in terms of education, but this latest decline is frightening. It has serious negative consequences for the black family and our entire community. It's not just a question of unequal income. It's hard for an uneducated husband to be an equal partner with an educated woman. If you have sons in a family, who will they look up to for educational guidance? A lot of educated black women ask themselves why they need a husband to take care of and decide to have children without a husband, and that just adds to the problem."

If the Maryland NAACP can find some answers to the questions posed by Nix, it would have major implications nationally.

'Single mothers find it harder to persuade their sons that academic exertion is manly when their peers in the street are teaching them that manhood consists of defying the law'

"Our state is not unique," Nix points out. "We hope that we can come up with something that could serve as a model for other communities in our nation."

If it happens, it will be because Roscoe Nix and the Montgomery County NAACP had the guts to go public with an embarrassing problem, put aside the search for scapegoats, and look for workable answers to some fiendishly difficult questions.

Liberal Education Spins The Magic Of Crossed Boundaries

Albert Wachtel

Essentially, education is a question of purposes: Why learn? Why teach? Once that's settled, we can talk about what and how.

Efficiency in the realm of the known is what is wanted, technical training suffices. It produces versions of things, efficient cogs — human carbon paper at worst and human computer programs at best. It stamps out human components for jobs that range from middle management down, employees who devote a prescribed time, in exchange for a prescribed sum of money, to work on problems within the limits of their mapped-out competencies. They spend eight hours a night gearing up for their eight-hour day, and the eight remaining hours trying to justify the other 16.

How? With pleasures that threaten to become boring. Many cling to interests that have little to do with their lives. They root for teams, watch soaps or flicks or horses, hate distant enemies and love comfortable gods, challenge the odds at Vegas or on commodities. Some seek out anodynes and become dependent on them. Some simply despair.

Most of them fail to escape. Cogs may wobble, but they aren't going anywhere unless the whole machine moves. They can break, of course, but at that point they become useless, maybe even dangerous, to themselves as well as to the machine. Japan has excelled on the technical level, but the costs to the Japanese are as obvious as the benefits. Companies control families, and after business hours the bars fill up with workers seeking release from their mechanized days.

The aim of a liberal education, on the other hand, is to produce humanized days, enhanced human lives. It aims to develop the creators of advances in the arts and sciences, improvements in the social and technological realms, directors of businesses that grow and accommodate themselves to the needs and possibilities of a changing world. It is the difference between adding the same number six times and realizing that you can multiply, between multiplying and inventing the calculator, between using a computer program and envisioning one.

The net result of such an education when successful is an undivided person, one for whom work is a form of recreation and leisure a form of productive openness. For such people, the workday is part of the pleasure and challenge of living. They wear no dour masks for Mondays because they find work, like leisure, to be a fulfilling aspect of their lives, a part funded by the rewards of productive engagement.

Again, if technical efficiency is the goal, the what and how are easy. There is a body of known material — specified facts, regularized procedures, relevant rules — that gets summed up, charted out, committed to memory where necessary, and obeyed. The process of learning under such circumstances is a form of conditioning: When in doubt, try to remember; if memory fails, look the problem up; if it is not in the manual, ask a superior; if memory, manual and superior fail short, the problem is insoluble. The unknown gets solved from outside or not at all.

The liberal arts aim precisely at the insoluble. They explore the world speculatively in a quest for vision, the excitement and pleasure of recovering what was known and making inroads into the unknown. They do so not through lists of facts, though lists have a place in them; not through memorizing, though it often helps; not by teaching formulas and techniques, though that, too, must be done; not by counseling subservience, though at times it is unavoidable.

What, then, do the liberal arts teach? Ways of thinking, exploring, understanding, with what Keats called negative capability, the art of seeing and feeling empathetically through the eyes of the other.

By what conjurings do they work?

The magic of crossed boundaries.

It took a physicist, Franz Boas, to bring scientific rigor to anthropology. It took the genius of another Franz, Kafka, to give the 20th century an image of the social and personal horrors of mid-century history. It took giants of drama and art to give direction to Sigmund Freud and

'What, then, do the liberal arts teach? Ways of thinking, exploring, understanding, with what Keats called negative capability, the art of seeing and feeling empathetically through the eyes of the other. They are three times visionary: They yield vistas on the past, offer insights into the present and open windows on a future ...'

Carl Jung in their explorations of the psyche.

It took historians, psychologists and economic philosophers, among others, to give angles on their work to literary critics, and critics in turn to lend tools of analysis to cultural historians.

It took advances in geology to give Charles Darwin a mechanism by which to explain the unique development of animals in different times and areas of the world. Mathematics opened doors for fields as disparate as sociology and physics.

African masks inspired Pablo Picasso. Chinese characters proved instructive to the Imagists, and the drama of Japan to William Butler Yeats.

It was a visual image — sitting on a light beam and flying away from a clock — that set Albert Einstein on the quest that yielded a fixed speed for light and relaand imagination, exposed to the best that has been accomplished so far, not just in their fields of interest but in the known world generally, stand a better chance of contributing. They have a better shot at finding out what they truly enjoy, what they are good at, in which areas they would like to develop their productive energies. If they can be made to see — by example, perhaps — that the best we know is limited and how contemporaries are working to make further discoveries, to qualify the old ones and open new paths by identifying new problems, they can be inspired to take up the baton in their chosen fields of endeavor. In the context of a world rich in other fascinating and potentially related races, they can run their own legs into an uncharted and therefore hope-filled future.

The liberal arts? They are three times visionary: They yield vistas on the past, offer insights into the present and open windows on a future that they themselves will brighten by providing the minds that will shine in it.

The Einsteins and Kafkas of the world are rare; the Freuds and Karl Marxes and Boases, too. Not every aspirant can become a Madame Curie or a Virginia Woolf. But people of intelligence

Pinochet Doesn't Understand Depth Of Popular Repudiation

Ariel Dorfman

SANTIAGO, Chile — For the first time since Gen. Augusto Pinochet took power in a bloody coup 15 years ago, the Chilean people have had a chance to express, in a plebiscite, what we really feel about the dictator, and we have told him, by a substantial majority, that we want no more of him and his methods.

It can be said in the government's favor that it did not try to steal the election or commit outright fraud, as I and many of my fellow citizens and indeed the U.S. government feared might happen. If the electoral process turned out to be clean, it was not, however, fair. The dictatorship had a series of advances and used them to the hilt.

In a country where 45 percent of the population is extremely poor, the control of the state and its system of subsidies — for housing, for unemployment, for health — allowed unelected municipal authorities to exercise tremendous pressure on the people they should have been serving. The government's monopoly of television for all these years gave it a captive audience that it could brainwash at will. Workers and peasants were warned, by industrialists and landowners, that there could be reprisals if Pinochet lost.

But, above all, the general played on the fear factor. Chile is a land where the officials who are supposed to protect you from violence are the very ones persecuting you. When torture has become commonplace, when people have disappeared without a trace into the night, when thousands have been exiled, when journalists are regularly jailed, when protesting kids are picked up and beaten in massive raids, citizens were right to feel intimidated and uncertain when the same armed forces responsible for these atrocities threatened darkness and death if the "No" to Pinochet vote won. Even if, during the month before the plebiscite, exiles were allowed home, a couple of rallies were permitted in out-of-the-way places and the opposition was granted 15 minutes a day of television time to state its case, that could hardly compensate for 15 years of unrelenting oppression.

With so much power in his hands, Pinochet was sure he could not lose the election. A de facto president and an international pariah, he craved legitimacy and, I suspect, respectability. The last time he had left Chile, eight years ago, when he had been on his way to the Philippines, none other than Ferdinand Marcos had canceled Pinochet's state visit when the Chilean general was in mid-flight.

Pinochet gambled that the opposition would be unable to register all its people, that we would be unable to unite and cease our squabbling, that we would fail to organize enough poll-watchers to guarantee that the results could be independently and objectively verified. He gambled — and he lost. The Chilean people dug deep into the democratic tradition that had made us the pride of Latin America for so many decades and, with courage and determination, found the way to come out from the shadows and the silence.

Analysis

Unfortunately, the general has not really heard the message. If he were a man of honor, he would call free elections and resign immediately. Or if he had a drop of democratic blood in his veins, he would designate a Cabinet that could act as a bridge to the victorious opposition and that could negotiate a peaceful transition to a truly free future.

Instead, he has reappointed the same group of hard-liners and insisted that he will reign until March 1990. He will also, apparently, continue as commander in chief of the army for another five years. He will be able to appoint one-third of the senate and, until the day he dies, sit on the watchdog National Security Council, which in effect, has veto power over what the elected representatives of the people might decide.

All of these privileges have been bestowed upon the defeated general by the constitution he rammed down Chilean throats in 1980. That constitution, which also established the permanent political exclusion of the vast sectors of our country that belong to the left, was imposed fraudulently, according to the Catholic Church and international observers and organizations.

The conditions that allowed the Chilean people to beat Pinochet and control the plebiscite in 1988 were absent in 1980. As there were no voter rolls, Pinochet supporters then were able to vote as many times as they wished. The ballots were transparent, so anybody — and that anybody was armed and nearby — could see the voter's choice.

The writer, a novelist, divides his time between Duke University and his native Chile.

IN THE STATE

Help Accepted

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP) — The board of trustees at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary has voted to accept immediate help in resolving internal problems that some members fear could jeopardize the school's accreditation.

After much debate Monday, the board voted to accept an offer of assistance from the Association of Theological Schools, which found the campus in a state of upheaval during an inspection several months ago.

Meanwhile, some students who oppose the seminary's new conservative administration planned a silent protest during an address today by the Rev. Billy Graham. Graham was scheduled to deliver the inaugural speech for new president Lewis Drummond during a ceremony at the school's chapel.

Craig Dies

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Ben T. Craig, the president of First Union Corp. who left a banking job in Pennsylvania to return to his home state and help restore the troubled Northwestern Bank, has died of cancer at the age of 55.

A Gastonia native and graduate of Davidson College, Craig died at his Charlotte home, said First Union spokesman Marshall Hester.

Craig was chairman and chief executive officer of Northwestern until 1985, when it merged with First Union. After the merger, Craig became president of First Union Corp. and chairman and chief executive officer of First Union National Bank of North Carolina.

Gas Pipeline

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The state's three largest natural gas companies are exploring the possibility of building a new natural gas pipeline into North Carolina — a multimillion dollar project whose cost would be borne largely by commercial and residential customers.

A Washington consultant has told the companies — Piedmont Natural Gas Co., Public Service Co. of North Carolina, Inc., and North Carolina Natural Gas Corp. — that the presence of another pipeline should ultimately lower gas costs because of competition and lead to long-term "gas supply flexibility and security."

The consulting firm — Brown, Williams, Quinn & Chinn, Inc. — has recommended that the three N.C. gas companies hold in-depth discussions with three energy firms to determine where a new pipeline could be built in North Carolina and at what cost.

Public Funds

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation will be proposed next year to require private corporations that receive state appropriations to make a public accounting of that money, Attorney General Lacy Thornburg said.

Thornburg said Monday the Council of State asked him to study laws that may restrict public access to records of that type, and to recommend changes.

"Where a private corporation accepts public funding, then they ought to be subject to disclosure," Thornburg said. "If they aren't willing to make them open to the public, then they ought not be calling for public funds."

Classes Canceled

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Classes were canceled and the road leading to West Craven Middle School was blocked Monday morning while transportation, school and fire officials worked to contain a gasoline spill blamed on vandals.

During the night, vandals slashed the tires of 12 buses and broke windows and mirrors on the buses. Gas lines were cut and gas tanks were punctured. At least one tire on each bus was slashed, police said.

Officials canceled classes at the school Monday not long after two bus drivers reporting for work discovered the damage about 6 a.m.

Main Breaks

MORRISVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Access to Raleigh-Durham International Airport on U.S. 70 was closed, and some nearby businesses were evacuated after a 4-inch gas main broke Monday at the airport entrance, a spokeswoman said.

The break occurred at about 9:40 a.m. between a gas station and the Angus Barn restaurant, said airport spokeswoman Teresa Damiano. She said access to the airport via Aviation Parkway would be closed for about three hours.

Wake County Emergency Management workers were assisting in the evacuation of several area businesses.

Ms. Damiano said airport operations were temporarily disrupted and were back on schedule by about 11 a.m.

Inauguration

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Paul Hardin will be installed Wednesday as the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill's seventh chancellor during annual University Day ceremonies. At least 2,000 invited guests are expected to attend.

Hardin was previously president of Drew University, a private college in Madison, N.J.

Jacobs Cleared Of Hostage-Taking Charge; Defense Changes Approach

By Dennis Patterson
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — A judge's rejection of the necessity defense in the trial of Eddie Hatcher and Timothy Jacobs "fundamentally reshapes" defense attorneys' approach to the case, but they're not giving up hope.

"It's not over," said Lewis Pitts, who is defending Jacobs. "These two men did not have criminal intent when they took the hostages Feb. 1, and we hope to be able to show that to the jury."

Hatcher and Jacobs had argued that their lives were in jeopardy because of information they said linked law enforcement officers to drug trafficking in Robeson County. They claimed they had no choice but to take hostages at a Lumberton newspaper Feb. 1 to publicize their case and save their lives.

But U.S. District Court Judge Terrence Boyle said in a written order Monday that action should have been taken against those who posed the threat, not innocent people.

Also Monday, Boyle acquitted Jacobs, 20, on a hostage-taking charge in the takeover of The Robesonian, but let stand weapons charges against both defendants.

Boyle said he would let the jury decide if Eddie Hatcher was guilty of the hostage-taking charge. Later, Boyle said he was inclined to release Jacobs on bond, but refused to do so because all the technical requirements had not been met.

"This fundamentally reshapes the posture of our defense," Pitts told Boyle. "It catches us off-guard, quite frankly."

He added that Boyle's ruling jeopardizes the two Indians' right to a jury trial.

TIMOTHY JACOBS

"All we want is a chance to present the whole picture to the jury," Pitts said. "The judge in his ruling said allowing the 'necessity defense' would create chaos and anarchy, but chaos and anarchy already existed in Robeson County prior to Feb. 1."

Hatcher, meanwhile, questioned one witness, ending his two-week refusal to participate in the trial.

"We have achieved a great victory," Lewis Pitts, an attorney for Jacobs from the Christie Institute-South, said at a news conference during a court recess. "We predicted several months ago that the federal hostage-taking charges would be dropped and they have been, at least against Jacobs."

"We believe the judge should have, in fact, ordered an acquittal on those charges against Eddie Hatcher," Pitts said. "It underscores how unfair it is to Eddie not to have his lawyer with him."

"I am pleased for Timmy," said Thelma Clark, Hatcher's mother. "I am really not surprised. This just points out how unfair it is for Eddie to be on trial without his attorney."

Boyle ordered Hatcher to represent himself after Hatcher refused to accept any other counsel but William Kunstler. Kunstler is involved in another case in New York and has been unable to take part in the trial.

Attorneys for Jacobs argued Friday that prosecutors had failed to prove that he and Hatcher had made a demand on the federal government during their takeover of The Robesonian newspaper in Lumberton on Feb. 1.

Hatcher and Jacobs still face charges of conspiracy, making an illegal firearm, possessing an unregistered firearm and conveying false information concerning explosives.

Later in the afternoon, Boyle heard arguments on whether Jacobs should be released on bond.

"I'm inclined to let you be released, but I can't do it without following the proper procedures," Boyle said after prosecutors argued that Jacobs should be kept in jail.

"It means you've got to make one more night of it," Boyle said to Jacobs.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John Bruce argued that a custodian who agreed to be responsible for Jacobs had to sign an agreement and appear in open court. Since the custodian was not available, Boyle delayed a ruling until Tuesday morning.

"It is obvious the government is trying to stall on these matters," defense Attorney Bob Warren of Christie Institute-South said during the bond hearing. "We need to have him out tonight so we can prepare him to testify tomorrow morning. It is critical to us to have the access to him."

Boyle at one point asked Jacobs if he would comply with bond requirements similar to the ones that had freed him from jail in July and August.

"I've got no reason to run," Jacobs said. "I've got faith in this court."

During the afternoon court session, Hatcher agreed to question former Pembroke Police Chief Kirby Ammons, who had been called by Jacobs' attorneys.

"I'm not an attorney, but yes, sir, I do have some questions," Hatcher responded when Boyle asked him if he wished to question Ammons.

Wake Jury Awards $3.25 Million In Sex Harassment Trial

RALEIGH (AP) — After deliberating for one day after a three-week trial, a jury has awarded $3.25 million in punitive damages — the highest in state history — to five women who were sexually harassed and verbally abused by the former manager of a Cary residential development.

A Wake County Superior Court jury also awarded $600,000 the women in compensatory damages Monday, mostly for the emotional distress the women suffered as a result of the sexual overtures.

The jury of nine men and three women imposed the $3.25 million in punitive damages against Gerold G. Howard, the former project manager of the $750 million Preston development in Cary; Murray Savings Association, a Dallas-based savings and loan that bought the property in 1984; and Prestonwood Inc., a subsidiary of Murray Savings and the developer of the project.

The punitive damages, which are generally awarded to punish a defendant for outrageous conduct, are to be divided evenly among the women, the jury decided.

The women reacted with hugs and tears of joy as the verdict was read by a court clerk. Howard stared straight ahead and showed no emotion.

"It wasn't the money," Howard's former secretary, Cheryl E. Muller, 39, said of the lawsuit. "Telling the rest of the people and the rest of the country that this has got to stop was more important."

"We did it for justice," said Sumer S. Averett, another former secretary.

Lynda Sargent, 33, a Raleigh real estate broker who worked with Howard, was awarded $200,000 in damages for breach of contract by Prestonwood and Murray Savings. The amount stems from her estimated loss in commissions when her employer, Fonville-Morisey Realtors of Raleigh, terminated its marketing contract with the project to protect Mrs. Sargent from further sexual advances by Howard, who now works in a lumber yard in Indiana.

Mrs. Sargent won an additional $150,000 in damages for emotional distress.

Ms. Muller, of Cary, received $75,000 for emotional distress. She had gone through corporate channels to notify Texas officials of Howard's behavior and received no response.

Melody B. Kennedy, 27, of Louisville, received $75,000 for emotional distress. She had tearfully testified that she had left the job and then returned because she badly needed the money.

Stephanie A. Shifflett, 24, and Mrs. Averett, 25, both of Raleigh, each received $50,000 for emotional distress.

Each of the defendants is equally liable for the damages, except for the $200,000 awarded Mrs. Sargent for breach of contract.

Burton Craige, an attorney for the women, said the $3.85 million award was, to his knowledge, the second-highest jury verdict in state history, surpassed only by a $6.5 million Pitt County jury award in 1985 against Pitt Memorial Hospital in a medical malpractice suit.

The secretaries said Howard repeatedly inquired about their sex lives, asked them to report menstrual cycles and was given to violent fits of anger.

Attorneys for the defendants to comment. Defense attorney Walter E. Brock Jr. declined to say whether he would appeal.

Reagan To Attend Raleigh Rally

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With polls saying that North Carolina has one of the closest races in the South in the presidential election, Republicans are bringing in Ronald Reagan to the state next week to try to lure conservative Democrats over to the GOP.

"It's the eastern Democrats we're going after," said Steve Schwartz, state campaign director for Republican presidential nominee George Bush.

Plans were incomplete Monday, but Reagan is scheduled to attend a rally and a fundraiser in Raleigh on Oct. 21 for Vice President George Bush, Gov. Jim Martin and the rest of the Republican ticket, Schwartz said.

A second appearance in the state by Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle, the GOP vice presidential candidate, also is in preparation, officials said. Quayle is tentatively scheduled to campaign with Martin on Oct. 20.

On Monday, Sen. Terry Sanford shrugged off polls that show Michael Dukakis running behind in the South, saying that many voters had yet to focus on the campaign and that "arrogance" would be the GOP's undoing.

Sanford, who said he would begin campaigning full-time for the Democratic ticket later this week, told reporters Dukakis would hold his own in the South if he effectively conveys his message on key issues.

"I think we will do very well," Sanford said. "I don't think polls at this time mean much in terms of who you're going to vote for."

Bush's support "is very soft" and people may change their minds as they learn more about the candidates and issues, Sanford said.

But Schwartz said the Bush team was not overconfident.

"That's one of the dangers you want to avoid when you're ahead," Schwartz said. "It's our job as the professionals... to keep our troops psyched up. My philosophy has always been if you live by the polls, you die by the polls."

The campaign has just concluded a wave of advertising in North Carolina is preparing for another, he said. The ads include attacks on Dukakis, but most will carry positive messages about Bush, Schwartz said.

Sanford called a news conference in Raleigh as leaders of Bush's Southern campaign met with reporters in Atlanta to discuss a new Atlanta Journal-Constitution poll showing the vice president leading across the South, including North Carolina.

Sanford said the GOP leaders were acting as though the race were already won. "That's the kind of arrogance that you just pray your opponent will come up with," he said.

Polls Show Bush, Dukakis In Draw

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush and Michael Dukakis were running neck-and-neck in a pair of national polls that also found Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle to be a drag on the Republican ticket.

A survey of registered voters for the Los Angeles Times showed the Bush-Quayle ticket leading Dukakis and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen 44-41. When asked to treat Bush and Dukakis as if they were running alone, the respondents picked Bush over Dukakis 48 percent to 39 percent.

A margin of error of plus or minus five percentage points in either direction could close the difference in both cases.

The Times questioned 893 registered voters on Saturday and Sunday. Polls of registered voters are less reliable predictors of the outcome of an election since not everyone votes.

In an ABC News-Washington Post poll, Bush had 50 percent to 47 percent for Dukakis. That survey also had a four-point margin of error.

The Times poll also found that Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen far outperformed Quayle in last week's vice presidential debate. But it also found that Dukakis had a 45 percent unfavorable rating, compared with 40 percent unfavorable rating for Quayle.

The ABC-Post poll, in an effort to assess the Quayle "drag" among the electorate, found that the effect of Quayle's performance in the vice presidential debate was to shift about 2 percent of the electorate to Dukakis. The poll said 16 percent said Quayle was a major reason for supporting Dukakis.

The ABC-Post survey of 600 likely voters was conducted nationwide by telephone from Wednesday through Sunday.

Ex-Consultant Says Iranians Thought Bush Was Boss Of Contra Arms Deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iranians involved in the Iran-Contra affair thought George Bush was the "most powerful man in the world" and the person pulling the strings from behind the scenes, according to a new book.

The book is written by Michael A. Ledeen, a former consultant to the National Security Council who played a role in the earliest stages of the affair. He says the Iranians overestimated Bush's importance because the vice president was a former CIA director.

Ledeen says his book is an attempt to shed light on how the Iran-Contra affair happened and "set the record straight about myself and my role in the affair."

"Perilous Statecraft: An Insider's Account of the Iran-Contra Affair" is published by Charles Scribner's Sons. The book mixes Ledeen's firsthand view of certain events, his opinions and his interpretation of material that was uncovered during congressional hearings in the summer of 1987.

The Reagan administration sent arms to Iran in hopes of securing the release of American hostages held by pro-Iranian Shiites in Lebanon. The shipments led to the release of only three American hostages, while millions of dollars in profits were secretly diverted to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Among Ledeen's observations:

—Bush was not a player in the Iran initiative, even though the Iranians were convinced that he was the "most powerful man in the world, hence the mah pulling the strings on the Iran initiative." This perception, stemmed from the Iranians' view that the CIA — once headed by Bush — was the root of ultimate power in the United States. Bush's resignation from the CIA in the mid-1970s was simply a deception, the Iranians thought.

The Iranians even had a code name for Bush: "Battri." That derived from the best-selling automobile battery in Iran, called the Busch.

—Any deals with the hostages required the "direct involvement" of Iran's leader, the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. That was because "the fight between those who favored hostage release and those who opposed it was so intense that only the ayatollah could decide."

—Former CIA director William Casey never approved of the secret Iran-Contra operation masterminded by Oliver L. North, a former NSC aide, according to Milton Gould, Casey's long-time friend and lawyer.

"The second thing that I can contribute are the attributions to Casey of total approval of Oliver North's activities. This is false," Gould says in the book. "He did not approve those activities."

Casey suffered a cerebral seizure in late 1986, shortly after the Iran-Contra affair was made public, and died from brain cancer in May 1987.

—Casey ordered the CIA to go all out to try to find William Buckley, the CIA station chief in Beirut after Buckley was captured in March 1984 by pro-Iranian terrorists.

—Casey informed the president of the situation at regular intervals, thereby reinforcing Reagan's strong passions about the Lebanon hostages. Casey felt responsible for Buckley's fate because he had urged the reluctant CIA man to take the job, Ledeen said.

—Robert "Bud" McFarlane, national security adviser at the time the United States began shipping weapons to Iran through Israel, was in a psychological crisis in the second half of 1985, more than a year before he tried to commit suicide by taking a pill overdose.

USDA Has New File For Lunch Recipes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has a new cookbook this fall for school cafeterias which includes some new recipes, labor-saving tips and a little pizzazz for the pinto beans.

In all, there are 161 recipes in the revised publication, "Quantity Recipes for Type A School Lunches," the first new model since 1971.

School meals are served to 24 million children in 90,000 schools across the country.

Assistant Secretary John W. Bode says "food service has changed dramatically" since the previous recipes were issued 17 years ago. The new ones, he says, feature more optional ingredients and seasonings to reflect regional food preferences.

The recipes were developed over two years under a $320,000 contract, plus another year and $2 million to print and distribute 90,000 copies free to state agencies and regional offices. Development included surveys of state agencies, a taste panel and test schools.

Under the lunch program, USDA provides about $3.7 billion in cash grants and commodity donations to participating school districts.

The per-pupil costs of meals can vary greatly. USDA provides subsidies according to the family income of school children. Those subsidies range from about $1.60 per meal for meals provided free of charge to poverty-level homes to less than 27 cents per meal for children from affluent families.

According to the department's Food and Nutrition Service, the new "recipe file" includes variations of recipes where appropriate and "makes good use of USDA-donated commodities to help keep down the cost of lunches."

Elderly Drivers More Accident-Prone

WASHINGTON (AP) — Older drivers pose a greater risk of being involved in accidents but driving should not be restricted solely on the basis of age, says a government study released today.

The study by the National Research Council says roadway signs and markings should be redesigned to better meet the needs of older drivers, and that screening should be improved to identify impaired drivers of all ages.

The report urges states to tighten their screening programs and issue restricted licenses in some cases such as limiting certain applicants to daytime driving only.

It criticized a movement in some states to allow drivers licenses to be renewed by mail without drivers being required to undergo vision tests at least every four years.

But the study concluded that "age alone is a poor predictor of the (driving) performance of any individual," although acknowledging after age 75 a driver is "about twice as likely (per mile driven) to be involved in a crash" as middle-aged drivers.

The National Research Council panel, composed of experts assembled by the National Academy of Sciences, spent two years examining questions about transportation and the elderly.

It said problems of meeting the transportation needs of older citizens will increase in the years ahead as the number of people over 75 increases and more elderly people live in the suburbs where less public transportation is available.

Today about 12 percent of the population is 65 years of age or older and by the year 2020 the number will increase to about 17 percent, or more than 50 million elderly citizens who will be eligible to drive.

"The states are not prepared to handle the growing number of very old drivers or to identify those at high risk of accident involvement," the study concluded.

"Most older persons will probably be quite capable and safe drivers.

But current statistics indicate that drivers 75 and over are more at risk of crash involvement than the average driver. ... These facts must be acknowledged even though there is no justification for restricting driving on the basis of age alone."

Furthermore, the panel said, elderly people are more likely to suffer serious or fatal injuries than other drivers in accidents of similar severity.

The study said elderly people, especially those 75 years or older, often have problems reading traffic signs, seeing clearly at night, gauging traffic flow when merging into traffic or making left turns, and turning their heads when backing their vehicles.

But "when examined in terms of incidents, the problem that older persons represent to overall traffic safety is small relative to that of the (teen-age) driver," the committee wrote.

The panel encouraged older drivers to buy automobiles equipped with air bags.

Report Says Nuclear Security Inadequate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lax security at Energy Department nuclear weapons laboratories has allowed agents from the Soviet bloc and other countries to gain access to sensitive research facilities, congressional investigators reported today.

The visits took place at the national laboratories at Los Alamos and Sandia in New Mexico and Livermore in California, where scientists conduct advanced research on nuclear weapons and the Strategic Defense Initiative, known as Star Wars, according to a congressional report.

The foreign visitors included specialists from the Soviet bloc, China and nations which are believed either to have nuclear weapons or are seeking to develop them, including India, Pakistan, Israel, Brazil and Argentina.

Officials at the FBI and CIA declined to discuss possible espionage investigations stemming from the incidents and it was not clear whether any secrets had been lost, according to the report by the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress.

The Department of Energy "generally does not follow its own requirements and obtain background information on foreign visitors and assignees from communist and other sensitive countries," the GAO report said.

As a result, it said, "suspected foreign agents and individuals from facilities suspected of conducting nuclear weapons activities have obtained access to the laboratories without prior DOE knowledge," the report said.

It found the department "allows foreign nationals from communist and proliferation risk countries into the laboratories to discuss subjects that could assist nuclear weapons programs."

"I can tell you from my point of view, I personally know of no prolonged visit from any foreign national," said Nigel Hey, spokesman for Sandia.

Hey said foreign visitors must make formal application through the Department of Energy. "So actually you can see that the actual procedure that's followed to clear access to Sandia is in the hands of the Department of Energy."

He said further comment would be impossible without first seeing the GAO report.

The report was prepared for release at a hearing today of the Senate Committee on Government Operations.

Congressional investigators found that of the 6,700 foreigners allowed to visit the weapons laboratories between January 1986 and September 1987, 222 were from communist countries and 675 were from other countries deemed to be espionage or proliferation risks.

Yugoslavia Tightens Security

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Thousands of workers ended strikes today in the face of heightened security measures, but other protesters pressed demands for economic and political changes and forced out a regional leader.

The government struggled to defuse the mushrooming protests, fueled by economic turmoil and ethnic Serbian nationalism, in two of six national republics, Montenegro and Serbia.

Communist Party leaders in two other republics skeptical of the Serbian cause came to the defense of the government.

Authorities imposed unspecified emergency measures Monday in Montenegro, according to the official news agency Tanjug. Several Yugoslavs speaking on condition of anonymity reported Monday that civil defense units in Belgrade were put on a higher level of alert, although no sign of trouble surfaced in the capital.

About 15,000 people at Niksic, a town about 30 miles from the Montenegrin capital of Titograd, joined about 3,000 steel workers in a protest Monday, Tanjug said. However, the workers ended their three-day strike today.

Workers are angry about national economic problems, including 217 percent inflation, 15 percent unemployment and a $21 billion foreign debt.

Protesters in Niksic demanded Monday that Montenegro's police chief be fired for allowing authorities to use tear gas and clubs to put down weekend protests. They dramatized their point by hoisting a man wearing a gas mask on the shoulders of the crowd, Tanjug reported.

"We are not demanding the gallows for those who ordered the beating up of our comrades, we are only demanding their sacking," the agency quoted worker Miloslav Michunovich as saying.

A member of Montenegro's ruling Presidium, Radivoje Brajovic, told a rally in Titograd in an emotional address that he was resigning, and the regional party leadership held an emergency meeting.

Later Monday, 1,000 construction workers in Titograd ended their strike there.

Meanwhile, two of Yugoslavia's six republics — Slovenia and Bosnia Herzegovina — issued statements supporting the national government's denunciation of nationalist protests.

"We reject ... models of a strong state ... and imposition of socialism and democracy as tailored by the Serbian leadership," Communists from liberal Slovenia said Monday.

But the leadership of Serbia defended its drive for more control of its two provinces, which are nominally autonomous. The Presidium of the Party and the Presidency of Serbia denounced Monday unidentified politicians and journalists in Slovenia who it said "are spreading fear of Serbia."

Ethnic tensions, never far from the surface in this country with numerous rival nationalities, have increasingly come forward in the growing number of protests this year.

Many have centered on one of Serbia's autonomous provinces, Kosovo, which borders Albania. Ethnic Albanians, who are mostly Moslems, outnumber mainly Christian Serbs there, and the Serbs claim they are being harassed and forced to leave.

Czech Premier, Deputy Resign In Major Shakeup

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Communist Party chief Milos Jakes has predicted more leadership changes after a shake-up led the nation's premier and his deputy to resign.

Jakes, who took over from President Gustav Husak in December last year, announced Monday that Premier Lubomir Strougal and his deputy Peter Colotka would step down.

Jakes also proposed that the next party congress be moved forward by one year and take place in 1990.

In predicting the changes, Jakes said they "proceed from the need for a new deployment of leading cadres in the interest of mastering the demanding tasks of economic and social restructuring."

Jakes revealed the changes at the beginning of a two-day Central Committee session dealing with personnel and ideology questions.

More changes were expected today.

The shake-up in Czechoslovakia follows similar government reorganizations in the Soviet Union, Hungary and Poland, as well as unrest in Yugoslavia.

But a liberalization of political life in Czechoslovakia seemed unlikely.

In his speech to the Central Committee, Jakes made it clear that unlike in neighboring Hungary, independent human rights, ecological and other groups would not be allowed to operate.

He warned that formation and operation of "anti-Socialist political structures" will not be tolerated and will be prosecuted.

In the changes Monday, Strougal, serving for over 18 years as head of the federal government, also relinquished his Politburo seat. Colotka also gave up his post as Slovak premier and as a member of the 12-member Presidium of the Communist Party's Central Committee, the official name of the top-ruling Politburo.

Strougal, a 63-year-old economic expert and veteran politician, was believed to have been the longest-serving premier in Europe.

While considered a hardliner supporting the crackdown on dissent and other harsh policies in earlier years, Strougal was most recently known as a chief advocate of economic and social reforms initiated in the Soviet Union.

Jakes has said that the fight against corruption would be among his priorities.

A Big Bank Dedicated To Something Even Bigger: The Individual.

Today, in financial institutions all over America, people walk in as individuals and walk out as numbers.

Probably because it's more efficient to treat their customers in "bulk," and offer "bulk-rate" services. All very easy for the bank, but very hard on the individual.

A Big Bank Dedicated To More Than Just Getting Bigger.

But, for three million people who bank at NCNB, things are different.

We work to help each one of our customers reach their full potential.

So we've been training—and re-training—our people to find out exactly what you want and what you need before we ever start talking about what we've got.

Banking Services Designed For The Individual, Not The Institution.

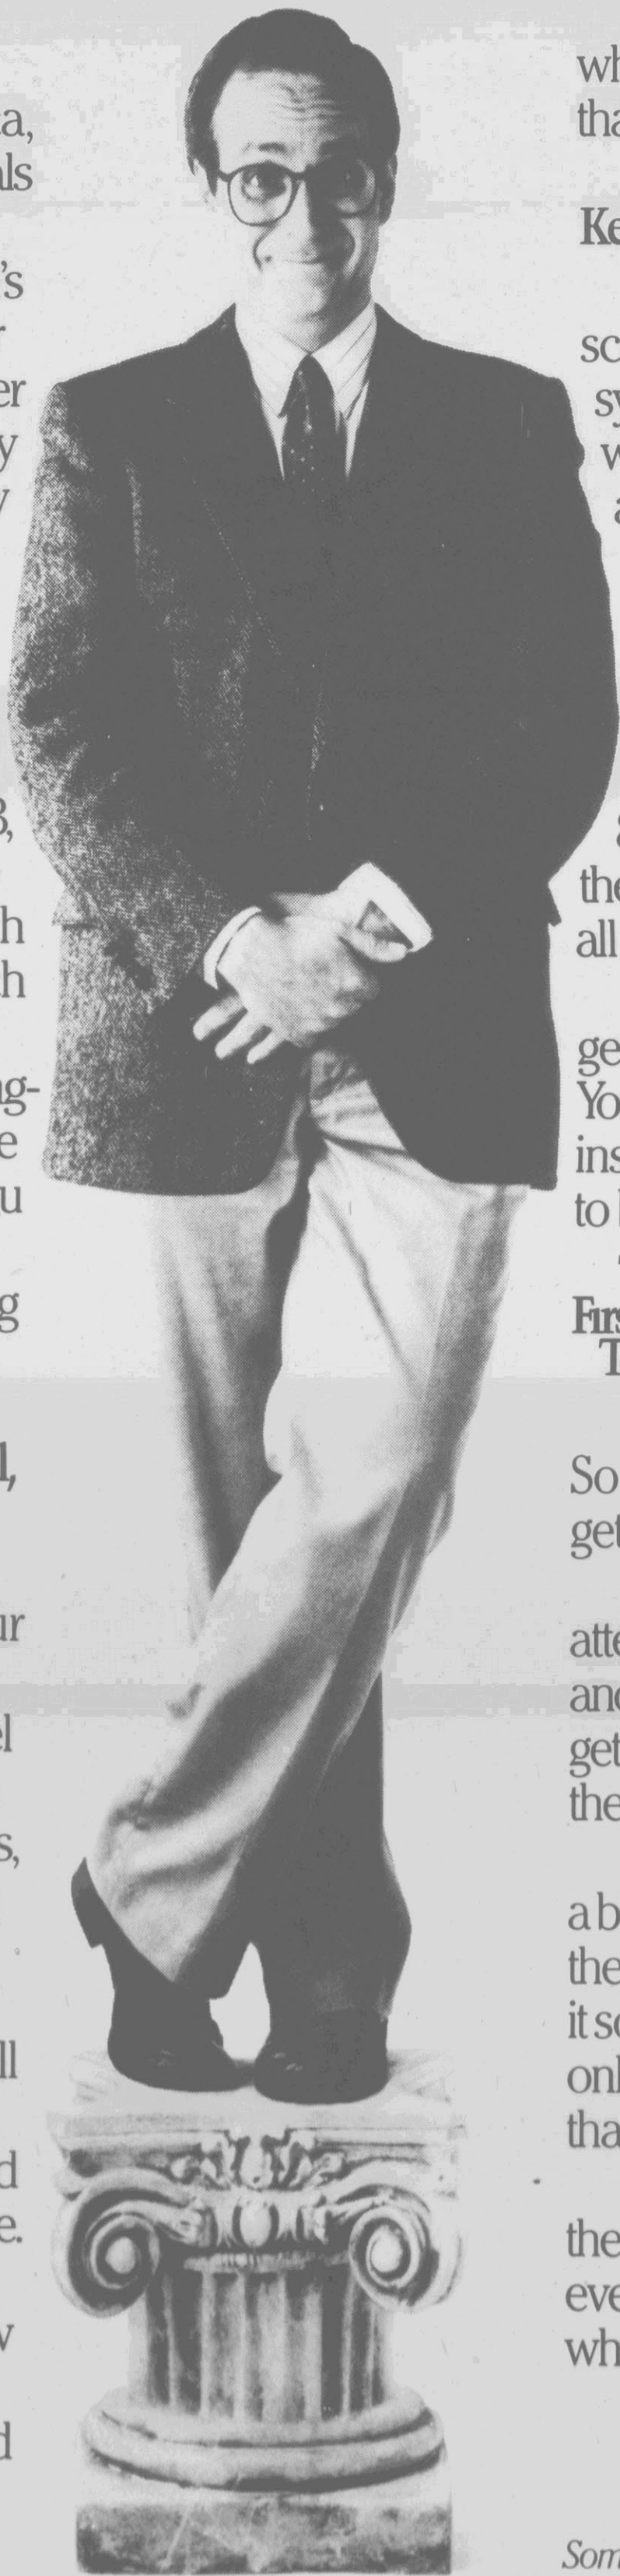

We're introducing new services based on your needs—not ours.

For example, we feel that if you're good enough to do your banking with us, you should get something in return.

So we developed a package of services we call Deluxe® Banking: all the services you're likely to need at special rates or no charge.

We have all kinds of ways to help you borrow money. And we give you more than a brochure and application form.

Our people give you

what we call "loan advice that's right on the money."

High Tech That Keeps In Touch With People.

Our people behind the scenes have developed a system that works so well, we'll give you $10 if we make a mistake on your personal checking statement.

High technology helps us offer you same-day loan answers, 24-hour banking coast-to-coast, 800 numbers with up-to-the-minute information on all your accounts with us.

Finally, you don't just get a bank account from us. You also get a connection to insurance, to investing and to buying a home.

The Customer Comes First, Even When A Bank Has Three Million Of Them.

That's a lot of business. So it pays us to see that you get more for your money.

The kind of personal attention, financial advice and service that will help you get ahead and stay ahead in the business of life.

If that last part sounds a bit like a small bank, that's the idea. And if the rest of it sounds like the things that only a big bank can offer, that's the idea, too.

If all of it sounds like the right bank for you, that's even better. After all, you're who we're dedicated to.

Engagement Announced

Tyson-Hentz
Annie L. Tyson and Curtis Langley of Greenville announce the engagement of their daughter, LaTecia Lavette Tyson, to Willie B. Hentz, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.B. Hentz of Chicago. The wedding will take place Nov. 12.

Older Children Need Adoptive Homes

The Children's Home Society of North Carolina is publicizing its search for the right adoptive homes for three children. These children, they say, are examples of older children in this state who need adoptive homes.

The promotion comes in anticipation of National Adoption Week to be observed Nov. 20-26 and coordinated by the North American Council on Adoptable Children.

Maurice and Marshall are brothers who are being sought an adoptive home together. They are 10 and 11 years old, are doing well in a foster home, but need a permanent home, the Children Home Society says. Both are above average achievers in school and have hopes of going to college. Both attended

4-H camp this past summer and both enjoyed water activities. Both like playing football and watching football on television. They like rap music, too, their social worker says.

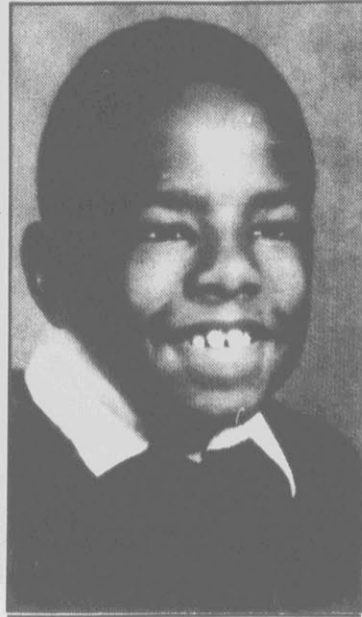

Will, 5, has been in foster care four years. He is a known to have exaggerated reactions to stimulation, and is slower than some children, both physically and educationally. He was a baby who did not thrive when he entered the world and will always need individual supervision and care. His foster mother says he needs a firm discipline plan, but also responds positively to warmth and affection. "He needs lots of hugs and kisses to compensate for any criticism given him," she said.

Families who have parenting experience with children with special needs could offer a lot to a child like Will, his social worker said.

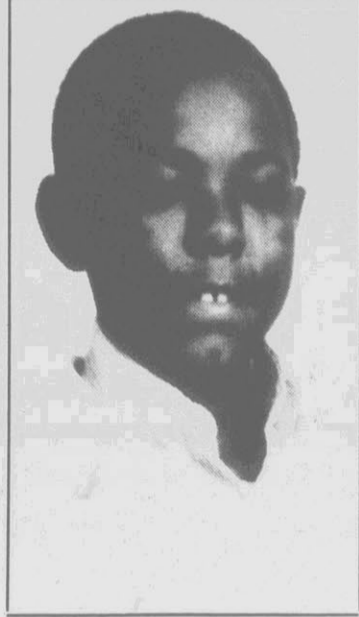

The Children's Home Society is a non-profit, non-sectarian statewide adoption agency. For more information on Marshall, Maurice and Will and the possibility of adopting either Will or Marshall and Maurice together, call the nearest Children's Home Society office. The Greenville phone number is 752-5847.

Drinking Water: Unsafe Everywhere?

DEAR ABBY: To ensure that the drinking water of all Americans would be free of chemicals known to cause cancer, birth defects and nervous disorders, The Safe Drinking Water Act was passed in 1974.

So what happened? Nothing. The problem was ignored.

Today, only 50 water systems out of nearly 60,000 in our country use the activated carbon filter system that removes toxic chemicals from our drinking water! (Western Europe is way ahead of us in this regard.)

I have put the facts into a newsletter, telling citizens how to evaluate their drinking water and what to do if their water does not meet government standards.

The newsletter contains information such as: Where does drinking water come from, and how does it become contaminated? How is water made safe to drink? What can you do about contamination at the source? Bottled water — do you need it?

Abby, your column is powerful. Will you please use it to get this very important message to the public? I am enclosing a copy of the newsletter for your perusal. — RALPH NADER

DEAR RALPH: I'll try. I read your newsletter. It's excellent. Readers: For a copy of Ralph Nader's Drinking Water Newsletter, write to: P.O. Box 19367, Washington, D.C. 20036. Please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope (25 cents) and a check or money order for $1 to cover the cost of printing and mailing. This is a non-profit venture.

DEAR ABBY: To remind someone to buy you a gift is ridiculous. Remember, "A gift unfreely given is no gift at all."

Women, give your husbands the freedom not to buy a gift on all those special days. That in itself is a wonderful gift, which will come back to you in love and appreciation and generosity.

Abby, have you heard, "A woman who is not interested in diamonds is herself a gem"? Sign me ... WISE WICHITA WOMAN

DEAR W.W. WOMAN: No, but I have read: "Who can find a virtuous woman? For her price is far above rubies." (Proverbs 31:10)

A lack of interest in diamonds makes not a woman a "gem." Neither does an interest in diamonds diminish a woman's worth.

DEAR ABBY: You were asked, "Why do so many public speakers (who should know better) insist on speaking longer than the time they are allotted?"

I was reminded of an incident that took place 20 years ago.

A local minister who had been invited to be the guest speaker at our Rotary Club asked the club president, Robert Proctor, how long he should speak.

Mr. Proctor replied: "You may speak as long as you wish, but everybody leaves here in 40 minutes." — SID ROSEN, BRAN- DON, VT.

"How to Write Letters for All Occasions" provides sample letters of congratulations, thank-yous, condolences, resumes and business letters — even how to write a love letter! It also includes how properly to address clergymen, government officials, dignitaries, widows and others. To order, send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Abby's Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 417, Mount Morris, Ill. 61051. (Postage is included.)

Students' Appreciation Of Art Is Major Goal

By Cherie Evans
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Student awareness of art history and appreciation for art forms is a major goal in the expanded arts curriculum in the Pitt County schools, and teachers continue to retool to keep moving toward that goal.

"In the arts curriculum, students are taught the history of and appreciation for the art form," said Emmy Whitehead, the arts coordinator.

"The emphasis is on the process rather than the product," she said. "It's not the final picture but whether the student learned the process."

In an effort to teach the elements of various art forms, teachers update their knowledge of methods through various workshops offered through the school system and support agencies, Ms. Whitehead said.

"We feel like staff development is important for teachers. It's a high priority in the arts education program."

Staff development workshops have included a paper marbling workshop where teachers learned to marble on cloth. The skill will be taught in high school art programs.

Also, nationally renowned artist Hiroshi Sueyoshi presented a workshop Monday on putting color into porcelain clay at Farmville Central High School. "In the BEP, clay is part of the art curriculum,"

Ms. Whitehead said.

Dr. Rodney Schmidt of East Carolina University, conducted a 10-hour orchestra workshop for teachers Monday which will allow them to get renewal credit. In addition, Dr. Barbara Memory and Michelle Harriston will conduct a music workshop focusing on teaching special needs children. It will address improving skills in selecting and adapting music for the children.

"A lot of them (students) are exceptional children in the arts classes," Ms. Whitehead said. "Sometimes (teachers) don't get that extra training in how to teach these children."

The Pitt County schools have about 90 arts teachers and will need from 20 to 25 more in the areas of theater arts and dance for full implementation of the BEP, Ms. Whitehead said.

There are several local arts councils that help the schools in their efforts to present the arts curriculum, Ms. Whitehead said.

The Farmville Arts Council has pledged $5,000 for arts education this year, $200 of which will go toward the porcelain clay workshop, she said.

The Pitt-Greenville Arts Council has been instrumental in various projects and programs in the schools, while the Greenville Museum of Art has been the provider of various workshops for the teachers including the marbling workshop.

The arts program, in cooperation with the Community Schools program, this year received two grants from the North Carolina Arts Council that will be used to employ Steve Myott to design a theater arts curriculum for fifth and sixth graders.

The grants totaled $3,500 and were matched by the school system for a total of $7,000.

In addition to the classroom activities, students will participate in various art events out in the county.

Third through fifth grade students will attend an orchestra performance this year, Ms. Whitehead said. Third graders will hear the N.C. Symphony in J.H. Rose High School on Feb. 3, while fourth and fifth graders will hear the ECU Children's Orchestra Concert in Minges Coliseum on Feb. 10.

The arts program will play a significant part in the fund-raising efforts of the Pitt County Schools Educational Foundation this year, Betty Speir, coordinator, said.

The North Pitt, Ayden-Grifton, D.H. Conley and J.H. Rose attendance areas will conduct an arts festival of music, dance and exhibits in October and November to raise funds for minigrants to be used in their areas.

In addition, interest from the Margaret L. Blount Fund of $3,000 over three years will provide money to sponsor an arts competition for students in the high schools.

The top art pieces will hang permanently in the high schools to begin a framed collection in the schools. Other entries will be displayed in the Pitt County office building for a year.

Underwear Wrecks Budget

We must talk about women's underwear.

I know, it's something your mother said you don't talk about in public. The only time she brought up the subject was when the family was going on a long trip and she decreed everyone must wear new underwear in case of an accident.

Somehow, mothers had a vision of a paramedic loading their child on a stretcher and yelling: "Hey, Roy, check this one out. She's got a few bruises and a pin in her underwear. The press is going to have a field day with this one. Which one is her mother?"

Today, our mothers would be astounded to know the high cost of their "accident insurance." For something that doesn't show, we're talking major bucks. Undies are $12, pantyhose can run (I didn't say that) up to $7.50, the ever-popular garter belt is about $14, and the $20 bra is making gravity attractive.

At Wits End Erma Bombeck

If you really want to go crazy, there are body stockings that can go as high as $45, slips for $35 and charmeuses (or charmoyses) for $60. There's an item called a teddy that is made from silk or satin and could fall on a poker chip and not cover it. It sometimes comes with a sash. It's something you don't vacuum in. It costs around $50.

By way of contrast, I walked through the men's department of a store and discovered that for a total of $12, men can travel new anywhere and feel safe. I don't understand that. Why isn't underwear egalitarian? Is this what I fought the war of equality for? The less our garments cover, the more they cost.

A few years ago, when women decided to become freer and uninhibited, promises were made to "let it all hang out." I remember hearing that. Girdle factories went out of business and no one had strap marks anymore. What happened?

We used to be happy with our little plastic eggs that gave birth to a shriveled piece of nylon and two puckered seams for feet. Now we're into sequins and black embossed tulips racing up and down our legs.

We are approaching a time when what is out of sight costs more than what you see. Undergarments have a season and style all their own. But at what price? Young girls are rapidly being faced with a decision: "Do I want a big wedding? Or do I want to buy new underwear for the honeymoon?"

Is it possible our mothers were right? That we are judged on what no one sees until we are in a car accident?

Israelis

was wounded. At least five people were arrested.

The funeral was for Abu Juda, 18, who died early today after being shot in the head with a plastic bullet Sept. 28 in a clash with soldiers, according to residents and officials at the nearby Dheishe Refugee Camp where the boy lived.

News of the death quickly spread in the camp after Palestinians keeping a watch outside Abu Juda's room at Jerusalem's Mukassab Hospital took the body to Dheishe, six miles south of Jerusalem, minutes after the youth died.

Mosque loudspeakers called on residents to participate in funeral services and to pay tribute to the family of the "martyr."

The army responded almost immediately by declaring a curfew on the camp near Bethlehem, and closing all entrances.

After the funeral was broken up, hundreds of Palestinians milled about the streets of Bethlehem, telling merchants to close their businesses and ordering cars off the roads in a makeshift protest strike.

The death brought to 295 the number of Palestinian killed in the West Bank and Gaza Strip in the 10-month-old uprising against Israeli occupation. Six Israelis also have died.

In Gaza, meanwhile, Israel's military administration reopened 33 high schools after a prolonged summer recess, allowing 20,000 students to return to their studies. Schools in the West Bank are closed until Nov. 15.

The army also decided to put two officers, a captain and a first lieutenant, on disciplinary trial for using excessive force after arresting four Arab stone-throwers in the Gaza Strip's town of Rafah in July, Israel radio said.

Declining issues slightly outnumbered advances on the NYSE, with 680 up, 710 down and 502 unchanged.

Big Board volume totaled 124.66 million shares, down from 216.39 million in the previous session.

U.S. Accepts Tentative Plan To Pay Philippines $550 Million For Bases

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — U.S. and Filipino officials reached tentative agreement for Washington to provide compensation of more than $550 million a year to use its six military bases in the Philippines, sources said today.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, told reporters the two sides had nearly finished reviewing an agreement governing the bases, which are the largest U.S. garrison in southeast Asia. An accord on new compensation terms through 1991 is expected within a week, they said.

In Washington, a U.S. official who has kept a close eye on the negotiations denied there was an agreement. The official refused to be identified.

The United States now pays about $180 million a year for the bases.

The sources in Manila, who are close to the talks, said negotiators agreed on a basic annual compensation package of $550 million to $580 million in economic support, military assistance and commodities, mostly wheat.

Filipino negotiators in Washington were bargaining for an additional loan of $100 million to purchase U.S. Treasury bonds, said the sources. The bonds would be used to pay off $200 million of the Philippines' $28 billion debt.

Three Manila newspaper said such a loan would be made, but they did not say for how much.

Presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno told reporters the size of the compensation package had not been decided on. He said officials were still discussing "creative" portions, meaning the debt relief part.

Economic Planning Secretary Solita Monsod told reporters that the proposed loan figure was too insignificant to even negotiate at all.

"It will be able to buy back at most $200 million, which is not worth talking about," she told reporters. "We should be talking about a $700 million buy-back scheme."

On Monday, a Filipino source told The Associated Press that the two sides had finished reviewing an agreement governing U.S. bases, and an agreement on their status through 1991 is possible within a week.

"It's over. An agreement is possible within a few days, maybe within a week's time," said the source, who demanded anonymity.

"There was compromise on both sides," said the source, who is involved in the talks. He said both panels were working on the wording of the agreement.

In April, U.S. and Philippine panels began talks on the status of Clark Air Base, the Subic Bay Naval base and four smaller installations in the Philippines. But the talks have stalled over compensation and other issues.

Philippine Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus has been meeting with U.S. officials in New York and Washington since last month on the bases talks. He is expected to return to Manila this week.

The United States maintains the bases under a 1947 agreement which expires in 1991. The current talks are to determine compensation, base security and other issues through the final years of the agreement.

After that, any extension must be approved by two-thirds of the 23-member Philippine Senate, where opposition to the bases is strong. President Corazon Aquino refuses to say whether she will support an extension.

The Filipino panel reportedly demanded up to $1.2 billion annually for the final two years of the agreement.

BusinessWorld, one of the Manila newspapers, quoted an unidentified source as saying the Americans were "highly resistant" to the $1.2 billion figure because U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz had publicly branded Filipino demands as "out of bounds."

The source also reportedly said U.S. officials had made clear they would not support a proposed international aid plan for the Philippines unless agreement was reached on the bases.

The Journal also said the United States had tentatively agreed to waive legislation which adds a 50 percent penalty payment to U.S. purchases of non-American products.

This would enable the bases to increase their purchases of Philippine products, the newspaper said.

Last week, Mrs. Aquino met in Manila with Undersecretary of State Michael Armacost. Later, they told reporters the two countries have narrowed differences over the bases issue and are nearing an agreement.

Gibson Is Spurring Dodgers On

Kirk Gibson grabs his leg after sliding into second base

His 3-Run Homer Keys L.A.'s 7-4 Win

NEW YORK (AP) — In the end, the reason is Kirk Gibson. Without his bat, Los Angeles wouldn't have had the offense. Without his fire, the Dodgers wouldn't have had the will. From the time he stormed out of Holman Stadium before the season's first exhibition game, through his steal of second base in the ninth inning Monday afternoon, Gibson has been the fire that lit up Los Angeles. And thanks to his passion, the Dodgers are within one game of the National League pennant. His 12th-inning home run early Monday morning gave the Dodgers a 5-4 victory over the New York Mets, tying the National League playoffs at two games apiece. His three-run homer in the fifth inning exactly 13 hours later powered the Dodgers past the Mets 7-4 and into a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series. But now the Dodgers may have to play without their leader, Gibson's weak left hamstring went "pop" on the ninth-inning steal and he may not play in tonight's Game 6, which matches Tim Lincecum against the Mets' David Cone. "He's one of my favorite subjects," Los Angeles manager Tommy Lasorda said. "You talk about a competitor, he drives himself to the peak of his ability every day. I've seen him when we win and he goes 0-for-5, and he's jumping up and down. Or when we lose and he's gotten a single, double and a couple of RBI, he's really down." Gibson batted .290 during the season with 25 homers and 73 runs batted in. Good numbers, not great. But his spirit turned around a docile clubhouse. On March 3, reliever Jesse Orosco put eye black on the band of Gibson's cap as a joke. It was the kind of prank pulled in every major league clubhouse. This time, the joke backfired. Gibson put on the cap, noticed a smudge on his forehead, retired to the clubhouse and exited the premises. "Before game time, I get all hyped up and I don't have a sense of humor. That's obvious," said Gibson, who was livid over the episode. "I'm not here for comedy. I did what I had to do to get my point across. Basically, I didn't want to be a part of their comedy act."

His message got through. "I guess we (learned) that you don't mess around with Kirk Gibson — or else," a teammate said. Gibson had been in a 1-for-16 slump before the Game 4 homer, but the Mets still felt his impact. "They seem to revolve around him, even if he doesn't get many hits," Wally Backman said. "That home run last night rallied them." Lasorda can't say enough about Gibson, whom the Dodgers signed as a free agent last winter for $4.5 million over three years. "He's a great situation player. He's my MVP of the National League and that's not to take anything away from (Darryl) Strawberry." (See Dodgers, B-3)

The Fun Is Over For Jefferies

NEW YORK (AP) — The grace period is over for Gregg Jefferies. Jefferies stirred New York baseball fans with his talent and enthusiasm after being called up by the Mets in late August. Now the 21-year-old rookie is facing his first failures as a major leaguer — and in the National League playoffs, no less. "It's been tough," Jefferies admitted on Monday after playing a key role in a 7-4 loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers that moved the Mets to within one game of elimination. "I'm playing as hard as I can. That's all I can do," Jefferies said. "I didn't enter this series for it to be a learning experience. I wanted it to be a winning experience. I won't stop trying." As his big play in September created opportunities, his little mistakes in October have added up to blown opportunities. He has seemed uncertain at times on the basepaths and has shown an inability to get down a bunt. His baserunning gaffe in the eighth inning Monday squelched a Mets rally. With a run already in and the Mets trailing 6-4, Jefferies stood on second base — Darryl Strawberry was at first — as Kevin McReynolds strode to the plate with one out.

McReynolds, New York's speedy left fielder, hit a slow-rolling grounder to short that had all the earmarks of an infield hit. Jefferies, of course, had to run on the play. But in moving to third, he was struck by the ball and was automatically out. Instead of having the bases loaded with one out, the Mets had two outs with runners at first and second. Gary Carter ended the inning by flying to left.

Cunningham Keys Philadelphia Victory

QB Leads Eagles By Giants, 24-13

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Randall Cunningham was a smash as a TV pitch man. The Philadelphia Eagles quarterback sold himself and his team to the nation's pro football fans Monday night, throwing for 369 yards and three touchdowns in leading the Eagles to a 24-13 victory over the New York Giants. "I just try to go in and play the best I can," Cunningham said. "If I go into a game thinking I'm one of the best, that just puts a lot of pressure on you. "I guess it was seen on TV what I could do." What the fourth-year pro did in the Eagles' first Monday night appearance since 1981 was complete 31 of 41 passes against one of the NFL's toughest defenses. And he led the Eagles, 3-3, into the thick of the NFC East race. The Eagles are tied with the Giants and Washington Redskins, one game behind the Phoenix Cardinals. "I think it's the best I've ever played," Cunningham said. "I don't remember when I've thrown so much in a game."

"We haven't beaten the Giants since I've been here. Now we know what we can do. It will boost the confidence of everyone on the team." The key to snapping a six-game losing streak against the Giants was to attack the defense with short passes. "The Giants always run a two-deep coverage, and people try to beat them deep," Cunningham said. "You have to get them underneath because you won't get enough time. So we spread the ball around to everyone." Cunningham threw to six different receivers, with tight end Keith Jackson and running back Keith Byars catching nine each. Wide receiver Cris Carter caught five. Cunningham set the tone of the game in the second period when he made an improbable play. With the Giants leading 3-0, the Eagles moved to a third down at the New York 5-yard line. Cunningham rolled to his right, appearing to

Falcons Say That Croudip Tested Clean

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons say David Croudip never tested positive in any NFL substance-abuse checks, yet a medical examiner said indications are the defensive back's death was drug-related. "Nothing I'm telling you is written in stone, but preliminary lab tests do indicate cocaine and possibly some other drug in his system," Dr. Joseph L. Burton said Monday. Burton, the medical examiner for DeKalb and several other counties in the Metro Atlanta area, performed an autopsy on Croudip, who was pronounced dead about 3:30 a.m. EDT Monday. The player had been rushed to a hospital in the Atlanta suburb of Duluth after suffering seizures at his home.

"He may have done as much as a gram of cocaine," Burton said. "A gram is a very small amount, about a thimbleful. A single line is enough to cause death, and you could possibly get anywhere from 20 to 50 lines (from one gram), depending on how long they are."

Baker Sees Improvement, But Not Enough For A Win

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

East Carolina football coach Art Baker said that while his Pirates improved in some phases of the game, they still found a way to lose against West Virginia Saturday, 30-10. Baker, speaking at his weekly press conference Monday, said that his defense did a better job against the Mountaineers than they had in the last few weeks, mainly because of some changes the coaching staff made in personnel. Ernie Logan was moved from the safety position to linebacker. Anthony Thompson, who had missed a game with an injury, also returned at linebacker. Freshman Robert Jones has also become a mainstay at the linebacker position. "That gives us three good linebackers — really five when you add in Glenn Willis and Compton McCurry — to play with," Baker said. Other changes included switched Shannon Boling from tackle to end (he actually played in all four down positions, Baker said); moving James Singletary from linebacker to end at his return following four weeks on the injury list; moving Junior Robinson from corner to safety; and inserting Chris Hall at a corner. Hall, in two games, has made two interceptions. The defense limited West Virginia to less than 400 yards in total offense and to 30 points — as against their average of 487 yards and 43 points coming in. "My first reaction after looking at the film was that I was disappointed. If we had made some of the big plays we could have won the ball game," Baker said. "There are usually six or seven big plays in a game, and if we had made our share, we would have been OK." The Pirates nearly had their first big play on the opening kickoff of the game. Junior Robinson returned the kick 65 yards from the goal line to the West Virginia 35. But the offense sputtered and the Pirates missed a field goal. A later missed field goal and a dropped pass in the end zone cost the Pirates 13 points — enough to have changed the complexion of the game, Baker said. "They've been allowing 277 yards of offense and we got over 300, but that is not significant if you think of our missed opportunities," Baker said. "Not scoring on that opening drive took some of the steam from us. I think Coach (Kevin) Gilbride counted up that we dropped seven passes for something like another 100 yards, two of them for touchdowns." Baker added that he did not think his two quarterbacks, Travis Hunter and Charlie Libretto, played as well as they have, "especially mentally." "We counted five times that they had receivers wide open and our quarterbacks never saw them," Baker said. Baker said no decision has been reached on which of the two will start this coming Saturday. "We will continue to play both quarterbacks,

ECU's Hall Hoping To Answer A Need

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

In ECU's continuing search for defensive backs, a new name has emerged as a possible candidate in freshman Chris Hall. After intercepting one pass and batting away another in the Southwestern Louisiana game Oct. 1, Hall earned a starting spot against sixth-ranked West Virginia last Saturday and recorded his second interception of the season. A Fort Dix, N.J. native, Hall started his high school football career while his father was stationed in Germany. He returned to the states for his senior year and played for Pemberton High School, where he was an all-county and second team all-star selection at running back. "After being recruited as an offensive player, Hall, a 6-1, 174-pounder, soon found himself on the other side of the ball, playing in the defense," secondary. "I felt I could do the job," he said. "I'm here to help the team. They felt I played defense I could help the team more. It's not really that big of an adjustment, but you have to learn certain things. Now I get to hit instead of getting hit." Hall was signed late in the recruiting season by the Pirates, but he's been a pleasant surprise to the ECU coaches. "Coming in I thought I'd be red-shirted," he said. "Things just worked out." "We're fortunate to have him," said ECU coach Art Baker. "We're very pleased with his performance. He has an interception string going with two in a row." Hall said it didn't take long to get used to his new position, but that

Dodgers Think They're Team Of Destiny

By Scott Ostler
LAT-WP News Service

NEW YORK — Tom Lasorda's eyes were beginning to glaze over and his voice was rising to a hellfire-and-brimstone pitch. He was rehashing the little postgame speech he had given to his Los Angeles Dodgers a few minutes after Monday afternoon's routinely preposterous victory over the amazed New York Mets.

"You're a team of destiny!" the Dodgers manager roared, cords popping out on his neck. "You're a team of character and strength!"

You're also a team that's so giddy with the events of early Monday morning, a 12-inning win over the Mets, and Monday afternoon, a nine-inning win over the Mets, that you're probably starting to believe your manager's bombast.

You are a team that has no business being alive in the National League playoffs, let alone holding a 3-2 lead going into Tuesday night's game at Dodger Stadium.

The Oakland A's are openly praying for you to lose this series as you're supposed to, so they won't have to be saddled with a second-rate opponent in the Fall Classic.

The experts who broke down the National League championship series into individual match-ups are a little miffed at your impertinence. Look, if it's Keith Hernandez vs. Mickey Hatcher, or Gary Carter vs. Rick Dempsey, shouldn't the Mets be running away with this thing?

"You want me to be a psychologist," Mets center fielder Mookie Wilson said when asked to explain the Dodgers' current state of mind. "Of course, they're hungry. People underestimated the Dodgers, particularly the press."

"If you want people to do something better than normal, tell 'em they can't do it. Right now the Dodgers are surprising to everyone but us."

You Dodgers are so pumped full of helium that even cheap shots can't wound you now. Don Baylor of the A's has indicated that his team wants to play the Mets in the World Series, because the Mets are the National League's best team.

"That's what makes America great," Lasorda said of Baylor's quotes. "We live in the land of opportunity and freedom of speech. There's nothing wrong with him saying that."

Freedom of speech wasn't such a glorious concept to Lasorda when David Cone's ghostwriter used it to poke gentle fun at Jay Howell earlier in the series.

But when things are breaking your way, you can overlook such small slights as the American League champions looking down their noses at you.

And things are definitely breaking for you Dodgers.

Early Monday morning, you beat the Mets. Later Monday morning, you learned that your ace relief pitcher, Howell, who was serving three days to life for first-degree pine-tarring, will get off a day early for good behavior.

Also Monday morning, an unidentified chemist phoned Lasorda in his hotel room and put to rest any lingering doubt that Jay Howell might be a cheater.

"A chemist called me and told me that rosin is pine tar that is powdered," Lasorda related.

I've heard of a team having good chemistry, but you are the first team I've know that has a good chemist.

Maybe this chemist also believes the moon is made of green cheese, but his phone call to Lasorda no doubt convinced you Dodgers that your strength is the strength of 10 because your collective heart is pure.

Howell didn't cheat, he was simply a victim of chemical semantics.

Everyone is also impressed. Dodgers, with your luck and your attitude.

Admit it, you've had a break or two. Gregg Jefferies, the Mets' rookie third baseman who could probably leap over Alfredo Griffin's car, couldn't hop over a ground ball that bounded maybe 6 inches off the dirt.

Jefferies was running from second to third, in front of shortstop Griffin, when the routine ground ball brought him down like the arrow that nailed Achilles. That cut off a Met rally in the eighth inning.

"The ball, Alfredo and me were just kind of meeting," Jefferies explained.

The ball, Alfredo and Jefferies are going to have to stop meeting like this, or people will say you Dodgers are lucky.

Not that anyone thinks you're simply lucky. You've scored first in every game. You've taken the Mets out of their game, taken the edge off their aggressiveness, forced them to play a tamer, more frustrating brand of catch-up ball.

You do seem hungry. Kirk Gibson steals second base on one leg, a human pogo stick. Orel Hershiser warms up in the bullpen, ready to drag his billion-dollar arm into the game 3 days in a row, like a common laborer.

John Shelby makes a great diving catch in center field. Mike Marshall, the forgotten Dodger, gets himself on base four times.

"They're playing the game the way it's supposed to be played," said Met slugger Darryl Strawberry. "You got to do the little things. Notice a guy like Mickey Hatcher. He'll sacrifice for the ballclub. Maybe we're not doing that enough. Everybody wants to be the hero."

This has to be very depressing stuff for the Oakland A's. I understand that if you Dodgers win the pennant, the A's will offer to spot you two or three runs a game in the World Series, just to make it fair. They'll also make Jose Canseco bat left-handed.

Not that it's all over for the Mets. Who knows what bizarre twist of fate may interject itself into the series when it returns to Los Angeles?

"Short series, strange things happen," Keith Hernandez said. "Strange things happen."

Either he said that twice or there was an eerie echo.

Clearly, the Mets are looking over their shoulders to see what's coming next, and baseball is a game of flinches.

You Dodgers should keep the Mets off balance. How about if Lasorda lets Jay Howell start in Game 6, instead of saving him for short relief?

Howell has been killing the Mets. He's eager and well rested. Why not get his three shutout innings up front, give yourselves a great chance to jump into the lead again?

It's a little unconventional, but this is no time to start playing it straight.

Hall Hopping

perhaps the biggest adjustment was his mental approach to the game.

"I felt comfortable after the first game. I didn't receive much time, but it was a learning experience," he said. "The toughest thing about playing defensive back is the mental phase of the game. You have certain responsibilities."

"Actually as a defensive back, the out back (wide receiver) is your main responsibility. It puts a lot of pressure on you. You have to do your job."

The Pirates had given up 93 points and over 1,100 yards in the previous two weeks before the West Virginia game, but Hall felt the Pirates played better against the Mountaineers.

"It was a great challenge," he said. "Everybody in the last week of practice stuck together. We really felt we could win the game. We came out and got after it. You can't let the game before get you down."

But the Pirates fell 30-10 and despite an improved performance, things get even tougher this week with an away game at fifth-ranked Florida State.

"I think we've got to improve quite a bit," Baker said. "We allowed too many long runs the other day. We're still giving too much cushion on some of our pass coverages. We're going to have to tighten those situations up."

"I thought we played three good quarters of defense (against West Virginia). The fourth quarter was not as productive as the first three. You've got to give some cushion, (but) we've got to learn to get to the ball. I think with the addition of Chris, we're looking for better coverage. The other key is to not give them time to pass."

A's Have Cone's Column Ready

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Oakland Athletics haven't expressed a preference of an opponent in the World Series. But Manager Tony La Russa has David Cone's column ready, just in case the New York Mets win the National League pennant.

"I've got it right here," La Russa said after the A's swept the Boston Red Sox in the American League playoffs.

Picking up a copy of the New York Mets pitcher's controversial article that appeared in a newspaper last week, La Russa read aloud: "That Oakland lineup isn't so scary..."

Cone, who was hammered by the Los Angeles Dodgers in Game 2 of the NL playoffs, may have to defend his remarks again if he and the Mets can get past the Dodgers in games 6 and 7 of the NL playoffs. Oakland dominated baseball's best-hitting team on offense in its four-game series, outscoring the Red Sox 20-11 and outthumping them 7-2.

Still, it was defense that La Russa and several A's players cited as a big reason Oakland is headed for its first World Series in 14 years.

"That is probably the least-told story of our season," La Russa said. "It's probably what makes me the happiest."

The A's made three errors to Boston's one in the playoffs. But sparkling plays in the field by shortstop Walt Weiss, center fielder Dave Henderson, second baseman Mike Gallego and others helped the A's hold down the Red Sox and enabled Oakland's late-inning superiority in pitching and offense to win four straight games.

"This team was talked about a lot because of the home runs, the bash and things like that," veteran designated hitter-left fielder Dave Parker said. "But these guys showed what the Oakland A's are all about."

The A's took Monday off and planned to work out today while awaiting Saturday night's World Series opener in the NL city.

Some Oakland players admitted they'd be rooting for the Dodgers tonight so that the series could be played in the warm California weather and so travel time between cities would be short. But others were hoping for a matchup of the only two teams to win 100 games this year.

"If we play the Mets, it'll be the two best teams in baseball," Mark McGwire said. However, he added, "I think everybody in this clubhouse knows who's the best team in baseball."

Oakland's defense, nothing to write home about previously, became one of the best this year.

In 1987, Oakland was 11th in the league in fielding with 142 errors. This year, the team finished third with 105 errors. The only two teams ahead of the A's, Minnesota with 84 errors and Boston with 93, had fewer than the previous AL-record low.

The double-play total increased from 126 last season to 151 with the additions of the rookie Weiss at shortstop and Glenn Hubbard at second. Weiss made 15 errors — only one in the last two months when he had a 58-game errorless streak — compared to 24 for Alfredo Griffin last year.

The defense also tightened at virtually every other position.

Henderson, a 24-homer, .304 hitter who said he enjoys catching the ball more than hitting it, made spectacular grabs in center all season. In the second game of the playoffs, before making a bobble that resulted in two Boston runs in a 4-3 Oakland victory, he sprinted back to the Fenway Park warning track 400 feet from the plate in right-center and snared Ellis Burks' bid for a run-scoring extra base hit.

In his third season in right field, Jose Canseco developed into an outstanding fielder with a great arm. Stan Javier played stellar defense in left.

First baseman McGwire and catcher Terry Steinbach, both converted third basemen, honed their skills through experience. Gallego often was spectacular when filling in for the injured Hubbard at second, and Carney Lansford's reliable play at third made him a Gold Glove candidate.

"I've had a lot of opposing managers tell me they were surprised at how well we are playing defensively," La Russa said last month.

The same excellence was on display in the playoffs.

Pirates Finding Ways To Lose

and they understand that," Baker said. "I haven't seen any drop off in their play (splitting time). Besides, if we're going to run the option much, they're going to run out of gas and both of them probably welcome the opportunity to take a breather. We're fortunate to have a situation like we do have."

Baker did single out the play of the starting offensive line, saying that all played well.

"I feel like we're bringing in good players to our program and the pro of that is that we've lined up against two of the top teams in the country and played well," the coach said.

But the Pirates are not winning, having lost five in a row now.

"Bluntly put, it was another game we found a way to lose," Baker said. "We have to turn this attitude around. We did this last year in the latter part of the season. Our players have to realize that we have a pretty good football team. We have that potential, we just have to believe that we can win."

Baker likened the attitude the Pirates need to that of a golfer coming to the final hole with the chance to win. "If you're facing a 10-foot putt, are you scared are you going to miss? Or do you know that you're going to sink it? We need to know we're going to find a way to win."

The Pirates will have to find that attitude in a hurry. This weekend, they travel to Tallahassee, Fla., to take on nationally-ranked Florida State in a 2 p.m. game Saturday.

Dodgers Keyed By Gibson's Play

ry," Lasorda said. "I believe the Most Valuable Player should go to the guy who's most responsible for the success of his team."

That was Gibson once again on Monday.

Rick Dempsey hit a two-run double off Sid Fernandez in the fourth inning and scored on a double by Alfredo Griffin.

Steve Sax and Mickey Hatcher singled to open the fifth and Gibson lined a fastball midway into the first deck in right. The homer was hit at 1:27 p.m. EDT, 13 hours to the minute after his game-winner.

"It's the same old story," he said. "When you swing for a home run, you usually look like a fool. When you concentrate and try to hit the ball hard someplace, a lot of times good things happen. It was a great moment for me. I don't know why they happen, but I'm glad they do."

The Mets tried to muster their usual rally but fell way short.

Len Dkystra hit a three-run homer off Tim Lincecum in the bottom of the inning but the score remained 6-3 until the eighth when Dykstra doubled leading off. Gregg Jefferies followed with an RBI single to chase Belcher.

Left-hander Ricky Horton came out of the bullpen to strike out Keith Hernandez, but gave up a single to

Kevin Reynolds, the first batter to face the Dodgers reliever, tapped a slow roller to short that the speedy Mets outfielder appeared likely to beat out for a hit. But instead of having the bases loaded with one out, the Mets suffered a second out when rookie Gregg Jefferies, running to third base, was hit by the bouncing ball.

The inning, and the Mets' last chance at victory, ended when Gary Carter flied to left.

"It was one of those fluke plays you have no control over," Jefferies said. "I was running as hard as I could and just jumped. What else can I do? It wasn't a rookie mistake. A guy who has been around 10 years would have gotten hit with that ball."

Some people said maybe I jumped a little bit early, but I'm not sure of that."

Holton held the Mets the rest of the way, giving the Dodgers' bullpen nine scoreless innings since the suspension of relief ace Jay Howell. Belcher gained his second victory over New York in five days, making him the first rookie to win two games in a single playoff series.

The Dodgers added an insurance run in the ninth, although it may ultimately prove to be costly. Gibson singled and stole second, popping his hamstring. Pinch-runner Jose Gonzalez scored on Mike Marshall's triple to right.

"There was a sharp pain and a pop back in that area," Gibson said. "Hopefully, it's not a hamstring pull and maybe just some tearing of some scar tissue. I don't know if I can play tomorrow. I know I have a burning desire to play."

An apple a day is a healthful treat, especially when you eat the fiber-rich skin.

DUNKEL INDEX COLLEGE FOOTBALL

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Rose Hands Northeastern A 6-0 Shutout

Rose, led by a one goal-three assist performance by David Leisten, handed Northeastern its first Big East Conference soccer loss of the season, 6-0, Monday.

The Rampants led 3-0 at the half thanks to goals by Jason Bizzaro, Toure Clairborne and Edwin Manning.

Bizzaro's goal opened the scoring at the 29:00 minute mark with a penalty kick. Leisten assisted on the goal.

Clairborne's goal came on a header off a corner kick by John Bolen at the 31:00 minute mark, while Manning's score came off a crossing pass from Leisten.

Dunford O'Koth made it 4-0 36 seconds into the second half on an assist by Marty Measamer.

Patrick Joyner scored on a penalty kick at the 49:00 minute mark, with Leisten assisting on the goal.

Rose's final score came on a shot by Leisten, assisted by O'Koth.

"We were really up and ready to play," said Rose coach Charlie Harvey. "The fact that we had six goals and six different players scored them says it all. This was a team effort. I was especially impressed by the defensive of Cliff Harrell.

Rose outshot Northeastern, 16-8 and got eight saves from goalie Steve Higdon.

Rose moves to 6-2 in the Big East, while Northeastern drops to 7-1 in the conference.

Grimes Wins DR Weekly Football Contest

Michael Grimes of 1109 Colonial Ave., Greenville, is the winner of the Daily Reflector Football Contest for last week.

Grimes picked the winners in 28 of the 32 games listed on last Tuesday's contest pages.

Second place went to Kim Smith of 212 W. Pine St., Farmville, who picked the winners in 27 games. Smith's victory came on the basis of the point total guess, listing 69. The actual total was 67, in Texas-El Paso's 42-25 win over Hawaii.

Others who also had 27 right but were further off on their point total guesses were: Steve Dail, 124 Shellbrook Dr., Winterville (90); Frank Thornton, 1215 Chaucer Dr., Winterville (74); Ann C. Blue, 203 Crestwood Dr., Farmville (86); J.B. Newman, 309 S. Meade St., Greenville (91); Hal Chesson, 103 Placid Way, Greenville (73); Wilbur G. Williams, 8-3 Rountree Ave., Wilson (79); and Wesley Davenport, 1616 Longwood Dr., Greenville (no points listed).

The next of the weekly series appears in today's Daily Reflector.

Pack-Heels Gearing Up For Rivalry

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State is 4-1 and North Carolina is winless in five starts, but the game can be summed up in two words — traditional rivalry. Wolfpack coach Dick Sheridan said Monday.

"I feel a sense of responsibility to the people who support us," Sheridan said during his weekly news conference. "They put a lot of stock in what happens.

"We work hard for every game. But for this one, we dig a little harder; we reach for it. We're all affected by the attitudes of other people."

"From looking at North Carolina on film, I'd have to say we'll see the best offensive team we've played," Sheridan said. "It'll be the toughest test our defense has had. Defensively, in stretches they've been as good as any team in our league."

N.C. State, coming off a 49-0 victory over Division I-AA East Tennessee State, has played four games without giving up a touchdown, and is in better physical shape coming into the North Carolina game Saturday.

Ross Expects Pressure From Gamecocks

ATLANTA (AP) — South Carolina will pressure Georgia Tech on both sides of the ball, Yellow Jacket football Coach Bobby Ross said Monday, in looking ahead to Saturday's game against the eighth-ranked Gamecocks.

"Their game is pressure-oriented. They will take some chances, but they have the people and speed to recover and make up for those chances," Ross said.

"They attempt to force bad plays. We've had difficulty moving the ball and we see it as a real challenge for us offensively," he said.

Meanwhile, Gamecock quarterback Todd Ellis will challenge Tech's top-ranked pass defense, Ross said.

"He's got an excellent arm, makes good decisions and knows what he's doing with the offense," Ross said. "He can throw both the long and the short ball."

Georgia Tech, 1-4, has limited opponents to 95.8 yards per game passing and is ranked 12th in total defense. South Carolina, 6-0, is sixth in total defense.

Kickoff for Saturday's game at Bobby Dodd Stadium is set for 1 p.m.

Welsh, Cavs Try To Look Toward Louisville

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — The irony of the schedule is hard to ignore: after losing to No. 11-ranked Clemson for the 28th consecutive time, the Virginia Cavaliers have scheduled Louisville this Saturday — a team the Cavaliers have never played.

Losing to Clemson, 10-7, Saturday is "a hard thing to accept," said linebacker Jeff Lageman. "Every Virginia team dreams of being the one that stops Clemson's streak."

Coach George Welsh said Monday that loss — no matter how heart-breaking — has to be forgotten, and the focus must turn to the Cardinals, 3-3, and their quarterback Jay Gruden.

The Cavaliers, now 2-3 and 1-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference, have had their problems with passing quarterbacks. Duke quarterback Anthony Dilweg stung the Cavalier secondary for 391 yards and three touchdowns.

Gruden has passed for 1,440 yards and nine touchdowns this season, completing 59 percent of his passes.

Elkins, Proehl Are Honored By The ACC

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest quarterback Mike Elkins and wingback Ricky Proehl, who teamed up to lead the Demon Deacons to a 42-24 victory over North Carolina, have been chosen as the Atlantic Coast Conference players of the week.

Elkins, a 6-3, 215-pound Greensboro native, completed 18 of 22 passes for a season-high 233 yards, including three touchdown passes. He also rushed for 11 yards on four attempts as Wake Forest snapped a two-game losing streak.

Proehl, a 6-0, 185-pounder, caught eight of Elkins' tosses for a game-high 114 yards, including first-half touchdown catches of seven and eight yards. The Bele Mead, N.J., junior, who is third in the ACC with 28 receptions for 470 yards, also rushed four times for 16 yards and added another score on a three-yard yard as the Demon Deacons won for the third time this season.

Earlier, Maryland defensive tackle Warren Powers and Clemson linebacker Doug Brewster were chosen as the Atlantic Coast Conference defensive players of the week.

Williamston Netters Top Hertford

AHOSKIE — Williamston recorded a 9-0 sweep over Hertford County in girls' high school tennis action Monday.

The win boosted Williamston to 12-2 overall for the season and to 10-0 in the Northeastern 2-A Conference. The Lady Tigers will be back in action today in a match against Edenton.

Indiana Getting Better All Around

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Give Bill Mallory a minute and he might think of something, anything, that Indiana's football program hasn't improved on in the past four years.

Then again, he might not.

"It's probably everything we've improved in. ... I can't think of anything we haven't gotten better in," says Mallory, who inherited a losing and demoralized team that was haunted by a 40-year tradition in which even mediocrity would have been celebrated.

Indiana had just six winning seasons since World War II. Lee Corso was fired after the 1982 campaign and Sam Wyche quit in 1983 to become coach of the NFL Cincinnati Bengals. Mallory, the third coach in three years, inherited a five-game losing streak and added 11 more losses in a winless rookie season in 1984.

But the turnaround was already under way.

"It really boils down to the way the kids have come in, worked hard, matured," said Mallory, who had successful coaching stints at Miami, Ohio, Colorado and Northern Illinois before taking the Indiana job. "They've had a good attitude, good pride, and feel confident they can get in and battle anybody."

"All these things came together the last four years," he said. "A lot of the older guys who have been around can see this kind of maturity shaping up. Now we have quality football players and a quality football team."

The key, obviously, is recruiting, and Mallory has tried to show potential Hoosiers the university is no longer content with putting a team on the field just to mark time before basketball season. He began stockpiling younger players as red-shirts, brought in some transfers and slowly began seeing positive results.

Indiana was 4-7 his second season, 6-6 with a loss to Florida State in the All American Bowl in 1986 and 8-4 with a loss to Tennessee in the Peach Bowl last year.

This year, the Hoosiers are 4-0-1 and ranked 18th. Indiana plays Minnesota on Saturday, then visits No. 15 Michigan.

Mallory says that while reminding his players how far they've come, it is easy to fall back.

"I think that's important. You never forget where you've come from and how you got there," Mallory said Monday. "You have to remind the young players, too, who haven't gone through the things these other players have, to be aware what's gone into putting this program where it is today.

"Never allow that attitude of complacency to sit in. That'll cut your throat quicker than anything."

That's what worried Mallory the most about playing Ohio State on Saturday.

Wyoming Gains Top Spot In Weekly Reflector Poll

Wyoming has moved into the top spot on The Daily Reflector's Computer Rankings.

Who? Wyoming? Yup, pa'dna, that's it.

Wyoming tops the list in the sixth week of the season with 620 points, moving ahead of last week's leader Florida State, now second with 590 points.

The Cowboys, however, are one of those teams that started early and has played each week, putting together a 6-0 record to this point.

Florida State, 5-1, also has played six games to this point, but a number of the teams right behind have only five games to their credit. And Miami of Florida, which had an open date this past weekend, has only played four.

The rankings reflect a team's success against the strength of its schedule. A team playing a stronger schedule will rank higher than those with a better record with a weaker schedule.

Points are awarded for each game a team wins. In Wyoming's case, they've won six games. Additional points are added for each game won by a team Wyoming beat, in this case 17 games. Then, further points are added for each game one of their victims win, here 25 games.

That brought Wyoming the 620 point total.

Third place is held by Southern California with 584 points while UCLA is still fourth with 576. Florida, despite its loss, moves up to fifth with 472, while Miami, after being idle, slips to sixth with 450.

The remainder of the top ten are West Virginia, South Carolina, Southern Mississippi and Colorado.

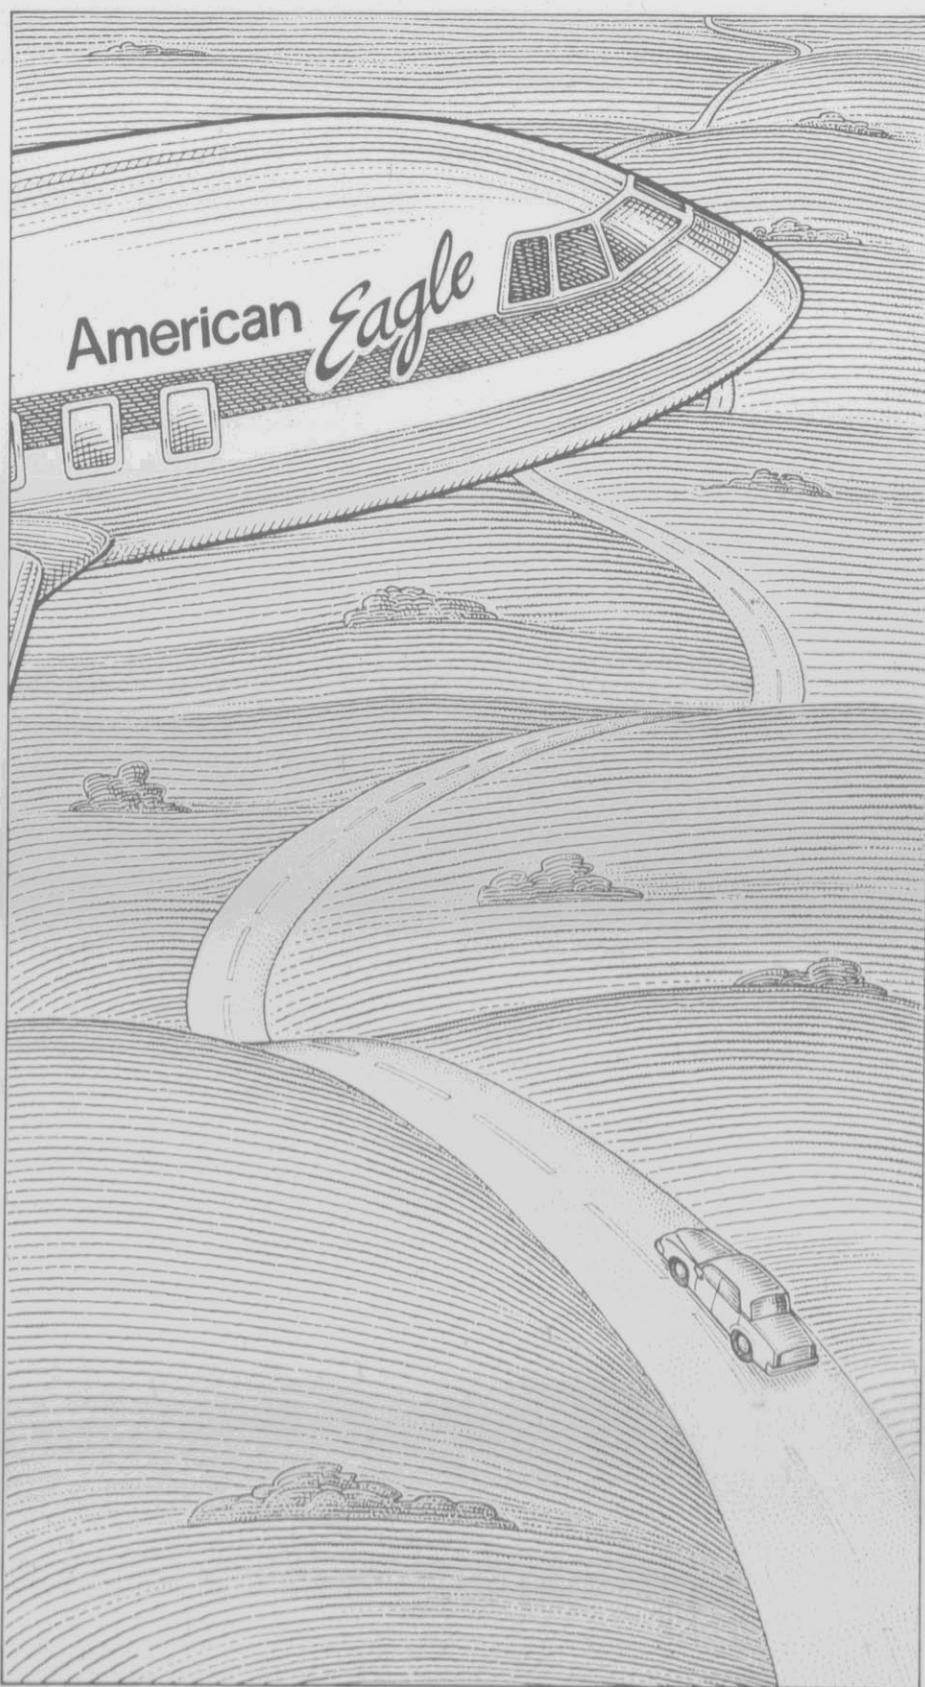

As the season goes along — and teams reach an equal number of games — the index becomes more accurate.

 If all you need is one of two finesses to succeed, you should bring home your contract three times out of four. But there are other lines nearly as good which could give you a tremendous psychological lift if you were to prevail.

This hand is from the recent Summer North American Championships in Salt Lake City. North-South reached four hearts after a competitive auction, and West led the ace of spades. When dummy came down, it seemed that the contract would hinge on finding either red king with East. But declarer, Jim Mahaffey of Florida, decided on a different tack.

In effect, West was endplayed at trick one. He cashed his two black aces, then continued with a club to dummy's king. Had declarer elected to take two finesses, his correct play to the third trick would have been to lead to the nine of trumps. That way, if the finesse lost, the eight of hearts would be an entry to the table to hook for the king of diamonds.

However, declarer opted for another line. He discarded a diamond on the king of clubs, then took two more diamond pitches on the top spades. A club ruff stripped the black suits from the North-South hands, then declarer cashed the ace of trumps. Had the king dropped, not only would the contract have been cold, but declarer would have earned crowing rights over his opponents. When his majesty did not appear, declarer exited with a trump. When West won the trick, he was endplayed and the contract could be claimed. Had East won the trick, declarer would have had to fall back on the diamond finesse for his contract.

Williams, Oslin Grab Two Awards In Country Music

By Joe Edwards
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Hank Williams Jr., the son of a music legend, and K.T. Oslin, who launched a career at age 44 and still does the chores at home, each won two Country Music Association awards.

Williams was voted entertainer of the year for the second straight year, joining Barbara Mandrell and the group Alabama as the only performers to have won it more than once. His "Born to Boogie" won top album in Monday night's presentations broadcast nationally by CBS-TV.

Oslin was voted the year's top female vocalist and won best song for her poignant "80's Ladies." The awards came just two years after she began singing country music professionally following minor singing roles on Broadway and making television commercials for items like denture products.

Randy Travis, whose album "Always & Forever" has sold 3 million copies, won No. 1 male vocalist for the second straight year at the black-tie ceremonies at the Grand Ole Opry House.

Williams, 39, whose father, Hank Williams Sr., sang country weepers like "Your Cheatin' Heart" in the early 1950s, said he performed more than two decades before he began winning awards three years ago for his rousing blend of country, rock 'n' roll and blues.

The single of the year was "18 Wheels & a Dozen Roses," by Kathy Mattea, a former tour guide at the Country Music Hall of Fame.

Other winners included the mother-daughter Judds, vocal duo of the year; veterans Linda Ronstadt, Emmylou Harris and Dolly Parton, top vocal event; Highway 101, group of the year; Ricky Van Shelton, Horizon Award for a rising performer, and guitarist Chet Atkins, musician of the year for the ninth time in his long career.

Loretta Lynn, whose life was the subject of the 1980 movie "Coal Miner's Daughter," and cowboy singer Roy Rogers became the 47th and 48th members of the Country Music Hall of Fame.

National Geographic Recalls Its History

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Producer Nicolas Noxon acknowledges that telling the story of 100 years of the National Geographic Society presented a few sticky problems.

First of all, how do you get a century of exploration around the world, and in recent years out of this world, into a 90-minute documentary?

"We adopted a pretty pragmatic attitude," said Noxon, whose production of "The Explorers: A Century of Discovery" is his latest for National Geographic. "The formula I worked out was that we would put in film on all the important things from the past 100 years and leave everything else out."

"Once I resigned myself to the coffee-table concept, once we got comfortable with that, it worked out pretty well. If we applied too rigid a test we'd leave out things we wanted in. We came up with 'The Explorers' for the title. If we strayed too far from that we weren't true to the theme."

Noxon also faced the problem of keeping it from becoming just a cut-and-paste job.

"One of our dilemmas was that after all the musts we didn't have much time for electives," he said. "Certain things just had to go in. We wanted to add some new film, but it was very limiting."

New film for the 100th anniversary documentary includes a sequence on mapping the sky at Mount Palomar and a look at the Nova Scotia home of Geographic founder Alexander Graham Bell.

Appropriately, "The Explorers" will be telecast on Columbus Day, Wednesday, on PBS.

The show is largely told with archival photographs and film, much of it never before seen on television. Associate editor Terry Koenig, an Emmy winner for "Secrets of the Titanic," worked closely with Noxon in putting the film together.

Among the highlights:

- Conquest of the North Pole by Robert Peary, and Richard Byrd's flight over the South Pole;
- Exploration of Alaska's Valley of 10,000 Smokes in 1917, the first Geographic expedition to be documented in motion pictures;
- William Beebe's descent a half-mile into the ocean depths in a bathysphere;
- Harrowing exploration of the stratosphere in a hydrogen-filled balloon by Army Air Corps officers in 1934; and

Networks To Issue Warning About TV

By Malcolm Ritter
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — ABC and CBS will broadcast an animated public service announcement in which two children become "couch potatoes" while watching TV, as a warning to avoid too many hours in front of the set, network spokesmen say.

The 30-second cartoon is being offered to the three major networks and 400 local stations by the American Academy of Pediatrics.

It is the academy's first public service announcement designed to speak directly to children, said Jeff Molter, director of the group's communications division.

"It says be choosy in what you watch, and we think it's good for

Election Time

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As the election draws near, Jerry Lewis and Dick Clark are drumming up the votes. But not for president. Lewis is host of Clark's production of "America Picks the All-Time Favorite Movies" on ABC on Sunday, Oct. 16.

children to be choosy in what they watch," said CBS Broadcast Group executive Matthew Margo.

ABC's director of press relations, Janice Gretemeyer, said the spot's message "is consistent with the position that ABC has long held, that children should be selective in their television viewing."

An NBC spokesman said his network had not yet received the spot for review.

Over a toe-tapping instrumental backup and a chorus singing "couch potato," the announcement tells children to "avoid this dread disease, be choosy in what you watch. ... Don't just plop in front of the TV 'cause you've got nothing else to do."

It also admonishes children to "watch out for overeating."

On screen, the boy couch potato pleads, "Leave me alone, just let me groove with my tube."

The girl couch potato gazes at the television and says, "Got to have that. ... Mamma, can I buy that?" while chowing down on a bowl of snacks.

The spot ends with a family of couch potatoes turning back into two children and their parents. The viewer hears: "Don't be a couch potato. Couch potato. Not me!"
