South Africa Nationalists Win; Blacks Skip Voting

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The governing National Party today won control of the major cities in municipal elections, and candidates who advocate stricter racial segregation captured much of the country's heartland.

Only a tiny fraction of the country's 26 million blacks voted in Wednesday's segregated elections, which the white government described as the most significant extension of democracy in South African history.

Government opponents said the black votes were meaningless because blacks have no vote in national affairs, and only about 1.4 million were registered in the contested districts.

"Manipulate statistics whichever way you like," said Archbishop Desmond Tutu, the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize laureate who advocated a black boycott. "The reality remains that black South Africans reject apartheid and government attempts to give it a coat of new paint."

The balloting was the first in which people of all races voted the same day. A total of 7,229 seats were being contested, most in white towns and cities. Of the 1,839 seats available on black councils, only 905 had more than one candidate, and 138 had no candidate.

The government declared itself satisfied with the results, and said they would be a basis for choosing black leaders to negotiate on national issues.

"A significant percentage had voted for peaceful evolutionary change in South Africa," said Constitutional Development and Planning Minister Chris Heunis. "These people have shown that the constitutional structures, as they are unfolding, are acceptable to them."

Municipal councils have power to evict squatters, segregate parks, public buildings, and transportation facilities. Under a new law, they can request the national government to declare sections of their city open to all races.

Through representation on regional councils, the majorities on the white councils can also influence how much of their tax money goes to help develop neighboring black townships, where the councils have limited access to funds, and less power.

State-run Radio South Africa estimated the black voter turnout was about one-third nationwide.

Turnout of black voters ranged from as low as 11 percent in Soweto, the nation's largest township with 2.3 million residents, to up to 80 percent in some small rural communities.

But the independent South African Press Association reported that even in townships where the turnout was high, the number of blacks eligible to vote was so low that the voting represented just a fraction of the black population.

In Soweto, the votes cast represented 2.8 percent of adult residents.

A white anti-apartheid group, the Five Freedoms Forum, challenged the government's interpretation that the turnout was an endorsement of its policy.

Quayle Tells N.C. Crowd Dukakis Ideology Hidden

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ASHEVILLE — Sen Dan Quayle said today that Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis had tried to keep his ideology from the American people in a "cynical political move."

Quayle, addressing a breakfast of several hundred supporters at the Grove Park Inn resort, said the Republicans are "the party of the future ... we're the ones that are out there talking about ideas."

Recalling Dukakis' statement at the Democratic convention that the election is about competence rather than ideas, Quayle said, "I can tell you ideology is important. Ideas are important, and to think you can fool the American people by not talking about ideology was a cynical political move that will not work."

Keeping up the Republican strategy of portraying the Massachusetts governor as a liberal who is out of step with mainstream America, Quayle said, "Liberalism is a philosophy of the past. It is a philosophy that failed."

Quayle earlier said he feels confident the GOP ticket will win in North Carolina, but came to the state "to make sure North Carolina goes our way."

"It's a good state," Quayle said Wednesday night as he arrived in Asheville. "We feel very confident in North Carolina."

The candidate spent the night here before moving on to Charlotte today for a rally. Quayle was greeted by about 40 people at the Asheville Airport. He is expected to head for New Jersey and upstate New York when he leaves Charlotte.

A smoke detector was activated by accident at the Grove Park Inn Wednesday night, sending some hotel guests scurrying, but Quayle stayed in his room.

During a stop in Florida before he arrived in Asheville, Quayle said the Democratic ticket headed by Michael Dukakis is having its "swan song" on national television as the Nov. 8 election draws near.

Supreme Court Review May Affect Pitt Convict Fate Of North Carolina Death Penalty At Stake

By John Bare

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

As the North Carolina Supreme Court gets set to review the state's death penalty law for the second time this year, a Pitt County man on death row waits to hear whether the court will overturn his sentence.

The U.S. Supreme Court has ordered the state Supreme Court to review the fairness of North Carolina's death penalty law, but there is no indication yet whether the order will affect the state court's decision on the case of Harvey Lee Green Jr., 28, of Bethel, sentenced to death by a Pitt jury in June of 1984 for the murder of two people during a robbery in a Bethel dry cleaners.

Earlier this month, the U.S. Supreme Court sent word that the state court would have to review the death penalty sentence handed down in a Cherokee County case, State v. Oscar Lloyd. The formal order could arrive Monday, state Supreme Court Clerk J. Gregory Wallace said.

Justices have instructed Wallace to distribute copies of the order immediately, he said, therefore action could come as early as Nov. 3, the court's next decision date.

The state court has already reviewed the death penalty once this year, after the U.S. court ruled in June in Mills v. Maryland that the Maryland death penalty law was unfair.

Some officials say the second review is only a procedural move to allow the state court to reaffirm its position. "They may very well have sent (Lloyd) back to see what our court's posture is going to be," Senior Deputy Attorney General James J. Coman said. "(Then the) U.S. Supreme Court can determine whether or not they want to hear it."

"They've sent a message to our court: review the issue in Oscar Lloyd and give us your determination. Obviously, Oscar Lloyd was decided before Mills v. Maryland was known," he said.

Coman said he would be surprised if the U.S. court reverses the death penalty in the Lloyd case.

Coman declined to comment on the Green case until a decision is delivered, but he said the most recent order from the U.S. Supreme Court is not a signal the federal court wants to strike the state's death penalty law. The U.S. court only wants the state court to review the Lloyd decision in light of the Mills case, he said. "That's the

Gov. Jim Martin speaks to supporters Wednesday during whistlestop in Greenville

Martin Stops Over In Pitt On Last Leg Of Statewide Whistlestop Tour

By John Bare

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

It wasn't Murphy to Manteo, but it was close.

Gov. Jim Martin completed a three-day, 533-mile whistle stop campaign tour Wednesday, stopping in Greenville at 11:30 a.m. on the last leg of a trek that began Monday in Asheville and ended with a rally in Morehead City.

About 200 students from Christian schools in eastern North Carolina followed the instructions of Martin campaign officials and chanted "four more years" as the governor's train rolled to a stop near Pitt and 14th streets. Martin, waving a pin-striped engineer's cap, said the rail tour would help Republicans defeat the Democrats in the Nov. 8 general election.

"We started off on Monday morning in Asheville, and when we left Asheville, the chairman of the county commissioners in Buncombe County gave me this golden spike to show to ya'll at every stop, because this symbolizes a railroad. And the railroad symbolizes unifying North Carolina," Martin said, holding up a railroad spike. "Isn't it great?"

The Greenville stop, and others along the route, were made-for-television events, as campaign staffers supplied posters, buttons, balloons and small American flags. The three-car private train, decorated with red, white and blue banners that campaign officials placed on the train just before it pulled into each city, was equipped with a podium on the doorway of one of the cars.

Martin, a Republican running for re-election, was joined in Greenville by U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., GOP candidate for secretary of state John Carrington and Court of Appeals candidate Donald Smith. The governor's mother, Mary Martin of Columbia, S.C., stayed on the train during the brief rally. She joined the train tour Tuesday and said she plans to stay in Raleigh for the remainder of the campaign.

Martin's wife, Dottie, and members of a three-piece band wore red bandanas around their necks, attire Martin called "redneck kerchiefs" in a slap at his opponent, Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, over a comment Jordan made earlier this year about holding on to the "redneck vote" in eastern North Carolina.

"I wore it yesterday and I'm going to wear it again today, too," Mrs. Martin said.

Martin also poked fun at a commercial the Jordan campaign is airing that shows monkeys dressed in suits in an attempt to portray Martin and his advisers creating the state budget. "Did ya'll see that ad? Do you want to see me do my back flip?" Martin said as the crowd cheered.

"The reason they had to use monkeys to make that ad is because the unemployment rate was so low they couldn't get anybody else," he said.

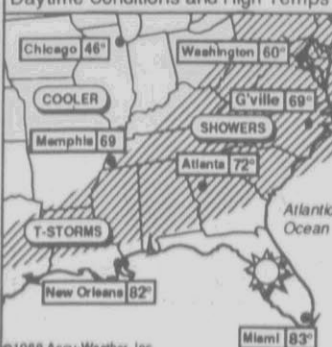

After spending about 30 minutes in

Students To Play 'Friend' To Kids

ECU NEWS BUREAU

A group of volunteer East Carolina University students will play "big friend" for small children in the community on Halloween for an evening of food, games and trick-or-treat visits to an ECU dormitory.

Forty student volunteers, organized as the East Carolina Friends, will be paired with selected children from two local elementary schools, South Greenville and Third Street Schools. The evening of fun will begin at 6 p.m. Monday in ECU's Mendenhall Student Center.

The "little friends," chosen from kindergarten through sixth-grade classes, will then be escorted to Clement Hall for Halloween trick-or-treating on various floors of the high-rise dorm.

It will be the first planned group activity of the academic year for the newly-organized East Carolina Friends, a student organization which received official recognition by the Student Government Association last year.

Membership in the organization is open to student volunteers who want to participate as an adult role model through a one-on-one relationship with a child. Pairings with younger children are arranged through school counselors.

The "big friend-little friend" relationship doesn't end with Halloween. The student volunteers make a one-year commitment to their "little friend," which includes spending at least two hours a week with the child and participation in other planned group activities on holidays, at basketball games and on outings.

The core group of East Carolina Friends was drawn from existing student organizations such as the ECU Ambassadors and others.

Through last fall, the organizational structure of the East Carolina Friends was shaped. An advisory board made up of school, community and university officials was created. Dr. Linda Mooney of the sociology faculty was selected as adviser, and executive officers were elected. Funds to support the group's work were contributed by local area firms, Burroughs-Wellcome and TRW.

Degree Programs are available for adults who desire to begin or finish a college degree. Classes can be arranged to accommodate work schedules, family and commuting obligations.

Martin Says Jordan Campaign Ads Have Backfired

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

It's been punch and counterpunch in the state's race for governor this year, but Republican Gov. Jim Martin says negative television ads aired by his opponent, Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, have backfired.

"As far as I'm concerned, I want him to keep doing what he's doing," Martin said Wednesday on a train ride from Greenville to Washington, N.C. "Because as long as he spends all his time attacking me — oh he may hurt me with some voters — but he's hurting himself with a lot more."

Martin, in Greenville as part of a three-day statewide whistle stop tour, met with reporters on the train after a 30-minute rally in Greenville.

"Our polls have shown him going down hill ever since he started spending all his money attacking me," Martin said. "But the way he feels about it, he knows he can't get elected governor unless he can tear me down, and he's doing his best to do that. And I'm going to do my best to stop him from it."

"It's the first time in my career that I've had an opponent call me a liar, call me incompetent or call me unethical, and Bob Jordan has done all of those things," he said. "But as he's done it, he hasn't hurt me, he's hurt himself."

In Greenville last week for a rally of his own, Jordan said his ads have not been negative, they simply focus on the different records of the two candidates.

In campaign speeches, Jordan has repeatedly claimed that Martin opposed every initiative Jordan introduced since 1984, and the ads are necessary to highlight Martin's failures. The ads have helped him pull closer to Martin in the polls, Jordan said, and he plans to air more commercials contrasting his record with that of the governor.

If the Jordan campaign airs new negative ads before the Nov. 8 general election, Martin may strike back.

"The first time he attacked, I answered his ads. I responded," Martin said. "The second time he attacked, I'm going to go on defense and try and explain my view of it."

"The third time he attacks, he better duck because I'm going to counterpunch," he said. "There's no point in my being a punching bag for him."

"There are two kinds (of negative advertising). What we've seen has been attack ads. About 15 percent of my budget has been counter-attack, because I don't think I ought to be a target for him to keep beating up on me."

"But over two-thirds of his advertising budget has been attacking me, in fact, just about all of it here in the last month. You haven't seen Bob Jordan on television. His campaign doesn't put him on television, so I thought I would," Martin said.

The governor referred to an ad he aired showing Jordan speaking to a group of black newspaper editors earlier this year. In the ad, Jordan says he cannot push the group's agenda too strongly or he might lose support in other parts of the state.

Martin press spokesman Tim Pittman said the ad about Jordan is no longer running. It was on the air about a week, he said, which is the usual length an attack ad runs. The Martin campaign is set to unveil a new television ad next week, and Pittman said the ad is a positive one.

Jordan has aired commercials accusing Martin of vacationing while the General Assembly worked on crucial business and he has compared Martin's work on the state budget to that of a monkey, airing an ad with monkeys dressed in suits doing flips on a conference table.

"He can put some monkeys on there, and I thought that was funny. Most people in North Carolina were insulted by that. They thought it was disrespectful to the office of governor."

"But as a campaign ad, it was kind of funny. But if he's going to have apes in his campaign ... then I can certainly have, not an actor, not an animal, but Bob Jordan speaking his own lines," he said.

Martin's wife, Dottie, and his mother, Mary, of Columbia, S.C., were also in Greenville on Wednesday. Both said the negative ads aired about Martin do not upset them.

"You have to learn to kind of let those things roll," his wife said. "You'd have an ulcer if you took those things seriously."

His mother said she does not pick up North Carolina television stations in Columbia, so she has had to follow the spear-throwing campaign through newspaper clippings and reports from friends in Charlotte.

"It makes me so annoyed. But we can't even get Charlotte (television stations) with cable, so we don't have cable," she said.

Outlandish ads about her son do not upset her, she said. "I know none of it's true. That's their problem."

Martin also said seeing negative ads about himself doesn't anger him. "I have to take it in stride, because I realize that if I'm ahead and better known and have stronger support, then my opponent has to realize the only way he can get elected is to tear me down."

How to measure
If installing inside window frame, measure width and length.
If installing outside window frame, add desired overlap, such as molding width, to inside width. If there is no molding, recommended overlap is 1/4" per side. For example, if you are installing inside a window frame that measures 23 1/2" wide and 56 1/2" long, select the package marked 23" to 23 1/2" wide x 64" long. Blind lengths can be shortened at home.

Tire Fire

DOBSON, N.C. (AP) — A fire at a Surry County tire dump sent flames 100 feet in the air, and smoke from the cloud could be seen 50 miles away, officials say.

Firefighters from seven Surry County volunteer fire departments responded to the fire seven miles south of Dobson after the fire was reported about 3:30 p.m.

Jones Should Return To Congress

Voters in North Carolina's 1st Congressional District have an opportunity Nov. 8 to return an effective leader with a proven record of strong support for his constituents to the U.S. House of Representatives.

Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C., should be sent back to Washington, D.C., by the voters he has soundly represented for 22 years. His tenure in the House has placed him in positions of leadership where his presence has served not only the nation, but the interests of his district.

Since it includes key coastal counties, the 1st Congressional District is dependent on resources for its livelihood — commercial fishing and agriculture are big business. As chairman of the House Marine Fisheries Committee Jones has protected the rights of eastern North Carolina fishermen and kept a keen eye on environmental issues. As a strong advocate of agriculture, he has worked, year after year, to ensure tobacco farmers are not overlooked in farm bills. Those issues affect pocketbooks in the 1st Congressional District, and Jones knows it.

Jones' opposition would have voters think the congressman's age has diminished his ability and effectiveness. But Jones has remained vital to the causes he serves. Jones was a player in the energetic 100th Congress. His stances on issues that body debated are sound and pragmatic. Jones stood against aid to the Nicaraguan Contras and he voted to override President Ronald Reagan's veto of the Clean Water Bill. Despite the 100th Congress' failure to deal with the nation's immense budget deficits, it was a productive session that left its mark on the future, and Jones was a part of it — just as he has been for over two decades.

The adage "if it ain't broke, don't fix it" is an ungrammatical cliché. Yet it is solid advice for the voters in the 1st Congressional District. In recognition of the leadership he has provided and the direction he can offer for the next two years, his constituents should send Walter Jones back to his seat in the U.S. House Nov. 8.

Recycling Represents The Future

Once United States citizens gladly recycled paper, metal cans and other items.

Even though it took some time to cut the ends out of cans, crush them and pack them for recycling, the nation did it with pride.

The time was World War II. The United States was fighting for its very existence and every scrap of paper, metal and other reusable materials was needed for the war effort.

The Allied powers won the war, of course, and Americans soon turned away from recycling and, in fact, became a throwaway society. It was a mark of affluence and manufacturers encouraged the disposable packaging.

Now, however, society has come to understand that this throwaway mentality is diminishing our natural resources and creating a monumental problem of disposal — it costs big bucks for local governments to effectively deal with solid waste.

The answer, of course, is to return to the philosophy that it is patriotic to recycle. Certainly it is if our counties and cities are not to be buried under an avalanche of trash.

Pitt County has made large, progressive strides toward supporting recycling and now Greenville is making a commendable effort to encourage recycling by its citizens. A recycling drop-off point at the public works facility, 1500 Beatty St., is a solid step toward addressing the waste problem.

Glass, aluminum, paper and cardboard can be brought to the center and deposited in the proper areas. By taking time to do this, citizens will know the material will be reused rather than hauled to the county landfill, which is expected to fill up in a few years. Following the closing of that dump, officials project a multi-million dollar cost to develop a new disposal site which meets new, sound environmental requirements.

Those who take time to separate their throw-away items and take them to the city center will know they are reducing their own costs as taxpayers. Ultimately the cost of solid waste disposal is passed on to every citizen.

It's time to think patriotic and proudly make use of the city's new recycling drop-off point.

Disregard Of Party Loyalty Has Limits

HARTFORD, Conn. — Come through the looking glass, into the wonderland of Connecticut's Senate race.

Candidate A praised U.S. action against Libya, questions the restraints the War Powers Act places on Presidents, denounces Castro as "more of a Marxist-Leninist than Gorbachev," endorsed the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction plan and praised the nomination of Robert Bork.

Candidate B denounced the U.S. bombing of Libya as a "gutter act," called the invasion of Grenada worse than any recent Soviet act, reveres the War Powers Act, praises Castro's "enormous intellect and idealism," opposed not only the Bork nomination but also that of William Rehnquist to be Chief Justice, opposes SDI, contra aid, Gramm-Rudman spending restraints and criticized Connecticut's Republican 1986 Senate nominee for criticizing the Democratic incumbent's liberalism.

Candidate A is attorney general Joseph Lieberman, the Democrat. Candidate B is the Republican incumbent seeking a fourth term, Sen. Lowell Weicker. Suddenly it seems possible that Weicker's seat, until recently presumed safe, may be yanked from beneath him, with many Republicans helping with the yanking.

In 1970, Weicker slipped into the Senate by winning just 42 percent of the vote in a three-way race in which a second Democrat ran as an independent. In 1976, riding a Watergate wave (Weicker honed his grandstanding skills on the Watergate committee), he won 58 percent against a poorly financed Democrat. In 1982 he won 50 percent against a Democratic opponent of Lebanese extraction whose extreme liberalism divided the Democratic Party and whose views on the Middle East drove away Jewish voters. (The Democrat got 46 percent; a minor candidate 4 percent.)

Because of actions taken when Republicans controlled the state legislature, this will be Connecticut's first statewide election without a straight party-line lever on voting machines. This will stimulate ticket splitting to Weicker's disadvantage, while Bush carries Connecticut.

By preening as a maverick motivated by principle, Weicker has catered to Connecticut's independent streak. "My party," he says sonorously, "is the state of Connecticut." But Connecticut's interests probably suffer because when he tends to appeal on its behalf to collegial feelings the appeals fall on ears deafened by his noisy moral exhibitionism that has made him one of the least liked senators.

Republican participation in the attempt to retire Weicker involves people other than hard-shell conservatives and thinking more profound than the ideological urge to purge liberals. Lieberman is a liberal, although not to the Weicker degree or in the hydrophobic Weicker manner. And serious, long-standing Republican activists who are now active against Weicker know this: A Weicker vote that would give Republicans control of the Senate would be far more important than all his other votes combined.

Because few Republicans would sacrifice Senate control even for the deep cathartic pleasure of defeating Weicker, he probably will call in some Republican senators to lie heroically on his behalf by exaggerating the chance of Republican control. But control would result only if Bush's coattails (an oxymoron?) produced a gain of four seats. A net loss is more likely.

So, free from the fear that they may cost their party Senate control, the challenge for anti-Weicker Republicans is to relate their rebellion to something more worthy than ideological fastidiousness. It should be something even larger than the correct belief that Weicker's political style involves too much subtraction from public civility. The rebellion should be based on this idea: There must be some limits to the disregard of party loyalty; some boundaries, however broad, to the naked individual entrepreneurship that characterizes political careers like Weicker's.

Running for Police Chief

WASHINGTON — Across this grand and wonderful nation, a key has been inserted into the word processors of newspaper columnists. Hit it and out comes the words: "This presidential campaign is avoiding the issues." To this, political professionals, especially those employed by George Bush, must enjoy a hearty laugh. Oh no it isn't, you can almost hear them say. The campaign is about issues that matter to Americans.

Richard Cohen

The campaign is about crime. It is about drugs. It is about military preparedness. It is about the family and family values. Maybe those aren't issues at Harvard, but those happen to be the ones Americans care about. To Michael Dukakis, the laugh of the Bush people must hurt. After all, he who laughs last, laughs best.

But the laugh is on us. It's not that the concerns the Bush people have identified and exploited are not real. Crime? Drugs? In New York last week, two policemen were buried in a single day. Military preparedness? The world is a threatening place, that's for sure, and you need only read the newly published memoirs of Nikita Khrushchev's son to realize that a single Politburo meeting is all it would take to turn progressive Mikhail Gorbachev into a full-time gardener.

What's disheartening about the reality — and the voters know it. But here again the issue is discussed as if we have learned nothing.

Or take family values. What does the phrase mean? The more the family disintegrates — the more the once-typical family of four becomes a museum piece — the more we talk about it. Our current President was divorced. His family relations are a mess. The wife of the Democratic candidate was divorced. A false rumor about Bush's personal life nearly sank the stock market. The reason it did so — and here's the telling phrase — was because it's believable, not only about Bush, but about anyone. The rumor says more about our times than it does any person in particular, and yet both candidates intone the word "values" over and over again. What are they talking about?

'The federal government has limited police functions. Think about it. If you hear a burglar in your house, who do you call? Not the Feds, that's for sure.'

campaign is that discussion of the issues makes little sense. Take crime and drugs. Bush has made them the centerpiece of his campaign. On any given day, he is likely to turn up in what seems to be several cities at once to get the endorsement of a police organization. He has turned that rapist-killer Willie Horton into an American nightmare — the poster boy of liberalism — and suggests that a Republican victory will ensure that we will sleep safer in our homes.

But Bush is running for President, not chief of police. The federal government has limited police functions. Think about it. If you hear a burglar in your house, who do you call? Not the Feds, that's for sure. You call the police — the city, the county, the state. And think about something else. When the police arrive, the chances are the burglar will be gone. What's the remedy for that? Hardly. Whatever the remedy might be, this much is sure: Bush doesn't have the slightest idea what it is.

The same situation applies when it comes to drugs. It, too, is a problem. But it can be fairly said that (choose one) the Reagan administration has either failed to control drugs or has made the problem worse. That's the Foreign policy? It, too, is being debated in the campaign. But the discussion, at least in television spots, is about strength — missile systems and the like. But where is the serious debate about the national debt, the economic challenge of Japan, about the changes Gorbachev has proposed in the Soviet Union — about, say, whether we should loan the Soviet Union the funds it needs to modernize its society or make things more difficult for Soviet reformers? The candidates will not say.

Columnists have yet another key on their word processors — and this one calls for balance. Press this key and both Dukakis and Bush are blamed for a presidential campaign that's unrelated to the facts on the ground. But balance and fairness are not the same and it would hardly be fair to blame Dukakis for what is mostly Bush's doing.

The vice president has not ducked the issues — he's trivialized them, smothered them in a blanket of banalities. In so doing, he's stood on its head the saying of Henry Clay in 1850: "I would rather be right than be President." Bush, though, would rather be President than anything.

The Non-Debate

David Ignatius
& Michael Getler

WASHINGTON — When President Bush or President Dukakis takes office next January, he will have the greatest opportunity of any president since Harry Truman to redraw the world's diplomatic map. He'll face a world in which the assumptions that have prevailed for a generation — about America's enemies and its friends — may no longer hold.

Yet the immense foreign-policy challenges that will face the next administration have scarcely been discussed in the long and tortured campaign of 1988. And it's likely that voters will go to the polls Nov. 8 without the benefit of even a primitive national debate on some of the global shifts that lie ahead in the 1990s.

"We're in the middle of a transition that will be obvious to historians 100 years from now," predicts former undersecretary of state Lawrence Eagleburger. "What worries me is that nobody is talking about these issues. Unless we recognize the transition that's taking place and reorganize the West to deal with it, the problems of the next 20 years will eat us alive."

The changes that are sweeping the world these days are stunning: the collapse of communism as an economic model and the rise of a radical reformer in the Soviet Union; the new ascendancy of economic power, rather than simply military strength, as a measure of national security and well-being; the global spread of democratic and free-market forces; and the palpable reduction in the threat of war between the superpowers. You can

Unfortunately, neither Bush nor Dukakis has addressed America's future foreign policy choices in any detailed way. Bush seems to have no agenda beyond maintaining the status quo internationally. He has taken a wait-and-see attitude toward Gorbachev's "new thinking" and remained wary of declaring the Cold War over. Indeed, he gave a speech last week in Fulton, Mo., that invoked Winston Churchill's "Iron Curtain" speech of 42 years ago. Dukakis, in contrast, refers often in speeches and debates to changes taking place in the world, but he offers few specific ideas for what to do about them.

How Bush or Dukakis would handle the challenges of the 1990s is hard to guess, at least based on their limited campaign discussion of foreign-policy issues. But we can make some guesses.

Dukakis probably sees a world in which economic factors are indeed in the ascendancy as the most crucial measure of strength and security rather than the more traditional measure of military power. As president, he would probably alter U.S. policy to put greater emphasis on the economic component of national security and less on weapons.

Bush, most likely the last American presidential candidate to be a veteran of World War II, would represent continuity with the attitudes and institutions of the postwar era. He would probably take a more cautious stance toward Gorbachev. And he would be more likely to define national security by the traditional measure of military power — and readier to use that power to advance American interests — than Dukakis. (A Bush administration might pay greater attention to economic factors if former Treasury almost feel the ice beginning to melt as these changes move from nation to nation.

Peace is breaking out, too. The bloody and seemingly endless wars in the Persian Gulf and Afghanistan are finally winding down. Conflicts in Angola, Namibia, Cambodia and western Sahara that have been raging for more than a decade may also be ending, as the exhausted combatants face reality and decide to negotiate. If the next president can maintain these recent trends, he may wake up one morning to a world where the guns of war have been silenced.

But if military conflict is receding, economic warfare seems to be on the rise. From Asia, the economic challenge to the United States from Japan and a half-dozen mini-Japans seems to grow daily. Meanwhile, western Europe is organizing itself into a trading bloc that may prove as tough and unyielding a competitor as Japan. Indeed, some analysts worry that by the end of the century, the free world may be divided into three great trading blocs — Europe, the Americas and a Japan-dominated Asia — battling for the same limited markets.

Add to this menu the daily drama of Mikhail Gorbachev trying, against considerable odds, to change the country that has been the focus of American foreign policy for nearly 50 years and you have a rough picture of the tests the next president will face.

secretary James Baker were secretary of state.) Which course is the right one may be the most important, and least discussed, issue of the campaign.

Despite the lackluster campaign, the next president will begin office with one enormous advantage over any of his predecessors of the past 40 years: Talk of nuclear war has receded in capitals around the world. There is a sense that the superpowers may be on the verge of a breakthrough, one that alters the frozen pattern of alliances and assumptions that has prevailed since the late 1940s. A great debate has been underway in Moscow during the past year about how to enter this new era. What a pity that in our own democracy in this election year, the foreign-policy debate has been so paltry.

Tar Heel Congressional Races Could Be Close

By Paul Nowell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina has been targeted as a key state in the presidential campaign, and leaders of both parties say if George Bush and Michael Dukakis have a tight race here, it could profoundly influence four congressional races.

"There's more close races in North Carolina than in any other state in the country," said state GOP Chairman Jack Hawke. He said a strong showing by Bush, the Republican presidential nominee, and incumbent Gov. Jim Martin could help wrest four seats in the U.S. House of Representatives from Democrats.

Ken Eudy, executive director of the N.C. Democratic Party, agreed North Carolina could have more close congressional races than any other state. The opposing party leaders even agree on the districts to watch — the 4th, 5th, 6th and 11th.

But that's where they agree to disagree. "I think we'll hold all of our seats," said Eudy. "We might even pick up the 6th if the presidential election is close. That would give us nine instead of eight."

Going into Nov. 8, Democrats control eight of North Carolina's 11 congressional districts. Political longevity is difficult to come by in several districts, particularly since President Reagan's landslide victory in 1980.

"We lost two or three seats in 1980, then gained them back in 1982," said Eudy. "We lost again in 1984 and gained in 1986."

One thing is certain — the Democrats entered the battle with two races already sewn up. Reps. Tim Valentine of Rocky Mount and Martin Lancaster of Goldsboro face no Republican opposition in the 2nd and 3rd districts, respectively.

Here is a breakdown of the contested races:

1st District
Democratic Rep. Walter Jones is not expected to face a significant challenge from fellow Farmville resident Howard Moye. At 74, Jones is the oldest and most senior member of the state's delegation.

Earlier this year, Jones was forced to address rumors that he was considering retirement due to health problems. He has had surgery for aneurysms in both legs, and uses a wheelchair.

Hawke acknowledged Jones is nearly unbeatable. "It's an uphill, tough battle," he said. "The one advantage we have is that Jones is not well, so he can't campaign as much."

For his part, Eudy called the 1st District race "no problem" for the Democrats.

"The only question is whether he (Jones) will get 65 or 70 percent of the vote," he said.

2nd District
Democrat Tim Valentine is unopposed in his bid for a fourth term.

3rd District
Democrat Martin Lancaster is unopposed in seeking his second term.

4th District
The 4th District race pits Democratic Rep. David Price against Republican Tom Fetzter.

Price, 48, a former chairman of the N.C. Democratic Party and political science professor at Duke University, is running for his second term. He has won praise from his party for campaigning hard in the district and raising enough money for a tough re-election bid.

The incumbent himself admits he's in the fight of his life. "Nobody's ever going to have a lock on this seat," Price said recently.

Fetzter, 33, is making his first run for public office, but he's no newcomer to politics. He's a veteran of Republican Sen. Jesse Helms' conservative National Congressional Club.

Fetzter also has the support of retired Marine Lt. Col. Ollie North, who gave a speech in August for free at a Fetzter fund-raiser. Helms' political organization also has helped him buy television time.

Both camps agree the 4th is a tough district to hold.

"I think it boils down to how well Fetzter will do in Raleigh and Wake County," said Hawke. "Bush and Martin are running strong here, and he (Fetzter) is running an aggressive campaign, using effective advertising."

The district has changed hands in the past two elections. Both national parties have pumped in money for their candidate.

5th District
Seven-term Rep. Steve Neal has raised a lot of money for his campaign against Winston-Salem businessman Lyons Gray.

"It's a district we held up until Watergate," said Hawke. "It's still got some good Republican counties."

Neal recently went on the attack, saying Gray had answered an AFL-CIO questionnaire by saying he was opposed to a bill to limit textile imports.

The entire North Carolina delegation voted in favor of a bill that would have placed tight restrictions on textile, apparel and shoe imports. The bill was vetoed by President Reagan and an override vote in the House was unsuccessful.

The 5th District includes a large number of textile workers. Gray later explained that his response was filled in by the National Republican congressional Committee, and that he favored such legislation.

While Neal has managed to hold the seat for 14 years, the Democrats aren't resting easy.

"It's a very tough district," said Eudy.

Hawke said much like the 4th District race, the winner here could be decided by urban voters.

"It could boil down to Forsyth County and Winston-Salem," he said. "But Gray is running aggressive and spending money. We won't say he's got it won, but if we do well on the top of the ticket it could go our way."

6th District
Two years ago, GOP Rep. Howard Coble held onto his 6th District seat by beating former Democratic Congressman Robin Britt by 79 votes. Coble had taken the seat from Britt in 1984 in what has been described as the "revolving door district."

Democratic challenger Tom Gilmore, a former state representative who once ran for governor, has been campaigning hard. He begins most work days shaking hands at dawn outside factories in a district with a large number of blue-collar workers.

"Tom has done a tremendous job of raising money, and no one's ever going to outwork him," said Eudy. "He also has good issues on his side — like the textile bill and the 60-day plant closing bill."

Both candidates are from Greensboro, but each realizes they also have to appeal to voters in conservative areas of rural Guilford, Alamance and Davidson counties.

Coble's campaign staff has tried to portray Gilmore as too liberal for the district because of his stands against the death penalty and in favor of abortion. Gilmore's campaign staff says his experience in business will attract conservative voters.

Gilmore's ads attack Coble for the district's low ranking in the amount of federal money it receives in proportion to the amount of taxes paid by its residents. He also has criticized Coble in such areas as the environment, education and support for the elderly.

7th District
Democrat Charlie Rose of Fayetteville appears safe in his race against Republican newcomer George Jerry Thompson of Lumberton.

"The 7th is a district we thought we might have had chances in because of Rose's problems last year with the ethics committee," said Hawke.

But the optimism quickly faded. As for Thompson's chances, even Hawke admitted: "I'm not all that familiar with him."

8th District
Republican challenger Ted Blanton of Salisbury has portrayed his effort to unseat longtime incumbent Bill Hefner in Biblical terms, with him playing David to the Democratic congressman's Goliath.

Hefner, a former gospel singer, has taken the campaign seriously enough to build up a substantial war chest.

"It's becoming an increasingly tough district," said Eudy. "It's the district that voted more for Reagan in 1984 than any other in the state. So Bill is doing the things that need to be done. He's increased his constituent services and he's running hard."

Hawke believes an upset could be in the making. "This is the one I said six months ago could be the sleeper," he said. "Ted is an articulate and attractive candidate."

"It's going to depend on who gets their votes out," Hawke said. "In presidential years, that district goes Republican."

9th District
After two grueling campaigns against Democrat D.G. Martin, incumbent Alex McMillan of Charlotte is hoping for an easier time against Michigan transplant Mark Sholander.

Sholander, 38, of Pineville, is trying to buck an overwhelming GOP tide. No Democrat has won the 9th District since Harry Truman was president. In addition, the district was the domain of Gov. Jim Martin during his 12 years in Congress.

"Alex is in outstanding shape," Hawke said. "I expect he'll hold that seat a long time."

Eudy called Sholander a bright young man, but added: "He's swimming against a 38-year tide."

McMillan pulled out a 321-vote victory over D.G. Martin in 1984 and came back two years later to win by 4,000 votes, when Democrats ran well across the South.

The 56-year-old former supermarket chain executive is not taking his opponent for granted. He has purchased local television time and his campaign staff is raising money and putting up signs all around Charlotte.

10th District
Rep. Cass Ballenger was selected by district Republicans in 1986 to succeed Jim Broyhill, who resigned to take the U.S. Senate seat of John East. Ballenger, 62, the founder of Plastic Packaging Inc. in Hickory, is a conservative who served previously in the N.C. Senate, where he was minority leader, and one term in the N.C. House.

Would You Eat This Diseased Crab from the Pamlico?

If You Leave Tom Taft in the North Carolina Senate, You May Have To.

After years in the North Carolina Senate, Tom Taft, through inaction, leaves dead fish floating on the Pamlico and diseased shellfish and crabs beneath the surface. He flip-flopped his position on the Phosphate Ban, while his appropriations committee refused to approve funds for a much-needed coastal environmental study.

Don't let this record of tragic neglect continue.

This year, send a man to Raleigh who will clean up our environment and has the clout to get things done. Bill Dansey pledges to:

- Create a state-level Department of Health and Environment to coordinate all environmental regulatory activities.
- Develop cost-effective alternatives to solid-waste disposal landfills.
- Appropriate funds for much needed coastal projects.
- Work closely with industry for a cleaner environment.
- Impose tighter controls on disposal of hospital/medical wastes.
- Adopt state-wide standards for watershed protection.
- Improve programs for protecting coastal waters and the fishing industry.

Elect Bill Dansey to the North Carolina Senate.

JAMES GIBBS

Judge Says No Bond In Deaths

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MARION, N.C. — Despite the presence and testimony of about 30 supporters, a Superior Court judge refused to set bond for a Fayetteville man charged with pushing his wife and another woman off a Blue Ridge Parkway overlook.

McDowell County District Court Judge Zoro Guice cited the district attorney's office announcement that it will seek the death penalty if James Clifton Gibbs, 37, is convicted as one reason he should be kept in jail pending a Nov. 9 probable cause hearing.

"Certainly it is a tragic situation for the defendant, for the decedents, for the family, for McDowell County, for Cumberland County and for North Carolina as a whole," Guice said.

Nonetheless, two first-degree murder charges are involved, he said. A magistrate had already found reason that he be charged.

"Considering all that, I think he should remain in custody," Guice said.

Gibbs' attorney, Ron Mitchell of Fayetteville, argued that a charge was not enough reason to hold a suspect without bail.

"He's lost his wife, his children have lost their mother. And now this," Mitchell said.

Assistant District Attorney Mike Walker, asking bond be withheld, put up no evidence.

Gibbs, 37, is charged with two counts of first-degree murder in the Oct. 17 deaths of his wife, Helen Burnette Gibbs, 32, of Fayetteville, and family friend Susan White Haire, 31, of Summerville, S.C.

Mitchell called several character witnesses during Gibbs' first appearance hearing. Among the witnesses was Gerald Gibbs, who described his brother as a hard-working family man who loved his wife and children.

Also willing to testify, Mitchell said, were Helen Gibbs' sister, Kathryn Locklear, and Mrs. Gibbs' mother, Gertha Burnette.

Gibbs' other attorney, Ed Harris, asked: "Isn't it unusual that the victim's mother and sister are pleading for his release?"

At that point, Bill Burnette, Mrs. Gibbs' brother, shouted from the back of the courtroom, "That's a lie. They're not pleading for his release. They're looking after the welfare of these children."

Mrs. Gibbs and Ms. Haire died Oct. 17 when they fell from the Chestoa View overlook along the Blue Ridge Parkway. Gibbs has insisted he is innocent and said he fell while climbing down the rugged slope to help the women.

Autopsies indicated the two women died instantly, authorities said last week.

"We feel like the man didn't fall," said Howard Parr, chief ranger for the parkway.

McDowell County Sheriff Bob Haynes said last week that Gibbs had told authorities the women were standing at Chestoa View on the parkway, about 33 miles north of Marion, to make photographs at sunset. Gibbs said he had been trying to take a picture of the women when one lost her balance and pulled the other over the edge into a gorge.

But Parr told the News and Observer of Raleigh Wednesday that the Chestoa View overlook faces "almost due east" and would not have provided views of the sunset.

"This is another thing the sheriff was concerned about," Parr said. "Why was this guy taking pictures of the sunset when the sun sets in the opposite direction?"

McDowell County authorities seized the film from Gibbs' camera as evidence, but would not disclose what pictures were on it.

"We do have the film and it has been developed," said Maj. Donald R. Ramsey, McDowell County chief deputy. He would not comment further.

Kohlberg Firm Appeals To RJR Stockholders

By Mariann Caprino
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co. took its $20.3 billion takeover offer directly to RJR Nabisco Inc.'s stockholders today, after managers of the consumer products giant ended talks with the investment firm.

Nabisco's management said it would continue to work with its investment adviser, Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc., on its own buyout proposal.

In an advertisement appearing in the Wall Street Journal, Kohlberg Kravis said its offer was conditioned on Nabisco's board supporting the bid. But corporate America was watching the fight closely to see how far the firm would go to protect its position as the nation's premier leveraged buyout firm.

Since its founding in 1976, Kohlberg Kravis has not acquired a company without the support of the target's board, although the firm gradually has become more aggressive in its deal making.

Kohlberg Kravis had announced Monday that it might begin the $90-a-share tender offer. That was just four days after Nabisco said its top managers were considering trying to buy the company for $75 a share, which would be worth $17 billion.

Nabisco stock edged up 12 1/2 cents a share to $84.87 1/2 in early trading today on the New York Stock Exchange.

The sheer size of Kohlberg Kravis' bid for Nabisco has forced corporations to reassess their own vulnerability.

"There's been a gradual awakening over the past week that if deals above $10 billion are successful, it gives credibility to even larger deals, and it's getting down to almost a handful of companies that are secure" based on sheer size alone, said one top takeover lawyer, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

According to one takeover specialist, who spoke on condition he not be identified, Kohlberg Kravis is "attempting to keep bidding on bigger and bigger deals so other people in leveraged buyout business can't compete with them. They'd like to be thought of as ... the only ones that come to mind when it's a super-big deal."

The stakes are high with Nabisco. Not only are the potential financial rewards astronomical, but there is the cachet that comes with succeeding in a deal that carries a gargantuan price tag. And on a more subtle level are the egos of those who are driven to establish new benchmarks.

Supervising the firm's proposal is Henry Kravis, as prominent on the New York social circuit as he is in the takeover game. He is widely expected to go the distance to protect his company's lockup of mega-sized leveraged buyouts.

Kravis was particularly miffed that Nabisco was working with Shearson, because he had been interested in the Atlanta-based food and tobacco conglomerate for some time. Kravis first broached the subject of leading a Nabisco buyout a year ago over dinner with Nabisco's Johnson.

Nabisco's decision to stick with Shearson even after meeting with Kravis pits him against his one-time skiing partner, Shearson Chairman Peter Cohen.

The sometimes abrasive Cohen has let slip in the press his astonishment that Kravis would be such a tough competitor after skiing and socializing with him. But those who know them wonder just how close the pair was.

"They are competitors in the same arena. They know one another, but I don't know if they are good friends. They're both very cool individuals," a takeover specialist said.

Cohen is benefiting from Shearson's more subtle ties to Nabisco in addition to having the support of the management team. Nabisco's Johnson is said to be a close friend of James Robinson, chairman of American Express Co., Shearson's parent.

In an earlier era, Kohlberg Kravis worked on the same side of the fence as Shearson. Within the past year Kohlberg Kravis acquired Jim Walter Corp. for $2.43 billion as Shearson served as the board's banker. And Shearson served in the same capacity when Kohlberg Kravis acquired Stop & Shop Cos. for $1.2 billion.

Thinning Herd To Help Ponies

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEAUFORT, N.C. — Thinning the herd of wild ponies on Carrot Island should help improve the remaining ponies' health, say wranglers who are rounding up the animals.

"They're not the popular conception of a herd of wild Arabians, running free with the wind in their manes," said Don Follmer, director of public affairs for the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, which is overseeing the horses' removal.

"They're a mixed breed, sort of hybrid mutt," Follmer said. "From a distance, they look a lot like Tibetan yaks."

The herd — which appears healthy, if a little scruffy — is being thinned to prevent overpopulation and starvation, which killed 19 horses in 1987 and left another 10 missing and presumed dead.

"There's just too many (ponies) and not enough to eat," said Keith Long, who took part in the roundup.

The plan is to reduce inbreeding in the herd by leaving a diversity of genetic lines among the 15 or 20 horses that stay on the island. An even number of males and females will remain, along with an even distribution of ages ranging from foals to 13-year-olds.

There are 52 horses living in the Rachel Carson National Estuarine Sanctuary — about 2,000 acres of land across Taylor's Creek from the town of Beaufort — including Carrot Island, Horse Island, Town Marsh and Bird Shoal.

Ex-Deputy Shot

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — A former Surry County sheriff's deputy was shot to death Wednesday at his Holly Springs trailer, and his girlfriend was wounded, authorities say.

David Lee Carlisle, 42, was killed early Wednesday morning, and Patricia Cox was wounded, according to Surry County Sheriff W.R. Hall.

A spokesman for the state medical examiner's office said that Carlisle died from a gunshot wound in his head.

Ms. Cox was taken to Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem by helicopter. She suffered a gunshot wound to her face and hand and underwent surgery, a spokesman for the hospital said.

Hall said there were no suspects in the shooting.

Judge Reschedules Granville Elections

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WILMINGTON — A federal judge has canceled Granville County's Nov. 8 county commissioners election, which had been challenged by black voters.

After a hearing Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Wilmington, Judge James C. Fox set May 23 as the new election date. The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last week rejected a voting system favorable to minorities that Fox approved for use in last spring's primary, saying the county's district voting plan must be accepted.

Fox had to decide whether to cancel the November election or allow it to proceed, with the winners holding office until a new election could be held.

No black has been elected county commissioner in Granville County, although 43 percent of the population is black. Five blacks sued the county, charging that the election system — in which candidates are nominated from districts but elected by all county voters — kept blacks from getting elected.

Races Are Close

Democrat Jack Rhyne, 52, a former Belmont mayor, state representative and state senator, is taking a leave of absence as vice president of Radiator Specialty Co. of Charlotte to take on Ballenger.

Rhyne, who also described himself as a conservative, has accused Ballenger of renegeing on a self-imposed promise to spend no more than $50,000 on the campaign.

Ballenger said he agreed to the figure only as a limit on television ads. For his part, the incumbent has accused Rhyne of misrepresenting his stances on such issues as the catastrophic health bill and a vote to give reparations to Japanese Americans interred during World War II.

"Jack Rhyne is facing a difficult race, but he has held office in that district," Eudy said. "He's simply being outspent by a millionaire businessman."

Hawke said simply, "Cass is in very good shape."

11th District
The 11th District seat held by Democrat James McClure Clarke is considered another tough battle in North Carolina and has drawn interest from both national parties.

Like the 6th District, the 11th has been volatile in the 1980s. The Republicans won in 1980, lost it two years later, won it back in 1984, only to lose it again two years ago to the Asheville Democrat.

Republican challenger Charles Taylor of Asheville is hoping the pendulum will swing back in the GOP's favor this time.

Cone Mills Closing Reidsville Plant

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Cone Mills will close its yarn-making plant here within the next 60 days in a move affecting about 325 employees, the company says.

"We are notifying employees at meetings today and tomorrow and will begin the phase-out very shortly and complete it within 60 days," Frank Fary, a spokesman for Cone Mills, said Wednesday.

The Edna plant produces yarn used for weaving in other Cone plants, including the Minneola plant in nearby Gibsonville, Fary said.

Cone announced earlier this week that the Minneola plant would close within 60 days. That closing will affect 500 workers.

"I do not have planned, nor expect any further plant closings," said Dewey Trogdon, Cone's chairman and chief executive officer.

"These actions are specifically directed at stabilizing remaining operations and protecting our continuing work force," Trogdon said. "I feel the company is today better positioned competitively in the markets we serve both in the U.S. and in export markets retained over the past four decades. The $29 billion textile and apparel import share, and its potential for further growth, is unquestionably a threat."

"However, we will continue to fiercely compete and will work aggressively for a legislative solu-

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Charlotte man held his former boss at gunpoint for about 1½ hours after being fired from his job at an industrial floor service company, but later surrendered without incident, police said.

No one was injured in the takeover Wednesday of Floortech Inc., authorities said.

When a supervisor fired a floor technician about 9:30 a.m., the man pulled a .32-caliber handgun on manager Theodore Teitelzweig, 43, of Charlotte, said Patty Beatty, public information specialist with the Charlotte Police Department.

Reginald Isaac was charged with assault with the deadly weapon and was sent to Charlotte's Mental Health Department for evaluation later Wednesday, Ms. Beatty said.

Kroger Stores

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Kroger Co. is selling 21 stores in North Carolina and South Carolina to Bi-Lo Inc., of Mauldin, S.C., for a total of $34 million in cash.

Kroger, a Cincinnati-based food retailer and supermarket operator, said Wednesday the sale is part of the company's announced program to sell some assets as part of a $4.6 billion restructuring Kroger is undertaking to fight off takeover efforts. The restructuring, which prompted the firing of 300 of Kroger's 800 Cincinnati headquarters personnel on Oct. 6, is designed to keep Kroger as an independent company.

Kroger issued a statement saying that Bi-Lo has agreed to buy 20 Kroger food stores, and a Welcome superwarehouse store located in Greenville, S.C. Bi-Lo is buying 15 Kroger food stores in Charlotte, Gastonia, Matthews, Salisbury, Pineville and Monroe, N.C., and five Kroger stores in the Charleston, S.C., area.

Donation

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — A scientist who won the 1988 Nobel Prize for medicine says he'll donate his share of the monetary award to a charitable community foundation he helped create five years ago.

Dr. George Hitchings, 83, a scientist emeritus with Burroughs Wellcome Corp., said he would give $130,000 to the George and Beverly Hitchings Endowment of the Greater Triangle Community Foundation.

"Science, I think, has been pretty well funded," Hitchings said when asked why he chose charity over scientific projects. "There are a lot of people things that are more necessary right now."

Hitchings founded the community foundation in 1983 as a confederation of charitable funds which make grants to non-profit agencies in the Raleigh, Durham and Chapel Hill area. Relatives and friends established the endowment in his and his wife's names in 1985 in honor of his 80th birthday.

Durham Awards

DURHAM (AP) — Syndicated columnist Ann Landers and three scientists have received the first City of Medicine Awards, which recognize individuals for their contributions to medical sciences.

Miss Landers was recognized Wednesday for supplying "reliable, authoritative medical information" to the 90 million readers of her column, said Dr. James Davis of Durham, president of the American Medical Association and chairman of the City of Medicine Awards Program.

The other winners are Dr. Eugene A. Stead Jr., a former chairman of the Duke University Department of Medicine; and Dr. Stanley N. Cohen and Dr. Herbert W. Boyer, two scientists who discovered a method of cloning DNA and made significant contributions that have led to advances in biotechnology.

Electrocution

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — A 40-year-old Pee Dee Electric Membership employee was electrocuted when he came in contact with a high-voltage power line, officials say.

Mertis Ray Mills of Wadesboro was killed about 11:43 a.m. Tuesday while working on a line about three miles south of Peachland, according to Anson County Sheriff Tommy Allen Jr.

Shultz' Trips Cost $2 Million

By Tim Ahern
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Personal trips taken by Secretary of State George Shultz on his military aircraft over a 30-month period cost the government nearly $1.9 million, with Shultz paying only the price of economy-class airfare, a congressional report says.

The General Accounting Office report says Shultz took 23 personal trips during the 30 months ended last July, most of them visits to family homes at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif., and Cummington, Mass. Most of the time Shultz was accompanied only by his wife, Helen.

The total bill for those trips came to $1,892,214, GAO told the House Government Operations Committee in a report released Wednesday. Most of the money was spent for Shultz' military plane, its sophisticated communications equipment and the secretary's security personnel, the review said.

Shultz reimbursed the government for less than 1 percent of the cost, basing his repayment rate on the economy air fare rate to a destination plus $1, State Department officials told the GAO.

The total amount Shultz reimbursed the government was $18,783, the GAO said.

Shultz' annual Cabinet salary is $99,030. His net worth is unavailable, but his financial disclosure form filed earlier this year shows that a blind trust created from his holdings had income last year in excess of $100,000.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said Shultz used the military plane because "the secretary of state is the secretary of state 24 hours a day, 365 days a year," no matter where he is.

Redman said Shultz has followed the practice used by other secretaries of state for the past 15 or 20 years. Many other Cabinet members also use military aircraft for reasons of improved security and communications, he said. Redman added, "The fact of the matter is that the security threat doesn't disappear just because the secretary happens to be on vacation, nor does the need for communications."

The bulk of the $1.89 million cost for the 23 trips went for military aircraft — $797,219, the GAO said. Hotel accommodations for security personnel and other aides cost $336,414; overtime for those personnel cost $256,205; per diem food costs were $183,030; and $141,464 was spent to install telephone lines. In addition to the 23 personal trips, the study listed a series of other trips by Shultz between 1982 and 1986 that were listed as official travel, but which also included a private component. Those trips weren't among the 23 whose expenses were totaled by the GAO.

L.A. Sheriff Reports Flynt Offered Million To Kill Rivals, Two Others

By John Antczak
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Larry Flynt offered a self-styled soldier of fortune $1 million to kill rival sex magazine publishers Hugh Hefner and Bob Guccione, and Frank Sinatra and Walter Annenberg, authorities said.

The purported hitman, Mitchell WerBell, died of a heart attack in December 1983 about a month after Flynt gave him the check, sheriff's Capt. Robert Grimm said Wednesday night. WerBell was in his 60s when he died of natural causes, authorities said.

Flynt's alleged motive was not disclosed and no charges have been filed against him.

Grimm told a news conference that information about the plot turned up recently in an investigation of the 1983 murder-for-hire slaying of New York theater producer Roy Radin, whom authorities said was embroiled in a soured finance deal for the movie "The Cotton Club."

A former Flynt bodyguard, William Mentzer, is one of four defendants charged in Radin's killing.

Investigators have not interviewed the Hustler magazine publisher and have not presented a case to the prosecutor, Grimm said. He declined to elaborate and said Los Angeles County Sheriff Sherman Block spoke about the purported plot earlier in the day because he had been approached by the news media.

"Our investigation is continuing," Grimm said.

Grimm identified targets of the alleged plot as Hefner, Sinatra and Guccione. He declined to name a fourth person targeted, but authorities told KNBC-TV that person was Annenberg, the publishing magnate and former ambassador.

"Larry Flynt one evening called an individual by the name of WerBell to his home and allegedly offered him $1 million if he would arrange for the death of these four individuals," said Block, adding he took the matter seriously.

"I've been led to believe that Larry Flynt has a propensity to try to harm people he sees as his enemies, whether (over) business arrangements or whatever."

A woman at Flynt's office told The Associated Press Flynt "just said he doesn't make comments on trash like that."

WerBell was an international arms dealer who developed the MAC-10 submachine gun. He called himself a retired general of the Royal Free Afghan Army, according to promotional material from his Georgia-based counterterrorism firm, Sionics Inc., released by the sheriff's department.

Grimm displayed a photocopy of a $1 million check allegedly signed by Flynt and made out to WerBell.

Block said a Flynt associate immediately stopped payment on the check so it never was negotiated.

A telephone call to Annenberg's Palm Springs home was answered by a woman who said he was on the East Coast and wouldn't be immediately available for comment.

Reagan Says Raze Moscow Embassy

By Merrill Hartson
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said today the United States has "no choice" but to tear down the nearly complete U.S. Embassy in Moscow because the facility is riddled with eavesdropping devices.

Reagan, walking toward his helicopter to begin a campaign trip to Arkansas, Missouri and California, was asked if he had decided the embassy must be demolished.

"Yes," he replied, "because there's no way to rid it of the many listening devices that were built into it."

"We have to do it. We have no choice," Reagan said. Asked where the money would be found for a replacement, he replied, "We'll take it away from something else."

"We're going to start and have an American-built one," he said of the embassy.

The Washington Post reported today that Reagan will recommend to Congress that the embassy be razed and rebuilt, at a cost estimated at $300 million.

The newspaper said it could take five years to build a replacement eight-story embassy on the same site with materials imported from the United States.

State Department sources have said Secretary of State George Shultz recommended the move to Reagan after the unfinished building was inspected by a congressional delegation and a private engineering firm.

The first eavesdropping bugs, in structural elements built elsewhere by Soviet workers and transported to the site, were discovered by U.S. inspectors in the spring of 1987.

One member of Congress who toured the facility, Rep. Olympia

Snowe, R-Maine, said in September that $38 million remained in previously approved embassy-construction appropriations to dismantle the unoccupied embassy.

But Rep. Snowe said that BDM Corp., which inspected the facility for the State Department, said the dismantling could cost $160 million. Construction of the bug-riddled embassy and studies about its future have cost nearly $60 million.

The Post said officials now plan to fabricate the building's main elements in the United States, ship them to the Soviet Union, keep them under heavy guard and have the building assembled by U.S. workers taken to Moscow for the construction project.

State Department officials said that until a new U.S. embassy is occupied Soviet officials in Washington will be barred from using their long-completed but unoccupied embassy office building.

The United States and the Soviet Union agreed in 1972 to build new, larger embassies in each other's capital.

Whales Head Out To Open Sea

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BARROW, Alaska — Two whales that held the world's attention for weeks swam away from their icy trap in a channel cleared by a Soviet icebreaker and Eskimo chain saws, and rescuers hoped the leviathans would reach the open sea.

"It's in nature's hands now," said Gary Hufford, a National Weather Service ice analyst.

The California gray whales swam off into the sunset Wednesday on what was hoped would be a long journey to their winter home off Baja California.

Officials halted helicopter surveillance at nightfall, and said they planned to meet today to decide whether to try to locate the whales that scientists dubbed Crossbeak and Bonnet.

But their fate may never be known. Scientists involved in the rescue that cost more than $800,000 didn't attach radio transmitters to the whales, in part because of concern that the devices would only add to the animals' stress, said federal marine mammal biologist Jim Harvey.

A whale that was trapped with the pair nearly three weeks ago apparently died last week.

But a major factor in the decision against the transmitters was that "a lot of people really didn't want to know" the surviving whales' fate, Harvey said.

In a final frenzy Wednesday, Eskimos using chain saws cut 50 new breathing holes into the ice, nearly as many as they had cut in two weeks. The whales, which grew accustomed to the cutting, repeatedly surfaced in the new holes before the last block of ice was removed.

The animals moved to less than half a mile from a channel carved through the 18-inch-thick ice by two Soviet icebreakers late Tuesday and early Wednesday. Then, the Eskimos were ordered to retreat so the icebreaker Vladimir Arseniev could reopen the channel, already partially refrozen.

Scrambling to safety on Nuvuagluak Spit, the rescuers were joined by a press corps that nearly outnumbered them.

After two hours and no movement by the icebreaker, the Eskimos grew impatient. Their years of experience with the Arctic Ocean told them that a rising wind could begin stacking up the ice and undo all the progress.

Faced with a near revolt, rescue coordinators allowed the natives back onto the ice, and they quickly moved the whales to within one-quarter mile of the channel the Soviets had cut Tuesday.

USDA Offices Are Displaying Warnings Against Marijuana

By Don Kendall
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Agriculture Department doesn't usually promote crop failures, but it's making one exception this year.

When farmers go into their local USDA offices these days to apply for drought relief or see about the 1989 wheat program, they'll probably see posters warning about the hazards of growing marijuana.

The USDA says its anti-drug message will be carried into every corner of the nation by the department's sprawling agencies.

"One day or one week will not solve the problem of illegal drug use," Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng said Wednesday. "But participation in this day and in the week's activities can help mobilize the efforts of concerned citizens — in government and out — to solve this distressing problem that faces America."

President Reagan recently proclaimed the week of Oct. 24-30 as National Drug-Free America Week. In Washington, daily programs of entertainment and brief speeches are making the rounds of various government departments.

"We should note that this effort is bipartisan," Lyng said. "Others, like us, are meeting today, or on another day this week, all across the nation. They are assembling in town meetings, in conferences, at rallies, in schools."

Lyng paid tribute to a number of USDA agencies for anti-drug activities, including the Forest Service, which he said last year "eradicated more than 250,000 high-potency marijuana plants grown illegally on national forests, plants that had a street value of nearly $1 billion."

The Forest Service arrested 135 suspects associated with the illegal pot harvest and charged them with felonies, he said.

Another agency, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service is displaying anti-marijuana posters in its 3,000 county offices, he said.

The ASCS handles commodity programs, payments and emergency drought relief for participating farmers. The agency also is using newsletters in its program aimed at illegal marijuana cultivation.

Lyng said the department's Food and Nutrition Service, which administers school lunch and food stamp programs, is working with the American School Food Service Association to support a "Just Say No" message among school children.

The agency also is working with the association to conduct a poster and essay contest with a drug prevention theme among elementary and secondary schools.

Also, he said, the food agency "encouraged the dairy industry to display 'Just Say No' on the side panels of milk cartons used in the School Lunch Program, a potential for reaching 26 million children in more than 90,000 schools."

The department Extension Service, through volunteer adult and teenage 4-H leaders, has established alcohol and drug abuse programs in more than 30 states, Lyng said.

Three More Eastern Tobacco Marts End Sales Year

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Final sales on the Eastern flue-cured tobacco auction belt were held Wednesday in Goldsboro, Rocky Mount and Windsor, leaving three markets open. Final sales are scheduled in Ahoskie and Farmville Thursday, and Wilson will complete sales Monday.

All other markets on the Eastern Belt have closed.

Prices were lower on the Old and Middle belts, and the Eastern belt tobacco markets Wednesday, according to the Federal-State Market News Service.

On the Old and Middle flue-cured tobacco markets, the top average was $173 per hundred, but most offerings sold between $163 and $170 per hundred.

Final sales were held Wednesday at the Carthage-Aberdeen market.

Preliminary figures from Wednesday showed that 3,274,905 pounds of leaf sold at a value of $5,327,220 for an average of $162.67. The average for the day was down $1.16 from the previous sale.

Gross sales for Tuesday were 5,940,000 pounds returning $163.83, which was down $3.31 from Monday.

Loan receipts amounted to 1.2 percent of Wednesday's sales and 2.8 percent for the season.

Leaf Graders Will Get Pay Raises

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Some part-time tobacco graders employed by the federal government will get pay raises of up to 20 percent beginning Nov. 6, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Assistant Secretary Kenneth A. Gilles said tobacco graders in the GS-5 and GS-7 government pay scales will be raised 20 percent, while those at the GS-9 level will receive a 13 percent increase.

The workers, whose jobs are seasonal, now get about $290 a week at the GS-5 level, $360 a week at GS-7 and $440 a week at GS-9.

Gilles said USDA asked the Office of Personnel Management on Aug. 25 for a 20 percent increase across the board, but received approval for only the three lower pay scales. Graders at the higher levels of GS-11 and GS-12 were denied. Those currently get about $533 and $638 per week, respectively.

"This pay increase will make it easier for USDA to recruit and maintain its quality tobacco grading work force," Gilles said.

About 260 tobacco graders work for the department's Agricultural Marketing Service. An agency spokesman, George Clarke, said their salaries are paid from user fees and not taxpayer funds.

Federal employees are scheduled for a 4.1 percent pay increase on Jan. 1, 1989, and all tobacco graders — including the ones getting Nov. 6 increases — will share in that one, the agency said.

Enzyme Lets Fruit Peels Strip Easily

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department scientists say they have found a way to make oranges and grapefruits shed their peels quickly and easily, with only a little tug here and there.

The quick strip job is accomplished by giving the fruit a dose of an enzyme, pectinase, which dissolves the albedo, or the white, fleshy tissue that glues the peel to the fruit.

Robert A. Baker, a chemist in the department's Agricultural Research Service, said the process leaves the fruit's core "much cleaner than if you peeled it yourself."

Martin Ends Cross-State Tour

Greenville, Martin repeated essentially the same speech at a 1:15 p.m. stop along the Pamlico River in Washington, N.C., even singing a verse of "Yes, We Have No Bananas" when the band struck up the tune after his comment about the monkey commercial.

Helms, who joined the tour in Raleigh on Wednesday morning and returned there after the Greenville stop, led the crowd in cheers for George Bush, Dan Quayle, Martin and other GOP candidates.

"Don't believe the (Raleigh) News and Observer and the other liberal news media," Helms said, wearing an engineer's cap. "Dan Quayle's a great American. He knows more about national defense and other important issues than (Democratic presidential candidate Michael) Dukakis and (Democratic vice presidential candidate) Lloyd Bentsen will ever know."

There were no hecklers, but one woman held up a sign that read: "Please retire Helms."

The campaign tour, which cost about $60,000, put Martin in 22 cities in three days. He took a similar whistle stop tour in 1984, visiting 17 cities.

"This kind of thing is good for the organization," Martin press secretary Tim Pittman said. "It's a good morale builder." Campaign workers were rewarded for their efforts with a spot on the train.

Motor racing king Richard Petty and sausage magnate Jimmy Dean rode the campaign train Monday. James Gardner, GOP candidate for lieutenant governor, traveled with the group Tuesday and Helms rode a portion of the route Wednesday. South Carolina Governor Carroll Campbell was to join the tour Wednesday afternoon in New Bern.

Martin was to fly back Wednesday night to Raleigh and attend a rally in Charlotte today where Quayle was scheduled to appear. Pittman said Martin will spend the final two weeks of the campaign attending rallies almost every night. The campaign is using direct mail solicitations to raise funds, Pittman said, and a new Martin commercial is set to begin airing next week.

The Wednesday rally was also a time for Martin to mix with school children, and he quickly posed for pictures with students from six Christian schools lined along the Pitt Street sidewalk.

Joanna Summerson, a 13-year-old eighth-grader at Mount Calvary School in Hookerton, carried a sign that read: "Helms for president in 1996." She said her principal, Dr. Bruce Phillips, told her to make the sign and include Helms' name. Phillips said most other students made signs supporting whatever candidates they wished.

Nita Rasberry of Greenville, who coordinated the Greenville rally, said she contacted Eddie West, superintendent of Pitt County schools, and asked local public school students to attend the rally, but none chose to attend.

"We contacted everyone. We contacted public schools and private schools. It gives the children the opportunity to participate in the political process of our state," Mrs. Rasberry said. "It's unfortunate the public school students could not be here. It's a wonderful experience, especially for the younger ones."

In addition to Martin, other GOP candidates shook hands with folks and handed out pins and bumper stickers.

Smith, running for re-election to the state appeals court against John B. Lewis of Farmville, had a reply for Lewis' claim that he is the only statewide candidate from Pitt County. "Tell him I'm the only statewide candidate from Sampson, Robeson and Wake: born in Sampson, raised in Robeson and I live in Wake," he said.

Bill Dansey of Greenville, running against incumbent Tom Taft of Greenville for a seat in the N.C. Senate, did not arrive at the Greenville stop in time to speak, but he rode the train to Washington and spoke briefly to the crowd there, pushing the theme of a GOP team and asking for support.

Howard Moye of Greenville, who is trying to unseat Walter B. Jones Sr. in the U.S. House of Representatives, also rode the train to Washington and spoke briefly to the Beaufort County crowd.

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Some stores in Winston-Salem are refusing to carry the November issue of "Spin" magazine because it carries a free Trojan-enz condom in an effort to fight AIDS.

The publisher of the magazine, Bob Guccione Jr., said in a telephone interview from New York that "Winston-Salem's a city that's sophisticated enough to hold the (presidential) debate — and it should be sophisticated enough to handle this."

"Yet it's an environment that is so scared of the word condom that it runs and hides as soon as one tries to give one away."

John H. McPherson, the president of Piedmont News Inc., which distributes the magazine, said: "We will distribute it. I'm not a censor."

But he said that many of the 654 stores and newsstands that he once supplied with the magazine said that, because of the condom issue, they have stopped stocking the magazine indefinitely.

Restaurant Has Triple Food, Fun

Reunited Triplets Turn Kinship To Cash

By Mary MacVean
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Portions are big enough for three, and what else would one expect at a restaurant called Triplets?

What's remarkable is that none of the three owners knew they were triplets until age 19, when they met and became best friends, roommates, classmates and, eventually, business partners.

Robert Shafran, Eddy Galland and David Kellman were born on Long Island 27 years ago, adopted at birth and raised in the area. Not even their adoptive parents knew they were triplets, said Galland.

"We were all fat kids with brown curly hair, and we knew we were adopted. We were comfortable with it," he said.

In 1979, Galland went to Sullivan County Community College, but transferred the next year. "Bobby came the next semester to Sullivan, and my friends thought I was back," Galland said.

One friend asked Shafran his birth date and whether he was adopted, and then told him he probably had a twin. News stories were published about the brothers, and when Kellman saw one, he realized the twins were triplets.

On Sept. 18, 1980, they met.

"It was like we always knew each other. It was instant — an incredible feeling," said Galland. "We knew immediately that we wanted to spend a lot of time together."

"It was total excitement," said Kellman. "It was electric."

They all transferred to City University of New York, rented an apartment, got a parrot named Zack, and turned down book offers.

They earned degrees in business and international marketing.

Eventually, they got jobs at Sammy's Famous Roumanian Restaurant, a boisterous, Lower East Side institution known for huge portions and familial atmosphere.

They learned their lessons well, and in January opened Triplets Roumanian Restaurant in the Soho section of Manhattan, serving similar ambiance and abundant, Eastern European food.

Restaurateurs Shafran, left, Kellman and Galland were reunited at 19

It seats 200, and while people come in as strangers, the brothers try to make sure they don't leave that way.

Intentionally just a tad tacky, Triplets has a big awning with cartoon faces of the owners outside; inside, on three levels, there are mauve banquettes, mirrors and dozens of color photographs of diners having the time of their lives.

There are T-shirts and coffee mugs, decorated with the triplets' mugs. A Triplets club offers discounts and special events. On each table is a light-hearted, comic book-style version of the brothers' story.

Sometimes, there are comedians, belly dancers, musicians, sing-alongs. The words to such songs as "Hava Nagila" and "New York, New York" are printed in the menus.

"People walk in and say, 'Who's the bar mitzvah boy?'" said Shafran.

The brothers divide chores, but Shafran said: "All of us talk about what we're looking for. We can cover each other's responsibilities. Our paths cross constantly."

And they clown around almost constantly. They tell half jokes, laughing before anyone on the outside has heard enough to get them.

Sitting recently around a table in their restaurant, the brothers are distinguishable — Shafran's the largest, Kellman the smallest.

Kellman also is reputed to be the most level-headed, Galland the most volatile. Shafran and Kellman are married; Galland is single.

But there's no doubt they're triplets.

They're gregarious, show signs of working out, and dress fashionably. Each had a similar upbringing with upper middle-class Jewish families. They've been studied by researchers looking at similarities and differences among separated twins and triplets.

Galland said they are not interested in finding their biological parents, and won't discuss the subject.

But they'll talk plenty about the comforts of home they offer at Triplets.

Disposable Lenses Offer Advantages, Doctors Say

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. LOUIS — Disposable lenses are safer and more convenient than other extended-wear contact lenses, according to optometrists attending a recent symposium sponsored by the American Optometric Association.

Early concerns that wearers might try to save money by stretching wearing time have not materialized, said Dr. Melvin Remba of Los Angeles, chairman of the group's contact lens division.

"Because the per lens cost is so low — it comes out to a dollar a day over a year's period — patient compliance is high," Remba said. Although the initial cost of disposable lenses is higher than others, savings on cleaning solutions and insurance premiums against loss reduce the cost to that of conventional lenses, the association says. However, the wearer must visit his optometrist every three months for a checkup and new supply.

Malfunctioning Equipment Keeps ECU Radio Station WZMB From Broadcasting

By Clay Deanhardt
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Greenville radio listeners who enjoy East Carolina University's WZMB 91.3 FM are hearing static when they tune in.

It's been that way for a month, ever since the station's exciter malfunctioned early Sept. 24. General Manager Keith Powe said Tuesday the static will continue for a while.

The exciter generates the power that drives the station's amplifier and contains the element that keeps the station on its frequency.

Powe said it was sent to Versa Count Co. in Elk Grove Village, Ill., for repair on Sept. 26. But it hasn't been returned, and Powe said the company has given them "the runaround."

Powe talked to the repairman for the first time on Sept. 30.

"He told us then that they tore into it the night before," Powe said. "That's when he said he got it." Later, Powe said, the repairman admitted the exciter arrived Sept. 27.

"He told us he was fixing it that morning and it should be out no later than that day or Monday, Oct. 3."

Since that first contact, Powe said he has been in touch with someone at Versa Count daily. Again and again, he said, he has been told the exciter would be in Greenville the next day.

Again and again, the next day has come, without the exciter.

Powe has contacted the Chicago Better Business Bureau and says he is filing a complaint against Versa Count.

Attempts to reach Versa Count on Tuesday were unsuccessful.

The exciter was bought five years ago with other important parts of the transmitter from Versa Count, Powe said. Now he has had second thoughts about the company's service.

And Macon Dail, the station's chief engineer, said he has been "putting Band-Aids" on the equipment for some time to keep it working.

"So we're just going to replace the whole shebang," Powe said. That includes the antenna and transmitter package, which includes a new exciter.

The ECU Media Board, the student-faculty committee overseeing all campus media, on Monday approved a $14,000 appropriation for the new equipment. Powe is working with university purchasing officers to buy the equipment. Bids are being taken.

Even though Powe and the purchasing department are trying to accelerate the process, no one is sure how long it will take to get the new equipment. Powe said that even after a bid is accepted, it could take several weeks for the new equipment to arrive.

He said there is a possibility a company could pull some equipment off the line and rush it to WZMB since it is not a new station, but an established station trying to get back on the air.

If the repaired exciter arrives before then, Powe said, the station will resume operation and replace the old equipment later.

In the meantime, Powe said students at the radio station have tried to keep busy. The office has been reorganized, he said, and old public service and grant announcements have been replaced by new recordings.

In addition, the station will resume broadcasting with a new slogan.

WZMB has been known as the Unique Difference since it came on the air just over five years ago. When it finally takes to the air again, Powe said it will be under the banner of New Rock 91.

Doctors: Generic Estrogen May Not Be Best

NEW YORK (AP) — Doctors at the recent annual meeting of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists report that generic estrogen therapy may be short-changing patients.

Dr. Rudi Ansbacher, assistant chairman of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Michigan Medical Center, reported that 16 patients who had been switched from Premarin tablets to generic drugs began re-experiencing menopausal symptoms.

Blood tests, he said, disclosed low estrogen levels. Laboratory analysis showed the generic tablets to be 33 to 86 percent less potent than the Premarin. The drug is one of the few prescription medicines for which the federal Food and Drug Administration does not recommend generic substitution.

Ansbacher said that when he put his patients back on the drug, their menopausal symptoms disappeared and their blood levels of estrogen stabilized within the range for desired health benefits.

Announce Marriage By CBS

Dear Abby: I am a 27-year-old woman. Five years ago I married and moved across the country. I haven't been in touch with most of my relatives since then. A lot has happened in the last five years. I'm now divorced and I'm planning to marry again next month.

My question: Is there a proper way to spread the news about my upcoming wedding to my relatives? I was never very close to these people, but I thought I'd just bring them up to date on my marital status. I don't want to send them wedding announcements because it might look like I'm soliciting gifts. I considered sending handwritten notes, but then again, it might look like I'm asking for a wedding gift.

Should I wait until December and include a little note with my Christmas card? Should I just tell my big-mouth cousin and wait for her to spread the news? Or should I just settle down to a life with my new husband and forget my relatives? — Relatively Alone

Dear Alone: The CBS (Cousin Broadcasting System) is probably the most efficient way to spread the news. But cover all the bases and enclose a personal note with your Christmas cards.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: I'm wondering how come it's always the husband who buys the wife a gift on their wedding anniversary — and not the other way around?

In this age of "equal rights" and "women's lib," one would expect gift-giving to be reciprocal, but apparently women seem quite content with the old double standard.

And by the way, while I was buying flowers for my wife for our anniversary, I raised that question with the florist. She said, "Don't you think your wife deserves flowers for having given you two wonderful children?" This confused me even more, as I was under the impression that the children were my wife's, too! — Confused

Dear Confused: Come on, now! I'm old enough to remember the pre-women's liberation days when women gave their husbands neckties and cuff links on their anniversaries. And that's when most wives didn't work outside the home. They shaved a little off the grocery allowance and stashed it in the sugar bowl for such occasions.

"How to Be Popular" is for everyone who feels left out and wants an improved social life. It's an excellent guide to becoming a better conversationalist and a more attractive person. To order, send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Baker Says Gains Made Schedule, Distractions Made Job Harder To Do

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

(First of two parts)

East Carolina head football coach Art Baker, in the final year of a four-year contract, says that building the Pirates into a winner will take quite a bit longer than he originally expected.

Baker came to ECU in the wake of Ed Emory's dismissal in December of 1984, giving up his post as quarterback coach at Florida State. He had served as the assistant head coach of the Pirates when they went 8-3 in 1983.

During his tenure, Baker has been faced with a number of challenges in an effort to rebuild the ECU program.

Before he signed a contract, the school had committed itself to a policy of scheduling games with many of college football's traditional powers.

In the last four seasons, ECU has faced the likes of Penn State, Auburn, Miami, Florida State, West Virginia and South Carolina.

While that type of schedule was financially lucrative for the Pirates, it has also had a down side — an overall record of 10-31 in Baker's three-plus seasons.

ECU posted a 5-6 mark in 1987 — the best record since 1983. Baker had one year remaining on his contract, but university officials said they would review his status at the conclusion of the 1988 season. This year, though, things have botched out.

ECU is a disappointing 1-7 and on a seven-game losing streak, with its next game against fourth-ranked Miami at home Saturday.

"In retrospect, this job I thought at the time could be done in four years and now I would say it would take at least five or six," Baker said.

"To begin with, when they hired me I thought at the time the terms of the contract, the length of years, was as much my decision as it was theirs. I probably could have asked for five years and gotten five years. I don't know whether I'd have gotten six."

It has been an almost no-win situation, according to Mike O'Cain, a former ECU assistant during the 1985 season who is now the offensive backfield coach at North Carolina State.

"It's not so much being a Division I independent that is the challenge. It is the schedule," he said. "They have been dealt a hand that I'm not saying is impossible, but it's almost impossible to win. That's probably one of the reasons I left."

"I enjoyed that area. I enjoyed Coach Baker. I felt he's done a great job. (But) are you successful when you're 5-6 with a schedule like that? And in my terms you are. Young men must learn to win football games and you don't learn to win by losing football games."

Baker said he has faced distractions in each of his seasons as the Pirates' head coach that have affected recruiting.

"There was a great deal of turmoil over the firing of Ed (Emory)," he said. "I found that to be a great distraction in my first year recruiting."

"This was really a detriment in the first year recruiting. The next year ends up right in the middle of recruiting with the charges by the NCAA that they brought against East Carolina."

"Last year, the question of my contract being renewed or not being renewed was a factor. Even as far as Florida or Pennsylvania, almost every time we went in we had to fight the question, 'are you going to be there to coach my son?'"

Baker has refused to comment publicly on his contract during the year in an effort to concentrate on the season itself.

But O'Cain said he felt Baker had been put in a tough situation.

"I'm living 90 miles away from things. We hear in Raleigh that he had to win seven games and that was before the season (began)," O'Cain said. "It's very tough. It's very unfortunate the situation. I don't know what will happen."

"Maybe it's not fair to ask me because I am very close to coach Baker. It's not a fair situation for him. He's judged by winning and losing. What is being successful? What (See BAKER, B-2)

Baker Said Resigning

Reports continued to run hot and heavy that East Carolina University football coach Art Baker will resign before the end of the current season.

The Pirates have three games to go over a four-week period which includes an open date on Nov. 12.

Rumors surfaced this past weekend that the ECU administration had asked for Baker's resignation, but officials at the university denied such action.

Most likely, however, it is believed that Baker will announce his resignation during the Pirates' off-week, Nov. 7-12. Less credit is given reports that Baker will resign following this Saturday's game against Miami, the fourth straight contest against a nationally ranked team for the Pirates.

Another report said that athletic director Dave Hart would relieve Baker of his duties after Saturday's game and appoint assistant head coach Don Powers as interim coach for the final two games.

Hart was out of town this morning and could not be reached. Hart told The Daily Reflector on Saturday, that he had too much respect for Baker to make any move in any direction, at least until season's end.

Of course, the names of prospective replacements for Baker are also running strong in Greenville. Names which have been mentioned include Frank Orgel, an assistant here under Pat Dye, and a candidate for the position when Dye resigned, now at South Carolina; Jim Donnan, a former N.C. State quarterback and North Carolina assistant coach, currently at Oklahoma; former Wake Forest head coach Al Groh, now on the South Carolina staff; Gary Stevens, assistant head coach and offensive coordinator at Miami; former ECU aide and current assistant at Auburn Wayne Hall; Appalachian State head coach Sparky Woods; William & Mary head coach Jimmie Laycock; Marshall head coach George Chaump and Georgia Southern head coach Erk Russell.

Two Suspended In NCSU Probe

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State University has suspended two athletic department employees after a state auditor's report revealed they used university equipment while making improvements to their homes, and Athletic Director Jim Valvano says he'll proceed with an internal investigation.

"We're always disappointed when any employee is accused of actions that violate any principle of our department," Valvano told a news conference Wednesday. "I now have to look into (the charges) myself."

Valvano said Howard Hink, assistant athletic director in charge of athletic facilities, was suspended with pay Wednesday, one day after the official release of the report by state Auditor Ed Renfrow.

Valvano said Bobby Stocks, a maintenance supervisor for Carter-Finley Stadium and Reynolds Coliseum, had already been suspended without pay pending the state auditor's investigation.

Valvano said no other officials in the athletic department were involved.

Stocks reported to Hink, Valvano said, adding that both men could be subject to further disciplinary action.

The N.C. State athletic department has come under much scrutiny in the last three years, going back to an audit which criticized the operation of Reynolds Coliseum and the relationship between the Wolfpack Club and the athletic department.

In the probe involving Reynolds

Coliseum, the former manager of the facility pleaded no contest earlier this year to charges that he worked part-time for a rock concert promoter who booked shows at the arena. Such activities constituted a conflict of interest.

Despite the number of audits in the last several years, Valvano said the attitude in the department is good.

"This department right now is on a high. I think the public perceives it that way," he said.

Valvano, also the Wolfpack men's basketball coach, said efforts have been continuing for the last several years to correct problems within the department. He also said N.C. State shouldn't be singled out among the nation's colleges and universities.

"It is my impression that this is the type of activity that you would have around the country," Valvano said. "It is not uncommon ... for people to get extremely close."

The report found that an assistant athletic director and a maintenance supervisor used employees for different home improvement projects while the employees were being paid by the state. The assistant AD also got paid for lending friends university equipment, the report said.

Renfrow's report, which included findings by the State Bureau of Investigation, concluded an audit by the state auditor's office that began after allegations were received of impropriety within the athletic department.

Miami Takes Frustrations Out On Cincy; ECU Next

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Two weeks ago, the University of Miami was sailing along as the nation's number one football team. But then Notre Dame threw a monkey wrench into the Hurricane juggernaut, taking a 31-30 win over the Hurricanes.

Pity Cincinnati. The Bearcats had the thankless task of facing Miami in the game following that. They paid the price, 57-3.

This weekend, Miami visits Greenville to face the 1-7 Pirates of East Carolina University. It's the Hurricanes' first game on the road since they ventured to South Bend. No doubt, Miami will be out to ensure that they do not fall into the trap of being forgetful as to why they traveled to Greenville.

That is, if they make it. Miami's press package for the ECU game notes the site of the game being Greenville, South Carolina.

"I hope they go to Greenville, South Carolina," ECU Coach Art Baker said. "It would make it easier for us."

However, it's unlikely that the Hurricanes will wind up blowing away Furman in the South Carolina town Saturday.

Adding to that is the fact that a Jimmy Johnson Miami team has never lost to a non-ranked team. The Canes are 17-9 vs. the top 20 and 29-0 against unranked teams.

Much of that is due to the fact that the Hurricanes have had a number of top-ranked quarterbacks to go through the system, and this year's hurler, Steve Walsh, is another of the standouts.

Walsh, this past weekend, connected on 19 of 23 passes for 286 yards and a school record-tying five touchdown passes against Cincinnati.

Walsh has thrown for a touchdown in 12 of the last 13 games, including 13 in the last three games alone. His consecutive string is seven games in a row with a touchdown pass.

For the year, he's hit on 123 of 203 pass attempts for 1,747 yards and 19 touchdowns. He's had only six passes intercepted.

As a tribute to the rest of his team, however, Walsh can point to one statistic with great pride — he has yet to be sacked this year.

Overall, Miami is averaging 329.5 yards a game through the air, while holding opponents to 147.7 yards. On the ground, the Hurricanes are picking up 132.0 yards a game and allowing only 86.7.

Walsh's top targets include six who have caught at least 10 passes this year. Fullback Cleveland Gary is the top receiver with 34 catches for 476 yards and three touchdowns. Tight end Rob Chudzinski is next with 22 nabs for 303 yards and four scores. Flanker Andre Brown had 20 catches for 350 yards and a team-leading six scores, while flanker Dale Dawkins had 17 for 275 and three touchdowns. Rounding out the group are split end Randal Hill with 14 for 202 yards and two touchdowns and halfback Leonard Conley with 13 for 144 and two scores.

Oh, Miami can run, too. But they set up the run with their pass — the reverse of what a lot of teams do. Gary is the leading rusher with 62 carries for 283 yards and three touchdowns. Conley had 62 carries also, for 204 yards. Fullback Shannon Crowell had 146 yards on 33 carries, with one score.

Carlos Huerta is the leading scorer for the Hurricanes with 55 points. He's kicked 25 of 25 extra points and 10 of 13 field goals. His longest of the year is a 47-yarder. He's also missed from 47 and 59 yards.

Defensively, the Hurricanes are led by middle linebacker Bernard Clark, who had a total of 71 tackles, including 36 primary. Tackle Russell Maryland is next with 51, followed by strong side linebacker Randy Shannon with 48. Miami has sacked opposing quarterbacks 28 times, led by end Bill Hawkins with 6½.

The Hurricanes had intercepted eight opponent passes, returning them 125 yards for one touchdown. Corner Roland Smith leads the way with two.

The Hurricanes would seem assured of a major bowl berth coming the end of the season. The ECU game will be their next-to-last road game. They have another road date with Louisiana State, plus home games with Tulsa, Arkansas and Brigham Young.

Kickoff for Saturday's game — assuming that the Hurricanes arrive in the right Greenville — is 1:30 p.m.

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Everyone is beginning to talk about J.H. Rose High School's season-finale football matchup with Northeastern High School on Nov. 4. But Rampant head coach Chip Williams feels all thoughts should, for now, be centered on Wilson Hunt, Rose's opponent Friday night.

Although the Northeastern contest is shaping up as the game for the Big East Conference title since both teams are currently unbeaten in the league, Williams said Hunt should also cause his team some worry.

"I sure don't want the players to look ahead," Williams said. "The Hunt game is just as important to us as the Northeastern game."

Rose and Northeastern are both locked atop the Big East standings with 4-0 marks. Rose is 8-0 overall and Northeastern is 7-1. Hunt, on the other hand, is 2-2 in the league and 5-3 overall.

The Warriors' conference defeats have come at the hands of Northeastern, 12-7, and Rocky Mount, 22-12.

"They're (Hunt) a good football team," Williams said. "They're playing as good as anyone else in the league right now. They had some early injuries that hurt them in a couple of their losses. The way I look at it, we're playing two playoff teams in our last two games. Right now it looks like us or Northeastern will be the top seed and I think, unless Northern Nash slips in, that Hunt will be in the playoffs, too."

Among the players the Warriors have had injured this year are quarterback-punter Glen Ridout and tailback Danny Allen. Both are healthy now and are expected to play Friday.

"Ridout throws very well,"

Williams said. "He does a good job of leading the team. He's also the best punter in the league. I saw him punt a ball from his on 35-yard line into the end zone against Kinston. They lost two of their games when he was out with an injured elbow. Allen is also coming strong. He was out with an injured knee for two of their losses too. But he's beginning to round back into form and is rushing real well now."

"The number one thing our defense has to do is shut down Allen on the run and Ridout on the pass if we want to be successful," Williams said.

Hunt also poses problems defensively for the Rampants, according to Williams.

"Their defense is usually one of the best in the league and it seems to be that way again this year," Williams said. "Offensively, we're going to have to do a great job of blocking their defense."

Clemson, Maryland Aim For Tie

By Tom Foreman Jr.
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With North Carolina State going outside conference play, both 15th-ranked Clemson and Maryland have a chance to throw the Atlantic Coast Conference title race into a three-way deadlock this weekend.

The Wolfpack faces South Carolina, and enters the weekend with a 4-1 ACC mark. Clemson, which lost to the Wolfpack last Saturday, and Maryland, which defeated Duke, are at 3-1. In this weekend's games, Clemson goes to Wake Forest and Maryland is at North Carolina.

Losing to N.C. State has changed Clemson's focus of attention, according to Coach Danny Ford, whose team is 5-2.

"We're not concerned about the conference any more," he says. "We're concerned about Wake Forest. We need to worry about Wake Forest and then go on to the next one."

With three teams heading down the stretch with one ACC loss apiece, Ford isn't convinced that such a record will stand up for the 1988 title.

"It's not inconceivable that, with two losses, there could be a tie for the title," Ford said.

Wake Forest, 4-3 and 2-2, lost out on the conference race with last weekend's loss to Virginia. Now, Bill Doolley is concerned that he will have to contend with an angry bunch of Tigers.

"I know that they played a close ball game against Virginia and took it out on Duke," Doolley said. "I hope they don't do that against us."

Maryland, 4-3, wasn't expected to be a part of the title picture. But the 34-24 beating of the Blue Devils has thrust the Terrapins into contention for their first conference title since 1984. But Coach Joe Krivak isn't promoting that idea right now.

"We're not projecting beyond two weeks, three weeks from now because we can't do that," he said. "For us to speculate beyond that is ludicrous. As somebody said to me the other day, the bubble could burst at any time. And it could."

Despite facing the 1-6 Tar Heels, Krivak won't say his team has the edge.

"We've got to play really hard. Carolina's a hell of a lot better than their record indicates," he said. "This is a good football team."

North Carolina was good enough to start a freshman at quarterback and get a 20-17 victory over Georgia Tech. Todd Burnett will start for the second straight week against the Terrapins, and Coach Mack Brown hopes he and the Tar Heels have come down from the high of their initial victory.

Elsewhere, Duke is at Georgia Tech and Virginia is at Virginia Tech.

N.C. State, 6-1, will meet the Gamecocks without linebacker Fred Stone, who injured a knee in the victory over Clemson. It's uncertain whether that will have an impact on the nation's No. 1 defense, but it is likely that the Wolfpack will carry into the game the memory of a 48-0 whipping at Columbia, S.C., last season.

"I think any time a team beats you one year, your players and coaching staff look forward to an opportunity to improve upon that performance," Wolfpack coach Dick Sheridan said.

South Carolina is also 6-1, having had last weekend off to ponder a 34-0 loss at Georgia Tech. The 51st meeting between the two schools is to be telecast by ESPN, and the kickoff has been moved to 8 p.m.

Duke's football fortunes have begun what has become a typical mid-season slide. After five straight victories, the Blue Devils were whipped at Clemson, then blew a 16-0 lead to lose to Maryland. Duke is 1-2 in the conference.

"It seems we're ready to play early in the game. We can't play with the same intensity and the level of emotion for four quarters," Duke coach Steve Spurrier said. "We're going to try something different to see if we can play with a lot of emotion and concentration."

Spurrier suggested Wednesday that the Blue Devils would shorten their time on the practice field in order to keep his players fresh for the weekend.

Georgia Tech is still looking for its first ACC victory after 12 straight losses. The Yellow Jackets will face the Blue Devils with the nation's top pass defense.

"We are making improvements," Coach Bobby Ross said. "We are making progress."

Virginia is trying to maintain its hopes of a winning record. The Cavaliers raised their mark to 3-4 after beating Wake Forest in Winston-Salem last Saturday behind a surprising performance by sophomore quarterback Shawn Moore, who is second in the league in total offense.

"We played our best game of the season last week," Coach George Welsh said. "Whether we can do it again remains to be seen."

Virginia Tech is 2-5 and had last weekend off.

Murphy OKs Any Ideas Of Trade

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves superstar Dale Murphy says he might be open to the idea of a trade, and the New York Mets are among the teams that are interested.

Atlanta Braves General Manager Bobby Cox has confirmed that several clubs, including the Mets, have inquired about the veteran outfielder.

Murphy, as a veteran of more than five years with the Braves, could reject any deal.

"I would not be totally open, but I wouldn't close my eyes to any situation," Murphy said.

"I think Dale understands the situation," Cox said. "There's a lot of interest from a lot of clubs, and we're talking (to them), but my main objective is not to trade Dale Murphy."

"I'm trying to add (power hitting) with Dale in our lineup."

Murphy, a two-time Most Valuable Player and seven-time National League all-star, said he has discussed the possibility of a trade with his agent, Bruce Church. Church said Murphy would have to feel comfortable with a team and a city before making a move.

"Dale would listen to all the facts and, one by one, evaluate those facts and see how it affects him and his family," Church said. "It's only fair to say he would look at it."

Murphy, 32, had one of his poorest seasons in 1988, batting .226 with 24 homers and 77 runs batted in.

"I think basically a lot of teams are calling, thinking they can get Murph a little cheaper," Cox said. "We're out there looking for home-run bashers, so I'm not about to give one away."

"I'm certainly not shocked when my name is brought up," Murphy said. "Last year was frustrating for everybody involved and for myself. The team has got to look at all options, I'm sure."

Murphy has played in the Braves system his entire professional career, including 11 full seasons in Atlanta. He bypassed free agency last year to sign a reported three-year, $6 million deal with the Braves.

The report was sent to Wake County District Attorney Colon Willoughby for review and possible action. The allegations did not include university coaches or athletes, and Valvano said he was not certain that charges would result from the probe.

Among the findings in the report, Renfrow said several employees of the athletic department helped the assistant athletic director in construction of his personal residence, and in most instances, they were paid by the university for their time. The assistant athletic director denied awareness that the employees submitted time sheets to the university and received pay for the hours they worked on his residence.

The report also said the assistant AD checked out a front-end loader from an equipment business in Raleigh and instructed an athletic department employee to drive it to his residence, where it was operated by the employee. He was paid for his time by the university.

According to the report, a supervisor in the athletic department would assign some of his employees to work days at a time with a landscape company owned by his friend. The employees were paid by the landscape company for the days they worked. However, the time they worked for the company was also recorded on their time sheets and submitted to the athletic department for payment by the university. The employees stated that the time sheets were submitted with the knowledge and approval of the supervisor.

The report also said the supervisor directed at least two employees of the athletic department to help him cut wood for personal use. The wood was cut into fireplace length and delivered to the supervisor's personal residence, his neighbor's residence and his father-in-law's residence. One of the employees stated that he and the supervisor spent several weeks cutting wood in the winter of 1988 and he submitted time sheets showing he had worked the whole time for the university. The supervisor on several occasions would tell the employee how many hours to record on the time sheet, and the supervisor was responsible for approving the time sheets.

Several athletic department employees revealed instances in which they were instructed by the supervisor to mow grass, clean gutters, move furniture and perform other personal favors for a former employee of the athletic department, according to the report. They all stated that, with the supervisor's knowledge and approval, they were paid for these hours by the university.

"We don't think the taxpayers in this state will stand still for much of that," Renfrow said in the report. "If there's no statute governing this or dealing directly with this, then it's something the general assembly will want to look at. If you use employees and equipment for the benefit of other people, then that's misappropriating dollars."

The auditor's report recommended that N.C. State Chancellor Bruce Poulton review the instances of abuse within the athletic department and take appropriate disciplinary action.

Baker...

is a successful season with their schedule."

Baker has faced such pressure before though. He helped build programs before he came to ECU at both Furman and the Citadel.

He guided the Paladins to a five-year record of 27-24-2. Later, he coached the Bulldogs to a 30-24-1 record in five seasons.

Baker said he takes great pride in having built successful programs at those two schools and he felt he could do the same at ECU.

"I had a very coveted job at Florida State, one that I had for the rest of my career, going to a bowl every year and getting bowl money and all those things. I knew that was there," he said.

"I felt I could come here and do the same thing. As I look back on the situation now it was very difficult. I knew it would be tough, but I did not know it would be as tough as it was in terms of all the things that had to be done, internally as well as externally."

"Like any football coach, all of us were optimists. Knowing as much about the situation and having lived in Greenville and worked at East Carolina a year I felt like I was probably the best coach at that time to come in and turn the program around."

But while the external concerns remain a constant, Baker must prepare his team to take on the Hurricanes. The one consolation is that this is the final weekend of a four-game October death march against nationally-ranked opponents. After that game, ECU has remaining road dates with Temple and Cincinnati.

Rampants...

The main reason for the winning streak of the Vikings has been a balanced offensive attack and a potent defense.

"I don't believe we're a one-dimensional team offensively," Craft said. "I have full confidence in our running backs and in our passing game. I feel like our capabilities on offense have improved greatly. We're now a multi-dimensional offense."

"Defensively, our biggest improvement has been tackling," Craft said. "Early on they just weren't tackling aggressively."

Defensive guard Jason Hamby has certainly turned into an aggressor. In the win over Greene Central, Hamby recorded nine tackles, a trio of quarterback sacks and also recovered a fumble.

"The bottom line is we've gotten some experience," Craft said. "We've had time to get the fundamentals and schemes right and we're hopefully on our way to becoming a good football team. I don't think we've gotten there yet, but I think we're on our way."

Craft thinks his team will be tested both offensively and defensively against Washington.

"They're (Washington) capable of clock-killing drives," Craft said. "They keep the ball away from you and keep you from doing what you want to do."

"We've got to control the ball offensively and shut them down on our defense," Craft said. "And we've got to play four full quarters of football."

Lasorda Honored As NL's Top Manager

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tommy Lasorda was aboard a jetliner, flying home with his World Series champion Los Angeles Dodgers after a White House visit, when he got the news that he won National League Manager of the Years honors by a landslide.

The rotund skipper, known as much for his love of pasta as his baseball savvy, has won two World Series, four NL pennants and six NL West titles in 12 years at the helm of the Dodgers.

"This completes my day — one of the greatest days of my life," Lasorda said Wednesday. "Right now, you are definitely talking to the happiest man in the world."

A fast-talking Brooklyn native, Lasorda counts celebrities such as Frank Sinatra and Don Rickles among his friends and is well-known outside baseball circles because of his many appearances in TV commercials hawking products ranging from pizza and beer to yogurt and antacid tablets.

He received 19 of 24 possible first-place votes in the Baseball Writers Association of America balloting and appeared on all but one.

He received 101 points in the vote by a committee of two writers from each NL city. Lasorda also was voted Manager of the Year in 1983, its initial year.

"I'm honored, no question about it," he said. "But as I've said many times before, individualism wins trophies, but teamwork wins pennants."

"As a manager, whatever success you achieve, whatever awards you receive, becomes a reality because of the contributions of your players, your coaches, your trainers. I want everyone to share this with me."

Jim Leyland of Pittsburgh finished second with 50 points after leading the Pirates to an 85-75 record and second place in the East behind the New York Mets.

Davey Johnson, who led the Mets to a league-leading 100-60 record and their second East title in three years, was third with 38 points.

San Diego manager Jack McKeon, who took over the Padres from Larry Bowa in late May and led the team to the league's second-best record over the final four months of the season, was fourth with 27 points. The Padres rebounded from a dismal start to post a 67-48 under McKeon.

Despite the personal honor, Lasorda was still feeling the glow of President Reagan's tribute to the Dodgers on the White House lawn.

"To be honored by the president of the United States was a great thrill and an honor," he said. "He honored a team that captured the hearts of all America."

The Dodgers won the West by seven games as they finished 94-67 this year, a sharp improvement over identically poor 73-89 records in 1986 and 1987.

Lasorda boasts a 1,022-874 record as the Dodgers' manager. He ranks third among active managers in victories behind Detroit's Sparky Anderson and St. Louis' Whitey Herzog and is 38th on the all-time list.

He has been part of the Dodgers for 39 years — 12 as manager, four as a coach, eight as a minor-league manager, four as a scout and 11 as a player, primarily in the minor leagues.

All hasn't been rosy in the land of Dodger Blue, but it seems success heals many wounds.

Tales of unrest circulated among baseball officials indicating Lasorda was upset in 1987 when Fred Claire was named general manager after Al Campanis was fired over remarks about blacks on national television.

Claire went on to deal for such players as slugger Kirk Gibson and relievers Jesse Orosco and Jay Howell, moves credited in part for the Dodgers' reemergence in 1988.

But Lasorda, who some speculated was in line for the general manager post, said recently he hadn't wanted the job and on July 8 he signed a contract extension as manager through the 1990 season.

Four Months After Draft Hornets Still Need Height

By Tom Foreman Jr.
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four months after the Charlotte Hornets failed to choose a big man in their first NBA draft, they are keeping an ear to the ground and an eye on the two players in camp they hope will fill their needs.

So far, no big men have emerged as trade bait or even appeared expendable on current preseason rosters as the opening of the season approaches. That means the Hornets could start the 1988-89 season with Dave Hoppen and Tim Kempton, neither household names nor unheralded stars but both willing to provide the most from their skills.

"There's no question that we are checking everyone's roster to see, big or little or middle-sized, which players might be available," Hornets coach Dick Harter says. "Every team always wants to improve themselves. I'm sure right now, the team playing the best in the league is talking with everyone in the league to see what's going on."

Hoppen, 6-foot-11, was one of the three players chosen by the Hornets in the expansion draft last June. A third round draft pick of Atlanta in 1986, the former Nebraska player was hampered by a knee injury and missed what was to have been his rookie season.

After one month in Spain, Hoppen saw action in six games for Topeka in the Continental Basketball Association in the 1987-88 season after being released from the Hawks. He finished the same season split between Milwaukee and Golden State before the expansion draft.

Kempton was signed as a free agent last August after spending the previous season in Italy. The 6-10 Notre Dame graduate played his rookie year for the Los Angeles Clippers, averaging 4.4 points per game in 66 appearances. He gained notoriety by becoming the lowest draft choice — sixth round, 124th overall — to stick with an NBA team.

Both have heard the talk of the Hornets' need for experience in the middle. Neither will take the time to worry.

"You can't. It's a situation where you hear the talk but until something happens, there's nothing to do," Kempton says. "You just go out and work hard every day and try to be the best that you can be. If that's not what they want, well, that's not what they want."

"Obviously, they have some form of confidence in us or else they wouldn't have brought us in to camp and we still wouldn't be around," he says. "Every day that we're here in practice, we just have to work a little bit harder to improve our games because we know that we're more or less in an underdog situation, being that there has been so much talk about the big people."

Kempton recognizes that he's had his good moments and his bad times. He says the first project is to work on defense, especially after meeting the Chicago Bulls last weekend with their newest acquisition, Bill Cartwright.

For Hoppen, it's a matter of reality when it comes to sticking with any team.

"... You know that the chances of you staying with one team throughout your whole career is just about impossible. The chance of you always being a starter and always being the No. 1 man are pretty much impossible, too," Hoppen says. "You just have to go out there and try your hardest every day."

Should another center come in, beat out Kempton and Hoppen and lead the Hornets to sudden success, Hoppen would accept it. But he said it doesn't mean he and Kempton plan to give up the fight.

"I feel that, as everybody on this team does right now, that you have a shot on the team and you're going to be on the team the whole year," Hoppen says. "We're just trying to blend together right now. If it's the coach's decision or the general manager's decision that they want to bring in a new guy and release me or Tim, we'll just have to pick up the pieces from there and go on."

Hoppen says his confidence is growing, and the presence of such veterans as Rickey Green and Kurt Rambis. He is not as comfortable with the fact that it's not expected for the Hornets to do well in 1988-89 whether he is there or not.

"There are no moral victories. When you get to this level, they go by wins and losses," Hoppen says. "We have to go out and try to beat every team we play."

Bears' Defensive Chief Tobin May Become A Head Coach

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Like most assistants, Vince Tobin dreams of becoming a head coach in the National Football League. And the way the surprising Chicago Bears defense is playing this season, he's well on his way.

Tobin, the Bears' defensive coordinator, is credited with the schemes that have helped the Bears to a 7-1 record, despite injuries to key players. It was the defense that drew the spotlight Monday night, when the Bears beat the San Francisco 49ers 10-9.

But the credit for the NFL's top-rated defense belongs to the concept of team defense, Tobin says. He refuses to single out the outstanding front four of Dan Hampton, Steve McMichael, Richard Dent or Al

Harris, or the linebacking corps anchored by Mike Singletary, or the defensive backs led by Dave Duerson.

"It has to be a blend of the system," Tobin said Wednesday. "It is not a magical system. There are no tricks. You practice not to make mistakes, it is 11 players playing their positions."

Tobin admits the front four has done an outstanding job "but if the rest of the defense didn't do its job, the line couldn't either. It amounts to total defense."

That total defense has allowed 83 points in eight games and that includes the 31 scored by Minnesota in the Bears' only defeat.

The Bears are allowing 66.3 rushing yards per game. No one has rushed for 100 yards in a game against them in two years, 30 regular-season games.

Tobin claims it's not a resurgence of the Bears' defense, but something that has been going on since he succeeded Buddy Ryan, the Philadelphia Eagles coach, after the Bears' 1985 Super Bowl season.

And he loses his calm demeanor when comparisons are made, or when people hint of a dropoff in the defense after 1985.

"I keep reading about the 1986 defense falling off," Tobin said, bristling. "But the facts and the statistics are that we were better in every phase of the game in '86 than we were in '85."

"If there was a fall off, it was in only one area and that was we lost in the playoffs in 1986."

A check of the records proves Tobin correct. In fact, the Bears allowed only 187 points in the regular season in 1986, an NFL record they could better at their present pace this season.

Contrary to some theories, Tobin said "I've had my personal stamp on his team for three years."

With the loss of linebacker Wilber Marshall to free agency and injuries to Otis Wilson and William "The Refrigerator" Perry, he knows there has been a loss in talent — and all the more need for total defense.

"We're probably not as talented as we've been in the last couple of years," Tobin said. "If we don't prepare well and pay attention to detail, we could be on the verge of getting blown out every game."

That has happened only once this season. And Tobin can only hope it doesn't happen again.

After all, his personal stamp is on this team, and he has his dream. Ryan, his predecessor, marched off to a head coaching job after the Bears' last Super Bowl victory — and it could happen again.

"That's what you're in coaching for," Tobin said when asked if he wanted to be a head coach. "In pro ball, that's where it is."

Redskins' Wilburn Has Surprise For Houston

HERNDON, Va. (AP) — Redskins cornerback Barry Wilburn plans to be back in the lineup this weekend when Washington plays Houston. He expects the Oilers might pick on him, but he's got a surprise for them.

"They'll probably try to test me, figuring I'm just coming back, but that might play right into my hands," he said. "I'll be waiting." Wilburn, who injured his knee in the third game of the season, began practicing last week. He went in full pads Wednesday, and said he planned to play Sunday if he continues to feel comfortable.

"I feel good now, but it's not a definite until Saturday," he said.

Cornerback Brian Davis, who injured his thigh last Sunday against Green Bay, played the role of on-looker Wednesday. But the Redskins listed him as "probable" in their injury report to the league and he vowed he would be ready to go against the Oilers.

"It's not too bad at all," Davis said. "It's much better than I expected."

Cornerback Darrell Green missed the practice due to a court date, and he is nursing a foot injury. But Coach Joe Gibbs said he expects Green to start on Sunday night.

World Series MVP Orel Hershiser visited Redskin Park after a White House reception for the World Series champion Los Angeles Dodgers. Wearing a jacket with Gibbs' name on it, the pitcher said a few words to the Redskins at the conclusion of the two-hour practice.

"He told us we were all professionals, so there wasn't much to say except 'Go out there and do your best.' It wasn't exactly inspirational," linebacker Neal Olkewicz said.

After practice, Hershiser talked a bit with Super Bowl MVP Doug Williams. "We discussed our Disney World commercials," Hershiser said. "You know, how many takes it took and what we were doing when they came up to us after the game."

While Williams guided the Redskins offense, backup quarterback Mark Rypien watched. He said he got one hour of sleep while waiting with his wife Annette during her 22 hours of labor.

Around 7:30 a.m. EDT, the couple became the parents of a 7-pound, 15-ounce baby girl. They named her Ambre Louise.

As far as football goes, Rypien is ready to accept his role on the sideline behind Williams. Rypien is sitting out last Sunday's game with sore ribs.

Powell, seeded first in the region, had little trouble in gaining a berth in the North Carolina High School Athletic Association's state tournament by reaching the regional semifinals.

After a first round bye, Powell defeated Missy Howell of Eastern Wayne, 6-0, 6-0, then advanced past Amy Rose of Fike, 6-0, 6-0.

The other Rose singles entrant, Jennifer Powell, also had a first round bye, but then lost to Northern Nash's Sarah Webster, the second seed, 6-1, 6-0.

In the doubles, Taylor Evans and Laura Young of Rose defeated Debbie Williamson and Stephanie Dew of Hunt, 6-1, 6-4, but were then eliminated by Fike's Shilpa Jaggi and Heather Deans, 6-2, 6-4.

The regionals wind up today in Wilson.

In doubles, Farah Boyce and Sarah Gibson of Edenton defeated Carmen Sugg and Jennifer Roberts, 6-2, 6-0, while Amanda Whichard and Mary Horton of Williamston downed Lisa Cullipher and Bridget Williams, 6-2, 6-0.

In singles, Nikki Garner of Roanoke Rapids downed Kim Pridgen, 6-1, 6-0, and Rondi McNair of Plymouth beat Megan Wyatt, 6-2, 6-1.

The losses wound up Greene Central's season.

ECU Hosting Volleyball Tournament

East Carolina's volleyball team will host the ECU Invitational beginning tomorrow in Minges Coliseum.

The five-year old tournament will this year feature ECU, UNC-Wilmington, James Madison and Winthrop.

First-round matches will begin at 10 a.m. with the consolation and championship matches scheduled for 4 p.m.

ECU, 7-11 on the year and a two-time winner of the event will face CAA foe James Madison in the first round, while UNC-Wilmington will square off against Winthrop in the other first round match.

Former D.H. Conley volleyball player Lisa Mills is a member of the UNC-Wilmington team, which will bring a 22-1 record into the tournament.

Four Honored For Prep Play

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Mike Thomas of Richmond County won the North Carolina High School Athletic Association Drug Emporium 4-A football player of the week with an all-around performance.

The quarterback did a little bit of everything in his team's 49-8 victory over Hoke County last Friday. Thomas rushed eight times for 107 yards and scored a pair of touchdowns, completed five of eight passes for 138 yards and another score, and punted for a 50.5-yard average.

The 3-A honor went to all-state quarterback Chuckie Burnette of top-ranked Burlington Cummings. The senior completed 20 of 27 passes for 312 yards in his team's 27-0 victory over Eastern Randolph.

Gary Robinson of Newton-Conover rushed for 173 yards on 22 carries and scored three touchdowns to take the 2-A award.

Chris Thompson of Richlands scored four times while rushing for 229 yards to win the 1-A honor.

Martinsville Hosts Winston Classic

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — With the Winston Cup circuit taking the weekend off, many of those NASCAR drivers are showing up at the Martinsville Speedway for the three-race Winston Classic.

Winston Cup drivers Harry Gant, Neil Bonnett, Geoff Bodine, Mark Martin, Bobby Hill Jr. and Brad Teague are among the more than 200 drivers out to nail down 90 starting spots in three different races as qualifying gets under way today.

The Winston Classic includes a 100-lap Late Model Stocks race, a 200-lap Modified race, and a 200-lap Grand National with a combined purse of $170,000. The Winston Cup boys are in the Grand National event.

They shouldn't expect a walk-over.

On the 50-entries for the Grand National race, 25 have won at Martinsville, including Tommy Ellis, who last week locked up the Grand National season points championship, and Jimmy Hensley, the defending Winston Classic champion. Last year, Hensley circled the .526-mile oval in a Grand National qualifying record at Martinsville of 92.774 mph.

Qualifying today will determine the first 20 positions in the 30-car field for the Modified race. The Grand National and Late Models qualify Friday.

The last 10 spots in each race will be determined Saturday in 25-lap qualifying races, two of which will be held for each division. The top five finishers from each race will take those last 10 spots in each division.

Fifty drivers are entered for the Grand National, 59 for Modified and 99 for Late Model.

In the battle for the Modified championship, Mike McLaughlin carries a 141-point lead over Reggie Ruggiero into the race and needs only to make the starting field to wrap up the title.

The Late Model Stock race will be an all-star event of sorts, featuring drivers from numerous weekly tracks competing against each other.

Sunday's activities will begin with the Late Model Stock race at 12 noon EDT followed by the Modifieds and Grand Nationals.

Miami Among Glasnost Bowl Contenders

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — The University of Miami and 14 other teams are being considered for the Glasnost Bowl in Moscow next Sept. 2.

Raycom Communications of Charlotte, N.C., is organizing and will televise the game. Rick Ray, chief executive officer of Raycom, expects a decision by Monday on who will play.

"There are still so many different combinations possible," Ray told the Fort Lauderdale News & Sun-Sentinel. "Once we find the right combination, the game will work itself out."

Ray was unavailable Wednesday to list the teams being considered, a Raycom spokeswoman said.

"We're looking for an intersectional game," Ray told the Fort Lauderdale paper Tuesday. "Miami's a very strong team, but they haven't told us if they're definitely available yet."

Sam Jankovich, Miami athletic director, said the school is interested if the financial payoff is right and if it's the right matchup. It will count against a team's 11-game schedule, and Jankovich doesn't want to move a "big" game or a home game to Moscow.

Ray wouldn't disclose financial payoffs but said, "Each team's expenses will be covered, and each also will be paid a fee from gate and TV receipts. Schools will make money on the deal. It will be a good deal for schools."

Miami coach Jimmy Johnson confirmed his interest in the game.

"I would not want to give up a home game, but I think it would be a great experience for the players," Johnson said. "It would be something they would remember for the rest of their lives, and it would be great for the two countries."

Raycom plans to televise the game nationally as well as throughout the Soviet Union, Great Britain and as many as four other countries.

Morrison: Drug Story Was Distracting

RALEIGH (AP) — In the wake of a magazine article that told of steroid use on the South Carolina team, Coach Joe Morrison says it has been hard to concentrate on football.

"I would have hated to try to get ready to play a football game last week," said Morrison, whose team had an open date. "The Chaikin story was distracting for the first few days. I think it's in the past now."

Morrison spoke to the Raleigh Sports Club Wednesday, and addressed the subject that he knew would be waiting for him — the Sports Illustrated article in which former South Carolina football player Tommy Chaikin said that he took steroids for three years and that about half of the 1986 football team did likewise.

"I can't speak for the players, but that article reflected on past players and present players as well. They certainly don't like that attached to their name or to any particular team," he said.

Raiders Will Look To Beuerlein

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. (AP) — Jay Schroeder, thought to have been a savior when the Los Angeles Raiders acquired him last month, has lost his starting job.

Steve Beuerlein has replaced Schroeder as the Raiders starting quarterback and probably will be the starter for the rest of the year, coach Mike Shanahan said Wednesday.

Schroeder wasn't surprised by the decision.

"You have to take a look at the situation realistically, and I'm first to admit I'm not playing well," he said. "If Steve plays well, good for him. That's going to leave me in a situation where I have to work extremely hard."

"I'm not afraid of that. That's what this game is about, competing. It's going to push me to be better and push him to be better. The bottom line, it makes this a better football team."

Beuerlein was a fourth-round selection of the Raiders in the 1987 NFL draft. The 23-year-old former Notre Dame standout spent his entire rookie season on injured reserve, but started the first three games this season despite never having taken a snap from center in an NFL game.

Schroeder was acquired by the Raiders early Sept. 5, several hours after the club beat San Diego 24-13 in its season opener, from the Washington Redskins in exchange for offensive tackle Jim Lachey and two draft choices.

Schroeder, 27, has started the last five games for the Raiders and often had problems. He was intercepted four times each by Cincinnati and Miami and then relieved by Beuerlein in the second half against Kansas City and New Orleans.

Schroeder has completed 63 of 153 passes for 1,043 yards and seven touchdowns with 10 interceptions while Beuerlein has hit on 51 of 109 throws for 830 yards and six touchdowns with three interceptions.

"Right now I believe the best direction to go for us is Steve Beuerlein," Shanahan said. "That's not to take anything away from Jay."

"Right now, Steve's able to react to what he's been going through the last seven or eight months. Jay's not having a chance to react. Anytime you miss a quarterback camp, a preseason, it's very difficult. It's just not comfortable for him. It's having to think too much.

"This is a move that's being made with the idea of it being permanent for the rest of the season. At the same time, a quarterback can go down at any time."

The Raiders, who play host to Kansas City Sunday, are 3-5, but just one game out of first place in the AFC West behind Seattle and Denver.

Beuerlein said he was excited about being named the starter.

"I am now the starting quarterback and I'm approaching things with that attitude," he said. "I don't plan on giving it up for any reason at all. The decision was made because the coaches felt the offense wasn't producing as it should."

"When he (Shanahan) told me, I obviously was very excited. When you're a player, you want to be on the field as much as you can. My role the last few weeks has been as a backup. Now, my role is as a starter."

"I've had a talk with Jay in relationship to the decision," Shanahan said. "Jay is concerned that he's not able to go out and react himself. If you're not able to react, if you have to think, then you're going to have a difficult time getting the job done."

Schroeder, who was outspoken in his displeasure with his backup role with the Redskins, passed for 4,109 yards in 1986 but was in and out of the Washington lineup last season.

Doug Williams replaced Schroeder in Washington's final game of the season and was named starter during the playoffs. Williams guided the Redskins to wins over Chicago and Minnesota before his spectacular performance in his team's 42-10 victory over Denver in the Super Bowl.

Schroeder said the situation is much different than it was in Washington.

"In Washington, I knew what I was doing," he said. "Here, I came in probably with an unrealistic goal in trying to learn everything I needed to learn in a very short time, and it hasn't worked out for me."

Lohr Fires 62 For Disney Golf Lead

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Bob Lohr said he felt like he birdied every hole. Fuzzy Zoeller just wasn't sure the first-round leader of the Walt Disney World Classic played all 18.

Lohr fired a 10-under-par 62 Wednesday for a two-shot lead over Zoeller after the opening round of the $700,000 tournament.

Lohr made 10 birdie putts to come within a stroke of both the PGA Tour's low score this year and Mark Lye's record on the Palm course, one of three used in the 72-hole tournament.

"Today was a fun, needless to say," said Lohr, a four-year PGA Tour veteran still looking for his first victory. "I felt like I'd birdied just about every hole."

Zoeller's 64 was his best score this year, but he was still two shots behind Lohr.

That was a marvelous round of golf," Zoeller said of Lohr's effort. "Are you sure he played all the way around?"

Zoeller, seeking his first tour victory since 1986, was eight under par over the Lake Buena Vista course, the shortest and easiest of the three layouts. Mark Calcavecchia, rookie Jay Don Blake and Mark McCumber all shot 65 at the same course.

Five golfers shot 66 — Chip Beck, the tour's No. 2 money winner this year, and Rick Pearson at Lake Buena Vista; Robert Wrenn and Tom Kite at Palm; and David Edwards at Magnolia, another par-72 course.

Paul Azinger, Donnie Hammond and Russ Cochran shot 67, while 19 golfers were at 68.

The tour's top money-winner, Joey Sindelar, shot a 71, while defending champion Larry Nelson had a 72.

"My main goal this year was to be a little more consistent, and I think I've done that," Lohr said. "I'd be lying if I said I didn't want to win. Sure, everybody wants to win. But I don't put that much pressure on it."

Zoeller hit 17 greens in regulation, made eight birdies and offered two reasons for the low scores.

"Look at your weather," he said. "And the golf courses are in tip-top shape. You can't ask for any finer."

Beck had seven birdies on the way to his best round since June. He trails Sindelar by $11,980 and hopes to overtake him by the end of the Nabisco Championships Nov. 10-13.

"It's important to get off to a nice start," Beck said. "This is the start of a three-week stretch that's important to me, and it was nice to begin like this."

The key was I drove it really well, and that set me up on the fairways," he said.

Lohr, 27, came within a stroke of winning three tournaments last year. This year he's 69th on the money list and his best finish has been a tie for fifth.

Cade Unhappy With Packer Decision

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Cornerback Mossy Cade, paroled from prison last week after a sexual assault conviction, feels some disappointment that the Green Bay Packers don't want him to rejoin the team this season, his agent says.

The Packers announced Wednesday they would give Cade the chance next year to win back a spot on the team.

"He's a little disappointed they didn't want him back this year," Cade's agent, Randy Rueckert, said. "We're trying to work something out so he can play this year."

Tom Braatz, executive vice president of football operations, issued a statement saying he and team President Robert Parins met with Cade and Rueckert in Chicago Tuesday. They told Cade "we would welcome him back to the Green Bay Packers' next training camp," the statement said.

"We asked him what he wanted to do, and he said he wanted to come back and play football," Braatz told an interviewer Wednesday.

Cade, 26, was paroled after serving 15 months of a two-year sentence. He had been convicted last year on two counts of second-degree sexual assault. He was accused of forcing a Houston woman who was a relative by marriage to have sex with him while she was visiting at his De Pere home.

Cade played defensive back for the Packers prior to his conviction. He was acquired in a 1985 trade for two draft picks, and Braatz said the team wanted to protect its investment by keeping a spot open for Cade.

"This is a business decision," Braatz said. "We have a need for a defensive corner."

Cade is on the club's reserve-did not report list. He eventually will meet with NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle on his football future. Joe Browne, the league's director of communications, said Wednesday that no meeting had been held and no meeting was scheduled this week.

State parole officials had said earlier that Cade was offered a security guard job at a Memphis, Tenn., securities firm.

"If the front office feels comfortable with Mossy being back, I don't have any problems with it," Coach Lindy Infante said.

Infante said, however, he sensed a wide split of opinion in the community.

"There is a contingent of people who believe that when a guy pays his debt to society it is over with," Infante said. "There are others that say that no matter what you do you should never have the guy back on the team because of what he did in the past."

"For me to make a bold statement either way, I feel would be out of place," he said.

A Green Bay television station conducted a phone-in survey Monday night, and 67.3 percent of the more than 5,000 respondents favored Cade's return.

Packer players seemed willing to accept Cade back.

"If the coaches felt he was in a situation where he would help the team, that would be fine," center Mark Cannon said. "I have no reservations about him personally at all. I still believe what I heard was his side."

"I'm glad he's getting another chance," Packers quarterback Don Majkowski said.

"Anybody with the ability he has could only help," wide receiver Sterling Sharpe said.

But several officials who deal with battered and sexually assaulted women in the Milwaukee area expressed dismay by Cade's treatment by the Packers.

"What this says to me is that the team and football are more important than the experience of the woman that he abused," said Jean Berens of the Task Force on Battered Women.

"I think they are making a decision based on football and not on the broader implications of what he's done," said Ann Ranfranz, director of a sexual assault counseling unit in the Milwaukee County district attorney's office.

"I'm troubled that he will be a role model for young people in Wisconsin."

Shortage Reported In Health Care Aides For Elderly

By Crispin Y. Campbell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Continued low wages and difficult working conditions will lead to a shortage of health aides needed to care for America's elderly, according to a report prepared by advocacy groups.

"This nation is on the brink of a full-blown crisis in caregiving for the chronically ill," said Lou Glasse, president of the Older Women's League, which joined with a government employees' union in commissioning the study.

"An exploited, overburdened work force is caring for the frail, the sick and the elderly," Glasse said.

Glasse's organization issued the study jointly on Wednesday with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Gerald W. McEntee, president of the 1.4 million-member union, said chronic care workers "are among the most exploited workers in our nation."

"The solutions to the crisis are obvious — a higher minimum wage, improvements in Medicaid reimbursement, more stringent licensing and training requirements," he said.

The groups' report compiled information from state and federal statistics from 1985 to the present.

It painted a bleak picture of the 1.5 million health care aides caring for patients in America's more than 25,000 nursing and private homes. It said the majority of the workers are middle-aged minority women earning just above minimum wage without insurance coverage or overtime.

Most leave their health care jobs within five years for those reasons.

Given the conditions, Glasse said, it will be difficult to find the 500,000 health care aides the Labor Department estimates will be needed by the year 2000.

The report quoted the American Health Care Association as saying more than half of nursing homes surveyed already report shortages of nursing aides.

The National Association of Home Care, representing organizations providing home care, reported comparable shortages.

Alice Quinlan, a consultant who compiled the study, noted that the number of persons requiring paid caretakers is increasing rapidly. She said many family members who otherwise would provide such care now must seek employment to make ends meet.

Aquino May Close Sunken Ship's Firm

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MANILA, Philippines — President Corazon Aquino today threatened to shut down the company whose passenger ship sailed into Typhoon Ruby and sank with hundreds of people aboard.

Authorities ordered the owners to explain why they should not lose their license for letting the vessel sail into a storm whose winds reached 140 mph.

The latest casualty figures indicate just 197 people survived the sinking Monday of the 2,855-ton Dona Marilyn in heavy seas about 300 miles southeast of Manila.

The coast guard said an undetermined number of others reached a small island more than 100 miles west of where the ship sank. At least 33 bodies have been recovered, officials said.

Some survivors remain in shock and were refusing to be flown from the islands where they washed ashore, coast guard officials said today.

The ship's manifest showed 431 passengers and a crew of 60. But coast guard officials said the headcount at sailing time was 379 passengers.

Today, Mrs. Aquino told reporters she had ordered the Department of Transportation to investigate Sulpicio Lines, which owned the Dona Marilyn and another passenger ship that sank 10 months ago with more than 3,000 casualties.

The Dona Paz, Dona Marilyn's sister ship, collided with an oil tanker last December off Mindoro Island. Only 28 people survived.

"If it is necessary to suspend operations of Sulpicio Lines, then I would do so," Mrs. Aquino said. On Wednesday, she said investigators should determine why the Dona Marilyn sailed despite the typhoon's approach.

Philip Tuazon, administrator of the government's Maritime Industry Authority, said his organization had ordered Sulpicio "to explain why we should not suspend them."

Sulpicio President Carlos Go said he could not explain why the vessel sailed from Manila on schedule Sunday morning for Tacloban, 350 miles southeast, although the storm was approaching the eastern Philippines.

Go said he would have to speak first with surviving crew but added: "During Sunday, when they left Manila, the weather was clear."

In Tacloban, Sulpicio station manager Bernardo Cabigon said the Dona Marilyn's skipper was not among the confirmed survivors but that the chief mate and two other officers were reported safe on Almagro Island.

Capt. Daniel Delgado, Philippine coast guard chief of staff, said the vessel was allowed to sail because no typhoon warning had been issued for the Manila area at the time.

But Nanette Lumarda, chief of the government weather service's tropical cyclones section, said Ruby developed into a tropical storm as early as 8 p.m. Friday about 645 miles east of Mindanao Island.

At 11 a.m. Sunday, one hour after the Dona Marilyn sailed, the weather service issued a bulletin warning that Ruby had grown into a typhoon and was moving west-northwest toward the Visayas Islands, she said.

She added that on Sunday afternoon, about 24 hours before the Dona Marilyn sank, the weather service issued an international shipping advisory warning of "rough to very high seas" along the route of the stricken vessel. She said warnings were updated every six hours.

Vicente Gambito, a Sulpicio vice president, said the company received a message early Monday from the Dona Marilyn that it was buffeted by giant waves south of Masbate island.

Gambito said the company ordered the captain to change course for the west, using Masbate as a shield against the storm. Five hours later, the captain radioed the ship was taking in water and the condition was "critical," he said.

Meanwhile, Go said 139 survivors were aboard another company ship, the Princess, and expected in Tacloban later today. He said the others were still on Maripipi, Almagro and other small islands near where the vessel sank.

Lt. Edmund Luscre, coast guard operations chief in Iloilo, said an undetermined number of survivors reached Sicogon, a tiny resort island off the coast of Panay. Sicogon is about 100 miles west of where the ship sank.

Woman Is Airliner's Only Passenger

LONDON (AP) — A young Japanese woman had the trip of a lifetime on a flight from Tokyo to London — a choice of 353 seats, six movies, a gourmet menu and the exclusive attention of 15 cabin attendants.

British Airways said today that the woman, identified only as Mrs. Yamamoto, was the lone passenger on the 8,000-mile Flight 008, which arrived at Heathrow Airport Tuesday afternoon.

"The jumbo was delayed going into Tokyo and by the time it set off for London all the other passengers had been re-booked on to other flights," said a British Airways spokesman, who by custom was not identified.

"Mrs. Yamamoto had actually arrived early at the airport for another British Airways flight which was leaving later. But since she was there, she was offered the opportunity for the flight of a lifetime," the spokesman said.

"We had to come back empty because the jumbo was due back in Britain to get back into its schedule."

Mrs. Yamamoto, on her way to join her husband, who is studying at Salford College of Music, had paid the standard $2,975 economy fare for the 11-hour trip. But she sat in business class, dined on poached salmon and watched Goldie Hawn in "Overboard."

The Daily Express estimated the flight cost at least $22,750 — $17,500 for fuel and $5,250 in wages for the cabin attendants and six flight deck crew.

"We're certainly not aware of it ever happening before and I'm sure Mrs. Yamamoto saw British Airways in-flight service at its best," the spokesman said.

Democratic Senate Candidates Lead Republicans In Fund-Raising Races

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Something strange is going on in this year's 33 election contests for the U.S. Senate: Democrats are raising more campaign money than their Republican rivals.

By the end of last month, according to financial data reported to the Federal Election Commission, the 33 Democrats running for Senate seats had collected $83.6 million toward their campaigns. Their 33 GOP opponents had pulled in $73.3 million.

"It is unusual," said Tom Mason, communications director for the National Republican Senatorial Committee, the party's campaign arm. "But it's incumbency talking," as well as givers' expectations that the Senate will remain under Democratic control, he said.

It is true that incumbents always have an easier time raising campaign money, and that Democrats have more incumbents, 15, up for re-election this year than the Republicans, 12.

And it also is true that most political analysts are predicting not only that Democrats will hold onto their 54-46 Senate majority, but they may pad it by a seat or two come Nov. 8.

GOP incumbents actually fared slightly better than their Democratic counterparts in fund raising. The dozen Republicans averaged $3.8 million apiece as of Sept. 30, while the 15 Democratic senators averaged $3.4 million.

But in nearly every other category — open-seat races, challengers, and political action committee money — the Democrats outdistanced their traditionally well-heeled rivals.

Mason chalks some of the differences up to unusual situations in a handful of states that skew the numbers the Democrats' way, and topping his "unusual list" is Herb Kohl.

"It's like running against a bank," he says of the Milwaukee Democrat who holds a substantial lead in the Wisconsin Senate race against GOP state Senate minority leader Susan Engelleiter. Kohl, owner of the Milwaukee Bucks basketball team and heir to a family grocery store chain, spent $3 million, most of it his own money, to overcome better-known rivals in the primary, and may top $6 million by Election Day.

Engelleiter, who is conceded to be better versed on the issues, was trailing 3-to-1 in fund raising and was down by more than 20 points in the last published statewide poll.

Kohl has sought to make his spending a virtue, saying it means he won't be beholden to special interests. "Nobody's senator but yours," is the tagline to his prolific TV spots.

Mason also points to Virginia, an open seat where former Democratic Gov. Charles Robb has been regarded as the prohibitive favorite for years and has been treated by campaign donors more as an incumbent than as an open-seat candidate. Robb had raised $2.7 million, compared with $192,000 for his lesser-known GOP opponent Maurice Dawkins.

In addition, Republicans say the presidential election has diverted attention from bids by quality GOP candidates and made it harder for them to compete for a limited amount of campaign dollars.

DC Comics Says It's True: Boy Wonder Blown To Bits

By Larry McShane
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — He's punched out the Penguin, wrestled the Riddler and crushed the Catwoman. But after 48 years of crime-busting, Robin — yes, the Boy Wonder, Batman's earnest if excitable teen-age sidekick — has been blown to bits by the Joker.

Death comes next week for Robin when DC Comics distributes Batman issue No. 428, the third installment of the four-part "A Death in the Family," in which the younger half of the Dynamic Duo is dynamited by the clown prince of crime.

"It was very odd. I realize all this stuff is made up, but everybody here felt like the family of an accident victim, waiting for the doctor to come out and say, 'There's still hope,'" said Dennis O'Neil, editor of the Batman series.

The Joker, by the way, is doing more than undermining the quality of life in Gotham City these days; his incendiary eradication of Robin comes under his duties as Iran's new ambassador to the United Nations.

But it won't be the Joker, Batman creator Bob Kane, or O'Neil facing murder charges for the killing of Robin — it's the readers of the Batman comics who voted in a phone-in poll to off the teen superhero born in 1940.

A 900 number was set up on Sept. 15-16 by DC to allow fans to phone in the fate of Robin, who — in case you have forgotten — is the ward of Gotham City millionaire Bruce Wayne. It was the first time DC has allowed its readers to decide a character's future, said O'Neil, who also killed off Batgirl in the late 1960s.

The final totals: 5,342 for the death penalty, 5,271 against.

Ooof! There is some good news. The dead Robin is NOT Dick Grayson, the original Robin and Batman's campy cohort on the television program; Grayson split with the Caped Crusader in 1984, grabbed a new costume and became Nightwing, head of a new crime-fighting team published under the title "The New Teen Titans." DC said.

Quaid To Play Jerry Lee

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Actor Dennis Quaid may be portraying rock 'n' roller Jerry Lee Lewis in an upcoming movie, but he won't get the singing parts, Lewis says.

"You're not getting the soundtrack, boy," Lewis told Quaid at a gathering Wednesday to promote the movie, "Great Balls of Fire," much of which will be filmed in Memphis. Filming is to begin Monday on the movie, named for one of Lewis' best known recordings. The film will be based on the beginning of Lewis' career, which got a major boost at the old Sun Records studio in Memphis.

Lewis said he is impressed with Quaid's piano playing and singing, but plans to record the music for the movie himself, although Quaid indicated he might try some of the musical parts.

Singer James Brown Faces Indictment

AIKEN, S.C. (AP) — Soul singer James Brown has been indicted in connection with a police chase that started in Georgia and crossed into South Carolina.

Brown was charged Monday with two counts of assault and battery with intent to kill and one count of failure to stop for a police car. He earlier was charged in Georgia over the Sept. 24 incident.

Police said Brown entered a seminar in Augusta carrying a gun, and then led police on the chase.

During the chase, Brown allegedly tried to run over two officers who were setting up a roadblock. The officers shot out Brown's front tires, and the singer continued driving "on the rims" for several miles before driving his truck into a ditch, according to police reports.

Geraldo's 'Devil Worship' Has Ratings, Costs NBC Sponsors

By Jay Sharbutt
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICES

NEW YORK — Long on efforts to shock but short on ads, Geraldo Rivera's NBC special on Satanism went to ratings heaven, national audience estimates from A.C. Nielsen Co. showed Wednesday.

"Devil Worship: Exposing Satan's Underground" won its two-hour time period Tuesday night with a 21.9 rating and a 33 share of audience — meaning it was seen in about 19.8 million homes, one-third of the number that were watching TV when the show was on the air.

However, one network source said that the Rivera show may have cost NBC $500,000 in lost advertising revenue because potential sponsors either did not want their products associated with the program or could not see the show in advance.

NBC declined to comment on whether "Devil Worship" lost money. But as viewed here, the telecast carried only 14 network and local commercials — two of them for the National Enquirer and three for new horror movies. To fill the empty slots, NBC aired 22 "promos" for its new and returning entertainment series.

Rivera's special, made by his Investigative Reporters Group here, had the fast-paced tabloid style of his earlier syndicated shows.

With each segment preceded by parental-discretion warnings from Rivera, the Satanism show had gruesome reports of torture, ritual murder and allegations of sexual abuse of children. One taped interview was with a man identified as a Satanist and admirer of convicted cult killer Charles Manson. Portions of a Manson interview from an earlier Rivera special also were revived for Tuesday's show. Said Manson's admirer: "We would like to see most of the human race killed off because it is unworthy of the gift of life."

An NBC spokesman said that the network received a total of 440 calls in New York and Burbank, Calif., after the telecast — 311 of them complaints and the balance expressions of approval, many from parents concerned about teen-aged Satanism.

At NBC affiliate WVLA in Baton Rouge, La., the reaction was far less. There was only one call, a secretary there said — from a viewer whose home suffered a power failure as the show began. He wanted a rerun.

Rivera's program had other problems — with NBC News. Seeking publicity for the show this week, Rivera's representatives tried to book him on the news division's "Today" show. They were turned down by executive producer Marty Ryan.

"We thought the subject was inappropriate for morning television," Ryan said Wednesday.

The news division had no involvement with the special; it was bought by NBC Entertainment. NBC's broadcast of both Rivera's program and a generally well-received documentary on breast cancer earlier this month has caused concern within NBC News over the entertainment division's purchase and airing of documentaries made by outsiders.

Such programs, while reviewed by officials at NBC's recently reduced standards and practices department, are not subject to the standards and guidelines of NBC News.

Although he said that he did not see Rivera's special, NBC anchor Tom Brokaw said Wednesday that the idea of outside documentaries bought by the network's entertainment side "troubles me greatly...."

"We feel very strongly about the need to protect the integrity of our product and of this network," he said in an interview. "I think that opening that kind of door to quasi-news programs cheapens the genuine news product."

'Wonder Years' Star Has Several Roles

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Dan Lauria believes that one reason he works so much as an actor is that few people in the film business look at old movies.

He plays the overworked father on ABC's "The Wonder Years" and has had recurring roles on two other series. He was in the movie "Stakeout" and played Bernadette Peters' boyfriend in the TV movie "David." This Saturday, he plays the veteran police sergeant in "Cop Killer," the first installment of the remake of the anthology series "Police Story" on ABC.

"People don't watch the old movies," said Lauria. "Nobody knows Richard Conte. I go in for a part and do my Richard Conte or Van Heflin. Nobody knows I'm stealing. I steal from the best and I don't feel bad about it."

Lauria appears with Ken Olin and Patricia Wettig, the husband-and-wife stars of ABC's "thirtysomething," in the premiere episode of "Police Story."

ABC revived "Police Story" last summer during the writers' strike when it appeared the networks would not have new shows ready for the fall season. The series, created by author Joseph Wambaugh, ran on NBC from 1973-77. Lauria's role was originally played by Cameron Mitchell.

"I'm the veteran police sergeant," said Lauria. "Kenny Olin is the young stud cop. Olin's partner is taken hostage during a traffic stop. They're bank robbers and it turns into a firefight. His partner is killed and Kenny kills a bank robber and gets a medal. Even though he did everything by the book, Kenny goes through a psychological change."

"I loved working with Kenny. He didn't walk through it. We talked over the characters, which is rare for television. This is more of a drama about what happens to this man than an action picture."

Lauria grew up watching old movies, and still watches them regularly from his large collection of tapes. His ambition is to work with James Stewart.

"I grew up in Lindenhurst, N.Y., and my aunt lived with us when I was young," he said. "I was a big jock in school. When I got home from practice I'd eat dinner and my aunt would send me straight to bed. Then, she'd wake me in the middle of the night. She'd say, 'James Cagney.' Or 'James Stewart,' or 'Tyron Power.' I'd get up and watch the most wonderful movies."

"When the networks decided to revive some old shows during the writers' strike I don't know why they went back to the 1970s. They should have gone back to the 1950s and redone those great live dramas. I can think of a lot of shows that stand up pretty well today."

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Rock star Prince canceled a concert scheduled Wednesday at Ann Arbor because of technical difficulties, promoters of his national tour said.
It had been thought that sound and light equipment could be erected at Crisler Arena in a day, "but the size of the equipment and the logistics dictate an extra day to load in and set up," Stageright Productions said Monday night in a statement.
Prince still plans to perform Sunday and Oct. 31 at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit. Stageright said.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the final days of the 100th Congress.

HOUSE

TO KILL AN AGENCY — By a vote of 247 for and 130 against, the House failed to achieve the two-thirds majority it needed under a shortcut parliamentary procedure to pass legislation (HR 4646) eliminating the Federal Asset Disposition Association (FADA).

This preserved the three-year old agency that liquidates assets required by the government when the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. (FSLIC) takes over failed thrift institutions. Critics say FADA pays exorbitant salaries to its executives and does work FSLIC should do itself.

Sponsor Fernand St. Germain, D-R.I., said the bill would eliminate "a wasteful, costly, unresponsive bureaucracy."

Opponent Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, said that after a rocky beginning "FADA is now under new leadership and its performance has improved dramatically."

Members voting yes wanted to eliminate the agency.

North Carolina representatives voting yes included Martin Lancaster, D-3; David Price, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; Charles Rose, D-7; and W.G. Hefner, D-8.

Voting no were Howard Coble, R-6 and Cass Ballenger, R-10.

Not voting were Walter Jones, D-1, and Tim Valentine, D-2.

SENATE

DRUG BILL — By a vote of 87 for and 3 against, the Senate sent to conference with the House a bill (HR 5210) authorizing $2.6 billion over two years for a broad attack on the supply and use of illegal drugs in the United States.

The bill allows the death penalty for certain drug-related murders, sets civil penalties for casual users, denies many federal benefits to those illegally involved with drugs and begins random drug testing driver's license applicants in four states. It omits House-approved language to legitimize certain drug evidence obtained without search warrants.

Along with its punitive measures, the massive bill funds education, prevention and rehabilitation programs, and attacks related problems such as homelessness, juvenile crime, alcohol abuse and AIDS.

Senators voting yes supported the bill.

Terry Sanford did not vote. Jesse Helms voted yes.

TO DENY BENEFITS — By a vote of 78 for and 11 against, the Senate amended the anti-drug bill (above) to deny an array of federal benefits to drug traffickers and users.

This would deny discretionary benefits such as loans, grants, contracts, mortgage assistance and public housing, while excluding so-called "earned" benefits from veterans' programs, Social Security, Medicare and other federal programs.

Sponsor Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said the amendment was aimed mainly at the demand side of the drug problem, "the market which consists of 23 million people who use drugs on a more or less regular basis."

Opponent Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said "If strong criminal penalties do not provide a deterrent, I am not convinced the loss of federal benefits will."

Senators voting yes wanted to deny certain federal benefits to those illegally involved with drugs. Sanford did not vote. Helms voted yes.

DRIVER'S LICENSES AND DRUGS — By a vote of 77 for and 10 against, the Senate adopted an amendment to the drug bill (above) to begin random drug testing in California and three as-yet-unnamed states of young persons applying for driver's licenses. The pilot program could be extended to other states.

Supporter Howell Heflin, D-Ala., said the fear of losing driving privileges would turn many youths away from drugs.

Opponent Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said the program would prove to be unworkable and unconstitutional.

Senators voting yes favored a pilot program of random drug testing of driver's license applicants.

Sanford did not vote. Helms voted yes.

VETERAN BENEFITS By a vote of 15 for and 47 against the Senate failed to table (kill) an amendment enabling veterans to obtain flight training under the GI bill. This preserved the benefit as part of an overall veterans' bill. This preserved the benefit as part of an overall veterans' bill (HR 4741) later returned to the House.

Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. who voted to table, said Congress in 1981 stopped flight training under the GI bill because too many veterans were using the benefit for recreational purposes.

Sponsor Thomas Daschle, D-S.D., said the provision will make it easier for some veterans to obtain jobs in commercial aviation.

Senators voting no wanted to make flight training costs reimbursable under the GI bill.

Sanford voted no. Helms voted yes.

NICARAGUA AND CHILE — By a vote of 12 for and 54 against, the Senate failed to table (kill) a sense-of-the-Senate resolution aimed at Nicaragua's Marxist government and Chile's right-wing dictatorship. The measure later was approved as part of a Montana wilderness bill (S 2751).

The resolution accused the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua of violating the Central American peace process and urged humanitarian aid for the Contra rebels. And it called upon Chilean strongman Augusto Pinochet to keep his promise to hold competitive presidential elections in 1989.

Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who voted to table, objected to the resolution's criticism of the Pinochet government.

Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said that after 15 years of Pinochet rule, "It is time for the military of Chile to return to barracks...."

Senators voting no supported the resolution.

Sanford voted yes. Helms voted no.

Manager Of Troubled Nuclear Plant Was Presented Performance Awards

By Bryan Brumley
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Department of Energy gave a manager of the Savannah River Plant $59,750 in the awards for excellence despite continuing problems that have stopped the manufacture of nuclear weapons material there, according to government documents.

The manager, Robert Morgan, who retired early this year, is one of many individuals and organizations that received cash bonuses totaling millions of dollars despite a steady decline in the safety of the Savannah River nuclear weapons production complex run by the Energy Department for the Pentagon.

A department spokesman, Will Callicott, said he was not aware of any plans to review the system of awards.

Morgan received the bonuses in 1981-1987 despite growing safety problems which finally forced the department this year to close down all three nuclear reactors at Savannah River, according to Energy Department documents and Capitol Hill testimony. The three reactors went into operation in the early 1950's at the plant, in Aiken, S.C.

According to an Oct. 26, 1983 letter from Rep. John Dingell, chairman of the House subcommittee on oversight and investigations, the following individuals are among the many who received cash awards:

—Herman Roser, then assistant secretary, received $36,917 in bonuses 1980-83, although according to Dingell he "killed the independent assessment program which had been severely critical of his security program" when he ran the department's regional headquarters in Albuquerque, N.M.

—Troy Wade, then deputy assistant secretary, was awarded $32,713 in 1980-83, although according to Dingell he backed Roser in closing the independent assessment office.

—James Culpepper, then deputy assistant secretary, received $21,112 in awards and bonuses in 1980-83, although according to Dingell he was in charge of developing a report on safeguards that the congressional General Accounting Office later described as "misleading."

—Ralph Cradle, then the Director of the Office of Safeguards and Security, received awards totaling $14,943 1982-83, despite making what Dingell called "not true" statements about safeguards at department facilities.

The department spokesman, Callicott, said he could not discuss the bonus program in detail, and referred a reporter to comments made by Energy Secretary John S. Herrington in an interview published Wednesday by The New York Times, which detailed other awards made to individuals and contractors.

Trio Indicted In Drug Probe

RALEIGH (AP) — Three Pender County residents whose property was seized by federal authorities in March have been indicted on charges relating to a marijuana importation scheme dating to January 1981.

Thomas Jackson Hawes, 55, Billie Jo Kilgore, 46, and George Kazaras, 61, all of Burgaw, were charged with conspiracy to import, possess and distribute marijuana. The indictment said the defendants had assumed interchangeable roles in the conspiracy, participating on an "as needed basis" as financier, organizer, crew member and distributor.

The indictment, returned by a federal grand jury in Raleigh Tuesday, alleged that the defendants had traveled within the United States and foreign countries "to facilitate the drug-smuggling operation as well as launder drug monies through the use of foreign corporations and financial institutions."

Hawes also was charged with racketeering in connection with alleged investments of drug proceeds in Pender Boat Co. The company never manufactured or sold boats, according to the indictment. The Pender Boat Co. building and tracts surrounding it were among the property seized in the investigation.

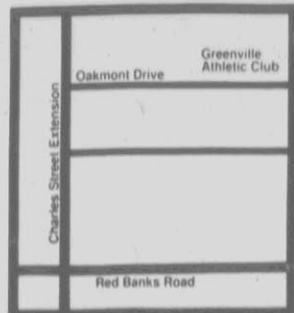

He also was charged with traveling and causing others to travel in interstate commerce to carry on the business enterprise of marijuana possession. He and Ms. Kilgore further were charged with violating firearms and currency transaction laws.

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY Oct. 27

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): A puzzling situation at work can be cleared up by consulting those with inside information. Avoid idle curiosity, and don't meddle.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): An important communication comes to you which you have been patiently waiting for. Contact relatives and friends to confirm a reunion.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Forgetting important dates will not place you high on the popularity list. Catch up on correspondence and contacts you've neglected.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Make your peace with a loved one. A desire for privacy is not a luxury. It's a necessity. This is the root of emotional problems.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): A partnership or companion who has your heart and pocketbook at stake is at high risk. You can decide to separate the issue or not.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): A misunderstanding occurs because of special favors granted to a family member. Getting together for discussions will put you in control.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Keep your weekend plans flexible. Unexpected changes may force reevaluation. A fuss can be avoided by considering and using alternatives.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Remain platonic with a friend at work who may make overtures. This person is not in tune with you. The rapture may be short-lived.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Avoid a clash with a friend over money. Whether lending or borrowing, manage to neutralize the situation and avoid giving in.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You keep procrastinating on making reservations or buying tickets to events that interest you and your mate. Take action now.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You have the green light to make home improvements which have recently been a source of irritation. Happiness is at a high point.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Mark this day on the calendar for future reference. It is a turning point. You will look back and see that future events started now.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West

Opening lead: Eight of ♥

Our father was a wise man. We remember him telling us: "Listen to the words of your elders, for they have learned from experience. Then be sure that you don't make the same mistakes they did!"

At both tables in a team game, North-South reached a contract of three no trumps. The auctions were identical and normal.

In light of South's initial response, a spade lead was ruled out, and neither West felt like leading from jack-third in a minor suit; so the opening lead at both tables was a top-of-nothing heart. Both Easts rose with the ace and found the excellent defense of switching to the jack of spades.

At one table, declarer remembered being taught: "Cover an honor with an honor." He put up the queen of spades, West won the king and returned a low spade to his partner's ten. A spade continuation through declarer's nine allowed West to score the ace-eight, and the defenders had four spades and the ace of hearts in the bank before declarer had blinked an eye.

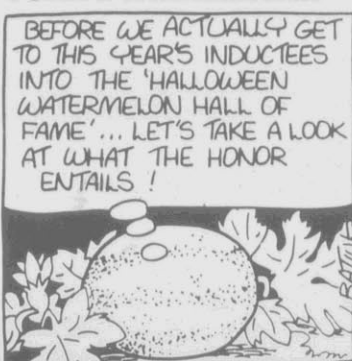

At the other table, declarer worked out that, if he ducked the jack of spades, he was in jeopardy only if East had made a spectacular shift to the jack from J x x. All other spade distributions could be defused. He therefore played low, and no matter how the defense continued the contract was as secure as Fort Knox. Had East continued with a low spade, declarer intended inserting the nine. When, in fact,

East continued with the ten, declarer covered with the queen and West could do him no harm.
